

Israeli Guns Blast PLO In West Beirut

By The Associated Press
Israeli artillery and warships blasted beleaguered Palestinian guerrillas in Moslem west Beirut from three sides today, and Lebanon's state radio said shells slammed into residential neighborhoods, causing heavy casualties. Israeli tanks and artillery pounded the city from the hills south and east of the city while naval guns fired into the Palestinian enclaves from the west. Guerrillas fired guns in the air to cordon off large sections of the Lebanese capital's Corniche Mazraa Boulevard, where several buildings were reported hit. Fire engines and ambulances raced into stricken neighborhoods abutting the mid-city highway and clouds of thick smoke spread over the area. The Palestine Liberation Organization said there were "many Palestinian casualties." Lebanese police said an initial count showed an additional 10 Lebanese civilians were killed and 77 wounded in downtown residential districts.

It was not clear whether the latest blitz signaled an all-out assault on Palestine Liberation Organization bunkers in a 10-square-mile area of mostly Moslem west Beirut, all that remains under the guerrilla group's control since Israel's June 6 invasion.

The PLO said its teeming camps on the southern flank of the Lebanese capital were the target of "indiscriminate bombardment" and claimed PLO-run hospitals sustained direct hits as the nightlong duels flared without letup past midday.

The state radio said Beirut's paralyzed airport and nearby PLO and Syrian positions were blasted by Israeli military and naval shelling and advised west Beirut's 600,000 inhabitants to seek shelter in basements.

In Tel Aviv, the military command reported Israeli gunners exchanged artillery fire with PLO guerrillas in Beirut's southern slums shortly after midnight, but gave no details. Israel radio reported guerrillas earlier rocketed Israeli positions near Beirut airport, south of the Lebanese capital.

Earlier, Lebanese sources said Christian and PLO gunners appeared to be shelling each other without Israeli involvement along battle lines around southern Beirut's sprawling Burj el Barajneh refugee slums.

An artillery shell slammed into a building near the foreign press center in west Beirut, wounding at least 11 people and igniting several fires in a bombardment blamed on Israeli gunners.

War correspondents said one shell exploded half a block from the Soviet Embassy, and another tore into an apartment building next to The Associated Press bureau and half a block from the international press center in west Beirut's Commodore Hotel. None of the more than 200 foreign journalists, photographers and television crews covering the Lebanese crisis was injured.

Lebanon's state and privately owned radio stations said the shell that exploded near the Commodore was one of several that hit buildings around the nerve center of the PLO. They said the blitz was one of the heaviest since invading Israeli forces and their Lebanese Christian allies laid siege to the PLO enclaves in the capital eight days ago.

PLO chief Yasser Arafat and his 6,000 guerrilla fighters trapped in the west Beirut enclaves have promised a bloody last stand if Israeli or Christian forces attack. Hundreds of panicky west Beirut residents have fled the area, seeking shelter in Christian east Beirut and Israeli-held southern Lebanon.

Pitt Commissioners Are Told Millions Go To Vets

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Veterans service officer Oscar Moore told members of the Board of County Commissioners today that more than $6.5 million in benefits were paid veterans in Pitt County during 1981.

Moore, saying most of the benefits are spent in the county by the recipients, noted that the local Veterans Service Office is the fifth busiest office in the state.

In other business this morning commissioners accepted the resignation of J.J. Morgan III of Farmville as a member of the Pitt County Development Commission and resignation of Morgan and Russell Houston III from the Certified Development Commission.

The board named Robert Earl Briley to replace the late Jack S. Warren as a member of the Development Commission and the Certified Development Commission and appointed Richard McLawhorn of Grifton as a member of the Certified Development Commission to replace Houston.

The board reappointed James Little to the Winterville Planning and Zoning board.

Commissioners also approved the new schedule 'B' license schedule; approved the negotiated sale of nine surplus county-owned vehicles; and okayed a request by the Greenville Jaycees to conduct a fireworks display at Carolina East Mall on July 3 and at the town commons on July 4.

County engineer C. A. Holliday reported that work on an addition to the Pitt County Garage and construction of the Port Terminal solid waste container site has been completed.

County manager Reginald Gray noted that as soon as containers are placed at the Port Terminal site — either today or Tuesday — the facility will be ready for use.

A public hearing on the proposed 1982-83 budget is scheduled for 7 p.m. today at the county office building at 1717 West Fifth St.

British Royal Family Is Awaiting Birth Of A Baby

LONDON (AP) — With Prince Charles at her side, Princess Diana entered London's St. Mary's Hospital today "in the early stages of labor," Buckingham Palace announced.

Crowds quickly gathered outside the hospital, in the Paddington district of West London, to await the birth of a baby who may one day sit on the British throne.

Flowers and cards streamed into the hospital's reception desk.

A brief announcement said the princess was admitted to the hospital between 5 a.m. and 6 a.m. — midnight and 1 a.m. EDT.

A palace spokesman later said it could be "many hours" before there was further news of her progress in labor but he said there was no cause for concern, adding: "The Princess of Wales is in the best of health."

A palace spokeswoman said the 33-year-old heir to the throne intended to be present at the birth of his first child.

The 20-year-old princess was admitted to the same hospital where Princess Anne, her sister-in-law, had her two children.

Press reports had said Diana wanted to have her baby in a hospital while Queen Elizabeth II had preferred Buckingham Palace for the birth. All four of the queen's children were born at the palace.

The queen went ahead with a scheduled visit to Royal Air Force base Wittering in central England, but a special radio hotline was arranged aboard her Andover aircraft to keep her in touch with news from the hospital.

Departing for her trip at Heathrow Airport, the monarch "looked delighted," said an airport official. "There was a big smile for everyone."

Britain's domestic Press Association news agency said Charles returned to Windsor Castle on Sunday afternoon from France, where he had attended a memorial ceremony for a British parachute regiment of which is colonel-in-chief. The prince canceled a planned polo match Sunday afternoon.

Press Association said Diana met Charles at Windsor Castle on his return from France and then drove him to Kensington Palace, the couple's London home.

A palace spokeswoman said she could not confirm the report that Diana drove the car, but said the prince arrived by helicopter at Windsor. A London newspaper said he had flown by helicopter directly from France to Kensington palace. It reportedly was the first time a helicopter had brought a member of the Royal Family home from abroad right to his own doorstep.

The princess, whose marriage to Charles in St. Paul's Cathedral, July 29, 1981, was watched by millions on worldwide television, had remained in the public eye up to last week.

Diana, who had said her baby was due on her birthday, July 1, continued her royal engagements until just days before entering the hospital, appearing in public in fashionable, gaily colored maternity frocks.

Her last public appearance was in the Royal Box at the fashionable Ascot race meeting last Tuesday, and a polo match at nearby Windsor Castle later in the day.

The royal couple is paying the equivalent of $220 a day for the 12-foot by 12-foot private room in the five-story hospital.

Diana's bodyguard accompanied the couple to the hospital, and later as crowds gathered, police patrolled outside. Dozens of television cameras were set up in the street and scores of reporters asked well-wishers whether they hoped for a boy or girl. The consensus favored a boy.

"There won't be much work done here today," said Kay O'Connell in the hospital records office, "and after the baby is born we will celebrate by having a few drinks and a good knee-up (celebration)."

The imminent birth headed radio and television newscasts, pushing out the Falklands conflict as the biggest news of the day.

Whether the baby is a boy or girl, it will be second in the line of succession to the British throne, after Charles. But a first-born girl would be pushed down the line if she later had a brother.

The rules of descent date from the English Act of Settlement of 1701.

Diana's baby will be the first child born to a prince and princess of Wales since 1905 and will be in line to become the first truly English monarch in centuries.

Princess Diana is the first English bride of an heir to the throne since 1659, when Lady Anne Hyde, daughter of the Earl of Clarendon, married the future James II.

Diana is descended from four kings and has several distant relatives in common with Charles.

The daughter of the 8th Earl Spencer and the former Frances Ruth Burke Roche, was thrust from obscurity to international fame when her engagement to Prince Charles was announced Feb. 24, 1981. The two had known each other since childhood.

At the time of her engagement, Diana, who became fondly known as "Lady Di," was an assistant kindergarten teacher and shared a London apartment with three other young women.

Grand Prix No Money-Maker

DETROIT (AP) — Some businesses say they lost money during Detroit's first Grand Prix auto race on June 6 by stocking up for crowds that never came.

Restaurateur Dimetrios Paptriantafyllou said he "wasted" enough food for 2,000 more dinners, and Joe Portalski said that although the 2.4-mile downtown race course passed his restaurant, barricades out front made it look closed.

Detroit Renaissance Inc., the organization of business and civic leaders that sponsored the event, estimated the race's cost at $2.5 million and earnings at $4 million.

Parleys Fail, Michigan Lays Off Workers

By CYNTHIA KYLE
Associated Press Writer
LANSING, Mich. (AP) —

Twelve hundred state employees were out of a job today after weekend talks failed to produce wage concessions demanded by Gov. William Milliken to balance the budget.

Negotiations with the Michigan State Employees Association, which had stalled for more than a month, resumed for nearly 14 hours Saturday but foundered after 90 minutes Sunday on job security issues.

Milliken's plan, announced three weeks ago, calls for eventual indefinite layoffs for 1,600 people. Another 627 MSEA members will be forced to take off 11 days without pay and 13,758 workers face three one-day layoffs.

The layoffs are part of an overall plan to trim a projected $615 million budget gap.

"It's tragic. It's all over but the funeral," said Karen Black, a member of the union's bargaining committee who works as a secretary in the state Department of Labor, as the talks collapsed. "It just did not work," said Stan Kravit, the state's chief negotiator.

The talks ended when union bargainers walked out, expressing disappointment and charging that the administration had shown little willingness to compromise.

But this morning, Ms. Black said she was trying to move the union toward offering the state a counter-proposal to stop any further layoffs.

"I don't think we tried this weekend like we could," she said. Up until this weekend, I felt we had made every effort."

While other union leaders are skeptical, they expressed some willingness to talk, she said.

Kravit, contacted after midnight, sounded somewhat open to the suggestion that negotiators attempt once more to iron out their differences, she said.

CLEARING THE AREA — Militiamen armed with AK-47 automatic rifles clear the street underneath a building that was damaged this morning as shells hit West Beirut. This building is located one block away from the Press Center at the Commodore Hotel, and The Associated Press office. ## City Employee Killed In Wreck

Greenville resident Julian R. Rawls, Jr., a native of Oak City, died early Sunday afternoon as the result of injuries received in an automobile accident north of Bethel. Rawls was an employee of the city of Greenville, working for the Council on Aging. He was in charge of the home delivery meals program.

Edgecombe County State Highway Patrol Officer R.C. Wilder investigated the accident. According to his report, the head-on collision occurred at 1:15 p.m. on N.C. 11 in the strip of Edgecombe County between Pitt and Martin Counties on the Bethel-Oak City stretch of N.C. 11.

Rawls died at Pitt Memorial Hospital shortly after being transported from the accident scene. Funeral arrangements are to be handled by the Scotland Neck Funeral Home, Scotland Neck.

Another person, Linwood Swinson of Virginia Beach, Va. was injured in the accident and is in critical condition at Duke Hospital.

The accident report reveals that Swinson passed an unidentified vehicle and crashed head-on into the Rawls vehicle. Charges in the accident are pending.

In both instances, the drivers were the sole occupants in the vehicles involved in the crash.

For several years, Rawls worked on federally funded grant programs at East Carolina University. His work there was primarily in conjunction with grants for projects in the local public school systems. The programs terminated two years ago.

DOORS CLOSED

At the North Pitt High School graduation announced as to begin at 8 p.m. the doors to the auditorium were locked no later than 7:50 and even people with tickets did not get in. The auditorium was not full. I, as the parent of a graduating senior, with a ticket, was upset. E.W.

North Pitt High School Principal Josh Potter said that tickets were distributed because the school has accommodations for only so many people. He said that the students were informed in advance that the doors would be closed before the graduation procession to make the ceremony more orderly. Potter said the doors were closed at 7:55.

MRS. CHARLES ALLEN HARDY

Miss Warren Wed

Donna Lou Warren and Charles Allen Hardy were married Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The Rev. Ralph Wood performed the double-ring ceremony in the Church of God, Washington, N.C.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Warren Sr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hardy of Washington.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. James Walters, pianist, and James Walters, who sang "Evergreen" and the "Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Gentry Elks of Washington, aunt of the bridegroom, directed the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and silk Venice lace fashioned with a square tucked neckline outlined with silk Venice lace and a double flounce which also formed the sleeves. The full skirt with tucks and lace flowed into an attached chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion bordered in scalloped lace was attached to a matching lace capulet. The bride carried a nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, white miniature carnations and white cushion poms with baby's breath and white picot ribbon.

Janene Whitehurst served as maid of honor and wore a formal gown of white eyelet accented with pink and daphne flowers. The gown was designed with a portrait neckline, a ruffled bertha collar and self-sash. The flared skirt was accented by a ruffled flounce at the hemline. She wore pink ribbons in her hair and carried a silk hand bouquet of pink miniature carnations, white baby's breath and greenery with pink bow and streamers.

Libby Hardy, sister of the bridegroom, and Tammy Lee of Washington were bridesmaids. Their dresses were in pink and styled identically to the honor attendant. They wore matching ribbons in their hair and carried silk hand bouquets of pink carnations with matching streamers. Amanda Hudson of Greenville and cousin of the bride was flower girl. She wore a formal gown of white eyelet accented with pink ribbon. She wore pink and white ribbon in her hair and carried a white wicker basket of pink miniature carnations, pink sweetheart roses and white and daphne baby's breath with matching streamers.

Glenn Hudson of Greenville and cousin of the bride was ring bearer. He carried a white pillow edged with lace.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Joel Mizell of Washington and Marty Warren of Greenville, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mauve antique crochet styled with an open neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of jonquil yellow and was highlighted with an attached overlay bodice. Both mothers were remembered with white carnation corsages.

Mrs. Lizzie Colville, grandmother of the bride, Mrs. Dock Hardy and Mrs. Floyd Hull, grandmothers of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Myrtle Rowe, great-grandmother of the bridegroom, were given corsages. A reception was given by the couple's parents and was held at the Brentwood Lodge. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Warren Jr., brother and sister-in-law of the bride.

The bridegroom's parents entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at their home after the wedding rehearsal.

After a wedding trip to the coast the couple will live near Washington where the bridegroom is engaged in farming.

On Saturday a bridesmaids luncheon was held at the home of Mrs. Clifton E. Warren. Mrs. Mitchel G. Hudson of Greenville was assisting hostess.

MRS. BILLY GURGANUS

Gurganus, Cogar Wed at Morehead

MOREHEAD CITY — DeLores Ann Cogar and Billy Gurganus, both of Greenville, were united in marriage Sunday at three o'clock in the Parkview Baptist Church here. Rev. Raymond Whitby officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Cogar of Morehead City. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. C.B. Gurganus of Robersonville.

A program of wedding music was performed by organist Sandra Moore and soloist Phyllis Askew.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and wore a gown of sheerganza over taffeta with an empire bodice and a scalloped neckline bordered in silk Venice motifs. The full sleeves flowed to lace covered cuffs. The full skirt fell to a lace edged hemline and extended to a chapel length train. The chapel length veil fell from a cape of Venice lace and was enhanced with scattered motifs of Venice lace. She carried a bouquet of silk rosebuds and stephanotis.

Matron of honor was Betty Eubanks of Morehead City, sister of the bride. She wore a taffeta and chiffon dress with a Victorian neckline and long fitted sleeves. The bodice was overlaid with lace and featured a ruffle around the neckline. The long full skirt was accented with a cascade of ruffles down the back and a satin ribbon at the waistline. She carried a nosegay of pastel silk flowers accented with yellow roses.

Bridesmaids were Trillis Williams of Robersonville, sister of the bridegroom, and Annie Dodson of Newport. They wore dresses like that of the honor attendant and carried silk flowers accented with lavender roses.

Johanna Eubanks of Morehead City, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. She wore a dress similar to that of the honor attendant and carried a basket of rose petals accented with pastel ribbons.

Serving as best man was Brent Williams of Robersonville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Ushers were Donnie Eubanks of Morehead City, brother-in-law of the bride, and Ward Gurganus of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom. Candlelighter was Jonathan Eubanks and ring bearer was Jeremy Eubanks, both nephews of the bride from Morehead City.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. Assisting in serving were Mrs. Mary Sutton of Morehead City, Mrs. Laura Cogar of Alexandria, Va., Mrs. Donna

Nelson-Carraway Vows Said Sunday

BELVOIR — Lisa Elaine Carraway of Falkland and Mark Preston Nelson of Greenville were married Sunday in a three o'clock ceremony in the Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church here.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Carraway of Falkland. Parents of the bridegroom are Audrey O. Nelson of Washington and Luke Nelson of Pactolus.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ray Williamson. Organist Millie Tripp of Pactolus provided wedding music and the soloist was Amanda Holliman of Stokes.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, wore a formal-length gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline, fitted sweetheart bodice, chantilly lace bishop sleeves and a chantilly lace peplum which fell from the natural waistline. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented with scalloped chantilly lace edging with pearls. She wore a double-tiered chapel-length veil of illusion edged in scalloped chantilly lace with pearls held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace. She wore a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom, and carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, cymbidium orchids, lily of the valley, stephanotis and ivy accented by a lace bow and satin and lace streamers.

Kim Carraway of Falkland was her sister's maid of honor. Matron of honor was Bonnie Cannon of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. Bridesmaids were Lydia Carraway of Falkland and Judy Nelson of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom. They each wore a jacketed full-length floral sundress with a cream background and peach, yellow and blue flowers. Each attendant wore a gold bracelet, a gift from the bride, and carried an arm bouquet of day lilies, blue irises and orange blossoms.

Honorary bridesmaids were Lynn Allen and Terry Pritchard of Bethel, Lori Brown of Greenville, Amanda Holliman of Stokes and Linda James of Robersonville.

Shara Cannon of Greenville, niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl. She wore a full-length peach gown with a white eyelet pinafore tied with peach satin ribbon and carried a miniature wicker basket filled with peach snap dragons, blue bells and matching ribbon. Ring bearer was Lee Carraway of Falkland, nephew of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of light peach polyester. The mother of the bridegroom chose a fushia floor-length gown of polyester. Both wore corsages of roses. The grandmothers of the couple were remembered with corsages.

Allan Cannon of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Albert Campbell of Washington, David and Tony Carraway, both brothers of the bride from Falkland, and Mike Hattem of Williamston and Donovan Hardy of Greenville.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. Lynn Allen of Bethel poured punch and Terry Peaden of Falkland served cake. Assisting in serving were Marie Briley, Elizabeth Brown, Brenda Carraway, Jay Carraway, Marie Carraway, Judy Corbett and Donna Simpkins. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mayo of

MRS. MARK PRESTON NELSON

Falkland said hellos and Mrs. Elizabeth Morris of Belvoir and Mrs. Kathryn Lewis of Pactolus said goodbyes. Terry Pritchard of Bethel presided at the gift

Relations Will Improve

Gen. Leopoldo Galtieri is gone as the top man in Argentina. He resigned from his position as army commander last week, a victim of his foolish move into the Falkland Islands and the subsequent defeat by the British.

The Falklands obviously have meaning to Argentines and patriotism ran high when it was announced that Argentine troops had seized the islands from Great Britain. The enthusiasm quickly turned to discontent when the military operation turned into defeat for Argentina.

Galtieri blustered until the last, making a defiant television talk in which he implied that all who disagreed with him were traitors. That was not enough to save him. The damage to the nation's reputation had been done.

Actually the Falklands situation was only a part of the troubles in Argentina. The economy is in turmoil and there are demands for return to democratic government. The invasion was likely an attempt to turn the nation's attention away from its more pressing problems.

There are few in our country who will be sorry that Gen. Galtieri is gone. Nevertheless the United States has a major rebuilding job to do. Even through dictatorships there has been a steadfast friendship between the U.S. and the Argentine people. We think those bonds can be quickly restored. After all our country did not fire a shot in the Falklands war and probably did little more that provide intelligence and give moral support to Britain.

Close ties between Argentina and the United States are entirely logical and essential for both nations and we would expect an improvement in relations rather quickly.

Democracy On Guard

It is ten years after the Watergate debacle and the ABC information program "20-20" reveals that a federal jury was ready to indict then President Nixon.

The jury was talked out of it by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski who said there was no precedent and reminded that the president could defy the order as commander of the armed services.

As we all know the president resigned and subsequently was pardoned by President Ford and this sad chapter in American history ended.

As the tenth anniversary passed it was all rehashed again with the overriding question being whether it can happen again.

Of course it can, or something similar, which is why a democracy constantly has to be on guard.

Assembly Women

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Although the number of women serving in a General Assembly has grown tremendously during the past decade, the legislative delegation from the eastern counties continues to be an almost exclusively male domain.

Female representation in the 170-member legislature rose to 23 in 1979 and is 22 currently — about 13 percent of the total. But of the 42 seats available in eastern House districts, women hold only two. In the West, four women hold House seats out of 21 available. In the Piedmont, 13 women are included in a 57-member House delegation. All three female senators are from the Piedmont, although some of the district of Gastonia's Sen. Helen Marvin is considered western.

Why such a difference in regions? The simple answer would be that the rural East is more conservative and socially traditional — a woman's place is considered to be in the home, not the legislature. Two female legislators interviewed for this column hinted at that reasoning while giving broader answers.

Rep. Betsy Cochrane of Advance says Piedmont voters are "more sophisticated, more willing to look at a woman. They're more issue-oriented and we have a two-party system which indicates that people look at the candidates and the issues." Rep. Margaret Hayden of Sparta says "women are not perceived by the average citizens in rural areas as being leaders." But she added that rural women have not run for public office in great numbers; either.

Secretary of Administration Jane Patterson said women in the West and Piedmont have had more opportunity to get an education and to make their own money. "The economy has brought more women out of the home and into the workplace, which, national studies show, leads them into politics." Working women have the best voter turnout records of any demographic class in the country, she said. They are closely followed by educated women. When women start voting, female candidates begin winning.

Rep. Jeanne Fenner of Wilson is the only female legislator representing a rural eastern district and she discounts those reasons. The East has fewer female legislators because women don't get basic political experience in the East, she says.

All politicians rise from a constituency. In every district, businessmen form the most powerful of such constituencies. A future candidate works within this network to build the contacts he'll need to win office. But businessmen statewide are reluctant to back new female candidates because few have business backgrounds. In urban areas, where women have long been organized politically, female candidates can develop a constituency through the city women's clubs and the Democratic and Republican women's organizations. These aren't available to rural women, Rep. Fenner says.

Mrs. Fenner thinks more women can get elected in the East. This election will see a number of eastern women take seats on county boards and city councils, she predicts. The secret is to build a constituency outside of the

Other Editors Say Need Frankness

(Salisbury Post)

Candidates for state judgeships, even if they were so inclined, are effectively halted by their own judicial code of ethics from waging vigorous and meaningful campaigns for the offices. Or so some of them claim.

One candidate for the court of appeals, George W. Lennon, recently stepped on some judicial toes by criticizing some of his opponents.

This is a no-no, according to the code covering judicial conduct. It says a candidate "should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of his duties of office; announce his views on disputed legal or political issues; or misrepresent his identity, qualifications, present position, or some other fact."

But within all of those cliches, there is room for fruitful discussion of the legal system and its faults. But the judicial mind is notorious for interpreting codes and laws in self-serving ways.

In this court campaign, some have chosen to see that it restricts them from saying more than that they would make splendid judges.

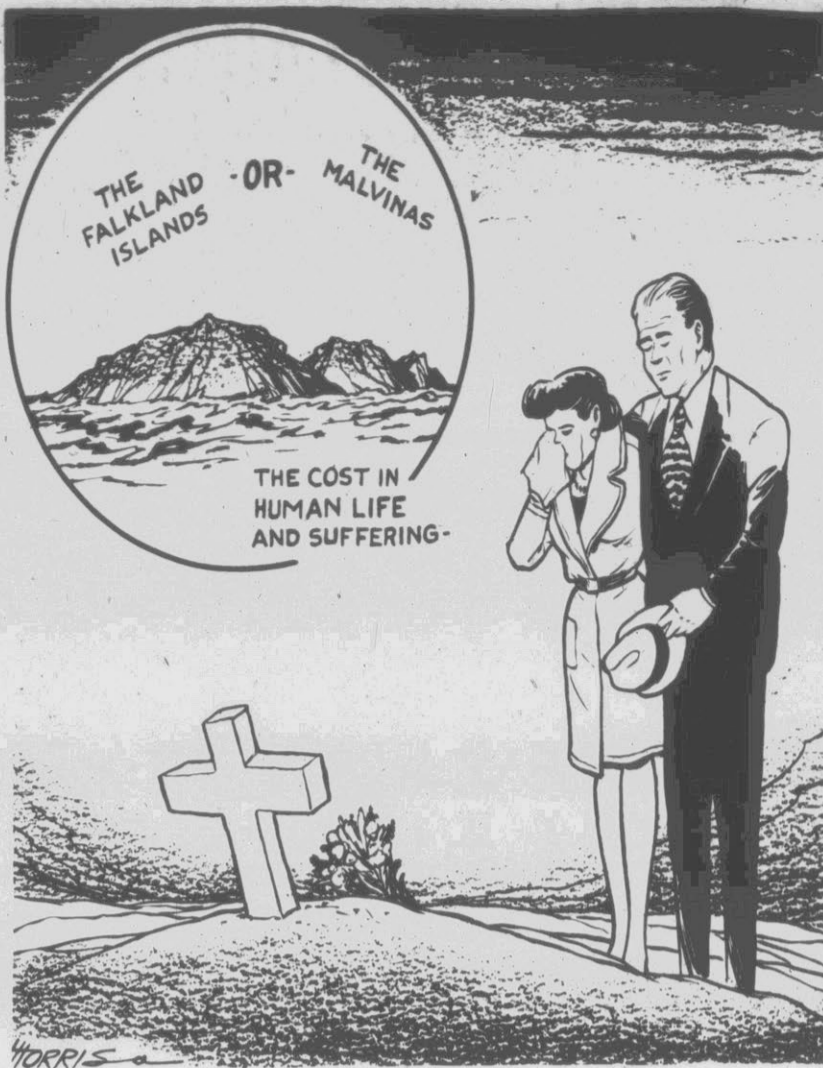

The issues surrounding the courts are plentiful and should have a full airing. But one North Carolina newspaper, choosing to question the candidates closely instead of relying on public statements, found them evasive.

To virtually all questions of substance, some of the candidates chose to say "no comment" on the grounds that they would violate the canons of their profession were they to say more. Lennon chose to expound, even into the qualifications of his opponents, and thereby earned criticism.

But at the heart of the public election system is that an informed public is making the decision. The public cannot be informed if the candidates choose to hide behind a code. They are, in fact, does not say what they assert it does. They are allowed to express "views on disputed legal or political issues", and that is a fairly wide leeway.

Since very few of the voters know anything about judicial candidates, perhaps the best way to judge them is to watch their statements and see which ones are most willing to reveal their thoughts. The court system is not the playing of the legal profession although it sometimes acts like it is. The candidates must play fair with the public if the election system is to mean anything.

The Realities Of Life

"Hey, Dad, guess what? I've been accepted by Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell and Stanford."

"That's just wonderful, son. But are you really sure you want to go to college?"

"Gosh, Dad, you always said the one thing everyone needed in life was a college education."

"I was making conversation. I know a lot of people who are big wheels in their fields who never had a university diploma. You know my friend Sam Steg in Boston? He not only never went to college, he never even saw an Ivy League football game. He is one of the most successful men I know."

"And Eddie Aaronson of Rockville, Md., made a decision that he could educate himself much better than any school could do it for him. The man can buy and sell anybody who went to the Wharton School of Business."

"But you went to college."

"If I knew then what I know now, I would have never done it. I wasted four of the best years of my life studying for exams. I could have been driving a taxi then, instead of throwing my parents' money away on books and courses and dates. But just because I made a mistake is no reason you have to make the same one."

"Gee, Dad, you never told me how unhappy you were at Dartmouth."

"I didn't want you to know, because I was afraid you would think less of me. All fathers have skeletons in their closets that they try to keep from their children. Now that you're a man I feel I can level with you. The only reason I went to college was to stay out of the Army."

"I thought you would be pleased that I was accepted."

by five of the best schools in the country."

"I am, son. But just because they accepted you is no reason you have to go to any one of them. You've got a brilliant mind, and I hate to see them load it down with a lot of intellectual nonsense that could mess you up for the rest of your life. Besides, every college that has accepted you is part of the elitist establishment. By the time you graduate, you'll think that you are better than everybody else. Worse still, everybody else will think the same thing. Once you get a degree from a top-flight school, you'll be a marked man for the rest of your days."

"Mom wants me to go to a good college."

"All mothers want their sons to go to a good college. But that doesn't mean it's right. They think because you've been accepted in some fancy school it reflects favorably on them. It's not important what Mom wants for you. It's what you want for yourself."

"I want to go to a good school."

"You say that now because you've never been to one. You're young and idealistic and you believe that all you need to get ahead is an education. But as you grow older you'll discover it isn't the college but the man that matters. I can introduce you to graduates of every university you have been accepted at, who will tell you they would have been happier being male disco dancers."

"What do you want me to do, Dad?"

"It's your decision, son. I don't want to influence you one way or the other. But if I were your age, I'd buy a backpack and hitchhike across the country. You'll learn a lot more than you will in some Ivy League institution."

"Dad, can I ask you a question?"

"Yes, son."

"Are we broke?"

"We're not broke. But we will be if you go to one of those five schools."

"Okay, then I'll go to the University of Maryland. It always was my first choice."

"Thanks, son. You just saved the old plantation."

Reformer In N.Y. Contest

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
NEW YORK — Inability of the men who long have controlled the New York Republican Party to keep millionaire businessman-scholar Lewis Lehrman off the September primary ballot was no mere loss of a political skirmish but a threat to the very existence of their political system.

Lehrman's first-place finish in the four-man field on the first-ballot voting for governor at the state convention Wednesday ended nine months of increasingly desperate efforts by party leaders to keep him short of the 25 percent of convention votes needed to put him on the primary ballot. Relieved of the expensive and laborious chore of getting into the primary through petitions, Lehrman is now an overwhelming favorite for the nomination.

Consequently, no other political race in 1982 will carry the significance of the New York election for governor (particularly if New York City Mayor Ed Koch is the Democratic nominee). Lehrman will be carrying the torch of supply-side economics that he feels the Reagan administration has dropped and, what is no less important, of radical reform. It is the reformer's role that really worries the New York state Republican establishment.

That sets Lehrman apart from Nelson Rockefeller, who in 1958 had no more political experience than Lehrman today but was welcomed with open arms by the party leaders. As a four-times elected governor, Rockefeller never interfered in the "arrangements" that make politics so commercially profitable in this state.

Lehrman is determined to smash those "arrangements" as part of his intent to radically reduce the scope and limit the nature of the state government. That explains the tenacious efforts to stop him by Joseph Margiotta, who, as Nassau County chairman, is the state's most powerful Republican leader.

Margiotta backed a series of moves to outflank Lehrman's self-financed candidacy by finding a consensus party choice to oppose him. That man turned out to be ex-U.S. Attorney Paul Curran, who had written the judge asking for clemency after Margiotta was convicted of bribery and conspiracy (his appeal is pending). Margiotta can expect no such gestures of friendship from Lehrman.

So, as the Republicans convened at the Sheraton Centre Hotel, Margiotta was complaining to all who would listen that a common front against Lehrman had not been constructed. Margiotta had the Nassau County delegation marching in lockstep for Curran. But 22 other county chairmen backed State Assembly leader James Emery instead of Curran; in a state where politics is a business, some 20 of those chairmen are on Emery's legislative payroll.

In the end it was another county chairman — Fred Pantaleone of Brooklyn — who put Lehrman over 25 percent by endorsing him the day before the convention. There was no deal. Pantaleone was recognizing Lehrman's superb statewide organization and name recognition (both built from scratch with Lehrman's own $3 million) far surpassing his rivals and wanted to get on board.

But what about Lehrman the reformer? Would he not govern without the Republican Party? "This is a big state," Pantaleone told us, "and you need a lot of people to govern it. I am sure he cannot do it without the Republican Party."

In truth, Lehrman's rise from anonymity to front-runner shows the irrelevance of the post-Rockefeller party here. Nor is there any doubt of his radical plans for change. He regards Joe Margiotta's high-tax Nassau County government as a social-democratic regime masquerading under Republican labels. Playing on Stalin's words, he intends to replace Rockefeller's "socialism in one state" with "Reaganism in one state." The probable winner of the first ever New York Republican primary for governor is indeed, somebody for the professional politicians to worry about.

Strength For Today

POVERTY AND WEALTH

When are we poor?

We know many people worth millions — that is millions of dollars — yet they are poor; for they have no happiness. They seek after happiness by keeping on the go at all times. They are constantly engaged in self-indulgence, or ostentatious display of their wealth, or constantly partying, or going on luxurious and extensive travels. But they frequently end up suffering from feelings of frustration and exhaustion and a troubled conscience.

On the other hand, some of the richest people we know live on small annuities and pensions. It is amazing how far a dollar goes if the spender has the right attitude toward himself, his fellows, his financial circumstances, and his God.

Poverty and riches are not only relative, but they are spiritual as well. Poverty and wealth consist in what we are rather than in what we have. — Elisha Douglass

Know The Score To Get Credit

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Applying for credit is like taking a test: It's the score that counts.

Many lenders use a computer-based scoring system to decide who will — and will not — get credit in today's market. Knowing how the system works can improve your chance of success.

Credit-scoring systems are based on points; the lender assigns a fixed number of points to each of a variety of consumer characteristics and decides on a cut-off score. Applicants with a passing grade — a point total higher than the cut-off score — get credit. Those with a failing grade — below the cut-off — are turned down.

The point assignments and the cut-off score are not chosen at random. They are based on computer profiles of good and bad borrowers. Here's how it works:

A lender selects, at random, a sample of past accounts — good and bad. All the available information on these accounts is fed into the computer. Using a process called "discriminant analysis," the computer determines which characteristics are shared by the good borrowers and which are shared by the bad ones. Each characteristic is given a point value.

The lender then can analyze the information to find out what combination of characteristics and what total score are likely to produce a borrower who will repay the debt on time, with little chance of default.

It is important to remember that the total score is the key. Under most credit-scoring systems, there are many ways to achieve a passing score. A low score on a single characteristic is unlikely to result in a credit rejection.

The use of credit-scoring systems has increased steadily since the passage of the Equal Credit Opportunity Act in 1975. The law prohibits lenders from denying credit on the basis of race, color, religion, national origin, sex, marital status, age or because any part of an applicant's income comes from a public assistance program.

A credit-scoring system reduces the chances of discrimination by applying arbitrary standards to all applicants; personal bias on the part of a lender is eliminated. A credit-scoring system also means, however, that you are less likely to be able to explain special circumstances that may apply in your case.

Different lenders rely on different characteristics and score them differently. In general, however, the following things are important:

—Stability. Creditors look for things like home ownership and length of time on the job as a guide to whether you are a stable, responsible person. You probably will get fewer points if you rent your home rather than own it, but a long-term tenancy can help your score.

—Occupation. Lenders often assign points to specific jobs. According to researchers in the Department of Consumer Economics at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y., teachers, doctors and government employees covered by civil service get high marks, while barbers and beauticians get low scores. The key factor is the nature of the job; if it's in a field where people move about a lot, you're likely to score poorly.

—Disposable income. Earnings alone are relatively unimportant; lenders are more concerned about the money you have left after paying existing bills. Someone with a salary of $2,000 a month who usually spends $1,800 a month and has $200 of disposable income would get a higher score than someone who earns $4,000 a month and spends it all.

—Financial history. Lenders check credit bureau reports for a record of how you have handled debt in the past. If your record shows a regular pattern of late payments, you will get a low score. You also may get a poor score if you've always used cash; the lack of a credit record can count against you even if you are a prompt payer.

Defeated Argentine Soldiers Are Kept Isolated From Their Families

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
PUERTO MADRYN, Argentina (AP) — Anxious to minimize the bitter spectacle of Argentine war prisoners returning from the Falklands on British ships, the military junta is keeping the men isolated behind a heavy security screen.

But the curtain of secrecy is distressing relatives, who have come here trying to learn the fate of their loved ones.

"I tried to take a woman from Santa Fe (in northern Argentina) to the docks, and then they wouldn't let her in. She doesn't know if her son is alive or dead. Now what kind of deal is that?" asked a cab driver, who took three journalists to a military checkpoint near the port area here.

Soldiers armed with automatic rifles have sealed off the docks to all visitors, including relatives and journalists.

The majority of the 10,000 or more POWs due back from the Falklands after the surrender of the Argentine invasion force are being shunted to this snow-swept Patagonian port, about 660 miles south of Buenos Aires.

The first 4,200 war-weary troopers arrived here Saturday aboard the requisitioned British cruise liner Canberra. They reportedly were hustled aboard trucks and buses and whisked 40 miles south to the Almirante Zar Naval Air Station near the town of Trelew. Access to the Trelew airport, which adjoins the base, has been restricted until Thursday, military officers said.

The field reportedly is being used by the military as a staging area to send the repatriated POWs back to their units before they will be given furloughs.

The converted North Sea ferry Norland was expected today with more than 1,000 additional POWs.

Thousands of people lined the shore to watch the Canberra's arrival Saturday. Its appearance carried a note of irony since the Argentine military command claimed the ship was sunk during the conflict.

The Canberra was mobilized by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government about two months ago to ferry British troops to the war fleet massed in the South Atlantic to spearhead the recapture of the Falklands following Argentina's invasion April 2.

The Canberra was the largest ship ever to visit this port, which exports bauxite, the prime ingredient in the production of aluminum. There were some wounded soldiers among those who arrived Saturday. They were taken by ambulance to the regional hospital in Trelew, a four-story, beige concrete building where security also was tight.

"Some of the boys are in a delicate condition. The military has asked that the hospital be closed to everyone," said an elderly hospital volunteer finishing her shift.

Relatives of non-military patients who came to the hospital during visiting hours Sunday were turned away at the door by hospital security personnel.

Nab Woman With Bomb

ROME (AP) — Police seized a suspected West German woman terrorist carrying a bomb several times more powerful than the one that killed 85 people at the Bologna train station in 1980 in Italy's worst post-war terrorist attack, police said today.

A spokesman for Rome's anti-terrorist squad identified the woman as Christa Margot Frohlic, a West German citizen. He said a preliminary investigation indicated she was linked with West Germany's ultra-leftist Baader-Meinhof terrorist group. No other details were immediately available.

The woman carried two passports — one Austrian identifying her as Beatrix Odenal, 26, and the other West German, said the spokesman, who declined to be identified.

"I declare myself a political prisoner," she told authorities after her arrest Friday by customs police at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, police sources said, adding she was refusing to answer questions.

The woman flew in on a Romanian airlines flight from Bucharest, the sources said.

The bomb was hidden in a false bottom of a "huge" aluminum case, they said.

It was not known how police found the bomb, nor how it was to be used.

"It's a very sophisticated bomb, with a factory-manufactured time device attached to a battery we don't see in Italy," the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera quoted an unidentified police official as saying.

Police sources said it contained 11 pounds of a powerful plastic explosive.

Revival Underway

Elder Sidney Harris of Rocky Mount will be conducting a revival at Brown's Chapel Apostolic Faith Holiness Church of Belvoir Highway. Services will be held from Monday to Friday at 8 p.m.

The music for Monday's service will be rendered by the Joy Temple Choir of Greenville, Tuesday will be the Burning Bush Choir of Stokes, Wednesday will be the Whichard Chapel Choir from Stokes. Thursday's music will be provided by the New Hope Choir of Parmele and Friday night the music will be provided by the Mt. Calvary Choir of Washington.

HIS FIRST SAINT

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II canonized his first saint Sunday — Crispin of Viterbo, a 17th-century Italian shoemaker who became a monk. As a monk he begged for the poor and worked as a cook, nurse, barber and gardener.

traditional local power structure through church, volunteer and civic groups. (The idea isn't to snub the businessman but simply to recognize his support will go elsewhere.) In multi-member districts, these constituencies are strong enough to elect a candidate.

Each woman who wins makes it easier for another to get involved in politics, Mrs. Fenner says. And, if a female legislator does her job well, she'll find that the traditional power brokers in a district will be much more amenable to her re-election campaign. Mrs. Fenner says she's seeing that this year as she seeks her second full term.

Judge Candidates Say They Can't Talk Issues

table. Lori Brown presided at the wedding register and Cindy Carraway, cousin of the bride, pinned corsages. Marie Carraway, aunt of the bride, directed the wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Carraway, uncle and aunt of the bride, entertained the wedding party and grandparents of the bridal couple at an after-rehearsal dinner held in the fellowship hall of the church. Both the bride and the bridegroom graduated from North Pitt High School. The bride will start nursing school in the fall. The bridegroom attended Pitt Community College and East Carolina University. He is a lieutenant in the North Carolina National Guard.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Some candidates for judgeships say the Code of Judicial Conduct binds them to silence on political issues, which alienates voters

Gurganus...

Chapman of Woodridge, Va., Mrs. Helen Davis of Aberdeen and Mrs. Doris Gurganus of Greenville. The bride is a graduate of West Carteret High School and North Carolina State University. She is employed by TRW, Inc. The bridegroom graduated from Stokes-Pactolus High School and is employed by Fast Fare, Inc. After a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside in Greenville.

because the candidates are forced to either give vague answers or not answer them at all.

The canon states in part that a candidate for a judicial office "should not make pledges or promise of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of their office (or) announce his views on disputed legal or political issues." The philosophy behind the code is that judges and judicial candidates shouldn't take sides on an issue that might come before the court, according to Debbie R. Carrington, executive secretary of the N.C. Judicial Standards Commission. "Campaigning for judicial office is considered different from campaigning for legislative or executive office," Ms. Carrington said. "They may have personal views, but their number-one obligation is to uphold the laws of the state, not to legislate."

But judicial candidates say it's hard for those outside the judicial system to accept that.

Senate Finance Panel Faces Political Nightmare

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, nine of its 20 members campaigning to keep their seats, is about to face a politician's nightmare: raising taxes during an election year.

The committee may begin work this week, with a goal of raising taxes by $20 billion for the 1983 budget and $95 billion over the next three years. A new analysis by staff experts shows just how difficult that job will be, especially reaching the 1983 target.

The staff of the Joint Committee on Taxation has compiled a report on dozens of suggestions for raising taxes and found that only two would produce more than $5 billion in 1983. And neither of those — repeal of the 1983 individual tax cut and imposition of a new $5-per-barrel tax on crude oil — is popular.

The demand that the Finance Committee raise taxes is part of the 1983 budget on which Senate and House negotiators reached agreement last week. That compromise, which allows spending $769.8 billion during the year and envisions a record deficit of $103.9 billion, will come before both houses for final action this week.

Also up for final action this week is an emergency spending bill with money for several agencies for the remainder of this budget year, which ends Sept. 30. That measure is headed for a likely veto because President Reagan objects to a provision creating a $3.3-billion subsidy for low- and middle-income homebuyers.

But before the measure can be sent to Reagan, Congress will have to settle a dispute over its own tax deductions and outside earnings.

Both houses have agreed to repeal a much-disputed $75-per-day deduction that Congress voted itself last year. But at the last minute, the House, upset at losing that deduction, added a provision holding senators to the same $18,200-a-year limit for speeches and similar outside income to which representatives are subject. That provision is not popular in the Senate.

The biggest money-raiser being mentioned as the Finance Committee prepares to write a tax bill is the $5-per-barrel tax on crude oil, which would bring in $12.3 billion in 1983. But such a tax would raise fuel prices at a time when they already are on the rise and rekindle inflation at a time when it has been at least partially controlled.

Repeal of the 10 percent cut in individual taxes due on July 1, 1983, would reduce the deficit by $7.2 billion. Delaying it three months would save $6.7 billion. Although Reagan has insisted he does not want Congress to tamper with that tax reduction, the committee will consider it.

One option that has gained some support would repeal the 1983 cut, but begin "indexing" of the tax system — protect it against inflation — a year earlier than the scheduled Jan. 1, 1985, starting date. That would save $7.2 billion next year.

Several ideas for raising corporate income taxes have been floated, but most would raise relatively little revenue and all might be viewed as unwise while the economy is trying to struggle out of recession.

And higher "sin taxes" — levies on tobacco and alcohol — would raise nowhere near the $21 billion needed next year. For example, doubling the cigarette tax would raise $1.2 billion; doubling the tax on whisky, $1.6 billion; doubling the beer tax, $800 million.

Similarly, a proposed 10-percent tax on all cars costing more than $20,000 would yield $100 million; the same rate on jewelry and furs costing more than $1,000 would bring in less than $50 million in each case.

Somebody has even suggested the government take advantage of the video amusement craze by imposing a 10-percent tax on Pac-Man and similar games. The experts have been unable to estimate the take from that tax, but it would do little to balance the budget.

Dear Abby

Life Rich in Experience Still Pays Great Interest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column ever since you wrote your first line in 1956. It's given me a good cross section of what's going on in the world.

I got a kick out of those two old roosters, ages 77 and 96, both crowing about their capabilities. Well, Abby, I hate to brag, but I've got them both beat.

I became a Christian at age 12 — that was 89 years ago. Yes, Abby, I'm 101 years old and I'm typing this myself. I started teaching school at 17, and I taught for 19 years. During World War I, I was an agriculture agent. I even published a small country newspaper for a while. In 1920 I entered the Methodist ministry. It became my life's work. After organizing four churches I retired at 72.

Having nothing to do, I cultivated a large garden, but that didn't keep me busy enough, so I bought the necessary equipment and set up a woodwork shop. So far I've made 14 grandfather clocks, 56 cradles, 247 lamps, and so many tables and cabinets I've lost count.

That's not all. I have several ladyfriends scattered all over town, and I still take them out to dinner — one at a time! I've got only 99 years to go before reaching 200, and the way I feel now, I'm going to make it!

If there are any old roosters out there who can out-crow me, send them to Tennessee and I'll take them to dinner. HENRY C. COLEMAN, CHATTANOOGA, TENN.

DEAR HENRY: Wonderful! And if they bring their mothers, the dinner's on me!

DEAR ABBY: I was one of those unlucky air-traffic control men who lost their jobs, so after being unable to find work in Los Angeles, I finally landed a job in San Jose. Obviously I'm able to get home only on weekends and holidays, so I rented a small apartment in San Jose.

I've been on this job for 10 months, and while it's far from what I want to do, it's better than nothing. (I'm still trying to get work in L.A.)

My accountant told me I could deduct my travel and living expenses away from home, which helped to make my life bearable because this job is only temporary.

Yesterday a co-worker told me that if the IRS audits me, I'm in trouble because if a person stays in a job for over six months it's considered a permanent job — not temporary.

What does your accountant say? SWEATING IT OUT IN SAN JOSE

DEAR SWEATING: My accountant says a job is considered "temporary" under one year, so you're safe for another two months.

***

Forgive me if I do not begin this letter with the usual salutation because after agonizing over salutations and complimentary closings, I came to a decision: I no longer use either.

I do not address persons I do not know as "Dear" anybody, since they are not "dear" to me. And I do not sign myself as being "Truly" theirs, which I certainly am not. I head this letter, state my business, say thank you if it's appropriate, and sign my name.

So far I don't think I have ruined anyone's day by being strictly businesslike. Thanks for listening. CLARICE K. IN AURORA, ILL.

DEAR CLARICE: You didn't ruin my day. Au contraire, you made it. Thanks for writing.

Electronics In Lamb's Auction

CHRISTIANBURG, Va. (AP) — The rapid patter of the old-fashioned auctioneer is being replaced by the glow of the cathode ray tube for buyers and sellers of slaughter lambs, says a computer information system journal.

According to MIS Week, full information for buyers regarding lambs being offered for sale is fed into a computerized system. At a pre-set time, all potential buyers punch up the auction program on their own terminals, and the asking price for each lot is displayed on the screen for 10 seconds.

Systems users are given 20 seconds to enter bids in 25-cent increments. When the allotted time runs out, the terminal informs all bidders of the successful buyer's bid.

It will hold its 33rd Annual Reunion here Sept. 22-26. Additional information on the convention is available from Gladwin Pascuzzo, 2374 N. Dundee Ct., Highland, Mich. 48031

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Changing planetary positions make it possible to expand your activities and gain added benefits at this time. Take positive steps to overcome obstacles in your path.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Use caution in handling confidential matters and avoid trouble. Listen to what serious advisers have to suggest.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more thoughtful instead of forceful with your friends and gain their respect. Don't trust your intuition at this time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Make sure your civic affairs are well handled. Take extra steps and improve your image. Avoid a troublemaker.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to act in a conservative fashion at this time for best results. Handle business affairs wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle personal duties in a most precise way and gain added goodwill. Strive for more harmony with family members.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't do anything that could irk an associate. Forget fun for now and spend more time on important financial matters.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to make your environment more comfortable and improve the quality of your life. Sidestep an opponent.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engage in a new outlet during spare time that will bring you relief from worry. Know where you are headed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you carry through with agreements made with family members. Make the future more productive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Confer with allies and make the future brighter. Obtain important data you need from the right sources.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Financial matters are vitally important now, so attend to them and know your true position. Relax at home tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have to make definite plans to get what you desire of a personal nature, since it does not come easily. Be happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those clever young persons who will understand what others are up to and what motivates them, so be sure to give a fine education and the talent can be used to best advantage. Don't neglect ethical training.

Eight Dead In N.C. Traffic Accidents

By The Associated Press
Eight people lost their lives in traffic accidents in North Carolina over the weekend, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

In the latest reported death, Ricky Saunders Bullock, 21, of Macclesfield, died at 2 a.m. Sunday when the car he was driving ran off N.C. 43 1.5 miles north of Falkland in Pitt County, hit a bridge and overturned in a creek.

At 7:20 Saturday evening, Robert William Von Badinski, 17, of Monroe was killed when the car in which he was riding crashed into a vehicle that was trying to pass another car on N.C. 522

5.7 miles south of Monroe. Three people were injured in the accident.

Keith Waymond, 26, of Lake Lure died early Saturday morning when the car he was driving left a rural paved road at high speed and overturned near Rutherfordton.

Stephen Glenn Williams, 19, of Advance was killed early Saturday when the car he was driving crossed the median of Interstate 40 east of Mocksville in Davie County, ran down an embankment and overturned.

William Alford Wall, 15, of Newton died Saturday in an accident on a rural road about a mile south of Hickory in Catawba County. Troopers said the car in which the youth was riding ran off the road about 10:30 p.m. and flipped over.

Eunice Smith McMillan, 42, and Essie Mae Smith, 72, both of Ash, died Friday night when their car hit a puddle on N.C. 130 east of Brunswick and Ms. McMillan lost control of the vehicle. Pedestrian Joyce Justice Toler, 45, of Kinston died Friday night when she was hit from behind while walking along U.S. 70 in Lenoir County.

Troopers said the fatalities brought the highway death toll for the year to 501, compared with 625 at the same time last year.

Government Estimates Economy Is Slightly Rising

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
The U.S. economy is rising again at least slightly after dropping steadily for six months, government economists are now estimating.

The Commerce Department's analysis say the broadest measure of economic activity — "real," or inflation-adjusted gross national product — appears to be climbing at an annual rate of 0.6 percent in the current April-June quarter.

Such a gain would follow declines at annual rates of 4.5 percent and 3.7 percent in the previous two quarters and would be the strongest indication yet that the recession might be ending.

The new figure is Commerce's "flash" estimate for real GNP, compiled well before all figures for the quarter are in. It is not formally released by the department, but several sources confirmed the number.

Department officials had said last week — before they saw the "flash," they said — that real GNP would be up at an annual rate of 0.5 percent to 1 percent in the current quarter.

A number of private analysts have said much the same.

Earlier today, Commerce officials had said the economy faltered a bit less than earlier reported for the first quarter of this year, though the drop at an annual rate of 3.7 percent confirmed the nation's second recession in two years.

However, several important economic indicators, such as retail sales and personal income, have turned upward since the first quarter ended.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the revised first quarter figures indicated "the recession has reached the bottom."

He said that Reagan anticipated making "no changes whatsoever in his economic program."

He also said, as have others in the administration, that interest rates would "come up slightly in the next few weeks."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said Friday that he believes real GNP probably is rising at an annual rate of 0.5 percent to 1 percent in the current April-June quarter.

A second-quarter GNP increase would suggest that the economy is climbing out of recession, though stubbornly high interest rates now threaten to stifle any such recovery.

The Commerce Department's newly revised January-March real GNP estimate was well below the 4.3 percent annual rate of decline reported one month ago but was only slightly below the 3.9 percent rate first reported in April.

The report also revised the government's figures on U.S. companies' first-quarter profits, now estimating that they declined slightly less than first reported although the declines were still very large. According to the revision, before-tax profits dropped 19.3 percent for the quarter rather than 20.2 percent, and after-tax profits declined 18 percent rather than 17.5 percent.

Iraq To Pull Army Out Of Iranian Territory

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer
MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, claiming his soldiers have proven their military might by staying in Iran more than 20 months, says he will withdraw all his forces to Iraq's pre-war borders.

Hussein, speaking Sunday over Iraqi state radio in a broadcast monitored in Manama, also said he was taking the action within 10 days despite Iran's rejection of his latest truce offer last week. He also pledged to repel any Iranian counter-invasion. "Despite his losses, the enemy will not stop at this point," Hussein said. "He will try to enter our cities and destroy them, and the Iraqi soldiers who previously fought outside their territory will now fight ten times more ferociously on their own land."

There was no immediate comment on Hussein's announcement by Iran, which has scored stunning victories in recent weeks over Iraq. The Iraqis invaded southwest Iran in September 1980 over disputed territory along the Shatt al-Arab waterway, Iraq's only outlet to the Persian Gulf.

The Iraqis have gained back most of the territory Iraq seized, driven thousands of Iraqi troops across the waterway and threatened to march to Baghdad to topple Hussein. They have also demanded $150 billion in war reparations from Iraq and Arab nations that supported its invasion.

Hussein's announcement came toward the end of a 75-minute speech which bitterly denied Iraq had lost the war. He blamed Iraq's military losses on what he called a conspiracy between Israel "and at least two Arab regimes who threw in their full military, economic and intelligence machines behind Iran."

He was apparently referring to Syria and Libya, two major supporters of Iran. Israel has also reportedly supplied Iran with weapons, although Ayatollah Khomeini's fundamentalist Moslem regime in Tehran denies it.

Hussein said he was withdrawing the remainder of his forces from Iran "to deny Iran any pretext for prolonging the war."

Conservative Arab nations backed Iraq in the war with billions of dollars in military aid, fearing an Iranian victory would spread Khomeini's fundamentalist Moslem revolution to their lands. Recently Khomeini has called Hussein "a dead man" and warned other nations not to participate in the non-aligned summit to be held in Baghdad this September.

Million-Dollar Theft Reported

BREA, Calif. (AP) — Burglars took more than $1 million in negotiable stocks and bonds, jewelry, cash and computer equipment from a computer firm, police said.

Lt. Tom Christian said the president of MGM Inc. discovered Saturday that the rear door to the business had been pried open. Reported missing was about $850,000 in stocks and bonds, $120,000 in computer integrated circuits and $100,000 in jewelry and cash.

SCUBA DOG — Mutley, the scuba-diving dog, and her owner Gene Alva of La Habra, Calif. spend some time together swimming underwater. Mutley, part cocker and part terrier but mostly publicity hound, used to just wear a life preserver and swim thru the water following the air bubbles of her owner who would scuba dive. Eventually Alva trained Mutley to use the $3,000 custom-made doggie diving helmet and air bag so that they could dive together. (AP Laserphoto)

Show Mini Darkroom System For The AP

DALLAS (AP) — The Associated Press has unveiled the Mini Electronic Darkroom, saying the desk-top equipment can be a building block for technological advances in news gathering.

In the short run, the portable electronic darkroom will mean enhanced photo quality for members of the AP, Dave Rutherford, the AP's chief engineer, said Sunday. To newspaper readers, the darkroom will mean better photographs.

"In the long run, the Mini Electronic Darkroom will be able to serve as a building block for many other improvements, such as serving as a front-end system to newspaper pagination," Rutherford said.

The electronic darkroom eventually may lead to quicker transmission of photographs over the AP's Laserphoto network.

The electronic darkroom will allow transmissions from negatives to the AP darkroom in as little as 30 seconds, Rutherford said. Current technology requires eight minutes to move a photo print over the Laserphoto network, and the electronic darkroom may lead to technology that will reduce that time.

A television camera can be hooked directly into the mini darkroom, producing a photo that can move on a network within two minutes. However, the quality of such photos is not as good as conventional photographs, Rutherford said.

The AP's first Mini Electronic Darkroom — a computer that fits under one-half of a desk, a video display terminal and a television screen — was demonstrated at the American Newspaper Publishers Association Production Management Conference here.

The equipment allows for simultaneous reception of photographs. Each photo is converted into about 2.5 million bytes of information in 256 levels of gray. That information — in 1,400 lines with 2,048 picture elements per line — is stored in the computer. Up to 90 photos can be stored in the portable computer. The computer can enhance selective bits of the stored information to produce photos that are better for newspaper reproduction. Photos also can be cropped in the computer.

"For years, people have talked about what they could do if they could use computer technology for photos in an affordable manner," said Hans Jung, an AP computer programmer who, with Rutherford and programmer Barry Zion, developed the darkroom. "We're announcing at this conference that the technology has arrived."

"We won't know for five or seven or 10 years all the implications of this breakthrough," Jung said. "There will be an uncounted number of options that other people will develop from this base tool."

For about four years, the AP has used a computerized electronic darkroom in its New York headquarters. That darkroom, developed by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, required extensive space, special air conditioning and wasn't portable.

Rutherford said the AP spent about $500,000 developing the mini darkroom. He said additional portable darkrooms can be built for about $70,000.

Jung said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has been using similar technology to receive and enhance photographs from space. He said recent developments in computer technology enabled the AP to develop similar technology for much less money than NASA spent.

AP's first mini darkroom — the one on display here — will be installed in the news service's London bureau.

U.S. Is Blamed By Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev said today the world situation is "alarming" and the United States is to blame.

But, he said, the Soviet Union "invariably comes out for talks with the United States."

"The policy of the United States is the prime source of the growing tension," Brezhnev said in remarks quoted by the official Soviet news agency Tass.

He added, "Washington is proclaiming ever new programs of building up armaments — nuclear, chemical as well as conventional. The American strategists openly state their striving for the establishment of world hegemony by the United States."

"The American administration is not stopping short of interference in the affairs of other countries and is provoking dangerous crises and conflicts in various areas of the world."

Tass did not specify what "crises and conflicts" Brezhnev referred to.

Strategic Communications Is Being Taken Up By House Panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House panel is getting down to work this week on legislation viewed by the Pentagon as highly important for maintaining and upgrading vital electronic links to America's strategic nuclear forces.

The provisions, part of a massive telecommunications bill, are intended to prevent deregulation and see that the swift growth of competing commercial networks doesn't erode the reliability of military communications.

The armed forces depend on commercial carriers for about 95 percent of their communications — including circuits which would be used to transmit warnings of a nuclear attack and retaliatory orders to U.S. missile silos.

Under the new legislation, President Reagan would be authorized to oversee major contingency planning among carriers and to require ordinarily competing firms to cooperate with one another during times of "public peril, disaster or other national emergency."

Also, the president would be empowered to compel commercial carriers to furnish additional services or facilities to the federal government "in order to provide for the national defense or the emergency preparedness of the United States."

The House Energy and Commerce Committee is slated to resume work Tuesday on the bill restructuring the nation's telephone industry. It is sponsored by Rep. Timothy E. Wirth, D-Colo., and similar legislation was passed by the Senate late last year.

The defense-related provisions are considered relatively non-controversial. However, the fate of the bill containing them is far from certain.

American Telephone & Telegraph Co. strongly opposes the bill, calling it too restrictive and premature. The company argues that Congress should defer action until a federal judge decides whether to approve the Justice Department's AT&T divestiture settlement.

That settlement requires AT&T to give up its 22 Bell System operating companies, in exchange for dismissal of a 1974 antitrust suit, and the freedom to enter any unregulated markets it wishes.

The defense role of commercial telecommunications networks was discussed in detail last week by government officials and company executives at a Washington convention of the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association.

Lt. Gen. William J. Hilsman, director of the Defense Communications Agency, said that while there are currently six presidential directives dealing with military communications, "what we don't have yet — and it is very important to us — is the legislative mandate we need to go forward."

Hilsman told the convention that today's complex, rapidly changing communications industry in the United States could be likened to "four basketball games being played on the same court, at the same time, all the players are wearing the same uniforms — you're trying to see what's happening and you've got about four pillars in front of you."

The Pentagon official said the defense provisions in Wirth bill's are needed to ensure "pervasive recognition, in law, of the critical importance of the telecommunications industry to national security and emergency preparedness."

"We want to make sure that despite divestiture, when Gen. Bennie Davis (chief of the Strategic Air Command) has a problem from his command center to a Mjnuteman silo, he doesn't have to call AT&T Long Lines for one part of the solution, and then go to a local telephone company for another, and then go to a third person who is going to deliver the end instruments, to try to figure out what's wrong with this circuit," Hilsman said.

He added that "if we're talking about having a credible deterrent in the United States with the strategic forces that we have, we better have a credible communications system to command and control those forces."

Bruce Carswell, a senior vice president of General Telephone and Electronics Corp., said that in the event of a U.S.-Soviet nuclear showdown, communications carriers would be faced with severe challenges in terms of manpower, emergency repair work and security against sabotage.

"Although our central office and major switching equipment is protected, we would want to beef up security wherever practical," Carswell said in remarks prepared for a panel discussion.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

FLUORIDE FACTS

Dental literature is replete with facts on the effectiveness of fluoride in preventing tooth decay. How does it work? Sugars in the mouth set up a favorable environment for the growth and development of germs. These germs produce acids that cause decay and leave behind deposits that injure the gums. One of the big defenses against this process is fluoride which builds up the resistance of teeth to these acids. It should be in your child's drinking water so it can be absorbed in his growing teeth; it should also be in your child's toothpaste, and applied regularly on his teeth by the family dentist.

Chicago (the first big city to fluoridate its water supply) reports that tooth decay has been cut in half among its school children, and credits fluoride for this improvement. As an added plus, Chicago parents are saving an estimated $20 million a year in dental bills.

In areas where the water is not fluoridated, children's teeth can be substantially protected against cavities by fluoride in drop or tablet form.

Mayor Asking For Protection

PAGEDALE, Mo. (AP) — The new mayor of this St. Louis suburb tried to replace the police chief with her campaign manager. Now she claims the incumbent is harassing her, and wants federal protection.

Mayor Mary Hall accused Police Chief Odis Williams of shouting out a threat to her life and firing what she thought was a shotgun blast as she tried to leave a shoe store Friday evening.

She said Williams and another officer then cruised back and forth outside the store in an unmarked police car, forcing her and others to stay inside for five hours until midnight.

Williams denied the accusation, saying he was at a wedding at the time.

Ms. Hall said St. Louis County police refused to send help to the store Friday night, and authorities refused to swear out a warrant when she filed a complaint.

Poultry.
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - (NCDA) - The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady. Supplies moderate. Demand moderate. Weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 43.21 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today 1,410,000.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices turned mixed today after opening lower as the market tried to shake a six-week retreat.

Steel, electronic and drug issues paced the gainers. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials - off 21.12 points last week to a 26-month low - was up 3.62 to 792.24 after two hours of trading today. The transportation index also rose but the utility measure was off a fraction.

Gainers held a slim edge over losers on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index rose 0.17 to 61.91.

Big Board turnover totaled 21.71 million shares at noon, against 21.00 million at that hour Friday.

Rates on short-term Treasury securities were slightly lower today, with three-month bills quoted at 12.65 percent compared with 12.73 percent late Friday.

The government said today that revised data showed the economy - as measured by the output of goods and services, or gross national product - contracted at a "real," or inflation-adjusted, 3.7 percent annual rate in the first quarter. But sources confirmed today that Commerce Department economists are now estimating that real GNP climbed at an annual rate of 0.6 percent in the second quarter.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 0.17 at 246.21.

Stamp Errors Dip

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina's food stamp error rate has gone down during a six-month period when error rates have been increasing nationally, a state official says.

The decrease is the result of a concentrated state and county effort to improve the program's overall operation, said Dr. Sarah Morrow, Department of Human Resources secretary.

The state's error rate from Oct. 1, 1981, to March 31, 1982, was 13.07 percent, compared to the national average of 13.15 percent, she said, adding that the state's rate the previous six months had been 14.32 percent.

Error rates are based on overpayments, underpayments and payments to ineligible recipients. The error rate for payments to ineligible recipients and overpayments was 9.16 percent compared to the national average of 10.57 percent.

"The improvement we are now seeing in our error rate indicates to us that we are making progress in improving the way the food stamp program is administered in North Carolina," Ms. Morrow said. "Nevertheless, our error rate is still higher than we'd like, and we won't be satisfied until we get the rate down much further than it is now."

"A corrective action plan that our Division of Social Services put into effect in April should help us improve the error rate significantly during the next 12 months," she said.

Arrested 684 In Lab Protest

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer
LIVERMORE, Calif. (AP) - Police arrested 684 anti-nuclear protesters who attempted today to block entry to the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory, one of the nation's foremost nuclear weapons development facilities.

About 1,000 demonstrators, many in wheelchairs and some carrying banners, showed up at the 640-acre facility about 50 miles east of San Francisco.

A coalition of about 200 anti-nuclear groups said they planned to stage a three-day blockade of the laboratory and up to 5,000 demonstrators were expected.

There was no violence today. Those arrested, including many who were limp and had to be dragged away, were charged with obstructing traffic, a misdemeanor.

Some of the police officers smiled at the arrival of a 25-piece brass band from the Musicians Activist Group, a rag-tag orchestra led by a man wearing a T-shirt saying "Chief Gorilla".

Claire Feder of Atherton, who carried a "Hell No, We Won't Glow" banner, said she traveled to the protest with her husband, Ernest Goitein, a retired nuclear power plant engineer.

"I'm just going to be here a few hours," she said. "I don't know about other people, but I'm a mother who works for peace."

Test Helmet For Firemen

MADISON, Wis. (AP) - Heat- and impact-resistant helmets will be issued to 300 firemen in a two-year test designed to develop national standards for firefighting equipment.

Assistant Fire Chief Glenn Wilcox said the National Fire Administration project also will provide suits of a newly developed material that is heat-resistant and weighs half as much as fabric currently used.

The 14 cities testing the new gear are Madison; New York; Alexandria, Va.; Bloomington, Minn.; Boston; Cincinnati; Casper, Wyo.; Dallas; Flowing Wells, Ariz.; Los Angeles; Oklahoma City; Pine Bluff, Ark.; Seattle; and Seminole, Fla.

Candidates Forum

Candidates running for the Greenville City Board of Education in the upcoming election will present their views at a candidate's forum Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church under the sponsorship of the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters.

Following the panel, there will be an opportunity to meet the candidates informally over coffee. The meeting will be chaired by Rhea Markello, League president and the panel moderated by Ruth Trevathan, First Vice President.

Luxury, Sympathy Stun Polish Refugees In U.S.

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) - Wlodzimierz Krolikowski, who joined with several other refugees here to get away from Poland's martial law, says he was surprised to learn that Americans really care about what has happened in Poland.

Krolikowski says he was told in Poland that Americans are self-centered, uncaring people who didn't have time for others.

"It was a big surprise to me," he said. "People here really care."

Krolikowski, his wife, Zofia, and their daughter live in a $200-per-week apartment that Resurrection Lutheran Church members furnished, stocked with food and rented for them.

And those sentiments were expressed by other Polish refugees who made the trip across the Atlantic.

Boguslaw Gadowski, who married Paula Kamienski of Gastonia in 1980 and joined his bride in her hometown about two weeks ago after a four-month separation, also said he was amazed by American generosity.

"People help each other and care about each other here," said Gadowski, 26. "How could someone have such warm feelings for somebody they don't even know?"

Richard and Emilia Karnia and their sons, aged 17 and 10, live in a neat brick home that St. Michael's Church members furnished and rented.

The Polish refugees have embarked on hard lives by American standards. Krolikowski, who was an electronics technician in Poland, found a minimum-wage job as a mechanic at a Gastonia textile plant. His wife works as a nurse's aide at a Gastonia nursing home.

Karnia, 44, who had been a cabinetmaker in the city of Kotowice, is working as a free-lance carpenter and house painter. Gadowski, who holds a degree in metallurgical engineering, says he is looking for just about any kind of work.

But many of the Poles say they were astounded by the comparative luxury of American living conditions. When Mrs. Krolikowski first walked into a Gastonia supermarket several months ago, she wrote her mother about the rows stocked high with food.

But she said her mother, who is used to bare shelves, probably would not believe the store.

"In Poland, to have that much food would be a fairy tale," she said.

Karnia's 10-year-old son, Marek, said he was surprised that people drive everywhere while his brother in Poland thinks nothing of walking more than a mile to work.

"Americans sure do love their comfort," he said.

Gadowski said life in Gastonia contrasts sharply with life under Poland's martial law.

People here travel at liberty at any hour of the day or night. In Poland, he said, people could be arrested if they violated an 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew. He said people need permission to cross the Polish equivalent of a county line.

Krolikowski said he and his family already are becoming "typical" Americans.

"I already have bought a car and am making car payments," he said. "In Poland, there is nothing to buy even if you have the money. Here everything is available. All you need is the money. And, you can get that by work."

THE WHOLE KIT AND KABOODLE.

The kit.

If you're in the market for a new copier, only one company can give you the whole kit and kaboodle: EOS.

The "kit" is our "No Surprises" Copy Service Plan. A plan that takes the element of surprise out of owning and operating a copier.

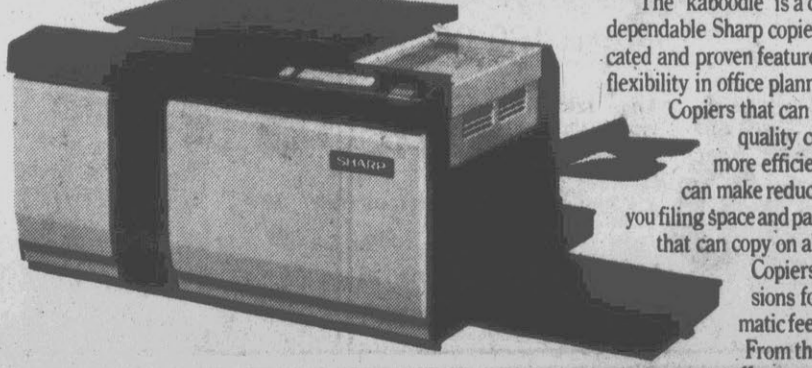

It includes an unlimited number of service calls (with no extra charges for time, travel and labor), all normal replacement parts (even parts many competitors don't cover: photo-conductor drums, heater rollers and lamps), and all the supplies (except paper) you need to accomplish an agreed-upon volume of copies.

Our "No Surprises" Copy Service Plan not only saves you headaches, it also saves you money. Because you know in advance exactly what your copier's operating costs will be. And you only pay for the supplies and service you actually use to achieve a given volume of copies.

The kaboodle.

The "kaboodle" is a complete line of dependable Sharp copiers. With sophisticated and proven features that give you flexibility in office planning.

Copiers that can give you higher-quality copies faster and more efficiently. Copiers that can make reduction copies to save you filing space and paper costs

Watson Cans 'Impossible' Chip To Earn Open Title

Nicklaus' Best Wasn't Quite Enough

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — All Jack Nicklaus asked, going into the final round of the 82nd United States Open, was for the birdie putts to start falling.
They did, but it was three days too late and there were not enough of them.
"I played about as well as I could have played. I could have putted better, but I guess you can always say you should have putted better," said the 42-year-old who became the Open runnerup a fourth time when Tom Watson birdied Pebble Beach's final two holes for a 2-stroke victory Sunday.
Watson fired a 2-under-par 70 for a four-day total of 282 with the help of a few long-distance birdie putts, the kind Nicklaus longed for. He virtually clinched his first U.S. Open title by holing a spectacular downhill chip shot at the 17th hole.
An almost identical chip-in, by Lee Trevino on a 17th hole, beat Nicklaus in the 1972 British Open.

"I've had it happen before. I didn't think it was going to happen again, and it did," said Nicklaus, who had a closing 69.

"I played good enough to win, except for one fellow," he added. "At the 17th, I said to myself there was no way in the world he was going to get a birdie from there."
"Then he holed the shot and made golf history."

Despite frustration on the greens, Nicklaus was only three strokes off the lead going into the final round of the Open. On the first three days, he made only four of 16 birdie putt attempts from within 15 feet of the cup.

"I had to get myself in the golf tournament, and when I made five birdies I was tied for the lead," said Nicklaus, who began a string of five consecutive birdies by sinking a 15-foot putt at the third hole.

He dropped in a 24-footer, his longest birdie putt, at No. 4, and got his final birdie of the day from 15 feet at No. 15. But there also was a three-putt bogey, at the 11th, and several missed birdie attempts from 10 feet or less.

The Ecstasy and the Agony

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The shot clearly was impossible. Any sensible golfer could tell you that.

There was the ball, tucked in a clump of high grass, sitting some 16 feet away from the pin on the 17th hole at Pebble Beach.

An impossible shot. "For you," observed Tom Watson, "impossible."

For him, the United States Open golf championship.

Faced with that situation, a sensible player would think par.

Watson thought birdie. "My caddie, Bruce Edwards, said 'You can get it close,'" recalled Watson. "I said, 'I'm going to make it.'"

And when Watson coolly canned that impossible chip shot, it earned him the Open crown, beating Jack Nicklaus in a brilliant duel that had all the elements of high drama.

That birdie and another that followed on the final hole gave Watson 70 for the day and 282 for the tournament, two strokes better than Nicklaus, who was gunning for an unprecedented fifth Open crown.

It climaxed an 18-hole showdown between two of the game's finest players, that seemed to ebb and flow from hole to hole.

The day started with Watson sharing the three-round lead with Bill Rogers at 212, four strokes under par and three ahead of Nicklaus. Ten other players were bunched at par or better but this quickly became a two-man tournament, Nicklaus vs. Watson, separated by a couple of holes on the course and never more than a couple of strokes on the scoreboard.

The drama began early with Nicklaus staging one of his familiar charges, stringing five straight birdies to move into a tie for the lead with Rogers and Watson, who was hanging on, playing par golf through nine holes.

Rogers was the first one to fold. He bogeyed Nos. 9, 10 and 12, missing short putts.

Watson had missed a tantalizing 18-inch putt which would have provided an important birdie at No. 7 and then seemed in big trouble at No. 10 when he hit into a hazard at the side of the green. But he connected on a brilliant 25-foot putt to save par. It was a sign of things to come.

The par at 10 left Watson and Nicklaus tied with eight holes to play. At No. 11, Watson hit a 25-foot putt for a birdie after Nicklaus had missed a three-footer and taken a bogey on the hole. That gave Watson a two-stroke lead with seven to play.

On the next hole, Watson gave one of those strokes back, taking a bogey. That left him one ahead with six left. Nicklaus birdied No. 15, forging another tie. But Watson came right back with a 35-foot putt for a birdie on No. 14. Again he was one stroke ahead, if only briefly.

On the 16th hole, Watson hit his only bad tee shot all day. He knew it right away, exclaiming "Oh, No!" as the ball sailed toward a bunker. He survived the crisis with a bogey but he and Nicklaus were tied again. And they were running out of holes.

"I thought, at worst, he would be in a tie," said Nicklaus. "I wanted to end it with a putt at 18, but I ran it 3 1/2 feet by."

He putted out for par, ending the round at 69, his best 18 holes of the tournament. At that point, Watson was dueling with No. 17, a confrontation that would become most memorable.

Watson's tee shot on the par-3 hole landed in the left fringe, about 16 feet from the cup. The distance would make it a tough putt from the green and an impossible one from the fringe.

"I saw it buried in the grass," said Watson. "I hoped for a good lie, that maybe I could get par. When I saw the lie, I changed my mind. I said, 'I'm going to sink it.'"

What Watson found was that the ball had landed in such a way that he could get the head of his sand wedge under it. He popped the shot softly and the ball rolled in as if directed by a magnet.

Watson, usually a cool operator with little emotion on the course, let go. He raced around the green, his hands raised in joy. "I about jumped in the Pacific Ocean," he said.

Now one stroke ahead with only one hole to play, Watson needed only par to clinch his victory. He could have played No. 18 safe, taking no chances. Instead, he attacked again, canning another long putt, this one from about 20 feet, for a birdie and his two-stroke final margin.

Rogers, his playing partner, could not believe what he had seen.

"Talk about being in absolute shock," said Rogers, shaking his head. "He could not have sat out there with 100 balls in his hand and pitched them to the hole and been better."

"Try about 1,000," said Nicklaus.

Watson, ready for any challenge, said, "Let's go out and do it. I might make a little more money."

For now, the $60,000 first prize for the Open championship will have to do. Nicklaus, bidding for his 20th major championship, took $34,506 for second place while Rogers, Dan Pohl and Bobby Clampett finished third, four strokes behind, and earned $14,967 apiece.

The money seemed secondary for both Nicklaus and Watson, who've already earned more in their careers than any men in the history of golf.

Nicklaus wanted a record fifth Open crown. Instead, he finished second for the fourth time and Watson won his first.

"My reaction is sort of like I've had it happen before," he said. "I didn't think it would happen again. It did."

"When you get this close to winning and you think you've won, it's disappointing not to have won."

East Carolina Loses Three-Run Lead

UNC-W Rally Sinks Pirates, 9-7

WILMINGTON — Don Stevenson's two-run double accounted for the tying and go-ahead runs in a five-run sixth inning as North Carolina-Wilmington downed East Carolina 9-7 in the North State Baseball League Sunday night.

East Carolina battled back from an early 4-1 deficit, scoring one run in the fourth inning, three in the fifth and two in the sixth.

The Seahawks came on to force starter Chubby Butler from the mound with their sixth-inning onslaught, and Brian Peterson fared little better in relief as he took the loss for the Pirates, now 3-9. With ECU leading, 7-4, the Seahawks rallied in the sixth. Tommy Phillips led off with a single and Bobby Bryant doubled him home to make it 7-5. Gary Hall then singled home Bryant to make it 7-6.

Paul Murr reached base on an error and Stevenson followed with his double to score both Hall and Murr and give UNC-W an 8-7 lead. Stevenson later scored on Johnny Slaughter's single to make it 9-7.

Ricky Nichols singled with two gone in the seventh, but was left stranded when Kelly Robinette grounded out to end the game. Both teams scored a run in the second and the Seahawks took the lead with a three-run third. Murr doubled to open the inning and Stevenson and Cabbage hit back-to-back singles before Phillips singled later to conclude the three-run uprising.

ECU got one run back in the fourth and then took the lead in the fifth with three runs.

Charlie Smith walked and, with one gone, Curlings walked. Mark Shank then tripled home both runs. Shank scored on an error to give ECU a 5-4 lead.

The Pirates upped their lead to 7-4 in the top of the sixth. With two gone, David Wells walked, stole second and scored on John Hallow's single. Hallow stole second and went to third on a wild pitch before scoring on Smith's single.

It was a lead short-lived, however, as UNC-W rallied for five runs in the bottom of the inning to take a lead it never lost.

Stevenson had three hits for UNC-W. Murr, Phillips and Bryant had two each for the Seahawks, now 9-7.

ECU, now 3-9, was led by Smith who had two hits.

Crump Signs With Pats

FOXBORO — Former East Carolina defensive lineman George Crump has signed a series of three one-year contracts with the New England Patriots, his agent, Ken Hutcherson, said this morning.

Terms of the contract were not released.

Crump was the second player picked in the fourth round of the NFL draft this year. He joins former ECU running back Anthony Collins, who was drafted last year by the Patriots.

"He is probably one of the highest paid fourth-round draft choices ever," Hutcherson said. "They feel like he's a great athlete, but that he's a raw talent."

Hutcherson said the Patriots have Crump playing right defensive tackle. Crump is one of three rookie linemen the Patriots drafted in the early rounds. New England picked Ken Sims as the No. 1 choice in the draft and later picked Lester Williams of Miami.

"(Crump) will probably be a designated pass rusher, at least for the early part of the season," Hutcherson said. Crump joins a growing number of North Carolina athletes who play for the Patriots.

Along with Collins and Crump, the Patriots have former Duke player Cedric Jones in camp as well as N.C. State's Dennis Owens and Lynn Dawson and North Carolina's Ron Wooten.

Hutcherson said Crump is in Foxboro now preparing for preseason camp, which will begin in late July.

Overton Keeps Title

CYPRESS GARDENS — Kristi Overton retained her Junior All-American Trick skiing title for the fourth straight year this past weekend here with a record 5,690 points.

Kristi won the slalom title and placed third in the jumping with a leap of 73 feet. She was overall champion for the two-day tournament.

Also, Overton's National Record she set on May 9 was certified. She scored 5,490 points on May 9 to break the old record of 5,400.

Overton's 5,690 points at this weekend's meet does not eclipse her record because the meet was not a record-capability event.

Jackson Gives Dad A Father's Day Present

By The Associated Press As a veteran of 15 major league seasons, Reggie Jackson doesn't need extra motivation.

But he had some Sunday against the Chicago White Sox. "My dad had a major operation on Friday and he told me to try to have a good day," said Jackson.

So the California outfielder went out and slugged four hits on Father's Day, including his 13th home run, to lead the Angels to a 3-1 victory. "It's just a nice Father's Day present to give to him," said Jackson. "I talked to him on the phone before the game and he asked me to call right after if I had a good day."

"Having something like that in the back of your mind keeps your concentration up."

Jackson's best game of the season included a single and stolen base that set up a two-run rally for the Angels in the fourth inning. Chicago right-hander LaMarr Hoyt, 10-4, was holding a 1-0 lead when Jackson led off the fourth with a single, stole second and continued to third as catcher Carlton Fisk's throw went into center. Jackson scored the tying run on a grounder by Doug DeCinces when shortstop Bill Almon's throw to the plate went in the dirt for an error.

DeCinces took third on Bobby Grich's single and scored on Don Baylor's sacrifice fly to give the Angels a 2-1 lead.

Two innings later, Jackson slugged his third homer in as many games for an insurance run.

The White Sox had taken a 1-0 lead in the first on Tony Bernazard's double and Greg Luzinski's single.

Blue Jays 3, A's 2 Dave Revering drove in two runs with a homer and a single as Toronto came from behind to beat Oakland.

The Blue Jays scored twice in the seventh inning to hand Oakland its sixth straight loss and ninth consecutive setback at home.

Willie Upshaw, Barry Bonnell and Revering hit successive singles to tie the game at 2-2. After Oakland catcher Jeff Newman's error on Jesse Barfield's bunt loaded the bases, Bonnell scored the winning run on Ernie Whitt's fielder's-choice grounder back to the mound.

Orioles 5, Yankees 3 Joe Nolan's two-run homer in the 11th snapped a 3-3 tie and lifted Baltimore over New York. The Orioles got to Yankee reliever Rich Gossage, 3-3, when Ken Singleton singled with one out in the 11th. Floyd Rayford ran for Singleton and Nolan then belted a 3-1 pitch for his third homer. It was the Orioles' seventh pinch homer of the year, tying a club record.

Reliever Tippy Martinez, 3-4, was the winner with 11-3 innings of two-hit relief.

Twins 4, Rangers 1 Dave Engle hit a two-run homer and Gary Ward hit a solo shot and doubled to help Minnesota beat Texas.

Winner Brad Havens, 3-5, scattered six hits in seven innings after hurling a no-hitter for five innings. Ron Davis relieved Havens with none out in the eighth after George Wright's single and finished up to earn his fourth save.

Frank Tanana, 3-8, was the loser.

"That's the way Havens is capable of throwing the ball," Minnesota Manager Billy Gardner said. "He was just superb. Usually we are four or five runs down by the fifth inning. The way Davis is going, now we have a chance to get them the last few innings."

Indians 5, Red Sox 4 Ron Hassey's bases-loaded single with one out in the 14th inning scored Andre Thornton with the winning run to lead Cleveland over Boston.

Thornton led off the 14th with a single off Luis Aponte, 2-1. Thornton took second on a sacrifice by Jerry Dybzinski, before an intentional walk to Rick Manning and a walk to Van Hayes loaded the bases. Hassey then bounced his game-winning hit over the head of Red Sox first baseman Dave Stapleton.

Dan Spillner, 4-4, pitched four innings of two-hit relief, extending his scoreless-inning streak to 23.2.

Brewers 7, Tigers 5 Ben Oglivie drove in five runs with three homers and Ted Simmons hit a solo shot as Milwaukee beat Detroit and sent the Tigers skidding to their seventh straight loss.

The Tigers jumped to a 4-0 first-inning lead, before the Brewers came back to win on Oglivie's long-ball hitting. They finally went ahead 6-5 on solo homers by Simmons and Oglivie in the sixth.

"I haven't been swinging the bat real good. I've been getting a lot of changeups," said Oglivie, who had been hitting .247 at game time. "I give a lot of credit to my teammates for helping me make some adjustments."

Royals 7, Mariners 5 George Brett hit a three-run homer and U.L. Washington, making his first start since May 26, had two hits and scored twice as Kansas City beat the Mariners.

Brett's ninth homer of the season came on a 2-0 pitch from Seattle's Gaylord Perry, 5-6, in the third inning.

Rocky Mount Downs Pitt Co.

Rocky Mount scored three unearned runs and cut short a seventh-inning rally by Pitt County to come away with a 3-2 victory Saturday night in an American Legion game.

The game was delayed an hour and was shortened to seven innings — because one of the umpires did not show up.

Rocky Mount led, 3-1, going into the bottom of the seventh, but Pitt County appeared set to tie the game when, with one gone, Gordon Douglas walked and Sammy Hodges reached base on an error.

Hodges was forced at second when Terry Locust reached base on a fielder's choice. Bill Kittrell followed with a single to score Douglas and make it 3-2, but Locust was cut down in a rundown while trying to score to end the threat — and the game.

Rocky Mount jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second when Douglas walked Barry Butler and Steve Smith. Butler was out when Tony Thomas reached on a fielder's choice, but the subsequent throw by Locust to second was bad, allowing Smith to score.

Clint Carter singled home Thomas to make it 2-0.

Pitt County came back with a run in the third. Hodges singled, stole second and went to third on Kittrell's sacrifice. He scored on Tom Buie's sacrifice fly to left.

Rocky Mount got the run back in the sixth. Tim Hux singled, went to second when Carter reached base on an error and scored on Eddie Coats' single to up its lead to 3-1.

Neither team had anyone with more than one hit.

Douglas went the distance for Pitt County, striking out 11 and walking six. He gave up five hits and none of the three runs were earned.

Butler went the distance for Rocky Mount. He struck out one and walked three and gave

Rain Halts Wimbledon First Round

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Rain forced suspension of opening-round play today as John McEnroe began defense of his Wimbledon title against fellow American Van Winitzky.

McEnroe, following a consistently strong service into the net, held a 6-2, 6-2, 1-0 lead over Winitzky at Center Court when the rain forced groundskeepers to bring out the tarpaulin and sent spectators scurrying for cover.

The battle of left-handers inaugurated the 96th All-England Lawn Tennis Championships. First-place money is $74,583.

When rain forced suspension of play, second-seeded Jimmy Connors held a 6-0, 6-2, 3-1 lead over South African Mike Myberg; third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis led Brent Pirow of South Africa 6-4, 6-1; former Wimbledon champion Stan Smith led No.9 seed Andres Gomez of Ecuador, winner of this year's Italian Open, 6-4, 6-3, 2-2; No.13 Brian Gottfried held a 7-6, 2-1 advantage over Giles Moreton of France, and John Sadri held a 7-6, 2-1 lead over fellow American and No.16 seed Steve Denton.

John McEnroe and Van Winitzky first faced each other on a tennis court when they were 12 years old. Monday, they were paired against each other on Center Court at Wimbledon, where the fiery McEnroe was beginning his bid to retain the title he took from Sweden's Bjorn Borg last year.

"In words that could send shivers down the backs of Wimbledon officials, Winitzky said: "McEnroe tends to go a bit nuts occasionally when we play against each other because we grew up together."

Wimbledon's umpires, referees and linesmen were all praying for peace and quiet as McEnroe returned to the famous grass courts. Last year, he was the stormiest Wimbledon champion of all time, arguing with officials in match after match and being assessed $10,000 in fines.

The fines were squashed later on appeal. But the All-England Club withheld honorary membership from McEnroe, although the honor had been conferred on every other Wimbledon champion for years.

McEnroe and his old schoolboy buddy are both 23. McEnroe is just 14 days older than Winitzky. They used to stay in each other's homes when they played in junior tournaments.

"John was pretty much the same as all of us in those days," Winitzky said. "Mind you, he used to moan a bit too much even then. Nowaday, it works as a plus for him when he gets upset.

"If John does anything in our match, I just hope the umpire has it all under control and sticks by the rules.

"Up until the age of 16, I could beat John. The last time we played was two years ago, and he won in three sets."

Victory for McEnroe Monday was seen as the biggest certainty at Wimbledon. British bookies rate him an even favorite to win the title again.

Winitzky played on grass last week for the first time in two years and was ousted from the Lambert and Butler championships at Bristol in the first round by Californian Matt Doyle.

He moved to London and concentrated on practice — exactly what McEnroe and his principal rival Jimmy Connors did all week.

While the experts predicted an easy first round passage for McEnroe, Winitzky refused to talk about winning or losing.

"I am honestly looking forward to it," he said. "I play tennis to give other people pleasure and hopefully I'll have a good match."

With Borg absent, McEnroe and Connors were heavy favorites to meet in the final on July 4.

Rhoden Hurls Pirates Past Phils

By The Associated Press

The adrenaline should have been pumping. The butterflies should have been fluttering. But Rick Rhoden had another concern as he entered the seventh inning with a no-hitter. He trailed 1-0, and that was kind of spoiling things.

The Pittsburgh right-hander lost his no-hit bid with one out in the seventh when Greg Gross doubled, but the Pirates went on to beat Philadelphia 3-1 Sunday on a two-run double by Tony Pena in the eighth inning.

"The most important thing is that we won," the veteran pitcher said afterward. "I knew I had a no-hitter going, but it puts a damper on it when you're losing."

The game marked a milestone for another veteran, 41-year-old Pete Rose of the Phillies. Rose played in his 3,000th ballgame and collected his 3,769th hit, two shy of Hank Aaron, who is second on the all-time list with 3,771. All-time leader Ty Cobb had 4,191 hits.

Rose trails only four other players in number of games played: Aaron (3,298), Carl Yastrzemski (3,108), Cobb (3,033) and Stan Musial (3,026).

The Pirates tied the score 1-1 in the seventh. Lee Lacy singled and went to second as Dave Parker, hitting for Rhoden, walked. Lacy scored on a single by Omar Moreno.

In the Pirates eighth, Bill Madlock doubled off Dick Ruthven, 5-5, and Jason Thompson was walked intentionally. Mike Easler forced Madlock at third, but a wild pitch allowed both runners to advance. Pena then smacked a two-run double down the right-field line, making a winner of Kent Tekulve, 5-2, who pitched the final two innings.

Greenville Wins Two

Greenville swept a double-header from Elm Grove Sunday in action in the Tri-County Adult Hardball League. Greenville won the first game, 8-7, and the second, 13-4.

The wins up Greenville's record to 15-1.

In the first game, Danny Varner, Greg Lassiter and Mac Stokes all had homers for Greenville.

Varner hit a two-run shot and Lassiter and Stokes each had solo blasts. Varner and Jim Gibson were both three for four. Varner had four RBI. Gibson had a double.

Lassiter was two for four. In the second game, Curtis Spencer was four for four with a three-run home run and two doubles. He had five RBI.

Jeff Raisig was two for four with a solo home run and two runs batted in. Jim Dobbins was two for four.

Marty Varner was the winning pitcher in the opener. He struck out eight and walked five.

Dobbins won the second, striking out five and walking three.

Greenville returns to action Wednesday when it travels to Hamilton.

Dodgers 4, Reds 2

Ron Roenicke and Ron Cey each hit solo home runs, and Jerry Reuss won his third game in a row to help the Dodgers extend their longest winning streak of the season to six games, all on the road.

Mets 5, Cards 4

John Stearns' two-run triple off Bruce Sutter with one out in the 10th inning gave New York a 5-3 lead, and the Mets held on to beat the Cardinals.

Expos 11, Cubs 5

Al Oliver hit a two-run homer and a pair of singles, and Tim Wallach capped a five-run fifth inning with a three-run homer to help Montreal win its third game in a row. The loss was the third straight for Chicago.

Giants 5, Braves 3

Jack Clark and Joe Morgan each homered to lift San Francisco over Atlanta. Clark smacked a solo homer, his 12th, leading off the second inning against Braves right-hander Bob Walk, and Morgan drilled a two-run shot, his third, with two out in the third.

Astros 8, Padres 4

Shortstop Dickie Thon had three hits, drove in three runs and scored twice to lift the Astros over the Padres.

The Astros had broken a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning when Denny Walling opened the inning with a bunt single off loser

Juan Eichelberger, 5-8. Thon doubled off third baseman Luis Salazar's glove to move Walling to third and Terry Puhl's fly to right brought home Walling.

Yarborough, Waltrip Feuding Again

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — First came the fender-banging, then came the war of words between Cale Yarborough and old nemesis Darrell Waltrip.

Yarborough drove his Buick Regal to a hard-earned victory Sunday over Waltrip in the rain-interrupted Gabriel 400 Grand National stock car race.

The sun was a huge orange ball barely hanging above the Irish Hills behind Michigan International Speedway as Yarborough held off Waltrip's final move on the last of 200 laps around the high-banked, two-mile oval.

Waltrip, the defending NAS-CAR point champion who has won five of the 15 Grand National races this season, took his Buick low in the backstretch and pulled alongside Yarborough, with the two cars bumping lightly.

The challenger appeared to barely nudge ahead as the cars zoomed side-by-side through the third turn, and again they touched, this time harder.

But, suddenly, Yarborough darted ahead, going on to win by about three car-lengths.

That wasn't the end of the hostilities, though. The two leaders banged together again in the first turn. And this time, Waltrip spun into the muddy infield while Yarborough came loose but gathered the car back in and completed his victory lap.

"Darrell just turned right into me in turn three," said Yarborough, who now has won two of only eight starts this season. "I still got by him though."

"Then, after I took the checkered (flag), I slowed down to tell him what I thought about it. I shook my fist at him and he turned right into me and spun himself into the mud."

The three-time NASCAR champion from Timmonsville, S.C., who once dubbed Waltrip "Jaws," referring to the latter's penchant for sparking controversy with his mouth, was asked if he's had problems with Waltrip before.

Yarborough replied: "Who hasn't?"

Waltrip, a resident of Franklin, Tenn., replaced Yarborough in the driver's seat when the older driver quit Junior Johnson's team after the 1980 season in order to cut back on his racing schedule.

But Yarborough said he takes no special pleasure in beating Waltrip or his former team. He said, "I came here to beat 'em all, not just one."

Waltrip, at 35, seven years younger than Yarborough, was furious following the race.

"I got on the inside of Cale going into the third turn and we made contact. Cale must have gotten hot after the checker 'cause he spun me out."

At that point, the usually talkative Waltrip walked away and refused to say any more.

The victory in the $295,325 event was worth $24,400 for Yarborough, while Waltrip won $25,650 because of added contingency money.

Yarborough averaged 120.958 mph in the race slowed by just three caution flags but delayed twice, for a total of three hours and six minutes, by rain.

Bill Elliott was third, about four seconds behind in a Ford Thunderbird, while Bobby Allison finished fourth in a Buick and Ricky Rudd's Pontiac Grand Prix was fifth. Those were the only other entries among the 37 starters on the same lap with the two leaders at the end.

Eighteen-year-old Robin McCall, making her first start in a Grand National event and the first woman to race in NAS-CAR since Janet Guthrie in 1979, completed just 107 laps, but finished 29th after suffering through some engine problems.

The race started at 2:45 p.m. EDT, a late start because of a television commitment, and did not end until 9:15.

Many in the crowd of 66,470 found shelter from the rain in cars, campers and under the grandstands and stayed around until the end.

All the caution flags were brought out by blown engines and there were no crashes in the race.

Terry Labonte, who leads Allison and Waltrip in the Winston

Cup point standings at the halfway point in the season, never was a factor in the race. He wound up 28th after bringing out the last caution flag when his Buick blew its engine on lap 152.

West Five-Stroke Victor At Amateur

GREENSBORO (AP) — Mike West took a five shot-victory in the North Carolina Amateur Men's golf championship Sunday despite slipping to a 73 in Sunday's final round.

The outcome was never in doubt as the three-over-par total left West at 281 while Durham's Bob Stanger, Nolan Mills of Charlotte and Winston-Salem's Mike Roland finished tied for second at 286. Stanger, who graduated from Duke in 1981, recently teamed with Ron Schmidt to win the CGA Pro-Am team title.

Roland, who was three strokes out of first as the day began, closed with a 75 Sunday. Mills, a rising senior at N.C. State, finished with a 71 while Stanger shot even-par in the final round.

Burlington's Mark Thaxton, Neil Harrell of Knightdale and Charlotte's David Powell were knotted in fifth at 288 while UNC's Billy Plyler, Greensboro's Ryan Fox and Walter Hall of Clemmons were one shot back in eighth.

Greenville's Don White came in with an 81 Sunday to finish at 301. White had rounds of 72, 74, 74 and 81.

West, a former UNC golfer had a three-shot cushion entering the final round and the field quickly began to back away.

Even when West bogeyed three straight holes on the front side, there was little drama. He made the turn in 2-over 37, but still held a four-stroke advantage over Stanger, Roy Hunter and UNC teammate Billy Plyler.

West's even-par 281 was the best total since Vance Heafner of Cary, currently on the Professional Golf Association tour, won the event in 1977.

"I knew it would play tough, I just wanted a smart round," said West of the par 71 Cardinal Golf Club course.

"I worked real hard to get ready for this tournament," he said. "I played poorly this spring and I lost confidence in my driver. I made a few swing changes and got my confidence back."

GTC Edges Rocky Mount

The Greenville Tennis Club and Rocky Mount both won three matches, but GTC won three more games overall to come away with a hard-fought victory in a Roanoke Tennis League match Sunday at the River Birch Tennis Center.

GTC won 62 games to Rocky Mount's 59 to win its third win in four outings.

GTC goes on the road next Sunday to face league-leading Tarboro.

Manning-Loftin Win Putt Putt

David Manning and Jake Loftin combined to shoot a 29-under-par 79 to win the Sunday Bestball Tournament Sunday at the local Putt Putt course.

Manning and Loftin fought off three challenges to take a three-stroke win over the second place team of Robert and Henry Beacham, which finished the evening with an 82.

Johnny Carrow and David Beacham were third with an 83. Danny Pollard and Mike Shane were fourth with an 84.

Fifth place went to Robbie Ehrmann and Whit Whitfield with an 86.

The Eastern Regionals will begin tonight at 8 o'clock. Teams from Greenville, Rocky Mount and Goldsboro are competing.

Wilson Edges Snow Hill, 3-2

SNOW HILL — An error allowed Chris Proctor to come home with what proved the winning run as Wilson held off Snow Hill in the bottom of the ninth inning to come away with a 3-2 victory Sunday in an American Legion game.

The loss came one day after Snow Hill outslugged Wayne County, 14-12, to pick up its first win of the season.

In Sunday's game, Wilson scored two runs in the third and added a third run in the ninth before Snow Hill came back with two runs with two outs in the bottom of the ninth.

Charles Flowers walked, went to second on a passed ball and scored on a single by John Logan to make it 1-0. Logan later scored on Scott Barnes' triple to up the margin to 2-0.

It stayed that way until the ninth when Proctor walked and went to second on Flower's sacrifice bunt. Proctor continued to third on the bunt, and when the throw went awry, Proctor scored.

Snow Hill came back with two runs in the bottom of the inning. Chris Newsome walked and went to second when Steve Sides reached on an error. Then, with two gone, Jeff Suggs singled home both runners.

Snow Hill could get no more runs, however, as Wilson held on for the win.

Logan was two for three for Wilson and was the only player on either team with more than one hit.

In Saturday's game, Snow Hill and Wayne County combined for 26 runs and 39 hits. Snow Hill took a 6-0 lead after two innings with three runs in the first and second. In the first, Sides singled and scored on Greg Hardison's triple. Jeff Ginn followed with a home run to make it 3-0.

After Snow Hill added three more runs in the second, Wayne County came back with four runs in the third and then tied the game in the fourth with two runs.

Snow Hill regained the lead at 12-7 over the next three innings only to have Wayne County cut it to 12-11 going into the bottom of the eighth. Snow Hill then all but sealed the win with two runs in the inning.

Hardison singled and stole second and third and scored on Ritchie Chase's two-out double. Wade Corbett followed with a single to score Chase and Snow Hill led, 14-11.

Wayne County scored its final run in the ninth.

Sides led Snow Hill with five hits in six at bats. Hardison, Ginn and Suggs were all four for six. Hardison had two triples and a double. Ginn two doubles along with his home run and Suggs a triple.

Robbie Pelletier was three for three and Corbett was three for six.

Wayne County was led by Mike Forbis, who was three for five. Rex Fieldes, Jansen Evans and Do Yoi Lim all had two hits for Wayne County. Lim had a triple while Forbis and Evans both had doubles.

Snow Hill plays host to Pitt County tonight.

Meeks Hurls AS To 8-0 Victory

Prep League
Auto Specialty . . . . . 8
Shop-eze . . . . . 0

Chris Meeks scattered six hits and Auto Specialty scored seven runs in the last two innings to defeat Shop-eze, 8-0, Sunday in a Prep League baseball game.

The win, coupled with Hendrix & Dail's 9-7 loss to First State Bank, gave AS a tie for the title. AS will meet Hendrix & Dail Tuesday at 5:30 in a one-game playoff for the Prep League title.

Auto Specialty took a 1-0 lead in the first when Travis King singled home Lee Eakes. Eakes singled to open the inning.

AS then added four runs in the fifth, sparked by Tom Taylor and Meeks, both of whom had RBI singles.

AS then closed out its scoring with three runs in the sixth, sparked by Meeks' RBI single.

Andrew Perry had two hits for Shop-eze. Meeks and Eakes had two hits for AS.

ie with Auto Specialty for the Prep League title. H&D will meet AS Tuesday at 5:30 in a one-game playoff for the title.

H&D pulled off its triple play in the first after First State had scored two runs, sparked by Axel Smith's triple.

H&D cut the margin to 2-1 in the third but First State got the run back in the fourth and scored three runs in the fifth, keyed by Jimmy Gillahan's two-run inside-the-park home run.

First State upped its lead to 9-1 in the top of the sixth only to have H&D rally for two runs in the bottom of the inning and four more in the seventh. But it was not enough.

Tracy Johnson had three hits to lead First State. Smith, Eric Jarman and Mike Wooten all had two hits for First State. Jarman had a double.

Greg Jones and Anthony Cobb had two hits for H&D.

in the third to erase a five-run deficit and added a run in the fourth and sixth to defeat Brown & Wood, 10-8, Sunday in a Babe Ruth game.

B&W took a 5-0 lead in the first, but Wachovia came back with eight runs in the third to take a lead it never lost.

The inning was keyed by six walks and a triple by Tom Moore.

Wachovia upped its lead to 10-5 with a run in the fourth and sixth before B&W scored three runs in the seventh.

Brian Bridges had two hits for B&W. No one else had more than one hit.

Famous Subs scored its final run in the sixth.

THAT'S EXCITED
HOUSTON (AP) — Defensive end Keith Baldwin of Texas A & M, at his home here, got so excited when he was named by the Cleveland Browns on the second round of the NFL draft April 27, he yanked the phone out of the wall while being interviewed.

"I was sort of surprised to go in such a high round," Baldwin said later.

Planters Bank . . . . . 8
Famous Subs . . . . . 3

Planters Bank road a four-run first-inning to an 8-3 victory over Famous Subs Sunday in a Babe Ruth game.

Monty Atkinson's double, Tryone Jones' single and three walks keyed the four run first.

Famous Subs countered with two runs in the bottom of the inning but could get no closer as Planters scored two runs in the third and a run in the fifth

U.S. Charges Kremlin Hypocrisy In Nuclear Field

By LAWRENCE L. KNUZON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — By accusing Moscow of hypocrisy, the United States is striving to blunt the public relations impact of the Soviet Union's promise never to use nuclear weapons first.

The accusation was made Saturday in New York by Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. immediately after he emerged from two days of intensive talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko.

Gromyko had delivered the "no first use" promise earlier in the week before the United Nations General Assembly session on disarmament. Haig told reporters Saturday that even as Gromyko was delivering that speech on June 15, the Soviet Union was conducting an unprecedented burst of missile firings and tests, including the first known test of a weapon intended to destroy satellites in space.

The Soviet strategic activities, according to Haig, included the anti-satellite test, two launches of intercontinental missiles, one launch of an SS-20 medium range missile, the firing of the sea-launched ballistic missile and two intercepts of incoming missiles by the Soviet anti-ballistic missile system.

"Such activity belies by specific action the words put forward to the world audience here in New York this week," Haig said.

Haig's attack on the sincerity of Soviet arms control proposals comes at a time when the United States is clearly worried about the impact of those proposals on public opinion in Europe.

Some U.S. officials also were concerned that Reagan's speech before the United Nations last Thursday, in which he outlined previous U.S. arms control proposals in the strategic and conventional fields, had drawn only polite and lukewarm response.

The Gromyko speech was of special concern to the United States because of the international character of the audience before which it was delivered and the fear in high U.S. circles that a Soviet promise not to be the first to use nuclear weapons has an especially seductive and misleading appeal.

Haig called the proposal "cosmetic."
It is the U.S. position that the Soviet Union has an overwhelming edge in conventional military might in Europe and that a similar "no first use" pledge by the United States would merely issue a license for what Haig calls "conventional aggression in Europe."

"Our position on this proposal remains clear," Haig said. "The United States stands for the non-use of force of any form except in legitimate self-defense."

"The United States, together with its allies, intends to deter all war, conventional or nuclear," Haig said. And he quoted from Reagan's arms control speech last Nov. 18 in which the chief executive said that no NATO weapons, conventional or nuclear, "will ever be used in Europe except in defense against attack."

Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, in an interview on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" program Sunday, called last week's tests an "unprecedented display" of Soviet military strength. Weinberger said the purpose of the tests might be to "send out a signal... that no matter what they say, they still have this growing and immense arsenal of strength that underlines all our points... that there is no way we can maintain a credible deterrence without modernizing our forces."

Haig called on the Soviets to negotiate seriously at the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks opening June 29 on reducing medium-range missiles aimed at Western Europe, and he called for "reinvigorated" negotiations on reducing conventional forces in Eastern and Western Europe to equal levels.

"Now is the time to get on with serious negotiations devoid of public posturing," Haig said.

And he said Reagan's desire to put U.S.-Soviet relations on a stable and constructive basis "cannot be achieved without Soviet willingness to conduct its affairs with responsibility and restraint."

"It is clearly, squarely up to the Soviets to determine what sort of relationship they want to have with the United States," Haig said.

State Keeping Tabs On Young Automobile Accident Victims

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

The state Division of Motor Vehicles is testing the effects of a new state law by keeping statistics on children under 4 involved in car accidents.

The law requires children under age 1 to be protected in a crash-tested child-safety seat but permits those aged 1-2 to be restrained with only a seat belt. It does not require restraints when a child's personal needs such as diapering or nursing are being attended to or when all seat positions equipped with restraints are occupied.

For the first two years, violators will receive only a warning ticket. After that, court costs with a fine up to $10 can be levied, but no driver's license points assessed.

The penalties for violators came under attack when the General Assembly debated the law last year, Council said.

"The argument is that the state shouldn't be telling a family how to raise its children," he said. "The other thing is, we don't want to be making criminals out of mothers and fathers who are transporting their children."

The Governor's Highway Safety Program is helping agencies and organizations renting and lending car-safety seats.

Under the program, about $270,000 in federal funds will be spent this year on matching child-restraint purchases along with education and information. The program fully underwrites safety seats for wards of the state such as foster children.

Already there are loan programs in more than 80 of the 100 North Carolina counties. Officials hope to have one in every county by 1983, said Jim Taylor, assistant director of the governor's program.

Infant seats can be purchased for $25-$35. Convertible models, which can be used from birth to about 4 years, are about $40-$70, Council said.

The Juvenile Products Manufacturers Association Inc. has challenged in federal court the section of the law requiring state approval of child-safety restraints.

A preliminary injunction has been issued against enforcement of the state-approval requirement, but the law itself still takes effect July 1.

The experiment started in February, although the Child Passenger Safety Law requiring parents to secure children under 2 in approved safety restraints of family-purpose vehicles won't take effect until July 1.

Martha Knight, an employee of the N.C. Division of Motor Vehicles, is tracking North Carolina collisions involving children.

"I wish you could see the pictures of these cars," she said. "It's a wonder these kids have even come out alive at all."

The new law, which expires June 30, 1985 unless extended, isn't as strong as some safety advocates wanted, but proponents welcome it as a step in the right direction.

"I'm very happy to get what we got," said Forrest Council, deputy director of the UNC Highway Safety Research Center in Chapel Hill. "The center, the medical establishment, the Governor's Highway Safety Program and the highway patrol — who are so much behind it — all view this law as an educational tool."

Macclesfield Man Killed

A 21-year old Rt. 1 Macclesfield man, Ricky Saunders Bullock, died early Sunday morning in an automobile accident near Falkland.

State Highway Patrol Officer R.G. Pierce investigated the accident, with his report showing that Bullock's car struck the left side of the bridge and then overturned into the creek below. Bullock's body was found at 8 a.m. Sunday. The accident report states the accident probably took place about 2 a.m. Sunday morning.

Bullock was traveling alone at the time of the accident.

Eight people this year finished of the 12 who started.

Winterville Arrest Made

WINTERVILLE — A Greenville man has been arrested and placed in Pitt County jail and charged with felony possession of marijuana and attempting to sell and deliver non-tax-paid liquor, according to Ed Cox, chief of police in Winterville.

William J. Atkins of South Pitt Street, Greenville, was charged with two counts of felony possession of marijuana and one count of attempted sale and delivery of non-tax-paid liquor, reported Cox.

Atkins was placed under $5,200 bond in Pitt County jail, said Cox, and a 1977 van and $200 cash was confiscated at the time of the arrest.

Child Killed In Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Eric Wade Reardon, four years old, died in accident at three o'clock Sunday afternoon in Williamston. According to the Williamston police report, the young boy rode a bicycle from a yard into the street directly in front of a passing truck. No charges are being filed against the driver of the truck.

Eric, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Reardon, was pronounced dead on arrival at Martin General Hospital.

Jurors Back For 4th Day

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jurors in John W. Hinckley Jr.'s trial today returned for a fourth day of deliberations to the same wood-paneled courtroom where they heard weeks of conflicting testimony on the presidential assailant's sanity.

Court personnel said that if there was no verdict by dinner time, the jurors would take a break and then continue their deliberations tonight.

Lee Ann Flynn, administrative assistant for the federal court, told reporters the jury began deliberating at 8:30 a.m. EDT. Not long after, attorneys were summoned to the chambers of U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker and told the jury had sent out a note.

Miss Flynn said Parker is "not disclosing anything about the note."

The jurors were discussing whether the 27-year-old defendant was insane when he shot President Reagan and three other men outside a Washington hotel on March 30, 1981.

Hinckley has acknowledged shooting the men, but has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

The jury of seven women and five men deliberated nearly five hours Sunday before Parker let them adjourn shortly after 3 p.m. to have a Father's Day dinner. The jury, which got the case Friday, had deliberated a total of 16 hours through Sunday.

Since Thursday, the jurors have been isolated in a motel in nearby Alexandria, Va., to prevent any outside contact or unauthorized discussion of the case while they are trying to reach a verdict.

But Parker allowed the jurors to have dinner Sunday night with immediate family members, or an acquaintance, for not more than 1½ hours at a restaurant chosen by U.S. Marshal J. Jerome Bullock.

Deputy marshals were instructed to listen in on conversations to prevent discussion of the Hinckley case.

The Sunday session brought scores of reporters to the gray, stone federal courthouse that is normally deserted on weekends.

Four of the jurors went to Protestant services before they were driven to the courthouse with the others in mid-morning.

Because of the short day, they ate sandwiches and potato salad in the courtroom. They did not send out any notes, the only way they can communicate with Parker.

Hinckley's parents, who regularly visit their son in his basement cell seven floors below the courtroom, were not seen at the courthouse during the day Sunday.

Hinckley is charged in 13 felony counts with attempting to assassinate the president and with assault with intent to kill Reagan, Press Secretary James Brady, Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and policeman Thomas Delahanty.

That includes eight lesser charges, including the carrying of a pistol without a license.

Should Hinckley be found innocent by reason of insanity, he would be committed automatically for a mental examination at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, a federal institution in Washington. He would be released only if he could prove to Parker within 50 days that he no longer is dangerous to himself or others.

Should Hinckley be convicted and receive life sentences on all five major charges, there are several possibilities for computing his minimum time in prison.

If the sentences are concurrent — that is, served together — Hinckley could receive a parole hearing after either 10 or 15 years. It all depends on whether parole authorities follow federal or local procedures.

However, if Hinckley were told to serve the life terms consecutively, he could spend the rest of his life locked up.

Timing Of Session Before N.C. Election Cited On Utility Vote

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — "There's an election fever around this place," says one lobbyist who's mighty disappointed in results of the General Assembly session that's wrapping up this week. "I attribute this to the election," adds John Hicks, vice president and lobbyist for Duke Power Co. "I am absolutely certain of that." While legislators may not agree with that characterization, at least in public, few would argue that the unusual timing of the legislature — meeting up to a week before the June 29 primary — has colored the session and some of its actions.

Hicks and other utility company lobbyists blame preoccupation with the upcoming election, combined with a building frustration by consumers about high electric bills, with the utilities' stunning defeat last week. Lawmakers enacted a tough new law limiting rate increases for increased fuel costs, and added a surprise amendment likely to have even broader implications. While the utility lobbyists were opposing the fuel clause change proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt, the House tacked on an amendment giving the Utilities Commission discretion to limit rate charges known as Construction Work in Progress. CWIP allows companies to add to their rates costs of financing construction of new power plants before they go into service.

"If we didn't have a primary coming up we would have a fuel clause much more to our liking," said Hicks.

"I know doggone well the CWIP provision would have been put in...were it not for the election two weeks away," he added. "The amendment became much bigger than the bill."

Even Gov. Jim Hunt, who had feared the addition of the CWIP limitation to his fuel-clause bill would jeopardize it, agrees that the story might have been different had the election been earlier.

"I think that bill might have passed even in a regular session, with plenty of time and so on," he said. "But I can tell you this — it would not have passed as quickly. There would have been a lot more roadblocks and there would have been a lot fewer people who were on record in favor of it."

The passage of the CWIP limitation, which utility executives blame for causing the stock of Duke and Carolina Power & Light to fall, was particularly surprising because of its history.

The CWIP charges were allowed by the General Assembly in 1977. At the time, some legislators said Hunt stood aside and didn't fight the CWIP's passage in order to win his proposal, establishment of the public staff of the Utilities Commission.

Hunt denied that, and later said he supported repeal of CWIP charges. But repeal efforts mounted by consumer advocates failed in 1979 and again last year.

One who had been trying to repeal it was Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, a young lawyer who demonstrated legislative savvy when the fuel clause bill hit the floor.

He had been holding an amendment since last year that would drop the automatic provisions of CWIP and leave it up to the commission to decide how much of the capital costs could be passed along to ratepayers.

Had the utility companies not been trying to weaken the fuel clause bill with amendments, Wright said, he might not have put forward his amendment on the House floor.

"That had a lot to do with my strategy," Wright said. "When I realized they were going to try to amend (the) fuel clause...I decided well, heck, why not?"

The utility lobbyists frankly admit they hadn't seen it coming. But many House members, some starting at primary elections, didn't want to be recorded as against what was regarded as a consumer's amendment.

The House rollcall vote was interesting. Republicans voted in a bloc for Wright's amendment. Some leading consumer advocates — including Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, the fuel-clause bill's sponsor — voted "no" for fear of jeopardizing the entire bill in the Senate. But it passed.

Pressure then built in the Senate, where utility companies and big business in general usually find a more sympathetic ear. And the result was similar — the amendment and bill passed easily.

"I went to Richard afterward and said, 'I've got to congratulate you,'" said Hicks. "It was the slickest piece of legislative work I've seen in 25 years."

There were factors other than the election. Some say an anti-utility mood had been building because of recent rate increases. And recent reports of high salary increases given to CP&L executives generated a lot of mail to legislators.

"Everybody was conscious about their voting record," said Robert H. Gage, a Morganton attorney who represents clients of Legal Services of N.C., and who lobbied for the amendment.

"I think legislators generally regard the public as having a short memory, and that may be true," he added. "But however short the memory of the public, it's at least two weeks long."

Prison Tension, Riots Resulted In 2 Deaths

By The Associated Press
Racial tensions triggered weekend riots that left one inmate dead and more than 100 injured at Folsom and San Quentin prisons in California, authorities said, and an inmate was stabbed to death in a Georgia prison.

One Mexican-American inmate was killed and six black prisoners were injured Sunday at Folsom, east of Sacramento, in what spokesman Gil Miller called "a violent racial confrontation."

Six other inmates were injured at Folsom the previous day. At San Quentin, located on the east side of San Francisco Bay, three guards and 100 inmates were hurt Saturday in a clash that officials called the prison's worst in years. Inmates remained locked in their cells today.

Miller said the riot at Folsom erupted when 10 to 12 Hispanics armed with prison-made knives attacked about an equal number of blacks in the main yard. About 600 prisoners were in the yard at the time.

Some of the blacks also had knives, "which leads us to believe that they anticipated that something was going to occur," he said.

The dead prisoner was identified as Ignacio Mendoza, 30, serving a life term for first-degree murder in Los Angeles County.

Four of the six injured were taken to the University of California Medical Center in Sacramento, where were all listed in fair and stable condition with knife wounds. Five guards received minor injuries breaking up Sunday's fight.

On Saturday, Miller said, about 15 blacks attacked seven Hispanics in Folsom's maximum security unit. Two Hispanics were stabbed with a 5½-inch knife made from a kitchen implement.

At San Quentin, officials said had been aware of mounting racial tensions "for a couple of weeks" and called in extra staff to prevent widespread rioting.

The fighting broke out between a group of blacks and a group of whites and Hispanics, prison spokesman Anthony Newland said. Guards firing birdshot ended the riot within 20 minutes, he said.

"We don't know how many were actually involved in the fighting, but there were about 1,500 in the area at the time," he said. The maximum-security prison has about 3,400 of the state's most dangerous inmates.

Two San Quentin inmates remained hospitalized Sunday, one with a stab wound in the back and the other with a birdshot wound in the eye. Two guards also were treated for minor birdshot wounds, and one was injured when inmates pushed a door against his shoulder.

Newland said inmates would remain locked in their cells until a weapons search is completed, which could take a week.

In Reidsville, Ga., the state Bureau of Investigation was asked to investigate the fatal stabbing of a Georgia State Prison inmate, and law agencies across the state were asked to search for an escapee from the maximum-security facility.

Willie Joe Hicks, 32, of Roberta, died of multiple stab wounds around 8 p.m. Sunday, said prison spokeswoman Sara Englade.

"We do not at this time have a motive for it, nor do we have any suspects. We did a complete shakedown and turned up a number of weapons," Mrs. Englade said.

Hicks had been serving a 20-year sentence for burglary.

About 45 minutes after Hicks was stabbed, authorities in another building discovered that Weyman L. Mann, 34, was missing, Mrs. Englade said.

There was no indication the escape and stabbing were related.

To Raise Fish At Power Plant

BALTIMORE (AP) — Baltimore Gas & Electric Co. is planning to raise a million striped bass in tanks of warm water from a power plant in hopes of giving the fish a growth spurt in fall and spring.

The company is going to buy fertilized fish eggs and put them in water that has been used to cool steam from turbines at a generating plant in suburban Baltimore.

The water — 15 degrees warmer than normal — may double the fish's growth rate, said John N. Kraeuter, a marine biologist who will supervise the operation. "They'll see May in March, so to speak," he said, and will reach adulthood in 12 to 16 months.

Florida Prone To Lightning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Florida recorded the highest number of residents killed or injured by lightning over a 20-year period, while Alaska and Hawaii reported none, a federal study shows.

A study of lightning by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration recorded a total of 2,210 deaths and 5,142 injuries attributed to the violent electrical discharges between 1959 and 1979.

fatalities and 566 injuries, while the two newest states recorded no injuries or deaths.

During the 20 years under study there were 19 incidents of three or more deaths being caused by a single bolt and 106 cases of six or more injuries associated with a single incident.

Second in the lightning fatality list was North Carolina with 113 deaths over the term of the study, followed by Texas, 111, Maryland, 98, and Pennsylvania, 89.

Woman To Be Tobacco-Buyer

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Sherry Vause is stepping into a field previously dominated by men.

Ms. Vause, the first female leaf buying trainee in the 107-year history of Winston-Salem-based R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., spends most of her time on the road. She visits flue-cured leaf warehouses in the Southeast in the summer and tours burley tobacco warehouses of Kentucky in winter.

"I've had the same career dreams as other women," said Ms. Vause, 25, of Lake View, S.C. "First, I wanted to be a stewardess, and then I attended a school of fashion merchandising. I've held positions as a secretary, hostess, a retail saleswoman and others. But none has the appeal of the tobacco business."

However, Ms. Vause, a farmer's daughter, is no stranger to tobacco. She says her earliest recollections are of watching and later helping neighbors put harvested leaf in curing barns.

"But I never went to a tobacco sale with my father, and I really didn't get involved in the business until after high school," she said.

Training for a job held only by a few hundred men has made Ms. Vause the target of some good-natured kidding, especially from veteran buyers, she said.

"They really are a great bunch of people," she said. "I'd have to say the guys I work with are sometimes protective of me, but not too much so. It's just enough. I feel like I have a lot of uncles."

During the burley leaf sales period last year in Lexington, Ky., she learned the payment system for purchased tobacco. The coming of spring took her to Maryland where she kept books. She'll do the same thing this summer in North Carolina when the flue-cured tobacco markets open.

She'll continue her apprenticeship for several years until Reynolds considers her qualified to attend auctions and buy tobacco on behalf of the company.

"I'm learning constantly, and every day I become more confident," Ms. Vause said. "I know I'll be able to do the job when the time comes."

Zoo Is Like Real Jungle

SEATTLE (AP) — It's a real jungle out there at the Woodland Park Zoo, says director David Hancocks, who finds the animals are keeping the keepers on their toes.

The elephants, for example, get bored with their toys — such as tree trunks and old tires — and toss them in a moat around their pen. The pachyderms also need long, leisurely walks around the zoo to get some exercise.

In the normally quiet reptile house, the marginated tortoise has learned to stand and bang his shell on the window of his cage until he is let out for exercise.

And the tapir, a homely piglike animal, has been depressing visitors by moping around for months since his mate died. "You can't imagine how lonely a tapir can look," Hancocks said, noting that a new wife has been ordered from Chester, England.

Some potential problems stem from extensive changes to make the animals' habitat more natural, said Hancocks.

For instance, zoo officials plan to introduce a family of turtles into a savannah habitat now populated by patas monkeys.

And it's feared the monkeys will take to rolling the turtles down a hill into the pool, just for fun.

Bill Passes

The Tobacco Bill has passed the U.S. House of Representatives by a voice vote and is headed for the Senate, the office of Congressman Walter B. Jones reported to The Daily Reflector early this afternoon.

Insects 'Skip'

Metamorphosis

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Less advanced insects, such as silverfish and springtails, develop without undergoing metamorphosis.

There is almost no change in their body structure after hatching from eggs, except an increase in size, according to entomologists at Spectrum Home & Garden Products, a maker of lawn and garden insecticides.

Shuttle To Get 'Secret Cargo'

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The Air Force won't have the only top-secret cargo on Sunday's fourth test mission of the space shuttle Columbia.

Johnson & Johnson, the makers of bandages and pharmaceuticals, is almost as tight-lipped as the Pentagon about the experiment it will send into orbit aboard the reusable spacecraft.

"This industry is competitive," Johnson & Johnson spokesman Jim Merry said in an interview published today by the Cocoa TODAY newspaper.

Johnson & Johnson will send along a suitcase-sized container of organic compounds that will most likely be used for making ultra-pure medicines in the gravity-free environment of the shuttle, he said.

It is one of seven commercial, government and student experiments that will be aboard when astronauts Thomas Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield pilot the spacecraft on its final test mission. The shuttle is scheduled for liftoff at 11 a.m. EDT Sunday, with the 87-hour countdown beginning Tuesday night.

The Columbia is scheduled to land at Edwards Air Force Base in California after its seven-day mission.

The Johnson & Johnson experiment is designed to separate biological materials with an electrical current in the absence of gravity, Merry said. Gravity is responsible for the natural stirring that occurs when a substance is heated, and limits the concentration of pure substance produced when different types of cells are separated from long-chain organic molecules.

But the company won't tell which organic substances will be aboard. "Cosmetics is not a likely candidate," said Merry. "We're talking about serious medicines."

The Air Force experiment will be shielded from television cameras that send pictures of the shuttle flight back to Earth.

"Any kind of indication that would potentially identify the cargo is considered sensitive," said Air Force spokeswoman Capt. Peg Bowman. "Even if the pictures are hazy we don't want to give any indication as to its size or shape."

Air Force officials have said the cargo won't be placed in orbit, but will be carried back to Earth.

Fight Losing Video Games

MARSHFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Owners of commercial video games, upset at the prospect of losing revenue from thousands of quarters, are working to shoot down a new bylaw that bans the popular games.

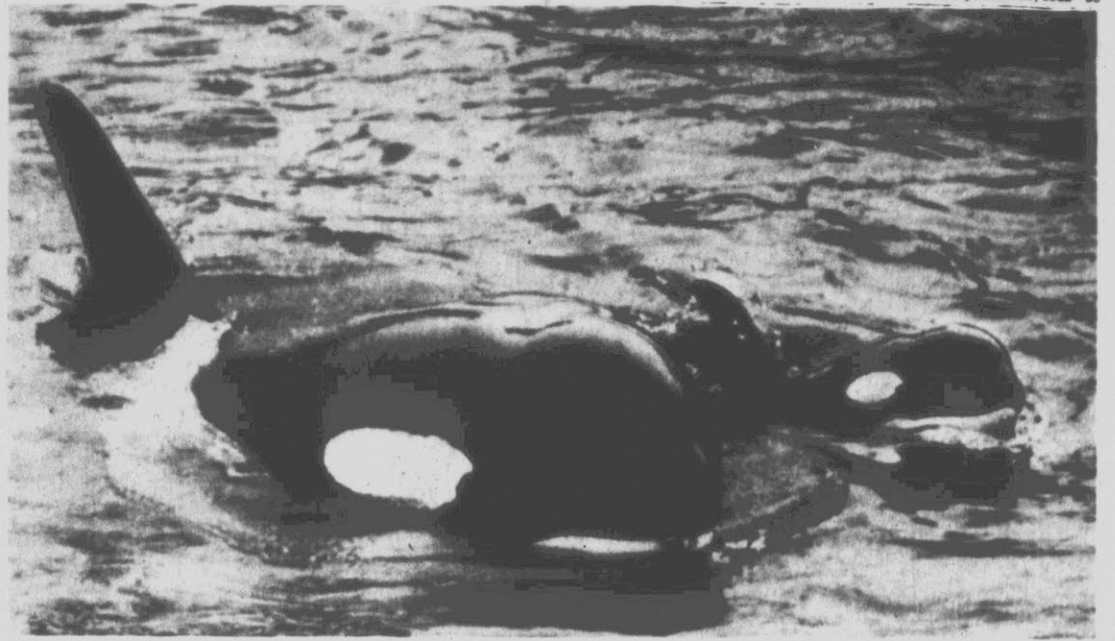

"It's a matter of trying to stay in business," said Louis Snyder, owner of the Marshfield Sports Center bowling alley, which has had the games for seven years. "We need that income," he said.

A machine in a good location can gross an estimated $35,000 a year.

"The proliferation of these games in town has created a honky-tonk atmosphere," says Tom Jackson, chairman of the town's vandalism committee, who proposed the bylaw.

Snyder said he is organizing a business group in this town of 6,700 residents southeast of Boston to try to overturn the bylaw.

The bylaw makes ownership of a video game for commercial purposes a crime, subject to a $200 fine. The law also applies to pin-ball games, but exempts home video games, coin-operated juke boxes, pool or billiard tables, bowling and athletic training devices.

The Forecast For Tuesday, June 22
● Low Temperatures

Fronts: Cold — Warm — Occluded — Stationary

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Tuesday in Texas and western New Mexico, the central Rockies and southern Florida. Cool weather is predicted from the Great Lakes to New England. Most of the country will be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Summer arrived today, but the weather forecast calls for more of the wet weather that plagued North Carolina the later part of spring. Partly cloudy will be the rule today along with the chance of some thunderstorms developing in the afternoon heating. Afternoon temperatures will be mostly in the mid and upper 80s with some 70s in the northern mountains. Another cold front will move southeast toward the Appalachians by this evening then slowly southeast across much of the state during tonight. This will enhance the prospects of some lingering showers and thunderstorms around the state tonight. The front will stall east-west close to the North Carolina-South Carolina border on Tuesday. The nearness of the front will also keep the better chance of thunderstorms over the south and east portions of North Carolina on Tuesday. The weak cold front, that pushed eastward to the coast late yesterday, provided much of the state with fairly pleasant weather. A few light showers moved through central and northeast North Carolina early Sunday morning but these were fairly brief. By late afternoon, a few widely scattered showers and thunderstorms developed over the south coastal region. Cherry Point was the only regular reporting point to have measurable rainfall and that was a mere one one hundredth of an inch. Overnight, the front dissipated, but a weak area of low pressure developed back inland across the Carolinas. An isolated thunderstorm or two was noted over the northern foothills shortly after midnight then moved into south-central Virginia. Another cluster of thunderstorms moved out of the midlands of South Carolina and diminished over southeast North Carolina before daybreak this morning. Otherwise, around the state, the sky ranged from clear to partly cloudy.

Early morning temperatures cooled into the 50s across the mountains and ranged in the 60s over the Piedmont to the low 70s over the southeast. The maximum temperatures on Sunday ranged from the upper 70s over the north coast to the 80s over the south portion of the state. The warmest reported value was the 90 at Jacksonville.

Young 'Loners' Are Susceptible

CHICAGO (AP) — First-grade boys who are loners and combine non-participation in classroom life with hostility to other children are more likely to use drugs, alcohol or tobacco by the time they reach adolescence, a study indicates. University of Chicago researchers said the study, which involved more than 1,200 youngsters, showed that first-grade boys who are merely aggressive have the next highest risk, followed by those who are only shy. The same factors do not seem to apply to girls, whom the researchers found to be more influenced by peer pressure during adolescence. By the time they reach adolescence, 45 percent of boys classified as both shy and aggressive smoked marijuana, 60 percent were heavy cigarette smokers, 18 percent drank hard liquor and 60 percent drank beer or wine.

ERA Outlook Is Dim In Florida

By MATT BOKOR
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Equal Rights Amendment, which needs approval by three more states in the next nine days to become part of the U.S. Constitution, is going back before the Florida Legislature, but its prospects are dim. A headcount of legislators published by The Florida Times-Union of Jacksonville on the eve of today's special legislative session showed the embattled amendment losing 22-17 in the Senate — where it has already been defeated four times — with one lawmaker undecided. In the House, 60 members said the opposed the amendment, 57 members supported it and three said they were undecided. ERA supporters planned to converge on the Capitol for 10:47 sag and extra security was ordered. About 10,000 people were expected to descend on the usually sleepy college town. "The opening day of a regular session is always hectic," said House Sergeant-at-Arms Wayne Westmark. "I'm multiplying that 10 to 20 times. We've never had to contend with anything like this before." Legislative officials added squads of state security officers, and plainclothes officers from the Leon County Sheriff's Department and the Tallahassee Police Department were called into duty. Extra doorkeepers were hired outside the House and Senate galleries. Senate President W.D. Childers said lawmakers wanted to avoid "at all cost" a disruption of the legislative session, such as occurred last week in Illinois, where the House chamber was invaded by pro-ERA demonstrators. The amendment, which would ban discrimination on the basis of sex, needs ratification from 38 states by June 30 to become part of the Constitution. Thirty-five states have ratified it so far, but five have rescinded their approval, although their actions are under review by the U.S. Supreme Court. The amendment was approved in the Florida House in 1975 and 1979, and defeated in 1973. The Senate has rejected it four times, most recently in 1979. A poll by Louis Harris of New York showed Florida residents support the amendment by a margin of 57 percent to 37 percent. "There are no more reasonable grounds for opposing it," said Judy Goldsmith, vice president of the National Organization for Women. Legislative leaders expressed hope the measure would be dealt with quickly, so they can work on several other measures for which Gov. Bob Graham summoned them into session, including bills to broaden police search-and-seizure powers and ease the cost of malpractice insurance for the state's doctors. Meanwhile, about 300 people, mostly men, gathered Sunday at a Father's Day rally in Boston to support the amendment. "The point is to show what men stand to gain through passage of ERA and not what they lose," said organizer Fred Hayward of the National Congress for Men. In Springfield, Ill., one of seven women who have been on a hunger strike for nearly five weeks said Sunday that the fasters are "feeling progressively worse," but their spirits remain high. Sister Maureen Fiedler, a Roman Catholic nun from Washington, D.C., also said the women are being sustained by hundreds of letters from well-wishers around the nation. Some hate mail also was received, she said. Another faster, Mary Ann Beall of Falls Church, Va., was reported in good condition Sunday after being hospitalized last week with a collapsed lung.

A Second Satellite TV News Channel

STAMFORD, Conn. (AP) — The president of the nation's second cable television network to offer all news, around the clock, says the new venture may not be the last. "I've said all along that we feel there is room for (two) services," said S. William Scott, president of Satellite News Channels. "... Who knows, there may be more." The new service, scheduled to begin operating today, begins with 2.6 million subscribers, and hopes to have at least 7.5 million by the end of next year. Picked to throw a switch at 11 a.m., activating the Stamford-based network, was 86-year-old Leo Rosenberg. He broadcast the results of the 1920 Harding-Cox presidential election over KDKA in Pittsburgh, the country's first commercial radio station. Group W Satellite Communications and ABC Video Enterprises, partners in the joint venture, have enlisted 23 commercial TV stations as regional correspondents for the cable-only service. Conceived 10 months ago, SNC invites comparisons with the pioneer in the field, Atlanta-based Cable News Network. But while CNN officials see the Stamford service as direct competition, SNC brass soft-pedal the comparison. SNC will offer a revised world newscast every 18 minutes, plus four regional newscasts. Its slogan is: "Give us 18 minutes. We'll give you the world." It will rarely break the format for extended coverage of a single event. CNN, in contrast, offers cable subscribers a mix of hard news, interviews, features and commentary. The Stamford operation's second service, SNC II, is scheduled to begin service after Jan. 1, providing in-depth and analytical coverage of major stories, and well as feature news and commentary. Hoping to blunt the anticipated thrust of SNC I, Turner began a headline-style service — CNN2 — in January. But Scott said the two cable networks are not necessarily headed for winner-take-all competition.

The products made by Premix here combine a rubber elastomer with the plastic to increase the impact strength by 20 percent.

Postal Service Making Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postage rates could remain stable through 1983 because the Postal Service is making more money than expected, officials say. The service on Sunday reported a $634 million surplus, an increase of almost $200 million since last March. Spokesman D. Jamison Cain said a high volume of mail and lower cost-of-living increases to employees because of the decline in inflation contributed to the increase in the surplus, which is up from $436 million last March. The service had originally expected a $120 million surplus for the fiscal year that began last Oct. 1.

Rice Now Reigns Where Cotton Used To Be King

By ELLEN DEBENPORT

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (UPI) — Arkansas farmers drilled their flat fields this spring to plant a rice crop that will amount to nearly 38 percent of the rice grown in the United States — enough to feed much of the world.

Where cotton was once king, rice is harvested to fill millions of boxes of Rice Krispies, as well as to supply Middle Eastern and Oriental countries where rice is the staff of life.

Last year's U.S. rice crop filled 185.3 million hundred-pound bags — so much that 62 percent of it was exported. Only Thailand can compete with a handful of American states in rice production.

But the staggering amount of rice is just the problem this year. The oversupply has much of last year's rice sitting in grain elevators, unsold even at prices so low that most farmers have no hope of making a profit, said Rodney Baker with the Arkansas Farm Bureau.

Countries such as South Korea and Indonesia, which used to buy rice months in advance, now are waiting until just a week or two before they need it. Because of favorable crop conditions worldwide last year, their own crops have been mostly sufficient, Baker said.

California is second to Arkansas in U.S. rice production and has a better average yield-per-acre than Arkansas. Baker said this is because California farmers grow hardy medium-grain rice and because they have more predictable weather, easing their battle against insects and disease.

"If they irrigate, they know they're not going to get a rain as soon as their fields are pumped up," he said.

The river regions of Texas, Louisiana and Missouri produce the rest of the country's rice.

Arkansas farmers have been hit doubly hard by the 1981 oversupply because it came on the heels of the 1980 drought. Prices were good in 1980, but there wasn't much rice to sell, Baker said.

When the 1981 rice crop can be sold, the high-quality long-grain rice that Arkansas specializes in is going for $8.44 to $8.88 per hundredweight or about $4 a bushel. The sticky medium-grain rice preferred in the Far East is selling for no more than $8 per hundredweight. Normally, Baker said, the price would be about $11.

"We feel we've hit a bottom in the rice market. It should improve from here."

In the meantime, some rice farmers are having to refinance their loans. A few have been driven out of business.

"If things don't improve, this time next year we're going to lose some more," Baker said. "They're in a period of trying to survive, they're not trying to build or increase. They are truly hurting."

"What a farmer individually faces, he has to figure what will work best for him," he said.

What may work this year is compliance with President Reagan's crop reduction standards, which are required if certain farmers are to qualify for government loans.

Arkansas farmers will reduce their rice crop by about 10 percent this year to 1.4 million acres to qualify for the benefits, hoping at the same time to sell off last year's oversupply, Baker said.

It will be the first time rice acreage has dropped since 1974 when longstanding marketing quotas were lifted. Arkansas' rice acreage overall has tripled in the eight years since.

The rich farmland was once timberland. In the pre-ecology days of the 1800s, land cleared for timber was left bare.

Cotton farmers, finding the land already cleared, tended thriving cotton crops until the turn of the century when the devastating Mexican boll weevil drove many to rice. The development of synthetic material later in the century nailed the lid on cotton's coffin.

Arkansas' heavy clay layer, it turned out, was ideal for holding water to keep rice fields flooded. Farmers then learned that soybeans were the perfect crop to rotate with rice — each replenishing the soil for the other. The two rank today as Arkansas' largest and most lucrative crops.

Baker said many people seem to believe a rice farm has Oriental peasants wading in flooded fields, planting rice by hand. In fact, rice farming is so highly mechanized that in some areas, everything but the harvesting is done from the air.

The preferred method of planting in Arkansas is to use a driller that makes holes in the ground then drops the seed. The leveled fields are later flooded. Two to four inches of water is kept standing in the fields until two weeks before harvest.

In some areas with the right soil conditions, seed can be dropped from an airplane onto an already flooded field. Airplanes are used to fertilize and spread herbicides.

Rice is an expensive crop to produce. It requires special equipment and is "energy intensive," particularly in the use of petroleum, Baker said. Energy is needed to keep the fields irrigated, to fuel the tractors and combines and to fly the crop-dusters. Petroleum products are also used in fertilizer and weed-killers.

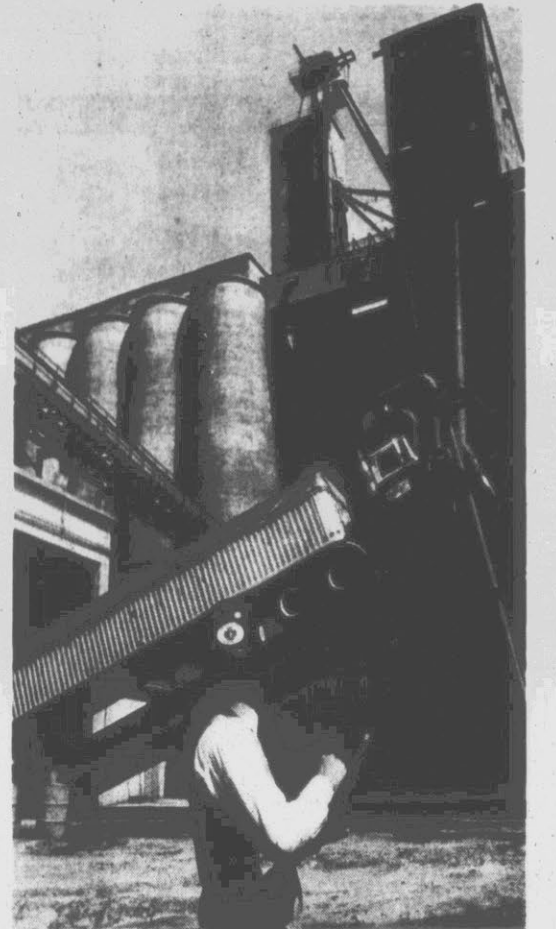

When rice is dried after harvest, energy use again figures heavily in the cost.

The dried rice can be stored indefinitely until the farmer believes the price is right. At that point, most farmers market through a cooperative.

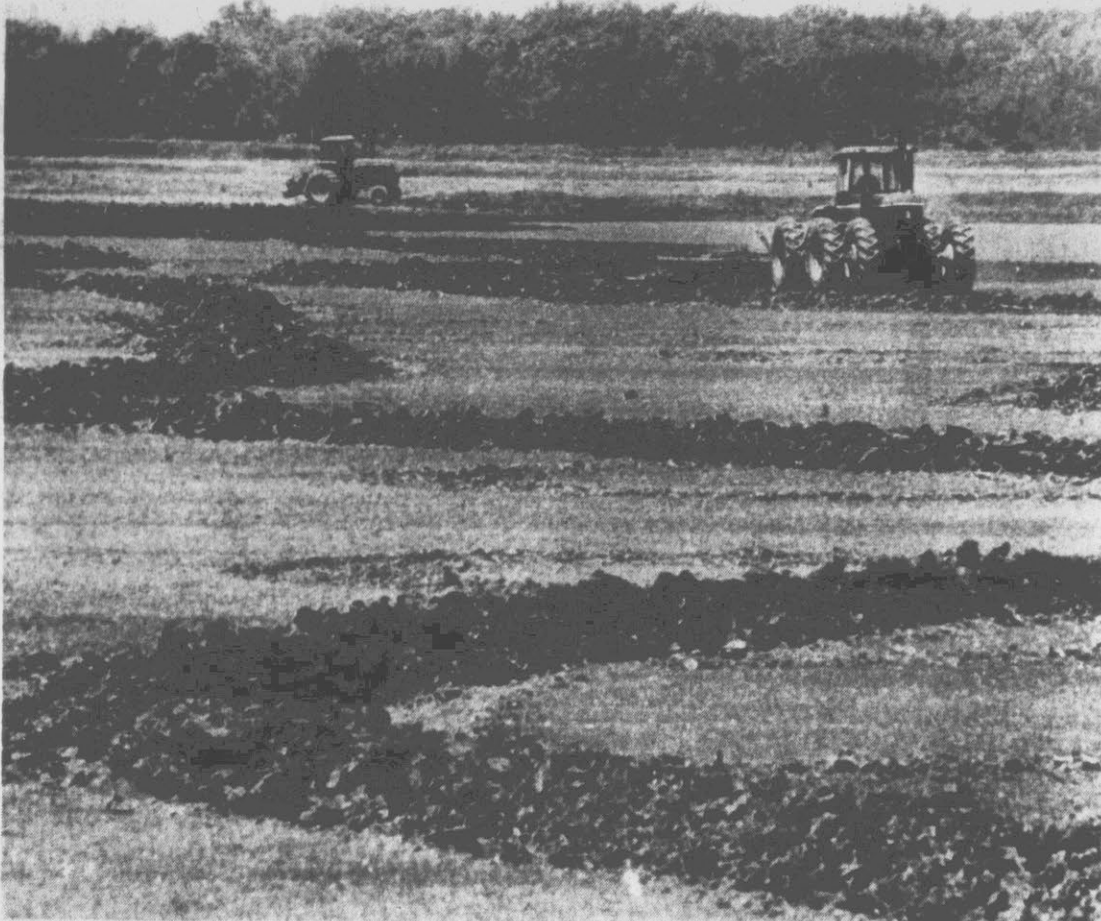

Arkansas is the home of the world's largest rice and soybean cooperative, Riceland Foods in Stuttgart. It has representatives all over the world.

Arkansas farmers lost a prime customer for long-grain rice in the Iranian revolution. But Richard Bell, executive vice president of Riceland, said the rice is again being sold to Iran through other countries.

Arkansas' congressmen are pushing rice as a commodity for use in the United States' Food for Peace program.

N.C. Freshmen Seen Atypically Liberal About Issues Of Women

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A national survey shows that a larger percentage of freshmen at three North Carolina universities favor legalization of abortion and women's equality than most of their counterparts at schools in other parts of the country.

The "women's issue" questions were part of the survey given annually by the American Council on Education to incoming freshmen at East Carolina, North Carolina at Chapel Hill and North Carolina A&T.

Results of the survey showed the percentage of freshmen students at the three schools who favor abortion was above the national average of 53 percent.

At East Carolina University, 68 percent of the freshmen participating in the survey agreed that abortion should be legal, while 66 percent of University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill freshmen agreed, and 65 percent at North Carolina A&T State University freshmen favored legality for abortion.

Nationally, 89 percent of freshmen agreed that women should have job equality. But at UNC-Chapel Hill, 97 percent felt that way — as did 94 percent of ECU freshmen and 90 percent of N.C. A&T freshmen.

The council survey, sponsored also by the University of California at Los Angeles, doesn't provide a complete profile of the typical freshman but school officials say they pay close attention to it.

"We use it to get a feel for where our students are, what they are thinking and how they change over time," said Sherry B. Morrison, director of research in the UNC-CH student affairs division.

N.C. State University doesn't participate in their council on education survey but does take its own survey of incoming freshmen. Duke University participated in the nationwide survey but wouldn't release the results, saying they were for internal use only.

"The results help us anticipate student needs," said Nancy D. Pate, research assistant in N.C. State's student affairs planning and research department.

The national survey also showed that 38 percent of ECU freshmen considered themselves "reborn Christians," down slightly from 1980. ECU also learned that 39 percent of its freshmen favored legalization of marijuana compared with 36 percent nationwide.

At N.C. A&T, 40 percent of the incoming freshmen said marijuana should be legal, while at UNC-CH the figure was just under 26 percent.

N.C. State's survey said 57 percent of its new freshmen considered themselves middle-of-the-road political thinkers. Twenty-three percent considered themselves conservative; 18 percent liberal; 1 percent ultra-conservative and 1 percent ultra-liberal.

Ten years ago, the survey

showed that a greater number of N.C. State freshmen — 31 percent — considered themselves liberal while only 15 percent called themselves conservative. Fifty-two percent were self-proclaimed moderates in 1972 while the percentages of ultra-conservatives and ultra-liberals didn't change.

Israeli Release Canadian

TORONTO (AP) — A Canadian doctor seized by Israel troops a week ago during their lightning invasion of Lebanon has been released in Tel Aviv, the Foreign Ministry said.

Toronto-born Christopher Paul Giannou, who was working for the Palestine Red Cross, was freed Sunday, the ministry said. He was one of a reported 5,000-6,000 people taken prisoner during the Israeli sweep against Palestinian guerrilla based in Lebanon.

Neither Giannou's sister, Mary Janetos, 30, nor his wife Saida, 33, an Algerian working on her PhD in English literature in London, know where he was held.

The sister insisted her brother was a doctor, not a guerrilla or even a Palestine Liberation Organization sympathizer.

Interest Rates Defy The Optimism Of President

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The quickest way to get interest rates down is for Congress to prove that it will attempt to reduce government spending — in other words, to pass that budget that has already been passed out of the Senate Budget Committee."

So said President Reagan, May 13, 1982. He said it again, just two weeks ago, at the Palace of Versailles.

On March 30, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said that if Congress and the White House "can come up with a deficit of approximately $90 billion, I think interest rates will come down sharply" by September.

As Reagan and Regan saw it, congressional approval of a compromise budget would trigger a rapid drop in interest rates.

But a funny thing has happened on the way to a lower-deficit agreement. Interest rates are creeping up.

Over the past month, as the House and Senate moved toward final passage of a plan for reducing the 1983 deficit, financial markets have been raising the price of money they lend for both the long-term and short-term — in direct contradiction of administration predictions.

Regan's reasoning was that the smaller deficits would reduce the government's borrowing needs, thereby reducing lender fears that the government would drive up the price of loans by absorbing so much of the available credit.

The president repeated his May 13 statement two weeks ago at the economic summit at Versailles, France, where the United States' major trading partners expressed their growing frustration over the damage being caused to their economies by high American interest rates.

The House and Senate have since passed separate versions of a budget plan, and House-Senate negotiators have come up with a compromise outline of spending cuts, tax increases and number manipulations that would chop the projected deficit from $181 billion to $104 billion. A final vote by the full Congress is expected this week.

But the banks and other major money lenders have not been impressed and so the administration is singing a different tune.

Last Thursday, as House-Senate negotiators reached agreement on a budget compromise, interest rates went up and the stock market dropped.

Rates on short-term Treasury bills have risen nearly a full percentage point since late May to about 12.5 percent, which is where they were in late February. Several banks that had lowered their prime lending rate to 16 percent in late May have since returned to the industry-wide average of 16.5 percent. Last week, average rates on a new issue of two-year Treasury notes jumped to a four-month high of 14.43 percent, up from 13.77 percent in May.

Now, Regan says a budget agreement will bring only a modest decline in interest rates by the end of the year.

And the treasury secretary seemed to agree the other day that the deficit may not be to blame for high interest rates. In a newspaper interview, he predicted interest rates would rise in the near future and he put the blame on the Federal

What went wrong?

A number of private economists think the administration was wrong to link the current trend of interest rates to a budget that does not go into effect until October, when fiscal 1983 begins. There are a lot of reasons for interest rates staying up, but next year's deficit is not at the top of these economists' lists.

They say interest rates are high because the Federal Reserve, the nation's central bank, is keeping credit tight to fight inflation; because companies weakened by the recession are borrowing money at an unprecedented clip to stay alive; because a record $100 billion deficit for the current budget year will force the government to borrow an enormous amount of money; and because an expected recovery later this year will bring new loan demands from businesses looking to expand and consumers looking to buy again.

But administration officials also believe the 1983 deficit still is very much on lenders' minds. The problem is that the money people are not convinced Congress will really put its deficit-lowering plan into operation.

"If Congress had moved very quickly, I think we would have had a more positive reaction than we have now," Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said Friday. "The delay has led to the feeling in the financial markets that now they want to see the specific spending bills passed so they know the budget is actually put to bed."

Although the pending budget resolution calls for a lower deficit, Congress still must work on legislation that actually would reduce the deficit by raising $20 billion in new taxes and cutting nearly $30 billion from social programs.

Lawmakers already bolted away from proposals to cut Social Security. Raising taxes and cutting other benefits just before the November congressional elections seems as remote to Wall Street realists as cutting Social Security.

There also is concern about the credibility of the budget plan, which uses optimistic assumptions of falling interest rates and counts on ambitious management savings to trim $30 billion from the deficit.

"Obviously, it was a mistake and silly to have predicted the markets would react dramatically," said one administration official, who requested that his name not be used. "The markets are becoming increasingly aware that passage of a budget resolution doesn't enact anything."

Ties To Taiwan Remain Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — The issue of U.S. relations with Taiwan will continue to be a "significant problem" in U.S. relations with China, says Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., who recently returned from a two-week visit to the People's Republic of China.

In a report to Vice President George Bush about his trip, the Tennessee Republican said the acuteness of the problem depends on how the United States manages arms sales to Taiwan and how far the Chinese want to take the issue of the treaty that outlines relations between Taiwan and America. The report was made public Sunday.

Broadway Hit For TV Screen

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Fortunately, "Ain't Misbehavin'" the best musical from 1978, didn't close completely on Broadway. It sashays to television tonight in a modest triumph of one entertainment medium over the flaws of another.

Nell Carter and the rest of the original cast re-create their tribute to the music and comedy of Fats Waller, the composer who brought a blacker version of "swing" into the dictionary in the 1930s. The show's Broadway run ended last February after more than 1,500 performances.

Even though "Ain't Misbehavin'" is new programming for the slow TV month of June, this isn't a case of NBC burning off another stink bomb from the Fred Silverman era. It's a surprisingly honest replica of the sassy Broadway show, a noble effort and one not easily made.

Except for the annual Tony Award show, musical theater doesn't accommodate easily to TV. Actors on stage create whole performances for live audiences. TV shows are patchwork acting jobs of pasted-up scenes. Reactions aren't spontaneous; they're added later with laugh tracks and phony applause.

Entertainment in the theater doesn't stop for commercials, either. The excitement, electricity and emotion is immediate and involving, with an audience that wants to be there. Television is often a passive experience, with viewers too lazy to change the channel after "Family Feud."

Enter Alvin Cooperman, the executive producer with experience in both TV and the theater. His job was to make "Ain't Misbehavin'" come alive on-screen.

Cooperman had done "Romeo and Juliet" from Moscow's Bolshoi Ballet for CBS in 1977. That time, there were five cameras on platforms between the audience and performers. This time, he tried something different. Last May 12, Cooperman transformed an NBC studio in Hollywood into a night club. He invited 160 real people to watch a 2½-hour show, uninterrupted except for one 30-minute intermission. Five cameras were behind the audience, backstage or on the side, taking long- and medium-range shots.

For Cooperman's friends and guests, there were no physical and emotional barriers. They saw the Broadway version, says Cooperman, except for some deleted posterior references and touching.

"They were essential for sparking the performers and enabling the viewers at home to feel part of the event," he says.

The live audience does lend an extra dimension, but don't expect to enjoy the show the same way Hollywood's opening-nighters did. TV can't really bring sounds of Miss Carter drifting over and enveloping you. Nor will you feel as convincingly the performers sweating for your applause.

Still, given the limitations of television, this is quality entertainment.

After the May 12 taping, the seats and tables were removed. For two days, the cast performed the show the way television is normally produced. In short takes. From different angles. This allowed for close-up shots, on-stage reactions from the five-member cast and a commercial segue from Miss Carter: "Don't go anywhere. We'll be right back."

Miss Carter is a real presence here, permitting viewers to see her full-bodied talent after her lame-brained series "Gimme a Break" made her a physical joke. The best moments tonight come when Miss Carter joins Andre DeShields, Ken Page, Armelia McQueen and Charlene Woodard in energetic, feet-stomping ensemble songs, like "This Joint Is Jumpin'."

Second Goof In Music City Awards Program

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) - A second mistake was made in handing out the Music City News Awards on national television two weeks ago, according to the publisher of the country music magazine.

The award for Best Comedy Act of the Year should have gone to the Statler Brothers instead of the Mandrell Sisters, who were given the trophy for that category on the awards program June 7, publisher Multimedia Inc. disclosed Sunday.

Multimedia said the error was discovered during an audit of voting records for the annual awards, but said no other mistakes were turned up.

Last week, it was revealed that the group Alabama had won the Best Album of the Year award rather than the Statlers, who were announced originally as the winner.

Both errors were the result of a "lapse in communications within the offices of Music City News," according to Rhea T. Eskew, president of Multimedia Newspaper Co., a division of Multimedia. The company owns Music City News and is based in Greenville.

"We are extremely embarrassed that such mistakes were made," Eskew said. "This is the first time in the 16 years that Music City News has made the awards that any errors have occurred."

"In behalf of Multimedia and particularly the management and staff of Music City News, I apologize to the Statler Brothers, the Mandrell Sisters, Alabama, and to the entire country music industry and fans," said Eskew.

Lee Rector, editor of Music City News, said that, in order to minimize the danger of disclosure, he orally communicated instructions for engraving trophies to a staff artist.

"It was at this point that the breakdown in communications occurred," Eskew said.

The independent auditing firm used by Music City News first called attention to the mistake involving the Statler Brothers and Alabama. Subsequently, it discovered the second error.

Eskew said that, with the cooperation of the Nashville firm that audited the ballots, Multimedia asked the nationally recognized accounting firm of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell to check the ballots for all categories for the 1982 awards.

"This investigation and recount of the ballots showed that no other errors had been made in this year's balloting," Eskew said.

He said Multimedia had all awards in previous years investigated and determined no errors had been made before this year.

"We have already taken steps to make certain that such instances cannot happen again," said Eskew.

"The process by which the awards are made really belongs to the country music fans everywhere, and we want to make certain those fans and the performers who may win awards in the future have every confidence in the accuracy of the awards."

No 'There She Is' For Miss America

By ROBERT WADE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) - They'll be playing a different tune when the new Miss America walks down the runway this September. The quarter-century reign of the song "There She Is" has ended.

The song is being dropped because composer Bernie Wayne wants too much money for renewal of a 15-year agreement to use it, said the pageant's executive director, Albert A. Marks Jr.

Neither Wayne, who said it took about an hour to write the song, nor Marks would say how much money was involved. Marks said the old agreement had paid $17,500 for rights to use the song.

Viewers of Miss America 1983 will hear either "Look At Her" or "Miss America, You're Beautiful," both already part of the program.

"We use 'Look At Her' every year when Miss America comes down the runway, when we open the show," said George Cavalier, the pageant producer. "And then, 'Miss America, You're Beautiful' is only used on Saturday night when the reigning Miss America makes her farewell walk."

"There She Is" has been part of the pageant every year since 1955, when Bert Parks debuted as emcee.

He was dropped from the pageant two years ago and replaced by Ron Ely, who played Tarzan on television and hosted game shows. This year will feature a new emcee, Gary Collins, host of the "Hour Magazine" television show and husband of Miss America 1959, Mary Ann Mobley.

Wayne, contacted Sunday at his Hollywood home, said he would be disappointed if the song was not used this year. He also said he was surprised to hear it already has been bumped.

"As far as I know, my attorney in New York was still negotiating with them," Wayne said.

For those who have forgotten, the song's words go as follows:

"There she is, Miss America,
There she is, your ideal.
The dreams of a million girls who are more than pretty
May come true in Atlantic City,
Or, they may turn out to be,
The queen of femininity.

There she is, Miss America,
There she is, your ideal.
With so many beauties, she took the town by storm,
With her all-American face and form.
And there she is,
Walking on air she is,
Fairest of the fair she is,
Miss America."

Queen of Flowers

On the first day of summer, many home gardeners turn their thoughts to roses. Called the "queen of flowers" by the Greek poet Saffo, the rose has been a symbol of romance for centuries. But few people realize that it has also been a symbol of secrecy. In 16th century England servants often wore roses behind their ears to signify their talent for keeping secrets. The expression "sub rosa" means "secretly." Its literal translation is "under the rose," and it is thought that it got its meaning from the custom of carving a rose over the Catholic confessional. No one knows how the rose came to be a symbol of secrecy. But today, the more than 200 species of roses are admired more for their beauty than their mystery.

DO YOU KNOW — What poet wrote the line "a rose is a rose is a rose"?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Robert Young played the father in "Father Knows Best."

Moving Target For South Charleston

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The South Charleston City Council, which earlier this month told ice cream trucks to get out of town by sundown, is taking aim at another moving target — cats.

"My phone's been ringing off the hook with ladies complaining that their new flower beds are being destroyed by cats," said Councilman Ray Jackson at first reading of a proposed cat ordinance last week. "The only thing in the city code is about noisy cats, so people would have to file civil suits unless we pass these ordinances."

The proposal calls for fines if felines heed the call of nature outside their yards, and also prohibits cats from roaming the city.

It even defines a cat, but some of the lawmakers may be feeling like they're on a hot tin roof.

"For once I stayed out of a controversy," said Councilman Charles Hagerman. "I kept my mouth shut because my wife has a cat."

Mayor Richie Robb, who noted the city has laws keeping dogs from roaming, said he saw it as a matter of fairness.

"We have to treat dogs and cats alike," he said. "No animal discrimination." The second reading of the ordinance is scheduled for July 1, when cat owners can have their say.

Earlier this month, the council passed restrictions on ice cream trucks, charging that the vehicles are a threat to children who run into streets after them. The laws requires vendors to leave South Charleston by sunset, turn off their music when selling ice cream and install flashing warning lights on their trucks.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
©1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQ54 ♦AJ82 ♦J105 ♦Q6

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ Pass 1♥ 2♦
Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—If partner has either four spades or a stopper in the enemy suit, your side should have a game. If not, a partial might be the limit of your combined holdings. However, by entering the auction West has offered you another option. Double! This might seem strange without a trump trick, but West is going to find a most disappointing dummy. When this hand was held during a rubber bridge game, the double would have netted 800 points.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ109765 ♥4 ♦5 ♦KQ107

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1♦ 2♦ 2♥ Pass
2♦ Pass 3♦ Pass
4♦ Pass 5♦ Pass

What action do you take?
A.—The key to this hand is your singleton diamond. Partner must have the aces of spades, hearts and clubs to justify his bidding, but he is worried about two possible diamond losers. You can set his mind to rest about that situation. Bid six spades.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AJ7 ♥KQ9763 ♦AK ♦K6

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♦ Pass 1♦ Dble
Pass 2♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Despite your powerful hand, don't bid more than two hearts. If the bidding is honest, your partner has nothing, and nine tricks might be beyond you. Since you are vulnerable and competing against two opponents who are in the auction, your takeout double followed by a new suit shows a very strong hand. If partner has anything, he can bid again.

Q.4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦82 ♥QJ6 ♦863 ♦AQ1093

Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?
A.—Your hand is worth only one constructive bid, so don't make the mistake of responding two clubs. That will leave you with a problem if partner either raises clubs or rebids his hearts, because you won't be able to show your heart support without overstating your values. By simply bidding two hearts now, you will be admirably placed should partner make any forward-going move.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦92 ♥64 ♦KQ9853 ♦852

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1♦ 2♦ Pass Pass
3♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—What started out as "the pits" has developed into a quite reasonable hand. Partner's cue-bid shows an enormous hand opposite what might be a total bust, and you have a good six-card suit. You must advise partner of your working values by jumping to four diamonds. Since your pass limited the strength of your hand, partner won't expect more from you.

Q.6—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦J1095 ♥KJ6 ♦QJ5 ♦764

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1♥ Dble Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Although partner almost surely has a four-card spade suit for his takeout double, we feel that a response of one no trump here is preferable to one spade. This accurately describes your balanced hand, strength and stoppers in the opponents' suit, whereas a spade response would be more nebulous. Should partner remove one no trump to two of a minor, you can then show your spades.
