

Court Upholds Nixon's Immunity

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today said former President Nixon could not be held accountable for allegedly firing a civilian Pentagon worker, ruling for the first time ever that a president enjoys "absolute immunity" from lawsuits which seek monetary damages for misconduct in office.

The suit stemmed from the alleged illegal firing of Air Force worker A. Ernest Fitzgerald, who already has received $142,000 in return for his promise not to take Nixon to trial no matter how the court ruled.

Thus, the 5-4 decision upholding the president's absolute immunity will affect only future lawsuits seeking monetary damages from current and former presidents, as well as several other pending cases against Nixon for alleged misconduct in office.

The Supreme Court today came down on the side of the president as long as the alleged illegal conduct is within the "outer perimeter" of his official duties.

"We hold that (Nixon), as a former president of the United States is entitled to absolute immunity from damages liability predicated on his official acts," Justice Lewis F. Powell wrote for the court.

"We consider this immunity a functionally mandated incident of the president's unique office, rooted in the constitutional tradition of the separation of powers and supported by our history," Powell added.

In New York, Nixon's spokesman, Nicholas Ruwe, said, "Former President Nixon's custom is not to comment on court decisions."

At the Pentagon, Fitzgerald also said he would have no immediate comment.

Fitzgerald claimed Nixon had him fired for disclosing to Congress in 1968 that the C-5A military transport plane cost $2 billion over estimates. He was rehired with back pay in 1973, and only last week was reinstated to his original duties in a settlement with the government.

Fitzgerald, who sued Nixon and two former aides for $3.5 million, claimed that his constitutional right to free speech and his rights to make his views known to Congress were violated.

Fitzgerald received the $142,000 from Nixon in return for promising not to take the former president to what Nixon's lawyers said would be a "months-long trial."

Nevertheless, the Supreme Court, despite expressing annoyance over the settlement during oral arguments in the case, went ahead and decided the immunity issue for both Nixon and the two aides.

Pressures Affected General Assembly's Session

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The pressures of an impending primary and a sagging economy made the legislative session which ended Wednesday a unique reflection of public opinion, legislators and lobbyists alike.

Those concerns affected consideration of issues such as the Equal Rights Amendment, utility law reform and a freeze on the salaries of state employees and teachers.

"It was the first time maybe in the history of North Carolina that the legislators have had to sit here and deal with economic problems as tough as these just days before a primary," Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green said, referring to the June 29 primary.

The primary, originally scheduled for May, was delayed after the U.S. Justice Department refused to accept North Carolina's original redistricting plans. Redistricting occurs only once each 10 years.

"The legislators are kind of in a bind," Green said. "They don't really have a chance to qualify their votes before they're voted on themselves."

Lawmakers adjourned the 16-day session — the sixth since last year — at 6:03 p.m. Wednesday, only five days before the primaries. It was the longest such session since 1976, when the General Assembly began holding a short budget session in even-numbered years.

In all, the General Assembly met for 156 days in 1981 and 1982 — the most days in session since the 1973-74 meetings.

Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie, said the session ran too long and lawmakers considered too many issues besides

Divebomb West Beirut

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli jets divebombed guerrilla strongholds in residential areas of west Beirut today and the state radio said Israeli gunboats joined in the bombardment. The jets also downed two Syrian MiGs in central Lebanon and Americans prepared to evacuate the war-torn country.

The Tel Aviv command said the MiGs were downed when they tried to intercept Israeli jets attacking Syrian targets during a tank and artillery battle along the Beirut-Damascus highway. Syria acknowledged two MiGs "hit" and said its forces were engaged in "violent clashes" with the Israelis.

The Israeli armored forces in the mountains southeast of Beirut appeared to be trying to consolidate their grip on a 20-mile stretch of the highway linking the Lebanese and Syrian capitals in an effort to bar the Syrians from bringing up supplies and reinforcements for a possible battle for Beirut.

The Christian Phalangist-run Voice of Lebanon radio station said the artillery battle resumed soon after dawn along the Bhamdoun-Mdeirej sector of the highway east of Beirut.

The Syrians fired Katyusha rockets into Israeli lines and the Israelis replied with an air strike, destroying the rocket launchers, the radio said.

A guerrilla communique said an "intense battle" was raging between Mansouriyeh and Bhamdoun, east of the capital. It claimed the Israelis lost 80 soldiers killed and 17 tanks and one armored personnel carrier destroyed in the past 24 hours. There were no accounts of Palestinian or Syrian casualties.

Israel reported seven soldiers killed and 95 wounded in fighting in Lebanon Tuesday and Wednesday. While Israeli warplanes screamed overhead, Americans lined up with other foreign nationals in the Christian-held coastal town of Jounieh, 10 miles north of Beirut, to await passage to safety today. A vessel from the U.S. 6th Fleet and a British transport planned to take evacuees to Cyprus, 100 miles west in the Mediterranean Sea.

U.S. officials said Wednesday they were closing the U.S. Embassy building in west Beirut because of increased risks of destruction and urged Americans to flee. About 300 U.S. passport holders were still believed to be in the embattled sector.

In Jerusalem, Israel's Cabinet was reported anguishing over whether to order an invasion of west Beirut, where 8,000 guerrillas loyal to Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat are entrenched in bunkers, buildings and refugee slums, vowing a bloodbath if Israeli troops invade.

Emergency Bill Is Assured Of Veto

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan will veto an emergency spending bill that offers housing subsidies to low- and middle-income home buyers and repeals a $75-per-day tax deduction that members of Congress gave themselves last year, a White House official said today.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Reagan would veto the $8.9 billion catch-all measure today because of his opposition to the housing provision. It would be Reagan's fifth veto since he took office.

Anticipating the veto, Democratic leaders accused Reagan at a news conference of turning his back on the depressed housing industry.

"He cannot veto the dream of every American to own his own home," said Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill. "He can't veto the grocery bills of unemployed housing workers."

A quick veto would give the House a chance to override the president before leaving later today for a holiday that will last until July 12. The Senate plans to recess next week.

But leaders of both parties saw little chance a veto could be overridden. And unless Congress writes a new bill acceptable to Reagan before the recess, some federal programs might run out of money.

The compromise bill was sent to Reagan Wednesday night after the House, by voice vote, swallowed its pride and agreed to drop its insistence that senators limit their outside earnings for speeches, writing and the like to $18,200 a year. That ceiling already applies to House members.

The Senate's flat rejection of the House amendment had snarled the money bill since Monday.

The main purpose of the bill is to keep more than 50 agencies and programs in operation until Oct. 1, when a new budget year begins. But it now includes:

—$3 billion to help lower- and middle-income families pay for new homes on which construction is substantially completed by Nov. 30, 1983. Buyers with incomes of up to $30,000 ($60,000 in some areas) could have the federal government pick up 4 percentage points of the mortgage. The subsidy would have to be repaid if the home was sold or refinanced.

Senate Panel Summons Three Hinckley Jurors To Explain The Verdict

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel, hoping to get quick congressional action changing federal law on insanity pleas, is summoning three members of the jury which found presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. innocent by reason of insanity.

"They want to find out exactly what led members of the jury to accept the insanity plea," said a spokesman for Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., the acting chairman of the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal law.

In a highly unusual step, the subcommittee announced Wednesday that jurors Nathalia Brown, 30, and Lawrence Coffey, 22, all of Washington had been asked to testify today.

Testimony was also expected from legal specialists on the issue.

Miss Brown and Mrs. Copelin have said they believed Hinckley, 27, was legally sane when he shot President Reagan and three other men on March 30, 1981, but they said they were pressured by other jurors to go along with the majority and provide a unanimous verdict as required.

"I violated my conscience," Mrs. Copelin said. Hinckley, she said, "is a shrewd manipulator ... He isn't crazy, he's a genius. He manipulated his family, his father, and now us."

After 3½ days of intensive deliberation, Mrs. Copelin and Miss Brown said they gave in to the will of the majority to provide a unanimous verdict on Monday evening.

Specter, a former prosecutor in Pennsylvania, has introduced legislation which would put the burden of proving insanity on the defendant.

The defendant would have to produce "clear and convincing" evidence that he or she was insane.

In a Senate speech, Specter said he believes the Hinckley jury was "in a state of confusion and unable to draw a clear-cut inference from the evidence."

"There has already been a public outcry noting that the acquittal of the defendant Hinckley was occasioned by the fact that he was wealthy and had high-priced legal talent," Specter said.

"I share that sense of outrage from my experience as a prosecuting attorney," he said.

In the Hinckley trial, U.S. District Judge Barrington Parker ruled that it was up to the prosecutor to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that Hinckley was not insane and that he knew right from wrong when he opened fire on Reagan and the others outside a Washington hotel.

Meanwhile, transcripts unsealed by Parker on Wednesday showed that in interviews before the trial began, three of the jurors said they had relatives who were once confined to a mental hospital.

In addition, the interviews showed the sister of a fourth juror was treated for a nervous breakdown and a fifth juror received psychiatric treatment more than 20 years ago after an auto accident, the Washington Post reported today.

Since the verdict, a number of other changes in federal insanity law have been proposed, including one sponsored by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. It would do away with insanity pleas except in cases where the defendant was so mentally ill, there was no awareness of committing a criminal act.

Had that law been on the books during the Hinckley case, for example, specialists say he would probably have been convicted because he knew he was attacking the president.

That proposed change is part of an omnibus criminal package likely to come before the Senate later this summer.

Despite the notoriety of Hinckley's verdict, the insanity plea is rarely used, and is successful even more infrequently, in both federal and state courts.

Proposals pending in Congress would apply only to the small number of federal insanity cases.

Huge Alien Smuggling Operation Said Cracked

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — The largest illegal alien smuggling ring ever cracked by U.S. immigration authorities brought 24,000 people into the United States every year, often by hiding them in the trunks of cars for hundreds of miles, authorities say.

The ring operated for about 4½ years and grossed about $24 million annually — more than half of which was profit, officials said.

A federal grand jury in Albuquerque on Wednesday indicted 38 people on charges of conspiracy to transport illegal aliens and 47 separate counts of actually transporting aliens. As of late Wednesday, 18 people indicted remained at large, 18 were being held in jail and two people were free on bond, said Jerry Jacobson, a criminal investigator with the immigration service.

Agents infiltrated the ring and worked as drivers for the operation, transporting aliens by car, truck and train from points in Texas and New Mexico to the Midwest, officials said.

"In hot or cold weather or whatever, some of these people were carried in the trunks of cars from Silver City (N.M.) to Chicago," Jacobson said. "They didn't even allow them to go to the bathroom" during the 35-to-40-hour drive, he said.

Salvador Pineda-Vergara of Juarez, Mexico, the alleged ringleader of the network, was arrested late Monday at a Western Union station in El Paso where he had gone to pick up payment for a load of illegal aliens, immigration authorities said. He was being held in El Paso in lieu of $1 million bond.

Immigration officials said more than 16,000 aliens a year were taken by the ring to Chicago.

About 1,500 aliens a year were taken from El Paso, which is across the border from Juarez, to the Amtrak station at Lamy, N.M., where they were sent to Chicago by rail, officials said.

U.S. Attorney William Lutz said all the people indicted eventually would be brought to Albuquerque for trial.

Glassblowing Is Art She Teaches

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Her classroom looks more like a mill. Her students wear safety glasses. On their hands are thick, tattered tube socks to absorb the heat. They take their blowpipes and lift a "gather" of glass from the glowing furnaces.

Kathleen Mulcahy, 32, the only woman in the country heading an academic glassworking program, guides her students at Carnegie-Mellon University in creating a piece of art out of an 1,800-degree blob of molten glass.

"Keep turning the glass or it will drop," she warns one of the class of art majors. She pulls a piece of wood from a bucket of water and cradles it around the hot glass blob, shaping the bottom.

"They've been making molds of sand and plaster and pouring hot glass into them," she explains. "This is the first time they've made a hollow form. They're more confident about working with hot glass now."

She shows Linda Curtis from New York City how to pierce the end of the blob with an ice pick and then force air into the center of the molten glass.

"Look at that," she points, "the air creates another image for you as it gets trapped inside."

Ms. Mulcahy's students feel quite attached to the glass shop, even with its printed warning at the entrance: "Your mother does not work here. You'll have to pick up after yourself."

Over the past two years, those students have helped in completely rebuilding the shop. They've dismantled three furnaces and eight lehrs — the ovens used for annealing glass. They've lugged the bricks to rebuild the furnaces, a glory hole (for reheating) and the lehrs.

"I did the same thing as an undergraduate at Kean College (of New Jersey)," says Ms. Mulcahy, daughter of a Newark, N.J., policeman. "It lets them see a different side of what it takes to make art." She first studied glassblowing at Kean and admits, "the guys in class were really surprised that I could do it. It takes a lot of nerve to stand up to that furnace."

The new shop at

In her glassworking program at Carnegie-Mellon University, Kathleen Mulcahy shows student Pam Henry of Pittsburgh how to roll and shape hot glass.

Carnegie-Mellon gives the students continuous clear glass to work with. "It used to take three days to 'fine out,'" Ms. Mulcahy explains. "That's when the bubbles come to the surface and break. Now we have good glass in a holding chamber 24 hours a day."

All the students have keys to the glass shop. "I tell them 'You helped to build it; it's your studio.'" The constant student use also provides an informal monitoring system for the furnaces, she adds. It gives her 30 students more space to work, too.

In the process of rebuilding the shop with her students and husband, Ron Desmet, who collaborates with her as a glass artist, Ms. Mulcahy became a bit of a beggar.

"Before I buy anything, I make sure I can't get it free." She brought in some $25,000 in donated materials from Corhart, Johns Mansville, Harbison Walker, U.S. Steel and Glenshaw Glass for the glass studio. The latter let the slight, dark-haired teacher use their warehouse like a supermarket — picking and choosing whatever she needed.

She has the Carnegie-Mellon physical-plant people trained to call her every two or three weeks. "They read off a list 'We have stainless steel, we have piping, we have whatever ... What do you want?'"

Ms. Mulcahy and her husband made a sand-blasting booth for the glass studio out of a $40 metal and glass contraption they bought at an auction.

"It's as good as a sand-blasting operation that costs $5,000," she maintains. The sand blasting lets the glass artist etch the surface of a cold piece, changing the texture of it. While Ms. Mulcahy takes an occasional drama or architecture student into her class, at the moment they are all art majors — though not necessarily glass majors.

What becomes of glass majors? "What becomes of any art major," Ms. Mulcahy answers. "They have to become as inventive, imaginative and creative about their destiny as they are about their art."

"Some go back for a second degree. One became a dental assistant. She makes money at least. When she has a block of time, she rents space in a glass studio and makes her glass."

Some set up their own studios. Some go into small commercial houses. One worked with the New York Experimental Glass Workshop. They win Fulbrights, get appointed to art residencies, conduct summer programs.

"Three of the students were asked to exhibit in a national student exhibition at the Contemporary Artisan Gallery in San Francisco," she notes proudly.

Ms. Mulcahy herself finds time weekends and evenings to pursue her own art career in glass. For the past year she and her husband have worked together on glass art pieces.

Talking's All Relationship Is, She Regrets

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with this guy I work with. We have a lot in common. His marriage stinks and so does mine. We've done a lot of talking, but that's all.

I can't get this guy out of my mind, Abby. We've made plans to spend a weekend together, but something always comes up and he can't make it. I even rented a motel room for a Sunday afternoon, but he never showed up. When I saw him at work on Monday, he said he had the feeling he was being followed and didn't want to take a chance.

This guy really appeals to me like no man I have ever known. He keeps saying he would like to get to know me better, but that's as far as it goes.

What I need to know is this: Why can't I get him to meet me away from work?

GOING CRAZY

DEAR GOING: Because he's either chicken or henpecked. In any case, you're both married to other people, so forget him. He's doing what he does best — talking.

DEAR ABBY: The physical attraction I once felt for my husband is waning fast. The reason? He's fat and doesn't seem to care.

He knows how I feel. Should I find someone else, or pretend he's someone else?

COOLED OFF IN COOS BAY

DEAR COOLED: What else does he have going for him? If he's worth keeping, pretend he's Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Paul Newman rolled into one. If that doesn't work, pretend he's Orson Welles and love him to pieces.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There is probably no TV show that has captured the imagination of romantics more than "The Love Boat."

It has certainly brought new meaning to the word "cruise," which now translates to "(noun) Floating bedroom for thin people and old movie stars with an Ark wish to exit two by two."

A friend of mine confided to me that she and her husband were going on a cruise this summer to put excitement back into their marriage. She said it worked for June Allyson and Van Johnson and it should work for them. If a cruise didn't do it, then they were going to hang it up.

"Don't be a fool," I told her. "You can't have your entire future hinging on a cruise."

Her enthusiasm made me wish I had spoken out before. My husband and I've been on a cruise ... several of them ... and believe me, they're no love boats.

To begin with, forget wispy little bottoms in bikinis. We're talking 18 meals a day aboard a cruise ship. At the end of the first week, I'd outgrown my life preserver; by the end of the second week, they were having a practice drill on how to launch me in the event of a disaster, and by week three, Julie, the recreation director, was showing the movie "Nicholas and Alexandra" on my backside.

No matter what you said to our captain, he answered, "I am Norwegian" and "There is no immediate danger."

I'd like to have been able to tell my friends that lovemak-ing burns 125 calories and that by the end of the trip we were both anorexic. But the truth is my husband and I only went to bed in the afternoon once. It was on a Tuesday, in open seas, and both of us were so motion sick we prayed to die.

Personally, we loved the cruises, but if you really want romance, stay at home and paint the kitchen.

Wives Junket With Officials At U.S. Taxpayers' Expense

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The wives of two top Reagan administration officials are traveling in Africa at taxpayer expense for two weeks so they can learn about problems faced by women in Third World countries.

Ursula Meese, the wife of presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, and Marilyn S. Lewis, the wife of Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis, are among four women accompanying United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick on an official trip to five African nations, according to Irene Payne, a spokeswoman for the U.S. mission at the United Nations.

Mrs. Payne said the group, which left last Sunday, will visit Senegal, Togo, Zaire, Rwanda and Burundi. The women plan to return July 2.

The U.S. mission will pay the expenses for Mrs. Meese and Mrs. Lewis but Mrs. Payne said she would not know the cost of the trip until all the bills were in.

White House adviser Elizabeth Dole and Nancy Reynolds, a vice president of the Bendix Corp., and a longtime Reagan insider, are also on the trip.

Mrs. Dole's responsibilities include issues affecting women. Mrs. Reynolds holds the part-time position as U.S. representative to the U.N. commission on the status of women.

Lewis, commenting through his public affairs director Linda Gosden, said his wife is a good choice to make the trip because "she is directly involved in the political process and spends much of her time encouraging young women to be involved in political activities." Mrs. Lewis is a member of the Pennsylvania state legislature.

White House press spokeswoman Joanna Bistany said Meese was in meetings and would have no immediate comment on his wife's trip.

Harvey Feldman, who represents Mrs. Kirkpatrick in Washington, said the ambassador invited Mrs. Meese and Mrs. Lewis in hopes that when they return to the United States, they will speak out about problems of rural women in Africa.

"We are demonstrating a Cabinet-level concern for these problems," he said. "We are attempting to give them expertise because they can be terribly influential with American women's groups. They have the entree. If we can give them knowledge, they can be formidable spokeswomen."

For years, the spouses of high-ranking administration officials have been used as drawing cards to all kinds of functions from fund-raisers to political campaigns. They are asked to give speeches, answer questions or simply make an appearance as an unofficial White House emissary.

However, shortly after assuming office, President Reagan ordered a 15 percent cutback in government travel as part of his budget-cutting program.

Mrs. Payne noted that because the group would be traveling on Mrs. Kirkpatrick's government plane, the only additional expenses to taxpayers for Mrs. Meese and Mrs. Lewis would be hotel rooms and meals. No additional security personnel was required, she said.

Feldman said the American women would meet with high-ranking women government officials and national women's leaders in the countries they visit. They will also take field trips to see how rural women in the developing world manage their household problems.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who has a separate schedule, will meet with foreign heads of state to discuss U.N. issues, as well as broad policy issues of concern to the administration, Mrs. Payne said.

Mrs. Lewis, 50, who represents part of Pennsylvania's Montgomery County in suburban Philadelphia, has announced that she will retire from the state legislature when her second term expires next January.

Mrs. Meese, also 50, is active in Washington fund-raising events. She is executive director of the William Moss Institute, a non-partisan research organization which polls Americans about their concern for the future.

See Princess Anne As Jealous Of Baby

LONDON (AP) — Britain's littlest prince remained without a name today while the press accused his aunt, Princess Anne, of being jealous of the three-day-old future king.

"We think it's very unlikely to be named for some days yet," a Buckingham Palace spokesman said Wednesday. He said things were going swimmingly at the nursery in Kensington Palace where the baby's parents, Prince Charles and Princess Diana, make their London home.

Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, told reporters Monday night upon the birth of his 7-pound, 11-ounce son that there was a "a bit of an argument" going on about names.

But it was nothing compared to the fight British newspapers picked today with Princess Anne for what the Times of London called her "acid comments" and "surlily lack of interest" in her brother's first-born child.

Anne, 31-year-old mother of two, was touring Indian reservations in New Mexico on Tuesday when an American reporter told her the Princess of Wales had given birth. "Oh, good" she said in a sarcastic tone and walked away.

Asked several times how she liked being an aunt, she snapped: "That's my business, thank you very much."

Buckingham Palace spokesman Michael Shea defended Anne's behavior as "cautious."

"She wasn't being rude," he said. "She just was not sure that the reporter was telling her the truth."

But the Daily Express said Anne's reaction to her new nephew was "sweet as vinegar, cutting as a knife."

One journalist who asked Anne "Do you think everyone is making too much fuss of the baby?" said she replied, "Yes."

"Anne's behavior has confirmed for many Americans the stories that she is jealous of the adoration lavished on the Princess of Wales," the tabloid Daily Mirror wrote.

Diana, who will be 21 on July 1, was ranked at the top of the royal family popularity list in a recent public opinion poll conducted by the News of the World Sunday newspaper.

Anne shared bottom placing with Princess Margaret, her 51-year-old divorcee aunt and sister of Queen Elizabeth II.

Law Must Protect Us

Just as the shooting of Presidents Kennedy and Reagan touched off a wave of soul-searching, the acquittal of presidential assailant John W. Hinckley Jr. by "reason of insanity" is generating new interest for a change in the law of the land.

Trial Judge Barrington D. Parker had placed the burden of proof on the prosecution: prove that Hinckley was sane when he shot Reagan and three other men. The jury concluded that the prosecution had not been able to do that and, under the law, found Hinckley innocent. Now, after more psychiatric testing, Hinckley can return to the courtroom where he could be set free if he can convince Parker he now is sane. At the worst, he would be committed to a mental institution for treatment until he can be certified sane.

Therein lies the sand that rubs raw. Perhaps it is simply a desire for revenge; more likely it stems from the historic belief that wrongdoing is followed by punishment, but the idea that a defendant can effectively go scot free for a heinous crime carried out while he was "insane" doesn't go down.

Congress has several bills pending that would delete provisions for the plea used by Hinckley, — innocent by reason of insanity. Some of them offer only semantical salve to the problem, but the Senate Judiciary Committee has proposed legislation that would use a "guilty but insane" approach while placing the burden of proving insanity on the defense. Mandatory confinement would be stipulated upon conviction, either in the prison system or under psychiatric care, for the same period of time such convictions normally mandate.

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker has promised speedy consideration of the committee's proposal, which was authored primarily by Sen. Orrin Hatch of Utah and is being promoted by Sen. Strom Thurmond, a former South Carolina judge and chairman of the Judiciary Committee. The proposal needs careful study, but change is needed.

There are many of us who believe that anyone who would attempt to kill another person — as Hinckley did — must surely be "insane" and should be removed from society. It is time the law was changed to assure that protection for all of us.

THE WHITE HOUSE

A Manageable Cabinet

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Paying the same tribute to the quality of his Cabinet that each of his recent predecessors paid to their circles of official advisers, President Reagan took office promising to give his department secretaries a prominent role in his administration.

Unlike those predecessors, however, Reagan has kept up regular contact in the White House with members of the Cabinet, if not with the Cabinet as a whole.

Still, that does not mean that the president's much-touted "Cabinet government" has worked perfectly over the past 17 months or that it is even playing a key role in the administration.

And White House aides have moved to cut down on the number of Cabinet secretaries' assistants allowed to take part in the Cabinet meetings — a step that they acknowledge gives the White House officials greater authority in the meetings and puts the Cabinet members at a disadvantage.

Cabinet government has "worked and it's worked well, because the president is dedicated to it and simply doesn't make decisions without seeking the input of his Cabinet," said Craig Fuller, assistant to the president for Cabinet affairs.

Although the president and his senior advisers, having discussed an issue, may enter a Cabinet meeting with a good idea about what he will decide, Fuller said the president "doesn't make decisions on issues without a discussion with his Cabinet" on the subject at hand.

Each week, the president's early schedule leaves two or three hours for "Cabinet time" — meetings with the entire Cabinet, individual department secretaries, or, more likely, a session with several people who make up a Cabinet council considering a specific issue.

But it is not rare for weeks to go by when those time slots are filled with other meetings and the Cabinet members do not get in to see the president, although they meet at the White House with Reagan's aides.

In fact, because the White House staff has tried to limit access to the meetings to the Cabinet members and their very top aides, some others who have become accustomed to strolling into the president's offices with their bosses have been left cooling their heels at the Southwest gate of the White House, said one senior official who requested anonymity.

The attendance list is "a constant battle," the official said. "For the most part, we've been able to keep the level fairly high."

If Cabinet members are not available for a meeting, the second-ranking official, usually a deputy secretary, is invited. But generally, that is where the line is drawn.

White House officials acknowledge that they have two concerns about admitting anyone other than the secretaries and the deputy secretaries, the most senior department officials.

The more people attending a meeting, the greater the chance that the discussions that take place will be made public prematurely, often in an attempt to influence decisions by leaking information to the press, the officials say.

"We ought to be able to conduct policy formulation and the development of options in a situation where the president and Cabinet members are free to lay out on the table as many options as they wish without them being reported," one official said.

In addition, when the White House aides find themselves at odds with a Cabinet member, the visitor can be put at a disadvantage if a bevy of aides haven't accompanied the secretary to supply bolstering arguments to counter those advanced by the White House staff.

The number of participants "was edging up," said one White House official, who recalled that in non-presidential meetings with Cabinet members and their aides, all the seats in the windowless Roosevelt Room

London Sees Great Start

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
LONDON (AP) — Letter from London, where the tourist season got off to a splendid start with successive visits by Pope John Paul II and President Reagan and the QE2 arriving back in Southampton with a cargo of certified heroes fresh from the fighting in the Falkland Islands.

The Queen Mum was at the rail of the royal yacht Britannia to wave a welcome to the returning lads, while on the evidence of a front-page picture in the Sun a high-spirited lass on a sailboat nearby bared her breasts like Queen Boadicea to symbolize that Britannia still ruled the waves or at least those in the South Atlantic.

A few evenings later crowds gathered outside 10 Downing St. to sing "Rule Britannia" when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher went to the House of Commons to report white flags of surrender flying over Stanley. The victory has been a tremendous tonic for British morale, bringing out the military strategist in almost every taxi driver I encountered and turning every barmaid into a remake of Mrs. Miniver. When the hotel laundry didn't come back, I was reminded by the hall porter that "there's a war on, you know" and we all should be prepared to make sacrifices. Presumably the Admiralty or the Defense Ministry has requisitioned the laundry van and sequestered the spin dry cycle for the fleet skivvies.

Although early on there was some criticism of the BBC for the government for trying to effect a neutral stance, most of Fleet Street from the start struck a proper patriotic pose. "Gurka Knives are Out" trumpeted a headline one morning in the Daily Express.

The same British byline journalists who, when I knew them in Vietnam, were calling the Americans "baby killers," "village burners" and "drug happy dealers in death by napalm and agent orange" were now rhapsodic about the daily doings of "our heroes." "The brave paras" and "those who go down to sea in the Queen's ships fighting far away for freedom." The enemy was referred to as "the Argies," "the Junta" and the "sheep shaggers."

Military dispatches from the South Atlantic have added a new word to the mother tongue: yomping. As used by the Royal Marines and commando units in the Falklands, yomping describes the unpleasant military task of slogging long distances on foot in a hurry with full field packs. Its antonym is "bimbling," which support troops do when bringing up the rear at a more leisurely pace.

Dr. Robert Burchfield, editor of the Oxford English Dictionary, thinks yomping is here to stay, although he has yet to pin down the origin of the word. "It is a classic example of a word that could leap into the language," he said. "A mention in the newspapers and on television is all it needed. The word streaking for example was established in just this sort of way."

Speaking of streaking, the National Trust has dropped plans to have Erika Roe, the celebrated "Twickenham Streaker" play Lady Hamilton in a two-day festival honoring Lord Nelson at Plymouth. She was chosen because she had "the identical body measurements" of Nelson's mistress, but was "disengaged" when it turned out she wanted $2,210 to doff her décolletage for historic reconstruction.

Her father, Peter Roe, regretted the Trust decision, fondly recalling for the tabloids her free streak across the Twickenham rugby pitch last fall: "it was lovely. She had her arms out like the pope."

The Pope in his unprecedented call on the Queen at Buckingham Palace rated

U.S. Shares The Excitement

One would think that the birth of a new heir to the British throne would be an event to excite only Britons.

When Lady Diane gave birth to a 7-pound-1½ ounce boy who will be in line to succeed his father, Prince Charles, as king of England, the excitement on this side of the Atlantic was nearly as great as it was in England.

Americans couldn't get enough news about the birth, and there were few in this country who didn't wish the royal family well in rearing the heir to the throne.

Royalty has fallen on dark days in the 20th century world. In England, however, the royal family is still highly regarded even though the nation is governed by democratic principles.

Clearly there is still a high regard for British royalty in our country as well, and Americans have shared the delight of their English cousins in the birth of a future king.

Five Amendments

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Five amendments to the state Constitution will go to the voters in the June 29 primary. Only one, the amendment which would give legislators four-year terms, has drawn much public attention.

Proponents of the four-year term say it will stop the slide towards a professional legislature. Because of the cost and time demands of running every two years, only the wealthy and the retired can serve in the Assembly now, they say.

Opponents, who appear to have been far more successful in making their point, say a four-year term would reduce a legislator's accountability to his constituents, considerably increase the cost of campaigning and lead to a professional legislature. They say four-year terms would increase the advantage incumbents currently have in election campaigns.

While this amendment has not received a tremendous amount of public attention, it has drawn enough criticism to trouble proponents of the other four amendments, all of which appear to be non-controversial. As Rep. Parks Helms of Charlotte, sponsor of two of the other four amendments said, "We hope sentiment on the four-year term doesn't spill over."

The second amendment on the ballot was proposed by Helms at the urging of the N.C. Courts Commission of which he is chairman. It would allow retired Court of Appeals judges and state Supreme Court justices to be recalled for temporary service on either panel. Helms says the amendment is needed to assure a sufficient pool of replacements to keep the courts operating at full strength whenever judges and justices become ill. Currently, judges can only return to the court from which they retired.

The third amendment would allow direct appeals of N.C. Utilities Commission rulings to the state Supreme Court. Helms says this will save legal fees for the state and the utilities and thus help keep down utility rates. It

Other Editors Say Charity Calling

(Greensboro Record)

A welcome relief from the nuisance of telephone solicitations for charity may be about to end in North Carolina. If a preliminary injunction by an Eastern Federal District judge is upheld — and there is no reason to believe it won't be — Tar Heels may again be bombarded by appeals from professional solicitors.

In the spring of 1981 the General Assembly passed a law prohibiting professional solicitors from using telephones to ask for charitable contributions. The practice had become a nuisance and in many cases bordered upon fraud. Some of the soliciting organizations kept for themselves as much as 75% to 80% of the funds raised in the name of charity. That, of course, left the sponsoring organization, usually a civic club, with only a comparatively small amount of money to turn over to whatever group it was seeking to help. If a cause was an especially appealing one, solicitors stood to clean up.

Following enactment of the law, the number of professional licensed soliciting organizations in the state dropped drastically, from 11 to 1. That was the situation until recently when a Raleigh civic club and a professional solicitor challenged constitutionality of the law.

Judge Franklin T. Dupres Jr., the Eastern District federal judge, probably was correct in ruling the law "infringes on the First Amendment rights of professional solicitors and has a substantive restrictive effect ... on the ability of charitable organizations to conduct different type of solicitation campaigns." Without professional help, he said, the civic club had neither the staff nor the expertise to conduct its telephone solicitation campaign.

The law does have the effect of singling out a particular group and applying restrictions that don't apply to other fields. Judge Dupree also says the public is protected from the element of fraud by another law already on the books.

Edwin Edgerton, head of the state's solicitation licensing branch, expects the ruling to result in increased activity on the phone. "Nobody would try to enforce it (the law) in light of this," he said.

There never was a complete respite from telephone solicitation. Merchants were still able to peddle their wares over the phone. But even one more phone call in the midst of dinner is one more too many.

Haroldsen Tells About Money

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — In the midst of the housing investment boom six years ago, Mark Oliver Haroldsen, a clean cut young Mormon from Salt Lake City, wrote a book about how he ascended from debt to be a millionaire.

You too could do the same, he said. Just buy undervalued houses for little or nothing down, fix them up, rent them out, refinance them on the basis of their new and higher value, or sell them for big profits.

Those were among the basics, but there was more too, which Haroldsen related in "How to Wake Up the Financial Genius Inside You," which he wrote, published, promoted and, in the beginning, personally sold.

The other day Haroldsen related that 1,075,000 copies have been printed to date, including an inventory of 45,000, and that the book is still selling. Many copies were sold for at least $10 by direct mail.

Mail brings return addresses, and Haroldsen, now 38, used them. He signed close to 50,000 subscribers to his $42-a-year monthly magazine, The Financial Freedom Report. And in it, he advertised books, calculators and other items helpful to those who sought to emulate him.

He also advertised real estate seminars, and each year associates of his National Institute for Financial Planning tour the country to hold 15 to 20 two-day "regular" seminars at $199 a person.

These sessions, and more than 2,400 free, one-hour seminars, promote interest for three 3-day conventions that attract up to 1,200 people at $120 to $140 a person. Finally, there is the on-ice-a-year super seminar at $2,000 a couple, running one week to 10 days in an exotic setting, perhaps on a cruise ship or in a warm-weather resort.

Haroldsen has made a lot of money from his enterprises, but he hasn't forgotten where it all started. He says his real estate holdings now have a market value of $20 million, but he concedes he hasn't found much to buy in recent months, not with interest rates where they are.

But, he says, that doesn't mean you can't continue to make money in real estate. The formula might have changed because times have changed, but change produces opportunity, he says. This is the way Haroldsen thinks:

Strength For Today

SALT AND LIGHT

Jesus said that Christians are the salt of the earth and the light of the world.

Salt has two functions — it prevents decay and it brings out the latent flavor in food. Christians likewise have two functions. They prevent the decay of society and they bring out the latent flavor of life wherever they touch it.

Take the Christians and their influence out of a community and it would go rotten fast. Put one genuine Christian in a family, an office, a classroom, and everyone will be conscious that something has happened to make life richer and better.

True Christians are the light of the world. Christian parents give a home its essential illumination; Christian statesmen keep nations from going over the precipice. The Church is a beacon set upon a hill whose light cannot be hidden.

"Ye are the salt of the earth ... Ye are the light of the world." That's something to live up to. — Elisha Douglass buy paper from motivated sellers. That is, he buys mortgages and real estate contracts, a practice in which he says he has become personally involved.

That paper becomes available in several ways. If, for example, an eager, perhaps frightened seller offers a duplex for $100,000 and, because of a poor market, is forced to carry back part of the balance.

That seller might be left with a $30,000 note from the buyer, with the buyer agreeing to pay the seller 15 percent interest for 7 years. But the seller doesn't want to wait; he wants his money immediately.

In order to attract a buyer for the note, the holder — the seller of the property — must offer an inducement, and frequently the inducements are enormous. That $30,000 note might even be discounted to $15,000.

That would mean the investor buying that paper would be earning 15 percent interest on the original $30,000 contract, but since he would have paid only $15,000 for it he would in effect be earning 30 percent.

While perhaps a large percentage of Haroldsen's audience fails to act on such advice, many people do, successfully and unsuccessfully.

Another moneymaking technique, he suggests, is to only a single sentence in the Court Circular, which chronicles the daily doings of the royals, while President Reagan and his entourage took up two long columns on each morning of the three-day visit. Here is how the Court Circular covered the big white-tie bash in the Knights of the Garter Hall at Windsor Castle, where the queen in her gracious toast praised the president's statesmanship at Versailles and his horsemanship on the center with Her Majesty in the Home Park.

"The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh gave a banquet this evening in honour (sic) of the President of the United States of America and Mrs. Reagan at which The Prince of Wales, The Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon, Princess Alice, The Duke and Duchess of Gloucester, The Duke and Duchess of Kent, Prince and Princess Michael of Kent and Princess Alexandra, the Hon. Mrs. Angus Ogilvy and the Hon. Angus Ogilvy were present.
"The following had the honour (sic) of being invited:
There followed a very long list of names, beginning with "The Hon. Alexander M. Haig Jr. (secretary of state) and Mrs. Haig" and winding up with "The Chairman, Council of the Royal County of Berkshire and Mrs. Timperley," until all 158 at the big mahogany table were accounted for.
Among the missing was Diana, The Princess of Wales, who was expecting the birth of her baby and whose biography "Princess" by Robert Lacey was on top of the best-seller list. In anticipation of the blessed event, the "Royal Baby Cup" already had gone on sale in the posh Mayfair shops, a squalling crockery caricature sprouting the same enormous ears that served as handles on the Prince Charles loving cup, one of the authorized souvenirs at last July's royal wedding.

All London, it seems, is caught up in matters infantile. The Olympia Fine Arts and Antiques Fair, largest of its kind in these islands, recently featured among other items of historic trivia Edward VII's feeding bottle, a baby vest worn by Winston Churchill and several dolls made by Queen Victoria as a child.
The princess is very popular. Before her, the last Englishwoman to marry the heir to the throne was Lady Anne Hyde, whose father, the Earl of Clarendon, took strong objection to her secret engagement to the future King James II. He voiced the opinion that she "should be sent to the Tower and be cast into a Dungeon... and an Act of Parliament should be immediately passed for the cutting off of her head." The Lady Anne never became queen but was the mother of Queens Mary II and Anne. Agatha Christie's "The Mousetrap" is now in its 30th year in the West End, and "No Sex, Please, We're British" is in its "12th hysterical year, the longest-running comedy in the world." A well coiffured pop group called "Haircut" is the latest rage, eliciting Beatle-type screams from frantic fans. Lastly, letters of great import continue to appear in the Times, like this one, reprinted in its entirety: "Does anyone know of a beach on the Continent which is not topless?"

will also cut down on the caseload facing the Court of Appeals. These cases are voluminous, Helms says, and are almost always appealed from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court anyhow. It would be more efficient to take them to the highest court in the first place.
The fourth amendment on the ballot was sponsored by Rep. Ben Tison of Charlotte at the urging of the state Department of Commerce. It allows the General Assembly to increase the financing authority of state seaport and airport authorities. Tison said the amendment would overrule Supreme Court rulings about the leasing of a public facility to one tenant for a great number of years.
Tison said the amendment could be used, for example, to build a hangar for an airline that wants to increase service to a North Carolina city. The airline can't own the facility on public property, so they agree to lease it for an extended period. The legislature or the appropriate airport authority would still have to decide if such facilities were to be built.
The fifth amendment allows private colleges in the state to issue revenue bonds for expansion of their physical plants. Co-sponsor Sen. Paul Smith of Salisbury said the colleges will be able to raise capital at interest rates below today's market rates, and thus save money. The bonds are attractive to investors because interest earned is tax free. Co-sponsor Sen. Ollie Harris of Kings Mountain says that in a time when the state and federal governments have little money to help private colleges, the bonds are a way the state can help the schools raise their own money. This amendment has been the subject of a limited amount of public comment, including endorsements by several newspapers and TV stations and by state Treasurer Harlan Boyles.

Knowledge In Study Of Bats

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A bat learns about the world by sending out pulses of sound and extracting information from the echoes that bounce back.
By studying bats, Dr. William O'Neill, of the University of Rochester Center for Brain Research, says he is learning how the human brain analyzes sound.
O'Neill and his colleagues have found that specific areas in a bat brain analyze incoming sounds for specific kinds of information. For example, some brain cells are sensitive to particular time intervals between sounds, and the bat uses this information to estimate target range.
"Finding out how these special mechanisms work may help explain how our own brains understand human speech," says O'Neill.

Security In An Electronic Lock

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Thieves and other undesirables will have to observe a new code to break into many hotel and motel guest rooms in the future.
An electronic door-lock system, programmed with a code-actuated device much like a credit card, is the key to a security method introduced here by the Yale Security Group of Scovill Inc.
The system uses a computer, a display screen unit, a keymaker and a printer. When a guest registers, the information is fed into a computer and a keymaker produces a punch-coded "key" valid only for that guest. When the guest inserts his "key" in his room's lock, the previous occupant's code is automatically canceled.

Fresh Backing For British In Falklands Dispute

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - In a fresh signal of support for Britain in the Falklands dispute, the Reagan administration is wavering for the first time in its backing for a U.N. resolution that calls for British-Argentine negotiations to settle the conflict.

Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. briefing reporters on a meeting between President Reagan and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, indicated Wednesday night the United States has no quarrel, for the time being, with her opposition to a negotiated settlement.

"The prime minister made it clear we wouldn't expect anyone to tell us how to deal with our property and we are not going to presume to tell her how to deal with hers," Haig said.

By suggesting that the islands belong to Britain, Haig also appeared to depart from the longstanding U.S. policy of not taking sides in the conflicting juridical claims of Britain and Argentina to the islands.

Since the start of the crisis, the United States repeatedly has expressed support for a settlement of the conflict based on U.N. Security Council resolution 502, approved on April 3, the day after Argentina seized the islands. Britain regained control over the islands by force earlier this month.

Haig's remarks suggested a shift from the policy stated earlier but he left open the possibility that his position could change once the post-war political turmoil ends in Argentina and that country agrees to a formal cessation of hostilities.

Although there is a de facto cease-fire, Argentina has said a state of war with Britain will continue to exist until British "occupation forces" are withdrawn from the islands.

As recently as last Friday, Haig called the U.N. resolution "the benchmark upon which we have set our course." He refused to repeat that policy Tuesday night.

The three-point U.N. resolution called for a cessation of hostilities, withdrawal of Argentine forces and a negotiated settlement. Mrs. Thatcher told a news conference after her meeting with Reagan that Britain feels no obligation to abide by the resolution because Argentina refused to withdraw its forces voluntarily.

"It's a three-legged stool," she said. "It simply cannot stand on two legs."

She underscored her non-negotiations posture by likening Argentina to a "burglar" who believes he has a legitimate claim to what he tried to steal.

"There is no sovereignty issue to discuss," she said. At another point she said, "The only people to discuss it with are the people who belong to the islands."

Haig acknowledged that there is no question that American backing for Britain has "damaged relations with Latin America."

But he said it would be a mistake to assume that the hemisphere is solidly behind Argentina because "there is a great spectrum of difference from nation to nation."

In an interview Tuesday, Venezuelan Ambassador Marcial Perez Chiriboga said resentment of American policies is "widespread," in Latin America. He predicted long-term damage to U.S.-Latin American relations if the United States gave Britain a "blank check" on its future policy toward the islands.

But Haig and Thatcher offered no hint that the United States plans to apply pressure on London to pursue a conciliatory policy.

Thatcher said efforts to discern differences between the two countries "will never succeed because we cannot be divided." Reagan described as "exceptionally useful" his hour-long discussion with Thatcher, who came here after addressing the U.N. disarmament conference in New York. She flew to London after her news conference.

Mrs. Thatcher has said on several occasions she would like the United States to send troops to the islands as part of an international peacekeeping force. Reagan indicated the United States would be willing to help establish such a force.

U.S. officials have said repeatedly in recent weeks that it was too early to discuss such a multinational force, and presidential spokesman Larry Speakes reiterated that position Wednesday.

Recipient Of Scholarship

PAMELA JOYNER

Du Pont has awarded Pamela Joyner of Greenville a scholarship amounting to two-thirds of the total educational costs for four years of study toward an engineering degree. It was announced recently by Howard A. Kress, manager of the company's Kinston.

Miss Joyner is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and will attend North Carolina State University to study chemical engineering. She was active in her high school science club. She attended Governor's School at Laurinburg, where she studied science, chemistry and biology.

Miss Joyner has participated in the Regional East Carolina Affirmative Student Training (RECAST) and the local National Action Council for Minorities in Engineering (NACME) programs. The Du Pont Kinston plant has been involved in NACME for four years.

Three other engineering scholarships have been awarded in the United States by Du Pont this year.

Red Calcutta Mob Raids U.S. Facility

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Communist demonstrators burst into the U.S. government-sponsored American Library in Calcutta today, beat a number of employees and smashed windows, furniture and television sets, U.S. officials said.

About 50 people "ruined the library," an official of the U.S. International Communications Agency told The Associated Press.

No serious injuries were reported among the library employees beaten by the mob, the official said.

There was no immediate explanation for the attack by demonstrators identified as members of India's Marxist Communist Party, which rules the state government of West Bengal and its capital, Calcutta.

The mob tried first to break into the communications agency's offices in the same building, then wrecked the adjoining library, an official said.

A consular official said the library would reopen Friday regardless of the damage.

The United States was expected to protest the attack to the Indian national government in New Delhi and the West Bengal state government.

In a public statement, Robert Proctor, acting public affairs officer of the U.S. consulate general in Calcutta, urged authorities to take "immediate action to apprehend the criminals."

"We deplore this act of wanton destruction against an installation dedicated to increasing understanding between our two peoples," Proctor said. "Such violence has no place in civilized society. Those who perpetrate it bring no credit their cause. Despite the damage to property, the library will open tomorrow."

Princess Grace In TV Programs

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Princess Grace of Monaco has wrapped up filming here for two religious programs to be broadcast on American television.

The former actress will emcee the half-hour dramatizations of the Christmas story and Good Friday produced for "Father Payton's Family Theater."

They will be interspersed with brief "commercials" on the importance of family prayer narrated by the Rev. Jack Payton, 72, who hosted a religious radio hour for 40 years in the United States and coined the phrase, "The family that prays together stays together."

The filming team shot scenes of the princess Tuesday and Wednesday introducing the shows in St. Peter's Square and the Vatican museum.

Seven ERA Fasters Looking To Eventual Victory

By WILLIAM C. STRONG
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Seven women who fasted for 37 days to support the Equal Rights Amendment say their effort was not wasted, although defeat in Illinois dashed almost all hope for national ratification by the June 30 deadline.

"Our fast was like a pebble dropped in a pond. The ripples for years beyond this will be felt," said Dina Bachelor of Los Angeles.

Six of the protesters sipped grape juice from champagne glasses Wednesday to mark the end of their hunger strike and planned to leave Springfield today.

The seventh, Mary Ann Beall of Falls Church, Va., remained in a local hospital, where she is recovering from a collapsed lung.

Several fasters required medical treatment during their protest, but Ms. Beall was the only one admitted to a hospital. She also ended the fast, but was not expected to leave Springfield for several days.

"I did not come here with my sole purpose ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment," said Ms. Bachelor. "I wanted to make a statement of women's deprivation and hunger for justice."

The women decided to end their fast after the Illinois House defeated the ERA Tuesday night, in what may have been the final floor vote by a state legislature in the 10-year ratification drive.

House sponsors left open the possibility of another vote, but acknowledged their chances were slim.

With less than a week until the deadline, approval by three more states is needed for adoption of the proposed constitutional ban on sex discrimination.

Thirty-five states have approved the ERA. Five states have rescinded their approval, but the legality of that action is under review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

"We have demonstrated that ordinary women can do extraordinary things," said faster Sonia Johnson, 46, of Sterling, Va., as the women sipped juice before a crowd of sympathizers and reporters.

"Perhaps we lost the battle, but we know we are going to win the war," said Mrs. Johnson.

In Washington, congressional sponsors of the ERA announced they would reintroduce the identical amendment early next month.

Three of the Illinois fasters planned to go to Washington, D.C., for a series of ERA rallies, while three others planned to go home.

The other fasters were Zoe Ananda of Newport Beach, Calif.; Sister Maureen Fiedler, a Roman Catholic nun from Washington, D.C.; Shirley Wallace of Fort Collins, Colo.; and Mary Barnes of Raleigh, N.C.

By their account, the women lost a total of 230 pounds during the fast — an average of 33 pounds each.

Meanwhile Wednesday, a state judge found a dozen pro-ERA women in contempt of his order to stop demonstrating at the Illinois Capitol.

The order was issued Monday at the request of Secretary of State Jim Edgar, who is in charge of the Capitol complex.

The women had refused, after the order was handed down, to give up their sit-in blocking the doors to the office of Gov. James Thompson, who has been criticized by some for not doing enough to get the ERA ratified.

"I don't intend to have my court being held in disrespect while I'm on the bench," said Circuit Court Judge Simon L. Friedman.

Friedman set sentencing for July 2. The women, most from Champaign, Ill., could be jailed or fined.

Robotics Firm

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. and Fujitsu Fanuc Ltd., a leading Japanese robot manufacturer, teamed up to form a new, U.S.-based robotics firm, GM officials said.

The new company, GMFanuc Robotics Corp., will be headquartered in the northern Detroit suburb of Troy, GM said Wednesday.

The firm, in which GM and Fujitsu each will own 50 percent, will design, build and sell robotics systems, GM said.

The No. 1 U.S. automaker has been designing and building robots for its auto plants for years.

Initially, the robots will be built in existing Fujitsu facilities in Japan except for a numerically controlled painter system to be assembled near Detroit, the automaker said.

Opposes Increasing Restrictions On Flights Eased

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A member of the state Utilities Commission's Public Staff says Virginia Electric and Power Company's request for increased profits should be reduced to penalize it for continuing problems with its coal-fired plants.

Richard G. Stevie, director of the Public Staff's Economic Research Division made his remarks to the Utilities Commission during Wednesday's first day of hearings on Vepco's request for a $20.5 million annual revenue increase, a jump of 19.6 percent.

The commission previously lowered Vepco's request in October 1981 when it awarded Vepco a 15.7 percent increase of $12.9 million. The commission set a lower rate of return than it said the company would otherwise have been allowed. The commission cited poor plant performance and poor corporate management in setting the penalty.

The Public Staff said Vepco failed to meet most performance objectives last year for its three-unit Mount Storm, W. Va., plant and its Chesterfield 5 and 6 units near Richmond, Va. They are Vepco's five largest coal-fired units.

Vepco filed for a $20.5 million rate increase in January, but the Public Staff recommended the commission allow a maximum $1.4 million increase, saying some type of profit penalty should be continued.

The utility has asked that its investors be allowed a 17.5 percent return. The Public Staff says a rate of 15.7 percent would normally be appropriate but, because of the coal plant problems, the rate should be dropped to 11.2 percent.

Vepco has defended its progress in shaping up coal plant performance.

Restrictions On Flights Eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — After nearly a year of tight curbs, the Federal Aviation Administration says it has begun to ease some flight restrictions imposed after the air traffic controllers' strike.

The lifting of takeoff and landing restrictions is being confined to areas in which last August's strike had the least impact — the Salt Lake City, Albuquerque and Seattle control centers, an FAA spokesman said Wednesday.

Forest Service Begins A Study Of N.C. Bears

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
The U.S. Forest Service has begun a three-year study to determine the effects of timber harvesting and forest road construction on the black bear population in western North Carolina.

The study also will provide a comparison of activities of bears living in the Great Smoky Mountains National Forest and Pisgah Forest.

Scientists who have studied bears in the western North Carolina mountains say one thing they have found in the preliminary studies is that many black bears in the western North Carolina mountains spend their winters hibernating in treetop "apartments" instead of caves or holes.

"If a bear is given a choice of a damp cave or a tree where he can be dry and warm all winter, the bear will take the tree," said state wildlife biologist Lauren Hillman of Asheville. "That fact is contrary to popular belief that bears always hibernate in caves or holes. They seem to prefer treetop apartments."

The Forest Service study will concentrate on the Harmon Den area of the Pisgah National Forest near the Tennessee border. The state Wildlife Resources Commission and University of Tennessee biologist Mike Pelton, a black-bear expert, also are assisting in the study.

Pisgah Forest is known as one of the better black-bear hunting spots in the Southeast, Ms. Hillman said, and has a "substantial" black bear population. Wildlife officials say they have no idea how many of the bears are killed each year by hunters.

"We figure there is at least one bear per five square miles but that is really conservative," Ms. Hillman said. The Harmon Den area includes about 12 square miles along either side of Interstate 40.

In the study, biologists will trap the bears, tranquilize them and weigh them, determine their age and put a collar with a radio tracking device on them. The collar will enable biologists to trace the bears' movements for three years.

"This is one of the few ways we have to finding out what the bear population is," Ms. Hillman said. "The animals are very mobile and it is almost impossible to have an accurate population figure."

Since June 1, researchers have caught and collared two bears, both females with cubs. At least 12 more bears will be fitted with the collars during the study.
Since national forests represent some of the largest undeveloped tracts of land suitable for bear in the Southeast, the study is critical to the survival of bears in southern Appalachia, Ms. Hillman said. Bears prefer areas free from highly developmental activities although previous studies indicate bears may accept some human activity. "We're trying to find out what we need to do to accommodate bears and the people who harvest the trees," Ms. Hillman said. "We're trying to determine what we need to do to keep the black-bear population from disappearing from North Carolina."

Add To Fleet

CHERBOURG, France (AP) - Premier Pierre Mauroy launched France's sixth nuclear submarine, the Inflexible, on Wednesday, saying the country's nuclear deterrent was based on its sea-going strategic forces. Mauroy said the naval strength is "designed to ensure us of an absence of conflicts... We must continually remind (everyone), particularly the peoples of Europe, that peace cannot result from weakness."

Other elements of the deterrent force are strategic missiles in silos in southern France, and Mirage bombers.

Building Fewer Cars This Week

DETROIT (AP) - U.S. carmakers will build 132,448 new cars this week in the United States, down 19.3 percent from the same week last year and down 3.1 percent from last week, a trade journal says.

Automotive News said Wednesday that the five major U.S. automakers had built 164,073 during this week in 1981 and 136,630 last week.

By week's end, the year's total will be 2,586,766, down 26.5 percent from 3,520,557 last year, the journal said.

U.S. truck production this week was estimated at 50,437, up 26.3 percent from 39,920 in the week a year ago and up 2.4 percent from last week's 49,261, the journal said. Year-to-date truck production was 1,011,158, up 10.7 percent from last year's 913,635.

Break Ground For N.C. Plant

CARY, N.C. (AP) - Firetrol Inc., an Erie, Pa., firm which makes controls for fire sprinklers and industrial motors, was to break ground Wednesday for an estimated $4.5 million research and manufacturing facility.

The company plans to build the facility in three phases over six years, a company spokesman said earlier this year. Earlier, officials say the first phase - a $1.5 million, 37,500 square-foot research, office and manufacturing facility - would be finished this year.

The facility initially is to employ about 60 workers, most hired locally, with plans to later expand to a payroll of 350.

Ambassadors Time Extended

The Eastern North Carolina Friendship Force is extending its application period for ambassadors and hosts who want to participate in the fall exchange with Arnhem, Holland, which will take place Sept. 27 to Oct. 10. # Senate OKs Debt Limit Raise

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation to keep the government operating by allowing it to go deeper into debt is headed for President Reagan's desk today.

public debt limit — from $1.079 trillion to $1.143 trillion. That stop-gap bill is enough — hopefully — to keep the government going through Sept. 30, the end of the current fiscal year. Another increase in the debt limit will be needed for the next fiscal year.

Without raising the debt ceiling or taking other measures, the government eventually would have been unable to pay its bills because it could not have borrowed the necessary money. Passage of the legislation was devoid of drama and debate, but not of political consequences. Democrats, for the most part, voted against the increase. That forced conservative Republicans, who long have used increases in the debt ceiling to characterize Democrats as big spenders, to vote for increased deficit spending or face the consequences of the government running out of money. Eight Democrats and 41 Republicans voted for the debt ceiling increase, and two of those Democrats switched their votes to "yes" at the last minute.

There were 33 Democrats and 8 Republicans opposed to the hike. The vote completed Congress' action on the legislation. The House earlier had approved the debt ceiling increase as part of its budget resolution. Senate procedures, however, required a separate vote on the legislation.

The action came none too soon. Just this week, the Treasury Department canceled its weekly auction of treasury bills because overall federal debt was perilously close to the current ceiling of $1.079 trillion. Passage came without debate after Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., successfully urged colleagues to refrain from attaching pet amendments such as abortion and school prayer to the debt ceiling bill.

Piggy-backing amendments to bills that require immediate action, such as the debt ceiling, is often attempted because it increases the chances the amendment will sail unimpeded through the legislative process. And that tradition likely will continue once the Senate takes up the debt ceiling again in coming months. Baker was successful in heading off amendments only because he told senators that their chance would come on the debt ceiling for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

Want States Pay For Errors In Food Stamps

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee, looking for ways to cut food stamp costs without slashing benefits, wants states to make sure coupons go only to deserving recipients — or to pay for their mistakes.

tions, mostly from delayed benefit increases and state coverage of improperly issued benefits. About 10.6 percent of the food stamps issued nationwide now go to ineligible recipients with individual state error rates ranging from 3.5 percent in Nevada to 21.2 percent in Alaska. Unlike some other programs where states share the expense, the federal government pays the full $11.3 billion cost of food stamps for some 22 million Americans.

reaching that goal from their current error levels in three equal installments. States would have to cover losses above their target levels for each year. Dole said that program would save the government only $90 million next year, $200 million in 1984 and $325 million in 1985 — much less than either of the other plans. But he said his error rate levels could probably be achieved by the states while the other targets could not.

"We're not taking benefits away from any recipient," says Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., the architect of the proposal aimed at halving the food stamp error rate by 1985. "We're tightening up on administration."

Helms had called for the states to immediately begin paying for all food stamps going to ineligible persons. The administration wanted states to pay for erroneously issued benefits in excess of 3 percent in 1983, 2 percent in 1984, 1 percent in 1985 and then for all improperly issued benefits after that.

SELL YOUR OLD car in classified and you'll have extra money for a new one. Call 752-6166.

In adopting Dole's plan on Wednesday over alternatives by the Reagan administration and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the committee chairman, the panel also gave the states additional powers to recover the value of food stamps that were issued to ineligible persons. The committee endorsed provisions that would allow unemployment checks and income tax refunds to be tapped for the value of food stamps issued to persons under fraudulent circumstances or in violation of federal law or regulation. Officials said that could facilitate collection of hundreds of millions of dollars in improperly issued food stamps.

"We've never seriously held these states accountable for these errors," said Sam Cornelius, administrator of the Food and Nutrition Service. "Where they put up their own money they do a better job." But both plans were labeled unreasonable. The proposal offered by Dole, chairman of the nutrition subcommittee, would require states to reduce their error rates to 5 percent over the next three years.

Instead, the majority has generally supported Dole's package calling for less than $800 million in budget reduc-

Argentina's Civilian Politicians To Meet Bignone

By TOM FENTON
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—Civilian political leaders agreed to sit down and talk today with the army's president-designate, Reynaldo Bignone, but warned that Argentines are fed up with military governments.

"The people have again been mere spectators at the designation of the president of the nation," said a statement issued Wednesday by a coalition of the nation's five largest political parties.

It said Argentina's six-year-old military regime had "severely degraded (the country's) standard of living and put Argentina in the worst crisis of its history" — the disastrous Falkland Islands war.

The statement called on the military to set a date for a return to civilian rule and said, "The promises of future consultations with the political forces can't hide these frustrating and recurring developments.

"The people have reached the limit of their tolerance," the statement said, hinting of possible street violence if civilian rule is not restored.

Just a few days before Argentina invaded the Falklands on April 2, police used force against thousands of demonstrators protesting the worsening state of the economy. Critics of ex-President and army chief Leopoldo Galtieri claim he ordered the invasion to divert attention from the economy.

Galtieri's military colleagues forced him out as president and army commander last week, following Britain's recapture of the Falklands on June 14.

The independent news agency DYN claimed today that most army generals and Cabinet ministers were not informed of the Falklands invasion until after the fact.

"No more than 10 persons were in charge of everything," the agency quoted a high military source as saying. "When Galtieri informed the high command on April 2 various members indicated their disgust."

The five-party civilian coalition, known as the "Multipartidaria," or Multi-Party Group, includes leaders from the Peronists, the Radical Union, the Integration and Development Movement, the Intransigents and the Christian Democrats. Together they are believed to represent about 80 percent of the electorate.

The fact that the coalition agreed to a meeting at all augured well for Bignone, a retired army major general designated Tuesday to become the country's seventh military president since the 1976 right-wing coup that toppled President Isabel Peron.

Bignone, 54, who has promised to restore civilian rule in 1984, sought the meeting as a first step in preparation for his July 1 takeover as president.

The navy and air force, angered at the army's refusal to install a civilian president, Tuesday quit the three-member ruling junta and withdrew from the military government. The army said it would run the nation alone.

Navy and air force officers resigned in droves from government positions Wednesday, despite pleas that they stay on until the new government can find replacements.

Both the air force and navy commanders said they would

Cites Needs Of A New Industry

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Gov. Jim Hunt says North Carolina must produce more chemists, physicists, engineers and computer scientists to meet the needs of the microelectronics industry — a process he says must begin in the public schools.

"We must find a means to provide more qualified math and science teachers to our schools," Hunt said in a speech Wednesday at the Microelectronics Awareness Conference.

Hunt said public school students must be informed about the job opportunities available in microelectronics before the highly recruited industry can help turn the economy around.

"We've got to make people aware of what is there," Hunt said. "Then, of course, we've got to prepare them. The keys to meeting the challenges of the future are the public schools of today."

Gun Wound Investigated

Greenville police were continuing their investigation today of an early-morning shooting incident which Chief Glenn Cannon described as apparently self-inflicted.

The chief said Lucy Frances Forbes, 31, of Edgewood Trailer Park apparently shot herself in the stomach with a .22 caliber pistol, then drove herself to Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Cannon said after arriving at the hospital, Ms. Forbes walked into the emergency room and collapsed. She was admitted for treatment and was listed in critical condition, he said.

The incident was reported at 1:23 a.m.

Plan Prosecute Non-Registered

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Justice Department says it is moving along on its plan to prosecute young men who have failed to register for the draft.

Spokesman John Russell said Wednesday that the department has sent the names of about 160 young men to federal prosecutors around the country in the hope that prosecutions can begin by the end of the month.

While miniaturization makes electronic components smaller, profits continue to grow, Hunt said. By 1985, U.S. production of microelectronics is expected to reach $20 billion, blossoming to $40 billion by 1990.

"If there has ever been an industry that lends itself to balanced growth, this is that industry," Hunt said, adding that microelectronics-related firms have been proposed for Greensboro, Charlotte, Research Triangle Park and Asheville.

Mitsubishi Admits Payments

By TODD CARREL
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — A Mitsubishi Electric Corp. official admitted today that one of the firm's employees in California paid an undercover FBI agent $20,000 for "sample information" about IBM computers.

The acknowledgement came a day after Hitachi Ltd., another major Japanese electronics company, admitted paying a total of $548,000 for computer information to a consulting firm that turned out to be an FBI front.

The FBI claims Hitachi paid $622,000 and Mitsubishi paid $26,000 for stolen IBM computer design secrets.

Mitsubishi on Wednesday denied any attempt to steal computer secrets from IBM or make any illicit payments. But Mitsubishi spokesman Hideo Ohta said today he had just learned of a $20,000 transaction in long distance telephone conversations with Takaya Ishida, who was arrested by the FBI in San Francisco and later released on bail.

Hitachi denied any wrongdoing, but confirmed authorizing payments of $548,000 in May and June to secure information on "technology trends" in computer-memory subsystems.

FBI agents have arrested six Japanese and an American in California in connection with the case. The agency has issued warrants for 12 other Japanese here, but the United States has not yet asked for their extradition, as permitted by a U.S.-Japanese treaty, Foreign Ministry spokesman Taizo Watanabe said.

One man charged, 30-year-old Tomizoh Kimura of Mitsubishi, was arrested in San Francisco after boarding a flight to Tokyo on which he checked a suitcase containing stolen IBM information, U.S. authorities said.

The case has ballooned into the most sensational U.S.-Japan business scandal since the Lockheed payoffs case of the mid-1970s.

An editorial today in the nationally-circulated Yomiuri Shimbun linked the FBI charges to growing anti-Japanese sentiment in the United States, and questioned "the real intentions of U.S. authorities."

The daily Mainichi Shimbun also implied the U.S. investigation was politically motivated.

"We hope this incident will not accelerate the protectionist move in the United States and damage U.S.-Japan relations," it said.

"Japan's technology has been based on improvement of 'inventions' in the United States and Europe. For this reason, Western countries have latent frustrations about Japanese getting for nothing the fruits of their efforts," the paper said.

Congress has been discussing "possible trade restrictions against Japan to help counter a massive imbalance in Tokyo's favor in trade with the United States."

Hitachi said it was conducting interviews in the Tokyo area with nine employees charged in the case, and has sent a team of lawyers to San Francisco to interview four others who were arrested and later released on bail there, Hitachi spokesman Yasushi Sayama said.

Spokesmen for both firms denied any connection with two other people named in the case — Tom Yoshida, president of NCL Data Inc. of Santa Clara, Calif., and Tobassom Ayazi, an unemployed student accused of receiving stolen IBM documents.

On Wednesday, Hitachi suggested possible entrapment, saying its California employees had been subject to an "eager sales pitch" by members of "Glenmar Associates," a consulting service it said was an FBI front.

"Every employee of Hitachi in the United States is naturally involved in gathering information, Sayama said. "If the two men at Glenmar Associates were undercover FBI agents, then we could say we were trapped."

Extended Voting Rights Submitted For Signing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation extending important sections of the 1965 Voting Rights Act is headed for President Reagan's desk after civil rights groups lobbied Congress for more than a year to get it passed.

In an impressive victory for civil rights groups, the House adopted and sent to Reagan on Wednesday a 25-year extension of critical enforcement sections of the act.

"This extends the right to vote to every black American and every language minority American," said Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee.

The unanimous voice vote on the bill came as members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference ended a two-month pilgrimage to Washington, arriving here after a voter-registration tour through five states and turning their attention to other minority issues.

"Now it's time to take that bipartisan sensitivity in Congress and address other minority concerns — unemployment, housing and welfare," said the Rev. Joseph E. Lowery, president of the SCLC, which along with other civil rights activists was planning a three-day encampment in the capital.

Adoption of the voting bill ended a 15-month drive for renewal of the landmark civil rights law under which more than a million black and other minority voters have registered to vote.

Important parts of the voting rights law, enacted at the height of the 1960s civil rights movement and signed into law by the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, would expire Aug. 6 without the extension.

Last week, the Senate approved identical legislation 85-8 and House acceptance of the Senate version eliminates the need for lengthy negotiations between the two houses of Congress in a conference committee.

Reagan, who once opposed some of the provisions in the bill, has said he will sign it into law.

The extension is designed to make it easier for black and other minority voters to prove racial discrimination. It will supercede recent Supreme Court decisions which civil rights groups said made it difficult to prove their case in court.

Some conservative opponents in the Senate and House had fought the extension on grounds the South and other regions had made great gains in improving their minority voting records, eliminating the need for extensive federal protection of black, Hispanic and Indian voters.

One part of the extension continues a ban on discriminatory practices in all 50 states, including literacy tests and poll taxes.

A second provision extends temporary enforcement sections for 25 years, keeping the voting practices of parts of 22 states under scrutiny by the Justice Department and the federal courts. It also establishes a new set of rules under which those states can escape federal supervision.

The House first approved the voting rights extension 389-24 last Oct. 5.

Most of the opposition came from conservatives in the Senate. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., led a filibuster by a small group of mainly southern senators who blocked final passage for a week before the Senate voted last Friday.

Changes made in the Senate Judiciary Committee designed to appease conservatives were accepted by House Democrats in Wednesday's vote.

Retaliation By U.S. Suggested

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Reagan administration official has suggested there be retaliatory action against foreign firms failing to go along with the economic sanctions designed to hamper Soviet extension of a natural-gas pipeline into Western Europe.

Lionel Olmer, undersecretary for international trade in the Commerce Department, said companies could be placed on a "denial list" that would keep them from receiving exports of U.S. goods and technical data if they violate the U.S. Export Administration Act under which U.S. companies, their foreign subsidiaries and licensees are banned from selling oil and gas equipment for use in the Soviet Union.

The sanctions were announced last Friday by President Reagan to protest the continued military crackdown in Poland.

Pressures...

 the budget.
 "There's just too much of it," Harrington said. "We've got to get back to just considering the budget."
 Of the many bills enacted, legislators disagreed about which was their major accomplishment.
 "In terms of national impact, it has to be denial of the Equal Rights Amendment," said Jo Ann Norris, president of North Carolinians United for the ERA.

With national attention focused on North Carolina, the Senate voted 27-23 during the first week of the session to table ERA. That crushed the hopes of ERA supporters, who considered the state as one of three states needed to make ERA part of the U.S. Constitution, and began a string of defeats for the amendment across the nation.
 But Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, said he believed a utility reform bill, which he helped introduce, was the most important piece of legislation enacted.

"The utility bill was a positive piece of legislation that dealt with a problem, resolved a problem and now we have a statute on the books that I believe will be of tremendous benefit to consumers," Miller said.
 The bill limits electric utilities to one rate change a year based on the cost of fuel and allows the state Utilities Commission to examine utilities efficiency and management in considering rate changes. Currently, utilities may seek three rate adjustments a year because of fuel costs.

The bill also gives the Utilities Commission discretion whether to allow construction work in progress, or CWIP, charges to be added to rates. CWIP is added automatically to rates under existing laws.
 Zeb Alley, lobbyist for Gov. Jim Hunt, agreed with Miller. "I think the public will see that as the most beneficial thing they did," he said.
 Green said he believed enactment of a $6 billion 1982-83 budget was the most important issue before the General Assembly.

"The budget controls what we can do for North Carolina in the way of services," Green said.
 The budget included few new programs and produced a $90-million savings by imposing a one-year salary freeze for teachers and state employees.
 Alley said that despite rejection of ERA, the 16-day meeting was successful for Hunt.

"Everything he was basically interested in passed except ERA," Alley said. "And he feels the fight for ERA was a worthy fight and one we weren't expected to win, and we did pretty well."
 The session was the first that made full use of the new $8-million Legislative Office Building, with offices and committee rooms across the street from the Legislative Building.

Emmett Burden, lobbyist for the N.C. State Employees' Association, said that added confusion and contributed to make it "the most discombobulated session."
 "Two buildings has made it a lot more difficult, getting back and forth, finding people, getting to meetings on time," he said.

Other major bills enacted by the General Assembly will:
 — Delete one of the last instances of sex discrimination in state law — tenancy by the entirety. Under the old law, rental income on property held jointly by husband and wife was controlled by the husband. The new law will allow spouses to share control of such income.
 — Set up a self-insurance plan for state employees and teachers. The state would contribute money to the plan but also would assume the risks. Spokesmen for state employees' say they're pleased with the new plan.

— A 10-year battle between fox hunters and trappers was resolved with passage of a law setting a procedure for the state Wildlife Resources Commission to allow hunting and trapping in counties.

'Shoot First' Bill Is Now Law

DOVER, Del. (AP) — The sponsor of Delaware's new law that allows residents to shoot intruders first and ask questions later says it passed unanimously because it was an "apple pie and motherhood" law.

 Under the new statute, signed into law Tuesday by Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV, defenses for shooting an intruder include a sudden and unexpected encounter; belief the intruder would harm occupants; and the intruder's refusal to surrender when ordered to do so.
 "It's a self-protection law," said the bill's sponsor, Rep. Robert Riddagh. "It's like a motherhood and apple pie bill. Nobody's going to vote against it."
 The bill was passed unanimously by both houses in the Legislature.

Stop Rate Roulette.

Lately, when you invest in a Short-Term Certificate, it's a little like buying a ticket on a roller coaster. Maybe the rates will be going down; maybe they'll be going up. Nobody seems to be sure of anything.

Guaranteed To 1985. 1450%
 Rates and yields on new certificates are subject to market conditions and may change periodically without notice. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. All deposits insured up to $100,000 by Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. This effective annual yield results from daily compounding of the annual rate of 13.36%.

But, starting now, there is a way to be sure of the rate you'll get for the next 3 1/2 years. It's NCNB's new 3 1/2 Year Certificate. And, as you can see, it now offers you a very nice rate.

What's more, you don't need a lot of money to get it. Start with as little as $500. Then, unlike other CDs, you can add to your investment during the first 12 months, earn the rate we're paying then, without changing the maturity date.
 So, with all those things going for you, why gamble? ## 'Hat Trick' Doesn't Work For Shaky A's

By The Associated Press
The Oakland A's tried to pull some rabbits out of a hat, but all that came out was another punchless lineup.
Having lost seven of their last eight games, during which they were shut out twice and held to one run on two other occasions, the A's decided to try a little black magic and have center fielder Dwayne Murphy pull the batting order out of a hat.
Rickey Henderson, normally the sensational leadoff man, hit eighth, while cleanup slugger Tony Armas was in the second spot. Nothing helped. The A's managed four measly singles and dropped a 1-0 decision to Larry Gura and the Kansas City Royals.

a great pitcher. You've got to congratulate a guy for that."
"You can tell Billy I like him," Gura replied. "I don't hold any grudges. I just didn't like the way he used me back then, that's all. But, heck, he's a great manager. He's proved that everywhere he's gone."
Angels 5, Rangers 3
Reggie Jackson slammed a two-run homer and Rob Wilfong had three hits and scored twice as California maintained its half-game lead over Kansas City in the AL West. Winner Ken Forsch was tagged for solo home runs by Dave Hostetler and Buddy Bell, while Hostetler hit another off reliever Andy Hassler. Jackson hit his 14th homer in the seventh to chase loser Doc Medich.

Red Sox 10, Tigers 4
Glenn Hoffman drove in four runs with a tie-breaking two-run homer and a single. Hoffman's fifth home run of the season came with two out in the sixth inning following a single by Dave Stapleton and a wild pitch by loser Jack Morris to snap a 3-3 tie. Hoffman's single capped a four-run seventh inning. Dwight Evans had a homer and two doubles for Boston and drove in three runs.

Yankees 3, Brewers 2
Roy Smalley slammed a three-run homer in the fifth inning and Mike Morgan and Rich Gossage combined on a seven-hitter as the Yankees snapped the Brewers' seven-game winning streak. Gossage relieved with two on and one out in the seventh and retired Robin Yount and Cecil Cooper. The Brewers had runners at first and third with none out in the eighth, but Gossage struck out Gorman Thomas and Roy Howell and retired pinch hitter

Don Money on a fly ball. Milwaukee took a 2-0 lead, including Ben Oglivie's 17th homer, but the Yankees rallied in the fifth on a walk, John Mayberry's single and Smalley's two-out homer, his seventh.
Twins 6, White Sox 3
Tom Laudner's tie-breaking, three-run homer capped Minnesota's six-run ninth. Tom Brunansky started the rally with a walk and Chicago starter Dennis Lamp was lifted in favor of Kevin Hickey. Kent Hrbek singled Brunansky to third and he scored on pinch hitter Jesus Vega's infield hit off White Sox relief ace Salome Barojas. Gary Ward tried to sacrifice and Barojas threw late to third. Gary Gaetti then singled up the middle for two runs and one out later. Laudner homered.

Orioles 3, Indians 1
Jim Palmer pitched seven strong innings to gain his 253rd lifetime victory — tying Carl Hubbell for 30th place on the all-time major league list — Eddie Murray drove home the winning run with an eighth-inning double and Cal Ripken Jr. homered and singled for a pair of RBIs.

Expos, After Sluggish Start, Finally In First

"This is the fourth time I've done this in my managing career," said Billy Martin. "It's the first time it didn't work. We'll go back to our regular lineup the next time. It was just something to try and snap the team out of it."
The Royals scored in the ninth after Brian Kingman walked Hal McRae to open the inning. Bob Owchinko relieved, walked Willie Aikens and was replaced by Dave Beard, who retired the next two batters before U.L. Washington singled to score pinch runner Dennis Werth.

By The Associated Press
It took some time, but after a sluggish start — one which had them six games behind as late as May 21 — the Montreal Expos have finally done what many experts thought they would do. That is, move into first place in the National League East.
Now your guys start to pull away; right, Jim Fanning?
"I like to be cautious when talking about something like that," said the Expo manager.

"It was a very important game tonight," said Phillies first baseman Pete Rose. "We haven't been playing with very much intensity."
"Sometimes you don't play with intensity because of the opposition," said Rose, who singled in the third inning for one of nine Philadelphia hits.
Steve Mura, 5-6, lost for the Cards, who fell out of first place in the NL East for the first time since April 15.
Braves 7, Dodgers 2
Braves pitcher Rick Mahler, 7-5, belted his first career home run and hurled a complete-game seven-hitter as Atlanta downed the Dodgers and Fernando Valenzuela.

Giants' Joe Morgan, who made his first career start at third base. "We got shut down by a good pitcher yesterday (Vern Ruhle), but today our guys scored some runs. This is one we should have won."
The Giants had taken a five-run lead midway through the game but still had to come from behind to topple the Astros, who regained the lead with a six-run explosion in the sixth inning.
Giant reliever Fred Beiring, 4-1, was the winner. Greg Minton worked the last two innings to record his 12th save.
Reds 5, Padres 4
Paul Householder and Eddie Milner shined for the Reds in the late innings as Cincinnati held off San Diego.

SNOW HILL — Steve Sides and Lewis Yelverton combined to drive in five runs and pace Snow Hill's American Legion baseball team to an 8-6 victory over Pitt County last night.
It was the second straight win for Snow Hill, now 3-10 on the year, and the second straight loss for Pitt County, now 6-5.
Sides, who had two hits, a solo homer and a double, drove in two runs, while Yelverton brought in three runs with single and a sacrifice fly, with both contributing in a wild five-run rally in the third inning that overcame a 5-1 Pitt County lead.
Snow Hill got the initial lead in the game in the first inning when Sides slapped a one-out, bases-empty home run for a 1-0 edge.

Pitt County quickly overcame that, however, scoring twice in the second inning. Emmett Walsh led off with a single and Roger Williams followed with a base hit. Terry Locust grounded out, advancing both runners, and Scott Galloway reached on an error, scoring Walsh, and Williams was also able to come in on the play.
Pitt came up with three more in the third inning, stretching the lead out to 5-1.
With one away, Mont Carter walked and after a second out, Walsh singled. Williams got his second hit of the night, driving in Carter, and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Locust then doubled to drive in both of them.

But the bottom fell out in the Snow Hill half of the inning as Post 94 scored five times to take the lead.
After two men had been retired, Chris Newsome walked and scored when Sides doubled. Greg Hardison walked, and Jeff Ginn was hit by a pitch, loading the bases.
Yelverton singled, driving in both Sides and Hardison. On the relay from right field, Pitt first baseman Bill Kittrell's throw to third was high and out of the park, scoring Ginn. Yelverton, who had rounded second was then awarded both third and home by the umpire.
Pitt did tie it up once more in the fifth, scoring once. Williams got a two-out triple and scored on a double by Locust to knot it at 6-6.
But Snow Hill scored again in the bottom of the sixth, moving out front for good. Wade Corbett opened up with a double and with one down, Bobby Avery got a hit. Richie Chase then singled to score Corbett.
The other Snow Hill run came in the seventh. Hardison singled and stole second. He moved to third on an out and scored on Yelverton's sacrifice fly to left.

Sides' two hits led Snow Hill, while Williams had three and Walsh and Locust each had two for Pitt County.
Williams highlighted the Pitt defense, twice making diving catches in right field. His first came in the fifth, when he preserved a run with the catch, and the next came in the following inning when he stopped another run from scoring with the same type catch.
The two teams meet again tonight at Harrington Field in Greenville at 8 p.m.

The Expos were anything but cautious Wednesday night. Warren Courtmartie belted a pair of home runs and Steve Rogers scattered eight hits as Montreal shut out the New York Mets, 5-0, enabling the Expos to move to the top in the East spot by .005 over St. Louis.
"First place in June is not the same as first place in September or October," said Rogers, who raised his record to 9-3 as the Expos won their sixth straight game. "We've worked hard to jell. I'm not surprised we're playing this well. The talent is there and it's producing now that we've gotten over the rough spots and all the player changes have been made."
"We felt in training camp that our pitching was very, very good," said Fanning, who piloted the Expos to the NL East title last season. "There are a lot of strong young arms. Our staff is as good as any in the league, and pitching is going to be the key."
"The National League East has a history of being a dogfight in recent years, and I expect the same thing again."
Phillies 7, Cardinals 1
Mike Krukow, 6-5, fired a seven-hitter and singled home a run and Manny Trillo had three RBIs to lead the Phillies, who snapped a three-game losing streak.

Mahler's two-run homer off reliever Alejandro Pena capped a four-run outburst in the sixth inning as the Braves chased Valenzuela, 9-6, with four consecutive singles.
It was only the third loss in 12 games for the third-place Dodgers.
Cubs 6, Pirates 5
Chicago's Junior Kennedy stroked a 10th-inning RBI double off Randy Niemann to give the Cubs the victory after the Pirates had tied the score in the bottom of the ninth.
Cub reliever Bill Campbell, 1-3, picked up the victory, although he gave up Dave Parker's RBI grounder in the ninth which tied the game at 5-5. It was Campbell's first NL triumph.
Giants 9, Astros 8
Max Venable's pinch-hit RBI single in the eighth inning led San Francisco to the victory after the Giants had squandered a 6-1 lead.
"It would have hurt a lot if we had lost tonight," said the

State Tops Campbell; McEnroe Fighting His Temper

Heels, 'Hawks Split

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Tim Barbour and Doug Davis rapped back-to-back run-producing singles in the bottom of the sixth inning to lead North Carolina State to a 4-3 North State Summer League baseball victory over Campbell.

Tracy Black started the Wolfpack off by reaching on an error and catcher Jim Toman moved him up on a walk before Barbour and Davis sealed the verdict.

Kim Caulk was the winning pitcher for the league-leading Wolfpack, now 11-4, while Darin Cloninger took the loss as Campbell fell to 7-7.

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina at Wilmington and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill split a double-header Wednesday, with UNC-W winning 6-2 in the first game, and UNC coming back to take the nightcap 9-1.

UNC-W struck for three runs in the first inning, two coming on Bobby Bryant's triple. The Tar Heels fought back with runs in the third and fourth, but UNC-W added two more in the seventh on Roger Hudson's two-run double.

Carl Willis went the distance for the victory, while UNC's Chris Mench started and lost.

The Tar Heels bounced back in the second game, pounding out 12 hits off three UNC-W pitchers.

UNC-W took a 1-0 lead in the first, but it was short-lived as North Carolina's Stuart Jump crashed a two-run homer in the second and then drove in two more in the third with a double.

Jeff Scott had a run-scoring single in the third.

UNC added one in the fourth and three more in the sixth to seal the win.

Shawn Dean fired a three-hitter to get the win, while Jaymie McGuire was tagged with the loss.

The split gives UNC-W a 10-8 record, while North Carolina is 6-9.

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — It is somehow fitting that just minutes from where the goody Dr. Jekyll downed the potion that made him the beastly Mr. Hyde, John McEnroe rails against his own darker side.

But fight it he does, swallowing what anger he can on the neatly manicured lawns of the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club. It is like shadow-boxing in front of a mirror, except here some 8,000 people are looking on.

Jimmy Connors, who long ago tempered somewhat the demons that continue to haunt McEnroe, highlighted today's card when he put his No. 3 seeding on the line against Australian John Alexander.

In other men's matches, third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis took on New Zealander Bruce Dorian, No. 4 Sandy Mayer and Colin Dowdeswell of Britain and No. 11 Brian Teacher of the United States got his tournament bid underway against Israeli Shlomo Glickstein.

The ranked women, all of whom received byes in the opening round, also made their debut today as top-seeded Martina Navratilova, No. 3 Tracy Austin, No. 4 Andrea Jaeger and fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia took the court.

Second-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd, in keeping with Wimbledon tradition of having the defending champion open play, defeated Barbara Sue Gerken on Tuesday.

McEnroe, who opened on Center Court Monday in an impressive victory, moments after wiping out Eddie Edwards of South Africa 4-3, 6-3, 7-5 in a second-round match Wednesday showed that the feathers of the reigning champion still rattle.

A reporter asked the New Yorker if he "is purposely backing off the throttle a bit?"

"You might put it that way," McEnroe said. "I hope to enjoy my tennis career. This way, as time goes on, it will be easier."

Yet, it didn't go that way Tuesday. With his strokes erratic from the outset, his temperament joined in.

After cruising through the first two sets with nothing more than minor disruptions, McEnroe missed an easy volley in the third game of the final set. He lifted the ball with his racquet and then slammed it into the net. An umpire issued him a warning.

For the third straight day, rain curtailed the card Wednesday and left tournament officials facing a backlog of dozens of matches.

Two other seeded men players reached the second round as No. 12 Mark Edmondson of Australia outlasted American Marty Davis 7-6, 7-5, 7-5 and 15th-seeded Buster Mottram of Britain overcame a tiebreaker loss to overtake 20-year-old Anders Jarryd of Sweden 6-7, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Unseeded American Lloyd Bourne, playing in his first Wimbledon, turned back Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-1, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

On the women's side, 15-year-old Kathy Rinaldi advanced to the third round with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over fellow American Betsy Nagelsen.

In first-round matches, Pam Casale defeated Kathy Horvath, 6-4, 6-1; Leslie Allen tripped Catherine Tanvier of France 6-4, 4-6, 8-6; Alycia Moulton bested Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, and Zina Garrison beat Leigh Anne Thompson 6-0, 6-2.

Sportsworld, held in check throughout the first five innings, then struck for five runs in the bottom of the inning, threatening to pull out the victory, but the Jaycees managed to cool the fire still a run shy of catching up.

Bobby Threewits led the Jaycee hitting with two, while Sportsworld got only one hit, a fifth inning single by Jamie Brewington, off Brian Pierce.

To The Editor:
The Greenville Chapter of the ECU Pirate Club has its annual membership drive in full swing at this time. We are signing many new members at all levels, but we need many more if we are to meet our necessary goals. With this activity in mind, I would like to share some thoughts about Pirate Club membership with you.

ECU Division I-A athletics is a Greenville community resource. This athletic resource adds to the vitality and richness of life in our city. This resource is a drawing card to new industries coming into our area as our local economy continues to diversify and add new jobs. This athletic resource is also attractive to the many new professionals drawn here by the university. Possibly most important is the fact that ECU Athletics attracts many good students seeking a well rounded university atmosphere. These good students are the life blood of East Carolina University which is the centerpiece of our area.

I hope all of you will carefully consider these factors as you make your 1982 Pirate club membership decisions. Too often, I believe, we make such decisions based on temporary or passing factors and lose sight of the ongoing worth of the ECU Athletic Program. Pirate Athletics is a growing entity with over fifty years of progress behind it. Come grow with us. Join the Pirate Club in 1982.

ECU Cager Mike Fox Claims Team In 'Mess' Last Season

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — East Carolina University officials are sifting 50 applicants to find a head basketball coach capable of producing something that has eluded the previous four coaches — a winning record.

After the Pirates ended their 10-17 season with a first-round loss in the East Coast Athletic Conference South Division tournament this spring, the status of coach David Odom was up in the air, said reserve guard Mike Fox.

"As a team, we were a real mess by the end of last season," he said. "The attitudes were terrible. No one wanted to play."

Odom's decision to leave East Carolina to become an assistant coach at Virginia did not surprise Fox.

"His relationship with the players was awful," Fox said. "No one respected him or much wanted to play for him."

He added that most of the 1981-82 players felt Odom did a poor job of handling the team.

"We just didn't have any unity," he said. "I guess the players started blaming Coach Odom for it, and I guess he blamed us."

Odom's three-year record of 38-42 followed a pattern of mediocrity dating back to Tom Quinn, who posted a 103-106 record in eight seasons at ECU. Quinn was followed by Dave Patton, who posted a 40-42 mark, then Larry Gillman, whose recruiting infractions brought the Pirates a National Collegiate Athletic Association penalty and a 21-32 record.

Part of the problem lies with the neighboring Atlantic Coast Conference basketball powers like North Carolina.

"I doubt that ECU students will consider their team as good as the ACC until we beat someone," Fox observed. "You can't blame them for that, either."

While the university attempts to fill the coaching spot by Aug. 1, the seeds are being sewn for another mediocre season, Fox said.

"Right now, only six or seven guys on the team are planning to play next season," he said.

Among those vying for the job are ex-Odom aide Tom Barrise, Bill Lee, coach at Pembroke State, and Jack Fertig, assistant coach at Tennessee.

Ken Karr, conducting the search for a new head coach, said the main goal is to make the program competitive in ECAC-South, currently ruled by James Madison and Old Dominion.

Karr said it could take five years to bring the basketball program into parity.

Editorial Comment On Hinckley Verdict Is Chilly

By The Associated Press
Here is a sampling of editorial reaction from U.S. newspapers to the John W. Hinckley Jr. verdict.

The Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch:
"This is justice? It is fair that two women who harmed no one (Jane Moore and Lynette Fromme) should be punished more severely than a man who wounded a president, severely disabled the president's press secretary and left his other two victims with lasting scars?"

"As we see it, outrage over the decision in the Hinckley case should be directed not at the jury but at the law and judicial interpretations of the law that governed the jurors' deliberations. This verdict dramatically underscores the need for legislatures and courts to reconsider and revise the insanity defense."

St. Louis Post-Dispatch:
"The jurors had to resolve a tangle of medical and moral ambiguities posed by competing expert testimony and by the judge's instructions. Their four-day deliberations and their judgment suggest that they not only did a conscientious job but that they were able to uphold the law even in the face of understandable national emotion set off by an attempt on the life of President Reagan and three other men."

Dallas Times Herald:
"... a defendant's mental state certainly should be considered a mitigating circumstance in the sentencing phase of a trial, but, for society's sake, we think that criminal guilt, or innocence should be established first — if a defendant is competent to stand trial at all."

"Hinckley committed serious crimes outside the Washington Hilton that day — which his attorneys publicly conceded. For that, he should have been found guilty — as long as he was competent to stand trial. His disposition according to his mental state could have been decided later, in a separate hearing."

The Honolulu Star-Bulletin:
"We expect nationwide revulsion at this verdict. Plus fear that many people who have suffered mental illness now may think they have hunting licenses to assault whomever they wish and go unpunished for it."

"The problem of security for prominent individuals may be considerably intensified...
"Applied to the Hinckley case a 'guilty but mentally ill' verdict might produce about the same kind of confinement and treatment Hinckley will be getting anyway. It would, however, be far more acceptable to much of the public than 'not guilty by reason of insanity.'"

Lincoln (Neb.) Star:
"The question in the wake of the Hinckley verdict is, apparently, should insane people who commit crimes be given the same punishment as sane offenders? Shall there be no distinction between the two; no recognition of the incapacitating quality of many mental illnesses?"

"Serious debate on the issue ought to await the cooling of passions and election-year rhetoric. Reform born of outrage (phony or real) doesn't always yield the intended results."

Omaha (Neb.) World-Herald:
"There was no doubt that Hinckley committed the acts of which he had been accused: he shot and wounded four persons, including the president of the United States."

"Yet, in finding him not guilty by reason of insanity, the jury absolved him in the eyes of the law. He will be held for tests and, perhaps, for treatment of his mental illness. Ultimately, it is possible he will go free."

"It is easy to understand the feeling that justice has been miscarried."
The Milwaukee Journal:
"The insanity defense is justifiable in some instances, and it would be a shame to abolish it outright because of a single case that is very prominent but not very typical."

"That is not to say that the insanity plea is ever misused by a defendant or that legal procedures cannot be improved to minimize abuses."
The Des Moines (Iowa) Register:
"The psychiatric profession came out of the Hinckley trial with a bigger black eye than it usually receives when the insanity defense is invoked. The testifying psychiatrists were notable chiefly for their ability to agree with the side paying their expert-witness fees."

"The one bright spot in the proceeding was the courage of the jurors. It took backbone to acquit a would-be presidential assassin. If Americans disagree with the verdict, their disagreement should be with the system of law he produced it. The jurors did their duty by conscientiously considering the facts in the light of their instructions."

The Tennessean (Nashville):
"The verdict has outraged many Americans and demands are going up to change the law on insanity pleas. Perhaps the law should be changed, but in calm deliberation and not on a wave of emotion. The insanity plea is rarely used and is even less frequently successful. Congress and the states should not be stampeded into action which might turn out to be poorly conceived and unwise."
The Denver Post:
"His acquittal by reason of insanity notwithstanding, John W. Hinckley Jr. tried to kill President Reagan. It's the system which found him innocent that's insane."

"It is an open secret in both medical and legal communities that certain psychiatrists have made lucrative careers as paladin-shrinks. Their prejudices are so well-known that opposing lawyers can wire them knowing...
"The problem of security for prominent individuals may be considerably intensified...
"Applied to the Hinckley case a 'guilty but mentally ill' verdict might produce about the same kind of confinement and treatment Hinckley will be getting anyway. It would, however, be far more acceptable to much of the public than 'not guilty by reason of insanity.'"

Rocky Mountain News (Denver):
"The law is an ass, an idiot," said Mr. Bumble in "Oliver Twist," and if Charles Dickens were alive he no doubt would find stronger words for a legal code that let John W. Hinckley Jr. escape justice in the shooting of President Reagan and three others.
"The Hinckley trial ended with two losers: justice and psychiatry."

Trenton (N.J.) Times:
"John W. Hinckley Jr. not guilty? A jury said so, anyway — because of insanity... But it is outrageous. We all saw Hinckley, and he wasn't so crazy he couldn't get there with the gun to do his damage."
"Hinckley could be on the street before James Brady, one of his victims."

New Haven (Conn.) Journal-Courier:
"What's sorely needed is a change in system that will be much more likely to produce fair, objective testimony by psychiatrists. Unbiased testimony is extremely difficult, if not impossible, to achieve, when psychiatrists are hired by the prosecution and defense..."

"We have little confidence in the rightness of the verdict in the Hinckley case. More confidence in the integrity of psychiatrists' findings is essential in judging a defendant's state of mind."

The Cincinnati Enquirer:
"As America became more civilized, courts were ordained to act in society's behalf. Safeguards were introduced to make certain that the system was ruled by reason, not by passions. Yet the essential purpose of the system was to satisfy society's resolve that the guilty be punished. The safeguards, however, continued to grow until today's lawbreaker — whether a petty burglar or an attempted presidential assassin — faces inviting odds that he will escape punishment altogether."

"That is the specter that haunts America in the wake of Hinckley's acquittal."
New York Post:
"There are probably several ways of amending the insanity defense plea which are worth consideration. What is surely needed is that the commitment (to a mental hospital) should provide for a fixed period of years."
Newsday (Long Island, N.Y.):
"This problem should have been under intensive study and debate long before the Hinckley case arose. It is not an issue that should be examined in an atmosphere of hysteria or passion. But if Monday's verdict in Washington can generate reasoned evaluation of the failings of the existing insanity defense and encourage constructive attempts to correct it, the jury that acquitted Hinckley will have performed an important service for the justice system and the whole country."

Nashville (Tenn.) Banner:
"Hinckley's sickness caused a tragedy. He bent in a shooter's crouch and fired two-handed at President Reagan with exploding bullets. While the president and the two officers have recovered, Mr. Brady has not. He has a long road to travel before he is well again."
"We hope those with the power to change the law — including Tennessee legislators — will think of Mr. Brady, and of the suffering of Mr. Reagan, Mr. McCarthy and Mr. DeLahanty, as they have the opportunity — and the duty — to take the steps necessary to correct the ills of the insanity defense."

The (Boise) Idaho Statesman:
"The (Hinckley) verdict illustrates the need for a change in the way the justice system deals with the mentally impaired..."

"Perhaps what is needed is some legal mechanism to allow the judge more options...
The judge's alternatives might include a longer stay in a mental institution, jail time, a stay in a halfway house, probation, release to the custody of a relative or complete freedom, the choice depending on what the judge thinks of the defendant's ability to function in society. The important consideration is that, where doubts exist, a judge be able to protect the public by maintaining some control over the defendant."

Lansing (Mich.) State Journal:
"One should not blame the jury for what happened, but rather the law which made the verdict possible."
"On the basis of widely conflicting testimony by psychiatrists and psychologists for both the defense and prosecution, it seems impossible that any jury could have reached a guilty verdict 'beyond a reasonable doubt.'"

Fort Worth (Texas) Star-Telegram:
"... here in Texas, legislative hearings have been conducted recently on adoption of a verdict of 'guilty, but insane' which would not free a defendant from guilt or from accountability because of mental condition."
"Such changes in the law, at both state and federal levels, are clearly called for, and people should make their feelings about that known now, before the campaign loses its momentum. Meanwhile, the trial accomplished something positive in that it focused national attention on the very real need for changes to prevent criminal trials from being turned into a showcase for psychiatrists..."

The (Fort Wayne, Ind.) News-Sentinel:
"The nation is shocked that a nearly successful presidential assassin may walk free in a few months. An insane gunman is just as dangerous as a sane one. Congress should take swift action to institute on the federal level a 'guilty but insane' verdict, and to abolish the insane verdict that may free John Hinckley Jr."

Kansas City Star:
"... the Hinckley case undoubtedly will create new pressure for change of the insanity plea as a criminal defense). Any alteration should be made with the utmost care. In light of this notorious trial, certainly exploration for a better method is appropriate."

Kansas City Times:
"It is difficult to determine what the trial's practitioners of psychiatry have done to their profession. But such lengthy, expensive and diametrically opposed testimony does lend weight to public skepticism of a healing art that needs much more use, not less. The fault is not in psychiatry but in its application to clear-cut decisions in law. But how can a defendant be denied its use?"

Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen:
"The next round in what has become a farce in the American criminal justice system will see Hinckley committed to a mental institution in Washington, where he will undergo psychiatric testing. After 50 days, and based on the findings, a federal judge will determine if Hinckley should be institutionalized or set free."
"Has justice been served by this process? Will it have been served if Hinckley is free to walk the streets again? What must be going through the mind of Jodie Foster, the actress for whom Hinckley had a frustrated obsession, and whom he apparently tried to impress with his deed?"

Chicago Sun-Times:
"Not guilty by reason of insanity." The words themselves seem crazy this time. All of us have watched the scene over and over again — the wave, the shots, the scuffle. There is no doubt that John W. Hinckley Jr. planned to shoot the president of the United States and finally stalked him down."
"The debate about insanity and legal responsibility has gone without a clear solution since the early 17th century."
"Hasty and emotional reactions to one case won't resolve it now."

The Greenville (S.C.) News:
"The Hinckley case is a horror story of frustrated justice not because of him, and not importantly because of the skillful defense his family provided. It's the result of the law not being reasonably clear and sensible."

Demo Conference Gives Hart A Chance

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
For Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, the midterm Democratic Party Conference in Philadelphia provides a test of a new way of seeking his party's presidential nomination.

Hart will give the 1,000 delegates an austere, unspectacular discussion of his views on the issues of the 1980s. The delegates have already received a folder crammed full of Hart's long-range views on the economy, energy independence, disarmament and military spending.

And Hart, 43, is sponsoring an issues workshop in which he will lead a discussion among specialists on those subjects.

Hart's proposals offer no quick and easy solutions, but advisers say he believes voters will be prepared to accept a candidate who is not promising instant answers by 1984.

In the short run, Hart agrees that some federal programs should be cut, while rejecting the "social inequities" of the Reagan economic program.

For several months, Hart has been telling anyone who will listen that to wrest control of the White House away from the Republicans in 1984, Democrats need to do far more than criticize Ronald Reagan.

"To say, let's let the president and the Republicans stew in their own juice — that's cynical, maybe even immoral," Hart said in an interview. "The worst thing that could happen would be for the Democrats to win in 1984 and not be prepared to govern."

Known originally as the outsider who organized then-Sen. George McGovern's successful campaign for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, Hart has spent eight years in the Senate and won praise as a leader among a group of younger Democrats.

Potential rivals Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale have raised tens of thousands of dollars through political action committees which will aid supporters running for office, and eventually provide the financial core for their own campaigns.

Hart, the only western Democrat to win re-election to the Senate in 1980, has no such political committee and has solicited just $15,000, mainly in Colorado, to sustain a restrained traveling schedule.

Instead of accepting every high profile speaking engagement available, Hart has put more emphasis on developing a broad framework on issues.

"One reason why Ronald Reagan won in 1980," says a senior Hart aide, "is that despite several serious slips during the campaign, he was perceived as having a comprehensive economic program."

By 1983 and 1984, according to the senior aide, it is hoped that Hart will represent a kind of third force between Reagan economics and the traditional big government positions of the Democratic party.

But even in the early stages of the jockeying for 1984, Hart has won some high marks. "He appeals to people who are tired of the old solutions," Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash. said in an interview. "He is a good student who asks searching questions. He is on a different track."

Jackson, a onetime presidential candidate who is far more conservative on most issues than Hart, said, "What he is doing is quite effective."

As a public speaker, aides concede, Hart gets high marks for sincerity and intellectual content, but does not arouse audiences to great passion.

As Jackson said, "He is not yet out to appeal to large crowds. He is not a spellbinder."

Hart will not be the first choice of labor unions, in part because he voted against a federal bailout for the Chrysler Corp., a risky position for anyone seeking high Democratic office.

His supporters believe that his relative youth separates him from binding ties to traditional Democratic constituencies and appeals to Americans in their 30s and 40s, most of whom have failed to vote in recent elections.

Early polls show that Kennedy is by far the acknowledged front runner among the current list of possible Democratic candidates in 1984, followed by Mondale, and Sen. John Glenn, the former astronaut from Ohio, and Hart.

But for six months, Hart has been delivering a message to Democratic gatherings around the country that new solutions must be found on the basic issues.

He calls for new solutions to the economy, including tax breaks to limit wage and tax increases and federal help for high-risk, high-technology businesses which are seen as the new frontier of American business.

Hart also has advocated reductions in military spending and a turn away from expensive weapons systems traditionally sought by the Pentagon. With varying success, he has urged smaller aircraft carriers and new ways of countering Soviet firepower in Europe.

Hart has called for energy conservation to make the United States free of foreign oil imports by 1990, but unlike many liberals he supports big tax breaks for oil companies drilling for new oil reserves.

Convening in Greensboro

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — About 14,000 Jehovah's Witnesses are expected to gather Thursday at the Greensboro Coliseum for the opening of a four-day district convention attracting participants from three states.

Witnesses are perhaps best known for their evangelistic work and are familiar opponents of divorce, critical of many modern lifestyles and respectful proponents of law and order, said district news director Bruce Torgeson.

Jehovah's Witnesses have been at odds with most of the principal religions of Christendom for years over several religious teachings — including standard doctrine on the Trinity, creation, soul, Resurrection and being born again, Torgeson said. Witnesses believe those teachings have been interpreted in a confusing way by most churches, he said.

Several of those issues will be discussed by convention speakers, he said.

The district meeting will include northeastern South Carolina, most of the Piedmont excluding Charlotte, southeastern North Carolina, Danville and another small section of Virginia. Witnesses representing 100 to 110 congregations are expected to attend.

Kemp To Speak At Fund-Raiser

RALEIGH — Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., will speak at a fund-raising dinner for the North Carolina Republican Party July 7 at 7:30 p.m. at Raleigh's Marriott Hotel.

Proceeds from the $100-a-plate dinner will be distributed to Republican congressional candidates.

Kemp is co-author of the Kemp-Roth Tax Cut Bill. In 1980, he was considered by President Reagan as a vice presidential running-mate and has been mentioned as a probable future presidential candidate.

Wrong Vehicle For Talents Of Shirley MacLaine

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Once upon a time, Shirley

MacLaine could dance circles around the stage and light up a TV screen. The way her special on CBS is constructed tonight makes it appear her legs aren't cooperating anymore.

The hour is aptly titled "Shirley MacLaine: Illusions." Instead of serious dancing and electricity, the musical numbers are energy savers.

The limited activity is camouflaged by elaborate post-production measures like silhouettes, multiple limbs, accelerated filming—all designed to give the illusion of movement.

Miss MacLaine was nominated for four Oscars, won an Emmy award and wrote a best-selling book. Her acting in "Turning Point" several years back was full of emotion. She's always a stimulating guest on the talk show circuit.

But it seems that the variety TV format, which relies so heavily on a star's musical and dance ability, may no longer be the appropriate vehicle for her.

The star of "Sweet Charity" performs in slow motion and talks her way through most of the songs. There's no glitter, no pizzazz, no reason to watch.

Miss MacLaine told an interviewer she staunchly resisted having her special loaded down with guests. She could have used the help. Only the spectacular tap dancer Gregory Hines appears, but he's not given enough to do.

Sometimes it seems Hines was shackled so he wouldn't embarrass Miss MacLaine. In the number they do together, a silly piece of fluff about hats, there's little dancing. Just because Miss MacLaine needs to dance in slippers and flippers, why must Hines tap dance in wooden clogs?

Even then, his enormous talent comes shining through. He should have been the one with the special.

As part of the "Illusion" theme, Miss MacLaine makes the interesting point that she's played 37 women in her career, and 11 have been prostitutes. She then offers a pedestrian parody of some of them, turning each streetwalker into a sleep-walker.

There were clues that "Illusions" might be disappointing. It's scheduled for the dog days of summer, when TV viewing is down drastically.

The other tip-off was the irrefutable opening number, contradicting Rule 1 in the Anti Dial-Switching Manual. Rock 'em and sock 'em right away, or risk losing them forever.

The one classy number comes near the end. It's about the process of writing a story, which happens to be about a deteriorated marriage. At one point the divorced woman wonders whether getting back into circulation is worth receiving her rush from "every knee-grabbing, open-shirted, gold-chained, post-pubescent, polyestered prince of passion."

Shaun Cassidy is obviously selling pubescent passion. His special Saturday night on NBC is primarily a concert show, with a gyrating Cassidy performing songs before an adoring crowd in Anaheim, Calif.

Two guests are slipped in between songs to provide rounder demographics. Loni Anderson shows up in a bathing suit and has an awkward conversation with Cassidy in her kitchen. The late Jack Albertson has a pathetically bizarre chat in a bar with Cassidy about "show business."

Cassidy's special begins with cameras capturing him in the bathroom, ostensibly for a documentary. Actually, a day-in-the-life, behind-the-scenes look at a rock 'n' roll idol might have been a better show.

It might have appealed to somebody besides the Shaun Cassidy Fan Club.

The bridge players of Johannesburg were sorry to see Trump Coup Tommy leave. Not that he was particularly popular at the bridge club—his ineptness precluded that. However, he had contributed a substantial number of dollars to the local coffers, and with that currency rising steadily against the South African rand, they had good reason to rue his departure.

Tommy, however, had made a lasting impression of a different sort. The club's players boggled at the way he botched up simple hands, but when trumps broke badly, became an absolute master. Consider this hand from a team match at the club.

At both tables a contract of four hearts was reached, and at both tables West led a club. Both declarers played

CRYPTOQUIP 6-24

Yesterday's Cryptiquip - TOUGH GIRLS ARE SOUGHT IN BRUTAL BEATINGS.
 Today's Cryptiquip clue: Q equals H

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

SPECIAL SERVICE
 English Chapel Free Will Baptist Church, Greenville Boulevard, will hold a special 11 a.m. service Sunday featuring the Rev. John H. Evans and his choirs from Washington, D.C., and Maryland. A barbeque dinner will be served at 2 p.m. and a musical program will be held at 3 p.m.

It's a Bird, It's a Plane, It's ...

Thirty-five years ago today, Kenneth Arnold of Boise, Idaho, saw an unidentified flying object over Mt. Rainier, Washington, and became the first person to report the sighting of a flying saucer. Since then more than 13,000 UFO sightings have been reported in the U.S. alone. Most scientists remain skeptical, offering various explanations for these unusual phenomena: mirages, marsh gases, meteors, unconventional aircraft, ball lightning, sun dogs, bright stars, birds, large balloons, light reflections and the aurora borealis. One of the most recent explanations is that UFOs are part of a Soviet satellite network that keeps track of U.S. rocket launches.

See Success In Treating Gout

ATLANTA (AP) - While there is no cure for most forms of arthritis, the Arthritis Foundation does report a high success rate in treating one painful and prevalent form - gout.

Gouty arthritis occurs when the body produces excess uric acid, which can form needle-like crystals of uric salt in one or more joints. The crystals inflame the joint and cause pain.

Much more common in men than women, gout attacks the big toe in three out of four cases.

"Two new drugs represent a major advance in the treatment of gouty arthritis," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie of the foundation. "One drug helps the kidneys eliminate excess uric acid from the system, and another one inhibits its production."

WE HAVE AN OUTSTANDING SHERIFF LET'S KEEP HIM IN OFFICE

The citizens of Pitt County are indeed fortunate to have Ralph L. Tyson serving as their Sheriff. Sheriff Tyson is a fine, dedicated law-enforcement officer who works constantly to provide the very best law enforcement possible to the people in Pitt County. He works long hours and spends many sleepless nights in his efforts to keep the County as safe as possible.

Sheriff Tyson has built an efficient hard-working department. Every member is constantly made aware that he or she is there to serve the citizens of Pitt County and to provide the best service possible. The Sheriff's efforts have paid off. One outstanding result is the low crime rate in Pitt County. It is approximately half that of the nation as a whole and much lower than many local departments. This reduction in crime has been achieved with the excellent cooperation of the citizens of Pitt County through Community Watch and other programs.

Sheriff Tyson has devoted his entire law-enforcement career to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, having served as a Deputy for nine years and as Sheriff for seventeen years. He is a Pitt County native and was educated in the Pitt County School System and at East Carolina University. He has also attended many law-enforcement schools including the following:

1. Graduated from Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Academy
2. Arson School
3. Sheriff's School on Criminal & Civil Process at Institute of Government
4. F.B.I. Fire Arms School
5. Police Administration & Law Enforcement
6. Planning and Budgeting
7. Jail Management
8. Firearms & Explosives

Sheriff Tyson is a member and past president of Pitt County Law Enforcement Association, a member, past president and presently on the Executive Board of the North Carolina Sheriff's Association, a member and presently serving on the Board of Directors of the National Sheriffs' Association, and past president of Coastal Plains Advisory Board. He is a member of the American Legion and the Greenville Host Lions Club and he and his family are members of First Presbyterian Church of Greenville.

We feel that Ralph Tyson is an excellent and highly qualified Sheriff and we ask you, the voters of Pitt County, to join us in re-electing him to the office he now holds.

Paid for by Pitt County Deputies and Other Friends of Ralph L. Tyson.

Anti-Crime Steps Work

IRA A. LIPMAN

By GENE SCHROEDER
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Americans frequently spend more time checking out a used car they may buy than a baby sitter they may hire, says a specialist in crime prevention.

"It's amazing," commented Ira A. Lipman, who heads one of the nation's largest security-services companies and is the author of a new book on crime prevention, "How to Protect Yourself From Crime."

"We treat crime in this country like we treat our own garbage," Lipman said in an interview. "We don't like to take the garbage out. We'd rather have someone else do it for us — and it's the same concept as far as crime is concerned."

"We want to let George do it," let police solve the problem. If somebody gets mugged, it's the police's fault (because) they weren't there."

Lipman's new paperback is an expanded version of a book that became a U.S. Department of Justice manual on crime prevention in 1980.

His anti-crime career began at the age of 8, when he worked summers for his father, posing as a customer at stores and watching the practices of cashiers and employees.

Today, he is president of Guardsmark Inc., of Memphis, Tenn., with 5,000 employees and offices in some 500 locations across the nation. He has served by presidential appointment as chairman of the National Alliance of Businessmen and as treasurer of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

Lipman also publishes a monthly newsletter for executives which focuses on security problems ranging from terrorism and sabotage to computer crime, drug abuse and employee theft.

The 41-year-old Lipman says American business has tightened up on anti-crime precautions considerably in the past five years, "whereas, we as individuals — tenants, property owners and the like — have not."

A study by the Justice Department shows that half of the nation's 80 million households are somehow affected by crime — "petty theft and the like" — each year.

"When you figure that one out of every two households will have some crime affect them in a year's time, it's awesome," says Lipman, adding that a number of steps can be taken to improve the situation.

In his book, Lipman tells of practical steps that can be taken to make the home safe, as well as protect individuals and their property when they are not at home.

He strongly recommends installation of such standard safeguards as dead-bolt locks in homes, along with alarm systems, peepholes and chain locks.

He urges caution in the selection of baby sitters, who he says can present genuine security problems.

"You may have known the young woman down the street all your life, and her father may be one of your best friends," says Lipman. "What you may not know, however, is that her latest boyfriend happens to have a drug problem and that despite any objections on your part, as soon as the children are asleep, she will let him into your house, where he will remain until shortly before you are expected home."

On the streets, Lipman advises, if approached by a robber, "don't make any sudden moves — your attacker is probably as nervous as you are, and if you are physically attacked, try to get away."

Lipman also suggests that a witness to a crime or accident should SEND for help, not BE of help. "Only if qualified help is on the way, and if you are positive there is no personal danger to you, should you attempt to be of assistance perso ally," he advises.

House keys should not be carried in the same place as identification that would tell a thief where to find the door which the key fits, he adds. And credit cards should be carried only if there is some likelihood you will be using them.

Lipman suggests special caution in the case of weddings, funerals and vacations. Burglars may be tipped off by notices in newspapers that your house might be vacant during those occasions, and he recommends the use of "house sitters" to solve the problem.

A major problem in preventing crime, Lipman says, is that those people who delay taking any anti-crime steps are making it easier for the criminals.

"Which means they are the ones who will have trouble as opposed to their next-door neighbor, who did something about it, who perhaps put in an alarm system or installed a dead-bolt lock, who will have less of a problem than the people who did nothing," he says.

For their own safety, Lipman adds, Americans must focus on crime just as they would plan for any other problem.

"If we do change from a negative 'let-George-do-it' outlook to a positive view, we're going to affect crime and make it more difficult to commit.

"And we will all be safer."

Take Points In Preliminaries

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Miss Greater Greensboro and Miss Topsail Island won talent and swimsuit divisions in preliminary competition for the 45th Annual Miss North Carolina pageant at Memorial Auditorium Wednesday night.

Elizabeth Gray Williams, Miss Greater Greensboro, won the talent division after singing "Climb Every Mountain." The 21-year-old Shelby native is a student at Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C.

Barbara Gay Willis, Miss Topsail Island, captured the swimsuit competition. The 22-year-old Morehead City native is a student at Catholic University in Washington, D.C., pursuing a master's degree in voice.

A total of 47 are competing in the contest, sponsored by the Raleigh Jaycees. Competition resumes Friday night with the finals slated for Saturday.
