Says PLO On Way To Its Destruction

By ALY MAHMOUD
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel's jets and gunboats unleashed furious bombardment of guerrilla positions in west Beirut today and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon said the PLO was on its way to "complete destruction."

Israeli tanks also closed in on the Syrian garrison in Aley after taking strongholds on either side along the key highway to Damascus, and Lebanese television said Israeli armor was on the move near the Beirut airport.

Western diplomatic sources said the Israelis have 1,600 tanks in Lebanon — 560 of them poised around Beirut — more than enough to move into the guerrilla enclave and then 50 miles north to Tripoli's refugee camps if they wanted.

As the bombardment touched off huge fires, Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan resigned, charging the Israeli assault was "escalated blackmail that renders me unable to execute the duties of my office." He handed his resignation to President Elias Sarkis at the Baabda palace.

Lebanon's top leftist leader and PLO ally Walid Jumblatt also announced his resignation from the National Salvation Council which is trying to resolve the national crisis. He told a news conference Israel's demands for an unconditional PLO surrender were unacceptable.

Jumblatt said the Palestine Liberation Organization was ready for an honorable surrender, "but I don't think Israel will give it to them. They (the Israelis) just want to kill them (the Palestinians) and kill them... and kill the Lebanese with them."

Jumblatt told The Associated Press in an interview Thursday he thought the PLO was "finished, it is over." He said for the guerrillas to continue fighting would be tantamount to "general suicide" and "will lead to the massacring of Beirut."

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio blared today, "the battle for Beirut has begun!" as Israeli armor took the Syrian stronghold of Jamhour, six miles west of Aley, and moved to link up with other tanks that captured Bhandoun, three miles east of Aley.

Syria charged the Israelis used nerve gas in the battle for Bhandoun, but Israel denied it.

The cutoff of Aley will shield Israeli ground forces besieging Lebanon's capital against harassment from their rear if they go into Yasser Arafat's west Beirut enclave to crush the PLO and its leadership.

The Voice of Lebanon said the command headquarters of the pro-Syrian Saiga guerrilla organization near Beirut's mid-city race track was devastated by Israeli jets, which joined gunboats in furious attacks on guerrilla-held neighborhoods and the paralyzed airport area.

The race track itself, which houses a small Syrian garrison, also was bombed, and witnesses reported the blitz sent chunks of trucks and jeeps flying into the air.

The U.S. Embassy and other foreign missions were shuttered and their nationals evacuated, and fears mounted that despite Israeli pledges not to invade west Beirut a ground assault might be near. Israel's army barred woman journalists from entering Lebanon, giving no reason.

Israeli warplanes, in addition to blasting west Beirut, bombed to the east at Hammana on the edge of the Bekaa valley, apparently trying to knock out Syrian missiles and guns in the area.

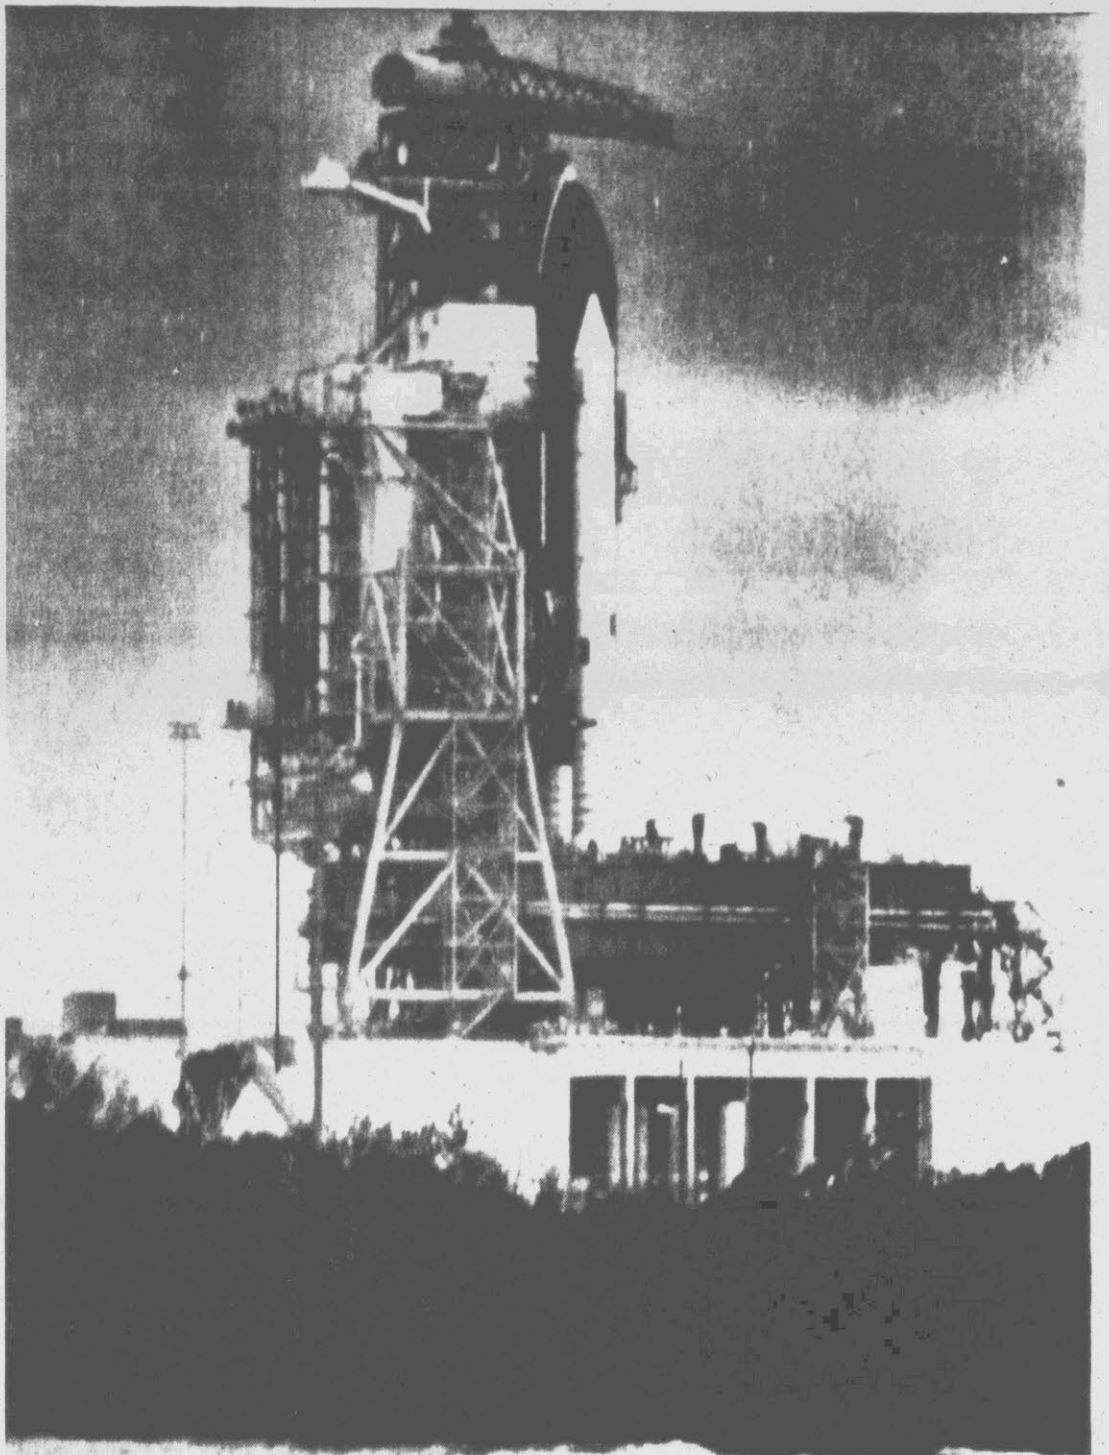

Israeli Defense Minister Sharon, visiting troops in Lebanon, told Israel Radio, "The PLO is on its way to complete destruction in Lebanon and in Beirut, if we will not leave them now," signaling Israel's resolve to keep up the pressure on the guerrillas in west Beirut.

Sharon also said the Israelis had taken control of the Beirut-Damascus highway from Syrian forces, denying resupply to the PLO in west Beirut.

"For the first time since the Syrians invaded Lebanon six years ago, they lost their strategic control over Lebanon, and by that the PLO lost its main or maybe only ally...the only one who could have saved it."

Israel announced 16 of its soldiers died fighting Syrian troops Thursday, the Jewish state's highest single toll in the

Tobacco Price Supports Critics Set New Assault

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Critics of tobacco price supports, complaining that industry-backed reforms don't go far enough, are girding for another major assault on the government's tobacco program.

"We should not miss any opportunity to correct abuses in a federal program," says Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., calling the restrictive tobacco plan "one of the most controversial of America's agricultural programs."

Eagleton's target is a proposal that would slash taxpayer subsidies for the nation's tobacco growers and force non-farming institutions to give up valuable government-issued production rights.

The proposal, Eagleton said, does not go far enough.

The bill, approved by the Senate Agriculture Committee after a hastily called session, was sent to the full Senate Thursday. Committee chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., pushed for immediate action.

The House passed the bill on Monday.

But Eagleton forced a three-week postponement of any Senate vote on the package, calling the Senate committee action cursory and noting that one member walked out because of it.

"It's incumbent on the full Senate to take the time," he said, contending the package "does not go far enough to fully benefit the taxpayer or the tobacco producer."

Eagleton said he would prepare a number of program changes to be offered when debate begins July 14, possibly including a prohibition against ownership of any tobacco allotment by a non-producer, according to an aide.

"I hope we're not confronted with further efforts to be punitive to the tobacco industry," said Sen. Walter Huddleston, D-Ky.

Huddleston and other supporters of the legislation say failure to have it in effect by mid-July could mean the subsidy reduction would not affect the 1982 tobacco crop.

The bill was promised by tobacco-state lawmakers last fall to head off efforts to completely abolish the program. It would require tobacco farmers to cover any costs of the program except for administrative expenses.

Critics have complained that it's contradictory for the government to spend millions of dollars supporting tobacco prices while pumping millions more into anti-smoking campaigns.

A congressional study found that the tobacco program has cost the government more than $600 million in the past five decades.

Opponents have also blasted the stringent production controls that have kept the nation's 2 billion pound tobacco crop in the hands of those owning about 500,000 acreage allotments issued by the government in the 1930s.

That same congressional study found that not even three of every 10 allotment owners actually grow tobacco. The rest lease or rent the right for as much as 90 cents a pound against an average market price of about $1.80.

The bill would require flue-cured and burley farmers, who account for the bulk of U.S. production, to earmark a few cents from every pound of tobacco put under federal loan to pay for any future losses because of the price support program.

But it continues taxpayer coverage of administrative costs, which run about $15 million a year, and critics claim that perpetuates the tobacco subsidy.

Supreme Court Finds A Possible Error In School Board Book Case

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A splintered Supreme Court ruled today that a New York school board may have erred in removing nine books from its public school libraries. But the justices failed to come up with a new rule that would guide the nation's school boards on the limits to their power to remove controversial books from schools.

Today's case, from the Island Trees school district on Long Island, had been expected to spell out the rights of students to have access to controversial and sometimes sexually explicit books in public schools.

But a bare majority of five justices agreed only that the dispute had to be sent back to a federal trial court to see if the school board members had "constitutionally valid concerns" that justified their removal of the books.

Only three other justices agreed with Justice William J. Brennan's opinion that would sharply limit officials' power to remove such books, while four other justices would give such officials broad discretion to ban books they find offensive.

Justice Byron R. White, in the middle, agreed only that the case has to have further proceedings.

The nine books were removed from the school library shelves in 1976 because school board members objected to the sometimes strong passages about drugs, sex and brutality.

The books, including Bernard Malamud's "The Fixer," Kurt Vonnegut's "Slaughterhouse Five," and "The Naked Ape" by Desmond Morris, also sometimes use vulgar, four-letter words.

Five Island Trees students challenged the Long Island school board's decision to remove and ban eight books from the high school library and one from the junior high school library.

The students also opposed the board's decision to bar the use of the books in classrooms.

The ban has remained in effect pending today's Supreme Court decision.

The Island Trees dispute is not isolated, as growing numbers of parents have complained about what they view as offensive books.

In addition, the American Library Association reported last January that librarians nationwide have been fighting what they say is at least a "three-fold" increase in attempts to ban books from library shelves.

Some of those censorship and bans have wound up in court.

Really Cold

WASHINGTON (AP) — This past winter was marked by record cold throughout the Northern Hemisphere and the same thing is happening at the South Pole, where a record 117 degrees below zero has been reported.

The National Science Foundation said the new low recorded Thursday at the U.S. Amundsen-Scott South Pole Station exceeded the previous record of minus 113 degrees Fahrenheit measured in July 1965.

The foundation, which manages all U.S. research in the Antarctic, said the unusually frigid conditions occurred under clear skies with a light wind blowing.

Cold as it was at the South Pole, which is now locked in winter darkness, the temperature dip was not a record low for the Antarctic continent.

That distinction of the coldest recorded temperature on Earth belongs to the Soviet Union's Antarctic station at Vostok, where the thermometer dropped to minus 127 degrees on August 24, 1960.

Japanese Criticize U.S. Scam Arrest Tactics

By DEBORAH SMITH
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese press reports today criticized the United States' use of undercover FBI agents to nab employees of two of Japan's largest electronics firms in the "computerscam" industrial espionage case.

The scandal, involving the Hitachi and Mitsubishi electronics giants, broke Tuesday when the FBI arrested seven Japanese and two Americans in California and issued warrants for 12 more Japanese.

They were accused in an operation involving the purchase of computer secrets stolen from International Business Machines Corp., America's largest computer-maker.

"Computerscam" shocked the business community here, sent Hitachi stock plummeting on the Tokyo stock market, and led many Japanese to fear an escalation of trade friction with the United States, still bristling over an $18 billion trade deficit with Japan last year.

Both Hitachi and Mitsubishi have acknowledged they paid at total of $568,000 to purchase information about IBM technology, which according to FBI affidavits included the company's 3081-K mainframe, a new model large-scale computer.

The Japanese firms have denied any wrongdoing, saying they did not believe the information was stolen even after FBI agents posing as consultants told them it was. The companies also said they will not send the 12 employees named in the U.S. warrants back to the United States.

The Japanese press has continued to focus on the use of undercover agents, who are known as "otoni" here and only are employed in some narcotics cases, according to officials.

An editorial in the newspaper Yomiuri said Japanese computer makers have been presented as "greedy desperate seekers of others' secrets" but that "knowing the Japanese appetite for IBM technology, U.S. consultancy firms approach the Japanese with offers of information. Hitachi and Mitsubishi might have been victims to this development."

"Because of the economic friction between the two countries and the methods used in bringing the case to light, many people here may feel that the U.S. legal authorities were motivated by political considerations. Within the United States also, the case may excite criticism of the Japanese companies," the national daily, Asahi Shimbun, said in its editorial today.

-Expecting Another Veto

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says President Reagan is expected to veto a second emergency spending bill passed by Congress to replace one he vetoed because it contained $3 billion in home-mortgage assistance.

"It is a fat bill," deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said Thursday as the Senate was approving the $5.9 billion measure designed to keep several federal agencies operating through the summer.

That bill replaced a measure vetoed by Reagan earlier Thursday. The House, after failing 17 votes short of the two-thirds margin needed to override the veto, sent the second bill — minus the mortgage money — to the Senate.

Speakes said, however, that the second bill was unacceptable because it contained about $1 billion in "unrequested, non-urgent funds."

"We want to serve notice here and now that the president will not tolerate deficit-defying, budget-busters," Speakes said. "We would anticipate the president would veto this (revised) bill. We believe this is no way to do business."

The House, which began a two-week vacation Thursday, has no plans to try to override a veto of the second bill. Instead, it has approved a trimmed-down, $4.5-billion third bill that can be sent to the Senate if needed.

Like vetoed first bill, the other two contain language to repeal the controversial $75-a-day tax deduction members of Congress voted themselves late last year.

In vetoing the first bill, Reagan focused on the mortgage provision designed to stimulate the depressed housing industry.

"More red-ink spending will only make the housing recession worse," Reagan said. "It is my belief this will do little to increase construction of new housing; most of the aid will go for homes that would be built and purchased anyway."

In other congressional business Thursday:

—Legislation to prohibit Interior Secretary James G. Watt from approving oil and gas drilling in 32 million acres of wilderness preserves was approved by the House Interior Committee and sent to the full House.

—The Senate Finance Committee approved changes sought by the Reagan administration in the Medicare and Medicaid programs for the elderly and the poor. The changes are designed to save some $3.8 billion in fiscal 1983, which begins Oct. 1.

—Five of the 12 jurors from John W. Hinckley Jr.'s trial urged changes in criminal law that would allow defendants like Reagan's assailant to be found insane but still punished.

The jurors testified before the Senate Judiciary subcommittee on criminal law, which is considering changes in federal law covering insanity pleas.

—FBI Director William H. Webster told a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that the agency may propose changes in guidelines on domestic spying in an effort to deal more effectively with groups posing a potential violent threat to the nation.

—The Senate Agriculture Committee approved a bill to slash subsidies for the nation's tobacco growers and force institutions that hold and lease tobacco production rights to sell them to farmers.

—Assistant Commerce Secretary Bernard J. Wonder Jr. urged the House Judiciary Committee to wait for a Supreme Court decision before moving ahead on legislation to settle the question of whether home video recording violates the rights of program creators.

Appointed To Committee

Dr. R. William McConnell, chief of the medical staff at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, has been appointed to a two-year term on the Medical Radiation Advisory Committee of the Food and Drug Administration.

McConnell, who also is clinical professor of radiology at the East Carolina University School of Medicine, is one of 13 committee members developing a program to reduce the public's exposure to X-rays and finding more effective uses of X-rays in medicine.

McConnell, a partner at Eastern Radiologists, is past president of the state chapter of the American College of Radiology and the Pitt County Medical Society. A former chairman of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, he is the state's representative to the Environmental Protection Agency-Medical Liason Officer Network.

Originally from Fort Blackmore, Va., McConnell received his medical degree from the Medical College of Virginia and completed post-graduate training in radiology at Duke University Medical Center.

Hundreds Of Fish Killed

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — An estimated 600 fish were killed earlier this week when a machinery malfunction at Henderson's new Sandy Creek sewage pump station resulted in raw sewage being dumped into the creek and a nearby pond, officials said.

Vance County Wildlife officers have been dipping out tub loads of dead fish at Faulkners Pond and said Thursday they still have not been able to determine the number of fish killed.

However, officials of the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development estimate the fish killed at approximately 600.

The polluted waters reportedly have caused no great danger area residents, but three families have been using a spring in the area for drinking water.

The dumping occurred when the second of two pumps at the station broke down Sunday morning, putting the station out of operation for approximately 58 hours.

Henderson City Manager Steve Raper reported Wednesday that the pump station is back in operation and raw sewage is no longer pouring into the creek.

Raper said the second pump had been activated when the first broke down a week ago.

Israeli Invasion...

past three days of fighting, it pushed the Israeli death toll to 252 since the invasion began June 6. Beirut police say more than 10,000 Lebanese have been killed.

Lebanese state television said U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib was to go from Beirut to Jerusalem today to plead with Prime Minister Begin not to order his troops into the 10-square-mile west Beirut enclave, where 8,000 PLO guerrillas have promised to fight to the death.

Israel invaded Lebanon with the announced goal of driving PLO gunners back 25 miles from the northern Israeli border. But the Israelis drove 50 miles north to Beirut, joined their Christian allies and surrounded the capital's west sector, the PLO's last major stronghold.

The Israelis have refused to withdraw from Lebanon until the PLO disarms, a strong central government emerges, the Syrians leave and the Jewish state is assured that Lebanon will no longer serve as a base for guerrilla attacks on Israel.

The Syrian high command claimed the Israelis used nerve gas Thursday to rout Syrian forces from Bhamdoun. Syria also claimed it downed two Israeli planes today over Lebanon.

The Tel Aviv command said the Syrian nerve gas report was "absolutely ridiculous. We totally and emphatically deny it." The Israelis also denied any of their planes were downed, and said the only aircraft put of action Thursday were two Syrian MiGs.

The Tel Aviv command said the Israelis also destroyed several Syrian SAM-6 surface-to-air missile batteries Thursday and took Bhamdoun, trapping a sizable part of Syria's 30,000-man garrison in Lebanon in the mountains along the strategic Beirut-Damascus highway, the Syrians' main supply route.

The Syrians came to Lebanon five years ago under a mandate from the Arab League to police an armistice that ended the 1975-76 civil-war between Lebanon's Christian militias and an alliance of Palestinian guerrillas and leftist Lebanese private armies.

Israel and its Lebanese Christian allies claim the Syrians want to annex Lebanon, and have attacked the Christians instead of enforcing the civil-war truce.

Upset Over Early Parole

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Court officials said Thursday they are disturbed by the parole last month of a former Robeson County school board chairman who served two months of an 18-month prison sentence.

Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey and District Attorney Joe Britt of Lumberton were both involved in the sentencing.

Bailey sentenced Ralph Hunt, 46, of Lumberton, on March 18 after he was convicted of driving while his license was permanently revoked. He entered the Richmond County Prison Unit March 28 and was paroled May 28.

Hunt resigned as school board chairman in 1980 after he and two other tobacco warehousemen pleaded guilty to conspiracy to receive stolen tobacco and receiving stolen tobacco.

Bailey said the parolee angered him because Hunt's sentence was intended to "set an example" in the community.

Bailey said that when he sentenced Hunt he thought Hunt would have to serve at least half of his sentence before becoming eligible for parole.

Seek Families To Host Group

Federick Fladenmuller, coordinator of the North Atlantic Cultural Exchange League, a student exchange program, is looking for families to host 18 French students who will arrive in the Greenville area July 11.

The high school students, aged 16-18, from the Paris area have taken English classes, so knowledge of French is not necessary for the host family. The family will provide food and shelter for the students from July 11-Aug. 8. No special activities are required. Families are requested to share their every-day activities with the student. The students will not attend school and no organized activities are planned.

Each student has provided a profile of his or her activities and interests. These forms will be matched with applications submitted by host families.

The NACEL program is organized jointly by French and American teachers. Applications may be obtained by calling 919-933-6406 or by writing to Fladenmuller, 705-C Hibbard Dr., Chapel Hill, N.C. 27514.

Prospective host families should apply as soon as possible.

Fire Damage P&G Plant

Fire damaged a paper products storage area at the Procter and Gamble plant in Greenville late Thursday night.

According to plant manager Robert Griffin, the fire was contained to a warehouse storage area. He said damage to that area would not hinder operations of the plant.

Griffin said the plant's fire alarm system sounded at approximately 11:03 p.m. and the plant's fire brigade responded, followed by members of the Staton House, Pactolus and Eastern Pines fire departments. Firemen extinguished the blaze in about 20 minutes.

Cause of the fire had not been determined this morning, according to Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner, but was under investigation by his office and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. Griffin said damage probably would not exceed $20,000.

No injuries were reported.

Stepfather Protests High-Living Freeloader

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are 62 and 63 and just retired. This is a second marriage for both of us. Her 24-year-old son by a previous marriage is living with us. He has a good job, but he likes to live high. He has a $35,000 sports car, a $1,200 health spa membership and plenty of money for ski trips, but he can't pay his mother the $25 a week he agreed to pay her for living at home, getting meals when he wants them and all his laundry done. My wife even has to pay his telephone bills.

This was bad enough, but when she had to pay his income taxes, I hit the ceiling!

I say this irresponsible young man should be put out on his own. He's had several chances to move in with friends and share expenses, but he doesn't budge. My wife and I would get along perfectly if it weren't for him. He is the only thing we ever argue about.

I finally blew up and told my wife that either her son moves out, or I will. Am I wrong?

UP TO HERE

DEAR UP: You're "wrong" only if you're not prepared to back your play. Moral: Never issue an ultimatum unless you're prepared to follow through.

***

DEAR ABBY: Are you familiar with the enclosed piece? I think it's beautiful and have been trying to find out who wrote it, but have had no success.

I hope you not only think it's worth sharing with your readers, but will help me find the author.

MARIE V. IN TACOMA

DEAR MARIE: I have heard portions of it quoted, but don't know who wrote it. Will the author please come forward? Please, only the author. (Whenever I publish something and ask who wrote it, at least a dozen people claim authorship.)

ON YOUTH

"Youth is not entirely a time of life — it is a state of mind. It is not wholly a matter of ripe cheeks, red lips or supple knees. It is a temper of will, a quality of the imagination, a vigor of the emotions.

"Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old only by deserting their ideals. You are as young as your faith, as old as your doubt; as young as your self-confidence, as old as your fears; as young as your hope, as old as your despair.

"In the central place of every heart, there is a recording chamber; so long as it receives messages of beauty, hope, cheer and courage, you are young.

"When the wires are all down and your heart is covered with the snows of pessimism and the ice of cynicism, then and then only have you grown old."

***

DEAR ABBY: A 75-year-old man asked you to start a crusade against people who introduce friends they had had for a long time as "old friends." He seems to think that being called "old" is some kind of insult.

For my part you can save the crusades for things that will free the oppressed and feed the hungry.

I'm 50, and if God grants me the privilege of living until I'm 75, I don't care what friends call me — as long as they call me.

NYC's First Woman Mayor?

By MOLLY CARRUTH NEW YORK (UPI) — When Mayor Edward Koch shocked the town by calling the City Council president a "horror show" and a "pain" in the posterior, Carol Bellamy whipped up a symbolic cream pie and waited.

The mayor, immediately regretting his indiscretion, hastily arranged a peacemaking session in her office for just about every newspaper and television and radio station in the city.

The mayor intended the display to be "hugs and kisses in Macy's window," but the city's No. 2 elected official was not about to let the mayor off so easily.

In the packed room, she smiled sweetly for the cameras and presented the mayor with a copy of Dr. Seuss's "Yertle the Turtle."

It is a tale of how a little turtle on the bottom of a stack of fellow turtles toppled the unfeeling king's empire with a burp.

Sometimes, she smiled, Koch makes her feel like Yertle.

Bellamy, 1; Koch, 0.

It is no secret to insiders at City Hall that Koch and Bellamy in years past often clashed, sometimes over policy, other times over personality differences. But things are different these days, now that Ed Koch is running for governor.

If he were to win this fall, Ms. Bellamy, 40, will automatically become the first woman to serve as mayor of the nation's largest city.

She would join the ranks of other women mayors of major cities: Cathy Whitmire of Houston; Margaret Hance of Phoenix; Patience Latting of Oklahoma City; Diane Feinstein of San Francisco and Jane Byrne of Chicago.

It would be a political dream come true to an ambitious woman like Ms. Bellamy, who was eyeing the governorship herself until Koch jumped in.

To achieve that plum, Ed Koch not only has to sell himself to the voters as THE choice for governor, but he and Ms. Bellamy also have to convince New Yorkers that she is capable of minding the store.

And neither of them want to spoil their chances, so a truce, at least in public, is on at City Hall.

Now that Ms. Bellamy has become a possible heir to the mayoralty, she has been inundated with requests for interviews and personal appearances.

It seems that everyone wants to learn more about this woman who would be mayor.

At first glance, she comes across as a serious, pragmatic woman who prefers sensible suits, plain pumps, a face unadorned with makeup and a short hairstyle she washes and sets herself.

But the appearance is a bit deceptive. As the Yertle the Turtle episode late last year shows, she is not entirely a sobersides. "I think I have a great sense of humor," she says in an interview, flashing her photogenic smile.

For instance, how many top officials wear Mickey Mouse watches? "I got this watch several years ago. I love it. It keeps good time. And I like it," she says defensively.

On the flip side, Ms. Bellamy has an explosive temper, which she carefully shields from the public but not from her staff.

"I have a temper. I think I care a lot about things happening, getting done. I get impatient sometimes. And that impatience leads to a temper. And sometimes as quickly as it comes, it goes."

she says.

Ms. Bellamy is single, but one could easily say she is married to her work. She's in the office by 6:30 a.m. and usually does not call it a day until 10 or 11 p.m.

She's not much of a cook, so she either eats out with friends or grabs a sandwich on the run. Standing at 5-foot-8, she uses an exercise bicycle at her Brooklyn Heights apartment to keep trim.

When she does take time for herself, she reads. Her carriage house apartment is simply furnished and chocked full of hard cover books, mostly non-fiction. Among the collection is an autographed copy of Yertle the Turtle, sent to her by Dr. Seuss.

When she is not reading, she likes to hike with friends or pursue her newest hobby of "very amateur" gardening. She was up at 6 a.m. recently, putting out stakes for her tomatoes.

Another love is softball, rallying her troops. "All the

Little Concern Seen

It is interesting that the passage of a 25-year extension of the 1965 Voting Rights Act by Congress caused little uproar in North Carolina.

Despite spirited opposition by Sens. Jesse Helms and John East, there really seems little concern in North Carolina that the act will be extended with the signature of President Reagan, even though it was used this year to force further redistricting.

The voter registration problems the act was addressed to have already been largely eliminated in North Carolina. Those who are eligible to vote and wish to register virtually always can do so.

Nor do we see much sentiment for returning to old practices which kept minorities from voting with such tactics as requiring the reading and interpreting of the Constitution.

The main danger in the act, as we see it, is that it still applies regulations to some of our states which do not apply to all. This is true even though voting rights violations are the exception in the affected states, and we doubt any state legislature would dare attempt to pass laws which restricted voting rights of minorities.

We can understand the symbolic value of the Voting Rights Act to civil rights groups, but it must be understood the act treats states which long ago eliminated voter discrimination differently from other states. The right to vote will be protected in North Carolina with or without the Voting Rights Act. Nevertheless the continued signaling out of certain states under federal law is not the way to build national harmony.

Losers In The Middle East

The biggest loser in the Middle East conflict is Lebanon, a bystander. The losses their people have been enduring surpass those of Israel, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization guerrilla army.

In terms of international relations, the United States is unquestionably a big loser; we'll be paying for Israel's self-defense invasion for years to come.

When there are losers, then there must surely be winners. Who?

Not Israel. Its old foes have fresh reason to rebuild alliances against an implacable and powerful enemy.

Surly not the PLO — proven to be a lightweight; and Syria is no match.

No winners?

It sounds more like a fable on the futility of man.

THIS AFTERNOON

A Fed-Up Public

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — This June's session of the General Assembly will long be remembered for the beating administered to the state's utilities. The Legislature significantly toughened the fuel adjustment clause and, in a surprise move, weakened the power companies' grip on Construction Work in Progress (CWIP) — the provision which has consumers pay for the construction of power plants as they are built.

How did the mighty utility lobby get trounced so badly? From discussions with legislators and lobbyists for both the utilities and Gov. Jim Hunt, one reason stands above the rest. The public was just fed up with the utilities and, with a primary just around the corner, the politicians had to listen to the voters.

Utilities don't have great natural support in the Legislature. The people back home don't send their legislators to Raleigh with the admonition to look after Duke Power. The utilities get what they want through effective lobbying and some campaign contributions. But every great once in a while, the utilities become too visible, as they have over the past year, and their legislative friends have to desert them or fear the public's wrath.

The firestorm of anti-utility sentiment that culminated in the CWIP vote began about a year ago. With nuclear plants shut down last summer, fuel adjustments became necessary and people began to see big jumps in their electric bills. Public Staff Director Bob Fischbach says the staff started hearing a lot of "ugly" complaints from very angry consumers late in August 1981. The level of dissatisfaction continued to grow during the year.

Hunt's press secretary,

PAUL O'CONNOR

Gary Pearce, began picking up the anti-utility sentiment in the fall through the governor's mail and phone calls. Along the line, a number of developments made things worse for the utilities. Both Duke and Carolina Power & Light were granted double-digit rate increases on top of the fuel adjustments. Then there were newspaper reports of large salary increases for utility executives — at a time when many workers were losing their jobs and most others faced pay freezes or pay cuts.

Things got worse when new reports surfaced showing that Wall Street thought North Carolina utilities were a good safe place to make a fortune and that the utilities were significant contributors to the campaign treasuries of some prominent legislators.

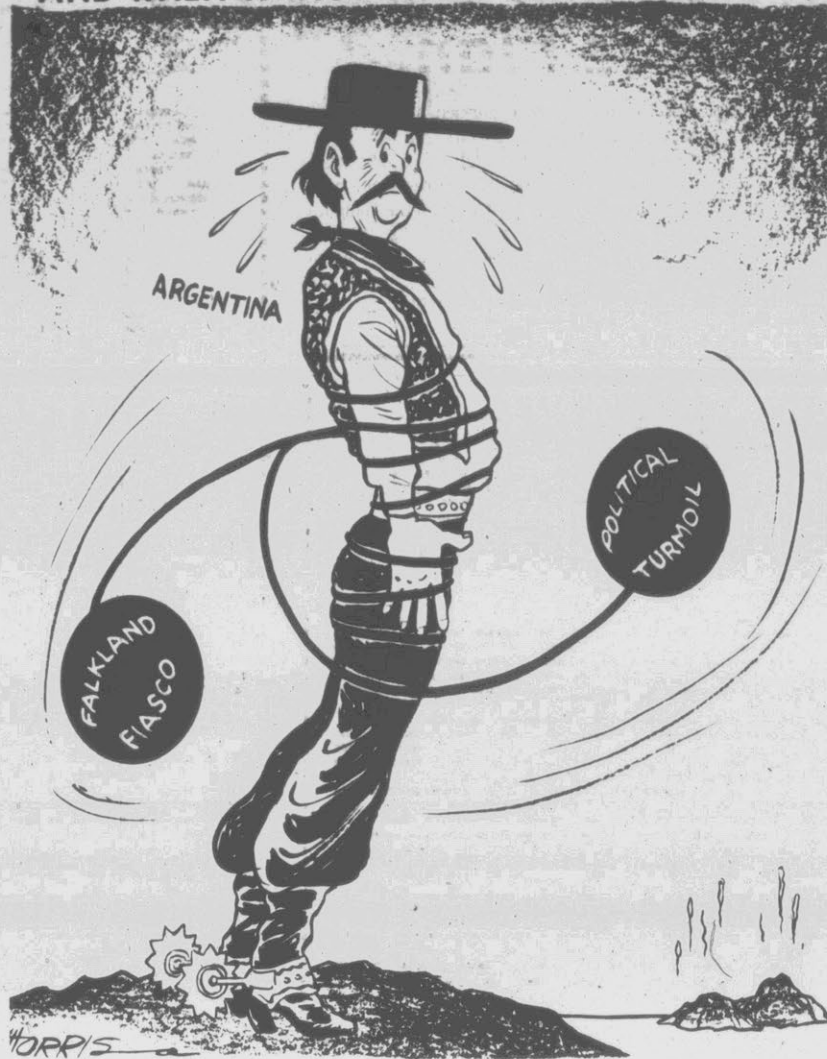

During the same time, CP&L decided to stop construction of two units at its Shearon Harris nuclear plant, thus throwing away $180 million of customer money.

Despite all of this bad press for the utilities, the beating they took was surprising. The Legislature is very pro-business and couldn't be expected to move quickly against them. Just a few days before the session, House Speaker Lison Ramsey, one of the biggest utility critics lately, said CWIP would face a challenge in 1983 if the anti-utility sentiment continued. As Pearce said, "The pressure didn't build, it just exploded."

Fischbach thinks the utilities got caught sleeping, that they were unaware of the extent of public dissatisfaction, and the extent to which this was passed on to legislators. "People are funny. They'll pay a high bill if they think it's fair. If they don't, they'll raise

AND WHEN THINGS START GOING WRONG---

BY ART BUCHWALD

Wouldn't Wallow In It

As many of you may have noticed, last week the country celebrated the 10th Anniversary of the Watergate break-in. Unlike many people, my wife and I did not wallow in it. We decided to have a quiet dinner at home and watch TV, rather than go out to an expensive nightclub and put on funny hats and throw confetti in the air, as many of our friends were doing.

We wanted to be with each other as we were on that fateful morning when five men were arrested for illegally entering the Democratic National Headquarters' offices on the sixth floor of the Watergate office-apartment complex.

Like so many Americans, I remember the exact moment when I heard the news. It was seven o'clock on Saturday morning, and as I turned on the radio the announcer at the end of his news broadcast, made mention of the break-in.

"My God," I said, sitting up in bed. "They broke into the Watergate."
My wife opened her eyes, startled by my reaction. "Why are you getting so excited about a victimless crime?" she asked. "There is more to this news item than meets the eye. This thing could lead to the Oval Office of the White House."

"How do you know?" she asked me as I started doing my daily 50 pushups.

"I don't know for certain. But something smells about this whole thing. Why would five men risk everything to break into Democratic National Headquarters unless they were part of a much larger conspiracy that could involve the highest officials of this land?"

"But why the Watergate?" she asked.
"Why not the Watergate?" I replied, jogging in place for three miles. "This looks like something that nut, Gordon Liddy, would think up as part of a Plumbers' plan in the White House."
"What are plumbers doing in the White House?"
I lifted two 100-pound

ART BUCHWALD

barbells. "I can't get a direct answer from anyone, but I think they're involved in wiretapping, break-ins and dirty tricks. Somehow they're connected with the Committee to Re-elect the President and John Mitchell."

"But," she said "how will this involve Nixon?"
"It doesn't involve him at this moment. But if I know the President, as soon as he hears about it, he will call in his legal counsel, John Dean, and try to cover the whole thing up."

"That would be obstruction of justice and lead to impeachment or resignation," she said.

"Exactly. When the heat is on, Haldeman and Ehrlichman and Colson will try to sacrifice Dean, and at that point he'll start singing better than Beverly Sills."

"But," my wife said as she watched me on the chinning bar, "where is the smoking gun?"

"The tapes Nixon records everything in his office on a voice-activated machine. When Congress hears the conversations the President had with Dean, Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Colson, they'll have no choice but to vote for impeachment. It could be one of the darkest periods in American history, but it will prove the system works, thanks to a vigilant press, and a judge who stuck to his guns."

"I can't believe you," my wife said. "You can get all that out of one teeny news item on the radio about a third-rate burglary."

"That's what I'm paid for," I said modestly. "You never accept a news item on face value. You have to figure out what is behind the story."

"What are you going to do about it?"
"Nothing. At least nothing until the Saturday night massacre."

"Is there going to be a Saturday night massacre?"
"There always is when a president tries to obstruct justice."

"I feel so helpless," my wife cried. "Shouldn't we at least warn Nixon?"
"No way. His people got him into Watergate — let them try and get him out."

Idea Chilled By Mubarek

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
CAIRO, Egypt — President Hosni Mubarak threw cold water on using American troops in Southern Lebanon to police the Lebanese-Israeli border, calling it "a bad idea" that would "hurt" Egypt and other Arab states.

In a television interview for Cable News Network, the first in interview of any kind he has held with the Western press since Israel's invasion of Lebanon, Mubarak told us that the Reagan administration has revealed nothing to him about "what is in the mind of" Prime Minister Menachem Begin for the several hundred thousand Palestinian refugees now in bloody Lebanon.

In a separate talk with Egyptian reporters, the president confirmed reports from Beirut that he would welcome "a Cairo-based provisional Palestinian government that would take the responsibility for political struggle." Such a move appeared highly problematical.

At pains to contain his anger over what he called American "hesitation" and equivocation with Israel, Mubarak told us that President Reagan "is strong enough to impose whatever he wants in Lebanon." U.S. failure to assert its role President Reagan (in a letter) that the U.S. will lose ground here and (the Soviet Union) will gain" the longer the U.S. takes to compel Israeli withdrawal.

The proposal for sending U.S. forces to safeguard the Lebanese-Israeli border, Mubarak told us, "is a bad idea because the super powers should keep away." Egypt's acceptance of American troops to police the Sinai, returned to Egypt last April, is different he said. If Reagan offers U.S. troops for Lebanon, "the Soviets would say it is a plan agreed to by Israel, Egypt and the U.S." and that will damage Egypt.

The interview took place at Aruba Palace, Mubarak's residence. Until today, the successor of Anwar Sadat has used emissaries he sent to Washington to convey word that Egypt, which has been accused by the Arabs of signing a separate peace with Israel under the Camp David agreements, stands to lose a great deal in Israel's occupation of Lebanon.

Choosing words carefully, Mubarak said Israel has too much influence over U.S. policy in the Middle East. "Israel has very great influence on the U.S., more than all the Arabs," even though "your main economic interests lie here in this (the Arab) area," a clear reference to the Persian Gulf oil that fuels the industrial democracies.

As to Camp David and its promise of "full autonomy" for Palestinians living on the West Bank and in Gaza, Mubarak said that he did not "have the impression or the feeling that (Israel) is going to fulfill it." The Lebanon inferno, he said, clearly makes it far more difficult. Revealing his stunned reaction to Lebanon, he said: "I could believe anything now. After that happened in Lebanon, I could believe anything."

The president said he had "heard" that Israel is promoting a plan with Syria "that the Palestinians should leave Lebanon and go to Jordan." That would make a "bad situation" for King Hussein, one that Hussein could not accept. The implication of such a step, he said, is "that Israel would take the West Bank and Gaza, the Palestinian land" for itself. His meaning: It would convulse Jordan in the same way that Lebanon has been shattered by Palestinians using it as a base to regain their homeland.

Despite anger throughout Egypt over Lebanon, Mubarak said pressures for Egypt to break relations with Israel should be containable. He offered to "welcome" PLO leader Yasir Arafat and his top leaders to Egypt, if they asked to come. He said he had no evidence as of today that Israel is using its influence with the U.S. to damage American-Egyptian relations. Speaking on the day before Begin's consultations with Reagan in Washington, Mubarak said: "I don't want anyone to spoil our relations with the U.S."

Strength For Today

BEING HUMBLE
Probably the least popular of the Christian virtues is humility. Being humble is often thought of as making ourselves small and mean. Nothing could be a more false interpretation of Christian humility.

The secret of humility lies not in how big or how small we are, but in how big we think we are compared to how big we ought to be. The truly humble person is not the one who makes as little of himself as possible, but the person who makes, as much as possible, and at the same time realizes how much more he might have made. The humble man is a realist about what he is and at the same time is an idealist about what he might be.

Humility is a challenge — a challenge to compare ourselves with something bigger and better. Christian humility offers the highest standard of comparison — the example of the Master. "Lord, I will follow thee." — Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Progress Shown

(Henderson Dispatch)
The Division of Social Services of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources, along with local county agencies, took a lot of flak last year when it became known that North Carolina's food stamp error rate was exceeding the national average.

The criticism was justified, at least to the extent that it indicated corrective action of some kind was needed.

Concentrated efforts at the state and county levels to improve the program's overall operation were initiated. A new review of the situation currently shows that North Carolina's food stamp error rate has gone down during a six-month period when error rates had been increasing nationally, according to Dr. Sarah Morrow, secretary of Human Resources.

The state's error rate from Oct. 1, 1981 to March 31, 1982, was 13.07 percent, she said, noting that the North Carolina rate the previous six months had been 14.32 percent. Error rates are based on overpayments, underpayments and payments to ineligible recipients. The error rate for payments to ineligible recipients and overpayments was 9.16 percent, compared to the national average of 10.57 percent.

Dr. Morrow also advised that a corrective action plan put into effect in April by the Division of Social Services should help improve the error rate significantly during the next 12 months.

The improvements already achieved show progress in administration of the food stamp program. State and local efforts obviously are paying dividends. Food stamp assistance appears to be more accurately directed to those who need it and, too, taxpayers' funds are being used more efficiently.

The error rate battle is far from won but credit is due to the administrators for meaningful efforts in the right direction.

A Good Consumer Price Index

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — An adjustment in the computation of the consumer price index, designed to remove an item that is said to exaggerate inflation, may go into effect next year just in time to do something of the same.

The impending dilemma, which follows much criticism of the existing CPI, illustrates many things, none better than the proposition that what this country needs is a good consumer price index.

It suggests also that no matter how good an economic index may be, it will be criticized by those who think it should be something else, and that list includes a variety of personages from the president down.

Just a few weeks ago, in fact, President Reagan suggested that a fairer picture of unemployment might result if more emphasis were put on the raw figures, that is, before they were seasonally adjusted. The president merely expressed a feeling that many others have long had, but he was playing with fire nevertheless. While such adjustments might lower the raw figures one month they can raise them in another.

Understandably, his criticism came during a time when the seasonal adjustment raised rather than lowered the raw count.

Criticism about the CPI is over another matter, one involving what figures should be used in calculating housing costs. For years, home prices and mortgage costs were included in calculations. Each of them, as you know, went sky high in the past decade or so.

The result, said the critics, was to exaggerate the rise in the cost of living. Not everyone acquired a house and mortgage each month, they correctly pointed out, but the CPI seemed to make that assumption.

In fact, relatively few people buy houses at any given time. They own houses — most Americans live in houses they own — but many of them buy only once in a lifetime. Home prices and mortgage costs, therefore, are hardly representative of short-term changes in overall living costs.

The situation became even more exaggerated over the past two or three years, since fewer and fewer families were able to buy. At the same time, prices and mortgage rates were rising to record high levels.

The effect, said critics, was to raise not only the CPI but labor costs of workers with incomes tied to it. In that sense, they said, the consumer price index itself was inflationary.

Next year, the housing component of the CPI will be based on rents. Rents, it is argued, more accurately reflect short-term changes in living costs. Or so it is said.

Maybe so. But it is ironic that the change to rents should be made at a time when both rents and home buying costs are changing. The torrid rise in the house prices and mortgages are doled for the time being. But rents are another matter. They are "adjusting" higher.

There is a reason for this — supply and demand. Millions of families have been priced out of the home market. There has been an increase in the number of young households. And very little rental housing has been built lately because of high interest rates and construction costs.

Landlords now are said to be in a position to raise rents. A typical argument — scratch any landlord and he begins to tell you about it — is that they must raise their income if they are to remain solvent.

It seems, therefore, that the change to come in the CPI calculations still might not satisfy some people, especially those who hope to "lower" inflation by means of statistical mechanics.

And it suggests that sometime over the next couple of years you'll hear once again the familiar old demand that may never be fulfilled: "An index that really works. That is, one that satisfies everyone."

Dallas Firm Chosen Administer State's Health Insurance Plan

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Electronic Data Systems Inc., a Texas-based computer firm, has been chosen to administer a new health insurance plan for state employees and teachers.

State Budget Officer John A. Williams made the selection Thursday after the General Assembly enacted legislation this week directing him "to select the lowest responsible bidder ... to administer the Comprehensive Major Medical Plan."

EDS's three-year bid was $6.3 million lower than that of the only other responsible bidder, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina, which had carried the state's health insurance for 10 years.

The computer firm will administer the state's new self-insurance approach in which the state will invest money it would have paid as premiums to Blue Cross until the money is needed to pay claims.

Durham-based Blue Cross had waged a stiff lobbying effort to stop a House bill that would have directly awarded the contract to EDS. With some senators questioning whether award of a contract through legislative act would be constitutional, Senate supporters of Blue Cross added an amendment that would have left the contract decision to a new board of trustees that would oversee the new program.

EDS, which already had the state contract for processing Medicaid claims, will be responsible for processing claims under the program.

In a compromise with House leaders who backed EDS, the Senate agreed to leave the decision to the state budget officer.

The new contract takes effect Oct. 1, and the contract for conventional insurance carried by Blue Cross expires July 1.

Through a spokesman, Blue Cross President Thomas A. Rose said the company would extend its contract until Oct. 1 as requested by the Legislature, which has appropriated $8.5 million to cover the extension.

Investigating 4 Break-Ins

Greenville police were investigating four break-ins reported early today.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a break-in was reported at 12:22 a.m. of a home at 1305 Church St., where an intruder gained entrance through a side window and took $30 in change and $20 worth of jewelry.

A break-in was reported at 2:10 a.m. at the Etna Service Station at 912 W. Fifth St., where intruders cut the lock off a storage room door. The chief, who said officers saw two men running from the scene, reported nothing could be determined as missing immediately.

A resident at 107B Cross St. reported a break-in there at 3:45 a.m. Intruders, who gained entrance through a side window, took a color television set valued at $350, and some jewelry, Cannon noted.

A case of soft drinks was reported taken from a storage room at Pugh's Service Station by intruders who forced the door to the room open. That break-in was reported at 5:20 a.m.

Caught Inside Service Station

Police arrested Levi Greene, 50 of Greenville about 12:10 a.m. today on breaking, entering and larceny charges after finding him inside Wainwright's Amoco station at 1201 W. 14th St.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the building was entered through a window that had been broken out.

Some $19.53 cents worth of merchandise, including such things as soft drinks, milk, cigarettes, sandwiches, potted meat and canned beans, had been collected for removal from the store, the chief noted.

Greene was jailed under a $5,000 bond pending a hearing of the case in court.

you-know-what," Fischbach said. The public never thought the salaries and fuel adjustments and stock dividends were fair, he said.

Will the legislative action defuse the public fury? Pearce says that depends almost totally on the size of future increases. But just around the corner are higher local telephone charges due to regulation. Next Year, Ma Bell may be on the hot seat.

N.Y. Mayor ...

President's Men and Women" at the Hall, to play other city government teams.

"You gotta have lots of parts of you," she said. "I want to make sure I don't get too stuffy." For one who looks so businesslike at City Hall functions, she can be seen padding around her office in stocking feet.

She has been in New York politics for 10 years.

Born in Plainfield, N.J., she grew up in nearby Scotch Plains. Despite that, she considers herself a New Yorker through and through.

After spending two years with the Peace Corps in Guatemala, Ms. Bellamy went to New York University Law School. She later practiced with a prestigious Wall Street firm.

In 1972, she was elected to the State Senate. She served there until she became the first woman to win a citywide office, that of council president, in 1977.

Although inheriting the mayoralty requires little effort on her part, keeping the job promises to be one of the most difficult challenges of her career. Under law, she would hold the office until a special November, 1983, election is held to fill the remainder of Koch's term, which is due to expire in 1985.

From the moment she takes the reins, she will have to prove herself daily. "If people don't think I stand for anything, they're not going to vote for me," she says.

Already, the politically ambitious in New York are considering challenging her should the special election come to pass. Although it is premature, political mavens are abuzz with names of possible contenders.

The list includes at least three of the five borough presidents, the city comptroller, the police commissioner, a congressman, a district attorney, the assembly speaker, the head of the City Council Finance Committee and the lieutenant governor, if he loses to Koch in the general election.

Many of these men — and all of them are men — are politically connected with powerful Democratic clubs and organizations, more so than Ms. Bellamy, who is viewed by some as a maverick.

Still, she is immensely popular with the voters. In her bid for a second term in 1981, Ms. Bellamy polled 79 percent of the vote on the Democratic line, a stronger showing than the mayor himself.

Koch, while spewing his dislike for her last year, attributed her vote-getting ability to "good bone structure."

While her vote margin is a good indicator of popularity, it must be pointed out that her opposition was taken at best for an office that has little real power.

As Council president, she has two votes on the Board of Estimate, which approves all major city expenditures. She presides over the council, voting only in the case of a tie, and heads the city's Ombudsman's Office, which investigates citizen complaints.

Separate from her role as Council President, she serves on the board that governs the city's mass transit system, one of her pet issues.

Other issues Ms. Bellamy embraces include improved services for children in foster care, the aged and mentally ill. She also heads up a committee on Soviet Jewry and recently made a trip to Moscow in an attempt to determine the welfare of Jews in the U.S.S.R.

Her approach to governing is pragmatic. Some observers feel it is occasionally naive.

She is the kind of person who believes that if you "push" and "nudge," you can get things done your way. But that does not always work in a city as politically cynical and sophisticated as New York.

It was a series of harshly toned letters to one of Koch's deputy mayors over a city workers' health pension issue that drove Koch to state for the record his contempt for her last year.

After it was all smoothed over with the help of Dr. Seuss, she still did not get her way on the pension issue.

Another illustration of her belief that if one confronts an issue, it will be resolved satisfactorily, comes from City Hall insiders.

The story is told that one day Ms. Bellamy was at the New York Public Library about to enter her city car when she spotted a group of people playing three-card monte, a kind of 1980s version of the old shell game.

Indignantly, she walked up to the operators, identified herself and demanded that they stop breaking the law. They looked at her with indifference and told her in not-so-nice language to get lost.

Finally, her strapping driver and body guard, a plainclothes police officer, stepped in and escorted her to the car. The game reportedly continued unabated.

Hussein Tours In Soviet Union

MOSCOW (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan and his American-born wife, Queen Noor, are touring the Crimea as part of a semi-official trip to the Soviet Union, according to the official news agency Tass.

One Jordanian diplomat in Moscow described the visit, which began Wednesday, as "semi-private, semi-official."

Western diplomats here said the trip had been announced before the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and did not appear related to the latest fighting.

Fruit Fly Find Sets Back War

LOS GATOS, Calif. (AP) — The discovery of a fertile Mediterranean fruit fly in the lush San Joaquin Valley is only a "minor setback" in the $80 million battle against the crop-destroying pest, though no others had been found for seven months, officials said.

The find came just one week before workers were to end a costly and controversial spraying program. New aerial spraying was scheduled today over a 9-square-mile area in Stockton, where the fly was found Thursday.

A major medfly infestation in the San Francisco Bay area last year sparked boycotts on California produce in other agricultural states like Texas and Florida, although no flies were found in any commercial crops. The pest can infest 256 varieties of fruits and vegetables and is considered a major threat to the state's $14 billion agriculture industry.

Thursday's find, the first ever in Stockton, about 60 miles east of San Francisco, is a "minor setback at present," said Roger Blake, a spokesman at the Medfly Eradication Project, headquartered in Los Gatos. "It still has to be determined what it means. It could be a very minor find, but we don't know."

Blake said a special team of medfly trappers would go to Stockton today to set more traps and establish quarantine boundaries.

It remains to be seen whether Thursday's find indicated a new infestation or merely a leftover from previous infestations, he said.

"We've been expecting to find some more flies," Blake said.

The medfly discovery was the first found in California since Nov. 20, 1981, when one of the pests was discovered in San Mateo on the peninsula south of San Francisco.

"Actually, we should have seen them earlier," Blake added. "But this has been a strange spring."

Officials will increase the number of traps in the Stockton area from 12 to 50 per square mile. About 81 square miles of San Joaquin County are expected to be put under medfly quarantine.

Officials had hoped to end spraying of about 10 square miles in San Mateo, south of San Francisco and about 65 miles from Stockton, next week. All quarantines in the state were scheduled to be completed in mid-September, he said.

The quarantine area last year eventually covered some 4,000 square miles, about twice the area of Delaware. About 1,300 square miles were sprayed from the air.

Alameda and San Mateo counties are still under medfly quarantine, along with parts of Santa Cruz and Santa Clara counties, Blake said.

Thousands of state workers have been involved in the medfly battle, which began in June 1980 when the pest first appeared in California.

The insect has marred the political career of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., who initially balked at spraying last summer but backed down after the federal government threatened to quarantine of all California produce. Brown is the Democratic nominee in November's U.S. Senate election, but an aide said he did not expect the latest discovery to affect the campaign.

"I don't think it will have any effect at all, in fact, it might enhance it a little because we have a crack team down there ... that's doing their best both humanly and scientifically to eradicate the medfly," said Brown's chief of staff, B.T. Collins.

Collins said the state director of food and agriculture, Richard Rominger, would meet today with agriculture industry officials to discuss the possibility of new boycotts and quarantines.

Asked if he thought the new find might induce Japan to reinstate its recently lifted boycott of state produce, Collins replied, "I honestly don't know."

Warm Response To Falklands Concern

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — A car salesman who wrote a letter to a Buenos Aires newspaper lamenting the killing in the war for the Falkland Islands has been swamped with mail from Argentinians who "want the world to understand" their side of the dispute.

Stanley J. Garrison, while recovering from major surgery, wrote to the newspaper La Nacion to say how much it saddened him that British sailors and Argentine airmen were dying.

The newspaper published Garrison's letter June 8. Since then, he has received more than 400 letters, cards, photographs and bundles of pamphlets from Argentina.

And they're still arriving. On Thursday, Garrison got 25 pieces of mail from Argentina — "a light day," he said.

Garrison, a World War II veteran, said he was neutral on the Falklands dispute, "but I thought I'd reach out to Argentina because most of what we've heard about the war has been pro-British."

Dr. Miguel M. Padilla of Buenos Aires wrote to Garrison on June 16, two days after the British claimed victory in the Falklands.

"Today we face a very sad reality. We lost this war and it will take a long time and many efforts in every field to restore the islands to our territory. We think our soldiers fought well, but were overwhelmed by a very sophisticated technology provided — it is the general belief — by the U.S.A."

Before the war ended, young Marcelo Mareque wrote:

"I will probably be called up and sent to the Malvinas. I am 17 years old. I know I may be killed there. But I won't care because I'll be fighting for a just cause. I want the world to understand what we are fighting for is ours."

Garrison's correspondents said they were sad about America's support for Britain. They said Americans don't understand what has happened in the Falklands, or why.

"They've come from school teachers, doctors, nuns priests, you name the profession," Garrison said.

Democrats Already Jockeying For The Presidency

By JILL LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The next president won't be elected until 1984, but Democratic hopefuls already are off and running in a race of their own — who can generate the most excitement at the party's mid-term conference.

At factories, receptions, private meetings, fundraisers, news conferences and caucuses, potential candidates are trying to make political hay without seeming over-eager about a race still two years away.

Amid all the jockeying, the common refrain is that it's too early to worry about 1984. Deep rivalries are muted for now with good fellowship and rhetoric about concentrating on winning congressional seats and local races in 1982.

The challenge is to be united. We've got to find a reason to stay together rather than stay apart. We've got our work cut out for us," said former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

But actions speak louder than words. Askew has visited all 30 states in the last six months. Former Vice President Mondale was scheduled for a national television appearance Friday and Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., had one set up for Sunday.

The distant presidential race clearly is the overriding concern for many here, their days jammed with television interviews, receptions and rounds of meetings with delegates and local politicians.

Mondale summed it up at his own crowded reception, after lightly reproaching conferees for speculating on who might be the party's 1984 presidential nominee.

"Let's do none of that," he said. "Let's talk about you. Let's talk about Mr. Reagan. Let's talk about his economic policies. Let's talk about the future."

"And one more point — be sure to vote for me on the straw ballot," he said.

Earlier, standing on a receiving line, he shook hands and exchanged quips with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., considered his chief rival for the front-runner's spot.

Kennedy signed autographs and shook hands in a glare of television lights during his brief appearance at the Mondale function. "Kennedy in '84 — Yeah!" cried one well-wisher. "He's like magic," sighed another.

Kennedy's own reception, a clambake in the atrium of the restored Philadelphia Stock Exchange Building, was scheduled for Friday evening.

Receptions for Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., were set for Saturday.

CBS Stands By Salvador Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — Faced with U.S. government denials, CBS News is standing by a story that some U.S. military advisers have been "fighting side-by-side" El Salvador troops battling leftist rebels in the Central American nation.

Network spokeswoman Marcia Stein made the statement in New York Thursday after the Pentagon disputed a CBS story that advisers were violating noncombat guidelines by being in a combat zone and firing mortars at rebel troops.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto said the Defense Department knew of no hostilities in the area where six advisers were sent June 21. Catto said the advisers had trained Salvadorans in mortar fire but had not employed the weapons against guerrillas.

Another 'War' On Drug Abuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, raising a "battle flag" against drug abuse, has formed a new Drug Abuse Policy Office to oversee the efforts of nine federal departments and 30 other agencies.

"We're taking down the surrender flag that has flown over so many drug efforts,"

Reagan said Thursday. "We're running up a battle flag. We can fight the drug problem, and we can win."

Inquiring Over Dead Letters

By BILL VALE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service is trying to track down the descendants of people named on a batch of letters that were mailed in 1910 but never delivered.

About 500 pieces of mail were discovered last week in a house at Waddy, Ky., about 40 miles east of Louisville, most of them addressed to residents of Waddy.

The Postal Service announced Thursday that the public cannot inspect the missives until delivery attempts fail.

"Nobody can open them and read them until we determine they can't be delivered," Dead Letter Office supervisor Lois Ginter said.

She said her office had received many calls about the letters, including one from a woman who "wanted to reminisce."

"She was from Waddy and said she knew everybody who lived there. I couldn't give her any of the names, though," she said, under department regulations.

The epistolary find came when the owners of a house used as a post office from 1899 to 1914 decided to remodel.

"I thought we'd discovered a gold mine," said Brenda Burkhead, whose husband found the old mail. "I thought 'Wow, money!' But when we found out what it was, we gave it to the post office."

Kenneth M. Lynn, a postal official in Louisville, said the mail was sent to the Dead Letter Office in Cincinnati after a check of Waddy's 200 residents failed to turn up any of the addressees still living.

However, Lynn said some of their relatives may still be only Askew declined an invitation to speak at the conference.

Both Hart and Glenn told reporters they have not yet decided whether to run, but would never consider a vice presidential role.

"If I go, I will go hard, not as somebody's second place," said Glenn, who brought 30 members of his Senate staff here to set up a publicity trailer and a hospitality suite.

Hart told reporters Thursday that younger Americans are looking for "a voice they feel represents their generation." He said he would stress his age, 44, and his western home — that is, if he runs.

"It's too early for me or anybody else to be arguing our case," he maintained. "It's too early to be running name recognition contests in 1982."

Mondale, too, said he hasn't decided whether to run for the presidency. But, as he toured an automotive parts plant and spoke to workers, his aides handed out red and white buttons reading, "Mondale '84."

WE HAVE AN OUTSTANDING SHERIFF LET'S KEEP HIM IN OFFICE

The citizens of Pitt County are indeed fortunate to have Ralph L. Tyson serving as their Sheriff. Sheriff Tyson is a fine, dedicated law-enforcement officer who works constantly to provide the very best law enforcement possible to the people in Pitt County. He works long hours and spends many sleepless nights in his efforts to keep the County as safe as possible.

Sheriff Tyson has built an efficient hard-working department. Every member is constantly made aware that he or she is there to serve the citizens of Pitt County and to provide the best service possible. The Sheriff's efforts have paid off. One outstanding result is the low crime rate in Pitt County. It is approximately half that of the nation as a whole and much lower than many local departments. This reduction in crime has been achieved with the excellent cooperation of the citizens of Pitt County through Community Watch and other programs.

Sheriff Tyson has devoted his entire law-enforcement career to the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, having served as a Deputy for nine years and as Sheriff for seventeen years. He is a Pitt County native and was educated in the Pitt County School System and at East Carolina University. He has also attended many law-enforcement schools including the following:

1. Graduated from Coastal Plains Law Enforcement Academy
2. Arson School
3. Sheriff's School on Criminal & Civil Process at Institute of Government
4. F.B.I. Fire Arms School
5. Police Administration & Law Enforcement
6. Planning and Budgeting
7. Jail Management
8. Firearms & Explosives

Sheriff Tyson is a member and past president of Pitt County Law Enforcement Association, a member, past president and presently on the Executive Board of the North Carolina Sheriff's Association, a member and presently serving on the Board of Directors of the National Sheriffs' Association, and past president of Coastal Plains Advisory Board. He is a member of the American Legion and the Greenville Host Lions Club and he and his family are members of First Presbyterian Church of Greenville.

We feel that Ralph Tyson is an excellent and highly qualified Sheriff and we ask you, the voters of Pitt County, to join us in re-electing him to the office he now holds.

Paid for by Pitt County Deputies and Other Friends of Ralph L. Tyson.

To Pitt County:

Tuesday, June 29 is a very important day for Pitt County residents. On that day, the voters of this community will select an individual to serve on the Board of County Commissioners.

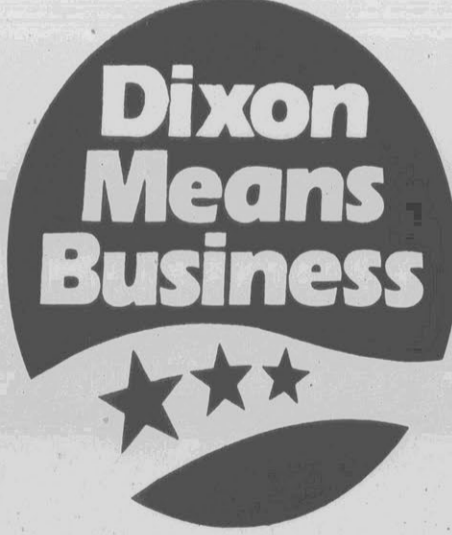

I intend to vote for the person who I feel is best qualified to represent the people of this county. I support Elliot Dixon and I urge you to do the same. Elliot Dixon possesses the leadership qualities we need as a County Commissioner. I know Elliot Dixon to be a man of the highest integrity, honesty and sincerity. Elliot Dixon will be a representative of the people and that is what we need.

When you vote on election day, please vote for the best qualified candidate, Elliot Dixon.

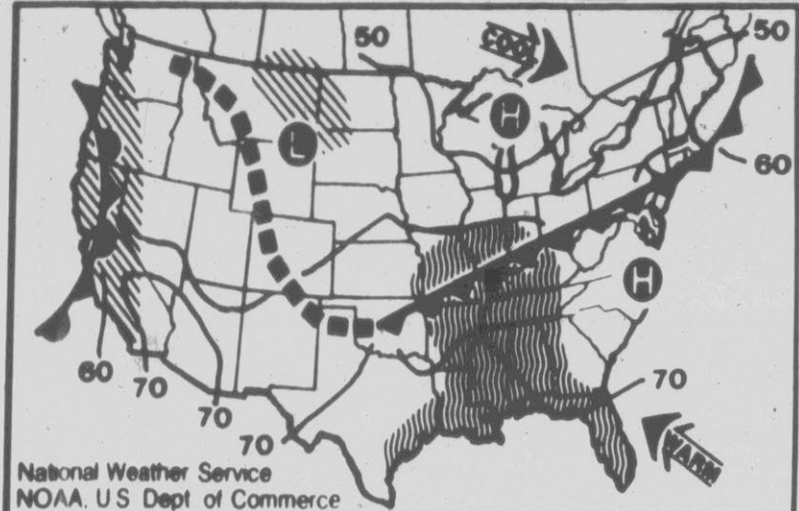

Thank you,

Tim Rosche

The Forecast For Saturday, June 26
● Low Temperatures

Fronts: Cold Warm Occluded Stationary

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts rain for the Pacific Coast and part of the Upper Plains, and showers for the Gulf Coast extending north into the Ohio Valley for Saturday. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press
There is a slight chance of showers and thunderstorms in the state today, with chances of thunderstorms increasing in the western part of the state tonight and in the eastern part of the state on Saturday.
Skies were partly cloudy today with temperatures reaching the 80s — 70s in the mountains.
Lows tonight will be in the 60s with some 50s over the mountains. Highs Saturday will be in the 70s and 80s once again.

Skies will be cloudy this weekend at the beaches along the North Carolina and South Carolina coast. There is a chance of thunderstorms mainly during the afternoon.

Solar Fraction
The solar fraction for this area Thursday, as computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 9. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 9 percent of your hot water needs.

and evening hours over the weekend.
Daytime temperatures will warm into the 80s. Nighttime temperatures will cool into the 60s. Winds today will be easterly at 10 to 20 knots. The wind direction will become southeast tonight, and south Saturday.
High pressure centered over the Middle Atlantic coastline is in control of the weather across North Carolina. Light easterly winds associated with the high pressure will cause partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures today. Widely scattered showers and thunderstorms are also possible.
An upper level disturbance located over the central plains will move east today and reach western North Carolina late tonight. It will pass across the state Saturday. As a result there will be an increase in the amount of showers and thunderstorms across the mountains tonight and across the state Saturday.
Skies were cloudy early Thursday. The cloudiness decreased slowly, and by late in the afternoon skies were mostly sunny statewide. The lingering cloudiness resulted in rather mild afternoon temperatures over much of the state. Highs across the mountains where in the 70s and 80s.
Hot Springs was the warmest reporting location in the state with a high of 88. East of the mountains highs ranged from the mid 70s to the mid 80s. The warmest location was Fayetteville with 85.
There were a few showers and thunderstorms Thursday. Most of them ended early last night, but a few showers lingered over the Piedmont through the night. Overnight temperatures cooled into the 60s for the most part.

Chicago Eyes '92 Worlds Fair

By T. LEE HUGHES
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — City officials are planning a 1992 World's Fair here even though Seville, Spain, also wants to host the event.
The two cities may have to work out a joint celebration, officials said.
On Thursday, Chicago and Seville were awarded provisional date reservations for a World's Fair in 1992 to celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America in 1492.
A spokesman for the Chicago World's Fair 1992 Corp., which is handling the effort in the Windy City, said his group has discussed with Spanish officials "the possibility of a concurrent celebration" that would place the main fair in Chicago.

"I'm not sure Spain wants a world fair," said the spokesman, Tim Schulte. "I think they want some kind of celebration."
The provisional reservations for the 1992 fair were awarded in Paris by the General Assembly of the 35-nation Bureau of International Expositions, which also gave a provisional reservation to Paris for a 1989 World's Fair.
Both Chicago and Seville cannot get the 1992 world's fair. Despite the Spanish bid, elated Chicago officials said they would proceed with plans that call for spending $700 million to hold the fair.
"We start today," said Mayor Jane Byrne. "There's a lot of work to be done."
She said the fair would provide 30,000 new jobs and "trigger a regeneration, a decade of rebirth" for the nation's second-largest city.
A final decision on awarding "registered dates" to any of the cities will be made at the next General Assembly meeting, probably in November and December.
Paris wants the 1989 World's Fair to mark the 200th anniversary of the 1789 French revolution. Chicago and Paris had been competing for two years for an award under a Bureau of International Expositions rule requiring world's fairs be spaced at least a decade apart.

But the Assembly voted Thursday to suspend the rule in "exceptional circumstances," such as historic dates.
Donald Petkus, a member of the Chicago delegation to the bureau meeting, said in Paris there was no possibility that Chicago will drop plans for its fair, even if it fails to get official sanction.
"I can see that if this doesn't go right that we go ahead without their endorsement," he said.
The 180-day Chicago fair is planned for April 15 to Oct. 15, 1992, on a 600-acre site along Lake Michigan, sponsored by the Chicago World's Fair 1992 Corp. The corporation estimated it would cost $700 million to prepare for and hold the fair, which it says would attract 50 million people and generate about $750 million in revenue.

Appointed To Naval Academy

Tony Stancil of Whiteville has received an appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, the academy announced.
Stancil, the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stancil, is the grandson of Mrs. Zelota Harrington of Ayden and Mr. and Mrs. J. Wiley Stancil of Farmville. He is a 1982 graduate of Whiteville High School.
He will attend the academy for four years and then must serve a five-year mandatory tour in the Navy. Stancil said he hopes to attend naval flight school after graduating from the academy and then become an astronaut.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

SELAH!

THE BOOK OF PSALMS, ISRAEL'S ANCIENT HYMNAL, HAS BEEN CALLED A BIBLE IN MINIATURE BECAUSE ITS 150 SONGS CONTAIN EVERY KIND OF RELIGIOUS EXPERIENCE—HYMNS OF PRAISE, LAMENTS SEEKING DELIVERANCE FROM TROUBLE, SONGS OF TRUST IN GOD'S HELP, PSALMS OF WISDOM, SACRED HISTORY, PROPHECY, ROYAL PSALMS FOR THE CORONATIONS AND WEDDINGS, LITURGIES FOR SPECIAL EVENTS, ETC.

THE CHOIR AT WORK, SINGING A PSALM IN THE TABERNACLE, AT THE FEAST OF THE NEW MOON. LINED UP BEHIND ONE OF THE LESSER PRIESTS, WHO IS THE CELEBRANT OF THIS FEAST, ARE THE SINGERS, COMPOSED OF TENOR, BASS, AND ALTO VOICES, BEHIND WHICH ARE THE MUSICIANS, CYMBALS, PSALTERS, AND LUTES, ALL UNDER THE CHIEF MUSICIAN'S ABLE DIRECTION, IN THIS CASE, HEMAN, SON OF ASAPH, (DAVID'S REIGN, CIRCA, 1,000 B.C.)

SELAH! THIS MYSTERIOUS WORD IS FOUND IN AMONGST THE PSALMS, REPEATEDLY—BY ACTUAL COUNT, 71 TIMES! SCHOLARS AND ETYMOLOGISTS CAN'T SEEM TO TRACE ITS MEANING—A MUSICAL* PAUSE? A LITURGICAL DIRECTION? INSTRUMENTAL INTERLUDE? NO TWO AUTHORITIES SEEM TO AGREE! NO ONE KNOWS! AH, WELL—SELAH!

Small Church An 'Art Center'

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
GLENDALE SPRINGS, N.C. (AP) — When Statesville artist Ben Long IV began painting frescoes in a small Ashe County church eight years ago, he couldn't have foreseen the impact his art would have on the community.

Nowadays, it isn't unusual for 600 visitors a day to pass through the doors of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in the hamlet of Glendale Springs to see Long's fresco of "The Last Supper."

Art has become so closely associated with the church that it has become an art center of sorts, according to the Rev. J. Faulton Hodge.

pastor of Holy Trinity.
"I don't know how many thousands of visitors we've had since the fresco was completed last year, but it's not unusual to have six or seven busloads of people here at one time," Hodge said. "We get anywhere from 200 to 600 visitors a day."

one with the wall. It is the most durable form of painting, dating back 2,000 years to the Egyptians who used it for teaching in the classroom.
Hodge said the attention the frescoes attracted convinced him to add the other art programs at the church.

Minister Is Appointed

The Rev. Ralph Alan Brown has been appointed associate minister at St. James United Methodist Church. The appointment was made by Bishop William R. Cannon at the recent session of the North Carolina Annual Conference.

Brown is a native of Wilmington where he graduated from New Hanover High School. In 1974, he graduated from East Carolina University with a bachelor's in music education. He received his master's from the divinity school at Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., where he served as an associate minister at Will Rogers United Methodist Church.

REV. AND MRS. RALPH ALAN BROWN

He is married to the former Jeannie Elizabeth Morris, a native of the Greenville area and a graduate of East Carolina University. They have a 10-month-old son, Joshua.

Brown assumed his duties June 20, when he and his wife were formally presented to the St. James congregation.

Appointed To Fill Conference Duties

RALEIGH — The North Carolina Methodist Conference has appointed Mrs. Charles S. Alford Jr., of Greenville, new Conference representative of the Greenville District for the "39 and Under" age groups of United Methodist Women.

Mrs. Alford will have as her responsibility getting young women interested in the women's organization and organizing "39 and Under" groups throughout the area.

"It is vital that young women become more involved in UMW groups," Mrs. Alford said. "and carry on the mission work that has been the focal point of our organization since its inception." Jarvis Memorial Church in Greenville has two "39 and Under" UMW groups, while Kinston, Pink Hill and Vanceboro Methodist Churches have one group each.

A native of Orange County, Mrs. Alford graduated from Hillsboro High School, in Hillsboro, where she was a leader in the Methodist Youth Fellowship, the Girl Scouts and Youth Grange.

She graduated from Louisburg College, and from High Point College where she earned the A.B. degree in Sociology.
Mrs. Alford is a former rehabilitation counselor with the State Commission where she worked with the blind for five years in nine Northeastern counties, and a former social worker with the Nash County Department of Social Services for three years, with aged and disabled adults. During the past year in Greenville she co-chaired the Sadie Sautler Elementary School's Beautification Committee.

Her husband is Greenville's Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor. They are the parents of two sons, Charles Stephen Jr., age 7, and John Franklin, age 6.

Had Enough Of Superman Role

NEW YORK (AP) — There may be a "Superman IV" movie, but it won't star Christopher Reeve, the actor vows.

A recent interview in Parade magazine quotes the actor as saying he's tired of his red cape, blue tights, Lois Lane and Metropolis after two movies.

"Yes, there'll be a 'Superman III,' (but) there won't be a 'Superman IV' — not with me in it. Enough is enough," Reeve said.
Reeve also said he believes he made a mistake in talking to news media about his personal life. In the past he has discussed his child, his relationship with Gae Exton, the woman he lives with, and why they have not married.

Only Cancer Seeing Upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cancer caused by smoking is the only form of the disease on the upswing in the United States, but it is also the most preventable, according to Dr. Vincent T. DeVita Jr., director of the National Cancer Institute.

"There is in fact no evidence of an epidemic of cancer, here or on the horizon," DeVita told a National Cancer Society conference Thursday. "The progress of the National Cancer Program is being obscured by a cloud of cigarette smoke."

DeVita said 45 percent of those diagnosed and treated for serious cancer today will be alive in five years — the period that normally indicates a cure. He said that smoking is a factor in 30 percent of cancer cases.

Pitt County Eases Past Snow Hill, 6-4

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
Terry Locust got three of Pitt County's five hits on the evening and scored twice as Post 39 gained a 6-4 American Legion baseball victory over Snow Hill last night at Harrington Field.

"I was very pleased with the job Mike did," coach Bill Davis said. "He had worked five innings on Wednesday, and coming back like he did was just outstanding with only a day's rest. Roger also came in an did an exceptional job in relief."

Kinley, who had troubles from time to time was making only his second start at any level above high school junior varsity - his first coming Wednesday. He gave up seven hits, including two each in the two innings that Snow Hill scored in, struck out two and walked four. Williams, in relief, fanned five and walked one while allowing three hits in three innings.

Davis expressed some surprise at his team having only five hits. "I really would have thought we hit the ball better than that," he said. "But we got the big plays when we needed them."

Pitt jumped out to an early lead in the game, scoring three times in the first inning.
With one away, Greg Briley was issued a walk and Randy Warren also earned a free pass to first. Emmett Walsh's grounder to short got Warren, leaving runners at the corners. Williams then beat out a slow chopper to the infield, scoring Briley. Locust followed with the first of his three hits, a liner to left that left the bases loaded.

Sammy Hodges then hit a ball deep into the hole at short, beating it out for a hit. Walsh scored easily on the play and Williams kept coming, just getting in ahead of the relay from first.
A fourth run crossed in the second. Tom Buie led off with a walk and stole second. He advanced on Briley's ground out, and scored on Warren's long sacrifice fly to center.
Snow Hill rallied for a pair in the top of the third, however, closing it to 4-2. The Post 94 men had threatened in the first, as Chris Newsome hit the first pitch of the game into centerfield, then was sacrificed up, only to die there.

In the third, however, Richie Chase led off with a single to right and Joey Rouse walked. Newsome grounded into a fielder's choice, getting Rouse, and a wild pitch allowed Chase to score the first run for Snow Hill.
Steve Sides kept it going with a walk and Greg Hardison also walked, loading them up. With two away, Lewis Yelverton singled to left, scoring Newsome.
Pitt came back with one in its half of the third. Locust led off with a bunt single, then scooted to second when a pickoff attempt was overthrown. Hodges walked and both were sacrificed up. Kinley then grounded out, scoring Locust.

Snow Hill again came up with a pair in the fourth, cutting the lead to only 5-4. After one was out, Chase singled to left, and Rouse followed that up with a blast over the fence in right, driving

Committee Is Named To Pick Coach

A committee has been named to find a new head basketball at East Carolina University, a source told The Daily Reflector this morning.
The committee is expected to include athletic director Dr. Ken Karr, athletic faculty representative Dr. Ernie Schwarz, Greenville businessman Jack Minges, Greenville dentist Dr. Robert L. Capps, and Fayetteville businessman Jim Thornton.
The five are expected to begin sifting through some 50 applications for the job to replace Dave Odom, who resigned after a three-year tenure earlier this month to accept an assistant coaching position with the University of Virginia.
A number of names have surfaced as potential candidates for the job, and The Daily Reflector was able to confirm some of those names. They include ex-ECU assistant Billy Lee, now head coach at Pembroke; Iowa State assistant Charlie Harrison, a Scotland Neck native; Mike Pratt, former head coach at UNC-Charlotte; Press Maravich, former head coach at N.C. State, Louisiana State and Appalachian State; Jack Fertig, assistant coach at Tennessee; Paul Evans, head coach at the U.S. Naval Academy; Tom Barrise, current assistant at East Carolina; and Dave Buss, head coach at Wisconsin-Green Bay.
The Daily Reflector was able to contact Harrison, who would not confirm that he had applied, but said that he felt the East Carolina job would be a good one. "I'm at the stage now where I don't think I'd move except to become a head coach," he said.

There were also reports that Butch Estes, a former assistant here, and Tom Quinn, former head coach, had applied for the job. Estes, contacted earlier this week, said he had not applied, but that he had not closed the door on the possibility. He is currently head coach at Presbyterian College.
Quinn, living in Greenville again after a number of successful years coaching in Europe, said he would have no comment on the rumor of his application.
There was also a report that ECU assistant Don Carter had applied, but that could not be confirmed. He has taken a job with Radford College and has left Greenville.
There was also an unconfirmed report that an unnamed assistant coach at Old Dominion had also applied.
Applications close next Thursday, July 1, and the committee is expected to begin sifting through them at that time.
A source told The Daily Reflector that he expected the committee to interview four or five as finalists for the position.

Gilder On Way Toward Goal

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Bob Gilder has a goal for the year.
"I want to win twice," Gilder said. "I feel like I can win again. I'm playing well enough, and I'm putting well enough.
"It's just a matter of getting in position to win again."
And, Gilder, who scored a five-stroke victory earlier this year in the Byron Nelson Classic, took a major step toward his goal with a 6-under-par 64 that gave him the first round lead Thursday in the $400,000 Manufacturers Hanover-Westchester Golf Classic.
"I made three double bogeys in the pro-am Wednesday," Gilder said, "and I was a little hesitant about my swing when I went to the practice tee.
"But I started hitting it good. It came back to me. I felt I was in control, that I was controlling the ball."
He controlled it very well, indeed. He missed only two greens on the 6,329-yard Westchester Country Club course in suburban New York, and chipped in for birdie on one of those. He did not make a bogey, and he did not have a "5" on his card.

The mistake-free performance staked Gilder, who is off to the best season of his seven-year Tour career, to a 1-shot lead over veteran Dave Eichelberger and Chip Beck.

at 65. Beck included a string of five consecutive birdies and a front nine of 30 in his effort.
Tom Kite, who stopped off in Austin, Texas en route from Pebble Beach, Calif., earlier this week for a crash-course putting lesson from his longtime mentor Harvey Penick, used, converted the instructions and refund confidence into eight birdies and a 66 that left him only two off the pace.

Kite, last year's leading money-winner, was tied with Lanny Wadkins, Lyn Lott and Billy Glisson.
The group at 67 included former Masters champ Charles Coody, D.A. Weibring, J.C.

Snead, Doug Tewell and Japan's Isao Aoki.
Tom Watson, winner of the U.S. Open last week, could do no better than match par 70 on the course that often yields some of the lower scores of the Tour year. He was one of 72 players at par or better.
Masters champ Craig Stadler, who is attempting to defend his money-winning lead, was not there. He was 1-over at 71 and must improve today if he is to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.
Defending champion Ray Floyd and British Open titleholder Bill Rogers were among 25 players tied at 69.
Gilder chipped in from 20 feet for a birdie on the fourth, one of the two greens he missed. He saved with a 10-footer on the other.
He birdied all three of the par-5's, once getting up and down from a greenside bunker and 2-putting the others, including the final hole, where he left a 15-foot eagle putt inches short.
"I was kind of disappointed on that one," he said, but tapped in for the birdie that gave him sole control. His other two birdies came on a 10-foot putt on the second hole and a 4-iron shot that set up a 6-8 foot putt on the 16th.

Big Mama Looking For Hall Of Fame Position

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — She's called "Big Mama" and to some, she may not quite fit the sleek, glamorous look the Ladies Professional Golf Association would like to project.
Efficiency is the image JoAnne Carner reflects.
After her first round Thursday, the 43-year-old, 13th-year tour veteran was in the driver's seat of the $200,000 Rochester International. Moreover, her 5-under-par 67 had her pointed her in the direction of the LPGA Hall of Fame.
"I've been thinking about the Hall all year," said Carner, whose 34 tour victories leave her one shy of qualifying. "It's in the back of my mind. I want to avoid putting too much pressure on myself, but I'm getting ready to do it."
The $30,000 first prize also would widen the gulf between Carner, whose $1,101,132 million in career winnings is the highest in LPGA history, and Kathy Whitworth, the first woman golfer to earn more than $1 million.

Whitworth, four shots back at 71, trails Carner by $50,000 this year and for her career.
Meanwhile, Carner had to be mindful of her immediate challengers, including veteran Pat Bradley and little-known Beverley Davis-Cooper, both at 68.
Hollis Stacy, Sally Little and Jo Ann Washam were two shots back after 3-under-par rounds of 69.
Little, the leading money-winner of the season with $153,025 to Carner's $152,588, wasn't disappointed to be trailing after 18 holes but complained about the short, but wicked, Locust Hill Country Club layout.
Bonnie Bryant, Sandra Palmer, Vicki Fergon, Barbara Barrow, Pam Gietzen and Nancy Lopez shot 2-under 70s to position themselves for later stages of the 72-hole event on the 6,149-yard course.
Lopez has never played Locust Hill without winning. The fifth consecutive victory in her record-setting rookie season occurred here in 1978. She also won the tournament in 1980 and 1981, when it was named the Sarah Coventry.

Whitworth headed a six-woman cluster at 1-under-par 71, and seven others matched par.
Jan Stephenson, seeking her third straight tour victory after triumphs in the LPGA Championship and the Lady Keystone the past two weeks, was six shots back in a 14-way bunch at 73.
A total of 98 pros and three amateurs started play.
Carner was the only one of the leaders to tour the course without a bogey, sinking the first of five birdies with a 15-foot putt on the treacherous fifth hole.

Steinbrenner Rips Yanks After Defeat

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

The Detroit Tigers and New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner have finally ended their silence.

The Tigers got home runs from Larry Herndon, Kirk Gibson and Lou Whitaker and snapped a 10-game losing streak by defeating the Baltimore Orioles 7-1 Thursday night.

"We were in a dry spell, but you have to give the other teams credit," said Alan Trammell, who had two RBI singles. "We were running into teams that were playing hot baseball. We let everyone back into the race, but deep down we knew it wasn't going to be a one- or two-team race. This division is too good for that and it will be a four- or five-team race."

There was no sign of life, however, from the Yankees' punchless bats in a 5-2 loss to the Cleveland Indians. Instead, their volatile owner provided most of the offense by ripping into his slumping sixth-place ballclub in a postgame news conference and promised to "chew them out face-to-face today."

"From now on, there will be no more excuses," Steinbrenner said, barely one week after he calmly blamed a run of injuries for the club's poor start. It was the Yankees' 14th setback in their last 21 games and dropped the defending American League champs 10 games behind first-place Boston in the East Division with a 31-34 record, one game from the cellar.

"That stuff about injuries is over," Steinbrenner added. "Maybe we're laying back like last year in the World Series, saying to ourselves that 'we'll get 'em tomorrow.' Well, we didn't get 'em tomorrow. Maybe that attitude still permeates here."

In the only other AL games, the California Angels whacked the Kansas City Royals 7-2 and the Texas Rangers edged the Oakland A's 2-1.

Detroit's three homers were more than enough as Jerry Ujdr and Dave Tobik held Baltimore to eight hits and an unearned run.

"We really didn't get too down on ourselves," Gibson insisted. "We were joking and kidding about it before the game. We've been battling every night. We can't panic. We have about 100 games to play and we're still close. We'll have our opportunities."

The triumph moved the Tigers back into second place in the AL East, two percentage points ahead of Milwaukee and five games behind Boston.

Herndon's 14th homer triggered a three-run uprising in the second inning off Scott McGregor, who also was the victim when the Minnesota Twins snapped a 14-game losing streak earlier this month.

"It's much better to go into a series against a team that's due to cool off, not when they're losing," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "You know they're bound to come out of it."

Indians 5, Yankees 2

Toby Harrah's double and Mike Hargrove's RBI single broke a 2-2 tie in the eighth inning as Cleveland ended Ron Guidry's six-game winning streak. The Indians also got an RBI double from Chris Bando and run-scoring singles by Mike Fischlin and Jack Perconte. Dan Spillner, who replaced starter Rick Sutcliffe in the seventh and yielded a game-tying single to Jerry Mumphrey, was the winner. He allowed one hit over the last 22-3 innings and has not allowed a run in his last 261-3 innings.

"The guys that are supposed to produce are just not producing," Steinbrenner said. "They're not earning their money. The majority of them are bitter disappointments and should be ashamed to take the money they're taking. Maybe we made some mistakes. And if we did, we'll own up to them. Then we have to see who's advising us and make the necessary changes."

Steinbrenner held a meeting of his coaching staff into the early-morning hours after the latest defeat, while Manager

Gene Michael announced there would be a workout next Monday, which is listed as an open date.

"I think this team needs a lot of practice," the owner said. "And if they need a lot of practice, we'll give it to them. They'll get all they need. I think they need a lot of things. Maybe we're fighting an age factor. Maybe I've waited too long on some guys."

"I'll tell you one thing — you'll see some of my young kids soon. I'm not against outright releases."

As far as tonight's team meeting goes, Steinbrenner said:

"I'm going to say a lot of things and they're not going to enjoy it. But I'm going to state simple facts. This club will improve. If it takes moves, we'll do that. If it takes practice we'll do that. Whatever it takes, we'll do."

Angels 7, Royals 2

Reggie Jackson's three-run homer — his 15th of the season and fifth in the last seven games — capped a six-run rally in the fifth inning and Geoff Zahn scattered eight hits as the first-place Angels won 1 1/2 games in front of the Royals in the AL West. Doug DeCinces also homered, while Don Baylor contributed a two-run single.

Rangers 2, A's 1

Jon Matlack, with last-out help from Danny Darwin, handcuffed Oakland on three hits and Dave Hostetler singled home the go-ahead run with a fifth-inning single. Matlack struck out six and didn't walk a batter in sending Oakland to its third consecutive setback and ninth in the last 10 games. The A's have scored only nine runs in their last six outings. Cliff Johnson of the A's tied the test from a resurgent John Alexander.

Connors posted a 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, ahead an inning later when Billy Sample doubled and McEnroe in the third round. Hostetler singled him home.

Bethel Claims Pitt Co. Junior Babe Ruth Title

Sr. Babe Ruth

Farmville . . . . . 7
Greene County . . . . . 2

FARMVILLE — Farmville's Alvin Baker fired a two-hitter at Greene County for a 7-2 victory last night in the Coastal Plains Senior Babe Ruth League.

Baker struck out seven and walked two along the way.

Eddie Jones led the Farmville hitting with a double.

Farmville is now 44 on the season.

Pugh's Firestone . . . 6
Kiwanis . . . . . 4

Ed Frazier banged out three hits and led Pugh's Firestone to a 6-4 victory over the Kiwanis in the Coastal Plains Senior Babe Ruth League last night.

Pugh's got all the runs it needed in the third, scoring five times to break the scoreless tie. Toby Fischer led off with a single and Billy Godley followed with a double. Frazier singled in Fischer and Godley, and was sacrificed up. Rudy Stall's grounder, however, got Frazier at the plate. Keith Phillips followed with a single and Kenny Kirkland walked, loading the bases. Eric Woodworth doubled in all three for the 5-0 lead.

Pugh's added one in the fourth, while the Kiwanis got two in the fourth on a homer by Troy Hudson, and two more in the fifth.

No one aside from Frazier had more than one hit for either team.

Little League

Union Carbide . . . . . 5
Optimists . . . . . 2

Morris Johnson blasted a three-run homer in the first inning to help power Union Carbide gained a 5-2 victory over the Optimists in the North State Little League yesterday.

The win moved the Optimists to 14-2 in the league, reducing their magic number over the second place Lions, 12-3, to two.

The two meet in the final game for each of the season late next week.

Union Carbide got all the runs it needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Billy Turcotte led off with a single and Kevin Fisher got a hit. Johnson then followed with his homer for the 3-0 lead.

Union Carbide added one in the third then got another in the fifth on a homer by Greg Davis.

The Optimists scored once in the second and added another run in the third.

Fisher led the Union Carbide hitting with two, while Nelson Galloway had two hits to pace the Optimists.

Wellcome . . . . . 11
Moose . . . . . 4

Dallas McPherson struck out 14 batters and hit a homer to lead Wellcome to an 11-4 victory over the Moose yesterday in the Tar Heel Little League.

Wellcome did most of the damage in the third inning, exploding for ten runs. With one away, Blake Stallings singled and moved up on a wild pitch. Judd Crumpler singled and then stole second. McPherson then walked, loading the bases.

Greg VanScoy reached on an error, scoring Stallings and Chris Brown singled in Crumpler. Stephan Higdon was hit by a pitch, driving in McPherson, and Joseph Norris singled in both VanScoy and Brown. Jason Browder walked as did Rip Perkins, forcing over Higdon. Stallings singled in another run, and Crumpler walked to force over another. McPherson's single scored Perkins and Stallings scored the final run on VanScoy's sacrifice fly.

The other Wellcome run came in the fifth on McPherson's solo homer.

The Moose scored twice in the second for an early lead, and added two more in the sixth.

Stallings had three hits, while Crumpler and McPherson each had two to pace Wellcome. Jay Mattox had two for the Moose.

Pitt Babe Ruth

Bethel . . . . . 14
Farmville . . . . . 3

BETHEL — Bethel gained a 14-3 victory over Farmville in the Pitt County Junior Babe Ruth League yesterday, clinching the league's championship.

With one game left to play, Bethel, now 9-0, has a two game lead over the second place team.

John Hobbs hurled the win, while Scott Rawls, Junior Huber and Lavone Shaw each had two hits to pace Bethel.

No one had more than one hit for Farmville.

S. Pitt League

Chicod . . . . . 6
Bombers . . . . . 5

CHICOD — Chicod gained a 6-5 victory over the Bethel Bombers yesterday in the Southern Pitt Little League.

Joey Johnson hurled the win, allowing only one hit while striking out 14.

No one on either team had more than one hit.

Chicod is now 6-7, while the Bombers are 2-12.

Prep League

1st State Bank . . . . . 8
Hendrix & Dail . . . . . 7

Chris Coble scored on Paul Kelly's error in the ninth inning to give First State Bank an 8-7 upset victory over Hendrix & Dail in the first round of the Prep League's post-season tournament.

In the other game, Shop-eze Foodland surprised champ Auto Specialty, 10-5, and will meet the Bankers in the winners' bracket Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. at Guy Smith Stadium. Auto Specialty and H&D collide in the losers bracket on Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

The Bankers scored first, getting a run in the second, but H&D struck back for two in the top of the third. First State tied it up with one in the bottom of the third, but H&D again went out with one in the fourth. FSB retied it in the bottom of the inning, only to fall behind again as Hendrix & Dail scored one in the fifth.

The Bankers went back out with three in the sixth, but H&D rallied for three and a 7-6 lead in the seventh. FSB then tied it up with one in the bottom of the frame.

In the ninth, Coble led off with an infield hit and Tim Ricks walked. Owen Cox then reached on a bunt single, loading the bases. Kelly's fly to right was dropped, allowing Coble to score the game winner.

Mike Wooten had three hits, while Eric Jarman had two for FSB, and Frederick Hurt had a pair for H&D.

Shop-eze Foodland 10
Auto Specialty . . . . . 5

Terry Warren had two hits and scored twice as Shop-eze Foodland, last in the Prep League's regular season, upset champ Auto Specialty, 10-5, yesterday in the first round of the post-season tournament.

Shop-eze advances to face upset winner First State Bank in the winners' bracket, while Auto Specialty faces Hendrix & Dail in the losers' bracket.

Auto Specialty gained the initial lead with two in the second, but Shop-eze matched that in the third. AS went back out with two in the bottom of the third, but that was it.

Shop-eze then scored six times in the fourth to put the game away. Mike Means led off with a walk and Scott Kendrick reached on a walk. Jamie Vincent also walked, loading the bases. Neal Bullock reached on a two-run error and Tim West also was safe on an error, scoring two more. Warren singled in West, and later scored on a passed ball for an 8-4 lead.

Shop-eze added two in the sixth, sparked by Warren's triple, for its 10-run total. Auto Specialty got one more in the sixth, as Rodney Harris tripled and was sacrificed over.

Travis King had two hits to lead AS at the plate.

Wilander Gets Recognition As He Plays Wimbledon Matches

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — A young English girl wearing the dark blue blazer of her school unfurls the color poster, looked at the young blond man stalking about the court, looked back at the poster, giggled and nudged her friend.

The object of her attention was young Mats Wilander, who at 17 already is famous and successful beyond his wildest dreams. He is fast becoming the latest in a string of matinee idols at Wimbledon.

"It bothers me a little bit, the recognition," Wilander conceded just minutes after escaping with his No. 7 seeding intact and a 7-6, 6-4, 6-0 triumph Thursday over Nduka Odizor of Nigeria.

The highest ranked men's player on today's card was No. 3 Vitas Gerulaitis, who took on New Zealander Bruce Derlin.

In other matches, Stan Smith, who upset ninth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador in a first-round match, met Hank Pfister; Chip Hooper, who scalped No. 8 Peter McNamara in the opening round, played Russell Simpson; fifth-seeded Johan Kriek of South Africa

20-year-old Czech, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, as did 27-year-old Joanne Russell, a 6-7, 6-3, 7-5 winner over No. 8 Mima Jausovec, 26, of Yugoslavia.

Wade, the 1977 champion, extended Marjorie Blackwood, Canada's No. 1-ranked woman, to 7-6, 7-5 before bowing out. Goolagong was ousted by Zina Garrison, an athletic 18-year-old from Houston who is being favorably compared to the young Billie Jean King.

Meanwhile, the real Billie Jean King played her 100th singles match at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club, scoring a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Claudia Pasquale of Switzerland.

Candy Reynolds, 25, went against the trend by upsetting fifth-seeded Hana Mandlikova, 20-year-old Czech, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4, as did 27-year-old Joanne Russell, a 6-7, 6-3, 7-5 winner over No. 8 Mima Jausovec, 26, of Yugoslavia.

The remainder of the top 10-ranked women — all 16 received byes through the first round — advanced into the third round Thursday.

Navratilova dispatched fellow American Beth Norton, 6-3, 6-3; third-seeded Tracy Austin stayed on the baseline and had to work before sending Alycia Moulton packing 6-4, 7-5; No. 4 Andrea Jaeger went the distance against South Korea's Duk Hee Lee 4-6, 6-4, 7-5; sixth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia stayed off Holland's Marcella Mesker 6-4, 7-6; No. 7 Pam Shriver defeated fellow American Kim Jones 6-1, 6-1, and No. 9 Sylvia Hanika of West Germany defeated American Paula Smith 6-2, 6-4.

On the men's side, Jimmy Connors got his first serious test from a resurgent John Alexander.

Connors posted a 6-3, 4-6, 6-1, ahead an inning later when Billy Sample doubled and McEnroe in the third round. Hostetler singled him home.

Reggie Jackson's three-run homer — his 15th of the season and fifth in the last seven games — capped a six-run rally in the fifth inning and Geoff Zahn scattered eight hits as the first-place Angels won 1 1/2 games in front of the Royals in the AL West. ## Hagler Bout Is Delayed

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — A fractured rib will delay but not cancel middleweight champion Marvin Hagler's title defense against Fulgencio Obelmejias.

Promoter Bob Arum said Thursday he hoped for an Oct. 2 date for the fight, which originally was scheduled for July 15.

"I would hope that we'll be able to go right back to San Remo (Italy) for the Obel fight," Arum said.

Dr. Nishan Kechejian said Thursday a bone scan showed Hagler fractured a rib in a bout with a sparring partner and the injury would keep him out of boxing for two to three months.

Kechejian said the broken rib in Hagler's lower chest area would take at least eight weeks to heal.

Hagler injured his ribs Tuesday evening in a training session with Bobby Watts.

Garvey Hitting, So Dodgers Winning

By The Associated Press
Back on May 18, Steve Garvey was hitting a modest 238 with two home runs, and the strikeouts were coming faster than the runs batted in.

Now, with 10 homers — seven in his past 19 games — and a recuperating average of .256, the Los Angeles Dodgers' first baseman has seen his game skyrocket into the wild "Dodger Blue" yonder.

"It feels very good now," Garvey says. "Obviously the first month and a half was a struggle for me. Now I'm driving in some runs, which I have to do to contribute."

Garvey homered, and he and Ken Landreux each drove in a pair of runs Thursday night to back Jerry Reuss to his ninth victory in 14 decisions, a 5-3 triumph at Atlanta. The defending World Series champions are now in third place in the National League West after a winning 10 of their past 13 games, moving within 5½ games of division-leading Atlanta.

Around the rest of the league, Philadelphia clobbered St. Louis 10-2, New York downed Montreal 3-1, San Diego edged Cincinnati 7-6 in 13 innings, and San Francisco got by Houston 4-3 in 10 innings.

"We wanted to get out front early and take the advantage, and that's just what we did," said Landreux, who drilled an RBI single in the first inning, then drove in a run with a single in the Dodgers' two-run fifth. Garvey homered in the fourth and rapped an RBI double in the seventh.

Reuss lost his shutout bid in the eighth when Claudell Washington doubled and Glenn Hubbard singled him home. Bob Watson's RBI double in the ninth, followed by a single by Jerry Royster, chased Reuss, and reliever Steve Howe allowed an RBI single to Washington before shutting down the Braves for his fifth save.

In the seventh inning, the Dodgers lost the services of Derrel Thomas for at least six weeks when, while running for Pedro Guerrero, Thomas broke his left ankle in a collision with third-base coach Danny Ozark.

George Rogers Admits Buying Coke Last Year

By The Associated Press
George Rogers, the National Football League's leading rusher in 1981, reportedly is one of more than a dozen present and former members of the New Orleans Saints who have told federal investigators they bought cocaine from a former Saints running back or a convicted drug dealer.

Rogers spent more than $10,000 last season to buy cocaine, the 'New Orleans Times-Picayune' the States Item said Thursday in a copyright story. The newspaper quoted sources as saying Rogers told a federal grand jury he paid for cocaine with personal checks on several occasions.

The story identified the sources only as being familiar with the federal inquiry into cocaine use by Saints players. The newspaper quoted its sources as saying Rogers was one of more than a dozen present and former members of the Saints who have told investigators they bought cocaine from either Mike Strachan, a former New Orleans running back who has been indicted by a federal grand jury on cocaine-distribution charges, or Joselyn Bruno, who was convicted of conspiring to sell the drug.

The trial for Strachan, who faces a seven-count indictment involving cocaine dealing and conspiracy to sell cocaine, is to begin next Thursday.

Camel In No-Hitter

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Campbell's Joe Stephenson threw a no-hitter to lead the Fighting Camels to a 2-0 victory over North Carolina in North State Summer League baseball action Thursday.

The lone fly in Stephenson's pitching performance were back-to-back fifth-inning walks. Stephenson, 2-1, struck out six.

North Carolina's Tom Reed allowed only three hits.

One of Campbell's hits was a leadoff double by Kelly Hoffman in the second inning. He moved to third on Tom Lynch's sacrifice bunt and scored when Rodney Stovall grounded out.

Goalby Takes Seniors' Lead
WINNIPEG, Manitoba (AP)
—To Bob Goalby, it's a feeling of accomplishment "if you hang in there and scratch back."
The former Masters champion recovered from a rocky start Thursday that included a one-over-par 37 on the front nine, and roared back with a five-under 31 for a 68 and a one-stroke lead after the opening round of the $200,000 Professional Golfers' Association senior tournament.

Shane Tops Putt Field
GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)
—Mike Shane beat out a large group of competitors in the weekly amateur contest at the Greenville Putt-Putt last night.
Shane edged out John Nichols in a sudden death playoff after they had been tied at the end of two rounds with 19-under-par 62.
Third place went to Mike Fittrell after a three-way playoff which also involved Robbie Moye and Duane Grace. All three ended up tied at 63, one shot behind the leaders. Moye shot fourth place in the playoff.
Gary Gilliam took sixth with a 64, while Thomas Sharpe was seventh at 67.
The Thursday night amateur tournament is open to all, regardless of ability.

After 48 years, Eli Bloom finally found a good replacement not to run for District Attorney: Tom Haigwood.

Tom Haigwood is the kind of hardworking man that Eli Bloom thinks would make a good replacement for him in the job he loves.

And Eli Bloom ought to know: Tom's been Assistant District Attorney for over nine years. But hard work and good character isn't all it takes. There's staying power too. As a Pitt County native, Tom views election to District Attorney as a career move. Not a stepping stone to other offices. Vote for Thomas D. Haigwood for District Attorney. He's got what it takes.

Paid for by the Committee to Elect
Thomas D. Haigwood, Eli Bloom, Treasurer.

Life As It's Lived

It's Too Late Now For Cleaning Up The Act

By Gail Michaels

For two years I have run around with a woman who shaved her toes and wiped the water spots off her glasses, who regularly propositioned my husband over the phone, and who would show up on my doorstep for morning coffee dressed in anything from a black negligee and red mules to jogging pants and her husband's ancient velour bathrobe. Is it any wonder then that I worried about cleaning up my act when I found that I had moved next door to the wife of a Baptist minister?

Initially, although friendly, we were both reserved. But Meg, with her unflinching instincts, knew how to break the ice. She took it upon herself to give the minister's son a lesson in biology.

"Well, I thought you ought to know," his mother told me, "that Meg has been teaching Mark the facts of life."

If she had been sitting there in a nightgown turned inside out, I would have known how to respond. I would not have felt as if my insides were being twisted into a macrame wallhanging.

But she was sitting there in jeans and a shirt, calmly staring at me without even a hint at her opinion on the possibility of my salvation. "I'm sorry," I groaned. "I hope she didn't provide any illustrations."

"No, I think she confined herself to verbal description, blow-by-blow."

Meg's belief that sex deserves publicity dates back to age three when, accompanied by her father, she described to the checker at the supermarket the difference between men and women. Phillip didn't set foot in that store again for six months. Despite our remonstrances, she continued to air the subject at the most inopportune times, and Zachary's birth and the consequent increase in her store of knowledge only fueled her desire to spread the word.

So I should have recognized the familiar direction Meg's thought had taken when I overheard her attempting to convince Mark that fatherhood was a wonderful thing. His wide-eyed negative response had indicated extreme alarm.

"Babies are too much trouble!"

Remembering his reaction, I asked his mother if he had been traumatized.

"No," she said drily. "He didn't believe her."

I was relieved that I was off the hook to some extent. "Well, there's no harm done then, is there?"

"I don't know. You see, we were only as far as telling him that Daddy planted a seed, and for a long time that satisfied him, but after his little talk with Meg, he wanted to know why Daddy didn't hurry up and buy the necessary gardening equipment and prove Meg wrong. So maybe it's time he knew the full story."

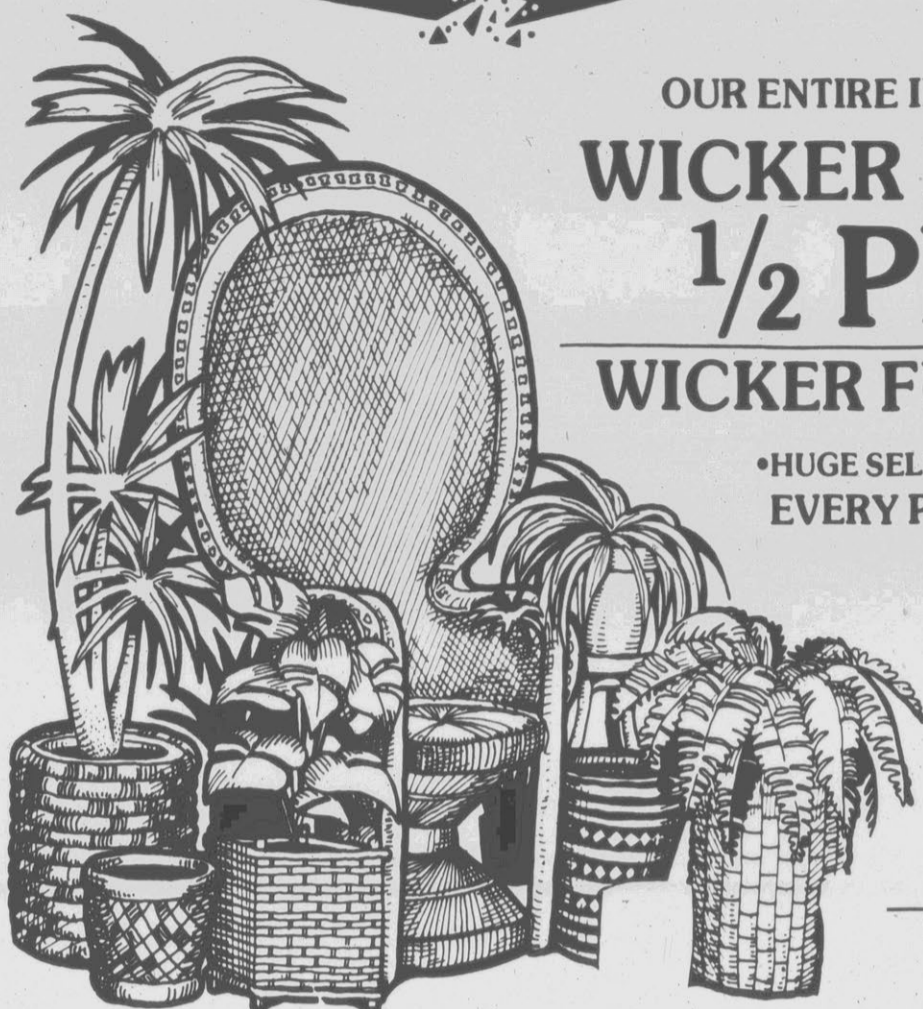

Just as I was assuring her that he most definitely would not hear the full story again from Meg, the subjects of our discussion came running in arm-in-arm, obviously reconciled. Mark leaned over and gave Meg a sloppy kiss. "We're playing marriage," he explained.

His mother rolled her eyes. "Just as long as they don't play honeymoon."

No Comment On Film Bid

HOLLYWOOD (AP) - Officials at Paramount Pictures are not commenting on reports in the Daily Variety that the studio has made an offer to buy Natalie Wood's last movie, "Brainstorm," from MGM-United Artists.

Neither studio made any official comment on the negotiations, which was reported Thursday in Daily Variety, a Hollywood publication. A Paramount spokesman who requested anonymity said independent producers also had bid for the nearly completed science fiction movie.

MGM-United Artists recently showed "Brainstorm" to other major studios and independents with the prospect of selling its interest.

The financially beleaguered company had decided not to complete the film, which was interrupted when Miss Wood drowned last November. The insurer, Lloyds of London, provided $3 million for director Douglas Trumbull to complete principal photography.

If Paramount or another film company buys the rights to "Brainstorm," Trumbull would have to add special effects estimated at $1 million. The film, which also stars actor Christopher Walken, has cost $15 million so far.

Portions of the film were shot in North Carolina.

Tonight: A Documentary On Women Miners

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - Reality-based programs are always looking for oddballs, freaks and carnival characters. But they overlooked some simple women with overpowering dignity who happen to work under mountains of earth.

They missed some REAL PEOPLE.

Tonight PBS tells their story in "We Dig Coal: A Portrait of Three Women." This powerful, moving documentary is about three women who fought the system in the courts and underground. They became the first female miners for the Rushton Mining Co. of Osceola, Pa.

And one of them, Marilyn McCusker, became a statistic. She was killed in a cave-in, becoming the first female fatality in an American mine. She loved the work, but was doing it only until her husband, a carpenter, could build their dream house. Before she got the job, she didn't know what coal looked like.

The hour builds dramatically and concludes with interviews with Mrs. McCusker's husband and the coal miner who saw her die, Harry Koptchak. He was her friend, but disapproved of women miners. "Their reactions aren't fast enough," Koptchak says.

Without a narrator, the principals and cameras tell an emotionally poignant story and capture an America that wasn't made pretty, but was made of solid foundation. Back-breaking work is the backbone of these dusty towns, like Frugality, Tippletown and Coalport.

Mary Louise Carlson

worked in the local sewing factory. She brought home less than $100 a week and didn't like the work to boot. She wanted to work in a mine.

For some, rejecting sewing factories for mine shafts might be a classic case of the pot calling the kettle black. But, for Mrs. Carson, it was an economic necessity. Her husband, a miner, had emphysema and had to quit after supporting the family for 25 years.

"I never thought of being a miner, you know, not till the hard times came," she says. Then she adds that taking care of her husband "makes me feel important and wanted."

So Jim Carson walks his wife to the pickup truck each morning and kisses her goodbye. He stays behind, and she gets lowered into the earth. "I didn't want her to go because I didn't... well, I guess I'm like a lot of men, I didn't think it was the place for a woman to be," he says. "And I still don't."

That's the attitude Mrs. Carson, Mrs. McCusker and Bernice Dombroski fought against. It took three years, but in 1977 they won the right to work in a hole in the ground and call it home.

As an economic sign of the times, the younger men were most gung-ho against women miners. And, as an indicator of self-imposed and self-perpetuating shackles, the women of the community felt women miners threatened their notion of femininity.

Says the wife of one miner: "I like to feel feminine... and that isn't feminine to me... to be grubby and dirty and to walk in the slush and mud and gunk all day long."

In its honest, straightforward style, this program makes a wallop of a statement about determination and willpower. As the Equal Rights Amendment approaches apparently certain defeat next Wednesday,

"We Dig Coal" manages to question some traditional concepts of what constitutes women's work.

Mrs. Dombroski, her face sooty and sweaty, talks about the time she caught her hand in a machine. She ripped two fingers, sliced her side and broke two ribs. She worked a full shift... then went to the doctor.

Obviously, Mrs. Dombroski, one of 16 children, doesn't discourage easily. "They did give us the dirty jobs. I enjoyed doing every one of them."

Studio Files

A Countersuit

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Warner Bros. has fired a salvo in the star wars between the studio and the two actors from "The Dukes of Hazzard."

The dispute began when John Schneider and Tom Wopat, who play the title characters in the hit CBS series, declined to return to work this season and filed suit May 24 for $25 million claiming they did not receive their fair share of profits from merchandising.

Warner Bros. and one of its subsidiaries filed a $117 million countersuit Wednesday alleging libel and breach of contract.

Warner Bros. called the actors' allegations "defamatory, unfounded and malicious" and seeks a permanent injunction preventing the two from working for anyone during the course of their existing contract.

Schneider and Wopat, in a statement released by a public relations firm, said Thursday: "The Duke boys believe they are right and will see Warner Bros. in court."

Giant Flag Needs $750,000 Clean-Up Ship-Naming Is Branded 'Farce'

NEW YORK (AP) — The world's largest flag needs a tanker-load of cleaning solution and some very expensive rigging, or it may never wave from the Verazano Narrows Bridge, the banner's creator says.

This version of the Stars and Stripes is 21 stories tall and longer than a football field. It's intended to replace a prototype that was torn to shreds by the wind when it was hung from the bridge during the nation's Bicentennial.

The second, better-engineered version was completed on March 22, 1980, and has been awaiting display ever since.

"We're not even close at this point," said Len Silverfine, president of the Great American Flag Fund. He disclosed there was "no appreciable progress in terms of funding for the rigging," which costs about $750,000.

Silverfine said the fund had only $25,000 "in the bank" and $125,000 in pledges.

"We still have hopes for whenever," he said, noting that 21 years went by before the Statue of Liberty was unveiled.

Inflation raises the cost of rigging $100,000 each year.

"My problem right now is I need to get it washed," he added.

The flag was soiled when laid along the runway of Andrews Air Force Base last year when the American hostages returned from Iran. Silverfine proudly declared that the two-acre flag was the first thing they saw.

But cleaning the flag, which is 210 feet by 411 feet, and weighs 7.7 tons, won't be easy. Silverfine said the job will require 18 forklifts and a tanker truckload each of detergent and rinse water.

The banner is stored in a cable anchorage housing at the bridge.

deep.

"The esprit d'corps of the silent service was legendary. Yet how can any sailor say with pride that his ship is the William H. Bates? How suitable is it when compared with names like Trigger, Trout, Croaker, Nautilus and Argonaut?" Morison writes.

The last attack submarine to be named for a fish was the Cavalla. After that, three subs were named for former congressmen.

Soon after an attack sub was named the Glenard P. Lipscomb for the Republican congressman from California who died in 1970, Morison had a telephone conversation with a career submarine chief.

"He wanted to know what type of fish the 'Lipscombfish' was?"

Morison recalled. "I replied it was not a fish, but a former member of Congress who was now deceased."

Nuclear attack submarines are now named after large cities while the gigantic ballistic-missile firing Trident submarines are named after states.

The names for aircraft carriers are considered individually.

Morison says one aircraft carrier was named the Eisenhower, but in speeches and written text, then-President Richard M. Nixon kept referring to the ship as the Dwight D. Eisenhower.

"Finally, the White House called the Secretary of the Navy's office and ordered the name changed to conform with presidential usage — although there is only one Eisenhower famous enough to have a ship named after him."

Broadway Featherbedding Is Expensive

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The longest running show on Broadway features a cast of no-show jobs and backstage card games. It's called featherbedding and costs theater-goers millions of dollars annually in higher ticket prices.

Scores of musicians get paid up to $30,000 a year for a song. These silent melody men, known as "walkers," often appear at the theater only to pick up their paycheck. There are seven at "A Chorus Line," eight at "The Pirates of Penzance" and 16 at "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

Under union employment quotas, each Broadway theater is rated for a certain number of musicians, according to its size and general use. On shows calling for fewer than the rated number of players, the extra musicians must nonetheless be hired and paid.

The "walkers" issue was brought to center stage recently when the producer of "Whorehouse" complained that musicians' featherbedding was costing her show $10,000 a week.

The union says the work rules prevent producers from replacing humans with recorded music or complex synthesizers. Many producers say the regulations are a waste of money.

"Anytime you have a situation where someone gets paid to do nothing, it's unhealthy," said Bernard B. Jacobs, president of the Shubert Organization, and a chief management negotiator.

The smash hit "A Chorus Line," on Broadway since 1975, is scored for 19 musicians, including the leader. But the Shubert Theater is rated for 26. Thus seven walkers are paid.

"Pirates of Penzance" has 16 players and eight walkers. "Whorehouse" has more walkers than players — 16 against only nine who actually work.

Max L. Arons, musicians union president, objects when his workers are called walkers. "These are people who are under contract. It's to protect the union so that they don't open the shows with piano players" or with records.

"A union isn't here to protect producers or to protect owners of theaters. A union is here to protect its members to see that they don't lose employment and that they get the fair share of what's due them in a show," Arons said.

Technically, all walkers are understudies and some occasionally do substitute. But Stevie Phillips, "Whorehouse's" producer, said that in the almost 4-year run of that hit, "many never showed up... There were about nine who never played a lick the whole time."

Without walkers, Miss Phillips said, she "would have lowered the ticket price at least by two bucks." Further, union work rules were "at least half" responsible for driving up ticket prices from an original top of $19.50 in the summer of 1978 to the current $30 price for an orchestra seat, she added.

Some of the more recent musical hits, such as "42nd Street" and "Dreamgirls" charge even more — $40 for their best seats.

Miss Phillips went public with her complaints after "Whorehouse" closed March 27 after a run of 1,578 performances. She said the musicians union refused to make concessions to compensate for shrinking audiences.

In late April, Miss Phillips reopened the show, in Boston, then brought it back to New York, but at a smaller theater, rated for only nine musicians.

Miss Phillips, by that time on what she called a "strenuous conscience-raising" crusade, announced she had "no intention of paying the walkers."

But the contract stipulates the number of musicians stays the same even if a show moves to a smaller house. So Arons told Miss Phillips that if she wanted her play she'd have to pay. When "Whorehouse" reopened on Memorial Day weekend Arons was still smiling.

Miss Phillips continues to play 25 musicians and still, only nine perform. This time the extra 16 have to show up at the theater to get paid, even if only to play cards and watch television backstage.

Arons claimed the dispute was nothing more than a publicity stunt for the July 23 national debut of the movie version of the musical which stars Burt Reynolds and Dolly Parton.

In addition to the walker provisions, the contract provides that:

— If an actor in a show plays an instrument, as Dudley Moore did when he appeared in "Good Evening," the producer must hire a musician at the understudy rate for a dramatic production. No acting ability is required, and all parties acknowledge that the musician will never appear for the star.

— A musician is generally prohibited from playing more than one instrument without getting paid an extra $65 per week, one-eighth of minimum scale.

— In any drama where a machine displaces one musician for more than four minutes, four walkers must be hired.

— Any musician required to play outside the orchestra pit and in view of the audience receives $25 extra a week.

— If the musician has to wear a costume — meaning anything other than a suit or tuxedo — he or she receives the on-stage fee, plus an additional $15. If the costume includes body paint, the costume fee is $24.

Musicians union rules also apply to dramatic productions, with the number of walkers determined by the amount of music played, live or recorded. Walkers in dramas are not paid at the full rate, however.

Electronic sound devices, such as a Moog synthesizer, are prohibited without permission of the union's executive board. "We're trying to protect to see that human beings and not machines are used. We're not a union of machines, we're a union of human beings," Arons said.

Countered Miss Phillips: "I have difficulty handling the fact that I paid 16 walkers for a period of almost four years. I think the unions have to rethink their position."

Opening lead: ?

If you feel that Zia Mahmood gets an undue amount of coverage in this column, it is only because the flamboyant Pakistani provides such excellent copy. Here is another example of his flair, from an international match between Pakistan and Poland.

Despite his good hand, Zia decided he had had enough when the bidding reached two spades. Obviously, he could expect little from his partner, so to compete to the three-level with such a porous suit was inviting trouble even though the vulnerability was in his favor. True, East-West can make a lucky four hearts, but the game is not biddable.

Although West was looking at four to five defensive tricks in his own hand, he did not rate his defensive prospects too highly. Since the idea of releasing one of his minor-suit aces on opening lead was unappealing, he decided that his best chance was to attack with his long suit. And if he was going to lead a heart, why not the king? That might even force an entry to his partner's hand should East hold the queen.

When the king of hearts won the first trick, it was obvious who held the ace. The rest of the defense was automatic. West shifted immediately to ace of clubs and another. Declarer won in his hand and tried a sneaky eight of trumps, but Zia wasn't having any of that. He flew up with the ace of trumps, led

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — MUCH RAIN MUDDIED OUR REIGNING MONARCH.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: M equals T

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

What's in a Name?
 Folks from far and wide are flocking to Fink, Texas, today for National Fink Day. Although the word "fink" became synonymous with "jerk" in the 1960s, it was once far more derogatory. "Fink" apparently derives from "Pink", a nickname for the Pinkerton detectives who were hired to break up the Homestead Strike in 1892. "Fink" was a fighting word, used by union members to denounce strikebreakers, scabs, and informers. Later, gangsters used the word to describe stool pigeons. But some Finks are born, not made. And today they hope to resurrect the family name with a Fink reunion, a Fink Hall of Fame and a new Fink of the Year.
