$25.4 Million Budget Adopted For County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday afternoon approved a $25.4 million budget for the 1982-83 fiscal year which begins July 1, and adopted a tax rate of 54 cents per $100 valuation — the same tax rate as was in effect this year.

The board resolved three items in completing work on the list of expenditures for the coming fiscal year — additional funding for the Greenville city schools, a way to finance the construction of a new middle school in Ayden and pay adjustments for about half of the county department heads to bring them in line with the average salaries paid by counties of similar population and property valuation.

For the most part, the new budget is in line with what County Manager Reginald Gray recommended earlier this month, following a series of preliminary budget sessions commissioners held with the heads of various county departments and agencies — some $15.9 million for the general fund (up slightly from the $15.8 million this year) which includes $740,000 for the governing body, administration and finance office (including the county's portion of retirement, Social Security and hospital insurance for all general fund employees and insurance on all county buildings), $52,959 for the Board of Elections, $552,000 for the tax supervisor's office, $105,200 for the tax collector's office, $19,100 for emergency management, $123,800 for the register of deeds, $38,500 for the planning department, $440,200 for buildings and grounds, $740,300 for the sheriff's department, $228,100 for the county jail, $172,614 for the fire marshal, $577,500 for the inspections department, $98,500 for agricultural extension, $40,900 for soil and water conservation, $221,200 for housekeeping, $89,100 for the communications center, $30,100 for forest fire protection, and $74,200 for rescue squads.

Gray's recommendations of $4.2 million for social services ($125,200 more in local money than the department received this year), $2.14 million for mental health (down from the present $2.56 million for the current fiscal year), $1.26 million for debt service (down from 1.29 million this year), $838,000 for solid waste disposal (under the $863,600 budget for 1981-82), and $237,200 for the county garage (again less than the $250,000 this year), and $562,200 for Pitt Community College (including $100,000 for capital outlay) up from $440,300 this year, also were approved.

However, commissioners finalized the health department budget at $1.4 million for 1983 — some $70,000 less than Gray had recommended, but still representing some $94,000 more in local effort than the $1.53 million budget for the current year (which included $200,000 in state funds that the department will not receive next year).

No across-the-board pay hike was approved for county employees for 1982-83 following a survey of more than 20

City And Utilities Budgets Are Adopted

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A $13.59 million "maintenance" budget, structured to fund city services for 1982-83 at their current levels, and a "hold-the-line" utilities budget totaling $50.29 million, were adopted Monday by the City Council.

The city budget, amounting to $13,592,093, is based on maintaining the present tax rate of 49 cents per $100 valuation, figured on an estimated local property valuation of $766 million.

The adopted city package, which includes $90,000 to support the merit program for employees and funds to pay the salaries for five new uniformed patrolmen for the Police Department, was adjusted upward some $77,000 from initial projections. Last year's budget totaled some $12.4 million.

City Manager Gail Meeks, who had initially recommended the addition of three new patrolmen, said the figure was increased to five as a result of eliminating four clerk-typists positions in the Police Department.

Mrs. Meeks, in presenting a balanced budget to the council for consideration this spring, said then that the package did not include money for any new programs nor did it recommend funding any new requests. That philosophy was shared by the council as it stressed continuation of present service levels.

In funding the merit program and other revised expenditures, the city was able to adjust revenues as a result of a $107,490 valuation revision for 1982 property taxes, $82,480 from community development, and $69,000 from the utilities franchise tax. However, fund balance decreases totaling over $157,000 and building permit decreases amounting to $10,000 offset a portion of the revenue adjustment.

The adopted package of projected revenues and expenditures includes: a general fund segment of $9,358,789; revenue-sharing trust fund of $705,317; debt service fund, $3,120,850; public transportation fund, $373,312, and Parking Authority fund, $33,825.

Appropriations from the revenue-sharing trust fund include $25,000 for the airport, $271,187 for Sheppard Memorial Library, a capital outlay of $290,274, and $32,000 for capital improvements.

The council commended Mrs. Meeks, who was named city manager in May, for her work on the new budget and also the department heads of the city for their attitudes in submitting conservative funding requests.

The Greenville Utilities budget, also prepared with the idea of maintaining present levels of service, reflected "minimum level" funding for the electric, water, sewer and gas programs, according to GUC Director Charles Horne. He said recently that funds were projected that will be "necessary to provide adequate service with limited growth."

Adopted appropriations for the four utility fund accounts include: electric, $39.9 million; water, $3.4 million; sewer, $1.6 million, and gas, $5.3 million.

Mayor Percy Cox expressed appreciation to Horne and members of the Utilities Commission for the way they "worked with the city" in the budget process. Cox cited the "fine cooperation" between the city and GUC this year.

Israeli Official Charges PLO Is Stalling And Lying

By The Associated Press

A senior Israeli official today accused the Palestine Liberation Organization of stalling and lying about leaving west Beirut, and warned this could bring "grave results."

He did not elaborate, but the implication was that Israeli forces might storm the encircled PLO stronghold in the Lebanese capital. Israel showered west Beirut with leaflets Sunday and Monday saying time was short and urging residents to flee.

The latest warning came after the PLO was reported to have rejected Israeli demands to surrender arms and ride buses to Syria, proposing instead to keep personal weapons and leave by boat.

The Israeli official, who insisted on anonymity, told reporters in Tel Aviv that Israel felt negotiations between the PLO and Lebanese officials were "not advancing as they should at this stage."

Israel had the impression, the official said, that the PLO "is not negotiating with their Lebanese counterparts in good faith. They are playing for time and lying about their intention to leave."

"We are not speaking of an unlimited time, and the behavior of the PLO can have very grave results," he said.

The official refused to discuss what "grave results" Israel was threatening. "Our aim is to get the PLO out of Beirut and Lebanon by diplomatic means and without bloodshed. If they refuse to leave, the Cabinet will have to consider what else to do," he said.

Meanwhile, the 10-nation European Common Market in Brussels today condemned Israel's 24-day-old invasion of Lebanon and urged both Israel and the PLO to leave Beirut, and Egypt sent an envoy to Paris as part of a new initiative aimed at resolving the crisis and bringing about an Israeli withdrawal.

U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib, credited with arranging a cease-fire that went into its fifth day today, told reporters in Beirut that "efforts are still under way" to negotiate the PLO's withdrawal. He refused to elaborate.

Besieged PLO leaders opened secret negotiations Monday to arrange details of their proposed "honorable" retreat from Lebanon, where for 12 years they have based their campaign to reclaim a Palestinian homeland from Israeli-occupied territories.

Lebanese officials and newspapers said PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, meeting with caretaker Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan and other officials, had agreed in principle to abandon his west Beirut bunkers, where an estimated 8,000 guerrilla fighters are surrounded by Israeli forces and their Lebanese Christian allies.

But Lebanese sources said Arafat rejected Israel's offer to bus the guerrillas to Syria once they were disarmed by the Lebanese army.

Instead, they said, the guerrillas suggested sailing most of their forces out of Beirut in ships flying PLO flags to an unspecified country if Israeli forces withdraw from the city's edge.

An Israel radio broadcast said the PLO also was demanding that departing guerrillas be allowed to keep their personal guns, leave their non-military institutions in Lebanon intact and post small Palestinian units in the Lebanese army. The radio quoted an unidentified Israeli official as saying those demands were unacceptable.

Lebanese sources said other PLO demands included Lebanon's reaffirmation that the PLO is "the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people," and a promise that the 500,000 Palestinian civilian refugees living in Lebanon will not be expelled.

In Washington, U.S. State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said the United States wanted to see deployment of the Lebanese army in west Beirut, an end to the Palestinian presence in and around the Lebanese capital, an Israeli pullback from the capital and redeployment on foreign forces in the area. Fischer would not elaborate on the last point, which could refer to previous administration statements that Syrian troops must leave.

Despite the intensive secret negotiations, the guerrillas kept issuing statements defying the Israeli invaders and vowing to resist until death if the Israelis stormed their enclaves in the western half of the Lebanese capital.

Israel responded by maintaining its hammerlock on west Beirut and dumping thousands of leaflets urging the 600,000 residents to flee. The massive leafletting raised more fears the Jewish state would order an invasion if negotiations drag.

"Time is growing short," the leaflets read in Arabic. "Every day the risk to your safety and that of your loved ones is increasing."

Israel has pledged that unless its troops are fired upon it will respect the cease-fire, giving Habib and the Lebanese time to negotiate a way to get the PLO out of Lebanon. The Israeli military command reported one violation Monday, saying Palestinian guerrillas fired mortars at Israeli troops in Damour.

CAST VOTES — Snowdie Wooten and Carrie Dixon cast their votes at the main fire station early this morning in the local elections being held today. Citizens cast votes in several races, including those for Pitt County sheriff, district attorney, Congress, the General Assembly and county boards. Polls will be open until 7:30 tonight. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Sluggish Start In Voting

Voting activity in Greenville and at several precincts in the county appeared to be off to a sluggish start in the first four hours of poll operations today, according to the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Greenville polling sites reporting early activity to the elections office included:

Precinct 1 — 49 citizens voting by 10-10:30 a.m.; 5 — 235; 6 — 85; 7 — 201; 8 — 140; 9 — 200, and 10 — 132.

Early balloting in the county precincts included: Arthur, 50; Ayden, 286; Bethel, 104; Chicod, 70; Falkland, 47; Farmville, 390; Fountain, 62; Grifton, 140; Grimesland, 38; Simpson, 78; Pactolus, 35; Swift Creek, 56, and Winterville, 269. The Daily Reflector will tabulate primary returns tonight and post unofficial results. Poll officials are reminded to call the newspaper at 752-6166 as soon as returns are available.

Initial Voter Turnout Over N.C. Is Moderate; 40 To 45 Percent

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Initial turnout was moderate today as North Carolina voters went to the polls to select congressional, legislative and judicial candidates, officials said late this morning.

At stake in Democratic and Republican primaries were eight of 11 congressional seats, 129 of 170 state House and Senate seats and three of 12 Court of Appeals judgeships, the largest number since the court was created in 1967. There were no major statewide races.

State Elections Director Alex Brock his office had conducted spot checks of several counties across the state by 11:30 a.m.

"They're having a good turnout, but that would only produce 40 to 45 percent if it stays that way all day," he said. "I haven't had anyone yet say they're having a large turnout. But that's not unusual in a primary."

Earlier, officials said they expected the unusually large number of races to draw about 40 percent of the state's registered voters.

Voters also were to cast ballots in county races and to consider five proposed amendments to the North

752-1336

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

ANIMAL CARRIER NEEDED

The Pitt County Humane Society has asked Hotline to appeal for the donation of a small animal carrier (small enough to fit easily in a car). Anyone who can help is asked to call Barbara Haddock, 752-9922.

RESPONSE WONDERFUL!

Response to the recent Hotline appeal for an air conditioner for Princess Garner, 2-year-old paralyzed child in foster care here while under the medical care of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, was "wonderful, just wonderful!" according to medical social worker Rhonda Stanley. Ms. Stanley said six different persons offered to donate a room air conditioner for Princess. Only one was accepted, of course. One of the persons whose offer was turned down chose, instead, to buy a large wagon for fun outings around the block for her. He did this while choosing to remain anonymous, Ms. Stanley said. There were also several cash donations. The only thing asked for and not yet received, Ms. Stanley said, is a group to be an ongoing sponsor for Princess. Anyone interested now or in the future may contact Ms. Stanley in the department of pediatrics at the ECU School of Medicine, 757-2733.

Council Endorses City School Boundary Change

The City Council on Monday night endorsed the concept of making the city limits coincide with the boundaries of the Greenville City Schools district.

By making the city school system boundaries match the city limits, the city schools would benefit from future city growth.

The endorsement action followed a joint meeting between the Greenville City Council and Greenville City School Board of Education.

The council's objective in scheduling Monday night's meeting was to learn first-hand from the school board how declining enrollment in the city school system is affecting the Greenville community.

Members of the school board indicated that continued declining school enrollment will result in lost revenues. Revenue losses usually require program reductions which would in turn reduce the overall quality of the Greenville school system, they said.

The result could be that more and more citizens might send their children to private schools or move outside the city limits, board members indicated. Such changes, the board would affect housing patterns and the city might experience a depression in residential property values.

According to Mayor Percy Cox, the council's endorsement of coterminous boundaries advances one of the goals of the City's Comprehensive Plan of "supporting the maintenance of a top quality school system for the Greenville area."

counties of similar population and property valuation, which indicated the pay of Pitt employees is in line with salaries paid by other county governments.

However, commissioners Friday took action which will give workers contributing to the N.C. Local Government Employees Retirement System from 2 percent to 4 percent more take-home pay — they adopted a resolution which tax-shelters the 6 percent of a worker's salary paid to the retirement system.

And the new budget includes a longevity pay program for county employees (estimated to cost $20,000 next year), and an incentive program — based on an evaluation of job performance — which could mean pay hikes of from one half to one step for up to 20 percent of the county work force (at a cost of some $60,000 in the coming year).

The new budget also includes pay increases — based on the salary survey — of from $1,476 to $4,084 per year for seven of the county's 15 department heads.

As usual, one of the hardest problems facing commissioners, and an item which represents the largest single expenditure of local tax dollars, was the question of city and county school budgets for 1982-83.

In his budget message to commissioners, Gray said "the Pitt County schools (and) the Greenville city schools ... requested considerably more funds for the new fiscal year than they received in 1981-82. It still amazes me that the citizens of the county are still not aware that it is the county which provides all the local financial support for ... Greenville city schools and the Pitt County schools.

"There is no way to provide all that has been requested" by the two school systems, Gray emphasized, "without a tax rate increase of 26.3 cents ... and the citizens of Pitt County would not stand for that."

The county schools requested $5.56 million in current expense money and $3.15 million in capital outlay funds, while the city system asked for $2.4 million in current expense and $541,200 in capital outlay.

Gray had recommended $4.76 million for current expense for the county system ($47,700 more than the present year's budget) and $407,900 in capital outlay (up $402,300) this year, which commissioners approved.

In addition, commissioners Monday agreed to seek a $370,000 state literacy loan to help fund construction of a new Ayden middle school, and possibly to finance construction of a lunchroom at Chicod. The school board has $125,000 on hand for the Chicod project which is estimated to cost $300,000 to $325,000.

For the city system, commissioners approved $2.02 million in current expense funds ($47,000 more than this year), and $268,200 in capital outlay (some $95,500 more than this year).

The school budgets approved Monday resulted from several meetings with representatives of both school systems — the latest last Friday.

At that meeting, city Superintendent Delma Blinson noted that the additional capital outlay money and a switch of funds in current expense and capital outlay line items would "allow us to hold our own next year."

Gray told commissioners and county school board members Friday that some $1.81 million, including funds on hand and the proposed capital outlay appropriation for 1982-83, are available for the Ayden project, which was bid last year at a net total cost of $2.56 million, including all alternatives (the gym and dressing rooms were not bid as alternatives last year).

As a result of the meeting, the county school board told commissioners by letter Monday that "in an effort to assure the beginning of the Ayden Middle School project," the county board will "submit as alternates in the bid" the gymnasium and dressing room areas — estimated to cost some $500,000 — and will transfer some $85,000 from current expense surplus funds to the capital outlay fund for the Ayden school.

The $85,000 in transferred funds, coupled with the state literacy loan — a 4 percent loan, should provide enough funds to complete the project.

The $25.4 million budget for 1982-83 compares with the 1981-82 budget of $24.6 million.

Gray noted that the 54-cent tax rate is expected to bring in $11.18 million in ad valorem taxes in 1982-83 as compared with $10.78 million this year because of a $77.73 million increase in assessed property valuation in the past year.

Begin Operation Sunshine

Operation Sunshine Girls Activities Program began last week with 63 girls enrolled and a daily attendance of 51.

Projects so far have included crafts, puff painting and painting objects made from homemade clay. Games have included ping pong, pool, jump rope, soft ball and some quiet games.

Trips to Carver Library and the University Nursing Home were taken. The girls put on an exhibition of double dutch jump rope for the patients of the nursing home. Two more trips have been scheduled for this summer.

The girls of the week are Kelly Smith and Traveda Hendrick.

Investigating Purse-Snatching

Greenville police were continuing their investigation today of a purse-snatching incident about 2:45 p.m. Monday at the rear of the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Sharon Maureen Mora of Route 4, Pittsboro, reported that a man snatched her handbag from her hand and ran as she was walking from her car to her room.

The purse contained an estimated $325 in cash, Ms. Mora reported.

Driver Struck A Utility Pole

Mickey Lynn Ballew of Raleigh was charged with leaving the scene of an accident following investigation of a 12:45 a.m. collision today on 10th Street, 81 feet west of the Forbes Street intersection.

Police said the Ballew car collided with a utility pole, causing $700 damage to the vehicle and injuring Ballew. Ballew was charged about 4 a.m. after seeking treatment for his injuries at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Hinckley Agrees With Jury's Verdict

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr. denies that he "beat the rap" last week when a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity in the shooting of President Reagan, according to a published report.

In a copyright story in The Washington Post today, Hinckley said he believes he was insane when he shot Reagan and three others and emphatically denied that he "beat the rap," as one newspaper headline had said.

"I'm not walking out on the street. I'm in a hospital with bars on it .... They act like I'm out free .... It's not that way at all," Hinckley said.

Hinckley said he was shocked by the jury's verdict — that he was so sure he would be convicted that he had prepared a four-page speech to read in court the day he thought he would be sentenced, the Post reported.

"I respect them (the jurors) now a lot for just saying, 'To hell with what the public said, we think he's not guilty,'" Hinckley said during three telephone interviews Saturday and Sunday from St. Elizabeths Hospital for the mentally ill, where he is confined.

Post reporter Laura A. Kiernan obtained the interview because Hinckley called her at the newspaper from the hospital. Hinckley's chief defense lawyer, Vincent J. Fuller, said Monday that the calls were made without the knowledge of Hinckley's attorneys.

In what were his first comments to the news media since his arrest immediately after the shooting March 30, 1981, Hinckley also said he likes the hospital.

"I like it here so far. Nobody bothers me .... They call me Mr. Hinckley," he said. He said that when he arrived at the hospital last Tuesday people began asking for his autograph.

Hinckley was found innocent of the shootings by reason of insanity June 21. Doctors at St. Elizabeths must submit a report on his mental condition to the court by Aug. 2 and U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker has scheduled a hearing Aug. 9 to determine whether Hinckley is entitled to be released from the hospital because he is no longer a danger to himself or others.

Asked if he thought he was ready to be released from the hospital, Hinckley, hesitated, then said: "That's a hard question .... 'I certainly would not be a danger to myself and I don't honestly think I've been a danger to society .... I certainly would not be a danger to the president, I'll say that for sure.'"

He said he thought there might be a problem with one person.

"I don't know if you've ever heard of her," he said, naming actress Jodie Foster. "I don't think there would be a problem. I don't think I would go stalking after her .... If we were in the same room, there might be some problem," he said.

He said that he has in his hospital room a picture of her taken from a magazine.

Extensive psychiatric testimony during Hinckley's trial showed that Hinckley was obsessed with Miss Foster, pursuing her with telephone calls and love notes in the months before he wounded Reagan, Brady, U.S. Secret Service agent Timothy McCarthy and now retired D.C. police officer Thomas K. Delahanty outside the Washington Hilton Hotel.

The 27-year-old presidential assailant said he feels sorry for Brady, whose wound to the brain has left him permanently disabled.

"He's suffered and his life is not what it should be .... I just want to say I'm very sorry about what I did. He was just at the wrong place at the wrong time ... and I just wish, I just honestly wish I could go back before

The 1982 festival will be held in Greenville Nov. 11-18.

School Project

Twenty-one high school boys and girls from Little Flower Parish in South Bend, Ind., spent two weeks this month working on the renovation of St. Gabriel's School in Greenville.

Calling themselves the "Kingdom Construction Company," the students painted the classrooms and made repairs in the Catholic school.

The $3,000 needed to fund the trip was raised by the 200 young people in the Little Flower Parish youth program. The youth slept in the St. Gabriel School auditorium.

Paul LeBrun, a seminarian at Notre Dame and director of the youth program at Little Flower, said it was the sixth time that such a venture had been taken by the youth of the parish — three to West Virginia and one each to Arizona and Colorado. The idea of volunteering time and work for service projects was the idea of the young people themselves, LeBrun said.

Canoe Race

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department will hold its annual Fourth of July Canoe Race on Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

All entrants must provide their own canoe and have Coast Guard-approved life jackets. Canoes must be manned by two people. No sails, motors or kayaks will be allowed.

The race will begin at the Falkland Wildlife Boat Landing and continue to the Town Common. Interested persons may call the Greenville Recreation and Parks office to register by Friday. Six trophies will be awarded. For additional information and registration, call 752-4137, extension 201.

Legal Bills For Indigent Costly

RALIEGH, N.C. (AP) — A state official says the cost of representing indigents in North Carolina has more than doubled in the last five years, reaching a high last year of $7.5 million.

"It is a matter of concern to us," says Franklin E. Freeman Jr., director of the North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts.

"We have tried to hold expenditures down, but the number of cases had increased almost as much as the amount of money expended."

A recent state report reveals that the cost of court-appointed counsel for indigent defendants in North Carolina's courts rose 25 percent in the last fiscal year.

The $7.5 million for court-appointed counsel in fiscal 1980-81 was nearly $1.5 million more than 1979-80, according to the annual report of the state Administrative Office of the Courts.

The report shows that the number of indigent cases rose 22.4 percent — from 34,734 in 1979-80 to 42,528 in the last fiscal year.

The report also documented a continuing rise in the number of cases filed in the state's trial courts. In the 1980-81 fiscal year, there was a 10 percent increase in Superior Court case filings and a 4.3 increase in District Court filings, statistics showed.

The state provides legal counsel for indigent defendants in criminal proceedings, judicial hospitalization proceedings and juvenile proceedings that may result in commitment to an institution or transfer to Superior Court for trial as an adult.

Six of North Carolina's judicial districts have public defenders located in Greenville, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Charlotte, Gastonia and Asheville. In other districts, judges may assign lawyers to represent indigents.

The amount of money spent to represent indigent defendants was 12.1 percent of the $2.9 million Judicial Department appropriation for the 1980-81 fiscal year.

For the third year in a row, total filings of traffic cases decreased, the report showed. The number of cases dropped by about one-half of 1 percent, from 777,264 cases in 1979-80 to 773,443 cases in 1980-81.

"One may speculate that these reduced numbers are related to changes in driving habits," the report said. "It seems likely that gasoline prices are prompting motorists to drive less and at lower speeds."

Asked about the report, Chief Justice Joseph Branch of the state Supreme Court said he had not studied it. He said, however, that the skyrocketing cost of indigent representation is "one of our real headaches."

Marriage Vows Said Sunday Afternoon

Carolyn Pinkston Lincoln of Greenville and Karl Walter Prinz of Fort Bragg were married in the chapel of St. James United Methodist Church Sunday at 2 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sherrill Pinkston Jr. of Greenville and the bridegroom is the son of Lt. Col. (Ret. U.S. Army) and Mrs. Merie Edwin Prinz of Georgetown, Tex. The Rev. Dewey M. Tyson officiated in the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of ivory voile over ivory taffeta. The gown was designed with an open square neckline with ivory lace trim on the empire bodice. Matching lace inserts were featured on the full belled sleeves and the full circular skirt. She wore a wreath of ivory silk flowers in her hair and carried a bouquet of ivory silk lilies accented with peach miniature roses interspersed with greenery and matching streamers.

Barbara Wright of Fort Bragg, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor. She wore a formal gown of peach linen with silk ribbon straps, an empire bodice with an insert of antique peach colored lace and lace inserts edging the full circular hemline. She carried a basket of spring flowers including ivory carnations, peach and yellow roses interspersed with greenery and matching streamers. She wore silk angel's lace in her hair.

Bridesmaid was Mara Lincoln of Greenville, the daughter of the bride. She wore a formal gown of ivory linen with an empire bodice gathered with ivory silk ribbons, antique lace trim on the neckline. The gown featured cap sleeves and a full circular skirt. She carried a basket of silk spring bouquet flowers like those of the matron of honor. She also wore angel's lace in her hair.

Serving as best man was Kevin Wright of Fort Bragg, brother-in-law of the bride. Ushers were Robert Sherrill Pinkston III of Philadelphia, Penn. and Lance Gudaron, of Fort Bragg.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Steven Vaughn.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Jesse Smith.

An outdoor reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and directed by Mrs. T.M. Kermon. Guests were greeted by Mrs. Hubert Smith. Punch was served by Mrs. Steve Landing and cake was served by Mrs. Edwin Brett, both sisters of the bride.

A after-rehearsal dinner party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Danny Gaylor at their home in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and is employed at Smith's Hearing Aid Service in Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from Georgetown High School, Georgetown, Texas and attended Southwest Texas State University. He is presently in the US Army, 82nd Airborne Division, Medical Battalion.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

Don't Give In To His Terms

DEAR ABBY: Please, I need help quick. I've been going with this guy, Harold, for three years. He's sweet and understanding, and it was no surprise when he gave me an engagement ring for Christmas three years ago. (I was 20 then and he was 22.) We discussed marriage but didn't make any definite plans for the wedding because Harold kept saying we shouldn't rush into anything.

A few weeks ago Harold said he thinks we should live together first because he doesn't want to get married until he knows what married life is like.

I am dead set against living with him or any other man. He says I'm old-fashioned, that everybody is doing it. I call myself "respectable," and I refuse to go along with his suggestion. I tried to give him his ring back, but he wouldn't take it.

What I want to know is this: Am I old-fashioned, and is everybody doing it? Or is Harold right?

RESPECTABLE IN MINNESOTA

DEAR RESPECTABLE: You are not old-fashioned, and everybody is not doing it! Hang in there, girl. If Harold doesn't want to marry you on your terms, somebody else will.

DEAR ABBY: I should have listened to you! So many times a woman will see her best friend's husband with another woman, and she asks you if she should tell her friend, and you always say, "No!"

Well, Abby, I saw my best friend's husband in a car with a girl. My friend was having some minor problems with her marriage at the time, but my big mouth blew the whole thing sky-high!

I wound up hurting her more than helping her, and I lost her as my friend. She has not spoken to me in over a year, and I miss her very much. I doubt if I will ever have a friend like her again. Please warn others to keep their mouths shut.

SHOULD HAVE LISTENED

DEAR SHOULD: Good people with the best of intentions often do more harm than bad people with evil intentions. And then, of course, there are the gossip-mongers, busybodies, self-appointed protectors of "morality" and any number of nasty-minded folks who have so little joy in their own lives that they take pleasure in relaying painful news to others. If I had to err in such a situation, I'd opt for erring on the side of silence.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 70, and he's in a rest home and will never be able to come home because of an illness I can't handle. Sam (not his name) is attractive and well-read, but he gets confused now and then.

I don't drive, so a friend I'll call Emma drives me to see Sam two or three times a week. Emma often goes to visit Sam without me, which is fine because Sam appreciates the company.

Now the problem. Lately when I visit Sam with Emma, he pays more attention to her than he does to me. He never takes his eyes off her, and the last time we visited Sam, the hello and goodbye kisses between him and Emma were much warmer than you'd expect between casual friends. I laughingly told Emma on the way home that I thought Sam had a crush on her. She said, "Oh no, we're just good friends," but I noticed she turned beet-red.

Emma is my age, late 60s, and she's never been married. I enjoy her company and don't want to break up the friendship. Should I be jealous?

SAM'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Yes, but don't be foolish. If Sam and Emma find mutual pleasure in an innocent flirtation, what's the harm? I think both you and Sam are lucky to have Emma's friendship. Don't spoil it by over-reacting. Keep a cool head and a warm heart. Emma's not about to steal Sam out of the rest home.

Vows Spoken In Birmingham

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Lea Anne Hill and Fred William Henders were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at four o'clock at Vine Street Presbyterian Church here. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Richard D. Carter of Sheffield, Ala.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Hill of Gadsden, Ala. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Henders of Melrose Park, Ill.

A program of wedding music was presented by Linda Houghton, organist and Melanie Claypool, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white lace over peau de soie styled with beaded ruffles and sleeves and a floor length train. She wore an illusion veil and carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink and white rosebuds.

Ginny Sorsby of Birmingham was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Lynn Cornett of Cullman, Ala., sister of the bride, and Laura Myers and Lea Garner of Birmingham. Rebecca Henders, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl.

The brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Doug Sawyer of New Milford, Conn., Kevin Letherwood of Tuscaloosa, Ala. and Dale Teruya of Atlanta.

A reception followed in the church parlor.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

At breakfast the other morning all I said was, "How come you don't know our college school song?"

My husband put down the paper and said, "What school song?"

"The one you never sing when we go back for reunions. I think it's disgusting that a man with three college degrees sits there and moves his lips like a chimpanzee."

"I get so few requests for it anymore," he said, going back to his paper.

"What's so hard about: Through mountains and through hillsides, Through meadows and through dell, In busy marts and hamlets, Where songs their stories tell?"

He said, "The words aren't relevant. Who ever heard of meadows, dells, marts and hamlets?"

"Those are romantic words," I snapped. "Be honest, what do you think of when you think of meadows, dells, marts and hamlets?"

He thought a minute. "Jayne, Icatessen, Fed and Hamburger."

"You're pretty cute, aren't you?" I said. "Someone went to a lot of trouble to give you a class song that painted a musical picture of tranquility and you can't even relate to it. I suppose you'd like a few 'whoa, whoas,' and 'baby, baby, babies.'"

"Look, I don't like to sing. I don't even sing 'The Star-Spangled Banner' when it's played."

"And why not, Mr. American?"

"Every time I get to the rockets' red glare, I get a pain shooting down the inside of my left leg."

"And to think men have died for that flag and you complain about a little pain on the inside of your left leg. But then, what do you expect from a man who refuses to sing in church?"

"Beverly Sills couldn't sing those songs."

"Beverly Sills would certainly try!"

He put down the paper again. "Let me guess. You're in a rotten mood. You're picking arguments out of thin air. You have a dental appointment, right?"

"You got it."

"What about the dog?" he said tiredly.

"I kicked him already."

Miss Hardee Entertained

Kimberly Leigh Hardee, bride-elect of Kevin Patrick O'Malley, was honored at a miscellaneous bridal shower Saturday evening at Rose Hill Free Church fellowship building.

The shower was given by aunts of the bride, who presented her a corsage of white daisies. Mothers of the couple were also given white daisy corsages.

A green and yellow color scheme was used. The refreshment table was covered with a yellow cloth overlaid with white lace and centered with an arrangement of summer flowers.

Debbie Adams and Leitha Willis presided at the register and greeted guests. Gifts were received by Paula Hardee and Lisa Willis, cousins of the bride. Sandra Jones and Ann McLawhorn assisted at the gift table.

Punch was poured by Barbara Halstead and Marian Hardee. Polly Hardee, Judy Jones and Hope Smith also assisted. The couple will be married July 17.

How Many Participate?

It's a hopeful sign, but maybe not as good as it might be, that black voter registration in North Carolina increased by 13 percent in the past year.

In terms of numbers, the listing rose from 399,581 to 435,972 — indicative of a rising appreciation of the importance of voting in the democratic process.

The figures pose a question. In round numbers, blacks added 36,000 voters to the lists. Do they largely represent the new generation of young adults grasping for their proper role in citizenship? The figures come close to approaching their numbers. The 1980 census showed only about half the state's eligible blacks were registered to vote. Such indifference has been costly in state and local elections because elected officials attune their ears to voters, not the silent majority or the silent minority. If one is to assume the greater portion of newly-registered voters is coming from the ranks of young adults, it is a plus-sign for the education system which seeks to instill responsibilities of citizenship at all levels, and for the State Board of Elections, which launched a registration drive in February.

As of June 1, North Carolina counted 2,258,019 registered voters. It's a figure to remember when voting time rolls around ... for instance, as today's primary takes place.

More than the selection of candidates is on the ballots. Five amendments to the N.C. Constitution are subject to the voters' will.

Just how many of the registered voters are going to actually vote? That's the real question.

Needed: Additional Jobs

The unemployment rate continues to nag at North Carolina's economy just as it does nationally.

The latest figures show unemployment rose in 56 N.C. counties and the state jobless rate went from 8.2 percent to 8.7 percent as of May. However, the rate dropped in 39 counties and much of the increase was attributed to students hitting the job market. (Pitt County's rate went from 7.9 percent in April to 8.4 percent in May.)

The month-to-month changes are not especially significant and there is hope that the recession is bottoming out. It is clear, however, that North Carolina has plenty to do to attract new industry and business to provide more employment.

THIS AFTERNOON

Muted Taxpayers

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
HOLDEN-BEACH — A group of property owners here thinks they've got a case of taxation without representation. They pay taxes in this three and a half-mile wide Brunswick County beach community, but they don't have any say in how the town is run.

The property owners are resort residents. They own cottages and land at the beach but live and vote elsewhere. They want the 1983 General Assembly to amend the state Constitution so they can vote in municipal elections in resort towns where they own land while not giving up their vote at home. All constitutional amendments must be ratified by the voters. The amendment would not affect elections for county, state and federal offices.

Taylor McMillan, a Labor Department official who lives in Raleigh and who is a descendant of the original Holdens, is heading the drive. He says cottage owners have had no success lately with the Holden Beach Town Council when it comes to zoning matters. He says the town is run by commercial and real estate interests who will rob the resort of its peace and quiet. The cottage owners don't oppose growth they just prefer that it be better planned. If they got the vote, they'd be able to exert influence on the town board, he says.

It all sounds fair and American. But the proposal raises some questions, McMillan concedes, which would be extremely troubling for legislators to deal with. First of all, there's the question of outside control. The 1,200 outside property owners could clearly out vote the 200 permanent residents and thereby initiate government from outside. McMillan's counter argument is that most of the outsiders wouldn't vote, anyhow, so no worry. At best, they might elect one or two members of the five member council.

What's to keep the

measure from being expanded beyond resort communities and used for double-voting across the state? McMillan says the amendment would have to be written to exclude any towns which weren't solely resorts. Towns like Southern Pines, which have large residential populations, shouldn't be included in the double-voting amendment, he said. A town would have double-voting only if a certain high percentage of property owners lived outside.

What's to keep people from voting in every town where they own land? McMillan says that if someone owns land in every town along the coast, he should have the right to vote in each town's elections. To keep the law from being abused, however, it might be restricted voting to those with houses, he says.

McMillan, a lawyer, says there are other philosophical questions that must be answered before the amendment is drafted. Should outsiders be eligible to hold office? Should town boards of election be required to offer absentee ballots when they are designated a resort town? They're not required to do so now, if they run their own elections.

The idea was first proposed by the Holden Beach Property Owners Association on May 29. The association hasn't decided yet if it'll pursue the matter. McMillan says they'll make that decision this fall after contacting other resort property owners' associations. A statewide effort would have a much greater chance of getting ratified.

If the issue ever makes it to the legislature, it no doubt will be controversial. On the one hand is the argument for government by local residents. On the other is that old cry of "No taxation without representation."

ODD LITTLE DISCUSSION GROUP!

BY JAMES KILPATRICK

Farewell To The ERA

WASHINGTON — At first glance, the Equal Rights Amendment seemed to be one of those propositions, like sound nutrition and good public schools, that no one rationally could oppose. In 1972-73, with remarkably little debate or public attention, 30 states swiftly gave the ERA a smiling glance and voted their approval.

Then the second glances came along. In 1974, only three more states (Maine, Montana and Ohio) came along. In 1975, only North Dakota. There were none in 1976. In 1977, by a two-vote margin in the state of Indiana ratified. That made 35. And at that point, more than five years ago, the movement ground to a halt. This week, still three states short of the constitutional three-fourths, the Equal Rights Amendment at last runs out of time. The ERA is dead.

The purpose of a post mortem examination is to determine the cause of death. In this instance, the causes were multiple. Some rested in reasoned arguments, some in political action, some in an ill-defined sense of custom and tradition.

The first section of the proposal would have written this sentence into the Constitution: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex." The second section said: "The Congress shall have power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article."

Critics argued persuasively — and as it turned out, convincingly — that the language lacked precision. Other constitutional rights, such as the right to vote or the right to jury trial, are specific. This language created a field of unbounded dimensions: "equality of rights under the law." The more the phrase was analyzed in hypothetical applications, the more the uncertainty increased. What equal right were we talking about? And what were these new legislative powers that would be vested in the Congress?

Opponents advanced this argument also — that the commendable aims of the ERA could better be reached tion in employment.

Political action, both pro and con, played a part in the ERA's failure. Proponents overplayed their hand with tactics that left an impression of blackmail or extortion. The pressure that was exerted to keep industrial conventions from meeting in non-ratifying states was a mistake. In Virginia, screaming proponents had to be dragged bodily from the House and Senate chambers. Meanwhile the opponents, skillfully led by Phyllis Schlafly, relied upon more productive political tactics.

Behind the constitutional arguments and the political battles was an uneasy feeling, hard to put into words, that the ERA was — well, unseemly, or just a little radical. The amendment, in this view, carried overtones of a unisex society. The chic, sophisticated leaders of the pro-ERA forces were out of touch with reality; they never really grasped the inarticulate opposition of many persons, both men and women, to what was perceived as a revolution in the traditional roles of man the provider and woman the homemaker. In rural districts of the South and Midwest, this apprehension — irrational though it may have been — had a profound effect.

What now? Many of us who steadfastly opened the proposed constitutional amendment, chiefly on constitutional grounds, have no quar-

by judicial proceedings and by selective legislation than by a sweeping constitutional amendment. During the 10-year period of ratification, the Supreme Court time after time nullified gender-based laws. On their own volition, many states repealed at least some of their more objectionable statutes. The federal government stepped up its enforcement of laws prohibiting sexual discrimina-

Haig's Fate Set In April

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A quick end to Alexander Haig's tenure as secretary of state was signaled no later than mid-April in confidential advice to Capitol Hill from national security aide William P. Clark.

A conservative Republican leader had complained to Clark that Haig was becoming intolerable on East-West questions. The response from Clark, totally unexpected by the complaining conservative, was to this effect: Don't worry about AI; he'll be gone in two months.

Clark did not quite meet that deadline. But his forecast was made well in advance of the issues that finally made Haig Reagan's first Cabinet dropout. Haig fell less because of interval disagreements on issues than as a result of his style — specifically his determination to be Reagan's "vicar" of foreign policy.

That Haig would not be around for the rest of the year was clear to the Reagan inner circle in early June when the president would not permit Jeane Kirkpatrick to resign as U.N. ambassador as suggested by Haig. The proximate cause of Haig's demise was Reagan's move for stiffer sanctions against the Soviet Union on the Siberian natural gas pipeline question in the secretary of state's absence and against his wishes.

But his fate was sealed, ironically, at the beginning of the year when Haig's enemy, Richard V. Allen, was forced out of the national security slot at the White House and replaced by Haig's friend, Judge Clark. That was thought to be a coup for Haig, cementing his vicarship.

But Clark was Ronald Reagan's chief of staff 16 years before he was Al Haig's deputy secretary of state. Insiders who know Clark's character predicted that once in the White House, he would not tolerate Haig's insistence on overriding everybody — including the president.

himself — on policy questions.

Haig's central role in the Anglo-Argentine Falklands crisis might have saved him for a few weeks. But his celebrated telephone blowup over Argentina with Kirkpatrick ended the stay of execution. At Haig's suggestion, she submitted her resignation to Reagan. The president refused it, a step interpreted inside the White House to mean Haig was gone.

The Haig-Clark friction grew more open during Reagan's European tour, leading to the president's June 18 stand in Washington against the yamal pipeline during a meeting not attended by Haig. The secretary was outraged that a step so antagonistic to NATO alliance partners should be taken in the wake of Reagan's trip during which there was no hint of tightening the screws.

Characteristically, State Department bureaucrats privately reacted to the president's decision by pledging that the sanctions ultimately would be watered down below the point of recognition. That attitude was what Clark was talking about when he predicted to the congressional Republican leader that Haig would fall. It happened last week when Haig pressed his unhappiness over what Reagan had done.

At the end, Haig was alone. White House chief of staff James Baker considered him a disruptive force from the first day of the administration. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger had clashed with him on almost everything. Even easy-going Vice President George Bush went semi-public this month in complaining about Haig's pro-Israel tilt. "Good riddance," said one senior presidential aide in reaction to Haig's departure, typifying the holiday mood at the White House.

Secretary-designate George Shultz will satisfy all

Strength For Today

MISSING THE MARK

Modern Christians shy away from the word "sin." It has a fantastical ring to it. It casts a shadow over many of life's pleasures. It is a headache, a heartache, and it disturbs one's peace of mind. Why not forget about it? Maybe it's not real, after all.

The trouble is, however, that it is very real. In the New Testament Greek, sin means "to miss the mark". It presents the imagery of an archer aiming at a target and bending his bow. The arrow travels through the air with great speed and force but does not strike the target.

We were not made for sin. We were created in the image and after the likeness of God. This means, therefore, that we are to be like him. But then something in us makes our aim bad, and we fall into folly and unrighteousness.

Sin is not liberty and pleasure; sin is servitude and misery. There is no glory or lasting satisfaction in missing the mark. — Elisha Douglass

Housing People Have A Case

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — During the past few years the housing industry has explored every possible argument for having its product considered an exception to the rule, a special case to be treated apart from others.

The house, it is said, has a special meaning in American lives. It is shelter, yes, but it is also said to be the anchor of the community.

Those who own homes vote more often, housing leaders argue. Homowners, they say, also have other positive attributes: they maintain properties better than do renters and their real estate taxes support schools.

The extreme of this argument is that without homeowners, this country couldn't maintain its democratic way of life. The housing industry doesn't see that as exaggeration either; it argues that way every day.

By extension, therefore, high interest rates are un-American, because high interest rates make it impossible for many millions of households to live in a house of their own and perpetuate the American dream.

The dream, of course, has become a right in the minds of many people in the industry. Well, not quite a right, but almost one. Since the 1930s, they observe, housing has been deemed a socially desirable goal worthy of special assistance from government. Seldom has that thesis drawn criticism. To the contrary, it has been underscored by subsidies.

So basic is housing to the American way of life and to the economy, argues one advocate of federal aid, that you might even say the industry's problems are cause rather than consequence of the recession.

Build more houses, he contends, and you'll relieve the unemployment problem; you'll put carpenters and plumbers to work at the site, and lumber mill workers and furniture makers to work a thousand miles away.

No matter, they say, that it would take subsidies to get the ball rolling; look instead at what you'd be doing for America. Can you have a strong America without housing? Can you have a strong economy without housing? Can a frustrated, poorly housed worker be a productive one?

Consider, they say, what has been deducted from the American economy in the first 38 months of the housing depression: 3.1 million home sales with a market value of nearly $220 billion. The figure, estimated by the National Association of Realtors, is through December 1981.

The arguments range widely. You might be surprised to know that the housing depression contributes to unemployment not only through layoffs but also by decreasing the mobility of families and workers.

The contention is that unrestricted mobility allows families to match housing accommodations with current needs, and enables workers to take advantage of job openings wherever they might arise.

"Empty nesters," or parents whose children have left home, find it more difficult, for example, to sell their house and move to smaller accommodations, thus denying housing for couples with children.

Diminished mobility, housing advocates will tell you, means a mismatch of workers and jobs openings. Employers become less willing to transfer workers because of high relocation costs. Similarly, workers who cannot sell houses, as in some Midwest areas, cannot seek jobs elsewhere.

Bad as this is, say housing people, it is but a part of the damage. The worker-job opening mismatch, demonstrated by the help-wanted ads, also frustrates the nation's quest for greater productivity.

What these arguments demonstrate, you might conclude, is that housing people have searched hard to prove their case. And few people, even those in the Reagan administration, can deny they may have a case.

The problem, though, is that other industries and groups also have cases and nothing can be done about theirs either, because of economic conditions and the administration's approach to correcting them.

Last week Congress sent a $3 billion interest rate subsidy plan to the White House, where it was vetoed and returned to the House. The House then reversed its earlier decision and voted to sustain the veto.

The administration contends that the best medicine for housing would be a lowering of interest rates through more basic economic reforms. A subsidy, it says, would only worsen the high interest rate problem.

To the editor:

I was saddened last week to learn of the new series of killings in El Salvador. These murders were unlike the others in that they were committed by United States-trained El Salvadoran soldiers, many of whom received their training at Fort Bragg in Fayetteville.

These 600 senseless murders also had personal significance to me for another reason. For the last two weeks I have been in Federal Prison, serving a 90-day sentence as a result of my conviction on charges stemming from a public demonstration at Fort Bragg opposing the United States' El Salvadoran policy.

My act of civil disobedience (or divine obedience, as I like to call it) was a simple one. I sat in the road and said I wouldn't leave until the United States stopped training Salvadoran soldiers.

Many will probably criticize my actions as being wasteful or ineffective, but I can only do as my conscience calls me. Jesus told us to love our enemies. How can we kill them and love them at the same time?

We live in a country where citizens' outcry can lead to change. I appeal to each and every one of you: "Study the issues and work for justice and change."

Town Of 474 Claims Bankrupt

By TIM TUMLIN
Associated Press Writer
OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A town that's been around ever since Oklahoma joined the Union is filing for bankruptcy, hoping that a federal judge will reduce a $200,000 judgment the city can't afford to pay.

"It is sad," said R. Charles White, mayor of Wapanucka, a town of 474 ranchers and pensioners about 75 miles southeast of Oklahoma City. "We made it a long time. Ever since statehood (in 1907)."

Two months ago the Wapanucka council voted to go under when a judge ordered that it had to pay $200,000 to the owners of a well the city had condemned to replace its ruined water supply.

"That kind of money is not here," White said in a telephone interview from his home. "We haven't got anything down here but a little cattle farming."

Attorney Don Wyatt of nearby Ada, who mailed the bankruptcy papers Monday, said Wapanucka's entire gross income is about $4,000 a month.

"The town is totally insolvent if it has to pay that bill," he said. "Under their current finances, I don't see how they could meet an interest payment, much less the principle."

Wyatt said if the city's legal debt were portioned to the residents "some of them would have been unable to pay and would have lost their property." Many of the town's residents live on welfare, he said.

The town's troubles began when two truckers hauling crude oil ran their rigs into the Wapanucka reservoir, contaminating the water supply in March 1979.

The City Council hired a lawyer to sue the trucking company, but the attorney never responded to motions filed by the company's counsel. Since he took over the Wapanucka bankruptcy two months ago, Wyatt said, he also has reactivated that case.

After losing its water supply, Wapanucka trucked water into town with civil defense tankers until officials found an artesian well nearby. The courts gave the town permission to condemn the property but warned officials they might have to pay damages to the property owners.

Wyatt said an appraiser estimated the owners' damage at $5,000. The city put up a $5,000 bond, borrowed money from the Farmers' Home Administration for water pipes, and ran water back into town.

When the case went to court, a jury awarded the owners of the well a whopping $84,000 and the judge in the case added interest and legal fees to make the judgment $112,000. Wyatt said. Interest on the judgment has since pushed the amount past $200,000.

The only way out, Wyatt said, was to ask a federal judge to reassess the judgment.

"He has the power to completely eradicate, reduce or redistribute debt," Wyatt said.

Shuttle 'Arm' Is Given Test

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's work-weary astronauts unlimbered the spaceship's 50-foot mechanical arm for its stiffest workout today, lifting a package the size of a desk in a test to certify the weightless limb for future satellite-hoisting assignments.

on Columbia's last two trips but not so extensively as today.

The multi-jointed celestial crane gingerly lifted the instrument-filled package and moved it about the bay to measure contaminants and gather data to assess the shuttle's impact on satellites and payloads in the cargo bay.

Arm maneuvers were the main item of business as Ken Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield began a third demanding day in space after imploring Mission Control not to bother troubleshooting "all the little problems."

Later, the pilot was to wave the parcel about as Mattingly triggers steering jets to evaluate how the satellite-loaded arm will be affected by the firings.

The first little problem of the new day was with the hand-snare of the arm. Within minutes, Mission Control directed Hartsfield to a backup control and he began the tests.

Disaster Ruling In Kansas Area

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has declared a major disaster in Kansas as a result of severe storms and flooding earlier this month.

The astronauts went to bed tired and Hartsfield suffered slight motion sickness on Monday. Today, Hartsfield's voice was booming, at wakeup and strong as he began to move the arm, hinged in the cargo bay, through a series of precise exercises.

Monday's declaration will permit federal funds to be used in the recovery efforts. The Federal Emergency Management Agency will determine later which sections of the state qualify for the special assistance.

Standing at a remote station in the cockpit, Hartsfield unlatched the arm from its cradling device and maneuvered it into position to lift an 800-pound monitoring package in the rear of the cargo bay.

Session Adopts Joint City, Utilities Policy

The City Council, meeting Monday, adopted a joint city-utilities policy statement on development promoting tax-base expansion here and encouraging land development within the city and extraterritorial limits.

The city and GUC agreed to coordinate the GUC water and sewer extension policies with the city's comprehensive plan and to recognize as the governing documents on land development the comprehensive plan and five-year work plans adopted by the utilities commission.

In addition, the city and GUC agreed "to require that requests for extension of sewer lines outside the city limits or requests for service from existing out-of-city sewer lines to serve residential and commercial developments must be accompanied by a petition for voluntary annexation or a petition for annexation to be filed at the earliest time the property to be served meets the statutory requirements for voluntary annexation."

The agencies also agreed to promote development of undeveloped areas within the city limits and areas adjacent to the city "by adopting innovative policies with incentives for private development" and by providing water and/or sewer service extensions, at no initial cost to developers, along undeveloped thoroughfares in the city thoroughfare plan. All of the provisions will be in accordance with council priorities and as GUC determines funds are available, it was stated.

of Haig's internal enemies who wanted no vicarates in Foggy Bottom. But he is not all that reassuring to Haig's anti-communist critics inside and outside the administration.

The policy statement also mentioned an agreement to utilize community development funds for new street construction and improvements, where applicable, including all utility system improvements.

Back in 1980 transition days, these anti-detentists had come down hard against Shultz and in favor of Haig for secretary of state. They have grown so disenchanted by Haig deferring to Europe and the State Department bureaucracy that many consider any change welcome relief. Yet, they still harbor reservations about Shultz as a cold warrior.

In other business, the council adopted a revised city classification plan relative to the assignment of classes to salary grades and

Whatever his true inclinations, Shultz — based on his Nixon-Ford Cabinet record — can be expected to fight his battles quietly on the inside and ultimately defer to the president's judgment. If foreign policy remains Europeanist and detentist, it will be Ronald Reagan's responsibility and not that of a vicar down the street. And that is clearly what Judge Clark has had in mind for some time.

rel with the broad proposition. Laws that continue to treat women unfairly must be subject to constant examination and revision. In the heat of the 10-year battle, it probably was impossible to undertake a dispassionate, methodical study of discriminatory statutes. Now that the battle over ERA has ended, such a study would be welcome. In a spirit of conciliation and constructive endeavor, both friends and foes of the amendment could agree that much remains to be done — and together they could get on with doing it.

KLSTM VLSRI RITNJVRKSVRAI RITRVNU JALLM RIURKNJVRAI

Yesterday's Cryptiquip — SPINNING TOP IS PLEASING TO A LITTLE ONE.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: T equals V

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 4 ♥ Pass
Pass Pass
Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

We venture that even an expert might go down on today's hand. The temptation to win a trick as inexpensively as possible can be that alluring!

After North's one club opening bid, South correctly responded in the lower-ranking of his two four-card major suits. North's hand revalued to 18 points in support of hearts, so he made a jump raise, and South's decision to go on to game was automatic.

West led his fourth-best diamond. Since South surely had a high honor in at least one of the black suits, prospects of defeating the contract seemed to hinge on a spade ruff. Therefore, East won the ace of diamonds and shifted to his singleton spade. He did not get a quick ruff as he hoped, but the play took a peculiar turn.

Declarer took advantage of the chance to win a cheap trick by running a spade to dummy's ten. South came to hand with a trump and ruffed a diamond high. He came back with another trump and ruffed his last diamond with dummy's last trump. But now he was faced with an insoluble problem — he had no way to get back to his hand to draw the last trump. If he led a spade, East would ruff and the defenders would take two club tricks. If declarer led a club, West would win either the first or second club trick and give his partner a spade ruff for down one.

The trouble was that declarer was a trifle too parsimonious in the spade suit. He should have risen with the ace of spades at trick two!

Declarer continues by ruffing a diamond high, crossing back to his hand with a trump and ruffing his last diamond high. But now there is still a low trump in dummy which enables declarer to re-enter his hand to draw the remaining trumps. Now he leads a spade to the king, and when East shows out declarer abandons the suit and turns his attention to clubs.

Sooner or later he will get back to his hand by ruffing a minor-suit with his last trump. Declarer then takes the marked spade finesse, and ends up with ten tricks — four spades, four hearts and two diamond ruffs.

FOCUS

Making Change
Tomorrow is the final deadline for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment. Although Congress has passed 32 Amendments, the states have ratified only 26 to the Constitution. In the early 1800s one that went unratified would have revoked the citizenship of any American who accepted a foreign title of nobility without approval from Congress. Another tried to stave off the Civil War by preventing Congress from interfering with slavery in any state. Congress continues to be inundated with proposed Amendments — favoring balanced budgets or school prayer, opposing abortion, busing, or affirmative action. Since 1789 over 8,600 new Amendments have been offered. More than a third of these were within the past 20 years.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the 26th Amendment?

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices were rising in active trading today, continuing Monday's rise.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was up 2.19 at 814.12 after an 8.85 gain Monday.

Gainers led decliners by 64 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

In an interest-rate development, Bankers Trust raised its broker loan rate to 15 1/2 percent from 15 1/4 percent.

In Washington, the House Domestic Monetary Policy Subcommittee scheduled a hearing for July 14 to discuss alternative targets for monetary policy. Monday, the Federal Reserve Board approved a change in policy designed to ease sharp fluctuations in the money supply.

MA-Com topped the NYSE most active list, down 7/8 at 17 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index of more than 1,500 common stocks rose 0.10 to 63.39. On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 2.15 to 215.11.

Volume on the Big Board was 20.80 million shares in the first two hours, up from 16.07 million shares in the comparable period Monday.

U.S. Getting Iranian Oil

NEW YORK (AP) — Iranian oil, banned from U.S. borders during the hostage crisis that ended in January 1981, is finding its way back into this country, into the U.S. refining system and into motorists' gas tanks.

Coastal States Marketing Inc., a refiner and marketer of fuel products and a subsidiary of Coastal Corp., was the first U.S. company to acknowledge having purchased Iranian oil and used it in the United States.

Robert Wells, a spokesman at Coastal's headquarters in Houston, said Monday in response to an inquiry that the company bought two cargoes of Iranian oil, amounting to "relatively small amounts." Some was resold and the rest used at Coastal's refinery at Corpus Christi, Texas, Wells said.

Coastal's purchases, which industry sources said were made in May and June, followed the U.S. government's purchase in April of a shipment that will be put in the government's Strategic Petroleum Reserve on the Texas coast.

Prior to the government's purchase of 1.8 million barrels for $53.1 million, no Iranian oil entered the United States since President Carter banned commercial trade with Iran eight days after Americans were seized and held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4, 1979. The hostages were freed 444 days later.

There are no legal restrictions against purchases of Iranian oil, but neither are there signs that other U.S. companies will quickly follow Coastal's lead, partly because Iranian government leaders have indicated no desire to renew commercial ties with the United States.

Philadelphia Teachers Authorize A Fall Strike

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Public schools could be shut down for the second fall in a row if the school district and its teachers don't reach agreement on a contract by then.

Teachers voted Monday night to authorize their union to call a strike this fall unless there is a contract settlement.

"One side is talking dollars and cents, and the other side is talking lives and careers and children," said Philadelphia Federation of Teachers President John Murray after the resounding "Yes!" voice vote at a meeting of about 5,000 teachers.

Murray added he wanted to continue negotiations to try to avert what would be the sixth walkout by teachers here in the last decade. Teachers were on strike for 50 days last fall, delaying the start of school.

The meeting followed an all-day series of private talks between negotiators for the 18,000-member union and the school board. Mayor William Green, who has proposed a four-year teachers' pact partly funded by a $100 million bond issue, attended the sessions.

The City Council so far has rejected Green's plan, although it authorized new taxes to raise $38 million for the schools.

The Legislature also provided around $50 million, but a fully funded Philadelphia public school budget remains about $40 million short. The school district has passed a proposed 1982-83 budget that eliminates nearly 1,300 teaching jobs, provides for no pay increases and eliminates other benefits.

"We are $35 million apart as of this weekend," Murray said. The city is "stringing us out because they think we are un-united and they are challenging us."

The city's 214,000 pupils in 267 schools begin their summer vacation Wednesday, two weeks later than normal because of last fall's strike, which President Judge James Crumlish Jr. of Commonwealth Court ended in October when he ordered teachers back to work.

At the time of last fall's strike, teachers said the city had broken a two-year contract by laying off 3,000 employees, refusing to pay a 10 percent pay increase and increasing class size from 33 to 35. The city said the cuts were needed because of a $100 million budget deficit.

Crumlish canceled the layoffs, wiped out the pay increase and ordered teachers to abide by the first year terms of the contract, which expires Aug. 31. He ordered contract talks to resume in "an atmosphere of mutual trust, understanding and respect."

The judge, who still hopes for a settlement after eight months of unresolved bargaining, warned that he would authorize appointment of a fact-finder today if all else fails.

Teachers earn an average $26,000 a year, with starting pay at $12,074 a year and rising in steps to $34,188 for a person with a doctorate degree. The main issues are money and job security.

Has No Plans To Warn Of A Faulty Converter

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. says it has no plans to tell up to 735,000 car owners that 1981 GM models they bought may have a faulty pollution control system that can cause loss of power and problems with starting.

GM publicly acknowledged the catalytic converter problem late Monday and said it had notified car dealers, but added it would wait for vehicle owners who have problems to bring their cars in for repairs.

GM says the repairs are made under warranty and notification is not necessary, a federal Environmental Protection Agency official said.

But Bill Sessa, press secretary for the seven-member California Air Resources Board in Sacramento, said "our concern is that people need to know in advance they have warranty protection for this kind of thing."

"If people don't know, they may pay unnecessarily for a repair job. Or they might be tempted to take it somewhere where the emissions system will be disconnected or bypassed."

The nation's No. 1 automaker said it would replace the faulty devices at no charge. GM denied the problem could cause "sudden loss of power," as reported in Automotive News, an industry journal.

GM has told the EPA it replaced 600 converters in June last year, 7,500 last December, and expected to replace 11,000 in January, the last month for which figures were available. The cost was $200 each.

"We have no indication that all (785,000) cars will suffer from this problem," GM spokesman Harold Jackson said Monday night.

Earlier Monday, Charles Freed, director of the EPA's mobile source enforcement in Washington, said GM had alerted the agency to the problem and would not notify car owners.

"It's not necessary because new car owners who are having problems bring the cars back under warranty, especially if it's under the 12,000-mile, 12-month warranty. That's GM's argument when pressed on it (whether to notify owners)," Freed said.

The automaker said the affected vehicles included certain 1981 passenger vehicles with 3.8-liter V6, and 4.4-liter, 5-liter and 5.7-liter V8 engines made by GM's Chevrolet Division.

GM has known of the problem since at least December, when it filed a request with the EPA for a waiver on emissions of carbon monoxide on the cars, Freed said.

A GM application to the agency Dec. 16 said the problem starts when ceramic beads in the dual-bed catalytic converters begin to break down, Freed said. The beads fall into the second level of the converter, clog it and push exhaust air back into the engine.

"As the exhaust air pressure increases, the car can't accelerate as well, it needs more gas," Freed said. "Ultimately, it will result in an inability to start the car."

He added that cars with low mileage are affected, but the problem is not a safety hazard.

The waiver asks for approval of single-bed converters. Permission is required because the change would boost carbon monoxide emissions above the 3.4

Blood Needs

The Pitt County Red Cross said today it will need about 4,425 units of blood from Pitt County collectors during the coming fiscal year to maintain an adequate blood supply for this area.

Red Cross spokeswoman Ruth Taylor said the first Bloodmobile visit for fiscal 1983 will be sponsored by WNCT-TV Thursday at the Moose Lodge from 11 a.m.-5 p.m.

She said hospitals in the Tidewater region of Red Cross Blood Services have seen an average increase of 12.5 percent in blood consumption over last year. The increased demand is directly related to an increase in surgery and the fact that many area residents no longer travel outside the region to seek medical treatment, she said.

Furlough Move Ruling Awaited

WASHINGTON (AP) — A turf battle between the Reagan administration and Congress is continuing as some 5,600 Government Printing Office workers wait to hear whether they will be forced to take off work July 6 without pay.

The administration argued in court Monday that it has authority to furlough a congressional agency's employees even though Congress has forbidden the move.

But unions representing the workers told a federal judge that the furloughs amount to a cut in compensation that only Congress can approve. Officials for both sides say they expect U.S. District Judge Oliver Gasch to rule before the end of the week on the union's request for an injunction forbidding the furlough.

Advice Ignored, Man Shot Self

PRESCOTT, Ariz. (AP) — A man defied last year in a re-election bid for the City Council fatally shot himself after addressing the council on budget matters.

Gus Patrick, who was in his 50s, appeared before the council Monday, discussing the budget, a possible suit against the city and patriotism. After saying his advice had been ignored, he pulled a gun from his pocket and shot himself in the head, witnesses said. He died within an hour at a hospital.

Patrick, who described himself as a property maintenance man, was elected to the council in 1976.

Obituaries

Harris
The Rev. Major Robert Harris, 62, of Rt. 1, Tarboro, died Monday in Wilson Memorial Hospital. A funeral service will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. S.H. Peters and the Rev. Ernest Bateman. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Harris was reared in Edgecombe County and worked for Long Manufacturing Co. in Tarboro for 22 years until his retirement in 1973. An evangelist, Mr. Harris served as pastor of the North Wilkesboro Pentecostal Church of the Living God for 22 months before returning to Edgecombe County this month.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Letha W. Harris; four daughters, Mrs. Bruce Thompson and Mrs. Gladys Riggs, both of Tarboro, Mrs. Lillian Faye Savage of Creedmoor and Mrs. Helen Brewer of Scotland Neck; a son, Steve Harris of Fuquay Varina; his mother, Mrs. Gladys Walston of Tarboro; four brothers, Louis Harris, Matthew Harris, Buck Harris and Austin Harris, all of Tarboro; three sisters, Mrs. Eva Collins and Mrs. Mary Alice Heath, both of Tarboro, and Mrs. Grace Brantley of Nashville; 23 grandchildren; and 11 great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7-9 p.m.

N.C. Turnout...

Carolina Constitution, including one proposal that would double legislators' terms from two to four years.

Polls opened at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m. The National Weather Service was predicting a very hot election day — highs in the 90s — and a 60 percent chance of rain.

Brock said staffers in the elections office were fielding questions and complaints from voters.

"This is the day people reserve for editorial comments, whether it's about the people running or that the amendments are hard to understand," he said.

Some voters in Forsyth County apparently were confused by the recent redrawing of state Senate districts, said Bob Blakely, Democratic chairman of Kernersville precinct.

"A number said they didn't think they could vote here," said Blakely, who canvassed about 500 voters Monday night. "They're confused. They thought they'd have to vote in Guilford County."

Brock said the elections office "never anticipated the restricting problem" and said the office had not received any complaints of confusion this morning.

Brock said earlier he expected about 45 percent of the registered Democrats to vote but the number could go as high as 50 percent. Of the registered Republicans, Brock said he expected about 40 percent to vote.

Claims Control Of Pine Beetle

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scientist has developed a substance he says could help control pine beetles — insects which destroy millions of acres of timber each year.

It was announced Monday that the new substance affects the action of pheromones, chemicals secreted by western and southern pine beetles that cause them to congregate on, and eventually kill, pine trees already weakened by the pests.

It was developed by Dr. R. Marshall Wilson of the University of Cincinnati.

Parker was a World War II veteran of the U.S. Army.

Surviving are his wife, Naomi Best Parker of the home; five sons, Austin Parker of Greenville, Calvin Parker, Frederick Parker and Major Parker, all of the home, and Daniel Parker Jr. of Norfolk, Va.; one daughter, Deborah Corey of Greenville; his mother, Fabbie Parker of Farmville; five brothers, Linwood Parker of Stanfords, Conn., John Parker of Baltimore, James Parker, Uriah Parker, and Robert Parker, all of Farmville; six sisters, Mable Davis of Stanfords, Conn., Doris Williams of Bridgeport, Sadie Ward of Washington, D.C., Mollie Gay and Ada Gray Harris, both of Farmville and Mary Lee Cooper of Farmville and nine grandchildren.

The family will receive friends tonight from 8-9 p.m. at Hardee's Funeral Chapel and other times at the home, 303 Church St., Greenville.

Saeed
Mrs. Olga N. Saeed, 81, died Monday in Duke University Medical Center.

A rosary will be said Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. William C. Frost. A funeral Mass will be celebrated Thursday at 11 a.m. in St. Peter's Catholic Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

A former resident of Greenville and the widow of John Saeed, Mrs. Saeed had made her home in Wilmington for a number of years.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Louise Feeney of Park Forest, Ill., Mrs. A. W. Wade of Springfield, Va., Mrs. James Easter of Annandale, Va., and Mrs. Robert Thorburn III of Akron, Ohio; six sons, Dan R. Saeed, Thomas A. Saeed and John Saeed Jr., all of Raleigh, Mitchell L. Saeed of Wrightsville Beach, Frank D. Saeed of Wilmington and Alfred E. Saeed of Fairfax, Va.; 26 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home Wednesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Parker
Daniel J. (Big Boy) Parker, 57, died Friday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Funeral services with military honors will be conducted Wednesday at 2:30 p.m. at Seven Holly Baptist Church at Joyner's Crossroads near Farmville by the Rev. Lester Moyer and Elder Jack Moore. Burial will follow in Sunset Memorial Park in Farmville.

Mr. Parker attended Winterville High School and was a member of Seven Holly Baptist Church. He was a member of Mann Order. Mr.

Pitt Takes Two From Edenton

Roger Williams hit a solo home run to provide Pitt County's American Legion team with a 4-3 victory over Edenton last night in the first game of a doubleheader, and Mike Kinley tossed a two-hitter in the nightcap as Pitt won, 9-1. The sweep kept Pitt's hopes of successfully defending its league title alive, but Wilson held onto a slim lead in the title race. Wilson, an 11-7 victor over Rocky Mount, closes out its season tonight against Snow Hill. A victory for Wilson, 14-5, would insure that team of no worse than a share of the title.

Pitt, 12-5, would have to win its remaining three games, starting with a trip to Edenton for a single game tonight. A loss by Wilson would give Pitt the chance, with three wins, to retain the title.

In the opening game, Edenton twice led in the contest, only to see Pitt tie it up both times before Williams' shot in the fourth inning finally decided it.

In the first inning, Edenton got one run. Preston Wood led off by reaching on an error and he moved up on an out, then stole third. He then scored on a wild pitch.

Pitt quickly rallied to tie it up with one in the bottom of the frame. With one away, Mont Carter singled and moved up on two passed balls. He then scored on Terry Locust's sacrifice fly.

Edenton went right back out in the second, scoring twice for a 3-1 lead. John Brooks walked as did Mike Hardy. Craig Dawson reached on an error, loading the bases and a walk to Joe Baker forced in Brooks. Hardy then scored on a sacrifice fly by Wood.

But that was to be the last run for Edenton.

Pitt meanwhile, came back with two in its half of the second. Williams opened with a hit, moving Williams to third. Warren stole up, and both scored when Bill Kittrell singled.

It stayed 3-3 until the fourth when Williams opened the inning with his round-tripper for the 4-3 lead that held the rest of the way.

Williams led the Pitt hitting with two, while Tony Lee and Hardy each had two hits for Edenton.

In the nightcap, Edenton got an early run off Kinley, but he settled down and held Edenton hitless after the first inning. He did walk seven while striking out eight in seven innings of work.

Edenton's Hardy led off the first with a single and he stole second, moving to third on a passed ball. He then scored on Tony Lee's single.

Edenton threatened twice more, leaving a runner at second in the second, and on second and third in the fourth.

Pitt tied it up quickly in the bottom of the first. Warren got a one-out single, and took second on a passed ball. He scored on Locust's single.

In the third, Pitt struck for the lead, scoring once. Warren again got the run, reaching on a single and stealing second. He scored when Emmett Walsh singled.

The fourth saw two more runs come across. Scott Galloway, who is now 12-for-17 in recent games, reached on an error, and was sacrificed up. He took third on a long fly, and watched Kinley walk. Greg Briley then tripled to score both runners.

Pitt added another pair in the fifth. Walsh singled and scored when Williams tripled. Williams came in on a hit by Galloway.

The final three scored in the sixth. Kinley singled and Briley got a hit. Both advanced when Warren arrived on a fielder's choice, and an error allowed both Kinley and Briley to score, putting Warren on third. He scored from there on Williams' sacrifice fly.

Briley, Warren, Walsh, and Galloway each had two hits to lead the Pitt attack. No one had more than one for Edenton.

Following tonight's game at Edenton, Pitt travels to Wayne County on Wednesday for what could turn into a doubleheader, if needed, — or a game could be played between the two back in Greenville on Thursday — again, if needed.

Seven Named To Pick Coach

Dr. Ken Karr, athletic director at East Carolina University, has officially released the names of those who will serve as the selection committee to find a new head basketball coach for the school.

The committee consists of those listed in The Daily Reflector last week, with one exception, and two others have been added to that list.

The committee will consist of Dr. Karr, who will serve as chairman; Earline Leggett, assistant athletic director for business; Jack Minges, Greenville businessman; Bill Jackson, Fayetteville businessman; Dr. Jon Tingstad of the East Carolina School of Medicine; Dr. Ernie Schwarz, faculty athletic committee chairman; and Dr. Robert Capps, Greenville dentist.

The Reflector earlier listed Karr, Minges, Schwarz and Capps as members of the committee. Another member, Jim Thornton of Fayetteville, apparently choose not to serve.

Dr. Karr said that the school would close off applications on Thursday, and the committee would then begin the screening process of over 60 applicants for the job. He said that the committee would weed the group down to an unspecified number of finalists, and that interviews with these finalists would be held after July 15.

He said the committee was aiming at an announcement of a new coach no later than August 1.

The East Carolina job became open earlier this month when Dave Odum resigned after three seasons to accept a position as assistant coach with the University of Virginia.

Track Owners Agree To Sale

FLORENCE, S.C. (AP) — "We haven't had any employee changes in the 14 years I've been here," said Keyser. "One man died, and he was replaced, but that's the only change."

The next event at Darlington is the Southern 500 on Labor Day, Sept. 6.

The Darlington Speedway has been a locally owned and run racetrack since it was built in 1950 by Harold Brasington of Florence, and was the first superspeedway in NASCAR racing. A superspeedway is primarily defined as a track more than a mile in length. The track was incorporated in 1951.

Wallace, Bob Colvin and J.S. Ramsey, who owned 105-acre track of land outside Darlington, joined Brasington as original investors.

Brasington had attended the 1933 Indianapolis 500 and came back to South Carolina determined to build a Southern speedway. It took him until 1948 to accumulate enough capital to get started.

Ramsay donated the land, with one stipulation: he did not want a fish pond on the property destroyed. That's why the third and fourth turns at Darlington were built so much tighter than the first two, creating a unique raceway.

Darlington opened its gates on Labor Day in 1950 with a 75-car field. After more than 6½ hours, Johnny Mantz, the slowest qualifier among the starters, took the checkered flag.

Keyser said approximately 150 stockholders, 95 percent of whom are from the Darlington area, sold their shares Monday.

Keyser said he doesn't expect any changes in the operation of the track, or race format. "When a business is doing as well as this one, you'd be foolish to make any changes."

Armitraj Plays The 'Gentleman's Game' In Wimbledon's Singles

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — The gentleman at the All-England Lawn Tennis and Croquet Club still refer to the bracket as "The Gentleman's Singles." They must have Vijay Amritraj in mind.

Ranked 35th in the world on the Association of Tennis Professionals computer, Amritraj chose not to meet the full Volvo Grand Prix commitment this year and so came to Wimbledon through the qualifying tournament at Roehampton, a cut-throat route that five-time champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden declined to drive.

Then Amritraj sat patiently through four days of rain to gain a five-set decision against American Jeff Borowiak in what one commentator characterized as the "most sophisticated" match of the day.

Finally comfortable on the grass surface, Amritraj steps to the baseline and the ball explodes off the end of his fluid serving motion. Polite applause follows — the crowds here remember him for all the right reasons: his conduct, his past heroics — and all is suddenly right with the gentlemen of the All-England Club and the tennis world in general.

"Everything revolved around my service," Amritraj said Monday after running down Pascal Portes 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, marking the first time he's bested the Frenchman in four outings. "There was too much pressure on his own service because if he didn't get the first one in, he knew I was likely to win."

Today, Amritraj took on 14th-seeded Roscoe Tanner. In other matches, third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis opposed unseeded Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia, sixth-seeded Gene Mayer played Larry Stefanki and No.7 Mats Wilander of Sweden met Staislov Birner of Czechoslovakia.

On the women's side, top-seeded Martina Navratilova squared off against 18-year-old Zina Garrison; No.2 Chris Evert Lloyd, the defending champion, met 15th-seeded Virginia Ruzici of Romania and 12th-seeded Billie Jean King battled No.6 Wendy Turnbull of Australia.

Top-seeded John McEnroe, the defending champion, and No.2 Jimmy Connors, seeded to meet in the finals of the men's singles, both advanced the fourth round of the rain-plagued event Monday with victories.

Australian Paul McNamee also reached the fourth round with a 7-6, 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1 victory over South African Kevin Curran.

McEnroe comfortably sent compatriot Lloyd Bourne packing 6-2, 6-2, 6-0, but Connors ran into trouble against another qualifier, Drew Gitlin of Encino, Calif., who took a set from the left-hander before grudgingly surrendering 6-2, 6-7, 7-5, 7-5.

Asked if he'd ever seen Gitlin, ranked 185th in the world, play before, Connors replied: "No, and it was not the time for introductions."

"But if you're a little off, like I was after not having played for a couple of days, it's a great equalizer to have someone who hangs in there."

Asked if he was worried at any juncture of the three-hour match, the former Wimbledon champion added: "I don't get worried. That's probably the best thing about my game. I don't play with fear."

Advancing into the third round Monday alongside Amritraj, a stalwart of the Indian Davis Cup squad, were sixth-seeded Gene Mayer, who outlasted Australian Brad Drewett 6-7, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1 in a match begun Saturday; No.11 Brian Teacher, who beat Australian Rod Frawley 7-5, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, and No.14 Roscoe Tanner, who throttled fellow American Fritz Buehning, 6-3, 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 with a serve that knocked down the net at one point.

Also gaining the third round were American Nick Saviano, who came from two sets down and fought off two match points before ambushing No.9 Brian Gottfried 6-7, 6-7, 7-5, 6-4, 6-1; and New Zealander Russell Simpson, who staged a blazing service duel against American Chip Hooper and emerged a 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-7, 11-9 winner in the longest match of this year's tournament.

"The service was very heavy — like a freight train, and it keeps coming," said Simpson, who came to Wimbledon at the top of his game after holding a match point against McEnroe in the recent tournament at Manchester.

"I tried to stand up to his first serve because the ball goes straight up until it hits the backstop," Simpson said. "The farther back you stand, the higher it goes — until it hits the backstop."

The 11-9 final set came because Wimbledon, like the French Open, does not use the tiebreaker to decide the final set of a match. For that same reason, No.16 Steve Denton of the United States was locked in a 10-10 fifth-set battle with Shalk van der Merwe when play was suspended Monday night.

On the women's side, defending champion Lloyd hammered fellow American Kate Latham 6-1, 6-1.

"With the rain, I think it will be a question of patience and who has the best mental attitude," said Lloyd, seeded second for an expected finale against Navratilova. "I'm quietly determined."

"When I read about players saying how confident they are, I think they are just talking for themselves, trying to boost their own confidence."

Third-seeded Tracy Austin overcame a lapse of concentration caused by the rain delay to beat Kathy Jordan 4-6, 6-1, 6-2.

Andrea Jaeger, seeded fourth, overcame a limping Ros Fairbank of South Africa 6-3, 7-5; ninth-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany stopped Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 6-2, 6-2.

Pete Rose Loses Hitting Streak; Phillies Take Over First Place

By The Associated Press
For Philadelphia first baseman Pete Rose, long hitting streaks were nothing new. But being in first place was something his Phillie teammates had not experienced in 1982.

Rose knew which was more important. "I'll get another one," Rose said. "The important thing is we got first place."

After once trailing the leaders by as many as nine games, the Phillies moved to the head of the National League East for the first time Monday as Steve Carlton blanked the St. Louis Cardinals on six hits, 1-0. The Phils, owners of an eight-game winning streak, took a lead of .005 over St. Louis and a half game over idle Montreal.

In other NL games Monday, Los Angeles defeated San Diego 6-4, Houston topped Atlanta 6-2, San Francisco bombed Cincinnati 7-1, and Chicago beat Pittsburgh 6-4.

Rose, who hit in a modern NL-record 44 straight games for Cincinnati in 1978, went hitless in two official times at bat to snap a 21-game hitting streak, longest in the NL this year.

Rose's hitting streak had tied the career record of seven 20-or-more game streaks set by Ty Cobb. Rose also had a 22-game streak that was split over two seasons.

Still, the night belonged to the Phillies and Carlton, who became the NL's first 10-game winner, although he would be joined later in the evening by Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela. Carlton, 10-7, picked up the 48th shutout of his career.

The Phillies picked up the game's only run in the fifth off loser Steve Mura, 5-7, when Bob Dernier singled, stole second, and scored on Gary Matthews' single.

Phils Manager Pat Corrales started the fleet Dernier, although the rookie center fielder was hitting .148 against St. Louis, hitless in his last 21 at-bats and 1-for-29.

"You get in a little slump and you get so much advice, so much input. You go home and think too much about what to do," said Dernier. "I was a little tentative (at bat), so, I told myself tonight, 'The first time you see the ball in there, swing.'"

Dernier did, and the Phillies were headed toward first place.

Dodgers 6, Padres 4
Steve Yeager knocked in three runs with a two-run homer and a single and Pedro Guerrero added a two-run homer to lead Valenzuela to his 10th victory of the season.

Valenzuela, 10-6, had relief help from Steve Howe, who took over in the eighth inning and earned his eighth save.

"I guess I was relaxing more. I hit a mistake and capitalized, which I haven't done much of this season," said Yeager, who belted his homer off loser Chris Welsh, 5-3.

Dodger first baseman Steve

Garvey, who has played in 1,020 consecutive games, had to leave the because of a pulled right hamstring and his status was termed "on a day-to-day basis" by the Dodgers.

Astros 6, Braves 2

Nolan Ryan fired a four-hitter for eight innings and struck out 10 batters, while Jose Cruz drove in two runs as the Astros defeated the Braves.

"Anytime I strike out in double figures it's due to the fact I have a good breaking ball and throw it for strikes," said Ryan, who extended his own major league record to 139 games with 10 or more strikeouts. "I had a good breaking ball tonight."

Ryan, 7-8, picked up his 196th career victory despite allowing homers by Biff Pocoroba and Rufino Linares. Bert Roberge pitched a hitless ninth inning in relief for Houston.

The game was delayed by rain for two hours, seven minutes in the first inning. Ryan said he was surprised the game was played.

"The mound was sloppy, but it didn't affect me," said Ryan. Giants 7, Reds 1

Renie Martin, 3-4, hurled a four-hitter and struck out seven for his first complete game since June 4, 1980, and only the third route-going performance of his major-league career.

"It was important to finish," said Martin. "But the main thing is to go six or seven good innings and win. The best thing was that our bullpen got a night off."

Martin got all the support he needed when the Giants erupted for six runs in the first inning off Cincinnati starter Charlie Leibrandt, 3-2, and reliever Greg Harris. Joe Morgan triggered the rally with a leadoff homer and capped it with a sacrifice fly. Darrell Evans belted his 10th homer of the year for the Giants in the sixth.

Cubs 6, Pirates 4

Chicago's Leon Durham, who has seven hits in his last eight times up, blasted two home runs and a triple and drove in four runs to lead the Cubs to a come-from-behind victory.

The two-homer performance cost Durham $1,000, but the Cubs' centerfielder didn't mind.

"I made the statement and I don't care how much it costs me," said Durham, who last spring and announced he would donate $500 to a different Chicago high school for every home run he hits at home this season. "I wouldn't mind hitting four tomorrow."

Dick Tidrow, 3-1, who hurled three scoreless innings in relief, got the victory for the Cubs.

Jerry Remy Didn't Want To Take Chance Of A Called Third Strike

By The Associated Press
One of baseball's adages says a walk is as good as a hit, but Boston's Jerry Remy proved otherwise.

With a 3-2 count, the score tied and the bases loaded with two out in the seventh inning Monday night, Remy fouled off two pitches.

"I wasn't going to take a third strike," he said. "I possibly should have walked when I fouled off those pitches, but I wasn't going to take any chances. I was going to swing at anything near the strike zone. In that situation, you just want something good to happen, to hit the ball hard and hope it falls in."

Remy hit the next pitch from Milwaukee ace Pete Vuckovich hard. It fell in left-center field for a three-run double and the Red Sox went on to snap a three-game losing streak by defeating the Brewers 9-7.

In the only other American League games, Oakland downed Kansas City 8-4 and Chicago edged Minnesota 8-7.

Remy's bases-clearing double and a two-run triple by Jim Rice two batters later helped the Red Sox salvage the finale of a four-game series with Milwaukee and regain a three-game lead over the Brewers in the AL East.

Remy said the victory was important as the Red Sox set out on an 11-game road trip. Catcher Rich Gedman agreed.

"This was one of those knock-down, drag-out affairs," said Gedman, who drove in one run and scored two. "The Brewers are playing well, but we stayed with them. We finally got some balls to drop in for us. It's a good way to start an important road trip."

Remy also drove in a run with a double in the fourth inning and set up the tying tally with a single in the sixth after Roy Howell's two-run homer had given the Brewers a 4-3 lead in the top of the sixth. Gorman Thomas also homered for the Brewers, his 18th.

A's 8, Royals 4
Rickey Henderson drove in four runs and Dwayne Murphy clubbed a three-run homer as Oakland handed Kansas City its third consecutive setback. Henderson, who has stolen 71 bases, tagged loser Larry Gura for a bases-loaded single that gave the A's a 2-0 lead in the second inning and doubled home two more runs in the sixth off Grant Jackson.

"Nothing Rickey does surprises me," said winning pitcher Rick Langford, who allowed 10 hits in 72-3 innings and was chased in Kansas City's three-run eighth. "He's one of the really great players. He can beat you in so many different ways."

White Sox 8, Twins 7
Rudy Law hit a three-run double and Steve Kemp rapped a two-run homer as the Chicago White Sox pounded Al Williams and Paul Boris for seven runs in the fourth inning.

Dennis Lamp was the winner, although he was knocked out by Gary Ward's three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth. The Twins added a fourth run Ron Washington's grounder and Kent Hrbek hit his 16th home in the bottom of the ninth before Salome Barojas recorded his 13th save. The victory lifted the White Sox into a second-place tie with Kansas City in the AL West, three games behind idle California.

Chicago Bulls Pick Westhead

CHICAGO (AP) — Paul Westhead returned to coaching in the National Basketball Association quoting Carl Sandburg and Henry David Thoreau, neither of whom had much to say about a fast-break offense.

Westhead, who achieved a .691 winning percentage — 112-50 — with the Los Angeles Lakers before being dismissed early last season amid a dispute with a one of his star players, Earvin "Magic" Johnson, was named Monday as coach of the Chicago Bulls.

Referring to his record with the Lakers, Westhead said, "What's done well is done well forever" — a Thoreau quotation.

Then, trying to define his objective with the Bulls, Westhead turned to Sandburg for inspiration.

"Chicago, as Carl Sandburg so aptly put it, is a city of broad shoulders. We would like to be a team with broad shoulders. Today is the start of building some strong shoulders for the Bulls."

Westhead could be shouldering a formidable task — trying to make a playoff contender of a club that finished fifth in the National Basketball Association's Central Division with a 34-48 record.

Bulls General Manager Rod Thorn isn't worried, though. "We feel very fortunate to get a coach with Paul's credentials," said Thorn, referring to Westhead's NBA title with Los Angeles in 1980. "He's been a winner at every level. We look forward to a long and successful relationship."

Red & White ..... 16

Bombers ..... 12

GRIFTON — Grifton Red & White rolled past the Bethel Bombers, 16-12, in the first game of the Southern Pitt Little League's post-season tournament last night.

Stacey Cole got the win for R&W, while Tyrone Edwards and Gary Eubanks led the Red & White hitting with two each. The Bomber hitting was led by Chuckie Whitehurst and Marcus Hines, each with two, while Johnny Sherrad added a grand slam home run.

Coke later added three more in the fifth, while the Lions added single runs in the fourth and sixth on solo homers by Moye.

Surles led the Coke hitting with three, while Gatlin added two. Moye's three hits led the Lions.

Pepsi-Cola gained a 9-4 victory over the Exchange in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday.

Details of the game were not made available.

Babe Ruth League

Coca-Cola ..... 8

Famous Subs ..... 1

Traye Fuqua banged out three hits to pace Coca-Cola to an 8-1 win over Famous Subs in the Babe Ruth League last night.

Coke got all it needed in the first inning, scoring five times. Curtis Perkins led off, reaching on an error, and Tyrone Barrett singled. Billy Michel walked, loading the bases. Fuqua doubled, driving in all three runners, and he scored on Joey Hallow's single. Hallow later scored on an error.

Coke added one in the second and two in the sixth. The lone Famous Subs run came in the fifth inning.

Hallow added two hits for Coke, while no one had more than one for Famous Subs.

Wachovia Bank .... 7

Planters Bank ..... 6

Wachovia Bank rallied for three runs in the fifth inning and pulled out a 7-6 victory over Planters Bank in the Babe Ruth League last night.

Wachovia scored first, getting three runs in the first inning. Planters came back with single runs in the second and third to pull within one. In the fourth, Planters added three more to take a 5-3 lead, but Wachovia pulled to 5-4 with one in the fourth.

Then, in the fifth, Wachovia got three to take the lead for good. Mo Matthews singled and Rick Outlaw doubled. Larke Wetherington singled in both runners, and Duane Roser walked. William Ward singled in Wetherington.

Planters rallied to within one again with one in the sixth.

Matthews and Ward each had two hits for Wachovia, while Gary Scott had two for Planters.

Little League

Coca-Cola ..... 11

Lions ..... 7

Tom Moye hit three home runs, but it didn't help the Lions, as Coca-Cola gained an 11-7 win over Moye's team in the North State Little League yesterday.

The Lions gained the initial lead in the game in the first inning, scoring once, but Coke tied it up with one in the second. The Lions then scored four more runs in the bottom of the inning on a grand-slam homer by Moye. That put the Lions into a 5-1 lead.

But it didn't hold. In the top of the third, Coke exploded for seven runs, taking the lead for good 8-5. Jay Surles led off with a single and was safe on an error on Derrick Hines' grounder. Eddie White reached on a fielder's choice and Walter Gatlin walked, forcing in Surles. Andy Miller reached on a fielder's choice that scored Hines but got White at third. Kevin Jordan walked, reloading the bases, and Howard Collins walked, scoring Gatlin. Tony Evans walked to score Miller, and Surles doubled, driving in the three remaining runners.

Worthy Expected To Be First Choice

NEW YORK (AP) — The Los Angeles Lakers will choose James Worthy of North Carolina with the first pick in the National Basketball Association draft, NBA chief scout Marty Blake predicts.

"I think it's a matter of personal preference," Blake said on the eve of today's draft, which started at noon EDT at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum. "I really don't know, for example, if the roles were reversed and Utah had the first pick, if they would take Worthy, but I think for the particular needs of the Los Angeles Lakers, that Worthy fills the bill." The Lakers didn't announce, as they did two years ago when they made Earvin "Magic" Johnson the first pick, whether they would select Worthy, DePaul's All-American Terry Cummings or Dominique Wilkins of Georgia. But it was a foregone conclusion that Los Angeles, San Diego and Utah would make those three juniors the first to be drafted.

All three teams say they would be happy with any of the three, but most observers have predicted a Worthy-Cummings-Wilkins selection order for the Lakers, Clippers and Jazz.

Blake, who does initial scouting reports for all 23 NBA teams, called Worthy, Cummings and Wilkins "three great superstars. I don't think you could go wrong taking any of them."

He said his prediction that the Lakers would take Worthy "doesn't mean that Terry Cummings or Dominique Wilkins may not in the future be classified as better all-around players than Worthy."

Although Blake called the senior class "a good crop, with as many as 20 big guards that could go in the first two rounds," the 1982 draft could be remembered as the "Year of the Underclassman."

Dallas, which picks fourth, traded its starting center of last year, Wayne Cooper, and a future draft choice to Portland Monday for guard Kelvin Ransey. This apparently opened the way for the Mavericks to take still another junior, Texas center LaSalle Thompson.

Dallas reportedly also was considering Bill Garnett, a 6-9 senior from Wyoming; and Trent Tucker, a 6-5 senior guard from Minnesota.

Other underclassmen expected to be drafted by one of the first 12 teams are 6-7 forward Clark Kellogg of Ohio State, 6-8 forward Cliff Levingston of Wichita State and 6-3 All-American guard Quintin Dailey of San Francisco.

Two other juniors who probably will go in the first two rounds are guards Rob Williams of Houston and John Bagley of Boston College.

Other top seniors are centers Wallace Bryant of San Francisco and Mark McNamara of California, forwards Scott Hastings of Arkansas, All-American Kevin Magee of California-Irvine, Mitchell Anderson and David Thirkill of Bradley, Eddie Phillips of Alabama, Ricky Frazier of Missouri and Terry Teagle of Baylor and guards Paul Pressey of Tulsa, Lester Conner of Oregon State, Lafayette Lever of Arizona State, All-American Eric Floyd of Georgetown and Ricky Pierce of Rice.

Los Angeles got the No. 1 choice by trading for Cleveland's pick and then winning a coin flip with San Diego. The Clippers and Cavaliers had the worst records in the two NBA conferences.

J.R. Richard Makes Return To Mound

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — J.R. Richard wasn't the pitcher he was two years ago before a near-fatal stroke felled him at the peak of his major league career.

The velocity that made his fastball one of the most awesome in baseball was not there. And, as doctors had feared, he was slow in responding to situations requiring him to field his position.

But still, Richard's long-awaited return to the mound — a trip many felt he would never be able to make — drew rave reviews Monday night from Houston Astros General Manager Al Rosen and opposing players who said they admired the 32-year-old pitcher's courage.

Richard, hoping to regain the form that helped him fashion a 107-71 career record with Houston, hurled four innings for the Daytona Beach Astros of the Florida State League in his first start since suffering the stroke July 30, 1980.

He threw 64 pitches, four more than team officials had determined he should, and said he felt strong enough to go another two innings. He left the game trailing the St. Petersburg Cardinals 3-1, but was taken off the hook when the Astros tied the game in the sixth inning of an eventual 8-4 setback.

The towering right-hander, nicked for three runs in the first inning, although he didn't yield a solid hit, gave up five hits, struck out one and walked two before a self-out crowd of 4,500 at City Island Park.

"I felt fine," Richard said, adding that he was not concerned that he hadn't overpowered the Class A opposition. "I'm not here to get strikeouts. I'm here to learn how to pitch."

"He's got to have fire in his heart to come back like he has," said St. Petersburg's Frank Garcia, who faced Richard twice and drew one of the two base on balls the right-hander issued.

"That really wasn't him out there. He struggled a little bit but threw me some good pitches," Garcia added. "I think he had a real good idea of what he wanted to do. But to get it done is going to take time."

Throughout his rehabilitation, doctors monitoring Richard's progress have expressed concern about how he would respond to batted balls in a game. Their concern proved well founded, although both Rosen and Richard played down the right-hander's handling of three plays which required him to utilize fielding skills.

Richard was slow covering first base on two grounders to the right side of the infield and was slow responding to a weak line drive hit back to the mound in the third inning. He did, however, manage to knock down the soft liner and throw the runner out at first.

Richard told a news conference after the outing that he feels his fielding will improve with time and that he was more concerned with the positive aspects of the appearance.

Rosen, meanwhile, said it was unfair to expect Richard's fielding to be up to par at this early stage in his recovery.

"His ability to field the position, I thought, took a giant step tonight," said Rosen. "The ball was hit through the middle. He knocked it down, pounced on it and threw it to first base."

"He kept the runners close after the first inning. The two balls that were hit — swinging bunts — I've seen major league pitchers mess those up. I didn't find any fault with that."

Rosen said he felt Richard's velocity had increased since spring training and the movement on his fastball was good.

"Overall, I was very delighted about the way he threw the ball," said Rosen.

St. Petersburg's Bob Meachum, who opened the game by beating out an infield single, said Richard's 6-foot-8 frame was as imposing as he had anticipated, but that he was not as nervous about facing the fireballer as he thought he would be.

"I didn't think about it anymore," said Meachum. "His fastball didn't have the overpowering velocity, but I didn't expect it to."

"I wasn't in awe of him because I know he's still in rehabilitation," said Steve Turco, Richard's only strikeout victim. "But he threw the ball well. I was really happy for him."

Richard, who has a lifetime 3.15 earned run average with 1,493 strikeouts, and Rosen said no target date has been established for the pitcher's possible return to the major leagues.

"It took a lot of hard work to get here," said Richard, who spent the past month in a special extended spring training program at Sarasota. "And it will take a lot of hard work to get back (to the major leagues)."

Rosen said Richard will move up to the Astros' Tuscon Class AAA team "when the time is right," but stressed the right-hander won't be rushed.

"I think J.R., for his own sanity, has to pitch and pitch quite a bit before he goes out and faces major league hitters," Rosen said.

Goldsboro Tops Pair

GOLDSBORO — Goldsboro shot a team score of 469 to edge Greenville and Rocky Mount by two and five strokes, respectively, in the second round of the Eastern Regionals at the Goldsboro Putt-Putt last night.

Greenville's Bobby Ippock shot a 29 under par 79 which included one round of 23, for medalist honors.

Greenville, which led by 22 strokes over Goldsboro and 27 over Rocky Mount after last week, now leads by 20 and 30 strokes respectively.

The regionals will skip play over the July 4th weekend, resuming play in Rocky Mount on July 12.

Poles Prove Their Worth

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Poland has emerged as a surprise contender for soccer's 1982 World Cup.

The Poles, who opened their finals campaign with a brace of goalless draws against Italy and Cameroon, clinched a second-round berth with a 5-1 triumph over Peru last week.

They proved that was no fluke with a stunning 3-0 triumph over Belgium Monday and moved to within one victory of a semifinal spot.

France also boosted its chances of reaching the Final Four by defeating Austria 1-0 in a second-round game in Madrid.

The top teams in each of four three-team groups advance to the semis.

Two second-round games were played today — England took a nine-game winning streak into its match with West Germany in Madrid and defending champion Argentina played Italy in Barcelona.

In Poland's victory, Zbigniew Boniek, the attacking midfielder, scored all three goals as Poland ripped to shreds a Belgian defense that had allowed only one goal in three opening round matches.

Boniek, playing up front, opened with a bullet-like shot in the fourth minute, followed-up with a 27th minute header and then rounded off a superb individual performance by beating the Belgian offside trap for a 53rd minute tap-in.

He was assisted on two of the three goals by Grzegorz Lato, the 32-year-old veteran, who Monday became only the 10th player in history to start in 100 internationals matches.

Lato, who played a role in almost every Polish attack, said the Poles were not surprised by their rapid improvement.

"When we arrived in Spain we hadn't played an important game with our regular team for several months, so it took us some time to get it together," Lato said. "I was expecting the team to show great progress."

Poland now needs only to defeat the Soviet Union on July 4, also in Barcelona, to advance to the semis for the first time since 1974.

France's victory, clinched by a stunning 40th minute free kick from Bernard Genghin, left the French needing only a victory over Northern Ireland on July 4 to clinch a semifinal spot.

The French beat Northern Ireland 4-0 in an exhibition match last month, but coach Michel Hidalgo said his team would not be overconfident when they faced the Irish.

"We do not make any comparisons with the game we played in Paris," he said.

City Ends Net Event

The Greenville City Tennis Tournament, sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, was completed Monday with over 30 people participating.

In the Men's Singles Open Division, Dan Weant defeated Henry Hostetler, 6-3, 6-4. In the finals of the Men's 35 and Over Division, Nelson Staton downed Ed Rheim, 6-2, 6-0.

In the Women's Singles finals, Pauline Bearden beat Ginny Weant, 7-6, 3-6, 6-1.

In Men's Doubles play, Jim Akers and Billy Melton joined Steve Holloman and Lance Searl, 6-2, 6-1. In Women's Doubles, Pauline Bearden and Gwen Deyton topped Esther Warren and Lia Moore, 6-2, 6-4.

The Mixed Doubles and Women's 35 and Over Singles events will be held August 6-8. Deadline for entries is July 30. Contact River Birch Tennis Center for more information.

BACK TO BACK

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It wasn't the same as lightning striking twice in the same place, but it was close.

In 1981, pro golfer Bob Eastwood hit a ball into a tree in the Tucson Open. It landed about 15 feet up in the palm tree and stayed there. But Eastwood's caddy was able to knock it down.

One year later, in the same tournament, Eastwood hit a ball into the upper reaches of the same tree. This time it was 30-feet up and unreachable. Eastwood had to take a drop.

Here Comes, There Goes, Captain Kangaroo

By NORMAN BLACK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Public broadcasting's announcement of a major new commitment to children's TV

BACK IN THE SPOTLIGHT — For the first time in a decade, veteran actress Claire Trevor is returning to the spotlight, appearing with Sally Field, James Caan and Jeff Bridges in the 20th Century-Fox production of "Kiss Me Goodbye." "Next April it will be 50 years since I signed a contract with Fox," says the 72-year-old Trevor, shown here during a recent party in her honor in Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto) programming was almost overshadowed by a development on commercial television concerning the venerable "Captain Kangaroo."

That stalwart of children's programming on network television will lose its weekday schedule this fall and shift to Saturday and Sunday broadcasts only.

"Captain Kangaroo," a fixture on CBS since October 1955, has long been the only daily children's program on commercial television. The network, which had shifted the Captain from 8 a.m. weekdays to 6:30 a.m. last January, said the change to weekends was a result of the network's desire to link its planned "Nightwatch" news program with "The CBS Morning News" to form a continuous seven-hour news service.

"Nightwatch" is scheduled to begin running later this year from 2 a.m. to 6 a.m.

"The CBS Morning News" will begin at 6 a.m. starting Oct. 4, wiping out air time for "Captain Kangaroo."

Meanwhile, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB), which is responsible for allocating federal funds to public radio and television, announced last week it would devote $6 million over the next two years to children's programming.

But Lewis Freedman, the director of CPB's program fund, said the money would be used to develop children's programming for weekly prime-time shows during the 1983 broadcast season and not for new daily programs.

"Given current resources, it would be extremely difficult for public broadcasting to fill the void left by the end of a daily children's program like 'Captain Kangaroo,'" Freedman said through a spokesman.

Filling the need for children's programming, however, was described last Friday by the chairman of the Federal Communications Commission as a special job for public broadcasters — one example of what could be an "unmet need in a deregulated competitive marketplace."

"Public television can help itself to those needs and interests that the marketplace cannot meet because the audience is not large enough to attract advertiser or subscriber support to generate service," Mark S. Fowler told public TV executives at their annual meeting.

The speech followed earlier indications by Fowler that he does not believe the government should require commercial broadcasters to provide a specific amount of children's programming.

Bob Keeshan, alias Captain Kangaroo, said in an interview Monday he was satisfied with the new arrangement at CBS "because we've been in a ridiculous situation. I lost the daily audience when they moved me to 6:30 a.m."

But he made it clear he doesn't like what's happening on commercial television, nor does he accept Fowler's message.

"I think it's an absolute disgrace that commercial TV hasn't served children better on a Monday-through-Friday basis," he said, adding that he didn't think the Reagan administration cared about children. "We have a chairman of the FCC saying the marketplace will take care of kids. Nobody is worried today that the FCC will take them to task for what they do or don't do for children."

"So we have less of a budget for public television along with commercial broadcasters who can just do what they please," he continued. "You've got people looking at annual financial reports instead of serving an audience. That's the reality of it..."

Keeshan said that along with the two hours of weekend time, he had negotiated the right to syndicate his old "Captain Kangaroo" programs to independent TV stations and cable systems. "I expect within a couple of years to have a wonderful system of old and new technologies that will make us very accessible," he added.

The 'Ballad Of Gregorio Cortez' - Different TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The final "American Playhouse" of the season offers something fairly foreign for today's television, but still vintage American.

It's a western. Well, more accurately a southwestern, since it's about a 1901 manhunt along the Texas-Mexico border.

And it's just as unusual by today's TV policy of underexposing minorities, since "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez" on public television tonight focuses on a Mexican who doesn't utter a single word of English.

The two-hour teleplay comes from a popular Mexican-American ballad called "El Corrido de Gregorio Cortez," which embellished a well-reported, statewide fugitive chase in an adolescent Texas wrestling with racial tensions and frontier justice.

Cortez is being hunted because he killed two Texas sheriffs. For 41 days and over nearly 500 miles, the wily farmhand uses every bit of his guile to elude a posse that numbers more than 300 local lawmen, deputies and Texas Rangers. All the time there's a $1,000 bounty hanging over his head.

Edward James Olmos, a veteran of numerous Hispanic roles on prime-time network TV, offers a fascinating portrait of a man on the run alternating between moods of confidence and confusion.

Olmos, as musical producer-director, also deserves much credit for a pulsating score that contributes to the excitement and mounting tension of the pursuit.

In fact, the entire soundtrack adds to the authenticity of this old-style western. Great care was given to capturing the sounds of horses, hooves, clanking bars and all the other details that give "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez" its periodic flavor.

The movie looks as beautiful as it sounds. The photography in Texas and New Mexico captures a stark and vast countryside, hard and soft at the same time.

The story opens with Cortez, on horseback, several lengths ahead of the cavalry. Sheer numbers and the sad-eyed vulnerability of the desperate Mexican immediately tilt the sympathy level to the underdog Cortez.

This seems the calculated intention of director Robert Young, who previously directed the winning film "Rich Kids" as he stresses the prickly racial climate of the period.

For example, in the Texans' haste to find Cortez, the president on Monday named another personal friend, industrialist Justin Dart, to a federal post.

Dart, a member of the president's so-called kitchen cabinet and chairman of the executive committee of Dart & Kraft Inc., was nominated to the board of directors of the Communications Satellite Corporation for a term expiring in 1985. His appointment is subject to confirmation by the Senate.

they indiscriminately shoot one Mexican. "That's one less Mexican we'll have to chase down," says one posse member.

Young tries to balance this prejudice by briefly introducing a salt-of-the-earth Texan, who doesn't know that Cortez is a wanted man. In a moving scene about camaraderie, this Texan befriends Cortez and shares his food with him.

The story line is advanced through a newspaper reporter, accompanying the posse, interviewing some of the searchers. One is the translator who had gone with the sheriff to question Cortez about horsetealing. That's how one version of the shooting — and a second gunfight — come out, and it's not favorable to Cortez.

Only later do we learn Cortez's version: He was acting in self-defense, and the first shooting may have been caused by a semantic misunderstanding. In this glimpse, Cortez is seen as a loving family man, and Texas justice — Texas Ranger style — becomes the criminal desperado.

"The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez" is a fitting finale for the first season of "American Playhouse." Although the series was soft in spots, it often managed to stretch television into something moving and provocative.

Except for sitcoms, the networks rarely tried comedy, but "American Playhouse" pulled it off with Kurt Vonnegut's "Who Am I This Time?" starring Susan Sarandon and Christopher Walken. In addition, no drama scaled higher than "Medal of Honor Rag," and no dramatic series surpassed "Oppenheimer."

"American Playhouse" will be back next season with 22 new productions.

Ailing Harry Mills Is Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Harry Mills, whose imitation of a kazoo launched the mellow-harmonizing Mills Brothers, is dead at the age of 68.

Mills, a diabetic, died Monday at his West Los Angeles home, said Henry Miller, the group's manager.

Mills had been bedridden since March. In October, he was hospitalized for surgery on a tumor, Miller said.

Mills and his brothers first performed in the early 1920s. Their last show was Sept. 27, 1981 in Atlantic City, N.J.

Over the years, they recorded and performed more than 3,000 songs, starting with "Tiger Rag" and including "Bye Bye Blackbird," "Basin Street," "Glow Worm," "Lazy River," "Cab Driver" and "You're Nobody 'til Somebody Loves You." Their biggest hit was "Paper Doll."

The brothers — John Jr., Herbert, Harry and Donald — began their career in their hometown of Piqua, Ohio.

"Harry always said they listened to Duke Ellington's band on radio when they were kids, so they got kazooos and went to an amateur show," said Miller. "Harry had forgotten his kazoo, so he started doing the sound with his voice, and that's how they got started with their act. People in radio thought they had an orchestra behind them."

They first appeared as "Four Boys and a Guitar" on a Cincinnati radio station while still teens, Miller said. In the late 1920s, they changed their name and were given the equivalent of a prime time television spot — a CBS radio show based in New York, he said.

After John Jr.'s death in 1936, the brothers' father, John Sr., joined them. He retired in the mid-1950s, and the Mills Brothers continued as a trio.

Surviving Mills are Donald, 67, of Los Angeles, Herbert, 70, of Las Vegas, and a sister, Dortha.

Mills' wife Ruth died 15 years ago. They had no children.

Efrem Zimbalist To Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actor Efrem Zimbalist Jr. has been appointed to the board of trustees of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts by his old friend, President Reagan.

Zimbalist, who starred for nine years in the ABC television series, "The F.B.I.," succeeds former Kennedy aide LeMoyné Billings. The board term will expire in 1988.

The president on Monday named another personal friend, industrialist Justin Dart, to a federal post.

Dart, a member of the president's so-called kitchen cabinet and chairman of the executive committee of Dart & Kraft Inc., was nominated to the board of directors of the Communications Satellite Corporation for a term expiring in 1985. His appointment is subject to confirmation by the Senate.

New 'Sister Act' In Farrell, Mercer

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "You've Come a Long Way from St. Louis," recited by Mabel Mercer as a poem against piano music, was a chief gem in the necklace strung in a "Listen to the Words" concert Monday evening at Alice Tully Hall.

Eileen Farrell, who was singing at CBS radio in 1940 when she first heard Miss Mercer, has had an important opera career since. She and Miss Mercer are "a brand new sister act" for the Kool Jazz Festival.

They chose wonderful songs, some familiar, some not, and audience members did listen to the words. Miss Farrell took some of her songs at extremely slow tempo — she has the breathing training to be able to do that — making the words take on importance. And she hasn't lost the ability to place a note just where she wants it. "Somewhere over the Rainbow," in her high register, was beautiful and true. The words she sang for "The Lady Is a Tramp" were jolly.

Two other large gems from Miss Mercer were "Christopher Robin Is Saying his Prayers" and "Oh for the Days of the Kerry Dancing." Miss Mercer sang some of hers — who thought she could still sing so well at 82? — and spoke some of them. Some of them were so poignant, such as "Once Upon a Summertime," that weepy sniffs were heard in the audience. And who thought she could dance off stage after she and Miss Farrell traded phrases in "S Wonderful"?

The songs they shared were special treats, Miss Mercer usually speaking the verses and Miss Farrell quietly singing the choruses. Our favorite was "When the World Was Young." The first half of the concert ended with a shared, ebullient "Wait Till You're 65" from "On a Clear Day You Can See Forever."

Lionis McGlohon, piano, Jay Leonhart, bass, and Bill Stowe, drums, were an important part of the concert's happy results. Instead of trying for equal partnership, they were committed to subtle support and accompaniment, vamping inconspicuously at any vocal retard or delay. They were the frame and mat, showing off a fine word picture to its very best advantage.

The Phil Woods Quartet and other alto saxophonists played at Carnegie Hall in an "alto summit" concert. The Sy Oliver and Count Basie bands played for dancing at the Roseland Ballroom.

The Assumable Mortgage Will Be Harder To Find

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
The assumable mortgage: It's been a boon for home buyers, a blessing for home sellers and a bane for lenders. And a ruling by the Supreme Court on Monday will make it harder to find.

Almost 1 million of the 2.3 million sales of existing homes in 1981 involved some form of assumable mortgages, according to the National Association of Realtors.
The assumable mortgage can cut hundreds of dollars from a buyer's monthly housing costs. This makes it easier for a homeowner to sell.

Here's a hypothetical example of how it works:
Suppose a family bought a $50,000 house five years ago, with a down payment of 25 percent or $12,500 and a 30-year mortgage for the balance of $37,500 at 10 percent. The monthly payment on the loan would be about $330.

The family wants to sell the house today for $80,000. The new buyer makes a 25 percent down payment — $20,000 — and must borrow the remaining $60,000. At 18 percent — a not-uncommon rate today — the monthly payment on the $60,000 mortgage would be over $900.

Suppose, however, the old mortgage is assumable and has an outstanding principal of $35,000. The buyer takes over the existing mortgage and borrows an additional $25,000 at 18 percent. The payment on the new mortgage is just under $380. The payment on both mortgages — old and new — is about $710. The buyer saves almost $200 with the assumable mortgage.
The assumable mortgage, however, is often a money-loser for the lender, particularly if the loan is an old one, granted when interest rates were much lower.

The lender can end up in the position of having to pay more to attract deposits than he or she is earning on outstanding loans. Richard T. Pratt, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, has called the old, low-yield loans the "albatross of the thrift industry."
To try to protect themselves against this kind of loss, many lenders have inserted "due-on-sale" clauses in mortgages in recent years, requiring the loan to be paid off, in full, when a house is sold.

In recent years, these clauses have spread and so have lawsuits challenging them. Almost 20 states now have laws limiting the enforcement of these clauses.
The Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which regulates savings and loan associations, ruled in 1976 that "due-on-sale" clauses in mortgages issued by federally chartered S&Ls — about half of the total number of S&Ls — could be enforced.

Courts in several states overruled the bank board, saying that state laws applied even to federally chartered institutions. The issue wound up before the U.S. Supreme Court in a case involving a Fidelity Federal Savings and Loan Association of Glendale, Calif., and three homeowners. On Monday, the Supreme Court upheld the bank board, saying that the board had the power to override state law in this case.
Ernest Leff, a lawyer for Fidelity Federal, said most existing mortgages issued by federally chartered S&Ls include "due-on-sale" clauses, and he said Monday's ruling means "the federal associations will be able to enforce the due-on-sale clauses in mortgages they hold."

The ruling does not apply to state-chartered S&Ls which generally are governed by state law. Nor does it apply to commercial banks. The comptroller of the currency has proposed allowing national banks — the ones chartered by the federal government — to enforce "due-on-sale" clauses even when state law prohibits them from doing so. The proposal, issued last September, is pending.
(S&Ls account for a little more than 43 percent of all residential mortgage loans; commercial banks account for about 17 percent; federally supported agencies for about 20 percent; other lenders for the balance.)
Legislation also is pending in Congress to make it easier for all lenders — state or federal — to enforce "due-on-sale" clauses.
None of the changes would apply to FHA or VA loans, which do not have "due-on-sale" clauses. The new adjustable rate mortgages also are generally unaffected because the interest on these loans already fluctuates with market conditions; there is less incentive for a buyer to "assume" an existing mortgage.
Bill Ellingsworth of the National Association of Realtors said the group did not know what effect Monday's ruling would have. "That's where our concern is," he said. "The worst scenario is that if it does away with assumption, it's going to damage an already-hurting housing market."
Ellingsworth said he did not know how many outstanding mortgages are assumable, but added that the 1981 figures showed 42 percent of all sales of existing homes involved some type of assumption — full or partial. In some cases, a lender may agree to let a buyer take over part of a seller's mortgage in combination with a new mortgage. The interest rate is higher than it would be with a full assumption of the original mortgage, but lower than on a new mortgage. The average interest rate on the sales involving assumptions was between 13 percent and 14 percent, Ellingsworth said.

Long Prison Sentence After A Suicide Hoax

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — A Rocky Mount man has been sentenced to 20 years in prison for trafficking 44 grams of heroin, after he contrived an elaborate suicide hoax to avoid facing trial.
Robert Lee Battle, 51, was sentenced Monday by Superior Court Judge Charles B. Winberry, after Battle pleaded guilty in a plea bargain.

Battle disappeared May 16 — one day before his scheduled trial and his 51st birthday. He became the object of an East Coast manhunt. But he was of particular interest to Jacksonville bondsman Alexander Foxe, who had bonded Battle for $58,600.
One the night of May 16, Battle abandoned his truck on a bridge over the Roanoke River beside a pile of his clothes.
"All indications are he jumped into the river; however, we don't have a body," Northampton Sheriff Bob Corey said the next day during dragging of the river.
Battle's relatives told the sheriff that Battle had been depressed and had threatened suicide, Corey said. Battle had told the relatives the location of the bridge and had left a farewell note to his wife, Foxe said.
Foxe said he became "inquisitive, because if a person is going to commit suicide, they don't advertise it."
In a parallel investigation, Rocky Mount Police detective Warren H. Harper was also skeptical because Battle "can't write. How could he write a suicide note?"
Foxe said he learned that a voodoo charm and an expensive wristwatch Battle typically wore had not been left on the bridge. A brand-new, gray pinstripe suit that neighbors said Battle had hidden in his tool shed was missing, he said.
The investigation moved forward when Foxe tracked Battle's son, Larry Harrison, who had also missed the May 17 court date, to New York. The son was arrested after Foxe lured him to a parking lot, Foxe said.
Foxe said he and an associate traveled "more than 10,000 miles" and posed as janitors, gardeners and painters in an effort to find Battle.

After catching up with Battle by telephone, Foxe told him that his wife was scheduled for trial and would have to appear in court alone. Battle, his sympathy aroused, agreed to turn himself in, Foxe said.
"I'll pack my bag and get ready for another (suspect who has jumped bail)," Foxe said. "If we don't make the apprehension, we won't stay in business."
Battle's wife, Doris, 47, pleaded no contest to selling cocaine and was sentenced to 42 months in prison. One son, Raymond, 22, was placed on probation after pleading no contest to related charges. A second son, Larry Harrison, 23, had been sentenced in Nash County Superior Court last month to 16 years in prison.

A Well-Done By Navy Sec.

MANN'S HARBOR, N.C. (AP) — Navy Secretary John Lehman called the nine civilians who run the Dare County bombing range "unsung professionals" who are "saving the taxpayers millions of dollars."
But Harry Mann, supervisor of the swampland range, in a coastal accent as thick and as sweet as his bog, said, "We're just getting the job done."
It took 173 words of the bureaucrat's these men are the antithesis of to honor them Monday with an Award of Merit for Group Achievement and tell them basically "Well done."
The award came from one of the bombardiers who hones his skills on the five targets. Lehman, on two weeks active duty as a Naval reservist, flew himself and a cargo of Navy brass down to Dare in a Huey helicopter for the short ceremony. A few hours later he made a run on the range in an A-6 Intruder.
"He's great," Mann said loyally of Lehman's accuracy. They're all great.
Mann was never in the Navy and had nothing to do with planes during his four years in the Coast Guard.
But he's been home on the range for 15 years, and as an A-6 from Attack Squadron 42 came in on a run and let loose six bombs, Mann quickly estimated the ordnance were on line but 22 meters away from the target.
