By The Associated Press
Several hundred American troops may be sent into west Beirut as part of a plan to evacuate guerrillas from the besieged PLO enclave, U.S. officials said today. Israel radio said President Reagan agreed to send 1,600 Marines. U.S. officials traveling with Reagan in California said the troops — whose service branches were still under consideration — might escort the guerrillas from west Beirut then take up positions abandoned by the PLO fighters.

But they cautioned that no final agreement has been reached, no request has been made for U.S. troops and that if they did become involved they would number "somewhat less than 1,600, considerably less. Maybe not more than half that number."

The officials, who declined to be identified, said any U.S. involvement in the Lebanese situation would be limited and temporary but acknowledged it was possible a U.S. presence would "become part of a final agreement."

There was no immediate comment from Israeli or PLO officials.

West Beirut is surrounded by Israeli forces who have besieged the estimated 8,000 PLO guerrillas in the war-shattered Lebanese capital.

Israel radio said U.S. Marines would take over positions abandoned by the guerrillas, presumably to ward off possibly reprisal attacks on the Moslem population by Lebanese Christian militiamen.

Israel radio said France agreed to contribute troops to the mission. It said the U.S. 6th Fleet would supervise the evacuation of the guerrillas from Beirut, and Washington would pay for the ships needed to take them out.

The radio said the guerrillas would go to several countries, including Algeria, Iraq, Egypt and Syria. It said the guerrillas had refused to go to Libya, despite that country's fervent verbal support for the Palestinian cause.

It said Reagan's decision was "a dramatic revolution" in U.S. policy, and that Reagan was taking "a great risk upon himself personally" by committing American troops to Lebanon.

The radio said the details had been worked out over the past three days by U.S. and Israeli officials.

The problems of where the guerrillas would go and how they would get there were the main obstacles in three-week-old talks involving U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib and Lebanese negotiators at the presidential palace outside Beirut. The talks are aimed at ending the conflict and arranging removal of PLO forces.

Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat had offered to withdraw most of his forces from Lebanon if Israel would allow the PLO to leave a token military presence — believed to be about 500 men — with the Lebanese army and a diplomatic mission in Beirut.

But the Israeli Cabinet refused the offer, saying all elements of the PLO must leave Lebanon and vowing that until then, the Israeli army would not ease the grip on Beirut.

Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 to crush the guerrillas and has surrounded Arafat's west Beirut enclave with tanks and troops and cut off vital supplies in an attempt to force them out, rather than storm the stronghold and risk bloody street warfare.

Informed Lebanese sources estimate there 8,000 guerrillas and 500,000 civilians trapped in predominantly Moslem west Beirut, and Lebanese and Palestinian leaders have accused Israel of trying to starve out the remnants of the PLO.

Habib put together another in a series of Israeli-Palestinian cease-fires at sundown Monday to halt day-long exchanges of artillery, rocket and mortar fire that marked the heaviest fighting around Beirut since Habib's previous cease-fire was announced June 25.

The Palestinian news agency Wafa claimed joint PLO and Lebanese leftist forces "completely wiped out" a company of Israeli infantry that it said tried to break through Palestinian defenses and advance toward the airport compound Monday.

Actions By Pitt Board

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning awarded a contract to Taft Office Equipment Co. for office supplies for the coming year.

The Taft firm was the low bidder for the contract at $6,569 for supplies, which represents an estimated 80 percent of the supplies the county will use during the coming 12 months.

The firm also agreed to allow a 25 percent discount on any additional supplies purchased, although the original bid included a 20 percent discount on additional purchases.

Other office supply bids received today included $7,693 from Eastern Office Supply (with a 25 percent discount on additional purchases), and $7,486 from Carolina Office Equipment Co. (also with a 25 percent discount on additional purchases).

The board also gave approval for the submission of an application for a $370,000 state literary loan.

The loan, at 4 percent interest for 10 years, will be used to help fund the construction of a new middle school in Ayden. If the loan is approved, the funds should be available in February 1983.

Pitt County Memorial Hospital administrator Jack Richardson told commissioners that in May, the medical facility averaged 462 patients per day, with 500 patients hospitalized on May 17.

He noted that five years ago, when the new hospital opened, the average number of patients per day was 185.

In other business this morning, the board named David Stowe of Farmville to the Pitt County Development Commission to replace J.I. Morgan III who resigned; appointed Mrs. B.B. Sugg Jr. to the Sheppard Memorial Library board of trustees, and re-appointed Howard Wilson to the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission.

Commissioners also voted to nominate fellow board member B. Alton Gardner as a candidate for North Carolina County Commissioner of the Year.

Gardner, who did not seek re-election this year, has been a member of the board for over 27 years. His term will expire in December.

Aeroflot Jetliner Toll Feared High

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet Aeroflot jet carrying passengers to western Africa crashed on takeoff early today near Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport, the government news agency Tass reported.

Tass said there were victims in the crash, but Soviet officials refused to give details about the number of victims or their nationalities. Two Western airline sources said the plane was believed to have carried about 90 passengers. One said there were no survivors; another said there were rumors that one woman survived.

The airliner, Flight 411, was en route from Moscow to Dakar, Senegal and Freetown, Sierra Leone, an airport spokeswoman said. It crashed during takeoff, scheduled for 12:10 a.m. local time (4:10 p.m. EDT Monday). A Western source said the crash occurred about six miles from the airport, and that one of the plane's four engines was ablaze.

The Ministry of Civil Aviation said a special commission is investigating the cause of the crash.

"The Ministry of Civil Aviation expresses deep condolences to the relatives of the victims of the crash," the Tass report said.

Aeroflot's official schedule lists the aircraft for the flight as an Ilyushin-62, but it was not known whether it was the 186-passenger version or the 168-passenger version.

The airport spokeswoman refused to give further details, saying only that more information may be released Wednesday.

In the past, Soviet authorities have generally released information about airline crashes when foreigners were among the passengers.

The relatively quick announcement of the Flight 411 crash, about 16 hours after it happened, suggested not only that foreigners were involved but that at least some members of the Soviet public had seen the crash or its aftermath.

Waterbury Apartment Fire Toll Believed Due To An Angry Uncle

By JOHN W. REID
Associated Press Writer
WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — A man who police say torched a sofa at his niece's apartment during a fit of rage was charged with igniting a fire an hour later that left at least three people dead and 12 missing.

"You did it. Why did you do it?" the niece was screaming at the suspect when police arrived, officials said.

More than 120 people were homeless today after the fire swept through two downtown apartment buildings Monday. Police said some of the missing may have been at holiday gatherings away from home.

"Flames were crashing all around," tenant Richard Chute said, describing his family's escape.

As fire and thick, black smoke shot above the twin, five-story brick buildings, several tenants clung to ledges until firefighters could raise ladders and rescue them.

Police Lt. Valentine Bochicchio said today there were three confirmed deaths, with 12 people unaccounted for. He said an earlier police report of six deaths came from an officer who had not confirmed the information.

"If we hadn't happened to be there, probably another 60 people would have died," said patrolman Michael Dimaria.

Firefighters still were soaking the smoldering rubble early today as rescue workers searched for more possible victims.

"The bodies are badly burned. They're taking out parts of bodies. It's going to take quite some time," said Ken Borowski of the Waterbury Red Cross, which set up shelters for the homeless.

Police said they did not know how many of those unaccounted for actually were in the buildings when the fire broke out.

"The building superintendent says some people were away for the holiday," said Janet O'Donnell of the Red Cross.

As many as 165 people may have lived in the buildings, according to the Red Cross.

Borowski said it was difficult to obtain exact numbers because the buildings, which housed mainly low-income people, frequently had transients staying in them.

Waterbury Mayor Edward D. Bergin said, "This is the worst fire, to my knowledge, in the city's history."

One tenant said she and her two children barely escaped.

"I almost died. I almost got killed. When I saw the fire I started screaming. I thought we'd never make it. I was ready to jump out the window with my two kids," said the young woman, who would not give her name, as she sat in a Red Cross shelter in a church basement.

Charges Pile Up

Farmville and Greenville police have charged two men with armed robberies in Farmville and Greenville and these arrests have led to similar charges against the two in Greene County and Louisburg, authorities reported.

Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper said David Adams II, 22, of Hines Street, Farmville, who also gave the address, 402B Azalea Gardens, Greenville, and Larry Devon Jones, 19, of South Main Street, Farmville, are charged with armed robberies of the Hustler 1 Service Station at Marlboro on the outskirts of Farmville June 17 and June 28.

Chief Glenn Cannon of the Greenville Police Department said Adams is charged with the armed robbery of the Stop-N-Go Store on Memorial Drive about 2 a.m. Saturday. He said Winterville Police Chief Ed Cox saw a man running from the store as he drove past on Memorial Drive and took down the license number of the car Adams allegedly used in the holdup. Adams was picked up Saturday at 1:40 p.m. by Farmville police.

Greenville police have also charged Adams with the theft of about $300 from the Etna Service Station on Memorial Drive May 19 and Jones with aiding and abetting in the Etna Station holdup. The two are also charged with two counts of armed robbery in Greene County and with robbery of a motel and a motel customer in Louisburg. Charges in Wilson County are also expected to be made.

The two are in Pitt County Jail. Preliminary hearings are set for July 15.

Tobacco Piling Up; Markets Await Senate Action

By STEELE HOLMAN
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — While flue-cured tobacco piles up in Georgia and Florida warehouses, growers and producers are waiting for Congress to fulfill its pledge to reform the tobacco subsidy program.

A House-approved bill now before the Senate would cut taxpayer subsidies to the nation's tobacco farmers and require non-farming institutions to surrender or sell their valuable, government-issued production rights.

On June 24 the bill passed the Senate Agriculture Committee — chaired by Republican Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina — but Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mk.,

forced a delay on the Senate debate until July 14.

This caused the Flue Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee to delay the opening of markets by about a week. The Georgia-Florida Belt auctions open July 21 instead of July 13 as the state had planned.

Auction openings, following the harvest season northward, will be on July 26th for the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt with the Eastern Belt opening a day later. The Old and Middle Belt of North Carolina opens on Aug. 3, and the North Carolina-Virginia Belt opens Aug. 10.

The delay probably will mean little in terms of sales to the farmers, regional agricultural officials said. Some farmers, however, could encounter problems in Georgia and Florida, where the harvest already is under way.

"Some Georgia farmers and particularly in Florida, will be running out of storage space for their cured tobacco. This could be a problem, because tobacco has a tendency to spoil if it's not kept properly stored and dry," said David Newton, tobacco specialist for the Georgia Agriculture Department.

Agricultural officials said they do not expect a repeat of what one called the "vintage crop" in 1981, mainly because regulations call for a cutback in production following a bumper crop.

But a price-support increase for all grades from $1.57 a pound possibly to $1.69 or $1.70 will partially compensate for the quota cutback.

Here is a state-by-state rundown on the flue-cured crop outlook:

—VIRGINIA: After problems with grass control and plant drowning from excessive rains earlier, the Virginia crop has recovered and is at a normal stage, said Stan Duffer, marketing agent with the Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services.

Although the crop is "looking very good," the state would "have a hard time repeating last year's yield,"

he added.

The 1981 harvest set a record at $190 million, and Duffer estimated this year's harvest might reach $150 million. The state's acreage was reduced, from 55,000 acres to 45,000.

—NORTH CAROLINA: The crop in some areas suffered earlier from excessive rains, while other areas had cooler-than-ideal growing temperatures. But John Cyrus, the state's chief of tobacco affairs, said the crop had "done a lot of catching up" in the past eight or 10 days.

North Carolina dominates the flue-cured market with about two-thirds of the total acreage. This year the state has a quota of 643 million pounds, or about 347,000 acres and probably will make about $1.15 billion on the crop, compared with $1.26 billion in 1981, Cyrus said.

—SOUTH CAROLINA: Officials are predicting the crop will bring about $225 million, compared with a record $245 million last year. Tobacco specialist Ben Kittrell of the Clemson University Extension Service said some farmers had to replant two or three times because of spring-time cold spells. And a rain and hail storm in June severely damaged the crops in three northeastern counties.

"This will probably not be a high-yield crop like last year, but the quality may be better," Kittrell said.

—GEORGIA: Because of favorable growing conditions, Georgia may have its best crop in several years. And despite a lower quota than last year, the state's growers should gross about the same as in 1981, some $196 million, Newton said.

In recent years Georgia has somewhat lost its longstanding reputation for producing "good-bodied, high-aroma" tobacco, Newton said, "but this year it looks like Georgia farmers have a chance to lead the market."

—FLORIDA: Growers expect an outstanding crop as a result of timely rainfall, said tobacco specialist Pleas Strickland of the Florida Department of Agriculture.

The quota in Florida is 22 million pounds, or about 11,000 acres, slightly less than the 22.3 million pounds in 1981. The 1981 crop netted producers $37.3 million, Strickland said.

Tobacco-state lawmakers last year promised the bill as a way to head off efforts to abolish the price support system altogether. It would require farmers to cover any costs of the program except administrative expenses, which run about $15 million yearly.

The major provisions of the bill would:

—Require farmers to earmark a few cents from every pound of tobacco put under federal loan to establish a fund to cover any losses if surplus tobacco is not sold.

—Authorize the secretary of agriculture to curtail by 35 percent a scheduled increase that would raise the average price support from $1.57 a pound to $1.76. The reduced increase would bring about $1.70 a pound.

—Require non-farming institutions like corporations, universities and utilities to sell their allotments by the end of next year or to surrender them. Corporations currently hold about 2 percent of about 500,000 acreage allotments issued by the government in the 1930s.

Eagleton, who says the price support program is abused, has said he will offer changes in the bill when it reaches the Senate floor.

Tobacco producers accepted the House version of the bill as "the only realistic way to keep the program from being completely abolished" in view of mounting criticism of price supports, Cyrus said.

"They are willing for this price support not to be borne by the taxpayers, but to be borne by the producers themselves," Newton said. "I'm not saying they all went out and embraced this thing."

Congressman Let Office Be Used For Drug Investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., says it would have been the "height of hypocrisy" for him to refuse use of his office for an undercover narcotics investigation on Capitol Hill.

CBS reported Monday night that Dornan allowed his office to be used as the base for an investigation on cocaine trafficking. The probe led to the April arrests of former congressional page Douglas Marshall and two others, Robert Finkel and Troy Todd, the network said.

Dornan, who is on the House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control, said District of Columbia police and investigators for a newspaper columnist asked him in March 1981 if they could use his office.

Dornan said he did not know who narcotics agents were targeting but felt that because of this committee assignment he had to become involved.

"Since I was a member of the narcotics committee it would be the height of hypocrisy for me to be so outraged about narcotics use in the country and then to turn down a legitimate undercover operation that only wanted to credential themselves or headquarter out of my office," he said.

Dornan said that if some of his colleagues are users they should be prosecuted.

"You are the passer of laws," he said. "You must be held to a much, much higher standard. In this case if there is any sweeping under the rug of users it is a disgrace and simply must not happen."

The Associated Press reported last month that Finkel said he supplied cocaine to one assistant Capitol Hill doorkeeper, at least one Senate page and an employee of one congressional office. Sources said Finkel was cooperating with the grand jury and had started to name people he says he supplied with cocaine.

Police said a series of runners delivered drugs to Capitol Hill offices including those of congressmen, CBS reported.

At least five of the suspected runners have been subpoenaed, according to CBS.

The network said the runners have told investigators that they have personally delivered cocaine to the offices of about a dozen congressmen. There is also an allegation of delivery to at least one senator, CBS said.

Cutback Is Anticipated

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — County governments in Wake, Guilford, Forsyth and Mecklenburg counties have set aside larger than usual contingency funds in preparation for anticipated federal cutbacks this year.

Wake County's $104.7 million operating budget includes a $3 million reserve for emergency services that would be used to offset federal cuts in human resource programs, officials said.

"To have reduced the emergency reserve fund would have been financially and fiscally irresponsible in view of the uncertainties we've got in the next year," Wake Commission Chairman M. Edmund Aycock said.

County Manager Carl G. Robinson recommended a $2 million emergency reserve, but the commissioners raised the fund by $1 million, officials said.

Guilford County officials said they set aside $800,000 of their $93 million budget to offset federal cuts while in Forsyth County, officials said their $80.7 million budget includes a $1.3 million contingency fund. Of that contingency fund, $170,000 is tentatively earmarked for a possible bonus for teachers.

Mecklenburg County commissioners approved a $203 million budget, including a $14 million unrestricted fund balance that is mainly used as "working capital" to pay county salaries and other bills in advance of tax collections.

Mecklenburg County Budget Director Irvin R. "Buck" Squires Jr. said $12 million of the fund balance would be needed just "to keep the doors open."

'James Bond Type' Man Arrested In Canada, Freed By U.S. Officials

By CHRIS STOLICKY
Associated Press Writer
SEATTLE (AP) — A "James Bond"-type man arrested in British Columbia with five guns, bugging equipment and false identification was released by U.S. officials apparently confused over who had jurisdiction to investigate the case, authorities say.

Charles E. Harris, 36, was arrested June 26 after his car became stuck in a ditch as he attempted to illegally enter the United States near Matsqui, British Columbia, about 30 miles east of Vancouver.

Harris, who was using the alias of David B. Kelly, was driving a car with New Mexico license plates and claimed he was from Florida, said Cpl. John Drummond, a spokesman for the Matsqui police department, in a telephone interview.

Police searched the car and found five fully loaded handguns and some sophisticated bugging equipment, Drummond said. They also discovered numerous identification documents in the car including identifications for the FBI, CIA, New York Police Department, California credentials, a Canadian driver's license and a California Highway Patrol card.

"He was a James Bond-type, that's for sure," said Drummond.

Harris pleaded guilty in Canada June 30 to five counts of illegal possession of unregistered, restricted weapons and was fined $500, Drummond said. At an immigration hearing the next day he was ordered to leave Canada.

The Matsqui police turned him over to the U.S. Customs Service in Lynden on Thursday night, said James Higby, Customs Service inspector.

"He came through here. We did let him go," Higby said by phone. "They have no record of him being a felon. He was caught in Canada and convicted so we couldn't charge him for the same crime."

"We're not the ones who handle that sort of thing," Higby said, but added, "It looks like somebody should have investigated it, doesn't it?"

Immigration officials and Customs agents said they don't know what happened to Harris after he was released. A spokesman in the FBI's Seattle office said investigating Harris was not in the agency's jurisdiction. He said impersonating an FBI agent is illegal, but just having the credentials isn't a crime.

"Somebody should have gotten his fingerprints and sent them to Washington D.C.," said the agent, who asked not to be identified.

The duty officer at the bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Seattle said Monday he was not aware of the case. He said that both the bureau and Customs would have jurisdiction. "It's almost a split jurisdiction," said the agent, who asked not to be identified.

The duty officer said he would investigate the case. "It's something we should know," he said.

One Customs agent, who also asked that his name not

Doctors' Fee Limit Ruled Not Exempt

BOSTON (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that Blue Shield's practice of limiting doctors' fees is not exempt from antitrust laws, but the judge postponed deciding if the practice is permissible.

A group of Massachusetts physicians are claiming that Blue Shield is violating federal antitrust laws by engaging in price-fixing. The doctors said they are required to accept Blue Shield reimbursement as payment in full, in most cases, and they cannot bill patients for extra charges.

Blue Shield claims the practice is required by state law and is exempt from antitrust laws.

In a decision released Friday, U.S. District Court Chief Judge Andrew A. Caffrey ruled that there is no state law requiring the practice and that it is not exempt from antitrust laws. However, Caffrey asked attorneys to submit more information by Nov. 1 to help him decide if the practice is permissible.

About 60 percent of Massachusetts residents subscribe to Blue Cross-Blue Shield and 99 percent of the state's physicians agree to accept Blue Shield's fee as full payment for their services.

Drivers Cited After Mishaps

An estimated $1,125 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Ash Street and River Drive, involving cars driven by Daniel Ray Scharf of 300 N. Oak St., and Mickey Harold Lang of 206 N. Oak St.

Police, who charged Scharf with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $25 to the Scharf car and $700 to the Lang auto.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in an 11 a.m. collision at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive.

Investigators, who identified the drivers of the cars involved as Stephen Wilbur Perry of 201 Kenilworth Road, and Bobby Earl Hodges of 112 Wade St., charged Perry with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Fall Seminar Planned By Council

Planning a fall seminar highlighted the meeting of the Pitt County Council on the Status of Women held last week.

The seminar will be held Oct. 2 at Pitt Community College. Its co-chairmen are Willie Carney and Mariam House, both council members.

Chairman Rosalie Trotman gave a report on the event assisted by Louise Downing of Pitt Community College.

Mrs. Trotman also reviewed the plan of work completed this year. Robert Bright of Interstate Securities of Greenville was speaker at the group's dinner meeting in March and Carolyn Means, of Pitt Community College, spoke to the group in May on stress management. Dr. Charla Davis showed a film entitled "Work Place Hustle" last month.

Helen Simpson of Robersonville, regional coordinator for the N.C. Council on the Status of Women, said another regional leadership conference will be planned in the near future and will probably be held in early 1983.

Acolia Simon-Thomas will be speaking in August and the meeting next month will be held July 28 at 5 p.m. at the Pitt County Office Building.

Special Care Needed For Today's Silk

With the increase in silk garments on the market today, Dr. Harriet Tutterow, extension clothing specialist at North Carolina State University, warns consumers to be cautious.

"Silk is a very luxurious fiber that needs special care," she notes.

Silk clothes usually require drycleaning. Dr. Tutterow suggests consumers always wear perspiration shields with silk garments to prevent the deposit of deodorant mineral residue. Also, perspiration moisture may cause stains that are difficult for even some drycleaners to remove.

Some silk garments may be hand-washed; check the label to be sure. Mild detergent and warm water should be used; wringing or squeezing tightly should be avoided because of wrinkling.

Hand-washed silk will always need pressing. "Be careful of iron temperature. An iron that is too hot can 'glaze' the fibers," the specialist warns.

High prices for silk are not necessarily an indication of quality. All silk is imported so the price starts out quite high; silk blouses cost between $45 and $65. Even at this price, Dr. Tutterow says silk garments are often quite fragile. Stitching can pull out easily if the seams are stressed much.

"Recognize the price of prestige that goes with designer fabrics such as silk, and don't assume it means the garment will be easy or inexpensive to care for," Dr. Tutterow says.

For the look of silk at a lower cost, the specialist suggests nylon, polyester or high-wet modular rayon garments. These are washable and easier to care for than silk.

Insurance Women Meet

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held its meeting last week at the Ramada Inn. The guest speaker was Kenny L. Jenkins.

He gave a personal testimony entitled "The Bridge." Guests for the meeting included NCAIW President Judith Warren and NCAIW Secretary Sandra Laughhouse.

President Audrey Stillwell, CPIW, conducted the meeting.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband came into the kitchen the other night, dipped his spoon into a bowl and said, "Ummm. Tastes terrific! What is it?"
I said, "Chicken, bacon bits, onions and kidneys."
"What do you call it?"
"The dog's dinner. We're having beans and franks. Go wash up."
"Do I want to know what's in this bottle filled with brown fluid?"
"It's a new beverage for dogs who are 'sick of drinking just water.' It's flavored with beef."
"That's quite a jump for someone who drinks from a toilet," he said. "Besides, how do you know our dog is sick of drinking just water? Does he say, 'Yuuuck' and spit it out?"
My husband had a point. We've never had a dog who sang, talked, wrote notes or communicated with us in any way.
"We just have to trust someone," I said.
And trust we have. During the last five or ten years, I've seen the selection of dog food grow from a couple bags of nuggets by the grass seed near the door to an entire aisle of options. On blind faith, I've lugged in cheese and beef pellets, dry food that turns sensuous in its own gravy, jerky snacks, liver-flavored cookies, bones that whiten their teeth and cans of gourmet dog food to combat boredom.

"Let me ask you a question," said my husband. "Has this dog ever gotten excited about any dog products touted on television?"
"You know the only time he reacts to anything on TV is when he goes to bed during PBS pledge week."
"He doesn't care," said my husband. "For all we know, he's probably a vegetarian and doesn't know how to tell us. We could throw him a raw potato every day and he'd be happy as a clam." He tilted the bottle of beef-flavored drink, took a sip and winced.

"What did you expect?" I sighed. "Gusto?"
"Whattya wanta bet? The only way he'll drink it is out of the toilet."

Childhood Ages Differ

Children and their parents both have their own ideas about when a child is no longer a child.

Health insurance companies also have their own ideas regarding the age at which childhood ends, says Dr. Thelma Hinson, extension family resource management specialist at North Carolina State University.

Usually a child is no longer considered a dependent when he/she reaches 19, marries or becomes gainfully employed whichever comes first.

"But check your family's policies," Dr. Hinson advises.

Some health insurance companies consider children to be dependents up to age 23 or even 25 if they are full-time, unmarried students relying on the family for support.

In that case the family policy will continue to cover them.

Gaskets on refrigerators, freezers and dishwashers are usually made of vinyl and should be treated to frequent sudsy washings to perform efficiently.

Dear Abby

Ataxia Group Ready To Help

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My speech is slurred, I can't walk straight, my coordination is off, and it's hard for me to swallow. Worse yet, most people think I'm drunk.

I am a victim of ataxia — a hereditary disease that is often incorrectly diagnosed as multiple sclerosis. An estimated 15 million Americans are afflicted with hereditary diseases. Approximately 250,000 are victims of some form of ataxia. It affects people of all ages and races, and it cannot be diagnosed before the symptoms appear. It is a tragic and deadly disorder, yet surprisingly few people know it exists. (It is not contagious and it is not a mental disease.)

There are ataxia clinics throughout the United States that stand ready to offer genetic counseling, neurological testings, financial assistance and reliable information concerning insurance, legal rights, where to find home services and nursing homes.

The National Ataxia Foundation is eager to locate victims and their families in order to help them. Please help spread the word, Abby.

MILDRED S. IN WOODLAND HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR MILDRED: I have checked out the organization and have found it to be a legitimate, sincere, non-profit organization that welcomes all inquiries and will respond (free of charge) to those who write. The address: The National Ataxia Foundation, 6681 Country Club Drive, Minneapolis, Minn. 55427. Phone: 1-612-546-6220. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I just wanted to share something nice. (I read your column in The Day in New London, Conn.)

On June 8, an ad appeared directly under your column. It featured a sketch of a single rose with the following message: "Nancy, may the next 25 years be just as joy filled. — Dick"

I have no idea who Nancy and Dick are, but apparently Dick bought an ad in that newspaper requesting that it be placed where Nancy wouldn't miss it, so I assume she's a faithful reader. Imagine her thrilled double-take when she saw it!

How terrific to see evidence of a good marriage out there. And what fun to be married to a man so thoughtful, loving and imaginative! Neat?

BETH IN MYSTIC, CONN.

DEAR BETH: Neat, indeed! I'll bet Dick's ad plants that unique idea in the minds of other lovers.

DEAR ABBY: A woman who was married in a Catholic church in 1958 said her husband took a ride one Sunday afternoon and never came back. She asked if she was still married, or did she need a divorce if she wanted to start life over as a single woman.

You advised her to see a priest about an annulment. Regardless of what the priest or the church says, she had better consult an attorney. The only legal dissolution that can be had must come from a court.

HOUSTON LAWYER

DEAR LAWYER: I assumed the priest would tell her not only how she stood with the church, but how she stood with the law. (That's like assuming that a lawyer would feel obligated to tell his clients how they stood with the church.) Mea culpa.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Budget Holds Tax Rate

The county commissioners have wrapped up a $25.4 million budget for the 1982-83 fiscal year which maintains the present tax rate of 54 cents per $100 valuation.

The budget does not provide for an across-the-board salary increase for county employees. A survey of other counties showed salaries to be in line. There was an improvement in the tax-sheltering program under the retirement system, a longevity pay program and an incentive program included.

Adjustments were made in the salaries of seven department heads to bring them in line with what other comparable counties are paying.

The commission made an effort to solve the continuing problem of financing the two county school systems it is responsible for. It agreed to request a $370,000 state literary loan to help finance the new Ayden middle school and perhaps a portion of the cost of a lunchroom at Chicod. The city school capital outlay budget was set at $268,200 an increase of $95,500 over the present fiscal year.

There was no drastic cutting of departmental budgets other than that of the Pitt County Health Department which is seeing some of its state funding come to an end. The department's budget was set at $1.4 million for the fiscal year.

The commission has done the best it could with the school budgets. As long as there are two systems with arbitrary lines there will continue to be problems of how to divide the financing. Sooner or later there will have to be more cooperation between the two school districts or outright merger.

The commission has acted responsibly in holding the tax rate. This is not a time for an increased tax load for our citizens. All in all the budget indicates that the commissioners have done the best possible with available funding.

LIKE A STROLL IN A MINEFIELD!

BY JAMES KILPATRICK

Makings Of A Bad Day

SCRABBLE, Va. — A little after 6 o'clock on a recent Monday morning, a certain newspaper columnist awoke in a cheerful frame of mind at his modest home in the Blue Ridge Mountains. After the usual matinal ablutions, which were completed without significant mishap, he bent to tie his shoes. A shoelace broke.

So the day began. James, for that was the fellow's name, at first attempted to tie the broken end to the surviving end, but at that hour of the day he could not remember a square knot from a granny knot, and there was not enough lace in any event. So he licked the surviving end, trying to make a point on it, and even so, the licked end would not go through the necessary eyelet. The remaining end kept going schmerle, and by the time the shoe could be tied our subject was quite red in the face and not nearly so cheerful as he had been a half-hour before.

The groggy columnist glanced from his bedroom window toward the vegetable garden. Two rabbits were at work on the lettuce. One rabbit was as big as a Doberman pinscher; the other could have tackled a St. Bernard. This is a phenomenal year for rabbits in Rappahannock County, Va. They are larger, meaner and more numerous than ever before. James opened a bedroom window and yelled as follows: "Get out of that lettuce, you little furry varmints!"

Only he did not say "varmint."

The bigger rabbit, the one with the shoulders of the St. Bernard, turned his massive head, curled his lip and sneered. His pal merely snickered. Then they abandoned the lettuce, but in a leisurely fashion, went to the flower garden and settled down to work on the delphiniums instead.

The subject of these observations adjourned to the kitchen, where he placed two sections on religion. But no.

Our subject's loving spouse, awakened by the colloquy with the rabbits, arrived on the scene. "You burned the bacon," she observed. "Who moved my Chesterton..." he demanded. The coffee was on the floor. So the day continued.

The famous columnist went to his office. His beloved secretary, who is sometimes adoring but more often not, put the morning mail before him. "What stinks?" she delicately inquired. The family dog was just outside. "It is a small blue book," he replied, intent on the larger problem. The day's letters began with a fan letter from Texas. "I seldom read your lousy stuff," this amiable missive began, and then it became abusive.

During the course of the morning, our subject made 28 telephone calls. On 11 occasions, the number was busy; on five he was put on hold; three times the senator was in a meeting; twice a recorded message informed him that only an ignoramus would suppose that his call could be completed as dialed. The Chesterton could not be found in a section of miscellaneous essays. Thinking that physical exercise might improve his disposition, James took to a nearby tennis court with his secretary. She beat him 6-4, 6-1, with five service aces.

In the late afternoon a violent thunderstorm paid a social call. The electric power went out, thus killing the water pump, thus killing a therapeutic bourbon and water. Through the open bedroom window, the torrential rain poured upon the bedside table, damaging five books and two magazines. The Chesterton, a small volume, bound in blue, was not among them. The rain did not improve the family dog.

Beer Pricing Threat Seen

By MAXWELL GLENN AND CODY SHEARER

WASHINGTON — Dire warnings seem a bit silly. But as many Americans toasted the nation's birthday this weekend, party-poopers here are working to raise the price of — dare we say it — beer. Details of this conspiracy might be enough to cause a second revolution.

Beer wholesalers, who deliver the foamy beverage from brewery to bars, grocers and carry-outs, are asking Congress to pass a bill which would explicitly allow them to set up local monopolies for the sale of beer brands. So far, majorities in both the Senate and House have agreed to cosponsor the measure which could, over time, raise the price of beer by as much as 20 percent.

As distribution works in most states, brewers usually assign one firm in a given area to distribute and price their brands. Generally, a wholesaler handles several brands at once and is content to work his or her own territory, leaving neighboring areas to other dealers.

But recently, hard times have compelled some overstocked distributors to make a little extra through discount bulk sales in markets outside their own. The practice is called "dumping," and most wholesalers want protection against it.

"We don't dump on other distributors' territories and we surely don't want them to dump on ours," explained Jim Fabian, a Columbus-area (Ohio) distributor. Since 1959, Fabian added, he has spent thousands of dollars to build a company image that he "can't afford to have destroyed."

Yet, unlike the groups of protesting coal miners and farmers who seem to visit Washington regularly, beer wholesalers haven't organized a caravan of delivery trucks to attract nationwide sympathies. The reason is obvious: Publicity would kill this drunken proposal.

Though Senate Bill 1215 is shrewdly entitled "The Malt Beverage Interbrand Competition Act," it could effectively be anti-competitive in nature. By expressly allowing rights to peddle a specific brand in a certain area, S1215 would exempt the entire industry from anti-trust laws that seek to preserve free-market competition. While the Budweiser and Moosehead lovers among us would still have access to their poisons under the bill, they would be in a take-it-or-leave-it price situation with local beerlords.

As a result, beer prices could rise to inflated levels if Indiana's experience with exclusive territories is any guide. Two years after that state outlawed territorial arrangements' an Indiana legislative study committee detected a 20 percent decrease in the price of beer-by-the-case.

The beer-distributor legislation, moreover, would set a dangerous precedent in the realm of foodstuff marketing. If beer distributors ask for exclusive territories, "wine, milk, bread, cookie and other perishable-product distributors would want and receive the same protection," warned George Green of the Food Marketing Institute, a Washington-based retailers' group.

Even Ronald Reagan's Justice Department "strongly opposes" the "beer barrel" bill. As Abbott Lipsky, assistant attorney general in the anti-trust division told the Senate Judiciary Committee last month, "The malt beverage industry is a textbook example in which the widespread use of exclusive territorial arrangements might have anticompetitive effects."

In reality, as the bill's proponents themselves know, wholesalers have little to fear from "beer dumping." The practice is neither lucrative nor widespread to an extent that it warrants outright territorial remedies. A successful "dumper" can only skim a couple of hundred dollars off the top of every truckload which, in their business, is a narrow profit margin. It could be argued, moreover, that underselling represents the kind of competitive hustle that made this country great.

With so many faults to this bill, one might suspect the oblivious Congress has been intoxicated by the contributions of beer wholesalers. Indeed, the long-dormant National Beer Wholesalers Association has already distributed $50,000 of $100,000 to $250,000 in pledges to congressional candidates this year. And that's a mere pittance in comparison to what 8,000 wholesalers nationwide are offering friends on Capitol Hill.

But whatever is behind all this, we have but one sugges-

Chancellorship Is Now His

Last week Dr. John Howell officially became the permanent chancellor of East Carolina University.

There will be no swift changes since Dr. Howell has been in charge most of this year and he has been associated with ECU for 25 years in various capacities.

Nevertheless we can expect the Howell chancellorship to become an identifiable era for East Carolina University in the months ahead.

As interim chancellor Howell was not free to institute changes which might be binding on another chancellor to come in a short time. Now he is under no such restrictions. He can consider actions which might have effects for years in the future. The powers, as well as all the responsibilities, of the ECU chancellorship are now his.

NICKELS FOR KNOW-HOW

Assure 'Dividends'

By LEE CREEK
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — An increase in the assessments paid on feed and fertilizer will pay off for North Carolina farmers in the long run, state officials say.

The 31-year-old Nickels for Know-How program received a financial boost last year when farmers overwhelmingly approved an increase of five cents, making the total assessment a dime per ton.

Money collected from farmers goes into the Agriculture Foundation at North Carolina State University where it is allocated for various projects, including research and extension services.

"We expect to raise about $400,000 this year," said Robert N. Wood, assistant director of Foundations and Developments. "We never know because it depends on the tonnage. But, I'd say between $400,000 and $425,000."

Of that amount, $273,000 will go for research in 1982-1983, according to Dr. Durward Bateman, Director of Agriculture Research Services. He anticipates the amount to increase because of the double assessment, the benefits of which have not "gotten through the pipeline to us."

Current monies come from the Agriculture Foundation and includes things other than the Nickel for Know-How monies.

"Essentially, all the money is used to support graduate research under the guidance of a faculty member," Bateman said. "We select projects that are scientifically meritorious and will fit the long-range plans important to North Carolina agriculture. In that respect, we are discriminating."

Among the projects funded by the program are:

- A study trying to determine the various parameters that contribute to the phytophthora root rot among fir trees.
- A study of the fertility syndrome in turkey breeder hens. "There is a real problem in terms of egg fertility in turkeys," Bateman said. "It runs something like 65 percent. If you can improve that it would mean quite a bit to North Carolina's turkey industry."
- A study to help form a water use policy in anticipation of future years when the state's farmers will be move involved with irrigation. "We're trying to do some preliminary thinking in terms of providing information to be used by the legislature in forming a water policy if such is needed by the state," Bateman said.
- A study of the possibility of substituting ozone for chlorine in the processing of poultry carcasses, because chlorine is causing some city's problems with their sewage systems.

- A study to find a prevention for conjunctivitis in cattle.
- A study at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro to look at the various types of clothing that could be worn during pesticide applications and provide greater safety.

The Nickels for Know-How program are a vital part of the research, officials say.

"We feel it adds tremendously to the effectiveness of the agriculture research efforts here at the university because of the flexibility of the funds and the additional funds that can be used," Wood said.

"In our state, we have more agriculture crops, livestock and poultry than any state in the union," Wood said. "They've put money in the halictoxin program last year. We had an outbreak of blue mold three years ago in tobacco. These are the types of things that come they (the funds) can impact on. Of course, this is in the long run."

To the editor:
During these times when the news involving the economy and general world situation is not always good, I would like to commend the citizens of Pitt County for giving us some good news. The public response to the "Liberty Blood Drive" held on July 1 was outstanding.

The blood drive was held to meet the historic shortages in the blood supply which occur during the Fourth of July weekend. Last year, the blood shortage during the Fourth of July weekend became so critical that an emergency blood drive had to be held on Sunday.

This year, Pitt County citizens have responded to eliminate this problem. Generally, there are two groups which deserve recognition. First, 246 people volunteered to give blood at our Liberty Blood Drive. Obviously, these people provide the basic, essential ingredient without which any blood drive would be meaningless. Second, we received outstanding support from many people in producing and publicizing this blood drive.

As usual, this blood drive would not have been possible without our volunteer nurses, Service League volunteers, and many other local citizens who volunteered their services.

The manner in which the citizens of Pitt County responded to this blood drive is indeed good news to those who will receive the gift of life as a result of their efforts.

An Economic Rainbow In Texas

By PAUL RECER

Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — The gold of the Texas rainbow is tarnished by layoffs, a rising jobless rate in some areas and a mild slowing of growth. But unlike so many areas, there is still an economic rainbow.

By most measures the Texas economy still remains strong, healthy and perhaps poised for another surge forward, even as the economy for the nation as a whole continues to struggle.

"I think we're starting into a boom period," said a San Antonio economist. And in Houston an authority on business observed: "The outlook is exceedingly bright for the rest of the century."

Nevertheless, the state has taken some locally severe bumps, scrapes and bruises. The "oil patch" has been staggered by a severe cut-back in drilling, a decline in refinery capacity and a sharp reduction in demand for oil field equipment. Dozens of oil-related businesses have been cutting jobs, and more layoffs are predicted. Industry analysts say some companies may fold before the picture improves.

The Dallas-Fort Worth area was stunned by the failure of Braniff International. About 4,500 jobs were lost when the airline ceased operations on May 12. There also have been layoffs in manufacturing.

Unemployment rates have risen slightly in a number of areas, and the tendency might worsen. Some analysts predict rates as high as 7 percent this summer in Houston and Dallas, the state's economic powerhouses. Yet Texas's rates are far below the national unemployment rate of 9.5 percent in June.

Statewide, the Texas Employment Commission reported a jobless rate of 5.9 percent, up from 4.3 percent in the same period of 1981. Only four major labor markets — Amarillo, Austin, Odessa and McAllen-Pharr-Edinburg — showed improved job pictures for April.

Despite these problems, much optimism prevails. In some respects, current difficulties are viewed as mere bumps on a high-speed economic highway into the future. Economic forecasters seem to agree that Texas is the place to be no matter what the national economy does.

"Texas is usually the last to feel a recession, is affected the least and is the first to recover," said a Houston economist. Nat Eisenberger, head of Economic Advisory Services, a Houston firm, calls Texas "the strongest regional economy in the country."

The reason, says Eisenberger, is a superior economic mix of energy, high technology, service and finance, old industry and agriculture.

The first three are expected to be major growth industries for the nation. "Texas is strong in all three," he said.

In addition, said the economist, Texas has more cities over 100,000 in population than any other state, and has vast areas for expansion, allowing for industrial and market growth. And, he added, Texas has a "pro-business" attitude, with low taxes and a strong tradition of encouraging expansion.

"The future is extremely bright, no matter how it looks in the near term," said Eisenberger.

Strength For Today

SPREADING COMFORT

In writing to the Corinthians, Paul spoke of God who comforts us in order that we may be able to comfort others.

Most of us look upon comfort as an end in itself. When we receive it, we are glad. It is our possession. Not so, says St. Paul. It is given to us in order that something greater than our own comfort may be achieved.

Our comfort must be a means of helping other people toward comfort. Those who have suffered much know how to help those who are now suffering. If after we receive God's comfort we clutch it to our hearts and keep it just for ourselves, its sweetness turns to bitterness and we find ourselves at last suffering as we did before we received God's gift.

In the living world, things grow by division of cells. Likewise, spiritual joys deepen and their values become more significant when we pass them on with eager hands to others. — Elisha Douglass

After 5 Years, Still No Elections As Promised

By RICHARD BILL
Associated Press Writer
ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Five years after Gen. Mohammed Zia ul-Haq assumed power, the 57-year-old president still has not scheduled the elections that he once promised would return Pakistan to civilian rule.

There were no public ceremonies or speeches Monday on the fifth anniversary of Zia's martial law rule. There also was no public comment from the usually vociferous opposition, but political gatherings are banned in Pakistan.

One senior government official said, "What is there to celebrate?"

Zia, who has twice set and then postponed elections, has hinted they might be held in a couple of years. But he has been stressing recently that his "Islamization" program is more important than introducing some kind of Western-style democracy to Pakistan.

Even if there were elections in this predominantly Moslem nation of more than 80 million people, Zia insists the military must play a role in any future government.

According to one source close to the military, Zia might stay on for several more years and then hand over the government to another general. The leading candidate for such a post is Lt. Gen. Fazle Haq, governor of Pakistan's rugged and unruly North-West Frontier Province.

Zia came to power on July 5, 1977, in a bloodless coup that toppled the regime of Prime Minister Zulfikar Ali Bhutto, who was hanged in April, 1979 after conviction of conspiring to murder a political opponent.

Zia has entrenched his control by infusing the government bureaucracy with active or retired army personnel. High courts have no power to review any military act or decision.

Under Islamization, which has helped Zia neutralize the Moslem clergy, the military government has introduced Islamic courts, a compulsory Moslem charity tax and Koran-sanctioned punishments, including flogging.

With Zia in control, the Pakistani economy is beginning to improve — in part because of a six-year, $3.2 billion U.S. aid package — and has been growing over the past year at a comfortable 5.7 percent.

Relations with Washington have improved considerably since the 1979 Soviet military intervention in neighboring Afghanistan; the view of Pakistan in Western capitals has changed from that of an erratic military-ruled country to a "frontline" state strategically important to the West.

But the Soviet presence also brought an estimated 3 million Afghan refugees to Pakistan, straining the economy and creating tensions among the local population. Opposition groups have made the refugee problem a political issue.

The main opposition consists of about nine political parties grouped together into the Movement for the Restoration of Democracy, which claims to have popular support in the major cities where 30 percent of the population resides.

The group is restricted by press censorship and its members are banned from traveling out of their home provinces.

The largest component of the coalition is the Pakistan People's Party, headed by Nusrat Bhutto, widow of Pakistan's last elected leader. Bhutto founded the party.

Mrs. Bhutto was put under house arrest in the days after her husband's execution and again was imprisoned in March, 1981, for alleged complicity in the hijacking of a Pakistan Airlines jet by Pakistani dissidents.

She now is free from detention, but her 28-year-old daughter, Benazir, is still being held in connection with the hijacking, which prompted Zia to arrested about 2,000 dissidents.

One Western diplomat, who did not wish to be identified, called Zia a benign dictator.

"We don't like dealing with him," the diplomat said. "But it could be a lot worse. In Western eyes, he has gained respectability. So he must be treated accordingly."

Honduras Capital Has Power Loss Due Bombs

By FREDDY CUEVAS
Associated Press Writer
TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Leftist guerrillas who posed as workmen and dynamited two power plants are forcing the capital's 500,000 residents to light candles, walk to work and buy bottled water for at least a week, officials say.

About 85 percent of Tegucigalpa's businesses were closed Monday and public transportation shut down at night. Drinking water was running out and gasoline being rationed because the city's water purification system and half its filling stations use electrically powered pumps.

The explosions Sunday night reportedly killed six workers at each power station. It also resulted in deaths of 10 hospital patients in surgery or under intensive treatment when the citywide blackout started.

A group using the name Froylan Turcios, a Honduran leftist writer of the early 1960s, claimed responsibility for the attacks and said they were to protest the Honduran army's involvement in El Salvador's civil war.

Salvadoran officials said last week that Honduran troops had crossed the border to help the Salvadoran army fight leftist guerrillas.

The blackout heightened concern that poor but relatively peaceful Honduras was being dragged into the guerrilla conflicts affecting its Central American neighbors.

"Honduras is not to blame for what is happening in El Salvador," said Emilio Larach, who was working by candlelight in his hardware store and selling thousands of candles and flashlights.

The blasts were the most damaging acts of sabotage by a small guerrilla movement that has been occasionally active here over the past two years. Army officials say the rebels are being trained by Salvadorans and Nicaraguans.

Tegucigalpa's electrical system was a vulnerable target because the two power stations had one security guard each and their specially designed U.S.-made generators are difficult to replace.

Herman Aparicio, general manager of the state-owned power system, said the capital's two other plants were not enough to keep up power. He said it would take a week to 15 days to restore full power.

Anti-Abortion Activist Nominated To Commission

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — As part of a clean sweep of the six-member U.S. Civil Rights Commission, President Reagan has nominated a 32-year-old anti-abortion activist who once called for abolition of the agency.

Congressional sources said close scrutiny will be given by liberal and moderate members of the Senate Judiciary Committee to Robert A. Destro, who just resigned as director of the Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights in Milwaukee.

Reagan has either replaced or indicated his intention to replace five of the six members of the commission. Sources who asked not to be identified said the current chairman, Clarence Pendleton, has indicated that the president will also name a sixth member to take the place of Jill Ruckelshaus, an active Republican feminist.

The Catholic league Destro headed is a nationwide organization of 20,000 members whose main purpose is to urge reversal of the 1973 Supreme Court decision legalizing most abortions.

The civil rights commission is prohibited by law from investigating and issuing reports on the impact of abortion law on minorities. It was set up to study and publish reports on the progress or lack of progress by minorities in fighting discrimination.

In 1978, Destro testified before the same Senate Judiciary Committee and criticized the civil rights commission for failure to look into discrimination against Catholics and white ethnic groups like Poles and Italians.

Destro said the commission has a "pronounced animus toward religion and religious discrimination cases."

He said blacks, women and other "approved minorities" are well represented by organizations like the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and the National Organization for Women and don't need a federal commission.

Destro said the commission has failed to examine discrimination against Catholics and ethnic groups, and has therefore created a national impression that only blacks, Hispanics, Indians and women suffer from racial or sexual discrimination.

As a result, he said, "If it were to go out of existence today it would not be missed. Its functions ... could well be carried out by interest groups such as the NAACP, NOW or any of the other special interest groups."

Asked later if he were urging that federal funds for the commission be cut off, Destro said, "Yes, that is accurate."

Only if the commission were to place heavy emphasis on white ethnic groups and religious discrimination should it be allowed to stay alive, Destro told the committee, which was then considering the commission budget for 1979.

"It has in effect turned into a government lobby for special interest groups," Destro said. "The law is designed for people not for interest groups."

Destro was reported traveling to take a new job as a law professor at Catholic University in Washington and could not be reached for comment.

Last week, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., chairman of the 16-member judiciary panel, scheduled Destro and two other civil rights commission nominees for votes without the usual congressional hearings on their nominations.

But objections were raised and Senate sources said when Congress returns next week from a 10-day Fourth of July recess, there will be hearings on his qualifications and possibly those of two others nominated for the commission — Constantine Dombalis, 56, dean of the Saints Constantine and Helen Green Orthodox Cathedral of Virginia in Richmond, Va., and Guadalupe Quintanilla, 44, assistant provost at the University of Houston.

Quintanilla, although nominally filling a Democratic seat on the commission, campaigned actively for President Reagan and Republican Texas Gov. William Clements. The sources, asking not to be identified, said that activity raises questions about political partisanship on the commission.

Controversy over an earlier Reagan nominee to the commission ended last February when the Rev. B. Samuel Hart asked that his nomination be withdrawn, and Reagan agreed.

Hart, 50, aroused the opposition of women's, civil rights and homosexual groups after he told a news conference that he opposed the Equal Rights Amendment, that he was against busing to integrate public schools and that he did not consider that homosexuals had a civil rights cause. Published reports later said Hart was behind in loan payments the White House did not know about and had not registered to vote between 1966 and his nomination.

Destro's 1978 testimony before the Judiciary Committee was on behalf of the Catholic organization he directed.

"We are day-to-day becoming more and more aware that religious discrimination is rampant in this country. It is very, very subtle," he said.

Destro also said, "Those who run the commission are apparently so committed to their notion of who should share the 'good life' that they forget that others who do not share their religious beliefs or lack thereof or ethnic origins may be having a rough go of it."

He said, however, that he did not quarrel with the commission's conclusions about blacks, Hispanics or women, although he found the staff research on minority issues to be "shoddy."

The Forecast For Wednesday, July 7

Rain ☂ Snow ❄
Showers ☔ Flurries ❄❄

Fronts: Cold ☐ Warm ☐ Occluded ☐ Stationary ☐

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Wednesday from east Texas to the Great Lakes, and from eastern and southern Florida and western Oregon and Washington. Cool weather is forecast for the Northwest and eastern Plains. Most areas will be warm. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Monday was a good night for eclipse watchers, but forecasts call for partly cloudy skies tonight and Wednesday with a chance of showers along the coast and in the mountains.

Highs today were to reach into the 80s while lows tonight will dip into the 60s. Highs will warm up a few more degrees on Wednesday and may reach 90 over southeastern sections of the state.

Easterly winds at 10 to 20 knots will persist over the coastal waters today. These will become more southeast at 10 to 15 knots tonight and southerly 10 to 15 knots on Wednesday.

Skies stayed mostly clear in the eastern part of the state Monday, but cloudy skies were the rule over western sections of the state. Temperatures dipped into the 60s Monday night but there were a few low 70s in the southeast.

Cloudy skies with scattered showers and thunderstorms Monday held the temperature range to the upper 70s to mid 80s. Some of the warmest readings were in the mountains, where Hot Springs hit 91 and Bryson City 90.

Married On Rollerskates

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Some people try to skate around marriage, but Susan Branch of Morganton and Bobby Simpson of Elizabethton, Tenn., roller-skated right into it this weekend.

Miss Branch, 17, and Simpson, 22, were married at the Pavilion Skating Rink Saturday morning, saying they wanted to get married on roller skates because that's how they met.

"I don't know who thought of it," said the bride. "It just seemed like a good thing to do."

The ceremony began after the lights in the rink were turned down and three candelabra near the disc jockey booth were lighted to form an altar.

Bridesmaids, in full-length pastel-colored gowns, starting from opposite ends of the rink, skated a half loop around the floor, met in the center, and skated to the altar area. The best man and maid of honor were next, followed by the ring bearer and flower girl, who held hands for added support.

With the first strains of the traditional wedding march sounding from the amplifiers, the bride and groom began their skate.

The Rev. Robert M. Tenery, pastor of Burkemont Baptist Church, performed the ceremony, but elected not to use skates.

"I felt I'd better keep my feet on solid ground," he said. "This is the first time I've done a wedding in a skating rink. I told them just as long as I could do it in the Lord's name, I'd marry them here, and they agreed."

After exchanging vows, the couple skated to the music of "Feels So Right" by Alabama and for the reception, everyone was invited to skate.

Babysitter Deaths Said A 'Weird Coincidence'

BLOUNTSTOWN, Fla. (AP) — A teen-age babysitter who has cared for five children who later died says the deaths are "an awful weird coincidence," and she'll continue to babysit if given the chance.

"I know it sounds funny. It's an awful weird coincidence that it always happens to me, but there's really not too much I can do or say about it," said Christine Fallings, 19, in an article in today's edition of the Tampa Tribune.

"I'm not scared to babysit," she said. "Nobody knows if a young 'un is going to die. You can babysit for a young 'un who has never been sick a day in her life and they'll just drop dead on you."

The latest in a string of tragedies involving Miss Fallings was the death of 2-month-old Travis D. Coleman. The infant's body was found Saturday on a small mattress in the kitchen-dining area of the trailer Miss Fallings shares with a man named Robert Johnson. It was Johnson who discovered the body, authorities said.

The baby's 17-year-old mother, fully aware of Miss Fallings' link with four other children's deaths, had asked her to keep the infant overnight while she went out.

"Yes, I knew about Christine and the other babies," the mother, Lisa Coleman, said Sunday. "I just didn't believe it."

Miss Fallings had been the regular babysitter of four other young children, ranging in age from 4 years to 8 months, who later died from myocarditis, inflammation of the tissues around the heart, or encephalitis, an inflammation of the brain. Three others became ill, but survived.

Miss Fallings, a heavyset, junior high school dropout, who suffers from epilepsy and asthma, sees the deaths as just bad luck. "Sometimes I wonder if I don't have some kind of spell over me when I get around young 'uns," she said.

Police investigations into the first four cases have ruled out foul play — the latest is still under investigation.

"She comes from an impoverished background. It's just a very tragic coincidence," said Dr. Fred Boedy, a physician who once treated Miss Fallings. "When you consider the circumstances, it's not so unusual. These are poor people who have a lot of illnesses. The children have chronic respiratory problems, seizures, fevers and colds."

Miss Fallings was given a thorough examination last year by Polk County Health Officials to determine if she carried a deadly virus. The department gave her a clean bill of health in April 1981.

Some county officials have criticized the investigations into the mysterious deaths, saying the probes may have ended too soon, the newspaper said.

Georgia Strickland, a retired nurse, said autopsies in the deaths of the children were not thoroughly made, but only because the victims were poor and could not bear the medical costs of an investigation.

While a probe into the death of young Travis Coleman continues, officials in Polk and Taylor counties say there's no reason to reopen cases of the other dead children, the newspaper said.

Miss Fallings was to appear today in court on check-forgery charges.

"I'll just have to wait and see what they do to me," she said. "Maybe I'll be better off in jail."

Thirteen Killed On N.C. Highways Over Holidays

Included in the fatalities were two motorcyclists, two pedestrians and six people whose cars ran off the road.

The most recent death resulted from a hit-and-run incident in Bladen County at 4:40 a.m. Monday. Alexander Kemp, 28, of Clarkton, was walking on U.S. 701 south of Elizabethton when he was struck and killed by an oncoming vehicle, the patrol said.

Shortly after midnight Monday, Ricardo Williams, 24, of Red Springs, died when his car struck a tree and a house in Hoke County, east of Raeford. Police said Williams was pinned between the tree and the porch of the house.

Haywood Griffing Tongue, 24, of Wendell, died late Sunday night when the car he was driving left N.C. 561 in Halifax County and overturned several times, throwing him from the car.

In other weekend fatalities, Roy Thomas Crouch, 20, of Statesville drove his motorcycle into the path of an oncoming car just north of Statesville on Sunday, leaving Crouch dead and one other person injured.

Thomas Raymond King, 34, of Thomasville died Sunday morning when the car he was driving ran down an embankment, struck a tree and overturned north of Thomasville in Davidson County.

Charles Richard Farmer, 35, of Lexington, died late Saturday night when his car was struck by a train in Davidson County, just north of Lexington.

A Virginia man died Saturday night when the car he was driving crossed the center line of a rural road in Kill Devil Hills and struck an oncoming car head-on. Police identified the victim as Larry Thomas Champ, 20, of Poquoson, Va.

In Robeson County, John Henry Brown, 37, of Red Springs died Saturday afternoon when the motorcycle he was driving struck a parked car near his home.

Virginia Bledsoe, 65, of Rockingham, died Saturday morning when she was struck by a car that cut a swath through three pedestrians before colliding with a parked vehicle. Two other pedestrians were injured in the incident.

Earlier Saturday morning, Onthiel Cedillo, 22, of Wilson, died when the car in which he was a passenger left the road north of Baileys in Nash County. That incident left two others injured, police said.

Michael Ray Taylor, 28, of Gates, died Friday night in Gates County when the car he was driving left the road near Gatesville at a high speed, struck a ditch and overturned.

Tabloid Giving Data To Police

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — The editor of the National Enquirer says the tabloid will provide Los Angeles police officers investigating the death of comedian John Belushi with tapes and transcripts of an interview with the woman who last saw Belushi alive.

The Lantana-based paper announced Monday that it would give detectives the tapes in response to an attorney's claim that the woman, Cathy Evelyn Smith, was misrepresented in an Enquirer story titled: "I Killed John Belushi."

The investigation into Belushi's death was reopened last week after detectives saw the story, in which Ms. Smith was quoted as saying she gave Belushi an injection of illegal drugs the morning he died of an overdose.

Sgt. Frank Reynoso, Los Angeles police watch commander, said a police statement released earlier said that detectives had again interviewed Ms. Smith.

Enquirer editor Iain Calder said the publication decided to "make available" the materials "only in response to statements made by Toronto attorney for Miss Smith in which he claimed that key portions of the Enquirer story were misleading."

Toronto attorney Brian Greenspan said Ms. Smith, who was paid $15,000 by the Enquirer for her interview, planned to bring a libel suit against the tabloid because of alleged misrepresentation.

Greenspan said that during the interviews with the newspaper, Ms. Smith was under the influence of alcohol supplied by her interviewers and was further impaired by drug consumption.

"I don't know if they (reporters) bought her a drink or not, but they did not ply her with liquor," said Calder.

Calder issued a prepared statement responding to the allegations that Ms. Smith was misquoted. "That simply isn't true. Our story is accurate."

"The Enquirer invested some 5,000 man-hours of work looking into Belushi's death. As soon as we learned Cathy Smith was the 'mystery woman' with the comedian just before he died on March 5, we began negotiating with our Los Angeles attorney for an exclusive interview with her. Our negotiations with her attorney broke down after three weeks, but our reporters continued to hunt for her."

In May, a Los Angeles free-lance writer contacted us and said he had a taped interview with Miss Smith which we might find interesting. We found his tapes intriguing, but felt we needed more for a story. We learned Miss Smith was in Toronto, so we flew two staff reporters there to find her."

Calder said the reporters located Ms. Smith and interviewed her for up to 19 hours a day over a 10-day period.

"On tape, Miss Smith admitted that in the hours before Belushi's death, she supplied Belushi with heroin that was used to mix cocaine and heroin 'speedballs' with which he was injected... She injected him with drugs at various times," Calder said.

Hospitalized By Explosion

LAKEWOOD, Ohio (AP) — Two people were hospitalized in stable condition today after a July 4 fireworks explosion that injured 22 people in this Cleveland suburb, police said.

The fireworks, which were to be used as part of display at Lakewood Park, blew up in one gigantic blast after sparks from an initial display ignited other fireworks which were stored nearby, police said.

Lakewood Hospital spokesman said none of those injured appeared to be seriously hurt. Most suffered burns and cuts.

John Weese, 7, of Lakewood, and Larry Badurina, 44, of Columbus, were admitted to Lakewood Hospital. Badurina is an employee of the Columbus Fireworks Display Co. in Marengo, which put on the show.

Lakewood Mayor Anthony C. Sinagra said the first display was a 24-blast salute. Then a spark somehow got to the other fireworks. "Someone yelled to forget it and get back," Sinagra said. "Then the entire unused portion blew up."

Lakewood Police Captain Glen P. Walker said about 30,000 people were in the crowd when the explosion occurred.

"We were right at the fence, about as close as anyone," said William Chincock, a city councilman. "It was like being in the middle of a battlefield."

Chincock said the crowd was about 60 yards away from the display. "That precaution was a life-saver," he said. "Also, nobody panicked."

Previously Guilty Of Killing Woman

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Charlotte police say a man charged in connection with the fatal shooting Sunday night of a 12-year-old girl was sentenced to life in prison in 1966 for killing an 18-year-old woman.

Charlotte Police Capt. Wade Stroud said Otto Withers Jr., 38, served time in state prison for killing of his sister-in-law in Charlotte, and then apparently was released.

Withers was charged Monday with murder and assault with a deadly weapon, inflicting serious injury, police said. He was in Charlotte Memorial Hospital in unsatisfactory condition Monday night with a gunshot wound to the chest, authorities said.

Police said Withers shot himself after shooting Roberta Hartsoe about 4:20 p.m. Sunday. Police said the girl was shot in the back twice and died at the apartment.

Police said Withers also shot Kathryn Hartsoe, 29, the girl's mother, with whom he had been living. She was treated for a minor head wound at Charlotte Memorial Hospital and released, authorities said.

According to a story in today's editions of The Charlotte Observer, Withers shot and killed Rachel Simpson on Aug. 5, 1966, while holding her and some of her relatives hostage. Police also charged Withers with raping and stabbing a relative, the newspaper stories said.

Withers claimed the shooting was an accident, but in December 1966 a Mecklenburg County Superior Court jury convicted him of murder and recommended a life sentence, according to the newspaper accounts.

Because of overcrowded prison conditions, many inmates serving life sentences aren't being confined for life, said Mecklenburg County District Attorney Peter Gilchrist.

Currently, persons given a life sentence must serve 20 years before being eligible for parole. However, before July 1978 persons serving a life sentence had to serve only 10 years before being eligible for parole.

Jetliner Ran Off Runway Radioactivity Is Natural State

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Unusual levels of radioactivity have been noted off Florida's Gulf Coast and in Tampa Bay, but researchers are cautioning against alarm.

"The main implication is that... we have to be a little more concerned about the long-term, low-level exposure," said Kent Fanning of the University of South Florida marine science department.

After a 14-month study, Fanning and colleagues Robert Byrne and Jabe Breland said the cause of the radioactivity is the state's natural deposits of phosphate and the uranium associated with the phosphate. As the formations are mined, radium tends to concentrate in gypsum residue that then is exposed to rain and runoff, the researchers said in a statement released by the university.

One that disappeared after trying to dig its way into the city zoo Saturday. It was about 5 years old and weighed only 60 pounds, about half the normal weight.

May Have Tried Dig Into A Zoo

ALAMOGORDO, N.M. (AP) — A mountain lion killed as it approached a rancher's barbecue site may be the same animal that tried to dig its way into the city zoo, a state official says.

Rancher Cliff McDonald said he was preparing a holiday barbecue Sunday when a mountain lion approached within about 100 feet of his wife and granddaughter.

McDonald went into his house, grabbed a rifle and returned to shoot and kill the animal, authorities said.

Bill Essary, an official of the state Game and Fish Department, said the lion was believed to be the same

Mariners KO Yanks, Take Over Third

By The Associated Press
Seattle may be a nice place to live, but the New York Yankees certainly don't like to visit there.

On the other hand, anywhere Baltimore's Scott McGregor happens to run into the California Angels is paradise.

The Yankees, who have struggled most of the season, had won four in a row when they hit Seattle Monday night. Seattle hit right back. The surprising Mariners rallied for two runs in the seventh inning to knock off the Yankees 5-4 and move into third place in the American League West.

"I hate this ballpark," New York's Lou Piniella said of the Seattle Kingdome, where the Yankees have dropped 20 of 31 games.

Meanwhile, two-run homers by Rick Dempsey, Eddie Murray and Floyd Rayford powered the Baltimore Orioles to an 8-5 victory over California as McGregor recorded his 12th consecutive victory over the Angels.

"After a while it becomes a mental thing and I'm real relaxed when I face them," McGregor said. "This game is best played when you're relaxed."

Julio Cruz singled home the tying run for Seattle with two out in the seventh inning, then stole second and third and scored the winner on Dave Edler's single. Cruz and Edler also singled in the first inning before Bruce Bochte's RBI double. And in the third, following a leadoff walk, Cruz laced an RBI double and scored on a single by Edler.

"I feel good, but all this is just one win," said Manager Rene Lachemann, whose Mariners are only three games out of first place. "Third place on July 5 doesn't mean anything. It's the end of the season that counts. To me, you're a contender when you end the season battling for first place."

But Edler thought otherwise. "Richie Zisk (Seattle's designated hitter) has been telling me this is a team of destiny, and I believe him," Edler said.

New York Manager Gene

Michael was thrown out of the game in the seventh inning by home plate umpire Larry Barnett for continuing an argument started by catcher Butch Wynegar after Barnett called a close pitch a ball to Edler when a strike would have ended the inning.

Dave Winfield and John Mayberry homered for the Yankees.

Orioles 8, Angels 5
The homers by Dempsey, Murray and Rayford helped McGregor boost his career mark against California to 12-2, including the final game of the 1979 AL Championship Series. He scattered 10 hits in 81-3 innings but held the Angels to one run until the ninth. Doug DeCinces, Reggie Jackson and Fred Lynn homered for the Angels.

Red Sox 4-3, Royals 3-4
Frank White drove in three runs and scored twice for Kansas City in the nightcap, after Jim Rice's 11th-inning sacrifice fly gave Boston a 4-3 triumph in the opener in a battle between the AL division leaders. The split enabled the Royals to take a one-game lead over California in the AL West, while Boston's lead over Milwaukee in the AL East was sliced to one-half game.

White hit a two-run homer in the first inning of the second game. With the score tied 2-2 — Carl Yastrzemski homered for one of Boston's runs — Willie Wilson led off the Kansas City fifth with a single, the sixth consecutive game in which he has at least two hits. The speedy Wilson scored all the way from first when White, on a hit-and-run play, slapped the ball between first and second for a single. After a grounder sent White to second, he scored as Hal McRae hit into a force play.

Brewers 10, White Sox 4
Robin Yount belted a two-run homer and Roy Howell hit a solo shot and three singles to lead Milwaukee over the bumbling White Sox, who committed seven errors. Yount singled and scored in a three-run first inning and hit his 13th home run of the season in the second after Marshall Edwards singled. Howell singled a run home in the first inning, singled to set up a run in the third, singled and scored in the fifth and led off the seventh with his third home run as the Brewers pounded Lamarr Hoyt, Steve Trout and Kevin Hickey for 15 hits.

A's 2, Indians 0
Dan Meyer hit a solo home run in the third inning and Mike Heath rapped a run-scoring single in the sixth to back the seven-hit pitching of Tom Underwood and Dave Beard as Oakland handed Cleveland its fourth consecutive setback. The Oakland pitchers outduelled Rick Sutcliffe, who scattered seven hits in a route-going performance.

Twins 5, Tigers 3
Kent Hrbek hit his 17th homer and John Castino drove in a pair of runs with a double, backing the eight-hit pitching of Bobby Castillo and Ron Davis. The Tigers, who have lost 17 of their last 21 games, committed three errors that led to three unearned Minnesota runs. In the Twins' second, Hrbek homered and, with two out, Gary Ward was safe on a throwing error by pitcher Milt Wilcox. Gary Gaetti walked and both runners scored on Castino's double.

Rangers 3, Blue Jays 2
Billy Sample extended his hitting streak to 17 games with a third-inning single which drove in the first run in a three-run burst. Texas' Jon Matlack and Danny Darwin outduelled Toronto's Luis Leal, who yielded only six hits. In the Texas third inning, Larry Parrish was hit by a pitch and forced by Don Werner, who went to third on a single by Mark Wagner and scored on Sample's single.

Twin States Junior Girls Opens At Brook Valley

The Twin States Junior Girls Golf Championship gets underway Wednesday morning at the Brook Valley Country Club, with club champion Susan Corbett as one of the top members of the field.

Paige Marsh of Jamestown, a freshman at the University of North Carolina, is considered the favorite for the tournament, which is open to all girls living in the Carolinas' PGA section, who have not reached their 19th birthday this week.

The field is expected to be about 26, with just over half from South Carolina. The largest contingent from North Carolina includes four from the Charlotte area.

There will be two days of medal play competition for the juniors, ages 13-19, with players flighted according to their handicaps. Expectations are, according to local chairman Mrs. Dot Corbett, that there will be three flights.

In addition, there will be a sub-junior event for girls 10-12, playing nine holes each day. Scharles Cox will be the lone local entrant in that event.

Marsh, who will be joined by her sister Amber in the tournament, was the top player on the UNC women's team this past season, putting together a stroke average of 75. She has won a number of tournaments, gaining the favorite's role in this event.

Other North Carolina girls expected to contest for the championship include Leslie Brown of Charlotte, who shot one of the lowest rounds in the N.C. Amateur recently, finishing third in that event; Margaret Will of Whiteville, and Corbett, who has won the Brook Valley women's club championship for the past two years.

"I'm not that familiar with the South Carolina girls," Mrs. Corbett said. "There will probably be several of them who will be among the top golfers, too."

Tee-off will begin at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday and Thursday. Contestants were allowed a practice round today.

In addition to the tournament proper, there will be several other contests, including a long driving contest on Wednesday at 4 p.m. at the driving range. Others will include a putting contest and a closest to the pin event.

It is believed that this is the first time the tournament has been played east of Raleigh in North Carolina.

State, Campbell Sweep Pairs, Stynch Deadlocked

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Mike Pesavento and Nelson Carlton pitched North Carolina State to a double-header sweep over North Carolina in North State Summer Baseball League action Monday.

N.C. State, now 17-7, took the opener, 4-2, and then won the nightcap, 5-2.

Pesavento struck out eight and walked one while limiting the Tar Heels to three hits in the first game. The victory boosted his record to 6-0.

Pesavento got all the support he needed when Chris Baird, who homered in each game, smacked a three-run roundtripper in the fifth inning.

Mitch McCleney and Todd Wilkinson hit solo homers for North Carolina, now 7-15. Tom Reed took the loss for the Tar Heels, falling to 0-2.

Carlton, 2-1, limited North Carolina to four hits in the second game. Baird hit a 2-run homer in the fifth and Tracy Black added a solo shot in the seventh for the Wolfpack.

Chris Mench absorbed the loss for North Carolina, his record dropping to 2-3.

Both clubs carry 17-7 records. Campbell had taken a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning of the opener on a fielder's choice and a single by Lynch. Mo Marshburn tied it for the Seahawks in the seventh with a 2-run single.

Joe Stephenson, 4-1, was the winning pitcher as he struck out six, walked four and scattered six hits.

Carl Willis had a no-hitter for five innings as Wilmington, now 12-13, built a 3-0 lead in the nightcap before Wilkes turned it around.

Pitt, Snow Hill Open Playoff Series Thursday

Pitt County, co-American Legion champions, will play host to Snow Hill Thursday evening in the second round of the Area 1 East American Legion playoffs.

The best-of-three series gets under way Thursday at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field. Game No. 2 is set for Friday night at Snow Hill. A third game is tentatively set for Saturday.

However, a conflict may arise if a third game is necessary. East Carolina plays a twin bill with North Carolina Saturday night at Harrington — where the legion playoff game would also be held.

Snow Hill advanced to the round No. 2 of the playoffs after Edenton forfeited the best-of-three opening-round series this past weekend.

Pitt County, which tied with Wilson for regular season championship, had an opening-round bye. Pitt County won a coin-toss to gain the No. 1 seed in the tournament. Wilson is seeded No. 2.

In the other playoff bracket, Wilson will play host to Rocky Mount Friday night and the two teams will then move on to Rocky Mount Saturday. If a third game is necessary it will be played Sunday in Wilson.

Rocky Mount swept Wayne County, 2-0, in the first round. Wilson had a bye in the opening round.

The winner of the Pitt County-Snow Hill series will take on the survivor of the Wilson-Rocky Mount series in a best three-of-five series. The winner there advances to the first round of the state playoffs.

Hubbard's Bad Night Okay For Braves

By The Associated Press
Glenn Hubbard had a bad night. The Atlanta Braves only wish that all his nights can be so bad.

"A home run is a bad swing for me," said the Braves' 5-foot-8 second baseman, whose two-run homer in the seventh inning lifted Atlanta to its sixth straight victory, a 7-5 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

"Seriously, a home run is an uppercut and that's bad for me," Hubbard said. "I'm no home-run hitter and every time I hit one my shoulder starts flying up. I'll have to come up tomorrow and get extra batting practice to try and get to hitting line drives again."

"I'll take one-a-day anytime though," Hubbard said with a grin.

Hubbard's homer, a blast off Cub starter Lee Smith, 1-5, made a winner of reliever Al Hrabosky, 2-0.

Bob Horner belted his 17th homer of the year — and his sixth in five games — for the Braves, who maintained a 4½-game lead over second-place San Diego in the National League West.

Cardinals 6, Reds 5
St. Louis shortstop Ozzie Smith, whose ninth-inning error forced the game into extra innings, singled home the winning run in the 10th as the Cards sent the Reds to their eighth straight defeat.

"What a game, huh?" said Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog after his club had moved to within .001 of first-place Philadelphia in the NL East.

The Cardinals grabbed a 5-3 lead in the seventh, let the Reds tie it with error-aided runs in the eighth and ninth, then relied on Smith's single off reliever Tom Hume, 1-4, to win it.

"That was a nail-biter," said Cardinals third baseman Mike Ramsey. "We'd score, but they kept on scoring. It was a see-saw game."

Jim Kaat, 3-1, pitched the ninth inning to post the victory. Doug Bair notched his third save.

Giants 3, Phillies 1
San Francisco's Bill Laskey, 7-5, silenced the biggest regular-season crowd in Veterans Stadium history by limiting the Phillies to one run on eight hits.

"He's as good as he looks," said Giant Manager Frank Robinson of the 6-foot-5 Laskey, who joined the club in late April.

Chili Davis' leadoff triple triggered a two-run, sixth-inning rally that carried the Giants over loser Dick Ruthven, 6-7.

The holiday crowd of 63,501 — drawn in part by a post-game fireworks show — broke the stadium regular-season mark of 63,346, set Aug. 10, 1979 against Pittsburgh.

Padres 8, Expos 6
The second-place Padres kept pace with the Braves in the NL West as they erupted for six runs in the seventh inning to key their victory over slumping Montreal.

"We didn't get to sleep until six this morning after our flight was delayed coming here," said Padres Manager Dick Williams. "We finally found our legs in the seventh inning."

"We've been down in a lot of ball games this year and we've come back," said Ruppert Jones, who capped the rally with an RBI single. "We're going to play until the last out. Once you start winning, you develop confidence and feel you can win all the time."

The defeat was the 11th in 14 games for the Expos, who fell three games behind pace-setting Philadelphia and St. Louis in the National League East.

Reliever Floyd Chiffer, 3-1, got the victory. Gary Lucas, the fifth Padre pitcher, picked up his 12th save. Montreal's Gary Carter slammed a two-run homer, his 18th.

Dodgers 4, Mets 1
Home runs by Ron Cey and Mike Marshall helped Bob Welch to the victory and, according to Dodger manager Tom Lasorda, sounded a pair of warning shots for the rest of the NL West.

"The chase is on," said Lasorda. "We're in the hunt and they will be hearing our footsteps before the season is over. We got some timely hitting and Welch pitched an outstanding ballgame tonight. That's just what we needed but we have to keep executing and play like we're capable of."

Lasorda's defending world champions, who have been struggling for most of the year, moved four games over .500 and remained eight games behind first-place Atlanta.

"I believe that we can catch the Braves," said Lasorda. "It's a long season and there are still 80 games to go."

Welch, 9-5, struck out eight and walked two in a route-going performance. Pete Falcone, 4-6, took the loss.

Astros 6, Pirates 4
When Omar Moreno and Johnny Ray led off the Pirates' first inning with consecutive home runs, Houston pitcher Joe Niekro had doubts that the situation would get better.

"You step back in a situation like that and say, 'It might be a bad day at the office,'" said Niekro.

But it wasn't. Niekro and the Astros went on to defeat the Pirates 6-4 with the aid of a two-run homer by Jose Cruz and a three-run shot by Phil Garner.

Niekro, 7-6, settled down to turn in a complete-game victory, scattering nine hits and striking out six.

Italy Pulls Off Biggest Upset, Ousts Favored Brazil From Field

MADRID, Spain (AP) — In a tournament which has had no shortage of upsets, Italy turned in the biggest of them all when it blew favorite Brazil out of the World Cup soccer championships.

Paulo Rossi, who resumed playing two months ago after a two-year suspension for his involvement in a bribery scandal, scored all three goals for Italy in Monday's 3-2 shocker that put the Italians into the semifinals.

Both coaches agreed after the spine-tingling thriller that Brazil's hunger for its fifth straight victory had been its undoing. Playing desperately for a victory when a tie would have been enough, the South Americans spent too much time surrounding the Italian goal and let the slippery Rossi roam free.

Spain, meanwhile, made peace with its fans by battling England to a scoreless tie — a result which meant nothing for Spain in the standings, but which sent England home and gave West Germany a place among the Final Four.

Poland on Sunday fought the Soviet Union to a 0-0 tie to nail down a semifinal berth, while a surprisingly powerful French team swamped Northern Ireland 4-1 to advance.

That set up the first all-European semifinals since 1966, and gave the Europeans bragging rights in the eternal debate over the merits of European and South American soccer.

The semifinals on Thursday will match Poland and Italy in Barcelona — a rematch of their 0-0 first-round meeting — and France vs. West Germany in Seville. The losers play for third place Saturday in Alicante then the winners go at it for the Cup Sunday in Madrid.

None of those matches figures to top the drama or the shock of the Italian victory in Barcelona.

Italy began with three ties, then beat defending champion Argentina 2-1. Brazil had four straight victories in this tournament, had not lost a World Cup match since 1974 and had not missed the Cup semifinals since 1966. It was generally conceded before start of the tournament that Brazil's talent and innovation put it above the other 23 teams in the tournament.

Rossi scored in the fifth, 25th and 75th minutes. Brazil's Socrates matched the first goal in the 12th minute, Roberto Falcao tied the score again in the 67th minute, but a furious Brazilian assault on the goal was unable to equal Rossi's third goal.

"In the second half, we were playing well and we deserved to tie the score," said Brazilian coach Tele Santana. "We then tried to win and we clashed against the Italian defense which was playing at its best."

"I've always said Brazil was not unbeatable. Today we've found a great player like Rossi in our path," Santana added.

"We had the chance to go 3-1 twice, but we blew them," said Italian coach Enzo Bearzot, who weathered a storm of criticism in his nation's press after Italy played its first three matches to draws. "But after the 2-2 tie, Brazil felt they could win and they couldn't."

"They tried hard, neglecting all precautions in defense, leaving wide gaps and we scored not just another goal, but two good ones, and we missed a few more," said Bearzot.

Brazil, which won the Cup in 1958, 1962 and 1970, was a runaway favorite to become the first team to win four. Now, West Germany, winners in 1954 and 1974, and Italy, champions of 1934 and 1938, have a chance to match Brazil's record of three.

England also played desperately for a victory, which it needed advance, but was frustrated by a determined Spanish defense egged on by flag-waving countrymen who nearly filled the 90,000-seat Santiago Bernabeu Stadium.

The Spanish, who had lost twice and whose one win and one tie were tainted by controversial officiating, treated the 0-0 tie with England as a victory.

"The Spaniards had nothing to lose, except maybe a little pride," said England manager Ron Greenwood. "I don't think they were interested in anything but stopping us scoring."

The English team's departure from the stadium was delayed by some 200 Spanish fans who surrounded the bus, made obscene gestures and chanted "Argentina" and "Gibraltar is Spanish." National police, who had clubbed a few English fans during the evening, waited 20 minutes before gently dispersing the crowd around the bus.

Lot Of Guys Dressed For No. 1, But Who's Really Best In Tennis

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors is the new Wimbledon tennis champion, but who's No. 1?

Is it John McEnroe, the beaten finalist, who was so rated on the 1981 ATP computer and into half of 1982 before losing to Connors in the Wimbledon final?

Is it Bjorn Borg, the five-time Wimbledon and six-time French titleholder who, for reasons of pride, decided to sit this one out?

How about Ivan Lendl, the sensational young Czech who won nine straight tournaments before being so unceremoniously halted by Sweden's "Whiz Kid," Mats Wilander, in the French championships?

Or Guillermo Vilas, Argentina's comeback topspin clay court specialist who won 45 consecutive matches before also losing to Wilander at Paris?

Or maybe Connors, who now has beaten McEnroe twice in three weeks, the last time at the Queen's Club?

This is the mess that bigtime men's tennis finds itself today — a lot of guys all dressed up with no place to go.

There's no true champion, no No. 1.

This is one of tennis' tragedies, emphasized over the weekend here by Fred Perry, the great British champion who dominated the game in the early 1930s.

"A true champion," Perry said, "can't be a part player. He must be an all-around champion, capable of winning on any surface. We don't have that now nor the prospect of one any time soon."

"Today's players pick the tournaments on the surface they like. They dodge the surfaces they don't like. Furthermore, they have no feeling for tradition. They skip tournaments such as the French, Wimbledon and Australian without a second thought to play an exhibition somewhere."

"Only in the major events can a true champion emerge."

This year, Borg, who won five straight Wimbledon men's titles, chose not to play rather than qualify under existing rules. Lendl, with a marvelous game and record, used the lame excuse that he was allergic to grass.

Argentina's Guillermo Vilas and Jose-Luis Clerc had legitimate reasons because the bitterness of the Falklands war between their country and Britain was still too fresh. America's Eliot Teltscher, a high-ranking Davis Cupper, gave no excuse.

"I had to admire Vijay Amritraj," said Perry, referring to the handsome Indian star. "He had to qualify and he did. That's the kind of spirit the game needs."

The last ATP (Association of Tennis Professionals) had McEnroe No. 1 and Connors No. 2, with Lendl and Vilas following. But a new computer ranking introduced by World Championship Tennis, covering all tournaments in the world with a $25,000 or over prize list, had Lendl No. 1, Connors No. 2.

Brown & Wood took a 2-0 lead in the home half of the first inning on Mike Hathaway's 2-run single. It stayed that way until the third, when Planters struck for four runs without a hit.

The inning was keyed by five walks and two hit batsmen. There was also a passed ball and a wild pitch.

Planters upped its lead to 6-2 in the fourth on Jimmy Best's RBI single and pushed its lead to 9-2 in the fourth. Brown & Wood scored its final run in the seventh.

Hathaway had three hits to lead Brown & Wood. Jordy Smith had two hits to lead Planters.

Wachovia 19
Famous Subs 11
Wachovia scored 12 runs over the final four innings to erase a three-run deficit and went on to defeat Famous Subs, 19-11, Monday in the first round of the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

The double-elimination tournament continues Wednesday.

Famous Subs trailed, 6-1, going into the bottom of the second but exploded for eight runs to take a 9-6 lead. The inning was keyed by Maury Harris' two-run double and singles by Tommy Warren, Evan Hause and Kevin Lang.

Wachovia cut the gap to 9-7 with a run in the third and then tied the game with two runs in the fourth. Dwight Smith singled and came around to score on a passed ball. Then, with two gone, Duane Roeser walked and later scored on a passed ball to tie the game.

Wachovia took the lead one inning later with four runs. Smith doubled home two runs to spark the four-run uprising that made it 13-9.

After Famous Subs scored a run in the bottom of the inning, Wachovia scored four more runs in the sixth to up its lead to 17-10.

Famous Subs scored its final run in the bottom of the inning. Wachovia added two runs in the seventh.

Harris and Warren had two hits for Famous Subs. Tom Moore and Smith had two hits for Wachovia.

Milwaukee Pounds Out Home Run After Homer

By The Associated Press
The Milwaukee Brewers one day may well have their place in the record books alongside such outstanding power teams of baseball as the 1947 New York Giants, 1956 Cincinnati Reds and 1961 New York Yankees.

But Robin Yount is having too much fun these days to think about what history will say about the team.

"It sure makes baseball fun," says the Milwaukee shortstop, in reference to the Brewers' prodigious power display this year. "It's exciting to know we're in every game, no matter what."

With 114 home runs in their first 77 games, the Brewers are a longshot challenge to the Yankees' mountainous major league record of 240 set in 1961. More realistically, they may very well become the second-best home run-hitting team in history.

The Giants of 1947 and the Reds of 1956 each hit 221, perhaps within the Brewers' reach the way they're going. In fact, the Brewers' recent spurge of 35 homers in 15 games tied a major league mark set by the '47 Giants.

"It's the best power team I've ever seen and I've been on some good ones," says Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn, who played with Willie Mays and Willie McCovey on the slugging San Francisco Giant clubs of the early 1960s.

Similar to the other legendary power teams, not only the 3-4-5 hitters are dangerous on the Brewers. Starting with leadoff man Paul Molitor, any of the top seven hitters are threats to hit the ball out.

"They are the most awesome hitting team I've ever seen," says relief star Goose Gossage of the New York Yankees. "All you can do is throw the ball and hope that they hit it at somebody."

The top three long-ball hitters of this team are Cecil Cooper, Gorman Thomas and Ben Oglivie, Nos. 3-4-5 in the order. But Yount is no slouch, either, nor are Don Money and Ted Simmons among the regulars. Roy Howell can always come off the bench and hit the long ball, too.

"This club has changed a lot in the last four-five years," Money says. "We've always had good hitters — but I've never seen anything like this."

"We don't go up consciously to hit home runs, though. I think most of us just go up trying to hit the ball hard. If you do that, you'll hit home runs. But you don't go up thinking, 'Now I'm going to hit one out.' That's usually when you don't hit a homer."

Cooper, Thomas and Oglivie, of course, have been the keys to the success of this powerhouse team nicknamed "Harvey's Wallbangers."

Cooper is more the scientific hitter of the bunch and usually not only delivers the long ball, but hits for average as well. He had a .352 batting average in 1980 that was largely unappreciated because that was the year George Brett hit a remarkable .390 for Kansas City.

The smooth left-handed hitter is constantly looking for an edge over the pitcher.

"I think that I get every bit of margin out of every swing," he says. "I try to know the pitcher and know what they will throw me. I want to have the law of averages on my side."

"The big thing about my game is consistency. I want to be recognized as a guy who will do it year after year. To me, that's the mark of the ultimate ballplayer."

Cooper, a first baseman, has hit .300 in six of his last seven seasons and has a .307 lifetime batting average.

The quintessential No. 4 hitter, Thomas is cut from a different mold than Cooper.

"I never hit much for average, but that's not what they want from me," says the mustachioed center fielder. "I gotta give them the long balls and RBIs."

Thomas always showed power, but was a wild, free swinger in his earlier days when he was originally drafted in the 1969 draft by the Seattle Pilots, a one-year team. Low batting averages with Milwaukee in 1975 and 1976 send him back to the minors, at Spokane, in 1977, before he galvanized his game.

"I had to wait off more bad balls and try to do more with the good ones I swung at," Thomas says.

The brawny Thomas responded with 36, 32 and 45 homers his next three years, winning the American League home run title with his 45 in 1979.

"He goes up there swinging," says Kuenn of Thomas. "He starts out swinging in the dugout and he doesn't stop until the game is over."

Oglivie is more in the Cooper mold — perhaps a bit more wiry at 6-foot-2 and 170 pounds. He hits for average, although usually not as high as Cooper. The outfielder's biggest home run season was 1980, when he tied for the league lead with 41.

Milwaukee relief ace Rollie Fingers is glad he doesn't have to pitch against this modern version of "Murderer's Row."

"I've never seen this many runs this early," said Fingers recently in the midst of a Brewer spurge in which they scored 71 runs over an eight-game span.

"This ballclub is capable of coming back from six- and seven-run deficits. We're not out of any game. It's the best, power-wise, I've seen."

Pair Take Putt Win

Bobby Ippock and Danny Pollard combined to shoot a 29-under-par 79 to edge David Manning and Robbie Erhmann by one stroke in the Monday Night Bestball Tournament at the Greenville Putt last night.

The run for first place was a tight three team race for all three rounds as the lead changed after each round.

Ippock and Pollard carded a 26 in the first round to lead Manning and Erhmann by one stroke, along with Jake Loftin and Mike Shane, who also shot a 27 to tie for second.

In the second round, Manning and Erhmann moved into a one-stroke lead with a 26 for a 53, 19 under par. Ippock and Pollard, with a 28, and Loftin and Shane with a 27, were tied for second at 54.

The decisive third round saw Ippock and Pollard regain the lead with a 25, while Manning and Erhmann finished with a 27 to take second.

Loftin and Shane finished three strokes off the pace with a 28. Robert Beacham, shooting twice since there was an add number of players, came in fourth with an 85, while Rodney Hooks and Robbie Moye tied Tim Brock and David Beacham with an 87.

Book Huckster Says Election Story Was Missed By Media

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Critics and moralists deplore television as the most fearsome engine of destruction since the Golden Horde, but in Jeff Greenfield's book, the medium is just a tired old huckster in a fright wig. The book is titled "The Real Campaign," or "How the Media Missed the Story of the 1980 Campaign." It, too, tars TV, but not with the customary brush. NBC's call of a Reagan victory before West Coast polls closed, ABC's dubious "survey" following the Reagan-Carter debates and everybody's instant analysis of what the candidates really meant left the distinct impression TV anchor people, not voters, elected the president. Greenfield, who is to research what a pit bull is to a dogfight, handled political analysis for CBS during the campaign and what he saw was straight out of Wonderland. "Politicians and journalists have bought into the myth that all politics has become marketing — that the media is the campaign... that what happens on television determines who gets elected president," he said. "If you look at the 1980 campaign — really look at what was on television and what was in the mass media and what happened, you discover a rather remarkable fact: the media had almost no impact in determining who got elected president." Greenfield said the campaign, far from being a slickly packaged media event, was "a classic political election" in which newspapers and TV alike completely overlooked the real story. "It is explainable much more in terms of underlying political currents and shifts in party allegiances, the relative collapse of the Democratic party base, the bankruptcy of their ideas and the state of the economy," he said. "Most of the things we were sure about — in terms of television — turned out not to be so." Greenfield's favorite example is the belief a candidate seals his doom if he fumbles on TV. "Reagan, far from being a skilled actor, made as many flubs and stumbles in his use of television as any other candidate — maybe more," Greenfield said. "He went on ABC's 'Issues and Answers' and he couldn't remember the tax-cut argument he made in his own commercials. He kept calling Vietnam 'Korea' and Afghanistan 'Pakistan,' and he couldn't remember what was in the GI Bill of Rights." "He went through the campaign making mistakes every day, but the underlying political base remained loyal. People didn't care." Greenfield said the political spots that litter the tube at election time may be the most important service provided by the networks for the voters. "I have the revisionist-heretical view that sometimes politicians make arguments because they believe in them," he said. "The great shock in 1981 to the press corps was that Ronald Reagan intended — and still intends — to implement what he said he was going to do. "That is why the much maligned political commercial, where a candidate will buy 5 minutes or 30 minutes and try to set out a case, often means more to a voter trying to make up his mind than the press coverage, which is a 20-second sound bite followed by a poll — one of the last 850 — followed by an explanation of what the strategy is to win votes of suburban Catholics in the Midwest." Greenfield doesn't deny TV is a key outlet of information. He simply isn't convinced it manipulates in any area of real importance. "Politicians and journalists alike say, 'Oh, look what he's doing on TV. He's trying to manipulate us,'" Greenfield said. "What they don't ask is, 'Is it working?' "People understand the reality of their own lives. If they're out of work or if their paycheck isn't buying as much as it used to buy, you can't convince them otherwise with a slick media campaign. "The choice of toilet paper is not what I would consider a consequential issue. If Mr. Whipple goes on television and squeezes toilet paper, somebody may go out and buy Charmin, but that's it." Greenfield said violence on TV, like politics, also is overstated. "I think you can say violence on television influences some people with a predisposition toward aggressive behavior to be aggressive," he said. "But I think the notion that it's turned us into a nation of thugs is 'way over the mark." Greenfield urges legislation mandating voting booths in all time zones open and close at the same time and, above all, that TV newsmen break their addiction to polls. "I'd love to see them pay much less attention to cutting open the entrails of frogs a year before the first primary to divine who's winning," he said. "Television could be the form through which we have some real honest-to-God political discourse."

'Happy Days' Tackles New Twist With Social Consciousness Turn

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When "Happy Days" tackles a black-white issue, you'd expect the ABC sitcom to do a show on the difference between chocolate and vanilla ice cream sodas. But in a rerun tonight, the long-running hit ditches its motorcycle jacket for a cloak of social consciousness, and it works, proving that talented people can do meaningful comedy when the mood and network allow. The "Southern Crossing" episode, originally broadcast Jan. 12, has Fonzie (Henry Winkler) and Al (Al Molinaro) participating in a civil rights demonstration in the South. Most "Happy Days" episodes are not intended to generate deep thinking, but this one is a touching, semi-intelligent offering.

And, not coincidentally, it raised a lot of hackles at ABC and Paramount, which produces the show. Some executives feared they were betraying the "Happy Days" audience. Some felt the story line was too blunt, too controversial, while others felt the program was trivializing a serious subject. "The question was whether 'Happy Days' was the appropriate vehicle for this kind of event," says Al Schneider, an ABC vice president who heads the network's broadcast practices and standards. "Series — particularly entertainment sitcoms — should be expositions and not advocates for a particular message." The eventual tradeoff was to inject some silly "Happy Days" humor into a weightier script, thus making certain things didn't get too heavy. "We told them they could do it, but the show had to be developed with personal humanism, rather than the issues of the time," says Schneider. "The reason the show is being done is for the people, and not as reminders of the problems from that era." So, when Al is confronted by segregation in a coffee shop, he makes an impassioned speech. He says how restaurant discrimination runs counter to the lofty ideals of the food-service business before adding:

"And, furthermore, there's a fly in the salt shaker." And to make sure nobody mistakes "Happy Days" for "Lou Grant," Howard is around for comic relief and a reminder that the show generally teaches lessons as meaningful as the value of frequent oil changes. Tom Bosley's character spends the entire show mooning over his busted TV set. For all ABC's trepidations, it appears the network may have misread the audience. Just because viewers accept standard TV doesn't mean they'll reject quality. The original broadcast of tonight's episode finished 21st for its week, which is identical to the series' ranking for the 1981-82 season. Another indicator was that of the 21 letters ABC received on "Southern Crossing," 20 were favorable. One letter summed up the positive response: "Congratulations. (It) was done with warmth, humor and dignity." Credit for the initiative goes to Garry Marshall, the executive producer on "Happy Days," as well as "Laverne and Shirley," and "Mork & Mindy." Several years ago, Marshall moved "Happy Days" from the goldfish-swallowing days of the 1950s to the unrest of the '60s. He also opted for occasional socially significant stories, explaining to the Los Angeles Times that he wanted to "give something back to the audiences that had been so good to 'Happy Days." He recalled how one episode, in which Fonzie got a library card, illustrated "the incredible power of the show... We began to get letters from all over the country telling us that they were being swamped with kids coming in to get library cards." But, Marshall said, the network prefers the safety of the softer shows. "To them, these are non-hype shows. They like (when) Richie and Fonzie get trapped in a girls' dormitory in dresses. They're always watching over our shoulders on these shows."

Haydn Find

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An encounter between a Melbourne woman and a British harpsichordist produced four original manuscripts of the 18th century composer Joseph Haydn, worth more than $300,000, according to press reports. An Australian newspaper said authenticity of the manuscripts of Haydn's Opus 50 string quartets was verified by Dr. George Feder of the Joseph Haydn Institute in Cologne, West Germany, who was attending a conference of the Australian Musicological Society when a woman approached British harpsichordist Christopher Hogwood outside a theater here during a conference and pulled a book containing the manuscripts out of a plastic shopping bag. It quoted Hogwood's Australian representative, Greg Hocking, as saying the book has been in the family of its owner, who wished to remain anonymous, for about 200 years. Haydn died 250 years ago.

When you spot a line of play that offers a 3-to-1 chance of success, you tend to think that that is good enough. But there may be a better line available.

The auction was straightforward. After South rebid his hearts, North felt that his excellent trump support and outside aces merited a raise. South was full value for his spuit to game.

West led a club and declarer won the ace in dummy. He came to hand with a club ruff and led the jack of trumps, covered by the king and won by the ace. Declarer returned to his hand with the ten of trumps and ran the jack of diamonds. West won and exited with a spade.

The long and short of it is that declarer lost two tricks in spades and diamonds for down one. He felt hard done by, since it was better than a 75 percent chance that West held one of the diamond honors. To improve the odds even further, declarer would still have made the contract after the spade shift if East had one of the spade honors.

The hand would have been written off as merely unlucky had there not been a kibitzer present. He suggested that declarer could have made the contract by ruffing out the last club and then playing ace of spades and another, setting up the fourth spade for a diamond discard. The players felt that that would not succeed on some other distributions.

The kibitzer was right, but for the wrong reasons. Once the heart king appears, declarer should ruff dummy's last club, draw trumps and then play ace of spades and another. Let's suppose that East has the worst possible holding for declarer: K Q 9 x in the suit. He can capture the ten with the queen, cash the king, then exit with the nine. But declarer ruffs and runs the jack of diamonds. If an honor appears from West, declarer loses only one diamond. If West plays low and East wins the trick, he is end played. A diamond is into declarer's combined tenace; any other return allows declarer to ruff in one hand while getting rid of his diamond loser from the other.

Thus we see that the play of ace and another spade guarantees the contract regardless of the distribution. Try it for yourself.

Man Charged In Safe Theft

Greenville police Saturday afternoon arrested Kenneth Antonio Hester, 21, of N6 Wilson Acres on charges of breaking, entering and larceny and safe cracking in connection with the Friday theft of a safe from the Wilson Acres Apartments office.

Chief Glenn Cannon reported Friday that someone entered the apartments' office before dawn and removed a small safe, which contained about $29 in change.

He said today that Hester was arrested about 1 p.m. Saturday in connection with the theft after he allegedly used an acetylene cutting torch to gain entrance to the safe.

FOCUS

First Lady's Day

The First Lady celebrates her 59th birthday today. Although some sources indicate that Nancy Reagan is actually 61 years old, in any case she seems remarkably fit and active. But perhaps the liveliest First Lady in America's history was Dolley Madison. For 16 years she served as White House hostess for both Thomas Jefferson, a widower, and her own husband. When the British marched on Washington, D.C., in 1814, she remained even after her bodyguards had fled. The British troops were almost within sight of her spyglass when she finally departed, rescuing important government documents and the Gilbert Stuart portrait of Washington from the flames that would soon engulf the White House.

Mostly Down In Boating Toll

NEW YORK (UPI) - Ninety percent of all fatalities attributable to boating accidents result from drowning, an insurance trade group says.

Coast Guard reports for last year indicate about 288 deaths resulted from falls overboard and 467 were caused by a boat's capsizing.

Preliminary Coast Guard statistics show boating accidents declined slightly last year, to 5,128, compared with 5,513 in 1980.

The Insurance Information Institute theorized that the reduction may be partly due to a decrease in boating activity caused by high fuel prices last summer.

A clear trend appeared then toward dockside parties and other in-port activities, especially among owners of larger, fuel-guzzling boats.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 7, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a great deal of ingenuity and resourcefulness now and you would be wise to use modern methods to help achieve your aims. Avoid acting in an unpredictable manner.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal time to handle detailed work that is important to you. Don't do anything that could upset existing conditions.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study your surroundings and make needed improvements. A new interest is appealing, but don't make any changes now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Plan outside recreations that appeal to you and be more enthused about them. Do something thoughtful for family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to be alert to put your affairs in proper order today. Exercise your best manners in dealing with others.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study your monetary status well, and be sure not to invest more heavily than you can afford. Evening is fine for entertainment.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Some existing conditions could cause you to make radical changes, but this would be unwise. Take needed health treatments.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Instead of feeling frustrated over existing conditions, get busy and do the work that faces you. Be logical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show more consideration for associates and gain their backing for a very important project you have in mind.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't neglect to handle an important civic matter today. Avoid a temptation to spend more money than you can afford.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new projects that could increase your income in the days ahead. Don't lose your temper with anyone today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Make sure you handle your responsibilities well at this time. Don't let others take unfair advantage of you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Talk matters over with associates so you'll know exactly what is expected of you. Don't waste time on unimportant matters.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she could develop conflicting emotions, and it would be wise for you to teach how to distinguish one from another, otherwise your progeny could fall short of reaching goals. Give the best education you can afford.

Outraged Over Prison Action

DETROIT (AP) - A judge says he is outraged because a woman he sent to prison for cruelty to her daughter is being released for classes during the week.

"Sentences mean nothing to the Department of Corrections. It negates respect for the courts when you put the individual right back into her community. It's an absolute disgrace," said Detroit Recorder's Judge Michael Talbot, who sentenced Carolina Ortiz to prison eight months ago.

However, state corrections officials said the woman had been imprisoned long enough to qualify for a pre-release program designed to help inmates adjust to the community prior to parole or the end of their sentences.

Mrs. Ortiz, 38, pleaded guilty on Sept. 23 to child cruelty involving her 3-year-old daughter, Rafaela, who was found starving and covered with feces in the woman's west side Detroit home.

Rafaela weighed 13 pounds, 5 ounces when she was found in a dark, filthy-strewn bedroom of the Ortiz home, authorities said. She was hospitalized, suffering from what doctors said was malnutrition.

The child now is recovered and awaits adoption in a foster care home, said Annette Piper, deputy director of the Wayne County Department of Children and Youth Services.

Mrs. Ortiz began serving a 2-to-4-year prison term in October, but was transferred to the Detroit Women's Corrections Center, on June 14 through the pre-release program.

The woman is allowed to commute to the Latino Outreach Community Program for reading and writing lessons during the week and may visit an older daughter on weekends, corrections officials said.

Mrs. Ortiz "clearly needs a great deal of help reintegrating back into society," said Cal Goddard, a spokesman for the corrections department. "There was a language barrier to her learning any skills in prison and we don't have the kind of program that Latino Outreach offers," Goddard said.

A woman at the Latino Outreach program, who identified herself on the telephone as one of Mrs. Ortiz's daughters, said: "I happen to think she's (Mrs. Ortiz) doing good. I wouldn't want the press around her, so you can just forget about coming down here, OK?"

'Layered Look' To Be Modified

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) - The layered look in women's wear will still be around this fall, but without the previous overpowering combinations, says an extension clothing specialist.

She also suggests conservatism in color choices if you plan to wear new purchases over a long period. In leathers, for example, the more muted, metallic colors shown for fall will be less versatile over a long time frame than classics such as camels, khakis, wines and black.

Fireworks Caused Damage, Injuries Over Holiday

By JUDY GIBBS
Associated Press Writer
Americans gathered on beaches, in parks and at fairs, dodging stray bullets, wayward skyrockets and errant sharks as a three-day Fourth of July weekend marred by fires and injuries came to an end.

At least 415 people were killed on the nation's highways, according to a tally by the Associated Press.

A fire set by bottle rockets burned two city blocks in Houston on Monday, leveling two homes and damaging three others, while a sightseeing boat in New York City crashed into a pier, injuring about 25 of the holiday passengers.

"We got some spent bottle rockets as evidence," said arson investigator D.R. Whiteley of Houston. He said the rockets landed on the roof of one house and sparks blown by a strong breeze quickly ignited the wood shingle roofs of neighboring homes.

The skipper of the Circle Line sightseeing boat apparently lost control of the vessel Monday as it maneuvered toward its Hudson River pier after the around-Manhattan voyage. None of those injured was reported hospitalized.

Fireworks backfired in several cities where crowds had gathered to watch the traditional displays.

In Shreveport, La., spectators cheered when a skyrocket exploded on the launch pad, detonating dozens of other fireworks and setting a spectacular fire, mistaken by the crowd for part of the display.

"They must have thought it was the grand finale," said fire Chief J.A. Starks of nearby Bossier City. "What they didn't know was that we were running for our lives."

A 12-year-old girl suffered third-degree burns when a canister from a spent rocket fell on her as she watched a fireworks display in Longview, Wash. The girl, Katy Hudson of Tumwater, will need plastic surgery to repair the burn damage, said her father.

Another fireworks-watcher, 2-year-old Eric Hutchins of Downers Grove, Ill., was in serious condition after a bullet, apparently shot into the air by a holiday celebrant, hit him in the head.

"I was holding Eric, looking north up towards where the fireworks were going to be," said Richard Hutchins, the boy's father. When the shot struck, Hutchins said, "I thought a firecracker had exploded by his face."

At least six people were burned when a canister from a fireworks display fell smoking into a crowd of spectators in Austintown, Ohio, officials said. One woman was taken by ambulance to a local hospital, but her injuries did not appear to be serious, said Joe Korleski, a medic.

A despondent New York City man put an M-80 firecracker in his mouth, lit it and blew off the top of his head in front of his ex-girlfriend's home, police said. An M-80 has the power of one-third of a stick of dynamite.

The man, Robert Stuart Jr., 30, apparently was despondent about breaking up with his girlfriend, to whom he left a note "consistent with a suicide note," said Chief Medical Examiner Elliot Gross.

Elsewhere, Americans packed beaches in California and fairs in the Midwest to celebrate the Fourth.

Stinson Beach, north of San Francisco, was closed to swimmers all weekend after killer sharks were sighted off shore, but 7,000 sunbathers flocked to the area anyway on Monday.

The swimming ban was imposed Friday after headless seals washed up on the beach and fishermen reported seeing three great white sharks within 30 feet of the shore.

In Southern California, an estimated half a million people crowded beaches from Marina del Rey to Topanga on Sunday, and another 200,000 came on Monday to enjoy the crystal-clear weather. Los Angeles County lifeguards said they rescued more than 800 swimmers over the weekend.

Just off one crowded beach in Santa Monica, a twin-engine plane lost power and crashed into the water, narrowly missing the throngs on shore. The pilot, Ross Phillips, 52, was reported in satisfactory condition at Santa Monica Medical Center.

An estimated 4 million people attended a weekend-long fair beneath the Gateway Arch on the banks of the Mississippi River in St. Louis. The fair was sponsored by the Veiled Prophets, a group of community leaders whose membership is secret.

"We've stopped counting," said fair spokesman Allyn Glaub after an appearance by British rock star Elton John drew more than 500,000 people on Monday. That put the weekend's total at 3.75 million and country-western singer Roy Clark, scheduled later Monday night, "should put us over four" million, he said.

A food fair in Chicago drew an estimated 1.1 million visitors over the weekend. The Taste of Chicago food festival at Grant Park sold an estimated $2.3 million in food and beverages, of which $150,000 will be profit for the city.

But in Atlantic City, N.J., a cooking school had trouble giving food away.

The Atlantic Community College's Academy of Culinary Arts baked a 127-foot-by-216-foot birthday cake for America, decorated in vanilla icing colored red, white and blue. But the massive dessert was not completed until 8:35 p.m., too late to deliver leftovers to area hospitals and child-care facilities as planned.

Space Center Monday aboard the back of a 747 jet. The Challenger is scheduled to be used in STS-6, which is expected to be launched in January of 1983. (AP Laserphoto)

Drug Supply On East Coast Cut

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Law enforcement authorities say a reduction in South American drug traffic through Florida has helped dry up marijuana supplies along the East Coast.

"We know drug traffic in south Florida has diminished significantly" since the Joint Drug Enforcement Task Force in Florida began operations in March," said Allan Pringle, task force director.

"The air traffic that normally used to show up on our radar screens is not there anymore," he said. "Boat traffic also has diminished."

Law enforcement authorities credit the work of the Florida task force for clamping down on drug traffic between the United States and South America, where most of the higher quality marijuana is grown.

John Wilder, special agent in charge of the Philadelphia office of the federal Drug Enforcement Agency, confirmed there is a marijuana shortage in the South Jersey-Philadelphia area, but said the scarcity is limited to the "dealer level."

"There still is a plentiful supply among users," he said.

But one unidentified federal undercover agent recently told the Courier-Post of Camden: "Marijuana is in short supply all over the East Coast. Except for some of the hybrid domestic stuff from California, the real stuff from Colombia, South America, is starting to dry up."

In a raid Friday, the DEA seized $12 million worth of marijuana, about 30,000 pounds, loaded in two 40-foot trailers in Pennsauken, N.J.

In mid-May, two caches of several hundred pounds of marijuana each were seized aboard two ships, one of them a Panamanian vessel, off the New Jersey coast. Both batches were found in bales marked "chicken feed."

A law enforcement agent in Newark, who refused to be identified, said, "there's still an awful lot of it (marijuana) out there. In Jamaica, in Colombia, there's mountains full of it."

But intelligence data processed by the DEA show the Florida task force has made a dent in the drug trade.

The joint force, based in Miami and comprised of federal agents from the DEA, Treasury Department, Customs Service, Immigration and Naturalization, FBI, Coast Guard and Navy, was created by Vice President George Bush to stem the drug trade.

About 75 percent of the marijuana coming into the United States is grown in Colombia, while crops in Jamaica and the Dominican Republic have been increased in recent years for distribution in this country, officials said.

INTERIOR DUNK — Interior Secretary James G. Watt sits atop a dunking machine shortly before he was plunged into the water during a benefit party for the Turkey Run Farm in McLean, Va. Monday.
