Tobacco 1982: A Story Of Waiting And Wondering

By JANE WELBORN
Reflector Staff Writer

Local tobacco farmers and warehouse operators see potential problems due to the later opening of the tobacco markets, but none report any severe hardships at this time. They just hope that the market will open soon.

The Flue-Cured Tobacco Advisory Committee recommended that the opening dates for the markets be set back a week because Congress has not yet enacted proposed revisions in the tobacco subsidy program. If the bill is passed Wednesday, the Eastern Belt will open July 27.

Already tobacco farmers in Florida and Georgia are running out of storage space for their tobacco, which should have gone to market Tuesday. The delay is also causing a financial hardship; many farmers depend on the early money from sales to pay for the rest of the harvesting.

According to John Cyrus, chief of the tobacco affairs for the state Department of Agriculture, eastern North Carolina is not in the storage pinch found in Florida and Georgia.

"I am familiar with the situation in Florida and Georgia," he said. "We are a little bit better prepared up here because the farmers have more packhouses. There is still some storage space on most farms. The delay probably will not cause any great problem, although it will cause some inconvenience for some growers."

Local farmers, although not yet feeling the pinch, think that the same problems that are plaguing Florida and Georgia will head to North Carolina if the new tobacco program is not passed quickly.

Pitt County farmer Kenneth Dews sees the potential for financial problems due to the delay. "This can be a very expensive problem. The farmers have been selling crops early and paying off the debts they owe. Now they will need to borrow additional money to get them through the rest of the harvesting season," Dews said.

"The farmers usually depend on early sales of the first curing to tide them over to finish harvesting the crop. They will now be a week later getting the early money," said Fred Bond, general manager of the Flue-Cured Tobacco Cooperative Stabilization Corp. in Raleigh.

Ralph Davenport at Star Planters Warehouse said, "It's going to put them (the farmers) owing a lot more money and everyone will be ill and aggrevated because they will be behind. Farmers would rather take it (the tobacco) straight to the market rather than packing it in packhouses and handling it two or three times."

Farmers and warehousemen say that more tobacco is waiting to be sold than had been expected. Because of heavy rainfall, it was thought that the tobacco would not be ready for market at this time.

Area tobacco warehouses will be packed when the market finally opens, according to warehousemen, but the delay has not caused any particular problems for the warehouses.

Billy Clark Jr. of Raynor-Forbes and Clark Tobacco Co. said, "more tobacco is ready than was anticipated at first. One man already has five barns ready to sell. When the market opens we will do the fastest job we can because we want to sell it as soon as possible."

Cyrus said, "The markets will probably open full and sell full until the crop is gone. Quite often in the first couple of weeks of sales, sales become lighter because harvesting is still going on."

Jet Smashes Into Homes

Crash Toll Climbs To 153

By JANET McCONNAUGHEY
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Teams pulled more bodies from the scattered wreckage of a jetliner Saturday as federal investigators began looking for what caused the Boeing 727 to smash into a residential neighborhood during a thunderstorm, killing at least 153 people.

"I cannot say we have learned much to date," National Transportation Safety Board Vice Chairman Patricia Goldman said a day after Friday's crash — the second worst in U.S. history.

She said crews would take sections of the twisted, still-smoking Pan Am wreckage two miles away to a hangar at New Orleans International Airport, where the plane had taken off just minutes before the crash.

Inspectors will examine the pieces for flaws or damage caused before the plane carved a path of carnage through a three-by-two block section of closely packed, one-story brick houses.

The crews on Saturday continued to pull more bodies from the still-smoking rubble. Large sums of money were found on some of the bodies — $11,000 on one traveler and $4,000 on another, a Jefferson Parish deputy.

Police in Kenner, where the plane went down, said a man was arrested Friday night carrying away a fragment of the plane and a woman's purse. He was booked for theft, police said.

The bodies were stacked in refrigerated trucks at the airport, where coroners, dental-records analysts, pathologists and others began matching names with the remains.

"The coroner's office has advised it has 19 identified bodies. They have another 89 unidentified bodies. There also are, in various places, 95 unattached body parts," said a sheriff's spokeswoman.

Mrs. Goldman would not describe the crash and would not say whether the jet crashed nose first or cartwheeled as marks along the path suggest.

"It's almost indescribable when you see something of this magnitude," she said during a tour of the crash site.

The plane's two armored flight recorder boxes were pulled from the scattered wreckage Saturday afternoon. The boxes contain tape recordings of cockpit conversations and flight information from the plane's instruments which may be vital to learning the cause of the crash, said NTSB spokesman Brad Dunbar.

"The flight data recorder is charred on the outside," Dunbar said, "but it, like the cockpit voice recorder, is designed to withstand tremendous heat. We're optimistic we can read them both out. They're on their way to Washington. They'll be opened this evening, I'm sure."

Betty Scott of the NTSB in Washington said a transcript would be made available after the investigation, but that probably will be at least two months.

Another hangar at the airport served as a morgue for the victims of Pan American World Airways Flight 759, which originated in Miami and was bound for Las Vegas, Nev., and San Diego after its stop in New Orleans.

The jetliner took off while rain fell at the airport and lightning flashed in the area. Eight minutes before the 4:11 p.m. crash, the control tower reported wind at 16 mph gusting to 22 mph, and visibility at four miles. Officials said it is up to the pilot to decide whether to take off in poor weather; an automatic cockpit voice recorder may show whether the pilot and co-pilot discussed the weather.

All 145 people aboard the aircraft, including 47 foreigners, were killed, Pan Am officials said.

Kenner Police public information officer Ruth Barnett said eight people on the ground also were known to have been killed, including 6-year-ols Lisa Baye, who died in a hospital early Saturday of injuries from the crash.

A Red Cross survey showed 11 homes destroyed, two others with serious damage and 11 with minor damage.

"The reason we did not have more killed was that most of them were working — both man and wife," she said. Also, she said many children were at a nearby playground out of the plane's path.

Gov. Dave Treen flew by helicopter from Baton Rouge to the crash scene and declared it a disaster area. He called in National Guard troops to help residents whose homes were ravaged.

Identification of the bodies began officially Saturday.

"There's a real problem with bits and pieces. There are lots of those, and it kind of seems like some might never be positively identified," said an Orleans Parish coroner's employee who asked not to be identified.

Congress Returns Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress returns from its Independence Day recess Monday to raise taxes, investigate an alleged Capitol Hill sex scandal and confirm a new secretary of state.

Other items on the agenda include voting on a constitutional amendment to balance the budget, trying to pass a supplemental appropriation bill that President Reagan will not veto, raising the debt limit, and monitoring the possible use of U.S. troops in Lebanon.

The House ethics committee will receive an FBI report Tuesday on allegations of sexual misconduct and drug use involving congressional pages and members of Congress.

The committee has launched its own probe, with House Speaker Thomas O'Neill promising the allegations will be dealt with "fully, fairly, and swiftly."

Also Tuesday, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee opens confirmation hearings for George Shultz, nominated by President Reagan to succeed Alexander Haig as secretary of state.

The committee and the full Senate are expected to quickly approve the nomination. But Shultz, labor and treasury secretary in the Nixon administration, will likely be questioned closely first about his business dealings in the Arab world and views on the Middle East.

The prospect of U.S. Marines going in to Lebanon aroused major concerns in the Senate and House and committees of both chambers will be keeping close tabs on developments in that area. If Congress gets sufficiently nervous it could vote — under terms of the War Powers Act — to order the troops back home.

Congress faces two big problems on the money front — funding the government for the remainder of the fiscal year and the difficult task of raising taxes in an election year.

Unless the fiscal 1982 supplemental spending bill is approved with dispatch, thousands of government workers in several agencies could be furloughed without pay because their agencies have run out of money.

Shelling Erupts Again As Syrians Blackball PLO

By The Associated Press

Soviet-backed Syria jammed U.S. negotiating efforts Saturday by refusing to accept Palestinian guerrillas trapped in west Beirut, and Israeli and PLO artillery plunged into a new round of bombardments.

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Morris Draper tried to persuade Syrian President Hafez Assad's government to reverse its refusal Friday to grant entry to the estimated 8,000 Palestine Liberation Organization fighters under siege in west Beirut by Israeli forces.

But after a meeting with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam, official sources in Damascus said Khaddam reiterated Syria's refusal to receive the guerrillas.

"We would rather hear from Washington on plans to evacuate Israel's invading forces rather than arrangements to evacuate Palestinians or others," Khaddam told Draper, Lebanon's state radio said.

The bulk of the 30,000 troops Syria sent to Lebanon to snuff out the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war and police its armistice have regrouped in the eastern Bekaa Valley following bloody clashes with the Israelis.

Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 to rout the PLO guerrillas from Lebanon, but both conservative and leftist Arab nations are reluctant to have them on their territory, fearing they could be a destabilizing force.

The Syrian sources said Draper was returning to Lebanon to report on the outcome of his Damascus mission to U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib, who has been trying for three weeks to arrange a PLO evacuation supervised by 1,800 U.S. Marines and an unspecified number of French paratroopers.

France told Lebanon on Saturday that it agreed in principle to supply troops to a multinational force to help disengage the guerrillas and the Israelis in Beirut, but made no mention of joining U.S. Marines in supervising an evacuation as President Reagan has suggested.

Before the French announcement was made in Paris, the Soviet Union warned France "of the consequences to which submissiveness to Washington's dangerous plans" could lead. These consequences were not spelled out in the commentary written for Sunday's editions of the Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda. Excerpts of the commentary were carried by the official Tass news agency.

Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, in a letter to Reagan published Thursday, warned Washington to keep U.S. troops out of Lebanon.

Habib's chances to conclude an early agreement on a PLO evacuation from Israeli-ringed west Beirut appeared remote. There also are an estimated 500,000 civilians in predominantly Moslem west Beirut, and they entered a second week of an Israeli blockade that has cut off food, fuel and water.

Artillery exchanges flared throughout the day in and around Beirut, and three Palestinian-fired shells exploded close to U.S. Ambassador Robert Dillon's mansion in suburban Yarze, where Habib is staying, police said.

A police spokesman who declined to be named in compliance with government regulations said the salvos hit between 70 and 100 yards from Dillon's pinewood villa, causing no casualties or damage.

Israeli tanks and artillery dug in on the hills surrounding the beleaugered Lebanese capital fired barrages into the PLO's west Beirut stronghold and around the paralyzed international airport.

Flashing

It Happens In Greenville

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Was I imagining things, I thought, as the young man with his pants around his ankles got smaller and smaller in my rear view mirror.

Did he accidentally fumble the button on his trousers and drop them? Or was it a deliberate act designed to raise my eyebrows and ire?

Well, I thought, it had to happen sometime. It's just that a hot Friday afternoon in broad daylight on a main thoroughfare in Greenville is a far cry from what I had imagined — twilight, bushes, a streetlight-shadowed glance of someone in an overcoat. Scratch the classic image of being flashed.

It took me a moment to take in what was going on. Why were the guy's gym shorts falling down? Why was he laughing? Certainly it was 90-plus degrees outside, but to strip on the sidewalk?

Then I realized — it wasn't the scalding sun nor the broiling temperatures that induced him to free his lower body from cover — it was that he wanted me to see him.

I won't give him the satisfaction of putting on brakes, I thought, as I cruised by. I checked in my mirror and sure enough, he was watching. When I was almost out of sight, he upped his trousers.

PROBLEM LEAF ... Pitt County's major cash agricultural crop, tobacco, apparently is headed for another round of problems this year as Congress tackles the price support program for flue-cured leaf. Tobacco ...

That is not expected to happen this year.

"We have had some complaints from farmers saying that they will have lots of tobacco ready," said Ray Harrington, who handles booking and selling at Raynor-Forbes and Clark.

According to Davenport, " Everybody will be ready to sell when the market does open. Things should run smoothly, but everybody will be rushed."

How do those in the tobacco industry feel about the pending legislation in Washington? Davenport said, "everybody is sitting back and waiting and is worried to death. We really don't know what is going on (with the legislation).

"It is hard to say (how the legislation will affect tobacco farmers)," farmer-warehouseman Chester Don Worthington said. "Every time I read the paper it is something different. It is hard for me to see what the changes will involve."

"The legisislation (that is now before the Senate) is good in order to save our program," Dews said. "We (the farmers) had to accept a lot of things we didn't want and more burden as far as paying own way, but it is better to look after ourselves than to expect government subsidies. Congress has mandated that the tobacco program become self-sufficient and that is what the farmer wants to do. Sure, we'll have to take our lumps, but this is what we have to do to see that the farmer survives."

As passed by the House, the proposal is designed to modify features of the program that have drawn heaviest criticism — such as non-producer ownership — and make the program self-supporting, except for administrative costs.

"A mandate from last October ordered Congress to implement and establish a 'no cost' tobacco program," related Bond. "This means that losses sustained by farmers must be absorbed by the farmers."

According to Cyrus, "Congress has mandated that the secretary of agriculture establish an assessment program so there will be no cost to the government. The farmers would allot a few cents from each pound of tobacco sold to build up a fund." This fund would be used to cover any losses if surplus tobacco is not sold.

Other major provisions of the bill would:

•Authorize the secretary of agriculture to cut by 35 percent a scheduled increase that would raise the average price support from $1.57 a pound to $1.76. The smaller increase would amount to $1.70 a pound.

•Require non-farming institutions like corporations and universities to sell their allotments by the end of next year or else surrender them.

Ushered through the House June 21 by Rep. Charles Rose, D-N.C., the bill was passed by the Senate Agriculture Committee, chaired by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., June 24. It then ran into Senate opposition headed by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., who succeeded in delaying debate on the measure until after the July 4 holiday break. The bill will be brought up Wednesday.

Eagleton is expected to suggest a number of his own changes when Senate debate begins, possibly including a prohibition against ownership of any tobacco allotment by a non-producer.

If the legislation passes in the Senate Wednesday, the bill will have to go back to the House for concurrence and then must go to President Reagan for his signature.

If the bill passes on time, markets will open in Georgia and Florida July 21, in the Border Belt July 26, in the Eastern Belt July 27, the Middle Belt July 28 and the Old Belt August 10. If the legislation takes longer, Cyrus says he expects the opening date to be delayed until the bill has gone through.

Two Arrested In Winterville

WINTERVILLE — Police arrested two people on drug possession charges last week.

According to Winterville Police Chief Ed Cox, William Morris Tillett of Manns Harbor was arrested Wednesday morning on Marshall Drive and charged with possession of speed.

In another incident Saturday, Shelly Jones of 157 Pinewood Village was arrested after a search was made of her residence. She was charged with possession of marajuana.

First appearance hearings were set for them July 22.

Stolen Army Tank Leaves Trail Of Destruction In German City

MANNHEIM, West Germany (AP) — A stolen U.S. Army battle tank ran amok Saturday through downtown Mannheim, causing nearly $500,000 in damage as it crushed cars, rammed shops and scattered pedestrians before plunging into a murky river with the driver trapped inside, police said.

Four people were reported injured, one seriously. It was not known if the driver of the M-60 tank was still alive or if there could be more than one person in the vehicle submerged in 16 feet of water.

Three other Army tanks were sent to the bridge to try to remove the upended 50-ton tank, but their first effort failed when the steel cable snapped.

The tank was stolen from a U.S. Army base at about 1:30 p.m. — 7:30 a.m. EDT — and plunged into the river after a 2½-hour rampage through the city. Some 5,000 people gathered on the river banks to watch the rescue efforts that continued past midnight.

Unconfirmed reports from American military sources said the tank was fully loaded with ammunition but there was no danger of it exploding.

Police speculated the driver was an American soldier because the tank was taken from a U.S. base. But American officials said they could not confirm that and refused all comment on the incident.

Police said Army officials told them the tank was designed to keep out water, but fire brigade divers trying to rescue the driver said water was leaking into the vehicle.

They also reported the tank's hatch was bolted from the inside.

The tank left a trail of destruction behind it in the city's center, a grid of narrow streets.

One unidentified American was slightly injured when he tried to jump on the tank and open the hatch, police said. He was treated at an American clinic in Heidelberg and released.

Three other people were injured as the tank lurched through Mannheim, crushing at least 10 parked cars and damaging the fronts of several shops and houses, police said. One victim was seriously injured as he tried to run away from the tank and was hit by its side, police said.

The tank tore a hole at least three feet wide in the side of a streetcar filled with passengers, then ripped down power lines for the trolley network, bringing streetcar traffic to a two-hour standstill.

A police spokesman reported several auto accidents as frightened drivers tried to get out of the way of the tank.

He said the tank was stolen from Sullivan Barracks and driven seven miles along a six-lane highway leading into the city's center.

After careening wildly through Mannheim's streets for 2½ hours, the tank was trapped when it rumbled onto a bridge over the Neckar River and U.S. military police blocked both ends.

When the military police advanced onto the bridge, witnesses said the tank's turret gun rotated several times, aiming at the soldiers who immediately took cover.

The witnesses said the tank then went into reverse, crashed through the side railing and landed bottom up in the river.

Divers reported their work was hampered by muddy, polluted water that made it hard to see more than a few inches under the surface.

U.S. Army officials scheduled a news conference Sunday to release information about the incident. Bob Crossley, a spokesman for U.S. Army headquarters in Heidelberg, said he had no idea why the person had stolen the tank. "The heat must have really got to him," he said.

West Germany sweltered under unusually warm weather Saturday, with temperatures reaching into the 90s in many places.

It was the third time a tank had been stolen from a base in the Mannheim area, where thousands of U.S. soldiers in the 260,000-strong force in West Germany are stationed.

Six years ago, a tank stolen from a Mannheim base was driven down an autobahn toward Frankfurt, causing traffic to be closed in both directions.

Four years later, another 11½-ton tank was stolen from a base and driven through Mannheim's center. Both Mannheim police and U.S. military police said they could not remember how the incidents ended.

Actress Sarah Bernhardt had her leg amputated in 1914, but she continued to star on the stage until just before her death in 1923.

Lobster Racing Next On Menu

ROCKLAND, Maine (AP) — One state celebrates the return of the buzzards, others hold frog races. So why not have an international lobster race?

On Aug. 7, a field of competitive crustaceans will vie for the title of world's fastest lobster in a specially designed tank at the Maine Seafoods Festival in Rockland.

That, incidentially, is also the location of the world's largest lobster-boiling pot.

The Downeast Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation is sponsoring the event to raise money for research. Participants will pay entry fees and choose their lobsters from a huge holding tank.

The races will be in another tank with special racing alleys and circulating sea water to help keep the lobsters — which are not natural racers — moving forward.

After day-long runoffs, the winner's owner will take home the Governor's Cup — and a letter of recognition signed by Gov. Joseph E. Brennan.

Flashing ...

flashing, although the two are not synonomous, is "not a big problem" in Greenville says Capt. A.G. Whitaker of the Greenville Police Department.

"We get about a half dozen cases reported a year," he said. "Most flashers are male and mostly the victims are women stopped at traffic lights, crosswalks and places where they can't avoid seeing the flasher — they're trapped."

Although there's a pattern to the type of place exposure occurs in the city, he added, there's no pattern to how. "You really can't say any flasher or any situation is typical," he said.

"There's a lot of different types of people that flash — some egotistical and proud, some a little more reserved. We get everything from a guy lying in wait for the ladies at the post office to one walking down a dorm hall wearing only a raincoat."

Seldom is the same person responsible for more than one "flash," noted Whitaker: "It's mostly different people. We may get a rash of incidents in a particular place and that's the same person, but most of the exposures are isolated."

Whitaker urged victims to report incidents to the police. "We need to know where and how it happened," he said. "Usually by the time it's reported the flasher is well away from the scene but we do get some results."

Whitaker said he didn't think flashing was on the increase in the city. "It's not something we have a whole lot of," he said.

DR. ROBERT DELLINGER

Dr. J. Elliott Dixon and Dr. James M. Galloway announced the association of Dr. Robert Karl Dellinger with Pitt Family Physicians, P.A., formerly Dixon Medical Center Inc. in Ayden.

A native of York, Pa., Dellinger graduated from Juniata College in central Pennsylvania and completed his medical school training at the University of Pittsburgh.

Dellinger came to East Carolina University in 1979 where he did a three-year residency in family practice at the ECU Family Practice Center. He finished his residency at the end of June and began his practice in Ayden this month.

The physician is a member of the American Medical Association as well as the local medical society and the American Academy of Family Practice.

Dellinger is married to the former Katherine Appleby from Mount Union, Pa.

Boy Scouts Will Pay Hurt Boy

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Boy Scouts of America has agreed to pay $4,000 a month for life to a 13-year-old boy paralyzed from the waist down in a swimming accident during a camping trip.

Patrick McGlone's spinal cord was severed two years ago when he dived head-first over a waterfall into the Guadalupe River about 20 miles from Blanco. Actuarial tables say he can expect to live another 59 years.

The out-of-court settlement Friday also pays $250,000 to the boy's mother, Susan Pollock, a member of the University of Texas nursing faculty.

Ms. Pollock said her son "has to be on a respirator almost 24 hours a day."

She and her son sued the Boy Scouts of America, Troop 31 of Capital Area Council 564, Scoutmaster Jake Almond Jr. and assistant Scoutmaster Jack Grosskopf for $10 million.

The suit alleged that the Scouts on the camping trip should have been better supervised and that the boys should not have been allowed to swim at a dangerous site.

Lawyer Bob Gibbens, who gets legal fees of $425,000, said the defendants' insurance will pay the damages.

Pair Jailed In Check Scam

SEATTLE (AP) — Two men and a woman were jailed in lieu of $50,000 bail each after allegedly passing French travelers checks at a rate of one franc to the dollar. A franc is worth only 14 cents.

The three arrested Thursday were booked for investigation of larceny and possession of stolen property. They were identified as Joseph Eugene Endal, 49, Eugene Williams, 34, and Kathleen Marie Smith, 32.

Gary Flynn of the Seattle Police Department said those arrested admitted cashing 6,000 travelers checks, each made out for 50 or 100 francs. They allegedly got convenience store clerks and filling station operators to give them par value for the franc.

Sunday Opinion

Leaf Program Needs Action, And Caution

The Senate has scheduled debate starting Wednesday on the proposed revamping of the tobacco price support program. Growers throughout the Southeast are seeing that debate with a two-pronged concern: [illegible] the support program itself survive? And [illegible] Congress act quickly to save this year's [illegible]?

We cannot believe that the price support program will be dropped completely, especially in view of the "no cost to taxpayers" proposals developed by Rep. Charles Rose in the House. So, at this point, the latter question seems to be more pertinent. The opening of auction markets already has been delayed for about a week, and a longer delay could be disastrous.

Farmers in eastern North Carolina, long accustomed to later openings for auction markets, are in a better situation to store cured leaf than their counterparts to the south. Growers in Florida and southern Georgia who traditionally carry their leaf to market within days, sometimes within hours, of curing are finding it difficult to store the tobacco. Their packhouses are small and scarce, so many growers have already begun placing their leaf in auction warehouses. The danger there is the heat-generating humidity that can cause leaf rot to develop in the bundled tobacco.

It is imperative that Congress do what it will do quickly, but we urge Senators Helms and East to proceed cautiously to assure that the finished product will stand the test of time. A hasty bill now could jeopardize all that has been accomplished in the last year to preserve the support program.

Pesticides Have Their Place When Used Carefully

State health officials say pesticide poisonings are on the decline in North Carolina, an agricultural state that depends heavily on the chemicals to control insects and other pests that could wipe out farm crops if less successful means of control were used.

North Carolina reported 42 cases of pesticide poisoning during the first half of 1981, and 37 during the same period this year.

That's encouraging, but those poisonings could have, and should have, been avoided. Pesticides can be used safely if the applicators only use common sense and follow the label regulations.

There is definitely a place for pesticides, herbicides, fungicides and many other agricultural chemicals in our society, but their safety depends on the most unpredictable character of all — the human applicator.

NEW YORK (AP) — If it is the consumer who must deliver the world's largest economy from recession's grip, then you and your neighbors are involved in one of the great economic decisions of all time.

The $3 trillion U.S. economy, largest of all, is waiting for you to spend. Consumer spending, it is said, is the drop of oil needed to make the wheels of industry turn. Once moving, the economy will gain speed.

Who says so? Many, many popular forecasters. The White House and its defenders. The wishful thinkers: some carmakers and appliance dealers, the local clothier, the cleaning shop, the big retail chain.

But you, collectively, are the one to decide. If it's true that the economy's immediate future is in consumer custody, then by probing your own thoughts you have a clue to the future.

Q. Will you spend?

The so-called authorities who claimed to know your mind are perplexed. Their forecasts of recovery depend on you spending. They were still applauding a small gain in car sales early last month, terming it a herald of recovery, when sales plunged again. Perplexing indeed.

They went back to their drafting boards and books. The consumer, they found, is more liquid than at any time in 12 years, since it now takes but 15 cents of every dollar of takehome pay to service installment debt. Match that against the 18 cents needed to pay such bills in 1979.

They added in the other reasons. Many of them. The tax cut and the Social Security adjustments would be spurs. The lower rate of inflation would help. And, they assumed, pent-up demand for durable items, on which purchases had been delayed for two years, would burst and release a tide of buyers into the market for big ticket items and small.

It hasn't happened so far, and you probably have more understanding of the reasons than does Washington or Detroit or any center of economic research. If you have the money, why aren't you spending it?

A few years ago the vice president-economics of a large bank was asked if he felt a study of incomes, liquidity and the like offered foolproof evidence of future consumer behavior.

"Yes," he replied.

"Without need to question those you assume would be doing the spending?" he was asked.

"Oh yes," he said, explaining that it was quite mechanical. Give them the money and they'll spend it, he said.

But Professor George Katona of the University of Michigan and Albert Sindlinger, a Media, Pa. market and economic researcher, years earlier had known that ability to spend was only one factor in whether a person did indeed spend. That other factor was willingness to spend.

With that in mind, therefore — and assuming you have a bulky billfold — are you in the mood to spend?

There perhaps is the key question in the entire debate. Sophisticated marketing people know that worries over inflation, fears of a layoff, insecurity about the future of the economy in general can be important factors in what a person does with money. What do you think?

High interest rates probably add to what feelings of insecurity you may have, but even more significantly, they offer you an outlet for savings that probably is just as satisfying as spending on an important item. That is, they offer you an excellent, hard-to-resist return.

In earlier recessions that high-interest alternative wasn't available, or certainly not to so important a degree. It is a new factor, and it complicates that question of whether you are willing to spend.

Sunday Morning Notes

Mrs. Esther Newman is registrar at Greenville Precinct No. 8, the Willis Building.

She noted that one of her faithful voters was there again for the election and primary on June 29. It was Miss Lilia Higgs, who reminded the poll holder that she had voted in every election since the Consititution was amended to allow the women's vote.

By contrast, Miss Higgs was followed by the Gasperini family, which included an 8-day-old daughter named Cyndra Marlena. She, of course, couldn't vote, but she will have the right some day just as Miss Higgs earned in her lifetime.

Mrs. Newman said her experiences as a poll holder could fill a book.

For years, she recalled, she worked at the Rotary Building. The area was small and cramped for the crowds it had to handle. One day the wind blew the door open and a large dog rushed in, barking and running through the voting booths.

On those days the old ledger type books were used. A man and his wife showed up to vote. Mrs. Newman was aware that his first wife had died and the man had remarried. Although the listing was Mr. and Mrs., the wife's name shown on the books was that of the first wife. The woman insisted that was she and that she was entitled to vote. Mrs. Newman stood her ground, however, and ruled that the registration was not proper.

One man came to inquire about voting at the Greenville precinct. The only problem was he had a rural address. Consequently, no vote.

Poll holding is more a public service than anything else. Mrs. Newman's biggest complaint about the recent election day was people who consumed drinks from cups and then stuck the cups and other debris in the shrubbery which surrounds the Willis Building.

Carl Whitfield, retired state employee, recalled his days on the Highway Patrol in Bertie County.

He once stopped a man who was driving with his small son.

"May I ask why you stopped me?" the man asked.

"Yes, sir," Whitfield replied. "I clocked you doing 70."

"There must be some mistake," the man said. "My speedometer showed I was doing 55."

The son piped up, "Daddy, you said, 'There's a patrolman and I'm doing 70.'"

The man grimiced and said, "Write the ticket!"

Legislative Tunnel Keeps Popping Up

RALEIGH — The June legislative session wasn't a day old when the rumors of a new tunnel somewhere in the 1982-83 budget began floating around. Usually reliable sources said they knew someone who had seen where money was squirreled away to build an underground connection between the Legislative Building and the new $8 million Legislative Office Building across the street.

The tunnel prompted quite a bit of excitement in the summer of 1979. After the Legislature took the tunnel out of the office building appropriation, the Advisory Budget Commission tried to sneak it back in. The press caught them, however, and the ABC had to cancel the half-million dollar expenditure.

The best rumor going around this time had money for the tunnel hidden in the budget to remodel the Legislative Building. Two very good sources said they had heard that enough money would be left over from that project to get the tunnel built. But, John Allen, chief of legislative services, said that wasn't so. And anyway, the remodeling budget of $380,000 was far too small to build the tunnel. "Take my word for it, there is no money for the tunnel anywhere in the budget," he said.

Allen did say, however, that he and Claudie DeBruhl, state construction officer, have discussed the possibility of a sheltered walkway between the two buildings. It would span Lane Street and eliminate what Allen says is a very real danger of someone getting hit by a car while walking between buildings. Such a project would have to be approved by the full assembly, he said.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey said he knew of no money hidden in the budget for a tunnel. But, on the opening day of the session, he said he'd like the 1983 assembly to look at the idea of a less costly overhead walkway. Sentiment for such a project, he said, might depend on how much rain Raleigh got during the June session. It rained for most of the first two weeks.

The Legislature has decided to put some young people on state boards that deal with youth-related issues. The assembly voted in June to add two seats to the Competency Test Commission, the Parks and Recreation Council, the Juvenile Law Study Commission and the Governor's Crime Commission, and to reserve those seats for members under 21 years of age. Gov. Jim Hunt will make the appointments.

Rep. Tom Rabon of Winnabow, youngest member of the assembly at age 28, sponsored the legislation. "All these boards and commissions deal at least partially with youth related items and I felt that it was only fair that, if we're talking about things that concern youth, they ought to be represented."

Politicians never know when something will come back to haunt them at the polls. Take the case of Tracy Bowling, unsuccessful candidate for Wake County sheriff last month. He'd sold his dog training and kennel business, but one young lady who was overheard on election day hadn't forgotten him.

She'd voted against Bowling, she said, because she had sent her dog to his obedience school and Bowling had flunked the pooch.

"First Monday," the national Republican magazine, reports how Rep. James Coyne of Pennsylvania beefed up his campaign treasury. For $200, contibutors to his re-election drive got hors d'oeuvres in the Capitol Hill Club in Washington and unlimited use of any eight Pac Man video games he'd rounded up for the evening.

Are Those Presidential Claims Really Successes?

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's listing of his foreign policy successes has surprised a few people. But one nice thing is they set a standard that shouldn't be too hard for the incoming secretary of state, George P. Shultz, to beat.

"We've had great successes in a number of areas," Reagan said, and then listed them as follows:

—The Sinai peninsula was returned to Egypt by Israel as provided under the 1978 Camp David peace accords.

—Eleven months of cease-fire in Lebanon because of the "herculean efforts" of Philip C. Habib, Reagan's special Mideast peace envoy.

—The "superhuman job" by outgoing Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. to try to keep the peace between Argentina and Britain in the Falkland Islands.

—"Great progress" toward achieving independence for Namibia from South Africa.

—The "disarray with our European allies" which existed when he took office has been "largely eliminated," and, "They have confidence in us once again."

He also listed a rebuilding of the nation's defenses as a foreign policy achievement.

Underscoring how good he apparently felt about this list of successes, Reagan said, "So I think that we are progressing very well with what it is we are trying to accomplish."

He didn't explain, and no one asked, how efforts in the Falklands and the Middle East that ended in war can be considered successes. It doesn't follow that the United States should be blamed for the wars, but when thousands of persons have died, and terrible devastation is done, it's hard to see where success can be claimed.

In fact, there are those who believe that U.S. inattention to the problems in the Mideast contributed to the conflict there. Sol Linowitz, who was president Carter's chief Mideast negotiator, has said the administration lost valuable time by not following up on the Camp David peace process promptly upon taking office.

Were the Argentines encouraged in their effort to capture the Falklands by the administration's moves to improve relations with a military regime that the Carter administration had found reprehensible because of its human rights practices?

Did the presence of U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and high State Department officials at a reception at the Argentine Embassy on the very night of the invasion of the Falklands perhaps suggest to the Argentines that the administration didn't disapprove all that much?

Reagan's statement that relations are improved with Europe comes against the background of dismay in Western Europe over the administration's decision to threaten sanctions against U.S. allies if they try to use U.S.-licensed equipment to help build a Soviet natural gas pipeline to Europe.

The leaders of West Germany, France and Britain, along with the Common Market, all have denounced the action, and there are hints of reprisals. Germany and France, in particular, are helping build the pipeline, and the gas will be consumed in Western Europe.

A senior U.S. official who is an expert in U.S.-European relations thinks Reagan didn't realize the adverse impact of his decision on the Europeans, who feel the pipeline is important to them economically.

On Namibia, Haig predicted months ago there would be an independence agreement this year, but the negotiations have bogged down over U.S. demands for an agreement for a simultaneous withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola. The talks may succeed, but they haven't yet.

The administration does deserve good marks for helping attain Israel's withdrawal from the Sinai, but the withdrawal agreement was part of the Camp David accords negotiated in 1978 by President Carter.

Americans Take Scandals As They Come

WASHINGTON — Compared to the British, Americans have a relatively high threshold for scandal. Few public "developments" — illicit affairs involving public officials, for example — leave us utterly speechless. Fewer yet shake our foundations, moral or otherwise.

Perhaps that explains why recent revelatione of sexual favors between some congressmen and their errand-running pages haven't curried nationwide outrage as much as aroused a collective curiosity about the way people in Washington live today.

As more details trickle out, the most recent national embarrassment could bring down a few lawmakera and eventually see the reform of the teenage page program. If we can be sure of anything over the coming months, the pageboy scandal will make for spicy front-page dispatches from an increasingly hot and sleepy capital city.

But before we find ourselves overobsessed with another episode of criminal behavior by our elected officials, a note of caution might be in order: Much bigger — but unheralded — scandals go on here every day.

While we fancy the sexual side of Capitol Hill (there's even a real-life soap opera designed to play on this national weakness), we tend to ignore the day-to-day travesty perpetrated by special-interest lobbies, political action committees (PAC's) and lawmakers. Though legal, their influence trading may be every bit as reprehensible as the use and abuse of a handful of teenagers.

For the 15 months ending in April of this year, for example, PAC's of varying affiliations had raised $109 million, a 50 percent jump over a similar period in 1979 and 1980. By April they'd already spent two-thirds of the kitty on candidates. Collectively, corporate and trade-association groups have packed the biggest punch.

Political money may be part of the game and sanctioned by the First Amendment, but it buys influence all the same. Lobbyists have made PAC favors an essential and potent part of their arsenal. For example, the recent congressional decision to rescond an FTC regulation concerning used cars was undoubtedly influenced by three-quarters of a million dollars in auto-dealer industry PAC contributions to incumbents.

Such vote-buying, moreover, isn't always veiled in euphemistic language. One bevege industry newsletter recently remarked that it might take up to seven years and $1 million to pass a particular piece of pro-industry legislation.

Of course, for lawmakers, the page sex scandal may only cloud the already smoggy air of respectability surrounding Capitol Hill.

To the editor:

In your June 18 edition, you reprinted an editorial from the Washington Daily News regarding the Coastal Area Management Act (CAMA). The editorial contained an important error concerning the source of funding for the study it criticized. As a co-author of the study and editor of the magazine in which it appeared (N.C. Insight), the magazine of the North Carolina Center for Public Policy Research), I wrote the Washington Daily News explaining the error and it was printed. Because your paper inadvertently passed along the error, I would hope that you, too, would print this correction:

"Without trying to start any argument," the Washington Daily News wrote, "let us say that these two fellows (the co-authors) are being paid to reap success in CAMA and whether it is successful or not, these two fellows would be offering high praise." The newspaper apparently misunderstood the structure of the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research Inc. We are not a state agency, but a private nonprofit, nonpartisan organization. We receive funding primarily from the Z. Smith Reynolds and Mary Reynolds Babcock Foundations, membership dues, corporate contributions and other sources. We are paid to find neither successes nor failures, but to undertake research tasks on how well state government works with an independent view.

The editorial seemed to have confused us "two fellows" for employees of the state office administering CAMA. The magazine issue containing the CAMA story explains the purpose and background of the N.C. Center on the inside front cover and includes a clear description of the authors. I was disturbed by such sentences as: "Maybe we could somehow muzzle the paid workers who tell how successful it (CAMA) is."

We view ourselves as colleagues of the N.C. press corps and would hope you agree that muzzling the open-minded examination of ideas is not our mutual goal.

To the editor:

It was with puzzlement that I read the article entitled "Chiropractic: A Way of Healing Without Drugs" on the front page of the Sunday, July 4, issue of The Daily Reflector. The puzzlement concerned the incentive of the Daily Reflector to print an article that is not news, but commentary, on the front page, thus relegating world news on volatile issues to the inside of the paper. If the incentive of the paper was to provide readers with information on health care without drugs, the paper should have no difficulty printing similar articles about sports medicine, osteopathic medicine, physical and occupational therapy on the front page of the upcoming Sunday issues. If the incentive is other than this, I would like to know what these other professionals will have to offer the paper to receive equal consideration.

Local Governments: 'Hurting And Helpless'

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — When it comes to raising money for construction work, most local governments fall into two groups: hurting and helpless.

State Treasury Department officials say cities and counties that can afford to float bonds are returning to the markets this year, apparently resigned to paying millions of extra dollars because of high interest rates.

They are the lucky governments. Many others cannot afford to expand their water and sewer systems at all, and are under orders to stop hooking on any of the new industries or homes they need to expand their tax base.

The only solution for the poorer governments is a proposed $300 million state bond. But Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. says he won't call for a vote on issuing that promissory note until the recession eases and voters presumably are more likely to vote yes.

Treasury officials said last week 30 percent more bonds have been floated so far this year compared to the first half of 1981, even though interest rates haven't changed more than about half a percentage point. Those bonds total more than $1 billion, they said.

Bonds basically are the same as loans, except that financial institutions bid on how much interest they will charge for their loan. Last week the national average was 12.58 percent.

Everett Chalk, North Carolina's assistant director for state and local government financing, said many local governments held up on floating bonds last year, apparently hoping the market would return to the days of single digit interest.

It hasn't happened, he said, so governments have glumly resumed offering bonds.

"Right now we're hearing some investment people say the bond market is probably as good as it's going to get for a while," Chalk said. "A while back we saw predictions the market would improve through the remainder of the year. That feeling is not there now."

Chalk said even industries that got quasi-government agencies to issue short-term bonds for them are calling in those bonds and replacing them with longer-term notes.

"They're doing it because they don't feel there's going to be any improvement," he said.

John M. Barnes, who handles bond sales for the Treasury Department, said government financiers apparently have changed their philosophy about market rates.

"I think they are still hoping for better times, but now they are tying their hopes into refinancing the bonds later on (if the interest rate drops)," he said.

Barnes and Chalk said North Carolina has benefited from its AAA rating, which places it among the dozen best states in investor confidence. Four local governments — Charlotte, Raleigh, Mecklenburg County and Wake County — also bear the AAA rating.

That helped Raleigh sell $25 million worth of recreation and water bonds this year for 1.45 percent below the going rate. As a result, Raleigh residents will pay $3.1 million less than they might have had the bonds sold at the national average.

But for dozens of cities and towns, the good rating isn't enough to raise the $710 million state officials predict municipalities must spend to comply with 1983 federal clean water standards.

Hunt sai earlier this year that 149 cities and towns have been ordered to stop adding any hookups to their waters and sewer systems. Eighty-one communities must build new wastewater treatment facilities by 1986, he said.

Treasury Department officials said most of those communities need state or federal help in raising the money because they cannot afford to pay off the debt incurred by the bonds. The federal government also is cutting back on its aid, slicing its water funds to North Carolina to about $42 million this year.

That leaves the state's $300 million, which would be doled out over five years. Although Hunt strongly favors the issue, he said in May he wants the public to vote on the question "in as near normal economic times as possible."

The times weren't good enough for a vote in the June primary, he said, and he won't decide on putting up the question in November until late summer or early fall.

Teachers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Does the nation need a peace academy? Less Reaganomics? A nuclear weapons freeze? Should students at service academies pay tuition?

Resolutions calling for such things were among dozens put before the annual convention of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO, this week.

The resolutions, drawn by locals or submitted by the AFT Executive Committee, even included one titled: "Fund to Transcribe Nixon Tapes."

Its proposal:

"Whereas, the education of the public on matters of historical import is a vital necessity in a democracy, and —

"Whereas, the Reagan administration has cut the staff of those transcribing the Nixon tapes so that this information will not be available to the public for at least 10 to 15 years;

"Resolved, AFT should promote a fund for voluntary contributions from teachers and citizens, fully tax deductible, sufficient to pay for the immediate transcription of the Nixon tapes as a gift of knowledge to the American people."

The 600,000-member teachers union is one of two. The National Education Association, the other one, claims to have 1.7 million members.

One resolution put before the AFT convention, in session at the same time the NEA held its annual conference in Los Angeles, called for a merger with the NEA.

That the two unions have a lot in common was shown during the conventions when each came out against tuition tax credits. The NEA blasted the President Ronald Reagan proposal on the West Coast while the AFT shot at it on the East Coast.

Tuition tax credits, union leaders claim, could doom public schools already staggering under reduced enrollments and reduced financing.

Nationwide, an AFT survey claims, some 56,000 teacher jobs are being eliminated to balance budgets. This is happening in school districts unable to raise taxes due to voter resistance. It is particularly critical in Boston where a 2½ percent tax lid has been voted in.

Due to budgetary restraints, the Boston School Committee reported in early 1981 it will be end between 1,200 and 1,600 teacher jobs.

The Boston School Committee has court approval to keep the black teaching population at 19 percent and that is turning out to be a problem for some unionists. One result of the judicial edict: dozens of white teachers with more seniority than black teachers are being fired while the black teachers are being kept.

One of the resolutions before the annual meeting asked the AFT to stop trying to support the Boston Teachers Union, an AFT unit, in its attempt to have the court's ruling turned back.

In attempting to have the ruling reversed, the Boston Teachers Union has come out on the side of time-honored seniority rights — firing those with less time and keeping those with more years of service.

The requirement to keep blacks at 19 percent of the teaching staff has meant about 550 white teachers with seniority back to 1969 already have been dismissed.

And while the dismissals were going on there were some new hires — black teachers only.

In a related development the Boston School Committee on June 8 approved a plan to fire another 595 teachers. Among tenured teachers affected, only white teachers have received notices of intent to lay off.

Scott Widmeyer, a public affairs specialist for the AFT, described the Boston situation as volatile. Some Boston members of the union, mainly white teachers, want the AFT to stay in the fight on their side.

But some other members, mainly black, want the AFT to get out of the Boston dispute, keeping hands off the court order favoring a teaching staff of 19 percent black.

In a backgrounder on the Boston situation the AFT makes these points:

—The Boston case could have an impact in other school districts around the country. (Mainly, those with largely black student populations, as in Boston. The court, in ruling for a teaching staff 19 percent black, claimed black teachers serve as good role models for black students.)

—The AFT feels strongly about protecting the seniority system, saying, "Color-blind, race-neutral seniority systems are perhaps the most important safeguard won by the American labor movement over 100 years of struggle."

Tar Heel Pilot Set Speed Record

With Capt. Robert Sowers of Lexington at the controls, an Air Force B58 jet roared across the nation and back in 1962 at a speed faster than a cannon ball.

The 1,300-mph craft, then the fastest bomber in the U.S. arsenal, was trailed by a sonic boom 40 miles wide that left a transcontinental trail of broken windows, cracked walls and startled citizens.

On its quick trip from Los Angeles to New York and return, the delta-wing craft set three speed records: round trip across the United States in four hours and 42 minutes; west to east in two hours one minute and 39 seconds and east to west in two hours 15 minutes and 12 seconds. The exploit was noteworthy enough to win the 1962 Bendix Trophy for aviation achievement and a Distinguished Flying Cross for each man.

Streaking at twice the speed of sound, the craft created a continuous sonic boom as air compressed by its swift passage created shock waves. Most of the flight was at 50,000 feet — too high to cause harm, but for start and finish and during refueling the level was 30,000 feet. The flight was in an almost direct line from Los Angeles to New York City and passed over Pueblo, Colo.; St. Joseph, Mo., and Pittsburg, Pa.

Los Angeles was rocked at start and finish. Windows and plaster walls were cracked in three nearby counties. In Riverside, Calif., a big plate glass window in a downtown building was shattered and a door nearby blown in. Plaster walls in homes at St. Joseph were cracked and a plate glass window shattered in a tavern at Chillicothe, Mo. Concerned citizens flooded emergency switchboards at Kansas City, New York City and Pittsburg. One woman in Pittsburg thought her furnace had blown up, and a woman on Long Island reported a window in her home was broken.

Aided by tail winds, the plane averaged 1,212.6 mph on its eastern flight. Going west it was 1,091.2 mph and overall 1,044.3 mph. The plane refueled three times during the flight from tanker planes.

After the craft landed at Los Angeles International Airport at the end of its record-shattering flight, Gen. Thomas S. Power, chief of the Strategic Air Command, pinned Distinguished Flying Crosses on Sowers, then 35 years old; and Captain John Walton, 29, of Greenville, Ky.

"We were attempting to show what manned aircraft in general can do," Sowers told a news conference. "It was a great flight. Everyone did a fine job."

Sowers also told the newsmen that "if a cannon ball — an artillery shell — had been fired at the same time we left here (Los Angeles), we'd have had time to land in New York and have lunch before it got there."

The Air Force apparently had anticipated damage from the sonic booms, for in preflight publicity it had called the booms "the sound of freedom" and said Americans should learn to live with them.

Credit The Law For That Raise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republican Party is trying to give President Reagan credit for the 7.4 percent cost-of-living increase that 36 million Social Security recipients received last week. Democrats, professing outrage at GOP "gall," are trying to claim it for themselves.

The fact is the increase is required by law, although both the president and some Democrats — as well as congressional Republicans — made it quite clear during this year's budget debate they are prepared to rewrite the offending statute. The chief difference was that Republicans wanted the changes to take effect immediately, while Democrats wanted to wait a year.

And all sides also know that election-year rhetoric aside, they may be back discussing some of the very same proposed changes within days after the votes are counted this fall.

Reagan himself set off the latest skirmish when he opened a news conference recently with a statement that Social Security recipients would be getting the 7.4 percent increase — an amount designed to help their checks keep pace with inflation.

"Many older Americans have been cruelly misled into believing that they would be denied their Social Security benefits," Reagan said, leaving no doubt that Democrats were guilty of the alleged misleading. "I said when I campaigned for this office and I've said as president, we'll protect those benefits and we will protect the integrity of Social Security. We are honoring those promises."

The Republican National Committee and National Republican Congressional Committee are following up with a million-dollar advertising campaign.

Their 30-second television spot shows a mail carrier delivering the monthly checks, complete with the increase that "President Reagan promised."

"He promised that raise and he kept his promise, in spite of those sticks in the mud who tried to keep him from doing what we elected him to do," the ad says.

That set off House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., who charged Reagan with breaking his promises on Social Security.

"The Reagan administration failed to delay the June 30 cost-of-living increase for one reason: because we in Congress refused to go along with it," O'Neill said.

"The Republican Party is betting a multimillion dollar ad campaign that they can lie to the American people and get away with it."

The statements by Reagan and the Republican party organizations aside, the administration made a determined, if private, effort earlier this year to hold down the cost-of-living increases.

Shortly after administration and congressional officials began a round of secret budget negotiations, Budget Director David Stockman circulated a set of proposals to reduce the deficit that included a 4 percent cap on Social Security increases. Instead of an increase every 12 months, it would come every 15 months under the proposal.

The plan was circulated at a time when Reagan and his spokesmen were describing the negotiations as discussions, and denying that the president had authorized his aides to do anything but listen.

But Stockman was joined at the table by White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, and congressional Republicans and Democrats assumed they were negotiating with the president's explicit approval.

Democrats swiftly rejected that plan.

But from O'Neill on down, most Democrats who have studied Social Security financing believe the system is in shaky financial shape and needs repair.

The proposal House Democrats came up with was for no change for this year's increase, but a 5 percent "guarantee" for 1983 and 1984. In effect, that would be the end of the current, 10-year-old system that raises Social Security benefits annually by the government's full measure of inflation.

In its place would be a mandated increase of 5 percent, a proposal Democrats said was contingent on concessions from Reagan in his three-year package of tax cuts and other budget changes.

Neither Reagan nor O'Neill ever publically acknowledged making or supporting the proposals, and all efforts to change the cost-of-living formula fell through when the two men failed to resolve their budget differences at a lengthy bargaining session in the Capitol on April 28.

That ended the debate as far as the July 1, 1982, increase is concerned.

But for 1983 and beyond, the debate has barely begun.

A Republican-dominated study commission is reviewing Social Security, and a report is expected later this year on how to shore up the giant pension system.

Eagerly awaiting its contents are the leaders of Congress, who are prepared to call the House and Senate into session this fall to consider the recommendations.

Changes in the cost-of-living formula are certain to reappear as Congress struggles then to repair Social Security.

By that time the election results will be in, and both the president and his Republican allies — as well as the Democrats — may decide to cool the rhetoric and work together to change the cost-of-living formula they now claim credit for preserving.

Olympic Coins Produce Bulldog Fight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a remarkable display of bulldog tenacity, Rep. Frank Annunzio has won an impressive victory in his long battle over plans to sell a special coin commemorating the 1984 Olympic Games.

In the process, the Chicago Democrat routed some powerful opponents, including the entire Senate and the chairman of the House Banking Committee and the near-legendary millionaire industrialist Armand Hammer.

The year-long battle was over who would sell the Olympic coins — the government or private companies — and how many coins there should be.

The sale of commemorative coins is a traditional way to raise money for the Olympic Games, and the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, host for the 1984 games, was anxious to do it.

It came up with a plan to produce coins in 25 different designs, and signed an agreement with a group of private firms to sell them and share in the profits.

The Senate agreed to the plan last December and sent the bill to the House, where it went to the House Banking subcommittee on consumer affairs and coinage chaired by Annunzio.

There the bill sat while Annunzio railed — in press releases and speeches on the House floor — against letting private firms share profits from the sales. And, with the encouragement of the numismatic community, Annunzio said there should be far fewer coins.

Annunzio came under heavy pressure, complaining of "an organized effort to paint me as the enemy of the 1984 Olympic Games and of America's Olympic athletes."

His plan called for a single design — silver dollars — to be sold by the Treasury. But the chairman of the Banking Committee — Rep. Fernand St Germain, D-R.I. — was opposed. When the full committee took up the bill St Germain prevailed, winning a 32-7 vote for a 17-coin plan, still with private companies doing the marketing.

But when the bill reached the House floor, Annunzio pulled a stunning upset and the House agreed, 302-84, to to "eliminate the middleman" and have the government sell the coins. In a slight concession, Annunzio's modified plan also called the minting of three coins instead of just one.

The private marketing group originally picked to do the selling was made up of Occidental Petroleum, the international banking firm of Lazard-Freres, and the Franklin Mint. In frustration over Annunzio's delaying the bill, those companies dropped out of the plan in April.

The chairman of Occidental Petroleum, Armand Hammer, was also irritated at Annunzio for his repeated complaint that Occidental has paid no federal income taxes in recent years. Most of the company's income was from foreign sources which were taxed by other countries, Hammer explained.

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — Americans' attitudes toward Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin do not seem to have suffered as a result of his country's incursion into Lebanon to prevent PLO attacks on Israeli settlements.

In a Gallup survey conducted at the time of Israel's Lebanese operation, Begin was given a "highly favorable" personality rating by 9 percent of Americans and total favorable ratings by 52 percent, little changed from earlier survey findings.

Following is the scale question used to determine favorable and unfavorable personality ratings:

"You will notice that the 10 boxes on the scale from highest position of plus five — for someone you have a very favorable opinion of — all the way down to the lowest position of minus five — for someone you have a very unfavorable opinion of. How far up or down the scale would you rate Menachem Begin?"

Crash Toll ...

Although witnesses said the plane appeared to have been hit by lightning just before the crash, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Ira Furman said lightning was "about the last thing you look for" as the cause of a plane crash.

Air traffic controller Allen Oehler, who has 26 years of experience but was off duty at the time of the crash, said the storm may have generated "wind shear," abrupt and violent shifts in air currents.

FAA officials said bad weather is not seen as a reason to close an airport, an action only taken when runways are obstructed, such as by snow.

"In most cases, the pilot just declines to take off or make an approach through bad weather," said FAA official Earl Wolfe. "We do have minimum conditions for approach to a runway and for takeoffs, but it's still a pilot's decision."

Wisps of acrid smoke continued to rise Saturday as eight five-man teams of volunteers, each with a doctor, picked through the wreckage. Many wore surgical masks.

Capt. Mike Demma of the Jefferson Parish Sheriff's Office said the search for bodies, which had been halted temporarily during the night, was hindered Saturday by fears that spilled fuel might ignite.

Demma said the airliner was fully fueled when it took off and highly volatile aviation fuel had leaked onto the ground. According to Jane's All the World's Aircraft, the standard fuel capacity of a 727 is 8,090 gallons.

Officials said they were uncertain exactly how many bodies had been recovered because of their condition. Sheriff Harry Lee had estimated 80 bodies by Saturday morning.

"There's no telling," said Sam Morse of the parish coroner's office. "All we're getting out is bits and pieces. We have more than than 150 body pouches. But each one may have from a wrist and hand to whole bodies."

The one bright spot in the search was the recovery Friday of an 18-month-old girl, Melissa Trahan, who was reported in stable condition. She was pulled from the rubble of a home ruined in the crash.

Four others on the ground when the crash occurred were seriously injured. Two were listed in critical condition with burns over 80 percent of their bodies.

'It Hit My Tree'

By The Associated Press

Dozens of people saw and heard the crash of Pan American Flight 759 at Kenner, La., Friday afternoon. One of them was Normand "Rock" Shereen.

"When the plane came over, I was standing right in the back door and it hit my tree," he said. "Then it hit the wires, big cables on top of the electrical wires and then she came nose right on down into the next street."

Victor Dean, a Pan Am employee, saw it, too.

"It was like a big vacuum cleaner went through," said Dean, who lives six houses from where the jet slammed into the ground a few feet from the intersection of 17th and Hudson streets.

The plane bulldozed its way toward Taylor Street, demolishing 11 houses and damaging two others. Houses in the area were still smoldering Saturday.

"If you were half-asleep, you would have sworn you were in hell," said George Cusack. He lives two houses away from the plane's path of destruction.

One of those not as lucky as Cusack or Dean was Mrs. Joseph Pace of 1608 Taylor Street. She and her two children who were in the house at the time of the crash escaped.

"I heard a huge cracking sound, and the wall caved in," she said. "It shook the foundations and I ran hollering for my kids ...

"Outside, my car was on fire and there were flames coming up through my house, " she said. "It wasn't until 45 minutes later I knew it was a plane."

In Las Vegas, at McCarran International Airport, a sign by a gate read: "Flight 759 Canceled. See Agent."

Beer Sludge Is Good Fertilizer

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Beer in large quantities can pack quite a wallop — as a fertilizer as well as an intoxicant, Cornell University researchers say.

Research associate Lewis Naylor said beer sludge used on six experimental plots in Oswego County has increased per acre yields from 1.6 tons to 3.4 tons of hay.

Naylor, who is conducting further experiments on Tompkins County fields, said farmers would welcome an inexpensive fertilizer and the Miller Brewing Co. would be glad to get rid of unwanted waste.

Beer sludge consists of hops, barley malt and corn grits strained from the beer before it's bottled.

Crashes Came In Bad Weather

By The Associated Press

The crash of a Pan American World Airways 727 jetliner near New Orleans during a thunderstorm was the third fatal accident in the United States this year involving a large commercial carrier, and all took place in bad weather.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said all 145 people aboard the plane were killed Friday. The jet crashed into a residential neighborhood, and there were more fatalities on the ground.

It was raining at the time of the crash, shortly after Pan Am Flight 759 took off from New Orleans International Airport, and a heavy thunderstorm was reported in the area.

The other two major commercial crashes in the United States this year took place 10 days apart in icy January weather.

On Jan. 10, an Air Florida Boeing 737 took off from Washington's National Airport in a snowstorm, failed to gain altitude and slammed into the 14th Street Bridge over the Potomac River. Seventy-eight people were killed, including four motorists on the bridge. Five people aboard the plane survived.

At National Transportation and Safety Board hearings on the crash, testimony focused on whether the wings had been properly de-iced before takeoff. American Airlines crews who serviced the plane said the last de-icing took place 50 minutes before takeoff.

Despite the plane's inability to climb, tests showed "no evidence ... to indicate there were any structural or mechanical failures," chief investigator Rudolf Kapustin said.

Ice also played a role Jan. 23 at Boston's Logan International Airport, when a World Airways DC-10 with 210 people aboard landed on an icy runway and slid into Boston Harbor.

Officer Was Tar Heel

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donald G. Pierce, the first officer on the ill-fated Pan American jetliner that crashed in a suburban neighborhood near New Orleans, was a native of Edenton, N.C., a Pan Am spokesman said Saturday.

Pierce, 32, graduated from John S. Holmes High School and later attended South Illinois University and North Carolina A&T University.

GOP Has Good Chance Of Holding Senate Lead

By CLAY F. RICHARDS
UPI Political Writer

Three months before the November elections Republicans appear to have a good chance of retaining control of the Senate, although a worsening economy could jeopardize a half dozen GOP incumbents.

United Press International political writers and capital reporters in the 32 states with Senate races analyzed their contests and saw relatively few shifts in seats this far before Election Day.

At this early stage Republicans actually have an edge, since the three seats that are their main targets — California, Virginia and New Jersey — have no incumbent seeking re-election.

Democrats on the other hand see their best opportunity in races against three Republican incumbents — Orrin Hatch of Utah, Lowell Weicker of Connecticut and John Danforth of Missouri.

But the UPI survey showed a worsening economy could jeopardize some of the strongest backers of President Reagan's economic program, including one of its chief authors, Sen. William Roth of Delaware, Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, Sen. Robert Stafford of Vermont, Sen. Harrison Schmitt of New Mexico, Sen. John Chaffee of Rhode Island and Sen. David Durenberger of Minnesota.

At this point though, defeat of those Republicans would rank as upsets.

There is a smaller list of Democratic incumbents in potential upset situations — but their defeat is less likely. On this list are Sens. James Sasser of Tennessee, George Mitchell of Maine and Dennis DeConcini of Arizona.

In relatively safe races for the moment are Democratic Sens. Lawton Chiles of Florida, Spark Matsunaga of Hawaii, Paul Sarbanes of Maryland, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Donald Riegle of Michigan, John Stennis of Mississippi, John Melcher of Montana, Daniel Moynihan of New York, Howard Metzenbaum of Ohio, Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, Henry Jackson of Washington, Robert Byrd of West Virginia and William Proxmire of Wisconsin.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., will have an easy time winning re-election if he beats the strong Democratic primary challenge from by Rep. James Santini.

On the Republican side, Sens. John Heinz of Pennsylvania and Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming are fairly safe.

Mitigating against major upsets is that the climate of economic uncertainty has forced incumbents to work harder and be alert to political trouble. It will be harder to surprise incumbents in 1982 than it was in 1980 when almost no one predicted that Democrats would lose control of the Senate.

Here is a state-by-state look at the 32 races:

Arizona — DeConcini will face either State Rep. Peter Dunn or businessman Dean Sellers. DeConcini has been attacked for providing the deciding vote to ratify the Panama Canal treaties and Arizona is a strongly conservative state, but he should survive.

California — Gov. Edmund Brown trails San Diego's GOP Mayor Pete Wilson in the battle to succeed Sen. S.I. Hayakawa. Brown has proposed a dozen debates between now and Election Day, and anything can happen.

Connecticut — Weicker is in a tough primary with Prescott Bush, brother of the vice president. If he loses he may run as an independent, which would split the conservative-to-moderate vote and help elect Democratic Rep. Toby Moffett.

Delaware — This could be a test of Reagonomics as Sen. Roth goes up against Democrat David Levinson, an attorney and businessman. Levinson has been campaigning for three years and has had some help from appearances by Sens. Alan Cranson of California and Gary Hart of Colorado.

Florida — Republican bigwigs supposedly are prepared to raise $3 million to defeat Democrat Chiles, but so far no major GOP candidate has emerged.

Hawaii — Matsunaga, one of the most liberal members of the Senate, is expected to be an easy winner. He has raised a war chest of $500,000 without any visible opponent yet.

Indiana — Lugar has been extremely popular in the state where he once served as mayor of Indianapolis. But the economy is bad and his record of voting for the Reagan economic program could work against him in his race against Democratic Rep. Floyd Fithian.

Maine — Mitchell entered the race as the most vulnerable Democratic senator in the nation but has come from 36 points behind to pull even with GOP Rep. David Emery. Unless the economy improves dramatically the Democrat should win.

Maryland — Sarbanes was targeted for defeat early by the New Right's National Political Action Committee, and it woke him up and got him running hard. He now leads his likely GOP opponent, Prince George's County Executive Larry Hogan.

Massachusetts — Kennedy's campaign is only a gearing up for the 1984 run at the presidency. Republican business executive Raymond Shamie is running an aggressive campaign attacking Kennedy's liberalism. It is going nowhere.

Michigan — Former GOP Rep. Phil Ruppe is expected to be Riegle's opponent, but the economy is so bad in Michigan it will be near impossible to beat the Democrat.

Minnesota — Durenberger could face a stiff challenge from Democrat Mark Dayton, whose well-financed campaign benefits from not only his family's department store fortune but that of his wife — Alida Rockefeller Dayton, a member of the fourth Rockefeller generation.

Mississippi — Stennis, oldest in the Senate at 81, is heavily favored to win a seventh term despite his first serious Republican challenge — from Yazoo City attorney Haley Barbour, vice chair of the state GOP.

Missouri — Eleven candidates are running in the Democratic primary for the right to oppose Danforth, who is vulnerable because of his unwavering support of Reagan's policies. The Democratic race is a contest between State Sen. Harriett Woods, and banker Burleigh Arnold.

Montana — Melcher was another NCPAC target where the negative advertising campaign may have backfired. He is favored at this point over Republican Larry Williams, a freelance investment adviser.

Nebraska — Zorinsky is one of the most conservative Democrats in the Senate, which doesn't leave much running room for Republican Jim Kick, an advertising executive and retired Air Force general.

Nevada — The primary is the big race with Santini attacking Cannon, saying he doesn't understand how he became a millionaire in the Senate. Cannon is narrowly ahead and whichever Democrat wins should have no trouble in November.

New Jersey — A prime Republican opportunity with Rep. Millicent Fenwick, the early favorite over Democratic millionaire businessman Frank Lautenberg.

New Mexico — Schmitt is prepared to spend heavily to keep his seat in his race against state Attorney General Jeff Bingman.

New York — Moynihan is running against NCPAC so far, with no strong Republican challenger yet. Former U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour, the party choice, faces a primary challenge from former State Banking Supt. Muriel Siebert.

Ohio — The economy is so bad that Metzenbaum at this point does not appear to be seriously challenged by state Sen. Paul Pfeifer.

Pennsylvania — Heinz has built a $3 million war chest in his race against Democrat Cyril Wecht, the county exectutive from Pittsburgh. Heinz' name and resources so far give him the edge.

Rhode Island — Chaffee leads in the polls. So far Democrat Julius Michaelson, a former state attorney general, has not made great waves.

Tennessee — Both Sasser and his likely GOP opponent, Rep. Robin Beard, agree Sasser would win if the election were held today. As long as the economy stays bad, the election will come out that way, but if things improve, voters could decide someone more conservative is better.

Texas — Bentsen is being portrayed as a liberal by NCPAC and the Republican contender, Rep. Jim Collins. Collins claims his polls show he is closing the gap, but they also show that 25 percent don't know who he is.

Utah — Hatch is one of the most vulnerable Republican incumbents in the country and faces a stiff challenge from Salt Lake City Mayor Ted Wilson. Hatch will be better financed, however.

Vermont — Stafford faces a stronger than expected primary challenge, but is still the frontrunner. If former Secretary of State James Guest wins the Democratic primary he could give Stafford a stiff race.

Virginia — At last Virginia is going to be represented by a Republican or a Democrat. Independent Harry Byrd is retiring, leaving Republican Rep. Paul Trible to oppose Democratic Lt. Gov. Richard Davis. Trible has an early edge, but in this race Election Day is a long ways off.

Washington — Jackson is all too aware that Sen. Warren Magnuson was upset two years ago and is running hard. The main contenders to oppose him are Doug Jewett, the Seattle city attorney, and state Sen. King Lysen.

West Virginia — Byrd has a stronger than usual challenge from GOP Rep. Cleve Benedict, who is making some ground but probably not enough.

Pentagon Wants Dogs To Enlist

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Pentagon is seeking out 1,200 true-blue American canines for a life of discipline in which humans do the barking and recruits are expected to work their tails off.

The Defense Department Dog Center set up shop here Friday and planned to stay through Monday. German shepherds, cairn terriers, beagles, retrievers and German shorthair pointers with names like Rocky, Sam and Bucky will be among the chosen few shipped off to four months of "boot camp."

Some will be assigned to a life of sniffing out explosives and drugs, while others will be posted on guard duty at bases in all branches of the military around the country, said William Edwards, the manager of the dog center.

The Dog Center, based at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio, Texas, has held similar drives in St. Louis, San Francisco, and Sacramento and Riverside, Calif., in the past four months.

The Defense Department goal is to take roughly one of every five dogs examined, Edwards said.

The Defense Department needs about 1,200 dogs, ages 1 to 4, which are 23 inches tall at the shoulder and weigh 50 pounds, Edwards said. The Pentagon purchases most of the animals from their owners for about $250.

"We're looking for a mature dog that has developed his personality and is confident of the ground he is on," Edwards said.

"We look for some signs of aggression when he's teased or 'agitated,' as we call it," Edwards said. "We don't want mean dogs ...."

Edwards said "a man and a patrol dog are as good as five men guarding aircraft."

Veterinarians gave the dogs thorough examinations here, checking body temperature, reflexes and teeth, as well as taking X-rays to make sure the dogs' hips were strong enough to take the rigors of military life. By noon Saturday, 126 dogs from southeastern Wisconsin had been checked and 27 were accepted, Edwards said.

Medical Mystery:
Why Is Killer Disease Striking Homosexuals

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It started in September with a sore about the size of a large freckle on his forearm. Another appeared in November.

Today, the homosexual 37-year-old Greenwich Village night club performer talks in whispers from his bed in the isolation ward of a New York City hospital.

The sores, a rare form of cancer, now cover his body. A half dozen infections also have set in. And all doctors know is that his body's natural disease-fighting system was wiped out before the first sore appeared, leaving him defenseless against the tumors and infection.

"He's deteriorating badly," says his physician, Joyce Wallace. "We don't know why, and there's nothing we can do."

A disease no one is supposed to catch has killed more than 170 young men over the past two years. Many of 300 others, like the performer, are on a kind of death row as one of the largest medical investigative teams ever assembled tries to find the cause and a cure — before time runs out.

This epidemic of an unknown killer is a medical mystery that dwarfs Toxic Shock Syndrome and Legionnaires' Disease. It has killed more people than those two epidemics combined.

"You couldn't have a better example of a medical detective story — the magnitude, the seriousness, the numbers of people potentially involved and our inability to make a significant dent," says Dr. Donna Mildvan, chief of infectious diseases at Beth Israel Medical Center in New York City.

More than a third of those diagnosed with the disease have died; 80 percent of those diagnosed before 1981 are dead, the Centers for Disease Control says. And every day brings an average of two new cases. Most are homosexual men, and they include businessmen, lawyers and doctors.

After the immune systems fail, a host of diseases may set in. The most common are Kaposi's sarcoma, the skin cancer which the performer has, and Pneumocystis pneumonia — once only found in people whose body defense systems were weakened by treatments for cancer or drugs for organ transplants.

Doctors know what it is. They just don't know why or how.

This syndrome, which is frightening the homosexual community, now is being found more frequently among heterosexuals, raising the possibility that it is not limited to a small group of Americans.

Although there is now no evidence of widespread risk to the general public, there are increasing numbers of victims who don't fit into the groups that appear to be at higher risk, says Dr. James Curran, head of a CDC task force studying the syndrome.

"We don't know the horizons of this syndrome," Curran says.

In search of answers, the Atlanta-based CDC tapped 75 of its experts in parasitic diseases, viruses, sexually transmitted diseases, cancer and many other fields. After more than a year of study, the federal team will have spent $2 million by this fall, rivaling the early stages of the exhaustive search for the cause of Legionnaires' Disease in 1976.

More than 100 other experts at several major research hospitals as well as private physicians also are studying the disease, which gives them a rare opportunity to study cancer in a closed, epidemic form.

If doctors can link an infection or combination of infections to immune deficiency and, ultimately, to cancer, "it is the best thing that can happen to medical science," says Dr. Bijan Safai, chief of dermatology services at Memorial Sloan Kettering Cancer Center, where 35 investigators are studying the disease.

Medical sleuths at the CDC and elsewhere are talking to victims of the syndrome, asking intimate questions about sexual partners and practices, and looking for a common thread. They are asking heroin users where they get their fix and who they share needles with.

They are examining the blood of victims. They are studying the genes of victims. They are injecting diseased tissue from victims into monkeys in Arizona.

They are testing sexual stimulants on mice in a West Virginia laboratory; many of the homosexual victims used the stimulant to intensify orgasm. They are sorting through 500,000 New York City medical records in search of patterns.

One area not explored is Africa, the only place in the world where Kaposi's is common among children and young adults. Curran says that sending a research team to Africa is not a high priority because "there is no evidence that the profound breakdown in immunity is occurring there."

There are weekly meetings of the task force in Atlanta, daily phone calls from CDC epidemiologists and concerned physicians in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Miami and New York City, among other cities. Each new piece of information raises more questions and launches more studies, Curran says.

The syndrome, known as "acquired cellular immune deficiency," is a chink in the body's disease-fighting system. In these cases, a toxic substance or a bacterium or a virus — or perhaps a combination of things — is wiping out the cells in an entire section of the immune system.

Even if a patient recovers from Kaposi's or Pneumocystis, it is only a matter of time before he catches another life-threatening disease.

While doctors search for a cause of the immune deficiency, they also are trying to treat the resulting diseases and testing experimental medications like interferon to restore the immune system.

"We can't even treat some of the most unusual manifestations of the immune deficiency, much less the deficiency itself," Curran says.

The typical patient is a man, 25 to 44 years old. About 75 percent are homosexual or bisexual. About 60 percent are white, the rest are black or Hispanic. Fifty percent of the cases have been in New York City, 20 percent in California, and the rest in 22 other states and seven foreign countries.

The mystery story began last June when Dr. Michael Gottlieb of UCLA reported five cases of Pneumocystis in young homosexual men in Los Angeles. All eventually died.

Then several other Los Angeles physicians said they had seen young homosexuals with severe cases of Kaposi's sarcoma, a rarely fatal skin cancer that previously had affected only elderly people.

Dr. Alvin Friedman-Kien, of New York University Medical Center, called the CDC to report that his colleagues had seen eight cases of Kaposi's in homosexual men during the previous year.

Kaposi's and Pneumocystis were linked from the beginning: 20 percent of the patients had Kaposi's and Pneumocystis at the same time and both diseases were associated with defects in the immune system. Tests confirmed the immune deficiency.

The immune system is made up of antibodies and white blood cells, called lymphocytes, which work together in ways still not fully understood.

No one had seen such a spontaneous attack on the immune system of a healthy person in mid-life. "We had never seen this problem in nature before," said Dr. Mary Guinan, a CDC epidemiologist.

Physicians from New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles began reporting cases, and the number swelled to 26. A task force was formed, and CDC epidemiologists, as they do in all such mysteries, set out to find the common denominator.

"The link among these guys was that they were all gay," Mrs. Guinan says. "So we said, 'What does that mean? Why would it affect only gays?'"

CDC studied the lifestyles and experiences of patients and non-patients. They asked about hobbies, pets, use of street drugs, first sexual experiences, number of sex partners and the general health of patients' friends. They asked about travels, previous diseases and sexual practices.

But there were difficulties. Some patients were either dead or too ill to be interviewed by the time CDC researchers arrived. Even when the patients are cooperative, as the CDC says most have been, the questions are embarassing and intensely personal.

"It's difficult to see a patient dying and have to ask him how many times he had sex last year, whether it was oral or rectal intercourse, in a bathhouse or restroom, with someone he knew or not," Mrs. Guinan says.

Profiles were compiled, examined and cross-checked. But "we didn't find the smoking gun," says Dr. Harold Jaffe, deputy director of the task force.

They did find that the homosexual patients had about twice the number of sexual partners as other homosexuals interviewed, or a lifetime average of 1,100. Homosexual patients also had more varied sexual experiences and histories of sexually transmitted diseases.

Aflatoxin Lab To Open Here

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Testing laboratories will open in three Coastal Plain cities within two months to help corn farmers check their crops for aflatoxin.

Agriculture Commissioner James Graham said Friday that laboratories in Greenville and Goldsboro will open Aug. 25, while a lab in Whiteville will open Sept. 1. The seasonal laboratories will be open from 1½ months to three months, he said.

There also are year-round aflatoxin testing facilities in Raleigh and Salisbury.

Windy Rainstorms Rake Plains States, Gulf Coast Area

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms ripped parts of the Plains and Gulf Coast states, sending torrential rains and winds up to 80 mph in Kansas and causing some flooding in Missouri on Saturday.

Rainstorms late Friday night and early Saturday dumped nearly 5 inches of rain in Washington, Mo., prompting evacuation of a trailer park. Several basements were flooded in the town 30 miles west of St. Louis. St. Louis reported 3.3 inches of rain.

A tornado was sighted early Saturday morning near New Orleans, but no injuries or damage were reported. The day before, a Pan Am Boeing 727 crashed in a heavy thunderstorm in Kenner, La., a New Orleans suburb, killing more than 150 people.

In Kansas, 11 people were injured by storms during the night that dumped up to 6 inches of rain on the central part of the state.

The west side of Emporia was littered with broken glass, gravel and other debris. Power had gone out in a few areas.

Winds early Saturday were clocked at 70 to 80 mph at Reading, 10 miles northeast of Emporia.

A Salina, Kan., woman was hospitalized in good condition Saturday after she was shocked by a downed power line. Elizabeth Holzmeister, 47, received an electrical charge when she stepped into high water after her car stalled.

Some flooding and power blackouts also were reported in Salina.

Overnight rainfalls of almost 5.5 inches brought the Platte River out of its banks east of Grand Island, Neb. Four feet of water covered some roads and lowland flooding was expected to continue from east of Grand Island to Central City, Neb.

Cleanup operations began in Buffalo, Minn., after heavy rains Friday night left much of the town under water.

Shultz Expected To Be Low-Key Secretary

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — George P. Shultz will be a more low-key secretary of state than his predecessor, avoiding noisy scenes and power struggles while stressing reason and careful analysis in preparing U.S. foreign policy, according to those who know him.

But several people interviewed said Shultz will have to get more cooperation from the Reagan White House than Alexander M. Haig Jr. received if he is to live up to his potential as secretary of state.

Haig resigned on June 25 after 17 months in office marked by his constant battles with key members of the White House staff and other Cabinet officers.

"It's tough enough to conduct your business without being attacked by your own," said William E. Simon, a former deputy who succeeded Shultz as secretary of treasury in 1974.

Shultz "won't tolerate it any more than Al (Haig) did," he said in an interview.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is scheduled to begin confirmation hearings Tuesday. If all goes as smoothly as expected, Shultz could be sworn into office later in the week.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. has predicted Shultz will not "have any serious problems" winning Senate confirmation.

Shultz, 61, was budget chief and secretary of labor and treasury in the Nixon administration and emerged untainted by the Watergate scandal. Most recently, he headed the Bechtel Group, Inc., a San Francisco-based construction conglomerate with major interests in the Arab world, particularly Saudi Arabia.

Little is known about Shultz's views on most key foreign policy issues. He has kept to his promise that the period prior to his confirmation hearings would be "days of silence."

But foreign policy experts don't expect any dramatic changes. They say Shultz will be as pro-Europe as Haig was. And, they say, while Shultz has been somewhat critical of Israel in the past — in contrast to Haig's unflagging support — any change in Mideast policy probably will be of tone rather than substance.

There is agreement that the major difference between Shultz and Haig will be in style, and that this could result in a more effective foreign policy. Shultz can be expected to be a "team player" and to shun the power struggles that marked Haig's tenure as secretary of state.

"I'm sure he didn't come in from a good job, a satisfying job, in private industry — after serving at high levels of the government in the past — to get embroiled in battles over turf and jurisdiction and that kind of thing," said Helmut Sonnenfeldt, a foreign policy expert at the Brookings Institution.

He said President Reagan should make Shultz the foreign policy chief, directly supervise him and prevent others from trying to undercut Shultz's authority.

Sonnenfeldt, who was at the National Security Council under Henry Kissinger while Shultz was at the Treasury Department, said Shultz "ran a high morale organization" at Treasury.

"I've always known Shultz to be someone who reaches his conclusions on the basis of arguments and data," he said. "While he has strong views, they aren't ideological views ... He gets there through a process of reason."

Simon, who runs a private investment business in New York, said he knows "few people with the intellectual capacity and ability for conceptual analysis that George Shultz has." Regarding possible turf battles, Simon said "George never had those."

A senior State Department official, who knows Shultz but who didn't want to be identified, said of the secretary-designate: "I think he will probably get his way in a more low-key fashion. He will probably be as conscious of the turf, but do it in a more gentle way."

Joseph Laitin, a former Shultz aide at the Office of Management and Budget, described him as "one of those conservatives liberals trust."

But some conservtives already have voiced dismay about Shultz's nomination. They cite, among other things, Shultz's close work with Kissinger to implement detente with the Soviet Union during the Nixon years. Simon said Shultz "was responsible for working to carry it out."

But Simon, who is identified with GOP conservatives, said Shultz shouldn't have "serious problems" with conservatives.

"There are people who prefer everybody to be pure ideologically," Simon said. "I don't think that is realistic. Everybody isn't going to agree with what George does. That is the way leadership works."

Although Shultz has declined to comment on foreign policy since his nomination, a few hints to his views can be gleaned from past statements.

In a 1978 speech, he opposed so-called "light switch diplomacy," whereby the government turns off trade with other nations "like a light switch" as an instrument of foreign policy. The State Department official said Shultz probably would disagree with the administration's recent decision to try to block construction of a Soviet gas pipeline to Europe.

Shultz disagreed with a staunchly pro-Israeli speech by Reagan after the 1980 election. And in a 1981 speech, Shultz said, "Palestinian issues cannot be solved without talking to Palestinians," suggesting the Israelis haven't tried hard enough to achieve a lasting peace.

Two members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who are sympathetic to Israel say they will question Shultz closely on his views toward the Jewish state.

U.S. Promises To Keep Up Hunt For MIAs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Defense Intelligence Agency official tried Saturday to reassure families of U.S. servicemen missing in Indochina that the agency will use whatever resources are necessary to investigate reported sightings of Americans still being held prisoner.

"It is our conviction that each report will be given a very thorough examination, a very thorough analysis," said Air Force Lt. Col. Jack Kennedy.

Speaking at the 13th annual meeting of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, Kennedy declared: "On this particular issue, I can assure you that I have no fiscal constraints."

He added that "the Defense Intelligence Agency is dedicated to solving the problem ... and by God we will."

Kennedy's remarks echoed assurances Friday by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger, who said the fate of 2,500 Americans still unaccounted for in the Indochina conflict remains "a matter of the highest national priority."

Weinberger said the Reagan administration is "proceeding on the assumption that some Americans are still alive and still being held." During a Pentagon ceremony, he noted that there have been "over 400 first-hand sightings," many of them by refugees who claimed to have seen Americans held at various camps within Vietnam and Laos.

At Saturday's session, Kennedy was asked why the agency has not yet used its massive files of refugee reports and other intelligence data to come out publicly with an announcement about specific Americans being held prisoner in Southeast Asia.

He responded that "frustrating as it is, we cannot prove that there is any person alive there. ... As a professional intelligence officer, I must deal with what (data) I have to work with."

Kennedy also was questioned about reports alleging that scattered groups of former American GIs who defected to the communist side during the war may be living in Vietnam.

"We're no closer to substantiating that type of statement than we probably have ever been," he replied.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pet of the Week is this black, tan and white mixed-breed female puppy, charming personality. May be seen at the Pitt County Animal Shelter.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

•A young adult part-springer spaniel, had all shots; a mixed-breed brown and white puppy with one blue eye, one brown; a 5-month-old female mixed-breed puppy, red with white paws, friendly; and a black and white male mixed-breed puppy. All may be seen at the Pitt County Animal Shelter on County Home Road (State Rd. 1725) Monday through Friday from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m.

•Five 6-week-old hound puppies that have had shots, been dewormed, are very gentle. 756-6420, 756-6126.

•Two 8-week-old kittens — one black male and one female calico. 758-1902.

•Three 8-week-old female kittens — two yellow tabbies and one calico. 524-4039 between 2 and 6 p.m.

•A 4-month-old schnauzer-terrier puppy that has had all shots, been dewormed — housebroken, good with children. 752-9613.

•A 6-week-old gray male tabby kitten. 758-5964.

•Female 2-year-old, 35-pound dog, part collie, tan and brown, all shots. 746-4387.

•Female cockapoo, gray. 756-7610.

•An 11-month-old female, black and white, spotted like a Dalmatian, had shots, trained to do tricks like play Frisbee, sit and drops on command. 756-1268.

•Female 3-month-old part hound dog, brown, loving. Two 11-week-old male kittens, yellow and white. 752-9922.

•Found — a female chihuahua on East 14th Street, call and describe. 752-7631.

•One male 2-year-old black part-lab and one female 2-year-old tan part-lab. 752-7991.

•Found: small tan dog, short hair, well-mannered. 758-2002.

Roof Workers Report Burns

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Creosote from the pitch tar roof at Union Carbide's No. 2 plant may have caused skin and eye irritation and respiratory disorders to a seven-man roofing crew last week, company officials say.

The men were using power sweepers and blowers to clear gravel and dust off the roof of the battery manufacturing plant Monday when they noticed the irritation, a spokesman for Union Carbide said. Spokesmen for several local roofing firms called about the creosote, saying the chemical could cause burns if it came into contact with perspiration on the skin, he added.

Five of the men were treated for first- and second-degree burns, said Dr. Victor MacIntosh of Randolph Hospital, adding that the burns appeared to have been caused by a chemical.

One of the other two victims, Terry Locklear, is still recuperating under a doctor's care, said company owner Don Atkins. The other said he was treated at Wesley Long Community Hospital, but a hospital official said there was no record he was seen there.

Of the affected workers, four have returned to work, Atkins said. One man took a job elsewhere as he had planned and another was fired after he stayed out Thursday without notifying the company, Atkins said.

Atkins said more caution was being used since the incident.

New Technique Curbs Beetles

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Cigarette beetles, which destroy tobacco, wheat and other farm commodities in storage, may be controlled for a full year by keeping warehouses cool, University of Virginia researchers say.

Sensitive to cold, the beetle is dormant if the temperature is kept at 40 degrees or less for at least 40 days. Using a computer simulation and temperature data collected at tobacco warehouses, mechanical engineers found that the proper conditions could be maintained through controlled ventilation and proper insulation.

"The time to do this is in winter," said Dr. J. Taylor Beard, associate professor of mechanical and aerospace engineering. "At night fans are used to draw in cold air and force out warm air from the higher elevations in the warehouse. This combined with insulation to block heat from the sun during the day will maintain the 'cold soak' condition."

The low-energy cooling system offers an economically feasible alternative to the toxic fumigants used against the beetle in tobacco warehouses, Beard said.

The tobacco industry, which funded part of the research, "would like to have a back-up system in the event that government regulation bans the pesticides now in use," he said.

Dr. Dana P. Childs of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Richmond said "fumigation disrupts the whole marketing system. The commodity is tied up for a week or longer while the chemical is applied."

The cigarette beetle, about one-fourth of an inch long, will attack products ranging from stored grains to spices in a pantry.

"The longer a commodity is in storage, the greater an opportunity for insect infestation," said Childs, noting that tobacco may be stored for as long as seven years.

The cooling method developed by Beard and others is designed for controlling the beetle in a typical central North Carolina tobacco warehouse. It could be easily adapted for warehouses in cooler regions, but supplemental air conditioning probably would be required in warmer areas.

The researchers estimate it would cost about $35,000 to install the fans and insulation.

A FANCIFUL MURAL ... now decorates an entire wall of the parent's waiting room in the pediatrics ward at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The art supplies were purchased with funds from an anonymous donor and the mural was painted by Vesma Anderson, a graduate student in the East Carolina University Department of Art. Over 200 hours of work went into the mural, which depicts a forest scene. "I hope that this will only be the first of a series of efforts to make the hospital a more pleasant place for children," said Dr. Jon Tingelstad. (Reflector photo by Jane Welborn)

Helms, East Appointees Criticized

By The Associated Press

North Carolina Sens. Jesse Helms and John East are among Reagan administration officials criticized by the Food and Drug Administration for politicizing appointments to the agency's scientific advisory committees.

But Jerry Woodruff, press secretary for East, denied the published allegations, saying the 10 people jointly nominated by Helms and East were recommended for their professional qualifications.

Woodruff said some of the nominees were involved in the Republican Party and some were not.

FDA officials have complained privately about a number of the appointees.

They claim a Rocky Mount doctor active in the Nash County Republican Party and a member of the John Birch Society was nominated to serve on the opthalmic, ear, nose and throat and dental devices advisory panel.

A Roanoke Rapids surgeon recommended for the surgical and rehabilitation devices panel allegedly wrote on his application that his interests were "the same as that of Jesse Helms," the officials said.

The officials said a Fayetteville nurse nominated for the national advisory council on nurses training once led the Cumberland County Republican Party and did campaign work for Helms and President Reagan, while a Greensboro psychiatrist nominated for a seat on the advisory commission on drug abuse was once a volunteer in election campaigns for Helms, East and Rep. Eugene Johnston, R-N.C.

In addition, a Goldsboro dentist active in the Wayne County Republican Party was recommended for the national advisory dental research council, the officials said.

Other Helms-East nominees did not list any political affiliations on their applications. The names of the nominees have not been made public.

FDA officials said appointees to the agency's 31 technical and scientific advisory boards traditionally have been selected for professional qualifications alone. But Health and Human Services Secretary Richard S. Schweiker, who legally has the power to appoint the committees, has been passing names recommended by Republican officials to the FDA, officials said.

Woodruff said that instead of asking whether people with political connections should be nominated, the question might be asked why people should be excluded because of their political affiliations.

"It would be a shame if they would not receive an appointment because they were active in the Republican Party," he said.

Foreign Investors Buying Timber

By KEN KLEIN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Lured by political stability and prospects for long-range profits, foreign investors are planting their francs, marks and pounds in huge tracts of fast-growing Southern pine.

In Florida, foreign ownership of timberland has more than tripled since 1979, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says.

"Compared to what they pay for land in Europe, timberland here seems like a bargain," says Jim Montgomery, executive vice president of the Southern Forest Institute in Atlanta.

Most of the land is being acquired by investors from Canada, France, Great Britain, West Germany and the Netherlands Antilles, says the USDA's Peter DeBraal in Washington.

Despite recent acquisitions, foreign ownership remains miniscule compared to private woodland holdings by American companies and individuals.

But the pace of foreign purchases has been brisk in these states:

— In Florida, where foreign interests owned or controlled 19,073 acres of timberland in February 1979, foreign acreage had increased to 72,042 by Dec. 31, 1981.

— Mississippi, more than a nine-fold increase since 1979, from 20,780 acres to 198,179 acres.

— Georgia more than tripled, from 212,436 acres to 701,700 acres.

— South Carolina, from 250,145 acres to 406,167 acres.

Gains in foreign ownership have been less dramatic in North Carolina and Tennessee.

Tom Hegele, spokesman for the N.C. Forestry Service, said such figures were available only on a county-by-county basis.

So far, the U.S. timber industry isn't worried about buying habits of overseas investors. Foreigners hold only about 1 percent of U.S. farmland, a category that includes timberland.

"I haven't heard any great clamoring, except maybe a few comments in state legislatures," says timber industry leader Montgomery, adding that America's railroads were developed partly with European money.

Southern timberlands are attractive to foreign investors for a variety of reasons. Perhaps most appealing is America's relative political and economic stability, say lawyers who represent foreign buyers.

"We find a number of investors, often in Western European countries, who are concerned about creeping socialism, who see the U.S. as the last bastion of capitalism," says Michael Horton, an Atlanta attorney who helps foreign investors.

Although the U.S. timber industry is depressed by the current housing slump, analysts predict an increased worldwide demand for lumber and other wood products that the South can provide.

Thirteen Southern states produce about 45 percent of the nation's timber. That percentage is expected to expand to 55 in the next century, predicts the Southern Forest Institute.

Plus, Southern pine grows faster compared to commercial timber in the Northwest and the gentle Southern terrain makes logging easier.

One of the nation's giant wood-products firms, Georgia-Pacific Corp., is transferring its headquarters from Portland, Ore., to Atlanta. The move will be completed by September, says company spokesman Tom Ryan.

Meanwhile, foreign ownership of timberland also has increased in other states, such as Maine, where Canadians have large holdings.

In Maine, a whopping 2.6 million acres of privately held agriculture land is controlled by foreigners. But that figure is somewhat misleading because it reflects a change in minority ownership of two U.S. companies.

Soviets Indicate Opposition To Proposed Papal Visit To Poland

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union on Saturday signaled its continuing opposition to Pope John Paul II's proposed visit to Poland in one of the harshest attacks on the Roman Catholic Church to be carried by the Soviet press.

The official news agency Tass quoted a Czechoslovakian newspaper's charge that the church in Poland was instigating political unrest and said the pope's 1979 visit to his native country was a key cause of the social unrest that occurred in 1980.

"The visit of Pope Wojtyla will only be possible when calm prevails in the country and the conditions are available for ensuring the necessary security," Tass said in a dispatch from Bratislawa, Czechoslovakia. The pope was Cardinal Karol Wojtyla of Krakow before his election, when he took the name John Paul II.

The Tass dispatch quoted Bratislava Pravda, a Communist Party newspaper. Tass typically only quotes at length foreign reports which coincide with the views of the Soviet government. The device allows the Soviets to make their views known without taking a formal position, which might expose them to charges of meddling in another country's affairs.

Negotiations are currently under way among Poland's bishops, the pope, and the Polish government over the proposed visit. The pope has said he would like to help his countrymen celebrate the 600th anniversary in August of the arrival in Poland of an icon known as the Black Madonna of Czestochowa, which is a symbol of both Poland's Catholicism and its national pride.

Polish Cardinal Franciszek Macharski returned to Poland from the Vatican on Saturday and told reporters in Warsaw that no decision has been made on whether to press for an August visit.

"I cannot tell you anything other than that I would like to see the Holy Father in Poland this year," he said to reporters, hinting that the visit may be postponed to a fall or winter date.

The Polish government has expressed reluctance to permit the pope's visit, at least in August. That month is already fraught with potential unrest because it will mark the second anniversary of the founding of Solidarity, the independent trade union which has been suspended by martial law.

The continuing Soviet campaign against the visit is likely to increase the authorities' reluctance.

"Polish Catholic churches are places where anti-socialist forces openly meet and are given support in the form of instigatory sermons right from the pulpit. Thus, the church is embarking on the path of intensive political activity," the Tass dispatch said.

"It was perhaps typical that disorders in many Polish cities broke out right after public worships in Catholic churches where organized provocateurs and anti-socialist elements had gathered," it continued, in a reference to last month's riots.

OPEC Retains Current Price, Output Levels

By CHRIS LUND

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — OPEC ministers agreed Saturday to keep their current oil price levels and production ceilings but remained divided on how to enforce price and production regulations.

Oil ministers of the 13-nation oil-exporting cartel were in the second day of an emergency session called to deal with problems of overproduction and underpricing by member nations.

Deciding the market was not ready an influx of oil, the ministers agreed to keep their combined production ceiling at 17.5 million barrels per day.

The ministers also kept the current base price of $34 per barrel. Strict enforcement of the base price — now widely undercut on the spot oil market — could mean higher prices at U.S. gas pumps.

"All the ministers agree on 17.5 (million-barrel ceiling)," said Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries Secretary-General Marc Nguema during the second day of the cartel's 65th extraordinary session.

But disagreements over enforcing production quotas for individual members and price differentials — the varying costs of different grades of OPEC oil — raised the possibility of a third day of talks Sunday.

"We have to sort out problems with production levels and differentials," said Venezuela's Minister of Energy and Mines Humberto Calderon Berti.

Iraq's oil minister Qassim Ahmed Taqi said the talks were hung up on "all the aspects" of fixing individual members' allocations.

At the center of the debate is price-cutting and overproduction by some member states to boost their revenues. Oil sources said the nations were Iran, Libya and Nigeria.

All three nations want increased ceilings to offset underproduction by other members, including Saudi Arabia and Iraq.

"Everyone likes to keep the 17.5," said Mana Saeed Otaiba, oil minister of the United Arab Emirates. "But how to accomodate the new demands is what you have to look at."

U.N. Fails Find Arms Solution

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly wound down its second special session on disarmament Saturday, a session that failed to produce a comprehensive plan for ending the worldwide arms race.

The final meeting became a platform for the kind of East-West debate which some delegates blamed for the failure of the session to produce a more substantive disarmament program.

"Washington prefers to continue to escalate the arms race," said Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovksy.

"The United States is proud of its record on disarmament," said American representative Edwin Feulner Jr., who attacked the Soviets for the invasion of Afghanistan, the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia, subversion in Central America, and the suppression of freedom in Eastern Europe.

The final product of the five-week session was a document that expressed the members' "profound preoccupation over the danger of war, in particular nuclear war, the prevention of which remains the most acute and urgent task of the present day."

The assembly also stressed "the need for strengthening the central role of the United Nations in the field of disarmament" and recommended consideration of enlargement of the 40-member Geneva Disarmament Commission "consistent with the need to enhance its effectiveness."

Disarmament advocates at the session had hoped to win consensus approval for a more sweeping document containing a disarmament timetable, starting with a nuclear test ban and concluding with elimination of nuclear and conventional weapons.

But in a climate of East-West tension, the unwieldy, 157-member assembly could agree on practically nothing. The United States and the Soviets continued to do their serious arms control negotiations in private, bilateral talks in Geneva.

Expressing the frustration of many delegates, Swedish undersecretary of state Inga Thorsson, chairman of her country's delegation, said it was "regrettable that most of the leading powers, and especially the superpowers, again have not shown themselves prepared to make use of United Nations as an instrument for genuine disarmament efforts.

"This is a fact which the overwelming majority of countries deplore today. The leading military powers will themselves deplore it tomorrow," she said.

"We must admit the session has not been a success," Assembly President Ismat T. Kittani of Iraq told the final meeting.

The reason, he said, was "the sad state of the world in which we live." The session coincided with wars in the Falkland Islands, Lebanon and in Kittani's native Iraq.

"Mistrust, conflict, a growing sense of insecurity and resort to force continue to prevail," he said. "It would be an illusion to expect the United Nations to insulate itself from the general climate and fabric of relations among member states and produce miracles.

"Nations cannot repeatedly ignore the rule of law, by-pass the United Nations, have continued recourse to the use of force, and then turn around and expect this institution — which they have weakened and damaged by their actions — to function effectively in solving problems, and aid in creation of a disarmed and tranquil world living in peace with justice."

Draft Listings Keep Normal Pace In State

By ROBIN TEATER
Associated Press Writer

The U.S. Justice Department's announcement that it would take action against draft resisters has not yet prompted an increase in draft registration forms submitted in North Carolina, postal officials say.

Officials in Charlotte, Greenville, Rocky Mount and Hendersonville said last week there was no change in the number of forms they received the past couple of weeks, and postal clerk Gene Jordan said he had seen a decline in forms during the period.

One of 160 draft-age men the Justice Department claims have violated the Selective Service Act was indicted earlier this month. The violation is punishable by five years in prison, a $10,000 fine or both.

The Selective Service currently is comparing draft registration figures with Social Security records and will send out a second set of letters warning draft resisters of the penalties in about a month, said Betty Alexander, public affairs officer for the Selective Service in Washington, D.C.

"It will be a while before we'll notice any increase in registration forms coming in," she said.

When resisters receive letters from the Selective Service, they may have up to three weeks to register before their names are forwarded to the department, which would then send the names to U.S. attorney's offices in the home states of the men.

The Selective Service has estimated about 500,000 men nationwide have failed to comply with the draft registration law.

"What we want to do is get the most complete registration list possible," said Ms. Alexander. "We would prefer not to see anyone brought to trial."

In North Carolina there are about 22,000 draft resisters, she estimated. However, Ms. Alexander added, that figure may be highly inflated since it is based on a list of men who have registered as of March 31, compared with 1980 census figures.

The census taken in the spring of 1980 counted individuals located in North Carolina at the time, regardless of whether they lived there permanently.

Charles Brewer, U.S. attorney in Charlotte for North Carolina's Western District, said he was surprised that none of the names on the first list of draft resisters were North Carolinians.

"We assume that's just the beginning," Brewer said.

Sam Currin, U.S. attorney in Raleigh for the Eastern District, said his office has not received any names of men failing to register. But he said anyone referred to his office would receive another warning an be given another 10 days to register.

"My policy would be to ensure that the individual knew he had an obligation to register and had purposefully refused to register before bringing the indictment," Currin said.

But Brewer said that unless the Justice Department instructs his office to do so, he would not mail letters of warning to draft resisters prior to seeking indictments.

"I think they've had enough warnings," he said.

Ben White, assistant U.S. attorney in Greensboro for the Middle District, refused to say whether his office has received any names of men failing to register.

Stuart Hutchinson, 32, of Raleigh, who heads an anti-draft group called Carolina Resist the Draft, said prosecuting draft resisters will not accomplish what the government wants.

"These people who haven't registered haven't done anything wrong," said Hutchinson. "The criminals are in the White House and in the Pentagon."

His group sponsored a demonstration in Raleigh where some 20 organizations protested prosecuting resisters and urged others not to register for the draft, Hutchinson said.

"We support all draft non-registrants," he said. "We support the draft resisters of today and tomorrow ... we say that we are ourselves draft resisters, black, white, young, old, male and female ... as part of a growing national movement in resistance to the draft."

Hutchinson said if indictments are sought against men in North Carolina, his organization would raise money to defend them.

Congress To Probe Scandals

By IRA R. ALLEN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress will open an investigation Tuesday into drug and sex scandals that blossomed during the Fourth of July recess with allegations of homosexual misconduct and cocaine use by congressmen and teenage pages.

The House Ethics Committee will hear from FBI Director William Webster Tuesday and begin secret meetings Wednesday. Senate leaders will get recommendations from its administrative officials Wednesday on reforming the system of employing pages as young as 14.

There are two separate investigations — one by the FBI to determine if congressmen exchanged favors for sex with pages and another by a federal grand jury into the cocaine ring allegedly operating in Capitol corridors.

Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., who let an undercover narcotics agent work out of his office, says six House members are implicated in the drug investigation — three from California, one from Massachusetts, one from New York and one from a state bordering the District of Columbia — as well as a senator and two former congressmen.

House leaders last week got a list of six Democrats and three Republicans named by pages in the allegations of sexual misconduct, according to Hyde Murray, counsel to GOP leader Robert Michel.

But, Murray said, "It would be irresponsible for us to issue a statement to say who these members were until authorities determine the veracity of these charges.

Both investigations stem from routine law enforcement activities.

Three men, including a former page, were arrested earlier this year on cocaine charges and at least one of them apparently is talking to a grand jury. The other two reportedly have left the country.

A raid on a homosexual "outcall" service allegedly turned up the names of congressmen and aides.

The public became aware of the twin probes after 16-year-old Jeffrey Opp, a page for Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., told office aides of being propositioned by a congressman and of what he had heard from other pages.

Then, former page Leroy Williams, 18, of North Little Rock, Ark., appeared on television, saying he had three homosexual encounters with congressmen and supplied a senator with a homosexual prostitute. He flunked an FBI lie detector test Thursday but told the same story to the House Ethics Committee the next day.

Ex-Page Sticks To Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — With his lawyer criticizing lie detectors as "20th century witchcraft," a former congressional page insisted Saturday he was telling the truth to House and FBI investigators looking into allegations of homosexual activity between members of Congress and their pages.

Leroy Williams Jr., 18, of Little Rock, Ark., was accompanied by his attorney, Bob Scott, during a two-hour session behind closed doors with staff members of the House ethics committee.

On Friday, Williams told the investigators that he had engaged in homosexual sex with three members of the House and arranged for a similar liason between a senator and a male prostitute, according to Scott. However, Williams acknowledged that he had flunked an FBI lie detector test, and he has admitted to The Washington Post that he has exaggerated some details of his story.

As he arrived for Saturday's session with the committee staff, Williams said to reporters: "I've told the truth as far as talking to these people ... to the Federal Bureau (of Investigation) and the people that I'm talking to in Washington right now."

When asked if Williams would be able to pass his next polygraph test, Scott replied: "We don't know if there's going to be another one."

Two Accidents Are Reported

Approximately $3,000 in damage was caused by two accidents here early Saturday morning, according to Greenville police records.

Kenneth Allen Owens of Route 4, Greenville, was making a left turn from Reade Street onto East Third Street when he struck a utility pole, causing approximately $1,000 damage. He was charged with exceeding safe speed.

In another accident, police reported that vehicles driven by James Harrell Dixon of Ayden and Jimmy Lee Crandall, also of Ayden, collided on Greenville Boulevard near the Hooker Road intersection. Damage was estimated at $1,000 to each car. Dixon was charged with a safe movement violation.

No injuries were reported in both accidents.

Bosox Slip Past Twins

BOSTON (AP) — Rick Miller's two-run single, a pair of sacrifice flies by Dave Stapleton and a solo home run by Dwight Evans lifted the Boston Red Sox to a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Minnesota Twins.

Evans gave Boston a 5-2 lead in the fifth inning with his 11th home run of the season. In the Twins' sixth, Gary Gaetti followed Tim Laudner's single with his 12th homer to make the score 5-4 and chase winner Bruce Hurst, 3-3. Bob Stanley finished up and recorded his sixth save.

Bobby Castillo, 4-6, was the loser for Minnesota, which lost for only the third time in its last 12 games. The Red Sox, who had dropped 10 of their previous 16 games, began play one game ahead of Milwaukee in the American League East.

The Red Sox scored three runs in the second inning when they loaded the bases on singles by Wade Boggs and Rich Gedman and a walk to Glenn Hoffman. Stapleton's fly scored Boggs and the others runners advanced when right fielder Tom Brunansky threw toward the

Mets Rally By Padres

NEW YORK (AP) — Ellis Valentine keyed a five-run, fourth-inning rally with a three-run homer and later singled in a two-run seventh as the New York Mets held on to defeat the San Diego Padres 9-7 in front of 51,515 fans, the largest Shea Stadium paid crowd in five years.

Valentine's shot in the fourth, his sixth of the season, came after a two-run double by Joel Youngblood, and provided the Mets with a 6-3 lead.

The Mets took an 8-4 lead in the seventh with the help of Valentine's base hit, which kept alive a rally that was highlighted by an RBI single by Ron Hodges and Phil Mankowski's sacrifice fly.

The Mets withstood a three-run burst in the eighth by San Diego, capped by a two-run single by Gene Richards, who had five hits in five at-bats, including an inside-the-park homer in the third inning.

San Diego starter John Curtis, 6-5, was in command with a 3-1 lead going into the bottom of the fourth when the Mets scored five runs to turn the game around. The Mets' only run to that point was Dave Kingman's 21st home run in the

Tuned In To The Beat

Zokol, Levi Share Top Spot At Open

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Canadian rookie Dick Zokol refuses to hold co-leader Wayne Levi in awe going into the final round Sunday of the Greater Milwaukee Open Golf Tournament.

"I've never played with Wayne before. But I don't care who I play with. I'm tuned out with my radio," said Zokol.

For three rounds, the 23-year-old newcomer has worn a radio headset to settle his nerves. It's worked. He's shared the lead after each round.

He was told rookies aren't supposed to lead a PGA Tour tournament wire-to-wire.

"No, they're not. But I like to be noticed," replied Zokol after Saturday's 2-under-par 70. "Yeah, I think I can win it. Anyone within six shots can win this tournament."

Levi disagreed.

"The field isn't too packed. It will be tough for those guys four shots behind to win," said Levi following his third straight 68.

The two leaders had 54-hole total of 204, 12 under par at the Tuckaway Country Club course.

Zokol says he has no game plan for the final 18 holes. Levi does.

"I'm going to try for a fast start," said the Hawaiian Open champion, the only top 10 current money-winner in this $250,000 tournament.

"I've been playing the first three holes well. I figure if I can get a couple of early birdies, I'll be tough to catch," Levi said.

It should be quite a shootout. Levi already is one of the game's established stars with yearly earnings of almost $180,000. Zokol, in contrast, has earned $2,743 in 1982.

Meanwhile, Terry Diehl, the 36-hole leader with Zokol, bogeyed two of his first three holes and slipped from the lead. He still matched par 72 and was next at 10-under 206 with Jim Colbert, the winner here 10 years ago. Colbert posted a 70.

Jay Haas, the defending champion, also came in with a 72 and was all but out of contention with 211, nine shots off the lead.

Barring a total collapse in the final round, Zokol assured himself of his best American tournament with his steady play Saturday. He has finished no higher than 32nd in 20 tournaments this year.

He needs a 22nd-place finish here Sunday for $2,800, beating his entire 1982 money total.

Levi and Zokol were never more than one shot apart after the Canadian newcomer bogeyed his opening hole.

An eagle-3 on the 524-yard sixth hole pulled Levi, the No. 8 money-winner with almost $180,000 this year, into a tie with his less-heralded opponent.

Zokol, after a birdie on the seventh hole, led briefly before successive bogeys at eight and nine dropped him back into a tie with Levi.

They remained deadlocked until Zokol's seventh birdie of the round gave him the lead at 14. He stayed in front until his fourth and fifth bogeys of the windy, rainy day at 16 and 17. That afforded Levi the opportunity to tie, and the New York state native did it by parring the last two holes on this 7,010-yard layout just south of Milwaukee.

Italy, Germany Set For Cup Final

MADRID (AP) — Paolo Rossi of Italy and Karl-Heinz Rummenigge of West Germany, co-scoring leaders in the World Cup soccer tournament, could be the key players in Sunday's final at Santiago Bernabeu Stadium in Madrid.

They have has scored five goals apiece, and each has the ability to turn a match with a lightning shot.

The match, in which each team will be trying to win its third title, should be the final 90 minutes of the biggest-ever World Cup, which has matched 24 national teams in a month-long tournament in 17 stadiums in 14 Spanish cities. Some 1.5 billion television viewers around the world will be watching the championship game.

If the title cannot be decided in regulation times or after a 30-minute overtime period, then it will be replayed Tuesday.

Rummenigge has a thigh injury, and Jupp Derwall, the West German coach, doesn't plan to start him.

However, Enzo Bearzot, the Italian manger, had serious doubts that Rummenige will fail to appear in the German lineup.

The Germans have always been masters of the substitute strategy. Rummenigge. twice European Footballer of the Year, sat on the bench for 90 minutes during Thursday's semifinal against France. Then he got into action in the 30-minute overtime period and scored a vital goal that helped his team rally from a 3-1 deficit to tie, then win on penalty kicks.

At whatever stage Rummenige goes onto the field, the Italians will have a man waiting to deal with him — Claudio Gentile, the big defender of Juventus of Turin. He will be the Italian team's policeman to try to keep Rummenige out of shooting range.

Rossi scored all three goals in Italy's sensational 3-2 win over Brazil, the favorite for the Cup, last Monday. He also scored both goals when the Italians downed Poland 2-0 in the semifinals Thursday.

Rossi is currently a national hero in Italy — a story-book figure who has bounced back to world stardom after a bribery scandal and a two-year suspension.

The Italians were working desperately to get midfield star Giancarlo Antognoni fit for the final. After Thursday's semifinal he needd for two cuts on his right foot.

Bearzot said Antognoni might play with special rubber foam protection in his right shoe.

ECU Takes Pair From Tar Heels

Pinch-hitter Art Barnhardt singled home Kelly Robinette with one gone in the bottom of the eighth inning Saturday night to lift East Carolina to a 3-2 victory over North Carolina in the first game of a double-header at Harrington Field.

ECU, beh ind Jack Curlings' three-run home run, won the second game, 9-3, to complete the sweep and move ahead of UNC in the standings as the two teams battle for fourth place and a berth in the postseason tournament.

The Pirates are now 10-19. UNC falls to 8-20.

ECU scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth to send the game into extra innings. Neither team scored in the seventh and after UNC failed to come up with a run in the top of the eighth, ECU scored the winner.

Robinette led off the inning with a single and went to second on John Hallow's sacrifice bunt. Two walks then loaded the bases before Barnhardt, pinch-hitting for Charlie Smith, singled past third to score Robinette.

ECU's Bob Davidson went the distance for the victory, his sixth in eight decisions this season.

The game was scoreless through five innings. Both teams then scored two runs in the sixth, one of ECU's coming on a solo home run by Mike Williams which helped ECU tie the game at 2-2.

In the second game, ECU took a 2-0 lead in the first and upped it to 3-0 in the second before UNC got a run back in the fourth on Todd Wilkinson's solo home run to make it 3-1.

The Pirates, however, came back with three runs in the bottom of the inning on Curlings' home run to up the margin to 6-1 and then scored three more runs in the fifth to close out their scoring.

UNC added two runs to its total in the sixth.

Curlings had four RBI to lead ECU. Williams was two for three and Hallow was two for five for ECU.

Brian Peterson was the winning pitcher. He is now 2-4.

ECU returns to action Monday night for a double-header against UNC-Wilmington.

McEnroe-Fleming Team Gives U.S. 2-1 Cup Lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John McEnroe and pressure are constant companions, and the tempetuous left-hander from New York turns it into another weapon in his well-equipped arsenal.

"It's tough to stay on top," McEnroe said after he teamed with Peter Fleming to crush Anders Jarryd and Hans Simonsson 6-4, 6-3, 6-0 in doubles Saturday and give the United States a 2-1 lead over Sweden in their Davis Cup tennis quarterfinal match. "It's a lot easier when you're trying to get there."

It was the first time the American pair have faced competition since they lost the doubles final at Wimbledon last Sunday in straight sets to Australians Peter McNamara and Paul McNamee.

"We're not playing better as a team then we ever have before," McEnore said. "Lately, we've had our problems. We should play all our matches like this. A couple of years ago, we were concentrating on the doubles more. I guess we've gone into outer space or something."

McEnroe said Sweden's doubles team "were not at their best today. But they are young and will be back in the future."

The Swedes were thoroughly impressed with their opponents.

"I was surprised" on how quickly Simonsson and Jarryd were dispatched, said Hans Olsson, captain of the Swedish Davis Cup squad. "McEnroe and Fleming played very well. It was difficult for our players to get into the match.

"McEnroe and Fleming played better and better as it went on."

Olsson also thought the loss at Wimbledon may have played a part in the Americans' Davis Cup play.

"I had hoped we'd have a better chance," he said. "But McEnroe had just lost at Wimbledon and that may have affected his play."

Sunday's final two singles will send Jarryd against American Eliot Teltscher and McEnroe against Mats Wilander, the 17-year-old Swede who was the surprise winner of the French Open last month.

The winner of this best-of-five-match international tennis competition will advance to the semifinals against Australia, which has an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Chile.

For Jarryd and Simonsson, it was their first Davis Cup doubles defeat. But it was administered by one of the world's top doubles team.

The hard-serving Simonsson held his first two serves at love and Jarryd, who had to battle through a deuce before holding his first service, appeared the weaker of the two.

But it was against Simonsson that the Americans made the first break. The right-hander double-faulted to begin the 10th game, then netted a backhand as the Swedes quickly fell behind love-30.

The Swedes won the next two points to pull even before the U.S. pair swept the next two points and the opening set.

Again it was Simonsson's serve which was broken in the fourth game of the second set, giving the Americans a 3-1 lead. Fleming then served two double-faults to fall behind 15-40.

It was the closest the Swedes would come the rest of the afternoon.

Chicago's Noles Blanks Reds, 1-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Dickie Noles hurled a four-hitter and Leon Durham scored the game's only run on Gary Woods' gift double in the fourth inning, giving the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the opener of Saturday's scheduled doubleheader.

The second game was halted by darkness after nine innings tied 5-5. It will be resumed prior to Sunday's regularly scheduled single game.

Mike Vail smashed a two-run homer with two out in the top of the eighth inning to give the Reds a 5-4 lead in the nightcap but Keith Moreland homered for the Cubs leading off the bottom of the inning to tie it.

Dave Concepcion drew a two-out walk off reliever Dick Tidrow and Vail followed with his fourth homer of the year, a shot to left that went out of Wrigley Field onto Waveland Avenue. Moreland hit his 12th homer off Joe Price.

Before Vail's homer, Leon Durham's two-run homer and pinch hitter Bobby Molinaro's tie-breaking two-run single in the sixth inning had given the Cubs a 4-3 lead.

Durham's 12th homer in the third inning tied the score and Molinaro's single gave Chicago a 4-2 lead Charlie Leibrandt and Jim Kern loaded the bases on three walks.

Chicago's Ken Kravec made his first start of the season in the second game and held the Reds to two runs in six innings. Ron Oester broke an 0-for-29 slump with his third homer of the season in the seventh inning off Tidrow to account for the Reds' final run.

Durham led off the fourth inning of the first game with a single, stole second and continued to third on catcher Alex Trevino's throwing error. Woods then lifted a fly to right-center and the ball dropped for a double when Cesar Cedeno and Duane Walker both pulled up thinking the other would make the catch. Even had the ball been caught, Durham probably would have scored.

Noles, 6-7, posted his second complete game and second shutout of the season, both against the Reds. He beat Cincinnati on a one-hitter April 28. The right-hander, making his second appearance since coming off the disabled list, walked one and struck out three. Cincinnati's hits all were singles and the Reds only got one runner as far as second base.

Bruce Berenyi, 5-9, was the loser. He went the route, scattering 10 hits.

The Reds, who have dropped 12 of their last 13 games and were shut out by Fergie Jenkins on Friday, broke an 18-inning scoreless drought with a run in the first inning of the second game. Rafael Landestoy beat out a bunt and scored on Vail's two-out double. They made it 2-0 in the third when Eddie Milner doubled, was sacrificed to third and scored on Dave Concepcion's single.

First base umpire Billy Williams, who was out of position, called Concepcion's ball foul, but the Reds argued and he was overruled by plate umpire Ed Vargo.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bo Diaz socked a fourth-inning three-run homer to back up Dick Ruthven's three-hit pitching as the Philadelphia Phillies beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2 Saturday night.

Ruthven struck out five and walked three as he evened his record at 7-7. Los Angeles starter Bob Welch, 9-6, took the loss.

Two of the Dodgers' hits produced their only runs — solo homers by Rick Monday in the second and Pedro Guerrero in the fourth. It was the 15th of the season for Guerrero and seventh for Monday.

The only other Dodger hit was Monday's fourth inning single.

Welch held the Phillies hitless until George Vukovich singled to start the fourth. After Gary Matthews flied out, Mike Schmidt walked.

Diaz lined Welch's next pitch over the left-field fence to put the Phillies in front 3-2. It was Diaz's 14th homer of the season and boosted his RBI total to 55.

The Phillies added a run in the seventh on Matthews' 14th home run.

San Francisco 4

MONTREAL (AP) — Andre Dawson drove in four runs with a single, double and home run Saturday night as the Montreal Expos opened a six-run lead and held on for an 8-4 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

The Expos opened the scoring in the first inning. Tim Raines led off with a single, stole second and went to third on Mike Gates' single. Dawson then drilled a double off the left field wall to score Raines and move Gates to third. He scored on Gary Carter's grounder.

San Francisco got a run back in the top of the second on consecutive singles by Jack Clark, Reggie Smith and Milt May.

Montreal built a 4-1 lead with another pair of runs in the second. Winning pitcher Bill Gullickson, 6-8, supported his own cause with the first of his two doubles. Losing pitcher Bill Laskey, 7-6, then walked Raines and Gates to load the bases and Dawson singled home two runs to chase Laskey.

Montreal increased the lead to 5-1 with a fourth-inning run. Chris Speier led off with a single, was sacrificed to second, took third on a grounder and scored on Gates' single.

In the Expos' seventh, Gullickson's second double drove in two runs and gave the Expos a 7-1 lead.

Gullickson, after giving up the three second-inning singles, retired 15 batters in a row before Clark singled in the seventh. He left after surrendering a three-run homer to pinch hitter Darrell Evans in the eighth with Woodie Fryman shutting down San Francisco over the final 12-3 innings for his fifth save.

Dawson homered in the eighth for Montreal's final run. It was his 11th of the season.

RALEIGH (AP) — Johnny Slaughter slugged a two-run double and North Carolina-Wilmington scored eight times in the sixth inning to overcome a 5-1 North Carolina State lead and post a 9-7 North State League baseball victory Saturday.

In the second game of the doubleheader, third baseman Tracy Woodson backed Dave Peterson's four-hit pitching with four RBIs as N.C. State beat North Carolina-Wilmington 7-1.

UNC-Wilmington's win clinched a berth for the Seahawks in the North State League tournament scheduled for July 16-18 at the home of the regular season winner.

Slaughter's double in the first game gave UNC-Wilmington the lead for good at 6-5 after the Seahawks had erupted for their biggest inning of the year, using five hits, three walks and two Wolfpack errors to score eight times.

A two-run single by designated hitter Tommy Phillips made the score 9-5.

Lefthander Kenny Smith, who went the distance, recorded his fifth win against three losses, while Wolfpack reliever Kim Caulk, 2-2, took the loss.

Peterson, 3-4, a senior righthander from Greensboro, took the Wolfpack win in the second game.

HOUSTON (AP) — Jose Cruz's ninth-inning home run lifted the Houston Astros to a 4-2 victory over the St.Louis Cardinals Saturday night.

With the score tied 2-2, Ray Knight singled to lead off the Houston ninth off Bob Forsch, 8-5. Knight was replaced by pinch-runner Denny Walling and Cruz hit the first pitch from Forsch into the right-field pavilion seats to win the game.

Joe Niekro, 8-6, allowed seven hits in going the distance.

Lonnie Smith hit his sixth home run of the year on the game's first pitch to give the Cardinals an early 1-0 lead, but Houston countered with two runs in their half of the inning.

Terry Puhl walked and Knight was safe when shortstop Ozzie Smith made a throwing error trying to force Puhl at second. One out later, Danny Heep and Phil Garner hit consecutive RBI singles to make it 2-1.

St.Louis tied the game in the second. Darrell Porter walked and went to third on Ken Oberkfell's one-out double, but he was thrown out at the plate by shortstop Dickie Thon on Ozzie Smith's grounder. Oberkfell advanced to third on the play and came home on Niekro's wild pitch.

the second inning, his fourth homer in the last eight games.

After the Mets moved into a 6-3 lead, the Padres came back with a run in the seventh off Pete Falcone, 5-6, on Sixto Lezcano's RBI single.

The Mets added a ninth-inning run on Mike Jorgensen's RBI single.

Terry Leach, who relieved Neil Allen during the Padres' eighth-inning flurry, recorded his second save for the Mets.

The crowd — drawn in part by a tote bag giveaway promotion — was the largest at Shea Stadium since 52,784 attended a game against the Houston Astros on June 18, 1977.

Oakland Pair Hurls A's Past Baltimore By 3-1

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Oakland A's Manager Billy Martin had nothing but praise for pitcher Tom Underwood Saturday.

"He's a very special kind of pitcher," Martin said after Underwood and Dave Beard combined to beat the Baltimore Orioles 3-1 on a combined eight-hitter. "We've asked him to relieve quite a bit and to start when we need him. Right now, I'd say he's become a complete pitcher in both respects, and it takes a very special person to do that."

Underwood, 5-4, made his ninth start in 31 appearances and pitched 71-3 innings in winning his second straight decision. Beard earned his eighth save.

Underwood was aided by great plays in the outfield by Rickey Henderson and Dwayne Murphy. Left fielder Henderson threw out Al Bumbry at third on a rare force play in the third inning when Benny Ayala lined an apparent single to left with runners on first and second. Murphy also nailed Bumbry at third in the eighth inning on Rich Dauer's single.

"Underwood rose to the occasion," said Orioles Manager Earl Weaver. "And you can't take anything away from those two guys in the outfield. One of these days we're gong to have to learn to respect them more. Everyone else in the league has."

Tony Armas' tie-breaking two-run homer in the third inning off Dennis Martinez, 9-6, was the margin of victory. Martinez went the route, scattering eight hits.

Armas, who brought a .223 batting average into the contest, has homered in three consecutive games. He slammed his 10th of the season with two out following Murphy's one-out single.

Underwood was touched for a tainted run in the first inning on consecutive errors by second baseman Davey Lopes.

Bumbry opened the ball game with an infield hit and raced around to third when Lopes' throw in the dirt was kicked down the right field line by Bumbry. He scored when Dauer grounded to Lopes, whose throw home bounced to the backstop.

Wayne Gross hit a solo homer in the second inning, his third, to tie the score 1-1.

Weaver and Baltimore first baseman Eddie Murray were both ejected from the game. Murray was thrown out in the first inning by umpire Ken Kaiser for arguing after Henderson walked and was balked to second. Henderson then stole third for his 83rd stolen base in 87 games, tops in the majors.

Weaver was ejected for the first time this season after an argument with home plate umpire George Maloney during the Oakland fifth.

Parrish Ties 'Slam' Mark

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Larry Parrish of the Texas Rangers tied a major league record Saturday with his third grand-slam home run of the week, matching the mark set in 1968 by Detroit's Jim Northrup.

Parrish, who hit his first grand slam last Sunday in Oakland and his second on Wednesday against visiting Boston, connected again in the first game of Texas' twi-night doubleheader against Detroit.

Texas 6
Detroit 5

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Lee Mazzilli's home run with one out and the bases empty in the bottom of the ninth inning gave the Texas Rangers a 6-5 victory over the Detroit Tigers in the first game of Saturday's twi-night doubleheader.

Earlier, Larry Parrish of the Rangers tied a major league record set in 1968 by Detroit's Jim Northrup with his third grand slam homer of the week.

Mazzilli's third home run of the season came on the first pitch from Tigers reliever Dave Tobik, 2-4. It was the third time in the last four games that a ninth-inning homer beat the Tigrs, who have lost five games in a row and 22 of their last 27.

Texas reliever Danny Darwin, 6-2, pitched two scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

Billy Sample and Mazzilli opened the Texas first inning with singles off Milt Wilcox. Dave Hostetler walked and Parrish hit the first pitch into the left field seats for his sixth home run of the year. Parrish also hit grand slam homers last Sunday in Oakland and here Wednesday against Boston.

Detroit's Alan Trammell hit a solo home run off Jon Matlack in the third to cut the lead to 4-1 and John Wockenfuss tied the score with a three-run homer in the fourth. Wockenfuss' homer followed singles by Larry Herndon and Mike Ivie and a forceout.

The Tigers went ahead 5-4 in the fifth when Trammell doubled and scored on two consecutive wild pitches by Texas reliever Dan Boitano.

Texas tied the score again in the fifth. Buddy Bell singled, advanced on an infield out and scored on a single by Parrish.

McCrory Wins By Decision

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Undefeated and second-ranked welterweight contender Milton McCrory withstood an injury to his right hand to score a unanimous 10-round decision over top-rated Roger Stafford Saturday.

The 6-foot-1 McCrory, 18-0, utilized a four-inch height and two-inch reach advantage to pile up points on Stafford through the first seven rounds.

In the eighth, however, McCrory hurt his hand on a roundhouse right to Stafford's head. But the 20-year-old Detroit native withstood the stalking Stafford through the final two rounds to earn the decision.

Chicago 6
Toronto 5

TORONTO (AP) — Tom Paciorek had three hits, including a two-run home run, and drove in three runs to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 6-5 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Saturday night.

Ernesto Escarrega evened his record at 1-1, relieving starter Jerry Koosman with one out in the fifth inning and shutting down the Blue Jays the rest of the way.

Chicago was the beneficiary of five Toronto errors in the first two innings. Toronto starter Jim Gott, 1-5, walked Rudy Law and Tony Bernazard to open the game. Steve Kemp's double scored Law and, one out later, Paciorek's single scored Bernazard, and Kemp came home to make it 3-0 when the ball got away from center fielder Barry Bonnell.

The White Sox added an unearned run in the second after Aurelio Rodriguez reached base on an error by third baseman Garth Iorg. Rudy Law bounced back to Gott, who elected to try for the forceout at second base, but threw the ball into center for an error. Bonnell's throw to third base skipped into the Toronto dugout, allowing Rodriguez to score.

Toronto scored twice in the bottom of the second on a run-scoring double by Buck Martinez and Alfredo Griffin's groundout.

After Greg Luzinski led off the fifth by being hit by a pitch, Paciorek belted his fifth homer of the season into the left field seats for a 6-2 Chicago lead.

The Blue Jays cut the margin to one run in the bottom of the fifth on RBI hits by Damaso Garcia and Anthony Johnson, sandwiched around Iorg's RBI grounder.

Waltrip Captures Busch

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip ended a brief victory drought Saturday night, running away to an easy triumph in the Busch 420 Grand National stock car race.

The defending Winston Cup champion raised his season total to six victories while winning for the first time in seven races.

Waltrip, a 35-year-old resident of nearby Franklin, Tenn., driving a Mountain Dew-sponsored Buick Regal, lapped the entire field in the first 151 laps on Nashville International Raceway's treacherous .596-mile banked oval.

Terry Labonte, driving a Chevrolet Monte Carlo, wound up second, about five seconds behind Waltrip on the track and more than a lap behind in the race. Labonte, who has not won a race this season, finished second for the sixth time.

Harry Gant, in a Buick, made a valiant effort shortly after the halfway point of the 420-lap event to get back onto the same lap with the leader. But he never was able to get past and eventually slipped back to third. He was followed by Richard Petty and Ricky Rudd, each in a Pontiac Grand Prix, and Tim Richmond in a Buick.

Waltrip won $22,025 from the total purse of $158,075 as he averaged 86.524 mph.

The triumph was Waltrip's 45th in his Grand National career; the sixth victory on his "home" track; his third in a row here, and his fourth victory in this race — the most for him in any single event.

It was the second straight runaway for Waltrip on this track. He led 419 of 420 laps in winning the Cracker Barrel 420 here in May.

Waltrip, third in the season point standings going into the race, gained some ground on leader Bobby Allison and second-place Labonte. Allison ran second as late as the 178th lap, but fell out of contention with an oil pressure problem, a broken axle and an oil leak.

The cars went 45 laps before the first caution flag flew, brought out because of debris in the first turn. Waltrip lost the lead to Bill Elliott for one lap when he pitted under the yellow, but took it back the next time around when Elliott came into the pits.

Pole-sitter Morgan Shepherd, brought out the second caution when his engine blew on lap 170. He led the first 20 laps, but fell steadily off the pace after Waltrip wrested the lead from him.

The other front-row starter, Buddy Baker, who had run strong through the first half of the race, also retired with mechanical problems on lap 231.

Bill Elliott, who ran in the top five most of the night, was fourth with just 40 laps to go when his engine let go. Petty inherited that spot and stayed there.

Petty, who leads all drivers with nine victories at Nashville, was never a real factor in the race. The seven-time Grand National champion, who has not won here since 1971, now has gone 27 races without a victory anywhere.

However, it was Petty's 321st consecutive Grand National race, giving him the all-time record. He was tied with Benny Parsons, but the latter driver was unable to come up with a ride at Nashville.

The last race either of the veterans had missed was on Nov. 7, 1971 at a half-mile track in Macon, Ga.

One of the 28 starters Saturday night was 17-year-old Darryl Sage, a Murfreesboro, Tenn., high school senior, making his Grand National debut. He got loose several times and brought out a caution flag on lap 278 when he spun in the second turn, but the youngster managed to keep running through the entire race.

The humidity was high, making it uncomfortable, but temperatures in the high 70s — more than 20 degrees cooler than during the 1981 Busch 420 — kept the weather from becoming a problem for the drivers. It also was a relatively comfortable night for the sellout crowd estimated at about 20,000.

There were no serious accidents and no inj2ries reported in the race.

Chicago May Lose McMahon

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Jim McMahon, first-round draft choice of the Chicago Bears, probably will not sign with the National Football League club, his agent says.

Agent Jerry Argovitz said Friday his client "will not be signed by the Chicago Bears in my opinion," adding that he will seek a court ruling next Friday to make free agents of McMahon and any of his clients who have not signed by then.

NFL Management Council, the owners representative in negotiations with the Players Association, advised teams two months ago that they cannot negotiate directly with players or agents after the current collective bargaining agreement expires at midnight Thursday.

Flanagans Have Test-Tube Baby

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The wife of Baltimore Orioles' pitcher Mike Flanagan Friday gave birth to the nation's first so-called test-tube baby to be delivered by non-Caesarean methods, a healthy 8-pound, 8-ounce girl.

Doctors said the infant, who was named Kerry Ellen, was the fourth test-tube baby born in the United States and the first to be delivered by "normal, spontaneous vaginal delivery."

The others were born by Caesarean section because of complications before birth, doctors said.

Dr. William Englehart, the Flanagans' personal physician, said Kathy Flanagan, 30, had a "perfectly normal pregnancy." But, he said, the conception "was an amazing thing."

Flanagan, who was the American League's 1979 Cy Young Award-winner, was in Seattle with the Orioles when his wife went into labor at the Greater Baltimore Medical Center about 8 a.m. But he arrived in Baltimore in time to be with his wife in the delivery room when the baby was born at 4:53 p.m.

"Things went very normally and as a result she had a normal delivery," Englehart said of Mrs. Flanagan, who previously was unable to bear children because of obstetrical problems.

"The Flanagans were terribly excited," Englehart said. "It couldn't happen to a more deserving couple."

The baby was conceived by the in vitro-fertilization method in which an egg from the woman's body is fertilized by sperm in a laboratory dish, then returned to her uterus.

Mrs. Flanagan was a patient of Drs. Howard and Georgeanna Jones of the Eastern Virginia Medical School in Norfolk, Va. — the nation's first test-tube baby clinic.

Stacy Ties Tourney Mark To Take Lead At Classic

WHEELING, W.Va. (AP) — Defending champion Hollis Stacy blistering the Speidel golf course despite temperatures in the mid-90s, tied a tournament record with a 6-under 66 Saturday to take a 1-shot lead over Kathy Postlewait and Cathy Morse after the second round of the $125,000 LPGA West Virginia Classic.

Stacy, who won the 1981 Wheeling tournament in a five-way playoff that included Postlewait, sank birdie putts of 40 and 35 feet on the front nine en route to tying the tournament record set in 1975 by Karolyn Kertzman.

Postlewait and Morse, each at 6-under-par 138 going into Sunday's final round, both shot 4-under par 68s Saturday but couldn't catch Stacy, who plays so well in Wheeling that she calls herself "the honorary pro at Speidel."

"I feel so confident on this golf course," said Stacy, a two-time U.S. Open champion who currently stands seventh on the money winnings list. "It's hilly, but you don't mind walking the hills when you're making birdies."

Stacy, a two-time winner on the LPGA tour this year, had four birdies on the front side of the par-72, 6,150-yard Speidel course, then added two more birdies on the back nine despite the hills, heat and humidity.

"I took good care of myself on the course today ... I kept ice on my neck after every hole to keep my body temperature down," she said. "And my putting was what did it. I made some putts out there that I haven't made in months. My caddie calls them field goals. I made a couple of field goals today."

Eight golfers turned in rounds in the 60s Saturday, including second-year pro Mindy Moore, who had a 67. Twenty-five golfers shot 1-under 71 or better.

Moore nearly tied an LPGA record when she shot a 6-under 30 on the front nine. She missed a 12-foot putt on the ninth hole that would have tied the tour record of 29 for nine holes. She stood at 3-over 147 following a first-round 80.

A stroke behind Postlewait, who has yet to win on the tour in nine years, and Morse were Alice Miller, who had a 3-under 69 after a first round 70. At 3-under 141, four strokes behind Stacy, were veteran pro Jan Ferraris and Kathy Young, each with 71-70—141.

Tied at 2-under 142 were Cathy Reynolds, who also had a 67; Beverly Klass, who fired a 69, and Alexandra Reinhardt, who turned in a 70. Four golfers were tied at 1-under 143 and eight were deadlocked at even par 144.

Among those at 143, six shots off the pace, was first-round leader Janet Coles, who followed up an opening-round 69 with a 2-over 74.

Morse said she somewhat disappointed with her 68 because she stood at 8-under through 13 holes, and led the field by two shots, only to successively bogey Nos.14 and 15 by three-putting both holes.

Davis Doubles

The Americans ran off the next four points to take a 4-1 lead, then held serve the rest of the way to capture the second set.

In the third set, McEnroe and Fleming delivered a clinic on how to play doubles, serving well when they had to, dominating the net, changing pace and stroking winners from the baseline when they had to.

The only problem they had was in the fifth game when they broke Jarryd. The game lasted 18 points and the two teams battled through six deuces before McEnroe closed it out with a cross-court forehand service return.

In Friday's opening singles, McEnroe downed Jarryd 10-8, 6-3, 6-3, while Wilander stopped Teltscher 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 3-6, 6-0.

In Brisbaine, Australia advanced to its meeting against the winner of the Sweden-United States match when Wimbledon champions Paul McNamee and Peter McNamara downed Belous Prajoux and Hans Gildermeister of Chile 8-6, 2-6, 8-6, 6-2.

The victory game the Aussies a 3-0 lead in the best-of-five series which was marred by many controversial calls.

France took a 2-1 lead over Czechoslovakia in another quarter-final match for the 1982 Davis Cup as the newly formed doubles team of Yannick Noah and Henri Lecomte surprised Tomas Smid and Pavel Slozil 2-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Earlier, Ivan Lendl had given tied the series 1-1, beating Thierry Tulasne 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 9-11, 6-4 in a match that was suspended by darkness on Friday and compelted Saturday.

The winner of the Czechoslovkia-France match, which will be decided in Sunday's singles matches pitting Noah against Lendl and Tulasne versus Smid, will meet the winner of the quarterfinals between New Zealand and Italy.

The Italians avoided eliminated Saturday when Adriano Panatta and Paolo Bertolucci outlasted Russell Simpson and Chris Lewis 6-4, 6-4, 3-6, 13-11 in doubles. That cut New Zealand's lead to 2-1 with the final singles matches scheduled for Sunday.

In zonal competition to earn spots in next year's championship competition, Ireland grabbed a 2-0 lead over Finland in a Zone A semifinal match. Irish-American Matt Doyle downed Leo Palin 6-2, 6-1, 6-0 in the first match at Dublin, while Sean Sorensen defeated Matti Timonen 6-2, 7-5, 6-3. The Irish need only one more triumph to advance to the Zone A final against Switzerland or Austria.

Denmark advanced to the Zone B finals when Peter Bastiansen and Michael Mortensen captured the doubles match with a 5-7, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 victory over Egyptians Ahmed El Mehelmi and Tarek El Sakka. The win gave the Danes a 3-0 lead in best-of-five series being held in Aarhus, Denmark.

2 Local Youths Win In Skills Meet

Two Greenville youths were among the winners of the 1982 National BMX Skills Competition held recently at the Carolina East Mall.

Steve Fredricks, 15 years old, and Will Pope, 14, both of Greenville, were double winners.

Fredricks, a sophomore at Rose High, wo the 25-meter slalom with a time of 10:36 and the wheelie with a clocking of 5:31.

Pope, a ninth grader at E.B. Aycock, won the ramp jump with a leap of 8 feet, two inches. He also was first in the bunny hop competition with a height of 23 inches.

The skills competition is being held in 50 cities throughout the country this summer and is open to boys and girls of all ages. The results will be published in the 1983 edition of The World Almanac.

The competition was coordinated by Red Line Engineering in association with The World Almanac. The Boys Club of Pitt County sponsored the competition.

Poland Nips France For 3rd Place

ALICANTE, Spain (AP) — Poland came from behind with three goals in three minutes and went on to beat France 3-2 Saturday night for third place in the World Cup soccer tournament.

After a 13th-minute goal for France by Rene Girard, the Poles withstood heavy pressure by the Frenchmen and surged back to take the lead on goals by Andrzej Szarmach in the 44th minute and Stefan Majewski on the stroke of halftime.

Janusz Kupcewicz made it 3-1 in the opening minute of the second half.

Alain Couriol closed the deficit to 3-2 in the 74th minute, but France could not provide the equalizer.

French Coach Michel Hidalgo made seven changes in his lineup and gave some of his regular players a rest, including team captain Michel Platini.

But the gamble did not pay off. The French played their close passing game well and dominated the first 30 minutes, but once Poland began to charge back the French lost their edge.

It was the second time Poland had finished third in the World Cup. The Poles were third in 1974 when they defeated Brazil in the playoff.

Thousands of flag-waving French fans were in the crowd at Alicante's Jose Rico Perez stdm, nd fw Plsh up porterswere in evidence.

Manager's Picks?

If Managers Selected All-Star Squad, Rose, Jackson, Carew Wouldn't Make It

NEW YORK (AP) — Detroit catcher Lance Parrish and Cleveland's Toby Harrah would be All-Star Game starters, while perennial fan favorites Pete Rose, Reggie Jackson and Rod Carew would not be in the lineup — if managers picked the teams.

In all, five American League starters and two from the National League chosen by the fans would be replaced, according to managers who listed their selections for an Associated Press survey.

Other AL changes would find Kansas City's Willie Wilson, leading the league with a .340 average, and Ben Oglivie of Milwaukee — with 19 home runs and 56 runs batted in — in the outfield, rather than California teammates Jackson and Fred Lynn, while Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee would replace the Angels Rod Carew at first base.

In the NL, Keith Hernandez of St. Louis would be at first base instead of Rose, while Los Angeles outfielder Dusty Baker would replace Montreal's Tim Raines.

Eight AL managers and four in the NL declined to list the players they would start in Tuesday's game in Montreal.

Carlton Fisk, the Chicago White Sox catcher who was hitting .265, received 2,625,650 votes from the fans, more than any other AL player. Yet it was Parrish, hitting .325 with 13 home runs and 34 runs batted in, who was named by Kansas City Manager Dick Howser and fellow skippers Billy Gardner of Minnesota, Dave Garcia of Cleveland, Rene Lachemann of Seattle and Don Zimmer of Texas.

Harrah, hitting .328, got four managers' votes at third base while George Brett — whose 2.5 million fan votes were second on the AL — was the choice of Howser and Gardner. Brett is batting .304 with 33 extra-base hits and 42 RBI, while Harrah has knocked in 44 runs and has 29 extra-base hits.

At first base in the AL, Cooper got five votes from the managers and Minnesota rookie Kent Hrbek, third in the league with a .329 average, was Gardner's choice. Cooper is hitting .325 with 19 homers and 68 RBI. Carew is hitting .297.

The selections of seven National League managers — Philadelphia's Pat Corrales, Houston's Bill Virdon, Pittsburgh's Chuck Tanner, Dick Williams of San Diego, Frank Robinson of San Francisco and two others who asked not to be identified — closely followed the fans' vote.

But Hernandez, who is hitting .292 and finished fourth in the fan voting at first base, got the support of Virdon, Robinson and one other manager, while Montreal's Al Oliver was tabbed by Williams and another skipper. Corrales named Rose, hitting .291, and Tanner opted for Pittsburgh's Jason Thompson.

None of the seven NL managers chose Raines, who has been slowed by injuries much of the year and is hitting .284 with 36 stolen bases.

Baker got the support of Virdon, Robinson, Tanner and another skipper. Outfielders Dale Murphy of Atlanta — who is leading the NL with 23 homers and 62 RBI — and Andre Dawson of Montreal, both starters, got seven and six votes, respectively.

Philadelphia's Manny Trillo, the fans' choice, and Los Angeles rookie Steve Sax each got three votes at second.

Umpires Named For 53rd All-Star Contest

NEW YORK (AP) — National League umpire Doug Harvey, who has made four previous All-Star Game appearances, will work behind home plate for Tuesday night's All-Star Game at Montreal, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn announced Saturday.

Other National League umpires will be John McSherry, second base, and Ed Montague, left field. Representing the American League will be Marty Springstead, first base; Jim McKean, third base; and Mike Reilly, right field.

It will mark the first All-Star Game assignments for Montague and Reilly.

The official scorers will be Ian McDonald of the Montreal Gazette, Dick O'Connor of the Peninsula Times Tribune of Palo Alto, Calif., and Charlie Scoggins of the Lowell (Mass.) Sun.

All-Star Game Leaves U.S. For First Time Ever

MONTREAL (AP) — Major league baseball moves it All-Star Game out of the United States for the first time Tuesday night as this Olympic city hosts the 53rd edition of a contest which in recent years has become the sole possession of the National League.

Olympic Stadium, where Bruce Jenner won the decathlon in the 1976 Summer Games and Roberto Duran battered Sugar Ray Leonard into his only defeat as a professional boxer, has long been sold out for the game. Seating capacity for baseball is 58,838 and organizers expect the stadium's baseball-attendence mark of 59,282 to be broken.

"It's probably the biggest attention-getter for Montreal sports in the history of this city for a one-day event," said John McHale, the president and general manager of the Montreal Expos. "The Olympics here in 1976 may have been greater, but that was spread out over two weeks."

In honor of its hosting the first All-Star Game in a foreign land, and the inclusion of baseball as an Olympic sport in 1984, Montreal has adopted an international baseball theme for the event.

Former all-stars from nine nations have been invited to throw out the ceremonial first pitches, and the pregame show will spotlight 46 national baseball federations.

The game is scheduled to start at 8:40 p.m. EDT. It will be televised in the United States by ABC.

As is the case when the Expos are home, the lineups Tuesday night will be announced in both English and French, a necessity in a city where the majority of residents proudly declare their non-British heritage.

And there will be several familiar names for Montrealers when public address announcer Richard Morency calls the roll.

Gary Carter, the Expos' multimillion-dollar catcher and the leading vote-getter, was among three Montreal players picked by the fans as a starter. Outfielders Tim Raines and Andre Dawson are the other Expos starters, with first baseman Al Oliver and pitcher Steve Rogers added to the roster by NL Manager Tom Lasorda of Los Angeles.

In the rest of the starting lineup for the Nationals, who have won the past 10 All-Star Games and 18 of the past 19, are first baseman Pete Rose, second baseman Manny Trillo and third baseman Mike Schmidt of the Philadelphia Phillies; shortstop Dave Concepcion of the Cincinnati Reds and outfielder Dale Murphy of the Atlanta Braves.

As of Friday, Lasorda had not named a starting pitcher.

When Lasorda filled out the 28-player roster last Thursday, he included two players whose names were not on the computer-card ballots used to select the starters — Pittsburgh Pirates first baseman Jason Thompson and San Diego Padres outfielder Ruppert Jones.

But Lasorda bypassed some players who felt they were definite All-Star picks, including Tim Lollar of the Padres, the NL's top pitcher in terms of winning percentage, and several members of Atlanta, the leader in the West. Their public complaints had little impact on the manager of the defending World Series champs.

"(NL president) Chub Feeney and I are very happy with the team we have selected," Lasorda said. "We are only sorry that some very deserving players could not also make the team."

In the American League, which trails the series 33-18-1, Oakland's Billy Martin is the manager through an ironic twist. On one of the two times he was fired as manager of the New York Yankees, Martin was replaced by Bob Lemon. This spring, Lemon was fired after taking the Yanks to the World Series in 1981; Martin was picked to replace him here because the A's were last season's AL West winners.

Four California Angels are on the AL starting lineup, including outfielder Reggie Jackson, who as a Yankee was constantly in hot water with Martin. The other Angel starters are first baseman Rod Carew (starting his 13th consecutive All-Star game), second baseman Bobby Grich and outfielder Fred Lynn. There are no California players among the reserves or pitchers.

The rest of the American League starters are catcher Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox, third baseman George Brett of the Kansnd Oakland outfielder Rickey Henderson, on his way to smashing the major league stolen-base record.

Sikes Rallies For Lead At Senior Championship

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Dan Sikes rallied from five strokes back Saturday to take a one-shot lead after three rounds of the $150,000 U.S. Senior Open golf championship.

The venerable professionals had their toughest day yet on the par-71, 4,349-yard Portland Golf Club course.

Sikes finished at 3-over-par 216 through 36 holes. He was 1-over-par 72 in Saturday's round. Defending champion Arnold Palmer was in a group of four at 4-over-par 217. Tied with him were Bob Goalby, Miller Barber and club pro Ken Towns.

The 72-hole tournament concludes Sunday with the winner taking home $25,000.

The Senior Open, in its third year, is for golfers at least 50 years old. Top professionals automatically earn berths, with the remainder of the original field of 150 surviving qualifying competition.

None of the 51 golfers who survived Friday's cut was able to break par in Saturday's 90-degree hcore tomorrow."

The golfers had particular trouble on the 460-yard 15th hole, shortened from a par-5 to a par-4 for the Senior Open by the sponsoring United States Golf Association.

None of the leaders could do better than bogey the 15th on Saturday.

Sikes, who began the round at 2-over-par, ballooned to 5-over-par after four holes.

"If anybody had told me on the fifth tee that I would be leading, I would have told them they were crazy," Sikes said.

But the Jacksonville, Fla., native came back with birdies on the ninth, 10th, 11th and 14th holes to pull back into the lead.

He was aided by the collapse of Towns, the club pro at the Graeagle Meadows, Calif., Country Club near Lake Tahoe. Towns, who started the day at 3-over-par, dropped to even after seven holes and stayed at par through 14. That's when the collapse began.

He had a bogey on the par-4 15th. On the 16th, he hit his second shot into a creek and wound up with a double-bogey six. His fall concluded with a bogey on the par-3 17th.

Palmer, meanwhile, had an erratic round that featured a multitude of tee shots that strayed from the fairways. He was 2 over par for the day.

Goalby also had an up-and-down round, dropping to 1 over par through 11 before recording bogeys on the 14th and 15th holes. Barber had a consistent even-par round to pull from four shots back to within one stroke of the lead.

Pfister, Estep In Hall Of Fame Finals

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Third-seeded Hank Pfister battled his way to the finals of the $100,000 Miller Hall of Fame Tennis Championships Saturday with a 6-3, 7-6 semifinal victory over Nigerian Nduka Odizor.

Pfister will meet Mike Estep in Sunday's final. Estep defeated Australian Brad Drewett 6-4, 6-4 in the other semifinal.

Both finalists are going into their matches with injuries. Pfister, who suffered a bad ankle sprain two days before the start of the tournament, hurt his back in the third game of his match Saturday.

Estep pulled a groin muscle in the fifth game of the second set of his match when he stretched to return a serve.

Pfister, ranked 38th in the world, broke serve in the eighth game of the opening set when Odizor double-faulted on break point. Pfister, a finalist for the third time in the seven-year history of the tournament, saved two set points in the second set tie-breaker, and then won it, 8-6, with a return winner and a service ace.

Estep, who has won three grass-court tournaments in his career, broke Drewett in the third and fifth games of the first set. Estep came up with the only service break of the second set in the third game.

East Germans Beat U.S. In Track Meet

Summary on page B-11

KARL-MARX-STADT, East Germany (AP) — East Germany defeated the United States 207½-172½ Saturday in the first-ever track and field meet between the two countries. The American men won 120½-102½, but the American women were trounced 105-52 in the two-day event.

The American women's coach, Dr. Bert Lyle, said, "The East German women's team is by far the finest in the world."

Men's Coach Sam Adams said, "We are very proud to have won the men's duel against the East German team. We needed many good performances to beat them."

Adams singled out the "exceptional run" by Calvin Smith, who clocked 9.91 seconds in the 100-meter sprint Friday. This would have broken the 14-year-old world record of 9.95 by American James Hines. But there was a tail wind of 2.1 meters per second, with two meters per second being the limit.

The U.S. men had been behind 47-48 after Friday's events, but staged a comeback Saturday to win. The women were behind 65-30 going into Saturday's events, and had no chance to catch up to the East German women.

Two weeks ago, the East Germans won over the Soviet Union 190-178, again on the strength of their women. One week later, the Soviets beat the United States 207-167, winning both the men's nd women's divisions.

The East Germans will go to Los Angeles next year for another track and field meet against the United States June 24-25.

On Friday there were 36,000 fans in the local stadium and 40,000 Saturday. The announcer repeatedly had to ask fans who only had standing room tickets not to sit down as thousands of fans still were waiting at the gates.

The crowd cheered both the East Germans and Americans. American Coach Adams commented, "With crowds like that, nobody can say that track and field is dead."

Calvin Smith's 100-meter run, and a time of 10.88 seconds by East Germany's Marlies Goehr, which equalled her own world rcord, were the outstanding performances Friday.

On Saturday, East German woman discus thrower Irina Meszynski came close to beating the world record of Bulgaria's Mariya Petkova-Vergova of 235 feet, 6¾ inches, with a throw landing past the world record mark. But the throw was ruled invalid. She won with 234-3, which was the top mark this year.

The American men won seven of the 12 events Saturday including a 1-2 sweep in the men's 200-meter race. James Butler was first in 20.32 and Terron Wright second in 20.39.

1st Federal, Kiwanis Capture Titles

Little League

First Federal 2
C & Associates 1

Maurice Dyer doubled home what proved the winning run in the bottom of the sixth as First Federal slipped by Carroll & Associates, 2-1, Saturday to capture the Tar Heel Little League postseason tournament title.

First Federal will now meet Kiwanis for the City Championship. Kiwanis nipped Union Carbide, 6-5, Saturday to win the North State Little League postseason tournament crown.

The City Championship, a best two-out-of-three series, gets under way Monday at 6 p.m. A second game is set for Tuesday at 6 p.m. A third game, if needed, will be played Wednesday at 6 p.m.

With the score tied at 1-1, First Federal struck for the go-ahead run in the sixth.

Trey Dancey reached base on a fielder's choice and moved to second when Mike Cox reached on an error. Dyer then doubled with two gone to drive home Dancey and give First Federal the victory.

C&A took a 1-0 lead in the third when Billy Carr scored on a sacrifice fly by James Lawler. First Federal tied the game one inning later when John Bolen was walked and came around to score on a wild pitch.

C&A's managed only three hits off FF hurler Frankie Pugh, two of which were by Jason Lee. FF had six hits, with both Bolen and Lee Watson collecting two.

Kiwanis 6
U. Carbide 5

Robbie McDonald's two-run home run tied the game and Curtis Jones' solo shot proved the winning run as Kiwanis edged by Union Carbide, 6-5, yesterday to win the North State Little League postseason tournament title.

Union Carbide will now play First Federal for the City Championship to start Monday at 6 p.m. First Federal nipped Carroll & Associates, 2-1, Saturday for the Tar Heel Little League postseason tournament title.

The second game in the best-of-three series is slated for Tuesday with a third game, if necessary, set for Wednesday. All games are at 6 p.m.

Kiwanis trailed, 5-0, going into the fourth but struck for three runs in the inning to cut the gap to two and then took the lead in the fifth with three runs after two were out.

With two gone in the fifth and Jon Chambliss on base with a fielder's choice, McDonald connected for a two-run home run to tie the game. Jones then followed with a solo home run to give Kiwanis a 6-5 lead.

Paul Powers reached base on an error in the top of the sixth, but three ground outs ended any chance UC had to tie the game.

UC took a 2-0 lead in the first on Morris Johnson's two-run home run and upped its lead to 5-0 in the second when Billy Turcotte doubled home two runs and later scored himeself on Abram Lang's double.

Kiwinis began its comeback in the fourth with three runs, sparked by a double by Pat Joyner that scored two runs, and then tied the game and went ahead one inning later.

McDonald and Joyner both had two hits for Kiwanis. Turcotte, Johnson and Darryl Joyner all had two hits for UC.

Babe Ruth

Wachovia 16
Planters Bank 4

Ricky Outlaw had four hits and Wachovia scored 11 runs in the final three innings to whip Planters Bank, 16-4, Saturday to advance to the finals of the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

Wachovia, unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament, will play Coca-Cola today for the title at Guy Smith Stadium. If Coke wins, a second game will also be played following the first.

Both teams scored a run in the first inning. Wachovia took a 2-1 lead in the top of the second only to have Planters come back with three runs in the home half of the second to go up, 4-2.

Wachovia regained the lead in the top of the third, scoring three runs to go up, 5-4. Duane Roeser had grounded out to score one run and Lark Wetherington and Mike Gavigan both singled home a run.

Wachovia added five more runs to its lead in the fifth before scoring a run in the sixth and five more in the seventh for its 16-run total.

Tom Moore had three hits and William Ward and Anthony Coward had two hits each to lead Wachovia. Marty Atkinson had three hits for Planters Bank.

Coca-Cola 18
Planters Bank 5

Coca-Cola struck for eight runs in the first inning and coasted past Planters Bank, 18-5, Saturday to move in to the finals of the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

Coke will play Wachovia, unbeaten in the double-elimination tournament, today for the title at Guy Smith Stadium. If Coke wins, a second game will be played following the first game.

Two walks and three errors helped Coke's cause in its eight-run first inning that erased a 2-0 deficit. Traye Fugua had a double and Lewis Robbins and Joey Hallow each had singles in the inning.

Planters scored a run in the second but Coke came back with two runs in the bottom of the inning. Planters countered with two runs in the third but, again, Coke came back, this time scoring five runs in the home half of the third to take a 15-5 lead.

Coke scored its final three runs in the fourth.

Coke was led by Fugua, who had three hits. Hallow, Curt Perkins and Billy Michel all had two hits for Coke. No one for Planters had more than one hit.

Coca-Cola 11
Pepsi-Cola 2

Tyrone Barrett doubled home two runs to key a four-run first inning that helped carry Coca-Cola to eliminate Pepsi-Cola, 11-2, Saturday in the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

Billy Michel singled home Curtis Perkins with the first run in the first and both he and Paul Hill later scored on Barrett's double. Barrett subsequently scored on George Saad's triple.

Pepsi came back with a run in the bottom of the inning but Coke countered with two runs in the second and a run in the third and fourth to up its lead to 8-1.

Coke scored its final three runs in the top of the seventh; Pepsi scored its final run in the bottom of the inning.

Traye Fugua had two hits for Coke. Pat Rand, Les Turner and Lane Odom all had two hits for Pepsi.

Babe Ruth All-Star Squads Selected

League champion Pugh's Firestone had four players named to the 16-18 Babe Ruth All-Star team and two selected for the 16-year-old All-Star team, both of which were announced Saturday.

Billy Godley, Keith Phillips, Bill Johnson and Kenny Kirkland all made the 16-18 team for Pugh's while Eric Woodworth and Toby Fisher were named to the 16-year-old squad.

Pugh's head coach Allen Elder was named coach of the year and his assistant, Billy Dough, were named as assistant of the year.

Kiwanis, Washington and Winterville all also had four players picked.

From Kiwanis were Troy Hudson, Curtis Evans, Bill Owens and Jeff Wilson. From Winterville were Dixon Page, Jeff Cox, Wesley Smith and Doug McRoy. From Washington were Lonni Harris, Vince Harris, Mike Askew and Jerry Sawyer.

Farmville had two players on the team: Alvin Baker and Eddie Jones. Greene County had one player: David Joyner.

Greene County led the 16-year-old team with four players: Elmer Dixon, Rusty Murphy, Kevin Langston and Press Harris.

Kiwanis, Farmville, Washington and Winterville all had three players on the team.

From Kiwanis were Battle Emory, Bobby Buie and Mike Iaboni. From Farmville were Randy Norris, Joey Steppe and Taylor Walston. From Winterville were Doug Coley, Chris Via and Richie Overton. From Washington were Galen Braddy, Kevin Cutler and John Modlin.

Winterville coach Ronnie Carroll was named coach-of-the-year.

plate. Miller followed with a single for two more.

Laudner led off the Minnesota fourth with a double, took third when third baseman Boggs booted Gary Ward's grounder for an error and scored on a groundout by John Castino.

Boston got the run back in the bottom of the fourth when Hoffman reached third on a pop fly double and Brunansky's throwing error and scored on Stapleton's fly ball.

Minnesota cut the lead to 4-2 in the fifth. Ron Washington singled for his third hit and went to third when center fielder Miller overran Brunansky's single for an error. Kent Hrbek then hit a sacrifice fly.

The Twins had runners at first and third with one out in the seventh but Laudner grounded into a double play.

Pitt County Escapes, 4-1; In Legion Tourney Finals

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

SNOW HILL — Pitt County, calling on chief henchmen Gordon Douglas and Terry Locust, escaped here Friday evening with a berth in the finals of the Area I East American Legion postseason tournament.

Douglas stranded 13 Snow Hill batters — including three in the sixth inning when Post 94 loaded the bases with none out but failed to score — and Locust drove home two runs in a three-run fifth as Pitt County came away with a 4-1 victory.

The win gave Post 39 a 2-0 sweep of the best-of-three series and sent it into the tournament finals against either Wilson or Rocky Mount. The first game of the series was rained out Friday night and the two teams were to have played again last night in Wilson.

The teams will travel to Rocky Mount Sunday. A third game, if necessary, will be played Monday in Wilson. The winner will play Pitt County in a best-of-five series for the title.

"They're at the top of their game and we weren't," Snow Hill coach James Fulghum said afterwards.

"We stung the ball a few times tonight but we just couldn't get it in the hole when we needed to," he added. "Douglas pitched a real good game for them."

Douglas, who is now 3-2, struck out seven and walked four while scattering seven hits on a muggy night.

"Gordon threw a tremendous ballgame," Pitt County coach Billy Davis said. "He stayed ahead of the batters and, from a pitcher's standpoint, that's so important.

"That's probably the best he's thrown all summer," Davis continued. "I can't say enough about the way he pitched tonight."

Douglas gave up an RBI single to Chris Suggs in the second which gave Snow Hill a 1-0 lead, a lead that stood until the fifth when Post 39 rallied for three runs.

Sammy Hodges and Bill Kittrell led off the fifth by working walks off Snow Hill starter Joey Rouse. Randy Warren then reached base on a bunt single to load the bases.

Hodges scored to tie the game on Mont Carter's sacrifice fly to rightfield, chasing Rouse for Robbie Pelletier in the process.

Rouse, who took the loss and is end the season at 1-3, pitched well until the fifth, striking out seven and walked four while giving up three hits and three runs — all earned — in 4⅓ innings.

"Rouse did a tremendous job early," Davis said. "We were behind him and he kept us off balance. But I think he got a little tired."

Terry Locust greeted Pelletier with bouncing a single through the middle — a "seeing-eye dog," Fulghum said — to bring home Kittrell and Warren to give Pitt County a 3-1 lead.

Post 94 appeared ready to regain the lead in the sixth when it loaded the bases with none gone, but two foul outs and a strike out extinquished the threat.

Lewis Yelverton singled to open the inning. Wade Corbett then attempted to bunt Yelverton up, but Kittrell, the Post 39 first baseman, mishandled the ball and Corbett was safe.

Suggs then laid down a perfect bunt along the third baseline for an infield single to load the bases with no outs.

Douglas induced Richie Chase and Robbie Pelletier to foul out to catcher Emmett Walsh and then struck out Chris Newsome to end the inning. "That was crucial," Fulghum said.

Post 39 threatened twice more — in the eighth and ninth — but came away empty both times.

In the eighth, Corbett singled, went to second on a sacrifice bunt and to third on a ground out. But, Douglas struck out Pelletier to kill off the threat.

Kittrell upped the Post 39 lead to 4-1 in the ninth with a 355-foot homer before Post 94 threatened again in the bottom of the inning. With one out, Douglas walked Greg Hardison on four straight pitches. Then, with two out, Douglas walked Jeff Ginn.

However, after a conference on the mound with Davis, Douglas got Yelverton to ground out to Carter at second to end the game.

Kittrell led Pitt County at the plate with two hits in three at bats. Locust was two for four with two RBI. Suggs was two for three for Snow Hill.

After neither team threatened in the first, Snow Hill took the lead in the second. Yelverton walked to open the inning, went to second on Wade Corbett's sacrifice bunt and scored on Suggs' single.

With two gone in the third, Mont Carter bounced a ground-rule double over the rightfield fence and went to third on a passed ball. But, after Locust walked and stole second, Rouse struck out Walsh to end the inning.

Neither team threatened again until the fifth when Pitt County took the lead, a lead it never relinquished as it escaped Snow Hill with the win and a berth in the tournament finals.

The Greenville Country Club will hold an 18-hole "Turkey Convention" on July 22. Members wishing to participate may call the pro shop to sign up.

On August 14 and 15, the club will hold a couples Member-Guest/Member-Member tournament. Details are available in the pro shop.

The W.S. Moye Superball, open to all five clubs in the county, will be held on August 21-22. The entry fee is $100 per team (four-man), with the top three gross scores and top three nets scores winning. Teams will add handicaps and divide by four for play. Any combination from any of the five clubs is okay.

Further details can be obtained from pro Gordon Fulp at 756-0504.

The Greenville Country Club hosted the Pro-Junior tournament recently. First place was won by Macon Moye and his team of Simon Moye, Scott Kee, Glenn Nelson and Greg Hallow. They posted a team score of 55.

A very extensive junior program is being held at the club this summer. Interested junior members may call the pro shop for details.

Brook Valley Country Club

Jerry McGalliard had his best round ever on the front side at Brook Valley recently with a 40.

James Stoll of Youngstown, Ohio, aced the 12th hole at Brook Valley hitting a five-iron into the hole. He was playing with Joe Luffred.

Steve Wall eagled the sixth hole at Brook Valley, hitting a three-wood twice to reach the par-five green. He was playing with Sammy Hodges.

Jim Mallory hit a three-wood and five-wood and made his putt on number two for an eagle. He was playing with Charlie Bill Moye, Jim Marlowe and Perk Ashby.

Rich Rados got an eagle on the second hole also, hitting a driver and three-wood to the hole.

The Club Junior Championship will be held on July 20 at 9 a.m.

The next Jack and Jill will be on Wednesday, July 21. A men's superball will be held on July 25. Signups for all may be done in the club house.

A make-up clinic will be held on Thursday, July 22 at 9:30 to 11 a.m. on chipping, putting and golf etiquette.

Tennis Clinic Planned

A week-long tennis clinic to be conducted by Mary Lou Jones has been scheduled tentatively for Aug. 9-13.

The clinic will be open to all persons in and around the Greenville area. The approximate cost will be $100 per person. A minimum of 25 persons will be needed to hold the clinic. If sufficient interest is shown, registration will be held July 20. Interested persons may contact the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department by July 15 — telephone 752-4137, extension 202.

Ms. Jones, inducted into the N.C. Tennis Hall in 1979, has won over 200 tournaments in singles, doubles and mixed doubles which led to her ranking as No. 1 in the state and in the South. Currently, she is chairman of the physical education department at St. Mary's College in Raleigh.

Former Light Heavyweight Loughran Dead At Age 79

ALTOONA, Pa. (AP) — Former light heavyweight champion Tommy Loughran, a member of the Boxing Hall of Fame, is dead at the age of 79.

Loughran, who also was a sportscaster for ABC television, died in his sleep Wednesday night at the Hollidaysburg veterans home in Blair County, a spokeswoman for the home said.

Loughran, a native of Philadelphia, began his boxing career in 1919 and, from 1926 to 1929, went undefeated in 43 straight bouts.

In 1927, Loughran, who was known as the Phantom of Philadelphia, won the light heavyweight crown with a 15-round decision over Mike McTigue.

He held the crown until 1929, when he vacated it after beating former heavyweight champ James Braddock to move into the heavyweight division.

As a heavyweight, Loughran beat former champions Max Baer and Jack Sharkey. In 1934, Loughran lost a 15-round decision to Italy's Primo Carnera in his only bid for the heavyweight title. He fought his last pro bout in 1937.

Loughran, whose career record was 96-23-8, was elected to the Boxing Hall of Fame in 1956.

In an interview, Loughran once recalled his last fight.

"After it was over, the crowd started yelling, 'Speech, Tommy, speech!' They handed me a microphone and I began talking. I guess I was pretty overcome. Every time I tried to say goodbye, they yelled for more."

"When I got out of there, I went some place and just sat and thought it all over," he continued. "Hours later, I started for my home ... in front of my home was the biggest crowd I ever saw."

Joyner's 6 RBIs Keys Pitt County By Washington

Babe Ruth

Pitt County 14
Washington 4

ROBERSONVILLE — Brian Joyner drove in six runs — four with a grand slam — as Pitt County defeated Washington, 14-4, Friday to advance to the semifinals of the 13-year-old Babe Ruth baseball tournament being played here.

Pitt Co. was to have met Nash County yesterday for a berth in the championship game of the double-elimination tournament. Nash defeated Martin County Friday in another second-round game.

Greenville was to have played Washington yesterday in the losers' bracket.

Mitchell Phillips hurled a three-hitter for Pitt County, striking out six and walking 11.

Phillips was also one of four players with two hits for Pitt County. A second player, Joyner, hit a grand slam home run and had two more RBI as he collected six runs batted in.

Frank Mills and Tommy Wright also had two hits for Pitt County.

Coca-Cola 20
B & Wood 4

Billy Michel hurled a one-hitter and Traye Fugua banged out four hits and had two RBI as Coca-Cola whipped Brown & Wood, 20-4, Friday here in the second round of the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

Michel struck out nine and walked two. B&W's lone hit off Michel came in the third on a one-out single by Doyle Kirkland.

Coke scored 11 runs in the first inning and never looked back en route to the win.

The 11-run outburst was keyed by seven walks and six singles, two by leadoff hitter Curtis Perkins. Perkins had two RBI in the inning.

B&W scored two runs in the top of the second but Coke came back with five runs in the bottom of the inning to up its lead to 16-2. B&W scored its last two runs in the third.

Coke scored two runs in the third and fourth for its 20-run total.

Perkins, Paul Hill and Robbie Ehrmann all had two hits for Coke.

Pepsi-Cola 5
Famous Subs 4

Pete Grice scored the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning on a passed ball as Pepsi-Cola nipped Famous Subs, 5-4, Friday in the second round of the Babe Ruth postseason tournament.

After Famous Subs tied the game in the top of the seventh, Grice reached on an error to open the bottom of the inning, raced to third on a second error and scored on a passed ball.

Famous Subs took a 1-0 lead in the first and upped its lead to 2-0 in the second. Pepsi scored three runs — two on a triple by Sterling Edwards — to take a 3-2 lead in the fourth.

Both teams scored a run in the sixth before Famous Subs tied the game in the seventh when Steve Wall singled home Jay Wynne.

Wall and Van Alston had two hits for Famous Subs. No one for Pepsi had more than one hit.

Little League

U. Carbide 7
Optimist 4

Greg Davis drove in three runs and Union Carbide struck for five runs in the second as it slipped past Optimist, 7-4, Friday in the semifinals of the North State Little League postseason tournament.

Union Carbide was to have met Kiwanis Saturday for the North State winner. The survivor there will play either First Federal or Carroll & Associates for the City Championship.

Davis singled home Billy Turcotte and Morris Johnson in the first to give UC a 2-0 lead, a lead it never lost. Turcotte doubled to open the inning and Johnson walked with two gone.

UC upped its lead to 7-0 in the second. Singles by Paul Powers, Abram Lang and Kevin Fisher and doubles by Johnson and Davis keyed the uprising.

Optmist cut the deficit to 7-1 in the fourth and inched to within 7-4 with three runs in the sixth, two of which came on a home run by Joel Pierce. But, Optimist could get no closer.

Lee Ball had two hits for Optimist. Lang, Johnson and Davis all had two hits for UC.

Lions 5

Robbie McDonald hit two three-run home runs to key Kiwanis to a 12-5 win over Lions Friday in the semifinals of the North State Little League postseason tournament.

Kiwanis was to have played Union Carbide Saturday for the North State tourney title. The winner there will play either First Federal or Carroll & Associates for the City Championship.

Kiwanis scored three runs in the first inning on McDonald's first three-run shot to erase a 1-0 deficit. With one gone and Kraig Butler on with a fielder's choice and Jon Chambliss with a double, McDonald connected to give Kiwanis a 3-1 lead.

The Lions made it 3-2 in the top of the third when Tom Moye tripled and scored on a ground out, but Kiwanis came back with three runs in the home half of the inning to all but seal the win.

Kiwanis upped its lead to 10-3 in the fourth, sparked by McDonald's second three-run home run. Kiwanis made it 12-3 in the fifth. The Lions scored their final two runs in the sixth.

No one for the Lions had more than one hit. Chambliss, McDonald and Jamie Hale all had two hits for Kiwanis.

First Federal 5
Wellcome 4

Billy Bob Anderson singled home the tying run and Drew Johnson scored the winning run on an error in the bottom of the sixth to lift First Federal to a 5-4 win over Wellcome Friday in the semifinals of the Tar Heel Little League postseason tournament.

First Federal was to have meet Carroll & Associates yesterday for the Tar Heel tournament title. The winner will meet either Kiwanis or Union Carbide for the City Championship.

Down 4-3 going into the sixth, First Federal, the tourney's top seed, rallied to win.

Michael Cox was hit by a pitch to open the inning and Johnson followed with a single. Anderson then singled home Cox to make it 4-4. Johnson then raced home when Maurice Dyer reached base on an error to give FF the win.

Wellcome scored four runs in the fourth inning to take a 4-0 lead. FF battled back within two in the fourth on Stacey Best's two-run home run and cut the gap to 4-3 in the fifth when Dyer scored on an error.

Best, Anderson and Frankie Pugh all had two hits for First Federal. Matthew Perry had two hits for Wellcome.

C & Associates 8
Moose 3

Billy Carr hit a two-run home run to spark a five-run fourth inning as Carroll and Associates defeated Moose, 8-3, Friday in the semifinals of the Tar Heel Little League postseason tournament.

C&A was to have played First Federal yesterday for the Tar Heel tournament title. The winner will play either Kiwanis or Union Carbide for the City Championship.

Moose took a 2-0 lead in the first on four walks and a double by L.L. Everett. C&A cut the gap to 2-1 in the second and took the lead in the fourth.

Travis Williamson reached base on an error and Joel Daughtry walked before Michael Sutton singled to score Williamson. Daughtry later scored on an error to make it 3-2.

Then, with one gone, Carr hit his home run to make it 5-2. Jamie Marshall later reached on an error and came around to score on a sacrifice by James Lawler to make it 6-2.

C&A scored its final two runs in the fifth. Moose scored its last run in the sixth.

Everett had two hits for Moose. Carr had two hits for C&A.

Prep League All-Stars

"We need his class in midfield against the Germans, so every effort will be made to have him on the starting lineup," Bearzot said.

If Antognoni fails to make it, he will be replaced by Gianpiero Marini, the man who substituted for him when he limped off in the game against the Poles.

Gentile missed the game against Poland because he was serving a one-match suspension. But in Italy's previous games he was given the job of tying up stars Zbigniew Boniek of Poland, Diego Maradona of Argentina and Zico of Brazil — three of the most dangerous shooters in the tournament — and he succeeded every time.

Dino Zoff, Italy's 40-year-old goalkeeper in gray and black, is expected to become the oldest man to play in the final since the World Cup started in 1930.

Zoff once played for 1,147 minutes in international games without conceding a goal. That was in 1974. He has had five scored against him in the current tournament, but has prevented many more with spectacular agility.

West Germany has two brothers — Karl-Heinz and Bernd Forster, who play for VFB Stuttgart — in its lineup. They will be the first brothers to play together in a World Cup final since 1966, when Bobby and Jack Charlton helped England to a 4-2 win over West Germany.

Among the sellout crowd of 120,000 watching the final will be an estimated 15,000 from Italy and a similar number from West Germany.

Italy won the World Cup in 1934 and 1938 and West Germany in 1954 and 1974.

Brazil as won the most Cups — in 1958, 1962 and 1970.

CCC ALUMNI SOUGHT — Fifty years ago the Civilian Conservation Corps planted millions of trees, reclaimed hundreds of thousands of acres of land and built parks, bridges, dams and fire trails in every state. And, if you're one of the four million Americans who served in the CCC between 1933 and 1943, there are some folks who'd like to hear from you.

An organization of the CCC alumni has recently formed and is setting up state chapters, publishing a journal and establishing a museum. For more information, contact the Nationa Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni, 7900 Sudley Road, Suite 143, Manassas, Virginia 22110.

PROTECT YOUR OUTBOARD MOTOR — It pays to protect any large investment. And most boaters have a four-figure investment clamped to the stern of their boats. Outboard motors are a tempting target for thieves, so here are a few tips on how to keep you outboard from being stolen:

•Write down the modely and serial number of your motor and file it in a safe place. If the motor is stolen notify the dealership where you bought it. Many companies keep an up-to-date file on stolen boat motors which is distributed to insurance companies, police departments and marine dealerships.

•Put your own special identification mark — a social security number works well — on a hidden part of the motor. Diamond-tipped identification pens work well and can be borrowed from many police departments.

•If you outboard motor is portable remove it from the boat when not in use and store it in a safe place. Heavy outboards should be locked to the boat with a heavy chain, and an extra steel cable locked to the trailer will help frustrate thieves.

•If you own an electric-start outboard, install a car burglar alarm.

KNOW YOUR COASTAL FISHING REGULATIONS — When does the shrimping season open? Do you need a license to pick up a few oysters? How big does a clam have to be before it may legally be kept?

Visitors to the North Carolina coast often ask these questions, and coastal fishing and shellfishing regulations vary widely. Before you visit the coast, it's a good idea to obtain a copy of the coastal fishing regulations.

For more information, write to the N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries, P.O. Box 769, Morehead City, N.C. 28557.

Fishing Report

SALTWATER — Reports from the coast remain good even though the temperature continues to rise. Bottom fishing in the Gulf Stream has been good with catches of red & silver snapper, sea bass and an occasional amberjack.

King Mackeral and Spanish Mackeral are still around but not in great numbers.

FRESHWATER — Shrimp season opened in most of the inland creeks and rivers last week. For information on areas open for shrimping, write to the N.C. Division of Marine Fisheries, P.O. Box 769, Morehead City, N.C. 28557.

Big King

Van Gurkins of Greenville displays a 41-pound, 4 ounce king mackeral he caught off Morehead City while fishing with Clifton Moss of Winterville aboard Moss' boat "Dixie." Gurkins caught the king with live bait.

What's The Law...

What's the law on...motorboat fire extinquisher requirements.

A motorboat of Classes A and 1 (less than 26 feet) must carry at least one Coast Guard Approved "B-I" type fire extinquisher unless (a) it has an approved built-in extinquishing system in the engine compartment or (b) it is an outboard motorboat of open construction and does not carry paying passengers.

An outboard motorboat is considered of closed construction if it has one or more of the following features:

(1) Closed compartment under thwart or seat wherein portable fuel tank may be stores.

(2) Double bottom s not seales to the hull or which are not completely filled with flotation material.

(3) Closed living spaces.

(4) Closed stowage compartments in which combustible or flammable materials are stored.

(5) Permanently mounted fuel tank.

The following construction features do not of themselves require that a fire extinquisher be carried:

(1) Bait wells.

(2) Glove or map compartments.

(3) Buoyant flotation materials.

(4) Open slatted flooring.

(5) Ice chests.

Class 2 motorboats must carry one type "B-II" or two type "B-I" extinquishers, unless equipped with an approved built-in extinquishing system, in which case one type "B-I" extinquisher will suffice.

Class 3 motorboats must carry at least three "B-I" extinquishers or one type "B-I" and one type "B-II". If equipped with an approved built-in extinquishing system, two type "B-I" or one type "B-II" extinquishers will suffice.

The above requirements for fire extinquishers do not apply to motorboats while competing in any race conducted pursuant to G.S. 75A-14 or, if such boats be designed and intended solely for racing, while engaged in such navigation as is incidental to the tuning up of the boats and engines for the race.

Brewers Outlast Kansas City, 9-6

By The Associated Press

Gorman Thomas has some bad news for the rest of the American League. The Milwaukee Brewers are not going to live and die by the long ball.

Thomas and Cecil Cooper smacked two-run doubles during an incredible two-out, seven-run outburst in the Milwaukee fourth inning as the Brewers outlasted the Kansas City Royals 9-6 Friday night.

Even more incredible was the fact the homer-happy Brewers accomplished the feat without the aid of the longball.

"We got our first base runner with two out in the inning," said Thomas. "We don't have to hit home runs. Tonight we showed our fans a different way to score runs."

Different, but not the norm, according to the statistics. Thomas leads the league with 21 home runs, Cooper and teammate Ben Oglivie have 19 each and the team has hit 118 homers this season, tops in the majors.

Trailing 1-0, Oglivie started the uprising by lining a 2-2 pitch to center field for a single. Royals starter Paul Splittorff, 7-6, walked Don Money and then the hit parade began.

Ed Romero and Charlie Moore hit RBI singles. Paul Molitor walked, Robin Yount collected an infield single, Cooper doubled and Thomas greeted former teammate Bill Castro and capped the scoring with his two-bagger.

"You just never know what's going to happen," Thomas said. "That's why they play 162 games. You know Murphy's law — if anything bad can happen it will happen. Murphy's law just took over for Kansas City tonight."

"Seven runs with two outs and no homers — that's kind of rare for us. But it shows we don't have to hit home runs to score a lot of runs," Cooper said.

The Royals made it 7-2 in the sixth inning on Hal McRae's RBI grounder and they closed to within 7-4 in the seventh on a single by U.L. Washington and Don Slaught's first major league homer.

Brewers starter Mike Caldwell, 6-8, allowed 11 hits before needing relief help in the ninth from Rollie Fingers, who posted his 17th save.

Rangers 3-3, Tigers 2-1

Billy Sample homered and singled to knock in a pair of runs and Doc Medich and Dave Schmidt scattered 10 hits as Texas posted its first doubleheader sweep since August 1980. Ironically, that sweep also occured against Detroit, which has now dropped 21 of 26 games.

Buddy Bell won the opener for the Rangers, cracking a two-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning. It made a winner of Danny Darwin, 5-2, who one-hit the Tigers over the final 32-3 innings.

Orioles 7, A's 5

Dan Ford highlighted a five-run second inning with a bases-clearing, three-run double as Baltimore downed Oakland.

Cal Ripken led off the Orioles' big inning with a single and stopped at third on the first of two doubles by Gary Roenicke. With two out, Matt Keough walked Lenn Sakata, loading the bases, and Ford delivered his hit off the right-center field fence. Ken Singleton followed with a single, scoring Ford, and Eddie Murray doubled Singleton home.

The A's got solo home runs from Dwayne Murphy and Tony Armas.

Indians 7, Mariners 4

Larry Milbourne and Chris Bando hit two-run homers in the fourth inning and relievers Ed Whitson and Dan Spillner no-hit Seattle over the final 22-3 innings as Cleveland downed the Mariners.

Milbourne, who had three hits, also scored Cleveland's first run in the third inning when he led off with a double, was sacrificed to third and scored on a wild pitch by Floyd Bannister, 8-5.

Bannister gave up Bando's first major league homer after a walk to Andre Thornton. One out later, Rick Manning walked and Milbourne hit his first homer of the season, giving the Indians a 5-0 lead.

Twins 4, Red Sox 1

Rookie Frank Viola scattered six hits in recording his first major league complete game as Minnesota posted its ninth victory in the last 11 games by downing Boston. Viola, 3-0, struck out six as the Twins snapped Boston's Dennis Eckersley's three-game win streak.

Minnesota took a 2-0 lead in the fourth as Ron Washington doubled and scored on Tom Brunansky's double and Randy Johnson scored Brunansky with a single. They made it 4-0 the next inning as Gary Ward singled, stole second and scored on John Castino's single. Castino came home on Washington's sacrifice fly to right.

Blue Jays 7, White Sox 6

Ernie Whitt crashed a two-run home run and Al Woods added a solo shot to help reliever Dale Murray, 6-3, post his third straight victory as Toronto beat Chicago.

Greg Luzinski's run-scoring double and Harold Baines RBI single gave the White Sox a 2-0 lead in the first. But the Blue Jays scored three times in the second on doubles by Hosken Powell and Woods, Garth Iorg's single, a wild pitch and an error. Whitt homered in the fourth and Woods added his blast in the sixth.

Angels 4, Yankees 1

Geoff Zahn tossed a two-hitter, while Don Baylor hit a solo homer, Bobby Grich tripled for one run and Tim Foli squeezed home another, during a three-run second inning in California's win over New York.

Zahn, 10-4, struck out one and walked one. Jerry Mumphrey's triple in the fifth and Willie Randolph's single in the sixth were the only hits off the left-hander. Graig Nettles had an RBI grounder.

Baylor blasted his 13th homer off Tommy John, 5-7, to start the second. One out later, Fred Lynn singled and scored on Grich's triple. Foli squeezed him home.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Los Angeles 6, Philly 4

What figured to be a pitching duel between Los Angeles' Jerry Reuss and Philadelphia's Steve Carlton wound up as a battle of wits between Managers Tom Lasorda and Pat Corrales.

With the score tied 4-4 in the bottom of the ninth inning, Philadelphia's Garry Maddox got a double on a pop fly that four Dodgers let drop at the pitcher's mound and was sacrificed to third with one out.

"We had 'em beat. All we needed was a fly ball or a base hit," Corrales said.

The Phillies didn't get it as Ivan DeJesus grounded out and, after Lasorda ordered an intentional walk to pinch hitter Greg Gross, Bob Dernier, who homered in the eighth to tie the game, struck out to end the inning.

A similar situation confronted Corrales in the top of the 11th. With one out, Pedro Guerrero singled and stole second one out later. Corrales decided to have reliever Tug McGraw intentionally walk Steve Yeager and pitch to rookie Ron Roenicke, who brought a .167 average into the game and was mired in a 2-for-30 slump. Additionally, the switch-hitting outfielder had only three hits in 30 at-bats from the right side all season.

"I made the decision to walk Yeager," Corrales said. "He'll grind it out on you. The kid (Roenicke) was hitting .100 right-handed. But Tug gave him a fast ball right out over the plate."

"The way I was hitting, they did the right thing," said Roenicke. "I was struggling. But to see them walk Yeager gave me more determination to try a little bit harder."

He slashed the first pitch for a two-run double, giving the Dodgers a 6-4 victory.

Lasorda said he had no thought of pinch-hitting for Roenicke "because I believe every time he goes up there he's going to get a hit. I kept telling him: 'Just keep swinging. You can do it.' If I thought the kid couldn't do it, he w uldn't be in there."

Cardinals 3, Astros 2

Willie McGee tripled home a run in the sixth inning and scored on a single by Keith Hernandez as rookie Dave LaPoint and two relievers outdueled Nolan Ryan, who struck out 10 batters for the 141st time in his career. George Hendrick's second-inning homer accounted for the first run off Ryan. Tom Herr led off the St. Louis sixth with a single and scored the tie-breaking run on McGee's triple. Hernandez's single made it 3-1. By winning, the Cardinals opened a two-game lead over Philadelphia in the NL East.

Braves 6, Pirates 4

Pittsburgh took a 4-0 lead after 1½ innings on homers by Bill Madlock, Mike Easler and Omar Moreno. But Larry Whisenton's tie-breaking, two-run single capped a three-run fifth-inning rally for the Braves. After Glenn Hubbard and Chris Chambliss opened the fifth with singles, Dale Murphy doubled to score Hubbard and tie the score. Bob Horner was walked intentionally, loading the bases for Whisenton. Horner drove in Atlanta's first run with a third-inning single and the Braves picked up two more runs in the fourth on Horner's double, a walk, Bruce Benedict's double and a grounder. The crowd of 28,601 put the Braves at 1,017,341 for the season, the first time they have passed the 1 million mark before the All-Star break.

Padres 5-3, Mets 3-6

Dave Kingman's tie-breaking two-run homer capped a three-run rally in the seventh inning of the nightcap as the Mets snapped a seven-game losing streak. The Padres stretched their winning streak to six games by winning the opener as Terry Kennedy singled home the go-ahead run in the seventh inning and an insurance run in the ninth. George Foster also homered for the Mets in the second game, while San Diego pitcher Chris Welsh contributed a two-run single in the opener.

Giants 3, Expos 2

Joe Morgan belted a solo homer and Jack Clark added a two-run shot in the sixth inning as the Giants handed the slumping Expos their 14th setback in 18 games behind the six-hit pitching of Atlee Hammaker and three relievers. The Expos led 1-0 until Morgan led off the sixth by slamming a pitch from Steve Rogers for his sixth home run of the season. Chili Davis followed with a single and Clark then jumped on Rogers' first pitch and sent it beyond the fence in left for his 17th homer. Al Oliver homered for Montreal.

Cubs 12, Reds 0

Gary Woods drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Jerry Morales' bases-loaded triple highlighted a six-run seventh inning, while Fergie Jenkins pitched a five-hitter in posting his 48th career shutout and first in three years. Bill Buckner drove in Chicago's first two runs with a grounder and single and Woods had an RBI single in the big seventh following Morales' three-run triple.

Failed Steal Attempt

Pittsburgh's Omar Moreno (18) is tagged out at second by Atlanta shortstop Rafael Ramirez (16) in a steal attempt. The out retired the Pirates in the top of the fourth as the Braves went on to capture a 6-4 victory at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium. (AP Laserphoto)

Audit Reveals AD, Coaches Owe College $$

ROCK HILL, S.C. (AP) — Winthrop College Athletic Director Nield Gordon and three other coaches owe the school about $2,100, according to an internal audit of the school athletic department.

The only school comment on the audit released last week has been a terse statement from provost Glenn Thomas, who said all athletic department funds "have been accounted for."

He wouldn't release the audit, saying only that the administration would answer written questions within 15 days. He said such audits are routine.

Gordon said the four coaches — himself, assistant basketball coach Al Kyber, baseball coach Horace Turbeville and women's softball coach Elaine Mozingo — must share in repaying the money to the Winthrop Camp, a college-run athletic camp that raises money for scholarships and athletic activities.

Gordon said the money was used to pay staffers who worked at the Winthrop Camp and separate camps run privately by coaches. He said the audit showed the staffers should have been paid with coaches' camp money as well as Winthrop Camp money.

Wolfpack Ends Camels' String

RALEIGH (AP) — Sophomore Mike Pesavento won his seventh straight game and freshman Tracy Woodson drove home two runs to spark North Carolina State to a 4-3 North State Summer Baseball League victory over Campbell Friday.

The unbeaten Pesavento, from Lockport, Ill., pitch a no-hitter for five innings and allowed just two hits in the seven-inning contest as the Wolfpack pulled within one game of the league-leading Fighting Camels. N.C. State's record is 19-8, Campbell is 20-8.

Campbell scored two runs in the top of the seventh and had the tying run on second base following Steve Regner's double before Pesavento retired the side.

N.C. State scored the decisive two runs in the sixth inning when on run-producing singles by Woodson and Doug Davis.

Darin Cloninger went the distance for Campbell and took the loss, his fourth in seven decisions.

Harvest Brings Perk To Kansas Town

By MICHAEL BATES
Associated Press Writer

KIOWA, Kan. (AP) — This is one the towns in the path of the annual wheat march from Texas into Canada. Hundreds of wheat harvest gypsies stop a few days, then move on.

Kiowa and the other communities in the nation's breadbasket count on the friendly invasion. For the past four weeks, the invasion has brought the town to life and nurtured the local economy like a rare cloudburst brings blooms to a desert.

"We're surrounded by wheat fields," said Mayor Ed Wetz. "We have three big implement places, a department store and a big tire store. The farmers support the whole town."

Except for the three or four blocks where businesses are concentrated — a grocery, a theater, two banks, a department store, a drug store — Kiowa's mile-long Main Street usually bears only light traffic.

Most of the year there is plenty of room at the popular Ranch House Restaurant at the edge of town. The 1,500 people in the Barber County community take time to stop and visit with each other on the sidewalk or honk and wave as they pass on the street.

But when the wheat starts to turn golden, anticipation builds. Merchants check their inventories to make sure they have stock enough for the surge of customers. Farm families make ready for the harvest, and don't have as much time to get into town.

Within a few days Kiowa's population increases by nearly 1,000. More than 100 travel trailers housing custom harvest crews fill up the three local trailer courts. License plates from the Dakotas, Nebraska, Missouri and Colorado become as common as the Kansas and Oklahoma tags normally seen.

The tree-lined streets and quiet neighborhoods take on the appearance of a farm equipment show as the custom cutter caravans park their grain trucks and trailers bearing huge combines.

By the time the crews began putting in 15-hour days cutting and threshing the waving grain on the gently rolling countryside, a feverish pace had developed.

Dozens of harvest hands enter daily through a door by a mammoth "Combine City U.S.A." sign at Humphrey Implement Co. They crowd the parts counter seeking traction drive belts, transmission parts and other essential cogs to keep their equipment rolling.

"About 70 percent of our annual business is harvest-related in one way or another," said manager Jim Humphrey, whose family has been part of nearly 40 harvests.

The annual ritual moves into full swing as a constant stream of 10-ton grain trucks rumbles through town to and from one of three O.K. Co-op Grain Co. elevators, where two dozen tractor-trailer rigs or dozens of railroad cars are used to ship the wheat out of town.

Co-op manager Jim Reed is the busiest man in town for about two or three weeks as more than 800 truckloads of grain a day pass over the scales. He works from 7 a.m. to midnight commanding a staff of employees more than double the 10 on duty the rest of the year.

This was a good year for Kiowa, said Reed. He said the harvest produced about 3.1 million bushels — about 25 percent more than last year when there had been some hail damage. The bigger harvest will help offset lower prices, Reed said.

With the "wheaties" in town, the The Continental Telephone System's long-distance lines buzz with conversations as the crews call home to family and friends. Postal business even picks up as cards and stationery purchased at the local drug store become letters to folks back home.

Business booms everywhere in town and many places hire extra help and extend their normal operating hours.

At times, there are so many "wheaties" in Bruce's Uptown Recreation, Kiowa's only bar, there isn't room for regular customers to sit, shoot pool or play dominoes.

"Everything just doubles," said tavern owner Bruce Koblitz. "I was going through about seven kegs of beer a week, then I got up to 16."

Police Chief Bill Simpson said the town's low crime rate sometimes increases just a bit — but says it is because locals try to get away with burglaries or vandalism they think they can blame on the wheat crews. He said the custom cutter bosses keep their employees in hand.

"Oh, the prowler calls go up some. Every once in a while we get one wandering around so drunk he doesn't know where he is, but once you hand him over to his boss, you don't see him back causing problems again," the chief said.

Mike and Laurie Hiltner cashed in on harvest this year. Their Shirts and More shop usually makes about 1,000 caps a month bearing the names or logos of businesses in the Kiowa area. In two weeks, they churned out 2,500 personalized caps for the custom crews to wear or hand out to farmers as a customer relations gesture when the harvest moves on.

The Kiowa District Hospital even gets a boost in business coping with the mashed hands, severed fingers and heat exhaustion that accompany harvest.

Although there sometimes is grumbling, most of the town greets the annual boom with the attitude expressed by the big hand-lettered "Welcome Harvesters" sign in the front window at Thompson's Supermarket.

"They're like family to us," said the mayor. "Some of the ones that come year after year we exchange Christmas cards with and visit with the rest of the year.

Tough Year For Youths Seeking Summer Jobs

By ELIZABETH A. MARCHAK
United Press International

"I have to have a job this week," said Edna Pelkey, 21, in the Job Service office in Augusta, Maine.

A sophomore at the University of Maine-Augusta, Miss Pelkey is on her own financially and has been looking for a job since late April.

Interviewed in the office, crowded with high school girls flipping through pages of job listings, Miss Pelkey said that without a job, she will have to accept food stamps, relief, and forget about school, because there won't be any money.

"I guess I'm scared. I need the money to live on. I don't want food stamps but if there's no job, I'll take it," she said.

For millions of American high school and college students, summertime has traditionally been the first crack at independence and the job market.

This year will be different.

Interviews across the country with students seeking jobs and officials of agencies, schools and firms offering them in virtually all cases found far fewer jobs than applicants. Jobs ordinarily filled by young people were being filled by adults. Students lucky enough to get a job generally faced with fewer hours and less pay.

Campaigns to make up for federal funds cuts have generally failed to fill the gap officials said, warning young people with time on their hands could get into trouble.

"It's the toughest year I've seen," said Scott Montgomery, director of the Mayor's Youth Services Program in San Francisco. There are 12,000 youths between 16 and 21 who would like summer work but only 700 in private business and 3,000 federally-subsidized projects will be available.

"Marketwise, I think this is going to be a poor year because of the recession," said Julius Shapiro, director of Youth Opportunity Center in New York City. He said one third of his staff had to be laid off in September because of the cutbacks in aid.

"I assume we need about a quarter of a million jobs in the city. There won't be jobs for even one tenth of them," Shapiro said.

"This is going to be a bleak summer," said Sherry Jellison, spokeswoman for Boston's Neighborhood Development and Employment Agency. "The jobs are very scarce."

Trouble threat

She said the number of state and federally funded jobs for low and moderate income youths had been "dramatically reduced." The Boston program served more than 8,000 youths in 1980 but will involve only 2,500 this year.

"There is more potential for trouble. There will be thousands of idle kids this summer. There will be less work and more free time," Ms. Jellison said.

Whether minimum wage or higher paying summer intern positions, there are fewer jobs and smaller paychecks as the Reagan administration's economic policies take their toll.

The internships with such prestigious firms as General Motors, Ford, Exxon, Mobil, Bank of America, Champion International and Scott Paper are being cut back or eliminated.

"I don't see any improvements in the employment situation until the interest rates go down and business is stimulated," said Gary Whitney, director of the Job Service office in Portland, Maine.

FRUSTRATION ... Cecilia Alcantar, 17, a high school junior in San Francisco, expressed the frustration of student applicants for summer jobs everywhere. "I am old enough, I am qualified. I have lots of experience working with people, in stores, things like that. But, you know, what is experience when there is no job?" (UPI Photo)

"It's the worst summer I've ever seen — not just for kids, but for adults, too. The job market is bad," he said.

'Terrible for kids'

The fact that there are 10 million Americans jobless places high school and college students at a greater disadvantage.

"Adults are taking all the part-time jobs, that... in other years would have been left for kids," said Diane Paxman, director of guidance at Cony High School in Augusta, Maine.

"Kids used to complain about being under employed. You know, only having 15 or 20 hours a week. Now they complain about being completely unemployed. The situation is just terrible for kids," she said.

Businesses in the Fort Worth, Texas, area that opened slots for skilled and semi-skilled workers last year are laying off permanent workers this year, according to Betty Kuehn of the Texas Employment Commission.

"There are a lot of skilled and semi-skilled people already looking for jobs," she said. "We have about 30 food service companies that have some openings, but the way things are going even those will be hard to come by in another month or so."

Wheels block

"It's hard to look for a job when all you have is a bicycle," said Miss Pelkey. "...For an interview, you have to stop somewhere and put on a dress," she said. She fingered a tear in her vinyl rain coat and tugged at her faded jeans.

Like Miss Pelkey in Augusta, Maine, young people without transportation — either their own wheels or access to mass transit — have a great deal of trouble securing a job.

Carl Lindsey, head of the CETA program in sprawling Houston, said "the disadvantaged live in the inner city, but the jobs are outside the loop (a ring of highways around the city), and there's no way for the kids to get them."

The problems inherent in a limited mass transit system are sharply focused in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

One of the largest summer employers is "Six Flags Over Texas," a massive amusement park in Arlington about 20 miles from either Dallas and Fort Worth. There are no bus lines that provide any routine service for either city.

Fewer hours, less pay

Those lucky enough to land a job will be likely to work fewer hours and earn less this summer than last.

In South Carolina, an estimated 10,000 students in the CETA summer program will be allowed to participate up to seven weeks. In most cases, the pay will be $2.50 an hour — compared to a mimimum wage of $3.50 per hour — so more kids can be put to work in public sector jobs.

"As dollars are cut back, we are shortening the time so as many youngsters as possible can learn and have some experience in career development," said William B. Whitney, director of CETA programs in the office of South Carolina Gov. William Riley.

"The youth jobs we find don't pay nearly as well as last year," said George Trabing of Houston's Summer Jobs Program. "Last year some jobs paid $10 an hour. This year it's going to be between $3.75 and $4."

Cecilia Alcantar, 17, a junior at St. John Ursuline High School in San Francisco, said she has looked everywhere for a job.

Applications everywhere

"Like, I went to Woolworth's, I went to the Emporium. I filled applications everywhere I could. Some of them said 'We're not accepting applications. There are no jobs.' Things like that."

Polish Markets Show Improved Food Situation

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Supermarket shelves in Poland, virtually empty a year ago, are filled these days and cheap cuts of meats slowly and sporadically are becoming more available in butcher shops.

But better cuts of meat — centerpiece of the Polish dinner plate — remain scarce and expensive.

Thus, while the food situation has improved over last summer, it still isn't fully up to Polish liking.

"The Pole wants his cutlet and his potatoes," said one longtime Western resident here. "It's meat every day and anything else isn't really eating."

"The food situation has definitely improved, but it's all relative," one Pole said. "Sure it's better than last year, but last year was terrible."

Since the first days of martial law last December, food supplies have indeed improved and officials are even talking about ending rationing. Shopping lines are shorter, meat supplies are bigger, stores are fuller.

But not always, as in the case of "beef with bone" — as the cheap cuts are known. A big supply in June prompted officials to offer it for sale without rationing coupons. A smaller supply in July prompted them to go back to rationing.

"The authorities have apparently launched an all-out campaign to improve food supplies," one Pole commented, "on the assumption that people with full stomachs will keep quiet."

Poles rioted over meat-price increases and short supplies in 1970 and 1976, and they went on strike in July, 1980, for the same reason and gave birth to the independent labor union Solidarity.

Solidarity is suspended now, its leaders interned and its offices closed. The pay increases it won for workers, which helped strip food shelves bare last year, have paled beside the massive 300 to 400 precent price increases of last February.

But the price hikes, crimping demand, combined with massive aid from East bloc neighbors have led to a situation where there is more food to buy today.

Anyone who visited "Supersam," Warsaw's biggest food store, last year would be astonished by the food there these days.

Last year, the store was empty. This year, shelves are brimming with two kinds of ketchup, soup mix, prepared vegetables, beans and cabbage. Coolers are full of milk in plastic bags, cream in bottles, smoked fish, trout and eels.

Clerks with long knives cut chunks from a variety of cheeses and serve out packages of cheddar, edam and tilsit.

"It's a paradise," remarked a Polish shopper.

Jars of silvery herring, only a glimmer in the imagination of fish-loving Poles last year, are piled high and frozen turkey, ducks and geese are plentiful.

Inceases in food shipments from the Soviet Union and other East bloc countries are among the reasons given for the greater supplies.

Some people also believe that martial law has helped because it banned strikes, prompted people to work harder, halted the flow of farm produce to private markets and improved distribution and transport of food.

'Pac Man' Meats

El DORADO, Ark. (UPI) — Employees of the Brookshires Food Store decided to take advantage of the video game craze and market cuts of meat in the shape of the electronic game character Pac Man.

"We got the idea from the Pac Man fever that has swept the nation," said assistant store manager Alan Brown. "A couple of our employees thought it would be cute to take a round piece of meat and cut an angle out of it and put a 'power dot' in it."

Workers in the El Dorado store's meat department Friday cut round pieces of sirloin tip steak with a notch in it and packaged it, adorned with a a fresh lemon or small cherry tomato in the Pac Man's mouth.

Brown said the novelty drew curious looks from shoppers and appeared to be selling well.

Gymnastics Registration

Registration is continuing for gymnastics for preschooler age and up in two sessions. The first session will be July 14-Aug. 2 with 30-minute classes from 4 to 5:30 on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

The second session will be Aug. 4-23. Registration is July 13 between 4 and 6 p.m. at the Jaycee Park Administrative Building.

April Maxam will teach the classes. Fee is $15 for nine lessons.

For more details, call 752-4137, extension 200.

Court Canceled

Clerk of Superior Court Sandra Gaskins announced Friday that the term of criminal Pitt County Superior Court scheduled to begin Monday has been canceled.

She said jurors scheduled to serve during the week of July 12-16 "do not need to report" for duty.

Potpourri Preparation Is Enjoyed

Norma VanVeld brought an interest in herbs 20 years ago with her when she moved to Greenville from Wilmington, Del., with her husband, Robert.

"I had access to a farmer's market there and there wasn't one available here. I started growing simple herbs & chives, parsley, basil oregano, dill. I found that mint grew in abundance. I became interested in herbs and started reading various books and articles on herbs and their uses.

"Also from reading, I was interested in potpourri but didn't follow through until I needed to give a program for my garden club. Then I didn't follow through in actually making it. I just read about it and thought it was interesting," she said.

She has made pesto (an Italian blend of herbs) which can be frozen and added to sauces for foods. "If it's made fresh, its very simple using a food processor," she said. She uses oregano, basil, garlic, olive oil and parsley. "Basil is the primary ingredient and most recipes call for pine nuts and parmesan cheese.

"There are two ways of keeping pesto & freezing it in cubes and in a jar with a coating of olive oil on top and placed in the refrigerator where it will remain fresh for several weeks," she added.

"In reading I found some of the uses of herbs are beauty aids, medicinal, hygienic and ceremonial. In literature during the Elizabethan age, there were many references to strewing herbs & rosemary, meadowsweet, mints and camomile & on the floor of a church. The floors were literally covered with them and as they were walked on and crushed, the fragrance penetrated the area. Camomile and meadowsweet were two that Queen Elizabeth especially liked strewn in her chambers.

"In the Bible there were many references to using herbs. I think one of the nicest legends is, when fleeing to Egypt, Mary placed Baby Jesus' laundry on a rosemary brush. Until that time the plant's flowers were white and afterwards they were pale blue. Another is that rosemary will grow for 31 years which is supposedly the age of Christ when he was crucified," she said.

In giving some general uses of herbs, Mrs. VanVeld shared the following:

•Moles and moths are repelled by tansy and artemesia.

•Sage tea will cure dandruff and fever.

•Parsley is good for kidney problems.

•Garlic can be used for curing asthma and rheumatism.

•Lovage was used an early deodrant.

•Camomile gives highlights to blondes and rosemary will give redish highlights to brunettes.

•A characteristic of catnip is the similarity to a tranqulizer.

•Lavender and lemon verbena will chase musty odors inside a house.

"Drying herbs to keep the color should be done during the hot part of the day when there is moisture. Stems should be striped and placed on a screen. The faster they are dried, the more fragrance they will have. While drying, they should be kept out of sunlight which will fade the leaves and petals. I haven't had good luck using the microwave for drying. After the herbs are thoroughly dired, they can be stored in sealed containers or tied into bundles," Mrs. Van Veld continued.

"Hybrid roses are not as fragrant as other varieties such as damask and centefolia for making potpourri. The basic things that popular recipes call for are rose petals, lavender, various kinds of mint, rosemary, thyme, spices. Sachets and pomanders filled with potpourri will remain fragrant for several months," she said.

She uses camomile flowers and mint leaves in teas, either fresh or dried. She

Modern Marriage Tackled By Couple

By ALICE NOBLE
United Press International

When my best friend from high school broke it to her father that I was finally getting married — after living with my boyfriend for four years, he insisted I had to be pregnant.

"Why else would they get married after all this time?" he reasoned.

Unfortunately, he wasn't the only one wondering if there was an underlying reason for us to take the big step. Frankly, we wondered ourselves why we should go through all the trouble of making our relationship "legal."

"Are you sure you want to go through with this?" we asked each other after learning we had to go through nearly a dozen individual counseling sessions with the local Roman Catholic priest.

"We can't back out now, can we?" I asked my beau as we stood in line to pay $15 for a marriage license. Then we both shuddered, thinking in silent unison about the company we'd be sharing in the new higher income tax bracket.

"It's never too late to back out until you say, 'I do,'" my practical spouse-to-be reminded, reluctantly shuffling into the formalwear store to rent a tuxedo for the big event.

Although we still don't have a final answer to why we legalized our live-in arrangement, we knew from the moment we linked arms at the altar that it would add something to our semi-solid relationship.

Rich Allgire and I began living together in 1977 when roommate problems in the campus housing project threatened the privacy we longed to share with each other.

It was a very tentative arrangement at first, with Rich taking an off-campus apartment while I held onto my campus residence for appearances and a place to retreat to, if necessary.

But we soon eyed the economics of supporting only one apartment and moved in together on a permanent basis. It wasn't that we had anything against the concept of marriage — indeed, our living arrangment had almost all the rules and requirements of marriage. But, as struggling young college students, we didn't feel mature enough or financially ready to make such a move.

Although Rich's parents and my mother did not approve of our decision, very little was said about the arrangement.

My mother was probably the best sport about it all, saying her only problem was how she should introduce Rich to friends and family. Our own friends were equally stumped when it came to addressing Christmas cards and letters.

Ultimately, the name game turned out to be our biggest crisis, too. Calling each other "girlfriend" and "boyfriend" didn't describe our feelings. "Roommate" was too casual and "sweetheart" could have meant anything.

When Rich finally proposed — he insisted his ego would be demolished if he couldn't take the initiative, we finally had a name for each other. Fiance and fiancee.

It was even better after the wedding. We spent our whole honeymoon letting the words "husband" and "wife" roll off our respective tongues, then we would burst into laughter over our new roles.

Getting to the altar was anything but easy. More than once during the months of planning, Rich and I wondered if it was all worth it. Probably the first time was when I called the Catholic priest to make the initial arrangements.

"There's something I should tell you..." I nervously spoke into the telephone, with Father Edward Wright at the other end.

He flatly said the Catholic Church did not approve of such living arrangements but said it would be up to us to decide if we should continue living together until the wedding.

It could have been a very uncomfortable situation because the three of us were scheduled to spend a great deal of time together in pre-marital counseling sessions.

But, fortunately, Father Wright was more interested in building a good marriage for us than in chastizing us for past sins. And before our counseling sessions were finished, the three of us knew each other as close friends.

The first test of the sincerity in our marriage proposal was a 130-question compatibility test designed for the church.

On the test, we had to agree or disagree with a battery of statements from "I think I would make a good parent" and "I think we should visit our relatives once a week" to "My intended spouse does things in public that upset me."

Some people might find the questions downright personal. They were, but they also were good conversation starters. We immediately saw how the test could identify potential problems in a fledgling relationship.

When we got our test results back, we marveled at how some couples could decide to get married after knowing each other a year or less. We had known each other nearly five years and still had differences to talk out.

Throughout the remainder of our counseling sessions, Rich and I had to complete a marriage workbook that was full of games, role-playing and discussions aimed at getting to know each other better.

We performed similar games and exercises at a weekend pre-Cana conference that we were required to attend with some 30 other engaged couples. That stipulation by the church set us back another $20.

Then came the really hard questions. The diocese had to know some super-personal stuff about us to make sure we weren't marrying a blood relative and had no past marital commitments or abnormal sexual attributes.

But we apparently passed the final test and were sent on our way to get a marriage license. At first we thought $15 was a bit steep for a piece of paper, but it wasn't too high when we considered the cost of clerical help these days.

And along with the license, we got a promotional gift package that held some dishwashing liquid, tampons, medicated douche and laundry detergent.

Getting through the intricate wedding plans — including the banquet hall, caterer, florist, music, rehearsal dinner, etc. — was made easier with the help of Dear Abby's booklet of etiquette for brides.

My mother would have never let me wear a white wedding dress if Dear Abby hadn't said it would be appropriate. However, I did concede somewhat to my mother's old-fashioned ways by tying a pale blue ribbon in my lace bodice.

Then came the big day. With the shaky nerves of a young couple about to be married, we helped each other dress in our motel room before the ceremony — despite claims it is unlucky for the groom to see the bride before the wedding.

It gave us an additional sense of sharing, of helping each other make sure our betrothal would go smoothly. We were separated temporarily at the church but were joined again during the ceremony, this time permanently.

Couple Says Vows In Saturday Ceremony

Cathy Marie Wilson of Greenville and Rodney Ponder Poole of Adak, Alaska, were married Saturday afternoon at one o'clock in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church by the Rev. Carol Goehring.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Wilson Sr. of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Poole of Raleigh.

A program of wedding music was presented by Sharon Irwin, organist, and Karan Poole, who sang "The Lord's Prayer."

Claudette Fonseca of Ahoskie, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Betty Jo Causey of Winterville, Patricia L. Clark of Roanoke, Va., Karan Poole of Winston-Salem, sister of the bridegroom, and Barbara H. Rains of Grantham.

The best man was B. Patrick Austin of Manteo and ushers included Abraham Penn Jones of Raleigh, Kenneth M. Shires of Winston-Salem and John W. Wilson Jr. of Bessemer, Ala., brother of the bride.

The bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza over bridal mist taffeta enhanced with cluny lace. The bodice was fashioned with a Victorian neckline of cluny lace and seed pearls. The straight sleeves fell to a ruffle of lace at the wrist. The princess style skirt flowed into a flounced chapel length train enhanced with a ruffle of cluny lace. She wore a silk wreath headpiece of white and pastel roses, daisies and baby's breath attached to a walking length double tiered veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a silk cluster bouquet of pink roses, sweetpeas, white daisies, lavender anemones, sweet william accented with Alaskan dried tundra cotton, baby's breath and greenery tied with satin ribbon.

MRS. RODNEY PONDER POOLE

Each attendant wore a formal underdress of pale pink satin with spaghetti staps and fitted waistline covered with a formal tunic style overdress with flowing sleeves and a blouson waistline of white cotton voile with a print of miniature pink roses. They each carried a silk cluster bouquet of pink silk roses, petunias, white daisies accented with Alaskan dried tundra cotton, baby's breath and greenery tied with ribbons.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pale blue knit with a matching lace jacket. The mother of the bridegroom wore an identical style gown in mint green. Both wore corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

The couple will live in North Pole, Alaska, after a wedding trip to the N.C. mountains.

The bride graduated from J.H. Rose High School and the East Carolina University School of Nursing. She is a lieutenant in the U.S. Navy Reserve and is a Mary Kay Cosmetics consultant. The bridegroom graduated from Enloe High School and North Carolina State University where he also received his master's degree. He is now a school counselor at North Pole Junior and Senior High School located near Fairbanks.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony.

Following the traditional cutting of the wedding cake by the bride and bridegroom, they honored the father of the bride and Judy Austin, wife of the best man, with surprise birthday cakes and gifts.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the bridegroom's parents at Parkers Restaurant after the rehearsal. A bridesmaids luncheon was given at the home of Betty Jo and Blanche Causey.

Miss Hamilton, Mr. White Are Married

Patricia Gail Hamilton and Alvin Richard White Jr. were married Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in a ceremony performed by the Rev. Tom Wells of Grimesland on the lawn at the home of the bride's parents.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Hamilton of Grimesland and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Richard White of Winterville.

A program of music was presented by Frank Riley, Melonie Young, Bill and Becky Holt. Their selections were "We've Only Just Begun," "If" and "Time in a Bottle."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer polyester knit chiffon lined in acetate taffeta. It was trimmed in lace and had applique accents on the sheer front and back yokes. The gown was designed with an empire waistline and flounced skirt, with lace trim, which extended into a chapel length train. Her headpiece was of lace which matched her gown with an illusion veil and she carried a cascade of white miniature roses, daisies, carnations and blue baby's breath with streamers.

Paula Gail White of Raleigh was the honor attendant and wore a light blue gown with a lace flounced neckline of polyester knit accented with lace. The waistline was raised and the skirt was pleated. She carried a nosegay of mixed summer flowers.

Bridesmaids included Mary Louise Neil of Greenville And Diana Whitehurst of St. Petersburg, Fla. Amy Louise Martin of Greenville was flower girl.

The attendants were each dressed in a light blue polyester knit gown with nylon sleeves with a high waistline and pleated skirt. They carried nosegays of mixed summer flowers with streamers.

The flower girl was dressed in a white sheer polyester chiffon dress lined in acetate taffeta accented with blue ribbon around the waistline. She carried a basket of mixed summer flowers.

MRS. ALVIN RICHARD WHITE JR.

Stephen Lee Potter of Greenville was best man and ushers included William Dale White of Winterville and Danny Stapleton of Ayden. The ring bearer was Joseph Guy of Greenville.

The mothers of the couple were given white miniature carnation corsages. Grandmothers, Mrs. Joe Martin and Mrs. Richard Hamilton, were given white carnation corsages. Mrs. Helen Wells was also remembered with a corsage. She is aunt of the bride.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Topsail Island.

The couple attended D.H. Conley High School. She is employed at Players Retreat and he works at B&J Machine Works, Scuffleton.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Peggy Ellis served the wedding cake and punch was poured by Liz Hamilton.

Wife Needs To Focus

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The wife of a professional photographer is "Baffled" because they've been friends with another couple for 20 years, but when it came time for their friends' daughter's wedding, another photographer was engaged to take the pictures. May I be "Dear Abby" for a minute?

"Dear Baffled: Haven't you ever heard that it's not wise to mix friendship with business? Perhaps because this couple values your friendship so much, they hired an outside photographer.

"Reason No. 1: They want you to attend as a guest — not someone who has come there to work. (Taking pictures is a lot of work if it is done properly.)

"Reason No. 2: Even if your husband is the greatest photographer in the world, something could go wrong, or the bride might not like the shots, and she will scream, 'You ruined my day!' Then a 20-year-old friendship would be ended.

"Please give your friends the benefit of the doubt. Believe me, they're doing you a big favor."

SADDER BUT WISER

DEAR SADDER: "Understanding in Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y." adds Reason No. 3:

"Your friend may have engaged another photographer because she feared that your husband might use his professional talents and materials without charging you, and this is her way of avoiding an embarrassing situation."

DEAR ABBY: To the bride's mother who included little notes with the wedding invitations to "remind" the guests that her daughter had everything she needed, so an ideal gift would be "something that could be tucked into a purse or pocket":

How thoughtful! My suggestion would be two handkerchieves: One for the bride and one for the groom. And possibly a third for the bride's mother to be used to wipe away the tears when she realizes that no cash will be forthcoming.

DEAR ABBY: First off, I'm a 17-year-old girl who has been overweight all my life, but not terribly overweight (I'm 5-foot-4 and weigh between 130 and 140). Anyway, last Thanksgiving after I pigged out with seconds on everything, my father said he would give me $100 if I lost 10 pounds by New Year's Day.

I took him up on it and lost not only 10, but 12 pounds by New Year's Day, so he gave me the $100.

Here is my problem: Since then, I have gained it all back, plus three pounds, and now my father thinks I should return the $100. I have already spent the money, but that's beside the point, Abby. I honestly don't think he should expect me to return the money.

What do you think?

LOVES TO EAT IN N.J.

DEAR LOVES: I think you earned the $100 fair and square, and since nothing was said about "keeping the weight off" for a specified length of time, you are not obligated to return the money.

Reach To Recovery Meet Set

Breast cancer rehabilitation volunteers will hold a training and up date session sponsored by the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

Known as Reach To Recovery, this group of volunteers visits, at a physician's request, mastectomy patients at the time of the person's greatest psychological need, providing help to the woman who has undergone breast removal in cancer treatment.

Reach To Recovery takes its name from the exercises which help a breast cancer patient towards physical rehabilitation. The volunteers present the patient exercise equipment, a manual of information and temporary prosthesis.

Women who have successfully adjusted to having a mastectomy are invited to participate in the workshop scheduled Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Pitt Unit Volunteer Headquarters, 112 S. Pitt St. here. For further information call the office at 752-2574 or Jan Kittrell, 756-4961.

Shower Given Kim Cargile

A miscellaneous shower honoring bride-elect Mary Kim Cargile was given by Mrs. Herman Dail, aunt of the bride, at her home in Ayden Thursday evening.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of gladioli, daisies and dahlias. Hazel Rouse of Greenville, cousin of the bride, poured punch. The bride's table was decorated with a miniature bride.

The honoree was presented a white carnation corsage and the mothers of the bridal couple were remembered with corsages of white mums.

What is the "REAL" seal? Its a symbolic drop of milk enclosing the word "real." This is a product identification program sponsored by American Dairy Association (ADA) to help consumers distinguish between genuine dairy products and imitations at a glance.

Consumers deserve to know exactly what they are buying. Shoppers are finding it increasingly difficult to tell the difference between real dairy products and imitations packaged in similar containers. ADA's real seal will help them select the real dairy product easily. ADA has recommended that the seal be placed near the name of the dairy product on the front panel of the carton or on the label or surface that is most visible to the retail shopper.

Products eligible to display the seal include all genuine dairy foods produced in the U.S. including milk, cream, Half and Half, butter, sour cream, concentrated milk, sweet condensed milk, evaporated milk, lowfat and nonfat dry milk, UHT milk, ice cream, sherbet, frozen custards, ice milk, natural or processed chesses, cottage cheese, yogurt and cream cheese.

The seal cannot be displayed on imitation milks, artificial cheeses or artificial sour creams. It cannot appear on non-dairy coffee creamers, imitation whipped toppings, imitation chocolate drinks, margarine or any other imitation dairy product. Use of the seal is voluntary. However, more and more companies are using it. If the product conforms to federal and state standards of identity for real dairy foods, it can carry the seal.

Over 500 dairy processors, distributors and related food companies nationwide are currently using the seal. If a particular brand doesn't display the seal, it doesn't mean the company producing the brand has not yet signed a contract that makes it eligible to display the seal. it could also mean more time is needed to modify package designs. Until the seal is adopted nationwide, consumers should continue to check the labels of products sold in the dairy case.

steeps the herbs as preparing China tea either alone or in addition to China tea. There is no specific way to tea preparation. Try and see what is appealing. She does use honey as a sweetner.

Potpourri recipe for bath sachets

The recipe will make enough for six sachets.

Half cup rolled oats

Two tbsp. each marjoram, spearmint, lemonbalm, lemon vebene and camomile.

Tie a loop for hanging on sachet bag and hang the sachet under the faucet while drawing bath water. Let the sachet float in the tub while bathing.

Hair rinse sachet

For blondes, camomile flowers, and for brunettes, rosemary and sage leaves. Bring one cup of water to boil and steep an herb sachet in it until it is lukewarm. Use as a final rinse for highlights and clean fragrance.

KIMBERLY GAIL MEWBORN...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Turnage Mewborn of Snow Hill, who announce her engagement to Pat Lee Stocks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Henry Stocks Jr. of Hookerton. The wedding will take place Sept. 25.

Announcing... BLOCK OUT STARCH CALORIES!
EAT BREAD, POTATOES, PASTA!
with amazing, incredible, new
STARCH BLOCK™

STARCH BLOCK™ IS:
• A revolutionary new concept in natural weight control.
• A natural product that blocks excess starch digestion.
• So effective we back it with a complete money-back guarantee.

STARCH BLOCK™ IS NOT:
• A chemically synthesized drug.
• A stimulant
• Another appetite suppressant.

Almost half the average American's calories come from carbohydrates.

Starch is a major dietary complex carbohydrate. If enzymes did not break down the starch to simpler sugars, those calories would not be absorbed to add to total calorie intake.

Scientists have spent years studying and reporting on naturally occurring protein in legumes (beans) that blocks alpha-amylase, a major body enzyme that breaks down starch to absorbable forms. It was decided that if this protein could prevent or inhibit alpha-amylase from breaking down starch in test tubes, maybe it could do the same in people.

The idea was tested in human diet study and it worked! The test group given the inhibitor lost more weight than the control group not given it. No undesirable side effects were reported. These exciting results were put to use in the development of STARCH BLOCK™. Now you can put STARCH BLOCK™ to work for you!

One STARCH BLOCK™ Tablet can block the conversion of 150 grams of starch to absorbable calories—that's 600 calories! Simply take one tablet at the beginning of each meal or two tablets at the beginning of a large starch meal.

STARCH BLOCK™ contains no sugar, no starch, no artificial colors, no artificial flavors or preservatives—only the natural help you may have needed to get rid of those excess pounds and keep them off!

Palm Bay Club Is Private Says Owner

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI (AP) — The late Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis was once almost turned away. Spiro Agnew — when he was vice president of the United States — also was left cooling his heels outside.

But for those who get past the guarded entrance to the Palm Bay Club — a 16-acre community overlooking Biscayne Bay — they'll find the essence of old Florida.

The lobby is small, but comfortable, with a marble floor, a grandfather's clock in one corner, and a prominently displayed embroidered sampler with the words, "God Bless Our Pad."

"This is really a private club," says Connie Dinkler, who opened the club 18 years ago. "We're not the most expensive, but we're the most exclusive."

Missing from the valet parking lot are the Rolls-Royces, Mercedes, Cadillacs and other luxury cars found at many of the posh condominiums along Florida's Gold Coast. But a stretch limousine is parked under a canopy, ready for those who arrive by yacht or helicopter and need ground transportation.

"I just wanted a private club for my friends," Ms. Dinkler said. "Money is not the answer to happiness or success. But it helps a lot."

It almost didn't help Onassis when he arrived in his famed yacht outside the Palm Bay Club's marina — specially dredged to accommodate any vessel up to 130 feet in any of its 52 slips. Someone had forgotten to leave an invitation with the dockmaster, and Onassis wasn't allowed to dock until a club member extended him an invitation.

Agnew experienced a similar reception at the front gate. He had to wait outside until someone advised the guard he could enter.

"People expect to see a palace, but it's not pretentious at all," says Curtis DeWitz, the club's director.

"There are only 18 bar stools and we can serve 70 for dinner," he said. "It's like being in your own home."

The club boasts several lighted tennis courts, an Olympic size swimming pool and a floating heliport where Ms. Dinkler occasionally lands her five-passenger helicopter. There is a small waterfall and a pond with goldfish from Japan valued at $400 each.

"We get the finest people in the world here," says Leo Ross, who mixes drinks at the outdoor rotunda bar. "I've worked a few street joints, but here, there's never a problem. And the customers are great tippers."

Ms. Dinkler built a nine-story condominium on the property in 1965.

"We didn't even know how to spell 'condominium' in those days," she said. These one- and two-bedroom apartments originally sold for as little as $30,000. A recent resale went for $169,000.

The Palm Bay Tower — a 27-story apartment building — was finished in 1972. There are three apartments on each floor. Some members have purchased an entire floor and converted it into a single dwelling. Some apartments in the building are worth $750,000.

When Ms. Dinkler opened the Palm Bay Club, it had 278 members. It now numbers close to 1,500.

"They are all friends of friends of friends," she said.

"Connie was selective," adds Curtis. "It is not money, religion or race. It's compatible people who enjoy being with each other — not because of who the person is."

One must be recommended by three members who have known that person socially for at least five years, said Ms. Dinkler, wife of a retired hotel magnate.

The initiation fee at the club is $500, with $500 annual dues. Junior membership for those under 30 is $345 a year.

"People here are not the nouveau riche," says Ms. Dinkler's daughter, Gayonne. "They have innate class and the majority of them have been that way for generations. They make this place."

RICH CLUB — Connie Dinkler, who started the Palm Bay Club 19 years ago in Miami "for something to do", stands with club director Curtis DeWitz. The club is a home and gathering place for some of the wealthiest people in South Florida. (AP Laserphoto)

Modern...

After the wedding, our friends teasingly asked if we felt any differently. To avoid a deep discussion, we would laugh and say, "No." But the truth is, we did feel differently. We made a commitment to each other and we could feel that.

No longer was it my car or your bank account. Everything is ours and everything we do is for both of us. We found a new trust in each other because we know the other person isn't going to walk out the door at the least provocation.

Although we'd like to say we lived happily ever after, Rich and I cannot dismiss the problems that have come up after the wedding. For one thing, his male ego still has problems with a wife making more money than her husband.

But that difficulty will probably solve itself in time, while an even stickier problem appears it will loom overhead for some time. That's the question of my new last name.

I built an identity for myself under my maiden name and was reluctant to relinquish that identity for Rich's last name, which most people can't pronounce.

My hometown newspaper couldn't even spell his name right in the society pages for our wedding announcement.

So, I chose to go the modern way by keeping my maiden name and hyphenating it with Rich's last name as Noble-Allgire. For my professional writing, howevej, I decided to remain just Noble.

It has been a catastrophe.

My own mother sent me a check addressed to Alice Allgire and my best friend sent her first letter to me as Mrs. Richard Allgire. That's not to mention the normal hassles every bride goes through to change her name.

Then after I apparently straightened everyone out about my name, we had people calling on the telephone and asking for Mr. Noble. And, for some reason, that isn't setting too well with my new husband.

That faux pas, I must admit with some embarrassment, is probably due in part to the fact I'm cheating and using my maiden name for purposes other than my writing.

That's because hotel desk clerks and pizza restaurants just can't seem to handle Noble-Allgire. It's much easier to understand and spell Noble.

In retrospect of the entire ordeal, I guess we didn't accomplish much in the name game by getting married after all. We just exchanged one name problem for another.

But for the security and happiness we have found in our new commitment, I'll put up with the snickers from my husband as I struggle to write out Alice M. Noble-Allgire on my personal checks.

And I thank God neither of us had a jawbreaker surname.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The controversial sperm bank in San Diego County has a limited partnership, no drive-in window and a low rate of interest.

Depositors are limited to Nobel Prize winners and erudite scholars. It doesn't matter who withdraws as long as she is female and willing to carry a baby sired by a genius for nine months.

The purpose, according to the director, is to create "brighter children" from the ranks of whites.

I was thinking about this the other morning when I turned on the light in my bathroom. Had a less-than-physically-perfect deaf man not invented it, I would be in darkness.

I turned on the radio for my morning news fix and suddenly realized if a deformed hunchback had not had a major part in its development, I would be left in silence.

I literally grew up under a president whose political record has never been matched, yet who could not walk or, indeed, move his legs.

The automobile I drove had been invented by a high school dropout. The planes I traveled in had been developed by two brothers from Dayton, Ohio, who also dropped out of high school.

I thought of Leo Tolstoy, Thomas Hardy and Joeeph Conrad, who had never won a Nobel Prize for literature.

I thought of the parade of black athletes who had stirred this country with their accomplishments and all the minorities who battled their way through prejudice to make a million contributions to our arts and sciences. I thought of Martin Luther who had an I.Q. of 115 and Abraham Lincoln who was also below the "genius" level.

None of them would have been eligible as sperm donore of the "new society."

But mostly, I thought of a man who finished the fourth grade and worked for a Midwestern city, who married a 14-year-old girl from an orphanage — and had me.

A genetic disaster? Maybe. But I'm bright enough to know genes don't dominate us — we overcome them!

RICH YOGURT WITH SWEET CHERRY SAUCE

1 teaspoon unflavored gelatin
2 cups milk
1½ cups heavy cream
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup plain yogurt, at room temperature
4 teaspoons vanilla
Sweet Cherry Sauce, recipe follows

In a 2-quart saucepan, sprinkle the gelatin over the milk and let soften — about 5 minutes. Stir in the cream and sugar. Over low heat, stir occasionally until a thermometer reads 190 degrees. Remove from heat; let stand until the thermometer reads 110 degrees; remove the skin from the top. Whisk a little of the mixture into the yogurt until blended; whisk back into the mixture in the saucepan. Stir in the vanilla.

Pour into four 8-ounce yogurt-maker glass jars to within 1 inch of the top; cover tightly. Incubate at 110 degrees about 3 hours; remove the cover from one of the jars and shake gently to make sure mixture is firm. If necessary, continue incubating until firm — 1 more hour. Leave covered and chill. May be stored in the refrigerator up to 4 weeks.

Serve with the Sweet Cherry Sauce.

SWEET CHERRY SAUCE

2 cups fresh sweet cherries, pitted and halved
¼ cup water
2 tablespoons (packed) light brown sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon each ground cinnamon and ground cardamom, if desired

Stir together all the ingredients. Chill for several hours. Makes about 2 cups.

EXAMINING PAINTINGS — North Carolina Museum of Art conservator David Goist examines one of the museum's paintings, which he says are deteriorating because of weather and museum conditions. (AP Laserphoto)

NORFOLK, Va. — A retrospective exhibition of 58 major works by master photographer Andre' Kertesz opened at The Chrysler Museum July 9 and will continue through Oct. 3.

Kertesz has been widely recognized as the artist whose work "defined the direction in which modern European photography developed." His impact in the United States, where he has resided since 1936, has been no less powerful.

Kertesz, born in Budapest in 1894, first photographed the land and people of pre-World War I Hungary. These images are often cited as immediate clues to his instinctive eye for pattern and composition. For instance, in the 1912 image "Boy Sleeping," a precise "X" is formed by the boy, the door handle of the cafe and the newspaper. Other photographs in the exhibition representative of Kertesz's initial efforts with the camera include "Lovers" and "Hungarian Landscape."

In 1914, Kertesz was drafted into the Austro-Hungarian Army. Throughout his four years in the service, he carried a camera in his rucksack, photographing what he described as the "little happenings" in the soldiers' daily lives. Kertesz's resultant series on the First World War (represented in the Chrysler exhibit by "Transport" and "Forced March to the Front between Lonie and Mitulen") has been highly acclaimed as an early example of subjective reporting.

Kertesz spent one year of his army career recuperating from an injury that left his hand paralyzed. It was then, while relaxing around a swimming pool, that he first developed an artistic interest in distorted photographic images. As exemplified by "Underwater Swimmer," Kertesz's photographs of the changed appearance of the human body in water are extraordinary. Kertesz embarked on a similar series in 1933. These images all reflect from a fairground distorting mirror. Four photographs from this 1933 series, one of which includes a self-portrait of Kertesz, are presented in the Chrysler exhibition.

In 1925 Kertesz moved to Paris and in 1936 he was persuaded to move to New York. He worked as a free-lance photojournalist throughout World War II. From 1949-1962, Kertesz worked for magazines and occasionally took photographs for his personal collection. Two of these images, both shot in Virginia in the 1940's, are included in the retrospective.

"Kertesz, Master of Photography" has been organized by The Chrysler Museum under partial funding by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts through the Southern Arts Federation. Upon closing in Norfolk, the enhibition will begin a yearlong tour of museums and galleries throughout the South. An illustrated catalogue and poster, both of which may be purchased in the Chrysler Museum Shop, will accompany the exhibition.

The Chrysler Museum, Olney Road and Mowbray Arch, Norfolk, Va., is open from 10 a.m to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays and from 1-5 p.m. on Sundays. Admission is free.

HAPPIER DAYS — A sunnier time for war-torn Beirut (Beyrouth), Lebanon, is symbolized on the smiling countenance of an orange depicted on a 15 piastre airmail stamp of 1955, postmarked 13 Jan. 1956. Placement of the Arabic cancellation created a broad smile on the surface of the orange at the right of the stamp. The mid 1950's was a relatively quiet era in the history of Beirut, a city that has often been subjected to seiges, bombardment and chaos, and is once again a major Middle Eastern battleground.

Buffalo Gourd May Be A Star Performer

By DONALD FREDERICK
National Geographic News Service

WASHINGTON — The buffalo gourd, a distant relative of the pumpkin known to the Indians for 10,000 years, may be a star performer in the 1980s.

The seeds from this baseball-sized fruit provide a rich source of protein powder and cooking oil, the roots yield a starch with many potential industrial uses, and the leaves and vines may produce ethanol for fuel.

One of the brightest industrial prospects involves plastics. Granules of the starch combined during the manufacturing process with plastic products such as garbage bags make them biodegradable, capable of decaying.

Common in West

Growing wild from central Mexico to the South Dakota boarder and from western Illinois to southern California, buffalo gourd also is known as Missouri gourd, calabazilla, chili coyote or fetid gourd because of the vine's pungent odor. A perennial, buffalo gourd thrives in semi-arid areas receiving only 18 to 25 inches of annual rainfall.

The prodigious root system helps the plant survive. Thicker than a weight lifter's biceps, a root can measure 15 feet long and weigh more than 150 pounds.

After combining wild strains of the plant from many parts of the country, scientists from the University of Arizona in Tucson have come up with a domestic variety that has produced several hybrids.

A single plant can sprout a ground vine with more than 15,000 leathery green leaves and 200 fruit in a growing season.

Inside a green skin that turns a golden yellow at harvest time, the fruit contains a fleshy inedible spaghetti-like substance surrounded by 300 tear-shaped, flat seeds.

Plant scientist William P. Bemis, who directs the university's buffalo gourd project, hopes to develop hybrids that will produce 2,500 pounds of seed and 25,000 pounds of roots per acre and yield about 3,750 pounds of starch.

Bread and Cookies

The seeds are crushed for cooking oil and ground up to produce a white protein-rich flourlike substance that can be added to baked foods such as sourdough bread and cookies. "The oil has excellent nutritional quality with a polyunsturation better than corn oil's," reports Charles Weber, a nutrition professor at the university.

Several food manufacturers are interested in the gourd's starch because it is twice as viscious as cornstarch and makes foods such as pie fillings and puddings stay firm even when hot.

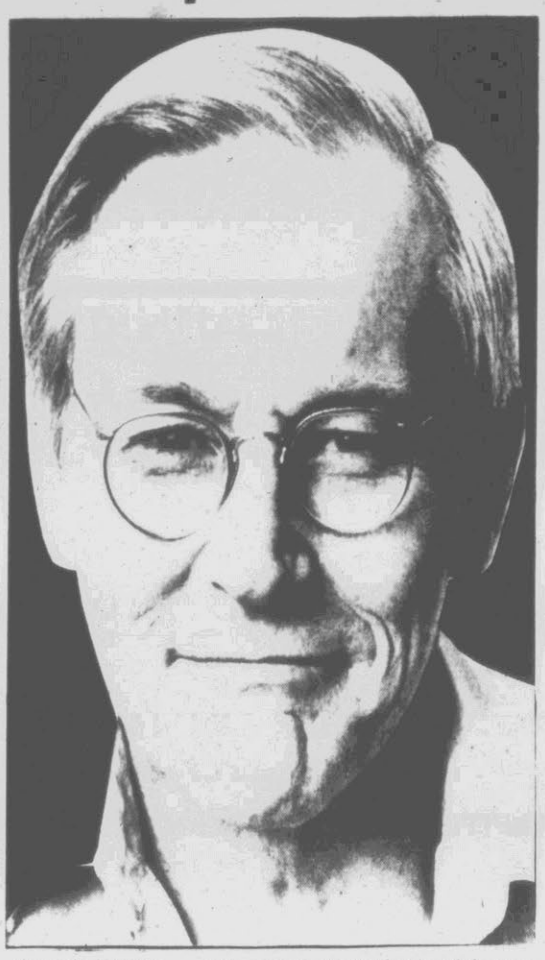
Casper Roos Heads ECU Summer Theater 'Shenandoah' Cast



CASPER ROOS . . . who played the lead role of farmer Charlie Anderson in the Broadway production of "Shenandoah," is repeating the role in the ECU Summer Theater production of the Tony Award winning musical. "Shenandoah" opens at McGinnis tomorrow night and will run through Saturday night. Tickets are still available and reservations can be made by calling 757-6390.

ECU News Bureau

"Shenandoah," the long-running New York musical hit of 1975-76, is to be the next lavish musical offered by the East Carolina Summer Theatre, opening tomorrow night.

The play is slated to run for six performances, from Monday through Saturday with curtain time at 8:15 p.m. in East Carolina University's McGinnis Theatre.

A Tony Award winner in the spring of 1975 (best libretto), the show was adapted by its author, James Lee Barrett, from the script of a film he wrote in 1965.

Properly called a "folk musical," "Shenandoah" is about a farmer living in the much fought-over Shanendoah Valley of Virginia during the Civil War. Not only does he refuse to take sides in that conflict, but also refuses to let his strapping sons "go to look for strangers to kill."

Casper Roos will lead the cast of 20 singers and dancers. For more than 30 theatrical years, Roos has performed in 12 Broadway shows, including "Brigadoon," "Mame," "How To Succeed" and "Shanendoah," in which he played the leading role of Charlie Anderson. He recreates this role with the Summer Theatre.

His stock and reperatory credits include "The Merchant of Venice" at Lincoln Center, "The Price," "Side by Side by Sondheim," "Man of La Mancha," "Bloomer Girl," "Feather Top," "Street Scene" and a six-month 77-cities tour of "Deathtrap."

The "Shenandoah" score is replete with lilting jubilant songs. In one of these, five of the farmer's sons not only sing joyously that "Next to Lovin' I Like Fightin' Best" — they also perform to it a vigorous, booted country dance.

Another of the show's zestful songs, entitled simply "Freedom," is partly an infectious cake-walk, partly a stage-stomping, rafter-ringing hoedown. Other songs range from a sentimental wedding ballad to jolly country music that is practically right out of Nashville today, from a lullaby to a hymn.

Summer Theatre founding producer Edgar R. Loessin is directing this emotion-sprinkled musical; staging and choregraphy is by Broadway veteran Mavis Ray.

Miss Ray appeared on Broadway in the highly-acclaimed musical "Ballroom," toured the country in the award-winning drama "DA" and last year appeared on ABC-TV's "All My Children." Her film credits include the made-for-TV movie "My Body, My Child," starring Vanessa Redgrave, and currently, she can be seen in the movie version of the musical, "Annie."

According to Summer Theatre general manager Scott Parker, ticket sales for the ECU Summer Theater are "very brisk."

"There are a number of tickets still available for each of the three remaining musicals," he said.

In addition to "Shenandoah," the Summer Theatre is also presenting another award-winning musical hit, "Cabaret," starring Jay Fox as the MC, a role he played in the New York production, and "She Loves Me," a love story slated for production July 26-31. Tickets may be purchased at the McGinnis Theatre Box Office at ECU or reserved by telephoning 757-6390.

WOOW Classics

A summer musical feast with a lyric treat for all appetites is the spread being offered tonight by Karen Hause, hostess of the weekly Sunday evening program, "WOOW Classics." The program is aired from 8 p.m. to midnight over WOOW Radio, 1340 on the dial and is also broadcast on Channel 9 of the Cable TV network.

Beginning this week, Mrs. Hause has provided hour time blocks for selections to be presented. Tonight's program is:

• 8 to 9 p.m. — "Four Branles (Dances) de Bourgogne, composed by Jacques Moderne in about 1562, performed by a Renaissance consort using period instruments; Telemann's "Concerto in C for Flute and Orchestra," James Galway, flutist and I Musici; "Concerto No. 3 for Horn and Orchestra" by Mozart, Alan Civel and the Philharmonia Orchestra conducted by Otto Klemperer; D'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air," Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

• 9 to 10 p.m. — Beethoven's "Symphony No. 9" with Robert Hause conducting the East Carolina Symphony. Soloists are Antonia Dalapas, Virginia Linn, Charles Moore and Clyde Hiss.

• 10-11 p.m. — "Concerto for Violin, Cello and Orchestra" by Brahms (the double concerto), Zeno Francescatti, violin, Pierre Fournier, cello and the Columbia Symphony conducted by Bruno Walter; Schumann's "Carnival of Venice," featuring pianist Sviatislov Richter.

• 11-12 p.m. — A 17th century concert of Anthony Holborne music, "Honie Suckle Rose" and "Faerie Round," performed by the Extempore String Ensemble; Stravinsky's "Petruschka," Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic; and the final item on the musical menu, Ravel's "Mother Goose Suite" with Charles Munch and the Boston Symphony.

Carolina Today

Tom Funk, chief archaeologist for N.C. Historic Sites, will be one of the guests this week on Carolina Today, the early morning TV show broadcast over WNCT-TV with hosts Slim Short and Susan Roberts. The following is the schedule for Carolina Today July 12-16. The notation TBA means "to be announced later."

• MONDAY — 6:40 a.m.— TBA; 7:15 a.m. — Diana Lange, an underwater archaeologist, will talk about "Down to the Monitor"; 7:25 a.m.— Earl Bell will speak on the water festival, and 7:40 a.m. — Dr. Peggy Mills and Ebbie Hatton will speak on caring and developing, "The Connection."

• TUESDAY — 6:40 a.m. — Healthbreak; 7:15 a.m. — Tom Funk, chief archaeologist fof N.C. Historic Sites, and 7:40 a.m. — "Liberty Cart," Kenansville's outdoor drama, is the topic.

• WEDNESDAY — 6:40 a.m. — TBA; 7:15 a.m. — Perry Rodgers will talk about reptiles of eastern North Carolina, and 7:40 a.m. — insurance news service.

• THURSDAY — 6:40 a.m. TBA; 7:15 a.m. — TBA; 7:25 a.m. — a speaker with details on the Bunion Fire Department and the FFA Alumni Four-Wheel Drive Pull.

• FRIDAY — 6:40 a.m. — the Cruse Family will present gospel music; 7:15 a.m. — a speaker on a new business in Goldsboro, Balloons For You; 7:25 a.m. — TBA and 7:40 a.m., a speaker on "Cabaret" and the ECU Summer Theater.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — Blackbeard, a beautician and folk art are topics to be discussed today on Kay Currie's "Hospitality House." The weekly Sunday mid-day talk show is broadcast from noon to 12:30 p.m. over Channel 7, WITN-TV.

Guests appearing on today's show are:

•Boyd Meyers will talk about the nine-county 12th annual EXPO show of arts and crafts taking place from 1 to 5 p.m. today at Morehead City. Meyers, retired from the National Space Administration in Washington, D.C., will show examples of typical American folk art.

•Beauty consultant Alice Padgett of Stantonsburg will give information on a current controversial diet procedure, the starch-block pill to be taken before eating. Ms. Padgett will also give details on a new liquid razor for the removal of hair.

•Bath's outdoor drama, "Blackbeard," will be represented by the star of the show, John Rice of Ohio. This is Rice's second year portraying the notorious pirate.

•Another segment of "Hospitality House" today deals with the re-enactment of the pirate invasion of Beaufort from the sea, where the buccaneers come ashore to cart off comely maidens.

Randy Jones Stars In Musical Revival

NEW YORK — Tar Heel Randy Jones of Raleigh, the smiling former cowboy with Village People and a member of the ECU Summer Theater productions in 1971 and again in 1973, returned to the musical stage in mid-June after a seven year hiatus in other musical forms.

Randy is starring with Olympic gymnast Cathy Rigby in a revival of the 1944 MGM musical, "Meet Me in St. Louis," which contains such memorable songs as "The Trolley Song," "The Boy Next Door" and the way-back-when title song, "Meet Me in St. Louis."

The musical is being presented in Akron and Dayton, Ohio under the auspices of the Midwest impressario John Kenley. The production is part of an extensive promotion campaign for Randy's upcoming Hammond Music Zoo York City Records project.

Commenting on his return to a musical, Randy said "After so long away from the Broadway musical comedy format, this show is a great way to get my feet wet before I jump into a major project on Broadway in 1983."

Children's Show Playing

MANTEO — "Welcome to topsy turvey land!" These lyrics are from a world premiere children's show being presented this summer by The Lost Colony Children's Theater entitled, "The Great Red Carpet Controversy."

The show, created by Rosalind MacEnulty, musical director of "The Lost Colony," opened July 3 at the Manteo Marine Resources Center and plays each Wednesday and Saturday at 10:30 a.m. through Aug. 14. Tickets are $1.50 at the door. Children under 4 years of age are admitted free of charge.

The show, which deals with the works and lives of Gilbert and Sullivan, is being mounted by members of Joe Layton's Professional Theater Workshop. Three Lost Colony members are in charge of the children's show this year.

Jim Sweetland of Clinton, N.Y., serves as producer. A theater major at Indiana-Purdue University, Sweetland was selected after a series of interviews with John Gullucci, artistic director of PTW.

Tim White directs the show. White, of Windsor, is a theater major at East Carolina University and has directed shows in college, in high school, and in community theater productions in his home town.

Jeannette Parke serves as musical director. Parke, of Charlotte, has a master's in music from the University of Colorado and is a former high school music teacher.

The cast also comes from "The Lost Colony " company. Those selected for the show were Barton Breen as Doyly Carte, William Arvay as W.S. Gilbert and Jeff Wallace as Arthur Sullivan. Nine singers were selected for the chorus roles.

One unusual aspect of this production is the use of puppets as main characters. Pat Brymer, a professional from Hanna-Barbera Productions in Los Angeles, spent a week training students in the construction and manipulation of the puppets.

Funniest?

By GLENNE CURRIE
UPI Lively Arts Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Christopher Durang may become our funniest playwright since George S. Kaufman, but his "Beyond Therapy" is a non-play.

"Beyond Therapy," first seen last year at the Off Broadway Phoenix Theater which commissioned the work, opened on Broadway May 26 at the Brooks Atkinson Theater.

It remains what it was then, a plotless, faulty, funny, outrageous satire on psychiatry, with Durang even identifying his own therapist in his program biography (an "in" joke?).

The story, such as it is, involves Bruce, a bisexual who wants to get married while keeping his live-in male lover at the same time, and Prudence, who meets him on two blind dates in answer to his newspaper personal ads.

But the main characters are their respective therapists, both totally off the wall but instantly recognizable by anyone who ever has been in therapy (or so I am told).

Prudence's psychiatrist, Stuart, is a sex fiend whose treatment consists mostly of seducing his woman patients. He dances a little Hitler-like jig of self-congratulation, then gets apoplectic when Prudence intimates that Bruce is a more concerned lover.

A Full Week Of Dance Scheduled By American Dance Festival

BEST COUPLE — Janie Parker, who won the gold medal among senior women, and William Pizzuto, who won the silver medal for senior men, also captured the best couple award last week at the International Ballet Competition in Jackson, Miss. Both dancers perform with the Houston Ballet. Ben Stevenson, Houston's artistic director, was awarded the gold medal for choreography. (AP Laserphoto)

DURHAM — The coming week is to be a dance-filled one at Durham's American Dance Festival (ADF) with three entertainments groups filling the calendar every night Monday through Saturday.

• On Monday and again on Wednesday nights, performers will be members of "Three Young Companies," three groups chosen to present dances in conjunction with music by young composers. Performances will be at 8 p.m. in Duke University's Reynolds Theater in the Bryan Center on the west campus.

The three companies selected for this summer's appearances are Charlie Vernon and Dancers with composer David Felder; the Danny Buraczeski Dance Company with composr Eric Valinsky; and Jim Self and Dancers with composer Frankie Mann. Each group will premiere new works commissioned by the ADF.

The commissions are part of a larger National Choreography Project supported by generous contributions from the Jerome Foundation, Inc., the National Endowment for the Arts and EXXON Corporation. The dances and music were created during a five-week residency at the ADF earlier this summer.

• On Tuesday, Raleigh native Chuck Davis brings his company to the Festival for a program described as "the celebration of life . . . a perpetual process which we are all a part of — that began in Mother Africa."

On his program, the Davis dancers will perform "Griot," "Djembe, a Chant;" "Isicathulo;" and several other dances based on African customs.

• Alwin Nikolais and his company will present two different programs during the company's three night run. The first program, on Thursday night, will include "Group Dance from Sanctum;" "Trio from Vaudeville;" "The Mechanical Organ I" and "Guignol." Program two, to be performed Friday and Saturday evenings, will include "Pond;" "Tensile Involvement;" "Count Down" and "The Mechanical Organ II."

All performances begin at 8 p.m. The Chuck Davis and Alwin Nilolais performances will be held in Page Auditorium on Duke University's west campus.

For more information and ticket reservations, interested persons are to call 684-4059.

Benefit Concert At The Attic

The fourth annual benefit concert to raise funds for the non-profit public service radio station WVSP in Warrenton will be held in Greenville beginning at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday. The benefit, a concert featuring three bands, will take place in the Phoenix Room of the Attic, downtown Greenville.

Bands on the entertainment bill will be Landy Spain and the Juke Jive Bombers; Something Else, and the Lightning Wells Blues Band. They will present a program of jazz, blues and blues and rhythm.

All proceeds from the concert will go to the radio station, a public service outlet funded in large part by donations from listeners. The station airs at 90.9 on the FM dial.

Admission at the door for the concert is $1.50 per person.

WATER BABIES ... This detail is from one of the black and white prints in a series entitled "Water Babies" by a young international prize-winning Thai artist Praphan Sriousta. Six of the prints were given to the museum by Marvin K. Blount Sr. in honor of Pitt County men who served in Vietnam.

HINDU SCULPTURE ... is one of the color photographs by Francis Neel now on view at the Greenville Museum of Art, 802 S. Evans St. Neel, a former faculty member of the ECU School of Art, has traveled extensively and show photographs from the U.S., Mexico, India, Pakistan and other countries.

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Two shows are on view at the Greenville Museum of Art during the month of July. One is an exhibit of color photographs by Francis Neel installed in the Porch Gallery. The other is a selection from the museum's permanent collection of art and is being exhibited in the North and South galleries.

•A long-time Greenville artist and a retired faculty member of the school of art, East Carolina University, Neel is a native of Doe Run, Mo. After service in the infantry and airborne forces during World War II, Neel taught at the University of Missouri and in Long Island, N.Y., before coming to Greenville in 1948 to teach at ECU.

A devoted traveler and amateur photographer, Neel, during his teaching years and since retirement, has traveled extensively in the United States and in foreign countries, taking his camera along with him.

Photographs in this current show include some close-up studies of flowers and insects. Most of the pictures, however, are of temples, animals, markets and peoples in Mexico, India, Pakistan and Japan.

•Museum director Mary Ann Pennington has selected a representative group of art from the permanent collection to exhibit during July. Because of limited gallery space, only a few pieces from the growing collection are being shown. Ms. Pennington notes, however, that in light of the interest expressed by patrons in being able to see more of the permanent collection, she is planning to reserve the North Gallery solely for a period of several months to devote to a rotating display of works from the permanent collection.

The primary emphasis of the collection is 20th century American art, with added emphasis on acquisition of work by local and North Carolina artists.

Among local artists whose work is part of the permanent collection are Francis and Sara Speight, Donald Sexauer, Ed Reep, Tran and Marilyn Gordley, Wes Crawley, Paul Hartley, Roxanne Reep, John Quinn, Frith Winslow, Chuck Chamberlain, Jim Whaley, Ray Elmore, Eric Thiele, Michael Voors, William Holley, Bob Pittman, Nancy Monroe and others.

Noted Tar Heel artists whose work is included in the permanent collection include Claude Howell, Philip Moose, Walter Thrift, Hobson Pittman, Bob Timberlake and several others.

Sculpture in the collection includes animals sculpted by the late Anna Hyatt Huntington, who has been in the news recently as the artist who had Bette Davis pose in the nude as a young girl for statues of Diana the Huntress; a wall construction by Louise Nevelson, and a Pueblo Indian bowl by Maria and Santana Martinez. One of the favorites of the entire sizeable collection is the collection of Jugtown pottery.

The show of Neel's photographs and the selections from the permanent collection are open to the public. Museum hours are 10 to 10 on Tuesdays, 10 to 6 Wednesdays through Fridays, and 11 to 3 on Saturdays. (Closed Sundays and Mondays). Admission is free.

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By Willie Nelms

Several timely topics are addressed by four new books recently added to the Sheppard Memorial Library collection.

"Making Things Happen: The Guide For Members of Volunteer Organizations" by Joan Wolfe deals with the effective operation of volunteer groups. The author draws on years of experience leading volunteer groups to show how to find and keep new members, get publicity, organize programs, cope with parliamentary procedure and hold elections. Leaders especially will profit from her advice on delegating authority, directing work effectively and handling opposing points of view diplomatically.

With the current interest in volunteer service and its growing importance in American life, the points made in this volume will be useful to many readers.

J.K. Lasser's "How You Can Profit From The New Tax Law" is a guide to the 1981 Tax Act, which greatly changed individual federal taxes. Well known for his yearly tax guides, Lasser has drawn together many hints for dealing with the new tax law. Chapters are provided on personal tax rate reductions, saving for retirement, investment tax savings, business tax savings, filing tax returns and estate and gift tax planning.

The effects of the 1981 Tax Act are far reaching for all Americans, and Lasser's book provides a good view of how to make the most of the new laws.

Microcomputers are becoming ever more popular with Americans. Jerry Willis and William Danley Jr.'s new book "Nailing Jelly To A Tree" describes the slippery nature of microcomputer programs. Designed for individuals with some knowledge of micros, this volume will help readers better understand the software that makes computers run. It describes several types of software, noting their strengths and weaknesses. The book is especially helpful because of its chapters introducing programming in BASIC.

Although the title is unorthodox, "Nailing Jelly To A Tree" will be a useful resource for anyone getting involved with the expanding world of microcomputers.

Durham native Christopher McLachlan's "Inflation Wise" is a dictionary of money-saving tips for readers interested in getting more out of life. A wide variety of areas, from fertilizers to tennis balls to education and energy, are discussed, explaining previously unknown means of stretching the family budget. The book's rating of items for cost and percentage savings to expect from the various suggestions are especially useful.

With the current economic situation, "Inflation Wise" will be helpful to readers searching for ways to make savings with their personal finances.

TWO GRANTS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles County Museum of Art has been awarded two grants to support training and research in its conservation center.

A $50,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts will support the museum's conservator training program. A $20,000 grant from the Armand Hammer Foundation is for research in paper conservation techniques.

NEW GALLERY

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Museum of Art has installed a gallery devoted to the small sculptures and decorative arts of Germany and the Netherlands in the 16th and 17th centuries.

It is the first major installation of this part of the museum's collections, and many of the 90 works on view have not been exhibited for decades.

BLUE SKY

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The Worcester Art Museum says it has acquired the Georgia O'Keeffe painting "Blue Sky."

The work, donated by Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Stoddard, depicts a V-shaped cleft of bright blue sky between two striking cliff formations.

Prospectus Available

GREENSBORO — Artists and craftsmen may now request a prospectus for the 1982 City Stage Celebration to be held in Greensboro Oct. 2-3.

Exhibitors will be limited to 300. Only work that is original and executed by the exhibitor will be considered. A requirement is to send in five slides, and one of display. There is no jury fee required.

Exhibitors accepted from the juried slides will be eligible to rent a 12-by-15 foot booth display space. The fee for a booth is $35 for one exhibitor, and is $45 when shared by two exhibitors.

Application deadline is Aug. 1. For a prospectus and other details, write to: Hope Beaman, Exhibitors Chairman, United Arts Council of Greensboro, 200 N. Davie St., Greensboro, N.C., 27401, or phone 373-4510.

Sunday In The Park Features The Monitors

A PERFECT SUMMER SCENE — A tranquil summer afternoon is pictured in this photograph of Silver Lake harbor in the village of Ocracoke on North Carolina's Outer Banks. The young couple in the foreground is spending their honeymoon exploring the coastal community. (AP Laserphoto by J. Foster Scott)

For the 10th consecutive year, The Monitors will be a Sunday concert attraction in the Sunday in the Park series today. The group of music makers is drawn from various towns in eastern North Carolina and is comprised of people who love to make music together.

The concert gets under way at 7 p.m. at the Sunday in the Park site, the grassy slope east of Reade Street between Third and Fourth streets. There is no admission charged, and patrons are encouraged to bring along pillows, blankets, folding chairs, etc., for greater listening comfort.

Most of the group has professional training. Several have masters of music degrees from East Carolina University. Most of the group is currently employed in the field of public education. Two are principals of public schools, and one is a guidance counselor at Wayne Community College.

Membership in The Monitors presently includes Bill Myers, who plays a number of woodwind and reed instruments; Elton Jones and William Hiss, guitarists; Cleveland Flowe, piano; P.A. Best, bass, and Clint Patterson, brass. Vocalist for the group is Charles Proctor.

For today's concert, The Monitors have divided their selections into four categories of music.

The opening segment is entitled "Old Gold" and will include "Mack The Knife," a medley of "Stardust" and "Body and Soul," and "Symphony Sid."

Segment Two will be "Beach Music" and will feature the tune "Miss Grace" along with a medley of sing-along songs. "Monitor Spotlight" is the title given to the third segment of the concert. The trio of songs in this segment will be "Pass de Chittlings," "Woke Up This Morning," and "Danny Boy."

The final segment focuses on "1982 Soul and Top Forty." Songs in this category are "Kicking Back," "Turn Your Love Around," "Just Once," "One Hundred Ways," and "Bad Mama Mama."

The closing selection is to be "Saturday, Saturday Night."

Sunday in the Park is funded by the city of Greenville as a public service project and is presented under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

N.C. Symphony In Good Shape

In the past 12 months the North Carolina Symphony has rebounded from near bankruptcy to its first year-end surplus in eight years. At the end of fiscal 1981-1982 the symphony has $222,654 in the bank. This represents a $600,000 turnaround in its fortunes over 1980-81.

At its annual meeting in late June at the Woman's Club of Raleigh, Gov. Jim Hunt praised the symphony and its board chairman, Nancy Faircloth, for their dedication, determination and ingenuity in effecting such a dramatic change. He also said the Legislature would continue its support by funding the symphony's operating expenses in the amount of $570,000 over the next three years providing the symphony can match that money in 3-to-1 private contributions in the next 12 months.

Ms. Faircloth pledged her commitment and that of the board of trustees to raise the required funds.

Controller Donald R. Wall attributed the improved financial picture to sharp cuts in expenditures, increases in ticket sales and contributions and successful efforts to build a reserve fund. Saying the symphony had "a good jump on next year," Wall warned that the symphony could only grow as revenue allowed, and that it was vital that the symphony continue on its careful course of the past year.

Wall announced that the 1982-83 budget, adopted at the April board meeting, was $2.371 million. This figure represents a $170,000 increase over the 1981-82 budget.

Contributions increased in 1981-82 by about $10,000 over the previous season, and ticket sales increased by almost $38,000. The most dramatic portion of that increase was in single ticket sales at $32,000.

Skiing Event Is Televised

PINE MOUNTAIN, GA. — Television station WTBS, Atlanta, Channel 17 on the cable TV network, is broadcasting the Masters' Water Skiing Tournament being held at Calloway Gardens in Pine Mountain.

The first session of the tournament took place Saturday afternoon. The second session is being broadcast from 1:05 to 3:05 this afternoon.

Several Greenville residents are attending the event as spectators. These include Parker Overton and his family and four young ladies, Andrea Jones, Melody Hedges, Jennifer Fisher and Ginny Kimbrell. The Overtons and the young ladies are all local skiers.

Competition Winners Listed

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eleanor Steber Music Foundation recently awarded a total of $12,500 to five young professional singers at the conclusion of its Third Vocal Competition.

The winners were:

Cecily Nall, soprano, Cincinnati, Ohio; Joyce Guyer-Hiller, soprano, New York; Wendy C. Hillhouse, mezzo, Redwood City, Calif.; John Fowler, tenor, New York, and Richard Harrell, baritone, New York.

Each winner received $2,500.

Rome's Film City Riding New Boom

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — The vast Cinecitta lot, for more than a decade a wasteland of spaghetti Western relics and cardboard ruins of Roman spectaculars, has bounced back to life, riding the crest of a new Italian film boom.

Hollywood-on-the-Tiber, the cinema city on Rome's outskirts where "Cleopatra," "Ben Hur" and Federico Fellini's "Dolce Vita" were produced, is once more Europe's most active production center.

Italy's 85-year-old president, Sandro Pertini, was giving recognition to the Italian film industry today in a visit to the studio for presentation of Golden Globe awards from the foreign press to the best movies of the season.

The industry started at least 110 movies in the first four months of 1982, compared with about 100 produced in all of last year.

On Cinecitta's Set 5, Franco Zeffirelli shouts cues to tenor Placido Domingo and soprano Teresa Stratas, starring in a film version of Giuseppe Verdi's opera "La Traviata."

Across the maple-shaded alley, spaghetti western king Sergio Leone has snagged Robert DeNiro for a $20 million Prohibition era crime spectacular, "Once Upon A Time in America."

Down the way, director Lina Wertmuller starts shooting interiors for the film version of the Brazilian novel "Tieta do Agreste" in September, after Sophia Loren recovers from her stint in jail. Having made her peace with the Italian government, Miss Loren will play the title role of a small-town prostitute who moves to the city.

Fellini, who stood by Cinecitta through boom and bust for the past two decades, plans to launch "And The Ship Sails" onto five giant sets there this summer.

Born under dictator Benito Mussolini's fascist state in 1937, the 34½-acre studio was heavily bombed during the war and rebuilt after such postwar films as "Rome Open City," "Paisan" and "Bitter Rice" put the Italian film industry on the map.

Thanks to generous government subsidies, cheap labor and a postwar movie craze, the studio boomed in the '50s. But the bubble burst in the '60s, when strikes paralyzed the sets, labor costs spiraled, and Italian moviemakers fled to Hollywood, London and Paris.

This year the word spread that strikes were unfashionable, that the dollar was appreciating against the lira, and that inflation was being brought under control. The government alloted $35 million in easy credits to the film industry. And Italian TV viewers grew disenchanted with old movies punctuated with commercials.

"The public has finally started to turn its back on home screen programs," said Carmine Cianfarani, president of the Italian motion picture association, in an interview. "The diet of old feature films reissued time and again on private TV stations has finally oversaturated the TV audience, and people want to get out and see new films."

He reported a 30 percent increase in movie admissions in Italy over the past five months.

"A film like 'Traviata' could only be made in Italy," said Zeffirelli.

We put our foot down about apartments being within walking distance.
Wedgewood Arms apartments are within walking distance of three shopping centers, a nursery school, a junior high school, doctors' and dentists' offices and an athletic center.
As if that wasn't enough, three major traffic arteries, 264 Bypass, Arlington Blvd., and Charles St. are close enough to be seen and not heard.
Fact is, no apartments in town can legitimately claim to be more convenient to more things than Wedgewood Arms.
And, that's not all. Because Wedgewood Arms is not only convenient, it's different in other ways, too.
Take the floorplans: they're different from anything you've ever seen. And when you add in high energy efficiency, tennis courts, swimming pool, and the neighborhood "feeling" that these apartments will give you — well, you'll just have to see for yourself.

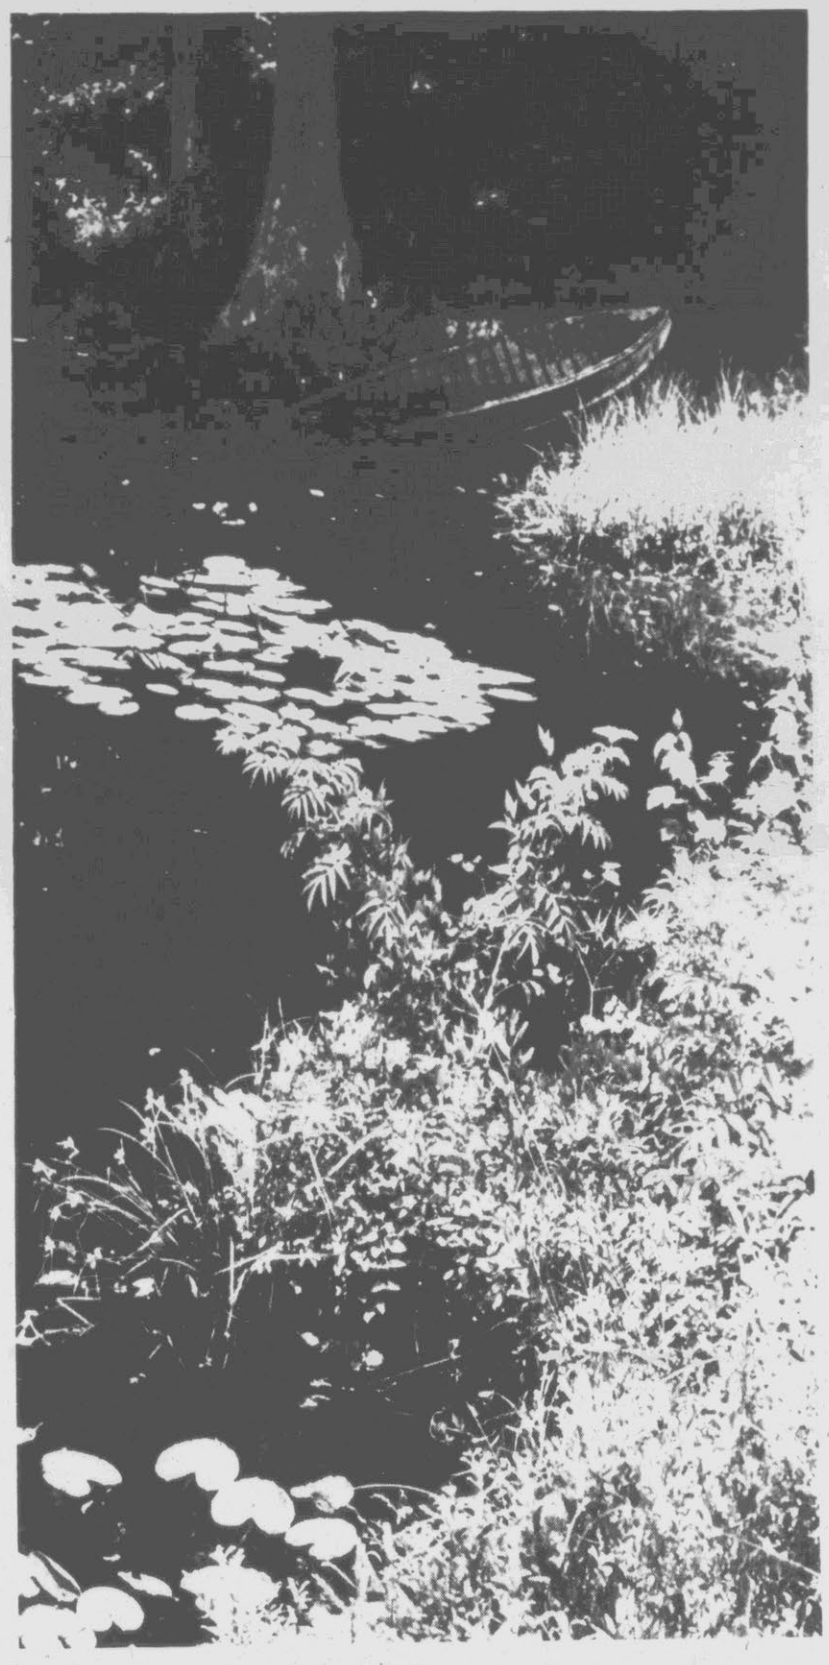
Nature's Summer Poetry Slow Flows In Small Muddy Streams



Literature and music in most instances depict streams as swift flowing, clear, sparkling, leaping, raging. Sometimes in a more gentle vein, as in the unforgettable words and melodies such as those of Stephen Collins Foster's "Swanee River" or Robert Burns' poem and James E. Spilman's music in "Flow Gently, Sweet Afton," the mood evoked by water is of quiet murmurs and dreamlike musings along verdant banks.

There's another kind of stream — unsung, yet worthy of praise, the dark, mud banked streams with a water flow so slow the movement is almost imperceptible. Streams of this kind are numerous in eastern North Carolina, repositories of water that gather momentum only after an excessive input of storm water.

Most travelers pass over these seemingly insignificant streams with barely a glance at the ebony waters below the roadway, not realizing that a few minutes or an hour spent exploring would reveal intriguing dimensions to nature's poetry.

The photographs on this page were taken during a half-hour's ramble on a recent hot sunny Sunday afternoon. According to people living on nearby farms along a rural paved road, the stream is an unnamed "run-off" (tributary) of the Cashie River in Bertie County.

At the shore line and further inland, a dozen or more summer wildflowers display white and colored flowers — a great thicket of pale pink swamp roses, broad heads of Queen Anne's lace, heavy clusters of pure white elderberry, white bouquets of yarrow, the cerise of meadow beauties, sprays of heavily perfumed ivory and cream honeysuckle, and the exciting design of the flower of deep purple-blue hue, the waxy bluebells hanging inverted (headmost down) on delicate vines.

Heads of grasses, some fine-beaded in sprays of tiny seeds, glow like spun lace in lighted areas dramatically backlighted by black shadows.

On the water's surface, golden buds on lily pads (locally water bonnets) are ready to open. Battalions of water bugs dart randomly across the water's surface, and occasionally, a fish surfaces with a swirl that gives the water a brief play of motion.

On the afternoon these photographs were made, nine snapping turtles were noted on willow limbs hanging close over the water — one was a massive specimen that would turn out several fine pots of soup.

At first, along the soft mud banks of the stream, the impression is that of no creatures stirring. It is not long, however, before sounds and movements reveal a wealth of miniature living creatures — small green grasshoppers taking sudden leaps, spiders journeying from leaf to leaf, a couple of lizards skittering at play, and at the water's edge, a water moccasin gliding cautiously, most likely stalking a frog. Transparent-winged dragonflies (mosquito hawks) in a wide spectrum of iridescent colors, continually take to the air, settle on the tip of a twig, then are airborne again in a restless cycle.

Music comes into play as birds make melody in tree tops, bull frogs add a bass chorus, all against the accompaniment of leaf whispers of trees activated whenever a breeze stirs them from immobility.

Monet or Pissarro would have loved painting the brilliant contrast of light and shadow and sunstruck green-gold in the woods and waters of streams such as this. And nearer home, Bertie county native artist Francis Speight has translated these pastoral places into the poetry of painting.

Local fisherman insist that a stream like this "is not apt for good fishing, cause it's one of them places where the water slow flows." Perhaps. But these streams are "apt" for exploring and for dreaming away a little piece of time on a warm summer day.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — BOUNCING BABY BOYS CAN BEGUILE US ALL.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: B equals R

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF
©1982 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—Please discuss preemptive bids. Do you favor the three-bid or the weak two-bid? Can third- or fourth-hand open with a preempt? —R. Green, Kokomo, Ind.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—Despite the fact that you have asked a series of questions, I am delighted to respond because at least one of the points you raise seems to be causing no end of confusion. Your trouble is that you are mixing up grapes and apples — although both are fruit, it does not mean that the two are the same.

I am referring specifically to weak two bids and three bids. Both are preemptive actions, yet that does not mean that they describe the same type of hand.

A preemptive three-bid is a defensive action. It shows a seven-card suit, and usually little or nothing outside the suit. It simply says that, not vulnerable, you expect to make six tricks with your suit as trumps; vulnerable, you expect to take seven tricks. It is a barrage bid, the main purpose of which is to force the enemy to take action at a high level where scientific exploration is nigh impossible.

The weak two-bid is a double-edged sword because it is both an offensive and defensive weapon. It is made with a good six-card suit, never with a seven-card suit. While a three-bid promises little or nothing in defensive values, a weak two-bid can have quite a bit outside the long suit. At the top of its range, it can have as much as 1½ or 2 defensive tricks.

Because the weak two-bid can be made with a hand that comes close to an opening bid, the partners must have a structure whereby they can find out the quality of the weak two-bid and, sometimes, specifically where the outside strength lies.

Can you make a preemptive bid in third and fourth seats? In third seat, certainly. As a matter of fact, you might relax your requirements a little for a third-hand preempt. If partner couldn't open and you don't have an opening bid, the odds are that the hand belongs to the opponents. So anything you can do, within reason, to disrupt the flow of the enemy auction, could reap dividends.

Fourth seat is another matter. Here, there is a marked difference between duplicate and rubber bridge. At duplicate, you might open with a preemptive bid in an effort to collect a partscore. At rubber bridge, however, where you pay for your disasters with cold cash, you want to be more cautious.

An opening bid of two hearts on fourth seat at rubber bridge usually shows a good opening one-bid, but with a one-suited hand that is not defensively oriented. A typical hand for that sort of action would be:

♠xx ♡AKQxxx ◇Kxx ♣xx

If you open one heart, you let the opponents get in a cheap overcall. Two hearts is not only preemptive, it describes your holding accurately.

Rhode Island Becoming Haven For War Refugees

By SUSAN E. KINSMAN

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Urban, industrialized Rhode Island — worlds apart from the lush green mountains and valleys of Indochina — is now home for 6,000 refugees who fled their war-torn cities and villages.

One of the nation's largest populations of Cambodian, Laotian, and Vietnamese refugees has made Rhode Island a microcosm of refugee problems.

The trickle of refugees that began in 1975 has became a steady stream. Cleo LaChapelle, state coordinator for the office of refugee resettlement, expects their numbers to grow by 1,200 to 1,500 each year.

"We have to find them jobs. These are not very affluent times and that is becoming more and more difficult," LaChapelle said.

The federal government helps support the refugee camps, arranges contracts with national resettlement agencies to sponsor the new families and decides where the refugees will go.

It supplies cash assistance to refugees for 18 months while they look for work. Families are eligible for continued support if they enroll in work training programs.

In Rhode Island, the International Institute, Catholic Social Services and the Tolstoy Foundation are the resettlement agencies. Their workers are often the first contact in a new land for the refugees.

Federally funded food stamps and medical benefits are available and federal subsidies support English language courses for children and adults.

Resettlement is a tremendous shock. Everything is different — the language, food, culture, traditions, political and legal systems.

The groups are often lumped together as Indochinese refugees, but they have different languages, cultures and were strangers to one another before they were forced to flee their homelands.

There are 2,500 Cambodians, the second-largest settlement of Cambodians in the United States, and 2,500 Hmong, a tribe of gentle farmers from the mountains of Laos, the fourth largest of Hmong.

Doua Yang, Hmong liasion at the Providence Mental Health Center, said refugees who have had some formal education or lived near urban areas in Asia, have an easier time adjusting to their new environment. So do the young and those with some knowledge of English or another written language.

Others "simply have great difficulty adjusting. They can't go out alone. They get lost very easily a few blocks from their apartment," Yang said. Older people especially experience depression and readjustment problems, he said.

Some are so afraid of their strange new world they won't budge from their apartments.

"These people feel they cannot work or earn a living in this country. Many have said to their older children trying to make it on their own: 'If we don't have you, we'd rather die'," Yang said.

Yang, a recruit in the CIA-backed Laotian Army at age 13, recalls carrying an American-issued carbine nearly as tall as he was during six years of warfare. "I couldn't fire it," he said.

He fled to Thailand in 1975, spent a year in a refugee camp, then came to Rhode Island. Five years later, he still has questions — about American social values, politics, and the relationship between young and old, and the truthfulness of TV commercials and the news media.

He and others expect adjustment will take at least a generation.

"These are survivors — people who made decisions and can't go back. They are here to stay," LaChapelle said.

The toughest part of the readjustment may still be ahead — both for the newcomers and their communities.

In an age of shrinking federal dollars, the fear there might not be enough to go around is spreading through the network of public and private agencies which help the poor and disadvantaged.

"There's great fear the federal government is still allowing refugees to come into this country, but the money is going to be cut off. It places local education agencies in a horrendous situation," said Charlene Heintz, Providence's curriculum consultant for bilingual education.

She said special services, paraprofessionals and materials are "costing us millions." The city qualified for $200,000 in federal grants but may have to look to state or private sources if future funds are cut, she said.

Police say the Indochinese more often are victims of crimes than criminals and the language barrier makes it difficult for police to help them.

The murder of a Cambodian refugee, Woonsocket's first homicide in several years, remains unsolved after four months.

"The language barrier has been our biggest problem," said Police Chief Joseph Baillargeon.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day and evening when spiritual and philosophical schools of thought are important to you. You need to be careful not to annoy anyone today. Plan the future wisely.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care you are not overly aggressive with others today. Sidestep one who is trying to take advantage of you.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more cooperative with family members today and get excellent results. Health treatments can add to your vitality.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Attend the services of your choice and express happiness. Use diplomacy when dealing with friends and family members.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to control your temper at all times today. Make plans to have increased income in the days ahead.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Take time for philosophical thoughts today. Be calm and steer clear of trouble. Use extreme care in motion.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Make out a sound budget and exclude extravagances. Take no chances with your good reputation today. Be logical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to be more independent by not asking for favors so much. A group affair could be most interesting later in the day.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Schedule your activities well so you that you can accomplish more. It's important that you keep promises made to others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid the social today or you could become involved in an unfortunate situation. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time to visit old friends and relatives and enjoy the meetings. Show how much you appreciate them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day for taking a trip since the planets are not favorable now. Civic work could bring added prestige.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make certain to keep the promises you've made. Teasing your loved one could bring trouble so refrain from such.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be eager to get along well with others in order to get needed attention. There is much success in this chart since the mind is extra sharp. A good religious training is wise. There is some musical talent here.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, JULY 12, 1982

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager to get compliments for doing excellent work, but don't be disappointed if those about you are too preoccupied with their own activities to give praise that is due.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Not a good day for recreation since there are likely to be problems you have to contend with. Strive for family harmony.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Give more attention to improving conditions in your home. Clear out bugs from a new venture you have started.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Use more than average care while in motion and avoid possible accident. The evening can be a very happy time.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you are tempted to spend more money than you can afford, think it over carefully. Be logical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good time to clear up those small, accumulated tasks. Spend more time on improving your health and appearance.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle those affairs that have posed problems in the past and get excellent results. Make sensible plans for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to make allowances for a friend who is not acting right due to mounting pressures. Be poised at a social affair.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you obey every rule and regulation that applies to you and avoid possible trouble. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't waste time complaining to others about your hard luck. Instead, try to improve by taking the right steps.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't run away from pressing responsibilities to engage in new ones. Starting an argument with a neighbor solves nothing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) An associate may not be as cooperative as usual, but this will only be temporary. Sidestep one who opposes you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although your work load is heavy, take time to do it accurately for best results. Don't lose your temper today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she should be encouraged to carry through with own ideas. Don't try to reprimand your progeny too much or the fine incentive could be lost or turned in the wrong directions because of lack of understanding.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Q. I've heard that vegetable seeds should be planted more deeply in the suumer than in the spring. Is this true? (W.L., Parkton)

A. Yes, this is generally true. Soils warm from the surface down. This means that soils are warmer more deeply in summer that earlier in the year. Also, soils are usually drier in the summer, which means that moisture is likely to be better at lower depths. Here is an example of how planting depths should be varied between spring and summer. Snapbeans are planted at an average depth of one inch. Those planted in the spring should be a quarter to a half inch deeper.

Q. I recently built a deck out of pressure-treated yellow pine and had a few pieces of the material left. Would it be safe to build a (flower) planter out of this? (C.L., Winton-Salem)

A. Yes. Pressure-treated wood is excellent for building planters. Just let it dry thouroughly enough so that the chemical does not ooze out when you drive a nail into it.

Q. Please settle an argument for me. What insect has the most painful sting? Wasp? Yellow jacket? Are there others more notorious? Also, what is the best way to treat a sting?

A. Any sting hurts, but basically the larger the insect the larger and more painful the stinger. So the most painful sting would be from one of the hornets, such as the giant European hornet of the shite-face hornet. All stinging insects inject venom into their victim, but again the amount is relative to the insect's size. If a person is stung, the first thing to do is see if the stinger is still stuck in the wound. Only honey bees leave their stinger. If the stinger is present, remove by scraping with a fingernail. Never grasp the stinger and pull it out because that will cause additional venom to be injected into the wound. There are a number of commercial preparations that may be applied to the wound, but ice or cold water is probably just as effective. Never apply heat because that will cause the swelling to increase. If more than a local reaction is experienced, such as dizziness of shortness of breath, consult medical care immediately because you may be undergoing an allergic reaction.

Q. I've seen a garden soil product advertised called "Nitron Enzyme Formula A-35." Among other things, it is supposed to promote bacterial action, mellow and loosen heavy clay soils, improve soil texture for better moisture absorption and retention, and unlock bound nutrients which would otherwide be unavailable to plants. Would you buy it or use it? (L.G., Warrenton)

A. Only on a limited or experimental basis. I can find nothing in the scientific literature to support the claims made for this product. Ordinarily, I am skeptical of any new material that promises miracles.

Handcrafts See Rise In Interest

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

While mass production has made handcrafts unnecessary for survival, it has not slowed a recent revival of interest in the creation and purchase of handmade objects for the home.

The interest today is, if anything, greater than it used to be. A study done several years ago found participation in arts and crafts was one of the few leisure-tme activities on the rise.

Furthermore, in each of the 50 states, there are active organizations devoted to crafts. Nationwide, 16 general periodicals cover crafts, along with seven newspapers and newsletters. There is an almost constant round of fairs, exhibitions and sales, and even the sale of crafts kits has risen in recent years.

Some craftsmen think these kits give crafts a bad name. But Carol Sedestrom, president of the American Craft Council's marketing division, does not agree.

"Buying a kit is a good way to practice the basic skills," she says.

American Craft puts on five markets a year — at Baltimore in February, Dallas in March, Rhinebeck, N.Y., in June, Newport, R.I., in July, and San Francisco in August — where craftsmen get a chance to sell their work to retailers and consumers, Total proceeds of the events is around $10 million a year.

Mrs. Sedestrom says most of the kits people buy never get finished. "So they also learn how difficult it is to acquire the skills. That should make people appreciate that craftsmen are highly skilled — and their work is valuable."

She compares crafts to baseball. In baseball, there are many levels. Some move up through the ranks from sandlot ball to the major leagues. Those who participate enjoy the game, whatever their level.

Those who displayed their wares at a recent five-day Fair at Rhinebeck were more in the World Series than the sandlot category. Some 2,600 entrants competed for the available 580 booths.

A visit to the exhibits confirmed that usable objects created by the right hands can become objects of art as well. Some of those showing their work said one or more examples had been purchased by museums.

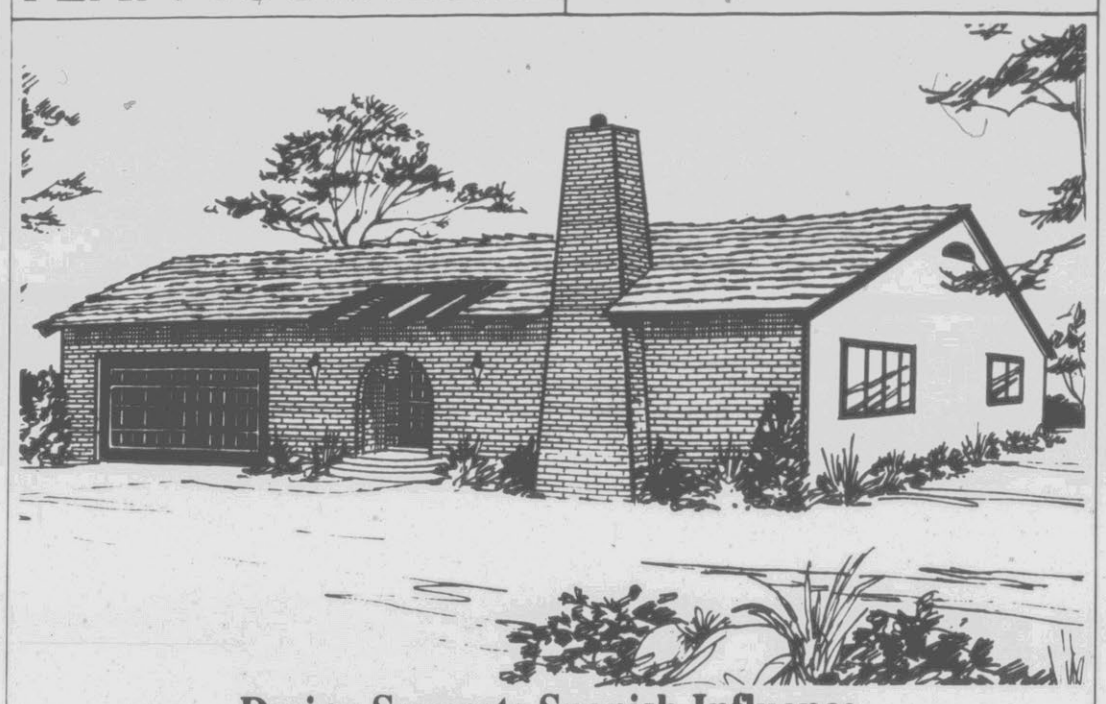
A visitor might be forgiven if the objects began to blur a bit after the first hundred stalls. But as in any museum or gallery, the special works that speak personally to a viewer had the power to captivate anew.

There was excitement in seeing familiar materials used in a new way. A constant stream of people filled the booth occupied by Ward Hartenstein of Rochester, N.Y., for example. They were entranced by the ceramic musical instruments he created. The music is made in most cases by the tinkling of marbles cascading down ceramic structures of Hartenstein's devising.

Ceramic sinks by Russell Kagan of Hartford, Wis., proved that even the most utilitarian objects can be transformed into an art form. And Jane Saur's hand-woven baskets of waxed and unwaxed linen and silk arrested a steady stream of viewers, as well.

Ms. Saur, who is from St. Louis, is also a painter. She offered an illustration of the fascination that one or another craft will sometimes hold for an individual. Seven years ago she saw a book on basket making and began to experiment. "I haven't painted since," she said.

PLAN YOUR HOME — The Tahoe



Design Suggests Spanish Influence

By Jerry Bishop

Painstaking attention to detail accounts for the success of this Spanish-inspired design, which blends stucco, brick, and exposed rafters to ornament this four bedroom ranch plan.

The Tahoe, true to its Spanish heritage, features a sloping chimney, shake shingle roof, ornate gargage doors and an arched entrance that exudes gracious living. Inside the tiled foyer, a high sloping ceiling, decked in exposed rafter beams, defines the theme and suggests the interior pace of the plan.

Besides its function as guest entry point, the foyer also becomes a traffic director, leading to living areas at right, kitchen ahead, and bedroom hallway at left.

The living room, accessible directly from the foyer, offers a 21-ft. expanse of space for entertaining. Side windows admit light, and wood-burning fireplace adds warmth on chilly evenings. Plentiful wall space is a plus for furniture arranging.

For family meals and activities, the family room is generously proportioned and extends further via sliding glass doors to the terrace. The room features a closet for storage of games and toys.

Compact and totally efficient, the kitchen adjoins the family room on one side and half bath/laundry on the other. It is close to the terrace for outdoor dining.

Four bedrooms fill the sleeping wing of the plan. Spotlighted is the lavish master bedroom with walk-in closet and private bath. Another full bath serves the remaining bedrooms, all comfortably large.

For storage and utilities, the full basement creates another 1885 sq. ft. of potential space. The large double garage opens to the hallway bordering the kitchen for easy unloading of groceries and parcels.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — You recently had an article about hacksaws. You said a hacksaw cuts on the forward stroke and no pressure should be applied when you pull back the saw. That statement has me puzzled, because my hacksaw works exactly the opposite way. It seems to cut only on the backstroke and sticks if you put pressure on the saw when going forward. How do you explain this?

A. — Evidently you or someone put the blade in backwards. Remove it and put it in so the teeth slant forward. In a few situations, when you have to work in tight quarters, the blade may be deliberately inserted so the teeth slant the wrong way. Ordinarily, with the teeth going forward, the hacksaw is used with pressure on the forward stroke and no pressure as you bring it back towards you. It works more easily and cuts better that way.

Q. — When I place an extension ladder against my house, how far should the bottom of the ladder be from the foundation so that it will be at its steadiest?

A. — One-fourth the height of the ladder. That is, if the ladder is 20 feet long, the feet of the ladder should be 5 feet from the bottom of the house. If it's a wooden ladder, never apply paint to it, since this will hide splits and other defects. A clear finish is all right if you wish, especially if it's a wood preservative. Remember, too, you can buy levelers, stabilizers, anti-skid devices and various other gadgets designed to make your ladder safer.

Q. — We soon will be making a concrete patio floor, not a very large one but about 10 feet on each side. We have two small children and would like to make the floor of a texture so it will not be slippery. What is the best way to do this?

A. — An easy but very effective way to give a concrete floor a textured appearance is to run a broom across it after you have used a float on it and it has started to harden. You may use a broom with metal bristles, such as is used for sweeping a garage floor, if you want a fairly heavy texture. Sweep with a regular kitchen-type broom for a less emphatic effect.

Q. — Several years ago I was intrigued with the idea of foreign posters, especially those dealing with theatrical productions. I attached them to several walls in our house. Not wanting to make holes in the walls, I used transparent tape. I recently took them down, but found the glue on the tapes left sticky marks on the walls. I have tried soap and water and various other cleaners, but nothing seems to work. Can you give me a suggestion?

A. — The thinner used for rubber cement probably will work. However, it should not be used unless there is plenty of ventilation and you are very careful, since it is highly flammable. Be sure to dispose of the cloths which you use for rubbing the sticky areas.

Q. — I see instructions on occasion about boiled linseed oil, but no details about how to boil it safely. Can you tell me?

A. — You don't boil it. You buy it that way.

(The techniques of using varnish, shellac, lacquer, stain, bleach, remover, etc., are explained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," which can be obtained by sending 50 cents PLUS a long, stamped envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington NY 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

Q. — Our house has painted walls with the exception of the two bedrooms, both of which have wallpaper. These all are in good condition, but the woodwork seems a bit seedy in places. It appears to have a varnish finish that is still solidly attached. I hope the woodwork can be refinished without the bothersome job of taking off the old finish. Can it?

A. — Quite probably. If the woodwork is still in good condition, as you say it is, no removal of the varnish is necessary. Merely sand the wood with a fine grade of sandpaper or steel wool, wipe off the grit particles and go ahead with an application of varnish. However, you might be able to save yourself some work. Using a clean cloth dipped in denatured alcohol, clean a small area of the wood. It is surprising how often dingy woodwork requires nothing more than cleaning rather than refinishing.

No matter how small the hole in a screen, a mosquito or other insect will find it. To paraphrase the saying about a chain and its weakest link, a screen is only as protective as its smallest opening.

Fortunately, it's relatively easy to patch a screen. Sometimes all it requires is a little household cement. When the hole in the screen is very small — say, a quarter of an inch in diameter — you need only dab it with the cement and allow it to dry. It might be noticeable if it's at eye level, but it will keep out insects. Most of the time, it won't be noticed at all.

An opening larger than that can be effectively covered with a ready-made screen patch available in almost all hardware stores and home centers. It is placed over the hole and the tiny, loose ends bent over the old mesh. Like the cement, it can be noticed, but it's what might be called a neat, noticeable patch. You also can make that kind of patch if you have a piece of old screening. Cut a piece of it large enough to cover the opening with an extra inch or two on each side. Loosen the outside strands and then bend them over, the same as with a ready-made patch.

When the entire mesh needs replacement, you can do the job yourself even if you have never attempted it. Care more than skill is required. As you remove the old mesh, see exactly how it was attached — with staples, brads or a flexible spline of plastic, rubber or whatever. If staples or brads were used, attach the replacement mesh with staples. If spline, take it out carefully and it can probably be used again. A small tool can be purchased for resetting the spline in the grooves.

However the screening material is to be attached, be sure you get a few inches more on each side than will cover the opening in the frame. After the mesh is attached, whatever is still hanging over can be trimmed with a knife, blade or scissors.

When the spline is pushed into the grooves with the tool just mentioned, it draws the mesh tight and eliminates bulges, but this cannot be done when staples are required. A good way to get the mesh taut is to place the frame on a flat surface, then put a board under each end of it.

Fasten clamps on the frame at the center on each long side. This will produce a frame higher on both ends than in the middle. Now, when you attach the staples, you won't have to worry about stretching the mesh to its utmost. When the attachment has been made and you remove the clamps, the screening will become tight. Trim the mesh and replace the mouldings. If the mouldings were damaged in removing them, buy new pieces of the proper size, but most of the time you can salvage the old mouldings if you take them off carefully.

It is best to buy screening material of the same type that was there, if only so it will match the other screens. Usually, though, it will take some time for the new screening to weather before there is a good match. If you aren't sure whether it is aluminum or fiber glass or whatever, take a piece of it with you when you purchase the replacement material.

Should the wooden frame of an old screen be loose and you don't want to spend the money to replace it, consider repairing it with metal mending plates. These will hold the parts of the frame tightly together and last indefinitely. Or you can make a frame of either wood or metal, usually with so-called do-it-yourself aluminum.

(Home handymen will find much valuable material in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Mixing Business With Pleasure

SMYRNA, Ga. (AP) — Betty and Don Smith of Smyrna stock a lot of vacuum cleaners that are valuable in terms of money in their "Mr. Sweeper" stores, but the memories they evoke are priceless.

The Smiths mix business with pleasure by collecting antique vacuum cleaners. About 25 of the old-timers are on display in the couple's local shop, and for many customers, seeing them is like traveling back through time.

"People will say, 'Oh, my grandmother used to have one of those,' or 'I had exactly the same model years ago,'" says Mrs. Smith. "They seem to relate these old vacuum cleaners to memories from their childhood."

The Smiths' unusual hobby started when they entered the vacuum-cleaner business 25 years ago. Customers would bring in old electric sweepers and tank cleaners, and Smith would restore them.

"Being in the business, it seemed the natural thing to do," said Mrs. Smith of the start of the collection. "Besides, we saw what a novelty they were for our customers. They really enjoyed them."

In time, the Smiths began making special trips to vac shops throughout the Southeast looking for unusual models. Today, all the vacs in their collection are at least 50 years old, and Mrs. Smith estimates that at least 90 percent of them are in working condition.

How do yesterday's vacs compare with today's models? Surprisingly, Mrs. Smith says, some modern promotional models cost no more than the vacs of yesteryear. A Eureka promotional upright, for example, retails for $59.95 — the same price as half a century ago.

Most of the antique vacs cost the Smiths just $5 or $10, but they did pay $300 for their prize possession, a 1906 Brand non-electric bellows cleaner. Solid metal construction was the norm for vacuum cleaners in the '20s and '30s, and their workmanship was impeccable.

Sales Representative With Management Potential

In 1981, for the 19th consecutive year, we increased sales volume and subsequently our sales management positions. Our 63-year-old industrial manufacturing firm seeks an individual capable of earning in excess of $30,000 per year for a selected opening in the local area. We need sales people capable of rapid growth to continue to expand at this pace. Our success is the result of giving each Sales Representative the opportunity to reach full potential. Also available are excellent fringe benefits and formal field training. No overnight travel. We also have an opportunity available in the KINSTON, NORTH CAROLINA AREA.

UNIVERSITY AREA

Spacious older home just two blocks from ECU. A little "TLC" can work wonders. Take a look and make an offer! $57,000. Possible Owner Financing.

OLD AND NEW: THE BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

Just twelve minutes from downtown Greenville in Stokes, a surprise awaits a special buyer. This historic countryside residence was built in 1913 with stained glass windows, beveled glass doors and mirrors, two staircases of Birdseye Maple, high ceilings in spacious rooms, three functional fireplaces, oak floors on first floor and heart pine on second.

One year ago this house was completely renovated using the finest materials and workmanship available. A new kitchen with handmade cabinets, pine flooring, large center work island, Jenn-Aire and KitchenAid appliances, 2 inch solid maple countertops and lighting accents is a gourmet cook's dream.

The entire house has refinished floors (carpet in all bedroom areas) new solid brass hardware and light fixtures, custom built-ins, cabinets and has been repainted. Custom window treatments and wall coverings grace all rooms. Heating, Air-conditioning, wiring and plumbing are all new.

The floor plan is ideal for entertaining. The first floor consists of front and rear foyers with staircases, library-den, huge living room with screened porch, large dining room, half bath, guest or master suite with dressing area and full bath, kitchen with French doors to an enclosed porch, breakfast room with bay window and utility room with a second KitchenAid dishwasher and range for ease in entertaining. The second floor has a disappearing staircase to a large attic, 45 ft. long center hall, three large bedrooms, two full baths with every convenience and a room-size closet dressing area.

In a word, nothing has been overlooked—no expense spared—and it shows. There is no other house like it and there won't be. This rare property is surrounded by nearly an acre of country tranquility, garage and several outbuildings. $160,000. Please call our office for full details or to schedule your private viewing.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

I have a suggestion for these high school marriage and family classes that are designed to discourage early marriages and/or pregnancies. If the schools really want to turn teens into the joys of celibacy, they should send each pupil to the supermarket with a tight food budget and at least two kids in tow.

This one simple assignment would cause the most precipitous decline in population since the bubonic plague swept across Europe. I honestly believe that when modern science made labor and delivery so easy, God replaced his ancient curse with grocery stores. If eating were not second on my list of priorities, I would avoid the heinous establishments altogether. As it is, I have often seriously weighed starvation as a viable alternative to taking my two children with me.

It might not be so terrible if it weren't for my affliction, but I find as I grow older that I absolutely cannot do two things at once. I certainly cannot shop and listen at the same time, and Meg's presence always requires the latter skill.

"I want some gum. May we have doughnuts? Why don't you ever buy me marshmallows?" she drones, substituting the products in question for the new ones each time we change aisles. Zachary acompanies her whine with a bellow. "Cookies! Gimme cookies!"

My affliction forces me to make some difficult decisions. I can either read the headlines on the National Enquirer out of the corner of one eye or slap Meg's hand away from the candy display. I can grab the nearest name brand regardless of price or nutritional content, or, while I make a more informed choice, I can surrender my cart to Meg. The last time I chose the latter alternative, she prompty rammed the cart into a cheese display and launched as efficiently as NASA the eggs, bottles and other breakables that I had piled at the end of the cart out of Zachary's reach.

After that happened, I immediately began to sink in the public opinion polls. As people who had the luxury of solo shopping stared with disapproval, I found myself barking orders with the abandon of a sideshow hawker. "Move it! Shut up! If you don't stop whining I'm going to grab your tongue and jerk your head inside out!" And then there's my favorite and probably the least effective, "If you sit on that bread, I'll sell you to the gypsies!"

I finally stumbled into the checkout line as if it were skid row. I barely had enough energy to hold Meg by a ponytail as I unloaded the smashed grapes, the pummeled bread, the open cereal boxes and the watermelon half with holes punched at five-fingered intervals. I intended to wait until the last minute to wrestle for the Sara Lee carton that Zachary was licking so contentedly.

The teen-ager in back of me turned to her mother and cooed, "Isn't he cute?"

Any high school that wants him can have him on loan.

Ellerbee Teams With Dobyns Again

Linda Ellerbee and Lloyd Dobyns are the co-anchors of "NBC News Overnight," a late-night newscast airing Mondays through Thursdays (1:30-2:30 a.m.) and Fridays (2-3 a.m.). This will mark the second teaming of the broadcasters, who co-anchored the NBC News magazine, "Weekend," in 1978-79.

Miss Ellerbee has a background of almost two decades in print, radio and television journalism. She left Vanderbilt University in her sophomore year to take a job as a trade magazine reporter in Chicago. Later, she spent two-and-a-half years (1964-1967) as a newscaster and disc jockey for radio station WVON in Chicago, and a year (1967-1968) as program director for radio station KSJO in San Francisco. She then lived in a commune in Juneau, Alaska, for three years, covering the state legislature for a newspaper and the Associated Press.

In 1972, Miss Ellerbee moved to Dallas, Texas, as an AP reporter, and six months later, was hired by the CBS affiliate in Houston. Her coverage of a mass murder case attracted the attention of WCBS-TV in New York, and for two-and-a-half years she was general assignment reporter for that station.

In 1975, Miss Ellerbee moved to Washington, D.C., where, as an NBC News Correspondent, she reported on the national political conventions in 1976, and was assigned to cover the House of Representatives in the fall of that year.

Dobyns began his broadcasting career in Roanoke, Va., in 1957, after receiving his B.A. degree in journalism from Washington and Lee University. He didn't join NBC until 1969.

From 1974-1979, Dobyns was the writer and anchor for "Weekend," which won two George Foster Peabody Awards. He has covered events in 41 states and 32 foreign countries, and has had 25 years of experience in administrative and on-camera posts in broadcasting.

Most recently, Dobyns was the reporter/writer for the NBC White Paper "America Works When America Works," a follow-up study to his documentary "If Japan Can...Why Can't We?", which won an Alfred I. Dupont Award and a Martin R. Gainsburgh Award for excellence in economic news broadcasting.

NBC NEWS correspondents Linda Ellerbee and Lloyd Dobyns are the co-anchors of "NBC News Overnight," the new hour-long newscast presented following late-night programs Mondays-Thursdays (1:30-2:30 a.m.) and Fridays (2-3 a.m.). This is a reunion for Dobyns and Ellerbee, who co-anchored the NBC News magazine "Weekend" in the late 1970s.

Kids love to watch TV. And a lot of parents are finding that there's one channel they don't mind their kids watching. In fact, they feel good about it.

On Nickelodeon, parents know their kids see quality entertainment. Exciting TV from the first and only channel exclusively for young people. Available only on cable TV, all day long.

Nickelodeon offers every age group commercial-free shows. All of them non-violent, with positive role models. It's no wonder the entire channel has been endorsed by the National Education Association.

At last, there's TV that both kids and adults can agree on.

The first channel for kids.

Chaos Ruled Fanny's Life

Barbra Streisand stars again as Fanny Brice, clowning her way through her comedy routines, singing all the best songs and loving all the wrong men, in "Funny Lady," to be rebroadcast as the ABC Sunday Night Movie, July 11 (8-11 p.m.).

In the musical romance, James Caan and Omar Sharif are starred as the men who brought a light to Fanny's eye and a hurting to her heart, with Roddy McDowall as a faithful friend who helps her pick up the pieces after each shattered romance. Ben Vereen also stars as a fellow performer who helps to make her onstage life magical enough to balance off the backstage realities.

The year is 1930 and the world is in a depression, but Fanny is not. Showman Billy Rose (Caan) has entered her life, providing her with some of the most spectacular musical hits of her career and, not so incidentally, with a worthy sparring partner. Rose and Fanny trade verbal punches — sometimes not so verbal — until they brawl their way to the altar in a wedding made, if not in heaven, at least in Tin Pan Alley.

Unfortunately, Fanny's first love, Nick Arnstein (Sharif) has reappeared, bringing with him the memory of what used to be — a memory that will eventually leave her with neither man, and only the love of a few million people to keep her warm.

THE FUNNIEST GIRL in town has grown up to be a very "Funny Lady," and Barbra Streisand stars once again as Fanny Brice in the musical comedy airing on The ABC Sunday Night Movie, July 11 (8-11 p.m.).

MARTY FELDMAN (left) and Michael York play identical twins and Ann-Margret portrays their attractive stepmother in "The Last Remake of Beau Geste," a comedy spoof of the adventure saga, to air on the NBC Monday Night at the Movies, July 12 (9:30-11 p.m.).

'Geste' Teems With Jest

The adventures of Beau Geste, the character who gained fame for his exploits in the French Foreign Legion, are parodied in "The Last Remake of Beau Geste." Marty Feldman's maiden voyage into film directing. The comedy will air on NBC's Monday Night at the Movies, July 12 (9:30-11 p.m.).

In the story, Sir Hector Geste (Trevor Howard) is determined to have a male heir, despite the fact that his wife has died while bearing him a daughter. To remedy the situation, Sir Hector adopts two identical twins — Beau and his ugly-duckling brother, Digby.

Six years later, Sir Hector leaves for the war in Sudan, entrusting the family's legendary Blue Water Sapphire with Beau. When Sir Hector finally returns home with a new wife, Lady Flavia (Ann-Margret), he finds that Beau (now played by Michael York) has grown into heroic manhood while Digby (now played by Marty Feldman) has remained awkward and ungainly.

The frail Sir Hector soon passes on and Lady Flavia makes immediate plans to sell the Blue Water Sapphire, but before she can carry out her scheme, both Beau and the gem disappear. To protect his brother, Digby confesses to the theft and is sentenced to years in prison. Lady Flavia manipulates his release, however, in the correct assumption that Digby will lead her to Beau and the stone.

Digby does just that as he joins his brother, now fighting under a sadistic Sergeant Markov (Peter Ustinov) of the French Foreign Legion. Threatened by a hostile Arab band headed by Sheikh Abdul the Disgusting (James Earl Jones), the brothers manage to turn the tables on their enemies and protect the valuable stone from the treacherous Lady Flavia.

"The Last Remake of Beau Geste" also stars Henry Gibson, Terry-Thomas, Avery Schreiber and Ed McMahon.

Vacation Plans

Popular young actor John Wesley Shipp, who portrays medical student Kelly Nelson on the contemporary serial "Guiding Light," will be using some of his vacation time this summer to appear in a production of "Oklahoma!" at the Theatre on the Square in Sullivan, Ill. Shipp will play the lead role of Curly in the musical.

Michele Will Tell

Q: Could you give me some information on Linda Gray? JOHNNY WRIGHT, LEXINGTON, N.C.

A: Linda Gray is a native of California, born on September 12 in Santa Monica. Ironically, she attended school across the street from MGM Studios, where she and her girlfriends obtained autographs from the stars. Today, Linda is the target of autograph hounds, since portions of "Dallas" are filmed on the MGM lot. A veteran of more than 400 commercials, Linda was attending Notre Dame Academy in West Los Angeles when she was spotted in the audience of a fashion show by a photographer, which led to a lucrative modeling career. Miss Gray and her husband, art director Ed Thrasher, live on three acres in Canyon Country, Calif., with their two children, Jeff and Kelly, and their quarter horses. They enjoy tennis, jogging and skiing.

Q: I would like to know if Doran Clark, the girl who played Jillian on "Kings Crossing," wears a leg brace in real life? CAROLE WEBB, WILSON, N.C.

A: No, she doesn't. However, it is interesting to note that Doran, while horseback riding at age six, was injured when her mount stumbled and fell on her, breaking her leg, coccyx and three ribs. As a result, she was terrified of riding. But her mother, an animal lover, forced her daughter back on a horse when Doran was 12. Within a year, riding became an important part of Doran's life and remained so throughout college. While she is no longer pursuing riding as a career, her equestrian skills were well displayed in both "Midland Heights" and "Kings Crossing." As an accomplished rider, she performed her own stunts.

Q: Could you tell me what happened to "The Phoenix"? Have they taken it off the air? Also, where can I write to Judson Scott? KAYE LONG, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

A: "The Phoenix" was a limited series on ABC. Evidently the network wasn't impressed with the show's ratings and decided not to pick it up as part of its fall schedule. You may write to Judson Scott in c/o ABC-TV, 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, N.Y., 10019. The network will forward his mail to him.

'New' Hal Holbrook Emerges In Film

Four-time Emmy Award-winner Hal Holbrook has established a solid reputation as one of our finest actors. So he wasn't quite prepared when director Sam Wanamaker began tinkering with his style for "The Killing of Randy Webster," to be rebroadcast on The CBS Wednesday Night Movies, July 14 (9-11 p.m.).

"I think Sam may have taught me something valuable," said Holbrook, who first rose to prominence in the late 1950s with an inimitable interpretation of folksy philosopher Mark Twain in the one-man stage and television show "Mark Twain Tonight!"

"In this film, Sam had me perform my scenes at a much higher emotional level than I'm used to doing," Holbrook confided. "It's a much more impassioned performance than I ordinarily would have done."

"The Killing of Randy Webster," based on an actual incident, is the story of a Louisiana couple who wage a tireless investigation into the slaying of their teen-age son by Houston police officers.

Gary McCleery portrays Randy, who was a troubled but likable 17-year-old, taken with joy-riding fast cars, gabbing with passing truckers on his CB radio, and adopting stray puppies. In February 1977, after a series of conflicts at school and with his parents, the Shreveport, La., youth takes off on a spree to Houston, where he steals a van and leads police on a wild chase through the suburbs. When the van is finally halted, Randy is shot to death by police officers who maintain that the boy had emerged from the vehicle pointing a gun at them. A .22 caliber pistol found near Randy's body is used as evidence in the case, and the slaying is quickly ruled a justifiable homicide.

Aided by United States Attorneys, John and Billie uncover new evidence which allows them to reopen the case. The final verdict was issued in October 1980.

answer ⟵ Studies of Terman (Stanford University) tend to show that there is a tendency for like to marry like—that there is a fair correlation between husband and wife in intelligence, appearance, etc.

Film Adapted From Classic

George C. Scott stars in "Islands in the Stream," to be rebroadcast on Friday, July 16 (11:30 p.m.) as The CBS Late Movie. The drama is based on the best-selling Hemingway novel of the same name. When Paramount released the film in 1977, it became the first Hemingway work to be brought to the "big screen" in two decades.

"Islands" is a skillful mixture of character study, romantic drama and suspenseful adventure. Its focus is the very soul of a man, Tom Hudson (Scott), an unsuccessful artist, husband and father. When he begins to feel his failure, Tom sequesters himself away from the world and settles on a semi-isolated tropical island. Once there, however, he finds that the world and a second World War are moving ever closer to his doorstep.

Those familiar with Hemingway's work will find one particular scene early in the film vaquely reminiscent of another of his works, "The Old Man and The Sea." As it happens, the Pulitzer Prize-winning novella, published in 1952, was an extract from "Islands in the Stream."

The intensely autobiographical aspect of "Islands" caused its author such personal pain that he put his partially completed manuscript aside in the 1940s. Years later, Hemingway's widow, Mary, and an editor from Scribner's went to work on its completion.

Scott began work on the Hemingway film shortly after completing a memorable run on Broadway as both director and star in Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman." Scott won an Academy Award for his starring role in "Patton," an honor also bestowed on that film's director, Franklin J. Schaffner, who skillfully handles the direction of "Islands."

Family Moves Roots To The Rural West

A city-bred family from Long Island adjusts to life in a rural Texas town when they become owners of a country western saloon, in "Lewis and Clark," airing on Friday, July 16 (8-8:30 p.m.).

In the comedy series, Gabe Kaplan plays Stewart Lewis, who dreams of being his own boss under the mammoth Texas skies. He does this by becoming proprietor of a financially shaky bar — with a show hall — in Luckenbach, Texas.

Roscoe (Guich Koock) manages the club, the Nassau Country Club, and offers rustic wit and wisdom to complement Lewis' Eastern style.

Alicia Stewart (Ilene Graff) goes along with her husband's move, but remains doubtful of her adaptability to life in a small Texas town.

Rounding out the cast are Amy Linker as Kelly, the Lewis' 14-year-old daughter; Wendy Holcombe as Wendy, a waitress in the saloon; and Michael McManus as the adaptable barkeeper John.

As an entertainer Kaplan has shown wide appeal, playing to sold-out crowds in colleges and in Las Vegas. Born in Brooklyn, his first love was baseball. When a shoulder injury prevented him from aspiring to a baseball career, Kaplan took a job as a bellboy at a hotel in Lakewood, N.J. Every night he watched the entertainers and realized it was what he wanted to do.

Eventually, he prepared material, played small clubs in New York City, worked clubs in Miami, then the Playboy circuit and finally Las Vegas and network television. Kaplan not only writes his own material but also contributes jokes to other performers.

The Pirate King

Popular daytime actor Don Stewart, seen regularly as attorney Mike Bauer on the "Guiding Light," will be cavorting as the comical Pirate King in the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta "The Pirates of Penzance" in three different theaters on the John Kenley Summer Theater Circuit this summer. Fans can see Stewart on stage in Akron, Ohio, August 9-15, in Dayton, Ohio, August 16-21, and in Flint, Mich., August 22-29.

Summer On Stage

Along with his regular role as Dr. David Stewart, one of the long-popular characters on the daytime drama "As the World Turns," Tony Award-winning actor Henderson Forsythe constantly keeps himself busy with theater projects, and this summer is no exception. During the first week of August, Forsythe will be appearing at the White Barn Theatre in Westport, Conn., in a new play called "Foxtrot by the Bay."

Donald Bungles New Jobs

Donald Duck faces the trauma of unemployment in "Duck for Hire," airing on "Walt Disney," Saturday, July 17 (8-8:30 p.m.) on CBS.

In the animated comedy, Donald is a "duck for hire" after quitting his job at the studio in a huff in order to find another, "an important one with big pay."

The irascible duck actor soon discovers that finding and keeping a position is not easy. For a start, he answers an employment agency's advertisement and accepts a job as a filling station attendant.

After an angry outburst in which he destroys a new car, Donald switches employment to become a carnival worker. He encounters his nephews, who beat him at his own game of harassment, and returns to the employment agency only to be instantly deputized as a truant officer.

Filled with the power of his new position, Donald sets out to catch his first culprits, his nephews. Soon frustrated by the clever ducklets, Donald decides to chuck it all and become a lighthouse keeper. Unfortunately, he meets a pelican who settled there first.

Again jobless, Donald is told by the employment agent he can have a position as a bellboy if he can maintain his dignity — no temper tantrums allowed. This is impossible for Mr. Duck, and he decides to go into business for himself.

With the aid of the employment agent, Donald sets up shop as a manufacturer of nut butter. Then the chipmunks Chip 'n' Dale arrive and succeed in frustrating Donald once again.

Unemployed and unhappy, Donald returns to the employment agency, arriving at the very moment the Disney Studio calls for a duck. Naturally, Donald happily accepts his return to his old job.

DONALD DUCK becomes a bell-duck in "Duck For Hire," the cartoon special about Donald's tribulations while searching for employment. The show airs on "Walt Disney," Saturday, July 17 (8 p.m.) on CBS.

Cyclists Tour Countryside

The 1982 edition of the Tour de France marathon bicycle road race, recognized as the grand championship of professional cycling, will be covered by NBC Sports for the second straight year and on Sunday, July 11 (4-5:30 p.m.). The network will pick up the action in progress. This 23-day event, which started on July 2 will conclude on the magnificient Champs-Elysees in Paris.

This 69th Tour de France will be contested over 2200 miles of scenic and treacherous French, Belgian and Swiss countryside, a true test of endurance for both man and vehicle. There are two days of rest as well as several transfers by car, rail and plane during the course of the Tour.

The well-conceived course holds challenges for everyone — climbers, sprinters and roadmen — yet appears to be ideally suited to France's Bernard Hinault, who in 1981 captured his third Tour de France title after having won the coveted yellow jersey in 1978 and 1979. Dubbed "Le Blaireau" (The Badger) by his peers, the compactly built Hinault is again the strong favorite to finish on top.

Hinault will not ride unchallenged, however. Among the contenders is Californian Jonathan Boyer, who last year made professional cycling history when he became the first American to ride in the Tour de France. Boyer, who finished a very respectable 32nd in 1981, will again be competing for a French racing team.

The Belgian duo of Lucien Van Impe and Freddy Maertens should keep Hinault glancing over his shoulder throughout much of the race. Van Impe, standing only five feet, six inches tall, placed second in the 1981 Tour and is the finest climber in recent history — and as a result has been dubbed professional cycling's "King of the Mountain." Maertens, a powerful rider, has earned the reputation as the top sprinter in the world.

Also providing a challenge should be Australian Phil Anderson, who as a 23-year-old rookie in last year's Tour, placed a remarkable 10th and even wore the yellow jersey — emblematic of the lowest composite time during the race — during part of the circuit.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

"Harper Valley's," BARBARA EDEN, is changing her image of "the girl-next-door" — she is currently touring as the madam in "Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" and then plans to star as a call girl in Harold Robbins' "The Jennie Denton Story" a telemovie being filmed for NBC.

MARGARET LADD, "Falcon Crest's" Emma Channing, is expecting twins for Thanksgiving. She and her husband, actor/writer LYLE KESSLER, have been assured that one twin is a boy but the other one, being camera shy, has it's back turned and its sex cannot be determined.

There will be a cast on HERVE VILLECHAIZE'S right hand during the early episodes of "Fantasy Island's" new season. He suffered the fracture in a fall after being bitten by a dog. Rumors have it that Herve has not been feeling well and his temper tantrums are becoming legendary — causing crew members to refer to "Fantasy Island" as "Frantic Island." However, RICARDO MONTALBAN, being the star that he, is has managed to keep things pretty stable on the set now closed to visitors.

RICHARD THOMAS believes in doing things in triplicate. Besides fathering triplets, the former Walton's star has three projects lined up for himself. After filming "Johnny Belinda" for CBS — he will reprise his Broadway performance in "The 5th of July" with SWOOSIE KURTZ on tape for Showtime — then star as HANK WILLIAMS JR. in a movie production for NBC.

Why you need this Extra Protection Hospital Plan

It's a well-known fact that the cost of hospital care continues to climb at an alarming rate. That's why most of us carry some form of health insurance—whether it be a group policy, major medical coverage or even Medicare—to share in the cost of a hospital stay.

But have you stopped to consider that as hospital charges go up, so does your share of the bill?

Most health policies pay only 80% of your hospital bill—and in years past, that may have been enough. But today, with the average cost of a trip to the hospital reaching over $1,900.00*, your share could be difficult to handle.

If you were just returning home from the hospital, would you be able to write a check for your share of the bill? If not, would you have to take money out of your savings? Or worse yet, would you have to look for help?

These questions point out just how important it is to have this Extra Protection Hospital Plan. The cash benefits you collect could mean the difference between getting through a financial crisis and having to look to your savings or elsewhere for help.

That's why we say:
We're here when you need us.

*American Hospital Association

I want to share with you this touching letter that we received recently from one of our policyowners.

Robert A Reed
President

Dear Dr. Davis,

I wish to express my thoughts and feelings concerning Physicians Mutual Insurance Company. I bless the day I received a form, asking if I would take out this protection for only $1.00 for the first month's protection.

I'm truly grateful I did because the unfortunate happened to me in January, a few months after I took out the insurance. In January, I was diagnosed as to having a form of cancer. I was in the hospital for 25 days. Well, I'm out of the hospital now and I'm doing well.

What I really want to tell you is how Physicians Mutual took care of my claim. I received the best possible service a person could ask for. Your company should be congratulated because they stood behind everything said. Your company gave me their level best, and they proved to be truly and totally worthy of their trust.

Your service is fast, courteous and helpful in all ways possible. My claim was processed and I received my money, and believe me, it was a blessing. So once again, thanks to your company for sending me the protection form. Because then I didn't really think I would ever need insurance, but I'm glad I took it out and have it today.

Thank you,
T.A. Borski

P.S. Your company was there when I needed them. I wouldn't hesitate to recommend your insurance to all people.

Here's how your Extra Protection Hospital Plan helps you beat the rising cost of hospital care!

Pays you $50.00 a day $1,500.00 a month!

You'll collect these cash benefits whenever you are hospitalized for covered sickness or accident. In fact, you'll collect when your doctor places you in the hospital for any reason—even a simple check-up.

Pays you $75.00 a day, $2,250.00 a month for Cancer, Heart Attack

Your daily benefits are increased 50% if you or any covered member of your family is hospitalized for cancer (including leukemia and Hodgkin's disease) or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction).

Pays you double benefits $200.00 a day, $6,000.00 a month for you and your spouse

Under the Husband-Wife or All-Family Plans, you'll collect double your regular benefits during the time you and your spouse are both in the hospital—due to the same or different accidents.

Pays cash benefits in addition to any other insurance

You'll collect benefits over and above any other insurance—including group policies, major medical coverage, workmen's compensation—even Medicare.

That's what makes your Extra Protection Hospital Plan so important—because many health policies pay only 80% of your hospital bill. This is the ideal way to get the cash you need to help cover the remaining costs—without having to dig into your savings or look for help.

Pays benefits directly to you

Your benefit check will go directly to you unless you tell us otherwise. The money is yours to spend as you wish—to help pay the hospital bill, the doctor's bill, or even household expenses.

Furthermore, your benefits are not subject to state or Federal income tax.

You get lifetime coverage and benefits

There is no limit to the number of days you can collect benefits. That means you'll be protected even if you're hospitalized for the rest of your life!

Pays maternity benefits, too

You're covered for normal childbirth when pregnancy occurs anytime after your policy is issued. And there's no added cost for this coverage!

We can't cancel your protection or raise your rates individually

No matter how old you become or how many claims you have, we GUARANTEE never to cancel or refuse to renew your Extra Protection Hospital Plan. Only you can cancel your coverage.

What's more, you can never be singled out for a rate increase. In fact, the only way we can raise your rates is if we do so for all policies like yours in the entire state. Your rate will not change when you move from one age group to another . . . even if your health changes.

Pays from the very first day in any hospital

You'll collect cash benefits the FIRST DAY and EVERY day you're hospitalized for a covered sickness or accident.

You're covered in any hospital in the world, and now that includes federal and VA hospitals as well. However, nursing homes and convalescent, extended-care or self-care units of hospitals do not qualify.

Pre-existing conditions are not covered for the first year

Old health problems (those that became evident or were treated before the effective date of your policy) are not covered for the first year of your policy. But once that year is up, these pre-existing conditions are covered!

If you are 65 or over you will be covered for cancer, heart attack, stroke, hernia, disease or disorder of the prostate, tuberculosis, cataracts, emphysema, cirrhosis or diabetes if your hospital confinement commences more than six months after the effective date of your policy.

Reduced benefits for mental illness

Half benefits are paid for up to 30 days' confinement due to mental illness.

Pays full benefits for all ages

Now you can protect your entire family with $50 a day benefits for all, regardless of age.

Even though hospitals charge the same rates for all ages, you'll find that many similar plans have reduced benefits for children and people 65 and over. But this Extra Protection Hospital Plan has no reductions for anyone, at any age.

You can't be turned down!

We guarantee to issue your Extra Protection Hospital Plan (P370 Series) regardless of your age, health or size of family. As soon as we receive your completed application, we will issue your policy and put it in force.

If you're age 65 or over, you'll also receive copies of the North Carolina Buyer's Guides with your policy. If you wish to have the Guides before you apply, you may request them from the company.

Once your policy is issued, your coverage begins immediately—even before your policy arrives in the mail. There's no waiting period. Of course, we can issue only one policy to you on a guaranteed issue basis.

If you're already a Physicians Mutual policyowner and would like information about additional coverage available, please write for details.

Enroll today! No salesman will call

Simply fill out the brief application and mail it back to Physicians Mutual along with $1.00 for your first month's coverage. There is no medical exam required, no health questions to answer.

It's important to note that you'll be dealing directly with the Company—by mail or by phone—from the time you enroll right up to the time you need us for claim service.

There are no salesmen, no "middlemen" involved. That means fast, direct service.

So don't hesitate—mail your application and $1.00 today!

THREE IMPORTANT GUARANTEES

1. We guarantee to issue this insurance regardless of your age, health or family size.
2. For as long as you live and keep your policy in force, we guarantee never to cancel or refuse to renew your policy.
3. We guarantee to refund your money if, for any reason, you decide you do not want this protection, and you return your policy within 30 days.

First Choose the Plan That Fits Your Needs Best.

Individual Plan

Ideal for the single person . . . or for the individual family member who needs protection and wants separate insurance.

Husband-Wife Plan

Designed for the married couple without children or whose children are grown. Pays full benefits for both of you—no reductions for the spouse.

All-Family Plan

Offers protection for the entire family—father, mother and all eligible dependent children—with full benefits for all. Future additions to the family are covered automatically at no extra cost.

One-Parent Family Plan

Created for the special needs of the single parent. Covers you and all eligible dependent children with full benefits for all.

Now Choose the Combination of Cash Benefits and Premium Options That Fits Your Needs and Budget Best.

Remember—Your First Month's Premium is Only $1.00! Then Continue at the Low Monthly Rate Shown Below.

OPTION A

Pays $50.00 a day ($1,500.00 a month) from the very first day of hospitalization for a covered sickness or accident.

	Under 60	60 and over
	(Use age of principal insured)
Individual	$15.35	$23.35
Husband-Wife	29.75	45.75
All-Family	34.95	50.95
One-Parent Family	20.55	28.55

OPTION B

Pays $30.00 a day ($900.00 a month) from the very first day of hospitalization for a covered sickness or accident.

	Under 60	60 and over
	(Use age of principal insured)
Individual	$ 9.95	$14.95
Husband-Wife	18.75	28.75
All-Family	21.95	31.95
One-Parent Family	13.15	18.15

NOTE: Your renewal rate does not increase and your benefits do not decrease as you move from one age group to another.

A Special Note to People 65 and Over . . .

Too many people 65 and over have seen a serious accident or illness wipe out their life savings almost overnight. Our Extra Protection Hospital Plan can help prevent that from happening to you.

You cannot be turned down for this coverage no matter what your age. And your premiums won't increase when you turn 65.

You receive full cash benefits in addition to any other insurance you have, including Medicare. No matter how long you are in the hospital.

Physicians Mutual
Rated A+ (Excellent)

Physicians Mutual has been awarded the highest rating—A+ (Excellent) from A.M. Best Company, recognizing our financial stability and sound operating performance.

At its founding in 1902, the Company specialized in health insurance for physicians, surgeons and dentists only. Then in 1962, recognizing the growing need for extra protection against the rising cost of hospitalization, we began offering supplemental insurance to the general public.

Headquartered in Omaha . . . licensed in 49 states and the District of Columbia, Physicians Mutual is proud of its record of service. Last year alone, we paid claims totalling over $77,000,000 on all policies.

No matter how large or how small your claim, you can depend on us ...

"I am so glad that I can say so many nice things about this Company. I have had the use of your benefits a number of times and I have no complaints at all.

"You are honest, prompt, you care about others—and your service is great. With many thanks—"

Mrs. Catherine Fee, South Carolina

... to back your policy with fast claims service.

"I have a policy with Physicians and already I find that I have been reimbursed more than I have paid in. The nice thing is that claims are paid promptly and no questions asked."

Mrs. Rebecca Lemieux, Maine

Not losing interest in anti-inflation.

FOR PAUL A. VOLCKER, chairman, Federal Reserve Board

Don't the high interest rates that the United States Government pays on loans from the Federal Reserve add to inflation? —E.F.H., Richland, Wash.

● Actually, one reason Government interest rates remain high is because of the present rate of inflation and expectations of further inflation. In addition, the Federal Reserve's policy of fighting inflation by restraining money expansion also produces upward pressure on interest rates. But a policy of restrained growth in money and credit is not a high interest-rate policy. We must eliminate inflation and the expectations of inflation. Interest rates can come down and stay down only if we continue to pursue an anti-inflationary course of money growth.

FOR LISA BROWN, star of TV's Guiding Light

Were you ever as conniving as Nola, the character you play? —J.M., Utica, N.Y.

● Yes, I used to manipulate my parents because I was an only child. Mom was very strict, but Dad would side with me if I played my cards right. At school, I tried to wangle my way out of doing homework if there were extracurricular activities that were more attractive. But Nola and I are both survivors.

FOR LEONARD NIMOY, star of Star Trek II

Do you turn green with envy every time astronauts take off for outer space? —W.T., Terre Haute, Ind.

● Absolutely not. I saw the first shuttle land and was as thrilled as the rest of the world. Space is fascinating and I am in awe of astronauts, but I'm a bad and bored tourist. Trekking on new terrains is not for me. I'm interested in what the heavens hold, but my curiosity is not insatiable.

FOR BELVA PLAIN, author of Eden Burning (Delacorte)

Is your new book considered sexier than your previous works? —N.B., Casper, Wyo.

● I'm not aware of it being so. I don't go in for anatomical descriptions; I prefer accounts of sexual love which are reserved in the use of language. This effect is much more powerful than some current best sellers which remind me of textbooks on gynecology.

No joking about discipline.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

KIDS: Carol Burnett, the wicked orphanage keeper in the film version of Annie, reveals how she disciplines her own kids in real life: "I ground them from watching TV if they act up. I also hide or get rid of all junk food in the house. I did it from day one, and I'm still doing it — even though the oldest is nearly 19." Albert Finney (Daddy Warbucks) whose son is 22, said: "I quite like him, now that he's grown, because he doesn't give me any trouble. He just left Oxford, is walking around with a degree in modern history and is trying to get a job." Ann Reinking (Daddy Warbucks's secretary) likes kids. She had to: "I'm one of seven. It was either sink or swim, so I swam." She does admit to being mean once in a while — she'd stick out her tongue at any kid she felt deserved it. She adds: "Since I've grown up, I haven't been too nasty." Aileen Quinn (Annie) said the part of the film her brother Drew, 7, enjoyed most was the scene in which she beats up tough, neighborhood boys. . . .PETS: If you have to live a dog's life, best place to do it is in Beverly Hills. Pooch owners in those parts seem unaware that money is in short supply. Actress Robin Rochelle Stille (Easter Sunday, The Slumber Party Massacre) is also a gift consultant at a large pet-store chain. Some canine gifts she has handled include a $2,500 custom-made dog house, a $5,000 gold pooper scooper, collars from $800 to $1,000. "It's not unusual for a dog's bed to go for $150 or fur-lined jackets for $350." One customer, whose life was supposedly saved by her dog, threw a party for it, inviting dog friends from all over. Cost: $40,000. Says Robin: "My dog is lucky if he gets an extra can of food on his birthday." . . .ITEMS: Carole Bayer Sager (the new Mrs. Burt Bacharach) calls her home "the house that Neil built," because she got it via profits from Neil Simon's They're Playing Our Song. She and Marvin Hamlisch wrote the score for the Broadway musical. . . . When Kristy McNichol found out she would need golden tresses for The Pirate Movie, she checked out umpteen color specialists and opted for Tina Cassady of L.A. She discovered that Jamie Lee Curtis, Susan St. James and Valerie Harper — all of whom Tina had once blonded — were still talking to the colorist.

PRO AND CON

Should a Percentage of Interest And Dividend Income Be Withheld Automatically for Tax Purposes?

(Question submitted by Betty Gross, San Benito, Tex.)

PRO Donald T. Regan, Secretary of the Treasury

Recovering tax revenues by withholding — since a reporting system is already largely in place — is both an efficient and sensible step. Taxpayers still fail to report and pay tax on about $20 billion of taxable dividends and interest. This diminishes public respect for the tax system and jeopardizes our system of voluntary compliance. In addition, past experience has proven that withholding taxes is by far the most effective means of combating noncompliance in the reporting of taxable income.

CON Representative Tony Coelho (D.-Calif.)

The Reagan Administration's proposal to withhold taxes on interest and dividend income is unfair to taxpayers and creates unnecessary and costly paperwork for our financial institutions. Our savings and investment rate in the U.S. is already too low — recent figures show rates of 26 percent in Japan, 13.8 percent in Great Britain and only 5.7 percent in the U.S. Imposing new withholding taxes would further discourage savings and investment; in fact, I introduced legislation in Congress to prevent it.

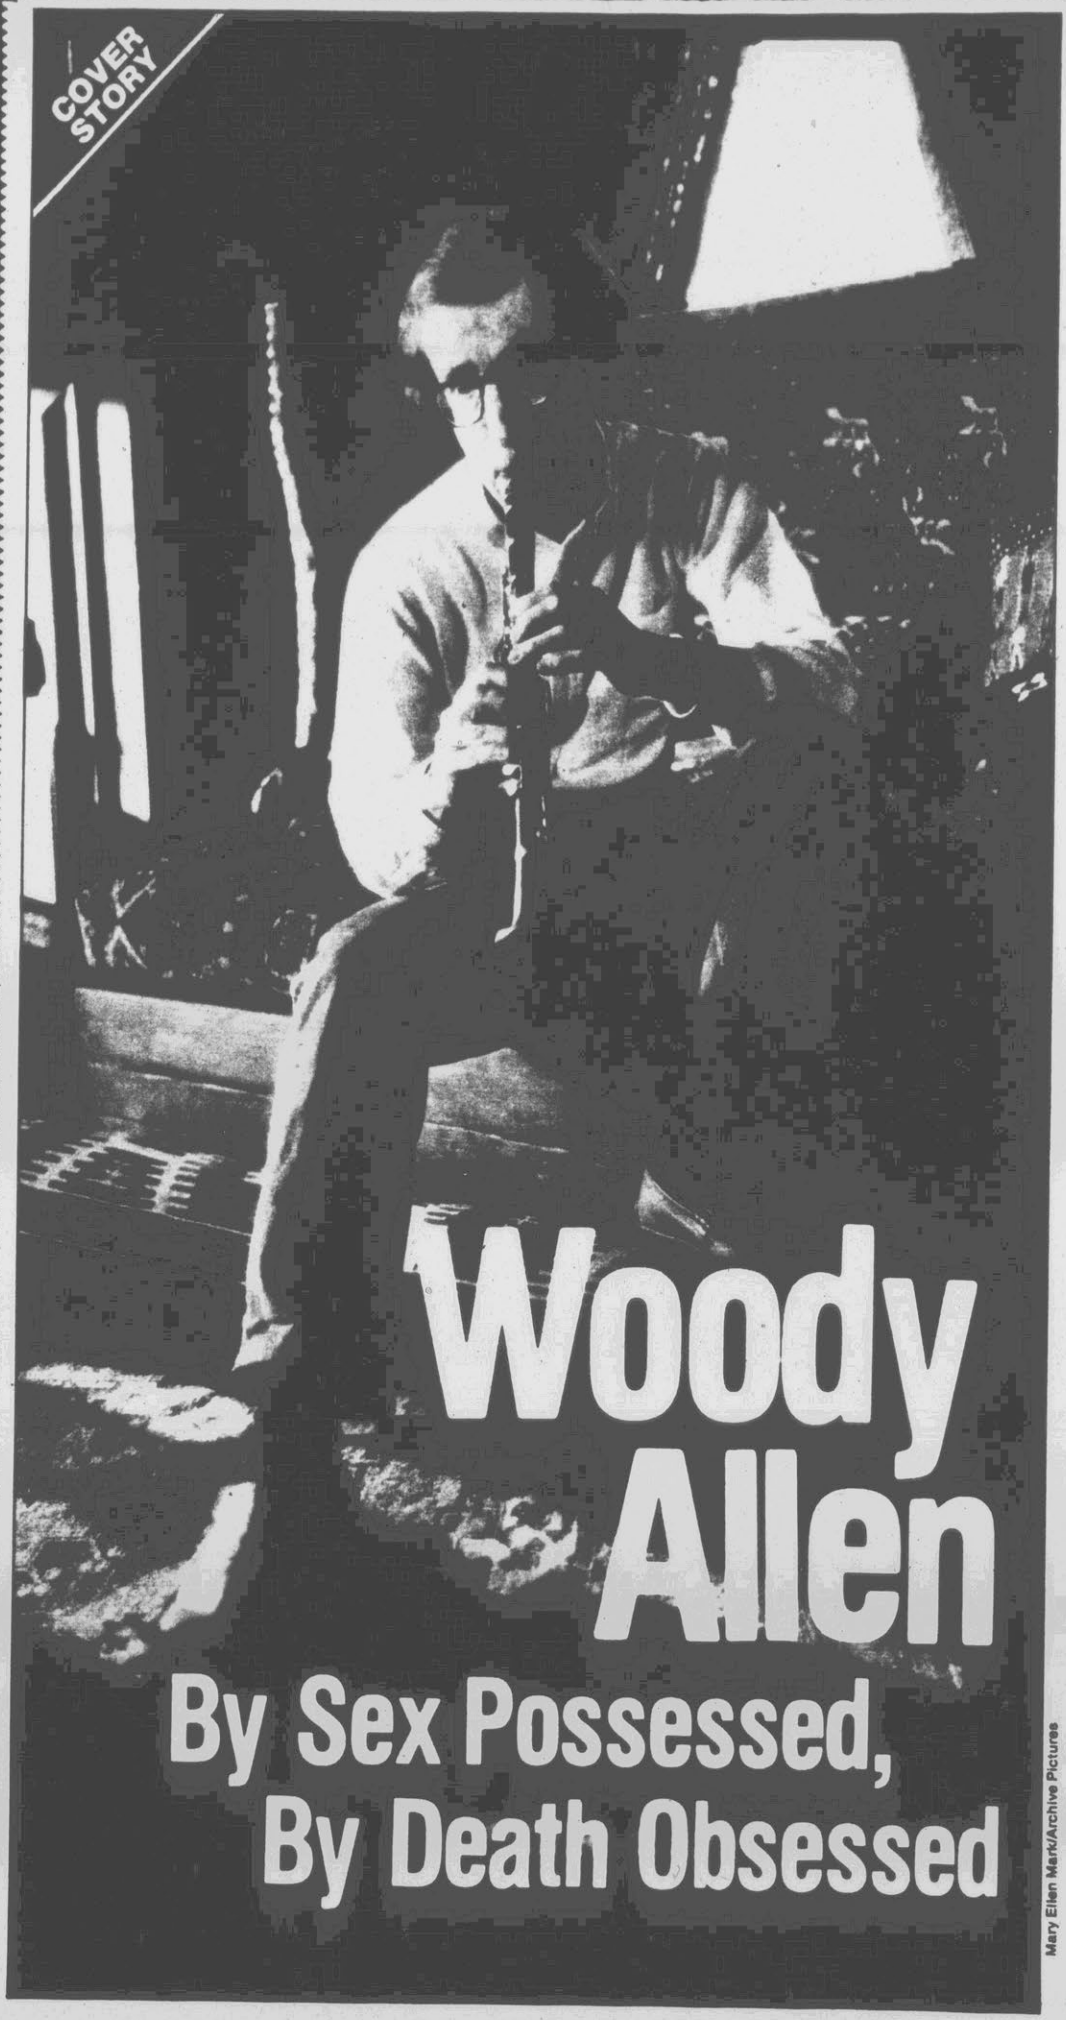
COVER STORY



Woody Allen

By Sex Possessed, By Death Obsessed

Mary Ellen Mark/Archive Pictures

An accomplished nightclub clarinetist, Woody practices daily in his plush Manhattan apartment.

By Mark Goodman

"I'm a hypochondriac," Woody Allen says. We are sitting in his New York City penthouse apartment overlooking Fifth Avenue and Central Park. It is sunny and bright outside, the sort of rare and cheery day that brightens the lives of most New Yorkers and depresses Woody Allen to no end. "About a year ago," he continues, "I was suddenly convinced I had a brain tumor. It came to me on a Friday, and I called my doctor. What could he say? He was sympathetic and told me to come over to his office for skull X-rays."

Allen fidgets on the edge of his chair and plunges into his tale of Round 243 with his favorite opponent: Death.

"Anyway," he says, "that left me the whole weekend to wallow in anxiety. The world was totally different to me, and things that were normally meaningful had no meaning whatsoever. I knew I was going to die, and the first thing I did was curl up in my bed and think, 'How am I going to tell my parents?'

"I think when you're dying," he continues, "a different sort of reality sets in. I tried to get that idea into Stardust Memories [his last film, released in 1980]. But this was different — I mean, movies became utterly meaningless to me. I didn't think of romantic deeds; I just thought about the fact that I was going to die, and everything took on a sharp focus. Normally, life is comforting in the small things we do; we don't go around looking at life in sharp focus, because we just can't stand too much reality. Then this sharp focus comes in when you're convinced you're going to die, and you think you'll never hold those ridiculous values again.

"Well, I didn't die," he concludes, "and I went back into that pre-fab world so cleverly and successfully shaped to deny reality. I thought I would never forget how hard that reality was, but of course I went back into soft focus. I tried to explain it to friends, and it didn't work. But I can't believe how vivid it was — a really terrible experience."

Was it? Or was it, in the end, just more grist for the racking, painfully funny mills of Allen Stewart Konigsberg, a.k.a. Woody Allen, 46, who understands as well as any artist alive that, when Tragedy takes center stage, Farce is waiting in the wings. Allen is clearly serious about his latest bout with the Reaper, and yet he just as clearly views such recollections as part of a cosmic conspiracy that will reflect very fetchingly in the soft focus of his screen comedies.

Not that Woody Allen has been loath to try to capture hard realities on film. A confessed Ingmar Bergman manqué, Allen paid homage in 1978 to the brooding Swedish genius with Interiors, a weighty enterprise that received mixed reviews. Then there was Stardust Memories, a rare Allen box-office dud which also got whacked by more than a few of the critics. These ventures in no way detracted from the telling comedies — ranging from the wildly satirical Bananas and Sleeper to the bittersweet Annie Hall and Manhattan, with his former love and steadfast friend, Diane Keaton — that have made Allen the premier comedic commentator of our frantic, fragmented age.

Now Allen has returned to broad fun and barbed word games in his latest film, A Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy, starring José Ferrer, Mary Steenburgen and Woody's latest love, Mia Farrow. (Allen emphasizes that, published reports to the contrary, he did not marry Mia in Connecticut last year. "I've never even set foot in Connecticut," he says.)

The film, slated to open around the country this week, takes William Shakespeare and, after the Allen fashion, turns him on his head. "It's a comic movie," Allen says. "I guess you'd call it a farce. It extols the country and summer; it's hopefully funny, hopefully entertaining. It's a six-person story and, predictably, it has romantic interaction of people regardless of who's married to whom. There's a lot of magic and enchantment in it, just as there was in the original Shakespeare — woods, lakes, streams. It was a happy, fortuitous event and shot only 35 minutes north of Manhattan.

"In fact," Allen adds, "it has the same sort of affection for the country that I showed for the city in Manhattan. Actually, I don't like summer, country or sun. I like dreary weather. I had visions of being stuck in the country, so I made sure I could drive back to Manhattan every night."

Therein lies the definitive existential statement by Woody Allen: the dark canyons of New York as the physical and spiritual epicenter of existence. Allen admits that this viewpoint shapes all of his ideas. "I'm limited by my own experiences," he says, "and what's of interest to me — Manhattan, the Russian Tea Room, Elaine's, Bloomingdale's. Besides, I just don't like to shoot out of New York. If I had, say, a great idea for a movie in Nebraska, I wouldn't do it because I don't want to go to Nebraska."

Allen isn't kidding. He is positively neurotic about straying too far for too long from the neurotic city of his birth and its fashionable haunts. All he has really done is move uptown from the dreary, low-rent neighborhood in Brooklyn that formed and defined him. He saw himself as an undernourished schlemiel with wild red hair, encased in a body and a milieu that bore no relation to his perfervid dreams. Born of those twin impoverishments was the self-deprecating comedy. "I wanted to be an F.B.I. man," he once said. "But you have to be 5 feet 7 and have 20/20 vision. Then I toyed with becoming a master criminal — but you have to be 5 feet 7 and have 20/20 vision."

Instead, as a brilliant teen-ager but desultory student at Brooklyn's Midwood High School ("It was a school for emotionally disturbed teachers," he will recall), he became a clown, firing out one-liners for his friends and eventually for the gossip columns of Walter Winchell and Ed Sullivan. After dropping out of New York University, Allen started writing gags professionally; first for Herb Shriner, then for Garry Moore and Art Carney and finally for Sid Caesar. His desire to perform his own stuff took him to a Greenwich Village night spot called the Duplex; soon his comic observations of the ills and itches of a neurotic society made him a popular figure from the clubs of New York and Chicago to the Hungry i in San Francisco. His favorite ground was one he still enjoys: the anxiety and angst of Jewish American boyhood. "When we'd play softball," a reminiscence went, "I'd steal second, then feel guilty and go back."

He first transposed his material to film as the screenwriter for a piece of silliness called What's New, Pussycat?

As reported in news stories in the New York Times, Washington Post, Chicago Tribune, Miami Herald, Ecologist, Paul Harvey News . . . . . .

ROACH PRUFE, #1 in University Tests

In a report released by the UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA and published by the ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY OF AMERICA, eight commercial and test products that included a broad spectrum of insecticides were tested against a product called "ROACH PRUFE." The tests were conducted in heavily infested apartments and showed at the end of the 8 week test period that with a single application of ROACH PRUFE in each apartment, the roach population was reduced by an average 99.5%. By comparison, with the worst results were two widely recognized insecticides currently used in aerosols and applied by exterminators. They showed a 0% (no) reduction at the end of the 8 week tests.

Commenting in a letter, the University researchers stated: "Our experience under field conditions has shown that when properly applied, the ROACH PRUFE formula provides a degree of cockroach control that is usually superior to all other registered commercial or consumer products."

Disease Carriers Odorless, Easy To Apply

Alan Brite, holder of 15 U.S. and foreign patents has just been awarded the first of 3 U.S. patents pending on ROACH PRUFE. Brite says: "Because roaches simply do not recognize ROACH PRUFE as an insecticide, they do not try to avoid it by scattering to other parts of your residence as they do with other insecticides. Plus the electrostatically charged powder sticks to their bodies. They then carry the powder back into the walls spreading it among the other roaches. The result is you kill not only the roaches you see, but also those hiding and multiplying in the walls."

ROACH PRUFE is odorless, non-evaporating, non-staining and non-flammable. The powder is simply applied with a teaspoon under kitchen appliances and in other hidden areas. It can be used in homes, schools, hospitals, restaurants, plus new construction.

If ROACH PRUFE is not available at your local hardware store, the manufacturer will be glad to send it to you. To obtain a one pound container, just send a check or money order for $8.90, which includes postage. Add tax if you live in California. One pound covers up to a 9 room residence. You'll need an extra pound for a basement or garage. Send to Copper Brite, Inc., Dept. 12 at 5147 W. Jefferson Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90016. Copies of the University test are available by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Copper Brite, Inc., Dept. A.

Brian Hamill/Photoreporters

Imitation of life: In Annie Hall, Allen and Keaton replayed their romance.

There, Allen says, he learned what the Hollywood ball game was all about: "When you're making a big picture for $4 million, there are a lot of people around and they tell you they are protecting your investment. They wanted a girl-girl sex-sex picture to make a fortune. I had something else in mind. They got a girl-girl picture which made a fortune."

The money made from Pussycat enabled Allen to strike out on his own and make the pictures that have become his trademark: Allen, the modern Chaplin, raking himself and everyone around him over the coals of bewildering sex and pending death.

"I'm obsessed with sex and death," he readily concedes. "Everybody is. That's what people are usually talking about, even if the conversation seems to be about something else. In a certain sense, Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy is about these themes."

The film is also sure to reflect Allen's own tangled romances. Allen's first marriage, to Harlene Rosen (he was 19, she was 16), ended in divorce, and that sundered union became the stuff of his early standup comedy — to the point where Harlene sued for defamation of character. "She was extremely childish," Allen would recount on-stage. "One time I was taking a bath and, for no reason at all, she came in and sank my boats."

His second marriage, to actress Louise Lasser, also ended in divorce — but by then, Allen had learned the delicate art of maintaining a friendship after the fire has gone out. That didn't keep him from including details of the breakup in his Bogart spoof, Play It Again, Sam, which played to enthusiastic audiences on Broadway and later in movie theaters around the world.

Indeed, Allen has now become an international cult figure. "Most of my films barely top the break-even point," he says wanly, ignoring the huge grosses of Academy Award winner Annie Hall and Manhattan. "I'm terribly dependent on a foreign following — a little in Japan, a little in Sweden."

That, too, is typical Allen. Not only will success fail to make him very happy, if someone suggests it should, he will simply deny that it's success. Even now he worries over his new movie, coming out as it will against projected summer blockbusters such as Annie and Steven Spielberg's E.T.

"I've never been confident enough to do a big movie," he says. "But I also think they're bad for the industry. There's a hysterical quality in Hollywood now. The theory seems to be that they're competing with television, and since human stories are limited to TV, people go to movies only for great spectacles."

Allen's own popularity disproves this myth that is held so dearly in the counting houses of Hollywood. Still, his fame comforts him no more than the thought that history will record him as the truest comedic genius of the times.

"Afterlife," he sighs, "is a vain, seductive and meaningless hope. It doesn't make any difference if they're playing your movies after you're gone. You're just gone. So immortality is not a big deal. Look at Sophocles and Euripides. They're no big deal now."

Such gloomy, universal musings on Life, of course, will translate sooner or later into an epigram; he wouldn't be Woody Allen if he was not waiting in the wings with the existential punch line.

"I don't want to live forever in the hearts of my countrymen," says Woody. "I just want to live in my own apartment." FW

COOKBOOK

Zest For Fire

Out of the pan, into the fire: This pan-dressed fish is stuffed with tasty seasonings, placed in foil and then grilled.

Put some sizzle into summer dining with our savory barbecue recipes for lamb riblets, saucy turkey wings, tangy chicken and much more.

BY MARILYN HANSEN

Let's cook it outdoors is a familiar refrain, and it's probably because barbecuing is one of America's favorite pastimes. In fact, newly released statistics reveal that grill sales have doubled in the past 10 years and that in 1982:

- There will be an estimated 919,000,000 barbecues in approximately 64 million households.
- Three out of four households in the United States (or approximately 175 million people) will barbecue at least once.
- More than $4 billion will be spent on barbecue-related items including the food to be grilled:

Food/Grocery	$ 3.6 billion
Charcoal briquets	$279 million
Barbecue Grills	$379 million
Lighters	$ 72 million
Tools/Equipment	$ 23 million
Miscellaneous Supplies	$ 1.1 million
TOTAL EXPENDITURES	$ 4.4 billion

So, get in on the fun. You can barbecue in your backyard, on your patio, on your balcony or even at a nearby community beach or park. The choice is yours, but everyone can participate.

FOIL GRILL STEAMED WHOLE STUFFED FISH

- 1 (5-6-lb.) cleaned, whole, pan-dressed fish
- 2½ cups water
- 1 cup white rice
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine
- ¼ cup snipped dill weed
- ½ cup julienne-cut carrot strips
- ¼ cup julienne-cut slivers of green onion
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- Dash Tabasco sauce
- 8 thin slices lemon
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

1. Have fish prepared to cook; prepare and light charcoal grill.
2. In medium saucepan, bring water and salt to boil. Add rice and 1 tablespoon butter. Return to boiling, cover and cook for about 20 minutes, or until rice is tender and water is absorbed.

3. Turn rice into mixing bowl and add 3 tablespoons snipped dill weed, 5 tablespoons julienne-cut carrots and 1 tablespoon julienne-cut green onion. Stir in Tabasco and lemon juice.

4. Tear off a large sheet of heavy-duty aluminum foil; lightly grease and place a layer of sliced lemon in center of foil. Place fish on top of lemon slices and stuff with rice stuffing. Close opening by tying with cord. Brush fish with melted butter, place lemon slices on top and sprinkle with remaining dill, carrots and green onion.

5. Bring foil up around fish and seal center and ends with double folds. Cook over medium-hot coals on an open brazier grill. To determine grilling time: Measure raw fish, stuffed fish or fish roll-ups at thickest point. If fish is placed 4 inches from medium-hot coals, grilling time in basket, on grid or in covered grill will be 10 minutes per inch; if foil-wrapped, 15 minutes per inch.

Makes 4 to 6 servings

Menu suggestion: Cold Cucumber Soup, Foil Steamed Whole Stuffed Fish, Zucchini and Tomatoes Parmesan, Corn Sticks, Raspberry Sherbet and Strawberries.

Note: Recipe is adapted from Barbecue, copyright by the Consumer Division, Reynolds Metals Company, Richmond, Va. Used by permission.

CHUTNEY LAMB RIBLETS

2 lbs. lamb riblets
1 bay leaf
2 cloves garlic
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon peppercorns
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup chopped chutney
1 tablespoon curry powder
¼ cup vegetable oil
1 small onion, thinly sliced

1. Trim lamb riblets of excess fat. Place riblets in large saucepan or Dutch oven. Add water to barely cover.

2. Add bay leaf, garlic, salt and peppercorns to water. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Drain.

3. Combine tomato sauce, vinegar, pepper, chutney, curry powder, vegetable oil and onion.

4. Pour chutney marinade into shallow glass pan; add riblets, coating well. Cover and refrigerate. Allow to marinate for 2 hours or overnight. If time is short, cook right away.

5. Lift riblets from marinade and place on barbecue grill. Grill about 5 inches from hot coals, 7 to 10 minutes; turn, brush with chutney marinade and grill 7 to 10 minutes more, or until nicely browned.

6. Heat remaining chutney marinade to boiling. Serve as a dip with riblets.

Makes 2 to 3 servings

Menu suggestion: Chutney Lamb Riblets, White or Brown Rice, Steamed Spinach or Swiss Chard, Marinated Cucumber Salad; Chilled Beer or Iced Tea.

STEAK SANDWICHES WITH BLUE CHEESE DRESSING

2 (12-oz.-size) center-cut sirloin steaks or 1 (1½-lb.) flank steak
Salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
½ cup beer
¼ lb. blue cheese, domestic, Danish, Roquefort or Gorgonzola
1 cup mayonnaise
1 clove garlic, crushed
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
2 cups shredded lettuce
Dill pickle sticks and cherry tomatoes
2 (½-lb.-size) loaves Italian bread

1. Grill steaks as desired over hot coals to preferred degree of doneness. Sprinkle steaks lightly with salt and pepper and place on a cutting board.

2. Make Blue Cheese Dressing: In bowl of food processor or electric blender, combine beer, blue cheese, mayonnaise and garlic. Process until blended, but not completely smooth, leaving bits of blue cheese unblended. Refrigerate if not serving immediately.

3. Split Italian bread in half lengthwise. Combine garlic and melted butter; brush cut sides of bread with mixture. Wrap each in foil and place on grill to heat about 15 minutes.

4. To serve, cut steak thinly on the diagonal and place on bread. Top with shredded lettuce and Blue Cheese Dressing. Close with top half of loaf; cut loaf in half. Garnish with dill pickles and cherry tomatoes.

Makes 4 servings

Menu suggestion: Steak Sandwiches with Blue Cheese Dressing, Corn on the Cob; Chilled Beer or Iced Tea.

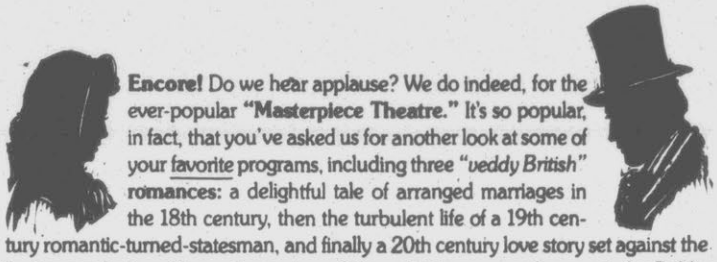
Observations



Encore! Do we hear applause? We do indeed, for the ever-popular "Masterpiece Theatre." It's so popular, in fact, that you've asked us for another look at some of your favorite programs, including three "veddy British" romances: a delightful tale of arranged marriages in the 18th century, then the turbulent life of a 19th century romantic-turned-statesman, and finally a 20th century love story set against the background of world war. Super fare all, brought to you, as always, on the Public Broadcasting Service.

Marriage-go-round. Tonight, catch up with the second episode of Pride and Prejudice, Jane Austen's "cheerfully malicious view" of 18th century social pretensions, which will run for three more Sundays. It's about "the dreadful plight" of having five unmarried daughters, and the fascinating batch of bachelors they meet. They include the Reverend Mr. Collins, a character one critic has called "the most delicious bore in English literature." You'll also enjoy the odious Mr. Carpenter; the ne'er-do-well Mr. Wickham; and Mr. Darcy, a wealthy bachelor who's not at all what he seems to be.

"We missed part one. Could you fill us in?"

Dizzy doings. On Sunday, Aug. 8, tune in for more romance, but of a far different sort. The tale concerns a dandy-politician whose flamboyant speech matches his wardrobe...a lover whose path is strewn with London's most beautiful women...a novelist who scandalizes society by revealing its racier secrets...a commoner with entrée to palaces. No wonder friends called him "Dizzy." He's Disraeli, twice Prime Minister of England, whose story will unfold over four weeks.

Love and war. For another kind of romantic rebel try Testament of Youth, the true-life story of feminist and pacifist Vera Brittain that begins Sunday, Sept. 5. She battles society's mores about "a woman's place" and is accepted at Oxford University, then becomes a battlefront nurse during World War I, where she sees all those she loves die in the war that destroyed a generation. Critics called this five-part series "a plush, terrible fable," and "a sustained triumph." You'll call it exciting drama. But then, that's true of all our encore season offerings –proof that love is indeed lovelier the second time around. Check local listings for broadcast schedules.

It's a fact: During an average week, nearly 80 million Americans–over 50 percent of all TV households–watch PBS programs, according to the A.C. Nielsen Company.

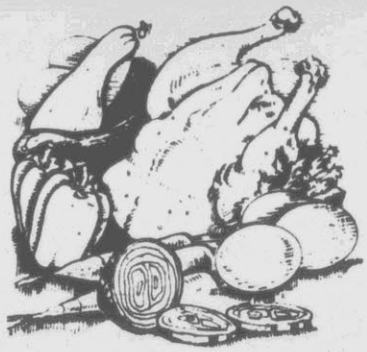
Zest For Fire



BARBECUED TURKEY WINGS

4 (2½ lbs.) turkey wings
1 teaspoon salt
1 bay leaf
¼ teaspoon whole black peppercorns
1 medium-size onion, stuck with 2 whole cloves
1 cup favorite barbecue sauce, your own or bottled*

1. Place turkey wings into a 6- to 8-qt. Dutch oven and barely cover with water. Add salt, bay leaf, peppercorns and onion to water. Heat to boiling; reduce heat and simmer covered about 45 minutes or until fork-tender.
2. Drain turkey wings. Discard the broth or use to make a soup.
3. Dip wings into barbecue sauce to coat completely. Place turkey wings on barbecue grill about 4 to 6 inches from medium-hot coals and grill 10 to 15 minutes, basting with barbecue sauce, until wings are nicely browned. Makes 2 to 4 servings

* The recipe for Robert C. Baker's Chicken Barbecue Sauce in this collection works beautifully for the turkey wings.

Menu suggestion: Cranberry Juice, Barbecued Turkey Wings, Garlic Grits Cheese Casserole, Bread & Butter Pickles, Hot Biscuits, Key Lime Pie; Chilled Zinfandel or Bardolino Spritzers.

ROBERT C. BAKER'S CHICKEN BARBECUE SAUCE

1 cup cooking oil
1 pint cider vinegar
3 tablespoons salt
1 tablespoon poultry seasoning
1 teaspoon ground black pepper

1. In a large mixing bowl, beat the egg, then add the oil and beat again. Add salt, poultry seasoning, pepper. Pour into jar, cover and refrigerate. The sauce will keep for several weeks.
2. This mixture is enough to use for 10 chicken halves. Makes 3 cups

To Barbecue Broilers

1. Halved broiler-fryer chickens are available at any meat market. The ideal size for a broiler half is 1 lb. Each half serves one adult or two children.
2. Place the broiler halves over the fire after the flame is gone. Turn them every 5 to 10 minutes, depending upon the heat from the fire. Use turners or a long-handled fork. The chicken should be basted with a fiber brush at each turning. The basting should be light at first and heavy near the end of the cooking period.
3. Cooking time is about 1 hour, depending on the amount of heat and the size of the broiler. To see whether it's done, test the chicken by pulling the wing away from the body. If the meat splits easily and there is no red color in the joint, it's done.

Note: Recipe and information is from the booklet "Barbecued Chicken," by Cornell University professor Robert C. Baker. The booklet (E862, 50 cents) is available from the Cornell Distribution Center, 7 Research Park, Ithaca, N.Y. 14850.

Menu suggestion: Barbecued Chicken, Potato Salad, Mixed Greens and Tomato Salad, Chocolate Brownies and Ice Cream; Fruit Juice Punch.

Readers: Don't forget that the money-saving coupons appearing in FAMILY WEEKLY give you a shopping bonus.

BRUNO'S SECRET BARBECUE SAUCE

½ cup good quality vegetable oil
1 cup good quality ketchup
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
Juice of half a lemon
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup clover honey
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 tablespoon parsley flakes

1. Combine all ingredients in a small saucepan, heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer for about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Now ready to use. Store any leftover sauce in the refrigerator. Great on steaks, chops and hamburgers. Makes 2 cups

Note: John C. Bruno is the proprietor of the Pen and Pencil Restaurant in New York City. In his relaxed hours he is an enthusiastic gourmet cook.

STEAK LOVERS OWN BARBECUE SAUCE

2 bottles (5-oz.-size) steak sauce
1 cup wine such as burgundy, rosé or Lambrusco
½ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ teaspoon liquid smoke seasoning or hickory-smoked salt
½ cup butter or margarine
4 tablespoons molasses
2 teaspoons cornstarch
4 tablespoons water

1. In a medium-size saucepan, combine steak sauce, wine, pepper, liquid smoke, butter and molasses. Heat, stirring, until butter melts and mixture comes to boiling. Reduce heat to very low and simmer uncovered for 15 minutes.
2. In a small cup, blend cornstarch and water smoothly. Stir into hot sauce. Cook, stirring, until sauce boils and thickens. Cook one minute longer.
3. Great for steaks, chops and hamburgers. Store any leftover sauce in refrigerator. Makes 2 cups

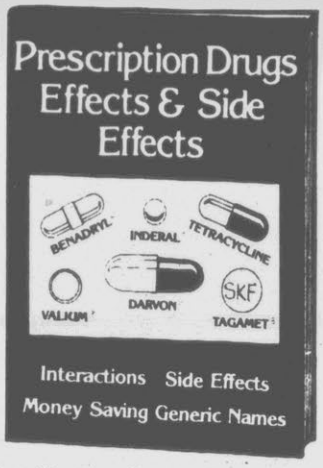
Prescription Drugs' Side Effects Revealed



(Peachtree City, Georgia)—

FC&A, a Peachtree City, Georgia, book publisher, announced today the release of a new, easy-to-read book for the general public: Prescription Drugs Effects and Side Effects. It reveals the little-known side effects of over 200 of the most frequently prescribed drugs: side effects which are known to few people outside the medical profession.

The Desirable Effects Of Drugs

You take drugs prescribed by your doctor for their desirable effects, like relieving pain, combating infection, birth control, aiding sleep, calming down, fighting coughs, colds or allergies, or regulating heartbeat and blood pressure.

Undesirable Side Effects

Unfortunately, these drugs can also cause undesirable side effects, such as diarrhea, dizziness, drowsiness, dry mouth, depression, headache, insomnia, upset stomach, blurred vision, muscle cramps, rashes, constipation, fever, nasal or lung congestion, high or low blood pressure, fearfulness, excitement, ringing in the ears, loss of appetite, loss of balance, fluid retention, sleepiness, nightmares, decreased sex drive, or even heart failure.

Contains Latest Information On Each Drug

Prescription Drugs Effects and Side Effects was written with the assistance of two pharmacists. They have helped to ensure that the latest information has been included in the 1982-83 edition. More than 200 of the most often prescribed drugs are discussed. Information is given in easy-to-understand language instead of hard-to-understand medical terms. Descriptions of drugs are listed in alphabetical order for quick, dictionary-style reference.

Easy To Read

For each drug, the book has information on the brand name, any money-saving generic name, intended good effects, possible side effects, warnings, and possible interactions with other drugs or foods. Other chapters in the book discuss questions people ask about taking prescription drugs, how to save money by asking your doctor to prescribe drugs with generic names, and definitions of drug categories. (For example: a drug may be called an "analgesic"—analgesic means "pain reliever".)

How To Help Your Doctor

When you use this book to learn what side effects might occur from drugs you are taking, you can tell your doctor if you have any of them. If the side effects are greater than expected, he may then adjust your dosage, discontinue your medication or switch you to a different drug without such side effects.

HUMOR

Surviving Your Teen's First Party

By Carol Eisen Rinzler

Three things in life are certain: death, taxes, and that one day early in its adolescence your adolescent will want to throw a party. In fact, the certainty of the first two is open to debate: The science of cryogenics is developing rapidly, as is the art of finding in the Internal Revenue Code what some call loopholes and others call triumphant archways. Nothing, however, is in the offing that will prevent the third.

Prepare for the event and for learning your part in it (provider-pariah) by scouting a party at another adolescent's home. The easiest way to do that is to arrange to fetch your own adolescent. (You need not arrive early; whenever you arrive will be early.) Notice on entering that although the music is being played at a deafening roar, the screaming can be heard clearly above the music, and the giggling can be heard clearly above the screaming. Now find the host parent and ask him or her how many adolescents are in there. Provided the parent has not yet been reduced to a state of babbling incoherence, you will get an answer; the number quoted will be approximately one-third of your estimate.

Ken Lubin

Adolescent parties are of several varieties, but central to all of them is food. Figure on one quart of ice cream, one quart of milk and one one-liter bottle of cola per guest. Also, one pound per guest of any mixture of the following:

- M&M's
- Chocolate-chip cookies
- Reese's Peanut Butter Cups
- Potato chips, popcorn, pretzels

Also essential is the proper setting. Your adolescent will expect you to have the house appropriately neat and clean. Repainting and upholstering probably are in order. Now is the time to buy the wall-to-wall carpeting you were thinking about or, better, to move.

If possible, discourage the dinner party, since integral to it is the food fight, which generally begins when someone does something disgusting — e.g., inserting a small piece of everything edible into a soda can. Another person does the same, then another. Soon afterward somebody spills, then somebody else spills, and about that time somebody else discovers that a fork makes a terrific slingshot. And there you are — or will be the next morning — preparing to reupholster again.

It's also a good idea to discourage "the silent party." The action here revolves around an electronic game that has been hooked up to your television set in such a way that you will never be able to get Channel 7 again.

The Party

Except for the noise and confusion, the basic adolescent party seems at first very much like an adult party — people dance, people talk, people eat. The major difference is that adolescent guests have no compunctions about announcing that they are bored or about telling the host or hostess that he or she should figure out something else for them to do.

Your role in all this is simple: to refill the potato-chip bowls and, if necessary, to empty the punch bowl, with the unobtrusiveness of a butler at an English country-house weekend. Under no circumstances say, "Why don't you . . .?" As you cower in your closet, derive some comfort in the knowledge that no matter how many of its friends tell your adolescent its party was the social event of the decade, it will be so convinced the party was a disaster because of the way you came in with the Tostitos that it will not schedule another party until next year. Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

The Road to Raleigh is:

Yellow lines and just laid asphalt.
Endless stretches of black ribbon that run all the way to where the sun disappears.
It's telephone poles and fence posts,
you keep passin' 'em one by one.
It's those rows of corn, that sea of wheat.
Tall trees blocking out the sun.
It's 13 speeds in an overdrive gearbox.
And a CB handle
when you've got the country music turned off.
The road to Raleigh is a man who gets up when he wants to...
goes to bed when he says.
Pushes himself to the limit and then relaxes with gusto.
He doesn't give a damn what you think.
The road to Raleigh has the feel of hard rain and blowin' snow.
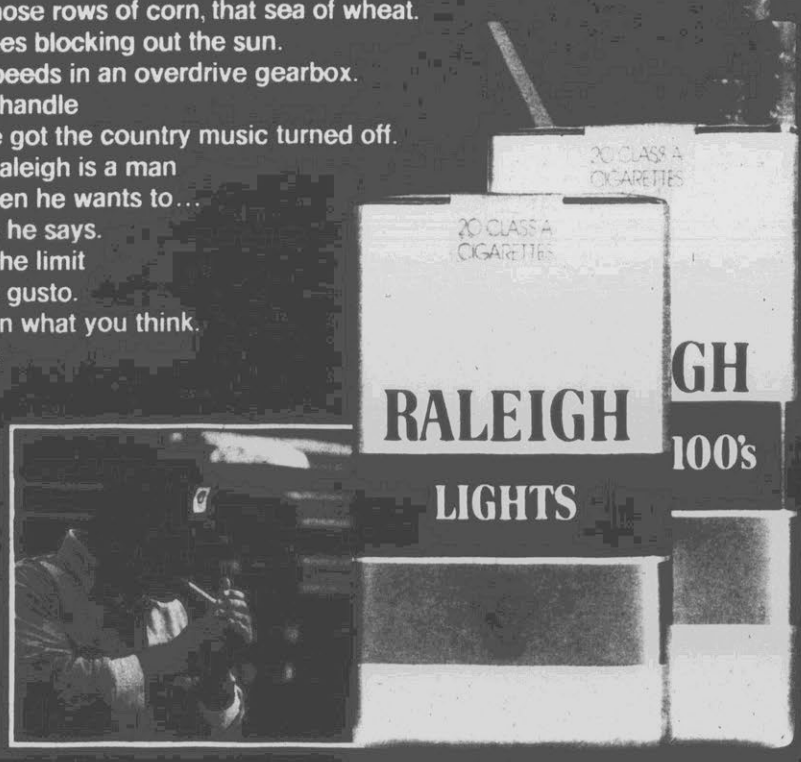
The light of a rising sun,
the pale of a pea soup fog.
It's got the smell of hot coffee.
And the stench of diesel fuel.
It's got men.
It's got freedom.
It's got the flavor you can only get
When you're on the road to Raleigh.



Take the road to flavor.

HEALTH

When to Call Your Family Doctor

By Jody Gaylin

When it comes to calling the doctor about a health problem, some of us are quick to reach for the telephone while others hesitate for fear of being a nuisance.

Which is the best approach? It depends entirely on the circumstances. But the following guidelines may save you money and both you and your physician valuable time.

Certain health emergencies are obvious. If someone is unconscious, in a stupor, disoriented, in severe pain, gravely injured or bleeding uncontrollably, get help immediately, says Dr. Keith W. Sehnert in his book The Family Doctor's Health Tips (Meadowbrook Press).

Eileen McKeating

But what about all those other times when the situation doesn't really look like an emergency but you are still uncertain about what to do: a child who wakes up crying several times during the night; an adult whose cough has lingered for a couple of weeks?

According to Dr. Charles W. Smith, director of the Family Health Center at Miami Valley Hospital in Dayton, Ohio, if you're in doubt about whether to contact a physician, you might express your concern to someone and ask for his or her objective assessment of the situation. This consultation, he says, "provides an important initial screening." In fact, he adds, studies have shown that the average person who does call the family doctor has already evaluated the situation, usually by talking with a family member or friend.

Dr. Smith suggests you also ask yourself a few questions before you pick up the phone: "Is this something that is likely to go away with time (sinus headache, mild sore throat, backache, pulled muscle)? Or is it an illness that has been unusually persistent (vomiting over 24 hours, a cold that has lasted for more than a week)? Will I feel comfortable postponing my call until morning — or will I lie awake and worry all night? Are the symptoms likely to flare up at 2 A.M. — and therefore would it be better to phone now, at 5 P.M., just to make sure I'm doing the right thing?"

Another guide is how anxious you are. If you are spending lots of time worrying about your illness, it is appropriate to check with your doctor over the phone, if just to relieve your anxiety, says Dr. Don Cauthen, chairman of the department of family and community medicine at Texas A&M University College of Medicine.

Young parents are particularly likely to find themselves worrying about whether they should phone the pediatrician about a child's health problem. In fact, new parents often ask pediatricians for a list of symptoms that warrant a call. In his widely read book, Baby and Child Care (Pocket Books), Dr. Benjamin Spock suggests that parents use common sense. Consult a physician promptly if the baby "looks different or acts differently," he says. Signs to watch for include unusual pallor, drowsiness, restlessness or irritability.

While no expert would counsel waiting during an obvious emergency, all suggest that it is important not to bother doctors outside of office hours for routine questions. Most pediatricians set up call-in hours to deal with nonemergency questions. Don't feel obligated to "check in" with your physician every time you come down with the sniffles. Call if you have been managing a problem and it hasn't improved — or if you lack adequate information to make a decision.

When you do call, have a pencil and paper handy to write down what the doctor tells you to do. Try to have your questions written down in advance as well. "When calling about sick children, formulate all the data ahead of time," says Dr. Smith. "Know the child's temperature and the onset of symptoms. Try to describe them accurately. Otherwise the doctor cannot help you over the telephone."

Even if the problem turns out to be trivial, says Dr. Smith, it is absolutely legitimate to place that call. When it comes to your health or the health of your children, it never hurts to err on the side of caution. FW

An original sculpture in fine porcelain.

Hand-painted and issued in a limited edition.

Art of exceptional charm and beauty, at the very attractive price of $75.

ERIC TENNEY is one of today's most beloved and accomplished animal artists. An award-winner at the prestigious Edinburgh Festival. Featured in important exhibitions at London's Tryon and Sladmore galleries. And internationally acclaimed for his portraits of the endearing animal characters of the best-selling book, "Watership Down." His works are sought after on both sides of the Atlantic.

Now, for the first time ever, the artist has turned his talents to a medium that collectors especially prize: fine porcelain sculpture. The result is a work of pure magic, called "Fascination." Crafted in fine, hand-painted porcelain, this delightful work of art will be issued at the very attractive price of $75—which may itself be paid in three convenient monthly installments of $25 each.

In "Fascination," Tenney portrays an inquisitive Tabby cat, with a loveable personality that will instantly charm any viewer. Beguiling in spirit, the sculpture is also remarkably lifelike in detail. Every feature is captured with delicate care. The glowing eyes. The little pink nose. The very nap and texture of the fur!

"Fascination" will be individually crafted, completely hand-painted—and will bear the artist's signature on its base. Examples of the sculpture will be crafted under the supervision of Franklin Porcelain in Japan, home of some of the world's most gifted porcelain craftsmen. And in the tradition of classic porcelains, it will be issued in a limited edition. At the end of this single year, 1982, the edition will be permanently closed.

Just to own this enchanting sculpture—to display it in your home and show it to friends—is certain to be a source of satisfaction. Whether you admire beautiful works in porcelain, or simply have a fondness for cats, this is a piece that will bring you pleasure for many years to come.

To reserve "Fascination" by Eric Tenney, you should act promptly. To be valid, the accompanying Reservation Application must be returned to Franklin Porcelain, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19091 no later than the date it bears: July 31, 1982.

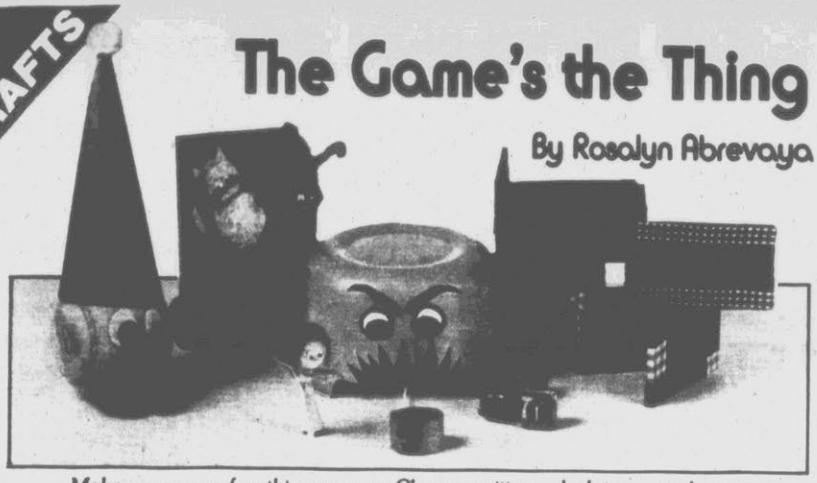
CRAFTS

The Game's the Thing

By Rosalyn Abrevaya



Make your own fun this summer: Clowns, critters, clackers — and more.

Summer is a great time to make fun things that you can play with outdoors, take to the beach or give as gifts.

You can make handkerchief parachutes and dollar-bill rings, magic clackers and roly-poly clowns, paper-clip jewelry, ball-fringe critters and even games such as "Sally, Come Home" and "Bug-Eating Monsters" that will entertain adults and children alike.

You can make handkerchief parachutes with handkerchiefs or scarves, clothespins and string in a few minutes. They'll provide hours of fun.

Turning a dollar bill into a ring may look difficult, but once you know the secret of folding it you can make one in minutes — and you'll always have money on hand.

Magic clackers which youngsters love are easy to construct with small pieces of wood, strips of ribbon and glue. They stack one on top of the other or hang in a row when you hold them up. No amount of pulling can separate them. Yet with a bend of the wrist the blocks can be made to tumble one after the other.

For the very young, make a roly-poly clown. It can be pushed sideways, backwards or on its nose, but it will stand up again every time.

Paper-clip jewelry made with fabric or colorful paper is a nice informal accent for casual summer wear, and making it is a great project for the youngsters. It will keep them busy in the car or on a rainy day at home.

The ball-fringe critters are easy to put together. Backed with felt, they can be worn as pins or made into refrigerator magnets if you add magnetic stripping.

You and your kids can also put together the game of "Sally, Come Home" made with a milk carton and a golf tee. Another version made with a margarine tub and a bottle cap is the "Bug-Eating Monster and His Victim." They are inexpensive but fun for the youngsters.

And what about all of those stones you collected at the beach? You can draw faces on them and put together your own "rock group."

COLLECTORS SPOON FREE!

To introduce the Heritage Collection of American State Spoons, we offer to send you free, the spoon that commemorates our Nation's Capitol. It ordinarily sells for $5.00 but it's yours with our compliments!

The Collection consists of every state plus the District of Columbia. Each spoon is 4½ inches, plated in pure silver. At the top is the District's Official Seal. Below that, the year of admission to the Union, the Official Flag and Flower. Along the handle is the District's name and in the bowl, a scene of the Capitol building where Congress meets.

We also include the spoons that honor the states of Connecticut and Delaware, sent strictly on approval — to examine for ten days. If not delighted, return without further obligation. The District of Columbia spoon is yours free! If you keep the two spoons, you may enroll in our Collectors Program to acquire the other spoons of the collection three at a time by mail, and pay half the $5.00 price you would pay if you purchased the spoons individually.

So send for your free spoon today. Enclose 25¢ to partially cover cost of postage, handling and insurance. Offer limited to adults — one spoon per household. Allow 4 weeks for delivery.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

MEET MR. T.

When Mr. T. talks, you listen. So we listened as he told how he grew up as Lawrence Tero, one of 12 kids, on the mean streets of Chicago's South Side, how he went on to become the bodyguard for folks like Muhammad Ali, Rod Stewart and Steve McQueen and how he won the role of Clubber Lang, the fearsome challenger in Rocky III.

"I used to watch gangster shows and see those bodyguard guys just standing around with their arms folded, opening doors for the boss. And I said, 'I can do that,'" related Mr. T., 5 feet 11 inches tall, 213 pounds, not including several dozen gold necklaces and rings on each finger. (You tell him it looks silly.)

United Artists

New role suits him to a T.

"Next to God, there is no better protector than I," reads Mr. T.'s business card and, accordingly, he's just upped his bodyguard fee to $5,000 a day. What makes him the best? "I'm willing to lay down my life for my clients," he says. "That's why I'm selective. I'm not willing to die for everybody."

Rocky's Sylvester Stallone spotted Mr. T., now 30, when he won a bouncer contest on TV. We asked Mr. T. if he could whip Stallone in a bout that wasn't staged. "Next question," he snapped, adding, "Hey, man, you don't bite the hand that feeds you."

WHERE IT COSTS TO LIVE

Peter Bono

No wonder those Congressmen are always trying to vote themselves pay raises. According to 1980 Census data of 38 urban areas with at least 1 million population, Washington, D.C. is the most expensive locale in the country in which to own a home. It costs the average homeowner there $528 a month, including mortgage, taxes, insurance, utilities and fuel. Next come New York City, Long Island, N.Y., Newark, N.J., Anaheim, Calif., San Jose, Calif., Boston, Houston, Chicago, San Francisco/Oakland, Denver/Boulder and San Diego. The least expensive place to own a home is San Antonio, at only $304 a month, followed by Tampa/St. Petersburg, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Buffalo, New Orleans, Kansas City, Sacramento, Calif., and Cincinnati. Cincinnati is also the cheapest city in which to rent, at an average cost of only $211 a month including utilities and rent. Anaheim, Calif., averages top rental dollar — $361 a month.

DISABLED KIDS & THE FAMILY

What effect does a disabled child have on other family members? Sociologist Naomi Breslau of Case Western Reserve School of Medicine recently interviewed 835 mothers, 370 of whom had physically disabled children. "It has often been thought that a disabled child has a devastating effect on the family," she told us, "but we're not finding this to be so." For instance, siblings of disabled children do not seem any more likely to suffer severe psychiatric impairment, as is often feared, although they do exhibit more aggressive behavior both at home and at school.

Elana Amity

Moreover, mothers of disabled kids did not say that the children put extra stress on their marriages. However, divorced and separated mothers did place more blame on the disabled children for their marital breakups: Among these women, three times more mothers of disabled kids than mothers of healthy kids said the children caused marital stress.

EXTINGUISHING FALSE ALARMS

Besides being dangerous, false fire alarms are expensive. Lawrence Hartshorn read that in his hometown Providence area alone, false alarms cost $350,000 a year and that nationwide, the tab might run as high as $450 million.

So Hartshorn had an idea. The former truck driver designed a cylindrical chamber about the size of a phone booth with a conventional fire alarm inside. But to set off the alarm, a person must step inside and close the door. This automatically locks him in until the firemen arrive or until the preset time lock goes off after five minutes.

A hot idea in fire fighting.

Hartshorn explains that a booth is set up at least 50 feet from the nearest building. He says that since his company installed the first one last July outside a Providence high school — previously the scene of 60 false alarms a year — there have been none. He is now putting up 11 more booths in the Providence area. "The cost of each is $4,995," he notes, "but if it prevents 16 or 17 false alarms a year, it pays for itself."

EVER-EARLIER MATURATION

In the past century, the average age of menarche — the onset of menstruation — among U.S. girls has dropped by almost two full years. As reported recently in The New England Journal of Medicine, data reviewed show menarche occurring two to three months earlier each decade among European women since 1795 and about two months sooner among American women since 1877. The average age of menarche in the U.S. was 14.75 in 1877, about 14 in 1900 and 12.8 by 1947. It has leveled off since. The authors attribute the drop to improved conditions, including better diet.

Merit Taste Does It!

Overwhelming majority of MERIT smokers report taste bonus at low tar.

The results from the most rigorous MERIT research to date are conclusive:

MERIT taste is a major factor in completing the successful switch from higher tar cigarettes.

MERIT Takes Taste Honors.

Nationwide survey reveals over 90% of MERIT smokers are glad they switched from higher tar cigarettes. In fact, 94% don't even miss their former brands.

Further Evidence: 9 out of 10 former higher tar smokers report MERIT an easy switch, that they didn't give up taste in switching, and that MERIT is the best-tasting low tar they've ever tried.

MERIT Beats Toughest Competitors.

In addition, extensive unmarked-pack tests confirm that MERIT delivers a winning combination of taste and low tar when compared with higher tar leaders.

Confirmed: The overwhelming majority reported MERIT taste equal to—or better than—leading higher tar brands.

Confirmed: When tar levels were revealed, 2 out of 3 chose the MERIT combination of low tar and good taste.

Year after year, in study after study, MERIT remains unbeaten. The proven taste alternative to higher tar smoking—is MERIT.

Science Fiction Book Club

Dept. FR-211, Garden City, N.Y. 11530

I want the best SF in or out of this world! Please accept my application for membership in the Science Fiction Book Club. Send me the 5 books numbered in the boxes below plus my free book and carryall and bill me just $1 (plus shipping and handling). I agree to the Club plan as described in this ad, will take 4 more books at regular low Club prices during the coming year, and may resign any time thereafter. The FREE book and carryall will be mine to keep whether or not I remain a member. SFBC offers serious works for mature readers.

How the Science Fiction Book Club works: When your application for membership is accepted, you'll receive your 5 books for only $1 (plus shipping and handling) and a free copy of The Dragonriders of Pern and free carryall. If not completely satisfied, return the 5 books within 10 days—membership will be cancelled and you'll owe nothing. The FREE book and carryall will be yours to keep in any case.

About every 4 weeks (14 times a year), we'll send you the Club's bulletin, Things to Come, describing the 2 coming Selections and a variety of Alternate choices. In addition, up to 4 times a year you may receive offers of special Selections, always at low Club prices. If you want the 2 Selections, you need do nothing; they'll be shipped automatically. If you don't want a Selection, prefer an Alternate, or no book at all, just fill out the convenient form always provided and return it by the date specified.

We allow you at least 10 days to decide. If you have less than 10 days and receive an unwanted Selection, you may return it at our expense.

As a member you need take only 4 Selections or Alternates during the coming year. You may resign any time thereafter or continue to enjoy Club benefits for as long as you wish. One of the 2 Selections each month is only $3.98. Other Selections are higher, but always much less than hardcover publishers' editions—up to 65% off! A shipping and handling charge is added to all shipments. Send no money. But do mail the coupon today!

Club editions save you up to 65% off the publishers' list prices quoted above.

● BLANK CHECK! "One _____ in a lifetime is much, two are many, three are hardly possible," said historian-philosopher Henry Adams. What six-letter word is missing? P.S.: The missing word rhymes with trend.

The missing word is "friend."

A	B	C	D
E	F	G	H
I	J	K	L

● Verse-Riddle! A thousand and one, and a sixth part of twenty; Some may have none, but others have plenty. Plenty of what?

The answer is money (M, one, and Y).

● Cup Cake! Challenge: Name the sport associated with each famed trophy: 1. America's Cup. 2. Davis Cup. 3. Stanley Cup. 4. Ryder Cup.

1. Yachting. 2. Tennis. 3. Hockey. 4. Golf.

● Nature Study! What inspires a hay farmer? Lofty goals. When did the wind make a mistake? When it gust wrong. What hastens plant life after a flood? The re-seeding waters.

KNIGHT'S TOUR TESTS WITS!

A knight, in chess, moves in an L-shape — two squares in one direction and one square in another. A move from A to G, above, is one example. A move from A to J is another.

Now, let's see if you can complete a knight's tour of this diagram, touching at each lettered segment just once.

Begin in any segment. Shade each segment as you proceed.

One possible solution is given below

One way: Proceed from E to C to L, F, D, K, B, I, G, A, J, H.

CHARM SCHOOL! What can you draw to complete the dot picture above? To find out, add lines from 1 to 2, 2 to 3, etc.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

METAPHOR

- - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 20 points.

Popsicle anagram: Heart, part.

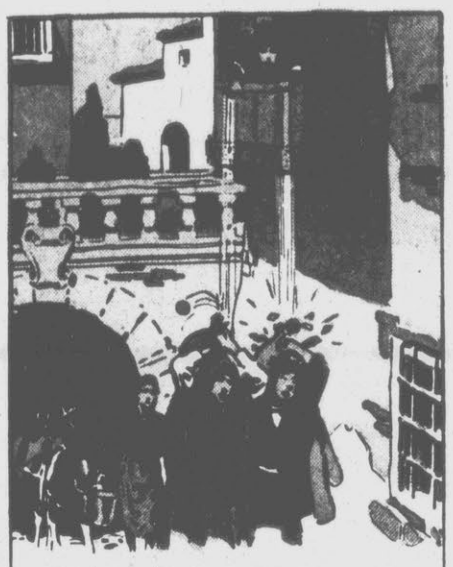
Prince® Valiant

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: GALAN IS TOO OLD FOR A SPANKING BUT NOT FOR A TONGUE-LASHING. HIS FATHER'S LANCE LIES BROKEN ON THE FLOOR. YET AS SOON AS PRINCE VALIANT DEPARTS, GALAN RUNS TO YUAN CHEN. "HOLLOW IS STRONGER!" HE CRIES. OVER THE WEEKS GALAN LEARNS WHY WOOD DOES NOT SINK AND WINTER IS COLDER THAN SUMMER.



IN A RECKLESS EXPERIMENT HE DISCOVERS THAT OBJECTS OF DIFFERENT WEIGHT FALL TO EARTH WITH EQUAL SPEED BUT NOT EQUAL FORCE.

YUAN CHEN GROWS FOND OF HIS YOUNG STUDENT. "WHAT IS ALL THIS?" PRINCE VALIANT ASKS ONE DAY. THE SCHOLAR BOWS WELCOME. "AS A TEST I ASKED YOUR SON TO FIND SOMETHING OF EQUAL VOLUME WITH HIMSELF. HE IS CLEVER. WHEN HE IS FULLY SUBMERGED IN THAT BARREL ...."

"...THE AMOUNT OF WATER OVERFLOWING INTO THE TUB WILL BE HIS VOLUME EXACTLY." VAL SMILES. "I'LL TAKE THE TUB. IT WILL EAT LESS AND GIVE ME FEWER GRAY HAIRS." THE SCHOLAR BOWS AGAIN. "VERY WELL, THEN I SHALL GLADLY TAKE THE BOY."

HE IS NOT JOKING. FAR AWAY THERE IS A GREAT CITY, UJJAIN, PEARL OF INDIA, HOME OF PRINCESS MAYANA, A CENTER OF LEARNING. YUAN CHEN IS DUE THERE SOON. "GALAN IS NOT LIKE OTHERS," HE SAYS. "GALAN IS NEITHER RULER NOR WARRIOR BUT SOMETHING ELSE. LET HIM COME WITH ME, I CAN TEACH HIM MUCH."
