City Schools OK Budget Plan

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
The 1982-83 budget resolution for the Greenville city schools was approved by members of the Greenville Board of Education at the board's information meeting Monday night.

The resolution is the formal action certifying acceptance of budget allocations in five basic categories totaling $10,524,699.86 for the period July 1, 1982, to June 30, 1983.

The amounts in each category of funds are:
• Local Current Expense Fund (Pitt County monies) — $3,034,311.35
• State Public School Fund

— $5,677,472.00
• Federal Grants Fund — $785,439.51
• School Food Service Fund — $754,169; and
• Capital Outlay Fund (Pitt County monies) — $273,308.

Superintendent Delma Blinson praised the time and effort given by Pitt County Commissioners in dealing with the budget in a year of funding difficulties.

In an explanatory memorandum accompanying the resolution, Blinson notes the loss of a counseling position at Rose due to loss of state funds. In lieu of this position, an attendance counselor will be hired at a lesser salary. Also, positions have been arranged so that each K-3 school will have a half-time guidance counselor, Middle School will have a full-time counselor instead of a half-time one, and the picture at Aycock remains unchanged with two counselors.

Board members questioned the proposed allocation of about $12,000 to $15,000 as the city schools' share of paying a director of special projects in conjunction with East Carolina University and the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation. Blinson said it is his opinion that the city schools will benefit substantially by taking part in the program. "I firmly believe we'll get much more in return from additional resources generated through ECU, and possibly foundation monies," Blinson remarked.

A total of 24 and one-half positions are being lost for the coming school year through cuts in federal funding. This includes all 17 Title I aides, two PVAC teachers at Aycock, five exceptional children aides, and one-half of a counselor (CARE) position at Agnes Fullilove.

The capital outlay fund is $95,000 more than last year and includes $47,000 allocated by county commissions in lieu of office space.

In another budget item, the special program staffing for the various exceptional children programs with funds provided by state and federal allocations, Blinson explained that at this point the amount of funding to be received has not been established. Until then, plans for staffing the positions cannot be made. The positions in these programs last year were 31 teaching positions, 12 aide positions, and seven and one-half support positions.

New Federalism Pared Down

Reagan Hints At Changes

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — President Reagan today offered skeptical county officials a pared-down version of his "new federalism" plan to curb the power of a federal government that has been allowed to "mushroom out of control."

In a speech intended to drum up support for his revised proposal to shift control of three dozen federal programs to the states, the president said that "significant changes have been made" in the plan.

But he offered few details, and no specific indications of new plans to revitalize the economy.

In a prepared speech to the National Association of Counties convention here, the president said he had dropped a proposed state takeover of the food stamp program as part of his "new federalism" initiative.

He said the number of programs that would be handed over to the states has been reduced from nearly 50 to 35, and that localities will be guaranteed 100 percent of the federal funds usually passed on to them.

But the president's speech, which ran to more than 2,500 words, had few other details on the program, considered the most far-reaching restructuring of governmental initiatives since the New Deal.

The plan, originally proposed in Reagan's State of the Union address in January, would have the states assume responsibility for federal programs costing

Public Safety Unit Is Endorsed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The chairman of the ad hoc Committee on Public Safety emphasized in a meeting Monday with the City Council that a recommended public safety commission would be strictly advisory in nature and have no statutory authority.

Dr. Wallace Wooles, who joined several members of the study group in discussing its report, said that after investigating the feasibility of creating a permanent public safety board, the committee is convinced that such a board is indeed feasible and necessary.

Wooles said his committee feels there has been a "tremendous lack of long term planning" in fire-rescue and police areas and the group suggested that problems of the departments might be due to an "instability in city government" here.

He said that city councils "come and go" and the problem has been worse in the city manager's post where turnover has been high in recent years. Hopefully, that situation is stable now, he added.

According to Wooles, the committee endorsed the recommendation of the Mayor's Advisory Committee that council terms be changed to four-year staggered terms and it urged the council to "take action which will insure some degree of

Shultz Pledges Ties With Arabs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying he has no apologies to make for his association with the Bechtel Group Inc., George Shultz told senators today that as secretary of state he would seek "wide and ever-strengthening ties" with the Arab world.

In an opening statement at a hearing by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on his nomination to succeed Alexander M. Haig Jr., who resigned over unexplained policy differences within the Reagan administration, Shultz also pledged to work with Israel toward a comprehensive Middle East peace.

He said representatives of the Palestinian people should be involved in the negotiations.

Before he discussed foreign policy issues at the hearing, Shultz, who was treasury secretary and secretary of labor in the Nixon administration, addressed questions that some senators have raised as to whether he could be impartial in the Middle East in view of Bechtel's extensive dealings with Arab states.

"To those questions, I see only one possible answer: none," he said.

Shultz said he had already submitted his resignation, effective when he is confirmed, as president of Bechtel and an officer of some of its subsidiaries. He is also selling his Bechtel stock and said he would disqualify himself from any decision affecting the worldwide engineering firm.

"I feel privileged to have been involved in Bechtel's activities," he told the committee.

Turning to the turmoil touched off by the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, Shultz said the crisis in Lebanon "makes painfully and totally clear a central reality of the Middle East: the legitimate needs and problems of the Palestinian people must be addressed and resolved — urgently" and in all their dimensions.

"The challenge of the negotiations in which the United States is, and during my tenure, will remain, a full partner, is to transform that hope into reality," he said.

"For these talks to succeed, representatives of the Palestinians themselves must participate in the negotiating process. The basis must also be found for other countries in the region, in addition to Israel and Egypt, to join in the peace process."

Shultz also said that "beyond the issues of the moment, the importance to our own security of wide and ever-strengthening ties with the Arabs is manifest."

He added, "We owe it to Israel, in the context of our special relationship, to work with her to bring about a comprehensive peace — acceptable to all the parties involved."

The hearing is expected to conclude late today or on Wednesday, committee sources said, followed by a vote to recommend Shultz's confirmation.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-

Tenn., said approval by the Senate could come as early as Thursday.

No opposition to Shultz had surfaced by Monday, but a number of senators said they wanted to ask questions arising from his presidency of Bechtel. Others indicated they would question Shultz about Latin-American policy, nuclear arms control and possibly the Haig resignation on June 25.

But with debate sharpening in Congress over the Israeli invasion of Lebanon and the possible use of U.S. troops in a peacekeeping force there, the emphasis was expected to be on the Middle East.

Ayden Board Schedules Development Priorities

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer
AYDEN — Priorities for the town's Community Development Block Grant application, including six streets and portions of another, were accepted as program target areas by the Board of Commissioners Monday night.

The application, which requests $744,000, was approved by the board and will be submitted July 23. If the town is funded under the now state-administered program, funds will be awarded early in October. Target areas include Jackson, Thrower, Ormond, West Barwick, Joyner, Garris streets and portions of High Street.

Community Development funds are used to renovate housing that doesn't meet state building codes and can be used in some instances to pave and curb and gutter streets.

In other business heard by the board:

• Town Electrical Director Mark Sugg reported a savings of $12,839 in electrical costs in June — the first month the town has been billed by the newly formed Municipal Power Agency No. 3.

"We (Ayden) peaked at 10,142 megawatts of usage the last week in June," noted Sugg, "and would have been billed for this peak under CP&L's billing. Under the power agency, we were only billed for CP&L's peak for the month — 7,585 megawatts. I calculate this to be a saving of around $12,839."

Sugg said the town would probably not save every month, however.

• The board authorized Mayor Ross Persinger to draft a letter to the Pitt County Commissioners protesting the closing of the satellite mental health clinics around the county, including the one in Ayden. "Closing them (the clinics) was a disservice to the people who use them," said Commissioner Elliott Dixon. "It puts a further burden on those these clinics serve."

Plant To Expand

Burroughs Wellcome Co. announced that it will expand its manufacturing facilities here with construction of a 36,000-square-foot office building.

The firm said the addition will satisfy its current space needs and provide for some expansion at the Greenville facility, which manufactures pharmaceuticals for humans and animals.

The new office building will accommodate employees now working in trailers that serve as temporary offices, Burroughs Wellcome said. The remaining space will be devoted to computer services, research development, production and engineering, organizational development, and financial staff. It will include conference rooms and a 200-seat auditorium.

Daniel Construction Co. will design and build the addition. Construction is scheduled to begin in August and is expected to be completed within a year.

The Greenville plant was built in 1970 when the company moved to North Carolina from Tuckahoe, N.Y. Burroughs Wellcome said it has outgrown the facility, which employs 1,400 people, sooner than expected.

Cloudburst Hits City

A cloudburst dumped over an inch of rain on Greenville today, leaving flooded streets and inundated cars in Greenville and stranding many mid-day shoppers and travelers in downtown areas.

According to Greenville Utilities, the area received 1.28 inches of rain from midnight Monday until noon Tuesday, with all but .01 inch falling between 8 a.m. and noon.

Greenville's Public Works Department reported several streets under water at 11 a.m., including the intersection of Reade and Cotanche streets and portions of 10th and 14th streets and Dickinson Avenue.

Water reportedly as deep as car roofs covered the intersection of Cotanche and Reade streets, stalling several autos and stranding downtown travelers.

At noon, the Greenville Police Department reported no accidents from the storm but said they'd received at least 30-40 calls from motorists stranded in stalled cars. "We've received too many calls," said a spokesperson.

The storm also brought sharp lightning that plagued power lines with direct hits, said Assistant Utilities Director Malcolm Green. He noted that, at noon, no major power outages were reported from the storm.

"We've had lots of direct hits which have caused the lights to flicker," he said, "but only spotty outages have been reported."

Crop Forecast

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's flue-cured tobacco crop is expected to yield 1.03 billion pounds, down 12 percent from 1981, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

Officials said the reduction was due to a smaller acreage this year and prospects for a smaller yield per acre — 2,089 pounds against 2,162 in 1981.

The department's first estimate of total tobacco production in 1982, including burley, will be issued on Aug. 11.

MRS. WILLIAM LAWRENCE COOLEY JR.

Couple Speaks On Sunday

Beverly Jo Roberts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold S. Roberts of Greenville, and William Lawrence Cooley Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lawrence Cooley Sr. of Greenville, were united in marriage Sunday at 2 p.m. in a formal ceremony at the Gethsemane Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The Rev. Danny Nelson officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was provided by Judy Harding of Grimesland, organist, and Jeanette Williams of Greenville, who sang "More."

The chancel of the church was decorated with a basket of white gladioli, chrysanthemums, cushion poms and a touch of lavender. A seven branch brass candelabra and palms were placed on each side. Pews were marked with bridal satin ribbons and greenery.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in re-embroidered chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice was enhanced with matching chantilly lace beaded with pearls and sequins. The full bishop sleeves were accented with a lace applique and had lace cuffs with a satin bow. Miniature chantilly lace encircled the waistline. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accented with triple tiers of chantilly lace topped with re-embroidered chantilly lace and edged with a flounce of crystal pleating. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion edged in re-embroidered chantilly lace held in place by a caplet overlaid in matching lace. She carried a colonial nosegay with white carnations, white cushion poms, violets and tied with picot streamers.

Debbie Kite of Greenville, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and wore a formal gown of pink organza designed with a portrait neckline with a ruffled bertha collar and empire bodice. The flared skirt of the sleeveless gown was accented with a ruffled flounce at the hemline overlaid by a southern belle pick-up skirt which had a ruffled flounce. She wore a matching garden hat and carried an arm bouquet of white mums and lavender streamers.

Bridesmaids were Sandi Roberts and Sherri James, cousins of the bride, and Jan Wheelless. They wore formal gowns of lilac organza styled similar to that of the honor attendant and carried arm bouquets of white mums tied with light pink streamers.

J.L. Cooley, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were Roy Warren, cousin of the bridegroom of Stokes, Robbie Kite, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Kenneth Lloyd, both of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mint green accented by a corsage of white carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a gown of beige and rust and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Berny Cooley and Mrs. Minnie Perry, grandmothers of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Mattie Worthington, grandmother of the bride, were remembered with corsages.

The bride's aunt, Margaret Roberts, directed the wedding.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

Donna Akin introduced guests to the wedding party.

The bridal table was covered with a white lace cloth and centered by the wedding cake. It was served by Mrs. Oretha Manning, aunt of the bridegroom. Punch was poured by Mrs. Dean Campbell, aunt of the bride.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Buck, aunt and uncle of the bride.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party at the church Saturday.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There aren't too many stories I clip out of the newspaper, but this one I not only tore out, I read it out loud to my husband.

"Listen to this. 'The average visitor to the Grand Canyon spends an average of four hours there, but only 20 minutes actually looking at the gorge.' Now, guess where tourists spend the rest of their time?"

"Waiting in line to go to the restrooms," he said.

"Buying gifts to take home," I said triumphantly.

I hope this will end my husband's long tirades on how I walk out of a hotel in the mornings, sniff the air and say, "I smell gift shops," and disappear for three days.

He will never forgive me for the time we visited the United Nations in New York and had limited time. We could either have watched the Security Council debate the possibility of war in the Mideast or check out those darling little wooden napkin rings from Kenya in the gift shop.

Well, get serious! You certainly can't see darling little wooden napkin rings from Kenya on the 6 o'clock news.

The trouble with men is they tour monuments like they are preparing for a quiz. My husband will stand and read every single word on a tribute or a plaque. He will push the button on those talking voices that tell you what you are looking at, and apologize to it if he coughs.

What is worse, he will ask questions and hold the entire tour group from getting to all the backscratches in the gift shop before they are gone.

I don't understand someone who would stare at the Acropolis in Greece for 35 solid minutes! It wasn't going anyplace and it wasn't changing color. But those shawls with the handmade lace that women were spreading out on the grass at the bottom of the site were going like hotcakes.

A few years ago, we went to the African bush at the base of Mt. Kilimanjaro. As my husband and I sat outside the tent, gazing at the campfire, he saw a Massai woman crossing the fields. As she came closer, we could see she was carrying a basketful of bracelets, rings and necklaces.

My heart beat faster as I took the VISA card out of my sweater pocket.

Here was a gift shop that made house calls and my husband was watching — are you ready? — a sunset!

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

This season we chose to try the following recipe for chutney because it calls for less sugar than usual and fresh lime for tangy flavor.

PEACH AND LIME CHUTNEY
4 pounds (about 18 medium)

- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 1 and 1/3 cups cider vinegar
- 1 large onion, finely chopped
- 1/3 cup fresh lime juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger
- 1 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/8 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 cup seedless golden raisins

1 tablespoon grated fresh lime rind

Cover peaches with boiling water and let stand about a minute; slip off skins. Cut into about 1-inch pieces — there should be about 8 cups. In a large kettle stir together the sugar, vinegar, onion, lime juice, salt, ginger, mustard and cayenne pepper. Bring to a boil; boil gently for 5 minutes. Add the peaches and raisins; cook uncovered over medium heat, stirring often, until thickened — about 1 hour. Stir in the lime rind. Ladle into clean hot half-pint canning jars to within 1/4-inch of the tops. Seal according to jar manufacturer's directions. Process in a boiling water bath, with boiling water two inches above the jar tops, for 10 minutes. Cool away from drafts. Makes about five half-pint jars. This is a tangy relish.

Parties Given Miss Cargile

A coffee hour was held Saturday morning honoring Mary Kim Cargile at the home of Carolyn Daughtrey. Assisting hostesses were Dorothy McGown and Joan Jordan.

An arrangement of red roses centered the refreshment table and the house was decorated with summer flowers.

The honoree was presented a corsage of daisies and gifts of china and crystal.

Bride-elect Mary Kim Cargile was entertained by Marguerite Wiggins at her home Sunday afternoon.

The refreshment table was decorated with an arrangement of red silk flowers and white candles. Artemis Kares assisted in serving.

The hostess remembered Miss Cargile with a white carnation corsage and a gift in her chosen china.

Invalid Suffers From Visitors

DEAR ABBY: I agree with that "old lady" who said her entertaining days are over because her health is poor and her housekeeping isn't what it used to be, and she's happy to be left alone.

I'm another old lady. I have rheumatoid arthritis, cataracts and an ulcer. I've been in the hospital a lot lately, which brings me to my complaint: people who come to the hospital and stay long after they should have gone home.

Some bring huge flower arrangements when all the space you have is the 12-inch-square top of the commode. Some bring heavy picture books or stiff magazines you couldn't hold if you wanted to. Others clutter up the room with jigsaw puzzles and games, bedjackets you can't wear and food you can't eat.

I have just spent a month in a hospital getting an artificial hip, and I've had all of the above.

My cousin and his wife came to visit me one afternoon. She sat for an hour jabbering away, while he excused himself to go out to "prowl the corridors and pinch some nurses" (his words).

Visitors at home or hospitals may mean well, but for my part, they can all stay home. Sign me...

SICK AND TIRED IN VERMONT

DEAR ABBY: An elderly lady said some old folks don't want company dropping in because it's hard for them to keep their homes in "company" order. I agree.

Here's how to handle that: Phone your elderly friend and say, "I just made a batch of vegetable soup that turned out better than usual. May I stop by around 3 o'clock and drop off a jar? Please forgive me if I don't come in because I have a lot of errands to do."

If your senior friend comes to the door and begs you to come in, you can always "change your plans."

That way you've given her an easy out if she really doesn't want company, and you've also given her a nice treat.

ANOTHER ELDERLY LADY

DEAR LADY: Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I'm not exactly "old." I'm 21, and I've been married for six years. I used to be ashamed when people would come to visit me and my house was a mess. Then I finally realized that when I visited people I never noticed if their house was a mess unless they pointed it out and kept apologizing about it.

That's when I said, "What the heck, this is my home and I live here, and I'm not expected to have the place picked up and party-perfect all the time."

Some older folks prefer to be left alone, which is fine. But others get lonely and depressed when they're alone all the time. They need people around to make them feel alive. It would be a shame for folks who enjoy company to live in loneliness because they're embarrassed by their casual housekeeping.

Cleanliness isn't next to godliness. Love is.

CATHY

DEAR CATHY: Bless you. You've acquired more wisdom at 21 than most folks have at 80.

Pitt Schedules Health-Care Fee Plan

Beginning Aug. 1, the Pitt County Health Department will initiate two major changes in preventive health care services: Fees will be charged for services rendered and satellite clinics in Ayden, Bethel, Farmville and Grimesland will be closed.

"The closing of the satellite clinics is regrettable," Health Director Robert Ehinger said. "However, reduction in staff and severe budget constraints have left us with few alternatives. Only after considerable attention was given to the dilemma of how to maintain quality and quantity of services were these difficult decisions made."

"For several years, the Health Department has operated satellite clinics in Ayden, Bethel, Farmville, Grifton and Grimesland. Last year the clinic in Grifton was closed due to under-utilization. With the closing of the remaining satellites, the Greenville clinic's services must be re-structured to accommodate approximately 1,300 clients who previously were patients in the various satellite clinics. Among these are 600 pediatric patients, 500 senior citizens and 200 others who hopefully will come to the Greenville health department to receive preventive services," Dr. Ehinger said.

"The additional reduction in staff and revenue will make the task of serving so many additional clients in the Greenville Clinic difficult, but we are sure that we can get the job done."

The concept of fees for personal health service in the public health departments is new to Pitt Counties, but numerous health departments throughout the state have been charging fees for some time, he said. In Pitt County, environmental health routinely charges fees for certain services and family planning patients have been charged for services for the past three years.

Now, with the approval of the board of health and the Pitt County Commissioners, patients will also be charged for most personal health services based on ability to pay (a sliding scale) as determined by "declaration." Gross income and family size will be declared, with no proof of income required, unless there is reason to question the information supplied.

Fees are as follows: blood pressure monitoring — $1 to $5; cancer detection — $4 to $18; child health — $5 to $25; child health treatment — $4 to $22; diabetic screening — $2 to $9; glaucoma detection — $3 to $12; heart and rheumatic fever — $6 to $32; maternal health — $4 to $22; neurological $6 to $29; orthopedic — $3 to $14; speech and hearing — $3 to $17; adult immunizations — $3; pregnancy test — $3; skin test — $2; and VDRL — $3.

Screening and treatment necessary for the control of sexually transmitted disease and immunizations for preventable childhood illnesses will be exempt from charge.

Newly adjusted fees for environmental health services are as follows: $50 for lot evaluation for new construction; $25 for relocation or recertification of sewage disposal systems; $25 for swimming pool inspection; $10 for water sample collection and analysis; $5 for rabies vaccination; $5 for dog pickup and $1 for dog boarding.

"Although no one will be denied service because of inability to pay, the health department will make every effort to collect for service rendered," Ehinger said. He added, "Our staff is looking at these changes with a positive attitude. We hope our clients will be cooperative and patient as we work with them to continue to protect, promote and assure their health and that of the community."

Soviets Offer Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has offered to sell to Argentina, which lost much of its air force in the Falkland Islands war, new MIG jet fighters and other equipment on easy terms, according to U.S. intelligence sources.

The offer, designed to appeal to the financially strapped Buenos Aires government, covers MIG-23 and MIG-21 jet fighters as well as FA-6 surface-to-air missile systems and radar, the sources said.

Argentina would be given 10 years to pay for the new warplanes and other gear at only 2 percent interest, said the sources, who requested anonymity.

The Soviet bid reportedly was extended during Argentina's recent war with Britain over the Falklands. The Soviets publicly backed Argentina in the conflict while the United States supported the British.

So far as is known, the sources said, the Soviet offer still is open. For years, Moscow has been trying to expand its arms sales in South America, but has gained a substantial market there only in Peru.

The Argentine air force lost about one-third of its combat planes in attacks on British forces in the Falkland Islands war, which ended with Argentine defeat in mid-June.

Cities Say Can't Handle New Federalism Burden

WASHINGTON (AP) — American cities are having trouble meeting their customary expenses, let alone the added costs likely to come their way under President Reagan's "new federalism" program, the National League of Cities says.

The league, representing 15,000 cities, made public Monday a survey of the finances of 43 communities, ranging from Green River, Wyo., to New York City. It found expenditures are growing faster than revenues in most cities and most have been unable or unwilling to replace lost federal aid from their own revenues.

Officials of the league and Samuel Pierce, secretary of housing and urban affairs, were to discuss President Reagan's approach to the cities today in appearances before Congress' Joint Economic Committee.

Meantime, Reagan was addressing the National Association of Counties in Baltimore, hoping to win converts for his "new federalism" plan.

In the survey released Monday by the League of Cities, the cities reported that their outlays grew last year by 13.3 percent and their income by only 11.1 percent, according to Seattle Mayor Charles Royer, first vice president of the league.

Royer said cities "are cutting back on many fronts, and they are finding it difficult — if not impossible — to step in to run programs being cut by the federal government."

The "new federalism" plan envisions turning over about 30 federal programs to the states and cities in what would be the most far-reaching restructuring of governmental responsibilities since the New Deal. Reagan proposes creating a $20 billion trust fund to ease the transition over an eight-year period.

All-Time All Star

The 53rd All Star game tonight in Montreal will feature many modern superstars. But one of baseball's greatest stars never played on an All-Star squad. Ty Cobb set multitudinous Major League records, many of which still stand — most hits (4,191), most runs (2,244) and highest lifetime batting average (.367). He was the Major League batting champ for 12 years and hit over .319 in 23 consecutive seasons. For six years he led the American League in stolen bases and he stole home a record 35 times. Although Ty Cobb was the first man elected to the Baseball Hall of Fame, he never played in an All-Star Game, because the first was not held until 1933 — five years after he retired.

DO YOU KNOW — What was Ty Cobb's nickname?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — George Shultz was Secretary of Labor and Treasury under President Nixon.

Runoffs Worth Cost

North Carolina will have a runoff primary July 27 to resolve party nominations for two Court of Appeals judgeships and for the nominees in the 2nd Congressional District. State election officials say the runoff could cost as much as a half-million dollars. It would be well worth it.

North Carolina is one of only nine U.S. states that provides for runoff primaries. In the other 41, the leader in the primaries is declared the nominee. The runoffs developed while the South was predominantly a one-party area, and the second primary gave voters a second chance to decide on a winner.

That second chance is still worthwhile although two-party or even three-party systems have developed in some areas of the South.

Idealistically, we take political races serious in the United States. That second effort to determine the best among several candidates provides time for another look at a narrowed field. Voters frequently cast ballots on whims in the first primary, but votes in a second primary usually go to the candidate deemed the better qualified. That's the way democracy stays alive and healthy—a true choice at the polls.

New Look At Safety

Once again federal investigators are sifting through the wreckage of an airliner which crashed in residential area near New Orleans.

A Pan American World Airways jetliner crashed in the suburb of Kenner with all 145 persons aboard losing their lives, along with at least eight on the ground.

There was also heavy loss of property as the falling airliner plowed through house-after-house for two blocks.

It won't be known until all the recording devices and other data are carefully examined just what caused the plane to stall and crash.

Even then it may never be certain what the exact cause of the tragedy was. In this case, as in others however, weather is suspect. There was heavy lightning and authorities say warnings had been sent out about windshear, a condition possibly dangerous for taking off aircraft.

Authorities must again examine the safety standards which allow passenger planes to take off in wind storms and snow storms. Delays in air traffic are vexing to companies and to passengers, but we must have standards that assure the safety of the passengers.

THIS AFTERNOON

Push Lies Ahead

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — The state's educational and political leaders are in the last stages of formulating a program to fight the state's serious shortage of qualified science and math instructors. Many proposals are floating around the education corridors of Raleigh but it will be up to the political leadership to pick the ideas that will find favor with the Legislature.

Gov. Jim Hunt has indicated that he'll make the push for more science and math educators a major part of his 1983 program. He said he'll recommend some solutions to the problem when he delivers his State of the State address in January, 1983.

More than a quarter of all math and science classes taught in the public schools are currently taught by people not certified to teach those courses. The problem looks to be getting worse as fewer and fewer people are studying math and science education in North Carolina colleges.

The most obvious idea is to pay teachers more. Since the state probably can't afford a gigantic pay hike for all teachers, the reasoning is to give math and science teachers a "differential" payment that would make their salaries more competitive with salaries paid to science and math majors in private industry. Hunt says this is "obviously one of the things we're looking at."

David Bruton, chairman of the State Board of Education, backs the idea of differential pay. "We've got to learn to fairly pay math and science people and quit being locked into paying everybody the same thing." But both Hunt and Bruton know that such a step would create havoc at the Legislature because teachers' groups oppose differential pay.

The Board of Science and Technology has developed a number of proposals. It would require that all science and math teachers become certified in those fields by 1985-86 and that currently certified people be required to take additional coursework through the years. To help pay for that, the board suggests increasing the Scholarship Loan Fund for Prospective Teachers by $200,000 a year with the money directed at potential math and science teachers. They also want a $1.7 million grant program to provide teachers with $1000 grants for science and math study. The program would start with 200 teachers the first year and jump to 500 and 1000 teachers in the next two years.

The board also recommends that eight school districts across the state be chosen to develop experimental math and science improvement programs. That would cost $126,000. Although these recommendations were made in March, none were included in this year's budget because of the tight revenue picture.

Hunt said the state may look to private industry to supply part-time teachers, especially for advanced courses, such as those used at many colleges, are also being considered.

Bruton would like to see greater "collegiality" between high school math and science teachers and their counterparts at the state's universities. "Let's make high school teachers feel they are a part of a continuum with the universities. Have them attend workshops and even swap teaching assignments. Get a math teacher out to Chapel Hill for a limited time and he might say, 'I like this. I'd rather keep on being a teacher than go into private industry.'"

Hunt should be making his proposal known soon. He's to lead a discussion of the math and science teacher shortage — it's a national problem — at the August meeting of the National Governor's Conference in Oklahoma.

HIGH STAKES ON THE TABLE!

Big Idea Hits Town

WASHINGTON — The latest Big Idea to hit our town is the idea of flat-rate taxation. At least a dozen bills toward this end have been introduced on the Hill. The Senate Finance Committee will hold flat-rate hearings later this year. The newspapers are full of analyses of the consequences of such a dramatic change.

But don't hold your breath until something tangible gets written into law. Flat-rate taxation is an idea whose time is yet to come.

Such legislative sunspots flare up dramatically from time to time. Almost as swiftly they fade away. No-fault auto insurance, national health insurance, a value-added tax, direct election of presidents — all of these Great Ideas have marched up the Hill and marched down again. It is just as Hamlet said: There is a natural tendency to bear those ills we have, rather than fly to others that we know not of.

Even so, with Congress idle and the Supreme Court in recess, flat-rate taxation is one of the few games in town. It probably is useful to be informed on movements, even if the movements are going nowhere.

The idea is simplicity itself: Instead of the immensely complicated system of income taxation that now obtains, we would have an easy, straightforward, comprehensible new scheme. No deductions. No shelters. Families with earned incomes of less than, say, $10,000 would pay no tax at all. Others would pay a flat rate of perhaps 14 percent to 19 percent. The hated Form 1040 would dwindle to a postcard. With proper adjustment, the system would produce the same income that the graduated or "progressive" rates now provide.

In theory, the proposal has great merit. It would be hard on tax lawyers, tax accountants, and all those busy builders who erect tax shelters for tax avoiders. Their distress to one side, the plan has appealing aspects of simple fairness. It would take us away from the Marxian scheme, confidently advanced in the Communist Manifesto of 1848, that now provides a basis for our rates of taxation. The plan would eliminate the perceived injustice by which the rick wiggles through loopholes and the average guy gets caught.

The idea has only one major obstacle working against it. The obstacle is called human nature. It is called self-interest. It rests at the heart of Webster's fable about the farmer, the lawyer and the farmer's ox: It does make a difference whose ox is gored.

The flat-rate plan proposes, for example, that deductions no longer could be claimed on the interest we pay on home mortgages. The exemption costs the Treasury $36 billion a year. Let us meditate in silence upon the reaction of homeowners and home builders to this idea.

Under flat-rate taxation, we no longer could deduct the sums we ourselves pay above a certain minimum for medical care. What personal hardships would this change produce?

We now deduct contributions to churches and charities. If such contributions no longer were deductible, would we give as generously?

Advocates of flat-rate taxation, armed with specific examples, insist that all such questions can be answered convincingly. Most of the deductions that would be abolished, such as the provision covering pension contributions, would hit hardest at top-bracket incomes. A recent analysis in the Wall Street Journal concluded that 92 percent of the $134 billion in lost income tax revenue would come from the higher income groups. Proponents also argue persuasively that a flat-rate plan, by eliminating the draconian rates of marginal taxation, would provide incentives toward higher earnings.

My own guess is that flat-rate won't fly — not yet, anyhow — but I could be quite wrong. For some years a revolt has been growing against the mine-trapped mazes of the present tax law. Billions of dollars in taxable income are concealed every year. The game of tax avoidance has become a national pastime. But successful revolts require strong passion and skilled leadership, and the flat-rate plan so far has neither one.

Draft Policy Isn't Clear

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
CHICAGO — Bernie Harkin didn't feel the heat of summer until last week. After 11 and a half months of posturing, the Reagan administration began to prosecute young men who have refused to register with the Selective Service System.

But then again, Harkin has been sweating out Ronald Reagan's foreign policy for some time now.

"I remember watching news clips of the Vietnam War as a child," said the 21-year-old Harkin, wiping his glasses on his blue terrycloth shirt. "And I'm worried that Reagan is going to get us into another Vietnam-type situation in the Middle East or Central America. I'm just not clear where he's going, but I fear the worst."

As with so many of the strong-willed, Harkin doesn't fit the stereotype. The meek, 5-9 Chicago West-sider doesn't look like a fair match for Uncle Sam. Yet, in the best tradition of American dissent, Harkin is asking his government some very tough questions.

He's saying: "If I'm to register for the military, we have been pursuing a foreign policy that is sound and gentlemen, please explain what I'm registering for. If the government has a coherent foreign policy, why can't someone explain it to me?"

It's worth noting that Harkin's curiosity is widely shared. Most of the 200 avowed non-registrants on the Justice Department's WANTED list are outspoken critics of Reagan's brawn-over-brains diplomacy. Not counting the half-million other non-registrants, many Americans are beginning to question the wisdom of an administration which treats Europe as if it were a group of colonies, stands silent on the destruction of Lebanon, and aids repressive regimes in Latin America. Now, even former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig may count himself among those concerned.

The president, moreover, has done little recently to allay this growing consensus of confusion. Though he opened his press conference last week with a statement on the economy, Reagan had to field three times as many questions about foreign affairs as he did about domestic policy. In response to allegations of "confusion," the president haltingly replied: "I would respond by saying that I think we have been pursuing a foreign policy that is sound and that we've had some great successes in a number of areas with this."

Whether Reagan knows it or not, his current foreign policy is anything but steady. Rather, as each week passes, the U.S. more clearly resembles a runaway train, careening toward an inevitable collision with a number of other nations' better interests. Can derailment be far down the track when, as the nation learned last week from The CBS Evening News, that 10 American military advisers were fighting alongside Salvadoran troops in that tiny Latin country?

Some people at least realize that Reagan, by prosecuting registration resisters, is preparing the country for a return to military conscription. As Rep. Mickey Leland (D-Texas) told us last week, "People haven't realized the impact of what it really means to force young people to register. When we start drafting and sending men into war zones, the stark reality of this decision will descend upon everyone."

Government prosecutors, naturally, care little for world affairs. At the White House's instruction, they've begun to reel in a handful of the 500,000 resisters, one at a time, starting with Ben Sasway, a 21-year-old Humboldt State University student from San Diego.

Sheer numbers aside, these lawyers have their hands full. The Selective Service was so quick to issue its regulations last year that it may have made mistakes which could eventually jeopardize the validity of registration in court.

In the meantime, it's a disgrace that Congress's leadership role in foreign affairs has been eclipsed by the actions of a handful of frightened young men. Rep. Leland hypothesizes that the nuclear-freeze movement has absolved many lawmakers from speaking out on other, less popular foreign policy issues.

Strength For Today

LET THERE BE LIGHT

"And God said, 'Let there be light,' and there was light."

Thus did the Word of God sound out in the beginning, when God created the heavens and the earth. Then was the earth "without form, and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep." But what was that darkness compared with the darkness of men's souls when they put the Son of God to death on the cross?

The first great "Let there be light" brought the earth and its creatures into being. But on that day some 2,000 years ago when the hand of God reached down into the grave of Nazareth and bade him to rise from the dead, a light burst forth, and an agonized world looked up and took hope.

"To be in Christ is the secret of our life.

To be for Christ is the meaning of our activity.

To be with Christ is the hope of our glory." — Elisha Douglass.

American Politics Baffles Author

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Teddy White spent one-quarter of a century trying to figure out the American political scene and concluded it couldn't be done, not yet, maybe never.

"There is a discontinuity out there," White said. "There's a discontinuity of politics going around the country. One thing doesn't follow another anymore."

Theodore S. White, the way the name appears on his famous books, started covering presidential politics in 1956 when things were simple and straightforward. He earned a Pulitzer Prize and a bushel of other awards along the way, and wound it up in 1980 more puzzled than when he started.

A lot has happened in those 25 years. Television moved into campaign coverage. Candidates gained instant access to the voters but lost the close contact of the old campaign trail. Electronic campaigns and fund-raising wizzards bypassed and nearly killed off the traditional political parties.

But the biggest riddle of all is the changing mood and values of the American electorate. America is in a flux, White says, and no one can write the final chapter to his life's work until things have been sorted out.

White says he's stopping his chronicles, recorded chiefly in his "Making of the President" books. His new book, "America in Search of Itself: The Making of the President 1956-1980," tries to sum it up but makes no promises for the future.

"We have come to a period of discontinuity," White repeated during an interview. "We ran through 20 years of good will. You know, the Great Society and all that stuff. We were going to take care of everybody. We thought we had unlimited power."

Then came disappointment and disillusionment in Vietnam, frightening inflation at home and the pivotal humiliation of hostages in Iran.

"So you reach a sense of bewilderment of what we can do at home and what we can do abroad," White said. "We're living through a cultural, political and economic crisis.

"Jimmy Carter campaigned for all the things we've believed in for the past 20 years and Ronald Reagan said for 20 years we've been screwing up," White said. "He campaigned directly against the experience of all the years since 1956."

Reagan won the election, but White is not sure who was right in that debate or whether the answers lie somewhere between the discarded past and the untried future. That's the only sage advice he offers.

"I think we've done some stupendous and wonderful and miraculous things in the past 20 years," he said. "And I think it's up to us to sort out what went right and what went wrong. I think we've got to sort out what we want to do, what lies within the capacity of the United States to do at home and abroad."

"I call the Reagan administration the Reagan experiment," White said. "I don't know what is going to happen. I do know this country ran through one set of ideas by 1980. Reagan promised a totally new set of ideas. I don't know whether they're working or not."

White, who is hale as an athlete at 67, says, however, that somebody else will have to pick up the story. It could go on forever and he's tired of daybreak baggage calls, long rides and flights in the middle of the night.

"America is an endless quest," he concluded. "It's always a search for new answers. I suppose I could stick around politics for 20 more years and I'd have just as many questions at the end of those 20 years as I have now."

"I think right now is an abrupt break with the past," White said. "But I don't think Reagan is going to solve this thing in the next 18 months. It may take 8 years to turn things around."

"I think this country will be OK in the year 2000, maybe in the year 1988," White decided. "This country is not going to collapse, but we're going to go through an awful lot of soul searching as we decide what we retain and what we cast away."

To the editor:

In a recent letter signed Samuel W. Silva, the writer listed — in commentary on a number of subjects — the forces that led to the National Socialists (Nazis) taking power in Germany. I suspected something was missing in his account, so I looked in a few books to find out what happened in those tragic days in 1933.

Yes, the writer had not mentioned the critical ingredient that had put the National Socialists in power: the help of the Communists. The Nazis and Communists fought for control of the streets in Germany's cities, but in one important way they were comrades under the skin: they were both totalitarians who hated representative government and individual rights. So they ganged up on the groups that might have saved German democracy.

The Nazis are gone but the Communists still show their hatred of free governments by establishing unfree regimes wherever they can conquer power, from Vietnam to Nicaragua.

AL Hoping To End 10-Game All-Star Losing Streak

MONTREAL (AP) — Battling a frustrating losing streak that now stretches through 10 games, the American League's top players face the best performers in the National League tonight in the 53rd annual All-Star Game.

A capacity crowd of almost 59,000 fans will jam handsome Olympic Stadium to watch the annual mid-season confrontation between the two leagues.

"We're gonna win this time," pledged fiery Billy Martin, manager of the AL stars.

If they do, it will be the first time since 1971 when a home runs by Reggie Jackson, Harmon Killebrew and Frank Robinson led the AL to a 6-4 victory at Detroit. Killebrew and Robinson have long since retired but Jackson, elected as the starting right fielder in the fan balloting, will bat cleanup for the AL stars tonight.

Martin has surrounded the California slugger with quality hitters. Kansas City third baseman George Brett will bat third and first baseman Cecil Cooper of Milwaukee, replacing injured Rod Carew of California, hits No. 5.

Oakland's Rickey Henderson, on a record-shattering stolen-base pace with 84 swipes in 88 games, leads off, followed by Fred Lynn of California. Behind Cooper, Martin has shortstop Robin Yount of Milwaukee, second baseman Bobby Grich of California and catcher Carlton Fisk of Chicago. Dennis Eckersley of Boston will be the starting pitcher.

Steve Rogers of Montreal, the NL's starting pitcher, winced when the AL lineup was recited.

"It's a quality ballclub," he said. "I breathed a sigh of relief that Rod Carew wasn't in the lineup. But putting in Cecil Cooper ... the last few years I've faced him, it's been like batting practice for him."

NL Manager Tom Lasorda of Los Angeles will lead off with Montreal speedster Tim Lincecum in left field followed by first baseman Pete Rose of Philadelphia, appearing in his 16th All-Star contest.

"I don't do too good in these games because I might bat two or three times and see different pitchers," said Rose, who is No. 2 on the all-time hit list but only batting .226 in previous

All-Star Games. "I have a lot of trouble with pitchers I haven't seen."

Then, turning to Eckersley, he added, "So you have a chance, Dennis, but if you are going to be thinking about me, Raines will be on third base before you look up."

Montreal's Andre Dawson in center field bats third for the NL followed by third baseman Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and Montreal catcher Gary Carter, who led all players in the fan balloting with 2,785,407 votes. Atlanta's Dale Murphy will hit sixth with shortstop Dave Concepcion of Cincinnati, second baseman Manny Trillo of Philadelphia and Rogers completing the starting lineup.

The losing streak has the AL perplexed. The Americans once led this series 12-4 but they've lost 18 of the last 19 and trail overall 33-18 with one tie.

"The press has done so much to blow up the losing streak that it's become more important to win," said Martin. "That's the attitude I'm going to take this year — to go out and win it."

Brett smiled at the mention of the streak.

"I'm only 0-6," he said. "Some of these guys are 0-10." Martin is 0-2, the losing manager in 1977 and 1978. Lasorda on the other hand, takes a perfect 2-0 All-Star mark into the game, winning in 1978 and 1979.

"I want the streak to continue," said Lasorda. "I expect them to play with the intensity to win. I remember my first year as a coach under Sparky Anderson. I was amazed at the desire and will the National League players have to win."

That was 1977, when the Nationals won 7-5 at Yankee Stadium, scoring two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning for the victory. That started a string of five games in which the National League has come from behind to win.

In 1978 at San Diego, it was four runs in the bottom of the eighth that produced a 7-3 NL triumph in Lasorda's first year as an All-Star manager. In 1979 at Seattle, again with Lasorda managing, the Nationals scored a run in the eighth to tie the game and another in the ninth to win it, 7-6. In last

Wilson Rolls Into Finals

ROCKY MOUNT — Brent Pope hurled a two-hitter and Tommy Walston drove in three runs as Wilson rolled by Rocky Mount, 15-1, to advance to the finals of the Area 1 East American Legion tournament.

Wilson will now play Pitt County in a best-of-five series for the title. Pitt County defeated Snow Hill, 2-0, in its semifinal series.

The championship series is tentatively scheduled to begin Thursday evening at Harrington Field. However, if ECU's game with N.C. State tonight is rained out the Pirates may have to reschedule the game for Thursday, pushing the Legion opener to Friday.

Pope struck out seven and walked two en route to the win. Wilson, which tied Pitt County for the regular season title and then lost a coin-toss for the No. 1 seed in the tournament, banded out 22 hits.

Scott Barnes led the way with four hits in seven at bats and 2 RBI.

Butler Hurls Three-Hitter In 10-0 Win Pirates Earn Tournament Berth

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

UNC-Wilmington put East Carolina's hopes of earning a berth in the upcoming North State Summer League postseason tournament on hold last night — a brief hold.

ECU pitcher Chubbie Butler made sure of that as he tossed a three-hitter to lead the Pirates to a 10-0 victory over the Seahawks in the second game of a double-header Monday at Harrington Field.

The Seahawks won the first game, 5-4, thanks to two errors and two homers — one a three-run shot — by Johnny Slaughter.

The Pirates went into the double-header in fourth place, two games ahead of UNC and needing a victory in their final three games — or a loss by UNC — to clinch fourth place and a berth in the league tournament.

The win in the nightcap gave ECU an 11-20 mark with one game remaining with N.C. State tonight at home. UNC, which was idle last night, is in last place with an 8-21 mark. UNC-W is now 14-16.

Having seen two errors cost them the opener, the Pirates roared back in the second to take a 6-0 lead after two innings and then road Butler's right arm the rest of the way.

Butler, who is now 1-5, struck out five and walked just one in pitching his first shutout at ECU.

"That," ECU coach Gary Overton said, "was the best game Butler's pitched since he's been here — spring and summer. "He pitched the game instead of throwing. He located the ball real well." Overton said. "He hit the corners and the knees, and he used his fast ball high well."

Butler held UNC-W hitless until Bobby Bryant lofted a single to centerfield with two gone in the fourth.

UNC-W's only serious threat of the evening came in the fifth when it loaded the bases in the fifth. With two gone and Buddy Walters on first base with a fielder's choice, Don Stevenson reached on an error by second baseman Robert Langston and Chris Cabbage singled.

Slaughter, the Seahawks' best hitter, was next. Butler induced Slaughter to pop out to Todd Evans at first for the final out.

Butler, a rising sophomore, set the Seahawks down in order in the sixth and seventh, striking out the final two batters looking in the seventh.

The Pirates moved ahead, 1-0, in the second when Mike Williams singled home Evans. Evans doubled to open the inning.

ECU upped its lead to 6-0 in the third, an inning keyed by a three-run home run by Williams.

Ricky Nichols reached base on an infield single, stole second and scored on Kelly Robinette's triple. John Hallow singled home Robinette to make it 3-0. Evans then reached on an error.

With one gone, Williams hit a blast over the rightfield fence for his second home run of the season to give ECU a six-run bulge. The Pirates scored their final four runs in the fifth.

Langston singled home Jack Curlings and Nichols tripled home Mark Shank and Langston. Nichols subsequently scored on an error to push the Pirate lead to 10-0.

Nichols was three for three with two runs batted in to lead ECU. Williams was two for four with four RBI. Williams had three hits and six RBI in

First Fed Wins Opener; Wachovia BR Champion

Mark Holloman tossed a one-hitter to lead First Federal to a 5-0 victory over Kiwanis in the opening game of the Little League City Championship played yesterday.

The win gives First Federal a 1-0 lead in the best-of-three series. Game No. 2 will be played tonight (6 p.m.). A third game, if necessary, will be played on Wednesday (6 p.m.).

Holloman struck out four and walked four en route to the win. Holloman had a no-hitter until the fourth inning when, with two out, Robbie McDonald singled to end the no-hit bid.

First Federal jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first inning. It stayed that way until the fourth when First Federal upped its lead to 2-0 on an RBI single by Frankie Pugh.

First Federal closed out its scoring in the fifth with three runs. Billy Bob Anderson singled and scored on an error and Bolen tripled home Maurice Dyer to make it 4-0. Bolen later scored on Holloman's single.

Bolen and Pugh were both two for two to lead First Federal.

WASHINGTON — Eugene Lee and Paul Jackson had three hits each to pace the Southern Pitt Little League All-Star team to a 24-13 victory over Aurora Monday in the first round of the District 7 South Area tournament.

Lee and Jackson led the run-scoring barrage, which brought the game to a halt in the fourth.

Babe Ruth 3
Wachovia 3
Coca-Cola 2

Tom Moore scored what proved the winning run in the seventh on a ground out to give Wachovia a 3-2 victory over Coca-Cola and the championship in the Babe Ruth postseason tournament yesterday.

Wachovia, which was held to just one hit by Coca-Cola's Billy Michel, rallied to tie the game in the fifth when Moore reached base on an error and scored on Jeff Howard's fielder's choice.

Wachovia, which went through the double-elimination tournament without a loss, went ahead two innings later.

Moore walked to open the inning and stole second. Then, with Dwight Smith on with a walk and one gone, Ricky Outlaw grounded to short, allowing Moore to race home.

Coke had the tying run on in the home half of the seventh when Lewis Robbins walked, stole second and third before Smith, the Wachovia pitcher, struck out Rob Joyner and Curtis Perry to end the threat and the game.

Winterville 12
Pugh's 11

FARMVILLE — Troy Hudson's three-run double keyed a five-run seventh that carried Winterville to a 12-11 victory over Pugh's Monday in the Coastal Plains South Babe Ruth tournament.

The loss eliminates Pugh's, which earlier in the day lost to Kiwanis, 6-3.

Winterville was to have played Kiwanis for the championship today.

Winterville trailed, 11-7, going into the seventh but rallied for five runs to take the win.

Smith's double drove in three runs to make it 11-10. Smith then scored on Coley's double to tie the game. Coley later came home on an error to give Winterville the lead.

FARMVILLE — Troy Hudson's two-run home run in the sixth sparked Kiwanis to a 6-3 victory over Pugh's Monday in the Coastal Plains South Babe Ruth tournament.

Kiwanis was to have played Winterville today for the title.

Kiwanis trailed, 3-2, going into the sixth but rallied on Hudson's two-run HR to take the lead.

The win forces a second game to decide the title, with the two teams to meet again tonight for the crown.

Pitt County, which defeated Martin County, 16-12, earlier in the day to move into the finals, rallied from a 8-6 deficit in the seventh to come away with the win.

Joyner and Mitchell Phillips had two hits each for Pitt County.

Pennant Fever Lurks In Some Unlikely Places

By The Associated Press

Pennant fever lurks in the unaccustomed environs of San Diego and Atlanta, tempers are flaring in troubled New York and Cincinnati, while oldfolks Pete Rose, Carl Yastrzemski and Gaylord Perry are up to their old tricks.

Major league baseball, with attendance booming, is halfway through a season that can best be described as topsy-turvy.

Mid-July usually finds San Diego Padres fans at the beach. But the Padres are 50-36, just two games behind the Atlanta Braves in the National League West.

"At this point in past years, you were usually hoping you could catch the fifth-place team and not finish last," says Padres public relations chief Bob Chandler, who has endured 10 fairly dismal seasons. "Now there's a pennant race. Fans are watching the scoreboard."

Pitcher Tim Lollar is 10-2, Chris Welsh is 5-3 and both are 300 hitters. Outfielder Ruppert Jones, much to the delight of "Rupe's Troops," is batting .312.

All three came to San Diego in a trade that sent Jerry Mumphrey to the New York Yankees.

Atlanta, which hasn't done much since winning the NL West in 1969, won a major league record 13 games to start the season.

Dale Murphy's 23 homers and 62 runs batted in and Bob Horner's 18 homers and 52 RBI have helped Atlanta to a 51-33 record, best in baseball.

Not all surprises have been positive. The Cincinnati Reds, who had the best overall record in baseball's strike-shortened 1981, are 21½ games behind the Braves. The Reds lost their starting outfield of George Foster, Ken Griffey and Dave Collins via trades and free agency.

"It's embarrassing having the record we have," Reds pitcher Charlie Leibrandt said recently during a nine-game losing streak. "I'm sure every guy on this team looks at the morning newspaper and says, 'Why? Why is this happening?'"

Surprises have not been confined to the National League. The Chicago White Sox won their first eight games of the season in the American League, and hurler LaMarr Hoyt won his first nine. The White Sox are two games behind California in the AL West. Surprising Seattle is only four behind as 43-year-old Gaylord Perry, picked up in the spring by the Mariners, notched his 300th career win.

Also, the Milwaukee Brewers — who are tied with the Boston Red Sox in the AL East — are running even with the New York Yankees' record 240-homer pace of 1961.

Question: Why Can't AL Win An All-Star Game?

By The Associated Press

Knock, knock. Who's there? Opportunity. Go away.

And so it goes for the American League in baseball's coffee break, the mid-summer classic known as the All-Star Game.

When the two leagues meet for the 53rd time in this clash tonight at Olympic Stadium in Montreal, the Nationals will be going for their 11th straight All-Star triumph. The NL has won 18 of the past 19 and leads the series 33-18-1.

This little knock-knock joke isn't very funny anymore to American League President Lee MacPhail, who, along with all his All-Stars, must answer the same question each year. Why can't the American League win?

Some believe the attitudes of the two leagues differ, the Americans being more blasé. Others have hypothesized that the National League has more depth. MacPhail called the NL streak an embarrassment and "one of the greatest miracles in sports."

Can 10 in a row be an accident, a fluke?

Carlton Fisk of the Chicago White Sox, nine-time AL All-Star, admits that attitude could have played a part. "I never really felt that winning or losing was the object of the All-Star Games... maybe that is the problem," Fisk says.

Pete Rose of Philadelphia, 16 times an NL All-Star, feels the Nationals have an edge in bench strength. "It's very, very even until you start to make replacements, and the American League is catching up in that aspect," Rose says.

The facts seem to support Rose's theory. In its past five victories, the National League has rallied in the final four innings, long after the starters had left.

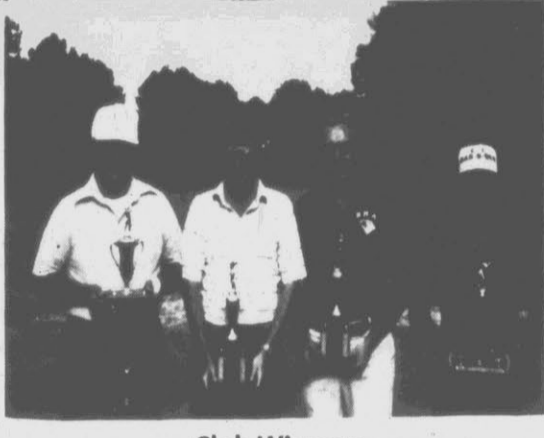

What other possible explanations are there?

"Both sides have pride. There's nothing different there," says Al Oliver of the Montreal Expos, who has had a first-hand look at both sides in the All-Star dispute. "In the National League, though, I always thought there was an outward confidence among the players, all the players."

Their personalities were more outgoing than in the American League. In the American League, there's more laid-back talent."

the two games.

In the first game, ECU battled back from a two-run deficit twice to tie the game going into the fifth. But, Stevenson hit what proved the telling blow, a solo home run to rightfield with two out to give UNC-W a 5-4 lead.

ECU threatened in the sixth when Evans walked and Jack Curlings singled, but Williams flew out to left and Art Barnhardt grounded into a force play to end the inning.

The Pirates got the tying run to second in the seventh when Langston walked and went to second on a wild pitch. But, Nichols struck out and Robinette flew out to left to end the game.

"We really felt we should have won the first ballgame," Overton said. "We played hard enough but not well enough."

Indeed, ECU threw away a chance of winning the first game in the third inning when the Pirates made two errors just prior to Slaughter's first home run of the game.

The Pirates jumped out to a 1-0 lead in the first on Hallow's solo home run over the rightfield fence. But, the Seahawks countered with three bottom of the inning on Williams' two-run single.

Hallow singled and Evans walked and both runners moved up a base on Curlings' sacrifice before Williams lined a single to center to score both runners and tie the game at 4-4.

"That (the errors) were a part of (the reason we lost)," Overton said. "We also made some mental errors. But I was feeling after the game we had a lot of confidence and could win the second one."

Hallow, the ECU third baseman, agreed. Said Hallow: "We were disappointed we lost the first one but we knew we could win the second. We wanted to go ahead and get in (to the tournament) tonight."

Which is just what the Pirates did — after briefly being put off by UNC-W.

year's game at Cleveland, it was a two-run eighth that built a 5-4 victory.

"It always seems we wind up losing in the last few innings," said Fisk, the AL catcher. "I never thought the importance of this game should be put on winning or losing."

Three members of the original 1982 AL team — Jackson, Carew and Boston's Carl Yastrzemski — played in the 1971 game at Detroit.

That game was made particularly memorable by Jackson's pinch home run, a towering shot off a generator box atop Tiger Stadium, one of the longest balls ever hit in All-Star history. Martin was the AL's first-base coach and the NL Manager in that game was Anderson, serving as a coach under Martin on this year's AL team.

Both teams worked out at Olympic Stadium Monday with about 25,000 fans on hand to watch the batting practice.

Rocky Mount played its home course advantage to the hill Monday night as it defeated Greenville and Goldsboro by 38 and 41 strokes in the Eastern Regionals.

The deficit dropped Greenville, which led the regionals by 30 strokes going into the match, to second with a combined score of 1,415. Rocky Mount now is the leader with 1,407.

Goldsboro is third at 1,438.

Allan Arrington led Rocky Mount with an 88. Mike Quisenberry and Brent Poole were at 89 followed by Gary Durham (90) and Ronnie Peacock (95).

Greenville was led by Bobby Ipock (88) and Johnny Carrow (98). Danny Harris, Rodney Hooks and Danny Pollard were all at 101.

Perry Carter shot an 88 for Goldsboro. Kevin Best was at 98 followed by Eric Zieg (100), Dean Holmes (101) and Hank Elston (105).

The regionals return to Greenville Monday to begin the final round at the three courses.

Coach Admits Rules Broken

ATLANTA (AP) — Former Georgia assistant football coach Wayne McDuffie says he broke two NCAA rules that cost the university a chance to sign a top prep player.

But, he said, maybe it's best that George Smith of Coffee County, a 230-pound fullback, went to Texas A&M instead.

"I felt he wanted to go to A&M all along," McDuffie said. "It was a case of a kid torn between what he wanted to do and what he thought he should do."

McDuffie said he made an illegal visit to Smith and gave him a warmup suit — both violations of National Collegiate Athletic Association rules.

"I was wrong and I regret it. I'd die if there were any big consequences," said McDuffie, who now is a member of the Atlanta Falcons staff.

"I hate that it happened," McDuffie said, "especially for Georgia people. If anybody wants a good, straight program the Georgia people do. And it all starts with Vince Dooley," head football coach and athletic director.

The infractions are minor ones, McDuffie said, but "it was my responsibility to be aware of the rules and abide by them. There are rules and regulations you have to accept as a college recruiter. That's the way it is in football, the way it is in life. The little things beat you."

McDuffie made the remarks in an interview in today's editions of The Atlanta Constitution.

ABC Has Headache Over All-Star Game Telecast

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Dennis Lewin has an All-Star Game to get on the air tonight, and he'd like it to start on time. But it's in Montreal, so there will be two national anthems and player introductions in French and English. Oh, and 13 people are to throw out the "first" ball.

Lewin's also had to worry about fans and screens interfering with ABC's cameras, appropriate representation by the Canadian labor unions in ABC's crews, and seating charts for celebrities and wives attending the game.

And these are just some of his headaches BEFORE the first pitch.

Lewin, 37, is senior producer of ABC's coverage of the All-Star Game, the first one ever held outside the United States. Playing in Montreal's Olympic Stadium has created some unique problems.

"The basic one is that Olympic Stadium wasn't built for baseball," says Lewin, whose eight Emmy awards testify to his ability to find solutions to a variety of production problems.

A quarter-mile track surrounds the baseball field, moving fans and TV cameras farther back than in most stadiums. If ABC's cameras are out of position, ultimately the living-room fan's view will be hampered.

So Lewin went to Montreal last April for a camera survey. He found his home-plate camera would have to shoot through the screen that protects fans from foul balls. To improve those pictures, ABC offered to buy plexiglass and the split the cost with other broadcasters, but a deal couldn't be arranged.

Other position problems, however, were overcome or minimized. The low first- and third-base cameras, which shoot close-ups of pitchers and batters, were obstructed by players in the on-deck circle. So ABC got permission to move the matted circles two feet away.

Problems with the high baseline cameras were more difficult. "We ran the risk of shooting somebody coming up the aisles with popcorn," says Lewin.

Fans getting in the way didn't amount to much during ABC's "Monday Night Baseball" in Olympic Stadium, but Lewin wasn't willing to gamble tonight with a full house. Those cameras were mounted on scaffolding and moved back. "It's not the ideal viewer angle, but it's the best compromise," Lewin says.

One of ABC's 13 cameras will be roaming for wives-and-celebrities shots. Baseball will provide seating charts for the famous or soon-to-be famous and a spotter to identify Mrs. All-Star.

An additional foreign obstacle was the requirement that some of the crew had to be Canadian to fulfill ABC's labor obligations in Canada.

Other unusual hurdles caused by the All-Star Game crossing the border impact on Lewin's desire to have the game start at 8:37 p.m. EDT, as it does on Monday nights. During the regular season, affiliates don't want baseball delaying their late-night local newscasts.

Although some of the All-Star festivities can be absorbed by a 30-minute pre-game show, Lewin predicts the first pitch will come at 8:45, following the dual anthems and bilingual introductions of the players and managers.

He did manage to save some time by rejecting major league baseball's request that ABC broadcast the names of representatives from the 13 baseball-playing nations who each will throw out a ceremonial first ball. These international introductions will be made when ABC is in commercial or doing its pre-game show.

Once all those production problems are out of the way, Lewin can concentrate on a baseball game, making sure ABC's cameras and announcers are documenting the game properly, while he's overseeing the insertion of replays, taped and live interviews, and commercials into the broadcast.

Play ball.

Disney-Touch For 'Tron' Set To Help Box Office

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Studio officials plan new ads stressing the Disney origins of the science fiction thriller "TRON" after initial box-office returns indicated the movie's debut sputtered in the small towns that usually support Disney films.

"We did very well in large cities like New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Chicago, but we're weak in the medium-to-small cities where Disney is usually strong," Mike Bagnall, senior financial officer at Walt Disney Productions, said Monday. "We'll change the ad campaign there for more of a 'Walt Disney presents' approach."

There's been no such lag for "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial." Steven Spielberg's fantasy about a lovable alien. Universal Pictures reported its 31-day gross totaled $106.7 million. The film is playing in 1,374 theaters.

"Porky's" also has topped the $100 million mark, a weekly box-office survey showed Monday, but 20th Century Fox's high-school comedy took 17 weeks to tally $100.68 million. It's playing in 696 movie houses.

"TRON" had an "encouraging" opening Friday in 1,091 theaters, amassing a three-day total of $4.8 million, despite bad reviews from financial analysts that sent Walt Disney Productions' stock downward last week.

Wins Fellowship

John R. Farley, local certified public accountant, was awarded a Paul T. Harris Fellowship by members of the Greenville Noon Rotary Club.

Named for the founder of Rotary International, this honor is achieved by the donation of $1,000 to the Rotary Foundation International Scholarship Fund.

In its two-year history the Greenville Noon Rotary Club has named five Paul Harris Fellows. This places the club in the top one-third in foundation support of the 50 clubs in District 773, one of four districts in the state.

"I think we're off to a good start," Bagnall said. "We've had umpteen spies at the theaters and the word-of-mouth has been tremendous. We're hoping that will transform into a continued good business."

Spruill was charged with driving while his license was revoked and no liability insurance in connection with the mishap.

An 8:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Howell and Pitt streets involved vehicles driven by Noah Thurman Hardee of Route 7, Greenville, and John Stephen Childers of 1101 Johnston St. Officers set damage from the collision at $400 to the Hardee truck and $1,200 to the Childers car.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♣.

Many contracts pivot around control of the hand. How you go about the play can depend on how many tricks you can afford to lose.

Because of his good five-card major suit and lack of a stopper in diamonds, South elected to open one heart rather than one no trump. Since his hand was worth only one forward-going bid, North chose to raise hearts rather than show his spades or describe his shape with a no trump response. South had an easy jump to four hearts—the superior game contract.

West led the king of diamonds and, in response to his partner's signal with the six, he continued with the ace of diamonds and another. Declarer ruffed, and it might seem that declarer should bank his hopes on a trump finesse, using dummy's high spades as entries. But then declarer would have to lose a club, and he still might not make the contract, even if East had the king of hearts.

Since declarer can still afford to lose a trick, and since he can get rid of his club loser on spades, the safer way to make the contract is to simply concede a trick to the king of trumps. However, it would not do to continue with the ace of trumps and another—that would be fine if trumps were 3-2, but would lose to actual distribution. West would hold up one round. If declarer abandoned trumps, West would ruff a spade with his low trump; if declarer continued with a trump, West would win and force declarer's last trump with a diamond, and he would still score his low trump.

Declarer found the winning line—he led the queen of trumps from his hand. West refused to go up with the king, but declarer simply continued with the jack. If West won, he could not force declarer with a diamond—South would ruff in dummy. So West held up again. Now declarer cashed the ace of trumps and started on spades. Since West held three spades, declarer was able to discard his club loser on the fourth spade, and the contract was safe.

NAACP Sets Voting Goals

BETHEL — The Pitt County Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People met at the Bethel Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Sunday.

Willie Mae Carney, vice president of the Pitt chapter, reported on the national convention in Boston. She said North Carolina is a target state for increasing voter registration and voter turnout.

The state, she said, will receive funds this year and for the first six months of 1983, to increase the education of blacks in regards to registration and elections.

Effie Thompson spoke on a new tutoring program which is now under way, and asked that churches in the county make facilities available for two or three hours each morning during the summer for the tutoring program.

Ms. Thompson noted that the tutoring program is free for those interested.

She said persons wishing to enroll their children in the program can contact her at 756-4358, or contact NAACP president D. D. Garrett at 752-4476.

Toll Rises In Mexican Train Wreck

TEPIC, Mexico (AP) — The Red Cross said 70 bodies have been pulled from the wreckage of an express train that derailed north of here with about 800 people aboard, and the toll could rise today as rescue teams finish searching through the twisted metal.

Six people were in critical condition among the 132 passengers injured in the crash of the train known as The Bullet, said Manuel Morales, a Red Cross deputy director in this Pacific coast town.

Morales said late Monday that Red Cross workers, who were responsible for transporting the victims away from the crash site, had counted 70 bodies. He said it would take most of the day to finish cutting through the wreckage with blow torches, a job slowed by the heavy rains that also were believed to have contributed to the crash.

Another Red Cross official, German Sanchez, described the scene as "pretty horrible."

The state deputy attorney general, Gilberto Velasco, said no more than 27 deaths had been confirmed by his office, but added the final toll "cannot be calculated" yet because some crash victims were missing and others were taken to various hospitals for treatment.

There were no reports of any U.S. citizens killed or injured in the crash, which occurred about 1:30 p.m. Sunday, according to the U.S. consulate in Guadalajara, 120 miles southeast of the Nayarit state capital of Tepic.

U.S. Consul Robert Downes said in Mazatlan that one of the passengers killed was believed to be Dutch because of documents found in a piece of luggage.

The state-owned Pacific Railway's train was bound from Mexicali, across the U.S. border from Calexico, Calif., to Guadalajara, 290 miles northwest of Mexico City.

The train apparently hit a stretch of rain-loosened ties near station Cortes, 19 miles north of here, and jumped the track, said Candelario Martinez Murillo, district attorney for Nayarit state.

"There was fire," said

Martinez, who said the train had 21 first-class coaches. "Three coaches plunged down an embankment 30 yards deep."

Three other coaches remained standing on the track. The rest of the coaches slammed into a thick wall on one side of the track and there was wreckage strewn over a length of about 2,000 yards. Many people were crushed or pinned down."

Spokesmen at Pacific Railway offices in Guadalajara and Mexico City refused to comment on the accident, or referred reporters to other offices where those answering telephone calls also refused to give out information.
