Adjusted Family Income Takes A Plunge For Second Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are earning more but they're still losing the battle against inflation which caused their spending power to decline by 3.5 percent last year, the Census Bureau reports.

At the same time, more than 2 million people slipped below the poverty level, bringing the nation's total of poor to more than 31.8 million or 14 percent. That's the highest percentage since 1967 when it was 14.2. The highest percentage of people in poverty since the government began keeping that particular statistic was 22.4

percent in 1959. The bureau said the decline in real income — adjusted to account for inflation — dropped for the second straight year. The drop was less than that of the year before, however, when real income fell 5.5 percent. The latest figures were based on a survey of 62,000 households. The bureau said that median family income in 1981 was $22,390, 6.5 percent more than in 1980. However, after adjusting for the rise in consumer prices, it was ac-

Eleven persons were arrested Monday night and early this morning on charges ranging from possession and sale to trafficking in heroin, following a joint undercover investigation conducted by the State Bureau of Investigation, the Greenville Police Department and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department.

Greenville police Capt. A.G. Whitaker, who said Winterville and Bethel police assisted in the roundup, said "several more persons" are expected to be arrested in connection with the investigation.

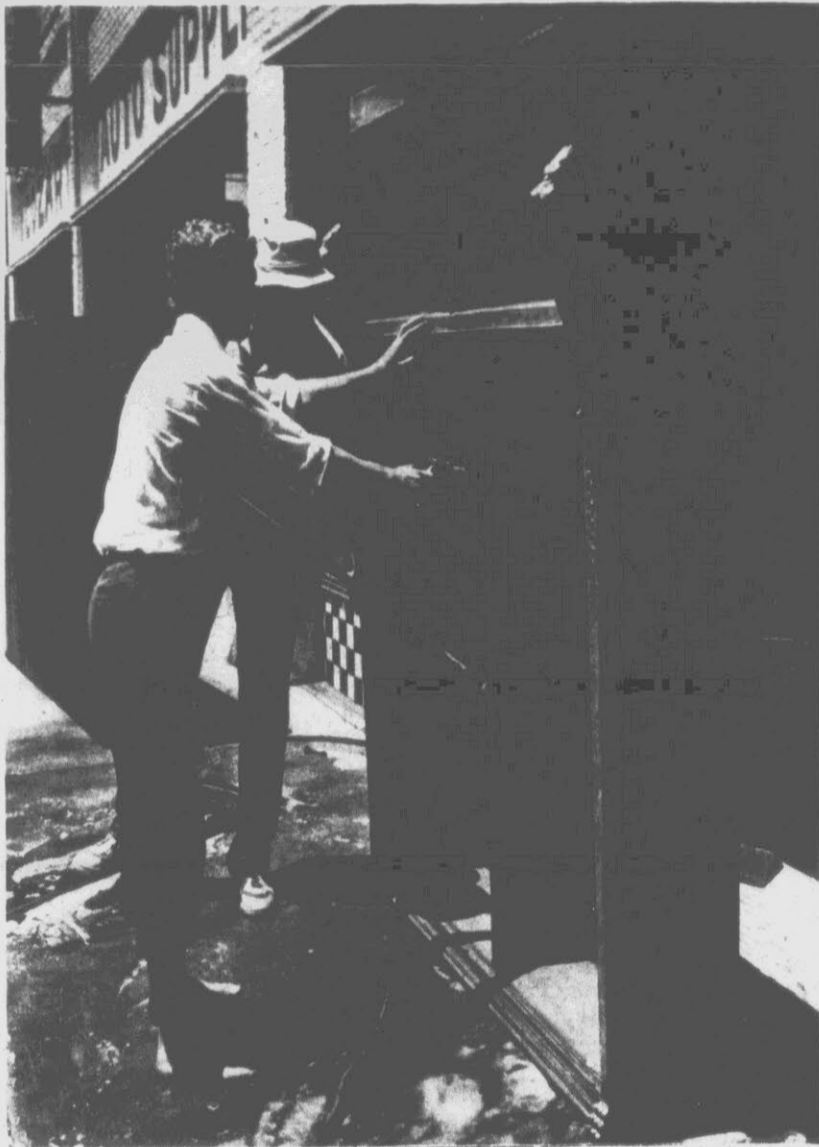

Those arrested Monday night and today included Leroy Dawson, 1402 Ward St., on two counts of possession with intent to sell and two counts of sale of heroin, with bond set at $35,000; Tom Price, 407 Cadillac St., one count of possession with intent to sell and one count of sale of heroin, with bond set at $10,000; Dorothy Clark, 407 Cadillac St., one count of possession with intent to sell and one count of sale of heroin, with bond set at $10,000; Leo Smith, 418 Tyson St., two counts of possession with intent to sell and two counts of sale of heroin, with bond set at $35,000; Willie Frank Langley, 1505A W. Fifth St., three counts of possession with intent to sell and three counts of sale of heroin, with bond set at $50,000; and Curtis Guilford, 1205A Colonial Ave., two counts of possession with intent to sell and two counts of sale of heroin, with bond set at $35,000; Carol G. Democratic Leader's Funeral Set Thursday

Mrs. J.B. Spilman, 93, died Monday night at her home, 1913 E. Fifth St.

Mrs. Spilman was active in the Democratic party of Pitt County and North Carolina. She served as vice chairman of Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee and later as vice chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Executive Committee.

Mrs. Spilman, the first woman in North Carolina to direct a governor's campaign, headed Gov. Clyde R. Hoey's successful bid for office in 1936. She was a member of the Employment Security Commission during his administration.

Gov. Jim Hunt called Mrs. Spilman "a great North Carolinian." "Carolyn and I are deeply saddened to learn of the death of Mrs. J.B. Spilman," he said. "She contributed much to her state and to the Democratic party."

"I think we've lost one of our great Democrats," said Janice Faulkner, executive director of the North Carolina Democratic Party. "She was a tremendous inspiration to everyone. While her death is sad, her life was very, very full."

"Mrs. Spilman was one of the most remarkable women who has lived in North Carolina," noted Betty Speir, vice chairman of the North Carolina Democratic Party. "She explored new areas for women with such grace that she was universally accepted. She was an inspiration to the last."

In 1950 Mrs. Spilman directed the census survey for the First Congressional District and from 1950-1957 was executive secretary of Pitt County Tuberculosis Association, then became director of the North Carolina Mental Health Association. For the past ten years she served on the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Gift Board.

Mrs. Spilman was named one of North Carolina's Ten Most Outstanding Women in 1938 and was later named Greenville Citizen of the Year and Outstanding North Carolina Democrat and she was honored in Washington.

IRA Bombs Go Off In Two London Parks, Killing 9

LONDON (AP) — IRA bombs exploded today at a bandstand in Regent's Park while an army band was playing and in Hyde Park near a passing unit of the queen's Household Cavalry, killing nine people and wounding 36, police said.

The blasts in two of London's most popular parks on a bright summer day terrorized scores of people.

Scotland Yard said the three people killed at Hyde Park included at least two soldiers, and that civilians were among the wounded. One witness said the six dead at Regent's Park were all soldiers.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility for the Hyde Park bombing, and British police said the second bomb also was the work of the IRA.

The bomb at Regent's Park, where London Zoo is located, went off at a bandstand where the Royal Green Jackets regiment band was playing for dozens of spectators, including many elderly people.

One witness, Ronald Benjamin, said: "I was just sitting in a deckchair looking at the band when everything seemed to come up from the bottom of the bandstand and blow right in the air — the bodies, the instruments, everything."

"A leg came within five feet of me. It was blown right off. There were mangled bodies all over the deckchairs."

"There were soldiers lying there with all their intestines out," Miriam Sheridan, a witness to the Regent's Park bombing, said. "There was such a tremendous crash I couldn't believe it."

A witness to the Hyde Park bombing said: "Horses were literally thrown in the air and there were injured lying all over the place. There was blood everywhere. It was terrible."

The blast occurred a half-mile from Buckingham Palace while Queen Elizabeth II was in residence, palace spokeswoman Ann Neill said. She said the explosion shook the palace windows.

The Irish Republican

Army, in a statement telexed to The Associated Press, said the IRA was responsible for the car bomb at Hyde Park.

"Now it is our turn to properly invoke Article 51 of the U.N. Statute and properly quote all Thatcher's fine phrases on the right to self-determination of a people," the statement said. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher cited Article 51 of the U.N. Charter as the basis for dispatching a task force that recaptured the Falkland Islands from Argentina last month.

The article deals with the right of all peoples to self-determination.

The Hyde Park bomb went off at 11 a.m. (6 a.m. EDT) in a parked car.

Teachers Aren't Necessarily Best

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The teaching profession attracts more than its share of the worst college students, and the least-qualified teachers stay in the profession the longest, a national study says.

Every year, incoming teachers are less academically able than their predecessors, while the most able teachers strike out in search of better jobs, according to the study.

"The findings aren't surprising, but they are distressing," Phillip C. Schlechty, associate dean of the School of Education of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, said in an interview Monday.

Nearly 70 percent of high school and elementary teachers who expected to be teaching at age 30 scored below the mean verbal Scholastic Aptitude Test score of their peers who did not go into teaching, according to Schlechty and Victor S. Vance of the Campbell University Department of Education.

The results stem from teaching's inability to compete with other white-collar professions, the researchers said.

Oversupervision, low salaries and low prestige contribute to the problem, Schlechty said. The average teacher salary for 1981-82 was $18,976, according to the National Education Association.

Another reason is that opportunities are widening for women and minorities, meaning the most qualified members of those groups are taking higher paying and more prestigious jobs, Schlechty added.

The researchers, using SAT verbal scores as a yardstick for academic qualifications, studied 4,416 college graduates from

Futrell Enters Wake Center

Ashley Futrell, chairman of the board of trustees of East Carolina University, was scheduled to enter Wake County Medical Center in Raleigh this afternoon to undergo a "coronary bypass operation" in the next several days, an ECU spokesman said this morning.

Charles R. Blake, assistant to ECU Chancellor John Howell, said that Futrell would enter the hospital to "undergo preparations" and will "probably have surgery in the next few days." Futrell "is expected to be back home in a few days" after his surgery, Blake noted. The spokesman said Futrell entered Pitt County Memorial Hospital a few weeks ago for evaluation, and Greenville physicians have "continued to evaluate his condition since that time." Futrell "made a follow-up visit yesterday (Monday) ... and it was deemed advisable to have the bypass operation."

Saying the board chairman is in "good condition for this type of operation," Blake noted that Futrell was "on the job this morning," as publisher of The Washington Daily News in Washington.

City School Board Reorganizes

Three new members and one re-elected member of the Greenville Board of Education were sworn into office by Mayor Percy Cox at the board's July action meeting Monday night.

The four are Erma S. Carr, the re-elected member; Frank Grooms, a first-time member appointed by the City Council, and two members who won election June 29 — Wilson Rhodes and George Williams. All will serve four-year terms.

Prior to their induction, Cox remarked that, in selecting Grooms, the City Council "was not too much concerned about sex or race in making our choice. What council members were deeply concerned with was getting the best qualified person for the job."

Cox added that, "in past years the City Council also was not too much concerned about the city school board, as we do not fund the school budget. Now we see a need for the council to become more attentive to the needs of the board and to do whatever is within our power to help."

Grooms has been here with Eaton Corp. here since 1957. He has been active in a wide range of civic and community activities, including serving with committees and commissions of the chamber of commerce, United Way and several other groups and organizations.

Three outgoing school board members were presented plaques in recognition of service to the community as board members. The three honored were Terry Shank, for 10 years' membership on the board, and Donovan Phillips and Dr. Jon Tinglestad, each for four years' service.

Following induction and seating of the new board members, the board elected Jack Wall as chairman and Jerry Smith as vice chairman for the coming year.

Three budget amendments were approved, one each in the categories of current expense, capital outlay and federal funds. Finance Officer Naomi Edwards explained that all three were bookkeeping adjustment functions and did not alter the amount of funds in these budgets.

Dear Abby

Wife Throws Cold Water On Husband's Daily Baths

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I've seen numerous letters in your column over the years from wives complaining that their husbands don't bathe enough, so this letter may be a first.

My wife complains because I bathe too much. I bathe routinely every morning. After a hard day's work (office) I bathe before going to bed. If we are going out in the evening, before putting on fresh clothes, I always take a bath.

I've been meaning to write this letter for a year, and am doing it now because my wife told me very emphatically again that I was overdoing the baths, and as a favor to her I should bathe only every other day!

She says this has nothing to do with conserving water or energy — she just likes me better when I am not freshly bathed. Have you ever heard of this?

I am very much interested in your reply.
BATHES TOO MUCH

DEAR BATHES: Your wife may be one of those women who prefer the natural scent of the unwashed male. (Not necessarily "dirty" — just unwashed.) Don't sniff at the significance of odors. Their effect on one's emotional (and physical) responses is vastly underrated.

DEAR ABBY: I want to celebrate my 25th wedding anniversary, but there is a slight "irregularity" in my case. I will have been married for 25 years on Oct. 10, but I have had four husbands. However, the sum total of those four marriages does come to 25 years, so I feel that I am entitled to celebrate a silver wedding anniversary.

When I told my father about it, he said if I insisted on celebrating the occasion, he had his present all picked out, a gift certificate for an appointment with a psychiatrist of my choice.

What is your opinion?
MARRIED FOR 25 YEARS IN ST. PAUL

DEAR MARRIED: I vote with Father.

DEAR ABBY: I witnessed something last night that upset me. A small girl in our neighborhood was struck by a car near her home. She appeared to be seriously injured. Her mother ran screaming from the house, and against my advice, she picked up the child and held her tightly against her chest.

An ambulance had been called, but the parents refused to wait for it. Instead they put the child in their own car and took her to the hospital. The child suffered massive head and neck injuries, and as I write this, we don't know whether she will live or die.

I, too, am a mother, and I know it is instinctive to pick up a child and hold it when it's injured. In some cases, this can do serious damage to the child. It is best to wait until trained personnel arrive.

Also, taking an injured child in one's own car and driving to the hospital is unwise. One's mind is not clear, and the driver of an ordinary car does not have the right-of-way and the siren of an ambulance driver, who also knows the shortest route to the nearest hospital.

I hope you will give this space in your column, Abby. So many well-meaning parents and witnesses to an accident do more harm than good.
ONE WHO CARES

DEAR ONE: You make several excellent points. If only one person reads this and puts it to good use, it will be worth the space in my column.

"The Best of Dear Abby," featuring Abby's best answers and favorite responses during the past 25 years, is now available. ## Shoffner Says No To Write-In Robert L. (Bob) Shoffner has indicated that he is not endorsing a write-in candidacy for district attorney in the November general election.

In refusing to endorse such a candidacy, Shoffner emphasized that in filing as a Democratic candidate in the June 29 primary, he signed a pledge not to be a write-in candidate at the next general election.

"While I'm grateful for the write-in support that has surfaced since the primary, I would not want to break that pledge," he said.

Shoffner lost in his primary bid for district attorney to Thomas D. Haigwood and several posters have been placed around the city urging a write-in vote for Shoffner, a public defender, in the November balloting.

Thousands Gather To Pray For Jobs

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The stadium scoreboard flashed "Jesus is the Answer" next to an advertisement for U.S. Steel as 8,000 people — including idled steel and coalworkers — asked God for a miracle to help revive their struggling industries.

"Satan and all your forces, we command you to get out of town and take your hands off our mills!" the Rev. Gary A. Mitrick told the Three Rivers Stadium crowd at the "Miracle of Pittsburgh" prayer meeting Monday evening.

The free-admission meeting was sponsored by four Pittsburgh businessmen who said they had a "vision" of 35,000 people invoking divine will to reverse setbacks in the nation's struggling steel and coal industries.

"We're asking God's forgiveness for the errors that have been committed — on management's side, on labor's side and on the people's side," Sal Moliterno, 34, a Pittsburgh wholesaler and one of the sponsors of the three-hour revival.

"The steel mills and the coal mines are not the source for people," Moliterno said. "God is the source, where people should have gone in the first place."

About a third of the nation's steelworkers have been laid off in the industry's current slump, and a sixth of unionized coal workers are jobless, according to industry and labor figures.

United Steelworkers Union representatives are due in Pittsburgh Wednesday for follow-up talks to last week's sessions with the nation's major steel companies, whose mills have been operating at less than half capacity.

The union is considering industry appeals for wage and benefit cuts to help reduce production costs in the face of low demand, high interest rates, and stiff foreign competition.

"I came down here because I'm laid off and because I think God can help us with these problems," said millwright Bob Shope, 35, a father of eight.

"Hopefully, God will inspire people to come up with the right answers and open some doors," said Shope, of nearby Munhall, who was laid off from U.S. Steel Corp.'s Homestead Works a month ago.

"Pittsburgh needs a miracle! Amen!" Mitrick chanted from a platform in center field.

Despite little publicity, oppressive heat and a threat of thundershowers, the revival drew a larger turnout than many Pirates' baseball games this season.

"I'm just here praying for a better world," said Martin Olaharski, 37, of Green Tree, a former air traffic controller who was fired after he and his colleagues went on strike last summer.

"There's a lot of power in prayer," said Ben Coleman, president of USW Local 3968 in nearby Canonsburg.

"We just feel it's now the time to turn to God," said marketing executive Harry Guidotti, another of the organizers who rented the city-owned stadium for $10,000 for the prayer meeting. "It's time to pray for a healing of management and labor."

Several Pittsburgh-area steelworkers union locals have held benefit rock concerts, raffles and mill gate collections to feed jobless colleagues hurt by layoffs.

unidentified woman. More than 100 people were stricken by the illness, which doctors said resembled food poisoning. (AP Laserphoto)

Mass Illness Strikes Hotel Guests

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Health officials differed over what caused more than 100 people at a hotel here to sicken and begin "falling over like flies" after eating a banquet lunch.

About 110 people, mostly women, became ill in the Monday afternoon outbreak and 89 of them were treated at five hospitals. Others were treated at a special unit set up at the Sheraton West Hotel. Only one person remained hospitalized Monday night.

Although doctors did not rule out food poisoning, they said the mass illness may have been brought on by chemicals used in the embroidery paints on display at the convention.

Hotel General Manager Anton J. Paringer said the conventioners had finished a 1:30 p.m. banquet lunch of baked chicken, mashed potatoes, green beans, salad and chocolate mousse when several women collapsed.

Many of the women complained the chicken tasted bad.

"They were falling over like flies," said Mary Waters of Peoria, Ill. "Some people got nauseous. Some passed out."

Dorothy R. Shuker of Youngstown, Ohio, recalled when the first woman in her group got sick. "It came up all of a sudden, and she just keeled over and ran to the bathroom."

Rita Ball of Upland, Ind., and Esther McCune of Apple Creek, Ohio, said many people said the chicken tasted "funny." Some pushed the food away after a few bites.

Mrs. McCune said a waitress told her the funny taste was because the chicken was "marinated in something."

"I do not believe it to be food poisoning," Paringer said. "About 150 of our employees ate the same luncheon, and none became ill. It may be a case that some of the chemicals they're using in doing the work and used during a demonstration could have caused the illness."

The conventioners were representatives of Tri-Chem Liquid Embroidery Paints and their families from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Tri-Chem is a Harrison, N.J.-based manufacturer of paints used for decorating fabric. Most of the conventioners come into close contact with the oil-based paint, either through use or sales.

Dr. Gareth Gilkey of Wishard Memorial Hospital said chemical poisoning was a "more likely (culprit) than staph food poisoning."

"Staph" is short for staphylococcus, a type of bacterium.

He said symptoms among the 26 patients treated at his hospital included slight nausea, headaches, dizziness and difficulty breathing, but that none involved vomiting, which usually is associated with food poisoning.

Dr. Kirk L. Parr, chief internal medicine resident at Methodist Hospital, diagnosed a "relatively harmless" gastroenteritis most likely caused by a staphylococcus.

Both Mrs. Ball and Mrs. McCune rejected Paringer's suggestion the illness was caused by the embroidery paint.

"I've been painting for 15 years and never had any problems," Mrs. Ball said.

A program of wedding music was rendered by organist Mrs. Alan Joyner and soloists Mrs. Vernon Davis Jr. and Alan Joyner.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of chiffon over taffeta. The gown was fashioned with a Victorian neckline accented with Venise lace and seed pearls enhanced with a ruffle of chantilly lace. The long full sleeves featured motifs of Venise lace on sheer overlay and ended in a cuff of lace. The full skirt was accented on the sides with rows of Venise lace which met at a V at the hips. The gown had a brushed hemline of chantilly lace which extended into a chapel length train. A walking length veil edged with chantilly lace fell from a cap of re-embroidered lace and seed pearls. A crescent shaped bouquet of yellow and white daisies, yellow sweetheart roses, English ivy, lily of the valley and a sunkist orchid cascaded to the floor.

Maid of honor was Margie G. Ballard of New Bern. She wore a floor length gown of buttercup qiana with spaghetti straps. The flowing skirt ended in a brushed hemline. The matching lace jacket was highlighted with a Victorian neckline and long sleeves. She carried a ring of English ivy intertwined with yellow sweetheart roses, daisies and stephanotis.

Serving as bridesmaids were Lisa Barnhill of Vanceboro, Nan Blackberry and Denise Hicks of New Bern, Stacy Brewer of Dunn, Donna Hough of Greensboro, Melody Little of Charlotte and Janet Lovell of Atlanta. All wore dresses like that of the maid of honor and carried rings of English ivy intertwined with yellow and white daisies and stephanotis.

MRS. JEFFERY GEORGE BREWER

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of mauve chiffon over taffeta and the mother of the bridegroom chose a floor length gown of smoky gray chiffon over taffeta. Both mothers were remembered with a sunkist yellow throated orchid.

"They wrote novels; fostered converts to Christianity, administered museums and governmental agencies, practiced politics, taught in schools and colleges, participated in book clubs and civic groups, nursed the sick, painted portraits, helped manage households and courted chivalrous gentlemen."

So begins the introduction to a new East Carolina University publication, "A Guide to Women's History Resources in the East Carolina Manuscript Collection."

The 40-page indexed guide outlines and gives details about the dozens of oral histories, diaries, correspondence and other papers concerning the lives of a variety of women, many dating from the 19th century.

Maurice York, curator of the ECU Manuscript Collection and editor of the guide, noted that the professional women represented in the book — writers, journalists, nurses, teachers, artists, missionaries, politicians and administrators — are generally connected in some way with North Carolina, although they "pursued their careers all over the globe."

"Their papers constitute a valuable resource for researchers interested in women's history," he said. "Additional collections, especially those of the 19th century farm or plantation families, contain significant items or groups of papers that reflect the activities of women or others' attitudes concerning them," he added.

In addition to the women's history items, the collection includes a number of groups of papers relating to North Carolina history, military history and the history of the tobacco industry.

The Manuscript Collection, open each weekday from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m., is located in the east wing of Joyner Library on the main campus.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I hate to say I told you so, but remember how I always warned, "Never turn your back on a two-year-old!"

Well, several stories recently have given rise to some concern about the increase in juvenile crimes.

There was a pre-teen who was hauled into court and legally charged with assault on a playmate. Then there was the seven-year-old in Los Angeles who was tried for arson.

A 12-year-old in Marlborough, Mass., made the Most Wanted List and even had a warrant out for her arrest for not returning books and records to the local library. (She said her house burnt down and she no longer had them. See paragraph above.)

How far down is the cut? All the way down to a four-year-old boy in Philadelphia who had to appear in municipal court on charges of dumping five bags of trash — all bigger than he was — outside rather than inside a city incinerator plant.

He went to court and got off only after his parents testified they couldn't possibly pin a littering rap on their son because he was in a day nursery center at the time. (They all say that.)

How many times do I have to tell you, children are not little bundles of innocence. They're lumps of larceny jammed into small adorable bodies.

Why, there isn't a three-year-old alive who can't break and enter a house without a key and set off the most sophisticated alarm system ever devised.

When they are made to do something they don't want to do (go to bed, take a bath, smile) they have the strength of 5,000 camels.

Children have always been quick to learn how the system works. My children never even saw "The Godfather." Yet instinctively one night my son marched into the middle of a party in his jammies, kissed me on both cheeks and said, "The five big ones you borrowed from my paper route savings? Get it back by Wednesday or I work Grandma over."

I suppose experts are already trying to figure out why so many youngsters are involved with the law. Some will blame television, others will finger parents who are shirking responsibilities. Me? I believe the potential was there all the time. And I'll sleep better tonight knowing the law is finally on our side.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

There are now seven cookbooks on my shelves devoted to using tofu (bean curd). The earliest one is dated 1975, the latest ones appeared this year.

Because such cookbooks attest to the growing interest in using this delicious and nutritious ingredient, I caddged a recipe for Grape Tofu Salad from a Japanese-American cook I know. This salad goes well with a platter of sliced cold turkey or chicken and ham for a buffet lunch or supper.

GRAPE TOFU SALAD
1 cup fresh bean sprouts
1/2 cup fresh snow peas, trimmed and cut crosswise into 1-inch pieces

7 or 8 ounces tofu, cut into 1/2-inch cubes
1 cup seedless green grapes
1 tablespoon toasted sesame seeds

Scallion Dressing, recipe follows
Layer the bean sprouts, snow peas, tofu and grapes in a shallow serving bowl; sprinkle with the sesame seeds. Pour the Scallion Dressing over the salad and toss; serve at once. Makes 2 large servings.

SCALLION DRESSING
3 tablespoons salad oil
1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon minced scallion
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1/8 teaspoon tabasco
Whisk or shake together the oil, vinegar, lemon juice, scallion, sugar, salt, soy sauce and tabasco. Makes 1-3rd cup.

Shultz Is Confirmed

George P. Shultz has been confirmed by the United States Senate to be the nation's new secretary of state.

Secretary Shultz assumes the position following the embarrassing (to the administration) resignation of former secretary Alexander Haig.

Shultz comes to the Reagan cabinet with good credentials. That was reflected in the relatively easy time he had in winning confirmation by the Senate. The most critical questioning involved his presidency of Bechtel Group Inc. which does extensive business in the Arab world. Shultz, of course, will be expected to sever his ties with Bechtel; nevertheless, his appointment is seen as unpopular with Israel.

In his testimony he made it clear that he expected Israel to conduct meaningful peace negotiations with the Palestinians. "The legitimate needs and problems of the Palestinian people must be addressed and resolved..." he said.

His most damaging testimony regarding Israel was a statement that he regretted the Israeli invasion of Lebanon, and that Israel should have been able to achieve what it wanted through negotiations.

Whether he likes it or not, Secretary of State Shultz may find himself depending more on Israel's military strength in the Middle East than he would now like. It is a sure thing that formulating a workable United States' policy for the Middle East will be a major part of his work.

Inflation And Energy Costs

Reagan administration economists are quickly learning that as energy prices go, so goes inflation.

Inflation had virtually disappeared during the early months of the year as prices for gas and fuel oil took dramatic drops. With summer came the expected energy price increases; in fact gas prices increased more sharply than expected. The result was a sharp rise in wholesale prices. It translated into an annual increase rate of 13.3 percent.

The increase for the year likely won't be anywhere near that high because of the much lower rate in previous months, and hopefully in future months. It illustrates, however, how directly our inflation rate is related to the cost of energy. It gives us all the more reason to hope for a continued world oil glut.

THIS AFTERNOON

Jobs Will Be Open

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Although the top leadership of the state House and Senate survived the June 29 primary without any losses, retirements and primary defeats for other legislators insure that some of the most important jobs in the General Assembly will be open next year.

In the state House, 20 chairmen from last year won't be coming back. In the Senate, 11 chairmen are gone. And the general election is still to be held next November.

The most powerful senators leaving are Sen. Jim Garrison of Albemarle, chairman of the Committee on the Economy and a close ally of Gov. Jim Hunt, and Sen. Billy Mills of Maysville, chairman of the Committee on Banking. Both retired. Sen. Harry Frye, an appropriations subcommittee chairman, Sen. Bill Creech, judiciary III chairman and Sen. Carolyn Mathis, insurance committee chairman, also gave up top positions in retiring.

The House lost 10 of its appropriations subcommittee chairmen. Rep. Edd Nye lost. Graham Bell retired. David Parnell and Aaron Plyler won Senate nominations. Reps. Jim Norgan, judiciary II chairman, and Roger Bone, banking chairman, also retired. Reps. Doug Clark, elections law chairman, and George Hux, courts and judicial districts chairman, lost.

The Senate's turnover could prove to be a good deal higher than the 11 at which it now stands. A quick glance of the Democratic

Republican pairings shows at least half a dozen seats where the incumbent appears to be in for a tough race. Republicans picked up five seats in 1980 — for a total of 10 — and have promised to increase their number this year. But several of the Democrats defeated in 1980 plan a rematch this year. In 1981, the turnover in the Senate totaled 11.

The House has already lost 23 members due to retirement defeat and moves to the Senate. And four more incumbents are involved in run-offs this month. Add to those figures Reps. Ernest Messer and Patricia Hunt who quit the House for other jobs this year. In 1981, the turnover in the House totaled 33.

In the Senate, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green will most likely make up for the loss of the incumbents by naming some freshman House transfers as committee chairmen. Seven Democratic House members are trying for Senate seats and can probably expect chairmanships if they win.

In the House, Speaker Liston Ramsey says that he prefers that his chairmen have at least two terms in the House. But with 33 new members last year — only six of whom had previous legislative experience — and probably the same number or more this year, he expects to name a few sophomores as committee chairmen.

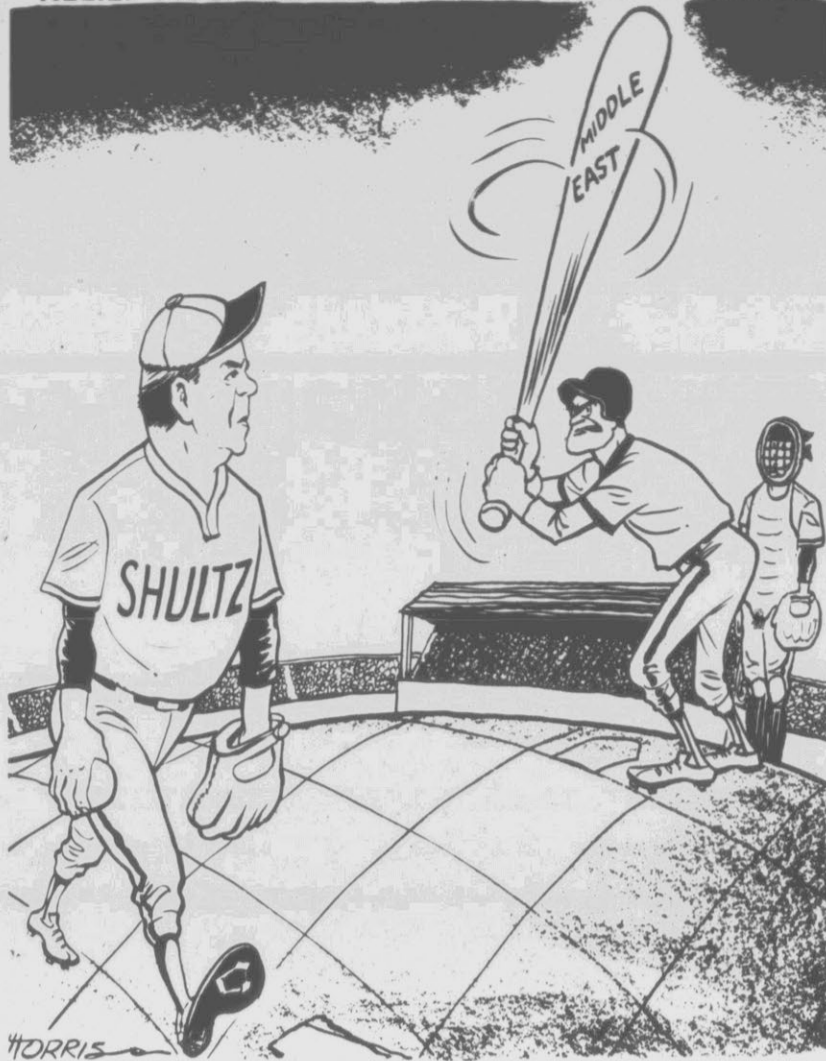

Ramsey is mum on who those people will be. He says last year's freshmen class of Democrats was well-stocked with talent. But early speculation has three sophomores leading the field: Rep. Dan Blue of Raleigh, Rep. Dennis Wicker of Sanford and Rep. Martin Nesbitt of Asheville.

Blue is a protégé of Rep. Al Adams, Ramsey's base budget chairman. Blue, a black, was impressive with his work on redistricting and finished in the top quarter of all House members — the top freshman — when ranked according to effectiveness by the N.C. Center for Public Policy Research this year.

Nesbitt, like Ramsey is a westerner. His mother was a legislator and he has ties to the leadership through Rep. Billy Watkins, chairman of the House Expansion Budget Committee, his former father-in-law.

Wicker is a Sanford lawyer who also impressed Ramsey.

Who's Looney Now?

WASHINGTON — At some point in time, as the Watergate witnesses used to say, congressional committees may get around to serious study of the insanity defense in American jurisprudence. If they dig deeply enough, staff members may come across the enchanting history of John Armstrong Chaloner, a sterling character who at one and the same time was sane in Virginia and certifiably nuts in New York.

The Chaloner story is light summer reading. For this abbreviated account I rely entirely upon a delightful piece by J. Bryan III in the Virginia Magazine of History and Biography for January 1965. Mr. Bryan collects gems of human behavior, and in Chaloner he found a 24-carat beauty.

Born to an immensely wealthy family in New York in 1862, Chaloner was married at 26 to Amelie Rivers, a beautiful and gifted young Virginian who was herself a bit dotty. Their marriage was consummated under fractious circumstances. Amelie had published a sexy novel — sexy for those days, anyhow — in which John appeared, thinly disguised, as the erotic lead. Chaloner's family was outraged. "Chaloner was denounced for awakening carnal thoughts, Amelie for entertaining them." The family boycotted their wedding.

Alas, the marriage soon dissolved in quarrels and then in divorce, "but the divorce accomplished what the marriage could not: They became devoted friends." Soon Amelie married a Troubetzkoy and moved into a Virginia mansion just down the road in Albemarle County from Chaloner's home. There she took to wandering through the woods by night, dressed in a filmy white robe, and talking to ghosts.

Chaloner, meanwhile, had discovered the mysteries of spiritualism. He became convinced that he possessed an "X-Faculty" that gave him occult powers. Simultaneously, he perceived that he was the reincarnation of Napoleon. He donned Napoleonic costumes. Sometimes he wore a saber to bed.

Getting wind of all this, Chaloner's family decided to take action. A large element of self-interest figured in this, for Chaloner had disinherited his relatives at the time of the fractious wedding. "He's looney," cried Brother Robert, thus setting up a question that later would echo throughout the land. The family lured Chaloner to New York and had him committed to the Bloomingdale Asylum in 1897.

There Chaloner took to writing sonnets, composing treatises on the law, and drafting a drama, "Robbery Under Law, or, The Battle of the Millionaires." In 1900 he escaped from his keepers, retained a batch of sympathetic psychologists and brought a legal proceeding in Virginia to determine his sanity. The verdict found him sane. He spent the next seven years in concentrated research on lunacy laws, bombarding the legal profession with books and articles on the topic.

Then came an incident of high drama. One night a neighbor, John Gillard, began beating his wife. She fled to Chaloner's mansion for protection, but Gillard pursued her, firetongs in hand. The two men scuffled. A pistol discharged. Gillard fell dead. The cops came in the morning just as Chaloner was finishing a breakfast of duck and vanilla ice cream. He had spent the night in the room with the deceased, "to test my nerve." His nerves were fine. A coroner's jury quickly absolved him. Chaloner sent his team to haul the coffin, and with difficulty was talked out of providing a tombstone to Gillard, to be inscribed "He died game."

At about this time, Brother Robert, having been divorced, married a spectacularly beautiful opera singer, Lina Cavalieri. Two weeks later, Lina left Robert and returned to her former lover. Then it transpired that Robert had signed over to her his entire estate, except for a personal allowance of $30 a month. In the stunned silence that followed this revelation, a voice from Virginia was heard to cry: "Who's looney now?"

This was in 1910. The press of that day seized jubilantly upon the immortal question. Chaloner became a folk hero. Comedians, comic strip artists and editorial writers loved the line. Content with his riposte, Chaloner subsided in Virginia where he grew dotter and dotter by the year. He spent the next 25 years in litigation, philanthropy, and continued writing on the lunacy laws. He died in 1935.

I thought of the old boy a few weeks ago, when the verdict came in on John Hinckley: Not guilty by reason of insanity. Who's looney now? Not Hinckley. It's the law that's off its rocker.

Shultz Faces First Target

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The X factor in Secretary of State George Shultz's somber warning that the Palestinian problem "must be addressed and resolved in all (its) dimensions" is the unprecedented double threat to pro-American Arab states posed by Iran's invasion of Iraq at the same time Israel holds the capital of Lebanon under siege.

There is glaring evidence of Arab vulnerability to military attack in Israel's humiliating rout of Syria's legions in Lebanon and Iraq's stunning shift from defensive to offensive war against Iran.

In the long hours he spent preparing for his Senate confirmation hearings, Shultz learned the unpleasant news: America's closest friends in the Arab world — Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Kuwait and the other Persian Gulf oil shiekdoms, with Egypt sidelined — see themselves threatened as never before by what they call the militant Zionism of Israel and the Islamic fundamentalism of Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini.

The U.S. is unable to exert the slightest influence over Iran's apparent intention to set up a fundamentalist Islamic state in southern Iraq, centered on the Shi'ite holy city of Karbala. Thus, Shultz's first diplomatic target is to prove to friendly Arab states that the U.S. does possess and will use its influence to confirm what he called "the legitimate rights of the Palestinian people."

After Ronald Reagan's election, Shultz removed himself from consideration for secretary of state. He told friends that his views on the Middle East did not entirely square with the then president-elect's. But he has kept in close touch with Reagan the last 18 months.

Two weeks before White House aides arranged the involuntary exit of Alexander Haig, Shultz — unaware of Haig's imminent demise — telephoned a lengthy report on the Middle East, where he was traveling, to national security assistant William P. Clark. Insiders privy to that briefing said Shultz warned Clark that Washington's quiescence in the face of Israel's invasion of Lebanon was seriously undermining its standing in the Arab world.

Low-keyed and methodical, Shultz nevertheless has been asked by friends to consider some controversial moves to end what he called "the total lack of progress in doing anything about the Palestinian problem." One such move would bring Henry Kissinger back as his Middle East mediator.

Kissinger has sent quiet signals to the administration that he would be available for what one Kissinger friend called a "reconnaissance mission" to the Middle East on the Palestine question. The re-entry of Kissinger even for a limited task in his old Mid-East haunts could provoke wrath among Republican conservatives.

But Shultz believes settling the Palestinian problem is fundamental to restoring American influence as an equilibrium between the demands of Israel on one side and pro-U.S. Arab states on the other. Thus, the Kissinger option remains a possibility.

In the shadows lies the threat of Islamic fundamentalism sweeping down the Persian Gulf from Iran. It could engulf the conservative Arab regimes that fear almost equally the growing power of the displaced radical Palestinians within their countries, whose demand for a homeland on the West Bank is barred by Israel.

Shultz intends to defuse that Palestinian radicalism. He proved it to the Senate by criticizing Israel head-on for creating new Jewish settlements on the West Bank and firing elected Palestinian mayors. Persuading Congress to prove it to the frightened states of the Arab world will be more difficult.

Strength For Today

A REAL FACTOR IN CURE

A physician speaking to a professional group some time ago made the observation that, from the physician's point of view, it is just as important for a doctor to know what type of person he is treating as to know what disease he has.

There are some cases, of course, in which personality is not involved. A broken leg probably has little connection with the moral character of the afflicted person. But there is a wide range of disease that is definitely tied up with a patient's personality and outlook on life. More and more we are coming to see that the physical, mental and spiritual aspects of our lives are different parts of the same thing.

Are you sick? If you are, call a doctor, of course. But be well assured of this — in many cases the doctor's ability to heal will be as much conditioned by your character, outlook and mood as by his pills and specifics. — ELISHA DOUGLASS.

Brazil Challenges Top Ad Firms

By K. MICHAEL FRASER

Associated Press Writer
SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil, the increasingly independent giant of Latin America, has quietly built up its own "Madison Avenue" that now is challenging the world's top advertising firms.

Brazilian marketing ideas, packaging and know-how are now used around the world, quite a change from a few years ago when foreign agencies routinely handled everything.

"Nothing in the Third World equals the quality of Brazilian advertising in creativity and production," says Frank W. Clarke, vice president for Latin America of New York-based Grey Advertising Inc.

In earnings, six of the 10 largest agencies here are Brazilian, says the National Federation of Advertising Agencies. The biggest foreign agency, McCann-Erickson of the United States, is fourth.

Brazilian agencies now handle the accounts here of such multinational giants as General Motors, Ford, Volkswagen, Johnson and Johnson, Gillette and British American Tobacco.

At least one Brazilian agency has itself become a multinational. MPM Publicidade S.A., Brazil's largest, will handle the Chilean promotions of Fiat, the Italian automaker.

How did Brazil do it?

Unlike most developing countries, says Ciarke, Brazil has equipment and trained personnel to turn out high-quality commercials for television, and ads for newspapers, magazines, posters and billboards.

But admen also say the key to the Brazilian success seems to be their inventiveness.

"The creativity here is on a par with anything in the world," says Jens Olesen, head of McCann-Erickson in Brazil, adding that it all happened in just the last five years.

Olesen compares the way his agency handles ads for a well-known tire manufacturer here and in the United States. In America "you hammer price, price, price," he said. "You show a tire, you show a price and you show a car. It's all very boring."

But in Brazil, the ads show a surfer flirting with a bikini-clad woman or safari hunters chatting in a bar while the dialogue makes a humorous twist on the company's jingle. You never see a tire or car at all.

Does such an indirect method work? Olesen thinks so. The ads, he says, create warm, emotional responses that sell the product.

Brazil has won international recognition at the trade's Clio Awards presentation in New York and the Screen Advertising World Awards in Cannes, France. Last year Brazilian agencies won five Clios and 12 Screen Advertising awards.

Modern advertising was introduced to this country about 50 years ago by multinational ad agencies, mostly American, who came to serve big companies that were beginning to set up shop here.

These agencies brought in their own personnel but also trained local residents for some posts. In the 1950s, Brazilians began opening their own agencies, often stealing people trained by the multinationals.

Local agencies got a boost in the late 1960s when the government decided to use only Brazilian agencies. Since government is the largest advertiser here, said Olesen, "its money gave the Brazilian agencies a solid base to develop."

Today, Brazil is the world's 10th largest advertising market, ahead of Spain and Switzerland. The country spent $1.6 billion dollars on advertising in 1980, the latest year for which figures are available, according to an International Advertising Association report.

That might appear insignificant compared to the $55 billion the United States spent in the same year — half of the world's total advertising expenditures. Brazil spent only 0.7 percent of its GNP on advertising, compared with about 2 percent for the United States and 1.8 percent in Britain.

Nevertheless, the future looks rosy. While Brazilian GNP fell 1.9 percent last year, advertising expenditures rose 10 percent. And admen predict the industry will do as well this year.

I am presently attending Governor's School East in Laurinburg and would like to take advantage of this opportunity to thank those who have supported higher educational opportunities such as the Governor's School program. I have honestly appreciated the educational values offered by Governor's School. I believe that such programs as this will have a definite, positive affect on our future. These programs give the students who are gifted and talented a chance to receive an exceptional learning experience. With this experience comes a chance to cultivate ideas and projects which could not be dealt with in the standard school system. Again, I would like to express my appreciation for the support of such opportunities.

Teaching Couple Wins Partial Tax Victory

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A husband and wife who taught school took a 30-day trip through the West and claimed a tax deduction for part of the expense, saying the tour improved their skills as teachers.

The Internal Revenue Service denied most of the deduction for both. But the U.S. Tax Court, in another example of why the tax system is so complex, drew a distinction and allowed the couple to deduct the husband's expenses but not the wife's.

The distinction: The husband, Ronald Lee Dollins of Sumner, Wash., taught industrial arts in a multicultural junior high school. During the trip, he learned new techniques for making metal art, which he passed on to his pupils. He also took pictures of forests and logging mills, which he incorporated into his woodshop class.

His wife, Alice Camilla Dollins, taught social studies, reading, science and art to second-graders in a low-income area. She claimed the trip helped her become a better teacher because of first-hand experience with some of the topics she taught. But, the court held, while all travel is broadening to some extent, the trip bore no direct relationship to Mrs. Dollins' skills.

In a decision filed last week, the court allowed Dollins to deduct the full $1,303 claimed for automobile expenses, half the $1,028 filed for meals and lodging for the couple, plus $229 for camera repairs, film and processing. The IRS had allowed nothing except the $229.

Many of the places where the couple visited are tourist attractions, the court noted.

But, wrote Judge William Drennen, in the husband's case, "in view of the classes which he taught, the racial and cultural background of many of his students, the advance preparation taken before making tie trip ... the incorporation of the skills learned on the trip into his teaching techniques, and Ronald's credible statement as to the purpose of making such trip, we find that he has adequately differentiated his travel from that of an ordinary tourist."

In her petition to the court, Mrs. Dollins wrote, for example, that because of her personal experience on the trip, she was able to more meaningfully describe to pupils the temperature extremes in the mountains and to know what cactus actually looks like.

Drennen was not impressed. "We find that the trip, while of some benefit to her professional skills, did not directly maintain or improve her skills required as an elementary school teacher," he wrote.

The couple was living and teaching in the Minneapolis area at the time of the trip.

Elimination Of Insanity Plea Endorsed

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, spurred by the acquittal of John W. Hinckley Jr., is supporting a bill that legal experts say would all but eliminate insanity as a defense in federal criminal cases.

Attorney General William French Smith testified Monday that Congress should bar the use of the insanity plea except in rare cases where the defendant was so deranged he thought, for example, "he was shooting at a tree."

The attorney general, alluding to the Hinckley case, said the current "intense debate and discussion" may provide the opportunity for drastically limiting the insanity defense.

He told the Senate Judiciary Committee he endorsed a measure sponsored by Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, which would hold the defendant responsible if he "knew he was shooting at a human being to kill him."

Hinckley, President Reagan's assailant, was acquitted on June 21 by reason of insanity.

He has been committed to a mental hospital in the District of Columbia and can only be freed if psychiatrists determine he is no threat to himself or society and a court accepts the finding.

The Hatch proposal is one of at least seven bills aimed at restricting the use of the insanity defense.

In endorsing it, Smith said, "The criminal justice system has tilted too decidedly in favor of the rights of criminals and against the rights of society."

The attorney general said the Hatch bill "would effectively eliminate the insanity defense except in those rare cases in which the defendant lacked the state of mind required as an element of the offense."

"... A mental disease or defect would be no defense if a defendant knew he was shooting at a human being to kill him," he continued. "Mental disease or defect would constitute a defense only if the defendant did not even know he had a gun in his hand or thought, for example, that he was shooting at a tree."

The statement marked the administration's first formal support for restricting the insanity plea.

On June 1, Reagan commented on the outcry over the acquittal of Hinckley, who attempted to assassinate him on March 30, 1981. The president said the law placed an unfair burden on the prosecution.

"The thing that has also caused a lot of criticism is the fact that the ruling placed on the back of the prosecution the need to prove that someone was sane rather than the other way of proving that he was insane," Reagan said.

"... And you know if you start thinking about even a lot of your friends you would have to say 'gee, if I had to prove they were sane I would have a hard job,'" he said.

The jurors in the Hinckley case were instructed to find the defendant innocent if they decided the prosecution had failed to prove that he was sane.

Smith's position goes beyond calling for a shift in the burden of proving sanity or insanity.

He said the Hatch bill "would abolish the insanity defense to the maximum extent permitted under the Constitution and would make mental illness a factor to be considered at the time of sentencing, just like any other mitigating factor."

Richard J. Bonnie, head of the University of Virginia Institute of Law, Psychiatry and Public Policy, testified that retaining the insanity defense "is essential to the moral integrity of the criminal law." The Hatch measure would mean abolition of that defense, he added.

While the Hatch bill would apply only to federal criminal cases, it could provide impetus for states to adopt a similar approach to the insanity defense.

At least two states, Montana and Idaho, already have abolished the insanity defense, according to a 1981 survey.

Most states have adopted a standard similar to the one that applied in the Hinckley trial. That holds that an individual is not responsible for a crime if, because of mental illness at the time, he lacked understanding that what he did was wrong or was unable to control his behavior.

There is no federal law now defining the insanity defense and the Supreme Court has generally left it to the federal appeals courts to define the issue.

CLUSTER BOMBS — Nine unexploded cluster bombs, some of them in an Israeli helmet, are seen here Monday after they were gathered in Beirut by Lebanese residents. The Palestine Liberation Organization has accused Israel, which gets the bombs from the United States of using them in heavily civilian areas. President Reagan decided Monday to suspend additional shipments of the cluster bombs, which are fired by 155-millimeter artillery shells, until he studies Israel's version on how they are being used. (AP Laserphoto)

Senate Panel Proposes Small Cut In Deductions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee, concerned that parts of its tax increase bill would hurt lower-income families, is proposing a smaller cut in the tax deduction allowed for medical expenses.

At the same time, the panel agreed to reduce the value of the deduction for medical insurance premiums and approved an exemption for low-income taxpayers from the proposed 10-percent withholding on interest and dividends.

The committee's changes in the tax bill that it wrote on July 2 were announced by the chairman, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., on Monday as the Senate opened debate on the measure — the biggest tax increase in history. Several changes in the bill's treatment of business taxes also were made by the panel.

The Senate was expected to begin voting later today on the bill, which would raise taxes by $99 billion and reduce spending for Medicare, Medicaid and aid to the needy by about $17.5 billion over the next three years. The package is aimed at reducing the federal deficit.

Overall, Dole said in opening the debate, the bill prepared by the Finance Committee is a fair one that will persuade "the public and the financial markets that we are dead serious this time around" about cutting spending and lowering the deficit.

Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, senior Democrat on the committee, said people affected by the tax increase were treated unfairly because the measure was written by Republicans in a closed session with no contributions from the public or by Democrats.

Under the revised bill: —A taxpayer could deduct medical expenses that exceed 7 percent of adjusted gross income. Current law has a 3 percent threshold; the original bill would have allowed a deduction only for expenses above 10 percent.

"The 10 percent floor appears to be too big a burden on those with high medical expenses," Dole said.

—Without regard to any threshold, half — up to $100 — of premiums for medical insurance paid each year could be deducted. Current law allows half, up to $150 — which is the only medical expense claimed by a large number of the 20 million couples and individuals who take a medical deduction. This change will affect mainly middle- and upper-income taxpayers.

—Single people who in the previous year paid less than $600 federal income tax and couples who paid less than $1,000 would be exempted from having 10 percent tax withheld from their interest and dividends. The bill already exempts the elderly.

The plan to withhold on interest and dividends is a major part of the bill and part of a package designed to collect part of the $98 billion that the Internal Revenue Service estimates it loses each year to tax cheats.

Other major parts of the bill would double the tax on cigarettes to 16 cents a pack; raise the 1 percent tax on telephone services to 2 percent next year, 3 percent in 1984 and back to 2 percent in 1986 and thereafter; limit the deduction allowed for uninsured casualty losses, such as from fire; toughen the "minimum tax" on high-income people; and restrict tax-deferred pensions for wealthy professionals.

The bill would take back about $37 billion of the $87 billion in tax relief over three years that Congress voted corporations last year.

On the spending side, the measure would cut Medicare benefits for the elderly by $13.3 billion over the three years; cut Medicaid for the poor by $2.2 billion; and reduce other aid to the needy by $1.4 billion.

The largest of the spending cuts would limit government payments to hospitals for caring for Medicare patients.

A Medicare recipient who buys optional Part B coverage for doctor bills now pays the first $75 of expenses each year. The bill would allow that figure to rise each year, to $80 in 1983. The premium for Part B, now $12.20 a month, would rise to $15.30 by 1985.

Siesta-vating

On hot July days, human beings aren't the only creatures who feel lethargic. Desert animals sometimes face temperatures of 180° Fahrenheit. Under these conditions some species become nocturnal, while others migrate. But snails can't escape, so they choose dormancy. This is the summer equivalent of hibernation, called "estivation" from the Latin word "aestas," which means summer. During hot, dry weather snails burrow underground and then cover their shell openings with mucus, which hardens. There they wait without food or water until more favorable wet conditions return — which may be a long time. In museums some snails have estivated for up to six years — quite a wait for a drink.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the scientific word for the class of snails and slugs?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — The U.S. President makes $200,000 a year.

ECU Professor Provides TLC For Baby Robin

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
 Reflector Staff Writer

Many people have found injured baby birds, who have been orphaned, and tried to nurse them back to health. Even with much careful feeding and protecting, most of these people have been unsuccessful at the attempt.

Karl Rodabaugh, a professor of history at East Carolina University, was more fortunate when he tried to nurse a baby robin back to health.

"About three weeks ago, I was getting ready to mow the yard when I found a baby bird that was totally helpless. I looked all over for a nest and couldn't find one," he said.

Rodabaugh, who said he obviously couldn't let it die, brought it in the house and made a nest for it. He shaped some pine straw into the shape of a nest and placed cotton balls inside the pine straw, which the bird "snuggled" in.

Rodabaugh then put the nest in a cardboard box and placed an old radio beside it. He said the nightlight on the radio kept the bird warm.

"Since the radio was broken and only played country music," he said, "maybe it thinks its mother is Kenny Rogers."

Rodabaugh fed the bird crickets, worms, June bugs and beetles with tweezers every couple of hours.

"Finally the bird got restless and started trying to stretch and flap its wings. It flew around the house a couple of times and I didn't know whether to let it outside or not," he added.

Rodabaugh called Dr. Andrew Ash, a biology professor at ECU, who said he had never heard of a case in which a bird lived after a person nurses it. His (Rodabaugh's) bird has been lucky."

Ash said, "Most of the perching birds around here aren't successful when a person nurses it. His (Rodabaugh's) bird has been lucky."

According to Dr. Ash, one of two birds out of a nest of four are genetically programmed to never learn how to fly or feed themselves. He said these are the birds that are usually found, so they have a slim chance of living anyway.

Dr. Ash told Rodabaugh the bird was old enough to go outside. Rodabaugh put the bird outside and it hasn't left him yet.

"Every morning the bird flies to me and I feed it dog food, which it eats ravenously," he said. "Dr. Mike House (a Greenville veterinarian) told me to feed it ground beef, bread dipped in milk and egg yolks. Dog food seemed like a good substitute and the bird liked it, so when I ran out of beef I fed it dog food," he said.

Rodabaugh, who now feeds the bird every couple of hours, said he is going to reduce the amount of food he gives the bird so it will become more dependent upon nature.

Maybe the robin will eventually adapt to a natural habitat, but hopefully it will not forget Karl Rodabaugh.

Strikers Stone Cars At Plant

DAKOTA CITY, Neb. (AP) — Strikers shouting "Kill those scabs!" stoned cars entering the nation's largest beef processing facility today as the plant resumed operations for the first time since 2,000 workers walked off the job June 7.

More than 100 members of Local 222 of the United Food and Commercial Workers threw rocks, chunks of concrete and pieces of metal that smashed the windows of cars entering Iowa Beef Processors Inc.

At least one security guard was hit by a rock and taken away for treatment.

Fewer than a dozen Iowa Beef security policemen stood by but did not intervene. Neither did Nebraska State Patrol troopers stationed near the plant.

The crowd of strikers cheered whenever a window of a car was smashed, saying, "IBP will pay for it." A pickup truck was pelted by rocks as it approached the plant. The driver sped toward a group of strikers, but they scattered and no one was hit by the truck.

Several strikers who were on regular picket duty stood apart from the mob and refused to take part in the violence.

"This is pointless," one said. "It's a bad situation, but these people's jobs are at stake. I hope it just boils off. I don't know, next week will tell."

Iowa Beef announced Monday it would resume operations with the morning shift today and asked strike-breakers to cross the picket lines. If strikers didn't return to work, company officials said they would hire new, permanent employees.

"In these tough economic times, we would not expect a great deal of difficulty in hiring permanent new employees to replace striking employees who choose not to return to work," said Arden Walker, chief negotiator for the company.

Union officials said members would remain on strike, but "a lot of the people we've talked to plan on going back in," said Dakota City Police Chief Charles Carson.

The company said it expected no problems today, but prepared for them nonetheless.

Walker, who announced the reopening, said the Nebraska State Patrol was asked to be on standby at the plant.

"The patrol will monitor, as in the past, and if something should occur, we will respond," said Col. E.J. Kohmetscher, the superintendent.

"Our members will stay out on strike," said Bill Schmitz, union business agent. "The issues haven't changed. The company hasn't changed their offer. It makes me sad that the company has to put the community and its employees through this."

The strike began six weeks ago when more than 2,000 members of the union walked out when contract talks stalled over the company's proposed four-year wage freeze. The union has said it would accept only a two-year wage freeze.

Base pay is $8.97 an hour for processors and $9.27 an hour for those who work in the slaughterhouse, according to company officials.

Walker said the strikers were invited to join "several hundred" employees who already have agreed to return to work. In addition, about 400 workers on layoff have been called back.

Walker promised the company will continue "to respect the rights of the striking workers to engage in any activity protected by law."

Schmitz said the union wasn't surprised by the company's action, since during three previous strikes against Iowa Beef, the plant opened before there was a settlement.

But he said, "I'm saddened and angry at the company's position rather than negotiate in good faith to try to settle this labor dispute, they have chosen to throw the doors open to scab labor."

The company, which is headquartered here, owns 12 meat processing plants located in Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota, Texas, Idaho and Washington state.

Fire Hydrants

To Be Tested

Some Greenville residents may experience cloudy water as representatives of the state's Insurance Service Office test fire hydrants in the city Wednesday afternoon and all day Thursday, a spokesman for the Greenville Utilities Commission said this morning.

Wadie Lewis, superintendent of GUC's water and sewer departments, said ISO representatives are in Greenville this week conducting a public fire protection survey. Part of the survey, he continued, includes "fire flowing hydrants ... all over the system" to measure the flow of water available for firefighting.

Lewis noted that fire insurance rates which are set by the Insurance Service Office, are based on the ISO survey.

Time For Space City

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts Thomas K. Mattingly and Henry W. Hartsfield, still triumphant from their seven days in orbit aboard the space shuttle, lavished praise on the winged craft and said it needs a city in space as an orbiting destination.

The astronauts, who spent a week circling the Earth in Columbia's final test flight, said Monday that the craft was ready for routine missions into orbit and that it held a promise that can't be imagined.

Mattingly called the space shuttle system a "highway to space," and said that the "next logical step" was construction of a permanent orbiting station.

"All we have is a freeway," he said. "Now we need to build the city."

NASA has proposed it be given funds to start design and construction of a large station that would permanently house astronauts in space. Experts at the space agency have conducted studies, but no funds have been allocated for construction of such a station.

School Board ...

First reading approval was given to several proposed policies. Approved for a final second reading at a subsequent school board meeting were policies relating to suspension and expulsion, which also encompasses code of acceptable behavior, student grievance procedure and discipline; extra duty assignments; compensation guides and contracts, classified-GCA; and performance appraisal system.

Superintendent Dr. Delma Blinson, providing a brief summary of each of the policies, noted that all except the one on performance could be revised by school board members. The performance policy, he noted, cannot be changed, as it is based directly on provisions of a mandate made by the General Assembly and in turn by the State Board of Education.

A consensus of directions to take were expressed in two matters discussed for future action. The first was that of a policy for the coming school year in relation to a new legislative ruling on the 180 day school year. In recent action the Legislature has ruled that school boards have the option of making up or not making up school days lost up to five days. Expressions by board members indicate the board favors making up, if at all possible by use of regular scheduled holiday or teacher-workday time, any days missed due to inclement weather or other unforeseen conditions. A motion by member Jerry Smith that the administration prepare a policy to present to the board for maintaining "the 180-day posture" was approved.

The second area of discussion was that of updating of school fees. The board will need to decide whether to have one general instructional fee to cover all fees including PE, art, vocational education, etc. or whether to maintain the present system of a general instructional fee with additional fees for students taking PE and specialized programs that traditionally have entailed a separate fee. Blinson opted for one general fee, as that would simplify bookkeeping procedures for funds derived from student fees.

Charging of school fees is an optional decision under state law. According to Mrs. Edwards, Pitt County and Greenville schools are the only two systems in Region I (northeastern North Carolina) that charge student instructional fees at this time. It was noted, however, that most school systems in Region I are ones that are poorer financially and in the past have received substantial federal aid. "With federal funding drying up, it may be a different picture for these systems," Blinson remarked.

The concept of possibly hiring a professional food service management firm to operate school cafeterias has been tabled for the time being as time does not permit confirmation of all legal requirements prior to the beginning of the new school year. Blinson reported he has received two interpretations from the state attorney general's office on the legality of procedures for securing bids for such a service, and that the two interpretations conflict with each other.

In executive session, the board discussed the hiring of a food supervisor, but reached no decision as there are still other candidates the administration wants to consider before coming to a decision.

Approval was given to a proposal submitted by Dr. Robert L. Capps to provide free dental exams of students within schools during the coming school year. In approving the offer, board members stipulated that arrangements be made in a manner that will least interrupt classes. Capps' offer includes accepting the offer of any other dentist in the community to share in conducting the service. Capps will furnish all materials, equipment and supplies to carry out the program with no cost to the schools.

Fed To Keep Tight Grip

Income...

 tually 3.5 percent below the 1980 level.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker told Congress today the Fed will keep its relatively tight grip on the nation's money supply, but will not tighten it further as his earlier long-term plan had indicated.

Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee that economic recovery from the recession was "highly likely in the second half of 1982," although that recovery will be far from robust.

Volcker's comments made it clear that he and the other six Fed governors have no intention of trying to encourage lower interest rates and economic recovery by allowing the money supply to surge upward.

But the new growth targets also are at least some concession to Fed critics who say Federal Reserve tight-money policy has starved some businesses into bankruptcy and prolonged the recession.

Volcker's long-term plan - as announced last year - was to lower the money supply targets by one-half percentage point each year. Instead, he said today the target for the basic money supply of cash and checking account deposits next year will remain at this year's level: a growth range of 2 1/2 percent to 5 1/2 percent.

Growth of a broader money supply measure - savings accounts and money market mutual funds as well as cash and checking - will be steered toward a rate of 6 percent to 9 percent, as at present.

Along with saying the growth targets envisioned for next year should help economic recovery, Volcker also contended the essentially unchanged targets actually would lead to lower monetary growth in 1983.

That's because growth this year in the money supply measures probably "will be close to the upper end of their ranges or perhaps even somewhat above them."

Volcker's release of the updated money-growth goals today followed action Monday by the Fed board to lower the interest rate that regional Federal Reserve Banks charge member financial institutions.

The reduction from 12 percent to 11 1/2 percent is the first easing of the Federal Reserve's "discount rate" since December.

A board announcement said the move to drop the rate, which takes effect today, was a reaction to general recent softening in short-term interest in private financial markets.

Commenting on the Fed's decision, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said, "I am hopeful that the recent decline in market rates, which led to today's action by the Fed, is a sign of increasing firmness in the financial markets that will continue."

Earlier Monday, several banks, including two of the nation's largest, cut their prime lending rates one-half a percentage point to 16 percent.

Before Volcker's release of the new targets for money growth, numerous congressmen were pressing the Fed chairman to increase the goals.

But there was no indication Volcker was likely to heed such advice.

Teachers ...

a 1973 sample of 22,000 high school seniors that is being tracked by Research Triangle Institute. The study, to be published in September, was conducted for the National Institute of Education.

The researchers also looked at sex, race, profession, socio-economic status and geographic origin in drawing their conclusions.

"You find education gets vastly more than its share of the lowest 40 percent (of academic ability), about its share of the middle 20 percent and vastly less than its share of the higher group," Schlechty said.

The study said 30 percent of all teachers are drawn from the lower 20 percent of academic achievement. In addition, it said 34 percent of those committed to remaining in teaching come from the lower 20 percent - 61 percent from the lower 40 percent.

Slechty said there is no evidence that teachers with lower SAT scores perform their duties with less skill than those with higher scores. Barring from teaching those people with below-average academic qualifications would cripple the profession by eliminating most of those with a strong commitment to teaching, he added.

A better answer would be to restructure the profession, he said.

"We have to have 10 percent of all college graduates to man the schools," Schlechty said. "If you want that 10 percent to come from the upper half of college graduates, you're going to have to make the salary structure and the occupational structure competitive."

He suggested teachers be given more responsibility and that they be allowed to do research without giving up their classrooms. "We need to give teachers something to shoot at 10 years down the road," he said.

"The way it's structured now, a teacher has incentives to come into the profession," said Vance. "But once his or her life circumstances change - they get married, bills increase - the original incentive loses its magnetism."

To obtain more status, teachers are forced to look elsewhere, said Schlechty. "Being a 20-year teacher has no more status than being a first-year teacher."

Twins Stop Brewers To End 8-Game Win Streak

By The Associated Press

The Milwaukee Brewers have been bringing out the best in the lowly Minnesota Twins lately.

The Twins, who have the worst record in baseball this season, rode Tom Brunansky's inside-the-park grand slam, and solo home runs by John Castino and Lenny Faedo to a 6-4 victory over the Brewers Monday night, snapping Milwaukee's eight-game winning streak.

"We're out to win against any club," said Twins' Manager Billy Gardner, who was celebrating his 55th birthday. "It doesn't make any difference who we play. Milwaukee has a good ballclub. I don't think I'd want to play them every day."

Some people might question Gardner on that. The Brewers, who lead the American League East by a half-game over Boston, have won 23 of their last 30 games. But three of the losses have been to the Twins.

"They (the Brewers) bring out the best in you," said Brunansky, who now has 12 home runs.

With one out in the third, Faedo reached on an error by third baseman Paul Molitor. One out later, Bobby Mitchell walked and Dave Engle reached base on another error by Molitor to load the bases.

Brunansky then slammed an 0-2 pitch from Jerry Augustine into center field that Gorman Thomas just missed grabbing with a diving attempt.

"As soon as Gorman missed it I was halfway to second," said Brunansky. "I was going to go for it. I didn't feel safe with six runs. They have a lot of firepower."

Brewer Manager Harvey Kuenn said Thomas made the only play he could.

"If he doesn't catch it, there's no way he's going to stop it, though," Kuenn said. "You have to knock it down, catch it or smother it. There was no way he could do it. If he catches it, we would have won the game."

"Their firepower calls on the hitter in each of us," Brunansky added. "It kind of wakes us up. They have their 'Wall-Bangers,' but we have a few, too. It's just not too many people know about us."

Castino led off the fifth with his fourth homer of the year and Faedo hit his first major-league homer leading off the seventh.

Al Williams, 3-6, pitched five innings plus to gain the victory.

Robin Yount had four hits, including a solo homer in the sixth and a two-run blast, his 17th in the ninth, to lead the Brewers attack.

Red Sox 9, Texas 5

Carl Yastrzemski capped a five-run eighth inning with a three-run homer as Boston rallied from a five-run deficit in handing Texas its seventh consecutive loss.

Jim Rice had put Boston ahead 6-5 with his third hit before Yastrzemski hit reliever Jon Matlack's first pitch into the Texas bullpen for his 12th homer of the season and No. 438 of his career.

Angel 6, Orioles 5

Bob Boone hit a two-run homer in the seventh inning to snap a 1-1 tie as California ended Scott McGregor's 12-game hex over the Angels.

Boone's second homer of the season barely made the seats just inside the left field foul pole. Reggie Jackson homered, his 22nd, for the California's first run and they added three more in the eighth inning on a bases-loaded walk to Bobby Grich and Tim Lincecum's two-run single.

Yankees 5, Mariners 3

Tommy John pitched 71-3 innings of four-hit ball and Oscar Gamble, Dave Winfield and Roy Smalley slugged second-inning homers as New York rolled to its fifth straight victory.

John, 6-7, yielded only one unearned run, while George Frazier gave up a two-run homer to Richie Zisk in the ninth. Rich Gossage then came one to gain his 17th save of the season.

White Sox 6, Tigers 0

Harold Baines and Vance Law hit third-inning solo homers to break the seven-hit pitching of Dennis Lamp, 7-4, as the Chicago downed Detroit to snap a five-game losing streak.

It also was Lamp's second straight shutout against Detroit. He tossed a five-hitter against the Tigers July 7.

Blue Jays 4, Royals 2

Leon Roberts and Barry Bnell hit solo homers to back Luis Lual's six-hitter as Toronto extended its winning streak to five games.

RoOkie Bud Black, 3-3, took the loss for the slumping Royals, who have lost eight of their last nine games.

Indians 5, A's 4

Third baseman Wayne Gross' throwing error on Toby Harrah's two-out grounder in the ninth inning allowed Jack Perconte to score from second base as Cleveland handed Oakland its sixth straight loss.

Trailing 4-3, Rick Manning led off the Cleveland ninth with a single off Dave Beard, 5-7. Perconte walked and advanced the runners with a sacrifice. After an intentional walk loaded the bases, Manning scored the tying run on Larry Milbourne's sacrifice fly.

Sherman Named ECU Tennis Coach

Patricia Ann Sherman, an assistant professor of physical education and the tennis and basketball coach at Winona (Minn.) State University, has been named the new East Carolina men's and women's tennis coach.

Sherman, who plays tennis from both the right and left sides, takes over the position previously held by Caroline Brown, who left ECU to become head tennis coach at Davidson.

Sherman was head coach of tennis and basketball for the past eight years at Winona before coming to ECU.

The 41-year-old Minnesota native was the Iowa, South Dakota and Wisconsin State Open Women's Doubles champion and was champion or runner-up in every collegiate tournament Winona State entered during her college career as a right-handed player.

As a left-handed player from 1973 to present, Sherman was a N.W.T.A. ranked player for 1977, 1978 and 1980.

ECU Catcher Fitzgerald Signs With Baltimore

BALTIMORE — East Carolina catcher Fran Fitzgerald has signed with the Baltimore Orioles and was assigned to the team's A club in Bluefield, Va., it was announced this morning.

Fitzgerald, a native of Fairlawn, N.J., led ECU in hitting with a .355 mark and home runs with eight this past season. He also had the most total bases with 90.

Fitzgerald, the fourth ECU player to sign a major league contract this year, was tied for the team lead in runs batted in with 37.

Fitzgerald made only three errors in 240 chances this past season for the Pirates.

Vilas Romps To U.S. Pro Crown

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — A relentless authoritarian in complete charge on the court, Guillermo Vilas turned into a thoughtful diplomat in the interview tent.

Is he playing as well now as he did when he won 13 tournaments in 1977?

"It's very difficult. How can you compare? It's so complicated," he said Monday night after rolling over Mel Purcell, 6-4, 6-0, for the title in the $200,000 U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

Should he be considered a better player, at the moment, than Ivan Lendl, who lost here in the quarterfinals to Purcell, or John McEnroe?

"That's a disrespectful question. You're talking about such great players," Vilas said. "Lendl, who won eight tournaments; McEnroe, who won Wimbledon when he was nine years old, drinking milk. I'm not going to answer that."

He may have answered those questions on the tennis court in easy straight-set victories over fourth-seeded Yannick Noah in the semifinals Sunday and then Purcell.

Purcell, seeded seventh in the tournament and ranked 30th in the world, stayed with the top-seeded Vilas in the first set. But, in the second set, Purcell's speed was no match for Vilas' strength and deft touch as the Argentinian mixed deep topspin lobs with sizzling passing shots to bury the underdog from Murray, Ky.

"You have to play great to beat him, and I played great in the first set and he still beat me," said Purcell, who is still

Women Falls To Her Death At Reds' Game

CINCINNATI (AP) — A 21-year-old woman is dead after a fall from the upper deck of Riverfront Stadium during a Cincinnati Reds baseball game.

The Hamilton County Coroner's office identified the dead woman as Lora Schneeman, 21, of suburban Montgomery. She was pronounced dead at General Hospital Monday night from severe head injuries.

Schneeman made a "head-first dive" from the upper deck during the third inning of the Reds' 5-4 loss to the Pittsburgh Pirates, according to a Reds' spokesman. She landed in the first row of the lower seats, some 35 feet below. Paramedic Clay Cornish said she didn't land on anyone.

"She apparently had been drinking and left behind a container of liquor," said Reds spokesman Jim Ferguson. He said the information came from fans who were interviewed about the incident.

The woman lay on the concrete for several minutes while unsuccessful efforts were made to restore her heartbeat. Cornish said two doctors who had apparently been sitting nearby were trying to revive her shortly before 9 p.m.

"She had massive head trauma and no vitals (vital signs)," Cornish said.

The woman was removed from the stands on a stretcher.

The ballgame continued uninterrupted, although the Pirates left their seats in the dugout to look back at the scene during a pitching change while doctors were working on the woman. The fall occurred in an area behind the visitors' dugout.

Reds Manager John McNamara had a view of the fall from his dugout.

"I saw her hit and I couldn't express what I felt," McNamara said. "It just takes your breath away."

"It was gruesome," said Reds pitcher Frank Pastore.

The Mexican Connection

South-Of-The-Border Pitcher Keys Los Angeles Victory

By The Associated Press

In the past, the Mexican League has provided the Los Angeles Dodgers with some treasured players, including the redoubtable Fernando Valenzuela.

They may have found another diamond there in Vicente Romo.

Romo, a recycled right-handed pitcher acquired by the Dodgers from the Mexican League on May 24 when Burt Hooton was injured, pitched seven innings of three-hit ball Monday night to help Los Angeles beat the Montreal Expos 2-1.

"Give Romo all the credit," said Montreal Manager Jim Fanning. "He pitched a fine game. He was fooling our hitters with quite an assortment of stuff."

The victory was the first in the major leagues in eight years for the 39-year-old Romo, who last pitched for the San Diego Padres in 1973.

He doesn't seem to have lost much zip off his fastball in that time.

"I have a decent fastball, and if I'm hitting the corners with it, I'm not going to be giving up many home runs or hits," said Romo. "Tonight I was hitting the corners."

Lasorda: "He has done a credible job each time he's gone out there. Tonight he just pitched a heck of a game."

Romo's last major league victory, by the way, came July 16, 1974, when he pitched in relief for San Diego. His last victory as a starter was April 27, 1970 while with the Boston Red Sox.

The Dodgers broke a scoreless tie in the fourth inning on Dusty Baker's RBI single. Los Angeles added an unearned run off loser Scott Sanderson, 6-8, with two outs in the sixth. Pedro Guerrero walked, stole second, went to third on Gary Carter's wild throw into center and came home on Steve Garvey's bunt single.

Romo, 1-2, then struck out the side in the seventh, but left the game because of stiffness in his left knee. Steve Howe pitched the final two innings, recording his ninth save after giving up a run-scoring single to Carter in the ninth.

Phillies 7, Padres 6

Mike Schmidt and Bo Diaz hit consecutive solo homers in the second inning and Gary Matthews extended his hitting streak to 14 games with a two-run single during a four-run third to lead Philadelphia over San Diego.

Winner Sid Monge, 4-0, relieved starter Mike Krukow with one out in the second and allowed four hits and three runs before being relieved in the eighth by Sparky Lyle.

Pete Rose had a pair of singles, giving the Phillies' All-Star first baseman 3,800 career hits. Rose, playing in his 3,026th game, is now tied with Stan Musial for fourth place on the all-time list for games played.

Pirates 5, Reds 4

Dale Berra drove in three runs with a home run, single and a sacrifice fly to lift Pittsburgh over Cincinnati.

Berra's sacrifice fly capped a two-run sixth inning that gave the Pirates a 4-3 lead, then Berra's homer in the eighth gave the Pirates their eventual winning run.

Manny Sarmiento, 4-1, was the winner with 42-3 innings of three-hit relief pitching. Rod Scurry, who gave up an eighth-inning homer to Paul Householder, and Kent Tekulve finished up for the Pirates, with Tekulve gaining his 13th save.

Cubs 6, Astros 5

Jay Johnstone singled home the tying run in the 10th inning and then raced home with the winner on a pinch single by Jerry Morales as Chicago rallied to beat Houston.

Houston had taken a 5-4 lead in the top of the 10th on singles by Ray Knight, Danny Heep and Phil Garner but the Cubs came back.

Leon Durham opened the Chicago 10th with a single, stole second and scored on Johnstone's hit. Larry Bowa singled Johnstone to third before Morales, a .230 hitter, slashed his game-winning hit to right-center.

Braves 4, Cardinals 1

Joaquin Andujar balked home the tie-breaking run with the bases loaded in the eighth inning and Bob Horner followed with a two-run single, leading Atlanta over St. Louis.

Winner Phil Niekro, 8-3, gave up six hits in 71-3 innings before Gene Garber came on to earn his seventh save.

In addition, Niekro triggered Atlanta's winning rally with a leadoff single off Andujar, 7-9. Niekro stopped at second on Claudell Washington's second single for the Braves and held up at third when Rafael Ramirez singled to load the bases.

Andujar struck out Dale Murphy but balked Niekro home to snap the 1-1 tie with Horner at the plate. The Braves' third baseman then broke the game open with his two-run single.

BUIES CREEK (AP) — Dan Crewe fired a 6-hitter and Bobby Spicer slammed a homer to lead Campbell to a 3-1 victory over North Carolina State in the North State Summer Baseball League tournament championship Monday night.

Crewe, a Junior righthander, struck out four and walked two as he upped his record to 8-1, the same as losing pitcher Mike Pesavento.

Spicer's 320-foot roundtripper to left tied the score in the fourth and Campbell scored the go-ahead run in the same inning as designated Ron Ammons scored on an infield single by first baseman Kevin Barger.

Earlier Monday, N.C. State had eliminated North Carolina-Wilmington from the double-elimination tournament 8-7.

What An All-Star Game!

'Old Timers' Get Together For First Cracker Jack Classic

By The Associated Press
Now that was an All-Star Game. Imagine, if you will:
•Hall of Famer Bob Feller of the Cleveland Indians, exponent of the first 100-mph fastball, versus Willie McCovey of the San Francisco Giants, most prolific left-handed home run hitter ever in the National League.
•Or, Bill Mazerowski of the Pittsburgh Pirates, whose heroic ninth-inning homer off Ralph Terry in the seventh game of the 1960 World Series vanquished the New York Yankees, versus Don Larsen of the Yankees, who in 1956 became the only pitcher ever to throw a perfect game in the World Series.

Monday night, these and other equally nostalgic confrontations took place in the first Cracker Jack Old Timers Classic, played before 29,196 baseball-hungry spectators at Washington's RFK Stadium. RFK had not been the site of anything resembling a major league game since 1971, when the Washington Senators moved to Texas, so this game was a welcome tonic.

Only six days earlier, these oldtimers' younger counterparts had participated in their 53rd All-Star Game. The National League won for the 11th straight time. So what. It was boring. These folks in Washington had come to see some real All-Stars.

In the third inning, Feller got two strikes on McCovey, who had hit a mammoth blast off the facing of the press level in right field during batting practice. Feller had retired from playing after 1956; McCovey was still active in 1980.

It was time for experience to prevail, and that could have been the theme of this game, after 75-year-old Luke Appling, a Hall of Famer from the Chicago White Sox, had homered in the first inning to pull the American Leaguers into a 1-1 tie.

If NFL Strikes, CFL To Be Shown

By The Associated Press

If the National Football League players go on strike this fall, the nation's network television viewers may be getting a look at a wide-open brand of football — Canadian style.

NBC has contingency plans to televise CFL games on Sundays this fall in the event of a walkout by NFL players. The CFL game, while quite similar, can be a shocker for first-time viewers. It is, however, in its third year of being televised by ESPN, the all-sports cable network.

While some of the names are familiar — former Penn State quarterback John Hufnagel, ex-Oklahoma running back David Overstreet and quarterback Tom Clements of Notre Dame are just three of the Americans performing in the CFL — the rules can be confusing at first. And, the American game owes at least a part of its rules to a Canadian team.

Both the Canadian and U.S. versions of football trace their origins to Rugby College in England. In Canada, rugby was the sport in the mid-1800s, while soccer was king on U.S. college campuses.

Harvard, however, revised the soccer rules to suit itself and played a game where the ball could be kicked or carried, a cross between soccer and rugby.

On May 15, 1874, McGill University of Montreal

journeyed to Cambridge, Mass., to face Harvard, playing half of the game under rugby rules and the other half under Harvard's rules. When four of McGill's 15 players failed to make the trip, the two schools decided to play 11 to a side, thus creating the size of the American squad.

The original rugby field was 110 yards long, a feature the Canadian football game continues today. And, where the U.S. field has a 10-yard deep end zone, the Canadian game features an end zone that is 25 yards deep.

The CFL field also is 65 yards wide, while the U.S. game is played on a field that is 531-3 yards wide.

Like the U.S. colleges, the CFL has a choice after a touchdown to kick for one point or run or pass for two.

In Canada, a team must return a kick and cannot down the ball in the end zone or call for a fair catch. That adds another way of scoring: the rouge.

Better known now as a "single," a team can score a point by kicking the ball out of the end zone, either by punting or with a missed field goal.

Since there is no fair catch, the punting team must give the receiver a five-yard area to catch the ball. The only member of the punting team who can violate this rule is the punter himself.

And, since each team is allowed only one timeout per half — and that in the final three minutes of each half — the game progresses quite rapidly toward an eventful end. The game must end on a play, so if a play finishes with less than 20 seconds remaining, another play must be run.

The nine teams — Edmonton, British Columbia, Calgary, Saskatchewan and Vancouver in the West, and Hamilton, Ottawa, Toronto and Montreal in the East — battle for a spot in the Grey Cup, the CFL's version of the Super Bowl. On that day, a Sunday in November, one-third of Canada's entire population watches the game on television. Canadians may have a lot of company in the United States that day if it's the only football game on the tube.

Hearn Signs To Fight Unknown

DETROIT (AP) — Former World Boxing Association welterweight champion Thomas Hearn, trying to rekindle support in his hometown, will fight unknown Jeff McCracken Sunday in a nationally televised middleweight bout.

The hastily arranged fight was assembled after a heavyweight match to be televised by CBS Sunday between Mike Weaver and Randy Cobb was postponed because of an injury to Cobb's lip, promoter John Yopp said at a news conference Monday.

The 10-round bout, at Detroit's Cobo Arena, will be the first for Hearn in his hometown since December 1980. It will be blacked out in television by CBS Sunday between Mike Weaver and Randy Cobb was postponed because of an injury to Cobb's lip, promoter John Yopp said at a news conference Monday.

The 10-round bout, at Detroit's Cobo Arena, will be the first for Hearn in his hometown since December 1980. It will be blacked out in at the request of CBS, Yopp said.

Hearn said he felt many of his fans had deserted him for Sugar Ray Leonard since his loss to Leonard last September in their welterweight title clash in Las Vegas. It's the lone defeat for Hearn in 35 professional fights.

"I'm anxious to make a good showing and sort of bring back the fans and followers from before," Hearn said. "I think some of the fans are no longer there. They feel Ray (Leonard) is much better."

"Just because I lost that fight, I don't think I lost anything," he said. "It's not a case of being down. It's just a matter of capturing another championship. I still consider myself a champion."

Promoters listed the record of McCracken, 24, who fights out of Los Angeles, at 19-0.

"In order to get him to fight Thomas Hearn, we had to give him a lot of money," Yopp said, refusing to disclose how much was paid to McCracken. Despite McCracken's unblemished professional record, Yopp acknowledged the Californian was not ranked among middleweights.

Promotional material described McCracken, who was not present at Monday's news conference, as a former sparring partner of Hearn's prior to the Leonard fight.

Hearn, however, said he never sparred with McCracken, had viewed no recent films of his opponent and had not seen McCracken fight since both were amateurs at least five years ago.

Bottom-Line Movie Credits Aren't Easy To Win

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you one of those people who stay in movie theaters 'til the bitter end, waiting to see the credits? It's not easy information to get. Sometimes the crawl of names moves too fast. Sometimes the people in front of you are wearing hats and won't get out of the way.

Have you ever watched a late-night movie but couldn't place an old-time star, so you waited interminably for the last commercial, the one offering every pot and pan in the world, plus knives and spatulas, for an unbelievable $19.99?

But the next thing you see is test patterns, not the credits. If so, this story is just for you. Yes you, the confirmed credit-watcher who waited past the end for the name of the walk-on janitor, just because he's in your favorite soap opera. Or maybe you stuck around because you're planning a vacation and wanted to know the location of that beautiful scenery.

And, while you were watching those job titles and names roll by, did "best boy," "gaffer" and "key grip" ever rouse your curiosity?

For the price of this newspaper, here's some definitions you've only dreamed about.

To become one of those bottom-line movie credits, you need muscle or some electrical skill. And a union card, either from the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians — NABET — or the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees — IATSE.

Then you can be a gaffer. He's chief electrician on a film unit, responsible for lighting a set in preparation for shooting a scene.

"There are a lot of theories about the derivation of gaffer," says Tom Turley, business manager for NABET. "One belief is that it's a theatrical term that comes from a gaff hook, which was a long pole used to move lights."

The grip does the heavy work, moving the camera and scenery into position. Sometimes that requires laying tracks and attaching special wheels to cameras. "Grip is not a disease," says Turley. "It has to do with gripping the equipment. If he's key grip, he's the No. 1 man."

The best boy is an assistant or apprentice to the key grip or gaffer. In other jobs, he would be called a clerk or a go-fer.

"It was usually a young boy who got this job, and if he was the best at it, he became the best boy," Turley says.

The boom operator moves the big sound microphone above the actors. The long pole attached to the microphone is the boom.

Turley considers many of these titles affectations. "They're really Hollywood terms. In New York, a gaffer is called an electrician. And the assistants would be first electrician and second electrician."

Less obscure, but still in need of some explanation, are the people in charge of the filming.

The executive producer oversees the movie-making. He makes the decisions on such things as budgets, hiring and shooting locations. The producer works more on the day-to-day operation. He's involved in casting and wardrobe. The director interprets the script and decides what the cameras and actors will do.

The producers and director, along with the acting stars, get mentions at the beginning and end of the film. Gaffers, grips, etc. get their glory on the way out.

"The credits have to appear. It's in the union contract,"

Denvers Split After 15 Years

DENVER (AP) — Singer-songwriter John Denver and his wife, Annie, who have been married 15 years, have separated, a spokesman for the entertainer says.

"No (divorce) papers have been filed," said Paul Bloch of Rogers and Cowan Inc., Denver's Beverly Hills press representative.

"There has been no legal action of any sort by either party," he said Monday. "I think they would call this a trial separation."

The couple, residents of Aspen's exclusive Starwood subdivision, were married June 9, 1967. They have two adopted children, Zachary, 8, and Anna Kate, 5. Through his career, the blond folk-pop singer has written and recorded a number of songs dedicated to his wife — the trilogy of "Leaving on a Jet Plane," "Follow Me" and "Goodbye Again" in the late 1960s and early 1970s and "Annie's Song" in 1976.

Denver's latest record album is titled "Seasons of the Heart."

"As far as we know they will both remain in Aspen," Bloch said.

Inventor To Stage Festival

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Computer inventor Steve Wozniak is turning to music, staging a rock festival expected to draw about 250,000 in a bid to recreate some of the spirit of Woodstock.

Plans for the festival were announced Monday. It will be held Labor Day Weekend in Glen Helen Regional Park north of San Bernardino and about 55 miles east of Los Angeles.

It is being staged by a Wozniak organization called UNUSON — an acronym for Unite Us in Song. Wozniak, who invented the Apple II home computer, said he is putting $10 million into the festival, and hopes it will break even.

The event has been named the "Us Festival," and UNUSON co-founder Peter Ellis said the idea is to celebrate the "us" decade of the 1980s as opposed to the "we-they" decade of the '60s and the "me" decade of the '70s.

Concert promoter Bill Graham said at least 20 bands will perform during the festival, and he's already signed the Police, Tom Petty, Pat Benatar, Fleetwood Mac, Santana, the Talking Heads and the B-52s.

In addition to the music, there will be a computer fair featuring more than 100 exhibits by such corporations as IBM, Atari and Apple.

Wozniak says he hopes the festival will recreate some of the community spirit that marked Woodstock, the 1969 festival where a half-million people gathered in New York's Catskill Mountains.

Already constructed are a 57-acre outdoor amphitheater, parking facilities, an exhibition area and space for more than 100,000 recreational vehicles.

The festival patrons will be controlled by a 1,000-member security force and will be served by 1,600 drinking fountains, 250 food, beverage and merchandise concessions and 2,500 chemical toilets.

weekend. In the background is a 57-acre amphitheater carved out of a hill near San Bernardino, Calif., where the festival will be held. (AP Laserphoto)

Singer Sues Jewelry Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Phyllis McGuire and an international jewelry company are back in court for the second time this year.

She was sued Monday for $100 million in damages by Harry Winston Inc. over newspaper advertisements in which Miss McGuire offered $1 million reward for the return of gems she alleged were stolen after she left them with the jeweler.

The jeweler filed the suit in U.S. District Court, naming Miss McGuire, of Las Vegas, Nev., and her attorney, Melvin Belli Sr. of San Francisco, as defendants.

The suit contended the ads were designed with a malicious intent to "intimidate and harass" Winston's into settling a $60 million damage suit brought by Miss McGuire, a member of the McGuire Sisters singing group, against the jeweler in Las Vegas last Feb. 22.

Miss McGuire's suit charged Harry Winston with willful responsibility for switching worthless stones for valuable gems left with the jeweler for remounting and cleaning.

Harry Winston claimed in its court action that its business was and will continue to be harmed because of the wording in the advertisements.

New Releases Slow To Draw

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Summer moviegoers got four new films to choose from last week, but box office returns indicate none is rivaling the hot pair of science-fiction thrillers: "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial" and "TRON."

Steven Spielberg's "E.T." continued to draw crowds at a blistering pace, reaping $12.8 million last weekend for a grand total of $129.7 million, according to figures released Monday.

"TRON" collected $3.6 million in 1,112 houses for Walt Disney Productions, bringing its 10-day gross to $11 million. The studio has been encouraged by big-city business, but figures next weekend will determine the computer movie's fate. Twentieth Century-Fox's soap-opera spoof, "Young Doctors in Love," led the weekend newcomers with $4.2 million from 709 theaters. Woody Allen's new comedy, "A Midsummer Night's Sex Comedy," collected $2.5 million on 501 screens. An Orion spokesman termed that "normal" for a Woody Allen movie.

Fox also opened Kenny Rogers' film debut, "Six Pack," in 504 theaters and garnered a disappointing $1.9 million. However, a Fox spokesman noted neither "Six Pack" nor "Young Doctors" has been released nationally yet.

"Summer Lovers," the latest adolescent love movie from Randal Kleiser of "Blue Lagoon" fame, earned $500,000 from 125 theaters. A Filmways spokesman said that was ahead of the studio's last big release, "Blowout," starring John Travolta.

Hospice Profiles Patients

Hospice of East Carolina has published a profile of patients served between Feb. 15 and June 30, 1982.

According to the report, 23 were male; 20 female; 26 were white; 17 black. One was under 20 years of age, one between 20 and 29, one between 30 and 39, four between 40 and 49; 13 between 50 and 59; 12 between 60 and 69; and 11 70 and over.

Patients were in the following areas: Greenville, 15; Farmville, 7; Ayden, 6; Bethel, 3; Winterville and Pactolus, 2 each, and Black Jack, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland, Simpson and Stokes, 1 each. There also was one patient outside Pitt County.

Diagnoses have included nine with lung cancer, seven with intestinal cancer, six with myeloma, four with stomach cancer, three with pancreatic cancer, two each with breast and cervical-ovarian cancer and leukemia, and one each with bladder, esophagus, larynx, rectal and testicular cancer, lymphoma, melanoma and Hodgkins disease.

Among the 43 served, there have been 20 deaths, Hospice Director Beverly Burnette said.

Women Planning Meeting

The North Carolina chapters of the National Organization for Women and the Women's Political Caucus will meet July 26 to consider offering a slate of candidates for state House and Senate seats in the general elections this fall.

According to Lil Simmons, president of Greenville NOW, and Freddy Jacobson, president of the local unit of the Women's Political Caucus, the decision to consider write-in candidates resulted from the recent failure of the N.C. General Assembly to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment.

Legislators from local districts oppose the amendment.

"The Republican Party, statewide, has deserted women's rights and has led an attack against the issues that most concern us," said Ms. Simmons.

"Even though the Democratic Party platform does support women's rights, the local candidates do not. All Democratic legislators from this area are on record as opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment."

Ms. Jacobson said women continue to be "under-represented" in the state Legislature, with only 12.9 percent of the North Carolina General Assembly consisting of women members.

Eighty-six percent of the women legislators supported ERA ratification, she said; only 44 percent of male legislators supported it.

"We need to increase the numbers of women in legislatures so that an effective female presence will ensure full and fair consideration of women's issues," she said.

Anyone wishing to attend or needing additional information may call 756-0338.

Two Hearings Set Thursday

Inmate Attends Funeral

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Sonia Jacobs Linder, serving a life sentence in Florida for murder, was to be returned to a Florida prison Monday night after attending the funeral in Charlotte of her parents, Bella and Herbert Jacobs.

The Jacobs were among 145 passengers aboard a Pan Am Boeing 727 killed two weeks ago when the plane crashed near New Orleans. They were buried Monday after a brief graveside service.

Ms. Linder arrived at Hebrew Cemetery in northwest Charlotte under heavy guard. She was escorted from a sheriff's department car by three deputies.

Ms. Linder's two children, Christina, 5, and Eric, 15, ran to greet their mother as she got out of the car. One family member said it had been more than a year since Ms. Linder had seen her children. The children had lived with the Jacobs for several years.

During the service, Ms. Linder, sitting in front of her parents' black coffins with tears running down her cheeks, held Christina on her lap.

About 75 friends and family members sobbed as Rabbi Richard Rockland called the Jacobs' death "a great tragedy."

She was not handcuffed, but during the 30-minute graveside service a female deputy sat beside her and a male deputy stood at each end of the row where the Jacobs family sat.

In order to make the trip to Charlotte, Ms. Linder had to get her request approved by the Florida Department of Correction. Mecklenburg County authorities then had to agree to transport Ms. Linder from Florida and back and hold her under armed guard at all times.

After the service, Ms. Linder kissed and hugged several relatives as deputies led her back to the car for the return trip to Florida. But the deputies allowed the two children and Ms. Linder's brother, Alan, to get into the car to tell Ms. Linder goodbye.

As the car pulled away from the cemetery, Ms. Linder smiled and waved and blew kisses to relatives from the car window. Deputies said she would be taken back to Florida, where she is serving a life sentence for murder in Florida's Broward Correctional Institute.

She was the only woman on Florida's death row until her sentence was reduced to life last year. She was sentenced to death in 1976 for the shooting deaths of a state highway patrolman and a visiting Canadian constable.

Perhaps the largest single charity bridge event anywhere is the annual UJA Federation bridge tournament organized by Mrs. Samuel Stayman. This year's event, held at the exclusive Harmonie Club in New York, attracted almost 80 tables and raised over $50,000.

Amateurs pay $350 to play with an expert for the evening. The results on any hand can vary greatly, depending on which member of the partnership is in control. Here's an example of what might — and did — happen in this tournament.

North's overcall on such a skimpy suit is not to be recommended. However, South's decision to bid three no trump, despite his questionable spade stopper, has the endorsement of this department. North needed no more than the ten of spades to make sure of a stopper, and without a spade lead, declarer could have nine running tricks.

West got his side off to the best start when he opted to lead his fourth-best spade. East should simply have signaled with the eight of spades, but he made the amateur's mistake of playing the ten — "third hand high." Declarer won the jack and made the technically correct play of a club to the queen — that would have permitted him to bring home the suit if East had started with all four missing clubs.

East won the ace of clubs and returned the four of spades. When declarer's queen appeared, West should have worked out the lie of the cards and followed with either the king or the nine to unblock the suit. But West chose a poor moment to play an uncharitable six. As a result, when declarer eventually forced out the ace of hearts to set up his ninth trick, the defenders could take only two of the three spade tricks they were due. Had East not been profligate with his ten of spades, he could have overtaken his partner's nine to set the contract, and had West been rather more generous, he would have retained a low spade to achieve the same result.

Youth Receives Pilot's License

A year ago Monday, Ivy G. Harris of Greenville celebrated his 16th birthday by receiving his student pilot's license. He remained on schedule this year as he progressed to another flying certification on his 17th birthday.

Harris, who says his ambition is to become a commercial pilot, received his private pilot's license Monday after having passed the necessary Federal Aviation Administration ground and flying requirements at the Pitt-Greenville Airport. Carroll Vann was Harris' flight instructor.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Harris of Greenville, he is a rising senior at Greenville Christian Academy.

Jury Indicts 2 Women In $18,000 Catnapping

By The Associated Press

Two Harkers Island women have been indicted on charges that they held a white and yellow tomcat for $18,000 in ransom in what authorities have said is a "humorous crime" that's being taken seriously.

A Carteret County, N.C., grand jury on Monday indicted Ava G. Willis, 21, and Sherri Styron, 19, on charges of breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny and larceny after a break-in.

The two also were charged in a separate indictment with communicating a threat to wrongfully obtain $18,000 from the cat's owners, Raymond and Charles Guthrie of Harkers Island.

The charges carry a maximum penalty of 40 years in prison.

"It's kind of a humorous crime, but we're taking it seriously — as seriously as if they'd broken in your house and stolen $18,000," Frank Galizia, a Carteret County deputy sheriff, said Monday in a telephone interview.

Warrants filed against the two women identified the victim, Cry Baby, as "one domesticated male cat, white in color with yellow tail."

The cat was taken June 24 from the Guthries' residence on Harkers Island, a seaside community of about 2,500, Galizia said. The animal was recovered the next day after deputies arrested Ms. Willis and Ms. Styron. Galizia said the women led the Guthries to a spot where the cat was to be exchanged for the cash.

Charles Guthrie, 67, said Monday that he and his brother returned to their house the afternoon of June 24 and were met by a neighbor.

Guthrie said the neighbor told the men he had seen someone in their cabin, and that the intruders left with something wrapped up.

The door to the house had been broken open but nothing else was missing, he said.

Guthrie said he and his brother went to see Is. Styron's father, who accompanied them to the home of the other woman's mother.

There they found Ms. Styron and Ms. Willis.

Guthrie said Ms. Styron's father joined him and his brother in urging the two women to return the cat. But Ms. Willis and Ms. Styron told the Guthries they would never see the cat again unless the brothers paid a ransom, Charles Guthrie said. The suspects first demanded $2,000, then later upped the ransom to $9,000, Guthrie said.

Charles Guthrie said he went to the home of a deputy, who referred him to a magistrate. Warrants were taken out against the suspects, he said.

After he returned home, the suspects telephoned him and said they were upping the ransom demand to $18,000, Guthrie said.

Guthrie said he and his brothers often adopt cats that wander up to their house. "They're like members of the family to us," he said.

FORMER JUDGE DIES — Funeral services will be held Wednesday in Rockingham for former Superior Court Judge F. Donald Phillips, who died Monday at the age of 89. Phillips, who judged Nazi war criminals at Nuremberg and served 28 years in the 20th Judicial District, died at Richmond County Memorial Hospital after a brief illness. He was named to the International Military Tribunal in 1946 by then-President Truman and served on the tribunal until August 1948. (AP Laserphoto)

Federal Education Cuts Run Less Than Expected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State education officials say federal budget cuts to public education programs in North Carolina are running about 4 percent so far this fiscal year, far lower than the 20 percent projections made by officials last winter.

Joseph B. Webb, special assistant for federal programs with the state Department of Public Instruction, says the cuts which became effective July 1 are running about 4 percent across the board.

"President Reagan proposed in January that 20 percent of our funding be rescinded," Webb said. "Congress did not approve that recession."

The state's federal education funds for the Title I program could be reduced by an additional $10 million because of a legal dispute. The Title I program was begun to help disadvantaged children improve their math and reading skills.

Webb says federal education officials originally planned to allocate funds for the 1982-83 fiscal year based on 1970 census figures because 1980 data were not available.

North Carolina would benefit from the use of the 1970 census because the number of children below the poverty level in the state has declined by 30 percent since 1970.

Some states objected to using 1970 data, however, and took the matter to court.

Webb says if the court finds that the 1980 data must be used, federal Title I funding in North Carolina would drop from $75 million to $65 million.

The state received $275 million in federal funds for 1981-82, but Webb says he can't say how much the state will get this year until after the Title I matter is settled.

He said federal funds of programs for handicapped students will not be cut. Webb says the state is expected to get about $29 million for that in 1982-83.

Federal funding for the school lunch and child nutrition program is expected to run about the same as last year, which Webb said was $119 million.

But he said funding for vocational education program will drop from around $13.6 million to about $13 million.

Webb said the bilingual education production plan, which included about $500,000 in federal funds last year, and the Indian education program, which received about $2 million, also sustained 4 percent cuts.
