Consumer Prices Jump As Inflation Holds Steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices, spurred by a big jump in gasoline costs, kicked up a full 1 percent in June for the second straight month, the government said today.

Even with the strong surge, which amounts to a 13.3 percent gain on an annual basis, inflation was running at a modest 5.1 percent annual rate for the first half of this year, the Labor Department said.

That compares with the 8.9 percent of last year and 12.4 percent of 1980. Economists are predicting an inflation rate for all of this year in the range of 5 percent to 7 percent.

In advance of today's report, private economists had said any sharp upturn should not be viewed as a return to the sizzling inflation levels of previous years.

"I don't think this is a re-emergence of double-digit inflation" for the year, said Edward Yardeni, chief economist for the E.F. Hutton & Co. brokerage house.

Thomas Thomson, chief economist for San Francisco's

Crocker National Bank, said he did not expect to see a change in the "downward trend in the basic rate of inflation."

"Given the weakness of the economy," he said, "it's very unlikely we'll see an acceleration."

June's advance in the Labor Department's Consumer Price Index was propelled largely by sharply higher gasoline prices which rose a seasonally adjusted 5.4 percent for the month, well above the 0.9 percent gain in May but still less than the 9.4 percent peak monthly increase March 1981, the new report said. Fuel oil prices rose 2.1 percent in June compared to a 0.7 percent increase in May.

Energy prices had been falling earlier, tumbling nearly 15 percent from March 1981 to April 1982. But experts had been looking for sizable increases this summer with the tightening of oil stocks and the lessening of the worldwide oil surplus.

Also kicking up the inflation measure last month were housing costs, which soared 1 percent, lower than the 1.4 percent increase the previous month, but still well above the monthly changes earlier in the year which had either declined or risen less than one percentage point.

Home prices climbed 2.3 percent but mortgage interest rates were off 0.8 percent. Rents were up 0.4 percent, the report said.

Food prices were up 0.6 percent, compared with an 0.8 percent increase in May. Prices rose sharply for beef and pork while poultry prices were off slightly. Egg prices tumbled for the fourth straight month. The cost of restaurant meals and alcoholic beverages were up.

The June and May increases of a seasonally adjusted 1 percent compared with the tiny 0.2 percent increase in April and the 0.3 percent decline in March, the department said.

For the 12 months ending in June, inflation rose 7.1 percent, the new report said.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at June's pace, the yearly jump would be 13.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

In other areas, today's report said.

—Transportation rose 2.1 percent, reflecting the big jump in gasoline costs. New car prices climbed 0.7 percent and prices for used cars were up 0.2 percent. Automobile finance charges rose sharply, after falling earlier in the year.

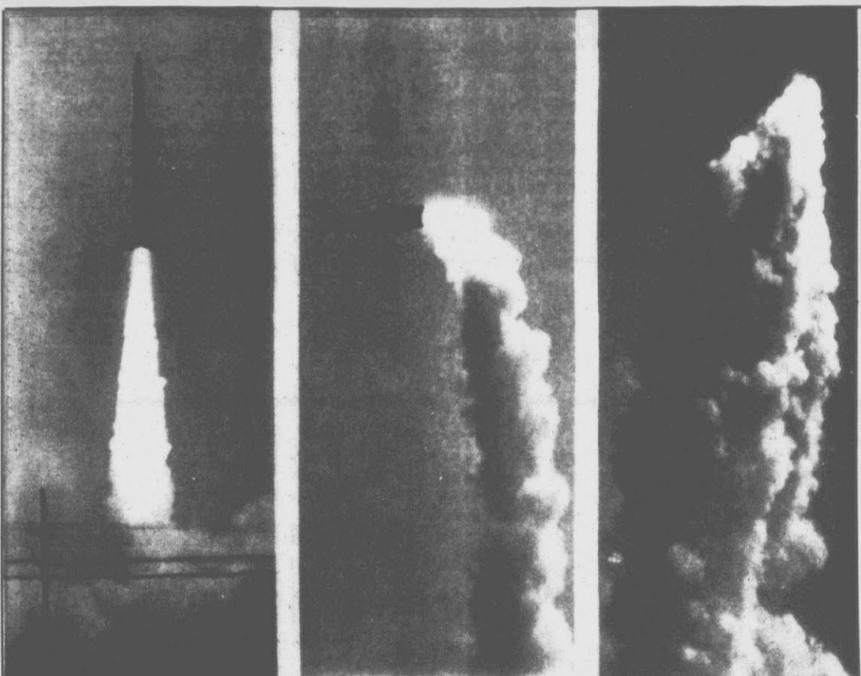

—Medical care costs were up 0.9 percent, about the same as in the last three months. Physicians' fees rose 0.7 percent and the cost of hospital rooms was up 1 percent.

—Apparel cost rose a scant 0.1 percent after falling by 0.1 percent in May. Modest increases in apparel services and shoes offset declines in the costs of most types of clothing.

—Entertainment costs were up 0.7 percent, more than twice the increase reported in May and April, when it 0.3.

All the price changes are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

In all, the unadjusted Consumer Price Index stood at 290.6 in June, meaning a hypothetical list of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 would have cost $290.60 last month.

Senate OKs Massive Tax Increase By Slim Margin

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

The Senate early today passed the biggest tax increase in history after endorsing a key provision requiring partial tax withholding on interest and dividends.

The bill was approved on a 50-47 vote.

It would boost taxes by $99 billion and cut federal spending for Medicare, Medicaid and aid to the needy by about $17.5 billion over the next three years. Congress and the Reagan administration expect the bill to force down interest rates and revitalize the economy through its reduction of federal deficits.

The bill now goes to the House.

The vote to require withholding, which Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., described as the centerpiece of the entire bill, also was 50-47. Vice President George Bush flew back from campaigning in Nebraska in case his vote was needed to break a tie. It wasn't.

Leaders were driving for a quick wrap-up on the package, which would boost taxes by $99 billion and cut federal spending for Medicare, Medicaid and aid to the needy by about $17.5 billion over the next three years. Congress and the Reagan administration expect the bill to force down interest rates and revitalize the economy through its reduction of federal deficits.

Hunt Pressing House To Beat Cigarette Tax

By WILLIAM M. WELCH Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt is focusing his persuasive efforts against the tobacco tax increase on the House of Representatives, which still must consider a bill that includes a provision to double federal taxes on cigarettes, a spokesman for Hunt says.

"Here in the past few days we've turned our attention to the House, where we have a Democratic majority," said Brent Hackney, Hunt's deputy press secretary. "We feel like our chances there are better."

Hackney said Thursday that the governor was disappointed but not surprised that the Senate voted against an effort that would have deleted the tax increase, which would raise federal taxes from 8 to 16 cents a pack.

The Senate voted 72-24 against an attempt to delete any tax increase for cigarettes from a Republican-sponsored tax increase bill. The senators agreed, however, to allow the eight-cent increase to remain in effect only through Sept. 30, 1985, when the tax would drop back to the current eight cents a pack.

Hackney said Hunt met with Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C., and staff members of the House Ways and Means Committee in Washington on Monday to urge opposition to the tobacco tax increase, Hackney said.

"I've been contacting a number of the members of Congress with regard to the matter," Hunt said. He added that he has tried without success to reach Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

Hunt said at a news conference Wednesday before the Senate vote that doubling the federal excise tax to 16 cents a pack would cause a loss of jobs in the tobacco industry and a loss of tax revenue for the state. He cited a tobacco-industry study in saying the proposed increase would cause 11,500 jobs to be lost nationally, ranging from tobacco growers to cigarette retailers.

"You can imagine a lot of those would be in North Carolina," Hunt said.

SPINAL CORD SOCIETY?

I would like to contact persons with spinal cord injuries, their families and other persons interested in keeping abreast of and fostering research into how paralysis from spinal cord injury can be reversed. My family is active in the Spinal Cord Society, a non-profit, all-volunteer organization which has as its context of being that spinal cord injuries can be cured. We have identified the researchers actively involved in cure research and have held six cure research conferences in the past year to have reported to the public progress in these projects. We're not expecting instant cures for the chronically injured, but rather we're sharing enlightenment that there truly is reason to hope for and work toward cures for the spinal-cord-injured. No researcher is shouting that he has found an instant cure, but much is known about electrical stimulation, nerve grafts, late anterior decompression operations and other procedures that alleviate the suffering.

My husband and I are schoolteachers by profession who have dedicated a good bit of our leisure time to seeing that our daughter, Melisse, paralyzed four years ago in an automobile accident as a teenager, and other spinal cord injured persons can recover. I invite interested persons to write to me and I will send a summary of a conference held in June during which 11 of the nation's researchers talked about the progress of their work. WHICH DAVENPORT STORE?

The Hotline item published yesterday should have distinguished between the two Davenport stores in Pactolus. Items for a yard-bake sale to be given by Pactolus Baptist Church to benefit Mrs. Neta Brooks should be left at the J.P. Davenport Store any time or at the church Saturday.

City Conducts 2nd Hearing On CD Grant

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

The second of the City Council's required public hearings on the application for roughly $1 million in second-year funding under the Community Development Small Cities program was held Thursday night during a special call session.

In presenting a brief outline of the program application, city spokesman Jesse Harris said Greenville was funded last year for revitalization work in the South Evans area and emphasis will continue to be placed on improvement needs in that section.

This year, the city is applying for $999,564 in grant money, plus $10,000 from the community action association in Martin County that will be earmarked for housing weatherization in the target area.

The grant total includes $381,569 requested for acquisition, $192,972 for relocation assistance, $212,000 for rehabilitation of privately owned dwellings, and $89,000 for program administration.

The application will be submitted to the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, which is administering the CD Small cities program this year. Greenville received a commitment last year for $3 million during the three-year program span and is required to reapply each year for the $1 million grants.

Mrs. Marion Wilkes of West Fifth Street expressed concern about her community and said she would like to see the city designate funds for various improvements that will benefit the young people of the area. She mentioned such needs as tennis courts, outdoor grills, play areas for small and large children, marking and lining of baseball and football fields, usage of lights at the former Eppes High School football facility, and toilets.

Mrs. Wilkes said the improvements would "bring some dignity" to the area.

City Manager Gail Meeks said a request for $13,350 has been received by the city relative to improvements in the West Fifth Street area. She said that while the city does not have CD money available at this time to allocate for the work, the request will be presented at the council's August meeting and funding will be considered when the money is available.

Following the public hearing, council members voted to authorize Mayor Percy Cox to execute and submit the city's CD Small Cities application for funding of the South Evans project.

In a final item, the bid ($29,000) submitted by Hoke Construction Co., Greenville, for a used dump truck for the public works department was awarded. The council authorized the execution of a lease-purchase agreement with Southern National Leasing of Charlotte for the used vehicle at 13 percent interest rate for three annual payments.

Party Official To Return To ECU

Greenville resident Janice Hardison Faulkner has announced plans to leave her post as executive director of the State Democratic Party Aug. 15.

Mrs. Faulkner says she will return to teaching in the East Carolina University Department of English in the fall semester.

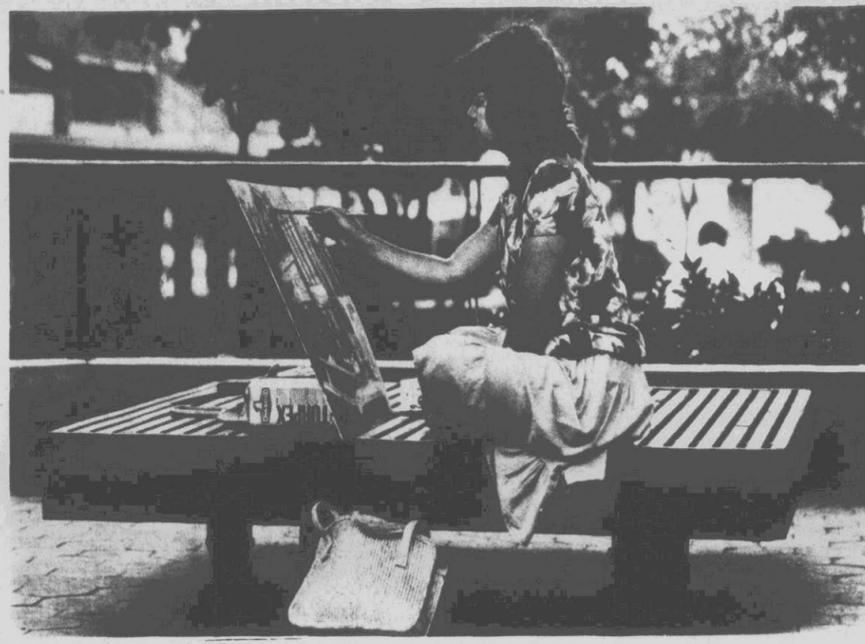

"When I began this job in January 1981, I had a year's leave of absence from ECU," she said. "Near the end of the first year I renegotiated for additional leave time. Now I'm ready to go back and I made the decision not to wait till next semester. I'll have a couple of weeks' vacation and then I'll be back to teaching."

Mrs. Faulkner said her work as party executive director has been "fascinating and demanding. It's been a wonderful experience, but requires a pace that I wouldn't think anybody could keep forever."

She denied previously published reports that state party Chairman Russell J. Walker told her to leave early.

"This is not true. As far as I am concerned, it is a personal decision and one that I am happy with now that it looks like someone has been found to take over here for me," she said.

She said she suspects that her successor will be R. Wayne McDevitt, 28, manager of Gov. Jim Hunt's western office in Asheville.

Sometimes they have reached speeds of 70 miles per hour. The gruelling 6 hours of competition each day have been compared to running two marathons daily. During competitions, the cyclists must replace their rubber-coated silk bike tires, which cost about $30 apiece, almost daily. Cheered on by 400 million spectators and TV fans, the riders are now gearing up for a final burst of energy. On Sunday they'll sprint across the finish line on the Champs Elysees, climaxing the most prestigious and exhausting cycling race in the world, the Tour de France.

Reagan's Economic Adviser Resigns

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
 Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Murray Weidenbaum's resignation as President Reagan's top economic adviser is not the result of any policy dispute, according to White House aides who say Reagan is considering "four or five" other people for the job.

Weidenbaum's decision to leave his post as chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers and return to academic life was disclosed Thursday night while the president was in St. Louis to address a U.S. Olympic Committee fund-raising dinner.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, stressing that there was nothing "untoward" about Weidenbaum's departure, said: "I defy you to read into this a policy dispute of any kind. It just does not exist."

Asked if Weidenbaum's departure would have any effect on the administration's future economic policy, Speakes said, "I don't think it will have any impact."

Weidenbaum, 55, told the president in his resignation letter that "the overall condition of the economy underscores both the difficulty of carrying out fundamental changes as well as the continuing need to move ahead on each of the four key aspects of economic policy in order to achieve your basic goal of restoring the economic strength of our country."

Speakes, who made public Weidenbaum's letter, said the four areas to which the economist referred were reducing taxes, slowing the growth of government spending, reforming government regulatory machinery and moderating the growth of the money supply.

In Washington, some administration officials close to Weidenbaum said he has decided to resign in part because he was frustrated by his inability to influence the administration's economic policy.

"The president is very much in charge of economic policy," said one Weidenbaum associate who did not want his name used. "This president feels that he has a great deal of interest in economics and is not open to a change in course from his senior economic advisers."

One official noted that the economist has been unhappy for some time that the president refused to go along with budget changes to reduce the record deficits the government now faces for 1983 and beyond.

Speakes said no successor had been chosen, but another well-placed White House official, who asked that he not be identified by name, said that "four or five" people were under consideration for the job.

Before Weidenbaum's resignation was revealed, the president said, "I think we have bottomed out of the economic recession."

"For the first time in several months, we are showing an increase, small though it may be, in the gross national product. Now I am not going to jump up and down and say that, well, there is going to be a boom just around the corner. It won't get cured that way."

The president made his remarks in an interview with KMOX-TV. After the interview was over, he also mentioned that Weidenbaum, who taught at Washington University in St. Louis, would be returning to the campus.

Shortly afterwards, Speakes made the announcement.

Senate Panel Criticizes FBI For Abscam Conduct

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Senate panel investigating Abscam has criticized the FBI for allowing a corrupt middleman to invite Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., to a meeting where agents posing as aides to Arab sheiks were prepared to bribe him.

The bipartisan select committee investigating the Abscam undercover operation said the much-publicized incident involving Pressler showed that individual rights of privacy were not protected adequately.

FBI officials conceded they did little to prevent the innocent senator from appearing before the FBI's hidden Abscam videotape cameras for fear that heading off the meeting would jeopardize the entire operation.

Assistant FBI Director Oliver Revell told the special Senate committee Thursday that the "safeguards protected the innocent from being charged with a crime, not from being brought to a meeting."

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., criticized the FBI for allowing a corrupt middleman, Joseph Silvestri, to determine who would be brought in for possible bribe offers.

"It seems like it's the tail wagging the dog in this case," he remarked.

Pressler was taken to a

Washington, D.C., townhouse on Nov. 7, 1979, on a spur-of-the-moment decision by Silvestri, who falsely told FBI agents that Pressler was prepared to take a $50,000 bribe.

No bribe offer was made, and Pressler left the meeting after he realized what was going on, FBI officials have said. Pressler was told he was going to meet with a legitimate political action group made up of businessmen interested in supporting him for president, according to FBI files.

Silvestri was an unwitting FBI accomplice, acting in the belief that the agents posing as aides to Arab sheiks were genuine, according to the FBI.

John Good, an FBI supervisor who recommended the meeting with Pressler take place, said, "It's a judgment call, and I think we did the best we could under those circumstances."

"It took us by surprise," he continued. "The fact that Sen. Pressler came in and didn't take a bribe is the ultimate safeguard."

The plan was for Silvestri to bring in two other unidentified congressmen. But the top command at FBI headquarters approved the switch 30 minutes after learning that Pressler was to appear

President Holding Firm Against Soviet Pipeline

ST. LOUIS (AP) - President Reagan, faced with the most serious problem in U.S.-French relations since he took office, is looking for legal leverage to prevent a French company from selling U.S.-licensed equipment to the Soviet Union for a gas pipeline.

Ignoring Reagan's ban on the sale of U.S. technology to the Soviets, France on Thursday ordered French companies to honor contracts with Moscow to provide machinery for the natural gas pipeline.

An administration official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the only thing that would prompt the president to relax his opposition to Western aid for the pipeline would be an unexpected change in Soviet activities in Poland, Afghanistan and elsewhere.

Reagan, in his first public comment on France's decision, told a television interviewer Thursday that the help the allies are providing for the pipeline would pump $10 billion to $12 billion a year "in cold, hard cash" into the hard-pressed Soviet economy.

The president was in St. Louis to address a U.S. Olympic Committee fund-raising dinner. Before the dinner, he met his eldest son, Michael, who arrived in the city several hours earlier after a record-setting 25-hour 8-minute speedboat trip up the Mississippi River from New Orleans.

Michael Reagan's exploit was part of a promotional effort for the U.S. Olympic Committee.

The president also spoke in the afternoon to nearly 1,000 black youngsters in the new gymnasium of a boys' club.

Reagan, who returns to Washington today, also revealed to a television interview panel here that Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the Council on Economic Advisers, had resigned.

A White House official said the administration's options were limited on how to deal with France's announce-

Rising Costs Contribute To Togetherness

Partitions are good privacy-makers, Dr. Herman observes. A partition may be as simple as a strategically placed bookshelf or couch. For more privacy, the specialist suggests using doors, panels and screens to divide a room. Many types of these room dividers are available through building stores and mail order suppliers.

A "movable island," a cabinet or counter with casters for mobility, is another way to partition space in a room, Dr. Herman says. These may be custom-ordered through a cabinet supplier or made by adding casters to a cabinet. A "fake" five- or six-foot wall may be attached to the island for privacy.

Room dividers are especially necessary in bedrooms shared by children. "It's important that children have a place to get away from brothers or sisters," Dr. Herman says. "It doesn't have to be a big space. But it needs to be a space that's theirs."

Bunk beds, back-to-back dressers and chests, or freestanding screens may be used to partition children's bedrooms, the specialist observes. Hanging quilts or other fabrics from the ceiling are also effective dividers. The fabrics may be attached to hardware on the ceiling or a closet pole that runs across the room.

Other ways to give family members more privacy include:

Adding a comfortable chair and a reading lamp to the master bedroom, if it's large enough, so it can double as a den.

Grouping furniture according to activity areas. For example, furnishings for reading or conversation might be arranged in a quiet corner away from the television or stereo. Make sure traffic is routed along walls, not through the middle of conversation nooks or the TV viewing area.

Cutting the noise level in the home whenever possible. Buy quieter appliances, encourage the use of headphones and use sound-absorbers such as upholstered furniture, carpeting, fabric wall hangings and tablecloths whenever possible.

In the typical American home of the last couple of decades, privacy has been as close as the nearest door. A parent could grab a newspaper and head for the den. The television fan could tune in the living room. The algebra student could spread papers on the table in the dining room. The three-year-old could empty the toy box in the play room.

But as housing costs have risen, homes have begun to shrink. Many families have been squeezed into a new kind of "togetherness" that increases the potential for family conflict, says Dr. Glenda Herman, extension housing specialist, North Carolina State University.

"Complete privacy isn't always possible," she adds, "but if you live in a small open-spaced home, there are several ways to provide more privacy for family members."

Dear Abby

Woman Given New Identity

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My brother, knowing I am a Dear Abby fan, gave me your book, "The Best of Dear Abby," for Christmas. I will be forever grateful to you for one letter on Page 205 in the chapter, "The Sad Ones."

It was from a 23-year-old woman who weighed 326 pounds, was a drug addict, a prostitute and a divorced mother of three on welfare. You advised her to go to Overeaters Anonymous. She went, and in her letter she said, "Today I've lost 121 pounds and I'm still losing. I'm drug-free and I'm learning to like myself. I have a responsible job, a belief in a power greater than myself, and the love and respect of my children and people who believed in me when I didn't believe in myself. After sinking so low, Overeaters Anonymous gave me a chance to be what I've always wanted to be. A lady. Thank you for sending me there."

Well, thank God, I didn't have all her problems, but I did identify with one — I was nearly 100 pounds overweight and had spent most of my 34 years losing weight and gaining it back.

I went to Overeaters Anonymous, and since Christmas I have lost 55 pounds and made a whole new circle of loving, caring friends.

Please give O.A. a boost whenever you can. The organization deserves it.

CARRIE C. IN INDIANA

DEAR CARRIE: I've given O.A. so many "boosts," I've been accused of being on its payroll. However, it deserves all the boosts I've given. And more.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 69 and have been a widower for three years. I had a marvelous wife for 41 years, and after she died I said I would never marry again.

Well, last summer I met a lady, and the impossible happened. I fell in love. She's 65, a widow, and she suits me to a "T." We've been seeing each other regularly and now we want to get married, but we've run into some heavy opposition from both sides.

My children (married) say they like the lady but they think we should live together and try it out first. Well, we've already had a few weekend trips together and we don't need to try anything out.

Her children (also married) have advised her against marrying me because they're afraid my health might fail and their mother will be stuck nursing a sick old man. (I've had a triple bypass, but I'm in good health and my doctor says I have nothing to worry about.) They also think we should live together first and see how it works out.

Abby, to tell you the truth, we would be ashamed for our grandchildren to know we were living together. I love this lady and she loves me, so what should we do?

S. AND J.

DEAR S. AND J.: Follow your hearts and get married.

"The Best of Dear Abby," featuring Abby's best answers and favorite responses during the past 25 years, is now available. You can obtain a copy of this new best-selling book by sending $9.95 plus $1 for postage and handling to "The Best of Dear Abby," in care of this newspaper, 4400 Johnson Dr., Fairway, Kan. 66205. Toy Chest Lids May Be Hazard

Some toy chest lids may present a safety hazard for young children. In fact, since 1973 at least 21 reported fatalities and one incident of permanent brain damage have resulted from toy chest lids falling on children's heads or necks.

Dr. Frances Wagner, extension human development specialist at North Carolina State University, adds that trunks, foot lockers, blanket chests and other items with top openings and hinged lids may present a similar problem.

Open chests or bins that have no lids, chests with lightweight removable lids, or chests with sliding doors or panels may be the best way to eliminate the risk of falling lids, the specialist adds.

A Myth Dies Hard

Myths die hard and the one about the death of Dr. Charles Drew seems to be a most difficult one to put to rest.

The story, which shows up again and again, is that Dr. Drew, a renowned black physician, bled to death in Burlington many years ago after being turned away from Alamance General Hospital, which was segregated at the time. He had been taken to the hospital following an automobile accident. The story apparently first appeared in a national newspaper column. It has since been repeated in books and even was mentioned in an episode of "MASH," the television show.

The story appeared in a syndicated column which this newspaper carried, and a subsequent investigation by a Daily Reflector writer proved it false.

Two black physicians, Dr. C.

Mason Quick of Fayetteville and Dr. Samuel Bullock of Washington, D.C., have tried to set the record straight for years. They were friends of Dr. Drew and were there in the hospital emergency room when he died.

Now they are trying again. Dr. Quick says, "I'm a black man, and this is my state. I know you can indict North Carolina for a number of things. But you can't indict her for this."

North Carolina, like other Southern states, has many negative marks against it for its relations with blacks during the days of segregation. Physicians of the time, however, were rather generous in their efforts to provide medical service to black people. Certainly the physicians of Alamance County didn't turn away a black physician in need of emergency care. They did all they could, and the surviving witnesses verify this.

Program Will Progress

North Carolina's "Good Roads Package", which involved a 3 cent per gallon increase in gasoline taxes, has been declared a success by the administration.

Officials say 3,327 miles of roads have been resurfaced, and some $30 million in construction work has been done on secondary roads.

However, officials say another $45 million will be needed just to meet federal funding. Where the money will come from no one knows. Another gas tax increase is possible, and there was another part of the overall tax program proposed by the governor which was not approved. If additional money is not found, primary road work will cease on July 1, 1983.

Ultimately, it will be up to our citizens as to whether or not they want to pay more to continue the road building program. Since good roads have always been dear to Tar Heels, we are betting the voters will opt for continuing road improvements.

THIS AFTERNOON

No Gloom In N.C.

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Republicans are supposed to take a beating in U.S. House elections this year. The party in the White House usually loses congressional seats in off-year elections and voters appear ready to blame the economy on the GOP. Add to that some losses in re-districting last year and political observers around the country are saying the GOP could lose between 10 and 35 House seats this year.

There's no gloom in North Carolina GOP circles, however. Republicans here think they're going to expand their four-member House delegation and their optimism is apparently shared by leaders of the national party.

Richard Richards of Utah, chairman of the Republican National Committee, recently singled out North Carolina in a speech made at the National Press Club in Washington. Of all the states, he said, North Carolina offers one of the best chances to pick up seats. State GOP chairman Dave Flaherty says Bill Lacey of the White House political office told him North Carolina has the most hotly contested races of any state in the country and that he was looking for more GOP gain here than anywhere else. The GOP thinks it will win three to five seats here.

Of the state's 11 districts, it appears there will be hard fought battles in seven.

Democratic incumbents Steve Neal in the 5th district, Ike Andrews in the 4th, Charlie Whitley in the 3rd and Bill Hefner in the 8th have aggressive Republican opponents. GOP incumbents Billy Hendon in the 11th and Gene Johnston in the 6th will also be strongly challenged in their bids to hold the seats they won in 1980. In the 2nd, 30-year Democratic veteran L.H. Fountain is retiring. Republican Jack Marin, a former basketball star, is waiting for Tuesday's runoff to see if he'll face Mickey and the belief that North Carolina is a conservative state that is ready to believe that all Democrats are liberals.

In 1980, Republicans blamed the Democrats for the economy and this year Democrats are turning the tables on the Republicans. Flaherty, all along, predicted that the president's plan would be working so well by November that it would help the Republicans. In a recent interview, he didn't mention any expectations of an economic recovery by election day but said polling had shown that North Carolinians were in favor of Reagan's program and willing to wait for it to work.

"Four months ago, we did a poll that showed 67 percent of the people saying they expect 1982 to be a tough year. One thing that comes across in the polls is that President Reagan is more popular here than he is on the national average. Our people are pretty smart. They know you can't make the transition from big spending to cost cutting in one year and not have rough period," Flaherty said.

The campaigns haven't really fired up yet. But, in the Raleigh area, 4th district candidate Bill Cobey and 3rd district candidate Red McDaniel are airing TV ads. Some Democrats find it amusing that the ads are ignoring the economy and speaking more about "character and honesty." It is yet to be seen if that is simply an effort to establish positive name identification or to steer the campaign away from the economy.

Republican optimism here is based on the party's strong showing in 1980, on a wealth of campaign cash, on a viable slate of candidates

NOT MUCH TIME FOR THE REST OF THE PILE!

Vacations Can Be Tough

"This is ridiculous," said Tabash, as he read The New York Times on the beach. "It says here that the toughest time for couples is when they go on vacation. The reason seems to be that the couple is together for an uninterrupted block of time. The husband and wife have fantasies of what it will be like to be together, and many times these fantasies don't come true, so they get angry and pick fights with each other over little things. One doctor in the article calls it 'psychological baggage.'"

Fenton laughed. "Barbara and I don't feel that way." Fenton's wife sat up angrily and said, "My name isn't Barbara. It's Bernice." "Barbara — Bernice, what's the big deal?" Fenton asked. "After 15 years of marriage you could get my name right."

"Now you're getting picky," Fenton said. "Barbara is my secretary, and every once in a while I get them mixed up," he explained to the rest of us.

"It's an honest mistake," I agreed. "A guy can't remember his wife's name ALL the time. That's why I always call mine 'Honey.'"

"What else does the article say?" Fenton wanted to know. Tabash referred to his paper. "People who take vacations are full of guilt.

the shop while you're away. My clients don't pay me to sit on the beach all day long. I notice you call the house-sitters every day."

"That's different. It's my house, and if they don't hear from me daily, they'll think I don't care what they do to the place," Astrid retorted.

Dobler turned to all of us. "I couldn't go on vacation if I didn't check in with the office. One lousy call a day doesn't make you a workaholic."

"You've never known how to take a vacation, because your parents never took one," Astrid said.

"They never had the money to take one," Dobler shouted. "Right now they're stuck in an apartment in Brooklyn all summer. It gives me heartburn every time I think about it."

Astrid said, "I'm not responsible because you're having a guilt trip about your parents."

"Keep reading, Tabash," I told him. "I think you're making our summer."

Tabash said, "The article says they did a study at the University of Minnesota and found more couples fought with each other during the summer than at any other time in the year."

"It figures," I said. "That's when they're stuck with each other's neuroses for the longest period of time."

"What neuroses?" my wife wanted to know.

"I'm not talking about us," I said. "Besides I thought you were sleeping."

She threw a bluefish at me. "What I am supposed to do with this?" I spluttered.

"Stuff it in your psychological baggage."

Your captioned picture on the art page in Sunday's paper of sculptor Tom Miller and his sculpted bust of one Alferd E. Packer was conspicuous mostly by the information which was not provided.

Alferd E. Packer is thought to be the only man in the country ever to be charged with, convicted of and hung for cannibalism. The exact details have faded with time, but it is thought that Alferd found himself in a "him or me" situation one bad winter and opted to dine on his partner.

With tongues planted firmly in cheeks, University of Colorado students named an on-campus restaurant after the enterprising Mr. Packer. Alferd E. Packer, after all, led the way in quick, convenient food procurement, which is the campus grill's stock-in-trade.

I found it refreshing that Colorado state and university officials from Governor Lamm on down participated in the whole affair. Stuffed shirts should be left in the closet more often.

Results Are Worth It

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — There's some good news and some bad news from Muscle Beach this summer.

First, the good news: Fewer 97-lb. weaklings and more Arnold Schwarzenegger types are playing in the sand than ever before. With 46 percent of adult Americans now getting regular exercise — and some 90 million others counting their calories — fewer bathers will be mistaken for beach balls.

In other words, America is getting into training, and the sights are worth seeing. Now, the bad news: The average American is still 18 percent overweight. And that burns most people up.

If these bulletins sound contradictory, that's because they are. While America's obsession with obesity is no secret, few national concerns have received so generous a helping of half-baked, theoretical mishmash about how much we should weigh, how we should diet and why.

Our numerous nutritional experts, of course, have more than a vested interest in feeding America's fears of fatness. In a society willing to dish out some $10 billion annually for weight-control programs, any blubber-burning panacea is worth suggesting.

And, indeed, even a cursory glance at a bookstore's "nutrition and health" shelf reveals how today's diet books read much like "Let's Go, U.S.A."

There's the Scarsdale, the Southampton, the Cambridge, the Beverly Hills and the I Love New York diets. Weightwatching is no longer a simple question of saying "no thanks" to seconds. One could, in fact, easily spend more time and energy choosing a diet than following one.

Admittedly, thanks to this genre, we've learned to distinguish "happy" foods from "sad" foods. We've contemplated the psychology of starch and the meaning of meat, and argued about the safety of eggs and the wisdom of fiber. One thing remains constant: We love to eat, have got to be thin, and will chew on any advice that lets us do both.

A recent poll, for example, asked women which aspect of their lives they'd most like to change, including sexist treatment, low salaries, vulnerability to rape, poverty, illness, wife abuse, pollution or the threat of nuclear war. More than half the respondents answered: "my weight."

Popular magazines, however, only add to the confusion by juxtaposing miracle diets with Betty Crocker ads. With such mixed signals, it's no wonder the failure rate for diets nears 90 percent.

In the fast-paced, success-ridden corridors of Wall Street, even men battle the bulge by carting their own salad dressings to work (when they're not out on three-martini lunches). Thinness, after all — no matter how one gets there — means success and affluence for both sexes. As one nutritionist rhetorically asked our reporter John Riccardi, "How many fat up-and-coming executives have you seen recently?"

The fact that we measure our worth on the bathroom scale is a curious commentary about our values. We could easily become a society that's never looked better, but also one that's never felt worse.

Cigarette smoking, for example, has become a common means for teenage girls to curb their appetites; recent cigarette ads testify to the tobacco industry's awareness of this. Meanwhile, bogus diet pills and food regimens — such as the Beverly Hills and the liquid protein diets — can cause disorders from diarrhea to ketosis in some people, and provide little or no nutrition.

Even more frightening are the eating disorders of anorexia nervosa and bulimia (self-starvation and gorge/purge syndrome) which afflict at least half a million young Americans each year. Consciously denying ourselves food or vomiting a piggy intake are telltale signs of our vulnerability to cultural pressures.

Indeed, while we hope that thinness will make life easier, we may not enjoy the time that's left. Too often we hear of funerals when an observant relative pops up, "Too bad Uncle Bill's dead. He never looked so good."

Strength For Today

HOPE AND PROMISE

What is this thing called life? A man full of health starts to cross a street and is struck by an automobile and killed instantly. One moment he is a living, vibrant human being. The next moment life has departed from him.

Life is divine. We do not know where it comes from; we do not know what its nature is; and no one has ever come back to tell us where life goes when it leaves the body. Even the Bible tells us very little of a specific nature about these questions. But we do know that life is eternal. We know that it is in the hands of a just and loving God. We know that the teachings and ministry, the death, the resurrection, and the ascension of Jesus constitute the divine provision for the continuance of this thing called life in a timeless and glorious realm beyond the grave.

The biblical message regarding life is vibrant with hope and promise. — ELISHA DOUGLASS

IRAs Get Off To Good Start

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A survey of the recent public response to tax-deductible Individual Retirement Accounts suggests a new pool of savings and investment capital is being created, as Congress intended.

The evidence, though not conclusive, may serve to allay fears that individuals would finance IRAs simply by withdrawing funds from other accounts, such as bank savings or stocks.

The survey, by an insurance organization, showed 62 percent of those who opened IRAs in the first three months of the year financed them, at least in part, from regular income. That is, the money was "new."

Some "old" money also was used, but perhaps to a lesser extent than critics had foreseen. Fifteen percent of those eligible said some funds came from passbook savings, and 19 percent said they withdrew funds from money market mutual funds or matured certificates of deposit.

In general, the survey of 3,634 eligible households, by the Life Insurance Marketing and Research Association, which represents most of the large life insurers, showed IRAs gaining more acceptance than had generally been anticipated.

Robert Waldron, spokesman for the American Council of Life Insurance, the life insurers' public relations arm, said the response has been "beyond the most optimistic expectations of vigorous supporters."

IRAs, which allow you to deduct from taxable income up to $2,000 a year in new savings, had been available since 1974 to workers not covered by qualified retirement plans. Under the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, eligibility was extended to any worker under age 70½.

IRAs also offer tax deferrals. Interest, capital gains or dividends accumulate untaxed in IRA accounts. Only as the money is withdrawn in retirement, when tax brackets usually are lower, are taxes assessed.

Despite this, public acceptance of IRAs in the first seven years of their existence was considered disappointing. One insurance industry study found they were utilized by less than 10 percent of those eligible.

Walter Zultowski, economic research director for the Hartford-based marketing and research organization, now estimates that 33 percent of all households eligible to open accounts will do so this year, and that 17 percent already had done so in the first quarter of the year.

Such percentages are beyond most earlier estimates by institutions that stand to gain from IRAs, such as savings and loan associations, banks, insurance companies, mutual funds, stock plans and bond funds.

Almost all savings and investment institutions have developed programs to supervise IRAs, although individuals can create and operate their own programs after gaining approval from regulatory officials.

Among the eligible households surveyed who have or planned to buy an IRA, there was a preference for certificates of deposit. About 29 percent chose CDs. Money market funds accounted for 20 percent, savings accounts 14, and annuities 8 percent.

Self-directed accounts amounted to 9 percent. The remainder had not decided which type of investment to use.

When Congress expanded IRA eligibility to include even those covered by existing pension plans, it sought three things: an increase in savings, development of a new capital pool, and relief for Social Security.

For the time being anyway, the survey suggests strongly that savings and capital are indeed being increased and that, should the trend be maintained, relief for Social Security could be forthcoming.

However, said Zultowski, explanations for the strong acceptance of IRAs in the early months of the year aren't well known, and will be studied in a later survey.

Some probable factors include the existence of high interest rates, publicity about the advantages of reducing taxes, fears about the financial integrity of Social Security and other pension systems, and a more cautious attitude toward personal finances and the future economy.

The unexpectedly strong results of the first three months don't prove the IRA concept will prevail, but they suggest it strongly.

In a perfect world, every one will be rewarded for his good deeds and punished for his mistakes. But life is at best imperfect, so people continue to reap bonanzas from their misdeeds.

Even though the competition was matchpoints, there is little that can be said in favor of South's decision to bid six no trump. At a heart contract, twelve tricks would have been a snap, and it would have served declarer right if East had held the ten of spades instead of dummy, in which case declarer would have had no play for his contract.

As it was, West was end played at trick one. He elected to lead the king of spades — his best shot, since a heart would have pickled his partner's queen, a diamond would have provided an entry to the table, and a club would have done the same. Declarer played low from dummy, captured East's queen with the king and exited with the nine of spades. West won the king, but now he was truly end played in four suits. Declarer made the rest of the tricks with ease.

Note that it would not help East to withhold the queen of spades at the first trick. Declarer wins the nine and he can force an entry to dummy by overtaking the eight of hearts with the nine. If that loses to the queen, the seven of hearts becomes the entry and declarer can discard his low clubs on dummy's diamonds.

It's a pity that West didn't lead the king of spades. That would have made South pay for his mis-bidding. At six hearts, only a spade lead causes declarer any difficulties. Declarer has to win, cash a high heart to see if he is fortunate enough to drop the queen, then cash two high clubs and try to ruff a club to get to dummy. The slam will come home if the clubs are 3-3, or if the player who has two clubs does not have the queen of trumps. Those odds are a lot better than the chances for six no trump!

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A DETECTIVE "WHODUNIT"—IN THE BIBLE?!

YES, INDEED! THE BIBLE IS BELIEVED TO CONTAIN THE WORLD'S TWO OLDEST DETECTIVE STORIES, WRITTEN SOMETIME DURING THE SECOND CENTURY B.C., THEY ARE NOW FOUND IN THE BOOK OF APOCRYPHA AND ARE SMALL MASTERPIECES OF SUSPENSE, PLOT, AND CHARACTERIZATION....EACH TEACHES A MORAL LESSON OF TRUST IN GOD.

"SUSANNA AND THE ELDERS" IS THE TALE OF A YOUNG, BEAUTIFUL WIFE WHO IS LUSTED AFTER BY TWO EVIL JUDGES, CALLED ELDERS. BECAUSE SUSANNA WOULD NOT ACCEPT THEIR OPIOUS ADVANCES THEY FALSELY ACCUSE HER OF ADULTERY WITH AN UNKNOWN MAN—AN OFFENSE PUNISHABLE BY DEATH! FORTUNATELY, DANIEL, HE OF THE LION'S DEN FAME, SUSPECTS THE TWO ELDERS AND, BY SOME GOOD DEDUCTION AND SOME VERY CLEVER QUESTIONING, TRICKS THE TWO ELDERS INTO EXPOSING THEIR OWN FALSE ACCUSATIONS OF SUSANNA. THUS, AN INNOCENT VICTIM IS SAVED FROM DEATH IN TRUE DETECTIVE STORY STYLE! HOW DANIEL DID ALL THIS IS IN THE APOCRYPHA AND IF YOUR OWN BIBLE DOESN'T HAVE IT, JUST RUN UP TO THE ATTIC AND DUST OFF GREAT-GRANDMA'S FAMILY BIBLE—ALL THE OLD-TIME BIBLES INCLUDED THE APOCRYPHA—AND IT'S MORE FUN TO READ THIS EXCITING TALE RIGHT OUT OF THE BOOK ITSELF—YOU'LL SURELY AGREE DANIEL HANDLED THE CASE JUST AS ABLY AS THE GREAT SHERLOCK HOLMES WOULD HAVE!

NEXT WEEK: THE OTHER OLDEST DETECTIVE STORY!

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd to Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Religious Network Is Supporting Draft Resisters

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

One by one, the resisters to draft registration are facing charges for it. But they're not alone. Behind them is a national religious network offering moral — and sometimes financial-legal — support.

At local, regional and national levels, many religious bodies in the last two years have set up counseling services for young men concerning draft registration and their consciences.

"Nearly every major denomination has people working on it," says Charles Maresca, a Roman Catholic and associate director of the National Interreligious Service Board for Conscientious Objectors.

"More and more individual churches, dioceses and other regional units are involved in it. It's bigger than it was in the Vietnam War and growing every month."

The government in mid-1980 ordered registration of young men, 18 to 20, for military draft, although not instituting conscription itself. An estimated 570,000 have failed to register.

Many have stated their refusal openly for reasons of conscience in letters to Selective Service administrators. This summer, federal prosecutors began obtaining indictments.

"I am a non-registrant in order to be faithful to my God, my conscience and my church," says Enten Eller, a student at Virginia's Bridgewater College, indicted last week by a federal grand jury in Roanoke, Va.

A straight-A physics major, Eller of La Verne, Calif., belongs to the Church of the Brethren, one of three historic "peace" churches which uphold pacifism. The other two are the Quakers and the Mennonites.

However, more than 50 denominations, including Roman Catholicism and major Protestant and Jewish bodies, are represented on the interreligious board of Washington, D.C., that backs rights of conscience regarding draft registration.

Leaders of some of the religious bodies have opposed registration itself, while others have supported it, but in either case they uphold individual conscience about it.

It's a "matter of conscience" and personal "moral decision," says the board's guidelines for counseling. Those who feel unable to register are advised to document their beliefs and reasons for it. Conscientious objectors who do register are advised to cite their position on registration cards.

Some denominations, such as the United Church of Christ and Southern Baptists, have invited such conscientious objectors to notify denominational offices of their position so it will be on record.

For that purpose, Roman Catholic Bishop James W. Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, set up a documentation center there.

Selective Service says it has turned over a list of 225 resisters to registration to the Justice Department for possible prosecution.

The first federal indictment came June 30 in San Diego, Calif., against Benjamin

H. Sasway, a Humboldt State College student. He, like Eller, was charged with "knowingly and willfully" evading registration.

Conviction carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Sasway says draft registration "increases the likelihood of war" and his refusal to register was a protest against "reckless militarism."

Before the indictments began, the government had tried public appeals, post-card reminders, extended periods of grace and warning letters from federal attorneys to those who had sent notices of refusal.

"There's a lot of psychological pressures," says Chuck Epp of Henderson, Neb. But Thomas Charles of the Mennonites' Goshen College in Indiana where groups work closely with non-registrants, says the church ties ease any sense of isolation.

While the relatively small "peace" churches have taken the lead in providing for bail funds and legal defense of non-registrants when needed, larger denominations also have units handling the matter.

Robert McClean of the United Methodist department of peace and world order, says it has designated an "emergency fund" for such cases, and adds:

"Should there be mass prosecutions, the agency would solicit extra money."

Pax Christi, a Roman Catholic peace organization including many bishops among its members, says it has compiled a list of attorneys ready for use in such cases.

Religion Roundup

Backs Prayer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Greek Orthodox Church of the Americas backs a proposed constitutional amendment permitting prayer in the public schools.

The biennial clergy-laity congress of the 2 million-member denomination last week also endorsed proposed legislation for tax credits for tuition paid to non-public schools.

The five-day congress, which adopted a record $10 million budget for 1983, also urged a reversal of the arms race and a U.S. Soviet "mutual freeze" on nuclear arms, calling them a threat to humanity.

Delegates condemned Israel's invasion of Lebanon as a "crime against humanity," denounced Turkish occupation of Cyprus and appealed for an end to "devastating restraints, restrictions and harassments imposed by Turkey" on the Ecumenical Patriarchate of Eastern Orthodoxy in Istanbul.

Applause

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Jewish Committee has applauded the designation of Cincinnati's Roman Catholic Archbishop Joseph Bernardin to head the Archdiocese of Chicago, the nation's largest.

Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, the committee's interreligious affairs director, praised Bernardin's "history of friendship and constructive cooperation with the Jewish community."

Bishop Dies

LONDON, England (AP) — On the way to a meeting last week to decide what to do about defeat of a plan to link four British denominations, Anglican Bishop David Brown, who had spearheaded the unifying efforts, collapsed and died.

Brown, 60, whose church's bishops and laity had approved the plan but whose clergy had scuttled it by failing to give it the required two-thirds majority, had been keenly disappointed at the outcome.

The planning council, which also included Methodist, Reformed and Moravian representatives, met after Brown's death and issued a statement saying "the search for unity will continue."

Brotherhood

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Delegates at a Baptist World Alliance meeting burst into spontaneous choruses of "Alleluia" after Argentine and British Baptist leaders clasped hands and voiced support of going ahead with plans for an international Baptist youth meeting in Argentina.

A committee had recommended postponement to allow tensions from the Falklands war to ease, but the meeting affirmed the original 1983 schedule after Britain's Bernard Green and Argentina's Samuel Libert both advocated it. They expressed mutual trust and love between Christians of the two countries, recently at war.

Praises Strength

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A group of Lutheran leaders, returning from a visit to East Germany, praised the strength of churches there.

Bishop James R. Crumley of the Lutheran Church in America says East German churches promote peace as an "imperative of the Gospel" while the government position is that "socialism is peace."

He notes that the government recently warned church youths against wearing a peace patch quoting a Bible prophet, "swords into ploughshares," but the churches backed the youths.

Eisenhower College Closing

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Eisenhower College, founded in 1965 by friends and former colleagues of President Dwight Eisenhower, is closing its doors.

The school, operated since 1979 as one of 10 colleges of the Rochester Institute of Technology, has lost $5.7 million in the past three years, RIT officials said Thursday.

The decision means that the 484 students and 330 employees who planned to return to the four-year liberal arts college this fall will have to go elsewhere. The college has no summer classes.

RIT Chairman Frank M. Hutchins and President M. Richard Rose told a news conference the shutdown of Eisenhower resulted from "a declining pool of college-age students, cutbacks in federal aid and the inability to attract sufficient financial support."

Eisenhower opened its doors in September 1968 with 304 students. The 286-acre campus, which overlooks Cayuga Lake in upstate New York's scenic Finger Lakes country, was designed for 1,100 students but the enrollment stayed below 600 in recent years.

SOUTHERN BEAUTY — A front porch with rocking chairs and flowers all around is a Southern tradition still going strong. The cheerful combination of a gleaming white porch and colorful pots and baskets of green and flowering plants shown here is at the home of flower-loving Laura Farnes, a 92-year old resident of Greenville. Her choice of porch flowers include several colors of geraniums, begonias, different varieties of ferns and multicolored coleus. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

State Is Really A Great Escape

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State tourism officials have been pushing North Carolina as a great place to escape to, but federal prison authorities in California didn't want one of their inmates to get that notion.

Federal prison officials said they rejected the contents of an envelope mailed by the North Carolina Commerce Department to an inmate at the U.S. Penitentiary at Lompoc, Calif.

The contents? A North Carolina road map and a guide to campgrounds in the state.

The reason? It might aid in an escape, said T.R. Kindt, acting warden at penitentiary.

"The possession of such items by inmates creates a threat to the security, good order, and discipline of this facility," Kindt said.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Steve Meehan said the envelope was mailed after inmate D.J. Talbert apparently wrote to the department to ask for the map and camping guide. The state advertises North Carolina vacations in national magazines, but Meehan said none mention the camping booklet.

"We've always called a vacation in North Carolina a great escape," said Meehan. "Perhaps he heard about that."

Gary Roberts, a paralegal specialist at the Lompoc penitentiary, said Talbert was from California and was serving a life sentence for a conviction of murder on a government reservation. He was sentenced Sept. 14, 1981.

Kindt, in a telephone interview, said it was fairly unusual for prison officials to reject correspondence with inmates, but that detailed maps are usually rejected.

Meehan said the state did not plan to appeal the matter, and was optimistic that perhaps the mailing would still bring some tourists to the state.

"I believe they kept the map," Meehan said. "Perhaps the warden will come visit us."

WOMEN'S DAY

Women's Day will be observed at 11 a.m. Sunday at St. Peter Missionary Baptist Church, Route 5, Greenville. Eldress Shirley Daniel will be the guest speaker.

Actor Killed In Accident

CASTAIC, Calif. (AP) - Actor Vic Morrow, the star of TV's old "Combat" series, and two Vietnamese children were killed early today when a helicopter crashed during filming of a Vietnam War scene for a TV show, authorities said.

Five other people were injured when the helicopter carrying a camera crew was hit by debris from simulated warfare and crashed into the outdoor desert set where a revival of the "Twilight Zone" television series was being filmed, Los Angeles County Fire Inspector DeWitt Morgan said.

Morrow, 51, who also played the opposing coach in the movie "The Bad News Bears," and two children he was carrying on the ground died when the main rotor hit them, a county fire official said.

The crash occurred about 2:30 a.m. in Indian Dunes Park, a privately owned desert park 50 miles north of Los Angeles which is mainly used for motorcycle racing.

The injured, some hurt in the crash and others suffering shock, were taken to Henry Mayo Newhall Memorial Hospital about 10 miles north of the scene.

All were able to walk to ambulances, Sheriff's Sgt. Curby Wigham said.

Morgan said about 100 people had been working at the park for several days on the four-part "Twilight Zone" revival. The current shooting involved a set made to resemble a Vietnamese village, he said.

"There was a river and a village along a bluff being involved in war," Morgan said. "They were going to have a helicopter doing rockets or bombs, explosions and fireballs. The debris from one explosion hit the tail rotor and the helicopter landed in the river."

Morgan said the three actors were struck by the helicopter's main rotor as they were filmed running from the village in a closing scene. The man carried the pre-teen children in his arms.

The inspector said he had been at the park for Wednesday night's filming and "everything was done professionally."

"They were doing everything just right," Morgan said. "They just had an accident. I kick myself that I wasn't there because I might have been able to help."

The injured included the pilot, Darcy Wingo of Rialto, 35, who was listed in fair condition with a cut hand and injured neck, camera operator Roger Smith of Canyon Country, 46, in fair condition with leg and neck injuries, and two men in good condition with unspecified minor injuries, production manager Danny Ailingham, 37, of Los Angeles, and Randal Robinson, 35, of Seal Beach, said Fred Matthews, the Newhall Memorial Hospital spokesman.

He said all but Smith had been treated and released today, and he expected Smith to be released as well.

Wigham said the Bell helicopter was in one piece, but "it looks like a total loss."

Haitians To Gain Freedom

MIAMI (AP) - Immigration officials said they would release up to 10 Haitians today from a Miami refugee camp, the first refugees to be released under a federal judge's order.

"The first group of up to 10 Haitians will be released this afternoon" at 3 p.m., said U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service spokeswoman Beverly McFarland. "We have received confirmation from the voluntary organizations involved that they have found sponsors for up to 10 detainees."

The Haitians were being held at the Krome Avenue Detention Center southwest of Miami, near the Everglades.

Other refugees are being held in federal compounds in West Virginia, Texas, New York, Kentucky and Puerto Rico. Some have been interned for as long as 15 months.

Earlier, the head of a court-appointed committee to oversee the release of the 1,800 detained Haitians had predicted that some of the Caribbean refugees would be freed within the next few days.

"We're hopeful that the process will commence working (today) or Saturday," said Chesterfield Smith said after government attorneys, lawyers for the Haitians and representatives of volunteer agencies met Thursday.

Smith, a former president of the American Bar Association, was appointed by U.S. District Court Judge Eugene P. Spellman to arrange the release of the Haitians under the judge's June 29 plan.

The Haitians had been imprisoned pending individual hearings to determine whether they were political refugees eligible for asylum as they claimed or whether they were simply in search of jobs and economic betterment as the government claimed.

Spellman did not rule on the refugee issue, saying only that the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service had used improper procedures in detaining them and that the Haitians should be released until the hearings were conducted.

Smith said differences between volunteer agencies and government attorneys appeared to be resolved. The biggest sticking point has been over who will pick up the tab for resettlement - the respective agencies or the federal government.

Smith did not specify how that had been settled, but did say the volunteer agencies agreed to proceed with resettlement plans.

Hijacked Plane Returns

MIAMI (AP) - An Air Florida commuter flight with 10 people aboard arrived safely in Key West early today from Havana, where it spent about four hours on the ground after being hijacked by two men, the Federal Aviation Administration said.

The hijackers were being held by Cuban authorities, said Air Florida spokeswoman Robin Cohn. She said the twin-engine Martin 404 touched down in Key West at 2:06 a.m. EDT with the remaining seven passengers and three crew members. No injuries were reported.

Those aboard were to be questioned by FBI agents in Key West today before their release, an FAA spokesman said.

The plane, leased from Marco Islands Airways Inc., was commandeered in the air about 20 minutes after takeoff from Miami Thursday night and 60 miles north of Key West, said Jack Barker, an FAA spokesman in Atlanta.

Two male hijackers, who were not identified, ordered the flight to Havana at 8:26 p.m. It landed at Havana's Jose Marti International Airport at 9:27 p.m., Barker said.

After a four-hour layover, the plane took off from Havana at 1:15 a.m. today, arriving 51 minutes later at Key West International Airport, Ms. Cohn said.

Barker said there were reports the hijackers threatened the crew with "some sort of gas containers and a (cigarette) lighter." But he added that little information would be available until after today's FBI "debriefing" of passengers and crew.

"They're (the crew) usually so busy worrying about the hijacking that they don't tell anyone on the ground what's going on," Barker said. "We'll know more ... after the FBI debriefing."

It was the second hijacking of a Miami-to-Key West Air Florida flight this year and the third U.S. hijacking in 1982, officials said.

In the previous Air Florida hijacking, a Feb. 2 flight carrying 72 passengers was forced to Havana by a lone Latin man carrying a bottle of gasoline.

On April 4, a Delta Air Lines flight from Chicago to Miami carrying 103 people was hijacked to Havana by two men.

There have been two aborted hijackings this year - one on Feb. 16 when an alert Air Florida flight attendant slammed the door of Flight 34 in the face of a would-be hijacker, who was later charged with attempted first-degree murder, attempted air piracy and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony.

On March 1, passengers on United Airlines Flight 674 that had landed in Miami put on a charade to convince a would-be hijacker that the plane actually was in Cuba. A burly auto racer then bowled over the man. Arrested was Guillermo Lazaro Mayor Diaz, 23, who was charged by the FBI with attempted air piracy of the Chicago-to-Miami flight.

City Police List Arrests

Greenville police, during the second quarter of 1982 - the months of April, May and June - answered 2,177 calls and made a total of 1,680 arrests.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the arrests included 84 for assault, 66 for larceny, 23 for burglary, 15 for drug law violations, 71 for driving under the influence and 422 for other traffic law violations.

The chief noted that 2,284 complaints were filed during the three-month period, which saw police vehicles travel 144,697 miles in responding to the complaints and conducting routine patrols.

During the period, Cannon said, the value of property stolen amounted to $214,237, while property recovered amounted to $38,003.

Cannon, citing increases in the crime rate in Greenville this year, said a special four-man tactical squad has been placed into service "to concentrate on break-ins" and to assist the department's detective and uniformed divisions in follow-up investigations.

He added that an additional 10 officers have been reassigned to the department's 4 p.m. to midnight and midnight to 8 a.m. shifts.

HOLY MISSION
The Rev. Melvin Sutton and the Mass Choir will lead a Friday 8 p.m. service at Holy Mission here.

Quarterly meeting will begin Saturday, with holy communion at 8 p.m. led by Quincey Gardner. Following morning worship Sunday, dinner will be served at 2 p.m. At 3 p.m. the Rev. James Corbett and the Community Church will render services.

Israelies Continue Bombing

By The Associated Press
Israeli warplanes dived bombed guerrilla-held west Beirut for the second day today, concentrating on PLO positions on the edge of the Beirut-Jarajneh refugee camp near the paralyzed international airport.

Associated Press correspondent Terry Anderson reporting from Yasser Arafat's administrative nerve center in west Beirut's Fakhani neighborhood said at least three bombs were dropped near the area.

"Barrage after barrage of anti-aircraft fire was sent into the sky and the planes came in low and slow," Anderson reported.

The Tel Aviv command said its jets attacked Palestinian tanks and artillery positions near the airport and the Sabra quarter, a Palestinian neighborhood on the Mediterranean coast.

It said the attack began at about 1 p.m. (7 a.m. EDT) and ended 90 minutes later.

Pitchers Lead Pitt County Into Area I Title Series

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Pitt County has tested the ancient baseball adage this season that a team never has enough pitchers.

Tested, but never erased — despite a five-man staff that features a pair of all-state pitchers from Greenville Rose and three left-handers with a varied array of pitches.

It is this group that is the backbone of Post 39, and it is this group that will determine in large measure whether Pitt County can defeat Garner in the American Legion Area I finals.

"There's no way we could have gotten as far as we have if we hadn't gotten the pitching performance we have," Pitt County coach Billy Davis said. "We wouldn't be where we are today without it."

THE PITCHERS

Pitt County's five-man pitching staff will have a lot to say about how the team's upcoming series with Garner for the Area I title comes out. The pitchers are: (l to r) Roger Williams, Gordon Douglas, Tyrone Gay, Scott Galloway and Mike Kinley. (Reflector photos)

Pitt County had stumbled to 6-5 that the team began to turn itself around.

"We knew we were better than that," said Gay, the quietest of the five pitchers.

Galloway agreed. "You look around at what we've got and I just figured it was just a little time before we came together. I wasn't worried about it."

Pitt County went on to win its next 14 games and takes that streak into the series opener against Garner tonight.

It is, if the sentiments of the five pitchers are any gauge, a series Pitt County vitally wants to win.

"You hear the fans (during the Rose games) saying how we choke and how we can't win the big game," Kinley said. "We want to prove them wrong. We want to go somewhere."

Davis will start right-hander Roger Williams tonight when Pitt County faces Garner in the opening game of the best-of-seven series for the Area I title. Either Greg Harrington or Don Jones, both of whom are right-handers, will go for Garner.

Williams comes into the game with a 4-0 record and has a 1.64 ERA — best on the team. He has struck out 54 and walked 22 in 44 innings. Harrington is at 6-1 with a 3.41. Jones is 3-2 with a 0.78 ERA.

Few games have gone by this season that Davis has not touched on his club's pitching depth. Now, with his team set to begin its first seven-game series, Davis is far from believing he has too much pitching.

"No, you never have too much pitching," he said.

Williams is listed as the top starter for Post 39, but is only one of three principle starters on the team. The other two are Gordon Douglas and Tyrone Gay.

Douglas, who combined with Williams to pitch Rose to an undefeated regular season, is 4-2 this season with a 2.61 ERA. Both Douglas and Williams were named to the Greensboro Daily News & Record all-state squad and will attend UNC-Chapel Hill in the fall on baseball scholarships.

Gay, a junior left-hander from Ayden-Grifton, is the staff's top winner with six victories in seven decisions. Gay also leads the team in strike outs with 78 in 50 innings.

Two other pitchers — both left-handers — complete the five-man staff. Scott Galloway, who pitched for Rose two years ago and for Lenoir Community College this past season, is 1-2 with a 5.16 ERA.

Mike Kinley, a 16-year-old who pitched for the Rose junior varsity this year, is 3-0 with a 2.38 ERA. Both Kinley and Galloway are used mainly in relief but one will probably start Monday night in the fourth game.

"I think we've got a real good pitching staff," Douglas said. "We've had some sore arms and injuries, but someone's always been able to come in."

Added Williams: "That's been a real advantage. We know that if one of us gets tired there's someone of good quality who can come in."

The high school baseball season was late ending for Williams, Douglas and Kinley, not coming to an end until Rose lost to Eastern Wayne in the Eastern 4-A Finals.

Within days following the defeat, however, the three were suited up and playing for Pitt County, having barely had 24 or 48 hours to get over the disappointing loss.

"It was definitely tough," Douglas said. "I think we had a day to rest before we started playing (for Pitt County)."

Pitt County won its first three games, but most of the players, the majority of whom played for Rose, were still trying to erase their season-ending loss. It was not until

"We were all a little uptight during the regular season, but now we've got a chance to win the state title," Williams added.

Douglas looks at the series with Garner realizing a loss is not the end. "The games we played at Rose were different. It was do-or-die at the end of the season."

"Here, you can lose three games and still win. That helps you stay loose."

Pitt Co. Coach Davis Pleased With Team's Five-Man Staff

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Pitt County coach Billy Davis, himself a pitcher at East Carolina a few years back, was asked to evaluate each member of his five-man pitching staff. Among his comments were:

•Roger Williams — "He's a fierce and tough competitor. He's tough mentally and physically. I think he's mentally tough throughout the entire game. A lot of people have the physical ability but pitching is just as much mental as physical."

"He has a good fast ball and a good curve and he's working on a slider. He has a lot of confidence in his curve and will throw it any time. The one thing he needs to work on is a change up."

•Gordon Douglas — "I think he has a lot of potential. He's got all the tools to make a good pitcher. He's got a good fastball that runs in to right-handed batters."

"His fastball probably runs more than any other (pitcher) on the team. He's got a good curve, too."

•Tyrone Gay — "He's got good velocity and he's throwing the ball right now as well as anybody on the team. He's got a good curve and fastball and he has been working on a knuckleball, but he doesn't throw it that much."

"He, like all the pitchers (on the staff), need to develop a change up. I think that's a pitch that is overlooked by a lot of pitchers."

•Scott Galloway — "He doesn't have the fast ball the other three have so he has to rely on location a lot. He's got a knuckleball and he also changes speeds on his curve."

"He's got good control. He compliments (the) good fastball pitchers we've got. He definitely gives teams a different look."

•Mike Kinley — "He's only 16 years old and this is his first year in Legion ball. He's got a lot of potential."

"He's got a decent fastball, and I think being around Roger and Gordon and Tyrone this past season is gonna help him. He's really not a location pitcher, but he's not (just a thrower) either. He throws strikes."

Louganis Returning To Form

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Even with a sometimes-painful shoulder, Greg Louganis is quickly returning to form as the premier diver in the United States and, possibly, the world.

"Hopefully, my peak will come in 1984 (for the Olympics)," Louganis said after easily winning the gold medal in the men's 3-meter springboard competition Thursday night in the U.S. Olympic Committee's National Sports Festival. "But I'm just thankful to be back, and getting back into form."

This year's Sports Festival, for which formal opening ceremonies will be held to-night, marks the first major competition for Louganis since January, when he suffered an injury to his left shoulder.

The injury has not completely healed and Louganis is still bothered by painful bone chips in the shoulder.

The next test for Louganis, 22, was today's 10-meter platform preliminaries. Megan Neyer, 20, won the women's springboard title Thursday night.

The men's and women's platform diving preliminaries were the only events on today's Festival calendar.

Louganis and Neyer, are teammates at the Mission Viejo, Calif., Nadadores swim club, along with 3-meter silver-medalists Ron Merriott, 22, of Ypsilanti, Mich., and Chris Seufert, 25, of Ann Arbor, Mich. They will represent the U.S. in the springboard competition at the world championships in Ecuador, beginning next Wednesday.

"This meet helps my confidence," said Louganis, who totaled 702 points. His best effort was on the eighth of his 11 dives, a one-and-a-half reverse somersault for which four of the seven judges gave him a perfect 10.0, two gave him 9.5 and one gave him a 9.0.

"Sometimes, you know it's a good dive when you hit the water. Sometimes it never hits you," he said. "I knew I hit the takeoff perfect, and when I came out of the water, I heard the crowd and figured I had hit it pretty good," said the three-time NCAA diving champion from the University of California-Irvine.

Louganis, the 1979 Sports Festival springboard champion, also won the platform title in the last world diving championships in West Berlin in 1978. He said the United States' chief competition in the upcoming world championships should come from China.

"But in the springboard, we have our best team ever, I think. We do a rush job of picking our teams, but it's to our advantage because we stay at our peak."

Merriott, a recent graduate of the University of Michigan, got 655.26 points for second. Mark Bradshaw, 20, a junior at Ohio State, was third at 644.58 points.

NFL TALKS

Garvey: Owners Won't Risk Losing Television Dollars

WASHINGTON (AP) — National Football League club owners, in the opinion of Players Association chief Ed Garvey, will not risk losing television revenue by locking out the players.

As the two sides prepared to continue their non-productive contract negotiations today, talk persisted that the owners will create a lockout if no agreement has been reached as the Sept. 12 season opens draw near.

Garvey, commenting on that Thursday said, "I don't think they will ever call a lockout."

"Once they do that, they know the players can strike. I don't see a lockout as an effective tool, only a good threat. They would risk their TV package."

Asked about a report that more than half the owners want to lock the players out before the start of the season, management's chief negotiator, Jack Donlan, director of the NFL Management Council, said, "I haven't polled the owners. My only comment is 'no comment.'"

"The last time I talked to the owners there were some who favored a lockout and some who didn't. There were others who were wary of what happened in baseball last year."

"That is an issue we will have to address before we open the season."

At Thursday's session, the first in a week, the union once again proposed a joint drug counseling and rehabilitation program with the owners. And, management was expected to once again reject the plan, which would be in keeping with the tone of the talks until now.

After the latest five-hour meeting, both sides agreed that there was no agreement on any of the issues, except that each had submitted proposals which the other had agreed to study.

The players presented a proposal dealing with drug counseling that the management council, representing the owners, had rejected at last week's meetings in New York.

Under the plan, the union calls for a program administered jointly by union and management to provide counseling assistance for players with a variety of personal problems, including those dealing with finances, divorce, death, drugs, injury and legal concerns.

A third party, with no relationship to any club or the league, would oversee the program.

Garvey said, "Drug testing (Please turn to page 11)

The season has been one of learning — more for some than for others — for the five pitchers.

Douglas, Williams and Gay were members of the Pitt County team a year ago and knew what to expect. Still, like Galloway and Kinley, all five have worked to improve their pitching.

"I've worked on my curveball and tried to develop a change up," Douglas said. "I used to have a good curve but I've had to get the mechanics down again."

Said Williams: "I've worked hard on a change up and I throw it a lot during practice but I don't throw it much during the game. My last warmup pitch is a change up. I don't know why, I've just always done that."

Kinley, because of his youth and legion inexperience, has probably learned more than any of the five.

"I was real nervous my first game," Kinley said. "I was shaking. I think I've gotten a lot smarter. I've learned how to pitch around a batter instead and not just trying to blow it by them."

Kinley also said he has worked on his pickoff move. "I didn't have a good pickoff move to begin with, but I've worked on it and I think I've got a pretty good one now."

NOTES...

Gay will start Saturday night's game...He will chart the pitches Williams throws during tonight's game and will be able to use that when he takes the mound...

"I know I'll need to keep the ball low," Gay said. "It'll help me to keep the chart. I'll know a little more about them."

Gay will be opposed by whomever does not start tonight, either Harrington or Jones...

Douglas will be on the mound Sunday...

N.C. State's LB To Miss Season With Leg Injury

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State linebacker Sam Key, the Wolfpack's second leading tackler in 1981, will miss the 1982 season due to complications from a leg injury received last spring, school officials said Thursday.

Key broke a bone in his lower left leg during N.C. State's spring football game in April. He underwent surgery the following day.

His rehabilitation seemed to be progressing well when a routine examination revealed an inflammation at the point of incision. X-rays indicated that one of the screws used to hold a metal plate in place had slipped, necessitating further surgery.

19-Year-Old 1st Double-Winner At Swim Trials

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (AP) — Handicappers would have had trouble picking the first double winner of the U.S. Swimming World Championship trials.

Now they know it's Bruce Hayes, a 19-year-old from Mission Viejo who won the men's 400-meter individual medley earlier and Thursday night added the 400 freestyle.

In the 400 IM, he beat world record holder Jesse Vassallo, among others, and in the freestyle his victims included Jeff Float, who in 1981 defeated Soviet world record-holder Vladimir Salnikov.

"This is the first time I've been a double winner in any national meet," said Hayes. "I think I can go out faster at Ecuador, but I don't know if I can beat Salnikov."

The first two finishers in the U.S. meet qualify for the World Championships at Guayaquil, Ecuador, July 29 through Aug. 8.

Hayes won the 400 in 3:53.19 with George DiCarlo of Tucson, Ariz., second in 3:54.17.

Mary T. Meagher of Louisville was an odds-on bet and won easily in the 100 butterfly in which she holds the world record.

Meagher, 17, swam 59.44 and is the only American in addition to Tracy Caulkins who has swum under a minute.

"This was my third best time," she said. "I wanted to swim faster but I got a bad start. My heels were down when I should have been leaning forward."

"I'm very excited about going to Ecuador. I swim better when I'm nervous and tense, so I'll be ready to go in Ecuador."

Second to Mary T. was Melanie Buddemeyer of Pittsburgh at 1:01.31.

Other winners on Thursday night at the Mission Viejo International Swim Complex were John Moffet, 17, of Costa Mesa, Calif., with 2:17.99 in the 200 breaststroke, and Kim Rhodenbaugh, 16, of Cincinnati, with 1:11.04 in the women's 100 breaststroke.

Childs already had won the 200 breaststroke with an American record and said, "I was hoping for either a first or second in the 100. Winning the 200 took off a lot of pressure and added a lot of excitement."

Today's events, with preliminaries in the morning and finals in the evening at the 50-meter pool are:

Women's 200 individual medley and 800 freestyle and men's 200 butterfly and 100 backstroke. Also there will be qualifying for the men's 1,500 freestyle, with its finals on closing night Saturday.

Abreast Of Things

Steve Lundquist, world record holder in the men's 100-meter breaststroke, swims to the finish of the 200-meter breaststroke Thursday during the U.S. Swimming World Championship trials. (AP Laserphoto)

Moffet swam the best time of his career in the 200 breaststroke.

"I felt really good and I could have come home even stronger."

Moffet had finished second in the 100 breaststroke behind Steve Lundquist.

Lundquist, who on Monday set a world record of 1:02.62 in the 100 breaststroke, led the 200 most of the way.

Then he weakened and was passed by both Moffet and Mills.

Moffet said that despite Lundquist's record he felt "Mills was the toughest competition. He's always there when it counts."

Lietzke's 65 Leads Classic

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — It was a good start for Bruce Lietzke, a pace-setting 6-under-par 65 in the first round of the $350,000 Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic.

But Lietzke, in a slump all season long, emphasized that it was only that — a start.

"I need a few more days, a few more tournaments, like that before I can declare myself fit for the Tour," Lietzke said Thursday.

That is, perhaps, an unfairly harsh self-appraisal. He has, after all, won $92,000 this season and ranks 29th on the year's money-winning list.

But that hardly approaches the lofty levels the long-hitting Lietzke has established over the past five seasons.

He's won at least once in each of those years, hasn't finished lower than 18th on the money-winning list and last year picked off three titles, $343,446 in winnings and was in the chase for the money-winning title until the last event of the season.

This year, however, his best finish has been fourth at the Tournament Players Championship. And, he's missed the cut in three of his last four starts, including both the U.S. and British Opens.

Carner's 'Entertaining' 69 Atop U.S. Women's Open

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Although there was plenty of noise around the course, JoAnne Carner created her own distractions, with off-target shots, in the first round of the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

"If you followed me, you weren't bored," said Carner, who shot a thoroughly entertaining 3-under-par 69, good for the tournament lead, before a large gallery Thursday.

Carner and the other players had no complaints about crowd behavior on the 6,342-yard Del Paso Country Club course. It was the din caused by automobile traffic on busy streets near the course and by airplanes flying overhead that had some heads buzzing during the opening round, which ended with the temperature in the 90s.

"This is the loudest golf course I've ever played on, but the planes weren't too bad today," said 39-year-old Sandra Haynie, whose 70 placed her in a four-way tie for second behind Carner, 43.

Donna White, also at 70, said, "I almost saw two accidents on the street. But once I'm over the ball, it's hard to distract me. I feel like I'm in a phone booth."

Also at 70 were Janet Alex and Vicki Tabor. Opening with 1-under 71s were Sally Little, Beth Daniel, Lynn Adams and 21-year-old amateur Dana Howe. Only 11 golfers in the 150-player field were at par or better.

"The noise was loud and the rough was high," said Carner, who found the rough with several of her errant shots from Del Paso's fairways.

"I finally got my putter figured out, and then I couldn't hit a green. I didn't hit many, anyway," she said. "I counted my putts, just 24 of them."

From the tees, she added, "I drove the ball absolutely perfect."

But from the fairways, her bad shots included one that went out of bounds and led to a double-bogey 6 at the fourth hole. She grabbed the lead by posting a 3-under 32 on the back nine, with birdies at the 12th, 17th and 18th holes.

"I had to scramble for pars at 14 and 15," added the two-time U.S. Open champ, who made a 10-foot putt at the 14th and a seven-footer at the next hole.

"I didn't expect to score that well. This is an awfully difficult course," Carner said. "I anticipated that 4-under for the tournament would be good enough to win."

'Little Poison' Dead At Age 76

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lloyd Waner, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, used to say his nickname — "Little Poison" — had nothing to do with his playing skills.

Instead, he claimed, he and his Hall of Fame brother, Paul — called "Big Poison" — got their labels from a New York sportswriter who said they were "a big person and a little person."

Lloyd Waner, who hit 316 during his career and roamed the Pittsburgh Pirates outfield with his brother from 1927 to 1940, died Thursday in Presbyterian Hospital. He was 76 and died of complications related to emphysema.

Lloyd, elected to the Hall of Fame in 1967, had 2,459 career hits in 18 seasons. He was one of the best leadoff hitters of his time with exceptional speed and a good eye at the plate.

Waner struck out only 173 times in his career. He also had a total of 28 home runs.

"Lloyd never hit many home runs, but he hit a jillion doubles and triples," said Carl Hubbell, a Hall of Fame pitcher with the New York Giants during Waner's heyday.

Paul Waner, who hit .333 in 20 seasons, died in 1965.

Only one other brother combination, George and Harry Wright — who made their marks in the late 1800's — was ever elected to the Hall of Fame.

Lloyd joined the club in 1927 and set a then-major league record that year with 223 hits, while batting .355. The Pirates lost the World Series that season to the "Murderer's Row" attack of the New York Yankees. That was the only World Series appearance for either Waner.

Waner was traded to the Boston Braves early in the 1941 season and later played for the Cincinnati Reds, Philadelphia Phillies and Brooklyn Dodgers before rejoining Pittsburgh, where he was primarily a pinch-hitter in 1944 and 1945.

Al Lopez, who once roomed with Lloyd Waner and later became a Hall of Fame manager, said Thursday that "infielders would have to play him differently. He had unbelievable speed for those days."

"I don't know if he was the reason why, but soon after he came up, you started hearing about teams looking for fast ballplayers."

"Lloyd was just a fine individual and an outstanding ballplayer," said Frank Gustine, a Pirates infielder who played with the Waners. "He and his brother were just good Oklahoma boys."

"He had great eyesight. He said the ball looked bigger to him than it was," Gustine said in Pittsburgh Thursday.

Waner was a Pirates scout from 1946 to 1949, and scouted for the Baltimore Orioles in 1955.

He worked as a field clerk with the Oklahoma City government from 1950 until 1967.

Waner is survived by his wife, Francis; a daughter, Lydia Freeman; a son, Lloyd Jr., of Oklahoma City, and five grandchildren.

Funeral services were scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday.

At Federation Cup

U.S. Advances To Quarterfinals

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Nationalities don't count for much in the tennis world these days, even at a nationalistic event like the Federation Cup.

Martina Navratilova, a native Czechoslovakian playing for the U.S., beat Heliane Steden, a German representing Mexico, to help America win 3-0 and advance to the quarterfinals last night.

Brazil, which plays the U.S. tonight, had to beat Hong Kong's Nancy Spelman, who hails from Oklahoma.

Bettina Bunge, born in Switzerland, reared in Peru and now a resident of Florida, plays for the Germans today against the Swiss.

Australia, which meets the Soviet Union tonight, is led by Evonne Goolagong, who lives all year in Hilton Head, S.C.

Great Britain, going against Czechoslovakia, has Virginia Wade, who grew up in South Africa and has been living in New York for years.

"Everyone always seems to be on the move," Goolagong said.

Moving, in a different sense, is exactly what Navratilova was doing last night. Steden, the unranked German-Mexican kid who also lived for several years in Colombia, was running the champ dizzy.

Steden drove backhand winners cross-court and forehand winners down the lines. There was an upset in the air and the crowd and the champ sensed it.

Navratilova, the world's top-ranked player and now a U.S. citizen, didn't quite know how to cope with this long-legged 18-year-old blonde. Nothing seemed to work — for awhile, anyway.

There was a time when Navratilova might have caved in with frustration against a player like Steden. No longer.

Instead, Navratilova became more patient, carefully choosing her opportunities to go to the net, and simply overpowered Steden to take a 7-5, 6-0 triumph.

"I was rushing in the first set," Navratilova said. "I was too eager to finish the points. I made a lot of unforced errors. At the end of the first set, I became more patient and I think she got more tired."

"I tried my best," Steden said. "But there's a big difference between me and Martina. I knew it was only a matter of time until she came back strong."

Chris Evert Lloyd breezed past Claudia Hernandez 6-2, 6-2 in the opening singles match, then stepped aside and let Andrea Leand play the doubles with Navratilova. The U.S. team won easily 6-2, 6-0.

"I was nervous at the start," Leand said, "but Martina and Chris put me at ease by cracking jokes."

Czechoslovakia, seeded third, and Great Britain, seeded fifth, set their quarterfinal meeting by blanking the Philippines and Israel, respectively.

Czechoslovakian star Hana Mandlikova paced her country's 3-0 romp.

Mandlikova, 20, ranked fifth in the world, was frustrated in the first set against unranked Princeton University student Pia Tamayo.

In the second set, Mandlikova finally stopped drilling the ball into the net and blasting it past the baseline, then dominated the match for a 2-6, 6-2, 6-0 triumph. Helena Sukova, 17, gave the Czechs their opening victory over Dyan Castillejo, 6-1, 6-2.

Britain's Sue Barker and Jo Durie had little trouble dispatching two 18-year-old Israelis.

Plymouth Eliminates S. Pitt

WASHINGTON — Eric Riddick hit a solo home run to help Plymouth defeat the Southern Pitt All-Stars, 9-2, Thursday evening in the 11-12-year-old Little Tar Heel District 7 playoffs.

The loss eliminates Southern Pitt from the double-elimination tournament. In the title game following Southern Pitt's defeat, Washington defeated Plymouth, 6-3.

Riddick was the winning pitcher for Plymouth against Southern Pitt.

Stephen Tucker hit a bases-empty home run for Southern Pitt.

Bryant Takes First Step Toward Heisman Trophy

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina running back Kelvin Bryant says he will participate in the seventh annual NCAA-ABC Football Promotion Tour beginning Aug. 1.

It could be Bryant's first step toward winning a Heisman trophy. The tour will help Bryant gain national recognition because North Carolina has long had a policy against hard-sell tactics in promoting athletes for honors.

"I'm not used to it, but I enjoy meeting new people," Bryant said of the challenge of meeting news media, which he will do at seven stops across the country within a week.

"I guess I'm going to have to deal with it the same way I did last year," he said. "I enjoy talking to reporters. Some players it bothers. But it doesn't bother me."

Bryant is among six players considered top candidates to win the Heisman trophy, which is awarded annually to the nation's top college football player.

Others on the tour include Georgia running back Hershel Walker, Arkansas defensive end Billy Ray Smith, Pittsburgh quarterback Dan Marino, Stanford quarterback John Elway and Nebraska center Dave Rimington.

Hard-Working Technical Crew Creates Summer Stage Magic

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Behind the stage scene magic of the musicals patrons have enjoyed during the ECU Summer Theater season is an important unseen force — a hard-working crew of skilled and semi-skilled technicians.

Leonard Darby, Technical Director of productions at ECU and for the past year a member of the Department of Drama and Speech faculty, is the young man at the helm in the exacting science of getting scenery and mechanics readied and operational before the opening night curtain.

"It's exciting to put on a new show each week, a real challenge," Darby said. Citing getting the stage ready for "Cabaret" as a typical example of the built-in hectic atmosphere before opening night, Darby recalled "we began taking down the 'Shenandoah' set immediately after the last curtain call last Saturday night. From then until just before 'Cabaret' curtain time Monday night we worked almost straight through, at one point putting in a 20-hour work stretch with only a five hour break before going back to it."

Altogether, Darby supervises a technical staff of 20 people — 12 in his own shop, and four each in the paint and prop departments.

The painters, Darby explained, are artists who paint set designs.

"Cabaret" was the most difficult of the shows I've worked on here," Darby said. "It involved a complex stage mechanism with a good bit of steel work. A design like this has to make the changes appear to be magic, something that happens easily, effortlessly."

The summer set that appeals to Darby most from a visual viewpoint is the one for the forthcoming production of "She Loves Me" which opens for a week's run on Monday. "The line and shape of it is exciting to me," he comments. "The design calls for motorized scenery, two large wall units that pivot slowly before the audience's eyes as if they were moving by themselves. 'She Loves Me' is such a sensitive, delicate show that we don't want any intrusion, any stage hands visible that would disrupt the beauty of the show."

Darby's responsibility is translating set designs by faculty set designer Gregory Buch into reality. "Greg gives me his drawings, his stage designs which I must interpret technically. It is my job to make the designs a workable reality."

To achieve this task, and to get the job done quickly, Darby has a crew of professionally trained technicians supplemented by student and community volunteer workers.

"Gary Weathersbee is our master carpenter, the assistant technical director," Darby said. For the summer season we also have William Devins, a free lance technician who works with the Boston Opera, and two other professionals, Larry Conner of Reston, Virginia and Michael McDaniel from Clarksburg, Tennessee.

"Gary and I find having these men in from outside on the technical staff a stimulating situation. We all share, exchange ideas, learn from each other."

Student workers, community volunteers, Darby notes "are really important to us. They're hard, willing workers."

"We also have an exciting apprentice program for high school students in the area. These are young people 15 to 20 years old. We recruit them in the spring and have them do apprentice work during the summer. They learn ideas and techniques to take back to their schools. It's a fine program."

Darby, a native of Jacksonville, Florida, was educated at Washington and Lee University and at Florida State in Tallahassee. Since earning his degree and before coming to East Carolina University, he has worked in technical positions at Washington, D.C.'s Arena Theater, at Asolo Theater in Sarasota, Florida, and for three years at the Barter Theater in Abingdon, Virginia.

"None of those theaters have the modern facilities we have here," Darby said. "This is one of the largest and most complex scene shops in the South, well-equipped, spacious."

"In fact," he added, "staff and students who work in this shop will find they're spoiled when they go to other theaters to work."

Early in his theatrical career, Darby opted to become a dancer. He studied at Hollins College in Virginia. "Fortunately, one teacher had the courage to tell me dance wasn't my best bet," Darby commented. "I had started at 19, and that's simply too late to begin a dance career."

Darby is married to a talented singer-actress, Catherine Rhea-Darby, who plays the role of Fraulein Kost in "Cabaret." She is also active in the Best Ever Lunch Theater at the Greenville Museum of Art and recently directed one of the plays by a local playwright presented there.

Darby's unbounded enthusiasm for his work comes through in his conversation. He sprinkles talk about his work with words like "exciting," "stimulating," "magic." Theater lovers who have responded warmly to the splendid sets of the summer shows, often with a hearty round of applause for the sets when the curtain goes up, have been acknowledging the hard work and dedication of Leonard Darby and his crew in creating technical magic.

AN APPRENTICE, A VOLUNTEER... Apprentice James (Jim) Hickman, left, and Brian Berryman, a volunteer, are among several semi-skilled workers on the staff of Darby's work crew.

WORKING ON 'SHE LOVES ME' SET... Leonard Darby (back to camera), technical director for shows at ECU, discusses the construction of an item for the set of next week's show, "She Loves Me," with three professional technicians on

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS
I am acquiring a reputation as the mean mom of the neighborhood. I am told that I present an awesome spectacle in my faded green shirt, with my hands on my hips, my brows beetling, and my voice low and foreboding: "If you hit that geranium one more time with your soccer ball, I'm calling your mother."

"I don't think she likes us," the little boy next door told his mother.

Actually, my behavior has little to do with like or dislike. It's merely the result of culture shock. I'm like a nun on her maiden tour of the redlight district in Amsterdam.

I really had looked forward to living in a neighborhood that was bucking the trend toward zero population growth. In fact, we chose this neighborhood precisely because it would liberate me from the role of social secretary for Meg. I could anticipate with relish the possibility of never having to import playmates for Zachary from more than a block away.

The average age in most of the neighborhoods in which we have lived previously has been 55. And although we have had some lovely neighbors, I realized that they had better things to do with their time than to chew the fat with the champion of fat-chewers. Meg, I was compelled to confine her to our yard. I envied my friends who lived in subdivisions where children were exchanged as freely as recipies.

"Your envy is wasted," one told me. "Obviously you've never had the experience of sitting down to dinner with 10 kids and three dogs staring at you soulfully through the sliding glass door. You tell them to go home and come back later, and they tell you, 'We'll wait.' It's like feasting in the streets of Calcutta."

I was convinced that she was exaggerating to make me feel better. I thought wistfully of my own childhood, of roaming the neighborhood in packs, and I secretly harbored an image of myself as the epitome of the Kool-Aid Mom giving aid and succor to cops and robbers alike as they declared a temporary truce on my front porch.

That sugar-coated image began to fade the first time I flounced outside with a smile on my face and a box of Freezer Pops in my hand. It was like throwing a hamhock to wild dogs.

"I want a blue one!" someone yelled and rushed towards me.

"You always get a blue one!" another child shrieked. "There are only two blue ones in a box and me and Meg both get one!"

I left the box in the middle of the garage before they could knock me down, re-treated the kitchen, and hoped that the carnage would not be too great.

I suppose that I could have recovered my equanimity after this one episode had the children not started to infiltrate my residence like black ants. I would turn around in the kitchen or step out of the shower, and a small stranger would materialize in front of me. "Have you seen Meg?" was the question of the hour.

I began to lock my doors after six children in muddy shoes skated through my living and dining rooms on their way to Meg's room where they beat the silver dust out of the Etch-A-Sketch. It did very little for the appearance of the carpet.

I stopped handing out goodies at about the same time. And I learned that nothing quenches thirst like water.

"But we don't like water," one young soul informed me with the foolhardiness of Oliver Twist. "We want Kool-Aid."

I'm not sure, but I think I bared my teeth. "Never heard of it."

Food Stamp Error Rate Shows Decline

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Human Resources Secretary Dr. Sarah Morrow says the error rate for the food stamp program, once a target of criticism from federal officials who said it was too high, declined slightly during a six-month period ending March 31.

Dr. Morrow also said Thursday that the error rates in two other public assistance programs also dropped during the latest six-month period to be evaluated.

The state's food stamp error rate for the period was 13.07 percent, slightly below the national average of 13.15 percent.

The food stamp program came under fire earlier this year when U.S. Department of Agriculture officials said the state's 15.26 percent error rate was unacceptable. A $3.5 million fine was levied against the state but waived when state officials promised to train eligibility workers to cut down on errors.

Ms. Morrow said error rates for Aid to Families With Dependent Children and Medicaid programs also fell below national tolerance levels, or levels at which states are subject to penalties.

Error rates for AFDC and Medicaid are based on overpayments to recipients, plus payments to people who should not receive any aid. For food stamps, the rate is based on overpayments, payments to ineligible recipients and underpayments.

The latest figures for AFDC cover a six-month period from Oct. 1, 1981 to March 31 of this year. The AFDC payment error rate was 3.7 percent, down 2.5 percent from the same period the year before, according to a Human Resources Department news release.

In a six-month period from April to September 1981, the state's Medicaid error rate was 1.5 percent. During the previous six-month period, the state's error rate was 5.4 percent, the release said.

Jane Milby, director of public information for Human Resources Department, said the latest sampling involved a review of roughly 750 cases in each program taken from social services departments across the state. Analysts reviewed files for inaccurate payments and payments to those who should not receive any aid.

Leaf Critics May Stage Another Attack

By MARK DAVIS
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Reform of the federal tobacco program may have silenced some of the program's critics for now, but leaf supporters say the changes will not satisfy health advocates.

"There are still a lot of (Joseph) Califanos; they won't stop," says Tom Price, assistant director of the regional tobacco division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"This will silence them all except the health advocates," Price said. "They'll never be silenced."

U.S. Rep. Charles O. Whitley, D-N.C. agreed. "I think as long as smoking and health are talked about, people will continue to attack the program," he said.

The revised tobacco support bill, which President Reagan signed into law Tuesday, requires corporations and other non-farming concerns to give up their allotments by the end of 1983. Some 116,000 individuals, families and corporations own allotments, allowing them to grow the leaf.

Farmers also have to pay a per-pound assessment channeled into a fund to make the program operate at no cost to the federal government.

Despite those changes, Whitley said, critics of the program will not be silenced.

"I don't think there's anything to completely insulate the program from attack," Whitley said. "This bill makes it less vulnerable."

Anne Browder, assistant to the president of the Tobacco Institute of Washington, a trade association for the nation's major tobacco companies, said the revisions should quiet congressional critics of the program.

"I think as far as the tobacco-control program goes now, it'll quiet the rumbings," she said. "We hope this will divert some of the attention away from the program."

John Cyrus, tobacco affairs specialist for the N.C. Department of Agriculture, was not as optimistic. Tobacco has too many foes in Congress, he said.

"I don't think it'll keep them quiet," he said. "They won't be letting up for any reason."

Thursday's Sales Show Some Gains

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Nearly 9 million pounds of flue-cured tobacco have been auctioned at Georgia-Florida markets during the first two days of the 1982 season, bringing tobacco farmers in the two states some $13.4 million.

The federal state market news service said demand was stronger Thursday than on opening day Wednesday for some grades of flue cured tobacco, as overall volume remained heavy.

Moderate gains were recorded for most primings and nondescript offerings, the news service said, and prices for cutter and lugs were mixed with some averaging the same or just $1 or $2 over the support level.

For the two-state belt as a whole, preliminary gross sales Thursday totaled 3,222,720 pounds at an average of $150.03 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $4,835,003. That pushed season totals to 8,838,462 pounds at an average of $151.24 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $13,366,931.

Georgia's preliminary gross sales Thursday totaled 2,917,298 pounds at an average price of $151.54 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $4,420,835. That brought the season totals to 7,755,699 pounds at an average of $151.41 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $11,742,932.

At Florida markets, preliminary gross sales Thursday totaled 305,422 pounds at an average of $135.61 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $414,168. Season sales totaled 1,082,763 pounds at an average of $149.99 per hundred pounds, for a total value of $1,623,999.

Thursday's average price $150.03 was down $1.90 from the average on opening day.
