President Defends Extension Of Grain Sales To Russians

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan, expected to announce a one-year extension of grain sales to the Soviet Union, says such trade is justified because it drains the Soviets of 'hard cash, and they're not too flush with that right now.'

The president sought to draw a distinction between continued U.S. grain dealings with the Soviets and his opposition to the help Western Europe is giving Moscow for construction of a trans-Siberian natural gas pipeline.

Despite strains with the allies over those issues, Reagan maintained that "we do have a fine relationship" with Western Europe. "This is kind of like a fight inside a family, but the family is still a family," he said Wednesday at a nationally televised news conference.

Reagan also made a pitch for a constitutional amendment banning deficit spending except with a three-fifths vote of Congress, and said that "slowly and surely we're working our way back to prosperity."

He said that acceptance by the Palestine Liberation Organization of Israel's right to exist "would be a step forward," and said he remains hopeful that a political solution will be found to end the bloodshed in Lebanon.

Reagan's grain-sale decision, which administration officials say will probably be announced before the weekend, was anxiously awaited in the Midwest grain belt. Reagan is expected to extend the existing agreement for one year, even though farmers have pressed for a long-term arrangement.

In Denver, Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said a long-term sales agreement with the Soviet Union was "not in the cards at this time."

"I would favor that, at least at some point, but not today," Block said.

Reagan sought to halt pipeline construction in response to the Soviet role in the military crackdown in Poland.

"We have made it clear" that if the military rule is relaxed, "we'd be very happy to review our position with regard to the pipeline," he said.

But, the president said, "There are a couple of very important differences" in his support for continued grain sales and his opposition to the pipeline, which would carry fuel from Siberia to Western Europe.

"The technology for the pipeline is mainly only obtainable from the United States," he said. "Grain, the Soviet Union can get in other places, if they want it."

Referring to the Carter administration's refusal to ship grain to the Soviet Union in the wake of the Soviets' military move into Afghanistan in December 1979, Reagan said: "We wouldn't be achieving very much if we had used" such an embargo. "It didn't hurt the Soviet Union, but it was a terrible economic blow to our farmers."

He said the sale of "grain will result in the Soviet Union having to pay out hard cash, and they're not too flush with that right now."

"The pipeline, when finished, will result in the Soviet Union getting hard cash, which it does not now have and which it can then use to further build up its military might," the president said.

Reagan opened the news conference, his 12th since taking office 18 months ago, by saying, "We've begun to rescue this economy and the first evidence of recovery has been sighted, but it's only a beginning."

"Many of our people are still suffering and nothing has been more painful to me than the slowness of our progress," he said.

"The economy is in a period of transition and 'we're going to see an improvement in the second half of this year,'" he said.

Once, a reporter asked Reagan, whose 1983 budget incorporates a deficit greater than $100 billion, whether the president's support for the balanced budget amendment was akin to his saying "there ought to be a law against what I am doing." The president responded: "I don't feel self-conscious at all."

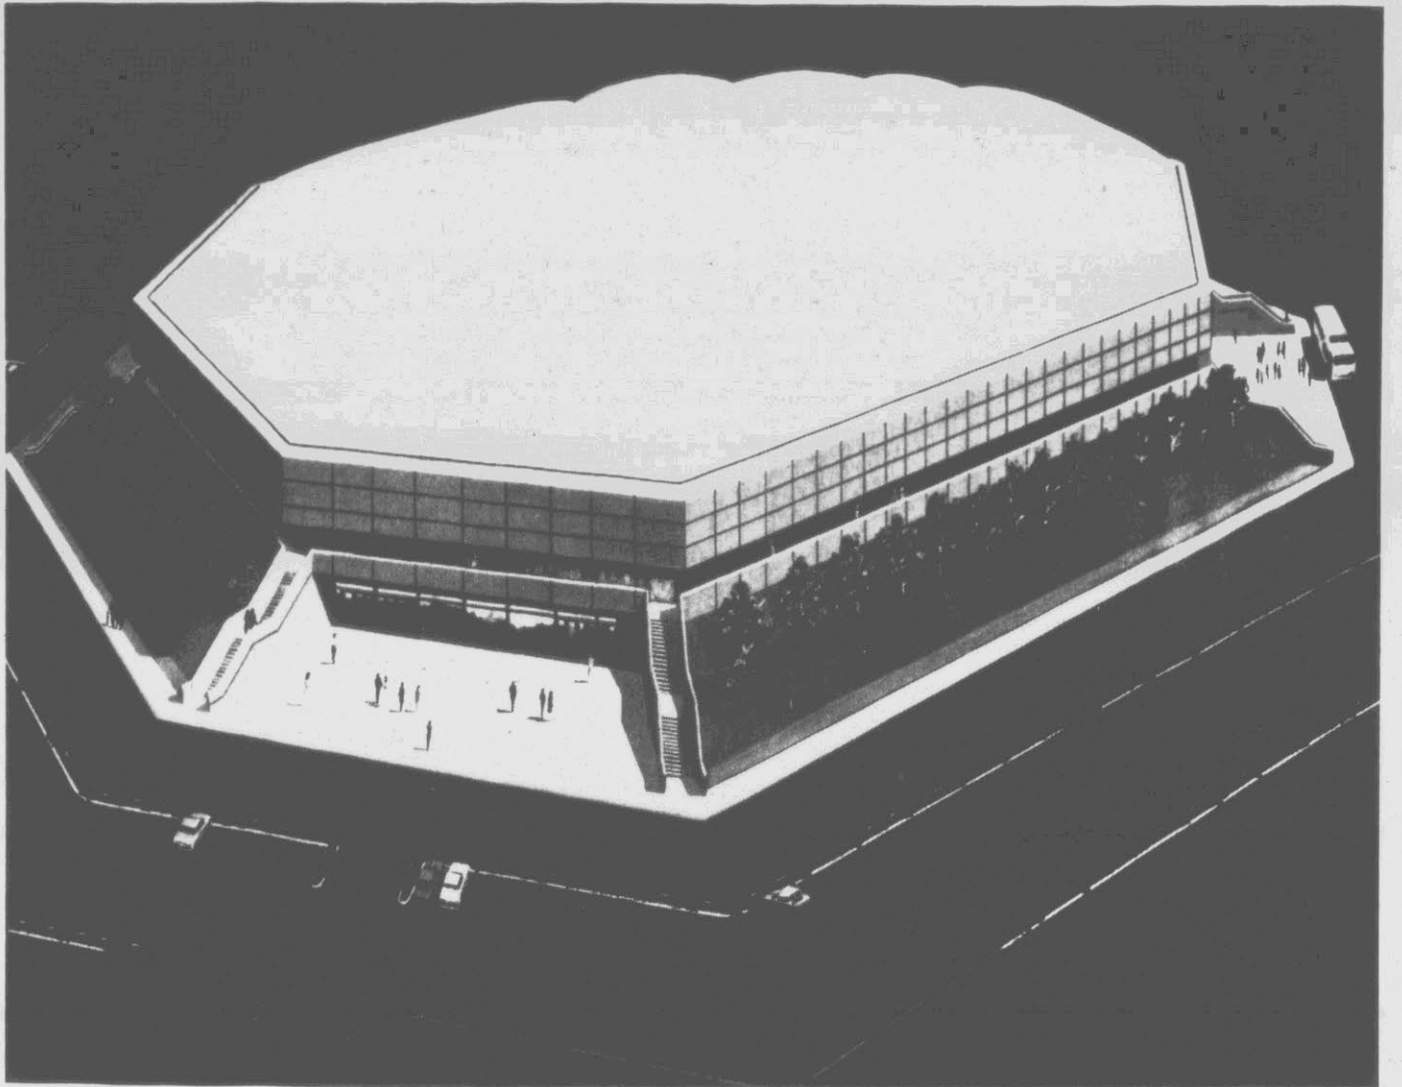

At one point, he got into a dispute with Sarah McClendon, whose McClendon News Service reports on Washington for several newspapers in Texas, Wisconsin and California.

The reporter asked Reagan to make public and "do something about" a Justice Department report on discrimination against women by federal agencies.

"It hasn't reached me yet," the president said.

"Yes, sir, it did," Ms. McClendon insisted. "It came to you in the Cabinet meeting, and you admitted at your last press conference that you had it."

The news conference ended with Ms. McClendon still trying to make her point.

Plans for a long-range project establishing a $16 million, 12,000-seat Eastern North Carolina Center for Regional Advancement, or civic center, in Pitt County were unveiled today by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Backed by a feasibility study accompanied by working drawings and a rendering of the proposed facility, a nine-member task force and area leaders recommended plans for the project at a meeting at East Carolina University's Regional Development Institute.

"This is a long-range project which will be of tremendous social and economic impact to all of eastern North Carolina," said Reid Hooper, who headed the nine-member task force for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

The center, with a price tag of $16,605,485, would house trade and agricultural shows, concerts, sports events, exhibitions and such entertainment as wrestling, ice shows and circuses.

As envisioned, the center would be a focal point for a 29-county regional area, said representatives of J.N. Pease Associates, who conducted the $36,000 feasibility study funded by the Coastal Plains Regional Commission.

Space in the center could also be utilized for conventions and banquets of between 1,000 and 1,500 people and for meetings of civic groups and organizations from throughout the region. According to the study, which referred to the building as a "multi-use advancement center," the yearly operational cost for the facility would be $1,088,600, excluding the cost of financing the building.

EXTENDEMERGENCY

(AP) - Citing increased fighting with infiltrators from Honduras, the Sandinista government has extended for six months its state of emergency decree suspending individual and press rights.

To offset this operational expense, the facility must be used, according to the study, 110 times per year at a profit of $10,000-$11,000 per use to recoup operational expenses.

The 128,000-square-foot facility's structure would house four levels, and would be constructed of poured-in-place concrete risers and floors with an air-supported, fabric roof system.

The study also recommended that the center be operated by a public or quasi-public body. Edward M. Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, said the center "would serve a vital role in making possible important economic development activities such as trade fairs and exhibitions, as well as cultural, entertainment, sports and religious programs for the people of this entire region."

"Eastern North Carolina is emerging as one of the most highly desirable locations for industry and commerce in the country," said Walker. "Much progress has been made in the areas of education, medical care, industrial development, transportation and cultural opportunities."

"The more than one million people in this region deserve continued growth and progress," he added.

Balanced Budget Proposal Is Holding Up In Senate Voting

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Opponents of a proposed constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget are having little success in attempts to weaken the proposal in the Senate.

In vote after vote on Wednesday, supporters of the amendment turned back attempts to create exceptions to the requirement that every dollar spent be matched with a dollar of income.

President Reagan, meanwhile, reiterated his support for the proposed amendment, telling a nationally broadcast news conference that the amendment "could have a very profound effect" in hastening an economic recovery.

He said the measure would have a positive psychological effect on financial markets, which are maintaining high interest rates out of concern about giant budget deficits and rekindled inflation in the future.

The amendment "would indicate the government is really determined to end this kind of runaway spending and have some fiscal integrity and common sense," Reagan said Wednesday night.

Most of the suggested changes in the Senate came from Democrats who argued that various kinds of national emergencies might require red ink spending.

Votes were scheduled today on another batch of weakening amendments, including one which would prevent any cuts in Social Security benefits under the balanced budget amendment.

Critics have charged that the amendment is, in part, a backdoor effort by conservatives to cut back on the Social Security system.

On Wednesday, the Senate rejected a proposal by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., which would have permitted deficit spending during times of national emergency.

Under the amendment approved by the Senate Judiciary Committee, unbalanced budgets would be allowed during wartime. But Cranston said that was not enough, arguing there should be exceptions permitted for natural disasters and international crises.

"It is ridiculous to require that we have to declare war to spend what we need to spend on national defense," Cranston said.

The proposed change was defeated 61-34, after Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said a national emergency exception would make it too easy for Congress to find an excuse to spend more than the government takes in.

A similar proposal by Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., allowing deficits in times of national economic emergency, was defeated 67-30.

Thurmond said the amendment already permits Congress to exempt federal programs with a three-fifths vote in the House and Senate.

In a light moment, Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., an opponent of the amendment, said the wartime-only exception might encourage a future president to declare war on a small country like Iceland, thus allowing an unbalanced budget.

Iceland or another less powerful nation might be compensated with modest reparations from the United States, Moynihan said to laughter in the Senate galleries.

HOSPITAL COST OF LIVING?

I heard here at the hospital in a meeting yesterday that no hospital employees except RN's will be getting cost of living raises this year. I feel angry and hurt - after all the years I've worked here. We've always gotten cost of living raises in October!

Hospital Director Jack Richardson said that the information you received about no cost of living raises in October is correct. He confirmed that these raises tied to the rate of inflation have historically been given in October, with merit raises coming on the anniversaries of individual employees' employment. He said a study is being conducted by the personnel department of the hospital and that some raises will be provided between January and April, though percentages and bases for providing them are not yet determined. RN's will not be getting cost of living raises in October, either, he indicated.

Announcing Indictments

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Federal officials today announced a series of indictments, including bribery charges against District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt Sr. and state Rep. Ron Taylor, D-Columbus, following an investigation into what U.S. Attorney Sam Currin said was "official corruption in Columbus County."

Currin said the indictments were returned by a special grand jury as a result of an investigation code named "Color," an acronym for "Columbus County Corruption."

Also indicted were Harold E. Lowery, chief of police of Lake Waccamaw, on bribery charges; and Edward Walton Williamson, a member of the Columbus County Commissioners and a former chairman of the commission, also on bribery charges.

Currin said in all there were eight indictments involving 13 defendants.

Confirm Totals

The canvass by the Pitt County Board of Elections of Tuesday's second primary results confirmed the totals published by The Daily Reflector.

The official Pitt County totals for the two Court of Appeals seats include: H. Horton Rountree, 1,883; Eugene Phillips, 484; Sidney Eagles, 1,239; and Paul Wright, 841.

Market Report

By The Associated Press

Flue-cured tobacco preliminary gross sales for Wednesday, July 28, 1982. Eastern North Carolina Flue-Cured - Type 12:

Table with columns: Market, Pounds, Daily Value, Daily Avg. Lists various markets like Ahoskie, Clinton, Farmvl, etc.

Leaf Sale Activity Slightly Improved

The results of the second day of sales activity on the Greenville Tobacco Market reflected only slight improvement over Tuesday opening auctions as prices continued to fall below 1981 levels.

While the market did top the one million figure in both poundage and sales totals, the local average of $140.87 per hundred pounds was up only 42 cents from the first day total of $140.45 per hundred.

Greenville warehouses sold 1,108,227 pounds on the second day for $1,561,112 as volume increased from Tuesday's 700,688 pounds and $984,088 value total.

With 14 of the 17 Eastern Belt markets holding sales, Greenville topped only Washington ($136.88) in overall average. Farmville's $153.25 per hundred represented the highest average on the belt Wednesday and Wilson had a $152.56 per hundred day.

Rocky Mount improved from $142.91 to $150.47 per hundred and Williamston climbed to $149.23 from an opening average of $143.55 per hundred.

The amount of tobacco going to Stabilization on the second day of sales here was also disappointing as the figure increased from 18.16 percent Tuesday to 26.58 percent or 294,584 pounds.

Beltwide, an average of 147.15 per hundred was recorded, up from $145.66 on opening day.

Parents Advised To Read Aloud To Kids

By Francene Perry
ECU News Bureau

Cuddling your child on your lap to read a story is not just a painless way to settle an active youngster for bed — it's one of the most important learning opportunities a parent can provide.

This was emphasized in "Children and Books: The Literary Connection," a workshop directed by Dr. Carol Veitch of the East Carolina University library science faculty at the 1982 Eastern Regional Mini-Conference of the N.C. Association for the Education of Young Children.

The July 24 event was sponsored by the NC-AEYC and the ECU Division of Continuing Education. The theme of the conference was "Caring and Developing: The Connection." Featured was a keynote address by Dr. William W. Purkey of UNC-Greensboro, a performance by Joanne Bath and the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina and workshops on such topics as art, writing, story telling, physical movement and early math.

Dr. Veitch conducted the workshop on children and books. "Reading to children teaches them new words," she said. "New words encountered in a story read aloud are given on the level they can understand. A child's speaking vocabulary is greater than his own reading vocabulary; the understanding vocabulary is greater than the speaking vocabulary."

Books chosen should be of high quality to hold the child's interest and lead him to recognize quality elsewhere, she said. A mark of quality is how well the illustrations help convey the story.

"Reading books to children can help them understand people and difficult subjects," she said. Books also help children understand themselves and their behavior.

"Books also lead children to understand the difference between fantasy and reality," added Dr. Veitch. "Books introduce them to new and different people and cultures they may never know personally."

"Books promote a child's intellectual development," and some books are specifically designed to teach children in particular areas. Dr. Veitch recommends Tana Hoban's "Look Again," a book of close-up photographs of familiar objects to help children learn to examine details; "Anno's Alphabet," an ABC book for children of various age levels; and John Reiss's "concept books" to teach colors and shapes.

To foster a child's interest in books, Dr. Veitch urges parents to plan regular trips to the local public library children's room. Spend time there, allowing the child to examine books at leisure.

She also recommends that parents take advantage of the regular "children's story hour" program offered at the library.

Book-related toys, puppets, handcrafts and audiovisual media can make books very attractive to a child and often motivate a youngster to want to read a book on his own afterward.

Reading aloud is one way in which parents can have enormous influence upon their child's future achievement in reading, Dr. Veitch explained.

Dear Abby

Thank-You Notes Should Be Sent

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was recently given a beautiful bridal shower. My question is this: Is it necessary to send thank-you notes to everyone who attended the shower and brought a gift? I thanked them all at the shower — and sincerely. Several did not make it to the shower, but sent gifts. My mother says I should send them thank-you notes because they didn't hear my verbal thanks expressed, but it isn't necessary to send written thanks to those who were there. My fiancé thinks I should send a written thank-you note to everyone who attended. Abby, there were 70 people there, and I have so much to do these days with the wedding only six weeks away! Also, there's the expense of postage and stationery. I think a verbal thank-you is enough.

I will send out thank-you notes for my wedding gifts after the wedding. Would it be all right to thank people for their shower gifts and wedding gifts in the same note? That way I could kill two birds with one stone.

BUSY BRIDE

DEAR BUSY: If you want to "kill" two birds — don't use a stone, use a pen and write two notes. A verbal thank-you is better than nothing. But to be absolutely proper, send a written thank-you note for every shower gift received. Ditto for your wedding gifts.

And by the way, since it's your fiancé's wedding too, there's no reason why he can't pitch in and help write those notes.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago I received a package of personalized labels in the mail. With it was a letter asking for a "donation" to a veterans group. I did not order these labels and didn't need them, so I returned them.

Soon after, another group sent me a box of greeting cards with envelopes to match. With it was a letter asking for a donation. Although they were rather nice, I didn't need them. I didn't want to be bothered rewrapping and mailing them back, and I would have felt guilty using them without paying for them, so I just threw them out. Then I started getting letters from the group who sent them, reminding me that I "owed" it for the greeting cards I did not return. I am not an insensitive person, and I give to charities of my choice, but I resent getting unsolicited "gifts" in the mail and then being dunned when I don't send a donation.

Just what obligation does a person have when something arrives in the mail that was not ordered?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: None. Unsolicited items that arrive in the mail become the property of the recipient. They need not be acknowledged or returned.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Every mother wants to believe that her child has no reason to lie.

Every mother wants to believe stretch marks tan, too.

Frankly, I have never understood the mother who declares, "MY child does not lie. He has no reason to."

Actually, he has six or seven hundred reasons to or at least he thinks he does. All of them have to do with fear of screwing up and getting punished for it.

Maybe parents just aren't looking for the telltale signs of lying.

When you have forbidden your child to go swimming unchaperoned while you are at work and you come home and his eyes are pink from chlorine, his hair is wet, his chest is red and his fingers shriveled from being in the water for four hours and he says he's been reading "Introduction to Math Equations" all afternoon, there's a possibility he's lying.

When you discover your child throwing a sheet over a new bicycle in the garage and you hear police sirens in the neighborhood and you ask him where he got the bike and he says, "I found it" I'd ask a few questions.

I've discovered every time you ask a child what he is doing and he says, "Nothing," he's lying through his teeth.

Of course there are the obvious lies like, "Did you wash your face?" Then you see a 21-inch tongue lick a path across the entire face and chest as he says, "Yes."

The obvious reason children become so unprincipled is that the rules for telling the truth are so flexible.

This is the way it works. You cannot take a cookie and say you didn't. That's lying.

When a cookie, however, tastes like the bottom of a hamster cage, you can't tell the truth. You have to say it tastes wonderful. That's being merciful.

Some of the most memorable fiction I've ever encountered has come from the mouths of my children. Now that they're older the truth is just beginning to surface on things I never suspected. Like how they once chased one another around the front yard with a steak knife and how a babysitter once drank a quart of gin on New Year's eve. I hate to admit it publicly, but I appreciate their "mercy." I don't think I could have handled the truth.

Tax Bill Was Essential

Last year Congress was happily offering everybody something in the way of a tax cut at the urging of the Reagan administration.

This year it all came home to roost. The economy is sagging, interest rates are still high, the unemployment rate is unacceptable and some industries are in down right depression.

As could be expected all that is reflected in the outlook for federal tax revenues and that translated into deficits — big ones. It was enough to make even the Reagan administration realize that it had over-promised, by a whole lot, in the area of tax relief.

So the Senate took up a tax increase bill which is projected to raise $99 billion over the next three years.

It doubles the tax on cigarettes for one thing, increases levies on telephones and establishes withholding on interest and dividends. Taxes would be raised on airline tickets, deductions allowed for medical expenses and casualty losses lowered and the amount that can be charged for business lunches cut.

Much of the tax break won by business last year was scaled back.

We have said that tobacco received grossly unfair treatment in this tax measure and the tobacco industry will bear a disproportionate share of the additional tax burden.

Having said that, however, we can say that the Senate has done the responsible thing in biting the bullet to raise new revenues. These funds are not just desirable; they are essential to bringing federal revenues even close to expenditures, and that is necessary to restoring the nation's economic health.

BETTER START TUGGING AT HIS BOOTSTRAPS!

Tax Reform By Reagan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The transformation of Ronald Reagan into a tax reformer capable of converting George McGovern's dreams into reality was beyond doubt at 10:15 a.m. last Thursday when Republican senator Robert W. Kasten Jr. was summoned to the Oval Office to face the great communicator.

Using all his magnetism, the president pleaded with Kasten, a 40-year-old Wisconsin conservative elected in the 1980 Reagan sweep, to withdraw his amendment to the tax bill. That amendment would have stripped the bill of a proviso to withhold taxes on dividends and interest, long the far-out dream of tax reformers now becoming reality under Reagan.

Kasten refused. But under the White House whip, 24 Republican senators who sponsored a 1980 resolution opposing a similar withholding scheme by President Carter voted for it in the Senate Thursday night as it passed, 50 to 47. One word from the president could have chilled the amendment and the bill.

Instead, the famed anti-taxer pushed for a tax increase that is not only the largest in history but that contains a generation worth of accumulated tax reform debris geared to higher revenue and soaking the rich. The late edition even includes Jimmy Carter's notorious attack on the three-martini businessman's lunch. Alternative explanations of Reagan's conduct are equally damning: that in his rush for revenue, he either did not understand or did not care.

As a result, liberal Democrats won the best of two worlds: a bill that achieves McGovern-Carter tax reform, beyond their wildest dreams but that bears a Republican label. Only two other freshman senators, Florida's Paula Hawkins and Georgia's Mack Mattingly, joined Kasten to break Republican ranks on final passage. Smirking Democrats to a man voted against it, not wishing to be saddled with increasing taxes in an election-recession year.

Some administration officials who understand the debacle blamed the Treasury for giving Sen. Robert Dole a free hand in writing the 700-page bill in his Finance Committee. "We let Dole run loose, just when he was launching his campaign for president," one official told us.

But that lets the Treasury off too easily. In truth, the Dole bill emerged from the catacombs of the Treasury, where holdover bureaucrats in the Tax Division unearthed their hoary "loophole-closing" scheme last September when White House chief of staff James Baker began his drive for more revenue. Their boss, Assistant Secretary Buck Chapoton, is a Houston tax lawyer congenial to cleaning up the tax code at the expense of the taxpayers.

The two main supply-side economists at Treasury, Under Secretary Norman Ture and Assistant Secretary Paul Craig Roberts, protested futilely and finally resigned. Secretary Donald T. Regan allowed himself to be swept along by the tide. On the day the bill was brought up in the Senate, Regan was oblivious to private protests from Pepsico chief Don Kendall and economist Walter Williams.

There was no voice in the administration to echo Sen. Kasten's plea that "we Republicans were not elected to raise taxes on savings and investment." Instead, Don Regan was pumping the telephone to support the interest and dividend withholding provision.

The rationale for the president to swallow a McGovernite tax bill is his belief, mocked by sophisticated opinion, that the bill will make markets soar and interest rates fall. Despite a lifetime of sermonizing against liberal tax policy, he swallowed the Dole bill as effortlessly (Please turn to Page 6)

The Watchers Have It Easy

On reflecting that usually two books on fitness or dieting regularly appear on the "Best Sellers" list, we draw some conclusions about the state of today's society.

Somehow or other, the pangs and joys of dieting crop up almost daily in conversation; and joggers and runners are seen everywhere. Behind closed doors there are weights and other exercise gear.

This preoccupation is relatively new.

In times past, people often walked to and from work or school ... and on the farm there was no substitute for a strong back.

Today's life is less strenuous in many ways; the physical strain is often replaced by nervous stress ... no less exhausting, but it does not tone the muscle system.

There is some satisfaction in watching others strive for abundant health and maybe even longevity. The watchers have it easy.

By HUGH MULLIGAN Divots, Kings & Things

TATER HILL, Vt. (AP) — Sunday golfers dream of someday breaking 100. Your better than average local amateur does a little war dance when he or she breaks 80.

I wonder what pro Al Geiberger did when he broke 60 and carded a record 59 in the 1977 Memphis Classic? He must have climbed the Country Club flagpole, kissed his caddy and grossly overtopped the lockerboy.

These thoughts occurred while wreaking terrible vengeance for my potato farming Irish ancestors on Tater Hill, a Vermont golf course hanging precariously on the edge of the Green Mountains. What St. Patrick did for the snakes of Ireland, I was emulating with a 3-iron against Vermont's reptilia.

When a thunderstorm rumbled overhead and lightning danced among the divots, I remembered Lee Trevino's advice, which differs from the standard safety precautions against standing under a tree and urging players to remove their spiked shoes and move away from their golf carts and steel shafted clubs.

"Hold aloft a one-iron and proceed unafraid up the fairway," Trevino is said to have prescribed. "Even God couldn't hit a one-iron."

For some reason, the dying words of King George IV of England came to mind. George was not a golfer. Neither am I, which like the rest of this column is quite beside the point. Actually George was dying of obesity, chronic alcoholism and drug abuse, particularly laudanum, which Windsor Palace gossips said he frequently sipped at the rate of 200 drops a night. For years the former prince regent found it necessary to be hoisted onto his horse by a winch. Toward the end, he was nearly blind, his legs were enormously swollen and covered with ulcer scars and he totally believed in his wildest delusions, excitedly telling friends and pages how he had helped Wellington win at Waterloo, had turned the tide at the Battle of Salamanca by leading his Dragoons on a spirited cavalry charge and had won the Goodwood Cup aboard Fleur-de-Lis.

Monarchs, you will note, dream out loud on a grander scale than we commoners. I still dream of breaking 100 and have actually come within twoscore strokes of it.

Anyhow, just before dawn on June 26, 1830, the king, who slept in an easy chair because heart palpitations made lying down uncomfortable, suddenly awoke his page, Thomas Bachelor, by calling out, "Good God, what is it?"

The frightened page said nothing, but the king, with his head resting on his hands, answered his own question correctly: "My boy, my boy, ... this is death."

Since there is absolutely no connection between the Lee Trevino anecdote and George IV's demise, veteran readers of these random ravings will immediately and correctly suspect that the columnist is about to take his annual ill-deserved vacation.

It is that time of the year when the mind begins to wander, thoughts lose coherence and slip out of focus and the desperate practitioner of the essayist's murky art grasps at any straw and broken bricks that can be fashioned into a paragraph.

Anything goes. The mental closet is cleared of all stray bits of fact and imagination, as the columnist conducts his July lawn sale of useless trivia before heading off to anesthetize porch-loads of unsuspecting tourists at some shabby seaside hotel with boastings just a shade shy of George IV's grander delusions.

The French call this a potpourri, which is an elegant variation for a mishmash and, in fact, is their provincial version of Mulligan's Stew.

Apropos of the vacuum in logic which invests this column, I wonder how many readers realize that the expression "Hobson's Choice" originated with a 17th century hostler in Cambridge, England, named Hobson, who gave patrons hiring horses the choice of whatever nag he cared to give them. A hostler takes care of horses for a hostler, an innkeeper, although the word hostler often suits both. Are you still with me?

Speaking of animals, just to inject a little continuity here, my friend Ben Lucien

Hit By Curveball

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
DURHAM — These haven't been the best of times for launching any fledgling industry. But for alternative energy businesses, a curveball from Washington promises to make things extra tough, an energy analyst says in a report on the state of the alternative energy industry in North Carolina.

Ken Williamson, an analyst with Durham's Resource and Community Development Associates, says the alternative energy business in North Carolina is at the stage where many small businessmen may go bankrupt while others turn a profit for the first time. After surveying 47 alternative energy firms across the state, Williamson says almost 60 percent are now making a profit. That's up from only 15 percent in 1977. But, of the other 40 percent, their continued inability to make money may be the harbinger of a good number of closings in the near future.

Williamson cites a number of reasons why alternatives like solar heating haven't taken off in this period of high energy costs. The first is the federal government. In 1977, a national effort was undertaken "to get the Arabs off our backs." President Reagan, in his belief that the energy industry would be better off without government help, has retreated from that support, Williamson says.

"An industry born around a unified policy decision at the national level ... which had a broad base constituency pushing solar, now finds that the federal government has reversed that decision. The major challenge for the industry now is to move from a political world to one that can stand on its own right in the business world."

PAUL O'CONNOR

Alternative energy businesses will have some problems, however. While the number of profit-making firms has increased, the size of their profits has declined, on average.

The banking industry doesn't take alternative energy businesses seriously, Williamson says. Because banks don't have good statistical information on this industry, they're reluctant to provide credit to either the businesses or consumers.

Alternative energy businesses have great difficulty finding and then keeping qualified workers. These are mostly small businesses, Williamson says, and they don't provide the salaries and benefits that larger firms can offer. They hire handymen who learn how to install or sell these systems while on the job. There are few formal training programs. Once they get proficient in their work, they often move on.

The businessman themselves may not have all the skills they need. About half of the people responding to Williamson's survey reported personal weaknesses in areas like planning, goal setting, employee management and motivation. They also indicated shortcomings in the management of finances. Many of them reported getting into the business because they thought alternative energy "was good for the world." As Williamson said, "People still believe that society has an obligation to promote renewable energy resources and they state this in moral terms which have nothing to

Other Editors Say War On Littering

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

While it is unfortunate that such a stand seemed necessary, it is encouraging to note that Secretary William Roberson of the Transportation Department appears determined to make an all-out effort against highway littering.

In this connection, Sept. 11-17 has been set aside as "Clean Up Litter Week" in North Carolina.

City and county officials, along with other interested organizations are being invited to join in the campaign. In announcing that Sept. 11 has been designated as Youth Involvement Day, Secretary Roberson notes that "this is a good opportunity to educate our young people and focus their attention on littering which costs the state around $2.2 million each year."

Of course, the young people are not solely to blame, but it only takes a trip along a busy highway following a car loaded with young people to discover what one citizen discovered and reported here:

A soft drink can or beer bottle aimed at every mail box, empty potato chips packages and cartons that had contained items purchased at a roadside stand tossed at random during the journey.

Occasionally, one finds an interested citizen, propelled possibly more from retrieving marketable drink containers than from aesthetic values, lending an assist in the anti-litter program.

Still the accumulation that one finds along almost any highway, and frequently along city streets is deplorable.

Most counties have provided a valuable assist against littering by placing those garbage dumping stations at frequent sites along the roads, but it's obvious that the matter of regular pickups is expensive.

But there are those who insist on tossing whatever is at hand along the nearest roadside. Of course there are laws which provide penalties for those caught littering our highways. Unfortunately few of the culprits are ever caught; and that brings about the need for a genuine statewide campaign such as that announced by the DOT official.

It's going to take a lot of education, along with public cooperation and concern, to stamp out this nuisance, which deserves the active attention of all citizens.

Home Ownership Loses 'Glow'

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Is home ownership a good investment?

Seldom did you hear that question five years ago. Those who did ask found a bushel of affirmative evidence. Now people ask the question every day. And in response they are showered with a bushel of nos.

Even so astute an observer as Richard Pratt, Federal Home Loan Bank Board chairman, told a Washington audience earlier this year that the public no longer perceives ownership as an attractive place for funds.

As always, Jack Carlson, operating head of the National Association of Realtors, jumped to the defense, proclaiming, "There's nothing wrong with housing markets that lower interest rates will not remedy."

From others came the reminder that if housing has turned bad then so have stocks, savings accounts, automobiles and other products affected by high interest rates. Nothing unusual about housing, they said.

While those responses produced confirmation, if any was needed, that housing is hurt by high borrowing costs, they did very little to show whether buying a house today is a worthwhile investment.

Neither have the analyses of various securities firms, which measure the price appreciation of a house but usually ignore the dividends, which include low down payment, big tax deductions and shelter.

These three benefits radically change the return on a home investment.

LOW DOWN PAYMENT. Houses still can be purchased for 10 percent down, versus 50 percent in the stock market. Such leverage works wonders.

Assuming the house is bought for $70,000 with $14,000 down, a rise in market value to $72,500 in the first year means a paper return on the investment of 18 percent. That's a good return for any investment.

TAX DEDUCTIONS. High interest rates obviously make monthly carrying charges onerous. Offsetting this, to some extent, are tax deductions.

The $56,000 loan in this instance means monthly payments of $321.42 for 240 months, or a total of $197,141. Since the loan was for $56,000, the remainder, $141,141, was interest that could be deducted on taxes.

Real estate taxes also can be deducted. And if the owner rents out part of the house, as a growing number of Americans seem to be doing, he may qualify for depreciation deductions — and also small deductions on insurance, maintenance and utilities — to offset the income.

These deductions sharply cut the effective carrying charges, which many families view as almost insurmountable obstacles to ownership.

SHELTER. No sensible evaluation of housing as an investment can fail to include the rent equivalent. How much would it have cost the owner to rent space elsewhere? Perhaps $80,000 for 20 years? More perhaps?

It hardly seems likely that would-be buyers are unaware of such advantages. More to the point, it seems, is that they perceive advantages but don't have the financial wherewithal to exploit them.

"The vast majority of American families are priced out of the housing market at today's mortgage rates," points out The Morgan Guaranty Survey, a monthly analysis and discussion of economic matters.

It estimates that only one in five households has sufficient income to carry a median-priced new home at 17 percent mortgages rates — assuming principal and interest payments do not exceed 25 percent of gross income, a rule of thumb that has been in use since the 1930s.

That rule is now being exceeded, of course, often with the complicity of sympathetic lenders, who know that young couples are willing to cut spending in other areas to pay for higher housing costs. Still, many would-be buyers are unable to qualify for loans at today's rates.

To say, however, that people who are shut out of the market perceive housing to be a poor investment would seem to be incorrect. It might be more accurate to say that lenders perceive them as poor investments.

Only one thing will prove Pratt right or wrong, however, and that is what happens to housing sales when monthly carrying charges once again are affordable. Failure of sales to rebound would suggest he is right.

In the meantime, it seems to be a safe bet that young households are aware that housing as an investment offers various attractions, not just appreciation, which was the measuring stick during the 1970s.

That, for example, you can live in a house but not in a security.

as he had massive tax increases as governor of California.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, a last remaining political asset for the Republicans, nearly saved the GOP as the Senate bill was passing by insisting that anti-oil taxes be added in the House. Majority Leader Jim Wright, understanding that the bill must retain its Republican label, quickly repaired the damage.

That leaves the fate of the bill squarely in Republican hands. "In this bill, we alienate the last constituency that has any use for the Reagan administration — business," one key House Republican leader told us. He is hard at work to expunge the anti-business provisions from the bill but retain the $99 billion in extra revenue.

However, that would mean still higher taxes for ordinary Americans. Norman Ture believes that, whatever the merit of one or two of the bill's provisions, no tax increase should be passed in today's economic climate. That credo is shared by Reaganites such as Rep. Jack Kemp of New York on the leadership and Reps. Phil Crane of Illinois and John Rousset of California on the ways and Means Committee. It is surely a Reaganite credo, even though Reagan himself has chosen to borrow the worst of George McGovern and Herbert Hoover by pushing revenue-raising tax reform amidst an economic agony.

Burman, the author of the delightful Catfish Bend stories, is back from a trip way up the Amazon at the age of 85. He did most of his journeying by small boat to places where the tourists never go, and for good reasons. Ben assures me that up the Amazon they have cockroaches large enough to catch fish. Besides fun loving piranhas, the river also has electric eels generating such voltage that they often zap a tree, which has its roots in the river, in order to dine on the falling fruit.

I wonder if Ben has been sipping too enthusiastically at the fermented nectar of the boab tree or whatever provides the local equivalent of juniper berries along the banks of the Amazon? He tells me that in Australia he once came across the barking spider, which can keep you awake like a neighbor's nuisance dog.

All I know is that in Vermont they have mosquitoes so big that they would have to grab the hook in landing on an aircraft carrier and so thirsty they could star in a Dracula spin off.

do with business.

Then there are the marketing problems. The public knows little about the equipment which is available. They may not even know where to look for it. There are no familiar brand names to rely on and little solid information to attest to how much they can save by installing alternative energy devices. And industry isn't rushing to alternative energy with big orders for factory-sized solar water heaters.

From Williamson's report, it sounds like it'll be a long time before we can tell the Arabs to drink their oil.

India's Indira

For the past 60 years two names have dominated politics in India — Gandhi and Nehru. And the woman who bears both names has come to symbolize this independent and unpredictable nation. Indira Nehru Gandhi is the daughter of India's first Prime Minister, Jawaharlal Nehru. However, her late husband, Feroze Gandhi, was no relation to Mahatma Gandhi, her father's mentor, and the leader of India's independence movement. Indira Gandhi has not yet achieved prosperity for most of India's nearly 700 million people. Today in discussions with President Reagan, she is likely to seek economic aid for her nation — which ranks second in the world in population but is in the bottom 15% in per capita income.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the largest city in India?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Herbert Hoover was President at the time of the Bonus March.

Opening lead: King of ♠.
Usually, you have to draw all the outstanding trumps before you can execute an end play. But occasionally that is a luxury you cannot afford.

North-South used a cue-bidding sequence to check on outside controls in order to reach an excellent slam. Note South's decision to cue-bid the ace of clubs before the ace of spades. Modern cue-bidding methods have shown that, when holding both black aces, it generally saves a level of bidding if you break the rule about first cue-bidding your cheapest control if that control is in spades.

West led the king of spades. At first it seemed that declarer might have to rely on the diamond finesse, but he saw there was a better line available. Declarer won the ace of spades, cashed the ace-king of clubs and ruffed a club high. He entered dummy with the eight of trumps and ruffed another club high, as East discarded a diamond. Now declarer got back to dummy with the ace of trumps.

Had trumps split 2-2, the end play would have been assured. Fortunately, it was West who showed out on the second trump lead. This was the position:

The opening lead had marked West with the queen of spades, so declarer simply led a spade from dummy. West won the queen, but he had a Hobson's choice of returns. A diamond would be into declarer's tenace, and a spade would permit declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding a diamond from hand. Either way, the defenders were not going to get another trick.

Waive Hearings In Cocaine Case

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Preliminary hearings were waived Wednesday for two defendants in federal proceedings against eight people arrested in the July 11 seizure of $400 million worth of cocaine.

Federal authorities said the court hearings were waived for Jackquelin Denise Gurley, 20, of Chattanooga, and James C. Trammell, 56, of Atlanta, Ga. A third defendant, Jennifer Oxendine, 18, of Lumberton, N.C., agreed a day earlier to waive her preliminary hearing.

The waivers clear the defendants for further legal proceedings, including possible grand jury indictment.

Federal officials declined to answer questions about Trammell's status. U.S. Magistrate Roger Dickson told a reporter that Trammell had agreed to have his hearing waived, but said he could not produce documentation of that agreement after the reporter asked to see it.

Government prosecutors have refused to answer questions about Trammell and have declined to comment when asked if he is serving as a government informant in the case.

The cocaine seizure was the nation's second largest. Last March, U.S. customs inspectors at Florida's Miami International Airport confiscated nearly 3,600 pounds of cocaine estimated to be worth $950 million.

Federal and state agents seized the cocaine July 11 when they raided a caravan of a van and three cars that four men were driving along Interstate 75 near Cleveland, Tenn., about 30 miles northeast of Chattanooga. Trammell was driving the van, which carried duffel bags containing about 1,100 pounds of cocaine, authorities said. The agents arrested five other people in another county that day.

Trammell and the two women, who say they have worked in Knoxville nightclubs, are charged with conspiring to possess the cocaine with intent to distribute it. They have not been indicted.

A federal grand jury in Chattanooga indicted six men July 20 in the case. They are David A. Warren, 42, of Smyrna, Ga.; Jackie Wayne Scarborough, 40, of Pontiac, Mich.; Marvin Lee Echols, 29, Smyrna, Ga.; Michael Edward Briggance, 27, Nashville; Robert S. George, 59, Atlanta, and Leonard Steele, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The indictment says the men planned to transport the cocaine to the Atlanta area and then to Florida.

Poor Grade From NCAE

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt, who considers himself a strong supporter of public education, has been given poor grades on a "report card" filled out by the N.C. Association of Educators.

The report stated that Hunt supported the NCAE's position on only two of five issues selected by former president John I. Wilson.

The NCAE graded Hunt on the Equal Rights Amendment, the salary freeze for teachers in the 1982-83 appropriations bill, a bill providing tax deferrals for state employees' retirement contributions, on the proposed changes in the type of statewide achievement tests now given to first- and second-graders and a measure granting teachers five paid days off for bad weather.

A vote for the appropriations bill was considered wrong because the bill contained a freeze on salary increments for teachers and state employees. A vote to table the ERA ratification bill also was considered wrong.

Hunt drew bad marks on the salary freeze, the bad-weather provision and the proposed testing change.

Hunt's low rating didn't appear to upset Gary Pearce, Hunt's press aide, who said the "report card" was not important.

"I'd give this report card a failing grade," Pearce said.

Pearce said the NCAE wasn't being realistic about Hunt's stand on teachers' pay hikes, snow days and the proposed testing change.

"They refuse to accept the economic reality that the freeze was caused by the recession," he said. "As for the leave days, the governor felt that the last thing we ought to be doing is having kids in school fewer days."

Legislators were evaluated in four areas — the teacher freeze; a bill providing hospital and medical care benefits for state employees, the provision providing bad weather days for teachers and the ERA.

State Sen. Joseph E. Johnson Jr., D-Wake, was the only one state senator and Democrat to get a perfect rating on the five issues.

Six of the 120 state House members, all Republicans, got perfect scores. They were Reps. Austin M. Allran of Catawba, James M. Craven of Moore, Frank Rhodes of Forsyth, Betsy Cochran of Davie, George S. Robinson of Caldwell and S.B. Lacey Jr. of Avery.

This year's evaluation was more low-key than last year's, which angered some lawmakers by singling out some as "friends of education" while taking potshots at others.

Discount Fears Stress Cause Of Ulcer

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Recent research has shown there is little basis for fears that a stressful job may lead to ulcers, a Duke University Medical Center specialist says.

Emotional factors once linked to developing ulcers are far less important than genetic factors, said Dr. Malcolm P. Tyor, chief of Duke's Division of Gastroenterology, where researchers are testing several new anti-ulcer drugs.

While a person's psychosocial makeup is no longer considered a danger sign, scientists are finding an increasing number of markers associated with high stomach acidity and perforations of the stomach lining. One of those markers is a chemical called pepsinogen I, Tyor said.

"It's clear there are patients who appear to have this as a family marker — an increased level of pepsinogen I — who are more prone to develop ulcer," he said.

Although the exploration of such markers is still in its infancy, elevated levels of the hormone gastrin and a tendency for food to move rapidly from the stomach after eating have also been associated with an increased likelihood of developing ulcers.

Until scientists have enough information about the disease to begin preventative measures, however, drugs are the best way to relieve ulcer sufferers, Tyor said.

Among those drugs being tested in a program overseen by Dr. John T. Garbutt III are potential replacements for cimetadine — a drug Tyor called "probably the most used drug in the pharmacopoeia."

Tyor said cimetadine recently surpassed Valium, a widely used tranquilizer, as the most prescribed medication in the nation. But, with increasing evidence that the incidence of ulcers may be on the decline, he warned that physicians might be overprescribing the drug.

"In all likelihood, it's being used in a variety of clinical situations in which the diagnosis of peptic ulcer disease has not been clearly documented," Tyor said, adding that some doctors might forego expensive tests when the symptoms outwardly resembled those of peptic ulcer.

Cimetadine is in a class of drugs that slow the natural production of acid by parietal cells in the stomach. Those drugs, called histamine II blockers, reduce acid secretion and promote healing of ulcers, Tyor said.

Researchers are testing drugs similar to cimetadine in an effort to find longer-lasting alternatives with fewer side effects.

"Cimetadine doesn't really alter the natural history of peptic ulcer and, once people go off cimetadine, their chances of getting a recurrence of their ulcer are just as good as they were before," Tyor said. "And you also want to get something that is completely safe."

Cimetadine may interfere with the ability of the liver to break down drugs, thus altering the effect of other drugs taken by the patient, he said. It has also been associated with neurological problems in some elderly patients.

Other drugs being studied protect the stomach lining from the onslaught of acid.

Sucralfate, for example, binds to the tissue destroyed by acid to prevent further damage and promote healing. Another group of chemicals called prostaglandins are believed to both reduce acidity and protect stomach cells, Tyor said.

Researchers say over-the-counter antacids can relieve the symptoms of ulcers, but Tyor did not encourage their use for that purpose. However, he said nonabsorbable products like Maalox or Gelusil were preferable to absorbable varieties like Roloids and Tums.

"There's no question about the advisability of using nonabsorbable antacids if you've got an ulcer rather than absorbable materials," he said. "Absorbable antacids have calcium in them and kidney stones and other syndromes are believed to be in part due to calcium."

"If you take one or two a day for a bout of indigestion, it's not necessarily harmful," he added. "But, to neutralize acid, you've got to take a lot more neutralizing agent. And if you take a lot of it, you don't want it absorbed."

Roundup In Drug Probe

SHELBY, N.C. (AP) — Cleveland County authorities continued the arrests of more people today in what authorities say is the largest drug roundup in the county's history.

The roundup began Wednesday with the arrest of 58 people, and predictions of many more arrests to come, police said.

The arrests followed a four-month investigation by the Cleveland Co. Sheriff's Department, Shelby Police and Shelby Alcohol Enforcement officers, with help from five undercover agents from nearby counties.

As many as 110 people are expected to be arrested on 325 charges, authorities said.

"I feel this will probably curb some of the drug traffic here in Cleveland County," County Sheriff Dale Costner said. "These arrests go all over the county... But I don't believe any of these arrested could be called big drug pushers. It's what they call nickel-and-dime stuff."

Among those arrested were some of the 71 people indicted this week by a Cleveland County grand jury on 222 felony drug charges. Most of the drugs purchased by undercover agents were marijuana, LSD and methaqualone, police said, adding that counterfeit amphetamines and barbiturates were also purchased.

The operation is expected to net 16 vehicles which were used in the transportation of drugs, police said.

Earns Honor By Medical School

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Carl T. Smedberg has received a Department of Pathology Award from the East Carolina University School of Medicine, according to Dr. Seymour Bakerman, chairman of pathology and laboratory medicine.

A 1982 graduate of the medical school, Smedberg received the honor for demonstrating academic excellence while participating in the department's service rotations.

The award was presented during a recent meeting of the Eastern North Carolina Society of Pathologists and Clinical Laboratory Scientists.

Smedberg began residency training in pathology in July at the University of Alabama Medical Center.

Correction

A list of cases disposed of during the June 21-24 term of District Court in Pitt County and published in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Reflector incorrectly reported Jake C. Elks III of Route 2, Greenville, as having been charged with drunk and disruptive.

Actually, Elks was charged with creating a public disturbance by using obscene language, and that charge was dismissed.

House Accepts Senate GOP Tax Plan

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democrat-controlled House, unwilling to write its own tax-increase bill in this election year, has agreed to accept the outlines of a record $98.5-billion plan written by Senate Republicans.

The tax bill includes a proposed 8 cents a pack increase in federal taxes on cigarettes.

The House, rejecting complaints of conservatives that the Constitution was being trampled, voted Wednesday night to permit a Senate-House conference committee to work out a compromise bill.

The vote was 208-197, with 164 Democrats and 44 Republicans supporting the move. Sixty Democrats and 137 Republicans opposed it.

The conference committee will begin work early next week; the final compromise could be ready for President Reagan's signature within two weeks.

Leaders of both parties emphasized that the House delegation to the conference will attempt to make several changes in the Senate bill while still raising the $98 billion that Congress mandated in an effort to cut the federal deficit.

The compromise "will not be a simple rubber-stamp of the Senate bill," promised Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., who will head the House conferees.

Heading the list of promised changes is the Senate-passed provision reducing the tax deduction allowed for medical expenses. Current law allows a deduction for expenses that exceed 3 percent of gross income; the Senate bill would raise that threshold to 7 percent.

But Rostenkowski and his Senate counterpart, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., favor a threshold of no more than 5 percent.

The process that the House endorsed is highly unusual because that body, which is required by the Constitution to originate all tax bills, did not even write a bill this time. The House preferred instead to let the GOP-run Senate take the blame for any tax increase.

In part because of that political consideration, House Democrats are eager for some version of the Senate bill to become law. But many conservative Republicans want no tax increase at all — even though President Reagan has called for one to help cut federal deficits in an effort to reduce interest rates.

Conservatives based their fight Wednesday on the constitutional requirement that the House originate revenue bills.

To send the Senate-passed bill to a conference committee without even trying to improve it "is a total cop-out," argued Rep. John Roussetot, R-Calif. "You are totally abandoning the Constitution."

Rep. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., noted that conservatives last year happily endorsed the big tax-cut bill that was originated in the White House, rather than in the Ways and Means Committee.

"The one partisan question asked at that time was 'are you for the president or are you against him?'" Fowler added. "That was the cop-out that led to a $140 billion deficit...."

As for the constitutional question, several members noted that often in the past, Congress has winked at the requirement by allowing the Senate to attach major tax legislation to a minor House-passed bill.

"The only way we are going to get a tax bill is through this procedure," said Rep. Barber Conable of New York, who will lead Republican members of the conference committee.

Added Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., "This country is not going to survive the indecision and delay" that would stymie the economy if Congress fails to agree quickly on a deficit-reduction package of tax increases and spending cuts.

The fast-track procedure means the only time the House will vote on the tax increase is when it comes from the conference in final, compromise form.

Advise First Going To Family Doctor

"Post-traumatic stress disorder" or PTSD is a psychiatric term describing the emotional problems left from any stressful situation, such as a rape or an automobile accident, but most often in recent times it is applied to the mental problems of Vietnam veterans.

Although the disorder requires psychiatric treatment, Drs. Owen Buck and Ingram Walker emphasize in the June issue of the Southern Medical Journal that the primary care physician should be able to recognize it because most patients first seek help from their family doctor.

Sleep disturbance may be the first symptom. Others are bodily aches and pains, alcoholism, drug abuse, depression and anxiety.

Buck and Walker warn against judging Vietnam veterans with PTSD. That war had several unique characteristics that predisposed its soldiers to severe emotional stress. Common experiences reported by veterans with PTSD include the witnessing or participation in atrocities, witnessing the sudden and violent death of close friends, and experiences in which friends' deaths occurred possibly as a result of the patient's error.

Patients and their family doctors should realize that mental health professionals now know a great deal about PTSD and how to treat it — which may not have been the case only a few years ago.

Recognition of PTSD by the primary physician and appropriate referral for treatment can make the difference between the patient's successful adaptation and continued emotional disability, the Journal article states.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market was mixed today, steadying after Wednesday's sharp decline.

Losers held a 3-2 lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 86 to 812.69 in the first half hour.

The selloff on Wednesday was attributed mainly to fears of new upward pressure on interest rates.

But analysts said the credit markets responded relatively calmly to the Treasury's announcement of its third-quarter borrowing plans.

Catching up with the decline in open-market rates earlier in the month, several large banks today joined in a cut in the prime lending rate from 16 to 15 1/2 percent.

Today's early volume leaders included American Telephone & Telegraph, unchanged at 52 1/4; LTV, down 1/4 at 10, and Warner Communications, up 1/4 at 46 1/2.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 10.94 to 811.93.

Declines outnumbered advances by more than 4 to 1 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 53.83 million shares, against 45.74 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index lost .97 to 61.87.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 3.83 at 250.39.

Their Two-Year-Old Is A Homewrecker

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — At age 2, Robin Hawkins already is a home wrecker.

When she is old enough to ask for an allowance, her father intends to show her a bill for almost $2,300 worth of family belongings she has destroyed in a two-month reign of terror.

It all started when Alice the Cat went down the drain. "I heard her saying 'Bye-bye, fluff-fluff, bye-bye,'" her father, Rowlf Hawkins said Tuesday. "I ran into the bathroom just in time to watch Alice the Cat go down the toilet."

Cost: $2.50 for the stuffed animal and $62.75 for the plumber.

One week later, Teddy Bear was placed in the dishwasher — on top of the heating element.

Cost: $8 for Teddy Bear, $25 for smoke damage done to the kitchen and $375 for the dishwasher.

When the Hawkins returned from a weekend trip, they opened the refrigerator and everything inside it was warm.

The repairman found little magnetic letters in the vents. Cost: $3.50 for the magnetic letters, $120 for the ruined food and $310 for the refrigerator.

"That evening we sat down to watch TV. When I turned it on, everything was green," Hawkins said. "Robin had twisted the fine tune so far that it broke inside. Green is her favorite color."

Cost: $115 to repair the television.

The next day, Robin's mother, Bernie, went to pick her husband at work. Robin was sleeping in her safety seat, so Mrs. Hawkins decided to leave her while she ran in to get Dad. She put the keys in her purse and left the purse in the car.

"We heard the car start up and we ran outside, just in time to watch the car start down the street," Hawkins said.

She drove about 400 feet before running into a tree. Robin was unhurt and proud of the way she could drive.

Cost: $1,029.52 to repair the car.

A few days later, Robin had turned on the stereo and tried to put a cassette in the eight-track slot. She also took apart some of the Hawkins' favorite tapes.

Cost: $36 for the tapes and $35 for repairs to the tape deck.

When the Hawkins returned from grocery shopping, they parked the car halfway in the garage and decided to keep Robin strapped in her safety seat while they unloaded the groceries.

Then they heard a loud grinding noise.

Robin had locked herself in the car and was pushing the control button to the electric garage door which was bouncing off the top of their new car.

Cost: $120.

But Robin tried to pay her parents for all of the damages. One day, after they had finished their grocery shopping and were on their way out the door, Robin displayed a handful of cash — $620 to be exact.

"She was sitting in the grocery cart and she must have reached in the drawer of the cash register next to us and grabbed the money," he said. "She had mostly twenties and a couple of fifties."

The cashier never knew the difference until the Hawkins returned the money to her.

Robin's other stunts included drilling 50 holes in the walls of one of her parents' rental properties.

Obituaries

Brown
WAKE FOREST — Katherine Eileen Brown, 29, of Wake Forest, died Monday. Private memorial services were to be held today at Saint Katherine's Catholic Church in Wake Forest.

Sullivan of Williamston; seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home tonight from 7 to 9 p.m. They suggest that anyone desiring to make a memorial contribution consider the Pitt County Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

Sub Hunt

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Two coast guard vessels and a helicopter today searched for two unidentified foreign submarines spotted in the archipelago just north of Stockholm, police said.

The submarines were spotted by three youngsters in a boat, and the Swedish military takes the report seriously, defense staff spokesman Waldemar Wilke said.

Wilke said the search area, just north of Furusund, was militarily sensitive although there is no naval base in the immediate vicinity.

Last Oct. 27, a Soviet sub ran aground off Sweden's main Baltic defense base in southeastern Karlskrona archipelago. The sub stayed beached off Karlskrona for 10 days before it was towed out of the military protection zone into international waters.

Virgil Yansom, field representative with Allis Chalmers Tractors, was the principle speaker at the meeting of the Pitt County Farm Bureau Tuesday night.

The Pitt County Farm Bureau Safety Committee, including Alma Worthington, Margie Hart, Rebecca Davenport and Earlene Wynn, completed plans to observe National Farm Safety Week, Sept. 19-25.

Yansom said that accidents during the harvest season cost people lives, limbs, hospital bills and suffering. "Most accidents can be avoided," he said, "if the operators of farm machinery will follow the safety rules laid down in the operators manual sold with every piece of farm equipment."

The Pitt County Farm Bureau is making an effort to make farmers aware of the necessity of a safe harvest during 1982.

Hunt Victim Of Trawler Mishap

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP) — Officials and residents are searching for the body of a Swan Quarter man who was lost in the Pamlico Sound Tuesday night when the shrimp trawler he was aboard sank.

The U.S. Coast Guard, the N.C. Department of Fisheries and residents are searching for the body of John Bemick. Bemick, who is about 48, was swept away when a 27-foot trawler swamped in high seas.

Two others on the vessel, Dennis Thompson and Bill Baum, also of Swan Quarter, were rescued. Other fishermen saw the boat sink and contacted the Coast Guard.

The three were on a shrimping expedition when a large wave swamped the boat, observers said.

Name Wheeler Chief Judge

RALEIGH — Chief Justice Joseph Branch announced the appointment today of Judge Robert D. Wheeler of Grifton as chief District Court judge in the 3rd Judicial District.

Wheeler succeeds Judge Herbert O. Phillips, who has been named to the Superior Court bench.

Wheeler, 59, has served as a District Court judge since December 1968. He practiced law in Grifton before becoming a judge. Earlier he had served briefly as a parole officer and at one time coached and taught at Grimesland and Pink Hill schools.

Have Accepted 36 Residents

ECU News Bureau
The East Carolina University School of Medicine and Pitt County Memorial Hospital have accepted 36 new residents into the postgraduate training program at the medical center.

The new physicians received their medical degrees from 17 schools across the country. Ten of the doctors are ECU medical school graduates.

Fourteen of the residents are specializing in family medicine, the largest of the six residency programs. Eight physicians are specializing in medicine, two in obstetrics and gynecology, and four each in pediatrics, psychiatry and surgery.

The medical center now has a total of 93 residents in the postgraduate program.

$153.25 Day On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — Volume of sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market was light Wednesday compared to those of the previous day, according to Georgia Willoughby, sales supervisor of the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade.

Demand increased only slightly and Stabilization receipts continued to account for a large percentage of total sales here and throughout the Eastern Belt. Good quality lower stalk tobacco continues to account for most of volume.

The highest price paid by a buying company was $1.95, with most grades ranging between $1.35 and $1.55. The Farmville market sold 379,765 pounds for $581,972 for an average of $153.25 per hundred. To date the market has sold 1,287,529 pounds for $1,989,314.30, for a season average of $154.51.

Pitt Rallies To Capture Series, 16-11

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
The inside-out baseball caps might have worked for a full game Tuesday night for Garner against Pitt County's American Legion baseball team, but they ran out of snap halfway through last night's contest.

And when the bubble burst, it went with a bang. Pitt County, trailing Garner 7-1, after four and a half frames, rallied for 12 runs over the next two innings and went on to forge a 16-11 victory in the contest. The win gave Pitt, now 24-6, a four games to one victory in the best of seven series.

Pitt County will now face the winner of the Hamlet-Whiteville series. That series currently has Hamlet leading, three games to two. It resumes in Rockingham tonight with a seventh game, if needed, Friday night.

The next series, also a best of seven for the eastern title, will not begin before Tuesday, and Pitt County will be the host team for games one and two, and six and seven, should they be needed.

Garner, down three games to none, turned its caps inside-out for Tuesday night's game and it worked a spell on the Pitt County squad, as Post 232 won 5-4. Then, last night, it seemed to be working again as Garner powered out to a 7-1 lead midway through the game.

But Mont Carter opened the bottom of the fifth with a solid double, and Pitt County was off and running. Helped along by a three-run homer by Tom Buie, Pitt rallied to close the gap to 7-6, then struck for seven more runs in the sixth to take a 13-7 lead — a 12-run turnaround over the two frames.

"I'm extremely proud of the kids," coach Bill Davis said later. "Down 7-1, they could have easily folded. But they showed a lot of class coming back like they did. It's the sign of a good team."

Davis said he really didn't feel that there was any one turning point in the game. "We had been taking some pitches and getting some walks and we started to hit the ball too. Carter's hit was a key one though. It seemed to get a little momentum swinging our way."

Roger Williams went the distance for the Post 39ers, but was rocked heavily at times. He gave up 10 hits, four of them homers, but only five of the 11 runs off him were earned.

"I didn't really give a lot of thought to taking him out," Davis said. "He's our number one pitcher. But he wasn't tired and I wanted to stay with him as long as we could. Most of the time he threw the ball well (ten strikeouts), but we didn't back him up very well." Pitt made six errors behind him.

Garner started its parade of runs in the first, getting three. Mitch White reached on an error — just as he had opened Tuesday night's game. He stole second and was sacrificed to third, scoring on Don Jones' single. Mark Maulsby then cracked the first of two homers for him, making it 3-0.

Pitt trimmed it to 3-1 with a run in the second. Williams led off with a hit and Scott Galloway walked — one of eight walks Pitt received. Sammy Hodges beat out a bunt and with one away, Bill Kittrell reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Williams.

Garner widened its lead again with a run in the fourth, that off a homer by Roy Hill, making it 4-1.

Post 232 picked up three more in the fifth, running its lead to 7-1. With two away, Dorsett Clement reached on an infield hit and Ron Jones cracked a homer. Don Jones then walked, stole second and scored on Hill's single.

Pitt County suddenly came to life with its bats in the bottom of the inning. Carter got things started with a double up the right center alley. With two down, Williams slapped a single into left, scoring Carter and Galloway followed with another double, scoring Williams. Hodges walked and Buie pulled Pitt within one with a three-run homer.

"He gave me a high, inside fast ball," Buie recalled afterwards. It was his second straight night with a homer, having hit a grand-slam on Tuesday night.

Then, in the sixth, Pitt rallied for seven more, taking the lead for good. Emmett Walsh reached on a fielder's choice and Williams singled. Galloway was safe on an error, allowing Walsh to score the tying run. Hodges then reached on an infield hit and Buie's grounder got Williams at the plate.

Kittrell, however, drew a walk, forcing in Galloway, and Randy Warren beat out an infield hit, scoring Hodges. Carter singled to right, scoring both Buie and Kittrell, and a balk brought in Warren. Terry Locust then singled in Carter to give Pitt a 13-7 lead.

Garner rallied for a pair in the seventh to cut the lead to 13-9. Ron Jones reached on an error and with two away, Mark Maulsby reached when his grounder to first was errored on the relay. Jones, who had kept going, reached and Maulsby advanced to second when was ball was thrown away again on the play. Hill followed with a single to center, scoring Maulsby.

Pitt padded its lead with three more in the eighth. Buie beat out a bunt to third, then moved on to second on a wild pitch. The attempt to get him was thrown away also, and he scooted all the way home before the ball was chased down. Carter kept it going with a two-out walk, and Greg Briley followed with a homer to left for a 16-9 margin.

Garner got one more chance in the ninth, scoring twice. Ron Jones single and Maulsby finished things off with a homer to dead center, but that ended the scoring.

Carter, Williams and Buie each had three hits to lead Pitt County, while Ron Jones and Hill each got three and Maulsby had two for Garner.

Pitt will now watch to see who wins the Hamlet-Whiteville series to learn who its next opponent will be.

Swim Records Continue To Topple

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Swimmer Rich Hughey, bedridden with a 104 degree temperature a few days ago, is going home from the National

Sports Festival with a gold medal for his meet-record performance in the 200-meter backstroke. The 18-year-old from Atlanta and Auburn University was one of nine swimmers who set Festival marks Wednesday night at the Indiana University Natatorium.

That brought the swimming harvest to 29 records in the 34 events. "Sunday at the trials I had a 104 temperature," Hughey said. "Monday it was 101. Rowdy Gains was my roommate (at the trials). They had to take him out of our room...I'm still recovering from my illness."

Hughey was forced to withdraw from the 200 meter freestyle at the U.S. Championships Trials last weekend at Mission Viejo, Calif. The top two qualifiers made the U.S. team which is in Ecuador for the world championships.

His time was 2:03.61, bettered the previous record of

2:05.54 set by Rick Carey last year. "This was my fastest time ever," Hughey said. "In the nationals (in two weeks) I look for a sub-two-minute race."

Theresa Andrews of Annapolis, Md., winner of the women's 100 backstroke Tuesday, set her second record Wednesday night in the 200 backstroke, clocking 2:17.68.

Roger Van Jouanne of Renton, Wash. became another double record-breaker. He won the men's 200 butterfly in 2:01.48 after winning the 400-meter individual medley the previous night.

In other activities on the ninth day of the amateur competition which ends Saturday, Lydia Stephens and Steve Merrifield each picked up two gold medals in speed skating and 15-year-old Kelly Garrison took the women's all-around gymnastics title.

Kathy Arendsen, renowned softball pitcher, suffered a rare second defeat in the women's gold medal softball game. Other swimmers who set records Wednesday night were:

Karen LaBerge, Memphis, Tenn., 16:27.11 in the women's 1,500 freestyle, a new event on the Festival program; Paul Budd, Memphis, 15:31.95 in the men's 1,500 freestyle; Stuart McDonald, Mission Viejo, Calif., 51.58 in the men's 100 freestyle; Terriane McGuirk, Churchville, Pa., 2:14.00 in the 200 women's butterfly; the West's women's 400 freestyle relay, 3:53.24, and the North men's 400 freestyle relay, 3:27.09.

In speed skating, Stephens, 21, of Northbrook, Ill. upset

Gloria Bogacki, 19, of Park Ridge, Ill. in the women's 1,500 and 500 meters.

Stephens did the 1,500 in 3:01.71 and the 500 in 51.92. In the previous two Festivals, Bogacki won eight gold medals, including four last year.

Merrifield, 27, of Canoga Park, Calif., a winner of four golds last year, won the 1,500 meters in 2:49.33 and the 500 in 47.86.

Garrison, who quit gymnastics at age 13 for five months because she was "mentally burned out," took the all-around title with 37.40 points.

As a 12-year-old she competed on a tour of West Germany and China. "I started back in high school gymnastics, nothing big," the Altus, Okla. girl said. "The more I got involved, the more I liked it again. So I unretired."

Becky Rashoff, 16, of Walnut Creek, Calif., finished second with 37.20, while Karli Urban, 14, of Omaha, Neb., was third with 36.90.

Michelle Thomas of the Sun City, Ariz. Saints, the West team, hurled a 2-0 victory over the Raybestos Brakettes, the East team, beating Arendsen, for the women's softball gold medal.

Thomas pitched her fifth shutout in the four-year history of the Festival. Deanna Dinota singled in both runs.

Arendsen struck out 11, pitched a three-hitter and had a perfect game through 32-3 innings of the seven-inning contest.

The West team, from Decatur, Ill., beat the North, from Reading, Pa., 5-4 in 10 innings for the men's softball gold medal. Mark Crawford's RBI single delivered the winning run.

In men's basketball, Eric Turner scored 24 points to lead the North to a 116-108 win over the West and Bobby Hurt scored 21 points and grabbed 11 rebounds in leading the South over the East 142-126.

Errors May Be Key To Victory

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tonight's 34th annual East-West All-Star football at Jamieson Stadium in Greensboro may just hinge on which team makes the fewest errors.

This year, unlike in some matches preceding this year's, the two teams appear to be almost evenly matched.

Neither East head coach John Daskal and West head coach Jerry Hollingsworth expect the game to be like last year's match in which the West pounded the East 25-3.

"Both teams have talent. It's not the same situation as last year," Hollingsworth said.

The West comes to town loaded with excellent backs, a strong secondary and a good offensive line. Two capable quarterbacks, Pete Moore of Burlington Williams and Brian Herndon of Greensboro Grimsley, will direct the slot-I attack.

"We feel good about the quarterback situation," said Hollingsworth.

Hollingsworth said he hopes his players are familiar with each other. "I'm not sure we're ready as a team. It has been a repetitious week and I'm sure the kids are a little tired of it. If we hang on to the ball, we'll be okay," he said.

Daskal said a polished team stands the best chance. "Obviously the key is mistakes," he said. "The team making the least will win."

The East has a huge, mobile defensive front and quickness in the secondary and receiver positions. Offensively, the East will rely on a veer attack probably engineered by quarterback Jack Rickman, who played for Daskal at Fayetteville Reid Ross.

The East also has one weapon the West may not — a kicker — with Wilson Fike all-stater Lee Gliarmis.

"Even if we can't move it very well we might be able to get it down to the 35-yard and we can send Lee in and let him kick it," Daskal said.

Rose High School's Chris McLawhorn is a member of the East team, one of two all-state receivers on the club.

Wilson Says Blue Devils Have Chance To Win

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Duke head football coach Red Wilson believes the 1982 edition of the Blue Devils can at least repeat last year's 6-5 record that saw Duke under consideration for a bowl bid until a season-ending defeat at North Carolina.

"It's not wishful thinking that we can be as good as we were last year," Wilson said, "and maybe even better."

Wilson has some reason for that optimism. He has an unsettled quarterback situation, but the two vying for the job enabled Duke to garner the second-best passing attack in the Atlantic Coast Conference last year.

The Duke coach still has one month to decide whether Ben Bennett or Ron Sally will lead the team up the mountain to respectability.

Bennett, a junior, was fourth in total offense and passing in the ACC, throwing for 1,445 yards and averaging 154 yards per game. As the team continued to flip-flop its starting quarterbacks, Sally managed to join the conference statistical leaders, finishing eighth in total offense and ninth in passing.

"Right now, it's a nip and tuck thing between Bennett and Sally," Wilson said during a meeting of ACC football coaches in Pinehurst. "Ron Sally has been the greatest and most pleasant surprise we've had as a quarterback. Ben Bennett is a pure passer. He did some very noteworthy things during the season. But as a result of spring practice, there's no way of knowing right now who the starting quarterback will be against Tennessee," he added.

Wilson is sure of his offensive line, which he thinks is the best since the 1977 squad. From tackle-to-tackle, the lineup is virtually unchanged from 1981.

Phil Ebinger is a pre-season all-ACC pick at center. Tee Moorman is one of the guards, while Mark Miller moves from tight end to the other guard spot. Robert Oxendine and Tim Bumgarner are the tackles.

"Ebinger is definitely worthy of all-ACC pre-season honors. He's an exceptional person in every respect," Wilson said. "I feel that with (Ebinger, Oxendine and Bumgarner), the offensive line will be one of the better lines in the Atlantic Coast Conference."

Wilson says his ends and backs will all get into the passing act in 1982. Receivers returning are Glenn Tillery and Chris Castor, who are No. 1 at the wide receiver spots. Carl Franks is the tight end.

Greg Boone and Mike Grayson, combined for more than 1,200 rushing yards last year and are back again this year.

Duke averaged 19 points while allowing 20 in 1981, but Wilson is worried that he'll have to score a lot more in 1982 because his opponents will score a lot, too. "We know this. We must control the football... and try to keep our defense off the field," he said.

Gone are cornerbacks Dennis Tabron and Keith Crenshaw along with Charles Bowser, but five starters return from the 1981 unit. Yet Wilson isn't quite sure of his returning players and their supporting cast.

"Our defensive interior is particularly suspect, as is one of our inside linebacking spots," he added. "Depth could be a problem in both of those areas."

Juniors Mark Heninger and Glen Barner are listed as starters at the ends, while returning starter Greg Blackwell will have to fight for time. Chip Anderson and Chris Arendt are the tackles, while Bill Smith is the nose guard.

Tackle leader Emmett Tilley is the lone experienced linebacker, with sophomore Ralph Alderman moving from defensive end to join Tilley at the other position. Bill Obremsky and Joby Branon are the only experienced defensive backs.

Ipock In Putt Win

Bobby Ipock spotted Eddie Robinson a six-stroke lead in the first round before coming back to edge him by one to win the Wednesday Medal Play Tournament last night at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course.

Robinson scored a 29 in the first round to lead Danny Pollard by two strokes. Lavern Mayo and Thomas Sharpe tied with a pair of 32's.

In the second round, Ipock cut four strokes off Robinson's lead with a 28 for a 63, while Robinson came in with a 61. Pollard, Sharpe and Perry Carter tied at 64.

In the final round, Ipock caught and passed Robinson with a 29 for his 92 total while Robinson had a 32 for his 93, good for second place.

Pollard and Carter tied at 94, with Carter winning third in a playoff.

Mayo finished fifth with a 96, while Johnny Carrow and Sharpe tied for sixth with 98.

Atlanta Wins Again; Eight Games Up

By The Associated Press
San Diego Manager Dick Williams figured he could change his luck by getting his team to the ballpark late and not take batting practice.

It didn't help, though. "The Braves are in a heck of a position," said Williams after his Padres' third straight loss to the National League West leaders Wednesday night.

Atlanta's 8-6 victory in the big series between the 1-2 teams in the NL West moved the Braves a hefty eight games in front of the Padres, their biggest advantage of the season.

Atlanta right-hander Phil Niekro collected the 250th victory of his career but preferred to look at the numbers in the standings instead.

"Eight's a nice number to look at," said Niekro. "That's the number I like. That's how I look at it. Besides, there are a lot of guys who have won a lot more ball games than 250."

Not that the Braves have already won the division title. "They're not going to give up," said Niekro of the Padres. "They've come too far to duck their tails now. You can't count that ballclub out."

Bob Horner knocked in five runs for the Braves with a two-run homer in the first inning and three-run shot in the third. That gave the Braves the cushion they needed to offset a late rally when San Diego scored once in the eighth and three times in the ninth off relievers Al Hrabosky and Gene Garber.

Niekro, 10-3, worked seven innings, allowing five hits, while walking two and fanning three. He was working on only three days' rest and lifted his career record to 250-219, becoming only the 34th pitcher in major league history to reach that victory level.

Elsewhere in the National League, it was Philadelphia 4, Pittsburgh 3; Montreal 5, Chicago 3; Houston 4, Cincinnati 2; St. Louis 7, New York 5 and San Francisco 6, Los Angeles 2.

Phillies 4, Pirates 3
Mike Schmidt hit his 16th home run and Philadelphia scored three runs on two Pittsburgh errors to beat the Pirates in a game highlighted by the record-breaking fielding performance of the Phillies' Manny Trillo.

Larry Christenson, 6-5, was the winner with relief help. Ron Reed finished up for the Phillies, posting his fourth save after giving up a sacrifice fly to Dale Berra in the ninth.

The Phillies' three unearned runs came in the second inning off Rick Rhoden, 6-9. After the Pirates came back with a run in the third, Schmidt hit Rhoden's first pitch of the sixth inning for the Phillies' winning run.

Trillo set a major-league record for second basemen, playing in his 87th consecutive game in a season without an error. His performance Tuesday night had tied the 86-game mark set by Rich Dauer of Baltimore in 1978.

Expos 5, Cubs 3
Warren Cromartie and Tim Raines each drilled three hits and knocked in a run apiece to lead Montreal over Chicago.

Bill Gullickson, 8-8, scattered eight hits, struck out seven and walked one in 8-1/3 innings before Jeff Reardon took over. Reardon gave up Jody Davis' run-scoring double and RBI singles by Larry Bowa and Bob Molinaro before securing the victory for Montreal.

Dickie Noles, 6-9, was the loser. "We gave them a finish and it was encouraging to see we got the three runs," said Cubs Manager Lee Elia. "I think it will help us."

Astros 4, Reds 2
Art Howe slugged a two-run double in the sixth inning to power Houston over Cincinnati behind Joe Niekro's seven-hitter.

Ray Knight drew a walk from loser Mario Soto, 8-7, to lead off the sixth and took second on Jose Cruz's single. Two outs later, Howe doubled to score Knight and Cruz and give the Astros a 3-2 lead.

Niekro, 10-7, went the distance for the eighth time this season, striking out two and walking three.

Howe hit his double after striking out twice previously

Pennsville...

since last year's Septemberfest. And with the prospect of protracted talks, Jack Donlan, Ed Garvey and their accomplices would probably be the biggest thing at this year's Septemberfest, too.

When the negotiators aren't facing each other across the bargaining table, that is. Ahh, but where do we put the table?

"Our municipal building, well, it's not all that private," says Gallagher. "They probably wouldn't like that, having to share space with the clerk's office and the nurse's station. But the Holiday Inn can probably accommodate them."

As negotiations drag on, nerves fray and tempers grow short, there's bound to be a heated moment or two, perhaps when union president Gene Upshaw tries to make a point and Vince Lombardi, Jr. of the Management Council begs to differ with it.

Pennsville is ready for that, too.

"We've got a police force of 27 men," says Gallagher. "But if things get out of hand, we could always call on the sheriff's office."

Police Chief Andrew Truex just sniffed at that. He'll need no help in dealing with even the biggest of players. "I got some cops almost as big as they are," he said.

Of course, taking their show on the road to Pennsville, just off the New Jersey Turnpike, raises another problem for a covey of negotiators already up to here with money problems.

Who's gonna pay the turnpike tolls?

against Soto, the NL's strikeout leader.

Cardinals 7, Mets 5
Lonnie Smith tripled home the tying run in the seventh and scored one out later on George Hendrick's double, leading St. Louis over New York. Before rallying for three runs in the seventh, the Cardinals blew a 4-0 lead they had built after three innings.

Giants 6, Dodgers 2
Joe Morgan singled to open a four-run first-inning outburst and drove in the 1,000th run of his career in the third, leading San Francisco over Los Angeles. All four runs in the first were off Dodger right-hander Dave Stewart, 5-6, who retired only one batter.

The Dodgers' only runs came on Pedro Guerrero's 19th home run of the season, a two-run shot in the fourth.

Fred Breining, making his first start of the year, retired the first 10 Los Angeles batters before Ken Landreaux singled in the fourth. Breining, 5-3, worked five innings and Gary Lavelle pitched the last four to earn his fifth save.

Perry Gets 304th; Weaver Stays Away

By The Associated Press
Don Zimmer managed his last three games for the Texas Rangers as a lame duck, while Earl Weaver, back in the American League's good graces after a one-week suspension, has temporarily flown the Baltimore Orioles' coop. Those strange goings-on highlighted Wednesday night's action, which also included big rallies by the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees and the California Angels' 13-1 romp over the Oakland A's.

Zimmer's finale turned out to be another heartbreaking loss — 3-2 to the Milwaukee Brewers — one of many the Rangers have suffered in compiling a 38-58 record. After the game, Zimmer was replaced by coach Darrell Johnson...who, ironically, was succeeded by Zimmer as manager of the Boston Red Sox just over six years ago.

Weaver, who was suspended by AL President Lee MacPhail after poking his finger in umpire Terry Cooney's face during an argument, was eligible to manage again Tuesday night. But with Baltimore on a tear, the superstitious Weaver stayed away from the dugout and did it again Wednesday as the Orioles edged the Chicago White Sox 2-1 and stretched their longest winning streak of the season to seven games.

Elsewhere, the Red Sox, who trailed 7-1 after 2½ innings, overtook the Toronto Blue Jays 9-7, the Yankees erupted for five runs in the seventh and nipped the Detroit Tigers 8-7, the Cleveland Indians defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-2 and the Seattle Mariners downed the Minnesota Twins 6-2.

The Rangers lost for the 14th time in their last 17 games. They handed Milwaukee a pair of unearned runs in the first inning and then bowed to Ted Simmons' tie-breaking sacrifice fly in the eighth, spoiling Frank Tanana's five-hitter. Afterward, Zimmer disclosed that owner Eddie Chiles informed him on Monday that he was being dismissed but asked him to stay on through Wednesday's game.

"I don't feel bad about it," Zimmer said of his unusual three days as a lame-duck manager, which ended with the sixth-place Rangers 16½ games from the top. "The man is paying me and I worked up until he fired me."

At a postgame news conference, Chiles berated newsmen for blowing Zimmer's dismissal out of proportion.

"We are not a public business, we are not a government agency. You are not entitled to know everything we do," he said when pressed for an explanation.

"A lot of the media still have the Watergate syndrome where they think you have to dig for something bad. This matter was set up to be handled as well as it could be, then it was leaked to the press and it was like a tornado had broken loose."

Asked why Johnson was picked, Chiles snapped, "That's my business," and left the room.

Simmons' sacrifice fly, following singles by Paul Molitor and Robin Yount and a sacrifice, provided the run that kept the Brewers atop the AL East, one-half game ahead of the Red Sox.

Orioles 2, White Sox 1
Eddie Murray and John Lowenstein singled home sixth-inning runs to back the nine-hit pitching of Scott McGregor and two relievers. Ken Singleton doubled with one out in the sixth and scored the tying run on a single by Murray, who took second on a high, off-target throw by right fielder Harold Baines. Lowenstein followed with an RBI single off loser Richard Dotson.

Weaver was in uniform, but not in the dugout during the game in what he said was an attempt not to jinx the streaking Orioles.

Red Sox 9, Blue Jays 7
Dwight Evans drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Carney Lansford capped a six-run fifth inning with a three-run shot. The Red Sox trailed 7-1 after 2½ innings but Evans hit a solo homer in the third. Then, after singles by Glenn Hoffman and Rick Miller in the fifth, Evans lined another homer that pulled Boston within 7-5. Jim Rice and Carl Yastrzemski followed with singles and Roy Lee Jackson singled Dave Stieb. Lansford greeted him with a towering homer, putting the Red Sox in front.

Yankees 8, Tigers 7
With the Yankees trailing 7-3, Dave Collins started the seventh-inning rally with a triple, Bucky Dent, who had a two-run single earlier, singled, Willie Randolph walked and, for one out later, Jerry Mumphrey singled to make it 7-5. Lou Piniella was sent up to bat for Oscar Gamble and Detroit summoned Bob James, just up from the minors, for his AL debut. Bobby Murcer batted for Piniella and slammed James' second pitch into the right field seats.

Angels 13, A's 1
Don Baylor and Ron Jackson each drove in four runs with three hits apiece while Mike Witt scattered six hits and blanked Oakland until the ninth inning. Baylor hit a pair of two-run homers while Jackson had a two-run single and a two-run double. The victory gave the Angels a two-game lead over Kansas City in the AL West.

Indians 4, Royals 2
Rookie Carmen Castillo cracked a tie-breaking two-run homer — his first in the majors — to back the three-hit pitching of Rick Sutcliffe, who needed last-out help from Dan Spillner. Castillo's homer came off loser Bill Castro and followed a single by Rick Mas added a run in the eighth on Chris Bando's triple and Rodney Craig's single.

Mariners 6, Twins 2
Richie Zisk belted a two-run homer and a double, extending his hitting streak to 15 games. Zisk opened the second inning with a double and scored on Rick Sweet's broken-bat single. Gary Gray followed with an RBI double. An inning later, Bruce Bochte walked and Zisk followed with his 13th home run. Al Cowens also homered for Seattle while Gaylord Perry pitched six innings, allowing one unearned run, for his 304th career victory.

Johnson Takes Over As New Manager At Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Darrell Johnson is the Texas Rangers' 11th manager in 11 seasons. Don Zimmer, the man he replaced, still does not understand why he was fired.

Zimmer's job ended Wednesday night after Texas lost 3-2 to the Milwaukee Brewers. His team compiled a 38-58 record, third-worst in the major leagues.

He had known since Monday he was being fired but, in a move Zimmer said was unprecedented during his 33 years in baseball, majority owner Eddie Chiles asked him to continue to run the team through Wednesday's game. Chiles said Zimmer was not fired because of the Rangers' pitiful play but because of "something personal" that Chiles refused to explain.

Rumors of the firing began circulating Monday but Chiles — who had discussed his decision with Zimmer Monday — denied the reports as late as Tuesday night, calling them unfounded.

Zimmer, sitting beside Chiles during Wednesday night's announcement of his firing, was asked if he understood the move.

"No. Hell, no," he said. "He (Chiles) says he understands, but I don't."

"Don didn't do anything wrong," Chiles said. "He's my friend, and I hope I'm his friend."

Johnson, who has no guarantees beyond the end of this year, said he plans no wholesale changes.

"One of the main things we have to do is evaluate the team's personnel and still try to win as many games as possible," he said. "I never saw a thing that Jimmy did that I thought was wrong. I have no magic wand to wave."

Asked why he picked Johnson as interim manager, Chiles snapped, "That's my business," and left the room.

Zimmer said a confidential report on his managerial abilities, prepared by team statistician Craig Wright, was a key to his downfall but Chiles said otherwise.

"It had nothing whatsoever to do with my decision," he said. "I haven't even read it fully."

But when pressed for a fuller explanation, Chiles berated reporters.

"I have heard on the radio and TV tonight the announcers said it (the firing) was badly handled," he said. "It wouldn't have been if the press hadn't gotten involved in a way they weren't entitled to.

"We are not a public business, we are not a government agency. You're not entitled to know everything we do."

Zimmer removed his pictures, plaques and mementoes from his office walls well before gametime Wednesday, and had packed a suitcase with his personal belongings.

During a pre-game talk with writers, Zimmer said he was disappointed in the way his firing had been handled.

"You don't fire a man, then tell him to go to work. Why couldn't he fire me Monday? Or, why couldn't he wait until today (Wednesday) to tell me?" he asked rhetorically. "People all over baseball are laughing about this right now."

"Zim's a good manager," said Ranger outfielder Mickey Rivers. "This team is no good. This team can't play, that's the problem."

"I don't think we're going to find anyone better to replace him," added pitcher Doc Medich. "I like this man. I like him a lot. He's always been honest and fair with me."

Zimmer said he was offered the opportunity to resign but declined.

"We discussed that, but I told him (Chiles) this place is a mess and there's no way I'm going to quit...under those circumstances. I would have liked to stay and help straighten it out, but it didn't work out," Zimmer said.

Ironically, Johnson replaces the man who replaced him as Boston Red Sox manager in 1976.

Johnson hired Zimmer as a coach in Boston after Zimmer was fired as San Diego manager after the 1973 season.

Zimmer, in turn, hired Johnson to be a Rangers coach after Johnson's dismissal as Seattle's manager in 1980.

Soviet Diplomats Calm Over Glen Cove Policy

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet government is keeping its cool over a policy barring its diplomats from public beaches, golf courses and tennis courts here, while an embarrassed U.S. State Department has asked the Justice Department to investigate.

"There is no need on our part to take any forceful retaliatory steps against American diplomats in the Soviet Union," said Vladimir Mikoyan, a press officer with the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

"I would say that this is an inconvenience but not a tragedy," he said.

The Glen Cove City Council voted 6-1 Tuesday to continue the ban, first adopted in May. The revote came after the State Department accused the Long Island town of meddling in foreign policy.

The town enacted the policy because the Soviets don't pay property tax on Killenworth, a 37-acre estate here with a 49-room mansion that is used by the Soviet Mission to the United Nations.

The city estimates it loses about $100,000 a year in revenues because the property is tax-exempt.

"We are not nasty tax evaders," Mikoyan said. "Don't they know this is an international rule in every country?" Residents also believe the compound is used for espionage.

"Oh goodness, they watch too much television," the Soviet spokesman said.

The State Department has referred the matter to the Justice Department "to see if anything legal can be done. It is important. We are not going to ignore it," said spokeswoman Susan Pitman.

Meanwhile, U.S. diplomats in the Soviet Union will continue to enjoy recreational privileges.

"We are not the kind of people who take 'eye-for-an-eye.' We would like to avoid any reprisals," Mikoyan said, but admitted that is "one of our options."

Glen Cove officials have said that if there are any reprisals against Americans in the Soviet Union, they will reconsider their policy.

"We do not plan to contact the State Department, but we assume we will be hearing from them rather fast," said Maggie Polk, spokeswoman for Mayor Alan Parente. She said the mayor was not available because he was being interviewed by a television station while a radio station, French and British journalists, and reporters for Time and Newsweek magazines waited in line.

Between 8:30 A.M. and 6:30 P.M.
Weekdays and 8 'til 9 A.M. On Sundays

Variable cloudiness with showers and thunderstorms will continue over the state today.

High temperatures will be in the 80s with low 90s in the southeast. Scattered showers and thunderstorms will still be a threat tonight and Friday.

Lows tonight will dip into mid and upper 60s over western sections of the state with low and mid 70s in the east.

Highs Friday will again be in the 80s with low 90s in the southeast. It now appears that the frontal zone responsible for this continued chance of thunderstorms will stick around into the weekend so it look like a wet period ahead.

A cold front that stretched from central Virginia through eastern Tennessee and southwest to Texas will sink slightly further south and become stationary over the North Carolina-Virginia border later today.

The air to the south of the front is very moist and unstable. Weak low pressure disturbances will move along the front the next few days and this will mean scattered thunderstorms on into the weekend for North Carolina.

Wednesday temperatures soared into the 90s over most of the state before thunderstorms began to develop. Fayetteville was once again the warmest spot in the state with a high of 98 degrees.

The thunderstorms that developed Wednesday afternoon continued over southern sections of the state this morning. Several reports of heavy rain were received including 2.8 inches at rosman in the southern mountains and 2.62 inches at Butner in the northeast Piedmont.

Winterville Tax Bills Are Mailed

WINTERVILLE — The town's 1982 tax bills were mailed today, reported Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

According to Nobles, the town mailed 1,492 bills, totaling 33,233,815. Real property evaluation in the town is $24,187,185 for 1982, he said, with personal property taxes coming to $9,046,630.

The bills were figured at a 40-cent per $100 tax rate, noted Nobles.

Residents who pay their taxes in August will receive a 2 percent discount, he added.

Taxes may be paid at the town hall, which is open from 8:30-5 p.m. Monday-Friday. Persons having questions should call 756-2221, said Nobles.

House Demos Head Off Food Stamp Cutbacks

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats on the House Agriculture Committee, bolstered by acceptance of potentially massive cuts in dairy price-support costs, are heading off another drive for significant reductions in the food stamp program.

After agreeing to President Reagan's $2.3 billion in benefit reductions last year, Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., chairman of the nutrition subcommittee, has kept proposed 1983 cutbacks to $334 million.

"The food stamp program is the only emergency nutrition program we have in this country," Richmond said Wednesday. "To further nickel-and-dime this program is cruel and inhuman."

Richmond made his remarks as the committee wrapped up work on legislation to continue the multibillion dollar program through September 1985.

Last year's cuts knocked about 1 million people from the rolls and slashed benefits for millions more. Currently, about 22 million Americans receive food stamps at an estimated cost this year of $11.3 billion.

In addition to the 1983 savings, the committee plan would cut $431 million in 1984 and $561 million in 1985, mainly by requiring states to either substantially reduce benefits going to ineligible people or repay the government for them and curbing and delaying future cost-of-living benefit increases.

The food stamp plan is part of legislation to meet a congressional mandate that Agriculture Department spending be cut by nearly $800 million next year and $3.3 billion over the next three years.

Combined with a major change in dairy policy that should save taxpayers about $1 billion in each of the three years, the measure would force overall USDA budget reductions of more than $1 billion next year and more than $4 billion over the three years. Some of the savings from cuts in food stamps and the dairy program were offset by increased spending for federal grain programs.

Rep. Thomas Coleman of Missouri, the ranking Republican on the nutrition subcommittee, sought even greater reductions in the food stamp program because of new estimates that the budget deficit will be $40 billion to $60 billion higher than the administration's original estimate.

But Richmond and other Democrats mustered the votes to defeat those added reductions, repeatedly citing the major budget savings achieved in the dairy program, which effectively forces farmers to pay for excessive production.

"Why should the poor people of the United States pay for the deficit?" Richmond argued.

Reagan had asked Congress last winter to slash $2.3 billion from the program in 1983 alone. But his proposals gained no support, even in the Republican-dominated Senate Agriculture Committee.

Earlier this month, that panel approved cuts of between $800 million and $900 million during each of the three years.

Like the House committee plan, the Senate panel achieves the bulk of its savings by making states pay for excessive erroneously-issued benefits and reductions and delays in future cost-of-living adjustments. The Senate committee's reductions and delays in inflationary adjustments, however, are greater than the House panel's, accounting for nearly all the difference in budget savings.

Both committee plans also tighten up work requirements for food stamp recipients.

Only a fraction of the current recipients would be dropped from the program under either bill. Analysts say Reagan's plan would have forced another 2 million recipients from the rolls and slash benefits for most of those remaining. Hardest hit, they said, would have been the working poor and the elderly.

Upsets Law On Gambling

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A Gaston County Superior Court judge has declared unconstitutional a state law exempting certain groups from state gambling laws.

Judge Donald Smith of Raleigh made the ruling Wednesday in dismissing criminal charges against a William F. McCleary of Bessemer City, who advertised a "Beat the High Interest Rate Contest" last year to seal chances on a home. He was charged with advertising a lottery and dealing in a lottery.

Smith said, however, that the statute violates both state and federal guarantees of equal rights under the law. Exemptions are made for a number of organized groups — churches, fraternal organizations, rescue squads and volunteer fire departments — to conduct raffles, lotteries and bingo games.

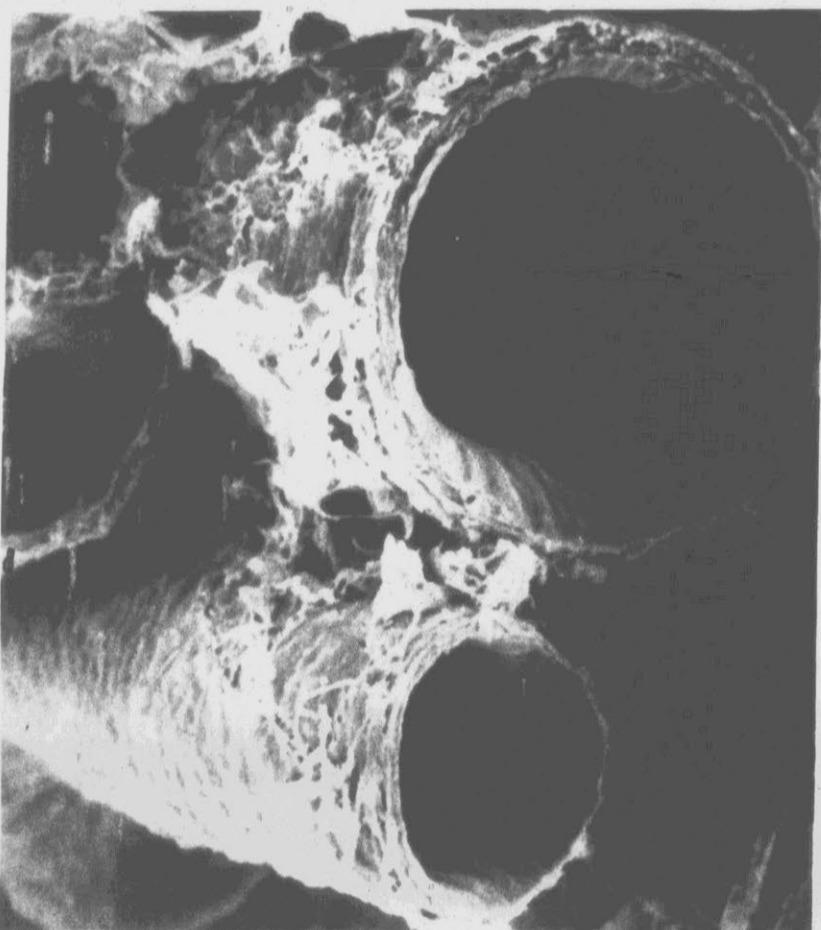

He said the law denied McCleary equal protection under the law. He said exemptions could be allowed, but those listed are too general and left a potential for discrimination by selective prosecution.

Advertisements for the contest ran in The Gastonia Gazette on eight occasions in late September and October. One advertisement depicted a three-bedroom house in western Gaston County below the words, "This house could be yours for a small donation."

The drawing was never held after charges were brought against McCleary and his wife.

Jim Bullock, senior deputy attorney general for the state, said the unconstitutionality of the law would not be binding in other cases until a decision is rendered by higher courts.

The district attorney's office gave notice of appeal.

Tags Display Creativity

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — You might say that some Kentucky motorists are exercising their literary license.

Personalized plates were issued to 5,000 motorists in the Bluegrass State this year, letting loose a whole lot of creativity.

A Warren County obstetrician, for example, who wanted to describe his profession on his license tag, came up with STORK.

An Ashland dentist combined numbers and letters to convey his line of work: 2THDOC.

A maximum of six digits are allowed, says Jim Clarke of the state Transportation Department.

But one Louisville resident who wanted to tell the world his hometown wasn't stopped by lack of space. He settled for LUAVUL.

Others opt for inspiring messages, such as TRYGOD.

Some people buy the tags as gifts for family or friends as practical jokes, said Yvonne Guy, a license clerk in Bowling Green.

"One girl came in just the other day to return one her boyfriend had gotten her," said Ms. Guy. "It said SPOT, and I guess it made her mad, because she has freckles."

Clarke said his favorite tag says HAZARD.

"I don't know whether that's where the person's from, or it's his favorite television program or whether it describes his driving ability," he said.

Sue To Prevent Paraquat-Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group seeking to protect marijuana users has filed suit in federal court to prevent the weedkiller paraquat from being sprayed on Florida's marijuana fields.

The National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws said spraying would create a health hazard for the nation's 25 million marijuana users.

The suit filed Wednesday named as defendants The Drug Enforcement Administration, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Florida Department of Law Enforcement. The suit asks the defendants be stopped "from providing any funding or assistance to the herbicide spraying program in the United States until a hearing can be held on a preliminary injunction."

Valentine Says 'Worst Is Over'

By MARY ANNE RHYNE Associated Press Writer
ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — Democratic congressional nominee I.T. "Tim" Valentine relaxed for a moment Wednesday, saying "the worst fight" to succeed retiring 2nd District incumbent L.H. Fountain may be over.

But H.M. "Mickey" Michaux Jr. avoided admitting defeat in the runoff or endorsing Valentine or Republican Jack Marin in the fall general election.

"This is not a defeat," Michaux said at a news conference. "I am disappointed but I think we made a powerful start in voicing the concerns of the people of the 2nd District."

Valentine, a 56-year-old white Nashville attorney, captured 54 percent of the vote Tuesday compared to 46 percent for Michaux, a 51-year-old black Durham attorney, in complete, unofficial returns.

Michaux led balloting in the three-way June primary by 11 percentage points and had hoped to become the first black elected to Congress from North Carolina in 80 years.

Valentine said the runoff was a "clean, aggressive" battle and hinted that his campaign against Marin could be anticlimactic. Voter registration, which is 7-to-1 Democratic, increased the significance of winning the nomination.

"I hope the worst fights are behind us and I really think so," he said at a news conference.

But Michaux wasn't ready to endorse Valentine, who played up the candidates' differences during the primary. He said he wanted assurances that Valentine, who ran as a conservative and portrayed Michaux as a liberal, would respond to the concern of his supporters. "They should come to us with a plan of operation that will assure that we will be represented," Michaux said.

Valentine was not ready to give such assurances but he expressed confidence that Michaux's supporters would come to his aid.

"They're Democrats. I think they are more interested in having a Democratic congressman than having a Congressional Club or Republican congressman," he said.

Looking ahead to the fall general election, Valentine said he assumed Marin "will have the benefit of a seemingly inexhaustible supply of Congressional Club money to get elected." He said his staff workers would try to raise similar amounts of money when they resume their efforts after Labor Day.

Marin, in a telephone interview, said he was receiving financial support from the Congressional Club but said "they are very severely limited to what they can help me do."

Valentine predicted that the issues raised during the primary — federal budget cuts and deficits, taxes and social security — will be raised in the race with Marin.

"The state of the economy remains uppermost in everyone's mind," Valentine said. "I want to take a strong message to Washington that the people of the 2nd District are ready for the federal government to get its finances in order, balance its budget and put an end once and for all to the deficit financing which is draining the money market funds which business, agriculture and home buyers need to survive and prosper."

Marin agreed and added that "One of the biggest problems is the House of Representatives, which has long been controlled by people who can't curb their appetite for the taxpayers' money." He also charged that Valentine would have difficulty achieving his objectives unless he was willing to vote to unseat Democratic House Speaker Tip O'Neill.

Mr. Valentine would be hard pressed not to support him and we'll continue on the path we're going," Marin said.

Valentine hinted at another matter now before Congress that could become an issue in the general election — the tobacco price-support program and cigarette taxes. He indirectly criticized votes by North Carolina's Republican senators — Jesse Helms and John East — in support of a proposal to double the excise tax on cigarettes.

"The people of the 2nd District deserve a congressman who will not be persuaded by a phone call from the White House to vote for measures which will seriously harm tobacco," he said, referring to East, who said he switched his vote on the tax at the urging of President Reagan.

Marin said he would oppose raising all taxes.

State Republican Party Chairman David Flaherty said Valentine's nomination will make the task of Marin and the GOP more difficult in the fall.

"We're going to have to show he isn't really the conservative he pretends to be. It was just a ruse to beat Michaux," Flaherty said.

Cordova, Man Behind Scenes In Carson Show

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — As a Hollywood director, he worked with Errol Flynn, Tony Curtis and the star of "Bedtime for Bonzo" Ronald Reagan. In television, he was the man behind Jack Benny, George Burns and, for the past 12 years, Johnny Carson.

Fred de Cordova, but De Cordova still is not well known. The public recognizes his back more than his face, since the camera only sees him shaking hands with Carson's guests after the "Tonight" show.

while, the good ship "Tonight" has been chugging straight and steady for middle America and its mainstream values and comedy sense.

"The show has matured the same way the country has," says De Cordova. "When Jack Paar was doing 'Tonight,' he got into trouble for doing a joke about a W.C. (bathroom). In those days, you couldn't say 'pregnant.' When shows did venture into the bedroom, there were separate beds or creases in between them."

De Cordova, 72, producer of NBC's "Tonight," oversees the popular late-night program. He checks the material going into Carson's daily monologue, monitors rehearsals for the song-and-dance numbers, chooses the program's guests and gently gives them the hook when the conversation gets deadly.

"I judge by Johnny's interest in the guest and the audience's, which almost always is the same," says De Cordova. "I try for an amalgam of guests. I don't want to see it become too Las Vegas showbizzy, or too pretentious and intellectual, either."

"Now that we do a 60-minute show (it used to be 90 minutes), we're essentially a two-guest show, so we have less leeway."

De Cordova stresses that "Tonight," which is being

70 YEARS OF MUSIC — Carlos Montoya, 78, of Madrid, has played the flamenco guitar since he was eight years old. A world-renowned musician, Montoya is in Asheville to perform with the Asheville Symphony. (AP Laserphoto)

Carlos Montoya Will Share Annual Festival

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — World-famous guitarist Carlos Montoya plays in Asheville tonight to help the city celebrate Bele Chere, its annual downtown festival.

Montoya will perform "Suite Flamenca," the "1812 Overture" by Tchaikovsky, and "Polovestian Dances" by Borodin with the Asheville Symphony Thursday night.

Montoya, 78, a native of Madrid, Spain, is the first flamenco guitarist ever to display his talent in a solo concert and is one of the most widely heard performers on the concert stage today.

In January 1966, his "Suite Flamenca," a suite for guitar and orchestra, was given its world premiere with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

"This was the culmination of a 25-year ambition of mine," Montoya said. "For me, it was truly the high point of my career."

Mrs. Sally Montoya, who serves as her husband's interpreter, said she doesn't expect him to ever quit playing the music he loves best.

"This has been his whole world since he's been a child," Mrs. Montoya said. "Carl does what he loves best, and they pay him for it, so why should he ever quit?"

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 7-29

TXDLZN DLKK OJAHKO XH NDJLG
 TYZKNO SJGKJAHKLN SKYOYTSK

Yesterday's Cryptoquip - THEIR LOVE KEPT ALIVE LIKE A SHAKESPEAREAN SONNET.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: O equals D.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Mental Health Hearing Here

The Mental Health Study Commission has scheduled a public hearing in Greenville to be held Aug. 20 at 10:30 a.m. in Room 209H of the Humber Building at Pitt Community College.

will be studied further by the commission as it formulates recommendations for the governor and the General Assembly on how these services can be improved.

The study commission is interested in hearing from individual citizens and organizations about their concerns regarding mental health, mental retardation and substance abuse services. The issues raised

Device For Testing Newborns' Hearing

"I'm having my hearing tested." That sign on a funny-looking crib in the newborn nursery brought smiles to the visitors looking in the window and helped save an experimental program at St. Mary's Hospital in Richmond, Va.

Dr. George H. Williams, an otolaryngologist, and his colleague, Frank M. Butts, started the program to test the hearing of newborn babies and wrote of their experience in the June issue of the Southern Medical Journal.

Learning to talk is critically dependent on being able to hear and the first few years of life are the important ones in developing skill in language. In many instances, parents do not realize that their child can't hear until he is past these precious years, Dr. Williams said. He decided that testing the hearing of newborn babies was desirable and needed and set out to determine if it of hearing impairment. They believe their study has proved that it is possible to test the hearing of newborn babies in a community hospital without excessive cost.
