STILL SIGNIFICANT — Cotton, once king of the South in cash crops, no longer holds a top place in eastern North Carolina's farm economy. Last year, only 32 acres were grown in Pitt County. Assistant farm agent Roger Cobb notes, however, that significant acreages of cotton are grown in nearby Edgecombe, Halifax and other eastern North Carolina counties. ## Israeli Continue Batter West Beirut; No Pullback

By The Associated Press
Israeli jets and gunboats bombarded guerrilla targets in west Beirut today after Prime Minister Menachem Begin's government refused U.S. and U.N. demands to give up new military gains in the PLO stronghold.

"We hope to persuade our American friends that (U.S. mediator Philip C.) Habib's efforts will collapse unless there is a credible military option," Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman Avi Pazner said in Jerusalem.

Israeli officials said they had not been formally notified of the PLO's latest proposal, whereby the guerrillas would evacuate Beirut within 15 days of the arrival of an international peacekeeping force.

"Unless we see indications on the ground that the PLO is ready to leave, we remain skeptical," said an Israeli official in Jerusalem who refused to be named. "Until now all we have heard are words and more words and we don't believe them any more."

The warplanes struck after "repeated cease-fire violations" by the guerrillas and all the jets returned safely to Israel, the Tel Aviv command said.

The planes bombed near the Lebanese prime ministry, collapsing two four-story apartment buildings in rapid divebombing sorties that shattered a 30-hour lull in the war.

The buildings were on Assi Street in the Sanaya area, where sources close to the PLO said guerrilla security offices were located. PLO chief Yasser Arafat was seen in another section of west Beirut at the time of the bombing and Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan was in suburban Baabda.

There was no immediate word on casualties in the bombing. But ambulances rushed victims to the American University hospital from the bombed buildings, which are about 300 yards from Wazzan's office.

One gunboat salvo struck near the abandoned beachfront Summerland Hotel about a half mile south of west Beirut's downtown. Guerrillas fired massive barrages of anti-aircraft fire but they scored no apparent hits.

Government sources in Jerusalem said earlier that Israel was giving Habib time to negotiate a PLO withdrawal. Habib met again today with Lebanese officials, who said the Palestine Liberation Organization was ready to leave within 15 days of the arrival of a multinational peace force.

Police said 12,000 people streamed out of west Beirut on foot and in bumper-to-bumper traffic Thursday after Israeli forces opened one exit for eastbound travel, and that the exodus was continuing this morning. But Israel maintained its 12-day-old blockade of food, water and power supplies to the 480,000 civilians believed remaining in west Beirut.

Correspondents in Beirut said Israeli tanks had dug in about 1.2 miles north of the Beirut international airport near the Henry Chehab Lebanese army barracks in order to tighten a noose around the Palestinian refugee camp of Bourj el-Barajneh, a major PLO stronghold.

But PLO spokesman Mahmoud Labadi said Israeli armored forces pulled out of the barracks and rolled back to the golf club ground near the airport.

Labadi also said the Israeli tank push to seize the mid-city horse racetrack was repulsed and the Israelis "could not advance one single inch. They are back at their original positions."

Labadi admitted, however, that Israeli troops were in the pinewood forest behind the race grounds and that they more or less controlled the seaside Ouzai area north of the airport, three miles south of downtown west Beirut.

The 30-acre track abuts the main crossing point into west Beirut.

Reagan Says Tax Hike 'Price We Have To Pay'

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who says he had to swallow hard before calling for higher taxes, is having little luck convincing some conservative allies in the House to help him win a $98.9-billion election-year tax increase.

A tax boost is the "price we had to pay" to win further spending cuts in a campaign to reduce interest rates, Reagan said in a letter to columnist John Lofton, which was the subject of a copyrighted story in today's Washington Times.

Reagan recalled the coalition of House Republicans and conservative Democrats that produced major tax and spending victories last year. "We found we could not put last year's coalition together (again) unless we agreed to some increases in revenue," he wrote.

"Personally, I had to swallow very hard. I believe in 'supply side,' and that tax increases slow the recovery," Reagan wrote. "I'm also determined that we haven't had all the spending or tax cuts we're going to get," he added.

The letter was an effort by Reagan to put down a growing conservative rebellion against the tax increase. Another move was to summon more than 50 congressmen to the White House on Thursday for a little friendly persuasion. Some of their leaders went away still saying the tax increase is poison.

Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., told reporters that under no circumstances could he support the tax bill. "It's an abomination, it's counterproductive to everything the president believes in and stands for."

Reps. William Dannemeyer and John Rousselot, both R-Calif., agreed.

All sides in the tax debate say there is little chance the tax increase can become law unless at least half the 192 GOP members of the House support it. About 80 of them have signed a letter to Reagan saying they will oppose the bill on grounds it runs counter to the economic program passed last year.

Meanwhile, the Senate-House conference committee that is writing a compromise version of the tax bill approved a higher tax on employers to finance unemployment compensation. It would cost employers an extra $1.20 per month per worker.

But the panel delayed until next week consideration of a plan to provide an additional 10 to 13 weeks of unemployment benefits — to a maximum of 49 to 52 weeks — for many of the nation's jobless. Republican leaders hope such a benefits increase would make the tax bill easier for some lawmakers to accept.

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

THE REDLANDS, Fla. (AP) — Jack Kassewitz Jr. left his simple refuge in southwestern Dade County three weeks ago to help lead the fight against a state-ordered hunt aimed at thinning a herd of flood-threatened Everglades deer.

But the highly publicized effort left him with some bitterness toward nationally known animal rights activist Cleveland Amory, who flew in from New York to join him.

While hunters killed 730 deer in the hunt on July 18-19, 18 deer were rescued in an effort that was aborted midway because of a lack of manpower and resources. Three of the rescued deer have since died.

And the union of Kassewitz and Amory, the magazine columnist who heads the Fund For Animals Inc., was left in discord. "Amory zipped into town making lots of promises and left us with a bad taste in our mouth," said Kassewitz, 35, who lives with his wife, Dody, and their 2-year-old son on a 5½-acre sanctuary that includes dogs, deer, llamas and even zebras. "He also left owing a lot of money."

Kassewitz said the effort cost $8,000 for airboats, animal tranquilizers and helicopters.

"We didn't just zip in and zip out, leaving Mr. Kassewitz holding the bag," responds Marian Probst, board secretary for the Fund. She said the Fund pays its bills, and notes that it spent $500,000 to move 577 burros by helicopter from the Grand Canyon in 1980-81.

Amory delighted reporters covering the hunt with his one-liners — "I hope that when these people (who ordered the hunt) get to heaven, they find that God is a deer" and "After I've shot a few hunters, maybe I'll be able to see their side of it" — and now his targets include Kassewitz.

Amory says that while his group is well-versed in saving animals, Kassewitz was a liability because of his inexperience. He calls Kassewitz "a very nice, very emotional young man" who made a "very stupid charge" in claiming Amory did not pay his share.

Kassewitz countered: "Amory pledged (up to) $15,000 and he gave us $1,500. He left us holding the bag."

Another group donated $1,000, but all that's left to Kassewitz are the six deer on his sanctuary — the other nine were moved to a sanctuary in Palm Beach County — and $4,000 in unpaid bills for his Florida Wildlife Rescue Team.

Kassewitz said he hopes donations from sympathizers will relieve the financial problems of his team, which he says survives on a week-to-week basis.

Besides six deer, Kassewitz's menagerie includes injured animals from dozens of less-publicized rescue efforts across the state. "I've helped 14,000 animals as a rehabilitator, and that's what I love," he said in a recent interview. "You know what you're dealing with — what you see is what you get. Animals don't lie."

Unemployment Is Up To 9.8 Percent

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate pushed closer to the 10 percent level in July, hitting a 9.8 percent rate, the highest in 41 years, the government reported today.

The jobless rate had held nearly steady as the recession continued through the spring — rising only from 9.4 percent in April to 9.5 percent in May and June. But today's Labor Department report was filled with newly discouraging figures.

In July, the report said, about 10.8 million Americans were officially unemployed — actively looking for jobs but not finding them — about 360,000 more than in June. About 1.5 million more have given up, the government reported last month.

July's jobless rate for adult males, who make up the bulk of the nation's blue-collar workers, rose to 8.8 percent, a post-World War II record. Unemployment for blacks held steady at 18.5 percent, although the jobless rate for black teen-agers declined slightly to 49.7 percent from June's 52.6 percent.

Unemployment rates rose 0.3 percentage point to 8.7 percent for whites and to 8.4 percent for adult women of all races.

Nuclear Freeze Loses In House By 204-202

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the House of Representative's dramatic rejection of a nuclear weapons freeze proposal "signals to the Soviet Union" America's support for his arms-control policy.

In a blow to the nuclear freeze movement, the House voted 204-202 against the resolution Thursday night.

Then it proceeded to approve 273-125 a White House-backed substitute that makes no mention of a freeze but instead supports U.S.-Soviet negotiations now under way in Geneva to reduce strategic arms.

Reagan said the House action "provides strong support for our negotiators" in Geneva. He said it "signals to the Soviet Union the American people's determination to seek peace through arms control agreements that will effectively reduce the nuclear arsenals of both sides."

The "statesmanlike position," as Reagan put it, was adopted after nine hours of emotional debate on the House floor, capped by shouts from freeze supporters and opponents watching the see-saw vote.

The voting on the non-binding resolution came a day before the 37th anniversary of the atomic bombing of Hiroshima, an attack noted by numerous speakers.

Although it was the first major national loss for the grassroots freeze movement, its leaders said they were not disheartened.

"We are disappointed," said Randy Kehler, national coordinator of the freeze campaign, told a Capitol news conference. But he said the close margin "demonstrates the great progress which the freeze campaign has made."

"The real vote, however, will come this fall," Kehler added. One American voter in four will have a chance to express opinions on the freeze since referenda are expected to be on the ballots of seven states and a number of cities.

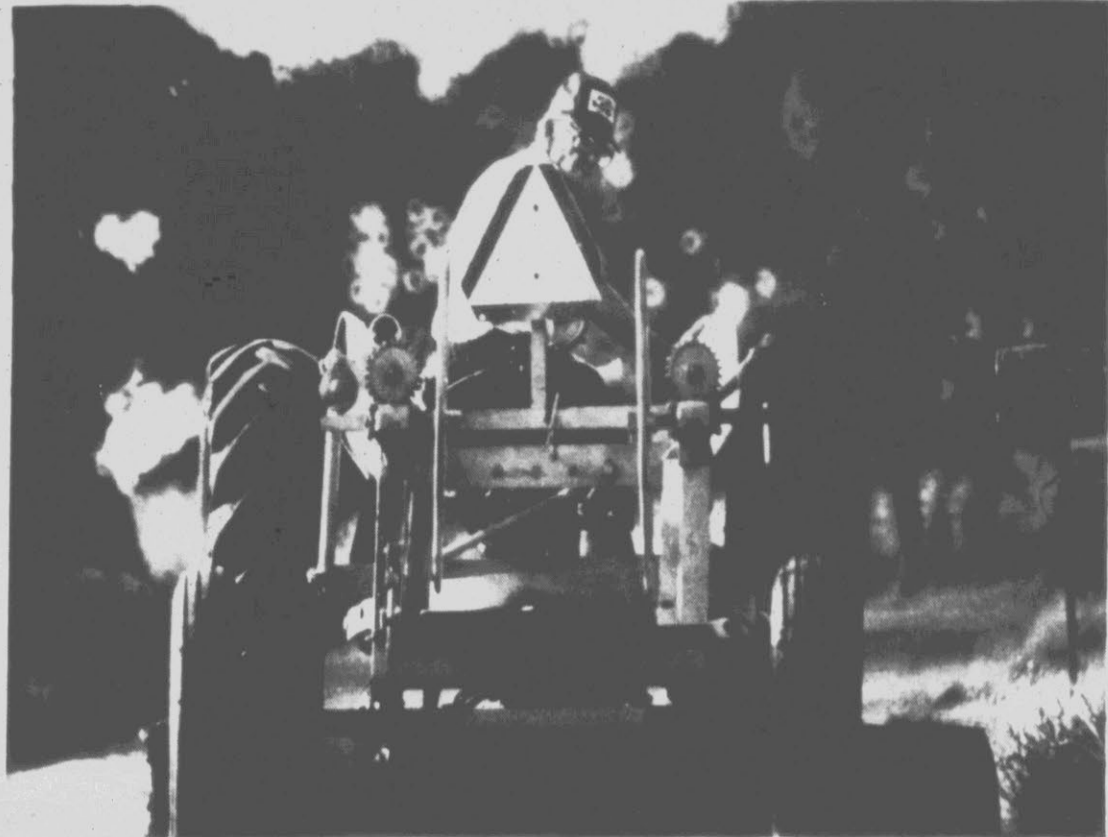

The defeated freeze proposal called for an immediate halt to the production, testing and deployment of nuclear weapons. The Republican-sponsored substitute urged efforts to achieve "an equitable and verifiable agreement which freezes strategic forces at equal and substantially reduced levels."

Kehler and Rep. Edward Markey, D-Mass., attributed the narrow loss to intense administration lobbying. "The White House pulled out every inside tool they had," Markey said.

Throughout the day, Reagan made several phone calls to try to win votes for the decision that both sides agreed would be very close.

In a last-minute letter to Rep. William Broomfield, R-Mich., chief sponsor of the substitute proposal, Reagan said approval of the freeze "would undercut our negotiators by suggesting to the Soviets that we would be willing to accept something less than the reductions we have proposed."

Roads Deteriorate After Oklahoma Scandal Case

shape before Oklahoma's commissioner scandal led to a cleanup in county government. (AP Laserphoto) largest case of government fraud in U.S. history. Hundreds of commissioners were convicted or agreed to plead guilty to submitting vouchers for non-existent materials, splitting the funds with material suppliers or padding the costs of road materials.

The Oklahoma Legislature's response to the scandal included creation of county purchasing agents, who have taken the financial responsibility away from commissioners.

As a result, commissioners elected since the scandal are working to improve their images and playing things by the book.

Two-thirds of Oklahoma residents live outside urban areas. State-maintained highways form the major links between the state's 982 towns and cities, but county-maintained roads, which generally are secondary roads, are lifelines for the hardy souls who staked a claim to this dry land, held it during the Depression and continue to work it for a living.

County commissioners oversee road maintenance in their districts, and in the past they had a free hand in dispatching road crews, residents say. The commissioners realized they could point to the roads as tangible accomplishments at re-election time.

Prosecutors and current commissioners agree there's little evidence the commissioners had criminal intent in doing illegal road work. It's more likely they didn't know which roads could be maintained by the county.

Evelyn Orth, chairwoman of the Board of Commissioners of Cleveland County, is aware that work on private roads has been done in the past.

"If the commissioners had only followed the rules when they were set up and not spoiled the citizens the way they did, then we wouldn't be in such a mess," she said.

Mrs. Orth has asked the attorney general's office to define what is a county-maintained road. Until the ruling is made, county road work has been virtually halted.

Baird isn't waiting. He and some neighbors bought a $600 grader and take turns dragging it behind a tractor to smooth the road. They're also raising "roughly $3,000" to buy gravel.

"We've been doing a pretty fair job ourselves. ... We don't want the county out here anymore," said Baird, 58.

Soon after accounts of Baird's plight were published in an area newspaper, he contacted The Associated Press and said a county crew appeared one day to work on the road.

Mrs. Orth, County Manager Carl Remus and Commissioner Ken Wilson — in whose district Baird lives — said they had no explanation for the crew's appearance.

The new commissioners "keep telling us the road is private and wasn't accepted into the county's road system," Baird said. "But I think it's just how you want to read the law."

"One neighbor said she'd lived here nine years and the county never had any questions about the thing before."

In north-central Oklahoma's Payne County, Commissioners Kenneth Nelson and Lee Ray Stiles say they've had requests for road maintenance in housing additions. Nelson said he's been told the former commissioner had "thrown a little gravel" on roads, but he refuses to do even that.

"I know some driveways have been done in the past, but (now) we don't go past the entrance," Nelson said.

To the southwest in Comanche County, Commissioner Frank Hawthorne says "there are too many people who ask for this type of a favor not to suspect that this was a common practice in past county administrations."

"These people come up to me and ask to have a driveway graveled. ... And when I tell them no, they really get upset," he said.

others, though, Teddy had always been an "easygoing, gentle man; everybody who knew him loved him. I was the only person who could bring out his anger."

The two split up in April and on May 3, Teddy took William with him to Florida, she said. He had called and said he wanted to see Teddy and their other son, 5-year-old Jonathan.

"I took them over to spend the night and was going to pick them up the next day when I got off work," Mrs. Flinchum said.

Shoots His Son And Then Self

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Minnie Pearl Flinchum said she pleaded with her husband, Teddy Flinchum, in a long-distance telephone conversation Tuesday afternoon, asking him to please return their 2-year-old son William.

She told him she'd go along with granting him custody of the child, if only he would bring their son back to Greensboro from Florida, she said.

Later that evening she wrote her husband a letter saying she'd give their marriage another try, and that perhaps professional counseling would help.

The letter was mailed to her husband's parent's house in Orlando, Fla., but there wasn't a reply.

On Wednesday, Teddy Bruce Flinchum, 30, apparently shot and killed William and himself in a motel room in New Smyrna Beach, 50 miles northeast of Orlando.

Flinchum left a note in the room, but New Smyrna authorities refused to disclose its contents Thursday.

Mrs. Flinchum, 24 said the note her husband left was more like a poem.

"It was bitter and full of anger," said Mrs. Flinchum, who learned the note's contents earlier Thursday in a conversation with New Smyrna police.

Although she could not recall the message word for word, Mrs. Flinchum said, the tone echoed the strife-married life she shared with Teddy.

"He just didn't want his son in a world that was full of hatred and violence and sex in the streets," she said. "That nobody seemed to stick by their (marriage) vows anymore."

The years she spent with her husband, whom she had known since childhood, were often filled with heated arguments, she said.

Mrs. Flinchum said that, to

While working second-shift as a waitress at the Waffle House, she got a call from Teddy saying he had taken Jonathan to his grandmother's house but that he was taking William and never coming back.

"We had split up so many times before," she said, "We just couldn't get along; we just constantly fought. He said that because I wouldn't go back to him I had hurt him, and now he was going to hurt me."

Double Ring Vows Performed Saturday

Mary Celestia Deloatch of Raleigh, formerly of Greenville, and Willie C. Lewis Jr. of Fayetteville were united in marriage Saturday at four o'clock in St. Gabriel's Catholic Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jerry Sherba.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lottie L. Deloatch of Greenville and the late Mr. Allen J. Deloatch. The bridegroom is the son of Sgt. Maj. and Mrs. Willie C. Lewis of Fayetteville.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Calvin Deloatch. She wore a formal gown of white chiffon over peau de sole designed with a V-neckline outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was enhanced with re-embroidered alencon lace that continued over the shoulders. The fitted sleeves were fashioned of chiffon and alencon lace accentuated with a split bishop sleeve overlay and finished with alencon lace cuffs. Re-embroidered alencon lace encircled the waistline that extended to form a matching lace peplum in the back. The flared chiffon skirt extended to a chapel length train. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion edged in scalloped pearls accented with silk Venise lace appliques held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in silk Venise lace. She carried a bouquet of white carnations, daisies and roses.

Serving as maid of honor was Stephanie Griffin of Greenville, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length yellow A-line gown with a cape collar. She carried a yellow mun surrounded with lace and a yellow bow. The bride was Evangeline Adams of Baltimore, Md., cousin of the bride. She wore a blue gown and carried a flower like that of the maid of honor.

The flower girl was Col- esha Maye of Greenville. She wore a miniature copy of the bride's gown and carried a white basket of summer flowers. The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of aqua blue with long sleeves and wrist corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of pink which had short sleeves with a white corsage.

Best man was Benjamin R. Pitt of Fayetteville, cousin of the bridegroom. Usher was Charles Gorham of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Selvia Forbes of Greenville and soloist, Evangeline Adams.

The wedding was directed by Lucille Gorham.

A reception was given by the mother of the bride and friends at Saint Gabriel's School Auditorium. Cake was cut by Celestia Adams of Baltimore, aunt of the bride, and punch was poured by Shonita Maye of Greenville. The refreshment table was decorated with an arrangement of silk flowers with white candles.

The bride is a graduate of J.H. Rose High School and received her B.S. degree at Johnson C. Smith University of Charlotte. She also attended N.C. State University in Raleigh. She is working at the First Union Bank in Raleigh.

The bridegroom graduated from Reid Ross High School and attended Fayetteville State University in Fayetteville. He is now employed at Jonbill Inc. in Raleigh. The couple will live in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Knoxville, Tenn.

Dear Abby

Smoke Alarms May Save Others

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last week a man here in Dayton lost his wife and three children in a fire. The fire chief said a smoke alarm might have saved them.

It hit me hard, Abby, because I lost my three daughters in a fire, wrote to you, and you printed my letter. Please run it again. My three daughters are gone, and that man's three sons plus his wife are gone, but if a rerun of my letter can save one life, it will be worth the space.

By the way, Abby, I'm getting along just great. Thank you very much.

VIRGINIA IN DAYTON

DEAR VIRGINIA: Here's your letter — it's worth the space:

(Aug. 30, 1981)

DEAR ABBY: Last Memorial Day our house caught fire. Our three daughters were asleep upstairs, and my husband and I were asleep in the downstairs bedroom. The fire spread so fast and the smoke was so thick we weren't able to get the children. Melinda, 5, was dead on the scene; Suzanne, 2, was dead on arrival at the hospital; and Tonya, 7, was in a coma for two days. She died without coming out of it.

My husband and I still can't believe our little girls are gone. Maybe if we had had a smoke alarm we would still have our children.

While Tonya was in a coma, we were expecting the worst, so we willed her kidneys to the organ bank so that two children who needed a kidney could have them. That gave us some comfort.

Please print this. It's too late for us, but it may save some other parents from having to go through what we went through.

STILL GRIEVING IN DAYTON

DEAR ABBY: I am a sort of unofficial "office manager" by virtue of the fact that I have seniority. (I've been here for 21 years.) There are six girls in this office. Our boss is really the office manager, but he leaves a lot of the details to me.

We recently hired a new secretary. She is a nice person and came well-recommended, but she comes to work at 8 a.m. (like the rest of us), fixes coffee for herself (we have a coffeemaker with cream and sugar here, compliments of the office), but she also brings cottage cheese and bagels, and sometimes hard-boiled eggs and fruit, and she has her breakfast here. She is rarely finished before 8:45 because she brings the morning paper with her to read while she eats.

Do you think she's out of line? She's paid to work from 8 to 4. No location or names, please.

UNOFFICIAL OFFICE MANAGER

DEAR UNOFFICIAL: She's paid to work from 8 to 4, so at 8 she should start working — not eating.

***

DEAR ABBY: "No reunions," said the person who had no desire to go back and see the classmates who snubbed him (her?) in high school. I know exactly how that person feels.

I was lonely and miserable in high school, too, but I lost some weight, bought some sensational clothes, borrowed a Mercedes and went to my 25th reunion.

All the cute, popular girls who had snubbed me when I didn't have a friend (or a date) showed up looking old and faded. I was the belle of the ball! You should have seen the men line up to dance with the attractive, sultry brunette I had become.

Revenge is sweet. I say, "Don't get mad. Get even!"

Soviets Can't Lose

It is clear that the United States policy in regard to the construction of a Soviet pipeline to feed natural gas to Western Europe is in deep trouble.

France, Italy and West Germany have defied an embargo on United States' licensed technology for construction of the line. Now England has joined in defying the Reagan embargo order. Four British firms were ordered to honor $236 million in contracts.

Undoubtedly the British government did not have an easy decision to make in this matter. Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher has a good working relationship with President Reagan. At the darkest moments of the Falkland Island war, the United States came down on the side of the British with no equivocation. It was a costly move to the United States in terms of damaged relations with South American neighbors.

Given the major show of support from the Americans in the Falkland Islands dispute, one wonders why Great Britain would side against us in what is becoming a bitter economic encounter. It is likely the British feel that, while they badly need the support of the United States, they need good relations with their European neighbors even more. The feeling is obviously very strong in Western Europe that the Soviet gas is needed to fuel the economy. Reagan, on the other hand, believes that alternatives can be developed and buying the Soviet gas will only strengthen the Red economy. The Western nations are digging in on this one and the Soviets can't lose.

Waiting For Better Times

Badly as many communities need the proceeds from a proposed $300 million state bond issue for water and sewer projects, Gov. Hunt has acted sensibly in putting off an election until a later date.

Taxpayers are acutely aware of the huge amount of interest that would have to be paid on the bonds at today's high rates. There is also real rebellion against any new government spending. Thus putting the bond issue up for election in November would have been inviting its defeat.

The needs which the bond issue addresses are real enough, and they will become more acute. Getting the bonds approved, however, must await better times.

AND THEY ARE STILL FIZZING!

BY ART BUCHWALD

Hiding The Good Wine

EDITOR'S NOTE: Art Buchwald is recycling some of his best columns whilst he and his family soak up the sun and enjoy the soft sea breeze of the Falkland Islands, otherwise known as "Maggie's Vineyard."

Not all the revelations in the Woodward-Bernstein version of Nixon's last 100 days are unsympathetic to him. For example, one thing that struck me was an item that the former President was a wine buff and preferred a very expensive Chateau Margaux. When he went cruising on his yacht Sequoia, he instructed his stewards to serve the Margaux wrapped in a towel to obscure the label, while they served his guests on board a cheap vintage Bordeaux.

Some might think that Mr. Nixon was being petty, but anyone who knows the pleasures of a great wine like Chateau Margaux can appreciate why the former President wouldn't want to waste it on the people he invited aboard the Sequoia.

I have always felt the same way about my good wine. Several years ago, I was given a gift by Baron Philippe Rothschild — a case of Chateau Mouton Rothschild 1955. The nectar at that time sold for about $40 a bottle. (The rule of any newspaper syndicate is that I cannot accept any gift that I can't eat or drink in 24 hours. Since I figured I could drink a case in 24 hours if I really tried, I never bothered to return it.)

But I didn't drink it. I stashed it away in the cellar, carefully placing each bottle on its side with the labels face up so I could go down at night and stare at my treasure.

The trouble with having a case of rare wine is that you don't know anybody worthy of serving it to.

Every time someone came to the house for dinner, I would greet him at the door

Once I was working on a television show with an important Hollywood producer and writer in my home. My wife fixed us a sandwich lunch. When we walked into the dining room I discovered to my horror that she had opened one of the bottles of Mouton Rothschild.

Without thinking, I screamed at her, "How could you open a bottle of Mouton Rothschild for these bums?"

The TV show went down the drain. I did open a bottle for my daughter's 18th birthday, and another when a French friend from Paris visited me. So that left me with nine bottles to count before I went to sleep.

Then the Vietnam war riots started and all discipline broke down in our house. Our children had turned rebellious and nobody was talking to anybody. Strangers in blue jeans with beards and clenched fists kept walking in and out of the house. I forgot all about my wine cellar.

But one day in 1973, I went up to the attic to find a suitcase. I took a flashlight and as I was shining it around, I saw a pile of glass in the corner of the attic. I went over to it. There were nine empty bottles with Chateau Mouton Rothschild labels lying on the floor. Apparently, during one of my absences, the flower children had had a wine party in the attic.

I let out a scream and my wife rushed upstairs. She found me on my knees sobbing and pounding on the floor. "What I have I done? What has happened?"

It's been years, but I still haven't gotten over it. Every and mentally say to myself, "This bum wouldn't know a Chateau Mouton Rothschild from a bottle of Manischewitz."

As the years went by my wine became more valuable, but harder to open. My biggest fear was that if I served a bottle of it and my guests made no comment, I would go berserk and scream at them. "Do you fools realize you're drinking an $80 bottle of wine?" My second fear was that there would be some guests who would recognize it for what it was, and become so enthused I'd have to open a second bottle which would deplete my treasure.

Hanky-Panky Suspicions

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Remember the last time the prime rate was as low as 15 percent? It was the week before the 1980 presidential election.

With the 1982 congressional elections just three months away, interest rates are falling again from their extraordinarily high levels. And, once again suspicions are growing that somebody's playing politics with the economy.

Charges of election-year economic hanky-panky surface every political season. Heading the list of suspects are usually the president of the United States and the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

The nation's central bank influences the course of interest rates through its control of the nation's supply of money and credit. The president influences the head of central bank through the power of the Oval Office.

And, as is customary, the president's men and the bank proclaim total innocence.

"I have to grant you, people have suspicious minds," a senior official at the bank acknowledged this week after the prime rate banks charge corporate customers sank to 15 percent, the lowest level since late October 1980.

That is pure coincidence, insisted the Fed official. "We are neutral. Our policies are not colored by the political climate."

"I think it's just good luck," a Reagan administration official said of the interest rate slide. "It's one of those things that mystifies everybody."

Another administration official added: "Does this administration have a desire to get interest rates down before the election? Of course." But its political desires just happen to "coincide" with an economic policy that finally is paying off, he said.

Experts outside the administration tend to agree with the Fed and the administration.

"Anyone who thinks the Fed can control things so well is out of his mind," says

Barry Bosworth, an economist with the Carter administration.

The Fed is an obvious target for charges of political tampering because it exercises more direct control over the economy than any other institution in the country. And, it's no secret that high interest rates have become the No. 1 problem facing the economy and the bane of congressional incumbents.

Over the years, the Fed has stimulated economic growth by making credit plentiful and interest rates low; and it has thrown the economy into recessions by making credit tight and interest rates high. Both cycles also have produced damaging byproducts: high inflation during the booms and high unemployment during the busts. Over the last two decades, both problems have been worsening.

Critics of the Fed charge that the bank traditionally has fostered booms just before elections by speeding up the growth of money, and then when the election is past, it cracks down again to restrain inflation. This pattern is of obvious benefit to incumbents in Congress, to whom the Fed is ultimately responsible.

Some Republicans accused Fed Chairman Paul Volcker of playing politics in 1980. They say Volcker tried to help the man who gave him his job, Jimmy Carter, first, by getting interest rates down, and then, by pumping up the economy before the November election. The prime rate, which hit 20 percent that April, was 14.5 percent just before the election. Six weeks later, the prime rate had jumped to a record 21.5 percent. Whether the charges are true or not, Carter wasn't re-elected.

Now, some Democrats think Volcker is helping the Republicans.

Fed officials deny the allegations. Since the fall of 1979, they argue, Volcker has consistently maintained a policy of fighting inflation with a tight-money policy that has meant high interest rates and a severe recession.

Jury Trials Cost

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — This practice of trial by jury can get expensive. In court, as in business, time is money and juries take up a lot of time.

First the court has to pick through a pool of potential jurors to find just the right ones. Then the judge has to spend a good amount of time explaining the law to these laymen. There are interruptions during the trial when the jury has to be sent out of the courtroom so a matter of law can be discussed. There are the lengthy legal explanations to the jurors before they begin their deliberations and then all that time they spend locked up in that little room. And how many times have we heard of enough jurors becoming ill to cause a mistrial? All of this proves very expensive when the overhead of running a courtroom is considered.

So, the Governor's Crime Commission wants the Legislature to propose a state constitutional amendment that would let defendants who are represented by counsel waive their right to a trial by jury. The Constitution currently says that all Superior Court defendants get a trial by jury whether or not they want it. In fiscal year 1980-81, that amounted to 4,264 cases, 6 percent of all the Superior Court cases.

Putting the money question aside, the defendant in many cases might prefer to be tried by a judge. Allen Briggs, counsel to the N.C. Academy of Trial Lawyers, says "every criminal lawyer has probably got a case he would have liked to try before a judge rather than a jury."

It is thought that judges are less susceptible to prejudicial and highly emotional evidence and the grandstanding of a prosecutor. A judge — supposedly — is objective enough to put out of his mind evidence he knows the court wasn't supposed to hear. As Superior Court Judge Robert Collier of Statesville says: "If the defendant and his lawyer want to be tried by a judge, why make him face a jury where there are tougher rules of evidence, the process is slower and more expensive?" Collier's colleague on the crime commission, Rep. Joe Hackney of Chapel Hill, says there's a good reason to deny the right of trial by judge — "It is a watering down of the right to a jury trial."

Hackney and Briggs said lawyers fear that if the defendant can request a trial by judge, he'll be coerced into doing so. "It creates the situation where the district attorney or the judge can put a lot of pressure on the defendant to waive his trial by jury," Briggs said.

"We now have pressure — sometimes not so subtle — in plea-bargainings whereby the defendant is advised that if he pleads not guilty and goes to trial and loses, they're going to stick it to him." On the other hand, if he agrees to plead guilty, that will be taken into account in his favor when he is sentenced, Briggs said.

Hackney foresaw situations where a prosecutor or a judge had three cases to try and only two days of court left. In such a bind for time, he said, they would naturally apply pressure for a trial by judge. Collier says the lawyers have a legitimate concern but that he's sure there would be few judges who would use such pressure.

Federal courts and those of several other states currently allow trial by judge. But when the issue came before the General Assembly in 1981, it died in the state House.

The crime commission would like the issue to go to the voters in the November 1984 election and if OK'd become law on Jan. 1, 1985.

Other Editors Say Try Performance

(Washington Daily News)

The North Carolina Crime Commission very rightfully seeks ways and means to improve justice in our state. This group has a big responsibility and a bigger mission to fulfill.

Recently the Crime Commission spent much time apparently discussing the wisdom of asking the next legislature to pass more stringent laws regarding such infractions as tax evasion and cheating under our tax laws.

It is not the passage of more laws that we really need. What we really need is better performance and better administration of justice under the laws we already have.

We again look at the Paroles Commission, and from news accounts we read of what happened at the Crime Commission, not one word was reported in regard to the apparent lax attitude of the Paroles Commission in granting paroles to inmates against good solid advice of people familiar with the case in question.

More stringent laws may be needed. But they are not needed as badly as are better enforcement, better administration, and purer justice under the laws we already have.

We have pointed out many times that it is not the severity of punishment that tells the big story in this search for purer justice. It is the surety of punishment. So long as we fail to impress leadership with that fact, we are not facing the real issue squarely.

The N.C. Crime Commission could play a real part in the needed story of North Carolina. But it is only whittling around the edges when it talks of more stringent laws for tax evaders while looking at the many dangerous prisoners walking around free and unbridled with the Paroles Commission apparently not considering whether or not an inmate can be rehabilitated. Some just cannot and never will be in that position.

We urge the Crime Commission to take the bull by the horns and face up squarely and completely to the real issues bothering people of our state. Our people are losing very little sleep because John Doe did not pay as much taxes as he should have paid. But people are genuinely concerned about the dangerous people out of prison when they should not be.

Fear And That Budget Deficit

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — What is this fear that everyone seems to have about federal budget deficits? A fear that pushes down stock prices, pushes up interest rates, and creates such uncertainty?

Since deficits continue to grow in defiance of White House and Congressional efforts, it is entirely possible you may begin hearing a new approach — that deficits aren't the danger they're said to be.

Plenty of factual evidence is available that would seem to document that thesis. It was offered, in fact, earlier this year by Murray Weidenbaum, chairman of the President's council of economic advisers.

Weidenbaum wasn't seeking to defend deficits — as much as to explain how they could be defended — when he presented his research before a meeting of the Conference Board, made up largely of business people.

With fiscal year deficit projections then ranging from $98.6 billion in 1982 down to $82.9 billion in 1984,

Weidenbaum observed that "they are not unprecedented when measured against the size of the economy."

In the 1975-1976 period, he noted, the relative size of the federal deficit was larger than the 1982-1984 projections. "Specifically, the deficit was 4 percent of gross national product in fiscal 1976 compared to our current estimate of 3.2 percent in fiscal 1982."

The deficits then foreseen weren't unique as a percentage of private savings, which are necessary to finance federal deficits. In fiscal 1976 the deficit represented 22.5 percent of total private saving, compared to 19.1 percent in fiscal 1982, the council chairman said.

He offered still another perspective: In the European Economic Community, general government deficits in relation to gross national product, have averaged much higher than U.S. public sector deficits.

But having said this, Weidenbaum then warned against complacency. Deficits, he said, must be measured against the condition of the economy as well as against the economy's size.

By that latter standard, a very different picture emerges.

If, as the Reagan administration projects and promises, the private sector grows later this year and into 1983, it will need money. How will it get that money if federal government financing crowds it out?

Interest rates are falling now largely because the private sector has less need for funds, since it is mired in recession. What is likely to happen to rates when the private sector seeks to grow again?

"In fiscal 1983 and beyond, when we expect rapid growth in the economy," Weidenbaum told the Conference Board, "substantial reductions in the budget deficit ... will be very much in order."

With the deficit now officially projected at $115 billion, and much higher by individual members of the administration, there may be a clue to Weidenbaum's resignation. And a clue to private sector fears.

MENACE OF FEAR

A young police officer who had just defused a bomb left by a terrorist in a public place was asked how he sustained himself in such moments of extreme danger. He replied that he did so by repeating to himself words which his mother had taught him and led him to believe: "Yea, though I walk through the shadow of death I will fear no evil; for thou art with me."

A group of American psychologists at their annual convention adopted a report containing, among other things, this statement: "The gNeatest of all preventatives of fear is religious faith, as evidenced by thousands of cases studied."

In everyday life, this means that the less fear we have, the greater our achievements shall be. In international relations it means that our success in large measure will depend on the courage with which we can carry out just and equitable decisions. As individuals we can have peace only if we banish fear. — Elisha Douglass

Simplified, this is one of the fears:

If the Federal Reserve monetizes that deficit — that is, allows issuance of additional money to cover it — inflation is likely to worsen. If it doesn't monetize the deficit, then business is likely to be crowded out of credit markets by federal government demands.

Fear is aroused also by the seeming helplessness of government to do what it sets out to do. By its own declarations, deficit-cutting is basic to the Reagan administration program. But deficits are headed in precisely the other direction.

Moreover, the administration seems awed and surprised as anyone about the size and direction of the deficits. Repeatedly, its forecasts have been off the mark. Its midyear projection already is outdated.

Isn't a scenario likely to encourage individuals and corporations to borrow money for big ticket, long-term spending projects. Neither is it likely to inspire lenders to offer credit at lower rates.

Day Care Funds Ullman Col...

RALEIGH — Dr. Sarah T. Morrow, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, announced the allocation of $19.6 million in federal and state funding of day care services in North Carolina during fiscal year 1982-83. Of that amount, the General Assembly appropriated $6.9 million.

Pitt County received $259,027, Greene County $41,050 and Martin County $29,017.

The funds will be used by county departments of social services and the Appalachian Regional Commission child development programs to help provide day care for an estimated 13,500 children from low-income families in the state.

North Carolina was the first state to provide state day care funding for eligible low-income families. State and federal funding is allocated to all 100 counties on the basis of population.

Defenders of the Fed note that economic conditions are unique this year, namely that interest rates have remained abnormally high throughout the recession. Moreover, they say there is no evidence that the Fed is abandoning its anti-inflation policy and pumping up the economy in time for the election. Rather, the growth of money and credit is sluggish and expectations of a strong recovery this year have vanished.

So why are interest rates suddenly falling? Private economists say the reason is that the economy has grown very weak from the year-long recession and this finally has curbed individual and business appetites for credit.

Economist Bosworth believes the Fed wants to keep from becoming an election issue. The best way to do that is to prevent interest rates from going higher and resist temptations to force rates lower than private market forces would dictate based on economic conditions, he says.

Bosworth reasons that an overzealous anti-inflation policy hurt the economy more than the bank intended. Volcker can afford to ease up a little without worrying about inflation surging up again, but he doesn't want to go too far in the other direction.

An administration economist said he agrees with Bosworth that the Fed is trying to keep things on an even keel. "I think the Fed's view is to try to be neutral. It doesn't want to play any games by making things better or worse," said the economist, who did not want his name used.

But a neutral stance could be bad for the politicians if interest rates are ready to plunge on their own without prodding from the Fed, and the bank bends over backwards to avoid charges of political tampering, the economist noted.

"If the dam is about to burst," he said, "I fear the Fed will try to resist a big drop in interest rates before the election."

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The United States will ask Venezuela why it was not informed of the arrest of six American travelers who spent two weeks in a jungle town's jail for illegally entering the country, a U.S. Embassy spokesman says.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, September 7, 1982, at 6:00 p.m., in the Commissioners' Auditorium on the Second Floor of the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, North Carolina, for the purpose of conducting a public hearing to receive public input on a proposed flood plain management ordinance for Pitt County and consideration of a revised Subdivision Ordinance.

The proposed flood plain management ordinance would regulate building within the 100-year flood plain in Pitt County and is required for loans and federal flood insurance.

A public hearing will also be conducted for public input on the adoption of a revised subdivision ordinance as related to lot size, traffic circulation, drainage, and general physical development and maintenance of subdivisions.

All persons interested in the flood plain management ordinance or the subdivision ordinance are urged to attend.

Asheville Barter Firm Does A Booming Business

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — When Zack Winston opened a new Italian restaurant last year, he paid for part of his furnishings in pasta.

"It was great to pay diners for a ceiling fan or furniture," Winston said. "I really liked exchanging my products for other products I wanted, without a dime changing hands."

Winston is one of 700 members of National Commerce Exchange of Western North Carolina, an Asheville bartering company that teaches businessmen to pay for products they want by exchanging goods or services. The exchange trades for everything from televisions to trips.

The company, which trades $250,000 worth of products a month, is one of 379 National Commerce Exchange offices across the country. The Asheville office is the fastest-growing trading company in the Southeast.

Robert Johnson, owner of the Asheville franchise, says companies ranging from small family-operated firms to multi-million-dollar corporations can benefit from bartering.

"My theory is if you can't buy it on trade, you really don't need it," said Johnson, 33, a former stockbroker. "Trading for the products you need instead of paying cash saves you money and increases your cash flow. The money you would have spent to buy something stays in your company's account instead."

"We have developed a highly sophisticated secondary economy that is beneficial and profitable for our members," he said. "It generates additional business for companies, plus it increases their cash flow."

The practice of exchanging goods and services is as old as mankind. But organized barter between companies is a new concept, Johnson said, started in 1979 with the founding of the Sashington, D.C.-based National Commerce Exchange.

"Until recently, bartering was a one-on-one thing," Johnson said. "An individual would give something to someone and get something in return."

"But bartering between companies can get a little more complicated than that," he said. "Finding a company that needs a product or service that you want to trade isn't always simple. That's where the commerce exchange comes in."

Johnson said when a member of the exchange wants to trade goods or services for other products, the member calls the exchange. The exchange handles the transaction from that point.

Business owners can agree to trade any amount of their merchandise to other exchange members, then receive a trade-dollar credit. The trade-dollar credit can be used to purchase other goods or services on the exchange. The exchange keeps records of a company's debits and credits and sends out a statement each month listing each transaction.

Members are required to pay their own state taxes.

"The whole thing works just like a company is paying cash for products, the only difference being that products and services are changing hands instead," Johnson said. "But our book-keeping system operates the same as if cash had been used. It's all very simple for a company to keep up with."

Johnson said most of the trades his company handles are in Western North Carolina, but the office has a computer linkup with offices all over the country and their 225,000 members.

Companies pay an initial $415 membership fee and a yearly $250 renewal fee to belong to the exchange. The exchange gets 10 percent of the trade. Johnson said if the exchange fails to get a company additional business, the fees are refunded.

"The reason bartering is such a good business idea today is that it gets a company extra business and cuts back on the cash a company has to spend," he said.

"The only drawback to trading as opposed to buying with cash is that bartering takes more time," he said. "But we say if a businessman is willing to spend a little time getting what he needs, bartering can save him a lot of money."

Prosecutors Call For Lengthy Confinement

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors, arguing that John W. Hinckley Jr. should be confined indefinitely to a mental hospital, are asking a judge to rule that the presidential assailant will be dangerous "in the reasonable future."

The government's attorneys also want Hinckley to appear in open court next Monday so he can personally waive his right to a jury trial on whether he should be released.

The government's proposals, sent Thursday to U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker, provided the prosecutors' view of what should happen now to the man who shot President Reagan.

U.S. Attorney Stanley S. Harris wrote Parker that unless Hinckley's constitutional rights are safeguarded now, he could return to court in the future and seek his release on a technicality.

Parker has scheduled a hearing for Monday that originally was to determine whether Hinckley could be released from St. Elizabeths Hospital, the federal mental facility he entered June 21 after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity.

Hinckley signed a document Wednesday saying he wanted to waive his right to a hearing at which doctors from St. Elizabeths would testify that he still suffers from a severe, chronic mental disorder.

But Harris said Hinckley's written waiver was not sufficient. He asked that:

—Hinckley be brought to court Monday and advised by the judge of his rights, including the possible right to a jury trial on his release.

—Parker find, as the St. Elizabeths doctors did, that Hinckley suffers from severe mental illness, and because of the disorders he "will in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others."

—Hinckley sign a new waiver, giving up "any and all rights and privileges vested by statute, the Constitution or appellate decisions to any hearing to which I am entitled at this time. This waiver specifically includes any right I may have to a trial by jury."

"It is necessary that these procedures be carried out in a fashion that will ensure that his commitment is not subject to a later attack," Harris told the judge.

Stop Fishing To Drive Up Prices

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP) — Longhaul fishermen in the Morehead City and Beaufort areas are staying in port this week in what some are calling a strike to drive up prices they receive for their catches at local fish houses.

According to Steven Smith, a longhaul boat captain, eight crews, totaling 48 captains and crew members from the Atlantic-Sea Level area, are staying home.

Fishermen are upset because prices dropped from 20 cents a pound for croakers and spots to 15 cents, Smith said.

Another longhaul fisherman, Daniel Gaskill, said he estimated the drop in prices last week cost fishermen about $1,000 per boat.

A spokesman for the North Carolina Division of Marine Fisheries Commission said he knew crews had been called in last Wednesday, but didn't know they were still in port.

Brings Alaska Watermelons

TOK, Alaska (AP) — In this tiny crossroads community on the Alaska Highway, folks are hoping a Memphis trucker is hauling more than a load of watermelons into town this weekend. They're hoping he's bringing the seeds of a folk tradition.

Jimmy Drum, 46, is toting to Tok 3,500 pounds of juicy, green Arkansas watermelons, and Tok's eight-woman volunteer fire auxiliary is turning melon day into a festival, rustling up a guitar player, plus ice cream, hamburgers and hot dogs.

"We're trying to get him (Drum) to come back next year," says Janice Conrad, secretary of the Tok Fire Ladies Auxiliary. "We'd like to make it an annual event."

No matter that grocer Larry Weisz imports "six or eight watermelons a week" into Tok, which rhymes with smoke.

"A watermelon feed is still a pretty big deal," Weisz said. "It's a community thing, and I think it's great."

Tok is a small collection of filling stations and gift shops and home for Alaska's official welcome center. In winter, thermometers routinely read 50 below zero.

Drum arrived Wednesday in Anchorage, 250 miles southwest of Tok, in time to greet a cargo jet carrying his melons. He plans to arrive in Tok in plenty of time for this weekend's festival.

He said the idea of a watermelon festival dawned on him after a visit to southeastern Alaska three years ago. He picked Tok — where dog sledding has the same status as stock car racing in Memphis — at random off the map.

"It is just a dream, a personal fantasy. Pretty soon, it got to where I believed it myself," he said.

Mrs. Conrad expects a good turnout. If every person in town shows, there'll be 3½ pounds of watermelon apiece, she said. Tok has 600 people, the 1980 census said, but the fire department reports 1,000.

About 300 to 500 tourists also are expected, Mrs. Conrad said.

ANNIVERSARY
The Deacons' Anniversary will be celebrated at Elm Grove Free Will Baptist Church, Ayden, Sunday at 3 p.m.

The service will be led by the Rev. J.L. Wilson and the choir, ushers and congregation of New Deliverance Church. Barbecue will be served afterwards.

Income Tax Return Is 23 Years Late

ELIZAVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Hollis A. Bradford was a little late getting his income tax return — the check was in the mail.

It was in the mail for 23 years.

The retired Fleming County farmer said that when the 1959 refund for $10.36 arrived in the mail last month, it was the biggest surprise of his 81 years.

"Ordinarily, I didn't get any refund, so I didn't miss it ... I kept looking to see what it was for — it wasn't the Social Security check," Bradford said. "And, finally, I saw down there where it said what it was for, and I said, 'My Lord.'"

Bradford is good-natured about the delay, but he notes:

"If I'd owed them, it would have been 6 percent interest and 6 percent penalty, and they didn't pay me a dime," Bradford said.

Internal Revenue Service officials in Kentucky and Nashville, Tenn., said they can't figure out what happened.

"It definitely must have been an error," said an IRS employee in Nashville. "We'll have to do some checking on that ... That's almost unreal."

Cathy Hillard, public affairs secretary for the Kentucky IRS, called the check "far out ... I've never heard about it happening. I think it might have been a misprint on the check."

What did Bradford do with his new-found fortune?

"I cashed it," he said. "I figured they had had my money long enough."

Because of the incident, "I've made up my mind. I'm not going to file any more tax returns," Bradford said. "I'm 81 years old, I'd be dead before they sent another refund."

Troops Depart For Sinai Duty

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — About 160 Fort Bragg troops left Thursday for the Sinai to replace others returning from observation duty of the territory Israel captured from Egypt in their 1977 war.

The troops, part of a logistical support unit provided by First Corps Support Command (COSCOM), left Pope Air Force Base about 3 p.m. to replace about 150 returning troops, scheduled to arrive at Fort Bragg early Saturday.

They were scheduled to be joined by about 50 soldiers from the 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky. The Fort Campbell troops are scheduled to replace about 50 troops of the 82nd Airborne Division.

About 1,000 COSCOM and 82nd Airborne Division soldiers left for the mission in March and all are due home before the end of September.

Economists Disagree On Amendments

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The proposed constitutional amendment that would require a balanced federal budget is receiving support among politicians and bankers, while there is disagreement among economists about whether it would help curb inflation.

Dr. Robert Connolly, a faculty member at the department of economics at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, said the proposal "is about as good for the country as cutting the arteries is for better circulation."

"It represents nothing more than a simple solution to a complex problem," Connolly said. "As one philosopher once said, 'It's neat, simple and wrong.'"

A constitutional amendment co-sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., requiring a balanced budget was narrowly approved by the Senate Tuesday and now goes to the House for consideration.

Connolly said there are only two ways to balance the budget — through massive cuts in spending or huge tax increases. Both would only take money out of the pockets of consumers, weakening the economy.

"This (balanced budget proposal) is just a fraud," Connolly said.

Connolly said the Reagan administration can improve the economy without resorting to "foolishness." He said that with a stronger economy, the deficit would shrink because the government would be receiving more revenue from people who would be working instead of unemployed.

Besides, he said, no direct links between high deficits and inflation and unemployment have ever been established, he said.

But even economists who work in the same building in the same university disagree on the proposal.

"I'm in favor of it," said Dr. Terry Seaks, acting director of the department of economics at UNC-G.

"We have had deficits every year but one in the past 20 years," he said. "These deficits are largely responsible for inflation. A balanced budget would be one way to avoid the ruinous inflation we have been having."

Seaks said the amendment contains enough flexibility to allow deficit spending in wartime and other national emergencies.

Several North Carolina bankers say the amendment is both good politics and good economics.

Jim Melvin, chairman of 1st Home Federal Savings & Loan and former Greensboro mayor, said he favored the amendment "very strongly."

Bob Brady, president of Gate City Savings & Loan in Greensboro, said: "I don't know if the amendment will be a cure-all, but I feel it is worth trying. As a conservative, I favor the concept of a balanced budget."

"It's right sad when you need an amendment to the Constitution to get Congress to act responsibly," said John McNair, vice chairman of the board of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. in Winston-Salem. "Maybe this amendment will do it."

Suing Over His Escape Wounds

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — An inmate, shot last year following an escape from the New Hanover County prison unit, has filed suit against the Pender County sheriff, a former deputy and a state prison employee.

Ronald Hammonds, now in Raleigh's Central Prison, filed the suit against Sheriff James Bradshaw, former deputy William Anderson and Department of Corrections guard James F. Cavanaugh of the Burgaw prison unit.

Hammond filed the suit in July, alleging he was shot by Cavanaugh after he had surrendered with his hand in the air. The complaint says he then ran and was shot again and, after he stopped, was shot a third time.

The lawsuit was filed in Raleigh in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina.

More Backing School Prayers

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
The recurring battle over classroom prayer is rumbling anew in Congress, but this time with new clout — that of the president — behind the move to permit such devotions.

Aver Report Not Factual

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Ten top U.S. church leaders claim that an article in the August issue of the Reader's Digest about the World Council of Churches gives a "biased, unfair" view "unsubstantiated by facts."

The article, entitled "Karl Marx or Jesus Christ?" contends the interdenominational organization has slipped into dealing more with politics than Christian unity and is influenced by anti-Western views.

The American church leaders, at a policy-making meeting, said the article uses "superficial stereotypes and code words" to misrepresent a diverse body of Christians, variously calling them "Bible-toting," "anti-Western," "Marxist" and "leftist."

The council is a "living community of committed Christians" representing churches totaling 400 million members in more than 100 countries, with a diversity of traditions, opinions and cultures, the Americans said, adding that it seeks to deal with threatening divisions in the world out of "our common faith."

Rather than veering from the goal of Christian unity, "we are now closer together than the churches have been for centuries," the Americans said, citing a newly issued report about it. "That goal remains the vital heart of the council's life."

Signers of the statement included heads of the Episcopal Church, the Lutheran Church in America, the United Church of Christ, the United Presbyterian Church in America and top officials of various other denominations.

WORKSHOP
A vacation music workshop will be held Monday through Friday 9:30-11:30 a.m. at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church for ages 4 through rising seventh graders. Classes will include chorus, theory, bells, organ and Orff instruments. There will be no charge for the workshop and preregistration is by calling 752-3101.

Quarterly Meeting
AYDEN — Morning Star Holy Church will hold quarterly meeting this weekend.
Tonight at 7:30 p.m. a business meeting will be held. Worship service Sunday will be at 11 a.m., followed by dinner in the fellowship hall at 2:30 p.m. At 3 p.m. the pastor and congregation of St. Paul Holy Church, Kinston, will lead the service and communion will be served at 6 p.m.

There also was overwhelming public support for it, as indicated in various opinion surveys.
Over the past 20 years, in the face of court decisions prohibiting group prayer in public schools, perennial congressional efforts have been made to overturn the ban, but previously without presidential support.

President Reagan, however, instigated the proposed new measure. "No one will convince me," he says, "that a moment of voluntary prayer will harm a child or threaten a school or state."
At current hearings of the Senate Judiciary Committee on the matter, some top Protestant and Jewish spokesmen have strongly condemned the move, saying it would violate the nation's

Homecoming At Chapel

Haddock Chapel FWB Church will have its Homecoming and quarterly meeting this weekend.

The schedule is as follows: Communion Saturday at 7:30 p.m. with the pastor and congregation of Union Grove Church, Farmville, in charge of the service. Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a.m. followed by the 11 a.m. worship service led by Bishop Stephen Jones. At 2 p.m. dinner will be served in the fellowship hall. At 3 p.m. the Rev. Tyrone Turnage and the congregation of the Little Creek Church will hold a service.

WOMAN'S DAY
A Woman's Day service will be held at Popular Hill Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 11 a.m. Eldress R. Knox will be the guest speaker.

WORSHIP SERVICE
BLACK JACK — A worship service will be held Sunday at 11 a.m. at Mills Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

WOMEN'S DAY
A Women's Day service will be held at Rock Spring Free Will Baptist Church at 11 a.m. Sunday. Eldress Shirley Daniel will speak.

SPECIAL PROGRAM
The Senior Ushers of Arthur Chapel Free Will Baptist Church will present the Golden Jubiles in concert Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

historic separation of church and state.
If so, that was done regularly until 20 years ago. Classroom prayers were a widespread American custom until the Supreme Court in 1962-63 ruled that government-prescribed prayers in public schools were unconstitutional.

Seeking to overcome this ruling, which has been widely interpreted by lower courts to ban any sort of group prayers in public schools, the newly proposed constitutional amendment says:

"Nothing in this Constitution shall be construed to prohibit individual or group prayers in public schools or other public institutions. No person shall be required by the United States or by any state to participate in prayer."

U.S. religious bodies are divided about the proposal, but it has gained widening support this time. While Jewish and many mainline Protestant bodies oppose it, the move for the first time has the backing of the nation's largest religious bodies.

These include the Southern Baptists, the biggest Protestant body whose convention in June endorsed the effort; U.S. Roman Catholicism, which last month voiced support through its national administrative board; Greek Orthodox, the largest Eastern Orthodox body, whose July convention backed the proposal.

Conservative evangelical groups also are for it. Among the public, a recent Gallup poll found 79 percent of the people supporting the proposal. An earlier Harris poll found 69 percent favoring it.

Opponents of the proposal argue that group prayer would offend minorities and non-believers, putting psychological pressure on them. At the same time, opponents say prohibiting group prayer puts no pressure on children against praying privately.

Opponents also say religious affairs belong in the home and church, not the schools, and that group prayer there is contrary to the First Amendment against any law establishing a religion.

However, supporters of the school prayers say that the First Amendment also guarantees free exercise of religion and it is suppressed by federal courts banning prayer from the schoolroom.

They maintain church-state separation never has meant total exclusion of religious expression from the public sphere, as in the motto, "In God we trust" on U.S. currency, the "under God" in the pledge of allegiance, and opening prayers in Congress and many legislatures.

Supporters of the proposal say the ban on prayers has produced a totally secularized atmosphere in schools, implying religion has no place in knowledge, thus fostering non-belief.

The Rev. Dean M. Kelley, church-state expert of the National Council of Churches, testifying against the proposed amendment, also spoke of changes in the nation regarded involved in the dispute.

"Prayer in public schools is a custom characteristic of a homogeneous community and nation, but ours is no longer such. For better or worse, it is pluralistic, and the decisions of the Supreme Court were a belated recognition of the fact..."

"It is sometimes claimed that some children would never hear the name of God if they did not have the benefit of public-school prayers, but that is precisely the kind of intrusion that some parents, if they are intentionally bringing up their children in a non-theistic approach to life — as is their right — may wish to avoid."

But should a few non-conformists "be able to veto the wishes of the majority?" he asks. "In most things no," he says, but adds that in the case of religious rights, they are not subject to majority vote.

On the other hand, opponents maintain the proposed amendment would protect such rights, both of those who don't want to pray as well as those who do — by allowing it but never requiring it.

Deny Institute Bid For Hughes' Estate

HOUSTON (AP) - A state appeals court has rejected efforts by a Florida medical institute to have two "lost wills" of billionaire Howard Hughes declared valid so it can claim a share of the estate.

A Nevada court earlier refused to probate the two wills, a decision later upheld by the Nevada Supreme Court.

The 14th Texas Court of Civil Appeals on Wednesday supported a probate judge's ruling last year denying the Howard Hughes Medical Institute a share in the estate, worth as much as $2 billion.

The private research organization, located at the University of Miami, has 15 days to seek a rehearing.

Hughes died in April 1976 aboard a medical jet flying from Acapulco, Mexico, to Houston. A worldwide search failed to produce a valid will, even though more than 40 purported documents surfaced.

In November 1981, a probate court in Houston declared an aunt and 21 cousins to be the heirs to Hughes' fortune.

Urge Asylum Given Athlete

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two representatives have introduced a resolution urging the State Department to grant political asylum to Hu Na, China's top woman tennis player who defected during a tournament in California last week.

Tom Lantos, D-Calif., and Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., said that "grave consequences might befall" the 19-year-old woman if she is forced to return to China.

The State Department is reviewing Miss Hu's application for asylum. China has demanded her return and warned that cultural exchanges would suffer if her request is granted.

Some weeks earlier, news staff member Howard Weinberg was in Greenville where he interviewed attorney Tom Taft on asbestos litigation. Part of this interview was used earlier in an evening news broadcast, and Sunday's news program will go into the subject in more depth.

Says 13 Percent 'Turning Point'

WASHINGTON (AP) - Mortgage interest rates must fall to the 13 percent-14 percent range before the housing market can revive, a representative of the National Association of Realtors says.

"The consuming public cannot stand the 16 percent or 17 percent mortgage," John Wood told a House Government Operations subcommittee Thursday.

"We're so far down, we have to reach up to touch bottom," said Wood, who testified that 95 percent of the people who do not now own homes cannot afford a median-priced home.

Spy Ship On New Station

SEATTLE (AP) - A Soviet spy ship, parked off the Washington coast since mid-July, has moved to a new position, the Navy says.

Meanwhile, anti-nuclear protest groups are gearing up for the arrival of the United States' first Trident submarine.

The spy ship Gavril Sarychev showed up beyond the 12-mile international limit about three weeks ago and remained about 15 to 20 miles from the entrance of the Strait of Juan de Fuca, which divides Washington state from British Columbia.

"The last word we have is that the ship is not there," Navy spokesman Lt. Cmdr. John Marchi said Thursday.

Marchi said he could not say where the spy ship went or whether the Coast Guard was still watching the 2,700-ton Soviet intelligence-gathering vessel because such information is classified.

Anti-nuclear weapons groups are getting ready for the arrival of the USS Ohio, the first Trident submarine, which is heading toward its home base on Hood Canal at Bangor, Wash., about 20 miles northwest of Seattle. The Trident is equipped to fire ballistic missiles.

The protesters fall into two groups - those who plan to blockade the submarine illegally with small boats, and those who plan a legal "peace vigil" near the shore.

"We've been ready for four days now," said Gary Novak at the "peace blockade" headquarters at Port Townsend.

The Navy has refused to say when the Ohio will arrive, though the commander of the U.S. 3rd Fleet said Wednesday that the Navy will not try to "sneak" the ship in and will give an unspecified amount of prior notice.

Hamlet Rally Nips Pitt In Ninth, 5-4

ROCKINGHAM — Catcher Mike Moore rapped a single just out of reach of Pitt County shortstop Sammy Hodges last night and capped a two-run rally as Hamlet's Post 49 rallied for a 5-4 victory in Game Three of the Eastern finals of the American Legion playoffs.

Moore's single brought in Greg Cloninger from second base as Hamlet took a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series for the right to enter the state championships next week.

Post 39, down twice in the game, had rallied for a 5-4 lead going into the bottom of the ninth, but was unable to stop the Hamlet rally once it got going.

Again, for Pitt County, it was a question of not getting the key hits when they were needed while Hamlet did just that.

Hamlet grabbed the lead in the first inning scoring once. After one was out, Eddy Hickman walked and stole second, moving to third on an error on the play. Jerome Goodwin followed with a single, scoring Hickman.

Pitt rallied quickly, scoring twice in the top of the second for a 2-1 lead. Roger Williams opened with a single and Tom Buie followed with a hit. Both were sacrificed up and Hodges walked, loading the bases. Bill Kittrell followed with a single, scoring both Williams and Buie.

But the Pitt County lead was short-lived. Mike Moore opened the Hamlet half of the second with a double and was sacrificed to third, from where he scored on a passed ball.

Richard Heavner kept it going with a walk and Charlie Ingram singled. Hickman walked to load the bases and Goodwin followed with a single, driving in both Heavner and Ingram. That made it 4-2.

Pitt once again rallied in the fifth, scoring three times for its

5-4 lead. Mont Carter opened with a walk and stole second. After one out, Emmett Walsh lifted a pop fly into short right field. Second baseman Mike Byrd made the catch on the ball, but had it jarred loose when right fielder Todd Hunt collided with him. That allowed Walsh to reach safely, while Carter scampered all the way to third.

A wild pitch then scored Carter and another put Walsh on third. Williams walked and Buie singled, scoring Walsh. Scott Galloway followed with another walk, loading the bases and Hodges singled to score Williams.

However, the rally ended there and Pitt County went on to leave runners in scoring position in the sixth, seventh and ninth frames without getting another run.

It proved fateful. In the ninth, Hickman doubled to right center with one away, taking third on a wild pitch. Goodwin followed with a single through the draw-in infield, bringing over Hickman with the tying run. Goodwin stole up and Cloninger walked. A passed ball put them on second and third, but Alex Wallace's grounder to short was successfully relayed by Hodges in time to get Goodwin at the plate.

But Moore followed with his hit, just over the head of Hodges to score Cloninger with the game-winning run.

Goodwin led the Hamlet hitting with three, driving in four runs. Moore added two hits. Buie had two hits to pace Pitt County.

For Galloway, it was an unexpected trip to the mound and it took him several innings to get into the game — and Hamlet took advantage of it. Tyrone Gay had been the slated starter, but after throwing one pitch during his opening warmup on the mound in the bottom of the first, he complained of back pains, and Galloway was quickly brought out of the dugout — pitching without the usual extended pre-game warmup. He threw 70-odd pitches over the first three innings, but ended the game with only 140 — a definite improvement.

However, Pitt's bats were effectively silenced by the Hamlet hurlers — especially when those hits were desperately needed. Overall, Hamlet out-hit Pitt, 9-7.

The series resumes tonight at 8 p.m. in Rockingham, as Hamlet tries to extend its lead and Pitt tries to tie it up once more.

In the West, Cherryville took a 6-0 win over Asheboro last night to gain a 2-1 edge in that best-of-seven series.

$1 Million Drive For Athletics

A Staff Report
A $1,000,000 fund-raising drive to bolster the athletic department budget was announced at a morning press conference by East Carolina's new chancellor Dr. John M. Howell.

Howell said that a group of long-time supporters, headed by Dr. Ray Minges, would be in charge of the drive, expected to last over a five-year period.

"Naturally our most immediate need is right now," Dr. Howell said, "but we are looking for pledges over a five-year period."

Dr. Howell said that while all East Carolina supporters were gratified when the school received I-A status from the NCAA last winter, that many additional costs to the athletic program have arisen since then.

"In the months since February the additional cost of maintaining Division I-A programs has become more and more apparent to us. Some of our nearby opponents in football are now longer in I-A. Because we must schedule at least seven of our eleven games in our division, we have the added travel expense of playing I-A teams at greater distances."

The chancellor said that he is determined that the school stay in the Division I-A ranks, and "we are going to compete successfully there."

Howell said that a group of long-time supporters agreed with his drive for excellence in the athletic department and agreed to serve on the fund-raising committee.

Minges, a retired physician who has long been connected with athletic funding efforts by the school, will chair the committee.

Other members include Bob Abbott, local public accountant; Jack Edwards, local businessman; Max Joyner, insurance agent; Tommie Little, local builder; Larry Mallard, vice-president and city executive with NCNB here; Cliff Moore, vice-chancellor for business affairs; Phil Dixon, local attorney and past-president of the Alumni Association; James Bearden, dean of the school of business; Leo Jenkins, former chancellor; Tom Bennett, eastern vice-president of Wachovia Bank; Les Garner, local businessman; and Jerry Powell, newly appointed city executive of Branch Bank.

"With this committee I am confident of success," Dr. Howell said. "When they call on you, I hope that you remember that they are working for your university and your athletic program."

Howell emphasized that the drive would not be connected with the current debt of the athletic department. "Our first priority is to get the athletic program on a flourishing basis. We can repay the debt gradually after our teams are well-funded again."

He also said that the drive is not meant to supplant the Pirate Club, but that added emphasis is to be placed on Pirate Club ventures in the future. "The members of this (group) are also enthusiastic Pirate Club members. (Dixon is president of the local chapter.) They join me to raise money for the short-term while the Pirate Club gears up to deal with the increased long-term needs of our athletic program."

Howell declared his commitment to a "first-rate athletic program — in all our sports."

Howell said he first began working on the ground-work

Barrise, Pendergraft To Be Harrison's Assistants

Newly appointed East Carolina University head basketball coach Charlie Harrison has announced that he will hire both of the previous assistant coaches for his staff.

Tom Barrise and David Pendergraft will remain with the Pirate program, a move that Harrison feels will benefit greatly the future development of East Carolina basketball.

"One of the things in successfully developing a program is developing consistency throughout the year," Harrison said.

Pendergraft will begin his fourth season at East Carolina, having served two years as a graduate assistant and last year as a full-time assistant with primary duties in the recruiting area. The 27-year-old Cary native came to ECU Pirate Club ventures in the future. "The members of this (group) are also enthusiastic Pirate Club members. (Dixon is president of the local chapter.) They join me to raise money for the short-term while for the drive back in January and that the committee has already begun some preliminary contacts. "meeting with good responses," he said the committee is working from a list of possible donors, using a direct meeting method of approach.

Howell said only recent fast moving changes in the East Carolina athletic program have brought about the need for more money than has been raised in the past, but hopefully the revitalized Pirate Club can take care of these needs in the future once the $1 million drive has been successful.

comments on his appointment to the staff.

"David has done the majority of the recruiting in the spring and summer within North Carolina and the eastern seaboard," Harrison said. "These are the areas we will concentrate on in our future recruiting. David has established contacts in these areas and is well-liked. "Again, for the stability he can add, I want David in this position on my staff. He's young and enjoys recruiting and that's just what I need." Barrise and Pendergraft have maintained operations in the basketball office since the June 8 resignation of Dave Odom. They now continue, but as fulltime assistants for Charlie Harrison.

"Tom has been a friend of mine for sometime," Harrison said in making the announcement. "Tom has a very good basketball background under very fine coaches, giving him a great knowledge of the game. This is just what I need for Tom's position, because he will be the very good teacher of the game I am looking for. "Without doubt, Tom will add the stability to our program I am looking for, as he has been instrumental in recruiting."

Recruiting is the big notation for Pendergraft in Harrison's

Church Named Soccer Coach

Robbie Church, an assistant soccer coach at the University of South Carolina at Spartanburg for the past year, was named as head soccer coach at East Carolina University, athletic director Dr. Ken Karr announced today.

Church replaces Brad Smith who resigned last June after guiding the Pirates to a 7-9-1 won-loss record, the best in the school's history.

Church, who served at Spartanburg under coach Frank Kahlenstein, was also on the South Carolina State soccer staff. He had coached soccer on all levels including a select under-19 team in Spartanburg, at Boiling Springs High School in Boiling Springs, S.C., and at several soccer camps in South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Maryland and Kentucky.

The Greensboro native earned a bachelor's degree in health and physical education from Pfeiffer College in 1981 where he was Most Valuable Player, captain, first-team Carolina Conference and first-team District 26. He is currently working on a master's degree in the same field at USC.

Church received a "B" license from the United States Soccer Federation in 1981.

Justice Dept. Looks At NCAA

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association's controversial television football program is being investigated by the antitrust division of the Justice Department, The Daily Oklahoman reported today in a copyright story.

"Yes, we are looking at that," the newspaper quoted Mark Sheehan, assistant director of public affairs for the Justice Department as saying. "The investigation is in relatively early stages. We have come to no conclusion as to whether there is a violation of antitrust laws."

A decision is pending in a suit filed by the University of Oklahoma and the University of Georgia Athletic Association, which charged the NCAA television program violated the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Sheehan declined to say whether the investigation was prompted by the OU-Georgia suit.

He told the newspaper that the antitrust division does not routinely open a file on a case just because a private suit has been filed accusing an organization of antitrust violations.

Sheehan declined to speculate on what impact a ruling in the OU-Georgia case would have on the investigation.

The antitrust division would not necessarily be bound one way or another by a decision in a private case, he said.

Tom Hansen, assistant executive director of the NCAA and director of its football television program, said he would not comment because he didn't know anything about the investigation.

NFL To Block Players' League

DETROIT (AP) — The National Football League will go to court, if necessary, to block plans by players to organize their own league in the event of a strike this fall, a league spokesman said Thursday.

Officials with the National Football League Players Association and the Atlanta-based Turner Broadcasting, confirmed Thursday that they have an agreement to televise a series of all-star games involving six teams, each representing one NFL division.

The players union has threatened to strike unless

NFL team owners agree to give players a set percentage of total NFL revenue. The players are asking for 55 percent.

However, Jim Miller, spokesman for the NFL's Management Council, called the players' plans for an all-star league "a stupid idea" and said the league would go to court to block any such games. He said the standard player contract bans players from playing for any organization but the NFL.

"They would be in violation even though on strike," Miller said. "So if a player is on strike, he can't play — that's our position. And we will prevent them from playing for Ted Turner."

Turner is president and owner of Turner Broadcasting, which reaches more than 20 million homes nationwide through a satellite connection with more than 4,000 cable television systems. He was in Detroit on Thursday to talk about the football plan and go after advertisers for his network.

Braves Lose Again On Shoddy Fielding

By The Associated Press
Rick Monday has been around long enough to know that you stick around until the very end of a baseball game. Otherwise, you might miss a spectacular comeback.

"I was never one to leave the park early," said Monday. "In this game you can't take anything for granted."

The Atlanta Braves will attest to that after blowing Thursday night's game with the Dodgers on shoddy fielding. Los Angeles moved within 4½ games of the first-place Braves with a 3-2, 10-inning triumph greatly aided by three Atlanta errors.

The key miscue came with two out in the bottom of the ninth and Pedro Guerrero on second base as the tying run. Pinch-hitter Monday's sharp grounder went through the legs of Braves second baseman Jerry Royster to tie the game.

"That's my specialty — game-ending plays," said Royster. "I didn't get down on it. It was a simple play. I messed it up. It was the biggest bonehead play since I've been in the majors."

"I was upset when I hit the ball," said Monday. "It was hit hard but right where he was standing. But it was hooking and spinning."

Atlanta, which has lost five games to the Dodgers in the last week, jumped ahead 2-0 on Claudell Washington's long homer off Fernando Valenzuela in the fifth. A throwing error by catcher Bruce Benedict on a steal by Steve Sax helped LA to its first run.

The winning run came on Ron Cey's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 10th. Sax led off with a bloop single which Washington bobbled in right field as Sax advanced to second. He was sacrificed to third by Ken Landreaux and, after two intentional walks, Cey won it.

Valenzuela was knocked out of the game in the sixth when struck on the left knee by a line drive off the bat of Bob Horner. Valenzuela sustained a bruise on his knee but wasn't expected to miss a start.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati took San Diego 4-2, San Francisco beat Houston 5-2, Montreal topped Philadelphia 2, Chicago whipped New York 5-1 and St. Louis beat Pittsburgh 7-3.

Reds 4, Padres 2
Tom Seaver had gone five weeks without a victory, so he called on his old prey from San Diego. Seaver, 5-11, allowed one run on four hits over six innings to earn his first victory since June 26.

"I felt good for five innings. I had some pop on the ball but I didn't want to irritate the inflammation in my shoulder," said Seaver, who won for the 18th time in 21 decisions at San Diego Stadium. He is 32-7 lifetime against the Padres.

"This club being an expansion team in '69 and '70 when I was throwing extremely well has a lot to do with it," Seaver explained.

Johnny Bench hit a solo home run and Wayne Krenchicki added a two-run pinch-hit single for Cincinnati.

Expos 9, Phillies 2
Joel Youngblood kept busy running around for the second straight day with three hits, three RBI, a stolen base and an excellent fielding play in right for the Expos. Youngblood joined Montreal Wednesday night and collected a single after knocking in two runs for the New York Mets in an afternoon game in Chicago. Midway through that game, he was told he'd been dealt to Montreal and to head to Philadelphia.

The pace was slightly less hectic for Youngblood on Thursday, though he had to go some to keep up with teammates Tim Lincecum (5-for-6, three runs-scored and two stolen bases) and Tim Wallach, who belted his first major-league grand slam. "The base hits went through just at the right time" said Youngblood. "It's all the difference in the world hitting for a contender. I have a lot of confidence in my ability."

So did Raines, after a change in strategy. "The way I've been swinging lately I told myself I had to bunt more and use my speed," said Raines, who had two hits on bunts. "The bunt brings the infielders in and opens things up more."

Giants 5, Astros 2
San Francisco's star rookies, pitcher Bill Laskey, centerfielder Chili Davis and third baseman Tom O'Malley, were the main men for the Giants. Laskey pitched seven shutout innings, Davis had three hits and O'Malley chipped in with two.

Laskey, 10-8, allowed seven hits, struck out two and walked none before yielding to relievers Al Holland and Greg Minton, who recorded his 19th save.

"No one on the team treats us like rookies anymore," said Davis.

Cubs 5, Mets 1
Randy Martz was reached for singles by Ron Hodges in the second and eighth innings and nothing more. At one point, he retired 17 straight Mets. Jay Johnstone slammed a two-run homer for Chicago in the third inning after Bill Buckner's single to snap a 1-1 tie.

"I've never had a two-hitter before," said Martz. "I don't know if I pitched that great. They helped a lot by swinging at a lot of first pitches."

Cardinals 7, Pirates 3
Ken Oberkfell rapped a pair of two-run doubles and Steve Mura hurled a four-hitter in the rain-shortened contest.

"I'm going to suggest to my general manager and tell him I want to put in a protest. It looked like they were just trying to get the five innings in," said Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner. "We didn't get the chance to come back. I just think we got jobbed."

The game was called in the bottom of the fifth after a two-hour, two-minute rain delay. Tanner said he considered the rainfall, accompanied by lightning, to be hazardous to players of both teams as early as the top of the fifth. But the action continued through that half-inning, making it a complete contest.

Minnesota Spoils Tiant's Try For Comeback, 8-6

By The Associated Press

In his return to the major leagues, old Luis Tiant ran into the young Minnesota Twins, who haven't been showing much respect for their elders lately.

The 41-year-old Tiant, purchased by California earlier in the week from the Mexican League, saw his return to the majors spoiled Thursday when the Twins tagged him for four runs and five hits in 3-1/3 innings — including a three-run homer by Ron Washington — and defeated the Angels 8-6.

"I wasn't as sharp as I could have been," said Tiant. "But I have no excuses. When you make a mistake, you have to pay for it."

In other American League games, the Baltimore Orioles trimmed the Kansas City Royals 5-1, the Detroit Tigers swept a doubleheader from the Toronto Blue Jays 5-2 and 7-4 and the Texas Rangers trounced the New York Yankees 7-2.

Tiant, who last pitched in the majors with the Pittsburgh Pirates a year ago, started out like a late entry for Comeback Player of the Year, striking out five of the first nine Twins he faced.

But with Tim Laudner, who singled, and Bobby Mitchell, who walked, on base with two out in the third inning, Washington homered to give the Twins a 3-1 lead.

"The first time up, I couldn't really get what he was doing," said Washington, who struck out in the first inning against El Tiant's herky-jerky motion. "But when he was pitching from the stretch with not so much motion, I could see his move.

"Since we started playing good baseball, being down a few runs doesn't really bother us because we know we have the ability to come back," Washington added after the Twins' third victory in the four-game series that knocked the Angels out of first place in the AL West.

"If he doesn't hit the ball out, I have a chance to pitch six or seven innings," said Tiant.

The Twins made it 4-1 in the fourth when Gary Gaetti doubled and scored on the first of two RBI singles by Mickey Hatcher, which chased Tiant. Hatcher had one final job at the ancient right-hander.

"I really got fired up for Tiant," said 22-year-old rookie Kent Hrbek, who got a single before Tiant left. "I remember meeting him in Minneapolis when I was 8 years old."

Orioles 5, Royals 1
Jim Palmer held Kansas City hitless for five innings and finished with a three-hitter for his seventh consecutive victory as Baltimore snapped a six-game losing streak to the Royals. However, Kansas City held on to first place in the AL West, one percentage point ahead of the Angels. The third-place Orioles are 3½ games out in the AL East.

Palmer shut Kansas City out until the seventh inning when George Brett homered. Al Bumbry provided the first Oriole run when he hit a leadoff homer off Vida Blue in the bottom of the first inning. The Orioles chased Blue in the

Wrinkled Shirts For Golf's Royalty

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The royalty of golf was concentrated in the two men who strode down the fairway side-by-side in drab-colored slacks, wrinkled white shirts and eyeshades.

No fancy, horizontally-striped threads. No fancy pants of rainbow hue. No broad-brimmed plantation hats. No flamboyant gestures. No quips of the lip sending the gallery into hysterics.

Tom Watson and Craig Stadler have stolen tournament golf from the agents, the merchandisers and the Madison Avenue image-makers and brought the ancient game back to Main Street.

When the paunchy, mustachioed Stadler won the Masters in the spring, he brought a sense of pride to every hard-hat construction worker and truck driver who plays the municipal course in 110 on the weekend and washes down his frustration in the corner pub.

When the boyish, gap-toothed Watson pulled off a miracle chip shot to beat the great Jack Nicklaus at the U.S. Open and followed that with a victory at the British Open at Troon, Scotland, every-day guys everywhere had a new hero to cheer.

These two modern giants of the game — 1-2 on the money list and holders of seven 1982 tournament victories between them, including all the major crowns — were a choice pairing in the first round of the PGA Championship at Southern Hills here Thursday.

It was a good time to see if the game's two most successful players actually were as bland and dull as some observers had pictured them.

When Stadler won the Masters, there were purists who thought it must be some kind of crude trick. After all, golf heroes are supposed to be lean and blond-haired stylists or characters with quick wit and a flair for showmanship.

When Watson robbed Nicklaus of his 20th major victory in the Open at Pebble Beach, some critics were stricken with despair.

One sports columnist was particularly pessimistic, saying that with the unspectacular Watson as the new king the game certainly would diminish in appeal. The Kansas' lack of charisma, he argued, would send fan appeal and TV ratings tumbling.

What tommyrot. This foreboding was quickly erased when fans by the thousands scrambled for vantage spots and wildly cheered golf's new but unpretentious champions every step of the way around the course.

Stadler, old "Walrus Face," and Watson, freckled, copper-thatched Huckleberry Finn right out of Mark Twain, carry their own brand of charisma. It's next-door America.

Neither has ever seemed overly concerned about the image they supposedly project.

"I'm just myself," says Stadler, emphasizing that he likes his bushy mustache and isn't comfortable at a lighter weight.

Watson shrugs and says, "To me, charisma is sinking a 20-foot putt to win the Open."

No one could put it more graphically. Athletes in the limelight create their own charisma. And when they become winners, as have Stadler and Watson, that charisma, regardless of what it entails, becomes fashionable.

Walter Hagen's charisma was all-night parties and showing up in a tuxedo at the first tee. Bob Jones was the round-faced, gentlemanly Boy WONDER.

Ray Floyd Shot Disappoints Ray Floyd

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — The round of Ray Floyd's life was just one swing short of perfection.

Floyd hit the ball 63 times Thursday to take the first-round lead of the 64th PGA Championship and there's just one stroke he wants back.

"I blocked a drive on the third hole and missed the fairway," he said of his record-shattering 7-under-par round. "I would say that was the only ball I hit that was not a good shot."

Floyd parred the hole anyway on a 102-degree day during which he beat Jack Nicklaus by 11 shots, Tom Watson by nine and runners-up Bob Gilder and Greg Norman, who had a 66s, by three strokes.

Nine straight 3's highlighted Floyd's round over the steamy Southern Hills Country Club in which he played the sixth through 15th holes in 30 shots.

"It's the best round I've played anywhere and something I will remember forever," Floyd said. "I might not ever shoot a score like that the rest of my career."

Floyd broke his own competitive course record of 65 and tied the best 18-hole record in PGA history set by Bruce Crampton in 1975.

It was the lowest first round ever in the PGA, shaving Bobby Nichols' 1964 record by a shot.

Golfing millionaire Floyd once-putted nine times over the tricky bent grass greens.

After routinely paring the first six holes, Floyd exploded on his historic round with a 16-foot birdie putt on the 383-yard No. 7.

Floyd, the 1969 PGA champion, saved par out of a bunker on the eighth green and holed a 10-footer for birdie on No. 9, going out in 2-under 33.

He tied the PGA nine-hole record on the backside with a 5-under-par 30. However, Fred Couples later broke the mark with a 29 by making birdies on the last six holes.

Floyd birdied the 10th with a 3-footer, the 12th with a 15-footer, the 13th and 16th with a 2-footer, and the rugged 434-yard closing hole with an 8-footer.

"I feel drained but I managed to beat the heat for the most part by staying in the shade and taking fluids on every tee," said Floyd, who took advantage of a 9:24 a.m. CDT tee time.

Floyd was in a 1:36 p.m. CDT pairing today with Gary Player and Hale Irwin.

The 39-year-old native of Ft. Bragg, N.C., is known as a tough front-runner on the tour. Give him a lead and he's tough to catch.

"Sure, I like to get ahead," said Floyd. "It's a good feeling to have control."

Floyd said the biggest change in his game in recent years is that he has become more of a thinker.

"Nicklaus beats all of us with his mind," said Floyd. "That's what separates a lot of players. I used to be too damn aggressive. Now, I know when I should gamble."

Floyd has won the Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic and the Memorial Tournament in 1982. He's fourth on the money list at $226,000.

The lifetime winner of $1.7 million, Floyd owns two major titles in his 15 victories, the aforementioned PGA title and the 1976 Masters.

"That 63 by Floyd was just incredible," said Couples.

At 3-under-par 67 with Couples were Rex Caldwell and Nick Faldo. Vance Heafner, Mark Pfeil, David Graham, Jim Simons and John Jackson were at 68.

Asked why there were so many sub-par rounds, Caldwell said, "There was no water and they were watering the greens every 45 minutes. The greens held great."

Watson, trying to add the PGA to his current U.S. and British Open titles, needed 35 putts for his 72.

"It's going to be very hard to catch Raymond...when he gets a lead he's mighty hard to catch," said Watson.

Nicklaus birdied the first hole then struggled the rest of the day because of a balky driver.

"I'll have to ask my head why," said Nicklaus. "My head doesn't have an answer yet."

Defending champion Larry Nelson and 52-year-old Arnold shot 4-over-par 74s, while Masters champion Craig Stadler posted a 71.

Grant, Aides To Work Hall Of Fame Game

By The Associated Press
Breathe a little easier, guys. The National Football League preseason will open on schedule.

Bud Grant, the man who threatened to throw off the clockwork, said Thursday that he and his Minnesota Vikings coaching staff would work Saturday's Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio.

Grant, the Vikings head coach, and his staff had threatened to strike the traditional opener of the NFL exhibition season because the coaches were not being paid extra for the game like the players.

Several Minnesota players had hinted that the team would boycott the nationally televised (ABC-TV) game against the Baltimore Colts to show their support for the coaches.

"We're in the whole deal as a group," said Vikings receiver Ahmad Rashad. "I think we're one of the few teams where the coaches and players are all out for one thing. We think it's only fair that the coaches get paid and not just the players."

Grant backed off Thursday, saying the Vikings will present a resolution at the NFL meetings in October, asking that the coaches be paid the same rate as the players for the Hall of Fame game. He said the resolution would be retroactive to include this year's game.

"This will be done to save any embarrassment to Max Winter (the team's owner) the Vikings organization or its players," Grant said.

The NFL also spent some time in the courtroom Thursday.

The California Supreme Court threw the Raiders for a loss, refusing to reconsider its ruling that the city of Oakland can seek to acquire the franchise through its powers of eminent domain. The action clears the way for the city to seek an injunction from a Monterey County court to keep the Raiders from moving to Los Angeles until the eminent domain case is settled.

The Raiders had won a federal antitrust suit against the NFL, clearing the way for the team to move to Los Angeles this year. The city of Oakland is trying to block the move, contending in its suit that it is necessary for the public good that the team remain there.

In other action, a spokesman for the NFL Management Council said the league would go to court, if necessary, to block plans by players to organize their own league in the event of a strike this fall.

The NFL Players Association confirmed Thursday it had reached an agreement with Turner Broadcasting of Atlanta to televise a series of all-star games if a strike occurred.

Jim Miller, spokesman for management, said that would violate the players contract, even if they were on strike.

Elsewhere, the Chicago Bears traded linebacker Bruce Huther to the Cleveland Browns for an undisclosed draft choice in 1983; New Orleans acquired running back Larry Jones on waivers from Houston; kicker Mike DeSanto and safety Bernard Bell left the Seattle training camp and San Francisco released defensive lineman James Grigsby.

Vacation Was Just What Smith's Game Needed

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Former New Zealand champion M.J. Smith figures a two-week vacation from golf was just what she needed.

As far as 1981 U.S. Open champion Pat Bradley was concerned, a homecoming without fanfare was in order.

And veteran Hollis Stacy said there was nothing exciting about her round.

Smith, 30 and winless in nine years since joining the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, fired a 4-under par 68 Thursday for the first-round lead in the $175,000 Boston Five Classic.

Bradley and Stacy just missed catching Smith as late-afternoon finishers in the opening of the 72-hole test at the 6,008-yard Radisson Ferncroft Country Club.

Bradley, who grew up in Westford just a few miles from here, and Stacy each shot 69. That put them one stroke ahead of Muffin Spencer-Devlin, former New England champion Jane Blalock, Vivian Brownlee, Judy Clark, Kathy Postlewait and Joyce Kazmierski.

Seven players were tied at 71. Then came an 11-way traffic jam at par 72, with Sandra Haynie, needing less than $5,000 to take the lead in 1982 prize money, and reigning LPGA champion Jan Stephenson in the group.

Bunched at 73 were recently crowned U.S. Open champ Janet Alex and million-dollar winners Kathy Whitworth and JoAnne Carner.

Smith, who plans to apply for U.S. residency, credited a vacation in Atlanta for a rare round without a single bogey.

"Other than a clinic, I haven't played any golf for two weeks," she said. "Laying off probably helped. I spent two weeks shopping, visiting some bars, rowing — just doing things you don't get to do on the tour."

Bradley, cheered on by her family in a bid for her first LPGA victory since the U.S. Open last year, noted the difference in returning home.

"I came in here almost unnoticed this week," she said. "Last year I came here directly from winning the U.S. Open. You couldn't have written a better script. I was fortunate in being able to share the thrill with my friends in New England, but it was very hectic."

It was so hectic that Bradley fired a first-round 78 and never was in contention in the tournament. She admitted initial pressure Thursday, but she settled down quickly and carded three birdies without a bogey.

Stacy had a shot at catching Smith, but picked up her first bogey of the day after missing the green on the 16th hole.

21 Nominations For Hill Street

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP)

Now that NBC's "Hill Street Blues" has duplicated its 1981 feat of receiving 21

Emmy nominations, the key question that remains is how many of the golden statuettes the highly acclaimed police drama will take into custody.

"Lou Grant," the newspaper drama whose unexpected cancellation by CBS upset many viewers, and to "Taxi," the three-time Emmy-winning comedy dropped by ABC and picked up by NBC.

ABC's "Inside the Third Reich," NBC's "SCTV Network" and Operation Prime Time's "A Woman Called Golda" each received seven nominations. Three-time Academy Award winner Ingrid Bergman was nominated as best lead actress in a limited series or special for her portrayal of former Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir.

ABC's "Barney Miller," another popular show leaving the air, got five nominations.

"Hill Street Blues" was nominated as the outstanding drama series and Travanti and Veronica Hamel were nominated for best lead actor and actress in a drama series. It won all five nominations for best supporting actor: Taurean Blacque, Michael Conrad, Charles Haid, Michael Warren and Bruce Weitz. Barbara Bosson and Betty Thomas were nominated for best supporting actress in a drama series.

"Hill Street Blues" also picked up two nominations for best direction and four for best writing, as well as

Saw Awe Of Old Stars In Special On Baseball

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP)

During "The Game and Its Glory: Baseball's Hall of Fame," on NBC Saturday night, revered major league players are reduced to star-gazing little leaguers when they get the chance to swing Babe Ruth's big bat.

Ruth's lumber was 58 ounces, nearly twice the weight of today's bats. With the utmost respect, Pete Rose pronounces it "a good bat" and Fred Lynn says he could "cut it in half and use it twice."

But it's the awe-struck look on slugger Johnny Bench's face that demonstrates how baseball brings out the little boy in all of us. Bench is idolized by today's youngsters. In turn, Ruth — and the memories from the Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y. — turn the Cincinnati Reds' star into jelly.

With baseball's rich heritage and this generational regeneration in mind, this TV tour of Cooperstown would be most viewing for today's little boys. So, why would NBC schedule it for 10 p.m. EDT, the Saturday TV graveyard shift?

That hour is generally reserved for documentaries and reruns of the lame-duck "NBC Magazine," while young fans are asleep, their baseball gloves softening securely under their mattresses.

This scheduling lunacy aside, "The Game and Its Glory: Baseball's Hall of Fame," is a warm, sentimental journey through the national pastime's memory bank. Vintage footage, personality portraits and some museum artifacts are all covered in rich fashion in this effort from Major League Baseball Productions.

These are the people who offer "This Week in Baseball" and the "Baseball Bunch," so don't expect any hard-hitting journalism about management-labor disputes, contract hassles and drug abuse. It's baseball-card stuff, but still definitely worth keeping and savoring.

The first five Hall of Famers are remembered from the shrine's christening in 1939. There was Ty Cobb. He didn't hold his hands together on the bat, but he managed to hit over 300 for 23 straight years. Honus Wagner, who gripped the bat very high, and Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson and Babe Ruth.

The Hall of Fame is an authentic museum of American history, reflecting the styles and vogues of a nation. Ruth and Yankee Stadium, the house his stardom helped build, symbolize the Roaring '20s and a country feeling its oats after World War I. In 1947, Jackie Robinson represents changing social mores.

Then there are the toys of the game — fingerless gloves to Ty Cobb's tattered pancake model to today's big-webbed baskets. Uniforms, too, have shifted with the times. Military-looking blouses with epaulets to baggy pants to today's designer polyester.

The fans and playing surfaces were much purer. There were no weird get-ups or mascots in the stands, and no phony grass on the field. It was all baseball.

One never tires of nostalgia, brought to life on film: Willie Mays' catch in the 1954 World Series, Hank Aaron's 715th home run and Bobby Thomson's homer that snatched the pennant from the Dodgers to the Giants in 1951.

Actor Donald Sutherland is an unusual choice as narrator. He's Canadian, but has a long history supporting the Montreal Royals (former Dodger farm team) and the Montreal Expos. He obviously appreciates baseball, and his appearance — rather than that of a sports announcer — is meant to attract broader audiences.

It works, and it doesn't work.

When the program starts slowly, Sutherland sounds affected. He's too somber, as if he's playing "Hamlet." There's no joy in his voice. But by the end of the hour, his dramatic touch has brought a dignity and authority to the Hall of Fame, one of America's great legacies.

Despite its third place in the ratings, NBC garnered 90 nominations. CBS, first in the ratings, received 83 and ABC had 70. PBS got 29 and syndicated shows got 13 nominations.

NBC's "Ain't Misbehavin'," based on the music of Fats Waller, and "Marco Polo," the miniseries of the 13th century Venetian's journey to China, each received eight. The same number went to

See Special Districts Multiplying

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Local officials, seeking to provide services such as sewers and fire protection, increasingly are creating special districts to raise money and supervise the projects, the government says.

The 1982 census of governments reported Thursday that special districts were the fastest growing type of government, jumping nearly 11 percent over the last five years.

At the same time, the report said, there was a drop in the number of counties, towns and school districts and only a small increase in municipalities.

Nationwide, the census counted a total of 82,688 governments in the United States last January, including one federal, 50 state and 82,637 local governments.

Al Richter, a senior analyst with the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, said there were two major reasons for the growth of special districts.

First, he said, the districts allow officials to circumvent local government regulations that set tax limits or debt ceilings. Secondly, they provide flexibility in handling problems that extend over more than one political jurisdiction.

John R. Coleman, chief of the Census Bureau's governments division, stressed the problem that local of-officials face in dealing with tax and debt limits.

"They find the easiest thing, if they are going to have to provide sewer service or some other kind of governmental service, is to go ahead and create an independent special district, and this permits them to get around either constitutional or statutory limits," he said.

And, Coleman added, many of the special districts can borrow money without getting voter approval — a restriction faced by many municipalities.

Overall, the census found 28,733 special districts across the country last January, up from 25,962 in 1977 and 18,323 in 1962.

There are special districts in every state, with most performing a single function. The largest share, nearly one-fourth, are concerned with natural resources such as drainage and flood control, irrigation and soil and water conservation. There were 6,276 such districts, up 21.8 percent since 1977.

The next largest group were fire protection districts, numbering 4,567, up 15.9 percent over five years.

Richter said he anticipated the trend to more special districts to continue, although "the general purpose people have sort of mixed feelings about them."

He pointed out that while the districts are a way of getting around certain restrictions, they also tend to erode the general authority, power and responsibility of local governments and make it difficult to budget for the community's entire needs.

He added that the districts are often not well known to the public, remaining "sort of invisible."

But, he said, "given the difficulties that local governments are coming under, if one wants to continue providing services, I would think that there may well be a growth of them in the future."

Among other things, these special districts also provide parks and recreation services, hospitals, libraries, roads, health services and airports.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Quaker official who recently visited Salvadoran refugees in Honduras says the Reagan administration's claim that human rights are improving in El Salvador is "totally unwarranted."

"Government armed forces continue to attack civilian populations in El Salvador, chasing them out of their country and imprisoning them in refugee camps," says Arthur P. Schmidt of the American Friends Service Committee.

Devaluation Of Mexican Peso

By RICHARD BOUDREAU
Associated Press Writer

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Running out of dollars for the second time in six months, the Mexican government today freed its weakening peso to float to a sharply devalued level in free trading. But it set a preferential exchange rate for some importers and debtors.

The two-tiered exchange system, unprecedented here, was announced Thursday night. It is aimed at halting a speculative run on Mexico's central bank reserves while protecting consumers from higher prices for imported food and some companies from an increase in the peso value of their dollar debts.

Banking analysts expected the peso, pegged at 49 to the dollar Thursday, to plunge to around 80 to the dollar when currency markets open at mid-morning. Mexico's last major devaluation, in mid-February, brought the peso from 27 to the dollar to 45.

The new adjustment will benefit foreign visitors by making peso-priced goods cheaper in dollars. It will boost Mexico's tourist industry and overall export earnings, reducing the country's expected $8 billion balance of payments deficit for 1982.

The devaluation will hurt U.S. businessmen near the border who depend heavily on retail purchases by Mexicans, whose pesos will buy fewer dollar-priced goods. Following last weekend's sharp price increases here for bread, tortillas and gasoline, it could also push Mexican inflation far above the current 60 percent a year rate, banking analysts said.

To cushion the inflationary impact, Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog announced the central bank would subsidize the peso at its Thursday exchange rate for importers of food, key capital goods and other items deemed essential by the Commerce Secretariat. He indicated there would be price controls too.

Businesses and individuals, Mexican and foreign, who took out foreign currency loans from Mexican banks before Friday will be allowed to exchange pesos at the preferential rate to pay them back, Silva Herzog said. But Mexican companies indebted to foreign banks will be hurt because it will take more pesos to pay off those loans.

Under the preferential exchange system, the peso will continue losing four centavos to the dollar each day, as it has since June 1, when the central bank reimposed exchange controls after letting the currency float for 14 weeks.

The dual exchange system will continue "until the economic adjustment program achieves its effects," the treasury secretary said.

Silva Herzog, a Yale-educated economist, imposed an economic austerity program after assuming his post March 16. He has cut public spending and raised taxes to compensate for shrinking oil revenues and the burden of a foreign debt expected to reach $80 billion this year.

Although the belt tightening has turned last year's balance-of-trade deficit into a surplus, Silva Herzog said, Mexico is having increasing trouble borrowing enough dollars abroad to balance its current accounts.

When Jannersten led his last trump, West could let go a club, while dummy parted with the diamond, but East was in trouble. If he discarded a diamond, both of declarer's diamonds would be good, so he had to pitch a club. If he kept the ace of clubs, declarer would end play him with a club to force a diamond return into the ace-queen; and if he jettisoned the ace, declarer would cash the ace of diamonds and lead a club, and the queen in dummy would become the twelfth trick.

Hard upon the heels of the death of Herman Filarski, we learned of the passing of another of our old friends — Eric Jannersten of Sweden, founder of the International Bridge Press Association. It made us proud to find that he was known as "the Goren of Sweden."

Since Eric was often found behind a typewriter at international events, many tended to forget what a fine player he was. Here is an example of his dummy play technique from a Scandinavian tournament. We have often expressed our dislike for the "unusual no trump" convention. See how Jannersten turned his opponent's use of this gadget to his own advantage.

West led his singleton diamond against Jannersten's heart slam, and declarer captured East's eight with the nine. The ace of trump revealed the bad break. Jannersten crossed to dummy with the ten of trumps and led a spade to his ten. When he cashed the ace of spades, fortunately the king dropped. The king of trumps provided the entry to the table to lead the queen of spades, and on this trick declarer made the

The Bomb At Hiroshima

At 9:14 on August 6, 1945, Hiroshima was a thriving city of 344,000 people. Two minutes later, under the mushroom cloud of the first atomic bomb used in war, 80,000 people were dead. The explosion flattened everything within four miles. Later, nearly 80,000 more died from radiation sickness and injuries. Thirty-seven years after the bomb was dropped debate continues about its use. President Truman believed it prevented a full-scale invasion of Japan and the loss of millions of lives. But in the view of his Chief of Staff, the U.S. "adopted an ethical standard common to the barbarians of the Dark Ages" when it became the first to drop an atomic bomb.

Bid For N.C. Drilling Rights

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A tract of land about 35 miles of the coast of Cape Hatteras has received the largest bid from oil companies for the offshore drilling rights to seven tracts of land off the state's shore.

Shell Oil Co. bid $1.7 million for the Cape Hatteras tract, while six other tracts more than 50 miles off the coast of Wilmington drew bids ranging from $150,000 to $208,000.

Oil companies bid on a total of only 40 of 554 tracts off the middle and southern Atlantic Coast, California and Alaska in the bidding announced Thursday in Reston, Va.

Eric Vernon, of the state Office of Marine Affairs, said Shell bid on five tracts off the North Carolina coast and that two others were bid upon by Gulf.

The sale of leases by the U.S. Interior Department amounted to a "reoffering sale" of tracts earlier open for bids. It was the first of 41 lease sales Secretary James Watt has scheduled over the next five years. The program offers virtually the entire coastline for oil and gas drilling.

North Carolina officials interviewed Thursday said they have no objection to bids on leases to seven tracts off the state's coast that were offered Thursday by oil companies interested in offshore drilling.

"We had no objection to that being offered, so that's great," said Mike Davis, spokesman for the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development.

The state's 14-member Outer Continental Shelf Task Force, set up in Continental Shelf Task Force, set up in 1979 to protect North Carolina's interests in the interests in the federal oil leasing program, has not found any environmental problems with the tracts bid on Thursday.

"The task force has scrutinized this tract (off Cape Hatteras) very carefully over the next two years," Vernon said in a telephone interview.

"We just don't feel there is any significant environmental threat."

Vernon said that before any exploratory drilling could take place, the bids would have to be accepted and an environmental impact statement would have to be approved by state and federal authorities.

In July 1981, Gov. Jim Hunt went to court over the offering of six tracts 12 miles from Cape Lookout. That controversy dissipated when no buyers showed interest in bidding in August 1981.

Prisoner Removes Bullet That May Have Been Murder Link

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A 25-year-old prisoner used a smuggled razor blade to cut open his leg and remove a bullet that might have linked him to a 1976 murder, probably ruining the prosecution's case, officials said.

Hambly McCaskill, being held in the Escambia County

Jail while serving a four-year sentence for an unrelated robbery conviction, apparently flushed the bullet down the toilet after cutting it out, Assistant State Attorney Ron Johnson said Thursday.

The prosecutor sought the bullet to determine if it could be linked to the death of Felton Robitzsch, 66, a gas station owner shot and killed during a June 25, 1976, robbery. Officials believe Robitzsch fired at — and hit — his assailant.

Officials said McCaskill apparently slashed out the bullet Wednesday, one day after a federal judge said the state could order the bullet surgically removed. X-rays had located the slug about half an inch inside McCaskill's left thigh, Johnson said.

Johnson said the bullet was a key piece of prosecution evidence, adding that McCaskill probably would not be charged for the slaying.

"There's a criminal statute that prohibits the destruction of physical evidence," Johnson said. "But, of course, that's very minimal compared to a murder charge."

McCaskill's attorney, public defender Terry Terrell, declined to comment and would not allow reporters to interview his client.

Capt. Odie Eddins, a jail supervisor, said McCaskill was in solitary confinement and guards were ordered to check on him every 15 minutes.

"If he flushed (the toilet), there's no trap in the bottom of the commode there," Eddins said.

"We don't have the manpower to watch one inmate 24 hours a day," he added. "The only restraint that I know of is we could have handcuffed him to the bars. But the federal courts would crucify us for something like that."

Authorities didn't learn McCaskill had cut out the bullet until he was taken Wednesday to a Pensacola hospital, where the slug was to be removed.

"They (hospital personnel) got him undressed and he had a bloody scum around his leg," Johnson said.

Johnson said the state wanted to compare the bullet in McCaskill's leg to the weapon used by Robitzsch, because hospital records showed McCaskill had been treated for a gunshot wound the day after the slaying.

McCaskill was arrested in Detroit in 1979 and later returned to Florida to face charges in an unrelated Pensacola robbery case.

William Robitzsch, the son of the slaying victim, broke down and cried Thursday when he learned the bullet was missing.

"Just put me in that cell with him," he said. "It's been like hell. I worked with Dad real close, and it's been pure hell going through this."

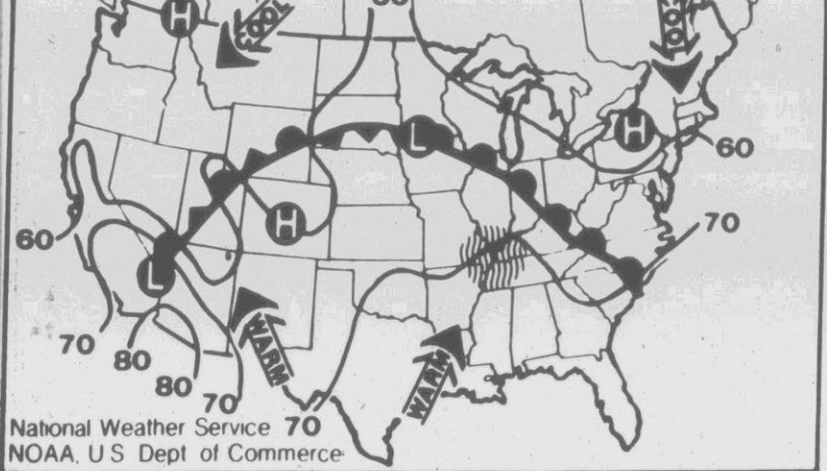

Coincidentally, a New Jersey appeals court ruled Thursday that state officials had the right to remove a bullet from the leg of a man charged in the 1980 slaying of a police officer.

Newark police said they believe a .38-caliber slug in the leg of Willie Lee Lawson, 29, was fired by Patrolman John Gottfried before he was killed by a hail of bullets from three bank robbers.

Lawson was charged in the slaying but has not gone on trial. He is serving a sentence in Trenton State Prison on an unrelated burglary conviction, and appealed a Superior Court order in May to have the bullet removed surgically.

The Forecast For Saturday, August 7

Low Temperatures

WEATHER FORECAST — The Arkansas, Missouri, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee. (AP rain Saturday for parts of Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

Most areas of the state won't see much of the sun today.

Showers and thunderstorms will be widely scattered through the Piedmont and coastal plain and a bit more numerous over the mountains.

Temperatures in the 80s will be common except for the 70s over the higher mountains. Cloudy sky cover will be the rule Saturday with little change in temperatures. Wind will be light southwest.

A few weather features will help to give North Carolina a few days of variably cloudy and showery conditions.

First, a slow moving and weak cold front over northern Virginia this morning will settle over the North Carolina northern border tonight and stall.

A weak southwest flow of air will continue to feed moisture into the state especially over the interior sections, and an upper level low pressure circulation continues to drift west over the Southeastern states.

All these features plus the heat of the afternoon will continue to keep the air unstable into Saturday, with the best chance of thunderstorms being over the mountains.

Thursday's temperature levels went from 93 at Fayetteville to a mild 80 degrees at Charlotte. Mountain stations peaked into the 70s to low mid 80s with Bryson City at 85 one of the warmest.

A glance at the minimum temperatures this morning showed upper 60s to mid 70s east of the mountains during the wee hours of this morning.

Patchy dense fog and haze was evident over some areas of the Piedmont, especially in the Charlotte area. Mountain communities also reported dense fog. This will burn off by mid morning.

Rainfall Thursday night was restricted to isolated showers over some of the southern counties but a few hours after midnight saw radar screens fairly clear of rainfall.

SBI Ordered Join In 'Colcor' Investigation

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Attorney General Rufus Edmisten has ordered the State Bureau of Investigation to check into possible violations of state law resulting from the federal undercover operation of crime in eastern North Carolina.

"We have received a great deal of useful information and we will be cooperating fully with the federal authorities in our joint investigation," Edmisten said in a prepared statement Thursday.

The SBI also will join with Columbus County authorities in an investigation into allegations that one or more people are buried in a farm animal pit at the farm of one of those arrested in Operation Colcor.

State and federal officials met Thursday to discuss Colcor — the federal probe into alleged corruption in Columbus County.

SBI Director Haywood Starling and Lester Chalmers, director of the special prosecutions office of the state attorney general's office, met with U.S. Attorney Sam Currin and his assistant Doug McCollough.

"At the conclusion of this investigation, the state will take appropriate action to see that those persons who have violated the law are vigorously prosecuted," he said.

Indicted in the Colcor probe thus far are District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt; state Rep. Ron Taylor, D-Bladen, two other public officials in Columbus County and 17 others.

Harold Elliott, deputy director for field services of the SBI, also confirmed Thursday that the SBI had joined the investigation in the search for bodies at the Columbus County farm at the request of the Columbus County Sheriff's Department.

State and local officials said they were gathering information and evidence needed to obtain a search warrant of the area on the farm owned by Kenneth T. Coleman.

Coleman faces federal drug charges stemming from the undercover operation. Federal authorities at two separate hearings involving Coleman have referred to allegations that slaying victims may have been buried in an area of his farm.

Stuart Sasser, chief deputy of the Columbus County Sheriff's Department, said no warrant had yet been obtained. He said the department intended to dig up the animal pit, which authorities said was used as a place to bury the remains of burned, dead farm animals.

"If possible, we will," Sasser said. "The public deserves a satisfactory answer to it."

Sasser said he requested the SBI to enter the case. He said he had received information there could be as many as three bodies in the area.

Dr. Page Hudson, the state's chief medical examiner, said Thursday that forensic experts would oversee any digging on the farm.

"I talked to the SBI this morning and we've made some preliminary plans," he said. "I'm trying to get a feel of the geography, the physical layout," Hudson said.

If human remains are detected, Hudson, said, an archeologist may be called in to help with the digging and sifting for evidence, such as bullets and personal effects.

The FBI investigation also has turned up information about possible voting fraud in an April 30 mixed-drink referendum that was approved by voters in Bolton.

An indictment against Taylor alleged that Taylor accepted a $1,500 bribe in exchange for his promise to help undercover agents obtain a mixed-drink license in the Columbus County town.

State Elections Director Alex Brock has said a spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's office has told him that federal authorities would provide him with information on the alleged voting irregularities.

Life As It's Lived

A Vocabulary That Had Beginnings With Food

By GAIL MICHAELS
There are still a few words that Zachary can't pronounce, but the names of food are not among them. His vocabulary development has always centered around his stomach. He learned to shout "Eat!" long before he learned to say "mama," and now he pronounces words like strawberry shortcake, pickled figs, and watermelon with the confidence of a gourmet cook.

His preoccupation with this sustenance is so strong that we can no longer read a book. He is interested only in those pages which picture food. "Turn it to the chocolate canny page," he demands when he hands me

"The Cat in the Hat Dictionary." From there he flips to the page that pictures a "bad baby" throwing oatmeal on the floor.

But by far the most beloved page in the book is the "I" page. It pictures a small bear carrying five scoops of ice cream on a cone. Zachary, after all, is a normal child. He would trade his own mother for a scoop of chocolate chip.

Adults can identify to a certain extent with the child's lust for this ambrosial substance. In the immortal words of the Sesame Street gang, "Everyone loves ice cream, no matter who they are." But ice cream does not have the same magic for grown-ups that it has for kids. Phillip, for instance, can't pass an ice cream parlor without salivating, but he doesn't rush in and cling to the glass display case, already smeared with countless small noseprints, as he gazes with rapture at the heavenly concoctions before him and sighs with anticipation.

Phillip doesn't even know how to eat an ice cream cone, at least not from a child's point of view. "The kids look so sticky and uncomfortable after they've eaten ice cream," he once told me. "I can't stand to watch them."

Zack would disagree. He knows instinctively how to eat the stuff. He never starts on the sides, and he never licks. He plunges into the middle like an Olympic diving champion.

He continues in this fashion until the ice cream is approximately two inches below the edge of the cone and he is getting more up his nose than his mouth. At this point I usually suggest that he try eating some of the cone.

He's amenable. He promptly eats off one side of the cone, entirely. As he burrows in it, parts of his face begin to disappear. The side of the cone which is left eventually covers everything but the outer edges of both fat cheeks, one half of each eye, and a few small patches of forehead.

Admittedly this gets a little messy. The last time I treated him, he had ice cream everywhere except inside his shoes and under his arms. It was even collecting in his naval despite the knit shirt he was wearing.

But as he chewed contentedly the last shred of cone, he did not look uncomfortable. He looked full.
