

Reach Accord In Tax Panel

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional panel negotiating a $98.9 billion tax-increase bill has reached agreement on most parts of an included $8-billion package aimed at catching careless or cheating taxpayers.

The legislation would provide the Internal Revenue Service a way to tighten tax collection on income from savings bonds, capital gains, barter agreements and state income-tax refunds — large chunks of which now escape taxation.

The agreement was reached by a Senate-House conference committee as President Reagan stepped up efforts to win congressional support for the bill. The measure would raise about $99 billion in taxes and cut spending, chiefly for Medicare and Medicaid, by about $17 billion over the next three years.

The president, concerned about vocal opposition to the bill among conservatives, arranged to deliver a pitch for the bill to 34 Republican members of the House today in three separate afternoon sessions.

In addition, he was meeting separately with Lee Iacocca, chairman of the board of Chrysler Corp., and with Paul Thayer, chairman of the executive board of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, on the tax measure. Both men are expected to support the bill. "I don't think these require jawboning," said deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes.

The press spokesman also said Reagan was meeting with his Cabinet to give them what Speakes described as "talking points," so the Cabinet secretaries could lobby for the bill, and was also considering a nationally broadcast address on the tax measure.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said the president should "appeal to the American people in one of his fireside broadcasts" for passage of the tax bill. If he doesn't he's going to have problems.

"We feel somewhat more confident" about the bill, Speakes said Monday. "We're still behind (but) he's clearly making progress in those meetings. It now appears to be more of a presenting the facts job than a selling job."

"You don't have much of an alternative" to the tax increase, if the federal budget and interest rates are to be reduced, Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., told reporters.

Rep. Edward R. Madigan, R-Ill., said Reagan used the meeting to threaten a veto of any spending bills that exceed the budget.

Madigan said he left the meeting "thinking the president will do much better on this tax bill" than he had originally thought.

Reagan has been meeting with House Republicans in an effort to put down a rebellion that threatens the tax bill and, with it, his plans for cutting government borrowing.

Lyn Nofziger, formerly Reagan's political director, was leading the conservative charge against the bill last week. But, after being subjected to a bit of Reagan's friendly coaxing, he was persuaded to turn 180 degrees.

He is now leading a White House campaign for enactment of the bill, working as an unpaid adviser.

"I had the president's side of this explained to me thoroughly and I decided that he was righter than the other guys," Nofziger said Monday. He added he does not think Americans will view the tax boost as a flip-flop for the president.

NEW TERMINAL ... Pitt-Greenville Airport's new $350,000 terminal building, joined to the old terminal building at left, was officially opened at a ribbon-cutting ceremony this morning. A formal

A new 5,000-square-foot terminal facility at the Pitt-Greenville Airport was formally opened at ribbon-cutting ceremonies this morning.

The new $350,000 addition and improvements replaces a 1,400-square-foot facility that served airline passengers and private pilots alike for years.

Tenants in the new facility include Sunbird Airlines and Avis, Hertz and National car rental agencies.

Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority chairman Marvin Blount Jr., who presided at the ribbon cutting, said the new building and other improvements to the airport were made possible through the "support and backing of the officials of Pitt County and the city of Greenville" and praised the officials for having the "insight and foresight" to visualize the value of the airport to the community.

"We are very pleased with our terminal addition," Blount emphasized.

Burney Tucker, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, termed the new facility a "dream of the Airport Authority for so long" and expressed "thanks for the vision they had."

Greenville Mayor Percy Cox said the new terminal facility is "a fine example of what can be done when the county and city put their heads together and work on something."

"I am so proud of this" and "real proud to be a part of the facility we have here today," Cox emphasized.

David Duffus, executive vice chairman of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, noted it is "startling to walk into this new building" and said it serves as "a monument to the continual development we have" in Pitt County.

Syrian Missiles Are Knocked Out

By The Associated Press
Israel sent warplanes on raids against guerrilla targets in west Beirut today and said its jets attacked Syrian missile batteries in eastern Lebanon after Menachem Begin's government approved "in principle" U.S. plans to evacuate the PLO, but demanded changes in the blueprint.

The Tel Aviv command said warplanes knocked out a battery of Syrian SAM-9 anti-aircraft missiles that had been moved into Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley despite Israel's insistence that the area be empty of such weapons.

It was the third time Israel announced attacking Syrian missiles in Lebanon since it agreed to a cease-fire with Syria June 11.

"The state of Israel stands by its decision not to permit the Syrians to move ground-to-air missile batteries into the Lebanon region," the Tel Aviv command said.

Israeli warplanes also attacked Palestinian guerrilla positions in the Bourj el-Barajneh refugee camp south of Beirut following what the Tel Aviv command called repeated cease-fire violations by the guerrillas.

It said Bourj el-Barajneh was virtually empty of civilian occupants and had become a guerrilla base. The communiqué accused the guerrillas of harassing Israeli troops with mortar, bazooka and light-arms fire.

All planes returned safely, it said.

The air assaults began at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. EDT) at the rate of almost one bombing sortie a minute, drawing barrages of anti-aircraft fire from Palestine Liberation Organization batteries.

The Bourj el-Barajneh Palestinian refugee camp and its approaches on Beirut's southern edge took the brunt of the first air strike.

Jets later divebombed the Fakhani neighborhood that houses Arafat's command headquarters as well as the nearby Chatilla refugee camp, the Bir Hassan residential neighborhood along the coast and the main traffic circle on the highway to the airport.

Associated Press correspondent Earleen F. Tatro, watching from the rooftop of the AP's west Beirut office, saw 11 planes attacking in 23 minutes, shrouding the Fakhani neighborhood in a haze of smoke.

The air assaults, the second in two days, shattered a six-hour lull that prevailed after nightlong exchanges of intermittent artillery fire between Israeli and PLO forces on Beirut's southern and eastern outskirts.

Israel has insisted since it invaded Lebanon June 6 to crush the guerrillas that it would increase military pressure at the same time it negotiates for a PLO withdrawal.

The Israel position on a PLO pullout was announced in Jerusalem by Cabinet Secretary Dan Meridor, who said his government was demanding as a precondition that it be given "speedily" a list of all the Arab countries to which the guerrillas would retreat.

It also insisted that the number of departing guerrillas be equal to the number of guerrillas that Israel believes are now in Beirut, Meridor said.

Meridor said Israel continued to demand that the majority of the guerrillas leave Beirut before the U.S.-French-Italian force moves into the Lebanese capital.

Israel estimates the number of guerrillas in Beirut at more than 7,100.

"The serious problem that comes above all else now is finding the accepting countries and the exact numbers that each will accept, so that the total of terrorists departing, according to lists to be issued, will be the number of guerrillas now in Beirut," Meridor said.

Sources close to the negotiations have said Jordan, Syria, Iraq and Sudan are willing to accept some of the guerrillas, and that Egypt may take in a number as well. The latest plan was worked out by U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib in Beirut and delivered to Prime Minister Begin by the U.S. ambassador in Israel, Samuel Lewis.

Big Block Grant To Pitt

RALEIGH — Pitt County has been allocated nearly $4.9 million — including the maximum grant of $1 million for Farmville — in 1982-83 Small Cities Community Development Block Grant funds.

The total for Pitt County represents more than 10 percent of the $46 million available throughout the state, according to a release by Joseph W. Grimsley, secretary of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, which administers the block grant program.

Grimsley said 257 local governments submitted applications totaling $155 million. Funding was available for only 29.7 percent of those requests, he said.

Farmville was one of only six towns and one county to receive a top grant of $1 million. The others are the towns of Washington, Shelby, Clayton, Laurinburg and Monroe and the county of Mecklenburg.

The breakdown of funds allocated to Pitt County is:

•Bethel	750,000
•Farmville	1,000,000
•Greenville	999,564
•Simpson	588,202
•Winterville	749,235
•Pitt County	15,000
•Pitt/Lenoir-Grifton	13,000
Pitt County Total	$4,859,522

Funds allocated to the towns and county communities in the seven counties adjacent to Pitt County are:

•Beaufort County	$2,343,070
•Craven County	2,103,450
•Edgecombe County	5,093,479
•Green County	1,500,000
•Lenoir County	1,500,000
•Martin County	3,392,015
•Wilson County	1,555,500

Bethlehem Steel Orders Drastic Cutbacks As Industry Dips Again

By LORRAINE CICHOWSKI
AP Business Writer
The nation's second largest steelmaker ordered a new round of cutbacks as production in the troubled industry took another dip and a dispute raged in Washington over steel imports.

Meanwhile, the possibility of increased bankruptcies among energy companies loomed.

Bethlehem Steel Corp. said Monday it was eliminating automatic pay raises and slashing benefits for 21,000 white-collar workers in a bid to save $30 million a year. The cutbacks affect all salaried workers.

It was the second economy move announced recently by Bethlehem and followed similar actions by other steelmakers, including industry leader U.S. Steel Corp.

The American Iron and Steel Institute, an industry trade group, said steel production fell 0.7 percent in the week ended Aug. 6 to 1.257 million tons compared with the previous week. The industry's production amounted to 42.6 percent of capacity during the week.

Domestic steelmakers have blamed sharp increases in imported steel for many of their problems.

Also on Monday, Bethlehem Steel joined U.S. Steel and several other steelmakers in rejecting an agreement forged last week between Reagan administration officials and Europeans aimed at settling a steel dispute by reducing this year's shipments of 11

European steel products to the United States. In exchange, the domestic producers would have been required to drop unfair trade complaints against the Europeans.

Meanwhile, Hughes Tool Co., which compiles a weekly count of active oil and gas drilling rigs, said the number of active drilling rigs continued to drop last week. The drilling decline was blamed on weak demand for oil, anemic prices caused by the sluggish international economy and a shortage of capital from investors.

Rotan Mosel Inc., a Houston brokerage firm specializing in oil and gas, predicted an increase in bankruptcies among energy firms.

In the troubled automobile industry, the number of U.S. dealerships selling vehicles of the five major carmakers declined by 556 in the first half of the year, according to Automotive News, an industry trade journal.

Automotive News said the five biggest domestic automakers had 21,124 new car dealerships July 1, down from 21,680 at the beginning of 1982. The change compares with a dip of 325 in the 1981 first half.

In other financial news: —The Federal Reserve Board said consumers took on $29.74 billion in new installment debt in June, up 1.8 percent from May. They paid off $28.39 billion, up 2.1 percent from May.

Can Move, Or Lose Their Jobs

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Twenty-five employees at two offices of the Department of Transportation's right-of-way branch can either move or lose their jobs in a reorganization plan scheduled to be completed by April 1, officials said.

Jack C. Baldwin, right-of-way branch director, said relocation and appraisal offices in Greenville and Asheville will be closed in 1983. The Asheville office will close by Jan. 1 and the Greenville office by April 1, he said.

After the reorganization, the branch will have appraisal offices in Raleigh, Charlotte and Winston-Salem and relocation offices in Durham, Winston-Salem and Charlotte.

An additional 21 positions in the branch are scheduled for elimination by April 1.

ENERGY MILESTONE — Scientist Brown Williams of RCA Laboratories in Princeton, N.J., demonstrates what is described as a major breakthrough in harnessing the sun's energy. Low-cost solar cells of amorphous silicon in the black square, have just achieved a record high 10 percent conversion efficiency. This, according to Dr. Williams, points the way toward large-scale solar-power production at costs comparable to those of oil-fired electric generating plants. (AP Laserphoto)

Israel Provides Military Data

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite strained diplomatic relations, Israeli military authorities are providing information to U.S. officers about the performance of American and Soviet weapons and about tactics used in the Lebanon war.

"There has never ceased to be a flow of information between the U.S. military establishment and the Israel Defense Force," said Maj. Gen. Menachem Meron, Israel's military attache here.

"The usual channels continue to work without any problems," Meron said in a recent interview. "Whatever questions they ask we try to answer, and there are such questions."

Despite that military cooperation, the State and Defense departments disclosed Monday that an American military liaison team in Lebanon was harassed by Israeli military forces over the weekend.

U.S. officials described the incidents, which reportedly included buzzing by an Israeli F-16 jet, as "very serious" but said Israel has apologized and given assurances the actions wouldn't be repeated.

The incidents were not expected to have any effect on the ongoing supply of tactical and weapons information furnished by the Israelis.

Meron said he preferred not to discuss specifics on information furnished to American military officers.

A senior Pentagon official said, "I am sure there is" a flow of information from the Israelis through longstanding links with the U.S. armed services. He refused to be identified.

An indication of such contacts came last week when Gen. Wilbur Creech, who commands U.S. Air Force fighter forces, said he was told by the Israelis that American equipment, particularly F-15 and F-16 fighters, made the difference in spectacular Israeli air victories over the Soviet-equipped Syrians.

The Defense Department says visits by special U.S. military teams to Israel to gather detailed technical and other data "are not expected until the conflict is terminated" in Lebanon.

Such on-the-spot studies conducted after previous Mideast wars have helped U.S. military officials learn valuable lessons from actual combat between Israeli forces using U.S.-supplied gear and Arab armies and air forces fighting with Soviet arms.

For example, after the 1973 war American technicians who visited the Middle East found that some American-made M-60 tanks driven by the Israelis had been knocked out because their hydraulic fluid caught fire when hit in the turret by Soviet-produced anti-tank missiles. As a result, the U.S. Army changed to a safer fluid.

The U.S. Air Force was reported in late June to have prepared an 11-man information-gathering team. But State Department and Pentagon officials were said to have blocked approval of any such mission to Israel because they were concerned it might anger Arab nations which blame the United States for not curbing the Israelis.

Meron said there was a mutual Israeli-U.S. decision to postpone such U.S. team visits while the fighting still is in progress in Lebanon, where Israeli forces are besieging Palestinian and Syrian fighters in West Beirut.

Meanwhile, Pentagon officials say they are going ahead with plans for a study ordered by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on lessons to be drawn from the Lebanon war, "so we'll be ready to go when the time comes" for visits by technical teams to the Mideast.

Doctors Reveal Hinckley Thinks Daily About Killing Jodie Foster

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The trial over, the diagnosis done, doctors at St. Elizabeths Hospital will now work out a treatment program for John W. Hinckley Jr., who still "thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster."

Hospital spokesman Wayne Pines said Hinckley and a team of professionals will jointly work out the right mix of group and individual therapy, the proper dosage of medication — anti-depressives — and the activities in which he can participate.

Hinckley was sent to the federally financed facility on June 21 after a jury found him innocent by reason of insanity on charges of shooting President Reagan and three other men.

On Monday, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker ordered Hinckley committed to the facility indefinitely, meaning he will undergo treatment. Until now, he has been evaluated.

Parker, accepting the report of St. Elizabeths' doctors, found that Hinckley is "at the present time and will in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others."

Hinckley, wearing a pinstrip shirt, no sport coat and dark trousers without a belt, appeared in Parker's courtroom for the first time since his acquittal.

In a firm voice, he told Parker he was waiving his right to a hearing on his release. Discussing the doctors' evaluation of his current mental state, Hinckley said, "I don't necessarily agree with their opinion."

The law allows Hinckley to petition the court every six months to free him, and he must ask permission any time wants to leave the hospital grounds, even for a few hours.

The St. Elizabeths report called Hinckley "an unpredictably dangerous person." Doctors said Hinckley suffers from four major personality disorders and major depression, which they said is in "partial remission."

"Presently, he thinks daily about killing Jodie Foster," the actress with whom carried on a one-sided love affair and who he tried to impress by shooting the president, the report said.

"In the recent past, he has expressed sexual and aggressive ideas about Ms. Foster," the report said. "He has more frequent thoughts of murdering her; he now has thoughts of raping her."

Pines said the hospital must now decide whether to move Hinckley from the 8-by-13 foot room in a ward with patients whose mental state is being evaluated to a section where all the residents have been through a trial, and, like Hinckley, have been found innocent by reason of insanity.

"As patients gradually gain more responsibility, they can play on basketball and baseball teams, be in bridge tournaments and put on plays," Pines said.

Later on, some patients are able to leave the hospital for jobs and college courses while other patients are given jobs on the grounds, mowing lawns, working in libraries or in the hospital's bakery or creamery.

The evaluation said Hinckley remains so obsessed with Ms. Foster that he has told doctors, when asked about his thoughts in the middle of the night, "Jodie, Jodie, and then there's Jodie."

"He believes that she has become attached forever in history to him because of his shooting the president," and still compares himself and the actress with Napoleon and Josephine and Romeo and Juliet.

Hinckley, the evaluation said, "seems sorry for what he has done, but is not deeply remorseful nor accepting of any deeply personal responsibility for his actions."

Hinckley, 28, wounded Reagan, White House Press Secretary James Brady and two law enforcement officers outside the Washington Hilton Hotel on March 30, 1981. Brady was the most seriously injured.

The doctors' report quoted Hinckley as saying that Brady looked like a "mannequin on the ground and I just honestly wish that I could go back before the shooting and let him move two inches out of the way."

It added: "He (Hinckley) justifies his shooting the president by stating that it increased Mr. Reagan's popularity in the polls. He has said to more than one examiner that he regrets Brady's disability as 'any other American would.' This is not to imply that Mr. Hinckley is consciously cruel or sadistic. He gets no pleasure out of Mr. Brady's handicap."

Hinckley told the St. Elizabeths doctors, "My life feels like a melodrama. The trial was the climax, like part of the movie. There may be a happy or tragic ending. There won't be a mediocre ending. I won't let that happen after all I did."

Visited Academy

Jonathan E. Thomas, a junior at Rose High School, spent last week with cadets at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., in conjunction with the Coast Guard Academy Introduction Mission (AIM).

The son of Air Force Lt. Colonel and Mrs. James C. Thomas, young Thomas was selected by members of Greenville Flotilla 16-05 of the Coast Guard Auxiliary and approved by the Coast Guard to take part in the program. He has expressed a desire to apply for admission to the academy.

The AIM program has been established to assist the Coast Guard in recruitment of cadets for the academy. Youths chosen for the program spend a week living and working with cadets and are subject to the same discipline and activities.

One of the key roles of the Coast Guard is life-saving work performed during search and rescue missions in America's waterways.

Of all national military academies, the Coast Guard Academy is the only one having admission based upon annual nationwide competition only. There are no congressional appointments, state quotas or special categories of admission. All applicants compete on an equal basis.

Heavy Sales On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE — Volume of sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market was heavy Monday as the market opened its third week of sales, sales supervisor Georgia Willoughby said.

Demand was up considerably and deliveries to the Stabilization Corp. decreased. The quality of tobacco being offered for sale improved and buying companies paid as much as $2.08 per pound, with most grades ranging between $1.70 and $1.80. The market sold 737,489 pounds for $1,309,067.63 for an average of $177.50 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 4,836,097 pounds for $7,832,323.33, for a season average of $161.96.

Registration

STOKES — Parents of students who have recently moved into the Stokes School district should come to the school to register their children for the 1982-83 school year, according to Principal Selma Cherry.

Parents of kindergarten-aged children should bring the child's birth certificate and immunization records, she added.

Miss Ivey, Mr. Milam Speak Wedding Vows

Alicia Lynn Ivey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Ivey of Jarratt, Va. and Robert Manning Milam, son Mrs. Betty S. and Mr. A.E. Milam both of Emporia Va. were united in marriage on Sunday at Centenary United Methodist Church. The Rev. Bettie Jean Vanhook performed the double ring ceremony.

The church was decorated with floral arrangements and candelabra. The acolyte, George Lee Parson of Charlottesville, performed the lighting of the candles. Miss Jerry A. Semones was mistress of ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father, and given in marriage by her parents, wore a traditional bridal gown of white organza trimmed in chantilly lace. The empire fitted bodice with its split v-neck was trimmed in chantilly lace and seed pearls. The bishop sleeves were of organza trimmed with lace cuffs. The flowing skirt was accented with a pleated center panel which was edged with chantilly lace bands in the front. The attached extra long chapel train was also edged with chantilly lace. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion with a juliet cap which was trimmed in matching lace. The bride carried a nosegay of white roses, yellow miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length gown of blue. The lace and taffeta gown was accented with a four-rose corsage of yellow roses. The sister of the bride wore a mauve-colored chiffon formal gown. She also wore a corsage of yellow roses.

For her son's wedding, Mrs. Milam chose a floor length mint green chiffon gown. She also wore a corsage of yellow roses. The grandmother of the groom selected a gown of blue chiffon.

The matron of honor, Angela S. Adams, wore a formal gown of yellow lace over matching taffeta. The gown had a pleated skirt accented with a satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay of white daisies, yellow miniature carnations, and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Ginger Saffelle of Burlington, N.C. and Carole Ferguson of Emporia both cousins of the groom; Ann Marie Barnes of Stony Creek, cousin of the bride, and Kathi Agnew of Richmond. Their gowns and flowers were identical to the matron of honor.

For his wedding, the groom wore a navy tuxedo with a white rose on his lapel. The best man was Bruce Vincent Milam, brother of the groom.

The groomsmen were Rob Saffelle of Burlington and Stephen Ferguson of Emporia, both cousins of the groom; Glenn Johnson of Richmond, cousin of the bride and Doug Daughtrey of Emporia. Their tuxedos were identical to the groom with yellow rose boutonnieres.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ivey entertained the guests at a reception at the Johns-Manville Clubhouse in Jarratt.

For travel, the bride wore a rose colored linen suit with matching accessories and a corsage lifted from her nosegay.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, the couple will reside in Elizabeth City. Both the bride and the groom are graduates of East Carolina University. He is employed by Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, Elizabeth City, and she is employed by the law firm of LeRoy, Wells, Shaw, Hornthal, and Riley, Elizabeth City.

MRS. JAMES FRANKLIN BELCHER

Mariana Bradsher Is Bride Of J.F. Belcher

OXFORD — Mariana Mitchell Bradsher and James Franklin Belcher were united in marriage here Saturday in the Oxford Presbyterian Church. The ceremony was conducted by Norman M. MacDowell and Harrison T. Simons. A program of organ music was presented by Miriam MacDowell.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sutton Bradsher Jr. and Mrs. Katherine Pruitt Belcher of Oxford and Mr. James Blanton Belcher of Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, Daisy Elizabeth DiMond, cousin of the bride of Oxford, was honor attendant while bridesmaid was Donna Marie Robertson of Roanoke Rapids. The junior bridesmaid was Jennifer Royster Pruitt of Raleigh, cousin of the bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Blanton Thomas Belcher of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom, Robert Sutton Bradsher III, brother of the bride, and Lonnie Marsh Pruitt, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Oxford.

Each of the attendants were dressed in a full length gown of orchid organza and carried a bouquet of white album lilies with cascading orchid alstromeria lilies and eucalyptus. They wore orchid alstromeria lilies in their hair.

The junior bridesmaids wore a candlelight full length gown of cotton batiste trimmed with antique lace and carried flowers like those of the other attendants.

The bride's parents entertained at a reception held at the home of the bride's paternal grandmother. The house was decorated with summer flowers. Friends and family of the bridal couple assisted in receiving and serving. Music was provided by a string quartet.

The couple will be living in Greenville after a wedding trip to unannounced points.

The bride attended Rollins and Queens Colleges and American Business and Fashion Institute. She was presented at the Terpsichorean Club Debutante Ball in 1980.

The bridegroom attended Appalachian State University and is associated with the New Independent Warehouse in Greenville.

Dear Abby

Reader Chews Out Teen-Ager

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was disgusted when I read the letter from "Loves to Eat," the teen-ager whose father offered her $100 to lose 10 pounds. She lost the weight, collected the money, then reverted to her piggish ways and gained it all back again.

Her father asked her to return the $100, so she asked you if he was entitled to it. I was disappointed when you said, "No, because it wasn't spelled out when the deal was made."

Abby, the father thought "Falso" would realize how much better she looked after she lost the weight and therefore would keep it off. All fathers want their daughters to be pretty and more desirable for marriage.

When that teen-ager is fat and 40, she'll be lucky if she has a chance to marry a widower with five kids who need a housekeeper and babysitter!

DISGUSTED IN WYOMING

DEAR DISGUSTED: You are obviously coming from the "old days" when girls were taught that all they had to do was look "pretty" and some rich man would marry them and take care of them for the rest of their lives.

Well, times have changed, thank God! Today, young women are learning to be self-sufficient, so they won't have to marry a meal ticket like some of our grandmothers did. (P.S. If you look around, you'll see many women who are fat and 40, fantastically successful, and single by choice.)

DEAR ABBY: Our 22-year-old grandson is wearing one earring. Is there any special reason for this?

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You like fiction?

Some of the best being published today are the picture postcards of your home town. Ever see what tourists send home from your city? Pictures of downtown streets lined with boulevards that look like the Gardens of Babylon. A statue to the brave men of World War I with 2,000 people standing around it paying homage. And a view of the city after dark that rivals the Paris skyline.

I used to live in a small Ohio town where the high spot of our week was watching them dust the trusses in the drugstore window. There was one traffic light, a gas pump, and a karate school above the feed store. The single police cruiser kept a list of dogs in heat so they could follow up on missing male complaints.

The picture postcards told another story. There were attractions for six days, including a museum which no one had ever seen. There was a boating regatta on a river that cards all had running boards and wicks for headlights.

It has always been so. There's a new book out about postcards called "Prairie Fires and Paper Moons: The American Photographic Postcard 1900-1920," by Hal Morgan and Andreas Brown, that really explains a lot of things.

In the early 1900s, postcards depicted one of two things: natural disasters like flood and fires, and personalized cards showing ordinary people in extraordinary settings.

This would certainly explain a couple of old postcards I found in a photo album of my father-in-law. One showed him in the original Wright Brothers airplane, his hair blowing from under a straw hat and a line underneath that proclaimed, "FLYING HIGH IN PITTSBURGH."

There's another one of him in a bar wearing Western attire, holding a mug of beer in one hand and dangling a redhead on his knee in the other with the message, "RAISING HELL IN CHAGRIN FALLS."

The authors of the book say that after World War I, photographic postcards were replaced by sophisticated glossy pictures of resort hotels, scenic wonders and scantily clad girls on the beach.

It's still a challenge. A couple of years ago, one of my kids found a card of an Indian and a bear posing together for a picture taken by a tourist at the Grand Canyon. My son said, "Wow! I wish I lived there."

He did.

Energy Savings Needed

Public officials say they are taking steps to conserve energy in their operations.

County Manager Reginald Gray says that new and renovated buildings have incorporated energy saving features, a motor pool concept is being utilized to save on transportation and other steps are being taken by the county to save energy.

Greenville Utilities says it is installing natural gas fuel on some of its vehicles.

City Manager Gail Meeks says gas consumption last year was cut by 16 percent and energy saving installations have been made on city buildings.

At East Carolina University plans are underway for a $672,000 energy conservation project on five dorms.

Pitt Community College says it is using waste oil to fire its boilers.

These are all positive steps in the never ending fight to reduce energy costs. They tell us that public officials are thinking conservation. We hope the battle has only begun. There are many ways that energy savings can be realized as buildings are constructed or renovated. Energy conservation should be top priority in all public planning.

Loch Ness Monster Lives!

A scientist suggests that the Loch Ness Monster may be only an old log.

Robert P. Craig, a retired Scottish electronics engineer, offers the theory that one or several Scots pines which grow around the lake fell in and, becoming water logged, sank to the bottom. Gas build-up in the log would send it to the surface with much splashing and hissing and then it would settle back to the bottom.

It's a logical theory, but forget it. The Loch Ness Monster has been around for too long and is too charming to be relegated to the status of an old log.

If Santa Claus lives for Virginia, then the Loch Ness Monster lives for us.

The Golden Opportunity

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — When President Reagan ruled out punitive measures against Israel and decided instead to reserve sanctions for later use, he made a fateful decision not to strike when the iron was hottest that he may bitterly regret in days to come.

Secretary of State George Shultz persuaded Reagan that after the PLO guerrilla leaders finally leave Beirut, U.S. pressures will be needed to compel Israel to get out of Lebanon and give the Palestinians full autonomy on the West Bank. The anti-Israeli sanctions not used last week will be available.

But that sounds like tough talk to cover the timid U.S. response to Israeli flouting of Reagan's desperate appeal for an "in-place" cease-fire when the time comes for U.S. pressure on Israel for an overall Middle East settlement, there may be less support here for sanctions and more backing in Israel for Prime Minister Menachem Begin. The moment for U.S. determination to control its headstrong little ally may have been lost.

That moment surely was at hand late Aug. 4 during a classified CIA-State Department briefing for senators. Less than 24 hours earlier, Israeli armor broke into west Beirut in defiance of Reagan's personal appeal to Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir on Aug. 2. Judging from the senators' reaction to the administration's cautious tone, a corner seemed to have been turned in the American political attitude toward Israel.

Ambassador Richard Fairbanks, one of the administration briefers, under heavy questioning, repeatedly implied that sanctions were out for now. Sen. David Boren reworded the question: If not sanctions, are any other punitive actions being considered? Fairbanks refused to answer yes or no. He finally choked off the questions by saying he had been "instructed" not to answer and that Shultz was the only official authorized to discuss that matter.

Three staunch pro-Israeli senators present — Alan Cranston (a 1984 Democratic presidential hopeful), Howard Metzenbaum and Rudy Boschwitz — were bucking the tide. Otherwise, the sentiment of senators strongly favored any punishment Reagan might propose. When Boren said that his anger was aimed at Begin and not Israel, another Democratic senator responded: "Begin could go down in history as the man who destroyed Israel."

That shows the high degree of support for Reagan and Shultz had they decided on sanctions or some lesser punishment last week. But the administration decided that if Israel had been punished last week, in the words of one official, "they could have gone for eight months without another dime or another bullet from us." Worse, he said, sanctions would have "maximized the paranoia" in Israel, "cemented" the Israeli people behind Begin and possibly triggered all-out invasion of west Beirut.

That decision, however, risks a buildup of Begin's prestige. He will likely be credited for the exodus of PLO leaders from Beirut, the destruction of the PLO's arsenal and the end of any PLO threat to northern Israel.

"No matter how it happens," one administration insider told us, "Begin is going to look the hero when the Beirut tragedy runs its final course." That would produce heightened Begin popularity and credibility both in Israel and in the American Jewish community. If Reagan then decides to reach up to the shelf for the sanctions weapon, he may find it out of reach.

There would then be no nightly television drama of the battle of Beirut, no hospitals blowing up, no civilians dying. The PLO leadership and 6,000 guerrilla fighters would then be gone from Lebanon, scattered far and wide. The Lebanon invasion, given the transitory nature of events in the television age, would have faded from memory.

A Reagan decision then to play the sanctions card would likely be trumped by political reality. American voters would not be moved by Israel's failure to withdraw from Lebanon as they have been outraged by Israeli air attacks on west Beirut. With the Nov. 2 U.S. election nearer, politicians would be less critical of Israeli policy.

Thus, a turning point that might have restored a more natural balance in the relationship of the super power to its tiny democratic ally may have been lost by timidity and poor timing. When asked on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Saturday" what the U.S. could do today about Israel, Sen. Jesse Helms answered bluntly: "Just shut off relations. We're either going to stop it — or we're not going to do anything." After the recent events in Beirut, it seems that Reagan is "not going to do anything."

Hope For Willie M.

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Willie M., the youngster whose emotional troubles led to the creation of the multi-million dollar treatment program for violence prone children, may be going home soon. State officials at the Whitaker School here say Willie should be ready to enter a community-based program in his hometown of Charlotte this fall.

Willie began making headlines in 1979 when he and three other children sued the state to establish their right to treatment. Willie had learning disabilities and psychiatric problems. Faced with stressful situations, Willie was likely to get violent. For that reason, he had been dropped from a number of treatment programs.

The state settled out of court a year later and is now committed to spend millions identifying and treating the 1,000 children in the state suspected to have Willie's problems. The case has brought much notoriety to Willie. "Willie M." is a name known to educators around the country and it has come to be identified with a whole class of children. The name has also become an expensive item in the state budget.

Children like Willie have a great deal of trouble dealing with stress. Debbie Simmers, director of the Whitaker School, says they get very frightened when confronted with stress in school or on the playground. Stress is something all children face constantly. As they mature, they learn to deal with it. But for Willie M. children, learning disabilities or poor upbringing "mean they never learn the tools that we have to ameliorate stress of solve our problems."

At Butner, the children are taught simple stress management techniques — things as simple as excusing themselves and sitting alone for a few minutes until they calm down. They're taught to structure their daily schedules. A person with his day well planned out will encounter less stress, Ms. Simmers says.

The children are also taught many things children usually learn from their parents: How to eat with a knife and fork, how to clean themselves and their living quarters, how to keep themselves healthy. All of this leads to more self confidence which may be the best tool for fighting stress. If you have confidence you can handle tough situations, you've pretty much beaten the stress problem.

PAUL O'CONNOR

At Butner, the children are housed in a secure facility where the doors are sometimes locked. The children quickly become comfortable there. Ms. Simmers says. They feel the counselors will protect them from both the outside world and from themselves. Other programs in the state are less restrictive. Some counties have houses where the children are never locked in.

The children blow up only occasionally, she says. And they know what to expect when they do. They know the staff can deal with the temper tantrums and work with them afterwards. They may be left in their room with the door closed for a while so they can calm down. Then the door will be opened and a few minutes later someone will come in and talk with them. In facilities where the children do not have this confidence in their counselors, the blow-ups tend to occur much more frequently.

Ms. Simmers says each child's progress is measured by the frequency of blow-ups, their intensity and the amount of time it takes for the child to get back on even keel. When asked if Willie M. will ever lead a normal life, Ms. Simmer says she's not a psychic and couldn't define "normal," anyhow. But she

Strange Political Ways

WASHINGTON — Politics, they say, makes strange bedfellows. Politics makes strange antagonists also, and we have been seeing this phenomenon lately. In Ronald Reagan, conservative Republicans have the nearest thing to a philosophical ideal they could ask for. And what have they been doing for their president lately? Cutting him off at the knees, that's what.

The rebellion in the House, led by Rep. Jack Kemp of N.Y., provides a handy example. Kemp is one of the savviest members of the House. He does his homework. He knows the numbers in the budget. As well as any person on the Hill, Kemp understands the fiscal mess we are in, and he understands what it takes to get us out of the mess. We are in this mess for several reasons, but the chief reason lies in the high rates of interest required to borrow money. These high rates have led to record numbers of bankruptcies and business failures. They have had a cruel impact upon farmers. The rates are at least in part responsible for a devastating slump in the housing industry and in automobile sales. The resulting recession has led to intolerable levels of unemployment, and these levels have had their own disastrous impact upon the federal budget: Every 1 percent increase in unemployment adds $25 billion to the deficit.

How do we bring the interest rates down? How do we bring the deficits down? There is but one answer. We attempt to restore confidence in the money markets by (1) reducing federal spending, (2) increasing federal revenues or (3) a combination of both. We attempt to create a positive image of fiscal responsibility, with a view toward balancing the budget a few years down the road.

Kemp and his rebellious colleagues know all this. So far as reductions in spending are concerned, they have demonstrated excellent leadership. Why, then, are they balking at the necessary companion measure? How can they explain their undercutting opposition to the tax bill passed by the Senate — a bill that would raise $98 billion over the next three years? The bill is the closest thing to painless dentistry since tax withholding was invented 40 years ago.

They denounced the measure as a "tax increase," and in some ways it is precisely that. The doubled federal tax on cigarettes, for example, plainly is an increase. But what is not fully understood is that one-third of this bill is aimed at the recovery of taxes that are owed but evaded. Another third comes from those cream-licking fat cats who have managed to avoid paying any taxes at all.

Public Forum

Letters submitted for Public Forum should be limited to 300 words. The editor reserves the right to edit longer letters.

To the editor:

Paul O'Connor's recent series on the shortage of qualified science and math teachers in public schools has been a great public service. It is, by any reasonable standard, inexcusable to continue a situation where one fourth of math and science teachers are "taught by inadequately trained people."

O'Connor says that Dr. Paul Taylor of the Department of Public Instruction calls the situation a matter of "national security." Modern technology, in a theater of war, he explains can make the difference between victory and defeat. He cites the Israeli/Syrian air battles as examples. I agree completely.

The problem, however, is broader than math and science, per se. If Johnny can't read, he isn't likely to be able to handle high technology in business and industry or on the battle field.

If Johnny hasn't the basic understandings of his body, mind and community, Johnny can't tell gonorrhea from Sunday School. And if Johnny hasn't a basic understanding of history, political processes and human behavior, he can't tell the difference between Communism and Democracy. So the national emergency is not limited to math and science. Include in the emergency the short-sightedness of Congress and the North Carolina General Assembly in failing to financially support public and higher education, in keeping with the needs and the times.

To pay a premium price for math and science teachers, while neglecting English, social studies and health is a short route to an unfair, shortsighted and ill-fated "solution." Massive disruptions and loss of morale would follow. North Carolina and most of the nation are quite interested in "education," as represented by graduation from high school and college. But horse shows, beauty contests and athletic events appear to be much more greatly valued than the development of the minds, bodies and spiritual welfare of our youth.

Strength For Today

BAFFLING, BUT VITAL QUESTION

What is life, anyway?

What is this something within us which causes us to function as living beings and then departs, sometimes because of old age or accident or disease? No one, of course, can answer this question. If we could answer it, we would know as much as God himself. But this we do know, namely, that God has put life into our bodies in order that we may experience a period of testing. Any other interpretation of life is superficial and without purpose.

Many people live as if life were simply an opportunity for them to have a good time. For others it is a matter of making money or acquiring power and prestige.

But life is a pilgrimage. We stumble and falter and perhaps fall if we try to make it anything else. It requires courage to live life successfully and to its limits. So don't let life get you down. God designs precisely the opposite — life is intended to get us up, and up, and up. — Elisha Douglass

Compulsion In Market Studies

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Among other things, curiosity drives Arnold Bernhard.

More than a half-century after the great stock market crash he says softly, "I never got over the shock." The shock, he said, of seeing stocks lose 90 percent of their value from 1929 to 1932.

To him it was unreasonable that such over- and undervaluations could occur in the same economy. It might not have happened, he reasons, if investors had access to objective information on individual stocks.

Relentlessly since then he has sought that information, and with some success. His objective stock-ranking system has been said by academics and investors to be a true advance in securities analysis.

There is more to do, though. A courtly, thinking man, Bernhard remains absorbed by the desire to perfect his work. Unable since 1965 to isolate additional factors to refine his system, he is about to buy an Apple computer, the better to study an array of possible correlations.

Meanwhile, Arnold Bernhard & Co., the firm he founded and owns solely, has prospered. He says it is worth $200 million now, adding that he might take as little as $160 million if a suitable offer were made.

For that, any potential buyer would get a company in a growth phase, which Bernhard, feeling young at 80, began about two years ago. "The ideal," he explained, "is the experience of age and the innovative spirit of youth." That, he feels, qualifies him to continue leading.

About 95,000 investors subscribe to the Value Line Investment Survey, the company's flagship and the largest of all advisory services, which contains the rankings of stocks and discussions of the market.

Some $700 million in pension money is under direction management. Another $1 billion is in six mutual funds, two begun within the past 18 months. The firm is also chief adviser on $1 billion in pension funds.

A Special Situations service has grown in the past two years. So has an Options & Convertible service. The data base is expanding, and so is its use by universities and companies. The firm's own cash now totals close to $70 million, and is growing. And this year, Fact, a money management magazine, was launched. Bernhard says it is doing well.

An expansion into electronic data communications is a possibility, as is a real estate venture, most likely a company building. Still, the improvement of selection system remains Bernhard's personal goal.

Little if any subjectivity creeps into the evaluation of the 1,700 stocks — now being expanded to 3,000, including some foreign issues. Instead, stocks are measured in several ways relative to each other, based on prices, earnings and other factors over a 10-year period.

Though he seeks improvements, Bernhard challenges anyone to show his system of evaluating a stock's potential by measuring it objectively against the universe of stocks, isn't an invaluable investment tool.

For one thing, objective analysis, much of it numerical, allows an investor to measure real values regardless of the cyclical changes in the marketplace. Stocks are down now; Bernhard's hopes for them aren't.

"I think there are few opportunities as in the stock market," he said. "In the next six to nine months bonds will give a better return than stocks. Stock will go lower in price — and be howling bargains."

What kind of bargains? "You can buy stocks to double in value by 1986," he said. Why? "Because there is a correlation between the gross national product and the earnings of corporations," he replied.

That, he suggested, is a reasonable judgment to make. But prior to the Great Crash, he said, it was difficult for investors to make sound decisions. What they read before the crash was all bullish, and prices reflected those opinions; and after the crash the advice was uniformly bearish, distorted by events, he said. Opinions substituted for facts.

"Why so high and then why so low in the same economy?" he asked. "If people really knew why they were selling, and at a fraction of book value, they wouldn't have been so suicidal (in dumping stocks)."

Seeking to fill the gap in knowledge, at times with little money and as little encouragement, Bernhard built his amazing empire. "Not a cent (of outside money) ever went into this business," he said.

For the past 11 years company profits have compounded at a rate of 32 percent a year. Last year was a record high, with pretax profits of $13 million, not counting income from the company's own investments.

State Officials Cite Budget Amendment's Impact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials say passage of a constitutional amendment requiring a balanced federal budget could force North Carolina to raise taxes, cut services or do both in order to keep its own budget balanced.

Marvin Dorman, deputy state budget officer, says North Carolina balances its budget with the help of federal funds, which make up about a quarter of the state's operating revenues each year. Most of the federal aid goes to human services such as Medicare and Medicaid and to highways and education.

Federal officials have said a balanced federal budget could result in large reductions in federal aid to states, meaning the state would then have to either cut its own budget or raise taxes in order to continue providing the services.

"The problem arises when people become used to a certain level of services and suddenly the funding for those services is cut," Dorman said. "Then it becomes a matter of deciding whether the services are worth a tax increase."

The U.S. Senate already has approved a proposed constitutional amendment to stop the federal government from spending more than it takes in except under certain conditions.

North Carolina voters amended the state constitution to require a balanced state budget in 1977. Before that, a law enacted by the General Assembly in 1925 required the governor to maintain a balanced budget.

Dorman said North Carolina's budget is based on revenue estimates. That requires monthly monitoring, because when the actual income is less than the estimate, spending must be cut to keep the state in the black.

In North Carolina, the biennial state budget is drawn every two years and adjusted in the interim years. Budget officers estimate what they think the state's income will be, based mostly on predicted economic growth.

That estimate is approved by the Legislature, which allocates money to state agencies accordingly.

"When the General Assembly adopts those revenue figures, we are locked into them for a year," Dorman said. "The reason we are locked into them is that they (legislators) generally appropriate every dollar we anticipate getting."

When the economy falters and the state is locked into revenue estimates that are too high, allotments to state agencies are cut, he said.

"If actual collections fall below, we just hold back the funds and will not allow them to spend any more."

State agencies are aware that their funds may be cut, Dorman said.

"They can expect us to cut their allotment by 5 percent," he said. "If things get worse then we will cut more."

The hiring freeze in effect since 1979 has helped provide a cushion for the agencies when they have to cut back, because they receive appropriations for some jobs but are not allowed to fill them when vacancies occur.

Dorman said 80 percent of the state's budget, which totals $5.9 billion for the current fiscal year, is spent on wages and fringe benefits.

The state amendment passed because "the Legislature felt that laws can be changed but the constitution can't without the voters," Dorman said.

Asked whether it was unfair to say North Carolina balances its own budget when it depends so heavily on federal help, Dorman replied, "Not at all, because we'd have to have a balanced budget if we never got one dollar of federal aid."

Officials Say Tobacco Market Holiday Is Possible

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Agriculture officials say flue-cured tobacco markets in North Carolina may be forced to take a "holiday" if the amount of leaf going under federal loan doesn't fall substantially this week.

And a group of state Democratic leaders and farmers said at a Monday news conference that the proposed federal tax increase on cigarettes is the biggest culprit for lower prices at the flue-cured markets this year.

John Cyrus, chief of tobacco affairs for the N.C. Department of Agriculture, issued the warning Monday of the pending suspension of sales. He said about 35 percent of the tobacco marketed to date has not brought bids of at least 1 cent over the federal support price.

working extra hours just trying to keep up with the amount of tobacco going to stabilization.

Fred Bond, director of the stabilization corporation, said Cyrus' statement that the high amount of tobacco going to the corporation might necessitate a holiday was "not unfounded."

"There is a possibility of a holiday if the percentage of leaf going under loan continues at the present level," Bond said.

The stabilization corporation's board of directors, which meets Friday in Raleigh, may call for a halt of sales for one or more days to give corporation workers time to catch up, Bond said.

Although the stabilization corporation board of directors can recommend a sales holiday, the final decision will be made by the Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee.

The committee, which also sets opening dates, delayed market openings for a week earlier this year to give Congress more time to

H & R BLOCK TO OFFER TAX SCHOOL IN GREENVILLE

Thousands of people are earning money in their spare time as income tax preparers.

H & R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, is offering a basic income tax course starting September 9 or 10 with morning and evening classes available.

During the 12 week course, students will study all phases of income tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced Block personnel will teach current laws, theory and application as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both interesting and challenging.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or persons wanting to increase their tax knowledge.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many accept employment with Block because of the flexible hours available. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H & R Block.

The modest course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. Certificates will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

Registration forms and brochures for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the H & R Block Office at Greenville Square Shopping Center, Greenville, N.C. 27834, Telephone: 756-9365.

responsibility to one side. The bill is as politically appealing as a tax bill could be. This is not a bill to hit the workingman with another boost in his Social Security taxes. It does not affect the reductions in income tax rates that already have been written into law. The measure will have its primary impact upon great corporations and industries — the insurance companies, for example, and the largest contractors. The measure will hit professionals (I am among them) who have incorporated themselves so as to create individual retirement funds. If new revenues have to be raised — and my argument is that they must be raised — these are the least damaging places to raise them.

The classic theory of supply-side economics is that the way to prosperity lies in tax reductions. The lower the rates, the theory holds, the more capital will be freed for investment; the more investment, the more jobs; the more jobs, the more revenues. I happen to believe the theory is sound, but it takes time for its premises to manifest themselves in the marketplace.

The president is doing everything he possibly can do, within the constraints of political reality, to move us toward a balanced budget. He is leading. In this political town, where partisanship is the name of the game, he can expect no help from liberal Democrats on the Hill. But it is dismaying — that is the mildest word that comes to mind — to see that he's getting such little help from conservative Republicans also.

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A heavily armed trucker who killed his boss and five other people in a half-hour rampage before being shot to death was "tired of being pushed around" at work, his brother says.

"If you kick a dog too many times, he's going to turn on you," Murphy Parish, brother of gunman John Parish, told the Dallas Morning News. According to police and friends, John Parish had been upset about his pay.

"The man obviously had an agenda," said Police Chief David Kunkle, at the end of Parish's half-hour spree Monday at four locations in this suburb west of Dallas.

Three people were wounded and three others were injured in the chase before Parish was killed.

The violence ended after Parish, 46, smashed a stolen 18-wheel truck into a police car and shot it out with police.

"It was like a Wild West show," said Wayne Standefer, who owns Wayne's Custom Automotive across the street from where Parish was killed. "They were shooting in every direction in the world."

Parish, of Dallas, had been employed for two years at the WTS Enterprises trucking company.

According to police and

eyewitnesses, Parish showed up at about 8 a.m. at the operations warehouse of a WTS subsidiary, Western Transportation Systems, and calmly shot and killed three men, including his boss, Eddie Eugene Ulrich.

Parish was armed with a shortened .30-caliber carbine rifle, a .25-caliber automatic pistol, and a .38-caliber revolver, Kunkle said.

Parish next stole a truck and drove to WTS headquarters in the same industrial park, where he killed an executive secretary and wounded a receptionist and an operations manager, police said.

Parish then drove to another industrial park about four miles away where he killed two supervisors and wounded another at the Jewel-T Discount Grocery Distribution Center, about two blocks from the Grand Prairie police station, Kunkle said.

Jewel-T has used Parish as a driver, but then told WTS he was a troublemaker and asked that he no longer be assigned Jewel-T jobs, Kunkle said.

After the Jewel-T shootings, Parish went to the parking lot and commandeered a truck from a driver who while fleeing suffered a broken foot.

Firing at his pursuers, Parish led police on a 1½-mile chase to a trucking terminal where he drove the stolen 18-wheeler head-on into a parked police car, knocking down a stop sign and utility pole as the truck overturned and slid, smashing a hole in the terminal building.

Officer Alan Patton, shooting at Parish from behind his patrol car, was knocked 50 to 100 feet and his car was thrown 20 feet, Kunkle said.

Parish crawled from the cab of the wrecked truck and into the terminal, firing at police until he was struck seven or eight times by return fire, ending the violence at 8:27 a.m., authorities said.

Kunkle said Parish had argued with his employer twice in the past two weeks, complaining that he was underpaid. Police Detective Bob Willbanks said Parish claimed he was owed about $1,000.

Ulrich had explained to Parish that his paychecks were smaller because Parish had been working less, said Arvil "Butch" Smallwood, a WTS mechanic who said he got along well with Parish.

Police said Parish's victims were Ulrich, 40, of Lewisville; truck drivers Martin Douglas Moran, 30, of Grand Prairie, and Moody Charles Smith, 58, of Hudson; executive secretary Wyanne Kohler, 45, of Arlington; Jewel-T district sales manager Dave Bahl, 28, of Arlington; and warehouse supervisor Rick Svoboda, 27, of Arlington.

Dies At 150

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Egypt's oldest citizen, Morsi Soliman Daoud, has died at the age of 150, the government-run newspaper Al-Gomhuriya says. He left behind a 100-year-old wife and seven children.

Daoud resided in the Mediterranean village of Mersa Metrouh. He was a nurse by profession and ran a grocery store in retirement. He had brothers who lived to be 160 and 95, the newspaper said.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady to firm. Supplies short. Demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 14-15 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market surrendered some early gains today but remained mostly higher in morning trading as it tried to break a string of five losing sessions.

Gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange, although the margin earlier had been 3 to 1.

Auto, technology, aerospace and mining issues paced the advances.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, having slumped 41.76 points in the past five sessions and opening at its lowest point in nearly 28 months, was up 0.57 to 780.92 after two hours of trading today. It had been up nearly 4 points in the early going.

The transportation index rose a fraction while the utility measure was unchanged.

Big Board volume was 22.22 million shares at noon, compared with 24.51 million at that hour in the previous session.

The NYSE composite index rose 0.06 to 59.31.

The stock market has been under pressure amid the continuing recession, escalating turmoil in the Middle East and fears that recent declines in interest rates may have stalled analysts said.

Gulf Oil's dropping of its acquisition bid for Cities Service also had a negative impact. But Cities' declaration that it stood ready to buy as many as 20 million of its own shares help ease the market's anxiety, and Cities' stock was up 2 1/2 to 32 1/2 today.

Allied Corp., rumored a possible suitor for Cities, slumped 1 1/4 to 32 1/2.

Seek Organize Chapter Rail Passengers Ass'n

Efforts are under way to form a North Carolina-South Carolina chapter of the National Association of Rail Passengers to promote the increase of passenger service within the Carolinas, according to Bill Cobb, a local spokesman.

Cobb, who retired after 21 years as a trainman for Seaboard Railroad, said organizers of the Carolina Association of Passenger Train Advocates are hoping to advertise and publicize the importance of rail transportation.

"Due to the economy, with high automobile expenses, repairs and gasoline costs, this group feels it is feasible to use the rails which are now existing and do not have to be built," Cobb explained.

Noting that several states already have chapters organized, Cobb said some chapters have been successful in getting passenger trains that have been out of service restored to the rails.

The spokesman mentioned that attention is also being focused on the initiation of a railway awareness campaign aimed at insuring that tioners, tourists and other travelers.

According to the spokesman, there are currently about 265 members of the national association in North Carolina and 65 in South Carolina. The membership also includes several Greenville and Pitt County rail passenger service supporters.

Cobb said the effort to take a look at the future of railroad services in the state, particularly passenger train service, has already gained the support of a number of prominent North Carolina citizens, including former state senator McNeill Smith, who have volunteered their time.

Appointed To Assistant

City Manager Gail Meeks announced today that Nadine Bowen, administrative secretary to the police chief here since 1972, has been appointed an administrative assistant in the city manager's office.

The city manager said the appointment of Ms. Bowen, who has worked in a number of areas with the city for 14 years, is effective Aug. 26.

As administrative assistant, Ms. Bowen will be in charge of the city's public information and goals and objectives programs, provide budget assistance, work with citizens' complaints and concerns, and do special project work, according to Ms. Meeks.

A Greenville native and graduate of Rose High School, Ms. Bowen began her career with the city in 1966 in the city manager's office.

She left in May of 1968 and worked until 1970 with the Air Force Exchange at Grissom Air Force Base, Peru, Ind., where her husband, Donald, was assigned. She came back to Greenville in March of 1970 and worked in the city manager's office, in engineering and planning, and in inspections until November of 1972 when she joined the police department.

Ms. Bowen and her husband have one daughter, Kristi, and attend Unity Free Will Baptist Church. They reside in Tuckahoe subdivision.

Cancel Digging In Body Search

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
TABOR CITY, N.C. (AP) — Law enforcement officials say they are satisfied there are no human remains buried in two animal pits at the Columbus County farm of Operation Colcor defendant Kenneth T. Coleman.

"We've searched, we've dug those pits out and turned up nothing," said Chief Deputy Stuart Sasser of the Columbus County Sheriff's Department.

Officials discontinued their search after six hours of digging Monday turned up the bones of horses, cows and pigs, but no humans.

The search for human bodies took place at Coleman's farm after Assistant U.S. Attorney Rob Showers said Coleman told undercover agents at a hearing in Wilmington last week that he had shot and buried a Cuban drug runner on his "hog lot."

Coleman faces marijuana and cocaine charges in the FBI's Colcor probe of corruption in eastern North Carolina.

At a bond hearing earlier that week, assistant U.S. attorney J. Douglas McCullough, referred to alleged slayings at what he called "the pit" on the Coleman farm.

Sentence Duo In Bid-Rigging

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two construction company executives have received short prison terms after pleading guilty to bid-rigging charges.

Crowder Construction Co. Vice President Otis Crowder, 34, was sentenced to 90 days in prison and fined $15,000. Former Dickerson Group Inc. President Frank Carpenter, 51, of Monroe received nine months in prison and was fined $35,000.

Both men were sentenced Monday by U.S. District Judge Robert Potter. Potter also fined Crowder Construction Co. of Charlotte $250,000.

The executives and the company were indicted on a charge of conspiring with other unnamed businesses and individuals to win for Dickerson and Crowder companies a 1978 contract to upgrade the McAlpine Creek Wastewater Treatment Plant near Pineville.

Crowder and Crowder Construction Co. pleaded guilty Monday. Carpenter had pleaded guilty July 12.

In an earlier plea-bargain agreement in a highway paving case, the Dickerson company was granted immunity from further bid-rigging prosecution.

Carl Mullis, an antitrust lawyer with the U.S. Justice Department, said Crowder Construction and Dickerson were the low and successful bidders on the wastewater project with a bid of $12.6 million. Crowder's share was $6.9 million, Dickerson's $5.7 million.

The night before the contract was awarded, Carpenter and Otis Crowder talked with Tom Dooley, president of R.T. Dooley Inc. in Charlotte, and he agreed to submit a higher bid on the project, Mullis said.

From talking with officials of another company, Crowder and Carpenter learned that the company was not interested in the project, Mullis said. They also knew a South Carolina company would probably submit a bid that didn't compete with theirs because it usually bid high, he said.

The Dooley bid, in a joint venture with Blythe Industries, was $13.3 million, and the S.C. firm's was $13.5 million, Mullis said.

Blythe Industries also has immunity from prosecution because of an earlier plea bargain in highway paving bid-rigging matters.

R.T. Dooley Inc. was named an unindicted coconspirator in court documents. Mullis would not say Monday if the company or Tom Dooley had been granted immunity from prosecution. Dooley declined comment Monday.

According to terms of a plea bargaining agreement, Carpenter was not prosecuted for obstructing justice in allowing a change on Dickerson records subpoenaed by the federal grand jury in Charlotte investigating bid-rigging.

Carpenter, indicted in May, was Dickerson vice president until June. His lawyer, Jim Griffin, said Monday he didn't know what Carpenter's job status was now.

Carpenter and Crowder will begin serving their terms when federal authorities determine where they'll be held, a process authorities said may take up to three weeks.

Last Of Credits To Ayden Customers

AYDEN — Electrical customers in Ayden will receive the last of two credits on their utility bills in September, according to a vote by the Town Board of Commissioners Monday.

The balance of a Carolina Power and Light refund to the town, $46,163, will be refunded at a rate of $1.50 per 1,000 kwh, based on usage in August.

Ayden received $80,000 back from the utility company earlier this year, then divided the customer refund into two installments to allow bulk barn owners to receive refunds.

The board accepted the town's 1982 tax levy totaling $38,551,433, a rise of approximately $1 million from the 1981 levy.

According to Town Clerk Ralph Ford, $47,822,414 of this total represents real estate and $10,729,019 personal property, with over $1 million in old age exemptions.

The town's tax rate remains at 41 cents per $100 of value, the same as 1981, noted Ford.

In other business: The board accepted a state grant totaling $24,775 for construction of water distribution mains.

Billy Bonar and James Mitchell were named to the Ayden Planning Board and Thomas Craft was appointed to the Recreation Commission.

Braves Lose Seventh Game In A Row

By The Associated Press
 Joe Torre isn't pressing the panic button yet, but he figures his Atlanta Braves better get on the stick soon.
 "We need our pep and spirit back," said the chagrined Atlanta manager after watching his nose-diving team lose 3-0 to the San Francisco Giants Monday night.
 "I'm not taking anything away from Jim Barr. He pitched a super game — but we didn't have it tonight."
 The Braves only managed three hits off Barr, who is usually a relief pitcher and was making only his second start of the season. The result was Atlanta's seventh straight loss.
 "Maybe it's because of what happened over the weekend, but we're down," said Torre, referring to a four-game sweep by the Los Angeles Dodgers. "We didn't have any life at all tonight."
 The Dodgers, by the way, trailed the Braves by 10½ games 11 days ago in the National League West, but are now only a half-game behind the Braves as a result of their 3-2, 13-inning victory over the Cincinnati Reds Monday night.
 Torre held a 15-minute meeting in the clubhouse with his team following Monday night's loss to one of baseball's hottest teams. The Giants have won eight straight.
 "Going nine innings made me happy. But I can't say I'm surprised that I could do it," said the 34-year-old Barr, who hadn't pitched a complete game since 1980.

 Barr, 2-2, the veteran right-hander who started one game in April and has 36 relief appearances this season, walked none and struck out two. Barr allowed singles in the fourth, fifth and sixth innings.
 Atlanta starter Pascual Perez, 0-2, allowed only one hit and faced the minimum 12 batters through four innings. Reggie Smith's leadoff single in the fifth started a two-run Giant rally. Jeff Leonard doubled home one of the runs and Barr singled home the other.
 The Giants scored an unearned run in the sixth and added insurance in the eighth on a two-run triple by Darrell Evans.
Dodgers 3, Reds 2
 Pedro Guerrero slugged Jim Kern's first pitch of the 13th inning for his 22nd home run to lead Los Angeles over Cincinnati, the Dodgers' seventh straight win and 11th in their last 12 games.
 Reliever Dave Stewart, 7-6, retired the last 18 batters to earn the victory. Stewart, who was 3-1 against the Reds last year with one save, walked one and struck out five in his six innings of hitless relief.
 Kern, 1-5, took over in the 11th and worked out of a bases-loaded, none-out jam, then left two on in the 12th before Guerrero nailed him with a shot into the left-center field pavilion at Dodger Stadium.

Cubs 9, Expos 2
 Bill Buckner went 4-for-5, including a pair of solo home runs, and Ryne Sandberg added a three-run shot as Chicago defeated Montreal for its fifth straight victory. The Cubs have won seven of their last eight, and the five-game winning streak is their longest since August of 1979.
 The Cubs put the game away early, taking a 7-0 lead after 5½ innings as Buckner hit his two homers and Sandberg belted his shot off Scott Sanderson, 6-11, who lost his seventh straight game.
 Ferguson Jenkins, 7-13, gained his first victory since July 9.
 "I'd have to say this is the high point of the season for me," said Chicago Manager Lee Elia. "We've played well in spurts, but this is the best complement of hitting and pitching we've had."
Astros 4, Padres 3
 Alan Ashby hit two solo home runs and Don Sutton and two relievers combined on a seven-hitter to carry Houston over San Diego.
 Sutton, 11-8, struck out one and walked three in 72-3 innings before getting relief help from Bert Roberge and Dave Smith, who gained his ninth save after giving up two runs in the ninth on an error and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua.
 John Montefusco, 9-7, pitched the first seven innings for the Padres, allowing all Houston's runs.

 Ashby's homers, his sixth and seventh of the year, came in the fourth and sixth innings.
Phillies 4, Pirates 3
 Second game suspended
 Pinch-hitter George Vukovich drove home two runs with a bases-loaded double in the eighth inning off ace reliever Kent Tekulve, enabling Philadelphia to edge Pittsburgh in the first game of a doubleheader.
 Mike Easler drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a two-run single, as the Pirates rallied from a 5-0 deficit to take a 9-6 lead with two out in the eighth inning of the second game when it was suspended under a major league rule.
 The Pirates had scored four runs in the top of the eighth when the game was halted by rain. The rule prohibits resumption of play following a rain delay past 12:45 a.m. The suspended game will begin prior to tonight's game between the two teams.
Cardinals 7, Mets 2
 Willie McGee hit a two-out, bases-loaded triple that fueled a four-run, fifth-inning rally and carried St. Louis over New York.
 The inning erased a 2-1 Mets' lead and made a winner of Jeff Lahti, 3-2, who took over for Dave LaPoint in the fourth inning.
 LaPoint was charged with both New York runs in the fourth which gave the Mets their 2-1 lead. But the Cardinals came back in the fifth under a constant drizzle to score their game-winning runs and chase right-hander Charlie Puleo, 8-9.

The victory was particularly pleasing for Manager Whitey Herzog because the Cards scored more than just a few runs for a change.
 "We've had a problem scoring runs," Herzog said. "We've been awfully inconsistent."

 The Los Angeles Dodgers and San Diego Padres are closing in on the Atlanta Braves, who have fallen on hard times since July 30. The Braves had just swept a four-game set from the Padres to up their lead to 10½ games. This morning, they stood only one-half game in front. (AP Laserphoto)

Paschal Is Retiring

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Doug Paschal, the fourth round 1980 draft choice of the Minnesota Vikings, announced his retirement from professional football after just two seasons.
 Paschal, as a rookie, played in a back-up role, seeing a good deal of action. He injured a knee in pre-season last year, however, and sat out the season recovering from surgery.
 He said, however, that the knee had made a full recovery and the injury had no bearing on his retirement.
 Paschal, who played his high school ball at Rose High School in Greenville, N.C., helped lead his 1975 team to the state 4-A championship. He then enrolled at the University of North Carolina, where he became an outstanding running back for the Tar Heels.
 Paschal said that he was retiring to devote more time to his family and the banking business in Charlotte, N.C., where he now resides.

Texas Longhorns Must Rely On Newcomers To Stay Among Elite

One of a Series
 AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas, which followed its seniors to a No.2 ranking last year, must rely on newcomers to remain among the nation's major-college football powers this season.
 Coach Fred Akers said goodbye to 15 senior starters, 12 of whom were drafted by the pros, including top choice Kenneth Sims, a two-time All-America defensive tackle.
 Although Akers does not argue with forecasters who pick Arkansas, Southern Methodist, Texas A&M and Houston as probably the top four teams in the Southwest Conference, he feels "we might surprise some people."
 "We like to think we've got the kind of guys that believe they're better than that any year. We expect to be more competitive than that," he terms, including All-America tackle Terry Tausch.
 Akers said guard Doug Dawson and tackle Bryan Millard will start, but the other positions are unsettled.
 The key to the offense could be the health of tailback John Walker, 6-1 and 200, who was Texas' third-leading rusher as a sophomore with 714 yards and a 4.6-yard average.
 Walker injured his right knee in spring training, and Akers said "it will be close as to whether he will be ready."
 Walker's absence would middle, should put Texas "in remove Texas' backfield speed good shape there." Leiding, a 240-pound junior, was fourth on horns to pass more. There the team in tackles last year seems to be no shortage of with 107. He also recovered two fumbles and had two pass interceptions even though he often was replaced on third down by a fifth defensive back.
 End Kiki DeAyala was fifth with 91 tackles, and had 14 quarterback sacks and pressured the passer 47 times, both tops on the team.
 The secondary will be new, but should feature Mossy Cade, Craig Curry, Jerry Gran and possibly Robert Smothers.
 Senior quarterback Robert Brewer, a former walk-on who was the star of the Cotton Bowl, will operate behind a line that lost four, four-year let-

Megabucks There For Sports Heroes

By WILL GRIMSLEY
 AP Special Correspondent
 There is an Arnold Palmer television commercial shown frequently around the country which provides a graphic commentary on the imbalance of sports and normal life in America.
 Arnie, in a neat business suit, is standing on a corner in New York's financial district and saying something like this:
 "People joke about business men spending a lot of time on the golf course. Well, I'm a golfer who spends a lot of time on business."
 "I have a lot to do and not much time to do it. Here's my little secret — my little Lanier pocket secretary." He puts away the gadget, then hits a golf ball down the middle of Wall Street.
 A look at The PGA golf championship in Tulsa, Okla., only magnified the corporate image of America's sports heroes, inordinately big in team sports such as pro baseball and football, almost vulgarly out of reason in individual pastimes such as tennis and golf.
 This is not to say these athletes should not get their rightful piece of the action. The megabucks are there — thanks largely to highly competitive TV networks and America's long infatuation with sports idols. But it should not obscure the inequities in a financially depressed society which has millions living in poverty.
 Pig-tailed tennis tykes such as Tracy Austin and Andrea Jaeger are millionaires before they get out of high school. Bjorn Borg makes some $3 million a year for occasionally striking a tennis ball. The average salaries of baseball, football, basketball and hockey players are reaching toward the $250,000 a-year mark, thanks to multi-million-dollar individual contracts.
 Of all these, golf appears to be the most pleasant and most rewarding, played in plush club atmosphere, with no physical contact.
 Last season, 84 players made $50,000 or more, 117 exceeded $25,000, which isn't exactly the poverty level. Thirty-eight collected more than $100,000 in prize money. Tom Kite led with $375,000-plus.
 This is only part of a tour player's income. A majority has commercial tieups that keep tour golfers well stocked with equipment and clothes.

Atlanta Hasn't Shaken So Much Since Sherman Came Through

By The Associated Press
 The nightmare began 10 terrible days ago for Atlanta and the town hasn't been shaken this much since Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman and the Union troops methodically burned it to the ground during the Civil War.
 The Braves' once-fat lead in the National League West is just about gone with the wind, to borrow a phrase, thanks to 10 losses in 11 games. That reverse string was constructed in large measure by consecutive four-game weekend sweeps by the Los Angeles Dodgers, the first in Atlanta and the second in LA.
 What's more, Atlanta's August swoon has resuscitated pennant hopes in such diverse spots as San Diego, which has never ever won a flag, and San Francisco, which hasn't won one in two decades. Up and down the California coastline, the Braves are being welcomed with open arms these days.
 The collapse started most unexpectedly. The Braves had just dispatched San Diego with a four-game sweep that ballooned a five-game lead to a nine-game bulge over the Padres, who seemed finished. The Dodgers, at that point, were meandering along, winning one, losing one, and making no particular progress.
 The sweep of the Padres in the first head-to-head crucial series of the season sent Atlanta into a premature case of pennant fever. The scoreboard flashed an exuberant "We're World Serious." But Manager Joe Torre called a prompt halt to that stuff. He has been through enough baseball summers to know that leads can melt awfully quickly in August, especially when the schedule has you playing consecutive four-game series against one of the teams on your trail.
 Still and all, things were looking up as the Braves prepared to face the Dodgers. The fans were pouring in and in an effort to accommodate a few more of them, 250 seats were installed in the left field stands where Chief Noc-A-Homa, the team's mascot, had his teepee. The chief would simply have to do his cheerleading elsewhere.
 Well, Indian legend tells us that you don't mess with the tribe's ceremonial stomping ground. If you do, that's asking for trouble. And trouble is what the Braves got.

 With Noc-A-Homa evicted and relegated to wandering the ball park, the Braves went into their tailspin against LA. They blew an 8-3 lead in the first game of a Friday two-night doubleheader, bowing 10-9 as Ken Landreaux hit a pair of home runs. The Dodgers were so encouraged by that win that they came right back two win the second game 8-2 on a six-hitter by Bob Welch. Ron Cey homered in each and the 10½-game lead was down to 8½. LA won again Saturday and Sunday, Dusty Baker homering in each game as the Dodgers cut the deficit to 6½.
 There was a momentary recovery last Monday when the Dodgers lost at Cincinnati while the Braves were winning in San Fran. But Atlanta lost the next two to the Giants when LA was beating the Reds. That reduced the Braves' lead to 5½ with four games in LA coming up.
 The Dodgers won three straight one-run, extra-inning games and capped off the second straight sweep with a 2-0 victory Sunday. Presto-changeo, just like that, the Braves' lead was down to 1½ games.
 August and September can be a terrible time for teams with pennant ambitions. See the Brooklyn Dodgers of 1951, who blew a 13½-game lead in the final six weeks of the season, and the Boston Red Sox of 1978, who saw a 14-game bulge slip away over the last two months. These are the dog days of the season, when thin pitching can collapse and injuries can catch up with a team.
 But before Atlanta panics, it must be pointed out that all this bad stuff has happened in the space of 10 days. Ten days from now, the Braves may have completely recovered. It is, remember, a long season with many peaks and valleys. Too often, we're anxious to know how it will all come out before it's over. That's why there is a tendency to over-emphasize winning and losing streaks.
 There is one suggestion that might help Atlanta reverse things, though. The club might consider restoring Noc-A-Homa's teepee, before it's too late.

Luzinski's Homer Sparks Sox' Rally

By The Associated Press
The long ball helped start the Baltimore Orioles' downfall, but what really did them in were a couple of short balls.
The Orioles led Chicago 5-3 in the seventh inning when Greg Luzinski slammed a leadoff homer for the White Sox. When the White Sox finally stopped running around the bases, they had scored six times, helped by two misguided throws from Baltimore reliever Tim Stoddard on bunts, and defeated the Orioles 9-5.

But Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver was more upset with starting pitcher Jim Palmer and reliever Tippy Martinez than Stoddard's throwing goofs.
"It wasn't one of his better games," Weaver said of Palmer, who was staked to a 5-0 lead in the second inning.

"All I know is if Tippy Martinez gets two guys out there wouldn't be any bunts."
After Luzinski's 425-foot home run chased Palmer, Steve Kemp and Carlton Fisk singled off Martinez, who then gave way to Stoddard. That's when the fun started.
Pinch hitter Chris Nyman bunted and Kemp and Fisk both scored when Stoddard threw wildly past third trying for a forceout, with Nyman taking second. Vance Law also bunted and Stoddard threw late to third in an effort to get Nyman, who scored when Aurelio Rodriguez grounded out.

The White Sox then loaded the bases on walks to Rudy Law and Tony Bernazard and Harold Baines completed the six-run burst with a two-run single. Kevin Hickey earned the victory with 51-3 innings of scoreless relief.
"I'm not sure Stoddard's throws were that bad," said Weaver. "But you can't blame it on errors. If we were still winning 5-0 or 5-1 there wouldn't be any bunts."
Yankees 9, Tigers 7
The Tigers built a 7-0 lead against Ron Guidry on Lance Parrish's two-run homer in the first inning and a five-run third, capped by Glenn Wilson's two-run double. But George Frazier, Dave LaRoche and Rich Gossage held them to two hits the rest of the way and led on Boston in the AL East, the Brewers' largest margin of the season.

Dave Winfield's three-run homer in the seventh made it 7-5 and Roy Smalley opened the eighth with his 11th homer, chasing Detroit starter Dan Petry.
"I figured when we finally got Petry out of there we had a chance," Winfield said. "He's one heck of a pitcher. You just don't figure to get back from that far out with him on the mound."
Dave Rucker came on and gave up a single to Ken Griffey, who was sacrificed to second and scored the tying run with two out when Rucker threw wildly to first after fielding Willie Randolph's high chopper. Randolph took second on the error and Jerry Mumphrey doubled him home. Oscar Gamble homered in the ninth for New York's final run.
"Woowoo! I tell you, this is a fun club to watch," raved Manager Clyde King. "What a comeback!"
"This hurts," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson said. "This is an awful loss. It's an embarrassment when you're leading by seven runs."
Brewers 9, Rangers 1
Mike Caldwell pitched a six-hitter for his third consecutive victory and Robin Yount drove in four runs with a double, grounder and sacrifice fly as Milwaukee opened a 3 1/2-game

Milwaukee in the eighth.
Blue Jays 4, Red Sox 2
Rance Mulliniks' leadoff home run tied the score 2-2 in the eighth inning. Loser Dennis Eckersley then issued one-out walks to Willie Upshaw and Hosken Powell and was replaced by Bob Stanley, who surrendered consecutive RBI singles to Barry Bonnell and Lloyd Moseby. It was Boston's eighth setback in the last 11 games.

Royals 12, Indians 2
George Brett had four hits and Amos Otis collected two doubles and a single, driving in three runs and scoring three. Willie Aikens, Don Slaught and Hal McRae also had three hits apiece as the Royals punished two Cleveland pitchers for 20 hits, making Larry Gura, who went seven innings, an easy winner.

runs and scored three, leading a 13-hit Oakland attack as the A's rolled to their fifth consecutive victory and handed Seattle its fifth straight loss. Lopes slammed a three-run homer in the second inning and also drove in a run in the sixth with a groundout. Dan Meyer and Jeff Burroughs also homered for the A's, who tagged loser Jim Beattie for six runs in 3-2 innings, although he recorded nine of his 11 outs on strikeouts.

Charles Is Given Service Sentence

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State University basketball player Lorenzo E. Charles agreed Monday to spend 34 hours in jail in exchange for having a charge of stealing two pizzas dropped.
Charles, 18, a rising sophomore who was a reserve forward last season, has entered the felony diversion program for first offenders, officials said.
He was accused of larceny from a person, a felony carrying a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison, for taking two pizzas from a Domino's Pizza delivery man on May 30.
The 6-foot-7, 226-pound Brooklyn, N.Y., man also agreed to perform 300 hours of community service, pay $20 restitution to Domino's and spend 30 hours in group counseling. His community service work must be completed during the next year, and his jail time will be spent in the Apex jail.

If by Aug. 9, 1983, he has not been in any more trouble, the charge will be dropped. If he has not successfully completed the program, Charles will be tried on the larceny charge, officials said.
In entering the program, Charles does not admit guilt in court, said Richard N. Gusler, ReEntry executive director.
Charles declined to comment on his entry into the program.

NFL Still Wrestling With Drug Woes; Full Weekend Slate Set

By The Associated Press
The National Football League is creeping closer to its first full week of preseason play, but it's still having trouble shaking player-related drug problems that surfaced earlier this summer.
Don Reese, the former New Orleans Saints defensive lineman, was told to report to a private detective twice a day by a Florida Circuit judge while awaiting an Aug. 31 hearing on charges that he violated his drug trafficking probation.
Reese, who gave the league's drug problems its greatest exposure, admitted his addiction to cocaine in a June 14 Sports Illustrated article. He is accused of possessing cocaine while serving time in the Dade County stockade, using the narcotic after his release and being present in places where illegal drugs were used.
Reese could face up to 29 years in prison if convicted of violating probation.
Ironically, Reese's probation ends today and he could not have been brought up on charges if the magazine article had been delayed two months.
Chuck Muncie, Reese's former teammate at New Orleans and a player Reese alleged used drugs with the Saints, began the second phase of a drug rehabilitation, the San Diego Chargers said Monday.
Muncie, the Chargers' top running back, told a news conference recently that he had undergone rehabilitation, helping him get rid of his dependency on drugs.

"We've been advised by the people counseling him (Muncie) that he should go through a second phase of rehabilitation and that's what he's doing," Chargers Coach Don Coryell told newsmen Monday.
Muncie's agent said he would undergo three days of rehabilitation.
A full slate of action this week is kicked off Thursday when New Orleans visits Houston, while Cincinnati travels to Kansas City and Seattle is at home against St. Louis Friday.
On Saturday, it's Buffalo at Dallas; Cleveland at Detroit; Denver at Los Angeles; Minnesota at Atlanta; the New York Jets at Green Bay; the New York Giants at Baltimore; the Raiders at San Francisco; Philadelphia at Tampa Bay; Pittsburgh vs. New England at Knoxville and Washington at Miami.
Chicago is at San Diego on Sunday.
In other news, U.S. Sen. Arlen Specter introduced legislation to prevent professional teams from leaving town unless "they cannot survive as a profitable business."
The bill deals with issues raised by the Raiders plans to move from Oakland to Los Angeles. It recognizes hometown fans' "proprietary interest" in their team, which should halt an owner's moving plans unless the franchise is failing financially, Specter said.

The Raiders left Oakland this year despite being heavily supported by the Oakland community.
Green Bay officials say they have made tentative reservations in both Oakland and Los Angeles for their Aug. 29 exhibition against the Raiders. Tom Miller, the Packers assistant to the president for business, said: "We are just waiting for the word, like everybody else," as to which city to team will play in.
Atlanta running back William Andrews reported to camp, saying he missed his teammates too much and "the sweating part of it" in ending his eight-day holdout for an extension or renegotiation of his contract. The Falcons said Andrews, who will make approximately $250,000 this season, had been fined an undisclosed amount of money.
Detroit Lions' linebacker Steve Towle announced his retirement because of a recurring groin injury. The former defensive captain of the Miami Dolphins missed all of last season because of the injury and aggravated the injury again during summer training camp.
Doug Paschal, Minnesota's fifth-round draft choice in 1980, also retired Monday. The former North Carolina running back spent last season on the Vikings' injured reserve list after knee surgery.

The Lions also released free-agent linebacker Jim Szczepaniuk.
Buffalo released seven players, including Colorado State center Aaron Finch and Ron Crews, a defensive end from Nevada-Las Vegas.
Nine players were released by the St. Louis Cardinals, including three veterans — wide receiver Ralph Clayton, defensive lineman Chris Combs and linebacker Doak Fields. The team's 11th-round draft choice, defensive end James Williams of North Carolina A&T, also was cut.
Cincinnati's Matt Bahr has virtually sewed up the Bengals kicking duties for this season following the release of free-agent kickers Harry Oliver of Notre Dame and Stephen Steinke of Utah State.
The Philadelphia Eagles got their roster under 100, releasing five players including local punter Casey Murphy of Temple.
San Francisco 49ers wide receiver Renaldo Nehemiah's NFL debut may be postponed. The world record holder in the hurdles has just gotten over a minor injury and may not see action in the 49ers' game against the Raiders.
"Renaldo is not ready yet to face those guys," 49er defensive back Dwight Hicks said.

American Division Champs

Vets Return At Clemson

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Returning veterans of last season's national champion Clemson football team join their freshman teammates Wednesday for their first full squad workout.
Coach Danny Ford will welcome back 50 lettermen and 13 starters from the 1981-82 team, and he's anxious to get started.
The freshmen, who've been in practice since Friday, and the upperclassmen are scheduled to spend their first day in pads Saturday.
"The freshmen have been working hard so far," Ford said Monday. "They all have the period of adjustment to go through, but they have progressed well."
"I think they are all looking forward to the veteran's arrival so they can see how good they are," Ford said. "None of them really know if they can do it until they go against the veterans."
Clemson will host its annual Fan Appreciation Day Sunday afternoon in Memorial Stadium.
Clemson's first challenge will come between the hedges when the Tigers take on the Georgia Bulldogs in a nationally televised contest.

There is a broad reservoir of ancillary revenue.
Thirty-three players already have gone over the $1 million mark in earnings, not all household names.
Palmer was the first golf millionaire and the first golf conglomerate, once having an empire that included a chain of putt-putt courses, a harness horse farm, driving ranges, a printing firm, dry-cleaning establishment, laundry and an apparel company. He sold Arnold Palmer Enterprises to NBC for $5 million, and at 52 is involved in business, concentrating on building golf courses.
Meanwhile, Jack Nicklaus has surged ahead, zeroing in on his fourth million in prize money and expanding his own commercial outreach. His Golden Bear Inc. enterprises are involved in all areas of the game, chief of which is course architecture. He has bought controlling interest in the company that makes his golf clubs (MacGregor).
Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Tom Watson are working on their third million. Ray Floyd won the PGA championship Sunday and joined those in the $2-million plus category.

Nichols Wins Police Tourney

John Nichols carded a 54-hole total of 105 to defeat Mike Futrell by six strokes and win the Greenville Police Championship last night at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf Course.
Nichols had proceeded through his bracket in the 16-man, double elimination tournament undefeated, but had to wait and see who his opponent would be from among three challengers.
Futrell, along with Pete Lavin and Randy Edwards, had to battle it out to see who would face Nichols in the finals. Lavin edged Edwards by three strokes, 108-111, to advance to the semifinals as Edwards finished fourth.
Futrell then defeated Lavin by 19 strokes, 108-127, to move into the finals while Lavin finished third.
Futrell carded a 38-34 for a 72 to lead Nichols by two strokes going into the third round. Nichols then began his move on the fifth hole as Futrell had a

A Review

'Tex' A Departure From Disney Formula

The Walt Disney Productions movie, "Tex," now playing at the Buccaneer, is a departure from the sugar-coated cinema treats for children and young people so often associated with Disney products.

Directed by Tim Hunter, blessed with a strong script by Charlie Haas and Hunter based on Mrs. S.E. Hinton's novel of the same name, "Tex" is a compellingly honest insight into the emotional and financial suffering of two young brothers caught in the web of non-genteel poverty. The father of the boys is a vagabond rodeo failure unable or unwilling to accept responsibility for the two motherless boys. In their own stumbling way, the two succeed in coping with coming of age under difficult circumstances.

TWO BROTHERS ... Matt Dillon, left, and Jim Metzler portray Tex and Mason McCormick, two young brothers caught in a web of poverty and emotional problems. The two have the lead roles in "Tex," a sensitive portrait of young people now playing at the Buccaneer Theater.

"Tex" has an outstanding, though mostly unknown cast. Superlative performances abound, from the young actors — Matt Dillon and Jim Metzler — who play the lead roles, down to those making only brief appearances.

Dillon is consistently believable as the active 15-year old younger brother, Tex McCormick, given to mercurial personality changes — a fun-loving kid who likes playing outrageous tricks in school; an irresponsible lad unable to fathom the worries of his 17-year brother and guardian; a boy who both adores and detests his big brother.

Jim Metzler brings a whistling in the dark quality to the role of 17-year old Mason McCormick, too proud to reveal even to his younger brother what it's like to be suffocated by the strain of day-to-day worrying about the next meal or money for the unpaid overdue gas bill. And Mason harbors what seems a futile dream of going to college on a basketball scholarship.

These emphasize the reality of the story. The course of relentless poverty, the need to survive without the humiliation of welfare, leads Mason to secretly sell his own horse and Tex's beloved Rowdy. This action heightens tension between the brothers and indirectly leads to a series of dramatic episodes — perhaps a few more than is needed. The bounds of credibility, however, are never stretched too far, even when Tex is shot in a mix-up with a crazed drug addict when he runs away from home dazed by the discovery he was sired by an unknown man when his father was in jail.

The story line weaves back and forth between the relationship of the brothers and a young as springtime love between Tex and Jamie Collins, a girl from a well-to-do family. The role of Jamie Collins is refreshingly different in today's depiction of boy-struck young girls. Jamie is warmhearted and not averse to Tex's physical charms — come on the scene now and then with little fanfare. A sensitive film, "Tex" reveals without moralizing the gritty plight of today's poor caught in a hard-to-escape trap of poverty. It is especially relevant to teenagers, who somehow seem more vulnerable to the mishaps of ill fortune. In "Tex," the characters manage to maintain the basic virtues of courage and pride in a non-preaching, low-keyed script. It's a movie to be seen by young and old.

Still Pace-Setters In Week At BO

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas" continued to dominate the summer movie scene last weekend despite significant box office declines from a week ago.

"E.T." Stephen Spielberg's movie about a stranded alien befriended by three children, took in $9.4 million at 1,514 theaters in the United States and Canada during the three days ending Sunday. That was $1 million less than the previous weekend, but the film continued to set box office records for its gross to date, now at $187.7 million in 59 days of general release.

"Whorehouse," another Universal film, collected $6.3 million at 1,427 theaters over the weekend, down from $9 million a weekend earlier. The musical starring Dolly Parton and Burt Reynolds has grossed $40.1 million in 17 days.

Cheech and Chong's new film, "Things Are Tough All Over," proved the strongest third-place entry in weeks, grabbing $5.9 million at 1,516 screens in its U.S. debut. Since the Columbia film was released in Canada a week earlier, its total gross stood at $6.5 million.

Paramount's "An Officer and a Gentleman," a romantic drama starring Richard Gere and Debra Winger, played in 346 theaters and gained $3.3 million for a 12-day gross of $9.8 million.

The week's other new film, 20th Century-Fox's "The Pirate Movie" starring Kristy McNichol and Christopher Atkins, drew a respectable $2.5 million at 757 theaters.

Kirk Douglas In NBC-TV Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kirk Douglas will star in "Remembrance of Love," a two-hour NBC-TV movie scheduled for August.

Douglas will play Joseph Rabin, a Holocaust survivor who attends a world reunion of survivors in Jerusalem, where he is reunited with a long-lost teen-age love.

Also appearing in the movie, to be directed by Jack Smight, will be Robert Clary and Douglas' youngest son, Eric Douglas.

Douglas, who has received three Best Actor Academy Award nominations for "Champion," "The Bad and the Beautiful" and "Lust for Life," recently completed the movie, "Eddie Macon's Run," for Universal.

The Show Goes On

BOONE — 1982's summer weather in the mountain town of Boone has been plagued with a larger than usual number of evenings when rain threatened — but the "Horn in the West" show has gone on despite lowering clouds, the presence of mists, and on occasion, rain.

"In fact," says general manager William Winkler, "we have lost only one and one-half performances to date this season."

Marketing Manager Terry Hamilton explains the policy for whether or not to give the green light to a performance. "If it actually rains hard enough for force us to stop, we ask the audience to retire to the rain shelter for a brief waiting period. Usually, we can get started again after a few minutes. It rarely ever rains enough to cause us to cancel a performance."

"Horn in the West" plays nightly except Mondays. The summer season runs through August 14 in the Daniel Boone Theater in Boone.

"If it looks like rain, don't worry," Winkler says. "The show must go on and it will."

Doub, Substitute Trustee, expose for sale at public auction on the 12th day of August 1982, at 12 O'clock P.M. on the steps of the Pitt County Courthouse, Greenville, North Carolina, the following described real property:

Lying and being in Greenville Township, Pitt County, North Carolina, on the east side of Hooker Road, and BEGINNING at an iron stake in the eastern right-of-way of the Hooker Road, said stake being S. 43° 0' E. 180 feet, more or less, from the northwest corner of the Amos J. Evans land and the southwest corner of the Guy C. Evans land of the aforesaid road, and running N. 78° E. 138 feet, more or less, to a stake; thence S 73° 52' E. 100 feet, more or less, to a stake; thence south 23° 40' east 84 feet, more or less, to a stake, the northeastern corner of the Hendricks lot, thence along the northern line of the Hendricks lot 64 to 100 feet to a stake on the eastern right-of-way line of the Hooker Road; thence along the eastern right-of-way of the Hooker Road N. 23° W. 35 feet to a stake; thence continuing along the eastern right-of-way of the Hooker Road N. 12° W. 100 feet to a stake; thence along the said Hooker Road N. 43° 0' E. 180 feet, more or less, to a stake; the point of BEGINNING Property Address: 705 & 707 Hooker Road, Greenville, North Carolina, 27834

The sale will be made subject to all prior liens, unpaid taxes, restrictions and easements of record and assessments, if any.

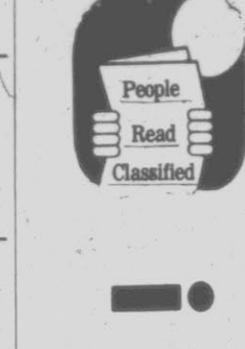

The record owners of the above described real property as reflected on the records of the Pitt County Register of Deeds not more than ten (10) days prior to the posting of this Notice are LOMER W. WHITEHURST and wife, HAZEL E. WHITEHURST

Pursuant to North Carolina General Statute 45-21.10(b), and the terms of the Deed of Trust, any successful bidder may be required to deposit with the Substitute Trustee immediately upon conclusion of the sale a cash deposit of ten (10%) percent of the bid up to and including $1,000 plus five (5%) percent of any excess over $1,000. Any successful bidder shall be required to tender the full balance purchase price so bid in cash or certified check at the time the Substitute Trustee tenders to him a deed for the property or attempts to tender such deed, and should said successful bidder fail to pay the full balance purchase price so bid at that time, he shall remain liable on his bid as provided for in North Carolina General Statutes 45-21.30(d) and (e).

This 22nd day of July, 1982. Randy D. Doub, Trustee, any Substitute Trustee DIXON, HORNE & DUFFUS 311 Evans Street Mall P. O. Drawer 1785 Greenville, N.C. 27834 Telephone: (919) 758-6200 August 3, 10, 1982

FOCUS

Refurbishing A Queen

With a wave of a wand Cinderella's fairy godmother transformed a pumpkin into a coach. But more than a little magic was needed to prepare the world's most luxurious ocean liner for its voyage this week. In May the British government commissioned the Queen Elizabeth Two to transport 3,700 soldiers to the Falkland Islands. Before the QE2 could resume its commercial career this week, helicopter platforms had to be removed from the tops of swimming pools, 5,000 sheets of protective particle board were stripped from walls, and a casino re-emerged after brief service as a barracks. The ship was also restocked with cavier and 20,000 bottles of champagne—considered inappropriate even for an officer's mess.

Died Saving Companion

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A Hendersonville man killed at a convenience store robbery here Sunday prevented his female companion from being shot by draping his body over her.

Tony Corn, 20, died early Sunday from a shotgun blast from one of three men who held up Norm's Minit Mart Number One off I-26 early Sunday.

Sherry Tilson, Corn's companion, said Corn saved her life by draping his arms over her after gunman had them place their hands on the trunk of their car. The robbers shot Corn and apparently thought Ms. Tilson had been hit too.

"Tony tried to hide me," she said. "There was no way they could shoot me without hitting Tony."

"I felt Tony go forward into my back," she recalled. "The impact was really hard. When he fell, the only thing I could think of was to fall, too, and I fell on top of him and pretended I was dead."

"Tony said, 'Sherry, Sherry, baby, I'm hit.' I couldn't move. I couldn't move to help him," she said. "He took her shot," said Corn's father, James Corn. "He died in her place."

Ms. Tilson, 18, said she and Corn and a third friend, Johnny Corpening, drove up to the convenience store about 3:15 a.m. when they spotted a man in a ski mask inside.

Corpening put his car into reverse, but as he backed up, a man in a black ski mask poked a .410 gauge shotgun into Corpening's face. Ms. Tilson said two others joined him, surrounding the car.

"Johnny got out, he threw down his money, he told them to take the car, the money, anything they wanted. Just don't kill us," she said.

Corn gave them several hundred dollars, took Ms. Tilson by the hand and led her toward the car's rear, as directed.

When the gunmen told them to put their hands on the trunk, Corn stepped in, draping his arms over Ms. Tilson, his back to the gunmen.

Corpening, whose left leg was in a knee-high cast, decided to run.

One of the men fired at Corpening, who was hopping and zigzagging across the parking lot to safety. She heard a second shot.

Ms. Tilson remembered hearing footsteps as they fled.

"They were cussing each other," she said. One was saying, "I told you I didn't want anybody killed."

When Ms. Tilson next heard footsteps, she thought they had returned to finish her off, but it was Corpening. He and another motorist tried to assist Corn.

Meanwhile, the store clerk, 40-year-old Gene King, emerged from a cooler, where the gunman had put him after shooting him three times with a handgun in the left shoulder.

A friend, Danny Hill, said King told him the gunman pistol-whipped and shot him after he turned over about $1,200.

Like the others, King begged for his life. Hill said he had stopped by the store shortly before the robbery.

NEW TERMINAL LOBBY—This is a view of the lobby, with ticket counter and auto rental counter areas, at Pitt-Greenville Airport's new terminal building. Construction of the 5,000-square-foot facility, which cost $350,000, was started about Oct. 1, 1982, and the building was occupied July 1. Ribbon-cutting ceremonies this morning officially opened the facility. (Reflector Staff Photo)

Blame Shopping Center Fire On An Arson Club

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Four members of an arson club consisting of high school dropouts have been charged with unlawful burning in connection with a 1980 fire that destroyed a shopping center and caused more than $500,000 in damages.

Mecklenburg County police said the four club members have been charged with unlawful burning in connection with the Cornelius shopping center blaze.

Police identified the four suspects as: Maurice Torrence, 17; Walter Pierson, 18; Scott Ponder, 18; and Roosevelt Caldwell, 18, all of the Davidson area.

Leo Johnson, school security investigator, said the four were dropouts from North Mecklenburg High School.

Charlotte police also have charged Pierson with unlawful burning in a fire at the J. King Harrison warehouse on Nov. 11, 1981. The warehouse was the target of repeated fires last year.

Reggie Adams, 17, has been charged in connection with the Nov. 11 King fire and several other fires at the King warehouse last year, police said.

Police said they first learned about the possibility of Davidson area teenagers setting the Cornelius fires during an investigation of the Harrison warehouse fires.

The 1980 Cornelius fire started in a Western Auto store and damaged an animal clinic, a beauty shop, a laundry and an auto parts store.

Torrence and Pierson have also been charged with unlawful burning in a January, 1981, fire in a North Mecklenburg High School storage room that caused an estimated $1,100 damage.

There are several other club members, but they have not been charged with anything, said police Sgt. R.R. Dees, adding that the investigation is continuing.

"You had to burn something to get into the club," Dees said. "Most of the things they burned was abandoned barns and (abandoned) houses, a dumpster."

Finished School For City Clerks

City Clerk Lois D. Worthington recently completed the Municipal Clerks' Institute held at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill in conjunction with the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

Thirty-five clerks from across the state completed the program which consisted of over 100 course contact hours over a three-year period. Classes were held in all areas of municipal government. The school is a three-year program towards the Certified Municipal Clerks (CMC) designation. To qualify for the CMC, a clerk must attain 100 points in areas of experience, education, and participation in conferences and state meetings.

Farm Bureau Holding Drive

"A membership of 4,500 families is the goal of the Pitt County Farm Bureau this year," president Atlas Wooten said Monday.

"The county's annual membership campaign is now underway and we are hoping to add at least 200 new members in order to reach this goal," Wooten continued.

The Farm Bureau president noted "a strong and active Farm Bureau is the modern farmer's best tool for making a better future for himself and his family."

Alma Worthington of Route 2, Ayden, has been named chairman of the county membership committee.

The bidding:
South West North East
2 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

At the card table, you must curb your natural impulses. The obvious play is often the wrong one!

South's hand was a smidgeon too weak for a two spade opening bid—we would have preferred two no trump, which would have led to the same contract via a Stayman sequence. North's jump to game was a specialized bid that showed good trump support but denied a first- or second-round control in any suit.

West led the jack of hearts. East won the ace and returned the three. Declarer played low. East won the ten and continued with the king. After ruffing the heart in dummy, declarer drew trumps in three rounds, then cached the ace-king of diamonds. He now tried to reach dummy by leading a club to the queen. East won the king and returned a heart. Declarer ruffed, but since he had no way to get to dummy to use his good diamonds, he had to concede another club for down one.

The fates were not kind to declarer. He would have romped home had either trumps split evenly or had the king of clubs been with West. Or, for that matter, had he played the hand a bit better!

See the difference if declarer refuses to ruff the third heart in dummy, discarding a club instead and letting West hold the trick! If West returns a minor suit, declarer wins, draws three rounds of trumps and unblocks the diamonds. Now he can enter dummy with a trump and take two discards on dummy's good diamonds.

Actually, West's best defense is to play a fourth heart. But declarer can counter by discarding another club from dummy and ruffing in his hand. He can then reach dummy with a club ruff.

MS Society Will Solicit Funds

The Multiple Sclerosis Society announced that door to door solicitation will begin in the Ayden, Fountain, Grimesland and Simpson areas. Coordinators for these areas ask that volunteers contact them. Coordinators are: Ayden, Mrs. Anne Creech and Mrs. Doug Worthington; Fountain, Mrs. Louise E. Edwards; Grimesland, Mrs. Nellie Elks; and Simpson, Mrs. Annie Hardee.

Funds collected during the campaign will be used to expand support services and the equipment loan program to residents of eastern North Carolina who are afflicted with MS.

Multiple sclerosis is a neurological disease affecting the brain and spinal cord. It is not contagious nor is it a mental disease. It has been called the "mysteriouscrippler of young adults" because it is usually diagnosed between the ages of 15 to 20.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR has been advertising local businesses since January 26, 1882.

In August, 1925, the J.C. Penney Company opened a store in Greenville. Vida Crawford has worked in the Greenville store for 40 years, a store record. She remembers "when the original store was a two-story building on Evans Street, located where Coffman's Men's Wear is now".

Christine Windham, an employee of 30 years who works in Fashions, remembers when the department was called 'ready-to-wear'.

"You couldn't buy better men's work clothes anywhere", said Windham. "And the store very seldom stayed open past 5:30 p.m. Oh, once in awhile during the Christmas holidays we would stay open later than that, but not often."

Another employee of 30 years, Richard Meeks, is currently a salesperson in auto supply. "At one time I was an assistant manager of the old store," said Meeks, "but I like selling better."

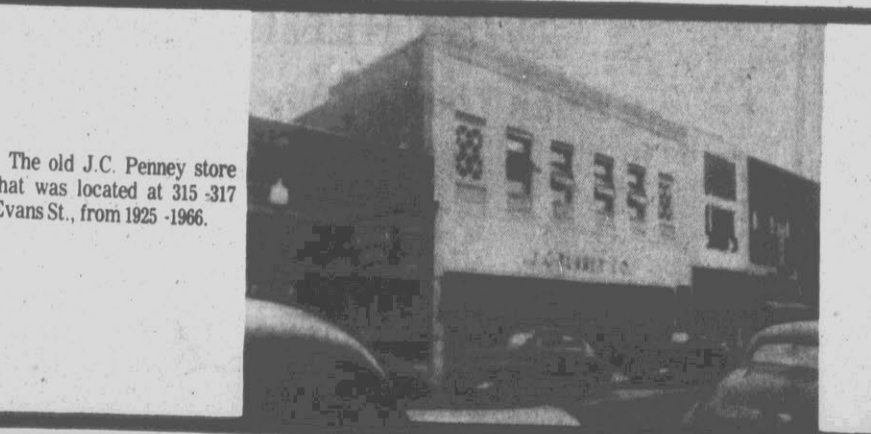

Asked if he was an avid car enthusiast, he responded, "Nope, I didn't know much at all about autos when I first started selling auto supplies in 1976. My hobbies are hunting, fishing and boats."

All three employees are natives of Pitt County and remember when only 15 employees did all the work at the store. Now there are 65 full-time employees at the Penney's store in Pitt Plaza.

The present store opened in August of 1966 and is currently managed by William Hopper.

"We have seven employees who have worked at Penney's in Greenville for a combined total of 167 years," said Hopper. "We are quite pleased to be in Greenville. The customer/merchandise match-up seems to just perfect."

"And we have been very satisfied in our relationship with THE DAILY REFLECTOR. They have cooperated to the fullest."

The old J.C. Penney store that was located at 315-317 Evans St., from 1925-1966.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUG. 11, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: New beginnings of all kinds are of interest to you now, but it's best to study them from all aspects before putting them in effect. Take positive steps to gain your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make detailed plans to gain your most cherished aims in the future. Allow time to engage in creative activity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Good day to be with a close adviser and plan exactly what you want to do. Express happiness with loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your friends are busy with their own concerns, so don't rely on them today or tonight. Take no risks in motion.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You know how to gain a desired goal, so stop wasting time. Don't gripe. Be thankful for your blessings.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Set a greater goal for yourself so that you can achieve more in the days ahead. Be sure business affairs are running smoothly.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be more willing to listen to ideas of loved one who can be helpful now. Strive to be more efficient in your line of endeavor.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show more cooperation with associates and increase benefits. Engage in new venture and make a big impression on others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Make sure you finish work at hand before you go off to some new interest. Show others that you are sincere.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Perfecting a talent you have is wise now. You are able to have a good time during spare hours with congenials today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Contact allies who can give you the support you need in a new project. Handle business matters wisely.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't neglect important work in the morning. Postpone going ahead with a new interest you have in mind.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You need more money, so find the right outlet that could give you added income. Take no chances with your health.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can easily solve difficult problems. Teach to finish whatever has been started, since your progeny is likely to be a dabbler. Send to college and give good ethical and religious training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
