OVERTIME PARKING

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Hurricane season — roughly June through October, with most of the storms coming during the months of August, September and October — is here.

Hurricanes are born from "tropical storms" or cyclones — large storm systems which generate winds with speeds of from 34 to 73 miles per hour. When the wind speed exceeds 74 miles an hour, the tropical storm then becomes a hurricane.

Round or spiral shaped, the hurricane on the average is about 100 miles in diameter. And gale-force winds — winds above 40 miles an hour — may extend out to a diameter of up to 400 miles.

A hurricane's winds are the strongest around its center or eye, and may reach speeds of more than 100 mph, while any given place in the path of a hurricane may experience from 6 to 12 inches of rainfall or more.

While the most distructive winds are around the center of the storm, the "eye," averaging 14 miles in diameter, is relatively calm and even may be cloud-free.

Most people consider the storm's high winds as the damaging force of the hurricane. In reality, along the coast, a hurricane's high wind is the least damaging force.

A hurricane's most destructive force is usually the "storm surge" — a mound of water which may be as much as 15 feet above normal tide levels and 50 miles wide pushed up by winds ahead of an advancing hurricane.

The second most destructive element of a hurricane is the torrential rainfall and the associated flooding. Also more destructive than the wind can be the battering waves kicked up by the storm which can pound beach-front property to pieces.

The most destructive hurricane to hit North Carolina this century was Hazel, in October 1954. The storm hit landfall on the South Carolina line in the vacinity of Calabash.

According to the National Weather Service, "All traces of civilization on that portion of the immediate waterfront between the state line and Cape Fear, were practically annihilated. Grass-covered dunes, some 10 to 20 feet high along and behind which beach houses had been built in a continuous line five miles long, simply disappeared, dunes, houses and all."

Nineteen people died in the state that day from the storm — most of them at or near beach areas. Another 200 people were injured.

The next year, Connie and Diane (in August) and Ione (in September) struck North Carolina, causing severe flooding. The damage from Diane, which struck five days after Connie, "exceeded any prior storm of record," according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

In 1958 there was Helene, in 1960 Donna (the first storm to maintain hurricane force winds from Florida to New England in 75 years of record-keeping), then Camille in 1969, and Agnes in 1972.

Between these storms and since them, there have been other hurricanes which have caused less damage and therefore were less memorable.

And in March 1962, there was a "northeaster" commonly referred to as the "Ash Wednesday

Conferees Save Lunch Deductions

2-Cent Tobacco Tax Expected

From Wire Reports

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators, having saved the "three-martini lunch" tax deduction, met into Saturday night to complete a $98.9 billion tax bill — including a compromise increase in cigarette taxes — as President Reagan prepared to turn the pressure on Congress to secure its passage.

The conference committee held a marathon 18-hour meeting Friday night and after a seven hour break that began at 9 a.m. EDT, were back at the table Saturday night for another attempt to finish their work.

Twelve issues remained when House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowki gaveled the meeting to order shortly before 4 p.m. for what threatened to be another marathon session.

The conferees faced decisions on whether to double the cigarette tax, repeal the controversial "safe harbor" leasing proposal that allows corporations to sell their unused tax breaks, and what to do about the tax status of corporations operating in Puerto Rico that the island government claims would destroy its economy.

Voting on the cigarette tax proposal was scheduled by the committee amid speculation that the scheduled 8-cent-a-pack increase in the federal cigarette excise tax would be decreased. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., sought to limit the increase to 2 cents.

The Senate on July 23 passed a Republican-backed plan to double the tax to 16 cents in an effort to raise $5 billion. The House sent the measure to the committee to work out a compromise to be presented to both houses this week.

Sen. Robert J. Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the conference committee, said last week that the conferees would agree to a 2-cent increase. He said privately that he doubted the tax package could pass Congress without the support of tobacco-state lawmakers.

Helms, in an interview Saturday, said he asked Dole for a 2-cent tax increase on cigarettes and a 25 percent increase on bear, liquor and wine levies.

The 2-cent increase "is the most I could accept, and I wasn't going to guarantee that I would vote on the bill even then," Helms said.

In the House, Rep. Jim Martin, R-N.C., told the White House that if the cigarette tax increase were held to 2 cents, the administration could count on the support of at least 10 tobacco-state congressmen for the tax package, according to a source.

The tax package is designed to raise almost $99 billion in three years by increasing a number of taxes, closing tax loopholes and tightening tax compliance procedures.

Early Saturday, the conferees decided to spare the business lunch tax deduction and impose stiffer reporting requirements on tips instead as they sifted through more than 100 provisions in the bill Reagan says is essential to slash federal deficits and bring interest rates down.

Reagan, spending the weekend at Camp David, was preparing a nationwide television address Monday night to appeal for grass-roots support. And the White House said more than 30 Republican congressmen will fly to the presidential retreat Sunday for a three-hour meeting with Reagan.

That will bring the number of congressmen the president has courted in the past two weeks to "upwards of 100," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said. Reagan has been "generally making progress" in his campaign among GOP congressmen, but that "we've got a long way to go." Reagan must persuade his supporters to swallow hard and vote for tax incrresesd in an election year. During the marathon Capitol Hill session, the conferees decided to scrap the controversial proposal that would halve the business meal deduction and replace it the new reporting requirements on tip income — which delighted restaurant and hotel interests.

PLO Rejects Israeli Plan As Beirut Has Quiet Day

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon and the PLO rejected Israel's latest conditions for ending the siege of Beirut as a cease-fire held Saturday just hours before a reported Israeli deadline for a final plan to evacuate the Palestinian guerrillas.

The Jewish state left the door open for compromise on how many Palestine Liberation Organization fighters should leave and when a multinational peacekeeping force could be deployed in the Lebanese capital.

U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib held a midday conference with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis and Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan to assess each side's position before Habib left for Jerusalem.

Afterward, Wazzan said: "The gap is steadily narrowing on the terms of evacuating the Palestinian fighters. We hope it will soon vanish so the new stage of implementation and the lifting of the seige begins."

Habib arrived Saturday night in Jerusalem, where he will hand Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin the latest Lebanese and PLO positions on the evacuation and deployment of an American, French and Italian peacekeeping force in west Beirut.

Beirut's international telephone, telex and lease lines were cut off for seven hours Saturday for unexplained reasons.

Associated Press correspondent Nicolas B. Tatro reported the city was "completely quiet" Saturday under a cease-fire established Thursday to halt the heaviest Israeli air raid since Israel invaded June 6.

The Beirut newspaper As Safir, which is close to the PLO, said the evacuation could begin as early as Tuesday if Habib was successful in his talks with Israeli leaders.

As Safir said Israel had given Habib until 5 p.m. Sunday (11 a.m. EDT) — 72 hours after the latest cease-fire went into effect — to finalize the evacuation plan. The report could not be independently verified.

While Habib was in Jerusalem, the PLO's foreign minister, Farouk Khaddoumi, flew to Paris en route to New York. Neither man talked to reporters.

Elderly Rider Turns Heroine

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A 75-year-old Gastonia woman, trapped on a runaway bus, brought the vehicle to a screeching halt after it sideswiped two parked cars and threatened to enter a busy intersection, police said.

Ethel Brown said she was left alone on the bus when the driver stopped to get a drink of water, shutting the doors on her to keep anyone from boarding without paying.

"When it started rolling, I was locked in the bus and I started wondering what the fire was wrong now," she said. "All of a sudden, the bus driver was running down the street hollering for me to pull up the brake."

Mrs. Brown pulled the brake just as the bus was about to enter the intersection with Franklin Boulevard, Gastonia's busiest street.

"I don't know how fast it was going, but it was rolling a pretty good roll," she said. "If I hadn't got it stopped, it would have gone into Franklin and there would have been a smashup for sure."

Mrs. Brown said she wasn't injured, but that she "felt like I was going to fall apart inside for a few minutes."

Gastonia Police Officer G.W. Wilson said damage to the bus and the two cars was minor.

Kansas City Area Hit By Floods

By United Press International

Weary Kansas City, Mo., residents Saturday surveyed the wreckage left by storm-spawned floods which smashed hundreds of houses, took four lives and chased several hundred people from home. Oklahoma was seared by 100-degree readings.

Marble-size hail coated the ground in Deckers, Colo., southeast of Denver. Flash floods raked Bullhead City, Ariz., washing cars downstream.

Thunderstorms deluged the Kansas City area with 15 inches in 24 hours. The largest measurement was 15½ inches in Raytown, a southeastern suburb.

Creeks and streams swelled into swift rivers with the runoff. Rivers leaped onto surrounding land, running window-high through homes and businesses. House trailers capsized in five-foot water.

"We didn't really realize how deep it was until our porch floated away," said Patricia Walls, who was rescued from a innundated trailer court.

Storm waters picked an Independence, Mo., house from its foundations and rammed it into another. In all, the Red Cross estimated 420 houses had major damage and 160 were minorly damaged. Most of the damage was inflicted on Independence.

"We'll probably just depend on the church a lot until something comes through," said Pat Farnsworth.

The Farnsworths, who live in Independence, returned home Friday to discover a large hole in the rear of the house. Their garage was hanging on the side of the house.

Missouri Gov. Christopher Bond declared four counties as disaster areas and said 30 Highway Patrol troopers would guard against looting.

Test Of Bulk Barn Power Reductions Is Successful

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The first test of a pilot program for reducing the peak electric demand for bulk tobacco barns was more successful than anticipated, Malcolm Green, superintendent of the Greenville Utilities Commission's electric department, told workshop participants at the annual meeting of ElectriCities of North Carolina in Pinehurst Saturday.

The workshop — scheduled to discuss the state's Alternative Energy Corp., which is funding part of the GUC's test program with a $40,805 grant — also dealt with other AEC projects, including the Wilson Energy Conservation program.

Green said the bulk tobacco barn test is designed to save farmers money and at the same time reduce the peak demand for electricity on the entire GUC system — a move which ultimately would same all customers.

The AEC grant, coupled with a $10,500 in-kind match from the GUC, and a $2,000 in-kind grant from N.C. State University, is being used to fund the bulk barn test. Carolina Power & Light Co. is providing computer analysis of the data collected by magnetic tape meters installed at each of the test barn sites.

The bulk barn program is an adaptation of GUC's existing "Beat the Peak" program which places radio-controlled switches on residential water heaters and air-conditioning units so utilities employees can cut them off to reduce the peak demand on the system.

All electric customers pay an "energy" charge, based on the amount of electricity they actually use. Customers also help pay a "demand" charge, based on the peak demand made on the system. The demand charge, based on the peak system load which usually occurs during the summer months, is paid whether or not that amount of electricity is used again during the year.

Since the use of bulk barns occurs during the high peak months of the year, Green explained, developing a method of reducing bulk barn demand would help both the farmer and other customers on the system.

The purpose of the test program, Green said, is to "analyze the potential for electric load reduction" through the voluntary participation of 15 tobacco farmers with 100 bulk barns in the pilot study.

Farmers taking part in the test, on signal, shut off electric air-circulation fans on the barns during times of peak demand. Each of the fans, Green explained, "represents about 6 kilowatts of demand."

There are about 2,500 bulk barns on the Greenville system, and about 41,000 bulk barns in the state, which consume about $18 million worth of electricity each year, Green said.

According to projected figures, Green said about half the bulk barns would be available for load reduction at any one time.

The first test run was made Aug. 4, and "we got way more reduction than we dreamed we would get," Green told the workshop participants.

Green said 80 of the 100 barns were in operation at the time the test was made, and during the two-hour test period, the demand represented by the barns dropped more than 40 percent.

"An hour before the test," according to Green, there was a 475-kilowatt load. During the first hour of the test period, the load dropped to 283 kilowatts, he said.

At individual sites, the amount of load reduction ranged from a low of 25 percent to almost 96 percent, Green explained.

However, Green cautioned that the first two-hour test period may "not be representative" of the final results of the program. "We feel the longer you run it the less reduction we will have," he said.

However, Green emphasized that the first test period "proved the potential there is for reducing barn load."

Green noted that a four-hour test was run Friday, but the results of that period are not yet available. The next test, he said, would be for a six-hour period.

Each bulk barn on the Greenville system operating at the period of peak demand "costs us about $520," Green said, adding that over 50 percent of the rate paid by bulk barn customers is a demand charge.

By reducing the demand with no harmful effects on the curing process, Green suggested that statewide, 123,000 kilowatts — or $6 million, based on the average wholesale cost per kilowatt — could be saved each year.

During the test, farmers at each location will determine which barns can be cycled off and for how long, according to curing guidelines developed by N.C. State. According to those guidelines, the first two days of the curing cycle are the most critical, while barns can be cycled off for up to eight hours the remaining five days of the cycle with no adverse effects.

"Our goal is to determine the feasibility ... to see if it will work," Green said.

If the test is successful, such a program could be implemented statewide.

Storm." While extratropical in nature, this northeaster brought tremendous hurricane-like destruction to the state's coast from Hatteras northward and is considered one of the most destructive extratropical cyclones to hit the U.S. coast.

What if Beryl, Chris, Gilbert or another hurricane should hit North Carolina this year?

"Technological improvements in radar and aircraft and the development of ... satellites have provided excellent tools for the early detection of hurricanes and continous monitoring of storm motion," according to John Sanders, a N.C. State University coastal weather specialist.

But he suggested that those technological advancements, which have helped to reduce the loss of life, may provide a false sense of security.

"Elevated storm tides and storm-generated waves can pound structures near the beach and inundate large areas of low-lying land. Some coastal roads could be subject to flooding hours before the center of the hurricane comes on shore," he said, adding that in the event of another major hurricane, "both loss of life and property could be prevented by the proper use of a simple hurricane safety check list."

Sanders and other sources suggest steps that should be taken — and included on a check list.

When a hurricane "Watch" is issued (when a hurricane may threaten within 36 hours), fill your car's gas tank; store or tie down all outdoor objects such as garbage cans, outdoor furniture and garden tools; tape or board up the windows of your home or business; prepare a survival kit including medical supplies, rope, flashlight and radio with extra batteries, fresh water, food, a change of clothes and sleeping bags; pack up valuable papers such as deeds, wills, insurance policies and contracts to take with you; and let friends and relatives know your plans.

If a hurricane "warning" follows (hurricane expected to strike within 24 hours), prepare to evacuate if you live in a flood-prone area (within two miles of the ocean or one mile of a sound, or your home is on land less than 20 feet above sea level) or in a mobile home. Go through the complete checklist once more, shut off the main power switch to your home and gas supply if you use gas, and evacuate.

Sanders suggests that, based on studies conducted at NCSU, 8 to 13 hours before the time the eye of the hurricane is predicted to strike land is not too soon to evacuate your home.

If you don't live in a flood-prone area or in a mobile home, you may be able to ride out the storm at home. If you try it, shut off the main power switch and main gas valve, go indoors and brace all doors to prevent wind damage, monitor storm reports on your radio, and stay indoors until an official all-clear is given.

When the hurricane has passed: stay out of disaster areas; don't drive unless you have to and then drive carefully on debris-filled streets; avoid loose or dangling wires and report them to your local power company, police or fire department, and report broken sewer or water mains.

One added danger to a hurricane is the possibility that it might spawn a tornado. When a hurricane is approaching, listen for tornado watches and warnings.

A tornado watch means tornadoes are expected to develop, while a tornado warning means a tornado has been sighted.

If a tornado warning is issued, seek inside shelter immediately.

If a tornado catches you outside, move away from its path at a right angle. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as in a ditch or ravine.

Crossword Addicts Vie For Cash

NEW YORK (AP) — Quick: who was pope after Sergius II, and what is the name of Buster Brown's dog?

If you answered St. Leo and Tige, and did it quickly, you were probably among the 261 addicts competing in the U.S. Open Crossword Puzzle Championship on Saturday.

As the digital clock ticked off the seconds at New York University's Loeb Student Center, contestants from as far away as California tested their knowledge of obscure words and trivia against other puzzle experts.

First prize in the contest, sponsored by Games magazine, was $1,500 and went to Stanley Newman, 30, of Brooklyn. Newman, who works for a Wall Street investment banking firm, missed only one letter in the final puzzle.

"I feel exhausted but great," said the winner after picking up his prize. Besides the money, he was given an unabridged dictionary, a crossword puzzle dictionary and a 5-feet-8-inch pencil.

Second prize of $500 went to Rebecca Kornbluh, 31, of Mundelein, Ill., a Chicago suburb. John Chervokas of Briarcliff, N.Y., took third and got $250.

The contest participants cheered and clapped as their favorite puzzle creators were introduced, and they sped through the first round of puzzles in minutes. They had to know that "ant antagonists" were aardvarks and that "glassy" means vitric.

David Rosen, a high-school mathematics teacher from Buffalo, N.Y., finished the first of five puzzles in a mere four minutes. Clare Grundman of South Salem, N.Y., thought that was a pretty impressive feat — and he should know. Grundman, co-editor of The New York Times crossword puzzle dictionary, said he could not finish the puzzle within the 15-minute time limit.

Barbara Lawson, 34, of Chicago finished the first puzzle in six minutes. "I read a lot and have a pretty good memory for trivia," she said.

The contestants were the best of 7,700 who filled out a qualifying puzzle in the March-April issue of Games. Those who answered the puzzle correctly — about 60 percent — were sent four additional puzzles and had three weeks to solve them.

Just nine contestants finished all four without error. The 250 with the best scores were invited here for the finals.

The contest consisted of five crossword puzzles with a championship playoff puzzle for the three contestants with the highest scores. Those puzzles were placed on giant boards in the front of the auditorium so everyone could watch.

Accident Is Blamed On Wasp

Greenville police reported about $900 damage in a Saturday morning traffic blamed on a wasp.

Investigators said a car driven by Mary Ann Thompson of Wilson Acres Apartments was stopped at Maple and Third Streets when a wasp entered the vehicle. Police said Ms. Thompson jumped from the car, which continued east on Third Street without the driver.

Officers said Ms. Thompson gave chase and caught the car but was dragged for some distance causing minor injuries. The car struck a utility pole before coming to a stop in the yard of Gregory Ross at 1701 E. Third St., causing about $100 to the landscaping in the yard. No charges were made.

In a Friday accident a car driven by Mark Omen Silveri of Nashville collided with another car driven by Clarence Earl Price of Greenville,

Officers said the Price vehicle was stopped between a median on Memorial drive near Maxwell Street when it was struck in the rear by the Silveri auto.

Damage was placed at $1,000 to the Silveri auto, while officers estimated damage to the Price vehicle at about $200.

No charges were made and no injuries were reported.

School Board Meets Monday

The action meeting of the Greenville Board of Education for the month of August will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at Wahl-Coates Laboratory School.

Action items on the agenda include second readings on three policy papers — extra duty assignments; compensation guides and contracts; and performance appraisal system.

Other agenda items include personnel matters, financial reports and items in the category of buildings and grounds.

Thruston Morton Dies At Age 74

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Thruston Ballard Morton, a former U.S. senator and Republican Party leader, died at his home Saturday after an extended illness. He was 74.

Morton represented Louisville in Congress from 1947 to 1953, served in the Senate from 1957 to 1969 and was the Republican national chairman during the 1960 presidential campaign.

He was an early critic of the Vietnam War and the uncompromising anti-communist tone of American politics in the 1960s.

After refusing to run for a fourth term in the House of Representatives in 1952, Morton served for three years as an assistant secretary of state. He was assigned the job of winning congressional approval for the Eisenhower administration's foreign policy.

Back on the campaign trail in 1956, Morton unseated U.S. Sen. Earle C. Clements, the former Kentucky governor who was acting Senate majority leader at the time. Morton won by a 6,981-vote margin.

Asked if he considered himself a liberal or a conservative, Morton liked to say he was "2 degrees to the left of center."

Tractor-Trailer Puts 'Free Food' Along Highway

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A tractor-trailer loaded with $100,000 worth of groceries overturned along a highway overpass Saturday, spilling potatoes, melons, berries and cartons of eggs into a park below.

Within an hour after the accident, guests at a nearby hotel, passers-by, drifters and even cab drivers were tramping through the vegetables and fruit, stuffing undamaged food into bags and cardboard boxes.

"It's free food falling out of the skies," laughed Amy Rauch, 23, of suburban Greentree, while she crammed potatoes and onions into large paper bags. "Just say it's our civic duty."

Miss Rauch and her sister, Brenda, were driving by when they spotted the groceries on the ground.

"The Lord heard my prayers. I haven't been able to afford groceries since I just got done paying a lot bills," Brenda Rauch said as she collected unbroken eggs and gathered bags of carrots.

By noon, however, the crowd had swelled to nearly 100 and police began ordering people away after several fights broke out.

"As long as everybody was acting decent, there was no problem. But when they start acting like a bunch of animals we had to chase them," said state policeman Bert Failor.

The refrigerated truck, driven by John W. Churlik of Richfield, Ohio, crossed the Fort Pitt Bridge in downtown Pittsburgh at 7:30 a.m. Saturday, Failor said. The truck, carrying 29,000 pounds of food, began to lean along a curve and slid about 220 feet along the ramp to the Fort Duquesne Bridge. The rig overturned and screeched another 141 feet before stopping.

A guardrail sheared the rear of the truck, and about half the groceries toppled about 20 feet to the ground below.

Churlik was treated and released at Allegheny General Hospital.

No other injuries were reported, Failor said.

The truck, owned by Kroger Co., was en route from Solon, Ohio, to a store in Pittsburgh's Bloomfield section, Failor said.

Kroger officials at the scene said the food could not be sold and would have to be thrown away. People were welcome to help themselves to the free food, valued at about $100,000, said John Beech, a Kroger spokesman.

Shortly after the accident, about 25 people who had gathered at Point State Park were rummaging through the food. Some carried off boxes filled with half-gallon jugs of milk, while others hoisted garbage bags stuffed with wrapped loaves of bread.

Residents soon heard about the accident on the radio and from friends and about 100 more people streamed to the park and blocked traffic in the area.

"We had a whole bunch of people stop. ... Just grabbing it and fighting among themselves," Failor said.

"There's all kinds of food here. People are hungry out here, too. Can you believe it?" asked Jimmy Jones, a city employee who happened to drive by in a municipal truck after the accident occurred.

Cathy Parker, 35, of Chattanooga, Tenn., was looking out of her window at the nearby Hilton Hotel when she saw groceries spread over the ground.

"We just wanted to see what happened," she said as she gingerly placed strawberries in a Styrofoam container.

By noon, all that remained were melon rinds, broken eggshells, squashed tomatoes, empty cartons and the sickly sweet odor of fruit decaying in the sun.

EPA Director Gains Divorce

DENVER (UPI) — Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne Gorsuch and her husband, David, have been granted a divorce, ending their 18-year marriage.

The Gorsuches separated two years ago before she was nominated for the EPA post. He is a Denver attorney. Judge Karen Metzger granted the divorce Friday.

Gorsuch's attorney said custody of the couple's daughter, 13, and two sons, 8 and 14, was awarded to Mrs. Gorsuch, an Alexandria, Va., resident, who also was awarded the couple's Denver home.

Her husband retained his interest in the law firm Gorsuch, Kirgis, Campbell, Walker and Grover, the attorney said.

Neither Mrs. Gorsuch nor her husband sought maintenance payments and cash was divided equally, the attorney said.

Reporter's Family Is Rescued At Sea

MIAMI (AP) — The family of NBC News reporter Robert Bazell was found "safe and in good condition" Saturday, after drifting for three days in their 14-foot boat in the Caribbean, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Petty Officer Richard Kane said the Bazell's wife, Margot, and two children — Rebecca, who turned 14 on Saturday, and Joshua, 12 — were picked up at 5:18 p.m., EDT, by an American tanker about 40 miles southeast of Grand Cayman Island. Bazell left the boat on Wednesday after it ran out of fuel and swam to shore.

"All three are safe and in good condition," Kane said.

After his family was found, Bazell flew over the tanker in a helicopter and saw his son, according to NBC News spokesman Bill McAndrew. Bazell, a science reporter based in New York, has been with the network news staff since 1976, McAndrew said.

Bazell told the Cayman Islands News Bureau he and his family were returning from snorkeling off the islands when they ran out of fuel about two miles west of Grand Cayman.

Sunday Opinion

All Risks Aren't Really Visible For New Adults

That 18th birthday is an important day in the life of America's young man. It marks the age of qualifying to vote and exercising the privilege of his citizenship. It is also the age of responsibility and registering for the draft ... though there is no draft, and there are no signs Congress has any intention of instituting a draft.

Parents, on counseling their sons, should remind them the draft registration process poses no threat as far into the future as anyone here or in Washington can see.

Odds are, that in any kind of real crunch, there would be a rush of volunteers to the colors ... there always has been in the past, and there is no reason to think things would be different today or in the future. Actually, the registration law was part "signal" to those who might threaten our security, as well as a time-saver in the event of a real honest-to-goodness emergency.

Still, it is the law of the land, and good citizens are very conscious of that. The process does not include a qualification for objectors ... no need for that since there is no draft. Determination of objector status has in the past been left to local boards when inductees were formally called before them.

Today there is a policy of relying on an all-volunteer military establishment; and the prospect of ending that practice appears virtually nil. Unemployment has induced many young people to find a "job" in uniform. The enlistment rate has been so favorable that we understand recruiters can afford to be more and more selective as to who is wanted, and who is not wanted. At any rate, the armed services are having no problem in meeting their goals except perhaps in some special skills.

We do not wish to be overly reassuring. There are greater risks on turning 18 than anything posed by that remotely possible draft. For instance, the hazards of vote-casting are infinitely greater. One mistake and you're stuck for two years, four years ... maybe six years. Not only that, so are a lot of other people.

Think about that, too, you 18-year-olds.

"IT ONLY HURTS WHEN YOU LAUGH!"

Maureen Santini — Style

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is said to leave many matters to subordinates. But when something truly matters to him, he goes all out.

And he's been doing just that for more than a week in his quest to convince Congress to pass a bill to increase taxes by $98.9 billion over three years.

This time around, the president went so far as to delay for at least a week the vacation he was to have begun Aug. 11. So instead of riding his beloved horses at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., the president remains in the nation's capital, ushering in group after group of Republican congressmen in his lobbying blitz.

In the past week, Reagan has summoned perhaps 150 Republican congressmen to the White House for some low-key arm twisting. Every day several new waves of congressmen meet with the president and listen to him and his aides explain the tax bill. Some of them emerge saying their minds have been changed.

The Reagan style doesn't stop with congressmen, however. He also has met with business leaders who support the bill, such as Chrysler Corp. Chairman Lee Iacocca. And he placed his former political director, Lyn Nofziger, in charge of conducting the lobbying effort even though Nofziger opposed the tax bill a week ago. It was Reagan who convinced Nofziger to change his mind.

The president also may make a nationally broadcast address to the nation on the topic, the same thing he did last July during the White House offensive to win passage of a bill to cut taxes by 25 percent over 33 months.

If he follows the same script he used last year, Reagan will ask constituents to deluge their congressmen with so many telegrams and telephone calls that Congress will be afraid the ignore the message from back home.

Whether he can pull this one off remains to be seen. But he has yet suffer a major loss on economic issues.

By most accounts, Reagan's lobbying manner is low-key. The congressmen say afterward that the president and his aides listen to their questions and provide answers. There are indications that a bit of old-fashioned horse trading also enters the picture.

Though most of his sessions with congressmen have been closed to the press, the White House did allow reporters and cameras in briefly during one of three meetings Tuesday.

The photographers entered the Cabinet Room first, took their pictures and left. The television cameras were next. Reagan waited until the cameras were in place before launching into what appeared to be a prepared speech about the need for the tax bill.

"What we're really talking about is the necessity to reduce the deficits and thus get interest rates continue coming down and get the economy moving again," Reagan said. "Those who are opposed to it cannot hide from the fact that they are supporting increased deficit and higher interest rates."

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker told reporters that Reagan should make a televised speech because he is the most effective communicator around.

In addition, Baker said, the lobbying sessions at the White House were working. "I think he's gaining recruits every day, and only the president can do that."

Alvin Taylor — Sunday Morning Notes

When it comes to finding persons, there is no greater sleuth than Jack Edwards, Greenville businessman.

Last year Jack had the job of locating members of his old platoon, Officers Candidate Class, Quartermaster Corps, Camp Lee, Va.

He had the 1945 addresses of the 29 members of the class. He found that six were deceased, but he located all the remaining 23 for the reunion held at Hagerstown, Md.

This year Jack joined in searching for members of the Greenville High School Class of 1942 for the 40th reunion held July 31.

Of the 96 members of the class, it was determined that 16 were deceased. One-by-one the living members of the class were contacted, all but one.

Jack began the search for Gene Johnson. He found a Pembroke, Mass. address, but Johnson had moved. He wrote several letters with no success.

Next he called an aunt in Murfreesboro who didn't know Johnson's whereabouts, and then her son in Alexandria, Va., who also didn't know.

Finally he called the town clerk of Pembroke and asked who lived at the old address. He contacted Jacqueline Claeys who said she bought the house from Richard Haynes of Londonderry, N.H. He said he bought it from Johnson who moved to Cut and Shoot, Texas.

Jack called Postmistress Peggy Null in Cut and Shoot who gave him numbers for Gene Johnsons in nearby Conroe and Cleveland. Neither was the right one.

Finally Edwards left it that if she had any ideas to call him back collect.

He came to his office one day to find a number for Gene Johnson.

As it turned out the postmistress had recalled that a Gene Johnson and a Terry Covington had a box together. Covington's wife and Johnson's daughter had the same name, Norma.

She explained later she called Covington and asked if his father-in-law was named Gene Johnson.

"How did you know that?" he asked.

"Did he grow up in Greenville, N.C?" she asked.

"How did you know?" he replied.

Paul T. O'Connor — Opponent Is Always Uglier

RALEIGH — A season of picture politics — that fine art of making your political opponents look uglier than Beelzebub — is about to open in North Carolina.

The most recent example of the art was shown in the 1980 campaign when Sen. John East ousted Sen. Robert Morgan. The National Congressional Club found an absolutely atrocious picture of Morgan and ran it in their ads for East. The picture really made Democrats angry and even Sen. Jesse Helms commented late in the campaign that Morgan wasn't as ugly as the picture made him out to be.

The state Democratic Party published a full page ad — at a cost of almost $4,000 — in last Sunday's edition of the Raleigh News & Observer blasting East and Helms for their vote for an 8-cent cigarette tax increase. In the ad, they ran flattering studio portraits of the two senators. But it wasn't because they wanted to.

June Milby, the Democrats' new press spokesman, looked all over for some ugly pictures of the two but was unable to find any she could use. She said she found some in the N&O's picture files but the paper wouldn't let her use them in the ad. In one, she said, Helms is wearing a state trooper's hat and has his tongue sticking out.

Milby says she expects the party to find some fitting photographs of Helms and East before long.

Club's Restrictions Need Idle Hands

And now from Mecklenburg County comes more information about the dangers of having idle hands. Authorities in the state's most populous county say they have uncovered an arson club in which personal property had to be torched before membership could be attained.

A major criterion for membership, those authorities said, was that the prospective member must be a high school dropout. No reason has been given officially for the restrictive membership, but the old adage describing idle hands as the devil's workshop seemingly would apply.

Certainly there may be valid reasons for dropping out of school early, but they are uncommon. For practical purposes, the day when an individual could leave school in the sixth grade, go to work and become a productive citizen has disappeared.

Rowland Evans and Robert Novak — Old Age Of Politics Is Gone

PHILADELPHIA, Miss. — Austere in black campaign suit, Sen. John C. Stennis permitted himself a rare boast about how he really has "helped to blaze a trail" for Mississippi during his 35 years in the Senate and wondered why any redblooded Mississippians would suddenly "want to take me out" of the political game.

Rebel yells of approval greeted that meager brag by the old man, 81 last week, who is running for a seventh term. The yells came from several hundred political junkies who packed the outdoor speakers' shed at the renowned Neshoba County Fair in this Deep-South heartland.

Stennis has never aired a television commercial, never tapped the mother's milk of a political action committee (PAC), never campaigned at all since his first election in 1947. Now he is up against a 35-year-old Republican whiz kid named Haley Barbour, one of the South's skilled masters of the new politics and only slightly to the right of old conservative Stennis.

Sen. Russell Long of neighboring Louisiana gave Stennis a brotherly talking-to when he decided after much soul-searching to try to join the short list of senators reelected after hitting 80. "You have to run a modern campaign, senator," Long said. Long told Stennis to hire Ray Strother, a Louisiana media consultant, to learn how to advertise himself over TV. Stennis told Long: "Russell, you're going to make me look like a sissy." But he hired Strother.

Ideologically, there isn't a dime's worth of difference between Stennis and Barbour. Nor is it likely that their race could threaten continued Republican control of the Senate. The questions raised by this clash of political eras are both eentimental and practical. Sentimentally, can the last of the Senate grandees from the old Southern democracy summon the strength to turn back the challenge of a new-breed Reaganite true-believer? Practically, should Mississippi choose a bright new face who could spend the next 45 years in the Senate?

Forgetting sentiment, the practicalities should be running with Barbour. Plantation politics washed down the Mississippi with the civil rights revolution of the '60s. This state elected its first post-Reconstruction Republican senator in 1978 when Sen. James Eastland retired. Two of five House members elected in 1980 were Republicans, one of whom, Rep. Trent Lott, is the House minority whip.

Barbour is an insider's politician who worries the Democrats. "If he gets elected, one party leader told us, "he'll be up there as long as he likes, he's that smart."

The Reagan White House is working for Barbour, who last winter was offered a political job overseeing the national Republican congressional campaign. Chief of Staff James Baker wrote notes to scores of PAC's to swell attendance at Barbour's fund-raising reception in Washington last week, the first time Baker has done that for anyone. President Reagan wrote all past Mississippi Republican primary voters, about 100,000, to stir them up for Barbour.

But Barbour is fighting an institution. Normal political moves may not apply. He was warned by Sen. Slade Gorton, the youthful Republican who beat elderly Sen. Warren Magnuson of Washington in 1980, not to exploit Stennis's age publicly. Nevertheless, with age the only issue, Barbour operatives strung a "Happy 81st Birthday" banner for Stennis across the fairgrounds here, and trailed the senator with a camera crew for most of the day. Stennis was not amused.

Speaking at the fair the day before Stennis, Barbour emphasized that the new senator would be elected "to a term that will last to 1989." In quiet campaign talks in front of plain pine cabins that dot the fairgrounds, Barbour gave other reasons: With the Republicans almost certain to control the Senate at least until 1985, Stennis's former power as chairman of the Armed Services Committee has gone; now is the time to look to Mississippi's future power in Washington.

That such a notion has occurred here is clear from unpublished polls taken for Barbour. Of all senators running for re-election, Stennis looks worst on the question of whether it is "time for a new man."

But nostalgia tugs hard, particularly with that special breed of chauvinistic Americans who live in these parts and who look upon the man they send to Washington not so much as a senator as an ambassador to a foreign country. One old Mississippian leaning against a rail to watch a harness race told us: I can't think of sending an 81-year-old fellow to Washington for six years. But since you ask, I just couldn't vote against Sen. Stennis."

Helen Thomas — On Both Sides Of The Fence

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is learning that politics is the art of compromise. But, like all presidents, he does not like to be accused of changing his mind.

His position on several major issues lately has caused him, somewhat ambiguously, to be on both sides of a question at the same time.

For example when he promoted a three-stage tax cut, and won it with personal lobbying, he said it would lead to an upturn in the economy, lower interest rates and deficits.

That was last summer. This summer, with the economic outlook still on the gloomy side, Reagan is working day and night to win passage of a $98.8 billion tax increase bill. He said that would lower interest rates and deficits, leading to a revival of the auto, housing, construction industries and small business.

Pie in the sky. Maybe. But Reagan's political pragmatism is coming through.

He also seemed to be working both sides of the street when he blocked the sale of gas and oil equipment for the Siberian-West European pipeline, and then turned around and announced he would explore a new and larger grain sales agreement with the Soviets.

He put the kibosh on the sale of pipeline equipment to punish the Russians for the suppression of the Polish Solidarity movement. But in doing so he also angered and alienated the key Western European leaders who favor the pipeline that will bring energy to their capitals.

Reagan manages to justify the inherent contradictions and inconsistencies. In the case of the grain sales, he notes that the economically strapped Soviets have to put up "hard cash" and in the case of the pipeline special credits would be extended them.

He explained the drain on their hard currency for grain would keep that money from going into a bigger defense buildup.

In foreign policy, Reagan made several statements in defense of Britain's response when Argentina invaded the Falklands. He said on several occasions" aggression should not be rewarded."

But when Israel invaded Lebanon, the president decided not to point the finger at Israel. When asked if aggression should be rewarded in this case, he indicated that it was a "two-way" street.

On the domestic side, although he believes in the free market and deregulation, the administration is remaining silent on the so-called labor protection provisions for the airline industry. The provisions would require airlines laying off workers to pay them 60 percent of their salaries for up to five years.

Airline opponents argue that the administration is winking at the proposal because the Air Line Pilots Assoication, which supported Reagan in his battle with the Air Controllers Union, wants it enacted. The opponents claim it would be severely costly and flies in the face of deregulation, although Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis and Elizabeth Dole, head of White House public liaison, are willing to see it enacted

And so these days, Reagan is more under attack by the conservatives in his own ranks than the so-called liberal opposition.

When the Conservative Digest in an entire issue went after the president hammer and tongs, accusing him of straying from the fold, Reagan later wrote to John Lofton, a conserviate columnist and one of the editors, that it was "one of the most dishonest and unfair bits of journalism" he had ever seen.

Reagan is learning, more than most presidents ever did, that he is constantly being watched for any ideological deviation. More than most presidents, he has stubbornly kept his campaign promises, and tried to hew the line.

But even he as president sees that the realities intrude to force new thinking on old subjects.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Greenville Baha'is received word recently from our National Center in Wilmette, Illinois, of still another execution of our co-religionists in Iran. Abbas-Ali Sadiqipur was executed in Shiraz July 15. His "crimes," reported in a leading Iranian newspaper, were based upon his connection with the religion and included the charge of his being an "active Baha'i."

We have to continue speaking out against this persecution. While the killing of people thousands of miles away might seem to remote too care about, if we remain silent, we can be sure that the Iranian government will continue with its plan to exterminate the Baha'is in Iran one by one.

In recent weeks the United States Senate unanimously approved a resolution condemning the Iranian government for its "conscious effort to destroy the Baha'i community." The House of Representatives Foreign Affairs Committee is drafting a similar resolution which is expected to pass easily in the House of Representatives.

Members of the Baha'i Faith have suffered persecution in Iran since the religion began there in the mid-19th century. Since the 1979 revolution in Iran, the persecution of the Baha'is has been systematic and officially sanctioned. However, the Iranian government has, in so many words, promised to quit the killing and violence if the Baha'is convert to Islam.

The Baha'i Faith and its teachings are perceived as threatening and dangerous to the clergy in control of the country. Our belief in the oneness of mankind, the oneness of religion, and the equality of men and women makes us criminals worthy of execution in Iran.

The Bahai Community here in Greenville is happy to provide speakers to any group interested in learning more about the situation in Iran. Call 752-4483.

Governors Usually Look Ahead

AFTON, Okla. (AP) — The ranks of unemployed governors produced the last two presidents, a bit of political trivia tantalizing to the politicians who spent the last three days at a lakeside resort near here.

Rare is the governor who does not think that being president would be no more difficult than running a great big state.

Remember Jimmy Carter?

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. complained during a particularly frustrating moment in the Carter years that the president seemed to think dealing with Congress was no different than dealing with the Georgia Legislature.

During his campaign for the presidency, Ronald Reagan repeatedly cited his experience as governor of California as proof that he could handle the job of governing the United States.

After all, Reagan would tell audiences, if California were an independent nation, it would be economically, the seventh-largest in the world.

Gerald Ford got some mileage when he defeated Reagan in the race for the 1976 GOP presidential nomination with an ad that pointed out that as governor of California Reagan did not have access to nuclear weapons.

Now comes a new crop of governors harboring those same national ambitions that traditionally infect participants at governors' conferences.

This year, the meeting attracted former Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida, who is trying to take the Carter route to the White House. Askew has been unobtrusively criss-crossing the country in search of support for a 1984 presidential bid.

Tell Askew that no one seems to give him much of a chance and he'll point out that at this stage no one took Carter's presidential ambitions seriously.

But the real veteran of presidential campaigning to attend this conference was Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California.

At age 43, Brown has already made two unsuccessful runs for the Democratic presidential nomination.

He claims he has temporarily shelved his White House ambitions to concentrate on moving to the Senate, a prospect that so disturbs Reagan that he has given top priority to helping Brown's Republican opponent, Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego.

Brown was uncharacteristically subdued at his final governors' conference. He sat quietly through a hearing at which Interior Secretary James Watt defended policies Brown bitterly opposes.

The chairman of the session, Democratic Gov. Jay Rockefeller of West Virginia, looked directly at Brown when he told participants there was time for one more question. But Brown ignored the apparent invitation.

Another Brown with White House dreams is Gov. John Y. Brown of Kentucky, the fried chicken millionaire who is married to former Miss America, Phyllis George.

Brown devotes a lot of time and energy to helping fellow Democrats raise money, an activity sure to attract political allies.

And when it comes to money, Jay Rockefeller, quickly comes to mind. The West Virginia Democrat has shown the same willingness as his late Reublican uncle, Nelson, to spend whatever it takes to win. That prompted supporters of his GOP opponent in the last West Virginia governor's race, Arch Moore, to distribute bumper stickers that read: "Make Him Spend It All, Arch."

And the list goes on. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona and Richard Lamm of Colorado are two Democrats who get that gleam in their eyes when they talk about how neither presidents nor Congresses seem to understand how to deal with the problems of states and of the West in particular.

Governors of New York traditionally are presidential contenders from the day they take office.

But Hugh Carey passed up this, his final governor's conference, and will leave office without realistic hope that he will become one of those former governors who is called to greater things.

All in all, participants in the latest governor's conference seemed more interested in salvaging their careers and reputations during a period of deteriorating state economies than in making the big jump from statehouse to White House.

Banking Device Keeps Cash At Hand

In Las Vegas, Atlantic City or Reno, a losing gambler can replenish his cash reserves from automated teller machines without missing more than a few rolls of the dice.

Banks are installing new computerized self-service teller machines in all sorts of places where people shop, work, play and travel.

Americans are finding they can do much of their banking at airports, train depots, grocery stores, drug stores, shopping centers and college campuses — and the list keeps growing.

Since the first automated teller machine (ATM) was installed by a Georgia bank in 1971, bankers have been wiring them up at an increasingly rapid clip at their main offices and branches.

But only recently have they begun to install them in "off-premise" locations. The trend quickly gathered steam as state laws were relaxed and bankers recognized it as a way to increase customer service, invade new market areas and lure new customers at less than the brick-and-mortar cost of a new branch.

Last March, Midway National Bank in St. Paul found a new frontier with an ATM at a combination self-service gas station and convenience store.

Why a gas station?

"We know how often people go to gas stations," said Truman Porter, vice president of retail banking at Midway. That's not even counting the number of times people stop off at the station store to buy milk or cigarettes.

As an extra incentive, each time a customer uses the machine he gets a 50-cent coupon good for most purchases in the store.

"It's a very strong incentive for using the machine and the major goal here is to test both the usage of the machine and see if we can't increase our market share," Porter said. The bank is already looking to expand to another station.

In California, Bank of America installed ATMs late last year at the corporate offices of Southern California Edison, Memorex and Tandem. It also has ATMs at Disneyland for use by employees and is talking with Disney about installing some for visitors as well.

"It's an opportunity to get new business as well as provide better service and more convience for the customer," said Keith Flavetta, vice president of ATM operations.

In New York, Marine Midland Bank has ATMs in hospitals in Buffalo and Syracuse for use by both employees and patients. It also has ATMs at Canisius College in Buffalo and at State University's Albany campus. Thus, a cash-short student no longer has to wait for his parents' check to arrive in the mail. They can simply deposit money in his account at their end. He can then quickly retrieve the cash from the ATM on campus.

In Las Vegas, First Interstate Bank of Nevada, part of the large western bank group, has an ATM just off the casino at Sam's Town resort, and another setup at John Ascuaga's Nugget in the Reno area. In Atlantic City, cash-needy gamblers will find a Visa machine in the lobby of Caesars Boardwalk Regency and an American Express machine at Bally's Park Place.

Even the Navy has been looking at ATMs, so that thousands of miles at sea sailors will be able to do their banking and get cash from their pay.

A six-week pilot test was recently completed onboard an aircraft carrier. Officials say it was a resounding success, with an impressive 50,000 transactions recorded on each of the two machines.

Making The Most Of The Situation

LONDON — Anyone who's watched the "telly" here lately might suspect that the British are still liberating the windswept Falkland Islands. Every evening on the tube there seems to be some patriotic extravaganza or financial appeal for the survivors of Britain's fallen soldiers.

Smiling brightly at numerous Falkland-related events, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher appears to be making the most of the endless celebration. The "Iron Lady" ie still seen as the heroine of the Falklands war. Despite a sharp drop in popularity last week, Mrs. Thatcher enjoys the support of twice as many Britons as she did before the war.

After more recent conquests of striking rail and dock workers at home (even Labor governments have succumbed to such a challenge), Mrs. Thatcher might seem invincible.

Yet the prime minister's future, let alone her plans for maintaining 5,000 soldiers at Port Stanley, could begin to collapse when a bipartisan government Commission of Inquiry on the war soon releases its report. Among other questions, commission investigators have been examining whether Mrs. Thatcher deliberately picked a fight with Argentina, forsaking the possibility of stronger international sanctions before dispatching Britain's naval force.

Mrs. Thatcher's refusal to abide by former Foreign Minister Lord Carrington's suggestion to send a nuclear submarine into the South Atlantic is also under scrutiny. By its mere presence, some have argued, the sub might have underscored for Argentina the seriousness of British intentions to maintain the islands, saving lives in the process. Instead, as everyone knows, Mrs. Thatcher led Britons on a crusade for democracy and territorial integrity.

Yet, even this alibi had its weakness. Though the commission's final report may not highlight the fact, democracy in the Falklands is a sometime thing. The local council there, for example, is not popularly elected; its majority is appointed by the mother country. Furthermore, a Thatcher-backed Nationality Act paased last year has tied every Falklander's right of British citizenship to proof that a father or grandfather was British-born.

Perhaps Mrs. Thatcher's justification for the Falklands recapture can be read in her continuing efforts to soak the conflict for all it's worth with her country's economy in no better shape than it was in April, she needs all the help she can get.

With no prospect of falling joblessness, there are signs that the Thatcher regime, like Ronald Reagan's, is beginuing to grasp at straws. While Mrs.Thatcher hasn't reversed her opposition to a tax increase, she's shocked observers with two national jobs proposals. One CETA-type program would authorize $300 million to underwrite 100,000 community-service jobs for individuals who've been on welfare six months or longer. The second, a "job-splitting" grants program, would encourage employers to offer part-time work to welfare recipients.

For the moment, Mrs. Thatcher seems able to ride out a sluggish economy with the help of a biting personality and impotent opposition. As in many other Western democracies, the liberal opposition is badly split.

Boater Ignored All The Rules

An old poker players' maxim — which is applicable to everyone — cautions folks to "quit while you're ahead." I don't know whether Melvin West played poker or not, but he disregarded this old adage back in 1958, and it cost him his life.

West, a 28-year old Morehead City native, set out on Jan. 29 that year on his second solo effort to drive an outboard motorboat from the North Carolina port city to Bermuda, a distance of 580 miles. He has never been seen since.

West, who had worked at Jacksonville, N.C., as a disc jockey prior to his first effort, embarked on his second try without fanfare. Possibly he feared that the Coast Guard, which said that its successful search for West on the first voyage had cost $300,000, was so miffed with him that it would have taken steps to block him.

Be that as it may, the Carteret County News-Times said in a front page story nine days later that the Coast Guard cutter Chilula had embarked from Morehead to "unofficially" search for the motorboat enthusiast, although Coast Guard headquarters would deny the report.

Three days later Mrs. West did ask the Coast Guard to undertake an official search for her husband. It did, concentrating its effort on an area east of Bermuda on the theory that severe storms since West's embarkation had blown him past the tiny chain of islands. The search proved fruitless.

Friends told the Morehead newspaper that West, father of three small children, was driven by an obsession to pilot an outboard motorboat to Bermuda. They said the obsession was so strong that he was making plans for his second Bermuda try only two days after he returned home from the first effort.

West left on his first try in mid-October of 1957. He embarked from Morehead City in a 15-foot outboard boat he aptly called the "Impossible." An experienced small-boat sailor, he stocked the craft with a three-day supply of food, a jug of coffee, a half gallon of water and fishing tackle — just in case. He estimated the voyage would require 40 hours, so he loaded enough gasoline to run the boat 72 hours. He also had a compass and a radio receiver, but no transmitter. Dispatches from Morehead said the weather was good and the immediate forecast favorable when he departed.

The Coast Guard launched an all-out search after more than 40 hours had passed with no sign of the lone voyager and after 30 mph winds were rolling the seas around Bermuda. Planes from the Elizabeth City Coast Guard Station, the cutters Chilula and Rockaway and other craft participated in the search. One of the planes reported sighting a flare about 50 miles east, southeast of Morehead. The Coast Guard called off its search after a Liberian freighter encountered West and his tiny craft 200 miles east of Cape Lookout, and reported he was in good shape.

But when nine days had elapsed with no further sign of West, the young man's father appealed to his congressman to prod the Coast Guard into resuming the search. The following day, the Coast Guard reported that one of its planes while on a "training flight" had spotted West, 165 miles west northwest of Bermuda. After the plane dropped emergency rations and a short wave radio, West radioed he was in good condition but out of gas. He asked for more so he could continue his voyage, but the Coast Guard, unhappy with West's stunt and the trouble he had caused, refused. It ordered a plane to circle the boat until the cutter Rockaway could arrive.

The pilot of the plane that found West reported the young man "seemed might glad we found him" because he "was getting nervous." West reported that he was down to his last four chocolate bars and had only a half cup of water. He said a Coast Guard plane had passed without seeing him the day before.

West's father, Barry West, tried to get gasoline to his son despite the Coast Guard's refusal. He telephoned the Coast Guard station in Norfolk and appealed with it to relent. When it refused, he wired $100 to Bermuda to hire a private plane to take a supply of gasoline to the drifting boat but was told there was no plane available with sufficient range. Then he asked the Coast Guard to get a message to the young man asking him to give up the effort and come aboard the Rockaway because, "We feel you have proven you point (that such a trip in an outboard boat was feasible)."

In Bermuda the next day, young West told reporters that only the accidental loss of 40 gallons of gasoline had kept him from completing his voyage. He said that a five-gallon container had broken loose and rammed the fuel line, causing the gasoline to leak out and run into the bilge.

"I figured on everthing but the kind of accident that stopped me, so I guess it's my own fault I couldn't make it. It was my own stupidity," he said.

"SURE, REGISTRATION IS AN INTRUSION, BUT IT'S ONLY IN CASE THE U.S. HAS TO BE DEFENDED..."

Risks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Toby Moffett and Lowell Weicker are fighting for the U.S. Senate seat from Connecticut, and as their campaign unfolds, both men have reached for the state's substantial Jewish vote by proclaiming their strong support for Israel.

This year, in the wake of Israel's invasion of Lebanon, however, such a strategy poses new risks for politicians in Connecticut and across the nation.

Many American Jews are now demanding more from politicians in return for campaign support. But giving further commitments could backfire with other members of the Jewish community and many other Americans, who are upset by events in the Middle East.

Particularly in an election year, the issue is extremely sensitive, and few of those involved will speak on or off the record.

American Jews play a critical role in supporting liberal candidates, with volunteers, contributions and votes. But the usually simple appeal to the American Jewish community is infinitely more sensitive now, for the community is publicly split on Lebanon.

Meanwhile, polls say many Americans disapprove of the Israel's moves in Lebanon, and some are trying to turn that disapproval into votes against those supporting Israel.

"These politicians respond only to constituent pressure," says James J. Zogby, co-director of the American-Arab Anti-discrimination Committee. "People are mad (at Israel). The politicians are going to find out that it won't pay to take that position (in support of Israel) much longer."

Politicians are sometimes asked direct questions in public forums. The responses of Weicker, the liberal Republican incumbent fighting for re-election, and Moffett, a liberal Democratic congressman aiming to move up, illustrate the dilemma.

"Israel suffered great hardship (because of) the situation in Lebanon. The PLO has set up a state within a state," said Moffett in a July 14 debate with Weicker at Wesleyan University. "But we do not condone civilian casualties. The question is 'Where do we go from here?'"

Weicker countered by saying, "I'm for going in there and kicking the hell out of the Palestine Liberation Organization ... The PLO are a bunch of cheap little terrorists and ought to get their tails kicked wherever they go."

To capitalize on his position, Weicker has been putting thousands of letters in the mail to Jewish Americans, with actor Judd Hirsch asking them to back the Republican incumbent.

Weicker is a tested friend of Israel but Moffett is working to remove any doubts that exist because of his Lebanese ancestry. Also, on a trip to the Middle East in 1980 with a congressional delegation, Moffett met with PLO leader Yasser Arafat.

In appealing to Jewish voters, Moffett sent out letters signed by Democratic Sen. Christopher Dodd of Connecticut and 14 other congressmen.

"Moffett fully understands Israel's need for secure and defensible borders and is committed to adequate economic and military aid to guarantee Israel's survival. You may have been told otherwise," the letter said in a pointed reference to the doubts.

The Dodd letter said Moffett discussed the Arafat meeting with Connecticut Jewish leaders before and after the trip and that he criticized the PLO leader strongly during the meeting.

Moffett said this week that he met recently with Jewish leaders in Connecticut and that he no longer has any problems raising money and getting support from Jewish voters.

"There is a natural allliance, I believe, between Lebanese-Americans and Jews concerned about Israel," He said.

Jewish contributions are one goal in the battle for Jewish support. Votes from the Jewish community can often be the margin of victory in state races.

Jewish Americans tend to vote a bit more regularly than the public at large, making their votes critical to victory in some states. For example in Connecticut in 1980, Jews made up 6 percent of the electorate, an Associated Press-NBC News survey of voters said. Nationally, Jewish voters made up 5 percent of the 1980 electorate.

So, the Lebanon situation poses a problem for campaigning politicians.

An AP-NBC News poll taken June 14-15 found that 54 percent of those who were aware of the situation disapproved of the Israeli invasion, while only 32 percent approved.

Sexagenarian Says No To Sex Before Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: We kiss and cuddle by the hour. We aren't youngsters. He's a widower of 66, and I'm 69 and have never been married — or anything. (Yes, I'm still a virgin.) The kissing and cuddling is as far as I will go. Of course, he would like sex, but I told him no marriage, no sex.

He wants to live together first and has given me every excuse imaginable for not wanting to get married. Mainly, his children are against it, and he hasn't enough money. Also, he says there are plenty of women who will given him sex without marriage.

The lack of money and his children being against it happen to be true. I don't know about the other women. We live in the same apartment building, which gives me an edge.

Sex without marriage is against my principles, but at my age, my chances for marriage are practically nil. The attraction between us is strong.

If I hold out for marriage, do you think he'll give in?

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: Whether he will give in, I cannot predict. You could save a lot of time by giving him a deadline. But never give a man a deadline (or an ultimatum) unless you're prepared to lose.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 12, there was some question about what was wrong with me, then I was finally diagnosed as having epilepsy. I was given large doses of medication to control the condition.

The next four years were a nightmare. I went completely crazy. I slit my wrists, ran away, tried to overdose on my medication and even called the police once to tell them I was planning to kill my mother. I was sent to a foster home, then a mental institution, and ended up in a half-way house. Fifteen seizures a day were about average for me. There were times I was so drugged from medication that I had to close one eye to see straight. I was told I was emotionally disturbed.

I entered a hospital for some tests, and during the examination they discovered a tumor the size of a large turkey egg on my right temporal lobe. This tumor had been putting pressure on the part of my brain that controlled my personality. So it turns out I never was epileptic or emotionally disturbed. I was physically ill!

I had surgery with the understanding that I had only a 30 percent chance of surviving. To make a long story short, I am now 21 and haven't had a seizure since my operation. I am also happily married and am expecting a baby next month.

Abby, please keep telling your readers that if there is any doubt about a diagnosis to get a second opinion.

HAPPY ENDING IN COLORADO

DEAR HAPPY: I shall. Congratulations, and thanks for a wonderful success story.

DEAR ABBY: I received an invitation to my cousin's wedding. With it came an RSVP card, with a stamped envelope for my reply. I accepted the invitation and indicated on the card that I was bringing an escort — and I wrote in his name.

Now it seems that I have committed a "cardinal sin." I have been informed (by my mother) that I had no right to invite an escort without the permission of the bride's family since they are footing the bill.

I honestly thought it was socially correct for a woman to be escorted, and since no escort was provided for me, I invited my own.

Was I wrong?

SOCIALLY AWKWARD

DEAR AWKWARD: Yes. You should not have invited an escort without first asking permission to do so.

Ghotbzadeh Pleads Innocent In Khomeini Plot

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Former Iranian Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh on Saturday pleaded innocent to charges of plotting to assassinate Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported.

But he "confessed" to the military-revolutionary tribunal that he intended to overthrow the government of Iran and change the whole regime, said the agency in a dispatch from Tehran.

The trial, which opened inside Tehran's Evin Prison compound, was chaired by one of Iran's outspoken clergymen, Mohammed Rey Shahri. He offered a brief recitation from the Koran, Islam's holy book, before reading the long indictment against Ghotbzadeh.

Rey Shahri said that Ghotbzadeh, arrested last April, had masterminded a group of military and civilian conspirators with the intention of toppling the Islamic republic of Khomeini.

He said the Ghotbzadeh group, in collaboration with other military groups, planned to set up what they have called a "true Islamic regime" in Iran.

Ghotbzadeh and his henchmen, he said, also contacted "counter-revolutionaries in the Caspian Sea region," collected money abroad and collaborated with heads of the rebellious Qashqaie tribes in Fars province.

According to the indictment, Ghotbzadeh also received $60,000 dollars from an Argentine businessman named Hector Villalon who, Rey Shahri said, lives in Paris. No details were given as to the Argentine's motives and the extent of his alleged involvement.

Ghotbzadeh, who came to power with Khomeini, became Iran's foreign minister in November, 1979, a few days after the seizure of hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. He was arrested by Islamic revolutionary guards barely a year later and charged with criticizing government officials.

He was stripped of his office but allowed to continue to live in Tehran. He was arrested again in April for the alleged plot against Khomeini.

Airline Crew Rewarded For Thwarting Hijackers

PEKING (AP) — China's Communist leaders have given rewards and raises to the eight airline crew members who seized five hijackers in a wild struggle aboard a plane last month, the official news agency Xinhua said Saturday.

Nineteen Americans and 10 Japanese were among the 72 passengers on the four-engine, Soviet-made Ilyushin-18 of China's airline CAAC on a flight from Xian on July 25 when five men seized it and reportedly demanded to go to Taiwan, seat of the rival Nationalist government. CAAC stands for the Civil Aviation Administration of China.

"Your success in thwarting the hijack demonstrates that you have cherished ardent love for the Communist Party of China, the motherland and Socialism, and you have set a fine example for the people of the country," Xinhua quoted Vice Premier Wan Li as telling the crew at a ceremony.

Xinhua said authorities have conferred the title "Heroic CAAC Crew" on the eight crew members, and that Capt. Yang Jihai, 52, was given the title "Anti-Hijacking Hero."

All five male crew members and one stewardess were given orders of merit, special class, and two stewardesses received orders of merit, first class, the agency said. It did not further explain the rewards.

Xinhua also said the crew members would receive a raise in pay, but did not say by how much or give their current salaries. The average Chinese earns the equivalent of about $34 a month, but experienced pilots and crew members likely earn more.

Witnesses aboard the plane said that after the pilot circled for two hours and two of the engines ran out of fuel, some passenxers and crew bludgeoned the hijackers with mops, bottles, umbrellas and a fire ax. At the same time, the hijackers exploded dynamite in the bathroom, blowing a hole in the fuselage.

The plane landed safely in Shanghai. Chinese press accounts said the five hijackers were seized alive, and that at least three crewmen and several Chinese passengers suffered injuries. Some witnesses said all the hijackers were dragged from the plane feet first and at least three looked dead.

Xinhua said the government praised the crew for exhibiting "the noble moral character of revolutionary heroism in protecting the lives of the passengers and maintaining the prestige of China at the risk of their own lives."

When the eight met with government leaders, Xinhua said, Defense Minister Geng Biao mentioned that foreign passengers witnessed the struggle against the hijackers and that: "such success is rare in the world."

The five men in the crew are party members and two of the stewardesses are members of the Communist Youth League, Xinhua said.

Japan Honors It's War Dead

TOKYO (AP) — Japan observes the 37th anniversary of the end of World War II Sunday amid apprehension by other Asian countries and some Japanese that the nation may slowly be reverting to its wartime past.

The occasion is dedicated to those who died serving their country during the war and to pray for world peace.

A government-sponsored memorial service for 2.5 million war dead was planned at Tokyo's Nippon Budokan, Martial Arts Hall, attended by Crown Prince Akihito and Princess Michiko and Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki.

Also invited were other leaders and more than 6,500 members of families who lost kin in the war, which ended on Aug. 14, 1945 with a Japanese surrender after the United States dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The anniversary comes at a time when other Asians are denouncing Japan because of revised Japanese high-school textbooks which they claim whitewash the country's wartime cruelty and aggressions.

China, both Koreas, Taiwan, Hong Kong and Singapore have expressed fears that Japanese militarism is resurfacing after nearly four decades.

For the first time since the surrender ceremonies began 20 years ago, Emperor Hirohito did not plan to participate. The 81-year old emperor has been recuperating from a cold at his summer villa in Nasu north of Tokyo since Friday, the government said. Empress Nagako, 79, also planned to stay away since she is still recovering from a hip injury.

Other services were also scheduled in 27 states nationwide.

The Japan Socialist Party, 4.5 million-member General Council of Trade Unions, and other progressive groups, organized a joint memorial service at a memorial honoring war dead at Chidorigafuchi Park close to the Budokan Martial Arts Hall and the Imperial Palace.

Poles Stage 2nd Public Protest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Demonstrators challenged Communist Poland's martial law authorities for the second day Saturday, unfurling a Solidarity banner in Warsaw's Victory Square. Others placed flowers at a union monument in Gdansk, the Baltic port where riot police routed 10,000 protesters Friday.

Saturday was the second anniversary of the Gdansk shipyard strikes that launched Solidarity, the first independent union in the Soviet bloc, and more protests were planned for Monday.

Union supporters in Victory Square unfurled a banner three feet across bearing the name Solidarity and the message, "Justice Lives. Truth Struggles. Unity Wins. We won't forget." Also printed on the banner were 1956, 1968, 1970, 1976, 1980, 1981, 1982, years of challenges to Communist power.

Scores of people, including a steady stream of bridal parties, gathered to place flowers at the floral cross in Victory Square, where police chased about 1,500 demonstrators Friday.

Since martial law was imposed Dec. 13, the cross has become a symbol of subtle protest to martial law. It marks the spot where Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski's coffin stood during his funeral in May 1981.

Uniformed police were not in sight, and there was no immediate move to rout the protesters as riot police did Friday following the most serious civil disturbances in more than two months.

Reagan Will Finish His Vacation

By HELEN THOMAS
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan soon will begin the second half of his summer vacation at his secluded mountaintop ranch near Santa Barbara where he has spent about one in every 10 days since he became president.

His aides make no apology for his California retreats to unwind and recharge his batteries.

Counting stints in Los Angeles and Palm Springs, Reagan has spent about 80 days in California — 60 at the ranch — since he moved into the White House 571 days ago Jan. 20, 1981.

Reagan and his wife Nancy first intended a month's respite at their 688-acre Rancho del Cielo in the Santa Ynez Mountains, but it was decided breaking the time into two segments of 10 days or so would mute criticism.

Reagan didn't get as much rest as he wanted during the first part in July because he came down from the mountain several times, once when he announced willingness to send U.S. troops to Lebanon as part of a peace-keeping force.

And Part II was postponed for a week to allow Reagan in Washington to lobby members of Congress and quell a conservative rebellion on the administration's tax package.

Reagan is now expected to fly to California mid-week.

"I think a president is entitled to vacation periods as much as anyone else," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes. "We have never felt compelled to make excuses."

Last summer the Reagans spent nearly a month at the picturesque ranch near Santa Barbara, and it did not play well, particularly when top aides failed to wake him up when U.S. jets shot down two Libyan fighters in a dogfight over the Mediterannean.

The incident provoked snickers and concern that when he is at the ranch, he is isolated from the world.

This year "Doonesbury" cartoonist Garry Trudeau created a special presidential aide for vacations who said Reagan was spending a year in California but would be in "close touch with the White House."

The government books are never completely open when it comes to assessing the cost of a presidential vacation. Presidential expenses are hidden and disguised in a hundred ways and distributed in various departments so that the taxpayer has yet to get a fair accounting.

Dolphin Protects Boy

PERTH, Australia (UPI) — A dolphin protected an 11-year-old boy in shark-infested waters off the Cocos Islands for four hours last week after the young surfer was swept out to sea, said the boy's father.

The boy, Nick Christides, said after his rescue that the dolphin never left his side during his ordeal in waters off the islands, 800 miles southwest of Singapore in the Indian Ocean.

He had been surfing with friends in the Cocos Island Lagoon when a wave tossed him off his board, his father Tony told the West Australian News by radio telephone Friday.

The strong current dragged him out, and boats from the island couldn't find him in the rough seas.

An Air Force P-3 Orion aircraft on the island being prepared to take off for Diego Garcia in the Indian Ocean was diverted to the search and located the boy for the search boats.

"Nick may never have survived if the dolphin had not stayed with him. He was very very lucky. We were sure we would never see him alive again," said Christides, who lives on the island.

He said Nick told him after the rescue that when he first saw the dolphin, "he thought it was a shark, but then it started blowing water and Nick knew it wasn't.

"The dolphin just stuck with him, either swimming beside him or going around in circles. He must have realized Nick was in trouble and that the boy was being pulled out by the northerly current because he just followed him and stayed with him all the time."

Nick "kept his head and didn't panic. That's what got him out of it. That and the dolphin," Christides said.

REQUEST APPROVED

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of a request by the Ebenezer Seventh-Day Adventist Church to conduct door-to-door, sidewalk and merchant solicitations Aug. 15 through Dec. 31 to raise money for the annual Harvest Ingathering Drive. The funds will be used for church health, education and welfare programs.

Inmates Riot In Canadian Prison

MONTREAL (UPI) — A guard fired warning rifle shots and tear gas Saturday to break up a riot in a high-security jail by 200 inmates bent on taking hostages. It was the second prison rampage in Montreal in less than three weeks.

City and Quebec provincial police surrounded the notorious Laval Maximum Security Penitentiary just north of Montreal to prevent escapes, but withdrew when the riot ended at about 3 a.m.

Warden Pierre Viau told a news conference the rampage was started by three newly-arrived prisoners who overturned a billiard table and began smashing furniture and causing other damage late Friday.

Viau said the three men were joined by between 20 and 30 other prisoners and the disturbance spread to the main control area — "The Dome" — which provides access to the prison's 12 cellblocks.

The 109-year-old prison has been the scene of six disturbances in the past six years.

A guard was punched in the face when prisoners tried to take him hostage, but he and five other guards in the Dome area escaped through a back door.

A seventh guard, in a fortified control booth, opened fire with tear gas and fired warning shots from a rifle. The gunfire subdued the mob of prisoners which had swelled to about 200, Viau said.

Tobacco Days Jubilee

Farmville observed a day-long Tobacco Days Jubilee Saturday with a schedule of for-fun activities. Three of the participants in a pipe-smoking contest — Charlie Letchworth, George Moore and Ron Cooper — are shown above as they put the torch to their pipes. Sara Beth Fulford, at right, was queen of the festival. She is a rising junior at Farmville Central High School and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Fulford of Route 2, Farmville.

Mondale Denies 'Running' Quote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Whether or not former Vice President Walter Mondale has decided to run for president was a matter of debate Saturday with Mondale denying he said what a publisher insists he said.

The Keene (N.H.) Sentinel quoted Mondale as saying, "Yes, I'm going to run for the presidency."

The newspaper said Mondale made the remark in a private conversation with its assistant publisher, James Rousmaniere, who stood by his story despite a Mondale denial.

Reached at his northwest Washington home after the report appeared in New Hampshire, Mondale told United Press International his remarks apparently had been "misinterpreted."

"If they got that, they got it wrong," he said. "I always say I'm obviously thinking about it, but it is too soon and I will make a decision in 1983. I'm very careful with those words."

But Rousmanieri said, "The Sentinel stands by the story."

NOTICE

Pursuant to the General Statutes of North Carolina, Section 143-129 sealed bids will be received by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners until 10:00 a.m., E.D.S.T. on Tuesday, September 7, 1982 in the Commissioners' Meeting Room on the second floor of the Pitt County Office Building, 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville, NC 27834, for the furnishing of labor, materials, and equipment necessary to properly fine grade, compact, and place two inches of asphalt pavement on the driveways at the Ayden/Grifton, Winterville and Wellcome Transfer Station Sites in accordance with specifications as setforth for the projects.

Complete plans, specifications will be open for inspection in the office of C.A. Holliday, P.E., County Engineer, and may be obtained upon request, Monday through Friday, 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. by those qualified and proposing to submit a bid.

No proposal will be considered unless it is accompanied by a bid bond, cash deposit, or certified check on some bank or trust company insured by Federal Depository Insurance Corporation in an amount not less than five (5%) percent of the proposal. Bid bonds for the unsuccessful bidders will be returned as soon as bids are awarded or rejected.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners reserves the right to reject any and all proposals, and waive any informalities in bid.

ECU Scholarship Honors Late Mrs. J.B. Spilman

ECU News Bureau

A memorial endowment fund in honor of the late Johnetta Webb Spilman, a long-time state political leader, is being established at East Carolina University by the Pitt County Democratic Women.

Mrs. Spilman, a former vice chairman of the state's Democratic Executive Committee, died July 19 at the age of 93. She had been active in state political circles for more than 50 years and in 1936 was state campaign director for Gov. Clyde R. Hoey.

Officials of the Pitt County Democratic Women presented a check to ECU Chancellor John M. Howell to establish the Mrs. J.B. Spilman Memorial Endowment which will provide a scholarship to be awarded a political science major, preferably a "female, senior student Democrat."

"Mrs. Spilman was not only a good Democrat but an outstanding citizen whose interests spanned a wide range of human concerns," said Ann D. Evans, president of the Pitt County Democratic Women. "She gave unstintingly of her energy, intellect, caring and talent to her fellow citizens.

"We hope her many friends and admirers will view this endowment as a way to honor her memory," Mrs. Evans added.

The executive board of the Pitt County Democratic Women acted to establish the memorial and named a committee chaired by Gladys Howell to funnel contributions to the endowment through the ECU Foundation Inc., which will administer it.

"This came about because so many people mentioned such a memorial as a very fitting way to honor the memory of this great lady who was so well known," said Grace Carroway, vice president of the Pitt County Democratic Women.

Mrs. Spilman was the wife of John Barham Spilman, the first treasurer and business manager of the school which is now East Carolina University and ECU's administration building bears the Spilman name.

Yarbrough Book Receives Award

ECU News Bureau

SAN FRANCISCO — A book about human rights and federal judge Frank Johnson of Alabama by Professor Tinsely E. Yarbrough of East Carolina University has been given the prestigious Silver Gavel award by the American Bar Association.

Presentation of the award was made Aug. 9 at the ABA's annual convention to Malcolm M. MacDonald, director of the University of Alabama Press which published the book. Yarbrough, the author, will receive a plaque.

Fifteen Silver Gavel awards were presented to newspapers, book publishers, magazines and radio and television stations during the 25th annual presentation of ABA's highest award of "outstanding public service in increasing public understanding of the American legal system."

Yarbrough, professor and chairman of the political science department at ECU, is a native of Alabama and a graduate of the University of Alabama.

His book, published in 1981, examines the impact of Judge Johnson's decisions upon racial discrimination in transportation, voter registration, education and other public programs and institutions in Alabama from the 1950s until Johnson's appointment to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in 1979. The book is entitled, "Judge Frank Johnson and Human Rights in Alabama."

Reagan Gambling Tax Hike Will Not Hurt GOP

By EVANS WITT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ronald Reagan is gambling on the election-year tax increase in the same way that the Coca-Cola Co. is taking a chance with a new diet soft drink — he's putting his name on the product and has a lot at stake in its success.

And just as Coca-Cola will use television to publicize its Diet Coke, Reagan will use the broadcast medium in an attempt to gain support for legislation to raise taxes $98.9 billion over three years.

The president will make a pitch for the bill in both a nationally broadcast address Monday night and a $250,000 advertising blitz.

Reagan's aides hope that the combination of public pressure generated by the president's personal appeals, face-to-face meetings with congressmen in the Oval Office and judicious use of campaign leverage will build a solid enough coalition to get the bill to Reagan's desk. Such a combination worked well in the past as much of Reagan's economic program was written into law by Congress.

But this time, it's the conservative Republicans led by Rep. Jack Kemp of New York — not the Democrats — who are the biggest opponents of the bill.

The key to the lobbying campaign is Reagan himself, as Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole of Kansas said Friday:

"Once the people hear the bill presented in a way in which the president can communicate it, I think many would be convinced."

Reagan kicked off the "appeals to the public" phase of the lobbying effort with a speech in Billings, Mont. last week.

Then, he made an unscheduled appearance in the White House briefing room Friday. In time to make the network news shows, Reagan called his bill "80 percent tax reform." And he blasted as "plain hogwash" opponents' claim that the bill is the biggest tax increase in history.

In speeches on the road, Vice President George Bush has been reinforcing the president's message.

Appearing before the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce in Chicago, Bush urged his audience to keep an open mind about the tax bill until the Monday night speech.

"The people are going to back the president and he's going to win this one," Bush said.

The next stage of the public appeals comes Monday with Reagan's speech to the nation from the Oval Office.

That speech will be quickly reinforced by a $250,000 T.V. ad blitz in 100 cities that is set to run Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The ad campaign is funded by the Republican National Committee.

Coca-Cola . . .
It's No Longer Just A Soft Drink

By TOM MADDEN

ATLANTA (UPI) — When the Coca-Cola company went public in 1919, a share of its stock sold for $40. Today that same share of stock is worth $11,000 in what has become one of America's greatest business success stories.

The syrupy liquid that flowed from the Atlanta-based company turned into billions of dollars and fortunes for thousands of investors. Through the years the stock of the conservative Southern firm also has come to mean more than just a holding in a beverage company.

Today, Coke is wine, orange juice, tea, coffee, plastics and food products. Most recently, Coke's business tentacles reached to Hollywood with the well-publicized purchase of Columbia Pictures.

The backdoor operation begun with a secret formula has spread through 145 countries. Few places in the world are without the familiar red Coke signs.

Coke is the same, yet very different from the dream launched by founder John Pemberton in 1886 and fostered by such strong leaders as Asa Candler and Robert Woodruff.

In the midst of its takeover of Columbia earlier this year, Coke felt it was necessary to re-emphasize to its stockholders and the world that the business of making a sweet-tasting drink is still the main business of the Atlanta-based firm.

With an advertising campaign based on the slogan "Coke Is It," the leaders of Coke were carrying that message.

"We said: 'We're going to be going into other industries, so let's get a campaign that re-emphasizes that we're a soft-drink company,'" said Cuban-born Roberto Goizueta, who assumed the leadership of Coke in 1981 and engineered the purchase of Columbia for $700 million.

Coke's sale of the "pleasing, sweet tasting liquid" and its balance sheet that in 1981 showed earnings of $484 million has been the envy of the business world for years.

The purchase of Columbia was a well-designed plan for diversification that began in the 1960s. Goizueta said he couldn't understand the surprise at the purchase of the movie company.

"While it may have been a surprise to the outside world, I will have to say I think the surprise was because a company did what it said it was going to do," said Goizueta in an interview from the company's high-rise headquarters in Atlanta.

"I dare anybody to mention an industry that meshes better with the business of the Coca-Cola company than entertainment," Goizueta said. "We have always been on the fringes (of the entertainment business). We produce a lot of one-minute television programs called commercials. So, we feel very comfortable with this industry."

Goizueta said the purchase of Columbia and other diversification moves are needed to protect Coke against the "windstorms" of depression, inflation and recession.

Coke began its diversifying in the 1960s with the purchase of the Minute Maid Corporation and followed up in 1964 by merging with Duncan Foods Company. In 1969 the firm purchased a processed water firm and in 1977 bought Taylor Wine Company. Later that same year, the company brought Sterling Vinyards and the Monterey Vineyard.

In the 1950s and 1960s the company also moved into the flavored soda field with its line of Fanta drinks and forged into the sugarless drink line with TAB and Fresca.

Earlier this year, Coke sought to capture the lion's share of the sugarless drink market with a new brand called "Diet Coke." With the launching of "Diet Coke" the firm was looking to exploit its well-known trademark.

"The diet market is growing so fast. I think there is room for two entries from the Cola-Cola company," Goizueta said while taking an admiring glance at his new product sitting on his desk.

He said, however, that diversification is not enough.

"By maintaining a strong balance sheet you can withstand the buffeting of poor economic conditions," he said. "That is the one thing the Cola-Cola Company has always maintained — a financial position which allows it to withstand bad economic conditions.

"Look at how many businesses are entering Chapter 11 bankruptcy because they are so highly leveraged. They have borrowed so much money — and all of a sudden they have this tremendous burden of interest payments. Our debt to equity ratio is something like eight, nine percent — compared to other companies which are 50," he said.

Goizueta said Coca-Cola in the 1980s must seek ways to increase its earnings in the United States because of the "vagaries" of the dollar in foreign countries.

"The Columbia acquisition is a perfectly good example. It will bring a very solid earnings base in U.S. dollars to our company. The profits of Columbia are not subject to the vagaries such as profits in Mexico, for example," Goizueta said.

"For example, in February Mexico devalued its currency by 50 percent. So right off the bat, from one day to the next, our profits were cut in half."

Coke currently gets about 63 percent of its earnings from foreign countries. He hopes to get that down to 50 percent.

The Coca-Cola company ranks 56th in net sales among American industrial corporations. The ranking Goizueta feels is more important measures net earnings. There, Coca-Cola stood 39th in 1980.

Coca-Cola is a business legend.

"I'm in favor of legends, and particularly the Coca-Cola legend," says Goizueta. "However, I'm even more in favor of the Coca-Cola ledger which shows growing profits and above-average return to our shareholders."

"No matter what you say, the world has a sweet tooth — Coca-Cola is something that tastes good — it is kind of pleasing."

Goizueta also attributes success to a sharing of the wealth policy.

"We are very careful that the profits are split properly — that we don't take the lion's share of the profits. In my opinion, that is the basic reason why we have been so successful," says the man who answered a help wanted ad in a Havana newspaper for a chemist and climbed through the ranks to the top position at Coke.

It all began, this prototype of the "American dream," when Pemberton perfected the syrup that includes in its ingredients the coca leaf and the kola nut. It's not known if Pemberton meant the new drink as a tonic or a medicine, but on May 8, 1886, the first drink was bought in Atlanta. The company was off and running.

Weight Loss Center Uses Space Age Technology

By GENE BRISLIN
Women's Page Writer

Ever feel you're a natural born loser — at everything but the avoirdupois department? Have you tried and failed to shed weight on every kind of diet from Atkins to Stillman? Do you keep promising yourself that with winter over, you're determined to be in good shape by summer?

Then perhaps you should enroll at the Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Centers. The nation's largest network of medically supervised weight control centers, its concept applies space age technology to nutrition and the problems of overweight.

The center utilizes Nutri System 2000, a dietary program that keeps the taste in foods, but takes the calories out; removes hunger, increases energy levels, and eliminates food decisions by the dieter. The diet allows three meals of food that is pre-measured and prepacked.

Preparation of a hot entree is minimal — just open a can, heat it up, and in about 15 minutes you can sit down to breakfast, lunch, or dinner. The selections vary so you aren't bored by eating the same dull foods until unwanted fat fades into oblivion. But the big advantage is the fast results, with the average dieter losing a pound a day — rather than a pound a week.

Take Wayne Novitch for instance. He weighed more than 300 pounds and wore a size 54 extra long suit when be began the program. Sixty-four (64) days later — when he appeared at the Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Center for his weekly checkup, he weighed 62 pounds lighter, and his waistline had been nipped from 54 :" to 41"

"But I expect to lose another 40 pounds," said the 6-foot-four enthusiastic dieter in an interview.

Medical supervision is a big plus for clients. A personal diagnosis is part of the program which includes a thorough analysis and discussion to determine what may be causing the weight problem. Registered nurses employed by the center monitor progress, formulate diets and prescribe vitamin and mineral supplements — but at no time are amphetamines used.

Asked what inspired him to turn to the center, Mr. Novitch revealed that he became weary of trying to find clothes to fit.

"When I'd go into a store, the salesman would take one look at me and wave me away," he said. "I have experimented with various diets, but after a few days on the pills I was climbing the walls, and if I managed to lose a few pounds I seemed to immediately gain them back," continued the well spoken young man. "Finally my family physician suggested I explore this regimen."

Novitch admitted that while the Nutri/System 2000 menus sound like something from "Star Wars," the food looks, tastes and smells like that which earthlings have been eating for aeons, and that the celestial names belie its terrestrial origins.

WAYNE NOVITCH, who shed 62 pounds of excess weight in 64 days at Nutri/System Weight Loss Medical Centers shows Beth Biblin, receptionist, the size 54 pants which he wore before enrolling in the program.

THE CENTER bases its concept on Nutri/System 2000, a dietary program that keeps taste in foods, but takes out calories; removes hunger, increases energy levels and eliminates food decisions by the dieter. Here Romanye Bracé, left, and Irene Slavinski, two happy losers, enjoy meatballs and chicken cacciatore for lunch. The diet allows three meals a day of premeasured, prepacked foods. Photos by A.J. Sandone.

For breakfast there are Nebula Nectar, a fruit-drink; Eggs Apollo, in omelette form; Nutri Flakes, a natural cereal and decaffeinated coffee or tea. Lunch can be a variety of delicious tasting non-fattening beef or chicken Solar Soups totaling 60 calories per serving and an eight-ounce Milkyway (in chocolate and vanilla flavor) that tastes like a milkshake but has less than one-third the number of normal calories.

Dinners, with such names as Chicken Constellation in Savory Sauce, Seafood Aurora, with Galaxy Dressing or Veal Venusian in Cabbage Leaf (with Jupiter Fruitreat for dessert) are all under 200 calories. A salad, for roughage, is also required daily, consisting of lettuce, raw spinach, celery, cucumbers or raw mushrooms with dressing. Beverages include diet soda, other than colas which contain caffeine that stimulates the appetite.

The comprehensive dietary program was designed by highly qualified nutritionists, biochemists, physicians and food technologists in order to provide high nutritional valued food which completely meets and often surpasses the U.S. Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances.

The daily menus, when properly followed create a loss of appetite.

Novitch disclosed he experiences no hunger pains in this type of dieting, has lost his sluggishness, and has no feeling of weakness associated with other diet methods.

How did Novitch accumulate his excess poundage? That he attributes to having been reared in a home where "we didn't throw anything out when a meal was completed." Still, he admits, the others in the family didn't develop a weight problem. "Perhaps it was because I ate in spurts. Some weeks — when I felt that urge — I'd wolf down everything in sight," he explained.

The change in Novitch's appearance has given him a great upsight of spirit. "People weren't aware, when I was all bundled up in heavy clothes during the winter months that I was losing," he said, "and now when they see me in a spring suit they're shocked at the transformation."

According to Dr. Jay Satz, director of research development for Nutri/System Weight Loss Medical Centers, behavior education therapy to track down and eliminate bad eating habits is an important phase of the operation. Patients have weekly sessions with a trained behavior education counselor and are weighed and measured by a registered nurse two or three times each week.

Since getting rid of weight is always easier than keeping it off, a maintenance program is essential in helping the patient re-enter the "outside world" and continue self-discipline without the built in constraints of Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Centers.

After a client attains a goal in terms of pounds lost, the individual is put on a program during which foods outside the Nutri/System 2000 regimen are introduced, starting with high protein foods and ending with items containing carbohydrates.

Checks are made each week to discover what items in the conventional repertory of foods the patient can eat in moderation and still maintain weight loss, and those which he or she should avoid indefinitely. After "graduating" from the program, frequent follow-ups are made by the center for a period of up to three months as patients continue to be introduced to regular foods. Aspects of the behavior education program also extend into this rehabilitation period.

As the more than 100,000 patients enrolled at Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Centers will attest, the multi-discipline therapy offered accomplishes what most other diet programs fail to do. It gives fast results, it's simple to follow, safe, hunger free, and even boosts energy among most clients.

NOTE: There is a Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Center in your area at 210 Arlington Blvd. in Greenville. To arrange a free no-obligation consultation about your individual weight problem, phone 355-2470.

Panel Says N.C. Students Aren't Taught To Write

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina students shouldn't be required to pass a writing test to get a high school diploma next year because most aren't being taught how to write, say members of the state's competency test commission.

The 15-member commission recommended Friday that the writing test be added to the state's minimum competency test, a reading and math exam which all N.C. students must pass to get a high school diploma, only if state officials agree to strengthen writing instruction.

The new test could be added no sooner than the 1983-84 school year.

"The majority of students have never been taught to write — how to take an idea, put it on paper and express themselves clearly to others," said Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools Superintendent Jay Robinson, a commission member.

"Unless you're willing to teach them writing, I'm not willing to stick a competency test between them and a diploma," he said.

Commission Chairman Jim Hemby, provost of Atlantic Christian College in Wilson, said the commission will consider a two-part testing plan next month. He said the package includes the writing exam as well as requirements for teacher certification, staff development, diagnostic testing and remedial education.

Hemby said he doesn't know how much it would cost to implement the plan.

When the commission develops a program, it will go to Gov. Jim Hunt and the state Board of Education for approval. The General Assembly then would consider appropriating money.

The proposed writing test would require students to write a paragraph that takes a position and logically supports it, and to write a telephone message that gives details of the caller's message.

Punctuation, capitalization and misspellings would not be considered in grading the writing samples, which would be marked by two teachers. If the teachers disagreed on whether the writing passed or failed, a third teacher would be called in.

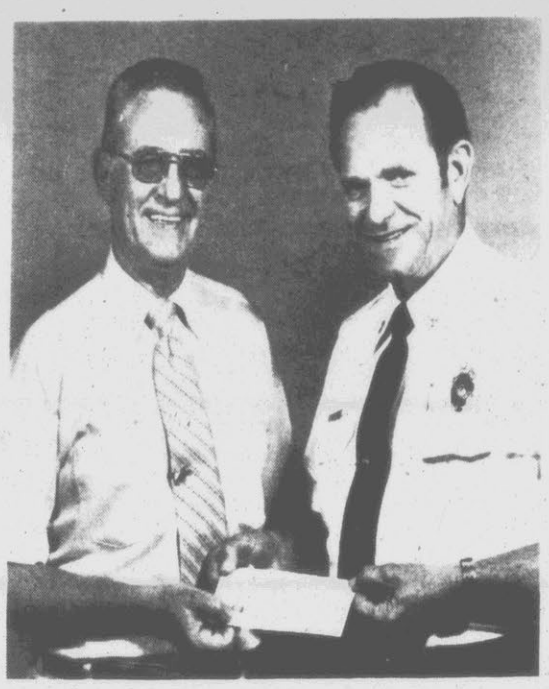
Testing officials have estimated that the writing exam would cost about $300,000 to administer, compared to $110,000 for the objective, machine-graded reading and math tests.

In a field test of about 1,000 N.C. students in May, some 14 percent failed the writing exam.

Hunt told the testing commission in June that he wanted a writing section added to the state's competency test but some members of the panel were worried about the subjective nature of the writing test and about students' lack of writing instruction.

In addition to the writing samples, commission members are considering an 88-question, multiple-choice test on punctuation and other writing mechanics.

Inmates Cut Hyde Jailer



RECEIVES DONATION — Fire-Rescue Chief Jenness Allen, right, accepts a $1,000 donation on behalf of his department from Jim Hecker, plant manager at Empire Brushes. Each year the Empire Brushes employees donate to a good neighbor fund which is distributed to various organizations to show appreciation for services to the employees and the general public. Allen said all donations received by the department are placed in a fund that is used to purchase equipment. (Reflector Staff Photo)

SWAN QUARTER, N.C. (AP) — Authorities say three Hyde County Jail inmates obtained a knife and slashed the throat of a jailer to escape Friday night and elude deputies until being recaptured early Saturday.

A spokesman for the Hyde County Sheriff's Department identified the men as Donald Gene Wallace, 17, of Virginia Beach, Va.; Ronald Crisp Wagoner, 20, of Pennsylvania; and Joseph Allen Messer, age and address not known.

The jailer, George Farrow, was unconscious and in critical condition Saturday at Pungo District Hospital in Belhaven.

The sheriff's spokesman said Messer apparently obtained a knife from his wife, Doreen, to help two of the men escape on foot while the third took a car belonging to a Swan Quarter couple.

Messer and his wife were stopped in their car about 30 minutes after the 11:15 p.m. escape, the spokesman said. About 3 a.m., deputies recaptured Wallace in the stolen vehicle and at 3:30 a.m., Wagoner was found walking, the spokesman said.

Mrs. Messer has been charged with passing a weapon to a prison inmate and aiding and abetting, said Robert Johnson, assistant district attorney. Messer is charged with escape, using a deadly weapon and inflicting serious bodily injury, Johnson said.

He said charges against the other men may be filed after further investigation.

Messer was being held in for Hyde County for extradition to Florida and the other men were being held for Dare County officials, Johnson said.

Adopt-A-Pet

The Adopt-a-Pet of the Week is a 3-month-old female full-blooded Dalmatian puppy that has had all shots. Needs very special adoptive family because she is deaf. 758-6333 after Sunday.

Also being sought homes by the Pitt County Humane Society are the following:

•Four long-haired kittens that are litter-trained and wormed, 752-4599.

•A smoky gray female cat and six kittens — smoky gray, gray tabby and orange tabby. 758-4423 or 757-7347.

•An 8-week-old female collie-golden retriever combination. All shots. Dewormed. Dog house included. 758-2291.

•Five 6-week-old puppies whose father is white German shepherd; mother, Labrador retriever — a black female, a brown male, a brown and black male, and two white males. Dewormed. 756-7211.

•Six 4-week-old puppies that are German shepherd-Labrador retriever — three black, three brown. Would like to place in two weeks. 756-5864.

•Lost in Quail Ridge Mobile Home Park area — two short-haired black puppies that look like miniature Labrador retrievers. 758-4893.

•A 2-year-old white German shepherd that needs a large yard or home in the country. Friendly. 746-5641 or 757-6034.

•Lost Friday somewhere between Bath and Greenville, a brown female pekingnese with incision apparent on abdomen. 758-3506 or 923-6601 collect.

•Six 6-week-old kittens and four 2-month-old kittens — all colors. 735-6092.

Public Staff Says Utility Costs High

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Duke Power Co. bought coal from its mines last year for $29.7 million more than the utility would have paid a long-term supplier, says a report by the Public Staff of the state Utilities Commission.

The report, filed last week as testimony in Duke's request for a 12 percent rate increase, follows the recent announcement that Duke is considering selling the 10-year-old mines in Virginia and Kentucky and the 186 million tons of coal underground.

The Public Staff report also said the quality of Duke's coal was inferior to that of its suppliers and charged that unless Duke can show the costs from its Eastover Mining Co. are reasonable, customers shouldn't have to pay the excess charges in their electric bills.

Duke spokesman Alex Coffin defended the Eastover purchases.

"We're just not aware of any utility buying coal any cheaper on the average," he said. "...There's no doubt there are advantages to having our own mines."

While Eastover coal cost $29.7 million more, he noted that Duke wasn't allowed to recover $50 million in fuel expenses in 1981.

The Eastover mines produced 12 percent of Duke's coal last year and utility officials say the mines provided a hedge against shortages and price increases because the supply is assured.

Based on figures from the report and company documents, Duke's overall coal expenses would have been 4 percent less if the Eastover coal had cost the same as the average price paid to long-term suppliers.

William Carter, assistant director of accounting who prepared the Public Staff report, said Duke has the burden of demonstrating at hearings next month that Eastover prices, which averaged 40 percent above those charged by long-term suppliers, were reasonable.

Bids Asked On Soul City

WARRENTON, N.C. (UPI) — The federal government will open bids this week for the purchase of land in Soul City, a defunct planned development in Warren County.

The deadline for submitting bids is Monday and the bids will be opened Tuesday afternoon, said Al Deihl, director of the New Communities Development Corp., a division of the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Officials hope to close the sales 30 after the bids are received.

Charles Gast, a project director with HUD, said no bids for the Soul City tracts have been received yet, but they usually come in at the last minute.

If none are received, "then we go to Plan B, which hasn't been developed yet," he said.

Soul City was started in 1974 by Floyd B. McKissick, a former civil rights leader, as a planned community.

The project received $29 million in federal grants and loan guarantees before HUD dropped its support in 1978.

Critics have called the project a failure, but McKissick has said it did not have enough time to be developed.

HUD foreclosed on the property and made plans to sell the property in tracts for commercial, residential and industrial use.

About 180 Soul City residents own their property. A health clinic and private school are also located there.

Jury Backs Workers In Asbestos Damage Suit

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A U.S. District Court jury Saturday sided with four former Newport News shipyard workers in an $8-million asbestos damage suit against six asbestos manufacturers.

The jury awarded James T. Oman, 64, $180,000; Fred Walker, 53, $265,000; Willie A. Gibbons, 52, $285,000; and Hugh V. Reynolds, 70, $214,000.

The case could affect 350 other asbestos suits now awaiting trial in various courts.

In North Carolina's first asbestos trial, former shipbuilder Lewis W. Whitehead, 69, of Windsor settled out of court with asbestos manufacturers Johns-Manville Corp. and Raybestos Manhattan Inc. He worked in a Norfolk, Va., shipyard during the 1940s.

The four Virginia plaintiffs are retired pipe coverers at Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. who contended that they contracted asbestosis, a progressive lung disease, after exposure to asbestos dust while working at the shipyard.

The plaintiffs contended the asbestos producers knew or should have known the products were hazardous and should have warned the workers.

The defendants in the case were Johns Manville Corp., Raybestos Manhattan Inc., H. K. Porter Co., Pittsburgh Corning Corp., Southern Textile Corp. and Eagle-Picher Industries Co.

Judge J. Calvitt Clarke Jr. will have to rule whether the awards will be reduced because the jury determined that the defendants contributed to their illnesses.

Medical experts for the defense had testified that the men suffered lung impairment caused by cigarette smoking. They said only Gibbons suffers from asbestosis, and his is a mild case.

But Dr. Garrit Schepers, an authority on lung diseases, said two of the defendants have developed benign tumors that could become cancerous. He also said it was likely that all four men would develop lung cancer within three to 10 years.

The case was being heard for a second time.

In 1979, a jury here awarded the men $435,000 each, but the awards were overturned by Clarke, who said the plantiffs had not proved what damages were caused during what time periods.

The time period restriction in the earlier case was set by state law, which imposes a statute of limitations on seeking damages. The retrial was heard under federal admiralty law, which has no statute of limitations.

American Youth Aborts Channel Swimming Try

DOVER, England (UPI) — An 11-year-old Colorado boy plunged into the English Channel Saturday in a bid to become become the youngest person ever to swim across it, but he was forced to quit just six miles short of France.

Jason Pipoly of Denver was hauled out of the water eight hours and 40 minutes after setting off from Dover's Shakespeare beach.

"It was hard luck on him, he was very close," a coast guard official said. Pipoly was evidenty struggling toward the end of his attempt and covered only about 2 miles in the last two hours. The crossing is 21 miles.

His marathon was a "pretty marvelous effort so far," the coast guard official said earlier. "I hope he makes it."

The seas were calm and winds light when Pipoly set off. Forecasts predicted freshening winds of between force four to six blowing up towards evening. But the weather appeared to be still favorable when the boy abandoned his attempt.

The coast guard was able to keep track of Pipoly's progress by following the escort vessel, a fishing boat equipped with radar, which was sailing alongside.

Audrey Scott, secretary of the Channel Swimming Association, said the current record holder as the youngest channel swimmer is Marcus Hooper of Kent, England, who crossed in August 1979 at the age of 12 years 53 days. He made the crossing in 14 hours, 37 minutes.

Pipoly had been waiting since Wednesday to make the attempt and follow in the wake of his father Carl Pipoly, 34, a Denver lawyer who swam the same 21-mile route from Dover to Cap Griz Nez near Calais last summer.

Princess Anne Turns 32 Today

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, turns 32 Sunday with the British press debating whether she's an adoring wife and mother or a rude and jealous woman whose marriage is in trouble.

During the past few months, Fleet Street's tabloids have been running hot and cold on Anne, whose sharp tongue has made her one of Britain's most controversial royals.

Along with her divorced and equally controversial aunt, Princess Margaret, 51, Anne regularly finishes at the bottom of royal popularity polls.

Rumors of trouble in Anne's 9-year marriage to Capt. Mark Phillips, 34, surfaced last September and have been fueled by her solo travels during the past year to Nepal, West Germany, the United States and Canada.

Veterans Report; ECU To Begin Practice Tuesday

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina's veterans reported in yesterday, and practice sessions for the 1982 campaign will get underway Tuesday at 6:30 a.m. as the Bucs try to put together a winning season for the first time in three years.

Freshmen and other rookie candidates for the team have been on campus for several days now, getting in their orientation practice sessions, and this year, in the face of increasing lobbying for new academic standards for athletes, the Pirate staff is trying to get something done about the constant worry of academic failures.

"Our freshmen have been getting an academic workout so far," Coach Ed Emory, starting his third year, said. The Pirates have come out with an academic playbook and each player — veteran and rookie — receives one. The book describes what is expected of them academically, the help the university provides for them, and other helpful information in keeping their progress toward graduation on an even keel.

"We're going to have study sessions, testing, and so on. We're going to get them off to a good start. We've found that most of our problems occur because some kids will dig themselves into a hole to start with," Emory said. "I feel like if we get the kids off to a good start and can know early if they have problems, we'll be better off."

One thing that will be done is the study sessions. These will go on during the day when student-athletes are not in classes. "If they've got a break say from 10 to 12, they go to the study session. They don't goof off in the soda shop, or go back to their rooms and sleep and maybe sleep through their next class. They get their work — for the most part — out of the way before they come to practice. That way, they don't go back to a study hall after practice too hyper after a good practice, or too down after a bad one to study. Of course, the help will be there for them after practice, but there will be no required study hall."

Under this plan, each student will have at least ten hours a week in the study session with tutors available where needed.

"I'd say that we've already spent about seven or so hours letting these kids know what is expected of them academically. We want them to make good students as well as good athletes."

But there's also been some time for football, too, during these first three days, and several players have shown their talents well.

Emory singled out receiver Chris McLawhorn, running backs Tony Baker and Dwight Richardson, quarterbacks John Williams and Brian Herndon, lineman Shawn Brady and tight end, Richie Autry on offense.

Defensively, he's been pleased with Kevin Banks at linebacker, Randy Watts and William Jennette in the line, Bruce Shomaker at end, and Kenneth Brown and Marcus Somerville in the backfield.

Placekicker Jeff Heath has also performed well.

"What we want to do when practice starts (Tuesday) is to take up where we left off in the spring," Emory said. "We have to put in more of our offense (the Pirates switched from the wishbone to the I during the spring), and add the shotgun. We want to go forward with our new offensive philosophy."

Emory said that the Pirates need to add depth at tackle, to bring wide receiver Ricky Nichols, who played baseball in the spring, back into the offensive scheme of things, and to add depth behind him.

"Earnest Byner is a proven fullback, but we need to find some backup help for him, someone to push him. We also need some depth at tailback."

Emory said that he's excited about the receivers and tight ends, although one tight end, Thad Smith, may not make it through physically. "He's had high blood pressure problems and it's possible he might not be able to play."

Surprisingly, however, Chris Duran, who missed last year after being diagnosed as having bone cancer, could return to the team this year. "They told him at first he had only six months to live, but by some miracle, he's gone into remission and he's back and working out and has a chance to make it," Emory said.

Defensively, the Pirates will be looking for depth at tackle, "especially with Steve Johnson gone." Johnson left the team for personal reasons.

"We're also looking for a proven nose guard who can stay healthy," the coach said.

One problem that worries Emory is the health of star linebacker Mike Grant. "He had surgery on his knee in June, and it'll be close if he makes it. He's one of our leaders and one of our better players, so not having him could hurt. We're looking for depth at linebacker and not having him could really weaken this position."

The Pirates start three days of conditioning drills — without pads — on Tuesday. They'll go four-time-a-day during those drills at 6:30 and 11 a.m. and 3:30 and 8 p.m. in short sessions.

East Carolina opens the season on September 11 at N.C. State.

Scrimmage Pleases Vincent

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants went through their first major scrimmage Friday afternoon, and left Coach Ronald Vincent generally pleased.

"We're making a lot of progress on our timing," Vincent said afterwards. "We're getting our offense down pretty good and the defense is coming along day by day."

Vincent, in the head coaching position for the second year — his first as full-time head coach after a year as interim head, feels that the Rampants are far ahead of their pace last year. Last season, of course, the Rampants switched from the wishbone and installed the I offense.

"This year, they know the offense much better, so we've off to a faster start. We've been able to do more earlier and put more of the offense in," he said.

The play of Edward Frazier at wide receiver has been one reason Vincent is pleased with the receiving crew. "We've made great progress at receiver. Frazier is catching the ball quite well, and that helps to set up the other receivers. He's going to be a very good deep threat with his speed."

Currently three quarterbacks are vieing for the head coaching job. They include Kenny Kirkland, Bobby Buie and Todd Martin. Kirkland, who saw both varsity and junior varsity action last year, appears to be in the lead.

Buie, brother of last year's sometime starting quarterback Tom Buie, was the team manager last year, but is seeking a job as a player this year. "He ran the scout team last year at times and did a good job of it," Vincent said. Martin is also up from the junior varsity squad where he saw some starting duties.

Pitt Schools Nearing Openers

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

Ayden-Grifton braved uncharted depths last year when the Chargers advanced to the Eastern 3-A State Championship, and coach Dixon Sauls hopes the experience will help his team in 1982.

"We feel the playoff experience helped in that the players know if they work hard there are rewards," Sauls said. "They enjoyed the playoff experience and we'd like to repeat it.

"It is certainly something to shoot for," Sauls continued. "We're not just shooting for something we haven't experienced before."

The Chargers, who lost to eventual state champ Burlington Williams, 39-6, in the eastern finals last year, are one of four county teams — the others being North Pitt, Farmville Central and D.H. Conley — which are near the end of the second week of preseason football drills.

All but Ayden-Grifton have reached the midpoint of preseason practice. In two weeks, North Pitt, Farmville and Conley open their 1982 season. Ayden-Grifton opens its season one week later.

For now, however, it is a time of optimism for the coaches. No one has lost because no one has played — yet. It is also a time for evaluation, a time when coaches watch for the tell-tale signs of a winner — and a loser.

"The main thing we've accomplished is an attempt to evaluate our personnel," Sauls said, "and get them in the most advantageous position for our team. We have accomplished that to some degree.

"We're trying to evaluate where there skills best can help the team," Sauls added, "and where they have an opportunity to play."

Sauls is making a number of changes this season — a result of having lost his entire backfield and the heart of his offensive and defensive line. No changes are more apparent than at quarterback.

Joey Kennedy, an offensive end and defensive back a year ago, and Doug Coley, an offensive and defensive end last year, are vying at quarterback. Meanwhile, Jarvis Koonce has moved from end to fullback.

"I think they can handle (the changes)," Sauls said. "Right now, if there are any question marks on this team it is at receiver and defensive line. We won't have a lot of depth but we'll have a little more speed in the backfield but not quite as much on defense."

Sauls said about 35 players are working out as the Chargers look toward their Aug. 26 scrimmage at Camp Lejeune. Ayden-Grifton opens its 1982 season against Roanoke on Sept. 3.

D.H. Conley

D.H. Conley began year No. 2 of a three-year plan set out by DHC Coach Gerald Garner with its biggest turnout ever.

"We're real pleased with the numbers," Garner said.

After having 31 players show up for opening day practice a year ago, Garner was all smiles when around 70 (junior varsity and varsity) turned up to open practice this season.

"We got up as high as 92," said Garner, who enters his second year at DHC after

BASEBALL MEETINGS

Re-Election Of Kuhn, Restructuring Of Hierarchy Head Agenda

NEW YORK (AP) — This week's summer meetings could prove a "turning point for major league baseball," and a straw poll of owners shows that Commissioner Bowie Kuhn may not make the corner.

There is no way to underestimate "how important these meetings my be to the game," Texaas Rngers owner Eddie Chiles said.

"Baseball has an opportunity to determine its future with a restructuring plan that would help the sport find a place in the second half of the 20th Century," Chiles said.

The re-election of Kuhn and a status report on restructuring of the game's hierarchy are two of the issues on the agenda when owners convene their annual summer meeting this Wednesday in San Diego.

Three National League teams — the New York Mets, St. Louis Cardinals and Houston Astros — called on their league's owners to meet one day earlier to discuss the possible ouster of Kuhn, who needs a three-quarters majority from each league to be re-elected.

Four dissenting votes in the National League or five in the American would block Kuhn's bid for a third term as commissioner. Kuhn's second seven-year term expires on Aug. 1, 1983, but he must be notified of his status at least six months in advance.

One of three teams — Chicago, Atlanta or Cincinnati — is expected to give the NL enough muscle to oust Kuhn.

There appeared to be little stiff opposition, however, in the American League, which, ironically, led the drive for his ouster in 1975 when Kuhn came up for re-election the first time.

"You've got to remember, there's a difference in the American League," Cleveland Indians President Gabe Paul said when contacted by telephone. "The difference is that the National League (with 12 teams) needs only the four votes, whereas with 14 teams, we would need five. I think the climate is generally favorable in the American League."

While Chiles said he was uncommitted on how to vote, Paul said the Indians "position has been that we're satisfied with the commissioner."

Of the other American League teams responding to the poll, Boston, Detroit, Kansas City, Chicago and Minnesota generally favored the retention of Kuhn. Seattle Mariners President Dan O'Brien said he felt Kuhn had done "a very good job under difficult circumstances," but he was not sure how principal owner George Argyros would vote.

Owner George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees has vascillated, but his most recent comments have supported Kuhn.

Executives from Milwaukee, Baltimore, Toronto, California and Oakland were either unavailable for comment or declined to respond to the poll.

In the National League, the Cubs and Reds said they remained uncommitted, while Braves owner Ted Turner said he was not yet ready to disclose his decision. The Reds have been a strong anti-Kuhn force in the National League in past years, and part-owner William Williams is a good bet to supply a fourth vote against Kuhn.

The National League clubs expected to vote for retention of Kuhn were Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and San Diego. The AP was unable to contact executives from Montreal or San Francisco.

Two of Kuhn's staunchest supporters in this latest "Bump Bowie" campaign have been Ballard Smith of San Diego and Peter O'Malley of Los Angeles. Both have been involved in telephone lobbying in favor of the commissioner.

O'Malley, president of the Dodgers, is a longtime Kuhn supporter and son of the late Walter O'Malley, former Dodgers owner who helped save Kuhn's job in 1975, while Smith is a recent convert to the Kuhn camp.

Smith, who acts as owner Ray Kroc's spokesman for San Diego, said he thought Kuhn "has done a good job under very difficult circumstances. By difficult circumstances, I mean that he's asked to lead an industry where the two league presidents don't report to him, the players' relations office doesn't report to him and the promotion office doesn't report to him."

"He's got 26 owners, some of whom both publicly and privately, stab him in the back. I would suggest under those circumstances he has an impossible job," Smith said.

"He's accomplished positive things since he became commissioner and he'd be the best person to try and continue to lead the industry," Smith said.

This year, Kuhn's fate has been inextricably interwoven with the fate of restructuring. Major league owners met

College Coaching Played To Tune Of Six Figures

CHARLOTTE (UPI) — Big-time college coaching is a game played in the six-figure salary range, a UPI survey shows. But, getting there and staying there has its price and requires a variety of talents far beyond athletics.

Base salaries, the easiest figures to obtain, run in the $45,000 to $75,000 range for football and basketball coaches in the Southeast and Atlantic Coast Conferences.

Perquisites ranging from the clothes on their backs to lucrative television contracts are based on estimates, but the pattern that emerged was a figure double the base pay or more for many at the big state-supported universities.

"You're not too far off," said Maryland Athletic Director Dick Dull. "It might be a little high in a few cases, but with the coaches who have TV and radio shows, free cars, summer camps and get paid for public speaking it's going to be pretty close to that. It's going to more than match their base."

In at least one case, the estimate is far too low.

While Bear Bryant has been good for Alabama football, Alabama football has been good for Bear. Associates estimated his income at $1 million a year. Bryant, who refused to discuss it, said he doesn't even know.

University salary records show Bryant is paid a base salary of $100,000. On television, he hawks Ford trucks nationally and regionally extols the virtues of South Central Bell Telephone Co. where he is depicted encouraging players to call home.

"Have you called your momma today? I sure wish I could call mine," Bryant says. Filming the first two in 3½ hours, he was paid $52,000, a source said.

His business interests have included ownership of car dealerships, and he has a "super contract," a friend said, with Coca-Cola and Golden Flake potato chips, the sponsors of his television show.

His souvenir products are marketed through Golden Eagle Enterprises, headed by former Tennessee Coach Bill Battle, which sells six-foot stuffed bears for $2,500 each, and a 12-inch model for $15.

He has a deal with Muscle Shoals, Ala., businessman Charlie Rayburn selling houndstooth-upholstered vans bearing Bryant's signature for $19,000. Rayburn said "several" of the 315-van fleet have been sold, adding, "We feel like it's going to be a big thing this football season."

His celebrity status allows him to command five figures for speaking engagements, although he devotes a lot of his public time to charitable causes.

In some cases, base salaries are available from public universities, or have been reported at the time of hiring.

Among the basketball coaches, Virginia's Terry Holland gets $63,000, North Carolina's Dean Smith, Maryland's Lefty Driesell and South Carolina's Bill Foster $60,000, Georgia's Hugh Durham $53,000, Tennessee's Don Devoe $50,000 and North Carolina State's Jim Valvano $47,000.

In football, the University of Miami's Howard Schnellenberger ranks high with a base of $75,000, while Florida State's Bobby Bowden and Florida's Charley Pell come in at $69,000. Georgia's Vince Dooley is reportedly paid a $60,000 base, as is North Carolina's Dick Crum, while Tennessee's Johnny Majors gets $55,000 and Georgia Tech's Bill Curry $45,000.

The base salaries in no way reflect the real worth of the job, however.

Valvano, 33, is a good example. He has lucrative television and radio shows reportedly worth another $60,000, a successful basketball camp, an athletic shoe endorsement and commercials and charges a minimum of $500 to speak. All this, estimated an associate, makes the job worth about $150,000, not counting returns from prior investments for the young New Yorker who reportedly had a good deal at Iona.

In addition to his base, Schnellenberger gets another $75,000 for television and radio. He does commercials for a Buick dealership which keeps him supplied with a car, and a tire dealer. He's provided with a new outfit for each of his 12 Sunday television highlight shows, helps promote a bowling alley and serves in a working position on the board of directors at First City Bank.

And so it goes — most of it with strict confidentiality. The NCAA only requires coaches to notify their athletic departments about outside business interests. After being fired in 1979 with two years on his contract, Georgia Tech Coach Pepper Rodgers sued the school for $331,030 when officials refused to compensate him for perquisites such as season tickets, country club memberships, cars, a football camp and television and radio shows.

Asked if a $120,000 to $200,000 was a good range for the income of major college coaches, Clemson's Danny Ford said: "You'll find a lot of people in there somewhere."

Ford, who received a new Jaguar for winning the Gator Bowl in his first head coaching job, said he gets $22,000 for post-game television shows, has a shoe contract, a radio show, charges for some of his speaking and is supplied with a new Oldsmobile every few months.

"They're paying me enough to make a living, and so I don't worry about it," said Ford, 33, who coached the Tigers to the national championship last year. But

Goalby, Wall Tied For Lead C of G Seniors

DENVER (AP) — Bob Goalby and Art Wall, taking advantage of Arnold Palmer's misfortunes on the back nine, moved into a tie for the third-round lead in the $150,000 Denver Post Champions of Golf seniors tournament Saturday.

On a day when only five golfers bettered par, Goalby had a steady 1-under-par 69, while Wall came home in 1-over 71. Both players had three-round totals of 5-under 205.

One stroke behind was Gene Littler, who moved into contention with a 68.

Two strokes off the pace were George Bayer, Miller Barber and Gay Brewer. Bayer and Barber both shot 70s Saturday, while Brewer, who had shared the second-round lead with Wall, struggled home with a 73.

Palmer, who at one point held a 2-shot lead after turning the front nine in 2-under 33, bogeyed five holes on the back side for a 73 and a 208 total. Jack Fleck also was at that figure after a 72.

"I don't feel I deserve to be in here," Goalby said after arriving in the press interview room. "But the other guys didn't seem to be doing anything. I'm surprised to be leading. I thought when Arnie got 7-under that he'd finish 7-or 8-under without really doing anything else."

Goalby, a 53-year-old former Masters champion who has now had rounds of 70-66-69, said his third round "could have been quite a bit better," noting he missed birdie putts on the last five holes.

Wall, 58, said he made only two mistakes, missing greens at the second and 13th holes and taking bogeys on both. His lone birdie — and also his only one-putt green, — came on the par-5 16th hole when he recovered from a bunker and made a 10-foot putt.

"My putting let me down today," Wall said. "I had a solid round in many respects. I'd like to play this well on Sunday — but play a little better on the greens."

Littler struggled down the stretch. "Why isn't anybody playing any good today?" he asked. "The course is the same. I don't know why we're not scoring. Maybe we're choking."

Littler, 52, said his game has steadily improved since last week but he continued to have problems on the greens. "I had a bunch of 12-to-20-foot putts for birdie, and I only made one," he said.

Palmer was so upset with his finish that he immediately took to the practice tee, but said he didn't find a cure.

Oakland Bombs Angels, 10-1

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Dwayne Murphy drove in three runs and scored four times and Tony Armas also knocked in three runs as the Oakland A's whipped the California Angels 10-1 Saturday.

The Angels' lead over second-place Kansas City in the AL West dipped to one-half game. The Royals beat Detroit 1-0 earlier in the day.

Murphy homered off Steve Renko, 10-4, following a one-out, fifth-inning walk to Rickey Henderson and Henderson's 108th stolen base. Henderson, who later in the game broke an 0-for-27 slump with a single, is now just 10 steals from Lou Brock's major-league mark of 118.

Matt Keough and Tom Underwood combined to check the Angels on nine hits. Keough, 10-15, pitched 62-3 innings before leaving with a sore right shoulder. Underwood earned his fifth save by shutting out California over the final 21-3 innings.

The A's took a 1-0 lead in the first inning when Murphy doubled, went to thirs batted around in the seventh off relievers Andy Hassler and Bruce Kison, scoring four times to break the game open. Murphy and Dan Meyer hit RBI singles and Davey Lopes had an RBI double during the seventh-inning rally.

Armas singled home the A's final two runs in the eighth.

DETROIT (AP) — Reliever Dave Tobik's bases-loaded walk to Greg Pryor in the ninth inning forced in the game's only run as the Kansas City Royals beat the Detroit Tigers 1-0 Saturday.

Dan Petry, 12-7, held Kansas City to five hits and struck out the first two hitters in the ninth, but Steve Hammond singled and after Petry threw 10 straight balls in pitching to Frank White, John Wathan and Pryor, Tobik relieved him.

Tobik went to a 3-2 count before issuing an outside pitch that forced in the deciding run.

The win went to Larry Gura, 14-8, who yielded just seven hits, walked two, and struck out five in throwing his seventh complete game and third shutout of the season.

The Tigers had threatened in the sixth when Glenn Wilson singled and moved to third on Lance Parrish's one-out hit-and-run single. But John Wockenfuss popped out, and Gura grabbed Enos Cabell's one-hop shot back to the mound to end the threat.

Baltimore 5
Boston 2

BOSTON (AP) — Joe Nolan's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the top of the 10th inning drove in Eddie Murray with the go-ahead run and Rich Dauer followed with a two-run single as Baltimore defeated the Boston Red Sox 5-2 Saturday, snapping the Orioles' four-game losing streak.

Reliever Mark Clear, 9-5, had pitched hitless ball for 32-3 innings before Murray led off the 10th with a single. John Lowenstein then bunted the ball back to Clear in a sacrifice attempt, but Clear, trying for a forceout at second, threw the ball into center field for an error as the runners advanced to second and third.

After Cal Ripken struck out, Jim Dwyer was walked intentionally to load the bases. Nolan then lifted his sacrifice fly to right fielder Dwight Evans, and Dauer followed with his single off the left-field wall to make it 5-2.

Tippy Martinez, 7-6, pitched the final two innings in relief of starter Jim Palmer for the win. Martinez retired all six men he faced.

Jim Rice gave the Red Sox a 2-1 lead when he opened the sixth inning with his 18th homer of the season. Baltimore tied it in the seventh on a double by Rich Dauer and a triple by Al Bumbry.

Dwight Evans put Boston ahead 1-0 when he belted his 19th homer of the year with one out in the first inning.

After leaving the bases loaded and failing to score in the third, the Orioles got a leadoff homer from Ripken, his 16th, in the fourth.

To Advance To Canadian Finals

Lendl Overpowers McEnroe

TORONTO (UPI) — Ivan Lendl, with his domination of the world's top-ranked player beginning to look routine, overpowered John McEnroe in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4, Saturday to advance to the finals of the $300,000 Canadian Open Tennis championship against Vitas Gerulaitis.

The event is also known as the Player's International.

The triumph extended Lendl's career margin over the New York southpaw to 5-3, or 5-2 if junior matches are discounted.

Lendl, whose blazing serve and forehand have earned him more than $1.6 million this year, has lost only one set in five straight conquests of McEnroe stretching back to the quarterfinals of the 1980 U.S. Open.

The 22-year-old Czechoslovakian moved into Sunday's final against Gerulaitis, who advanced earlier in the day when Jimmy Connors withdrew from the tournament with a back injury.

Lendl, who will be seeking his third straight Canadian Open title, used uncomplicated methods that have become all too familiar to McEnroe. He applied a serve that was crushingly precise and a forehand that cut off McEnroe's charges to the net.

The tall right-hander required three breaks against his opponent. He took the first break in the seventh game and another in the ninth game after McEnroe recorded his one and only break. His third break came in the ninth game of the final set on a clean cross-court forehand which gave him a 5-4 lead and allowed him to serve for the match.

"I've improved my game and was returning his serves a lot better," said Lendl. "It was the first time in five months (since a four-set victory over McEnroe at the WCT final in Dallas) that I've met him. He's a tougher player, so I have to play him tougher, but there's no reason for me to be intimidated if I play well against him."

"I'm disappointed with my effort," said McEnroe, who this week ended a five-week layoff that began after his loss in the Wimbledon final to Connors.

"You can think of 15 excuses but right now I have no claim to being No. 1 in the world," said McEnroe, who was especially disappointed with his serve and volley game.

"It's like 50-50 whether it (the serve) goes in," he said. "I had no consistency. My volley is not as solid. I have started staying back more and I think that might have hurt my attacking mentality.

"He has confidence and he is improving all the time," McEnroe said of Lendl.

The speedy New Yorker fought off double-break point and three deuces in the first game and went to deuce to hold in the third game before Lendl broke through after going up triple-break point in the seventh when McEnroe chipped a forehand long.

McEnroe broke back in the eighth game of the first set and did not appear unnerved by a Lendl forehand that rifled into his stomach.

But the 22-year-old adversary pounded back, converting double-break point in the ninth game on a blazing backhand that took the corner. Lendl then served out the set, allowing McEnroe only two points while claiming the 1-0 lead on a second-serve winner.

The week-long controversy over officiating came to a head after the second game of the second set when Grand Prix officials, following numerous protests from both players, replaced chair umpire Mike Orr with Grand Prix official Bill Kempfer.

McEnroe never came close to breaking Lendl in the second set but was repeatedly scrambling to defend his own serve.

Lendl broke him at love in the ninth game and, in a run of 11 straight points, was up triple-match point in game 10 before McEnroe pulled to 40-30. But that modest charge was too little, too late.

Thomas Stops Tillis In 8th

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pinklon Thomas of Philadelphia pushed his unbeaten string to 20 Saturday, stopping heavily favored James "Quick" Tillis of Chicago with a brief combination of punches in the eighth round of a scheduled 10-round heavyweight bout.

Tillis, 25, whose only loss in 23 previous professional fights came in a title match with World Boxing Association champion Mike Weaver, was the WBC's No. 6 challenger.

Thomas, who weighed 213 pounds to 216 pounds for Tillis, took control of the fight with a combination of punches midway through the sixth round. An overhand right, followed seconds later by a left, brought blood from Tillis' nose and reopened a cut Tillis had suffered to his mouth in the first round.

The knockout was the 17th for Thomas in 20 fights.

Thomas was a late replacement in the nationally televised fight for Tim Witherspoon, who had been scheduled to box Tillis on Sunday.

Witherspoon and Trevor Berbick, who had been scheduled to box Renaldo Snipes on Saturday, were suspended by the Cleveland Boxing Commission Wednesday after both complained of illness. The commission said the suspensions, which followed doctors' tests, were levied because Witherspoon and Berbick failed to honor their commitments.

Rangers' Owner Bans Manager From Radio Interview Program

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Rangers' majority owner Eddie Chiles has banned manager Darrell Johnson from appearing on a radio station interview program hosted by a sportscaster who criticized the recent firing of Don Zimmer as the team's skipper.

Chiles ordered Johnson not to participate on KRLD's "Ranger Report," a five-minute program that has aired every weekday during the baseball season since Billy Martin managed the Rangers during the mid-1970s.

Sham said Chiles apparently is mad for his commentaries regarding Zimmer's firing on July 28.

"I said he lied," Sham said. "What interests me, I didn't say anything that the writers didn't write. But Eddie is telling all of them he is sorry, and he is still mad at me."

Chiles refused comment on the situation.

Johnson said, "I'm afraid if Eddie Chiles said 'no comment,' then I don't have anything to say."

Lynn Injures Elbow

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — California Angels center fielder Fred Lynn was struck on the right elbow by a pitch from Oakland's Tom Underwood in the eighth inning of Saturday's game against the A's.

Lynn appeared to have sustained merely a bad bruise, although he was taken to a hospital for precautionary X-rays.

Brett Injures Wrist

DETROIT (AP) — All-star third baseman George Brett returned to Kansas City Saturday to permit doctors to examine his right wrist, which he injured Friday night while checking his swing on an inside pitch.

Brett struck out in the first inning at bat, ending an eight-game hitting streak, and then left the game. He is batting .300 with 24 doubles, 17 home runs and 56 RBIs on the season.

Philadelphia Outslugs Expos, 15-11

MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Robinson slugged a grand-slam homer to cap a nine-run eighth inning Saturday as the Philadelphia Phillies rallied for a wild 15-11 victory over the Montreal Expos in a game delayed two hours and 20 minutes by rain.

Trailing 8-4, the Phillies sent 12 men to the plate in the eighth, including an inning-ending flyout for Philadelphia's Pete Rose, who set a major league record when he passed home run king Hank Aaron with his 12,365th at-bat leading off the game.

The Phillies blasted four Montreal pitchers, including loser Jeff Reardon, 4-2, for six of their 19 hits in the nine-run inning.

Robinson and Ivan DeJesus started the eighth with singles. Robinson scored on Bob Dernier's sacrifice fly before Rose and Manny Trillo walked to load the bases.

Gary Matthews and Mike Schmidt followed with RBI singles, pulling the Phillies within 8-7, and Trillo scored on a wild pitch by Ray Burris to tie 8-8. The Phillies went ahead on the same play as Matthews scored when catcher Gary Carter tried to nail Schmidt advancing to second and but threw into center field.

Bo Diaz and Jerry Reed drew walks to re-load the bases and Robinson followed with his grand slam, his sixth homer of the season, giving the Phillies a 13-8 lead.

Diaz's two-run double in the ninth accounted for the Phillies' final two runs.

Reed, 1-0, was the winner, though credited with only one-third of inning pitched.

Consecutive two-base fielding errors by Mike Schmidt and Gary Matthews had helped the Expos take an 8-4 lead in the seventh.

Joel Youngblood then singled Raines to third and Andre Dawson tripled for two runs. Dawson scored on Al Oliver's single.

St. Louis 4
Pittsburgh 1

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Lonnie Smith slammed a two-run homer and John Stuper scattered eight hits in 7 1-3 innings to lead the St. Louis Cardinals over the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-1 Saturday.

Smith tagged a 2-0 pitch from loser John Candelaria, 9-5, in the fifth inning for his seventh homer of the year to give the Cardinals a 2-0 lead. Tom Herr led off the inning with a single.

Jason Thompson got one run back for Pittsburgh in the sixth inning when he hit a 2-2 pitch from Stuper, 5-2, over the center field fence for his 22nd homer.

Coaching Plays...

he refused to disclose his income, saying, "I don't even think my wife knows."

While the pay rivals that of top executives in private business, most of the coaches have paid the price in getting there, and many others have been shown the door. In the ACC alone, 24 coaches worked at the then-seven schools between 1968 and 1978.

"I don't look at it as them being overpaid," said Dick Dull. "There is no tenure. They're subject to dismissal at any time. They live in a fish bowl. Look at (Maryland football coach) Bobby Ross. He's been with no fewer than four universities. His children grew up in four schools. There are a lot of sacrifices."

"What I object to," Dull added, "is a situation like you have at Texas A&M (where Jackie Sherrill recently received a package worth $249,000) where the money is coming from outside (the school). The institution no longer has control. What Sherrill gets doesn't bother me. Who is paying him does."

The road up can also be a long one.

Dick Crum began as an assistant jayvee coach in high school and actually coached one year without pay. He spent 12 years as a high school coach, five as a college assistant and seven as a college coach before making it to the big-time at North Carolina.

According to his wife, Shirley, he leaves home during the season at 7 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays and gets home about 10 p.m. On Wednesday and Thursday he gets home about 8:30 or 9 p.m. unless he has a home visit which means he gets home about 11 p.m. Friday he goes in later in the morning, but she doesn't see him again until after the game on Saturday.

He eats dinner at home on Saturday night, and then looks at game films and does his television show. On Sunday, the family goes to church, and he generally has a home visit Sunday afternoon. He then returns to the office and gets home between 8 and 10 p.m.

"I've always thought he should be paid by the hour," said Mrs. Crum.

In the off season, it's recruiting and public appearances at booster club organizations. He recently signed a 10-year contract, but says that is no real security.

"The main reason we did it was to quiet the rumors," he said in an interview with The Charlotte News. "We had people — rival schools — telling prospects I was going to Ohio State or Michigan State or someplace else and that just was not the case.

"People say 10 years is a lot of security, but if the program's not going well, you aren't going to stick around 10 years," Crum said.

Dean Smith, meanwhile, is programmed. His time is measured in minutes and after winning the NCAA basketball title he was forced to turn down an audience with President Reagan.

"The guy is amazing," said an associate who has known Smith for 18 years and estimated he makes $200,000 a year. "He doesn't mean to be like that. He doesn't want to be short with people. He's not crass. His time is just too valuable. Jesus, he's got four secretaries, and an iron gate up in front of his house."

Smith has one of the most successful basketball camps, but a source said it is in name only. Longtime assistant Bill Guthridge does most of the work and gets most of the money, the source said. Like other coaches, Smith is also heavily involved in coaches' committees and other activities that pay nothing. He recently turned down $3,000 to speak, because he was scheduled a play in a charity golf tournament. There's also the Olympic committee, and the time he freely spends on behalf of present and former players.

New head coaches must quickly learn public speaking, the television and radio business, and just plain business. South Carolina basketball coach Bill Foster has a masters degree in business, and Terry Holland in the past produced his own basketball shows.

"In a way, the public speaking was one of the hardest things about the job," said Danny Ford.

But public exposure like television, radio and advertisement is important to coaches in more ways than financially.

"Jim Valvano is not out to make a lot of money," said one official at North Carolina State. "To survive in North Carolina, he's got to be known. He's got to get publicity. He thinks the more he's known, the easier its going to be to recruit in North Carolina. He's got a lot of competition and that's Dean Smith."

Here's a look at financial packages put together for Southern football and basketball coaches, based on records, interviews and published reports.

Football coaches

No Bird For Floyd

Leads Hartford By Four Strokes

Norris Sets 2nd Course Record

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Ray Floyd once said that Lee Trevino would never make it as a touring professional.

"Since that time, I no longer make comments about other people's careers," Floyd said after failing to catch leader Tim Norris after three rounds of the Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

Floyd, who won last week's PGA Championship in Tulsa, Okla., refused to say much about Norris, who was four strokes ahead of him heading into today's final round of the $300,000 tournament.

"He had a very nice round," Floyd said of the man he will have to catch if he is to win his second straight Professional Golfers' Association event.

Norris shot a 5-under par 66 and set his second consecutive course record Saturday to take a four-stroke lead over Mark Calcavecchia and Floyd.

Norris' three-round total of 193, 20 under par, was three strokes better than the previous three-round mark set by Bill Kratzert on the 6,534-yard Wethersfield Country Club course in the 1977 GHO. He also set a 36-hole record Friday with his total of 127.

Heading into today's final round, defending GHO champion Hubert Green was five shots back and one in front of six players including Gavin Levenson of South Africa.

Norris refused to call his lead safe.

"You're never safe until all the putts are holed and everyone has signed their card, but it's going to help," the 24-year-old El Paso, Texas, resident said.

Floyd, last week's PGA champion who was three shots behind Norris at the end of Friday's second round, bogeyed two holes Saturday for a 4-under-par 67 and a three-round total of 197.

"I let it slip out the window once again," Floyd said. "I misread the greens. Tomorrow, I've got to see if I can make the putts when it's imperative I do."

Calcavecchia, a 22-year-old North Palm Beach, Fla., resident who was five strokes behind Norris at the end of the second round, birdied seven holes on his way to a 6-under-par 65 and a three-day 197.

"I couldn't begin to tell you what my next-closest 54-hole score might have been," he said, "maybe in the Florida State Open when I was 16 years old."

Green shot his third 66 of the tourament, while Levenson, who shot a hole-in-one Friday to share second place with Floyd after two rounds, shot a 3-under-par 69 Saturday.

Dana Quigley, 35, of Barrington, R.I., shot a 10-under-par 61 early Saturday, but his three-day 200 put him well behind the leaders.

"That was the best round of any kind in my career," said Quigley, who plans to quit the tour this year. "That includes Putt-Putt and everything else."

Daniel Up By 7 At WUI

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) — Beth Daniel continued to dominate the LGPA's WUI Classic Saturday, shooting a 5-under-par 67 to take a commanding 7-stroke lead over Dianne Dailey after three rounds of the $125,000 event.

Daniel, who has already won four events on the LPGA tour this year, has a 54-hole total of 203, 13-under par. The 25-year-old golfer had 68s during her first two rounds of the 72-hole tournament.

Dailey had a third-round 68 and was at 210, three strokes ahead of Lynn Adams, another non-winner on the tour, who had a 72 on the 6,347-yard Meadow Brook Club course.

Sandra Spuzich fired a 68 and Barbara Barrow shot a 69 to share fourth place at 214, while defending champion Donna Caponi posted a 68 and is at 2-over-par 218.

"I've been pleased with my game since Toronto," said Daniel, a pro since 1979 and Player of the Year in 1980. "I took two weeks off before playing there.

"There was deep frustration and I wasn't enjoying golf. I was struggling from day to day and I wasn't sure what was going to happen. I was totally negative and expected the worst.

"You don't win tournaments that way. I needed to get a new outlook and now I'm confident."

Daniel, who missed the tournament record of 66, shared by Debbie Boston and Kathy Martin, was second in this event in 1979, shared the runner-up spot in 1980 and was third last year.

Daniel of Charleston, S.C., now has four consecutive sub-70 rounds and has been at par or better in 10 of her last 15 rounds. Despite this success, Daniel refuses to concede that she has the title clinched.

"I've made up eight holes in one round and won a tournament," said Daniel, referring to last year's World Championship of Women's Golf in Japan. "This is my biggest lead ever going into the final round. I'm hitting the ball well, and I expect to do the same again tomorrow."

First prize is worth $18,750.

a 4-6 record last season. "But it's kind of tappered off and we're averaging in the 70s now.

"We're going to have to cut for the first time in Conley history," Garner said. "We've accomplished goal No. 1: We've got the kids out and we've got them talking positively about Conley football for the first time."

The first two weeks of practice have not been without its problems. Garner's No. 1 problem, as it was a year ago, is tobacco. Some Conley players work in tobacco and are forced to miss practice.

"We're still fighting that old tobacco problem," Garner said. "It's very frustrating for the coaches because we can't get them (the players) all out at the same time."

Tobacco has sliced deeply into the practice time of two of Garner's better players: right tackle William Paramore and defensive end/ running back Leander Maye.

A third player, quarterback Todd Rouse, has missed three straight practices with a back injury. Leon Cox is also vying for the QB slot. Cox started at QB as a sophomore but did not play last year.

Amid all this, Garner is trying what he called "The Experiment of the Year," moving offensive lineman Mike Long to fullback. Long will remain at linebacker where he was named all-Coastal Conference a year ago.

"He's our power back. He's still a little rusty in his technique," Garner said. "It's still an experiment and the jury's still out."

D.H. Conley will scrimmage Roanoke Friday in Hollywood at 8 p.m. The Vikings open the 1982 season one week later when they play host to Washington.

Farmville Central

Farmville Central coach Gilbert Carroll is not as pleased as he would like as the Jaguars near the end of week No. 2 of preseason drills.

"I'd have to say it's going fair," Carroll said. "We've got a lot of young guys out — we've got 12 underclassman out — and there's a lot they've got to learn."

Carroll said he had about 40 varsity players working out in anticipation of the Jaguars' Aug. 27 season opener against West Craven. Prior to that game, Farmville will scrimmage Hunt in Wilson on Aug. 19.

Farmville finished 5-5 last season in Carroll's first year. Carroll hopes to improve on that this year.

"We're trying to build an offensive line and get some depth in it," he said. "That's where we were poor last year."

Asked about his team's condition coming into practice, Carroll said: "As far as wind, they weren't in good shape. But they're getting in shape.

"We had a weight program this summer but we couldn't get a large number to come out."

Farmville may have the fastest team in the area, led by wide receiver Wesley Carmon.

"Our speed on the perimeters is going to be good," Carroll said. "But our speed up front is not going to be good."

North Pitt

North Pitt coach B.T. Chappell is disappointed with the opening two weeks of preseason practice but still believes his Panthers will be a better team than they were a year ago.

"I feel like we've gotten off to a slow start," Chappell said. "The first week I was hoping to have 50 or 60 out but we only had 30, and 10 of those were ninth graders.

"Right now we're up to 24 or 25 juniors and seniors," he added. "What we hope to do is have a lot of good seniors and t the ninth and 10th graders fill the jv (team)."

North Pitt did not have a junior varsity team a year ago, something Chappell said hurts the Panthers' program. "We don't have the feeder program a lot of schools have," he said. "We're trying to get a (junior high) team going and maybe there will be some carryover."

Chappell, however, still remains optimistic that his team can improve on its 2-8 mark of a year ago — Chappell's first at North Pitt.

"We're looking to be a better football team than last year," he said. "I know we'll be a better team if we don't get injured."

Chappell said the team's major problem area is offensive line. "We've got some question marks there," he said. "We've got some fairly good guys across the front but we haven't hit that much."

Taking signals behind that offensive line will be either Ken Whitehurst or William Rollins, both of whom are seniors. Whitehurst is considered No. 1 at present, Chappell said.

North Pitt will scrimmage Chocowinity at home Thursday before opening its season the following Friday at Roanoke.

Meir Upset Winner In Junior Tennis

HIGH POINT (AP) — No. 2 seeded Victor Meir of Raleigh upset No. 1 John Yancey of Morganton 1-6, 6-4, 6-0 Saturday to win the boys 14 division in the North Carolina Closed Junior Tennis Championships.

Theirs was the last match of this week's tournament at Durham, Chapel Hill and High Point.

Browns Slip By Detroit, 17-16

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Cleo Miller scampered 8-yards for a touchdown in the fourth-quarter and Matt Bahr added the conversion as the Cleveland Browns edged the Detroit Lions 17-16 in the 1982 National Football League exhibition opener for both teams Saturday night.

Detroit's Eddie Murray missed on a 26-yard field goal attempt that would have won it for the Lions with six seconds remaining.

Miller's touchdown was set up by third-year quarterback Paul McDonald, who connected with Milton Baker on a 50-yard pass play to the Lions 8 yard line. McDonald's next pass attempt was batted down, but Miller slanted off left guard on the next play and sprinted into the end zone to tie the game 16-16.

After a scoreless first quarter, Detroit halfback Horace King scored on a 1-yard plunge early in the second period, but Eric Hipple's pass was incomplete on the point after try.

Cleveland came back to take a 7-6 lead on a 12-yard scoring pass from Brian Sipe to Ozzie Newsome with 1:21 remaining in the half, but the Lions grabbed a 9-7 halftime advantage on a 42-yard Murray field goal as time ran out.

King caught a 5-yard touchdown pass from Gary Danielson to cap an 80-yard, 14-play drive at the opening of the third quarter but the Browns closed to 16-10 on a 37-yard Bahr field goal with five seconds remaining in the third period.

San Fran 14

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chris Bahr kicked a 24-yard field goal in the third period and Marc Wilson set up a fourth-period touchdown with a 76-yard pass completion as the wandering Raiders opened pre-season play with a 17-14 victory over the National Football League champion San Francisco 49ers Saturday.

Bahr's field goal broke a 7-7 tie, with the Raiders capitalizing on a bad center snap by the 49ers on a punt attempt. Greg Pruitt plunged for a touchdown after running back Cle Montgomery got inside the 1-yard-line on the long pass play.

San Francisco scored with 1:04 left in the game when rookie quarterback Bryan Clark, son of former 49ers coach Monte Clark, threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Eason Ramson.

The Raiders, after 22 years in Oakland, intend to play this season in Los Angeles and have received court approval to move against the NFL's wishes. They were introduced as "the Los Angeles Raiders" by the Candlestick Park public address announcer before the nationally televised game.

Jim Plunkett and Cliff Branch of the Raiders combined on a 57-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter. The 49ers tied the score by driving 81 yards in the second quarter, with Guy Benjamin throwing a 6-yard touchdown pass to fullback Johnny Davis.

Handicap Winners

High Fives, Hand Slaps Begin And Are Expected To Continue In NFL

By The Associated Press

National Football League owners can expect more symbolic handshakes between opposing players as the exhibition season continues, union official Ed Garvey says.

Ignoring threats of a minimum $100 fine, NFL players met at midfield for pregame handshakes at two preseason games Friday night, hoping to demonstrate solidarity against management.

"Before virtually every game, there will be a handshake," said Garvey, the NFL Players Association executive director.

Garvey called the threat of fines "unlawful. Players have right to this activity."

On Friday night, the Kansas City Chiefs and Cincinnati Bengals rushed to the middle of the field to shake hands after the national anthem at Arrowhead Stadium. The St. Louis Cardinals and Seattle Seahawks later did the same thing at the Kingdome.

The attention given the "high-fives" and hand slaps on the field before the games may have overshadowed the results, which saw Kansas City beat Cincinnati 26-20 and Seattle defeat St. Louis 14-0.

Similar handshakes were exchanged Thursday night before the Houston Oilers edged the New Orleans Saints 22-20.

Despite booing from the crowds, some of the players raised their arms and clenched fists.

At Seattle, uniformed players were joined on the field by several injured players in street clothes. Seattle quarterback Jim Zorn and wide receiver Steve Largent, who have said they won't join in any players' strike, also were among the handshakers.

Zorn said he didn't decide to take part in the handshaking demonstration until Thursday night at a players' meeting.

"I was seeing players pulling together and I felt like I wanted to be a part of that togetherness," Zorn said. "I am willing to pay the consequences. This doesn't have anything to do with my stand on the strike. This won't sway my mind on that matter."

Seattle Coach Jack Patera said Thursday he would fine each player half of one regular-season game's salary, which in Zorn's case would be about $15,000.

Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL Management Council, called the hand-shaking displays "precedent-setting. There is a provision against fraternization before a game. It's in the constitution and bylaws of the league."

Donlan, who attended the Seattle game, added, "It comes under the heading of 'no big deal.' But my feeling is that this all belongs on the bargaining table."

Garvey said the union would file a complaint with the National Labor Relations Board because of the management council's action advising NFL teams to fine players.

Jim Miller, spokesman for the council, said the players face a minimum fine of $100 for participating in any formal union demonstration at exhibition games.

In Friday night's games, Nick Lowery kicked four field goals and Bill Kenney threw two touchdown passes to Carlos Carson as the Chiefs defeated the defending American Conference champion Bengals.

Lowery was perfect on four field goal attempts of 24, 27, 46 and 36 yards while Kenney opened his preseason battle with Steve Fuller for the starting quarterback job by tossing scoring passes of 5 and 21 yards to Carson.

Zorn completed eight of 10 passes for 140 yards in the first half of Seattle's victory over St. Louis, including a 41-yard TD to Paul Jones. Dan Doornivk got the Seahawks' other score with a 1-yard plunge.

Meanwhile, the Atlanta Falcons boycotted an annual security meeting with NFL officials Friday in a solidarity stance and Coach Leeman Bennett said the players would be fined.

"The meeting had nothing to do with football," said Jeff Van Note, a vice president of the union and a Falcons player. "And it has nothing to do with the Atlanta Falcons. This is an NFL meeting and right now it is the subject of collective bargaining agreement and there is no bargaining agreement."

NFLPA President Gene Upshaw, a guard with the Raiders, said the managment council's warning about fines for shaking hands before exhibition games "is in marked contrast to almost every professional sport in America. The handshake between opponents has become an important part of the opening tip in basketball, the meeting of boxers in the center of the ring, and in all other sports where sportsmanship and respect for your opponent is important to the game.

"We intend to continue this gesture of respect for other players in the NFL and to show solidarity for our union."

Baseball Meetings...

in a special restructuring meeting in June in Chicago, where they heard reports of a committee headed by O'Malley and Smith.

The committee suggested a restructuring of baseball to make its administration more closely resemble that of a corporation. The 26 owners would act as a board of directors with supreme power. Under the board would be an eight-member Executive Committee — staffed by the owners on a rotating basis.

The commissioner would be responsible to the board of directors and its Executive Committee, while both league presidents, the Player Relations Committee and baseball's promotions department would answer to the commissioner.

In addition, most matters would be resolved by a simple majority vote of all 26 clubs, rather than holding separate league matters.

Vincent Pleased. . .

Two members of last year's backfield return, Rodrick Harrell and Donnell Lee. Vincent also looks for good things from Reggie Smith, Rodney Smith and Cyrus Blackwell.

"With the experience we have, we felt that our running game would be good, but I'm really pleased with the way the receiving has come along," the coach said.

Vincent feels that the offensive line still has a ways to go. "This takes longer to get into good shape than any other position," he said. Three starters return, center Greg Davis and guards Bill Johnson and Jay Mahoney, giving the center of the line good experience. Currently Greg Britt and Frank Layne are flanking them at the tackle positions.

"Our defense hasn't been worked as much yet as the offense, but we look for that to change during the next week," Vincent said.

He did single out the play of Frankie Carr at defensive end, William Rhodes at tackle, Enoch Reid at safety and Craig Dupree at linebacker.

The kicking game is another area that just needs work. Currently Buie and Frank Norris are handling the punting, Horace Barrett the kickoffs and Willie Levett the placements.

"We haven't had any injuries yet, except for the usual bumps and bruises," Vincent said. "Bobby Casey was hurt in an automobile accident last spring and still isn't 100 percent, but we hope to have him back at that point in a few more weeks. Judas Best and William Waugh both missed the scrimmage with slight injuries."

Vincent is pleased with the enthusiasm so far, and hopes that it will continue. "We've got to keep the enthusiasm up, and this team has got to develop its own character. That's an old cliche, but it's true nonetheless."

During the upcoming week, the Rampants will work on the kicking game — all phases of it — and continue to put in more offense.

The week's practice will wind up on Friday when the Rampants scrimmage Washington High School at 5 p.m. at E.B. Aycock field.

Southern Conf. Title Has New Meaning

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Now that a national championship could become a reality for the winner of the Southern Conference regular-season football race, the chase for number one takes on new meaning.

Tennessee-Chattanooga, Furman and Appalachian State are among the favorites to take the title and represent the conference in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs. But UT-C coach Dick Oliver isn't sure his team's going to be one of the contenders.

"As long as I've been in coaching, I'm more in the dark about our football team than any I've ever been associated with," Oliver said.

The Moccasins lost quarterback Steve Woods, tight end Ed Stanford and several other key offensive and defensive performers to graduation. But Oliver has experienced performers returning at most key positions.

Oliver spent the spring trying to find a replacement for Woods among seven players. He called that attempt "the worst mistake we made." Nonetheless, Gary Bloodsaw and Ralph Potter will battle for the starting job this fall.

In the newly-installed fullhouse backfield, Dennis King and Nootie Abbott are the halfbacks while Norman Gleaton is at fullback. King and Abbott combined for almost 700 yards in 1981.

Seven lettermen return on defense, including all-conference tackle Willie Little and defensive ends Don Howell and Joey Abney.

Furman is defending champion, but Dick Sheridan will have to find replacements for eight lettermen, seven of whom were all-conference choices in 1981.

Stanford Jennings, who earned player of the year honors from his tailback position, returns with freshman of the year "Dinky" Williams. Junior David Charpia, who played in eight games last year, is listed as the starting quarterback. All-conference guard Mike Coleman leads the returning offensive linemen, which will be mixed with experience and youth.

Although linebacker Bruce Gheesling is gone, all-conference end Felix Andrews is back along with 10 lettermen. Tim Tanguay will handle the plackicking chores.

"In my four years at Furman, we have the biggest problem of replacing quality people," Sheridan says. "Our success depends on how well the inexperienced people play."

Appalachian State is expected to reverse its 3-7-1 record and challenge for a berth in the national title picture.

"All the components are there really for the first time — size, speed, experience and good senior leadership," coach Mike Working said.

Leading the way will be a junior, however. Quarterback Randy Joyce, who set four school records, will find five experienced receivers to throw to this fall. Alvin Parker rushed for 766 yards in 1981 and returns with Tim Martin, Derek Jenkins and Johnny Sowell.

An intensive weight training program during the fall will make the Mountaineer offensive front larger in 1982. Much of the 1981 line returns, led by tackle Joe Whisonant.

Rusty Hicks and Mike Roberts, defensive ends last season, have been shifted. Hicks now lends experience as a linebacker and Roberts is a tackle. Plenty of lettermen return on the front and in the secondary and should make for an improved Mountaineer club.

The Citadel is bidding for the rights to become host for the 1983 I-AA championship game. Coach Art Baker's 1982 bunch is working toward getting to the 1982 title match, and Baker thinks he may get the job done.

"We lost seven starters on both offense and defense this year," Baker said. "So obviously, our objective in the spring was to find replacements. I think we did that at most positions."

Two positions were solid as fall drills opened. Gerald Toney, a forward on the basketball team, is the incumbent at quarterback. Jim Ettari is the returning nose guard, he with the tattoo which reads "Saturday Nights Are For Fighting."

With Danny Miller lost at tailback, the responsibility falls upon a host of underclassmen, including juniors Eric Manson and Mike Lewis. Seniors Laurie King and Mike Rosborough will fight for the fullback slot.

Tackle Joe Pipczynski and guard Bobby Robinson hold down the left side of the offensive line, while the right side has two newcomers. Veteran John Gamby starts at center.

Tarik Haddad must replace all-conference Sedrick Brown at tackle, while junior Kim Alexander lines up for his third season at the other tackle. Senior Mike Varner and junior Kevin McCarty lead an experienced linebacking corps, while the secondary is experienced.

Major problems at East Tennessee State are expected to crop up on the offensive and defensive lines. Quarterback again is a dilemma as Scott Nault found himself academically ineligible for 1982. Robert Achoe, a transfer from Liberty Baptist, and sophomore Walt Bowlin could fill in.

Veterans man the running back positions, with Rick Reeves returning from a mid-season injury. Coach Jack Carlisle has his biggest offensive line ever, but it is also green.

On defense, the Buccaneers have only one returning starter, which will make it hard for ETSU to follow up on a 6-5, 4-2 season.

While Carlisle is looking for a quarterback, for one of the first times since he's been at Virginia Military Institute, coach Bob Thalman won't have to search for an offensive leader.

Senior Kelly Raber stepped into the post last season and guided VMI to within a game of the Southern Conference title. Unfortunately, Thalman will have to find a replacement for tailback Floyd Allen. Stan Bass and Anthony Agostinelli are leading candidates.

All-conference center Austin Beckham is gone, leaving a big hole at center to fill. Two other starters have left vacancies on the offensive line with backups from the 1981 season.

Linebacker Melvin Rucker, also an all-conference pick, leads a defense which may experience some difficulty with its secondary.

Coach Sonny Randle is excited about Marshall's chances in 1982,, noting that a mixture of upperclassmen and junior college transfers may lead the Thundering Herd out of the conference cellar.

"We've been a joke, but those smiles will turn to game faces this fall," said Randle. "We'll line up and have a chance in 11 of 'em. A year ago, I thought we could compete, but not in every game."

Junior tailback Larry Fourqurean, who gained 245 yards against Appalachian State, returns to the backfield. Tony Konopka, Ted Carpenter and transfer Dan Patterson will fight for the starting quarterback post.

All-conference defensive back Carl Lee leads a unit Randle expects will improve on its seventh-place showing in the defensive stats.

Coach Bob Waters sees experience at the skill positions as being the key to a winning season at Western Carolina. His concern lies with the offensive line.

"We have less talent and experience in our offensive line than at any time since I've been here," he said.

Ronnie Mixon will start at quarterback for the third consecutive season, and will look for receivers Kristy Kiser, Eric Rasheed and Tyron DeLapp. Three tailbacks give experience to the backfield, with Melvin Dorsey returning from a 971-yard season last year. Mark Womack also returns as a two-year starter at fullback.

The Catamounts are two-deep at most defensive posts with special emphasis on the ends and linebackers. Nineteen lettermen and eight starters are on the 1982 unit. Only the defensive line has question marks.

Davidson is ineligible for the title, but still must find a replacement for record-setting fullback Ray Sinclair.

The Wildcats have experience on the offensive line, a luxury they haven't evnjoyed in recent years. Keith Martin is the returning quarterback, while Bob Miller is slated to replace Sinclair.

Mears Cards 200 At Pocono

LONG POND, Pa. (AP) — A 200 mph lap at Pocono International Raceway wasn't considered impossible, but nobody was really expecting it this year — least of all Rick Mears.

"I didn't think it (200) was possible until this (Friday) morning when I did a 198," Mears said. "Then I just figured I'd hold my breath a little longer and see if I could do it."

The first of his two qualifying laps for today's Domino's Pizza Pocono 500 Indy-car race was clocked at 44.780 seconds, which translates to 200.983 mph.

"I scared myself so much on that first lap that the second one was a lot slower (45.254 seconds and 198.877 mph). I guess I almost lost it about three times.

"The difference on that (first) lap was probably that I just held my breath a little more and, at the places where I just touched the brake a little before, I didn't touch it at all."

The enormity of Mears' feat is illustrated by the record he broke, a lap of 191.367 mph run by the late Peter Revson in qualifying for the 1973 Pocono race.

That was the last year of unlimited horsepower for the Indy cars and, the ensuing cutback in horsepower, combined with poor track conditions, a few rainouts, and the feud between the U.S. Auto Club and Championship Auto Racing Teams that cut the fields for a few years, kept Revson's record intact until Friday.

The second row today will include teammates Mario Andretti and Gordon Johncock, both in Wildcat-Cosworths, and Mike Mosley in a March-Cosworth.

Johncock, who beat Mears by .16-second in the Indianapolis 500 and added an easy triumph in the Michigan 500, will be going for the Triple Crown of Indy-car racing Sunday despite crashing on his second qualifying lap.

Johncock lost control and backed his Wildcat into the wall in the first turn of the 2.5-mile trioval. His crew hoped to have the car repaired in time to take part in today's scheduled practice session.

Andretti, who fell off a bit from practice laps in the 195 range, hit 194.460, followed by Johncock at 193.619, and Mosley at 192.757.

Bobby Rahal was next at 192.090 in a March, with Al Unser also over the record at 191.861 in a Longhorn-Cosworth.

Rose Soccer Set To Begin

An organization meeting will be held today at 3 p.m. at Greenville Middle School's soccer field, just behind the school.

Actual practice will begin at 3 p.m. on Monday and continue daily. Al practice sessions and games will be played on the Middle School field.

In addition to Rose High School students, ninth graders at E.B. Aycock may also try out for the team.

The Rampants is to be coached by Will Wiberg, a former member of the East Carolina University soccer team, and a six-year veteran of coaching in the sports on the recreation level.

The team will open its season on September 16 with a home match against Rocky Mount.

THE CITY of Greenville has a Citizen Concern System to help citizens with their questions, needs, and concerns. If you need assistance, call Gail Meeks, Ombudsperson for the Citizen Concern System, at 752-4137, extension 224.

The ace came on the fourth hole, a 144-yarder. He was playing with Gene Leggett, Charlie Herring and Dave Myles.

The annual Club Championship winds up today.

Farmville Golf and Country Club

Farmville Golf and Country Club held a combination Best Ball-Superball Tournament recently. The first day's competition was best ball, with a superball on the second day.

First place in the best ball competition went to Lowell Liles, Tommy Cobb, Floyd Messer Jr. and Royce Richardson with a net 51. Richardson had his best score ever on the team, a 78. Ralph Mozingo, also playing in the event, had a 75, his best.

In the superball competition, Larry Lewis, Jim Burk, Ralph Mozingo and Sonny Bradham took first place with a 52.

When the two scores were combined, the Lewis-Burk-Mozingo-Bradham team won with a 106 total. Second place went to Bob Hunt, David Baker, Stuart Hamm and James Allen. They had a 109 total.

Upcoming events include the junior club championship on Wednesday and Thursday; August 21, Father-Son-Daughter tournament. Both events will be classified in age groups.

Brook Valley Country Club

Young Dahl Song recently shot his best round at Brook Valley Country Club, a 38-41—79. Kathy Griffin had her best round with a 51-44—85.

A junior superball event was held Thursday, with first going to the team of Brian Hill, Rob Thomas, Hunter Clark and Eric Huber with a 65. Pete McCurdy, Scott Kee, Kevin Fisher and Nelson Galloway also had a 65, but lost in a one-hole sudden-death playoff, when Hill had a birdie.

Third went to Sammy Hodges, Todd Jordan, David Fields and Greg VanScoy with a 67.

A Jack and Jill will be held on Wednesday at 5:30 with a covered dish supper following.

The Club's Member-Member is August 21-22, and the deadline for signups is Monday, August 16.

A Mixed Guest Spectacular will be held Sept. 4-5, with a deadline of September 1 for signups.

Loss Is Williamston Native's 249th Career Setback

Perry Notches 300th Complete Game In Defeat

By The Associated Press

Gaylord Perry has reached the 300-mark again, but this time it wasn't a victory.

The veteran right-hander, barely a month away from his 44th birthday, hurled the 300th complete game of his career Friday night, some three months after notching his 300th victory. But he was outpitched by Minnesota's Bobby Castillo, who posted his first route-going effort as the Twins defeated the Seattle Mariners 3-1 and handed Perry his 249th setback to go with 304 triumphs.

"It was a sweet one to win," said Castillo, who limited the Mariners to three hits. "After beating the old master like that, maybe I can sit down in 20 years with my children and tell them I pitched against Gaylord Perry and I beat him."

After giving up two hits and a run in the first inning — Joe Simpson tripled on the game's first pitch and scored on Bruce Bochte's infield hit — Castillo yielded only a fourth-inning single to Bochte the rest of the way.

"After I gave up that first one, I knew I couldn't give up many more," said Castillo. "Not with him out there for them. Maybe I did bear down a little after that first pitch."

With one out in the Minnesota sixth, singles by Tom Brunansky, Kent Hrbek, Gary Ward and Gary Gaetti produced two runs and gave the Twins a 2-1 lead. A single and two Seattle errors produced the Twins' final run in the eighth.

"You're fortunate a lot of times just to make contact against him," Gaetti said of Perry. "He throws some weird pitches up there. Some of them don't spin."

Angels 9, A's 0

Mike Witt fired a four-hitter and Reggie Jackson hit his 27th home run as California stretched its first-place lead to 1½ games over Kansas City in the AL West. Witt walked two and struck out four in posting his first shutout of the season. The Angels scored four runs in both the first and fifth innings and Jackson hit a tremendous blast to dead center field in the third. Oakland's Rickey Henderson, who has 107 stolen bases, nine short of Lou Brock's major league record, was thrown out by Bob Boone attempting to steal second in the third inning. The Angels' catcher has nailed Henderson four times this season.

Tigers 10, Royals 1

Lou Whitaker belted two homers for the third time this season to back the seven-hit pitching of Milt Wilcox and Pat Underwood. Whitaker hit a solo homer, his 10th of the season, leading off the bottom of the first and slammed a two-run shot in the middle of a five-run fourth inning that featured homers by Tom Brookens and Glenn Wilson. Alan Trammell also connected for the Tigers.

"I'm getting five at-bats a night in the leadoff spot and I've got confidence," said Whitaker.

Brewers 3, Blue Jays 1

Jim Ganther singled home the go-ahead run in the fourth inning and Pete Vuckovich scattered seven hits as the Brewers remained 5½ games ahead of Boston in the AL East. Vuckovich, 13-4, tied a Milwaukee club record by walking eight, but was tough in the clutch and the Blue Jays stranded 12 runners.

The Brewers took a 2-1 lead against Luis Leal in the fourth. A single by Ted Simmons, a walk and Roy Howell's single loaded the bases. The runs scored on Marshall Edwards' grounder and a bloop single by Gantner. Milwaukee added a run in the sixth when Edwards walked, stole second and scored on a single by Robin Yount.

Yankees 4, White Sox 3

Rick Cerone's seventh-inning home run off Steve Trout, his third of the season, snapped a tie and enabled New York to end Chicago's four-game winning streak. Lee Mazzilli, who had three hits in his second game with the Yankees, homered in the first inning while Tommy John and Rich Gossage limited the White Sox to five hits. New York tied the game 3-3 in the fifth on infield hits by Willie Randolph and Mazzilli, an error and Jerry Mumphrey's grounder.

Red Sox 5, Orioles 2

John Tudor fired a five-hitter and Boston's first five batters hit safely, producing three runs, as the Red Sox snapped a three-game losing streak and handed Baltimore its fourth loss in a row. Loser Mike Flanagan didn't retire any of the five batters he faced. Jerry Remy led off with a single, Dwight Evans tripled, Jim Rice doubled, Tony Perez singled for a 3-0 lead and Carney Lansford singled, chasing Flanagan.

Rangers 8, Indians 7

Cleveland built a 7-2 lead as Andre Thornton and Rick Manning homered, but Texas began its comeback on John Grubb's two-run double in the seventh inning and Larry Parrish's solo homer in the eighth made it 7-5.

Mike Richardt led off the ninth with a single off loser Dan Spillner, Bucky Dent walked and George Wright beat out a bunt to load the bases. Ed Glynn replaced Spillner and pinch hitter Bill Stein delivered a two-run double to tie the score. Glynn walked Buddy Bell intentionally to reload the bases and Dave Hostetler hit a game-winning sacrifice fly.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pittsburgh 7, St. Louis 4

St.Louis Manager Whitey Herzog admits the four contenders in the National League East have gone into an I got it ... you take it act.

Herzog's first-place Cardinals saw their three-game winning streak snapped Friday night as Don Robinson scattered nine hits and Tony Pena and Bill Madlock hit solo homers to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-4 victory over the Cardinals.

Coupled with the Montreal Expos' 3-2 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies, there are now four teams within striking distance in the NL East. The Cards remain a half-game in front of the Phillies with Montreal three out and the Pirates four back.

"We have some outstanding teams in this division," said Herzog, "and they're not playing outstanding."

Since August 1, only Montreal has a winning record, taking 8 of 14 games, including its last four. The Cardinals are 6-6, Pittsburgh 7-8 and the Phillies a mediocre 6-9 during that span.

Expos 3, Phillies 2

Doug Flynn tripled home two runs in the second inning as Montreal edged Philadelphia despite being held to just three hits.

Philadelphia's Pete Rose tied the all-time major record for at-bats, singling in the eighth inning in his 12,364th at-bat, tying him with home run king Henry Aaron.

The Expos took a 2-0 lead in the second against Mike Krukow, 11-7. Withltwo out, Tim Wallach singled and Chris Speier walked. Flynn then tripled down the left field line. Montreal increased its lead to 3-0 in the third on Al Oliver's RBI single.

Bo Diaz hit his 18th home run of the season for Philadelphia in the fifth, and Gary Matthews added a sacrifice fly in the eighth.

Dodgers 6, Giants 1

Bob Welch fired a three-hitter and Pedro Guerrero and Steve Sax homered to highlight a 15-hit attack as Los Angeles extended its lead in the NL West to 2½ games over the reeling Atlanta Braves.

The victory was the 10th in the 11 games and 14th in 16 for the Dodgers, who ended the Giants' 10-game winning streak Thursday.

Welch, 14-7, earned his fifth straight victory and stretched his string of scoreless innings to 24 before Reggie Smith hit his 13th home run of the season leading off the ninth.

Ron Cey and Steve Garvey delivered run-scoring singles in the first off Rich Gale, 5-11, while Guerrero added a three-run homer in the sixth, his 23rd. Sax hit a solo homer in the seventh.

Padres 7, Braves 4

Tony Gwynn singled in the go-ahead run and pinch-hitter Kurt Bevacqua's three-run double capped a four-run seventh inning as San Diego extended Atlanta's losing streak to 11 games.

The Padres are now just one game behind the second-place Braves.

Broderick Perkins singled to open the seventh and was replaced by pinch-runner Joe Pittman. Tim Flannery doubled before Al Hrabosky relieved starter Rick Camp, 8-6, and walked Gene Richards to load the bases. Gwynn then singled to score Pittman and Bevacqua, facing reliever Steve Bedrosian, doubled to clear the bases.

Reds 3, Astros 0

Ron Oester and Alex Trevino delivered run-scoring hits and Frank Pastore fired five-hitter as Cincinnati broke Houston's three-game winning streak, handing the Astros their first setback under new manager Bob Lillis.

Pastore, 6-9, struck out eight and did not walk a batter.

The Reds got two runs in the second inning off Joe Niekro, 11-9. Johnny Bench singled, took second on Paul Householder's sacrifice and scored as Oester looped a double to left. Trevino then lined an RBI single. Bench hit a sacrifice fly in the sixth for Cincinnati's final run.

Mets 6, Cubs 4

George Foster and Ellis Valentine singled in the tying and winning runs during a three-run seventh inning as New York snapped a four-game losing streak by beating Chicago.

Mookie Wilson started the rally with a single off Cub starter Doug Bird and took second on a balk by reliever Mike Proly. He scored one out later on Foster's single, tying the score 4-4. Rusty Staub singled Foster to third and Valentine put the Mets ahead 5-4 with his single. Ron Hodges singled in the third run.

Lookin' For The Tag Out

New York Mets catcher Ron Hodges has the ball in his glovbe but has to reach back to tag a sliding Bill Buckner of CHicago in their NL game Friday night. Buckner was safe, scoring on Jay Johnston's hit. (AP Laserphoto)

H & R BLOCK TO OFFER TAX SCHOOL IN GREENVILLE

H & R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, is offering a basic income tax course starting September 9 or 10 with morning and evening classes available.

During the 12 week course, students will study all phases of income tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced Block personnel will teach current laws, theory and application as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is a classroom lecture on each subject and practice problems at every level. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both interesting and challenging.

Anyone may enroll. There are no restrictions or qualifications. Courses are ideally suited for housewives, retired persons, teachers or persons wanting to increase their tax knowledge.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many accept employment with Block because of the flexible hours available. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H & R Block.

The modest course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for completion of the school. Certificates will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

Registration forms and brochures for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting the

Annual Report

Pitt Soil And Water Conservation District

July 1, 1981-June 30, 1982

PITT SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT has now completed its fortieth year of service to the people of Pitt County.

Pitt District is chartered as a legal subdivision of State Government. It is your unit of government which has the responsibility of conserving soil, water, and related resources. It is empowered to work with any federal, state or local agency as well as any civic organization in the promotion of conservation. The District provides technical services for soil and water conservation planning and resource development to all people within the county.

The District is governed by a five-member Board of Supervisors - three elected in the General Elections of Pitt County and two appointed by the N.C. State Soil and Water Conservation Commission. Their terms of office are for four years. Supervisors are charged with the responsibility of coordinating all soil and water conservation activities within the District.

The Board of Supervisors meet monthly at the District office located in the Federal Building, 225 Evans Street, Greenville. All residents of Pitt County are welcome to attend these meetings.

Pitt District's program objectives are to CONSERVE, DEVELOP, AND ENCOURAGE the productive use of Pitt County's soil, water, and related resources in order that we may enjoy:

- Quality in our Natural Resources
- Quality in the Environment
- Quality in the Standard of Living

During the past year we have placed special emphasis on erosion control and completion of watershed projects that the District has sponsored. We are proud to recognize our District award-winners and those who have made special contributions to our soil and water conservation program.

A luncheon was held on May 5th to honor former Pitt District Chairman ARCH J. FLANAGAN, of Farmville, for his outstanding contributions to the development of the soil and water conservation program in Pitt County. Mr. Flanagan, shown above with Mrs. Flanagan, presented his portrait to the District.

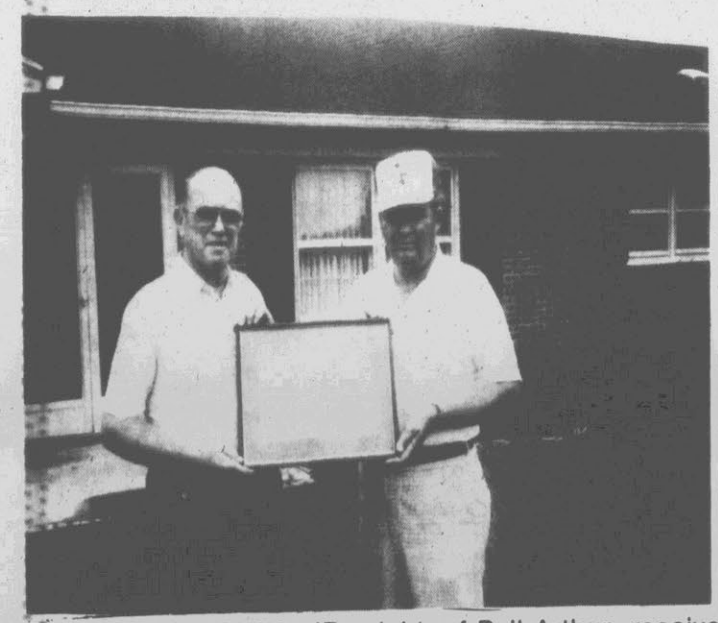
Swift Creek Watershed was selected by the N.C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts as the "Watershed-of-the-Year" in North Carolina. Thirty miles of lateral channels were constructed during the year on Back Swamp, Fork Swamp, and Swift Creek. Crop damages have been reduced as a result of this work.

B. ALTON GARDNER, left, received the "Watershed-Man-of-the-Year" Award from D.R. HUFF, JR., President of the N.C. Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts. The award was presented at the Annual Meeting of the Association held at Pinehurst. Mr. Gardner was nominated for this award by Pitt District.



ROBERT E. JONES, JR., right, of Bell Arthur, received the "Conservation Farm Family of the Year" Award for 1982 from District Chairman ROBERT G. LITTLE. Mr. Jones received the award for the outstanding job he did in completing all of the recommended conservation practices on his farm.

Other Highlights

THOMAS WAYNE WILSON, a rising Junior at D.H. Conley High School, was selected to attend the 1982 Resource Conservation Workshop at N.C. State University, June 21-25.

* * * * * *

* * * * * *

Construction was started on the G.R. Whitfield School flood prevention and drainage project.

* * * * * *

A "Poster, Essay and Speech" Contest was sponsored for the 4th through 8th Grades in all of the schools in Pitt County. ALEX McLAWHORN, left, and REGGIE BARROW, were winners of the Northeastern Area V Speech Contest.

Rock-lined channels, field borders, and grade control structures were used to reduce erosion in the Chicod Creek Watershed. Representatives of Pitt County Drainage District No. 9 and engineers, shown above, check a rock installation during the final inspection.

CHICK-FIL-A.
A DIFFERENCE YOU CAN TASTE.

From our tender boneless breast of chicken sandwich, to our made-from-scratch lemon pie, salads and lemonade. Making the best means starting out fresh. And nobody does it like the originator of the breast of chicken sandwich, Chick-fil-A.

A TASTY OFFER FOR YOUR NEXT MALL VISIT.

So when you're in the mall shopping, use these coupons to give us a try. We're convinced our taste will win you over. Because once you taste it fresh at Chick-fil-A, nothing else seems quite as delicious.

Pork Prices Climb Sharply

By KEITH GAVE
Associated Press Writer

Record-setting cash prices pushed pork complex futures sharply higher in active trading Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Meat packers bid $67 a head at the Peoria (Ill.) Livestock Market to set a national price record. The old record was $66, paid in 1975.

"Packers apparently see tighter hog supplies coming in the near term, and the market is experiencing a good demand for pork products at the moment," said Chuck Levitt, a meat and livestock analyst in Chicago with Shearson American Express.'

Cash prices for frozen pork bellies continued their march toward the $1 mark, advancng 4 cents to 97 cents and adding strength to futures contracts, Levitt said. Pork belly futures prices rose the 2-cent limit on four of the six active contracts.

Trading of cattle futures, however, remained subdued as traders awaited the U.S. Department of Agriculture's monthly cattle-on-feed report released after Friday's close.

The report "was constructive and friendly," to holders of nearby contracts, Levitt said.

"It showed a 5 percent increase in marketing during July, compared to the same period last year," he said. "It indicated that producers were willing to accept decent profits or profitible returns for feeding operations and that they were somewhat concerned over possible price weakness later this summer."

Government figures also showed an 11 percent increase in cattle inventories, which was not a surprise Levitt said, because of very light inventory figures the previous year.

Ben George, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Merrill Lynch Commodities, noted that a mid-week USDA report forecasting record corn and soybean crops, both of which are used to make livestock feed, provided some support to cattle prices. However, he noted, late-session profit-taking weakened prior gains.

Live cattle prices settled .22 cent to .53 cent higher, with contracts for delivery in August at 67.17 cents a pound; feeder cattle was .20 cent to 1.32 cent lower, with August at 72.72 cents a pound; live hogs were .40 cent lower to 1.35 cents higher, with August at 66.10 cents a pound; and pork bellies were .92 cent to 2 cents higher, with August at 91.85 cents a pound.

Grain and soybean futures prices rebounded slightly in light trading following heavy trading Thursday that sent prices plunging on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Bob Lekberg, a grains analyst in Chicago with Shearson American Express, said there was little news affecting futures prices.

DIRECTORY READY

R. I. Flye, district commercial and marketing manager for Carolina Telephone, said delivery has begun of the company's new telephone directory for Ayden, Bethel, Fountain, Farmville, Greenville and Snow Hiill.

Flye said customers who do not receive their new directory by Aug. 20 should call the telephone company business office.

NEW BUSINESS

The open house will be from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and the ribbon cutting is set for 1 p.m.

Lewis Brown is manager of the new firm and Jerry Lee is senior assistant manager. The business, offering mortgage lending, dealer financing and consumer loans, will operate from 8:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

NAMED TO BOARD

Wayne Peterson, president of Tarboro-based Carolina Telephone, has been appointed to a three-year term on the board of directors of the North Carolina Japan Center.

Founded at N.C. State University in 1980, the center is intended to strengthen the economic and cultural ties between North Carolina and Japan. It was established by authority of Gov. Jim Hunt and William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina system, with the cooperation of the N.C. Department of Commerce.

ASSISTANT VP

John Colon Williams has joined Planters National Bank's Greenville office, according to J. Richard Futrell Jr., executive vice president, and Ray Boleman, senior vice president and city executive.

An assistant vice president, Williams was associated with a major North Carolina bank for over nine years. In 1979, he formed J. C. Williams Inc. in Greenville.

A Chapel Hill native, he graduated from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He is married to the former Jo Lentz of Blowing Rock and they have one child.

MANAGER'S SESSION

David J. Hunkin of Greenville, an accident and health sales manager for Combined Insurance Co. of America, participated in a recent district manager's seminar.

Wayne Drye, divisional sales manager for Combined's accident and health division, said Hunkin is responsible for a group of sales representatives working in Pitt and surrounding counties.

NAME CHANGED

TRW Inc. announced that the company's Michigan Division is now the Steering & Suspension Division.

The division, which makes steering and suspension systems and components for cars, trucks, off-highway vehicles and farm equipment, has a manufacturing plant in Greenville.

Metric Board Prepares To Quit

By CARL HARTMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Metric Board is going out of business with a swan song that Americans are confused about whether their government wants them to convert from traditional Anglo-Saxon measures to metrics.

"Some still believe the country is being forced to convert, while others are impatient with the slowness of progress," retiring Chairman Louis F. Polk says in the board's final report.

The board is being abolished Sept. 30 as an economy measure, with a letter of thanks from President Reagan for its 4½-year job. "You have succeeded in your objective of educating the American people about the meaning of metric measurements in everyday life," Reagan wrote.

Like his predecessors, Reagan realized that few Americans are comfortable with anything but the traditional system of miles, quarts and pounds and refused to promote anything but voluntary conversion to metrics.

Americans familiar with the issue tend to have strong opinions, and politicians are reluctant to antagonize them.

"Small business supports voluntary conversion activities but will vehemently oppose any attempts by the federal government or other groups to impose mandatory conversion," said Roger E. Travis, a small businessman and member of the Metric Board.

But the board got this statement from a university in Albuquerque, N.M.:

"No nation has ever converted without making it mandatory or setting a date for conversion. We are alone in a world of metric measurement. Eventually, the United States will be metric because a progressive world will demand it."

Actually, the United States is already on a metric standard.

Since 1893, the yard has been legally defined as a fraction of a meter; and an inch is defined as 2.54 centimeters. Legally, the pound is 0.45359237 kilograms.

Beginning with the conversion of pharmacists and the military to metrics in the 1950s, the system has become more and more a part of the way Americans measure things, whether they like it or not.

Illuminated street signs, often sponsored by banks, give temperatures in Celsius as well as Fahrenheit figures. So do television weathermen. Gas stations began pricing by the liter after prices rose to more than $1 a gallon — 3.8 liters.

Packages on supermarket shelves often carry quantities in grams, but the normal housewife pays little attention. And road signs, particularly on the Interstates, are just beginning to give distances in kilometers.

The big surge in imported autos from Japan, West Germany, Italy and France and has prompted mechanics to switch to metric tools. Other industries have fallen into line in order to increase their foreign sales — data processing being the most recent to start planning a conversion.

By federal fiat, liquor and wine are now sold in liters rather than pints, gallons, quarts and fifths. But beer is still regulated by the states, and 32 of them have no metric policy of any kind, according to the Metric Board's report.

Accent On Living

Fiddlin' Around

Connie, Laura and Cindy Wallace, 13, 14 and 16, resin up their bows, then strike up a tune with their father, Dr. Will Wallace. For three years the group has played bluegrass for civic clubs and rescue squads and in June they entertained visitors at the World's Fair. Wallace taught his daughters to fiddle bluegrass style.

Music-Making Makes Fun For Fiddlin' Family Of Five

The three sisters line up, with bows and fiddles in hand. Papa turns slightly, facing them and the audience with his guitar.

One sister taps her foot, another counts one, two, three ... and a combination of tone and rhythm, spiced with the flavor of Virginia bluegrass via eastern North Carolina, is carved from the four stringed instruments.

Dr. Will Wallace and his daughters spend their time fiddlin' around. They fiddle for friends and they fiddle for fans, but most of all they make music for fun.

For three years Wallace, pastor of the First Christian Church in Greenville, and daughters Connie, 13, Laura, 14, and Cindy, 16, have worked on their music act as a family and, whenever they can, they share it with others.

The four make up a bluegrass group — dubbed The Wallace Family — of three fiddlers (the girls) and a mandolin-player-switched-to-the-guitar (the father.) Gail Wallace (mother and wife) is the group's business manager, handling engagements and advising on music selection.

"It got started when I grew up in Virginia," Wallace said. "I was very familiar with country and bluegrass music. It was part of my background.

"When I came to Greenville, my daughters took classical violin. Then I taught them to fiddle."

The group performs for civic groups, rescue squads, senior citizens and school groups. In June, they entertained visitors at the World's Fair in Knoxville, Tenn., doing six 20-minute shows in the North Carolina Pavilion.

"The place was packed," Mrs. Wallace said. "In fact, after we were through, they asked us to do another show but the girls were exhausted and we said no."

The World's Fair performance gave the group a taste of what it's like to be professionals, added Mrs. Wallace. "They had to come on, give a show and be enthusiastic, then come out and do it again and again even though they were tired," she said.

The group practices at least four hours before each performance, said the father, and "needs to spend" three hours per day for a week to master a new song.

"We will not perform," he emphasized, "unless we have it just right. Now that's the truth."

"I do the arrangements and choose the songs," he added. "Our new music I pick from songs I hear that I like."

All four performers play by ear but the girls also read music, thanks to their classical background. They learn new numbers by ear because that's the way their father teaches them.

What songs they perform depends on the season of year and their audience, the father said. "If it's around Christmas, we play lots of Christmas music, of course," he said.

"If it's a ladies' night function, we'll put in something ladies will like — 'Goodnight Ladies', for example, or 'Darling Clementine.' If it's just men we stick mostly with country and bluegrass."

Their favorite, agreed all four, is the classic "Orange Blossom Special," along with "Blow the Cabbage Down" and "Slewfoot." Among popular requests are "Old Joe Clark" and "Back Up and Push."

There are times, say all four group members, when nobody wants to practice. And there are times when someone hits a wrong note.

But "usually, if it's one of us," said Connie, "you really can't hear a sour note because the other two fiddles will cover it up. We just keep hoping nobody hits wrong notes at the same time."

Despite the infrequent sour notes and the long practice hours, the group loves their music-making. "It gives me energy," said Laura. "It makes me feel good."

"And I like to see the smiles of the people we play for," added Connie.

The group promotes closeness between mother, father and three teen-age daughters, said the girls. "It keeps the family together," said Cindy.

Will any of the girls pursue music as a career?

"I don't know, I might look into it," said Cindy.

"I'd like to be a professional studio musician," said Laura.

"Really, what we want is to take the Mandrells' place," said Connie with a smile.

A Family Act

United Nations Has Four Women Envoys

By O.C. DOELLING
Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Call them "madam" — a rare title in the diplomatic lounges of the male-dominated United Nations on New York's East River.

One is an Oklahoma wildcatter's daughter who gained Cabinet-rank and aroused controversy in the Reagan Administration.

Another, thanks to early schooling by American missionaries, became the first woman in Liberia to earn a Ph.D.

A third is a career diplomat who forged a pioneering trail for women in the Belgian foreign service.

Seven years into the United Nations Decade for Women, only four of the 157 diplomatic missions here are headed by women. Small wonder that U.S. Ambassador Jeane Jordan Kirkpatrick scores the "pure rank sexism" of U.N. diplomacy.

"She is very right," says Liberian Ambassador Abeodu Bowen Jones. Mrs. Jones, who earned her doctorate in world history and African studies from Northwestern University in 1962, does not suffer male chauvinists lightly, feeling as she does that "the female species is far stronger than the male."

This Liberian-American community of feminist spirit was demonstrated during a recent Security Council debate on the Falklands conflict. Both the U.S. and Liberian envoys became incensed when Panamanian Foreign Minister Jorge Enrique Illueca assailed what he considered the intransigence of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and attributed it to the "glandular system of women."

Their female colleagues from Belgium and the Seychelles take a more tolerant view of the United Nations' men in pin-striped suits.

"I never had any difficulties," comments Belgian Ambassador Edmonde Dever. At 62, she is the only woman ambassador in her country's foreign service.

Pausing, she concedes a woman in her position is burdened with "a responsibility toward other women in the sense that you have to be careful not to make mistakes, because then people will say, 'Well, she did that because she is a woman' — even if a man would have made the same mistakes."

At 29, Giovinella Gonthier is the youngest chief delegate at U.N. headquarters and practically the only diplomat the Indian Ocean island state of the Seychelles has posted abroad.

Ms. Gonthier, whose title is charge d'affaires, finds her male colleagues here to be "not paternalistic but helpful."

"I've always been treated as an equal," she says.

When she first came to the United Nations two years ago, she admits, she was "naive and had a lot to learn about diplomacy. I accepted that and I'm always ready to turn to my colleagues for help."

Of French and Indian descent, Ms. Gonthier was educated in Tanzania and Kenya.

Liberia's Mrs. Jones, who wears the long loose dress known as a lappa, also represents a revolutionary government that came to power in recent years. Mrs. Jones belongs to the indigenous Liberian majority that had been subservient from 1847 to 1980 to a ruling elite composed of freed American slaves and their descendants.

Education opportunities for the native population were very limited when she was a girl and, if it hadn't been for the schooling provided by American Episcopal missionaries, she says, "I wouldn't be here today." Despite her origins, however, she previously served as minister of post and of health in the pre-revolutionary government.

While she is reluctant to discuss her personal life, the Liberian envoy says she left a "household of five" in Monrovia. Her husband, Dr. Nyema Jones, a geologist and former minister of lands and mines, "graciously allowed the government to send me to New York" — but on condition that her job make a meaningful contribution and not be an "empty assignment," she says.

Her prime concern at the United Nations is the world's poorest nations. She envisions their economic salvation through a "global Marshall plan," on the order of the massive U.S. aid program that spurred the recovery of Western Europe after World War II.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick complained recently of the United States' "unhappy fall

MRS. STEVEN VANN MILLIGAN

Miss Tugwell Is Married

FARMVILLE — Christy Lee Tugwell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Tugwell, and Steven Vann Milligan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Milligan, all of Farmville, were united in marriage Saturday afternoon.

The Rev. Harley Owens conducted the double ring ceremony at five o'clock in Monk Memorial Methodist Church. A program of piano music was presented by Mrs. Ronnie Avery of Farmville, cousin of the bride. James Christopher Holloman of Simpson, brother-in-law of the bride, was vocalist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and embroidered chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline, sheer yoke accented with gathered point d'esprit ruffle which also formed the sleeves. The lace-bordered tiered skirt flowed into an attached chapel train.

The honor attendant was the bride's sister, Mrs. James Christopher Holloman of Simpson. The father of the bridegroom was best man.

Ushers were Ronald Gregory Tugwell, brother of the bride, and Terry Lee Milligan, brother of the bridegroom, both of Farmville.

After a wedding trip to Boone, the couple will made their home near Greenville.

The bride is employed at Eastern OBS-GYN Associates, PA in Greenville. The bridegroom is employed at Farrior & Sons, Inc. in Farmville.

A reception for the bridal couple was held at the church given by Nancy Hudson, Janice Jones, Karen Mozingo, Diane Young, Denice Smith and Beth Summerlin.

Hambidge-Little Vows Solemnized Saturday

CHARLOTTE — The marriage of Pamela Diane Little and Peter Deyman Hambidge was solemnized in a double ring ceremony performed here Saturday afternoon at four o'clock.

The Rev. Richard P. Shaw conducted the ceremony in the Albemarle Road Presbyterian Church. A program of organ music was presented by Marvelyn Headrick, organist. The wedding coordinator was Margaret Ann Wetzler.

MRS. PETER DEYMAN HAMBIDGE

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Avery Little of Charlotte. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henry Hambidge of Montvale, N.J.

The bride is a kindergarten teacher in the Pitt County School System. She attended Appalachian State University and graduated with a B.S. degree from East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a division manager with Belk Tyler of Greenville. He graduated from Appalachian State University.

The sister of the bride, Karen Little of Arnold, Md., was honor attendant and the bridesmaids included Lisa Elrod, Penny Henderson, Leslie Moore and Dusty Woodbury, all of Greenville.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Matt and Todd Hambidge of Montvale, N.J., brothers of the bridegroom, Eric Miller of High Point and Kim Waters of Richmond, Va.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza designed with a sweetheart neckline. The fitted bodice was enhanced with alencon lace with seed pearls. The long sheer sleeves were finished with matching lace appliques. The gown was complemented with a modified A-line skirt with attached chapel length train accented with alencon lace with pearls. She wore a picture hat of white silk organza and seed pearls. Fingertip silk illusion encircled the crown forming a bow. She carried a formal bouquet of white and yellow daisies, yellow miniature roses, white carnations with dusty blue stephanotis accented with sprays of baby's breath entwined with ivy and tied with white ribbon.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

A wedding brunch was given Saturday morning by Betty Fowler and her daughter, Anne, for the wedding party and out-of-town guests at their home. A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at the Firelight Inn after the rehearsal Friday night. Out-of-town wedding guests and friends of the couple honored them with a party afterwards at the home of the bride's parents.

A bridesmaids luncheon, given by the bride's mother and bridegroom's mother, was held Friday at Steak and Ale.

Engagement Announced

Wedding Vows Spoken Saturday Afternoon

MRS. EDWARD THOMAS SMITH JR.

MARLBORO — Pamela Lynn Harrell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Eugene Beamon of Farmville, and Edward Thomas Smith Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Thomas Smith Sr. of Kinston, were married Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The double ring ceremony was performed in the Marlboro Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Scott Sowers. Emerson Hobgood sang "Endless Love," "Wedding Prayer," "If" and "Wedding Song." Janie Sowers was organist for the ceremony.

The bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with silk Venise lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice was enhanced with a sheer organza yoke outlined in beaded silk Venise lace. The full circular skirt and attached semi-cathedral train were fashioned with a flounce of organza accented with miniature chantilly lace and edged with silk Venise lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion edged in silk Venise lace held in place by a caplet overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a silk nosegay of pink sweetheart roses, dusty rose, tiger lilies, baby's breath and delphinium with satin and lace streamers. She was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father.

Sue Ellen Beamon of Farmville, sister of the bride, was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Gail Wooten of Kinston, Betsy Stanley of Farmville, Kim Warren of Stokes and Karen McCown of Rembert, S.C., sister of the bridegroom. Debra Dianne Beamon, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid and the flower girl was Jessica Lea Jenkins, cousin of the bride. Both are from Farmville.

Hank Jenkins of Farmville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer while the father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers included Mark McCown of Rembert, S.C., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Linwood E. Hobgood Jr., uncle of the bride of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., Pres Edwards of Kinston, Jeff Hill of Hugo, Stuart Peoples of Dover and Harold Sutton of Bucklesberry.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of mauve crystal silesta designed with a portrait neckline edged in piping accented with miniature tie bows at the shoulders, blouson bodice with short split sleeves and a flared skirt. The attendants wore identical gowns in a constrasting shade of rosebud. They each wore baby's breath in their hair and carried a silk flower basket of sweetheart roses, dusty rose, tiger lilies, baby's breath and delphinium. The junior bridesmaid wore a formal gown of pink organza designed with an open neckline enhanced by a ruffle of organza. She wore baby's breath in her hair and carried a flower basket identical to those of the other attendants. The flower girl carried a basket of silk flowers like those of the bridesmaids and wore a long white dotted swiss dress designed with a high neckline enhanced by lace and short puffed sleeves She wore baby's breath in her hair.

The couple will live in Kinston after a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va.

The bride is employed by Pavilion Internist in Greenville and graduated from Pitt Community College. The bridegroom attended Lenoir Community College in Kinston and works at Nantucket in Kinston.

A reception was held at the DAR House in Farmville and was given by the parents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Holland of Kinston, aunt and uncle of the bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. George Mumford of Kinston, aunt and uncle of the bride, greeted guests and said good-byes.

Punch was poured by Mrs. Dick Allen of Farmville and Mrs. Harold Hobgood of Virginia, aunts of the bride. Wedding cake was served by Mrs. Jesse Brann of Farmville, aunt of the bride.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. James Dawson and Mrs. Alvis Tyndall. Mrs. C.M. Ward and Angelia Hobgood presided at the guest register.

An after-rehearsal dinner and party was given by the bridegroom's parents at the Colonial Inn in Farmville Friday night.

from influence to impotence" at the United Nations because "we simply behaved like a bunch of amateurs." She included herself in the critique, saying American U.N. representatives "need to become more thoroughly professional at this job than we are."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick's much publicized policy differences with the administration over Poland and Latin America and her reported feud with ex-Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. have given rise to periodic rumors that she wanted to resign.

If she does quit her U.N. post before the end of President Reagan's first term, more mundane factors may prevail, insiders indicate.

Despite the perks and prestige of the job, her access to the president and cherished participation on the National Security Council, it has meant leading "an unnatural life." Much of her time is spent shuttling between New York and Washington, or travelling for speaking engagements or foreign missions.

Her official residence is a suite in New York's Waldorf Towers. She lives in Bethesda, Md., outside of Washington, and close to the Georgetown University campus where was professor of government for 13 years before joining the Reagan administration.

She admits that she misses being "a writer, a thinker, a teacher." The 55-year-old political scientist has been married for 27 years to Evron M. Kirkpatrick, who now is president of board of the Helen Dwight Reid Educational Foundation. The Kirkpatricks have three sons.

Couple Marries In Charlotte Saturday

CHARLOTTE — Laura Helen Wayne and Michael Floyd Gooding were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Myers Park United Methodist Church here. Dr. Thomas B. Stockton officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H.M. Wayne Jr. of Charlotte and parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Daniel Gooding of Winterville.

Organist was Walter Ball and soloist was Alan Turner.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a long candlelight gown of tissue taffeta and French re-embroidered alencon lace. The bodice featured a natural waistline with cummerbun, portrait neckline and double flounced short sleeves. Candlelight silk flowers enhanced the shoulderline. Appliques of alencon lace, seed pearls and iridescents accented the bodice. The full A-line skirt was designed with a chapel length train bordered with a flounce. The bride chose a chapel length mantilla attached to a Camelot cap. Alencon lace and seed pearls covered the cap and motifs of matching lace and pearls were used on the scalloped illusion.

Serving as maid of honor was Suzanne Wayne, sister of the bride of Charlotte. She wore a floor length gown of candlelight chiffon and violet tissue taffeta. The A-line gown featured a natural waistline with cummerbund, sheer yoke, high neckline with ruffled stand-up collar and double flounce sleeves. Venise lace daisies accented the bodice.

Bridesmaids were Kay Avery, Carol Sumrell, both of Greenville, Beth Sytz, Ginna Schrum, Missy Berry, all of Charlotte, Kim Sigmon of Burlington and Louise Parker of Cedartown, Ga. They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. The attendants carried violets, sweetheart yellow roses, purple statice, daisies and baby's breath in a crescent shape.

Best man was the father of the bridegroom. Ushers included Donald Avery, Robert Guy, Phil Nichols, Chris Sumrell, all of Greenville, Bo Wayne of Charlotte, Sandy Peele of Winston-Salem, John Spilman of Morehead City, Ed Hall and Ernie Massei of Dallas, Tex.

A reception was held at the Myers Park Country Club. The rehearsal dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Daniel Goodin and was held at Myers Park Country Club in Charlotte.

The bride attended Converse College in Spartanburg, S.C. and will be a senior at East Carolina University.

After a wedding trip from North Myrtle Beach, the couple will reside in Greenville.

NEW YORK (AP) — More than 45 percent of the average home's heat can be lost through windows, according to the Vinyl Window & Door Institute.

Air infiltrates loose window frames or poorly sealed window panes. Warm inside air in winter is lost, while cool inside air escapes in the summer.

Miss Smith Says Vows

GRANITE QUARRY — Marian Corinne Smith and James Stephen Mault Jr. were married Saturday evening at seven o'clock in a double ring ceremony performed in Shiloh United Methodist Church here.

The Rev. D. Bryan Fox performed the ceremony. Elizabeth Linn of Landis, organist, and Ann Harrington of China Grove, soloist, presented a program of wedding music.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. James Madison Smith of Salisbury and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Mault of Salisbury.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Elaine Smith of Salisbury, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and bridesmaids included Jeni Russell and Teresa Lowdermilk of Salisbury, Gigi Bringle, cousin of the bridegroom of China Grove, Sharon DeRhodes of Charlotte, Barbara Bist of Columbus, Ga. and Becky Graves of Boone. Amanda Hudson of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Benjamin Dennis of Greenville was ring bearer. Ushers included Mike Russell and Jack Caviness of Salisbury, Don Bringle of China Grove, Richard Rognstad of Charlotte, Rick King of Asheville and Martin Poole of New York.

The bride is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and received her master's from UNC-Charlotte. The bridegroom graduated from Western Carolina University. She is employed by the Mooresville Graded School District and the bridegroom works at Cone Mills Plant in Salisbury.

The bride wore a candlelight gown designed with a Queen Anne neckline and long straight sleeves. The bodice was covered with re-embroidered alencon lace and accented with sequins and seed pearls. The front of the A-line skirt had a pyramid of re-embroidered alencon lace and the skirt extended into a chapel length train which was edged with matching lace. Her waltz length veil of silk illusion, encircled with matching lace, was attached to a lace and pearled Juliet cap. She carried a cascading bouquet of silk summer tea roses, lily of the valley and variegated ivy accented with lavender and pink gypsophila. It was centered with an orchid.

The honor attendant and bridesmaids all wore long sleeveless gowns of lavender voile designed with fitted bodices and gathered skirts. The scooped necklines were accented with a ruffle and the waistlines were belted with contrasting ribbons. They carried a bouquet of cascading violets, lavender and pink gypsophila and ivy. The honor attendant's flowers were similar to those of the bride.

The flower girl wore a long dress of lavender voile with a candlelight eyelet pinafore. She carried a basket accented with violets and ribbons.

The reception followed in the church fellowship building where guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. James E. Mathis.

The tables were centered with mixed lavendar, violet and pink flowers with candelabra. Linda Brown, Margaret Brown, Esther Jackson and Rubelle Pollard, aunts of the bride, assisted in serving.

The couple will live in Salisbury after a wedding trip to New York.

An after-rehearsal dance was held at the Salisbury Country Club given by Mr. and Mrs. Merle Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Huneycutt, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Powless. The bridegroom's parents entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Holiday Inn in Salisbury.

A bridesmaids luncheon was given for the bride by Mary Ida Mathis, Juanita Walters and Myra Rand.

The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. Corinne P. Brown and the late Mr. Frank M. brown and the late Mr. and Mrs. Major Smith, all of Greenville.

Cynthia Ann Hardee Is Saturday Bride

Cynthia Ann Hardee and Terry Michael Duncan were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at four o'clock in the Berean Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Gene Wood.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd E. Hardee of Ayden and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Aden E. Duncan of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Pat Wood of Ayden. Floyd E. Hardee, father of the bride, sang "Whither Thou Goest." Kathy Hill of Grifton sang "You Needed Me" and "The Wedding Prayer." Mrs. Hill and Carol Smith of Ayden sang "I Pledge My Love."

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with silk floral Venise lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer yoke embellished with pearls, rhinestones and Venise lace appliques that extended to the waistline. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were accentuated with a ruffled flounce at the hemline bordered in silk floral Venise lace with rows of miniature lace trim. She wore a fingertip length veil of illusion bordered in floral Venise lace attached to a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace. She carride a traditional cascade of forever yours roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

Matron of honor was Joy Nichols, sister of the bride. She wore a formal gown of blue lustreglo designed with a V-neckline outlined in cording, chiffon blouson bodice and short chiffon split sleeves. A self-fabric rolled tie sash encircled the waistline from which fell the gathered skirt. She carried long-stemmed white carnations tipped in blue and tied with blue satin ribbons.

Bridesmaids were Melissa Adams of Grimesland, Tammy and Teresa Duncan, sisters of the bridegroom, both of Greenville. They wore gowns styled like the honor attendant and carried identical flowers.

The flower girl was Janelle Stocks, cousin of the bride. She wore a floor length dress of white organza and carried a basket of mixed summer flower petals.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers included Jerry Nichols of Grimesland, brother-in-law of the bride, Tony Butler of Ayden, and Wayne Hardee, brother of the bride, of Ayden. Billy Suggs of Greenville served as ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of pink lustreglo designed with a high neckline. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of peach crepe designed with a rounded neckline. Both wore a double white carnation corsage.

The grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Madison Hardee of Ayden, Mrs. Esley Duncan of Greenville, S.C. and Mrs. Inez Gill of Heflin, Ala., were given white carnation corsages.

The wedding was directed by Sybil Morris of Ayden. Donna Johnson of Alabama presided at the guest register and distributed programs. Paula Brown of Alabama distributed rice bags.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained at a reception at Rose Hill Free Will Baptist Church fellowship hall. Shelby Brannon served cake and Iva Lou Hardee, aunt of the bride, poured punch. The first slice of cake was cut by the bridal couple.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and friends with a pig picking after the rehearsal Friday night at their home.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and received an associate degree in nursing at Pitt Community College. She is employed as a registered nurse by Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Lifegate Christian School and is currently employed with M.A. Stewart Landscaping and Grading Inc. of Charlotte.

Following a wedding trip to the Outer Banks, the couple will reside at Route 2, Ayden.

MRS. TERRY MICHAEL DUNCAN

Outterbridge

Greensboro. She wore a long white gown of polyester and cotton voile lined in acetate taffeta and accented with white lace. She carried a basket of yellow and white orchids with a white bow and streamers.

For her daughetr's wedding, Mrs. Tucker wore a formal yellow jersey gown with a sheer yoke trimmed in yellow Venise lace. She also wore a corsage of daisies. The bridegroom's oldest sister wore a long gown of orchid, pink and yellow and a wrist corsage identical to that of the bride's mother.

Frank Wilson, brother-in-law of the bridegroom of New Jersey, served as best man. The ring barer was Derrick Knight of Winterville. Ushers were Robert Outterbridge of Maryland, Warren Outterbridge of Greenville and Marvin Outterbridge of Greensboro, all brothers of the bridegroom.

A reception was held after the wedding in the church's educational building. The bride's table was decorated in red and white. The guests were greeted by Mrs. Willie M. Allison and Mrs. Billie Outterbridge, sister-in-law of the bride and bridegroom. Josephine Bond, cousin of the bridegroom, introduced the bridal couple to guests. Souvenirs were given out by Barbara Scott and Denise Outterbridge, nieces of the bridal couple. Punch was poured by Jean Mills and Gloria O. Coker and cake was served by Doris Vines and Jackie O. Parks. Good-byes were said by Essie Ancrum and Mamie Scott, sister of the bride.

The wedding was directed by Paulette Dove and Sarah Outterbridge. A miscellaneous bridal shower was given by Angie Cannon, Margaret Knight and Paulette Dove Tuesday.

After a wedding trip to unannounced places, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride attended East Carolina University and the bridegroom attended A&T State University. Both are employed by the Pitt County Schools, he is an art teacher and the she is a history teacher.

In 1930, Sinclair Lewis became the first American author to win the Nobel Prize for Literature.

MUSIC AND PICTURES — will be the topic of a N.C. Museum of Art gallery talk by docent Carolyn Lane beginning at 2:15 p.m. Sunday, August 22. Her talk will be accompanied by recorded music during discussions of paintings on the tour. Among works to be discussed is "Peasants at a Roadside Inn" (shown above) by Pieter Brueghel the Younger, a Flemish painter who lived from 1564 to 1638. This gallery talk will be the last event at the N.C. Museum at its present location at 107 E. Morgan Street, downtown Raleigh. The museum's permanent collection will be on view through August 31, at which time the museum will close. It will reopen at its new site in the new Museum of Art building on Blue Ridge Boulevard in April 1983. (Photo Courtesy N.C. Museum of Art)

Marine Center Events

ATLANTIC BEACH — Events are scheduled each day of the week at the North Carolina Marine Resource Center, Bogue Banks, located six miles west of Atlantic Beach in the Theodore Roosevelt Natural Area. All events are open to the public and there is no cost involved.

For programs requiring preregistration, those wishing to attend are to call 726-0121 in advance.

The week's calendar is:

DOES ANYBODY KNOW — the name of this little bug? Only about three-eights of an inch long, the six-legged orange and black insect seems to like humans — or at least he resisted efforts to be shaken from the hand of the person he adopted. Instead of escaping as quickly as possible, as most insects do, the non-flying little creature sought refuge between the man's fingers or played among the hairs of his hand. He is not pictured in insect references consulted. Anyone knowing the identify of this friendly insect is asked to call Jerry Raynor at 752-6166. (Reflector Staff Photo)

A Review

Strange Twists In S.C. Tales

Tales of the South Carolina Low Country. By Nancy Rhyne. Winston-Salem. John F. Blair, Publisher. 1982. Paper, 93 pages. $5.95.

Nearly everybody loves a good spooky tale, and Tar Heel writer (from Mount Holly) has penned 14 choice items from the low (swamp) country of the other Carolina, the one south of North Carolina. These tales are drawn from numerous interviews with people in the area as well as from earlier recorded folk tales. The big disappointment of this treasurable volume is that she didn't include about 14 more.

In the prologue, Ms. Rhyne sets the stage for telling us "Superstitions, customs, and folk expressions survive in the Low Country, and the folklore communicates the flavor and excitement of the early settlers" . . . and . . . "There are still hundreds of people in the South Carolina Low Country who believe in witchraft and the effects of voodoo practices."

For various reasons, some will frown upon the author's claim that there are those who still believe in witchraft and voodoo. Be that as it may, the folklore of the state (and the South) would be poorer if all traces of these ancient beliefs had disappeared.

In several of the stories, the names of real, sometimes well-known people appear — i.e., Bernard Baruch, "a man who made millions on Wall Street" figures in "The Ghost of Thomas Young." This sad story is one of the best in the collection. Thomas Young, a Colonial era planter of moderate means living near Georgetown, harbored one dream — to build a stately mansion that would be the center of the area's social life, a place that would overshadow the brilliant social reputation of King Billy Alston's home, Clifton Place.

Ill fortune and an untimely death, said to have been brought on by feverish work to build the house before a visit by Washington, put an end to Young's dreams. For years, local people told of seeing the ghost of Young at night, holding a lantern, roaming the site of the unfinished mansion.

The ghost of Thomas Young made its final recorded visit to the site on Easter Sunday, 1944. That was the day President Roosevelt visited Bellefield, home of Baruch's daughter that had been built on the site of Young's ruin. Local people say Young's ghost could finally rest — his house site had finally been visited by a real celebrity.

One persistent, fascinating legend is that hurricanes occur when a mermaid is captured (by man) from Murrells Inlet. Reportedly, the terrible storm will not subside until the captive maiden is returned to her Atlantic Ocean home.

This legend is the theme of "The Mermaid Storm," a tragic account of the Flagg family, one of prominent doctors, losing family members while vacationing on Magnolia, a coastal island. From first plans for the island outing, the family's black maid, Clarissa, sounded alarms about a mermaid storm coming, but to no avail. When the predicted storm did arrive, many victims, including several members of young Dr. Flagg's family, perished in the raging October hurricane.

A much lighter vein is probed in a comic folktale, "Uncle Hardtimes and Mom Pleasant." Hungering for money of his own, Uncle Hardtimes hit upon a scheme of telling his master he needed money to bury his wife. The master gave him $25. Excited, he rushed home to tell Mom Pleasant of his good fortune. She too decided she'd like some money, so the next morning, Mom Pleasant, encountering her mistress, asked for $25 to bury poor dead Uncle Hardtimes. Naturally the master and mistress compared notes and decided to visit the pair. Seeing them come up, the two fell as if dead on the floor. In their presence, the master exclaimed he'd give $25 to know which died first. Immediately, each jumped up saying "I died first!" (End of tale).

Tales of slavery, of eerie events, tales touched with a down-home humor are all included in this enjoyable small volume. Maybe Ms. Rhyne will give us more of these soon. They're truly entertaining — and informative.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JUNE PARKER

Among the new fiction at Sheppard Memorial Library are several books which are sure to attract quite a bit of attention. Two are written by North Carolina authors.

"Till Morning Comes" by Han Suyin, the author of "A Many-Splendored Thing," has written a love story set against the political turmoil and intrigue of modern China from the closing days of World War II and Chiang Kai-Shek's rule of almost warlord tyranny through Mao and the Cultural Revolution. Stephanie Ryder, a foreign correspondent and daughter of a Texas aircraft manufacturer, falls in love with and marries Dr. Jen Yong, a steel-willed, dedicated agent of the communist revolutionaries. This story details the twists and turns of the Mao regime's effect on this one family.

"The Only Place To Be" is the first novel of Joan Juliet Buck, a contributing editor of "Vogue." For Charlene Bromley, the only place to be is in the center of glamour, gossip and publicity. Her desire for this kind of life takes her through a succession of husbands — an orange grove tycoon, a mobster showman and a movie director, and places — Paris in the '50s, London in the '60s, and America in the '70s.

Her often neglected daughter, Iris, in her desperate search for a way to make her mark in this idolized world, decides to become a journalist. At the expense of a few friends, she establishes herself as a leading journalist for "Lookout," the hottest of the New York gossip magazines. Here she begins to see this world from a new perspective. This irreverent, funny, sad, and wise book casts a cold, clear light on this world of illusion.

"Death on the Eno" by Amanda Mackey, who lives in Durham, is a mystery starring the delightful Dr. Hannah Land, professer of political science at Duke University and amateur detective. The mystery centers around a drowning which the police think is accidental and which may also be connected with the truckloads of cigarettes that have been hijacked out of Durham. This old-fashioned mystery takes Hannah deep into the tobacco country to the rambling homestead of an old Southern family who appears to have answers to some of the questions arising from the mystery.

"Felice" by Angela Davis-Gardner, who lives in Raleigh, tells of the antics of a 12-year-old Nova Scotia girl on the brink of growing up at a 1920s French colony convent school. She entertains her friends with the fantasies she spins and others' expectations of her. She is drawn to elderly, slightly mad Sister Agatha, a former fresco painter.

Felice dreams of sainthood but she finds obstacles along her way to purity, primarily in the form of a mute, injured man recuperating in the convent school's infirmary. This man soon becomes the focal point for the girls' active imaginations. After a struggle with glimses of another world through Sister Agatha and the mute man, Felice has to say farewell to her childhood and her misinterpretations of religion.

Wanted To Be Preacher

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — When it dawned on Samuel Clemens his only saleable skill was "scribbling" humorous stories, he became unhappy being Mark Twain.

In the letter written just prior to his becoming well known for his stories, Clemens told his brother he would much rather be a preacher of the gospel. But he said he could not acquire the "necessary stock in trade — i.e. religion."

The letter is among 9,000 of Twain's personal papers and private letters in possession of the University of California Bancroft Library.

"If I do not get out of debt in three months — pistols or poison for one — exit me," Twain told his older brother, Orion.

The letter was written Oct. 19, 1865, from San Francisco where Twain was eking out a living by selling stories to various newspapers. He had submitted his famous jumping frog story to an eastern publication, but had no inkling of the tremendous reception it would get.

"I never had but two powerful ambitions in my life," Twain wrote. "One was to be a (river) pilot, and the other a preacher of the gospel."

Feeling himself frustrated in what he really wanted to be, Twain acknowledged that he could write a funny story.

"It is nothing to be proud of, but it is my strong suit," he wrote.

The disclosure that Twain seriously wanted to be a preacher is surprising in view of the agnosticism and irreverence in his writing, said Bob Hirst, director of the Mark Twain Project at the library.

"The interesting thing about this letter is that the calling, the vocation as a humorist, was something he accepted reluctantly," Hirst said. "It was not something that was highly regarded in the society in which he lived."

Mark Twain told his brother to burn the letter because, if he should become a successful writer, "I don't want any absurd 'literary remains' and 'unpublished letters of Mark Twain' published after I am planted."

AMUSING?

We Find It Amusing That Senator (?) John East Can Say, "I, Personally, Have No Interest in Denying an Adult His Right To Smoke Cigarettes, Nor Would I Endorse The Federal Effort To Impose Unnecessary Regulations On Our Citizens."

Yet, John East is In Favor To Deny, Impose, Regulate, and Control A Womans Reproductive Freedom of Choice.

We Think It Is Timely That The Senator (?) Does Not Want To Be Associated With A Republican Party That Aligns Itself With Right Wing Groups, Associates Itself With Moral Majorities That Want To Regulate The Moral Behavior Of The Entire Country, That Contains Most Of The Bigots and Zealots This Country Has Ever Seen, That Supports Foreign Aid To Countries Which Infringe On Human Rights, And Will Pass The Biggest Federal Budget In History!

Frankly, We Were Hoping He and His Other Half, Senator (?) Jesse Helms (NO) Would Have Quit Months Ago.

Rastafarian Trio Finds Niche

By RIK DANIELSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — With songs about oppression and social strife, Afrikan Dreamland seems 15 years out of date and misplaced amid Nashville's country music industry.

But the members of the blues-reggae trio — guitarist Ashid Himons, percussionist Darrell Rose and flutist Mustafa Abdul-aleen — say they're in it for principle rather than profit.

"When people hear us sing about the world's problems, they'll know about the problems," says Himons. "We don't want to tell people what to do, but we believe the truth will prevail when people know and start talking to each other."

The members of the group are Rastafarians, and follow Rasta doctrines. From the Bible's Book of Numbers, Rastas took the command — the oath of the Nazarites which Jesus also took — never to cut their hair.

Afrikan Dreamland's members say the Rasta lifestyle is not necessary to achieve "harmony" with Jah, the Rasta supreme being. What is necessary, they say, is receiving the Rastafarian message, and the message is in music.

"We play many traditional African beats, and you listen to that basic, hypnotic beat and pretty soon you're taken away — closer to Jah," said Rose, whose group plays in clubs around Nashville.

During the 1960s, violence rocked Jamaica and the police and government blamed the Rastas. Actions taken to scatter the Rastas brought out the political and rebellious themes in the music.

"Reggae first of all is political in its connotation," Rose said. "The songs are about oppression and not having as much as others, but there are also love songs that say man's survival depends on love.

"Reggae came out of ska, which is super high-energy music, but it is also music with a message," Himons said. "I don't believe in any system of governing beings. Beings should govern themselves and share. Somebody would call me a socialist because I say 'share,' but everything has to be shared."

Himons, who started out singing in a gospel choir and later went into soul and blues, said he, like all Rastas, believes the "truth will prevail" when people share knowledge among themselves and communicate.

Dance Auditions

Auditions to select dancers for Class II at the North Carolina Academy of Dance Arts on Dickinson Avenue are being held beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday, August 24.

Petrus von Muyden, dance faculty member of the Department of Drama, East Carolina University, and Sherryl Mercer, proprietor of the academy and a dance instructor, will conduct the auditions.

Boys and girls of ages 10-13 are invited to audition. For more information, call 355-2140.

The Academy is now in the process of forming a Civic Dance Company for young people ages 10-17. Such a company would be designed to give dance students an opportunity to perform in area schools, and possibly to present a community performance of "The Nutcracker" during the Christmas season.

Now in its fifth year in Greenville, the Academy last year set up a special program headed by von Muyden for students intrested in a concentrated dance program.

Students selected have classes five days weekly, with training continuing through the summer.

ECU Piano Program Registration Open

The School of Music, East Carolina University will begins its 1982-83 Piano Pedagogy Program for children at a date to be announced soon.

The program of instruction combines private piano and group musicianship classes for pre-college students. Skills in reading, aural perception, repertoire and technique are included in the curriculum.

The program, now in its eighth year, is coordinated by E. Gregory Nagode, Assistant Professor of Music. The Piano Pedagogy Program has received special recognition for its thoroughness from the National Conference on Piano Pedagogy.

In addition to his teaching duties at ECU, Nagode is an active workshop clinician.

He is also founder and current president of the Greenville Piano Teachers Association.

Persons interested in the program are to contact Nagode at 757-6331 or 758-0451 for further information and an interview appointment.

SAVED BY COURT

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The Supreme Court on Thursday saved an aging fortune teller from the electric chair, but ruled the septagenarian must spend the rest of his life in jail for a murder he allegedly committed to make a prediction come true.

The Statue of Liberty was unveiled Oct. 28, 1886, at ceremonies on Bedloe's Island, now Liberty Island, in New York harbor. President Grover Cleveland and the sculptor who created the statue, Auguste Bartholdi, were among the notables present. The statue was a gift to America from France.

Strange Seafood Day Thursday

BEAUFORT — Fried Squid. Yaupon tea. Marinated octopus. Sea urchin eggs. Seaweed salad. Shark stew.

That's not the usual fare at a restaurant. Not even a seafood restaurant. But that will be the fare Thursday at Hamptons Mariners Museum's sixth annual "Strange Seafoods Exhibition."

The 1-4 p.m. program this year will not only let anyone who dares taste the unusual morsels from the sea, but also will show how these seafoods are harvested and prepared.

More than 40 "strange" dishes will be served at the event which shows the vast array of unusual yet delectable gastronomic delights which can be gleaned from the sea.

The food is prepared by many of this historic town's residents who have cooked, baked, sauteed, stewed or whatever these appetizing concoctions. However, a few of the cooks come from other coastal cities and towns.

Even a few landlubbers get in on the act, like newspaper columnist Jerry Bledsoe, well-known for his left-handed whelk chowder. During the tasting, the cooks share some of their "secrets" about how they prepared the dishes. Ike O'Neal of nearby Newport, who prepared a mussel stew for the 1981 event, confided to one taster that "the secret is to cook it twice."

Those who come to sample the varied offering of strange food with strange names have their favorites according to their tastes. But one first-time taster at the 1981 exhibition summed up the feelings — or tastes — of many when he said, "This food looks sort of strange but it's good."

A $2 fee will be charged to sample the seafood morsels.

For more information about the event, contact the Hampton Mariners Museum, 120 Turner St., Beaufort 28516, (919) 728-7317.

Exchange Program For Exhibitions

RALEIGH — The N.C. Arts Council is attempting to encourage, through its North Carolina Exhibitions program, the exchange of art shows between museums. THis year three organizations have been selected to receive the N.C. Exhibitions Exchange grants. The three and the person to contact for a possible showing of these exhibitions in their areas are:

•Applachian State University, Boone, $1,920 for a traveling exhibition of original illustrations from children's books. (Carrie Lindsay, 704-262-4080).

•Green Hill Art Gallery, Greensboro, $2,616 for a touring exhibition featuring the visual artists in the N.C. Visiting Artist Program. (Cynthia Ference, 373-4515).

Museums, individuals or groups interested in the N.C. Exhibitions Exchange program and other activities of the N.C. Arts Council are to write to; 109 E. Jones St., Raleigh, N.C., 27611.

Hospitality House

WASHINGTON — An ancient form of Oriental dance, belly dancing, is the primary topic of Kay Currie's "Hospitality House" show, airing from noon until 12:30 p.m. today over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Ms. Currie will talk to Tracie Byrd, manager of Goldsboro's Desert Fire Dance Company. Dancers demonstrating the ancient dance form, also known as Danse Orientale, will feature two female Middle Eastern dancers, one from Egypt, one from Turkey. The dancers will be gowned in authentic costumes including one from Egypt dating from the 1800's. Ms. Currie will accent the show's theme by wearing a Morroccan gown.

The concluding segment of today's "Hospitality House" will be tips on traveling abroad, with suggestions for traveling light.

Strange Seafood Cookbook Is Now Avaiable

BEAUFORT — Copies of "Strange Seafood Recipes," a new publication compiled from dishes served at the annual Strange Seafood Exhibition held each August at Hampton Mariners Museum in Beaufort, has been published and is currently available.

The 106 page cookbook covering more than 30 edible seafood species, can be ordered for $6 ($5 for the book plus $1 for postage and handling charges) from: Hampton Mriners Museum, 120 Turner Street, Beaufort, N.C., 28516.

Entry Time For Print Exhibition

CHARLOTTE — The call is out for entrants in the Eastern United States 6th annual Print Exhibition to be held at Spirit Square Arts Center in Charlotte Dec. 1-31.

Works are due during October, with the jurying to be held Oct. 30.

All artists interested in details for entering the show are to write for regulations and entry forms. Write to: N.C. Print and Drawing Society, Spirit Square Arts Center, 110 E. Seventh St., Charlotte, N.C., 28202.

Contrary to popular belief, some beavers are careless dam builders and not very eager, according to National Geographic. A few old beavers without mates make only halfhearted attempts at dam-building and build structures that look as though the material had drifted there.

Labor Day Regatta Set

NEW BERN — The 5th annual Michelob Cup Regatta, a race for cruising sailboats on the Neuse River from Oriental to Fairfield Harbur near New Bern, is scheduled for Labor Day Saturday, Sept. 4.

The 17-mile event will be followed by an awards dinner at Fairfield Harbor. About 150 boats and more than 900 people will take part in this largest race for cruising sailboats in the Carolinas.

An added feature this year will be a leg northward at Neuse River marker No. 19. Because of the performance rating, staggered start arrangement, many of the boats are expected to reach the turn at marker No. 19 at the same time.

The public can watch competitors leave Oriental and arrive at Fairfield Harbor. The race can also be viewed at different points along the river route.

Sensitive Areas Data Stored

By Randy Cotten
N.C. Department Of Natural Resources And Community Development

Where are the state's coastal fishing waters?

Where is the most attractive coastal waterfowl breeding and wintering habitat in North Carolina?

Where are the sea turtle nesting sites?

These are the questions that scientists, planners and bioligists have had answers to for some time, but not in a form which could be readily compared to related concerns such as federal and state parks, wetlands and economic development.

Now, with the aid of the North Carolina Department of Natural Resources and Community Development's Land Resources Information Service (LRIS), enviromentally sensitive areas are being mapped and stored on computer.

"Placing environmentally sensitive areas on computer will enable those who use LRIS to see the overall relationship between the sensitive coastal environment and economic development," explained Karen Siderelis, chief of the Land Resources Information Service. "These maps could be very beneficial in balancing the interests of the tourist industry along beaches, and the fishing industry in nursery areas producing fish, against the interests of possible oil and gas industry representatives seeking oil and gas exploratory drilling sites along the North Carolina coast."

"This type of mapping could aid local communities in identifying new areas best suited for industry while showing areas requiring special protection from development," Siderelis said. "Economic development is important to every citizen because of the new jobs and often increased tax base it brings."

The maps could also be used to identify future environmental areas needing protection, locating wildlife habitat, and studying changes in fish and wildlife migration. The coastal mapping was begun after the department began receiving several applications for oil and gas exploration leases of large areas of submerged lands along the North Carolina coast.

The information provided to LRIS includes maps of federal and state parks and forests, data on sea turtles, bird rookeries, soil types, population, and shoreline and wetland locations. The Wildlife Resources Commission, the Division of Marine Fisheries and the Division of Parks and Recreation are among those which have provided information.

"A large portion of the coastal mapping has already been completed and is being used," Siderelis said. "Additional input will be added to the data base as it becomes available and can be retrieved as a map or as printed data."

LRIS is a computer-assisted information service which is building a statewide data base on North Carolina's land resources.

The service operates as a nonprofit agency serving state, regional and local governments. A user fee is charged to cover operating costs.

Academy Showing Rhode Island Items

NEW YORK — "Buildings on Paper: Rhose Island Architectural Drawings" is now being shown at the National Academy of Design, 1083 Fifth Ave., New York.

The loan exhibition of 150 original architects' sketches, drawings and renderings of important public and commercial buildings contains plans that date from the late 19th century to 1945. An equal number of Rhode Island drawings from the early 19th century to about 1870 will be shown at the same time at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

Admission to the academy is $1.50 per person except on Tuesdays between 5 and 8 p.m., when no admission is charged.

The legendary Charge of the Light Brigade occurred in 1854, during the Crimean War's Battle of Balaclava. The original objective was to take some Turkish artillery batteries. However, due to confused orders, the charge was re-directed straight into a corridor of Russian guns. Of Lord James Cardigan's 673 cavalrymen, more than 250 were killed.

George Brett To Exhibit Fiber Art

SALISBURY — Greenville artist George Brett is one of several Southern artists who will be exhibiting fiber art work in an exhibition at the Waterworks Gallery, Number One Water Street, Salisbury, beginning Sept. 12 and continuing through Oct. 26.

Brett will install several fiber pieces in the Waterworks Gallery's new sculpture garden. Writing in "Fiber Arts" magazine, Sam McMillan stated "George Brett uses fibers structually, sculpturally. His machine-knitted cotton panels explore space, describe it, explain it and influence our relationship with it."

Brett has exhibited in Italy, Holland, Argentina, Belgium and Sweden as well as in numerous galleries and museums in the United States, including SECCA and the N.C. Museum of Art.

In Gallery II Judi Bradford, known for her lizard factory in Key West, Fla., will install fabric interpretations of sea creatures. Ms. Bradford received an undergraduate degree and did graduate work at East Carolina University.

Artists who will be showing fiber pieces in the Murphy Gallery are Faye Schoolcraft Rice of Augusta, Ga., Jon Eric Riis of Dunwoody, Ga., Ellen Kochansky of Pickens, S.C., Mary Beth Boone and Heidi Darr-Hope, both of Columbia, S.C., Jose Fumero of Blowing Rock, Louise Todd Cope of Penland, and Barbara Grenell of Burnsville.

Jacqueline Heer of Charlotte will exhibit a wind-piece, a large kite-like fabric work, on the front lawn.

The fibers and fabric show is organized by Robert E. Haywood, director of Salisbury's Waterworks Gallery. The show is funded by a grant from the Democratic Party of Rowan County.

Prior to the show's opening, Louise Todd Cope on Sept. 9 will present a slide lecture on fiber art. The 7:30 p.m. lecture is free and will be open to the public.

Waterworks hours are 10 to 5 Mondays through Fridays and 2 to 5 on Sundays. The gallery is closed Saturdays and on legal holidays.

Glucomannan

For over 1,500 years the Japanese have used this rare fiber to stay slim and lose weight. Now for the first time in our 48 years of business, we have obtained a good supply of it and can offer it to anyone who really wants to lose weight. Here's how this amazing fiber called Glucomannan works.

Eat Your Favorite Foods— and Still Lose Weight!

Simply take 2 capsules before each meal with an 8 oz. glass of water. They instantly start to absorb liquid, and swell to form a high-fiber gel. With the gel in your stomach, you need less food to feel satisfied and full... and less likely to snack between meals.

How Glucomannan Works!

Glucomannan is a natural dietary, calorie-free high-fiber powder. It's safe to use, and it adds no harmful chemicals to your diet. Rather, it combines centuries of successful diet practice with the latest in high-fiber research.

For about 1,500 years, the Japanese have used a jelly made from the konjac tuber to add dietary fiber for weight control and digestive regularity. Now, advanced research brings you the active fraction of this same natural konjac tuber in easy-to-take capsules filled with pure, concentrated, water-soluble high-fiber Glucomannan powder. It's the easiest-to-follow, most natural weight-loss program you could ever hope to enjoy! Clinically tested, too!

Glucomannan Does Most of Dieting for You!

It works while you eat, and keeps working after you eat. Why is this diet so easy to follow? Because you can still eat the foods you like, but Glucomannan helps you cut down both your caloric intake and the amount of calories your body digests! And, because you're eating the foods you normally eat, you never need feel deprived, hungry, or irritable!

Glucomannan is extracted from konjac tubers by a special painstaking process. There are only so many of these rare plants available for harvest. Get Glucomannan now—with our absolute money back guarantee. You have nothing to lose except unwanted pounds.

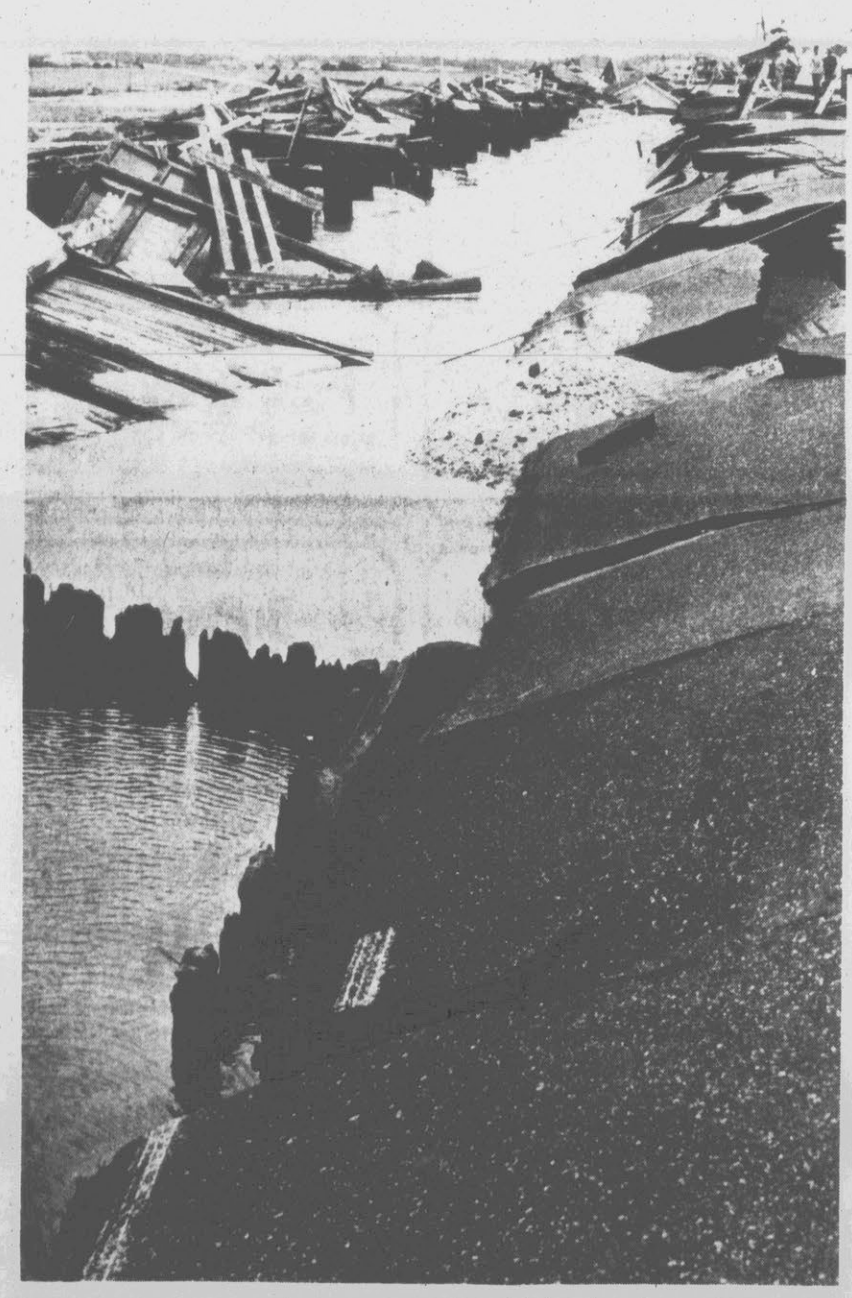
STREETS FLOODED ... The main street in Belhaven remains under water after hurricane Diane passed through the area on August 17, 1955.

Coastal Storms: A Path Of Devastation

The memory of storms linger in the minds of many North Carolina natives. Roy Hardee, former staffer with "The Daily Reflector" recorded many disasters during storms on the North Carolina coast. Hardee is a former, prize winning photojournalist and Greenville native. Pictured here are his accounts of coastal storms.

THE ASH WEDNESDAY STORM ... of March 5-8, 1962 was called a "gigantic 'Northeaster'", causing approximately $12 million in damage and opening a 200 foot wide inlet on Hatteras Island.



CAUSEWAY DESTROYED ... The causeway between Morehead City and Beaufort was partially destroyed by hurricane Donna on September 11, 1960. Eight persons died as a result of the storm.

SEEKING HIGHER GROUND ... Nags Head residents use a row boat with belongings to seek higher ground during the Ash Wednesday northeaster, in 1955.

FLOODED ROAD ... Water covers the bridge at Chuckolds Creek on U.S. 264 between Pantego and Belhaven during hurricane Diane.

HOUSES JUMBLED AFTER STORM ... Beach cottages are twisted and turned on beach property west of the circle at Atlantic Beach after hurricane Donna, in September of 1960.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — OUR BAD, UNDEPENDABLE OLD CAR SEEMS MORE CONTRAPTION THAN MACHINE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: V equals C.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Giving directions to my house is simple. I just tell people to turn right on our street and keep going until they see the house with the sheets in every window.

I'm embarrassed to admit it, but it's my fault. I expected too much. I wanted shutters in the children's windows, and when Phillip agreed that I had found just the right window treatment, I thought that his initial enthusiasm would generate prompt action.

It certainly did in my case. Flushed with decorator's delirium, I rushed to the nearest hardware store and bought enough shutters for both bedroom windows. Naturally, they all had to be cut down to fit.

Phillip was somewhat disinclined to do this. He has one rule-of-thumb for any work around the house: never do today what can possibly be put off until we move. This is especially true of carpentry. Phillip has about as much use for tools as I have have for gourmet cookbooks.

The shutters lay in the garage for three weeks before he even touched them. He unboxed enough for Meg's window only because I threatened severe marital discord. His subsequent announcement that he didn't have the right tools to do the job left me unmoved, so I had to try to ignore the waves in the sides of each shutter that he sized.

Two more weeks went by before I could prevail upon him to paint them. I didn't question the way they blocked access to the garage because I believed with unfounded optimism that they would be hanging in the house within a matter of hours.

Sometime within the next two-week period I forgot where they were. I had managed to fill in most of the cracks and repaint them before Zachary informed Phillip that evening, "Mommy's car go crunch."

The next step was putting them together. Phillip spent an entire Saturday morning alternately growling and drilling in Meg's room. He was almost finished with the bottom tier when I walked in to check on him. I noticed immediately that the hinges were on the wrong side. The shutters would open backwards.

To say that Phillip was unhappy with me at the moment wuld be like saying tht the Israelis and the Arabs don't see eye to eye. By the time that particular mistake was repaired, the paint was thicker than the wood. And this led to another problem. The shutters, enlarged by the paint, didn't fit the windows. In other words, the fruits of Phillip's labor woldn't close completely.

"If you value your life, don't comment," he snarled.

I turned around and walked into Zachary's room. "You know. I've been thinking that mini-blinds might look better than shutters in here. What do you think?"

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, AUG. 15, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early in the day there are many deceptive influences in effect, but if you hold steady to the principles you believe in all turns to your advantage. Make practical plans for the future.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have some limitations that you need to do something about if you want to advance in career activities.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't rely on friends during the day since they have problems of their own. Evening brings the aid you need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Show your ability in handling civic matters to which you are committed and this add to your present prestige.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) The right time to use practical methods in the handling of a private anxiety. Take time to engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your intuition is now working to your advantage. Evening is the best time for solving problems of a business nature.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not a good day for investments since there could be a hitch connected with them. Don't let tensions mount.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan the new week's activities wisely so that you don't waste precious time and energy later in the week.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have certain tasks to take care of before you should engage in the recreation you desire. Take no risks with your health.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at the tasks that you can't do during the work week. You can improve conditions by using your willpower.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Planning the future wisely is a good way to spend part of this day. Take time to improve your surroundings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure you don't commit yourself to added responsibilities that will be difficult for you to handle in the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get rid of that feeling of discontent early in the day or you could make a mistake that you later would regret.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will require the right kind of discipline so that the mind and energy will be channeled in the right direction. Religious training is important early in life. Teach your progeny to work with the hands.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Opportunities are on the rise today and you are able to utilize your energy wisely by getting together with others who have similar vitality and much can be accomplished.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be sure to handle routine duties in a most efficient way, whether in business or elsewhere. Improve your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are highly magnetic today and can easily gain the goodwill of others. But take no chances with a questionable person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can easily please others now by being more gracious. Do some entertaining tonight and express your charm.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You have to improve your relationships with friends before you can enjoy recreation with them.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle correspondence well is most import now. Study your monetary situation carefully and know how to invest wisely.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be gracious in your dealings with others and become more successful. Accepting invitations extended to you is wise.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show increased devotion to fdamily members and get excellent results. Be alert to one who has an eye on your assets.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get in touch with good friends and state your ambitions and gain their cooperation. Think constructively.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good time to engage in civic work that can be helpful to you. A higher-up can now give the support you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Take time and plan the future more intelligently than you have in the past. You can make a fine impression on others now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Forget all that idealism now and get down to practical matters and much can be accomplished. Spend money wisely.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Be sure to listen to the views of others before you make an important decision. Coordinate your efforts well with others.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she should be taught early in life to smile more and to be more interested in the welfare of others. The ideas in this chart could prove lucrative later in life. Don't neglect ethical and religious training.

The SunSource

Exciting Passive Solar 2-Story With Deck

By Jerry Bishop

The SunSource is an exciting contemporary design featuring a centrally located 2-story family room. The upper level kitchen overlooks the family room, highlighted by a 2-story brick fireplace. A deck on this level is accessible from both the kitchen and the dining room, offering a whole range of entertaining life styles from the formal to outdoor casual. The SunSource has a combined living and formal dining room, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths. The master suite on the upper level is indeed a suite. A private deck, luxurious bath and a large walk in closet are just a few of the many features that make this home so exciting. Designed for a flat or gently sloping site, the home has east driveway access to the attached 2-car garage.

Some of the energy conserving features are 2 x 6 exterior walls, double and triple-glazed windows, insulating curtains, an airlock entry and earth berming. In the Minneapolis climate, 50% of the heating needs will be met by passive solar gain through south facing windows. Overhangs shade these windows in summer.

In metropolitan Minneapolis, The SunSource, would cost an estimated $110,000 without lot based on Spring, 1980 construction costs.

Decals Become Necessary Item As Technology Creates Products

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Air Force One never takes off without one. The dishwasher in the kitchen may display more than one and so perhaps will the new dinnerware pieces, the piano and the pushbutton telephone.

Decals are the common denominator among these products. Although they are believed to have originated thousands of years ago in China, new technologies and needs are creating a growth market for these usually overlooked though ubiquitous transfer patterns.

As many as 4,000 companies are believed to be producing decalomania nowadays, constituting a market of over $1 billion. Furthermore, decals now figure in more than 300 industries, according to the Meyercord Co., which has been producing decals since 1892.

Decals are an important element in cosmetics packaging, soft-drink bottles, glass art objects and as decorations on toys, cars, motorcycles and bicycles, says Meyercord. Indeed, they have even been launched into outer space as markings on Apollo rockets.

You will also find them on construction and farm equipment where they often provide crucial operating instructions, and as tax-collecting devices on vehicle licenses, on car windshields, and on alcoholic beverage containers.

In the average home, where there are about 30 to 40 decal-decorated products, they are routinely found on appliances, china, cookware and clocks. And they are showing up more often on furniture, where they give a hand-painted look to wood pieces at a fraction of the cost of hand-painting.

One reason decals are seen but not recognized is that technology has made it possible to fuse the design with the material to which it is affixed, thus making the decal a permanent part of the base material.

Today's designs are a far cry from the first decals which were painted on gelatin, which was then dissolved, leaving the painting behind. Nowadays, decals consist of wafer-thin, sometimes microscopic, layers of ink, chemical compounds and paints which are built up on printing presses.

The decal is released by dipping it into water or with the aid of solvents or by peeling it off pressure-sensitive paper. Various additives make it possible to produce a decal that will be weather- and water-resistant, dishwasher- and oven-proof.

The most recent technical developments permit manufacturers to apply decal decorations automatically at high speeds. For example, one new process is capable of decorating glassware at the rate of 300 bottles per minute. Almost any material — fabric, metal, glass, plastics, wood, ceramics — can be used with the right decal.

The ability of decals to simulate a variety of decorative home furnishings finishes is giving the product a boost in objects destined for the home. One of the latest examples is a series of designs that glow in reaction to light, simulating stained glass.

New decals using this technique can be applied to windows, mirrors and lamps. "Stained glass" designs will also be showing up in Christmas ornaments later this year, according to Meyercord. Following another home fashion trend, a new white-on-white decal mimics the appearance of hand-etching when pressed on glass.

The modern interest in decals began over a century ago in Europe in the 1860s. At first, a varnish solvent was used to dissolve the backing which carried the designs. In the 1930s, the invention of the water slide-on decal eliminated the messy varnish process and gave a boost to the use of decals in home decoration.

Rabbits and lambs gamboled over baby furniture; swans floated on the kitchen and bathroom fixtures, and Art Deco motifs were transferred to a variety of surfaces and products. During the '30s, decals were adapted for industry purposes, too, and cereal companies began offering decal-decorating premiums for advertising purposes. The day of the Orphan Annie, Pluto and Buck Jones glass was initiated.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to the home owner:

A registered professional entomologist, Jerry Heap of the University of Minnesota, cautions home owners that multiple insecticide treatments for carpenter ants nesting in a structure are not needed if you get to the nest. He adds that spraying insecticides around the foundation or other cracks and crevices rarely reaches the ants' nests, which should be destroyed to prevent reinfestation.

In a report researched over a five-year period by Muir Publishing Co. Ltd., the claim is made that log houses are the most energy-efficient type of residential housing it is possible to build. The report says that even uninsulated log walls outperform any and all other walls whether they are insulated or not. The publishing company is a Canadian corporation with its main offices in the Montreal area. It puts out an international log-house magazine.

A revision required by the National Electrical Code will affect billions of dollars of new construction and renovation work throughout the country. It says incandescent fixtures that are recessed must be thermally protected and shall so be identified unless those fixtures already have been designated I. C., which means insulated ceiling. The nation's leading manufacturer of recessed incandescent lighting, Halo Lighting of McGraw-Edison, has announced full compliance with the required revisions.

Home owners wishing to sell their property by providing part of the financing are advised to watch out by Money magazine, which calls this method of selling "a potential recipe for disaster." It suggests getting your bank to service any loan you make. The charge is usually 1 or 2 percent of the loan, which includes a credit check, the handling of payment collections and, if necessary, the foreclosure. Banks also can sell you default insurance, which typically costs about $300 on a $40,000 loan.

The Brick Association of North Carolina has come up with plans for a passive solar house with three bedrooms and two baths in 1,650 square feet of surface space. The key element in the house is the use of two compatible passive-energy systems — direct gain and a thermal-storage wall. In direct gain, south-facing windows, brick floors, brick walls and a heat-circulating fireplace combine to store the sun's energy. Sunlight streaming through the glazing heats the exposed brick masonry, which gradually releases the stored heat to the interior spaces. The solar mass creates a thermal-wall concept, a system already successful in passive solar houses.

A saw-chain company claims it has designed a saw chain three times more effective in reducing chain-saw kickback. The Townsend Company thinks the chain may soon "become a standard" for the industry. It says that the chain does not eliminate all possibilities of a kickback, but does reduce energy levels sharply and so reduces the violent upward and rearward kick of other chains by as much as 83 percent.

Which part of the house gets the most remodeling? It's the kitchen. As in past surveys, kitchen remodeling ranked as the most frequently completed home-renovation project tackled by do-it-yourselfers in the past 12 months, according to a consumer study conducted by National Home Center News and the National Association of Home Builders.

(Do-it-yourselfers will find much valuable information on a variety of subjects in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck NJ 07666.)

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I am always reading about how to repair the compression kind of faucet, which has a washer which must be replaced when the faucet is leaking, but I don't seem to see anything about the type of faucet I have. It has a single handle. When it is turned to the right, cold water comes out. When it is turned to the left, you get hot water. I understand that a new cartridge must be put in when there is a leak. I took off the top, but I can't seem to find out how to take out the cartridge or even where it is. Can you help me?

A. — One answer will not suffice for all non-compression faucets, but in nearly all of them, the cartridge is held in place by what is called a retaining clip. This clip is shaped something like a horseshoe except that it is very small. It is usually even smaller than a paper clip and it often has a metal ring over it. As you already know, it isn't always easy to locate and sometimes will require patience to find. It is probably right under the handle, although occasionally the retaining clip will be on the outside. Remove that clip, whether on the outside or inside, and you will then be able to lift out the cartridge. To be sure you get the same size and type, take it to your dealer and show it to him. Cartridges are sold by some home-center stores and hardware establishments, but if you can't get it at those places, you'll have to go to a plumbing-supply house. Incidentally, before you tackle the faucet, be sure to turn off the water to that fixture.

Q. — I know you must have answered this before, but how do I get white rings from a varnished table top? I am not certain, although I think the rings were caused by glasses in which there was only water. How can the rings be removed?

A. — Over the years, I have answered this question several times, but the answers have differed because there are half a dozen ways in which such rings can be removed. This time I am going to respond with a solution I just recently heard about, but which a friend says works every time. Mix white vinegar and olive oil in equal amounts. Use the mixture to rub across the stains, but only in the direction of the grain. After this treatment — as with most others — you may have to repolish or even refinish the area. Be certain not to use lacquer in any form over the varnish.

YEARLY VISITOR — The fall webworm, a small worm of which large colonies make their home in large webs, is a common visitor to this area each year at mid-summer. Webworms prefer nesting on the tips of pecan tree branches, but also chooses other spots as well. Sam Uzzell of the Pitt County Agriculture Extension Service says though unsightly, webworms cause only minor damage. They can be destroyed by pulling the webs out and burning them, or by spraying. Persons interested in sprays to use can call Uzzell at 752-2934 for details. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

PURSUANT to Order duly entered by Sandra Gaskins, Clerk of the Superior Court of Pitt County, North Carolina, on the 7th day of July, 1982, the undersigned Commissioners will, on the 16th day of August, 1982, at 12:00 Noon, at the Courthouse door on Third Street, Greenville, North Carolina, offer for sale to the highest bidder, for cash, the following described real estate:

That certain parcel of land with improvements thereon, known as 1016 Colonial Avenue, and more particularly described as follows:

LOCATED in the City of Greenville, North Carolina, at the northeast corner of Colonial Avenue and White Street and specifically described as follows: BEGINNING at the southwest corner of Block number eight, which is the intersection of the property lines of White Street and Colonial Avenue, and runs with the eastern property line of White Street, 137.5 feet to a stake; thence eastwardly, parallel with Colonial Avenue, 50 feet to a stake; thence southwardly, parallel with White Street 137.5 feet to a stake; thence westwardly, along the northern property line of Colonial Avenue, 50 feet to the point of beginning.

The said property being further described as being lot number two (2) in block number eight (8) of the Greenville Height Subdivision, as shown by map recorded in Map Book 2, Page 49 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County.

The foregoing property is the identical property conveyed by J. A. Applewhite and wife, Flora B. Applewhite, to Willie Hubert Tripp and wife, Blance Fleming Tripp, by deed dated September 25, 1937, and recorded in Book D-22, at Page 187 in the office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County.

This highest bidder at the sale shall be required to make a cash deposit of ten percent of the successful bid, pending confirmation of the sale by the Court.

The sale will be subject to 1982 ad valorem taxes.

GARY B DAVIS,
Commissioner
DAVID A LEECH,
Commissioner
C GEOFFREY MITCHELL,

"WE'LL LEND YOU MONEY TO BUY OUR HOUSE!"

We know many sellers who have made this statement, all listed through CENTURY 21® offices.

It's a buyers' market and that means there are sellers willing to do more to help you buy. Like seller financing. It's a way to help you pay less than current interest rates. We've been so successful at it that it's one reason why many CENTURY 21 buyers in this area have recently bought homes at an initial effective annual percentage rate of 12.7%, and less.

So if you're looking to buy a home, listen to what many of our sellers have to say: "We'll lend you money." It could be your opportunity to buy the home you want on terms you can afford. Check with your nearest CENTURY 21 office today.

ASK OMAR

Q.—I am thoroughly confused. All the books I have read tell me that, to raise an overcall, you need enough to offer some play for game, even if partner is minimum—otherwise, there is no point to increasing the level. Yet in your columns I consistently see people raising overcalls with only a smattering of values. Has bridge passed me by, or is there a reason for this madness.—L. Rogers, Toronto, Ont.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—I don't know about bridge, but alas, time passes us all by. And over the years, bidding styles have changed somewhat.

Not all that much really. We were always entitled to preempt the opponents and, in effect, that's one of the accomplishments of a light raise of partner's overcall. As a matter of fact, there is an example in this week's quiz of such a raise, so perhaps your question might forestall a host of others.

Once upon a time, overcalls were made on almost any collection of 13 cards, regardless of vulnerability. But when the opponents learned how to double at low levels, players slowly tightened the requirements for an overcall, chiefly out of respect for their pocketbooks.

The next development was a precise structure for responding to partner's takeout double and, as a result, a takeout double was no longer made on any hand that counted up to the equivalent of an opening bid. For example, consider this hand after your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one diamond:

♡ A K J x x
◇ A x x x
♣ K x x

In the early days of contract bridge, you had to double and hope that you could control the subsequent auction. Now even a novice recognizes the inherent danger that partner might jump to some large number of spades in response to a takeout double, and on what might even be a four-card suit in a good hand. Yet this hand could produce game opposite a partner who had little more than a singleton diamond and a heart fit! The solution was to overcall one heart and to ease the requirements for a response to an overcall.

And it was done in a logical way. Since, by and large, an overcall shows pretty close to the values for an opening bid, the overcaller's partner treats it as if his partner had actually opened the bidding. With 7 points and a fit, he raises his partner's suit. However, since his partner did not make a takeout double, there is no need to keep the bidding open with a weak hand and a partial misfit. Thus, with 7 points and no fit, responder simply passes. Consider these two hands after your left-hand opponent opens one diamond and partner overcalls one heart:

a) ♠ K x x x x	b) ♠ x x
♡ x x	♡ Q x x x
◇ Q x x	◇ x x
♣ Q x x	♣ K J x x x

With hand a), pass partner's overcall—there's no point in introducing your spade suit, because partner would have doubled had he been interested in spades as well as hearts. Hand b) is actually 1 high card point weaker, but it has tremendous playing strength: four trumps, ruffing values and a good side suit. Clearly, you are worth a raise to two hearts. If partner is one of those old-fashioned types who would not dream of overcalling unless he could count enough tricks in his own hand, even that might be an underbid!

Investigators Track Down Arsonists

A fire of suspicious origin brings together an unlikely pair of investigators who must learn to put their personal problems aside in order to find the culprits, in "Rooster," airing as an ABC Movie Special, Thursday, Aug. 19 (8-10 p.m.).

In the comedy/drama, Paul Williams stars as police psychologist Brewster (Rooster) Steele, whose unorthodox methods of checking out suspects cost him his job. Pat McCormick portrays William (Sweets) McBride, a one-time cop turned insurance investigator who lost his partner in a shoot-out.

Height and different investigative techniques immediately create an abrasive reaction between the short Rooster and the very tall Sweets. But the two men need each other to regain the status each has lost.

However, Sweets' intimidating style and Rooster's voice analysis of every possible suspect fail to turn up the criminals. Certain that they have overlooked something important, the two men return to square one — the attorney for the owner of the burned-out building — and retrace their steps even more carefully.

Meanwhile, the attorney has been persuaded to cooperate with a government agent who is setting up what is described as an ABSCAM-type operation. But the agent has something far more dangerous in mind, as Rooster and Sweets discover when their arson investigation takes an unexpected turn.

"Rooster," which was written by Williams, also stars John Saxon as Brademan, Eddie Albert as the Rev. Barnum, J.D. Cannon as Willard Coburn, Ed Lauter as Claggert, Jill St. John as Joanna, Pamela Hensley as Bunny Richter, and Charlie Callas as Robert Melville.

Special cameo appearances are made by Marie Osmond, and Los Angeles Dodgers players Dusty Baker, Jerry Reuss and Mike Scioscia.

Although Callas is familiar to most television viewers from his frequent appearances on the "Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson," the stand-up comedian says he has no qualms about venturing into acting. "What I'm doing in nightclubs is also acting," he said, "but I'm playing it strictly for laughs."

PAUL WILLIAMS stars as police psychologist Brewster Steele, better known as Rooster, who teams with an over-sized ex-cop to solve a series of mysterious crimes, in "Rooster," an action-packed, comedy/mystery airing Thursday, Aug. 19 (8-10 p.m.) on ABC.

ROBERT SHAW and Edward Fox (l and r) are on a mission behind German lines to destroy a bridge and expose a spy during World War II, in "Force 10 From Navarone," to be rebroadcast as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Aug. 15 (9-11:30 p.m.).

Soldiers Seek Out Traitor

"Force 10 From Navarone," a World War II adventure, will be rebroadcast as The ABC Sunday Night Movie, Aug. 15 (9-11:30 p.m.).

In the film, five desperate Allied soldiers and one beautiful woman — torn by divided loyalties — deal with the entire 11th German Army Corps and an unknown traitor in their midst as they plot to blow up a dam and destroy an impregnable bridge.

The year is 1943. Major Mallory and Sergeant Miller (Robert Shaw, Edward Fox) are dispatched to Yugoslavia to identify and kill the German spy who betrayed them in an earlier mission to destroy the guns of Navarone. Unexpectedly, their plane is shot down, killing all but five of the "Force 10" soldiers and throwing the survivors into the hands of the Germans.

Mallory and his colleagues convince the Germans that they are thieves with a million dollars worth of penicillin hidden away. Then, with the guidance of the German Commander's mistress, they escape and create a masterful plan to destroy the all-important bridge that is supposed to carry the German force into action.

As the bridge is being blown to bits, the Allies discover the spy they sought...and he is one of them.

Every Person Has A Story

On the "Lou Grant" episode airing Monday, Aug. 16 (10-11 p.m.), Joe Rossi claims he can get a story out of anything, and City Editor Lou Grant (Ed Asner) lets him prove it. For his assignment, Rossi chooses an ordinary-looking passerby (Uta Hagen), who gets him involved in the soup kitchen where she feeds the city's underprivileged.

This is the first time in 10 years that Miss Hagen, one of Broadway's premier actresses, has appeared on television. The episode was written by one of her former acting students, Gene Reynolds, who is the co-creator and executive producer of "Lou Grant." He lured her to Los Angeles for the filming by sending her his script on the complex issue of starvation in Third World countries.

"This situation of want in the midst of plenty is very disturbing," said Miss Hagen. "It makes you think. I was delighted that Gene thought of me for the role."

Since 1947, Miss Hagen has taught many performers at the HB Studio (run by her husband, Herbert Berghof). Between scenes of "Lou Grant," she and other cast members held lively discussions on their craft and traded stage gossip.

The episode was her first experience with television location filming and she admitted that she found the pace a bit unnerving.

"I'm taking it all in stride," she said, "even though I found these shoes are too tight. On stage, we don't walk this much."

A favorite of New York critics, Miss Hagen has Tony Awards for "The Country Girl" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf." Her other notable plays include "The Sea Gull," "Othello," "A Month in the Country," "The Cherry Orchard" and "Saint Joan."

After the "Lou Grant" show finished shooting, Miss Hagen took off to tour in a one-woman version of "Charlotte" throughout the Midwest.

REPORTER Joe Rossi (Robert Walden, l) bets City Editor Lou Grant (Ed Asner) that he can write a newsworthy story about any person in the city, on the Monday, Aug. 16 (10-11 p.m.) episode of "Lou Grant," on CBS.

Tables Are Turned On Detectives

Eight super-sleuths — who might be mistaken for some TV heroes — join forces against the brilliant but deadly Man in White, in "Murder Can Hurt You," to be rebroadcast on Monday, Aug. 16 (midnight) on ABC.

The tale begins when the criminally demented Man in White (Mitch Kreindel) messes up Lambretta (Tony Danza) — the first victim in his lethal scheme to eliminate his old adversaries one by one. The members of the "Some of the Best Cops in the World Club" form a hilarious alliance to outwit the schemer before he gets them.

The deadly game is on, with our heroes seemingly coming in second best as they race from one cliff-hanger to the next while constantly being haunted by the maniacal laugh of the Man in White.

"Murder Can Hurt You" also stars Jamie Farr and John Byner as Studsky and Hatch, Victor Buono as Ironbottom, Gavin MacLeod as Nojack, Buck Owens as MacSkye, Connie Stevens as the policewoman Salty; and Burt Young as Palumbo.

BILL COSBY (left) and Sidney Poitier star as con-men outsmarted at their own game when a retired police officer blackmails them into donating their time to a community youth center, in "A Piece of the Action," to be rebroadcast Wednesday, Aug. 18 (8:30-11 p.m.) on CBS.

Ex-cop Blackmails Wealthy Thieves

A pair of wealthy thieves find themselves blackmailed by a retired police officer who has got the goods on them, in "A Piece of the Action," to be rebroadcast on Wednesday, Aug. 18 (8:30-11 p.m.) on CBS. The film was originally released theatrically in 1977.

In the comedy, retired police sergeant Joshua Burke (James Earl Jones) has an unusual blackmail scheme. He agrees not to turn in Manny Durrell (Sidney Poitier), a Chicago con man, or Dave Anderson (Bill Cosby), who have successfully robbed a credit company, if they "donate" their services to a ghetto community center. The "sentence" for the conmen is 40 hours a week for five years.

With their options severely limited, Manny and Dave decide to grin and bear — all the while trying to squirm out of their duties. They are soon introduced to their charges, a bunch of cynical street-smart youngsters.

Michele Will Tell

With the release and subsequent success of "Rocky III," it's no wonder that the questions are pouring in about Sylvester Stallone, so here goes...

Thirty-five-year-old 'Sly' was born in New York's Hell's Kitchen. With the release of "Rocky," the critics immediately proclaimed him the screen's new Marlon Brando, a comparison he disagreed with. Stallone is a highly intelligent, articulate man, although hardly a scholastic success — he was a college dropout. He penned several scripts before "Rocky" was sold, some written under the name Q. Moonblood, a name he and wife, Sasha, adopted as the middle name for their son, Sage. With the success of "Rocky III" has come the reconciliation between Sly and Sasha after his admitted affair with Susan Anton. The Stallones have two sons, Sage, 6 and Sergio, 3. Fans of Sly may look forward to his starring roles in the adventure film "First Blood," and "The Cotton Club," a film currently being written by "Godfather" author Mario Puzo, in which he will portray a gangster. Write to him in c/o The William Morris Agency, 151 El Camino Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: Could you please tell me how I could write to Johnny Carson of the "Tonight Show"? WADE BOWLES, MAXTON, N.C.

A: Fans may write to Johnny in c/o the show, NBC-TV, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10020.

Q: Please tell me if Erin Gray bleached her hair blonde for the series "Buck Rogers." I saw her on TV the other night and she had dark brunette hair while on "Buck Rogers" she was a platinum blonde. CURIOUS J.A., HENDERSON, N.C.

A: Erin is a natural brunette with blue eyes. The day she won the role of Col. Wilma Deering, the show's producers asked her to dye her hair blonde, which she promptly did.

Doctor To Fight

Gregory Harrison, Dr. Gonzo Gates on the "Trapper John, M.D." series, stars in "Fighting Chance," a new motion picture-for-television about an out-of-work mill worker who enters the risky world of amateur boxing against his wife's wishes. Glynnis O'Connor portrays his disapproving wife.

Noted character actor Pat Hingle stars as Harrison's pessimistic dad and Steve Inwood plays the fight promoter who takes a special interest in the new boxer's career.

Film For Priscilla

Priscilla Presley will make her motion picture debut in "Comeback" an independent Michael Landon-Hall Bartlett production. Landon is executive producer, and Barlett is the film's writer-producer-director. "Comeback" also stars Landon.

HEAD COACH Bart Starr will be leading the Green Bay Packers in a pre-season contest against the Cincinnati Bengals on Friday, Aug. 20. ABC will broadcast the game from 8:30-11:30 p.m.

Dyan In Comedy

Dyan Cannon, who rarely appears on TV, will star in "Having It All," a two-hour ABC-TV film. It's a romantic comedy about a woman who is a bigamist, living with one hubby in L.A., another in Manhattan.

Making First Film

Cover girl Christie Brinkley, now our country's highest-priced model, has been tagged to make her movie debut as one of the stars in "National Lampoon's Vacation" for Warner Bros.

Packers Proved Themselves

In the last half of the 1981 season, the Green Bay Packers proved to themselves that they can win, and win consistently. Over those final eight weeks, they fashioned a 6-2 record and came within one game of making the playoffs. Only three other clubs — the San Francisco 49ers, the Cincinnati Bengals, and the New York Jets — posted better marks during that period.

The Packers will have a chance to test their newly realized talents against the Bengals on Friday, Aug. 20 (8:30-11:30 p.m.), when ABC broadcasts the NFL pre-season match-up between these two clubs.

Because of Green Bay's fine off-season training program, an air of expectancy is brewing in Wisconsin. "We have some mentally aggressive people who are anxious to pursue what we started chasing last year," said Head Coach Bart Starr, who has been at the helm of the Packers since 1974. "As a staff, we feel the improved outlook is due to the maturing of a number of players who are our leaders. But more important, it's due to a continuing upgrading in everyone's attitude."

One of the players whom the Packers are expecting to burst from the starting blocks is wide receiver John Jefferson, who became a member of the Green and Gold in the fourth game of the 1981 regular season, after a trade with the San Diego Chargers. His infectious and exuberant "cheerleading" was a major catalyst in the Packers' second-half comeback.

"J.J. will contribute even more to our team this season because we'll be able to better integrate him into our system as a result of having him since day one," Starr said of the Arizona State graduate who averaged over 16 yards per carry in 1981.

Another key element in the total equation, Starr admitted, will be the extent of running back Eddie Lee Ivery's comeback from a second surgery on his left knee. Ivery was the Packers' rushing and total offense leader in 1980, but was out all of last season due to his knee injury in the opening game.

"Mentally and emotionally, we can expect a great deal from Eddie Lee because he is a very prideful performer," Starr said. "He has worked extremely hard to come back."

Starr also reaffirmed that veteran Lynn Dickey will be the No. 1 quarterback. "If he is to lose the job," he said, "someone will have to take it from him."

The kicking game will be in the hands of Jan Stenerud, who made 22 of 24 field goal attempts last season, an NFL record. The punting will be left up to Ray Stachowitz.

Addressing himself to the defense, which led the entire NFL in forcing turnovers in 1981, Starr said, "We feel the same way about it as we do about our entire team. We have high expectations for our defense because we believe, with a minimum of injuries, this group is just getting to know one another. We're looking to them for the same type of leadership they provided a year ago, and then to go notches beyond that."

Miracle On Grass

Though the U.S. National Soccer Team didn't qualify for the World Cup competition in Spain, there is progress in that direction. For the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, the U.S. automatically qualifies for competition as the host country. If the U.S. Soccer team can pull an upset in L.A., like the 1980 U.S. Hockey Team managed in Lake Placid, they could be in the 1986 World Cup in Colombia, South America. That would truly require a "Miracle On Grass."

Unwritten Record

According to Sports Illustrated, Riverfront Stadium set a major league record recently for steals in a single game. On the field, four Cardinals and five Reds stole second base. However, while the game was in progress, five Reds' lockers were burglarized and three Cardinal jerseys were stolen. That made 17 steals, one more than the real record for stolen bases set in 1912 between New York and Boston.

Contenders Fight For Title

"I'm a fightin' cowboy. Fastest heavyweight in the world and a real, live fightin' cowboy — a black cowboy. I'm 'Quick' Tillis, the next heavyweight champion of the world." So went the hype from the mouth of James "Quick" Tillis before his WBA title fight with champion Mike Weaver in October 1981.

Weaver took the bite out of the contender's words with a 15-round decision, but "Quick," like his idol, Muhammad Ali, still held his head high after the loss. And with good reason — the Weaver fight was Tillis' first loss in 21 professional appearances, and he had put on a fine display of his talents.

Now, with his record at 22-1 with 17 KOs, No.-3 ranked WBA contender Tillis will put his jaw on the line in a heavyweight match with No.-6 ranked WBA contender Tim Witherspoon, who sports a perfect 15-0 record with 11 KOs. CBS will broadcast the event on "CBS Sports Sunday," Aug. 15 (4:30-6 p.m.). Tim Ryan and Gil Clancy will be at ringside to provide the commentary.

Both boxers won their last fights with 10-round decisions — Tillis bested veteran Earnie Shavers, and Witherspoon outscored Renaldo "Mr." Snipes.

Tillis began boxing in junior high school in Tulsa, Okla., in 1973. After accumulating an impressive 92-8 amateur record, in addition to three state Golden Gloves championships and four state AAU titles, he turned professional in 1978.

Hoping to come under the wing of former heavyweight champ Ernie Terrell, who was then promoting fights, Tillis moved to Chicago. The inexperienced heavyweight got his wish. Terrell helped Tillis financially and spiritually until late 1978, when the young pro hooked up with Jim Kaulentis, a Chicago businessman who became his manager.

In his first full year until Kaulentis, Tillis kayoed 10 fighters, flooring all of them in six rounds or less. Also that year, he met and was tutored by former light heavyweight champion Archie Moore. "Archie was rugged, let me tell you," Tillis said after his on-the-job schooling. "But I respect him. I got a lot of confidence being with him. He taught me how to jab hard, how to pivot and move."

Tillis should get a chance to heed Moore's advice. Witherspoon has no intention of spoiling his perfect record, and has every intention of forcing Tillis to jab, pivot and move.

The Eyes Have It

During the Seventies, knee injuries became a status symbol of sorts. Now it seems the chic injury of the Eighties is the eye. Kansas City Chiefs running back Joe Delaney has joined boxers Sugar Ray Leonard, Earnie Shavers and Harold Weston among the retinue of detached retina victims.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

CBS and ABC are having difficulty casting their conflicting telemovies about the young royal couple, PRINCE CHARLES and PRINCESS DI. British actors consider it "tacky and tasteless" to cash in on tne public's fascination with the royal couple. (No class in the colonies?)

PAUL PICARD, executive producer of "The Dukes of Hazzard," stressed that the new characters Coy and Vance (BYRON CHERRY and CHRISTOPHER MAYER) recently added to the cast would "in no way" duplicate the roles created by JOHN SCHNEIDER and TOM WOPAT. "And who knows? John and Tom might come back on the set at anytime," Picard emphasized, "however, Coy and Vance would continue as part of the Duke family."

"Magnum, P.I.'s" JOHN HILLERMAN has invited MAUREEN STAPLETON and ANGELA LANSBURY to Hawaii so that he can try to win back money he lost while playing penny-ante poker with the girls during the filming of "Little Gloria — Happy at Last." John had to shave his moustache for his role in the mini-series, and now likes the clean-shaven look so well he is considering a fake moustache for his Higgins role on "Magnum."

DUSTIN HOFFMAN, once a conservative young man with his pennies, is now spending money like it is going out of style. He recently paid a million dollars for a New York apartment and is currently spending another two million to renovate and redecorate it.

The tragedy of the recent death of VIC MORROW and the two children involved in a helicopter accident while filming is heightened with the revelation that he was to have completed his work a day earlier.

Look for MATTHEW LABORTEAUX, from "Little House on the Prairie," to be a guest on "The Love Boat." MICKEY GILLEY, JOHNNY LEE and LYNN REDGRAVE will be guesting on "Fantasy Island" during the new season.

Dressing For College

Not everyone may realize that college is more than an education. It's a time of social adjustments and formidable personality changes. Even though you won't spend every hour dressed to kill, there will be times when you'll want to look your best. We are most interested in advising on what you think may be needed. We've been dressing college-aged men for twenty-six years. We'd be very happy to assist you.

40-Gallon Size

Regular $279.99 239.99

52-Gal. Electric, Reg. $279.99 . . . . 239.99

Kenmore Power Miser™ 8 water heaters can save you $288 in gas bills over an 8-year* period when compared with our standard models.

NEED HOT WATER FAST?

Call Sears for 24-hour emergency installation (except Sundays and holidays) by our Authorized Installers. Or pick up your water heater and install it yourself. Installation extra.

*In accordance with U.S. Dept. of Energy Test Procedures, the operating cost was calculated on the basis of 64.3 gallons per day of hot water usage by a family of 4 with 90° F. temp. rise, with gas rate of 42.6¢ per therm (U.S. Government 1981 national average cost figures). Savings were calculated by subtracting the operating cost of our Power Miser 8 40-gal. gas model from the cost of operating our standard 40-gal. gas water heaters. Savings may be more or less depending on your hot water usage and local utility rates.

Brake Job for Disc or Drum Systems

2-Wheel Sears Low Price 69.99

Our trained specialists will inspect brake system, install new disc pads or brake shoes, rebuild calipers or wheel cylinders, turn drums or rotors, install new front grease seals, clean and repack front wheel bearings, flush brake lines and replace with heavy-duty brake fluid. Sears may decline to perform partial brake jobs if it appears, in Sears judgment, that additional work is needed for your brake system to function properly. Replacement of master cylinder, power booster, drum/rotor are extra if needed. Not available in Danville, Rock Hill, Rocky Mount and Shelby.

How to look and feel more beautiful than ever-in just two weeks!

Win the Belair "Great Makeover" Sweepstakes.

• Grand Prize

Day 1—Fly to New York. A great excursion for two, you'll both fly to New York City, first class, from the nearest connecting point. You'll stay in an elegant suite in a famous Manhattan hotel, then snuggle down for the most luxurious makeover of your life.

Day 2—The Great Salon Makeover. Now starts the transformation. A relaxing massage... facial... make-up... hair styling... sauna... manicure... pedicure ...and an armful of cosmetics to take with you.

Day 3—The Ultimate Shopping Spree. Belair will give you $10,000 in cash to walk into a prestigious department store and buy the wardrobe of your dreams —from negligees to swimwear to designer gowns. (If what you want is a pair of tennis shoes, we can arrange that, too.)

Day 4—Fly to Jamaica—the island of romance. Now the two of you are on your way to one of the most romantic places in the world. You'll stay at an elegant resort right on the beach. Sunny skies and palm trees at your patio for breakfast... umbrella tables by the poolside for lunch... violins and candlelight at dinner. All expenses paid, and we'll give you $5,000 in cash for shopping and side tripping.

Days 5 to 14—Makeover the whole you. Relax. Enjoy! There's an endless variety of things to see and do in Jamaica—from bamboo rafting to mansion touring to calypso dancing. By the 14th day, you'll look and feel like a new you. What a makeover!

ASK THEM YOURSELF

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.
We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

Outside recipients too secure?

FOR JOHN A. SVAHN, commissioner, Social Security Administration

Retirees living in the U.S. can only earn "x" amount of dollars a year. But can out-of-the-country recipients make all they want? —B.L., Linwood, N.J.

● This year, retirees age 65 and over living in the U.S. can earn up to $6,000 without a reduction in benefits, and those under age 65 can earn up to $4,400. Benefits are reduced $1 for each $2 earned above these limits. Even though the work may be performed in another country, U.S. citizens are subject to this annual earnings test as long as they work for an American employer or are self-employed. Other beneficiaries working outside the U.S. and under age 72 are not entitled to a Social Security check for any month in which they work seven or more days.

FOR SANDRA CARTER, co-author of Reaffirmation: Renewing Your Marriage Vows and Values (Harmony Books)

Why are more and more couples choosing to renew their marriage vows? —M.G., Burlington, Vt.

● Reaffirmation is a wonderful way to honor the success of a marriage. While a wedding celebrates falling in love and beginning a marriage, reaffirmation is a celebration of staying married and in love.

FOR DOUG DAVIDSON, Paul Williams on TV's The Young and the Restless

When you tell people you work as an actor in a soap opera, what reaction do you get? —R.N., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● I don't tell anyone what I do, unless they ask me. It's not because I'm ashamed; it's just that I consider acting a job. I'm much more interested in what others do. I don't spend much time talking about soaps.

FOR DENISE MILLER, Billie on TV's Archie Bunker's Place

Is it true that you and Brooke Shields were friends, but her personality changed and the friendship broke when she became a big star? —E.G., Joliet, Ill.

● We got to know each other in our child-modeling days, but now our paths have gone different ways. I saw her a few months ago, and she really hasn't changed at all. She's easy-going, quiet, low key.

Wouldn't let Horne blow her career.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

CELEBRATION: Claiming he should have gotten credit for the recent big bash honoring Lena Horne's 65th birthday and successful one-woman Broadway show, was comic Alan King, next in the movie I, the Jury, due out in September. "Lena retired in 1971. In 1972 I told her it was time for a comeback. 'Are you crazy?' she asked. 'Who wants to see an old broad like me anymore?'" Alan convinced her to go on stage — that's why he wants to put history straight. And while most of the celebrities at the Roseland bash were busy picking out other celebrities, designer Jacques Bellini was not concerned with faces. He was peering at the duds to see how many, apart from Lena, were customers. He spotted a familiar suit hanging on the body of singer Eartha Kitt. He shuddered, noting that it was not his latest creation, and in the middle of the festivities, told the wearer, "Time to get another one." . . . AGE: Last summer, actress Lynda Carter explained why her marriage to Ron Samuels would endure: "When we argue, it's due to pressure, not problems. We explode, then cool off. And we're mellow, perhaps because we did not marry young. Ron is 40; I'm 30. I guess we have some of the wisdom reputed to be part of old age." A few months after that statement, their marriage went on the rocks. . . .

Carter

"I don't deny I'm getting older," said Paul Newman, who, at 57, is smitten with auto racing. "But I do deny that I'm getting slower." His affair with his second love, racing, is not losing steam. He'll serve again as race chairman for the second annual Caesars Palace Grand Prix in Las Vegas. Newman also competes, participating in such major endurance races as LeMans and Daytona. . . . NOTES: Al Pacino, now on screen in Author! Author! has an ambitious ambition. Before the next 10 years are up, he wants to do Othello on Broadway — but with a twist. He wants to play both Othello and Iago in the same run. . . . Author Judy Mazel's best-selling The Beverly Hills Diet (Macmillan), is to be published in French, Italian, Spanish, Japanese. . . . Connie Francis, chastised for changing her style of singing, is bringing out a new LP of her oldies because she knows that's what people would rather hear.

PRO AND CON

Would Expanded Home-Care Services Reduce Soaring Hospital And Nursing-Home Costs?

Send questions of national significance, on a postcard, to "Pro & Con," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022
We'll pay $10 for those published.

PRO Dr. Frank Traylor, executive director, Colorado Department of Health

Definitely yes. Studies have sho cost-effectiveness, and more importantly, increased patient satisfaction from home care. One example of home care for the elderly: Patients save an average of 10 days of hospital care when home care is available. In Colorado 56,964 are in need of home care. If patients spend 10 days less per year in the hospital at $250 a day, and each receives an average of 22 home visits costing $40 each, there would be a savings of $92,281,680.

CON William G. Weissert, senior research associate, the Urban Institute

To cut hospital and nursing-home costs, home care must be a substitute, not an add-on service. It isn't. Research shows that eight out of 10 persons who use home care aren't at risk of hospital or nursing-home entry. The result: Costs go up, not down. Serving only the at-risk group is technically difficult and, politically, nearly impossible. There is another problem: Transportation costs drive up home-care charges. But what about patient benefits? Research shows few to none.

COVER STORY

"The Commerce Comet" in 1953: The strongest and fastest fellow ever to hit from both sides of the plate.

Wide World

Fourteen years after he retired, as the last of the legendary Yankees, Mickey Mantle has gotten baseball out of his daily life but not out of his nocturnal dreams.

"I still have them," he says. "The same dreams. Nearly every night. There's the one where I'm making a comeback. . . . I get a base hit and I run to first, hard as I can, but I can't make it. They always just nick me.

"But this is the worst one: I get to the ball park late, and as I jump out of a cab I hear 'em calling my name on the public-address system. I try to get in and all the gates are locked. Then I see a hole under a fence and I can see Casey looking for me, all of 'em, Billy and Whitey and Yogi. I try to crawl through the hole and I get stuck at the hips, and that's when I wake up, sweating."

Casey Stengel, Mantle's madcap manager for 15 years, is gone, dead too soon at 85. Yogi Berra is a coach with the Yankees. Mantle is still in touch with Billy Martin and Whitey Ford, still close; out of all the Yankees, these are the three who refused to grow older.

Except for a turn as a batting instructor with his old team each spring training, Mantle's dreams are as close as he gets to a ball park these days. If he does go, he sits in one of those V.I.P. boxes where they serve little sausages on toothpicks. The fans would never let him enjoy the game otherwise. He wouldn't anyway. He never got used to not playing.

He doesn't enjoy the dreams, either — "Hell, no, I keep getting thrown out" — but they are an endless source of entertainment, home movies of the mind. "I met a guy in a bar one night," says

Where have you gone, Mick, golden boy of 18 glorious Yankee summers? Is memory playing tricks, or is it true that. . .

Mickey Mantle Is, Gulp, 50!

By Mickey Herskowitz

Mantle, "and he said he was — what do you call them? — an analyst. He told me he could explain what my dreams meant. I described the one about me trying to crawl under the fence, and he spun around on his seat and said, 'My God! That's terrible! You must have been late to a lot of games.' Well, I thought about that. The truth is, I missed a lot of buses, maybe a plane or two. Had to catch cabs. But I was never late for a game."

Mickey Mantle is coming to the end of his 50th year. He will be 51 in October. It is a pleasant and curious time in his life. He has made his home in Dallas for 25 years, yet he lives so quietly that when people see him in the airport or on the street, they think he is in town for a banquet. His home in an expensive suburb is paid for, a home complete with pool, cabana, hummingbird feeder and trophy room. His wife, Merlyn, still a stunning blonde, designed the trophy room, which features enough photos of Mantle with celebrities to make a New York restaurant owner weep.

An astute Dallas lawyer named Roy True shaped up Mickey's business affairs after Mick lent his name to a series of deals in the 1960's that eventually went sour. He earns more money today than he ever did in his New York prime, and he made $100,000 a year during his last seven years in baseball. (With a nod toward today's megabuck salaries, he laughs and says, "Yeah, if you hit .270 now, I guess you get to name your price.")

These days, a big chunk of the Mantle income is paid by Reserve Life Insurance Company, a Dallas firm. What he does for them falls into the somewhat elastic category called public relations — mostly appearing at sales meetings and delivering motivational speeches to the staff. Mantle once put out a record on batting tips for Little Leaguers, and the company ordered a quarter million for their agents to pass out to clients. He also owns an interest in Saratoga Water, an American rival of Perrier, and does special appearances for Anheuser-Busch Natural Light beer. He is especially excited about his newest venture: Martin, Ford and Mantle are partners in a Dallas-based oil-drilling company called Diamond 7 — Mickey's old number.

Mantle has no complaints and no regrets, he says over and over, but if you ask him if he is doing at 50 what he thought he would be doing, he says, while relaxing in his trophy room: "I don't know. I never thought about not playing baseball. If I could still be playing ball, I would. I'm not bragging, but I think I was born to play ball. That's the truth. My dad had it planned out: he named me before I was born. Mickey Mantle. He thought that was a ballplayer's name." (The "Mickey" was for legendary A's catcher Mickey Cochrane.)

Outside of Babe Ruth, it was the best baseball name ever invented. And just as summer follows spring, Mantle followed Ruth, Gehrig and DiMaggio as a pin-striped Yankee folk hero. The pride of Commerce, Okla., was the classic home run hitter, the strongest and fastest fellow ever to hit from both sides of the plate. He once hit a ball 565 feet. Ten times he hit homers left-handed and right-handed in the same game. And in his youth, when he ran like a truck cascading brakeless down a hill, he could make it to first in an astonishing 3.2 seconds.

No one hits home runs every day in this world, but few hit them farther or with more flair than did Mantle. He failed often enough to be human (his lifetime average eventually dipped under .300), but he brought people to the park and he gave them thrills. He was the last Yankee to win the Triple Crown. That was in 1956 when he led the league in batting average (.353), home runs (52) and runs batted in (130). He hit a total of 18 home runs in the World Series to break a record held by Babe Ruth, and he says, "I think that will last awhile, because nobody else is goin' to be in 12 World Series his first 15 years." Beginning his big-league career at age 19, he played in more games as a Yankee than anybody else, 2,401 — 237 more than Lou Gehrig.

In a bar one night, Mantle described the dream to an analyst. The analyst spun around in his seat and said, "My God! That's terrible!"

But the quality that made him Mickey Mantle was this: No one ever played harder or better or longer on one leg. His strength enabled him to compete when lesser men had to stay in the pits for repairs.

In a twist of fate no script writer would dare invent, Joe DiMaggio and Willie Mays were involved in a single play that nearly ended Mantle's career before it even began. For sure, the play cost him a few seasons off the end of his career and may have kept him from rewriting the record book.

"It was the Series in '51," he recalls, "and Mays hit a pop fly. I was in right field, DiMaggio in center. As soon as the ball came off the bat, I knew there was no way Joe could get to it, so I really moved. Just before I got there, I heard Joe say, 'I got it.' He was camped under it. I put on the brakes and the back spikes of my right foot caught on the rubber cover of a sprinkler head. This bone here" — Mantle put a hand on his right kneecap — "was sticking out to here."

If there is a sadness to Mantle's career, it can be summed up in the phrase, "what might have been" — what might have been had he not spent most of his career coated with liniment and swathed in bandages.

"You think I haven't thought about it a few times?" he says. "You see Rose playing at 41 and Gaylord Perry still pitching at 43. . . . Musial and Mays and Aaron got to play into their 40's. I was over the hill at 34. I wonder if I'd be up at the top of some of those lists if I had played that long. But I can't dwell on that. . . . I try to think about how lucky I am, all the good things that happened."

Mantle and his wife of 30 years, Merlyn, in the trophy room she designed.

Then one day it was all over. "They had moved me to first base in '68," he says. "I thought I could just go on, playing on one leg like I had been. But I couldn't go from first to third anymore. I couldn't get a hit when I wanted to. It was no fun at all."

He was 36 years old and had spent half his life in a Yankee uniform. There is an underlying seriousness when he answers friends who ask if he would have done anything differently, "Yes, if I had known I was going to live this long, I'd have taken better care of myself."

His father, grandfather and two uncles died of Hodgkin's disease. "I think I'm the first Mantle male that made it past 40," he says. For most of his career, he was haunted by the fear that he was doomed to die young. Then he woke up one morning and found that he was 40 years old and still alive, and he stopped worrying. A trace of the illness was found in Billy, the third of his four sons, all of whom are grown now, but medication keeps it under control.

Mantle retired with 536 home runs, three Most Valuable Player awards and the scars from four knee operations. He is still trim, even though his exercise is limited mainly to riding a golf cart. (Playing every day that he's not traveling, Mick has a six-stroke handicap.) "There's no cartilage or ligaments in that knee," he says. "It's kinda like bone sitting on bone. If I overdo things, it's like a bad toothache."

In a way, Mantle seems as popular today as when he played, a belated recognition perhaps that the factory doesn't turn out his kind of model anymore. "I'm not a millionaire," he says, "but I live like one. I do pretty good just messin' around. And people still fuss over me. I get scrapbooks in the mail that they kept when I was playing. The ones who were kids then are running the country now. They have their own companies. You'd be surprised the letters I get, telling me they named their sons after me."

A few years back, when Mickey was heavily involved in the personal-appearance scene, showing up at malls and such for $3,500 a crack, a New Jersey housewife paid him just to show up at her husband's 40th birthday party. When he saw his special gift, it's said the man began to cry.

He misses baseball, the Yankees, being 19 with two good legs. But Mickey Mantle likes what he is and he loves being 50 — especially when he considers the alternative. And maybe, one of these days, in his dreams, he'll beat that throw to first base. FW

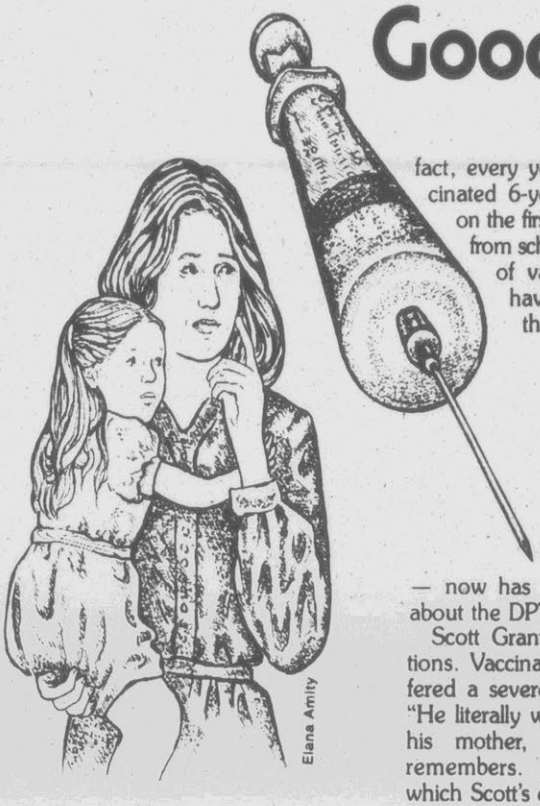
School Shots: More Harm than Good?



Elana Amity

By Michael D'Antonio

DPT. The letters stand for diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus, three diseases that were often lethal for children of past generations. Today the DPT vaccine — a series of five shots administered between 3 months of age and school entry — has all but eliminated the risk of these childhood nightmares. But some doctors are starting to wonder if the vaccine for pertussis, commonly known as whooping cough, is more risky than the actual disease.

In Britain, West Germany and some Scandinavian countries, parents are no longer required to have children vaccinated against pertussis before they enter school. Medical authorities in Europe have isolated the pertussis component in the DPT inoculation, blaming it for serious brain damage and lesser brain-related conditions — such as shock and convulsions — found in thousands of vaccinated children. Millions of European children have not been vaccinated.

In the U.S., school systems in most states still require the DPT series. In fact, every year hundreds of unvaccinated 6-year-olds are sent home on the first day of class and barred from school until they bring proof of vaccination. Court cases have upheld laws requiring the shots, and for more than a generation parents have routinely sought the inoculations. In most cases, the shots are harmless. But recent media focus on the exceptions — cases of crippled and brain-damaged children — now has many parents alarmed about the DPT vaccine.

Scott Grant is one of the exceptions. Vaccinated in 1961, Scott suffered a severe reaction to the shot. "He literally wilted before our eyes," his mother, Marge Grant, sadly remembers. The brain damage, which Scott's doctors say was caused by the vaccine, has left him immobile and mentally retarded.

What makes the DPT controversy a quandary for parents is the danger of pertussis. The disease starts with symptoms similar to the common cold. But as weeks go by, the cough and congestion get so bad that children struggle to breathe (the inhalation of air sounds like a whoop). And the bronchial system becomes so irritated from coughing that pneumonia is easily contracted. Before the DPT vaccine was developed in the 1930's, whooping cough was a killer. And some survivors suffered brain damage and convulsions.

"It is tragic that events such as brain damage may occur as a result of pertussis vaccination," says Dr. William H. Foege, director of the Federal Government's Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "However, we must all remember that pertussis itself causes complications more severe than these and may cause death."

The scientists studying the pertussis vaccine have little conclusive evidence of its side effects. For years, crying spells that develop on the day the shot is given were considered insignificant. Today some doctors believe they are evidence of a neurological reaction to the shot. And

Paul "Bear" Bryant
Winningest Collegiate Football Coach

Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant can tell you . . . building a winning football team is sometimes a tough job. Building a new home on your property, however, may be easier, and cost less than you think . . . if you choose Jim Walter as your builder. Jim Walter offers 10% annual percentage rate financing for his customers. This, alone, will save you thousands and thousands of dollars compared to today's much-higher interest rates. For example, financing a $35,000 home with a 14% mortgage for 20-years, would cost you almost $23,500 MORE than you would pay for a home, with this same cash price, built and financed by Jim Walter at only 10% annual percentage rate. That's an amazing $97.53 MORE you'll pay each month. Think what you could do with almost $100 extra in your family budget every month. (Check the chart in this ad for more comparisons.)

Then, to save you even more money, Jim Walter allows you to do some or all of the inside finishing work in your home. Here's how it works: We'll build to almost any stage, from the "shell" (unfinished inside) up to 90% complete. At this "most complete" stage, all you do is paint or paper walls, finish the trim, install floor covering of your choice, hook-up to outside utilities — electric, water, sewer — and move in. If you want to save hundreds, perhaps even thousands of extra dollars, do more of the inside finishing work, such as wiring, wallboard or paneling, inside doors and trim. The more you do for yourself, the more money you'll save!

Saving money is a good reason for choosing Jim Walter as your builder, but there are more, many more excellent reasons. We want you to know all of them. We want to tell you about our custom-construction methods. We want you to know about the quality of materials that we'll use. We want you to see the more than twenty models from which you may choose. We want you to have all the facts and figures before you decide. When you have these facts, we believe you'll choose Jim Walter. Call, stop by a display park or send the coupon to the office nearest you.

A study on DPT effects by researchers at the University of California, the first such study to be done in the U.S. in 25 years, found that one in 13 vaccinated children suffers persistent, piercing crying spells the day after receiving a DPT injection. Because the first three shots are given to children when they are still under 1 year old, they can't explain the exact nature of their distress. However, the crying is usually accompanied by a fever and drowsiness. Some experts theorize the crying is due to slight damage to the nervous system, but the connection has not been proven.

The statistics developed by studies here and abroad are critical in the DPT debate. The study cited above also found that one in 700 children who received the vaccine suffered convulsions or went into shock. Foreign studies found that serious brain damage, causing severe retardation and motor disability, occurs in one of every 50,000 recipients. Britain and Japan now have national programs to compensate thousands of children who suffered serious side effects due to DPT. The State of California has now begun its own compensation program, but so far only one child has been compensated.

Warning for Parents

The American Academy of Pediatrics and DPT manufacturers say a child who suffers serious side effects from the vaccination should not receive additional inoculations. If the side effects listed below appear, parents should consult their pediatrician.

- High fever
- Convulsions
- Shock
- Fainting
- Excessive crying
- Loss of awareness

sand cases of whooping cough and 28 deaths. "The United States is in potential danger of a similar assault," he says, if DPT is abandoned.

But public concern about DPT is rising. In the metropolitan Washington area, a parents group has organized to study the problem and lobby for a change in the laws making the shots mandatory. Inoculations without the pertussis component have far fewer side effects, and the parents want to be free to choose whether their children get the full DPT vaccine or not. "We want people to be warned of the risk," says Kathi Williams, a mother who heads the parents group. "We want the Government to study the issue and we want better vaccines developed."

Proponents of the vaccine say that without it the nation risks a return to whooping-cough epidemics and deaths.

The statistics related to whooping cough are also frightening. In 1934 more than a quarter million cases of the disease were reported, and more than 7,500 children were killed by it. Final figures have not been compiled, but the Government estimates there were fewer than 2,000 cases of pertussis last year and six deaths. Proponents of the vaccine say that without it the nation risks a return to whooping-cough epidemics and deaths. There is still no specific treatment for pertussis — except intravenous fluids to prevent dehydration and respiratory care (antibiotics are not effective).

Britain's recent experience should be a warning to America, insists Dr. Vincent Fulginiti of the American Academy of Pediatrics. Following a decline in use of the pertussis vaccination, that country has suffered an epidemic of more than a hundred thou-

The Government and the drug industry are working on safer vaccines, and new ones are expected in the next few years. In the meantime, Congress has scheduled hearings to investigate the controversy, and individual members of Congress, led by Senator Paula Hawkins (R.-Fla.), are calling on the Government and doctors to warn parents of the risks of both the vaccine and the shot, to screen children susceptible to side effects and to develop better vaccines.

Until new, exhaustive studies are completed, parents will have to consult with their family doctors before making their own decision about DPT. FW

"Magic" Indian Oil...

CATCHES FISH LIKE CRAZY!

I made this remarkable discovery when my son went on his first fishing trip with me. We hired this Old Indian guide in a small town in Wisconsin.

When our guide showed Mark how to bait his hook, I noticed that he rubbed something on the bait just before Mark put the line in the lake. Within minutes Mark had himself a beautiful bass. You can imagine how pleased I was and Mark, of course, wanted more.

So the whole thing was repeated—the guide put on the bait, rubbed it again, and up popped another beauty. Meanwhile, I sat there patiently waiting for my first fish.

This went on all morning. Mark caught 30 bass and I got eight.

When I pulled the boat in at noon and paid off our Indian guide, I noticed that a small, unusual seed had apparently fallen from the guide's pocket into the botton of our boat. The odor from the seed was quite strong and certainly different from anything I had ever smelled before. This was what he had rubbed on Mark's bait!

When we returned home the next day, I gave the seed to a chemist friend of mine. He analyzed it and duplicated it into a spray for me.

I could hardly wait for my next fishing trip. What I discovered on that trip was absolutely unbelievable. I have never before caught fish like that. Every time I baited my hook. I sprayed it and up popped another fish.

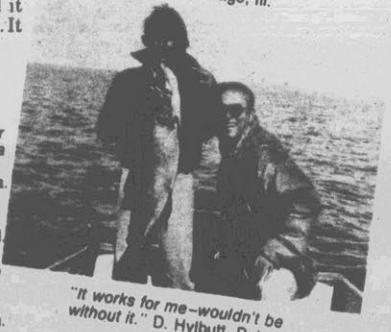
I tested some more. I put spray on one bait and nothing on another. The sprayed bait got fish almost immediately. The unsprayed bait got some nibbles, but nothing more.

I gave some of my friends samples of the spray to try and the results were the same—they caught fish like never before.

I named my spray "CATCH FISH LIKE CRAZY" cause that's just what it does and it works with all kinds of fresh or salt water fish. It works equally well on artificial or live bait.

This picture was taken on our Family Vacation this summer . . . this stuff really works. B.N. Denver, Colorado

"What you say is true. I caught fish like crazy–it really works!" J. Hannon, Chicago, Ill.



"It works for me–wouldn't be without it." D. Hylbutt, Duluth

Here's what fishermen say about my spray:

"I read your ad and found it hard to believe–but sent for it anyhow cause I'm not very lucky–after one day, I'm a believer–I caught Snook and Sea Bass–it was easy!" D.D. Naples, Fla.

"I always keep a can in my tackle box. It's fantastic!" K.S. Evansville, Ind.

"I made a mistake on my first order! I only ordered two cans! Now, I want four more cans. That stuff really works! We caught Crappies like crazy all this week–it was really exciting." L.B.S. McAlester, Okla.

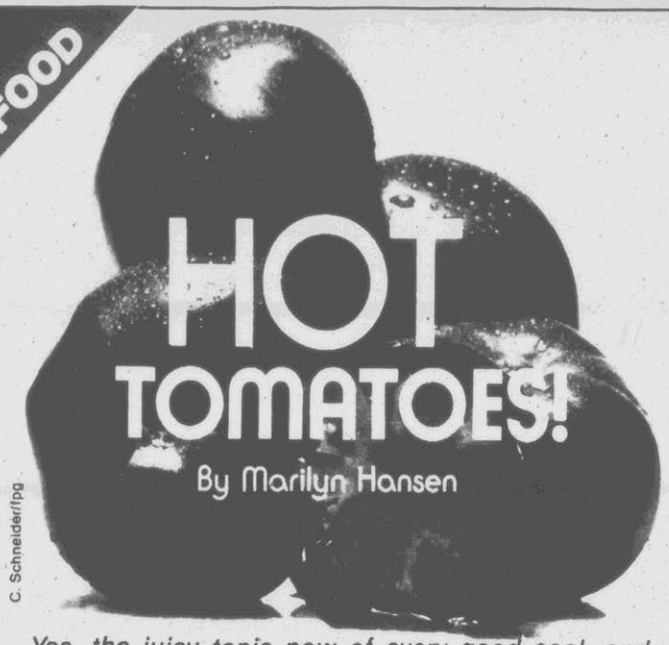
FOOD



HOT TOMATOES!

By Marilyn Hansen

C. Schneider/fpg

Yes, the juicy topic now of every good cook and gardener's conversation is the size and quality of the current tomato crop. Destined for distinction are these two spicy and succulent tomato recipes.

TOMATO KETCHUP

8 lbs. ripe tomatoes, peeled, seeded and diced
1 lb. sweet Spanish onions, finely chopped
2 large green bell peppers, seeded and chopped
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1 3-inch stick cinnamon
1 teaspoon whole black peppercorns
1 teaspoon whole cloves
1 teaspoon mixed pickling spice
1 cup packed dark brown sugar
1¼ cups cider vinegar
1 tablespoon salt
2 teaspoons paprika
¼ teaspoon ground cayenne pepper

1. Combine the tomatoes, onion, green peppers and garlic in a stock pot or Dutch oven and cook slowly until tender, about 45 minutes. Stir every once in a while to prevent sticking.
2. Process mixture a little at a time in the food processor, using the metal chopping blade, until pureed. Press pureed mixture through a fine sieve or food mill to remove all seeds and any remaining skins.
3. Turn pureed and sieved mixture into a stock pot or Dutch oven. Tie cinnamon, peppercorns, cloves and pickling spice into a cheesecloth bag, and add to tomato puree. Stir in brown sugar, vinegar, salt, paprika and cayenne. Heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer very slowly, uncovered, about 1½ to 2 hours, stirring now and then to prevent sticking.
4. Remove the spice bag. Ladle hot ketchup into clean, hot, sterilized pint jars, to within ¼ inch from the top. Adjust lids. Process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes.

Makes about 7½ pints

TOMATO CHUTNEY

7 cups (3½ lbs.) peeled, seeded and diced firm-ripe tomatoes
4 cups (1 lb.) peeled, diced, cored tart apples
1 small lemon, thinly sliced
2 cups dark, seedless raisins
¼ cup peeled, slivered gingerroot
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 tablespoon minced garlic
2 cups cider vinegar
3 cups packed light brown sugar
1 cup light corn syrup
1½ teaspoons salt
¼ teaspoon ground cayenne pepper
1 4-inch stick cinnamon
½ cup diced pimiento

1. In a large stock pot, Dutch oven or deep skillet, combine tomatoes, apples, lemon, raisins, gingerroot, onion, garlic, vinegar, brown sugar, corn syrup, salt, cayenne and cinnamon stick.
2. Heat mixture to boiling, stirring until sugar dissolves. Turn off heat and allow to cool 1 hour or so to plump up the fruit.
3. Return mixture to boiling, reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, about 1 hour or until fruit is tender and liquid is syrupy and thickened. (Syrup will thicken further as it cools.) Remove cinnamon stick. Add pimiento; heat just to boiling.
4. Fill hot, sterilized pint jars to within about ¼ inch from the top with hot chutney; adjust lids. Process filled jars 10 minutes in boiling water bath.

Makes about 5 pints

ORIGINAL U.S. GOV'T. MORGAN SILVER DOLLARS

in U.S. treasury bags

THE CONSUMER'S COIN RESERVE announces: For one week only 9,861 original fine condition Morgan Silver Dollars will be released to the American public @ $19.40 each...$9.60 less than a major competitor.

MORGAN CACHE LOCATED 9,861 original Morgan Silver dollars have been found in U.S. Gov't treasury bags and will be sold to the public through this notice. The federal government ordered the meltdown of Morgan Silvers over a half century ago, making these coins one of the rarest in the world. Their silver content, then as today is .90 fine silver. Morgan Silver Dollars have had an average annual appreciation of 26.5% in value.

MARKET CONDITIONS The combination of the favorable silver market and locating these Morgan Silver Dollars has made this offer possible. Each coin is guaranteed to be Fine Quality or better with a certificate to that effect. We will only hold this price for one week due to the fluctuations in the precious metals market.

TAKE NOTE Our price of these Fine Quality Morgans is $19.40 each. This price is $9.60 less than a nationally advertised coin dealer, therefore we advise you to get your order in early before the strict limit of 9,861 is sold. We offer a 14 day examination period for each coin, coins returned within that time will receive a full refund. A limit of twenty coins per customer will be strictly adhered to.

The master engravers of The Franklin Mint present . . .

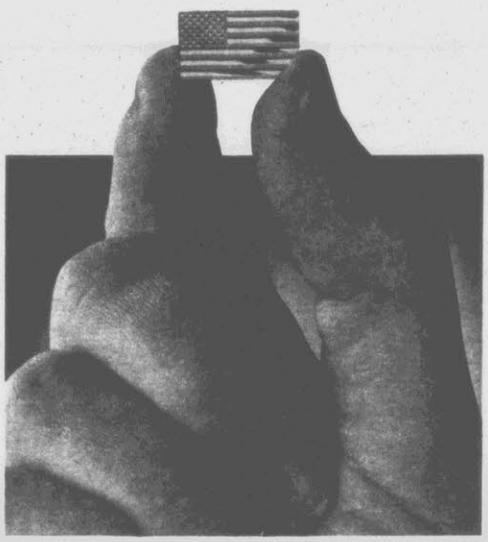
The official flag of every country in the world — each minted with brilliant micro-detail. Edition limited to 25,000 sets world-wide.



MINIATURE ABOVE SHOWN ACTUAL SIZE.

The fascination of intricate detail in the tiniest area. The precision of a perfectly formed yet minute work of craftsmanship. The complexity of line and form on an object smaller than the eye that beholds it . . .

This is the unique appeal of the miniature.

And now, the engravers and craftsmen of The Franklin Mint invite you to discover the intriguing world of the minted miniature. A world that combines the beauty of 24 karat gold electroplated on solid sterling silver with the fascination of meticulous detail in the tiniest area.

'The Official Flags of All Nations Gold on Sterling Miniatures' is the most definitive collection of flag miniatures ever issued. For it will include a carefully crafted miniature portraying the official flag of every sovereign nation in the world.

To capture each flag with flawless accuracy in miniature form is a demanding challenge to the master engraver and minter. But the craftsmen of The Franklin Mint are masters of their art, so expert in miniaturization that they can capture even the most minute details on an image area measuring less than one quarter of a square inch—from the 50 individual stars on the United States flag . . . to the tiny spokes in the Buddhist wheel on India's flag . . . to the wreath of wheat portrayed on the flag of Romania.

Even the intricate globe-and-star design of the flag of Brazil, and the hawk of Quraish on Egypt's flag, can be clearly seen. And the proportions of these miniatures will vary as well, with each one carefully scaled so that it conforms exactly to the shape and dimensions of the flag it represents.

So that you can immediately study each flag in all its fascinating detail, a special magnifying glass and a pair of collector's tongs will be included with your first group of miniatures. And, to house and display your complete collection of miniature flags, a custom-designed collector's case will also be provided as part of the collection.

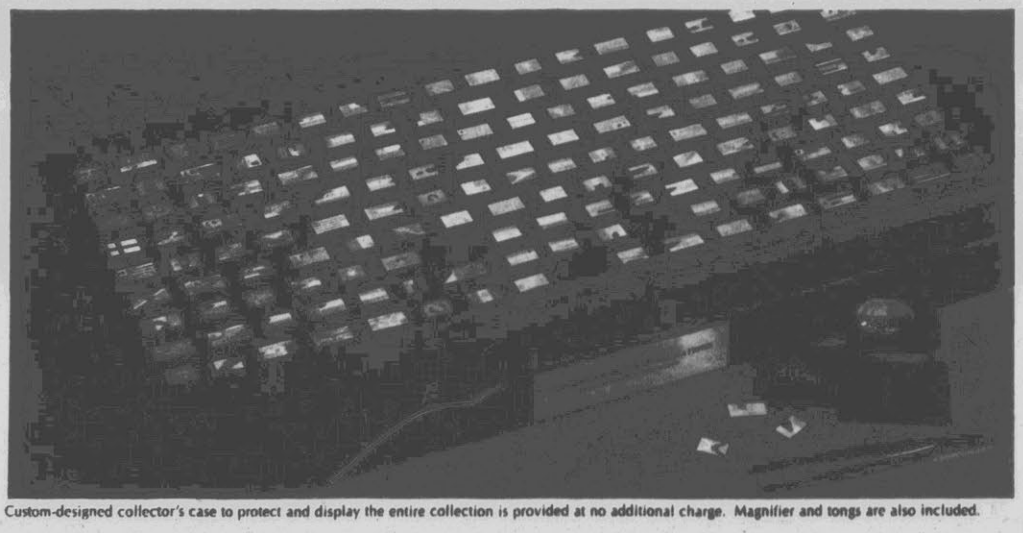
In addition, each miniature will be accompanied by an informative commentary, written especially for this collection by Dr. Whitney Smith, the world's foremost authority on flags and their history. Each of these commentaries will describe the particular flag being honored and will explain both its history and its symbolism.

As a subscriber to 'The Official Flags of All Nations Gold on Sterling Miniatures,' you will be able to build your collection conveniently, systematically, and at a very reasonable price.

Each month, three new miniatures will be sent to you. You will be billed just $6 for each gold on silver miniature—a most attractive price for works of this quality and craftsmanship. Furthermore, this price is fully guaranteed to you for every issue in the collection, regardless of any changes in the costs of engraving and minting, or of precious metals, during the subscription period.

As an owner of 'The Official Flags of All Nations Gold on Sterling Miniatures,' you will possess the most complete and definitive collection of its kind ever minted—combining the beauty of gold and sterling silver with the fascination of finely crafted miniatures.

However, the total edition of this remarkable collection will never exceed 25,000 sets world-wide. And subscription applications will be accepted on an as-received basis. Therefore, you are urged to mail your application promptly to The Franklin Mint, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19091.



Custom-designed collector's case to protect and display the entire collection is provided at no additional charge. Magnifier and tongs are also included.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

THE LONG SEASON

It looks like the three major networks may be in for another tough year. More than half of their new shows are doomed to failure, according to an early analysis by advertising's Ketchum Communications.

Only two new shows have top-20 potential, reports Ketchum — CBS's Bob Newhart and Gloria, starring Sally Struthers. Both series have established stars and solid lead-ins. Newhart will air after *M*A*S*H* on Monday, while on Sunday, Gloria follows her TV daddy on Archie Bunker's Place.

Ten more new entries are borderline to succeed, including The Golden Monkey, It Takes Two, Ripley's Believe It or Not and Matt Houston (ABC); Seven Brides for Seven Brothers (CBS); and St. Elsewhere, Family Ties, Cheers, Remington Steele and Silver Spoons (NBC). Ketchum claims the remaining 13 shows are destined for extinction.

And continuing a trend, the major networks' share of the total TV audience will continue to erode. Ketchum estimates that by the end of 1982, nearly one-fourth (23 percent) will be lost to independent stations and cable.

CBS

Struthers returns as Gloria.

HOW PLANTS KILL EACH OTHER

The lowly but beautiful sunflower may soon become one of our most potent weed killers.

Scientists have long known that certain plants and trees have the ability to poison neighboring plants with toxic secretions from their leaves or roots — a process called allelopathy. Such common flora as the black walnut tree, creosote bush and wild cherry tree possess the trait.

Frank Azzopardi

Now scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture are testing the highly allelopathic sunflower to see just how it can knock out such insidious weeds as Johnson grass and ragweed and how, through crossbreeding, this ability can be enhanced.

U.S.D.A. plant physiologist Gerald Leather told us that it may be possible one day to extract the key weed-killing chemical directly from the sunflower or, more likely, to develop a synthetic compound that's similar. Or sunflowers could be planted along with certain immune crops to help control late-season weeds.

RICH MAN, POOR MAN

A few of the more rewarding findings from David Harrop's new book, World Paychecks:

—Nowhere else are lawyers as plentiful or well rewarded as in the U.S. In Japan, for instance, there is one lawyer for every 10,000 people, and the top salary an attorney can ever expect is $46,000, or roughly what top law-school grads now start at in the U.S., which has one attorney for every 430 citizens. (The Japanese, ahem, save their highest regard not for doctors or lawyers but for journalists.)

Rita Grasso

—Of all occupations, Harrop found that the greatest salary disparity between the U.S. and the rest of the world is seen for TV anchormen. A West German anchorman will rarely earn more than $45,000; a British anchorperson for the BBC no more than $39,000. Contrast this to Jessica Savitch at $600,000, Dan Rather at $800,000 and Tom Brokaw at close to $1 million.

—The four members of the rock group Pink Floyd make over $5.8 million a year; Kenny Rogers has earned over $10 million annually for the past three years; and thanks to royalties, in 1980 Paul McCartney took in some $48.2 million. Baby, you're a rich man.

THE AFTERMATH OF RAPE

Three out of four rape victims blame themselves for being attacked, reports a new national study. However, only 4 percent of reported rape cases could actually be classified as "victim precipitated" — that is, when the rape victim first invited and then rejected sexual relations, concludes University of Massachusetts psychologist Ronnie Janoff-Bulman, who surveyed rape crisis centers around the U.S.

She says that self-blame may help some victims fight the feeling that they were part of a random, senseless attack. It might be more reassuring for a woman to convince herself that she was attacked because of something she did, and that if she changes her actions, it can't happen again.

J. Ellen Dolce

THE SWELLING IS TELLING

It seems that success can lead not only to a swollen head, but to a swollen signature as well. Students' signatures are found to be smaller after failure on a task, while after success they balloon.

As reported recently in Psychology Today, 28 Rhode Island college students signed their names and then had one minute to unscramble either five easy anagrams like "ohseu" (all succeeded) or five difficult ones like "crlufoneesec" (none got it right). The students then signed again. The successful students' signatures were now bigger by 45.21 square millimeters (multiplying length by height) while the John Hancocks of those who failed shrunk by 37.57 square millimeters.

And by the way, "ohseu" unscrambled is "house," and "crlufoneesec" is really "fluorescence." O.K., now sign in please.

HOCUS-FOCUS

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR EYES? There are at least six differences in drawing details between top and bottom panels. How quickly can you find them? Check answers with those below.

Differences: 1. Head is tilted. 2. Leg is moved. 3. Club head is tilted. 4. Bag is missing. 5. Pole is shorter. 6. Shirt is different.

● HAL'S PALS! Dear Hal: How far down should one sit in a theater? Dear Pal: All the way. Dear Hal: If your sister said you were useless, mean, lazy and a liar, how would you feel? Dear Pal: Nobody's perfect.

● Word Game! Find the name of a bird in each word: 1. Wrench. 2. Beagle. 3. Balloon. 4. Crown. 5. Bowl. 6. Lantern. 7. Trail.

1. Wren. 2. Eagle. 3. Loon. 4. Crow. 5. Owl. 6. Tern. 7. Rail.

● Two Much! If it is four minutes from two-to-two to two-two, how long is it from two-two to two-to-two? Answer within a minute.

Eleven hours and fifty-six minutes.

● Riddle-Me-This! How should exercise books be filed? Under muscle-aneous. Which is the fattest rabbit? The bulgin' hare. Which fish operates a telegraph key? The Morse cod.

CARD MAGIC

"Pick a card," says the magician. A card is selected, noted, returned to the deck. The performer cuts the deck, riffles through and produces the card.

How it's done: In preparation, all odd cards — ace, 3, 5, etc. — are placed in one half of the deck; all even cards — queen, 10, 8, etc. — are placed in the other half of the deck.

The cut is manipulated so that the selected card is picked from one half the deck and restored to the other half, where it is immediately discernible.

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

INDOLENT

- - - - - - - -

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 50 points.

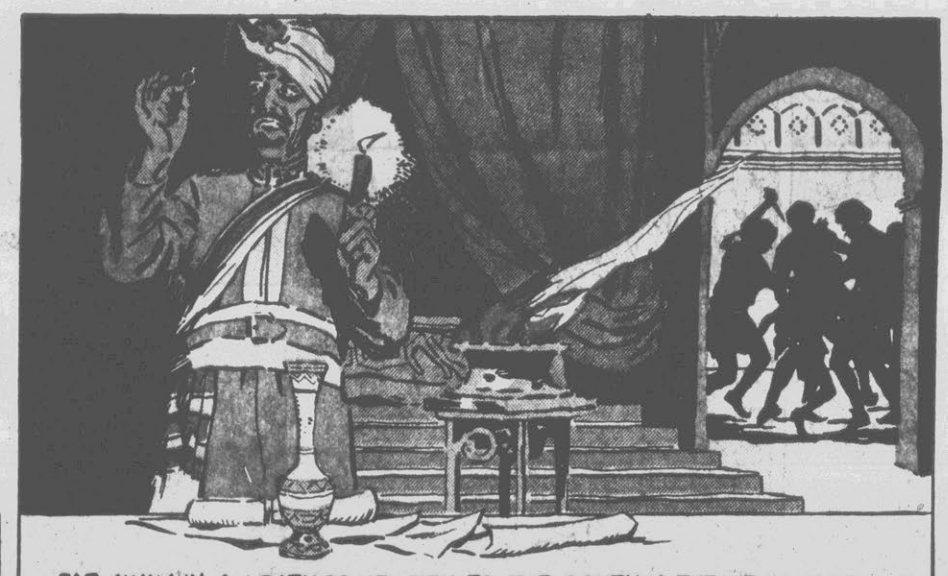
Our Story: GALAN AND YUAN CHEN ARE FALSELY ACCUSED OF STEALING EMPEROR HARSHA'S SACRED RING. THEIR ESCORT FROM THE MISTY ISLES HAS BEEN IMPRISONED; THEY THEMSELVES ENDURE INTERROGATION. NOW SENSELESS IN A CELL, THEY ARE UNAWARE OF THE HOODED FIGURE WHO EVERY NIGHT RUBS SALVE INTO THEIR BROKEN BODIES.

GALAN IS THE FIRST TO AWAKEN UNDER HER TOUCH. HE SEES NOTHING, FOR HIS EYES ARE SWOLLEN SHUT. "MY POOR, POOR BOY." THE GIRL SAYS.

AS SHE BATHES HIS WOUNDS SHE TELLS A STORY. "THERE WAS ONCE AN EMPEROR WHO HAD TWO SONS, HARSHA AND TIMUR, AND HE ANNOUNCED THAT THE ONE TO WHOM HE LEFT HIS RING WOULD BE HIS SUCCESSOR. BUT HE COULD NOT MAKE UP HIS MIND...."

"....SO HE ORDERED A SECOND RING FASHIONED LIKE THE FIRST. WHEN THE EMPEROR DIED, THE EMPIRE WAS DIVIDED IN TWAIN. HARSHA PROVED AN ABLE RULER. BUT TIMUR TURNED CRUEL AND WANTON, AND HIS PEOPLE SUFFER. NOW, WITHOUT THE RING-- OH! I DREAD TO THINK."



FAR AWAY IN A LOATHSOME CITY TO THE SOUTH A TYRANT NAMED TIMUR RECEIVES TWO VISITORS. HE INSPECTS THEIR MERCHANDISE, SMILES, AND THEN HAS THEM KILLED. "WITHOUT THIS RING," HE GLOATS, "PRINCESS MAYANA CANNOT INHERIT HARSHA'S THRONE. YOU ARE OLD AND DECREPIT, VILE BROTHER. THE EMPIRE WILL PASS TO ME."
