$104,136 Earned By School Investments

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Funds invested by the Greenville City Schools during school year 1981-82 earned a total of $104,136.24 in interest, Finance Officer Naomi Edwards reported Monday.

Mrs. Edwards presented the Greenville School Board a report showing interest earned during the past school year on fund balance money in five basic categories. Interest realized in each of the five categories was:

- Current expense fund, 39 investments, $74,649.94
- School Food Service funds, 39 investments 16,732.17
- Capital outlay funds, 11 investments 10,736.52
- Individual school funds 1,365.96
- Rose High School funds, 4 investments 651.65

Funds were invested in repurchase agreements, certificates of deposit, commercial papers, bankers acceptance note, passbook savings, and interest-bearing checking accounts. Mrs. Edwards noted that money was pooled from various funds to get the best possible interest rate.

Time periods of investments ranged from 18 to 367 days, with interest rates ranging from 9 to 16.99 percent.

"We were able to invest more than usual. The fund balance was higher this past year than in previous years," Mrs. Edwards explained. "All earnings," she added, "are returned to the fund from which the money was invested."

One school board member asked if Mrs. Edwards had to account to Pitt County Commissioners for the money earned by investments. "By all means," she replied, "and I'd have a lot more accounting to do if we didn't earn any money on these funds."

Bids on electrical wiring and heating for the joint auto mechanics-drafting building under construction at Rose High were awarded. Low bid for the electrical wiring, not including light fixtures, was by D.D. Bright Electrical Co. at $11,417. The low bid for general heating, at $4,285, was submitted by General Heating Co.

Director of Grounds and Buildings Bob Stewart explained that a decision was made to purchase fixtures through state contract channels rather than include fixtures in the contract, as that approach would result in a savings.

Three policy papers were approved on a second reading at Monday night's action meeting. The policies approved are — extra duty assignments; compensation guides and contracts, classified personnel and performance appraisal system.

The performance appraisal system has been amended from the original policy paper presented. Originally, the policy included a five-point system ranging numerically from one through five, with five representing superior performance.

Superintendent Delma Blinson, noting that a committee studying the report felt the superior performance could create concern among personnel being rated, said the decision was made to pare the rating process down to four levels. The adopted policy carries performance ratings identified as: one point, unsatisfactory; two points, needs improvement; three points, meets expectations, and four

Will Limit Taiwan Arms U.S. Yields To China Demand

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, yielding to demands from China, announced today that the United States will limit future arms sales to Taiwan. But the administration rejected Chinese demands that a date be set for the imposition of the limitations.

The agreement was in the form of a joint U.S.-China communique.

In a written statement, Reagan said the agreement "embodies a mutually satisfactory means of dealing with the historical question of U.S. arms sales to Taiwan," which was not a party to today's statement.

Reagan said "The Taiwan question is a matter for the Chinese people ... to resolve. We will not interfere in this matter...."

The president said the agreement would promote "the further development of friendly relations between the governments and the peoples of the United States and China," while contributing to a reduction of tensions "and to lasting peace in the Asia-Pacific region."

Reagan said arms sales now planned to Taiwan will continue in accordance with the Taiwan Relations Act "and with the full expectation that the approach of the Chinese government to the resolution of the Taiwan issue will continue to be peaceful."

Indeed, the administration planned to try to soften the blow to dismayed conservatives and to the Taiwanese by submitting formal notification to Congress later this week of its intention to permit Taiwan to co-produce American F-5-E jet fighters

But the communique said that the U.S. government "does not seek to carry out a long-term policy of arms sales to Taiwan, that its arms sales to Taiwan will not exceed, either in qualitative or in quantitative terms, the level of those supplied in recent years since the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and China and that it intends to reduce gradually its sales of arms to Taiwan, leading over a period of time to a final resolution.

"In so stating," the communique continues, "the United States acknowledges China's consistent position regarding the thorough settlement of this issue."

But an administration official who requested anonymity said arms sales to Taiwan will not end "unless there is a peaceful resolution of the situation between the People's Republic of China and the people on Taiwan."

"There will be a gradual reduction only if the Chinese continue their peaceful approach," said the official.

Final Lebanon Agreement Very Near

By The Associated Press

With only one major issue unresolved, Lebanon's prime minister has told his nation he hopes to announce final agreement Wednesday on the plan for evacuation of Palestinian guerrillas and Syrian troops from west Beirut.

Israeli jets shattered the sound barrier over Beirut today, but Lebanese police said no bombs were dropped and the cease-fire remained intact.

A U.S. task force sailed from Naples for Lebanon, carrying the 800 U.S. Marines who will be Washington's contribution to the multinational peacekeeping force that will help oversee the withdrawal.

"We're in the process of putting the final touches on the agreement. I can assure everyone that the gap has nearly vanished," Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan said in a broadcast Monday.

He said he hoped the final agreement would be announced after his Cabinet meets Wednesday and that the evacuation would begin "at the end of the week at the latest."

Israeli officials said only one issue remained unresolved — their government's "non-negotiable" demand for the return of pilot Aharon Ahiaz, shot down shortly after the Israeli invasion June 6, and the remains of nine Israeli soldiers killed during Israel's 1978 invasion of Lebanon.

Spokesman Bassam Abu Sharif of the Palestine Liberation Organization said the PLO is ready to release the pilot and the nine bodies, but "this has to be done according to the Geneva Convention. This should mean that our prisoners also are treated according to the Geneva Convention and that some of our prisoners should be released in return."

Lebanon's state radio quoted Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon as saying the Jewish state would not exchange PLO prisoners for Ahiaz, but did not elaborate.

Israel is holding about 7,000 Palestinians captured in southern Lebanon but classes them as terrorists subject to trial and punishment and not prisoners of war.

The intermediary with the Palestinians in the negotiations, former Lebanese Prime Minister Saeb Salam, said the PLO was "prepared to negotiate" the issue.

Other problems in the negotiations were apparently resolved by U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib during a fruitful weekend visit to Jerusalem, where he met with Prime Minister Menachem Begin and other Israeli Cabinet members.

Israel radio said Habib was to meet Sharon today in Beirut to work out the remaining Israeli objections to the evacuation proposal.

Pitt's Social Services Director Exulting Over Low Error Rates

By CAROL TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer

"We've improved!" Pitt County Social Services Director Ed Garrison said this morning.

He reported that the Pitt County DSS had an error rate of 2.84 in the food stamp program and zero in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. Pitt was one of a number of county departments of social services taken to task last year by state Human Resources Secretary Sarah Morrow for having had an error rate of 20.28 percent between October 1979 and March 1980, and 18.39 percent between April and September 1981. The AFDC rate during the same periods was

3.15 percent and 10.3 percent. Asked how he accounts for the improvement, Garrison said, "I give all the credit to my staff and to the county commissioners and county social service boards for providing us greater staffing and high priority for use of county data processing. My people have done an outstanding job and I want to publicly say that I'm very pleased."

Asked if paper work has decreased during the Reagan administration, he said, "Absolutely not. It's increased. We must administer increased eligibility requirements which make for more and more paperwork and we expect even more in October or November when we understand there will be more changes in our programs. My staff never is afforded any period of status quo. They must constantly master new sets of regulations and apply them to human situations."

Much of the food stamp data has now been put in the county computer, Garrison said, "and information for other programs will be added soon. 'I can't say enough about how well the county computer system works,'" he said, "especially when I compare it with the state system which has caused our staff untold problems."

In the offing, Garrison said he hopes, is a statewide common application program for AFDC, food stamps and Medicaid — forms and determination of eligibility alike for all three programs. This would bring about considerable streamlining of eligibility and facilitate computerization of all three programs, he said he believes.

Williamston Will Lose Phone Operator Service

Carolina Telephone has announced that its Williamston office and four others will discontinue operator service functions in 1984 and 1985. The implementation of a company-wide computerized switching system for long distance telephone calls between April 1984 and October 1985.

The operator service component of the Williamston office, which employs 29 full-time persons, will close in October 1984; Elizabeth City, with 50, in September 1984; Kinston, with 33, in May 1985; Henderson, with 53, in July 1985; and Clinton, with 32, in October 1985.

The Traffic Service Position System (TSPS) will automate routine calling functions such as operator-assisted calls and billing which are now handled at the company's 17 long distance offices and reduce these locations to five. The system's processor will be located in Rocky Mount and this base unit will provide switching of long distance calls to remote operator locations at Greenville, Fayetteville, New Bern and Jacksonville.

"Decisions affecting people's jobs are always difficult," Wayne Peterson, company president, said. "But we must operate at the lowest possible costs consistent with good service and fair treatment of all concerned if we are to keep the cost of service to our customers as low as possible."

He said the new system will cost Carolina Telephone $18.5 million over a three-year investment period and that salary and benefit savings of more than $112 million and maintenance savings of $37 million are expected over 10 years.

"Obviously, TSPS means fewer jobs at Carolina Telephone," Peterson said. He reported that the company is establishing an office of economic development "to work with public and private development groups and state and business leaders to bring new industry and jobs to this area."

VIRGIN MARY STATUE MISSING

Hotline has been asked by the congregation of St. Peter's Catholic Church to appeal for the safe return of the statue of The Virgin Mary which has stood in front of the church for as long as even the oldest families of the church can remember.

The statue was removed from its pedestal and taken away one night last week. Anyone who has a clue to its whereabouts is asked to contact the Greenville Police Department or Father William Frost, 758-1582. Or whoever took it is urged to bring it back and leave it where it has been for so many years.

Director of Social Services Edward L. Garrison informed County Commissioners Monday on encouraging progress made by the agency in achieving error reductions in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program.

In a report received from the Division of Social Services of the N.C. Human Resources, it was shown that Pitt was the most improved of any county in the 15 county area surveyed. Pitt dropped from a 10.3 percent error incident in the prior period, April through September 1981, to zero percent for the most recent six month period. Pitt was one of only two counties to achieve a non-error rating.

Another report, one by Mark Aydtlett, Income Maintenance Supervisor for N.C. Region IV, shows that Pitt County's error rate in the Food Stamp program was only 2.84 percent for the period October 1981-March 1982. This compares with a rate of 11.81 percent in the region — a figure lower than the statewide figure of 13.07 percent.

Commissioners expressed pleasure over the efficiency registered in social services operations in Pitt County.

Commissioners approved a low bid of $127,709 to the R.W. Moore Equipment Company of Greenville for a self-loading elevating scraper. Two bids were received for the equipment to be used by the county in connection with heavy duty maintenance work.

In other actions at Monday's meeting, commissioners:

- Tentatively set September 7 as the date for a 7 p.m. joint meeting of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and the Greenville City Council. The purpose of the joint meeting will be to discuss legislation relative to an all elected school board; a coterminous school and city lines arrangement; and the status of the Tar River Ports Commission;
- Reappointed three members to the Pitt County Boxing

Commission — James Woods, Burney L. Tucker and Gaston Monk;

- Appointed two new members — Claude (Kip) West and Gloria Salley to the Nursing Home Administration;
- Approved requests to unfreeze three positions — requests were made by Edward L. Garrison, Dr. Robert F. Ehinger, and Gene Windham.

County Manager Reginald Gray presented to commissioners an updated provision for records retention and disposition schedule for the records of the Register of Deeds, the Tax Supervisor and the Tax Collector. Gray noted this is the first updating of the retention-disposition document since 1970; and

- Authorized a fireworks display to be put on at the site of the firm of Bob Barbour, Inc. at 3300 South Memorial Drive at 9:45 p.m. on August 26.

Colcor Grand Jury Is Convening Again Today

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal grand jury is scheduled to meet again today to hear more testimony in the FBI undercover investigation of crime in Columbus County that has resulted in 21 arrests thus far.

And federal prosecutors say the original purpose of Colcor — to investigate a history of alleged vote buying in the area — is still a primary goal of the probe.

The Charlotte Observer reported in today's editions that sources close to the investigation say no new people will be indicted today. When the investigation was revealed July 29, officials said they had about 24 more suspects.

One source told the Observer that FBI investigators are still gathering evidence and expect to have more indictments within 30 days. For cases such as vote buying, prosecutors have two years to bring charges. In other political corruption cases, the statute of limitations is five years.

Federal prosecutors have refused comment on the proceedings. But federal criminal procedure requires that evidence be presented to a federal grand jury within 30 days of an arrest.

U.S. Attorney Sam Currin says Colcor started out as an investigation of political corruption and grew from there.

"Then you run into politicians protecting gambling and drugs and you can't ignore it," Currin said.

Currin says the original reason for the Colcor probe was to investigate vote buying allegations. And that, Currin says, is still being looked into.

"We're looking into vote buying as a part of Colcor. We've encountered vote buying in Colcor and have also run into vote buying...all over the eastern district," Currin said.

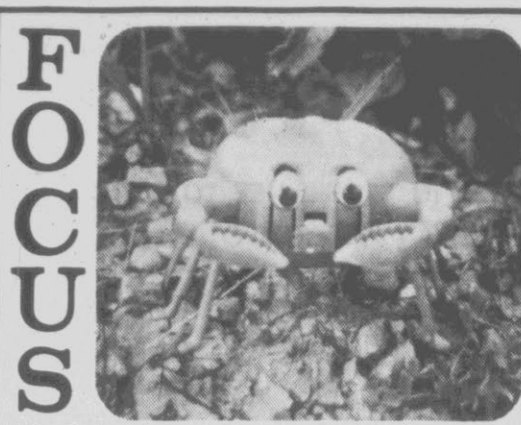

Residents and observers of Columbus County politics say the possible corruption in the county is an outgrowth of the brutal brand of politics practiced in this mostly rural county of 51,000.

A Democratic county since Reconstruction's end, most political feuds are intraparty strifes with the general election a poor second to the primary in interest and importance.

Hotly contested elections may hinge on a few votes, and participants are often reluctant to let the ballot boxes out of their control.

When results of a July 27 runoff election were disputed, for example, the Columbus County Elections Board wanted to lock up the ballots. The contestants demanded their own security measures.

The solution: The ballots were locked into a Columbus County Jail cell with three padlocks. Each of the interested parties controlled one lock.

Here She Come, Miss ...

Today, Ocean City, New Jersey hosts its annual Miss Crustacean USA competition to choose the world's loveliest hermit crab. The contest is a real service to crabs everywhere, because, for centuries, these poor creatures have had the reputation of being ill-tempered and unattractive, and their name has been applied to everything from sour apples to sour people. Obviously, however, the citizens of Ocean City believe that beauty is in the eye of the beholder. The Miss Crustacean pageant may not be as lavish as other beauty contests, but it will do in a pinch.

Self-Destruct Gene Is Copied By Researchers

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — Researchers say gene-splicing techniques may one day lead to effective treatment of a rare, incurable genetic disorder that produces severe retardation in boys and causes them to mutilate themselves by gnawing off their fingers and lips.

University of California medical researchers in San Diego, collaborating with Stanford University scientists, isolated and copied the human gene which when it goes awry produces the affliction known as the Lesch-Nyhan syndrome. The incurable disease occurs once in every 100,000 births.

A report on the achievement, using gene-splicing or recombinant DNA technology, was published today in the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

The gene is the only one deciphered so far in which malfunctions produce behavior changes and retardation, said Dr. Theodore Friedmann, the project leader, in an interview.

As a result, he said it "offers the first possibility" for learning how genes work on the brain to affect intelligence and behavior.

The researchers said that someday their complex achievement might lead to an effective treatment.

Meanwhile, the gene should prove a potent tool for understanding the genetic defect and "until we understand it, we're not going to be able to do much more than we're doing right now," Friedmann said.

Because the gene is carried on the sex chromosome, the disease afflicts only boys and is carried by women who show no symptoms. Friedmann said standard tests can detect carriers and identify affected fetuses in the womb.

The genes, built of deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, carry the inherited blueprint of life.

The message in the genes determines before birth whether a cell becomes hair or heart, blue eyes or brown. Throughout life, they affect everything from appetite to memory to mood. A malfunctioning gene, repeated in every cell of the body, can produce devastating effects.

Isolated after 2½ years of work by the San Diego team is the gene which orders production of the enzyme HPRT, hypoxanthine guanine phosphoribosyl transferase. Lesch-Nyhan occurs when an inherited malfunction shuts down the gene and HPRT is absent.

Allocation Announced

RALEIGH — State Department of Human Resources Secretary Dr. Sarah T. Morrow announced today the allocation of an additional $1.35 million in federal child welfare services funds to be used by the counties to keep children at home who might otherwise be placed in foster care.

Dr. Morrow said the funds will be divided among the counties according to their populations, and will be made available to local departments of social services during fiscal year 82-83 for permanency planning. The total allocation for permanency planning during the year will amount to $2 million, she said.

The Department of Human Resources began its permanency planning program for foster children four years ago to help place in secure home environments children who had to be removed from their natural homes. Foster children are youngsters who, for a variety of reasons, must live apart from their families for a period of time. Placement in foster homes becomes necessary when family problems are so severe that it is emotionally or physically unhealthy for children to remain at home.

The additional funds will be used on projects that will emphasize keeping children at home, according to Morrow. "The extra money will allow county staffs to provide intensive counseling and other services to families so that their children will not have to be relocated," she said.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

If you're hooked on crochet, here's a neat new idea for you — a soft-sided purse with a snap-frame closure, all done in easy stitches. For an added dash, make it as shown here in a multi-color yarn or all in one solid color. Better yet — make one of each! It is designed to be made in a soft, bulky nylon yarn, so that it is light-weight and washable, but you can use bulky rug yarns if the nylon is not available to you.

To obtain directions for making the crochet purse, send your request for Leaflet No. CL-8152 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. CK-8152 by sending a check or money order for $12 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains Needleloft Yarn, a snap-frame purse closure and the instructions, with shipping charges included in the price. Please specify your choice of the following: moss green, cocoa, burgundy or navy in solid colors or oatmeal, autumn, cherry or spring greens and yellows in multi-colors.

Dear Pat: I have a problem that I hope you will be able to help me solve. I am helpless when I am asked to teach a left-handed person to crochet. Worse yet, I have been asked to help a lady who, although originally right-handed, now is forced to use her left hand after suffering a stroke. She desperately wants to learn to do something positive like crochet, but cannot figure out a way to hold or secure the ball or skein of yarn.

Since you solve so many needlework problems, I feel that if anyone has a solution, it would be you. — Cora C., Cripple Creek, Colo.

I am not so sure that I have the best answer to your second question, but I can give you an idea on the first — and thanks for your confidence in me!

The best solution I have found in teaching a natural "southpaw" to crochet is to use the mirror-image technique. By that, I mean that you would sit facing the student and have them copy exactly what they observe you doing. Since you are seated opposite one another, the other person would see all your movements in reverse and can then copy you.

If, however, the student is trying to learn from diagrams or photos, have them prop up the illustrations in front of a mirror that has the same effect of showing them how to do it in reverse.

The problem of the stroke victim is much more complicated, however, since she probably is not yet adept at using her left hand after years of right-handedness. Trying to learn a new skill with an uncooperative hand could be quite frustrating, I would imagine. If she already knew how to crochet, then the transition might be easier, although there is still the problem of holding the yarn in one hand and the hook in the other.

SOFT-SIDED PURSE

There are adaptive aids for other crafts and perhaps one of my readers has found the solution to this problem and will share the information with us.

In the meantime, I might suggest needlepoint as a simpler alternative. I have had many letters from people with similar problems who have found the 7-mesh plastic canvas particularly well-suited to satisfying their need to be busy and creative.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Am I supposed to get choked up over the fact that in a few more years there will be no reason for me to leave home?

It's coming. Computer terminals are being touted that will allow me to stay home and shop for clothes and groceries, send letters and watch church services.

I'll be able to prop my kids up in front of it and have them educated, have my ills diagnosed by a doctor who makes terminal calls, and make deposits and withdrawals at the bank.

I can plan my menus by it and bring any form of entertainment I want into my living room without ever leaving my chair.

I'll be crazy in a week.

Where is it written that women want to spend more time at home? No one has been listening. It has taken us 200 years to get out of the house and now they want to put us back there.

Oh, sure, talking chips are to be installed in our oven, range, refrigerator, dryer and dishwasher so we can establish some kind of rapport, but I did not come this far to sit around talking to my appliances. I already did that.

They're calling it the wave of women's future. Actually, it's our past. I knew women personally who, during a Chicago blizzard, used to get in the car after dinner and have their cars towed just to get away from the kids.

DEAR ABBY: I am a "young" lady of 91, and have been reading your column since it started.

I hope you will find it in your heart to print the enclosed poem. I have lived by its dictates for many years and hope it will do for others what it has done for me.

COUNTY CORONER

DEAR ABBY: As a coroner, I recently performed an autopsy on a teen-age boy. He was driving an automobile at approximately 120 miles per hour, his car became airborne, skidded 140 yards, then hit an oncoming car. As a result of that accident, there were two dead and two injured.

In the wallet of that teen-age driver was a clipping from a Dear Abby column. It was, "Please, God, I'm Only 17." If you print this, do not use my name or state. I did not tell the parents.

A 'No' Vote Is Needed

U.S. House-Senate conferees have completed work on a $98.6 billion compromise tax increase bill and President Reagan is attempting to sell it to the public and Congress.

Included in the bill is the doubling of the eight cents per pack cigarette tax, an increase on telephone service to three percent, reduced deductions for medical expenses, an increase on airline tickets from three percent to eight percent, a 10 percent withholding on interest and dividends, closer controls over reporting of tips, minimum tax on large investment income and some changes in the tax-deferred pension plans for high income people. Business would lose some of the tax cuts it got last year, other business deductions would be modified and the sale of unusable tax breaks by corporations would be repealed.

President Reagan is sensitive to the tax changes being called the largest tax increase in history. He prefers, instead, to view the work as tax reform. He is right on that. It is tax reform and some of it much needed. Just about anybody can see however, that the bill would raise additional revenues to offset the tax cutting spree of last year. That's all right, too. The money is needed to reduce the astounding deficit that the nation is facing.

All-in-all we see the tax bill as generally good legislation, something that the administration can take pride in bringing about if it passes.

Alas, we must suggest that tobacco state senators and representatives vote against the bill. It is the only way that we can make the administration understand that the tobacco farmer and the industry have received unfair treatment in this legislation. No other tax has been increased in proportion to the startling hike that is being proposed for tobacco products. It is not responsible to deliver a blow like this to tobacco producers after so much has been given on the tobacco program this year.

Perhaps the administration feels it doesn't need the tobacco state votes to pass the bill. Only time will tell. At this point tobacco state representatives and senators should make it clear they are willing to vote for the tax bill in the nation's interest, but only if the tobacco tax increase is brought more in line with other proposed increases.

Otherwise tobacco state votes should be "no".

Eruption In Tax Dispute

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Tax-bill tensions caused a rare eruption of emotions at the normally-chummy weekly session of the Chowder and Marching Society, the most prestigious of House Republican clubs, between Minority Leader Bob Michel and GOP Conference Chairman Jack Kemp.

Michel's simmering animosity toward Kemp for opposing the Reagan tax increase flared just as Kemp was leaving the early-evening session for another engagement. Michel snapped that Kemp was duplicitous in suddenly pressing for a full Republican conference, where anti-tax-bill views would be vented, several days before the date set by the House Republican leadership — Kemp included.

Kemp stopped as if hit by a bullet, returned to his seat and told Michel they had better get things straight. He said the early conference was demanded not by him but by such rank-and-file anti-taxers as Rep. Ed Bethune of Arkansas and Newt Gingrich of Georgia. Emotions gradually cooled, but veteran members of the Chowder and Marching Society said they had never seen such a confrontation before.

Nofziger's Badge
White House chief of staff James Baker had to make a hat-in-hand trip to ex-Reagan political aide Lyn Nofziger's downtown office in order to prevent a blunder at the White House gate from preventing Nofziger's switch from tax rebel to tax increaser.

Nofziger had actually been talked into the conversion by President Reagan on Aug. 5. But he went to the White House the next day to pin down his unpaid consultancy with a visit to Baker, presenting his old White House badge at the gate. After calling Baker's office, the guard waved Nofziger through the gate but confiscated his badge. Nofziger told the guard where he and Baker could go, and then went home.

Nofziger's fury could not be smoothed out until the next day. Baker, who seldom visits any private citizen's office, went to Nofziger's carrying a new White House badge and a plea to work for the president.

Chuck Robb's Rise
National Democratic leaders see Gov. Charles Robb of Virginia as a leading prospect for the 1984 vice presidential nomination if the party's revival in his state continues this year.

In the U.S. Senate race, Republican Rep. Paul Trible has lost his commanding lead and now trails Democratic Lt. Gov. Richard Davis in both Republican and Democratic polls. If Davis wins and one or two of Virginia's Republican congressmen is unseated, say prominent Democratic insiders, Robb will get much of the credit.

Lyndon B. Johnson's son-in-law broke the long Democratic drought in Virginia with his election as governor last year. He is being put on the futures list for the party's presidential possibilities.

Helms' Warning

Sen. Jesse Helms, the North Carolina conservative, got fast service when he telephoned William P. Clark, president Reagan's national security assistant, around midnight Aug. 10 to warn about a conservative breakthrough if the administration allowed the Cuban resolution to lose in the Senate.

Clark was on vacation at his California ranch. But within 15 minutes he returned the call and reassured Helms that the White House was giving full presidential backing to the Cuban resolution.

Sponsored by Sen. Steve Symms of Idaho, the resolution does nothing more than repeat warnings against missiles in Cuba made to Moscow and Havana first by President Kennedy during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis (though Sen. Edward M. Kennedy voted against it, as it carried 68-28).

Stennis's Achilles' Heel
Veterans organizations are blaming Sen. John C. Stennis for the congressional decision last summer ending the automatic $300 burial benefit for all war veterans — posing a threat to Stennis's seventh-term re-election.

The repeal of the burial benefit (only for veterans getting disability compensation or pensions) went unnoticed for months, but organized veterans are now up in arms. In the Mississippi race between Stennis and Republican Haley Barbour, former Hinds County (Jackson) Democratic Chairman Jimmy Ditto says the burial repealer will cost Stennis a "lot of votes."

Ditto, a Stennis backer, says the former chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee is being held personally responsible. One reason: Stennis's strong support for huge Israeli aid programs that veterans organizations claim are used to finance more generous burial benefits for Israeli veterans than the U.S. gives its own.

We Miss UFO Sightings

It is inexplicable.

The reported sightings of UFOs has dropped to the vanishing point.

Remember? There were weeks and even months when there were frequent claims of seeing strange saucer-shaped craft ... airborne ... and even some reports of cylindrical bodies hovering or moving swiftly from horizon to horizon.

No more.

So we have a theory. Maybe even two.

The "strangers in our midst" have been watching earthbound television (maybe even some movies) and on witnessing earthlings' fictional reaction simply decided "there must be a better place".

The alternative: Flying saucer-seers have decided fiction is better than "fact", and abandoned their sky-watching proclivities. They chose E.T.

Either way, we miss those dramatic accounts of UFO sightings that strained imaginations. Those were good years.

Apprehension Is Aired

WASHINGTON — Harrison Schmitt and Margaret Heckler performed a useful public service the other day when they called a joint press conference to publicize a bill they are sponsoring in the field of science and technology. They are tackling a national problem with profound implications for our industrial future.

Schmitt is a Republican senator from New Mexico, Mrs. Heckler a Republican representative from Massachusetts. Their concern may be simply stated: We are running short on scientists, engineers and mathematicians. As a nation, we cannot afford to fall behind.

The two sponsors cite all kinds of evidence to support their apprehension. Over the past 16 years, the percentage of U.S. patents granted to foreign inventors has increased from 22 percent in 1965 to cent. The figures are — pick your adjective — dismaying, disturbing, shocking. Our colleges and universities at one time employed about 17,000 faculty members in engineering. Approximately 1,700 of those positions remain vacant for want of qualified applicants. Private industry has scooped up many engineering graduates who might make excellent teachers, with the result that the institutions of higher learning are hurting. Research that should be done is not being done.

To define a serious problem is not necessarily to provide the right answer. The Schmitt-Heckler bill proposes one more matching categorical grant program with all the trappings of guidelines, plans, applications, awards and reports that have become so familiar in recent years. The sponsors envision incentives that would range from $25,000 to $100,000 a year for untenured faculty members who demonstrate unusual promise in their fields. A separate program would undertake to improve the skills of pre-college teachers of science and mathematics. Schmitt and Mrs. Heckler propose total outlays of tax funds, to be administered by the National Science Foundation, ranging from $15 million next year to $105 million in 1987.

In the context of budgets that will range in this period from $750 billion to a trillion dollars, the sums are insignificant. The outlays probably could be justified constitutionally in the name of national defense if for no other reason. Even so, the grants and awards proposed under this legislation are the very kind of incentives that could be handled by the states and by the private sector. As Schmitt acknowledges, some highly encouraging efforts already are being made by

Learned A Lesson

By PAUL O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — The state's bid-rigging scandal is getting pushed out of the public limelight these days by a bigger and better scandal down in Columbus County. But work continues within the Department of Transportation for a better bidding system for state paving contracts in the hope that what happened before won't happen again.

At the August meeting of the DOT study commission in the Legislative Building, George Wells, manager of highway design, reported on a number of steps DOT has taken to tighten up the bidding system.

Investigation of the scandal found that the bid-riggers depended on being able to get hold of the list of all contractors who would be bidding on a project. If they missed one contractor, his honest bid would have fouled up the whole scam. So the state is now locking up the list of those who'll be bidding on projects. Wells said that on each project, only one DOT employee knows which firms were provided with bid proposals.

DOT's estimate of how much a project would cost was also essential to the bid-riggers. Although the estimate was supposed to be the estimate before they will (Please turn to Page 6)

PAUL O'CONNOR
confidential, bid-riggers found loopholes in DOT's system where they could find out how much the state figured on spending for a project. Then they'd set their scam price within a reasonable distance of the DOT estimate. Wells says DOT has created new procedures to guard the confidentiality of the estimate. Federal highway officials, who need

Other Editors Say A Tough Decision

(Salisbury Post)

Common sense says let it go. Sentiment says save the light, at any cost.

The problem with saving the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse is that man has never perfected a gokod gauge to measure the worth of sentiment. We would say its salvation is easily worth a million. But we began having our doubts when the National Park Service came up with a reasonably feasible plan bearing a price tag of $5.3 millions.

The plan proposes a 25-foot wall of steel and concrete around the historic light which, with the passage of time, would become an ocean island.

Many other schemes have been proposed including the pumping of sand, an operation estimated to cost $63 millions over the next 50 years. But none of them, including the island, guarantee permanence. The ocean may be put off for a few years or even decades but in the end it always wins.

The ocean will win — and tourism and history will lose — in 10 to 15 years at its present rate of east to west aggression. Erosion is taking away the beach at Hatteras at a rate of 11 feet a year. And it could be much sooner if the beach is swept by a hurricane, overdue now after 20 years of absence.

Earlier plans suggested the cost of trying to save the light would be somewhat lower, and the public appeal for "Save the Lighthouse" funds was based on lower estimates. The three quarters of a million dollars that Hugh Morton, North Carolina's most imaginative promoter, has raised won't go far toward building the island.

Without question the $5.3 million could be more wisely spent shoring up other sections of the National Park Service or preserving national landmarks that have been ignored for lack of funds.

But few man-made objects are more admired or have more sentimental appeal than this lighthouse which has spent 112 years warning sailors that they are in or approaching the famous "graveyard of the Atlantic."

Should we go for commonsense and let the sea claim its own? Or should we respond to the tug of sentiment and spend freely if not wisely?

We plead indecision and nolo contendere.

Strength For Today

EXCUSES, EXCUSES

If you want to whittle yourself down to size in your estimation, just begin making a list of the weaknesses and vices to which you are addicted and then consider the strident excuses you can make for every one of these weaknesses.

You are not lazy; you just recognize that in this world of tension people have to have some relaxation. Furthermore, what's the use of working so hard when so much of the extra money you make has to go to

Washington anyway? That bad temper of yours — it is not bad temper but just the heaping of righteous indignation upon the heads of stupid and evil people who are always under foot. "Me, selfish? Why, brother, I am only looking out for Number 1, and if you don't do that you soon end up in the garbage can."

It is probably not an exaggeration to say that every one of us can excuse every weakness in a way that seems convincing, even though it convinces nobody else. — Elisha Douglass

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Interest rates are just now falling into a range where a business person might begin to consider borrowing to expand rather than borrowing just to stay alive.

Generally speaking, expansion doesn't take place if money costs 15 percent, which is probably more than could be earned from expansion unless the company has a great product or great management.

Why take the risks and headaches?

Now, with the prime falling under 15 percent, and the Federal Reserve seemingly intent on bringing it a couple of points lower, some business people can begin to think about coming out of the foxholes.

Note: Begin to think about it.

Thinking and acting, though often sequentially linked, are vastly different activities, and you may be sure that a business person sufficiently skilled to have survived the long recession isn't likely to go on a sudden speculative spree.

Not while more than 30 percent of plant capacity is idle, not when demand for many products has been cut in half. And especially, not when there is no certainty the trend to lower-cost money will continue.

On a quarter-to-quarter basis, says Jack Lavery, Merrill Lynch chief economist, "Real business investment spending does not turn positive in our forecast until the second quarter of 1983."

On a year-to-year basis, Lavery doesn't expect any increase until the final quarter of 1983, mainly because of idle plant space, small order backlogs, and the need to repair corporate balance sheets.

Many companies that have survived have been badly damaged, a figure that doesn't show starkly in the statistics, as does the number of bankruptcies. Companies are encumbered with short-term survival loans that must be worked down or refinanced for longer terms at lower rates.

Efforts to improve balance sheets already have brought out some of the same innovative spirit that used to characterize marketing efforts.

Consider, for example — and without necessarily seeking to understand — the practice of "defeasance," as described to customers by Chase Manhattan Bank: "Through this practice, a company assigns its debt obligations and a sufficient quantity of government securities to a trustee, who then uses the revenue from the securities to pay the principal and interest on the debt as they come due.

"The result is that the firm reduces its leverage, saves interest expense, and records a capital gain on the debt, which is taxed at a lower rate than ordinary income."

Such are the obstacles that must be cleaned up before industry tests the marketplace.

Shocked repeatedly over the past few years by shrinking markets and soaring interest rates — and by forecasts of recoveries that didn't come — businesses are likely to await proof that times have changed.

But they can begin thinking again about the future.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market opened sharply higher today as interest rates continued to tumble.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks surged up 9.32 points to 801.75 in the early going, with more than two stocks rising in price for every one that fell on the New York Stock Exchange.

Interest rates have been falling all summer, with declines gaining momentum late Friday as the Federal Reserve Board cut its discount rate to 10.5 percent, its third half-point cut since mid-July. Cuts in the prime lending rate swept the banking industry on Monday, and the bond market rallied early today.

Prices on long-term bonds, which rise when interest rates fall, soared more than $20 for each $1,000 in face value in early trading.

Today's session was also the first trading following President Reagan's nationally broadcast address Monday night to support his tax program.

Interest-rate sensitive utility stocks dominated trading in the first half hour. Virginia Electric & Power rose 3/4 to 14 1/2. Southern Co. added 1/8 to 13 1/2. Middle South Utilities gained 3/4 to 13 1/2. Arizona Public Service advanced 1/2 to 20 1/2, and Commonwealth Edison rose 1/4 to 22 1/2.

After the close of trading Monday, Cities Service directors rejected a $3.8 billion Occidental Petroleum takeover offer and said they would vigorously pursue offers from other companies. Cities Service has not traded since Friday. Occidental Petroleum was up 1/2 at 17 1/2.

On Monday, the Dow Jones industrials also opened with a major spurt, but gave up some of the gains late in the session, closing up 4.38 at 792.43.

Advances outnumbered declines 3-1 on the NYSE.
 Volume on the Big Board reached 55.42 million shares, up from Friday's 44.72 million.
 The NYSE composite index rose 21 to 59.75. The market value index at the American Stock Exchange was up .73 to 238.27.

And DOT has closed down its bid pickup service at the Royal Villa Motel in Raleigh. The contractors would gather there and work out their deals and then submit them. "It was felt that the assembly of all contractors at one motel contributed to collusion and that our bid depository at the motel seemed to encourage this assemblage," Wells said.

In any event, the need for stepped-up programs in science and mathematics is apparent. This is not our only educational shortcoming - the disastrous decline in the teaching of foreign languages is another - but in the brave new computerized world that lies ahead, the shortage of teachers and graduates in higher mathematics presents a crucial problem. It is too late in this session of the 97th Congress for the Schmitt-Heckler bill to get anywhere, but the two members have given the country a sobering matter to think about.

Cross Restored By Protestors

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Protesters restored a controversial floral cross in Warsaw's Victory Square today, and martial law chief Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski returned home from a meeting with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Authorities on Monday removed the cross, a popular memorial to the late Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński around which Warsaw residents have gathered by the hundreds to sing religious and nationalist hymns.

On Monday riot police moved in with tear gas when about 300 people defiantly sang a version of the Polish national anthem that praises Solidarity and proposes restoration of civil liberties.

Some of the protesters yelled, "Gestapo! Gestapo!" at the police.

In Gdansk, the Baltic seaport where Solidarity was formed, police chased youths away from the 130-foot monument to Polish workers slain by government forces during the 1970 food riots. The memorial has become a popular gathering place for opponents of the Warsaw regime.

Police crushed violent demonstrations on Friday in Warsaw, Gdansk, Wroclaw and Krakow. Government media on Monday warned against further anti-government demonstrations, and the army newspaper Soldier of Freedom said:

"Anyone who continues to plan to organize opposition activity, to dabble in conspiracy, or even to call for acts of terror or sabotage can be sure that no leniency will be shown to him."

Polish newspapers also gave front-page prominence to the Brezhnev-Jaruzelski meeting Monday. The army newspaper Zolnierz Wolnosci declared in bright red headlines, "The Polish-Soviet Fraternal Bond in All the Basic Fields of Life is Strengthening."

okay the use of federal funds on projects, have agreed to keep a closer watch on who sees the estimate in Washington.

DOT thinks it will increase competition between firms by "clustering" bids. They won't be awarding contracts for single projects, anymore. Instead, they'll cluster several projects together. That way, award of a bid will mean $2 million to $3 million in business instead of the traditional $200,000 granted for a single stretch of resurfacing. Bidders won't be able to afford to let a single one of these contracts slip by without a fight. And, if they know they're going to get a big contract, the contractor will figure economies of scale into his bid, DOT reasons.

DOT hasn't done much cluster bidding yet, Welles said. But other states have been using this technique for several years and have saved money, he said.

Before the bid-rigging was uncovered, only the low bidder was required to sign an affidavit swearing he had not colluded with others in making his bid. Now, all bidders must provide such an affidavit.

Reagan Tax Hike Plea Gets Mixed Response

By CLIFF HAAS
 Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan's demand for an end to bullheaded bickering over the $98.3 billion tax increase he supports is being greeted with defiance from conservatives in his own party and aloof support from Democrats.

In his nationally broadcast address Monday night, the president appealed to the public to tell their representatives "you understand that this legislation is a price worth paying for lower interest rates, economic recovery and more jobs."

"We are within sight of the safe port of economic recovery," Reagan said. "Do we make port or go aground on the shoals of selfishness, partisanship and just plain bullheadedness?"

Noting that some legislators "of my own party object to this bill - and strongly," Reagan called for "an end to the bickering here in the capital" and passage of the compromise tax package which is expected to be up for a vote first in the full House on Thursday. Senate action will follow.

Reagan, keeping up the pressure for enactment of the legislation, was calling another group of GOP legislators to the White House today for more personal lobbying.

However, it was clear the conservative Republicans who helped Reagan push record tax and spending cuts through Congress last year were remaining firm in their opposition to this year.

"He's going against the grain in the sense that the people don't want the tax increase," said Rep. Ed Bethune, an Arkansas Republican who remains opposed to the tax bill.

By White House estimates, more than half the House's 192 Republicans are now lined up against the tax boost.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., a leader of the conservative opposition, took note of some of the specific tax increase proposals in an interview before the president's speech:

"If you don't use your telephone and if you don't travel by air and if you don't smoke cigarettes and if you

Now Feel Kuhn Is Secure

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Club owners determined to foil the "Dump Bowie" movement feel they have gained the upper hand in a struggle over the baseball commissioner's job.

Ballard Smith, president of the San Diego Padres and a staunch supporter of Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, says he feels confident Kuhn will be re-elected Wednesday at the summer meeting of baseball's 26 owners.

"Anyone who sits down and looks at this logically must make that conclusion," Smith said Monday. "I just have not heard a convincing argument against him."

Smith, along with Los Angeles Dodgers President Peter O'Malley, has taken the lead in a move to save Kuhn's job.

Kuhn, who has weathered several challenges to his 14-year reign, is facing another serious threat with three National League club calling for his ouster.

Owners Nelson Doubleday of the New York Mets and John McMullen of the Houston Astros, and attorney Louis Sussman, acting for St. Louis owner August Busch, two weeks ago called for today's special league meeting to try to find the fourth vote necessary to block Kuhn's re-election.

Re-election of the commissioner was on the agenda for the regularly scheduled meeting of all major league club owners Wednesday and Thursday. Kuhn needs a three-quarters majority in each league to retain office.

Calling his counterparts with other clubs "reasonable men," Smith said he believed pro-

Kuhn forces could dissuade a fourth owner from joining the original triumvirate and possibly even convert one of the three opponents to Kuhn's side.

"On balance, the man has done a good job as commissioner, and I don't think there are any real arguments against him," Smith said.

Also on the agenda for baseball's summer meeting was a status report from the Restructuring Committee, and it appeared that report would have a great deal of bearing on Kuhn's fate.

"Everybody agrees we need restructuring, including the commissioner," said Smith, a member of the committee.

"Obviously, his job has changed along with his relationship to labor, the economics of the game and the importance of television.

"The nature of ownership has changed. It used to be one individual, and now, corporations own teams. All of these things taken together have changed our relationship with the commissioner," he said.

The restructuring committee has proposed — and all owners have agreed in principle — to realign the commissioner's base of power. Under restructuring, the 26 owners would form a board of directors at the top of baseball's power ladder. Under the board would be an eight-member Executive Committee, whose membership would be rotated among owners.

While retaining the commissioner's power to act unilaterally in the best interests of baseball, all other decisions would go through either the 26-man board of the executive committee. At the same time, both league commissioners, the Player Relations Committee and promotions department would be directly responsible to the commissioner.

Other proposed changes, which could be placed into effect during baseball's winter meetings in December, included doing away with separate league votes on most issues and the possible installation of a special administrator in the commissioner's office to handle television and other revenue-producing areas.

"Most of the complaints I've heard have not been against an individual, but against the structure of our hierarchy," Smith said. "As things stand right now, the two leagues don't report to the commissioner, yet he is held accountable for what they do."

"Given that he also has a group of owners that openly criticize him — that's not a very good atmosphere for business," Smith said.

Ironically, Smith was one of nine owners who signed a letter addressed to the commissioner last February warning him they could not support his re-election. However, Smith met with Kuhn privately in December and changed his mind.

"My complaint against him was his ineffectiveness during the strike," Smith said. "But that was a bum rap. He had already been told by the owners to stay out of it. My complaint came out of that frustration."

Kuhn's contract expires on Aug. 1, 1983, at which time he will be ending his second seven-year term. He must be notified of his status six months before that date, so re-election could be postponed until the December meeting.

Emory Gets Early Scare

On the eve of the 1982 fall practice, one thing Coach Ed Emory didn't need was to be told one of his players was in the hospital in critical condition.

But for a while last night, Emory had those fears.

Fortunately they proved to be a groundless. Last night, Terry Long, East Carolina's 279-pound junior offensive guard, was returning to his home with his wife when their car collided with another vehicle. Long, in the passenger seat, struck his head on the windshield, and was transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment.

Shortly thereafter, Emory received a phone call, telling him that Long was in the hospital in critical condition, so he and his wife rushed there to check on the accuracy of the report.

When they first arrived, Long was in a neck brace with blood covering his face, but the wound proved superficial and there was apparently no injury to his neck.

This morning, Long was among some 150 other Pirates who took the field for the first practice session, looking none the worse.

A light workout was held at 6:30 a.m. today to open the preparations for the season, and another at 11 a.m. Two more are scheduled for later today, and these four-a-days will continue through the NCAA's prescribed three day conditioning drills. The Pirates will put on the pads for the first time on Friday.

Luther Sparks Charger Win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Ed Luther, the San Diego Chargers' second-string quarterback, says he would not want to be making the decisions confronting the coaching staff.

"I'd hate to be the coaches who have to cut our crop of wide receivers," said Luther, who highlighted a rare appearance by throwing two touchdowns in a 28-27 National Football League practice game victory over the Chicago Bears Monday night.

Blessed with a stable of speedy targets, San Diego raced to 28-7 lead as Luther, who has spent the past two years in Dan Fouts' shadow, completed 18 of 28 passes for 191 yards.

But the Bears, lifted by rookie quarterback Jim McMahon, made a game of it, scoring 20 points in the fourth quarter.

Rookie kicker Steve Veith missed extra point in the fourth quarter was the difference.

Luther, who has thrown only 18 passes in two regular seasons, took over for Fouts after San Diego drove 75 for a touchdown on its first possession.

Luther, a former passing star at San Jose State, welcomed the chance to warm up his seldom-used throwing arm.

"It had been a long time since I had been in the middle of that field and it really felt good to be back out there," he said.

Decision time is approaching for the Chargers, who have depth to burn at the wide receiver position. With only four or five spots open, the coaching staff is being forced to take a hard look at a wide

Vet Team, Schedule Work To Favor 'Bama

One of a Series TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Now that the frenzy of his successful chase for a record 315 coaching victories is over, what's left for Paul "Bear" Bryant?

How about a record 24th consecutive bowl game, along with runs for Alabama's 10th Southeastern Conference title in 12 years and its sixth national title?

A veteran team and a favorable schedule should work in the Crimson Tide's favor as it seeks to improve on its 1981 mark, when it lost to Georgia Tech, tied Southern Mississippi and lost to Texas in the Cotton Bowl and placed seventh in the Associated Press poll.

Only tight end Bart Krout is lost from the starting offense, but Bryant stresses defense and kicking, and feels Alabama needs help in those areas.

"Our offense should be better," he said, with Walter Lewis at quarterback, a wealth of runners and speedy flankers Jesse Bendross and Joey Jones.

Bryant said he plans to use the information about 25 percent of the time to take advantage of the flankers and the flashy running of Linnie Patrick. Since 1971, Alabama has relied on the wishbone, going 116-15-1 and winning national titles in 1978 and 1979.

Running from the deep spot in the 1, Patrick — "the most talented runner, at times, I've ever been around," said Bryant — could take full advantage of his speed and shiftiness.

But first Patrick has to convince Bryant, who disciplined him often the past two seasons, that he is ready to meet the coach's standards.

If not, there are veterans Joe Carter, Jeff Fagan and Ken Simon at halfback and Rick Moore at fullback.

Replacing middle guard Warren Lyles "is the biggest question mark on our team," Bryant said. He also has to replace other defenders such as linebacker Thomas Boyd and backs Jim Bob Harris and Benny Perrin.

Backs Tommy Wilcox and Jeremiah Castille, linebackers Robbie Jones and Eddie Lowe and linemen Mike Pitts, Jackie Cline and Randy Edwards are defensive veterans.

Alabama's kicking game, he said, "should be adequate or good. We have excellent kickers but we need speed." The kickers are Malcolm Simmons on punts and Peter Kim on placements.

Alabama plays Georgia Tech, Mississippi, Vanderbilt, Arkansas State, Penn State, Tennessee, Cincinnati, Mississippi State, Louisiana State, Southern Mississippi and Auburn.

"This year is the most important since I got here," said Bryant, who became the Alabama coach in 1958. "We're now surrounded by young, hard-working, bright coaches in the conference. This is a big year for us, the key to whether we have many good years to follow."

That does not sound like a man who, at 68, is thinking of hanging up his whistle.

Anderson Hopes To Continue Tradition

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Wright Anderson says his coaching talents are far superior to his playing abilities, and he hopes to continue the tradition which has carried Elon to successive National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics football titles.

"I played here at Elon, graduated in 1968," Anderson said. "I wasn't a very good player, but I was on the team. I tried a lot of positions because they couldn't find any I could play," he said.

Anderson says he is confident of his coaching abilities, however.

He is beginning his first season as Elon's head coach, succeeding Jerry Tolley. While he won't predict a third consecutive national championship, he does say he expects to field a good football team.

"But any time you starting about a national champion, you're getting the cart before the horse," he cautions. "Our main priority is winning the conference championship and making the playoffs."

When Anderson left his assistant coaching job at East Carolina University, he arrived at Elon to find that Tolley had left the cupboard anything but bare. Among 35 lettermen, he finds 10 offensive starters and six defensive regulars returning.

"In talking to these kids and seeing how the program was run, I was very impressed with it," Anderson said. "I just hope we can keep it going."

Anderson says the defense is going to be a question mark, and a lot will depend on how fast the young players come through in replacing lost players.

"Right now, we feel pretty good about all the replacements, except the nose guard spot and it's still up for grabs," he said.

The defense is led by linebackers Stanley Tootoo and younger brother Henry Tootoo. Anderson also expects good things from tackle Quentin Ballard, end Jeff Cooper, and free safety Mike Edmundson.

Quarterback John Bangle heads the offense, with Steve Vargas, Jackie Simmons and Jesse Jones ranking as his top passing targets. Ray Dalton is the tailback, with Byron Richardson battling incumbent Fred Jordan for the fullback spot. Center Clint York and guard Alan Peters top the offensive line.

"Bangle runs well, throws well and he's an intelligent kid who does a lot of thinking on the field," Anderson said. "He came up with some clutch plays for them last year."

Carson-Newman and Presbyterian, the only other league teams to finish above .500 last year, figure to provide the biggest challenges, although Anderson says every team in the league is loaded with veteran players.

Gill's Return Pivotal To Big Eight Loop Race

One of a Series KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Not since Nebraska beat Oklahoma last November have Cornhusker fans had so much to smile about. Turner Gill's unusual foot injury is responding to treatment.

Gill's recovery from the nerve damage which kept him out of Nebraska's final two games last season could be the pivotal development in this year's Big Eight football race.

The injury caused partial paralysis in his right foot. He had feeling in the foot, but little control of it. But the news out of Lincoln, Neb., this summer is that the foot may be 100 percent healed by the time the season gets rolling.

Whoever lines up at quarterback will have the incumbent Outland Trophy winner snapping the ball to him. Dave Rrimington, a remarkably quick, powerful senior, will have a go at repeating as Big Eight Offensive Player of the Year.

Nebraska is also blessed in the backfield, with Mike Rozier and Roger Craig. Rozier, a junior, won offensive newcomer-of-the-year laurels last year after rushing for 943 yards. Nebraska returns only five starters on defense, but tackle Toby Williams and linebackers Steve Damkroger and Brent Prince, McJunkins, the 1981 Missouri Valley Conference best offensive player. Coach Willie Jeffries has eight offensive and nine defensive starters from last year's 4-6-1 team.

Third in the Big Eight poll was Missouri. Kansas got the other first-place vote and was forecast for a fourth-place finish. According to the poll, Oklahoma will run fifth, followed by Kansas State, Iowa State and Colorado.

doubleheader 2-0 and 4-3. "We're just not scoring runs," said Royals Manager Dick Howser, who got four-hit pitching from Vida Blue in the opener, while Bud Black and Mike Armstrong gave New York nine hits in the nightcap. "Our pitching was good enough, we just didn't hit enough," said Howser, whose team had a major league-leading .287 batting average prior to the twinbill. "We haven't hit well on this road trip except for one game against Detroit. It's tough to hit .290 all year."

The Yankees didn't rip the cover off the ball, but got superb starting performances from Dave Righetti and Rudy May, while Rich Gossage saved both games, his 24th and 25th of the season. "But give their pitching credit. Righetti is a power pitcher and he didn't give us anything," said Howser. "We hit some balls hard off May, but he pitched well, too."

Both Righetti and May lasted 72-3 innings. Righetti gave up all four Royal hits in the opener, while May surrendered five hits and two runs in the second game, one coming on Don Slaught's home run.

Mazzilli provided the winning margin in the opener following Willie Randolph's double in the sixth with his sixth home run of the season. In the nightcap, Piniella and Winfield staked New York to a 2-0 lead with solo homers, while Winfield's run-scoring triple and Craig Nettles' RBI single increased the margin to 4-0 in the seventh.

Following Slaught's homer, May gave up a single to L.R. Washington and Hal McRae followed with a two-run homer, his 21st, off Lynn McGlothen, becoming the first 100-RBI player in the majors this year. The two losses knocked Kansas City out of first place in

- Men's Singles: Norman Bryant (Tar) d. Tony Johnson (RM), 6-3, 2-6, 6-3.

Angels 8, A's 4

Fred Lynn and Rob Wilfong hit homers and Tim Foli knocked in three runs as California moved back into first place in the AL West. Lynn's 16th homer, a two-run shot in the sixth inning, put the Angels ahead 3-2. Wilfong added a solo blast an inning later.

Geoff Zahn, 13-5, allowed eight hits over 71-3 innings to get the victory, while Dave Goltz earned his second save. Joe Rudi hit his fourth homer of the season for the A's, who also got RBI singles from Tony Armas and Jeff Burroughs. Oakland's Rickey Henderson was thrown out twice by Bob Boone in attempts to steal his 110th base.

The game had an incident in the sixth when Reggie Jackson asked home plate umpire Jerry Neudecker to check the ball thrown by A's pitcher Steve McCatty. Oakland Manager Billy Martin retaliated by asking Neudecker to check Jackson's bat for possible corking in the barrel. "I have 470 homers, man, I don't need any of that stuff. I was surprised Billy did it," said Jackson. "I hit home runs my whole career and I've been doing it legally."

White Sox 6, Rangers 1

Harold Baines knocked in three runs with a homer and a sacrifice fly as streaking Chicago won for the 15th time in 18 games and moved to within 2 1/2 games of first-place California in the AL West.

Rich Dotson, 7-11, scattered 10 hits, walked one and struck out six in 81-3 innings before Dennis Lamp got the final two outs.

The White Sox took a 1-0 lead in the first on Steve Kemp's RBI single and made it 3-0 in the fourth when Baines hit his

Vail Wants Out; Hits Game Winner

Houston tied the game in the eighth when Tony Scott led off with his first home run of the season. Denny Walling singled one out later and Reds starter Brad Lesley was replaced by Brad Shirley. Lesley retired Dickie Thon before balking Jim Gott and Joey Walling to second base. Terry McLaughlin combined on a Puhl delivered Walling with a five-hitter and pinch-runner Al Woods scored the winning run in their plans. I hope some team thinks that I can help them," he said.

Vail hit a ball past Houston third baseman Ray Knight with the bases loaded to give the Reds a 3-2 victory over the Astros in the only National League game played Monday night.

The Reds, trailing Los Angeles by 2 1/2 games in the NL West, have gone with their rookie outfielders, generally limiting Vail's duties to pinch hitting.

Duane Walker, one of the rookie outfielders, was a one-man offense until Vail's game-winning hit. Facing Nolan Ryan in the first inning, Walker swatted his third home run of the season. His next trip to the plate, he hit another homer.

"Ryan supplied the power, I just got my bat out and made contact," Walker said.

THE DAILY REFLECTOR has been advertising local businesses since January 26, 1882.

And for over 30 years, Joseph Saad has been advertising his family's local shoe repair business in THE DAILY REFLECTOR.

"My motto has always been 'Never lie to a customer,'" said Joe. "If a shoe can't be repaired properly enough to fit correctly again I'll tell them so."

This way of doing business has apparently paid off for Joe. His shop now repairs shoes for third-generation customers.

Following his tour of duty in the Army during World War II, Joe opened the shop on July 3, 1946, in the same location that it is at today - 113 Grande Ave.

Although his wife Juanita, along with their youngest son Jimmy, now handle the routine shoe repairs, Joe does the specialty prescription footwear work that customers from as far away as Durham and the coast come to get done.

You can still get an old-fashioned shoe shine at Joe Saad's place, while passing the time of day with Leslie Peterson, a shoe repairman for 18 years at Saad's Shoe Repair.

"Shoes have changed a lot over the years," said Joe. "Probably the biggest change is that shoes no longer leave those black heel marks that were so hard to clean off the floors."

"But one thing that hasn't changed over the years is our thoroughly enjoyable relationship with THE DAILY REFLECTOR."

Joe Saad's shoe repair business has been located at 113 Grande Avenue for almost 36 years.

CRYPTOQUIP 8-17

ODD SWMVDUM AWAK'V SWHN Q KHN-
JDUK OHJUQ

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — TO AVOID DIFFICULTY, DRIVE CAREFULLY.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: We equals I.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The auction was fairly straightforward. Once North made a somewhat dubious positive response, South headed for slam. Three spades was simply a temporizing bid to see what it would evoke from partner.

West led the queen of diamonds, and declarer could count eleven tricks as soon as dummy came down. There seemed to be no play for twelve tricks unless the opponents obliged by taking the ace of hearts when that suit was first led. However, declarer found an ingenious way to give himself a very slender additional shot for the contract.

He won the king of diamonds, drew four rounds of trumps, taking care to discard a heart and a diamond from dummy, then cashed the ace-king of clubs. Next came a heart to dummy's king.

Entertainment Channel's British Ties Promise U.S. Viewers Unique Treat

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — To many American television viewers, the British Broadcasting Corp. means prime-time soap opera played in a dignified setting — classic drama like "Vanity Fair," "The Golden Bowl" and "Pride and Prejudice" imported for the Public Broadcasting Service.

So there were those who suggested the Entertainment Channel had dealt public TV a staggering blow when the new pay-cable service bought an option on the entire BBC product — more than 5,000 hours of programming a year.

Indeed, PBS deals as frequently these days with independent British producers — Granada, London Weekend, Thames — as it does with the BBC. The "Masterpiece Theater" lineup for the 1982-83 season, in fact, includes four BBC productions and three miniseries from other British producers.

What's more important, the Entertainment Channel appears to be more interested in a variety of BBC productions, most of them wholly unfamiliar in content and character, though not necessarily style, to television audiences in this country. And that may be the best TV news in some time.

The Entertainment Channel, launched June 4, has begun — or will begin in the next several days — distribution of four action-adventure serials new to the medium in this country.

A sampling of an episode from each of the series suggests a private-eye program, "Shoestring," may be the best of the lot, though two — "Bergerac" and "The Assassination Run" — are marvelously and uniquely atmospheric.

In short, subscribers to the Entertainment Channel, particularly those fond of American-made series like "The Rockford Files" and "Hawaii Five-O," are in for a treat.

Eddie Shoestring, played by Trevor Eve, is an appealing and not-too-tough detective with feelings and a sense of humor. "I used to be like you," he tells an adversary, "executive zombie ... computers. I smashed one up and they hauled me off."

In the premiere episode, a well-told story with enough action and a twist at the end, Eddie is hired by the manager of Radio West to check on the background of a talk-show host, David Carn. It seems a young prostitute has driven Carn's Rolls to the beach and killed herself with a mix of pills and alcohol.

Eddie does what he's paid to do with "charm, panache and a bit of bribery" — his own words — leaving each person he interviews with a "lightning portrait," a quickly drawn caricature of the subject.

Jim Bergerac, meanwhile, is a reformed alcoholic who solves crimes for a living on the Channel Island of Jersey. The picturesque setting is particularly important to "Bergerac," a standard cop-and-robber show that stars John Nettles and Cecile Paoli.

In "The Assassination Run," Mark Fraser, played by Malcolm Stoddard, is trout fishing in Scotland when his wife is kidnapped by the Red Action Brigade. Fraser, once an "eliminator" for the British Secret Service, is ordered by the terrorists to Spain. The kidnapers want Fraser to kill a German publisher, and he wants his wife back — unharmed.

"The Assassination Run," unlike "Shoestring" and "Bergerac" which are shown in self-contained installments — is a continuing three-part series. The first episode ends with the British, the Russians and Fraser bumping into one another on the trail of the terrorists through the appealing Spanish countryside.

The last of the four shows, "Secret Army," is an uncommon adventure series set in World War II Belgium.

The program, with Bernard Hepton as Albert Foiret and Jan Francis as Lisa Colbert, follows the exploits of the Belgian underground in battling the occupying Nazi forces.

For those wondering when pay TV is going to offer something really new, the Entertainment Channel seems to have the right idea, at least in its selection of action shows from the BBC.

Theater Audiences Ignore Bad Reviews

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Despite bad reviews, audiences apparently were not scared away from Paramount Picture's newest horror film, "Friday the 13th Part 3," which has topped its two forerunners in opening box office receipts, the studio said.

In its opening weekend, the film grossed $9,406,522 from 1,079 movie theaters nationwide, an average of $8,718 per screen. By comparison, "Friday the 13th Part 1" took in $5,059 in its first three-day showing and "Part 2" recorded a $4,840 average.

"E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial," broke the $200 million mark during the past weekend, Universal said Monday.

The heartwarming tale of friendship between a small boy and a visitor from outer space tallied $8,366,895 in receipts from 1,709 theaters, bringing Universal a total of $202,987,662 in the 66 days since "E.T." first landed in local theaters.

One of the differences in the latest of the "Friday the 13th" trio is that it was released in 3-D, although not in drive-in theaters.

The Los Angeles Times review said "Friday the 13th Part 3" was "so terrible" that its predecessors "don't seem so bad." And Daily Variety said although the film was produced in 3-D, there was "no corresponding need for intelligence, taste or common sense."

The celebrated space epic, "Star Wars," returned to mark its fifth anniversary by grossing $3,766,803 from 1,070 theaters over the three-day weekend for a per-screen average of $3,520.

"The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," starring box office draws Burt Reynolds and Dolly Parton, grossed $4,445,997 over the weekend in 1,400 theaters nationwide, bringing its total to $52,081,292 since its release 24 days ago.

New Type?

PEKING (AP) — The Chinese navy has developed and successfully tested a new type of guided missile destroyer, the official Xinhua news agency reported Monday.

Xinhua said the new destroyer (No. 105 of the North Sea Fleet), has traveled 57,500 miles in the Bohai, Yellow and East China Seas.

More than 200 technicians have been trained on the destroyer and other warships, the agency said.

Signal Changing Federal Role On Barrier Islands

COASTAL BARRIERS — Landowners along the 188 Atlantic and Gulf coastal areas will be prevented from purchasing federally-subsidized flood insurance after October 1983, Laserphoto)

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials say a federal proposal that would directly affect 56 miles of North Carolina coastline may signal the federal government's changing role in barrier island development.

Dave Owens, assistant director of the state office of coastal management, says the decision on the part of the U.S. Department of the Interior may mean the federal government is not willing to spend money as it once did on coastal development.

Since 1968, the federal government has subsidized federal flood insurance for barrier islands. Last year Congress said no more undeveloped barrier islands — thin, sandy spits of land separating the sea from the mainland — would qualify for insurance after Oct. 1, 1983. It also ordered a list of areas that would be excluded from the insurance program.

After receiving comments from state and local officials in the affected states, Interior Secretary James Watt compiled the lists. Those proposals span 188 areas in 16 coastal states. In all, 748 miles of beaches have been suggested for inclusion as undeveloped barrier islands.

The government proposed that 56 miles of North Carolina's coastline be included in the total list.

Todd Llewellyn of the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development said Monday that the decision would curb development on those designated areas because lower-costing federal flood insurance would no longer be available.

"That means they'll either have to buy insurance outright from a commercial vendor or not be able to deal with a lending institution," he said. "If they buy it (the new construction) with cash, they must be prepared to lose it."

The proposal would not forbid development in those areas — just make it so expensive that builders would be hard-pressed to purchase higher-priced commercial insurance for their buildings, Llewellyn said.

"A lot of savings and loans simply won't issue mortgages without that kind of insurance," Owens added. "The flood insurance program was put in because private developers felt like the private insurance companies would either not offer insurance in these areas or would offer such exorbitant rates as to make it unfeasible."

Owens said the areas likely to feel the change most would be those relatively large areas where new structures would not be able to get flood insurance.

The federal government has asked local governments to enact flood-plain ordinances in exchange for flood insurance, Owens said. He said many environmentalists have claimed the federal government has been subsidizing development in ecologically fragile areas with its flood insurance program.

"Ultimately it comes down to the question of just what the federal role in barrier island development ought to be," he said.

Federal officials estimate it would be a less-expensive role. The Interior Department estimates it would save the government $650 million over the next 10 years in storm damage payments.

North Carolina areas included are Currituck Banks, a remote area in the north-eastern tip of the state; Duck

Research Center, another rather deserted area; Bodie Island and Hatteras Island, both partly in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore; Shackleford Banks, in the Cape Lookout National Seashore; and Onslow Beach Complex, Topsail, Lea Island Complex, Wrightsville Beach and Masonboro Island, where there is some development.

Most N.C. Representatives To Vote Against Tax Package

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
North Carolina Rep. Charles Rose says President Reagan's televised speech Monday night to garner support for his $98.3 billion dollar tax package, including an 8 cents-a-pack increase in cigarette taxes, has made him determined to work even harder to defeat the bill.

In his speech, Reagan said raising the cigarette tax to 16 cents per pack would cost those who smoke one pack a day only $2.40 a month. However, Rose says that is an oversimplification of the problem.

"I think it's unfortunate that the president's party members from North Carolina have not explained to him that the impact of such a tax is far more devastating than what it may cost an individual smoker. It will cost literally millions of dollars to North Carolina farmers and industries," Rose said.

Republican Rep. James Broyhill of Lenoir may be the only North Carolina representative or senator to support the tax package.

Broyhill met with President Reagan July 30 and promised then to support the package. Broyhill is not from an area of the state where tobacco dominates the economy.

The state's representatives seemed firm in their opposition to the tax package and said they could not be swayed by Reagan, who said in a nationally-broadcast speech Monday night that economic recovery will be doomed without the tax increase.

"I think the chances of the tax bill passing are very slim," Rose said. "Just from tobacco interests alone there probably are 20 to 30 votes against package now that might have been for it before."

The push for a 2-cent increase in the cigarette tax died because the White House would only go along with a 4-cents increase and the 4-cent increase was not going to get enough votes to make a difference, Rose said.

Republican Sens. John East and Jesse Helms voted for the tax increase when it came before the Senate, giving the measure the votes needed to pass. But they have promised to oppose the latest package, which was written by a House-Senate conference committee.

Helms spokesman Clint

Fuller said Helms would have no comment on the speech Monday night.

White House officials said the president is worried that he cannot count on the support of many traditional Republican allies and press secretary Larry Speakes warned GOP legislators not to underestimate the importance of the vote to Reagan.

North Carolina Republicans, with the exception of Broyhill, said they would not come to the president's side.

Republican Rep. Bill Hendon of Asheville, speaking to tobacco growers and agricultural extension agents in Asheville, said he is against raising any taxes.

Paul Jones, a spokesman for Rep. Jim Martin, said Martin would vote against the bill because it treats North Carolina unfairly.

He said Martin would not be surprised if the tax package failed to win passage in the House and Senate but he acknowledged that "the president is a very persuasive person and, although he may not be persuading members he can persuade the public ... and the public in turn can have impact on the members of Congress."

Doug Clark, a spokesman for Republican Rep. Eugene Johnston of Greensboro, said the Johnston and Martin were called to Capitol Hill last week for a meeting with Budget Director David Stockman and other representatives of the administration but they remain opposed to the tax package.

Democratic Rep. Stephen Neal of Winston-Salem described the cigarette tax as "a direct attack on the state of North Carolina" and said he is strongly opposed to it.

They held a formal dinner for themselves and their parents.

Field day events were held near the end of the program.

Flea Problems?

By WINKIE LEE
Pitt County Humane Society
First in a series of four articles

If you are finding your dog or cat infested with fleas, you're not alone. Summer is the worst time of year for these parasites, because of the heat and animals' reaction to it.

Dogs and cats have flea allergies all year long but their inactivity in hot weather, as well as the fleas' increased activity, makes the problem worse. Add to that the difficulty involved in killing fleas, and the sum total is a miserable animal and a miserable owner.

According to Dr. Dail McLawhorn of Bateman Animal Hospital, animals' skins become sensitive to fleas, which explains why just a few of these parasites can cause a dog or cat to mutilate itself and lose its hair. Animals are allergic to flea's saliva; this allergy is worse in older animals.

On dogs, fleas tend to attack at the tail and work their way up. On cats they do the opposite by starting at the neck and working downward.

There is hope in the war against the flea. First, it helps to know a little bit about the enemy.

A flea frequently lays its eggs on its host. These eggs fall off, and with five days, an adult emerges. The life span can be surprisingly long; some fleas remain on the same animal for two years! These pests are able to live for up to 125 days without eating, and, in many cases, have developed an immunity to poisons human beings use against it.

Getting rid of fleas is a complicated task. Dr. McLawhorn stresses a complete program. Houses should be vacuumed no less than once a week, as fleas like to hide in the carpet and in corners. The yard and house should be dusted or sprayed every 10 days to break the life cycle. The safest chemical to use is Sevin (carbaryl). The 5 percent solution is suggested for people with cats and young or sensitive dogs. If the pet is 5 weeks old or younger, this product should be used sparingly. For homes with hounds and other big out door dogs, the 10 percent solution is recommended.

Next, the dog should be bathed or dipped to remove the fleas it already has. Several types of products are available, and can be used in dust, dip or spray form. A quick kill spray or shampoo will get rid of the parasites on the dog, but not those around it. It is very important to remember that a dog can be cleaned and be reinfested. To get rid of the entire flea problem, a total program must be followed.

The FDA is expected to approve some new products soon. This has not been done in the past five to 10 years, which explains why some of the fleas have developed a resistance to poisons presently used. Such an approval will be good news for pet owners.

For now, animals who are showing signs of losing hair or mutilating themselves need to be taken to a veterinarian, who can help the animal with medicated baths and ointments and allergy shots.

See 'Normal' Peanut Crop

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Peanut production in North Carolina has been cut back this year, but that doesn't mean it won't be a good year for peanut farmers.

Growers have cut back on peanut acreage by 17 percent this year, while the average yield per acre is expected to be 375 pounds lower than last year's. Experts are looking for a crop of about 411 million pounds, 27 percent below last year, said Bob Griffith of the N.C. Department of Agriculture's Crop Reporting Service.

"There was a terrible oversupply last year and production has been cut back, so we could have a considerably smaller crop and still call it a good year," said David Bateman, president of the N.C. Peanut Growers Association.

Last year's record crop of 562 million pounds brought $148 million and sold for an average price of 28 cents per pound.

The federal government is attempting to hold down production by lowering the amount of peanuts that will bring the support price of $550 per ton. The government will buy between 52-53 percent of a grower's crop for the quota price and will pay $250 per ton for the remaining crop, which Bateman said was "far below" what it costs farmers to produce the peanuts.

Peanut plants are entering the most crucial stage of their development prior to harvest, which begins in mid-to late September. Thus far, the plants don't appear to have been affected by excessive rainfall that has endangered other crops, Griffith said.
