July's Inflation Figures Reflecting Reduced Pace

By SALLY JACOBSEN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) - Renewed restraint in gasoline price hikes held July's consumer price increase to 7.3 percent, calculated annually, the government said today.

The pace of inflation was nearly cut in half from the double-digit rates of the two preceding months. July's moderate gain - 0.6 percent for the month - was also aided by a slowing of housing cost increases and by food prices holding dead even.

July's increase meant that, for the first seven months of the year, consumer prices have risen at an annual rate of 5.4 percent, considerably under the 8.9 percent posted for all of last year and the 12.4 percent of 1980.

For all of 1982, economists are predicting inflation of around 6 percent.

Much of the moderation, at least in July, was due to reverses in the gasoline price increases registered early in the summer.

Gasoline prices last month were up only 2 percent, less than half the 5.4 percent gain of June.

The early-summer increases had followed a general tightening in the worldwide oil surplus. But stocks have since risen anew.

Analysts say the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has not been entirely successful in restricting members' oil production. Reflecting that, major refiners earlier reported wholesale price drops in the last half of July and the first part of August.

Indeed, the department said today, "Despite an 8.4 percent rise in the past three months, gasoline prices were still 7.7 percent below the peak level of March 1981."

In the next year, energy prices overall tumbled nearly 15 percent.

As for housing costs, the department said the modest 0.5 percent overall gain - half of June's 1 percent increase - was largely the result of a 0.4 percent decline in mortgage interest rates, the third monthly drop in a row.

The continuing declines in interest rates helped wipe out a 0.7 percent rise in the cost of homes themselves.

Further good news on mortgage interest rates came, meanwhile, from the Federal National Mortgage Association, which announced today it is lowering the minimum interest rates on new adjustable-rate mortgages it buys.

FNMA, the second largest buyer on the secondary mortgage market, said that, effective Wednesday, its minimum interest rates will be:

-12.9 percent for new mortgages with interest rates that are adjustable every six or 12 months. The six-month rate had been 13.8 percent; the 12-month rate had been 14.5 percent.

-14.6 percent for new mortgages with interest rates adjustable every five years. The old rate had been 15.7 percent.

While the mortgage lenders with whom FNMA deals can charge higher rates, mortgage association head David Maxwell said he expects the rates he announced today will be approximately what new homebuyers will have to pay for mortgages that are later sold to his agency.

The interest rate on adjustable-rate mortgages changes at preset times according to market conditions.

On Monday, the government announced that it was lowering, effective today, the interest rate on Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration insured mortgages for single-family home loans from 15 percent to 14 percent, the lowest since the spring of 1981.

It was the second drop in the FHA-VA rate in a little more than two weeks, and was part of the continuing trend toward lower interest rates.

Food prices, meanwhile, reversed June's 0.6 percent gain and held dead even. Prices were off for food purchased in grocery stores, but rose for meals eaten out and for alcoholic beverages.

The consumer price index, overall, rose a seasonally adjusted 0.6 percent in July, well under the 1 percent increases of May and June.

Consumer prices rose a tiny 0.2 percent in April after falling 0.3 percent in March, the department said.

For the 12 months ending in July, inflation rose 6.5 percent, today's report said.

If prices rose for 12 straight months at July's pace, the yearly jump would be 7.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the figure the department makes public.

INDEX - Restraint in gasoline price hikes held July's consumer price increase to 7.3 percent, calculated annually, the government says. The pace of inflation was nearly cut in half from the double-digit rates of the two preceding months.

Housing For ECU Students Is Tight

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Housing for East Carolina University students, both on and off campus, is very tight this school year, according to Dan Wooten, director of housing affairs at ECU, and Lucy Wright, who handles off-campus housing for students.

"On campus space is especially tight for male students," Wooten commented. "Capacity for male students in the dormitories is 2,248, and we have already gone 60 beyond that capacity by adding a third bed in some of the rooms." Student rooms are designed to accommodate two students.

"We have 25 or 30 who want on campus housing that we are unable to accommodate," Wooten added.

The situation for on-campus female students is nearly as tight as that for male students, with the 3,334 accommodations for women already filled. "We haven't yet had to turn any female students away," Wooten said. "We're adding a third extra bed in some rooms and can still take some applicants."

Wooten says most students came in during the weekend in advance of registration and "we don't expect a large influx of additional students." He noted that a few years ago, freshmen were required to live on campus, "but this is no longer the case."

Totally, there are allocations for 5,582 male and female students in the 15 dormitories on campus. Four of the dormitories are co-ed, the other 11 are non-coed. Taking into account the beyond capacity assignments, a little more than 5,600 students are now housed on campus.

"Off-campus housing is extremely difficult to find at this time," Mrs. Wright said. "An estimated 2,800 to 3,000 students have secured housing off-campus and some are still looking for a place to live."

"There never seems to be enough housing to meet demand," she added. "This year more than ever before the problem is a difficult one because of economics. Many students are attending school on very limited resources."

Mrs. Wright said some space is "still available, but apartments are hard to come by. A sizeable number of people are accepting students in their homes, and in lots of instances, students who already have rooms or

'No Hope' For Polish Dissent

WARSAW, Poland (AP) - Martial-law leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski warned dissenters in a speech to factory bosses that any new opposition activities "must be broken," the Communist Party newspaper Trybuna Ludu reported today.

"Brawlers have no chances," the army general, party chief and premier was quoted as telling leaders from more than 200 factories on Monday.

The new warning from Jaruzelski, who declared martial law Dec. 13 and suspended the independent labor movement Solidarity, comes amid growing government criticism of the union's underground and new attacks on Western "slander."

Party and government leaders in their statements appear to be strongly worried about possible protests called for by underground Solidarity leaders next Tuesday, Aug. 31, which marks the second anniversary of the first independent union in the Soviet bloc.

The government has already said several times it will deal forcefully with any protests. It also called diplomats at embassies of the United States, France, Britain and West Germany during the past week to protest Western shortwave radio "subversion," state-run media reported Monday.

"The main target is speeding up getting out of the crisis with the lowest possible political and social costs," Jaruzelski was quoted as telling the factory leaders.

"Successive attempts to undermine social peace which could occur must be broken," he said. "Brawlers have no chances."

Polish leaders have grown increasingly angry in the past week after a series of demonstrations and protests broken up by police. Rioting erupted in Gdansk Aug. 13, and police using water cannon dispersed crowds in Warsaw, Krakow and Wroclaw during gatherings marking the eighth month of martial law.

Ashley Futrell Re-Elected Chairman ECU Trustees

By CAROL TYER Reflector Staff Writer

A move among some members of the East Carolina University Board of Trustees to oust chairman Ashley Futrell apparently fizzled, as Futrell and the entire slate of officers from last year were unanimously re-elected Monday afternoon.

"If there be any petty differences among us, let us put them aside and work for the good of the young people that this university serves," Futrell told the board after the election was completed.

Re-elected along with Futrell were Ralph Kinsey of Charlotte as vice chairman and Harvey Beech of Kinston as secretary.

A gift of $250,000 from Branch Banking and Trust Co. of Wilson was accepted. L. Vincent Lowe Jr., president of BB&T, was thanked for the gift which will be persented over a five-year period for use by the Center for Management Development. Lowe said much of the bank's best personnel has been educated in the ECU School of Business and that the gift is intended to promote education, service and research concerning business and management through seminars, lectures, publications and workshops.

The board announced that the center, established about 10 years ago, will be renamed the Branch Banking and Trust Center for Management Development in an expression of gratitude.

A resolution to make the chairman of the academic affairs committee a member of the medical affairs committee and the chairman of the medical affairs committee a member of the academic affairs committee was enacted.

Approval was given for the use of $163,000 of the Ficklen Stadium Building Fund for resurfacing and resprigging the football field.

In a resolution, the board "reaffirmed its commitment to the goal of building and maintaining a strong and highly competitive NCAA Division IA athletic program through strong supporting policies which assure high priority to the overall goals and objectives, through vigorous fund-raising activities, and the pursuit of relationships with college and universities across the nation having similar athletic goals and commitments."

Futrell said the next meeting of the trustees is tentatively set for Saturday, Nov. 20, at 2 p.m.

Report 'Heavy Fighting' In Lebanon's Mountains

By FAROUK NASSAR Associated Press Writer BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) - Heavy fighting erupted today in mountains east of Beirut as the fourth contingent of PLO fighters left the Israeli-tinged capital on a Cyriot ship escorted by the U.S. Navy. Marines poised to come ashore to join a peacekeeping force.

New battles were reported in Lebanon's central mountains close to the Beirut-Damascus highway, which Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas are scheduled to take on Wednesday on their evacuation to neighboring Syria.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv reported in a terse statement that "heavy fighting" broke out north and east of Beirut between Syrian troops and Israeli-backed Christian militiamen. But Christian radio broadcasts in Beirut said Israeli forces were locked in heavy artillery duels with Syrian and Palestinian forces in three villages along a strip of the highway about 12 miles east of Beirut.

Lebanon's state radio said the flare-up prompted U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib, who arranged the PLO pullout from Lebanon after a 10-week Israeli siege, to confer with Lebanon's Christian President Elias Sarkis and Moslem Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan on ways of checking the hostilities.

Lebanese police also reported leftist militiamen seized provincial government houses and police stations in Tripoli and other northern Lebanese towns in what appeared to be a mutiny against Monday's election of right-wing Christian militia commander Bashir Gemayel as Lebanon's next president. Details were not immediately available.

The fourth contingent of evacuating Palestinian guerrillas rode in trucks to the Beirut port today and sailed on a Cypriot passenger ship for exile in North Yemen, leaving about 7,000 Palestinians and 1,500 Syrians still to be withdrawn from Lebanon. A U.S. naval escort guarded the ship.

At the same time, a U.S. Marine lieutenant colonel, a major and captain reconnoitered the port and discussed the positions their men will take up with French Foreign Legion officers who took over the facility from Israeli forces and supervised the major part of the sea evacuation.

The 1,000 PLO guerrillas, made up mostly of fighters from the mainstream faction Fatah, were bound for North Yemen, on the Arabian peninsula at the southern end of the Red Sea. More than 2,100 PLO guerrillas have left the city since Sunday for Tunisia, Iraq, Jordan and South Yemen.

The American colonel, who was in a great hurry, told Associated Press correspondent Jeffrey Ulbrich the Marines were landing at the port on Wednesday, but had no time to elaborate.

A French officer said that once the Americans landed, the legionnaires would pull out of the port and take up new positions at Beirut's national museum crossing intersection at the Green Line that divides the capital into Christian and Moslem sectors.

U.S. Debates Moves In Growing French Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) - Top administration officials are debating the next U.S. move in the escalating conflict with France over President Reagan's ban on the use of American equipment in building a Soviet natural gas pipeline to western Europe.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz and top Treasury and Commerce Department officials were meeting at the White House today to weigh a number of U.S. options after the French ordered a subsidiary of an American company to defy the embargo.

U.S. officials described the situation as "very murky." The French told Dresser France, a sub-siary of Dresser Industries Inc., of Dallas, to load rotor parts for shipment to the Soviet Union for use in the 3,600-mile pipeline.

The subsidiary then announced on Tuesday in Paris it would fulfill its contract to deliver the equipment in defiance of the U.S. embargo.

Meanwhile, Dresser Industries asked the U.S. District Court in Washington to block Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and others from acting against the firm if it makes the deliveries to a Soviet freighter at the French port of Le Havre.

The U.S. government has the power to fine American firms for violating embargoes, but complicating the situation is France's move to take charge of the shipments.

"Lawyers know how to take action against a company which violates a U.S. regulation, but they are not in agreement how to deal with another government compelling a firm to violate an embargo," said a U.S. official, who asked not to be identified.

Shultz was briefed on the various problems Monday night by officials who have worked on embargo issues.

A spokesman for the parent company said Monday that it had been notified Dresser France was served with a requisition order to complete delivery of the compressors "under penalty of both civil and criminal sanctions."

Edward R. Luter, senior vice president for finance, said the order put Dresser "between a rock and a hard place." Dresser France has a contract to supply 21 compressors built with technology from General Electric Co.

In California, where Reagan is vacationing, White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said Monday the U.S. government had a number of options in response to the French decision.

He said the group meeting at the White House, which had been scheduled to take up various international economic problems, would send recommendations to the president as quickly as possible.

Play Ball

The World Series begins today but don't expect to read about the Dodgers or the Brewers. The players, among the best in the world age 8 to 12, will be competing for the 36th Little League World Series title in Williamsport, PA. Unlike the big league championship, these Little League playoffs are truly a world series. Teams from about 30 countries will compete. Last year's winner was the team from Tai-Chung, Taiwan. Approximately 3 million Little Leaguers took to the field this summer, including girls, who've had the right to play since 1974. Little League is sometimes a starting ground for professional ball players. An estimated 500 major leaguers have graduated from its ranks.

Georgia Bonesteel Has Fulltime Quilting Career

GEORGIA BONESTEEL

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Staff Writer

A career in quilting keeps Georgia Bonesteel in demand. In addition to writing two books, she has a weekly television show and conducts seminars and workshops across the United States — all on quilting.

She is in Greenville this week for several reasons — her daughter, Amy, is now enrolled at East Carolina University, she is teaching two classes today and Wednesday and will be holding an autograph party tonight.

She is teaching the backdoor approach of piecing a patchwork block. "I will have the women working on a quickie piece method on the sewing machine — by cutting out strips and squares of contrasting fabrics, sewing them together, cutting them a part and resew them together so they can come up with an original design. I want them to forget other designs and come up with a different pattern."

"I demonstrated this morning and this afternoon I will be guiding and consulting. On Wednesday in class, the women will either make a vest or tote bag using the design from Tuesday's class," she said.

During the morning session, Mrs. Bonesteel allowed time for the women to exchange ideas, share their interest in quilting and tell of their sewing background.

The classes are sponsored by the Greenville Quilters Guild, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and Pitt Community College.

Her autograph party tonight will be for her new book "Lap Quilting with Georgia Bonesteel" from 7 p.m. until 9 p.m. at Calico Square.

"The big feature about my book is the 70 patterns. It has a lot of color for inspiration and the final chapter deals with project ideas," she added.

Mrs. Bonesteel's immediate future is working in the family hardware store in Hendersonville, setting up a quilt corner (including fabrics and quilting notions) and learning the retail aspects of quitting. Later a studio will be added there where she will teach various aspects of quilting through Blue Ridge Technical Institute.

Her weekly television show on PBS "Lap Quilting With Georgia Bonesteel" is aired Sunday at 4 p.m.

MRS. GRAHAM BRANTLEY REGISTER JR.

Wedding Vows Solemnized

JAMESVILLE — Myra Ann Modlin Moore and Graham Brantley Register Jr. were marriage Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in a ceremony performed at the home of her parents here. The Rev. Kenneth Harp conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Modlin of Route 1, Jamesville. Mrs. Sallie Register of Greenville and the late Graham B. Register Sr. are the parents of the bridegroom.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of candlelight polyester. The empire style bodice featured a V-shaped sheer inset with floral embroidery and a rounded neckline. It was enhanced by an elbow length cape of candlelight chiffon. The A-line skirt fell into accordion pleats. She wore a three-tier fingertip length veil of candlelight bridal illusion edged with matching French val lace. Her headpiece was fashioned of pastel colored silk flowers. Carolyn Martin of Raleigh assisted the bride in making the headpiece. She carried a colonial bouquet of pastel daisies and baby's breath.

Valerie Modlin was maid of honor and Karen Leggett was bridesmaid. Both are sisters of the bride and live in Jamesville. The best man was Charles Register of Florence, S.C., brother of the bridegroom. Van Heath of Jamesville, cousin of the bride, was usher.

A program of wedding music was presented by Cindy Holliday, pianist and cousin of the bride. Janice Brown sang "The Rose" and "Looking Through the Eyes of Love."

The honor attendant wore a floor length gown of lavender polyester highlighted with a long sleeved overlay bodice of chiffon with ruffled accents at the neckline. It tied at the gathered waistline with matching satin ribbon. She wore a matching garden hat and carried a basket of pastel daisies. The bridesmaid wore a formal gown of light blue polyester and cotton voile styled with a garden hat and carried a basket of pastel daisies.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will live in Grimesland.

The bride graduated from East Carolina University and is now deli-bakery manager at Winn Dixie in Washington. The bridegroom attended ECU and is pricing manager at Winn Dixie in Rivergate in Greenville.

A reception was held after the ceremony. Cake was served by Gail Conner and punch was poured by Bett Modlin. Guests were greeted at the register table by Lucille Register, sister of the bridegroom. Rice bags were distributed by Sharon Register, sister of the bridegroom.

A Peaceful Approach

True, China has reason to criticize and oppose U.S. intervention in a "family affair" by supporting Taiwan. In their shoes, we'd feel much the same way.

And we'll acknowledge the value of sprawling, teeming mainland China as an ally to restrain that giant to the north far surpasses that of Taiwan's potential for help.

Two perfectly good reasons why the U.S. should relax its strong commitment to Taiwan... and yet we feel uncertain about it all.

There's the matter of a several-decades-long alliance with friends who really fought at our side in World War II; and there was a long-standing commitment to stand by Taiwan when the going got tough.

The little island nation has prospered. It is quite an industrialized country, now, and life is considerably easier than on the mainland.

But the U.S. retreat also represents a warning signal to its allies: alliances with the Americans are not a guarantee of security.

There are conditions in the new arrangement which an administration official says are clearly understood: The gradual reduction of arms sales depends on the Chinese government continuing its peaceful approach to reunification. That is some consolation.

Our Role Ends The Bloodshed

There are no doubt those who will get the jitters about the U.S. Marines being used to help with the evacuation of PLO guerillas from west Beirut.

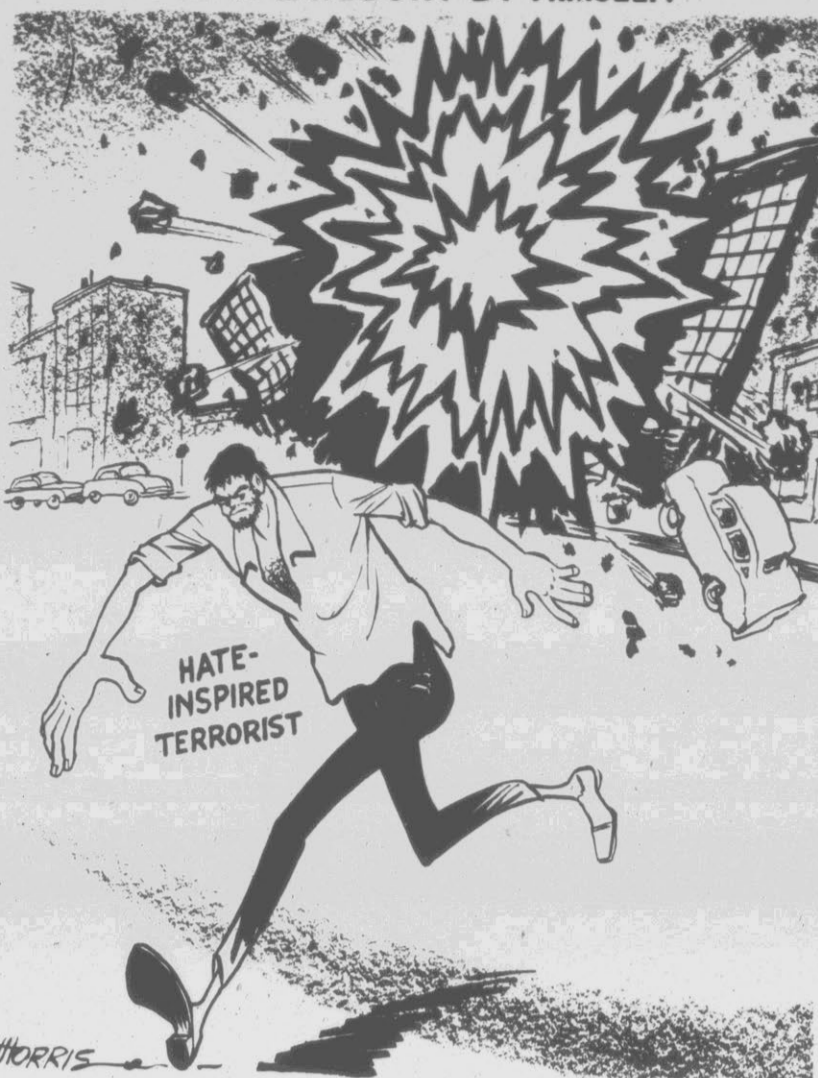

President Reagan announced last week that about 800 marines would fill that role. They will be there no more than 30 days and, if shooting resumes, they are to withdraw. He called it a "carefully limited noncombatant role."

If it frightens some that U.S. troops will be in Lebanon, so be it.

Of course there are obvious dangers, but the opportunity to fulfill a humanitarian role far outweighs the risk.

There has been much bloodshed in Beirut. Civilians have died and been maimed and practically everyone has been displaced. The United States has played an important role in negotiating a solution and if it takes U.S. Marines to bring it to a conclusion we can only credit ourselves with ending the suffering and destruction.

IN A CATEGORY BY HIMSELF!

BY JAMES KILPATRICK

A Self-Imposed Illness

WASHINGTON — One of the maxims of the news business is that when dog bites man it isn't news, but when man bites dog it's worth reporting. On that basis, the recent address by Justice John Paul Stevens merits attention. The gentleman is unhappy.

Justice Stevens told the American Bar Association, meeting in San Francisco, that the Supreme Court is frittering away its precious time on many cases that ought never to be considered at all. The court is processing more litigation than ever before; it is granting more petitions for review; but there are not enough hours in the day for the justices to give petitions their personal attention. "I do not even look at the papers in over 80 percent of the cases that are filed."

One consequence of the flood of paperwork is that the law's ordinary delays are compounded. In October, when the 1983 term begins, the court will grant scores of petitions for review — but the court that would have the sole power of deciding which cases the Supreme Court should hear. "The present court does a poor job of performing that task." By delegating this threshold problem to a new court, he said, "the vast flood of paper and the small army of administrative personnel associated with the processing of our certiorari docket could be entirely removed from the Supreme Court, and the time available to the justices for doing their most important work would be dramatically increased."

It is an idea worth thinking about. In various forms the idea has been thought about before, but nothing has come from the thinking. My own thought, for whatever it may be worth, is that Luke's famous admonition should be heeded: Physician, heal thyself. The court's ailments are essentially iatrogenic, which is a ten-dollar word meaning the court's indigestion is self-imposed.

JAMES J. KILPATRICK

petitioners may have to wait a full year before their cases are argued. Such delays "are not yet serious," but in a few years the problem "will be a matter of national concern."

It is not the proper function of the court, said Justice Stevens, to correct every perceived error in the lower courts. Such a task is hopeless. Far better, in his view, would be a policy of letting the state and federal appellate courts have the final say on almost all litigation than to swamp the Supreme Court with cases of little national significance.

"Both in deciding when to review novel questions and in deciding what questions need review, the court often exhibits an unfortunate lack of judicial restraint." Justice Stevens advanced a startling idea: He would create a new

Over the past 20 years, the court has so broadened "the rights of an accused" that it has positively invited thousands of frivolous petitions from jailhouse lawyers. The court has created doors marked "unrepresentative jury" and "incompetent counsel" and "Miranda warnings," and defendants have come knocking. The court has so fouled up the exclusionary rule, having to do with the admissibility of evidence, that neither the cops nor the robbers know where they stand. The court has backed and filled on the death sentence. The law on obscene publications is murky. And so on.

The justices suffer collectively from a kind of judicial diarrhea. Last year they filled a record 1,137 pages of U.S. Law Week with opinions. (Continued on page 5)

Short-Term Partnership

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The shotgun marriage between Ronald Reagan and the congressional Democrats that passed the tax bill Thursday night was going sour by Friday morning, pointing up sharp choices the president faces in the wake of victory.

Acting on what he thought was unambiguous information from the president's men, House Majority Leader Jim Wright gave this choice to Democratic House members: Defeat the tax bill and return here to consider a Reagan veto of the supplemental appropriations bill; pass the bill, and be assured of presidential approval of the money measure. For some liberals, it was the decisive factor in voting yes.

But this purported deal spread through the House Republican cloakroom with sulphurous fumes. Was there a grand conspiracy so that higher taxes would justify higher expenditures? After hours of delay, word came back from the White House that no assurance of a non-veto had been made. Personal chats by Wright with key administration officials Friday gave him sympathy but no new assurances now that the tax bill was passed.

The implications go beyond one veto that might interrupt the extended Labor Day vacation for lawmakers. The 89 Republicans who opposed their president on his tax bill are looking closely at whether the grand coalition for higher taxes was an aberration or a return to business as usual by the Washington establishment.

Even without no-veto promises, the tax bill was congenial to mainstream liberal Democrats. As passed by the Senate, it contained hoary tax reforms gathering dust since Kennedy administration days. Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of the Ways and Means Committee in the House-Senate conference stubbornly refused amendments to make the bill more palatable to business.

Yet, as the vote in the House approached, the president's vote-counters were panicky over refusal of younger Reaganite Republicans to heed the pleas of their leader. To get the Democratic votes, it might be necessary not only to have a Democratic tax bill but also further relaxation of spending restrictions.

Thus, as the climatic vote neared in the House, a White House aide called Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill's office with this assurance: If the tax bill passed, the president would ignore budget director David Stockman's advice to veto the supplemental bill.

Told of that call, Wright sought to find out whether the reverse was true. He asked a boll-weevil Democrat with excellent White House connections whether the president definitely would veto the money bill (because of its extra spending to help the handicapped) if the tax bill failed. The boll weevil returned to Wright to tell him that was, indeed the case. The majority leader passed on the information to Democrats, and changed some votes.

Moments after the president's victory, Wright said on the House floor: "If the president were to veto the supplemental, it contradicts my understanding of the situation." That rang the alarm bell for Republicans, who wondered aloud whether the tax increase was merely a chit for higher federal spending.

The importance of this goes to the nature of the junior right-wing House members that is still not comprehended at the White House. Such rank-and-file Republicans will not blindly follow Reagan as their predecessors did the far less popular Richard Nixon a decade earlier. This populist argument was made in House debate by Rep. Ed Bethune of Arkansas, a leader in the rebellion: "If... you believe that this peoples House has a higher duty than just to ratify the executive, then listen to the common sense of the people."

When a half a dozen rebels telephoned the White House after the vote to pledge loyalty to the president, Reagan aides incorrectly thought the prodigal sons were home. On the contrary, Republican populists in the House are watching the president carefully for his next moves. They want to see whether the shotgun marriage with the Democrats goes sour or is consummated in permanent wedlock.

These congressmen have

Strength For Today

THE NATURE OF TRUE RIGHTEOUSNESS

One of the basic teachings of all true religion is that, goodness is an inner matter of the heart. We do not bedeck ourselves with righteousness, or, if we do, we make pathetic fools of ourselves. What we do is to open our hearts and let the good that is therein come forth. Better still, as we open our hearts, that immeasurable goodness which comes from God flows into us. Our hearts become what Jesus called that inner well or water springing up into eternal life.

A hypocrite is a person who plays a part, for the word "hypocrite" comes from a Greek word which means "actor". The people who make a show of their righteousness are hypocrites because they are displaying on the outside of their lives that righteousness which should be a silent, pervasive quality welling up from their hearts.

Real goodness is inside goodness. Beware of the people who attempt to hang goodness on the outside of their lives. — Elisha Douglass

Drinking Age: 21

By JOHN HUBBARD
North Wilkesboro
Journal-Patriot

One of the hot issues facing a future session of the State Legislature concerns raising the legal drinking age in North Carolina to 21.

Under present law, those who reach age 18 can legally consume and purchase fortified wine and beer.

In states which have raised the legal drinking age for purchasing and consuming alcohol beverages, statistics show that highway fatalities decrease. This may be the main reason for raising the legal drinking age if it passes in the Legislature.

Young people point out "we're not too young to die for our country (draft age is 18, of course), and we're not too young to vote or drive an automobile." Valid points, no doubt.

Expect the brewery lobbies to exert tremendous pressure on the Legislature to keep the bill from passing and also expect great pressure from the church groups and others to have it approved.

Some law enforcement officers express the opinion that if the legal drinking age is raised, teenagers will continue to obtain beer and wine, will be cited, and there will be a parade of the youthful offenders through courts on misdemeanor charges as there now are on misdemeanor marijuana charges.

Legislators may find this issue hotter than the ERA amendment when opponents and proponents in the last Legislature descended on Raleigh and made the Legislature a circus on a couple of days.

Nationally there is legislation to restore prayer in schools. There has never been a law or a supreme court ruling against voluntary prayer in school.

What kind of prayers will the schools have? Protestant? Jewish? Catholic? Moslem? Buddhist?

Although there is a protestant majority in Wilkes, there are other religions and should all have to participate in and listen to prayers which are not compatible to their religion?

When I was editor of a small mountain newspaper in western North Carolina, a Catholic high school senior was ordered not to graduate with his class because he would not accept a Protestant Bible which was given to the graduating seniors at the Baccalaureate ceremony. He put the Bible down after it was handed to him.

The attorney general ruled that this young man was discriminated against and ordered graduation with his class.

Nothing wrong with prayer in school... plenty wrong with religious discrimination.

I'm going to get on the stump again and say that Wilkes County young people have not had enough vacation this summer. School ended June 9, and begins August 23.

I know there was bad weather last winter, and days were lost because of this. The board of education must see that there are 180 days of school, under law. The Legislature needs to pass a law that school will begin the first week of September and end on May 31. Children need the break from the pressure of school, and haven't, I think, had enough break this summer.

I think that the Wilkes School Board can tighten the schedule. I question the validity of so many days off during the year for teacher work days and NCAE meetings. How many teachers really work on teachers work days? How many attend the NCAE meetings?

Children hardly get settled at home this summer before they were preparing for another school year.

Twelve months school? The educational bureaucracy is arriving at the 12-month term slow and surely.

To the editor:

My wife and I moved to Greenville last year from Chattanooga where city and county taxation were based solely on auto and real estate holdings. We were initially shocked by the fact that here we had to pay taxes on such things as a percentage of our rent.

Then we lived outside the city limits and, therefore, paid county taxes, plus a fee to use the city's tennis courts. We later discovered that very few people pay, including numerous ECU students who continually crowd the courts.

But the breaking point arrived the other evening when we went to play tennis and discovered that we must now pay $1 per hour to use the court lights.

My question is: How many times must we be taxed in this town in order to play a simple tennis match?

Other Editors Say Paying Dividends

(Henderson Dispatch)

No matter what speed we may be driving on the highway, it seems there are always a few motorists who go zooming past in complete disregard for any speed limit.

However, figures reported on June 30 regarding a study of the speed of drivers on North Carolina highways indicated the average speed driven in this state during April, May and June was 55.1 miles per hour.

The maximum legal speed limit in N.C. and in all states has been 55 miles per hour since 1974. That universal speed limit was imposed by law in an effort to conserve fuel during the infamous fuel crisis of that year.

Since that time there has been a rather strong campaign to enforce the 55-mile limit, to educate drivers to slow down and use a few additional minutes to reach their destinations.

The figures released by the Planning and Research Division of the N.C. Dept. of Transportation indicate that 53.9 percent of drivers in the state exceed the 55-miles-per-hour limit at times, but most of them are attempting to drive close to the limit, according to a department official.

The official said the study shows that 17 percent of the drivers who speed go more than 60 miles per hour, while only 3.9 percent drive in excess of 65.

The Highway Users Federation has said recent data show seven out of 10 drivers exceed the national 55-mph. limit on rural segments of interstate highways, although most motorists obey the limit on other roads. That was interpreted to mean a return to slightly faster traffic on roads that were designed for speeds over 60 mph.

There can be no question that conservation efforts since 1974 have had significant impact on imports of foreign oil into the U.S. The 55-mph. speed limit therefore has paid dividends even though most drivers edge above that limit at times.

And the slower speeds combined with stepped up enforcement efforts have paid another important dividend: they have been a major factor in an encouraging decline in the traffic death toll in North Carolina and across the nation.

Nobody Can Claim Foresight

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — One

of the lessons of credit and stock market upheavals during the past week is that you should never try to bet on short-term twists in prices. Not even the pros or the crapsshooters are good at that.

Just two examples provide an idea of what can happen:

International Moneyline, a $22-a-year weekly newsletter, told readers in its Aug. 16 issue that conditions were so bad they had "all but eliminated any hope for a summer rally."

The Ruff Times, which publishes 50 editions a year for $145, carried just a brief section in its Aug. 13 issue. Beneath the headline "Dull, Dull, Dull" it said in full: "Last week's market comments are still in effect."

These two newsletters were not alone. Some of the best-known economists had grown increasingly concerned during the past few weeks. And some of the most quoted people on Wall Street were worried sick.

Even economists Albert Wajnlower and Henry Kaufman, whose acknowledgment that interest rates might continue to fall may have had much to do with the surge in stock prices, couched their economic views in essentially bearish terms.

The truth is that nobody so far has come forth with the claim that he or she had it all figured out and knew what would happen last Tuesday. And until they do, it is a fair statement that nobody was ready for what happened.

What happened, of course, is that the Dow Jones industrial average rose more than 30 points on both Wednesday and Friday, and ended the week with a gain of 81.24 points, by far the biggest one-week numerical advance ever.

That this surge was accompanied by the heaviest trading witnessed on the New York Stock Exchange adds to the evidence. Such vol-could be achieved only by big institutions, a great many of whose representatives had only days before proclaimed that the stock market was hardly ready for any kind of rally.

What few forecasters could foresee is the sudden change in Federal Reserve policy from a death grip, as one analyst put it, to one of "aggressive accommodation," as described by Merrill Lynch Government Securities Inc.

Neither could they foresee the reasons for the change, and to this day they do not know the answer unless there has been a rare leak at the Fed.

There are hints: recognition that the economy is in worse shape than was thought; fears that the national or international financial system was cracking; Mexico's troubles with credit, and consequent problems for U.S. banks; and politics, especially in connection with upcoming elec-

Whatever the reasons, nobody could foresee the changes in all their many inter-relationships and consequences. If they were capable of doing so, you wouldn't have witnessed the near-panic buying that developed on Tuesday, with pension funds, mutual funds, insurance companies and other institutions fighting to get in on a good thing before it was too late.

The big question now is whether the market is off on a prolonged climb, or whether it will back and fill... whether it will continue surging, or whether uncertainty will force some investors to take their gains early.

Those are questions about the short term, however, and you and the professionals have little chance of figuring it all out. The lesson for investors seems, quite clear:

If you're going to invest, do so for the long term, accepting whatever might happen in between.

dissents and concurrences — and then occupied themselves with other hundreds of pages of per curiam opinions and dissents delivered in the course of summary actions. Are all these personal expressions necessary? Do they contribute to a sense of stability in the law? The questions answer themselves.

To be sure, the court's discomfort is not entirely of its own making. Congress has contributed to the problem by enacting scores of new laws that have spawned new swarms of litigation. Our nation suffers from having perhaps 200,000 lawyers too many. No dispute is too petty to evoke the national war cry: "Soe'm!" So we sue and we sue, and the flood rises.

If the nine justices were to give up at least part of their three months' vacation from oral argument every year, perhaps their load factor might improve. Before encouraging the Stevens solution, the court might give it a try.

been given whispered confidences by administration officers that their whipping boy, James Baker, probably will be replaced as chief of staff next year by the more conservative national security director, William P. Clark. But what they are really awaiting is whether half-hearted efforts to cut the budget are followed by yet another tax increase in 1983 — this one eliminating the indexing of income taxes.

What the president does in California this week about that supplemental appropriations bill will be a small signal. A veto would terminate the grand coalition amid sure recriminations ("I couldn't criticize the president for bad faith, but I could criticize him for bad judgment," Wright told us). Approval of the bill would continue for now the shotgun marriage, amid deepening misgivings by the Republican congressmen who defied their president last Thursday night.

Discrimination Claim Rejected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal judge has ruled that the state's Agriculture Extension Service was not racially discriminatory in its promotion and hiring practices, as alleged by 50 black extension agents in an 11-year-old lawsuit.

U.S. District Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. issued a 77-page ruling Friday in which he rejected contentions that the extension had discriminated against blacks in recruitment, hiring, promotion, job assignment and salary.

Dupree noted that there was a shortage of blacks qualified for extension service jobs and said discrepancies in salaries and promotions reflected differences in qualifications, tenure and performance, not racial discrimination.

Dupree said the federal government and 55 black present and former extension employees had failed to prove in a 10-week trial last year and earlier this year that the state had treated blacks less favorably than whites since the service was integrated.

The evidence shows that blacks are employed wherever they apply but they rarely apply for employment in those counties (mostly in western North Carolina) where the Negro population is very small....

Death Said Due Neglect

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A Winston-Salem woman has been charged with manslaughter in the death of her 75-year-old invalid father, who was dehydrated and undernourished when he died, officials said.

Avis Forrest Smith, 34, was arrested Monday at the apartment she shared with her father, Grover Smith, said Detective W.G. Miller of the Winston-Salem Police Department. She was released for Forsyth County Jail after posting $5,000 bond.

Police said Smith, who weighed less than 100 pounds, was found dead Aug. 9 in a roach-infested upstairs bedroom that was filthy with Smith's own waste. Smith, who suffered a stroke about eight years ago, was partially paralyzed and had to rely on others to feed him and take care of his basic needs, police said.

Dr. Modesto Schary, the medical examiner who performed the autopsy on Smith, said the man had not eaten for at least two days prior to his death and had not received any fluids for at least a day.

Schary attributed Smith's death to several factors, including diseases of the heart, brain and lungs. He said he also considers the undernourished condition of Smith and the unsanitary living conditions in which he was found as contributing factors in the death.

Smith received a disability payment of more than $400 a month from Social Security, according to officers, they said that Ms. Smith was authorized to cash the checks and that records indicate she had been doing so regularly.

apartments are sharing them with other students." Asked about standards imposed by university officials on housing in the community rented by students, Mrs. Wright said "there is none per se. This year for the first time, however, we have a handbook for students that's helpful. It provides legal information on housing standards, extracts from Greenville's housing code, information on the responsibilities both of the tenant and the landlord, check lists of conditions, sample rental leases and roommate agreements, in short, a lot of things a student needs to know about housing."

Mrs. Wright noted also that in the case of apartments or houses for rent, there are non-discriminatory regulations that apply. "In the case of renting rooms in a private home, however, the landlord can select the person they prefer. In any case, a student who feels they are being discriminated against are encouraged to get in touch with us," Mrs. Wright said the handbooks are also being provided to landlords who want one.

In addition to the 5,600 students living on-campus and the estimated 3,000 living in rentals off campus, Mrs. Wright mentioned that "a number of students commute to school, and others live with families in the area."

Anyone with housing in the Greenville area to rent to students may call Mary Moore or Mrs. Wright at 757-6881.

Dr. Perry Gets Thumb For Operating

By The Associated Press
It took 21 years and countless accusations by frustrated batters before an umpire finally ejected Gaylord Perry for throwing an illegal pitch.

The veteran Seattle right-hander with 304 victories and a book entitled "Me and the Spitter" to his credit, had never been ejected for doctoring a baseball until Monday night.

The Boston Red Sox were leading 1-0 in the seventh inning — in a game they eventually won 4-3 to cut their deficit in the AL East to five games behind Milwaukee — when umpire Dave Phillips thumbed Perry, 43.

"In my judgment, it was definitely an illegal pitch," said Phillips, who said he had warned Perry numerous times in past years without ejecting him. "The ball came in and the bottom fell out."

"It was just something that sank," Perry said.

"He just wanted to stick it to us and that's what he did," said Perry, who also called Phillips "a crusader. He just wants to make a scene. He's going to clean up the world."

Red Sox Manager Ralph Houk said Perry had been throwing a greaseball so much during the game that "it was getting to be a farce. I'm a fan of Gaylord's, but he didn't use it that much in the past."

After Perry threw a called strike to Boston's Rick Miller, Phillips, the plate umpire, demanded to see the ball although Seattle catcher Jim Epsilon already had made his return delivery to Perry on the mound.

Phillips, who had warned Perry against doctoring the ball in the fifth inning, then ejected Perry without looking at the ball. His only previous ejection came early in his career when he was thumbed for bench jockeying.

Although the ejection was Perry's first for throwing an illegal pitch, opposing managers have claimed for most of his career that he has "loaded" his pitches with illegal substances.

Perry admitted in his book that he used illegal pitches to find success in the major leagues, but he said he had quit.

After the ejection, Seattle rebounded from a 2-0 deficit with three runs in the seventh on Manny Castillo's sacrifice fly and a two-run homer by Al Cowens.

But the Red Sox came back in the eighth on Reid Nichols' two-run homer that provided the margin of victory and handed Seattle its sixth straight loss.

Nichols socked an 0-2 pitch from Mariners reliever Bill Caudill, 10-5, into the left field seats after Dave Stapleton walked. Mark Clear, 10-7, got credit for the victory although he surrendered Cowens' homer.

Angels 5, Brewers 3
Mike Witt pitched a seven-hitter for his eighth victory in 12 decisions as California beat Milwaukee in a battle of division leaders.

Bob Boone snapped a 1-1 tie in the fourth inning with a two-run single, Brian Downing followed with another single to make it 4-1 and Reggie Jackson hit his 30th homer in the seventh.

Witt had a four-hitter going into the ninth, but the Brewers scored two runs on Ben Oglivie's two-run single.

Tigers 5, A's 1
Larry Herndon drove in three of Detroit's runs with a two-run homer and a single and Glenn Wilson knocked in the other two, also with a homer and a single.

Dan Petry, 14-7, pitched his seventh complete game of the season despite allowing 11 hits and giving up Rickey Henderson's 115th steal.

Henderson moved to within three of Lou Brock's major-league record, and also tied a big-league record held by Ty Cobb when he was caught stealing for the 38th time.

Rangers 5, Royals 2
Dave Schmidt scattered 10 hits in 81-3 innings for his first major league win as a starter and Buddy Bell knocked in three runs as Texas defeated Kansas City and knocked the Royals two games behind California in the West.

Schmidt, 4-4, left the game with one out in the ninth after giving up an RBI single to John Wathan, but Danny Darwin came in to retire Willie Wilson on a game-ending double-play.

Bell had a two-run double in Texas' four-run eighth inning. Jim Sundberg hit his eighth homer in the same inning.

Indians 5, White Sox 4
Von Hayes knocked in three runs, including the game-winner with a double in the eighth inning, as Cleveland won for the sixth time in eight outings and Chicago lost its sixth of its last seven.

Hayes, who also hit a two-run single in the sixth to tie the game 3-3, hit his double came off Sparky Lyle, making his first White Sox appearance after being claimed on waivers from the Philadelphia Phillies.

Dan Spillner, 10-7, picked up the victory with 12-3 innings of scoreless relief.

Yankees 4, Blue Jays 3

Oscar Gamble and Graig Nettles capped a three-run New York rally with consecutive homers in the sixth inning against Toronto.

Toronto starter Luis Leal allowed only three hits until he had a 3-1 lead until Lee Mazzilli opened the sixth with a single. One out later, Dave Winfield lashed an RBI double, but he was thrown out trying for third.

Gamble then belted his 15th homer, and Nettles, making his first start at third base in a week, smashed his 13th homer into the upper deck in right.

Despite Last Year, Michigan, Ohio State, Irish Still Best

By The Associated Press
When assessing college football strength in the Midwest in the past, the easiest way to do it was to look at the respective strengths of Michigan and Ohio State in the Big Ten and then add Notre Dame to the list.

But it didn't work that way last season. Notre Dame had its first losing season in 18 years under new coach Gerry Faust. For the first time in years, Ohio State and Michigan were defeated by the same school in the same season. Wisconsin accomplished the feat.

For the first time since 1968, Notre Dame's first losing season since 1963, Ohio State represented the Big Ten when Iowa made the trip to the Rose Bowl. And for the first time since the inception of the Associated Press college football poll in 1936, a Big Ten team failed to finish in the top 10.

Going into the new season, Ohio State will be without passing ace Art Schlichter, Michigan lost running back star Butch Woolfolk and Notre Dame will be without linebacker great Bob Crable.

Nevertheless, Ohio State, which shared the Big Ten title with Iowa last season, and Michigan will be the teams to beat in the conference and once again could decide the title when the two meet in Columbus Nov. 20. Illinois, with an aerial attack led by Tony Eason, appears to be the team with the best chance of sneaking in if the perennial powers falter.

Notre Dame will have 19 starters returning and Faust promises the Irish "will learn from the mistakes we made last year and put what we learned to good use."

Maybe just as important is the fact the Irish passing game, with Blair Kiel at quarterback and Tony Hunter returning to tight end from wingback, will be upgraded with the addition of assistant coach Ron Hudson. Hudson will coach the quarterbacks and receivers after having served the past three years as backfield coach at UCLA.

The Big Ten also has become pass-minded and quarterback talent abounds throughout the league.

In addition to Eason at Illinois, Purdue has Scott Campbell, Michigan has Steve Smith, Minnesota has Mike Hohensee, Indiana has Babe Laufenberg and Michigan will count on John Leister.

They will have such targets as Anthony Carter at Michigan, Oliver Williams and Mike Martin at Illinois, Duane Gunn at Indiana, Cliff Benson at Purdue, Ted Jones and Daryl Turner at Michigan

State and Gary Williams at Ohio State.

Things were tight in the Big Ten last season when Iowa tied Ohio State for the championship while Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin finished one game behind the leaders. Iowa lost most of its powerful defensive unit and doesn't figure to be a factor in the title race.

Minnesota and Wisconsin also figure to challenge if Ohio State and Michigan have trouble, and Indiana should not be counted out.

Faust's baptismal to the college ranks was a 5-6 season. Notre Dame's first losing season since 1963, Ohio State and Michigan have trouble, and Indiana should not be counted out.

Defending champion Toledo as well as Miami, Bowling Green and Central Michigan will be the top contenders in the Mid-American Conference. Miami is being picked to succeed Toledo with Bowling Green and Central Michigan next in line.

Miami is without tailback Greg Jones and Coach Tom Reed promises, "We're going to throw the football more this fall." Quarterback John Appol is the key to the Miami aerial game.

Bowling Green Coach Denny Stolz has a strong defense along with Jim Phelps who punted out of bounds nine times last season inside the opponents' 15-yard-line.

Elsewhere, Cincinnati could improve its 6-5 record but Louisville will be hard-pressed to better its 5-6 mark. The two meet Sept. 11 but also on Louisville's schedule is Pitt, a team picked by many to win the national championship.

Although Ohio State lost Schlichter, Coach Earle Bruce has nearly everyone else back. Mike Tomczak figures to replace Schlichter. Eight defensive starters also return.

Ohio State's pass defense was suspect last season but Bruce insists "We lost three games last year because of our kicking game and not (because of) pass defense. And if we don't shore up our kicking game, it could be another disaster."

Michigan Coach Bo

Schembechler has a stronger defensive unit than a year ago when the Wolverines were beaten in the opener at Wisconsin.

"We have to rebuild our running game," said Schembechler. "If we get it going, we'll be a good unit. Our kicking game is solid. We have our kickers back and our snapper back."

Last year the Illini finished 6-3 in the Big Ten, losing at Ohio State and at Michigan. They were 5-0 at home. This time the Illini catch both Michigan and Ohio State at Champaign.

Minnesota, in addition to Hohensee, has all of its running backs returning. Coach Joe Salem has nine starters back on defense. Home games will be played in the Metrodome, five of them at night.

Purdue has a new coach in Leon Burnett and an old look in a strong passing game led by Campbell. Eight regulars' return on defense.

Wisconsin played its first five games at home last season, beating Michigan, Purdue and Ohio State. This time the Badgers play their first three conference games away at Michigan, Purdue and Ohio State.

Michigan State and Indiana both have excellent passing games to augment veteran-packed lineups.

Indiana will "be explosive," said Coach Lee Corso. Defense could be a problem.

Iowa lost most of its Rose Bowl defense which held tight opponents to a touchdown or less. Coach Hayden Fry will rebuild around tackle Mark Bortz. The Hawkeyes also have punter Reggie Roby back. Roby set an NCAA record by averaging 49.9 yards punting.

Northwestern owns the NCAA record losing streak at 31 games.

Pirates Scrimmage

East Carolina head football coach Ed Emory sent his Pirates through their first scrimmage session Monday, and noted that quarterback play was generally very good.

Freshman Tony Baker has an outstanding run during the workout, while Milt Corsey looked good both as a runner and receiver. Both are working at the tailback spot where Jimmy Walden is out with a knee injury.

Reggie Branch, a fullback, turned in a good run, while the offensive line, led by guard Terry Lng went through a good workout.

The first team defensive unit had little trouble with the reserves during their work, giving freshman quarterback Brian Herndon a rough welcome to college football.

With linebacker Mike Grant still highly questionable and Amos Twitty nursing a slight shoulder separation, sophomore P.J. Jordan and Villanova transfer Gerry Rogers running at first string linebackers, both of whom stood out in the scrimmage.

Gryphons Again Picked To Win Big East; Rose Is Top Challenger

Part One of Two Parts
By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rocky Mount's Gryphons, the defending Big East Conference champions, again received the nod of the league's coaches in the annual poll conducted by "The Daily Reflector" yesterday.

Greenville Rose, picked to finished second last year — as it did — was again chosen to finish in the runner-up spot.

Rocky Mount received first place votes on six of the eight coach's ballots. Rocky Mount's Walt Wiggins cast his vote for Wilson Hunt, while one other coach voted for Rose. Coaches were not allowed to vote for their own teams on the ballot.

Based on awarding seven points for first place, six for second and so on, Rocky Mount finished with a total of 48 points, well outdistancing Rose which finished second with 39.

Wilson Fike nosed out Wilson Hunt for third place, 35 points to 34. Fike did not receive a first place vote however.

The second division included Northern Nash, 24 points; Wilson Beddingfield, 22; Kinston, 13; and Elizabeth City Northeastern, 9.

"I really don't know if our finishing first on the poll is legitimate," Wiggins said. "We have as few players back as anyone, and our junior varsity won only three games last year. There's not a lot of help there."

Wiggins said that Rocky Mount has some real question marks for the season ahead. "We lost a lot of people. We have only seven starters back, five on offense and just two on defense. And we have very little depth."

Rocky Mount will employ the I and split back offense and run from a fifty defense.

Top returning players include quarterback Eddie Coats. "He was all-conference last year, and is probably the leading passer in the east at quarterback."

Joe Walker returns at defensive back and will also see offensive action this year as either a tailback or split end. Scott Vaughan at tackle and Eric Kron, a guard, rate as the top linemen back, along with tight end Paul Merritt. "He's going to be one of the better ones in the league," he said of Merritt.

Wiggins feels that Rocky Mount's fate will depend a lot on how the defensive holes are filled. "Our offense will be okay. We just have to stop the other teams."

Northeastern is one of three schools in the conference with new coaches this year, although Mike Herring, who took over from Jerry McGee, has been there before. Herring was an assistant three years ago for McGee, who is now devoting his full time to the job of athletic director.

"I'm optimistic," Herring said. "I don't think our scrimmages really showed what we are capable of."

The Eagles will use multiple sets on offense and a 5-2 on defense.

"I'm worried about one of our all-conference performers," Herring said. "He's been sidelined by a blood pressure and we don't know when or if he'll be able to play."

Herring expects his running back situation to be okay, but says the Eagles will be going with an untested quarterback. He expects the linebacker position to be the strong point of the defense.

"We've got a lot of people we're still unsure of right now. We hope that our first three (non-conference) games will tell us a lot of what we need to know."

As to now the Eagles might fare in the conference, Herring said that it was just speculation, but he feels they could come in as high as third place. "We have a whole new system to learn, but the kids are picking it up well."

Gus Andrews goes into his second year at Wilson Fike unsure of what to expect from his team.

"Our scrimmage was atrocious," he said. "We have only five starters back. They are pretty good, but overall it's a whole new team."

The five starters returning do give Andrews something to build on, he feels. "We have some talent in the skill positions, but we are limited in our line. What I mean by that is that I don't know whether we can line up from tight end to tackle with a true 4-A line without depth."

He does feel that the Golden Demons will be stronger, physically, this year, thanks to the off-season weight program.

Fike will run its offense off options of the I and T, while using a 40-defense.

Top players should include Izell Jenkins at tailback, one of the state's fastest backs; Joey Page, "as good a defensive end as there is in the conference;" and Howard Land, a returning offensive guard.

There could be a surprise too. Blessed by great kickers in the past, Andrews may have found a successor to Lee Gliarmis in Joey Beaman, a senior out for the first time, who has booted 50-yarders without pressure. How he performs under the pressure of a charging line is the big question, Andrews says.

(Tomorrow: Beddingfield, Hunt, Kinston and Northern Nash.)

Braves Win 5th Straight; Back On Top

By The Associated Press
Watch out Dodgers, Padres and Giants. Those up-and-down Atlanta Braves are on the upswing again.
The Braves won their fifth straight game Monday night, nipping the Philadelphia

Phillies 4-3 on Chris Chambliss' run-scoring double with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning.
The victory lifted Atlanta into first place in the National League West, a mere fraction of a percentage point ahead of the slumping Dodgers, who fell 11-3 to St. Louis.

"We showed a lot of class in the last five days," said Atlanta third baseman Bob Horner, who drove in two runs with a single and sacrifice fly.
"How many teams could have done what we did? Lose 19 of 21 and then bounce back and now we're back in first place. We could have just died but we bounced back. We have now won five games by one run. That shows a lot of class."

It's not really surprising that Atlanta has charged back as the frontrunner. This year the Braves have put together 10 winning and six losing streaks of three or more games.
Rick Camp, 12-9, was the winning pitcher, his first triumph since July 29. Reliever Ron Reed, 3-4, was the loser.
Gary Matthews smashed a two-run homer in the eighth for the Phillies, his 14th of the year.

Cardinals 11, Dodgers 3
Gene Tenace knocked in four runs to power the surging Cardinals over the Dodgers. St. Louis has won 11 of its last 14 games over the Phillies in the NL East.
Right-hander Bob Forsch, 13-7, picked up the victory with relief help from Bruce Sutter, who came in with one out in eighth and picked up his league-leading 27th save. Forsch allowed seventh hits while striking out two and walking none. Jerry Reuss, 12-10, was the losing pitcher.

Cubs 8, Giants 5
Bill Buckner lashed four singles, drove in two runs and scored three runs and Ryne Sandberg had three hits and two RBI to power Chicago over San Francisco.

Astros 2, Mets 0
Knuckleballer Joe Niekro baffled the Mets on four hits to record his second shutout and ninth complete game of the season. He raised his record to 12-9.
Houston got the decisive run in the second inning when Art Howe drew a walk from right-hander Pat Zachry and went to third on Tony Scott's single. He scored when Zachry unleashed a wild pitch to Niekro.

Perkins a two-run single to spark the Padres. Chris Welsh, 7-5, scattered six hits in five innings in recording the victory while Ross Baumgarten, 0-5, was the loser.
Jason Thompson cracked his 25th homer of the season, a solo shot in the ninth. Jim Morrison also homered for the Pirates in the sixth.

Roanoke Redskins Seen In Role Of Spoiler In Northeastern Race

One Of A Series
By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
ROBERSONVILLE —
Roanoke coach Nolan Respass is a sworn realist. So, when asked about the Redskins' prospects for 1982, Respass refused to sugar-coat his views on the subject.

Street & Smith's preseason Top 50 list — the only North Carolina player to make the prestigious list.
"I don't think I have to say anything about him," Respass said. "He's a super player. He can do it all. But he'll never be as great as some expect him to be. They expect him to do everything."

As for the prospect of Wallace being double- and triple-teamed this year, Respass hopes teams do just that. "We're going to do some different things on defense but I'd rather not discuss them."
"I hope they do (double- or triple-team) him," he said. "That'll open it up for the other players."

One of those "other" players is Williford, a 6-3, 225-pound senior who is being recruited by the military academies and Davidson. Williford will play offensive right tackle and inside linebacker.
Filling out the starting offensive front will be either Bobby Wells (5-9, 175 junior) or Eddie Raynard (6-0, 175 junior) at center, Chris Keel (5-10, 180 senior) at left guard and Alan Andrews (5-10, 220 senior) at left tackle.

"As a coach I feel like we're going to be a spoiler," Respass said. "I feel like if you took a poll of the nine coaches in the Northeastern Conference they would pick either Bertie or Roanoke Rapids first."
"We'd be picked anywhere from fifth to seventh," he said. "I'd be telling a lie if I said we were the best team. But, I do feel like we can surprise some people."

Eight seniors returned from last season's 7-3 team when fall drills began, and already one — Calvin Andrews — has fallen victim to injury. Andrews, a 6-1, 215 pounder, suffered a knee injury. He is out for the year.
"I think the injury effected the coaches more than the team," Respass said. "We were moping around for a few days. I think the team has taken up some of the slack."

It is a small backfield, but one Respass said is quicker than last year's, a talent the coach will try to use.
"We're going to use a lot more sprint outs and get a lot of action off the sprint draws," Respass said. "Glenn is short but he's real quick and we're going to want him rolling out."

Two players are vying for fullback and tailback. Chris Roberson (5-9, 160 sophomore) and Donnie Glover are working out at fullback while Rick Hines (5-8, 150 junior) and Jeffery Morning (5-10, 180 freshman) are competing at tailback.
"I was just tickled to death about that," Respass said.
Roanoke opens its 1982 season Friday night when it entertains nonconference foe North Pitt. The Redskins then travel to Ayden-Grifton before opening their conference season at Washington.

Andrews was one of a three college prospects Respass was hoping would serve as the Redskins' nucleus. The other two — defensive tackle/offensive guard Donnie Wallace and linebacker/offensive tackle Bernie Williford — now must shoulder more of the load.
"As a coach this doesn't sound professional, but I told a few coaches we'd play three-on-three with anybody and beat them every time," Respass said. "But football is an 11-man game."
"I don't want to take anything away from the rest of our kids, but losing Calvin really hurt," he said. "You just don't replace someone like that in high school that often."

Respass admitted that Wallace will be called on to help fill the gap left by Andrews' loss. Wallace, 6-3, 245-pounder, has more than enough talent to do just that.
Wallace, who runs the 40-yard dash in 4.75, is being courted by colleges from across the nation, including Notre Dame, UCLA and Nebraska plus the Atlantic Coast Conference teams and East Carolina.
Wallace was named to 1982

Garrett Baker (6-1, 175 junior) will start at tight end while Bud Davis (5-9, 150 senior) will be at split end and Jeffery Andrews (5-11, 165 senior) at flanker in the Redskins' pro-offense.
Both Davis and Andrews are still fighting for the two outside positions.

In the secondary, Daniels, Morning and Higgs are battling at cornerback and Davis and Hines at safety.
Williford will do the punting and points after while Hines will handle the kickoffs.
Asked to give an overall evaluation of his team, Respass replied: "We don't have as much talent as we did last year but we're probably quicker. Overall, I'm pleased with our speed."
That speed was evident last Friday night in a scrimmage against D.H. Conley when Morning ripped off a 75-yard touchdown run. In that same scrimmage, the Redskins did not have a penalty on offense.
"I was just tickled to death about that," Respass said.
Roanoke opens its 1982 season Friday night when it entertains nonconference foe North Pitt. The Redskins then travel to Ayden-Grifton before opening their conference season at Washington.
"It's going to be eight tough weeks (vs. conference foes). And we've got two tough nonconference games," Respass said. "This is a power league. There's not much passing, but I think it's going to be a well-balanced league."

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

It seems invidious to complain that your hand is too good. But that was the trouble with the North-South holding on this rubber bridge hand we kibitzed.

Despite his balanced hand, North correctly raised to four spades because his hand, with its wealth of prime controls, was suit oriented. Once his partner made a slam try, North felt that those controls justified a jump to slam.

West led the top of his broken diamond sequence. When dummy came down, it was obvious that declarer would have to avoid two club losers to make his slam. Tens and nines are given no value to the point count. However, their presence can enormously increase the trick-taking possibilities of a holding. Here, however, the spots in clubs were nothing but a problem.

For instance, let's exchange dummy's nine of clubs for any spot-card held by the opponents. Now there is only one play for twelve tricks. Declarer simply has to lead clubs twice from his hand towards dummy, playing an honor from the table each time unless the ace appears from West. He makes his slam if West holds the ace, but goes down if that card is with East.

On the actual holding, let's assume that declarer wins the ace of diamonds, draws trumps in three rounds ending in his hand and leads a club to dummy's queen. If East wins the ace, declarer must make his slam. He will return to his hand and finesse dummy's nine of clubs, assuming West follows with a low club.

Therefore, East should smoothly allow the queen of clubs to win. Strangely enough, that doubles declarer's problems. He can return to his hand and lead another club, but when West plays low, declarer is faced with a guess — he loses his slam if he rises with the king, but gets home if he finesesses the nine. With nothing to guide him, declarer is even money to go wrong.

Engaging Comedy From Britain

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Sledgehammer satire in the Monty Python-Benny Hill mold has been popular in this country since the early '70s, but American TV viewers haven't really found much to laugh at in the more traditional, dry-as-dust form of English humor.

True, a controversial British Broadcasting Corp. sitcom called "Till Death Do Us Part" was Americanized for CBS in 1971 as "All In The Family" and, after a rocky start, became one of the network's most popular and enduring comedy series.

"Fawlty Towers" encouraged a cult-like following in a public-TV run that began toward the end of the decade, but that series — starring Python-trooper John Cleese — summoned slapstick as often as dialogue for laughs.

It may be that certain spoken humor simply does not translate well — something is lost in the Atlantic crossing.

"Open All Hours," a BBC series imported for viewers in this country by the Entertainment Channel cable network, may be an exception to the rule.

Ronnie Barker, a comic actor well-known to British audiences, is the star of the half-hour show set in England's "worst-run general store."

Barker's character, Arkwright, is a tight-fisted shopkeeper who seems bent on keeping his nephew, Granville, from finding, and enjoying, female companionship. Arkwright hasn't left the store — and the adjoining home the two men share — since 1957, and that was to have his appendix removed.

But when the local, and recently divorced, milkwoman hints at a rendezvous with Granville, the younger man proposes a weekend holiday for his uncle. He calls on Nurse Gladys, Arkwright's sometime sweetheart, for help, and she gets the reluctant traveler to agree to a night in a fancy hotel — separate rooms.

"In the space of an hour," the excited Granville wonders aloud, "how can I make this place fit for a milkwoman?"

But that's not his immediate problem. Arkwright can't find his moneybelt. "How will I know it when I see it?" Granville, anxious to find the hideous device, asks his uncle. "It's got a little nick in it, where the damn fool surgeon cut it with his scalpel," the shopkeeper replies.

Arkwright finally locates the belt and straps it on under his blue suit.

A few minutes later, he limps through the living room. "It's a bit nippy in here," he says. "I don't feel a chill," Granville responds. "No, I mean the moneybelt," the rotund Arkwright says. "It's the coins that make your eyes water."

Alas, he and Nurse Gladys leave for the weekend. They stop at a hotel around the block.

"She's coming," Granville tells himself in disbelief. "I've made a breakthrough into adult pastimes. Farewell, model aircraft."

"Open All Hours" is consistently lighthearted and downright funny at times. Barker, whose credits include "The Two Ronnies," which enjoyed a brief run in this country, would be funny in any idiom. And David Jason, who plays Granville, is an engaging comic actor.

Yorkshire-born Roy Clarke, who created "Last of the Summer Wine" another comedy series now being shown on The Entertainment Channel, wrote "Open All Hours" with a keen sensitivity for the eccentric personality.

Regional Newscast For Carolinas Is Scheduled

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A news network will broadcast hourly state summaries to television viewers in North Carolina and South Carolina beginning in about six months, officials announced Monday.

Called Carolina Satellite News, the news network will appear on cable systems carrying the Satellite News Channel, said Jim Goodman, president and chief executive officer of Capitol Broadcasting Co. Inc. of Raleigh. The hourly newscasts will be produced by WRAL-TV and Capitol Broadcasting, he said.

The Satellite News Channel, formed by Group W Broadcasting and ABC to provide a fast-paced summary of national and international news, is designed to give viewers a complete summary of major stories every 18 minutes.

Local cable operators automatically switch from the channel to another satellite signal to receive regional news programs.

Capitol Satellite and Communications Systems is constructing a satellite transmission complex near Raleigh that will beam the regional newscasts to the Westar 5 satellite.

Businesses in North Carolina and South Carolina will have the opportunity to place advertising in the newscasts. Capitol Broadcasting Co. owns and operates WRAL-TV and WRAL-FM in Raleigh, WHTN and WKEE-FM in Huntington, W.Va., WMAC and KISS-FM in San Antonio, Texas, WRNL and WRXL-FM in Richmond, Va., and WDRV and WLTV-FM in Statesville, N.C.

The company also owns Capitol Satellite and Communications Systems Inc., Seeburg Music Library, Seeburg Sound Systems, Music Theatre Network, TN Spot Sales, North Carolina News Network, Capitol Sports Network and Capitol Publications, all of Raleigh.

Dolly Again Drops Tour

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dolly Parton has canceled all concerts and public appearances indefinitely because of recurring gynecological problems, her spokeswoman says.

The singer and actress left Indianapolis for New York on Monday to be examined by her doctors, said the spokeswoman, Beverly Magid.

Miss Parton has undergone minor surgery several times in an effort to cure the problem and forestall the major surgery which several of her doctors have recommended, Ms. Magid said. Her last surgery was in March. The specific nature of the ailment has not been disclosed.

The rigors of performing on the road caused Miss Parton to hemorrhage severely before a weekend performance in Indianapolis, Ms. Magid said.

"When the hemorrhaging continued, her doctor insisted upon the cancellation of all upcoming dates," and she agreed to surgery if the doctors so recommend, she said.

Miss Parton, star of the current film musical "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," canceled concerts for the rest of this month in Kansas City, Mo., Tulsa, Okla., St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit.

Disorderly Fans At The Who's Concert

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Hundreds of rock music fans hoping to attend "The Who" concert jammed a ticket sales area, causing a disturbance in which four people were arrested, police said.

Two youths were cited for alleged disorderly conduct, and two for alleged intoxication, police said Monday. All four were released.

The Sept. 28 concert by "The Who" is part of what is being billed as the last American tour by the British group.

Police were called to the Civic Arena Monday morning, shortly after the box office opened, to calm fans who were packed into the area near the ticket windows. Some people fainted, and others climbed over the rafters to get out of the ticket area, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette reported.

The crowd was quieted within an hour, said arena manager Paul Martha. "We could have been more restrictive at the ticket windows, with ropes and barriers," Martha said. "But many of these kids would have disregarded that anyway."

Space Deadline Set

Elizabeth Copeland, coordinator of the Pitt County Chronicles Book Committee, announces that there is still time to purchase a page for those interested in having a pictorial spread or space in the honorary section.

Sheets in these sections sell for $150 each and may include up to ten photographs. The deadline for this inclusion is Friday, September 3 and no requests will be accepted after that date.

Ms. Copeland further reports that all family stories on galley sheets have been reviewed, and that articles on the history of Pitt County are in the hands of the publisher. Galley sheets on the history section will be received early in September.

The office of the publication continues to be located in the Pitt County Office Building (old hospital) at 1717 West Fifth Street, Greenville. The telephone number is 752-2934, extension 303.

Secretarial Exam Courses Sponsored

The Greenville chapter of Professional Secretaries International, in conjunction with Pitt Community College, will sponsor courses to prepare for taking the certified professional secretary examination next spring.

Tom Joyner, evening director at PCC, will meet with those interested in attending the classes on Thursday, August 26, at 7:30 p.m. in room 123 of the Humber Building. All of these classes are credit courses at PCC and will meet one or two nights per week, depending on the course selected by the individual.

The CPS rating is considered to be the capstone of the secretarial profession. It is awarded to secretaries who have passed all six parts of the two-day examination which includes sections on business law, accounting, behavioral science in business, economics and management, communications applications, and office administration and technology. It is administered annually at East Carolina University on the first Friday and Saturday in May. Since the first CPS exam was administered in 1951, a total of 16,192 secretaries have been certified. North Carolina has 364 secretaries with the CPS rating and three of these are in Greenville. While the exam is based on actual secretarial duties and responsibilities, a certain amount of formal review and study is necessary for adequate preparation.

For further information, contact Doris Hunt, CPS at 757-6321 (office) or 758-0679 (home).

Four Resign Police Jobs

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) —

Four of 11 Greensboro police officers who were suspended earlier this month for alleged drug use have resigned.

Police Chief Ed Swing said officer Phillis W. Hood, 30, officer Sherwood McMillan, 34, Sgt. Edward V. Peterson, 31, and Squad Leader Ronald M. Walker, 33, resigned at 5 p.m. Monday.

Swing had given the 11 policemen until that time to decide how they were going to respond to the drug use charges. Hood worked in the crime prevention educational services section. McMillan was a public information officer in the staff duty office. Peterson was a detective in charge of auto theft investigations. Walker was assigned to the field operations bureau, which handles day-to-day patrol duties.

Five of the officers have denied the charges, opting to appear before a review board. Two others decided to waive their right to a departmental hearing and face disciplinary action from Swing.

Sgt. Norman F. Hill and officer R.L. Huckabee decided to waive departmental hearings and face disciplinary action before Swing.
