MARINES IN BEIRUT — A group of U.S. marines fall in line in a street near the port of Beirut Wednesday shortly after their arrival as part of the multinational force overseeing the PLO departure. Around 800 of the marines have taken over the port from the French who will move their positions on the Green Line. (AP Laserphoto)

U.S. Marines Take Up Beirut Positions

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — U.S. Marines armed with automatic weapons landed in Beirut today, manning checkpoints with French and Lebanese soldiers in the port of the Lebanese capital.

Another 500 Palestinian guerrillas prepared to leave by ship.

But Israel announced the overland evacuation of guerrillas to Syria had been delayed, reportedly because the Palestinians were afraid of attacks by Christian militiamen loyal to Bashir Gemayel, Lebanon's president-elect. He supported Israel's 10-week siege to rout the guerrillas from his country.

Israeli television said a representative of U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib was trying to arrange for the guerrillas to go to Syria by ship. Israel army radio reported later that two Greek vessels were heading toward Beirut to take 500-700 guerrillas to Syria and the same number to Sudan.

The Syrian military, however, announced in Damascus it would provide trucks to begin an evacuation to Syria on Thursday of about 7,000 Palestinian guerrillas under Syrian command and 1,500 Syrian troops.

The Palestine Liberation Organization convoy rolled in at about 12:30 p.m., seven hours after the 800 men in the 32nd Marine Amphibious Unit came ashore in five U.S. 6th Fleet ships. Armed with M-16 rifles, M-60 machine guns, mortars and Dragon anti-tank missiles, the Marines landed about 700 yards from the so-called Green Line dividing Moslem west Beirut and the Christian sector on the east.

The PLO convoy arrived amid shouting of revolutionary slogans and loud bursts of gunfire that have marked the guerrillas' departure since the evacuation began Saturday to disperse them among Arab nations.

The guerrillas, reportedly bound for North Yemen on a Cypriot vessel, raised their fingers in victory salutes to the Marine peacekeepers, and at least one leatherneck returned the gesture. Others took snapshots.

Earlier Habib, architect and negotiator of the Palestinian withdrawal from the Israeli-ruled Lebanese capital, was on the dock at dawn, wearing the Marine Corps emblem on his chest pocket, to greet the Marines and their commander, Col. James Mead, 47, of Boston.

Mead told reporters they were not "anticipating any use of weapons because we are here as peacekeepers." But "obviously we'll use whatever we have in the unlikely event that we must defend ourselves," he said.

In a brief ceremony, the Marines relieved 350 paratroopers of the French Foreign Legion, vanguard of the multinational force who had been guarding the port and supervising the daily embarkation of the guerrillas since it began Saturday.

The French immediately pulled out about 200 of their men and moved to the city center. The legionnaires, who will be joined by about 500 more paratroopers from the 3rd Marine Infantry Regiment, based in Carcassonne, France, then took up stations along the Green Line to the north and south of the National Museum, one of three main crossing points between west and east Beirut.

Capt. Pierre Gros led a reconnaissance patrol through a rows of shelled-out buildings along the Green Line and told a lieutenant consulting a military map: "These buildings are all empty now. But the people will probably come flocking back now that we are here."

U.S. officials said the Marines would be confined to the port area until the evacuation of the guerrillas ends in about two weeks. Asked how long they would stay in Lebanon, Mead said: "I have no idea. We were told it is going to be about 30 days or less, but of course we are here to obey orders."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes told reporters in Los Angeles the Marines could stay 60 days under the War Powers Act, but the Reagan administration expected to withdraw them "in 30 days or less."

A U.S. military spokesman, Navy Capt. James Mathews, said the troops had been "thoroughly briefed" on the situation in Lebanon and "know their job is to ensure safe evacuation of the PLO, guard the port and maintain stability in the area."

The 2,100-man peacekeeping force is to be made up of the 800 Marines, 800 French and 500 Italian troops. The first 250 Italian infantrymen were due later today. They will take control Thursday of the Galerie Semaan crossing in the Green Line and the international airport on the southern outskirts of the city.

By Israeli and French count, nearly 2,700 PLO guerrillas left Beirut by ship for Jordan, Iraq, Tunisia and South Yemen in the first four days since the evacuation began Saturday, and 2,000 were to be moved to Syria today by bus convoy along the Damascus-Beirut highway across central Lebanon.

But early today the Israeli command announced that "the overland evacuation... will not take place."

Heavy shelling was reported along the highway Tuesday, and PLO spokesmen in Beirut said the danger of attacks on guerrilla convoys by Israeli forces or Israeli-backed Christian militia prompted the PLO to ask that the overland stage of the evacuation be canceled.

Israeli television said Morris Draper, a deputy assistant secretary of state working for Habib, was trying to arrange sea transport for the guerrillas, presumably to the Syrian port of Latakia, 100 miles north of Beirut.

The Israeli command said shelling along a six-mile stretch of the highway was between Syrian troops and the Christian militiamen whose commander in chief, Gemayel, was elected president of Lebanon on Monday. But the Christian radio claimed Syrian and Israeli troops were exchanging fire about 12 miles east of Beirut.

But Syrian and PLO sources in Damascus indicated the overland withdrawal would take place according to Habib's original plan, which they claimed called for it to begin Thursday with the first group of guerrillas scheduled to cross the Lebanese-Syrian border about noon.

From the frontier, the convoys carrying the PLO fighters would go to camps at Shebel al Asfar, 62 miles northeast of the capital, and near Souweida, 40 miles west of Damascus.

The sources denied their forces were involved in clashes or artillery exchanges against Israelis or Christian rightists, and correspondents who traveled through the area at the time said they did not see any fighting or hear artillery duels in the distance.

Associated Press photographer William Foley, who drove from east Beirut to Damascus, described "complete calm" along the main highway connecting the two capitals.

Syria Urges Avoid Peace

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) —

A high-ranking Syrian military official warned Lebanon's right-wing Christian President-elect Bashir Gemayel today not to sign a peace treaty with Israel.

"In case Gemayel signs a security or peace pact with Israel, Syria will consider itself in a state of war with him," said the official in an interview. He refused to be identified by name.

He did not make it clear whether he meant Syria would be at war with Gemayel or with Lebanon, which Israeli forces invaded June 6 to rout the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Gemayel, Lebanon's most powerful right-wing Lebanese Christian leader, was elected Monday by Parliament as the nation's next president. He supported the Israeli invaders but says he wants all foreign armies out of Lebanon, including Syria's 30,000-man force deployed after the 1975-76 Moslem-Christian civil war.

The Syrian official said Syrian troops "will be withdrawn from Lebanon only after the last Israeli soldier" has left Lebanon.

Gemayel, 34, led the rightist Christian militias against an alliance of Palestinian, leftist Moslems and Syrians during and after the civil war.

Israeli media have reported that Gemayel is prepared to sign a peace treaty with Israel similar to that which the Jewish state signed with Egypt as a result of the 1978 Camp David peace agreement.

Under a PLO evacuation agreement arranged last week by U.S. special envoy Philip C. Habib, the bulk of guerrillas in Lebanon will be moved to Syria.

A convoy was supposed to leave today on the Beirut-Damascus Highway, but the operation was delayed, reportedly because the guerrillas feared attacks by right-wing Christian militiamen loyal to Gemayel.

The Syrian military, however, announced in Damascus it would provide trucks to begin an evacuation to Syria on Thursday of about 7,000 Palestinian guerrillas under Syrian command and 1,500 Syrian troops.

Syrian forces suffered heavy losses to the Israelis in the early days of the June 6 invasion, and withdrew most of their forces to the eastern Bekaa Valley. Israel has insisted that the Syrians in the Bekaa also be withdrawn.

Guilty Plea To Charges By New York Congressman

REP. FRED RICHMOND

By JUDIE GLAVE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Fred Richmond, D-N.Y., pleaded guilty today to three federal charges, including income tax evasion and possession of marijuana. He resigned his seat and agreed not to seek re-election.

The four-term Brooklyn congressman entered his pleas before Judge Charles P. Sifton in the U.S. District Court in Brooklyn.

The three-count federal information to which Richmond pleaded alleged that he evaded $50,000 in income taxes on his 1981 return; that he had actual possession of marijuana during 1980 and 1981; and that he illegally supplemented the salary of a civilian employee by arranging to have college tuition paid for the daughter of an employee of the Navy Department.

Sifton set Nov. 12 for sentencing. Richmond faces a maximum penalty of seven years in prison and $20,000 in fines.

The tax charge carries a maximum possible sentence of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, while each of the other two charges carries a possible penalty of one year and $5,000.

U.S. Attorney Edward R. Korman, in his final day as the chief federal prosecutor for the Eastern District of New York, said that in return for Richmond's plea the government agreed not to press any further charges against him.

But Korman added that facts pertaining to a wide-ranging investigation of Richmond would be presented to the judge before sentencing.

Richmond, standing with hands crossed in front of him, answered softly in the affirmative when Sifton asked whether he was aware that there was wrongdoing involved in each of the three charges.

The congressman's lawyer said, however, with respect to the income-tax charge, "We are not necessarily in agreement with the figure set forth in the document."

For more than four years Richmond has been the subject of controversy and scandal, beginning in 1978 when he propositioned two men on different occasions for sex.

Later, he was accused of drawing an illegal

$100,000-a-year private salary in the guise of a pension from Walco National Corp., the timber and tool company he founded.

He argued that his receipt of the money was legal but in December 1979 a federal judge in St. Louis ruled that he had "feigned" retirement and thereby skirted congressional rules against receiving outside income of more than 15 percent of his federal salary, or about $9,600.

The judge declared that Richmond still controlled and dominated Walco, and that in addition to a 10-year, $1-million "pension," Richmond got "secret and substantial subsidies" from the company.

Walco is a holding company. Its branches make a variety of steel products, motors and machinery, and caskets and other funeral supplies.

With many top Democrats rallying behind him in the 1978 elections, Richmond rode out the sex scandal, in which he admitted offering a 16-year-old boy and an undercover police officer money for sex.

A morals charge was dropped in court in April 1978 when Richmond, as a first offender, opted to undergo "professional treatment."

Richmond was re-elected overwhelmingly in the fall.

I want to know why the police don't do a better job of enforcing the Handicapped Only parking around town. I see it abused a lot, often by very able-bodied-looking young people.

Crime Prevention Officer Doug Jackson said that, the way North Carolina law now reads, handicapped parking can only be enforced when there is an approved above-ground sign (D9-6) indicating it. Symbols painted on the pavement do not constitute proper signing.

City Public Works Department Director Mayo Allen said the approved D9-6 signs can be purchased by parking lot owners from the Public Works Department for $15 each, not including a post.

Jackson reminded that only the person who displays an official handicapped license plate or a placard on the dashboard of the car is eligible for handicapped parking. Those who feel they need it and don't have the proper credentials should contact Mrs. Anna Garris in the N.C. License Agency at Home and Auto Supply here about the procedure to use in order to qualify.

Carter Blames Administration For 'Bad Times'

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Former President Jimmy Carter says the Reagan administration's policies have brought about record high unemployment and record high budget deficits.

Speaking in Fayetteville Tuesday to campaign for Rep. Charles Rose, Carter also criticized North Carolina Republican Sens. Jesse Helms and John East for their initial vote to double the federal taxes on cigarettes.

Carter, appearing with Rose and Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt before about 500 people, said Reagan had abandoned fiscal conservatism and concerns about more jobs, protecting the environment and providing educational opportunities.

"Radicalism has taken over," he said. "There has been a violent change in economic policy, not only from what I left," but also from that of Democratic and Republican presidents dating back to Harry Truman, Carter told the group that paid $150 per couple to attend the fund-raiser on behalf of Rose's re-election campaign.

Carter, whose sister, Ruth Carter Stapleton, lives in Fayetteville, also criticized Reagan for winning "the highest tax cuts in history, primarily for the wealthy Americans, followed by the highest tax increase."

He cited record high unemployment and record high deficits, saying "the concern about debt has been abandoned."

Without mentioning them by name, Carter said Helms and East cast what he said were the deciding votes in favor of an increase in the cigarette tax. Helms and East voted against the increase in the final vote.

Hunt said the economy of the state and nation would be far better off if Carter were still in office.

"Because the Reagan administration has saddled this country with an enormous deficit, the cigarette tax increase was enacted," Hunt said. "How much easier our job would have been these past months had Jimmy Carter still been president. During his term of office, everybody knew that tobacco had a friend in the White House."

Both Hunt and Rose, in a news conference before the dinner, blamed the Reagan administration for enactment of the bill doubling to 16 cents per pack the federal tax on cigarettes.

Hunt said he received figures from the state budget office

Tuesday estimating that 1,800 jobs would be lost in North Carolina and that the state would lose $10 million in expected tax revenues as a result of the higher cigarette tax.

"The more I see of our current president, the more I miss Jimmy Carter, and the more I wish Jimmy Carter was still in the White House," Rose said.

Consider Styles As Economic Barometer

By STEVE SZKOTAK
PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — Next to gazing at the Big Board on Wall Street, a peek in your closet may be the most accurate barometer of the nation's economy and philosophy.

"The most personal, intimate item is your clothing. Therefore, it reflects the whole economy and the mood of the country," says Lorraine Howes, chairwoman of the apparel design department of the Rhode Island School of Design.

Clothing designs from major fashion houses are practical but feminine — and versatile, conservative and timeless in the classic sense, she said.

"When we are conservative, personally and politically, we always have more conservative fashions," Mrs. Howes said. "We don't have Ronald Reagan simply because he's conservative; it's because we are more conservative as a nation."

"People aren't buying trends. They're buying the most practical clothes that they can wear again and again. We're wearing what I would call real clothes."

Mrs. Howes, a fashion critic and former owner of a Boston fashion house, said designers who are doing well during the recession are those who realize "the whole country is suffering economically and the goose isn't laying the golden eggs. We just don't go out and spend money wildly."

The school's recent annual display of fashions designed and made by apparel students featured fewer of the outrageous, new wave designs of past years. It focused instead on more sportswear and economical mix-and-match offerings.

Versatile linen, classic stripes and bold primary colors were the norm. Among the offbeat designs were a Q-Tip mini-dress and a jacket made from anti-static cloths for clothes dryer use.

First lady Nancy Reagan is "very typical of the times," Mrs. Howes said.

"Well, she's perfect, because the average national age is going up ... and this beautiful, older woman — easily described as a lady in the old-fashioned sense of the word — is the epitome of what really is admirable in an older woman."

"She shouldn't be criticized (for accepting designer clothing) because her clothing is forever," Mrs. Howes said.

As for "in" fashions, "American design has come into its own. There's a special American look ... mix and match jackets, shirts and pants. Those are perfect for now. And that's why the houses that sell those are doing so well."

"Clothing, like any art form, expresses its time."

"The more outrageous, the less conservative clothing is not of this time. Though I suppose there are still a few punks out there," she said.

Mrs. Howes said the nation's current mood could pay dividends for American fashion houses, which traditionally have followed the lead of European designers.

"It's sobering, and I think it's wonderful. I think the industry will improve from it all," she said.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. William Hillgartner and Dr. Charles Duffy were first place winners in the North-South duplicate bridge game played Saturday at Planters Bank. Their percentage was .664.

Others placing were: Mrs. William Parvin and Mrs. Clifton Toler, second; Mrs. George Martin and John Sullivan, third; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Lee Johnson and Lee Hastings, first with .583 percent; Mrs. Robert Barnhill and Dottie Hadden, second; Mrs. John Tayloe and George Martin, third; Chris Langley and Ed Yauck, fourth.

Wednesday afternoon North-South winners were: Mrs. Raymond Conner and Gary Bryant; Dot McKemie and Ray Gunderson, second; Mrs. Barry Powers and Lee Hastings, third; Mrs. M.H. Bynum and Mrs. Eli Bloom, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Robert Bright and Mrs. Debbie Carson, first with .557 percent; tied for second were Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. William McConnell with Chris Langley and Ed Yauck; Mrs. Robert Barnhill and Mrs. E.J. Poindexter, fourth.

Wednesday morning winners were: Mrs. Clara Shackell and Mrs. Kay Gaquere, first with .660 percent; Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. Tom Foster, second; Mrs. Raymond Lyder and Mrs. John McConney, third; Mrs. Robert Bright and Mrs. Debbie Carson, fourth.

What's Out There Keeps Woman Inside

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: If I weren't a Christian with three young children to raise, I would have ended my life. I am in my 30s, divorced and on welfare because I am unable to leave my house to go to work. I am normal in every other respect, but I panic when I get more than a block away from home. I haven't been to a movie or out for dinner for over two years. I'm attractive, but I gave up dating two years ago because it was hard to explain to a man that I was too terrified to leave my house.

I have been to psychiatrists and psychologists, and they tell me I have "agoraphobia," which means, "fear of open spaces." I joined a support group, but all I got from it was the comfort of knowing there are a lot of other people with the same problem.

My total income from welfare is $770 a month, and it's a miracle we even make it through the month. I want more than anything in the world to get well so I can get a job and take care of my children. Is there any hope for me?

DESPERATE IN L.A.

DEAR DESPERATE: Yes. Write to the New Beginning Foundation. It's a non-profit, charitable corporation formed to help agoraphobics. It offers a step-by-step program designed to rehabilitate people who suffer anxiety attacks when they leave the security of their homes. There are no drugs, medication or deep analysis involved. It's a self-help program that begins by playing cassettes at home.

I have investigated this organization and found it to be legitimate, sincere and effective. Many who have been treated by this method have reported excellent results.

Write to New Beginning Foundation, 1551 North Western Ave., Suite 229, Los Angeles, Calif. 90027. Please enclose a long, stamped self-addressed envelope. And please write to me in six months and give me a progress report. I care.

DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading your new book and I loved it.

I forced myself to read the chapter titled, "Smokey the Bore," but it's the best thing that ever happened to me. I haven't given up smoking yet, but you'll be credited when I do. I've cut down on the number of cigarettes, and by reading that chapter every night I think I can finally quit.

Oh, about the chapter on divorce, I agree. The kids should try to see their parents' side of it. Their mom and pop have lived most of their lives for their kids. Now it's time they (the parents) started living for themselves. Everybody will be happier. So, kids with divorced parents, take this advice from a 16-year-old kid who's been there. Give mom and dad a break.

CORY BRINDLE

DEAR CORY: Your letter made my day. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: About sex: What you do in private can affect your whole personality. If you do something perverted with another consenting adult, it can twist your character, damage your personality, warp your morals and scar your soul. What you do in private can hurt you and everyone around you.

Please, get off the "anything goes" routine.
BILL IN PORT ORCHARD, WASH.

DEAR BILL: If my "anything goes" disturbs you, tell me what you think does "go." In the meantime, I fail to see how anything done privately by two consenting adults can twist, damage, warp or scar them. Or hurt anyone around them.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Cash Customer in Canada," who had to pay his wife for sex, that he's behind the game. I used to charge my husband $2 every time, and when he didn't have the money, I'd let him charge it, but it would cost him 50 cents extra for carrying charges.

A few years later, I told this to an old friend, and she said, "That's nothing new. I used to charge my husband $3, and when I had to pay him he said, 'That will be $5. I'm a union man.'"

L.P.M., ANCHORAGE, ALASKA

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Decorative Arts Program Announced

ECU News Bureau
WINDSOR — Federal era textiles and gardens and recent archaeological findings at historic sites will be the focus of the third annual Historic Hope symposium "A Decorative Arts Affair" set for Oct. 13.

The program, coordinated by the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education, will be held at Hope Plantation, the restored circa 1800 home of David Stone, one of North Carolina's early governors. Three experts will present illustrated lectures and participants will be guided on tours of Hope house and other early buildings in the area.

Speakers and their topics are: "A Peek Through the Window: Textiles Used in 18th Century Homes," Becky Sudsbury, Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts in Winston-Salem; "North Carolina's 18th Century Garden Heritage," John Flowers, N.C. Division of Archives; and "The Missing Element in Formal History Revealed by Archaeology," Dr. David Phelps, East Carolina University.

The symposium is designed for professional and amateur historians, collectors, preservationists and others with an interest in the decorative arts and lifestyles of the colonial and federal south.

Sponsors of the symposium are the Historic Hope Foundation, Inc. and the ECU Division of Continuing Education. Since space is limited, early registration is advised. Participants will be guests at a luncheon and a late afternoon buffet.

Information and registration materials are available from "A Decorative Arts Affair," Division of Continuing Education, ECU, Greenville.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I love gray.

It's a hangover from my college days when I did a month's laundry in one load. (Sometimes when I sat on my bed to dress, I blended so well I had to smile so people would know I was there.)

About six years ago, I picked up a magazine that had a fashion horoscope in it. Now I don't usually put too much stock in natal signs because everyone else gets the neat ones. Scorpios always get the "Flutter kicks in your pool will change your life" and the Aquarius people are told, "Shop now for pearls that will enhance your naturally sensuous looks." Mine said: "Extra sleep is beneficial. Prop up your feet whenever you can. Invest in something gray. You will be years ahead of your time."

If I had known how many years ahead of my time I would be, I'd never have invested $154 in a gray wool suit quite that early.

So forget that I couldn't find a pair of shoes to match it or a purse or hose or scarf. Just forget that wherever I wore it, someone said, "That's gray, isn't it? I wish it would come back."

The point is, that gray suit hung in my closet for six solid years and generated all the excitement of a pregnant moth in a fur storage.

Every year when I had my hair cut, I'd thumb through the high-fashion magazines to see if this was the year of MY suit. Oh, occasionally I saw gray coveralls being worn by an Orkin Man spraying bugs on television or a gray fur coat for $9,000, but a gray fashion glut never happened.

Until this year. I walked through a shopping center the other day and every window was splashed with gray. Gray suits, gray shoes, gray accessories, gray coats. Gray dresses. Gray slacks. Gray blouses.

Every fashion horoscope is touting gray as the color whose time has come. Little children are wearing it with white starched collars. Airline attendants are switching to gray. Cars, furniture and accessories are gray.

This fall, you will not be able to walk down the street without a gray person crossing your path. Gray dogs will become chic. Gray hair will be in. Gray TV and gray skies will prevail.

Trust me. This is gray's year. You want to know how I know? Four weeks ago, I gave my gray suit to the Salvation Army.

Deciding What Texas Children Should Read

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Norma Gabler, an east Texas housewife, says a civics book that refers to future presidents as "he or she" is "ridiculous" because there has never been a woman president.

The National Organization for Women criticizes the book because it contained a picture of a male in the Oval Office. "A woman may be there sooner than we think," NOW complained.

Both Mrs. Gabler and NOW had their say at the state's recent schoolbook adoption hearings, where an official decision can make or break a book in the nation's second-largest textbook market.

At this year's hearings, dozens of publishers' representatives were present to rebut the protesters, but they stuck with their written statements to avoid open argument.

Texas schools buy about 8 percent of the textbooks sold in the country, so what the State Textbook Committee decides can affect publishers' national marketing plans.

This year publishers found an ally in People for the American Way, a liberal group founded by television producer Norman Lear. The organization, which is based in Washington, opened a Texas office to fight the textbook protesters and was allowed to speak at the hearings this year.

"A textbook that is rejected by Texas is almost guaranteed to be an economic failure nationally and results in either pre-censorship or removal of the book entirely," said Michael Hudson, Way's state coordinator.

A committee of 15 teachers and school administrators hears the complaints and the publishers' defenses before drafting a proposed list of books that is given to the state Commissioner of Education.

When the books are approved by the commissioner, they become part of Texas public schools' shopping list. A book approved for purchase can stay on the list up to eight years before becoming outdated, and this year's list is expected to account for about $37 million in purchases.

Mrs. Gabler and her 67-year-old husband Mel have a national following for their full-time task of protesting textbooks, although their success is hard to measure because the committee does not reveal why books are chosen or rejected. The Gablers employ five researchers to inspect the hundreds of books stacked in their home in Longview in east Texas.

The Gablers' group and NOW account for the bulk of the protests, although the Texas Daughters of the American Revolution regularly appears to protest any taint of socialism which it perceives in textbooks.

At this year's hearings which began Aug. 9 and ended Aug. 13, the Texas State Nutrition Council complained about health books that touted vitamins and failed to point out the good things about preservatives. A representative of the Governor's War on Drugs complained the health books treated the illegality and dangers of drugs too lightly.

For 21 years, the Gablers have fought textbooks that do not uphold "traditional family values." In 1961, they formed a non-profit, tax-exempt corporation called Education Research Analysts. It is financed through donations, money earned from speaking engagements and Gabler's pension.

They do not like books that "cater to women's lib" by showing men and women in non-traditional roles. They do not like civics books that treat federal government regulation too favorably.

NOW attacks many of the same books, but for different reasons.

The organization counts pictures in books and complains if there are more men than women. Books that show women in less important or subservient positions to men should not be given to Texas schoolchildren, it has argued over the years.

This year, for the first time in 10 years, the group did not appear at the hearings but only submitted written testimony. Of the four Texas chapters that were scheduled to speak to the committee, two arrived too late to testify and two others called to say they just couldn't make it.

"I don't think any one person or any one group has that big an influence," said Donna York, a member of NOW's Austin chapter.

Safe Brown Bag Lunches
Children are back in school now and some of them carry their lunch from home. Have you ever wondered about the sack lunches you send off in the morning with your family? Will they be safe to eat by the time lunch time arrives? Only two-four hours at room temperature can make food unsafe! You can prevent the "lunch bug" from striking by following a few Do's and Don'ts.

Do...
*Put the lunch in a refrigerator if one is available. With refrigeration you will not limit the food items you pack in a lunch.

*Be particularly careful when preparing the food. You might put bacteria in the food by careless food preparation. Always have clean hands, utensils and work area. Food can be cross contaminated if you don't wash hands, utensils and cutting surfaces after they've been used with raw meats, fish and poultry. Sanitize your cutting board by scrubbing with chlorine containing cleanser or a solution of two tablespoons chlorine in a gallon of water.

*Keep hot foods hot in thermos containers.

*Keep cold food cold by putting in the lunch a frozen drink, reusable ice pack or ice frozen in a plastic container.

*Select foods with care. Those that will stay safe without refrigeration: peanut butter and jam or jelly; nuts; hard cheese; crackers; canned foods (in the can); fresh fruits and vegetables; dried foods; bread; cookies; cakes, fruit pies; hard cooked eggs in the shell; marinated vegetable salads.

*It's best to take only non-perishable sandwiches if no refrigeration is available. But if you must make sandwiches with meat, poultry, fish, eggs or dairy foods be extremely careful! *Freeze a sandwich or use frozen bread to keep it cold longer.

*Add acid ingredients to prevent bacteria from growing. Catsup, pickles, relishes, olives, mustard, vinegar, lemon juice, mayonnaise and salad dressing are all acid. Yes, mayonnaise and salad dressing are very acid and may be left at room temperature. Keep the sandwich as cold as possible by using the methodist listed above.

*Pack the lunch in a metal lunch box instead of a bag. It keeps the lunch insulated better. Or better yet, get an insulated lunch box. Some have a special plastic container that may be filled with water and frozen.

*Don't...
*Leave the lunch in a hot-spot; the sun, on a radiator, or next to the heating duct.

*Fall into the habit of Truth Already Spread

U.S. efforts to propagandize the world appear to be getting the best of this nation. We've bombarded the rest of the world for years, with programs such as Radio Free Europe and even Voice of American broadcasts from the Greenville area, and now we've got Cuba in our sights.

The House recently voted 250-134 in favor of a program to set up a government radio station in the Florida keys to beam "uncensored information" to Fidel Castro's island nation. Supporter Toby Roth, a Republican representative from Wisconsin, says Castro must "recognize that we are going to be calling him to account for his actions... all dictatorships fear uncensored information that is received by their people."

Cubans have been getting that information for years. The flood of refugees to the United States each time the Cuban doors are open shows it has been getting through. All they have to do is turn on a regular radio set or a television set and pick up stations from the Florida mainland, less than 100 miles away. And that doesn't cost taxpayers anything, much less the $7.5 million the government station supposedly would need to operate during fiscal year 1983.

We believe in spreading the truth but when the truth already is being spread, it can get a little thin if some of that spreading doesn't stop.

Adjustments For Tobacco

The proposal doubling the cigarette tax from 8 to 16 cents is now law and, unfair to a large and industrious segment of our society as it is, we will just have to live with it.

It will create difficulties and, in fact, already has. Large buyers are indicating they will purchase less tobacco because they anticipate lower demand.

Fortunately this year probably will not see one of tobacco's larger yields, which may save us from being faced with a glut of tobacco.

Through the tobacco program, adjustments can be made in acreage-poundage prior to the 1983 planting season and perhaps things can be kept on an even keel.

THIS AFTERNOON

It Grows 'Worsen'

By JANET YEARWOOD
Ahoskie News-Herald

Anybody who ever said that pregnancy was a wonderful, mystical experience was either a man or full of baloney laced with birth control pills.

And if being pregnant is the pits, being pregnant in your 30s is being the pits in spades.

Now don't get me wrong. It isn't that I didn't ask for it. My husband and I, proud parents of a 6-year-old boy, intended all along to "round out our family" with another addition. In fact, we eagerly anticipated it. It just took a little longer than we'd planned.

So here I am, 34 next month, expecting a baby. What's wrong with that, you ask? I'll tell you what's wrong. In a word — everything.

Just for starters, take mornings. Now I'm normally a real Polly Sunshine at 7 a.m. I like a big breakfast — eggs, sausage, grits, biscuits, tomatoes, cantaloupe, the works. I usually roll out of bed with my smile already in operation. Yessirree, that's me — perky!

But just take a look at me now. Seven a.m. finds me bleary-eyed from a night of tossing and turning, I stagger to the bathroom sink and stare, unbelieving, at my reflection in the mirror, a slightly green, bilious face surmounting an increasingly round figure. Oh, bother!

My husband greets me with an affectionate kiss. "You look gorgeous to me," he says with a wink.

"Shut up, you jerk," I respond tenderly. "This is all your fault." See what I mean?

So I finally make it through morning, after barely downing a piece of toast and a glass of milk. Then I decide to go shopping to replenish my meager maternity wardrobe, which during my other pregnancy leaned heavily toward miniskirted dresses in psychedelic colors. I go to several large department stores first. After a thorough search, I find none of them carries maternity clothes anymore. "It just wasn't profitable," I'm told.

So who does carry maternity clothes now? I find them in two or three tiny shops in smart malls and shopping centers. They bear clever names like "The Hatching Patch" and "Stork City." I enter each fashionable boutique hopefully only to meet disappointment again. The prices in these places are ridiculous. Fifty bucks for one dress I'll wear five months is just not in the plan. Why, when I was pregnant before, I don't think I spent $50 for my entire maternity wardrobe!

And the styles — the racks are loaded with T-shirts with catchy sayings like "Boogie on down" or "Hot Mama," not exactly what I'm ready for at this stage of my life. The slacks are no better. Oh, there's a wide variety, if you happen to like blue denim. The trouble is, they're made with 19-year-olds in mind. There's nothing more depressing than trying to squeeze my cellulite-ridden thighs into what the tag calls size 12 jeans that some sadistic union worker knows in reality are size eights.

So anyway, I finally locate two pairs I can wear — one is bright orange and the other the saleslady calls "harem pants," neither of which I want any part of.

I come home downtrodden after my futile search. Then I face another facet of pregnancy in the 30s — exhaustion. Even the slightest exertion wears me out. Why, it's all I can do to drag myself to the kitchen for another chocolate ice cream and pickle sundae. About this time my husband and son come into the kitchen and gingerly suggest that maybe it's time for some supper. Who are these guys kidding? "A woman can only do so much," I mutter, waddling back to my magazine on the sofa, my sundae glass balanced on my stomach.

My friends tell me the second half of the pregnancy is easier than the first. Relax, they say. The worst is over.

That's what they think. At my check-up yesterday, after my doctor gave me the usual measurement and weigh-in session, he raised one eyebrow and, with a puzzled look in his eye, said, "Do twins run in your family, Mrs. Yearwood?"

I think I'm going to run away from home.

To the editor:

Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board members are frequently asked if Pitt County taxes will be increased to support hospital operations. The only taxes paid by Pitt County citizens for hospital purposes are the taxes voted in 1970 to retire the original $9 million general obligation bonds to construct the new hospital. Hospital rate changes here have been established to assure that services provided to patients will be funded without tax subsidies from Pitt County citizens. No tax funds have been requested by the hospital board of trustees since 1971. Out-of-county patients pay their share of the operating expenses of the hospital through the rates charged all patients for services. The recent increase in hospital rates are made to compensate for shortfalls identified under government programs. Newly enacted state regulations reduce Medicaid reimbursements and projected reductions in Medicare payments make it necessary to increase rates so that no subsidies from the county will be necessary.

Even though hospital visits are expensive, the approved rates are below those of other medical centers in North Carolina which provide similar services. Our local citizens do not have to travel a long distance to receive services heretofore unavailable in eastern North Carolina. The board of trustees studied this matter at great length, and it has established these rates to assure the continued development of our hospital without local tax subsidies.

To the editor:

I was angered and alarmed at seeing the reaction of some Greenville "Peace" group members to the story of Enten Eller, that Virginia draft dodger.

My father was a chaplain (Lt. Col. retired) in the Air Force. My brother is now serving as a chaplain at the Air Force Academy. Both of them, as I do, believe that you can obey and love your Lord and still serve in the military. They base their belief on two scripture verses: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God, the things that are God's." and "As much as ye are able, live in peace with one another."

In my opinion, Jesus was clearly recognizing that we must battle against the forces of evil or be overcome by them. Those forces are as much with us today as they were in Jesus' day.

I believe those pro draft-dodge demonstrators were just making excuses for glorified cowardice. I am sorry that their stand may influence the decision of another impressionable young person.

A Bank On Ground Floor

Every time an old building is torn down in this country, and a new building goes up, the ground floor becomes a bank.

The reason for this is that banks are the only ones who can afford the rent for the ground floor of the new buildings going up. Besides, when a bank loans someone money to put up a new building, it usually takes an option for the street-floor facilities.

Most people don't think there is anything wrong with this, and they accept it as part of the American free-enterprise system. But there is a small group of people in this country who are fighting for Bank Birth Control.

This is how Huddleston Hubbard, the BBC's chairman, explained it:

"Whenever you see an old building torn down," Hubbard said, "you usually see a candy store, a dry cleaner, a delicatessen and possibly a florist torn down with it. These shops are all replaced in the new building with a beautiful glass, aluminum, wall-to-wall carpeted money factory.

"Now from an aesthetic viewpoint, a bank looks better than a dry cleaner, a candy store, a delicatessen and a florist. But from a practical point of view, it's a sheer disaster. If you want a newspaper, a candy bar or a chocolate milk shake, you

Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank.

"The situation is more crucial than anyone thinks," Hubbard continued. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in this country. What good is it to get 7 percent on your money if you starve to death?"

"Then what you're saying is that it isn't a question of not taking it with you. It's a question of staying alive while you have it," I said.

"Something like that," Hubbard agreed. "We're trying to get the public to wake up to the fact that it's better to have a store that sells screwdrivers than a bank that gives away alarm clocks."

"What's the solution?"

"A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services as the stores it tore down. If it's a bakery, they have to sell cake; if it's a photography shop, they have to develop film; and if it's a dry-goods store, they have to sell warm underwear. If they provide the services of the store they tore down, then we'll let them do a little moneylending on the side."

can't get it at a bank. Nor can you run out to a bank for a pound of Swiss cheese and a six-pack of beer when you have guests coming over.

"A bank is great if you want to buy a car, but it's useless if you want to have your dress cleaned.

"And while a bank might buy flowers to give itself a human image, it doesn't sell any when you want to make up with your wife."

"What you're saying then, Mr. Hubbard, is that every time a bank goes up, something in all of us dies."

"Exactly. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever.

'Aced' By A 1980 Rule

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — A proposal by the East Asian Division of the State Department to "return" tennis star Hu Na to communist China following her defection in San Francisco last month stunned high-level Reagan administration officials and was swiftly rejected at the White House.

The rationale at State, though totally unexpected, resulted from a provision in the 1980 refugee act requiring defectors seeking asylum to "prove" they have suffered "persecution" in their communist (or non-communist) homeland. Deputy Assistant Secretary Thomas P. Shoemith suggested to aides that Miss Hu, who is not a member of the Communist Party, probably defected in hopes of making more money on the international tennis circuit.

But officials of the department's Human Rights Section discovered that communist authorities in China had been pressuring her to join the party. That by itself could amount to "persecution" under terms of the 1980 law. The result: Miss Hu, still under protective custody of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, will stay in the U.S. Any other decision would have brought a political firestorm.

Censored Congressmen
Before freshman Rep. John LeBoutillier of New York entered the Oval Office for a private session with President Reagan, the outspoken conservative had to promise not to criticize chief of staff James Baker.

The promise was extracted by White House consultant Lyn Nofziger, a friend of LeBoutillier, as a personal favor. LeBoutillier told the president that his staff had treated Republican congressmen with contempt but, true to his word, he did not name Baker.

Reagan's sales pitch to LeBoutillier, at age 29 the youngest member of Congress, did not budge him from opposition to the tax increase. Reagan had won him over two weeks earlier with a personal plea to oppose the nuclear freeze resolution. But LeBoutillier actually kept lobbying against the tax bill even after his Oval Office visit.

Warning To Reagan

President Reagan was put on sharp notice in an Aug. 6 letter that leading conservative Republican congressmen in his pro-defense constituency are insisting on cost-saving Pentagon reforms.

Spark-plugged by Reps. Newt Gingrich of Georgia and William Whitehurst of Virginia, a ranking minority member of the House Armed Services Committee, 23 House Republicans warned Reagan against higher spending. "We have worked together successfully to pass our national agenda," the letter said, "but this pattern could be destroyed if your comments on defense spending are put into action."

Those "comments" were to the effect that Reagan would increase future defense outlays beyond amounts agreed to in the congressional budget resolution. The letter to Reagan, also signed by Minnesota's Rep. Bill Frenzel and other Republican moderates, was the latest shot fired by the military "reform" movement, which demands major changes in U.S. strategy and weapons. Signers of the letter have asked for a meeting with the president after the current Labor Day congressional recess.

Phil Donahue's Den

Vice President George Bush's staff moaned that he was led into the lion's den of liberal television interviewer Phil Donahue as a part of media consultant Lyn Nofziger's effort to sell the tax bill.

"It was a disaster," one Bush aide told us. "It looked like the audience was stacked." Stacked or not, the questioners denounced Bush for the persistent recession. One critic, noting what has happened since Ronald Reagan took office, contended that if Reagan were president of a large corporation, he would be fired — and Bush with him.

About the only applause for Bush came when he praised the brave members of Poland's Solidarity. The vice president managed to get out of Donahue's den alive, but the tax bill was not helped.

Strength For Today

NATURE OF TRUE SAVIORHOOD

Some years ago archeologists discovered in Rome a picture which came down from the early years of the Christian Church. It showed a figure with the head of an ass and the body of a man nailed to a cross. Before it, a man bowed in adoration, and underneath were written the contemptuous words "Alexamenos worships this God." The artist was obviously deriding the concept of a savior who died on a cross.

In the same city of Rome today, the great Church of St. Peter towers in protest against such blasphemy. Jesus was indeed the victor, not in spite of the cross but because of it. He was not sent to the cross; he chose of his own volition to endure its pain. Little minds can see nothing but folly in this action. But through the centuries faith has been leading people to see that in the death of Jesus Christ there is forgiveness of sins and remission of sins. And because of this sacrifice there is love and power and peace in millions of human hearts.

Betting Rents An 'Exception'

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The economy might be entering a period of less inflation, but many investors are betting that rents will be an exception.

The way they figure it, apartment rents will rise sharply during the 1980s.

Their reasoning is as clear as the law of supply and demand, but some of the potential consequences are less clear, and the possibility of social unrest from unhappy tenants isn't dismissed even by some investors.

Rents today are probably about 20 percent of income but might go to 30 percent or even more, said Gregory Junkin, executive vice president of Balcor-American Express, whose public partnerships own and manage 28,000 rental units.

"There will be a change in the philosophy and outlook about shelter," said Junkin. "It will be a different philosophy than what people grew up under."

Before the adjustment comes — to renting rather than owning; to no tax deductions or equity buildup, as with home ownership; to high rents themselves — Junkin believes there could be problems, "potentially serious" ones.

And always lurking in the background is the possibility of rent controls, which large-scale real estate investors fear and avoid, buying only in areas they feel are free from the threat.

Other than for such worries, syndicators of real estate partnerships, which are sold through most of the well-known brokerage houses, are bullish. Some are forecasting tremendous growth in the industry during the next few years.

Richard T. Garrigan, who heads a Chicago-based real estate consulting firm, contends that higher rents are almost inevitable because of underproduction of and increased demand for rental units.

Writing in the Real Estate Review, Garrigan, a former researcher for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, maintains that real rental costs actually declined in the 1970s. While apartment overbuilding might have been one of the causes, he claims "the primary cause was the unprecedented addition of 11.5 million owner-occupied housing units to the housing inventory."

Both the oversupply of apartment units and the competition from home-ownership have been greatly reduced during the past couple of years.

At the same time, Garrigan observes, the Census Bureau projects a 16.8-million increase in households in the 1980s. That, he says, is a "growth of 400,000 households more than the unprecedented" growth of the 1970s.

Fortified with such evidence of need and demand, Balcor-American Express is buying heavily, especially in the Southeast and Southwest.

In the first six months of 1982, the company raised more than $110 million for its partnership, a company record, and purchased 17 developments with a total of 4,550 apartments and a value of nearly $183 million.

The attraction for investors in partnerships — which require investments of as little as $3,000, depending on the state — is not only the increased likelihood of higher rents. Big tax deductions for depreciation and interest costs, and sizable returns when buildings are sold, also are lures.

Rents, however, seem destined to grow in importance to syndicators and to those who invest in them. In the past 12 months, said Junkin, his company has raised rents an average of 18 percent.

So swiftly is the market changing that, said Junkin, "Right now we are not writing leases for more than six months in some parts of the country."

Bar Paying For Unproven Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Medicare and Medicaid payments will be disallowed for more than 200 drugs which have yet to be proven safe and effective, under the tax bill Congress passed last week.

Chris Smith, a spokesman for the Food and Drug Administration, said Tuesday that a provision in the $98.3 billion tax bill will stop reimbursement Sept. 30 for 119 chemicals which are part of more than 200 prescription drug products.

Among products affected are Phenargan, an expectorant sold by Wyeth Laboratories; Librax, a peptic ulcer preparation made by Roche Laboratories.

reached deep into Jimmy Carter's bag for the politician to direct his campaign in the crucially-early Iowa caucuses: Bill Romjue, who ran Carter's successful 1980 Iowa drive to head off Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

Kennedy's 1984 campaign, still unacknowledged, is also adding new material: Richard Sklar, who headed George McGovern's 1972 Ohio primary campaign and now runs the San Francisco Public Utility Commission.

Kennedy aides deny that the senator has yet decided to give Sklar a top spot as national political director of his presidential campaign. Sklar, independently wealthy, is a longtime political backer of Ohio's Sen. Howard Metzenbaum and ran Northern California for Kennedy in the senator's winning primary battle there against Carter in 1980.

Oklahoma, Alaska Voters Study Primary Results

By The Associated Press

Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh easily defeated a window maker for the Democratic nod in his bid for a second term, while Alaska Lt. Gov. Terry Miller held a narrow lead in the GOP gubernatorial primary in the nation's largest state.

Meanwhile, hotel chain owner Bill Sheffield and former legislator Steve Cowper were locked in a tight battle for the Alaskan Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

Voters in the two states Tuesday also picked candidates for Congress their state legislatures and other state offices.

In Oklahoma, Nigh called his win over storm window manufacturer Howard Bell, 58, "humbling and very gratifying."

With 2,081 precincts in out of 2,394, Nigh had 368,541 votes or 83 percent to 75,510 votes for Bell, who conceded defeat at about 10 p.m.

Auditor and Inspector Tom Daxon defeated state Rep. Neal McCaleb of Edmond for the right to carry the Republican banner in Oklahoma's governor's race in November.

"This is only the first victory we're going to win," Daxon told jubilant supporters after his win over McCaleb, the state House minority leader, became clear.

With 2,122 precincts reporting, Daxon had 74,596 votes — 66 percent of the total — to 32,144 for McCaleb. A third hopeful, builder Don House of Moore, got 6,608 votes.

The biggest Oklahoma upset was in the Democratic attorney general contest, in which Muskogee County District Attorney Mike Turpen ran on an anti-crime platform to overcome incumbent Jan Eric Cartwright. With 2,093 precincts counted, Turpen had 217,295 votes or 53 percent to Cartwright's 191,008 votes.

In the state's two congressional contests, aircraft sales executive Richard C. "Dick" Freeman won the right to run as a Republican against Democratic incumbent Rep. Jim Jones, chairman of the House budget committee, in the 1st District, and Rep. Wes Watkins handily won Democratic renomination in the 3rd District.

Democratic Lt. Gov. Spencer Bernard handily won renomination while state Sen. Norman Lamb of Enid was leading two Republicans for that party's lieutenant governor nomination.

Bernard had 229,422 votes or 57 percent, leading John Rogers' 86,002 votes and Rodney Ray's 85,631 votes. Lamb had 45,205 votes or 47 percent, against Michael Williams' 20,312 votes and Warren Green's 9,897 votes.

In Alaska, GOP gubernatorial hopeful Miller had 12,582 votes to 11,204 votes for Tom Fink of Anchorage with 152 precincts of the state's 438 precincts counted.

Miller's early strength came from voters in Juneau, the capital, which Miller opposes relocating to Willow, a more central location. But his lead melted as returns poured in from Anchorage and Fairbanks.

Three other Republicans — Rick Reakoff of Wiseman, Harold Stafford of Valdez and Don Wright of Fairbanks — mustered only 719 votes among them.

On the Democratic side, Cowper led Sheffield 6,799 to 6,184. Both Sheffield and Cowper also oppose the capital move, a hot issue in Alaska that will be decided by voters in November.

The other four Democrats in the field — H.A. "Red" Boucher of Fairbanks, Bruce Lemke of Anchorage, Ed Vincent of Fairbanks and Michael Beasley of Eagle River — had a combined total of 3,091 votes.

Valdez Mayor Steve McAlpine led state Sen. Charlie Parr of Fairbanks 7,339 votes to 3,745 votes for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Anchorage businessman Dave Rose led a field of six in the GOP race for lieutenant governor.

In the Democratic battle to run for Alaska's only U.S. House seat, utility worker Dave Carlson was beating adult bookstore operator Ron Mallott. They were vying to oppose the Republican incumbent, Rep. Don Young.

Court Upholds Hygienist Law

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Franklin L. Dupree has upheld the constitutionality of a state law that bars dental hygienists from cleaning teeth without the supervision of a dentist, but not without issuing a warning to dentists.

The ruling came in a lawsuit filed by Alice M. DeLancy, a Winston-Salem hygienist who opened her own business last year after working under the supervision of dentists for 15 years.

Dupree said in a footnote to the ruling last week that dentists appeared to be more concerned with the financial impact of allowing hygienists to operate on their own, than with the public's health or safety. Dentists had lobbied for the regulation through the North Carolina Dental Society.

Dupree upheld the North Carolina law that blocks Ms. DeLancy from working on her own. But he pointed out that the law was in the dentists' financial interest, not only because of the "substantial income" from hygienists, but also because of the extra time it allows dentists to engage in more profitable work.

State law allows hygienists to clean teeth, take X-rays, administer fluoride treatments and inspect a patient's mouth for obvious abnormalities. The duties must be done under the supervision of a licensed dentist.

Ms. DeLancy opened The Smile Clinic in Winston-Salem in November 1981 and offered the services without a dentist's supervision.

Because her actions violated state law, the state Board of Dental Examiners instituted proceedings to discipline her and possibly revoke her license.

She sued the board in April and was allowed to keep operating her clinic while the lawsuit was pending. In the suit, she contended the state law violated her 14th Amendment rights to due process and equal protection.

Ms. DeLancy said she has not decided whether to appeal Dupree's decision.

"I can tell that he (Dupree) seems to be kind of on my side, but from a legal technicality standpoint, he can't knock down state law," she said.

Funds-Cut Delays Colcor Grand Jury

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal prosecutors say a temporary cut in funds will cause them to postpone next month's scheduled session of a federal grand jury investigating corruption in Columbus County.

J. Douglas McCullough, first assistant U.S. attorney for the Eastern District, said a planned Sept. 21 session of the grand jury had been canceled, delaying indictments that had been expected.

McCullough said the grand jury would proceed looking into those and other charges stemming from the Colcor probe in October.

Money to pay jurors and witnesses in grand juries across the nation will be restored when President Reagan signs the Justice Department's supplemental spending authorization bill, said department spokesman John Russell in Washington.

Russell said the department has notified all U.S. attorneys that until the president signs the supplemental appropriation, no fees (for jurors and witnesses) will be available.

The Colcor grand jury returned indictments against 21 people in July on charges stemming from the FBI's 21-month undercover investigation of crime in eastern North Carolina.

Federal prosecutors have said that another 25 people remain under investigation in the probe. Those charged to date include a state legislator, district court judge, county commissioner, police chief and various businessmen.

Meanwhile, an arraignment is scheduled in U.S. District Court in Wilmington Thursday for state District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt Sr., charged with accepting $7,000 in bribes from undercover agents.

Sternwheeler Overland

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — An old wooden sternwheeler that ran 1,500-mile trips up Alaska's Yukon River will make one more trip late this summer — across 200 feet of land.

The Nenana, a paddlewheeler that operated in interior Alaska from the 1930s to the late '50s, is being moved from a muddy pond to a new concrete foundation 200 feet away at Alaskaland, a city-owned theme park in Fairbanks.

Sex Education for Teens

I want to take a course in sex education in high school. Before I can take it, I must get my parents' permission. They don't want me to take it because they feel this encourages trouble. How do you feel about this? - Peggy R., N.J.
Dear Peggy:

This exact subject was the recent topic of discussion in the publication released by the Alan Guttmacher Institute in New York. In essence it said that a new study shows that school education lowers teenage pregnancies but does not promote teen-age sex.

A charge had been made that sex education in school encourages sexual promiscuity among young people. This was definitely refuted by a national study of teen-agers in the United States.

The study finds "that taking a sex education course does not result in increased sexual activity among young men and women." The study also shows that "sexually active young women who took sex education courses which included information on birth control methods are more likely to use contraceptives and are less likely to become pregnant than those who had no such instruction." This quote is taken directly from a study of two Johns Hopkins University professors, Dr. Melvin Zelnik and Dr. Young J. Kim. The data that they accumulated were based on a nationwide study.

Good, sound sex education in the school should not threaten parents. In fact, ideally, sex education in the school should be supplemented by home teachings of morality. The moral values established in the home become the superstructure of the self-esteem of a teen-ager.

The combined forces of parental judgment and sex education in the schools are ideal in establishing values that young people can proudly live with all their lives.

When I turn my neck I hear a clicking sound. Sometimes there is a shooting pain with it. I am 44 years old. When I was 16 I had a diving accident. Could this be the cause of it? - Mr. C.F., Wis.

Dear Mr. F.:

Even with a history of a diving accident, your complaint is not unusual. Slight osteoarthritis is very common in the cervical spine of the neck at your age. X-rays of the vertebrae of the neck may reveal some of these changes.

There are now many anti-inflammatory drugs which, when used under the doctor's supervision, can relieve this annoying, but not dangerous, problem.

An eye doctor recently told me that some of his patients who use bifocal glasses have a tendency to keep their heads in a distorted position. Symptoms such as you describe may result. Many of my own patients have told me that "cradling" of a telephone between the shoulder and chin while using the hands for writing may be responsible for vague pains in the neck.

The diving accident may, of course, be responsible for the condition you describe. Certainly it would be worthwhile to have a complete physical examination. After X-rays are taken, consultation with an orthopedist might be very significant. Sometimes the use of a simple collar and sitting upright in a chair instead of slouching can alleviate the symptoms you describe.

THE RED CRESTED TOURACO ... is one of the 35 species of birds that have been installed in their new home at the R.J. Reynolds Forest Aviary of the North Carolina Zoo located near Asheboro. The aviary opens to the public on Friday with special festivities on that date and on Saturday. Admission is $3 for adults over 16, $2 for children 2-15 and senior citizens, and free to infants and handicapped persons.

ASHEBORO — A panoramic view of a tropical forest and a chorus of exotic bird songs will greet visitors when the R.J. Reynolds Forest Aviary opens to the public on Friday.

Joseph W. Grimsley, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development which administers the state zoo, says construction of the $1.5 million aviary represents "the best thing that can happen when private industry, government and the non-profit sector of the community team up on behalf of the citizens of North Carolina."

Construction funds for the facility were also provided through appropriations by the N.C. General Assembly and the N.C. Zoological Society, the non-profit fund raising arm of the zoo. Plants and birds were purchased through corporate and individual donations to the Society.

The R.J. Reynolds Forest Aviary is a circular habitat 140 feet across and 55 feet high in the center. It is covered with a bronze-tinted glass dome. The tropical vegetation includes 70 species of plants, ranging in size from the low-growing watermelon peperomia of South America to the 28-foot weeping fig tree of Java.

Over 150 birds walk, nest and fly within the forest aviary. An outdoor Chilean flamingo habitat adjacent to the forest aviary was sponsored by Lance Inc. of Charlotte.

Zoo director Robert L. Fray says, "Nowhere else in this country does an aviary like ours exist. We have some species of birds and plants that are not to be seen in other zoos."

Opening weekend festivities on Friday and Saturday will include entertainment by Monkey Business of Greensboro, supplier of jugglers, musicians and clowns.

A scheduled zoo admission fee increase will take effect with the public opening of the forest aviary. On Friday new ticket prices will be $3 for adults 16 and over, $1 for children 2 through 15 years, and $1 for senior citizens. Children under 2 and the handicapped will continue to be admitted free of charge.

The park is open daily from 9 to 5 weekdays, and 10 to 6 on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays.

Better Brace For Split Spine

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Every year in the U.S., 6,000 children are born with "split spine," which causes leg paralysis and other deformities.

Many wear a brace that holds their bodies upright and provides some mobility.

The Birth Defects Center of the University of Rochester says it has developed an improved brace that provides greater mobility, freeing the youngsters' hands and permitting them to sit and stand unaided.

It allows young children to take part in play and classroom activities more easily and confidently than previously possible.

Testimony Continuing In Alienation Suit Here

Testimony continued today in Superior Court in a $3 million civil suit brought by Claude R. Hardee who alleged that another man "alienated the affection" of Hardee's wife.

Hardee, a resident of Route 3, Greenville, brought the suit against Michael W. Mills, whose address in court documents was listed as Route 2, Greenville.

Hardee alleged in his suit that Mills and Hardee's wife, Judy, "sometime either in May or June 1980 began an association together and which said association still continues whereby defendant and plaintiff's wife have committed adultery."

Both Mills and Mrs. Hardee were employed at J.H. Hudson Inc., according to legal documents.

The petitioner alleged that Mills, "through his wrongful and malicious acts in alienating the affection" of Hardee's wife, "thereby deprived plaintiff of the affection, society, companionship and assistance of plaintiff's wife, all to plaintiff's past, present and continuing substantial damage."

In the suit being heard before Judge David Reid, Hardee alleged that "the actions and conduct of defendant and plaintiff's wife have substantially injured and damaged plaintiff's health, his feelings and his reputation."

Hardee asserted that Mills' actions and conduct "were wilful, aggravated, malicious, wanton and intentional."

He further alleged that his wife, "through her employment, provided economic assistance to plaintiff and her children and the acts and conduct of defendant and plaintiff's wife have deprived plaintiff of such economic assistance, all to plaintiff's substantial damage."

Hardee alleged that his "loss of consortium, mental anguish, humiliation and loss of assistance has continued and will continue into the future."

Hardee and his wife legally separated, according to a deed of separation executed Oct. 13, 1980.

In addition to $1 million in actual damages sought in two $500,000 actions, Hardee is also seeking $2 million in punitive damages, again

Says Critic Was Unfair

RALÉIGH, N.C. (AP) — Deputy Insurance Commissioner Neal Smith has criticized as "unfair and inaccurate" comments by Rep. Mary Seymour and state Sen. Sam Noble that Insurance Commissioner John Ingram waited too long to issue a new licensing manual for agents.

Smith said Ingram began working on the revision of the study manual in his first term as insurance commissioner in 1975. The manual was released last week.

Noble, chairman of the Legislature's subcommittee on insurance licensing problems, said Ingram did not comply soon enough with a law passed by the General Assembly in 1980 that required the licensing tests to be revised.

Mrs. Seymour said Ingram had two years to accomplish his task, and said "it was brought to his attention long before it was mandated by law."

"Developing the new material took a tremendous amount of time and once we had the material pulled together we were told that we had to have competitive bids before the manual could be printed," Ingram said. Smith said it was necessary for the insurance commissioner's office to obtain a change in the law to permit publication of the manuals, requiring more time to update the material.

Mexico Plans Repay In Oil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Most of the $1 billion the United States advanced Mexico last week will be repaid with 40 million barrels of crude oil for the U.S. strategic petroleum reserve, the Mexican government announced.

Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog announced Tuesday night that his government had signed an agreement with the U.S. Department of Energy to sell the U.S. government an average of 110,000 barrels a day of its best crude for 12 months beginning Oct. 1.

The oil will be the light Isthmus type used for making gasoline and other light fuels. The price will fluctuate according to international levels, but will not be higher than $35 a barrel nor lower than $25, the announcement said.

Mexico currently sells Isthmus crude at $32 a barrel.

The announcement said Pemex, the Mexican state petroleum monopoly, will ship 60,000 barrels a day during the last quarter of the year, 120,000 barrels a day during the first quarter of 1983, 140,000 barrels a day during the second quarter and 120,000 barrels a day during the third quarter.

With $80 billion in foreign debts, the Third World's highest, and other economic ills, Mexico is going through its worst economic crisis since the 1910-20 revolution.

The economy, dependent on revenue from Mexico's huge oil reserves, fell victim to the world oil glut and heavy government borrowing for development projects which oil revenues had been expected to cover. The inflation rate is running between 60 and 80 percent, and unemployment is growing.

Silva Herzog went to Washington and New York last week and secured a $1 billion cash advance against future oil shipments and another $1 billion from the Commodity Credit Corp. in easy-term loans to pay for imports of American grain and other foods.

During his visit, 150 banks agreed to postponements of 30 to 90 days of Mexico's short-term debts, but the government agreed to pay the interest due.

The government has devalued the peso twice in the past six months and imposed exchange controls to keep dollars from being taken out of the country. The peso at the beginning of the year was worth about 4 cents; now it's worth about a penny.

Run Over By Rotary Cutter

FOUNTAIN — A 15-year-old boy was seriously injured Tuesday when his legs were run over by a tractor-pulled rotary cutter.

Fountain rescue personnel said Richard Brad Stallings, 15, of Pinetops was rushed to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Tuesday just after noon and was reportedly in surgery the remainder of the day. The accident occurred on the Hardy Johnson farm on State Road 1231 near Fountain.

Stallings, who was visiting his grandmother, Martha Johnson of Fountain, at the time of the accident, told rescue personnel he was mowing a pasture when the tractor he was driving ran up on a half-buried drum. The upset caused him to be thrown to the ground into the path of the rotary cutter, he said.

Both drivers were injured along with two passengers in the Lewis vehicle, James Edward Briley and James Edward Briley III, both of Quail Hollow Trailer Park, and a passenger in the Daniels vehicle, Derrick Lamont of Smith Trailer Park, Greenville. They were transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital.

According to police, Ms. Daniels's car was waiting to turn left at the intersection and when the light turned green, it proceeded left and was struck by Ms. Lewis' vehicle.

Ms. Lewis was cited for a stop light violation.

Pin New PCC Nurses In Ceremony

Pitt Community College's Department of Nursing Education held its practical and associate degree pinning ceremony at Jarvis United Methodist Church Tuesday.

The speaker for the ceremony was Katrina Hargett, clinical instructor for medicine at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, who reviewed with students their days of study at PCC from their first hospital experience to their last examination.

"Only when you get into the nursing practice, however, will you realize that you are dealing with a real world situation which sometimes will not be ideal," said Mrs. Hargett.

"Don't expect to know everything, for there is much to learn," she added. "Be creative in your nursing care, take advantage of learning opportunities for your profession and use the resources you have already accumulated."

The Arlene Collins Memorial Scholarship Award was presented to Merle H. Dennis of Greenville and the Clinical Excellence Award went to Sonya H. Parker of Alexander.

Percy Edward Felton of Hertford received the scholarship which is awarded by the associate degree graduates to a first-year nursing student.

Leaf Prices Off Tuesday

By The Associated Press
Flue-cured tobacco prices slipped Tuesday after record breaking prices were recorded the day before on two of North Carolina's three tobacco belts, the Federal-State Market News Service reported.

On the Old and Middle Belt, demand was definitely weaker for lugs and primings, which reflected consistent declines of mainly $3 to $5 per hundred. Leaf and cutters were selling steady to slightly lower than the previous day.

Sales in the belt grossed 6,615,264 pounds Monday for a record high average of $178.90 per hundred — $10.58 over last Thursday's average and 64 cents higher than the previous daily record set last September. Season sales climbed to 73,686,389 pounds for $161.74 per hundred.

Grade prices held fairly steady on the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt Tuesday. Changes from Monday were chiefly $1 to $4 per hundred pounds with gains and losses about equal.

Another record high daily average price of $190.53 per hundred was set Monday for 4,733,874 pounds. This was up $6.18 from Thursday's record high. Season sales in the belt were brought to 99,000,097 pounds averaging $168.22.

Both grade prices and quality declined on the Eastern Belt. Individual grade averages were down mainly $2 to $4 per hundred, erasing the gains made Monday.

FIRE PROTESTORS

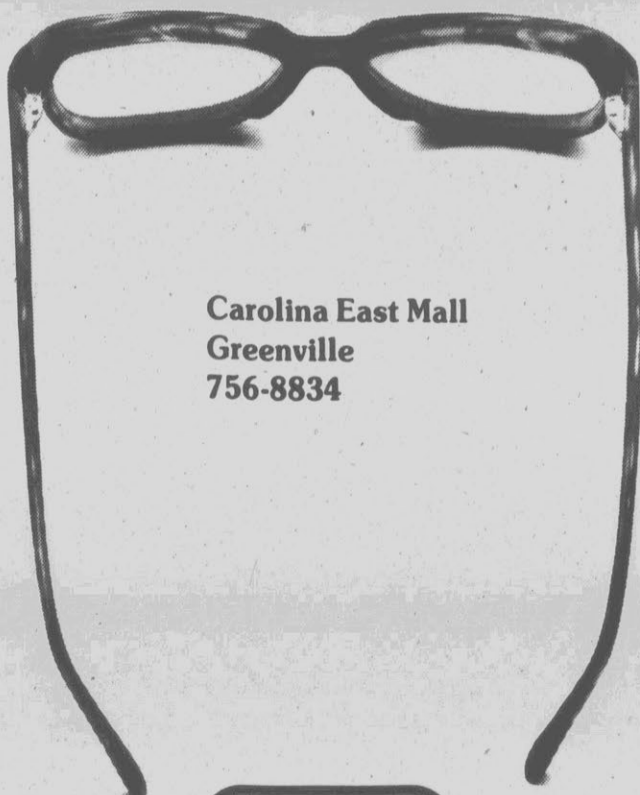

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The government fired 265 state policemen and evicted them from their barracks Tuesday for protesting working conditions, the United News of India said. It reported most were based at Madhuban, about 60 miles north of New Delhi.

Prof Suggests Rebel Yell Had Celtic Roots

By DIANA SMITH
Associated Press Writer
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — The Rebel yell of Confederate troops, a "barbarous howling" that "made the hair stand up on the heads" of Union soldiers, was actually a variation of an ancient Celtic war cry, a history professor says.

Dr. Grady McWhiney, director of the Center for the Study of Southern History and Culture at the University of Alabama, is the author of "Attack and Die," a book about the differences between the South and North. He and Dr. Forrest McDonald, another University of Alabama history professor, contend the Civil War was a continuation of an ancient conflict between the Celts and the Anglo-Saxons.

McWhiney and McDonald say the differences between the Old South and the Old North had origins in the diverse cultures of the people who settled those areas, not in the slavery and plantation system.

"The North was settled primarily by people of Anglo-Saxon origins and the South by people of Celtic origins," McWhiney said.

He explained that Anglo-Saxons immigrated to North America from the southern part of England, while Celts came from the non-English parts of the British Isles, such as Ireland, Scotland and Wales. The Celts and the Anglo-Saxons were radically different people who fought each other for centuries, he said.

Anglo-Saxons and Celts also differed in the type work they enjoyed. For instance, McWhiney said Celts were terrible farmers, although the Anglo-Saxons were good at farming. Celts were interested in a leisurely lifestyle — dancing, drinking, hunting and fishing — while Anglo-Saxons were concerned with work. The two groups also differed in the way they fought.

"The Celts were very brave and reckless in battle, but they were not very good planners," McWhiney said.

Celtic fighting was characterized by "a wild and reckless charge, but before that charge, they would yell in a most fearsome and unearthly fashion. It was eerie," McWhiney said. In his book, the professor wrote that the "horrible and diverse yelling" was an intrinsic part of the Celtic charge. The Romans noted it, as well as English soldiers who battled the Scots and the Irish.

The high-pitched yodel "frightened the English every time they heard it, and it frightened the Yankees when they heard it in the Civil War," he said.

McWhiney found reference to the cry in Union soldiers' letters. One soldier wrote that the cry "made the hair stand up on his head." Another wrote about "that terrible scream and barbarous howling loud enough to be heard a mile off."

The Union soldiers' reports were similar to the reports of Roman soldiers in the Battle of Talamon in 225 B.C. A soldier who fought the Celts as the Romans pushed across the Alps into Italy described the Celtic attack as a wild assault accompanied by

"horrible and diverse yelling that curdled an opponent's blood."

McWhiney said evidence suggests the Rebel yell was a variation on Celtic animal calls since Celts primarily raised cattle and hogs.

"Woh-who-ey! who-ey! who-ey!" is the way one Union soldier described the cry, with the first syllable short and low, and the second 'who' with a very high and prolonged note deflecting on the third syllable 'ey.'

McWhiney said that cry is totally different from the Yankee cheer, which was pronounced "hoo-ray."

The professor said the South might have won the Civil War had it chosen to defend its borders, rather than waste ammunition and soldiers in brave, but futile attacks. "I believe they continued to attack because it was part of their heritage. The North just bled the Confederates to death in the first three years of the war."

He gave as an example the South's defeat at Gettysburg, when the Confederates launched assault after assault on the Union soldiers, who were entrenched in an easily defended position.

Another federal soldier described a Rebel assault in Atlanta. "It seemed as if no man of all the host who were attacking us could escape alive; and yet, still yelling, they persisted in their desperate undertaking, their line was reformed, and again and again they attempted the impossible."

McWhiney said people of Celtic descent, the Scots and the Irish, tried to settle in some parts of the North but were driven out by Puritans who settled the New England area. "The Puritans were not happy with them at all. The Puritans established the character of New England early on, and they wanted to purify not only the English church, but the new settlers as well."

Many of the Irish and Scotch settlers needed more room for their livestock and migrated down the valley between the Appalachian and Cumberland mountains into the southern back country. "The bulk of the back country population was made of predominantly Celtic people," he said.

Southerners today retain many characteristics of the ancient Celts, including a strong commitment to the family or clan, McWhiney said. "They are leisure-oriented and not very materialistic," he said. "They think there's nothing wrong with the essential pleasures of life. Given a choice between working and playing, a Southerner might want to play."

Money Transfer By Computer

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — An airline computer reservation system is being used to transfer money orders from one side of mountainous Colombia to the other, says a management information systems journal.

According to MIS Week, the system offers a guarantee of security, virtually the only way in Colombia outside of bank transfers to ensure safe arrival of the money.

The airline, Avianca, is the only company in the country to have a computer reservation system.

Festival Launched; Not Many Apples

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Henderson County apple growers aren't letting the fact that they lost half their crop to a late cold snap stop them from having their Apple Festival this year.

The county's 36th annual Apple Festival got under way Tuesday with the Apple Jack golf tournament. The two-week event features everything from sidewalk sales to street dances and culminates on Labor Day with the King Apple parade along downtown Hendersonville's serpentine Main Street.

The apples will be smaller and not as pretty to look at, but there will be enough county-grown apples for festival displays and sales, county officials say. They won't bring in any out-of-state apples for the occasion. "I would never do that," said Ray Cantrell, executive director of the Hendersonville Chamber of Commerce. "Our apples this year won't be of the quality we would like to show, but we will go with what we have."

"The apples may not be as big but the festival will go on just as usual," he said.

What is mostly featured at the festival are apples, the county's No. 1 crop. Stores throughout Henderson County arrange window displays with apples as the centerpiece, and the store with the best display wins a prize from the local merchants' association. There is a contest to find "King Apple," the biggest apple grown in the county, and the local newspaper, the Hendersonville Times-News, publishes a special apple festival edition.

Apples are in short supply at this year's festival. During two killer frosts in April, the county's 400 apple growers lost about 65 percent of their crop.

South Carolina's peach farmers fared even worse in the cold snaps, losing at least 60 percent of their crop. Promoters of the annual peach festival in Gaffney, S.C., had to bring in out-of-town peaches for that event in June.

"North Carolina is ranked fifth to seventh in nation in growing apples and we raise 65 percent of that here in Henderson County," Cantrell said. "So when we say we lost more than half of our crop, that means North Carolina won't be selling many apples this year."

Cantrell said growers won't know the full extent of the damage until harvesting begins early next month. That's when buyers will decide what price to pay per bushel for the apples.

Last year, apple prices were low, with packed bushel boxes going for as little as $5. Farmers say it costs them about $4.50 a box to pack the apples, using hired labor.

In a good year, fancy apples or the best of the crop bring at least $12 a bushel box.

"Apples sell on what they look like and I don't think this is going to be a good year for us as far as good-looking apples," Cantrell said.

In a good year, apple-growing is a $28 million business in Henderson County.

As the sparse Red Delicious, Golden Delicious and Rome Beauty crops ripen in the orchards, festival planners are trying to enjoy this year's festivities and looking ahead to next year.

"We will have an apple festival regardless of what kind of crop we have because people expect it," said Janice Hope, secretary of the Apple Festival Committee. "There's just a lot more community spirit behind it in a good year."

Grandmother Avers Pot Crop 'Not For Smoking'

By JAMES R. KING
Associated Press Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Now that she's been convicted of growing pot in her vegetable garden, 82-year-old Laura Clark says she doesn't "care about marijuana...I'll never plant any more."

Jurors deliberated 20 minutes Tuesday and found the great-grandmother guilty of felony possession of a controlled substance. She was sentenced to two years of unsupervised probation, the most lenient penalty allowed. The maximum would have been 10 years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Mrs. Clark testified that a doctor in Mexico gave her the seeds and told her they were herbs. She said she intended to use the plants to make an arthritis lotion.

She acknowledged that a friend, who saw the plants when they were about a foot high, revealed their true identity. But she said she let them grow in good faith.

"I wouldn't have smoked it. I wouldn't have chewed it," she said after the verdict. "I was going to do what the doctor told me to do — soak the leaves in alcohol and put the juice on wherever I hurt."

Two plainclothes narcotics detectives said they arrested

Mrs. Clark after they went to her house May 4, acting on an anonymous tip, and found five or six marijuana plants standing four to five feet tall in her vegetable garden.

A chemist testified that the marijuana taken from her garden amounted to 506 grams, or about 16.8 ounces — or enough to roll about 1,500 marijuana cigarettes.

Mrs. Clark's lawyer, Bill Portis, dropped to one knee during final arguments and begged jurors to find the woman innocent. Portis said later there would be no appeal.

District Judge Mike McSpadden told Mrs. Clark that "the only condition on your probation is that you give me a call every couple of months and tell me how you're doing."

Mrs. Clark testified that she was reared in the Ozark Mountains of Arkansas and always had a garden. When she planted the seeds, she said, "I thought they looked like radish seeds. I knew when they came up they weren't."

As the plants grew, she said, she thought they would turn out to be bushes, like the ones in her front yard. She said she liked to show off her garden to friends, and when the plants were about a foot tall, "Somebody said, 'Oh. That's marijuana.' I didn't know till then."

"They were up to my chest," testified Joe T. Dugger, a 6-foot-2 detective.

"She said she would destroy them for me if I wanted her to, but I was trying to explain to her she was in trouble."

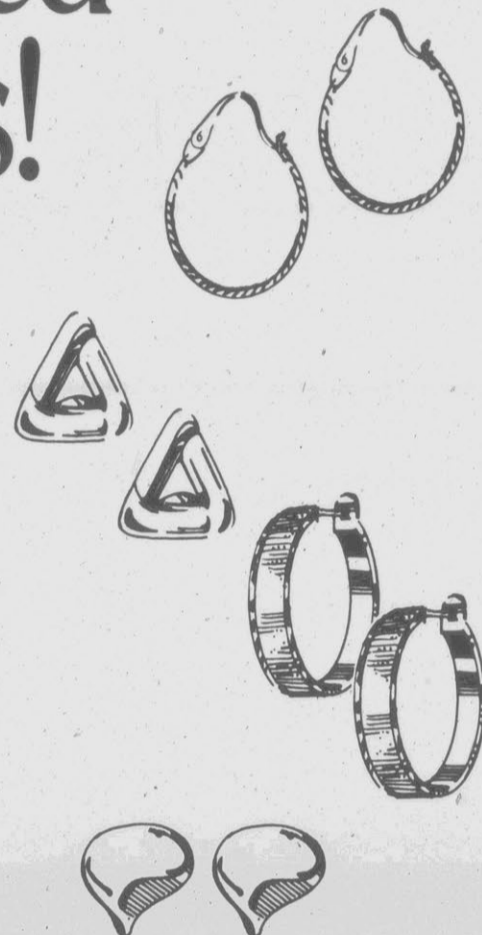

Dugger said he had no choice but to arrest Mrs. Clark.

Try Restrain Student Drinking

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Alcohol awareness workshops, counseling-treatment programs and special classes are becoming as much a part of university life as freshman orientation at some North Carolina colleges and universities this fall.

The increased concern comes after reports that more than 80 percent of students on some campuses in the state use alcohol, and alcohol has been blamed for several fatalities at college campuses.

"Almost never a year goes by that some of our students aren't involved" in an alcohol-related traffic death, said Dr. William McRae, student health center director at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Administrators say they don't intend to stop fall keg parties or the drinking that accompanies athletic triumphs or defeats. Instead they are counseling students to "drink responsibly" in an attempt to get rid of the destruction and discord that excessive drinking brings.

In a 1980 survey, Dr. Kenneth C. Mills found that 86 percent of the students at the UNC-CH drank, mostly beer. Mills, a psychologist in UNC-CH's Center for Alcohol Studies, said students cited driving under the influence as the biggest problem they have with the law. The leading cause of death for 18-to-24-year-olds is alcohol-caused highway accidents, he noted.

Researchers at N.C. State University in a survey last spring learned that 83 percent of the Raleigh campus drank.

North Carolina's colleges have a variety of rules governing alcohol use.

A year ago, UNC-G stiffened its policy in the wake of an estimated $35,000 in vandalism during the 1980-81 year — most believed to be the result of student drinking.

UNC-G now permits kegs of beer on campus at group functions only and limits the number of kegs based on the number of students who will attend, said Dr. James Allen, vice chancellor of student affairs. If beer is served, food and soft drinks must be offered too. He said students may drink beer or wine in dorm rooms if they are 18 or older.

Students at N.C. A&T, Greensboro's other UNC-system school, may drink in their dorm rooms only, Dr. Robert Wilson, A&T's director of counseling services, said a full ban on alcohol was lifted in the 1970s, as it was at most other state schools.

While state universities are prohibited by state law from selling beer or wine on campus, Duke University students have been able to buy beer and wine at campus diners since 1973, said Dean of Students William Griffith. Duke's food services division has a license to sell beer in four on-campus restaurants, Griffith said.

"Our position is to attempt to work with the students. Abuse is a problem in society and a problem on every university campus," he said.

Michael Pittman, director of student life at High Point College, said public outrage at alcohol-related destruction has forced colleges to take a tougher stand on the problem.

"It's hitting people in the pocketbook," Pittman said. "I'm not going to let tuition go up because people are getting drunk and smashing up dormitories."

Near the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, Mayor Joseph Nassif has been pressuring Chancellor Christopher Fordham to control drinking-related damage.

As a result of his complaints, UNC season-ticket holders will receive letters warning that Chapel Hill police will no longer tolerate alcohol consumption on the town's streets.

"It's going to be a new day, and I think it's going to make a lot of people mad," said Nassif. He said his town has been shaken in the past year by several alcohol-related tragedies, including the death of a female student in an auto accident last month.

For Cost Of House Can Buy Island

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — For the price of a house, you can have instead an island, with sandy beaches, a beautiful view, great recreation possibilities and uncompromising privacy.

The price: $75,000. The place: Pierce Island in the Columbia River.

The catch: Lots of flooding; enough regulations to keep you in red tape for years before you could build a house; and commuting problems — you'd have to do it by boat.

The island, and others, are owned by Knappton Corp., a Portland, Ore., grain and log barging business. "We weren't doing anything with the islands, so we decided we might as well get rid of them," said Ed Beall, the executive vice president.

Pierce Island is part of Skamania County and is designated a "conservancy" area, meaning trails and maybe a tent platform are OK but not a house, said planning director Bob Lee.

"For a house, Lee said, you would need a variance to the county comprehensive plan; approval of the variance from the state Department of Ecology; county building permits; approval from the state Department of Fisheries to ensure fish habitat would not be hurt; and a permit from the Army Corps of Engineers to build a dock.

"What we don't want to see is a private business coming in there and developing it," Lee said.

HAS SECOND NOBEL SPERM BABY — Afton Blake, a 40-year-old unmarried psychologist, gave birth Tuesday to an 8 pound, 10½ ounce boy in a Los Angeles-area hospital. It was the second baby generated from the so-called Nobel Prize sperm bank. The father of the baby was described to Ms. Blake as a computer scientist who is also a gifted musician. (AP Laserphoto)

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices opened mixed today as the market evaluated a sharp drop in blue chips in the previous session amid record trading volume.

Forest-products issues were among the early gainers today while financial stocks retreated, and New York Stock Exchange-listed declines took a slim edge over advances.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which plunged from an eight-month high Tuesday, recovered 3.33 to 878.23 after 30 minutes of trading today. The transportation index also rose but the utility measure fell a fraction.

As the average of blue-chip industrials fell 16.27 points Tuesday, the market overall was slightly ahead as NYSE volume soared to 121.65 million shares, the second-highest on record behind last Wednesday's 132.69 million. The selloff in blue chips came as no surprise, analysts said, since investors at some point were expected to take advantage of those issues' recent, sharp gains. RCA led the Big Board's active list today, down 1/8 to 19 3/4. Early gainers included Exxon 1/8 to 27 7/8 and General Motors 1/4 to 48.

On Tuesday, the Dow Jones industrial average tumbled to 874.90. Twenty-one of the measure's 30 issues fell.

NYSE gainers led losers nearly 3 to 2, but the NYSE composite index slipped 0.26 to 66.10.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index gained 3.56 to 265.28.

Another 'Nyet' By Glen Cove

GLEN COVE, N.Y. (AP) — The Glen Cove City Council, angry over lost tax revenues and security costs, is still saying "nyet" to Soviet diplomats who want to use public recreational facilities in the Long Island town.

The council voted 5-1 Tuesday night to reject a resolution to lift its ban on Soviets using beaches, tennis courts and golf courses.

The hard-line stance got support from a New York City councilwoman, who says the nation's largest city should take similar action to win federal reimbursement for lost property taxes.

But the position of June Eisland, D-Bronx, was not supported by Mayor Edward Koch.

"We're not going to deprive Russian diplomats of going to Coney Island or the Rockaways," Koch declared.

The Glen Cove council wants Congress to pass legislation paying it back for revenue lost because of the tax-exempt status of Killenworth, the Soviet diplomatic residence, before reopening the facilities. It also hopes to recover funds spent on security, and asked for a bill mandating the deportation of foreign diplomats who are "strongly suspected" of spying.

Glen Cove officials have accused the Soviets of using the estate to monitor telephone conversations of Long Island defense industries.

State Department spokeswoman Sandra McCarty declined comment on the latest developments in the continuing struggle between the Long Island town and its Soviet diplomats.

"We're going to have to wait to see specifically what they did," she stated.

Fountain Has New Policeman

FOUNTAIN — Patrick J. Decuzzi Jr. of Winterville has been employed by the town of Fountain as a police officer.

Decuzzi was previously employed as a patrolman with the town of Winterville and with the Pitt County Sheriff Department as a dispatcher. "I'm looking forward to working in Fountain," he said. "I hope I can be of service to the citizens."

Vandals Break Local Windows

A plate-glass window valued at $300 was broken at the 420 Club by an unknown person early today, Greenville police reported.

According to police, the front window of Ace Pool Room, or the 420 Club, located at 420 Colaniche St., was shattered around 1:25 a.m. Damage is estimated at $300.

Vote Fining 4 Dairies

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission has voted to fine four dairy plants a total of $14,000 for allegedly selling milk below cost in violation of state law.

The commission also threatened to suspend the licenses of three Flav-O-Rich Inc. plants and Maola Milk & Ice Cream Co. of New Bern if they did not pay the fines.

State law prohibits selling milk below cost to injure or destroy competition or to induce the public to patronize a store.

Flav-O-Rich plants in Durham, Greensboro and Wilkesboro were accused of selling milk below cost to school systems and other customers between August 1981 and January.

The maximum fine of $5,000 was levied against Flav-O-Rich's Durham plant for failing to turn over records requested by the commission. The Durham plant also was fined $1,000 for allegedly selling milk below cost in November and December.

The Greensboro plant was fined $4,000 for alleged below-cost sales during August and October of 1981 and January of this year. The Wilkesboro plant was fined $2,000 for similar alleged violations in October 1981 and January.

Maola was also fined $2,000 for allegedly selling milk below cost. Officials of the companies could not be reached for comment. Under state law, they can appeal the fines to Superior Court.

Wilson Hunt To Challenge In Big East

Second of Two Parts
By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

While Rocky Mount is listed as the team to beat in the Big East Conference this year, Wilson Hunt could come through as the eventual winner.

The Warriors are listed as the dark horse contenders in the conference, and despite the fact that the coaches' poll, carried yesterday, listed them as the fourth place choice, most opponents are worried about them.

Coach Bill Williamson is hopeful that their assessment is correct. "We look to be improved," he admits. "Whether our record is going to be any better, I can't say. But we certainly should be a better football team than we were a year ago."

"If we can get some breaks and stay away from injuries, and things go like we hope they do, then I do think we can be a contender."

While Hunt returns only six starters off last year's team, the Warriors do bring up players from an unbeaten junior varsity squad to operate the split back offense and the 50 defense.

"We've got a lot of young kids back to pick out from," the coach said.

He expects the top players on the Hunt club to be linebacker Glen Coley, quarterback/free safety Christy Rodri, and Marty Ellis, tabbed by Williamson as the best returning lineman.

"The rest are untested, but we feel they can be good. We have a lot of potential, but we don't know how they are going to perform."

Best bets include Todd Wiggs, a linebacker and offensive guard; Jason Jackson, a running back; Darrin McClure, the backup quarterback; and Kent Glover and Charles Atkins, both linemen.

"The key for us will be playing well early, in being prepared for our conference games. That doesn't mean we have to win all three of our non-conference games, but that would be nice, too."

"We have very little depth, and we have to stay away from injuries," Williamson said.

Across the county at Wilson Beddingfield, coach Ray Barger isn't as lucky.

"This is a year filled with uncertainties and question marks," Barger said. "We have to replace our whole offensive line, our quarterback, and the defense has to find two new tackles, a nose guard, a linebacker and two new secondary people — just about the whole team."

Most of the newcomers are going to be first year varsity players, so Barger classifies the Bruins as "real young."

Matchup A Key Opening-Season Battle

Heels Focus On Panthers

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL — After seven games of the 1980 season, North Carolina was undefeated, ranked in the Top 10 and facing its biggest challenge ever as it traveled west to meet Oklahoma. Many Tar Heels fans are feeling a sense of deja vu as their team prepares to play at Pittsburgh.

The Tar Heels meet the Panthers in a nationally televised contest on Sept. 9, the first game for both teams. That game isn't the make or break point, according to Crum. Certainly, he wouldn't like to see a repeat of that game with the Sooners.

That day, Oklahoma cranked up its wishbone and rolled to a 41-7 victory, ending North Carolina's climb toward the college football mountaintop. The fifth-year coach is trying to maintain an even keel and says his players are attempting to do the same.

"I haven't paid much attention to it, and the assistant coaches haven't paid much attention to it," Crum told reporters during the Atlantic Coast Conference media tour. "Your youngsters are going to be aware of it but we're not making a big deal out of it. Crum admits that the hyperbole surrounding the matchup is great for college football and selling newspapers.

"In our particular case, we can't allow that to turn our heads because our payoff comes at the end of the season, he adds.

Besides, there are other matters Crum must address before the season begins. He pointed out his concerns for the kicking game, which lacks distance specialist Jeff Hayes, a defensive secondary which has been suspect and a young linebacking corps.

The defense draws the most attention because it will face a huge offensive line, 1,000-yard rusher Bryan Thomas and quarterback Dan Marino, touted by Panther officials for the Heisman Trophy.

"They will have the ultimate pressure on them immediately," he says. "People just don't sack Marino. They can't get to him."

But the Tar Heels would like to think they've got the guns to meet the Panthers, as well as defending national champion Clemson and other challengers.

Senior quarterback Rod Elkins will be a dropback passer in 1982, cutting down on his scrambling tactics and likely reducing the chances of injury.

Much of the pre-season talk has centered on tailback Kelvin Bryant, himself considered a candidate for the Heisman. But behind Bryant are former quarterback Ethan Horton and last year's backup Tyrone Anthony. Crum said

Suspended Perry Is Hot

SEATTLE (AP) — Gaylord Perry is hotter than a major league fastball over his suspension for allegedly doctoring a pitch — something the Ancient Mariner has been suspected of doing for much of his 21-year career.

A 10-day suspension was ordered in New York Tuesday, but Perry and the Major League Baseball Players Association quickly followed up with an appeal, which stays the suspension.

Perry, a native of Williamston, said he had a 20-minute telephone conversation with American League President Lee MacPhail Tuesday morning. But he wasn't very pleased with the result.

"He's a ... weak human," the venerable right-hander said of MacPhail. "I told him I'd played this game 20 years and I never saw anybody out to get somebody like Monday night."

"They'll have so many appeals that MacPhail will have to hire 10 assistants," Perry said.

"He don't know what to do. He takes advice from somebody else," Perry charged, implying that MacPhail was giving in to home plate umpire Dave Phillips. It was Phillips who ejected Perry during Monday night's game with the Boston Red Sox.

Perry said he has taken no action so far, but vowed, "Phillips ain't heard the last of it, believe me."

Mariners' Manager Rene Lachemann said, "We're going to see what evidence they (the American League) have. I guess that's what you appeal this on."

The 43-year-old Perry has been suspected for years of being among the sport's best doctors of baseballs.

Phillips had warned Perry about throwing an illegal pitch in the fifth inning. And, in the seventh, with two outs, runners on first and third and a 1-0 count on Rick Miller, Perry threw a pitch that dropped drastically.

Without asking for the ball, Phillips ejected Perry. It's the second time he's been thrown out of a game, the first coming early in his career for bench-jockeying.

Perry will be able to pitch for the Mariners until the appeal is heard. But an accompanying $250 is payable immediately, said Bob Fishel, an aide to MacPhail.

Fishel also said the fact that Phillips had not asked for the ball did not matter. "In his opinion it was an illegal pitch," Fishel said. "He doesn't have to find something on the ball."

The suspension is the second in three years for a Seattle pitcher. In 1980, Rick Honeycutt, since traded to Texas, was found to have a thumbtack taped to his glove, apparently for defacing a ball.

A statement Tuesday from MacPhail said, "Gaylord Perry has been suspended for 10 days, effective immediately, and fined $250 for violation of official playing rules 3.02 and 8.02 (throwing an illegal pitch). ... The suspension is an automatic penalty required by the playing rules. Mr. Perry has the right to appeal, in which event the suspension would not be involved until after the matter was resolved at a hearing, and found to be in order."

Moments after Fishel finished reading the AL president's statement, he was told the Players Association had appealed the suspension.

For more than 15 years, opposing managers have claimed that Perry threw "spitters." Perry even hinted in his book, "Me and the Spitter," that he had used illegal pitches at times, but he said he had quit.

"Gaylord Perry has a history of this situation but I don't think anybody (among the umpires) dislikes him," said Phillips after the game Monday night, won by Boston 4-3

Turns Away

(Perry was not involved in the decision). "I respect him. He's a great pitcher. He's certainly proved his ability over the years, he's Hall of Fame quality, but I've warned him in the past."

Under Second-Year Coach Gilbert Carroll Jags Hope To Return To Past Glory

One of a Series
By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
FARMVILLE — In his second year as head football coach at Farmville Central High School, Gilbert Carroll is hoping that the Jaguars may be close to returning to their glory days of old.

Several seasons ago, the Jaguars were the terror of the Eastern Carolina Conference, winning championship after championship. But in the last few years, the Jags have struggled, finishing 5-5 last season overall and 2-4 in the conference race.

"I hope that this is going to be an exciting year for us, one filled with some success. We have a bunch of kids who have worked awfully hard for some success," Carroll said.

He returns six starters on offense and five on defense, giving him an excellent nucleus to build around. "I'm quite happy about the number returning. Of course I'd like to have 11 back (each way), but I'm happy to have five or six back."

Offensively, the Jaguars will run out of the T-formation, with a lot of multiples off of it, wings, split backs, slots, and the like. "We'll probably run a few plays out of the I, too," the coach added.

Returning to lead the offensive unit will be fullback James Moore (6-1, 190, Sr.), halfback Wesley Carmon (5-11, 180, Sr.), center Tracy Horne (5-7, 175, Sr.), guards Eric Faison (5-9, 195, Sr.) and Joey Steppe (5-9, 175, Jr.), and end Reggie Willoughby (6-2, 170, Sr.).

All but Faison will be returning to the positions they played last year. Faison was a tackle last season.

Currently, there are three players fighting for the right to start at tight end, Andrews Edwards (6-4, 175, Sr.), who played in 1980 and missed last year with an injury; Allen Wooten (6-3, 170, Sr.), who is also the team's punter; and Dennis Tripp, a 6-2, 175-pound freshman. "All three of them are going to see a lot of action there," Carroll said.

Johnny Ford (5-9, 280, Jr.) will be at one tackle, with Taylor Walston (5-8, 205, Jr.) at the other.

In the backfield will be Sam Sumrell (6-0, 175, Sr.) at quarterback and Tony Hagrove (6-0, 155, Sr.) at the flanker.

"I also expect to see Jerome Daniels (5-9, 190, Soph.) play a lot at guard, while Nat Norriss (5-8, 140, Jr.) will play a lot in the backfield," the coach said. Having a rookie quarterback could cause some early problems, due to lack of experience, Carroll admits. "He probably played more in our scrimmage against Hunt than he has the rest of his career put together."

"But he's a real dedicated worker. For instance, he's worked for the same may for six years in tobacco. I'm not complaining, but if he had put in the same work in football, he'd be a great deal further along. I do admire his dedication to his boss, however, don't get me wrong. He'll get better as the season goes along."

Carroll doesn't intend to keep the ball on the ground due to Sumrell's inexperience, however. "We'll be throwing when we're supposed to, but we'll be throwing too when they're expecting us to run. We have a good group of receivers, and we're going to use high percentage passes."

On the ground, Carroll currently looks for Moore to be the workhorse. "Wesley is a dazzling runner who has great speeds and cuts. But he has to learn to run north and south. Until he shows us that he can do that, he's going to be carrying the ball about ten or so times a game. Running 40 yards to pick up two doesn't get it done."

He also expects to see Hagrove carrying the ball some too. "He's also a very good blocker," Carroll commented. On defense, Farmville will use several formations, including five and six man fronts. "We want to try and keep it simple for our kids, but at the same time create maximum confusion for our opponents," the coach said.

Returning here are five starters, several of whom are also offensive starters.

Three secondary people return, Willoughby, Hagrove and Jerry Foreman (5-9, 145, Sr.). They are joined by Ford at a tackle spot and Dennis Tyson (6-1, 180, Sr.) at the end.

Bobby Daniels (5-11, 175, So.) will work in the middle of the line, while Faison and Walston will be at the tackles. Jerome Daniels could also see some playing time in the interior line, as could Mike Atkinson (6-0, 230, Fr.). Moore and Steppe will be at the inside linebackers, with Tripp as a backup along with Edward Davis (5-10, 185, So.). Edwards will take over the other outside linebacker slot, with Tripp as a backup here too, along with Alvin Baker (5-10, 155, Sr.) and Terrance Pettaway (6-4, 165, Sr.).

As stated above, Wooten returns as the punter, and could handle the PAT's and field goals. However, Carroll is contemplating going for two-pointers exclusively this year. "I think there's a good chance of making most of them, and that would put a lot more pressure on the other teams if we were getting eight a time," he said.

Carroll likes SouthWest Edgecombe in the Eastern Carolina race. "They finished up tied for first last year and got shut out of the playoffs by the coin toss, so I think they'll be hungry this year. They have a lot of kids back to back that up too, along with a great staff and a good weight program. I think the rest of us may have trouble keeping up with them in the future. "Ayden-Grifton also has a number of players back, so if I had to pick, it would have to be those two," he said.

As for the Jaguars: "We hope we can fight them for the title. We have our destiny in our own hands. If we want it bad enough, we can have it. We just have to work hard and have faith that good things will come our way."

Deadline For Tickets Nears For ECU-NCSSU

The final opportunity for East Carolina students and fans to purchase tickets for the ECU-N.C. State football game, to be played in Raleigh on September 11, will be tomorrow from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Under a new N.C. State ticket policy, all tickets must be returned to Raleigh following sales tomorrow. "This is the final opportunity for ECU fans and students to buy tickets to sit with the rest of the ECU people," a Pirate spokesman said. "After tomorrow, the only place tickets will be on sale is in Raleigh."

A special ticket session will be held tonight for students from 7 p.m. on, and the ticket office will be open to the general public, students and Pirate Club members tomorrow for the final sales.

Registration for classes yesterday and for drop-add today have thrown a short crimp into East Carolina's football practice plans. A workout was held last night under the lights for the first time.

It was also learned that Jimmy Walden, starting tailback injured last week, will be a doubtful participant in the State game due to his knee injury.

Surgery Fails On Ex-Giant Halfback Kotar

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Surgeons were waiting for Doug Kotar to awaken fully from anesthesia to determine whether the retired New York Giants running back suffered permanent damage from an operation that failed to remove a lemon-sized tumor from his brain.

When neurosurgeon Roger Countee opened Kotar's skull Tuesday, he found the large tumor in the center of the brain and concluded that removal of the mass would endanger the ex-player's life, according to Dr. Kim Sloan, the Giants' orthopedic specialist who assisted in the operation.

"It is in an area that acts as a central command center for all of the impulses of the brain," Sloan said.

Sloan said Kotar, 31, "was very scared" before undergoing the eight-hour operation.

Although test results were incomplete, doctors were pessimistic about the severity of the tumor.

"It looks more like a poor type of tumor. I'm evading the words malignant or benign because I don't know for sure yet," said Sloan, who expects Kotar to be fully alert sometime tonight.

Kotar's wife, Donna, his brother Anton and other family members were keeping vigil at the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey Hospital.

"The family is very, very upset," said Sloan, who left the operating room several times to brief the family on the procedure.

Sloan said the only treatment options left now were radiation therapy, chemotherapy or antibiotics, depending on the results of the analysis of tissue samples, which will be available in a few days.

Sloan estimated that Kotar probably had the tumor less than a year.

'The Snake' Joins Former Coach In New Orleans

By The Associated Press
The Snake is back in the National Football League and has no intentions of spending the year on the bench.

Ken Stabler returned to NFL Tuesday, agreeing to join former head coach Bum Phillips with the New Orleans Saints.

"I've never walked on the field when I thought I was going to be a backup quarterback," one but I'm not taking that approach."

Stabler, who is the most accurate passer in NFL history, hitting 60.32 percent of his passes, will challenge incumbent Archie Manning and Bobby Scott for the starting job, while second-year pro Dave Wilson recovers from knee surgery. The former Oakland and Houston veteran reportedly has signed a contract although terms were not disclosed.

Stabler's signing comes one day after NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle said teams could begin talking with the former University of Alabama quarterback, who was investigated by the league because of published reports concerning his alleged association with known gamblers.

Phillips said Stabler is familiar with the Saints system and said he might be available to play Saturday when New Orleans hosts the Cleveland Browns.

Stabler's arrival allowed the Saints to say goodbye to Craig Bradshaw — the brother of Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Terry Bradshaw. New Orleans also cut veteran wide receiver Hue Harris and placed Wilson and free safety Tom Myers on the disabled list.

There were several other transactions as NFL teams pared their rosters to this week's limit of 70 players, 25 above the opening day limit.

And with 19 days to go before the opening of the 1982 season, the two sides in the negotiations for a new basic agreement will resume contract talks in Washington. It will be the first formal talks between the players and management since negotiations broke off in July when the two sides failed to agree on a site for their discussions.

The Baltimore Colts made 21 player moves, including the release of wide receiver-kick returner Dave Shula, the son of Miami Dolphins coach Don Shula.

The Atlanta Falcons reached the 70-man limit by cutting nine players, including 10-year veteran cornerback Roland Lawrence, while the Pittsburgh Steelers released tight end Mike Hirn, a ninth-round draft choice from Central Michigan.

The Philadelphia Eagles made 70 without dropping a player. Seven, including fourth-year running back Steve Atkins, were placed in the injured reserve list, while two others were put on the non-football related injury list.

The New York Jets placed second-round draft choice Reggie McElroy, a tackle from West Texas State, and linebacker Mark Jerue, a fifth-round selection this year, on the injured reserve list along with four other rookies.

Pat Sherman, East Carolina's new tennis coach, has called an organization meeting of all those interested in playing tennis at the school, both men and women.

The meeting will be held Thursday at 2:45 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, room 144.

Henderson 1 Steal Away From Record

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland speedster Rickey Henderson is about to become baseball's all-time stolen base king. Right now, he'll just have to settle for being the most frequently apprehended base thief in the history of the game — a 39-time loser.

Henderson moved within one base of Lou Brock's all-time major league record of 118 stolen bases in a single season Tuesday by stealing his 116th and 117th bases in the first inning of the Oakland A's 3-0 victory over Detroit.

The fleet outfielder attempted to equal Brock's 1974 record in the eighth inning, but Tiger catcher Bill Fahey threw him out on a controversial play at second base. It marked the 39th time this season Henderson has been either picked off or caught stealing, breaking the rather dubious standard established by Hall of Famer Ty Cobb in 1915, when the "Georgia Peach" stole 96 bases.

"I'm just glad he broke Ty Cobb's record today, not Lou Brock's," said the embattled Fahey, who threw out just two of seven Oakland baserunners who attempted to steal in the game. "There's at least some small consolation in that."

Henderson found little consolation in umpire Durwood Merrill's call in the eighth inning.

"I thought I was safe at second," said Henderson, who was ejected from the game along with A's Manager Billy Martin, Coach Charlie Metro and center fielder Dwayne Murphy for protesting the call. "He (Merrill) didn't have the right position on it and never saw the tag. I had my hand on the bag when the tag was made on my back."

"You'd think that he'd want me to break the record at home and get it over with," said Henderson.

Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson agreed with Merrill and even alleged the A's may have had Fred Stanley, who walked and moved to second on Henderson's single, purposely picked off second in the eighth inning to give Henderson a chance to steal the base.

"It's a travesty," said Anderson, when questioned about the play. "Stanley should be given the biggest fine in baseball history. This thing is bigger than the Black Sox Scandal."

Oakland Manager Billy Martin said Stanley and Henderson had intended to pull a double steal when Stanley was picked off second.

Fahey, who had caught only 17 runners attempting to steal this season, didn't expect to play Tuesday. But when regular receiver Lance Parrish went back to Detroit before the game to be with his pregnant wife, Fahey was put into the lineup.

"We talked about the pitcher and catcher before the game," said Henderson, who will try to set the new record Thursday night in Milwaukee. "To be honest, we didn't think he (Fahey) was too good a catcher. I figured all I had to do was get on base and I'd break the record. I felt good before the game. I really wanted to do it at home. That's my only real disappointment."

Rookie pitcher Jerry Ujdur, 7-7, walked Henderson on five pitches to open the first. Henderson then easily stole second on the first pitch to Wayne Gross. After Gross walked bringing Dwayne Murphy to the plate, Henderson swiped third on the front end of a double steal and then scored on a wild pitch.

Murphy walked and stole second. And Tony Armas drove home Gross with a grounder before Murphy scored on Dan Meyer's sacrifice fly.

A's hurler Matf Keough, 11-16, stopped Detroit on six hits in pitching his 10th complete-game and second shut-out.

Ujdur allowed only three hits in the game, but walked seven.

Jaeger Reinjures Groin At Volvo Cup

MAHWAH, N.J. (AP) — Andrea Jaeger reinjured a groin muscle and will undergo therapy in an attempt to recuperate in time for the start of the U.S. Open.

Jaeger, 17, reinjured the muscle Tuesday night and was forced to retire in the second set of her match against Leigh Anne Thompson in the $100,000 Volvo Women's Cup tennis tournament.

Thompson, a rookie pro ranked 57th in the world, was ahead 6-4, 2-0 when Jaeger, the top seed, decided to quit in the second-round match.

"I was in pain before the match and it got worse as I warmed up," said Jaeger, who added she planned to play in the U.S. Open, which begins Aug. 31.

Defending champion Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia rallied from a 1-3 deficit in the first set to defeat Kate Latham in a second-round match, 6-3, 6-4.

No. 4 seed Pam Shriver, sidelined with a shoulder injury since Wimbledon, made a successful return to tournament play with a second-round victory over England's Jo Durie, 6-1, 6-4. She had a first-round bye.

Eighth-seeded Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia was upset by qualifier Beth Norton, who rallied for a 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 victory.

No. 5 seed Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, No. 6 Bettina Bunge and No. 7 Barbara Potter won second-round matches on Tuesday.

Henderson Nabbed! Speedster Caught For Record-Setting 39th Time

By The Associated Press
Oakland speedster Rickey Henderson finally cracked the record book for stolen bases. But it wasn't the theft mark he was shooting for.

After stealing two bases in Tuesday's game against the Detroit Tigers to move within one of Lou Brock's all-time record of 118, Henderson was caught by catcher Bill Fahey going for tying mark in the eighth inning of Oakland's 3-0 victory.

It was the 39th time this season that Henderson had been thrown out in his quest for the record, breaking the major league mark of 38 set by Ty Cobb in 1915 — a season Cobb stole what appeared to be an untouchable 96 bases.

Royals 5, Rangers 3
Kansas City's John Wathan also got in on the base-stealing act, logging his 31st stolen base to set a major league record for catchers.

Hal McRae also drove in three runs, raising his major league-leading total to 112, on a double and two singles to lead the Royals at the plate.

Orioles 7, Blue Jays 3
Joe Nolan's dramatic grand slam with two outs in the bottom of the 10th off reliever Joey McLaughlin lifted the Orioles to their fourth straight victory.

Dennis Martinez, 12-10, pitched a four-hitter to register the victory. McLaughlin's record fell to 8-6.

Eddie Murray gave the Orioles a 3-0 lead in the first inning when he smashed his 21st homer of the season, after singles by Glenn Gulliver and Ken Singleton.

Twins 5, Yankees 0
Minnesota rookie Frank Viola, 4-4, tossed a six-hitter for his first major league shutout. The 6-foot-4 left-hander walked one and struck out eight in registering his second complete game in 15 starts.

John Castino provided most of the power for the Twins, singling home a run in the seventh and hitting a two-run homer in the ninth, his sixth home run of the year. Gary Ward also hit his 22nd homer of the season in the eighth inning.

Tommy John, 9-10, was the losing pitcher.

Indians 14, White Sox 7
Andre Thornton, Mike Hargrove and Ron Hassey powered the Indians to their seventh victory in nine games. Thornton knocked in four runs, Hargrove three and Hassey slammed a two-run homer.

Rick Waits, 2-12, got the victory in relief of John Denny.

LaMarr Hoyt, 14-12, was the

Red Sox 5, Mariners 4
Reid Nichols probably likes Seattle's Kingdome almost as much as Boston's Fenway Park if his performances the past two nights are any indication. Both nights he drilled game-winning homers for the Red Sox.

Tuesday's game was twice as nice, though, as Nichols cracked two homers to hike his season total to six. His two-run homer in the fourth gave the Red Sox a 4-2 lead.

Reliever Tom Burgmeier, 7-0, stranded seven Mariner baserunners over the final 42-3 innings to gain the victory. The loser, Bill Caudill, 10-6, also was Nichols' victim on Monday night.

Reggie Jackson hit his 31st and Don Baylor his 20th for California.

Niekro: Knew It Was Braves' Year

ATLANTA (AP) — Phil Niekro, the only current Atlanta player wearing a Braves uniform in 1969, the last time the team won a division title, says he's known since spring this would be the year.

"This was the first year I really felt we would be in the race," Niekro said before pitching Atlanta to a 9-7 victory over Philadelphia Tuesday night. The victory gave Niekro, 43, a 12-3 record.

"Right from the start of spring training, I figured we had a fighting chance. I've never been with a club that I had a feeling so soon that we could win it," said Niekro, who has won 252 games in his career. "Even in 1969, I never had that initial feeling, that quick."

The reason, he said, is

"everybody grew up a little bit. We matured.

"There are 25 guys who you believe in that we can win a pennant. In the past it was not so, but we believe it every day now," Niekro said.

"The majority of the players here have been with the club four or five years and they've grown up," he said.

The Braves set a record by winning their first 13 games of the season and were out of first place for only one day through July. Then they dropped 19 of 21 games and fell four games behind Los Angeles in the National League West.

A six-game winning streak has them back on top by 1 percentage point.

Despite his record, Niekro has only two complete games. But he refuses to complain.

Manager Joe Torre says if we're going to win, we're going to win it with our bullpen, and he utilizes it a lot. Some games I've been taken out of I didn't understand why, but he's got the bullpen so I can't knock it," Niekro said.

Gene Garber, with six victories and 24 saves, is second in the league in saves and Steve Bedrosian has eight saves and six victories to back up Torre's theory.

"I could have more than two complete games, but I can't complain when we are where we are," said Niekro. "Individual goals don't mean anything to me. I've won more games than most, pitched a no-hitter. The only thing left for me is getting in the playoffs and a World Series. It's something I want before I get out of baseball."

Niekro's victory Tuesday was another step in that direction, keeping the Braves ahead of the Dodgers, who beat St. Louis 5-2.

Tar Heels Open With Pitt...

Drechsler says the team should start talking about Pittsburgh next week. Elkins says the team could gain some respect if it can pull off the victory over the Panthers. Crum won't have to say a lot to get the Tar Heels ready, although many have tried to say it for him.

"Playing Pitt makes us prepare a little more diligently," he says. "You say Pittsburgh and our kids will pay attention."

Offensive guard Dave Bryant will get all the carries he can handle, but so will his replacements.

"Last year, it turned out we needed three tailbacks when we thought we had two and were in good shape, he says. When Kelvin decides to come out, whichever one of the guys goes in, Kelvin knows that they're not coming out until they're ready. It works out pretty well."

Players Have No New Money Offer For NFL Owners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of National Football League owners unveiling a new money offer as talks resume in their contract negotiations with the players' union have been dashed by their chief negotiator.

In an interview on the eve of resumption of talks, Jack Donlan, executive director of the NFL's Management Council, said union leaders are in for a "big disappointment" if they think he is coming to town with a new financial offer.

"A new offer? Unequivocally no," Donlan said. "The owners are still entitled to a detailed response to our last offer."

The National Football League Players Association rejected the owners' 48-page financial package out of hand on July 13.

Speculation that the owners were prepared to change their money proposal was fueled by a Monday-night meeting in Los Angeles attended by executives from seven teams.

"We are very anxious to learn what was discussed in Los Angeles," said Ed Garvey, NFLPA executive director.

"Alternatives to our last offer were discussed," said Jim Miller, spokesman for the management council, the league's bargaining agent.

"We have said all along that our last offer was not our final offer but the basis for a settlement," Miller continued.

"Alternative proposals were discussed but that is as far as it went," Donlan said. "We are constantly reviewing negotiations with the owners."

The union's collective bargaining agreement with the league expired on July 15. Talks broke down July 23 as both sides failed to agree on a site for further negotiations.

The NFLPA had refused to resume talks until guaranteed players on the negotiating committee, busy at summer training camps, would be given time off to participate in future discussions.

Meanwhile, Garvey, refused to rule out a possible strike by the players in this third week of the exhibition season.

"A strike this week is highly unlikely but not impossible," Garvey said.

Garvey said he personally feels the owners will withhold any new offer until after Sept. 3, to catch the players between the exhibition season and the start of the regular season on Sept. 12.

"I don't feel the owners will chance opening the season without a contract with the (players') union," Garvey said.

"How much progress is made this week depends on how the owners come into the meeting. If they come in willing to discuss a new financial plan we could hammer away and make some headway. If they come in with the usual lecture on how we shouldn't oppose their antitrust legislation in Congress probably nothing will happen," Garvey concluded.

Rallies From 4-0 Deficit For 6th Straight

Atlanta Blasts Carlton

By The Associated Press
You're trying to hold on to first place, at least for one more day. The other guys get four runs in the first inning. The man you have to come back against is named Steve Carlton.

Pretty grim, huh?

"I didn't like it at all," said Atlanta Manager Joe Torre, whose Braves found themselves behind 4-0 against Philadelphia's ace left-hander Tuesday night. "But we had a five-game winning streak, have been playing aggressive and then Jerry (Royster) got us going again with the home run."

And before the night was over, the Braves had blasted Carlton from the mound during a six-run fourth inning as they took a 9-7 victory from the Phillies. Atlanta's sixth consecutive victory enabled it to stay on top in the National League West, one percentage point ahead of Los Angeles.

Royster's first-inning homer made it 4-1. Bob Horner belted his 25th homer of the year in the third inning to close the gap to 4-2.

"I'd rather face anybody than Carlton when he's on," said Horner. "I've seen him throw better."

The big fourth inning was highlighted by Dale Murphy's two-run homer, his league-leading 31st of the season.

Carlton, 16-9, has been hit hard in his last three starts, allowing 29 hits and 18 earned runs in 211-3 innings and watching his earned run average soar from 2.95 to 3.56.

Veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro, 12-3, picked up the victory for Atlanta.

Dodgers 5, Cardinals 2
Bob Welch, 15-8, fired a four-hitter and Ken Landreaux tripled twice, singled and scored three runs to lead the Dodgers.

"I was throwing the ball pretty good. I was fluid, and I was moving the fastball around. They (the Cardinals) have got some jackrabbits, and they'll run you to death if you let them," said Welch.

Landreaux, meanwhile, came out of a 3-for-33 slump.

Pirates 6, Padres 5
Tony Pena's RBI single in the 11th off Juan Eichelberger scored Lee Lacy with the winning run and capped a stirring Pirate late-inning comeback.

The Pirates trailed, 5-1, going into the seventh inning. They picked up two runs in the seventh and one in the eighth to close the gap to 5-4. Then, with two out in the ninth, Bill Madlock tied it with a solo homer off Gary Lucas.

"I was definitely looking for a homer," said Madlock. "That's the only thing I could do. I was looking for a fastball up and he gave me one."

Expos 5, Reds 1
Scott Sanderson, 7-11, scattered nine hits and won his first game since June 20.

Expos catcher Gary Carter, who blasted his 25th home run of the year in the second inning, said of Sanderson, "He really pitched a strong game. His control was excellent. The key is his breaking ball. When he gets it over, the hitters can't sit on his fast ball."

Montreal's Al Oliver completed a streak in which he picked up six consecutive hits over three games, and saw his National League-leading batting average climb to .338.

Astros 5, Mets 4
Phil Garner lashed a two-out eighth inning double down the left field line to drive home Dickie Thon with the winning run as the Astros sent the Mets to their ninth straight defeat.

Victims of a poor start, the Astros have now won 11 of their last 15 games.

For the Mets, last in the NL East, their frustrations were symbolized as Hubie Brooks was called out at the plate in the eighth inning on a play that would have given them a 5-4 lead. Brooks was then ejected after vehemently arguing the call with umpire Ed Montague.

Cubs 8, Giants 4
Bill Buckner smashed a three-run homer and drove in four runs, while Bump Wills drove in three runs with a pair of singles to lead the Cubs over the Giants.

Buckner also hit into two double plays.

"That's the first time this season I've hit into two double plays in one game," said Buckner, "but I'll trade that for four runs batted in anytime. I've won a batting title before but I'm really getting a charge out of driving in runs."

Ferguson Jenkins, 9-13, picked up the victory.

Hunt To Challenge Gryphons...

(Continued from page 17) is going to determine what kind of a year we're going to have," he said. Beddingfield will use the 1 formation on offense and a fitty defense. Fullback Ricky Barnes is one of the top returning players, while Pat Artis leads the defense at linebacker. "Linebacking should be a strong point for us," Barger adds.

Defensive end Woody Mercer, a newcomer, could develop into a class player, Barger feels. "If we could finish in the middle with as many young kids as we have, I think that would be a pretty good showing. You set your sights high, but realistically speaking I'd be tickled to death if we were still in the midst of things in the final three weeks."

Kinston High School is one of three in the league with a new coach this year (the others, Northern Nash and Northeastern). David Gutshall has taken over that program in hopes of getting it back on its feet. "We hope to be competitive and stay close and hope to have some good things happen in the fourth quarter," Gutshall said of his team's outlook.

The Vikings return only two people to their offensive starting lineup and three to the defense and some of them will be playing new positions this year. So Gutshall terms the team as very inexperienced. "Our major problem is going to be depth," he said.

He will run Kinston out of the split back offense and the 5-2 defense.

Top returns include all-conference wide receiver Mike Pittman, who will move to running back; all-conference nose guard Mark Hawkins; linebacker/tight end Roy Sutton, tackle Dennis Suggs, quarterback/linebacker John Hooton and wide receiver Harold Fleming. "The rest of our squad is one big question mark," Gutshall said.

"We only have one coach back from the old staff, so it's a completely new program for Kinston," the coach said. "We don't know a lot about who we'll be playing. We're also small. We don't have anyone over 200 pounds on our roster."

Gutshall sees this as a building year, "but I don't like to use that word. On paper we're not supposed to be that good, but I'm an optimist and I hope the best will happen for us."

At Northern Nash, Buddy Green has taken over the head coaching position, becoming the third Knight coach in the last five seasons.

"This could be a very interesting year," he said. "We're young and inexperienced, but our attitude is very good. We're going to play week to week and try to keep the enthusiasm up. Our attitude is going to have to be excellent for us to succeed."

While Green admits that a transition from one coaching staff to another is always tough, he feels that some early wins can do a lot to overcome this. "Winning our seniors over is a key to being successful too, even if a lot of them won't be starters."

While the Knights return 13 lettermen, Green pointed out that he has only two returning starters on defense and two on offense. He then points out that they are the same two people.

Those two are Norman Mills, who plays offensive guard and linebacker, and Willie Battle, who also plays the same two positions.

"A lot of our seniors didn't play last year, and most of the people on the team played junior varsity ball," Green said. The team's offense will be from multiple sets while the defense will be from the five-man front. "A lot of what we do is going to depend on how healthy we stay," the coach added. "Hopefully, we won't have anymore than five people going both ways."

Green, asked about his team's chances in the league, replied that he would like to see the Knights finish in first place. "But this conference is very strong. Our inexperience and youth is definitely going to be a factor for us, and the big question mark is whether we can stay healthy. I would imagine that most people are going to place us low in the conference."

Tennis Lessons Set To Begin

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department Fall Tennis Programs will begin Sept. 7. Adult tennis lessons will be offered in two- and four-week sessions for three levels: beginners (no knowledge of the game); advanced beginners (have had formal instruction); intermediates (2 to 5 years experience). The first begins Sept. 7 and runs through Oct. 4. The second session will be from Oct. 11 to Nov. 4. Registration for all classes will be held Aug. 30-Sept. 3 from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the River Birch Tennis Center. There is a $4 fee. For more information contact the River Birch Tennis Center at 756-9343. Beginning also Sept. 7 will be tryouts for the Girls' Junior High Tennis Team (grades 7-9). This is a team for advanced players. Tryouts will be held at the River Birch Tennis Center Sept. 7-10 beginning at 4 p.m.

New Chicago Archbishop Advises Abandon Anger

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) - The city's Roman Catholic priests joyously welcomed Joseph L. Bernardin with song, standing ovations and a candlelight salute as their new archbishop urged them to "cast off" anger or bitterness toward his controversial predecessor.

Bernardin, 54, who on Tuesday officially became leader of the nation's largest archdiocese, called for unity in his first homily to about 1,500 fellow priests who gathered in the century-old Holy Name Cathedral for a twilight prayer vigil.

Speaking from the pulpit just moments after donning the ornate velvet and satin vestments and mitre of his office, Bernardin called on the priests to pray for Cardinal John P. Cody, who died on April 25 at the age of 74.

Aware of the strained relations that existed between some priests and Cody during Cody's 17 years as head of the archdiocese, Bernardin praised Cody's half-century in the church, saying he "did many good things for Chicago which make my work easier."

"If any hard feelings, bitterness, or anger - toward the cardinal or among yourselves - remain in your hearts for any reason, tonight is the night to cast off the burden and purify your hearts," he said. "Let us continue to pray for Cardinal Cody."

The cathedral, crowded with priests, burst into applause.

The homily was interrupted three times by applause. During the evening prayer service, Bernardin also was greeted warmly with three standing ovations and a candlelight salute from the priests who joined in a hymn, "O Radiant Light."

Bernardin, Chicago's seventh archbishop, is expected to be named a cardinal by Pope John Paul II, although it is uncertain when he would receive the red hat.

Bernardin stood near an altar decked with bright yellow flowers and flickering candles, and responded to the hearty welcome with a gentle smile and a brief wave.

Joining him were top church leaders, including the Rev. John Richard Keating, administrator of the archdiocese since Cody's death, and the Most Rev. Pio Laghi, the Vatican's apostolic delegate to the United States.

Laghi, who carried the letter from John Paul appointing Bernardin archbishop of Chicago, told the priests Bernardin will "not only be a bishop's bishop but a priests' bishop totally dedicated to his clergy."

Bernardin, archbishop of Cincinnati for 10 years and a native of Columbia, S.C., noted he and Cody were of "different generations" and different experiences. He said he was only 4 years old when Cody became a priest.

"I was saddened, very saddened, by the pain, suffering, and conflict that seemed to cloud his final years," said Bernardin. "The achievements of his 50 years of priesthood are real and lasting."

It was an apparent reference to a federal grand jury investigation into allegations that Cody had diverted up to $1 million in church funds to Helen Dolan Wilson, a step-cousin and lifelong friend. Both denied the charges and the probe was closed after Cody's death, without any indictments.

Most of Bernardin's homily was about his plans and his hopes for the 2.43 million Catholics in the Chicago archdiocese. Bernardin said he has no detailed program for the archdiocese, which includes 444 parishes, "Nor do I have a bag of tricks."

However, he said, he will reconstitute the Senate of Priests, a forum concerned with the needs of the local parishes. He also said he has accepted the suggestion of the Senate to take part in regional meetings to discuss the family and the church.

"I have been a priest for 30 years, and I still do not fully comprehend the mystery of the priesthood. But this much

I know. The priesthood is not a job," Bernardin said. Instead, it "is a passionate commitment, a fiery-eyed vision, and an insatiable thirst for holiness and practical justice."

Mystified Over Fireball In Sky

By The Associated Press
Authorities were mystified by sightings across the Northeast which provoked dozens of calls to police and fire departments about a "large white ball descending in the sky."

"We aren't missing anything," said Federal Aviation Administration duty officer Bill Nantz in New York, dismissing the possibility it was a stray aircraft. "We have no idea at this time what it was."

"Beats us," said Edward Yandrich of the National Weather Service.

Jim Chanarde of the Union City College Astronomer's Club in Cranford, N.J., said the observatory there sighted the object through a telescope at about 8:33 p.m. Tuesday.

Although the Comet Austin is in the evening sky this month it appears on the horizon and "has nothing of this brightness," said Chanarde, who believed it was a meteor.

Dr. Kenneth Franklin, an astronomer at the Hayden Planetarium in New York, said it may have been the planet Jupiter. "Jupiter is low in the sky now and it can be very bright," he said.

"It looked like space junk," said Ed Worth Jr., of Center Valley, Pa., who said he first noticed the object when it illuminated the tail pipes of his motorcycle.

Some people said the objects changed colors as it faded, according to Nantz.

He theorized a meteor may have caused the display, reported to authorities by concerned citizens from Washington, D.C., to Long Island in New York.

Dr. Allen Barwick, an adjunct astronomy professor at American University in Washington, explained the light show as a normal meteor shower, caused by the Earth's movement through debris left by Haley's Comet, which passed by in 1910 and is due back in 1985-86.

"When the comet came in close to the sun, the particles were spread out from it and left behind... these particles come into our atmosphere and burn up," he said.

'Overwhelmed' By Recovery

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher "simply won't allow herself to be ill" and made such a strong recovery from varicose vein surgery that she was working the next day, her physician says.

"I can't believe how completely overwhelmed I am with the way this woman has recovered," Dr. John Henderson said. "She is behaving as if nothing happened."

Mrs. Thatcher returned to work Tuesday. The prime minister, 56, had the surgery performed under general anesthesia and left the clinic Monday night, 11 hours after checking in. Henderson said the operation was needed to reduce pain and for cosmetic purposes.

MONKEY BUSINESS — Calling himself Harry James the trumpet-playing gorilla, Brian Wisniewsky of San Francisco, blew into New York to play at the Delacort Theater in Central Park with the group he belongs to called Klezmerim, who play a style of music known as Klezmer music, which had its beginnings over 400 years ago with the traveling peasants of Europe. The group is from Berkley, Calif., and is currently on a cross-country tour. Wisniewsky is one of the regulars seen along San Francisco's Fisherman's Wharf, a popular tourist attraction. The planned opening concert was rained out, but they plan to try for another show Friday. (AP Laserphoto)

Drysdale, Harrelson Find No Easy Time In Broadcast Roles

By DENNIS O'SHEA
CHICAGO (UPI) — It doesn't make much sense that a couple of knowledgeable, smooth-talking, nationally known baseball men should have a tough time replacing broadcasters known more for their antics than their analysis.

But it hasn't been easy for ex-Dodger pitching ace Don Drysdale and former Red Sox slugger Ken "Hawk" Harrelson in their first year behind the microphone for the Chicago White Sox. "No one's going to please everybody and you have to accept that," said Drysdale, a nine-time All-Star who switched to the White Sox press box from the California Angels while continuing his part-time work with ABC-TV. "I have been a little subdued," said Harrelson. "The first time you walk into somebody's house you make sure your feet are clean. It's going to take some time."

Drysdale and the Hawk have impressed the critics with their smooth delivery, their easy banter and their professional calls of White Sox games, but some of the city's hard-to-please sports fans have been slower to come around.

The newcomers are haunted by their popular predecessors on White Sox telecasts, Harry Caray and Jimmy Piersall.

Caray, a veteran showman of a play-by-play man, announced games from the bleachers, snagged foul balls with an always close-to-hand butterfly net and led the Comiskey Park crowd in their seventh-inning stretch renditions of "Take Me out to the Ballgame."

Piersall, a colorful major leaguer for 17 years, was in some ways even more entertaining in the press box, getting into celebrated tiffs with managers and umpires, characterizing players' wives as "horny broads" and trying to throttle at least one suburban sportswriter. "I knew that Harry and Jimmy were very popular here," said Harrelson, who had built a faithful following, but with a style of his own, in seven years of broadcasting for the Red Sox.

"The transition from Harry and Jimmy is like day and night," he said. "The game is the thing, not the announcers. We try to stay with baseball and not get off on personalities because that's not our style."

Drysdale, who has been doing national broadcasts since 1977, said some fans berate him because, unlike his predecessors, he is not blatantly pulling for the local boys when he calls a game.

"But that's the style I was brought up with," he said. "I don't think an announcer should be a rooster. He shouldn't be screaming and hollering."

Piersall is still in town, doing pre-and post-game commentary on radio and television, and Caray has drawn a lot of viewers to the North Side, where he now leads seventh-inning choruses at the Cubs'

Wrigley Field. But the legacy of the Caray-Piersall era is only one of the obstacles the Drysdale-Harrelson team has had to hurdle in its effort to win the hearts of Chicagoans.

The Sox switched both radio and television outlets this year, and many of the games routinely shown over the air in the past have been relegated to a new pay-TV operation that is, as yet, drawing relatively few viewers.

That makes it tough for the fans to get to know their new announcers, and on top of that, there were complaints early in the season that listeners couldn't tell their voices apart.

"I took that as a compliment, because I love Don's voice," joked Harrelson, who believes the problem has been licked now that he and Drysdale no longer switch from TV to radio for three innings a game or trade play-by-play and color chores as often as they did at first.

"I'm just so pleased that we've changed the format," he said. "It's better for the viewer because you don't make seven changes on him in a game and it's better for the announcers because you develop some continuity. I think that's part of the reason for the past couple of weeks the reception is so much better."

Both the Hawk and his partner say they're very happy they switched to the ChiSox. They think they're

Jas. Stewart's Condition OK

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — James Stewart, admitted to St. John's Hospital to see whether he was taking too much or too little heart medication, is back home after a thorough checkup in which he was found to be in excellent health.

The 74-year-old screen star was put in the hospital last week and released Tuesday. The medicine was prescribed two years ago when Stewart suffered skipped heart beats, said his publicist, John Strauss.

"He is in excellent condition. His checkup has been complete," said Marina sitting on a potential winner, the pennant winner that legendarily patient Chicago baseball fans have prayed for since 1959.

They believe that once the fans get accustomed to the new voices and get excited about improvements the club's new owners have made, they'll be as much a part of the family as Caray and his unpredictable sidekick once were.

"The people are becoming more receptive; they're warmer," said Harrelson. "It's a private and intimate thing, that people will let you come into their homes. They're a little apprehensive at first and there are those who aren't going to like you at first."

"The show is not in the booth, it's on the field," added Drysdale. "I think they're more concerned about the Sox winning. You could stand on your head in there if the Sox won."

Stewart, star of "The Philadelphia Story," "Harvey," "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and "The Spirit of St. Louis," will film a movie called "Right of Way" this fall with actress Bette Davis, said Jane DeKnatel, a vice president of the HBO cable TV system.

The movie is about an aging couple who refuse to be separated by illness and who take dramatic measures to stay together.

CBS Cable Has Moyers Guiding Tour Of Past

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — It's difficult to imagine a more thoughtful and assuring guide on a tour of the recent past than Bill Moyers.

Moyers has mastered — like few, if any, of his contemporaries in broadcast journalism — the mix of intellect and film in meaningful, and watchable, exploration of a complex subject. His current project for CBS Cable, "A Walk Through the Twentieth Century with Bill Moyers," is a typical — though indeed extraordinary — effort to lend meaning to issues and events familiar to, but perhaps beyond the personal experience of, most viewers.

The series of 20 hour-long programs begins Sept. 8 with "The Democrat and the Dictator," a unique study of Roosevelt and Hitler, two master communicators distinct in personality and style. The show — like others to follow — includes rare footage, much of it from West German and other European archives.

Moyers' approach to the premiere program suggests a reason for its immediate appeal — and for his success in the medium in general. "We could never have written a script in advance that would tell the story as well as this does," he says. "We started studying the film we had — lots of film — and let it speak to us."

"Our desire," he says, "was to take this fascinating photography and make something that was more than quaint and irrelevant."

"A Walk Through the Twentieth Century" is in no sense "quaint and irrelevant." In fact, its primary deficiency is its relative inaccessibility; cable TV necessarily limits the audience for even the most important program.

"This is something every child should see," Moyers says, and he's right.

The second program in the series, "The Newsreel: Sounds and Images of a Century," will be distributed to CBS Cable subscribers Sept. 22, with the third, a gripping show called "WWII: The Propaganda Battle," to follow on Oct. 6.

A program titled "The Turn of the Century" will be offered Oct. 20. But for the "mechanics of production," it might have been the logical starting point for the series.

"We finished 'The Democrat and the Dictator' first," Moyers says, "and when I saw it, there was something that shouted, 'Stop, look and listen!' When you think about the 20th century, we — those of us born just before and since World War II — are its children.

"Growing up as a child, it was their eyes — Hitler's and Roosevelt's — peering over my shoulder, the men and the forces that shaped my perception of the world," he says.

The Corporation for Entertainment & Learning, Inc., produced "A Walk Through the Twentieth Century," as it did Moyers' equally remarkable "Creativity" series broadcast on public TV last season. Moyers, meanwhile, has completed work on "Six Great Ideas," a series of hour-long programs based on conversations with philosopher-author Mortimer Adler. The Public Broadcasting Service series will premiere Oct. 25.

He continues as commentator and analyst for CBS' "Evening News."

More Than Half Found 'Unfit'

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half the youths of America are unable to reach basic physical-fitness standards devised by the Amateur Athletic Union, according to a fitness-profile study. Pediatric News, a medical publication, says the AAU conducted a random sampling of 7,600 students, aged 6 to 17, with such exercises as sit-ups, push-ups, high jumps, distance running and springs. Only 43 percent of the students tested in the 1979-1980 and 1990-1981 school years could meet basic standards, based on averages of samples from nationwide scores from previous years. The publication said the decrease in fitness might be due to the failure of schools to have compulsory gym and physical-fitness classes after the eighth grade.

Celebrate With Us... And Save!
At Bob Barbour Honda, we have a lot to celebrate...and we're doing it from now through the end of August with a special sale. Come take advantage of the great deals we're offering!
We're # 1 in Pitt County.
One reason for our celebration is that we're the number one import dealer in Pitt County...with more Hondas registered this year than any other import car.
National Award: Quality Dealer.
Something else we're celebrating: Bob Barbour Honda has just been selected as one of the Nation's top 40 Honda dealers. This Quality Dealer Award is something we're particularly proud of because we've built our business on a dedication to quality since we began.
An Award Winning Facility, Too.
Our beautiful new facility (it's a year old this month) has recently won a national award for design. So we have a third reason to celebrate.
Fireworks Thursday 9 pm!
Last year, when we opened our new Honda facility, we decided to celebrate with a spectacular fireworks display. So this year, we've decided to do it again. This Thursday night at 9, right over our showroom, there'll be a real show! Plan to come join in the fun.

FURRY COUSIN OF E.T.? WRONG! — Called Heller's fruit bat, this fearsome creature posed for LIFE magazine in his natural habitat, a cave in the Costa Rican rain forest preserve of La Selva where a team of young biologists is working to preserve one of the world's richest ecological systems. The bat is thought to use his leaf-shaped nose as a radar dish for navigation that receives squeaks bounced off surrounding objects. (AP Laserphoto, copyright LIFE).

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — It's

1906, and the mailman has delivered a card from a friend out West. It has a photograph of pioneer-author Ezra Meeker standing alongside a covered wagon and oxen team.

Meeker is on the prairie somewhere along the Oregon Trail, retracing his 1852 five-month journey from Iowa to Portland.

The card cost a penny and postage was a penny. On the back is a "Wish You Were Here" message.

Another picture post card shows Meeker and his rig in front of his Puyallup, Wash., homestead, and there are others in the Meeker series.

The Meeker cards were among hundreds of millions flowing from Curt Teich and Co., Inc. in Chicago, showing buildings, streets, parks, lakes and other scenes depicting local communities and settings around the world. Teich, the father of the picture post card, virtually monopolized the business until World War I. The company was sold in 1974 when Teich died.

Today a legacy of more than a million of the originals is going to the Lake County Museum in Wauconda, 50 miles north of Chicago.

"They are a gift by Regensteiner Publishing Enterprises Inc., of Chicago, which operated the Teich firm briefly after acquiring it in 1976.

Teich's son, Ralph, has donated $395,000 from the Curt Teich Foundation to build a permanent exhibit. The cards will be inventoried by computer, sorted and cataloged by a staff. There also will be an exhibit to travel to museums, libraries, schools and other facilities throughout the United States and in many European capitals where scenes were shot and reproduced years ago.

"The project may take five to 10 years," Ralph Teich said. "Dad always saved 15 cards from every scene produced. They are all stored at the Regensteiner company.

"Post cards are more than attractive things to look at," he said. "They are a communication device that brings people, places and memories together and holds them. There probably is a post card in every home in the world. But nothing ever was done to document a history of them until now."

Curt Teich may have gotten his idea from hand-painted post cards from Switzerland of bees, birds, flowers, his son said.

"But those cards had to be mailed in envelopes. It wasn't until 1898 that Congress voted to allow cards to be mailed without envelopes. That's when Dad put his idea into action."

The elder Teich took trains from Chicago to Florida and on to California and back.

"Every time the train stopped, Dad got off with his camera, his order pad and his idea," Teich said.

He took minimum orders for 1,000 cards for $1 and returned from the 90-day trip with $30,000 in orders, plus a lineup of distributors and contributing photographers.

When Congress voted, he was ready to roll with a headstart that spread worldwide and cornered the picture-post card market.

In addition to scenes of often obscure communities, the cards also have holiday greetings, patriotic and religious messages, flowers and pretty women.

Berkeley To Vote On Electroshock Therapy Ban

By JOHN RICE
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Ted Chabasinski was 6 years old when doctors clamped electrodes to his temples, and jolts of electricity sent him into convulsions. They did it about 20 times over a period of weeks and then locked him away in a mental hospital for 10 years.

Chabasinski doesn't think he was crazy. He thinks his treatment was. Now an articulate, 44-year-old activist for mental patients' rights, he has authored what may be the nation's first ballot initiative aimed at banning electroconvulsive therapy, or ECT.

The Berkeley municipal vote is an outgrowth of a nationwide movement, led by former mental patients and some psychiatrists, protesting alleged psychiatric abuse of unwilling patients.

Advocates of the ban say it would halt a widely used technique that allegedly burns the brain and damages the memories of helpless patients.

Leading psychiatrists deny that the therapy, also called electroshock, causes brain damage or long-term memory loss. They say banning it could leave thousands of chronically depressed, even suicidal patients without help.

The Coalition to Stop Electroshock collected about 2,500 signatures — they needed 1,400 — to place the issue on Berkeley's Nov. 2 ballot. It would make anyone performing the shock treatments subject to six months in jail and a $500 fine.

"I think it's a very sympathetic issue," Chabasinski said. "Basically, they're going ahead and causing brain damage just to subdue people."

But leading psychiatric organizations disagree sharply. "It's a very important procedure in psychiatry, sometimes life-saving, and one of the most effective treatments for depression," said Dr. Howard Gurevitz, president of the California Psychiatric Association.

"It's an unusual kind of thing to have a public initiative about," said Dr. Robert Campbell, vice president of the 27,000-member American Psychiatric Association. "We think it's inappropriate."

Gurevitz said he's certain that doctors and patient groups will organize to fight the measure. "I think we certainly should respond to it," echoed Campbell.

Electroconvulsive therapy involves a quick jolt of 70 to 150 volts in order to create a convulsion similar to an epileptic fit. Each patient generally receives six to 12 treatments.

Patients are given drugs to eliminate pain and muscle spasms, which before the advent of muscle-relaxing drugs were sometimes so strong that patients broke bones.

Researchers say they are not sure why the convulsions — which can also be produced with gas or chemicals — work. But that is true of many medical treatments, psychiatrists say.

The Berkeley ban would affect only one facility, Herick Hospital, which performed the therapy on 45 patients in 1981, said spokeswoman Gloria Dunn.

But Chabasinski said he would like to see the effort to ban electroshock spread. "San Francisco seems a real natural place to go," he said. "Then we could probably form a coalition around the state."

State records show that between 2,400 and 2,700 patients received electroshock treatments each year from 1977 through 1980 in about 70 facilities around California.

A nationwide 1975 survey by the National Institute of Mental Health showed 60,000 patients, about 5.7 percent of all psychiatric patients in the surveyed institutions, received shock therapy.

"To be honest, this is one way of having a referendum on mental patients' rights and the way they are treated," said Chabasinski.

Among the groups supporting the electroshock ban is the Berkeley-based Network Against Psychiatric Assault, one of many groups around the country which have demonstrated against forced mental treatments.

"People often get labeled as mentally ill or schizophrenic because they're a problem to people around them," said Jenny Miller, a Network staff member.

Chabasinski and other electroshock foes, many speaking from personal experience, contend the treatment causes brain damage and permanent memory loss. "I've never met anyone who got a number of shock treatments who got back all their memory," he said.

The possibility of brain damage "is the remotest kind of thing," said Dr. George Wayne, a clinical psychologist at UCLA who was on a 1978 American Psychiatric Association studying the shock therapy.

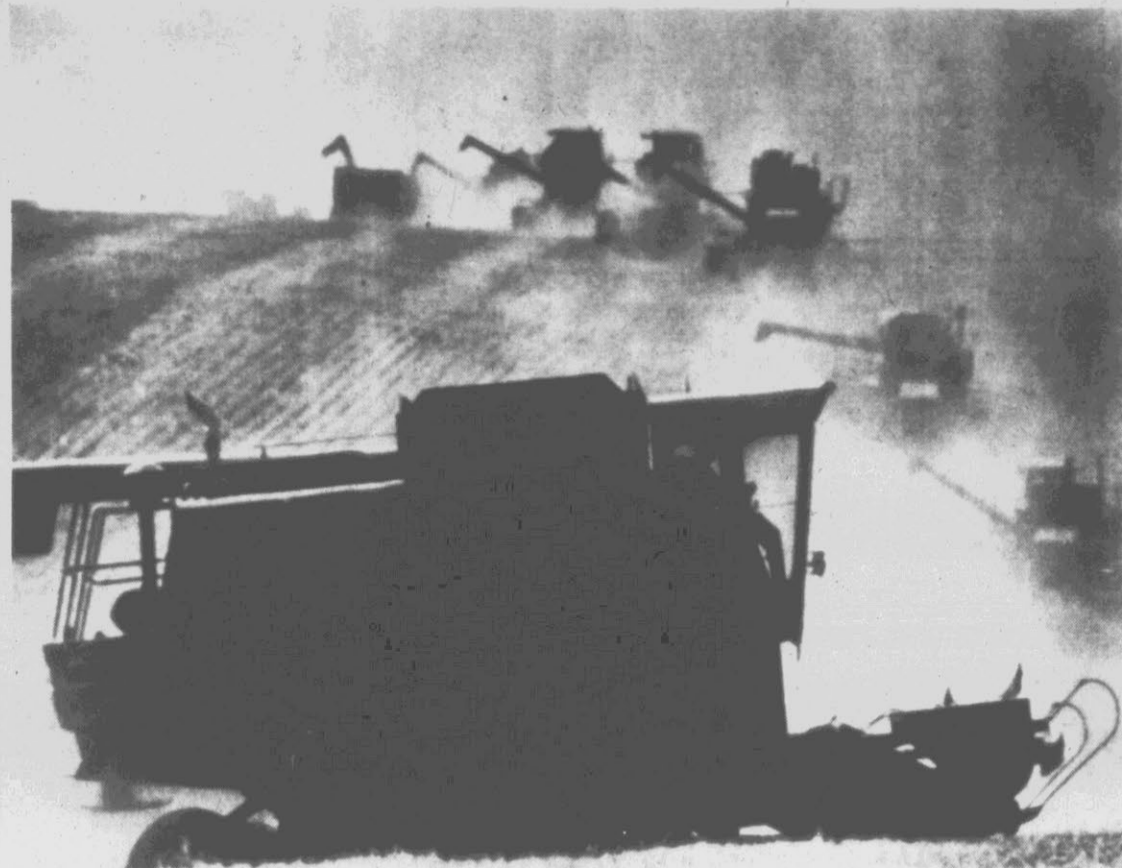

"There is no question about its safety if practised properly," Wayne said.

The method now used produces "relatively small amounts" of short-term memory loss, Wayne said. "Within about six weeks you can hardly tell there's been any memory impairment," and within six months there's no impairment noticeable.

Dozens of former mental patients testified against electroshock at a recent Berkeley City Council hearing — and not one for it. But Gurevitz said, "The people who have been satisfied with their treatment are not the ones who want to come forward" because of the stigma involved.

Many patients request the treatment because they have had good experiences and prefer it to other forms of treatment, such as drugs. Gurevitz and Campbell said.

"I don't think the emotional problems of human beings ought to be dragged into the political process and made a popularity contest," Gurevitz said.

GOOD NEIGHBORS — Combines move across Loren Bodeau's barley fields on his farm near Wilbur, Washington this week as neighbors brought more than 30 of the machines to harvest his 380-acre crop. New Aid In Transplants BRIGHTON, England (AP) — A new drug, cyclosporine, increases the survival chances of heart transplant patients and cuts the cost of the operation from $100,000 to $50,000, an American doctor reported.

Dr. Norman Shumway of Stanford University Medical Center told the ninth international congress of the Transplant Society Monday that cyclosporine boosted the survival chances of patients in the first year of receiving their new heart from 2-in-3 to 4-in-5.

Shumway said his medical team was the first to use cyclosporine for heart transplants. He said the drug interferes with the body's immune system, which normally rejects transplanted tissue.

Most immuno-suppressant drugs also destroy the body's resistance to disease and the healing process, he said. But he reported cyclosporine, while preventing rejection, leaves the immune process intact, thus improving a patient's chance of survival.

But leading psychiatric organizations disagree sharply.

YOU CAN BE ARRESTED IF THE SCHOOL BUS STOPS AND YOU DON'T!

But a heavy fine and/or jail sentence isn't the worse that can happen if you pass a stopped school bus. Most children killed in pupil transportation are not injured or killed on the bus. Most are struck by motorists who fail to stop for the flashing red lights and extended stop arm on the school bus. The area around the stopped bus is sometimes called the 'death zone.'

Drive responsibly by knowing and reacting to these important rules of the road:

- Flashing amber lights are a pre-warning that the bus is preparing to stop.
- Flashing red lights and extended stop arm means that the bus is stopped to load or unload school passengers.
- Coming from either direction, you must stop when you see the flashing red lights and extended stop arm. Stop at least 20 feet from the bus. Proceed only after these signs have ended and any children are safely on the other side of the roadway.

Fear Return Of Strict Censorship For Brazilians

By BRYNA BRENNAN
Associated Press Writer
BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) - The recent restructuring of the Superior Censorship Council has raised fears that military-government censors may be carrying out their task with considerably more rigor.

It also is causing critics to question the promise of President Joao Figueiredo to restore civilian rule in Brazil for the first time since 1964.

Figueiredo signed a decree in June that ousted the liberal side of the censorship council, replacing it with more conservative government supporters.

Earlier in the year the president called for a crackdown on obscenity and pornography. The Federal Police banned the film "Pra Frente Brasil" (Onward Brazil), which depicts scenes of police torture in the early 1970s. Censors also cut television shows and edited music.

"They're trying to make the censorship more rigorous," said Roberto Pompeu de Souza, the council's representative from the Brazilian Press Association. "But we are tired of a dictatorship and this doesn't permit a return."

Pompeu de Souza added in an interview that Figueiredo changed the composition of the council because it had become "autonomous."

"The government doesn't want to lose power," he said.

Federal Police censors review all films, music, plays and television and radio programs. Under the old law, the Superior Censorship Council was the court of appeals, and in a sense the court of last resort.

Under the new law, anyone - including the Federal Police - can appeal the Superior Censorship Council's decision to the justice minister if the vote by the 16-member council is not unanimous.

"This is crazy," said Pompeu de Souza. Another journalist, who asked not to be identified, called the change "the end of the council."

The journalist said "Pra Frente Brasil," scheduled to be reviewed by the council, will not be released. "The military doesn't want to see this film," he said. "They don't want to remember or recognize this period."

Strict censorship began shortly after the 1964 right-wing military coup that ousted the elected government of President Joao Goulart, a leftist. Records were removed from stores, books and magazines were taken from shelves and newspapers were subject to review before publication.

The ban started to ease in the mid-70s, and then President Ernesto Geisel lifted the ban in 1978.

Figueiredo came into office in 1979, the fifth general to be installed since the coup, and he vowed to return Latin America's largest country back to the civilians.

But midway through his six-year term, last March, the president called for a crackdown on pornography and obscenity. He urged the nation to "preserve moral and social standards."

Anything contrary to moral and social standards can be censored. Also, anything considered a threat to the government can be banned, under terms of the constitution and the National Security Law.

Thirteen people were arrested recently in the northeast city of Salvador for alleged violation of the National Security Law by publishing a pamphlet called "The Guerrilla of Araguaia." The government claims to have wiped out all leftist guerrilla activity in the Araguaia area during the early 1970s, an era of repression that some people refer to as a civil war.

"The National Security Law guarantees the security of the government at the cost of insecurity to the citizens," Pompeu de Souza said.

Euclides Mendonca, head of the Superior Censorship Council, said he personally favors the liberation of the film "Pra Frente Brasil" because "today we don't have this problem on the left." But he said the law states that material can be banned if it leads to the "struggle of the classes or stimulates actions against the regime."

Mendonca said the film leans heavily on the side of repression rather than depicting "the terrorist acts."

He described the new Superior Censorship Council as "more conservative" but also "more diversified."

He said the people let go "never sent representatives" to the meetings and apparently weren't interested.

Mendonca said that between January and May 1982 about 144,000 works were reviewed by the Federal Police and roughly 97 percent were released, some with minor editing. The Superior Censorship Council then released 83 percent of the remaining 3 percent, he added.

"We can't call this dictatorial," Mendonca said. But Pompeu de Souza says self-censorship has been the result. In the case of newspapers, he said "they all depend on the power of the government, and there isn't any newspaper independent of the government."

"All this talk about liberalizing the censorship," said the 76-year-old Pompeu de Souza, "it's just talk."

Human Eye Can Get Sunburned

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - The human eye can get sunburned, says Dr. Seymour Zigman, professor of ophthalmology and biochemistry at the University of Rochester Medical Center.

Continuous exposure to sunlight increases the risk of eye damage. The damage is done by ultraviolet (UV) light, which is invisible to most people. While shorter wavelength UV acutely affects the cornea, longer wavelength UV can chronically damage the lens, causing cataracts.

Good sunglasses are the antidote, Zigman says, because they absorb the short wavelengths, as well as the glare of light in the visible range.

The best color? Amber is the most efficient absorber of invisible light and also protects against glare.

Gas Well Alarm By Solar Power

LINDSAY, Okla. (AP) - Solar energy is powering a radio transmitter alarm on a remote natural-gas well near this central Oklahoma town.

The well is three-quarters of a mile from the nearest power source, so engineers installed a solar device at about half the cost of power lines.

Solar power is becoming more and more a consideration as oil companies drill in remote areas, says Phillips Petroleum.

The radio transmitter monitors the operation, and sends an alarm signal to a maintenance facility if there is a leak, machinery failure or other problem. The alarms are powered by electricity.

N.C. Vet School Provides An On-The-Job Training

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Soon after the sun rises, Steve Klause and his classmates prod dairy cows toward the barn or bring horses to the stalls as they go to school.

In class, Klause and the others learn about anatomy, nutritional requirements and illnesses of the animals.

Klause is a student at North Carolina State University's School of Veterinary Medicine, a modern $32 million structure, pond and rolling pastures located just minutes from the state Capitol.

The daily chores are part of the school's philosophy.

"How do you talk to people about their pet bird unless you've had a pet bird?" said Dr. Ben Harrington, head of the animal unit at the school.

Klause says he likes the program because some other veterinary schools do not encourage so much contact with the animals.

"When you go in a clinic is not the time to be learning," he said. "This is great. That's the concensus from other schools that envy us."

"We don't want to graduate a student from here without a solid background in any area in which they might be asked to act in an advisory role," said Dr. Donald Howard, associate dean in charge of teaching. "It is our intent not to have a Taj Mahal here but an animal operation."

Mirian Spann, an animal technician, compares the school to a collage of miniature farms of dairy cows, beef cattle, goats, horses and swine.

"They (the herds) are small in proportion but you still have all the same problems," she said.

Students are asked to roll up their sleeves and help with the animals as soon as they arrive. Each year, students take on more responsibility. They start working with healthy animals and move to sick animals, solving health maintenance problems and working in animal clinics.

The school, which started with a Harnett County legislator's suggestion in 1961, opened a year ago with a small group of donated animals and classes in cattle barns.

The second 40-member class will arrive Aug. 27 for orientation. Eighty-eight percent of the facility is complete and the number of animals is expected to double this year.

Construction is expected to continue until 1983, when the school will open its animal hospital and admit its first full class of 72 students.

So far 56 faculty members have been hired. The teachers represent every veterinary school in the nation and many left comfortable positions to come to Raleigh, Howard said. Eventually there will be 80 teachers and 20 researchers at the school.

Howard said all the students are from North Carolina.

"Our allegiances as well as our priorities will be to North Carolina students," he said, noting that that statistic may change in the future.

Howard said the school's goal is to accurately reflect the mission of a land-grant university by offering teaching, community service and research.

"Without question our dominant effort is to train people who are concerned with food animal problems," Howard said. "We have tried to direct the teaching program to be sure they're generalists. We have given them essentially a liberal arts education in veterinary medicine."

The school now has about

103 farm and domestic animals which the students help feed, vaccinate, examine and treat in addition to studying and about 40 hours of class a week. The second-year students will begin a computer program this year to calculate exact food requirements depending on each cow's weight and health.

The school sells some wool, milk and animals it produces.

In the community service category, the school has two vets who travel around the state visiting, lecturing and answering questions of farmers and pet owners.

Research will be the last component to be finished. Howard said the school will work closely with other universities and vets at the Research Triangle Park on genetic engineering, toxicology, pharmacology, laboratory animal medicine and pathology.

"The man on the street doesn't know how chickens relate to his health," Howard said, noting that a vet working with chickens helped link cancer with a virus.

E.T. Label Copyrighted

HOUSTON (AP) — This could result in a planetary injunction.

U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals has scheduled a hearing for Sept. 3 on Universal City Studio's request for an injunction to stop a company from putting out coffee mugs emblazoned with the words: "Love E.T."

Universal put out the popular movie "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial," and claims the mugs infringe on its copyright.

Seals on Monday granted Universal's request for a temporary restraining order against Kamar Industries Inc., which does business as Southwest Industries Inc.

Universal lawyer David M. Lacey said Southwest Industries claimed contractual commitments to deliver $100,000 worth of mugs bearing the emblem. Universal filed a lawsuit here after obtaining copies of order forms for the mugs and pencil holders allegedly distributed at a New York trade show.

Kass Andy Aberman, the manager of Southwest Industries, declined to comment on the judge's order.

Simply Require Less Gasoline

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — Gasoline sales in the U.S. have declined, causing more than 50 refinery closings in the past 18 months.

A Phillips Petroleum official says the refineries that do survive will be profitable.

"Gas sales haven't declined because people are driving less, but because they are using more fuel-efficient automobiles and small-car purchases have increased," said Gordon D. Goering, senior vice president.

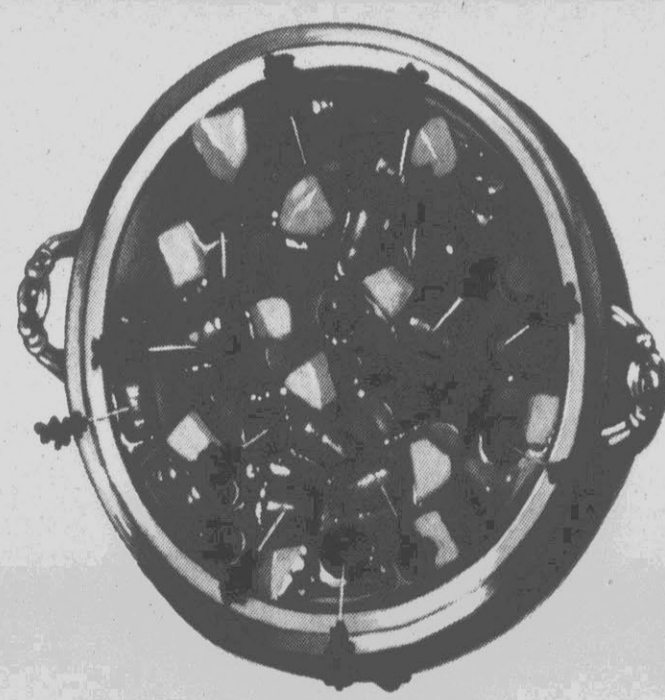

TEACH AN OLD DOG NEW TRICKS.

Any good hot dog can cut the mustard in a bun. But when you want to cook up something really special and different, there's just no substitute for good old Luter's Original Old-Fashioned Hot Dogs.

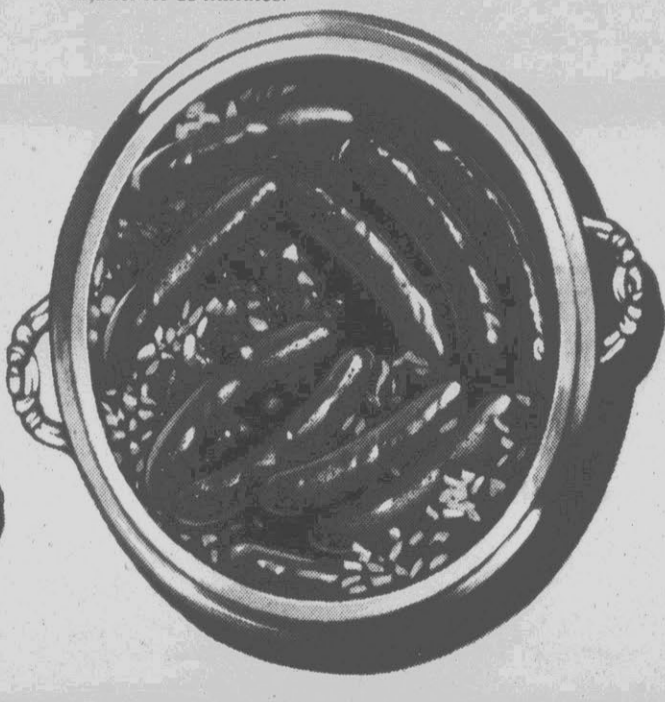

CREOLE WIENERS
8 slices bacon, diced 3/4 teaspoon salt
3 cups minced onion 1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes 1 lb. Luter's hot dogs

Here's a main course that serves six with a flavor that says "barbecue." Fry the bacon and onion in a large skillet until the bacon is crisp and the onion is tender. Drain all but two tablespoons bacon drippings from skillet. Stir in tomatoes, salt and pepper, heat to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add hot dogs, cover and simmer for 15 minutes.

SWEET AND SOUR HOT DOGS
10 oz. currant jelly 10 oz. ketchup
8 oz. Dijon mustard 2 lbs. Luter's hot dogs

For a tangy hors d'oeuvre that serves 30, start by cutting the hot dogs into bite-size pieces. Separately, heat the jelly, mustard and ketchup until the jelly melts. Add hot dogs, heat for 20 minutes, garnish with pineapple chunks and serve in a chafing dish. One word of caution: If you settle for anything less than Luter's Original Old-Fashioned Hot Dogs, just remember, you'll have those 30 guests to answer to.

Tax Finding Unchallenged
In Dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) - Although three U.S. corporations are questioning the figures in an independent analysis of corporate tax rates, they have not challenged the study's finding that they did not pay any federal taxes on their 1981 domestic earnings.

Last week, Tax Analysts, a non-profit research group based in Arlington, Va., released a study of the 1981 federal tax bills for the nation's 514 largest corporations.

Analyzing figures available in public records, the study concluded that 33 firms with pre-tax U.S. earnings of at least $100 million in 1981 did not have to pay any taxes on that income last year because of credits and deductions allowed under federal law.

Two railroad holding companies, Burlington Northern and Union Pacific, and Dow Chemical Co., questioned the before-tax earnings that Tax Analysts attributed to them. Officials at Dow and Union Pacific also challenged the assumptions Tax Analysts made in trying to calculate the firms' tax bills.

The Tax Analysts' study had to make certain assumptions about each company's accounting methods, since the actual tax returns are confidential. The federal corporate tax rate is 46 percent of profits after allowable deductions. The remaining tax bill can be partially or fully offset by tax credits. Sometimes a firm's deductions and credits are greater than its initial tax bill, a situation referred to as a "negative tax rate" because the government technically owes money to the company. Refunds are not made in these cases, but the company can use the excess credits to help offset future tax bills.

LeRoy A. Sundby, vice president and comptroller for Burlington Northern, said the firm's pre-tax earnings were $419 million, not $400.2 million as reported by the study. He acknowledged, though, that the firm did not have to pay any taxes on its 1981 income last year and had $90 million in unused tax credits.

Harvey S. Turner, Union Pacific's director of public relations, said the firm's actual U.S. earnings were $572 million, not $594 million as the study said. Asked if the company also was challenging the study's conclusion that Union Pacific owed no federal taxes on its 1981 income, Turner said, "we didn't dispute that."

Dow Chemical officials disputed the study's earnings figure, contending their domestic earnings totaled $526 million, instead of $516 million.

Glenn White, director of Dow's tax department, said the company paid federal corporate taxes last year, but he refused to disclose the amount and would not say if the payments were for taxes owed on last year's earnings or for taxes owed from prior years.

March Starcher, an attorney for Tax Analysts, said it is possible Dow paid taxes in 1981 on earnings made in prior years, "but I would absolutely say they did not pay any (federal) taxes on 1981 income."

Still Protest Thinning Herd

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A hunt to thin a herd of starving deer in the waterlogged Florida Everglades ended a month ago, but letters protesting the shootings keep arriving at Gov. Bob Graham's office.

Almost all of the nearly 500 letters, telegrams and mailgrams received are against the hunt, authorized in July by the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. The hunt ended July 19 after 730 animals had been killed.

The 5,500-deer herd was starving to death because heavy rains had drowned its natural food supply of aquatic plants and reduced the amount of dry land to roam, the commission said. Conservationists fought the hunt, contending the herd could be moved. Hunting groups supported the mercy kill as being scientifically sound.

Controversy Looms Over Water Right

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Water — a resource that used to be taken for granted — may become the subject of legal battles in the future between cities upstream and downstream from water supplies.

To get their shares, areas without adequate water have proposed transferring water from one river basin to another, while downstream users worry that upstream irrigators may leave them dry.

"We've got a lot of areas with a lot of water, and we've got a few areas with not much water — and it's these areas where a lot of the growth is taking place," said John Wray of the N.C. office of water resources.

One place where problems have developed recently is Greensboro, which is at the headwaters of the Cape Fear basin. The basin extends from the north-central Piedmont to the Atlantic Ocean and covers 9,223 square miles in 29 counties. Headwaters are particularly sensitive to dry spells and aren't always dependable.

Greensboro has suggested that during dry spells it could take water from the neighboring Yadkin-Pee Dee basin, the second largest on the East Coast, and discharge it into the meager Cape Fear headwaters. But Winston-Salem and towns all the way to Georgetown, S.C., don't want their water transferred.

"The danger is that we'd transfer all our potential growth to another part of the state and before long, the Yadkin would be nothing but a trickle stream," said state Rep. Robie Nash, D-Rowan, who chairs the Yadkin-Pee Dee River Basin Committee, which represents the basin's citizens.

But transfers could become necessary within 20 years, said David Moreau of the Department of City and Regional Planning and Environmental Sciences at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"If growth in our Piedmont cities continues as projected, we'll have to start moving water around," he said.

Interbasin transfer would replace an old English common law water doctrine called riparian rights, which gives landholders on a waterway the right to use water, but not to diminish the quality or quantity for downstream users.

A 1977 North Carolina study of all river basins in the state suggested riparian rights might need to be re-examined.

"As North Carolina continues to develop and competition between water users increases, existing laws, particularly the doctrine of riparian rights, will become less and less effective in dealing with emerging situations," the study said.

Greensboro's water shortage problems may be solved if the proposed Randleman dam is built on the Deep River about 15 miles south of the city.

Congress has not yet provided the money for the $139 million project, which would supply 48 million gallons of water per day to Greensboro, High Point, Archdale, Jamestown, Guilford County and other areas.

See Israel As Banking Center

NEW YORK (AP) — An American who arranges commercial ties between Israeli and U.S. companies predicts that after terrorists are removed from Lebanon, Israel will become a commercial-banking center, a "Switzerland of the Middle East."

Elmer Winter, president of a non-profit Committee for the Economic Growth of Israel, says that with terrorists gone, he foresees Galilee becoming the "Silicon Valley" of the region from which electronic miracles will flow as they do now from "Silicon Valley" in California.

He says plans for sophisticated electronics manufacturing and research laboratories in Galilee have been held back because of terrorist threats from across the border in Lebanon.

One-Third Of Naples' Children Work, Not Study

By CLARA HEMPHILL
Associated Press Writer
NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Eleven-year-old Filomena Russo, a little girl with long brown hair and big brown eyes, works six days a week in an auto repair shop replacing shock absorbers.

"It's a man's work, really," says her father, Carlo, who owns the shop in a working-class neighborhood of Naples. He lifts one of the shocks to show how heavy it is. "But I can't afford to pay a man's wages."

Down the street 8-year-old Antonio Bruno, a tiny boy with a torn yellow T-shirt covered with axle grease, earns $11 a week working for his uncle at another auto-repair shop. Antonio commutes half an hour each day by train from a suburb.

"His father's unemployed," said Antonio's uncle, 26-year-old Dario Mario. "I hired Antonio to keep him off the streets."

Mario laughed when he was asked why he didn't hire the boy's father instead.

"I can't support the whole family," he said.

Filomena and Antonio are just two of thousands of children in Naples who work as mechanics, wait on tables in bars, deliver groceries, sell contraband cigarettes on street corners and help haul in fishermen's nets.

A recent survey by teachers in one Naples school district shows that 34 percent of children between the ages of 12 and 14 are not enrolled in school — presumably because they are working. Of the children 7 to 11 years old, 16 percent are not enrolled.

Another survey, conducted by sociologist Valeria Spagnolo for the communist-led Italian General Confederation of Labor, a main labor union, shows 20 percent of children aged 8 to 14 who are enrolled in school also hold jobs.

Some of the children skip classes often to go to work. Filomena, for example, says she goes to school three mornings a week.

Mrs. Spagnolo, who interviewed 1,500 school children for her survey, said many children work long hours — Filomena sometimes works 15 hours a day. Four or five children a year die in accidents and dozens more are injured at work, mostly in the construction business.

Child labor is not limited in Italy to Naples. The percentage of children working is believed to be even higher in Sicily and the southern region of Calabria.

But the situation in this sprawling port has been particularly dramatic since the 1980 earthquake which left 100,000 people homeless.

Families whose one-room tenements were destroyed moved into the schools. About 50 of the city's schools — nearly a fifth — are still occupied by families. Many schools have double and triple sessions, so that children only attend classes a couple of hours a day.

"The kids don't go to school any more," said Riccardo Boccia, the central government's representative in Naples. "The conditions are so bad — in some cases with eight schools combined in one — it's not educational at all."

Italian law requires children to go to school until they are 14 years old. Anyone who employs a child under 14 faces a fine of up to $105 and a suspension of his license to operate a business.

The law is enforced only sporadically, partly because it's hard to prove that a child is working.

"It's considered so normal that no one complains," Mrs. Spagnolo said. "It's the parents who make the kids work — the parents, the children or the neighbors aren't going to file complaints."

Many of the children work at home, helping their mothers make gloves or shoes in the vast "black economy" of Naples. The women collect the pieces of leather from their employers each week and put them together at home, earning $4.50 to $9 a day.

Both the city and the government have made some effort to crack down on child labor. The Boccia's office filed 300 complaints in the first four months of 1982 against construction firms that hired children.

The city government has set up summer camps, trips to the beach, after-school programs and neighborhood sports events to keep children occupied after school on the theory that busy parents send their children to work to keep them out of trouble.

for teen-agers at the secondary school level.

"If they know they can finish school, take a job training course and have a good chance of getting a job, they'll be more likely to stay in school," Mrs. Spagnolo said, adding that 25 percent of Naples' pupils drop out before their 14th birthdays.

Unionists say the answer is better wages and more jobs for the adults in Naples, where unemployment is 25 percent.

"If the father has a decent job, he won't send his kids to work," said Gennaro Giordano, a spokesman for the labor confederation in Naples.

Computers For Better Writing

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The University of Rochester has received a grant from the Arthur Vining Davis Foundation to see if computers can be used to help students become better writers.

The problems of writing compositions and writing computer programs have much in common, says Jay Wilson, associate professor of English and project director.

"In both cases, you have to break down the problem into a workable outline. In both cases, a rough draft always needs to be cleaned up, and this can be done easily by using the computer's word-processing and memory capabilities."

Wilson will offer prizes to undergraduates who write the best computer programs that help other students improve their compositions.

Success In Hip Replacement

ATLANTA (AP) — More than 75,000 Americans have artificial hip joints implanted each year, reports the Arthritis Foundation. And the success rate of this surgery is 95 percent.

"Replacement surgery has become one of the most successful ways of treating joints severely damaged by arthritis," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie of the Foundation. "Most people can return to many of their normal activities, such as walking and driving, after they recover from surgery."

Urged Freeze Pastors' Pay

ADRIAN, Mich. (AP) — United Methodists congregations in the church's Detroit conference, where unemployment is critical, have been asked to freeze salaries of their pastors next year.

Conference lay-clergy members approved a report of a finance unit asking that all salaries of all persons paid by it be frozen in 1983 and that local churches follow suit.

SPY SENTENCED — Otto Attila Gilbert, 50, a Hungarian native who plead guilty July 1 to conspiring with foreign intelligence agents to obtain U.S. military secrets, has been sentenced to 15 years in prison by U.S. District Court Judge Dudley H. Bowen Jr. in Augusta (Ga.). The sentence came with the recommendation that Gilbert not become eligible for parole during his 15-year term. (AP Laserphoto)

Scientists Hope To Rediscover Forgotten Worlds

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Roy Mackal has wandered through steamy, uninhabited jungles searching for dinosaurs. And he's journeyed to distant waters looking for sea monsters. Now he and his fellow scientists are joining forces — hoping to rediscover forgotten worlds.

Mackal is among a unique group of scientific sleuths who hope to prove that sauroptods, apemen and the "Loch Ness" monster still roam the planet.

These scientists belong to the recently formed International Society of Cryp-tozoology — an organization of about 300 members, formed to explore the science of unknown or unexpected animals.

The society — primarily for scientists — includes paleontologists, biologists and anthropologists from France, China, South Africa and the United States. They represent some of the biggest and best institutions of the science world — the Smithsonian, the Darwin Museum in Moscow, the Peking Natural History Museum and more.

And what they have in common is a spirit of adventure and a fiery desire to probe reports of creatures believed to have vanished eons ago.

"We're interested in solving mysteries — regardless of the outcome," says Mackal, a University of Chicago biologist, society co-founder and a director of the Loch Ness monster investigations.

Many of these mysteries have been controversial for decades.

But, says J. Richard Greenwell, society secretary-treasurer, "People haven't been communicating with each other. There's been a gap between what's represented in the field and the scientific community. The society will bridge that gap."

That's not to say "all these animals exist," Greenwell says. "It should be investigated just like any other controversial topic."

Mackal and Greenwell do not see themselves as monster hunters.

"We know monsters don't exist," Greenwell says. "But the larger the animal is, the more resistance there is to its existence on the part of scientists. If an animal is two or three feet, they just shrug their shoulders. After 10 to 12 feet, people begin applying the label monster. But it's entirely in their minds."

Some of the creatures that intrigue them most were last known to have walked the earth millions of years ago. One may be the sauroptod dinosaur — or mokele-membe, as this strange animal has been dubbed by villagers in the Congo. Mackal and Greenwell journeyed there in search of a reddish-brown creature that witnesses describe as being 30 feet tall, with a long neck, head, tail, heavy legs with claws and, sometimes a mane.

They did not see the animal — which fits the description of a dinosaur extinct for 60 million years — but did spot unusual footprints. "It was pretty damn exciting," Mackal says. Still, he says that's not proof.

"If this is a real animal, it could be a large lizard," Mackal says. "We always assume there is a simple, non-sensational explanation. We have to be pushed. We're not stuffed shirts. But we do keep our feet on the ground."

And so the society — which hopes to organize expeditions financed by contributions — will search for evidence and study photographs, sonar tracks, footprint casts and tissue and hair samples.

Still, the scientists know the chances of discovery are extremely remote. Mackal says that his years of probing have not been without success.

Once, while on a boat during his Loch Ness probe, he said he spotted a large black animal that broke through the water. "Its skin was black with wrinkles. It was twisting left to right."

Mackal is convinced the animal was a primitive whale.

GOVERNMENT BAN
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — All cigarette smoking in government and semi-official offices has been banned as part of a campaign to improve the nation's health.

The Buffalo Chip-Maker

PRAIRIEVILLE, Mich. (AP) — If they ever hold a contest for turning out buffalo chips, you won't find Willis Aukerman taking up the rear.

Few can hold a cookie cutter to Aukerman, who spreads his raw material like a batter and presses out chips that are exactly six inches in diameter and three-quarters of an inch thick.

What's even more swell is they have no smell and he says that will really make them sell — and sail.

"We expect to sell a huge number of chips at $1 apiece and buffalo chip burgers at $2.50 each as mementos," he said.

Aukerman's chipper idea is the key ingredient for the buffalo chip-throwing contest to be held as part of the fourth annual Prairieville Old Fashioned Farms Days festival, Sept. 3-6, which raises money for the local ambulance corps.

He's the owner of Green Acres Farm and chairman of the festival, and he went all the way to Indiana to buy Billy, a 1,600-pound chip producer.

"Billy provides enough material for 25 chips a day, but he has to be fed properly to produce manure of just the right texture and consistency," said Aukerman, giving away his expertise.

"We feed him a diet like his wild bison ancestors thrived on: dry, grassy hay, but no corn, grain or alfalfa."

After drying in the sun for 60 hours, the chips are both odorless "and as hard as a block of wood ... you can drop them on cement and they won't break," he said.

The chips retain enough weight and have a smooth enough surface to allow them to sail through the air, he said.

species that the society hopes to prove still exist: a dinosaur. (AP Laserphoto)

Some Invest Over Limit Of Insurance

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

More than half the credit unions investing money above the government insurance limit in Oklahoma's failed Penn Square Bank are in eight states, according to federal regulators.

Seventy-one of the 132 federally insured credit unions with uninsured deposits in the bank are in California, Oklahoma, Missouri, New York, Florida, Michigan, Kansas and Indiana, the National Credit Union Administration told the House subcommittee on commerce, consumer and monetary affairs in data presented late last week.

In all, credit unions in 30 states and the District of Columbia invested money in the bank over the $100,000 insurance coverage provided by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The credit union administration has refused to release the names or the amount of deposits each credit union held in the bank. The subcommittee, too, has declined to release a list of the names.

Wendell Sebastian, executive director of the credit union agency, emphasized in a recent telephone interview that the credit unions with uninsured deposits in the bank are strong enough to absorb any losses.

The bank's collapse has not caused any insolvencies of credit unions, he said. "No money has been lost by any credit union depositor and no claim has been made against the credit union insurance fund."

Penn Square, a one-office bank in Oklahoma City, was taken over by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. after funneling millions of dollars in loans to over-extended oil exploration companies. The bank had obtained $2 billion from some of the nation's largest financial institutions by getting them to participate in the loans.

Uninsured deposits that the institutions had in Penn Square when it collapsed July 5 will become a claim against the bank's receivership. It's not yet certain how much they'll get back.

The credit union administration supervises federal credit unions and insures deposits in 17,000 federal and state credit unions.

The 132 federally insured credit unions had a total of $104.1 million in deposits above the insurance cap.

Credit unions insured privately or through state corporations may have held uninsured money in the bank but no information has been disclosed about those cooperatives. Regulators said initially that approximately 150 credit unions had uninsured deposits in the bank.

Twenty-four savings and loans, including 16 that were federally insured, had uninsured deposits totaling at least $19.7 million in the bank, according to federal and state officials. None of the S&Ls' names has been released.

It's not unusual for credit unions and S&Ls to put money above the insurance cap in banks, executives of the institutions say.

Credit unions are not restricted in the amount of money they can place in a bank or S&L.

A state-by-state breakdown of the data the credit union agency gave the subcommittee shows that California led the list with 15 credit unions having money above the insurance limit in the bank, followed by Oklahoma with 11.

Other states and the number of credit unions with uninsured deposits in the collapsed bank are:

Missouri, 9; Michigan, 8; Florida, 8; New York, 8; Kansas, 6; Indiana, 6; New Mexico, 5; Texas, 5; Arizona, 5; Maryland, 5; Washington, 4.

Iowa, 3; Nevada, 3; Colorado, 3; Utah, 3; Oregon, 3; New Jersey, 3; Alabama, 3; Massachusetts, 2; Virginia, 2; Tennessee, 2; North Carolina, 2; District of Columbia, 2.

Ohio, 1; Illinois, 1; Nebraska, 1; Kentucky, 1; South Carolina 1; and Georgia, 1.

WATER HEATERS

Low's Will Always Keep You In Hot Water!

I PREFER THE LOBOY MYSELF.

Low's has a complete line of both Gas and Electric Water Heaters for all of your hot water needs throughout the year.

Whatever your needs are in a hot water heater, chances are Low's has what you need. All of our models are soundly insulated and hold from 20 to 52 gallons. Our LoBoy models are built compactly in order to fit into less than ideal places in your home. All models have an adjustable thermostat and a pressure relief valve for safety. Select the one right for you. Energy efficient models required in Virginia.

INSULATION

Insulate Your Home Now & Save Heat, Money & Energy This Winter!

OWENS CORNING
FIBERGLAS

Doesn't Burn
The unfaced Fiberglass insulation is inorganic so it will not burn.

Doesn't Absorb Moisture
The glass fibers resist absorption of water in the insulation.

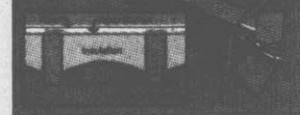

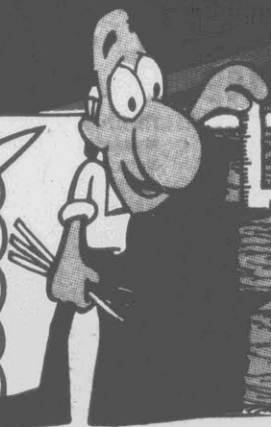

Doesn't Support Mold
It's inorganic, so it doesn't provide sustenance for fungus or mold.

Doesn't Corrode Wiring
Fiberglass insulation is non-corrosive; it can't harm wiring.

THE HIGHER THE R-VALUE THE GREATER THE INSULATING POWER. ASK YOUR SELLER FOR A FACT SHEET.

* Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms

Your credit must be satisfactory. Our cash price excludes sales tax. The monthly payment and deferred payment price includes 4% sales tax. If the sales tax differs in your area, the monthly payment and deferred payment price will vary slightly. Insurance is available but not included in our figures. Delivery charges, if any, are excluded.

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retail prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

With Kenmore Power Miser 8™ water heaters you can save $248 on gas bills or $360 on electric bills over 8 years* when compared to our standard models. Polyurethane foam provides up to 175% to 266% greater insulating effectiveness than our fiber glass insulated models. All Sears water heaters equipped with safety relief valves.

Fast Emergency Installation available . . . just call Sears.

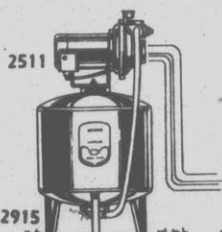

*In accordance with U.S. Dept. of Energy Test Procedures, the operating cost was calculated on the basis of 64.3 gallons per day of hot water usage by a family of 4 with 90° F temp. rise, with gas rate of 36.7¢ per therm and electricity rate of 4.97¢ per kilowatt hour (U.S. government national average cost figures). Savings were calculated by subtracting the operating cost of our Power Miser™ 40-gal. gas and 52-gal. electric models from the cost of operating our standard 40-gal. gas and 52-gal. electric water heaters. Savings may be more or less depending on your hot water usage and local utility rates.

Brake Job for Disc or Drum Brakes

Our trained specialists will inspect brake system, install new disc pads or brake shoes, rebuild calipers or wheel cylinders, turn drums or rotors, install new front grease seals, clean and repack front wheel bearings, flush brake lines and replace with heavy-duty brake fluid. Sears may decline to perform partial brake jobs if it appears, in Sears judgement, that additional work is needed for your brake system to function properly. Replacement of master cylinder, power booster, drum/rotor are extra if needed. For most American-made cars and many imports. Not in Shelby, Danville, Rock Hill and Rocky Mount.
