State Rep. Taylor Pleads Guilty In Burning Building

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer
WINDSOR, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. G. Ronald Taylor, D-Bladen, today pleaded guilty to two felony counts of conspiracy and unlawful burning of a building belonging to a state senator.

The plea was entered by Taylor's attorney, Allen A. Bailey of Charlotte, in an appearance in Bertie County Superior Court before Judge George Fountain.

Taylor showed little emotion as he stood before Fountain and answered a series of questions from the judge.

Fountain said Taylor faced a possible maximum sentence of 40 years in prison on the charges. Fountain asked Taylor, "Are you in fact guilty?" and Taylor responded, "Yes sir."

Special prosecutor Lester Chalmers requested that sentencing be continued until the next session of court. At the same time, Chalmers said a Bertie County grand jury had returned another indictment in the case and he listed that new indictment as one reason for delaying sentencing.

Chalmers did not immediately disclose who was named in the new indictment.

Chalmers listed a number of facts he said both sides were stipulating in the case. "There is a factual foundation for this plea of guilty," he said.

Chalmers said that Taylor and others discussed ways of inflicting "physical and psychological damage" to state Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, owner of the three warehouses in Lewiston.

Chalmers said that Taylor and two others indicted with him, Sandy White and Graham Franklin Bridges, agreed that Taylor would pay them $5,000 each to burn the buildings.

Chalmers also said that Taylor accepted a $1,500 bribe from federal agents at Myrtle Beach, S.C. and that three $100 bills given to Taylor in that exchange were later traced to the payment to Bridges.

CT&T Asks Rate Boost

Carolina Telephone announced that it filed a request today with the North Carolina Utilities Commission for a rate increase that would amount to about $3.11 a month for the average residential customer.

The company said it is seeking a $37.7 million increase in its annual revenues.

In announcing the request, CT&T's vice president-administration, T. P. Williamson said, "The company regrets the necessity to file for increased rates so soon after our last general rate increase but it has no choice if it is to continue providing the quality telephone service our customers expect and deserve."

Williamson added, "Despite our most stringent efforts to control and reduce the cost of providing telephone service, the additional revenues granted to the company in April of this year simply have not materialized. This is due in part to the commission's overestimating the revenues which it anticipated that the company would receive from a statewide increase in long distance rates, coupled with the drastic changes imposed upon the entire telephone industry through federal deregulation, and the difficult state of the economy in general."

Williamson said that of the $37.7 million sought, $4.8 million would be for increased Extended Area Service (EAS) rates; $3.3 million would be for increased service connection, move and change charges; $28.5 million would be for increased basic local exchange rates; and $1.1 million would be for increased charges for supplemental services and equipment.

The spokesman said over half of the increased revenues would go to pay federal, state and local taxes.

If the increase is approved, the average residential customer in the company's smallest exchanges will pay $2.50 more per month for basic service; in the company's largest exchanges the basic service increase will be $3.70 per month. Williamson said rates differ from town to town depending upon the number of telephones a customer can dial within his local calling area.

The Utilities Commission is expected to hold hearings in early 1983 before ruling on the company's request, and rates are not expected to change before next year, he said.

Carolina Telephone serves some 575,000 customers in 50 counties and has 5,350 employees with an annual payroll of $104 million.

Yasser Arafat Departs Beirut For Home In Exile

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — PLO chairman Yasser Arafat, his Palestinian legions driven from their shattered Beirut enclave by Israeli troops and scattered through the Arab world, boarded a converted Greek car ferry today and sailed for a new home in exile.

Two American warships escorted the Atlantis out of the Beirut harbor while Arafat, who vowed to carry on the fight against Israel "until we win," stood on deck in his familiar black-and-white checkered kaffiyeh headress, smiling and flashing a victory sign with his hand.

Lebanon's state radio said Arafat was heading for an official visit to Greece at the invitation of Socialist Prime Minister Andreas Papandreu, before going to the Tunisian capital of Tunis. But Arafat and his spokesmen have not said where the guerrilla leader will set up his new base after leaving Beirut, his stronghold for the past 12 years.

Arafat's chief spokesman, Mahmoud Labadi, who left with the PLO chairman, said earlier the ship might stop at Larnaca, Cyprus, on its way to Greece.

Nine warships from the U.S. 6th Fleet and the French Navy were cruising off the harbor as the single-smokestack, luxurious-looking Atlantis put to sea. Lebanon radio said American ships and one French frigate were to escort the ship to its destination.

A throng of well-wishers jammed the port area and a party of at least 30 people, including bodyguards with their faces obscured by kaffiyehs that left only slits for their eyes, accompanied Arafat aboard the ship.

A delegation of Lebanese leftist leaders and former Moslem prime ministers boarded the ship with Arafat to say farewell, but left 15 minutes later. The ship, which appeared to be a well-appointed passenger craft, then set sail.

Poles Prepare For New Protesting On Tuesday

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The government, preparing for protest demonstrations on Solidarity's anniversary, today ordered vodka rationing and newspapers followed up on Premier Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's plea for Poles not to demonstrate Tuesday.

Newspapers said the Trade Ministry was limiting vodka, Poland's favorite drink, to a half quart per Pole per month. There was no indication of how long the order will be in effect. Liquor rationing had recently been lifted and Poles who could afford it could buy any amount.

In another effort to keep crowds out of the streets Tuesday, the second anniversary of the signing of the Gdansk accords in 1980 that recognized workers' rights to independent unions, Polish Television said it will air highlights of the Polish team's play in the World Cup soccer games in Spain earlier this summer.

Newspapers said Poles should avoid street protests, which underground Solidarity leaders are calling for to demonstrate the suspended union's strength.

The Banner of Youth said young people, by staying home, could show support "for common reason, for work, for our economic and political sovereignty, which can be strengthened by common effort, not in street fighting." The Communist daily Trybuna Ludu said authorities could not "retreat" from enemies of socialism trying to "throw us off the chosen road of agreement into the blind alley of confrontation. At stake in this game is the future of Poland and her truly socialist shape."

"Martial law can be liked or disliked, but it is a law which must be respected," Jaruzelski told cadets at a military school in Poznan, western Poland on Sunday. "Disturbing this law will not be tolerated."

Jaruzelski reiterated a promise to end martial law by the end of the year if the county is calm.

"This (calm) situation is made by people. May people deprived of reason not hold Poland back again. May Aug. 31 not be stained by excesses and irresponsible demonstrations," he said.

The Foreign Ministry summoned Western correspondents and warned them against distortion in their reports on events related to Solidarity's anniversary. Some reporters took the meeting, the first like it in at least two years, as a signal that their coverage could be limited or that they could be expelled.

At the same time, the military prosecutor's office said 27 people had been arrested Saturday.

Postponed

RALEIGH — The closing of the Department of Transportation's appraisal and relocation offices in Greenville has been postponed until after the General Assembly meets next year Jack Baldwin, chief of DOT's right-of-way section said today.

The DOT several weeks ago announced that the Greenville relocation and appraisal offices would be closed April 1, 1983.

Jack Baldwin, chief of DOT's right-of-way section told The Daily Reflector this morning that a decision has been made to "postpone the closing" until after officials have the opportunity to "re-assess the updated Highway Improvement Program," which is now underway, and to "re-evaluate the financial situation after the Legislature meets next year."

The Greenville appraisal office has 10 employees, while four persons work in the relocation office.

Struck By A Vehicle

KILLED BY HIT AND RUN CAR — Highway Patrolmen and emergency medical service personnel flank the covered body of Joseph Andrews, 38 of Bethel, who died last night after being struck by a hit-and-run driver on the Eastern By-pass, 1 1/2 miles north of Greenville. Trooper A. G. Wright said Andrews was struck from behind by a car as he walked south along the south-bound lane of the divided highway. The force of the impact, Wright said, knocked Andrews 80 feet from the point of impact and caused leg, chest, head and internal injuries. Wright said fragments of glass from the vehicle's headlight and paint from the vehicle were recovered at the scene. He noted that anyone witnessing the 11 p.m. mishap is asked to call the Highway Patrol office in Greenville. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Dear Abby

Recipe For Fantasy: Add A Little Color

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: "Cooled Off in Coos Bay" wrote to say her husband was no longer physically attractive because he had gained so much weight. Your answer: "Pretend he's Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds and Paul Newman all rolled into one."

Thanks, Abby, but as an Afro-American lady, I am not physically attracted to these men. Would there have been any harm to have included one black male? Or did "Cooled Off" identify herself as a white female? More to the point, did you simply make the assumption?

Billy Dee Williams, Howard Rollins, Leon Kennedy, Reggie Jackson and Robert Hooks (to name a few) carry just as much appeal for a large segment of your readers as the three Caucasian idols you so readily mentioned.

I, for one, am tired of hearing the "classic" American beauty described as "blond and blue-eyed," and please do not point out that Reynolds is not blond, as this is hardly my point.

Discrimination, no matter how slight, cannot be called by any other name, and it is attitudes such as the one displayed in your column that it thrives on.

I am appalled by your lack of consideration, and think you owe an apology to a very large group of your readers. I hardly expect you to print this, but I hope you got the message . . . or did you?

BROWN & BURNING

DEAR B. & B.: I got the message, apologize, and plead guilty as charged for reasons of thoughtlessness and insensitivity, not discrimination.

May I add my own recommendations to yours? How about Sidney Poitier, Harry Belafonte, Lou Rawls, Richard Roundtree, Robert Guillaume, Fred Williams and Bobby Short for openers?

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old son just told me that his girlfriend is five months pregnant. She's 16, and they are both very immature for their ages. My son still plans on going to college next year.

We don't know what to do. The girl is just a child herself and doesn't know what she wants to do about the baby. We know very little about her parents. They're divorced, and she lives with her mother.

Who should make the decisions in a case like this? Something has to be done, but we don't know what. Can you help?

IN SHOCK IN ARLINGTON

DEAR IN SHOCK: This is a family matter. Your son, his girlfriend and both your families should meet with a professional counselor—a clergyman, or someone who has had experience in advising families who have found themselves in this predicament. The wishes of the youthful parents-to-be should be respected, but cool heads—rather than heated emotions—should prevail.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to Sam's wife was all wrong. Sam was over 70 and in a nursing home, and his wife was worried that her friend, Emma, was getting too chummy with Sam. You said, "Don't worry, it's probably just an innocent flirtation—Emma is not about to steal your husband out of a nursing home."

Well, don't be so sure. After working for two years as a motel clerk near a nursing home, I can tell you that some of our best customers are senior citizens! One darling gentleman who was at least 80 used to check in alone every Friday afternoon. Half an hour later his "girlfriend" (in her 60s) would drive over in her own car and join him.

Another couple, both in their 80s, used to arrive in a cab, check into a room, and about an hour or so later, he'd order a cab to take them back to the nursing home where they were both residents.

Believe me, "old" doesn't mean "dead!"

Views On Dental Health IF YOU CHIP A TOOTH

CLEANING OF BRACED TEETH

A dentist puts braces on a child's teeth to straighten them or correct dental handicaps. But braces make teeth harder to clean, can act as food traps and thus increase the chance of tooth decay. But this can easily be overcome. One of the best methods of cleaning debris from braced teeth is the oral irrigator—an electric device which directs a pulsating stream of water onto the teeth.

Dental researchers at Loyola University tested this premise. Braced youngsters were divided into two equal groups. The first brushed their teeth after each meal.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S., P.A. Evans St., Phone: 752-5126.

then used an oral irrigator once a day. The second group also brushed but followed with simple rinsing.

After nine weeks, group one (the irrigators) showed an 80% reduction in total bacteria. In contrast, the group of rinsers had only an insignificant drop in bacterial count. The results indicated that if the irrigator cleaning process is combined with brushing, proper diet, and frequent examinations, a child can have straight teeth without the penalty of additional cavities.

DRYER ENERGY
To help keep your clothes dryer from being an energy hog, it's a good idea to check its lint trap or filter after every load.

Also, keep a close eye on its outside exhaust, for if the dryer can't breathe it will work less efficiently, using more energy, says Dr. Linda McCutcheon, extension housing specialist, NCSU.

Fresh Bartlett pears are deliciously abundant now. And one of the best pies, in our opinion, is that made with a pear filling.

Should you be tempted to bake this dessert, we recommend the following recipe. Its double crusts hold plenty of the sliced fruit and the pie may be cut when lukewarm. Then, topped with vanilla ice cream, the chances are your family and friends will truly appreciate it.

Although we're giving you the recipe for the Butter Crust we used when we recently made Bartlett Pear Pie, you may of course take a shortcut and use pastry made from a pie mix.

BARTLETT PEAR PIE

- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/2 cup all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon ground mace
- 2 1/2 pounds (10 medium) firm-ripe Bartlett pears
- Butter Pastry, recipe follows

2 tablespoons butter

In a large bowl stir together sugar, flour, cinnamon and mace. Pare, quarter and core pears; slice fairly thin — there should be about 6 cups. Add pears to sugar mixture and toss to coat all slices.

Divide pastry in half; roll one half on a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin to a 12-inch round; fit into a 9-inch pie plate. Roll remaining pastry to a 12-inch round for top crust. Add pear mixture to pastry-lined plate; dot with butter. Place pastry for top crust over pears; seal edges well with your fingers; press the tines of a fork over the pastry on the rim. To vent, cut six 1- to 2-inch slits radiating from the center of the top crust. Cover edge with a 2- to 3-inch-wide strip of foil.

Bake on rack below center in a preheated 425-degree oven for 40 minutes; remove foil and continue baking until pears are tender and pastry over top and bottom is golden brown — about 15 minutes longer. Cool on a wire rack until lukewarm. Delicious served topped with vanilla ice cream.

Weight Loss Center Uses Space Age Technology

By GENE BRISLIN
Women's Page Writer

Ever feel you're a natural born loser — at everything but the avoidupois department? Have you tried and failed to shed weight on every kind of diet from Atkins to Stillman? Do you keep promising yourself that with winter over, you're determined to be in good shape by summer?

Then perhaps you should enroll at the Nutri/System Weight Loss Medical Centers. The nation's largest network of medically supervised weight control centers, its concept applies space age technology to nutrition and the problems of overweight.

The center utilizes Nutri/System 2000, a dietary program that keeps the taste in foods, but takes the calories out; removes hunger, increases energy levels, and eliminates food decisions by the dieter. The diet allows three meals of food that is pre-measured and prepackaged. Preparation of a hot entree is minimal — just open a can, heat it up, and in about 15 minutes you can sit down to breakfast, lunch, or dinner. The selections vary so you aren't bored by eating the same dull foods until unwanted fat fades into oblivion. But the big advantage is the fast results, with the average dieter losing a pound a day — rather than a pound a week.

Take Wayne Novitch for instance. He weighed more than 300 pounds and wore a size 54 extra long suit when he began the program. Sixty-four (64) days later — when he appeared at the Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Center for his weekly checkup, he weighed 62 pounds lighter, and his waistline had been nipped from 51 1/2" to 41".

"But I expect to lose another 40 pounds," said the 6-foot-four enthusiastic dieter in an interview.

Medical supervision is a big plus for clients. A personal diagnosis is part of the program which includes a thorough analysis and discussion to determine what may be causing the weight problem. Registered nurses employed by the center monitor progress, formulate diets and prescribe vitamin and mineral supplements — but at no time are amphetamines used.

Asked what inspired him to turn to the center, Mr. Novitch revealed that he became weary of trying to find clothes to fit.

"When I'd go into a store, the salesman would take one look at me and wave me away," he said. "I have experimented with various diets, but after a few days on the pills I was climbing the walls, and if I managed to lose a few pounds I seemed to immediately gain them back," continued the well spoken young man. "Finally my family physician suggested I explore this regimen."

Novitch admitted that while the Nutri/System 2000 menu sound like something from "Star Wars," the food looks, tastes and smells like that which earthlings have been eating for aeons, and that the celestial names belie its terrestrial origins.

WAYNE NOVITCH, who shed 62 pounds of excess weight in 64 days at Nutri/System Weight Loss Medical Centers shows Beth Biblin, receptionist, the size 54 pants which he wore before enrolling in the program.

For breakfast there are Nebula Nectar, a fruit-drink; Eggs Apollo, in omelette form; Nutri Flakes, a natural cereal and decaffeinated coffee or tea. Lunch can be a variety of delicious tasting non-fattening beef or chicken Solar Soups totaling 60 calories per serving and an eight-ounce Milkyway (in chocolate and vanilla flavor) that tastes like a milkshake but has less than one-third the number of normal calories.

Dinners, with such names as Chicken Constellation in Savory Sauce, Seafood Aurora, with Galaxy Dressing or Veal Venusian in Cabbage Leaf (with Jupiter Fruitreal for dessert) are all under 200 calories. A salad, for roughage, is also required daily, consisting of lettuce, raw spinach, celery, cucumbers or raw mushrooms with dressing. Beverages include diet soda, other than colas which contain caffeine that stimulates the appetite.

The comprehensive dietary program was designed by highly qualified nutritionists, biochemists, physicians and food technologists in order to provide high nutritional valued food which completely meets and often surpasses the U.S. Recommended Daily Dietary Allowances.

THE CENTER bases its concept on Nutri/System 2000, a dietary program that keeps taste in foods, but takes out calories; removes hunger, increases energy levels and eliminates food decisions by the dieter. Here Romanye Brace, left, and Irene Slavinski, two happy losers, enjoy meatballs and chicken cacciatore for lunch. The diet allows three meals a day of premeasured, prepackaged foods.

Photos by A.J. Sandone

The daily menus, when properly followed create a loss of appetite.

Novitch disclosed he experiences no hunger pains in this type of dieting, has lost his sluggishness, and has no feeling of weakness associated with other diet methods.

How did Novitch accumulate his excess pounds? That he attributes to having been reared in a home where "we didn't throw anything out when a meal was completed." Still, he admits, the others in the family didn't develop a weight problem. "Perhaps it was because I ate in spurts. Some weeks — when I felt that urge — I'd wolf down everything in sight," he explained.

The change in Novitch's appearance has given him a great upshot of spirit. "People weren't aware, when I was all bundled up in heavy clothes during the winter months that I was losing," he said, "and now when they see me in a spring suit they're shocked at the transformation."

According to Dr. Jay Satz, director of research development for Nutri/System Weight Loss Medical Centers, behavior education therapy to track down and eliminate bad eating habits is an important phase of the operation. Patients have weekly sessions with a trained behavior education counselor and are weighed and measured by a registered nurse two or three times each week.

Since getting rid of weight is always easier than keeping it off, a maintenance program is essential in helping the patient re-enter the "outside world" and continue self-discipline without the built in constraints of Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Centers.

After a client attains a goal in terms of pounds lost, the individual is put on a program during which foods outside the Nutri/System 2000 regimen are introduced, starting with high protein foods and ending with items containing carbohydrates.

Checks are made each week to discover what items in the conventional repertory of foods the patient can eat in moderation and still maintain weight loss, and those which he or she should avoid indefinitely. After "graduating" from the program, frequent follow-ups are made by the center for a period of up to three months as patients continue to be introduced to regular foods. Aspects of the behavior education program also extend into this rehabilitation period.

As the more than 100,000 patients enrolled at Nutri System Weight Loss Medical Centers will attest, the multi-discipline therapy offered accomplishes what most other diet programs fail to do. It gives fast results, it's simple to follow, safe, hunger free, and even boosts energy among most clients.

'Careful' Year Ahead

It is not unexpected that, as the recession continues nationally and worldwide, North Carolina revenues are not living up to expectations.

Revenue Secretary Secretary Mark G. Lynch said last week that revenues are routinely falling below expectation. That means the state will have to "be careful" in its spending policies, he said.

July collections were up 5.7 percent over July, 1981, but revenues were projected to be up by 9 1/2 percent. Collections lower than projections have been consistent throughout this year. An increase of only 2 percent in sales and use taxes for July of this year over July 1981 is "disappointing," Lynch said, and may be clear evidence of the recession.

It portends difficult times for the budget makers in Raleigh. There almost surely will be less carryover of funds from this biennium and projections of revenues for the next biennium may well have to be pared down. At the same time the state will be faced with employees and teachers wanting the raises they were denied this year, and many capital improvement needs.

An upturn in the economy, perhaps spurred by falling interest rates, could quickly change the state revenue picture, but many economist doubt there will be a quick turnaround.

It will indeed mean careful budgeting times for North Carolina.

U.S. 264 Project Still Active

State Highway Fund collections for July ran ahead of the same month for 1981 with $43.2 million collected this year and $37.7 million last year.

There is little comfort there, however, as cost of building new highways and maintaining old ones is drastically curtailing the construction program.

Gov. Hunt said in a recent interview that the emphasis must be on maintenance of the state's vast road system and completion of the projects already underway. Among these he mentioned U.S. 64 and U.S. 264.

We certainly hope and expect that the U.S. 264 project from Wilson to Washington will be completed. We can think of nothing that will stimulate economic growth in the east more, and in turn generate more revenues for the state.

Watch The Rates

By RON PARIS
Forest City Daily Courier

Prepare yourself: insurance rates are probably going to go up all over the country...

I just hit my insurance company for a big settlement.

Got a dollar out of them. Literally. As in, $1.

Yes, as a matter of fact, that is ridiculous.

But on their part, not mine. I think.

What happened was: I had been shopping in my favorite grocery store (which, for obvious reasons, shall remain nameless), and was preparing to get into my car to drive away when I heard a large crash.

Turns out it sounded larger than it was. Lady had turned over her shopping cart. She was opening the door of her car, parked next to mine, and left the cart unattended. It rolled off the sidewalk and flipped over, spilling oranges and other assorted foodstuffs all over the place.

Being the gallant sort, I immediately offered assistance in retrieving the scattered fruits, vegetables, breads, milk and meats and returned them to their bags and the bags into the car.

We both drove away happy.

Until the next day when The Wife noted that the front fender of my car was gashed, scratched, dented and otherwise damaged — the victim of the runaway shopping cart. That — not spilling the apples and eggs — is what made the crashing noise.

No sweat, said I. We are insured. We are, thanks to the diligent attention of my local agent, covered for every possible exigency, up to and including stray bird droppings. Surely this catastrophe will be rectified by the good people in the undoubtedly large building that houses the main offices of our insurance carrier.

As instructed, I got my estimates, obtaining a handful, just to be sure, and dutifully, as befitting a good insurance premium payer, turned in the lowest one — an even $101.

File this under my comprehensive coverage provision, the section which encompasses such strange accidental happenings, instructed I. Be happy to, said my obliging local insurance folks after checking with everybody in their office and a few folks in other local offices, just to make sure that it really did fall under the comprehensive coverage provision.

The folks in the big building in Greensboro, however, demurred.

If the woman had picked the shopping cart up and attacked my car with it, they ruled, it would fall under the comprehensive coverage.

Since she did not, the accident was clearly a collision of one moving, one stationary vehicle, and therefore falls under the collision coverage.

Which is $100 deductible. So they sent me a check for $1.

The folks at the local office presented it to me with much fanfare — not to mention hooting and hollering. The fun we had out of it is almost worth more than actually having the claim paid.

Almost. The Charlotte Observer last Sunday reprinted an interesting note from a recent Wall Street Journal, in which it was speculated that our beloved senior senator, Jesse Helms, might make a run for president in 1984.

His name is being thrown around by far right folks, like direct-mail fund-raising whiz Richard Viguerie, who are less than enamored of the performance of their one and former idol, Ronald Reagan.

Some say, reports the journal, Helms "will raise millions of dollars, make noises about running for president, and then head back to North Carolina to face (Jim) Hunt's challenge" for the Senate seat, but others say "if Mr. Helms figures he has no chance to be re-elected to the Senate, he might actually run for president."

This is unsettling enough, but let me throw another — more plausible — possibility at you.

How does Gov. Helms sound?

That's the word going around among folks in Raleigh who worry about such things. I was told by a friend who circulates in their company that state politics are saying "Oh, Jesse is coming home with $7 million in Congressional Club money to run for governor in '84, and is planning to throw club money to every Republican candidate running for anything in the state to boot."

The folks in Raleigh, my friend reports, don't smile when they tell about it. That's understandable.

HOPE THAT MEANS WHAT WE THINK IT DOES!

So Stay Off Our Beach

A bunch of us were sitting around a lobster pot on South Succotash Island, talking about what they had done to the Russian diplomats in Glen Cove, Long Island. It seems the good people of Glen Cove decided to ban the Commies from the tennis courts, the golf courses and the beaches. In retaliation the Kremlin made their tennis courts, golf courses and beaches off limits to the U.S. diplomats. The question was raised "were the people of South Succotash Island willing to support the citizens of Glen Cove in putting the screws on the Russians?"

David Stern said, "We owe it to the people of Long Island. If a Soviet diplomat calls any of us and wants a tennis game, we tell him 'not until you get out of Afghanistan.'"

"I don't play tennis," said George Stevens.

"You're a golfer. Don't tee off with any Russians."

"I don't know any Russians who play golf," he protested.

"Find one and refuse to play with him," Hawke said.

"You owe it to Poland."

Danny Brustein, who is a big Winston Churchill fan, said, "We can fight them on the tennis courts and we can fight them on the golf courses, but can we fight them on the beaches?"

This was a good question because for one thing, there aren't that many public beaches on South Succotash Island, and people who own private ones spend all their time keeping the rest of us off their sand. For another, while it's easy to spot a Soviet diplomat when he's on a tennis court (he always wears a hammer and sickle on his shirt) or on a golf course (he flies a Soviet flag on his golf cart), it's hard to spot one on a beach in a bathing suit.

It's even tougher to spot one on the nude beach where most of us who don't own private footage are forced to go.

Styrom suggested we put up a large sign. "No Nude Bathing Permitted Unless You Believe In God."

As soon as we spot the FBI gumshoes watching a guy and his wife and kids on the beach, we can tell the family to buzz off.

"It's going to take an awful lot of vigilantes to keep Soviet diplomats off our beaches," said Ekstrom. "It could ruin our vacations."

"You're always thinking of yourself," I yelled at him.

"The people of Glen Cove have sent a signal to the Kremlin, and if we don't support them Brezhnev won't freeze his missiles."

"What about our diplomats in the Soviet Union," Ekstrom said. "If they can't go swimming outside of Moscow, what kind of summer are they going to have?"

"We'll make it up to them when they come back on home leave by letting them swim on Jackie O's beach," Stern said.

Thompson suggested, "Let's get off a cable to the Soviet embassy in Washington."

"What do we say?"

"Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water, we decided you can't come on our nude beach."

"I don't trust the Russians," said Rappaport. "If they don't honor the Helsinki accords, why would they honor a 'no bathing' sign?"

"He's right," said Payette.

"It's unenforceable. I couldn't tell a naked Soviet diplomat from a member of the Moral Majority."

"There is a way," said Fain Hackney. "A Soviet diplomat is always followed in the U.S. by two FBI men. When an FBI agent is on duty he is never allowed to take off his clothes. As soon as we spot the FBI gumshoes watching a guy and his wife and kids on the beach, we can tell the family to buzz off.

Voting Ploy Questioned

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A last-minute buy of political insurance for the House vote on the $100 billion tax-hike bill, blessed with President Reagan's own signature, has presented the Pentagon with a due bill of dubious legality and raised a serious question of White House political ethics.

Against the judgment of the regular White House lobbying staff, which opposed the move, OMB director David Stockman and White House chief of staff James Baker III engineered an offer to four conservative Republican congressmen to buttress Lyn Noziger's hard-sell lobbying. The offer: Override a Pentagon and congressional decision ending production of the A-10, the close-support battlefield aircraft made by Fairchild Industries on Long Island, and build 20 additional A-10s in fiscal year 1983.

That committed $350 million to the A-10, potential cash-on-the-barrelhead to garner the votes of four anti-tax Republicans in a package deal. Blame for this undercover ploy to revive a costly weapon declared dead goes to those who made the offer, not those who, whether they admit it or not, accepted it.

Acting as midwife was Fairchild Industries, whose operatives spotted a sweet deal. They lobbied administration aides: Offer resurrection of the A-10 to pry pro-tax votes out of anti-tax Republicans. They lobbied the congressmen: offer to back the administration in return for $350 million in defense jobs for their districts.

But only two weeks ago Congress voted to "zero" the A10 — end the production line this year. That complied with a recommendation last spring from Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger reversing their earlier proposal to keep the A-10 line open.

The White House targets were Reps. Norman Lent, John LeBoutillier, Ray McGrath and William

Carney, all anti-tax Long Island conservatives. All four were skeptical when, two days before the Aug. 19 tax vote, Lent was informed that Ronald Reagan would sign a "directive" to Weinberger and Stockman to keep the A-10 line open for another 20 aircraft. These would be sold abroad or, if no buyers could be found, added to the Air Force stockpile.

"This administration has a pathetic record renegeing on its promises," one of the four told us. Lent, an original backer of Kemp-Roth supply-side tax cuts, held out against the deal until late on the day before the vote. A copy of the president's proposed directive, shown to him by a White House staffer, made up his mind to go along.

But White House operatives wanted a package deal, not just Lent. They wanted all four Republicans, whose districts are near Fairchild's Long Island plant, but had to give up McGrath after an Aug. 18 Wall Street Journal story detailed other high-pressure tactics against him in an unsuccessful effort for his vote. Both Carney and LeBoutillier voted against the president the next day, and both denied that a tie vote would have changed their minds.

White House-insiders dispute that, telling us that if Reagan had needed those two votes to pass the tax bill, he would have had them. That version is supported by the fact that Stockman's OMB is now desperately hunting for loose cash in the Pentagon's 1983 spending program to finance 20 more A-10s. The $350 million must come out of other weapons' accounts. But Pentagon lawyers are worried. Since another year for the A-10 program has not been authorized by Congress, they wonder whether Weinberger can legally earmark the money.

More important than legality is ethics. Although bartering for votes is as old as politics, a president risks much when he barter nearly a half billion dollars' worth of weapons, particularly a president who has worked so hard to sustain a defense constituency based on need, not politics.

Strength For Today

HOW DO WE DEFINE IT?

What do we mean when we say that a person is a Christian? Some would say that a Christian is anyone who is enrolled in a Christian Church. Still others would aver that one has to believe certain things and do certain things before one can be really classified as a bona fide Christian.

Sometimes we hear the declaration that it makes no difference what a person believes provided he or she does the right thing. The answer to that is that unless people believe certain things they probably will not start doing the right things; or, if they do, they will not have the strength and moral purpose to continue.

Christianity first of all involves belief — a belief in Jesus Christ as the full revelation of God's purpose to man, as God's offer to humanity of salvation from sin. But mere belief is not enough. "If any man have not the spirit of Christ, he is none of his." We have to believe, and then on the basis of that belief, we have to act. — Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Bendable Rules

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Sometimes everyone is better off when the rules are bent a little. But some environmental groups, legislators and others can't seem to realize that.

They seem so stubbornly sure that the Environmental Protection Agency is in business' pocket that when they found out that the EPA had agreed to back off its efforts to force General Motors to recall 695,000 high-polluting cars, they cried, "Sell-out!"

A closer look shows the deal is a success that will benefit the environment and consumers alike.

The problem with a recall, which EPA rules required, would have been that GM was unable to pinpoint the exact reason why the 1979 Pontiac, Oldsmobile and Buick cars were failing to meet the federal emission standards. The only way to reduce the pollution would have been to alter the cars' ignition timing, which would have reduced the gasoline mileage. Quite accurately, GM pointed out that very few customers would have brought their cars in to be fixed if they thought it was going to cost them money at the gas pumps.

And even had all of them brought their cars in, only 5,700 tons of the pollutant nitrogen oxide would have been eliminated from the environment. Under the deal, in which GM has agreed to manufacture 2.3 million cars in the next two years under emission standards far stricter than now required, at least 12,000 tons of the pollutant will be removed.

Moreover, GM estimated the cost of the recall at $12 million, a sum that would have been passed on to consumers in higher auto price tags. The cost of complying with the more stringent standards under the deal would be far less.

Perhaps by bending the rules and striking a deal, the EPA did a favor to the automaker. But, as an EPA spokesman said, "It may very well be that we are being easy on them — but at the same time, we will make air quality better."

Not only that, but they are doing it at less cost and less trouble to the consumer.

Inflexible rules must not be allowed to stand in the way of the ultimate goal: clean air.

A Hospital Patient's Advocate

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

One American in eight is hospitalized every year, and the success of your stay can depend as much on YOU as it does on the doctors and nurses in charge of your case.

Knowing how a hospital works and learning your rights and responsibilities are the key to getting the best possible care, according to Barbara Huttman, a registered nurse and author of a book called, "The Patient's Advocate: The Complete Handbook of Patient's Rights."

Ms. Huttman, a nurse for six years, says there has been an "immense" change in patients' attitudes toward hospitals. "Far more patients are questioning the treatment they get," she says, and those questions are important.

If someone comes to draw blood, for example, ask why. What tests have been ordered and by whom? Ask what medications you are being given; get specific names so you can make sure you are not allergic to the standard shot.

Ms. Huttman says too many people still are reluctant to make any decisions about their own care; they are scared that they may make the wrong choice. "A large segment of the public doesn't want to take responsibility," she says.

Hospitals, however, are complicated, busy places, Ms. Huttman notes, and the individual easily can feel lost and frightened. "Ninety percent of what goes on in the hospital is designed to nurse the system, not the patient," she says.

Ms. Huttman argues that every patient needs his or her own "advocate," a friend or relative who can deal with the problems of hospitalization — problems you may be too sick or worried to cope with.

Your advocate can help you deal with the financial and medical forms you will have to fill out. You should never sign any form without reading it; if you cannot manage the chore yourself, let your advocate do it for you. Your advocate also can relieve the hospital staff of minor duties — getting you a magazine, a fresh supply of tissues or a glass of ice water.

In all but emergency situations, you probably will have a choice of treatment and tests in the hospital. Ask for details before you agree to anything. If you are told a quick decision is necessary, Ms. Huttman says, ask the doctor or nurse: "What's the worst possible thing that can happen and how fast will it happen?"

In most situations "you can usually get a second opinion within a couple hours," Ms. Huttman says, possibly saving yourself money, inconvenience and pain.

Ms. Huttman argues that every patient needs his or her own "advocate," a friend or relative who can deal with the problems of hospitalization — problems you may be too sick or worried to cope with.

Your advocate can help you deal with the financial and medical forms you will have to fill out. You should never sign any form without reading it; if you cannot manage the chore yourself, let your advocate do it for you. Your advocate also can relieve the hospital staff of minor duties — getting you a magazine, a fresh supply of tissues or a glass of ice water.

In all but emergency situations, you probably will have a choice of treatment and tests in the hospital. Ask for an explanation of the procedures to be performed and the benefits you will get from them.

An explanation of alternatives to the suggested treatment.

An opportunity to ask questions.

—A chance to reject a particular treatment.

Learning your rights may be easier than getting them, however, Ms. Huttman says. Patients often are reluctant to demand things — even if they are entitled to them — for fear of angering the hospital staff. Here is another place your advocate can help. "Let the advocate be the bad guy," Ms. Huttman says.

Ms. Huttman also says most patients worry unnecessarily about being marked down as "troublemakers." The hospital staff is usually too busy to keep track of which patients are demanding and which are not.

Ms. Huttman, who declines to identify the hospital she works at in California because she does not want to single out one institution, says patients should learn not only what is being done to them, but also who is doing it.

Individual hospitals have their own systems of care; the responsibility for treatment can even vary from floor to floor within a given hospital. "At the beginning of every shift, ask who's in charge of your case," Ms. Huttman recommends.

Towing Possible Employers Like Liberal Arts Degree

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon today warned motorists parking in the city's five restricted residential parking areas that their vehicles will be towed away if they violate the two-hour limit on parking.

Cannon listed the special residential parking areas as Jarvis Street between Third and Fifth Streets, Lewis Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets; Fourth Street between Student and Summit Streets, Sixth Street between Maple and Elm Streets, and West Rock Springs Road between 14th and Edgewood Streets.

The chief said officers will be checking the restricted areas and issuing tickets to cars violating the regulations this week.

Beginning September 7, according to Cannon, cars parked in the areas for more than two hours between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. will be towed away at the owner's expense.

He noted that vehicles parked for two hours, then moved to another parking space within the area are considered in violation of the city ordinance and will also be towed.

The chief noted that in two days last week, 112 parking tickets were issued for vehicles illegally parked in the five areas.

Free Art Classes Offered

As a public service, the School of Art, East Carolina University, is again this year offering free creative art classes for children in the community during the 1982 fall semester.

The classes, to be conducted by the Art Education faculty and art students, are designed for children in elementary grades 4 through 6 and for junior high school students in grades 7 through 9.

One elementary class will be scheduled to meet from 4 to 5 p.m. on Mondays, and a second elementary class will meet from 4 to 5 on Wednesdays. The one class scheduled for junior high students will meet from 4 to 5 on Thursdays.

The instruction will provide students with experiences in drawing, painting, printmaking, and crafts. Activities are planned to stimulate artistic exploration and expression in the visual arts.

For registration, interested persons are to call the School of Art at 757-6665 between 9:30 and 4:30. Each class will be limited to an enrollment of 20 students.

sity students, worried about finding work, are turning away from liberal arts in favor of technical curricula, officials say.

But school officials and business leaders say a degree in business or mathematics doesn't guarantee getting a job — and some employers say they actually prefer hiring people with a liberal arts background.

"My thoughts are that given the job market, it's understandable and predictable that students see a real advantage in pursuing a program that has a clear vocational link," said Raymond A. Dawson, vice president for academic affairs with the University of North Carolina system.

"But I think the idea that a liberal arts education is a waste of time is carrying that to the extreme," Dawson added.

The liberal arts include the social sciences, the fine and applied arts, foreign languages and letters. Also included is economics — a subject that has experienced a burst of growth because of its value to business.

The number of liberal arts degrees granted in North Carolina's 16 public and 38 private colleges and universities has declined substantially since 1972, according to the staff of the UNC General Administration.

Meanwhile, the number of degrees conferred in engineering, computer science, business and the physical and biological sciences has increased sharply.

In 1972, the liberal arts — excluding economics — accounted for 29 percent of all bachelor's degrees granted on the 16 campuses of the UNC system. By 1981, they accounted for only 17 percent of the total. The number of foreign language degrees granted by the public and private colleges in the state was down more than 50 percent.

At the same time, bachelor's degrees in economics rose by 45 percent in the UNC system and the number of business degrees more than doubled.

Furney K. James, director of career planning and placement at East Carolina University, said about 70 percent of the business recruiters who visit campus want to interview only business administration students.

"From where we come from — and we might be wrong — our recruiting is directed to business-related majors," said Robert B. Lincks, director of personnel development for Burlington Industries Inc. "We do this primarily because there is a known commitment to enter the field of business. I think with liberal arts people that isn't necessarily true."

But some employers see the broad-based knowledge and subtle polish of a liberal arts graduate as advantages.

"I think if I went back to college, I'd major in English," said John M. Belk, chairman of the board of Belk Services Inc. A liberal arts major, Belk said, gives a person an edge in "communication skills" — vital tools in the business world.

"Technical skills can become outdated," added Charlotte business executive C.D. "Dick" Spangler, president of a construction firm and chairman of the N.C. Board of Education. "I think businesses that are really forward-looking place more emphasis on the liberal arts."

Ben H. Battle, director of special services and teacher placement at Western Carolina University, predicted that the liberal arts will make a comeback.

"There are two things that put you ahead in society," he said. "To be articulate and to write well. That can cover up a whole lot of sins."

Wins $250, But Not $3 Million

A Superior Court jury Friday awarded Claude R. Hardee punitive damages of $250 in his $3 million civil suit against a Route 2, Greenville, man whom Hardee alleged "alienated the affection" of his wife.

The eight women and four men who heard testimony in the suit here last week said in their verdict that Hardee was not entitled to recover any compensatory damages.

In returning a decision late Friday afternoon, the jury decided that Michael W. Mills did not alienate the affections of Hardee's wife, Judy, as alleged, but it decided that Mills did have "criminal conversation" with Mrs. Hardee.

Hardee, a resident of Route 3, Greenville, had sought a total of $3 million in actual and punitive damages in his suit against Mills, alleging that Mills and Mrs. Hardee "sometime either in May or June 1980 began an association together and which said association still continues whereby defendant and plaintiff's wife have committed adultery."

Legal documents indicated that both Mills and Mrs. Hardee were employed at J. H. Hudson Inc.

Hardee alleged that Mills, "through his wrongful and malicious acts in alienating the affection" of Hardee's wife, deprived Hardee "of the affection, society, companionship and assistance" of his wife.

Hardee alleged that Mills' actions and conduct "were wilful, aggravated, malicious, wanton and intentional."

The petitioner and his wife legally separated, according to a deed of separation executed Oct. 13, 1980.

No appeal notices had been filed this morning.

Robbery Is Reported

Greenville police are investigating the theft of $170 in cash from Donald Earl Chapman, 29 of Route 2, Ayden, Saturday night at the Greenville Motel on Memorial Drive.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Chapman told investigators that he had checked in at the motel about 3:30 a.m., and when he entered his room, he was followed by a man and two women.

He said the intruders took his wallet, which contained $170, and fled.

Ways to maintain statewide services to persons with epilepsy during a period of dwindling public financial resources were discussed. It was reported that contributions in 1982 were down 75 percent and that new memberships need to be emphasized statewide. Anyone interested in membership may call 752-3769 or write P.O. Box 7121, Greenville.

Credit Card Arrest Made

Marvin Jackson Strickland Jr., 19 of 218 Belvedere Dr. was arrested by Greenville police Friday on charges of larceny, credit card theft and receiving goods through the fraudulent use of a credit card.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Strickland allegedly took a flute and a credit card from his father's home on August 24 and sold it. He also allegedly took a credit card and obtained money from a local bank with the card.

Cannon noted that the flute, valued at $350, was recovered.

We've got nothing against raising tobacco. We just wanted to point out a few of the things our growers appreciate about the Perdue program. We might also mention that the need for expensive equipment is reduced and a chicken house can pay for itself while it provides a grower with income along the way. With Perdue, you can build the very best house on the market and you can build equity into your farm at the same time. In fact, one Perdue broiler house will give you the same net income as 5 to 6 acres of rented tobacco. When your house is paid for, one house earns the same income as 18-20 acres of tobacco.

The cost of farming is on the rise, but on the other side of the coin, it doesn't cost a penny to check out the crop with the guaranteed income of over $20,000 per year. There's never been a better time to talk chicken with PERDUE.

Twenty-Five Plan Depart Those Halls Of Congress

By PEGGY ANDERSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While most congressmen are hustling votes and spending millions to be re-elected, three senators and 22 members of the House of Representatives are saying "enough" and calling it quits.

Some say they're going home or retiring in Washington because they can make more money with less frustration, others want more time with their families. A few say the job just isn't what it's cracked up to be.

Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., said her congressional duties have become "tedious and frustrating" after seven terms. She said she hopes to be more effective when "freed from the wheel-spinning confines of the congressional cloisters."

"I hope to get out and make enough money in a couple of years to be able to afford to come back," said Rep. Ken Holland, D-S.C. Like many lawmakers, Holland said he finds it hard making ends meet on his $60,663 annual federal salary.

"It is simply that when one has done the same thing for 28 years, as I have, he ought to think about doing something new," said Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint House-Senate Economic Committee. He plans to combine law, teaching and writing in Washington or Wisconsin.

Of the 25 members who are not seeking re-election this November, 12 are Republicans, 12 are Democrats and one — Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. of Virginia — is an independent.

Byrd, in the Senate for three six-year terms, said he just didn't want another six years on the job. Virginia has had 47 senators in the last 200 years and "only six served longer than I have," Byrd said.

The list of 25 does not include eight members who lost primary elections and are taking forced retirements, nor Rep. Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., who resigned his seat earlier this month after pleading guilty to three federal charges including income tax evasion and marijuana possession.

Another 18 House members have resigned their seats to seek higher office, mostly in the Senate.

Rep. William Brodhead, D-Mich., is giving up after eight years in the House.

"I'm subject to tremendous ethical conflicts all the time. Pressure all the time. A declining standard of living... very superficial personal relationships," Brodhead said in an interview. "I don't think people realize what a lonely job this is."

Rep. Richard C. White, D-Texas, said his family "needs my presence, but my official duties oblige me to be absent from them about one-third of the year." He also cited a "need to realize my full earning potential."

"I'd never expected to stay in Congress forever," said Rep. Marc L. Marks, R-Pa., who is retiring after three terms.

Marks, who began a blistering campaign against President Reagan's economic program last March, said his decision "made it a hell of a lot easier" to speak out against administration policies. Political pressures "prevent us being as candid as we'd like to from time to time," he said.

For example, the decision gave Marks the freedom to respond with a succinct, profane note when a constituent sent "vicious, personal" letters complaining about his anti-Reagan stance.

House Rules Committee Chairman Richard Bolling, D-Mo., a one-time contender for speaker who underwent a triple heart bypass operation last fall, says "I'll be more useful to the causes I support out of Congress" than in.

Two who came to Congress this year to fill vacancies are not seeking re-election: Sen. Nicholas Brady, R-N.J., succeeding former Sen. Harrison Williams, D-N.J., who quit after his Abscam conviction; and Rep. Jean Ashbrook, R-Ohio, filling out the term of her late husband, John Ashbrook.

Among the other departures: — Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, R-Calif., 76, who said earlier this year he wanted to concentrate on legislation rather than a campaign, citing "my own internal imperative to turn in a record of solid legislative achievement."

— Rep. Jim Jeffries, R-Kan., a two-term congressman, who listed frustration with high budget deficits and a "left-leaning" press.

— Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., who was House minority leader during the Watergate years. Rhodes had planned to retire in 1980, but ran that year on the off chance that had Republicans captured the House, he might have become speaker.

Tropical Storm Being Watched

MIAMI (AP) — Floridians have little to fear at present as some 3,300 miles to the east, Tropical Storm Beryl is swirling over the warm Atlantic waters, spinning 55 mph winds.

Still, hurricane forecasters in Miami have cast a wary eye toward the Cape Verde islands off the west Africa coast, where the season's second named storm is creating some havoc for Atlantic boating interests.

The storm spun winds Sunday off the northwest coast of Africa that could endanger area vessels, but poses no threat to land, said forecaster Gil Clark of the National Hurricane Center here.

Clark said the storm would get stronger if it moves west, where it would be over the warm Atlantic waters. "If it continues going more to the northwest, it's going to get over colder water and it's not likely to strengthen very much," he said.

"It would have to go straight west to be a big problem," Clark added.

According to satellite pictures — the sole source of information forecasters have on Beryl — the storm sped up slightly from 12 mph to 14 mph Sunday, Clark said.

At 10:30 p.m. EDT Sunday, Beryl was some 3,350 miles east of Florida, and moved west northwest at 14 mph. Its center was about 250 miles west of the southernmost Cape Verde islands, off the coast of Senegal, and is expected to continue its course through Monday.

Storm Beryl was centered at latitude 15.9 north and longitude 29.7 west, and some strengthening is expected today, forecasters added.

Storm Beryl formed during what forecasters consider the most dangerous part of the Atlantic hurricane season, which began June 1 and ends Nov. 30.

Early-season hurricanes and tropical storms usually develop in the Gulf of Mexico and Caribbean and die before reaching shore. But major storms typically form late in the season near the African coast and bull across the Atlantic Ocean, sucking up warm air and water to pick up strength.

The season's only other tropical storm this year was Alberto, which became Hurricane Alberto on June 3. That hurricane failed to reach the Florida coast, but dumped heavy rains on Cuba and caused at least 21 deaths there.

Since Alberto formed, forecasters say prime conditions for hurricane development have moved from the Caribbean to the African coast, where the biggest storms have historically been born.

Disturbed weather systems are classified as tropical storms after their winds reach 39 mph. Tropical storms become hurricanes after their sustained winds reach speeds of 74 mph.

Breakthrough?

PARIS (AP) — Authorities imposed a strict blackout on news about the arrest of two men in what appears to be a major break in France's intense counter-attack against terrorism.

A terse communique issued Saturday night, said: "Two arrests, considered important, were made Saturday within international terrorist circles. Documents and explosives also were seized."

It said further information would not be immediately released.

Study Says Street Cops Best For Unruly Juveniles

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Police officers probably should have a greater "street-level" role in handling teen-age troublemakers, a government-backed study says.

The study, released by the Justice Department Sunday, also said broken homes have little to do with producing juvenile delinquents, but teen-agers who drive cars have increased risks of getting into trouble. The study also cast doubt on the popular notion that "employment while in high school deterred delinquency." "Those who were employed during both the summer and the school year, particularly the males, had somewhat more police contacts and seriousness scores than did others," the researchers said.

The study suggested a greater role for police officers in dealing with young offenders. "Continuation and expansion of street-level dispositions — counseling and release by the (police) officer — is probably a wise policy because fewer youths are brought into the justice system, a step for which we see little evidence of positive results."

"It may also be that the effectiveness of a policy of street-level dispositions could be enhanced by a police training program which provides officers with a better understanding of human behavior and juvenile behavior in particular," the study added.

The researchers recommended focusing more attention on what they called "hard core" juvenile delinquents who have shown a tendency toward repeat offenses.

The study, conducted by University of Iowa researchers between 1974 and 1980 in Racine, Wis., was financed in part by the Justice Department. Its conclusions do not necessarily reflect the official views of the department.

The researchers called Racine, a city of 100,000, a "microcosm" of the United States.

The researchers noted that the delinquency rate significantly increases for those who hold their first full-time job at age 17 or earlier.

"As for driving the researchers said, "Both males and females had more police contacts after receiving their driver's licenses."

They added: "But we must remember that most were receiving their licenses just at the time that they were eager to have the rights and privileges of adults — to engage in unfettered fun and to enjoy the freedom of adults, without perhaps knowing how to be as careful as adults."

The study's conclusions about the effects of broken homes on juvenile crime contradicted the commonly held notion that children growing up with single parents are more likely to turn bad.

"The marital status of parents had little relationship to the delinquency behavior of juveniles," the researchers said.

The Forecast For Tuesday, August 31

● Low Temperatures

Rain ☂ Snow ❄
Showers ☔ Flurries ❄❄

Fronts: Cold ☐ Warm ☐ Occluded ☐ Stationary ☐

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts cool weather for Tuesday across the northern states and warm weather in the southern half. Showers are expected in the western Plains, western Gulf and upper Mississippi Valley to the mid-Atlantic region. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
An unusually cold high-pressure system from Canada barreled down the Eastern seaboard and gave North Carolina a surprising weekend break from normal dog-day weather.

But while unseasonably cool temperatures and crisp, dry air were expected to control the state's weather again today, the National Weather Service said a return to normalcy should occur by midweek.

At least one record was set. A low temperature of 55 degrees was recorded in Wilmington overnight, the coolest ever recorded there in August.

The same air mass that sent the mercury plummeting also whipped waters off the North Carolina coast, leading authorities to close several beaches.

In a statement this morning, the weather service said the sudden temperature drop is not altogether unusual for this time of year.

"As the end of August draws near, weather patterns are beginning to change," the weather service said. "Upper level winds that guide high pressure and low pressure systems across the continent are growing stronger and are more apt to produce sudden widespread changes in the air over the region."

Over the weekend, high pressure that originated in Canada days before moved southeast to the mid-Atlantic coast on Sunday. It drifted east off the Maryland coast this morning, bringing with it the coolest and driest air North Carolina has had since spring.

The lowest temperatures in the state Sunday were in the mountains at Rosman, with 42 degrees, and at Grandfather Mountain, with 48. In the east, Sunday's lows ranged from 58 in Rocky Mount and 62 in Elizabeth City and Goldsboro to 70 at Cape Hatteras.

Sunday's highs across the state ranged from 58 at Grandfather Mountain to 77 in Rocky Mount and Wilmington. Other highs were 73 at Rocky Mount, 74 at Cape Hatteras and 75 at Asheville.

Temperature readings in the 50s were common in the state this morning except in the west. A blanket of clouds over the southwest Piedmont, foothills and southern mountains kept temperatures there in the 60s.

As the high pressure center continues east, winds will return from the south with warmer and more humid air later today and Tuesday. Cloudiness will increase over the western portions of the state today and over other parts of the state Tuesday.

Thunderstorms will appear in many areas by Tuesday afternoon, the weather service said.

Rough Seas, Chilly Along N.C. Beaches

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — While nearly 200 surfers struggled in rough waters, beaches were closed Sunday at Nags Head, Kill Devil Hills, Kitty Hawk and Southern Shores when a 30 mph northeast wind kicked up waves.

A high pressure system centering over northern Virginia caused the rough surf and should pass the coast by morning, said Robin Seib, of the Cape Hatteras Bureau of the National Weather Service.

Surfers were competing Sunday at the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse in the annual Eastern Surfing Championships, which have been held there 11 years.

SHARK VICTIM?
TOKYO (AP) — A 13-year-old girl swimming with her family was attacked and killed by what appears to have been a shark, police said today.

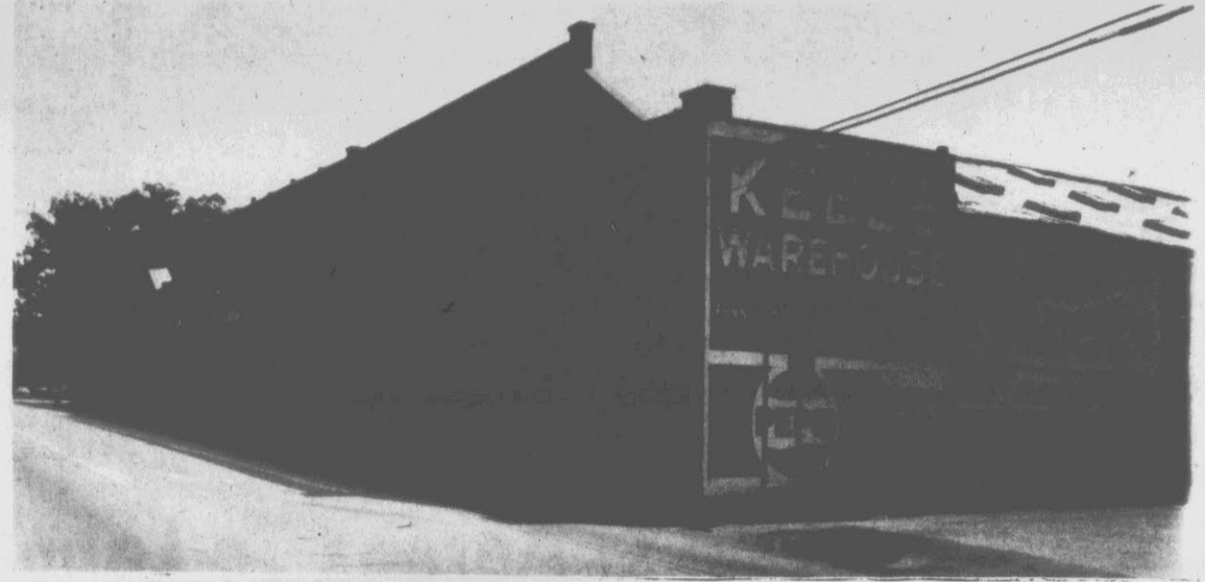

And at Kill Devil Hills, surfers were jumping off fishing piers when they could not fight their way through the breakers, said Kirk Whorf of the Lifeguard Beach Service.

In Nags Head a swimming ban went into effect indefinitely at 7 a.m. Sunday when a 30 mph northeast wind caused 6- to 8-foot waves and hazardous currents, said Nags Head police Sgt. N.H. Sanderson.

He said the town had little difficulty keeping people out of the water because of the chill and rough surf Sunday.

Only large fishing trawlers and the U.S. Coast Guard braved the crossing into the Atlantic at the mouth of the Oregon Inlet, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Hampton Wood.

"The inlet is really too rough for anyone to do anything today," where a north east wind gusting to 30 mph created 5-foot breakers, Wood said.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices showed a broad loss today, pulling back after the record-breaking rally of the past two weeks.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 106.55 points from Aug. 12 through last Friday's close, slipped 2.49 to 880.98 by noon.

Losers held a 5-2 lead over gainers in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The surge of buying that has swept through Wall Street since early this month has been attributed largely to a rapid decline in interest rates. But as investors began a new week today, many analysts were voicing the belief that rates might now level off for a while.

Textrol led the active list, off 1/4 at 20 3/4. A 391,200-share block traded at 21.

Other losers among the volume leaders included Exxon, down 5/8 at 27 3/4; Merrill Lynch, down 1/4 at 33 1/2; and Westinghouse Electric, off 3/8 at 30 3/4.

The NYSE's composite index lost 47 to 66.76. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 2.36 at 273.05.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 23.71 million shares at noon, against 36.85 million at the same point Friday.

U.S. Agrees To Loan Mexico $925 Million

By OWEN ULLMANN
WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. government has agreed to lend Mexico $925 million as part of a $1.85 billion package of emergency short-term loans by industrial countries to help Mexico through its financial crisis, the Federal Reserve Board announced today.

The Fed said central banks from 10 other countries also are participating in the arrangement of short-term financing to the Banco de Mexico.

The loans are intended to help Mexico over until it can secure longer term financing through the International Monetary Fund. Mexico is eligible for up to $4 billion in three-year loans from the IMF.

Under the loan program, the Treasury will provide $600 million and the Fed $325 million through a swap arrangement, which means that Mexico will receive U.S. dollars in exchange for pesos.

The loans are in addition to $1 billion in advance payments to Mexico the United States made last month for oil that will be put in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

debits of about $81 billion, the most of any country, and a lack of cash to meet its obligations.

In its announcement today, the Fed said the loans, made through the Bank of International Settlements, are intended to aid Mexico's efforts "to strengthen its economic and financial position."

"The overall multilateral effort is designed to provide an orderly transition to an economic adjustment program that the Mexican government has announced it is developing," the Fed said.

Normally, the IMF requires a country to adopt an austere economic program to qualify for loans.

A Cool Night

Greenville area residents awoke to cool temperatures this morning... a far cry from the high temperatures experienced earlier this summer.

According to the Greenville Utilities Commission, the temperature at 8 a.m. was 56, although the temperature later today was expected to climb into the 80s.

Friday's low temperature was 61 degrees, and the high for the day was 88, while on Saturday, the low was 70 and the high 84.

GUC spokesmen noted that just over a half-inch of rain was recorded Saturday, while 24 of an inch of rain was recorded Sunday, which saw temperatures reach only 73 degrees. Sunday's low was a cool 56 degrees.

Pittsburgh Pay Talks Snagged

By The Associated Press
 Contract negotiations involving 755 striking teachers for 40,000 students in the Pittsburgh area broke off this morning as classes were set to begin in some schools.

The striking teachers, nurses, librarians, psychologists and counselors belong to the Allegheny Intermediate Unit Education Association, which serves 12,000 handicapped children in public schools and provides auxiliary educational services to 28,000 pupils in private and parochial schools.

School officials said eight special education centers attended by 2,500 students could not open today as scheduled and some classes in other schools were canceled.

Elsewhere, officials in Butte, Mont., hoped to settle a contract dispute in time to hold classes later in the week.

In California, where school starts in two weeks, the Legislature has yet to provide money considered crucial for school districts to begin talks in earnest with unions representing almost 200,000 teachers.

Barbara Sipler, a spokeswoman for the teachers association in Pittsburgh, said "some progress" was made in the talks, but "Salaries continued to be the major issue."

Both sides were scheduled to meet Tuesday morning with state mediator Hyman Richmond.

Ms. Sipler said classes, which were to begin at

When other financial institutions offer you money market checking...

Ask if there are strings attached.

Lots of financial institutions are beginning to offer checking accounts with "money market" rates. But, none of these accounts pay rates as high as Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup>

And, with Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> there are no strings attached.

Don't tie up your money in an account that requires passbook savings.

With Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> there are no low-interest balances to maintain. In fact, no minimum balances at all. Simply open with $1,000 and earn money market interest.

We'll pay you the highest interest rates in the state on checking for a simple $2 a month service charge. And, if you're 55 or older, we offer Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> with no fees whatsoever. (If you don't need checking privileges our $1,000 minimum Funds Management account earns the same interest rates as Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> with no fees.)

Don't forget about insurance.

Your Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> balance is insured to $100,000. Some financials offering high interest checking may forget to tell you that their purchase agreement account isn't insured. So, ask about insurance before you tie the knot.

At North State, we'll be happy to explain all the particulars about our Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> account. And, we won't forget a thing. Because Funds Checking.<sup>SM</sup> simply pays higher interest on an insured deposit for a low monthly service fee.

Carner Takes Classic In Five-Hole Playoff

HIGH POINT (AP) — JoAnne Carner caught a cold playing an exhibition last week, but now she has both a cure and a way to pay her doctor bills.

Carner defeated Sandra Haynie in a 5-hole playoff Sunday to win the $165,000 LPGA Henredon Classic on the 6,191-yard, par-72 Willow Creek Golf Club course.

"I don't think I have a cold any more," Carner said after her victory. "It's happened a lot where a player who is sick plays well, but this is a first for me."

While Carner can use her $24,750 prize money to pay her medical bills, Haynie can use her $16,170 runner-up winnings to pay for swimming lessons — something she unexpectedly needed on the decisive fifth playoff hole.

Haynie's tee shot on No. 17, the final playoff hole, landed in a hazard area on the bank of a lake. When she took her second shot, she lost her balance and fell into the water. It was, for all purposes, an $8,580 fall — the difference between first and second place.

"I lost my concentration, composure, and a little bit of everything," said Haynie. "It's hard to concentrate when you're slopping up the fairway. I was wet up to my waist."

Carner, 43, from Palm Beach, Fla., who last week won the World Championship of Women's Golf in Cleveland, made a routine par on the hole. And when a soggy Haynie's third shot stopped on the fringe of the green and she two-putted for bogey, Carner had career victory no. 36.

"I didn't see her go in the water," Carner said. "I didn't realize she was that close."

Carner twice avoided defeat in the playoff, chipping in from 64 feet on the second playoff hole and hitting a 15-foot, par-saving putt on the fourth extra hole.

The playoff became necessary when they tied at 6-under-par 282 after 72 holes. Haynie had begun the day with a two-stroke lead but shot a 74 while Carner finished an even par 72.

In Playoff Over Stadler

Stadler Wins WS Of Golf

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Craig Stadler describes his year, laced with victories in the Masters and World Series of Golf and two other American titles, with one word: fantastic.

"This is very fitting to my year," Stadler said Sunday of his four-hole, sudden death triumph over Ray Floyd in the $400,000 World Series of Golf.

"I figured if I won here, it would make a fantastic year. It has," he said.

The pudgy 29-year-old Californian now has more victories, four, and more money, $428,101, than anyone else on the PGA Tour this year following his $100,000 payday.

Floyd, the PGA champion who surrendered his money-leading position in this elite event, did not take his dramatic loss lightly.

"You're supposed to be happy with second place," said Floyd, who started the cool day with a five-stroke lead. "I am very unhappy with second."

"I played my best golf in the playoff. I guess it was not meant to be."

Stadler conceded he was fortunate to win. He missed three of the four greens in the playoff while Floyd missed just one, the fatal 17th.

Tied at 71, they were in the same area, nestled in the high rough to the left of the green. Stadler knocked his chip shot to within four feet of the cup.

Floyd, with a tougher lie, chipped 12 feet past the hole. He missed the downhill, downhill putt to save par. Stadler then tapped his in for his first World Series triumph.

"Ray had chances every hole," Stadler said. "I didn't play very well in the playoff. My short game came through. He made the first mistake. I just up my scrambling ways."

It marked the third straight playoff hole Stadler had missed the green, only to chip to within a few feet of the hole to stay with Floyd.

"Those chips get a little easier when you have hit three of them that close to the hole," Stadler said. "Besides, Ray had a difficult, little chip. He caught too much of the ball."

Stadler forced the playoff with a five-birdie regulation round of 65. Floyd matched par of 70. They were tied after 72 holes at 278, two strokes below Firestone South's par.

"There's really not much to say about it," said Floyd of his defeat. "Congratulations to Craig. He has to be commended for a great round of golf."

Floyd's $55,000 second-place check dropped him to second place in the money derby at $386,809.

Isao Aoki of Japan closed with a 67 for a third place at 280. He earned $34,500.

Australia Bob Shearer, after recovering from a severe nose-bleed in his early holes, shot 73 and tied Curtis Strange for fourth at 282. Strange had 68.

Jack Nicklaus, despite five double bogeys in four rounds, finished with a 67. It gave him a sixth-place tie with Lanny Wadkins and Tom Kite at 285. Kite and Wadkins had 71s.

Bill Rogers, the defending champion, also closed well with a 67 that gave him 286, eight shots off the lead.

NFL Players May Set Strike Date

CHICAGO (AP) — Representatives of the National Football League Players Association could put the heat on league owners in their contract negotiations today by setting a strike date.

Player reps and the NFLPA gather here to discuss the lack of bargaining progress and to decide what they want to do about it.

"I think there is a pretty good chance a strike date will be set," Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA, said Sunday in a telephone interview from his Chevy Chase, Md., home. He said the most likely time for any walkout would be between now and the fourth or fifth game of the regular season, which starts Sept. 12.

The Association has asked for 55 percent of the gross receipts brought in by the 28 teams, including television revenue anticipated from a lucrative contract recently signed.

"We know the owners are about to put an offer on the table," Garvey said. "They've been talking to some of the players individually about it."

But, he said, some of the player representatives have been dissatisfied with the owners' refusal to bargain.

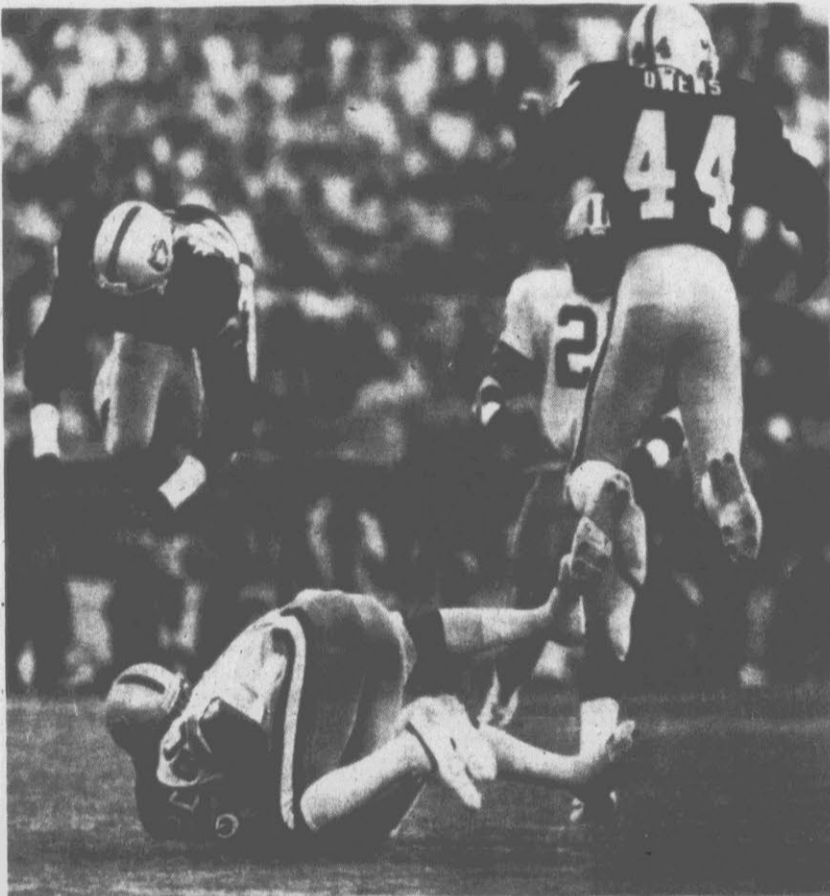

"They want to see what steps we can take to force bargaining," Garvey said.

Garvey discounted rumors that the Players Association may adopt some strategy aimed at forcing the owners into locking out the players.

"At this stage we're more interested in a conventional approach," he said. "If we go out, we'll shut it down."

There has been some talk of a more selective action, one or two teams going out or a half-dozen or so top players from each team refusing to suit up.

"These alternative approaches put too much pressure on a small group of people," Garvey said. "We believe it's a responsibility everyone should bear."

L.A. Raiders Win One, Lose One In New Home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Raiders' first outing in their new home was successful on one count and not so successful on another.

The Raiders, with rookie Jack Squire of Illinois and veteran Rod Martin spearheading a fine defensive performance, whipped the Green Bay Packers 24-3 Sunday night in their National Football League preseason game.

But the Raiders' initial home contest in Los Angeles drew a crowd of just 40,906 to the L.A. Coliseum, which has a 70,000-plus capacity.

During the week prior to the game, there had been a substantial amount of complaining by potential Raider fans who were displeased with the seats they had been issued. Team officials said 54,268 tickets had been sold for the contest.

Still, Raiders' managing general partner Al Davis, who led the legal fight against the NFL for the right to move his club from Oakland to Los Angeles, was pleased with the team's debut.

"I think that we put on a great show," he said. "It's the start of a trek toward Pasadena (site of the 1983 Super Bowl)."

Even the many empty seats in the Coliseum didn't discourage Davis.

"It was great to see as many people come out," he said. "But we have a commitment from a lot more people for season tickets and when we get organized, you'll see a lot more people here."

Chris Bahr kicked a 44-yard field goal as time ran out in the half and Frank Hawkins scored on a 2-yard run in the third quarter to put the Raiders ahead to stay. In the fourth period, Marc Wilson threw a 6-yard touchdown pass to Malcolm Barnwell, and Billy Taylor tallied on a 3-yard burst.

The only score by Green Bay, which had won its two previous exhibition outings, was Eddie Garcia's 49-yard field goal in the first quarter.

"I think we're beginning to come together better now," said Raiders' Coach Tom Flores, whose team is 2-1 in exhibition play. "I'm very pleased that we won our first game here."

Wilson, who took over for starter Jim Plunkett in the third quarter, completed five of 11 passes for 66 yards. Plunkett connected on 14 of 19 for 185 yards. Cliff Branch was the Raiders' top receiver with five catches for 94 yards.

Los Angeles rookie Marcus Allen, the 1981 Heisman Trophy winner at Southern Cal, continued his impressive showing in the preseason, carrying nine times for 41 yards and grabbing two passes for 15 more.

The Packers, effective defensively until the final quarter but struggling on offense, had just 205 total yards to the Raiders' 376. Four Green Bay quarterbacks were a combined 15 of 38 for 110 yards passing, and suffered two interceptions.

Gerry Ellis was the Packers' leading rusher with five carries for just 21 yards.

In Saturday night's exhibitions it was the Los Angeles Rams 23, Seattle 13; the New York Giants 22, the New York Jets 10; Cleveland 20, New Orleans 17; Detroit 27, Cincinnati 23; Pittsburgh 37, Baltimore 15; Houston 21, Tampa Bay 6; Dallas 36, New England 21; Denver 27, Minnesota 17; San Diego 23, San Francisco 9; St. Louis 10, Chicago 3, and Kansas City 17, Miami 17 in overtime. On Friday night it was Atlanta 24, Philadelphia 21, and Buffalo 20, Washington 14.

Rose Joins GCA In Soccer Ranks

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

With the bowing in of Rose High School into prep soccer, the area's number of teams has doubled. Prior to this year, only Greenville Christian Academy fielded a soccer team.

Will Wiberg, a former East Carolina soccer player, has taken over the reigns of the Rampant team, which will be playing its games on Dancy Field, located at the corner of Red Banks Road and Arlington Street (behind Kroger's).

Greenville Christian is again coached by Dale Thatcher, and will continue to play at the school.

Wiberg has a relative untested team, having only a few players who have played on any level aside from recreational teams. He's currently carrying a roster of 24 players after having about 40 turn out for the original tryouts.

"I think we'll have a good season," Wiberg said. "The toughest people we'll have to face will be the three Wilson schools. They've been playing soccer for some time now."

He noted that Fike has fielded a soccer team for around eight or nine years, now, while Hunt and Beddingfield joined in with the sport when those two schools were founded. And both of them had immediate help in that some of the ex-Fike players became theirs.

Kinston founded its program last year, and both Rocky Mount and Northeastern have joined Rose as first year entrants. Only Northern Nash has not fielded a team among the Big East teams. The sport will become a Big East championship for the first time this year. In the past, the Wilson teams have played as part of a conference in the Cap-Eight area.

"I think we'll be able to stay on the field with anyone, condition-wise," Wiberg said. "But skillwise, I think it'll be a while before we catch up to the Wilson programs."

While Wiberg hasn't definitely settled on a starting lineup yet, he does feel that he has a couple of good goalies in sophomores Mike Taylor and Greg Ward. He looks to David Jester and Lewis Robbins to be among the better players away from the goal.

"Most of the rest of the players are about even, and we haven't started really putting them into solid positions."

Wiberg terms this season as a building one. "We're trying to establish a system for the players to get used to, to promote the sport and try and get people out to watch us, and to get more people out next year for tryouts."

Wiberg also noted that the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department has been very helpful in getting the program going. For some time now the GRPD has run a recreation league for younger players in the city.

"I'll be happy if we finished at .500," the coach said. "Anything above that will be a bonus."

A native of Huntington, Long Island, N.Y., Wiberg has coaching experience for the past six years on the recreational level. He is in the process of working on his master's degree at East Carolina.

Greenville Christian went

10-3 last year, tied for the regular season conference championship and then won the league's tournament, but coach Dale Thatcher is expecting somewhat of a rebuilding year this season.

"We lost six seniors," he said, "and a couple of our good returnees have transferred. That's left us with only about four players with good experience."

While he does feel that several of the newcomers can help to fill in the gaps, he notes that they are inexperienced on the varsity level. "We've got a junior program that we've run for about three years now, and that's helped us a lot. But it's a whole new step up when they move to the varsity," Thatcher said.

Still, he expects to be fairly well off when it comes to conference play. "It's some of the strong outside competition that I'm unsure about. I just don't know if we have the staff to stay with them."

Thatcher's practices have been hurt somewhat by

Two Hurlers Arrested On Pot Charges

CHICAGO (AP) — Two pitchers for the Cleveland Indians major league baseball team were arrested in a nightclub area on the near north side and charged for allegedly smoking marijuana, police said today.

Len Barker, 27, and Edward Glynn, 29, were released early this morning after posting $100 bond each, police said.

Police Sgt. Edward J. Wright said two plainclothes officers arrested the pair Sunday night after allegedly seeing them pass a cigarette between them that "was emitting an odor similar to marijuana."

When the officers identified themselves, Wright said Barker threw the cigarette on the ground and both men walked away. The officers caught up with the pair, and Wright said Barker jerked his shoulder away from one of the policemen.

He said Barker was restrained temporarily and one of the arresting officers, Frank G. Goff, said he was bruised in a slight scuffle.

Both were charged with possession of a controlled substance. Barker also was charged with disorderly conduct. Both were given a Sept. 9 court date.

The Indians are in town for a series with the Chicago White Sox.

'Loser,' Lloyd To Meet In Open

NEW YORK (AP) — Pilar Vasquez won the Canadian Open junior girls title in 1979 and reached the semifinals of the Italian Open junior girls tournament in 1980. Now she will be in the spotlight at the U.S. Open Tennis Championships, meeting five-time champion Chris Evert Lloyd in the first round.

America's premier tennis event, held at the National Tennis Center in Flushing Meadows, gets underway on Tuesday.

Despite her opening-round foe, Vasquez is a "lucky loser." She lost in the women's final qualifying round on Sunday, but because of her world ranking, reached the main draw when eighth-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany had to pull out with a sore shoulder.

A native of Lima, Peru, the 19-year-old Vasquez moved with her family to Key Biscayne, Fla., in 1977. She turned pro late last year and won her first tournament in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, as she played 24 tournaments in nine months in nine countries.

Although she got her chance in the U.S. Open when Hanika withdrew, she was paired with Lloyd, the No. 2 seed, because Bonnie Gadusek of Largo, Fla., was moved into a seeded position in the women's draw.

Gadusek, 19, originally was seeded 16th. But a Women's Tennis Association rule caused her to be replaced as the 16th seed by Zina Garrison of Houston. By the luck — bad or good — of the draw, her first-round opponent turned out to be Lloyd.

Then Hanika pulled out on Sunday and, by WTA rules, several changes in the draw were made. Bettina Bunge, the ninth seed, was moved into Hanika's spot and will meet Shelly Solomon in the first round. Gadusek was inserted in Bunge's previous spot, making her opening-round opponent Nancy Neviasser of Winter Park, Fla.

Vasquez, ranked 131st in the world on the Women's Tennis Association computer, was put into the main draw because she was the highest-ranked player to lose in the final qualifying round on Sunday.

Gadusek's road to the main draw has been a bumpy one. On Thursday, she was named the 16th seed by the U.S. Tennis Association. But the WTA rules caused her to be replaced as the final seed by Zina Garrison of Houston, who captured the junior girls title at both Wimbledon and the U.S. Open last year.

Gadusek then was selected in a blind draw to play Lloyd. That changed with Hanika's injury to the left shoulder of the West German left-hander.

Ironically, Vasquez, in 1978, succeeded Bunge as Peru's top-ranked woman. Bunge was born in Switzerland, raised in Peru and is a member of the West German Federation Cup squad with Hanika, now lives in Coral Gables, Fla.

Mats Wilander of Sweden, the French Open champion who is seeded 11th here, will kick off the U.S. Open Tuesday when he meets Bill Scanlon on the stadium court at 11 a.m.

Caution Helps Waltrip Win 500

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip, who has won the last four Grand National stock car races at Bristol International Raceway, almost belabored the obvious when he talked of his victory in the Busch 500.

"The last caution was the biggest factor in the race," Waltrip said after that final yellow flag with only 19 laps left Saturday night enabled him to hold off Grand National point leader Bobby Allison by 7.9 seconds in a controversial finish.

Allison, who built his point total to 3,142 to 3,077 for Terry Labonte and 3,022 for Waltrip, appeared to be in command when he took over after a caution flag on the 305th lap and began a run that saw all the leaders gambling on gas and tires to the finish.

Harry Gant, who finished third behind Waltrip and Allison, was the first to pit for gas and right-side tires. Then Allison surrendered the lead for the same purpose, Waltrip going in front on the 472nd lap and quickly moving a lap ahead.

Waltrip, whose average speed in the Junior Johnson-prepared Buick was 94.318 mph on the high-banked, .533-mile track with just three caution flags for 15 laps, made his move on the 474th lap, but he took on only gas.

That appeared to give Allison the edge, but Labonte — coming out of the pit fast in an effort to get past Waltrip — was struck in the rear by Dave Marcis, and the final caution flag came out.

"The battery was dead and I ran out of gas coming into the pits on the earlier stop, but the one under caution allowed me to take on new tires. The new rubber was definitely the difference," Waltrip said.

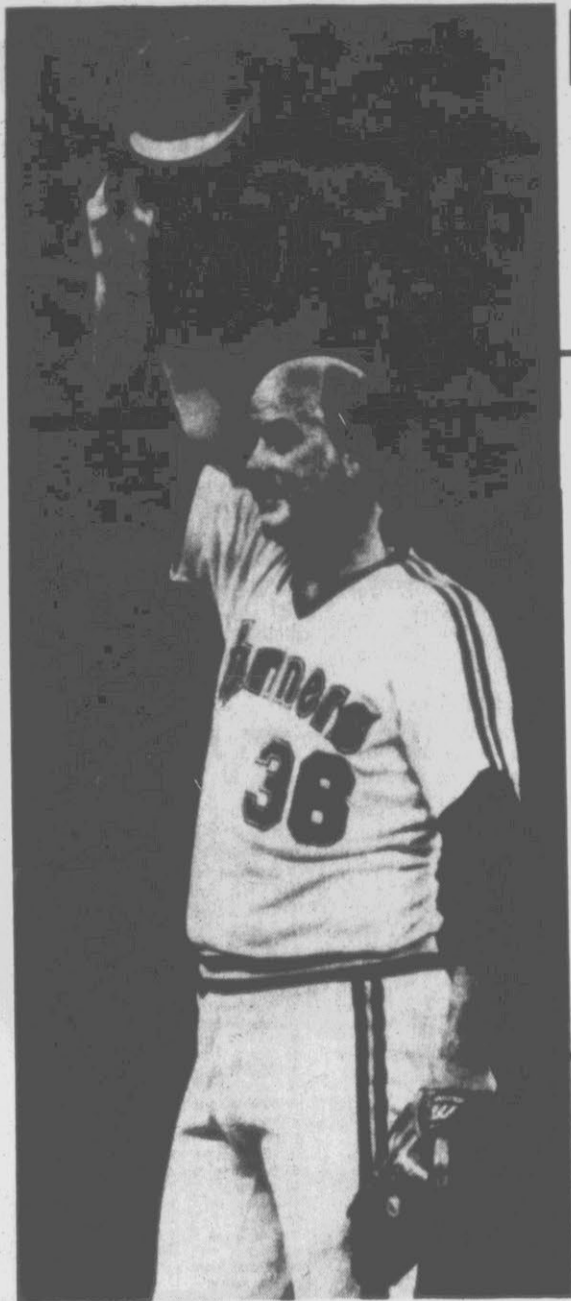

Before going to the pit, however, Waltrip went by the pace car as it tried to pick up the leader, and he was able to stay in the same lap with Gant and Allison.

"The deal on the pace car is that it was slow getting out. They were supposed to pick up Allison and didn't because he went into the pits. So we got out in front of it before it picked up the leader. It's that simple. It happens all the time on short tracks," Waltrip said.

But Allison, who was unable to catch Waltrip once he put on four new tires, saw it differently.

"They don't let me pass the pace car," he said. "I just ran as hard as I could and they waved the flag at somebody else."

Allison, who led 168 laps to just 40 for Waltrip as eight drivers exchanged the lead 16 times, overhauled Gant to finish second. Labonte was fourth and Morgan Shepherd fifth.

Brewers Pound Oakland

By The Associated Press
The way Bob McClure was pitching, you could have knocked the Oakland A's over with a feather — or a fastball.

"He threw more fastballs than the last few times out, and that was a big factor," Milwaukee Brewer Manager Harvey Kuenn said after an 8-1 victory over the A's Sunday. "It helped his control, and he has a good enough fastball to throw it by you."

The Milwaukee left-hander is known primarily as a breaking-ball pitcher — so it was a surprise to the A's to see so many hard tosses from him. For instance, in a 5-3 defeat to California last time out, McClure threw only 34 fastballs in 120 pitches. Sunday, he threw 86 fastballs among 125 pitches.

"He's been able to spot the fastball and breaking ball, and the fastball really has helped his breaking ball and change," Kuenn said.

McClure agreed. "I consider it my best full game this year," he said. "It was the second game that I haven't walked anybody, and I feel real good about that."

McClure, 10-6, struck out six as the Brewers took their eighth victory in their last 10 games and kept 5½ games ahead of second-place Boston in the American League East. The Red Sox kept pace with a 9-3 decision over California.

Cecil Cooper drove in three runs with his 26th homer and a single and Roy Howell lined two RBI singles for the Brewers. Mike Norris, 6-9, was the loser.

Red Sox 9, Angels 3
Wade Boggs, Jim Rice and Dwight Evans hit home runs to account for eight runs and power Boston over California.

Boggs, a rookie hitting over .362 in part-time play, put Boston in front to stay with his third homer of the season, a two-run shot off Steve Renko in the second inning.

Rice, who returned Saturday from a week of traction in a hospital for back muscle spasms, shelled Renko, 10-6, with a three-run blast, his 19th, in the third. Evans walloped a three-run homer, his 23rd, in the seventh.

Dennis Eckersley, 12-10, was the winner while allowing six hits and two runs in six innings. Bob Stanley relieved for his 11th save.

"On my first time at bat, I hit a low, inside pitch," said Boggs. "It surprised me more than anyone. I was very surprised that I hit it so well and even more surprised when I saw it go into the bullpen (in right center). I'm just not an inside ball hitter."

Royals 7, White Sox 4
Amos Otis' two-run double keyed a four-run first inning and Larry Gura gained his 17th victory as Kansas City beat Chicago for its sixth straight victory and its ninth in 11 games.

Gura moved into a tie with the Los Angeles' Fernando Valenzuela and Philadelphia's Steve Carlton for the major-league lead with his 17th victory in 25 decisions. He gave up nine hits in 8 2-3 innings, striking out five and walking just one before needing last-out relief from Dan Quisenberry, who gained his 31st save.

The victory improved the Royals' lead in the AL West to two games over California.

"The three guys in front of me have been hitting all year," said Otis. "I just put it in play and watch them run."

He referred to Willie Wilson, U. L. Washington and Brett — who shared six hits and three RBI Sunday.

Orioles 3, Rangers 2
Eddie Murray drove in two runs, including the sixth-inning tie-breaker, as Baltimore defeated Texas behind Mike Flanagan's six-hitter. The victory was Baltimore's ninth in 10 games, while the Rangers have lost nine of their last 11.

Murray, who had three of the five hits off Texas starter Frank Tanana, 6-15, singled home a run in the fourth. With the score tied 1-1 in the sixth.

Murray singled home another run.

Yankees 8, Blue Jays 2
Dave Winfield drove in four runs with two homers and Lee Mazzilli belted a solo shot to back the three-hit performance of left-hander Tommy John as New York whipped Toronto.

Winfield's second homer of the game and 25th of the season, a three-run blast, capped a four-run third inning that gave the Yankees a 6-0 lead and chased Toronto starter Jim Clancy, 11-12.

Twins 6, Indians 3
Randy Bush drove in two runs to lead Minnesota over Cleveland and a sweep of their three-game series.

Bobby Castillo, 8-10, earned the victory. He gave up four hits in the first inning and did not give up another hit until the ninth, striking out six. It was Castillo's third complete game of the season.

Tigers 6, Mariners 2
Jerry Ujdr threw a four-hitter and outlasted his own wildness — he issued six walks — to lead the Tigers. Rookie outfielder Howard Johnson knocked in two runs, one with a homer.

Split Puts Cards 2 Up On Phils

By The Associated Press
All of its closest competitors had already won, so the St. Louis Cardinals couldn't afford to lose a doubleheader.

The San Diego Padres bombed the Cards 9-4 in the first game Sunday, cutting their National League East lead to 1½ games, but St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog was able to breathe a sigh of relief after his team won the nightcap 5-3 to push its margin over the Philadelphia Phillies back to two games.

"They gave us all we wanted today," Herzog said. "That was a big win for us. We should have blown it open in the first few innings, but we didn't."

Doug Bair, who won the second game with a brilliant relief stint, said, "We just want to stay consistent and keep that two or three-game lead. As long as we do that, we don't have to be concerned with what the other teams do."

"It's going to be an interesting race," Padres Manager Dick Williams said of the East pennant chase. "Montreal, Philly, and St. Louis will all be in there. I'm pulling for St. Louis. For one thing, Montreal fired me. And Whitey and I are real close. We've played and coached together and known each other for 30 years."

John Curtis, who won the first game for the Padres in relief, said it's too early to eliminate San Diego, which is six games behind Atlanta and Los Angeles in the West.

"I've been in pennant races before," he said. "It seems that teams can make up a lot of ground in a short period of time. If we'd swept today, it might have been enough to get us going. There's still a long way to go. I'm certainly not counting us out."

Phillies 3, Reds 1
Steve Carlton, after three dismal starts in a row, returned to form with a three-hitter and 11 strikeouts to lead Philadelphia.

Carlton, 17-9, who was 0-1 with an 8.10 earned run average in his previous three outings, lost his shutout bid when pinch-hitter Rafael Landestoy hit his first home run of the season in the eighth inning.

Braves 9, Mets 4
Atlanta moved into first place in the West, one percentage point ahead of the Dodgers, by winning its ninth game in 10 outings. New York, on the other hand, lost its 13th straight as Glenn Hubbard, Claudell Washington and Rafael Ramirez each drove in two runs for the Braves.

Phil Niekro, 13-3, worked six innings for his seventh victory in a row, with Steve Bedrosian getting his eighth save.

Cubs 7, Dodgers 2
Bump Willis led a 13-hit Chicago attack against Los Angeles by knocking in two runs with three singles and a sacrifice fly.

Ferguson Jenkins, 10-13, posted his fourth straight victory and 274th of his career. He allowed four hits in six innings.

Expos 5, Astros 3
Andre Dawson knocked in three runs with a groundout and a two-run homer to lead Montreal.

Dawson capped the Expos' three-run second inning with his 18th homer, victimizing Bob Knepper, 5-13, after a sacrifice fly by Joel Youngblood gave the Expos a 2-1 lead.

Pirates 4, Giants 3
Jim Morrison and Jason Thompson accounted for Pittsburgh's runs with a two-run single and a two-run homer, respectively.

John Candelaria, 12-5, allowed 10 hits in 71-3 innings although he ran into trouble in the eighth, when the Giants scored two runs. Rod Scurry got his 12th save.

Ingrid Bergman Loses An 8-Year Cancer Struggle

EARLY ROLE — Actress Ingrid Bergman is seen as she appeared in "For Whom the Bell Tolls" in 1943. The actress reportedly died in London today on her 67th birthday. (AP Laserphoto)

LONDON (AP) — Academy Award-winning actress Ingrid Bergman, whose roles ranged from Humphrey Bogart's lover in "Casablanca" to the tough-minded prime minister of Israel in "Golda," has died after an eight-year battle with cancer. She died on her 67th birthday.

One of the last of Hollywood's legendary figures, the Swedish-born Miss Bergman died here Sunday, her daughter, Pia Lindstrom, said in New York.

Miss Lindstrom, a journalist, said she was flying to London today. Miss Bergman's three other children also were reported en route here.

Funeral arrangements were being handled by Harrods. "It will be a very quiet, family affair," said Alfred Jackman, Harrods' funeral director. "After cremation her ashes may be taken back to Sweden."

Miss Bergman rocketed to fame as Humphrey Bogart's co-star in the movie "Casablanca" in 1943 and made a stunning Hollywood comeback after quitting the movie capital in the late 1940s because of criticism over a love affair with an Italian film director.

She had been suffering from cancer since 1974 and had undergone two mastectomy operations.

Her former husband Lars Schmidt, last of her three husbands, was with her when she died, said London theatrical agent Sue Hyman, who made the announcement of her death here today.

Miss Bergman lived in Cheyne Gardens, in London's Chelsea district.

Looking back on the string of brilliant films that brought her three Oscars, her three marriages, three divorces and her fight with cancer,

Miss Bergman wrote in her 1980 autobiography, "I have always thought that I will go on acting and acting... You need never give up."

Miss Bergman's Academy Awards were for best actress in "Gaslight" with Charles Boyer in 1944 and "Anastasia" in 1956, and for best supporting actress for "Murder on the Orient Express" in 1974.

She was born in Stockholm on Aug. 29, 1915. Both her parents had died by the time she was 12 and she went to live with an uncle and spoke later of how her lonely childhood led her to acting.

A 5-foot-8 beauty, with deep blue eyes, she quickly became a leading lady in Swedish films before producer David O. Selznick invited her to Hollywood in 1939 to co-star in "Intermezzo" opposite Leslie Howard.

Her sweet, innocent image was scandalized when she met and fell in love with Italian director Roberto Rossellini in 1948, while still married to her first husband Swedish brain surgeon Peter Lindstrom.

She left Lindstrom and in 1950 gave birth to an illegitimate son by Rossellini, whom she later married.

The affair created an uproar at a time when public morality held considerable sway. She was denounced from pulpits and in the U.S. Senate as a "cheap, chiselling female." Movie studios shunned her and despite a decade of triumphs, she quit Hollywood in 1949.

She returned 10 years later, when attitudes had changed, and the cream of Hollywood gave her a rapturous welcome at a plush movieland party. She went on to more successes in movies and on the stage in New York and London.

Recalling the scandal, she said later: "Some sections of the press tried to kill me. But I am hard to kill."

She summed up her career in a 1968 interview: "A very beautiful life. A very interesting life. A very lucky life... I've had ugly moments in life, it is true. But they were never stupid moments, stupid tears. Even sorrows sometimes are fortunate."

Public TV Is Eager For Cut In Big Ad Revenues

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — By one account, CBS is asking $450,000 for a half-minute ad on the last, two-hour episode of "M-A-S-H." And with sponsors willing to even talk that kind of dough, it's no wonder there are those in public TV eager for a cut of the action.

In fact, 10 Public Broadcasting Service stations have been selling or trading air time, mainly to local businesses and institutions, since March. Seven of them got together the other day to market that very valuable commodity on a national basis.

"I would expect that with individual exceptions some of the ads you are going to see on public television will be identical to those now carried by commercial stations," says Vincent Saele, president of New Orleans' WYES.

It's all part of a plan devised by Congress to help public broadcasting help itself in a period of declining federal support.

Congress initially appropriated $172 million for public radio and television for fiscal 1983, but that was cut to $137 million. The Reagan administration then sought to chop the fiscal '84 appropriation from $130 million to $105.6 million, but Congress, late in the game, maintained the higher level of funding.

The message, however, is clear: The federal government wants out of public broadcasting. Indeed, there are those in public TV who feel the heretofore non-commercial institution should support itself, largely with corporate and foundation support, viewer subscription and — here's what's new — the sale of time and services.

PBS announced a month ago that such "revenue-producing initiatives" — college courses for credit, the sale and rental of videocassettes and other material and facilities, notably the network's advanced satellite distribution system — raised $4 million in the year ending June 30. It's not much, but enough to suggest a lucrative source of income for the future.

The long-term answer, and there are those in public broadcasting vehemently opposed to the idea, may be in the sale of commercial time.

There's no question advertisers are interested in the public television audience which is, as they say, "up-scale," meaning sharply defined in composition, with money to spend.

For that reason, the stations participating in the national spot sales campaign will be asking premium prices, roughly what CBS charges for "60 Minutes" or ABC for "20-20." "I think what you're buying is an untapped audience," says one station executive, "so you're offering the advertiser a unique situation."

Beyond that, the sponsor gets an uninterrupted program and none of the commercial "clutter" that accompanies a network show.

Saele says the New Orleans station, for instance, had enlisted 83 commercial accounts through mid-August, with gross ad sales of more than $200,000. And that's strictly local business.

The seven stations involved in the newly conceived joint effort to sell advertising time to national sponsors — WYES, WPBT in Miami, WTTW in Chicago, WHYY in Philadelphia, WQLN in Erie, Pa., WIPB in Muncie, Ind., and KCSM in San Mateo, Calif. — represent a cross-section of the PBS community.

They've hired two ad agencies, Daly & Associates and UNIREP Broadcasting Co., as national sales representatives.

The stations are restricted in their efforts — programs can't be interrupted for commercials, no more than two minutes' advertising at a time, no political, religious or special-interest spots. And some have imposed their own standards, rejecting, for example, commercials for "personal hygiene" products, or refusing ads adjacent to programs for children.

The fear, often expressed but never really demonstrated, that commercials would chase viewers away from public TV, seems so far to be without foundation.

"I think it's fair to say that stations that have started advertising have experienced a very low level of viewer concern," says Frank Nesbitt, vice president for development at Chicago's WTTW. "It's really a non-issue."

Right now, it's just a trial. No one is willing to predict what advertising can mean to public broadcasting.

MUSIC MAN DIES — Lehman Engel, who conducted and wrote music for more than 300 Broadway hits including "Fanny," "Li'l Abner," "A Streetcar Named Desire" and "Time of Your Life," died Sunday in Manhattan of cancer at the age of 72. A spokesperson said Engel had been teaching aspiring Broadway composers "up until a few weeks ago" despite his two-year illness. (AP Laserphoto)

Special Post-Election Action On Social Security Is Sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole wants a special post-election session of Congress to solve Social Security's financial problems, possibly with a combination of payroll tax increases and benefit reductions for future retirees.

Dole, R-Kan., said his Democratic counterpart in the House, Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski of Illinois, also likes the idea of a lame-duck session to deal solely with Social Security.

The senator, speaking on Cable News Network's program "Newsmaker-Sunday," said President Reagan probably "would look with favor on getting it (Social Security) out of the political climate."

"I don't know of any time that's less political than right after an election," Dole said. "We could do it... between the Thanksgiving and Christmas so-called holidays."

Later, White House deputy press secretary Larry

Speakes said there are no firm plans for Reagan to convene a special session of Congress. He said the president will follow advice from Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, and House Republican Leader Robert Bob Michel on the matter.

Twice within the past two years, Congress has refused to consider proposals by Reagan to make the troubled pension system financially sound by slowing the growth of benefits in future years. Reagan is awaiting the findings this fall of a Social Security advisory commission before he puts forth any new proposals.

A post-election session would be unusual in that it would include retiring and defeated lawmakers whose terms end in January.

Dole, who is a member of the bipartisan advisory panel, said Congress should be able to produce a compromise plan "in two or three weeks if we put our minds to it."

"We know the system's in great difficulty in the short run, and if we don't address it by next July, we're going to be in real trouble," he said, referring to current estimates showing that the system will no longer be self-supporting by next summer.

Dole suggested that one compromise might include moving up the date of payroll tax increases that are now set to take effect in later years, and reducing the growth of benefits, "not cutting present benefits."

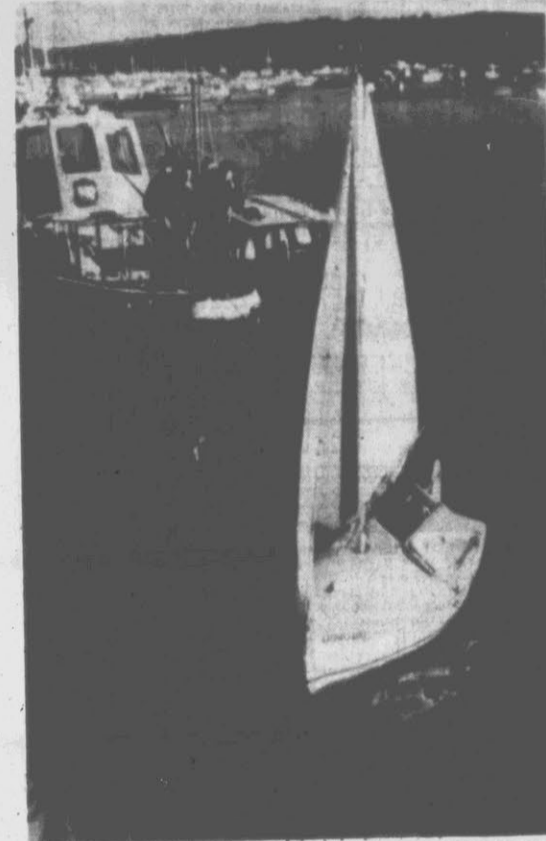

He said the formula by which retirees receive cost-of-living raises each year might be changed, the current retirement age of 65 might be raised gradually to 66½ and "if you're going to retire at age 62, maybe your benefits are reduced a little."

Dole, who authored the newly enacted $98.3 billion tax increase bill endorsed by Reagan, said further "tax reform" may be required next year as Congress attempts to narrow the budget deficit. "We may be asked by the administration to close more loopholes," he said.

Dole said next year's scheduled 10 percent cut in personal tax rates is secure but no program is immune to spending reductions, including the president's defense budget.

NO ROOM FOR WATER — Holiday-makers and students give up trying to swim, and then walk in Tokyo's Korakuen swimming pool Sunday. Tokyo's temperature went up to 91F and some 35,000 people came to this crowded swimming pool to enjoy the last Sunday of this year's summer vacation. (AP Laserphoto)

VOYAGE'S END — American yachtsman Bill Dunlop approaches the quayside at Falmouth, England, early Sunday after crossing the Atlantic in his nine-foot one-inch yacht Wind's Will. It was the smallest-ever vessel to make the voyage from west to east. Dunlop, a 41-year-old truck driver from Mechanic Falls, Maine, spent 78 days at sea. (AP Laserphoto)

Sheik, Sheika In Custody Battle

MIAMI (AP) — An Arab sheik, under court order, has promised to put up $1 million cash to guarantee he will not flee the country with his four children in a bitter custody fight with his estranged wife.

Sheik Mohammed al Fassi, whose sister is married to a nephew of Saudi King Fahd, and Dena al Fassi, his Italian-born wife, were to present their cases for custody today in court.

The 27-year-old sheik was ordered Saturday by Dade Circuit Judge George Orr to come up with the cash or collateral bond by 9 a.m. today or face imprisonment.

"I guess (the sheika) thinks I am going to run off with the children," al Fassi said. "So she wants me to put up $1 million? Then I will."

The sheika is being represented in the hearing by attorney Marvin Michelson, noted for his representation of celebrities in divorce and support-payment cases.

Michelson and an aide contend the sheik has failed to pay $75,000 for three months of temporary stipends to his estranged wife, and is $600,000 in arrears in related expenses. Her lawyers say she is afraid al Fassi will flee to Saudi Arabia with the children.

The sheik was arrested July 6 and held briefly in another financial dispute when the Diplomat Hotel in Hollywood, Fla., charged him with not paying a $1.5 million hotel bill. After paying a $1,000 bond, the sheik settled the bill with a cashier's check.

His wife is suing him for $3 billion. His fortune has been estimated in the billions of dollars.

Q.1-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠6 ♥Q82 ♦KJ10762 ♠AK3
 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?
 A.-If you have any reasonable alternative, avoid making a takeout double of a major suit opening without four cards in the other major. With fewer than four cards, you certainly don't want partner to take out to the major on a weak four-card suit, but that will be his natural inclination. On this hand, for example, hearts will be the right contract only if partner can bid them freely. Therefore, you should not double. An overall of two diamonds describes your hand adequately for the moment.

Q.2-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AJ54 ♥83 ♦AKQ1076 ♠6
 The bidding has proceeded: West North East South 1♥ Pass 2♥ ?
 What action do you take?
 A.-This time you don't want to lose the spade suit, so double - you want to offer partner an inducement to bid a four-card spade suit, if he has one. More than likely, an overall of three diamonds would end the auction. Don't worry about partner responding to your double in clubs. If he does, you can correct to diamonds at the same level - your hand is good enough for this action.

Q.3-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠7 ♥KJ8652 ♥93 ♦K1054
 Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
 A.-You know exactly where you want to play the hand, so why waste time? Jump to four hearts, showing a distributional hand with not much in the way of high cards. Three hearts is wrong. If you jump to three hearts and then correct to four hearts over partner's rebid of three no trump, you are showing slam interest.

Q.4-Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠KJ84 ♥8 ♥93 ♦AKJ872
 Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart. What action do you take?
 A.-You would like to make a takeout double in an effort to induce partner to bid spades. Unfortunately, he is more likely to respond two diamonds. You would then be forced to bid three clubs, and you are not quite strong enough for that action. Be content with an overall of two clubs.

Q.5-Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
 ♠AQ9 ♥Q762 ♦AKJ4 ♠102
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ Pass 2♦ Pass 2NT Pass ?
 What do you bid now?
 A.-With club weakness and such good support for partner's suit, it would be wrong to sign off with three no trump. Partner almost surely has a five-card spade suit (with four clubs he would have opened one club; with four hearts he would have rebid two hearts; and he didn't raise diamonds), so you should tell him about your excellent support. Jump to four spades, though three spades is a reasonable alternative since it is forcing on this auction.

Q.6-As South, vulnerable, you hold:
 ♠AQ82 ♥KQJ872 ♦A ♠A6
 The bidding has proceeded: North East South West 1♦ Pass 2♦ Pass 3♥ Pass ?
 What do you bid now?

Democrat Or Dictator?

It is Huey P. Long Day in Louisiana, a day of tribute to one of the most controversial figures in U.S. history. Born on August 30, 1893, this farm boy grew up to become governor, a U.S. Senator, and a champion of the poor. A modern-day Robin Hood, Long called for laws that would guarantee $5,000 a year to every U.S. family and that would make incomes of more than $100,000 illegal. But his politics also created enemies. As virtual dictator of Louisiana, Long's use of patronage and other questionable practices led to an impeachment trial and eventually his assassination in 1935. Even today, historians cannot decide whether he was a hero or a demagogue.

DO YOU KNOW - What is the name of Robert Penn Warren's best-selling novel based on Huey Long's life and career?

Report Six Dead In N.C. Weekend Toll

By The Associated Press

Six people died in weekend traffic accidents on North Carolina highways, all in single-vehicle crashes, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

The deaths raise this year's traffic death toll to 774, compared with 941 on the same date last year.

Ronald Wayne Williams, 21, of Wake Forest, died early Sunday when the car in which he was riding left the highway in Wake County, struck a ditch and overturned. The patrol said one other person was injured, but police were not sure who was driving at the time of the accident.

A corporal based at the New River Marine Corps Air Station was killed when his car ran off U.S. 258 and struck a cement abutment at 7:25 a.m. Saturday. Cpl. Lawrence Edwin Wood, 20, was traveling south on the highway 7.5 miles north of Richlands when the accident occurred, officials said.

Richard Witfield Dahl, 18, of Cherryville, died when the car in which he was a passenger struck a tree and caught fire about 2:30 a.m. Saturday in Gaston County. The patrol said the driver and a second passenger were injured in the crash.

Back To School Buying Tips
Buying new clothes for back to school can be exciting, but in all the excitement, don't get so absorbed in selecting the right style or in keeping to your budget that you forget about cleaning and laundering. The time to begin thinking about the care of a garment is before you purchase it. Inspect labels and tags, and ask questions before you buy.

Apparel makers are required to attach labels to garments which supply the information required to safely dryclean or launder the items you buy. Look for this information when you are considering a purchase. The care necessary to keep something clean and attractive may be important in deciding whether or not to buy it in the first place.

A Cleaner World says that garments which can be laundered and drycleaned will be labeled "washable" with no mention of drycleaning. However, most garments labeled washable can also be drycleaned.

Less than new school clothes looking their best. Think about cleaning care before you buy!

Blame August Chill On Canadian Air And Volcano

By The Associated Press
Sweaters replaced swimsuits as summer caught cold across the Northern states, bringing twinges of autumn with record low temperatures in more than two dozen cities and 3 inches of snow at a Vermont ski resort.

Temperatures along the East Coast were already rising towards summer norms today after a mass of cold, dry air descended from Canada and moved east Sunday.

The land cooled quickly in the wake of the front, and the mercury dipped as low as 22 degrees in East Haven, Vt., and in Thomas, W.Va., it was 28 degrees, a record for the date.
"It settled in on top of us and once it did, the winds died down," said Frank Lucadamo, a weather service forecaster in Pittsburgh, where an August record low of 39 was set Sunday. The dying wind allowed the relatively warm land to cool rapidly, without clouds to contain the heat.

The reason for the unseasonably cool weather and the threat of an early frost was a "cold air pool—larger than it should be—over the North Pole and extending down through Canada," said climatologist James Newman of Purdue University, who predicted a frost date at least 10 days earlier than normal in the Midwest.

He said the Mexican volcano El Chinchonal, which erupted in April, spewed enormous quantities of ash into the atmosphere and left a dust cloud from the equator north to about Oklahoma City. The cloud reflects sunlight, Newman said, cooling the land beneath it.

Iowa state climatologist Paul Waite said the frost threatened a bumper crop of grain in the Midwest, where planting was late because of a wet spring. Waite also was pessimistic about the coming winter.

"Two out of three cool summers lead into cool winters," he said. "This is another thing (in addition to the volcano) that suggests to us we're in a cool period that should last through winter."

The front and the volcanic ash left a spectacular sunset along the southern Connecticut shore Saturday, with the atmosphere turning green and orange as clouds cleared.

The temperature was 29 at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich.; 38 in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; 39 in Windsor Locks, Conn.; 43 in Chicago; 44 in Milwaukee; and 50 in New York City and Richmond, Va.

This morning's temperatures were higher: 62 in New York; 58 in Pittsburgh; 68 in Chicago; 57 in Detroit; 59 in Philadelphia.

Snow fell Saturday night at the Killington ski resort in Vermont, and Sunday morning employees slid across three inches of new snow. Officials thought it was the earliest anyone ever skied at Killington, but couldn't say if it was the earliest snowfall.

Comments on the chill weather from an unidentified weatherman in northern Michigan were mixed in with statistics and temperature tables Sunday on the National Weather Service forecast wire.

"This is August... right?" read one plaintive message.

"Cabin fever sets in early up there," observed meteorologist Chuck Defever in Ann Arbor, in southern Michigan.

Michigan record lows included 26 in Cadillac, 30 in Alpena, 33 in Traverse City, 37 in Flint, 38 in Detroit, 39 in Muskegon and 41 in Grand Rapids.

Erie, Pa., had a record 37. Wilkes-Barre's 38 shattered a record that stood for 42 years. The 46 in Philadelphia tied a record.

Pomona, N.J., about 10 miles inland from Atlantic City, had a record 41. Wilmington, Del., had a record of 43, while farther north, it was a record 36 in Caribou, Maine, and a record 46 in Providence, R.I.

Burroughs Wellcome Is Eying An Opened Door

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP)—Growth of over-the-counter drug sales is prompting manufacturing companies such as Burroughs Wellcome Co. to rely less on pharmacists' recommendations and more on advertising.

In response to recent U.S. Food and Drug Administration decisions allowing more sales without prescriptions, Burroughs Wellcome Co. has hired Ross Roy-Compton, a New York advertising agency, to promote its products.

But Burroughs Wellcome still hasn't decided whether to launch a full-force advertising blitz or to make minor changes in its subtle announcements, said Peter Howsam, marketing director.

"We have five options," said Howsam. "They all hinge on the timing. We probably won't hear anything until December and by then we're halfway through the cold season."

"So what do you do? Rush out with a big media blitz, trying to catch the second half? Forget this year and go slow, planning the campaign for next year?"

Burroughs Wellcome expects to hear later this year that the FDA has moved the company's allergy drug Actifed to consumer market status, Howsam said.

At the moment, Burroughs Wellcome has set aside $1 million for the Actifed campaign, which may be boosted if FDA approval comes.

Other successful products have minimum newspaper and advertising promotion.

Sudafed, for example, is a sinus decongestant that brings in some $30 million a year.

Another top seller in the non-prescription category is Neosporin, a topical antibacterial cream. The drug does not have big newspaper and television advertising.

"What we've found is that fierce consumer loyalty to a brand can come from that brand having been recommended by a pharmacist and people will stick with that brand for years, regardless of advertising hoopla," Howsam said.

But more and more of Burroughs Wellcome's sales are coming from non-prescription drugs. At least 20 percent of the firm's sales are over-the-counter—up sharply from a few years ago and growing fast, Howsam said.

Cobra Bite Is Non-Fatal

CONROE, Texas (AP)—A snake handler who was bitten on the hand when he tried to kiss a poisonous cobra was scheduled for release today from a Houston hospital after treatment with an antivenin, doctors said.

Vernon Gardner, 29, of Dardanelle, Ark., was bitten by the three-foot cobra during a chili cookoff at a Montgomery County fair north of here Sunday, officials said. He was treated with an antivenin made from horse blood, they said.

He was admitted in stable condition at Hermann Hospital in Houston after being airlifted by a Life Flight helicopter. Gardner was transferred from Montgomery County Hospital, said Life Flight spokeswoman Claudia Morris.

Ms. Morris said the snake handler was trying to kiss the cobra when he became distracted and was bitten on the hand at about 4 p.m.

"He was a professional snake handler, and I don't really know why people would want to kiss a snake," she said.

Gardner was given an antivenin at the Montgomery County facility, said a nurse who declined to be identified. Helicopter personnel also brought an antivenin they obtained from the Houston Zoo when they transferred Gardner, Ms. Morris said.

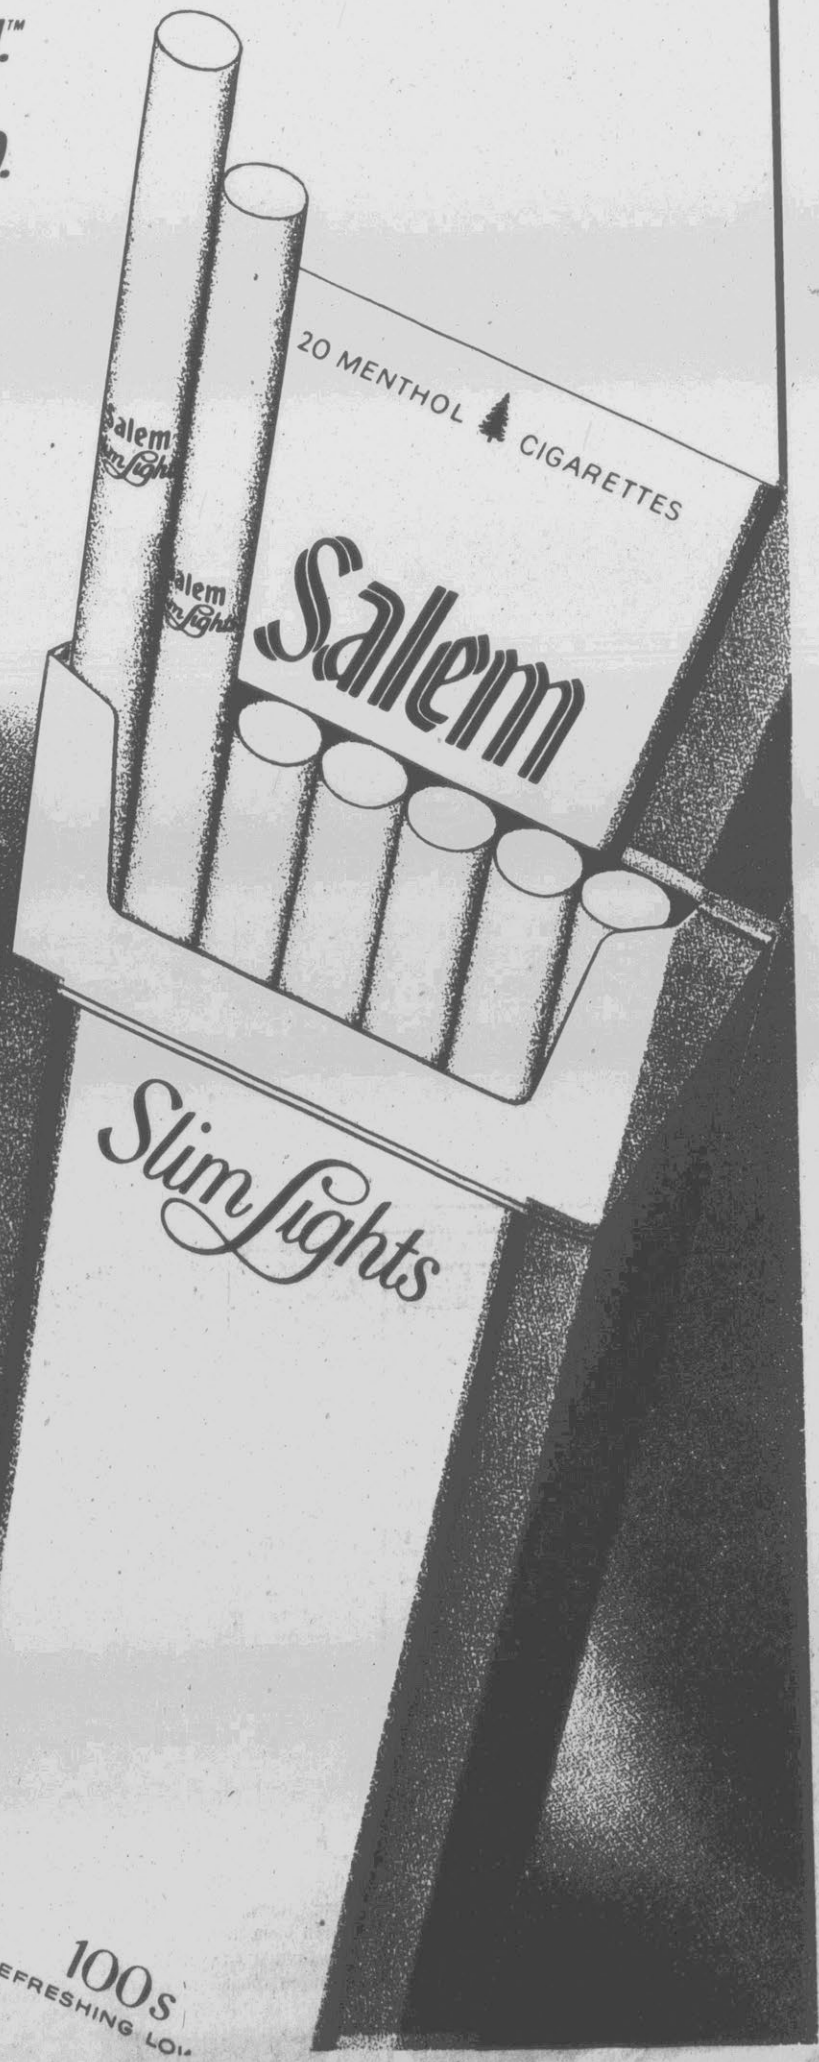

He arrived at Hermann at about 6 p.m. after the 39-mile flight, Ms. Morris said.

FUND DISTRIBUTED
PENZANCE, England (AP)—The families of eight lifeboat crewmen who were killed while going to the aid of a wrecked ship last December in a winter gale have been given equal shares of the $5.4 million contributed by Britons following the disaster, the fund's trustees announced.
