Polish Embassy In Bern, Switzerland Is Seized

BERN, Switzerland (AP) — Gunmen claiming to be an anti-communist paramilitary squad stormed the Polish Embassy here today and threatened to kill 13 hostages and themselves within 48 hours unless the Warsaw regime lifts martial law.

One of the intruders, who called himself Col. Wysocki of the "Polish Revolutionary Home Guard," told The Associated Press Geneva bureau in a telephone interview that his group was "armed with heavy machine guns," and 55 pounds of dynamite, enough to "blow this shack away, and everyone in it."

Wysocki would not say how many people were in his group, but claimed they were holding 13 hostages, "all diplomatic personnel." Earlier, an embassy official, also contacted by telephone, said the intruders were holding "eight or nine" embassy personnel.

Wysocki, who claimed to be descended from two 19th century Polish heroes, said in a later call that his group is "an anti-communist paramilitary organization without connections" to the suspended Solidarity union or KOR, the disbanded Polish dissidents' group whose leadership had advised the union.

Swiss federal authorities and Solidarity spokesmen elsewhere in Europe said they had never heard of the group.

The official Polish news agency PAP's English-language service carried a brief item saying over a dozen "terrorists" had attacked the embassy, at least one of them armed with a submachine pistol.

"One has to take this group seriously because we don't know what kind of strength they have," said Bern police spokesman Daniel Eckmann. Police were surrounding the building, which was seized about 10 a.m. (4 a.m. EDT), he said.

The Foreign Ministry in Warsaw declined all comment and would not say how many people work in the embassy here.

The leader of the intruders said "warning shots" were fired as gunmen burst into the embassy, which normally is lightly guarded and is located on a tree-lined street in the heart of Bern's quiet diplomatic sector. Police could not confirm whether any shots were fired.

Wysocki said there were no injuries and "the mood is calm, with no panic."

But he warned the dynamite will be set off and everyone in the building will die unless the Polish government lifts martial law, dissolves the "concentration camps" holding opponents of the regime and releases all internees.

"The Polish regime already knows of our demands," said Wysocki. Shortly after the takeover, he said, he spoke with Foreign Ministry officials in Warsaw, who "weren't yet ready to discuss terms."

Wysocki said his group is preparing similar attacks on other Polish embassies and missions across Europe if the conditions are not met.

Describing the Polish Revolutionary Home Army as 250 fighters "based in Poland and elsewhere," Wysocki said he and his comrades entered Switzerland illegally on Saturday but would not say how.

The gunman said he was 42 years old and the other members of the "army" were about the same age.

He claimed to be descended from Piotr Wysocki, who led an infantry revolt against the Russians in 1830 and helped lead the "November insurrection" later that year; and from Gen. Jozef Wysocki, commander of the Polish exile army in the Hungarian uprising against Austria in 1849.

Arab Summit Is Gathering On Plan For Peace

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
FEZ, Morocco (AP) —

Arab heads of state, seeking new unity in the wake of the Beirut crisis, are opening a three-day summit today to try to formulate a joint Middle East peace plan.

President Reagan's proposal for a Palestinian administration linked with Jordan for the Israeli occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip was not on the agenda, but was expected to be discussed.

"Perhaps the hasty Israeli rejection will give the Reagan plan an even better reaction than it would have had otherwise," suggested one high-ranking Moroccan official, who requested anonymity.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, complaining that President Reagan did not first discuss his proposals with Israel, argued that putting the Israeli-occupied territories under Jordanian jurisdiction would automatically result in an independent Palestinian state.

And in defiance of Reagan's call for a freeze on settlements in the West Bank and Gaza, the Begin government gave its approval Sunday for 2,000 Jewish families to move into the areas on seven settlements.

The Soviet Union, in an editorial released by the official news agency Tass, today said the American initiative subordinates "everything" to Israel's interests. "The Palestinians are denied the main thing — self-determination."

Tight security was imposed in and around Morocco's ancient religious capital with all roads leading to the conference center blockaded by paratroopers armed with submachine guns. Journalists were housed in Leknes, 40 miles from Fez.

King Hassan II of Morocco, the summit chairman, met behind closed doors Sunday with Syrian President Hafez Assad, Saudi King Fahd and King Hussein of Jordan. No details of their talks were released.

Egypt, which was not invited to the conference here because it signed the 1979 Camp David peace treaty with Israel, was the only nation to give formal support to the U.S. initiative, saying it had "positive points."

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, in Cairo after a visit to Israel, said Sunday that Egypt's response "indicates the kind of continuing progress and momentum that is needed to work out final agreements."

He said U.S.-Egyptian cooperation was a "key link" to peace in the region.

Other Arab nations were believed to be waiting to publicize their positions on the plan until after the Palestine Liberation Organization makes its stand known. About 8,000 PLO guerrillas, along with Syrian troops and Palestine Liberation Army units were evacuated from west Beirut under a U.S.-negotiated plan and scattered to new homes in eight Arab countries.

In Tunisia, PLO chief Yasser Arafat and other top leaders met Sunday under heavy security in the Salwa Hotel about 15 miles south of Tunis, and a spokesman said they had discussed Reagan's initiative, which "will be studied more in the near future."

The spokesman, Yasser Arafat, announced that Arafat will attend the Fez summit, but would not say when he was leaving Tunisia.

Experts See Grim Economic Outlook

TORONTO (AP) — International economic experts open their annual meeting here today faced with the worst world economic outlook since World War II and a string of crises among debt-burdened developing nations.

U.S. Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan and Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau were among those scheduled to address the opening of the 37th joint meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, a gathering of 12,000 finance ministers, bankers, diplomats and observers from 146 nations.

"The world economic situation is very complex and difficult, perhaps more so than at any time in the postwar period," IMF Managing Director Jacques de Larosiere acknowledged in his opening speech to the group.

He admitted that the anti-inflation policies adopted in industrial countries have brought economic suffering, but he said it would be "a grave mistake" to abandon that course to fight unemployment with increased government spending.

"We are meeting at a time when the economic situation for most of our member countries — developed and developing alike — is grim," World Bank President A.W. Clausen told the delegates.

"On a global scale, recovery remains elusive," he said.

Preliminary sessions over the weekend set the tone for the meetings as officials from rich and poor nations clashed over who is responsible for the current economic mess and how to get out of it.

The poor countries blame their mounting debt troubles on a worldwide recession stemming from the tight-money anti-inflation battles waged by the United States and other industrial countries.

A growing list of developing countries, which altogether have more than $500 billion in outstanding debts to foreign lenders, are finding themselves unable to meet their payments on time.

Spokesmen for the 126 developing countries represented here warned that the whole international financial system could collapse unless current economic trends are reversed.

The poor countries also called on their rich brothers to provide more lending on easy terms through the IMF to help troubled governments out of their difficulties.

Increasingly in recent years, the IMF and World Bank have become safety nets for the international financial system by lending the ailing poor countries funds contributed by the rich nations.

U.S. officials and other spokesmen for the rich countries insisted the current fight against inflation must be continued, and they accused poor countries of creating their own problems through loose spending and other forms of economic mismanagement.

The industrial nations, which control the IMF and World Bank, agreed there is a need to increase lending to the poor nations but only if the borrowers take unpopular belt-tightening steps at home, such as cutting back imports and reducing government spending.

Although few of the rich countries agreed with calls by the poor to double or triple the IMF's current lending pool of $67 billion, most of the industrial countries favored an increase of 50 percent or more, beginning in 1985.

The United States stood alone in opposing an increase of that size, claiming the IMF should remain a stringent lender of last resort, not an easy touch for every cash-short nation.

The United States contributes 20 percent of IMF lending resources, more than any other country.

U.S. officials say they favor only a "modest" increase in lending, but have not proposed a specific figure.

The IMF's policy-making committee agreed to postpone a final decision on lending increases until next April.

Thus, even before the first speech was delivered and the first debate was joined, it was apparent that no solutions would emerge by the time the final oration ended Thursday.

Hot Exchange Between Israel's Govm't And U.S.

By ARTHUR MAX
Associated Press Writer

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel and the United States traded sharp words over the Israeli government's approval of seven new Jewish settlements for the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip in defiance of President Reagan's call for a settlement freeze.

Reagan, who called for the freeze in a new Middle East peace initiative Wednesday, was critical of the Israeli Cabinet announcement Sunday.

"We cannot understand why, at a time when broader participation in the peace process is both critical and possible, Israel has elected to extend a pattern of activity which erodes the confidence of all, and most particularly the inhabitants of the West Bank and Gaza, for a just and fairly negotiated outcome to the peace process," an administration statement said.

Reagan's proposal called for Palestinian administration of the occupied areas in a federation with Jordan, but it opposed the creation of an independent Palestinian state for the areas' 1.3 million residents.

Israel, which seized the West Bank and Gaza Strip from Jordan and Egypt in the 1967 Middle East war, argued that a Palestinian state would automatically result once the territories were put under Jordanian jurisdiction.

"Then, in no time, we and you will have a Soviet base in the heart of the Middle East," Prime Minister Menachem Begin said in an angry three-page letter to Reagan on Sunday.

Begin vowed Israel would never relinquish the areas, but Israeli officials insisted the government decision to allow 2,000 families to live in the territories had been on the Cabinet's agenda before Reagan called for the settlement freeze.

The Jewish state has moved more than 25,000 people into about 100 towns and villages in the West Bank and Gaza in the last 15 years.

An American official in Washington said the Reagan administration wants the Arab summit to give Jordan a go-ahead to negotiate with Israel.

In his letter to Reagan, Begin complained that Israel was not consulted before the Reagan proposal was announced.

"You and I chose for the last two years to call our countries 'friends and allies,'" Begin wrote. "Such being the case, a friend does not weaken his friend, an ally does not put his ally in jeopardy."

Begin also was angry that Reagan credited his special envoy Philip C. Habib and the U.S. Marines for solving the Beirut crisis, without mentioning "the bravery of the Israeli fighters nor the great sacrifices of the Israeli army and people."

Israel invaded Lebanon June 6 and encircled Beirut to force the withdrawal of the PLO. Habib negotiated a plan to evacuate the 15,000 guerrillas, Syrian troops and members of the Palestine Liberation Army under the supervision of American, French and Italian troops.

In the Tunisian capital of Tunis, where Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat was working to set up a new headquarters, PLO spokesman Yasser Abdrabu told reporters the U.S. plan was being studied, but refused to say whether a position had been taken.

Only Egypt has made an official statement about the plan, saying it had "positive points." The formal positions of other Arab countries were unclear, though the media of moderate Arab states reacted favorably to the proposal and hard-line Arab states were opposed.

A three-day Arab summit meeting starts today in Fez, Morocco and is expected to discuss a possible joint Arab peace proposal for the Middle East.

Egypt was not invited to the conference because it signed the 1979 Camp David peace treaty with Israel and Libya refused to attend because it views Middle East peace treaties as a betrayal of the Arab cause.

Two National Labor Chieftains Skeptical Over Reagan Policy

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two national labor leaders say President Reagan must make fundamental changes in his approach to government if the nation is to conquer high unemployment and move toward economic recovery.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and Douglas Fraser of the United Auto Workers voiced their skepticism about the Reagan administration's policies on Sunday. They spoke one day after Reagan blamed "increased intervention by the government in the marketplace" for high unemployment.

Appearing on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," Kirkland was asked why he won't give Reagan's economic strategy more time to succeed.

"Well, if I'm standing on a railroad crossing in a stalled automobile and I see a freight train coming down, labeled Reaganomics, I'm not going to give it more time," he replied. "I'm going to get out of the car and find some other means of locomotion."

"We do have a basic difference in our view of the role of government in a modern industrial society," the AFL-CIO chief said. "We do believe that government is a suitable and feasible instrument to address those problems that can only be addressed by mobilizing the forces and the elements that only government can provide."

In his Saturday address, Reagan said the nation must have "the will and determination to hold our course" on his economic program, which is built largely around reductions in tax rates and in the levels of federal spending.

Fraser, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he remains pessimistic despite Reagan's weekend assurances of good prospects for the economy, which he made from his Santa Barbara, Calif., ranch in a nationally broadcast radio address to the American people.

"I've been saying now for the past year, that even if interest rates come down, that won't be enough because we're in a deep recession," Fraser said.

"An automobile is a postponable purchase, and the automobile industry really won't make a healthy recovery until the nation's economy makes a recovery. ... I certainly don't see it happening the last quarter of this year or the first quarter of next year."

Asked what it would take to achieve such a turnaround, Fraser replied: "A complete change in course of the economic policy of this administration."

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, interviewed today on ABC's "Good Morning America," was asked what message he could give to those on unemployment rolls.

"I say to the unemployed of this nation that I have sensitivity and the president does too, to the ills of unemployment," he replied.

"I give them a pledge, the working men and women of this country, that Ronald Reagan's program is attacking the twin sins of inflation and unemployment," Donovan said. "We are winning the war against inflation and we will win the war against unemployment, but it naturally lags behind a recovery."

The labor secretary said "I see, certainly this fall, the (unemployment) rate beginning to fall in a steady decline. To predict exact numbers, I would be hesitant to say."

Figures released last Friday by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that unemployment in the automaking industry has reached 20.8 percent. Nationally, the jobless rate stood still at 9.8 percent of the labor force.

TRIBUTE

I would like for Hotline to pay tribute to an employee of Brody's, Pitt Plaza, whose name I do not know. I left a valuable dinner ring — valuable monetarily and sentimentally — in the fitting room of Brody's one evening recently and discovered a couple of hours later that I had done so. I went back after hours and was graciously let in by someone who returned the ring to me, saying that one of the employees had found it and turned it in. I cannot convey how truly wonderful I think this person is. D. W.

Take Two Aspirins—Very Carefully

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The medicines you take to help can wind up making you sicker if you're not careful about when you take them and what you swallow them with.

Is a sip of water enough or do you need a whole glass? When the label on the bottle says "after meals" does it mean immediately after or two hours later?

What happens if you take vitamins with your prescription drugs — without telling your doctor what you're doing?

Interactions between different types of drugs or between foods and drugs can cause illness or even death. If your doctor does not provide detailed instructions about how to take your drugs — or if you don't follow those instructions — you could experience serious side effects or make the medicine worthless.

A program proposed by the Carter administration would have required patient package inserts, dubbed "PPIs," to provide consumers with detailed information about 10 drug classes representing more than 300 individual drug products. The Reagan administration has moved to scrap the program in favor of voluntary labeling by manufacturers.

Consumers, meanwhile, will have to take steps to protect themselves.

Joseph Graedon, a pharmacologist and author of "The People's Pharmacy" and "The People's Pharmacy — 2," says there are several things you can do to avoid trouble.

First, says Graedon, you should make sure you know the name of your drug and the reason it is being prescribed. Many drugs with similar-sounding names — and spellings — have different uses. Ask the doctor to pronounce the name of the one prescribed for you and have him or her spell it so you can write it down.

Ask exactly when you should take your pills. In general, the instructions "take on an empty stomach" mean at least one hour before meals or two hours after. The phrase "with meals" means just before, during or immediately after eating. And "eating" means a regular meal — not just a snack.

The most common liquids people use to wash down their medicines are fruit juices, milk and water. But fruit juice can reduce the effectiveness of some important antibiotics, including penicillin, Graedon says. Milk doesn't mix with iron and interferes with the proper absorption of tetracycline antibiotics.

As a general rule, Graedon says, it is safe to take a drug with a glass of water. A glass. Not a sip. "Skimping on liquid can reduce the amount of drug that gets into your bloodstream by as much as one-half," he warns.

Foods can be just as dangerous as drugs when it comes to interactions.

The Food and Drug Administration points out, for example, that licorice extracted from natural sources contains a substance which, when consumed regularly in high amounts, can cause blood pressure to rise and could counteract the effects of medication prescribed to lower blood pressure.

One of the most hazardous reactions, according to the FDA, is the one between monoamine oxidase or MAO inhibitors and a wide range of aged or fermented foods.

MAO inhibitors are often prescribed for depression or high blood pressure; they can react adversely with things like pickled herring, salami, sharp or aged cheeses, yogurt, sour cream, chicken livers, avocados, soy sauce, beer, Chianti wine and even bananas.

Some drugs are particularly irritating to the digestive tract; many people are familiar with the potential dangers of aspirin and already take substitute medications.

But Graedon says similar reactions also occur with common arthritis and asthma medicines which generally work better and are less likely to cause trouble if they are taken with, during or after a meal.

Graedon says Americans often take more drugs than they need, but he says the warnings about overuse of drugs should not lead patients to ignore the medicines that can help them.

"While there have been abuses and scandals, never forget that drugs also save lives," he says. "We may be an overmedicated society, but that does not mean you throw away the life raft when the ship is sinking."

So that other readers may take advantage of this information, I will start with instructions from the neck edge even though you have already figured out how to do the front facings.

When you are knitting from the neck down, you are often told to work a few rows, increasing at the neck edge until your piece measures from one to three inches, depending on the depth of the neckline. When the neckline has reached the desired depth, you will be told to cast on some extra stitches at the neck edges and work down from that point, making no more increases on this edge. By reading your pattern, you will know if the front border stitches are included in the total number of stitches for the front edge or if you are to add them later.

Let's assume that they are included so that you only need to add on the facing stitches. Since the facing is to be turned back, you will need 1 stitch for a turning ridge and extra stitches for the facing — in this case, 8 stitches were added for that purpose. To achieve this, therefore, you would cast on 9 stitches to each neck edge.

From this point on, you would work the 8 facing stitches in Stockinette Stitch and the ridge stitch would be purled on the wrong side and slipped on the right side.

When you are 8 rows above the desired finished length of the jacket, start decreasing 1 stitch at the beginning of each row until you have taken off all of the facing stitches. On the next purl row, knit all stitches instead of purling

In Many Countries, Drop-In Visit Can Mean You Belong

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: "Invaded" complained: "My husband is from a foreign country where it is acceptable to visit people in their homes uninvited and unannounced, and even to stay overnight or for an entire weekend."

You replied: "I would like to know in which country (since the invention of the telephone) is it acceptable to drop in uninvited and unannounced for the weekend?"

Abby, your ethnocentrism is showing! In most of the world it is acceptable for family and friends to visit unannounced. My husband is from India, where visitors can arrive anytime.

Friends from northern England practice this custom, too. In fact, calling ahead is considered very formal, and a deliberate act to remove one's self from the intimate family circle.

My husband's family lives in New Delhi, India, where telephones are a luxury and not easily acquired. Last year my in-laws got a telephone after waiting for over 10 years. (The average wait is from 10 to 15 years.)

The difference in attitudes concerning drop-in visitors is a common conflict between Americans and foreigners. The explanation lies more in the cultural differences than in the personal.

PENELOPE C. SONDHI, LINCOLN, NEB.

DEAR PENELOPE: Sorry I exposed my "ethnocentrism" (the attitude that one's own culture is superior), but since it evoked your illuminating and informative letter, it was worth it.

DEAR ABBY: I feel terrible. School is starting soon and I failed my grade, so I'll be in 11th grade again this year. That means I won't be able to graduate with my class. I failed because my grades were poor and I missed too much school. This year I plan to do better. Abby, how am I going to face my friends and the other kids when they start picking on me and teasing me? I feel bad enough as it is. What should I say? How should I act?

A FAILURE AND SCARED

DEAR SCARED: No one is a "failure" because he stumbled once. Consider this a valuable learning experience. And the kids who would tease you or pick on you aren't worth worrying about. Give it all you've got, hang in there and don't be ashamed of having failed. If you've learned something from the experience, it's a victory.

DEAR ABBY: "Depressed in New Orleans" wrote that she and her husband and their two little girls were at the beach when two couples parked themselves nearby and started using the filthiest language imaginable. She said she lost all respect for her husband because he sat there like a mouse instead of telling those filthy-mouthed strangers to clean up their language.

them and this will give you a turning ridge for your hem.

Continue to decrease at the beginning of each row until you have made 8 decreases on each end. Now loosely bind off all stitches.

By working in this manner, you will have sloping edges on the facing and hem and when both are turned under, the edges will automatically form a mitered corner with no extra bulk.

Knit the easy way — from the neck down on circular needles, working sleeve caps and sweater yoke all in one piece. This method eliminates the setting in of sleeves — a problem for so many knitters. The only seams you will sew will be from the sleeve cuff to the underarm.

Make it as shown here with a lacy gull wing pattern stitch or, if you like your knitting plain and simple, make just a basic cardigan. Directions are written for small (8-10), medium (12-14) and large (18-20) with no abbreviations. Basic knitting worsted-weight yarn can be used or, if you want a really elegant sweater, try making it in Cloudspun, a fluffy blend of wool, mohair and acrylic fibers.

To obtain directions for making the Gull Wing Cardigan, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-905 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. KK-905 by sending check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. For small size, send $15 for Berella-4 worsted-weight acrylic yarn or $25.50 for Cloudspun. For medium and large sizes, send $17.50 for Berella-4 or $29 for Cloudspun. Kit prices include yarn, instructions and shipping charges. Please specify your choice of the following colors: medium brown, wedgewood blue, cranberry, gold, medium green or natural.

Dear Pat: I have a knit-from-the-neck-down jacket pattern that calls for seed stitch borders on the front edges and hemline. I thought I would prefer a facing and turned up hem.

I was patting myself on the back because I figured out how to make the front facing and hem. Then I started to put on the finishing touches. When I turned up the hem and turned back the facing to stitch them down, I had a bulky mess at the bottom front corners.

I can't seem to find anyone who knows what to do and I shudder at the thought of ripping it all out and starting over — HELPLESS IN HARTFORD.

I have good news for you. You only have to rip back to eight rows above the desired hemline. (You told me you had an eight-stitch facing and by working as I will describe, your shaping rows will match the number of stitches in your facing.)

I LOVE THE NEW ME

Janet Gwaltney Greenville, N.C.

When I needed to lose 128 pounds, I compared the weight loss programs in the area and I decided to try DIET CENTER because:

1. THERE WERE NO CONTRACTS. I did not have to pay a large sum of money in advance and obligate myself for any specific period of time. I had tried so many plans, and nothing worked for me so naturally I was skeptical. At DIET CENTER seeing my weight come down daily made a believer out of me.
2. THERE WERE NO SHOTS.

DRUGS, OR CHEMICALS USED AT DIET CENTER. What I found there was a well-balanced nutritionally sound diet and a behavior modification program to help me keep the weight off.

3. THERE WERE NO PRE-PACKAGED FOODS AT DIET CENTER. I lost my weight without having to buy expensive extra foods. I shopped at my regular food store, and my family was able to eat right along with me.

4. THERE WAS NO NEED FOR BODY WRAPS OR RIGID EXERCISE PROGRAMS. By following the well-balanced diet at DIET CENTER, I found my body tightened up naturally. While DIET CENTER does suggest that exercises such as walking be added to my daily routine, no rigid exercise program or body wraps are necessary for inch loss. As my weight came down, the inches seemed to melt away.

5. AT DIET CENTER I DID NOT FEEL DEPRIVED. I was not hungry, I did not experience nervousness or fatigue. I feel great, and my friends tell me that I look great.

SUMMARY: Diet Center offers a program of private, daily counseling by trained professionals - not only have the Diet Center counselors lost weight on the program - but they have the educational and professional backgrounds to qualify them to help others like me to reach their goals.

Your answer was perfect. You said, "Would you have respected your husband more if he had taken them on and been beaten (or worse) in the presence of your children? Furthermore, these days you never know who is 'high' on what, or if a switchblade, gun or lead pipe will be used to settle an argument."

The very same thing happened to me and my family three years ago on July Fourth. My husband was knifed to death in front of me and my kids because I nagged him into going over to two dope addicts and asking them to show some respect.

Had I kept my mouth shut, my husband would be alive today. Now I am a widow with four kids. How I wish I had a "cowardly" husband to cook and wash for, and pay the bills. Please print this, Abby.

Miss Barnes, Mr. Clark Married In Southern Pines

SOUTHERN PINES — Sue Anna Barnes and Jeffrey Brothers Clark, both of Greenville, were married in a double-ring ceremony Saturday morning at the First Baptist Church, Southern Pines, by the Rev. A. Gary Hudson of Southern Pines and Philip Knot Gladden of Richmond.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Harry John Barnes of Southern Pines and Mrs. Irvin Linwood Holland of La Grange and Vernon Benjamin Clark of Ayden.

A program of wedding music, including Handel's "Aria from Concerto Grosso XII" and Purcell's "Three Dances for Keyboards" were presented by organist Paul Long. "Trumpet Tune" by Jeremiah Clarke was played as the bridal party entered, followed by Wagner's "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore her mother's wedding gown of clipped rosepoint lace and nylon tulle featuring a mandarin collar, long sleeves, and fitted bodice of lace trimmed with seed pearls and iridescent sequins, and a full skirt ending in a tiered cathedral train. Her fingertip veil of bridal illusion fell in two tiers from a tiara of seed pearls and iridescent sequins. She carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Mae Charles Barnes of Southern Pines attended her sister of maid of honor. She wore a gown of cerise satin with fitted bodice and sweetheart neckline accented with self bows at the shoulders, French puffed sleeves and cummerbund at the waist. She carried a bouquet of rubrum lilies, stephanotis and baby's breath. Bridesmaids were Judy Ann Holland of La Grange, sister of the bridegroom;

MRS. JEFFREY BROTHERS CLARK

Margaret Ward Burns of Raleigh and Jan Clark Harrison of New York City. Their gowns and bouquets matched the maid of honor's.

Anderson - McLawhorn Wedding Held

Alison Joan McLawhorn and Terry Lynn Anderson were married Sunday at 2 p.m. in the Pactolus Baptist Church in a double-ring ceremony conducted by the Rev. Thomas J. Payne.

The couple's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Karl J. McLawhorn of Greenville and Mr. and Mrs. Obie L. Anderson of Greenville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with Brussels lace. The gown was fashioned with a sheer yoke of illusion. The fitted bodice was overlaid in Chantilly and silk venise lace beaded with pearls and sequins. The sheer bishop sleeves were enhanced with appliques of Chantilly and silk venise lace and finished in cuffs of chantilly lace with button closures. The full circular skirt featured a front panel of organza bordered in chantilly lace with motifs of beaded silk venise lace. The attached cathedral-length train was accented with cascading tiers of chantilly lace. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion edged inchantilly laced held in place by a Juliet cap overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a cascade of white miniature carnations and yellow sweetheart roses with white cushion poms.

The maid of honor was Gail McLawhorn of Greenville, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Donna Anderson of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, Penny Ander of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bridegroom; and Beverly McLawhorn of Ayden, sister-in-law of the bride.

The maid of honor wore a floor-length green taffeta gown with satin ribbon at the waist and just above the ruffled bottom. She carried a silk hand bouquet of deep orange roses with yellow and orange stephanotis and baby's breath with maize ribbon.

The bridesmaids' dresses were yellow and otherwise identical to that of the maid of honor. Their bouquets were yellow versions of the maid of honor's bouquet.

The flower girl was Brandee McLawhorn of Ayden, niece of the bride. She wore a long yellow and green-flowered dress like that of the bridesmaids and carried a basket of mixed flowers like the attendants.

The ring bearer was Richard Braxton of Greenville, nephew of the bridegroom.

The organist was Katrina Gray; the soloist, Donna Anderson; the wedding director, Wanda Toler. Rice bags were distributed by Dorothy Anderson, sister of the bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Danny Anderson of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom; Joe McLawhorn of Ayden and Allen McLawhorn of Greenville, brothers of the bride, and Jack Buck of Greenville.

A reception followed the wedding in the church fellowship hall.

The bride attended Rose High School and is employed by Shopeze Foodland here. The bridegroom graduated from Conley High School and is self-employed. After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

Hopefuls Exercise Their Smiles

By ROBERT WADE Associated Press Writer ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Contestants in this week's finals of the Miss America pageant are giving their smiles a workout as they kick off a grueling regimen of rehearsals and interviews.

"It's part of the job," said Miss Indiana, 23-year-old Ilona Conway of Bunker Hill, as she smiled during an interview. "For many people, it's hard, but for others, it comes naturally."

Camera shutters clicked constantly as the Miss America contestants posed for a morning photo session.

One group went to a casino hotel to pose in an ice cream parlor. Another group modeled beside a swimming pool. The last-contingent posed on the city's famed boardwalk.

"I think when you're smiling, you can kick yourself out of a bad mood," said Miss Georgia, Bobbie Eakes, 21, of Warner Robins.

The contestants also appeared at Convention Hall on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday for interviews with hordes of reporters here for the annual contest, which ends with the finals Saturday night.

"This is a very special week and I enjoy all the publicity," said 18-year-old

Miss Missouri, Julie Phillips of Ava, the youngest entry this year.

"You always have to be on," said Miss Phillips. "If you want to be Miss America 365 days, you have to make some sacrifices."

"You work yourself up all year-round to get to this one great week," added Miss Florida, Deanna Katherine Pitman, 22, of Apopka.

"But I'm sure there are times you think, 'God, if I have to smile one more time, I think my teeth are going to fall out,'" Miss Pitman said. "However, this is probably the most exciting, hectic week of all our lives."

Miss New Mexico, Cindy Ann Friesen, 19, of Carlsbad, said she spent hours working on her poise, stamina, and self-confidence to get to the national finals, but admits she has limits.

"If somebody's frustrating me, I just try to say 'Hello, goodbye' and leave," said Miss Friesen.

Meanwhile, reigning Miss America Elizabeth Ward was in her hotel room Sunday under a doctor's care for a

Miracle Could Occur

It is not surprising that President Reagan's call for Palestinian self rule on the West Bank and Gaza strip brought a quick rejection and a storm of protest from the Israeli government.

The president made the proposal in a nationally televised address last week. Before the week was out the Israeli Cabinet had voted to reject the Palestinian self-rule proposal.

Initially Reagan proposed a freeze on Jewish settlements in the areas, something that was also rejected by the Israeli Cabinet.

In this country the Reagan plan picked up the backing of former President Jimmy Carter, who said it was in the framework of the Camp David accords.

Israel long ago learned that, while it depends heavily on the United States for arms, it must depend on its own military strength in the Middle East for security.

Reagan expressed exasperation several times during the invasion of Lebanon, and Israel's leaders are suspicious that their interests are not being totally considered by Washington.

At the same time, despite the PLO's astonishing defeat in the Lebanese fighting, it cannot be expected that the Palestinian movement will go away. Just as the Jews, the Palestinian are determined to have their own land.

It may be as things quiet down in the Middle East there can be guarantees of safety for Israel if Palestinian autonomy proceeds on the West Bank. We are merely at a starting point, but miracles have been wrought before.

IT'S BACK-TO-SCHOOL TIME! ---AHHHH!

A Challenge For Begin

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — Although President Reagan was too polite to let it show, he was unpleasantly surprised when Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin informed him during his last Oval Office visit not to worry about congressional reaction to the Lebanon invasion because, as Begin said, "I can handle" Capitol Hill.

BEGIN'S claim to have such persuasive powers in the U.S. Congress flashed a warning signal to Reagan about the American-Israeli relationship. The warning was compounded by Israel's use of its U.S.-supplied military power in Lebanon. The result was Reagan's cool, dispassionate speech Wednesday (Sept. 1) evening obliterating vestiges of candidate Reagan's Mideast policy fantasies. Reagan reminded Begin that Israel has pledged to give West Bank Palestinians full autonomy over their land and resources as well as themselves.

Beyond that, the president's speech was calculated to appeal to many American Jews who, with moderate Israeli leaders in the once-dominant Labor Party, disown threats by Begin and Defense Minister Arik Sharon to annex the West Bank-Gaza occupied territories with their 1.3 million Palestinian Arabs.

It was no accident that President Reagan received the moderate Labor Party leader, Shimon Peres, in the Oval Office two weeks ago, an unusual invitation for an out-of-power party leader. No clearer sign could have been given Begin and Sharon that the U.S. will never accept an Israeli takeover of the West Bank, no matter how much influence Begin claimed on June 21 that he possesses with Congress.

The chief architect of Reagan's new Palestinian policy (basically a replay of the old Camp David plan) was Secretary of State George Shultz. The Israelis are mistaken, however, if they think Shultz, following Alexander Haig's pro-Israel tenure, coerced the president into accepting a plan against his own ideological beliefs, as he has sometimes been coerced on economic policies. To the contrary, the new West Bank plan is unanimously backed by Reagan, national security adviser William P. Clark; Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and CIA chief William J. Casey, as well as Shultz.

What helped convert Reagan from benign defender of Israel's settlements policy during the 1980 presidential campaign to his 1982 demand for an immediate freeze on all new settlements was the Begin-Sharon practice of ignoring American interests. Reagan's alarm that the rest of the world saw the U.S. as a client of Israel began when Israel bombed Iraq's nuclear plant, escalated with the annexation of Syria's Golan Heights and the early bombings of Lebanon and climaxed with the siege of Beirut. Then came threats to Jordan.

Timing of the speech was dictated by Israel's dispersal of the PLO from Beirut and the proof of military dominance that Reagan found in Israel's total victory over both the PLO and Syria. "The PLO has lost its legs and Israel's cries for help are losing their appeal in the U.S.," a top presidential aide told us. Thus, he said, "This was the time to move on the West Bank."

Even in moving, Reagan was given another reason to question Begin's good faith. When his letter outlining the new plan was handed to Begin Aug. 31, the prime minister was asked to say nothing until Reagan's speech to the American people. But Begin leaked the letter in what the White House believes was a sabotage effort. Reagan reacted by moving up his speech 24 hours and nursing another grievance.

THIS AFTERNOON

Do It Their Way

By PAUL O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Some notes taken during a two-week vacation in Ireland:

They've been speaking English in Ireland for almost as long as they've used the language in England. About 25 million Americans — who also speak English, trace their families back to the land of Joyce and Yeats. So why did I have so much trouble understanding what the Irish had to say?

The Irish brogue is no problem. I grew up around a few of those. It's the vocabulary. A rose by any other name may smell as sweet but if an Irishman calls it something else, you probably won't know what he's talking about until he points one out to you.

Americans have been warned about some of their "English" words. They call French Fries "chips", gasoline "petrol" and the TV is the "tele". No problem with those. But what do you do when you see a road sign warning that there is a "lay-by" up ahead? You stop and rest. They'll have a "car-park" there and you can use the opportunity to check under the "bonnet" of the car to see if your engine is running hot. If so, there's probably a jug of water in the "boot".

Pulling back onto the "carriageway" you're likely to encounter signs warning that there's "no overtaking" on hills or to yield in the "roundabout". Where the roads change from bad to atrocious, there's likely to be a sign warning of loose "chippings". Smash up and you'll have to read the "motors for sale" column in the paper to find a replacement. Fenders, wheels and passenger compartments are standard equipment with each "motor".

After a day on the road, you might want to clean up. If so, please make sure the "shower surround" is fully closed so no water gets on the floor. You can go out to a restaurant for dinner or to the neighborhood Col. Sanders for some "take-away". In the morning, breakfast will include fresh bacon and sausage from the "victualer" (butcher or grocer). My wife had her "fringe" trimmed at the beauty salon. Hair kept falling in her eyes. When she got a run in her panty-hose the sales lady explained she needed a new pair of "skin-tights". We went to a laundromat and used Wisk "washing up liquid" to clean our clothes. At night, you can watch British tele programs if you have "piped" TV.

And, if it gets too confusing, maybe a wordsmith can help. If you don't know his number, just "let your fingers do the walking through the golden pages."

An Irish district court judge probably permanently endeared himself to North Carolina Senator John East, a strong opponent of mandatory metrics, when he refused to punish a 14-year-old boy for failing to abide by the country's new metric conversion law. The boy was working in his uncle's grocery store and sold a woman a "pound" of butter.

Dragged before the law for failing to sell in metric units, the boy pleaded ignorance. The judge said the ignorance rested in the law. "I can't imagine anyone asking for 454 grams of butter", the judge was quoted as saying.

Another judge showed similar good sense when he failed to issue an injunction against a dog who liked to bark. The dog's owner wasn't dragged to court — the dog was. The complaining neighbor wanted the judge to stop barking at night. The dog's owner appeared as a character witness to say he'd take the necessary steps to silence the pooch. The judge ruled that some neighborhood problems are more efficiently solved over a backyard fence so he threw the case out of court.

If he was still working for GE this is probably how his pitch would go.

"My fellow citizens,

"I am speaking to you tonight to set the record straight concerning the pricing of our new 1982 refrigerators. There has been

Defrosting An Economy

The thing I like the best about Ronald Reagan is that he is probably one of the greatest salesmen in the country. He owes his talent to his training when he was spokesman for General Electric products. Ronnie sells Reaganomics with the same sincerity he sold appliances, and every time I watch him on television I can't help thinking he wants me to buy a new refrigerator.

employment, and making the economy strong.

"We are not going back on these rebates. But in order to get our GE house in order, we are now making certain reforms which, contrary to reports, will not hurt the old, the sick and the poor. For example we are closing the loopholes to make the cost of a refrigerator much fairer to the working man and woman. There are many people who have not been paying for ice cube trays at the present time. Dealers have been throwing them in free so favored customers will buy our product. From now on everyone will pay for an ice cube tray no matter what tax bracket he is in.

that we are proposing the largest price increase in history, and I've reversed my previous policy on refrigerator rebates to get the economy moving again. Well, don't you believe it.

"We are not raising our prices on refrigerators — we are reforming them. It is the greatest icebox reform package in history, and one that will benefit everyone in this country.

"When I became spokesman for GE, inflation and interest rates made it impossible for the average American to buy a refrigerator.

"The reason for this was I inherited 40 years of reckless spending and fraud by previous managements who didn't care what it cost to build one. Since I took this job we cut out the fat and brought our costs under control. Last year we announced a 25 percent rebate for the next three years. This price cut was our way of stimulating the sale of refrigerators, creating new

To the editor:

Wednesday night I watched the documentary on Channel 9 about the strife in Guatemala. To the casual observer the documentary did indeed seem balanced, as CBS claimed. But the balance was taken and surely not intended. Though Marxist Community was admitted as possible, the guerrillas were emphasized as "patriotic nationalists looking for social equality."

Each person in the documentary who is opposed to the communist guerrilla is shown as having a vested interest in the defeat of the "patriotic nationalists." The vested interest is repeatedly emphasized in each case: Perhaps economic as for business men who are depicted to reap fortunes by exploiting Guatemalan labor. Or perhaps religious fraternalism as shown by Born Again Christians. Or by direct involvement, perhaps, as government officials. In all cases of anti-communist individuals in the documentary, interviewer Ed Rabel is repeatedly shown as unimpressed, also judgmental, of their statements and of their cause. We may be sure that the interviews were carefully edited to drive home the ideas which Rabel and his producer wished to portray.

But when pro-guerrilla reports were being taken, no such indication of vested interest or partisanship was shown. Nor was there any attempt to verify atrocity stories. U.S. Representative Tom Harkin, who was the only Congressman in the documentary, was adamant against any aid to the Guatemalan government, but no mention was made of his background nor of his activity regarding communist Nicaragua or El Salvador.

In summary, CBS has produced a beguiling hour-long propaganda document designed to convince the public that the United States should allow Guatemala to follow the path of Cuba and Nicaragua. I predict that CBS will refuse to allow anyone to present the contrary view, unless it be a five-minute interview.

Investors In Mexico Watching

By PETER EISNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Jose Lopez Portillo hoists his nation's flag atop the headquarters of the Bank of Mexico today in a gesture symbolizing the first day of state-controlled banking.

The ceremony marks the opening of the nation's newly nationalized banks and the implementation of a new currency exchange system designed to provide more equitable money rates.

But Lopez Portillo must still show international investors the nation can solve its severe economic troubles, and convince people at home that the government can run the banking system better than the private sector.

The new exchange slashes the value of the dollar against the troubled peso. The Mexican currency is being pegged at 50 to the dollar for importers of basic foods and other essential goods, and at 70 pesos to the dollar for everyone else.

The peso closed at 115 for sellers and 120 for buyers in U.S. trading on Friday and has plunged as low as 250 to the dollar since it was last devalued by the government Aug. 5.

The 70 peso rate will help importers and others who must pay debts outside the country. But it will end the windfall for tourists and Americans living along the border who flocked into Mexico to take advantage of suddenly low post-devaluation prices for goods and services bought with the dollar.

The newly appointed director of the Bank of Mexico, Carlos Tello Macias, appealed for calm in a statement this weekend aimed at averting a possible run of withdrawals from Mexican banks.

"I recommend that you do not go to the banks (today) if it is not necessary for your ordinary transactions," Tello Macias said. "Your money will be safer in the banks."

Tello Macias' predecessor, Miguel Mansera, resigned when Lopez Portillo expropriated private banks and instituted exchange controls in a state of the union message last Wednesday.

To instill confidence, the Bank of Mexico announced an end to service charges on checking accounts, a reduction in interest on loans and an increase in interest on savings accounts from 4.5 to 20 percent.

Lopez Portillo, who completes his six-year term in December, blamed the nation's severe recession and the flight of billions of dollars to the United States on money-hungry bankers and thieves "who want to leave with the treasury in their hearts." Angry bankers rejected his charges, but said they would not fight the takeover.

The United States already has provided millions of dollars in credits and a $1 billion advance on oil payments to ease Mexico's cash problems. But analysts are now doubtful about a key link in the government's recovery plan — a proposed interest-free $4 billion bail-out loan from the International Monetary Fund.

IMF directives oppose currency controls such as those imposed along with the bank expropriation. The control measures make all foreign currency illegal in Mexico, force people entering the country to register and convert their foreign currency to pesos and require special application before Mexicans can obtain dollars to pay bills or travel abroad.

Many U.S. analysts believe the currency controls will backfire because Mexicans are able to cross the 1,760-mile border with the United States with ease. Most agree the government cannot create the mechanisms to control how much money enters and leaves the country, especially at the border.

BALANCE

Creative living largely consists in our being able to maintain balance. A most elaborate system exists within the framework of our body, enabling us to keep our balance as we stand and walk.

Likewise, in every aspect of life satisfactory living largely depends upon our being able to strike a balance between two extremes. Take for example the matter of being aloof from the world. Where such aloofness means withdrawal from life's interests or the withholding of our interest and love from those about us, it is an evil. On the other hand the person who lives the life of abandon, withholding himself from nothing that his heart desires, soon finds his happiness wrecked and his soul irreparably damaged.

We are not to hold ourselves aloof from the world as Pharisees, thanking God we are not as other men. Rather, we are to enter life with all its fullness; but we are required to hold ourselves aloof from evil so that we will not be stained and damaged by its power. — Elisha Douglass

Never Seen Such Turmoil, Says 95-Year-Old Landon

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Writer
TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Alf Landon, the grand old man of Kansas who fell in love with politics when Teddy Roosevelt ran for president, has lost none of his interest in people and news.

As he approaches his 95th birthday on Thursday, the Republican party's 1936 presidential nominee says he's never seen such global disorder.

"In all of my years, I've never seen the world in so much turmoil," Landon said in a recent interview. "There isn't a nation in the world that really has a stable government today, except for the United States of America."

"But we're fortunate. Despite the criticism of President Reagan's domestic policies, his leadership will enable him to go down in history as a strong leader in a world in turmoil."

Arthritis has forced Landon to give up riding his old horse, Red, and friends must speak up because the old man refuses to wear a hearing aid. Although Landon occasionally forgets a name in a political anecdote from 50 years ago, he pronounces himself in generally good health.

"Of course, at 95 you're not just as active as you have been," he said. "But that doesn't mean I'm not keeping up with what's going on in politics."

Landon remains fiercely loyal to the Republican Party, which nominated him to run against — and get swamped by — Franklin D. Roosevelt 46 years ago.

Landon had a law degree and enjoyed a successful career in the oil business and broadcasting. His 70-year love affair with politics was launched by his father's political fervor in the 1912 campaign of Theodore Roosevelt, who was running under the Progressive (or "Bull Moose") banner.

Twenty years later, at age 45, Alf Landon became the party's nominee for Kansas governor and served two terms, from 1933 to 1937.

It was Landon's tight-fisted operation of state government in the Depression and his handling of the worst political scandal in Kansas history that caught the eye of Republicans nationally.

Landon reacted swiftly and sternly to the revelation that nearly a million dollars in state school fund bonds had been taken from the state treasurer's office in 1933, and the proceeds converted to the personal use of Ronald Finney, son of a prominent Emporia banker.

Within hours, Landon had National Guardsmen stationed at the door to the treasurer's office, with the office closed until a full accounting could be made.

The state wound up losing $708,000, although much of it was recovered through legal action.

Landon plans to be on hand Thursday when President

Reagan delivers a Landon Lecture at Kansas State University. But otherwise, he wants to keep his birthday a quiet occasion and asked his wife of 52 years, Theo, to cancel a family dinner. But his daughter, U.S. Senator Nancy Landon Kassenbaum, will be there anyway.

Although Landon stays out of the limelight, he's far from forgotten. Richard Nixon delivered a Landon Lecture 12 years ago when he was president, and Gerald Ford gave one after he left the presidency.

In recent years, former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker and Chinese Ambassador Chai Zemin, among others, have called on Landon at his home.

As Landon neared his birthday, he offered no predictions about reaching 100.

"I'm taking them one year at a time," he said. "But for the first time I am coming to think the prospect is not so attractive, with all the world in turmoil and upset like it is."

On the other hand, the prospect of winning football seasons by the University of Kansas Jayhawks and the Kansas State Wildcats excites him.

"I'd like to be around for that," he said.

Asked what advice he would give Landon Middle School students when they come calling Thursday, a tradition on his birthday, Landon replied: "I don't have any. That's the last thing I'm going to do — start giving advice at my age."

Namath Has Acting Goal

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Joe Namath, who piloted the New York Jets to the 1969 National Football League championship, is hoping to return to Broadway as an actor.

"I'm trying to develop my own style with what God-given abilities that I have," said Namath, 39, who is appearing as Sky Masterson in the Fort Bragg Playhouse production of "Guys and Dolls."

"I'm simply trying to develop into a fine actor," he said. "A goal would be to reach Broadway someday. I've been kind of hesitant about saying that, but that is what I'd like."

Namath, who played 12 years with the Jets before serving his last season with the Los Angeles Rams, has not met with much critical acclaim since he started acting. But the man whose autobiography is titled, "I Can't Wait Until Tomorrow 'Cause I Get Better Looking Everyday," still has the confidence and the charm that kept him in the public eye.

"I enjoy getting smiles wherever I go," he said. "Fortunately, because of football, I can go to many towns and usually get more smiles than frowns."

"If a person's in the public eye, it can't be good all the time," Namath added. "I hope it goes well with me."

"There will be a slight price rise in freezer drawer shelves for people over 65 years of age, and we are asking five dollars more for those who want a place to store eggs. If you like handles on your refrigerator we will add them for a mere $20, which you will easily make up in energy costs in a month."

"When I became spokesman for General Electric I promised you the best refrigerator that money can buy. With your help I can achieve this goal. Write to your dealers today and tell them that you support my efforts to move their products out of their showrooms."

"The refrigerator recession is bottoming out, thanks to the firm actions my administration has taken. But without the new reform I am proposing, we will never see the light at the end of the defroster behind closed doors."

Avers Ailment 'Not Unusual'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The man accused of going on a shooting rampage at the nearby IBM facility was receiving treatment for "Vietnam Syndrome" — a recently-recognized illness that affects 500,000 to 1 million veterans.

Experts say symptoms of the illness include rage, guilt, flashbacks, nightmares, panic, depression and an emotional numbness. While most sufferers experience the illness in mild forms in ways that can be treated, some erupt in violence suddenly and without warning.

"Many veterans are going through what we call the stress recovery process," said John R. Smith, a Vietnam veteran who is working toward his doctorate in clinical psychology at Duke University.

"The circumstance of Vietnam made it more difficult — how it was fought and the reaction of American society, in sort of abandoning them, in not wanting to deal with them," Smith said.

"When the process of coping becomes impaired, then we call it a disorder. It results in the impairment of somebody in life or on the job, and stops them from being able to reach their potential."

Last Monday, a man dressed in military fatigues stormed into the IBM complex in Research Triangle Park with firebombs, an automatic rifle and other weapons. The gunman shot and killed one man and wounded several others.

Vietnam veteran Leonard D. Avery, 39, of Raleigh, was charged with murder and six counts of assault in connection with the shootings.

One man who attended therapy sessions with Avery at the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Durham said Avery displayed some symptoms of Vietnam Syndrome prior to the shootings.

"He had a lot of problems left over from Vietnam," the veteran said. "He said that people got on his nerves a lot and made fun of him, that they would try to scare him because they knew he was jumpy."

In a study, the Veterans Administration concluded that the effects of Vietnam Syndrome might appear as long as 15 years after the sufferer left the service.

Other experts say it's especially essential that the 2.5 million individuals who saw combat receive counseling if needed. For those veterans, the unemployment and divorce rates are twice as high and the suicide rate is 33 percent higher than for the rest of the country, the VA study found.

Another study, in 1978, found that about 400,000 Vietnam veterans were having problems with the law. Other problems associated with Vietnam Syndrome are drug abuse and alcoholism.

There are 91 storefront Vet Centers nationwide at which veterans receive counseling and other help. North Carolina has two, in Fayetteville and Charlotte.

Most of the people who seek help at the centers are seeking jobs, said Michael Lydon, a team leader at the Vet Center in Fayetteville. About 300-400 of the 3,400 veterans who have shown up there have been referred elsewhere for psychiatric treatment.

"Some of these guys have lost friends," Lydon said. "Some friends have committed suicide. It seems as though this thing was meaningless. We didn't have a victory. There doesn't seem to have been a purpose in why they risked their life, or why their friends lost their lives."

Defense Dept. Guards Data

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department squelched publication of about 100 papers at a scientific conference in San Diego last month to prevent Soviet scientists from gaining valuable military insights.

The conference, sponsored by the Society of Photo-optical Instrumentation Engineers, was held Aug. 24-27 and had Soviet scientists in attendance, federal officials said Saturday.

The officials said much of the work of society members deals with lasers, which have increasingly important defense applications.

The Reagan administration has been trying to clamp down on the availability of defense-related materials from open sources.

POOR MAN'S BANK — A clerk at a government pawn shop looks over a wall clock which is among several items an unidentified man and wife are pawning. (AP Laserphoto)

Govm't Pawn Shop Also Bank For Mexico's Poor

By MONTE HAYES
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Once again hard times have brought Marina Garcia, a 50-year-old housewife, to Monte de Piedad, a government pawnshop in downtown Mexico City that is the poor man's bank for millions of Mexicans.

She doesn't understand much about the country's worst economic crisis in half a century. All she knows is that she can't make ends meet.

Like Mrs. Garcia, thousands of Mexicans hit hard by a devalued currency and higher prices are standing in line for hours each day to pawn cherished possessions bought during better times.

The peso had been pegged at 49 to the dollar until it was devalued on Aug. 5. Since then, the Mexican currency has lost half of its value, sinking to more than 100 pesos to the dollar on the free market.

The devaluation is fueling inflation that already had been expected to exceed 60 percent, and an already critical unemployment problem is expected to worsen.

Pawnshop officials did not have specific figures but said the number of people coming to Monte de Piedad is up sharply. They predicted the demand for short-term loans will continue to climb as more Mexicans find they can't make ends meet.

"Their first reaction is to cling to their possessions because they fear things will get worse," said the pawnshop's director, Leopoldo Ramirez Leon. "When they try to cut back on their expenses and fail, they will come to Monte de Piedad."

Monte de Piedad — Spanish for Mount of Charity — expects to loan 3 billion pesos — about $30 million — to 6 million Mexicans, most of them from the working class.

A Spanish count established Monte de Piedad in 1775 as a charitable organization, but it went bankrupt four years later because it did not charge interest on its loans and had to be reorganized.

Today it charges 3-to-4 percent interest and gives people five months to redeem their property, in contrast to some parts of the United States where pawnbrokers are permitted by law to collect as much as 15 percent a month in interest.

Monte de Piedad limits individual loans to 50,000 pesos — $500.

"We no longer make large loans because we want the loan money to be spread among people with the greatest need," said Jesus Guzman Valdez, the pawnshop's legal adviser. "Someone who comes to pawn a stone worth 1 million pesos ($10,000) is told to go to a bank."

Monte de Piedad is located in a cavernous, four-story colonial building on the northwest corner of the Zocalo, the great plaza that is the heart of this city of 14 million.

Once past its 15-foot oak doors, people wait in half a dozen lines for clerks to evaluate their jewelry, televisions, pots and pans, typewriters, power tools and other possessions.

Most of the crowd on a recent day wore working-class clothes, but several men in dark business suits were waiting to hock items like cameras and multiband shortwave radios. One woman dressed in a stylish jacket and skirt grimaced when she was quoted a price on her gold earrings.

Many said it was their first visit to Monte de Piedad. But for Mrs. Garcia a trip to the government pawnshop was nothing new. She said she has been pawning possessions every four months since her 60-year-old laborer husband was crippled in an accident on the job several years ago.

Since then she has supported them by sewing dresses — at 15 pesos a dress.

She had just pawned a wall clock for 500 pesos and was disappointed. She had been hoping to get 700 pesos. Mrs. Garcia wasn't sure she would be able to redeem it.

"I have lost many things because there was no money to come for them," she said. "Earrings, necklaces, rings — I have nothing like that left."

Monte de Piedad officials said about 90 percent of pawned items are reclaimed. That leaves at least half a million articles each year that must be sold or auctioned off.

As a result, Monte de Piedad also is one of Mexico City's largest department stores. In a building covering nearly one full block, customers can browse through a maze of rooms offering a variety of merchandise to match any big U.S. department store.

Chapel Hill Student Publication Espousing Conservative Causes

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Ray Warren says established student publications at the University of North Carolina were so liberal that conservative thinkers couldn't get a word in.

So he started a newspaper that champions the conservative cause — with the help of about 30 supporters and money from national conservative political groups.

"This is a bastion of liberalism. If you're a liberal and you're not safe in Chapel Hill, my God, where are you safe?" said Warren, 25, a third-year law student from Charlotte and editor of the Carolina Free Press, which began publishing earlier this year.

From his office — which doubles as his bedroom — Warren boldly expresses views on such touchy subjects as homosexuality and race relations, as a sampling of his writing shows:

— "The Democratic Party has decided to include gays in its affirmative action rules...Able-bodied, white, male, straight party members of northern European ancestry still have to make it on their own at last report."

— "...We have serious questions about funding a group that seems to be (based) on racial exclusiveness," the Free Press said of the Black Student Movement.

The Carolina Free Press has his critics, though leaders of campus groups it has attacked — the Campus Governing Council, the Daily Tar Heel newspaper, the weekly publication Phoenix, the Black Student Movement and the Carolina Gay Association — have not tried to silence it.

"I don't think people here are really threatened by them," said Daily Tar Heel editor John Drescher, 21, of Raleigh. "I think the Free Press is very lively and entertaining and I think it's really admirable that a group of students is so dedicated to a cause. I don't think Ray would deny, though, that they've taken some pretty cheap shots."

The paper debuted Feb. 2, but fell short of its promised weekly schedule, publishing only four times before the summer break.

In its first issue, the Carolina Free Press appealed for readers.

"...If you think student government is mostly staffed with farcical politicians or that Jesse Helms isn't all that bad, or that Chapel Hill is a bit out of touch with reality, Free Press may be a welcome change from the steady diet of secularism, collectivism and other liberal mythologies currently spoon-fed by our campus honchos," it said.

The paper has seven directors and about 30 supporters. The National Congressional Club, the conservative group organized by North Carolina's Republican Sen. Jesse Helms, contributed $500 of the $3,000 scraped together by the Free Press this year. The Conservative Caucus and the National Conservative Political Action Committee also chipped in $100 each, Warren said.

Warren said he has not received any money from student government, which allocates about $200,000 in student fees each year.

Surf Required Four Beaches To Close

DUCK, N.C. (AP) — A New York City woman was critically injured Sunday in swirling surf conditions that forced the closing of at least four resort beaches during the peak Labor Day weekend tourist season, authorities said.

Nancy Herring, 34, was plucked from the water by two surfers at a desolate beach near Duck after she became trapped in strong currents, said Deputy Lew Wagoner of the Dare County Sheriff's Department. Ms. Herring was listed in critical condition at Virginia Beach General Hospital.

Swimming was banned Sunday at Nags Head, Kill Devil Hills, Kitty Hawk and Southern Shores as northeast winds gusting to 30 mph whipped up the surf.

On the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, a spokesman on Hatteras Island said the National Park Service was also advising people to stay out of the water. The park's five campgrounds were filled with about 1,000 campers, the spokesman said.

Ralph Buxton, president of the Outer Banks Chamber of Commerce, estimated the weekend crowd at more than 100,000.

While the swimming ban may have disappointed beachgoers, local merchants reported tourists flocking to their shops in record numbers.

"From a retail standpoint, it's an excellent weekend," Buxton said.

It is our pleasure this month to have Earl Jones minister to us. Earl owns and operates Earl Jones' Music Studios in Jacksonville, North Carolina.

He is associated with the singing group, "The Jones Brothers". They gave their testimony at our Full Gospel meeting in May, 1980. Everyone that heard them thoroughly enjoyed their singing and testimony.

Earl, and his brothers, spent most of their lives pursuing a career as professional entertainers, playing and singing in nightclubs, on radio, T.V. and making recordings. They were raised by Christian parents. After accepting Jesus as their personal Saviour, and being baptized in the Holy Spirit, they left secular entertainment. They are now businessmen in the Jacksonville area and minister together, and separately, in song, testimony and teaching.

Earl is married to Kathy and they have three sons: Jimmy, Tony and John.

We look forward to Earl speaking and singing for us, and ministering to our needs, by the power of the Holy Spirit. Earl's music appeals especially to young people, and those "young at heart"!

Views On Dental Health

IF YOU CHIP A TOOTH

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

WISDOM TEETH

As babies, we start out with 20 primary (or baby) teeth. By the time we are adults, we shed these baby teeth and end up with a total of 32 teeth. Where do the extra 12 come from? These are our 12 permanent molar teeth. They develop behind the baby molars in three stages (of 4 each) during our youth.

Wisdom teeth often cause trouble. The jaws may be so small that one or all of these wisdom teeth remain completely embedded in the jawbone. In other instances, only a portion of the crown may erupt and a flap of gum tissue may overlap much of the wisdom tooth enamel.

These embedded (impacted) or partially erupted teeth may become a source of trouble from pressure they produce on adjacent teeth or from infection that develops under the gum. Their surgical removal may be necessary.

The third set of molars are called wisdom teeth. They make their appearance between the age of 17 and 21. The one who invented this label equated "wisdom" (perhaps rashly) with physical maturity.

When other financial institutions offer you money market checking...

Ask if there are strings attached.

Lots of financial institutions are beginning to offer checking accounts with "money market" rates. But, none of these accounts pay rates as high as Funds CheckingSM.

And, with Funds CheckingSM there are no strings attached.

Don't tie up your money in an account that requires passbook savings.

With Funds CheckingSM there are no low-interest balances to maintain. In fact, no minimum balances at all. Simply open with $1,000 and earn money market interest.

We'll pay you the highest interest rates in the state on checking for a simple $2 a month service charge. And, if you're 55 or older, we offer Funds CheckingSM with no fees whatsoever. (If you don't need checking privileges our $1,000 minimum Funds Management account earns the same interest rates as Funds CheckingSM with no fees.)

Don't forget about insurance.

Your Funds CheckingSM balance is insured to $100,000. Some financials offering high interest checking may forget to tell you that their repurchase agreement account isn't insured. So, ask about insurance before you tie the knot.

At North State, we'll be happy to explain all the particulars about our Funds CheckingSM account. And, we won't forget a thing. Because Funds CheckingSM simply pays higher interest on an insured deposit for a low monthly service fee. No strings attached.

Faircloth's New Bifocals May Be Prime Evidence

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — In the search for early signs of movement in the upcoming governor's race, one of the more significant pieces of political evidence may be Lauch Faircloth's new bifocals.

Faircloth, commerce secretary in the Hunt administration, has shed his half-lens glasses, described as atrocious by one aide, for a pair with designer rims. The new look has drawn notice and even an inquiry from Gov. Jim Hunt at a recent cabinet meeting.

"Well governor," Faircloth is reliably said to have replied, "I believe they call these 'Governor in '84 glasses.'"

It was but the latest in a growing number of signals that D. M. "Lauch" Faircloth, whose nickname is pronounced "Lock," is indeed serious in his stirrings about a Democratic campaign for governor.

The Democratic field is already crowded, and some of the hopefuls possess more recognizable names and offices. The other potential candidates include Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, 7th District Rep. Charles Rose, and Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox.

Although the race isn't until 1984, maneuvering by candidates has already begun. Edmisten and Rose have held big fund raisers in recent weeks, Ingram has initiated a money-raising organization and Knox has been trying to keep his visibility high.

Faircloth, 54, in a recent conversation about his political plans, made clear that his is more than just a passing interest in the race and that he hardly considers the opposition to be too great or too far ahead.

"I'm taking a very serious look at it. I'm weighing it very seriously," Faircloth said. "I see the race as still wide open."

Faircloth has the support of an old ally, former Gov. Bob Scott, who lost in a crushing defeat to Hunt in the 1980 Democratic primary.

There have been suggestions that former Gov. Terry Sanford, who first put him on the old state Highway Commission in the early 1960s, would back Faircloth. But Sanford said Friday he hasn't offered his support to any of the candidates.

"I think he'd make a very fine governor, but I haven't as yet endorsed anybody," Sanford said. "I think we'll just have to see how these campaigns develop."

Faircloth, however, has had some trouble getting people to take his potential candidacy seriously. Perhaps that's due to his sometimes brisk manner, the fact he's been around politics so long and his reputation as the Hunt administration's standup comic.

Administration officials love to tell Faircloth stories. There's the time, for instance, he is said to have introduced a speaker, a visiting federal official from Washington, as "a man who has flat been at the public trough."

But Faircloth has one big advantage: money. He has a personal fortune on which he can draw, and friends say he's willing to spend for an expensive campaign.

He is from Clinton in Sampson County in the southeastern part of the state, where he has a farming operation that includes 15,000-20,000 hogs. He is involved in banking, feed milling, car dealerships, construction and an array of commercial developments. His wife, Nancy, is chairman of the board of trustees of the North Carolina Symphony and is the daughter of a former Jefferson-Pilot Corp. executive.

Faircloth sidesteps the question of how much of his own money he is willing to put into a campaign, but he makes clear he isn't scared away by the more than $100,000 Edmisten's staff claims to have raised in a single fund-raising event last month.

Faircloth's base of support is certain to lie with business and agriculture, and others describe him as moderate to conservative. But he bristles at the suggestion he might be seen as a board-room candidate.

Faircloth got his start in politics when Kerr Scott was governor and served as a driver in Frank Porter Graham's losing 1950 Senate campaign. In 1969 Bob Scott made him Highway Commission chairman — resulting later in the naming of a highway around Clinton and an Outer Banks ferry after Faircloth.

As a newcomer to the idea of being a candidate, Faircloth hasn't perfected his pitch yet. But he established something of a theme: that his combination of government work and the business sense that allowed him to build a personal fortune is right for the times.

Faircloth says he sees the coming years as a time of consolidation and perhaps retrenchment for state government. Using a business analogy he suggests he might cut social programs on a "first-in, last-out" basis.

"I know how to make things work. I have made things work, and I know how to run things," he says.

Slow Recovery For Furniture

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Even if interest rates keep falling and the stock market keeps rallying, it will take a year or longer for the furniture industry to recover, industry officials say.

"Even if the prime rate went to 8 percent by the end of September, I would still have to say it's going to be a gradual recovery," said furniture analyst Jerry Epperson of Wheat First Securities Inc. "The things that we need to happen aren't going to turn on a dime."

"We are planning for another tough year in 1983," said Fred Starr, president of Thomasville Furniture Industries, which has been running plants on a four-day work week for months. "We don't think this is going to turn around in a year."

For the first six months of this year, 15 percent of furniture orders were canceled, a 9 percent increase over the previous year, according to statistics compiled by the Southern Furniture Manufacturers Association in High Point.

Employment in the furniture industry in North Carolina, meanwhile, down 8.7 percent in July compared to the same month last year.

Michael Sherman, executive vice president of the National Association of Furniture Manufacturers in Washington, also expects a slow, gradual recovery.

"The key feature is the psychology of what we've been through," Sherman said. "This (recent improvement) may be the needed shot in the arm for Mr. and Mrs. Consumer."

A Special Chair For Tiny Prince

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has given tiny Prince William of Wales a custom-made wooden chair to sit in while he waits to inherit a throne of his own.

The specially-made Honduras mahogany chair is this country's official gift to Prince William, new heir to the throne of the United Kingdom.

The reproduction Chippendale child's corner chair was shipped to England recently for official presentation to Prince William's parents, Prince Charles and Princess Diana.

Nancy Reagan suggested it as a gift. White House spokeswoman Sheila Tate said. Small chairs with hand-stitched seats had been given to the Reagan children by a family friend years ago, Ms. Tate said.

The chair, which is 25 inches high, cost about $750 and was built by Freeman and Co. of Thomasville, Ga. It was paid for by the State Department.

This could help build the confidence we need. But even if it does, we don't expect recovery in new homes immediately, although resale could generate some sales."

But assuming the decline in the prime holds through the fall, it presumably will take months to affect mortgage rates, housing construction and long-term consumer confidence — all keys to the sales of durable, manufactured goods like furniture.

Epperson said that in the last 45 days, order-writing has picked up slightly at most casegoods companies. But he said the orders are being scrutinized for credit-worthiness like never before.

Figures compiled by Dun and Bradstreet and the Lyon Furniture Merchandise Agency indicate that manufacturer failures in this recession appear to be trailing those of the 1974-75 recession. But at the retail level they are significantly higher.

For the 1974-75 recession, the Lyon Agency tabulated 75 manufacturer failures and 401 retail failures. In 1981 and the first seven months of 1982, the agency found 55 manufacturer failures and 408 retail failures.

Two Collisions Here Saturday

An estimated $7,900 property damage resulted from two collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 2:43 a.m. collision on Tenth Street, 269 feet East of the College Hill Drive intersection, involving cars driven by Kenneth Bradley Clark of Glenwood Apartments and Mary Linda Grantham of 205 Slay Drive.

Officers, who charged Clark with driving under the influence and operating on the wrong side of the road, estimated damage at $3,500 to the Clark car and $3,900 to the Grantham vehicle.

Trucks driven by Linwood Wayne Lewis of Route 4, Washington, and Robert Phillip Dash Jr. of 2602 Crockett Drive, collided on Cedar Lane, 100 feet South of the Crockett Drive intersection.

Investigators estimated damage from the mishap at $300 to the Lewis truck and $200 to the Dash vehicle.

Airs Doubts Of Private Sector

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A participant in the 1960 Greensboro sit-ins says he has reservations about an NAACP plan to nudge private industry toward helping minorities in the face of cuts in government programs.

"I don't believe the private sector is in a position to deliver what the NAACP expects," Franklin McCain said of the plan, dubbed Operation Fair Share by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

"I think the intent is maybe a noble one. I think what has to happen is a scale-down of expectations," added McCain, now a Celanese executive based in Charlotte.

NAACP officials said Operation Fair Share would take effect today in the Carolinas.

"Businesses in North and South Carolina should prepare themselves by reviewing their minority programs and contributions," said L.R. Byrd, a consultant to the NAACP.

"We are not asking for special favors," he said at a news conference last week. "We will do business with businesses that will do business with us. We will not allow business America to rob black America. If absolutely necessary, there will be boycotts."

The plan's goal as described in July at the NAACP's 73rd annual convention in Boston is to harness the billion of dollars of black spending power by getting 450,000 NAACP members in 1,800 branches to boycott companies and industries that discriminate against blacks.

In the Southeast, coordinators will interview company officials to determine if corporate donations are being shared with black institutions.

They'll also ask how many blacks are employed by the industries, how many black franchises the companies operate and whether they have deposits in black banks, black board members, black managers, black policymakers and black lawyers.

Byrd said firms targeted for boycotts will be announced at state NAACP conventions in October.

"I think private enterprise, in better times, can do more," said McCain. "But I don't think it can do all of the things the government used to do in the past. The timing is really bad."

Union Leaders Demand Jobless Aid

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI Associated Press Writer
As Americans prepared for traditional rallies and parades to mark today's 101st celebration of Labor Day, union leaders demanded help for 10.8 million jobless workers struggling with the worst unemployment in 40 years.

"Let's make this our Labor Day motto for 1982: Congress, turn things around by putting people back to work!" said John Driscoll, president of the Connecticut Labor Council.

"Labor Day is a day to celebrate our strength," Mel Packer, of Teamsters for a Democratic Union, told a rally Sunday in Homestead, Pa. "This is a day to recognize that without us, there is no U.S. Steel, no Mellon Bank, no Carnegie Library."

Besides honoring working men and women, today's holiday also marks the end of summer vacations and the beginning of crisp nights, falling leaves, a new school year and political campaigns.

Authorities urged special caution by motorists during the three-day holiday. By 1 a.m. EDT today, 265 people had died in traffic accidents.

On tap today in Chicago was a Labor Day parade, concert, fireworks display and food served up al fresco by 30 of the city's top restaurants.

Parades also were planned in Detroit, St. Louis, and San Antonio, Texas, where union leaders planned to unveil a statue of Samuel Gompers, founder of the American Federation of Labor.

The nation's first Labor Day was celebrated 100 years ago in New York at the urging of Peter J. McGuire, a carpenter who rose to leadership in the Knights of Labor. Congress made it a national holiday in 1894.

Baltimore's Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church scheduled a sunrise service to call attention to the unemployed. Participants were asked to donate jobs, food or back-to-school shoes.

In Omaha, the city's Labor Temple sponsored its sixth Septemberfest in the downtown section, including a parade, arts and crafts displays and a raft regatta on the Missouri River.

President Reagan issued a Labor Day message Sunday from his California ranch, lauding those "who have toiled to build our nation and to share a prosperous life."

While not mentioning government figures showing August's national jobless rate at 9.8 percent for the second month in a row — a post-war high — Reagan took note of his economic revitalization program.

"By working together we can successfully deal with the problems facing us and usher this nation into a new era of achievement ..." he said.

Two of the nation's labor chiefs, meanwhile, used the holiday weekend to call attention to U.S. trade policies they said were unfair to the American worker.

Both AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland and Douglas Fraser, head of the United Automobile Workers, accused Japan of benefiting from access to U.S. markets while denying Japanese markets to American manufacturers.

"The Japanese economy is the worst advertisement for so-called free trade that could possibly exist," said Kirkland, on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley. Fraser was on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Many Labor Day festivities were held Saturday and Sunday, although the first Monday in September is officially Labor Day.

In New York, a hospital workers union held a street fair Sunday and gave out information on alcohol and drug abuse, high blood pressure and lung disease. Also, teams raced beds down an Upper East Side street to raise money to fight muscular dystrophy.

Lawmen Can Identify The Repeat Offender

WASHINGTON (AP) — Law enforcement officials can predict, with 85 percent accuracy, which criminals are likely to be rearrested within five years, the National Law Journal said in today's editions.

Such information can be helpful to prosecutors in deciding which cases to pursue for the most effective way of cutting the crime rate, the Journal said.

The newspaper based its report on a $290,000 study done for the Justice Department by the Washington-based criminal justice research organization INSLAW Inc. The study has not yet been released.

"Many of the nation's most active lawbreakers are not being prosecuted because law enforcement officials are ignoring ways to identify them," the study concluded.

INSLAW researchers looked at the activities of 1,700 federal offenders for five years after their release from custody, looking for factors that would show a link between what was known about them then and the likelihood they would be arrested again.

The most likely indicators, the researchers decided, were prior record, youth, history of drug or alcohol abuse and the nature of the most recent offense. Violent offenses, property theft, forgeries and drug crimes were given the greatest weight.

"Applying these criteria,

200 of the 1,700 offenders were identified as possible career criminals who could be expected to get in trouble with the law again," the Law Journal said. "During the five-year follow-up, a majority of the 200 — 170, or 85 percent — were rearrested. Half were rearrested within a year and 69 percent within two years."

The group identified in advance as career criminals committed 10 times as many crimes as the rest of the 1,700-member group and the recidivism rate was 85 percent compared to 36 percent for the others.

The Journal said the study did not address civil rights questions that might arise if prosecutors singled out a case because a person is thought likely to commit a crime in the future.

The researchers developed a score sheet for predicting recidivism but concluded federal prosecutors are comfortable with the discretion they have to choose cases.

"A less formal approach was considered more feasible," the Journal said. "The INSLAW study suggested that both federal prosecutors and federal investigators are favorably disposed to a system of 'flagging' cases involving likely recidivists for special attention."

Marcos Wants Defense Plans

By DAVID BRISCOE Associated Press Writer

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Ferdinand E. Marcos, who is scheduled to visit Washington next week, said today that he wants to know what the United States will do in defense of the Philippines and Southeast Asia.

"I suppose Asia is on the back burner ... But one cannot delay for long the planning for contingencies in this part of the world," he told a news conference.

Marcos said the Association of Southeast Asian Nations, which includes the Philippines, has a long-term goal of eliminating foreign bases from the region. But he said conflicts in Cambodia, Afghanistan and the Middle East and the threat of the Vietnamese taking over remote islands claimed by the Philippines show that "events have caught up with us."

Other ASEAN members are Thailand, Singapore, Malaysia and Indonesia.

Marcos said that while no specific talks would be conducted during his visit on agreements that allow the United States to use the Philippines for major air force and navy bases, dates might be set for new negotiations. The bases agreement, which runs until 1991 before lapsing into termination on a year's notice, is scheduled for review in 1983.

United States defense officials have said they consider American bases in the Philippines a key to Pacific and Middle East security.

The president also told reporters Filipinos were not disturbed by Japanese revisions of textbook accounts of World War II because they know other big powers, including the United States, "doctor histories."

Marcos, decorated for heroism as a guerrilla fighter against the Japanese, said he could only "laugh to my heart's content" whenever he read some American books about the battles of Bataan and Corregidor without any mention at all of the thousands of Filipinos who died.

"I didn't see any Americans when I was fighting in the front lines," Marcos said. "We did the dirty work but when the Americans landed, they became our commanding officers so they became the heroes...Probably we should complain against the Americans, not against the Japanese," he said.

Dedicate Vines Street

FARMVILLE — The late William "Bill" Vines, a member of the Farmville Police Department for 7 years and a Pitt County Deputy Sheriff for 14 years before his death in March, was honored here Saturday by the formal changing of the name of Acton Place to Vines Street.

The dedication ceremony, held on Vines' 63rd birthday, was attended by an estimated 125 people including Vines' five brothers and four sisters, former Farmville Mayor Sara Albritton, Police Chief Ron Cooper, and representatives of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department. Others attending the dedication came from Connecticut, New York, Washington, D.C., Baltimore, Norfolk, Atlanta, and Los Angeles.

Thomas Vines of Washington, D.C., speaking for the family, paid tribute to his uncle, citing the contributions Vines had made to him personally and to the Town of Farmville. The speaker also expressed the family's gratitude to the town for honoring Vines.

James K. Vines, one of Vines' two brothers that still live in Farmville, makes his home in the Vines family home-place on Vines Street.

The street dedication was held in conjunction with the Vines family reunion.

Selected For Drug Research

The East Carolina University School of Medicine has been selected by a European pharmaceutical company as one of two sites in the United States where research on a new drug for treatment of angina will be conducted. Angina is the severe chest pains associated with coronary artery disease and heart attacks.

The drug under investigation is Dilazep, a medication used for several years in western Europe and Japan to treat patients suffering from angina.

The laboratory is under the direction of Dr. Jamal Mustafa, a pharmacologist who specializes in cardiovascular research.

Dr. Mustafa has conducted studies that link the drug with adenosine, a compound in the human body that regulates blood flow to the heart.

A&M 'Messiah' Has Unheavenly Debut

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — It was early the morning after in the Jackie Sherrill mansion and the millionaire 38-year-old messiah of the Texas A&M football fortunes was taking his medicine with class.

Between bites of shrimp with red sauce and a sip of something cool, Sherrill was explaining how his coaching debut Saturday night at the school for which he jilted Pittsburgh had come apart a few hours earlier.

"They did a good job of getting our secondary confused," he said of Boston College. "They always threw to the right man."

"We lost because I did a terrible job. It would be awful easy for me to come in and say there were no players here and that the program was in terrible shape, but I'm not gonna do that."

Sherrill had invited writers who covered Boston College's embarrassing 38-16 victory over the Aggies to a party at his house — win, lose or draw. He was there when they arrived, patiently answering questions until the second-guessing wore down.

Nearby were huge mounds of oysters, shrimp, roast beef and fruit to defy the notion that only to the victors go the spoils.

Sherrill was proud that his team gave good effort.

"We will not be a poor football team ... I know a little bit more about myself and about my staff," he said. "When we can reach the point where we can play as well as our fans act and conduct ourselves as well as they do, we'll have a great football team."

Sherrill left Pittsburgh to become coach and athletic director for $287,000 a year for six years. He still hasn't signed the contract, which is a mere formality.

"Nobody said it was going to be easy," Sherrill said as guests trampled his coastal bermuda grass under a tent in the back yard. "We have an off week next week and it couldn't have come at a better

'Dogs' Walker Still Hoping To Play Vs. Tigers

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — It may be closing in on game-time tonight before a final decision is rendered on whether two-time All-American tailback Herschel Walker will play when the Georgia Bulldogs tangle with defending national champion Clemson in the nationally televised football opener for both teams.

Walker, a 220-pound junior who broke his right thumb during a scrimmage on Aug. 21, says if the doctors tell him he risks further injury by playing, "I'll listen. But if they say it's up to me, I'll play."

Walker, who has rambled for 3,507 yards in two seasons, was one of the major reasons ABC Television persuaded the two schools to change the original Sept. 18 playing date to Labor Day, but Walker's injury has forced the network to shelve pregame promos featuring the Bulldog speedster.

The latest word from the Georgia camp Sunday night was that nothing had changed, that Coach Vince Dooley remained convinced his team would be without Walker's services.

"I see no possible way he'll play," said Dooley, who will move to the top of Georgia's all-time victory list for coaches with his next triumph. Dooley and former Coach Wally Butts currently share the top spot with 140 victories each.

"I won't know whether I'll play until Monday," said Walker. "If I dress out then, I will expect to play."

Coach Danny Ford, who has steered Clemson to 13 consecutive victories and owns a 2-1 record against the Bulldogs, said he was preparing the Tigers for Walker, regardless of the reports from Athens.

Ford said he didn't want his team surprised by a Walker appearance.

"We don't need to go down there and have him trot out on the field, pull off that jersey and have Superman on underneath it," Ford said. "That's what he is. He's the best I've ever seen."

Carnie Norris, who had rushed for 942 yards in three seasons, is expected to get the starting nod at tailback and Dooley also has two touted freshmen in the position, Tron Jackson and Keith Montgomery.

The Bulldogs, ranked seventh in The Associated Press preseason poll, will be operating with a new quarterback for the first time in three years. John Lastering, a junior who has seen limited action, inherits the assignment from Buck Belue, who led the Bulldogs to a 22-2 record the last two years, including the national championship in 1980.

Clemson has the veteran quarterback this year, one who will be returning to his hometown — Homer Jordan. He passed for 1,630 yards and nine touchdowns last year and also rushed for another 496 yards and six scores.

Both teams feature outstanding defenses. Clemson, ranked 11th in the preseason, has a group of veteran backs working behind a new offensive line and Georgia has generally untried backs working behind a veteran line.

The game pits the last two national titlists — Georgia in 1980 and Clemson a year ago.

There is no love lost to begin with between seventh-ranked Georgia and No. 11 Clemson. Two years ago, Clemson had the best of the statistics, but Georgia won the game 20-16 en route

Upset Continues Duke March Upward

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Duke Coach Red Wilson saw his football team's 25-24 victory over Tennessee as a sign that the Blue Devils are continuing their climb out of the cellar.

But for Tennessee's Johnny Majors, the season-opening disaster Saturday night showed that the young and talented squad which fans are counting on to return the Volunteers to national prominence still has a long way to go.

"I think we will definitely have a very respectable football team," said Wilson, whose team went 6-5 in 1981 for its first winning season in seven years. "This is just one game, and one game does not a season make. But this might be the catalyst we need to take us to real great heights the rest of the year."

Tennessee led much of the game, but Duke snatched victory with 10:31 remaining when tailback Joel Blunk ran 13 yards for a touchdown and John Tolish kicked the point after. A crowd of 95,223 — Neyland Stadium's third-largest ever — looked on.

The Vols owned the first quarter, as sharp-shooter Fuad Reveiz kicked a 30-yard field goal and booted an extra point after wingback Mike Miller scored on a 17-yard pass from Alan Cockrell.

The Atlantic Coast Conference Blue Devils caught fire in the second quarter as Kenneth Harper kicked field goals of 36 and 40 yards.

Duke overtook the Vols 12-10 with 9:47 left in the third quarter when split end Chris Castor ran Ben Bennett's pass 88 yards for a touchdown and a school distance record. Tennessee's Reggie McKenzie blocked Harper's extra-point attempt.

The Vols regained the lead in the third quarter, scoring twice on a 7-yard run by tailback Randall Morris and a 1-yard leap by tailback Chuck Coleman. Reveiz kicked both extra points.

But Duke took command with 32 seconds left in the third quarter when fullback Greg Boone returned Reveiz's kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown. McKenzie again stood in the way of Harper's point-after kick.

The Blue Devils gained their second and final lead with the Blunk-Tolish combo.

"I've played better and I've played worse. But this is one of the best games I've ever seen this team play," said Bennett, who completed 18 of 29 passes for 288 yards.

Majors, beginning his sixth year at Tennessee's helm, offered no excuses.

"I've never seen anything quite like it," he said. "They took that ball off the goal line, made some first downs, took it down and rammed it down our throats. They wore us down and wore us out."

"They deserved everything they got, even though we had our chances," he said.

One bright spot for Tennessee was the full-length performance of Cockrell, a sophomore quarterback making his first appearance since being sidelined with a severe knee injury in Tennessee's 10-7 win over Auburn last Sept. 26.

Backup quarterback Sam Aiello, a junior college transfer from California, never got to leave the bench as Cockrell completed 20 to 25 passes for 239 yards.

Duke travels to independent South Carolina on Sept. 18, while Tennessee hosts Iowa State on Saturday before beginning Southeastern Conference play against Auburn on Sept. 25.

Tol Avery also discovered this week that he'd regained his starting job and responded by leading North Carolina State to a 26-0 victory over Furman.

Overlooked Vilas Advances In Open

NEW YORK (AP) — To Guillermo Vilas, being the fourth-best men's tennis player in the world isn't so bad — except if people keep overlooking you.

Unfortunately for the left-hander from Argentina, that's exactly what's been happening to him, even though he's in the midst of one of his finest years.

"I've never had a bad year, really," Vilas said Sunday after beating qualifier Mike DePalmer 6-3, 7-5, 4-6, 6-1 in the third round of the $1.5 million U.S. Open. "Last year was the only one I didn't win a major but I was in 12 finals and won three. I've won six times this year."

"I'm not insulted when I'm not mentioned with the top guys. The public should feel insulted if the press says a guy can't win and he does."

Not much mention has been made of Vilas at the Open this year. But if he continues to play as he did in downing DePalmer, people will take notice ... quickly.

"I've worked on parts of my game to put it all together," said Vilas, who won this title in 1977, when the Open was played on clay. "I feel I'm playing well and it's mainly a question of fitness, of who is fresher to the end."

"I think it's an open Open."

While Vilas was doing as expected, 36-year-old Ilie Nastase of Romania was springing a surprise. Nastase's game has been on the decline recently but the "Clown Prince of Tennis" found enough in reserve to outlast 10th-seeded Johan Kriek of South Africa 4-6, 7-6 (7-2), 6-7 (8-10), 6-3, 6-2.

Most of the complaining in the 3-hour, 25-minute match was done by Kriek, who was especially annoyed by the use of a computer to call service lines. Kriek also told Nastase on a few occasions to stop stalling.

"I'm 36 years old and it takes me a while to get from one end (of the court) to the other," Nastase answered at one point. At match point, he swore at a lineswoman for her call on a Kriek serve. Several hours later it was announced he'd been fined $1,000 for that.

The seesaw match included a wild second set in which Nastase won the first five games, only to lose the next six. He rallied to force the tiebreaker, which he eased through.

"That's my longest match in a year," said Nastase, the 1972 Open champ. "I changed rackets a few days before the Open, from wood to graphite. Maybe that's helped."

"I've been playing well but I never win. Johan is not confident all the time and I thought I had a chance."

The victory boosted Nastase's desire to continue on the tour.

"This will keep me playing another year," said Nastase, once the scourge of the courts for his controversial behavior — including abusing officials and berating opponents — but somewhat tamer now. "I'll come back here next year. When you do well in a tournament, you want to go back."

Three-time defending champion John McEnroe, the men's top seed, manhandled Vince Van Patten 6-3, 6-2, 6-3, while No. 2 Jimmy Connors took 18-year-old Jimmy Arias 6-4, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1 in night match.

Lloyd Moves Up

Connors next meets Nastase, "My old buddy."

"On the first day of the tournament, he says to me, 'I win three rounds and I play you,'" Connors said of Nastase. "I saw him before my match and he said, 'I'm there, you got to get to me.'"

"I told him that makes it worth getting to."

Eliot Teltscher, seeded eighth, advanced with a 4-6, 7-5, 6-3, 6-0 triumph over Chris

Lewis of New Zealand. No. 12 Steve Denton beat Mel Purcell 4-6, 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. Seeded women to advance included Chris Evert Lloyd, the women's No. 2 seed, who fought off a touch of food poisoning to defeat Kate Latham 6-2, 6-1. Earlier in the day, Lloyd — who became ill after eating some cheesecake — sought a postponement of her match but the request was denied by tournament officials. She said she didn't expect to get the delay, anyway.

"I didn't think I was that special and they shouldn't bend the rules for me," said Lloyd.

Waltrip, Others, Set To Run At Darlington

Prestige, $$ Await 500 Victor

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — The winner of the Southern 500 Grand National stock car race will gain a measure of prestige, but it will be dollar signs that will be dancing in the eyes of many of the 40 starters as they take the green flag today.

The name of the game in big-time stock car racing these days is money. You need it to race, and even more to win. And it takes winning to bring in a big-name sponsor who will provide a lot of money.

"The purses can't keep a team going by themselves," says Darrell Waltrip, the defending Winston Cup champion and winner of a record $693,000 in 1981 in prize and contingency money.

"Other than Daytona and a couple of others, they just don't pay all that much, especially when you compare what we can win to what a guy in golf or tennis wins for one event."

The purse for the annual Labor Day spectacular at Darlington International Raceway, NASCAR's oldest superspeedway, is $336,850. From that, the winner will reap about $35,000.

"Since that is just about enough to pay the expenses for a top-notch racing team for the week, there obviously is something more important than winning the race itself.

"It's the overall deal," explained Richard Petty, who has won $4.5-million in prize money during his long racing career. "It used to be that the money you got for winning a race would pay for all your racing and leave you a little left over for other things."

"But, now, you've got to get a sponsor like STP (his sponsor) or Mountain Dew (Waltrip's) or Gatorade (Bobby Allison's) to come out ahead if you're going to race every week. And that makes the Winston (season point) money more important to everyone, too."

Winston puts up $300,000 for the season point race, paying out $70,000 for the top 10 point leaders halfway through the season, and adding another $230,000 to the pot for the top 20 at the end of the year.

The first-half leader — Terry Labonte in 1982 — picks up $25,000, while the overall champion for the season will take home $75,000, with $40,000 going to the second-place finisher.

That money, as well as the prestige derived from being a champion, is what makes the point standings a focal point throughout the season.

Going into today's race, Allison — looking for his first season title — is leading Labonte by 65 points. Waltrip, running third, still is in the battle, but is 120 points behind with just nine races left in which to catch the leader.

The point system puts a great premium on consistency, with Allison leading despite Waltrip having won only five races to Waltrip's seven. And Labonte has not won this year.

Neither does the point system reflect season earnings accurately, with Waltrip leading $484,600 to $438,455 for Allison. Petty, who has not won this year, is third with $276,315, followed by one-time winner Dale Earnhardt with $276,275 and Labonte with $268,710.

"You have to think about the money because that's just good business," says Petty.

Brewers, Birds, Bosox Continue Pennant Drive

By The Associated Press

Key hits by lesser-known players, clutch efforts by veterans and winning streaks are things that lead to pennants. Shaky pitching performances cause problems. Milwaukee, Baltimore and Boston, the top three teams in the American League East, all continued their stretch drives with victories Sunday, while Kansas City and California — 1-2 in the AL West — got shelled in homer-filled losses. Mark Brouhard, sent by Milwaukee to the minors Aug. 12 and recalled last week, drilled a towering two-run homer as the Brewers exploded for a five-run sixth and downed California 8-5. "I didn't realize how rusty I was until I got to Vancouver, and it took me at least half a dozen games before I felt decent," said Brouhard, who was subbing for the injured Ben Oglivie on Sunday. "For awhile, every fastball down there looked 120 miles an hour," he said. "But I felt good today. I was just trying to hit it hard someplace. Fortunately, I got it up in the air." Brouhard's third homer of the season helped keep Milwaukee four games ahead of sizzling Baltimore — which beat Minnesota 5-4 — and 4½ in front of Carl Yastrzemski-led Boston, which topped Seattle 6-5 in 10 innings. California's loss kept the Angels two games behind Kansas City, which was destroyed by New York, 18-7. In other AL games, Detroit defeated Oakland 8-1, Texas outslugged Chicago 10-7 and Toronto got past Cleveland 6-5. "We can look at this two ways," said California Manager Gene Mauch after his team lost its sixth game in the last eight. "We can say we were unlucky because of all the cheap hits they got, or we can say we're lucky we didn't get buried in the race. I prefer to look at it the latter way." Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn says he's glad glad his team will play only AL East teams for the rest of the season. "That's the way it ought to be — playing the teams in your division and the teams you have to beat," he said. "I'm glad we're not going to the West, because then you start looking at the scoreboard." Reggie Jackson belted his 34th homer for California, tying him with Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas for the major league lead, while Brian Downing hit his 24th and Don Baylor hit his 22nd for the Angels.

Pinch-hitter Ken Singleton tripled home two sixth-inning runs as Baltimore won its eighth in a row and 15th of its last 16. Minnesota committed five errors, including one by third baseman Gary Gaetti that allowed Glenn Gulliver, who was running for Singleton, to score and put Baltimore ahead 6-5. Storm Davis, 6-3, pitched four innings of one-hit relief for the victory. Red Sox 6, Mariners 5 Yastrzemski's bases-loaded bouncer allowed Jerry Remy to slide home with the winning run in the bottom of the 10th inning. With none out, Yaz hit a hopper to second baseman Julio Cruz, whose throw to the plate was wide. The Red Sox had tied the game with three runs in the ninth, two on Dave Stapleton's single. Yankees 18, Royals 7 Switch-hitting Roy Smalley cracked three-run homers from both sides of the plate — only the 12th AL player to homer from each side in a game — as the Yankees drubbed Kansas City. In addition to Smalley's six runs batted in, Dave Winfield drove in four with a pair of homers. Frank White, Willie Aikens and Hal McRae homered for the Royals, all off winner Ron Guidry, 14-5. McRae also doubled in a run, increasing his major league-leading RBI total to 116. Tigers 8, A's 1 Jack Morris tossed a two-hitter and Larry Herndon belted a three-run homer for the Tigers. Morris, 15-14, struck out five and walked five. One of the hits he allowed was Dwayne Murphy's 22nd homer of the season. John Wockenfuss and Mike Laga each had two-run doubles for Detroit. Rangers 10, White Sox Larry Parrish, Jim Sundberg and Bucky Dent each had three hits as Texas banged out a season-high 19 hits in snapping Chicago's six-game winning streak. Dent had a two-run double and Buddy Bell added a two-run single. Parrish also drove in two runs. Blue Jays 6, Indians 5 Rance Mulliniks had a two-run homer and Al Woods drove in three runs as Toronto ended its six-game losing streak. Luis Leal, 10-12, got the win with relief help from Dale Murray, who got his sixth save. Alan Bannister singled three times and knocked in three Cleveland runs.

Wake Forest quarterback Gary Schofield was in fine form as the Demon Deacons took a 31-10 victory over Western Carolina. Avery is a senior, but found that status of little significance last month as he battled with three other quarterbacks for the starting role he lost last season. But he served notice that he's forgotten 1981. "I'm playing for this year," he said. "I felt no pressure from last year. I always felt I could do the job." Avery completed 13 of 25 passes for 174 yards and a pair of touchdown tosses. Joe McIntosh, the defending Atlantic Coast Conference rushing champion, gained 130 yards on 24 carries and two touchdowns. For the moment, Wake Forest has found a running game to compliment Schofield's passing. Freshmen Michael Ramseur and Topper Clemmons rushed for 94 and 40 yards, respectively. "Ramseur and Clemmons were the two runners we recruited from the onset and I think they showed they're bright prospects," said Coach Al Groh. In Columbia, S.C., South Carolina coach Richard Bell's birthday was Thursday, but his biggest birthday present came Saturday night. Bell, making his debut as the Gamecocks' head coach, saw his team conquer Pacific 41-6 in the season opener for both squads. "This is a new experience for me and one I'll probably never forget," Bell said afterwards. "I've said over and over again we've got a bunch of kids who'll put their hearts on the line." The high point of the game came in the second quarter when Gamecock cornerback Harry Skipper recovered a fumble by Pacific tailback David Brown one yard deep in the USC end zone and returned it the length of the field to make it 21-6. Under National Collegiate Athletic Association rules, the 101-yard run was ruled a 100-yarder. Skipper's charge was a first for USC and tied the NCAA mark for fumble returns.

Peete Wins B.C. Open

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Calvin Peete got his bad play out of the way early en route to his runaway victory in the $275,000 B.C. Open. "My philosophy has always been that if you're going to mess up on a hole, let it be the first. Then you have 17 holes to recover," he said after surviving a double bogey on the first hole Sunday and breezing to a record-breaking 19-under-par 265 and a seven-stroke victory over Jerry Pate. "It sure tightened up on the first hole, but from there on I played well," said Peete, who had a final-round 69, 2 under par. Pate had a double-bogey en route to a 272. Fuzzy Zoeller fell apart even more with three double bogeys and a 273. "The 12th hole was the turning point. Jerry made double bogey and I made birdie," the 39-year-old Peete said. It was Peete's third victory this year and the $49,500 first prize put his 1982 winnings at $281,361, sixth on the money list, just ahead of Pate's $275,341 including the $29,700 for his second here. Craig Stadler, with a final-round 66, finished at 10-under 274. Tom Kite and Mike Brannan tied at 275.

Sherrill was still wearing the same coat and tie he put on Saturday morning, looking none the worse for wear and, as usual, impeccable attired. The man who says he once wanted to be a minister even wears a shirt and tie to practice. "I want things to be neat ... I'd like to see my players wear slacks to class instead of blue jeans," he said. Sherrill was asked if he thought the hordes of media covering his debut had distracted him or his team. "No, I don't," he said, refusing to make excuses. "I think we must have just underrated Boston College somewhat." At 1 a.m., writers began straggling toward the front door of the Sherrill home. "Come back," Sherrill said. "We'll do it again." Then he added, "I mean we'll have the party ... I hope we don't ever do against what we did last night."

Patriots Victory All Part Of Plan

By The Associated Press
New England Coach Ron Meyer says there is method to the Patriots' madness. After losing their first three exhibition games, the Patriots ended preseason play Saturday with a 41-27 victory over Green Bay. The victory came according to plan, as did the losses, Meyer said. "I had told them all along, this was our design," Meyer said. "I wanted to empty our bucket in this game. We knew all along it would be tough sledding the first three games." Meyer's young team took advantage of two interceptions and two fumble recoveries for 24 of its points. Former East Carolina running back Tony Collins rushed for 130 yards and caught a touchdown pass from Matt Cavanaugh in the third quarter after Green Bay had drawn within 24-20. Elsewhere on the final day of National Football League exhibitions, Buffalo defeated Detroit 13-10, Cleveland beat the Los Angeles Raiders 27-10, the Los Angeles Rams downed San Diego 20-14, Baltimore upended Chicago 26-17, Kansas City edged St. Louis 10-6, Pittsburgh beat Philadelphia 27-24, Denver defeated the New York Jets 20-13 and Dallas beat Houston 20-14. On Friday, Tampa Bay shut out Atlanta 34-0, Cincinnati edged Washington 28-21, Miami got by the New York Giants 16-13 in overtime, Minnesota defeated New Orleans 24-21 and San Francisco shaded Seattle 17-13. New England led Green Bay 21-0 after the first quarter. Mose Tatupu recovered a fumble by punt returner

Johnnie Gray and carried it seven yards for the Patriots' first touchdown with 2:40 gone in the first quarter. Seven minutes later, Patriots rookie Ricky Smith scored on a 78-yard interception return. Cavanaugh threw a 25-yard touchdown pass to Preston Brown with 1:16 left in the first quarter. Nick Mike-Mayer kicked two field goals, the second a 25-yarder with 1:35 left to play, boosting Buffalo over the Lions. The Bills, 3-1, scored their only touchdown on an 81-yard reception by Robert Holt, erasing a 10-3 fourth-quarter Detroit lead. The Lions fell to 2-2. Brian Sipe threw three touchdown passes in the first half as Cleveland romped over the Raiders. The Browns, 4-0, led 21-10 at halftime and had two fourth-quarter field goals, of 23 yards by Matt Bahr and 47 yards by Steve Cox. The Raiders finished exhibitions with a 2-2 record. LeRoy Irvin returned a punt 71 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter, enabling the Rams to beat San Diego. Irvin, leading punt returner in the NFL last season, took Maury Buford's punt at the Rams 29, broke through the middle and sprinted the final 40 yards untouched. Nolan Cromwell intercepted three passes for Los Angeles. Both clubs finished preseason at 2-2.

Expos Fell Braves On Error In Ninth

By The Associated Press
Talk about making the most of your hits — you couldn't do any better than the Montreal Expos did against the Atlanta Braves. The Expos were held to one measly hit by Rick Mahler and Gene Garber Sunday, yet managed to pull out a 2-1 victory which astonished the usual unflappable Steve Rogers. "I don't ever remember a game like that," said the Montreal pitcher. "You don't usually plan to win games when your team gets only one hit." Until the Expos won on shortstop Rafael Ramirez's error with two out in the ninth inning, the only run they scored was on a leadoff homer by Al Oliver in the second inning. But in the ninth, Garber, 7-7, hit Andre Dawson with a pitch with one out. Dawson stole second and took third on Oliver's grounder. Gary Carter followed with a grounder to Ramirez, who bobbed the ball and threw late to first as Dawson scored. The Braves protested — to no avail — that Carter was out. "It was evident that Carter was out," said Atlanta first baseman Chris Chambliss. "It wasn't even close. (Umpire Satch) Davidson had made up his mind before the play was over that Carter was safe." Carter, of course, disagreed. He said that first base coach Steve Boros told him that "the ball and I arrived at the same time and Davidson has to give the tie to the runner." Meanwhile, Mahler had no regrets about the gopher pitch he threw to Oliver earlier. "It was a breaking ball," he said. "I didn't hang it and it was where I wanted to throw it. You have to give Oliver credit for hitting it." Rogers, 16-7, fired a six-hitter, including Dale Murphy's RBI single in the seventh. Dodgers 2, Pirates 1 Pittsburgh right fielder Doug Frobel lost Greg Brock's high fly in the sun with one out and the bases loaded in the 10th inning and the ball dropped for a single to give Los Angeles its victory over the Pirates. Ron Roenicke opened the inning with a double off loser Kent Tekulve, 10-8. After Steve Garvey sacrificed, pinch-hitter Jorge Orta was walked intentionally. Rod Scurry replaced Tekulve and intentionally walked pinch-hitter

Candy Maldonado to load the bases. Brock, hitting for winning pitcher Tom Niedenfuer, 3-2, followed with his high fly to right that Frobel let fall. Phillies 4, Astros 3 Mike Schmidt and George Vukovich hit consecutive first-pitch homers off Nolan Ryan in a three-run sixth inning to trigger Philadelphia over Houston. The home-run burst snapped Ryan's six-game personal winning streak and dropped his record to 14-10. Reliever Porfi Altamirano, 3-0, picked up the victory while Ron Reed finished to earn his 10th save. The Astros owned a 3-1 lead with Ryan working on a one-hitter when he walked Gary Matthews with two out in the sixth. Schmidt then smashed his 30th homer to pull the Phillies into a 3-3 tie. Vukovich, who drove in the Phillies' first run in the first inning, followed with his sixth homer of the season. Giants 5, Cardinals 1 Champ Summers' two-out pinch single snapped a 1-1 tie in the bottom of the eighth inning and lifted San Francisco over St. Louis. The loss was costly to the NL East Division-leading Cardinals, who are now only a half-game ahead of the Philadelphia Phillies. Winner Fred Breining, 8-4, and loser John Stuper, 6-5, were hooked in a scoreless game until the sixth when each club scored a run. San Francisco's winning rally started when Darrell Evans lined a two-out double and Milt May was walked intentionally. Summers, batting for shortstop Joe Pettini, then singled for the go-ahead. The Giants added a second run in the inning on a bases-loaded walk to Jeff Leonard and two more on Joe Morgan's double. Cubs 5, Padres 1 Keith Moreland's two-run homer highlighted a four-run fifth as Chicago beat San Diego on the combined seven-hitter of Randy Martz and three relievers.

Martz, 9-8, pitched into the sixth before needing relief help from Mike Proly, Willie Hernandez and Lee Smith. Padre starter Dave Dravecky, 4-2, gave up all five runs in 4 1/3 innings. Mets 10, Reds 2 Ellis Valentine's three-run homer keyed a seven-run second, Dave Kingman added a solo shot and Bruce Bochy drove in four runs as New York trounced Cincinnati. Kingman, who now lead the NL with 33 home runs, led off the second with a single. Bochy later singled home two runs, another run scored when Bob Shirley, 6-11, threw pitcher Ed Lynch's sacrifice bunt into right field, and Bob Bailor hit a sacrifice fly before Valentine hit his eighth homer of the year. Lynch 3-6, pitched six innings. Jessie Orosco finished up for second save.

to its first national championship. Last year, the Bulldogs committed nine turnovers and Walker was held to 111 yards, his regular-season low, as the Tigers prevailed 13-3 and went on to their first title. "This will no doubt be the biggest challenge we've had in quite a while," says Dooley. "Clemson is the defending national champion and they have the majority of their starters back. Their defense is back in quantity and quality in players like (All-American) safety Terry Kinard. And on offense, they have the entire backfield, including senior quarterback Homer Jordan, who led them to the national championship."

Organizers Begin Dismantle US Festival Scene

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer
SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — Workers began dismantling a makeshift desert city as thousands of music fans headed for the freeways after three days of sun, smog, and rock 'n' roll at the US Festival, a combination concert and computer show. The exodus began Sunday and continued throughout Fleetwood Mac's closing performance at the 57-acre amphitheater in Glen Helen Regional Park. The audience peaked Saturday at an estimated 175,000 people.

Apple computer creator Steve Wozniak, who conceived and funded the $12.5 million festival, declared his brainchild a success before a cheering crowd jammed Sunday into an exhibit tent.

"By the first night, we were definitely successful," said Wozniak, smiling and tossing an apple in the air.

Later, he introduced Jerry Jeff Walker, who rounded out the final day's easy rock agenda of Jimmy Buffett, Jackson Browne and the Grateful Dead.

"I've been out talking to thousands of people," said Wozniak, who plans to stage another concert. "People out there are enjoying this event."

Computer exhibitor Brad McMillan, president of the infant Visionary Electronics Inc., said he was thrilled about the festival's outcome.

"It's been fantastic for us," he said. "We've made a lot of contacts — not to mention the music."

He said the event gave him a chance to show his computer message system to other computer company representatives. Most of the computer exhibitors said they were interested in contacts they could make at the festival.

"I felt like I was part of history," said 19-year-old Cindy Sloan of Martinez, who showed up Thursday to sell hot dogs at a concession stand. "It's like a country here right now. It's going to be weird returning to the outside world."

The music Sunday began at 9:30 a.m. with the Dead playing to 60,000 enthusiastic concert-goers against a backdrop of the San Bernardino mountains and a hot air balloon adorned with the rainbow-striped apple logo of Apple Inc.

An estimated 40,000 others packed two huge beer gardens, wandered the grounds and lounged in air-conditioned tents where the technology exhibits were on display.

"I liked everything about it, except being physically uncomfortable," said the Grateful Dead's lead guitarist, Jerry Garcia. "The feeling is good, the crowd is good."

Temperatures topped 100 each day of the event, prompting festival-goers to seek refuge in patches of shade, under open-air showers and near cement water fountains. A three-day ticket cost $37.50.

The dusty 500-acre desert site was blotched with mud and trash, despite regular garbage pick-ups and more than 4,000 trash containers scattered around the grounds.

By Sunday, festival medical crews had received 2,050 patients, with ailments ranging from heat exhaustion to overdoses of drugs and alcohol. Only 67 had to be taken to neighboring hospitals.

Festival security chief Stan Kephart estimated that Friday's crowd of 100,000 climbed to 175,000 Saturday, which featured 14 hours of mainstream rock by Tom Petty, Pat Benatar, the Kinks, the Cars, Santana, Eddie Money and Dave Edmunds.

San Bernardino County Sheriff's Capt. Robert Ault said despite its size, the crowd was well-behaved.

"This has been an awfully orderly crew, as compared to some festivals," Ault said. "We were braced for whatever, and it's really turned out to be a pleasant thing."

Sheriff's deputy Al Barnett reported about 28 arrests through Sunday for infractions ranging from assault to auto theft.

"The only thing that was a little unusual was two arrests for stolen or forged tickets," he said, adding that 91 tickets and some cocaine were confiscated.

The sole festival-related death occurred Thursday when a car en route to the event was hit in the rear on Interstate 15, killing a Santa Rosa man.

Actresses And Producer Injured In California Traffic Collision

By PETE JACOBS
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Oscar-winning actress Janet Gaynor was in critical condition and undergoing surgery early today after a taxi accident that also injured Broadway star Mary Martin and killed Miss Martin's manager, Ben Washer, authorities said.

Producer Paul Gregory, Miss Gaynor's husband, also suffered serious injuries in the Sunday night accident, said police and hospital officials.

Police said a van slammed broadside into a taxicab carrying the four to dinner at about 7:30 p.m. The van driver was later charged with drunken driving.

Miss Gaynor suffered severe chest injuries, multiple rib fractures, internal injuries and a severe pelvic fracture, said Leslie Lingaas, spokeswoman for San Francisco General Hospital.

"She's 75, so she's an elderly woman to have such severe injuries," said Ms. Lingaas. Miss Gaynor went into surgery at 10:10 p.m. and remained there for more than three hours.

Miss Martin, 68, who cap-titivated a generation of children with her portrayal of Peter Pan on Broadway and television in the 1950s, was listed in serious but stable condition with several broken ribs, a collapsed lung and a pelvic fracture.

"At this point, she's not expected to require surgery," said Ms. Lingaas.

Gregory, 62, an award-winning Broadway and film producer, was listed in serious condition with broken legs.

The taxi, driven by 46-year-old Ronald Drury, was struck as it crossed an intersection and was pushed over a curb and into a tree, said Sgt. Jim Long. Drury received minor injuries.

The van's driver, Robert Cato, 36, and a passenger also received minor injuries.

Cato was being held in the San Francisco jail on charges of vehicular manslaughter, felony reckless driver, speeding, felony drunken driving, speeding and running a red light, said Sgt. John Madden.

In 1928, Miss Gaynor won the first Academy Award for best actress for her role opposite Charles Farrell in "Seventh Heaven." She also appeared in such films as "Street Angel," "State Fair," "High Society Blues," the original "A Star is Born" and "Daddy Longlegs."

She married Gregory in 1964. Her first husband, dress designer Gilbert Adrian, died in 1959.

Miss Martin, now co-host of the show "Over Easy" on public television station KQED in San Francisco, won three Tonys and three New York Drama Critics Polls for her theater work, as well as an Emmy award for the 1955 television production of "Peter Pan."

She also performed on stage in "South Pacific" and "Annie Get Your Gun," among others. Her legal name is Mary Halliday.

Miss Gaynor and Gregory had appeared with Miss Martin last week on a taping of the "Over Easy" program, said producer Jules Power. All three have homes in Palm Springs, Calif.

Two TV Sets In Each Home

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has become the first country with enough television sets in use that it could put two in each of its 82.3 million households.

The Television Factbook, published annually by Television Digest Inc., reports this week there are now approximately 170.8 million TV sets in the U.S., compared to 162.5 million in 1981.

With the Census Bureau estimating the nation's population of 230.9 million is divided among 82.3 million households, that translates to 2.075 TV sets per household — far more than any other nation.

FOCUS

What If...?
Often history is determined as much by what didn't happen as what did. This week marks the 208th anniversary of the First Continental Congress. All North American colonies were invited, including Canada. What if Canada had joined the Congress and the revolution that followed? Would there be one nation today, the world's largest, reaching from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic Circle? The United Canadian States of America could have been the most energy self-sufficient nation on Earth. Together our two nations produce more oil each year than Saudi Arabia. But Canada did not attend the Congress, and, when the revolution began, it remained loyal to Britain.

DO YOU KNOW — Which of the 13 colonies sent no delegates to the 1st Continental Congress?
FRIDAY'S ANSWER — In 1954 the Supreme Court said segregated schools were unconstitutional.

Seven-Year-Old Is Hurt In Dog Attack

CHERRYVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A 7-year-old Cherryville boy was resting quietly at home after a 150-pound St. Bernard attacked him, the second-grader's father said.

Steven Sanders received severe facial and head lacerations in his encounter with the dog, which was chained in a neighbor's yard, authorities said.

"It took them about 1½ hours to sew him up," his father, Jerry Sanders, said after his son was treated at Lincoln County Hospital on Saturday. "Some of the cuts were so deep they had to make stitches on the inside and out."

Jim Taylor, owner of the dog, said two of his daughters, ages 9 and 5, the Sanders youth and his 11-year-old brother, Richard, apparently were playing in Taylor's yard near the dog when the incident happened Saturday evening.

"I had my dog chained up," Taylor said. "My girl said he was just petting him, and he bit him."

Jerry Sanders said he heard his son screaming and ran across the street to Taylor's house, where he saw his son Richard holding Steven away from the dog, named "Butch."

Sanders said he carried his son home, where they waited for an ambulance to arrive.

Gaston County animal control officer Boyce Ferguson said Taylor will not be cited for any violations, because the dog was chained. Ferguson said he doesn't know if the children provoked the dog before it bit the Sanders youth.

Taylor said he and his wife have requested the dog be destroyed after a 10-day observation to determine if it has rabies. The dog was impounded immediately after the attack.

County Extension Chairman

Scouting Soybeans for insects can be done simply and quickly, and can be combined with monitoring activities for other pests (i.e. weeds, nematodes).

SCOUTING FOR POD FEEDERS - This procedure is used for corn earworms and stinkbugs. Beginning with the corn earworm moth flight (late July, early August) or when blooming is declining, samples should be taken with a beat-cloth (a three by three foot cloth on parallel sticks). Soybeans at each sample site are cautiously approached, bent over the cloth (one row at a time), and struck with the forearm and hand to dislodge the insects (beating too hard will propel caterpillars away from the sheet). Count only corn earworms and stinkbugs, not predators and foliage feeders. Emphasis should be placed on small corn earworms (fourth inch to half inch) for which early detection is very important. Insect counts from each sample (six row feet) are recorded and the average number of worms per row foot is calculated for each field and compared to each threshold.

To determine when the earworm moth flight from corn is occurring (when to start the beat sampling) several techniques may be used. A black light trap can be successfully used to monitor moth flights. Also, various sources of extension information, especially the Fields Crop Pest Alert System, may be used (see your county agent).

SCOUTING FOR FOLIAGE FEEDERS - Soybeans should be scouted every two weeks from the two-trifoliate leaf stage until mid-July, and weekly from then until the pods are large. If foliage feeding insects appear to be approaching threshold levels while on a two-week scouting schedule, change to a one-week schedule. At each sample site visual estimates of defoliation are made by examining plants in approximately a 20 foot circle. Plant defoliation is scored as less than 10 percent at 5 percent increments up to 40 percent (e.g. 15 percent, 20 percent, etc.); and then in 10 percent increments (50 percent and above). Defoliation estimates from each sample site are recorded and the average of all samples from a field should be compared to the appropriate threshold. Visual estimations can be made accurately and rapidly if the scout strives to develop mental images of several defoliation stages. This "calibration" is done by choosing individual damaged plants, making an initial estimate of overall damage and then picking off and scoring each leaflet. The average of the leaflet scores will be the whole plant score and is compared to the initial estimates. If this is done a few times, mental images can be developed. When damage is approaching or at threshold the insect(s) responsible should be carefully identified.

SCOUTING PATTERNS AND SAMPLE NUMBERS - The objective of scouting is to gain information which accurately represents the true pest level in each field. Scouting patterns should cover the major portion of the field and should be altered on successive scoutings. The patterns should avoid the immediate field margins and weak spots. Usually a zig-zag (when plants are small) or "u" shaped (when plants are large) pattern works well.

FLYING MANTA RAY - The lighter-than-air (LTA) transport is the new generation blimp, according to the September "Omni" magazine. Ottawa inventor Frederick Ferguson of the Van Dusen Development Canada, Ltd. Company, has already built and flown this 20-foot-diameter prototype. The 180-foot full-scale model, the inventor says, should be able to haul up to 80 tons, four times as much as the largest helicopters, and do it for a tenth of the cost. (AP Laserphoto)

GOREN BRIDGE

AND OMAR SHARIF

Q.1 - As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AK74 ♥A93 ♦6 ♠AK873
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A. - It is true that, including distribution, your hand is worth 20 points, but one principle of evaluation is that you shouldn't count two points for the singleton in partner's bid suit. And despite your 18 high-card points, your hand lacks body and is full of losers. Bid one spade. If partner can't act voluntarily over your simple rebid, it's unlikely that you can make a game.

Q.2 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦6 ♥A954 ♦QJ92 ♠K1073
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♥
3 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. - Partner's jump rebid on a broken trump suit has made your hand look much more impressive. Now is the time to be slam-conscious, and we suggest you make your move as early as possible. To set the trump suit by raising four clubs is uneconomical - the bidding will get too high. Best by far is the immediate cue-bid of three hearts.

Q.3 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦8 ♥AQJ92 ♦AJ3 ♠AQJ9
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
4 ♥ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. - Even though partner passed originally and showed no enthusiasm after your club cue-bid, your hand is too good to throw in the towel. We suggest one more try - a cue-bid of five diamonds. With the king of hearts and key cards in your minor suits, partner will know that he has the right hand for slam. After all, you are unlikely to have two losing spades and still be probing for slam when partner could do no more than sign off after your first cue-bid.

Q.4 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KJ763 ♥AQ82 ♦92 ♠74
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 NT Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?
What do you bid now?
A. - With your mildly unbalanced hand, you should still explore for a suit contract. Jump to three spades. That confirms a five-card spade suit and asks partner to raise your suit to game if he has three-card support. If he persists with three no trump, pass - he is telling you that he has only a doubleton spade.

Q.5 - Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQJ93 ♥6 ♦K1095 ♠854
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♥ 1 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?
What action do you take?
A. - This one is close. In view of partner's jump raise, your hand is certainly the equivalent of a full opening bid. And the fact that the opponents have bid hearts - your short suit - suggests that all of partner's points could be working. We think that you have just enough to offer a reasonable chance to make four spades, so we would go on to game. But we don't blame you if you took the more conservative approach and passed. Knowledge of partner's proclivities is the key here.

Q.6 - Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦92 ♥J76 ♦KJ10854 ♠103
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass Pass 2 ♥
Dble 3 ♥ ?
What action do you take?
A. - True, you have very little, but partner already knows that - after all, you couldn't respond to his opening bid. Nevertheless, he did invite you to bid with his double and he doesn't know that you have a fair six-card suit. Therefore, we suggest you bid four diamonds - that is only one level higher than you would have had to go had East stayed out of the auction.

Overcharging

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal investigators say overcharging for heart pacemakers purchased under Medicare may be boosting the cost of the federal program by $200 million a year.

The inspector general of the Health and Human Services Department has submitted a report on the matter to Secretary Richard Schweiker, the Washington Post reported Sunday. The FBI has also been asked to look into the case, the newspaper said.

Medicare pays for 80 percent of the estimated 130,000 annual pacemaker implants in the United States. The operation usually costs about $7,300.

The report found that Medicare has been paying an average of 17.26 percent over the average price for pacemakers.

HHS officials refused to offer details of the report, but they said it contained reprinted portions of a Medical World News article of Sept. 1 quoting observers as saying pacemaker manufacturers had given doctors kickbacks, discounts and other favors in return for business.

Speaking of Your Health... Aids for the Disabled

My son was paralyzed after a diving accident six months ago. We are seeking to give him every conceivable advantage so he can sustain himself and still have a semblance of a dignified life. We do not want to leave a stone unturned in trying to help him. Are there special reference libraries that might be available to us?
- Mr. & Mrs. R.T.Y., Md.
Dear Mr. & Mrs. Y.:

The first thought that occurs to me when the subject of rehabilitation is mentioned is the name Dr. Howard Rusk. This humanitarian giant stands out for his innumerable contributions to the victims of paralysis, stroke and physical incapacitation. Dr. Howard Rusk recognized a challenge and then pointed his educational talents at a target and with magnificent dedication attained a goal. That goal was the rehabilitation of human beings who at first might have been relegated to discard in our social structure.

Dr. Rusk and his colleagues are probably the greatest source of material for the disabled. Their institute, a part of the New York University Medical Center, can direct everyone with specialized problems to a rehabilitation program.

Recently a remarkable book came to my attention. It is called "A Catalogue of Aids for the Disabled." It is written by Nancy and Jack Kreisler and is published by the McGraw-Hill Book Company. In the preface to this excellent book they say, "No one knows exactly how many people in the United States are physically disabled. Government figures vary from 35 to 50 million. Now, approximately one out of every two households in the United States is affected and involved to some degree with a disabled person. Nancy Kreisler is one of those disabled."

"It is surprising how little is known about what aids are available and where they can be obtained. There are aids for almost every kind of problem if people only knew where to find them."

Hundreds of remarkable devices are illustrated in this book. Naming only a few will give an indication of how much energy is poured into the concept of rehabilitation by those who are actively in-

involved in this most rewarding specialty of medicine.

Folding back rests, mattress raisers, bed rails, TV viewers for bedridden patients, flotation mattresses, bed trays, air purifiers, long-handled back brushes, wheelchair bathrooms, lift seats in the bathtub, bath benches, hydraulic bath lifts, leg exercisers, foot massages, safety rails, shoe removers, stocking aids, kitchen devices, cutting boards, can openers and cordless juicers are but a few of the devices that are included in this book.

For those who have difficulty feeding themselves, specially created aids made to facilitate easier eating have been devised. Utensils of all kinds with special angulations fit individual needs.

Wheelchairs with a vast array of built-in conveniences are available. Safety devices such as canes and flashlights and walking aids are all aimed at comfort and convenience for the handicapped.

There are dozens of other devices. Each was thoughtfully considered to fill a need.

The handicapped are a courageous group. When deprived of their functioning capacity, they call on their inner reserve in an effort to find personal dignity and independence.

Ten-Year-Old Ban Is Revoked

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration has revoked a 10-year-old government ban on the use of gasoline nozzle lock-open devices for people using self-service pumps at gas stations.

The rule, described by Assistant Labor Secretary Thorne G. Aucther as "a nuisance to millions of American motorists," was scheduled to be officially stripped from the books today with a final revocation notice published in the Federal Register.

Aucther, who heads the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, said "public comments strongly supported our proposal to permit the use of these devices at the discretion of service station owners."

Schools Have Yet To Get Federal Aid To Students

By KEN KLEIN
Associated Press Writer
TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Thousands of needy college students are being told by university officials they may have to survive the first several months of this school year without any federal student aid.

The reason: The schools have yet to receive $580 million in federal aid allocations held up while Congress and the Reagan administration wrangled over new rules governing the funds.

In past years, students have known in advance how much money they could count on. This year, however, allocations have been delayed by as much as four months because the federal government was slow in publishing new rules governing student aid.

What that now means, say financial aid officers, is that many pupils may have to rely for the next several months on money they've saved from summer jobs, or get help from their parents, to pay their tuition, rent, and other living expenses.

Some schools are trying to help their students.

The University of Pennsylvania is pitching in $2 million to keep its student-aid program financed — in anticipation of being repaid by Washington later this fall.

At the University of Connecticut, students can apply for two-week loans up to $250. Fees for several thousand Connecticut students will be deferred temporarily, says the university budget director.

Florida State University is offering students short-term loans. When financial aid arrives from Washington, the amount of the loans would simply be subtracted, interest free.

At Florida International University, Registrar Bill Younkin says up to 4,000 students could be eligible for 60-day fee waivers.

But there is deep concern that the federal student loan delays, combined with recession and cuts in federal aid, will discourage some young people from attending college this year.

"We don't know how many basket cases we'll have," says Ed Marsh, student aid director at Florida State.

At the University of Florida, financial aid director Douglas Turner says, "I'm concerned we've probably lost 400 to 500 students who didn't come because of the funding hold-up." The school agreed to defer through October tuition payments of 10,000 students whose federal tuition aid is being delayed.

After next month, however, such deferments will be much harder to grant, says Turner. And he says that's when he fears real trouble for students who find their own resources depleted.

"What we did, knowing that this was coming, was inundate our students with warnings. We told them to channel their money into the first part of the school year. But for the poorer families who can't do that, this will be a very difficult time," says Turner.

"The whole system is in tilt," says Dallas Martin, executive director of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Federal officials don't know how many parents and students will be affected by the delays, which vary from campus to campus.

The current aid slowdown is due to a variety of problems in Washington:

—The Education Department waited until Aug. 2 to publish rules for the $1 billion campus-based aid programs, including National Direct Student Loans, Work-Study and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants. Early that month, half the Work-Study and Supplemental Grant money was doled out to colleges, but the Education Department must allow Congress 45 working days to challenge those rules.

—Among the rules Congress could challenge is one which bars additional funds for 400 colleges with high rates of defaulted student loans. It could also question a new requirement that 1.8 million students applying for federal Pell Grants bring their parents' income tax returns to college aid offices to make sure they reported all family income.

—It not known how large the Pell Grants, which are outright gifts of money to needy students, will be this year. Congress has appropriated $2.3 billion for the program, but it put in an additional $140 million in a bill that Reagan vetoed Aug. 28. If Congress overrides the veto, the maximum grant for neediest students would be $1,800 instead of $1,674.

"That's only $126, but it's $126 that might make the difference between registering and not registering for a student from a poor family," says William Blakey, counsel to the House subcommittee on postsecondary education.

—The new formulas for distributing student aid under the Guaranteed Student Loan program were not released to colleges until the first week in July — about three months later than usual.

Some education lobbyists have voiced suspicions about whether the delays were really an expression of the Reagan administration's hostility to student loan programs.

"Who knows whether it's deliberate obstruction and delay by the administration...or whether it's just the usual bureaucratic foul-ups?" says Lawrence Gladioux, director of the College Board's Washington office.

Jim Moore, director of student financial assistance programs at the Education Department, denies the delays were intentional. "It's just a set of glitches in the legislative-executive system that we didn't anticipate in the spring."

Build Their Own Radio Station

WASHINGTON (AP) — Instead of waiting for the government to start Radio Marti, two American broadcasters have begun building their own station to beam news, music and chit-chat to Cuba.

William J. Kitchen and James E. Slaughter, owners of the Quality Media Corp. of Columbus, Ga., are building three new radio stations on South Caicos Island in the Caribbean, about 300 miles from Cuba.

Not only do they believe they can provide a service to the Cuban people, they think they will make money.

One of their new stations, they have decided, will undertake the mission of Radio Marti — the controversial station the administration wants to build to broadcast uncensored news to Cubans.

REPAIRS FINISHED
TOKYO (AP) — The Mutsu, Japan's first and only nuclear-powered ship, returned today to its home port in Ohminato in northern Japan after four years of repairs, a Maritime Safety Agency spokesman said.
