Looking Down

IT'S A LONG WAY DOWN — It might make you a little dizzy to look at this photo, especially if heights aren't your "thing." The photo was made from the 1,845 foot level of the WNCT/WITN television tower at Grifton looking straight down. The tower has an elevator for workers to get to the top for working on the television and FM antennas, which are, to the tip of the television antennas, at 2,000 feet. On a clear day the Outer Banks, Texasgulf, New Bern and the Inland Waterway can be seen. The tube structures at the top of the photo are the transmission line for television and FM radio. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Justice Asked Head Inquiry Of Massacre

By KATE DORIAN
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A vanguard of 350 French troopers arrived in Beirut today, spearheading the re-entry of American, French and Italian peacekeepers to shield weary residents from further bloodshed.

In Jerusalem, the Israeli government — bowing to waves of public protest — decided today to ask the Israeli chief justice to investigate last week's Beirut massacre of Palestinian refugees. But the justice, Yitzhak Kahan, reportedly delayed immediate acceptance of the post.

The Israeli government's decision came amid new reports that its army knew about the carnage by Israeli-backed Christian militiamen, one day before Defense Minister Ariel Sharon claimed it knew.

The confirmed toll from the massacre mounted.

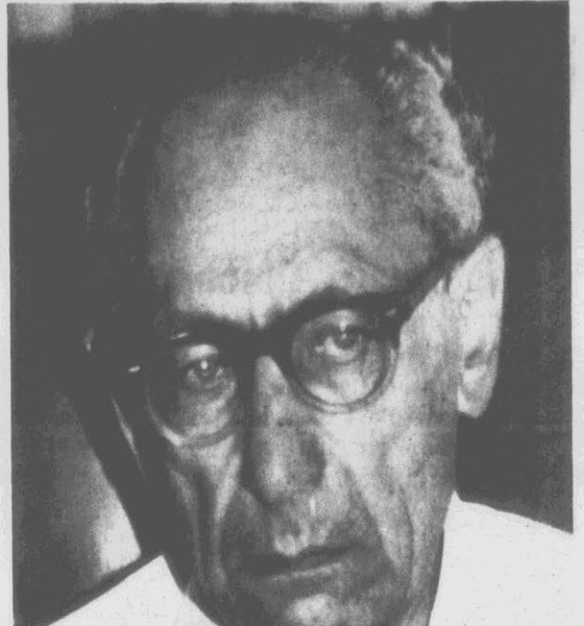

Relief workers reported discovering 16 bodies today in a mass grave inside a sports stadium near the Chatilla refugee camp, bringing the number of bodies recovered to 314.

The precise toll from the massacre may never be known.

"They (bodies) have been thrown into holes and bulldozed over (by the killers) so it's impossible to have a number," International Red Cross spokesman Jean-Jacques Kurz said Thursday.

"There will never be a figure. One has to guess."

Some diplomats and members of the crews that conducted the search for bodies have estimated the toll was between 500 and 1,000.

Lebanese state and private radio stations said newly installed President Amin Gemayel took personal charge of the peacekeeping forces. The radios said Gemayel summoned the U.S., French and Italian ambassadors and their military aides and informed them.

Meanwhile, Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan, a Moslem, submitted the resignations of his 35-month old government to Gemayel. The state radio said Gemayel asked Wazzan to remain until a new Cabinet is formed.

The resignation had been expected under terms of Lebanon's constitution, which mandates the resignation of the government to allow a new president a free hand in appointing his own team. There was no indication whom Gemayel would choose.

French Ambassador Paul Marc Henry, at the port to oversee the arrival of the French troop transport Argens, told reporters the French paratroopers and infantrymen would not be deployed in Moslem west Beirut until the peacekeeping force is brought to its full strength of 3,000 men over the weekend.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto said the American contingent of 800 U.S. Marines was due here Saturday. They will be joining French and Italian units of 1,100 men each.

Catto said the Marines will be ordered to fight in self-defense if necessary, unlike their last assignment here when the Americans had orders to withdraw if fired upon.

The Americans, French and Italians sent troops last month to supervise the evacuation of Palestine Liberation Organization guerrillas from west Beirut under an agreement negotiated by U.S. presidential envoy Philip C. Habib. The peacekeepers were ordered back to Beirut in the wake of the bloody massacre of Palestinian refugees at the Sabra and Chatilla camps.

Israel, which controlled the perimeter of the camps after invading west Beirut last week, blamed Christian Phalangist militiamen for the slaughter which has provoked world outrage. Prime Minister Menachem Begin's refusal to conduct an immediate inquiry ignited a wave of criticism among his countrymen and demands that his government resign.

Slowing Inflation Rate Hailed

By The Associated Press

The report that inflation slowed to a 3.3 percent annual pace last month is evidence that the economy is recovering from recession, Treasury Secretary Donald Regan says.

Regan said the figures showed "we're on the road to a sound recovery," and that the financial community should be convinced that soaring inflation will not soon return.

"For my friends in the financial markets, this is one more stake in the heart of inflationary expectations," he said Thursday.

Wall Street did not react greatly to the news. Stock prices fell modestly while bond prices edged slightly higher. Interest rates dipped a bit.

The Commerce Department reported Thursday that inflation, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, slowed last month to 0.3 percent, or a yearly rate of 3.3 percent. At the same time, the Labor Department said Americans' average weekly earnings, after adjusting for inflation, rose 0.1 percent in August after falling 0.2 percent in July.

But for the 12 months ending in August, inflation still managed to outstrip those earnings. The report said average weekly earnings in August were 1.3 percent below what they were in the same month of 1981.

In its report on inflation, the Commerce Department said the 0.3 percent increase in August compared with rises of 0.6 percent in July and 1 percent in May and June.

If prices rose for 12 months at August's rate, the yearly advance would be 3.3 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation than the individual monthly figures the department makes public.

For the 12 months ended in August, prices rose 5.9 percent, the department said.

The consumer inflation rate was 8.9 percent last year and 12.4 percent in 1980.

The main reasons for August's slow pace were a 0.1 percent decline posted for gasoline prices, and a 0.3 percent fall in food costs.

Despite the favorable news on prices, the Labor Department offered some troublesome figures on unemployment.

The department said that for a fifth straight week, more than 600,000 jobless people filed first-time claims for state insurance benefits, a worrisome sign of continued rises in unemployment.

The auto industry, where unemployment is particularly severe, reported

Modular Classrooms To Help Ease PCC's Growing Pains

Pitt Community College's growing pains were alleviated somewhat Thursday with the addition of the first of three modular classrooms for its crowded nursing education program.

The modular structures, each of which contains 1,344 square feet of space, will enable the college to maintain its nursing program at the current level, college spokesmen said.

PCC trustees, meeting on the campus Thursday, were told by President William E. Fulford Jr. that curriculum enrollment was continuing to grow — up 7 percent for this year's fall quarter over the same period last year. Most of the growth, Fulford said, was in the field of technical study.

The modular structures, purchased from Harrington Manufacturing Co. of Lewiston for about $70,000, are included in a $100,000 building expansion program approved by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners at the college. The PCC board approved a resolution expressing appreciation for the appropriation.

W.C. Everett Sr., who was re-elected Thursday as trustee chairman, told the PCC board he has directed Fulford to determine the feasibility of discontinuing any programs now offered by the college. If such a program is dropped, Everett said the space could be converted to high-priority programs.

The board also re-elected its vice chairman, Kay V. Whichard, and secretary, Mary Langston, to new one-year terms.

In other matters, the board:

— Formally adopted a unified budget resolution, fixed at $6,005,906, for state, county, federal and institutional funds.

— Adopted a motion declaring as surplus property a passive solar house built by PCC students and asking the state to sell the structure at public auction.

— Awarded the low bid of $55,081 for a new telephone system to Business Communications of Cary.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

RESTORATION DONATIONS ASKED

The restorers of the James L. Fleming house at the corner of Third and Greene streets, to be used by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce as an office, have asked Hotline to appeal for participation by the public in the restoration through the donation of period furniture for the house.

Among the items being sought are the following: an Oriental rug approximately 6x9 feet, a Victorian-style sofa, Louis XV chairs, a round pedestal table with four chairs, wicker furniture, embroidered firescreens, Victorian hassocks and ottoman, a grandfather clock, a nest of tables, marble-top tables, pedestals and plant stands, a chest of drawers, a Victorian ice cream table and chairs, statues by Blackamoore, and some fine art works (antique and contemporary).

Donations will be tax-deductible and may be made by contacting interior designer Judy Morgan, 756-4289, or Kay Whitehurst, 756-4181. The restoration committee will take care of any refinishing or reupholstering needed for any piece donated.

Vice Chairman In Pitt Drive

Gene Parker has been named vice chairman of the industrial, commercial and service divisions of the 1982 Pitt County United Way campaign, according to organization officials.

Parker is industrial relations-warehouse and shipping operations manager of Procter and Gamble in Greenville.

He graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1965 with a B.S. degree in engineering. He served four and one-half years in the U.S. Army in Germany, Korea and Fort Still, Okla. While in Oklahoma he received a master's degree in business administration.

Parker serves as chairman of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Leadership Program Task Force. He served on the Economic Education Committee of the PGCC for three years and was chairman in 1981. He is a member of the advisory board for the Greenville City Schools Adopt-A-School Program and is treasurer of Holy Trinity United Methodist Church.

Parker is married and has four children.

Goals Left: To Fly And Water Tower

By GUY COATES
Associated Press Writer
ST. FRANCISVILLE, La. (AP) — Mayor Marie Wenger is a Yankee in an antebellum town that still talks about those folks in an unkind way.

But, at 66, the acknowledged outsider is too busy to worry about that. And, the people apparently have made an exception in her case since she's been mayor for 10 years, re-elected twice, once without opposition.

Tall, slender and full of humor, she's captivated the people.

Mayor Wenger has only two goals left: continue her flying lessons and get a new water tower for this south Louisiana town of 3,000.

The population figure is still a sore point, causing the twinkle in her eyes to turn steely.

"In the 1980 census they said we had 1,400," she said. "Well, we had 1,400 registered voters. I guess they figure we don't have any children here. I think we have about 3,000."

Mrs. Wenger moved to St. Francisville 27 years ago when her husband was transferred from the Pacific Coast by his timber company.

"If your grandparents and theirs weren't born here, you're always a newcomer, even if you live here all your life," she said of the town where moss and the past hang heavy from ancient oaks.

Down the street from the small, modern city hall is the site of the old court house that was bombarded in the Civil War.

Tales of Confederate grey are still told, reinforced by area mansions that were around then — and even before.

When you're a new family with roots on the East Coast and the West Coast, things can be tough. "Why, we tried to buy a piece of land for years but no one would sell us any. The doors were shut in our face," the mayor said with a laugh.

The Wengers still live in the small house built years ago by the timber company for its employees.

There's no malice in those memories and the people here — pulled into the 20th Century not so long ago — apparently realize that.

"At first, I was a novelty and a joke," she said of her first campaign.

Mrs. Wenger had done some volunteer work for the city government and then worked as town clerk before her husband, Jim, talked her into running for office.

She's been re-elected twice and doesn't think she'll run again in 1984.

"I've got to stay active. Maybe you think it's silly but I just love to fly. Jim had an airplane when we first met, one of those open cockpit jobs. Well, I was almost ready to solo when he cracked up the plane."

She also wants that new water tower and admits that it will be difficult to leave office once the goal is accomplished.

"There have been fun times and quite a few tricks were played on me at first that I'm still teased about. Now, I wasn't any novice from a nunnery but I can remember one trick in particular.

"We were having all kinds of trouble with dogs and leashing. We will always have dog trouble. Well, this woman came in and said she wanted a license for a cat house. My gosh, I told her we already had too many problems with dogs and what did she want a damn cat house for.

"I'll never live that down. I came from some rough mill towns and know about red light districts. I knew some girls who worked in those places, working their way through the University of Washington.

But we never called them cat houses."

The times are changing in St. Francisville as mammoth construction of a nuclear power plant casts shadows on the antebellum homes "but there's still an old guard," she said. "I once wanted one of those old homes so bad, so bad. But, that was a long time ago."

Women To Visit In Capitol City

Twenty-five members of District 15 of the GFWC/North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs will visit in Washington, D.C. Oct. 2.

They will visit the GFWC International Headquarters. They will be part of a group of some 300 North Carolina women who will here during the weekend.

They are coming at the invitation of Juanita M. Bryant, international president of GFWC, of Booneville and Raleigh, N.C.

From 1977 to 1982 in North Carolina, Mrs. Bryant served as executive director of Leadership Development for Women having been appointed by Governor James B. Hunt Jr. In 1970, when she was named chairman of the State Youth Advisory Board, she was the first woman in the state appointed to chair a state board. She has been a member of the GFWC Board of Directors for 14 years.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor
CHICKEN CHILI
OPEN SANDWICHES

We devised this new combination and tasters applauded.

1 1/2 cups (chopped medium-fine and slightly packed down) boned and skinned cooked chicken
4-ounce can chopped green chilies, drained
1/4 cup mayonnaise
6 slices bread

Monterey Jack cheese, thinly sliced
Mix together chicken, chilies and mayonnaise — 1 1/2 cups. Lightly toast bread. Spread one side of each slice of toast with 1/4 cup of the chicken mixture. Top with cheese, making sure it covers chicken mixture and edges of toast. Broil until hot through and cheese melts. Cut each slice into 2 triangles. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings — 3 triangles per portion.

DIET CUSTARD

A low-calorie and low-cholesterol dessert.
4 large egg whites
1/4 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 1/2 cups milk
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
In a medium bowl, with a fork, beat egg whites until slightly foamy; add sugar and vanilla and fork-beat gently to blend. Gradually stir in milk. If very foamy, let stand until foam subsides. Pour into four 6-ounce custard cups. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Place cups in an 8 by 8 by 2-inch pan. Pour 3 cups cold tap water into the pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a knife inserted halfway between rim and center comes out clean — 50 to 60 minutes. Remove cups from pan; rinse pan in cold water. Return cups to pan; add 3 cups cold water to pan to cool custard quickly, changing water as necessary. Cover and chill. Serve in cups. Makes 4 servings.

CAPER EGGS

My Kentucky neighbor, Jean Verral, delights her guests with these.

CAPER EGGS
4 large eggs
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons well drained capers
Hard-cook eggs, shell and halve lengthwise. Remove yolks and mash with mayonnaise and Worcestershire; stir in capers; pile back into egg-white cavities. Cover and chill. Makes 4 servings.

Take A Gift And Make Request

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last year my young daughter and her girlfriend decided to exchange Christmas gifts. I thought they would exchange some inexpensive little gifts. Well, without my knowledge, my daughter took a gold chain with a religious medal out of my drawer, wrapped it and gave it to her friend. Abby, it was my mother's — she had given it to me just before she died.

Needless to say, I was heartsick. I finally got the courage to phone the girl's mother. I offered to buy her something else if she would return the chain and medal. (It really wasn't all that expensive, but it means so much to me.) She said she'd return it, but she never did.

When I see her on the street she turns away from me. Abby, if you have space in your column, please print this. Maybe she will see it, and realize how much this means to me. No names, please, as this is a small town. Thank you.
HEAVYHEARTED

DEAR HEAVY: And what if she doesn't see it? Please don't agonize over this any longer. Take her a little gift and ask her to please return the chain and medal.

DEAR ABBY: Re the 52-year-old divorced male who contracted gonorrhea from a 44-year-old divorcee who swore she had not been intimate with anyone since she left her husband 15 months previously. It is possible that she was telling the truth, and you were right to advise the man to give her the benefit of the doubt.

Moreover, this situation is not peculiar to our times, as was illustrated in a case involving James Boswell, the biographer of Samuel Johnson. In 1763 Boswell acquired the second of his many gonococcal infections after an amorous affair with a well-known leading actress of the London stage. Like your correspondent, Boswell refused to believe that she had not been intimate with anyone else during or in the several months prior to their encounters. Not only did he dismiss the lady with an ungentlemanly note, he charged her for his medical expenses!
HAROLD VARMUS, M.D., SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR ABBY: I am over 50, retired from the Army, and am currently on parole, having served a sentence for repeated child molesting. I have been attracted to little girls as long as I can remember. (I am a male.) I have gone through a sex-offenders program and have also had private counseling. Neither has had a lasting effect on me.

The desire for sexual relations with children has been with me all my life. I am now getting weary of the constant fear of once again molesting a little girl and going back to prison. I have grandchildren, and I want to be around them without the feeling that almost always comes over me when they are near.

I would like to be castrated, but I can't find a doctor who will do it. Can you help me?

If I don't get help soon, I'm afraid I may molest another child — perhaps one of my grandchildren. Please address your reply to "G.D. in Seattle." Those are not my initials, and I do not live in Seattle, but I will know it's for me. Thank you.

G.D.

DEAR G.D.: My psychiatric consultant informs me that a drug is available that destroys the sex urge. It must be prescribed by a physician and administered under strict supervision.

If your physician is not aware of this drug, the generic name for it is "medroxyprogesterone acetate." Please acknowledge that you have seen this, and let me know what you are doing about it.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

The U.S. Supreme Court recently handed down a decision refusing to limit the number of professional football games cable television can broadcast each Sunday.

To me that means only one thing. That Statue of Justice who pretends to be a blindfolded woman is really an umpire in drag.

Who else would sanction Jock Sunday featuring 85 televised sports events from sign-on to sign-off in one day? I don't know who presented the proposition, but someone certainly ramrodded it through behind women's backs.

O.K., so I respect the law and I'll abide by it, but in the name of mercy, I ask the courts to consider a couple of amendments to keep women happy.

If a man sleeps during two consecutive innings or quarters, he should be declared legally dead and his estate probated.

Legalized Sunday dating for women married to sports nuts will not only be allowed, but enforced.

Admittance to his chair in front of the TV set will occur only after relinquishing his car keys, checkbook and credit cards to his wife.

Live with the possibility that any given Monday, Curt Gowdy could be named in an alienation of affection suit and you would have to offer proof that you had not spent 15 hours on Sunday with him.

Wives of the watchees will not be responsible for catheters or I.V.'s that become dislodged during the day.

If sports ace appearing on more than two TV sets in the home, a woman has the right to smash one of them with a tire iron.

There's a lot more at stake here than women vs. televised sports. It is now a moral issue. When men are hooked up to these electronic support systems all day Sunday, do women have the right to let them go on living in their catatonic state, with no hope

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

A Welcome Too Warm?

Maybe President Reagan was too effusive in lauding social progress of the Philippines in his welcome to Ferdinand Marcos. Governmental watchers are said to be encouraged by what they see, but laymen and laywomen are not happy, and they have reason. Distribution of wealth in the Philippines is so marked that it would be incomprehensible to most Americans who have not visited other "Third World" nations in recent years. There are the abjectly poor Filipinos and there are the very rich and privileged. The poor outnumber the wealthy and so-called middle income people, and the poor live in a poverty from which few escape alive. The discontent is great ... the desperation is even greater. President Marcos knows they are ripe for revolution, and his frequent application of restrictive measures and even martial law reflect problems for which he has no ready answers. So he has problems, compounded by an iron-handed approach to governing a people seething with unrest. No viable alternatives are in sight.

Water Service Seems Sound

A Greenville Utilities Commission proposal to extend water service in areas outside the city limits won the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission approval last week. The matter has been taken up with the Greenville City Council and the county planning board. It is now expected to be taken before the county commissioners. A spokesman said the area, primarily north of the Tar River, has no reasonable chance of supporting an independent water system. There appears to be no major objection to the city water system serving such areas. The day is fast approaching when virtually all of the county will be served by either a municipal water system or an independent one. If the city can provide water service to areas adjacent to it there certainly should be mutual benefits.

SORT OF AN ALL-AROUND, TAKE-CHARGE GUY!

Public Jobs A Turn-Off

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER WASHINGTON — with nearly one in 10 American adults out of work, we expected hosannas and hallelujahs to follow the House of Representatives' endorsement of a $1 billion jobs program last week. Instead, we heard very little, and nothing complimentary. The reason for this stunning reticence is that most Americans, thanks largely to Ronald Reagan, rank public jobs programs with the devil's work. That public works fuel inflation, bust budgets and breed systematic corruption is a common perception that Speaker Tip O'Neill and the Democrats have done little to dispel since they introduced their proposal last spring. And it's for this reason that the "emergency" jobs program, which would put more than 200,000 Americans temporarily back to work, will probably die a needless death in the Senate.

Clearly, the Democratic Party's traditional advocacy of government as legitimate employer is in desperate need of a new sales pitch. In the Reagan era, to sell government jobs on the basis of "compassion" alone is as foolish as hawking penny apples on Rodeo Drive. For the last two years, both Democrats and Republicans have demonstrated a reluctance to support far-reaching jobs programs. House and Senate conferees are now negotiating a son-of-CETA bill that would, at best, train as many as 2 million workers, but possibly give no assurance of wages. Similarly, a proposed American Conservation Corps, which has already won House approval, would only provide for 20,000 year-round jobs and about 40,000 summer positions, admits Sidney Howe of the Human Environment Center, a leading advocate of the concept. In the face of probably 11 million to 13 million unemployed this fall, and dim prospects for early recovery (the administration is even hinting the summer of 1984), the Democrats' temporary reprieve for 200,000 workers may have deserved the label of "opportunistic."

Nevertheless, the Democrats may soon find that only an umbrella back-to-work program, styled after the Works Progress Administration (WPA), will carry this country through these rough times. During the Depression, the WPA employed as many as 3 million Americans and could, again — if the Democrats are willing to face up to such a program's benefits. Ironically, the Democrats' best sales pitch is inherent in their much-maligned jobs proposal: repairing the nation's infrastructure. Although O'Neill only feebly touted this aspect of the "emergency" program while on the House floor, it's certainly one with which most Americans feel increasingly comfortable. As Timothy Noah and Dan well point out in the latest issue of The Washington Monthly, repair and upkeep of the U.S. interstate highway system — which could require more than 250,000 workers annually during the 1980s — tops America's list of needed public-works projects. The nation's deteriorating bridges, sewers, mass-transit systems and secondary roadways may require, if a U.S. Conference of Mayors' projection is right, as many as 4 million pairs of hands over the next 10 years. Add to these jobs millions of others created in the private production and supply of materials for infrastructure repair, and you revise two politically-attractive goals: pride and practicality. Of course, any such program would have to contend with the predictable array of criticisms — inflation, corrupt and incompetent management, fiscal excess and mistargeted beneficiaries — none of which the Democrats have successfully countered. Conceding the inflationary impact of full employment, however, the Democrats could point to the good examples of public leadership, including that of the California Conservation Corps (successfully run, one might add, by a former Army officer); compare the cost of such a program with that of a few weapons systems, and propose that all able-bodied, unemployed Americans be eligible, if not required, to work for government pay. It's unclear whether the Democrats can capture the nation's imagination with such an initiative and lead the way. While the party's younger leaders will try to ar-

THIS AFTERNOON

No Way To Tell

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR RALEIGH — As the judge looks down at the young man just convicted of punching a grocery store clerk during a burglary, he's got to decide if the defendant poses a threat to society. "If I put this man on probation", the judge asks himself, "will he commit another crime and maybe use greater violence?" That's a question judges face every day. At a recent conference on crime and justice, several superior court judges were in the audience for a seminar on violent crime. They were hoping several criminologists might give them some insight into spotting those defendants who are prone to future violence. What they heard was most discouraging. "You can't predict which criminal will be violent and which will not," the criminologists said. Terence Thornberry of the Research Center for Crime and Delinquency at the University of Georgia said "we can't now (predict who will be violent) and we won't be able to do it in the near future."

said. Of all the patients the researchers predicted to be violent, only one-quarter actually became violent in the four years. That's kind of like picking the division winners in major league baseball. Most of us could certainly pick three out of four pennant champs if we were given 12 guesses. The judges in the audience were even further dismayed to learn that the nature of previous crimes doesn't provide much indication of future crimes. Few labrakers specialize in either a specific form of crime or in violence. Today's burglar may be tomorrow's check swindler. The criminal who used violence today may not use violence in tomorrow's crime but the man who committed a non-violent crime might knock you over the head if he robs your wallet tomorrow. Several judges threw their hands up in mock disgust. But Heman Clark, secretary of crime control and public safety, argued that it is possible to spot violence prone individuals. When he was in school, Clark said, he knew several youngsters he predicted would grow up to be violent — and they did.

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

Thornberry replied that in a case where a judge faced 20 defendants, he'd have to say all 20 were going to be violent if he wanted to cover the seven who actually would be violent. In that case, he said, the judge would be wrong about 13 defendants, a score that is more wrong than right. The professor did have some good news for the frustrated judges, however. He predicted that crime rates will be coming down soon. Thornberry has charted fluctuations in violent crime rates as far back as 12th century England when there were about 20 murders every year for every 100,000 people. In the United States, the crime rate has reached nine murders per 100,000 in 1930 and 1980. The rate was four per 100,000 in 1900 and dropped to that level again in the early 1960s. Therefore, he predicted that the murder rate will begin coming down in the 1980s and that other crime rates, which seem to follow the same pattern, will also begin to drop.

Smart Bombs, Dumb Kids

According to Barbara Bush, the vice president's wife, the United States is having an illiteracy epidemic. In the 1950s we ranked 18th among the United Nations in literacy. Now this country ranks 49th. It is estimated that there are 60 million people in this country who are considered illiterate or functionally illiterate. This poses a major problem for this country's future, and I broached it to someone in the administration. "What are we going to do if we have a nation of dummies, and you people keep cutting back on education in the federal budget?" "We have to make some hard choices," he said. "We can either afford smart weapons and dumb kids, or dumb weapons and smart kids." "But how can a dumb kid fire a smart weapon?" "Because they're built so anybody can fire them." "Isn't a nation's security based on the brains of its people?" "It used to be. But now with the new hi-tech computers it's not that essential. As long as you have a few good programmers you don't need a lot of people with college degrees." "How can a super power rate 49th in literacy and still maintain its position in the world?" "It's not easy," he admitted, "but so far we've managed to do it. Naturally we'd like to have more citizens who can read and write. But school supervisors could pray for better teachers."

if you have to cut federal programs it's easier to do it in education than it is in defense. "It doesn't make any sense. What is the country going to do with 60 million illiterate people?" "We're going to have to make an effort to improve the school systems and upgrade the salaries of our teachers." "How do you do that if the government won't provide the necessary funds to pay them?" "We start by allowing voluntary prayers in school." "How would that improve the school system in the country?" "It would give children an opportunity to pray for a better education. Teachers could pray for better pay. And

"We also put a lot of our money into education at the same time," I reminded him. "Those were the days when we could afford prayers and butter. Now we can only afford prayers, and that's why the President is working so hard for the school prayer amendment." "There are some people who say the school prayer amendment is just a smoke screen to make parents forget their kids aren't learning how to read and write." "They're wrong. You don't solve illiteracy problems by just throwing money at them. Once we put God back into the schools, we're going to see a tremendous improvement in the education of our children, and it won't cost the taxpayers a dime." "I'll pray you're right," I said. "Because if you're not, the next generation of Americans will turn out to be a bunch of real dumbbells." "We know we're right. A nation under God is the only kind that can afford to cut its education budget to ribbons." (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Other Editors Say In One Decade

(Washington Daily News) In many fields today we tend to hear much bad news and to face a sort of negative approach which often causes us to wonder about the full story. Yet, we know each story usually is written to cover the immediate time and not that of a decade or a generation. So it is with unusual interest that we read that during the decade 1970-1980 in North Carolina the average salary of North Carolina school teachers doubled. The figures given out by the N.C. Department of Public Instruction tell us that in the school year (1970-71) the average teacher salary in our state was $7,772 per year. In the school year of 1980-81 the average school teacher salary in North Carolina was $15,861. We hear great criticism of our legislature and our governor for their alleged failures to meet the teacher salary crisis head-on. Yet during the 10-year period of 1970-80 somebody did a lot of work and put forth a lot of effort in the fight for teacher salaries. The decade was not wasted and education was not overlooked in the matter of what was done. Maybe enough was not done. That argument could well be made. But any argument which tends to indicate that nothing or very little was done is misleading. In the field of public education within the same decade the number of public schools dropped from 2,283 to 2,030. This was due to a decline in public school enrollments. Of particular interest to North Carolinians is the fact that in the past decade the yearly cost of educating one child increased by more than $1,300 — from $623 in 1970 to $1,944 in 1980. Now any time we look a picture such as depicted in the above paragraph, we must realize that we are talking about money paid into the treasury by taxpayers. And when it takes more money to operate, it takes more taxes to get the job done. It is also interesting to note that in 1970 public school enrollment in North Carolina was more than 1,200,000. By 1980 the enrollment had dropped to 1,120,203 students. From 1970 to 1976 births in North Carolina decreased. Since 1975 births in our state have shown an increase. So one decade does make a big difference in a given field.

Strength For Today

BIG WHEELS "He's a big wheel!" This slang expression is apt, meaning an important person, a leading executive. But anyone who wants to be a really effective big wheel should study machinery. For one thing, the big wheels are not likely to be turning fast; they move slowly, and let the little wheels geared to them do the rapid flying. The big ones move deliberately and powerfully. And the big wheels are the strong ones, made of heavy metal to withstand heavy strains. In some machinery the big wheel is the flywheel — the wheel whose weight and momentum keeps the machinery going. Without a flywheel the machinery would stop after a revolution or two. So anyone on the way to becoming a big wheel should not overlook his main purpose. He should concentrate on the qualities which make the big wheel really valuable to the rest of the machine. — Elisha Douglass

Consumers Not Yet Convinced

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The campaign reports in the battle against inflation have been so good for so long that some people are starting to proclaim victory. "Inflation is on a permanently lower plateau," said Allen Sinai of the economic consulting firm of Data Resources Inc. in a recent speech. "We believe the back of inflation has been broken," said Lee Idelman, director of research at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc., in a commentary for the investment firm's customers. Of course, in modern-day economics, it can be argued that no progress is ever permanent, no pity ever an unqualified success. It isn't called "the dismal science" for nothing. But the optimists on inflation have a long list of statistics to back up their case. By the measure used in calculating the gross national product, the cost of living rose at a 4.3 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year and 4.6 percent in the second quarter. That is a dramatic change from a couple of winters back, when government statistics on inflation read like the temperature chart of a very sick patient, running as high as 18 percent. Maury Harris, economist at Paine Webber Inc., says the recent 4 percent to 5 percent pace is likely to persist for a good 12 to 18 months. Edward Yardeni, his counterpart at E.F. Hutton & Co., reports, "We think inflation will be in the 3 percent to 5 percent range over the next two to three years." If it is indeed a victory, however, many consumers and workers are apparently unready to celebrate it just yet. Says consumer researcher Albert Sindinger, "Most households, after shelling out for utilities and other necessities, can't figure out how the government can keep reporting reduced inflation. They surely haven't seen it." Whether the battle is won or not, few observers dispute that the casualties have been high. As Albert Wijnflower, economist at First Boston Corp., put it recently: "That the inflationary fever had to be checked lest we be consumed by it was not much in dispute. Not so well appreciated was the difficulty and pain of the cure." The recession that came in the same package with disinflation has pushed the unemployment rate to a post-World War II high. At the same time, the unwinding of inflation has jolted many people, businesses and even nations that expected it to continue. When oil prices were surging, they took a heavy toll on just about everybody who buys energy. Now that they are no longer rising, they have become an enormous problem for many people who sell it. So even optimistic economists like Yardeni at E.F. Hutton acknowledge that there are big risks lurking around the edges of his forecast. Some investment people, he says, fear that the only way out of the world economy's present problems is a return to high inflation. Others, he concedes, say it is too late for even that to happen — that the only likely prospect now is a period of "deflation" that will make the inflationary '70s look like a halcyon era by comparison. "We do worry about deflation," Yardeni said. "A sudden and sharp drop in the price of oil could undermine the domestic and international banking systems and precipitate a deflationary depression." But he argues that a judicious Federal Reserve credit policy, keeping interest rates low enough to avert an economic collapse, can pave the way for an economic recovery with relative price stability. When that day arrives, presumably, the party to celebrate the demise of inflation can begin.

Life As It's Lived

Time Is Relative; And Proof If Clocks Differ

By GAIL MICHAELS
Time is relative, or so they say, and Phillip, for one, believes this. The only time-pieces in the house that show the correct Eastern Standard Time are the clock in the kitchen and my watch. I set them both.

Phillip's clocks, in contrast, are set for a variety of different times. The clock on his desk hasn't been reset since the last power black-out. It's two hours slow. The clock on our bedside table is 15 minutes fast. Phillip's watch is anywhere from 5 to 10 minutes fast, depending on his mood.

I have often wondered what possible justification he could have for this studied disregard of the one common factor governing the lives of every human being since Adam. Even the rhythm of our hearts imitates the steady tick-tick-tick of a Baby Ben as it winds slowly but inexorably down. How then can Phillip deliberately sabotage the function of these instruments that simultaneously give and rob our lives of meaning?

I have formulated a number of possible explanations. He could be making a metaphysical protest against the exaltation of mere electrical impulses over the soul. On the other hand, he could be rebelling against a more conventional target: the emotionally and physically confining 8 to 5 business routine. After all, he does continue to wear a gold stretch band on his watch when the "Wall Street Journal" has clearly stated that leather is far more indicative of the presence of true managerial talent. Phillip's preference is dangerously entrepreneurial if nothing else.

But in spite of all the possible explanations for Phillip's erratic behavior, I firmly believe that his real motive is to drive me crazy. That wouldn't be too difficult. I find that the older I get and the more years of motherhood I endure, the more easily confused I am. I make lists to help me remember things, but I usually misplace them.

So it's no wonder that I often glance at the bedroom clock and, taking it at face value, push Meg out the front door, with half her breakfast still on her plate and her teeth unbrushed, to wait at the bus stop in the early morning fog for 15 or 20 minutes. I have also found myself putting Zachary's shoes on his feet and brushing his hair in front of the locked doors of his nursery school. And lately the number of such episodes has been increasing.

"I can't live 15 minutes fast much longer," I told Phillip recently. "Why do you insist on being so perverse? Other families manage to order their lives around Dial-a-Time and still find health, wealth and happiness. So why do we have to emulate the Mad Hatter and the March Hare? It's ridiculous."

"No, it's not. It's really quite logical," he said. "I set the clocks to reflect my needs. At night I don't feel pushed to get to bed because the clock on the desk is two hours slow. When I look at it my first impulse is to relax and enjoy what I'm doing."

"Only so much enjoyment can be derived from watching the TV test pattern."

"You have to look at this from a psychological perspective. Mornings call for a different approach. To get to work on time, I need to get up early, but if I set the clock 15 minutes ahead, then when the alarm goes off, I've had 15 minutes extra sleep."

"You've got to be kidding."

"No, I'm not. When the alarm goes off at 5:55, I can tell myself that since I should have been up at 5:40, I got more rest than I normally would have. Then I get dressed and have breakfast at a leisurely pace, and I'm ready to leave by 6:35."

"According to your watch?"

PUBLIC POWER:

A CENTURY STRONG

On September 20, 1882, just 16 days after Thomas Edison started the world's first electric utility in New York City, the city of Fairfield, Iowa, illuminated its entire business district with 19 arc lights on a 180-foot tower. Fairfield's tower, owned and operated by its citizens, was the first of many community-owned electric systems which illuminated the nation with the idea of non-profit public power.

While scores of entrepreneurs rushed into the electric utility business in the 1880s to make a profit from the sale of electricity, many American communities took a different view of electric service. These early public power pioneers believed electric power was too precious and vital to communities to be generated and distributed for profit. They believed consumers should receive electric service as a municipal service and pay only production and distribution costs.

Today, 100 years later, more than 33 million Americans in 2,200 public power towns benefit from low-cost, efficient electric service. And more and more communities are recognizing public power's advantages and considering consumer ownership.

Public power is a century strong — and growing stronger for YOU!

FIRE DAMAGES BROOK VALLEY HOME — Pitt County firemen from three rural fire departments clear smoke from the home of Connally Branch, 320 King George Road, Thursday night after fire caused heavy damage to the attic and heavy smoke and water damage to the remainder of the two-story structure. According to Eastern Pines Fire Chief Lyman Hardee, the fire apparently started in the kitchen range and moved to the attic through the kitchen wall. When firemen arrived, one firefighter said "smoke was coming from every crack in the house." Hardee said damage was estimated at about $60,000. No one was injured in the blaze. Members of the Eastern Pines, Winterville and Red Oak departments responded to the 7:20 p.m. fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Will Begin Hong Kong Negotiation

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer
PEKING (AP) — Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher announced today that Britain and China will begin immediate, intense negotiations on the future status of Hong Kong.

"Our common aim is maintaining the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong," she told reporters after meeting for two hours with China's top leader, Deng Xiaoping.

Britain's lease on the main portion of Hong Kong expires in 1997, and China's Communist government has repeatedly said it intends to recover sovereignty.

But the method, details, and type of administration have not been disclosed, raising fears among Hong Kong's 5.5 million residents community that Peking intends to restrict the colony's free enterprise system. Investment in Hong Kong has already suffered sharp declines because of the uncertainty.

Recent statements by Chinese leaders have sought unsuccessfully to quell this fear by suggesting the colony could become a special administrative zone retaining its present economic system.

Mrs. Thatcher said she and Deng had a friendly meeting and agreed to begin immediate talks through diplomatic channels about the future of the British colony in southern China's Guangdong province.

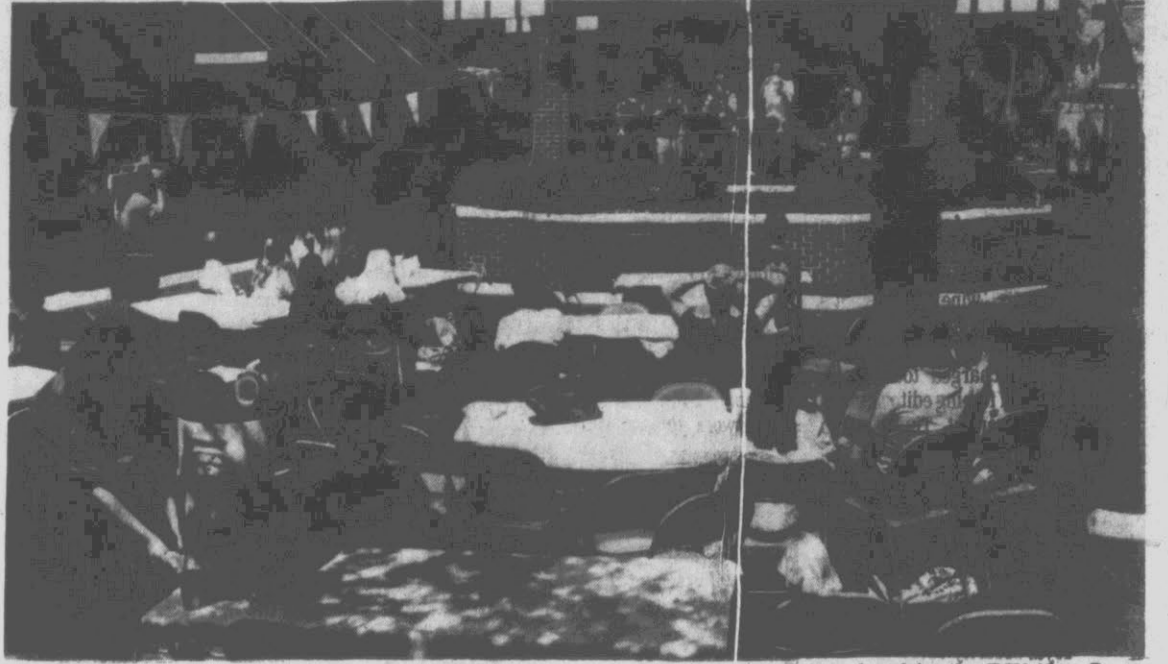

She declined to elaborate on the Chinese and British positions. She repeatedly was asked whether she thought her silence might increase Hong Kong's anxiety about its future.

"We recognize the urgency of the problem and the need to maintain confidence," Mrs. Thatcher said.

Informal talks have been held, but Mrs. Thatcher said the new, formal discussions would be "more intensive and speeded up and in greater detail."

"The situation is very complex and we will proceed as fast as it allows," she said. "A great many things must be sorted out."

Xinhua said earlier today that Mrs. Thatcher and Deng "held far-reaching talks in a friendly atmosphere on the future of Hong Kong."

It said both leaders agreed to enter talks through diplomatic channels following the visit with the common aim of maintaining the stability and prosperity of Hong Kong.

Mrs. Thatcher also held two hours of talks Thursday with Premier Zhao Ziyang about Hong Kong. Zhao told reporters China was determined to recover its sovereignty but the prosperity of Hong Kong would not be affected.

"What does Hong Kong have to worry about?" he asked. He promised that China would adopt some specific measures to guarantee prosperity and stability after China regains sovereignty.

Mrs. Thatcher leaves China on Sunday for Hong Kong, where she will discuss the matter further and hear views from local leaders.

Before his meeting with Mrs. Thatcher, Zhao told foreign reporters: "As for the sovereignty problem, of course China must regain sovereignty. But I don't think the question of sovereignty will affect Hong Kong's prosperity."

Bus Driver Cases Said Local Matter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A state education official says he knows of no plan to change rules governing school bus drivers although two drivers recently were charged with driving under the influence.

Dallas Whitford, director of the state Department of Public Instruction's Division of Transportation, said Thursday that school bus drivers are under the jurisdiction of local boards of education.

"Bus drivers are hired by the local school boards themselves," he said.

Theo N. Allen Jr., 19, of Raleigh, last week was charged with DUI after being stopped as he completed his afternoon bus route. An empty gin bottle was found in his bus, police said.

Allen pleaded guilty Wednesday to DUI and was sentenced to 60 days in jail. That sentence will be served concurrently with a three-year sentence he received earlier this week for stealing eight tires from a warehouse in June.

Allen earlier was given a suspended sentence after being convicted in January of stealing property worth $245 worth from a Raleigh home.

Bus driver Melvin Smith Jr., 24, of Raleigh, was charged with DUI this week. A routine interstate check showed he was wanted by Newark, N.J., officials on felony charges of making a terrorist threat and unlawful possession of a weapon. Robert E. Bridges, deputy superintendent for Wake County schools, said future bus driver applicants will be scrutinized more closely.

"One thing for sure we will do is a check of the criminal records," he said. Charlotte Martin, chairman of the Wake County Board of Education, said better drivers could be found if the state raised their wages. Bus drivers are paid $3.68 an hour and receive a $100 bonus if their record meets established standards at the end of the year.

Sarah Churchill Dies In Sleep

LONDON (AP) — Sarah Churchill, the flamboyant actress daughter of Sir Winston Churchill who described herself as the "lamb who strayed from the fold," died today after a long illness, her family said. She was 67.

Her brother-in-law Lord Soames said she died in her sleep during the early hours at her London home. He declined to specify the nature of her illness.

"She was loved by all who knew her on both sides of the Atlantic," he said.

Sarah, Lady Audley, and her sister Mary, Lady Soames, were the only surviving children of Britain's wartime prime minister. Randolph Churchill died in 1968 and Diana in 1963.

Lady Audley served in the Women's Air Force and was an aide-de-camp to her father during World War II and accompanied him to the Tehran and Yalta conferences.

She was better known, however, for her stage career, her three marriages and her well-publicized drinking bouts. Her last husband, Henry, Lord Audley, died in 1963 and she was living alone at the time of her death, still writing prose and poetry.

Lady Audley once said she had "a lovely childhood but I suddenly knew around 17 I had to make a break. It was too comfortable, too secure."

She spent a year in Paris studying at the Sorbonne and sent her essays home for her father to read. After leaving school, she studied ballet and made her first stage appearance at London's Adelphi Theater at the age of 22 in the chorus line of "Follow the Sun."

Despite her father's obvious disapproval, she ran away in 1936 to marry comedian Vic Oliver, an Austrian 17 years her senior whom she met in that show.

As the outbreak of World War II neared, Churchill reportedly warned her: "By 1939, you will be married to the enemy and I will be powerless to protect you."

During the war, she worked in the photo intelligence department of the Women's Air Force. She also accompanied her father to the strategic 1943 Tehran conference with Franklin D.

Roosevelt and the 1945 Yalta conference, during which Churchill, Roosevelt and Soviet leader Josef Stalin mapped out post-war plans. Her sister, Mary, accompanied Churchill to two other war conferences.

"I think he felt safe in our presence," Lady Audley said in an interview with The Standard newspaper of London last year. "You can't let your face fall in public but you can with the family. And he didn't have to talk to us. He could rest his voice while he was thinking."

She divorced Oliver in 1945 and moved to the United States after the war to pursue her acting career. She married photographer Anthony Beauchamp in 1949, the year she made her American acting debut as Tracy Lord in the stage production of "The Philadelphia Story."

She also appeared in "As You Like It" and "Royal Wedding." But the press was equally interested in her private life and regularly chronicled her drinking problem and made allegations of disorderly behavior.

Five months after Beauchamp died from an overdose of sleeping pills in 1958, Lady Audley was arrested in Malibu, Calif., on a charge of public drunkenness after using what sheriff's deputies called "unladylike language."

Friends said she finally found peace with Lord Audley but he died in 1963, within a year of their marriage.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO ALL INTERESTED PERSONS, AGENCIES AND GROUPS

Notice of decision by the Department of Housing and Urban Development to develop Public Housing pursuant to Regulations 24 CFR, part 841 on scattered sites located in the 100 year flood plain in the West Meadowbrook area of Greenville, NC. The sites are located at Moore, Legion, Dudley, Taylor and Van Nortwick Streets.

No comments have been received as of September 17, 1982, as a result of public notice published August 25, 1982, in The Daily Reflector, Greenville, NC, in reference to the project. After due consideration, HUD has reached a decision of no practical alternative based on investigation for other sites available for the proposed use outside the flood prone areas. The only alternative available to HUD is not to provide funds to the persons wishing to construct this housing for low and moderate income families in the Greenville, NC, area. This would deprive the individuals who are eligible to reside in this housing of an opportunity to improve their living conditions in the community in which they reside. Because of this, it has been determined that this is not a practical alternative.

To avoid possible adverse effects of flooding on this property, HUD will require that the floor elevation be raised one foot above the 100 year frequency flood elevation. Additionally, the sponsor will be informed of the hazards of locating in a flood plain and will be required to purchase flood insurance through the Federal Flood Insurance Program.

Stunned By Acquittal Of A Palace Intruder

LONDON (AP) — The acquittal of the lovelorn drifter who perched on the queen's bed and drank the prince's wine means it's "open house" at Buckingham Palace, newspapers charged today in a flurry of fuming editorials.

The verdict Thursday in favor of Michael Fagan was "bankers," declared the sensational Sun tabloid, describing it as "the craziest case since the trial of the Knave of Hearts in 'Alice in Wonderland.'"

Fagan, 30, penetrated royal security twice over the summer, vaulting over the palace walls, clambering over drainpipes and creeping through hallways.

He was acquitted in Old Bailey Central Criminal Court on a charge of stealing a half-bottle of Prince Charles' California wine on June 7 in the first break-in.

On July 9, he sneaked into the bedroom of Queen Elizabeth II, plopped down on her bed and told the 56-year-old monarch he loved her.

State prosecutors said earlier that Fagan would not be charged in the second incident, apparently to avoid the risk of Fagan's defense lawyer calling the queen to testify.

No palace inhabitants were injured in either incident.

The seven-man, five-woman jury took 14 minutes to decide Fagan was innocent after a five-hour trial. He faced jail and a fine if convicted.

He was immediately slapped with two new indictments — car theft and assaulting his stepson — and ordered held in police custody pending a new trial Oct. 4. Fagan pleaded innocent to the assault charge and guilty to the other.

The verdict means the court had "solemnly declared open house at the queen's residence," the Sun said.

"Next time you are walking along The Mall and feel thirsty, why not pop into Buckingham Palace for a glass or two?" the tabloid suggested.

The Daily Mirror commented: "His trial had nothing to do with the majesty of the law. It was more like a Palace of Varieties" vaudeville show.

The Daily Mail wondered: "What can we say of British justice? That truly it is the eighth wonder of the world."

Huffed the Daily Express: "The Englishman's home cannot possibly be his castle when Buckingham Palace was Fagan's doss house (flophouse)."

Under British law, trespassing is not a crime provided the intruder uses no force to get in, leaves peacefully when told and has no obvious intentions of committing an offense while there.

Prosecutors must prove the intruder intended to steal and did so.

Defense attorney Richard Slowe said Fagan "did not behave like a normal, rational person. We cannot say ... he had it in his mind to steal."

Fagan testified that he climbed 55 feet up the palace drainpipes late at night and clambered through an open window to expose lax palace security.

Although he pleaded innocent to the charge, Fagan said he drank the wine because "I had done a hard day's work getting in up the drainpipes and showing the security was bad. I couldn't find a tap anywhere and I was thirsty."

The break-ins were the most sensational breach of royal security in modern times. A police investigation blamed police blunders at the palace.

Tax Crusader Observes 80th

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Feisty tax crusader Howard Jarvis, co-author of tax-slashing Proposition 13 four years ago, celebrated his 80th birthday by saying he was just happy to be around to enjoy it.

"The best present of all is just being here," Jarvis told supporters at a party here Wednesday.

Jarvis had to undergo surgery in April to have his spleen removed because of a blood disease, but told supporters that he has no intention of giving up his fight to cut taxes.

He and Paul Gann, who co-authored Proposition 13, are laying plans for a new ballot measure they hope to place before voters in 1984. They say it will restrict the state Supreme Court from undercutting the intent of the 1978 initiative.

Until the new initiative drive got under way, Jarvis and Gann had gone their separate ways after Proposition 13. Gann ran unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate, while Jarvis tried to organize a nationwide tax-reduction movement.

Women Prisoners' Status Discussed At

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Approximately 650 women are incarcerated in the Women's Prison in Raleigh and, according to Pat Lessard, social worker at the prison, "a large percentage of these women are mothers, many of them with very young children."

Mrs. Lessard, Mary Ann Howard, executive director of the Phoenix organization in North Carolina, along with local social workers, Juvenile Court personnel and area people from the Department of Corrections conducted a symposium on "Children of Women in Prison" on Thursday afternoon at Bachelor Benedict Club in Greenville.

"Another 120 are incarcerated at Cameron-Morrison," Mrs. Lessard noted, "so at this moment there are approximately 770 women housed in North Carolina prison facilities." These women are serving sentences ranging from as little as 90 days to life terms.

The symposium centered on the status of women in prison who are mothers, and on the welfare of children who are separated from their mothers while they serve their prison terms.

"In general, the public attitude is that these women are bad mothers, that they are the kind of women whose children are potential criminals, that they are ignorant and illiterate, that they are socially and morally depraved. Some will even contend that most of these women are satisfied where they are and feel no need to change," Mrs. Lessard commented. She added that like any other generalization, there is very little truth in them.

"To a small degree, some of these things may be true, but the vast majority of women in prison want a better life for themselves and a chance for their children to grow up in a decent environment.

"For most of the mothers, they feel the real prison is not so much being behind bars, enclosed behind high fences, but being separated from their children. They suffer real guilt, the guilt of having failed their children and their families."

In many instances, women are committed to prison during the time of pregnancy. "Since January 1 this year up to the present date, the Women's Prison in Raleigh has had 47 admissions of women who are pregnant," Mrs. Lessard explained. "So far this year, there have been 23 births to women in prison."

Expectant mothers do not give birth in prison. When delivery time comes, they are moved to the delivery ward in Wake County Hospital. After the child is born, the mother and child are taken to the nursery of the infirmary at the prison.

"There's a maximum of seven days the mother can keep her baby in the nursery," Mrs. Lessard said. "It's my job to deal with the mother and the separation from her child. Believe me, this is the hardest part of my work. I try to convince the mother to keep the child for the possible shortest time."

A mother in prison has three choices — to place the child up for adoption or for care in a foster home, or to let the child be placed with relatives. The majority opt for placing their children with relatives.

Before such placement is made, "prison officials check with county social workers to determine the capability of relatives to give a child proper care," Mrs. Lessard said.

A factor stressed by Mrs. Lessard relative to the morale of women incarcerated in prisons is that of family support and visitation. "Regular visitation hours are once a week from noon to 4 o'clock," she said.

"Some of the women have family members or close friends who visit every week. Others have occasional visitors. A few, because of distances or economic circumstances, never have visitors at all. When circumstances dictate, we arrange for family visits at other than regular visitation times."

In response to a question, she acknowledged that, in a few instances, husbands have refused to let children visit their mothers in prison. "However, the fact a mother is in prison does not negate her legal rights as a mother. In cases where fathers have taken a child or children and moved to another state, efforts are made to locate them so that a mother in prison knows where her children are."

Mrs. Lessard says more attention statewide and nationally is being directed to mothers in prisons and their children — "attention on what can be done to alleviate some of the worse aspects of the situation. Provisions have been made for the first time this year for outside visitation in a picnic type area. Raleigh merchants have provided tables, benches and playground equipment for children to use during the visits. Until this year, visitation was held only in a large, noisy, crowded hall. Because of space limitations, some visitation must still be held inside, but it's a much improved situation we have now."

Women in North Carolina prisons form a cross section of the state's population — from young to middle age, black, white, lower and middle economic backgrounds. Present facilities at Raleigh and Cameron-Morrison are designed to accommodate 440 women inmates, which means that conditions are crowded.

In her overview report, Miss Howard, citing figures from a report prepared by Charlotte Purvis, revealed that 85 to 90 percent of mothers in prison are single-parent mothers. The research and report, supported by a grant from the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation, focuses principally on concerns of what happens to children while their mothers are in prison.

"The research focuses on women since they are the primary child care providers," Miss Howard noted. "There're many emotional problems involved in any approach to dealing with this problem. It has been shown there is no one best systematic approach to dealing with the problem. One of the most effective resources is that of volunteers as advocates for these children, volunteers trained to help by seeing that children without mothers get assistance with school work, are taken out shopping and things of that nature."

"More attention is being given to legal and human rights, to efforts to arouse public awareness and concern, and to focus on family relationships as a vital part of rehabilitation," Miss Howard said. "Basic needs exist to do everything possible to help insure prison mothers will be good mothers after their release, that they can be trained to be economically self-sufficient."

"One of the most important needs is for the public to become sensitive to these concerns, and we are hopeful that this is beginning to happen."

In addition to Mrs. Lessard and Miss Howard, others contributing to the Thursday symposium included Brenda Teel, Juvenile Court counselor and chapter president of the local Phoenix organization; Tony Gray, faculty member at Agnes Fullilove School; Becky Starkey, Pitt County Foster Care social worker; Shelby

New Right's Social Agenda Is Dead; Vow Return

WASHINGTON (AP) —
The New Right's social agenda is dead for 1982, but Sen. Jesse Helms says he will be back again next year trying to enact anti-abortion, school prayer and anti-busing legislation.

The Senate killed Helms' school prayer measure Thursday, thus ending the social issues debate for the 97th Congress.

Senators voted 79-16 to strip the prayer amendment from legislation increasing the federal debt ceiling. The debt bill was then approved 50-41, giving the government authority to borrow enough money to pay its bills.

The final outcome of the prayer fight marked a major success for a number of liberal organizations, including the American Civil Liberties Union, Common Cause, the American Bar Association, which had lobbied hard against a series of measures to strip the federal courts of authority to act on issues such as school prayer.

"The Constitution has weathered a major hurricane," said John Shattuck, Washington director of the ACLU.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., a leader of the liberal filibuster against the prayer bill, said the New Right has been defeated.

"Their balloon has been punctured," Baucus said. "But these questions will still be around next year."

Helms agreed, saying he hopes for the election of more hard-line conservatives in the fall congressional elections to give his side enough votes to defeat another liberal filibuster.

"We need more horses," he said.

Helms, a North Carolina Republican, said he will use the votes taken on abortion and school prayer to help defeat those who opposed him during a five-week filibuster on social issues.

"I would call it information enlightenment to which American people are entitled," Helms said.

In a meeting with reporters, Helms said by agreeing to delay the social issues battle for over a year while President Reagan's economic program went through the Congress, "I may have made a tactical mistake."

Next year, Helms said he will start earlier and predicted a real filibuster in which liberals would be forced to stay on the Senate floor all night to prevent direct votes on abortion, prayer and other social issues.

During the often bitter social issues battle which began Aug. 16, there were eight separate attempts to break the liberal filibuster. All failed.

Helms said one reason is that while the Senate is controlled by Republicans, there is not a majority of conservatives. At most, he said, there are 35 true conservative votes he can count on.

For over two years, some conservatives worked to enact legislation to reverse Supreme Court decisions on legalized abortion, prayer in public schools and busing as a tool for desegregation.

A watered-down anti-abortion package urged by

Helms was set aside by the Senate last week.

Anti-busing legislation cleared the Senate last year, but remains stuck in the Democratic-controlled House where it has almost no chance of passage.

Helms' prayer bill would have stripped the Supreme Court of any authority to act on prayer cases, thus allowing state legislatures and school boards to effectively overrule a 1962 high court ruling which said officially sponsored prayer violated the doctrine of separation of church and state.

In the end, Reagan's role in the social issues debate proved to be minimal.

With the fall elections approaching, the president did some lobbying on abortion legislation and urged enactment of a constitutional amendment on prayer.

But the president made no apparent effort on behalf of Helms' proposed legislation on prayer, and on Thursday Helms said the White House had urged that the prayer issue be removed from the debt ceiling bill.

Break-In Probed

Greenville police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation are investigating two daylight house break-ins Thursday on Commerce Street in which more than $52,600 worth of property reportedly was taken.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a break-in at the 102 Commerce St. home of Thomas Patrick Randolph was reported at 2 p.m. Officers investigating that break-in discovered a break-in at the Smith Creech home at 100 Commerce St. a short time later.

Cannon said thieves, who gained entrance to the Randolph house through a door, took an estimated $30,000 worth of property, including diamond rings and other jewelry, and a quantity of silver flatware.

At the Creech home, thieves entered the house through a glass sliding door and took jewelry, silver, $120 in cash, a .12 gauge shotgun and a .22 caliber pistol. Value of the property was set at $22,676.

Referendum On 'Non-Natives'

TYONEK, Alaska (AP) — A referendum will be held in January by 250 natives on whether to keep a village residency rule that bars whites and other non-natives from spending more than 24 hours here unless they are government employees.

The referendum will not apply to children of mixed marriages, said Don Standifer, president of the village council. The village, 45 miles southwest of Anchorage, is already trying to evict two white couples.

The council says the residency rule is necessary "to guard and foster native life" in the face of pending coal development, hydroelectric projects, timber cutting and oil and gas lease sales.

Industrial Safety In N.C. Is Lauded

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Giving an employee on sick leave full pay does not encourage the worker to return quickly, the chairman of the state Industrial Commission says.

Industries should "put the employee back on limited duty as much and as soon as possible," William H. Stephenson said Thursday at the 51st annual Western Carolina Safety Conference.

The conference at the University of North Carolina at Asheville brought together representatives of government agencies, educational institutions, and industry. All of them were connected with accident prevention and occupational safety.

Stephenson added that work-related illnesses are the greatest problem facing industries today. The Supreme Court's 1935 ruling that such maladies make one eligible for workman's compensation has placed an additional burden on industry, he said.

The state would be able to control medical costs more effectively if employers adopted medical fee schedules and insisted that their workers see doctors specializing in rehabilitative medicine, Stephenson said.

Industries should have written medical policies instructing employees what to do in the event of injury, he said. The policy also would tell workers what to expect while they receive workman's compensation.

Stephenson criticized published reports that North Carolina textile plants have an excessively high accident rate. Statistics leading to that conclusion have been misinterpreted, he said.

Big Gift Is Unexpected

BELMONT, N.C. (AP) — An elderly Anson County woman who once hoped there would be a major Catholic university between Washington and Florida has left Belmont Abbey College a $2.55 inheritance in her will.

Officials at the Gaston County college say the gift was contained in the will of Anne Baldwin Horne Little, who died Aug. 10 at the age of 86.

Wadesboro banker Dudley Partick Jr. said the former educator and devout Roman Catholic once confided to him that she "had always hoped there would be a fine Catholic university between Washington and Florida."

Belmont Abbey and nearby Sacred Heart College are the only Catholic colleges between Washington and St. Leo, Fla., said Belmont Abbey spokeswoman Cindy Heavner.

The gift was an unexpected boost to college officials, who had been conducting a drive to raise $1.5 million for the college. The inheritance lifted the college's Second Century Fund Campaign total to $3.45 million, officials said.

The second-largest gift the college ever received in its 107-year history was $125,000, which was given in 1976.

Ms. Little, a lifelong resident of Anson County, was the widow of George W. Little, a prominent farmer. She was a graduate of Converse College in Spartanburg and of Teacher's College of Columbia, now the University of South Carolina. She was a teacher and principal for a number of years.

WOMAN CHIEF
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A 53-year-old widow was elected Thailand's first woman village chief after the government issued regulations allowing women to hold that position, a provincial officer said today.

An Official Guide To Satire: 101 Uses For Paperback Book

By SCOTT KRAFT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — First there was Mummy, Muffy and the absolutely-to-die crew that made "The Preppy Handbook" a nationwide success. Now the joke's on everything from college life to macho men to sex manuals and tax guides.

Parody is in vogue. Publishers who say "the best humor is what is true" are finding success in books that poke fun at the familiar. You might call it 101 uses for a paperback book.

Examples abound. For the home handyman, there's "Do-It-Yourself Brain Surgery & Other Home Skills." The "other skills" include inventing a miracle drug, building an ocean liner, crocheting your own suspension bridge and cloning yourself.

Stewart Cowley says his book is for anyone who thinks, "That's easy — I could do it myself."

Before you start home cloning, the guide advises, "Wash your hands and put out your cigarette." For brain surgery, you need a sharp knife, a hand drill and boiling water.

To crochet your own bridge, you need 1,622 tons of 20-ply synthetic yarn and 980,000 large buttons. To invent a miracle drug, you need a Swiss bank account ("to make provisions for your staggering profits"), a pill-making machine and a gross of white mice.

Parody's resurgence began with "The Preppy Handbook," which has sold 1.3 million copies at $3.95 each and is in its 24th printing. Several new parodies already have risen to the top of the trade paperback sales lists and more than a dozen others are due out this fall.

Two of Preppy's co-authors have written "Welcome to Mount Merry College," a college catalog that offers courses in small talk, applied sexuality and Yiddish for gentlemen. There's also Physics for Dilettantes, Laundry Problems and Remedial Television. The entire description of one English course reads: "f u c n red ths sntrce y c n tak ths cors."

For those who have trouble recognizing members of the opposite sex, an illustrated sex manual called "How To Do Sex Properly" might help. It has a chapter on "learning to kiss right," "fumble-free undressing" and "it pays to advertise." The intimate details are illustrated with teddy bears.

"The Original Up Your Income Tax" advises taxpayers with four spouses to "declare yourself a religious institution" and claim non-profit status.

"Real Men Don't Eat Quiche," a spoof of the macho image, is No. 2 on The New York Times list of trade paperbacks. In a similar vein is "The Manly Handbook," with a cover showing a muscular, tattooed arm crushing a beer can. Rule No. 1 for being a manly man is: "Don't wear designer jeans."

Fifth on the trade best-seller list is "The Official MBA Handbook." Two recent master's of business administration graduates from Harvard discuss such weighty matters as credit card etiquette ("when to flash the real power card") and the virtues of a year-round tan ("recommended for senior managers only; too much color can be problematic for junior execs").

"The best humor is what is true, taking little pockets of society and demystifying them," says Sally Kovalchick, editor-in-chief of Workman Publishing, which published "Preppy."

Publishers say the parody appeals to the anti-establishment generation of the 1960s, mellowing as it approaches middle age.

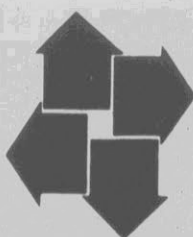

That generation finds itself in a time when "upward mobility is difficult and nuclear war threatens, but they're giggling to apocalypse," says Sam Mitnick, editor-in-chief of Perigee, publisher of "Mount Merry."

"This is a way of gentle protest. It's mockery, but it's loving mockery."

HILLSBORO, Ore. (AP) — During the week, Washington County Assistant District Attorney Dave White wears three-piece suits and brings criminals to justice.

On weekends, he wears skin-tight stretch pants and belts out '50s rock'n'roll with Johnny Limbo and the Lugnuts, a top band in the Portland area.

At the courthouse, where White arrives in a staid auto, he is a criminal prosecutor. But on weekends, he gets into his 1956 Oldsmobile and dons rock garb to gyrate as the rhythm guitar player with the heavily booked Lugnuts.

He isn't the only member of the band with another life. Johnny Limbo himself is really Jerry Hoffman, manager of a fashionable men's store.

White says he and Hoffman handle the business affairs of the eight Lugnuts. "I do the legal work — that's for sure," he says.

White says he started the Lugnuts just before going to work for the district attorney's office four years ago, after graduating from Pepperdine University Law School in Los Angeles.

Corona Is Ruled Guilty A Second Time

GUILTY AGAIN — Juan Corona, dressed in prison uniform and stocking cap, leaves the Alameda County Courthouse following the verdict in his trial Thursday after a jury found him guilty of 25 counts of murder.

HAYWARD, Calif. (AP) — A green, cloth-bound "death ledger" listing names of farm workers whose hacked bodies were found in orchards was the key evidence that convicted Juan Corona of 25 murders for the second time, the jury's foreman says.

"That's what did it," said Brian Douglas Hast, a 26-year-old tax attorney who also acted as the panel's spokesman, after the verdict was announced Thursday.

The ledger contained the names of at least eight of the 25 victims, with dates next to them, and witnesses testified the handwriting was Corona's.

The verdict, reached after 10 days of deliberations, ended a seven-month, $5 million retrial for the 48-year-old Corona, accused of killing the migrant workers and burying their bodies in orchards near Yuba City in 1971.

Corona showed little emotion as clerk Melissa Fowler slowly read off the 25 guilty verdicts. "He took it like a man," defense attorney Terence Hallinan said, adding that Corona was depressed by the outcome.

Another jury in 1973 reached the same finding, and Corona was sentenced to 25 life terms in prison. In 1978, a state appeals court found his defense had been deficient and ordered a new trial for Corona, who has spent 11 years behind bars.

Superior Court Judge Richard Patton set sentencing for Oct. 21, at which time he said he would consider a defense request for a new trial. The maximum penalty would be a reinstatement of Corona's earlier life sentence, since California had no death penalty when the murders were committed.

Corona is eligible for immediate parole consideration by the state Board of Prison Terms because of the length of time he has served.

In December 1973, Corona was stabbed 32 times by fellow inmates at a prison in Vacaville. His left eye was removed in surgery the next day, but a blade remains lodged behind his right eye.

The second jury listened to 212 witnesses, whose testimony filled 16,700 pages, and saw 1,300 exhibits. Prosecutors argued that Corona, a farm labor contractor, recruited his victims from the streets of Marysville, some 100 miles northeast of San Francisco, drove them to orchards, and killed them.

The jury foreman said dates in the "death ledger" seemed to correlate with testimony about the last time many of the victims were seen alive.

Authorities found the ledger in Corona's bedroom after his May 26, 1971, arrest and said the names were written with a six-color pen imported from Italy. Corona, who testified in his defense for the first time during the retrial, admitted owning such a pen, but denied writing the names and said the book was last used in a 1967 harvest.

Corona has always maintained his innocence, but, according to a copyright story in today's Oakland Tribune-Eastbay TODAY, he once agreed to plead guilty. He subsequently rescinded the offer, which he had made in a 1978 letter to a judge, the paper said. His attorneys said he mistakenly believed he would be released from prison if he pleaded guilty. Jurors at the retrial were not told of the letter.

Asked during the trial about a post-hole digger found in his garage covered with dried mud and human hair, Corona said he didn't remember seeing hair on it. He also said he didn't remember seeing any blood on a floor mat or throw rug found in his car.

By late last week, the deliberating jurors had unanimously rejected defense contentions that Corona's half-brother, Natividad, was a more likely suspect in the slayings, Hast said. They based their vote "on the probability he was not even in the Marysville area at the time," the foreman said.

Natividad, who owned a bar in Marysville where some of the victims met Juan Corona, is believed to have died in 1973.

When asked if he thought others may have been involved in the crimes, Hast responded, "That crossed my mind." But he added that it was Corona on trial — no one else.

When the Alameda County courtroom cleared, Corona's sister, Rosario Buenrostro, broke down and wept. Corona asked the court to allow him to talk to his mother in Jalisco, Mexico. Officials didn't say if the request was granted.

Corona was led from the courtroom to solitary confinement at Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center, where he has been the last three years.

FBI Arrested Its Customers

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The FBI says three men it has known this week that they wanted to buy some marijuana — and the FBI complied with their wish.

In a unique turnaround in the world of police and drug dealers, the FBI said Wednesday that five of its agents sold marijuana with a street value of $1 million to three men — and then arrested the customers.

Robert Pence, special agent in charge of operations in North Carolina, said the case wasn't ordinary.

"The more normal routine is the bad guy gets the drugs and tries to peddle them," he said. "It's a little bit unique."

Arrested were Audie Murphy, 28, of Belmont; Michael Brown, 27, of Belmont; and Larry Hogan 29, of Ellerbe.

The marijuana was provided by the Drug Enforcement Administration from earlier seizures and was awaiting destruction, Pence said. The State Bureau of Investigation assisted in the case, he added.

The agents received $250,000 in wads of $5, $10, $20, $50 and $100 bills for 1,500 pounds of high-grade marijuana, Pence said. The sale was negotiated in Charlotte and conducted in Gastonia, where agents made their arrests.

Pence said agents agreed to turn over the marijuana in a motel parking lot in Gastonia. At that time, the money would change hands in another Gastonia parking lot, Pence said.

About 5 p.m. Tuesday, an FBI undercover agent showed the marijuana to one buyer, who tested it, approved it and notified his colleague at the other parking lot. The man went to his car and got two shopping bags full of money. At that point, the three were arrested in the two parking lots.

Pence said an investigation is continuing and others may be involved.

Women's Day will be observed Sunday at 11 a.m. at Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist Church. Dr. Lucy D. Jones will be the speaker.

Emerson Spoke At UMW Event

Chet Emerson, executive director of the Greenville Boy's Club, told Jarvis Memorial's United Methodist Women Monday that "the three most important things in a young person's life are the home, the church and the school."

"As society changes, more and more families break down," he continued. "In Greenville, 90 percent of the boys never get in trouble."

Emerson works with 700 boys in the area and is devoting his time to teaching children the value of this life. "These boys are the future men and fathers of this community; it's an investment in the future of this country when you invest in the Boy's Club," he said.

Emerson was introduced by Mrs. Dick Douglas, UMW vice president. Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh presided. A fellowship coffee hosted by Mrs. E. Hoover Taft Jr. and Mrs. W.C. Taylor Jr., followed the meeting and was held in the church parlor.

Fellowship Will Gather Sunday

The Unitarian Universalist Fellowship will meet Sunday at the Planters Bank building at the corner of Third and Washington streets. Karen Tarlo of the Greenville Baha'i group will speak on "Unity of Mankind."

Coffee will be served at 10:30 a.m., followed by the program at 11 a.m. and a potluck lunch at noon. For further information contact Lon Felker, president, at 752-0787.

Koch Defeated In Governorship Bid

By MARCHUMBERT
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — New York City Mayor Edward Koch got a stunning answer to his trademark question, "How'm I doing?" as voters dealt him his biggest political loss, nominating Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo as the Democratic candidate for governor.

In November, Cuomo will face millionaire businessman Lewis Lehrman, who won an easy victory Thursday over former U.S. Attorney Paul Curran in the Republican primary. Lehrman spent $7 million on his campaign — more than half of his own — compared with Curran's $350,000.

Democratic voters also gave U.S. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan a huge primary victory over political unknown Melvin Klenetsky. The liberal incumbent will face a conservative anti-abortion candidate in the general election.

"I'm delighted we're going to have both Mario Cuomo and Mayor Koch serving the people of this state," Cuomo told hundreds of cheering supporters at a Manhattan hotel.

"I am supporting the Democratic candidate Mario Cuomo," a glum Koch told his campaign workers. "I urge you and all my supporters to do the same in November."

Cuomo defeated Koch by capturing 53 percent of the vote. With 98 percent of the vote counted, Cuomo had 667,530 votes to Koch's 592,620, or 47 percent.

Cuomo owed his upset to votes from blacks, Italian-Americans, union households and people who decided to vote for him at the last minute, according to a poll of voters by The Associated Press and WNBC-TV.

While the polls showed voters approved of Koch's performance as mayor, they didn't necessarily want him as governor. Only a narrow majority of voters who thought he was doing a good job endorsed him for the state's top job.

On the Republican side,

Curran refused to endorse Lehrman — at least for now. However, Curran said he had "no intention of supporting any other candidate."

"The real election begins tonight," Lehrman said, smiling.

With 98 percent of the vote counted, Lehrman had 444,400 votes, or 81 percent, to 107,080, or 19 percent, for Curran.

On Jan. 15, Gov. Hugh Carey said he would not seek a third, four-year term and set up the race between Cuomo, 50, and Koch, 57.

It was the second time the two had clashed in an election. In the 1977 mayoral race, Koch came out the victor.

In the GOP Senate primary, voters picked state Assemblywoman Florence Sullivan, a conservative Republican, to face Moynihan. She beat two moderate Republicans — former U.S. Attorney Whitney North Seymour and ex-state Banking Superintendent Muriel Siebert.

With 98 percent of the vote in, Mrs. Sullivan had 204,568 votes or 42 percent, Seymour had 142,332 votes, 29 percent, and Miss Siebert received 141,714 votes, 29 percent.

Moynihan, with 98 percent of the vote counted, had 882,591 votes or 84 percent, to Klenetsky's 161,932 votes.

While Koch was losing his primary, the two men he had wanted to run with him on the ticket — Westchester County Executive Alfred DelBello for lieutenant governor and former state Sen. Raymond Gallagher for state comptroller — both scored victories.

Deputies Acquitted In Shooting Case

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP) — A jury's acquittal of four Gaston County deputies on a charge of firing into an occupied vehicle during a car chase was a victory for law enforcement, a defense attorney says.

"It's a great day for law enforcement," Charlotte lawyer John Plumides said after the verdict was rendered Thursday. "I think it was a just verdict, and I'm very happy for my client. But it was a tough case. I don't think I've ever been involved in a tougher case."

Deputies Paul Scalf, Jim Neff, Vernon Hill and retired deputy Ralph Miller were charged after a pre-dawn chase in Gastonia on May 27.

Suzanne Starnes, 24, a Gaston County Employment and Training Department employee, filed charges, claiming the deputies chased her and illegally fired at her car.

Ms. Starnes testified she didn't stop because she did not know who they were. She said the men were in a black, unmarked car and shabbily dressed. At one point, she said, one of the men pointed a gun at her head.

The deputies admitted chasing her car and firing at it, but said they acted reasonably and in the line of duty because they suspected a parole violator was in the car.

The jury was instructed to find the four innocent if it decided the deputies believed they were defending themselves or each other or were trying to arrest a person they thought was using a deadly weapon to escape.

FOCUS

Poetic Paradox

T.S. Eliot, Nobel Prize-winning poet, was born on September 26, 1888, in St. Louis. His revolutionary style gave 20th century poetry its modern tone and direction. Eliot was the first major English-language poet to introduce the theme of man's alienation in society, which has dominated literature ever since. But the poet himself was staunchly conservative in both his politics and his religion. Following his conversion to Christianity, Eliot came to see even his own progressive poetry in the light of tradition. In 1927 when he became a British citizen, he described himself as "Anglo-Catholic in religion, royalist in politics and classicist in literature."

DO YOU KNOW — In which T.S. Eliot poem does the world end "not with a bang but a whimper?"

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — A baseball diamond is 90 feet square.

University Of Arizona Is In Shrimp Business

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — It seems a bit incongruous, but the University of Arizona is big on raising and harvesting shrimp.

Shrimp-boats aren't a'comin', but the desert-docked university and two commercial partners are close to being in the big-time shrimp-raising business. They're planning to take a major step in the field of aquaculture, off the northern shore of Oahu, Hawaii.

"If everything goes well, we would hope that construction would begin early next year" on the world's first large, environmentally controlled shrimp production facility, says Carl N. Hodges, director of Arizona's Environmental Research Laboratory. The multimillion-dollar facility will be justified, he said, "by the added numbers."

He said production is expected to be from 50 to 100 times greater than from a conventional shrimp-raising pond, one of the methods now used by commercial shrimpers in addition to harvesting at sea. The farmed shrimp will be priced competitively, Hodges said.

The lab has been conducting research since 1973 to develop a method for intensive cultivation of shrimp using what are called aquacells — air-inflated plastic greenhouses. Since 1980, they've developed a prototype commercial farm on Oahu.

Hodges first came up with the notion of trying to increase the world's shrimp supply while traveling in 1967 on a Rockefeller Foundation grant. He said it became evident that there was not going to be a natural increase, and that commercial efforts through ponds were having little more luck. The harvest, all in all, seemed stagnant.

"I decided there ought to be a way to produce shrimp ... to grow them in a controlled environment," he said in an interview.

So he got the lab to set to work, and by 1975, "we were able to get them breeding," he said.

Initial work was done jointly with the University of Sonora at Puerto Penasco, Mexico. Since a break stemming from a disagreement with the Mexican university in 1980, Arizona scientists have been working at Oahu.

Commercial backers of the project currently are W.R. Grace & Co. and the F.H. Prince Co. The Coca-Cola Co. provided funding from 1975 until 1981, when it sold its interest to Prince. Prince sold half its interest to Grace earlier this year. Prince and Grace are providing about $2 million for research this year, Hodges said.

The university is responsible for the research effort; when the project goes commercial, it will receive royalties of 3 percent initially, then 1 percent of sales, for about 10 years, Hodges said.

The aquacells are large, inflated plastic bubbles a few hundred yards from shore, filled with shallow troughs of seawater, called raceways, that serve as hatcheries, Hodges said. Baby shrimp are grown in the controlled environment, fed a high-nutritional special diet, with warm, clean seawater continually circulated from seawater wells next to shore, and the amount of oxygen and other factors also controlled.

There are no predators.

"Size is determined by what's best from a market standpoint," Hodges said, with the shrimp normally ready for harvesting and freezing between three and six months.

Hodges said a conventional shrimp pond typically yields about 1,000 pounds-per-acre annually of tails — "maybe 2,000." The Arizona-designed venture should yield 50,000 to 100,000 per acre — and the plant may cover 10 or more acres.

"These are intensive systems," he added.

Hawaii, the U.S. mainland and Japan are all attractive markets for the crop, he said.

Seawater of the proper temperature is found around the Earth, making such plants feasible in many areas, he said, and he added that the technology could be adapted to raising lobsters and other seafood.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices fell in moderate trading today, continuing a retreat from a 13-month high.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down 9.02 points in the two previous sessions, slid another 4.78 points to 920.99 after two hours of trading.

More than six stocks fell in price for every five that rose in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Meanwhile, Alice Rivlin, director of the Congressional Budget Office, said recovery from recession may not begin until year's end.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed stock fell 13 to 70.85. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 35 to 290.57.

Big Board volume reached 25.29 million shares at noon, down from the 31.81 million at the same time Thursday.

Air Products & Chemicals topped the NYSE active list, up 1/8 at 28 3/4, in trading that included a block of 1,011,700 shares changing hands at 28 3/4 a share.

Win $1 Million In Death Suit

NEW BERN - A federal civil court jury Wednesday awarded the heirs of Frances Sutton Bailey, 54, of Kinston $1 million in connection with her death from injuries received in an Aug. 1, 1981, traffic accident on Interstate 85 near Greensboro.

Mrs. Bailey died Feb. 27 after being in a coma since her car collided with a truck owned by Haup Contract Carriers Inc. of Wausau, Wis.

The driver of the truck, Alvin Lee Kemp, pleaded guilty to safe movement violation charges in state court and paid a small fine and court costs.

The federal jury ruled that the driver and owners of the truck were negligent in that the truck, while changing lanes, ran up on top of the Bailey car and dragged it 800 feet down the highway.

Attorneys for Mrs. Bailey's estate - Marvin Blount Jr., Charles Hardee and Wayne Hardee, all of Greenville - had sought $10 million in the negligence suit.

"We were most pleased" with the jury's decision, Blount said today.

A retired school teacher, Mrs. Bailey is survived by two daughters, Cecelia Bailey of Berkeley, Calif., and Becky Bailey of Wrightsville Beach, and one son, Randy Bailey of Greenville.

Strong Chippewas Invade Pirate Turf

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 Maybe people don't know a lot about Central Michigan University in these parts, but members of the East Carolina University coaching staff have no qualms about calling the Chippewas the best team coming into Ficklen Stadium this fall.

The two teams will meet Saturday night at 7 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium, as the Pirates reach the mid-point in their short and early home season.

Central Michigan comes into the game with a 1-1 record, having topped Indiana State in its opener, 35-10. Then, last week, Bowling Green held off a late Chippewa rally to gain a 34-30 decision. In that game, the Chippewas had driven for a first down at the Bowling Green 11 with 52 seconds left in the contest, but suffered an interception which cost them the game.

East Carolina also comes into the game with a 1-1 record. The Pirates bowed to unbeaten N.C. State, 33-25, in their opener, then ripped East Tennessee, 30-0, for their first shutout in four years.

Central Michigan, however, is not in the same class with East Tennessee, but is much closer to the Wolfpack team that beat the Pirates.

"I think they're one heckuva football team," ECU Coach Ed Emory said. "They have an identity problem here, however, and our fans and players don't know who they are."

"But I can tell you they have a fine offensive team, with a good quarterback. They have a tailback, (Curtis) Adams, who has gotten a lot of yards, but he's hurt and we don't know if he'll be ready to play."

Adams, a 6-1, 185-pound sophomore, pulled a hamstring against Bowling Green and is still listed as uncertain for Saturday's game. According to the CMU Sports Information Office, Adams was not listed on the travel squad for the weekend.

Adams raced for 145 yards on 24 carries against Indiana State and followed that with over 100 yards in the first half against Bowling Green before he was sidelined with the injury.

Should he be unable to play, Central Michigan will probably start either LaBron Oldham, who has just 18 carries for 48 yards. A 5-10, 175-pound junior, he has seen only limited playing time. Another possibility could be 5-8, 180-pound sophomore Calvin Robinson.

The quarterback spoken of in glowing terms by Emory is 6-1, 190-pound junior Bob DeMarco. He's connected on 24 of 43 passes this year for 421 yards and four touchdowns. He hit over 50 percent of his passes last year for over 1,000 yards and five touchdowns.

Primary receivers include split ends Jamie Jackson (7-159-2 TDs), Stephen Jones (6-103-2), and tight end Rich Baskins (4-62-1).

Emory is also convinced that the Chippewas are a good defensive team too, despite giving up 34 points last week.

"Their offense, while a fine one, made several mistakes that Bowling Green was able to take advantage of for scores."

The defense, a 5-2, is led by linebacker Ray Bentley, a 6-2, 220-pound senior who was all-conference last year. He leads the team in tackles with 35. Safety Jim Bowman, a 6-2, 200-pound sophomore, is next with 20.

The Chippewas returned seven regulars on offense and six on defense this year, giving them a good nucleus.

Emory feels that Central compares quite well with N.C. State. "They're equal in just about every area, with the possible exception of the defensive secondary. State is quicker there. They're also better than Toledo (another MAC team) that came in here last year and gave us all we wanted."

The Pirates won that game, 28-24, but Toledo went on to win the MAC title with an 8-3 overall record, then beat San Jose State in the California Bowl.

"They give you that good-ol'-boy farm image," Emory said of the CMU team, "and then knock your heads off."

Michigan — it's the only thing on my mind for sure."

East Carolina's new information has generated the offense, an average of 420 yards a game. The offense is led by quarterback Greg Stewart, who has passed for 342 yards on 21 of 37 attempts. He's had three picked off, hitting two touchdowns.

On the ground, the Pirates are led by freshman Tony Baker at tailback, with 149 yards, while fullback Earnest Byner had 102 yards.

Tailback Jimmy Walden, a sophomore who missed the first two games, has been cleared to play along with linebacker P.J. Jordan, both coming off injuries sustained in pre-season drills. However, lineman Oscar Tyson suffered a knee injury during practice this week, and underwent surgery and will be lost for his final ECU season.

Top receivers include Carlton Nelson with seven catches for 175 yards and two touchdowns, and Ricky Nichols, with four for 44 yards and one score.

Following Saturday's contest, East Carolina travels to Columbia, Mo., to face Big Eight member Missouri, while Central Michigan returns to the Mid-America Conference, facing Eastern Michigan on the road.

Robinson Goes For No. 300

By The Associated Press
 Bear Bryant has done it. So have Amos Alonzo Stagg and Pop Warner.

After Saturday, you might be able to add the name of Eddie Robinson to that illustrious trio because if Robinson's Grambling Tigers beat Florida A&M, it will be the coach's 300th career victory.

Robinson, who has been coaching at Grambling since 1941, isn't very comfortable in the spotlight. He said that in the past, "I'd walk on campus and students would wave and say, 'Coach Rob' and walk on," he said. "Now they come across the street and shake hands and call me 'Mr. Robinson.'"

"When the student body starts treating me like I'm someone else, I can't deal with it."

Robinson hasn't had much trouble dealing with on-field matters, however. As Grambling assistant coach Lee Melvin said, "Our preparations haven't changed for this week. We know we'll have stiff competition against FAMU and, for that reason, I know he wants to win it."

Bryant tops the all-time list with 318 victories and his fourth-ranked Alabama squad hosts Vanderbilt this week.

Elsewhere Saturday, top-ranked Washington hosts Oregon; No. 2 Nebraska takes its high-powered offense to No. 8 Penn State; third-ranked Pitt journeys to No. 19 Illinois; fifth-rated Florida is at home against Mississippi State; sixth-ranked Southern Methodist hosts Texas Christian in a night game; No. 7 Georgia goes to South Carolina for a night contest; No. 9 Arkansas hosts Mississippi in another night game, and 10th-ranked Notre Dame entertains Purdue.

Also, it will be Army at No. 11 North Carolina; 12th-rated UCLA at No. 20 Michigan; Stanford at No. 13 Ohio State; No. 14 Arizona State at California; Michigan State at No. 16 Miami, Fla.; Missouri at 17th-ranked Texas, and No. 18 Southern Cal at Oklahoma.

The live television rights to the USC-Oklahoma game were sold earlier in the week by the schools to an Oklahoma City station after U.S. District Court Judge Juan Burciaga ruled that the NCAA did not have the right to peddle the games to the networks. But the NCAA received a temporary stay of that ruling and the only games shown live this weekend will be on ABC (Stanford at Ohio State), CBS (Nebraska-Penn State), and the Turner Broadcasting System's cable network (Syracuse-Indiana).

The Pitt-Illinois contest will showcase two of the top quarterbacks in the nation, the Panthers' Dan Marino and the Illini's Tony Eason. Marino has gotten off to a slow start but Eason is eighth in the nation in total offense with 270 yards a game for 3-0 Illinois.

"Pittsburgh is the best team in the nation," said Illini Coach Mike White. "I don't care what the polls say."

"We're not intimidated and we're not afraid. This will be a good measuring stick to see just how far Illinois football has come. We probably haven't earned the national respect but we're trying to earn it now."

Ohio State, which had a porous pass defense last season but has permitted only 15 pass completions in 49 attempts during victories over Baylor and Michigan State, will be tested by strong-armed John Elway of Stanford.

"He has the greatest delivery I've ever seen," said Buckeyes Coach Earle Bruce. "We have to contain and pressure him."

Another red-hot quarterback is Penn State's Todd Blackledge. In guiding the Nittany Lions to three straight victories, Blackledge fired four touchdown passes in each game. Penn State has scored 119 points this season, but that's just nine more than the Cornhuskers, who have played one fewer contest.

Last week, Nebraska set an NCAA record for total offense with 883 yards in blitzing New Mexico State 68-0.

Other games feature Northern Illinois at Northwestern, which has lost 34 in a row, an NCAA mark; Boston College at Navy; Tennessee at Auburn; Virginia at Duke; Kansas at Kentucky; Rice at LSU; Oklahoma State at Louisville; North Carolina State at Maryland; Georgia Tech at Memphis State;

Florida State at Southern Mississippi; Drake at Iowa State; Wichita State at Kansas State; Washington State at Minnesota; Toledo at Wisconsin; Lamar at Houston; Louisiana Tech at Texas A&M; Baylor at Texas Tech; Iowa at Arizona; Air Force at Brigham Young; Wyoming at Colorado; New Mexico State at Colorado State, and San Jose State at Oregon State.

TAKES ADVANTAGE
 PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — When the big names of golf go elsewhere, a 25-year-old pro, Payne Stewart, moves into the breach.

The top stars went off to Scotland for the British Open in July and Stewart won first money in the Quad Cities Open. Earlier in the year, when the Masters was played, Payne captured the Magnolia Classic.

Stewart wasn't eligible for the Masters but he will be next April, thanks to his victory in the Quad Cities.

"But we've got some good-ol'-boys too," he added. "If we can come out and be 2-1 and stay healthy it will be good," he continued. "And I don't think nobody is looking past them to Missouri. We're looking forward to Central

Why small businesses like PEP!

PEP has helped countless small businesses attract top quality job applicants and reduce employee turnover by providing them with a modern, low-cost program of group insurance protection for their employees. PEP (Progressive Employers Program) was specially developed by United of Omaha to provide businesses employing as few as three people with the kind of advanced health and life insurance protection employees want and need today. Making PEP particularly attractive to employers is the fact that employer contributions to the program are tax-deductible under present Federal Income Tax law.

If you have a small business and would like to know more about this valuable program, call or write us today.

Kinston Tops Rose Kickers

KINSTON — Hosting Kinston High School ambushed Rose High School's young soccer team yesterday, rolling to a 4-0 victory over the Rampants.

The Vikings got on the scoreboard 25 minutes into the first half on a direct kick, then came back about six minutes later with another goal off a header. That made it 2-0 at the half.

In the second half, Kinston added two more scores. The first came 15 minutes in on a free kick, and the other with about ten minutes left to play.

"We had some very good offensive play by Jim Parker, who had a total of six shots in the game, and by Jeff Stallings in the first half," Coach Will Wiberg said. "Jim Carter and Jordy Smith both played well in the second half."

Goalie Mike Taylor had 20 saves during the contest, as Kinston had 30 shots on goal to just 15 for Rose.

The win leaves Kinston with a 2-2 record, while Rose is now 1-1-1. The Rampants play host to Wilson Fike on Tuesday.

The standings tightened up a little last week as Tom Baines and Vickie Spivey both had 7-4 weeks and the rest of us all went 8-3. The tie game between Clemson and Boston College was thrown out.

That left Baines still in first place with a 25-10 mark, closely followed by our guests, Joe Jenkins and Rick Scoppe, all tied at 24-11. We're next at 23-12, followed by Spivey at 22-13.

Our guest last week, Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, turned in an 8-3 record, but still trails Mel Lang's 9-3 mark the first week.

Our guest this week is Margaret Register, Supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Meanwhile, our high school picks from last week saw another tie game as North Pitt and West Craven deadlocked a 6-6. That's almost beyond belief — to have four tie games over a four-week period. We'd be willing to venture that there haven't been four tie games in the area in the past four years prior to this season.

At any rate, the week turned into a 4-2-1 record, which brings the overall mark to 17-5-4 for the season.

This week, there are several interesting games, including one cross-county contest.

In that one, Ayden-Grifton travels to Conley. Since AG beat Farmville, 24-6 and Farmville beat Conley, 40-0, that should mean a 64-6 win, but you can forget that. We believe that the Chargers will win it, but it won't be anything like that. We look for more in the neighborhood of 35-6.

North Pitt plays its first Eastern Carolina Conference game against Southern Nash, a team that hasn't won yet. There's some added incentive, regardless of what coach B.T. Chappel says since former Panther coach Pat Smith is now the head coach at Southern Nash. Our pick in this one is North Pitt, by 13-8.

Finally, in the county, Farmville Central travels to Havelock. The Jaguars are coming off their first win of the year, over Conley, while Havelock is unbeaten. The Jaguars could use this one badly, but no upset this year. Havelock is the pick, 28-8.

Elsewhere in the area, it will be Roanoke over Plymouth, Bertie over Williamston, SouthWest Edgecombe over Greene Central, and Bath over Jamesville.

Turning to the picks of the panel, we find the two area games first — Rose at Northern Nash and East Carolina hosting Central Michigan.

The Rampants have won but once, in their last outing, while Northern has only one strike against it — also in the last outing. The panel calls it a toss-up, splitting on a 3-3 vote, but our own choice is Rose, 21-14.

East Carolina entertains strong Central Michigan, needing this intersectional win. If the Pirates can make themselves more interesting than they did last week, they should win. The panel gives them the nod, 6-0, and our pick is ECU by 24-21.

Our other consensus picks: Clemson over Western Carolina, Georgia Tech over Memphis State, North Carolina over Army, Florida State over Southern Mississippi, Oklahoma over Southern California, Duke over Virginia, Maryland over N.C. State, Wake Forest over Appalachian State, Nebraska over Penn State, and Michigan over UCLA.

E.B. Aycock Ties Nash Central

NASHVILLE — Nash Central scored late in the contest yesterday and pulled out a 6-6 tie with E.B. Aycock Junior High School. It was the first game of the year for the Jaguars.

Aycock scored first, getting a second period score from Dwight Smith, who pulled in a 17-yard pass from Evin Best for the touchdown. The PAT kick, however, was blocked, leaving it at 6-0.

It stayed that way until late in the final period when Nash Central turned a fumble into a score. Reggie Ricks went over from six yards out and a two-point run try failed, leaving it at 6-6.

Aycock picked up 260 yards in offense as compared to 115 for Nash, but was slowed by 65 yards in penalties as compared to just five for Nash.

Coaches singled out Dal Perkins, Todd Morris, Skip Pascasio and James Matthews for their defensive play and Anthony Cobb, Sterling Edwards and Walt Pollard for their offensive play.

Now 0-0-1, Aycock plays host to Rocky Mount next Thursday.

A.G. Cox 26

Farmville 6

FARMVILLE — Brian Joyner scored two touchdowns and A.G. Cox's defense held Farmville Middle School in check most of the way as the Raiders defeated the Patriots, 26-6, Thursday in the season-opener for both teams.

Ricky Farrow hit Joyner with a 30-yard scoring toss to give Cox a 6-0 lead. Joyner later recovered a fumble in the end zone to up the Raiders' lead to 12-0 at the half.

Cox upped its lead to 18-0 when Aaron Freeman carried over from three yards out in the third period.

The Patriots cut the gap to 18-6 later in the period but Bronswell Patrick hit Amzie Hoffner with a 29-yard pass and Patrick added the two points to give the Raiders a 26-6 lead.

Farrow, Joyner and Eric Peoples led the Cox defense.

Ayden 34

Savannah 0
GRIFTON — Alex Chapman

scored on runs of 50 and 33 yards to spark Ayden Middle School to a 34-0 victory over Savannah yesterday. Jesse Hooker also scored two touchdowns and added a PAT run. Hooker's runs were 43 and 12 yards.

Desi Carmon scored on a 25-yard run. Ty Little also passed to Todd Sparrow for a two-point conversion.

The game was the first for both teams.

Rose Girls In Sixth Victory

KINSTON — Rose High School swept through the doubles after splitting the singles and came away with a 6-3 win over the Valkyries yesterday, remaining unbeaten in Big East tennis play.

Pauline Bearden, Barbara Little and Susan Evans each claimed singles wins as the two teams split the singles, 3-3. But Rose then took all three of the doubles to sew up the win.

Now 6-0, Rose plays host to Fike on Tuesday.

Summary:
Pauline Bearden (R) d. Jarma Smith, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.
Louise Cherry (K) d. Louise Evans, 7-6, 6-3.
Cindy Dawson (K) d. Marsha Tart, 6-2, 6-4.

Ann Sabastian (K) d. Hayes Warren, 7-5, 6-1.
Tart-Little (R) d. Smith-Sabastian, 8-4.
Kristi Logue-Janet Mizelle (R) d. Cherry-Hodge, 8-4.
Evans-Warren (R) d. Dawson-Houck, 8-6.
Exhibition: Lisa Parrott (R) d. Sara Anderson, 8-3; Caroline Powell (R) d. Kim Murphy, 8-1.

C.B. Aycock 9

Greene Central 0

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock dropped just two games as the Lady Falcons extended their unbeaten streak to 31 straight with an easy 9-0 win over Greene Central Thursday in an Eastern Carolina Conference tennis match.

The Lady Rams, now 2-4, won only one game in six singles matches and one game in three doubles matches.

The Lady Rams return to action Tuesday when they play host to James Kenan.

Summary:
Lisa Bunn (CBA) d. Katie Harrison 6-0, 6-1.
Sherri Williams (CBA) d. Glenda Mooring 6-0, 6-0.

Brenda Montague (CBA) d. Carla Edwards 6-0, 6-0.

Brewers, Orioles Opening Key Series

By The Associated Press
The Baltimore Orioles are in good position to win the American League East pennant, according to Manager Earl Weaver.

"All we have to do is win nine out of 10, and we're the champions," Weaver said after the Orioles lost 10-5 to the Detroit Tigers Thursday night. "It's as simple as that, no matter what Milwaukee does."

The Orioles, who trail Milwaukee by three games, play the first-place Brewers seven times in the last 10 games of the season, starting tonight in Milwaukee. The two teams finish the season with a four-game series in Baltimore.

In the only other AL games Thursday, California had its West Division lead cut to 2½ games with a 5-4 defeat at Texas, and Chicago bombed Seattle 12-4.

The Orioles, in losing for only the seventh time in their last 34 games, didn't look like a pennant contender.

The Tigers pounded 15 hits, including a pair of two-run homers by Larry Herndon, a two-run homer by Howard

Johnson and a solo shot by Mike Ivie. Meanwhile, Baltimore committed a season-high five errors and also ran into a bases-loaded double play on a foul fly ball after scoring five third-inning runs to go ahead 5-2.

"I'm not upset. Why should I be upset?" Weaver said. "We've played outstanding ball all year long. Now all we have to do is continue to do it."

Weaver, in his last season as manager of the Orioles, said the loss to Detroit simply made winning the pennant one game harder.

"If we had won, we would have only needed eight out of 10," he said. "Now it's nine of 10. It's not that hard if we do what we've been doing for the last 40 days."

In addition to his two homers, Herndon also doubled to lead off the seventh and scored to snap a 5-5 tie when shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. threw wildly past first base on an infield single by Chet Lemon.

Two more runs scored in the inning on a pinch single by John Wockenfuss and a double by Lynn Jones.

Herndon clouted his second two-run homer in the eighth. He now has 23 homers, one less than he hit in seven seasons (694 games) prior to this season.

"I go out and play hard, and do what I can to win," Herndon said, rejecting a suggestion that he might enjoy knocking off a contender. "I approach all games like that."

After Herndon's first homer gave Detroit a 2-0 lead in the third, Baltimore scored five in the bottom of the inning to chase starter Dan Petry. Eddie Murray's 29th homer, giving him 100 RBI, accounted for two runs.

Dave Rucker, 3-6, pitched 62-3 shutout innings, allowing four hits, to pick up the victory.

Rangers 5, Angels 4

California came back from a 4-0 deficit to tie the game, but the rally went for naught as catcher Bob Boone's throwing error in the ninth inning allowed Texas' Nick Capra to score the winning run from third base.

With the loss, the Angels' lead in the West was cut to 2½ games over idle Kansas City.

Texas, which had scored four runs in the first inning on an RBI single by John Grubb, a two-run triple by Jim Sundberg and a balk, got the winning run with one out in the ninth off reliever Mike Witt, 8-6. Dave Hostetler singled and Capra, in to run for him, moved to third on Mike Richardt's single.

With pinch-hitter Pete O'Brien at the plate, Boone tried a snap-throw to third, but the ball was low and went into left field, allowing Capra to score.

Joe Ferguson hit a solo homer in the third to start California's short-lived comeback.

"You hate to lose one that way but we've had our share of the breaks lately," said Angels Manager Gene Mauch, whose team had won five games in a row before Thursday's defeat. "We made a good comeback after being down 4-0 in the first inning. It was just one of those nights." White Sox 12, Mariners 4

Tom Paciorek, Harold

Baines and Vance Law had three RBI each to power Chicago past Seattle.

Rudy Law had three hits, stole two bases and scored four runs for the White Sox, while veteran left-hander Jerry Koosman, 11-6, pitched seven innings to win his ninth game in 10 lifetime decisions against Seattle.

Paciorek's three RBI came on his 10th homer of the season, all of them on the road. Baines knocked in his three runs with a double, a single and a sacrifice fly, while Vance Law had a scoring single and a homer.

Mark Hill also homered for the White Sox.

Seattle's Bruce Bochy set a club record when he went 4-for-4, extending his consecutive hits to seven in two games.

Rudd Captures Dominion Pole

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Ricky Rudd says his second Grand National stock car race pole start in two weeks is something in the form of a present for car owner Richard Childress and his crew.

"This pole means a whole lot more to me than the one I won here last year because I wanted to give Richard and the crew something back for all they have done this year," Rudd said after he captured the No. 1 spot Thursday for Sunday's Old Dominion 500.

Rudd, who also won the pole last week for the CRC Chemicals 500 at Dover, Del., turned in a fast lap of 89.132 mph in his Pontiac over the .525-mile Martinsville Speedway track.

"The crew has worked since Sunday to repair this car," said Rudd, who wrecked his vehicle at Dover after starting in the No. 1 spot.

"They didn't sleep at all last (Wednesday) night," he added. "They've only slept eight hours since Dover."

Rudd was well off the Old Dominion 500 and track qualifying record of 90.052 mph set last fall by Terry Labonte, who finished fourth Thursday in a Chevrolet with a speed of 88.329 mph.

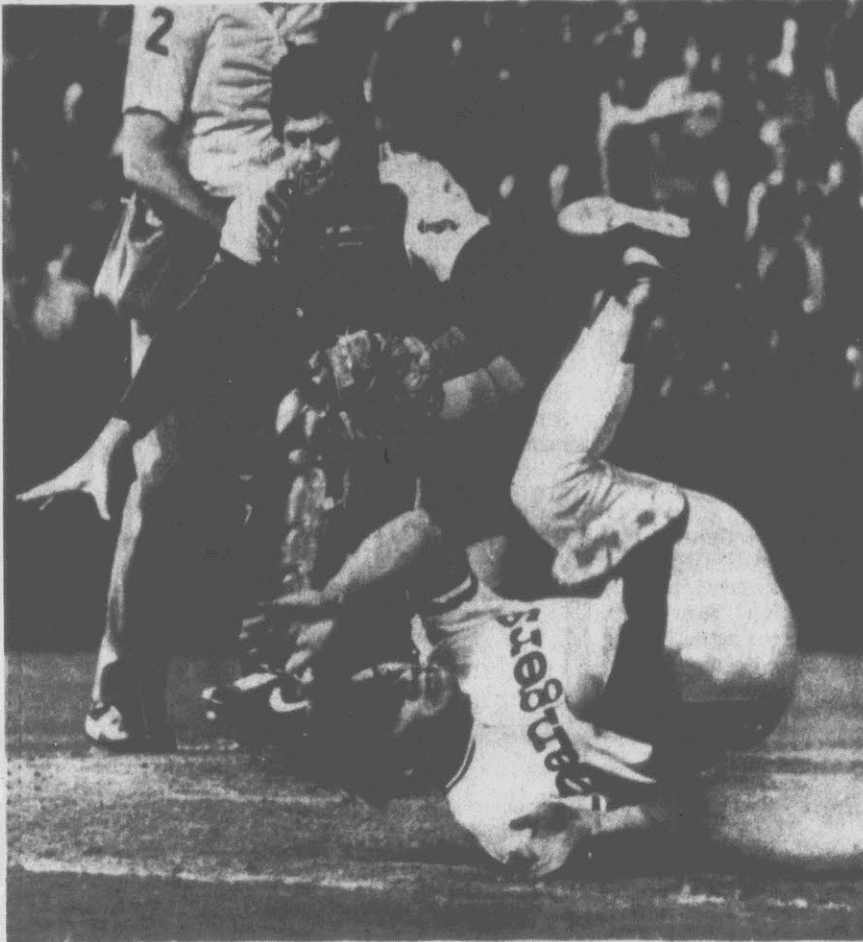

Earning the second and third spots were Harry Gant with a speed of 88.787 mph in a Buick and defending Old Dominion 500 champion Darrell Waltrip at 88.515 mph, also in a Buick.

The first 10 spots for Sunday's $202,700 race, which starts at 12:30 p.m., EDT, were decided Thursday with the other 20 on the line today.

Also qualifying were Geoff Bodine, Winston Cup point leader Bobby Allison, Buddy Baker, Morgan Shepherd, Neil Bonnett and Dave Marcis.

The qualifiers Friday for Sunday's Old Dominion 500 Grand National stock car race at Martinsville Speedway with driver, make of car and qualifying speed in mph:

1. Ricky Rudd, Pontiac, 89.132
2. Harry Gant, Buick, 88.787
3. Darrell Waltrip, Buick, 88.515
4. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet, 88.329
5. Geoff Bodine, Pontiac, 88.148
6. Bobby Allison, Chevrolet, 88.115
7. Buddy Baker, Pontiac, 88.020
8. Morgan Shepherd, Buick, 87.955
9. Neil Bonnett, Ford, 87.865
10. Dave Marcis, Chevrolet, 87.865

Cubs Down Northern

Rose High School scored twice in the second period and held Northern Nash scoreless until the final ten seconds of play yesterday to gain a 14-6 junior varsity football victory.

The win was the third in four starts for the Rampant Cubs, and was also their first Big East Conference game.

Quarterback Todd Martin accounted for both scores, passing 34 yards to Tyrone Vines for the first, and running three yards for the second.

Brian Bridges added PAT kicks after each score.

Northern scored with nine seconds left in the game.

Robert Joyner and Butch Haskins were cited for their offensive play by the Rose coaching staff, while Ronnie Moore, Bill Zadiets, Amos Edwards and Michael Walsh drew praise on defense.

Rose travels to Rocky Mount next Thursday.

Havelock 16
Farmville C. 6

FARMVILLE — Down by a touchdown at halftime, Havelock came back to score twice in the second half to slip by Farmville Central, 16-6, Thursday night in a junior varsity football game.

The win leaves Havelock at 5-0 this season and was the Rams' 24th consecutive victory.

Farmville, now 0-2, was the first team to score on Havelock this season.

After a scoreless first period, the Jaguars took a 6-0 in the second quarter when Bobby Evans connected with Bill Blount on a five-yard scoring pass. The point after failed, but Farmville led at the half, 6-0.

The Rams came back in the third period on a two-yard run by B.J. Walker to tie the game and Charles Morrison went over for the two points to give Havelock a 8-6 lead.

The Rams sealed the victory in the fourth quarter when Gerald Soonsen picked off a pass and returned it 30 yards for a TD. The two point conversion was good and Havelock escaped with the win.

Fullback Edward Davis led the Jaguars in rushing with 80 yards in 20 carries. Defensive tackle Jerome Daniels had 12 tackles.

Farmville returns to action Thursday when it travels to SouthWest Edgecombe.

With pinch-hitter Pete O'Brien at the plate, Boone tried a snap-throw to third, but the ball was low and went into left field, allowing Capra to score.

Joe Ferguson hit a solo homer in the third to start California's short-lived comeback.

"You hate to lose one that way but we've had our share of the breaks lately," said Angels Manager Gene Mauch,

Rozelle Says He's Willing To Mediate

By The Associated Press
The leaders of the opposing negotiating teams in the National Football League players strike are making plans to meet again, which is more than the NFL teams can do with the strike now in its fourth day.

CBS and ABC, meanwhile, are planning to fill the pro football void on television with college football.

The league announced Thursday that it had officially called off Sunday's 12 games, though no decision has been made on Monday night's Cleveland-Cincinnati contest. Later in the day, Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, and Jack Donlan, head of the NFL Management Council — the league's bargaining arm — exchanged communications Thursday about resuming negotiations.

No negotiations have been held since last Friday but Garvey sent a message to Donlan saying that the union is prepared to enter round-the-clock negotiations. Donlan's reply said, "We are and have been ready to bargain for months. We are prepared to meet with you at a mutually agreeable location. I will call you tomorrow (today) about establishing a site."

In a related development, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle was quoted today as saying he would be willing to mediate the dispute. "If both sides want me to help, I'll be glad ...," Washington-based USA Today quoted Rozelle as saying in an interview Thursday night.

The players' association long has sought Rozelle's participation, but the Management Council has balked. The council has said that as commissioner, Rozelle could not sit at either side of the table.

Even though the NFL's 28 teams will receive between $32 and $35 million from ABC, CBS and NBC for the next two weeks — whether or not any games are played — plans to televise college games Sunday are in the works. Tom Hansen, assistant executive director of the NCAA and the director of its college football television programming, told The Daily Oklahoman that ABC, CBS and Turner Broadcasting System were near an agreement with the NCAA, which would call for the broadcasting of college games on Sunday afternoons during the NFL strike.

Jay Rosenstein, a spokesman for CBS, confirmed that such negotiations are under way and that any college games telecast on Sundays would be in addition to the Saturday games shown by the networks. ABC and CBS would alternate weeks on the Sunday telecasts, while TBS would not show any Sunday games but also must approve the deal.

"We had discussions throughout the past couple of months with the NCAA," Rosenstein said. "It remains a strong possibility that games will be moved to Sunday and we've geared it toward Oct. 3."

"It's accurate that these would be additional games (to the network packages)."

The expected announcement calling off Sunday's games came in a statement from league spokesman Jim Helferman:

"The 12 National Football League games scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 27, will not be played because of the players strike. No decision has been made yet regarding the Cincinnati-at-Cleveland Monday night game that was to have completed the league's third regular season weekend."

The word "cancel" was not used, however, leading to speculation that games missed during the walkout might be made up when the strike ends.

The NFLPA, hoping to head off the NFL in its attempt to block a series of union-sponsored All-Star games during the strike, filed suit Thursday in U.S. District Court. The 18-game series, tentatively scheduled to begin Oct. 10 at a still-undetermined site, will be telecast by Turner's new Cable Television Network.

"We must stand by our earlier statements that the individually negotiated player contracts are valid," said Management Council spokesman Jim Miller. "The players and Ted Turner have been notified of our position and of our intention to seek injunctive relief to stop the games."

The standard NFL player contract includes three clauses which specifically ban participation in any football game not sanctioned by the league. But the NFLPA claims that such provisions are "no longer enforceable since the expiration of the old Collective Bargaining Agreement, the initiation of a lockout by the Management Council and the threats by the owners to close down for the season."

Named as defendants in the suit were the NFL, the league's bargaining agent, the Management Council, and the 28 individual teams.

Several players held informal workouts with teammates in an attempt to stay in shape. Two Atlanta Falcons, running back Lynn Cain and offensive lineman Pat Howell, joined the union after previously refusing to do so.

"I didn't understand what Ed Garvey was trying to do," said Howell. "I consider myself a member of the union now."

In Denver, where members of the Broncos worked out at a park, three players said that if the owners allowed, they would return to the team's training facility.

"If they do let us go in, I'm going in," said linebacker Randy Gradishar. "I signed a contract with the Denver Broncos, not with the players association. I will honor my contract. I think there will be anywhere from five to 10 players on this team who will come in."

"I stand with everybody else now but if the doors were open, I'd go," added offensive lineman Tom Glassic.

"I respect my teammates' decisions and I would like them to respect mine," added offensive lineman Keith Bishop. "I can't go in now but, if we weren't locked out, I would report."

Is It Rally Time For Giants? SF, LA Open Important Clash

By The Associated Press
In 1951, the New York Giants trailed the National League-leading Brooklyn Dodgers by 13 1/2 games in mid-August ... and won the pennant with a magnificent stretch drive capped by Bobby Thomson's three-run homer in the ninth inning of the deciding playoff game.

In 1962, after the Giants had been moved to San Francisco and the Dodgers to Los Angeles, the Giants trailed by four games with seven to play ... and tied for first place on the final day of the regular season. Then they won the pennant by scoring four ninth-inning runs to win the third and deciding playoff game.

Now, it may be a trifle late for it to happen again, but ... Frank Robinson's Giants bombed the Cincinnati Reds 11-7 Thursday, to creep to within four games of the first-place Dodgers in the National League West. The Giants now meet their old rivals in a three-game series at Dodger Stadium starting tonight.

"We have no fear of the Dodgers whatsoever," Giant catcher Bob Brenny said. "We have beaten them in their park. We have beaten (Fernando) Valenzuela (the Dodgers' Saturday starter). We're confident in our ability to go in there and play good baseball."

Pirates 5, Cardinals 3
Mike Easler's RBI single and Willie Stargell's sacrifice fly gave the Pirates their winning runs and handed the Cards only their second loss in 11 games.

"If we can't win, we'd like to finish second and as high as we can," said Pirate Manager Chuck Tanner, whose club now trails the Cards by 7 1/2 games. "It was a tough game for them to lose and a good game for us to win."

Phillies 2, Expos 0
Gary Matthews drilled a run-scoring double into the right field corner to snap a scoreless tie in the 11th, and Bo Diaz added a sacrifice fly to lift the Phillies to the victory.

Matthews wasn't all that impressed with his hit. "It wasn't that good, but it was in the right place," said Matthews.

Mets 5, Cubs 4
Mookie Wilson doubled, tripled and scored twice to pace the New York attack. The triple was his ninth of the year, tying a Met record.

Ed Lynch, 4-7, checked the Cubs on seven hits, before Jesse Orosco hurled two strong innings to pick up his fourth save.

Valkyries Take Two Matches

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's domination of the Coastal Conference was threatened yesterday in the opening game of the Valkyries' opening league match — but only for a while.

West Craven came into the tri-match, which also featured North Lenoir, and quickly jumped out to a 9-1 lead in the first game.

However, Conley's Lisa Mills dished up 14 consecutive points as Conley rallied for a 15-9 victory. Conley then took the second game, 15-4, as Amy Gibbs hit five straight along the way.

Against North Lenoir, Conley rolled to 15-6, 15-3 wins. Darlene Cannon had seven straight serves in that match.

During the afternoon, Jackie Daniels was credited with nine effective hits, while Karen Barrett had eight.

The Valkyries travel to Havelock on Thursday, facing White Oak and Havelock. Conley is now 10-0 overall and 2-0 in Coastal Conference play.

N. Pitt 2
Rose 0
North Pitt, winning the final game in each match to break a 1-1 deadlock, swept a pair of volleyball matches from Greenville Rose Thursday.

North Pitt captured the first match despite losing the opening game, 15-5. The Pant-HERS won the second game, 15-12, and then took the third, 15-5.

In the second match, the Pant-HERS won the first game, 15-9, before losing the second, 15-5. North Pitt then won the third, 15-10, to win the match.

Rose, now 4-6, was led by Linda Winstead, who had seven straight points in the Ramettes win in the first match. Winstead had five points in the third game of the second match.

North Pitt is now 3-3. Rose plays host to Wilmington Laney Tuesday, while North Pitt is at Greene Central on Wednesday.

The Bite' Plays Corruption Role

By PETER EISNER
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — A rampant corruption institutionalized in a system known as "the mordida" — the bite — is the hidden factor in Mexico's economic crisis that has pushed the nation to the brink of bankruptcy.

The issue has gained new prominence as opposition politicians and hard-pressed businessmen blame corruption for intensifying Mexico's economic problems.

The government has brought tough, unprecedented measures to solve the problem. It has seized the private banking system and called on Mexico to bring their foreign investments home.

It also is proposing a corruption laws that would punish abuse of authority and bribery of government officials, as well as extortion and embezzlement.

Not everyone believes the measures will make a difference in a country where ill-gotten gains are an accepted way of life. There are no statistics to describe the extent of corruption. But testimony is easily available.

"The Mexican crisis is not a financial crisis," said Pablo Emilio Madero, unsuccessful candidate from the conservative National Action Party in the July 4 presidential election.

"It's a crisis of confidence, of trust, of decency... corruption is a national disease, it has weakened the nation," he said in a recent newspaper interview.

From the cab driver on the street to the nation's biggest conglomerates, the bite — corruption, bribes, and influence-peddling — has created a parallel economy of mass proportions.

"It is absolutely impossible to do business here without the corruption factor," said the president of one Mexico City shipping firm. "Every two weeks, I have breakfast with a government official and actually have to pay him right across the table."

"It disgusts me, but it's a fact of life."

One businessman said his firm negotiated the sale of heavy-duty hoses to a federal agency and was able through good bargaining to arrange a kickback of only 15 percent, which he considered a well-arranged deal. But the businessman said he later received an offer to increase the total value of the transaction, with the stipulation that his company could keep the hoses and give a portion of the profits to the head of the agency. Thousands of dollars were involved.

On the other end of the corruption scale, policemen, some of whom have to pay bribes to get their jobs, routinely shake down motorists for 50 pesos — about 75 cents — after stopping them for minor or imagined traffic offenses.

At the international airport in Ciudad Juarez, across the border from El Paso, Texas, a reporter was asked recently to pay customs agents $10 for the right to enter the country with a new baby carriage.

"This will avoid problems later," said the uniformed official, who cited no law and gave no receipt. He whispered to a female agent who slipped the money into her pocket before marking the luggage.

That type of transaction is repeated countless times daily along the 1,760-mile Mexican border, mostly by Mexicans interested in importing electronics goods without paying taxes.

There have been persistent allegations about corruption among high government officials. The opposition magazine Proceso hinted in a recent edition that President Jose Lopez Portillo was building a four-house, multimillion dollar complex in southern Mexico City at government expense.

The report had already been widespread on the rumor circuit but without official comment or documentation, there was no way of proving it. A presidential spokesman said Lopez Portillo was too busy dealing with the nation's monetary crisis to pay attention to the accusations.

Lopez Portillo issued tough currency controls Sept. 1 at the same time he expropriated private banks, which he said were "looting the nation." He issued the measures in his final state of the union message, declaring he would end his six-year term Dec. 1 "with my hands unsoiled by blood or ill-gotten gains."

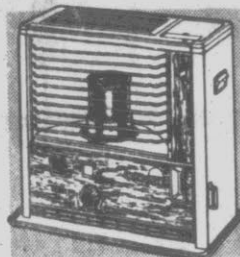

His successor, Harvard-educated Miguel de la Madrid, made corruption the central issue of his campaign. The theme is a favorite of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, to which both Lopez Portillo and de la Madrid belong.

"Every political system throughout history has suffered from the problem of corruption or social immorality," de la Madrid told an interviewer before his election. "Corruption is a permanent human condition. What matters is that it not extend itself, that it be diminished."

A U.S. analyst said, "I'm not sure de la Madrid will be successful in wiping out what is a livelihood for millions of Mexicans. Mexico will never develop until corruption is brought under control."

Opines Shuttle Flight Safer

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Ulf Merbold, the first European chosen to fly on America's space shuttle, says he considers the trip to be safer than motoring through Paris.

Merbold, a 41-year-old physicist who speaks Russian, German and English, will help perform 72 experiments on Space Lab 1, a package designed by the European Space Agency.

Merbold and Byron Lichtenberg, a scientist at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, were selected earlier this week as the first non-astronauts to ride a shuttle. They will be a part of a six-member, seven-day mission scheduled for Sept. 30, 1983.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

LYDIA—EUROPE'S FIRST CHRISTIAN CONVERT !

WHEN PAUL MADE HIS SECOND MISSIONARY JOURNEY HE CAME TO THE CITY OF PHILIPPI IN MACEDONIA (GREECE). PHILIPPI WAS A LARGE CITY DUE TO THE GOLD MINING INDUSTRY IN THE NEARBY MOUNTAINS. ALTHOUGH THERE WERE JEWS LIVING HERE, APPARENTLY THERE WAS NO SYNAGOGUE FOR PAUL HAD TO GO OUTSIDE THE CITY ON THE SABBATH TO A NEARY RIVER WHERE WASHINGS, NECESSARY TO THE RELIGIOUS CEREMONIES, COULD BE PERFORMED. HERE, HE FOUND ONLY A GROUP OF WOMEN ENGAGED IN WORSHIP AND TO THESE HE BEGAN TO PREACH HIS MESSAGE. LYDIA, WHO WAS AMONGST THEM, WAS SO TAKEN BY PAUL'S PREACHING THAT SHE IMMEDIATELY ASKED FOR BAPTISM, INCLUDING HER ENTIRE HOUSEHOLD !

LYDIA WAS NOT JEWISH, HERSELF, BUT WAS A FIRM BELIEVER IN GOD AND WORSHIPPED WITH THE JEWS. SHE WAS A WOMAN OF WEALTH, DEALING IN THE PURPLE-DYED FABRICS MANUFACTURED IN THYATYRA, ONE OF THE LARGE GARMENT CENTERS IN ASIA-MINOR AND FROM WHENCE SHE ORIGINALLY HAILED. AFTER HER BAPTISM, LYDIA PUT HER PALATIAL HOME ENTIRELY AT THE DISPOSAL OF PAUL AND HIS ENTOURAGE FOR THEIR ENTIRE STAY IN THOSE PARTS !

Putting A Value On Time

By MARC RICE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Jehovah's Witnesses believe there are more important things than building a church. That's why they seldom spend more than 48 hours constructing one.

"Time is the most important commodity we have. If we can do it in two years, we can have more time for our family, our congregation and our neighbors," said Charles Leibensperger, presiding elder of a 325-member congregation in Dunwoody, an Atlanta suburb.

The congregation's church, called a Kingdom Hall, was built by volunteers in one weekend last year. It was the first such project in the Southeast but one of about 200 in the United States.

The Witnesses, who worship God under the name of Jehovah, as transliterated from the Bible, are constructing an average of four to six similar halls each month across the nation, and the quick-building system is spreading internationally, to Canada, England and South Africa, said Leibensperger.

Two new halls — in Rome and Lawrenceville — are to be built in Georgia over the next few months.

The halls usually are built by about 300 volunteers who begin work early on Saturday, said Leibensperger, who, as secretary of the denomination's southeastern building committee, coordinates construction in the region.

A meeting usually is held at noon the following Sunday, when the structure is about 80 percent complete, he said.

All construction work, from landscaping, brick laying, electrical wiring and plumbing, to painting, air conditioning, roofing, finishing and feeding the workers, is done in two days, said Leibensperger, who is president of an auto parts distributing firm.

The projects are planned "down to the last nail," he said, adding that all materials needed are arranged at the site before the work begins.

The concept arose from a practical need.

Jehovah's Witnesses are a worldwide faith, with 7,000 congregations in the United States. "They need suitable meeting places. Not big edifices that are expensive and not cost-efficient, but dignified, adequate meeting places," said Leibensperger.

But all members are volunteers, including those in the ministry, and spare time is at a premium.

To make the most of that volunteer force, Leibensperger said a Witness in Kansas, Sam Peck, devised a plan 10 years ago to gather his congregation on a weekend and build a meeting place in as short a time as possible. The only delaying factor then was acquisition of all the materials, but the idea spread, with the technique and materials being refined along the way.

From the time of Peck's original project until last year, Leibensperger said, Witnesses had built about 90 weekend churches. But in the past year, more than 100 have been constructed.

Marley Cole of Roswell, Ga., author of a book and many articles on Jehovah's Witnesses, said prior to the development of two-day construction it took up to two years to build a Kingdom Hall using conventional building methods.

"I went through six drawn out ordeals myself. It's such a strain on a congregation to stretch it out too long, so we really needed a solution. We use the old-fashioned American bar-raising method, and somehow it's done in two days," Cole said.

The key to the project's success or failure lies with how well the volunteers work together, "peacefully and productively," said Cole. "The spirit of competition is just not there."

Wally Frankenstein, one of three supervisors on the Witnesses' southeastern building committee, said, "It's not a profit motive. They're there to help their brothers and sisters."

What makes such rapid-fire building possible, according to an official of the home building industry, is having a large number of people doing the work.

Returning To Conduct Revival

E.L. WILLINGHAM III

The Rev. Edward Lee Willingham III of Davidson will return to Hollywood Presbyterian Church, which he served as pastor from 1951-57, on Sunday to begin a five-day revival.

Willingham will preach nightly through Thursday at 8 p.m. Special music by the Hollywood choir and choirs from other churches will be provided. Vivian Mills is in charge of music and Leida McGowan will be the organist.

Willingham is now director of the Living Endowment at Davidson College. In addition to Hollywood Church, he has served pastorates in Greensboro and in Decatur, Columbus and Macon, Ga.

Weekend Viewing: Gloria And Ricky

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —
Archie Bunker's little girl is on her own and Ricky Schroder moves from films to a television sitcom. Unfortunately for weekend viewers, Sally Struthers can't carry a show without the bigot or the meathead, and little Ricky isn't so adorable — or funny — on the small screen.

"Gloria," beginning Sunday night on CBS, is a sitcom spinoff for Miss Struthers. Cast as a veterinarian's assistant, Gloria and her son have moved to upstate New York after husband Mike left for a commune with another woman.

In NBC's "Silver Spoons," Schroder, who was Jon Voight's huggable son in "The Champ," is a mature 12-year-old living with his rich, nincompoop father. NBC hopes the kiddies who enjoy impish Gary Coleman in "Diff'rent Strokes" will stay tuned for Schroder in his series TV debut Saturday night.

But, while Coleman is convincing as a wise-beyond-his-years kid, Schroder is not. The warmth he exudes in the movies isn't transmitted in TV's intimate close-ups. He's an adult in kids' clothing, but when the child inside is called for, it doesn't come out. Nobody will believe he can really skin his knees.

Joel Higgins, who starred last year in ABC's "Best of the West," is the father who makes every day Christmas, like Dudley Moore in "Arthur." Edward Stratton III's mansion is equipped with king-size trains and when he's not playing Casey Jones, he's acting like Casey Stengel.

The best moments are when the childish Edward plays with his toys. Pac-Man noises punctuate his feelings, and railroad crossings are real hazards. You'll either love him or hate him.

Some of his baby-sitters are good, too: Erin Gray, model-turned-actress, is Edward's devoted secretary. Leonard Lightfoot is his lawyer.

This is NBC's second new show to play father doesn't know best. "Family Ties," about children of the '60s raising Reaganomics kids, is more sophisticated. But, for young audiences on Saturday nights, "Silver Spoons" isn't the worst thing around.

"60 Minutes" and "Archie Bunker's Place" are bound to turn audiences over to "Gloria." Industry analysts say "Gloria" will be one of the few new hits, especially since its hour-long competition is half over when "Gloria" starts.

But the program's success won't be on merit. It's not witty, and animal jokes went out with raccoon coats. Just because Archie's minority broadsides work doesn't mean jokes about gay dogs will be funny. And Archie's famous raspberry comes out very sour on Gloria.

Miss Struthers mugs too much for the cameras, turning Gloria into a whining, shrill woman. This overacting was less noticeable on "All in the Family." Obviously, Miss Struthers misses Rob Reiner and Carroll O'Connor, but only Michael is expected to show up, according to CBS.

In Sunday's episode, Burgess Meredith (of "Rocky I-III") does well as Gloria's new father figure, Dr. Willard Adams, the veterinarian who hired her. He's crotchety, but has softened his edges since CBS set up "Gloria" on an episode of "Archie Bunker's Place" last season.

Based on Sunday night's pilot, Meredith won't be the foil for Miss Struthers. Instead, that adversarial role falls to a female vet, angling to take over Dr. Adams' practice, and an incompetent — but young and handsome — assistant vet.

At least Gloria's son (Christian Jacobs) is cute — and he can act like a vet.

STEELE STEPHANIE — In her first television series, a romantic comedy thriller, Stephanie Zimbalist stars as Laura Holt, a young private investigator who invents a male "boss" because she fears her clients might not like dealing with a woman. She names him Remington Steele, which also is the name of the NBC series, and before she knows it someone shows up and assumes his identity. (AP Laserphoto)

Gaynor Suffers Infection, Too

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hospital officials say the next few weeks will be "critical" for Janet Gaynor as she battles an abdominal infection and other injuries suffered in an auto accident two weeks ago.

The 75-year-old actress remained in "critical but stable" condition today in the intensive care unit, where she was "conscious and alert," said Leslie Lingaas, spokeswoman for San Francisco General Hospital.

"The doctor expects her to recover very well if she makes it through this infection over the next few weeks, which are critical for her," Ms. Lingaas said.

Miss Gaynor's husband, producer Paul Gregory, 62, and Broadway star Mary Martin were injured in the crash on Sept. 5. Ben Washer, 76, Miss Martin's business manager and close friend, was killed.

Miss Gaynor developed kidney and liver complications after the accident and is receiving antibiotics. She suffered a perforated bladder, 11 broken ribs, a fractured pelvis and extensive internal bleeding. She has been breathing with the help of a ventilator.

Miss Martin, 68, who was released from the hospital last week with Gregory, was preparing to tape a special episode of "Over Easy," the public television series about aging of which she is co-host from KQED in San Francisco. The episode was scheduled to be broadcast Oct. 8, said Jules Power, who produces the series.

Power said he felt Miss Martin's experiences in the loss of someone close to her and the injury of close friends fit with the program theme of adjustment and transition for older Americans.

Robert Cato, 32, the driver of the van that collided with the taxi carrying the celebrities, has pleaded innocent to charges of vehicular manslaughter, drunken driving, speeding and running a red light.

ECU Announces 7 Internships

Several East Carolina University internship appointments in health-related fields have been announced.

They include: Amy E. Bunders, to the school of medicine's department of health services, research and development.

Nancy Iris Ullian of Newton, Mass., to Pitt County Memorial Hospital to work in patient education with persons who are alcohol or drug abusers.

Based on ticket sales, "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan" was the third most popular film this summer, pulling in $75 million. The leaders were "E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial" and "Rocky III."

In a recent interview, Nimoy said he was negotiating with Paramount Studios for his return in a third motion picture.

"As far as Paramount is concerned, Mr. Spock is still on Genesis in the state of lifelessness," a Paramount spokesman who declined to be identified said Thursday.

In Reno, Roddenberry did not elaborate about contracts, but did say that William Shatner also had agreed to return as Adm. James T. Kirk.

He declined to reveal the plot of "In Search of Spock," which he said will be kept "under wraps."

Says Nimoy Will Return

LEONARD NIMOY

RENO, Nev. (AP) — The familiar crew of the starship Enterprise, including the pointy-eared Vulcan, Mr. Spock, will make a third comeback in another "Star Trek" movie, says producer Gene Roddenberry.

Roddenberry, creator of the original Star Trek television series and producer of the first two Star Trek motion pictures, said Thursday the film is tentatively titled "In Search of Spock."

"I can make the happy announcement tonight that there officially will be a 'Star Trek III' and Spock will be back," Roddenberry said at an address to students at the University of Nevada.

"Leonard Nimoy will play him ... If I have my way they'll all be back."

A rumor during the filming of "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan" that Spock would die in the movie brought a wave of protest from "Trekies," as fans of the science fiction series are called.

In that movie, the body of an apparently dead Spock is rocketed in a coffin to the surface of a new planet, called Genesis, where life is being regenerated. The ending leaves open a possible return by Spock.

MAN AND HIS MONKEY — Not too many years ago Donald Bellisario was a successful executive for a Dallas advertising agency, when he decided to change his life, move to Hollywood and pursue a show business-related career. Since arriving in California, his projects have included the hit television series "Baa Baa Black Sheep", "Magnum P.I." and new for this fall on ABC, "The Gold Monkey". (AP Laserphoto)

Myrna Loy In FDR Memorial

NEW YORK (AP) — Myrna Loy, who was described as Franklin D. Roosevelt's "favorite actress," will be on hand next month to take part in "A Celebration of FDR and the Arts on Broadway."

The event, commemorating Roosevelt's support for the arts, is part of the centennial celebration of his birth, said Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., the historian of the New Deal and chairman of the FDR centennial commission.

Schlesinger said Wednesday that Miss Loy, 77, would participate in the Oct. 4 tribute at the Broadway Theater, along with Lauren Bacall, Robert Merrill, Arlene Francis, former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman and Geraldine Fitzgerald.

"If it hadn't been for FDR and the people around him, legions of artists would have been lost," said Kitty Carlisle Hart, chairman of the New York State Council on the Arts.

Elizabeth Walston of Tarboro to the department of health services, research and development, ECU School of Medicine.

Peggie L. Garner of Havelock to the Pitt County Health Department's Office of Health Education.

An Appreciation Dinner Held

GRIFTON — The Grifton Council of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce sponsored an "Appreciation Dinner" for the fire department and rescue squad personnel of Grifton Thursday night.

Ray Wooten, chairman of the Grifton Council board, said, "These dedicated volunteers have served our community by donation of their personal time for many years to help protect our home, our businesses and our lives. The Grifton citizens will forever be indebted to these volunteers for their time, talent and abilities that they use each day to help make Grifton a better place in which to live."

The 200 citizens who attended the dinner had state Rep. Sam D. Bundy of Farmville as a speaker. He told the group that volunteerism is one thing that makes our country and communities great.

Kill Devil Hills On The Outer Banks Of North Carolina Where Man First Succeeded In Powered Flight

Where It Began A LARGE GRANITE BOULDER . . . marks the spot where the first successful flight by the Wright Brothers left the ground. To the right of the boulder, along a metal rail, numbered markers indicate the distance of each of four flights made that historic day, December 17, 1903.

On December 17 it will have been 79 years since two determined bachelor brothers, Orville and Wilbur Wright, braved the cold Outer Banks winter air on a sandy stretch of ground to make yet another attempt to achieve the feat of becoming airborne on their two winged flying machine. On that Thursday morning just eight days before Christmas, their dream of motorized flight came true. Shortly after 10 a.m. Orville, younger of the two brothers, took his prone pilot position on "The Flyer," the name they had given their cumbersome two-winged handmade machine. The wooden propellers and the small 4-cylinder engine were started, and at 10:35 a.m., the machine taxied forward slowly before lifting into the air on its own power. It was not a long flight. It lasted only 12 seconds and the distance covered was a mere 120 feet.

But those 120 feet represented a giant step forward in man's centuries old quest to conquer the air above him. The event was little heralded at the time — there were no instant communications in the early part of the century to spread the glad tidings of the success to the four corners of the earth. In the years that followed, however, the two innovating flight pioneers were accorded recognition as being instrumental in paving the path to progress in flight as a practical means of world travel.

1903 was the third year the Wright brothers had experimented in the Kill Devil Hills area near the tiny village of Kitty Hawk. Owners and operators of a bicycle shop in Dayton, Ohio, the brothers, in their early thirties, had become enamored of the possibility that man could fly.

They were familiar with the success of other adventurous young men who had achieved manned flight on motorless gliders. After deciding to carry out their own glider experiments, the two studied Weather Bureau records and chose age of Kitty Hawk as a likely experimental spot.

Outer Bankers, in the turn of the century days before bridges connected their sandy strips of land to the mainland, were not accustomed to many outside visitors. The appearance in September of 1900 of the two with their strange kite big enough to support a man lying on the bottom wing in a prone position was a marvel to these people who dealt with the sea and considered the air proper territory for sea gulls. They were amused, but did not ridicule the two, and later they became helpers and rooters of this curious pair.

The Wrights returned to Kitty Hawk in July, 1901 to carry out tests with a larger glider. The results were not as good as they had expected, so after six weeks they returned to Dayton to do more research and practical work on their theories of aeronautics.

The year 1902 saw the two in Kitty Hawk for a longer experimental time — two months, from late August to late October. This visit proved rewarding, with substantial data gathered on nearly 1,000 glider flights carried out from the area of the three hills which constitute Kill Devil Hills — Big Hill, Little Hill and West Hill. (The taller of the three, on which the Wright Monument is built, is now commonly referred to as Kill Devil Hill).

Spurred by their glider successes, Orville and Wilbur Wright took the bold step of deciding to add a small gasoline engine to power a new craft they were building. When they could not find a gasoline engine they felt was suitable for their needs, they designed and built their own.

It was late in September 1903 that Orville and Wilbur Wright came for the third time to their sand dune experiment site. Nearly three months were to pass before the landmark day in December when success at last crowned their faith in powered flight. Two days after victory, on Dec. 19, they left Kitty Hawk to return to Dayton.

For the rest of their lives, the Wright brothers devoted their time, energy and fortune to aviation. Neither married, Wilbur died comparatively young, at 45, of yellow fever. Orville lived into his late 70s — he died in 1948.

Historic Site

Today, the Kill Devil Hills area of the Outer Banks has become a famed American historic site. Like nearby Fort Raleigh, site of the first attempted New World settlement in the New World, Kill Devil Hills is symbolic of new beginnings for mankind.

Every year, at all seasons, and especially during the summer months, thousands of people from all parts of the world visit the site. The most impressive of the Wright Brothers Memorial complex is a 60 foot monument erected on top of the tallest of the three hills. A granite marker is constructed on the spot where "The Flyer" first became airborne "against 21-mile an hour winds."

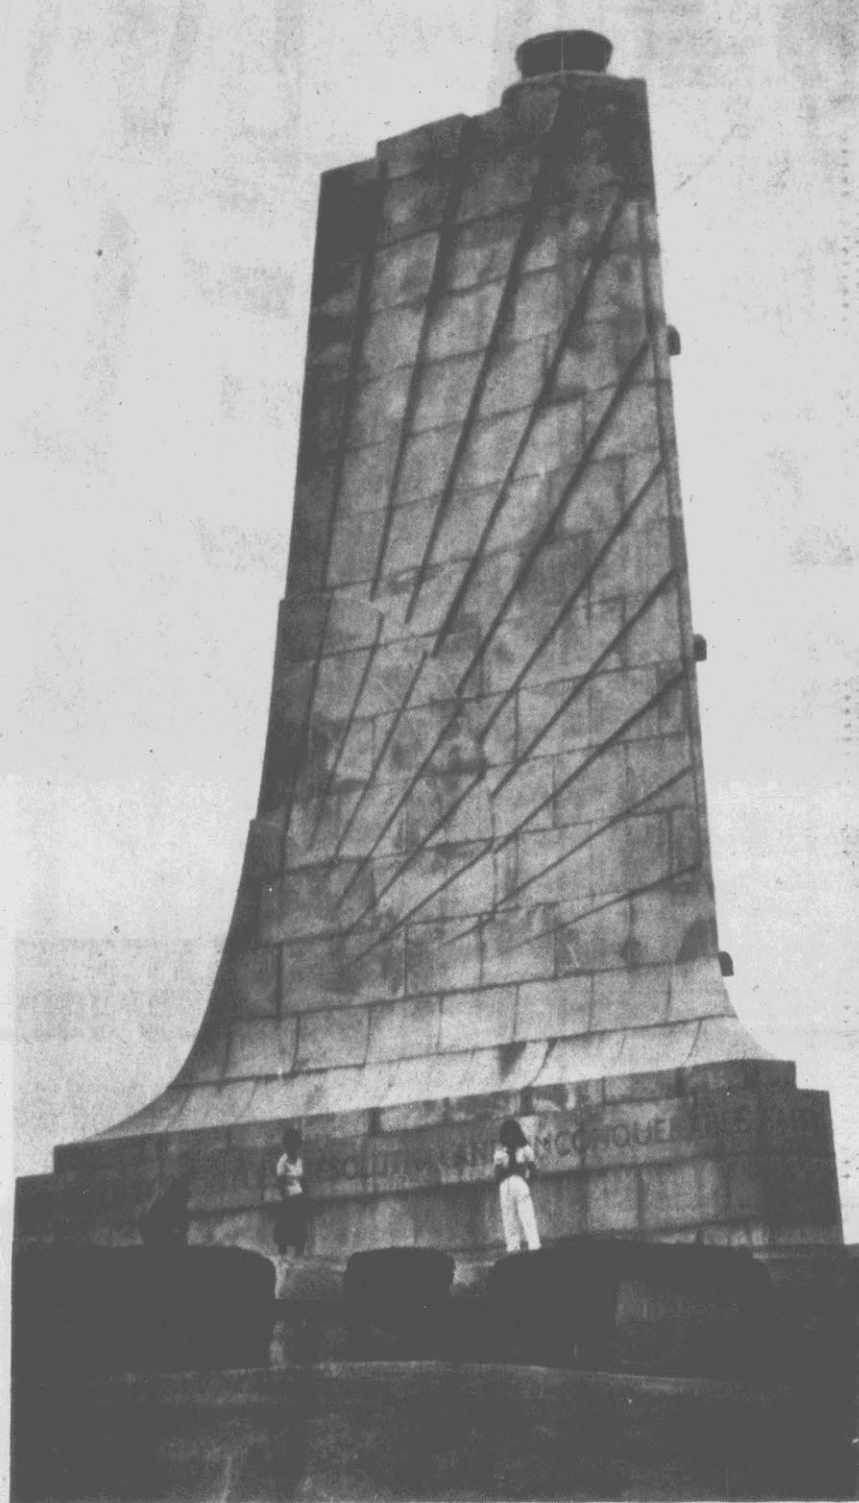

Two wooden buildings, one a workshop, the other simple quarters for the brothers during their stay at Kitty Hawk have been reconstructed, based on old photographs of the two buildings used by the Wrights.

The Visitor's Center, a modern one-story glass and concrete structure, gives visitors a first hand look at the notes and working tools used by Orville and Wilbur Wright in their dedication to open the skies to man.

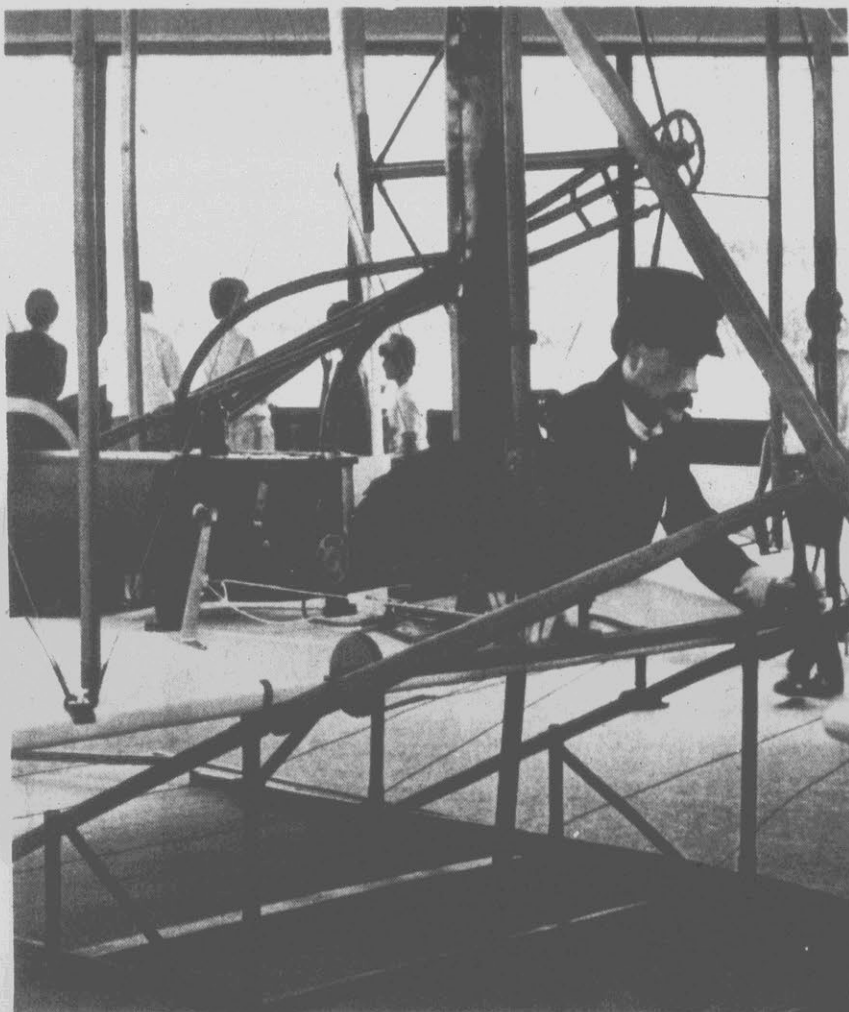

From the parapet of the Wright Monument, one can view the crowded resort villages of Nags Head, Kitty Hawk and Kill Devil Hills — a far different scene from the sparsely settled fishing villages that the Wright Brothers knew.

Downhill from the monument is a small air strip to accommodate light aircraft that come and go at all hours of the day. Occasionally, the silver contrail of a modern jet winging its speedy way on a long distance flight can be seen high overhead.

It's inspiring to remember that here on these fragile strips of water-gird sand two men who believed in 20th century miracles laid the groundwork that sparked the age in which man has mastered the air.

THE WRIGHT MONUMENT SHAFT . . . To commemorate for all time the feat of first flight, the U.S. Congress authorized the construction of a towering, 60 foot monument to be placed atop Kill Devil Hill, a large sand dune now stabilized. The simple design of wings, symbolic of flight, was constructed of gray granite quarried from Mt. Airy in western North Carolina.

A REPLICA . . . of the plane making the first successful flight is one of the showpieces in the modern visitor center. The plane had two wings with a wing span of more than 40 feet and was powered by a simple 4-cylinder motor designed by the Wright brothers. A mannequin of Orville Wright lies in the pilot's position atop the bottom wing.

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

THE SPIRIT OF FLIGHT . . . lives on in each generation of young people. Typical of youths hooked on flying are Andy Brothers, top, and at bottom, Gregory Minette (left) and David Shaffer, checking out their four-seater plane. All three operate sightseeing flights in the Outer Banks area.

Starting Point For Visitors THE VISITOR'S CENTER . . . is recommended as the best starting point for a visit to the site of the Wright brothers experiments in flight. Here, reproductions of papers and documents, full scale replicas of the 1902 glider and the 1903 plane and other material provide a broad background of their early efforts and later of their achievements at Kill Devil Hills.
