Chicago Bans All Tylenol Sales

Cyanide Toll Climbs To Seven

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Jane Byrne banned the sale of all Tylenol in Chicago on Saturday and hundreds of frightened residents turned in bottles of the medicine to police stations as cyanide planted in Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules claimed a seventh victim.

As the trail of poison continued to widen, cyanide also turned up in an unpurchased bottle of the capsules that was pulled from the shelves of a suburban drugstore as part of the investigation. That means bottles containing tainted capsules of the pain reliever had been for sale in at least four stores in the Chicago area.

The Illinois attorney general has blamed a "madman" for the poisonings, but the Cook County Medical Examiner said he could not rule out "factory error" because of the disclosure that cyanide is used in testing at the Tylenol factories. A spokesman for the manufacturer dismissed that possibility, saying cyanide is kept at an area far from where the capsules are produced.

Mrs. Byrne, who on Friday had urged stores to strip all Tylenol products from their shelves, declared the ban Saturday. She acted "under broad emergency powers in the city health code," according to a spokeswoman for her office.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has urged consumers nationwide not to use any Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules for the time being.

Paula Prince, a 35-year-old flight attendant, was found dead Friday night in her seventh-floor apartment on the city's Near North Side, the first victim from within the city limits instead of the suburbs. A few steps from her body was a 24-capsule bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol she had purchased at a nearby Walgreen's Drug Store.

Police officials said the Tylenol in her possession contained deadly doses of poison, and Medical Examiner Dr. Robert Stein said the autopsy showed she died of "acute cyanide toxicity."

Stein said his office will begin looking into sudden deaths reported since Sept. 1 and possibly a week earlier — just about the time batches of the Extra-Strength Tylenol found to have been adulterated would have reached shelves in the Chicago market.

"I like to call this 'American Roulette'" he said. "Here we are dealing with 'Russian Roulette' with drugs."

The death of Miss Prince forced authorities to expand the scope of their search because the adulterated capsule came from yet a third batch of Extra-Strength Tylenol, identified as lot 1801MA. The first two batches that were implicated, lots MC2880 and 1910MD, were recalled nationwide by the manufacturer, McNeil Con-

Infant Receives Kidney, Survives

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — One of the smallest infants ever to receive a kidney transplant is back at home and "doing terrific."

Four-pound, 14-ounce Karla Kimsey of Ypsilanti was given a new kidney on Sept. 4, just 17 days after her premature birth at the University of Michigan's Holden Perinatal Hospital.

She was released from the hospital Friday.

"We're excited. She's doing terrific. Everything looks good," said her mother, Linda Kimsey. "This six weeks has seemed like six months."

The first month after any transplant is the most critical period because the body is most likely at that time to reject the new organ, doctors said.

Because Karla must take medicine to lower her immune reactions, she will be particularly susceptible to infection, according to Dr. Dietrich Roloff, director of newborn services at Holden.

Karla and her twin sister, Robin, were born Aug. 18 — five weeks prematurely — to Thomas and Linda Kimsey. Robin grew normally and was discharged Sept. 11, but Karla's kidneys never functioned.

Doctors were able to use a kidney machine to filter the infant's blood, but that was only a temporary solution, Roloff said. He explained that the kidney removes only toxic substances, while dialysis removes all impurities — even chemicals needed by a growing child.

Kidney transplants have been tried on younger infants elsewhere, but complications, such as clotting of the artery of the transplanted kidney, have caused them to fail, Campbell said.

The donor was a 7-month-old child who had died of head injuries.

Two Men Held In $15 Million Threat To Gulf

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Two Durango, Colo., men were jailed under $1 million bond each Saturday after being charged with trying to extort $15 million from Gulf Oil by threatening to blow up a Texas petroleum plant where five bombs were found.

U.S. Magistrate Morton Sitzer set the bond for Theodore Duane McKinney, 45, and Michael Allen Worth, 34, after they were brought by FBI agents into the rear entrance of the federal court building for their arraignments. A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 8.

Neither entered a plea.

Sitzer advised both men of their rights, and asked if either needed a court-appointed attorney. McKinney said he'd like the opportunity to hire an attorney. Worth said he wanted an attorney appointed to represent him.

"Given the incredibly serious nature of the charge and the belief that they represent great danger to public health and safety, we're asking for $1 million bail for each defendant," said U.S. Assistant Attorney Phil MacDonnell.

Sitzer agreed and asked either man if he wanted to comment on the charge.

"I don't know what it would be," replied McKinney. "I should talk to an attorney first."

The two were returned to jail immediately after they were arraigned.

Worth reportedly ran a gun shop and was a private investigator in Durango.

McKinney and Worth were arrested at a service station in Apache Junction late Friday night, said FBI spokesman Johnie Joyce.

He added that the investigation of the threat to Gulf's Cedar Bayou plant, where five bombs were discovered last week, is continuing. The plant, as well as all of the chemical division's non-production offices nationwide, was ordered shut down over the weekend.

Consumer Interest Rates Show Rise As Prime Falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interest rates on loans to consumers rose over the last 21 months, while the prime lending rate declined by more than one-third over the same period, a consumer group said Saturday.

The report by the Consumer Federation of America compared the rates for home mortgages and unsecured personal loans with the prime rate between January 1981 and September 1982.

"At the beginning of the period covered, the prime was higher than all consumer rates. By September 1982, it was considerably lower," said the report written by Stephen Brobeck, CFA executive director.

"Contrary to what many observers assume, the drop in the prime rate charged by banks has not turned the problem of high interest rates around," said the report entitled "Recent Trends in Consumer Interest Rates."

The prime rate is the loan rate that banks charge their most credit-worthy customers, usually large corporations.

"The increases in consumer rates, which are costing consumers billions of dollars annually in higher finance charges, continue to depress the purchasing power needed to revitalize the economy," the report said.

The report said that in January 1981, the prime rate was 20.5 percent and the national average for home mortgage rates was 13.08 percent. By comparison, the prime on Sept. 19 was 13.5 percent and the average mortgage rate was 17.02 percent, it said.

The consumer federation called on the Federal Reserve Board to investigate the disparity between consumer rates and other rates.

CFA, the nation's largest consumer group, advised consumers to seek credit from less expensive sources, such as credit unions and insurance companies

County Officials Say Computer Operation Saves Time, Money

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"It really does a good terrific job for us. Not only are they efficient in what they do, but they are innovative in what I think saves us dollars," Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray says of the county Data Processing Department.

"If we had to go back doing things by hand, Lord help us," Gray said. The computer "saves so much clerical time ... hand labor. There's no telling how much it saves — typing, stuffing, record-keeping — It's all done automatically."

According to Gray, the DP operation provides "a better management tool, and from the overall standpoint it's more economical."

The county's DP budget this year is about $580,700. This provides the county with the computer hardware — an IBM 4800 computer with 33 input terminals and 10 printers that produce "hard copies" of information for various county agencies — and 17 full time and three part-time employees for the DP department that operate, maintain and write programs for the computer.

DP manager Gene Windham, who has held the job since the county's first computer went into operation in 1968, compared Pitt's staff and budget with other leading counties in North Carolina.

For example, Windham said, Mecklenburg County has "the same type system we do. They have more volume, of course, but they have the same applications. They have 130 devices (terminals and printers). We have 43."

That means, Windham said, "We have plenty of room to grow." Pitt's computer, he explained, now has the capacity to store 2 billion bites of information but "we can grow to 18 billion bites of disc storage space with our present equipment."

Guilford County has a similar system, as does Wake

Amerasians To See U.S. Today

HONG KONG (AP) — Eleven weary Vietnamese-American children arrived here from Bangkok, Thailand, Saturday on their way to the United States to join fathers they barely know.

An American consulate spokesman said the children, accompanied by nine Vietnamese relatives, will leave for Los Angeles Sunday and then take different flights to their new homes in five states and Washington, D.C.

He said they were very tired and went directly to a hotel to sleep.

The youngsters are the offspring of Vietnamese mothers and American men stationed in what was South Vietnam before it fell to the communists in 1975.

Thousands of Amerasian children have been abandoned in Korea, Vietnam, Laos, Thailand and Cambodia.

The U.S. Congress passed legislation Friday recognizing all such children as U.S. citizens, opening the door for them to come to the United States if they can find an individual sponsor.

sumer Products Co., a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson.

About 150 people are working full-time on the investigation, including 75 from 15 local, state and federal agencies in a task force headed by Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner. Chicago police have 25 detectives working on the Prince case, and 43 chemists are doing lab analyses and checking for latent fingerprints.

Fahner met Saturday night with investigators who spent the day "in the field," but he declined to comment whether any new leads had developed.

Chemists at the medical examiner's office said they filled empty Tylenol capsules with cyanide to see how long it would take for the highly corrosive poison to affect the shell. But Fahner declined to reveal whether the test yielded any new leads.

"We're giving out what we feel we can," said a member of an investigative task force, who asked not to be identified. "We can't comment on things that might in any way jeopardize the investigation."

Fahner also declined to say whether the task force had commissioned a psychological profile of who may be responsible for the poisoning.

Investigators have said they were pursuing the theory that a "disgruntled employee," may have put the cyanide in the capsules.

Fahner said thus far investigators have determined that the tainted capsules did not cross paths while they were being manufactured or in their distribution. That strengthens the theory that the killer took bottles of Tylenol containing cyanide to stores and slipped them on shelves.

Fahner said authorities have confirmed that cyanide-laced Extra-Strength Tylenol traced to five business locations came from "two and possibly three different places" of distribution.

He said that based on what is known at this time, the adulterated capsules from three of the five locations "definitely did not come together at any time" during distribution.

"We are trying to find a common thread," said Fahner, but "we can't tie them all together in one place."

Johnson & Johnson has offered a $100,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for tampering with the drug.

Authorities believe Miss Prince died Wednesday, the day before warnings were issued about cyanide-laced Tylenol. Her death was the first known to be caused by adulterated capsules from a bottle other than the 50-capsule size.

In a televised plea early Saturday, Mrs. Byrne appealed to residents to turn in any Tylenol products from their homes and asked that the date and place of purchase be noted to help police trace contaminated capsules. Police said by midafternoon they recorded 554 incidents of people bringing Tylenol products to precinct stations.

In some cases, officers were going to people's homes to pick up Tylenol products.

"It (the response) seems to be strong," said Patrolman William Warshauer of the city's Rogers Park District.

In Chicago's northwest suburbs, residents were turning in a number of medicines, most of it Tylenol. "It's not the point of panic, but people are certainly concerned," said Sgt. Richard Robinson of the Arlington Heights Police Department.

More than 200 bottles of various Tylenol products were turned in to the police department in adjacent Mount Prospect, a dispatcher said.

Also on Saturday, the first funeral was held for a victim of the poisonings. Twelve-year-old Mary Kellerman was laid to rest in a small steel casket topped with bouquets of flowers at a private ceremony attended by family and mourners in suburban Elk Grove Village.

County. "Wake County's budget this year is $978,000, while Guilford and Mecklenburg have a $1.7 million budget. And they have 30 employees each. We're doing a lot with what we have," Windham said.

And what is Pitt's DP center doing? On the system now is the accounting and payroll functions for the county manager's office; the county's tax listing, billing and collection program; tax listing, billing and collection for the city of Greenville; tax listing and billing for the other municipalities in the county; voter registration records; statistical reports for the fire marshal's office; vehicle management records (including upkeep costs and time use) for the county garage; city and county schools' accounting and payroll information; billing for the electrical inspector's office; and accounts receivable and management information (including the productivity of workers) for the mental health center.

In various stages of planning and development are programs to handle patient billing and other work for the Health Department, applications for the Department of Social Services (including food stamp program records), accounting and payroll work for the city of Greenville, and student records and class scheduling work for Pitt Community College.

"There are so many fringe benefits — once you enter data, you can use it for so many different purposes," Gray said.

The biggest users on the system are the tax supervisor and tax collector's offices. And with the records stored on the computer, "We can bill taxes anytime we want to, and include prior years' taxes, too," Gray said.

Before going to the computer, according to Gray, "We didn't have enough clerical help to send out tax bills as often. And it's increased our collection of taxes. Every time we send bills out, we get money in."

affected by the bill ranges from conservative estimates of 80,000 to the Pearl S. Buck Foundation's estimate of 150,000.

U.S. officials believe only about 8,000 of the estimated 25,000 to 50,000 Amerasians in Vietnam may want to leave under the new legislation sent to President Reagan.

They had previously been in the seventh level of priorities for immigrants, a "miscellaneous" category that in effect blocked them from coming to the United States.

The eleven children who arrived here Saturday are the largest single group to leave Vietnam for reunions under an orderly departure program begun in 1979.

They were excited Friday at their first stopover, in Bangkok, mixing play and television-watching with getting vaccinations and U.S. passports.

Jean Marie Tanous, 15, whose father Gary Tanous went to Ho Chi Minh City for the flight, was thrilled over seeing her picture on the front page of a Bangkok newspaper. Ho Chi Minh City is the former Saigon.

Jean Marie, who speaks little English, is the only child of Tanous, of Vancouver, Wash., who met Jean Marie's mother while he was a civilian contractor in Vietnam. He is divorced from Jean Marie's mother and his former mother-in-law is accompanying Jean Marie.

Seven-year-old Khieu Thi My Phillips, a pretty girl with brown eyes and blondish hair, typified some of the traumas that split families during the American evacuation seven years ago.

She was born a few days before the city fell to the Communists and was too weak to travel, according to adults in the group. Her father and mother had to leave Khieu behind. She will rejoin the Phillips family in Fairburn, Ga.

The 11 children are going to Georgia, California, Arizona, Texas, Washington D.C. and Washington state in an arrangement coordinated by eight U.S. volunteer agencies.

Twenty-six more children and 21 Vietnamese relatives are to leave Ho Chi Minh City for the United States on Oct. 7.

Storm Ernesto Heads To Sea

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical Storm Ernesto picked up speed Saturday as it carried 50 mph winds and squalls across Atlantic shipping lanes, but forecasters said the storm wasn't expected to strengthen.

Ernesto, the fifth storm of the 1982 Atlantic season, was located about 325 miles east of Bermuda and had increased in speed by about 5 mph as it moved northeast at 23 mph. Forecasters said the storm was only of concern to marine interests and posed no threat to any of the Bermuda islands.

At 6 p.m. EDT, Ernesto was centered near latitude 32 north, longitude 59.5 west.

The storm was expected to continue in the same direction with a gradual increase in forward speed in the next 24 hours, forecaster Bob Sheets said.

Board Links Engineer To Alcohol

LIVINGSTON, La. (AP) — The engineer of the chemical-laden freight train that derailed and set off spectacular explosions here all week had been drinking and was going too fast when the accident occurred, the National Transportation Safety Board said Saturday.

The engineer was driving 5 or 6 mph over the 35 mph speed limit when the train jumped tracks and set off the string of explosions and fires that have kept 2,700 people from their homes since Tuesday, NTSB spokesman Ira Furman said.

"We are not saying the guy was drunk," Furman said. "We don't know anything about quantity. We are not saying that the fact that he went into a bar or fact of the speed ... were necessarily causal."

Furman said the engineer was seen in a bar during a 5½-hour layover the train made in Baton Rouge. He would not give the engineer's name. Furman said regulations prohibit drinking on the job, "but there are no federal rules to prohibit the use of alcohol before going on duty."

The first explosion came at 5 a.m. Tuesday shortly after the train pulled into this small town. The fourth, and strongest, blast came Friday in a tanker filled with vinyl chloride, sending an orange-white fireball high into the sky.

The blast sent the tank car flying 500 from the wreckage and the debris mowed down trees. No injuries were reported. State police said that at least 20 homes were damaged by Friday's blast.

Furman would not say how the NTSB learned that the engineer had been drinking, saying only that "the investigation uncovered that he had been to a bar and that he had consumed alcohol. How much over what period of time and questions like that ... we don't know."

The engineer told investigators his speedometer read 43 mph at Livingston and tests of the engine found the device read 2 mph faster than it should, Furman said. "So his speed indication of 43 miles an hour came down to 41."

He said the engineer acknowledged going 40 mph about 10 miles outside of Livingston where the train passed over a "hotbox detector," a device that checks for overheated axles.

"That was a 25 mph restricted zone," Furman said.

An analysis of the tape from the detector also indicated that the train was going about 40 mph, he said.

He said a rough analysis of the time and distance traveled from Baton Rouge indicated the train averaged nearly 29 mph for the 20-mile stretch, eight miles of which is restricted to 10 mph.

"They can expect to stay out until further notice," state police Sgt. Ronnie Jones said of the evacuated residents.

"We're not even going to give an estimate now," he said Saturday. "We've gotten their hopes up so many times that we don't want to be unnecessarily optimistic."

The federal agency's probe also revealed that the brakes were slammed on twice between Baton Rouge and Livingston because the coupling came apart between the engine and the first car.

"That shouldn't happen. It's not unheard of, but it shouldn't happen," Furman said.

The evacuation began immediately after 43 cars of a 101-car Illinois Central Gulf train derailed. The train was transporting a variety of toxic chemicals, some of them powerfully explosive.

The first explosion occurred at 5 a.m. Tuesday in a tanker of lubricating oil. Three oil tankers burned, scorching several homes and sending up columns of thick, black smoke. The area was sealed off because of the dangerous cargo in other tankers.

Another explosion followed in a tanker of tetra-ethyl lead, an explosive gasoline additive. The third came early Wednesday.

On Friday, state and city employees entered the evacuation area and fed pets and livestock, and were deciding whether to let the residents come back when the fourth explosion occurred.

Authorities think the fourth blast was from a tanker bearing vinyl chloride, a highly flammable plastic whose vapors can cause dizziness and suffocation. Vinyl chloride also has been linked to cancer.

"Everybody's been bearing up quite well, being cheerful, but that can just last so long on nervous energy," said Hampie McDonald, 35, one of dozens of people put up by the railroad in a Holiday Inn 17 miles from her home.

"After a while it begins to play out," she said.

"My son has epilepsy. I got him a room so he could get some sleep. I didn't want to trigger a seizure," she said.

Mexico Set For Storm

CULIACAN, Mexico (UPI) — A new Pacific storm headed toward Mexico's southern coast Saturday as relief teams distributed food, medicine and building materials for 140,000 people left homeless in northern Mexico by Hurricane Paul.

Mexico's National Meteorology Service reported tropical storm Rosa was 180 miles off Mexico's west coast, heading toward the southern state of Oaxaca at 9 mph.

The new storm appeared less than two days after Hurricane Paul ripped through scores of coastal and inland towns in northern Sinaloa, killing six people and ravaging an estimated 1,235,000 acres of some of the nation's richest farmland.

Agricultural officials said Paul's gale-force winds and torrential rains destroyed 70 percent of the state's soybean and rice crops in what was seen as a major blow to Sinaloa's agriculturally-based economy.

The storm also forced 10,000 people to flee homes in flooded areas of La Paz, the capital of the state of Baja California.

Sinaloa Gov. Antonio Toledo Corro said relief teams from Culiacan, Sinaloa state capital, began moving food, medicine and building materials into the cities that suffered the most damage from the hurricanes.

— Los Mochis, Guasave, Guamuchil and Salvador Alvarado.

"Medicine and food are the main requirements now," Toledo Corro said.

Two mobile power substations also were sent to Los Mochis to provide emergency power for hospitals and water pumps in the coastal city, officials of the state electric company said.

Some 30,000 people left homeless in Los Mochis after hurricane winds tore the roofs off the houses were living in parks and government shelters awaiting building materials to repair their homes.

In Guasave, 100,000 people faced the task of rebuilding homes that were inundated Friday after the Sinaloa and Ocori rivers surged through the city and outlying farmland, forcing people onto rooftops.

Hundreds of travelers trapped in Culiacan slept in their cars and the city's train station, unable to travel north because of washed out roads, bridges and rail lines.

Gulf Threat ...

"The arrests took place as a result of surveillance by FBI agents, which was a culmination of a lengthy multistate investigation," Homer R. Hauer, special agent in charge of the case, said in the statement.

Published reports have said the bomb threat was received Tuesday in four letters — each bearing a Houston postmark — delivered to the company's executives offices in Houston.

The letters reportedly warned that 10 bombs were hidden throughout the Cedar Bayou plant, located about 30 miles east of Houston. The letters set a deadline of midday Sunday for delivery of $15 million or the bombs would be set off.

Five bombs were found Wednesday at the 1,100-acre plant. One was detonated harmlessly, and the others were disarmed with no explosion Thursday.

Despite the arrests, Gulf spokeswoman Dorothy Brown said that the company was not changing its plans to keep the plant closed at least through the weekend.

U.S. Sent Special Bomb Squad To Train Lebanese

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A land mine blew up a pedestrian Saturday, and U.S. Marines took up positions near Beirut's Green Line. A U.S. military spokesman said, meanwhile, that a special American bomb squad has been in the country for about six weeks "to train the Lebanese army."

Another American official, U.S. Embassy spokesman John Reid, said an American military survey team went to the Christian port of Jounieh, 12 miles north of Beirut, for talks with the Lebanese armed forces.

Reid said he had no information regarding the topics discussed, but the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said the American team was studying the Lebanese army's needs for advanced military equipment.

The mine went off on Beshara el-Khoury Boulevard in midtown Beirut, the state radio said. The victim was not immediately identified. Police also deactivated a car bomb in west Beirut.

U.S. Marine units deployed east of the airport, meanwhile, to join Italian infantrymen at a checkpoint just south of the Galerie Semaan crossing point on the Green Line that divides the city into Moslem west and Christian east, U.S. Navy Cmdr. Peter Litrenta said.

On Thursday, a U.S. Marine was killed and three others were wounded by a buried artillery shell at Beirut airport, where the bulk of the 1,200 Marines in Beirut are camped.

Army Lt. Col. Lee Delorme, a Pentagon spokesman in Beirut, said the Marines were hit by part of a 155mm cluster shell made in America and of a type sold to Israel, but he couldn't say if the shell had been fired from an Israeli weapon.

Delorme also said a special team of American explosives experts has found 150 different kinds of munitions made in 15 different countries in areas of Beirut and the nearby mountains.

He said the number of unexploded bombs, shells and mines found by the Explosive Ordnance Demolition team was "thousands and thousands. The EOD team I'm talking about has been through half of Lebanon. They have been in east and west Beirut and up in the mountains you can see in the distance."

Delorme said the team of 10 men had been in Lebanon for about six weeks. That would put their arrival at about mid-August when the Marines first landed. The Marines pulled out Sept. 10 and returned 19 days later, but the bomb squad stayed.

"Their purpose is to train the Lebanese army," Delorme said. He did not elaborate on their specific mission. Attempts were made to reach U.S. officials, both in Beirut and Washington, for further comment but they could not be contacted. The U.S. Embassy here said it would not make an official available for further questions until next week.

Delorme said the team, which is made up of experts from each of the American military services, had not been to southern Lebanon, the area of the country occupied by Israel since shortly after its invasion began June 6.

Israel, however, was among the countries that he said had made the explosives. The others were China, the Soviet Union, the United States, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Britain, the Netherlands, Egypt, Poland, Belgium and Germany.

The Marines returned to Beirut Wednesday for the second time in three weeks to join French and Italian peacekeeping forces tightening security following the assassination of President-elect Bashir Gemayel Sept. 14 and the massacre of hundreds of Palestinians at two refugee camps Sept. 16-18.

French forces have been helping Lebanese army units clear large areas of Beirut of mines, and the Marines have been sweeping the airport area for unexploded ordnance since Israeli invasion forces pulled back about a mile from the field several days ago.

President Reagan, who pulled the Marines out of Beirut last month after the evacuation of several thousand Palestinian guerrillas, has said the leathernecks will now remain in Lebanon until all Israeli and Syrian forces leave and the Lebanese government is in firm control.

In an effort to tighten security, Lebanon's state radio said President Amin Gemayel has reimposed capital punishment for convicted murderers and kidnappers and is considering setting up a special "rapid deployment" force of helicopter-borne army and police units.

The White House, meanwhile, said Gemayel has accepted an invitation from Reagan to travel to Washington for a meeting Oct. 19. It said the trip would be an "official working visit."

Gemayel's brother Bashir

Bomb Blast In Tehran Reportedly Kills 60

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — A bomb made of 330 pounds of TNT blew up in truck parked in Tehran's main square, killing at least 60 people and wounding 700 in nearby hotels, restaurants and double-decker buses, Iran's state radio reported Saturday.

The explosion Friday night came just two weeks after the execution of former Foreign Minister Sadeq Ghotbzadeh and was the worst since June 1981 when more than 70 people, including Iran's No. 2 clergyman, Ayatollah Mohammed Beheshti, were blown up in Tehran.

No group claimed responsibility for the latest bombing, but the underground opposition Mujahedeen Khalq said in a statement issued in Paris that the Tehran regime set off the blast in "preparation for further repression and executions and to conceal its forces' defeat in the latest offensive in Iraq."

The explosion demolished a five-story hotel and three passing buses and heavily damaged seven other hotels and adjacent buildings, Tehran radio said. The broadcast said the blast left a crater six feet deep and 20 feet wide.

The explosion ripped through Imam Square, formerly Siph Square, and Naser Khosrow Avenue in the heart of the city at 8:35 p.m. Friday. The area is flanked by cheap hotels, restaurants and cafes with a bus terminal in the middle, and Iran's main telecommunications building on one side.

The radio said most of the passengers aboard three double-decker buses were killed or wounded in the blast. The other casualties were in the surrounding hotels, restaurants and cafes.

Some of the bodies were blown to pieces by the force of the explosion and could not be identified, the radio added.

The radio said three Tehran hospitals were "filled with the wounded."

The radio quoted Iranian Interior Minister Nateq Nouri as saying a "number of suspects" were arrested in connection with the bombing.

Nouri blamed the explosion on "American mercenaries," while Iran's supreme revolutionary leader, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, said

"the great criminal explosion" had further exposed "the hideous faces," of what he termed "the deviationist and hypocritical Americans."

Nursing Schools See Turnaround In Board Scores

In years past, North Carolina educational circles and a large segment of the public at large have been concerned over examination scores earned by graduates of nursing schools at N.C. Central, Winston-Salem State and N.C. A&T State universities.

Plainly speaking, the scores of grads from nursing schools of the three institutions approached disaster levels. The North Carolina Board of Nursing was talking closure of the schools unless early improvement was demonstrated.

It represented a waste of educational funds as well as reflecting badly on the quality of education offered by the state, and it cheated the students who devoted time, money and effort only to see it all go down the drain come exam time.

Things are better now at all three schools. A&T doubled its passing rate over last year. Central's grads enjoyed a 92 percent passing rate and all six of Winston-Salem State's grads passed.

Without a doubt, being "put under the gun" made a difference. Curricula were improved and stricter admission standards adopted.

It is not a time for undue cheering. The three schools at the institutions involved were entitled to the close attention they finally received long before the reports of their product became intolerable.

Still, there is satisfaction to be found in the fact that a turnaround was effected in a relatively short time. For that we can give thanks.

Humber, Fleming Homes Preserved For Further Service

Two major projects are under way in the downtown area which will preserve old Greenville homes that might otherwise fall to make way for more modern buildings.

The Humber home at Fifth and Washington streets was given to Greenville and Pitt County as a historical landmark by the Humber family in May 1980.

It is currently being renovated at a cost of $75,000 to serve as state offices. At Greene and Fourth streets, the Fleming home is being extensively rebuilt and restored to serve as offices for the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

Either of the homes could have fallen into disrepair and eventually been demolished. Now both will continue to be used and maintained, not as homes but offices more suited to the area. It is a good example of maintaining some of our heritage, while still getting practical use out of these two fine old homes.

Sunday Morning Notes

The State Utilities Commission recently disallowed most of an electric rate increase requested by Carolina Power & Light Co. The action brought notice in the financial world and there were predictions that the commission would continue to hand down such rulings.

The old timer visited our office the other day to comment. He approved, of course, of anything that would hold down the electric bill he pays each month.

"Maybe now, I'll go back to burning the lights until midnight," he chuckled.

And a freshman coed sniffed at a story in a state newspaper which portrayed East Carolina University as the land of the endless parties.

"I partied more in high school," she laughed. Well, maybe her high school was the land of the endless parties.

And a pretty girl looked out the window to notice that leaves were changing their colors.

A lover of the sun, she commented, "How sad."

Not so. The turning of leaves will give us a brief blaze of beauty that no one should miss. Anyway, there are crisp, clear fall days and later snow to look forward to. If that isn't enough, we can be comfortable in the knowledge that spring will follow, and finally another summer.

Anyway, without turning leaves, you wouldn't have football.

Our old timer commented that he had observed less train traffic through the city than a few months back. He speculated that might be due to the current recession.

"Another benefit of Reaganomics," he said wryly.

And last week the powerful state Advisory Budget Commission visited to tour state-supported facilities in the area. The commission has a major voice in determining how state funds will be expended and is now doing its studies for the 1983-85 biennial budget. Consequently, those on the receiving end treat them with respect. Greenville is a town which receives considerable from the state treasury, of course.

Our old timer said after the visit, "I hope they liked us." Then almost inaudibly, "I hope they'll send money."

Well, they almost always send some.

It's A Question Of 'Intelligence To Please'

WASHINGTON — In 1966 former Sen. J. William Fulbright D-Ark invited various Johnson administration officials to explain to his Foreign Relations Committee why American troops were fighting in Vietnam. He found the experts all too willing to fudge the truth about developments in Southeast Asia.

Subsequently, Fulbright publicly declared that the Johnson administration was "lying" to the American people about U.S. involvement in the war. "It was just my nature, under the heat of battle, to use such language," reminisced Fulbright over the telephone last week. "But that's what the Johnson administration was doing — lying."

While Fulbright's bluntness earned him the name "Sen. Hallbright" from Johnson himself, it helped to clarify for the American people the need to reconsider U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

We thought of Fulbright the other day after reading a 47-page report by staff members of the House Intelligence Subcommittee on Oversight and Evaluation, which accuses America's intelligence agencies of forwarding only what congressmen needed to know about developments in Central America. In national security circles, the practice is called "intelligence to please."

Yet, in its critique, the subcommittee staff falls prey to the equivocal tendencies which afflict the intelligence agencies. In pulling its punches, the staff fails to live up to Fulbright's rule: Call a spade a spade.

Substantively, the subcommittee report is potentially devastating. It says that the U.S. intelligence community provided only feeble documentation for former Secretary of State Alexander Haig's assertions of "external" support for Salvadoran rebels. Behind closed doors intelligence officials were forced to admit that "a lot of ships" traced to the Soviet Union were actually few in number; likewise, estimates of outside financial support for the guerrillas were found to have been based on a "single piece of evidence indicating the monthly budget for the commander of one faction of the front."

Meanwhile, the subcommittee disclosed that CIA higherups received, then lost, captured documents detailing organization and activity among El Salvador's right-wing death squads; that "progress" by the Salvadoran army in reducing violence against civilians and "bringing murderers to justice" was judged often on the basis of statements by the Salvadoran military itself or questionable witnesses; that the assessment of Nicaraguan repression of Miskito Indians "could not help policymakers understand the detailed and often contradictory information available...."

In each instance, America's intelligence officials skewed the facts or plainly lied about key aspects of U.S. policy toward Nicaragua and El Salvador. Whether one has sided with Haig or against him, this practice of buttressing policy with subjective "intelligence" rates with earlier reassurances of the late shah's strength in Iran.

Yet, despite a litany of abuses, the subcommittee's staff members caution, "This is not to say that these products are intended to convey falsehoods, or that they lack serious analysis." Rather, the report simply reprimands the intelligence community for "underlying unevenness," "occasional inaccuracy" or "excessive zeal in emphasizing certain points."

Although similar deference seems to underlie the full committee's decision to soft-pedal the critique (the staff distributed a media release and an insufficient number of copies of the report to reporters late one afternoon last week, but held no press conference), it exemplifies the doublespeak that is still abhorrent to Fulbright and often dooms otherwise constructive conclusions to obscurity.

Congressmen may never shake their gentlemanly etiquette and call a lie a lie, but they should know by now that their own ambiguity only encourages the intelligence agencies to produce more of the same.

Groups Line Up Against Drunken Driving

RALEIGH — Some disjunct notes taken during the last meeting of the Governor's Task Force on Drunk Driving.

First there was MADD for Mothers Against Drunk Driving. Then came SADD for Students of the same persuasion. Now the task force has been calling itself BADD — "Beaurocrats Against Drunk Driving" — and they've formulated GADD, "grossly aggravated drunk driving." GADD refers to a set of factors which, if found in a drunken driver's case under the proposed law, would have him spending a minimum of seven days behind bars.

BADD plans to make a number of minor recommendations in its final November report. They include calling upon the Federal Communications Commission to ban beer and wine ads from TV. The task force feels these ads convince the young that drinking is glamorous and that elimination of these ads would reduce drinking by the young.

They'll also ask the state's newspapers to run a regular periodic listing of everyone convicted locally of drunken driving — or "impaired driving" as their proposed legislation would call the offense. Many papers currently run District Court summaries, including drunken driving convictions. It's felt that such publicity proves so embarrassing that it will act as a deterrent to drunken driving.

Many victims of drunk drivers — the people who lose family members or property — feel that the court system ignores their concerns. Public hearings held around the state produced a number of comments from victims who said they weren't told when a drunk driver's case was going to be tried.

The task force is recommending that the state hire one clerk in each prosecutorial district and give that person responsibility for keeping track of witnesses and victims for all cases. It'll cost $10,000 per clerk.

A pathologist from Chapel Hill testified that we all have alcohol in our blood at all times — even if we don't drink. The trace, however, isn't strong enough to be detected on a breathalyzer.

The task force will ask the General Assembly to try again on the question of open beer and wine containers in motor vehicles. Last year the Senate killed such a bill because it would have meant people on chartered buses could not drink. The task force debated the idea for several hours and decided to ask the assembly to make it illegal for a driver of a vehicle to have an open container of beer or wine. They conceded the bill probably would end up being meaningless.

The task force is going to ask the Governor's Highway Safety Program to divert some of its federal money to a program that would increase drunken driving patrols.

This Too Will Pass Away

ON THE RHINE — From Rotterdam to Basel, the little cruise ship pushes its way up the Rhine at a magisterial nine miles an hour. The river has the waxy sheen of a polished marble floor. The ship's flag, bearing the three crowns of the magi of Cologne, flutters gently at the prow. A more peaceful panorama could not be imagined, but once it was not this way at all.

More than 37 years have passed since this placid river witnessed some of the bloodiest fighting of World War II. The American divisions that fought here under the command of Bradley, Patton and Eisenhower were newcomers to the scene; Caesar's legions had been here before them. The Palatinate barons, forever feuding, built their castles and waged their wars. Today we hear only the cry of gulls and the murmur of the river sliding past. The millennia have heard the sounds of arms.

Is there a moral to be found here, some messages for the ages? If so, it lies in the philosopher's abiding comment upon all things good or ill: This too will pass away. One evening we tourists had a look at Dusseldorf. One morning we visited Cologne. During the war, eight of every 10 buildings in Dusseldorf were reduced to rubble. On May 30, 1942, more than a thousand bombers of the Royal Air Force struck Cologne. The bombing continued intermittently until the spring of 1945. We see photographs of the cathedral rising like an island of beauty

Today that same majestic cathedral raises its spires above a busy, bustling city. Except for a single scar on the cathedral's front elevation, no trace of the devastation can be seen. It is as if the war were a bad dream, as if Operation Overlord and Operation Millennium had never occurred. The Germans lost 250,000 men in the Battle of the Rhine. We suffered fearful casualties also. Now, in Cologne, a tourist tries his phrase-book German on the keeper of a pub: "Geben Sir mir ein Bier, bitte." "Jawohl," says the amused host, "ein Bier coming up." Did we once hate the Huns? Did we once see these cities through a bombsight?

The Rhine is marked by the equivalent of milestones on a highway. At Kilometer 633.8 we floated silently by Remagen. No one paid much attention. For veterans of the Rhine campaign, if any had been aboard, it might have been a poignant moment. Once there had been a bridge here, the Ludensdorff railway bridge. The Germans had intended to blow it up, and on the critical afternoon of March 7, 1945, they had put explosives in place for that purpose. But by a freak accident, the cable connecting 500 pounds of TNT had been severed. The 9th Armored Division arrived to find the bridge still operable.

At 4 o'clock that afternoon, Sgt. Alexander A. Drabik, a butcher from Holland, Ohio, led his platoon through a barrage of artillery fire across the bridge at Remagen. Within 24 hours, 8,000 troops had crossed the Rhine. Engineers had put two parallel bridges in place. Eisenhower called it the great turning point of the war on the western front. Ten days later, under repeated air attack from the Germans, the bridge at last collapsed, but by then it was too late. The Rhine had been crossed successfully for the first time in war since Napoleon achieved the feat in 1805. Four German officers, blamed for their failure to destroy the bridge, were summarily court-martialed and executed by firing squad.

The bridge never was rebuilt. Today the indifferent tourist sees only four great stumps of stone, two on either side of the river. Nothing beside remains. Flags of West Germany and the United States fly side by side over the site. It was not a dream. Remagen happened, it really happened. Through a traffic jam of barges our little steamer pushes on toward Koblenz.

This too will pass away. The Allied attacks in World War II devastated the industrial capacity of the Rhine Valley. Today that capacity has been more than restored. Rubbled cities have arisen from their ashes. The emitties of 40 years ago have been spanned by the golden arches of McDonald's. Five days on the Rhine are bad on the waistline, but when it comes to getting a perspective on Gibbon's follies and misfortunes of mankind, the five minutes spent passing Remagen are worth the whole trip.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearing the halfway mark of his administration, President Reagan is becoming more isolated in the White House.

It happens to all presidents, usually as decisions become more critical and the climate more divisive.

But Reagan's studied remoteness gives the impression he is being told only what top aides want him to hear. Running a tight ship, these aides are keeping many staffers ignorant of top Oval Office decisions — causing frustration at lower levels.

Only four advisers can see Reagan at will — chief of staff James Baker; deputy chief Michael Deaver; counselor Edwin Meese and national security affairs adviser William Clark.

Although some rivalry among those four top aides surfaces occasionally, each for now is holding steady — the Californians who made the long march east with Reagan still are in command.

When Reagan held a news conference Tuesday, it obviously was a chore. He had not submitted to formal questions for two months, and a president can lose the knack of answering questions — especially if aides tell him he doesn't have to.

There is not yet the feeling the White House is under siege, but there is some circling of the wagons.

Whether the burdens of office are pressing in or he is becoming more cautious, Reagan clearly is losing some of his characteristic spontaneity. There are days when his official calendar is full, but media coverage is sharply curtailed or prohibited.

Leaked memos and aides who choose not to be identified sometimes will provide tips on the direction Reagan is headed, but there is little public dialogue or consultation with dissenters.

When Reagan speaks to a group at the White House, members usually support him already. When a legislator is invited to the White House, he already is a presidential backer or leaning that way.

When the news broke that two Air Force officers, members of a U.N. team, were killed in Beirut Saturday, the Reagans were hosting a reception for Ford's Theater entertainers.

A small contingent of reporters covering the party felt it essential to get comment from Reagan. Much to the annoyance of aides, Reagan responded to a couple of questions.

For the reporters, it was pure gold — they had the president on the record, a rarity indeed.

Another aspect of a president approaching mid-term is speculation whether he will run again. Washington Post White House correspondent Lou Cannon — a Reagan biographer — predicts the president will choose not to seek another term. And that by no means is a singular view.

Reagan's remarks at the Ford's Theater party last weekend indicate he is feeling the "splendid misery" of the presidency. He said he wished magician David Copperfield could "make a few things disappear ... like the Middle East, and the deficit."

But there is another school that believes Reagan will be on the ballot again, because he has not "finished the job" he was elected to do — to "make America great again."

Public Forum

To the editor:

President Reagan continues to disregard the intelligence of the electorate in attributing his problems to past Democratic regimes. Republican or Democratic, it is unpresidential to whine.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was too busy trying to repair the damage of the great depression to constantly blame it on the previous 12 years of Republican administration. Preparations for the Bay of Pigs were begun in Eisenhower's time, but Kennedy accepted the responsibility for the disaster without murmuring: "He did it." The two presidents of a very recent Republican administration of eight years which Reagan appears to have failed to notice accepted their inheritance without complaint — Nixon, the Johnson escalation of the Vietnam war, and Ford, the trauma of Watergate.

As for the President's in the cost of living showing, could it be that slowly dwindling consumer demand makes for slowly dwindling prices and that unemployed people are poor consumers?

Ernest S. Silva

To the Editor:

In Thursday's Public Forum it was stated that there exists an unfair double standard concerning the activities of Israel — that the press condemns Israel for things other nations can do unharrassed. Massacres worse than the one in Lebanon were cited with the intention of diluting the readers one-pointed outrage at Israel. Nevertheless, I think the media is justified in coming down hard on Israel. This is why:

In every facet of society Jews are achievers. Whether it be science, entertainment, law or business, the contributions of Jewish people far surpass what they would be by sheer happenstance. It has been said that the lifeblood of the modern world, knowingly or unknowingly, flows into the ground broken by Jews. The Jewish holy book states that they are chosen by God to lead humanity, and every many non-Jews also believe this to be true.

According to the Oct. 9, 1982, issue of "Time Magazine," the government of Israel helped to organize and facilitated the Shatila-Sabra massacre. Israel's guilt no longer seems to be the question. The people of the world feel betrayed by their friend, their ally, their leader — Israel. This is why there is so much anger.

To point to other barbaric acts in an attempt to condone the one in Israel is not worthy of a Jew. There is no middle ground in this issue. Either you support what happened at Shatila and Sabra refugee camps or you believe that the Israelite leaders who complied in this unjustified violence should concede their offices to someone else.

WASHINGTON — When the rest of the steadfast faithful in the House Republican leadership joined Rep. Jack Kemp last week in demanding that the Federal Reserve Board lower interest rates, it signaled revolt against Reaganomics in the face of bleak Nov. 2 election prospects.

Rep. Trent Lott, the House Republican whip who held his nose to promote President Reagan's tax increase, slipped the White House leash for the first time in co-sponsoring the interest rate bill with Kemp. Even House Republican leader Bob Michel — exemplar of stolid, loyal orthodoxy — has blessed the revolt.

That means Republican politicians down in the trenches cannot stomach the austerity program favored by the White House high command. To the president's men, Fed Chairman Paul Volcker has been the heroic squeezer of inflation out of the system. To Michel, engaged in the re-election battle of his life in stricken Peoria, Ill., the austere central banker is the problem. The spark of revolt was lit

James Gerstenzang

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the dome of the Capitol forming a perfect backdrop to the east, and the sun sinking in the west, President Reagan stood on a platform at a reception with Tip O'Neill and Howard H. Baker Jr.

"Howard, you were not asked here tonight to referee," Reagan said to the Senate majority leader, after acknowledging the presence of the House speaker, whom the president called "my other good friend and fellow Irishman."

The president seems fond of saying that after 5 p.m., he and Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. are the best of friends. But that's hard to tell from what they say about each other between sun-up and sundown.

They are more than just political antagonists — one the leader of the Republican administration and the other the head of the Democratic opposition in the House — who spar at each other for professional purposes only.

Rather, they claim to represent two different approaches to the nation's economic problems, and their sparring is only likely to increase in the coming pre-election weeks, because the Democrats are more than willing to make the economy the focus of the campaign.

Although interest rates and the rate of inflation have dropped since Reagan took office, unemployment has climbed and the number of business failures has, too. So, as Reagan crows about his administration's success in trimming inflation, the Democrats are making a concerted effort to follow up as often as possible with their side of the story: the price being paid by unemployed workers.

"Everytime he goes into the economy, he's going into quicksand," said Christopher J. Matthews, O'Neill's spokesman and administrative assistant. "The more he struggles, the more he sinks."

Reagan rarely mentions the speaker by name in his public appearances. But in his efforts to buy time for his economic program and protect the Republican majority in the Senate, he is frequently trying to answer the Democrats' complaints.

"To charge that our administration is trying to reduce inflation on the backs of the unemployed is to stand truth on its head," Reagan said in a speech in Manhattan, Kan. on Sept. 9.

The next day, in Hooper, Utah, he did directly address criticism voiced by the speaker. "...the leadership, Tip O'Neill and his cohorts, went public with their statements that I was hard-hearted and that they were standing in the way of my imposing on the poor and the needy and so forth. Well, what do they think that their inflation over these last 30 years has done to the poor?"

And so the war of words continued. From O'Neill's copying machines a little later came a variation on his favorite theme:

"For 20 months, the president has steered our country toward economic disaster. His Pentagon shopping spree triples the national debt. His huge and unfair tax breaks bankrupt the treasury. Thirteen million people are out of work. As unemployment rises, the president does nothing to avert a second depression."

Matthews, who worked in the Jimmy Carter White House, knows full well how a president and his aides can bring attention to an issue.

"The president has the ability to focus the national limelight almost at will," he said. "All we can do is put it in the proper context."

"He tries to pound away at what he calls the 'Democratic legacy,'" Matthews said, referring to Reagan's frequent theme that nearly 40 years of Democratic legislative control have brought the country to its current economic state.

So, Matthews said, the Democratic leadership in Congress will focus on what he called the "Republican legacy" of recession and unemployment.

With pollsters reporting that Reagan's personal popularity remains high, while his policies are getting lower marks, this strategy may make sense.

O'Neill's comments have not been directed at the president personally. Rather, they focus on the steps his administration has taken.

"I expect it will pick up between now and Election Day," Matthews said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate has for ages pompously prided itself on being the world's most deliberate institution. Now the chamber's two leaders agree that even a laudable practice can be overdone.

Neither Republican leader Howard Baker nor Democratic leader Robert Byrd are talking about abolishing the filibuster — the ancient and honorable practice which leads to much of that deliberation.

Frustrated as many senators are by tedious delays, the filibuster is much too ingrained in the folkways of the Senate for it ever to become extinct. On the whole, senators of all persuasions like the concept of a last resort defense.

"You know, an unbridled majority can be a very dangerous thing," Sen. Russell Long, D-La., recently explained. "They can take a bit in their teeth, you might say, and do some pretty cruel things to people."

What bothers Baker, Byrd and many others is not the filibuster itself but a relatively new practice — the post-cloture delay.

As the rule now stands, it requires the vote of 60 senators to terminate the filibuster — no matter how many senators are present and voting.

That part of the rule has been changed over the years under pressure from liberals — now pro-filers of the filibuster. The standard was first an absolute two-thirds, then two-thirds of those voting and finally a flat 60.

During all those years, senators accepted defeat with great grace, giving their last-chance stemwinders and sitting down. It did not take long because the rules allowed a senator no more than an hour.

But sometime in the 1970s, there came to the Senate a huge, hulking newcomer from Alabama, Jim Allen. This most amiable of men, now dead, quickly became a Senate favorite.

Allen became quickly skilled in the intricacies of the rule book and was one of the first to employ what is now known as filibuster-by-amendment. Although the rules limit debate to 100 hours, there is no limit on the number of amendments that can be offered if they are filed prior to the cloture vote.

Byrd, who calls this procedure "the real filibuster," recalled the Senate was paralyzed 13 days and one night on the natural gas deregulation bill by that tactic.

Only last week, opponents of legislation which would have permitted prayer in public schools, girded for the possibility that their filibuster would be ended. They filed 1,415 amendments, out of which only 23 would have been ruled as out of order on technicalities.

This process, once innovative, is now considered part of normal operating procedure to the point leaders sometimes hesitate to even call a bill for action if even the threat of a filibuster is lodged.

Baker and Byrd, at the time mired in a filibuster, agreed that something has to be done to "adjust that rule to provide a realistic way for the Senate to resolve post-cloture filibusters."

Republicans Slip The White House Leash

When the Democratic leadership in both houses backed bills to force the Federal Reserve to peg interest rates. With House Majority Leader Jim Wright flailing away at Volcker austerity, Republican congressmen began to listen for the first time to Kemp's warnings about monetary policy.

"We believe it is time to help reform monetary policy," says the Lott-Kemp letter, attacking the Fed's "monetarist experiment," begun in 1979, of seeking to control the money supply as the cause for "excruciatingly high" interest rates. The Lott-Kemp bill directs the Fed "to target short-term interest rates" consistent with "sustained economic growth." It draws a cosmetic distinction from Democratic versions by subordinating interest rates to "the requirement of achieving stable prices" — thereby dodging accusations of deflation. Nowhere is gold mentioned as the standard for setting interest rates. Instead, the target would be either the Bureau of Labor Statistics Commodity Index or the Bureau's Wholesale Price Index, neither of which includes gold. Similarly, the bill calls for an international monetary conference, but does not mention the words forbidden at the White House: "fixed exchange rates" or "Bretton Woods." Kemp did not consult his longtime supply-side gurus — Professor Arthur Laffer and Jude Wanniski — who want a gold-based dollar and a replica of the 1944 Bretton Woods Conference to fix exchange rates. Instead, three laymen — Kemp aide David S. Mick, supply-side Republican politician Jeffrey Bell and Kemp himself — devised the bill to avoid the buzz words of civil war. Gold and fixed exchange rates remain on the future supply-side agenda, but not for now. Among key House Republican leaders only Rep. Richard Cheney refused to bless the revolt. That represents a dramatic shift by Michel, who over the past year has testily chided Kemp for his monetary obsession. But Michel has made clear in leadership meetings since Labor Day that he cannot be in Paul Volcker's corner.

Noel Yancey

One of Charles Raper Jonas' proudest boasts is that, during the 20 years he served on the House Appropriations Committee, that group voted for spending cuts totaling $93 billion.

So Jonas, who came to be known as "Mr. Republican" while he was trouncing Democrats in 10 consecutive elections, must be muttering to himself when he contemplates the budget deficits being piled up by the Reagan administration.

Jonas, who stepped down from Congress voluntarily in 1972 to resume his law practice in Lincolnton, won the reputation of being a foe of big spending and an advocate of fiscal responsibility.

"Well, you can write me up as one who believes the federal government ought to live within its means," Jonas said in an interview two years ago. "We ought never to have a deficit unless we are in a war or a grave national emergency."

"You can't make me believe you can run a government any different than you can run a business enterprise. You have to live within your means or go to the poorhouse," Jonas added, quoting Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Jonas was not a prototype "Mr. No." A study in 1964 of his voting record in the 88th Congress shows that, while he disagreed with the whole house on 14 of 23 "key" issues, he voted with the North Carolina delegation (nine Democrats, two Republicans) 15 times.

Jonas: He Voted Against It All

Jonas is the son of the late Charles A. Jonas, a successful Lincolnton attorney who was elected to Congress in the Hoover landslide of 1928 and served one term. Jonas says his father was the "first of the name" to be a Republican. He attributes his father's switch to his studies of economics and government at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. These studies convinced him that "he favored Republican national principles."

The elder Jonas was defeated when he ran for a second term in Congress in 1930, partly as a result of the depression and partly because of a change the 1929 Legislature made in the election laws. Jonas says that, prior to 1929, there were separate ballots for state races and for Congress. The new law allowed the state Board of Elections to combine the ballots. Jonas said there were not enough voters then who were willing to split the ticket on the same ballot with state offices.

Like his father, Charles Raper Jonas was the target of "get Jonas" laws enacted by the overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature, but sentiment had changed sufficiently so that the anti-Jonas legislation rebounded in his favor.

One such effort was gerrymandering of the congressional district he represented by adding heavily Democratic counties to Jonas' district. When the 1961 Legislature reapportioned the 8th District to place Anson, Richmond and Union counties with Mecklenburg and Lincoln, the result was a matchup between Jonas and Democrat A. Paul Kitchin.

Kitchin was defeated and the heavy tide of voters put Anson, Richmond and Union counties in the Republican column for the first time since Reconstruction.

When Jonas first went to Congress in 1952, he did not expect to remain in Washington very long so he picked out an apartment — and stayed there the entire 20 years.

In his office, he had a framed slogan by an unknown author which said that "Nothing is easier than the expenditure of public money. It does not appear to belong to anybody. The temptation is overwhelming to bestow it on somebody." He also prized a quotation from Mark Twain — "When in doubt do what's right. You will please a few and astonish the rest."

In an interview, Jonas said the average American is now seeing and experiencing the effects of too-big government as he saw it in Congress years ago.

"I saw where it was going and decided I did not want to be a part of it," the former congressman said. Earlier, he had confided to a friend:

"When I die, I hope someone will place on my tombstone — 'He voted against all of it.'"

George Gallup Polls

PRINCETON, N.J. — The percentage of Americans who drink alcoholic beverages declined from 70 percent in 1981 to 65 percent in the latest survey, and now represents the lowest level of alcohol use since 1969.

The decline in alcoholic-beverage use is more pronounced among older Americans (50 and older), persons whose formal education ended at the grade-school level and those whose family income is less than $15,000 per year. These findings suggest that the current recession may be causing some people to curtail spending on alcoholic drinks in favor of household necessities.

The trend in alcohol use since 1939 offers further evidence that times of economic hardship are often associated with decreases in drinking.

For example, the lowest percentage of drinkers was recorded during the recession year of 1958 when 55 percent said they used alcoholic beverages. The proportion of drinkers also dropped in 1949 when the nation was in another economic slump. (The drinking data for the 1974-75 recession are inconclusive because no figures are available for the years immediately prior to this period.)

As shown in the comparison table below, the greatest decline in drinking has occurred among persons with only a grade-school education (down 23 percentage points), those 50 and older (down 11 points), and those from lower-income households (down 11 points).

	1981	1982	Point change
NATIONAL	70%	65%	-5

Catholics	82	76	-6
Family income:
$15,000 and over	78	77	-1
Under $15,000	62	51	-11

The findings reported today are based on in-person interviews with 1,543 adults, 18 and older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities across the nation during the period August 13-16.

For results based on a sample of this size, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be three percentage points in either direction.

Some Who Spent Are Better Off Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Sometimes when you listen to their complaints you tend to believe that they've been taken in by economists, advertisers, promoters, hucksters and others who like to have a say in the way people spend money.

It is only after reflecting a bit that you realize the American consumer isn't the victim he often portrays himself as being. Once he might have been, but oh how he's grown in knowledge and awareness, and maybe responsibility too.

He bought when he could afford to buy during the easy days of the 1970s, a time of substantial pay raises, low-cost credit and political administrations that almost guaranteed to keep recession away from the kitchen door. People took advantage of inflation. They bought real estate with relatively tiny down payments and low-cost money that banks shoveled at them, and then they sat back to rest and contemplate their growing fortunes.

Remember this when you encounter a typical response from consumers these days — that they wished they had saved their money during the good times so that they'd be better off today. Question such assertions.

The fact is that a good many consumers are relatively well off today because during the 1970s they spent their money rather than deposited it in banks at rates that were then less than half the inflation rate.

Now they have assets that would be much more difficult to buy at today's high prices, and that includes not just houses, but automobiles, home appliances and furnishings, and who knows, even a cache of dehydrated food.

When interest rates rose in the 1980s some of these same people did indeed save their money, which further underscores the notion that ordinary people today know a bit more about personal finances than was the case 25 years ago.

They finally rebelled against buying too. When prices inflated beyond what they considered reasonable they balked, and they remain in a balking mode, much to the distress of carmakers and retailers in general.

They've held on to the old car, and they've resisted buying other big-ticket items too, and they seem determined to continue resisting. "Reverse hedge buying" is how one consumer economist terms the phenomenon. They expect prices to fall, and they might just force their wish on sellers, he said.

Neither the president of the United States nor the president of General Motors can get them to spend their money, and both gentlemen have been forced to admit as much. They have lowered their forecasts, and they may be forced to change policies too in order to bring them into line with consumer thinking.

The fact that the official measurement of consumer prices shows them rising at an annual rate of less than 5 percent a year doesn't seem to impress people. Their own surveys at the checkout counter suggest that things still cost a lot.

They have support for their surveys. Perceptive economists note that while the consumer price index overall might be rising at a rather low rate, prices of some necessities, such as utilities, are very high relative to incomes.

When consumers can counter the strategy of the president of the United States, the promotions of GM, and the forecasts of many of the best known, highest paid economic forecasters, it suggests they still have a say in things.

In The Area

Accreditation

The American Dietetic Association has announced continued accreditation of the coordinated undergraduate program in dietetics in the East Carolina University School of Home Economics.

Reaccreditation of the program is for three years, according to the association's Commission on Accreditation. The program at ECU, which is the only such program in North Carolina, is directed by Dr. Evelyn Settle.

Operation Sunshine

Operation Sunshine recently registered 44 girls for its fall program, which already has included classes in crocheting and painting with tempera paints. The girls participated in a reading contest in September and in Greenville's clean-up week.

Youngsters interested in joining may call the Operation Sunshine Center between 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. at 758-5315. The program, for girls aged 7-15, is designed to keep girls off the street and give them structural activities to keep them occupied. The club meets Monday through Friday from 3-5 p.m.

Ski Trip Planned

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is taking reservations for the annual ski trip to Wintergreen, Va., during the first week of February.

A variety of ski packages and prices are available. A complete price list and reservation form are available at the main recreation office at Jaycee Park and Elm Street Gym or by calling Leslie Ball, 752-4137, ext. 259.

Scientific Meeting

Nearly 100 scientists from Canada, Finland, Romania and throughout the United States will visit the East Carolina University School of Medicine Oct. 31-Nov. 2 to attend the first scientific meeting of the Society for Environmental Geochemistry and Health.

The meeting will feature 30 paper presentations and numerous poster sessions which focus on the role of selenium and lead in the environment and health. Papers from the meeting will be published in the journal, Biological Trace Element Research.

For more information, contact Dr. John Bray or Dr. Robert Cousins at 757-2107.

Housing Authority

The Greenville Housing Authority will hold its October meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the agency's 1103 Broad St. office.

School Meeting

The information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education will be held at 8 p.m. Monday at Eastern Elementary School.

Four action items are on the agenda — the second reading of the snow make-up policy, budget amendments, insurance proposals for buildings and grounds and personnel action.

Other agenda items include reports on the coterminous board's role, class loads, annual evaluations and a facility use brochure.

Dancing Classes

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and the Merry Go Round Dance Club are sponsoring beginner round dancing classes starting Sunday at Elm Street Recreation Center from 6-7 p.m.

Basic rhythms and patterns of square dance level rounds will be taught. No previous experience is necessary. Round dancing is "couple dancing," therefore, it is preferable to have a partner.

Cost is $8 per couple per night. For more information call Cheryl Beasley, instructor, 758-6793.

Courts Reopened

The Greenville Recreation and Parks department has reopened the Elm Street tennis courts after a three-week resurfacing project.

Court reservations can be made, at least one day ahead, by calling 752-4137, ext. 259.

Man Sues Police In Funeral Arrest

SUES — SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A man has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit alleging police in a case of mistaken identity wrongfully arrested and interrupted a funeral procession after his mother's funeral.

Police say it's a case of an honest mistake and deny they interrupted a funeral procession.

Eastern Pines Fire Unit Marks 25th Anniversary

The Eastern Pines Fire Department will hold open house from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday in observance of the organization's 25th anniversary celebration.

Glenn Hardee, president of the volunteer fire department, said "a group of men, realizing the need for fire protection," met in October 1957 to discuss the formation of a fire department in the Eastern Pines community when Greenville suspended fire protection in rural areas.

By the end of the year, members of the department had secured a military surplus truck, had a tank and pump mounted on it and were in the firefighting business.

The first Eastern Pines fire department building was completed in 1959. A few years later, after the department acquired an second truck, a larger station was built and the first one sold.

Then in 1974 work on the present, and still larger, station was started. It was dedicated in September 1975, and now houses five fire trucks and a rescue squad vehicle.

Value of the department's trucks has been set at $116,000 while the real estate owned by the department amounts to another 118,000. The equipment and building are maintained with an operating budget that this year amounts to $26,000.

"With the continuing growth of the community, we realized that a rescue squad was needed," Hardee said. That realization led to the Eastern Pines Rescue Squad — which went into operation Aug. 1 with a $34,000 investment in a truck and equipment — being organized.

"We owe a lot to the four fire chiefs (Hugh Hardee Jr., Judson Porter, Melvin Stokes and Lyman Hardee) that have served us," Hardee emphasized. "Without their leadership, we feel we would not have had the success that we are enjoying today."

According to Hardee "we have 41 active firemen now and 30 members in the rescue squad" led by Capt. Ervin Hardee.

Sculptors Hold Tri-State Meet

Artists from the Carolinas and Virginias gathered at East Carolina University's School of Art this weekend for the semi-annual conference of the Tri-State Sculpture Guild.

The conference is the first regional meeting held in the Jenkins Fine Arts Center at ECU. A month-long exhibition of sculpture scheduled for October will be one of the major fall events of ECU's 75th anniversary year.

Works by the tri-state sculptors are on view in the art school's Gray Gallery and on the surrounding grounds.

Members of the guild are spending the weekend attending lectures and workshops conducted by local artists. Featured are a demonstration by John Quinn of a one-man foundry and lecture by Al Erdmann entitled "Why Solar Small."

One of the highlights of the weekend is a panel discussion on what art can do for business and what business can do for the arts.

The business community was represented by executives from Burroughs Wellcome and Branch Banking and Trust Co.

The N.C. Center for Public Television is filming the conference for a documentary on business and the arts. A number of local businesses have donated services and funds to the conference sponsors.

Student Jailed For Burning Pet

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A college student serving a 60-day jail sentence for placing his pet guinea pig in a frying pan says he decided to cook the creature lightly because it bit him.

George Schiro said he didn't realize the animal had suffered second-degree burns until two days later when it began forming scabs.

"I didn't want to hurt him in any way. It was an act of vengeance. I wanted to see him feel discomfort like he gave me," Schiro said in an interview this week from the Alachua County Jail.

Alachua County Judge Stan Morris called the offense heinous and inhumane.

Ultrasound Plan Helps In Finding Breast Cancer

By MICHAEL C. BUELOW
Associated Press Writer
MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A new technique to detect breast cancer has achieved a 98 percent accuracy rate in testing at University Hospital and Clinics, says its developer.

Dr. Raul Matallana, director of the hospital's Oncologic Diagnostic Radiology Division, uses a new computerized ultrasound machine, as well as mammography, or breast X-rays, in examining women for the disease.

Combining the two diagnostic tools allows for detection of breast tumors in their earliest stages, when treatment is most effective, he said in an interview last week.

One out of every 11 American women will get breast cancer during her lifetime, the American Cancer Society says, with 112,000 new cases and 37,300 deaths expected this year.

There are only about 15 ultrasound machines like University Hospital's in the United States, and the Madison medical center was the first to begin using it last year, said Matallana. The machine creates images by bouncing sound waves off body tissue.

Mammography, used since the 1960s, has been responsible for finding about 66 percent of all breast tumors not discovered through self-examination, he said.

Ultrasound has two advantages over mammography, Matallana said. No radiation is emitted, and it can detect cancer in dense tissue that usually shows up poorly on X-rays, he noted.

But older ultrasound machines were less sophisticated than the latest devices and could only examine single lumps already spotted and large enough to be felt, the physician said.

University Hospital's $145,000 machine is equipped with a television screen which produces four cross-section pictures of a woman's breast as she lies face-down on an examination table connected to the machine.

The breast is placed in a water-filled compartment of the table, allowing ultrasound waves to scan it and produce a picture on the screen.

"The ultrasound machine picks up echoes from the tissue it is scanning," Matallana said. "Normal breast tissue is homogenous, so the echo pattern is the same. Detection of cancerous tissue would result in a different echo pattern."

Matallana, who has published several papers and spoken at seminars in the United States and abroad on breast cancer detection, said the 98 percent accuracy rate of his combined technique is better than using any one of the methods singly.

His and other studies have shown that clinical examination is only 30 percent accurate in finding tumors, while ultrasound alone is 62 percent accurate and mammographies are 85 percent accurate.

"The key to curing any type of cancer is early detection. And ultrasound coupled with mammography allows us for the first time to better detect, locate and classify tumors of less than a centimeter large and often too small to be felt," he said, noting that the 10-year survival rate for treating patients with tumors of that size or less is 96 percent.

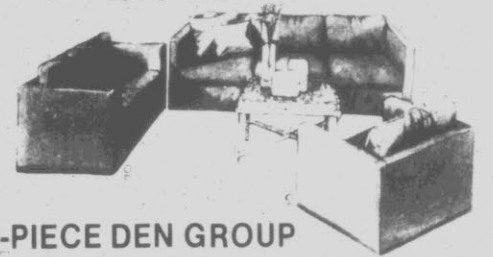

Besides improved detection of growths, ultrasound also can provide more specific information about them, identifying whether a tumor is benign or malignant and computing its size, said Matallana.

The technique also can rule out breast cancer in some instances where other tests show up positive. Matallana noted several cases in which women, ranging in age from 43 to 67, were thought to have cancerous tumors following clinical examinations and mammography, but were later found to have simple duct irregularities in an ultrasound examination.

"Another good result of using both tests is that we eliminate the need for a biopsy to determine whether cancer exists or not," Matallana said. "And in women where a tumor of two centimeters or less is found even in dense tissue early through ultrasound, cure may even be achieved without major surgery."

Cancer Specialist Loses License Over 'Quackery'

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A cancer specialist who allegedly turned to "quackery" and lured cancer patients into expensive Laetrile treatments has had his medical license revoked.

Dr. Donald Cole, who practices in New York City, in Illinois and New Jersey, made millions of dollars as one of the biggest dispensers of Laetrile in the country, says New York state, which last week revoked his license.

The state also accused Cole of "abusive experimentation" with a child cancer patient and with using "exotic" cancer treatments that included heating a patient's blood to 108 degrees.

"We're told that it's the first successful prosecution for Laetrile fraud in the nation," said Peter Slocum, a spokesman for the state of New York Health Department.

State officials said they began investigating Cole after finding a notebook of his, written in code and tucked away at a hospital nurse's station. It detailed treatments given some patients. Laetrile was code-named "candy."

Hearings were held from February 1979 to May 1981.

Last week, the state Board of Regents revoked his medical license.

Cole struck a pact with the financially struggling Whitestone General Hospital in Queens in which he filled as many as half of its 100 beds with his patients, Health Department lawyer John Shea said.

Cole operated out of Whitestone from 1976 until the hospital went bankrupt and closed in 1978, Shea said.

Reagan Promises Hard Line On Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan pledged Saturday that the federal government will intensify its war against drug traffickers. "We've taken down the surrender flag and run up the battle flag," he said.

"We're making no excuses for drugs — hard, soft or otherwise," Reagan said. "Drugs are bad and we're going after them. And we're going to win the war on drugs."

Reagan spoke about the drug problem in his weekly radio address to the nation, broadcast live from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., where he is spending the weekend. He shared the microphone with his wife, Nancy, who has traveled around the country talking to teen-agers about drugs.

"I have to tell you," Mrs. Reagan said, "that few things in my life have frightened me as much as the drug epidemic among our children."

The president did not spell out details of what he said would be a "bold, confident plan" announced within days to step up the war against drugs.

However, he said the government would not allow drug traffickers to move elsewhere once law enforcement officers shut down a supply in one area.

"We're going to be waiting for them," the president said.

"We're undertaking a narcotics policy that might be termed 'hot pursuit.' We're not just going to let them go somewhere else, we're going to be on their tail."

Reagan acknowledged that previous administrations have waged war against drugs, but he said they all suffered from a lack of coordination.

"Each was fighting its own separate battle against drugs," the president said. "Now, for the very first time, the federal government is waging a planned, concerted campaign."

He said nine departments and 33 federal agencies have some responsibility in the drug area, and that their efforts will be pooled together in a coordinated attack.

"In addition to the enforcement element," he said, "our strategy will also focus on international cooperation, education and prevention — which Nancy is very inter-

Long Distance Isn't What It Used To Be... It's Better, Faster And 81% Cheaper!

Most prices have been going up, up and away. But the cost of long distance has glided downward over the years. For instance, in 1927, a three minute call to the West Coast cost $9.00. Today, that call is just $1.72 dialed direct. That's an 81% cost decrease. And the cost of long distance gets even lower when you dial direct during discount rate periods (after 5 PM on weekdays and all day Saturday and Sunday).

No, long distance isn't what it used to be. It's better, faster and cheaper. So plot a course on the map next time you need to make a long distance connection. And take advantage of one of today's best bargains.

Double-Digit Unemployment May Be Next

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For many Americans of voting age, a double-digit unemployment rate is something they read about in a history of the Great Depression. This week it may become a reality.

For the Reagan administration and the Republican Party, the timing could not be worse.

When the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics releases September jobless data Friday, it will be the last such report before the Nov. 2 congressional elections, and a 10 percent or higher rate could increase the chances of defeat for GOP candidates.

A Labor Department report Thursday that a record 703,000 Americans filed first-time claims for unemployment benefits during the week ending Sept. 18 added to expectations of the double-digit rate for the month.

Voters are particularly concerned about the continuing impact of the recession in hard-hit areas of the industrial Midwest and Northeast, where layoffs have become a way of life in auto factories, steel plants, and allied industries.

Even House Republican leader Bob Michel, who represents the Peoria, Ill., area suffering from layoffs by Caterpillar Tractor, is in a tough race because of the unemployment situation.

Michigan Democrats are favored to capture the governorship largely because of the economy, and in Indiana, incumbent GOP Sen. Richard Lugar is in trouble because of the high auto industry layoffs.

The difference between the current 9.8 percent seasonally adjusted rate and 10 percent is only about 200,000 jobs, which would boost the current 10.8 million jobless persons to about 11 million.

The number is not much, but the dramatic impact of headlines of "10 percent unemployment" would surely help Democrats seeking to oust GOP incumbents.

It would eclipse the 9.9 percent annual rate in 1941 at the tail end of the Depression, which was soon erased by World War II.

As unemployment has risen from 7.4 percent to 9.8 percent during the Reagan administration, the employment-population ratio has declined.

New Court Term Set On Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court confronts many controversial issues that plague Congress and the White House in its new term that starts Monday, including abortion, tax exemptions for private schools, women's rights and nuclear power.

The cases will also test the constitutional balance of power between the state and federal governments and executive and legislative branches.

Nearly a decade after the Supreme Court legalized abortions, the justices will take a new look at the politically explosive controversy to see if limits can be placed on a woman's right to end a pregnancy.

At issue is whether state and local governments can place certain restrictions on abortions during the first six months of pregnancy. These regulations — in cases from Ohio, Virginia and Missouri — range from mandatory hospitalization to 24-hour waiting periods.

The court's historic 1973 ruling said the first three months is a matter between a woman and her doctor.

Almost as controversial is the debate over tax exemptions for private schools that discriminate. The issue pits conservative, fundamentalist institutions — like South Carolina's Bob Jones University that forbids interracial dating — against civil rights groups who want to bar tax exemptions.

Earlier this year, the administration was embroiled in a political firestorm over its move, later abandoned, to reverse a 12-year-old policy of denying such tax exemptions.

The Equal Rights Amendment, which failed to win ratification last June, is also on the court's agenda. After initially urging the high court to rule Congress could not extend the ratification period, the administration now recommends the dropping the case.

Gunman Kills 3 Bar Patrons

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Police hunted Saturday for a gunman who returned to a crowded tavern after an argument and opened fire, killing three patrons and wounding seven others.

The shootings occurred late Friday during an "end of summer" celebration at the Mother Lode Bar, a popular country-western watering hole.

"He just stood in the doorway and fired," said police Capt. K.F. Schiele.

A bartender, who asked not to be identified, said the assailant "came in and started blasting... He shot a pitcher of beer right out of my hands."

Police and Highway Patrol officers launched a ground and air search of the area, about four miles north of the state Capitol. The gunman fled on foot into a residential district after the shooting, Schiele said.

One of the wounded, 28-year-old Randolph Wooley of Sacramento, was in critical condition Saturday at American River Hospital with multiple bullet wounds in the chest following all-night surgery, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Another victim, Michael Pesut, 32, of Sacramento, was also in critical condition following surgery at University Medical Center, authorities said.

Schiele said the bearded, long-haired gunman, estimated to be in his 20s, got into an argument at the bar about 7:30 p.m. Friday and was thrown out by owner Ron Muller.

But he returned two hours later with a rifle and a handgun, threw open the doors and entered, spraying the inside with bullets as customers scrambled for cover under tables, said Muller.

A man and a woman died at the bar, officers reported, and a third victim, a woman, died shortly before midnight at a local hospital of gunshot wounds in the chest.

The Sacramento County Coroner's office identified the two dead at the scene as Pamela Ann McCoy, 27, of Sacramento, and Randall Sherwood, 28, of Carmichael, a Sacramento-area suburb.

Congress Goes Home For Elections

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The 97th Congress, brought into power in the 1980 conservative sweep that elected Ronald Reagan president, returned home Saturday to await a new mandate from voters anxious that the recession is continuing despite two years of legislative maneuvering.

The economy was likely to continue to plague lawmakers when they return Nov. 29 in a post-election "lame-duck" session to deal with uncompleted spending legislation needed to keep the government solvent in the new fiscal year, which began Friday.

After a day of technical bankruptcy, Congress approved legislation late Friday that funds government operations only through Dec. 17. Reagan signed the measure Saturday.

If Congress, which has been repeatedly confronted in recent months with budget deadlines and threatened cuts in government services, can pass the crucial spending bills for fiscal 1983 by December, "that would be a major accomplishment," claimed Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr. R-Tenn.

Only two of the 13 appropriations bills cleared Congress before the recess.

The worsening economy, and lawmakers' inability to turn it around, took the bloom off many of Reagan's initial tax and budget victories of 1981 and handed Democrats a ready-made campaign issue for the November elections.

The Senate, under GOP rule for the first time in more than a quarter century, remained loyal to the president on most issues.

But the Democratic-controlled House presented Reagan a bitter pill Friday as Congress rushed toward its two-month-long election recess — rejection by nearly 50 votes of the president's proposed constitutional amendment mandating a balanced federal budget.

It was in stark contrast to the victories Reagan had received in the House on earlier economic votes, where through 1981 and early 1982 he was able to rely on a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats — a coalition that had failed him on a number of recent showdowns.

In 1981, Congress helped the president carry out a central campaign promise by approving the largest tax cut in history, a measure reducing taxes on individuals and businesses by about $750 billion during the five years from 1982 through 1985.

But as the economy weakened, there were growing concerns in both business and political communities that the tax cut was too large, that the record deficits it helped produce were partially responsible for soaring interest rates.

So 12 months later, Congress approved one of the biggest tax increases in peacetime history, $228 billion over the next five years — including higher taxes on cigarettes and telephone bills and a cut in deductions for medical expenses.

Congress in 1982 continued Reagan's program of government austerity, voting spending cuts of about $30 billion over a three-year period, most of them in social programs such as Medicare, Medicaid and food stamps.

The measures passed after a prolonged dispute between Reagan and members of both parties concerned about escalating deficits. Even so, the red ink for the fiscal year that began Friday is expected to exceed $150 billion.

It was another good year for the Pentagon, however, as the military got virtually every major weapon system it wanted.

But disciples of the New Right, who had viewed the GOP takeover of the Senate as a golden opportunity to press so-called social issues dear to their hearts, came away empty-handed.

Hardline conservative efforts to reverse Supreme Court decisions on abortion, busing for desegregation and school prayer all failed — even though they consumed weeks of Senate time.

That was largely because of successful parliamentary delaying tactics waged by a handful of Senate liberals — much in the fashion of the filibusters waged by conservatives seeking to block civil rights legislation in the 1960s.

There was little foreign policy legislation to emerge from the 1982 session. Hostilities in the Middle East continued to dominate congressional attention.

To Senate Assistant Republican Leader Ted Stevens of Alaska, the 1982 session has been one of growing exasperation over budget legislation and the paralysis in government every time another appropriations deadline is missed. "The frustration here is over the complexity of the fiscal process," he said. "It all adds up to more and more delay."

Senate Assistant Democratic Leader Alan Cranston of California assesses the outgoing 97th Congress as "not very satisfactory."

"Reagan has gotten most of what he wanted and it hasn't added up. He's made the economy worse. We have more unemployment than during any time in our country."

session, besides the vital spending bills, were several other pieces of uncompleted legislation — including an overhaul of immigration laws and a major nuclear waste bill.

Congress left the troubled Social Security system untouched, despite general agreement that some changes are needed to shore up the sagging trust funds.

However, it seemed unlikely that lawmakers would attempt to resolve so major a problem in a Thanksgiving-Christmas session, hardly a time conducive to serious legislation. "How much can be done in the scant time remaining remains to be seen," said Democrat Cranston. He claimed lame-duck sessions are seldom productive because of tendencies "to defer important decisions to the new Congress."

And, for once, there was agreement between party leaders.

Republican Baker said that with the pending spending bills, the lame-duck Congress will have its work cut out for it.

Post-election sessions "never accomplish anything," he says.

West Germany's Foreign Policy To Remain Same

By ALISON SMALE
Associated Press Writer

BONN, West Germany (AP) - Chancellor Helmut Kohl is expected to sound more pro-American and anti-Soviet than his predecessor, Helmut Schmidt, but many doubt the change of Helmut's will significantly alter West Germany's foreign policy.

Two of the reasons most often cited by those who expect a continuation of past policies are that Kohl's Foreign Affairs Ministry is to be headed by Schmidt's long-time Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, and the new chancellor's more pro-American policies may be offset by an increasingly influential opposition.

Kohl heads the conservative Christian Democrat Party while Schmidt, ousted by Parliament in a no-confidence vote Friday, is the leader of the socialist Social Democrats. Genscher is the chief of the Free Democrats, who brought down Schmidt's government when they ended their coalition with the Social Democrats and joined the Christian Democrats.

The tone of U.S.-German relations is likely to turn more friendly, in part because of similarities between the two nations' heads of state. Although Kohl speaks no English and President Reagan no German, the two men are both cheerful, old-fashioned conservatives who took office with little experience in foreign affairs and no love for the Soviets.

The weekly newspaper Die Zeit noted in a profile of Kohl three months before he took office that the new chancellor is a man "who thinks the world is great."

He won't, as Schmidt did, "lecture the American president about high U.S. interest rates, but will tell him that he loves his country, Germany. And from what we know of Ronald Reagan, he will understand that and find it very nice," Dike Zeit said.

Kohl's government is expected to try to resolve differences with Washington over U.S. plans to deploy new American missiles in West Germany next year.

Unlike Schmidt, who had to placate leftists in his Social Democratic Party by assuring them the missiles would not be deployed if at all possible, Kohl will not meet opposition from his Christian Democrats.

But this will antagonize the growing West German peace movement.

Many observers believe the peace movement will gain strength and they cite two reasons:

"There will be what one Social Democrat called 'clear fronts' between the government and opposition. He predicted leftists will unite in open resistance to planned measures from missile deployment to cuts in welfare benefits."

Kohl has promised new national elections next March, and the missile deployment will be a major issue, with the possibility that leaders of the peace movement and environmentalist Greens will win seats in the national Parliament.

Some European diplomats predict that mounting opposition to the missiles will pressure Kohl into urging a quick agreement at the U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva on European nuclear arms to delay or at reduce the deployment.

Kohl "might want to avoid the missiles issue, but he will not be able to," said one diplomat. Thus, it may be that Kohl, like Schmidt, will find himself pleading West Germany's case with the United States.

Kohl also is expected to be more vocal in his opposition to the Soviets, but few expect a change of policy. Trade treaties and contacts forged under Schmidt and his Social Democrat predecessor Willy Brandt are likely to remain intact.

In his inaugural speech as head of his Christian Democratic Party in 1973, Kohl said detente with the Soviet bloc could undermine the West.

"The reduction of the military danger through the policy of the communist camp has brought an end to Cold War," Kohl said. "But it has removed nothing of the threat, this policy has just changed character. Ideological aggression has been added to the danger of a military attack."

Some observers believe Kohl's election will give Genscher more control over foreign policy. Schmidt liked being the international statesman, creating his own Franco-German alliance with former French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and visiting or entertaining Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Genscher served Schmidt as Foreign Minister from 1974 until his resignation from the Cabinet September 17. He then led his liberal Free Democrat party into an alliance with Kohl, and is scheduled to get his old post back under the new chancellor.

Effort Begun To Restore Schmidt

BONN, West Germany (UPI) - Chancellor Helmut Kohl, savoring his victory over Helmut Schmidt, Saturday promised West Germans a "new beginning," pledging national elections to give a mandate to his conservative policies.

One day after Kohl replaced Schmidt in a parliamentary no-confidence vote, the Social Democrats began a campaign to restore Schmidt to power.

The campaign was based on Schmidt's continued popularity and a charge of betrayal against Free Democratic Party leader Hans-Dietrich Genscher, whose defection to Kohl and his Christian Democrats caused Schmidt's downfall.

Public opinion polls show Schmidt is far more popular than Kohl, though a majority prefer the Christian Democrats to the Social Democrats.

Aware of a movement to unseat Genscher at an extraordinary party congress Oct. 16, Social Democrats offered to form a new coalition with the tiny but pivotal party if it "returns to a social-liberal policy" - in other words, if it ousts Genscher.

In leaflets distributed throughout the country, Kohl said: "A new beginning has been made. Now we can master the crisis."

He told reporters he would stand by his promise to ask voters for a mandate in national elections March 6 but rejected Schmidt's demand for immediate elections.

Opening their new campaign, the Social Democrats distributed leaflets headed "Kohl and Genscher Fleeing from the German People."

The Social Democrats apparently hoped to fight the March 6 election allied with a Free Democratic Party under a new chairman, possibly former interior minister Gerhard Baum, who spoke against Kohl Friday in the Bundestag - the German parliament.

They were encouraged by a motion passed by the branch of the Free Democrats in the city-state of Hamburg demanding Genscher's resignation. The motion was considered certain to be introduced at the extraordinary party congress.

New Birth-Control Plans To Be Aired At Session

By FRANK BLANCHARD
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Women in the United States soon may be able to get a shot every three months to prevent pregnancy.

Scientists are testing an intrauterine device that would be effective for 15 to 20 years. A slow-release steroid implanted under a woman's skin could prevent pregnancy for up to six years, health officials say.

These and other experimental methods of birth control will headline the first Conference of Family Planning sponsored by the Emory University Department of Gynecology and Obstetrics here Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. Elizabeth Connell, professor of gynecology and obstetrics at Emory University School of Medicine and director of the conference, said about 200 physicians from the United States and Canada will discuss new technologies, debate controversial techniques and try to clear the air of myths about contraception.

"If nothing else comes out of this meeting besides an equalization of the risks and benefits of pill use, I think that's very important," she said.

The "single most incorrect piece of information" about birth control is that the pill causes cancer, Ms. Connell said. In fact, there is evidence that the pill may help prevent breast tumors, ovarian tumors and anemia, she said.

"For women 35 and younger...and in good health, the risk of serious disease and death are practically nil," Ms. Connell said.

On the other hand, women over 35 who smoke are at much greater risk of serious complications, such as stroke and heart attack, from pill use than any other group of women, Ms. Connell said. Women in this group account for nearly 75 percent of all complications from birth control pills, she said.

One controversy to be addressed at the conference will be use of Depo Provera as a contraceptive in the United States. The synthetic female hormone can be injected every three months to prevent pregnancy and has been in use in more than 80 countries by millions of women.

Ms. Connell contends the drug is safe and virtually 100 percent effective. No deaths have been associated with its use in 10 to 15 years of research, she said.

But Depo Provera has been challenged as dangerous by a number of women's activists and consumer groups who contend it has been linked to tumors in animals. Twice, the groups persuaded the FDA to reject the drug for use in this country.

"It's very sad really," Ms. Connell said. "It has nothing to do with science. I know no scientific body that has evaluated this drug and found it unacceptable."

"The monkeys get the tumors in a tissue that is not found in the human," she said. "It's become a political football."

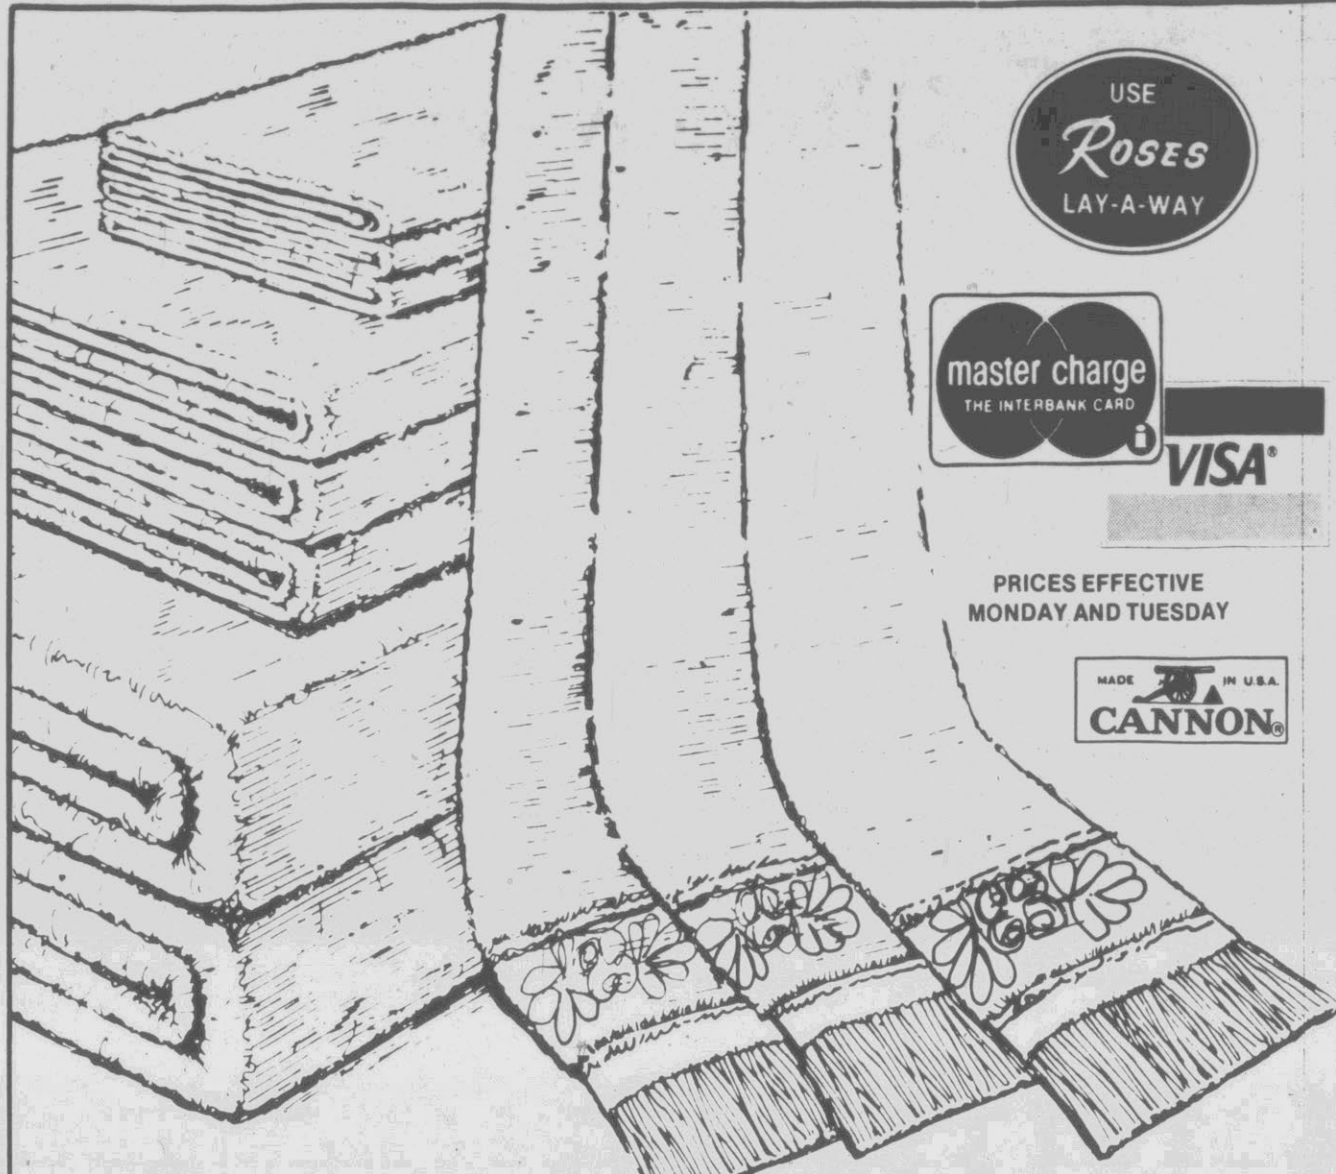

A public board of inquiry comprising three scientists is investigating the drug and may recommend its use in the near future, Ms. Connell said.

Another new method of birth control under study is an IUD that would last for up to 20 years.

The long lasting IUD was developed by Dr. Howard Tatum, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at Emory, and Dr. Jaime Zipper of Santiago, Chile, and has undergone nine years of testing in Belgium.

But further tests will be needed before the device could be offered to the FDA for approval, Tatum said.

The slow-release steroid that can be implanted in a woman to prevent pregnancy has undergone more than 10 years of testing and is expected to go before the FDA within the next two years for approval.

Green Berets Say Rules Hurt Troop Evaluation

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Green Berets who have trained Salvadoran troops say ground rules that bar Americans from accompanying the soldiers on combat missions hamper evaluation of the training.

Assessment of how well the Salvadorans learned their lessons, which include classes on humane treatment of civilians and enemy prisoners, now depends on information provided by the Salvadorans themselves, the Green Berets said.

"Even if they're totally honest when they come back, you can't be sure you're doing all you can for them," said Capt. David Morris, who headed a team of trainers in El Salvador from March to August 1981. "There's nothing like a first-hand report by an experienced man in the field."

U.S. advisers in El Salvador are prohibited from going into areas where combat is considered likely. They are also barred from carrying M-16 rifles and wearing fatigue uniforms.

The restrictions, designed to prevent American casualties and allay public concerns about El Salvador becoming "another Vietnam," were set by President Reagan when he sent 54 non-combat advisers to the Central American country in March 1981.

State Department officials say the number of U.S. advisers varies now due to such things as transfers, but around 30 to 50 may be in the country on any given day.

'I Am Just A Pilgrim For Peace'

Graham Offers New Message

By ELISSA McCRARY
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham, who has aroused millions to enthusiasm for the "old-time religion," is preaching a new message of hellfire and damnation — the dangers of nuclear war.

The past five years have brought criticism and praise for the Montreat preacher. And the political events of the past 10 years have shaken his faith in the political process.

"We are on the verge, in my judgment, of a nuclear holocaust, and I think that we as Christians have a responsibility to warn the people. I am just a pilgrim for peace," Graham said in an interview with The Associated Press.

At age 63, Graham's message takes a far different form than it did in the 1940s, when he raged against communism.

His first big success as an evangelist came in November 1949, when he held a meeting in Los Angeles that received national recognition.

His message in Los Angeles back then was tough. "The world is divided into two camps. On the one side, we see communism. On the other, we see Western culture, with its fruit and its foundation in the Bible, the word of God... Communism, on the other hand, has declared war against God, against Christ, against the Bible."

Earlier this year he was harshly criticized by the American people for leading a peace crusade in the Soviet Union, and he was accused of being a tool for Soviet propaganda.

During his six days in Moscow, Graham conferred with Soviet church leaders, spoke at a state-sanctioned anti-nuclear conference and praised what he called Soviet religious freedom.

Graham said he is uncomfortable with the controversy and hurt by the criticism over his Moscow trip. He said he has a responsibility to take his message of peace to the people.

"I was stunned by what I heard directed at me by my own people. I was trying to be gracious to my hosts by not damning them while I was there," he said.

Last week Graham announced before beginning a lecture series at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill that he will preach in the communist countries of East Germany and Czechoslovakia in October. It will be the first time the evangelist has been allowed to preach inside those countries.

In light of the criticism over his Moscow trip, Graham was anxious to dispel any rumors that his upcoming trip to Eastern Europe is being made for political reasons.

"I am certainly not going on a political trip," he said.

The change in Graham's philosophy has taken shape steadily since the 1970s, when he found himself disillusioned by Watergate. The scandal forced his friend, Richard Nixon, to resign the presidency and Graham felt it left his own reputation tarnished. He also stepped into the political limelight with his support for the Nixon administration's policy on the Vietnam conflict.

Graham was stunned as he listened to the Watergate tapes.

He later told biographer Marshall Frady, "I just couldn't understand it. I still can't. I looked upon him as the possibility of leading this country to its greatest and best days. And all those people around him. They seemed so clean, family men, so clean-living."

"Sometimes, when I look back on it all now, it has the aspects of a nightmare."

His religious stature previously had brought him in contact with other presidents. He visited Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower at the White House. He was on good terms with President John F.

Kennedy, although he delivered a well publicized invocation at a South Carolina campaign rally for Nixon, Kennedy's Republican opponent. He was friendly with President Lyndon B. Johnson and was one of those to participate at an interfaith service the morning of Johnson's inauguration.

In the wake of Watergate, Graham temporarily disassociated himself from the political arena. But he said the experience tempered his ideas on America's mission and the world, and caused him to re-examine his relationship to American politics and culture.

Through this personal upheaval, Graham's message slowly changed. As a result, he began speaking out against nuclear arms, social and racial injustice and urging a fairer distribution of the world's resources.

While the direction of his sermons has changed, Graham's distinctive style of delivery has remained the same. The 6-foot-2 evangelist with his wavy hair, now gray, still holds his audiences spellbound with his charismatic pulpit manner and deep, soothing voice.

Graham says he believes the threat of nuclear war is sparking a new religious movement and bringing religious groups closer together. He said evangelical groups are adding thousands of members each year and dozens of Bible-study classes.

"I hate to think what the world would be like without this (religious growth)," he said. "This is a pessimistic time, with more crime, more drunkenness, more drugs, more divorce. The good is getting better, but evil is getting worse at the same rate — just like it is said in the Bible."

Despite reports of recurring health problems, Graham says he has no plans to retire. Graham declared that he is in excellent health.

However, he told The Associated Press that he plans to cut back on his lecture schedule next year. He said he will postpone several trips at the beginning of the year.

"As a clergyman, I have trouble saying no to anyone very easily. As a result, my schedule sometimes gets rather hectic."

"My board of trustees has written me a letter about slowing down. They feel I should slow down quite drastically. And I plan to do it. But I'll still be taking my Gospel to the people and saying what I believe in."

State Draws Federal Grant For Sanctuaries

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina has received a federal grant of $454,100 to establish a system of estuarine sanctuaries in the state's coastal areas, Gov. Jim Hunt says.

The first two sanctuaries established by the state Department of Natural Resources and Community Development will be Zeke's Island near the mouth of the Cape Fear River and Carrot Island near Beaufort.

Neal Says Cigarette Ban Wrong

By The Associated Press
Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., has warned Japan that efforts to keep American cigarettes out of the country could result in serious retributions.

"Japan is playing a dangerous game and if it continues, retaliation, inspired by public opinion, is a very real possibility," Neal told a group of Japanese reporters in Washington Friday.

Neal said he was responding to an article in Thursday's Wall Street Journal that said the newspaper had uncovered a six-page document with specific orders from the Japanese Tobacco & Salt Corp. to obstruct foreign cigarette sales.

The corporation is a government-owned monopoly that exercises complete control over all tobacco products distributed in Japan.

The Wall Street Journal said the document suggests obstructing American cigarette sales by stopping sales in cigarette vending machines and refusing to allow advertisements for the U.S. products in stores.

David Guilfoile, manager of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.'s Japanese operation, is quoted in the article as saying his biggest problem is getting retailers to display his advertising.

Guilfoile said Reynolds hesitates to complain about such abuses to the government because "we end up getting the retailers we're trying to develop as customers into trouble."

Neal told the Japanese reporters that the $18 billion trade imbalance between the United States and Japan "has led to growing demands in the Congress and in the country for retaliatory protectionist action by the United States."

He said the Wall Street Journal article "is apt to arouse strong reaction from protectionists in this country."

Foreign cigarettes claim only 1.4 percent of the Japanese market. American officials say that if more U.S. cigarettes were sold in Japan, the $18 billion trade deficit could be reduced.

Japan Tobacco & Salt Corp., in addition to regulating imported cigarettes, is also the country's only manufacturer of cigarettes.

New Battery Has Long Life

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - A Duke University researcher says a seemingly "immortal battery" could help lower electricity bills and spur development of electric cars.

The battery is made by GEL Inc. of Durham from cheap, commonplace materials, said Dr. Charles Harman, a professor of mechanical engineering and a consultant to the company.

The battery is based on a reversible electrochemical process using dissolved zinc-bromide salt, said Harman, who is testing an automotive version of the battery in an electric van at Duke.

He said the new battery could become a cheap and dependable source of emergency power and a portable power source for use in trolling motors and other engines.

GEL Inc. has pursued the zinc-bromide approach - long considered outside the mainstream of battery research - for years. The small firm is headed by Ralph Zito, a former General Electric Co. physicist who holds more than 20 battery-related patents.

The GEL battery apparently can be charged and discharged indefinitely without losing capacity, unlike conventional lead-acid batteries that die a little every time they are used, said Harman.

"It is a device with tremendous possibilities," he said. "It stores electrical energy with reasonable efficiency and with little mechanical complication."

The battery can produce roughly twice the wattage per pound as the lead-acid battery. But Harman said it probably will not replace the older type in many applications.

Among its disadvantages is its inability to retain a charge for a long period of time, he said. A lead-acid battery will hold its charge for months.

Injured Pirates Fall To Missouri

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
COLUMBIA, Mo. — East Carolina received its first taste of the Big Eight Saturday and it was not a pleasant feed. Ahead by only a point at the half, Missouri took advantage of a blocked punt and a potent passing attack to score 21 second-half points and defeat ECU, 28-9, yesterday afternoon before a crowd of 50,848 at Faurot Field.

ECU trailed, 7-6, at the half on the strength of two field goals by Jeff Heath. Missouri, however, converted a blocked punt into a TD early in the third quarter and reserve running back Eric Drain scored twice in the final period, on runs of two and 59 yards, to seal the win. Missouri, after giving up 171 yards to ECU in the first half, held the Pirates to 34 yards and four first downs in the last two periods.

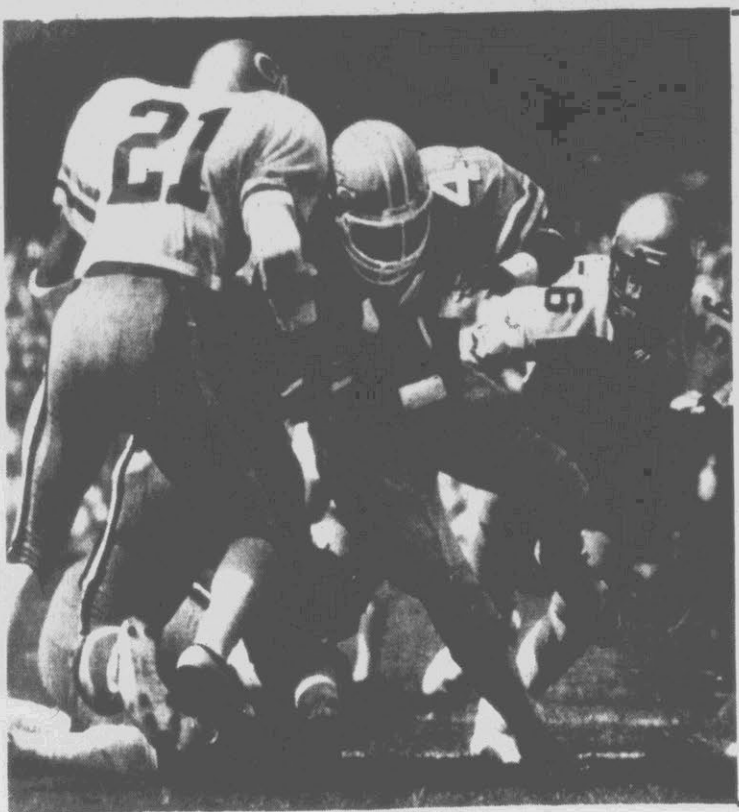

"Missouri is good, but our our players are very, very disappointed," ECU coach Ed Emory said. "We really thought we could win. "I think they know who we are now," Emory added. "I think we definitely have the talent to play in this league." ECU, already suffering with a rash of injuries to its linebackers, played without starting quarterback Greg Stewart, who had an asthma attack before the game. Stewart did hold for field goals. "The loss of Greg Stewart...really hurt us," Emory said. "We didn't throw the ball well and we must do that to win." Ahead by only a point going into the second half, Missouri came into the third period and forced ECU into a turnover on its first possession. The Tigers' James Lockette broke through to block a punt by Larry Brobst and Brad Owen recovered at the ECU 19. "The turnaround in the game," Emory said, "was the kicking game." Backup quarterback Brad Perry, who came on in the second period after starting QB Marlon Adler went out with a concussion, hit a wide open James Caver in the right corner of the end zone for the

NFL Talks Again Gain No Ground

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talks aimed at ending the 12-day National Football League Players strike broke off Saturday with no resumption in sight. But the union said that if owners came to the bargaining table, the players would consider mediation.

For the third consecutive day, both sides emerged from the talks angry and frustrated, and accusing each other of responsibility for prolonging the strike. Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the owners, said flatly that he saw no way talks could continue without an outside mediator, a concept the players have consistently refused in the past.

"We're at a terrible impasse," Donlan said. "We've asked them every way we know how — publicly and privately — for mediation. We obviously need a third party."

This time, union negotiator Ed Garvey stopped a bit short of refusal. He said that if club owners appeared at the table with their designated negotiators, the players would consider consenting to a mediator.

"We want the owners to meet with their full committee and our full committee for two days at a neutral site," Garvey said. "If that doesn't work we'll entertain a proposal for a mediator."

Otherwise, there was more of the same sort of acrimony that marked the two previous days of negotiations here. And the net result was that a third weekend's 14-game schedule was very much in jeopardy from the strike, which began Sept. 21.

Donlan said he had no idea when talks would resume and Garvey said: "we were interrupted in midsentence by them rushing out the door when we asked when we could reconvene... Since they're the owners who broke it off, I guess the next step is up to them."

Garvey followed Donlan to the podium to say:

"I can't think of a single issue they took up with any seriousness today." Asked if mediation was discussed, he replied:

"They (the owners' negotiators) rushed out the door so fast, we never got a chance to bring it up."

The breakdown of talks here appeared to doom the Oct. 10-11 regular-season games, the third weekend to be affected by the strike.

Garvey, executive director of the union, said prior to the start of Saturday's session that next weekend's games would have to be scrapped if a settlement wasn't reached "by Monday at the latest."

Pete Rozelle, the NFL commissioner, felt the games could still be salvaged, asked about Garvey's comment. Rozelle said from his office in New York: "I don't know if I agree with that. I don't want to put any pressure on the negotiators. We will have to decide before Thursday."

Earlier this week, Donlan sent a message to the 28 club owners saying two weekends could be made up, but no more.

They presumably would be salvaged by eliminating the wild-card matchups, the first weekend of playoffs, and by utilizing Jan. 23, the idle Sunday between the conference championship games and the Super Bowl.

Also on Saturday, the union pulled back from its intention to announce the rosters of players for the so-called all-star games, the first of them set for Oct. 10

State's Comeback Nips Virginia, 16-13

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — North Carolina State Coach Monte Kiffin said a 16-13 Atlantic Coast Conference football victory Saturday over Virginia's winless Cavaliers in which the Wolfpack rallied from a 10-point halftime deficit "might have made our team."

"Clemson beat Tulane only 13-5 early last season and went on to win the national championship," Kiffin said. "We're 4-1 and that's a lot better than 3-2, which is what it looked like we'd be at halftime."

Jeff Byrd's 53-yard punt return set up the Wolfpack's go-ahead touchdown.

"I've coached in a lot of football games, a lot of big games, and you may not believe this, but I've never been prouder of a bunch of guys before," Kiffin said. "I'm proud of the way we came back after all the turnovers in the first half."

Virginia's first-year coach, George Welsh, still looking for his first victory, said "we've got to get more touchdowns. We've had enough offense and good enough field position, but we need more touchdowns. Today, we had a chance to go well ahead in the first half and didn't do it."

Welsh said "I think we're getting closer. We played with more emotion today, and we hit harder, but we need to play smarter. We just can't seem to get it all together."

Virginia fell to 0-4 and has now seven straight and 17 of its last 18 games. The Wolfpack improved its record to 4-1 in beating the Cavaliers for the ninth consecutive time and for the 21st time in their last 22 meetings.

Virginia led 13-3 at halftime and opened the third quarter by advancing the ball inside State's 10-yard line. But the Cavaliers came up empty when Wayne Morrison missed a 25-yard field goal try.

State then began its comeback. The Wolfpack drove 80 yards in a dozen plays to cut its deficit to 13-10 on a 1-yard scoring run by fullback Andre Marks. The touchdown was set up by a 28-yard pass interference penalty against Virginia to the Cavaliers' 1.

On the first play of the fourth quarter, State took the lead on an 8-yard scoring run by tailback Mike Miller

Angels Are West Champs

There's a second team in the baseball playoffs, another out of the chase, and two still to be decided as the American League goes down to the final day today to decide who will be the four teams in the playoffs.

California's Angels dined Texas, 6-4, yesterday, to clinch the American League's Western Division, but Baltimore whipped Milwaukee, 11-3, and pulled into a tie with the Brewers for first in the Eastern Division.

Baltimore and Milwaukee meet today in the Oriole park to decide which will face the Angels in the playoffs starting Tuesday.

In the National League West, Los Angeles beat San Francisco, 15-2, eliminating the Giants from the race. Atlanta, a half-game up following the Dodger victory, played a late West Coast game with San Diego. Should the Braves win, they would clinch a tie for the title, and need only a win against the Padres or a loss by the Dodgers today to wrap it up. Should the two tie, they will play it off on Monday.

Tailbacks Get Workout As Heels Sting Yellow Jackets By 41-0

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — All Dick Crum wanted was a little work for his tailbacks, and the North Carolina coach gave them plenty as the 12th-ranked Tar Heels rolled to a 41-0 football victory over Atlantic Coast Conference rival Georgia Tech Saturday.

The Tar Heels rushed for 342 yards on 73 attempts. Ethan Horton led the way with 110 yards on 23 carries and two touchdowns, while Kelvin Bryant returned to the lineup and rushed for 55 yards and a score.

Tyrone Anthony added a 1-yard run in the fourth quarter.

"We started out with Ethan and he did a good job," said Crum. "We had decided before the game to start Kelvin in the second period. We wanted to give him 20 to 25 plays and get used to playing. Now we'll just play him back into shape."

Crum said the score should not have been as high as it was, adding that his Tar Heels took advantage of a Georgia Tech turnover as well as good field position to add two late touchdowns.

"This was lots tougher than it may have seemed. The score really should have been something like 27-0," Crum added.

Georgia Tech coach Bill Curry said North Carolina was a very good team, but added, "I think we made them look better today than they might be."

Curry said he thought his offense was capable of moving the ball on the Tar Heel defense, but that defense limited the Yellow Jackets to 40 yards rushing and 137 yards in total offense.

Meanwhile, second-string quarterback Scott Stankavage, playing for injured starter Rod Elkins, completed five of nine passes for 75 yards and no interceptions. Brooks Barwick added two field goals and all five of his conversion attempts as North Carolina raised its record to 3-1.

Following a 21-yard field goal by Barwick in the third quarter, Horton scored on a 2-yard run with 5:15 left, extending North Carolina's lead to 24-0.

Barwick added a 37-yard field goal at the start of the fourth quarter and reserve quarterback Ike Brady completed a 16-yard touchdown pass to Victor Harrison with 6:31 left.

Following Greg Poole's 40-yard interception return, Tyrone Anthony scored on a 1-yard run with 4:21 remaining to finish the scoring.

Georgia Tech fell to 2-2. Because the Yellow Jackets don't play enough conference opponents, the game does not count in ACC standings.

Following the opening kickoff, free safety Steve Hendrickson intercepted a Jim Bob Taylor pass and returned it 18 yards to the Yellow Jacket 41. Six plays later, Horton scored on a 13-yard run at the 9:15 mark to give the Tar Heels a 7-0 lead.

Bryant entered the game in the second quarter and led the Tar Heels on a 76-yard, 10-play scoring drive. He rushed for 35 yards in the drive, passed 12 yards to Mark Smith and scored on a 1-yard dive with 11:20 remaining.

The Yellow Jackets marched from their own 42 to the Tar Heel 15 in the first quarter, but the defense stiffened and Ron Rice's 33-yard field goal was wide, breaking a streak of six in a row.

In the second quarter, North Carolina went 49 yards to the Yellow Jacket 29, but Barwick missed a 45-yard field goal attempt, ending a streak of nine successive kicks.

Navy Withstands Blue Devil Rally

DURHAM (AP) — Marco Pagnanelli threw for two touchdowns and Nap McCallum added another as Navy withstood a furious rally by previously unbeaten Duke in the final quarter to post a 27-21 nonconference college football victory Saturday.

With Pagnanelli completing 15 of 17 passes for 171 yards and McCallum carrying the ball 36 times for 211 yards Navy rolled out to a 27-0 lead in the third quarter before Duke quarterback Ben Bennett got on track.

In the final period, Bennett completed 20 of 26 passes for 249 yards and three touchdowns.

However, his role as hero disappeared with 37 seconds remaining when he was chased out of the pocket while looking for the winning touchdown and fumbled on the Navy 5-yard line. Steve Peters recovered for Navy to preserve its second victory in four starts.

Navy extended a 17-0 halftime lead on a 43-yard field goal by Steve Young, with 6:19 remaining in the third period and appeared to seal the victory away when Pagnanelli threw his second touchdown pass, a 9-yarder to Chris Weiler. However, Bennett began an air assault which eventually left him with 32 completions in 51 attempts for 363 yards.

He connected with Chris Castor on a 9-yard touchdown pass with 14:04 remaining, scored from 31 yards on a pass to freshman Chuck Herring at the 10:18 mark and cut the margin to 6 points with a 24-yard scoring strike to Glenn Tillery at the 4:30 mark.

After Navy failed to move the ball, Duke took over with 2:40 left on its own 32-yard line. After being sacked for a 9-yard loss, Bennett completed five consecutive passes to advance the ball to the Navy 23. After throwing an incomplete, he hit Mark Millitello on the 10 for a 1st down. On the next play, Bennett dropped to pass, but the Navy defense chased him to the sidelines where his fumble enabled the Midshipmen to hand Duke its first loss in four starts.

Pagnanelli and McCallum dominated the first half, with Pagnanelli completing all 11 passes for 121 yards and McCallum rushing 16 times for 113 yards.

Kurt Dixon sparked Navy's attack when he intercepted a Ben Bennett pass midway through the opening period, the first pass interception Bennett had given up in his last 108 attempts.

Navy took over on the Blue Devil 46, and six plays later McCallum gave the Midshipmen the lead with a 6-yard touchdown run. Young added the PAT.

Dixon repeated his performance late in the first quarter, intercepting Bennett's pass at the Navy 45 and returning it 11 yards to the Duke 45. After McCallum gained five on two rushes, Pagnanelli found Ken Heine beyond the Duke defense for a 40-yard touchdown toss. Young's conversion made it 14-0.

After Duke, which had only two first half first downs, gave the ball up on a punt by John Tolish, Navy moved in to take a 17-0 lead when Young kicked a 47-yard field goal with 3:55 remaining.

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Tailback Cliff Austin ran for three touchdowns and racked up 116 yards rushing Saturday to pave the way for an easy 24-6 Clemson football victory over winless Kentucky.

The Tigers, now 2-1-1 for the year, were forced to operate without senior quarterback Homer Jordan, who was pulled from the starting lineup by Clemson president Bill Atchley.

In a statement issued an hour before kickoff, Atchley said Jordan would not play because of a university investigation into the player's purchase of a car. News reports have indicated the NCAA is looking into the matter as well, but details of the probe have not been released.

Jordan's absence failed to faze the Tigers, who rolled for 272 yards rushing and 133 yards in the air in their second straight win. Reserve quarterback Mike Eppley filled Jordan's shoes ably, completing nine of 13 passes for 95 yards.

The Tigers held Kentucky to minus 14 yards rushing, allowed the Wildcats 246 yards passing.

The Wildcats of the Southeastern Conference, now 0-3-1, trailed 14-0 at the half. They managed to score late in the fourth period, driving 71 yards in 11 plays. An attempt for a two-point conversion failed.

Austin scored once in each of the first three periods on runs of 5, 1 and 10 yards.

Kicker Bob Pauling booted a 26-yard field goal in the fourth quarter to round out Clemson's scoring.

The Tigers of the Atlantic Coast Conference scored on their first possession, marching 64 yards in seven plays. Austin went over from the 5 for a touchdown.

Austin capped a 95-yard drive in the second period with a 1-yard jaunt into the end zone.

The tailback put the finishing touches on a third period scoring march by trotting 10 yards to pay dirt.

Pauling's fourth quarter kick came after the Tigers faced a third-and-eight situation at the nine.

The Wildcats' lone touchdown came late in the final period when tailback George Adams took a pitchout and tossed the ball to tightend Rob Mangas for a 2-yard scoring pass.

Reserve quarterback Doug Martin passed to wide receiver Rick Massie, but Massie was stopped short of the goal on a conversion attempt.

On their next possession, tailback Lawrence Lee pulled in a 35-yard pass from Martin, and made his way to the end zone. But officials nullified the play on an offside penalty against Kentucky.

Both teams were flagged for penalties with Kentucky losing 80 yards on eight violations, and Clemson losing 80 yards on nine miscues. The Tigers lost the ball twice on fumbles, while the Wildcats suffered two interceptions.

Jordan Is Held Out

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan, the target of a school investigation, was pulled from the starting lineup shortly before Saturday's game against Kentucky.

The school has been looking into Jordan's purchase and financing of a car in the wake of news reports that the National Collegiate Athletic Association is also investigating the matter.

Clemson President Bill Atchley, in a statement issued one hour before kickoff, said Jordan has cooperated fully with investigators.

But, the statement said, "due to what may be construed in a very strict interpretation of the NCAA Constitution as a technical violation, I am withholding Mr. Jordan from participation in the University of Kentucky football game."

"We will not comment further on this issue," Atchley's statement said.

Clemson sports information director Bob Bradley said he could not shed any further light on the situation.

The Greenville, S.C., News reported previously that the NCAA had questioned Jordan's mother, Alice, and Easley, S.C. businessman Gene Tollison about the 1982 car which was purchased from an Easley automobile dealership.

Madison Rips Davidson, 35-7

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Running back Warren Marshall scored two touchdowns Saturday as James Madison defeated Davidson 35-7 in college football.

Marshall scored on touchdown runs of 59 and 16 yards and carried the ball 88 yards in six carries as the Dukes raised their record to 4-1 for their fourth straight victory.

Davidson was leading 7-6 after an 85-yard, 12-play scoring drive midway through the second period when James Stanley fumbled a Madison punt in the end zone. Bruce Morton recovered the fumble for Madison with 6:01 left in the half.

Another Davidson fumble at its own 16-yard line set up Marshall's second touchdown run of 16 yards, giving Madison an 18-7 halftime score.

Army took a 10-7 lead midway through the third quarter when the Cadets recovered a fumble, drove to the 3 and Craig Stopa kicked a 20-yard field goal.

Terps Swamp Syracuse, 26-3

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Jess Atkinson kicked four field goals and a swarming Maryland defense ruined the sparkling play of freshman Syracuse quarterback Todd Norley Saturday as the Terrapins swamped the Orangemen 26-3 in college football.

Maryland improved to 2-2 with its second straight victory, while the Orange lost their fourth in a row after an opening-season win.

Maryland quarterback Boomer Esiason broke open a 3-0 defensive struggle early in the second period with a 43-yard scoring strike to fullback John Nash, and the Terps took a 17-0 lead only minutes later on a one-yard slam by reserve fullback Dave D'Addio.

Atkinson's field goals covered 25, 36, 39 and 26 yards. Syracuse kicker Russ Carpentieri put his team's only points on the board with a 44-yard boot in the third period.

Norley broke into the game after another freshman, starter Greg Christodulu, was injured on a savage tackle.

and provided the Orange with their only consistent offensive momentum since their opening victory over Rutgers. He completed 18 of 30 passes for 199 yards, but also threw three interceptions — including one picked off in the Terrapin end zone by Gil Hoffman.

Third-String QB Guides Army Win

WEST POINT, N.Y. (AP) — Third-string quarterback Bryan Allem sparked a sluggish Army team and a tough defense forced numerous turnovers Saturday as the Cadets defeated Harvard 17-13 in college football.

Allem replaced second-string quarterback Rich Loughlin early in the second quarter and threw a 34-yard touchdown pass to Elton Akins with 34 seconds left to go in the half to tie the game 7-7.

2 1/2 minutes earlier when quarterback Don Allard ran 9 yards for a touchdown to cap a seven-play, 69-yard drive.

The Army defense took over in the second half, holding Harvard outside its 40 until the final two minutes.

Army took a 10-7 lead midway through the third quarter when the Cadets recovered a fumble, drove to the 3 and Craig Stopa kicked a 20-yard field goal.

No. 1 Washington Rolls To 46-25 Win

SEATTLE (AP) — Chuck Nelson set a NCAA record for most consecutive field goals with four and Steve Pelluer passed for three touchdowns Saturday as No. 1 ranked Washington broke open a close game in the second half for a 46-25 victory over San Diego State.

With field goals of 33, 32, 49 and 23 yards, all in the first half, Nelson ran his consecutive string of regular season three-pointers to 19, going back to last year.

He entered the game just one back of the old NCAA consecutive field goal record of 16 held by Ish Odionze of Arkansas, 1979, and Dale Castro of Maryland, 1974.

Pelluer, who missed his first four passes of the game, finished with 20 completions in 33 attempts with 229 yards and three touchdowns. He was intercepted once.

Washington, 4-0, led only 18-17 after a 20-yard Marco Morales field goal for San Diego State, 1-3, 4:21 into the second half.

But the Huskies, who trailed in the final quarter against Oregon last week before coming away with a 37-21 win, scored the games' next 28 points.

Washington, a prohibitive favorite over the Aztecs from the Western Athletic Conference, had three turnovers in the third quarter — Pelluer's interception and fumbles by Sterling Hinds and Chris James. But Vince Newsome picked off a Rick Hansen pass and returned it 43 yards for a touchdown with 3:23 to go in the period as Washington went out in front 25-17.

Pelluer, who passed 20 yards to Aaron Williams for a touchdown in the second quarter, had a 10-yard scoring pass to Willie Rosborough and a 25-yard touchdown throw to Paul Skansi in the fourth quarter.

Hansen, completed 18 of 40 passes for 141 yards and two touchdowns, both in the first half. He was intercepted once.

Hanson a 4-yard scoring pass to Darius Durham in the first quarter and an 18-yard touchdown pass to Jim Beautrow in the second quarter.

Washington resumes its Pacific-10 Conference schedule against California in Seattle next week. The Huskies lost three starters with injuries. Tight end Leroy Lutu and linebacker Ken Driscoll left the game with knee injuries in the first half and did not return. Defensive tackle Ray Cattle left the field with an ankle injury in the fourth period and did not return.

quarterback Alan Risher hit his first seven passes for 127 yards and moved ahead of Bert Jones as LSU's all-time passing yardage leader.

LSU, 3-0, scored the first three times it touched the ball en route to a 17-3 lead, settled for a 24-5 halftime advantage and then used a rugged defense to turn back numerous Florida threats after intermission.

The triumph marked the second time in three years that LSU, 1-0 in the SEC, came to Gainesville and spoiled a 3-0 Florida start. It also ended the Gators' nine-game winning streak at home and hiked the Tigers advantage in the series to 16-11-2.

Florida, which climbed among the nation's top-ranked teams with victories over Miami of Florida, Southern California and Mississippi State, opened the game with a 63-yard drive that set up Jim Gainey's 28-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead four minutes into the game.

LSU responded by unleashing an offense that averaged 48.5 points in season-opening victories over Oregon State and Rice and Coach Jerry Stovall watched his defense stiffen and not allow the Gators to score again until Wayne Peace passed 5 yards to Mike Mularkey with 1:51 left in the game.

The Tigers drove 73 yards to take a 7-3 lead as Risher set up an 11-yard touchdown burst by Hilliard with a 42-yard completion to wide receiver Eric Martin. It was the sixth touchdown of the year for Hilliard, a shifty 5-foot-10, 185-pounder from Patterson, La.

The Tigers went 59 yards in 10 plays on their next possession to set up Juan Missouri Downs Pirates...

Neither team scored again until the final period. The Pirates turned a fumbled punt by the Tigers' Ricky Dobby into a field goal to cut the deficit to 14-9 with 10:21 left.

ECU's Curtis Wyatt recovered the fumble at the 22, but a bad pitch by quarterback Kevin Ingram pushed the Pirates back to the 33. A screen pass from Ingram to Norwood Vann got the Pirates to the 25 and from there Heath came on to boot a 42-yard field goal — his third of the day, and his second from beyond 40 yards.

The Tigers, stymied much of the game by a pursuing Pirate defense, broke loose to score twice in the final 8:07 to clinch the victory.

Perry hit Carver twice for 16 yards early in the fourth period. The 6-2, 204-pound junior then spotted Curtland Thomas down the right sideline for a 15-yard gain to the ECU 11.

Three plays later Drain, a 6-2, 210-pound freshman, carried over from two yards out to give Missouri a 21-9 lead with 8:07 left.

Missouri's final TD came with 1:50 left. Drain raced around the right side for a 59-yard scoring jaunt that gave him 66 yards for the day.

"We're very happy about the win," Missouri coach Warren Powers said. "I thought we played well. They (ECU) might not have the depth for a Big Eight football team, but they have some real good football players."

Said Emory: "No, Missouri did not surprise us on offense or defense. They did make some changes for the second half. Good football teams don't make change that change that much; they just work to get better."

Missouri used a balanced offensive attack to rack up 414 yards total offense — 204 rushing and 210 passing ECU, on the other hand, was held to 205 yards total offense — 120 rushing and 85 passing.

Perry led the Tiger offensive attack, hitting 15 of 22 passes for 176 yards and one touchdown. Most of Perry's passes were completed in the middle, where the Pirates are perhaps most vulnerable what with eight linebackers on the injured list.

"We were greatly affected with the loss of our linebackers," Emory said. "Yes, the loss of eight linebackers, the top four today, had a great, great effect on our ability to hae good pass coverage."

Of Perry's 15 completions, six went to Caver for 78 yards and five to Thomas for 82 yards.

Barbosa, starting for the first time at Missouri, led the Tigers on the ground with 91 yards in 18 carries.

The loss drops ECU to 2-2 this year. Missouri, which was coming off a 21-4 loss to Texas, is now 3-1.

A pair of pass interceptions cut short two Missouri drives and enabled ECU to go to the lockerroom down by only a point at intermission.

Neither team was able to gain a first down in their first two possessions. But, after stopping ECU late in the first quarter, the Tigers took over at their 17 and began to move.

Adler hit split end Curtland Thomas over the middle for a 17-yard gain to the Missouri 32. Then, split end Craig White appeared wide open along the left sideline, but free safety Clint Harris raced in to pick off Adler's throw at the ECU 33.

After the interception, the Pirates managed their initial first down of the game on a 14-yard reverse by Ricky Nichols but were forced to punt three plays later.

On the Tigers' first play from scrimmage after the punt, Barbosa raced off left tackle for 38 yards — Missouri's longest run from scrimmage this year — to the ECU 42.

The Tigers drove to the ECU 29 before losing seven yards on the next two plays and having to punt the ball as the quarter ended.

Following the punt, the Pirates put together their first drive of the day. Ingram hit Nichols for an 18-yard gain and then connected with Carlton Nelson for a 10-yard advance.

Two plays later, Byner broke through the middle for 19 yards to the Tiger 31. But the drive stalled and Heath came on to boot a 44-yard field goal — his longest of the season — to give ECU a 3-0 lead with 10:53 left.

It was a lead short-lived. Missouri answered the ECU field goal on its next possession, driving 78 yards on 11 plays to take the lead.

With third and five from the 25, Perry's pass to White was incomplete but ECU defensive back Gerald Sikes was called for pass interference, giving the Tigers a first down at the 40.

Three plays later, Perry hit Thomas for 10 yards and fullback Tracey Mack gained 11 yards to the ECU 30. Perry then passed to Thomas for 27 yards to the three.

Two plays later, Barbosa scored from one yard out to give Missouri a 7-3 lead with 7:39 remaining.

The Pirates made it 7-6 four minutes later as they gouged out large chunks of yardage to move from their H to the 20 before Heath kicked a 38-yard field goal.

Fullback Reggie Branch, who led ECU with 55 yards in nine carries, ripped off runs of 16 and 15 in the drive. Ingram then hit Norwood Vann for 13 yards to the 26.

ECU moved to the 20 before Ingram threw incomplete on third and four and Heath came on to kick his second FG of the day.

Missouri seemed headed for a second touchdown after Heath's field goal, moving from its 19 to the ECU nine. But, Calvin Adams, who had entered the game just moments earlier when Smokey Norris went out with a cu above his eye, intercepted a Perry pass at the goalline to end the threat with four seconds left in the half.

East Carolina will return to action on Saturday when it plays host to Richmond.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino's 8-yard pass to Julius Dawkins with 3:23 left to play capped a two-touchdown rally in the final 11 minutes that lifted second-ranked Pittsburgh to a 16-13 victory Saturday over No. 14 West Virginia.

Bryan Thomas' 3-yard run with 10:52 remaining capped an 82-yard drive and began Pitt's comeback from a 13-0 deficit. Before that, West Virginia had things its own way as linebacker Darryl Talley set up a field goal with an interception and recovered his own blocked punt for the Mountaineers' only touchdown.

West Virginia's Paul Westside kicked field goals of 34 and 29 yards in the first and third periods, his 14th and 15th in a row, while Pitt's Eric Schubert had a 32-yard field goal attempt blocked by middle guard Jim Merritts and was wide on a 47-yarder as the Panthers' offense had problems for the fourth game in a row.

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Freshman tailback Dalton Hilliard scored three touchdowns, two of them on pass plays covering 41 and 3 yards, as Louisiana State stunned fourth-ranked Florida, 24-13, in Southeastern Conference football action Saturday.

A Florida Field crowd of 73,152 was silent as LSU pushed its lead to 24-5 eight minutes later when Hilliard pulled in a 3-yard touchdown pass from Risher.

Calumet Farm had two "walkovers" in the Pimlico Special. Whirlaway in 1942 and Citation in 1948 both had no competition for the winner's share of the purse.

Freshman punter Ray Criswell provided a spark, however, booming a 70-yard punt that rolled to the LSU 2-yard line. Risher fumbled the snap on the next play and fell on the ball in the end zone for a safety as Florida trimmed its deficit to 12 points.

A union source said it was worried that some players who had given verbal commitments to play might change their stance. Union officials spent the day on the phone trying to solidify those players' commitments to participate.

It is almost certain that as soon as those players' names are made public, the NFL will take legal action against them individually to enjoin them from participating. Eight teams have already filed suit against the Turner Broadcasting System, the Atlanta-based cable network which is bankrolling the 20-game all-star series and has exclusive rights to telecast it.

Donlan said that with a third weekend in danger of cancellation, the league would begin losing substantial revenues and the management council $1.6 billion 5-year package might have to be reduced. But he said the package had not been formally withdrawn.

Asked if the owners were prepared to open training camps and invite players back in, Donlan said no decision had been made yet. But he said the league's competition and executive committees would meet Monday in New York to consider it.

Frustration over the talks boiled over on Friday, when the players accused the Management Council of having "a plantation mentality," and the owners saying the players were agreeing to talk "so they wouldn't be accused of not wanting to meet."

Stan White, a linebacker for the Detroit Lions and vice president of the union, had to be physically restrained after he began striding around the table toward Sarge Karch, the chief counsel to the Management Council. And moments after the meeting broke up, the usually placid Donlan could be heard shouting curses about the players.

Both sides agreed only to stay away from discussing the major stumbling block to an agreement, the union's demand for a wage scale tied to a fund and administered by the union.

Friday's session lasted four hours, only 1 1/2 of them in joint session, the rest with the players and Management Council caucusing in separate rooms. The primary subject was the players' request (denied by the owners' negotiators) for greater access to their medical records.

On Saturday the two sides met for an hour, the headed for their separate rooms again for two and a half more hours. This time the discussions covered grievance procedures, off-season training camps, insurance, club discipline and meal allowances, and briefly touched on the wage scale.

Walker Leads Georgia Win, 29-22

STARKVILLE, Miss. (AP) — Herschel Walker rushed for 215 yards and quarterback John Lastinger passed for one touchdown and ran for another to lead sixth-ranked Georgia to a 29-22 football victory over Mississippi State on Saturday afternoon.

Defensive guard Kevin Jackson preserved the regionally televised Southeastern Conference triumph, plucking quarterback John Bond's fumble from the air at the Georgia 18 with 3:07 left as Mississippi State sought to rescue victory.

Walker, the junior All American, carried the ball 39 times while increasing his career yardage to 4,009, moving him into second place on the all-time SEC rushing record, only 26 yards behind Louisiana State's Charles Alexander.

Georgia, 4-0, scored the winning touchdown early in the fourth quarter with a 65-yard drive capped by Lastinger's 1-yard keeper. Walker picked up 35 yards on eight carries in the drive.

But Mississippi State, now 3-2, gained new life late in the period when defensive end Billy Jackson shook Lastinger free from the ball as the quarterback fought to pass and then made the fumble recovery at the Mississippi State 45. Bond hit an 8-yard pass to Corwyn Aldredge to the Georgia 38 on fourth and 2 to keep the threat going, and then a 19-yarder to Danny Knight to the 19, but Bond fumbled as he scrambled for room on the next play.

Georgia scored the decisive touchdown after forcing Mississippi State to settle for a 21-yard field goal by Dana Moore late in the third quarter. Moore's field goal came after Mississippi State had a first down at the Georgia 2, but failed to score on three rushes.

It was a game of big first-half plays with Mississippi State scoring on fullback Al Rickey Edwards' 65-yard run, a 54-yard sprint by tailback Michael Haddix and Moore's toss to Haddix on a fake punt that covered 40 yards.

Georgia scored in the first half on Walker's 3-yard run after a 44-yard punt return by Jimmy Harrell. Lastinger's 39-yard pass to Kevin Harris and fullback Barry Young's 10-yard run.

Southern Cal (16) . . . 38 Oregon 7

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Converted fullback Todd Spencer made an impressive debut at tailback for Southern Cal Saturday, rushing for 149 yards and three touchdowns as the No. 16 Trojans swamped winless Oregon 38-7 in a Pacific-10 football game.

Spencer, a 6-foot, 195-pound junior shifted to tailback because of injuries at the position, carried the ball 29 times and scored on runs of 1 and 5 yards as the Trojans pulled out to a 31-7 halftime lead. He tallied his final touchdown on a 7-yard burst in the third quarter.

The starting fullback since the first of last season, Spencer, son of former heavyweight boxer Thad Spencer, also caught three passes for 48 yards against the outmanned Ducks.

The victory was the third straight for the Trojans after an opening loss to Florida. Oregon is now 0-5.

Junior quarterback Seap Salisbury, playing just the first half, also had a good day for Southern Cal, completing nine of 16 passes for 139 yards and scoring a touchdown on a 2-yard run.

Safety Joey Browner started the Trojans rolling when he picked off a Kevin Lusk pass on the game's first play from scrimmage and returned it 34 yards for a touchdown, giving Southern Cal a 7-0 lead with just 15 seconds played.

Nebraska (8) 41 Auburn (20) 7

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Turner Gill fired a 58-yard scoring strike to break a second quarter deadlock and Mike Rozier added a pair of second half touchdowns as eighth-ranked Nebraska overpowered No. 20 Auburn 41-7 in an intersection college football clash Saturday.

Gill's long touchdown pass came with 3:32 left in the first half and went to Todd Brown, who made the reception at the Tiger 20 behind Auburn defender David King.

The victory was the third in four games for the explosive Cornhuskers, who came back from a last minute 27-24 setback at Penn State last week.

Rozier scored on runs of 2 and 12 yards to cap a pair of 57-yard Cornhusker drives in the third and fourth quarters.

The Cornhuskers took a 7-0 lead on their first possession in the game, driving 73 yards to score on Doug Wilkening's 15-yard run.

Nebraska added two touchdowns in the final seven and a half minutes, the first when reserve Mark Schellen raced 41 yards on a sweep around right end and the second with less than two minutes remaining on a 13-yard run by Tim Brungardt.

Freshman Vincent "Bo" Jackson got Auburn's only touchdown late in the first quarter on a 4-yard sweep when he hurdled a defender at the goal line and did a head-over-heels flip into the end zone.

UCLA (9) 34 Colorado 6

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Quarterback Tom Ramsey passed for 280 yards, including a 50-yard touchdown strike to flanker Dokie Williams, and ran for another score to lead ninth-ranked UCLA to a 34-6 college victory Saturday over Colorado.

Ramsey was 16 for 24 in the game, breaking the UCLA career completion record with 305 and leaving him just 37 yards short of the school's all-time career yardage mark.

Richard Johnson fumble on the Colorado 22. UCLA went 3 yards in three plays and John Lee booted a 36-yard field goal with 8:03 left to play in the first quarter.

The Buffaloes drew even at 3-3 on a 47-yard field goal by Tom Field that capped an 8-play, 51-yard Colorado drive. On its next possession, UCLA drove 80 yards in 10 plays, scoring on a 3-yard plunge by tailback Frank Cephus.

Colorado, aided by three completions totaling 29 yards from quarterback Randy Essington to Chris McLemore, moved to the Bruin 30 yard line but had to settle for another field goal.

UCLA made it 17-6 at the half on Ramsey's 50-yard pass to Williams. Ramsey scrambled for another score on a 10-yard run late in the third quarter and handed off to tailback Kevin Nelson for a 1-yard scoring plunge in the fourth.

Another 41-yard field goal by Lee accounted for the rest of UCLA's scoring.

The victory makes UCLA 4-0 while Colorado slipped to 1-3.

Notre Dame (11) . . . 11 Michigan St. 3

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Mike Johnston booted three field goals to lift 11th-ranked Notre Dame to a mistake-filled 11-3 victory over Michigan State in non-conference college football Saturday.

Johnston had field goals of 33, 29 and 42 yards — all in the second quarter — and the Notre Dame defense sacked Michigan State quarterback John Leister in the end zone for a first-quarter safety to account for all the Irish scoring.

Ralf Mojsiejenko, whose booming punts kept Notre Dame in poor field position most of the game, kicked a 50-yard field goal in the third period for the lone Michigan State point.

Irish quarterback Blair Kiel had three passes intercepted, while Notre Dame picked off four Spartan tosses.

Kiel hit flanker Joe Howard for an apparent 44-yard touchdown pass play in the third period, but the play was nullified by a penalty. In the fourth quarter, Irish tailback

Phil Carter failed to get into the end zone on fourth down at the Michigan State 1.

The victory was the third for undefeated Notre Dame. The Spartans fell to 0-4.

It was the first time Notre Dame won a game without a scoring a touchdown since the Irish defeated Louisiana State 3-0 in 1970.

Strange, Hass Tied In Texas

SAN ANTONIO, Texa. (AP) — Curtis Strange compiled a 4-under-par 66 and tied his former teammate and fraternity brother at Wake Forest, Jay Haas, for the lead Saturday in the third round of the $250,000 Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Haas, who hasn't made a bogey in the tournament and led through the first two rounds, and Strange completed 54 holes in 197, 13 strokes under par on the friendly little 6,525-yard Oak Hills Country Club course.

Haas, a winner of the Hall of Fame Classic in his last start, played the third round in 67.

"Still no bogeys. It's getting scary out there," Haas said. "I keep waiting for the wheels to come off."

Leonard Thompson, who preceded Haas and Strange at Wake Forest, moved into third alone at 199, two shots back, with his best effort of the season, a 6-under-par 64.

"The last seven or eight weeks is the first time this season I've felt like I was making any progress, or even could make any progress. It's been a tough year," said Thompson who has been in a season-long slump.

D.A. Weibring and Keith Fergus were another stroke back at 200, 10 under par and three off the pace going into Sunday's final round. Each shot a 69 in the warm, sunny weather.

Larry Ziegler followed at 67-201. Allen Miller, Tom Purtzer and Bill Calfee were tied at 202, leaving nine men within nine strokes going into the last 18 holes.

Calfee closed up with a 67. Calfee and Miller shot 68s.

Masters champion Craig Stadler, attempting to nail down the year's money-winning title, shot a 67 despite a double bogey and topped the group at 203.

Lee Trevino was at 210 after a 72.

"Tied for the lead going into the last round, that's a good position to be in," said Strange, who added it will be difficult, playing against a friend, in Sunday's final round, he said.

"It's kind of like last year, when Bill Rogers and Ben Crenshaw, good friends, were in a playoff (won by Rogers)," Strange said I've got to really buckle down. I've been close so many times, too many times, not to win. I've got to buckle down."

Strange has won more than $200,000 last season and more than $236,000 this year without winning a tournament.

Haas made three birdies, all from the 6-8 foot range, and had to scramble for two pars.

He had to play a great second shot, "maybe the best shot I've hit this year," under the limbs of one old oak and over another one to reach the green on the 15th hole. He missed the green and one-putted for par on the 17th.

Late Score Lets Deacons Win

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Gary Schofield's 12-yard touchdown pass to David Richmond late in the fourth quarter propelled Wake Forest's Deacons to a 13-10 football victory over Virginia Tech's Hokies Saturday.

Schofield, who sat out last week's victory over Appalachian State with an injury, found Richmond open in the end zone with 3:06 left. It was the Deacon's first lead of the game.

On their final possession, the Hokies drove from their 16 to Wake's 22. But consecutive quarterback sacks totaling losses of 27 yards took the Hokies out of good field goal range.

Tech rushed its field goal team onto the field in the final seconds, but Don Wade's 65-yard attempt was blocked by Tony Coates as time ran out.

Trailing 10-0 in the third quarter, Wake Forest began its comeback with a safety. Defensive end Mike Hodgson sacked Tech quarterback Todd Greenwood in the end zone.

ECU Kicks Guilford

Brian Winchell scored three goals in leading East Carolina to a 3-3 victory over Guilford College Saturday afternoon.

Tip Baker scored one of the other goals, while Doug Kelly got the fifth for the Pirates. All three Guilford goals were scored by Brazilian Roberto Sa.

Winchell also had an assist, as did Baker and Steve Brody.

East Carolina gained a 2-1 lead on the Quakers in the first half, and went on to score three more in the second half.

The win leaves the Pirates at 4-3 on the year, while Guilford falls to 4-6-1.

East Carolina had 24 shots on goal, while Guilford had half that many. Pirate freshman goalie Tony Rechner recorded ten saves, while Quaker goalie Ken Goldwasser had 13.

"Our offense played very well," Coach Robbie Church said. "We moved off the ball well and our backs played well. We scored a goal with a minute gone in the game and added another with 12 minutes gone so we were up quickly on 'em. Our forward line played well."

"I'm happy to get above .500 and it should give us momentum going into our next game."

That will be against Campbell on Wednesday at 3 p.m. at the ECU field.

Baltimore Shells Brewers, 11-3, Today's Winner Wins Division

BALTIMORE (AP) — Reliever Sammy Stewart checked Milwaukee on two hits over the final 5-3 innings as the Baltimore Orioles again shelled the sliding Brewers 11-3 Saturday and forged a tie in the American League East with one game remaining in the season.

Milwaukee's Don Sutton, 3-1, will face Baltimore ace Jim Palmer, 15-4, in Sunday's game to decide the division champion.

The Orioles, who have beaten the Brewers five straight in the last eight days, pounded out 17 hits to give them 45 for the first three games of the series. A crowd of 47,231 watched Saturday's victory after 51,833 saw Baltimore sweep a doubleheader from Milwaukee Friday night.

Jim Dwyer, who has reached base 13 consecutive times on eight hits and five walks, doubled to launch a four-run rally in the fourth inning, snapping a 3-3 tie.

Consecutive run-and-hit singles by Rick Dempsey and Rich Dauer scored Dwyer and finished starter Doc Medich, 12-15. Al Bumby singled off reliever Moose Haas to make it 6-4.

Third baseman Paul Molitor then just missed grabbing Glenn Gulliver's sacrifice bunt in the air, bobbled the ball and then threw wildly past first and two unearned runs scampered home.

Medich also balked a run home in the first following an RBI double by Eddie Murray.

and a run-scoring single by John Lowenstein. Baltimore added four runs in the eighth on Gary Roenicke's two-run singles and RBI singles by Dauer and John Shelby.

After falling behind for the third straight game, Milwaukee came back to tie the score 3-3 and chase starter Scott McGregor.

The Brewers loaded the bases in the second on two walks and a single by Ben Oglivie, and scored two runs on Jim Gantner's two-out single. Oglivie hit his 34th homer, the 121st for Milwaukee this season, in the fourth.

After Moore drew a one-out walk, Stewart came in and faced only one batter over the minimum the rest of the way. He is now 10-9.

LA Hopes Alive; Giants Dead

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ken Landreaux, Ron Cey and Mike Scioscia hit home runs as the Los Angeles Dodgers ended the title hopes of the San Francisco Giants 15-2 Saturday and moved to within a half-game of the lead in the National League West.

The first-place Atlanta Braves were scheduled to play Saturday night in San Diego, where an Atlanta loss would create a Dodgers-Braves tie for first. The regular season ends Sunday and if a divisional playoff game is necessary it will be in Los Angeles on Monday.

The Dodgers banged out 17 hits and recorded their season-high run total as they eliminated the third place Giants, who dropped 2 1-2 games behind Atlanta. Bob Welch, 16-11, pitched five innings of one-hit baseball for the victory and Dave Stewart finished up, earning his first save.

The Dodgers built a 12-0 lead, starting with a six-run outburst in the second inning off Renie Martin, 7-10, and reliever Al Holland. A two-run single by Bill Russell opened the scoring and Landreaux hit his seventh homer, a three-run shot in the big inning.

Cey hit his 23rd homer of the season and the 33rd of his career against the Giants in the third to make it 7-0, and Scioscia belted a three-run homer in the fifth to make it 10-0.

Giants Manager Frank Robinson replaced his starting lineup at that point, and the

Homers Power Angels By Texas To Clinch American's West

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The California Angels captured the American League West championship Saturday by beating the Texas Rangers 6-4 behind homers by Fred Lynn, Reggie Jackson and Bobby Grich.

California will now face the winner of Sunday's Milwaukee-Baltimore game for the AL championship that starts here Tuesday.

The victory brought California its second division title in its 22-year history and was the first flag of any kind for Manager Gene Mauch in 23 years as a major-league skipper. No big league manager had ever gone so long without a title.

Lynn's two-run homer in the fifth inning gave California a 5-4 lead and relievers Dave Goltz and Luis Sanchez made the margin stand up.

California had begun the day needing either a victory or a loss by Kansas City to wrap up the division. Kansas City beat Oakland 5-4 earlier in the day.

California wrapped up the title as Lamar Johnson grounded back to Sanchez for the final out of the game. Jackson and Mauch embraced as many of the crowd of 33,405 ran onto the field.

Lynn blasted his 21st homer of the year off Charlie Hough, 16-13, following a walk to Rod Carew. The Rangers had taken a 4-3 lead in the fourth on Pete O'Brien's third homer.

Royals Win — But All In Vain

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — After delivering one of the most important RBI singles of his career in a do-or-die situation, John Wathan admitted he had no stomach for the California Angels broadcast that was blaring from a clubhouse radio.

Wathan's single in the eighth inning scored Bombo Rivera with the tying run, and Cesar Geronimo followed with a sacrifice fly that lifted Kansas City to a 5-4 victory over Oakland. The victory kept Kansas City alive in the American League West, provided Texas beat California on the West Coast.

California began the day needing either a victory or a Kansas City loss to wrap up the division.

"I'm not going to listen to the California game," said Wathan. "It's too frantic. It makes me more nervous to listen to a big game than play in it because when you're playing you have some control over what happens. If I listened to the Angels, I'd go crazy."

Kansas City entered the eighth trailing 4-3 after Tony Armas had slugged his 28th homer of the season, with a man on, in the top of the inning off relief ace Dan Quisenberry, 9-7.

Willie Aikens led off the Royals eighth with a single. First baseman Mike Davis dropped the throw on Frank White's sacrifice bunt. Jerry Martin then sacrificed the runners to second and third. Dave Beard relieved Tom Underwood, 10-6, and Wathan tied it with a single. Geronimo then lofted a sacrifice fly to center field that scored White.

Quisenberry began the seventh in relief of Mike Armstrong, who had struck out four and allowed no hits in two innings of relief of Vida Blue. Davey Lopes began the uprising with a double and after a strikeout, Armas slammed a 1-0 pitch into the right field seats.

Willie Wilson tripled off Matt Keough and gave the Royals a 1-0 lead in the first on U.L. Washington's double.

Rickey Henderson walked in the fourth, stole second and third to run his season total to 130, then scored on a Lopes double and Burroughs singled home Lopes for a 2-1 Oakland lead.

Aikens walked in the bottom of the inning, advanced to second on a sacrifice, took third on a wild pitch and tied it 2-2 on John Wathan's single.

The Royals went up 3-2 in the fifth when Wilson singled, stole second and came around on George Brett's single.

Rose Rallies Fall Short Of Gryphons

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Twice in the final eight minutes of play, Rose High School's offense swept up against the Rocky Mount defense in the shadow of the goal posts Friday night, and each time the Gryphons came away triumphant as they held on to post a 13-7 Big East win over the Rampants.

Rose, helped by fine punt returns by Edward Frazier, moved to within three yards of the goal line on one series and then came back to sweep within six in the closing seconds of the game, but was unable to crack the stiff Rocky Mount defense for what could have been the winning touchdown.

As it turned out, all three touchdowns in the game came from offensive mistakes. Rose gained an early lead after Reggie Pryor, back to punt on the first series of the game, fumbled and Rose took over on downs at the 17, scoring in three plays.

Roderick Harrell got the lone Rose TD, off a two yard plunge, and Willie Levitt added the PAT for a 7-0 lead after only two and a half minutes.

In the second quarter, Rose fumbled the ball away at its own 43, and Rocky Mount used only four plays to advance the ball to the end zone for the tying touchdown, with Joe Walker going the final seven yards and Eddie Coats kicking the PAT.

Then, with less than 30 seconds left in the half, Cordell Lyons intercepted Bobby Buie and returned the ball 38 yards to set up a 12-yard pass from Coats to Leon Cooley with seven seconds left in the half for the 13-7 score that never changed again.

Not that both teams didn't have the opportunity. It was just that the defense was too much for it.

Coats, ranked as one of the top passing quarterbacks in the state, suffered through a bad night against the suddenly strong Rose defense. Rose got him five times behind the line of scrimmage and put pressure on him much of the time. Coats finished the game with just seven completions in 23 attempts for 64 yards.

Rose held the Gryphons to just 98 yards on the ground.

But at the same time, the Rocky Mount defense was doing it to the Rampants. Rose rushed for only 76 yards and added 86 passing.

But those two drives that were thwarted by the Gryphon defense were the biggest of the night.

"This was probably as hard a loss as we've experienced," Coach Ronald Vincent said afterwards. "We blew two real good scoring opportunities. I felt we could have got it in there either time. But we just made too many mistakes tonight and Rocky Mount played extremely good defense."

Not that Vincent felt his own team played badly on defense. "I thought we played super defense," he said. "But I was really disappointed that our running game was held in check like it was, especially in the first half." Rose had only 25 yards rushing at halftime.

"It wasn't that we were missing assignments, we weren't. We were missing the blocks."

For much of the game, Rose was in poor field position and unable to get anything going to get out of it. For that reason, Rocky Mount dominated first half play.

Still, it was the Rampants who got the first break as Pryor fumbled just four plays into the game, and was unable to get his kick off from the 26. While he recovered the ball at his own 17 the ball was turned over on downs.

Donnell Lee picked up 15 yards over left tackle on the first play, but a sneak from the two by Kenny Kirkland netted nothing. He then handed off to Harrell on second down for the final two yards.

That put Rose up, 7-0, with 9:26 left in the first period.

Rocky Mount immediately drove down to the Rose 34 before fumbling the ball away. They were helped along by an unsportsmanlike conduct call against the Rampants for having too many men on the field on a punt.

Rocky Mount then got it back at the Rose 41 after forcing a punt, but a fourth and six pass at the 25 was incomplete, turning the ball over.

After twice getting the ball at midfield and being unable to move, Rocky Mount took over on the Rose 43 after a fumble early in the second quarter.

On first down, Walker cut over right tackle for 16 yards, then Huenell Gray broke over the left side for 21 more, down to the six. Following a procedure penalty against the Gryphons, Walker got four, then pushed over left tackle for the final seven for the score with 5:55 left.

Coats' kick sailed sideways over the bar for the extra point, tying it at 7-7.

While Rose got good field position from a short kickoff, it failed to advance past the Gryphon 43 and punted away. The Rampants got it back, however, four plays later, on their own 39.

From there, Buie hit Frazier for 12 yards to the RM 49, and another pass to Tyrone Smith pushed it to the 42, but Rose failed on fourth and two to pick up the first down.

After again holding, Rose took over on its own 35. On the first play, Buie's pass was intercepted by Lyons, who returned it all the way to the Rose 10.

"I guess that interception was the key to the game," Vincent said afterwards. "our receiver was wide open on the play, but the pass was just overthrown."

Coats lost two yards on first down and a second down pass fell incomplete.

On third down, however, he hit Cooley over the middle in a crowd for the score, and with just seven seconds left in the half, Rocky Mount took a 13-7 lead.

Rocky Mount threatened early in the second half, driving to the Rose 30 before two holding penalties killed the drive. It got the ball back on the Rose 44, but was unable to move it again giving it up.

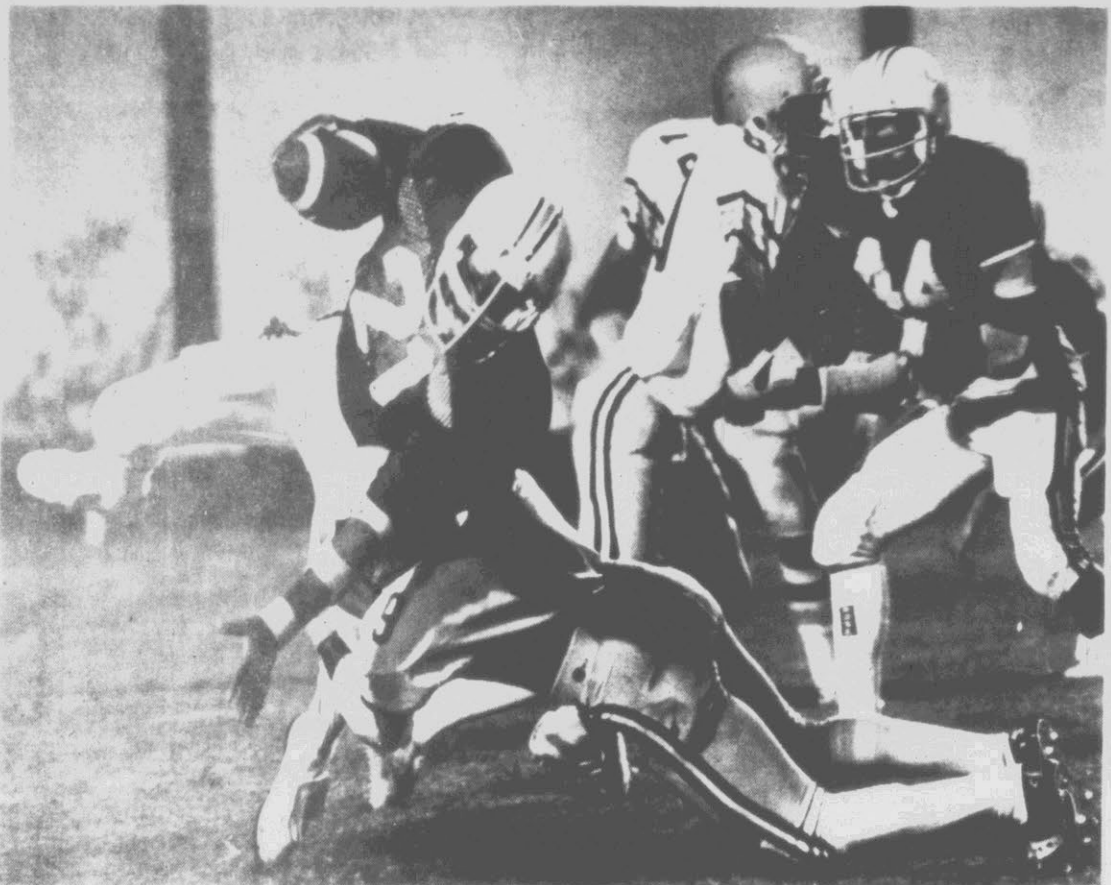

Finally, with 7:28 left in the contest, Rose forced Rocky Mount to kick from its own eight, and Frazier's return of 27 yards gave Rose the ball on the RM 16.

Four carries by Harrell got a first down at the six, but on third down from the three, Harrell fumbled and Bryan Sonnier recovered for the Gryphons with 4:20 left.

Rose was again able to hold, and another return by Frazier put it on the 33 with 2:40 to go.

Rose got one first down, at the 22, then Kirkland hit Frazier under the sideline at the six. But on first down, Harrell was thrown for a three yard loss, and the next two plays, both passes, were just off the fingertips of receivers in the end zone. The fourth down pass was batted away, and Rocky Mount had held for the win.

"I feel that we're just as good a team as Rocky Mount,"

Blocked Punt Helps SouthWest Slip Past Defensive Jags, 12-7

FARMVILLE — SouthWest Edgecombe blocked a punt early in the fourth period and finally recovered the ball in the end zone and pulled out a 12-7 victory over stubborn Farmville Central Friday night.

The win kept the Cougars in a tie for first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference with a 2-0 record.

The victory wasn't an easy one to come by. Both teams fought hard defensively throughout the evening. SouthWest was held to just 46 yards rushing and only seven passing for a total of 53 yards in total offense. Farmville rushed for 106 and passed for 73, but couldn't quite muster enough to pull out the victory.

Farmville did score first, taking a 7-0 lead in the first period. The score came on a 65 yard pass play from quarterback Sam Sumrell, who later left the game with apparent rib injuries. Sumrell's pass was caught by Andrew Edwards, who then lateraled to Wesley Carmon, who scooted the rest of the way for the score. The touchdown climaxed a 75-yard drive by the Jaguars.

SouthWest came back in the second period to pull within one. Taking over at the Farmville 45 after a punt, the Cougars drove down with Ricky Thorne plunging over from two yards away. However, a two-point conversion try failed, leaving Farmville up, 7-6.

It stayed that way until the final period, with only Farmville managing to put any kind of a drive together. That came when the Jags drove to the SouthWest 35, only to fail there.

In the final quarter, however, Jaguar punter Alan Wooten went back to kick only to have the ball blocked by a host of charging Cougars. Wooten was able to scramble back after where SouthWest's Mike Varnell fell on it for a zone, only to drop it again touchdown.

Lady Bucs Win Three

COLUMBIA, S.C. — East Carolina University's Lady Pirates volleyball team won three of four matches in the first round of the Carolina Classic Invitational Tournament Friday at the University of South Carolina.

The Lady Pirates opened pool play with a 2-1 win over Mississippi State. The Pirates won 3-2, 15-10.

In the second match, however, they were defeated, 1-3, 15-9.

They came back to down College of Charleston 15-6, 15-12, then top Frances Marion 15-11, 15-12.

Overall, the team played pretty well," Coach Lynn Davidson said. "Everyone had a constant effort throughout the day. We beat the teams we were supposed to beat and we gave Georgia a good match. For a little disappointed because we could have won."

Bradley Scores Three Times As North Pitt Downs Rams, 28-14

BETHEL — Dennis Bradley scored three touchdowns and rushed for 168 yards as he led surprising North Pitt to a 28-14 romp over Greene Central Friday night. The victory enabled the Panthers to remain in a tie for first place in the league standings with a 2-0 record. North Pitt is 3-1-2 overall.

For a while there, however, the victory was not at all certain as Greene Central, which is yet to win this year, stormed out to a 14-8 lead in the first half.

The Panthers put the first score on the board early in the opening quarter. Rodney Lawrence set up the score by blocking a Greene Central punt and turning the ball over on the nine. Two plays later, Donald Hunter went in from five yards out. Bradley added a two-point conversion for an 8-0 Panther lead.

Greene Central came back later in the quarter to score after a 41-yard drive. Anthony Thompson pulled in a 20-yard pass from Elmer Dixon for the score, cutting the lead to 8-6.

Then, in the second period, Greene Central struck for the lead. Dixon again went to the air, hitting Oscar Rouse for 30 yards, and Dixon hit Brian Hall for the two-pointer after to put the Rams up, 14-8 and it stayed that way the rest of the half.

But in the third period, Bradley took over, scoring two touchdowns to put the Panthers in the lead for good. The Panthers took over after a punt to the Ram 41 and Bradley raced the final 23 yards to tie the game at 14-14.

Not long afterwards, Rickie Hines intercepted a Ram pass and returned it to the GC 14. Bradley then scored from five yards away to put North Pitt up for good. Ken Whitehurst ran over the PAT raising the lead to 22-14.

North Pitt then forced a punt and drove 70 yards on a long 15-play series, with Bradley going in from three yards out.

Greene Central, which had no other threats in the game, had only three offensive plays in the final quarter, all three passes, two of which were intercepted.

Bradley finished the game with 29 carries for his 168 yards.

North Pitt plays host to Farmville Central on Friday.

Greene Central, now 0-4-2 overall and 0-2 in the league, entertains Ayden-Grifton.

Ahoskie Cougars Slip By Roanoke By 16-7 Score

ROBERSONVILLE — Roanoke High School, unable to get its offense in gear, fell before Northeastern Conference foe Ahoskie, 16-7, Friday night.

The Redskins, 2-2 in league play, collected only 104 yards in total offense, while Ahoskie ground out 251 yards altogether.

"We struggled once again with our penalties," Coach Dixon Sauls said. "Other than that, we moved the football extremely well. Chuck Smithwick continues to play outstanding on defense, with help from Kevin Craft and Jarvis Koonce. Koonce certainly had a big game rushing tonight."

Ayden-Grifton, now 2-0 in Eastern Carolina play and 5-0 overall, travels to Greene Central Friday. Aycock is now 1-4 overall and 0-1 in the conference. The Falcons travel to Southern Nash.

turnabout was fair play as the Redskins pounced on a Cougar fumble at the Ahoskie 37. Glendale Daniels scored from four yards out and Greg Casper added the PAT to close the gap at halftime.

But the Redskins could not get back into the end zone the rest of the way, although they did reach the Ahoskie 22 late in the game.

Ahoskie, meanwhile, got the clincher in the final period after a Roanoke punt traveled only ten yards to its own 30.

Roanoke is now 3-3 overall and travels to Bertie next week. The Cougars, 4-2, and 2-2 in the conference, play host to Washington on Friday.

Worthington's Two Touchdowns Lead Chargers Past Aycock, 28-8

LITTLEFIELD — Unbeaten Ayden-Grifton, led by Malcolm Worthington's two touchdown runs, rolled to an easy 28-8 victory over Charles B. Aycock Friday night.

Aycock was the last team to beat the Chargers in regular season play last year, but the Chargers got their revenge this time out.

It took some time, however, as Ayden-Grifton hurt itself with penalties throughout the contest.

The Chargers didn't get onto the scoreboard until the final play of the first period when Kelvin Harris went over from three yards out. A two-point try failed, leaving it at 6-0. The Chargers had driven 40 yards on the series, following a CBA punt.

Late in the second period, the Charger defense backed Aycock up in its own end zone, and a short punt went out of bounds on the CBA 20. After two passes fell incomplete, Joey Kennedy hit Jackie Conway for the 20 yards and the score with just five seconds remaining in the half. Jarvis Koonce ran over the two-pointer to make it 14-0 at intermission.

Worthington took over the scoring duties in the second half, getting both AG tallies, both coming in the final period. The first came after an 94-yard drive after Ayden-Grifton held the Falcons at the AG six. Koonce sparked the drive, rushing for 30 yards on the first play of the series, and later adding a 28-yard scamper. Finally, Worthington scored from 10 yards away, upping the lead to 20-0.

Aycock threatened again, but was finally stopped on the 19 and Ayden-Grifton launched an 81-yard drive that climaxed with Worthington going in from ten yards out again. Kennedy hit Doug Coley for 33 yards on a pass to spark the drive.

Finally, with 1:12 left in the game, Aycock avoided a shut-out. John Thomas hit Lee Smith for 14 yards for the score. Thomas then passed to Dewayne Nichols for the PAT. The score came after AG had fumbled at its own 20.

The Chargers had two other threats in the game, but failed to cash in on them, while Aycock did not offer another threat.

Koonce finished the game with 162 yards on 17 carries, while Worthington collected 83 yards on 12 lugs.

Moore, Ange Lead Way As Bullets Whip Aurora

JAMESVILLE — Matthew Moore rushed for 201 yards and scored 12 points in leading Jamesville to a 36-0 Tobacco Belt Conference victory over Aurora Friday night.

Moore scored only one touchdown, but he added three two-point conversions for his 12-point total. He ran the ball 14 times for his 201 yard net.

Richie Ange, who missed two days of practice last week with a virus, hit on three touchdown passes and was nine of 14 for 168 yards to spark the aerial attack of the Bullets.

In the first quarter, Ange hit Carlton Rodgers for 15 yards for the first score, with Moore adding the PAT for an 8-0 lead.

Jamesville came back with two more in the second quarter. Moore scored on a 15-yard run, and David Biggs raced 69 yards with an Ange pass for the other. Moore added the PATs after each score. That made it 24-0 at the half.

The Bullets scored twice more in the third period. Ange hit Greg Hardison for 19 yards for the first score and Rodgers ran in from 19 yards away for the final score.

Coach Jerry Godley cited

Stanley Roberts and Rodgers for their defensive play in the game. Roberts was credited with nine solo and five assisted tackles, while Rodgers had 12 solo and 8 assists. Rodgers also added 61 yards oneight carries on offense.

Jamesville is now 3-3 overall and 3-2 in league play. The Bullets travel to Matamuskeet on Friday, Aurora, 1-4-1 overall and 1-2 in league play, travels to Creswell.

Waltrip Leads Qualifying

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — Darrell Waltrip led Friday's first round of qualifying for the Holly Farms 400 NASCAR event, edging Bobby Allison and Terry Labonte by narrow margins at North Wilkesboro Speedway.

Waltrip's Buick was clocked at 113.293 miles per hour while the Chevrolets of Allison and Labonte posted speeds of 113.219 mph and 113.105 mph, respectively.

Those three are also in the chase for the Winston Cup points race, with Allison leading Waltrip by 101 points and Labonte by 202.

Qualifying for the race finds the first eight positions decided by an average speed over two days of trials. The final order of those eight was to be decided Saturday, with the field also determined then.

Ricky Rudd drove his Pontiac to the fourth-fastest speed at 112.793 mph while the other four cars among the top eight were Buicks.

That group was led by Ron Bouchard's 112.697 mph followed by Tim Richmond at 112.523 mph, Harry Gant at 112.461 mph and Geoff Bodine at 111.785 mph.

Here are the results of Friday's qualifying for the NASCAR Holly Farms 400 stock car race, with name of driver, type of car and qualifying speed.

1. Darrell Waltrip, Buick, 113.293 mph
2. Bobby Allison, Chevrolet, 113.219
3. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet, 113.105
4. Ricky Rudd, Pontiac, 112.793

Trinity, Lifegate Take Flag Wins

Trinity Christian School romped to a 64-16 victory over New Birth School of Tarboro Friday in a flag football game behind the passing of John Moran.

Moran passed for seven touchdowns and ran for another in guiding Trinity to its third straight win of the season.

Moran got things started in the first quarter with a 60-yard touchdown run. He followed that up with a 25-yard pass to Darrell Wells, making it 15-0 at the end of the first period.

Moran hit Junior Godwin on 25 and 40 yard passes in the second period and also threw three yards to Maury Harris in the second quarter. That made it 36-0 at the half.

In the third period, Moran hit David Casper for 12 yards, and after a Godwin interception, Moran went to Casper for three more yards and another score. He finished off his scoring duties with a 22-yard pass to Jimmy Powers that made it 56-0 going into the final quarter.

Tarboro finally scored with five minutes left in the game, but Trinity came back on a 20-yard pass from Harris to Robert Stanfield for its final score. Tarboro closed out the scoring with six seconds left.

Trinity, now 3-0, travels to Rocky Mount on Friday. Tarboro is now 2-1.

Lifegate..... 39

Grace..... 27

CHICOD — Lifegate Christian School opened its flag football season with a 39-27 victory over Grace of Rocky Mount Friday.

John Gaskins hit John Glenn for three touchdown passes to get things started for Lifegate. The passes covered 30, 10 and 45 yards.

Glenn then took a 10-yard pass from Carlos Hartley for a fourth touchdown, while Gaskins ran for 50 yards and returned an interception 70 yards for the other scores.

Grace got three touchdowns from John Davis on runs of 40, 10 and five yards, and he passed 40 yards for another score.

Timmy McLawhorn was cited for his defensive play in the game.

Trial Is Delayed

ASHEBORO, N.C. (AP) — Randolph County District Court officials Friday delayed until Nov. 5 a trial for two North Carolina State football players charged with vandalism.

Gene Samuel Key Jr., 21, a linebacker from Asheboro, and Ron Laraway, 21, a backup quarterback from Westlake, Ohio, were charged with injury to real property, a misdemeanor, after windows worth $500 were broken out of a house belonging to John H. Wrape Jr. of Asheboro on Aug. 8.

Tarboro Rips Tigers By 34-0

WILLIAMSTON — Williamston High School, hobbled by the loss of seven senior starters who were dropped from the team for an attempted boycott of practice, was defeated by Tarboro, 34-0, Friday night.

Coach Harold Robinson had suspended two players from the team Monday for disciplinary reasons, and five other seniors attempted to get other players to boycott Tuesday's practice in protest. Robinson told the players that any who did boycott on Tuesday would be dropped from the team. The five, along with the two suspended players did not show up and were removed from the team.

Tarboro took advantage of the situation to gain the lopsided victory, although Williamston did stick close for a half. Bo Johnson got the only Tarboro first half touchdown in the first period on a one-yard run. That had been set up by a fumble by Williamston at its own 22.

Tarboro then marched 60 yards after the second half kickoff to score again. Russell Sherrod scored from two yards out to make it 14-0. Later in the quarter, after taking over on the Viking 44, Johnson broke away for a 55-yard scoring run for a 21-0 lead at the end of the third period.

In the final period, Tarboro added two more. A 65-yard drive ended when Darrian Bryan hit Donald Franks on a nine yard pass. Later in the period, Tarboro forced the Tigers to punt from their own end zone, and the ball was returned to the nine. Alfred Bell scored from two yards away and Robert Andrews missed his first PAT kick of the night, leaving it at 34-0.

Johnson paced Tarboro with 130 yards on 14 carries.

Williamston, now 2-4 overall and 1-3 in Northeastern Conference play, has an open date Friday, Tarboro, 2-3 and 2-1, plays host to Roanoke Rapids.

Bragg Scores Five Goals In 10-3 Soccer Victory

ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville Christian Academy romped to a 10-3 soccer victory over Falls Road Academy of Rocky Mount Friday, led by Mike Bragg's five goals.

Falls Road struck first as Todd Prange scored ten minutes into the game. But Chris Harris tied it up for the Knights at the 16 minute mark. It then stayed that way until the 35 minute mark when Bragg got his first goal. Daren O'Brian added a third GCA score just a minute later, giving the Knights a 3-1 lead at the half.

Harris added his second goal just four minutes into the second half, assisted by Troy Stox. Bragg followed a minute later, then got another goal three minutes after that with an assist by Stox. Harris picked up his third goal at the 16 minute mark, also assisted by Stox.

Bragg came back with another goal at the 18 minute mark before Falls Road finally got on the scoreboard again. Mike Vick hit for the host team aith 19 minutes gone.

Bragg followed with his fifth goal 25 minutes in the half, and Prange got a second goal for Falls Road at the 36:00 mark. O'Brian closed out the scoring a minute later on an assist from Danny Vernelson.

"We figured we'd get a lot of shots and we did," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "We wanted to show that we had improved since the first time we'd played them, and we did that too."

Now 4-4, Greenville Christian plays host to Goldsboro on Tuesday.

Baseball...

out in the 11th inning boosted Montreal to victory. The Expos had rallied to tie the score 5-5 with two runs in the ninth on Tim Lincecum's RBI triple and Andre Dawson's sacrifice fly.

Doug Frobel hit his first major league homer for Pittsburgh and Tim Wallach homered for the Expos.

Reds 4, Astros 2
Daring baserunning (six stolen bases) and four wild pitches by Nolan Ryan helped Cincinnati's Gary Redus score on a double steal and Tom Lawless raced home on a suicide-squeeze by Dave Van Gorder to overcome Ryan's 10 strikeouts. Ryan has fanned 10 or more batters 10 times this season and a record 145 times in his career. He needs just 15 more strikeouts to break the all-time record of 3,508 held by Walter Johnson.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Willie Stargell will pull on his Pittsburgh Pirates uniform for the last time as a player Sunday, ending a sterling baseball career that began when he signed a free agent contract with the team in 1958 for just $1,500.

"I didn't think they were going to sign me," said Stargell, who was a high school player in Oakland, Calif., at the time. "The Pirates offered me $1,000, but my stepfather held out for $1,500. I thought they might not sign me because of that. I remember crying because I didn't think they were going to sign me."

Stargell, 41, joined the Pirates to stay in 1962 and has been one of the most feared sluggers in baseball ever since. His 475 career home runs tie him with Stan Musial for 14th place on the all-time list and he estimates he could have hit over 100 more homers if he hadn't played his first eight seasons in the major leagues in Pittsburgh's cavernous Forbes Field.

"I think I would have hit over 600 home runs," Stargell says, when asked about playing in the old Pittsburgh park, where the center field wall was a monstrous 457 feet from home plate.

Stargell has been used mainly as a pinch hitter this season by Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner, who says he would have liked to have started the aging first baseman in his final major league game.

"But I'm afraid Willie might get hurt," said Tanner, who plans to use Stargell in Sunday's game against the Montreal Expos as a pinch hitter.

"Willie hasn't been feeling very well," Tanner said. "One quick twist or one quick turn at first base and he could hurt himself badly. I just didn't think it was worth the risk."

Tanner said Stargell's arthritic knees have been bothering him during the cool days of September. Stargell hasn't started a game for the Pirates in over two months, and has started only a handful of games this season.

The Pirates plan no formal ceremonies to mark Stargell's final day as a Pirate player, although he is expected to be introduced to the fans for one last time before the game.

Stargell has been honored with "Willie Stargell Day" twice at Three Rivers Stadium in the last three seasons, including a hour-long salute on Labor Day, Sept. 6, in which President Reagan made a surprise phone call to the stadium during the ceremony.

Stargell plans to become a batting coach or minor league instructor for the Pirates, although the team has not yet announced in what capacity he will serve in 1983.

Stargell said he will miss the Pirates' clubhouse fun and camaraderie more than anything else.

"I won't be able to play anymore ... but they won't be able to take away my memories," Stargell said.

Player Injured

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — An East St. Louis (Ill.) Lincoln High School football player was seriously injured during a game against Hannibal High School Friday night.

Hannibal team physician E.A. Porter said Anthony Fulton suffered an apparent broken neck in a collision with Hannibal player Steve Oitker in the third quarter. Oitker was knocked unconscious in the incident but later returned to the field.

Authorities said Fulton was rushed to a Hannibal hospital and was later transferred to the intensive care unit of a hospital in Quincy, Ill.

Dr. Porter said the running back appeared to be paralyzed from the neck down but that there was no way of knowing immediately whether the paralysis would be permanent.

The accident occurred in Lincoln's first game in a season that was delayed by a three-week-long teachers strike.

Tournament At Semifinal Round

Greenville Country Club's Ladies Match Play tournament has reached the semifinal round.

The two matches pit Dardie Longino against Janet McGlohon and Tee Ficklen against Joan Hooper.

The winners of these two matches will meet the following week for the championship.

Karate Winners

Charles June (far left) and Samuel Barger (far right). White is a member of the ECU Karate Team. Jarvis fights out of GAMA. Also placing but not pictured were GAMA student Randy Andrews (first place, green belt fighting) and South Greenville Karate School student Linwood Best (third place, brown belt fighting). JARRETT BAY WATERFOWL IMPOUNDMENT NO LONGER AVAILABLE FOR PUBLIC HUNTING — The Jarrett Bay waterfowl impoundment in Carteret County will not be available for public hunting this fall, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission reports. Weyerhaeuser Company, which owns Jarrett Bay, recently traded the tract to another company for additional timberland.

"We're grateful that Weyerhaeuser included the Jarrett Bay impoundment in our game lands program for many years," said Hal Atkinson, chief of the Wildlife Commission's Division of Wildlife Management. "While we would like to retain the impoundment for public hunting, we understand that their action was simply a business transaction."

"Weyerhaeuser has been cooperative and has aided our game lands program in the past," Atkinson continued. "Tar Heel sportsmen can be grateful for the recreation that the Jarrett Bay impoundment provided, and we look forward to working with Weyerhaeuser in the future to improve opportunities for public hunting in North Carolina."

DECOY COLLECTORS ASSOCIATION FORMED — Tar Heel decoy collectors need no longer feel lonely. The Carolina Decoy Collector's and Carver's Association was recently formed, and this organization is dedicated to fostering interest in collecting old waterfowl decoys and waterfowl carving.

Anyone interested in collecting decoys would find the organization worthwhile. Many decoys that were sold or given away only a few years ago now sell for hundreds, even thousands, of dollars. New collectors can avoid some of the pitfalls of collecting old decoys by learning from other members.

For more information, write to the Carolina Decoy Collector's and Carver's Association, Bruce Cameron, president, 2219 Blythe Road, Wilmington, N.C. 28403.

WILD TURKEYS GET A HELPING HAND — Wild turkeys in North Carolina will receive a helping hand from some good friends in the future. Recently, the North Carolina Wild Turkey Federation established a Wild Turkey Federation Research and Development Fund. This fund will be used to help support research and management of wild turkeys in the state.

"We greatly appreciate the support that the Wild Turkey Federation has shown in establishing this fund," said Brian Hyder, leader of the wild turkey project for the commission. "We appreciate their support in helping to restore this fine game bird to the Tar Heel State."

FISHING REPORT — With the cooler temperatures of October the fishing should reach its peak both inland and offshore in the coming weeks.

King mackerel and White Marlin both are being caught in large numbers offshore and should be peaking out in the next several weeks. Drum, bluefish, trout and flounder fishing should be picking up any day.

An improvement in Inland Fishing (bass, bream and crappie) should also begin with the arrival of cooler weather.

Flounder Catch

Bill Forrest of Greenville shows off this 14 1/4-pound flounder he got with a spear gun while scuba diving in 20-feet of water in the intra-coastal waterway near Swansboro. The flounder measured 32 inches long and 16 1/2 inches wide. (Reflector Photo)

What's The Law On...

What's the law on hunting on Sunday? The NCAC 10B 020 in part. Local seasons and bag limits for each species apply beginning with the first day of the listed season and continue through the last day of the listed season, with all dates being included except Sundays. State law prohibits hunting on Sunday, except on military installations, under the exclusive jurisdiction of the federal government, where the open seasons include Sundays.

Funds Management outrates any 7-day certificate. And, it's sale priced at $19,000 less.

Frankly, we don't understand all the hoopla being made by banks and savings institutions over 7-day Certificates of Deposit. Because our Funds Management savings transaction account pays much more interest.

And Funds Management requires only a $1,000 minimum deposit while 7-day Certificates require a whopping $20,000.

Funds Management™ earns money market interest without tying up large amounts of money.

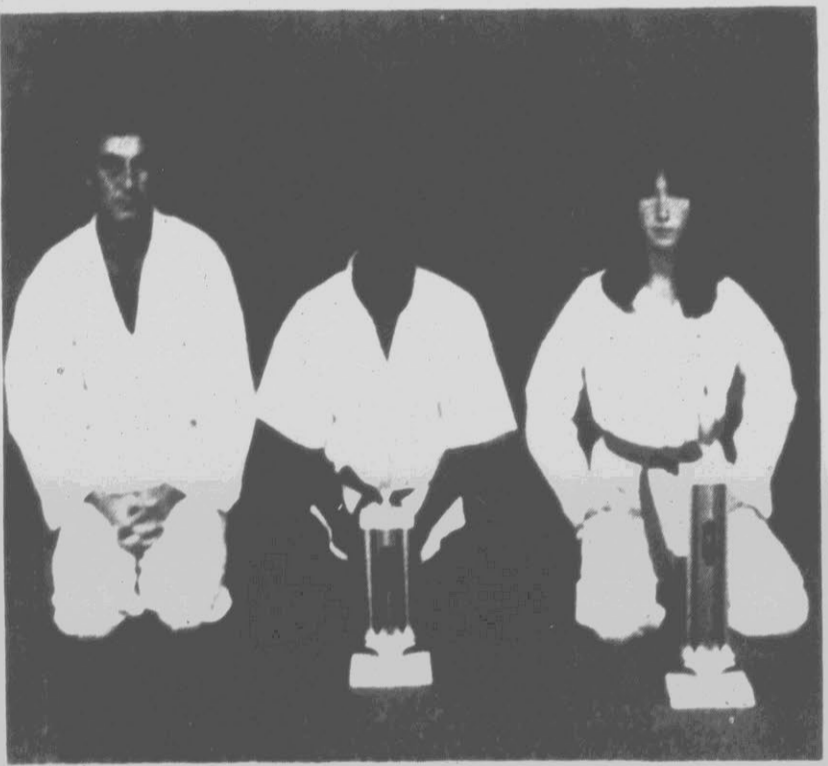

If you're looking for a high interest, high liquidity investment, take a look at North State's Funds Management account. Your balance is insured to $100,000 and you'll earn more interest than 7-day Certificates with your cash available any day.

At North State Savings & Loan Corp., we considered offering a 7-day Certificate. But with Funds Management, who needs it?

* This is the net 7-day annualized yield for the preceding reporting week. Reporting weeks are from Tuesday to Monday. The yield will fluctuate each week as money market rates and expenses vary so it is not necessarily representative of future rates. Deposits are insured to $100,000 by the North Carolina Savings Guaranty Corporation.

Karate Winners

Livestock, Meat Register Declines

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
Associated Press Writer
Livestock and meat prices continued their steep decline Friday with cash beef prices at the year's lows and supply exceeding demand.

Many contracts fell the daily trading limit.
A 9 percent increase in cattle production this fall has pushed beef prices lower, said Bob Kuhn, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Merrill Lynch Commodities.

Kuhn said the increased production coupled with cheap grain has resulted in more beef for the marketplace, which has cash prices at their lowest level of the year and even lower prices expected next week.

Live hogs and frozen pork bellies also were weak, as the glut of beef on the market is reducing demand for pork, Kuhn said.

He noted that the hog slaughter this week was 13 percent less than for the same week a year ago. In addition, Kuhn said, the weather has been almost ideal for livestock to gain weight.

Live cattle were 1.17 cents to 1.50 cents lower with the contract for delivery in October at 56.42 cents a pound; feeder cattle were .50 cent to 1.50 cents lower with October at 63.60 cents a pound.

Business Notes

PROMOTIONS NOTED

Griff Garner, president of Garner Wholesale Merchandisers here, announced two company promotions.
Garner said that Ken Bryant, former sales manager, is assuming the role of vice president-sales and marketing, with responsibilities in marketing-merchandising as well as sales.
Don Mizell will become sales manager, Garner said. He has been with the firm for 13 years and served as assistant sales manager for the last three years.

RIA DESIGNATION

CvB. Follmer, president of Follmer Financial Services of Greenville, has been designated a "Registered Investment Advisor" by the Securities and Exchange Commission. The designation authorizes him to offer investment advice on a fee basis.
Follmer has been a financial advisor for eight years, and is a member of the International Association of Financial Planners.
He attended an educational seminar in September offered by FSC to 25 top financial planners and advisors from around the United States.

NAMED MANAGER

Brenda Mattox and Jo Ann McPherson from Greenville, along with six other consultants, attended a two-day Aloc Charm Inc. convention in Dowingtown, Pa. Mrs. Mattox was inducted as a manager with the firm.
The new manager said she and her staff serve Greenville, Charlotte, New Bern, Trenton, Clinton, Washington, Fayetteville, Roseboro, Salemburg, and Raleigh.

REVENUES UP

Western Steer-Mom 'n Pop's Inc. of Claremont reported for the six months ended Aug. 13 revenues of $12,794,093, up 2.6 percent over $12,473,442 reported for the same period last year.
Net income was $358,635 or 38 cents per share, up from $309,139 or 34 cents per share for the same period last year. For the second quarter, revenues were $6,265,054 and net income was $200,700 or 21 cents per share.
In the same quarter in 1981, revenues were $6,344,987 and net income was $155,113, equal to 17 cents per share.

CHAIRMEN APPOINTED

Bob Manning, president of the newly-organized Eastern Carolina Advertising Federation, announced the appointment of various committee chairmen who will serve during 1982-83.
The chairmen include Skip Carney, Judy Jernigan, Carl Worsley, Dan Rozelle, Donna Eways, Tom Chipley, Jim Dickens, Barbara Perry, Drew Harrell, Sam Lackland, Dottie Lilibridge, Robert Sykes, Jesse Smith, Kathy Blackburn, and Henry Hinton.
Membership in the ECAF is open to people involved in advertising.

VP POSITION

Family Dollar Stores Inc. has promoted Howard R. Levine to vice president-general merchandise manager, according to Lewis E. Levine, president.
The official said Levine will be responsible for directing all buying, merchandising, advertising and sales promotion functions of the company.
Headquartered in Matthews, the company operates 539 discount stores.

EQUITY INTEREST

In a joint statement, it was announced that the Hartford Insurance Group of Hartford, Conn., has agreed to purchase a 25 percent equity interest in WFS Financial Corp. of Richmond, Va., a holding company whose principal subsidiary is Wheat First Securities Inc., a regional investment banking and brokerage company.
The Hartford, a wholly owned subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp., is a worldwide casualty and life insurance company whose combined assets and gross revenues in 1982 exceeded $12.3 billion and $5.1 billion.
James C. Wheat Jr., chairman of WFS's board of directors, said the Hartford's 25 percent purchase will come partly from the acquisition of shares from existing shareholders and partly from newly issued shares. He said the move will provide additional capital that would be used primarily to enhance the brokerage subsidiary's financial base.

Friends: Holland To Greenville

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Friendships are being formed person-to-person, city-to-city, country-to-country as 52 persons from Arnhem, Holland, visit in Greenville and Washington.

Meanwhile, 46 North Carolinians, mostly from Greenville and Washington, are in Arnhem as part of the Friendship Force exchange of visits between the two areas.

This is the first time Greenville, Washington or Arnhem have participated in the international good will effort which has about 70 such exchanges under way this year.

Marloes de Haan is the youngest of the visitors. A 15-year-old schoolgirl who's studying 13 subjects, including four languages — Dutch, French, German and English — she's learning about Greenville while her parents host Americans from here in their home. "I read in the newspaper about the project," she said, "and called the same moment to say I wanted to go! I'm glad I did."

Wednesday she went to school with Greenville resident Nancy Douglas. "They had a restaurant at the school!" she said, referring to the school's cafeteria. "I couldn't believe the luxury or the emphasis on eating."

Dutch schools operate until about 2 p.m. each day and there is no lunch break, she said. A student might bring an apple or a slice of bread for a quick snack between classes.

Students in Holland ride bicycles to school. "My children bicycle four miles each way each day," Ria van de Bosch said of her daughters, 14, 13 and 10. "Young people in Holland are very aware of fresh air and doing things the natural way," she said. "We all are becoming much more aware all the time, largely because we have to be. I had a clothes dryer for nine years when the children were small, but when it gave out I didn't get another one. Energy is just too expensive. Clothes hang in my attic and dry quite well."

Elly Bos left daughters at home, too. They are in the care of their father; the family cheese store in the care of them all.

"Jobs are at a premium all over Holland," she said, "especially for young people. My daughters, 17 and 16, are very fortunate that they can be employed in the family business."

Many of the Friendship Force participants from Holland are women, although there are some couples and some single men, including a newspaper reporter, Ad Berhens, who's covering the trip for his newspaper and calling in stories twice a week. Though many of them have children, there are no youngsters along except for 15-year-old Marloes. It's school time, they said, and, comparatively inexpensive as this trip is, it's too expensive to bring the whole family.

Except for the flight, expenses are kept to a minimum as accommodations being provided by host families. Most of the visitors will stay the first week in one home, the second week in another. Some will switch between Greenville and Washington, but not all, before ending their stay late this week.

An Schijf is one of the few who will spend the second week traveling elsewhere. She plans to visit an old friend in Vermont. "Years ago," she said, "I had a pen pal in Reading, Pa. When the war came along and we Dutch were lean and hungry and had nothing to wear she and this friend of hers in Vermont were so helpful to me that we have become lifelong friends. This is my second visit to them. I was over to see them and some other parts of the East Coast two years ago."

Activities for the two weeks are well planned, yet a good deal of freedom is also allowed Greenville hosts to entertain their guests as they wish — and as the guests wish. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Percy Cox and the East Carolina University Marching Band Tuesday afternoon and since have been invited to participate in a number of tours and cultural events in the community. Thursday they were to attend an ice cream party at the Governor's Mansion in Raleigh.

Many of the women have been interested in shopping. "There's much more choice in clothes here," Else Lokker said. "But it seems like the quality is not as good." She said she was amazed to see women here wearing pants. Pants were in a few years ago in Europe, she said, but now every woman wears skirts.

"I've always loved America," Marloes de Haan, 15, the youngest Friendship Force visitor from Holland said. She said she jumped at the chance to take this tour and may even want to come here to live and work once her education is complete.

Some of the women are looking for good-quality tennis shoes for their children. Name brands there cost twice as much as they do here, they say.

The Dutch visitors toured Pitt County Memorial Hospital Wednesday. Ine van Orna, wife of a high school teacher and mother of a son, 13, and a daughter, 10, said, "I am impressed with your hospital, but it looks as if, in energy use, you are where we in Holland were several years ago. You're trying to do so many things electronically and you spoil so much energy. We now are working very hard to do all we can manually. Our government's money is low and it's either stop using so Ad Berhens, who's covering the Friendship Force visit here for his newspaper, the Arnhemse Courant, visited The Daily Reflector office Tuesday afternoon. He chatted with Reflector staff writer Melvin Lang.

For Close Up View, Tour China By Bicycle

By CHARLES J. ABBOTT
XIQIAO, China (UPI) — Bob Laird squatted on the plaza, framed by stacks of drying sugar cane stalks, trying to strike a friendship with a group of young boys on their way to school.

One shy lad cautiously let the visitor examine his bag. In it was a small textbook, which Laird opened at random.

"My mother is a nurse," he read from the book, which was printed in English.

Around Laird and the boy stood a dozen American and Canadian bicyclists. A half-dozen water buffalo were staked along a nearby stream bank. Small red and brown chickens scratched among the cane stalks.

Later in the day, near the karst crags of Shaoxing, the cyclists watched hogs being loaded for market. The animals were stuffed into cylindrical baskets that were stacked in small three-wheel scooters or lashed onto bicycles.

The unexpected encounters in farming villages in southern China are among the pleasures bicyclists recall from China.

"It's tremendous," said Tony Nahon of Toronto, who joined Laird, a fellow Canadian, and 20 other cyclists for a tour sponsored by American Youth Hostels. "I can't imagine anyone reading about (the opportunity) and not going."

The country was opened to bicycle tours in 1981 with travelers allowed to roam the subtropical Canton area. Several agencies offered tours. In most, groups limited to about two dozen people rolled past rice paddies, communes and villages that raise silk worms to stop overnight at guesthouses.

Several routes are available this year. China Passages, for example, offers tours that pass the frozen pillars of the Stone Forest, stop in Guilin or follow the Yangtze River.

Although the bicycle tours in the initial year started in major cities and included sidetrips to Peking and other large cities, much of the time was spent in rural China, where 85 percent of the population lives.

"It's a real people-to-people tour," one organizer said. "We're certainly right in the street, cycling with the people."

Members of AYH tours were encouraged to take Chinese lessons or to master some rudimentary phrases to ease travel. There still can be language barriers — most phrasebooks use Mandarin, the official tongue, but dialects are common and can confound efforts to speak the language.

Travelers often have the choice of bringing their own bicycles or renting one. The rental models are heavier than 10-speeds but some travelers find them more convenient than shepherding a bicycle across the Pacific Ocean.

In addition to suggestions they read as much as possible about China, travelers are advised to take a few bike trips around home to tone up muscles and build confidence for the journey.

Tours frequently are routed along two-lane blacktop roads, comparable to county highways in the United States.

Members of our AYH tour stopped as they pleased, pausing in villages or farms. A motorcyclist pointed the way through confusing turns and a bus trailed the group in case of breakdowns.

Motorized traffic was light in the countryside — sturdy, green freight trucks, tired-looking buses, three-wheeled scooters and farm machines that looked like oversized roto-tillers towing carts.

By one estimate, there are 77 million bicycles in China — three million among Peking's seven million people — so the tourists were using a common mode of travel. But their light-weight, derailleurs contrast with the workhorse Chinese bikes.

Bicycles with two-inch wide tires and burly steel carrier racks are the Chinese' main source of transportation. Some trundled along with three bags of grain slung over the rear wheel. Others hauled cement or had huge baskets strapped to each side of the rear wheel.

Midway between Foshan and Xiqiao, our group stopped in a village where a smoke-darkened courtyard was filled with dozens of worn wooden racks of silk worms. The white, almost albino, worms cling to pegs on the rack.

"They have grown here a long time," an aged woman dressed in black explained through an interpreter.

At another stop, a band of boys was fascinated by my helmet and happily accepted an invitation to rap on its hard, white plastic surface.

A young duck herder demonstrated his skills during a picnic stop. His high-pitched cluckings attracted ducklings that were hunting bugs in a paddy. Ducklings swam toward the sound, but wavered and lost direction when he stopped.

Villages appeared every couple of miles, each with a reservoir stretching along one street.

Our accommodations in guesthouses ranged from rooms that resembled standard American motels to rooms furnished with mosquito netting and combination radio-fan-lamps. At Zonghua, rooms were immense — 20-by-40 feet — with parquet floors and hot tubs.

Every room had a large thermos of boiling water and mugs for making tea.

Mount Dinghu, a popular Chinese tourist spot near Shaoxing, houses an ancient Buddhist temple. Travelers are told they will be included in prayers if they make a donation and sign a book.

Most westerners on our AYH tour scrawled their names. Takaaki Kato, a Japanese student, drew his name in classic characters.

A squat monk, dressed in gray, grinned enthusiastically and thrust his thumb up in appreciative approval.

The route south crossed the Yellow and Yangtze rivers, rushing past the wheat and cotton harvest and fieldwork of early fall into the vibrant green of subtropical summer.

The coaches, trimmed in green and white, were made in eastern Europe. "Hard class," where many Chinese travel, means cramped cars with wooden benches. Tourists travel in second or first class.

In second class, bunks are stacked three high, six to a stall. The bunks come with a pallet, a sheet, a woolen blanket, a towel and a pillow. A small table was bolted to the wall between the bunks. Under it was a thermos.

Windows can be opened for ventilation.

First class on the Peking-Canton train meant air conditioning, down comforters, reading lamps and wide beds. Four passengers share a compartment.

Attendants locked the doors between classes and on some coaches when the train stopped, occasionally setting off a scramble when a bell announced departure.

The route south crossed the Yellow and Yangtze rivers, rushing past the wheat and cotton harvest and fieldwork of early fall into the vibrant green of subtropical summer.

In some fields, large, four-wheel drive tractors pulled plows. Not far away, two-wheeled tillers dragged harrows or men plowed with oxen.

When the train paused, we were able to get off to inspect food stalls. Wares varied from bags of peanuts, cookie wafers and braided strips of fried dough to pears and apples. A food vendor also passed through the second-class car several times, selling hand-sized tins of meat and rice.

The train included a carefully maintained, high-ceilinged dining car. Windows were trimmed with frosted glass. Different groups of travelers ate at different times.

AYH bicycle tours through several parts of China are about three weeks in length and cost about $3,000 including air fare. Information on these tours may be obtained by writing American Youth Hostels, Metropolitan New York Council, 132 Spring St., New York, N.Y. 10012.

Pain is usually a warning sign caused by a potentially damaging condition within or outside the body, according to Upjohn Co. It is triggered most commonly by heat, pressure, tissue damage or chemicals, including some chemicals produced by the body itself. Whatever the stimulus, the result is the same: A message is sent by the nervous system to the brain. Only impulses reaching the cerebrum, the brain's highest level, cause the perception of what we call pain.

Female Charter Boat Captains Not Unusual

By ORVAL JACKSON
CLEARWATER BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Rosalie Stribling gave up a career as an executive secretary 12 years ago to become one of the first female charter boat fishing captains working out of Clearwater Beach. Now one of the most successful — male or female — at the marina, she has been joined by three other women charter boat captains.

But Rosalie runs her boat Li'l Tiger alone, using just a deck hand for crew.

The other three licensed women captains work boats with their husbands, who are also captains, but two of them do on occasion take their boats out with only a deck hand.

Terri Howard was a student from Ohio State vacationing at Clearwater Beach 10 years ago when she met her husband, Richard. He was working as a deck hand on a charter boat on which she hitched a ride. Five weeks later they were married and now they operate their own boat, Southern Star.

Further down the row of boat slips, Lin McNuff captains the Gypsy along with her husband Russ, while Sue Foster captains the Gulfstream with her husband Max.

"It's not unusual to find women on charter boats now," Rosalie said. "There are some working now as deck hands, too, and one is a captain of a charter sailboat

Rosalie and Terri both report charter boat business doing well this summer, although some of the other boats have been reporting a decrease because of the hot weather and possibly reflecting the economy.

"It's been good for us, although basically it has been slow," Terri said. "The fishing has been really good, but at certain times there don't seem to be many people around."

"My business has been great," said Rosalie. "I have repeat customers."

"The key is not always producing (fish)," she said. "The key is how you treat the people on the boat. If they feel comfortable or at home they have a good time."

"Even if we fail to catch very many fish, I want my customers to have pleasant memories of the trip," she said.

"We want our customers to have fun," Terri said. "We're not out to compete with the commercial fishermen. We want the people to enjoy themselves. That's what sports fishing is all about."

Most charter boats operating out of the Clearwater Beach Marina charge $225 for a half day or $350 for a full day for up to six people. For that price all the customer has to do is bring his own food and drink.

The captains provide the ice, fishing gear and bait, and help land the fish.

"Once in a while someone will tell us that some boat down the line will take them out for less money but I just tell them to remember that cheaper doesn't mean better," Terri said. "If they drop the price, they're not going to take you out as far."

When Richard is driving the Southern Star, Terri is on deck telling the customers — many of whom are making their first deep sea fishing trip — how to hook up the special belt that holds the rod, what to look for when the fish strikes and how to react.

After baiting up the hooks or attaching artificial lures, she casts them out, then hands the rod to the fisherman and steps back.

Once he hooks onto a fish, she shouts encouragement and advice and stands by to gaff the fish and haul it on deck.

Back at the dock she works at cleaning the boat while Richard dresses the fish for the customer.

"I haven't found a lot of prejudice against women captains," Terri said.

Some of the lack of prejudice may be a result of the outstanding performance of Rosalie during her years at the marina.

"I had fished all my life and it was my hobby,"

Couple Marries On Saturday

AYDEN — Janipat Worthington of Ayden and Joseph Lawrence Whaley of Arapahoe exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 6 p.m. in the First Baptist Church here. The Rev. Gilbert G. Mister performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ralph Conley Worthington of Ayden and the late Mr. Worthington. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Catherine T. Whaley of Grifton and Joseph L. Whaley of Grifton.

The bridegroom's brother, Bennie Mitchell Whaley of Grifton, was best man and Amy Bunting Carson of Grifton was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Jenny Lynn Byrd, cousin of the bride of Bunnlevel, Laura Ann Daughtry of Ayden, Lauri Ann Hickman of Kinston and Linda Powell Vaughan of Ayden.

Ushers were Ronald Anderson of New Bern, Carl Dale Fuller of Raleigh, Tim Harper of Grantsboro and Paul Andrew Ricciarelli of Grifton.

The flower girl was Charity Taylor, cousin of the bridegroom of Marion and the ring bearer was Patrick McLawhorn, cousin of the bride of Ayden.

Mrs. Robert N. Johnson Jr. was mistress of ceremonies and Cathy Denise Taylor, cousin of the bridegroom, presided at the guest register.

Mrs. Glenn L. Swanson, organist, presented a program of classical music. The church chancel choir sang "Father of Mercies" and Mrs. Simmons Hill of Ayden sang "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride was escorted and given in marriage by her brother, Dr. Ralph Conley Worthington Jr. of Greenville. She wore a traditional bridal satin and re-embroidered alencon lace floor length gown with a cathedral train. The fitted satin bodice featured a Queen Ann neckline outlined with re-embroidered alencon lace, organza tapered sleeves and natural waistline. Re-embroidered alencon lace motifs adorned the bodice, sleeves, skirt and train. Scalloped alencon lace bordered the hemline. She wore an alencon lace bridal hat etched with seed pearls accented with an illusion bow and streamers centered with a silk flower. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace. She carried a cascade of white English roses, white miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of wine taffeta designed with an open neckline featuring a ruffle of taffeta outlining the off-shoulder bodice. Rosebuds of taffeta trimmed the ruffles which extended around the scooped back. The gown was fashioned with three-quarter length sleeves and a gathered sash of taffeta enhanced the modified natural waistline and gathered skirt. She carried a bouquet of roses and carnations in shades of pink which held a bridal light.

The bridesmaids' dresses and flowers were identical. The flower girl carried a basket filled with pink sweetheart roses, miniature carnations and baby's breath.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of shell pink silk designed with a high neckline and blouson sleeves. Her corsage was of pink sweetheart roses and baby's breath. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mauve lusterglo designed with an open neckline and fitted bodice. She wore a corsage of wine roses.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Mrs. Hill sang "Wedding Prayer."

The bridegroom is manager and golf professional at the Minnesott Country Club. The bride was employed by Southern Bank and Trust Co. in Ayden.

A reception was given by the mother of the bride in the Red Room of the Greenville Moose Lodge. Guests were welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. McLawhorn and Mr. and Mrs. William Mangun McLawhorn.

Assisting in serving and receiving were relatives and friends of the bridal couple. Music was provided by Otto Dykstra. Good-byes were said to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hobbs Byrd of Bunnlevel and Mr. and Mrs. R.H. McLawhorn Jr. of Chocowinity.

For traveling the bride changed into a three-piece suit of dusty rose raw silk and wore her mother's corsage.

A luncheon prior to the wedding was held at Angelo's in Greenville and was given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Herman McLawhorn Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lorenzo McLawhorn, Mr. and Mrs. William Mangun McLawhorn and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hobbs Byrd.

After the rehearsal, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at a dinner party at the Ayden Golf and Country Club.

BLUEBERRY TART

A fresh version of a marvelous dessert.

1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup (4-ounce stick) butter
2 tablespoons sour cream
3 cups fresh blueberries

Topping: Beat together until smooth 3 large egg yolks, 1-3rd cup sour cream, 1/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup all-purpose flour. over berries. Bake in the 350-degree oven until top is golden brown — 45 to 50 minutes. Cool on a wire rack. Remove sidewall of pan. Serve warm. Makes 8 servings.
Cut butter into flour until it is in fine particles. With a fork, stir in sour cream until dough forms a ball. Press over bottom and sides of an ungreased 9- by 1 1/2-inch cake pan with a removable bottom. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until set but not brown — about 20 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. Spread blueberries in hot pastry shell. Pour Topping

Wedding Vows Said In Noon Ceremony

CORAPEAKE — Frankie Lynn Rountree became the bride of Dr. William Luther Hand III in a ceremony at noon Saturday held in the Eureka Baptist Church. The single ring ceremony was conducted by Dr. Floyd Enzor.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Stephen Davidson, organist, and the sister of the bride, Mrs. Wayne Whitehurst of Corapeake was vocalist.

Parents of the bridal couple are Mr. and Mrs. Linwood Frank Rountree of Corapeake and Dr. and Mrs. William Luther Hand Jr. of New Bern.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and wore a formal gown of ivory satin styled with Brussels lace beaded with pearls. Her fingertip length veil of illusion was attached to her mother's Juliet cap of lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of orchids and white roses centered on her mother's wedding Bible.

Mrs. William Nixon of Corapeake, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and Elizabeth Hand of New Bern and Mrs. Robert Davison of Baltimore, Md., sisters of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. They were each dressed in a violet taffeta gown and carried a basket of silk flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while ushers included Wayne Whitehurst and William Nixon of Corapeake, brothers-in-law of the bride, Lee Jones of Wilkesboro and Joseph Jones of Jacksonville, uncles of the bridegroom. The couple will live in New Bern after a wedding trip to the Bahamas.

The bride attended Meredith College and East Carolina University. She is sales supervisor of eastern North Carolina for C.F. Sauer Co. in Richmond, Va. The bridegroom attended N.C. State University and the University of North Carolina School of Dentistry. He is a practicing dentist with Family Dental Center in New Bern.

A luncheon reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in Corapeake.

A rehearsal dinner party was given by the bridegroom's parents Friday in Norfolk, Va. at the Omni International Hotel.

Wills Should Be Prepared

There's an old cliché that says, "Where there's a will, there's a way." Unfortunately, most Americans do not prepare a will, says Dr. Thelma Hinson, extension family resource management specialist at North Carolina State University.

According to the American Bar Association nearly three out of four Americans never bother to prepare a formal, written will.

The association also reports that although 27 percent of Americans do prepare wills, most young adults don't believe they are necessary.

Only one percent of persons 34 years old and under have made out a will. Most probably won't until they're about 50 which is the average age people decide to prepare a will, Dr. Hinson observes.

Tips On Buying Acorn Squash

Acorn squash comes into its own as the cool weather moves into North Carolina.

The squash is a dark green color reminds Rachel Kinlaw, extension food specialist at North Carolina State University. A small yellow area may sometimes be found on the skin but that won't change the quality.

When buying acorn squash, look for a hard, tough rind. The squash should also seem heavy for its size. A pound of squash will yield about one cup of mashed cooked squash.

Mistletoe Show Set

ELIZABETH CITY — The fifth annual Mistletoe Show and Sale will be held here Nov. 12-14 at the Knobbs Creek Recreation Center. The event is sponsored by the Elizabeth City Junior Woman's Club. Times for the show are Friday 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., Saturday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. The show will feature a variety of handmade items including dolls, wooden furniture, paintings, needlework, Christmas and household decorations. Meals and snacks will be available.

Starch Lovers Tablets let you eat pizza, spaghetti, & other fattening foods without worrying about counting calories. $14.95 for 75. Phone 756-8726. Leave your name & phone no.

Pressing Wool Fabrics

To get a tailored look when sewing with wool, use proper pressing techniques says Dr. Judith Mock, extension specialist, North Carolina State University.

A wool setting on the iron can be used with 100 percent wool. A lower setting should be used with wool blends to prevent damage to synthetic fibers. Dampened press cloths always should be used. These are available commercially but old diapers and sheets also work well.

To avoid a seam on the right side of the garment, Dr. Mock says to slip heavy strips of paper under the seam before pressing.

A wooden clapper or a heavy, clean breadboard can be used to flatten springy wool fabric that doesn't stay flat when steamed, the specialist adds.

Use a steam iron and damp press cloth. Immediately cover the seam or collar edge with the clapper and hold it firmly in place until the fabric cools.

The washing machine should not be used as a hamper for soiled or damp laundry. Mildew could develop on clothing making it impossible to remove the odor.

Ava Janet Poole Weds

MRS. JESSE RODNEY RICE

BELHAVEN — The wedding ceremony of Ava Janet Poole and Jesse Rodney Rice took place Saturday afternoon at two o'clock in the Sidney Free Will Baptist Church here. The Rev. Alton Tew of Durham, great uncle of the bride, conducted the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Ava Keech Poole of Belhaven and the late Stephen Richard Poole. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buel Rice of Royston, Ga.

The wedding music was presented by Mrs. Dennis Morris of Pinetown, pianist, and Mrs. Danny Slade of Rock Hill, S.C., soloist.

The bride was escorted by her brother, Stephen Richard Poole Jr., and given in marriage by her mother, Linda Sparrow, sister of the bride of Belhaven, was honor attendant and other attendants were Susan Sizemore of Greensboro, Debbie Jones of Zebulon, Mary Jo Ostrander of Raleigh and Ellen Reckord of Franklin, Va.

The father of the bridegroom was best man while the ring bearer was Steven Poole of Belhaven, nephew of the bride. Ushers included Rusty Bartlett of Canon, Ga., Rufus Yarbrough of Atlanta, Ga., Jay Bonham of Jacksonville, Fla. and Mike Mobley of Sylvania, Ga.

The bride wore a Victorian style gown of organza over taffeta designed with a sheer neckline edged with chantilly lace and seed pearls. The sheer Juliet sleeves were accented with matching lace cuffs. A double ruffle enhanced the A-line skirt which extended to a chapel train encircled with scalloped lace. The bride wore a hat of matching chantilly lace accented with a waist length veil. She carried a cascade of lavender daisy mums and baby's breath.

The attendants wore identical gowns of blue satin designed with an open neckline and cinched at the waist with a blue satin ribbon. They each carried a bouquet of lavender daisy mums and baby's breath.

A reception was held at the church fellowship hall. Serving guests were Lucinda Poole, the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. Dallas Paul, Mrs. Lee Paul and Mrs. Frank Edwards. Following the traditional cutting of the wedding cake by the bridal couple, they honored the mother of the bride with a surprise birthday cake.

The couple will live in Greenwood, S.C. after a wedding trip to Sea Island, Ga.

The bride is employed with the U.S. Treasury Department and graduated from Atlantic Christian College. The bridegroom works with Oxford of Greenwood and is a graduate of Southern Technical Institute of Marietta, Ga.

Rice ranks sixth in production value of the major field crops.

Couple Weds Saturday Evening

Linda Girvin Hix and James Oliver Bond were married Saturday evening at seven o'clock in the chapel of St. James United Methodist Church by the Rev. Dewey Tyson.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Girvin of Owensboro, Ky. and Mrs. Ruth Oliver Bond of Palmyra, Mo. and the late James Henry Bond.

A program of wedding music was presented by Francis Cain, organist. Wanda Ramm of Knightdale sang "One Hand, One Heart" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Caren Lea Hix of Greenville, daughter of the bride, was honor attendant. Durwood Hines of Farmville was best man.

The bride and bridegroom entered the chapel together. For the double ring ceremony, the bride wore a floor length gown of unbleached muslin styled with a yoke of ivory lace, long sleeves and skirt ruffle accented with ivory ribbon and lace. She wore a headpiece of yellow daisies, pom pom chrysanthemums and baby's breath.

The honor attendant was dressed in a floor length gown of turquoise chiffon fashioned with a gathered bodice covered with a short lace jacket.

Guests were greeted at the chapel by Suzanne Hix Jones of Upper Marlboro, Md., daughter of the bride.

The couple will live in Greenville after a cruise to Jamaica, Grand Cayman and Mexico.

The bride is an energy management consultant for several North Carolina corporations and the bridegroom works for Dupont Co.

A reception was held in the church narthex after the ceremony. Assisting in serving were Elsie Mazingo of Farmville, Sherry Quinn, Dawn Broome and Sandra Girvin, sister of the bride.

Six seniors have been nominated for the John Motley Morehead Scholarship on the basis of scholastic ability, participation in extra-curricular activities and participation in activities requiring physical vigor, leadership capacity and interest in fellow schoolmates.

The Morehead Scholarship is an award accompanied by a grant to finance the recipient's undergraduate studies at UNC-Chapel Hill. The Morehead Foundation also finances many off-campus summer activities designed to develop the student's leadership potential.

This year's nominees, who were interviewed and selected by a school nominating committee, are Gregg Davis, Alan Dickens, John Little, Angie Michel, Janet Mizzelle and Suzanne Wille. They will now proceed to be considered by the county selection committee.

Six students who placed among the top five percent in the National Merit Scholarship Program were recognized as commended students by the National Merit Foundation. They rank among the top 50,000 seniors who took PSAT/NMSQT. The seniors are Margaret Cherry, William O'Neal, Traci Pennington, David Priestley, Rogers Warner and Lisa Whitlow.

Rose had four entries in the educational exhibits at the Pitt County American Legion Agricultural Fair, which ended last night. Winners were HOSA (Health Occupation Students of America) first place, $100; foods services class, second place, $90; VICA-drafting, third place, $80; and FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America), fourth, $70. The theme this year was "America: Making the Best Better." Exhibits were judged on overall presentation and educational value.

"A Christmas Carol," written by Charles Dickens and adapted by Betty Topper, has been selected as this year's Christmas play. Auditions before the Drama Club board and Mrs. Topper will be scheduled this week.

Woman Commands ROTC

By JOHN DINGMAN
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Col. Diane Simpson is excited at her appointment as cadet commander of ROTC units at two universities, but she is even more thrilled at the future the Air Force offers her and her husband.

Ms. Simpson says the military is a "great life for a young couple," offering a chance to see the world and do something for the country.

She is in charge of about 180 reserve officer cadets at Mississippi State University in Starkville, and about 20 at nearby Mississippi University for Women in Columbus.

Although she may be unique in the Air Force as a woman commander of two units, she says her gender is of no significance.

Ms. Simpson said she has had much support from the male cadets both at Mississippi State and at the women's university, which has three male ROTC cadets in its unit. The university admitted men for the first time this year following a U.S. Supreme Court decision ordering admission of male students in the nursing program. The policy then, was extended to the entire school.

Ms. Simpson's husband, Paul, is a career Air Force officer, with the rank of captain, and is soon due for promotion to major.

Both come from Reform, Ala., and both are 33-year-old graduates of the University of Alabama. Paul Simpson joined the Air Force ROTC at Alabama and went on active duty after graduation. This is his wife's second year in the program.

Although she and her husband have been transferred to such remote areas as Alaska and the Philippines, Ms. Simpson has found time to get a master's degree in adult education from Mississippi State and now is working toward her doctorate in educational leadership. She gets her Air Force commission in May, and will have time to finish her advanced degree next summer.

The Simpsons have two sons, Brett, 11, and Brook, 8.

Ms. Simpson says her decision to enter the ROTC was a family matter.

"I have a four-year commitment to active duty after graduation," she said, and so she and her husband talked the situation over with the boys. "They were all for it, and very supportive."

It will mean moving again, but that's nothing new to the Simpson family.

As her husband moved about, Ms. Simpson worked in Oklahoma, Florida, Alaska and the Philippines, all in education.

She said it has been a great life. "I would like to emphasize that point for young people."

She added that it has been a great experience for the children, too, who have enjoyed making new friends and a new way of life.

There will be some big changes for the Simpson family this summer.

Her husband is finishing his assignment as a military instructor at Mississippi State, and will head on to a new post. And she will be getting her first active duty assignment.

They hope that it will be the same location. But, she explained, in Air Force policy, "the mission comes first." She said they will get a joint assignment if it fits the needs of the Air Force, but otherwise they will be at different locations for a time.

"We knew that when I got in," she said, and "we understood all the ramifications." And, as a family, they decided to go ahead anyway.

Both she and her husband plan to make the Air Force a career, and "maybe the boys will follow in our footsteps," Ms. Simpson said.

"It's exciting to be with people who are concerned with their country — not because they are forced, but because they want to be."

Marriage Announced

MRS. EDWARD EARL HOLLAND SR...is the former Myra Jackson King of Greenville, whose marriage to Mr. Holland of Greenville, took place Saturday afternoon at 2:30 in Immanuel Baptist Church. The Rev. Hugh Burlington performed the private, double ring ceremony. The couple's children were in attendance. A reception followed. The couple will live in Greenville where he is manager of Blount Harvey Co.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Holland Friends...

much energy or turn people away. Our hospitals are closing and many of our health professionals are without jobs. People are going in for treatment and coming out in one or two days to recuperate at home."

Most of the married women in Holland do not work outside the home, though many of the younger ones are beginning to. Most of the women on the tour are housewives. An exception is Puck de Voogd, who teaches swimming part-time at a swimming club near her home and is a part-time newspaper sportswriter. She writes about swimming, water polo and boxing.

Several of the visitors were willing to talk about nuclear energy. A recent referendum, they said, showed that 36 percent of the Dutch people were against the use of nuclear energy. "I'd be willing to say that 100 percent are against nuclear weapons," Ria van de Bosch said. "Holland is a small crowded nation that remembers well a war on its own soil and there are foreign military bases there. We fear nuclear war. We know we'd be confronted on our own soil. We feel we live on an explosive piece of ground and we want the leaders of the world to know that they have a responsibility to us and to everyone to prevent nuclear war."

Seasoned cast iron skillets should not be scoured or kept in water any longer than necessary. If seasoning is lost, add enough vegetable oil to cover the bottom and cook gently over low heat for 15 minutes.

If dampening is already done and there's no time for ironing, wrap dampened items in plastic bags and store in refrigerator or freezer. They can remain up to two days before mildewing. Chilled items iron more easily anyway.

Cooking Is Fun

SKILLET SANDWICHES
Spread 3 slices of bread with creamy or chunky peanut butter; top with 3 more slices to make sandwiches. Beat an egg until foamy; add 1/2 cup milk and beat to blend. Dip the sandwiches in the egg mixture. Heat a tablespoon of butter in a non-stick 10-inch skillet. Add the 3 sandwiches — you'll have to cut one of them in half in order to fit them into the skillet. Fry until browned on under side; remove; melt another tablespoon of butter in the skillet and return the sandwiches to it, browned side up; fry until bottom side is browned. Cut each of the two whole sandwiches in half. Serve at once with currant jelly.

MRS. WILLIAM HUDSON

Hudson-Boyd Vows Said

Sophia H. Boyd of Vanceboro and William Hudson were united in marriage Saturday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Walter Pollard performed the ceremony in the yard of the daughter of the bride. Wedding music was presented by Randy Buck of Greenville.

Escorted by her son, Melvin H. Boyd of Greenville, the bride wore a point d'esprit lace dress with an overlay scooped neckline and three-quarter length sleeves in suede pink. She carried a cascade of off-white orchids accented with pink silk flowers.

Doris B. Roach, daughter of the bride, was the honor attendant and wore a floor length gown of light green polyester with a chiffon cape. She carried a bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath.

Eric Smith of Greenville, grandson of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Mills of Greenville presided at the guest register.

A reception was held on the lawn at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elworth Roach. Punch was poured by Sheryl Cayton, granddaughter of the bride, and cake was served by Edna Mills of Greenville.

Miss Harrison Weds In Saturday Ceremony

WENDELL — In a double ring ceremony performed Saturday at 6 p.m., Norleen Elizabeth Harrison and David Lee Meador were united in marriage. The double ring ceremony took place in the Wendell Baptist Church and was conducted by Dr. Baxter Prevatte.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Norlan L. Harrison of Knightdale and Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Meador of Goldsboro.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. Her maid of honor was Vanessa Figg of Charlotte and bridesmaids included Barbara Baumgartner of Knightdale and Linda Johnson of Charlotte, sisters of the bride.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included James Pearson of Raleigh, John Pearce of Cary and Donald Meador of Goldsboro, cousin of the bridegroom.

Elizabeth Huss played the organ and piano. Naomi Harrison, sister of the bride, and Naomi Given were vocalists.

The bride wore a gown of white organza with beaded chantilly lace. Lace fashioned the empire waisted fitted bodice with a high neckline underscored with a sheer yoke embroidered with lace. The full bishop sleeves were cuffed in lace and the skirt formed an inverted V with a flounce that bordered the skirt and attached cathedral lace train. Her bridal hat of white illusion and lace was accented with lace flowers. The illusion extended down the back, the full length of her gown. She carried a silk bouquet of white carnations, white and yellow roses, daisies and wildflowers accented with ribbons and lace.

The honor attendant wore a gown of pale yellow satin styled with an empire waisted fitted bodice with lace accenting the waistline. She carried a bouquet of a yellow mum accented by fern, ribbons and lace doily background.

The bridesmaids were dressed identically and carried an arrangement of silk flowers including white and yellow daisies, white lilies with a yellow starburst in the center. Wildflowers, greenery, ribbons and a lace doily background accented the arrangement.

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The couple will be living in Raleigh after a wedding trip to Virginia.

The bride attended East Wake High School and the bridegroom attended Goldsboro High School. Both graduated in August from Wake Technical College and will be telecommunication aides with Engineering-Design and Services.

Engagement Announced

CINDY FAYE SHEPPARD...is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Lee Sheppard of Route 4, Greenville, who announce her engagement to Ronnie Glen House, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis House of Robersonville. A Nov. 27 wedding is being planned.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

I'll bet you old-timers out there can remember when a doggy bag was a bag containing a bone that people took home from the restaurant to their dog.

Boy, those were the days, weren't they? I remember when we used to walk in the door and the minute our dog would see that little bag with a picture of himself on the front, he'd jump higher than the door frame.

He's finally smartened up. That bag's not for him. In fact, they're not even bags anymore. They're cartons of leftover chop suey, beef stroganoff, lima beans and chicken and dumplings.

They're chicken wings, a limp taco, a half cup of soup, cole slaw, and cold strings of French fried potatoes.

I can be honest about it now. Our dog never saw a piece of cold chicken in his entire life. As for the occasional steak bone, there were rules. First, everyone would pick at the meat left on it for a couple of days. Then, I'd surround it with three quarts of water, a few carrots, onions and celery and make vegetable soup. On the fourth day, I'd place the naked, white bone on a plate in the middle of the kitchen floor and announce, "If you bury it before I do, it's yours."

He never had a chance. Diners used to be embarrassed about doggy bags. I can recall ordering my children to be sure and ask for a bag and when they did I'd blush and say, "My goodness. You're not going to carry home that half plate of spaghetti and meatballs, are you? Mommy will make you some next week if you're that hungry. Oh, well, if you think the dog will eat it!"

That's when one of them would say, "Does that mean we're going to get a dog?" Today, doggy bags are passed out as mechanically as the bill.

Somehow, the doggy bag has opened the door for gutsy diners who feel that every restaurant is a giant take-out. We saw an elderly couple at a nearby restaurant the other night sack up all the crackers on the table, the bread, pats

Older men — those 65 and older — are less likely today to be in the labor force than in the past, and those who do work are more likely to have part-time jobs, according to the American Council of Life Insurance. In addition, proportionately fewer men in the 55 to 64 age bracket are working now than a decade ago.

Dear Abby

A Little Fire Prevention Worth Whole Lot of Cure

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow marks the 60th anniversary of Fire Prevention Week, and I have had so many requests to repeat my column on fire prevention that it has become a tradition. So here it is, with updated figures:

In 1981, 6,823 Americans died in fires, of which 123 were firefighters. Nearly 300,000 civilians, plus 100,000 firefighters, were seriously injured in 2,893,500 fires.

The total fire loss in 1981 in property alone was over $6.5 billion in the U.S.

The chief causes of fires, in order of the toll taken, were:

1. Smoking
2. Wood and coal stoves
3. Electrical wiring and appliances
4. Children playing with matches
5. Gas-fuel cooking and heating

Now for some tips that could save your life:

Be sure your cigarette is out. Matches, too. Never leave matches and lighters within the reach of children.

Don't run cords under rugs or over radiators where they may get damaged. Replace a cord if it is frayed.

Never leave small children or invalids alone in the house — not even for a few minutes.

Have your wiring and electrical installations done by a professional.

Store oily rags and paints in a cool place in tightly sealed metal containers.

Never use flammable liquids for dry-cleaning indoors.

Never smoke in bed.

Have a fire drill in your home to be sure everyone knows what to do in case of fire. Designate a specific meeting place outside so you will all know who's outside of the house.

Remember: Fire extinguishers put out 97 percent of all fires on which they were used, and most large fires start as small fires. So, invest in a compact, easy-to-use fire extinguisher. Keep it handy in your kitchen, or be prudent and buy one for your cottage, car, boat and the back bedroom.

Buy and install smoke detectors and then properly maintain them. They must be cleaned often with the vacuum cleaner hose so that they are dust-free. It is estimated that thousands of lives could have been saved last year had smoke detectors been in service when the fire happened.

Now, in case of fire:

If you suspect fire, alert the rest of the household. But first feel the top of the door. If it's hot, don't open it. Escape through the window.

If you can't open the window, break it with a chair. Cover the rough edges with a blanket, sit on the window ledge with one leg hanging outside and one inside, and wait for help.

The phone number of your fire department should be taped on every telephone. If it isn't, don't fumble around trying to find it. Get out and call from a neighbor's house.

If you live in an apartment building, use the stairway. Don't take a chance on the elevator. If it fails, you're trapped!

Once out, stay out. No treasure is worth risking your life.

It took less than three minutes to read this column. Was it worth it? I hope so.

ABBY

P.S. Capt. R.H. Kauffman of the Los Angeles County Fire Department has written an excellent little booklet titled, "Hotels Could Be Hazardous to Your Health." For information on its cost, write to: Jazerant Corp., 3956 Calle Valle Vista, Newbury Park, Calif. 91320.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle an argument for me. My friend says anybody who wants to attend a wedding that's held in a church may attend, and nobody can keep him out because a church is a public place. Of course, the wedding reception is something else, and unless a person has been invited to the reception, he can be kept out. What do you say?

CONFUSED BRIDESMAID

DEAR CONFUSED: All churches are open to the public. And unless the wedding is that of a celebrity, the public may attend. However, to protect celebrities and public figures from curiosity seekers, the invited guests are asked to present their invitations at the door. Then ushers are posted at all the doors along with security guards to eliminate the gate-crashers.

People with good manners go only where they're invited.

Life As It's Lived

Nothing confirms the importance of birth order in a child's development more than simply observing a second child. Although second children go through all the same stages as first children, they make such interesting refinements on those stages that the parent's so-called experience counts for almost nothing.

Discerning the pecking order was one of the first conceptual feats performed by both children in our family. Admittedly, the pecking order in our family varies with time and circumstance, but Meg was able to distinguish its general pattern without any trouble. She was top chick, period. No one else's position made much difference.

Zachary was born with an entirely different perspective. I suppose that because he had to compete with his sister, those whose attention he was competing for were raised in his estimation to the top of the order. In addition, the competition itself was bigger and stronger than he and decidedly more verbal. That left him at the bottom of the heap.

Zachary's cumulative perception of his position occasioned a display of the second child's singular power of adaptation. Refusing to resign himself to his fate, he set out to find a family member even lower than himself. And he didn't need much time to discover that animals make excellent inferiors.

Our poor cat, who was accustomed to wandering where she would, provided that she stayed away from the kitchen counters and the dining table, was suddenly confronted with an unyielding taskmaster. "Get outta' mine room!" Zachary would and does yell. "Get offa mine chair!" "Get offa mine bed!" His habit of accompanying his commands with a resounding whack makes the cat conscious of the sensibility of obedience.

Quite noticeable in all these communications is Zachary's possessiveness. Rather than promoting harmony and the joys of sharing, second place in the birth order only exaggerates a child's territorial ambitions. Zachary has a much greater need to establish his territory than Meg had. If I remember correctly, Meg's vocabulary was already rather extensive before the word "mine" was added to it. It was the third word Zachary said.

He progressed quickly to "I had it first," a wounded cry appropriated from his sister. Far from indicating any improvement in ability to reason, "I had it first!" has only an appearance of logic. Although it is more effective than "It's mine!" in making a parent stop and inquire into particulars, it has no real meaning to Zachary. He uses it not only to retain those toys that he has actually been playing with but to justify his acquisition of the ones he wrenched from his playmates' or his sister's hands.

One might conclude, then, that the concept of sharing is still foreign to him. And it is, when it's applied to his actions. But he is unabashedly in favor of sharing if Meg is the one who's doing it. When he spots a possession of hers that he would like to obtain, he tells me after some reflection, "Meg will hab to share it, won't she?"

There are times, of course, when I demur. For instance, he wanted to share the crystal jewelry box that Meg's aunt had given her.

"No, Zachary," I said. "You're too little to play with that. You might break it."

Second child that he is, he mentally filed this statement with the deftness of a computer and recalled it as soon as he spotted Meg with one of his own prized possessions, his mini-wheel.

At first he merely urged her, with all his customary aplomb, to dismount.

I pulled him off her. "But Zachary you must share."

He was quick to argue his case. "She's too big! She might break it! Spank her!"

Blind Entertainer Provides Bonus To Jazz Buffs

By FRED FERGUSON
NEW YORK (UPI) — Blind jazz pianist-singer Brooks Kerr will sing and play any Fats Waller, Duke Ellington or Irving Berlin tune or song you remember. And many you don't.

Everybody knows Waller and Berlin — "But not the way Brooks knows them — or the way he knows most other jazz composers," says Dan Morgenstern.

Morgenstern is director of the Institute for Jazz Studies at Rutgers University.

One afternoon recently, Kerr played Fats Waller and Berlin music. Some of the tunes for which they are best known, he does not play. Berlin's "Easter Parade," for example.

"Instead he plays and sings: 'Marie from Sunny Italy?'"

"Berlin wrote it. It was how he began his musical career when he was 19 years old," says Brooks Kerr.

"You see what I mean about an encyclopedic memory," Morgenstern says as Kerr tells how another tune came to be introduced.

Each time he opens in one of a growing number of small New York nightspots that feature serious jazz, a coterie of jazz buffs and historians attend.

Kerr, 30, plays from memory and by ear. His white cane is placed carefully by his piano stool.

Off stage, he mentions his blindness casually, "...by that time I had gone blind — it was in '78, I was 26."

"I had a cataract operation. The operation was a success but it didn't last."

He drops the subject to talk about how Berlin originally wrote "God Bless America" in 1918 for a show for troops at a Yaphank, N.Y., training camp. He says Berlin dropped it from the show — "Yip-Yip-Yaphank" — to avoid an overload of patriotic tunes.

"He didn't bring it out again until some 20 years later to give to Kate Smith to sing as storm clouds gathered again over Europe."

His singing voice is high, clear — just as ragtime singers sounded. He begins another tune.

"You remember that, my dear," a woman says to her companion.

"It's 'Muscle Shoal Blues,'" Kerr says. "Fats Waller recorded it in his first solo date for the ADK label. He was 18 years old the day he made that record."

There are unpublished Waller tunes — "Peaceful Stuff," "The Blues is Bad" — and little known Berlin songs — "Yiddische Eyes," "Daddy, Come Home."

It is Kerr's dialogue between numbers that makes his performance somewhat unique and that draws the jazz fans.

"Fats Waller wrote so many fine songs," Kerr tells his audience. "But he particularly liked one written by someone else, Sid Shapiro, and he went so far as to record it in 1942 — 'Winter Weather.'"

"Three years ago, I made a discovery of a song Berlin wrote in 1917, 'Mr. Jazz Himself,'" Kerr says. He plays and sings it. It is, he says, one of his favorites.

Murray Horowitz recalls being referred to Kerr at the time he was doing research for the Broadway hit musical "Ain't Misbehavin'." "He told me how to find a tune by Waller even the library of Congress didn't have."

Kerr says he has the advantage of an intense musical training, something many jazz musicians never got. He had private teachers as a boy in New Haven, Conn. He studied in New York under arranger-composer Sanford Gold and under Willie "The Lion" Smith. A kind of jazz prodigy, he was allowed to travel in Duke Ellington's entourage as an observer of the band on the road in the '60s.

He recalls learning three new tunes a week. But under

Gold, he says, "The whole idea was presentation. He said it was better to work 30 hours on one tune than learn a whole bunch of them."

Now, without sight, he still is able to expand his repertoire. He deals with a mail order record firm that catalogs a vast array of jazz albums.

Prize-Winning Pianist Has Recital Wednesday

Prize-winning pianist Bradford Gowen will perform in recital Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The performance, sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation, is part of the ECU School of Music's Festival 82-'83'. The recital will be open to the public at no charge.

In addition to his performance, Gowen will present a masterclass on Thursday from 9:30-11:30 a.m. in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

Interested persons may attend without charge.

Gowen's recital program will include the premiere performance of Joseph Ott's composition "Chrime II-A" for piano and tape. Other works to be performed are Henry Cowell's "Three Pieces," Samuel Alder's "Thy Song Expands My Spirit," Dan Welcher's "Dance Variations," Mel Powell's "Etude," "Sonatina" by Wendell Keeney and "Two Preludes" by Howard Brockway.

Bradford Gowen won first prize in the 1978 John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts-Rockefeller Foundation International Competition for Excellence in the Performance of American Music.

Gowen earned bachelor and master of music degrees at Eastman School and is now a published composer. He has performed at Lincoln Center's Alice Tully Hall and performed with the National Symphony Orchestra.

Gowen has taught at Lynchburg College, Sweet Briar College and Emporia State University. In 1981 he assumed the position of professor of music at the University of Maryland.

Olivia Adds Zest To Life In Nashville

By MARK SCHWED
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The goldfish swimming around in the sides of singer Olivia Newton-John's purse are fakes, probably plastic.
 When you're making $100,000 — "plus or minus $10,000" — a night, you can pretty much walk around with anything in your purse — except cash.
 Miss Newton-John has made her base of operations in a four-bedroom, three-story home in Belle Meade, where old-line Nashvillians reside, during her 50-stop "Physical Tour of North America."
 But she was not content to remain cooped up in the fashionable home between jetting to her concerts from rural Smyrna Airport.
 She went horseback riding at Larry Gatlin's farm and dined with singers Crystal Gayle and Lynn Anderson at an expensive Italian restaurant where there are even statues in the ladies room. It was there Miss Newton-John was spotted with her now-famous goldfish purse.
 After the food, she and Miss Anderson decided to kick up their heels at the Hall of Fame Motor Inn to the tunes of Jim Vest and the Nashville Cats.

 "They wanted to go honky-tonkin," said Jerry Bailey, a spokesman for her record company. "They were afraid Olivia was going to get up and sing 'Physical' with the Nashville Cats."
 It isn't every day that a star of her stature comes to town — even in Nashville. So the woman who was hired as a dog-sitter to watch Jackson, Miss Newton-John's 8-year-old Irish Setter, was thrilled. She was tipped $100 and taken home in a limousine the first night.
 "She had a fantastic time," Bailey said. "John Travolta called and wanted to talk with Olivia, so she got to chat with him a little bit."
 "When they first flipped me that bill my jaw fell to the floor. I said, 'No, that's not necessary,'" said dog sitter Joan Griffith, 22, a college grad who hopes to make the music business her career. "But they insisted."
 For three nights of dog sitting, she earned $230.
 "The home she leased had oriental rugs. The dog could have had an accident on the rug and they would have been responsible for it. It shows she respects her pet and the house," she said admiringly.

 Ms. Griffith was given permission to "raid the refrigerator" during her assignments.
 "I really didn't, though," she said. "She had lots of real fit kinds of foods — health foods, cut up fruits."
 Born in Cambridge, England, and raised in Melbourne, Australia, Miss Newton-John decided to forego college for a career in music. That probably didn't sit well with her grandfather, Nobel Prize winning German physicist Max Born, or her father, a college principal.
 She came to Nashville looking for success and in 1974 earned the first of three Grammys.
 During the next few years she sold 100 million records.
 First came "Grease" with Travolta, the biggest grossing musical film ever made. Then a world tour and another movie, "Xanadu."
 She's riding a new wave of success from her latest album, "Physical." The song of the same title sold more than 2 million copies and remained on the Billboard charts for 10 weeks, breaking records by Elvis Presley, The Beatles, and Barbra Streisand.
 She has been packing auditoriums at a time when other artists are having to cancel shows.
 "She makes $100,000 a concert, plus or minus $10,000," boasts Bailey.

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By MEREDITH FOLTZ

In 1981-82, there were 248,877 books checked out from Sheppard Memorial Library and its branches. Many people, however, were helped by information found in reference books which cannot be checked out.

Librarians assist patrons in the use of reference and other books within the library. Librarians also search for answers to questions asked in person or by telephone. If you need help finding answers to your questions, come to the library or call 752-4177. The staff will try to locate the information you need, refer you to a person or organization which might help you, or show you how to find the answer using library materials.

The following questions and answers highlight some of the reference books added to Sheppard Library's collection this year.

"The word 'prioritize' is not in my dictionary, and I need to be sure of its spelling." — "The Morrow Book of New Words" lists "prioritize" and other words and phrases which are new or have acquired new meanings in current usage. Spellings and definitions are given for 8,500 new or nonstandard terms such as safety net, COM, floppy disc, Theory Z and megabucks.

"What special resources should a Black person use when tracing a family tree?" — A number of different kinds of records are suggested in "Black Genesis." A chapter on North Carolina lists federal records, state and county records, church documents, personal papers and diaries which may prove useful.

"Does the library have information about free campgrounds in the mountains of North Carolina?" — Free and inexpensive campgrounds in every state are listed in "Free Campgrounds, U.S.A." Miscellaneous facts, state and national park usage, opportunities for wilderness and backcountry camping, and sources for more information are given for each state. The individual campgrounds are described in terms of location, season, facilities and available activities.

"What is the full classification (genus, species, etc.) for the African bushbuck?" — The listing of the bushbuck in "Mammals — Their Latin Names Explained," establishes its kingdom (animal) and class (mammalia). Further information in the book places the bushbuck in the Chordata phylum, Vertebrata subphylum, Artiodactyla order, Ruminantia suborder, Bovidae family, Tragelaphus genus and scriptus species.

The Tokyo String Quartet, above, will perform Monday at 8 p.m. in Hendrix Theater, Mendenhall Student Center, East Carolina University.

The ensemble won first prize in 1970 at the Coleman String Quartet Competition, a Young Concert Artists Award. The quartet also won first prize in the 1970 Chamber Music Competition in Munich.

The Tokyo String Quartet has toured North America, Europe and the Far East, usually including more than 100 concerts per season. The band has Grammy nominations for several of its recordings.

The program for the performance includes Mozart's Quartet in B-flat Major, K. 458; Shostakovich's Quartet No. 8, Op. 110, and Schubert's Quartet No. 14 in D Minor, Op. Posth.

Tickets are on sale at the Central Ticket Office, Mendenhall Student Center, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The ticket price is $7.50 for the general public. Tickets at the door will also be $7.50.

School Of Arts Changes

WINSTON-SALEM — The North Carolina School of the Arts will present "An Evening of Mime and Dance" with James Donlon and Tonia Shimin Friday and Saturday at Agnes de Mille Theater. Performances will be at 8:15 p.m.

Both performances are free but due to limited seating, reservations are required. For reservations call the NCSA Box Office, 784-7843.

Visual arts visiting artist Spalding Gray was previously scheduled to perform Oct. 18 at the Visual Arts Gallery. The performance will now be held at the drama department rehearsal studio behind Agnes de Mille Theater. Spalding will begin his performance at 7:30 p.m. The program is free of charge.

HORSING AROUND

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (AP) — Manual record-keeping of thoroughbred horse breeding has been replaced by a computerized record system at a Colorado ranch.

According MIS Week, a management information systems journal, the manual operation was too time-consuming and information was hard to find when needed at Moondrift Farms.

Files on the breeding, boarding and training of the horses must include birthdates, parents, medical histories, special show performance and sales prices, the publication said.

Kinston Set For Street-A-Fair

KINSTON — The Community Council for the Arts' second annual Street-A-Fair will be held next Sunday in downtown Kinston from 2-6 p.m.

Opening ceremonies for the festival will be conducted south of the intersection of Queen and Caswell streets beginning at 1:45 p.m. Dick Jones of WITN-TV will serve as master of ceremonies.

Musical entertainment will begin at 2 p.m. with Fort Bragg's 82nd Airborne Stage Band.

Dan Dionis and the Noteables will follow at 3 p.m. At 4 p.m., Blues Plus will perform and at 5 p.m.,

The Sour Mash Band.

Several activities will take place on the children's main stage at the intersection of McLewee and East Caswell streets. They include: at 2:30 p.m., Ronald McDonald and his McDonaldland friends; 3:30 p.m., Bill Robinson, a professional magician; 4:30 p.m., the Suzuki Violinists of Eastern North Carolina and at 5 p.m., Pursuit, a local rock band.

An additional feature this year, Children's Stage II, is located in the parking lot of Wachovia Bank on East Caswell Street. Activities held at Children's Stage II will include: 2:15 p.m., "Fantasy," a musical program for the deaf; 2:45 p.m., Jackie Howell's School of Dance; 3:15 p.m., Wilbur Howell and The Country Greens; 3:45 p.m., mime by Myron Carter and the Handbell Choir from First Baptist Church; 4:15 p.m., large "moppet-type" puppet show by Cann Memorial Presbyterian Church and 5:15 p.m., Lenoir County 4-H Club skit.

Other activities in the children's area include a workshop on basic singing by the deaf, a workshop and exhibit on snakes and mammals, face painting, street chalking, pet rocks, marble and spatter painting, spin art and block sculptur-ing.

Another stage located in Harvey's parking lot on West Caswell Street will feature: at 2:30 p.m., the Pepsi Dancers and the Jammers, national Frisbee throwing teams; at 3 p.m., the East Carolina University Gospel Ensemble, followed by the Kinston-Lenoir Community Band; at 4:30 p.m., the Neuse Kneeknockers, square dancers; and at 5 p.m., the Oasis Tapestry Dance Troupe, belly dancers.

In the Farmer's Market at the western end of Caswell Street, artists and craftsmen will demonstrate and sell their work throughout the afternoon.

Chicken Book Raises Hackles

DAVENPORT, Calif. (AP) — It seemed like a bird-brained idea to teach university students a course on chickens.

But historian Page Smith and biologist Charles Daniel, both veteran chicken raisers, were enthralled with the bird that the late President Herbert Hoover had promised would fill every pot.

When the pair put together a 10-week course that was taught at the University of California campus at Santa Cruz in 1972, feathers flew in the academic community. But the lasting result of their collaboration — "The Chicken Book" — has had chicken-lovers clucking since 1975.

That was the year that Little, Brown issued the tome in hardback. It was reissued this year in soft cover by North Point Press of Berkeley, Calif.

The 380-page volume will set you back $10 — but the load of chicken lore is priceless for those interested in the chicken's origin, its role in history, society, culture, biology and stew pots.

The book discusses pecking orders, cockfighting, medicinal properties of chickens, their feeding and care, mass production and relationship with American consumers.

One thing the authors do settle is the age-old controversy of which came first — the chicken or the egg. "Neither came first," they insist. "The chicken and the egg evolved together."

Some other tidbits:

— Some 4,000 years ago, Egyptians invented "incubators" capable of hatching as many as 10,000 chicks at a time. And both Egypt and ancient China mastered the technique of large-scale incubation.

— Chickens at night have poor eyesight and fall into a state close to hibernation. If it's necessary to catch one, "when she is drowsy and almost comatose, you may, with a little care, pluck her from her roost."

— Hens have a laying life of about three years, though a few may lay for six or seven. By that time, the hen is too old and tough to be a good roasting hen. But she will make an excellent soup, while her legs can be made into a tasty jelly base and her liver will be good.

When Smith hatched the idea for the university course, Daniel cautiously viewed it.

"Charles, why don't we teach a course about chickens?" Smith asked.

"I don't really know anything about chickens," Daniel answered.

"I wonder if that really makes any difference," mused Smith.

The course, said Smith, "aroused a lot of resistance and hostility (on campus). Somebody...reported to me that everywhere he went around campus, people were saying, 'Well, have you heard what Page Smith is doing?' Chickens were considered kind of ridiculous."

There may have been something impish or irreverent about the idea, Smith conceded. "I suppose we had a bit of a notion of scandalizing our colleagues, as well as doing something serious."

If the faculty members were brooding about the course, Daniel's science colleagues were aghast.

"The course was not called animal husbandry," said Daniel, who chairs the biology department. "It was not

Ancient Egyptian Found Statue

By TOM CAMPBELL
CHAUTAUQUA, N.Y. (UPI) — Allyson Shepard, an archaeology student working a summer job at the Chautauqua Institution, was more than a little surprised when she found a 3,200-year-old Egyptian statue.

Ms. Shepard, who works as a hostess at the famed cultural and learning institution located in New York's Southern Tier, didn't even have to go underground.

But the 20-year-old Fredonia native, a Bryn Mawr junior, recognized the statue as being an original rather than a plaster cast.

Experts said the statue, which she found packed in a crate, was from the Ramses II era of 1290-1224 B.C.

Officials at Chautauqua said the statue apparently was forgotten for more than 50 years after being packed away. It was collecting dust in a hospitality room.

"I was surprised to find it. You don't have Egyptian statues lying around Chautauqua," Ms. Shepard said. "It just got around to me and when I checked it out, I recognized it. It was real (black) granite and wasn't a plaster cast. I also recognized the hieroglyphics."

She said the statue represents "a man squatting with his arms around his knees, with the area enclosed by arms and legs as a solid block, which provides a large surface for the carving of hieroglyphic texts on the statue."

Ms. Shepard said the inscriptions on the statue indicate that its owner, Menepthah, was a royal courier, scribe, charioteer and high priest, who served King Ramses II.

Ms. Shepard said she discovered the 3½-foot tall, 1,100-pound statue during the summer of 1979 and later had it documented by officials at the Brooklyn Museum.

They told her the sculpture was found by famed British archeologist Sir Flinders Petrie during the mid-1880's in Egypt.

Excavating at Nebeseh, located in the marshy delta region of Egypt, Petrie discovered the statue in a badly damaged temple. It was the only sculpture found in the temple.

The Brooklyn museum told

Ms. Shepard, "The statue is an important document of Ramseside history and, if the face is preserved, a key piece in the development of Egyptian New Kingdom art."

The statue was given to the Chautauqua Institution in 1887 as a gift from the Egypt Exploration Fund in England. Ms. Shepard said. It was displayed in a museum on Chautauqua's grounds until 1930. Then it was crated when the museum was torn down.

It had gone unnoticed since then.

At the moment, it is uncertain what will be done with "Ralph," which Ms.

Shepard has nicknamed the statue "because it is easier to say than that it's from the Ramses II era."

"I expect the institution will donate it, although I believe they would like to sell it," she said. "The board of trustees will make a final decision on it."

WOOW Classics

Music for time, space and just for fun plus a few legitimate classics will be this week's music when Joseph White joins Karen Hause on Classics for Sunday.

Classics on Sunday is presented each Sunday evening from 8 p.m. until midnight on WOOW, 1340 on the radio dial, and on channel 9 of cable TV.

March 1846 Storm Washed Across Outer Banks, Cut Two New Inlets

By JOHN F. SANDERS
UNC Sea Grant
College Program

"We are informed upon reliable authority, that the destruction consequent upon the late gale in those counties and islands bordering on the coast from Cape Henry to Currituck Inlet, has been without precedent in the recollections of the oldest citizens of the state of Virginia and North Carolina."

The preceding account referred to a northeast in 1846 which caused remarkable destruction along the Outer Banks. Years after the storm Henry Snell of Knotts' Island recalled that "the news flies that the Atlantic was ... breaking on the island shores. I with others went down to the bay side. Such a sight had never been seen before. No marsh, no beach. The tops of a few mountainous sand hills were all that could be seen."

The March 1846 storm washed away all of the hogs, cattle and sheep from Knotts' Island. Near Corolla, sand ridges which had been as tall as 40 feet disappeared. Because the storm was the worst ever experienced by local residents, no one would have expected that within six months another storm of this intensity would strike. It would be a hurricane that would wreck ships, wash away buildings, crops and farm animals, and change the course of maritime history in North Carolina.

The origin of the September 1846 hurricane is obscure. North Carolina was the first state to feel the fury of the storm as it rolled out of the north Atlantic Ocean. It is possible that the center of this hurricane came near the Outer Banks and then curved back to sea.

One of the first to encounter the hurricane was a young naval officer on the U.S. brig "Washington," who reported that, "After a pleasant cruise about a month in the Gulf Stream, where she had been employed surveying, the U.S. brig 'Washington' ... stood in, on the 7th inst., for the Capes of Virginia. As the weather appeared threatening, the wind fresh and blowing on shore, great anxiety was felt to reach an anchorage."

It would be more than two weeks before the vessel would reach shore for that evening, "sea and current (forced the vessel) upon Cape Hatteras ... the gale, now increased in volume, howled ominously through the rigging, and already our little vessel swaggered under her canvas; the sky was obscured by flying masses of dark volumes to the sky, flashed with the ghostly phosphorescent light often observed in storms ... the barometer fell rapidly, and everything foretold a terrible strife of the elements."

During the night the small boats on the brig were swept overboard and the jib, topmast and staysail were lost. By 7 a.m. the next morning, the wind increased to hurricane force and "the brig lay over completely on her side; the water boiling over the lee rail." For hours the crew held to the rigging, but around noon "a heavy sea broke on board ... washing overboard nearly every soul. In a moment they were swept from our view; that moment showed them calm and composed, the determined spirit, which supported them on board seemed still to animate them. One noble fellow as he passed astern waved his hat in token of adieu, and the driving spray hid them forever from our sight."

On shore the hurricane changed the land and the lives of the people who lived with its path. C.O. Boutelle wrote that, "On the morning of the September gale the sound waters were all piled up to the southwest from the effects of the heavy northeast blow of the previous days. The weather was clear ... until about 11 a.m., when a sudden squall came from the southwest, and the waters came upon the beach with such fury that Mr. Midgett, within three-quarters of a mile from his house when the storm began, was unable to reach it until four in the afternoon. He sat upon his horse, on a small sand knoll, for five hours, and witnessed the destruction of his property, and (as he then supposed) of his family also, without the power to move a foot to their rescue, and, for two hours, expecting to be swept to sea himself."

The "Edenton Sentinel" described some of the remarkable changes that took place as the wind-driven water caused extensive damage to property: "Much damage has been done by the late storm to the shipping on the coast. Our bay presented quite a novel appearance; nearly all the water was blown out of it, except immediately in the channel. The water in Perquimans River, near Hertford, fell seven feet, which was, as a gentleman living in that vicinity informed us, four feet lower than he had ever known it before. At Nag's Head the tide rose about nine feet higher than the common tide, and destroyed the warehouse of Mr. Russell, proprietor of the hotel, together with nearly all the stores which it contained, carrying it down the beach about half a mile, swept away the market house; the house belonging to Dr. Wright was blown from its blocks; and nearly all the trees on the hill were destroyed. Several families were compelled, for safety, to leave their houses and seek shelter in the hotel. All the boats belonging to this place were carried off, depriving them of the means of fishing for a time. Persons living some four mile below Nag's Head, on the sea beach, found it necessary to flee from the garrets of their houses; to save themselves from drowning. They lost all they had to survive on — their clothing was all destroyed, and also their cooking utensils."

At Hatteras, all but six houses were destroyed and at Ocracoke 18 ships were driven ashore or out to sea. Some, as the schooner Charles Slover, were bound for ports with their holds full of naval stores and lumber, while others, like the schooner Paragon, were filled with farm goods.

At that time, Ocracoke Inlet was the principal avenue for the shipment of goods from the area of Pamlico and Albemarle sounds. But with the hurricane of 1846, two new entrances were established. The creation of one of the new inlets was observed by C.O. Boutelle of the U.S. Coast Survey.

When the winds shifted from northeast to southwest, he said, "The force of water coming in so suddenly ... broke through ... the sea beach ... and created the inlets. They were insignificant at first — not more than 20 feet wide — and the northern one much the deepest and widest. In the westerly winds which prevailed in September, the current from the sound gradually widened them."

Both inlets are of major economic importance today. Commercial and recreational vessels pass through them to the rich fishing grounds along the coast and the nearby Gulf Stream. A major bridge now spans one inlet, providing quick access to the Pea Island National Wildlife Refuge and the Cape Hatteras National Seashore. Ferries shuttle across the other, carrying goods and people to and from Ocracoke Island.

Their names are widely known and in the past 136 years, many have become

4 WAYS TO SAY "CHARGE IT"

Meadowbrook, Greenville's Least Known Park

The ambience is much like that of an English country park, with random groupings of old and young trees, an occasional overgrown flowering shrub, and winding footpaths that curve beneath trees and into open, grassy areas.

This is Greenville's Meadowbrook Park, an irregularly shaped 31.1 acre park bordered by Moore and Melody Streets.

Several years ago, under the provisions of a federal community redevelopment project, the city purchased the land from homeowners and demolished the 46 structures on the land, mostly single family dwellings. The former presence of homes accounts for crepe myrtle and various shrubs that have now grown to small tree size.

In one corner of the park, an all-purpose shelter has been constructed. Here, a group of community men and boys often gather to practice karate. For children, it's a haven on rainy days. Nearby is a sandy playground with slides and swings.

A substantial portion of the Meadowbrook Park lies in the flood plains or in the flood plains fringe and will remain untouched.

Plans have recently been approved to let bids for turning Meadowbrook Park into a multi-purpose type community park. Bids will be let for construction of a softball field, along with a parking lot, rest rooms and a concession building. "These will be in the higher area of park land near Moore Street," said Boyd Lee, executive director of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department.

With the cool days of early autumn at hand, Meadowbrook Park is now a lovely place for those who enjoy taking walks in a gentle landscape of trees, grassy plots and an array of autumn wildflowers.

Vacation Time-Sharing Escalating In The South

By WILLIAM STRACENER
United Press International
Vacation time-sharing plans, once viewed skeptically because of fraudulent deals and hard-sell tactics used by some salesmen, are taking hold in the South at a time when other housing ventures are in economic straits.

"Real estate is down all over the country, but time sharing figures are up," said Bryan Stafford of Orlando, Fla., one of the nation's foremost authorities on the subject. "Just about everybody is getting into time-sharing nowadays — hotels, motels and all kinds of developers."

Time-sharing, born from the resort-oriented lifestyle that evolved in the 1970s, has become an alternative for middle-income families who cannot afford to own a plush vacation home.

The concept usually involves the purchase or lease of a furnished condominium for a week or more at a fixed rate for a specified period of years, usually 15 to 99 years. Most time-sharing ventures are members of an association that allows purchasers to swap their weeks at another resort.

The National Time Sharing Council said the number of resorts offering time-sharing has grown from only eight in 1973 to about 825 this year. Sales have risen 30-fold from $50 million in 1975 to an estimated $1.5 billion this year with some 700,000 families holding time shares.
The average age of a buyer is 45, and his median income is $33,500 to $37,500. Some 90 percent of the purchasers are married and 70 percent have children. The cost of an average time-share has ballooned from $4,100 a week in 1978 to $6,051 last year.

Jerry Sikes, director of hospitality management for TRECO Property Services of Jacksonville, Fla., said time-sharing is made to appeal to the middle-income family group.
"They have the wherewithal to vacation consistently, but they can't hold condos for years," he said.

Among Southern states, Florida and South Carolina are among the six leaders in time-share ventures.

"I think they are doing well," said South Carolina state Rep. Charles E. Hodges, a part-owner of three beachfront time-sharing projects. "It seems when the economy is down and people can't buy their own place, they can buy the number of weeks they want. They can freeze the cost of their vacation in today's market."

Time-share salesman Bud McNeil of New Albany, Miss., president of the Mississippi Organization of Realty Exchangers and Vacation Lifestyles for Creative Living Inc., said interest rates are a major factor.
"People would rather have a week or two in a large resort area than buy a whole condominium," he said.

The interest gets "pretty heavy" on a condominium selling for $80,000 to $300,000, "but you can buy four or five weeks a year for as little as $12,000," McNeil said. "The good part about it is a person can get in for $500 down and pay as little as $100 a month."

The bait to attract buyers frequently is the promise of a free gift or weekend at the resort.

"They promise you a 35mm camera or a Laz-Z-Boy recliner, but you show up and you get a $10 throw-away camera that can be used once and a canvas chair worth about $12," said Stafford, who heads the Florida Real Estate Commission. "They should not be allowed to do these kinds of things."

Complaints about misleading advertising high-pressure sales tactics have hurt the industry and prompted legislative action in some states. After South Carolina passed its law, which was drafted in part by Hodges before he joined a time-sharing venture, the number of complaints sent to the state's consumer affairs agency dropped drastically.

The Florida Legislature passed a time-sharing law in June 1981 that applies to ventures with more than seven units. It regulates realtors dealing in time-sharing and outlines required disclosures in contracts. It also permits purchasers to back out of the deal within 10 days after a contract is signed.

By contrast, North Carolina, which has no law, has seen complaints more than quadruple from 31 in 1980 to 146 last year and 87 in the first half of 1982.

Some states, like South Carolina, have laws allowing buyers to cancel the sale within a certain number of days.

"A lot of people allege high pressure sales tactics," said Darlene Buckman, a spokeswoman for the North Carolina attorney general's office. "Some people are also led to believe they have several days in which to cancel the contract, which in North Carolina, they don't."

Some purchasers have been big losers, however. In 1978 some 109 couples purchased time-shares for a planned oceanfront resort at Myrtle Beach, S.C., that was never built, and people like the Bernard Atkinsons of Columbus, Ohio, lost $4,800 they had invested in a two-week time-share. The project's Tennessee developers, John Mitchell Jr. and Harry Morgan, were convicted of mail fraud last year.

Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., chairman of the House Select Committee on Aging who held hearings on the time-sharing situation earlier this year, said millions of dollars are being lost annually, often by the elderly, in the time-sharing industry. Witnesses at the hearings reported substantial losses in fraudulent time-sharing schemes and complained about direct mail campaigns and offers of prizes such as television sets to lure potential buyers.

Many of those in the time-sharing industry are former hotel executives or real estate developers who are trying to jump into a fast-growing and potentially lucrative business at the outset.

Industry officials estimate profits range from 15 to 30 percent. The industry arrives at the cost of a one-week time-share by tripling the wholesale price of a unit before dividing it by 50. Two weeks generally are reserved for maintenance, which usually involves an annual fee each purchaser pays.

The effect of time-sharing on the travel and tourism industries has been hard to measure in some areas, but experts view the competition as stiff.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Despite problems that arise, you have the resourcefulness and ingenuity now to turn whatever is of an adverse nature to your benefit. Delve into matters that require skill.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine ideas but don't put any in motion until more study is made. Avoid one who could be a deterrent to your best interests.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Seek professional help to improve your appearance. Make practical plans for the future. Sidestep one who could be troublesome.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go to right sources for data you need. Make sure business deals are handled well. Show others that you have a sense of humor.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Start the new week on right note by contacting friends who can help you become more successful. Be sensible.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be accurate in statements made to officials today and keep out of trouble. Make this a most productive day.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have better ways of opening up paths to greater achievement now. Listen to the ideas of those of high principles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Studying every phase of business affairs is important today. Use diplomacy with loved one and come to better accord.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Find the best way to gain personal aims with the aid of an associate. Think along more constructive lines. Be clever.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Contact a close tie who can help you in a new project. Be tactful with loved one over some point of disagreement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan time to obtain answers to a complex problem you have. Don't neglect important bills that have to be paid.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take no chances where your credit is concerned at this time. Being more objective in your thinking brings fine results.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) As the week begins you are bound and determined to find ways to add to present income. Follow through without delay.

Elderly Patients' Body Language Can Aid Doctor

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Elderly patients suffering from senile dementia often cannot speak coherently. But they can communicate in an ancient body language, according to an expert in psychiatric diseases of the elderly.

An understanding of this language by health professionals may be the key to preventing further deterioration of a patient's condition or even helping him regain speech, said Dr. Wilhelm Muller, chairman of gerontopsychiatry at a psychiatric hospital in Wiesloch, West Germany.

"Man is essentially a social being," Muller told a class of Vanderbilt University students during a recent lecture on nonverbal communication. "His need for effective social dialogue is primordial and seems to be genetically fixed."

"He doesn't get rid of this need" even if the main tool of communication — speech — is destroyed, Muller said.

"If an effective means of communication isn't established soon, the patient will be strengthened in his isolation" and he will regress further, the psychiatrist said.

Muller, a neurologist by training who recently became interested in improving doctor-patient communication, said the reflexive grasping and snapping of the hands by senile patients and the grimacing and pursing of the lips are similar to the "body language" of apes such as chimpanzees and macaques.

This does not mean patients with senile dementia have lost their humanity, Muller said. Rather, their "language" is an inheritance from prehuman times that is not lost as easily as the spoken word, he said.

Most people use hand and facial gestures to emphasize a point when they are speaking in an unfamiliar language, Muller said.

When speech is lost, these gestures become all the more important.

"When all verbal language is broken down, I use nonverbal communication because this gives the patients the feeling of being understood," Muller said. Simply touching the patient often can convey the message that "you are not alone," he said.

Simple, repeated commands and even singing can help some patients recover their ability to speak intelligibly, he said. "Even if you can't improve his condition, you can satisfy his need to communicate," Muller said. The patient may not understand what is being said "but he has the feeling he can understand. And that's enough."

Muller said proficiency in body language is becoming increasingly important, particularly as scientists come close to discovering and treating the physical causes of dementia.

Recent animal studies suggest dementia may be prompted by a "slow" virus that causes the disease several years after infecting the body, he said.

"There is some genetic factor, perhaps a genetic disposition to viral infection" that may make some people more susceptible to developing dementia than others, Muller said.

"While these findings suggest that doctors one day may be able to treat the cause of dementia, patients will not improve unless their brains are 'retrained,' similar to the physical and language therapy required by stroke patients, he said.

Fireflies Have Spot In Health

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — It behooves the fireflies of Burlington to keep a low profile. Fireflies here have a price on their heads.

In most other parts of the world, fireflies, also known as lightning bugs, luminesce with impunity. Coming out in the early evening, they flash on and off, eating a few aphids now and then and doing whatever it is fireflies do. The worst that can happen is to be captured briefly in the sweaty palm of a small child.

Not so in Alamance County. Carolina Biological Supply Co. pays 2 cents apiece for the bugs and plans to buy about 30,000 this year. It's the tail section of the bugs the company wants.

The firefly tails contain a substance called luciferase, a complex enzyme that cannot be made synthetically. It is used by doctors to help screen for urinary infections, evaluate blood cells, test antibiotics and explore the workings of cancerous tumors.

"When people bring the fireflies in here, we count them, we chloroform them and cut off their tails," said Harry Stone, head of the company's chemistry department.

Then the tails are freeze-dried.

The company uses the tails — properly known as lanterns — in two ways. Most of them end up in prepackaged laboratory test kits, for use in college and advanced high school chemistry classes. The rest are used in research.

Stone says luciferase is used to test for the presence of adenosine triphosphate, also known as ATP, the universal energy currency of all organisms.

"If you want to determine the presence of ATP in a tissue sample, you can mix it with the ground-up firefly lanterns and it will light up," Stone said. "The measure of the amount of light given off is an indication of the amount of ATP present."

Stone said suppliers will turn in as many as 600 fireflies at a time.

Techniques vary in catching fireflies, he said. One plan involves removing the bottom from a plastic milk jug and placing a plastic bag around the jug's mouth. The jugs are used to scoop the bugs out of the air.

Q.—Every now and then, in either your quiz or your column, you use the term "working cards." What do you mean by the term, and how can I tell whether my cards are "working," or are simply in league with the 10 percent of Americans who are currently unemployed?—J. Stern, Bronx, N.Y.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)
A.—Some cards always pull their full weight. The four aces are obvious examples. Except in the unlikely event that partner is void in the suit in which you hold an ace, that card is worth a sure trick.

Such is not always the case with kings, queens and jacks. Sometimes a key queen of jack could be the equivalent of an ace; at other times it might be worthless. Some illustrations should suffice to help you judge when your high cards are worth their full value and when not. For example, suppose that your left-hand opponent opens the bidding with one heart and partner makes a takeout double. Which of the two hands below would you rather have, and why?

- a) ♠xxxx b) ♠Qxxxx
 ♥QJx ♥xxx
 ♦Kxx ♦KJx
 ♣xx ♣xx

Both hands are worth 7 points, counting distribution. Yet, you would much rather have hand b). Why? Your 3 points in hearts in hand a) could be completely wasted, since partner has announced shortness in hearts. In hand b), however, those 3 points—queen of spades and jack of diamonds—might be worth two tricks or even more, since they are more likely to mesh with honor cards in partner's hand.

Here's another example, and if you get this right, you are well on your way to increasing your winnings. Suppose that partner opens the bidding with one spade. Which of the two hands below would you rather have?

- a) ♠Kxx b) ♠xxx
 ♥AJxx ♥AJxx
 ♦xxx ♦xxx
 ♣xxx ♣Kxx

This time you would rather have hand a). Since partner opened one spade, you can presume that your king of spades is "working." The value of this card is greatly increased because it solidifies partner's holding. As against that, the king of clubs in hand b) might not take a trick, in which case it would be 3 points wasted.

Q.—We continue to receive a number of questions about holding honors in a suit. We have lumped them all together and given a composite answer which, we hope, will settle all your doubts.

A.—If four or five honors are held in any one suit and that suit is trumps, or if four aces are in one hand and the contract is some number of no trump, the side holding the honors gets the bonus regardless of whether the honors are in declarer's hand, dummy, or with one of the defenders. They get the honor bonus regardless of whether the contract is made or defeated. The sole criterion is possession.

ARTHRITIS CAN AFFECT ALL

ATLANTA (AP)—Everyone, if he or she lives long enough, will have at least a touch of osteoarthritis, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

Most often associated with old age, osteoarthritis is a degenerative joint disease and the most common of the over 100 forms of arthritis. Usually it is mild and occurs in the weight-bearing joints such as the knees and hips and in the hands.

"People develop osteoarthritis because their joints wear out, either from an injury or simply from the normal process of aging," says Dr. Frederic C. McDuffie of the foundation. "The question we're trying to answer is why, under similar circumstances, some people develop osteoarthritis earlier and more severely than others and why some go through life with almost no trouble at all."

American Cities Will Highlight Scandinavia

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Contemporary Scandinavian culture will be in the limelight in a number of American cities over the next 12 months or so.

"Scandinavia Today" is the sixth and last in a series developed by the National Endowment for the Humanities. The programs, which began in 1977, have included in-depth looks at Canada, Mexico, Japan, Belgium and Egypt — all aimed at enriching American cultural life by educating us about other nations.

Scandinavian design is one of the region's greatest contemporary contributions to the rest of the world and many of the events will focus on the arts, crafts and industrial design of Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Norway and Sweden.

Two exhibitions which do just that recently opened in New York on the same day. Both will travel to other cities later on. At Cooper-Hewitt Museum, the Smithsonian's National Museum of Design, a collection of more than 300 Scandinavian masterworks created between 1880 and today was unveiled.

The same day at Cooper Union (an institution of higher education which has no relation to Cooper-Hewitt) an exhibit of Danish industrial design opened.

Both displays showed how much the contemporary American home furnishings industry owes Scandinavia. Products developed in the early 1920s are still being sold here and ideas from the same era continue to inspire American designers.

According to David McFadden, curator for the Cooper-Hewitt show, "Scandinavian Design Now," his hardest task was choosing what to include. "In every period, there were at least 50 additional objects I wanted to show but had no room for," he said.

Many of the attitudes now surfacing as new in the United States had their counterparts in Scandinavia long ago, he added. For example, nowadays there is a revival of interest in traditional American furnishings. A similar desire engulfed the Scandinavians in the latter part of the 19th and the early 20th centuries.

Today, many Americans believe industry has a responsibility to meet the real needs of the society that supports it by creating items of functional design, moderate price and beauty. This attitude was put forth (and accepted by Scandinavian industry) as early as 1919.

Although there are differences from one

Scandinavian country to another, Scandinavian design taken as a whole stands for "a quality of health, unpretentiousness and practicality that I would call humanism. It differs from fashion in its stress on the integrity of the material, which provides a sense of permanence," said McFadden.

The key relationship between function and the shape and structure of an item was illustrated at the Cooper Union exhibition of Danish products — "Design: The Problem Comes First."

Instead of just showing a series of finished products, the exhibit explores the idea behind the product and the creative process which led to its development.

An example illustrates the theme: reasoning that the attic has potentially the best view and light and could be the most attractive space in the house if light and air were admitted, V. Kann Rasmussen & Co.'s designers set out to find an economical way to provide this light and air.

The resulting Velux window is installed flush with the roof, fitting economically between the rafters. Hardware to open the window is installed at the top instead of the bottom — making it possible to place the window low to the attic floor and provide a better view.

Safety and cleaning considerations were also taken into account in the design. The window pivots open 180 degrees, permitting both interior and exterior surfaces to be cleaned from inside the house. A bolt makes it possible to lock the window in place when it is slightly open to provide both security and ventilation.

Finally, window shades, blinds, awnings and a remote control system for their use have been added as options. The window — though designed in 1942 — is still being marketed.

After it leaves Cooper Union, the Danish design exhibit will be at Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry Oct. 20 through Jan. 6, 1983. Then it moves to Washington and the American Institute of Architects in June.

The Scandinavian show will be on view at Cooper-Hewitt through Jan. 2, 1983. Then it moves to the Museum of Art in St. Paul from Feb. 27 to April 24 and to the Smithsonian in Washington from July 8 to Oct. 10.

Other cities where major Scandinavian exhibits, theatrical and musical performances and symposiums will take place include Minneapolis, Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., and Los Angeles.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE garden clinic

Q Could you offer some tips on buying bulbs this fall?
K.L., Greenville

A Buy early. You get the "pick of the litter" this way. Select bulbs that are firm. Small nicks and loose skins (tunics) do not affect the development of the bulb. In fact, loose tunics aid in looking for harmful diseases.

Q The family reunion last August seemed to be one for yellow jackets and hornets as well. They landed in our drinks and on our plates, even while we were eating. What can I do to make this year's reunion more bearable?
G.D., Cleveland

A About the only thing you can do is eat indoors. The wasp, yellow jacket and hornet populations are at a peak in August. They are searching for sweets, such as watermelon, soft drinks, tea and fruit salads, and meat, such as hot dogs and hamburgers, for their larvae. Your outdoor feast is too good for them to pass by. Fumigating your yard beforehand would not be effective, neither will seeking and destroying nearby nests, because wasps, hornets and yellow jackets will fly several miles searching for food.

Q I am growing acorn squash for the first time. How can I tell when it's ready to harvest?

A Acorn squash is ready when the skin is too tough for the fingernail to scratch and the fruit changes from a shiny dark color to a dull dark color. If you wait until the fruit turns orange you've waited too late. Acorn squash do not store very well. You should try to use them as soon as possible after they're mature.

Q Last fall the leaves of my turnips turned a shiny bronze. There were dark areas inside some of the roots. What happened?
C.U., Ellerbe

A Boron deficiency is a common occurrence in fall grown vegetables like turnips, broccoli, cauliflower and leafy greens. The foliage of turnips and other leafy greens may turn bronze or deep yellow. In turnips a characteristic dark flecking or clouded area can often be seen inside the root. The deficiency causes a breakdown of the pith in the stems, and in severe cases, the inside of the stem will be dark brown or black. To remedy boron deficiency, mix two tablespoons of borax "20 Mule Team" with a small quantity (3 to 4 cups) fertilizer and apply to 100 feet of row. Borateam can be used but at one-half the rate of borax. Either borated fertilizer can be mixed with the soil at planting or later as a side-dressing.

Market Believed Ready For Home Electronic Info

NEW YORK (AP) — A two-year experiment by The Associated Press and 11 of its member newspapers has shown there is a substantial potential market for electronic home information services, according to a study released last week.

The study also shows, however, that the market is still a highly specialized one and says more work must be done to improve the delivery and marketing of the information and to make it easier to use.

The report, by RMH Research Inc. of Fair Lawn, N.J., looked at several aspects of an experiment started in July 1980 by the AP in conjunction with CompuServe, a Columbus, Ohio, company which provides information on a variety of subjects to subscribers via home computers.

Among the key findings:

- About one out of six of all consumers nationwide are serious and current prospects for a service like CompuServe.
- The potential market is greatest among young males in the high income group with above-average experience with computers, often as a result of their jobs.
- The test was designed, in part, to explore the potential for the electronic delivery of newspapers to the home and the impact such delivery would have on conventional readership habits. It found that in current form, services like CompuServe do not seem to affect readership of newspapers. Nor do they affect radio usage. The services do, however, cause a decrease in television viewing. (As currently designed, CompuServe requires the simultaneous use of a computer terminal, a television screen for viewing and a

Energy Efficient Classic Styling

By Jerry Bishop

With today's trend in back to basics, there is now a design that combines the latest in energy saving features with the beauty and charm of early Americana.

A 2-story traditional styled home designed for a growing family. This home displays the classic look of country living combined with passive solar energy saving extras. A split landing stairway leads to the 3 large bedrooms and 2 full baths on the upper level which also features the conveniently located laundry room. The master suite occupies the entire east wing of the upper level and shows a large walk-in closet and a private bath. Over the garage is a large storage area which could easily be converted to a game room. The main level features a combined dining and living area with a large fireplace as the focal point.

Open spaces are accented with a breakfast bar separating the kitchen from the dining area. Also on this level is a bath, pantry and lots of storage space.

An air-lock entry in front and back adds to the energy saving design. Walls have R-23 insulation, the second floor ceiling has R-36 insulation. In the St. Louis climate, 61% of the heating requirement is furnished by the passive solar system.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The screwdriver is at, one and the same time the most used and abused tool in the house.

It is most used simply because it is needed for that most necessary of all household do-it-yourself tasks — driving and loosening screws. It is most abused because it is so handy for prying, chiseling, punching, stirring and dozens of other functions for which it was not designed.

Eliminate the prying, and you automatically lengthen the screwdriver's life, not for a month or two but for many, many years. If you keep an old screwdriver for misuse alone, as some persons do, you chance the possibility of an accident, always a calculated risk when a tool is not being used for its original purpose.

Even when a screwdriver is being used to drive and loosen screws, it is often abused. That's because most home owners have a limited number of screwdrivers around the house and, when one is needed, use the one workshop should include several screwdrivers: at least two sizes of the regular standard screwdriver and one medium-sized Phillips, which is used for screws with crossed, recessed slots. Actually, three sizes of the conventional screwdriver — small, medium and large — and two of the Phillips — small and medium — are much better. Other types of special screwdrivers include ratchet offsets, spirals, push-pulls, bits for braces, drivers for electric drills and those that hold the tips inside the screw slots until the screws take hold.

Nobody ever thinks there is a right way to handle a screwdriver because it seems like such a simple tool able to be used almost naturally without any instructions. But the proper way, assuming you are right-handed, is to hold the screwdriver in the palm of your right hand, with the thumb and forefinger near the ferrule, the ring or cap used to strengthen the handle. Steady the blade with your left hand and turn with the right carefully until the screw has taken hold. When it has — and you are sure the screw is straight — remove your left hand and continue the operation.

When using a screw in hardwood, always make a pilot hole. The same thing is true when the screw is near the edge of a board. Sometimes, as in softwood, this hole can be made with an awl, but only if the screw is small.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — About 10 years ago I made a kitchen table and covered the top with laminated plastic, the kind used on countertops around the sink. Recently the strips of laminated plastic I used as edging for the top have started to come loose. I recall using contact cement to hold them in place. Can I apply contact cement again or should I replace the strips with new ones?

A — If the laminated plastic edging strips are still in good condition, there is no reason why they can't be used again. Be sure to scrape off the old cement before applying the new. If the strips are in bad shape and you do not want to replace them with the same kind, you can substitute hardwood edging that comes in rolls or half-round moulding, both of which can be glued in place, although tiny nails also can be used in the moulding if desired.

Q — There is a cedar closet in the house we inherited a couple of years ago. My son recently called my attention to the fact the closet has no smell of cedar, which he says is necessary if the closet is to keep away moth larvae. I never noticed, but he said the closet had a slight cedar odor when we moved in. What kind of finish should I put on the closet to restore the odor? As far as I can see, the closet is airtight, which I have been told is important in a closet of this type.

A — Your son is correct about the scent of cedar. You are correct about keeping the cedar odor inside the closet by making certain it is reasonably airtight. If the wood is real cedar, its odor can be restored simply by sanding well. This will open the pores and start the scent moving again. Do not apply any finish.

Q — I simply do not understand the reasoning behind placing insulation in the floor of an attic. Doesn't that merely prevent the heat downstairs from going through the attic floor and warming whatever living quarters there are in the attic?

A — Insulation originally was placed between the joists to stop the downstairs heat from escaping upstairs and heating an attic where nobody lived. If the attic is finished off into rooms in areas of the country where heat is necessary, a different viewpoint comes into play. What difference does it make if downstairs heat cannot move upstairs to keep the people there comfortable? The attic should have its own source of heat. Besides, heat kept downstairs is useful there, which is as it should be. It is far more important, once living quarters are planned there, to install insulation behind the new rooms. If you plan to finish the attic into rooms, the places that should be insulated are between the studs of the walls, up between the rafters where they meet the collar beams and between the collar beams. To put it another way, insulate the knee walls, the sloping walls and the ceiling of the framework.

All Savers: Time Of Decision

By CHRISTOPHER LINDSAY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Its supporters were predicting a year ago that upwards of $250 billion would be attracted to the new All Savers Certificate, $50 billion in the first month.

In fact, only the latter materialized. It wasn't the only goal the tax-free All Saver did not meet.

The new savings certificate was created as an experiment by Congress to give banks and thrift institutions a competitive offering against the booming money-market mutual funds. But thrift officials say about three-fourths of the money that went into All Savers came from already existing accounts.

And an indirect benefactor was supposed to be the depressed housing industry, in which the various institutions were required to invest the All Savers deposits. But banking officials concede the program did little if anything to boost mortgage lending, primarily because there was little demand for mortgages with rates hovering around all-time highs.

The first of the All Savers are maturing, and unless extended by Congress, which is considered unlikely, the program will expire Dec. 31.

About $50 billion has gone into the one-year savings certificates with their tax-exempt feature, much of it in the first month when the interest yields were at their highest. A survey of depositors by the U.S. League of Savings Institutions earlier this year indicated All Savers may end up attracting about $71 billion by the end of this year.

All Savers hit the market Oct. 1, 1981, paying 12.61 percent interest and offering tax-free interest of up to $1,000 for an individual or twice that for a couple.

At the outset, the interest combined with the tax break provided a couple in the $20,000-$30,000 income bracket with a net return of about 17 percent, about what money market funds were paying at the time.

The yield of money funds is now in the 9-10 percent range and newly purchased All Savers are paying 8.15 percent.

The interest on new All Savers is computed monthly at a rate of 70 percent of the monthly one-year Treasury bill rate, and the interest rate kept declining in the last year, as did public interest in the All Savers as an investment.

But for those who never bothered, All Savers "are still the best game in town," contends Arthur Bassin, vice president for marketing at New York's Citibank.

Where the money from the maturing certificates will go is anyone's guess. "I'd be surprised if people turn this money into cash and go buy things," says Bassin.

Citibank and others have a variety of options for consumers, he says, depending on how long they want to tie their funds up and how protected they wish to be from changing interest rates.

Some savings and loan associations have set goals for the amount of money in the certificates they want to hold onto, and some are even talking about getting more by offering better services.

Government figures in August showed that of the estimated $49.7 billion in All Savers, the distribution was:

- $21 billion at commercial banks.
- $20.6 billion at S&Ls.
- $5.2 billion at mutual savings banks.
- $2.9 billion at credit unions.

James Christian, chief economist for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, says he does not expect "a bloodbath by any means" in the amount of money leaving savings and loans when the certificates mature. He predicts the industry may lose $2 billion of the newly maturing certificates.

Arthur Mikesell, a spokesman for the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, says the trade group's members are encouraging customers to "roll over" their mature All Savers into other forms of deposits where they bought them.

"We don't anticipate any problems," he says, although he acknowledges that Wall Street has its eyes on potential new customers.

Brokerage houses offer All Savers in collaboration with specific banks and S&Ls.

"A word of warning," states a brochure from the investment house Bache Halsey Stuart Shields, "if you bought your All Savers through a bank, savings & loan or credit union, don't let them make the reinvestment decision for you!"

Bache warns that such institutions may roll the money over into a new All Saver "even if you no longer qualify for the tax exemption." Others, it suggests, will merely provide the money into a low-interest passbook savings account.

"They'll stick it in a 5 1/4 percent account," says Andrew Freund, first vice president for financial services at Bache. "There's a distinct possibility they will do that."

He says Bache, which sold $34 million in the first days of the All Savers, has told its account executives to contact all their customers about new investment opportunities for expired All Savers.

Most brokerages that offered the certificate are promoting various packages of municipal bonds, assuming they will appeal to the All Saver customer's interest in safety and freedom from taxes.

U.S. Hispanic Population Rises

United Press International Excluding illegal aliens and the 3.5 million Puerto Ricans who reside on the island, there is a consensus among academics that Hispanics living in the United States today number around 20 million.

Anywhere from three to 10 million more are undocumented aliens, according to official and academic guesses.

Even the 1980 census, in which large numbers are believed to have gone uncounted, recorded 14.6 million Americans who classed themselves as Hispanic in origin, about 6.4 percent of the total population.

The United States Hispanic Chamber of Commerce predicts that the Hispanic community will double to 41 million by the year 2000, becoming the nation's largest minority, displacing blacks who were estimated at 26 million in 1982.

The projected doubling is attributed to continued immigration and a higher birth rate: 114.1 per 1,000 for Mexican-Americans, compared with 60.5 per 1,000 for white non-Hispanics.

In 1980, California had 4.5 million Hispanics with 2 million in Los Angeles County; Texas, 3 million; New York, 1.4 million; Florida, 850,000; New Mexico, 480,000; Arizona, 441,000; Illinois, mostly Chicago, 425,000; and Colorado 339,000.

California, Texas and New York accounted for three-fifths of the total. Some 25 cities across the nation had more than 50,000 Latinos each, ranging from Long Beach, Calif., with 50,700 and Newark, N.J., with 61,254, and including Philadelphia, 63,570; and Fresno, Calif., 51,489.

About 60 percent of the Hispanics resident in the United States were of Mexican descent in 1980; other percentages were Puerto Rican, 18; Cuban, 8; and all others, 14.

Coincidentally, a roughly similar pattern held for Chicago's Latin population. Cubans dominated in Florida; Puerto Ricans in New York; and Mexicans elsewhere.

Census data showed that 41 percent of the registered Hispanics voted in the 1980 Presidential election, compared with fewer than 25 percent in the 1978 Congressional elections.

In 1980, some 51 percent of Latinos counted were under 17.

A March, 1979, study by the Bureau of the Census showed that the median income of Hispanic families was $12,600, substantially lower than that of non-Hispanic families, $17,900.

Families of Puerto Rican origin had lower median family incomes at $8,300 than any other Hispanic group, comparing with Mexican, $12,800; Cuban, $15,300; and others, $12,300.

The average Hispanic family consisted of 3.85 persons, compared with 3.28 for non-Hispanic Americans. Families of Mexican descent were the largest at 4.07. Puerto Rican families averaged 3.67 persons; and all others, 3.37.

About one of five Hispanic families was maintained by women with no husband present; but about 40 percent of all Puerto Rican families were maintained by women, compared with 15 percent for Mexican and 17 for other Hispanic families.

The proportion of Puerto

Rican families reporting that no one in the family had worked at all in 1978 was 34 percent, compared with 13 percent for non-Hispanics, 12 percent for other Hispanics; and 9 percent for families of Mexican descent.

Son's Business Involves His Father

Rock Hudson returns to television as former CIA agent Brian Devlin, with Jack Scalia as his son, in "The Devlin Connection," a mystery series airing Saturdays, (10-11 p.m.) on NBC.

Devlin, director of a Los Angeles culture center, is wealthy, sophisticated and lives in style, a mode acquired before he sold his swank detective agency for millions.

Unexpectedly, a long-lost son, Nick Corsello, a fledgling private investigator, arrives from New York.

The young man, who hopes to take advantage of his father's connections, is street-wise, casually dressed and a total contrast to his father — "the big guy."

Devlin, despite his reluctance to become involved in detective work again, soon finds himself helping Nick, and their relationship becomes one of indifference on the surface, but with a warmth beneath.

Film historians have termed Rock Hudson "the last major star to emerge from the Hollywood studio system" and with this new series, historians have another footnote to mark — "The Devlin Connection" is Hudson's first weekly television series.

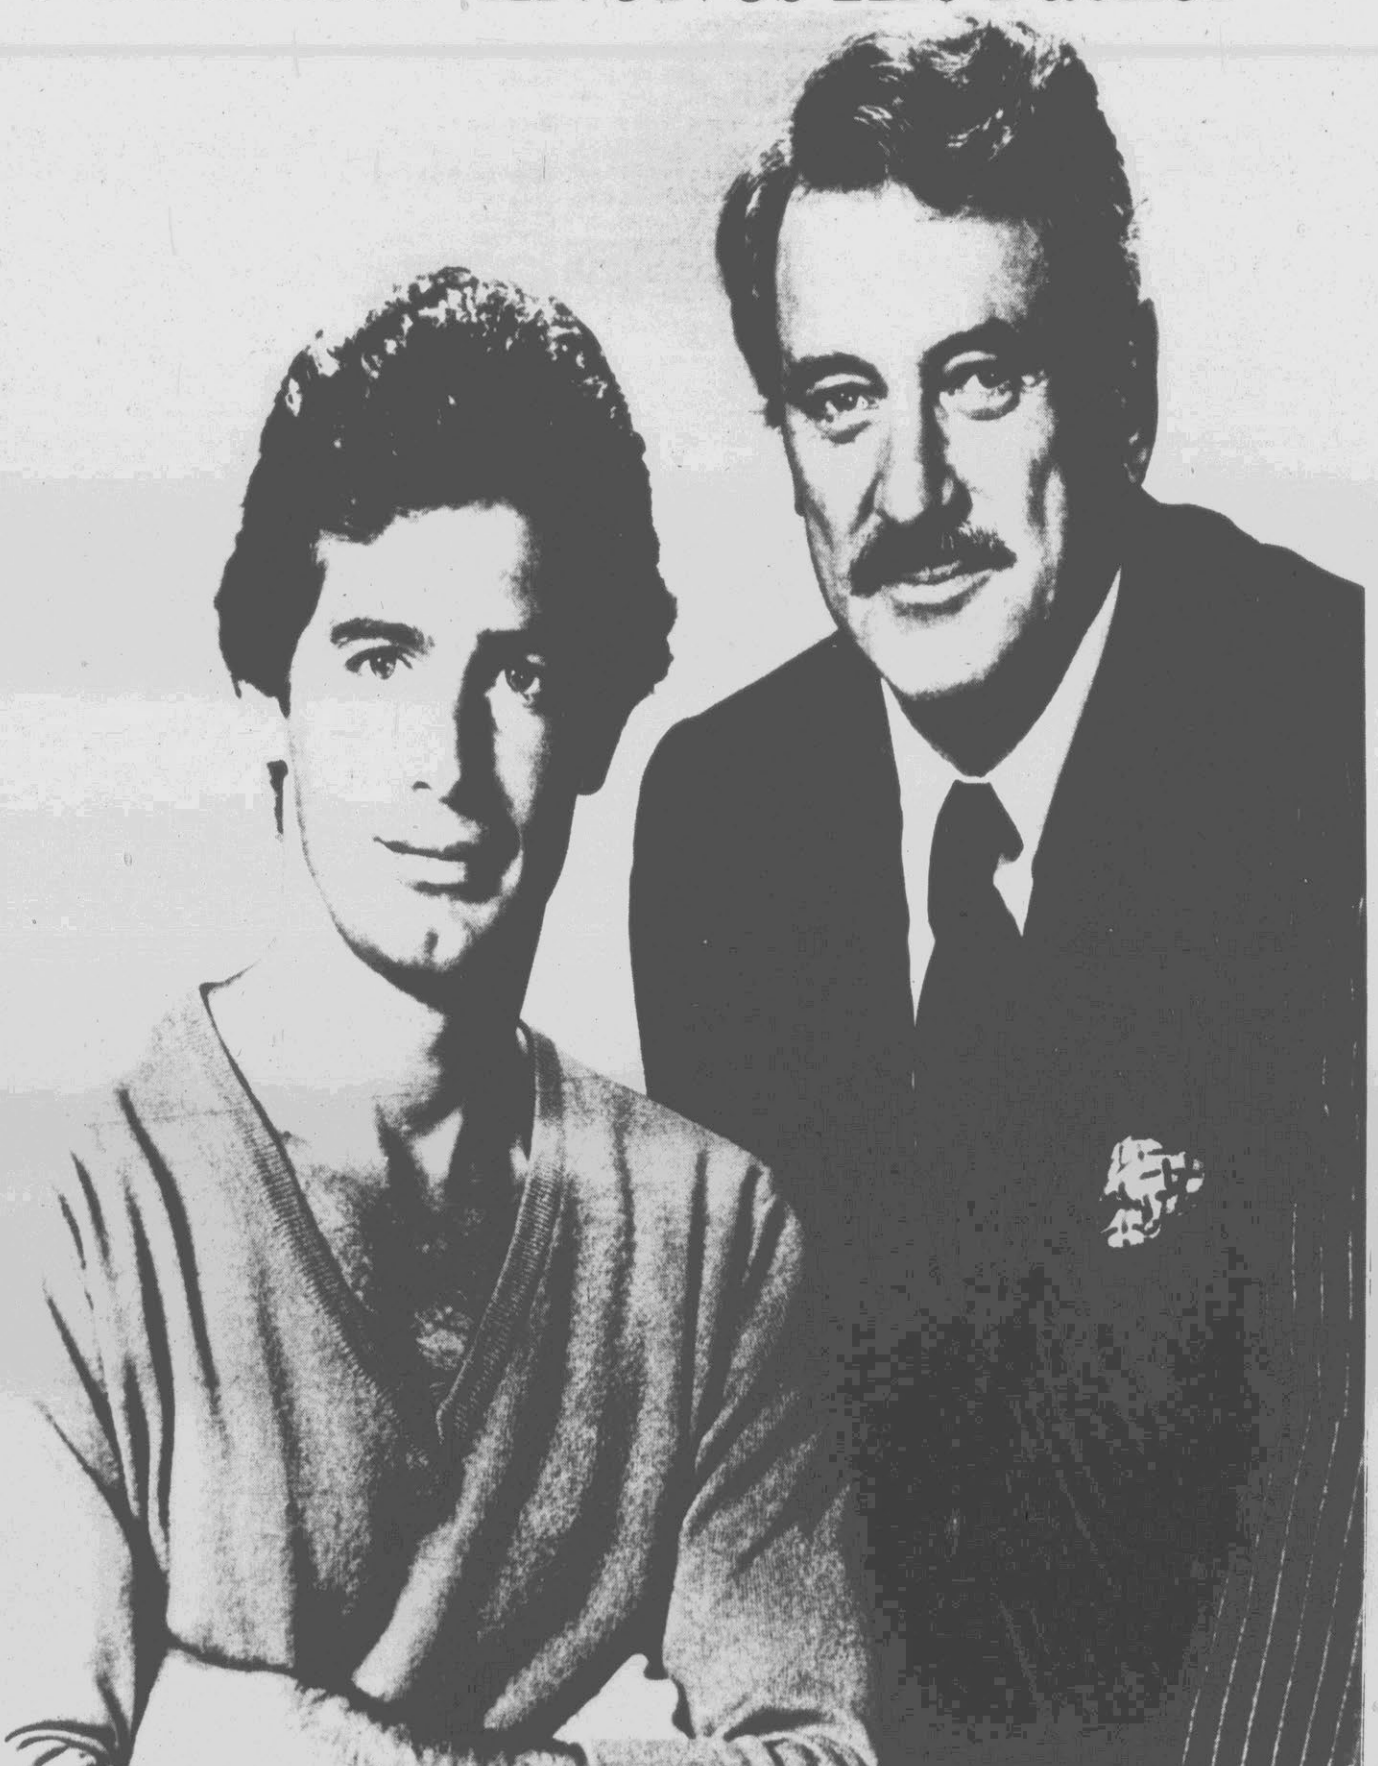

Born Roy Fitzgerald in Winnetka, Ill., Hudson served as a Navy airplane mechanic in the Philippines in World War II. He returned to his home town after the war, but soon came to Hollywood to try his luck as an actor.

While working as a truck driver he studied acting on the advice of agent Henry Willson, whom he met after an acquaintance submitted his photographs.

"I wasn't the miracle boy of the movies. Things just didn't fall into my open hand," said Hudson. "I studied hard and worked as an extra and bit player." His first small role was in "Fighter Squadron" in 1948. The following year, Universal Studios bought his contract from director Raoul Walsh, and Hudson began his long association with the studio.

With a slow build-up and a long list of credits, he hit the top starring with Jane Wyman in "Magnificent Obsession." Within a year, Hudson won 14 national and international acting awards.

He made his debut as a musical comedy star in 1973, touring with Carol Burnett in the play "I Do! I Do!" and later appeared opposite Juliet Prowse in a London-based production of that musical. His dramatic stage debut was in "John Brown's Body" in 1976.

ROCK HUDSON STARS as Brian Devlin, a successful former private detective who has become the director of a Los Angeles cultural center, and Jack Scalia (left) co-stars as his long-lost son, Nick Corsello who coaxes his father into part-time detection, in "The Devlin Connection," airing Saturdays (10-11 p.m.) on NBC.

Pac-Man's Voice

Marty Ingels, starring as the voice of Pac-Man in the "Pac-Man" animated Hanna-Barbera series on ABC commented about his character in the family comedy-adventure: "Sometimes the little ghost monster who work for villainous Mezmaron get a nibble of Pac-Man, causing him to de-late. If he eats a power pellet from the Power Pellet Trees hidden Pacland's forest in time, he begins to glow with strength and takes off on hilarious ghost-gobbling chases in each episode."

Stop The Cameras

Rip Torn is a stickler for accuracy. As Gen. Ulysses S. Grant in "The Blue and The Gray," the star has a brief scene in which he's seen writing a telegram to Secretary of War Stanton announcing the news of Gen. Robert E. Lee's surrender at Appomattox. Torn went to the trouble to memorize Grant's exact message, even though the words are never seen or heard on screen.

But as he filmed the scene, the star suddenly called for the cameras to stop. No, he hadn't forgotten the words he was writing. But Ulysses S. Grant, Torn remembered, was right-handed, and the southpaw actor had been composing the telegram with his left.

Carson Celebrates 20 Years

Early television appearances by such comedians as Woody Allen, Flip Wilson, Richard Pryor, George Carlin and David Brenner, and traditional segments from past shows with Ed Ames, Jack Webb and Don Rickles, highlight the NBC special "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson: 20th Anniversary," Sunday, Oct. 3 (9-11 p.m.).

Recalling the changes his show has undergone in its over 5,000 airings, Carson said: "At one point, we couldn't talk about 'pot' or make any reference to it. I don't know when all that changed, but one day I did a joke about it and all of a sudden other previous taboos were gone. You couldn't use the word 'hooker' and now we can discuss any subject as long as it's done in good taste."

Usually Carson follows his instincts in determining what areas to discuss in his monologue. "When Spiro Agnew was unknown, it was funny to make jokes about him. Now it isn't," he said. "Agnew's in disfavor, like Nixon, so we get off of him."

"Wilbur Mills was also good for a laugh but I got off of him, too, as soon as he admitted having an alcohol problem. It just wasn't fair then."

Among the highlights of this 20th anniversary special are clips from Tiny Tim's wedding; a segment on things that didn't work, such as a unicycle that didn't get started, and a parrot that wouldn't talk or sing; portions of The Mighty Carson Art Players with Carson portraying President Reagan, Hamlet and Mr. Rogers; and a clip of Carson taking the place of a pooch in a live dog-food commercial when the animal wandered off the set.

It is estimated that no other performer in the history of television has been on the medium as often as Carson.

JOHNNY CARSON IS shown with the containers holding video recordings of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson" for the past 20 years — the source of hilarious segments that will be included in his prime-time anniversary bash, "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson: 20th Anniversary," to air on NBC, Sunday, Oct. 3 (9-11 p.m.).

For young comedians, an appearance on the "Tonight Show" can be a dramatic boost for their careers. "In the anniversary show last year, Johnny included segments of three young comedians who had been on that year — Maureen Murphy, Gary Shandling and Jerry Seinfeld. As a result of their appearances, all three have been booked in Las Vegas, Reno and Atlantic City," said Jim McCawley, the show's talent coordinator. "This year we brought on a new comedian from Boston, Steven Wright. After his appearance, he was offered a lead in a major film, a semi-regular role on a new TV series, and signed with a powerful Hollywood agent."

McCawley has been scouting talent for the show for the past five years. "The trick for us is to try to separate the really clever, original thinkers from the more ordinary performers," he said. "One consideration is, where possible, to have a good cross-section of the country's racial, cultural mix."

Among the first comedians McCawley booked were American Indian Charlie Hill, Korean Johnny Yune, black comics like George Wallace, Franklyn Ajaye and Eddie Murphy; and Irishman Gallagher.

DONNA MILLS (left), Genie Francis and Linda Evans compete on various levels, in "Bare Essence," a two-part mini-series going behind the scenes of a fictional conglomerate that ventures into international perfume manufacturing. It will be broadcast Monday, Oct. 4 (9-11:30 p.m.), and Tuesday, Oct. 5 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS.

Perfume Smells Of Power

"Bare Essence," a mini-series dealing with wealth, power, intrigue and romance behind the scenes of a fictional conglomerate that ventures into international perfume manufacturing, will be broadcast in two parts, Monday, Oct. 4 (9-11:30 p.m.) and Tuesday, Oct. 5 (9-11 p.m.).

Unfolding against the backdrop of New York, Paris and Hollywood, the drama spotlights the world of the very rich, very world-weary jet setters. Shattered by the death of her father, who has reared her since he was divorced by the now Lady Bobbi Rowan (Linda Evans), Tyger Hayes (Genie Francis) is a spunky, determined girl. Brought up in the world of Hollywood filmmaking, where her father was an independent film producer after having been an important television network executive, Tyger finds herself penniless.

Traveling to New York to try to convince the company which had financed her father's films to take a chance on her, she is distraught to discover that the money will not be forthcoming as the company is in very serious financial difficulties. She impresses Hadden Marshall, the head of the company, who offers her a position as executive associate and the freedom to create her own job.

At the same time, Hadden has convinced his grandson, Chase Marshall (Bruce Boxleitner), to forsake the life of a European automobile racer and take over control of the company. Tyger opts for the perfume business to bring the conglomerate back to financial stability. Tyger has a great sense of business, but is completely naive and unsophisticated when it comes to worldliness.

Complicating the situation is Ava (Lee Grant), Chase's beautiful stepmother, who is determined that her son, Marcus, will assume the reins of the family business, and she will stop at nothing to defeat the perfume project.

Also involved is Marcus' mistress, Barbara (Donna Mills), whom he uses to steal industrial secrets, and top fashion designer Matt Phillips (Joel Higgins), who is intrigued with Tyger's gaucherie. He changes her from a little brown wren to a strikingly beautiful young woman.

Comedy Series

"Diff'rent Strokes," the comedy series starring Conrad Bain, Gary Coleman, Todd Bridges and Dana Plato, will continue to be rebroadcast in the 10-10:30 a.m. time period through December 10.

Beginning Monday, Dec. 13, the comedy series "The Facts of Life" will be telecast in the 10-10:30 a.m. time slot and continue through March 11. "The Facts of Life," starring Emmy nominee Charlotte Rae, is consistently a ratings winner, usually in the Nielsen top ten.

Contract Signed

Tracy Torme has signed a three-year contract as a staff writer for the popular late-night NBC comedy series "Saturday Night Live." Torme, 23, is the son of singer Mel Torme, and was formerly the youngest writer of the critically acclaimed late-night series "SCTV."

Singer and Sister

Popular daytime actor John Wesley Shipp will be displaying his singing voice at the popular New York City nightspot Caroline's for a week, beginning October 21. Shipp, who has already begun work on his second album of songs (his first was a sellout), will appear with a special guest — his sister, Karen. The two Shippes often perform together.

Killers Track Detectives

Husband-and-wife private detectives Rick and Amanda Tucker wind up as targets of the killer they are trailing when Amanda's witchcraft turns out to be highly unreliable, just as it's needed most, on "Tucker's Witch," premiering Wednesday, Oct. 6 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS.

Trying to find the so-called "elevator" killer in a series of slayings in high-rise buildings, the Tuckers find a clue that sends them to a slick videotape dating service.

Rick (Tim Matheson) believes in solving crimes on the basis of hard evidence, while Amanda (Catherine Hicks), mysteriously helped by her cat, Dickens, depends on "flashes" of intuition. They sign up as clients of "Data Match" to gain access to the files, which prove to be a treasure-trove of attractive and willing single guys and girls.

While Rick is coping with his very eager date, Babs (Alexa Hamilton), the owner of the dating service, suave Danny Kirkwood (Ted Danson) realizes what's going on and zeroes in on Amanda.

* She frantically tries to use her erratic psychic powers to save her life, as Rick races to the rescue.

Also starring in this episode of "Tucker's Witch" are Barbara Barrie as Amanda's gently eccentric mother, Ellen Hobbes; Bill Morey as the cynical homicide detective Lt. Sean Fisk; and Alfie Woodward as the Tuckers' efficient secretary, Marcia Fullbright.

Matheson has been a regular on four series — "Window on Main Street," "The Virginian," "Bonanza" and "The Quest."

Michele Will Tell

DEAR MICHELE: Could I please have the address for Paramount Studios in Hollywood? CHRIS AMMAS, VALDESE, N.C.

TO CHRIS: Write to Paramount Pictures Corporation, 5451 Marathon Street, Los Angeles, Calif., 90038.

DEAR MICHELE: My wife and I saw a rebroadcast of an unusual love affair starring Ms. Kate Jackson. We agreed that it was one of the most heartwarming of films we have seen in a long while. Please give us some information about her and an address where we might write her. J.R. LOWE, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

TO J.R. LOWE: Kate Jackson is a highly energetic product of Birmingham, Alabama, the younger of two daughters of Hogan and Ruth Jackson. Her father is a wholesaler of building materials and her sister, Jenny, is a teacher. Kate first became interested in acting when she appeared in high school plays. She later studied drama at the University of Mississippi and at Birmingham University. A whirlwind six-week courtship led to a five-year marriage with actor Andrew Stevens, the marriage ended in divorce in 1981. Kate is a lover of the outdoors, her favorite sport is skiing and she has spent much of her spare time in Aspen, Colorado. Fans may write to her in c/o Creative Artists Agency, 1888 Century Park East, Suite 1400, Los Angeles, Calif., 90048.

DEAR MICHELE: I would appreciate you giving me some background information about Sherman Hemsley on the "Jeffersons." Also how do I write to him? DARREN HAWKINS, MAXTON, N.C.

TO DARREN: Sherman was born on February 1 in Philadelphia, Pa. He began his acting career in elementary school plays, but drew away from it in his teens. It wasn't until he was discharged from the service that he returned to acting, beginning with attendance at the Philadelphia Academy of Dramatic Arts. The 5'6", 135-pound actor is single and lives in Los Angeles. For relaxation he enjoys playing table tennis and is an avid music buff. Write to him in c/o "The Jeffersons," CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 Street, N.Y., N.Y., 10019.

Three To Go

GE Theatre, one of television's longest-running dramatic series, will air one two-hour contemporary dramatic special each month during the last three months this year.

The latest addition is "Two of a Kind," starring George Burns in his TV dramatic debut with Robby Benson, scheduled for Oct. 9.

"Something So Right," co-starring Patty Duke Astin, James Farentino and Ricky Schroder, is scheduled for Nov. 30.

In December, "Bill," starring Mickey Rooney as Bill Sackter will be repeated on CBS.

Production Begun

Production has begun on location in Los Angeles for "The Red Room Riddle," an "ABC Weekend Specials" presentation to air during the 1982-83 season.

The spine-tingling ghost story set in an eerie "haunted" house stars Billy Jacoby, Nicholas Gilbert, Christian Hoff, Peter Brocco, Sandra Caron and David Wiley.

Tinker Honored

Grant A. Tinker, chairman and Chief Executive Officer of NBC, was honored by the Entertainment Industries Division of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, Southern California Region, at its 19th annual Humanitarian Awards Dinner, Sept. 29, at the Beverly Hills Hotel.

Making Trax

Popular young actor Tom Nielsen, who portrays singer songwriter Floyd Parker on the "Guiding Light," is soon to make another New York nightclub appearance with his real-life band, the Parker Brothers (who have been seen recently on "Guiding Light" playing Floyd's back-up band). Nielsen and the band will perform at the nightclub Trax.

Actor Considered Basketball

Now that Louis Gossett Jr. is being mentioned as a sure shot to win an Oscar nomination for his role as the disciplinarian drill instructor in the motion picture "An Officer and a Gentleman," it's easy to see that he made the right choice of careers — but there was a time in his life he wasn't so sure.

Gossett, already an Emmy winner for his performance as Fiddler in "Roots," stars in NBC-TV's new series "The Powers of Matthew Star," airing Fridays (8-9 p.m.).

Gossett stars as Walt Shepherd, foster father and mentor to teen-ager Matthew Star (Peter Barton). They have escaped from the tyranny of their home planet, Quadris, and have taken temporary refuge on Earth while Matthew grows to manhood and learns how to implement his powers of telekinesis and telepathy.

Gossett was a student at Abraham Lincoln High School in Brooklyn when some Broadway producers came looking for young black actors. "There weren't any in the business then, so they had to go to the school system," Gossett recalls. "After about eight months, I finally got a part in the play "Take a Giant Step." It was about a boy going through the same changes I was. growing pains in a white neighborhood."

EMMY WINNER Louis Gossett Jr. (right), who stars with Peter Barton in NBC's "The Powers of Matthew Star," airing Fridays (8-9 p.m.), at one time had dreams of playing professional sports.

But Gossett was also an ace basketball star in Lincoln High, and he had dreams of becoming a pro. While appearing with Shirley Booth in "Take a Giant Step," he tied with Ben Gazzara for the Broadway Critics Award for the Most Promising Newcomer of 1953.

When the play closed, Gossett was offered a role in "The Desk Set," also with Booth on Broadway. He did the role at night while attending New York University during the day.

It was during the production of "The Desk Set" that Gossett was drafted by the New York Knicks. His dream of becoming a pro basketball player was about to come true.

"I made it to the first day of training camp, but the others were bigger, stronger, faster and smarter. Besides, my attention was split. Ever since high school I'd been trying to do shows and still make it to practice. I did all my sleeping on the train."

Gossett gave up the idea of pro basketball. His next stage role was in "Lost in the Stars" with Leon Bibb and Shirley Veret.

"Suddenly one night during a scene I experienced goose bumps and a wonderful excitement — that basketball would never match — and realized I had fallen in love with the theater."

Song In His Heart

Most of the time we see him as the title star of the TV series "Benson," airing Fridays (8-8:30 p.m.) on ABC.

But long before there was actor Robert Guillaume, there was singer Robert Guillaume.

Born and raised in St. Louis, Mo., Guillaume received his first musical influences while serving as an altar boy. He dabbled in musical productions in grammar school and high school. When he entered St. Louis University, however, he decided to pursue a sensible career in business administration. Later, he transferred to Washington University and met voice teacher Leslie Chabay.

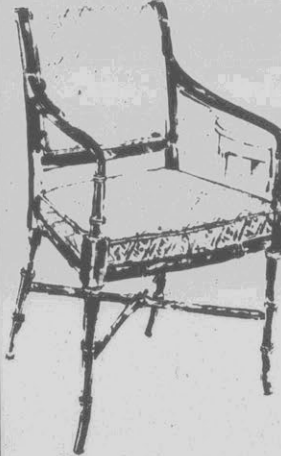

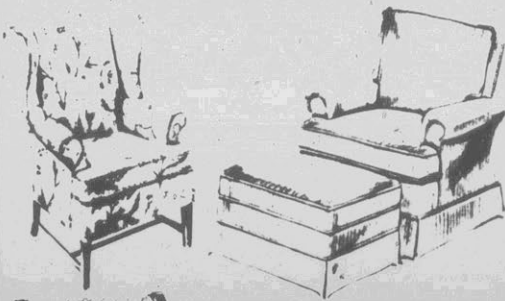

Chabay arranged a scholarship for him to a music festival in Aspen, Colo., where Guillaume was heard by Russell and Rowena Jelliffe, founders of the Karamu Theater in Cleveland, Ohio. He made his debut there as Billy Bigelow in "Carousel." He was applauded by none other than Oscar Hammerstein, who wrote the lyrics.

"How does acting compare with singing?" "I don't really see them that different," said Guillaume. "If you sing on stage, you have to act a little bit."

Some people use music to relax by, but not so Guillaume.

"I use TV to relax by, because I remain uninvolved," he said. "Music has always meant more to me than a background noise."

Guillaume has received a Tony Award nomination as Best Actor in a Musical for his role as Nathan Detroit in "Guys and Dolls." Among his other Broadway roles were the leads in "Purlie" and "Golden Boy."

Banff Winner

"Hill Street Blues," NBC-TV's multi-award-winning series, has won the Banff International Festival of Films for Television awards for 1982 for the episode entitled "Personal Foul." The segment was honored recently as the Best Episode From a Continuing Series. The awards ceremonies were held in Banff, Alberta, Canada.

The Banff Television Festival is an annual international competition dedicated to the "recognition and celebration of excellence in television films and programs." An international jury screens the entries.

A FUN-LOVING GUARDIAN angel winds up in a variety of hilarious adventures as he tries to keep his heavenly superiors happy in NBC-TV's new animated series "The Gary Coleman Show," airing Saturdays (10:30-11 a.m.). Coleman provides the voice of the angel, the character based on the role he created in the film "The Kid With the Broken Halo."

'Roses' For Kristy

Kristy McNichol grabs a really serious real-life role, in John Houseman's "Roses in December," a telemovie for CBS. She'll play Jean Donovan, the lay missionary who was murdered along with three American nuns two years ago in El Salvador.

An Angel Must Earn His Wings

"The Gary Coleman Show," an animated series airing Saturdays (10:30-11 a.m.) on NBC, is based on a character in the movie "The Kid With the Broken Halo" starring Gary Coleman.

In this new show, Andy Le Beau (whose voice is provided by Coleman), an apprentice guardian angel, is on probation in heaven to prove he is worthy of his wings. In heaven, he wears a white toga with wings and a golden halo. Despite the angelic garb, he is still the mischievous, wise-cracking kid he was on Earth.

Andy's main focus is a group of teen-agers including: Spence (Calvin Mason), a genius black student with wide-ranging interests; Tina (LaShana Dindy), Spence's younger sister who has a crush on Andy; Chris (Lauren Anders), a white female superstar athlete who is a health advocate; Bartholomew (Jerry Hauser), a white teen-ager who is a basic klutz; Haggie, a black teen-ager who loves to discuss things; Lydia, a wealthy snobbish white girl who is determined to discover Andy's secret; and Mack, the town bully, a natural troublemaker.

'Living Proof'

When the halo is in his pocket, he has no special powers, but when it is placed on his head, he can walk through walls, fly, transport himself from place to place, become invisible, levitate objects, and control weather. He Richard Thomas stars in the title role of "Living Proof: The Hank Williams Jr. Story," a drama based on Williams' recent autobiography. It is currently filming in Nashville.

Turner's Potential Unlimited

Some people, such as Jack "Hacksaw" Reynolds, think this is my third rookie season and that after my seventh season maybe I won't be a rookie anymore," said Keena Turner of the San Francisco 49ers. He has advanced quickly from rookie in 1980, to solid starter in 1981 to an All-Pro candidate in 1982. Since the beginning of preseason play, he has given the 49ers outstanding performances at weakside linebacker.

Turner got off on the right foot in the season opener, racking up eight tackles (six solo) and one quarterback sack. In the preseason, he ranked sixth on the club in tackles and tied for the lead in passes defended and fumble recoveries.

The Purdue product nearly doubled his statistics last year from his rookie season, and at his current pace, he will do the same thing in 1982. Turner was drafted in the second round (as the third pick by the 49ers behind Earl Cooper and Jim Stuckey) and finished that year with 48 tackles and two interceptions.

"Keena Turner probably has more potential than anyone on the team at any position, offense or defense," said head coach and general manager Bill Walsh. "He is capable of being a top NFL linebacker."

Playing injured or under adverse conditions is an expected part of pro football, but Turner carried that fact to the extreme last year — he participated in a championship game suffering from chicken pox.

That episode may have slowed the 6-2, 219-pound Turner (his weight dropped nearly 25 pounds by kickoff), but it didn't stop him. In retrospect, Turner considers the incident with humor.

Following the first of two Dwight Clark touchdown receptions, Clark ran off the field and was greeted with a congratulatory hug by Turner. The wide receiver froze, pulled back and dead-panned. "Wait a minute, I'm happy, but I'm not crazy. What am I doing hugging you?" he asked.

Turner spent most of his time on the sideline. "I just kept my helmet on and wouldn't look at the cameras. I was broken out pretty badly that day," he said. "It was probably the worst day for lumps, so I put on calamine lotion. I was pretty pink, and I looked awful."

That contest was his most memorable, but his best game of the campaign was in Anaheim against the Los Angeles Rams, when he recorded 12 tackles and a fumble recovery.

"Keena is the complete linebacker," said Walsh. "He is one of the most important men on the team due to his considerable talents and efforts. He is an exceptional athlete and a great value to the club."

Uecker Has Book

Former baseball pro Bob Uecker, who has shown his wry wit as a broadcaster on "Monday Night Baseball," continues his tradition of self-professed insignificance in his autobiography. The book, titled "Catcher in the Wry," was written with Mickey Herskowitz and includes Uecker's unique brand of humor.

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

Eighty-six-year-old GEORGE BURNS — making his TV dramatic debut this week on the G. E. Theatre special "Two of a Kind," found it amusing when he was cast in the role of an 81-year-old senile grandfather and was told he didn't look old enough. The aging process took two-hours of make-up every morning before filming could begin.

Before her untimely death — GRACE KELLY had completed a trilogy of telefilms for Father Peyton's "Family Theatre," which were filmed after visiting hours inside St. Peter's and the Vatican museum for producer FRANK O'CONNOR. This is a first for U.S. TV. The two shows will be aired at Christmas and Good Friday. POPE JOHN PAUL drove by and waved to the crew as they were setting up — but, it's not decided whether he'll be shown in the syndicated series.

MATTHEW ANSARA, 16-year-old son of BARBARA EDEN and MICHAEL ANSARA, was a recent surfboard accident victim. Though not seriously hurt, and he suffered a fractured rib and bruises, he had to cancel vacation plans with his mom. He and Barbara had planned a Colorado River white water raft trip.

Let Him Enjoy the Perfect Fit of Custom Clothing

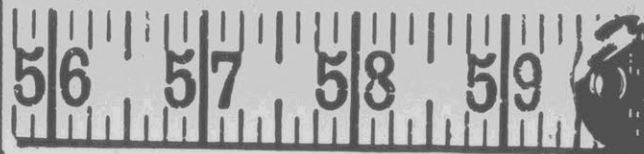

Is that special man in your life near impossible to fit? If so, now is the time to consider ordering him custom-fitted clothing for Christmas. We invite you to visit our stores and select from exclusive fabrics that are timeless and elegant. We will take his exact measurements. You select the style, the fabric and the details you desire.

We have in our stores an incredible selection of beautiful fabric swatches from Hart Schaffner & Marx. Their suits are masterfully tailored for the man who's hard to fit. Clothing from Hart Schaffner & Marx is superbly cut and tailored with the best of hand-sewn efficiency. An uncommon devotion to construction even in the smallest detail makes a Hart suit a sound investment.

Our custom-fit program with Individualized Shirts makes good-fitting shirts a reality for many men. So-called standard shirt measurements have little in common with some men's measurements. But aside from fit, there are other solid reasons for Individualized Shirts. There are numerous collar and cuff styles available as well as dozens upon dozens of fabrics and colors.

Clothing that fits as it should and reflects individualism as well as good taste provides comfort not only to him, but to you as well. Because you'll know as well as him, that he looks and feels his best.

RAINCHECK POLICY

We endeavor to keep in stock every item displayed in this catalog. However, there may be times when manufacturers or suppliers are unable to fulfill their commitment to us on orders that we have placed in good faith because of a shortage of raw materials or other reasons. If we are temporarily out of a catalog item, we will issue a raincheck. When the item is received, you will be notified, and you can purchase it at the same low price. This does not apply to discontinued items, gold items and diamond items due to the instability of current gold and diamond prices.

All photographic, clerical and printing errors subject to our correction.

We cannot guarantee delivery on rainchecks during the month of December. However, if a customer does not want this item before Christmas, we will accept rainchecks and make every possible effort to have this merchandise as soon as possible. Please no rainchecks on toys because of delivery problems.

Send the question, on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

"At 14, I weighed 310 lbs."

FOR KEN DACHMAN, author of The Dachman Permanent Weight Loss Program
Were you chubby as a child? —K.B. Durham, N.C.

● A sickly infant, I was pampered and overfed by my parents. At 6 I had developed a dangerous pattern of overeating and weighed 135 pounds. Some local kids marched to my house carrying signs saying "Get out of the neighborhood, you big fat pig." Because I couldn't pursue normal physical activities, I began eating more and more. I took in over 20,000 calories daily, 10 times what an average adult should eat. At 14, I weighed 310 pounds. Finally, in 1974 I started dieting and lost 250 pounds in a year. My waist went from 64 to 32 inches. I believe now that the key to weight loss is attitude.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS, psychologist

Why do some people never learn from past mistakes? — M.M., Escondido, Calif.

● Because he or she is acting out of an unconscious need. If a man had a girlfriend who nagged him and he finds another who does the same thing, he is obeying his unconscious instincts. You must ask yourself, "Why do I keep doing the same things?" By being aware of the pattern, you can break it.

FOR SUSAN SARANDON, star of Tempest

How did you become an actress? — S.D., Woodbury, N.J.

● By accident. As a child I wanted to be a wave in the ocean. I thought it would be fun to ripple back and forth all day in the sunlight. At college, by a fluke, I ended up in drama class, which I enjoyed. Then when I married, my husband, an actor, had an audition. I went with him and the agent signed me.

FOR LLOYD DOBYNS, of NBC News Overnight

What formula are you using to beat your competitors? — T.R., Kingsport, Tenn.

● Our competition is not other shows, but sleep. The best show in the world can't survive if viewers are snoring. Actually, we won't get canceled because no NBC vice president is awake at 1:30 A.M. They watch us in the morning when we're asleep. Then they can't reach us because our phones are off the hooks.

PRO Senator James A. McClure (R.-Idaho), chairman, Energy and Natural Resources Committee

Government controls don't work. Regulating gas prices removes the incentive for increased production. When oil was deregulated, U.S. production increased, helping to lower prices. That's good for Americans, bad for OPEC. Following natural gas shortages in 1977 and 1978, Congress tried to deregulate gas but did not go far enough. Total deregulation now would stimulate more exploration, drilling and production. It would put Americans to work and further decrease our dependence on foreign energy.

Decontrol, which means higher prices, would cripple our economy — doubling consumers' heating bills and adding two to three points to the inflation rate. It would also cost 1.1 million jobs, increase the deficit by $26 billion a year and slow economic recovery. Gas prices have already increased by 400 percent since 1974. Increasing these costs further would only rob consumers of the money they need to invest in energy conservation devices such as insulation, storm windows and more efficient furnaces.

A case of mistaken identity.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

COMPOSURE: Count Basie, 78, never gets irritated or loses his temper. According to those who work with him, he always tries to see humor in a situation. Orchestra leader Grover Mitchell, who once played in the Count's band, told of one instance when Basie kept his cool: "We were at the airport on our way to Denver. A lady spotted Basie in one of his favorite red caps, pointed to two suitcases and said, 'Would you carry my bags?' Basie jumped to attention, picked up her luggage and took them to the check-in counter. 'And,' he boasted, 'I must've done a good job. She tipped me 50 cents.'" ... As Albert Finney's head was being shaved for Annie, the actor remained calm. But what was really going through his nearly bald head: "What if it's the wrong shape or the curves are in the wrong places? My God, this could be the most expensive haircut in film history."

QUOTES: Bianca Jagger, said to still carry the torch for Mick Jagger, was overheard saying: "Divorce is such a failure, the greatest failure a person can have. We'd still be married if I had found some way of dealing with the other women." ... States sci-fi writer Arthur C. Clarke, author of 2010 Odyssey Two: "If you've never seen a U.F.O., you're not very observant. And if you've seen as many as I have, you won't believe in them." ...

Hope
 Bob Hope denies he's guilty of disrespect toward any religion, even in jest: "I wouldn't dare be offensive. I can't risk blowing the hereafter on a technicality." ... Singer Kenny Rogers, making his film debut in Six Pack, was asked if he prefers movies to records: "I'm a businessman first," he replied, "and will use the most energy where I'll make the most money." ...

KIDS: Kelly, 12-year-old daughter of Lynn Redgrave and John Clark, has suddenly discovered her father, which means she now showers him with affection instead of her usual scowls and frowns. When asked why she was always so awful toward her father, Kelly pondered and decided, "Well, I was much younger then — and being young made me absent-minded." ... Marie Osmond, showing her young nephew Mother Nature, pointed to the horizon, saying, dramatically, "Look at that mountain." "Why?" he queried, puzzled. "What has it done?"

Photoreporters, Inc.

SPOILS OF THE MODEL WARS

Some models and clients swear by Eileen Ford — others about her. She's tough, demanding and fierce. Also famous, powerful and rich. This year her models will book more than $20 million. And models are cheap to feed.

I was afraid of her 18 years ago when I began modeling for Ford Models Inc.; now at the age of 38, I'm still afraid of her. It is meagre comfort that almost everyone else is, too. Eileen Ford inspires awe, respect, anger and fear, but most of all fear. She is imperious, difficult, demanding and fierce, a vengeful fire-breather. And yet, she loves as fiercely as she hates. And because she is the Best at what she does, you have to believe that whatever it is she does do, she does it because She Knows Best. In short... Mother.

And indeed, this woman — who made the business of dealing in beauty what it is, who made the business a business — looks more like a suburban mom who has put in her time behind the wheel of a station wagon shuttling from the Grand Union to the country club, than one who terrifies models and clients alike. Glamorous she isn't; she looks, in fact, much as she did when I first met her, although like most of our mothers, she has gotten both sterner looking and less hard-edged, as if heavy weather has softened her over the years. She still wears no makeup — leaving that to her girls — and she still touches up her hair. She has the same lovely hands, perfectly manicured, and she wears clothes that would be unremarkable at a meeting of the local P.T.A.

But that famous temper — although no longer “ungovernable” (her word) — is never far from the surface. It's easy to get singed when the sparks fly: “I'm as willful as a 12-year-old,” says Ford. “My temper has been responsible for some of my worst mistakes.” Eileen tells on herself and then smiles beatifically. “But I'm not a regretful person. I don't look back.”

Ford Models Inc., the world's top modeling agency, is very much her baby, hers and husband Jerry's, and like a baby, it has characteristics from both of them. Eileen rejects the notion that she alone is Ford: “No, no. It has always been ‘we.’”

People who seem to know about such things are prone to whisper that it's a good thing, too, that Eileen gets too involved, takes things too personally, blurs the line between personal and professional in ways that have not always been good for business. (“It's all personal to Eileen,” says a client.) Eileen fires things up, they say, but it's Jerry who makes it work, who cleans up the messes, who moves things forward while keeping Eileen in check. Technically, Eileen oversees the models and Jerry handles the business, but duties are all very loose.

Wide World

Revlon

Wide World

Stephani Cook, 1964, our author; Maud Adams, 1975, a Scandinavian model with "all-American" good looks; Lauren Hutton and Cheryl Tiegs, two of the hottest models of recent years.

The agency was started 36 years ago, almost by accident. After graduating from Barnard, Eileen worked at various jobs (catalogue stylist, advertising copywriter, fashion reporter), during which time she met and married Jerry. In 1946, she found herself pregnant, at home and bored, and she offered to take phone calls for two of her model friends. Before long there were a dozen girls and then a small walk-up office on Second Avenue in New York. At the end of their first year in business the Fords had grossed $250,000. Today they have 150 female models, 80 male and about 25 child models — and the agency expects to do over $20 million worth of business this year.

Eileen, 60, and Jerry, 58, make a good team, and unlike most of the other people in the business, they are together after all these years. "The extraordinary thing is how anyone would put up with me for this long," says Eileen, reflectively. "It hasn't always been easy. Every marriage has its point where you ask whether you're going to go on with it." Eileen thinks for a moment. "When you work, as a woman you get very bossy, but Jerry's a real man and won't stand for it. Learning to give in is the hardest lesson, and I had to learn it. The most important thing is to be a good wife; a wife who's a good wife has a great sense of self-worth." She means it, she believes it, this high-powered lady. That's another thing that hasn't changed.

No more than Eileen and Jerry seem to have changed (Jerry is still the dark, handsome hunk he was in college) does the agency seem to have changed, although it has grown considerably. To the women's and men's divisions of a couple of decades ago have been added a TV division (in 1968) and, more recently, a children's division and something called 12 Plus, for the heavier beauties. A Ford model booked for a day by a client will earn between $1,250 and $2,000, depending on experience. The youngest of Ford's women's division are 15 and 16, and though there's a lot of attention lately on "child-woman" models, the agency claims their girls have always started young.

The Ford look is still all-American (Eileen leaves the exotics to the other agencies), and the girls, whether they are from Stockholm or Milan or Maine, all tend to have that California-girl gloss — fresh, wide-eyed and healthy — typified by Cheryl Tiegs and Lauren Hutton. "Classic," is the consensus. "Boring," chime in the trend makers.

Eileen makes the final choice on each model personally, though she does use scouts around the world. Some people think that her "legendary eye" is less a gift of vision than a highly refined sense of what makes a girl photogenic, a sense that is shared with almost everybody in the business: at least 5 feet 8 inches tall — and usually not over 5 feet 10 inches; a weight of 124 for the tallest and biggest; proportion; carriage (Eileen calls it "line"), a certain wideness and clearness around the eye, good skin and teeth; and an "attitude" that translates into making people want whatever you are selling. Ford also does so well because the best of the new girls tend to come to her first.

Eileen, however, believes there's a skill to it all: "I've sent people around the world and no one gets who I do." Her stable has included Suzy Parker, Jane Fonda, Jean Shrimpton, Ali MacGraw, Candice Bergen, Maud Adams, Jennifer O'Neill, Lauren Hutton, Shelley Smith, Shelley Hack and Cheryl Tiegs.

She's not always on target, of course. She agreed to take on Lauren Hutton if she had her teeth fixed. Hutton came aboard, never got around to having the gap between her front teeth closed — and that gap became her trademark. Ford also decided against Marisa Berenson, one of the few decisions she regrets. For the most part, she insists that those she didn't take she still "would turn down all over again."

At the root of some of the challenges to her hegemony is her commitment to type: It is the Elite and Zoli agencies who are helping themselves to the dark-eyed, dark-haired exotics like Casablancas's Esme. "Eileen is still looking for Cheryl Tiegs," says one model who herself is cut out of the mold.

The single biggest difference in the Ford agency is the efficiency introduced by 1980's technology: Models and their prices and availabilities can now be followed as closely as stock market trades. In the past, there was the "board," huge slabs of wood on runners lined with cards listing all there was to know about the models, including their assignments and availability. Today the board is in the computer, and the bookers (those who coordinate all the assignments) sit at terminals.

There are still the phones, though, ringing incessantly with requests from clients, and frazzled bookers — a true reflection of Eileen — with an attitude that has earned the wrath and respect of the industry: "Nasty, nasty, nasty," says a photographer. "I swear over and over that I'll never use a Ford model again because the agency treats you like dirt, but I do. I always go back." A Ford model who abdicated briefly says "You can't beat Her reputation." ("Her" always refers to Eileen.) "You want class? You want prestige? You've got to go to Ford." Joey Hunter, who runs Ford Men, says by way of explanation, "It's because she puts the model first. The client is down the line. They have to deal with Eileen, not she with them. They always come back."

This doesn't mean that models always feel well-served by Eileen. A common complaint seems to be that it is the agency that comes first, then the model and the client last. Ford does lose models to other agencies, but unlike a client or a photographer — or another agent — who incurs her wrath and is never forgiven, any member of the Ford "family" is always welcome back: the prodigal model who now regrets another agent's seduction; even the prodigal employee who has "betrayed" her. ("Betrayal" is a word that goes naturally — and frequently — with Eileen's concept of principle.) I witnessed a famous betrayal at the end of the 60's, when Eileen's top booker bolted with some of Ford's heaviest hitters to start one of the first renegade agencies, Fashion & Film. In time, Fashion & Film folded. That head booker is back with Eileen, helping to make Ford what it is. "I would never not rehire somebody," says Eileen, aghast. "I have an Aries mentality. What's done is done." This is Mother. This is Family. Ford is where they will always take you back.

And now, The Face of the 80's: Model Renee Toft Simonsen, 17, won the recent face-off and now has Ford in her future.

Eileen and Jerry: "The extraordinary thing is how anyone would put up with me . . .," she says.

The family atmosphere of the Ford Agency is as genuine as it is calculated: "Walt Disney and Eileen Ford are the greatest believers in the word 'family' that ever lived," says Eileen. She is serene, even a little smug. She knows what they think, that she's overprotective, maybe too involved. ("Surrogate mother? I like that role," she says. "I'm a steady force as well as an agent.") She also knows that Ford is envied because she is willing to play mother, because it is family. A model who hauls in the bucks for Elite — Ford's arch rival — a Ford "type" somehow missed by Ford, says "It's the mother thing. We all envy it in a way. Ford is a real family. Sure it has its down side, but Eileen is the kind of woman other mothers are willing to turn their daughters over to. You feel secure, protected. Some girls need that. It's a big city."

New models frequently move right into the Fords' Manhattan townhouse and stay until they're established. "Anybody who wants to come is welcome," says Eileen.

So in the fast-moving world of new, newer, newest, Eileen is stubbornly old-fashioned, "very conservative, religious." She has no use for the women's movement: "Women like me who work have the problem of trying to run a home and be a mother and they don't have time to worry about rights and things. I don't consider myself liberated. My whole life is children, husband, home." Three of her four children work at the agency. Billy, 30, is vice president for public relations; Katie, 28, is head of financial planning; Lacey, 25, is in charge of special projects. (Daughter Jamie, 35, has opted for another line of work.) When Eileen and Jerry aren't at their townhouse, they can often be found relaxing at their country house in Connecticut.

How can Eileen claim not to be liberated with what she has built? "I started working out of necessity, or I would have been a lawyer by now. I've lived my life as circumstances dictated."

And, of course, according to The Rules: "There are rules to living," she says. "You have to follow them."

Not everybody follows the rules, though. There have been challengers who thought they could beat Eileen at her own game. The last big stir was during the so-called model wars of the late 70's, when Johnny Casablancas, head of Elite, stepped up to the table and took her on. (Of her competition, Eileen says self-righteously: "I don't believe in cheating and lying. I believe in honesty. When someone isn't honest, I'm shocked.") She lost some of her top models and bookers to Elite. Some people think she tipped her hand by noticing at all: "It was the best possible start she could have given Johnny, fighting with him like that," says one fast-ducking onlooker. A Ford model says: "Eileen was the first one to understand that this business is all hype. Casablancas? It was hype with tradition against hype without tradition. Tradition won."

Eileen, who refuses to waste words on model wars in general ("What wars?"), and Casablancas in particular, observes coolly: "Of course he lost. People like that always lose." (Though Ford models still defect to Elite from time to time.)

Winner and still champion: Eileen Ford. Queen of the Jungle, Arbiter-Goddess of Beauty, wielding fire. Mother superior.

And as any big game hunter will tell you, the one wild animal never to mess with is the mother defending the den and her young. FW

International Coins & Currency, Inc. of Montpelier, Vermont, a distributor of rare coins, announces the release for sale of an extraordinary rare surviving hoard of America's first commemorative legal tender coin — the 1893 "Columbus" Silver Half Dollar.

Minted Almost 100 Years Ago — A Future Precious Keepsake

Minted in the last century to commemorate the 400th Anniversary of the discovery of America, this vintage silver coin has the historic distinction of being the very first commemorative coin of the U.S. Gov't Mint. The Columbus bust obverse and the Santa Maria flagship reverse never again appeared on any other U.S. coinage — and are never again likely to be struck. As the 500th Anniversary of America's discovery approaches in the next decade, this already scarce Columbus commemorative will undoubtedly become increasingly sought-after, and a precious family keepsake in American homes.

Hundreds Of Times Scarcer Than Morgan Dollars, Yet Priced Less

A comparatively tiny original mintage of slightly over 1 1/2 million coins, make the 1893 Columbus Silver Commemorative Half Dollar literally hundreds of times scarcer than the Morgan Silver Dollar — whose combined original mintages totaled 657 million coins!

Yet the Columbus coin, considered by some numismatists to be a "sleeping" classic, can still be acquired individually today at just $28 each, a price less than what Morgan Dollars are generally selling for individually in American newspapers.

Each Columbus silver half dollar is a large 31mm in diameter, struck in 12.5 grams of 900 pure silver, and each coin comes with a Certificate of Authenticity attesting to its very fine quality.

Offered On A Strict First-Come, First-Served Basis, While Supplies Last. No Dealer Orders Accepted. Price Guaranteed Next 30 Days!

ICC is offering for sale — on a first-come, first-served basis — a limited number of Columbus silver half dollars at the special introductory price of only $28 each. How to Keep Marriage Alive

Most studies of marital happiness have found that the longer a couple is wed, the less satisfaction each partner seems to get. But there are many couples who report that the later years of marriage are the happiest ones. To find out what differentiates satisfied from dissatisfied older couples, Purdue University psychologist Clifford Swensen and two associates conducted a series of studies involving nearly 1,000 couples.

"The picture that emerges," Swensen reports, "is that over the course of a lifetime together both the amount of love expressed between husband and wife and the number of problems they have decline. That is, there appears to be less happening between them either for good or ill."

But this "devitalized" kind of marriage is not the whole picture, Swensen points out. Husbands and wives who are able to move beyond stereotypical ideas and expectations have marriages that are based more on real needs, feelings and goals. Rather than avoiding conflict, they deal with it by talking to each other. As a result, says Swensen, their marriages are marked by more expressions of love and by more vitality: "These couples are able to perceive any gap between them, and they have the skill to bridge it and thus establish a more satisfying relationship for the rest of their marriage."

Paternity Suits Dads

The bond between fathers and babies is as close and instinctive as that between mothers and infants, according to evidence gathered recently by child-care experts. For example, when psychologist Ross Parke had nurses at an Urbana, Ill. hospital take newborns to first-time parents and ask, "To whom shall I give the baby?" fathers were just as keen to hold the infant as mothers were, and they were equally open in showing affection.

In line with the trend toward parents' sharing child care, research indicates that fathers can be as competent as mothers at the job. Child psychologist Isabelle Fox of Sherman Oaks, Calif., says that "men quickly learn the techniques of feeding, bathing and diapering infants, and they can be as sensitive as women can to such signs of distress as sneezes and cries."

On the other side of the coin, infants seem to be as responsive to fathers as to mothers. Research by pediatrician T. Berry Brazelton shows that a 3-week-old child can recognize his father's voice. And by the time the baby is 2 months old, say researchers at Boston's Children's Hospital, he or she plays "louder" and more actively with daddy than with mommy.

Teaching the Facts of Life

Most parents wait too long to give their children information about sex and to pass on their moral values concerning sexual behavior, observes family-life specialist Sally Koblinsky, associate professor in the School of Family Studies at San Diego State University. Koblinsky asked parents of preschool children what sexual topics they expected to discuss with their youngsters and when they thought they would introduce each topic.

Mothers and fathers agreed that they would give their children information about body differences, birth and reproduction. They were less likely to bring up such subjects as menstruation, homosexuality, masturbation and venereal disease — though mothers were more likely to do so than fathers.

But the most significant finding, says Professor Koblinsky, may be that "parents plan to delay talking about sexual values until the child's adolescent years. [But] the adolescent's emerging sexuality and reliance on peers make it especially difficult for parents to begin a conversation about sexual topics at this time," she says. Koblinsky feels it is crucial to teach parents how to build communication about sexual topics with their children while they are still young. FW

New "Willpower Diet Tablet" That Can Make You Skinny in 45 Days... Even If You Cheat!!!

OR DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK!

Have you ever tried to lose weight? Then you know that it takes a miracle to really overcome a weight problem. And you've probably tried everything from "starvation programs and painful exercises to weight reduction clinics" with little or no results.

If you are tired of the yo-yo effect and concerned about your weight you may be interested in a new "will power diet tablet" now being offered to the public by The Health Energetic Corporation.

This unique tablet was specifically developed by a group of leading nutritionists solely for the purpose of helping people who have tried other methods without success but are very serious about losing weight. It should not be used by people who only need to lose 5 or 6 pounds or those who are not highly motivated. It contains a blend of ingredients that have been scientifically formulated to super-charge your energy level and, at the same time, decrease your hunger.

Why can these "willpower diet tablets" help you succeed when so many other systems have failed you? Because, in a world full of gimmicks, it's a major breakthrough. A weight loss plan that works on your hunger biologically and psychologically.

This powerful combination of tablets is being sold with a weight reduction program that has been protected by U.S. copyright law. Together, these elements are so effective that the company refuses to advertise the results!

"Why should I?" says Leo Daboub, President of The Health Energetic Corp. "If I start telling people how they can lose up to 7 pounds in the first 48 hours and then continue to blast off their excess body fat faster, even if they were running 14 miles every day, nobody would believe me anyway!"

Therefore, instead of making dramatic claims or empty promises like this, Mr. Daboub is offering a legally binding iron-clad guarantee.

The guarantee is simple. Here is the way it works. If you order the product and use it as directed for a trial period of 45-days, you must be 100% satisfied with your rapid weight loss or you are entitled to a refund of DOUBLE your entire purchase price. There are no exceptions. This guarantee is iron-clad and legally binding, regardless of your current weight level or how long you have been overweight. All that is required is that you follow the simple instructions and give the reduction program an honest chance to work for the full trial period.

However, because of the nature of this special offer, we can only guarantee delivery to the readers of this publication who respond within the next 10-days. After that, orders will be filed on a "first come first served" basis as long as supplies last.

Here is something else you should know. Even though The Energetic Weight Reduction tablets are quite powerful and effective, they are 100% safe. They can be taken over prolonged periods of time. As a matter of fact, this is one of the very few diet aids that a U.S. government panel of medical and scientific experts approved as an active ingredient for appetite control and weight loss. Besides, it is not required to have a warning on the label!

But, more important, Energetic Weight Reduction has worked wonders for overweight people...people who had given up all hope of ever losing weight. And it can work for you too—as you watch the body of your dreams emerge.

Now, with our reduction program, you can:

- Burn away a maximum amount of fat in record time.
- Look fantastic in clothes you only dreamed of wearing before.
- Improve your self-image and self-confidence.
- Feel more energetic than ever as you dramatically transform your body.
- Put an end to gnawing hunger pangs.

CAUTION: As your weight begins to plummet down, you should use your good judgment and not let yourself become too thin. It is very important to eat properly. Before starting any weight loss program you should consult your physician to be sure you are in normal health.

Now then, as you might imagine, this is one diet tablet that does not come cheap. The price is $19.95, and California residents must add 6% ($1.20) for a total payment of $21.15. However, if you are serious about losing weight, you should remember that this is the only diet product on the market that is backed by a DOUBLE your money back guarantee!

No one else offers this guarantee. Weight Watchers doesn't; Schick doesn't; nor does Gloria Marshall, Lindora, Nutri-Systems, or any other group, plan, book, or program...But we at The Health Energetic Corporation do, because we know our program can work for you!

It is easy to order. All you have to do is write your name and address, and the words "Willpower Tablets" on a piece of paper and send it with your payment to:

The Health Energetic Corp.

Dept. c-78

1011 Brioso Dr. #107

Costa Mesa, CA 92627

That's all there is to it. Your order will be sent promptly by return mail.

By the way...If you prefer, you can dial, toll free, (800) 854-6917 (Calif. residents call 714-548-2271) and charge your order to your credit card. Just give the girl who answers the number and expiration date of your card and the name of this publication. Kickin' Up a Ruckus Over Soccer

In July, 1.5 billion people in more than 100 countries tuned in to the World Cup, the world championship of soccer. Held every four years, it's the most important athletic event on earth. Some 25 million of the viewers were Americans, by far the largest number ever to watch the sport.

The United States is starting to get a kick out of soccer; an estimated 2.5 million Americans now play. FAMILY WEEKLY asked Kyle Rote Jr., acknowledged to be the finest American-born soccer player in history, to tell us about his love for the game — how he got started and how other kids can, too. The 31-year-old Rote, whose father was a former football great with the New York Giants, played pro soccer for eight years and is currently a TV and radio commentator and vice president of the Memphis Americans Indoor Soccer team.

Richard Pilling/Focus On Sports

Rote in action and (inset) getting an early lesson from football star-father, Kyle Sr.

One summer afternoon, when I was 16, an Englishman drove by my high school in Dallas and saw a group of us playing something approximating the sport of soccer. We were playing on a football field with football goals. We didn't have a soccer ball, so we used a volleyball. At first, he wasn't sure it was soccer. Then he got angry. He jumped out of his car and stopped us in midstride. He was quite emotional about the travesty we were committing. We were ruining the game that he had grown up with, that he loved. So he took a little time to teach us that day — the only coaching we ever got in school.

That was my introduction to soccer. My teammates — most of whom played high school football, basketball and baseball — and I were looking for a way to keep in shape during the summer. This happened to be about the time of the 1966 World Cup, and we had a chance to see Pelé and other greats running around the field for 90 minutes without stopping. It made me think, if I can incorporate that into my own football and basketball playing, I'd be a much better football and basketball player. So, as a way to keep in touch with each other and to have fun, we started playing soccer. We were self-coached and self-motivated. We'd all get together after work and play from 5 until 8.

Had it been just a group of guys from gym class, I'm sure there would have been tremendous laughing and teasing from outsiders. But because of the quality of the athletes involved — the starting quarterback, the captains of the baseball and basketball teams

Dating game. If you catch the Monday-morning blahs tomorrow, imagine you could just erase the next 10 days. That really happened 400 years ago, when Pope Gregory XIII ordered a new calendar to replace one that had Easter gradually slipping toward summer. The "Gregorian" calendar simply skipped 10 days, so Thursday, October 4, 1582, was followed by Friday, October 15. So you don't miss two important dates this year, mark them on your calendar: Sunday, October 10, for the start of another "Masterpiece Theatre" season on PBS with To Serve Them All My Days—a remarkable drama about a remarkable man who turns from war to teaching. Then, check October 12 for the start of an all-new "Mystery!" season with Sweeney Todd, "the demon barber" who guaranteed customers a close shave.

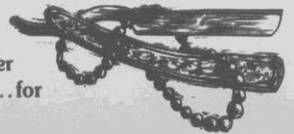

School daze. Adapted from novelist R. F. Delderfield's "unashamedly autobiographical" novel of the same name, To Serve Them All My Days tells the tale of a shell-shocked World War I vet who teaches history in a private school. His rich and rare life unfolds—and enfolds you—over 13 weeks, and you'll come to see why the series won star John Duttine the British equivalent of an Emmy Award for Best Actor.

"No thanks. We're being brought to you by a grant."

4 and 20 black beards . . . Sweeney Todd opened on Broadway in 1979 to chills and cheers. Now "Mystery!" will give you a seat "front row center" in your living room for a brand new version based on the original 1846 story. It's about a London barber with a deadly razor—and the friendly proprietress of a bakery shop who fancies pearls, and grisly "meat pies." Better mark that October 12 Tuesday in bright red... for the "crime of your life."

Gore, and more. Anthony Skipling knows he's going to die, and when. Problem is, no one believes him—until one murder follows another, and another. . . Whodunit? "Mystery!" knows. You will too, if you watch Dying Day. It starts October 19. Next, try Father Brown, a truly "divine" detective. His down-to-earth sleuthing comes your way on November 2 for a three-week stay. Beginning on November 30, you've got a date with Melissa, a series about a man accused of murdering his wife—at a birthday party he never attended. Then, starting December 21, it's Quiet As A Nun, a tale of murder most foul . . . in a convent. All from "Mystery!"—the best of the bloody lot, brought to you, by a grant from Mobil, on Public Broadcasting Service stations. Check local listings for broadcast schedules.

CREATE YOUR OWN PERFUME

Just as the great perfumers in France's Grasse region created perfumes such as Chloé, Oscar de la Renta, and other classics, you now can develop for yourself, a unique perfume at a fraction of the cost. Today's great perfumes sell for as high as $170.00 per ounce. Buy them and you will be in a select company. But if you create your own perfume you will be in an exclusive category that only the world's wealthiest women achieve. A Princess, Empress and the wives and friends of tycoons or oil Sheiks can afford to have their own exclusive perfume. Charles V's Perfume Laboratory can give you this priceless exclusivity. Even more, you can sense the creative power of bringing into reality your own perfume.

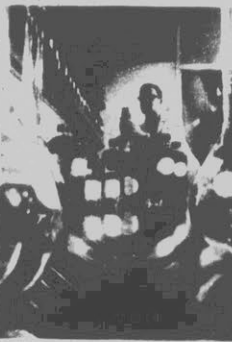

The Perfume Laboratory provides the ingredients necessary to begin learning the art of perfumery. You need no special skills. Your level of smell and the sensory perception of scents are with you and you use these as you combine the different perfume bases. The different scents, the funnel, bottles and perfume blotters in the Perfume Laboratory gives you the chance to create your own perfume.

This limited supply of Charles V's Perfume Laboratory when exhausted may never be replaced. It is a special purchase which is being offered at the unheard price of $9.95, and I may return the unused laboratory for full credit if I am not satisfied.

Please send me _____ sets of Charles V Perfume Laboratories at $9.95 plus $1.55 for postage and handling. If I am not fully satisfied, I may return this to you within 10 days and receive my money back for this purchase. I understand that delivery will be made within 4 weeks.

SOCCER

Wall of angry fans at a South American match: Many referees wear disguises and sometimes must be rescued from the stadium by helicopter.

— people developed a quick respect for the game. Our overall agility improved so dramatically and we came into the football season in such great shape that it was obvious what soccer could do.

The sport has blossomed quite a bit in this country since then. Soccer programs at the youth and high school levels are available all over the U.S. But we're still missing our share of truly outstanding natural athletes. Most are still choosing football, basketball or baseball, although the situation is changing rapidly. Ten years ago, soccer was a second-class sport here, a catchall activity for the lesser-skilled kids. Today, American youngsters are playing at highly competitive levels. In particular, our girls' teams have shown remarkable skill and progress.

The professional leagues are providing an example for youngsters, and indoor soccer, developed by Americans for American fans, has achieved staggering and sudden popularity. It may be that the indoor version, with its faster pace and higher scores, is a type of soccer Americans can finally become excited about.

Playing soccer is a barrier breaker. It destroys social, cultural, sexual and age barriers. It is played by men, women and children. It can be played by people with any kind of social and economic background.

Unlike most team sports, soccer offers unusual freedom. And yet, with that freedom, there is responsibility. Every player becomes the quarterback, constantly assessing the defense, constantly making decisions.

There's no helmet, as in football, and people can express themselves visually. The facial expressions, the body gestures are such that, like a good actor or actress, a soccer player can let everyone know exactly what's going on. The man in the last row of the stadium, 150 yards away, can feel intimate with the player.

There is, of course, a negative side to this intimacy with the fans. In 1967 El Salvador and Honduras played an international soccer game and declared war after the match. It's difficult for people in our country to understand, but in some places soccer is the only game in town. In Philadelphia, for instance, if the Phillies have a bad season, there are always the Eagles. If the Phillies and the Eagles have bad seasons, there are the 76ers. If the 76ers...

But take a textile worker in Argentina who makes $2 a day. He works five and a half days a week, and Saturday at noon he has a choice: He can either have lunch or, for the same price, go to a soccer match. While we Americans use discretionary income on sporting events, this man sees the match as an important cultural event. He was born in Buenos Aires and is probably going to die there, as did his father and grandfather and great-grandfather. He grew up playing soccer and following the local team.

So on Saturday, he makes that choice — to go to the soccer game. He goes to the game hungry and his team must do well for him to be satisfied. If not, he's still hungry and, emotionally, he doesn't have another team next week to turn to. It's certainly not acceptable, but it's easy to understand why problems occur.

It makes things particularly difficult for referees, whose decisions can affect the outcome much more in soccer than in most other sports. That's why many countries design extensive escape routes for referees. On occasion, a helicopter will come right into the stadium to pick them up. Some referees wear disguises, either in private life or on the field, because they cannot risk being identified.

Americans have so many different diversions — year-round sports, TV, radio — that I don't think it's possible for soccer ever to achieve the prominent position in our culture that it has in most of the world. But it can have a place. There may even be some advantages to soccer's late start in America. Up to this point most faculty. It can be quite healthy for the kids to see the history teacher out running around on a soccer field.

When it was all over, the woman who had set up the clinic for the school said, "Well, kids, what do you think of the Dallas Tornado?" The students started screaming and going wild and we were very proud. We'd shown them how much fun soccer could be and they loved it. And then she said, "I'm so impressed. When I asked you to come here, I had no idea what all you could do. . . . But I still don't see how you can do all those things on ice skates."

We knew we still had a long way to go.

My parents' love was unconditional, not based on how I performed.

coaches and most parents don't know enough about the game to be as domineering as they are in baseball. A kid comes off the soccer field with sweat on his face and his parents don't say, "Hey, you struck out." Most of the coaches here are very loving parents who understand that coaching knowledge is not as important as just being there. The goal is participation in the program rather than winning the championship. Unfortunately, after the kids have been playing for a few years the parents can become fanatics wanting to win league championships.

When I was growing up, I would come home from a Little League baseball game, and my parents would never ask, "How many hits did you get?" or "Did you win?" or anything like that. It was always, "Did you have a good time?", "Did you make new friends?" or "Are you O.K.?" I grew up knowing that my parents' love for me was unconditional, not based on how I performed. And that, to me, is the critical goal for parents — to make sure that our young people are loved unconditionally and understand that winning has nothing to do with scores — but rather with performing to the maximum of their ability.

I've been running soccer camps and clinics for years trying to convey the essence of the sport. Once, while I was still playing with the Dallas Tornado professional team, we performed for a small-town high school in Texas. For about an hour, we gave a Harlem Globetrotters type of routine, using just our heads in a volleyball game against the girls' team and then playing soccer against the

A Brown Bagger's Bumper of Beautiful Bite-Intos

By Marilyn Hansen

We know that you are a sizeable bunch, some 80 million people across the country who carry lunch to work or school. In fact, according to the Brown Bag Institute of Greens Farms, Conn., 200 million brown-bag lunches are carried every week; 50 percent of all households brown-bag in a typical week. These days Americans brown-bag for various reasons: Some of us want to economize, some to simply relax and have lunch at our fingertips, some go to the gym, jog or walk, and still others prefer home-cooked foods for flavor, nutritional needs, or diets.

Whether you're a brown-bagger or not, these engaging recipes will introduce you to a new world of lunch-time delights and turn your colleagues green with envy.

MARINATED CHICKEN VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) chicken broth
- 1/2 cup white wine vinegar
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons soy sauce
- 1 tablespoon Oriental sesame oil
- 1 tablespoon silvered fresh ginger root
- 1 large clove garlic, minced
- Dash Tabasco
- 2 large cucumbers, halved, seeded and sliced
- 1 cup diagonally sliced celery
- 1/2 cup diagonally sliced green onion
- 2 cups halved cherry tomatoes
- 1 can (5 oz.) chunk white chicken
- Shredded lettuce

1. For marinade: In a large bowl, combine chicken broth, vinegar, vegetable oil, soy sauce and sesame oil. Stir in ginger root, garlic and Tabasco.
2. Add cucumber, celery, green onion, cherry tomatoes and chicken to marinade; mix well. Cover and chill overnight.
3. To tote: Spoon desired amount into covered container. Pack shredded lettuce into plastic bag. Serve marinated chicken over shredded lettuce in small paper bowl or plate.

Makes 4 servings

APPLE GINGER SALAD

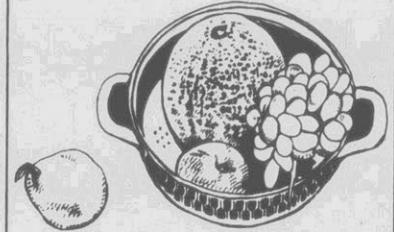

- 4 tart apples, Granny Smith, or McIntosh
- 2 tablespoons fresh ginger root, chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped celery
- 1/2 cup raisins
- 1/2 cup chopped natural almonds
- 1/4 cup lime juice
- 1/4 cup orange juice
- 2 tablespoons honey

1. If using red apples, peel three, leaving the fourth unpeeled to add color; core and dice all apples.

2. In bowl, combine apples, ginger root, celery, raisins, almonds, lime juice, orange juice and honey. Cover and refrigerate until chilled.
3. Pack into small covered containers to tote. Serve with cottage cheese and slices of banana bread or pumpkin bread.

Makes 4 servings

FRUIT SALAD

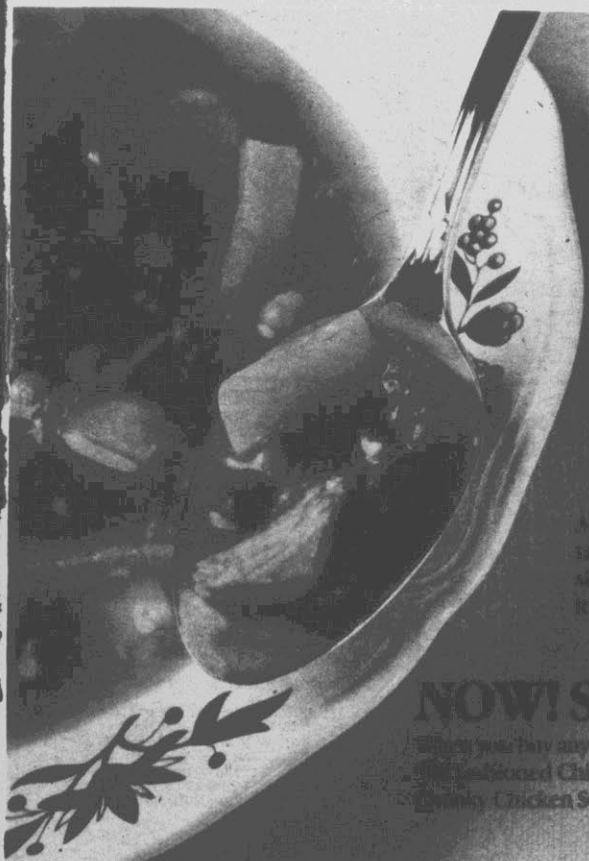

- 1/2 cup cubed melon, watermelon, or halved seedless grapes
- 1/2 cup fresh or canned pineapple chunks in natural juice
- 1 cup diced fruit: apples, pears, nectarines, plums
- 1/4 cup orange juice

1. Combine fruits and juice; mix well. Vary fruit according to your taste and what is in season. Cover and chill.
2. Pack into small container to tote, eat alone or mix with yogurt. Makes 2 servings

BROWN BAGGER'S

TABBOULEH

- 1 cup bulgur wheat, * rinsed
- 2 cups boiling water
- 2 cups peeled, diced tomatoes
- 1 cup finely chopped scallions
- 3 tablespoons chopped fresh mint, or 2 teaspoons dry mint flakes, crumbled
- 1 cup finely chopped parsley
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 2 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
- Romaine lettuce leaves, or cucumber slices

1. Place bulgur in medium bowl and pour boiling water over it. Allow to sit for at least 1 hour to absorb moisture.
2. Drain bulgur, turn into large bowl and add tomatoes, scallions, mint, parsley, olive oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper.
3. Cover and chill well.
4. Tabbouleh can be eaten with romaine leaves or cucumber slices. It's also great with pita bread.

Makes 6 cups

MEDITERRANEAN MINESTRONE

- 2 lbs. beef soup bones with meat, shin, etc.
- 3 quarts water, or beef stock
- 1 can (28 oz.) tomatoes in puree or juice, undrained
- 2 medium onions, quartered
- 1/2 cup coarsely chopped parsley
- 1 1/2 tablespoons salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons basil leaves, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 cloves garlic, crushed
- 2 cups sliced carrots
- 2 cups sliced celery
- 4 cups (12 oz.) uncooked shell macaroni
- 2 packages (9-oz. size) frozen Italian green beans
- Parmesan cheese, grated

1. Place soup bones in large soup pot; add water. Bring to a boil; skim surface of liquid, if desired.
2. Add tomatoes, onions, parsley, salt, basil leaves, pepper and garlic.

3. Bring to a boil again; reduce heat, cover and simmer 1 hour.
4. Add carrots and celery; cover and simmer 1/2 hour longer or until meat is fork tender.
5. Remove bones from pot. Trim meat from bones; discard bones and return meat to pot.
6. Return soup to boiling, add the macaroni and frozen green beans. Stir until soup returns to boil.
7. Cover and simmer 20 to 25 minutes longer or until macaroni is tender. Stir occasionally. Serve with grated Parmesan cheese.
8. To tote: Ladle desired portion into wide-mouth vacuum container. Add a sprinkle of grated Parmesan cheese. Refrigerate remaining soup, or freeze it.

Makes 10 servings

WHEAT GERM GRANOLA SPRINKLE

- 3 cups rolled oats, quick or regular
- 1 1/2 cups wheat germ
- 1/2 cup chopped almonds
- 1/2 cup packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup flaked coconut
- 1/2 cup sesame seeds
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil
- 1 cup dark raisins

1. Combine oats, wheat germ, almonds, brown sugar, coconut and sesame seeds; mix well. Add oil and toss thoroughly.
2. Spread mixture evenly in a large shallow pan (a jelly-roll pan is perfect). Bake in preheated 300° oven for 30 minutes, stirring every 10 minutes.
3. Stir in raisins and cool. Store in air-tight container in refrigerator.

Makes 6 cups

Note: Serve as a snack, cereal, or sprinkle on top of yogurt, cottage cheese, fresh or canned fruits.

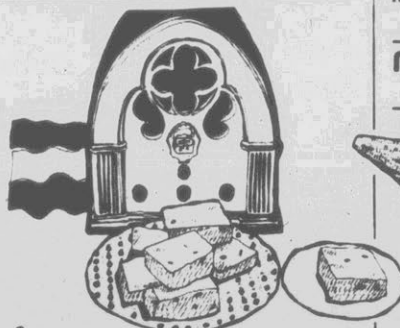

COTTAGE CHEESE SPREAD

- 1/2 cup low-fat cottage cheese
- 1/2 small onion, chopped, or 2 green onions, chopped
- 2 tablespoons chopped green bell pepper
- 2 tablespoons finely chopped carrot
- 1/4 cup finely chopped celery
- Dash salt, optional
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. In a small bowl, mix all ingredients thoroughly. Pack into container, cover and refrigerate.
2. Use as a sandwich filling, or pack desired amount into small covered container.

Makes 2 servings

DEPRESSION CAKE

- 2 cups sugar
- 2 cups strong coffee, water, or apple juice
- 1/2 cup shortening
- 2 cups dark raisins, or diced pitted prunes
- 1 medium-size apple, peeled and shredded
- 2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- 1 teaspoon ground allspice
- 1 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1 cup chopped walnuts, almonds, or pecans

1. In a medium saucepan, simmer sugar, coffee, shortening, raisins and apple together for 10 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool 10 minutes.
2. In a large bowl, mix together flour, baking soda, baking powder, all the spices and walnuts. Pour cooled sugar-raisin mixture into dry ingredients; mix well.
3. Pour batter into greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch pan and bake in preheated 350° oven for 25 to 30 minutes until center of cake springs back when lightly pressed with finger. Cut into squares when cool. This is a moist cake, it keeps well and can be frozen.

Makes 12 squares

Note: This is an old-fashioned recipe from the Depression days of the 30's. It contains no eggs.

MARINATED GARDEN VEGETABLE SALAD

- 1/2 cup vinegar
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1/4 teaspoon sugar
- Dash salt, optional
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard
- 1 small garlic clove, crushed
- 1 cup seeded, diced cucumbers
- 1 cup peeled, diced tomatoes
- 1/2 cup diced green or red bell pepper
- 2 cups shredded green cabbage
- 1 cup thinly sliced carrots
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced radishes
- 1/4 cup diced onion

1. In medium-size bowl, combine vinegar, vegetable oil, sugar, salt, pepper and mustard together; beat with fork or small wire whisk to blend.
2. Add garlic, cucumbers, tomatoes, green pepper, cabbage, carrots, radishes and onion; mix well.
3. Cover and refrigerate several hours or overnight to marinate. Will keep for several days.

Makes 6 servings

Vegetable variations: Chopped raw broccoli or cauliflower, diced celery, sliced raw zucchini, or drained canned chick peas.

ORANGE CREAM CHEESE

- 1 package (8 oz.) fat-reduced cream cheese
- 1 teaspoon grated orange rind
- 1 orange, peeled, sectioned and diced
- 1 tablespoon honey

1. Mix all ingredients until well combined. Use as a spread for whole wheat, pita, or pumpkin bread. A generous handful of fresh alfalfa sprouts makes a great addition.

Makes 4 servings

BROWN BAGGER'S TIPS

● To save time in the morning, pack all cold foods as dinner is cleared and refrigerate. Add hot or frozen items just before you leave.

● Freeze small cans of juice to pack with lunch. They will keep other foods cold and be just the right temperature by lunch time.

● Wash and save small, sturdy plastic containers with lids to carry small portions of cottage cheese, salads and fruit.

● If you make up a panful of brownies or a moist, unfrosted cake, cut into large squares and wrap individually in small plastic bags; then freeze.

● Old favorites: Save a piece of fried chicken or meat loaf from last night's dinner for the next day's lunch.

● An old lunch-bag steady, tuna is now being processed into a 50-percent-reduced salt product and compares favorably in taste to oil- and spring water-packed tuna.

Try pilchard, a Pacific sardine processed like tuna and packed in similar cans. Nutritionally, pilchard compares favorably to tuna — and at a lower cost. Sardines are also good for brown-bag nutrition value: They are low cost and surprisingly high in calcium.

● Make various kinds of breads — pita, whole grain, banana, pumpkin, etc. Freeze extra loaves until ready to use.

● Look for specially designed brown-bag products: vacuum containers, insulated bags, containers with special sections to freeze, paper goods and plastic tableware.

● Be conscious of good food-preparation methods. Keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold in vacuum containers, or use specially designed freeze-chill containers to place next to foods. Refrigerate cold food at work if possible.

20 ■ FAMILY WEEKLY, AUGUST 3, 1984

BROWN BAGGER'S

WHOLE WHEAT BRAN BREAD

- 1 cup boiling water
- 1/2 cup bulgur
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 cup bran cereal
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- 4 teaspoons salt
- 6 tablespoons margarine
- 1/2 cup molasses
- 1/2 cup very warm water (105° to 115°)
- 2 packages active dry yeast
- 3 cups un sifted whole-wheat flour
- 2 1/2 to 3 cups un sifted all-purpose flour

1. Pour boiling water over bulgur; let stand until water is absorbed, about 20 minutes.
2. In saucepan, combine water and milk; heat to boiling.
3. Stir in soaked bulgur, cereal, sugar, salt, margarine and molasses. Cool to lukewarm.
4. Dissolve yeast in 1/2 cup very warm water in large bowl; stir until dissolved.
5. Add lukewarm cereal mixture and whole-wheat flour; beat until smooth.
6. Add enough all-purpose flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board and knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 minutes.
7. Place in greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place free from draft until doubled, about 1 hour.
8. Punch dough down. Turn out onto lightly floured board; divide in half. Place into greased 9x5x3-inch loaf pans and let rise in warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.
9. Bake in preheated 400° oven for 45 minutes or until crust is dark brown and loaves sound hollow when rapped.
10. Remove from pans and cool on wire racks. Cut with serrated knife.

Makes 2 loaves

FRESH MUSHROOM CONSOMME

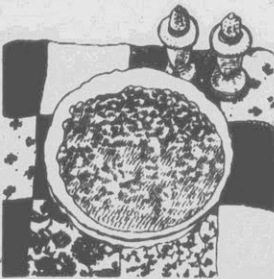

- 2 cans (10 1/2-oz. size) beef consomme
- 2 cups water
- 3 cups thickly sliced mushrooms
- 1/2 cup chopped onion

- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 clove garlic, crushed
- 1/2 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/2 teaspoon marjoram leaves, crushed
- Dash Tabasco

1. Combine all ingredients in medium saucepan. Bring to boiling point; reduce heat, cover and simmer 15 minutes.
2. To tote: Ladle desired portion into wide-mouth vacuum jar and cover. Refrigerate leftover.

Makes 6 servings

CHILI BEAN DIP

- 1 1/2 cups cooked, drained kidney beans
- 1 tablespoon vinegar
- 1 teaspoon chili powder
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
- Dash Tabasco
- Dash salt, optional
- 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion

1. In bowl of food processor with metal chopping blade, place beans, vinegar, chili powder, ground cumin, Tabasco, salt and onion. Process until smooth. Or mix by hand, mashing beans with wooden spoon.
2. Use mixture as a dip or spread for crisp raw vegetables: carrots, bell pepper strips, celery sticks, cherry tomatoes, broccoli flowerets, zucchini sticks, cucumber sticks. Pack desired amount in small covered container to tote.

Makes about 4 servings

STAR-STUDED SANDWICHES

- Sliced mushrooms, red and green peppers, red onion and Swiss or Jarlsberg cheese.
- Sliced hard-cooked egg, sliced tomato, sprouts, sliced cucumber.
- Liverwurst or liver paté, crisp-cooked bacon, cole slaw on pumpernickel.
- Tuna curry with currants and peanuts, shredded lettuce.
- Thinly sliced Genoa salami or pepperoni, sliced mozzarella, roasted peppers, lettuce.
- Cream cheese, sliced cucumbers, sliced radishes, shredded dried beef, lettuce.

My Feet Were Killing Me...Until I Discovered the Miracle in Germany!

IT was the European trip we had always dreamed about. We had the time and money to go where we wanted—see what we wanted. But I soon learned that money and time don't mean much when your feet hurt too much to walk. After a few days of sightseeing my feet were killing me.

Oh, my husband tried to keep me going. In Paris I limped through Notre Dame and along the Champs-Élysées. And I went up in the Eiffel Tower although I can't honestly say I remember the view. My feet were so tired and sore my whole body ached. While everybody else was having a great time, I was in my hotel room. I didn't even feel like sitting in a sidewalk cafe.

The whole trip was like that until we got to Hamburg, Germany. There, by accident, I happened to hear about an exciting break-through for anyone who suffers from sore, aching feet and legs.

This wonderful invention was a custom formed foot support called Flexible Featherspring®. When I got a pair and slipped them into my shoes my pain disappeared almost instantly. The flexible shock absorbing support they gave my feet was like cradling them on a cushion of air. I could walk, stand, even run. The relief was truly a miracle.

And just one pair was all I needed. I found they could be worn in sandals and open-backed shoes they're completely invisible—why, even my husband could wear them.

Imagine how dumbfounded I was to discover these miraculous devices were sold only in Europe. Right then I determined that we would share the miracle we discovered in Germany with our own countrymen.

In the last nine years over a quarter million Americans of all ages—many with foot problems far more severe than mine—have experienced this blessed relief for themselves.

MADE FOR YOUR FEET ALONE

Here's why Feathersprings work for them and why they can work for you. These supports are like nothing you've ever seen before. They are custom formed and made for your feet alone! Unlike conventional devices, they actually imitate the youthful elastic support that Nature originally intended your feet to have.

NO RISK OFFER

Whatever your problem—corns, calluses, pain in the balls of your feet, burning nerve ends, painful ankles, old injuries, backaches or just generally sore, aching feet, Flexible Feathersprings will bring you relief with every step you take or your money back.

Don't suffer pain and discomfort needlessly. If your feet hurt, the miracle of Germany can help you. Write for more detailed information. There is no obligation whatsoever. No salesman will call. Just fill out the coupon below and mail it today.

WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT THE MIRACLE:

Received my wife's Feathersprings two days ago. They are super—neither of us can believe the results. She has had terrible feet for years; already no pain.

Incidentally, her sore knee is much better . . . As a retired physician, this result is amazing.

Dr. C.O.C./Tucson, Arizona

After wearing Feathersprings for 3 months, I would never want to be without them. It's so wonderful to walk without every step hurting. They have helped my corns, ingrown toe nails, and my legs and back are so much better.

Mrs. C.F.E.,
Sarasota, Fla.

"Since I've been wearing Feathersprings I have been able to wear shoes I wasn't able to wear before. Mainly because of my corns and calluses. Thanks a hundred times over."

A.H./East Orange,
New Jersey

"My husband felt a great relief and no more pain. They are truly an answer to our prayers. Only wish that he had heard of them twenty years ago."

Mrs. F.J.S./Metairie,
Louisiana

"At the present time I still wear the Feathersprings and indeed they perform well after seven years of use."

G.M.G. Dallas, Texas

"Wish I had believed your ad five years ago."

BEHAVIOR

When Your Child Uses Naughty Words

By Roberta Plutzik

Dan Nevins

One afternoon, 5-year-old Johnny used a four-letter word his parents had never spoken in his presence. Johnny knew this, and it made him all the more proud to have the word in his vocabulary. His mother became angry, washed Johnny's mouth out with soap and sent him to his room. Several days later, Johnny used the word again.

Using dirty words is a type of rebellious behavior frequently displayed by children — much to their parents' dismay. The good news is that parents can discourage the practice, though long-term success calls not for harsh treatment but for a gentle yet firm response.

The main reason children use forbidden language (slang terms, often carrying negative implications, for bodily functions, genitals and sexual acts) is in order to defy their parents. "Children get a feeling of power from challenging parents by using words that are not permitted," explains Dr. Renatus Hartogs, a New York City psychiatrist and author of Four-Letter Word Games (Evans Co.). "By using these words, children dare and provoke their parents. They particularly enjoy how a parent loses composure." Dr. Linda Futterman, a psychoanalyst in private practice in New York City who has worked with children, says that "this language stirs up discomfort and anxiety in parents because it forces them to think about their own sexuality."

Since many children start using forbidden language between the ages of 4 and 7, parents often ask how they learn such words. Experts respond by explaining that the young child pays special attention to language whispered clandestinely or shouted in a heated argument (within or outside the home). Mastering dirty words takes on inordinate importance for children precisely because the children sense that such words are not allowed. "All people, including children, get excitement from breaking a taboo," explains Dr. Hartogs.

When a child reaches the pre-adolescent period (ages 8 to 11), dirty words serve another purpose. "This is a time when many children begin to be sexually active through the language they use," Dr. Hartogs explains. They start talking about sex, often using dirty words.

Whatever the child's reasons for using this language, there are ways parents can cope with the problem. The most important thing for parents to remember is to be gentle. Even though the child's use of dirty words may represent a challenge to parental authority, punishing a child harshly for using taboo words may make the child more determined to use them than before, says Dr. Futterman. A better approach is to try to talk to the child about the underlying feelings that are causing him or her to use bad language while making it clear that this behavior isn't acceptable.

Rather than forbidding the use of such language, the parents should explain that these words simply don't impress them. Dr. Hartogs and other experts agree that children who are only trying out bad language and don't intend to keep it up, will soon grow bored, especially if the parent seems bored and unimpressed.

While moderate use of bad language is normal and doesn't indicate that a child is deeply traumatized, occasionally the prolonged use of dirty words can indicate a child's deep hostility to parents and other authority figures. If gentle discouragement fails, it might be a good idea to consult your local physician, school counselor or psychologist.

And remember, parents who use taboo language, even if only occasionally, can't expect their offspring not to parrot those words. Forbidding the children to do so under these circumstances will only undermine confidence in the parents. FW helping them."

If a child is having emotional problems — as a result of his parents' recent divorce, for instance — then he should not be left by himself. "When children are subjected to traumatic events, they tend to regress and can become frightened," explains Dr. Hermit.

When parents feel their child is ready, they should proceed by leaving him for short periods of time to see how he does. If he doesn't obey instructions, becomes overly afraid or can't handle little problems that pop up, he probably isn't ready to be left alone right now.

One last point: How your child handles himself without a baby sitter has a lot to do with how he's been raised. Dr. Hermit feels parents should prepare their children to cope with being on their own by being upfront with them. "Children who have always been told by their parents when they were going out, where they were going and when they would be back, are able to adapt much better than children whose parents snuck out the back door as soon as the sitter arrived."

Above all, being open allows a child to develop a sense of trust in regard to his parents, Dr. Hermit adds. "He will learn that separations do not mean complete abandonment. By building your child's capacity for dealing with separations now, he will be a stronger child, rather than a dependent one." FW

By Anne Moyer

After leaving her 7-year-old twin sons alone for an hour, a Connecticut mother returned to find them gone. Later, she learned that they had crossed a busy highway and walked to their baby sitter's house. Obviously, they weren't ready to be left alone yet.

How can you tell when children are ready? It's not always a matter of age. A mature 9-year-old, for example, may be left safely, while an impulsive 13-year-old may not. But, the beginning of adolescence (11 or 12) might be a good time to consider whether or not a child can forego a baby sitter. "This is the point of development when children have a more rational sense of right and wrong," says Dr. Rogelio Hermit, assistant director of the Children's Unit, Medical College of Pennsylvania at Eastern Pennsylvania Psychiatric Institute.

One clue is knowing how well a child copes with everyday problems, points out Dr. Hermit. "You'll also want to observe how well he or she is able to communicate with you and other people. Should an emergency arise when he is alone, he may have to call on someone else and must be able to clearly verbalize the situation."

No matter how mature your child is, there are precautions you should take before leaving him or her alone. "One thing a child needs is a backup system, a neighbor he can turn to in case of an emergency," emphasizes Dr. Judith Kestenberg, clinical professor of psychiatry at New York University School of Medicine and co-director of the Center for Parents and Children in Roslyn, N.Y. Also, do you have proper locks? Does your child know how to operate them? Do you have smoke detectors? Have you had practice fire drills? Are emergency phone numbers easily accessible?

If there are several children in the house, parents should be careful not to overburden the oldest sibling with too much responsibility. "Parents should not be gone too frequently or for long periods," Dr. Hermit cautions, "because if the oldest child feels too overtaxed in his capacity to be responsible, he may neglect his siblings instead of

The Name Game

By John E. Gibson

tain's University of Lancaster offers an easy method for remembering people's names The method involves first converting the name into an image that it is remembered easily. For example, Fishter can be made into fish stir and be imagined as a fish stirring, and Gordon can become garden. The next step involves choosing a facial feature and linking the image of the name to it. Thus if Mr. Gordon has a large nose, an image could be formed of a garden growing over his nose. FW

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. First names can play an important role in first impressions.
2. A name change can reflect a personality change.
3. It is so common for a woman to change her name upon marriage that this tradition has no particular psychological impact.
4. If you want someone to remember your name there's nothing much you can do about it except hope that he has a good memory.
5. If you want to remember someone else's name, there's a simple technique for doing so.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a study of first names and first meetings, a team of Florida State University investigators discovered that "in initial encounters with others, there is often only a limited amount of information which may be utilized in forming a first impression, and the piece of information most frequently disclosed in such situations is the person's first name." Thus, the researchers observed, the impression created by a first name may well be a crucial factor in the overall first impression.
2. True. According to psychological studies at Louisiana State University, the desire to change one's name indicates the surfacing of new facets of personality which have been previously submerged, along with a corresponding change in attitude and outlook on life. Or it can mean an attempt "to find oneself" through selection of a new name which seems to express one's true identity.
3. False. The Louisiana State University investigators concluded that "although for most women the name change may be of little significance and for some a sought-after honor, for others it may represent a significant loss and the beginnings of a pattern of self-depreciation and submission of one's personality to that of another."
4. False. A Cleveland State University study observed that when subjects were told a person's name immediately upon meeting that person, they often had trouble recalling the name later. But when subjects had the chance to talk to an individual and familiarize themselves with the new person first and then learned the name, it was easier for them to recall the person's name later. This suggests that if you want someone to remember your name, don't introduce yourself until after you and he have had a little time to get acquainted.
5. True. A team of specialists at Bri-

1 Million Famous LCD Quartz Calendar Watches To Be Sold For Only $5 Apiece In Mammoth Publicity Drive

All who wish to apply for a watch should write to the company before Midnight, October 31, 1982

NEW YORK—One million famous LCD Quartz calendar watches will be sold as part of a publicity campaign for only $5 apiece to the first one million persons who apply in writing to the company before Midnight, October 31, 1982.

These are the same nationally publicized LCD Quartz watches advertised in The New York Times, TV Guide, Parade and other leading publications, with a built-in computer so powerful it never needs winding and which is accurate to within seconds per month. Time and date are displayed in full Quartz digital mode; and a unique "backlight" allows viewing even at night or in total darkness.

These famous LCD Quartz calendar watches will not be sold at this price by the company in any store. To obtain one at this price, apply in writing to the company address (below) no later than Midnight, October 31, 1982.

Each watch carries a full one-year money back guarantee and will be replaced by the company, free of charge, if it ever fails to function.

There is a limit of two (2) watches per address at this price, but requests which are mailed early enough (before October 25) are permitted to order up to 5 watches.

To apply for an LCD Quartz calendar watch, mail your name and address and this original printed notice together with $5 for each watch desired. Add only $2 shipping and handling no matter how many watches you are requesting. NOTE: Specify model and color choice for each watch as follows: Men's Gold (Item #20710A), Men's Silver (Item #20720B), Ladies' Gold (Item #20730C), Ladies' Silver (Item #20740D). Prescription Drugs' Side Effects Revealed

(Peachtree City, Georgia)—
FC&A, a Peachtree City, Georgia, book publisher, announced today the release of a new, easy-to-read book for the general public: Prescription Drugs Effects and Side Effects. It reveals the little-known side effects of over 200 of the most frequently prescribed drugs; side effects which are known to few people outside the medical profession.

The Desirable Effects Of Drugs

You take drugs prescribed by your doctor for their desirable effects, like relieving pain, combating infection, birth control, aiding sleep, calming down, fighting coughs, colds or allergies, or regulating heartbeat and blood pressure.

Undesirable Side Effects

Unfortunately, these drugs can also cause undesirable side effects, such as diarrhea, dizziness, drowsiness, dry mouth, depression, headache, insomnia, upset stomach, blurred vision, muscle cramps, rashes, constipation, fever, nasal or lung congestion, high or low blood pressure, fearfulness, excitement, ringing in the ears, loss of appetite, loss of balance, fluid retention, sleepiness, nightmares, decreased sex drive, or even heart failure.

Contains Latest Information On Each Drug

Prescription Drugs Effects and Side Effects was written with the assistance of two pharmacists. They have helped to ensure that the latest information has been included in the 1982-83 edition. More than 200 of the most often prescribed drugs are discussed. Information is given in easy-to-understand language instead of hard-to-understand medical terms. Descriptions of drugs are listed in alphabetical order for quick, dictionary-style reference.

Prescription Drugs Effects & Side Effects

Interactions Side Effects Money Saving Generic Names

Easy To Read

For each drug, the book has information on the brand name, any money-saving generic name, intended good effects, possible side effects, warnings, and possible interactions with other drugs or foods. Other chapters in the book discuss questions people ask about taking prescription drugs, how to save money by asking your doctor to prescribe drugs with generic names, and definitions of drug categories. (For example: a drug may be called an "analgesic"—analgesic means "pain reliever".)

How To Help Your Doctor

When you use this book to learn what side effects might occur from drugs you are taking, you can tell your doctor if you have any of them. If the side effects are greater than expected, he may then adjust your dosage, discontinue your medication or switch you to a different drug without such side effects.

You, the Jury: What to Do When The Call Comes

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

The verdict rang out clearly: Not guilty by reason of insanity. John C. Hinckley Jr., who on March 30, 1981 fired a volley of bullets at President Ronald Reagan, had been acquitted on 13 counts including attempted assassination.

The verdict stunned the courtroom and soon reverberated across the na-

(where some 97 percent of litigation takes place) starts with a notice that comes in the mail to the prospective juror. The names of jurors are collected for the most part by a random selection of registered voters.

Generally, those summoned for jury duty have to serve if they're at least 18 years old, literate and U.S. citizens. There are exemptions; for example, if your health is severely impaired, if you are the guardian of small children, or if you're 65 or older. Exemptions vary from state to state and are listed on the notice you receive.

Most states also allow postponements. If you find it inconvenient or impossible to serve when summoned (if you've already paid for a vacation), a telephone call or letter to the office listed in the notice asking for a postponement will suffice, along with an show up for jury duty? Be prepared to wait in one of the jury assembly rooms before being called. Veterans of jury service advise you to bring a good book, cards and coins for any brief telephone calls. TV, usually available, gives many their first dose of daytime "soaps."

Once prospective jurors are called into the courtroom, attorneys are allowed to question them on any matter which may disclose prejudice, and they are allowed to challenge a certain number of appointed jurors; the number is set by the court. (If you're chosen and the trial is a long one, you may be excused for a good reason.)

"Lawyers are on their best behavior while questioning prospective jurors," says New York trial lawyer Aaron Broder, "in order to win their trust and confidence and generally to 'make points.'"

In recent years there has been controversy over the use by some lawyers of sophisticated methods of jury selection. "These days, because so much is at stake financially, particularly in corporate and personal-injury litigation, lawyers clamor for a more scientific approach to choosing jurors — who will lean toward deliberating for their side," says Lori B. Andrews, a Chicago-based attorney who writes on the role of psychology in the courtroom. "Many lawyers have openly admitted enlisting the help of experts." It's perfectly legal, reports Andrews, but some question its ethics.

Jury research firms have sprung up to help lawyers in this area by using techniques that include staging rehearsals with mock jurors before the actual trial.

One lawyer, Andrews relates, hired researchers to profile the jurors most likely to favor his client, a high school girl paralyzed in a crash while in a car driven by the defendant. They reported that the best jurors would be ones who placed a high value on the future that was lost to the girl, and these included young, unmarried renters with incomes under $15,000 — people who had high hopes for their own future.

The vote is cast in the 1957 movie drama of the trials and tribulations of 12 Angry Men.

For many individuals, serving on a jury is an interesting and worthwhile experience. Linda R. Caviness, project director of the jury standards task force for the National Center for State Courts, has crisscrossed the country to study the jury-selection system, and what has impressed her most is "the willingness and pride people take in serving on a jury." Their biggest complaints? "The waiting to be called," Caviness says, "and not actually getting to serve."

There are good reasons why prospective jurors often have to cool their heels waiting to be called. On any given day, a case may be settled out of court or postponed. Or witnesses may not show.

There are also Federal courts which may summon you to jury duty. According to William R. Burchill Jr., deputy general counsel in the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts, just under 400,000 people served as jurors in Federal courts for the year ending June 1981.

"One difference between the two court systems," says Burchill, "is that the types of cases which can be brought in Federal courts have been fixed by the U.S. Congress according to our Constitution." Typical examples of the cases tried are for criminal offenses on Federal property, constitutional issues, litigation between citizens of different states. The most celebrated: the Watergate trial.

The pay for Federal court service is also better than for state courts: $30 per day plus transportation expenses, although you can be asked to serve as a juror a maximum of 30 days in any two-year period. In unusually long trials, you may be required to serve for the duration of the case. But Federal court statistics indicate that only one-fifth of the trials take four days or longer.

If you are employed and summoned to jury duty, do you still get paid your salary? That depends on your company's policy. In most states there is now legislation prohibiting an employer from not continuing to pay a juror's regular salary.

How can you become an effective juror, one who, unlike some of the Hinckley jurors, doesn't have regrets later? Since it's rare that a judge instructs the jury on anything but what kind of verdict they may bring in, these guidelines from Tom Munsterman, director of the Center for Jury Studies, could help.

1. Prepare a list of issues in the case for discussion.
2. Let each juror have his or her say, taking one issue at a time.
3. Vote on each issue separately to narrow differences.
4. Don't allow anyone to intimidate you by making personal criticisms, for example, "You're so indecisive." A good comeback: "Let's stick to the issues, not personalities."

DIVORCE: WHY WOMEN FARE BETTER

Starting over seems to be a lot easier for the female of the species. A new study finds that women who get divorced in middle age adjust much better than men, partly because they spot the breakup coming long before their husbands do.

Penn State sociologists Gunhild Hagestad and Michael Smyer interviewed 93 men and women between ages 41 and 61 who had been married an average of 25 years. They found that most of the women knew 10 years before their divorces that their marriages were not working, while most of the men knew for less than three. Thus, the women prepared more, beginning to adjust both emotionally and financially. Such steps made their transition easier.

Some 80 percent of divorce in the U.S. occurs before the partners reach middle age, and the researchers note that middle-age divorce has unique problems. For one, the breakup affects not only the couples themselves but also, in many cases, both adolescent children and aged parents who depend on the couple for emotional and financial support.

CATCH A ROUSING SHOW

Check out an outrageous reunion later this month on Home Box Office. To celebrate the 10th anniversary of Catch a Rising Star, the famed New York club for aspiring young talent, alumni Pat Benatar, Richard Belzer, David Brenner, Billy Crystal, Gabe Kaplan, Andy Kaufman, Joe Piscopo and Robin Williams showed up to perform, and the best of their two nights was condensed into a 90-minute special. Highlight of the evening we saw: Saturday Night Live's Piscopo doing a devastating impression of Frank Sinatra delivering a rock medley.

Also keep an eye on a few of the not-so-famous comedians, like David Sayh, who astutely points out that we all secretly keep two sets of underwear — the "actives" and the "reserves." Then there's Bill Maher, who notes, "I voted for John Anderson in 1980. Last week I saw him making keys at Woolworth's."

Williams: No place like home.

NO! NO! NO!

Next time your boss tosses your brilliant suggestion into the "round file," or that publisher burns your epic romance novel, don't get crestfallen. John White's unrejectable new book, Rejection, points out that such inventions as the phone, submarine and xerography process were all initially nixed, as were the books War and Peace, Peyton Place, Dubliners and The Postman Always Rings Twice. (Whenever the mailman brought author James Cain another rejection notice, he rang two times — hence the offbeat title.)

Sometimes you have to wonder. Eight years after Jerzy Kosinski's Steps won the National Book Award, a freelance writer named Chuck Ross retyped the whole manuscript, put on a fake name, sent it in and waited. All told, 14 publishers and 13 literary agents summarily rejected the "new" book, including the book's original publisher, who responded with a form letter.

BIRTH CONTROL UNDER MY SKIN

Contraceptive implants — an experimental birth control method that prevents conception for at least five years — are more effective and carry fewer side effects than birth control pills, new research shows.

Six tiny capsules, each about the size of a matchstick, are implanted under the skin of a woman's upper arm, where they slowly release a progestin hormone called levonorgestrel. The whole procedure is done under local anesthesia in a doctor's office and takes about 15 minutes.

In five years of tests at U.S.C. and nine other sites around the world, fewer than one woman in every 100 using the implants became pregnant, versus about two or three per 100 on the pill. U.S.C. gynecologist Dr. Subir Roy explains that the implants do not seem to cause the elevated blood pressure sometimes associated with the pill. However, some women using the implants experience bleeding between their menstrual periods.

One advantage of the implants is their reversibility. Once removed, fertility is usually restored at once.

More tests in the U.S. are now beginning, and the implants may be available within the next several years.

Thank Goodness for Flannel Sheets! I Thought I'd "Freeze to Death"

When I went to England, I just knew it was going to be the trip of a lifetime. I had saved and planned for years. Then, out of the blue, I got a chance to spend a few days in an honest-to-goodness 13th Century castle on the moors in Yorkshire.

What I overlooked was the English idea of central heating. After I left London the weather suddenly turned shivering cold and wet. By the time I got to my destination I was too tired and miserable to care about picturesque charm and history. All I could think of was how uncomfortable I was going to be in an old, drafty castle.

Sure enough, my room was freezing. But when I crawled into bed I was dumbfounded to discover how marvelously cozy it was despite the lack of heat.

There was a big, puffy down comforter on top. Underneath, the sheets and even the pillowcases were flannel. And not that flimsy, pilled kind we used to have at summer camp. They were luxuriously soft, thick, real English cotton flannel.

I felt utterly pampered in plushy comfort. And I never slept better, because I wasn't buried under layers of heavy bedclothes.

Then and there I decided I was going to have sheets like that at home. What a great way to save on heating costs at night and still feel rich and special!

When I got back to the United States I soon learned that the flannel sheets in stores didn't feel or look the same at all. The polyester in them made such a difference.

Finally, I got so frustrated I went to Damart, a company in my hometown, and suggested they sell real English flannel sheets and pillowcases. They loved the idea.

And that's how Agatha's Cozy Corner was born. We talked it over and added heavenly down comforters and some other things as well as the sheets. And now I'd be happy to send you my catalog. It's printed in color, and gives you the pictures and story of everything we sell. Just use the coupon for your free copy.

Sincerely Agatha

● Riddle-Me-This! When does a bath towel go "ding-a-ling"? When it's ringing wet. What kind of planes do athletes fly? Transport planes. Which deer likes to sing? A ballad-deer.

THE SAYING GOES

A rebus is a sort of cryptic riddle, with letters, numbers, pictures, etc., providing clues to the answer. For instance, a picture of an eye followed by CU could represent "I see you."

Just for fun, let's see if you can decipher the three sayings presented in rebus form above. Here are some further clues:

1. It's important to have a good start.
2. What often happens with wealth.
3. Bad as things are, they should improve.

CHEERS NOW! What can you draw to complete the cheerleader's cheer? To find out, add lines 1, 2, 3, etc.

PICK-UP-TABS! Apply the following colors to this familiar autumn scene: 1-Red. 2-Lt. blue. 3-Yellow. 4-Lt. brown. 5-Flesh. 6-Lt. green. 7-Dk. brown. 8-Dk. purple. 9-Orange.

Our Story: BETWEEN ACTS GALAN HAS RETRIEVED THE SACRED RING. TO SAVE YUAN CHEN HE MUST BRING IT TO EMPEROR HARSHA IN UJJAIN. "MY TROUPE WILL BE BLAMED," SAYS JAGAT AMID THE APPLAUSE. "TELL ME, IS YOUR HARSHA A PATRON OF THE ARTS?" WHEN GALAN SMILES IN UNDERSTANDING JAGAT STEPS FORWARD AND ADDRESSES THE THIEF TIMUR.

"EXCELLENCY, WE WILL REWARD YOUR KINDNESS WITH AN ENCORE IF YOU CAN PROVIDE A STABLE WHERE WE MAY PREPARE."

DELIGHTEDLY TIMUR HAS THEM BROUGHT TO AN OUTSIDE COURTYARD. THE "DELPHIC ORACLE" AND HIS HANDMAIDENS BEGUILLE THE GUARDS UNTIL THEY LOSE THEIR SENSES. THEN THE ACTORS STEAL EVERYTHING ON FOUR FEET. IT IS A HALF HOUR BEFORE TIMUR SUSPECTS A TRICK.

HE SENDS OUT A SEARCH PARTY, BUT IT IS MISLED BY ONE AND ALL. "THEY WENT THIS WAY," SAYS ONE PEASANT. "THAT WAY," SAYS ANOTHER. TIMUR'S BEATEN SUBJECTS LIE JOYFULLY, AND WITH CONVICTION. BY DAWN, GALAN AND THE PLAYERS ARE OUT OF DANGER.

IT IS TWO DAYS' HARD RIDE TO UJJAIN, TWO DAYS TO YUAN CHEN'S EXECUTION. UNTIL THEN GALAN CAN DO NOUGHT BUT THINK.

HE DOES NOT KNOW WHAT THE SCRIBES IN THE MISTY ISLES HAVE ALREADY RECORDED IN THE CHRONICLES. HE KNOWS NOTHING OF ALETA'S SLOW RECOVERY FROM HER SHOCK, NOTHING OF THE NEWS THAT HAS COME FROM ARN, ON THE TRAIL OF THEIR INFANT BROTHER. KNOWING NOTHING HE WORRIES, BUT THE MOST PRESSING WORRY IS YUAN CHEN.

NEXT WEEK: Execution
