Gunman Surrenders In Raleigh; 2 Dead

By ELISSA MCCRARY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Colombian gunman who held an Amtrak sleeping car for three days handed a 3½-year-old girl out a window today, then threw down a machine gun and surrendered, leaving behind the bodies of his sister and her infant son.

The woman had been dead since Friday and the baby probably died early today, police said. An FBI agent convinced the gunman to give up the little girl at about 1 a.m., and a man the gunman had described as his godfather spoke to the hostage-taker hours later through a bullhorn and talked him into giving up, officials said.

"His friend convinced him that we were law enforcement officers and that we would not do him any harm," said Raleigh Police Chief Frederick Heineman. "He had great anxiety as to who we were. Mr. Rodriguez apparently had bad experiences in other countries with police and he was worried we might harm him."

The girl was taken to Wake County Memorial Hospital to be examined and given fluids. Officials said she was slightly dehydrated, but otherwise in good condition.

The girl, whose name was still not known, did not ask for her mother, said Dr. Perry Futral, a pediatrician who examined the girl when she entered the hospital at 1:10 a.m.

"She's not really talking at all," Ms. Futral said. "She speaks mostly Spanish, a little English."

Police were trying to determine what sparked the siege. For days, the wiry gunman had crouched naked or nearly naked in the car while he alternately negotiated with police, shouted in Spanish or fired shots. But early today he washed, dressed in new blue jeans and a maroon satin shirt, threw the

.45-caliber fully automatic machine gun out the car's window and walked out the back door.

He was led in handcuffs, his head bowed, to a waiting police car at about 5:45 a.m.

The gunman had identified himself as Mario Rodriguez, but police today identified the 29-year-old man as Evangelista Navas Villabona of Bucaramanga, Colombia.

He was charged with two counts of first-degree murder and one count of kidnapping the girl. He was taken to Central Prison to await arraignment rather than being held at the police station because police said they had received telephone threats against him.

Officers wearing surgical masks brought out the bodies of the 9-month-old baby and the woman wrapped in black plastic body bags. Wake County Medical Examiner Laurin Kaasa declined comment on the deaths until autopsies were completed at the state medical examiner's office in Chapel Hill.

The standoff began Friday morning when shots rang out in the compartment of the Amtrak Silver Star en route from Miami to New York. Authorities evacuated passengers from the train as it entered the Raleigh station and isolated the car containing the gunman and two surrounding cars.

About 50 police officers, including sharpshooters, had sealed off the area around the car.

Police Sgt. Charles Watson identified the woman as Isabel Ramirez, the gunman's sister, and the dead infant as her son, John.

The gunman earlier had said a man's body also was in the compartment, but none was found.

Throughout the ordeal, Rodriguez had made no demands and few requests. But he asked that police notify Roberto Gonzales of New York City, and promised to surrender after talking with Gonzales, who he said is his godfather, police Capt. C.L. Price said.

Gonzales was located in New York by the FBI and was flown to Raleigh early today.

Three officers took the 3½-year-old, wrapped in a pink blanket, from the gunman's arms out of a window of the sleeping car and carried her away, said Raleigh Police Maj. John Haley. One of the officers kept a gun drawn as the girl was being released, he said.

FBI agent Raymond Ayers had talked the gunman into giving up the child, Haley said.

Dr. Suzanne White, a pediatrician at Wake Medical Center who had been listening to the children with sensitive microphones, said the infant's cry was sounding weaker. The last cry was heard at 8 p.m. Sunday.

Rodriguez showed himself for the first time through a window Sunday afternoon. The bare-chested, bare-legged man clenched a cigarette in his lips and waved. He later made his first cooperative gestures, taking food and surrendering a 9mm pistol.

Officers nearby reported a strong stench coming from the car, and Kaasa said bacteria might become a problem if the standoff continued.

The children had been held in the compartment's bathroom, possibly to keep them from the odor of the decaying body, said Ms. White. She also said police heard the gunman vomiting Sunday morning.

Rodriguez told police a woman in the compartment had been dead since Friday and said a man he identified as William Rodriguez also had been shot.

Amtrak passenger lists show that a W. Rodriguez boarded the train in Jacksonville, Fla., about 10 p.m. Thursday night, with sleeping compartment tickets for himself, a woman and two children bound for New York.

The gunman's dialogues with interpreters were peppered with statements that he could not trust police and threats to shoot the children and himself, police said.

Four Charges Are Brought

A Route 1, Ayden man is being sought by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department on four warrants that were issued following a Saturday morning shooting incident at a rural residence that left two sisters injured, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said that warrants were issued charging Ivey Louis Conyers, 24, with two counts of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, inflicting serious injury, one count of assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill, and one count of breaking and entering with intent to commit an assault.

Tyson said two of the warrants charge Conyers with shooting Kathy Marie Tyson, 19, and Vivian Tyson, 17, of Route 1, Box 568, Greenville, at their home. He said each girl was shot in the head and were transported to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment. Both were later released, according to the sheriff.

Tyson said that Mrs. Cassie Tyson, the girls' mother, told officers that Conyers, who she said entered their home Saturday morning, also threatened her with the pistol. Tyson said a .22 caliber pistol was allegedly used in the incident.

The sheriff said that following the shooting, Mrs. Tyson apparently began driving her daughters to the hospital but stopped at a store on U.S. 264 west of Greenville where she called for assistance. The girls were transported from the store to Pitt Memorial Hospital by the rescue unit, Tyson said.

The incident was reported at 8:11 a.m., he said.

Admit Sub May Have Escaped From Hors Bay

By KARIN STRAND
Associated Press Writer
BERGA NAVAL BASE,

Sweden (AP) — After hunting more than a week and dumping scores of depth charges into frigid Hors Bay, Sweden's navy admits a suspected Soviet-bloc submarine may have escaped, possibly the first day it was spotted.

"There has been a submarine in Hors Bay," Swedish naval Supreme Cmdr. Lennart Ljung said in a statement Sunday. "It could still be there but the likelihood is gradually decreasing."

Despite his admission, the military intensified a frustrating search for the submerged intruder. It sent two two reconnaissance planes to sweep the area for the first time since the sub's periscope was spotted Oct. 1, apparently monitoring maneuvers near the secret Musko Naval Base.

Ljung conceded the alien sub may have escaped the same day it was discovered, or between Oct. 5-7. The navy said earlier the vessel tried but failed to break out of the bay through anti-submarine steel nets blocking the entrance. It is still not known how the sub entered the bay.

"As far as we know the submarine is likely still there," Navy spokesman Capt. Sven Carlsson told reporters Sunday. But he admitted that "the last firm indication was Friday."

Officials said Saturday that a Soviet Ilyushin-38 spy plane had displayed "unusual interest" in the area where the submarine was believed trapped, about 30 miles south of Stockholm. They said jamming equipment had been set up to block any communications between the plane and sub.

"There has been and may still be a submarine in the outer area" outside the sealed bay, Ljung's statement said. "It may be the same submarine or it may be a second one."

Besides fencing the mouth of the bay, the navy dropped about 40 depth charges — several thousand pounds of explosives — in a bid to force the sub to surface and identify itself.

The Soviet news agency Tass suggested last week that the search might be a hoax and denounced the publicity given the incident in the West, calling it an effort to "sow seeds of suspicion" between Sweden and its "eastern neighbors."

Tass made no mention of the sub's presumed identity. The craft is widely believed to be from a Warsaw Pact country, but Swedish officials have refused to publicly speculate on its nationality.

Communications With 3 Polish Cities 'Cut Off'

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Communications with the Baltic ports of Gdansk, Gdynia and Szczecin were cut suddenly today without explanation, and there were reports Gdansk was plastered with handbills calling for strikes to protest the outlawing of Solidarity.

Western journalists returning today from Gdansk, headquarters of the newly outlawed Solidarity union, said the posters urged strikes by Baltic port shipyard workers and miners in the southern coal region of Silesia.

State telephone system operators contacted by The Associated Press said they had been told not to accept calls to the three cities. Officials at the post, telegraph and telephone office would not comment.

Authorities in the past have cut off communications when trouble erupted in Polish cities, but it was not immediately possible to determine today whether there were any disturbances in the three cities.

Authorities cut communications links with the outside world when martial law was imposed Dec. 13.

Direct telephone connections were restored in May.

The telephone and telex links went down at about 10:00 a.m. (5:00 a.m. EDT), a day after four leaders of the outlawed independent union called for a boycott of government-formed unions and a four-hour strike Nov. 10.

"At every enterprise, and at every department a clandestine committee preparing the protest of Nov. 10 should be organized," they said in a statement circulated outside churches. "The course of the protest will decide the further strategy of the unions."

Lebanese Militia Start Factional Skirmishing

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shooting between leftist and rightist militias, described as the worst factional fighting since Israel invaded Lebanon, has erupted east of Beirut.

Israel, meanwhile reported today its troops exchanged fire through the night with Palestinian guerrillas in the Syrian-held Bekaa Valley.

The new skirmishes developed as Lebanese Moslem leaders and security forces reported that rightist Christian militiamen are filtering into the Moslem west Beirut to arrest leftists and Palestinians who fought against the Christians in the 1975-76 civil war.

In addition, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's Cabinet warned Sunday that Israel could not guarantee there would not be reprisals if attacks against Israeli troops continued. The warning came as the Cabinet outlined its proposal for the withdrawal of Syrian, Israeli and remaining Palestinian forces from Lebanon.

Israel said one of its soldiers was wounded in cross-fire Sunday between Christian militiamen and Lebanese Druze Moslem leftists in the mountain town of Aley, 10 miles east of the Lebanese capital. There were no accounts of casualties among the combatants.

It was not known what triggered Sunday's gunbattles at Aley, which local officials called the worst outbreak of Christian-Moslem fighting since Israel's June 6 invasion of Lebanon to rout Palestinian guerrillas.

Tensions have been rising near the resort town for the past week with Christians and their traditional Druze enemies engaging in sporadic skirmishes.

English Member Of Wellcome Foundation Is A Nobe! Winner

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1982 Nobel Prize for Medicine was awarded today to an Englishman and two Swedes for their work with glandular hormones that may be helpful in preventing ulcers, unwanted blood clotting and menstrual cramps.

The three winners are Englishman John R. Vane, 55, and two Swedes who started their research in partnership as a teacher and student — Sune Bergstrom, 66, and his former graduate student, 48-year-old Bengt Samuelsson.

The awarding body cited the three researchers for their discoveries concerning "prostaglandins and related biologically active substances."

Prostaglandins are powerful hormones or hormone-like substances, formed in the stomach and found in semen and menstrual fluid. The understanding of prostaglandins has helped explain how aspirin works and allergies occur, as well as holding out the promise for new medications to treat circulatory problems.

Bergstrom, who is chairman of the Nobel Foundation Board and has long been mentioned as a Nobel candidate despite his position, said "You are always surprised" when reached by telephone at his Bosten hotel today. He is rector of the medical faculty at Karolinska Institute in Stockholm, where he and Samuelsson continue their research.

Samuelsson said the award was not expected. "I had no idea," he said when awakened by a reporter's call announcing he was a co-winner.

Vane said he was "absolutely delighted."

The three winners were in Boston to attend celebrations of the 200th anniversary of Harvard University in Cambridge, Mass.

The first of this year's Nobel awards was announced by the faculty of the Karolinska Institute for Medicine in Stockholm, a tradition. The record prize of 1.15 million kronor was worth $157,000 because of a 16 percent devaluation of the Swedish currency last Friday. The recipients share the prize equally.

and has been research director of the Wellcome Foundation in Beckenham since 1973. He is currently lecturing at a Harvard seminar.

Dear Abby

Mother Shares Feelings On Retarded Son

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this for those who think it is immoral to destroy an imperfect fetus. I have a 30-year-old mentally retarded son whose life has been nothing but grief for him and us. I could handle the problem when he was a child, although I cried with him every time he was rejected by his peers and adults.

Out of a family of seven children, only one brother acknowledges his existence. The others ignore him, forgetting birthdays and Christmas. My son has no friends, and spends so much time alone that when he does see another human being, besides the small circle he lives in, he chatters constantly and drives everyone away.

He knows that he is "different," and he is very unhappy. He once saved up a lot of vitamins (he knew they were called "pills") until he thought he had enough to commit suicide.

I can't let him go out alone, as he is tormented or taken advantage of sexually. Do all these do-gooders understand all the problems that go along with retardation? Would they take someone like my son and care for him forever?

The small number of people who would deserve sainthood. Most who open their mouths would disappear if they were called upon to help. I know, as I have asked for help, and have been turned down with some fine-sounding excuses.

Every time I read letters from all these busybodies who would tell someone else what decisions he or she should make, I wish I could send them my son for a month. Let them live with the problems that never end, the grief I feel, have always felt, and will until the day I die. Just setting these thoughts down on paper starts the tears to flowing.

There is no place in society for these mentally handicapped people. They need their own community where they could be with their own kind and not feel different. They could be sterilized so they could love and marry. They have feelings, too! They aren't capable of raising children, but I'm sure a howl would be raised if they were rendered incapable of becoming parents.

When you live with these problems 24 hours a day, you think of mercy killing and suicide, but that takes more courage than I have.

This problem ruined my marriage. I also know other marriages that have collapsed under the burden. It has made family and friends disappear.

I could write a book on the subject. Any small pleasures you may find in a child like this are washed away by bigger problems later on.

These facts need to be put before people so they can see the situation from another point of view.

LOS ANGELES MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Grandma," suggesting that women who are raped "asked for it" by wearing provocative clothing, prompts this letter. Your answer (rape is a crime of violence, designed to humiliate and dominate) was right on, but you must admit that women (and some men, too!) do dress provocatively in an effort to entice certain relationships — but only on their own terms, with the consenting partner of their choice.

If a merchant were to display goods attractively, hoping to entice interest in his merchandise, no one would say "he asked for it" if a burglar broke in and seized the goods without complying with the contractual terms of sale.

DOUGLAS D. IN SHERMAN OAKS, CALIF.

DEAR DOUGLAS: How does one define "provocative"? It could mean something different to each man. There are "leg" men, "breast" men, "fanny" men, and men who are turned on by a pouty mouth, blond hair, or you name it.

Perhaps we should emulate Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, and insist that our women be covered from head to toe in black wool, with only holes for the eyes. Then they would be rape-proof — unless, of course, one runs into an "eye" man.

DEAR ABBY: As the mother of three teen-aged boys, may I respond to that 14-year-old girl whose parents refuse to let her have her own phone even though she's willing to pay for it herself?

I hope your parents stick by their decision. I wonder if they know how rude you are? When you telephone her asking for my son, you never say, "Hello Mrs. Jones, this is Patty. May I please speak to Bill?" All I hear is a curt, "Is Bill there?" And if I say he's out for the evening, why do you persist, "Where is he? Is he at Tommy's? When will he be home?" That's clearly none of your business!

Did you realize that while you prattled on and on last night, Bill left the phone, got himself a snack and returned without your knowing that he missed 10 minutes of your fascinating monologue?

Also, sometimes when you call, Bill is standing right here, but I tell you he's not home because he's asked me to.

An added note to your parents: I know with whom you're having an affair, lady. I also know your other daughter is on the pill and sleeps around. And, Dad, I know you cheat on your expense account and you're two months behind on your house payments. How do I know? Because your daughter who has her own phone tells my oldest son all the family secrets. Sign this...

T'HELL WITH MA BELL

DEAR ABBY: I belong to a social club for single men and women over 60 years old. Being a man, I notice that most men look the women over and book the prettiest ones for dances right away.

Me! I look the women over, then I pick the women I think will be the least likely to be asked to dance — the plain ones, the overweight, the very tall, the skinny, or the ones who look bashful and hang back. They are my first choice.

Why? Because I find them to be the best company. Most good-looking women are inclined to be conceited, spoiled and selfish. The plain ones tend to be more thoughtful and generous. Plain women are usually smarter, too. Most pretty women never worked too hard cultivating their brains because they were able to get by on their looks.

So my advice to gentlemen is: If you want a real jewel, you will find her wrapped in a plain package.

MEL

DEAR MEL: Generalizations are generally unfair, but your observations are worth noting.

If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Girls State Report Given

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 39 held its business meeting Thursday. Activities at Girls State were reported.

Elizabeth Kittrell and Margaret Cherry made the presentation. Girls State was held in June in Greensboro.

It was announced that Barbara Braswell, District Three president, will be speaking at the November meeting.

A memorial donation was made to the Auxiliary Nursing Scholarship by Abbe Lee Rowe in memory of Kelly Rowe. Reports were given by Lois Dail and Mayo Rogers.

Symposium Announced

WINSTON-SALEM — The Bowman Gray School of Medicine will present a "Comprehensive Symposium on Breast Disease" Nov. 18-20.

The symposium will be sponsored by the Medical School's Center for Medical Ultrasound in cooperation with the departments of medicine, pathology, radiology and surgery.

Dr. James F. Martin, professor of medical sonics at Bowman Gray, will chair the symposium which will take place in the Babcock Auditorium.

Topics to be discussed include the anatomy, physiology and embryology of the breast, the pathology of breast disease, x-ray mammography, ultrasound, thermography, clinical evaluation, diaphonography and NMR studies of the breast.

Entertain Less Expensively

Rising food costs have made entertaining at home an expensive proposition.

The solution is to learn to entertain less expensively, says Rachel Kinlaw, extension food specialist at North Carolina State University.

Save money by inviting people over for meals other than dinner. Sunday brunch or dessert and coffee are both good ideas.

Don't forget popluck suppers or progressive suppers with one course served at each house.

To preserve the color of frozen fruits, thaw fruit in its sealed container and serve as soon as thawed. A few ice crystals in the fruit improve texture.

Duplicate Winners

Sara Bradbury and Dr. Charles Duffy were first place winners in the North-South game played Saturday afternoon at Planters Bank. Their game percentage was 622 percent.

Others placing were Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts and Mrs. Lacy Harrell, second; Mrs. J.M. Horton and Dave Proctor, third.

East-West: Mrs. George Martin and Forest Gray, first with 592 percent; Chris Langley and Ed Yauk, second; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bright, third.

Wednesday afternoon winners included North-South: Mrs. W.R. Harris and Mrs. J.M. Horton, first with 603 percent; Mrs. Lacy Harrell and Mrs. J.W.H. Roberts, second; tied for third Mrs. M.H. Bynum and Mrs. Stuart Page with Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr. and Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr.

East-West: Mrs. Beulah Eagles and Dave Proctor, first with 595 percent; Mrs. Gail McClelland and Forest Gray, second; Mrs. David Stevens and Mrs. Harold Forbes, third.

Wednesday morning winners included: Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. C.D. Elks, first with 565 percent; Mrs. Raymond Lyder, second; Mrs. John McConney and Mrs. Everett Pittman, third; tied for fourth were Mrs. C.F. Galloway, Mrs. Charles Mitchell, Mrs. J.N. LeConte, Mrs. Clara Shackell and Mrs. Janice Gilliam.

The Oct. 16 game will be cancelled due to the Sectional Tournament at Bogue Banks.

New Club To Be Organized

Two introductory coffees will be held to inform Greenville Women of the new Christian Women's Club.

The first will be held at the home of Lib Steig, 103 Willoughby Road, Wednesday, from 10-11:30 a.m., call 756-6663. The second one will be held at the home of Mary Toye, 603 River Hills Dr., Thursday from 10-11:30 a.m., 752-3676. A nursery will be provided for both coffees at no cost.

The club is part of an international organization with headquarters in Kansas City, Mo. It is inter-church and non-sectarian with 2,150 groups around the world.

The organization will hold a monthly brunch or luncheon. Included in each program will be a special feature of contemporary interest, music and guest speaker. There is no membership or dues.

Interested women from here and the surrounding counties are invited. For information call Mrs. Steig.

Teachers Are Role Models For The Hearing Impaired

By SHARON RUTENBERG DES PLAINES, Ill. (UPI) — Scott and Deedra Morrison are good role models for their students in the hearing impaired program at Chicago's Whitney Young High School. The Morrisons are deaf.

"Because the incidence of deafness is so small (one per thousand), deaf kids rarely get to see deaf adults," says acting program director William Pahle.

"At the present time, none of our students have deaf parents... They really don't know what a deaf adult is."

Morrison, 31, and his wife, 26, met eight years ago at a school conference for the deaf. They married in 1979.

Both read lips, wear hearing aids and use sign language.

His deafness resulted from a nerve problem. His wife was born deaf.

Morrison's hearing loss occurred when he was 11 years old. He and his father were watching a television show.

"I got up and turned it up and he didn't say anything," Morrison said in an interview. "About 10 minutes later, I got up and I turned it up again. At that point, I guess I had turned it up almost all the way. And my father sent me to bed. He thought I was goofing off."

"I got up in the morning and I couldn't hear anything. It took me a long time to accept my hearing loss. I would not learn sign language. I did not associate with the other deaf children."

Doctors had said Deedra would never be able to speak. Her mother helped her learn. "She'd been around deaf people before and knew some could talk to some extent," Mrs. Morrison said.

She learned voice control but still doesn't have what she calls her h u s b a n d 's "perfect speech."

The Morrisons graduated from Gallaudet College in Washington D.C. He also has a master's degree from Western Maryland College and she is still working on hers.

They would like to start a family soon.

"I would be disappointed if we don't have at least one deaf child," Morrison said, adding that hearing children would "develop their other friendships, their own circle. We will be part of their lives, but to a point."

"Whereas a deaf child, there would never be anything held from us..."

Gadgets in their Des Plaines apartment help them adjust to a soundless world.

A lamp blinks when the telephone rings, but 90 percent of the time the phone is connected to a teletypewriter that prints messages.

They bought a television decoder for programs that have closed captioning.

"I know if we have children and they're deaf, we want them to be able to understand television, too. And the only way that they would be able to do that... is through the captions," Morrison said. "Plus, it would help them develop their ability to read."

They rarely go to movie theaters.

"The last movie we saw was 'E.T.,'" Morrison said, "and that was because it was supposed to be very visual. But we have walked out of a movie theater frustrated so many times that we just stopped going."

They have a stereo set but hesitate to turn the sound high for fear of bothering neighbors. It must be at a high level for them "... to get the vibrations or to be able to enjoy the music," Morrison said.

He signs the words to music at concerts and coaches deaf athletic teams.

A special alarm clock wakes them up by vibrating the bed.

They look forward to installing safety features in their own home.

"I guess the biggest thing that a deaf person worries about is fire," Morrison said. "If you sleep through that or can't hear someone trying to pound on the door..."

The Morrisons said deafness has advantages. Irritating traffic sounds and planes overhead don't bother them.

He thinks the deaf drive better than many people with normal hearing "because you have to be visually aware of what's happening around you."

Mrs. Morrison said communicating with hearing people is "real hard. A lot of it's guesswork."

"There are so many words that sound alike," her husband added. "You make one mistake in a large group of people. And you answer something that has nothing to do with what the person asks you. It can be very embarrassing."

People seem to be more aware of deafness lately, Mrs. Morrison said. She said they speak clearer and slower — and even take out a pen or pencil. She is encouraged by sign language being offered as a foreign language at many schools.

"I wish everyone knew how to cope with deaf people," Morrison said.

Couple Marries On Sunday

Deborah Lynn Heath and Robert Scott Jr. were married here in The Memorial Baptist Church Sunday at 3 p.m. The Rev. E.T. Vinson performed the double ring ceremony.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Heath of Greenville, the bride was escorted by her father and given in marriage by her parents. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Scott Sr. of Ayden are parents of the bridegroom.

A program of wedding music was presented by Shirley McLawhorn of Greenville. She sang "The Wedding Song," "The Lord's Prayer" and "If."

The bride wore a floor length gown with a chapel train of chiffonette and silk Venise lace over taffeta. The empire bodice featured a Queen Anne neckline outlined with scalloped silk Venise motifs and chiffonette long sleeves cuffed at the wrist with lace. Silk Venise lace etched with seed pearls applied the bodice. The flared chiffonette over taffeta skirt extended into a chapel train. The bride wore a chapel mantilla of bridal illusion with a hand rolled edge accented with silk Venise lace motifs flowing from a lace cap etched with seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, pink miniature carnations and white pom pons interspersed with purple statice and baby's breath tied with white lace ribbon and satin picot ribbon.

Robin Taylor of Greenville was her sister's honor attendant and wore a floor length gown of lavender chiffon over taffeta styled with a T-strap bodice and chiffon jacket. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink miniature carnations, lavender daisy pom pons, yellow and white pom pons interspersed with purple statice and baby's breath tied with lavender and yellow ribbons.

Bridesmaids included Kathy Jones, cousin of the bridegroom, Dawn Berkeley and Kathy Harrington, all of Greenville. They were dressed like the honor attendant and carried nousegays to match her bouquet tied with lavender ribbons.

The flower girl was Chastity Stepps of Greenville. She was dressed like the attendants and carried a white basket adorned with lavender pom pons and ribbon and filled with flower petals.

Jeffrey Taylor served as best man. He is brother-in-law of the bride. Donald Jones, Kenneth Lloyd, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Greenville and Jack McCandless of Ayden were ushers.

Bradley Burroughs of Greenville was ring bearer and carried a white satin and lace pillow accented with lavender pom pons and ribbon.

The bride's mother wore a blue chiffon over taffeta floor length gown with an attached chiffon cape. She wore a corsage of white carnations. Mrs. Lucy Witt of Bedford, Va. and Mrs. Annie Heath of Havelock, grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Pearl Brown of Greenville and Mrs. Irene Scott of Ayden, grandmothers of the bridegroom, were remembered with corsages of white pom pons.

The bride is a graduate of North Pitt High School and is employed by Pitt Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom is a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School and works at Empire Brush.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

Wanda Heath, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register and gave out scrolls. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Norman Heath of Greenville. The wedding was directed by Faye Barefoot of Greenville.

A reception was given by the bride's parents in the church fellowship hall.

The table was centered with an arrangement of pink carnations, lavender daisies, pom pons, white mums, baby's breath and purple statice. Assisting in serving were Ruby Mayo, Jean Stepps and Gina Silverthorne, all of Greenville.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Santa's sleigh will make the perfect centerpiece for your table, settings all through the holidays. Fill it with fake miniature packages — or real ones for your guests. Add an extra flair by tacking on a holly leaf to each side of the sleigh.

The sleigh is quickly and easily made with 7-mesh plastic canvas and the simplest of stitches.

To obtain directions for making Santa's sleigh, send your request for Leaflet No. NP-1010 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

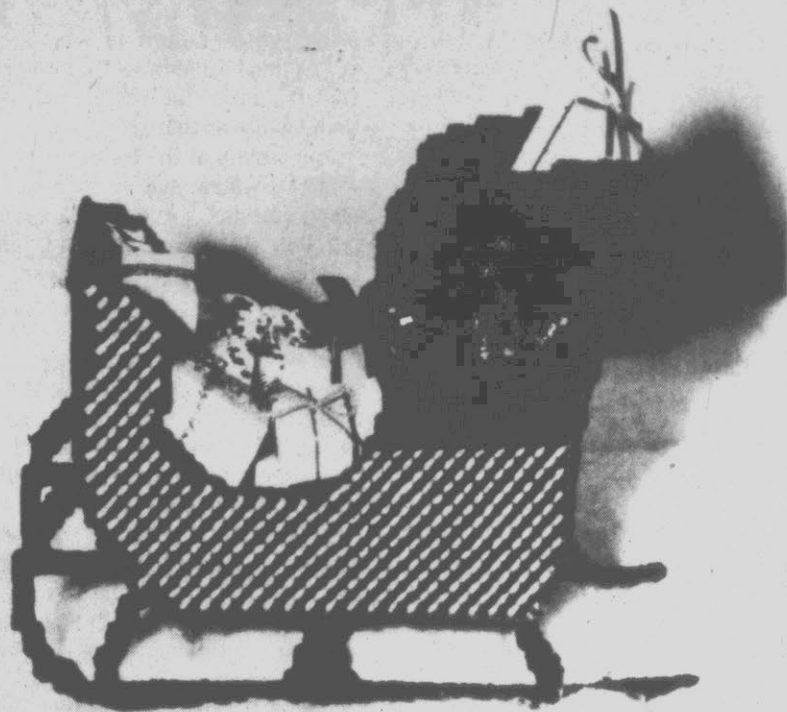

Or you can order Kit No. NPK-1010 by sending a check or money order for $10 to Pat Trexler at the same address. The kit price includes plastic canvas, Persian yarn, needle, instructions and shipping charges. If you would like to make extra sleighs for gifts, you can save by sending $18 for two sleigh kits or $26 for three.

Colored plastic canvas sheets in 7-mesh and 10-mesh are great for making Christmas decorations and gifts at a fraction of the cost that similar items could be purchased. I will be featuring more decorating items in the next few columns, but here are a few ideas to try on your own.

Try cutting out squares from red, green or royal blue canvas and working scattered decorative pattern stitches with white, gold or silver yarn, letting the color of the canvas serve as background. These make delightful ornaments for your tree and you can make several in an evening or two. You can lay out a stitch plan on graph paper or just take the needle and yarn in hand and let your imagination go.

Or cut the canvas into various shapes such as bells, candy canes, stockings, candles, wreaths or toys and use just a few stitches outlining the design elements. One friend of mine cut the canvas into package shapes and worked single vertical and horizontal lines of tent stitches to represent the ribbons and finished off the miniature packages with a bow of the yarn.

In creating ornaments, I like to make two identical pieces, whipped together so that there is no "wrong" side showing. You can use contrasting yarn, if you like, to whip the two pieces together, but I prefer to use yarn as close to the canvas color as possible for this purpose. With such matching yarn, I usually just pass the needle through every other set of holes and make no special effort to completely cover the corners. This method seems to give a lighter appearance to the ornaments.

As I am working around the edges, I leave a loop of yarn free at the point where I want the hanger to be.

Circular shapes in plastic canvas have been around for several years, but all that I have seen in the past had holes graduating in size from small at the center to large at the outside. With this type, there was a very limited number of needlepoint stitches that could be satisfactorily used.

There are some new colored plastic canvas circles on the market now with all but a few holes near the outer edges perfectly even. I have just started to work with these, so cannot have leaflets and kits ready in time for this season but would encourage you to try and do your own thing with them.

In addition to some circular ornaments, I am planning to make a number of coasters each with a different tiny Christmas motif. These will add a cheery holiday feeling to any table setting or conversational area.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

IMMEDIATE DENTURES

One of the cosmetic miracles of modern dentistry is the "immediate denture". These are constructed BEFORE all remaining natural teeth are removed and inserted as soon as the final teeth are extracted. Naturally, they will need some adjustments as your swollen gums recede back to normal, but it's a darn sight better than facing the public with no teeth while your dentures are being constructed in the laboratory.

In this procedure, the back teeth are removed but the front teeth are allowed to remain. When the gums are healed, impressions are taken with the front teeth still in place and dentures are prepared. When the day of reckoning arrives, the front teeth (and perhaps a few others which may have remained) are extracted and your "immediate dentures" are inserted at the same appointment.

Healing beneath the immediate denture is usually uneventful. One might expect pain to result from wearing a denture over an area from which teeth have been extracted, but just the opposite occurs. The immediate denture acts as a protective covering for the jaw as it is healing.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A. Evans St., Phone: 752-5126.

Andrews Moved Swiftly

U.S. Rep. Ike Andrews, 4th district Democrat, is locked in a major race with GOP candidate William W. Cobey, Jr. of Chapel Hill.

Congressman Andrews gave his opposition political advantage when he was stopped by law enforcement officers and charged with a variety of violations a week ago, including driving under the influence.

Andrews at first denied the allegations, even though he had refused to take a Breathalyzer test. He did have an alcohol test made on himself but the results were not available at the time.

The matter was set for trial Oct 18 and the assumption was that Rep. Andrews would plead not guilty, or else obtain a continuance until after the election. Thus it was somewhat of a surprise Thursday when Andrews went to court and pleaded guilty to the charge of driving under the influence. Andrews also pleaded no contest to a charge of failure to stop for a police blue light and to improper registration of the vehicle and was found guilty on those charges.

The results of the blood test were given in court and it showed the blood alcohol content to be .19 percent. A reading of .10 is considered intoxicated for driving in this state.

No doubt it was difficult for Rep. Andrews to face the charges and the sentence, but he has done the right thing. By entering a plea now, he has been honest with the public concerning the matter and the voters can make up their minds for the November election without questions about the driving incident.

The legal issues of the driving violations are now settled. The voters of the 4th congressional district will make the final judgment as to whether Rep. Andrews should continue to serve in Congress.

Romance of A Prince

The latest flap in England is about the romance of Prince Andrew and American movie star Koo Stark, who has appeared in nude film scenes.

There were reports in the British press that the involvement had proven an embarrassment to Queen Elizabeth II and she had ordered her son to return to London.

Not so, said a palace spokesman. More spice was added to the matter when the staid British Broadcasting System showed nude scenes of the actress from one of her movies.

Reports from England were that the subjects were tolerant of the romance. The prince, after all is young, handsome and outgoing. He has recently returned from duty in the Falkland Islands war.

The life of a prince is never private, but Prince Andrew is an eligible young man. He is likely to set tongues wagging from time-to-time.

Can Howard Handle It?

A bunch of the sports executives at Zenith Network were sitting around the conference table trying to come up with some programming to replace the NFL football games. It was the eighth week of the strike and they had tried everything from la crosse to ladies' mud wrestling but for some reason they just couldn't attract the audiences to warrant the $250,000 a minute they were charging for the time.

"I think I've got it," said Dexter. "The Girl's Latin School of Boston is playing Our Lady of victory's field hockey team on Sunday. It's a grudge match that goes back 50 years. With proper promos I think we could get people to tune in."

"Who knows anything about women's field hockey?"

"I'll bet you Howard does. Let's call him in."

"Five minutes later — 'Howard we're thinking of putting on the Girl's Latin-Our Lady of Victory field hockey match this Sunday, to keep the crowd that likes pro football. Could you handle the color?'"

Howard smirked. "That is a silly question. Girl's Latin of Boston has a lifetime record of 345 wins against 165 losses. Under the famed, but very underrated Mary McGroary, they had four undefeated years, a record that has never been surpassed in the New England Regional Conference. Regrettably, and I must be candid about it, the team has not been living up to the high expectations we all had for it at the beginning of the year."

"Nikki Harris, probably one of the most astute and skilled field hockey coaches since Carry 'The Stick' Renfrew, who led Katherine Georgetown Visitation. "Thanks Howard, you seem to know your field hockey."

"Our Lady of Victory had it's greatest years under Sister Mary Therese Botecelli, between 1941 and '53. Sister Mary used to smash a player's wrist with a hockey stick every time the player hit the ball over crossbars. In 1965 Victory's Mother Superior, Dorothy Tuberty, decided to de-emphasize field hockey after Eunice Shriver bought her daughter Maria a Mustang convertible for scoring three goals against Madeira."

"Fortunately the alumni rebelled, as field hockey was the only reason most parents sent their daughters to Our Lady of Victory, and now they are back in the big time. If I may interject a personal note, I remember the afternoon on October 6, 1971, when Mary Healy in the classic contest with Potomac Normal..."

"That's enough, Howard, you've convinced us."

"Well are you going to go with the Girls Latin game next week or not?" Howard asked.

"Either that or a horseshoe pitching match between the Flatbush Odd Fellows Home and the Sun Jan. 4, 1947. Flatbush had a one armed thrower named Skippy Danzinger and Skippy had left his favorite horseshoe on the train. So he saw this Canadian Mounted Policeman and he..."

"Okay, Howard, we'll get back to you as soon as we make our decision."

"I'm sorry, gentlemen, but I have to tell it the way it is." (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

She went to an orthopedic specialist named Alice McKelvie who put in an artificial knee. Alice McKelvie was a friend of Nikki Harris and told her Francie could play. Nikki arranged for a full scholarship for Francie and that is why Francie is now playing for Girls Latin instead of

A Social Highlight

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR

RALEIGH — When you're swinging around on the Whirly-Whip at the N.C. State Fair next week try to remember that you're not supposed to be having fun. Try not to enjoy the cotton candy, the hot dogs and hamburgers or the barbecue because the people who designed the fair didn't plan to make the fun the main attraction. Back in 1853 when the N.C. State Agricultural Society put together the first state fair, their idea was to bring to state's farmers to Raleigh to learn the wonders of scientific agriculture.

Of course things didn't turn out that way. Fair organizers added entertainment to entice farmers to the exhibit and social appeal soon surpassed educational curiosity as the fair's main draw. In this summer's edition of the North Carolina Historical Review, Melton McLaurin, history professor at UNC Wilmington, tells the story of 19th century state fairs.

The membership of the agricultural society in the 1800s included some of the state's most prominent citizens. During fair week, Raleigh was the in place to be, McLaurin writes.

But "the fair prospered because, like many social institutions, it put on a good show. It thrived on pomp and pageantry." Most noted were the bands. From the first fair in 1853, bands held center stage. They represented their hometowns and the Salisbury band in particular brought a great deal of glory back home. Salem, Concord, Carthage, Winston and Raleigh also provided popular bands.

Military drill teams competed with the bands for top billing. "Ironically, a Lost Cause mentality among southerners after their defeat in the Civil War enhanced the popularity of military units at postwar fairs," McLaurin writes. It was all serious stuff and the few groups that parodied the military didn't get invited back.

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

Parades provided more pomp. On horseback, fair officials led the opening day parade of bands, bicyclists, marching units and clowns out to the 55-acre tract on Hillsborough Street near the current N.C. State campus. In 1892, the parade also marked Raleigh's centennial and it was more than two miles long with 40 floats.

Horse racing was the most popular sporting event. Baseball was big attraction until the sport became common in most towns. Students from the Agricultural and Mechanical College (now NCSU) played a football game in 1892. Cherokee Indians played their native handball in 1871. Fairgoers didn't just sit and watch others play. Pigeonshooting, foot races, bicycle races and archery contests were just a few of the many participatory sporting events.

The fair soon became so popular that organizations began holding their annual meetings in Raleigh during fair week. Mexican and Civil War veterans, the Grangers and the Northern Settlers Organization all figured

Other Editors Say Press Was Used?

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

The discussion was of the demonstrations at the PCB landfill in Warren County where hundreds of "civil rights leaders" and "environmentalists" have been doing their thing for days.

Speaking was the representative of a major news organization which has been covering the protests. "I don't know whether we're there because they are or whether they're there because we are," he admitted.

It is the opinion of this newspaper that the latter is the case. If PCB that lay on the roadsides for years never hurt anyone, why should anybody get in an uproar over its being disposed of in a scientifically constructed and supervised landfill?

Some of the people protesting the landfill probably have no earthly idea of what PCB is or if or why, if or how it could be harmful.

They are there because they see an opportunity for some exposure in the state newspapers and on television. And some of them can't survive without media exposure.

Suggestions that the landfill poses a health hazard have been refuted by the best and most responsible authorities available. The contention that the location was racially motivated cannot possibly be taken seriously even by those who utter it.

It reflects an asinine knee-jerk reaction we have come to expect of a few professional demonstrators.

The name of the game is publicity. And it isn't the first time it has been played in this state. One cannot help but recall a protest "march" that began once in Goldsboro.

The "march" was begun by some 35 or 50 people. One had but to look at their dress shoes and consider their physical condition to suspect they had no intention of marching to Raleigh.

It came as a surprise to no one that by the time the march reached the city limits there were two people — one determined marcher who did, in fact, go all the way, and one newsman.

The bulk of the marchers left with the television cameras. If the press would withdraw from Warren County it would be a safe bet that the demonstrators would also disappear.

Many of the familiar faces at the PCB site are drawn to TV cameras like flies to a fruit jar. It is time for the press to pull out and stop promoting the ridiculous.

Sex And A Single Party

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER

WASHINGTON — In the only interesting moment of an otherwise boring weekend last June, green-and-white-clad members of the National Organization for women picketed the Democratic Midterm Convention in Philadelphia, warning the party that it had no monopoly on women voters.

Three months later, their threats have a hollow ring. The tough-talking women's group announced the other day that it will support Democrats over Republicans in federal elections Nov. 2. NOW also said it would back men over women in several key races.

As the smoke of its endorsements clears, there's concern here that NOW is becoming a tool of the Democratic Party. Some say the nation's largest feminist group cannot afford to cast blanket aspersions on Republicans.

In opting to back Democrats over Republicans — Frank Lautenberg over Millicent Fenwick for New Jersey senator, Bill Curry over Nancy Johnson and Betty Lall over Bill Green for House seats in Connecticut and New York, respectively — Now has chosen to overlook candidates' stands on abortion and the Equal Rights Amendment (all six candidates support both). Instead, it has moved to back those candidates who have opposed (or are likely to oppose) the economic policies of Ronald Reagan. Depending on one's politics, NOW's endorsements are either courageous or suicidal.

On one hand, NOW's new litmus test makes sense. Reagan's program of budget cuts has had a disproportionate impact on low- and middle-income women; his social agenda threatens recent gains in reproductive rights and educational opportunities. As a result, quipped a spokesman for the Nancy Johnson campaign, "NOW just doesn't like us Republicans."

NOW officials don't hesitate to confirm this bias. "We feel determined that the makeup of the Congress, and the Senate in particular, must be changed," explained NOW's Judy Murphy to our reporter, Michael Duffy. "We would endorse (Republicans) if they didn't toe the Reagan line."

Of course, the controversial endorsements will lend the group leverage with the Democrats (until recently, in fact, NOW's two political action committees were richer than the DNC). And they may also signal to candidates that the women's movement will "punish enemies and reward friends."

Yet the endorsements may roughen, rather than smooth, the way of the future. For one, Republicans such as Manhattan's Bill Green, Reaganite who has been vocal and consistently active on equal rights and family planning, may begin to sidestep these issues. Even today, such issues cannot survive without well-organized and broad-based support.

Secondly, NOW may have badly misjudged the much-touted "gender gap" upon which it is pinning endorsements. A mid-September poll by CBS News and The New York Times revealed that "the margin of disapproval" of Reagan among women now equals that of men (43 versus 44 percent). Being anti-Reagan may no longer yield the tide of angry women voters that the polls once anticipated.

Finally, there is something needlessly belligerent about forcing a Democratic alliance. Though feminists have always stood more with the armies of change than the armada of the status quo, they have been most effective when working in coalition with both parties.

Such is the conclusion of "Women and Public Policies," a new book about women's political groups by Joyce Gelb and Marian Palley. After studying gains by women in education, credit, insurance and abortion, the two political scientists found that confrontational tactics haven't taken women very far in the last 10 years. In addition, they warn, the feminist agenda involves changes in roles and attitudes that will be even more difficult to achieve.

Said Gelb in a telephone interview last week: "So far, NOW hasn't been very confrontational. They've been very reasonable and middle-of-the-road. But they are going to have to continue to be respectable in the future."

A key to NOW's future direction will have emerged after this weekend's annual convention, in Indianapolis. Delegates will have chosen a successor to President Eleanor Smeal, who has

Strength For Today

JOY IN BELIEVING

"Man's chief end is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever."

The most important aspect of this statement from the Catechism is not the duty to glorify God but the emphasis placed on enjoying Him. Christianity is the happiness religion. Its chief aim is to make men and women blessed. Christians are not dour and long-faced; they are peaceful, smiling and contented.

Someone has said that the lowest Christian happiness is higher than the highest worldly happiness. And this is true. The angels who announced Christ's birth said that they brought good tidings of great joy.

There used to be a rumor that God was dead; but this absurd statement scarcely deserves the honor of a denial. God is the living, loving, all-pervasive Deity in whom we move and have our being; and whom we are privileged and commanded to enjoy. — Elisha Douglass

Extremes A Danger For Many

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — These are extreme days in the financial markets, and while extremes can be enormously profitable to some, they can be exceedingly dangerous to others — such as you, perhaps.

Moderation, it appears, is out. Twenty-five stocks on the New York Stock Exchange and 24 on the American Exchange rose at least 21 percent last week. And many stocks plunged, such as International Harvester, off 27.8 percent.

It is a situation that strains reason, and leaves casual investors in a dilemma of greed and fear so great that reason is clouded and destructive impulsiveness is seen as the only relief.

Compounding the problem is that you can search in vain for the reasons why Wall Street is so excited. Even those who are committing fortunes to the market, it seems safe to say, must be wondering if it's all real.

The economy, supposedly the basis for stock market movements, shows no strong evidence of a certain recovery.

The economic forecasts have been remarkably restrained. There are extremes — there are some who say we are headed for either the biggest bust or the biggest boom of all time — but the consensus is for only a mild recovery.

Even that seems far off. At the very time the financial markets bubbled with enthusiasm, the labor markets were reaching their worst condition in 42 years, with no less than 19.5 million Americans directly affected last month.

That total is made up of 11.3 million workers who sought but failed to find jobs, 1.6 million "discouraged" workers who gave up looking, and 6.6 million who, for lack of better job opportunities, accepted part-time employment.

The job situation isn't likely to improve soon either, judging from consumer actions and business statements. Consumers are reluctant to spend the economy into expansion, and business leaders say they won't spend until the consumer does. A stalemate. How, then, do you get the economy moving?

It is that question that produces one likely explanation for why markets have gone on a rampage, with stocks rising 188 points since August (as measured by the Dow Jones average) and bonds recovering from their deep depression.

The economy will get moving, the market appears to be saying, because interest rates will continue to drop. Lower interest rates will get people into cars again, and houses too, and then industry will spend to meet the demand.

That is the reasoning so often mentioned by those who handle portfolios. It was, they say, the imposition of high interest that plunged the nation into what is widely considered the worst recession since the 1930s, and it is the lowering of those rates that will release buying power into the marketplace.

So goes the reasoning. Whether it is correct or not probably doesn't matter at this point, because the financial markets are now so wound up like a spring they have tension sufficient to spin on their own for a while.

And how should you as an investor react to it? With moderation. Beware the extremes. Moderation is the great human art, skill, and science. It is intellectual rather than emotional. It is always protective.

But it is elusive too, and too often just a forlorn wish.

N.C. Blacks Look For Gains In Legislative Field

By WILLIAM M. WELCH
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina's long reapportionment battle isn't finished yet, but new district lines are certain to produce gains for blacks in next month's elections.

Blacks currently hold but four seats in the 170-member General Assembly, one in the Senate and three in the House, and they've never held more than six seats in a session.

The most prominent black legislator, Sen. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, who was the first black elected to the legislature in modern times, isn't running for re-election this year.

Yet even before the votes are counted, black political leaders say they are confident they will at a minimum double the number of seats held by blacks after the Nov. 2 election, and perhaps do even better.

Fifteen black candidates are running for the legislature this year, one of them a Republican Senate candidate.

Five of them, Democrats running for House seats, have no GOP opposition, and two more are incumbents with good chances of winning re-election.

Wayne Lofton, director of minority affairs for the state Democratic Party, says he expects blacks will have at least eight seats in the next legislative session.

"We're achieving, to some extent, better and more widespread representation," he said.

And that may be a low estimate. Ben Ruffin, Gov. Jim Hunt's assistant for minority affairs, predicts blacks will win 10 seats and has a solid chance to capture 11.

The celebration is somewhat muted, however, because blacks could hardly have gone in any direction but up since they won so few seats in the 1980 elections.

Even if blacks were to win all the seats they are contesting, and they probably won't, they would hold only about 9 percent of the Legislature — far below their 22 percent share of the state's population.

"You can't fall off the ground floor," said Ruffin. "But it's cause for encouragement anytime you increase 300 percent. Ten members in the state House who are black will make a difference."

The legislative redistricting plans, redrawn after rejection by the U.S. Justice Department, are largely responsible for the black gains.

In the Senate, for instance, a black Democrat is running in a new single-member district where blacks have a 55 percent majority. Another black is running in the four-man at-large district that includes Charlotte.

The lone black Republican running is John J. Hawkins of Warren County, whose district is 49 percent black. But he faces an entrenched conservative Democrat, Sen. Julian Allsbrook, who has held the seat for 10 terms off and on since 1935.

New Terminal For Greensboro Opens

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A new passenger terminal at the Greensboro-High Point Winston-Salem Regional Airport is "an attractive front door" to North Carolina's Triad, Gov. Jim Hunt believes.

And in a ceremony Saturday opening the 312,000-square-foot facility, Hunt, politicians of liberal and conservative persuasions and 25,000 others admired the new terminal that had been in the planning stages for 15 years.

"You can be very proud of the terminal you have built," Hunt said. "It will serve you well into the 21st century. This marvelous facility is a symbol of the economic strength and the economic potential of the Triad and all of North Carolina."

In the midst of speeches, the visitors were treated to an air show, clowns, hot dogs with beer and even one of the most unusual ribbon-cuttings ever devised.

It was a 150-mph ribbon cutting that occurred when Lindsay Hess of Salisbury, an ex-opera singer turned stunt pilot, flew an airplane upside down 10 feet off the ground and ripped through a ribbon strung from two poles 20 feet apart on a runway.

And though Orville and Wilbur Wright, who started the aviation era at Kitty Hawk in 1903, couldn't attend, their niece did.

Ivonette Wright Miller, 86, presented Airport Authority Executive Director Roger Sekadlo and authority chairman Stanley Frank a piece of cloth from the wing of the plane the Wright brothers flew at Kitty Hawk.

Sekadlo, who had been planning the grand opening for several months, said everything appeared to go without a hitch.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Hollingsworth allegedly attempted to enter the home of Gather H. Munford. She screamed for help and a neighbor chased Hollingsworth, caught him and held him until police arrived, Cannon said.

Bond for Hollingsworth was set at $1,000 pending a hearing of the case.

In Guilford County, too, a black Democratic candidate is running in a majority-black district drawn at federal insistence.

Black incumbent Melvin "Pap" Creecy faces a re-election challenge but his district is now 61 percent black, more favorable for him than when he was elected in 1980. Among the other black incumbents, Dan Blue of Raleigh is expected to have no trouble winning re-election and Ken Spaulding of Durham has no GOP opponent.

Mecklenburg County, which hasn't elected a black House member in recent times, and Forsyth County both avoided being divided up into smaller districts — such as Guilford and Cumberland did — because they aren't under the federal Voting Rights Act.

That in part is why the redistricting plans are now being challenged in federal court by various groups, including the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund.

Mecklenburg and Forsyth each have two blacks running for House seats, however, and this election may be something of a test to see whether blacks can win their

'Devastated' By 1979 Divorce

NEW YORK (AP) — Sam Robards, son of actors Jason Robards and Lauren Bacall and now an actor in his own right, says his parents' divorce devastated him.

The younger Robards, 20, said in an interview in the Oct. 18 issue of People magazine that when his parents broke up in 1979, "I blubbered. 'But why... why can't you just get back together and live in the same house? I mean, it's so easy.'"

His father moved to Los Angeles and Robards stayed with his mother in New York, but the young actor, who appears in Paul Mazursky's new movie "Tempest," said he still feels his father's influence when he's acting.

"I've often found myself doing a scene and then realizing, 'Gee, I'm playing my father playing this scene,'" Robards said.

ed NOW with an iron hand for four years. Frontrunners include Smeal-backed NOW vice President Judy Goldsmith and ex-Mormon (and latter-day hunger-striker) Sonia Johnson who, in a recent campaign appeal, characterized confrontational protest as "not only legitimate, but essential." Should Johnson win, the group may only alienate itself further from mainstream American women.

Admittedly, the Republican Party did women no favors when it dropped support for the ERA at its 1980 convention in Detroit. And its support of Reaganomics since then has hardly been ingratiating.

Yet two Republicans — Robert Packwood of Oregon and Lowell Weicker of Connecticut — led the recent Senate fight protecting abortion rights; other members have proved solid on other issues. Women can no more afford to discard the GOP than can the party afford to forget about women.

"The fair provided a much needed and appreciated week of entertainment and excitement for thousands of North Carolinians, especially those from rural areas. For many farm families, the fair was a major event in their social life, a welcomed interruption of the monotony and isolation of everyday life." In that regard, it was okay if the fair turned out to be more entertainment that education, McLaurin writes. This year's fair runs from Oct. 15 to 23.

Balloon Notes Bring Response

Several young readers who took part in a note-in-the-balloon launch event held late in August have received answers from balloons they released about seven weeks ago.

The release of the balloons with notes attached was one of the special events of the picnic which was held for children for having completed the summer reading program.

A note inside each balloon asked whoever found the balloon to return it to Sheppard Memorial Library so that the child named on the note might receive a prize.

A total of 11 notes were returned to the library before the September 30 deadline.

Typical of the responses was the reply to Jessica Campbell's note from Mrs. Juanita Dail of Rt. 2, Edenton. Mrs. Dail wrote:

"Hello Jessica,
"Here is your note from your balloon. I found your balloon Monday morning about 9 a.m. while I was fishing my crab pots in the Albemarle Sound. It was about half blown up, but it was floating on the water and I picked it up and tied it to the back light on my boat. It went down today and I found the note when I started to throw it away. So here is your note. Write and let me know what your prize is."

Yours truly,
Mrs. Juanita E. Dail
In addition to Jessica, other young readers receiving responses to their long-distance, high-flying balloon-notes were William Beacham, Chris Bullock, Jennifer Dunlap, Derrick Hudson, Kelly Ray Kennedy, Ginny Redding, Jenny Rudd, Carrie Shappley, Debra Smith, and Laura Stasavich.

An Investment That Pays You While It Pays For Itself.

Most crops, like tobacco for instance, require a large annual capital outlay followed by a long wait for a possible profit. A Perdue broiler house on the other hand is a crop that doesn't require a large annual capital outlay, or a four to five month wait to maybe turn a profit. Perdue broilers pay after every eight/nine week flock, starting with the first one. And those checks are guaranteed.

Also, a Perdue broiler house is one of the few agricultural operations that can pay its own way. Many others can't even generate enough income to pay for themselves much less provide a profit. And when a Perdue house is paid for, it won't be worn out like most row-crop equipment — compare that to other farm investments. And at market time, Perdue even absorbs poultry market fluctuations. That makes a Perdue broiler house a virtually risk-free sound investment

Perdue pays a guaranteed paycheck every eight/nine weeks. These checks add up to over $20,000 a year gross income on a 500' house. And with better performance comes even better pay. So if you've been depending on row crops alone, you may want to consider Perdue. A broiler operation is compatible with your other farming responsibilities. But as an investment it stands alone. There's never been a better time to talk chicken with Perdue.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady. Supplies moderate. Demand moderate. The dock weighted average price for this week is 38.68 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today, 1,313,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices rose on a broad front today, propelling the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials over 1,000.

That extended last week's powerful rally. Analysts cited continued investor euphoria over falling interest rates.

The Dow Jones average, up nearly 210 points in the last two months, surged another 15.45 points to 1,002.30 at noon. The last time it closed that high was June 23, 1981, when it stood at 1,006.66.

The NYSE composite index rose 1.23 to 76.23. The American Stock Exchange index was up 1.90 to 301.04.

Nearly six stocks rose in price for every one that fell in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Big Board volume reached 61.66 million shares over the first two hours of trading, up from the 58.67 million at the same period Friday, but down from Thursday's record 72.17 million for the period.

Trading was so heavy that the NYSE ticker tape was running 31 minutes behind less than two hours into the session.

Interest rates fell sharply last week amid a growing conviction that the Federal Reserve Board would adopt a more accommodating monetary stance in light of the economy's continued weakness. The outlook brightened Friday when the Fed cut its discount rate to 9.5 percent from 10 percent, the lowest since November 1978.

Within minutes, Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh said it was cutting its prime lending rate to 12.75 percent.

Chrysler Pact's Defeat Awaited

DETROIT (AP) — Voting by United Auto Workers on a proposed contract with Chrysler Corp. continues this week, but union leaders were preparing for the pact's defeat and a return to bargaining.

One local in Detroit was to vote today on the proposal, which is being rejected by union members nationwide by more than a 2-to-1 margin.

The unofficial tally was 18,797 against the contract to 8,780 in favor of it, after the first 23 of approximately 50 affected locals were counted, union officials said.

Balloting is scheduled Tuesday at two locals in Kokomo, Ind., and at locals in Indianapolis, Syracuse, N.Y.; Portland, Ore., and Toledo, Warren and Center Line, Ohio.

UAW president Douglas A. Fraser said the contract's rejection is virtually certain. Autoworkers want improved wages immediately from the nation's No. 3 carmaker, he said.

"Should the result that seems inevitable prevail, we will convene a meeting of (the union's) bargaining committee and be going back to the bargaining table with the Chrysler Corp.," Fraser said Friday. "The Chrysler workers have said very loud, very clear ... that they) want a wage increase up front."

The voting started Oct. 1 and was to be completed by Thursday. Eligible to vote were 43,200 current Chrysler employees and an uncalculated number of the 40,000 workers on indefinite layoffs.

The union bargaining committee might meet before Thursday to prepare for a new round of talks, Fraser said.

The tentative pact offered workers cost-of-living protection plus future raises tied to profits. It included penalties for absenteeism and would establish a committee to cut health care costs.

Failed To Act On Closure Of Home

WILLIAMSTON — The fate of the Martin County Home, one of only a very few still in operation in North Carolina, remains unresolved as members of the Martin County Board of Commissioners failed to approve closure action at its October meeting.

Board members, however, agreed to set up a special meeting for Tuesday with members of the Social Services Board to further discuss what to do about the County Home.

Board chairman John House and commissioner Russell Griffin both mentioned that safety considerations is the primary reason to dictate the possibility of closing the home. It is also estimated that renovation costs to bring the facility to minimum safety standards is high, at least $250,000. Additionally, maintenance and operating costs have increased substantially over the past several years. It was noted that despite repairs in recent years, the structure has deteriorated in some crucial safety areas.

Griffin said he had received a number of requests to keep the County Home open and operating. The Social Services Board has recommended closing the facility.

In another matter, the commission discussed concern created by the abuse of the dumpsters and the county land fill. One of the major problems deals with the types of chemicals that can and cannot be deposited in the dumpsters or in the land fill. Commissioners agreed to study the existing ordinance to determine if it needs to be expanded or tightened to prevent abuses.

Drainage Problem Is Considered

WILLIAMSTON — The Skewarkee Gut Sewer, a source of a chronic drainage problem for the town of Williamston, was once more the center of attention at the October meeting of the Williamston Town Board.

The board approved a motion to take action to have the problem with the gut corrected at an early date.

Mark Garner of Rivers and Associates in Greenville set forth corrective recommendations, including a suggestion the board initiate a change order with the state in order to seek funds for immediate correction work. Garner noted that time is vital since the area is near the Roanoke River which is subject to flooding in the fall and winter months.

Garner stressed that without additional work the line cannot be tied in for usage and would be subject to winter flooding. Basically, he reported, the gut is an old stream filled with silt and organic matter and that pilings will be needed to support a sewer line.

The recommended corrective action entails installing seven pilings, removing two manholes and reconnecting the pipe. The pipe connecting the section has sagged and damaged two manholes in the process.

The town agreed to request from the state the necessary change orders. The town's portion of the expenditure is expected to be about $2,600.

No Funds For Teacher

WILLIAMSTON — The Martin County Board of Education, at its October meeting, expressed sympathy to a delegation asking for an additional teacher but informed the group funds are simply not available for hiring additional teacher personnel.

The delegation of about 20 concerned parents represented the North Everetts Elementary School, which was seeking the allocation of an additional teacher to support three combination grades of K-3 students.

The board told the delegation that the same tight situation exists in seven of the county's nine elementary schools, but that nothing can be done to solve the teacher shortage problem due to lack of funds.

Pastor Likes Heavenly Role

NORSE, Texas (AP) — Norway's King Olav V visited this small town to lay a wreath at the grave of the father of the Norwegian migration to the United States, and gave a local pastor a preview of heaven.

About 1,500 farmers flocked to this town — population 110 — for Sunday's ceremonies at Our Savior's Lutheran Church marking the 200th anniversary of the birth of Cleng Peerson, who fled religious persecution in his homeland.

The 79-year-old king proclaimed during a short service at the church, "Here Cleng Peerson found his grave, found his last resting place. He is no longer a rolling stone."

From the pulpit, the Rev. John A. Homerstad said, "I never dreamed that I would be called to preach to a king until I got to heaven ... I've come to the conclusion that this spot in Norse is about as close to heaven as I'm going to get while I'm walking on Earth."

It's Milwaukee Versus St. Louis In World Series

Brewers Down Angels To Complete Comeback

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Gashouse Gang, The Amazing Mets. And now, add to the list the Comeback Kids from Milwaukee.

The Brewers culminated the greatest comeback in championship series history Sunday by rallying to edge the California Angels 4-3 to win the American League pennant.

The Brewers travel to St. Louis to open the Series against the Cardinals on Tuesday night.

"I could have been the goat of the series," Cooper said. "I made a bonehead play (in the field). I'm just thankful I had a chance to redeem myself."

Cooper's personal redemption came after Charlie Moore reached first when his soft popup fell out of reach of a diving Bobby Grich behind the mound with one out in the seventh.

Cooper then singled to score the runners.

"It was a fastball up in the strike zone," Cooper said. "The entire time I was at bat I kept thinking to go to left field. When I hit it, I thought the ball might hang for a minute. I was running to first base and kept pointing for it to get down. It did."

The Brewers, who moved here from Seattle as a bankrupt, year-old expansion team in 1970, also got some superb relief from Bob McClure and Peter Ladd. Ladd, who has replaced injured Rollie Fingers as the Brewers' bullpen stopper, preserved the victory by retiring all three batters he faced in the ninth.

"Rollie could have pitched to two or three batters, but Peter Ladd has been doing such a great job that I could save Rollie for a couple of days," said Brewer Manager Harvey Kuenn.

"This is the greatest thrill of my life," he said. "The guys couldn't have played any better. They came back any year and they did it again today."

But not before the Angels grabbed a 3-1 lead, with runs in the first and third on ALCS Most Valuable Player Fred Lynn's RBI singles and one in the fourth, greatly aided by Cooper's miscue.

Doug DeCinces led off the fourth with a double and Grich bunted toward first baseman Cooper. He picked up the ball and tagged Grich with his glove while he held the ball in his other hand.

First base umpire Al Clark called Grich out, but was overruled by plate umpire Don Denkinger. Cooper was charged with the Brewers' fourth error of the game.

DeCinces took third on the play and scored on Bob Boone's squeeze-bunt single.

"That play on Grich was a bonehead play," Cooper said. "I simply, I guess, panicked and proved we're all human beings and make mistakes. Unfortunately, I made it with everybody watching."

The Brewers' had scored a run in the first on Ted Simmons' sacrifice fly and

After Subpar Year, Porter Wins MVP

ATLANTA (AP) — Darrell Porter, who managed to hit only .231 during the regular season, went on a tear in the National League playoffs and won the Most Valuable Player award for the championship series.

But the bespectacled St. Louis catcher said his choice would have been rookie Willie McGee and the entire Cardinals pitching staff.

The Cardinals completed a three-game sweep of the Atlanta Braves with a 6-2 victory Sunday night to capture the National League pennant. The victory put St. Louis into the World Series Tuesday night against the American League champion Milwaukee Brewers, who eliminated California on Sunday.

"It's (the award) really great, really wonderful," said Porter softly as teammates squirted champagne at each other in a relatively mild celebration in the packed clubhouse. "I think a lot of guys did a wonderful job. Willie McGee was fabulous but it was a total team effort."

McGee supplied the knockout punch Sunday night to send the Cardinals into their first World Series since 1968. He keyed a four-run second inning off Braves' starter Rick Camp with a two-run triple, then added a solo homer in the ninth as Joaquin Andujar and Bruce Sutter combined on a six-hitter.

Porter, however, led both teams in hitting with a .556 average on five hits in nine at bats, including three doubles, and drew five walks.

"I quit thinking about my bad year about two months ago," said Porter, "and I began to relax more in September. I just said to myself go up there and get a good pitch. If you notice when I am hitting well, I'll also get a lot of walks and that's what happened in the playoffs."

McGee, who started the season in the minor leagues, was called up to the Cardinals in the spring after expecting to play the entire season on the farm. "Playing in the World Series just tops it off," he said. "It's still a learning process and the pressure is tremendous. I feel tremendous just being here and I'm thankful I got the opportunity to play."

For ace reliever Bruce Sutter, who mowed down all seven Braves he faced in the clincher after picking up a victory in the Cards' 4-3 victory Saturday night, it also was a new feeling.

"This is just a new experience for me," said the bearded

Rookie Helps Cardinals Sweep Braves In Three

ATLANTA (AP) — It's a season Willie McGee will never forget — one that started in the minor leagues and ends in the World Series.

McGee, a rookie center fielder, made the major offensive contribution Sunday night, belting a two-run triple and a solo home run as the St. Louis Cardinals nailed down their 13th National League pennant with a 6-2 victory that completed a three-game sweep of the Atlanta Braves in the NL Championship Series.

"I thought I would be in Triple-A, and I was there a few weeks when, boom, I got a call," McGee said. "It blew my mind, and now I wind up in the World Series to top it off."

McGee's triple came during a four-run outburst in the second inning that gave Joaquin Andujar and reliever Bruce Sutter all they needed to send the Redbirds into the World Series opener at home on Tuesday night against American League champion Milwaukee.

It was a pleasing comeback for McGee, who had fanned three times against veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro in the Cards' 4-3 victory in St. Louis Saturday night.

"Ozzie Smith told me to keep my head up and in the game today I'd probably come up with a chance to win the game," McGee said.

"I'm still in a learning process. The pressure is tremendous with the stands packed and so many people watching on TV, but I don't worry about it. I'm young and I'm going to make mistakes. I just feel tremendous being here. I'm just thankful I got an opportunity to play."

Andujar, who remained in the game after taking a liner off his left shin in the second inning, allowed the two runs and six Atlanta hits before leaving with two down in the seventh. Sutter, who had 36 regular-season saves, then retired the last seven Braves in order.

Catcher Darrell Porter, who hit only .231 in the regular season, captured the Most Valuable Player award in the Series after getting two singles and three doubles in nine trips and also drawing five walks.

"It's one of the greatest things that ever happened to me," said Porter. "But I've seen so many other guys out there who could have won it, like McGee and the entire pitching staff."

"We experienced what it was like being in the race last year," said Porter of the team that had the second-best record during last season's strike-interrupted season. "We didn't handle it very well then. But it helped us this year and we played well down the stretch. There was not one moment when we didn't feel we'd win."

Whitey Herzog, who managed Kansas City to three AL West titles only to lose the playoffs to the New York Yankees each time, commented

ECU was led by Don Sweeting with a 154 total. David Woodard was at 155, Kelly Stimart was next at 156. Chris Czaja shot a two-day total of 157 and David Waggoner finished at 169.

ECU returns to action Thursday in Durham when it plays in the three-day Iron Duke Classic.

Fan-demonium

Thousands of Milwaukee fans rush onto the field after the Brewers defeated California, 4-3, to win the American League Championship Sunday. The Brewers will now meet St. Louis in the World Series. (AP Laserphoto)

To Celebrate Brewers Winning AL Title Party Time In Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Milwaukee third baseman Paul Molitor and California Manager Gene Mauch had something in common after Molitor's Brewers had defeated Mauch's Angels for the American League pennant.

Both men took time to reflect on their team's respective fortunes. The Brewers had won the fifth and deciding game of the American League Championship Series 4-3 after losing the first two games in Anaheim, Calif.

Molitor had a tough time adjusting to his fifth position in four years — third base — but batted .316 in the series. He was walking alone on the County Stadium field about an hour after Brewer fans had poured onto the field in a wild outbreak of pennant fever.

"I came out here just to reflect," Molitor said. "This is where it all happened. It's kind of nice out here with the quiet of the stadium mixed with the horns outside. It's just great because it definitely means something. If we would have lost, you wouldn't be hearing those horns.

"We were really hoping we could do it for them. It's going to be one happy party night for Milwaukee."

as he answered the media's questions for about an hour in the Angels' somber dressing room.

"I've considered it a privilege to manage this team," Mauch said. "The most wonderful thing about them is how they feel about each other. They have a great deal of respect for each other and a great deal of pride to be playing with each other.

"I was never more confident about anything in my life as I was about this game. I never had a negative feeling until this game was over."

Brewers catcher Ted Simmons said he was "the happiest man alive" after the triumph. "I feel like 13 years of my life have passed and I've been waiting that long for this moment," Simmons said. "Thirteen years. I've waited this long and now I'm the happiest man alive."

Angels starter Bruce Kison, who left after five innings with a 3-2 lead because of fatigue and a blister on his finger, was anything but happy.

"Right now, I don't feel good about anything," Kison said. "I guess I'm happy that after two years of inactivity I was able to prove I can pitch in the majors, but right now, there's other things to think about."

another in the fourth as Ben Oglive homered off Bruce Kison, who had stymied the Brewers on five hits in Game 2.

McClure, the winning pitcher, relieved Brewers starter Pete Vuckovich in the seventh and retired Reggie Jackson on an inning-ending double play grounder. He was helped in the eighth by a leaping catch by Marshall Edwards, then gave up a single to pinch-runner Ron Jackson to start the Angels' ninth.

In came the 6-foot-3, 240-pound Ladd, who had earned a save in Game 3 of the series. Ladd threw out Boone on a sacrifice bunt as pinch-runner Rob Wilfong took second.

Brian Downing grounded to third and Rod Carew, a seven-time AL batting champion, then grounded out to shortstop Yount, ending the game and setting off a wild celebration. The crowd of 54,968 erupted in a thunderous cheer as hundreds of fans charged onto the field and surrounded the hugging, happy Brewers.

"I wasn't really nervous at all," Ladd said. "If I were to be nervous, I would lose something off my fastball.

"Even up until the first day of the playoffs I was just hoping I would make the playoff roster," he said. "When I got a chance, I just wanted to show I could do the job."

Catcher Ted Simmons said: "We didn't have Rollie Fingers, and that's exactly the responsibility Ladd had to assume. That's the responsibility he did assume."

Simmons, a 13-year veteran, said Ladd's every pitch to Carew went according to plan.

"It was very tense," Simmons said. "The first pitch was a fastball strike because he had to get ahead. Then I wanted a fastball inside to back Carew off the plate. Then came a slider inside. He threw it perfectly and all Carew could do was foul it off, which he did.

"Then he threw gas — up and inside," he said. "Carew went inside-out with the bat and hit the ground ball to Robin Yount. Ladd couldn't have done it any better.

"When I saw Robin field it cleanly, I said, 'We got it,'" Simmons said.

The Angels made it 2-1 in the third as Boone singled, took second on a sacrifice and scored on another single by Lynn, whose 11 hits in the series tied a major league playoff record set by Chris Chambliss of the New York Yankees in 1976.

The Brewers' remarkable comeback had started a week earlier in Baltimore. They had seen a four-game lead with five to play melt to nothing as the Orioles tied for the AL East lead on the next-to-last day of the regular season. The Brewers beat the Orioles 10-2 in the final game to earn their playoff berth, then rebounded from a 0-2 deficit in the playoffs to reach the World Series.

"That seventh inning, when Cooper hit the ball to left field, was just like our season," Simmons said. "We got one base at a time. No doubles. Two singles and a walk, and bam! We earned every base we got.

"Just like we earned everything we got to get here," he said. Ladd disagreed with a suggestion that he, rather than Lynn should have been named MVP.

"Freddie had a fantastic series," said Ladd. "He batted over 600 and plays every day. He deserves it. "But we deserve what we got — to go to the World Series."

UNC's Fogler At Sports Club

Assistant UNC-Chapel Hill basketball coach Eddie Fogler will be the featured speaker at the regular meeting of the Greenville Sports Club Tuesday noon at the Holiday Inn.

As a player, Fogler helped guide UNC to two Atlantic Coast Conference titles. In his eight years as a UNC coach, the Tar Heels have won four more ACC crowns and the National Championship this past year.

A 35-minute film on UNC's 1982 championship season will be shown during the meeting.

Cards Win NL Crown...

his St. Louis team with his divisional winners at Kansas City.

"This is a younger club and I don't think it is as intelligent as those Kansas City teams. We played smarter baseball day-in, day-out with the Royals. But we've got Sutter.

We didn't have that big guy in the bullpen over there."

Herzog said he was "both happy and uneasy" after the Cards took the early 4-0 lead.

He said he was nervous because the Cardinals wasted later opportunities, twice leaving the bases loaded without scoring.

"Usually when you fail to put a team away early, bad things happen in the late innings," he said.

The second-inning uprising came off starter Rick Camp, who yielded a walk and four hits before being chased. Besides McGee's triple, George Hendrick and Smith contributed RBI singles.

The Cards got a solo run in the fifth on Tommy Herr's double and a two-out single by Keith Hernandez, and McGee closed the scoring with his eighth-inning homer.

Players, Owners To Seek Mediator

RYE, N.J. (AP) — It wasn't exactly an electrifying development, but considering the way negotiations between the striking National Football League players and the NFL Management Council have gone thus far during the three-week-old walkout, it provided a hopeful sign.

The chief negotiators in the contract dispute — NFL Players Association Executive Director Ed Garvey and Management Council chief Jack Donlan — met Sunday and agreed to seek a mediator acceptable to both sides.

Neither Garvey, Donlan nor union president Gene Upshaw would say when that mediator would be selected and talks resumed but they did know where to look for one.

"We'll contact Kay McMurray," said Donlan, referring to the head of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, "and ask his help to set up procedures for finding a mediator."

For once, Garvey agreed with his bargaining adversary. "We'll ask McMurray to select a mediator," said

Garvey, who, like Donlan, Upshaw and Management Council aide Sarge Karch, emerged smiling and joking after 3½ hours of meetings at a hotel near Donlan's Westchester County home.

"Both sides are making a conscious effort to get back to the table, but we can't set a date. There's a mutual desire to get on with the negotiations."

Gant Pulls Away At End To Win National 500

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Harry Gant played the role of opportunist when the chances of Bill Elliott and Bobby Allison blew away in a cloud of steam with just 10 laps to go in the National 500 stock car race.

Gant, winning his first Grand National superspeedway event, pulled away over the last four laps Sunday to gain his second victory of the season.

The 42-year-old driver from Taylorsville, N.C., did it at the expense of Allison, who dominated the race until his car's engine blew up in the second turn of Charlotte Motor Speedway's high-banked 1.5-mile track, and Elliott, who was absolutely certain he could beat Allison to win his first Grand National race.

Allison, who is battling Darrell Waltrip and Terry Labonte for the Winston Cup point championship, led 280 of the 334 laps in the race before the steam cloud enveloped his Buick.

Elliott, driving a growing Ford Thunderbird, was running second, right on Allison's rear bumper, with Gant's green and white Skoal-sponsored Buick Regal a few car lengths behind in third.

"It (the blown engine) cost me the race," said Elliott, 27, a drawing red-haired Georgian. "I just knew I could get Bobby. I was playing a waiting game.

"But, when he blew and Harry went right into the pits and got four new tires, I knew no matter what I did I was at a disadvantage."

Gant, who started from the pole position as the fastest qualifier, agreed, saying, "It seem almost sure they'd go to green again (before the end of the race), and I knew our car would run real good on four new tires.

"It was like qualifying again because new tires really stick (to the track) like glue and every set of tires, even your worst one, give you five or six real good laps. And he (crew chief Travis Carter) made some adjustments, too.

"We only need four laps from those tires, and it turned out those probably were the best tires and best setup we had all day."

Gant sped away from Elliott when the green flag dropped and never was challenged, beating the Ford Thunderbird across the finish line by a solid 2.93 seconds.

The winner, who picked up $47,740 from the $380,000 purse, averaged 137.208 mph in the race marred by only six caution flags for 34 laps.

Allison took ninth place, while Waltrip wound up 14th, running at about half speed the last 90 laps after being victimized in a wild 10-car melee started by Richard Petty.

Petty, running a lap behind the leaders, tapped the car driven by Dale Earnhardt and slid sideways directly into Waltrip. That trapped Waltrip against the concrete wall and sent several cars spinning or diving wildly toward what they hoped were open routes through the tangle.

There were no injuries in the race.

The blown engine cost Allison some points, but he still increased his lead over Waltrip from 15 to 32 points. Labonte, who finished 15th after going out on lap 309 with an engine failure, slipped 161 points behind Allison.

"We came here to race and we raced 'em all day," Allison said. "I don't know what happened, but there was some debris or something on the track and it knocked a hole in the oil pan. That put too much strain on the bearings and they had to give."

Waltrip's reaction was similar, saying, "That's the way it goes. We were in the wrong place at the wrong time and tore the car all to pieces. But there's still four races left (in the season)."

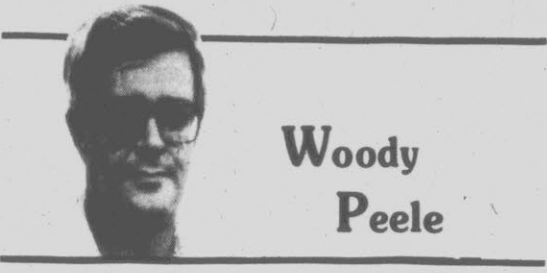

Gant avoided the big accident, although he barely missed one of the spinning cars by diving almost onto the shoulder of the track. But he didn't escape problems.

Shortly before the multi-car accident, Gant brought out a caution flag when a tire blew and sent him skittering into the infield grass in turn two. He managed to keep going, with the fender over the wheel well flapping in the breeze, but he then overshot his pit and had to go around once more on the wheel.

The fender fell off as the left the pits, leaving a gaping hole in the side of the car.

But, still, he somehow kept from losing a lap to the leaders.

"I had a real bad vibration after that," Gant said. "And you always worry that any minute something's gonna explode up through the floorboards. But it never got any worse, so it was probably just the exhaust pipe came loose."

Woody Peele

Saturday night, East Carolina's Pirates had a fairly easy time of it with the Richmond Spiders.

It will probably be the last time that the Spiders and Pirates get together.

According to reports in the Richmond press, this is the final year that the two will play. We've heard that report earlier, but East Carolina officials have refused to confirm it.

Richmond, as a Division I-AA team, is not as desirable an opponent as it once was, nor, we would imagine, is ECU as desirable a foe since it has beaten the Spiders in each of the past seven years, counting Saturday night's game, and nine times in the last 11 games.

Many of those games were closer than this year's 35-14 score — which really wasn't that close even — and it is with a certain amount of sadness that we see the Richmond series pass into history. Ironically, there was a time when East Carolina was the constant underdog in the series and just glad to have an opportunity to play Richmond.

But times have changed.

Richmond, before the Pirates followed suit, left the Southern Conference to set sail in the rough seas of independence. It has not been that great a move for the Spiders, who had trouble winning Southern Conference titles.

The Pirates, too, have had their share of troubles in their role of an independent, but have fared better than the Spiders, having been retained in the Division I-A ranks when Richmond was moved down. Thus the end of the series came about.

East Carolina, meanwhile, continues to try and line up Division I-A opponents, while also trying to build its own program to the point of competitiveness with the better teams in that group.

There are now reports rebounding around Greenville that the University of Florida will be on next season's schedule. If so, the reports say, that will probably mean three trips to that state next year, as these same reports say Miami and Florida State also appear on the schedule.

Even those who talk of this in the ECU family, however, get mum when asked if these reports are true. "Well, I haven't seen it officially," they tell us.

Athletic Director Ken Karr plays his scheduling close to the vest, waiting until contracts are in hand before making any announcements. In the past, reports got out about future schedules, and many times these turned out to be untrue. Karr would prefer that there were no rumors or reports until the schedule becomes official, but it never works that way. Rumors do get out.

Another concerns the University of South Carolina. Apparently one of the Gamecock foes is seeking to get out of future dates with the school, and ECU is considered very likely to replace that other school should it come about.

Again, it is all speculation.

The big question, however, is will any of these teams come to Greenville. We know that West Virginia and Florida State are coming in down the road. Missouri, reportedly, refused a home-and-home situation. Miami, according to statements made last year by its sports information director, would not come back to Greenville — the reason being ECU's small turnout for that game.

What the future does hold in scheduling then is surrounded by rumor for now. Still, it is sad to see a long-time foe like the Spiders no longer around.

Hooks-Ipock Take P-P

Rodney Hooks and Bobby Ipock built a commanding five-stroke lead after the opening round and went on to take the Greenville City

Bestball Putt-Putt Championship Sunday.

Hooks and Ipock upped their lead to eight strokes after three rounds of the six-round tournament. Their 39-under-par 69 was a course record for bestball play.

Pigeon Results

COLUMBIA, S.C. — Reece Pierce won the "A" race and Tommy Fisher the "B" race as the Golden Leaf Racing Pigeon Club flew from here this past weekend.

J.W. Shirley was second and John Kenney was third in the "A" race. In the "B" race, Virgil Thompson was second and Pierce third.

While Hooks and Ipock coasted to the title in the final three rounds with a 148, three other teams battled to a tie for second 157. Knotted in second at the end of six rounds were Robbie Ehrmann and Laverne Mayo, Lanny Morris and Robert Beacham and Henry Beacham and Donny Pollard. In the sudden-death playoff, Beacham and Pollard took second.

Levi Captures 2nd Tourney

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Four players achieved a goal, three others all but wrapped up seasonal honors and winner Wayne Levi made a big move toward resolving a little problem — lack of recognition.

"No," Levi responded to a question. "I don't think I have gotten the credit I deserve.

"Sometimes it bothers me, sometimes it doesn't."

"I play the orange ball. I was the first man to win a tournament playing the orange ball. And somebody else does the commercials. In the papers, before a tournament, when they list the prominent players, I'm never mentioned.

"It's not a big deal. I'm not gonna make waves. Credit comes if you win more tournaments."

And Levi, quietly and without fanfare rapidly establishing himself as one of golf's finest young players, won his second tournament of the season Sunday with a never-headed, six-shot victory in the LaJet Classic.

"I told myself, 'Wayne, just go out there and win this thing,'" he said after his 4-under-par final round had produced a 271 total, 17 shots under par on the 7,077-yard Fairway Oaks Golf and Racquet Club course.

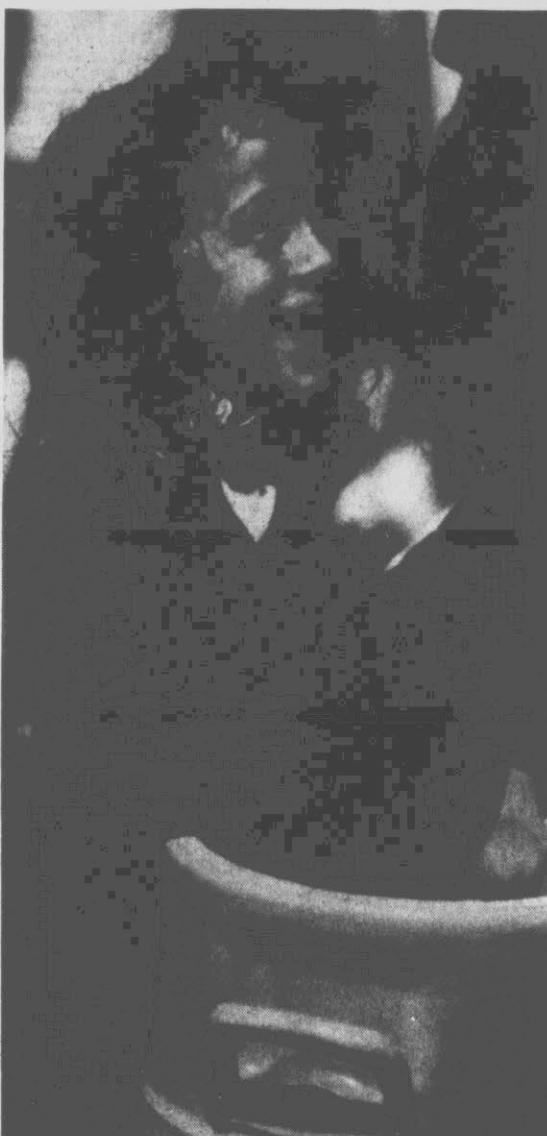

And he did just that. He started in front, stayed in front, finished in front. No one ever got closer than four shots.

The victory, the fifth of his six-year career, was his second of the season and boosted his earnings for the year to $268,631 and a place among the game's top 10.

Smaller checks, however, probably were more important to rookie Thomas Gray, South African Bobby Cole, Gary Koch and Australian veteran Bruce Devlin. Their high finishes assured them of places among the top 125 money-winners this season, the criterion for a place on next year's all-exempt tour.

Gray came on with a 67, finished off with an 18th-hole birdie, that put him second alone at 277. The check of $37,800 more than doubled his previous career earnings.

The men leading the major seasonal races — Tom Watson, Craig Stadler and Tom Kite — virtually clinched Player of the Year, leading money-winner and the Vardon Trophy, respectively, despite some lack-lustre performances.

right-hander after hugging Andujar in the dressing room. "In the past my big games have been All-Star games.

"After spending most of my time in the cellar, I just can't describe what a great feeling of elation tonight is," said Sutter, who pitched most of his career with the lowly Chicago Cubs.

Andujar pitched 62-3 innings, allowing only two hits until the Braves got to him for the seventh, bringing on Sutter. Andujar got hit by a line drive off the bat of Chris Chambliss in the second inning but continued as if nothing had happened.

"He showed a lot of courage," said St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog. "He pitched in pain after he got hit but did his usual credible job."

"Andujar showed me that he is a gutsy, gutsy guy with a great big heart," said batterymate Porter. "When he got hit on the shin it hurt. I think it was fortunate it didn't break his leg. He was really hurting."

In the other clubhouse, it was the Braves who were hurting. But there was no embarrassment at being knocked out of the playoffs after making their first trip since 1969 when they also lost three straight.

"I'm not disappointed," said Atlanta's Jerry Royster. "We played our butts off and battled back all year. I'm proud of the way things turned out. We came all the way to the playoffs after everyone had picked us to finish fifth of sixth. We might have had a better chance here though if the Cards didn't show up."

"I'm very, very proud. I'm not embarrassed one bit," said catcher Bruce Benedict in the relatively quiet dressing room as most players sipped on beers rather than the winner's champagne.

Veteran knuckleballer Phil Niekro, who will be 44 when the Braves open the 1983 season, said Atlanta had no excuses and also put to rest any rumors that he may retire.

"We can't come up with any excuses. We just didn't play good enough," he said.

As for retiring, Niekro said, "My wife won't let me quit. My burning desire is still to play in a World Series and that could motivate me to keep playing until we get into a series, more than anything else."

ECAC. Freshman place kicker Jeff Heath won the award a week ago after kicking four field goals against Missouri.

Pirate quarterback Greg Stewart was honorable mention ECAC Offensive Player of the Week. Stewart, a 5-10, 175-pound junior, hit on seven of 15 passes for 167 yards and one touchdown against Richmond. He also rushed for 35 yards and one score.

Powers, a 6-3, 260-pound junior from Hampton, Va., came off the bench Saturday to replace starting offensive tackle Jeff Autry, who was injured early in the game.

Powers, however, was hurt later in the game and is questionable for ECU's game at Florida State this week.

Twitty, a 6-1, 210-pound senior from Heath Springs, S.C., led the Pirates' defensive effort against Richmond with 11 "total hits."

Kenny Phillips, a 6-1, 193-pound junior from Greenville, was named Speciality Player of the Week. Phillips is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and came to ECU via Chowan Junior College.

ECU, now 3-2, travels to Florida State Saturday night. The Seminoles defeated the Pirates, 63-7, two years ago in ECU coach Ed Emory's first season at East Carolina.

Emory will be at the Quarterback Club tonight beginning at 6 o'clock at the Ramada Inn.

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The progressive group Alabama could break Barbara Mandrell's two-year hold on the Country Music Association's prestigious entertainer of the year award tonight, country music watchers say.

Alabama, a four-piece band, already has won a similar award this year from the Academy of Country Music in Los Angeles. The group was given a strong chance to win the CMA's top accolade tonight when the Nashville-based association announces its annual award winners on CBS television, to be broadcast starting at 9:30 p.m. EDT.

The ceremonies will be held at the Grand Ole Opry House with Miss Mandrell and Mac Davis as co-hosts.

The versatile Miss Mandrell was chosen entertainer of the year in 1980 and 1981, becoming the first two-time winner. Besides Alabama, this year's finalists are veteran singer Willie Nelson, the Oak Ridge Boys and newcomer Ricky Skaggs.

From Palimony To Matrimony

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Cynthia Lang, who settled a "palimony" lawsuit earlier this year with rock star Alice Cooper, has married a lawyer from the firm that represented her.

The 30-year-old actress-model married Mark Kaplan, 35, in a private ceremony at a home in Calabasas on Oct. 3, Marvin Mitchelson, whose firm represented her, said Sunday.

Mitchelson said he represented Miss Lang but she met Kaplan in his office.

Suggestiveness Marks New Detective Shows

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Dragnet," the most successful police show in the 1950s and '60s, couldn't get a badge today.

Sgt. Joe Friday was strictly a meat-and-potatoes man. No levity. No loose lips ("Just the facts, ma'am"). No female companions. And no SEX.

In the TV blotter for this new season, the approach sashays more to the relationships and suggestiveness of the co-educational detective shows. NBC's "Remington Steele" and CBS' "Tucker's Witch" feature winsome and whimsical crime-solving couples, both programs improving on the droll "Hart to Hart."

Although ABC's "Matt Houston" works alone, that doesn't mean he isn't surrounded by women. After all, the show comes from Aaron Spelling's stable. Spelling brought the world "Charlie's Angels," and, this season, he's executive producer of six ABC series: "Dynasty," "Hart to Hart," "T.J. Hooker," "Fantasy Island," "The Love Boat," and "Matt Houston."

The other gumshoe to get a shingle this season is Rock Hudson in the "Devlin Connection." This NBC program runs against the co-ed craze, with Hudson, who practically invented pillow-talk with Doris Day and, on TV, with Susan Saint James. This time, the approach is "McMillan and Son."

Perhaps it's only a coincidence, but based on original episodes, "Devlin Connection," on Saturday night, is the least appealing of the new detective programs.

Hudson, who looks in fine fettle following his heart attack, plays a debonair city cultural director who sold his detective agency. But he gets back into the business when he meets his long-lost son, who happens to be a street-smart private eye. Former model Jack Scalia plays the role.

There's an artificiality about "Devlin Connection." Nick calls his father "Big Guy," and the relationship and plot seems too far-fetched.

"Matt Houston" is not selling believability, either. But that's never the point of Spelling's never-never-land view of the world. It's all beautiful people, beautiful scenery and beautiful action in, of course, one beautiful package.

Lee Horsley, who looks like Tom Selleck and sounds like Dennis Weaver from "McCloud," is good at folksy, self-deprecating humor. "I just ask questions. You see, that's how I know I'm a detective."

It's easy to be self-effacing when you have everything. Houston is a multimillionaire tycoon, originally from Texas, who now does private investigating as a sideline in Los Angeles. He helicopters to his office. He has a computer named "Baby" and other fancy James Bond gadgets.

He also has a Harvard-educated gal Friday named C.J., the classy Pamela Hensley, who also serves as the Greek chorus, moving the cotton-candy plot on its merry way. Since C.J. is brunette, Houston's garage attendant is blonde. And so it goes.

The first Sunday, "Matt

Houston" bombed in the ratings. But, the second time out, it was the week's highest-rated new show.

"Remington Steele," on Friday night, has style of a different kind. It sells intrigue and subtlety. The Nick and Nora Charles here are Ireland's Pierce Brosnan ("Manions of America") and Stephanie Zimbalist. They're very good at the wink-wink, tongue-in-cheek game of TV chasin' and courtin'.

Laura Holt is the private detective and Remington Steele her dashing and conning front man. He's necessary because clients are wary of female sleuths.

"Do you pack a rod?" Laura asks him.

"You've seen too many movies, Miss Holt."

"Remington Steele" has potential, as does the sassy "Tucker's Witch," on Wednesday nights. The leads, recast since the pilot, are Tim Matheson and Catherine Hicks as a husband-and-wife detective team.

Amanda Tucker has special telepathic-telekinetic powers, which she can't always control. She uses them to thwart evil, or snap her husband into bed. When all else fails, she can also throw a good punch in the mouth.

Joe Friday would applaud the punch, not the puncher.

 A.—Don't convert the double to penalties by passing—you can't even be completely sure of defeating the contract. Partner has made a pretty strong bid, and you surely have game in one of the unbid suits, possibly even slam! The way to tell your partner how much your hand has improved is to start off with a cue-bid of three spades.

A Hero for Peace

The first 1982 Nobel Prize winners are scheduled to be announced today. The prestigious Peace Prize has gone to many great humanitarians — Albert Schweitzer, Martin Luther King, Mother Teresa, and Jean Henri Dunant, who shared the very first Peace Prize with French economist Frederic Passy in 1901. Dunant's name may not be familiar, but his work is still with us today. The terrible suffering during the European wars in 1859 horrified Dunant. In 1864, he founded an organization to care for the injured and needy in war and peace: the International Red Cross. Since then, Red Cross organizations have won Nobel Peace Prizes in 1917, 1944, and 1963 for their services to humanity.

Some PCB Protesters Planning Continue Fight

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - While some Warren County citizens said they were content to accept concessions from Gov. Jim Hunt about the PCB landfill in Afton, others vowed to fight the dump even after it was filled.

"The only thing capping (the landfill) does is it relieves us of having to march every day," said the Rev. Leon White in a telephone interview following Sunday's march toward Raleigh.

Joyce Lubbers, who has served as an informal press secretary for Warren County Citizens Concerned About PCB since demonstrations against the dump began almost four weeks ago, said she thought Hunt treated demonstrators well when he met with a delegation Friday.

"I think that we got just about all we could get and clear-thinking individuals think that," she said.

Mrs. Lubbers said she was disturbed about the march on Raleigh. But White said protesters were marching to the "mandate of the people" of Warren County.

"The committee voted to support this march," he said. "The people want to have the dump site removed. Personally, we are prepared to struggle around this case for 10 years if it is necessary."

On Sunday, 75 to 125 marchers walked to Louisburg toward a planned rally in Raleigh Tuesday.

Hunt has promised to support future legislation prohibiting dumpings of other hazardous chemicals in Warren County and that the state will constantly check for any possible health hazard from the landfill.

But White and Kenneth Ferruccio, leader of the citizens' group, said county residents are determined that the dump must close.

"A stigma has been put on the people of Warren County," White said. "We're not going to allow our people to become guinea pigs to determine whether or not PCB affects human beings."

Warren County has been the scene of 507 arrests since the first truckloads of PCB-tainted soil began arriving in Warren County over three weeks ago. White said those arrested would take their fight to the courts when the time comes - perhaps aided by a recent decision to allow television cameras to cover trials.

"We will use those trials to really testify to the fact that we have a moral and legal right to stop those trucks in our community," he said. "If we have to go to jail to serve some time, then the people will know that we are committed. They've got television now. We can politicize now right in the courtroom."

Oil laced with polychlorinated biphenyls, used in electrical transformers as insulation until they were banned in 1978, was dumped along 243 miles of North Carolina roadsides in 1978. State road crews have scooped up 231 miles of the roadways since the dump opened. Those crews are scheduled to complete the work this week.

Toll Of Eleven In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
A two-car collision in rural Wake County that claimed three lives highlighted a weekend 11 traffic deaths on North Carolina's highways, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

In that accident, Ricky Center Stephenson, 22, of Raleigh; Dwight Avery Hood, 22, of Holly Springs; and Anita Taylor Hood, 21, also of Holly Springs were killed about 11:30 p.m. Friday on a rural road near Fuquas-Varina. Troopers said the Stephenson car crossed the center line traveling at high speed and struck the Hood car head-on.

Another head-on crash at 12:50 a.m. Sunday on a rural paved road in Vance County near Henderson claimed the life of Edwin Allen Davis, 22, of Henderson. Officials said a car crossed the center line and hit a car driven by Davis.

In another head-on wreck, Christopher Wilkerson, 20, a Marine stationed at the New River Air Station, was killed when a car crossed the center line and struck a motorcycle on which he was a passenger in Carteret County. The accident occurred at 7:20 p.m. Friday on N.C. 58.

Not far from that site, a 24-year-old man was killed on N.C. 24 the next day when he was struck by a car while fighting in the road. The patrol said David Allen Jordan, 24, of Swansboro was killed in the accident about 10:45 p.m. Saturday east of Emerald Isle.

Two Concord men died when the car in which they were riding ran off the road at high speed, struck a culvert and hit a tree Saturday night in Cabarrus County. Donald Ray Barnhardt, 22, and George Edwin Morrison Jr., 22, were killed when Barnhardt drove the car off a rural paved road 4½ miles west of Concord, the patrol said.

A Troutman man was killed in a three-car crash at 8 p.m. Friday in Iredell County on U.S. 64 near Statesville. The patrol said Tommy Lee Brown, 36, was riding in a car traveling east on U.S. 64 that crossed the center line, struck another vehicle and then bounced off into the path of a third car.

Jeffrey L. Jernigan, 28, of Ahoskie was killed at 9:55 p.m. Sunday on a rural road near Coffee. Troopers said the car Jernigan was driving ran off the road and turned over.

And in Yadkin County, 16-year-old Michael Dean Spillman of Yadkinville was killed at 4:20 p.m. Sunday when the car he was driving went out of control on a rural road near Yadkinville and struck another vehicle.

The weekend deaths raised the yearly traffic fatality toll to 952, compared to 1,139 at the same time last year.

Near Containing Southern California Brush Fires

By SCOTT RECKARD
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firefighters struggled today to complete the containment of two giant wind-fed brush fires that have ravaged thousands of acres in tinder-dry Southern California, burning 85 homes and injuring 147 people.

Authorities were looking for arsonists believed to have set five of the 10 fires that blackened 74,800 acres in five counties over the weekend and caused an estimated $36 million in damages.

The worst two fires, in Malibu and in Orange County, were fanned by Santa Ana "devil" winds — dry seasonal gusts blowing off the deserts toward the Pacific Ocean.

No one was killed by the fires and most of the injuries were minor, with victims suffering smoke inhalation or irritated eyes.

But winds gusting up to 60 mph killed 14-year-old Ellen Wright of Baldwin Park, knocking a tree onto her tent Saturday as she slept in Holcomb Canyon, about 35 miles northeast of Los Angeles, sheriff's Deputy Dave Tellez said.

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. declared a state of emergency in Los Angeles, Ventura and Orange counties, allowing state officials to seek federal aid for uninsured homeowners, who would be eligible for low-interest loans or grants up to $5,000.

The largest fire, charring 54,000 acres and causing $20 million damage in Dayton Canyon, 35 miles northwest of Los Angeles, was 80 percent contained with full containment predicted by tonight. The Orange County fire was reported 90 percent contained and 60 percent controlled early today with full containment and control expected later today. Fires are contained when encircled by fire lines and controlled when firefighters can direct their progress.

In Dayton Canyon, 24 houses and 41 mobile homes burned, along with the wilderness location where the "M-A-S-H" television series has been filmed, said Los Angeles County fire spokesmen.

Initially firefighters had estimated 122 homes burned in the two biggest fires, but that was revised downward today.

Barbara Copeland surveyed the charred and twisted wreckage of her mobile home there Sunday.

"The refrigerator melted. You can't tell we ever had a TV set or a washer or a dryer. They just melted," she said.

One firefighter suffered second-degree burns and several were treated for broken bones at Kaiser Canyon Medical Center in Anaheim.

"The sparks were so thick it was like driving into a blizzard with your headlights on high," said Tony McEwan, 38, whose Latigo Canyon home was threatened by the Dayton Canyon blaze.

Witnesses said a car was seen driving into the area just before the arson-caused blaze erupted. County fire Battalion Chief Donald Grant said investigators had narrowed their search to "two prime vehicle types."

"It was definitely an arson fire. We found multiple points of origin and an ignition device," Grant said, declining to elaborate.

A fire in Riverside County also was deliberately set, firefighters said. Los Angeles County Fire Chief Clyde Bragdon also blamed arsonists for three fires that broke out Saturday morning on the inland side of the Santa Monica Mountains, including Dayton Canyon.

Another deliberately set fire burned 3,000 acres Friday in Simi Valley, 10 miles north of Dayton Canyon, before firefighters gained control.

The Orange County blaze charred 16,800 acres and destroyed or damaged 20 homes each valued at up to $500,000 in Crest de Ville, Villa Park and Orange Acres, neighborhoods close to its origin in Gypsum Canyon, 35 miles southeast of Los Angeles. Total damage there was estimated at $16 million.

Most residents who lost homes apparently sought shelter with friends or relatives. Red Cross spokesman Ralph Wright reported few victims stayed at the agency's emergency shelters.

The typical autumn Santa Ana winds, forced through the mountains by high-pressure fronts east of California, blew the fires from one dry hillside to another and kept firefighters from using airborne water drops till Sunday.

Smaller weekend fires claimed a total of about 1,000 acres in Orange County's Laguna Canyon; between Riverside and Norco in Riverside County, 50 miles east of Los Angeles; and in San Diego County's Ballena Valley, about 100 miles southeast.

Los Angeles County Fire spokesman Jim Davids said the fires left hillsides barren of foliage needed to prevent mudslides during winter rains.

Farm Scene

By SAM UZZELL

Mushrooms in lawns and woodlands are frequently seen in Spring and Fall. This year is no exception, except that mushrooms may be a bit more numerous than in other years here in Pitt County. Thick stands of several species of mushrooms have prompted numerous homeowners to look for assistance in control of these fungal fruiting bodies.

Mushrooms are the visible sign of a fungus growing in the area. The fungus is likely to be present year after year where mushrooms are visible, and when climatic conditions are suitable, the fungus produces fruiting bodies to spread thousands of spores into the air. Each of these spores is able to start growing if suitable food material and environmental conditions are found in another location.

Most mushrooms are dependent on dead plant material or other organic matter in order to grow and develop. Others must have a living host, such as the roots of pine or other trees before they can establish themselves. Still other fungi can subsist on either living or dead plant material. Fungi in general are beneficial because they consume and get rid of organic matter that would normally not decay. So they are essential in the recycling of nutrients in nature.

The proliferation of mushrooms in a lawn where they have never been seen simply means that have been established for some time and that climatic conditions have been favorable for the production of fruiting bodies. Once climatic conditions change, then the fruiting bodies will again disappear and may reappear some time later when conditions are again favorable.

Other than being unsightly for a short while and occasionally poisonous for humans to eat, mushrooms do not cause lasting harm to lawn grasses or some trees. There are no chemicals that can be sprayed to eradicate fungi from the soil inexpensively. Since so little harm is caused by mushrooms, the attitude to take is one of benign neglect...they'll be gone soon enough.

Arrests Involve Flag

Two East Carolina University students, Robert Scott Deman, 18 of Cary, and David Paul O'Brien, 19 of Bethesda, Md., was arrested by Greenville police Sunday morning on attempted larceny charges.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers saw the two attempting to remove a North Carolina flag from a pole at McDonald's restaurant at 301 East Tenth St. about 4 a.m.

The two, who ran as officers approached, were taken into custody a short time later on Ninth Street, the chief said.

N.C. Farmers Producing Large Crops; Profits May Disappoint

By The Associated Press
State agriculture officials say the average North Carolina farmer this year will see a profit for his labors — but the line between profit and loss will be thin.

"North Carolina is suffering, but we've got diversification some states don't have," said Dr. Frank A. Bordeaux Jr., the chief economist of the state Department of Agriculture.

"And not all commodities go in the same price movements," he added. "I think we're still going to have more money taken in in cash receipts than paid out in production costs, but it's getting down to the close point."

State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham agreed. He said farmers this year tried to recoup losses or expand the profit margin from last year.

Ironically, the farmers this year almost grew themselves out of business, Graham said. "Many of our growers had their backs against the wall at the end of 1981," he said. "They went all out in production this year to try to recover from very shaky financial positions."

"And now you've got a classic example of farmers almost producing themselves out of business."

But Tar Heel farmers are in better shape than growers elsewhere, according to recent agriculture figures. For the first time in American history, farmers are expected to spend more on production costs this year — $144 billion — than they receive in cash payments for livestock and crops — $142 billion.

The figures are slightly better in North Carolina, where 93,000 farmers are managing to hang on — and some to make a pretty good profit.

Tobacco farmers, who traditionally have enjoyed good returns on their investments because of the federal loan program, are disappointed with this year's prices.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco-affairs specialist for the agriculture department, said North Carolina flue-cured tobacco growers will gross $1.15 billion this year, down from last year's $1.265 billion gross. Cyrus said barely 75 percent of the state's 651-million-pound crop this year has brought auction bids above the average $1.70 support price. That means the Flue-Cured Tobacco Stabilization Corp. will spend about $286 million in federal money to buy about 162 million pounds of leaf that did not bring a minimum price.

Hog farmers are in better shape, figures state. Hog growers are making money for the first time in three years because a 12 percent cut in production has driven pork prices up by 25 percent while feed costs have dropped.

But the news is not as cheerful across the nation. More corn, soybeans, wheat and sweet potatoes will go to market this year than ever before, adding to huge surpluses left over from 1980 and 1981.

Hunt Says Ike Could Still Win

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. Rep. Ike Andrews, campaigning under the burden of a recent arrest for driving under the influence of alcohol, says he will make his Republican opponent wage a vigorous campaign if he is to win the seat.

Andrews said at a 4th District rally Saturday night that Republican challenger William Cobey will not have an easy time in the election. "We are going to force the opponent to have a campaign," Andrews said in a fiery speech.

The 4th District consists of Wake, Franklin, Chatham, Orange and Randolph counties.

The five-term incumbent was arrested over a week ago and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol. He said after his arrest that he had drunk two cups of rum and soft drink while driving home from Washington, D.C.

He pleaded guilty to DUI and two other charges in Wake County District Court last week and was ordered to surrender his driver's license for a year, plus pay fines and attend a state alcohol and drug education school.

After a closed-door conference with Democrats last week, Andrews announced that he would try to be elected to Congress for a sixth term.

Gov. Jim Hunt said Saturday night that Andrews faces an uphill battle, but said Andrews can still be re-elected.

"It's going to be tough, but Ike Andrews has shown that he knows that," Hunt said. He did not mention Andrews' arrest.

The arrest has cooled Hunt's political support for Andrews, and Hunt did not heap his normal lavish praise on Andrews as he usually does on other Democratic candidates.

But Hunt did praise Andrews as a moderate who has demonstrated fiscal responsibility, while he attacked Cobey by linking him to the National Congressional Club.

"Ike Andrews has not sold out to a crowd like the Congressional Club," Hunt said. The National Congressional Club, which is the political organization of U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., is supporting Cobey.
