Utilities Increase Natural Gas Rates

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville Utilities Commission's natural gas customers will see a 9.4 percent increase — or six cents per hundred cubic feet hike — in their gas rate effective October 1, because of a rate increase from North Carolina Natural Gas.

GUC director Charles Horne told GUC board members last night that in keeping with the commission's policy to "track" such increases, firm retail customers will be paying 69.7 cents per hundred cubic feet. That price, Horne said, is still 30 percent to 40 percent below the equivalent cost of number two fuel oil.

The new rate for interruptible gas will be 60.7 cents per hundred cubic feet.

Horne also told commission members that the refund of some $1.82 million to GUC electric customers from a 1978 rate case settlement with Virginia Electric and Power Co. was completed in September. In fact, Horne noted, the total amount refunded to customers through credits on their electric bills for January, February, March, August and September, amounted to $15,063 more than anticipated when the project began.

Horne also reported that a total of 60 leaks were found during the annual gas leak survey performed by Health Consultants which began July 19 and was completed August 2.

The survey, which included a fourth of all residential customers and all commercial buildings involved checking 46.3 miles of gas mains and 793 individual services.

Only four of the leaks were considered a probable hazard to persons or property, Horne said. Those were repaired immediately.

Sixteen others were considered non-hazardous at the time of detection but were scheduled for repair, while 40 of the leaks were termed non-hazardous at the time of detection and could reasonably be expected to remain non-hazardous without repair.

Commission members voted to allow Horne to negotiate a fair settlement for the billing period of August 11 to September 14 of a $757.50 water bill that resulted from a leak at the home of Steven S. Donley on N.C. 43 south of Greenville.

Horne said 375,000 gallons of water ran unnoticed into a highway ditch after someone apparently ran over the meter box at the home and cut the customer's plastic service line. The director noted that the mishap occurred while the Donley family was away from the home on a two weeks vacation.

The leak, Horne said, amounted to about 15 gallons per minute. Had the dwelling been within the city limits, the bill for that amount of water would have been $378.75.

In other business last night, commission members awarded the audit contract for the year ending June 30, 1983, to John C. Proctor & Co. for $7,800; approved the sale of three surplus 30-year-old 34KV station transformers and three surplus voltage regulators to Tideland EMC for $22,000; and approved the sale, at auction, of three cars, several trucks, a wrecker and other equipment at 11 a.m. on October 30.

Contracts were also awarded for the purchase of a number of vehicles and other equipment to the low bidders. They included: $36,900 for 9,000 feet of 8-inch water pipe to Pump & Lighting Co. of Kinston; $27,540 for two 1,500KVA padmount transformers to Mill-Power Supply Co.; $17,900.25 for a 4-wheel drive tractor to Eastern Tractor & Equipment Co.; $3,360 for a rotary mower to Carvir Corp.; $32,730 net cost including trade-in for a 36-foot bucket truck to Utility Distributors, Inc.; $38,736 net cost including trade-in for a 45-foot bucket truck to Utility Distributors Inc.; and $79,348 for a line truck with hydraulic derrick to Altec Industries Inc.

Gdansk Shipyards Said Ringed By Riot Police

By THOMAS W. NETTER
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Riot police ringed the newly militarized Gdansk shipyard today after two days of strikes and bloody protests, and officials warned workers they face five-year prison terms if they stage more demonstrations over the outlawing of Solidarity.

Workers claimed some of their colleagues planned to ignore the warnings, but it was not immediately known if the yard was struck again. Unconfirmed reports said two people were killed and many injured battling riot police in Gdansk during the night.

Reporters in Gdansk said that workers leaving the yard said they had been "technically" drafted into the army and made subject to military discipline after the yard was declared "militarized" by the government Tuesday in an effort to break the spirit of some 10,000 workers who staged eight-hour strikes in Gdansk and nearby Gdynia Monday and Tuesday.

Police firing tear gas, water cannon and smoke and stun bombs routed protesters at the shipyard monuments

Tuesday evening, chasing them through city streets. Witnesses said many rioters were beaten, and the streets were littered with rocks and debris. Authorities reported 148 arrests.

Martial-law spokesman Jerzy Urban told reporters in Warsaw the uprising will not affect plans to release 308 more interned unionists, but he declared that Solidarity chief Lech Walesa and about 780 others will not be freed.

Militants who organized strikes Monday and Tuesday demanded Walesa's release and the reinstatement of Solidarity, banned Friday by Parliament under a tough new labor law that erases reforms won by the independent union before martial law was decreed 10 months ago.

The militarization of the shipyards where Solidarity was born in August 1980 came after riot squads battled with an estimated 10,000 shipyard workers and supporters in two cities.

Police fired tear gas, sprayed water cannon and lobbed smoke bombs at an angry mob of about 1,000 protesters who surged toward Communist Party headquarters.

Christians And Moslems In Lebanon Wage Battles

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christians and Moslems in the central mountains fought nightlong battles which intensified today and threatened a fresh wave of sectarian hostility in this war-scarred nation.

Lebanese radio stations said the fighting between rightist Lebanese Christian militiamen and leftist Druze, a breakaway Islamic sect, erupted Tuesday afternoon in Baaouerta and Dakou, two villages 15 miles southeast of here in the Druze-populated mountain range known as the Shouf. It later spread to the nearby villages of Kfarratta and Abbey.

Tuesday's sectarian outbreak came after Israeli and Syrian forces in eastern Lebanon's Bekaa Valley traded artillery barrages. There were no reports of casualties in that exchange.

Both Lebanon's dominant Christian Phalangist Party militia and the leftist Progressive Socialist Party, with a large Druze following, blamed each other for starting the sectarian fighting.

Sheik Amin Tarif, spiritual leader of the Israeli Druze, Tuesday telegraphed 12 Israeli leaders including Prime Minister Menachem Begin, requesting the Israeli army prevent a possible massacre of Druze by Lebanon's dominant Christian Phalange Party, sources said.

Two Are Announced Winners Of 1982 Nobel Peace Prize

By ERIK WOLD

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Alva Myrdal of Sweden and Alfonso Garcia Robles of Mexico, two veteran fighters for world disarmament, were jointly awarded the 1982 Nobel Peace Prize today.

The 80-year-old Mrs. Myrdal, a sociologist and former diplomat, and Garcia Robles, 71-year-old former Mexican foreign minister, "for many years had played a central role in the United Nations' disarmament negotiations," the chairman of the Norwegian Nobel Committee, Egil Aarvik, said in announcing today's award.

Mrs. Myrdal's husband, Swedish sociologist Gunnar Myrdal, won the Nobel Economics Prize in 1974. Another husband-wife team, Frederic Joliot-Curie and Irene Joliot-Curie, jointly won the 1935 chemistry prize.

Mrs. Myrdal and Garcia Robles were among a record 79 candidates — 60 individuals and 19 organizations — nominated for the peace prize, which carries a stipend of 1.15 million Swedish kronor, equivalent to $157,000.

Other candidates had included detained Polish labor leader Lech Walesa, U.S. Mideast mediator Philip C. Habib, black South African bishop Desmond Tutu and jailed Soviet human rights activist Yuri Orlov.

Mrs. Myrdal has been a perennial nominee for the peace prize. This year she was nominated by member of the Norwegian Parliament.

When she was not chosen last year, 19 Norwegian political and pacifist organizations took up a nationwide collection and presented a "People's Peace Prize" of 375,000 Norwegian kroner to her — equivalent to about $50,000 by today's exchange rate.

Highway 264 Proposals Face Opposition From Residents

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

PACTOLUS — Residents along a 10.4-mile section of 264 between Greenville and Washington proposed to be four-laned in 1984 oppose the design as it now exists, they said during a public hearing held by the N.C. Department of Transportation Tuesday night at Pactolus Elementary School here.

Representatives of the Pitt-Greenville and Washington, N.C. Chambers of Commerce were the only speakers on behalf of the project. Bill Abeyounis, the Washington Chamber director, and Ed Walker, the Pitt-Greenville Chamber president, did not comment on the design itself. Walker read a resolution by the Pitt-Greenville Transportation Board in favor of the project.

This well-attended public hearing is the last that is to be held before a final design for the widening of U.S. 264 from State Road 1538 to Washington is settled upon, Bill Garrett, moderator of the hearing, said.

Durwood E. Cratch, owner of Cratch's Grocery west of Washington, said he would like to see the proposed four-laning changed to a five-lane curbed and guttered design that would allow for easier access and, more importantly, save land. He said he was speaking on behalf of the Manuel Brown Jr. family most of whom could not be present because of critical illness in the family. Several members of this family, he said, will have to have their homes moved and lose most of their farmland if the proposed design is used.

J.O. Briley also spoke on behalf of 5-lane curbed and guttered highway out of Washington to the county line.

IT'S NO LAUGHING MATTER...but Betty Rodgers, Durwood Cratch, and Ward Woolard looked pleasant as they located Mrs. Rodgers' house on a map that spanned one wall of the auditorium of Pactolus Elementary School last night during a Department of Transportation hearing held there. Mrs.

Rodgers said the present design of the widening and improvement of Highway 264 from Washington to State Road 1538 calls for it to come through her house. (Reflector Photo By Carol Tyer).

Greenville's Building Permits For July Down

Greenville was one of 16 North Carolina cities that recorded $1 million or more in building permit values during July, according to state Labor Commissioner John Brooks.

The July total of $1,696,806 in Greenville was up from the $1,277,265 reported for June and $1,105,347 in May, but down from April's $2,666,933.

Brooks said that permits totals here for the first seven months of 1982 amounted to $9,673,688.

The commissioner said construction authorized in Pitt County during July totaled $1,790,986, down sharply from the June figure of $2,693,922 but up from the May total of $1,220,282. The July figure included $590,211 for 13 single-family units, $383,968 for 16 non-residential units, and $813,807 for 56 additions and alterations. No multi-family construction was authorized during the month.

Brooks said building activity in the state's 44 reporting cities of more than 10,000 population dropped 14.2 percent in July compared to the same period in 1981. The number of units dropped from 3,595 to 3,083, he said, and value fell 13.8 percent to $79,809,592 from $92,590,248.

Compared to June, authorized construction in the 44 cities decreased 11.5 percent, from 3,482 units, with value off 18.2 percent, from $97,530,719, Brooks reported.

The average construction cost for a single-family home

rose from $39,693 last July to $39,918. Brooks said the average figure decreased 6.6 percent from June's $42,755.

Building values for July and for the first seven months in several eastern towns included: Elizabeth City, $805,845, $4,088,642; Goldsboro, $567,459, $7,891,924; Jacksonville, $1,877,458, $12,016,876; Kinston, $172,000, $2,567,662; New Bern, $2,496,120, $5,439,748; Roanoke Rapids, $146,427, $1,588,410; Rocky Mount, $1,991,026, $6,944,683; Tarboro, $254,500, $11,172,740; and Wilson, $276,198, $7,291,680.

Charlotte, with $18,497,603, led individual cities in value reported for the fourth time in 1982, followed by Raleigh with $10,894,811, Greensboro with $8,634,754, and Winston-Salem, $6,402,799.

Bitter Months On Picket Line

By STEVE KLINE
Associated Press Writer
SOUTH SIOUX CITY, Neb. (AP) — When Harvey and Wanda Borntrager walked off their jobs at the nation's largest beef processing company, dreams of moving into a new house vanished, replaced by realities of life on the picket line.

That picket line lasted nearly four months — months marred by violence when the Nebraska National Guard and state troopers were called in to break up picket line confrontations.

About 2,400 employees at the IBP Inc. beef slaughter facility in nearby Dakota City had struck June 7 after telling the company they could not accept a four-year wage freeze. Seven hundred union and non-union employees eventually returned, allowing the plant to reopen July 30.

On Oct. 1, members of Local 222 of the United Food and Commercial Workers International voted to return to work for the same wages they were getting when they walked off the job.

Monday morning, the 33-year-old Borntrager, with five children to support, was first in line at the plant to re-apply for his old job, a procedure required of all union members who joined the strike.

"This is a survival kit, right here," said Borntrager. "People don't work here because they want to — they work here to survive. If I could make the same money doing something else, I'd be gone."

Mrs. Borntrager returned to her job Tuesday and her husband goes back Thursday.

During the strike, the family's weekly take-home income dropped from about $600 to $400, after Borntrager took an arduous truck-driving job that kept him away from his family for days.

Their social world dwindled to the confines of the living room in their small house trailer. Meat almost disappeared from their diet.

Mrs. Borntrager, also 33, said she started "talking about divorce — seriously," so her husband quit driving the truck and the family scraped by on $130 a week in strike pay.

"I just want to get it settled and get back to my job. But we still don't have a contract and we could go out again," said Borntrager who loads trucks at the plant. "I want to build my wife's dream house, but by the time we get set up to where we'll be able to do it, we'll probably be on strike again."

"I don't feel any security," said Mrs. Borntrager, who works on the plant's extra gang, filling in for people who are ill or on vacation. "For the kids, strike is a way of life," referring to the plant's long history of labor trouble.

Though it meant they would not be able to buy the house they hoped to move into by Christmas, the Borntragers took precautions to survive the walkout. Savings went to pay off all bills. The family got together about a month before walkout to discuss where their budget could be cut.

Fifteen-year-old Randy, the oldest of five children, worked all summer to pay tuition at Sioux City Heelan High, a private school. Movies and dining out were eliminated. The children would ride their bikes to school and carry their lunches instead of buying meals.

"We sit at home a lot," Borntrager said. "With five kids, you can make your own entertainment."

The Borntragers, both with 10th-grade educations, feel trapped and they feel bitter about the strike.

"Where else can we go, without any education, to make the money we make here?" Mrs. Borntrager asked.

The latest IBP walkout

was unusual because the union struck to preserve rather than improve conditions. It offered to accept a two-year wage freeze and the company asked for a four-year wage freeze. Union members were shocked. Borntrager said, when the company refused the offer.

"They don't care about us," Borntrager said, gesturing toward his 4-year-old son Christopher. "They don't care if he eats. We have to have the union. We wouldn't have anything without it."

Charles Harness, spokesman for IBP, said the walkout was a costly mistake for union members.

"The striking employees have lost on the average $7,000 in wages since the strike began," he said. "We deeply regret that the hasty actions inspired by the union leadership back in June had this result."

"Look at the people that are taking advantage of our jobs," Borntrager said, referring to non-union workers hired by IBP to fill strikers' jobs. "That causes more anger in me than anything."

Strike is a way of life at IBP. A labor dispute at the Dakota City plant has never been settled without one.

"They make millions off us and don't want us to have anything," Mrs. Borntrager said. "I can't just not do anything about that. I'm the type that will go down with the ship."

Organ Donors Leave Legacy That Gives

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: While driving north from Florida, I stopped in Virginia for gas, only to discover that somewhere after the last fill-up I'd lost my wallet containing all my identification, license, etc.

A week later, I received a well-wrapped package in the mail. It contained my wallet! And with it was this letter:

"Dear June: My husband is a truck driver from Kansas. While he and his co-driver were driving through Virginia yesterday, they found your wallet and its contents scattered on the highway. They picked up all they could find; I hope nothing is missing. There was money. In the wallet was a card indicating that you are an organ donor. There was also a very touching clipping from the Dear Abby column urging people to become donors. It was beautiful!

"You must be a wonderful person. My sister had a heart transplant, which added a few more months to her life. We can never thank the relatives of the donor because we don't know who the donor was.

"I also have a young daughter who is on a kidney machine three hours twice a week. It breaks my heart that I can't give her one of my kidneys (our blood and tissue types don't match) and, unfortunately, her father's kidneys aren't healthy enough. But thanks to caring people like you, someday someone may be a donor for her. May God bless you with a long and healthy life." — Driver's Wife

Abby, I hope that you will think this is worth sharing. People need to know that there are still a lot of generous, decent people out there who will go out of their way to do a kindness for a stranger.

JUNE P., MAINE

DEAR JUNE: It is indeed worth sharing. And the "clipping" that touched that truck driver's wife also deserves another run, and here it is. It originally appeared Dec. 28, 1977:

"At a certain moment a doctor will determine that my brain has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

"When that happens, do not attempt to instill artificial life into my body by the use of a machine. And don't call this my 'deathbed.' Call it my 'bed of life,' and let my body be taken from it to help others lead fuller lives.

"Give my sight to a man who has never seen a sunrise, a baby's face or love in the eyes of a woman.

"Give my heart to a person whose own heart has ceased to function and that, for all intents and purposes, my life has stopped.

"Give my blood to the teen-ager who has been pulled from the wreckage of his car, so that he might live to see his grandchildren play.

"Give my kidneys to one who depends on a machine to exist from week to week.

"Take my bones, every muscle, every fiber and nerve in my body and find a way to make a crippled child walk.

"Explore every corner of my brain. Take my cells, if necessary, and let them grow so that someday a

Make It Pay — Use Credit Card Wisely

The way you manage your credit card has a lot to do with the costs of using that form of credit. Careless or thoughtless use of cards can add to the costs, even if you don't make additional purchases, observes Evelyn L. Spangler, extension home economics agent in Pitt County.

One way to save money is to use your cards in such a way that the amount of interest you are charged is minimized, she adds.

The least expensive way to use your card is to pay your bill in full each month. Then no interest is added the following month.

If you can't do that, minimize costs by paying as much as you can each month. That way the principal amount on which the monthly interest is figured will be less.

If you pay only the minimum balance each month and you continue to make purchases the account can gradually grow up to the top limit, Mrs. Spangler points out.

If you charge more each month than you pay off, you'll never be free of debt. You may reach the point where the only amount you can charge each month is the amount you paid on the previous bill.

To get your bill down to manageable proportions, Mrs. Spangler suggests that you pay as much as you can each month. If this amount is more than the minimum payment and the new purchases listed, you may eventually reduce the bill so you can pay it off. From then on try to pay off all of your credit charges each month.

Make It Pay At Discount Stores

Getting friends together to go discount store hopping can be fun. It also may mean stretching the family clothing dollar by 30 percent or more, especially if you are a savvy shopper.

Smart shopping usually calls for some advance planning, Mrs. Spangler said. She suggests making a list of the types of garments family members need, including information on size, color preference and style.

Next, give yourself a maximum allowance to spend. "Don't get carried away with your findings and overspend," she cautions. "If you do exceed your allowance, you'll have to make up that deficit spending somewhere else."

Take the time to evaluate construction of garment and quality of fabric. If the garment is labeled "irregular" or "second," figure out what the defect is and whether or not it will affect appearance and wearability.

Check the fit. If the garment doesn't "look good" on you, it's not a bargain at any price.

Finally, know the particular discount store's policies. In most instances sales are final, so be sure the garment is acceptable. If you have any reservations, don't buy.

New Packaging Needed

The nation was horrified last weekend as the news gradually spread over the nation of the poisoning of innocent people by cyanide placed in Tylenol Extra-Strength capsules.

It touched everyone because there are few who don't purchase and take non-prescription medications which we pick up directly off the shelves.

Many of these drugs are not sealed and some capsules can be pulled apart and altered. It is something that we seldom think about as we purchase drugs which we have every reason to feel are safe.

The wantonness of the Tylenol poisoning shocked the industry, the public and the government agencies which regulate the distribution of drugs. Almost immediately there were calls for new rules regarding the packaging of over-the-counter drugs which would make them more difficult to tamper with. Clearly the need was there. However, experts were quick to point out that almost anything that is done would not be completely effective against the insane person who is bent on mass poisonings.

At present manufacturing methods exist to seal capsules, or seals can be placed around the bottle tops. Some capsules are packaged in bubble packs, held in place on a card by plastic which is broken by the user.

None of these are tamper proof, but any of them would make the job of altering medicine more difficult. Of course, there would be additional cost to the consumer. The overwhelming majority of us, however would pay for the added safety.

Without question some action should be taken to reduce the possibility of a recurrence of the Tylenol problem.

A MIGHTY TOUGH ONE TO ASSEMBLE!

Tom Hayden Challenging

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. — Tom Hayden, looking nothing like the radical street battler of the '60s, stopped by the Pacific Palisades Rotary Club in his new quest for power and told the conservative businessmen there that he wants "to save the free enterprise system from ruin."

"If I didn't know who he is, I'd probably be for him," one impressed Rotarian told us after the lunch. He and the others know Hayden is no ordinary Democrat running for the state Assembly but is the nation's leading left political activist. Accordingly, Hayden probably did not pick up one vote lurching with the Rotary at the posh Riviera Country Club.

But it was no wasted two hours. Hayden was so unalarmed and reassuring that nobody left his speech ready to man the barricades against his election. That's why Hayden ventures into enemy territory to show himself off as just another Democratic politician, albeit with peculiarly innovative ideas.

Hayden is really far more than that. To win a seat in the state legislature, he will spend well over $1 million (helped no little by his money-making wife, Jane Fonda). That is double what is normally spent for governor in neighboring Western states. His precinct organization not only surpasses anything else in California, but probably cannot be matched anywhere in the nation.

With his financial and organizational resources, Hayden in Sacramento will clearly have his eye on the Assembly speakership some day soon — an office of pervasive power in California. His own organization, the Campaign for Economic Democracy (CED), is today concentrated in California, but has unmistakable national aspirations.

What Hayden and CED have in mind is worker representation in corporate decision-making, with a shared role of corporation, government, community and workers in setting policy. Hayden denies that is socialism, but it is certainly not free-market capitalism. Hayden's policy aims produce agreement with Republicans by many mainline Democrats that now is the best time to stop him. If he cannot be elected to the state Assembly, Hayden is finished. That accounts for a $500,000-plus campaign budget for Bill Hawkins, the 37-year-old Republican neophyte opposing him in this overwhelmingly Democratic district. It also explains why the National Conservative Political Action Committee (NCPAC) for once has intervened in a state legislative race.

Self-styled "moderate" Hawkins is no liberal than Hayden on abortion and ERA, but must paint him with a bright red brush. Hawkins billboards quote Hayden as saying, "We want to abolish a private property system..." That is from "Trial," Hayden's 1970 book, and almost all of his own words used against him in this campaign are of no more recent vintage.

Hayden is more careful about what he says today. Wearing white shirt and tie, blue blazer and gray slacks, the old SDS firebrand was the model of decorum talking to the Rotarians a few blocks from the home where Ronald Reagan spent most of his adult life.

Hayden began by sympathizing with this conservative community's fight against off-shore oil and gas exploration ("This community has a right to the preservation of its character."). Warning that "we are on the brink of a new Great Depression," he attacked "liberal" remedies ("I think that liberals ought to admit that government bureaucracy is just as bad as corporate bureaucracy").

Such rhetoric is not necessary in most of the district, which includes much of Santa Monica (called the "People's Republic of Santa Monica" after CED rentcontrollers took over the city government) and half of UCLA's student body. In a district won easily by Jimmy Carter against hometown boy Reagan, the million-dollar campaign ought to propel Tom Hayden off the Chicago streets of 14 years ago into public office as a challenging and disturbing new force.

Police Acted With Restraint

North Carolina and the nation followed with shock the standoff between Raleigh police and a Columbian gunman on an isolated Amtrak car last weekend.

It was eventually learned that a woman was dead in the train compartment during the entire ordeal. An infant died of dehydration and a 3-year-old was finally handed down to an FBI agent by the man who was holding them hostage.

It is known now that the woman was shot before police could do anything about it.

The question still arises, could the police have stormed the compartment or perhaps shot the man when he appeared at the window.

We will never know for certain what a different course of action could have meant.

We believe, however, the authorities acted with restraint in this ordeal. A rasher action could have resulted in greater loss of life.

Armor-Piercing Bullet

"Did you hear the good news?" Colt, a handgun-loving friend of mine asked. "What's that?" "They now have ammunition that can penetrate any lightweight bulletproof vest. It's called the KTW and it's coated with Teflon."

"Fantastic," I said. "That's the same stuff the vests are made of."

"That's right. An ammunition company figured out if a Teflon vest was strong enough to stop an ordinary bullet, then a Teflon-coated bullet could penetrate one."

"You have to hand it to the person who thought that one up. He must be a genius. Wait a minute. Don't law enforce-have to also ban other ammunition that is used for hunting and target practice."

"Who would try to ban a bullet that could go through a policeman's vest?" I asked.

"Congressman Mario Biaggi of New York, for one. He has proposed a bill that would ban all soft armor-piercing ammunition."

"What does he hope to gain by that?"

"Who knows? But it's bottled up in committee, and I doubt if the NRA will let it get out. Even the Justice Department thinks it's a lousy bill."

"What's their objection?"

"There are a lot of other kinds of handgun bullets that can go through a Teflon vest, and they feel the Biaggi bill is so broad it would hurt the sale of them as well."

"Maybe instead of worrying about ammunition, Congress should concentrate on developing a safer garment for policemen to wear," I suggested.

"That's the way we feel about it. It's the responsibility of the bulletproof vest people to keep up with the times. The KTW is alive and well and you don't solve the problem by banning it, just because it can splat through Teflon."

"I imagine the handgun control nuts are supporting Biaggi."

"Of course they are. They figure if they can ban bullets that kill policemen, they'll eventually be able to ban all ammunition used in handguns."

"But that would hurt the law-abiding people who use armor-piercing bullets for sport and target shooting."

"That's why we're making such a big issue of it. Let me read you this letter from

A Light Turnover

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR RALEIGH — Retirements and primary losses have already assured that the 1983 General Assembly will have a lot of new faces. But it doesn't appear that any more legislators will lose their seats in next month's general election.

Leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties say they expect little turnover in the November 2 voting and no major shift in the Democrats' 4-to-1 advantage. Each party, of course, predicts small gains. Although the legislative campaign has been generally quiet, there are some good races developing. Several write-in campaigns are being waged and four faces are tainted with scandal. A number of Democrats who got the boot from upstart Republicans in the 1980 GOP landslide are ready for rematches.

Sen. Harold Baker, R-Wilkes, probably has the biggest problem. He was just convicted of criminal charges involving a stolen auto and almost everyone expects him to lose his seat. Republicans are worried that he might hurt ticket mate Sen. Donald Kincaid.

Sen. Cary Alfred, R-Alamance, got himself in trouble in 1981 when he wrote a business letter detailing his legislative position. Many predicted the voters would retaliate. But Democrat Wiley Wooten, his challenger, has not raised the issue in the campaign and Republicans, at least, think Alfred may hang on. Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, accepted a bracelet from undercover agents working on the Colcor scandal. But Soles has not been charged with anything and even Republicans don't think their man, Frank Merritt, has much of a chance.

Rep. Ron Taylor, D-Bladen, had to resign his seat and his nomination after pleading guilty to criminal charges. Democrats don't expect the voters to punish the party's tickets for Taylor's actions. But a write-in candidacy there could cause them trouble.

Rep. Edd Nye, D-Bladen, denied Democratic renomination in both the primary and in the party

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

To the editor:

In the Public Forum column of our Sunday, Oct. 3, 1982, edition, you printed a letter from Henry Wooten Jr. of East Carolina. I would like to respond to Mr. Wooten's letter as follows:

1. "A double standard for the media treatment of Israel is okay because the Jews have a higher moral standard and are overachievers."

2. "Time Magazine said Israel was guilty of complicity, therefore, Jews and the rest of the world must accept it."

3. "Begin and Sharon are leaders of the Israelites and therefore should resign."

Point 1, I had difficulty understanding whether Mr. Wooten is denying the existence of a double standard or if he is in fact, saying that it is acceptable when it comes to Jews.

Point 2, provides the heinous effect of the media, as I know of no proof ever having been brought forth regarding Begin, Sharon or the Israeli military's complicity in the massacre.

Point 3, Begin and Sharon are the leaders of the Israeli government and not leaders of the Israelites.

The only statement of Mr. Wooten's that I can agree with is that the massacre of the Palestinians is a tragedy and a shameful blot on all of humanity.

ment officers and public officials wear Teflon vests to protect themselves? won't they be endangered by the KTW?"

"Of course not. The KTW costs $1.50 a round, and the price is much too high for your run-of-the-mill trigger man. Besides it's only sold by better gun dealers."

"The police can't be too happy about the KTW."

"They aren't, but you can't just stop selling ammunition because it can penetrate soft body armor."

"Why not?"

Colt said angrily, "Because when you start talking about armor-piercing ammunition you're getting yourself into a very complex and subjective area. There is no simple dividing line between bullets that will go through Teflon vests and those that will go through a deer, an antelope or an elk. If you ban something like the KTW you

THE TREASURE IN HEAVEN

Jesus once made a parable of a rich man who in the midst of his plenty declared he would pull down his barns and build greater and would say to his soul, "Take thine ease; drink and be merry." But that very night his soul was required of him, and those things which he had prepared were left to his relatives to squabble over.

We know not the day or the hour when God will call us. Let us always be ready on instant notice to be brought before the judgment seat of God. The rich householder had laid up riches for himself but was not rich toward God. There is a heavenly treasure — let us never forget that. It is wealth which lasts through eternity. We begin our accumulation here; we claim and enjoy our accumulation in the hereafter.

This may sound naive and old-fashioned, but it is clearly taught in the Word of God; and it is only this teaching which satisfies our deepest spiritual needs. — Elisha Douglass

Seers Puzzled By Wall Street

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As puzzled as anyone else, some of Wall Street's seers are suspending judgment about the stock market and assuring their customers that if it looks like a bull and acts like a bull then it probably is a bull.

But others remind us that these are days of deep deceit, and that now is the very time that judgments should be based on more than appearances lest, for example, a bear stalks the market dressed as a bull.

That is the dilemma in which investors — amateur and professional alike — now find themselves. Which is worse, to believe it's a bear when it's really a bull, or a bull when it's really a bear? Neither choice satisfies, of course.

You'll get little help from the professional forecasters, because they have demonstrated themselves as being unable to determine the nature of the beast. Their records, as compiled by Mark Hulbert, aren't impressive.

Looking back two months and better than 200 points in the Dow Jones industrial average, few of the pros foresaw the turn that shot the Dow to its present eminence — 1,012.79 at the close of business Monday.

Buried in a mudslide of gloom, their forecasts were awful, in just about any way you want to apply the description.

Joe Granville, who once convinced some people that he was the thing, whatever it is, that propels or buries the market, said at the time that the market was entering its "free-fall zone," the third phase of a bear market.

Richard Russell of Dow Theory Letters agreed with Granville. "I would say that we are now in the early stages of the third phase of the bear market," he told readers. Lawrence Heim of the Heim Investment Letter announced a "modern-day Depression" had arrived and that "it is definitely time to sell short." Harry Schultz, who charges more for a brief consultation than most people earn in a week, said that "no light-brigade charge to 900 is anywhere in sight."

Hulbert, whose newsletter is based on the dastardly practice of checking up on the forecasters, found very few who alerted their readers to the rally that began about then.

James Dines of The Dines Letter, and Market Logic, a publication of the Institute for Econometric Research, probably came closest, the latter with a forecast that "the risk of a buying panic continues to far outweigh the risk of renewed heavy selling," and that 100 million-share days were ahead.

But all in all, rigidity seems to dominate forecasters: Those that are bears continue to be bears, and the bulls tend to remain bulls, no matter what the market does. They become prisoners of their forecasts. They miss turns.

Anybody in any aspect of the forecasting business will tell you that the game is easy when events just remain the same, month after month. The trick is to forecast major turns in the outlook, and not many do it well.

The professionals, therefore, seem to be of limited help in identifying the stock market beast. Most people would agree, at least, that a forecast of a major decline just before a 200-point advance is of questionable value.

About the best that potential investors can do in identifying this market is to relate it to the future of the economy, which is supposed to be the measure of all investments. And by general agreement, the economy isn't about to expand rapidly over the next year. At best, maybe a mild recovery is seen, encouraged by the prospect of a decline in interest rates.

By that criterion you would have to say that while the stock market acts like a bull and looks like a bull, it sure doesn't smell like one. But now, with about 200 points tacked on in two months, it might not be a bear either.

It may be an unidentified critter.

FOCUS

Spotlight on Newspapers

This week newspapers are in the spotlight as Newspaper Week is observed throughout the nation. America's newspaper industry began modestly 292 years ago with a single-edition, four-page paper that was written, edited and published by one man. Today 1,730 daily and 7,666 weekly newspapers are published in the United States. Americans buy more than 22 billion newspapers each year. To meet this demand, newspapers in the U.S. use about 10 million tons of newsprint annually. And in addition to the more than 300,000 people employed to produce our newspapers, another several hundred thousand carriers are hired to deliver them.

Says PCB Fight Can Continue 'For Years'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - One of the leaders of the protesters opposing the state's PCB landfill in Afton says the struggle to stop the landfill likely will be a long battle.

Set Hearing On Subs' Graveyard

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) - North Carolina residents will be able to tell Congress how they feel about a U.S. Navy proposal to scuttle five nuclear submarines off the coast of Cape Hatteras at a hearing in Manteo Oct. 19.

The hearing has been called by the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee and was announced by committee Chairman Walter B. Jones, D-N.C. The purpose of the hearing, Jones said, is to publicize the process by which the Navy will choose how to dispose of its nuclear submarines and to examine alternatives to ocean disposal.

"Obviously, we must eventually get rid of these submarines in some way, and it may be that deep ocean disposal somewhere will be established as the best method," Jones said.

The Rev. Leon White of the United Church of Christ's Commission for Racial Justice, said late Tuesday that the fight - already 2 years old, since the state decided to locate the landfill in Warren County - will get older. "It looks like we're looking at a couple of years' struggle right now," he said. White and about 50 to 75 marchers left Afton Saturday on a march to Raleigh, where a rally was planned at noon Tuesday in front of the Capitol. But marchers were stopped less than 10 miles from their destination when state Highway Patrol troopers told them they could not march on the highway. State officials said the marchers posed a threat to traffic and themselves.

White said troopers had "changed the rules" about the marches. But Bill Phillips of the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety said the marchers had to get off the road as they approached Raleigh because traffic got busier as the protesters neared the capital city.

Meanwhile, other state officials said the landfill will be closed soon. Russ Edmonston of Crime Control and Public Safety said the last load of contaminated soil from 243 miles of state roadsides reached the dump Tuesday. When soil is scooped up at Fort Bragg the landfill will be capped and covered with soil, he said.

"The capping will begin as soon as (soil from) Fort Bragg is in," he said. "We have given them 15 working days as of last Wednesday."

Warren County has been the center of state and national interest since Sept. 15, when the first trucks began arriving with PCB-tainted soil scooped off the state's roadsides. Since then, officials have made 507 arrests in Warren County.

Residents, bolstered by civil rights leaders, claim the state chose Warren County to place the suspected cancer-causing agent because it has a large percentage of black residents. State officials contend the county was chosen because of its rural character and because it has the proper soil for a landfill.

Two supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment are said to be readying a write-in campaign in Pitt County. They didn't like the anti-ERA stands of Sen. Vernon White and Rep. Sam Bundy.

Incumbents are getting strong challenges in several districts. Republican Sen. Walt Cockerham who won re-nomination by about two dozen votes has his hands full with former Democratic Sen. Jack Cavanagh was hurt by redistricting in Forsyth County in his race against Democrats Sen. Malvin Ward and Rep. Dick Barnes.

Republicans think Margo Tima, a Jacksonville accountant, can upset Rep. A.D. Guy for an open Senate seat. Democrats say Bill Hobbs will unseat Republican Sen. Chip Wright of Wilmington.

At least one incumbent House member won't be coming back from Guilford County where Republican Reps. Maggie Keese and Howard Coble and Democratic Reps. Mary Seymour and Ralph Edwards are among six candidates seeking three seats. Out west, Republican Rep. Bill Hiatt is struggling to hold his seat

In 1980, Republicans swept three Democratic House seats in Davidson and Davie counties. In this year's rematch, Republican Betsy Cochrane looks safe but her two running mates, Terry Grubb and Rep. Melvin Stamey may be in trouble as Jim Lambeth, John Varner and Ramey Kemp try to return to Raleigh.

Interest Rates Decline But Recovery Still Cloudy

By The Associated Press
Interest rates have fallen to their lowest level since September 1980 with some bankers saying they'll go still lower, but a presidential adviser cautioned there are no signs the economy will improve immediately.

President Reagan, meantime, scheduled a "non-partisan" speech on the economy tonight at 7:30 EDT, to be broadcast by two television networks. Democrats charged the networks were giving Reagan free time for a political speech only two weeks before the November elections.

Four major banks cut their prime lending rate to 12 percent on Tuesday, and the government said it was lowering the interest-rate ceiling on certain federally-backed home loans to 12.5 percent.

Meanwhile, the average rate paid on new six-month Treasury bills auctioned to the public plunged nearly 1 percentage points, to 7.74 percent.

That means people buying six-month savings certificates sold by banks and savings institutions in minimum denominations of $10,000 will earn 9.15 percent interest starting today, down from last week's 9.643 percent.

The falling rates also could signal easier credit for retail sales.

"If things continue at today's pace, I think we can see consumer rates coming down sooner than within the next 60 days," said John Morrison, vice president and director of consumer loans at First Union National Bank in Charlotte, N.C.

But Alan Greenspan, a member of the President's Economic Policy Advisory Board, told real estate developers in Boston that despite the drop in rates, there is no indication of improvement in the overall economy.

"The economy itself shows no signs of change," he said.

High interest rates over most of the past three years have undermined the financial stability of many industries, leading to a surge in bankruptcies, layoffs and factory closings. Lower rates, if they are sustained, would provide some relief for business and could help lead the economy to recovery.

A growing number of investors apparently think such a turnaround will come sooner rather than later. Activity in the stock and bond markets has been extremely heavy in recent days, although stock prices turned mixed Tuesday after several days of spectacular increases. Bond prices were moderately higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, measuring the performance of major corporations, fell 9.11 points to 1,003.68. On the New York Stock Exchange, 932 stocks advanced, 318 stocks were unchanged and 776 stocks declined.

After the four major banks cut their prime lending rates Tuesday, the government announced that home buyers also would be getting a break.

The interest-rate ceiling on Federal Housing Administration and Veterans Administration loans for single-family homes was cut 1 percent from 13.5 percent, the lowest rate since August 1980.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department said retail sales rose 1 percent in September from August, led by a 4 percent gain in automobile sales.

In other economic developments:

- International Harvester Co. lost a $28.5 million patent suit in federal court in Rock Island, Ill. in a lawsuit filed in 1976. Deere & Co. had charged Harvester infringed on its patent for a device that cuts cornstalks and feeds them into combines.

—Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers announced they will return to bargaining Friday in the face of overwhelming rejection by the rank-and-file to a tentative contract settlement.

Government Reports A Life Expectancy Rise

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The life expectancy of an average American has risen to a record 73.7 years, the government says.

It said women still have longer lifespans than men, and whites have longer lifespans than blacks.

The National Center on Health Statistics released data Tuesday showing average life expectancy rose 4 years to set a new record in 1979.

The life expectancy for females is 77.6 years while for males it is 69.9.

Women now live an average of 7.7 years longer than men, the data showed. By contrast, in 1960 women lived 6.5 years longer than men, and in 1950 they lived 5.5 years longer.

Although the disparity between blacks and whites narrowed a little, whites still can expect to live 6.1 years longer than blacks. Life expectancy is 74.4 years for whites and 68.3 years for blacks.

In the period 1969 to 1971 it was 71.6 years for whites and 64.1 for blacks, a difference of 7.5 years.

Infant mortality dropped to a new low rate of 13.1 deaths per 1,000 live births. It was a decline of 5.1 percent from the rate of 13.8 per 1,000 in 1978.

The leading causes of death continued to be heart disease, cancer and strokes. They were responsible for about 70 percent of the 1.91 million deaths in the United States in 1979.

There were 13,947 fewer deaths in 1979 than in 1978, possibly because there was no influenza epidemic, the center said.

The death rate for 1979 dropped to 883.4 deaths per 100,000 population from 869.5 deaths per 100,000 in 1978.

Heart disease, the leading cause of death, accounted for 733,235 deaths or nearly four out of 10 which occurred in the country in 1979.

Cancer claimed 403,395 lives in 1979, nearly two out of 10 strokes caused 169,488, nearly one in 10.

The center's data was collected before results from the 1980 census were available.

Cosby Named To Board

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Comedian Bill Cosby, who dropped out of Temple University in his junior year but started his career joking about its football team, has been elected to the school's Board of Trustees.

Cosby wasn't present for the election Tuesday, but he is expected to attend the inauguration of Temple's new president before the end of the month, said William Seyler, secretary of the board.

Cosby left Temple in 1962 to go into show business. He soon included jokes about the pain and suffering of playing college football — especially against a tough team from Hofstra.

"He was an outstanding track man," said his former track coach, Gavin White, who was appointed Temple athletic director over the weekend. "He called me today and we congratulated each other."

Cosby, who won four Emmy awards for his television performances, eventually received his bachelor's degree in 1977 from Temple's School of Communications and Theater.

Hamburgers To Peacekeepers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Midwest fast-food hamburger chain that promises to deliver burgers anywhere has supplied 3,000 of them to the U.S. Marines on peacekeeping duty in Lebanon.

The shipment of burgers, at no cost to the Pentagon, was the brainchild of Steve Allen, of WDJX in Dayton, Ohio, who said the idea came to him after he read recent reports that the 1,200 Marines were eating cold meals while French troops on duty in the area were dining on gourmet food.

Allen said he called officials at the White Castle restaurant chain to ask them to donate burgers and the officials enthusiastically agreed. The burgers left Dayton last Saturday and were flown to Beirut International Airport free of charge by Emory Air Freight.

Billion-Plus?

PEKING (AP) — Preliminary census figures show that China, the world's most populous nation, has 1.1 billion people, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

The census, China's third, was held in July and preliminary results are to be announced officially later this month. The preliminary estimate exceeds the previous estimate of 1 billion, the sources said.

It was not immediately known if the new estimate includes Taiwan, which has a population of 18 million. At the end of 1980, China claimed 982.55 million people.

Acid In Eyedrops Said 'Purely Local' Affair

By ELLEN HADDOW
Associated Press Writer
GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — The acid contamination of Visine A.C. eye drops that injured a hospital patient here was "purely local" and there is no need for a wider recall of the product, says the manufacturer, Pfizer Inc.

Officials inspected thousands of bottles of Visine pulled from store shelves Tuesday and searched for a "copycat" culprit who may have been imitating whoever tampered with Extra-Strength Tylenol in the Chicago area, causing seven cyanide poisoning deaths.

"With any terrorist activity like this, we always see people imitating," said Dr. Barry Rumack, director of the Rocky Mountain Poison

Control Center. "People need to be very, very careful."

Police Chief Gary Leonard conceded he had no leads and no suspects in the case. A Veterans Hospital patient Monday suffered burns to his eyes after using Visine contaminated with hydrochloric acid, and a second acid-laced bottle was found later at the same store where the patient had purchased his bottle Saturday.

Pfizer called the incident a "clear-cut case of tampering with the product after it reached the retail shelves."

"The bottles were crudely tampered with. This strongly suggests that the Colorado incident was the work of a sick person," said a statement issued in New York by Pfizer.

"Even a superficial inspection should have revealed to any buyer that the bottles had been tampered with."

Authorities said they hesitated Monday on whether to tell the public about the acid-laced Visine bottles found in the city.

"We're in a Catch-22 situation here," Leonard said. "We had to weigh the risk of getting more copycats out of the publicity against public safety. We had to go public in case there are more (contaminated) bottles around."

Eye drop bottles were ordered from store shelves in Mesa County. But officials at the poison control center in Denver warned consumers throughout the state to avoid using Visine until the extent of the Grand Junction incident can be determined.

The state Health Department asked retailers to examine all Visine products to make sure the seals are intact.

In Grand Junction, authorities asked consumers to take "any bottles they're not sure of" to pharmacists for inspection.

Dr. Kenneth Lampert, director of the county Health Department, said the incident could "ultimately lead to changes in marketing of over-the-counter drugs."

Heinz Robot Is Missing

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The makers of Heinz ketchup have found themselves in a pickle. Their robot shaped like — what else — a giant ketchup bottle is missing.

The 5-foot-7 robot, named H.J., apparently disappeared Friday on a plane between Chicago and Cleveland, said R.J. Heinz Co. spokeswoman Beth Adams.

"He never arrived as far as we can tell from the paperwork," Ms. Adams said Tuesday. "The man who took him to the airport in Chicago said he remembers putting it on the plane."

Although capable of being operated by remote control, H.J. couldn't have walked away because his electronic innards were delivered separately. The robot also was packed in a coffin-like crate.

H.J. was built for the opening of Pittsburgh's convention center in February 1981. He has a blinking hat and two arms.

"He looks just like every ketchup bottle you've ever seen," Ms. Adams said.

Meanwhile, a duplicate named H.J. II is filling in at scheduled appearances in Michigan.

Heinz plans to mold another H.J. at a cost of between $8,000 and $10,000 if the missing robot is not found soon.

Company officials are asking for help from the public in tracking down the robot — and have offered two cases of ketchup as a reward.

"We figure this will give people a chuckle. But it is, in fact, true. And the reward is for real," Ms. Adams said.

PCB Destroyer Said Discovered

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina state officials had no comment Tuesday when told about a new chemical process that destroys toxic PCBs.

Russ Edmonston, spokesman for the state Department of Crime Control and Public Safety, said he could not comment on the process because he was unfamiliar with it.

The process is called NaPeg, and its developers hail it as a simple and safe way to destroy the suspected cancer-causing agent. The process uses modified sodium salts that are not sensitive to air or water to break down PCBs. The residue is non-toxic, researchers say.

The district office of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency approved its use Tuesday. That district covers Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, West Virginia, and the District of Columbia, meaning the process may be used only in those areas.

PCBs — an acronym for polychlorinated biphenyls — were first introduced in the United States in 1929. Its major use was as a coolant and a flame retardant in power-plant transformers and other electrical equipment until it was banned as a suspected carcinogen.

PCBs became a household word in North Carolina in 1978 when over 200 miles of state roadways were the sites of illegal dumpings of oil containing PCBs.

In the last month, the state has scooped up the dirt and trucked it to a landfill in Alton in Warren County. Those dumpings have been marked by protests and authorities have made over 500 arrests since the dumpings began.

Less Than Half Of Needy Given Help In 55 Cities

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of 55 cities showed that more than half of the people who needed emergency services in the past fiscal year did not get them because of federal budget cuts, according to a report released today.

The report by the U.S. Conference of Mayors — on programs relating to health, unemployment and other human services — said things are likely to get worse this year.

"Across all cities submitting information, officials reported that an average of 43 percent of the overall demand for emergency services was met in fiscal 1982," the report said. "In not one of the human service areas examined was even 50 percent of the eligible population served in fiscal 1981 or 1982."

The report said that health, employment and training and senior service programs were hardest hit by the federal cuts.

"Employment and training and social service programs reached the smallest portion

Fitness Craze Spawns Wallet

MEDFORD, N.J. (UPI) — The fitness craze has spawned a new version of the time-honored money belt. A Medford mail order company is selling a leg wallet.

It's designed for joggers, golfers and others who want to carry cash, credit cards and other valuables without toting a traditional of the eligible population — 6 percent and 7.4 percent respectively in fiscal 1982," the report said.

The leg wallet is made of two-way stretch fabric with Velcro fasteners. It fits in place above the knee.

It comes in men's and women's sizes and two colors. The tan wallets adjust from 10 to 15 inches and the black, from 14 to 19 inches.

The city officials reported that reductions in money available for programs ranged from a 56 percent cut in employment and training programs and a 42 percent slash in health programs to a

HUNTING VICTIMS

LONDON (AP) — Fifteen hundred rescuers in Liberia, hampered by torrential rain and knee-deep mud, are intensifying their search for nearly 200 people feared buried last week in a landslide at an iron mine.

5 percent loss in senior services.

The survey was conducted since the 1982 fiscal year ended Sept. 30.

"In cities across the country, human service officials operated during fiscal 1982 within the constraints of drastically reduced federal budgets, limited state and local revenues, and worsening economic conditions which contributed to client loads," the study said.

"The same operating conditions are expected in fiscal 1983," the report continued. "In addition, further cuts totaling $16.9 billion for fiscal 1983-85 have been enacted in major entitlement programs including food stamps, medicare, medicaid, and welfare.

The report said specific problems varied from city to city, "but a number of common threads ran through them."

"In cities across the country there is emerging a group that may be termed the 'new poor' — people who are losing their jobs, exhausting their financial resources, exhausting their unemployment benefits and losing their homes," the report said.

"These people are coming to human service agencies for the first time, and it is difficult for them to do so," the document said.

"There are also serious problems affecting the 'working poor' — those who are employed in jobs which do not pay enough for them to break the cycle of poverty," the study found.

The report also said "the lack of jobs and adequate social services for the jobless is forcing families to break up."

Hunt Assails

Tax Increase

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A proposal being weighed in Washington, D.C., to add another 8 cents on the federal excise tax on a pack of cigarettes is "almost too ludicrous to think about," Gov. Jim Hunt said Tuesday.

Speaking to the Durham Tobacco Board of Trade at Liberty Warehouse, Hunt said tobacco has suffered enough in Congress this year, claiming the recent tax increase on cigarettes has hurt the industry and state.

"We need to make it clear the recent doubling of the cigarette tax (to 16 cents) is going to cost us jobs," Hunt said. An additional 8-cent cigarette tax "is unacceptable and would be disastrous," he said.

Congress' decision to double the tax "was a great blow" to North Carolina tobacco markets and has depressed prices this year, Hunt claimed. The tax increase already has cost the state 1,800 jobs and about $10 million in revenue, he said.

To make sure tobacco remains economically healthy, legislators and tobacco farmers must fight to keep the federal price-support program alive, Hunt said. That program this year was altered in Congress and only some hard lobbying by tobacco-state legislators saved the program from being completely dismantled.

The federal program provides price-support protection and limits tobacco production to holders or renters of about 500,000 government-issued acreage allotments.

"The only thing saving farmers and agricultural communities is the tobacco program," Hunt said. "Thank goodness for the community of people who supported this program."

This year is an important one for tobacco growers, Hunt said. This fall tobacco growers will vote — as they do every three years — whether to continue the federal

Hunt said he hoped the entire North Carolina congressional delegation will oppose further cutbacks in the tobacco program.

"We've got to keep it (the tobacco program) going," he said.

Living Alone To Be Talked

A panel discussion on "Living Alone Successfully" will be held during the second Mental Health Association-sponsored luncheon "Spotlight" talk to be held Thursday at noon at the Greenville Parks and Recreation Administration Building, 2000 Cedar Lane.

On the panel will be Lou Gilbert and Bob Moore of the Adult Services area of the Mental Health Center, Irene Prewett of Children's Services of the Mental Health Center, and Phyllis Townsend of Pitt Community College.

Ms. Gilbert will emphasize techniques for handling loneliness. Moore will talk about how to deal with the responsibility of making decisions for a single family. Ms. Prewett will talk about how to develop a support system around oneself. Ms. Townsend will talk about how a positive attitude and a good support system enable the single parent to parent better.

The Spotlight series, to be held each Thursday, is free to everyone. It is suggested that each participant take a sandwich. Beverages will be provided.

Prince Andrew's Holiday Cut Short; Flying Home

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Dashing Prince Andrew jetted home today, alone and reportedly angry about shortening his holiday with erotic movie star Koo Stark because of nosy cameramen and reporters who invaded their Caribbean hideaway.

British press reports said Queen Elizabeth II's 22-year-old son "hijacked" a light plane chartered by photographers and was flown off the island of Mustique on Tuesday to Barbados, leaving newshounds behind on the first leg on his journey back to London. He had not planned to leave until Thursday.

The Sun tabloid said Miss Stark was smuggled off Mustique "in tears" earlier Tuesday, flying from a private airstrip to the island of St. Lucia where she boarded an Eastern Airlines flight to Miami with two women friends.

The British tabloid quoted people who saw the 25-year-old actress as she waited for the plane to St. Lucia as saying she looked "distracted."

The Sun said Andrew and his Scotland Yard bodyguard leaped aboard the photographers' plane at Mustique as it taxied along a runway. It said one photographer had to dive for cover as the plane took off and that another photographer was punched by local police.

It said at least one of the photographers had loaded his luggage on the Mustique Airways plane before the "hijack."

"Suddenly, with all the photographers left stranded at one end of the runway, the aircraft taxied to the other end where Andrew and his bodyguard jumped aboard ... the photographers had to charter another plane to get off the island," it said.

The Sun said Andrew had angrily accused newshounds of interfering with his stay on Mustique. His holiday with the curvy brunette actress attracted a blaze of worldwide publicity.

The prince, dubbed "Randy Andy" by the British press because of his many sweethearts, boarded a scheduled British Airways Boeing 747 flight at Barbados, bound for London via Antigua. It was scheduled to arrive by early afternoon.

Other British tabloids carried similar reports about Andrew "hijacking" the photographers' chartered plane. The Daily Mirror said security men wrestled with photographers as the newsmen realized they had been tricked. The Daily Express said two photographers claimed they were roughed up in the melee.

Buckingham Palace said the prince would be returning to London alone. "There will be no one else with him," said a spokesman.

Andrew and Miss Stark arrived on Mustique on Oct. 5, flying incognito from London to Barbados via Antigua. Britain's domestic news agency Press Association said their air tickets read "Mr. And Mrs. Cambridge."

Earlier reports said the queen was outraged upon learning that Miss Stark, daughter of American movie producer Wilbur Stark, had appeared in two erotic movies and an explicit television play. Tabloid accounts claimed the monarch had ordered Andrew to scrap the vacation.

But a palace spokesman insisted Tuesday night: "There is no suggestion that he is returning at the queen's request. It is entirely his own decision."

Andrew, a second lieutenant in the Royal Navy, flew helicopters with the British task force in the Falklands war with Argentina. It was his first holiday since returning from the south Atlantic Sept. 17 and he was not due to report to his squadron at Culdrose in southwest England until Monday.

British tabloids have regaled readers with pictures of Miss Stark in the buff while the British Broadcasting Corp. showed a film clip of her stripping.

Despite considerable and costly efforts, photographers were unable to capture Miss Stark's picture on Mustique. But the Sun and the Daily Mail printed pictures Tuesday of Andrew in swimming trunks peering from the island's lush foliage.

The respected London Times and Daily Telegraph mentioned reports that he was upset by the arrival of reporters and cameramen on the tiny island 100 miles west of Barbados. It is owned by a friend of his aunt Princess Margaret.

Maybe Less A Risk Area

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The last of 14 massive B-52 jets with nuclear capabilities roared away from Seymour Johnson Air Force Base last week — possibility taking with it a designation that made the Goldsboro area a prime spot for attack.

The Goldsboro area now is classified as a Category I risk area by the Federal Emergency Management Agency, meaning the area is considered one of the most likely targets in the country for nuclear attack.

But that was when the 68th Bombardment Wing was located there. The wing consisted of 14 B-52 Stratofortress jets capable of carrying nuclear weapons anywhere in the world. The wing was decommissioned Oct. 1 and the last of the huge jets took off for good Friday.

They were moved based on the vulnerability of the Goldsboro base to enemy submarines off the Atlantic coast.

That wing was replaced by the 68th Air Refueling Group, 14 tankers that can refuel jets in the air. The base also has added a tactical fighter squadron.

But Capt. Pat Osborn, public affairs officer for the 4th Tactical Wing at Seymour Johnson, said the departure of the nuclear-capacity jets does not mean Seymour Johnson still is not classified as a high-risk area in the event of an attack.

He also would not say if there are no more nuclear weapons on base. That information is classified, he said.

Cars Damaged In Collision

Cars driven by Kenneth Earl Forehand of 302 Westhaven Drive, Raymond Bryant Rouse of Route 6, Kinston, and David John Barbe of 106 Academy Drive, were involved in a 4:20 p.m. collision Tuesday on Memorial Drive, 75 feet north of the Greenville Boulevard intersection.

Police said an estimated $50 damage resulted to the Forehand car while damage to the Barbe car was set at $400. Damage to the truck driven by Rouse was set at $800.

Mental Health Workshop Set

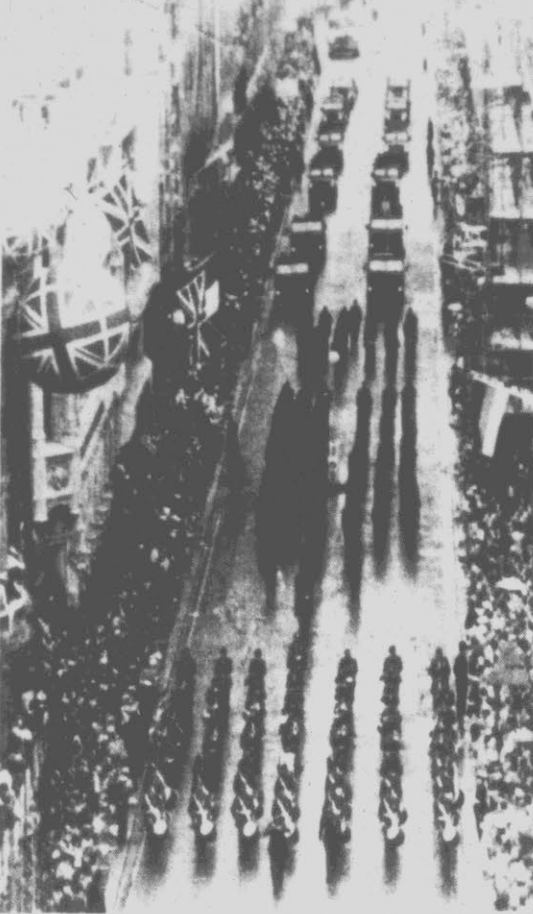

Pitt County agencies and organizations will participate in the Eastern Carolina Rural Mental Health Workshop to be held Thursday at the First Christian Church of Wilson.

The program is sponsored by the Mental Health Association in North Carolina. Jeff McAllister, director of the Pitt County Council on Aging, will take part in a panel discussion to begin at 11:30 a.m.

A registration fee of $6 includes lunch.

Scores Dead In El Salvador's Fighting

VICTORY PARADE - The scene is in Moorgate as Britain's heroes of the Falklands War marched in triumph through London's financial district Tuesday past an estimated 300,000 cheering Britons and a sea of red, white and blue. The parade, with nearly a dozen bands, was the biggest military parade in the capital in living memory. (AP Laserphoto)

By ARTHUR ALLEN
Associated Press Writer
SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) - Troops backed by U.S.-made warplanes and artillery battled leftist rebels holding a northern town today in fighting that has killed at least 40 people nationwide, cut telephone service in the east and snarled highway traffic.

Military spokesmen said 1,300 soldiers were pushing to retake Las Vueltas, a town of 5,000 people 50 miles north of here, which 700 guerrillas seized Sunday night after overrunning a 100-man army post.

Maj. Armando Aviles, the commander, said some units Tuesday were led by officers recently trained at Ft. Bragg, N.C. under a U.S. program to help the Salvador government smash the 3-year-old leftist rebellion.

Military officials called the latest fighting the fiercest in months and predicted more violence elsewhere in Central American country.

Aviles also said U.S.-made A-37 attack planes dropped 500-pound bombs throughout Tuesday and field artillery pounded guerrilla positions in preparation for a counterattack.

At least 40 people were killed and dozens wounded in fighting Tuesday after guerrillas staged stinging attacks in different parts of this war-torn country. A civilian crop-duster plane was shot down by a rebel machine gun.

Rebels blew up three communication antennas, severing telephone links with the eastern half of El Salvador. They also stopped traffic with roadblocks on the Panamerican and Coastal highways, from the capital east to the Honduran border.

Many rebels warned drivers at roadblocks to stay home for the rest of the week because they said there would be more attacks, witnesses reported.

Nine soldiers and 25 guerrillas were killed Tuesday in a failed guerrilla attack on two military posts and Cinquera, a town 29 miles northeast of the capital, said Col. Sigfrido Ochoa, the area commander.

"The fighting was hard. It lasted almost four hours but there were unable to penetrate. The soldiers defended their positions heroically and many died because they ran out of ammunition," he said.

Guerrilla radio broadcasts claimed the rebels killed 15 soldiers and wounded 10 and captured 14 U.S.-made M-16 rifles, a heavy M-60 machinegun, one M-79 grenade launcher and 3,000 rounds of ammunition. The broadcasts placed rebel losses at six killed and two wounded.

Rebels ambushed an army patrol on the Coastal Highway, 55 miles east of here, killing two soldiers and wounding four in a two-hour firefight that killed two more guardsmen and an army cadet in a second ambush at the same spot. Travelers from the area said a number of civilians also were killed. Nine miles further east, guerrillas harassed the outskirts of Jiquilisco, killed two civilians and burned their pickup truck at a roadblock in the area, witnesses said.

Army sources who asked anonymity for security reasons said eight troops were killed, nine wounded in the fighting Sunday at Las Vueltas and 60 were unaccounted for.

The underground radio claimed the guerrillas killed 16 government troops, wounded 14 and captured 58 along with 80 automatic rifles, mortars, cannons, hand grenades and a machine gun in the massive assault.

An estimated 38,000 people have been killed in the war, most of them civilians caught in crossfires or slain by rightist death-squads that allegedly collaborate with the U.S.-backed government, civil rights groups say.

The Reagan administration has claimed the rebels are getting arms from Cuba and the Soviet Union, smuggled through neighboring leftist-ruled Nicaragua. Washington has been supplying aid to help the rightist government fight the insurrection.

U.S. economic assistance this year totals $239 million and military aid $81 million, including a number of American noncombat military advisers stationed here. Another $61.3 million in military aid and $164.3 million in economic assistance has been promised for 1983.

Heublein Now Reynolds' Co.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) - R.J. Reynolds Industries Inc., which produces Del Monte foods, now can boast that it also produces vodka, steak sauce and other edible goods after its $1.3 billion acquisition of Heublein Inc. on Tuesday.

Heublein, which is based in Farmington, Conn., was ranked No. 227 on the 1981 Fortune 500 list of the nation's top 500 companies last year, earning $88.4 million on sales of $2.14 billion and employing 28,400 people.

Heublein is best known for its Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurants, but also produces other foods and beverages. Heublein holdings include Smirnoff Vodka, A-1 Steak Sauce, a line of Mexican foods and assorted brands of liquor.

Those still holding Heublein stock will be issued new shares of Reynolds stock, which will be worth $57 a share - the value of the Heublein stock.

Reynolds, which controlled 57.2 percent of Heublein's common shares before the merger, was ranked No. 32 on the Fortune 500 list last year. In 1981 Reynolds had sales of $9.77 billion, excluding excise taxes, and earnings of $767.8 million. It employs 85,800 people.

In addition to its latest acquisition, the Winston-Salem-based company owns R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., which produces Winston, Salem, Camel and several other brands of cigarettes. It is also the parent company of R.J. Reynolds Tobacco International Inc., Aminoil USA Inc., Sea-Land Industries Investments Inc. and R.J.

Reynolds Development Corp. Stockholders of both companies approved the merger Tuesday. Reynolds spokesmen said 73 percent of Heublein's stockholders at a meeting in Hartford, Conn., approved the sale. Reynolds stockholders, meeting in Wilmington, Del., approved the merger by a 98 percent margin, spokesmen said.

The merger took place immediately, and Heublein joined Reynolds' food and beverages group. Del Monte, Reynolds' last major acquisition, was bought in 1979.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association will be held Thursday at the Moose Lodge here, according to Arnold B. Parris, president.

Parris said that business activities following dinner, which will be served at 6 p.m., will include a report of the directors for the past year, a financial report by the president, and the election of one director.

Entertainment for the evening will be provided by Mrs. Jeanne Robertson, a former Miss North Carolina, who is well known as a humorist speaker.

Directors of the Pitt-Greene PCA are David Harold Smith, chairman; A. Roscoe Barnhill and Wayne K. Stokes of Pitt County, and James E. Manning and T. Weldon Shingleton of Greene County.

The association, which makes short and intermediate-term loans to farmers, ranchers and growers in Pitt and Greene counties, is entirely owned by its member-borrowers.

The PCA's main office is located at 100 E. First St. here and branch offices are operated in Snow Hill and Farmville.

Swedish Navy Denies Submarine Distress Signals

By BIRGIT LOFGREN
Associated Press Writer
BERGA NAVAL BASE,
Sweden (AP) — Divers joined the search today for a suspected Soviet bloc submarine possibly damaged by a mine explosion near Sweden's main naval base, authorities said.

Capt. Sven Carlsson, the navy's chief spokesman, also said a mobile camera attached by cable to the submarine salvage ship Belos had been lowered into the waters where the sub was believed hiding.

He said the Swedish navy had established sonar contact for several minutes Tuesday with the suspected sub in the southern part of Mysingen Bay where a mine was exploded at noon Monday.

The sonar findings did not provide any definite results but there was "cause to continue the search in the area," he said.
He said the mine explosion ought to have damaged the sub, first sighted 13 days ago off the top secret Musko naval base, about 20 miles south of Stockholm.

But Carlsson denied reports in the newspaper Dagens Nyheter that a distress signaling device or buoy apparently from the sub's emergency equipment was found in the southern part of Mysingen Bay. The daily had referred to reports by the coast guard, which also denied having found a buoy, Carlsson said.

In its report, Dagens Nyheter speculated that the suspected sub was badly damaged and that it probably was unable to surface.
Carlsson said he could not comment on another Dagens Nyheter report that a yellowish powder dye, said to be used by submarines in distress as a means of signaling to air rescue units, also had been sighted in the area.

Carlsson said search operations continued in the smaller area of Hors Bay, separated from Mysingen by islands a few miles wide.
Hors Bay has been effectively blocked by the Swedish navy to stop any intruder from escaping and can now be regarded as a "lake," naval sources say.
Carlsson said Tuesday it was increasingly likely one submarine was in Mysingen Bay and another was in Hors Bay to the north, where the navy began its hunt after a periscope was sighted Oct. 1.
The center of the two bays are about six miles apart and Hors Bay's two outlets go into Mysingen Bay.

Steel nets, mines and a Swedish submarine block the bay's two outlets.

The Swedish ambassador to the United States, Wilhelm Wachtmeister, said in an interview in Washington today with CBS-TV's "Morning" program:

"We apply more and more severe measures the longer this goes on. We send down the depth charges closer and closer to the ship but not so close that we destroy it, but close enough to bring it up to the surface."

More than 30 depth charges have been dropped since the sub was first sighted. Asked if the Swedes would destroy the sub, the ambassador replied: "That is not our intention."

It is generally believed the vessel is a Soviet-bloc sub, although the navy has refused to publicly confirm that speculation. The Kremlin has suggested there is no sub, and that Sweden concocted the hunt to stir up anti-Soviet hysteria.

Neutral Sweden has become increasingly sensitive to alien subs pro-wling its coast. Ten foreign subs have been spotted off Swedish shores since last October, when a Soviet sub believed armed with nuclear torpedoes beached near the Karskrona Naval Base 240 miles southwest of Stockholm. The Swedes dislodged the sub after nine days and sharply protested to the Kremlin.

NOT IN TIME — Volunteers rush 7-year-old Anthony Dixon from the surf at Carolina Beach where they had paused to try to resuscitate him after he was caught in a washout and drowned. He and others had been wading in the surf for some minutes before the washout carried him beyond the reach of his companions. An adult male was also rescued after he tried to swim to the rescue of the boy and was washed away from him Tuesday. The time of the accident was approximately 3:30 p.m. (AP Laserphoto)

Drowned Child Had Pitt Ties

CAROLINA BEACH — The five-year-old son of a former Ayden resident drowned yesterday when a rip tide swept him out to sea.

The child identified as Anthony Dixon, son of Linda Bright Dixon, formerly of Ayden, was playing in a tidal pool behind two sandbars on Carolina Beach about 3:30 p.m. when the rip tide caught him and took him out to sea. Richard Ebersole, a former Greenville resident, reportedly went into the ocean in an attempt to save the boy and nearly drowned himself. Pleasant Island Rescue Squad Chief Jeff Thompson said. Ebersole, 34, is being treated in the intensive care unit of New Hanover Hospital. He is the former manager of Carolina Model Homes in Greenville. Mrs. Dixon and her son has moved to Carolina Beach Monday, police there said they were told. For some time previously they had lived in the Wilmington area.

Onlookers of the rescue attempt apparently pulled the man and boy from the water and attempts to resuscitate the child were unsuccessful.

Officials at Carolina Beach described weather conditions there Tuesday as "a northeaster, unusually bad."

Senior Citizens Hold Meeting

Town and Country Senior Citizen Club recently held its regular meeting at Saint Paul's Episcopal Church.

Reports on the dinner cruise at Morehead City were given during the meeting.

Members voted to host a Pre-release graduation April 20, 1983.

Members going to the World's Fair were reminded that the buses will leave at 8 a.m. Thursday from Carolina East Mall.

Julia Lilly, a guest at the meeting, was welcomed and October birthdays were recognized.

Plans will be made to tour the winery at Rose Hill and to have lunch at the Graham House in Kenansville.

Seven Out Of Ten Retirees Expected Get Pension

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seven out of 10 middle-age Americans will get pensions by the time they quit working, an insurance industry group says in an upbeat assessment of the nation's retirement system.

The sum of the pension and Social Security payments to those retiring in the year 2004 will give most retired people a major part of the income they had been receiving while working, according to a study commissioned by the American Council of Life Insurance.

"We see the study as an important one for the immediate insights it offers and as a starting place to stimulate debate on national policy," G. David Hurd, vice president of Bankers Life Co. and head of a council task force, said in releasing the report.

He said the finding by a private economics research firm "contradicts some widely held beliefs and erroneous assumptions on the subject."

The study, prepared by ICF Inc., used pension participation of workers in 1979 and assumed a standard retirement age of

65. It concluded that the proportion of Americans who receive pension benefits will rise dramatically by the turn of the century.

The study focused on workers between the ages of 40 and 44 who were vested in pension plans, noting that presently only about half of all workers have some kind of pension coverage.

The insurance industry council said it had the study done because it wanted to find out what proportion of workers will obtain pension coverage as they move through their working years toward retirement at the turn of the century.

Among the findings of the ICF study were:
—By the year 2004, approximately 85 percent of all married families and 66 percent of all married individuals can expect pension benefits. A married family is one that will receive more than one pension. A married individual's family will receive only one pension, regardless of the number of members who worked.

"This means that there will continue to be a dramatic growth in the proportion of retiring people who get pensions, even on the conservative assumption of no future growth in percentage of participation of the work force in pension plans," Hurd said.

—About half of all married couples should draw benefits from both spouses' employment.

—Pension and Social Security benefits combined will replace more than three-quarters of pre-retirement income on an after-tax basis.

—Almost half of workers who were in the range of age 40 to 44 during the 1979 study period — but who were not covered by a pension plan — can still expect to receive pension benefits at retirement.

—Of those who will not ultimately receive pension benefits, nine-tenths either will be unemployed before they retire or will have worked fewer than 10 years.

Despite pessimistic forecasts about its future, the Social Security system will provide more than 60 percent of total retirement benefits for those receiving both Social Security and pension benefits, the study said.

It said that Social Security payments in the year 2004 will account for over half of all total benefits, even for those who had salaries of $30,000 or more a year — and nearly 80 percent for those who earned $15,000 or less annually.

Over the 25-year period between the 1979 control year studied and the year 2004, the study said, there will be a dramatic increase in the proportion of people age 65-69 drawing an employer pension.

It said that more than 60 percent of married couples and 40 percent of unmarried individuals can expect to receive annual pension benefits above $2,500 by the turn of the century. And the report also said that over 35 percent of married couples and 18 percent of unmarried individuals can expect to receive annual pension benefits in excess of $5,000.

Acquitted Over Soybeans Clash

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Wayne Cryts, the farmer who got into trouble when he removed soybeans from a grain elevator that had gone bankrupt, has been acquitted of interfering with a law officer.

A U.S. district court jury deliberated about two hours Tuesday afternoon before returning the verdict.

Cryts has been in and out of the courts in Arkansas over the past year in the complicated bankruptcy case.

The latest charge against him stemmed from an encounter with Deputy U.S. Marshal Chuck Papachio in Gravette on Aug. 14. Cryts was in the northwest Arkansas community to serve as grand marshal of a parade when Papachio tried to seize the van Cryts was driving as partial payment of a bankruptcy court claim.

On June 7, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Charles Baker had ordered Cryts to pay $287,000 to cover losses suffered when Cryts took 33,000 bushels of soybeans from the bankrupt elevator. Baker had ordered the soybeans sold to satisfy the elevator's debtors.

Cryts, of Puxico, Mo., has refused to pay the money, saying the soybeans rightfully belonged to him. He also is appealing the ruling.

The beans were among the tons of grains farmers had stored in 11 Missouri and Arkansas elevators owned by James Brothers Co. of Corning, Ark., which filed for bankruptcy in August 1980.

Cryts took the soybeans from an elevator near New Madrid, Mo., and stored them in February 1981 in an elevator in Bernie, Mo. He removed the grain from that elevator in July 1981.

Baker jailed Cryts for civil contempt of court for 34 days in April and May because the farmer refused to name the people who helped him remove the grain.

During testimony Tuesday,

Cryts told the court that he did not know at the time of his encounter with Papachio to whom the van belonged. He said he learned last week it was registered to "Cryts Farms."

Deputy Sheriff Donald Townsend of Benton County told the jury that a large crowd gathered each time Papachio tried to take the van. One elderly woman hit a county investigator with her purse, he said.

Hospitality House Looks At Hurricanes

WASHINGTON — Kay Currie is airing a special on hurricanes on her Saturday Hospitality House program from 1 to 1:30 p.m. The focus will be on dramatic filmed scenes from Hurricane "Hazel" of October, 1954, a storm that heavily damaged coastal North Carolina.

John Sanders, a coastal weather specialist with the University of North Carolina Sea Grant College program in Raleigh, will give details on the formation and travel pattern of hurricanes.

Hospitality House is broadcast each Saturday over WITN-TV, Channel 7.

Dismiss Deputy On Bribes Count

KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — A Lenoir County sheriff's deputy was dismissed from the force Tuesday after being charged with six counts of bribery in connection with alleged moonshine and gambling operations, Sheriff Leo Harper said.

Deputy Charles Robert Jones' arrest came after a three-month investigation by the department, the State Bureau of Investigation and state alcohol law enforcement officers, Harper said.

Blame Light Fixture In Nat'l Spinning Fire

WASHINGTON — Local Fire Chief Tony Abeyounis and officials of National Spinning Co. here said in a report that the Sept. 7 fire at the plant that resulted in the deaths of four employees originated in an overhead lighting fixture.

"We still are not sure what caused the light to malfunction," said Don Barham, vice president of industrial relations with the company. "Our insurers are still investigating the exact cause, but the Washington Fire Department, the State Bureau of Investigation and our insurance company have determined that the fire started electrically from an overhead light."

The fire broke out shortly after midnight as workers in the Washington dye plant returned from Labor Day vacations. The four employees died when they were overcome by smoke while attempting to extinguish the fire. Some 150 other employees were evacuated safely.

Damage from the fire has been estimated to be in excess of $7 million, according to the company, including a substantial loss attributed to yarn that was damaged by smoke and also structural damage to the facility.

"We are deeply saddened by this tragic accident," said Buster Humphreys, vice president of manufacturing. "It's the type of situation you hope never happens, but when it does you handle it the best way you can. We owe a great deal of gratitude to the Washington, Old Ford and Bunyan fire departments and volunteer firemen for responding magnificently and to Chief Abeyounis for assisting us in getting to the bottom of this situation.

The company officials said the Division of Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of the N.C. Department of Labor completed its investigation recently and found that no violations contributed to the fire. A second investigation, termed "wall to wall" by OSHA officials, was then completed in both the yarn and dye plants. No violations were found and no citations were issued for any reason in either plant, National Spinning said.

OSHA investigates all industrial accidents when a fatality is involved. National Spinning officials also said that a memorial, in memory of the four employees who died, will be given to the Washington Fire Department. They said details are being finalized between the company and the fire department and will be released at a later date.

NASA Concerned Over Second Shuttle Engine

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — While NASA says it's confident the space shuttle Columbia will blast off on time next month, there could be a delay in the January launch of the Challenger, the nation's second reusable spacecraft.

A pressure leak in one of Challenger's three main engines has delayed their delivery from the National Space Technology Labs in Mississippi to Kennedy Space Center, where Challenger is being prepared for flight.

The engines were scheduled to arrive in Florida last month.

The three Rockwell International engines must go through a battery of tests before being certified for installation, and the delay could push back the scheduled Jan. 20 launch date by a week, officials said.

"During some of the calibration tests, we were not satisfied and we did it again," said James Kukowski, a NASA spokesman in Washington.

The Challenger will place an advanced tracking satellite in orbit.

NASA has been trying to maintain the present launching schedule to gain the confidence of shuttle customers, since commercial satellite companies and the Department of Defense demand firm launch times with no delays.

So far, two of the Challenger's engines have been certified after a 500-second test firing and should be delivered to the space center by Nov. 22 or 23, Hess said. The third should arrive a few days later.

A test firing of Challenger engines on the launch pad should be possible by Christmas, officials say. But a Jan. 20 launch "is still conjecture," Kukowski said. "We're aiming for it but it's going to be tight."

Preparations continued smoothly Tuesday, however, for the fifth flight of the Columbia, scheduled to take off Nov. 11 and carry two satellites on its first commercial mission.

The 8,000-pound satellites were hoisted Tuesday into a special "super clean" room at the top of the shuttle's launch platform, 189 feet above the pad. They will be placed in Columbia's cargo bay on Oct. 18, said space center spokesman Mark Hess.

One satellite will boost telephone and television service in Canada, and the other is designed to increase American telephone companies' capacity to handle business conference calls.

Revival Held At Landmark

A revival being led by evangelist and broadcast minister Dr. Monroe Parker is underway at Landmark Baptist Church on Highway 264 West.

Dr. Parker will lead services tonight through Saturday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 10 and 11 a.m.

Dr. Parker, who has been preaching since before he was 20, has conducted more than 1,200 evangelistic campaigns in 46 states and has spoken in hundreds of high school, colleges, Bible institutions and theological seminaries.

DR. MONROE PARKER
He has served on the faculty of Bob Jones University and some other Bible colleges and seminaries and was president of Pillsbury Baptist College in Owatonna, Minn. for eight years. He also has served as president of the Minnesota Baptist Convention.

A nursery is provided during each service.

Instructor Suffers Burns

A U.S. Marine Corps sergeant from Cherry Point received powder burns to his face here yesterday during a police department training session — the department's widely praised "Shoot, Don't Shoot" combat stress course.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Staff Sgt. Lawrence P. Trackey, one of the instructors, was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital's emergency room to be checked after he was "shot in the face" by one of the students. However, Cannon said Trackey, a military policeman, was "not hurt."

The "Shoot, Don't Shoot" training program involves the use of real people — both law enforcement officers and opponents — armed with real guns, although the weapons are loaded with blanks. The use of real opponents who can think and react makes the combat stress course more realistic and unusual.

All Greenville officers are required to complete the course and the department also provides the training — as it was doing yesterday — for officers from other law enforcement agencies.

Meet Thursday

ATLANTA (AP) — Former President Carter and his wife, Rosalynn, plan to meet Thursday with Jihan Sadat, the widow of slain Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

The luncheon meeting at the Carter home in Plains, Ga., will be private and neither the ex-president nor Mrs. Sadat will make a statement, said a spokeswoman for Carter, Jane Simpson.

NAMES CORRECTED
There was an error in the listing in yesterday's edition of the names of North Pitt High School seniors to be interviewed as candidates by the Morehead Scholarship Committee.

Thomas W. Leggett and Ken Whitehurst are among those to be interviewed.

The case of the missing butcher.

Once upon a time, before grocery stores put horseraces on television, there was such a thing as a real butcher.

Butchers came in all sizes and shapes - fat, thin, even ugly - but they were all as friendly as could be.

They kept sawdust on the floor to keep it clean, took good care of their knives, and referred to the meat they bought as "nice", "real nice" and "fittin" - which was the best.

Best of all, when they saw you comin', they knew about what you wanted. They could take one look at your grocery basket (or your mother's grocery list), know you had company coming, and then head for the ice box to get you something "real nice".

Unfortunately, real butchers are all but gone now.

But at Overton's real butchers live. No two-way mirrors. No buzzers in the back of the store. No televised horseraces. Yep, real live butchers. Sawdust and all. You can even talk to 'em.

And every minute that Overton's is open, they're set to get you something "fittin".

Pre-WWII Trimotor Is For Sale: $175,000

By JOHN PLATERO
 Associated Press Writer
 OPA-LOCKA, Fla. (AP) — It once carried Adolf Hitler, sank in the icy waters of a fjord and was abandoned for years on a jungle airstrip in Ecuador.

Now this pre-World War II JU-52 trimotor, known as "Iron Annie," is up for sale for $275,000.

"I'm going to miss it," says Martin Caidin, an author-pilot who had the 47-year-old airplane rebuilt six years ago after buying it in 1975 for $52,500.

"But, at the moment, it is too expensive for me to keep."

The "corrugated condominium," as Caidin calls it, is one of the stoutest airplanes ever built. It served as a commercial airliner in Norway and was used by the German Luftwaffe during World War II. The JU-52 was first designed by Hugo Junkers of Germany in 1931, and was used as an airliner in 55 countries.

"It's the safest thing you've ever flown," says Terry Ritter, who rebuilt the JU-52 in 1976 — a project that cost $275,000.

"There are only four of these still flying in the world," he said. "The other three are owned by the Swiss government."

The plane is distinctive on the ground or in the air because of its three large radial engines, tail wheel, corrugated aluminum "skin" and thick wings. Caidin's plane has been repainted with wartime colors — dark green with the underside a robin's egg blue.

Although "Iron Annie" weighs 15,700 pounds empty and can fly with a gross weight of 24,500 pounds, it is a fine short-field aircraft.

The JU-52 is not fast. It cruises at 135 mph, stalls at less than 70 mph, isn't pressurized and is not a quiet aircraft.

"It's very noisy — hot when it's hot, cold when it's cold," says Ritter. "But that's flying. If you want comfort, fly commercial." The Federal Aviation Administration has certified it only as an "experimental" aircraft.

The cockpit is small. A jump seat behind the pilot and co-pilot is for a flight engineer, although not required for normal operation.

Four individual seats are lined down each side of the fuselage with a narrow aisle in between. There are two hatches on top of the plane. During World War II, German crewmen could stick their heads through them to man machine guns when attacked.

The first JU-52s were built with a single engine, making them underpowered, though highly efficient.

The design was soon altered to accommodate three power plants. The radial engine found best suited for the JU-52 was made by Pratt & Whitney. Junkers obtained manufacturing rights from the U.S. company and, ironically, JU-52s flown by the Luftwaffe in World War II were powered by American-designed engines.

Records show that 4,845 JU-52s were built in Germany before and during the war. About 150 copies were built in Spain after the war's end by Construcciones Aeronauticas S.A. and designated CASAs rather than JUs. Three are in the United States.

Caidin's JU-52 came off the Dessau, Germany, factory line in 1935. It was sold to Det Norske Luftfartseksp, the Norwegian national airlines. Equipped with pontoons, it carried 17 passengers and four crew members.

In 1940, when Germany invaded Norway, the plane was confiscated, wheels were substituted for floats and it became part of the Luftwaffe. It was used to transport cargo, troops and high-ranking officials, including Hitler, Caidin said.

When the war ended in 1945, the 62-foot-long plane was returned to Norway, fitted again with pontoons and flew sub-arctic and arctic flights for 10 years.

In 1946 it was sold to former Lufthansa Capt. Hans Drexel for a flying service he started in Quito, Ecuador. As it was being towed to a merchant vessel for shipment to South America, the Junkers sank in 30 feet of water.

After it was raised and rebuilt, it flew out of Ecuador until 1962, when it was abandoned on a jungle airstrip for eight years. In 1970, sufficient repairs were made to ferry it to Illinois for airplane buff Lester Weaver. The plane wound up at an auction in Charlotte, N.C., where Caidin bought it.

City Council Agenda Includes 9 Public Hearings

Again Survived Beach Erosion

By The Associated Press
The Cape Hatteras Light House once again met the wrath of the sea during a day of unusually high waves and rough water—and won. But elsewhere the Atlantic Ocean proved too powerful, claiming the life of a five-year-old Carolina Beach boy, stranding coastal biologists and threatening cottages along the Outer Banks.

Beach officials in New Hanover County said a rip-tide snatched Anthony Dixon from a tidal pool about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and dragged him into the choppy surf. His father, Richard Dixon, 34, jumped into the surf to save the child and "nearly drowned himself," said Chief Jeff Thompson of the Pleasure Island Rescue Squad.

"It was unusually bad today; the tides were very high and strong due to the northeast," Thompson said.

Dixon was revived on the beach, but efforts to revive his son failed and he was pronounced dead at New Hanover Memorial Hospital.

Farther north, a two-bedroom cottage at Kitty Hawk lost a dangerous amount of ground to the Atlantic and about a dozen

Nine public hearings highlight the agenda for Thursday's 7:30 p.m. meeting of the City Council at city hall.

The hearings involve: a request the Methodist Retirement Homes Inc. to amend the thoroughfare plan by deleting First Street extending east of Warren Street and by deleting the Brownlea connector to Fifth Street; a proposed amendment to create a new "R-6(N) Neighborhood Revitalization District;" Consideration of a revised solid waste container policy; two requests for rezoning; consideration of four amendments to the Zoning Ordinance; and consideration of two requests for special use permits, one to operate a restaurant-nightclub at 1104 N. Memorial Drive, and the other to operate a club at 521 W. 10th Street.

Other business on the long agenda includes: consideration of two applications for renewal of mobile home permits; presentation of comments by Farmville Boulevard residents regarding parking; consideration of a resolution approving the extension of Greenville Utilities rural water service area; consideration of a resolution declaring the intent of the council to close a portion of Powell Street, between E. Gum Road and Church Street; consideration of a Traffic Commission recommendation;

Consideration of the bid award for the 1982 street resurfacing program; resolutions approving the transit development plan and authorizing the filing of an application for a mass transit assistance grant; consideration of three items requested by Greenville Utilities Commission; tax releases and refunds;

Consideration of a street acceptance; an amendment to the Citizens' Bikeway Committee resolution; a request to erect a two-crypt tomb on lots in Greenwood Cemetery;

Consideration of supplemental agreements between the University of Chicago (operator of Argonne National Laboratory) and the city relative to the comprehensive community energy management program; resolution approving the sale of a disposal parcel in Southside; a resolution endorsing the constitutional amendment to authorize tax increment financing; consideration of ordinances amending the UMTA capital project grant and the revenue sharing trust fund; consideration of a bid award for construction of the transit garage; and appointments to boards and commissions.

Child's Father Urged To Come

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Raleigh police are trying to convince the father of the sole surviving hostage in a three-day siege at the Amtrak station in Raleigh to visit his daughter.

Raleigh Police Capt. Robbie N. Carroll said Tuesday that police have located who they think is the father of the 9 1/2-year-old Zulie Ramirez.

Zulie was released unharmed from a train sleeper car early Monday morning by a man believed to be her uncle, Mario Evangelista Villabona Navas. He was charged with killing a woman believed to be her mother, Maria Isabel Navas Villabona Ramirez, and an 8-month-old boy believed to be Zulie's brother.

Carroll said they have located the man — also named Ramirez — in Miami, Fla. But "we have no indication he intends to come up here," Carroll said.

On the same day, Navas was arraigned in Wake County District Court on two charges of first-degree murder and one charge of kidnapping in the 70-hour standoff. That siege began Friday morning and ended almost three days later in the pre-dawn hours of Monday.

Navas, who speaks Spanish, stood with his head bowed during the 15-minute session. He and his interpreter conferred in whispers, and the interpreter answered District Court Judge Stafford Bullock's questions in English.

Prosecutor Kurt Stakeman, citing the case's complexities, asked for the maximum time possible to prepare for a preliminary hearing.

"We are now trying to determine who the defendant is — he has used several names — and what his record is," Stakeman said. Bullock scheduled a preliminary hearing Oct. 27 at 9 a.m.

Navas was taken back to the Central Prison hospital. Navas was sent to the maximum-security facility Monday because police said threats had been made against him.

Navas is a convicted drug offender. Federal prison records show that Navas was sentenced to 15 years in prison on July 30, 1976, for a conviction of conspiracy and possession with intent to deliver a narcotic. He served that sentence at three federal prisons before being paroled in November 1980. A stipulation of his parole was that he leave the country and return to his native Colombia.

Police were surprised to find during a search of the shiny metal sleeping car that Navas had over $5,000 in cash when the siege began. Money was found scattered about the car and police also found some documents Navas tried to destroy before surrendering Monday.

"I thought initially that he had drugs in there," Raleigh Police Chief Frederick Heineman said. "He may very well have had them. We don't know. We're looking into that today."

Education: brings The joy of learning — a life-long experience

Books for fall '82

Education is a life-long process, not something which can be contained within the walls of any school, however distinguished. It is as much a territory for adults as children — there is no limit on curiosity. Pay the person who truly believes that the one has nothing more to learn, because that person has ceased to grow.

People learn by a variety of methods. Book learning is the source, chief among them — as is the interchange of ideas and facts among people. Teacher to pupil, pupil to teacher, mostly, people learn by opening themselves to the world, by allowing their senses to interpret the things they see, by leaving their pores open, metaphorically speaking, to the things that nature and art and erudition have to offer.

Whether your interests lie in the sciences, the arts, or in the specific areas of whether you are enthralled by everything the world has to offer, there is one precept always to keep in mind. There is nothing so small it is not worth learning, nothing so large it is not worth taking.

Capturing the spirit of summer in photographs can be as easy as frolicking in the sun when you follow a few simple tips on picture taking.

No matter how ideal the lighting and other conditions, ultimately the quality of your pictures depends on the way you handle your camera.

Although many of the new cameras are easy to use, what appears in the viewfinder is the result of how you compose the shot.

One of the greatest advantages of an instant camera is that you can see your results immediately. You can tell right away when you look the time to compose a shot in the viewfinder or when you need to try again.

LOS ANGELES — Parents believe that California high schools should have a more active role in providing information to students about available scholarships.

Mary Ann Maxin, Executive Director of the Student Assistance Council, said that she has received hundreds of requests from parents and students ranging from $25 to $10,000 a year. She said that the Council has a list of 500 scholarships.

Applicants can often qualify for privately donated college funds in the Scholarship Search data base, because certain eligibility factors are important, such as religion, ethnic background, career interest, college major, extracurricular school or civic activities, parents' income, military service, etc.

She said, "Millions and millions of dollars of school aid have gone unclaimed and unused in the past 10 years, because the money was not claimed. Computers are essential to find the myriad of available scholarships.

Matching a high school senior with a scholarship manually would be virtually impossible, especially in dealing with hundreds of thousands of students. Each one very, very different.

Maxin said the Council has added more than 100,000 dollars in the past 12 years, locating sources of college funds.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 14, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
 from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early confusion or deceptive conditions can puzzle you but make sure you analyze them well and it can be turned much to your advantage. Follow your intuitive perception.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Long-time associates are most energetic and favorable toward you now, so make the most of this. Think in a positive way.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You may find it difficult to put a special talent to work successfully for you now, but keep at it and you'll be rewarded.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The situation at home could be troublesome but if handled properly you can gain satisfaction. Relax at home tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Do the things at home that will make conditions more harmonious. Good day for enjoying the company of congenials.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may be confused about a money matter, but if you study it well, you will know what to do. Put a curb on your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You may have difficulty in going after a personal goal, so consult with a trusted friend and get the advice you need.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You can easily charm others now and gain your personal aims. Make your social life more as you want it to be.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Your goals need expanding so that you can accomplish even more than you had set out to do. Keep steady and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may not be certain of the outcome of your present activities but if you apply yourself more success will come.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A time when you can handle career matters with exceptional ability. Contact one who can be helpful in planning the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you put those creative ideas to work now you can improve your position in life. A friend can be most helpful now.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) An associate may have been acting in an unusual way but will still help you to gain a most cherished wish. Follow your intuition.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one who can plow through confusing conditions and become successful. Be aware of your progeny's talents and direct the education along lines that will give encouragement. Teach good health habits.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Arrow Removed, Goose Is 'Okay'

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — After spending more than a month with an arrow in its head, a black Canada goose is back on a Rowan County pond with only a small puncture hole to show for its wound.

Rescuers captured the goose Saturday in a trap baited with corn. The goose was rushed to Salisbury Animal Hospital, where veterinarian Molly Douglas anesthetized the fowl and removed the arrow.

The female goose was released Monday afternoon on a pond in Dan Nichols Park after convalescing in the animal hospital for two days.

"We had just about given up hope of catching the goose when it was taken in the trap Saturday," said Karen Gordon at the park's nature center. "But the goose is doing well. It can eat and everything it should be doing."

Robbie Julian, a naturalist at the park, said people at first thought the goose was carrying a stick. But upon closer examination, they found the bird had been shot in the head with an arrow.

"How the arrow missed the bird's throat and esophagus, I don't know," Julian said. He said the goose showed no ill effects from the arrow in its jaw and ate and preened like a normal bird.

Julian said the goose flies between four or five ponds about 10 miles from the park, which is outside Salisbury.

Park employees and bird lovers tried for more than a month to catch the goose. Earlier rescue efforts centered on trying to get the goose to eat corn laced with a tranquilizer. The bird ate all the corn, but the drug had no apparent effect.

Rescuers then decided to try to apprehend the goose with nets, but veterinarian Charles Steinman advised against that plan, saying the nets might catch on the arrow and cause more injury.

"I think everyone felt very lucky that we finally caught the goose," Ms. Gordon said. "A lot of people were very worried about the goose."

A spokeswoman for the animal hospital said when the arrow was removed, it left a tiny hole. She said the wound had caused no infection or swelling.

"I would compare it to having your ears pierced," the spokeswoman said.

Funds Management outrates any 7-day certificate. And, it's sale priced at $19,000 less.

Frankly, we don't understand all the hoopde la being made by banks and savings institutions over 7-day Certificates of Deposit. Because our Funds Management savings transaction account pays much more interest. And Funds Management requires only a $1,000 minimum deposit while 7-day Certificates require a whopping $20,000.

Funds Management earns money market interest without tying up large amounts of money.

If you're looking for a high interest, high liquidity investment, take a look at North State's Funds Management account. Your balance is insured to $100,000 and you'll earn more interest than 7-day Certificates with your cash available any day. At North State Savings & Loan Corp., we considered offering a 7-day Certificate. But with Funds Management, who needs it?

* This is the net 7-day annualized yield for the preceding reporting week. Reporting weeks are from Tuesday to Monday. The yield will fluctuate each week as money market rates and expenses vary, so it is not necessarily representative of future rates. price than rose in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which began retreating Tuesday from a 17-month high of 1,012.79, dropped 5.52 points to 998.16 in the first half hour today. The widely known average fell 9.11 points Tuesday. Analysts said investors sold blue-chip issues to cash in on the more than 30 percent upsurge in the Dow Jones industrials over the past two months. Falling interest rates triggered the roaring rally and raised hopes for an economic recovery. In early money market trading today, however, interest rates stabilized.

President Reagan will deliver a report on the economy in an address scheduled for this evening.

Today's early prices included Mead, down 1/8 at 18 3/4; CBS, down 1/8 at 53; Mesa Petroleum, up 3/4 at 15 3/4; Firestone, unchanged at 13; and General Motors, unchanged at 53.

On Tuesday, while the Dow Jones industrials average fell to 1,003.68, nine stocks rose in price for every eight that fell on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 126.31 million shares, down from 138.53 million Monday. It was the sixth heaviest trading day in exchange history and the fourth straight day of trading in excess of 100 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stock rose .04 to 76.95.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .291 at 307.00.

family, questioned why the curve of the road to the north is not being straightened by taking more land on the south side and less on the north. He suggested political clout of certain landowners in the area as being the reason. "My wife asked me years ago when we were sinking our life savings into a house if we should place it further back from the road in case the highway was ever widened," he said. "I assured her that common sense would tell you that any widening would be done on the south side in order to straighten out the curve."

Betty Rodgers said the present design calls for the road to "come right through my house."

"I know roads are needed," Mrs. Rodgers said, "but so are our homes."

Rep. Howard Chapin questioned leaving in the curve to the right in the road, also. Also present was Sen. Vernon White.

Asked about the idea of five-laning with no median so as to use less land, the engineers said experience shows that four-laning with a median is the way to insure the greatest safety for users of the roadway.

Woolard said he'd prefer to see a concrete divider built to divide the east- and west-bound lanes, rather than to see the extra land used. "In Japan," he said, "they're using highway medians to raise vegetables. It may have to come to that here, if we keep on giving up our land to highways and shopping centers and airports."

"Concrete barriers like they have up around Greensboro would be expensive," Woolard said, "but not as expensive as paying people for their land and relocation."

The last previous public hearing on this project was held Feb. 29, 1972, and several of the speakers said they expressed similar views at that time.

The estimated cost of the project following the present design is expected to be $11,280,000. Thirty-eight residences, six businesses and one non-profit organization, the Pactolus Volunteer Fire Department, will have to be relocated if the present design is used.

Anyone who did not speak at last night's hearing who would like to express an opinion before the final design is approved by the Board of Transportation must do so within the next 10 days. Written comments and questions may be sent to George E. Wells, P.E., Manager of Highway Design; Division of Highways, Box 25201, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

City Officials Attend Course

City Manager Gail Meeks announced that Nadine Bowen, administrative assistant, and Gerry Dail, personnel assistant, have been selected to attend the municipal administration course at the Institute of Government, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The course, involving 150 hours of instruction and special problem seminars, is designed for governmental officials who have management responsibilities. Training is provided in the techniques of municipal administration; municipal finance; personnel administration; city planning; organization and operation of police, fire, public works, and recreation departments; state-local and city-county relations; and the various forms of government.

The staff members will attend 10 weekend sessions during a seven-month period, beginning Oct. 21. Graduation ceremonies are scheduled for next April.

Plan Warrants in Alien Deaths

McAlLEN, Texas (AP) - More federal warrants will be issued soon for the arrest of "co-conspirators" in an aborted alien smuggling operation that ended in death for five Salvadorans, authorities say.

Meanwhile, a third man being sought on a charge of conspiring to transport illegal aliens, Larry D. McCoy, 39, surrendered Tuesday and was being held on $500,000 bond. Two other men have been arrested and more warrants will be issued after a U.S. Border Patrol "takes a closer look" at the case, said assistant patrol chief E.J. Vickery.

Four Salvadorans were found dead Oct. 4 in an abandoned truck. A fifth body was found Saturday in a drainage ditch.

Wheatley Named To ECU Faculty

ECU News Bureau
Dr. Edward W. Wheatley, formerly professor of marketing at the University of Miami, Florida, has joined the ECU School of Business faculty where he will head a newly-created unit in the business school.

Wheatley is acting chairman of the new Department of Marketing, whose faculty and curriculum were previously affiliated with the Department of Business Administration and more recently, with the Department of Marketing and Management.

Establishment of the Department of Marketing as the fifth independent department within the School of Business is the culmination of an organization plan launched by the faculty in 1968. Dr. Ray Jones served as interim chairman of the new department during September. Dr. Wheatley's appointment became effective Oct. 1.

An alumnus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, Wheatley holds advanced degrees from Wharton Graduate School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, and Florida State University.

He has extensive experience in marketing firms, working with business and governmental clients, and was a captain in the U.S. Army, serving on a general staff as management analyst and fiscal officer.

Surprise! Brewers Can Play Whitey Ball, Too

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Surprise, surprise. The Milwaukee Brewers can play Whitey Ball, too.

The American League champion Brewers charged into the World Series with an image of sluggers who thrive on the long ball, as evidenced by 216 home runs in the regular season.

St. Louis, on the other hand, got here on speed and defense, a bunch of singles hitters assembled by Manager Whitey Herzog and conditioned to zip around the bases at breakneck speed.

So in Tuesday night's opener, the Brewers put together 13 singles, three short of the World Series record, in a 17-hit attack and rode the three-hit pitching of Mike Caldwell to a lopsided 10-0 victory.

Herzog called it an old-fashioned, back of the shack, rump-kicking. "I'm glad it only counted as one game," he said. "I'm glad we didn't have a doubleheader."

The jackrabbits at the top of the Brewer batting order drove the Cardinals to distraction.

Leadoff man Paul Molitor set a World Series record with five hits, all singles. Three were infield hits and one, driving in a key run, came when he shattered his bat and looped the ball beyond the infield.

"It's the first time I've had three infield hits," Molitor said. "They weren't very pretty."

No. 2 man Robin Yount had four hits, three of them singles. Molitor and Yount drove in two runs apiece as Milwaukee punished four St. Louis pitchers.

"I just hit the ball where the fielders weren't," explained Yount.

How's that for Whitey Ball? Just to make sure their long-ball image wasn't forgotten, the Brewers also had a towering home run by ex-Cardinal Ted Simmons and a two-run triple by Jim Gantner.

"It's nice to score 10 runs," said Molitor, "but we still didn't swing the bat as well as we're capable of. The Cardinals know we can hit the long ball."

What St. Louis might not have known, though, was the kind of performance Caldwell had in his 33-year-old left arm. Shelled in his last two starts, he was passed over by Manager Harvey Kuenn in the decisive fifth game of the American League playoffs. But he came back with an airtight, workmanlike game against the Cardinals.

"I was getting ahead of the hitters, throwing mostly sinkers and a back-door slider," Caldwell said. "I felt strong and when I got three ground balls in the first inning, I got a lot of personal confidence." Simmons, the Brewers' catcher, knew early that the veteran left-hander was on his game.

"I could tell right away," he said. "There was no question in the first inning. He was throwing the sinker at three-quarter speed and we were getting the ground balls. I said to myself, 'This could be nice for a while.'"

It turned out to be nice all night long. Caldwell surrendered a double to Darrell Porter in the second inning, a walk to Tommy Herr in the sixth, singles to Porter and Ken Oberkfell in the eighth, and nothing else. He retired 17 of the first 18 batters he faced and threw first-pitch strikes to 22 of the 31 Cardinal batters, including 10 in a row at one point. He retired 14 hitters on ground balls.

"That's as good as he can pitch," said Simmons. "You're not going to see him any better."

Before Caldwell ever took the mound, he had a two-run lead thanks to an error by usually sure-handed Cardinal first baseman Keith Hernandez.

St. Louis starter Bob Forsch had opened by getting Molitor to ground out to second

A-G, N. Pitt Battle For ECC Lead

By RICK SCOPE
Reflector Sports Writer
Now comes Ayden-Grifton.

Having secured its first-ever win over Farmville Central last week, North Pitt faces the biggest game in its 12-year history of football Friday night when the Panthers meet undefeated Ayden-Grifton.

The Panthers enter the game tied for the conference lead with Ayden-Grifton at 3-0. The winner will not only take over sole possession of first place but will almost assuredly clinch a berth in the state playoffs.

"It's going to be a good game," Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls said. "It's a privilege to play in a game like this."

The Chargers have had the privilege before. The Panthers have not — until now, that is.

"I think we will definitely be the underdog," North Pitt coach B.T. Chappell said. "Everybody looks at them as the defending conference champions and we're just little 'ol North Pitt."

Not this year. Not under Chappell, who in his second year has led the Panthers to a 4-1-2 record. North Pitt has won three straight and has not lost since the first game of the season.

The Panthers are coming off their biggest win of the season, a 13-0 shutout of Farmville. Now, however, Chappell must get his Panthers to forget that game and concentrate on Ayden-Grifton.

"I kind of got the impression (Monday at practice) that they still seem to be thinking of the Farmville game," he said. "They've still got to come down to earth."

The Panthers must return to earth and soon. In the Chargers, North Pitt faces its toughest opponent of the season, one that leads the league in both offense and defense.

North Pitt, however, is not without a stout defense of its own. The Panthers are ranked No. 2 in defense in the league, giving up just under 160 yards per game.

The Panther offense, meantime, is ranked third, thanks mainly to its rushing game. But, Chappell contends the Panthers can pass. "One thing that concerns me is that everybody looks at the stats and says we can't pass the ball," he said. "But, I feel we can pass and I know against Ayden-Grifton we're going to have to open up."

Chappell admits, however, that the Chargers are more versatile on offense, a fact that worries him.

"They're able to go to the air," he said. "They don't do the basic things like run on first down. They keep your defense guessing."

"Our pass defense is going to have to be ready every down. The thing we've got to do is let our line play good defense against the run and not worry about the pass."

"Our secondary is going to

Emory Wondered Just How Good Winless Spiders Were

By WOODY PEELE

East Carolina Coach Ed Emory said last week at his weekly press conference that he was worried about the upcoming game with Richmond.

"I was concerned about our looking ahead for Florida State," he recalled yesterday, "and I was worried too about how good Richmond really was and how well they could move the ball."

Saturday night, Richmond took the opening kickoff and moved right down the field, scoring a field goal for an early 3-0 lead in the football game in Ficklen Stadium.

"They had two weeks to prepare for us, and that was another concern of mine," Emory continued. "When they took that kickoff and went right down the field, I was more than concerned, I was petrified."

Emory said the Pirates

Schulz Picked For Japan Bowl

East Carolina defensive end Jody Schulz has been selected to play in the Japan Bowl, to be played in Yokohama, Japan, on January 16, 1983.

The game will be televised over WTBS of Atlanta on its nationwide satellite network.

"We talk to pro scouts on choosing who plays," said Duane Williams, player personnel director. "We work with guys who have had super college careers. We're also looking for athletes with character. Jody will be representing the United States of America. We want to show the Japanese people what U.S. football is all about."

Schulz, playing for the East team, will be coached by Mike White of Illinois and Dick Crum of North Carolina. The West coaches are Lou Holtz of Arkansas and Jimmy Johnson of Iowa State.

Schulz, a 6-4, 235-pound senior, is the first ECU player ever chosen for the Japan Bowl.

looked sluggish on defense during that first drive, but that the whole team picked up after that. He blamed Richmond's wide splits in the offensive line for it.

"When you're a defensive tackle and you line up and the nose guard is way over there," indicating a position some ten or more feet away, "it gives you a certain sense of insecurity."

However, Emory feels, the Pirates took command after that first drive as they coasted to a 35-14 victory.

"Our offensive line played well, and we were especially pleased with the play of Mack Powers, who was making his first start. He graded out 92

Caldwell Believed He'd Shut Out Cards In Opener

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Ralph Michael Caldwell had no reason to believe he would pitch well in the first game of the 1982 World Series. But he believed he would.

He certainly had no reason to believe that he would shut out the St. Louis Cardinals, but he believed he would.

Caldwell's last two outings were portraits of disaster. He lost both games, and both came in pressure situations when plucky pitchers such as Mike Caldwell are supposed to pull through.

In Baltimore, on the last weekend of the season, Caldwell went to the mound as Milwaukee's starter in the second game of a doubleheader. The Brewers had already lost the first game, and they needed a victory to clinch the pennant.

Caldwell, a left-hander with a modest fastball, an exceedingly fine sinker and slider — when they work — and a complementary palm ball, must keep the ball low if he is to get opponents out.

Caldwell could not keep the ball low and his pitches became music to Oriole bats. In seven innings, he gave up 13 hits, seven earned runs and four home runs. The sinker obviously wasn't sinking.

The next time out, in the first game of the American League Championship Series when the matter was even more critical, he lasted just three innings, and gave up six runs and seven hits.

"I pitched so badly the last two times out I figured it was my turn to pitch well," Caldwell said after giving up just three hits as the Brewers battered the Cards 10-0 Tuesday night in Game 1 of the Series.

"I always expect to shut 'em out," he added. "And if they score one run I expect to keep 'em there. If they score more, I expect to hold them."

"I consider this one of my best performances of this year and of my career," said Caldwell, unshaven and sporting a half-ounce of gold on a chain around his neck.

Caldwell was in charge from the first pitch. "When the first three batters grounded out, it built up my confidence," he said.

"Anytime you are not a big strikeout pitcher, you have to depend on what you do best. I was getting ahead of the hitters and my sinker ball and slider were working well."

One thing Caldwell has done frequently over his 10-year major league career is move from team to team. He's been with four major league clubs.

The Brewers acquired him from Cincinnati in 1978, and it was no coincidence that George Bamberger was the Milwaukee manager and that Caldwell had his best year, winning 22 games while losing nine.

"Bambi was the best confidence builder I've ever seen," said Caldwell, holding Cal McLish, the current Brewer pitching coach in similar esteem.

"I've always seemed to pitch better for managers who have confidence in me."

Milwaukee Manager Harvey Kuenn didn't show much confidence last week after Caldwell had lost the two important games. He bypassed him in the fifth game of the championship series.

But Caldwell wasn't complaining now — if he did then.

"When you don't pitch any better than I pitched, you can't expect to pitch. Anyway, I'll face the Angels next year," he said, referring to the California Angels, Milwaukee's opponent in the AL playoff.

"This is a team effort. I just want to help the ball club. And tonight we proved we can scrap and scrape just like the Cardinals can."

Caldwell underwent bone spur surgery on his left elbow in 1974 while he was with the San Francisco Giants.

"After that I bounced around on several teams and finally I got a chance to pitch when I got here.

"I was too stubborn to believe I couldn't pitch again," he said.

Did Bamberger save his career? "No, I saved my own career, but he helped me work within my abilities."

Those abilities include a fierce determination which he describes as gutsy.

Caldwell says when he is on the mound he becomes a different person.

"When I'm pitching, I'll do anything to get the batter out, even if it means throwing the kitchen sink," said Caldwell, who has been accused during his career of throwing an occasional spitball.

"I don't hate batters. I just hate everybody on the other team."

Brewers Win...

Cardinal pitcher and came up a winner.

"They are going to throw me slow stuff," he said. "That's what the scouting reports say and I was seeing screwballs and slow changes prior to that. The ball I hit foul was a slider up. I was geared to take the gamble that they would throw me a fast ball down and it was right there."

Simmons hit it over the right field wall, making it 4-0. Then in the sixth, the Brewers pushed across two more runs with two out. Gantner and Molitor singled and Yount dropped a double just inside the right field foul line, making it 6-0.

Meanwhile, Caldwell was breezing through the St. Louis batting order. He occasionally has been accused of doctoring baseballs, but there were no complaints from the Cardinals.

"I didn't think he had to do the way we were swinging," Herzog said dryly.

"He kept the ball where he wanted it and he had good motion on his off-speed pitches," said Gene Tenace, who was the Cards' designated hitter. "He kept the ball down on me and when a pitcher can do that, he's tough to hit. If he throws a spitter, it doesn't matter to me. If he gets it over more power to him."

Ozzie Smith agreed. "What can you do about a spitter?" he wondered. "Hit the dry side?"

The Cardinals weren't hitting any side.

In the ninth, Milwaukee wrapped up the rout with four more runs, two of them on Gantner's triple and the final one on Molitor's record-breaking fifth hit.

"I had no idea about the record," Molitor said. "I was hoping to get another chance for a fifth hit in the ninth. Gantner came through and all I had on my mind was to get a hit and drive in a run."

Why, with a 9-0 lead and three outs to go, did a 10th run matter?

"It seemed like a magic number. You don't want to make the last out. You want to keep things going."

When it was over, the Cardinals had seen a side of the Brewers that they might not have known existed.

"I think there is a great misunderstanding about the Brewers being a one-factor ball club," said Molitor. "We can adjust to different surfaces. We have speed. We just don't have to go to it too often. Why run ourselves out of an inning when there are five guys in the lineup who hit over 20 home runs?"

Simmons agreed. "Our club surprises a lot of people," he said. "Besides the Harvey Wallbangers, the Molitors, Younts, Gantners and Moores — those four people can create havoc. These type of hitters are very effective on any field and they run well, too."

'Just One Of Those Games,' Porter Says Cards Get 'Tail-Kicking'

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Catcher Darrell Porter called it a "good, old-fashioned tail-kicking" for him and the St. Louis Cardinals — a sentiment also expressed by Manager Whitey Herzog — but said it also was only one game.

"Sometimes, I think, it's better to get beat like that than it is 2-1," Porter said following Tuesday night's 10-0 triumph by the Milwaukee Brewers in the first game of the World Series. "In those games, you're mind keeps going back over one run."

Against a power-laden Milwaukee lineup, the Cardinals had no second guesses to make.

"It was just one of those games, I think," said Porter. "They got out in front of us early. You kind of hope you can come back, but we were never in it."

To a man, Cardinal tipped their caps to Brewer left-hander Mike Caldwell, the author of a three-hitter.

"Whatever he threw he was getting the ball where he wanted it; you've got to give him credit," said designated hitter Gene Tenace. "He didn't throw me a cut fastball. He just threw me a slider, sinker and a curveball."

Cardinal first baseman Keith Hernandez said he suspected some of Caldwell's deliveries were "questionable" screwballs.

"He threw a great ballgame," Hernandez said, however. "He changed speed on the right-handed batters. He worked the corners well. Whether they're screwballs or spitters, I don't know. But you've still got to get them over the plate."

As impressive as Milwaukee's hitting strength was to Cardinal shortstop Ozzie Smith, so was the speed the Brewers demonstrated in legging out infield hits.

"When you get to this stage I think you can do more than just bang walls. Every club that's here can do a lot of things," Smith said. "They have a great team and they showed that tonight."

Herzog said the early problems of Cardinal starter Bob Forsch involved more than World Series jitters.

"He threw 36 pitches in the first inning," Herzog said. "Hernandez' error let in a couple of runs, but he (Forsch) couldn't get the ball where he wanted it." The error by Hernandez was of the type seldom committed by the four-time Gold Glove infielder.

"I blew it," he said in a terse explanation of how he let Ben Oglivie's hard-hit ball go through his glove after two were out in the first. "I'm not going to offer any excuses."

More than anything, said second baseman Tommy Herr, it was probably simply not the kind of game in which St. Louis could be expected to come back.

"We've got the kind of ballclub that can come back after one or two runs," he said. "With power, it's different. But we've got to win with defense and speed."

Molitor Sets Series Mark

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Paul Molitor had no idea that he had made World Series history, but the Milwaukee Brewers' third baseman said he had just done what he had to do.

Molitor, a .302 hitter who leads off Milwaukee's power-packed lineup, set a single-game World Series record with five hits Tuesday night to spark the Brewers' 10-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in Game 1.

"They call me 'The Igniter' on this club, and I just tried to play my role — the way every player on this team has a role to play," said Molitor, whose 136 runs scored this season were the most by an American League player since Ted Williams scored 150 in 1949.

"I thought it was especially important to do well tonight for two reasons," Molitor added. "One, the Cardinals have amazing speed. By getting the lead early, we took away what they do best. If it's close or a tie game, their speed can run you right into the ground."

"Second, they have one of the best relief pitchers in baseball in Bruce Sutter," he said. "We wanted to get so far ahead that they couldn't bring Sutter into the game in a save situation."

The Brewers took a 6-0 lead

after six innings, and left-hander Mike Caldwell protected it by pitching a three-hitter against his former teammates.

"The lead helped immensely," said Caldwell, 17-13 during the regular season but hit hard in his last few outings.

"Our team hadn't been hitting well the last few weeks, but I knew nobody could keep these guys down indefinitely," Caldwell said. "Paulie started it off, and the other guys just picked it up from him."

"I wasn't nervous," said Caldwell, who had chain-smoked in the Brewer dugout before the game. "This was the biggest game of my career, and I wasn't about to give into the hitters. If they were going to hit me, I made up my mind that they were going to have to hit my best pitches."

"Caldwell pitched as well as Mike Caldwell can pitch," said Brewer catcher Ted Simmons, another former Cardinal whose fifth-inning homer had increased Milwaukee's lead to 4-0. "You will never see Mike Caldwell pitch better than that."

"That's the best he's been in three or four weeks. Tonight he was back to his old self, keeping the ball down and changing speeds."

Simmons said the Busch

Memorial Stadium crowd of 53,723 and a national television audience had seen the real Brewers. The team that had led the major leagues in runs, home runs, runs batted in, total bases and slugging percentage during the regular season had hit only .219 while defeating the California Angels in the American League Championship Series.

"When Paul Molitor and Robin Yount get on base like they did tonight, it makes the middle of our batting order that much more effective," Simmons said. "Paul and Robin have set it up for us all year."

Don Money, the Brewers' veteran designated hitter, said the first-game victory was particularly important because the club had been under intense pressure the past two weeks.

The Brewers defeated Baltimore 10-2 on the last day of the regular season to clinch the AL East title, and then bounced back from an 0-2 deficit to eliminate the Angels in five games in the playoffs.

"This game, the score you saw tonight, with Paulie getting five hits and Robin four, that was Milwaukee Brewers' baseball," Money said. "I'm not going to say we can do this every night. The Cardinals have a great team. They're going to come back and play us very tough."

"But we won the first game," he added. "That takes some of the pressure off. And we've been under a lot of pressure for a long time."

Mediator Listening To Both Sides In NFL Strike

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A private mediator who says he hopes to outlast the adversaries in the National Football League strike was listening to both sides spell out their positions amid a news blackout he ordered shortly after taking a seat at the negotiating table.

"My tactics are to tire them out before they tire me out," San Francisco attorney Sam Kagel said Tuesday night after holding an introductory session with representatives of the club owners and striking players whose walkout 23 days ago has resulted in four weeks of no pro football.

Kagel, named earlier Tuesday to mediate the NFL Players Association's contract dispute with the NFL Management Council, said he asked both sides to be ready to start intensive negotiations today. He also announced an immediate news blackout.

"I have ordered all parties, players and owners throughout the league, to make no public comment while the mediation effort is ongoing," Kagel said following the meeting at a site in a suburb of Baltimore.

Three weeks of games already have been bypassed, and earlier Tuesday the NFL announced the games of Oct. 17-18 would not be played as scheduled.

The 73-year-old son of a junkman, Kagel came to the talks with a reputation as a tough, no-nonsense mediator.

The choice of Kagel was announced Tuesday by Kay McMurray, chief of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

McMurray discussed the selection Monday evening with both Jack Donlan, chief negotiator for the Management Council, and Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFLPA.

Kagel, who served as an independent arbitrator in three cases involving NFL players in non-injury grievances, was quickly agreed upon by both sides as a logical candidate to mediate the dispute.

While both sides welcomed the selection, union officials were quick to add that Kagel's participation was no sure sign of a quick settlement.

"I don't think the fans or the players should get too excited at this point. This is just the beginning of the bargaining process, and management has still not addressed the basic issues placed on the table by the players," Garvey said.

"We can't be lulled asleep by just thinking because we are going to mediation there will be an instant cure," said union president Gene Upshaw.

"People think mediation is like going to the doctor who gives you medicine and all is well," he said. The players' concern that the strike would continue was underscored by their continued plans for a series of union-sponsored games.

The first two games are scheduled for Sunday in Washington and Monday in Los Angeles. The first game had been billed as featuring teams representing "all-stars" from the AFC and NFC eastern divisions. Revised rosters, released late Tuesday, indicate as many as 15 players from other teams in the NFL are now scheduled to play in the game because players originally committed to appear have changed their minds.

Chargers Drop Out Of AP Poll

By The Associated Press
For another week, East Forsyth High School holds onto its No. 1 ranking in state 4A football competition, while two other schools in the 4A category move up one notch.

In 3A competition, the Bulldogs of Burlington Williams fall one spot to second place and Statesville moves to the No. 1 spot.

Meanwhile, Ayden-Grifton fell out of the poll after being tied for 18th last week.

Others with 10 or more points: 11. Bessemer City (1), 20, 12. Robbinville, 19; 13. Swain County, 18; 14. Edneyville, 11.

Reflector Standings
Following are the Daily Reflector rankings. They are based on points accumulated by wins. Wins over 4-A teams count 4 points, 3-A count 3, etc., with bonus points awarded for each victory the losing team accumulates. For example, a 3-A team with a 7-3 record for the season is worth 10 points for each team which beats it. Later season rankings are more accurate as points accumulate.

Emory Worried...

Emory said he felt the tight end play was better and that the receivers continued to play well. He was particularly pleased with the play of Stefan Adams at wide receiver after having been moved from tailback during the week.

"Our fullbacks did a good job, but we probably should have played (Reggie) Branch more. (Tailback) Jimmy Walden kplayed well until he got hurt, and then (Tony) Baker came on and did a fantastic job. (Quarterback Greg) Stewart had a good game, but he still doesn't have his timing down in the passing game."

Emory said he was well pleased with the defense after the first series, except for nose guard. "We tried to rest (injured) Barry Smith, and the other people just didn't do a good job. I was disappointed that they scored a touchdown on us, but I was very satisfied otherwise."

The lone touchdown by the Spiders, late in the game against the reserves, was the first TD scored against the Pirates in Ficklen Stadium this year.

"We found that we could move the football well on them. But if someone had told me last week that we would lose four fumbles, have an interception, and get 12 penalties for 132 yards, I would have said there was no way we could win the ball games.

"We're certainly going to have to cut those kinds of mistakes out if we don't want to have another long night at Florida State."

Emory said that because of some injuries and illnesses, the Pirates have made a few position changes. Tom Carnes, who has been sharing starting duties at guard, has been moved to tackle, shoring up the position weakened by Jeff Autry's illness. Marty Carlson has also been moved from nose guard to offensive guard, and Tim Mitchell has been moved from center to guard.

Earnest Byner will work at both tailback and fullback this week. "If we use Byner at tailback, we'll have Branch at fullback. (With both Walden and Baker hobbled by injuries and uncertain,) we didn't want to move Adams back to tailback. We feel he can help us more at the wide receiver position."

Several defensive players are banged up and are questionable for the weekend. They include Maury Banks and Sam Norris, while Jody Schulz, Hal Stephens, Steve Hamilton and Barry Smith continue to play hurt.

The Pirates, now 3-2 on the year, will face Florida State on Saturday night in Tallahassee, Fla. FSU beat the Pirates, 63-7, in their last meeting, in 1980.

A-G, Panthers Battle For Top Spot ...

have to come through," Chappell said. "If they can hold up and do a good job we've got a chance."

The two teams have three common foes: Roanoke, D.H. Conley and Farmville. A-G defeated Roanoke, 27-7, Farmville, 24-6, and Conley, 8-6. The Panthers lost to Roanoke, 27-13, beat Farmville, 13-0, and tied Conley, 6-6.

In other games last week, Ayden-Grifton defeated Greene Central, 21-6, Conley dropped a 12-7 decision to West Carteret, Bertie rolled past Roanoke, 54-0, and Jamesville pounded Mattamuskeet, 40-6.

In other games this week, Conley (0-5-1, 0-1) entertains White Oak, (3-2-1, 0-1), Farmville (1-6-0, 0-3) is at Charles B. Aycock (1-5-0, 0-2), Roanoke (3-4-0, 2-3) entertains Tarboro (3-3-0, 3-1), Williamston (2-4-0, 1-3) is at Roanoke Rapids (4-2-0, 3-2) and Jamesville (4-3-0, 4-2) goes to Midway.

Greene Central (0-5-2, 0-3) has an open date.

Ayden-Grifton
Ayden-Grifton coach Dixon Sauls expects a tough, hard-fought battle when his undefeated Chargers play North Pitt Friday for first place in the conference. He just hopes his team expects the same.

"I hope we will accept North Pitt for the fine football team that they are. We've had that problem in the past this season," Sauls said.

Sauls should have little trouble convincing his team that the Panthers are a genuine threat to its dreams of a unbeaten year and, more importantly, an ECC title.

North Pitt is 4-1-2 overall and 3-0 in the conference and carries a three-game winning streak into the game.

"They have a big, strong football team," he said. "I think they're playing quite well at this stage of the season."

"We place special emphasis on this game," Sauls said. "It's a conference game and they're a county rival."

Ayden-Grifton, which figures to be the favorite, comes into the game off a 21-6 win over Greene Central. The Charger offense ran up 324 total offense — the fourth time this year A-G had gone over 300 yards — but failed time and again to put the ball in the end zone.

"We need to be more aggressive on offense," Sauls said.

Such is not the case defensively. The A-G defense is second to none in the ECC, giving up an average of 5.5 points and just under 104 yards a game this season.

This week that Charger defense will be called on to stop the conference's top runner in North Pitt's Dennis Bradley. Bradley, the workhorse in the Panthers' running attack, stands atop the ECC in rushing with 623 yards.

"Without a doubt Dennis Bradley is the finest back we've played to date," Sauls said. "With his power and size he presents some problems."

North Pitt also has Donald Hunter at fullback and Alvin Grimes at either the other running back or at wingback. Grimes, the league's leading punt returner, returned his second punt of the year for a TD against Farmville Central last week.

IOC Restores Amateur Status To Jim Thorpe

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) — The International Olympic Committee today restored the amateur status of the late American athlete Jim Thorpe and said it will return the medals he won at the 1912 Olympic Games to his family.

IOC's President Juan Antonio Samaranch will present the medals to Thorpe's daughter in January.

"The name of James Thorpe will be added to the list of athletes who were crowned Olympic champions at the 1912 games," the committee said.

Thorpe's son, Carl P. Thorpe of Vienna, Va., said today he was "flabbergasted" at the news.

"I knew that a great number of people have been working on this the past few months," he said. "I've had my fingers crossed, but I didn't expect this kind of action this soon. My God, this is just wonderful."

Thorpe, an equal employment opportunity officer with the Bureau of Indian Affairs in Washington, called the committee's action "a victory for the American people."

"It's going to remove a long-standing ache in the heart of the American public, certainly in mine and the family's, and I think it's fitting. I extend my sincere thanks to the IOC."

The Chargers rely on three running backs to key their ground attack, led by Jarvis Koonce, the league's second-leading rusher with 515 yards. Tailbacks Malcolm Worthington (421 yards) and Kelvin Harris (345) give A-G depth in its backfield.

The key to the game, however, could lie with the quarterbacks. North Pitt's Ken Whitehurst threw only three passes last week and figures to have problems against the A-G defense.

His counterpart, A-G's Joey Kennedy, completed just five of 16 passes, but two were for TDs. Kennedy has yet to have a pass intercepted this year, having hit on 43 of 88 passes for 525 yards.

D.H. Conley has had his share — and then some — of disappointing losses this season. But, few have been more disappointing — or meant more — than Conley's loss to West Carteret last week.

"I think — no, I know — we played better than we did against Ayden-Grifton. Why did we lose? I can't say. I don't know," D.H. Conley

Rose Beats Rocky Mount

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School's soccer team gained a 1-0 victory over Rocky Mount yesterday.

The game's lone goal came about eight minutes into the contest, following a steal by Jim Carter. Carter made a long pass downfield to Jordy Smith, who put in a shot from about 20 yards out for the 1-0 lead that held the rest of the way.

Both teams had 11 shots on goals, with Rose goalie Gregg Ward recording eight saves. It was his second shutout of the year.

"We didn't make any mistakes," Coach Will Wiberg said. "We played smart soccer and our midfield (Clarke and Jeff Stallings) played very well, distributing the ball to the wings." Wiberg also singled out the defensive play of Bruce Thompson and David Jester.

The Rampants are now 2-3-2 on the year, while Rocky Mount is 2-5-0. Rose plays host to Wilson Beddingfield on Thursday at the ECU soccer field at 4 p.m.

coach Gerald Garner said. The Vikings had a chance to put the game away when they drove to the Patriot two with five minutes left, but a penalty and a QB sack ended the threat. The Patriots scored moments later on an 84-yard run to make it 7-6.

Then, with a 1:47 left and West Carteret, without a timeout, the Pats marched downfield on six pass completions by quarterback Lonnie Mister to score with 35 seconds left for the win.

"I still feel we've got a better ballclub than West Carteret," Garner said. "I don't know if you call it fate, or luck, or what."

The statistical tale favored Conley. The Vikings outgained the Patriots, 237 to 182, and had more first downs (11 to 6). Conley also had seven quarterback sacks.

"And three of those six first downs came on that final drive," Garner said. The loss leaves the Vikings at 0-5-1 this season and 0-1 in the CC. Two weeks ago, Garner said beating the Patriots was crucial if the Vikings were to have any chance at winning the conference.

A chance still remains for the Vikings to make the playoffs — albeit in the Division II ranks.

"You know, the kids were disappointed. I was, too. But, when I look around at the other scores (in the league) I was a little more encouraged."

What Garner saw maily was this: Havelock rallying past West Craven, 14-6 and North Lenoir upsetting White Oak, 20-16.

"Havelock's still the favorite, but the rest of the schools not that much different," Garner said. "A 3-2 (record) could get us in the Division II playoffs."

For that to happen, however, the Vikings must defeat White Oak Friday, which would make Homecoming all the sweeter for Garner and the Vikings.

White Oak, which runs the I-formation on offense and a split 4-4 on defense, is led by QB Richard Sloan and TB Stanley Monk, considered by Conley coaches the second-best back in the league (next to West Craven's Norman Becton).

Monk, a 6-0, 170-pound junior, is the team's leading rusher with 621 yards on 130 carries.

"I feel like they're going to come here fired up," Garner said. "There's two things we've got to be ready for: First, they're the defending conference champs and they lost their first conference game. Second, they beat us pretty handily and every team takes it as an insult that they're you're homecoming team."

Farmville Central
Farmville Central coach Gilbert Carroll had little to say about his team's loss to North Pitt — or anything else for that matter — when contacted earlier this week. Said Carroll: "I have absolutely nothing to say about last Friday's game, about this week's game, about last year, or this year, or next year. I have nothing to say."

It was not readily apparent what Carroll was upset about, but presumably at least part of his anger was the result of a story in Sunday's Daily Reflector that quoted him after losing to North Pitt as saying, "I'll just be glad when it's all over. I sure will."

Farmville, which is 1-6-0 this season overall and 0-3 in the league, is at Charles B. Aycock Friday night. The Falcons defeated Farmville, 21-6, a year ago.

Suiter's Five Goals Lead Ridgescroft By GCA, 7-1

AHOSKIE — Stokes Suiter scored five first half goals to lead Ridgescroft Academy to a 7-1 soccer victory over Greenville Christian Academy yesterday.

Ridgescroft jumped out to a 6-0 lead in the first period as Suiter scored all but one of those goals. He hit the first about five minutes into the contest, and added a second two minutes later. Kirk Nixon scored the third Ridgescroft goal at the 11 minute mark, while Suiter followed at 16, 19 and 23 minutes for the 6-0 lead.

Troy Stox scored for Greenville Christian two minutes into the second half to help the Knights avoid a shut-out, while David Evans added the final Ridgescroft goal at the 10 minute mark.

Stox' goal was assisted by Mike Bragg, while Evans was assisted by Nixon.

During the afternoon, GCA had 25 shots on goal, while the Ridgescroft goalie recorded 14 saves. Ridgescroft had 36 shots, while GCA recording 16 saves.

"They are just as good as they were the first time we played them," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "But I don't think we're playing our best soccer now. We're going to try and have a good week of practice and try to prepare for our conference tournament." That is scheduled for Oct. 22-23 at Greenville Christian. GCA has a first round bye and will play the winner of the Goldsboro-Falls Road game at 4 p.m. on Oct. 23.

GCA is now 6-6 on the season.

Blados, Esiason Get ACC Honors

GREENSBORO (AP) — North Carolina offensive tackle Brian Blados and Maryland quarterback Boomer Esiason and have been named Atlantic Coast Conference offensive players of the week.

The selections were made by a panel of the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association, which earlier this week named North Carolina strong safety Willie Harris and Clemson defensive tackle Dan Benish as defensive players of the week.

Enthusiased By 'New' Apple

EMPIRE APPLE - The sign at Peter Hotaling's Farm Market in Claverack, N.Y. may read "peaches", but the baskets are filled with the new Empire apples which enthusiasts say combine the attributes of the McIntosh and the Red Delicious. (AP Laserphoto)

By PAT FERGUS
Associated Press Writer
CLAVERACK, N.Y. (AP)

- Around Columbia County, they call it the apple of the future.

A cross between two of the world's top-selling apples - the McIntosh and the Red Delicious - the Empire Apple only began appearing at fruit stands in the last three to five years. It's likely to be another five to 10 years before it really takes off, because Empire trees, planted only in the last 10 years or so, are still too young to produce the quantities necessary for commercial success.

But hopes are high in this apple-growing region of eastern New York that the Empire eventually will be as strong a seller as the McIntosh, which grows best in the cool, crisp nights and sunny days of northern New York's early fall.

"Mac's" need warm weather to ripen but cold nights to give them the right color and sugar content, explained Peter Hotaling, who grows Macs as well as Delicious and Empires in his orchards here.

The Empire is harvested in early to mid October - later than the McIntosh, but earlier than the Red Delicious.

"People are still learning how to handle the Empire," Hotaling said. "We don't know if we should treat them like an earlier apple, like the McIntosh, or like the Delicious, which is a later."

Many farmers who grow it agree that it seems to have inherited the best characteristics of its parent varieties - it's a crisp, tasty, attractive fruit that stores well, and its trees bear a good amount of fruit. And, they say, buyers who travel from the city in search of fresh, crisp, country apples are turning more often to the Empire.

"It seems everybody who tries them comes back for more," said Ron Samascott of Samascott Orchards in nearby Kinderhook. "They're a good apple."

A little like the Red Delicious and a little like the McIntosh, the Empire is hard to describe. It's "firmer and crispier than a Mac," explained Samascott. "It's got a taste of its own."

"They get completely red," unlike the McIntosh, which has a tendency to fall off the tree before getting red enough for consumers' tastes, he added.

Shaped more like a McIntosh than a Red Delicious, Empires "don't drop like a McIntosh. They're redder than a Mac and sweeter than a Mac," said Al Bartolotta of Klein Kill Farms in Germantown.

The Empire was developed in the 1960s at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station in Geneva, N.Y., according to Roger Way, the station's chief pomologist. Farmers began planting Empire trees as they became available commercially in the late 1960s and early 1970s, then waited about 10 years for them to bear fruit.

Hotaling said local growers believe the progenitor of the Empire was discovered in an orchard in Columbia County 20 years ago, then taken to the Geneva station to be perfected.

The Empire can be found at many roadside stands throughout the state, especially in this area and the Finger Lakes region.

"Almost every farm's got a few of them in now," Bartolotta said. "In our area, anyway, I think they are the apple of the future."

Link Vision, Underachieving

CHICAGO (UPI) — Medical experts estimate as many as 50 to 70 percent of school children classified as underachievers are suffering from visual problems. Their most common problems are difficulty in focusing, which makes reading an unpleasant chore, and myopia, or nearsightedness, which makes it hard to see distant objects such as blackboards. Such problems show up as failure to concentrate on homework, avoidance of studying, inattentiveness in class or misunderstanding directions, says optometrist Paul Warnick. Warnick says warning signs of eye problems include dislike of reading, frequent breaks from homework, holding a book close to the face or bending close over homework, complaints of blurry lines or headaches after studying or red, teary eyes after studying. Warnick is on the staff of Chicago-based Pearle Vision Centers.

Unique 'Diving Suit' To Explore Ocean's Depths

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — A cross between a diving suit and a submarine is taking scientists into parts of the ocean where they've never gone before — cold, dark regions where luminous fish sparkle like stars on a moonless night.

"The lights are very vivid and bright and the sea is very dark. It's like looking up into the sky on a very clear night, when you're very far from the city, up on top of a mountain," said oceanographer Bruce H. Robison of the University of California-Santa Barbara.

The cause of Robison's enthusiasm is called Wasp — a deep-sea diving suit developed eight years ago for the offshore oil industry and being used for the first time by scientists in a pilot program 10 miles out from Santa Barbara.

Wasp looks a bit like a giant yellow insect or a legless, humpbacked robot and works like a one-man minibus with arms. Its pilot fits snugly inside the fiberglass and aluminum canister, his head looking inconspicuously small within the clear plexiglass dome, well over a foot across, that tops the 1,000-pound machine.

Suspended by a winch cable from its mothership, Wasp "is very, very maneuverable" through a system of foot-operated thrusters that let its occupant chase after fish or "motor off to look at something interesting," Robison said. It can work down to 2,000 feet.

Conventional scuba diving has made oceanographers familiar with the first 100 feet or so of ocean. Expensive research subs are opening new worlds on the sea floor. But in between is a vast region that's scarcely visited by researchers, said

Robison, chief scientist for the program financed by a $290,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

Submersibles work best on the bottom, usually offer very limited visibility through portholes a few inches wide and "the scientist never gets to pilot them," said Alice Alldredge, a marine biologist at UCSB and co-principal investigator for the 25-day program.

In the past, she said, scientists probed the depths from ships, hauling up whatever they could catch in nets or in bottles lowered over the side.

"It's been like studying a forest without being able to walk among the trees and pick the flowers," she said. "With nets, you only catch animals that are not very fast and not very fragile."

Worst of all, scientists rarely saw the animals in their environments.

Since the dives began in mid-September, Robison said, "We've been able to answer questions we couldn't answer before and really to frame new questions we didn't even know enough to ask before."

Among the discoveries is a dense, discrete layer of tiny crustaceans called copepods spread across the Santa Barbara Basin about 1,500 feet down. The layer — "nothing like it has ever been reported before" — is about 25 feet thick with the quarter-inch creatures packed 100,000 per cubic yard, Ms. Alldredge said. "What are they doing, just sitting there? We're trying to figure that out."

"In the deep, dark ocean, where there are no rocks or trees or anything to hide behind," living features become the basis of whole communities, Robison said.

He cited the discovery that siphonophores — thin gelatinous creatures up to 20 feet long with stinging tentacles — provide a drifting habitat for colonies of smelt that find refuge among the threatening tentacles.

The most distinctive feature of the lightless depths, Robison said, is bioluminescence, fishes' chemical lights that dot the darkness and are far more than just organic flashlights.

Robison said the lights vary by species and sex and almost certainly helps fish identify each other. "We assume it's used to attract prey or to let the animal see its prey."

Wearing a jump suit and ballet slippers, for better control of the foot-operated thruster buttons, Robison, 39, recently pulled himself out of the suit and climbed down a paint-spattered step ladder after spending about four hours more than 1,500 feet down in the crystal-clear Pacific Ocean.

On the deck of the New Horizon, a research ship owned by the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, Robison said, "This is an amazing machine. I don't ever want to come up."

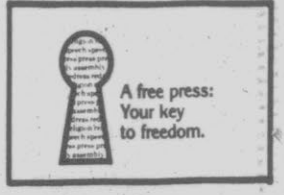

The pilot's arms slip into oversize limbs and levers open and close the suit's claw-like hands. Scattered about the suit's surface are lights, television camera, strobe lights for a hand-held still camera and an assortment of gear, tanks and ballast.

It carries a 72-hour supply of oxygen, although a maximum dive is considered about six hours. Ms. Alldredge said that in an emergency, weight can be quickly jettisoned and "you pop up to the surface like cork."

Wasp was developed by Oceaneering International, a Houston company that leases a complete package of two suits and all support equipment and personnel for about $10,000 a day.

Memorial For A Defiant Man

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — A local stonecutter has nearly completed a memorial to Harry Truman, the defiant old man who refused to leave Mount St. Helens when it erupted more than two years ago.

The 1,800-pound monument, commissioned by Truman's sister, Geri Whiting, lies nearly finished in Don Wahlstrom's shop here. All it lacks is a likeness of Truman, Spirit Lake and the volcano to be carved on the shiny marble surface.

Originally the memorial was to be erected at Spirit Lake, where Truman's remains and beloved lodge are buried under tons of volcanic ash. Wahlstrom said Truman, who refused to leave the lodge, is one of 59 people left dead or missing by the enormous eruption on May 18, 1980.

"We were going to fly it in by helicopter, but the government wouldn't let us," the 55-year-old stonecutter said. The monument may eventually end up in a museum, but Wahlstrom wasn't sure which one.

The six-foot, upright monument bears the inscription:

"I think I can see
A smile on his face,
For he lived and died
In his special place;
And all he would ask
Of the Lord for his sake,
Is a place in eternity Like Spirit Lake."

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
4 ♦ Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: King of ♠.

It was a 3-to-1 chance that one of two obvious finesses would succeed. But declarer made his contract because he found a third finesse!

The auction was routine. South started with one spade on a hand worth 20 points, then jumped to game when his partner mustered a simple raise. As the cards lie three no trump would have been a laydown because of even break in hearts, but the spade game was the superior contract.

West attacked with the king of hearts, and the defenders raked in their two tricks in the suit before declarer ruffed the third round. He drew trumps in two rounds and it seemed that all he needed to do for his contract was to take a finesse in each minor suit. If East had either minor-suit queen, declarer would be home.

To everyone's surprise, however, declarer continued with the king and ace of diamonds and, when the queen did not drop, he exited with the jack. West won the queen but he was end played. No matter what he did, the defenders could get no more tricks.

Purists might argue that the end play stood far less chance than two finesses. But they would be overlooking the nine of clubs in dummy! Suppose that East won the third diamond—declarer would still have a 3-to-1 chance for his contract! If East has either the queen or ten of clubs, declarer will make his contract by letting East's shift to a low club run to the K 9 in dummy. If West comes up with the ten, declarer takes dummy's king and still has a finesse for the queen available. But look at the extra chances declarer has provided for himself. He can drop a doubleton queen of diamonds, or claim his contract any time that West has the queen in that suit.

Lobster Rustlers Plunder California Treasure

TO CATCH A THIEF — Lobster fisherman Bob Culbertson admires two of 30 shellfish he caught in his traps. Culbertson and other commercial fishermen want the courts to crack down on thieves that are raiding the traps. (AP Laserphoto)

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
SAN DIEGO (AP) — They strike by moonlight or mid-day sun, then slip away underwater in scuba gear, on pleasure boats or even surfboards.

Lobster rustlers are plundering the state's treasured shellfish — often robbing the royal delicacy from fishermen's traps within sight of California's crowded beaches.

"They're plain out-and-out thieves," said Bob Culbertson, a commercial lobsterman who operates an 18-foot skiff out of San Diego's Mission Bay.

Each year, thousands of spiny lobsters are taken illegally and resold for lucrative black market profits, according to the State Fish and Game Department. Officials say it's impossible to know exactly how many of the coveted crustaceans are hijacked annually.

With only 335 game wardens to patrol the entire state, including the 1,100-mile coastline, Fish and Game officials admit they're fighting a losing battle.

Facing lost dollars now and the possibility of a drained spiny lobster population in the future, lobster fishermen are hoping strong penalties will stop the crimes.

Between July and late September, 75 people were arrested along San Diego County's coast for closed-season fishing violations involving 313 lobsters, an official said.

"It's akin to the little Dutch boy at the dike," says Capt. Gordon Cribbs, a supervisor at the state Fish and Game office in Long Beach. Fewer than one out of 10 poachers is prosecuted, he estimated.

A year ago, four people were fined a total of $3,500 in San Diego when game wardens discovered 115 lobsters in secret boat compartments. Only three of the lobsters were of legal size — at least 3 1/4 inches long from behind the eyes to beginning of the tail.

The thievery "can be big business," said Lt. Bill Powell, supervisor for San Diego County's coast. Spiny lobsters sell for up to $10 a pound retail.

Surveillance is often necessary to catch the thieves, who use sophisticated gadgetry to hide their illegal hauls.

"You name it, we've seen it," Powell said. "One boat had a compartment wall controlled by an electromagnetic lock. Another had a huge compartment hollowed out under the seats. We found it when a warden spotted a lobster antenna sticking out of the seat."

Wardens have come up with a few wrinkles of their own to catch the rustlers. One is to smear trapped lobsters with a fluorescent paste: If the lobsters later turn up in a suspect's boat, they can be identified with the use of a special light.

Marine biologists fear the poaching will sharply reduce the number of lobsters in future decades, Powell said.

"The population seems to be doing OK (now)," he said, "but the problem is that it takes eight to 10 years for a lobster to reach legal size. So any undersize lobsters removed from the population can have a fairly significant impact" because they produce no offspring.

In California, spiny lobsters are most commonly found from Point Conception, 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, to the Mexican border. In season from October to March, they feed at night between 30 and 100 feet off shore. The traps of commercial fishermen are easy prey for poachers.

"Sometimes they (thieves) will follow a fisherman during the day and go back, find the buoys and traps. But about 90 percent of it is done at night," said Culbertson, who tends about 100 traps off San Diego.

"The scuba divers are probably the worst enemy. They take everything they can get out of the traps. Until the Fish and Game stops night diving, it's going to get worse."

Emotional Abuse Damaging

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Emotional abuse may cause more long-term damage to a child's mental health than physical abuse, says a family life specialist.

Most people think of child abuse in terms of severe physical punishment, such as a black eye, cut lip or broken bone, says Herbert G. Lingren of the University of Nebraska Extension Service.

Ridicule and intolerance, indifference, lack of appreciation and negative comparisons can be even more damaging to a child, Lingren says. So can ignoring the youngster or being inconsistent or severely restricting a child.

Parents should never say, "What a sloppy outfit," or "You dummy, you can do better than that," he adds.

Children need guidance and acceptance, he says. "Praising reasonable ideas and choices will help when you have to call a halt to some of their wilder schemes."

ARMS SALE PLOT

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Two military officers, including one who was an aide to Prime Minister Prem Tinsulananda when Prem was defense minister, have been indicted in an alleged plan to illegally ship arms from the United States to an undisclosed destination.

World Series Offers NBC A Hot Launching Pad

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Sohmer gets your attention. As NBC's chief cheerleader, he's made promotional points with a humorous jab for "Taxi," a sophisticated wink for "Remington Steele" and a dramatic heartbeat for "St. Elsewhere."
You may not like NBC's shows, but you're bound to notice its program plugs — particularly this week. When Sohmer was hired away from CBS last summer to head up NBC's promotional department, NBC was thinking of the World Series, when a nation tunes in for baseball and gets program pitches in between.

"The World Series is a wonderful launching pad for our shows," says Sohmer, NBC's vice president for advertising and creative services.
When Sohmer was creating national phenomenon, like the "Who Shot J.R.?" campaign that kept "Dallas" so hot in the summer of 1980, he had successful shows to boost. He could promote "The Dukes of Hazzard" with corpone and a hard sell. And "M-A-S-H" almost sold itself.
"You do promos that are faithful to the spirit of the show," Sohmer says.
At third-rated NBC, however, he has to sell things differently. He needs to persuade people to try NBC. "Just Watch Us Now" is the NBC slogan, compared to CBS' "Great Moments," emphasizing that network's No. 1 tradition.

For "Taxi," an award-winning comedy that was canceled by ABC and picked up by NBC, Sohmer tweaked ABC with the promotional tag line: "Same time, better station."
For a tongue-in-cheek show, like "Remington Steele," he offered a classy promotion, pegged to the relationship of stars Stephanie Zimbalist and Pierce Brosnan.
And for "St. Elsewhere," a hospital drama patterned after the network's popular "Hill Street Blues," he sold drama.
"People need to be intrigued," says Sohmer. "Give them one mouthful less than they want."
With few hit shows, NBC is promoting its distinctiveness — quality programming. Soon after ABC's Emmy award telecast, NBC was on the air with this Sohmer-produced promotion:
"NBC didn't bring you the Emmy awards, but our shows brought a lot of them home. Twenty three Emmys. Wow!"

That night, Sohmer had taken the unusual step of inserting live reports of NBC's Emmy successes into its Sunday night movie breaks. Minutes after Michael Conrad of "Hill Street Blues" was named best supporting actor, it was on NBC.

"News has a lot more sting when it's hot news," says Sohmer.
Having a national forum, like the World Series, is any snake-oil salesman's fantasy.

Fred Silverman, former NBC president, once predicted that NBC would be No. 1 by Christmas 1980 because of the plethora of plugs during the Olympic coverage the previous summer.
It didn't happen. The boycott knocked the Moscow Olympics off NBC. Silverman now is an independent producer, and NBC still is third.
The World Series, which alternates annually between ABC and NBC, couldn't have come at a better time for NBC. For one week, NBC is assured blockbuster ratings and a captive male audience, not easy to find since the National Football League strike.
"We're destitute not having the NFL," says Sohmer. "It's a tremendous vehicle for any male-oriented promotion." (NBC's Canadian Football League broadcasts get only 20-30 percent of the normal NFL audience.)
"St. Elsewhere" and

"Gavilan" will premiere after the World Series, so expect a big pitch for these shows between innings. On the mound for NBC: Steve Sohmer.

The most talked about movie in Germany is coming to America.

Movie Ratings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The movie industry says that an Opinion Research Corp. poll found that 66 percent of parents with children under age 12 think the rating system for movies is useful.
The system ranks the suitability of films by four degrees: G for general audiences; PG for parental guidance, R for restricted to children accompanied by adults; and X for no admission for children.

Carson Decides On 'No Contest'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Tonight Show" host Johnny Carson has changed his mind about fighting a drunken driving charge and has decided to plead no contest in order "not to prolong the matter," his publicist says.
According to a statement released Tuesday by publicist Jim Mahoney, attorney Robert Shapiro had "urged Carson to proceed to trial, having accumulated evidence and testimony in his favor."
"The entertainer has, however, concluded that it is in everyone's best interest not to prolong the matter, which has taken on the proportions of a media event," Mahoney added.
Shapiro will enter the no-contest plea Thursday in Beverly Hills Municipal Court, Mahoney said. A no-contest plea is virtually the same as a guilty plea, except that it may not be used against a defendant in any subsequent civil action.
Carson was stopped by Beverly Hills police Feb. 27 while driving home from a restaurant. Police gave him a test that showed the comedian had 0.16 percent blood-alcohol. The legal limit in California for driving is 0.10 percent.
Shapiro has said, however, that he believes the equipment may have malfunctioned because it had only recently been returned to service after repairs.
"There are a tremendous number of independent witnesses who observed Carson over a period of five hours and they are adamant that he wasn't intoxicated," Shapiro said after a hearing in July.
He had said he was sure he could get Carson acquitted as he had done for trial lawyer F. Lee Bailey in a similar case in San Francisco.
Carson, who celebrates his

NO DISMISSAL — The California Supreme Court has refused to throw out a studio lawsuit seeking $45 million from two former stars of the Dukes of Hazzard TV show, Thomas Wopat, left, and John R. Schneider. The action by Warner Bros. Inc., a counterclaim to a suit filed by the actors, claims they failed to turn up in June to begin work for the 1982-83 television. The court, in an order processed Tuesday, denied without comment the actors' request to dismiss the suit. (AP Laserphoto)

Only Two Haitians Left In Grim Detention Camp

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) - Sometime

soon, the last "Spellman Haitian" will leave Krome, a Avenue Detention Camp, a forbidding enclosure surrounded by double cyclone fences, concertina wire and sharp sawgrass that was their unhappy home for all too long.

Some 1,250 Haitians were packed into the camp's 15½ acres at the edge of the Everglades at this time last year. Now, it houses 90 undocumented aliens from 22 countries.

Advocate attorneys fought the government successfully last summer to gain a court order freeing 1,910 Haitians in 14 federal detention facilities - refugees now known to bureaucrats as "Spellman Haitians" for the judge who ordered their release.

These days, only 10 such Haitians remain incarcerated:
Two at Krome, three in other Florida facilities, three at Fort Allen, Puerto Rico, one in Lexington, Ky., and one in Brooklyn.

The refugees who do live at the Krome Avenue camp are waiting immigration decisions in a place that is vastly changed from last autumn.

"We've come a long way," says Immigration and Naturalization Service spokeswoman Beverly McFarland.
"We had tents a year ago."

Last October, the camp was burgeoning with Haitians who slept in closely-spaced cots. And the newcomers had trouble with the few available conveniences
- they washed in urinals in the belief they were tiny showers, and lathered with toothpaste they thought was soap, recalls Luis Pacheco, a U.S. Border Patrol agent.

By day, the refugees lined the fences, faces pressed against the wire, pleading to be freed, or languished on their cots in mind-numbing boredom. Men and women were segregated, including husbands and wives. There were no children at Krome - the few refugee children were sent elsewhere.

There were problems: Club-wielding riot guards put down a November disturbance; an estimated 200 Haitians fled in three mass escapes, disappearing into South Florida's 50,000-strong Haitian community.

Some refugees grew more daring during the long wait for the processing of immigration requests: There were 29 suicide attempts and several hunger strikes.

In late 1981, under pressure from state and local officials and civil rights leaders, the federal government halved the Krome population, to 550.
Hundreds of refugees were sent to federal facilities in Puerto Rico, Texas, Kentucky, Louisiana, West Virginia and New York.

And programs were begun at Krome to put the Haitians to work, to provide some recreation and to teach them some basic English - most knew only Creole.

Government contractors paid the Haitians $1 an hour to clear stones for higher fences at the camp, and spent some $3 million to install a proper sewage facility, to renovate the barracks and to build a basketball court, a soccer field and to put in game tables.

"Cosmetics," says Ms.
McFarland. "Now it looks really nice."

Once, the Haitian influx seemed unstoppable as would-be refugees packed homemade sailboats for the 700-mile journey from their impoverished island to South Florida. In 1980, Haitian arrivals averaged 1,259 per month.

In May 1981, the government instituted a strict policy of detaining Haitian refugees. And a year ago, the Reagan administration announced the U.S. Coast Guard would patrol the Windward Straits off Haiti and turn back all refugee boats. Before the patrols were in place, 33 Haitian bodies washed up on Hillsboro Beach after a wooden boat broke up in rough surf.

The patrols, the deaths and the detention policy, officials say, combined to all but shut off the Haitian influx: Only a half-dozen Haitians were detained in Miami last month.

Illegal aliens from as far away as Nigeria and Jordan now make up Krome's declining population, says Ms.

McFarland.

"Most are Bangladeshis (who are leaving West Germany because of economic downturn there) and Cubans who have entered the country illegally. We have about 20 Haitians, but only a couple are 'Spellmans,'" she said.

Meanwhile, the "Spellmans" - Haitians released under U.S. District Judge Eugene Spellman's order voiding the May 1981 government detention policy because there had not been proper notice of the policy change - are getting used to new lives.

"This is a thousand times better than Haiti," said Louis Jacques Paul. "We're very happy." Paul, who spoke through an interpreter, was among 20 refugees who gathered Sunday to mark their first 70 days of freedom under the sponsorship of the United Methodist Church. Of the 20, only three have jobs.

Spellman ordered the Haitians released to sponsors who would guarantee their availability for immigration hearings, and those few refugees still detained lack sponsors. The government maintains the Haitians are fleeing poverty - not political persecution - and are therefore not eligible for political asylum.

So far, none of the paroled
Haitians has been deported.
Many of the Creole-speaking immigrants have settled into Haitian exile colonies and work at low-paying jobs such as tarring roofs or washing dishes.

"But there'll be others.
Illegal aliens always will come, day or night. Still," bet Krome will never be like it was," Pacheco says, batting away a mosquito.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Give the Elderly a Fair Shake

I want to share with you an experience that I had, hoping that other people will benefit from it. I teach science at a high school and am moderately familiar with medical terms. I admit that I am a layman. Yet I feel that I have a good comprehension of this medical experience.

My father is 78. During the past few years, his memory became noticeably impaired.
In addition, his outlook and behavior patterns seemed to change. I and my family simply accepted that this was part of the process of growing old.
Two doctors who had been taking care of him believed that his behavioral disorders were sufficiently great for us to consider institutionalization.

Fortunately, we found another physician who took an entirely different approach to the problem and came to the conclusion that my father's behavior changes were due to a combination of drugs he had been taking and an overlooked kidney condition. With treatment he now is back at home with us and is in as good health as he was a year ago.

I wonder if a great many elderly people are just not given a decent break because it is assumed that all their symptoms must be attributed to their age. - Mr. J.W., N.Y.
Dear Mr. W.:

I am grateful to you for your explicit presentation of a personal problem that has so many important overtones.
Your letter came at the same time that an excellent paper was presented in the Journal of the American Medical Association on August 27, 1982.
The article, "Diagnostic Errors in the Evaluation of Behavioral Disorders," is written by Dr. Robert S. Hoffman from the Medical-Psychiatric Unit and Consultation-Liaison Service,

St. Mary's Hospital and Medical Center and the University of California School of Medicine, San Francisco.

Dr. Hoffman, a psychiatrist, undertook to study 215 patients who were referred for neuropsychiatric evaluation.
Many of these patients had behavioral changes and gave evidence of emotional variations that made living with them extremely difficult.
Families were distressed by their inability to cope with the changes of attitude of the patient.

Dr. Hoffman did not take for granted the history and the previous diagnosis of mental illness that was made before he saw the patients.
Astounding statistics evolved from this study.

"Of patients referred with a tentative diagnosis of dementia, 63 percent were found to have treatable conditions." All of these patients were given detailed physical workups in addition to a neuropsychiatric assessment.

Dr. Hoffman said, "A striking finding was the frequency of behavioral syndromes due to prescribed (non-psychiatric) medications that were not suspected at the time of referral by the prescribing physician."

The astute observations of Dr. Hoffman should alert doctors everywhere to the possibility that patients labeled with the diagnosis of mental disorder must be more carefully evaluated from the physical and emotional point of view. Only in this way can we offer the elderly the greatest possibility of recognizing and reversing diagnoses that do not exist.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Merchandise Is Piling Up On U.S.-Mexico Border

By STEVE BREWER
Associated Press Writer
EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Goods ranging from machinery to clothing are piling up in El Paso warehouses because of Mexico's economic crisis, which has brought the flow of merchandise across the border to a halt.

"We're sitting on a powder keg," said Pete Araujo of ABACO Customhouse Brokers which deals in such diverse items as stereos and automobiles. "I'm sure every broker in town has some sort of receivables we're going to have trouble collecting. They just can't raise the dollars."

The brokers handle imports and exports for commercial and industrial customers who find it easier to pay a brokerage fee than do the complex paperwork and warehousing themselves.

Since the Aug. 5 devaluation of the battered peso, the Mexican government has issued a variety of regulations aimed at keeping American dollars in the country. Mexico needs the currency to pay interest on its $80 billion foreign debt — the largest among developing countries.

But the freeze on dollars has disrupted business along the border and has left Mexican merchants searching for a way to pay their bills in the United States.

"I can't accept Mexican currency," said Rudy Miles Jr., head of an El Paso brokerage firm. "Before, if I had a shipment coming in for a Mexican buyer, I used to give them credit. Now, I say bring me cash or a check in dollars."

After the Mexican government allowed the peso to float on international money markets, the currency plummeted from about 49 to the dollar to as low as 150 to the dollar along the border. Last month the government set an artificial rate of 70 to the dollar for most exchanges.

The problem is that the newly nationalized banks won't distribute dollars to the businessmen at that rate or any other rate.

Meanwhile, the exchange rate for the peso continues to fluctuate north of the border. El Paso banks have been exchanging pesos at an average of 90 to the dollar.

"The Mexicans either can't get the dollars to pay their storage over here and get their goods released or they don't have enough pesos to make up the difference in exchange," Araujo said.

Most of the waiting goods were ordered before the devaluation with the stipulation that the buyers would pay within 30 to 60 days. But those deadlines are rapidly approaching and many buyers are having the warehouses return the goods because they don't have the dollars to pay for them.

"A lot of merchandise in El Paso already has been returned because they (the buyers) were afraid they couldn't get the dollars to pay for them," said Joe Quezada, manager of Martin Brokerage. "The suppliers are glad to take their merchandise back rather than taking a chance on not getting paid."

Marie Tarvin-Garland, owner of Sun City Warehouses Inc., said the backup at her warehouse won't last much longer. She said businesses that placed orders before the devaluation have claimed them and "they've stopped ordering."

The distribution division of her business has been hurt the worst. Usually, businesses can consolidate loads of goods and cut shipping costs, with the warehouse distributing goods on arrival.

"Now, rather than consolidate their loads, they're having to buy and ship immediately, which has really cut down on distribution," said Wayne Porter, Ms. Tarvin-Garland's warehouse manager. "We usually average about 65 to 70 trailers a month. Now, it's dropped to about five a week."

For other brokers, the problem is how long to hold goods when the buyers cannot pay.

"We'll probably hold onto it for four to six weeks and then we'll tell them (the suppliers) if they don't want it back, I'll have to auction it off or sell it," Miles said. "It's not the fault of the Mexican businessmen that they can't pay, but we have no choice."

Araujo said the dilemma could strain relations between the brokers and the border businessmen, who have been operating on a handshake for years.

"One guy owes us $12,000 and he can't get dollars right now," he said. "So we're left with what to do — release it to him as a friend or hold on to it until he gets the dollars."

It's hard to tell the guy that he can't take his machinery out of here without those extra pesos."

All of the brokers say a solution must come soon from the Mexican government.

"Every time there's been a devaluation before, everything came to a complete halt for six to eight weeks and then it would get back to normal," Miles said. "When there's no exchange rate, things can't get back to normal."

Quezada, who said his business has dropped as much as 60 percent, is hoping the new Mexican policies will change when Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado takes over as president Dec. 1.

"In the meantime, there's no cash flow," he said. "It's scary, to say the least."

Fat Soldiers Lose Weight

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (AP) — Of 125 obese soldiers selected for a weight-loss program, 124 shed excess pounds and one reverted to his mother's cooking, the base surgeon says.

"We try to educate the troops that if they go to a party and drink a six-pack, they more than consume their 500-calorie meal right there," said Maj. Harold Timboe of the 82nd Airborne Division, explaining the "Lifestyle" program started in March.

The only soldier who didn't lose weight was on an extended leave and spent it eating at his mother's, Timboe said.

Soldiers in the program found themselves on 500-calorie meals taken at special mess halls.

High-calorie foods such as hamburgers or milkshakes suddenly made way for fruits and vegetables, high-protein salads, baked or boiled meats and steamed or boiled vegetables, Timboe said.

"This is a very good program," said Staff Sgt. Robert Benavides. "I've lost about 31 pounds since March, and I want to lose 15 more."

Troops also were counseled weekly and educated to learn to count calories, Timboe said.

The Army also tried to get spouses involved, encouraging them to learn more about nutrition and the preparation of low-calorie meals, said Timboe.

AWAITING DELIVERY — Crates of machinery bound for Ciudad Juarez sit in the yard of ABACO Customhouse Brokers in El Paso. Uncle Sam May Collect On Old Debts

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Uncle Sam, hard-pressed for cash, is about to get tough with some of the millions who owe the government billions and aren't paying up. The Office of Management and Budget estimates $40 billion — an average of $400 per taxpayer — is owed the government. The figure includes everything from delinquent taxes to unpaid student loans to overpayments of Social Security benefits. The interest alone on those overdue debts costs taxpayers around $15 million a day.

"There's hardly a government agency that is not holding delinquent accounts," said Jerry Bridges of OMB. "Who owes it? Every segment of our society. I can't think of a segment over 6 years old that isn't involved."

But the gravy train may be slowing.

This week, President Reagan is expected to sign a law making it easier for the government to collect some of its debts. It will allow some agencies to turn over their debts to professional collectors and to notify credit bureaus when somebody falls behind in payments to the government.

The legislation was approved by Congress with no fanfare and little dissent. Its chief sponsor, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., estimates it will bring in $20 billion over the next five years.

Even before the bill was passed, most federal agencies were stepping up their debt-collection efforts. For example, the offices that administer numerous government loan programs have toughened screening of applicants. The military services are changing payroll operations to uncover cheats. The Internal Revenue Service is using automation and boosting the size of its staff to increase collection of past-due taxes.

The new legislation has some loopholes even before it takes effect. For example, the IRS will not be turning over any of its overdue accounts to private debt-collection services. And none of the procedures will help the government collect overpayments of Social Security, welfare or Medicare benefits.

Of the $40 billion in delinquent accounts, OMB estimates, $23 billion is in taxes, $14 billion in overdue loans and $3 billion in overpayments to beneficiaries, including Social Security.

Most of the overdue loans and overpayments are divided about equally among six agencies:

— Agriculture, for rural conservation, farmers' housing and crop loans.

— Education, for student loans and for college housing.

— Health and Human Services, for loans to medical students and for medical facilities and for overpayments to Social Security recipients.

— Housing and Urban Development, for loans for single- and multi-family homes.

— Small Business Administration, for business expansion and disaster loans for homeowners and businesses.

— Veterans Administration, for housing loans, loans against servicemen's insurance policies and for overpayment of education benefits under the GI bill.

Most people who are delinquent in their tax payments are those who don't pay the amount due when they file their returns. Others are added to the list after IRS audits their returns and concludes more taxes are owed.

IRS, which under the new legislation will have to continue to do its own collecting, generally has six years to collect a delinquent tax account. The agency is reluctant to declare an account uncollectable.

"If you're paying your past-due taxes on the installment plan, you lose your job, have no prospect of getting another one and have no assets, we may write it off," explained IRS spokesman Larry Batdorf. "But you still owe it until the six years expires."

Dreams Of A Monument
In Oklahoma

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
GRANITE, Okla. (AP) —
Bill Willis is a granite carver who has a dream: He sees a monument of granite 116 feet tall and 126 feet wide with the chiseled faces of the Indian leader Sequoyah, humorist Will Rogers and athlete Jim Thorpe looking right down Main Street.

A red rock mountain at the edge of this southwestern Oklahoma town may seem to be an unlikely spot for a world-famous tourist attraction, but that's where Willis sees his Giants of the Great Plains.

"Each figure will be 108 feet tall," he says. "The presidents on Mount Rushmore are only 60 feet tall. Stone Mountain in Georgia is 90 feet tall, and that includes the horses.

"When it is finished, it will be the largest granite mosaic in the world."

And that's what makes Willis' project different from the faces of Washington, Jefferson, Theodore Roosevelt and Lincoln that stare from the granite cliff in the Black Hills of South Dakota and the horseback figures of Confederate leaders Jefferson Davis, Robert E. Lee and Stonewall Jackson on Stone Mountain.

While the Mount Rushmore and Stone Mountain memorials were carved from the rock, Willis is engraving the likenesses of the three famous Oklahomans on 2-foot-square blocks of granite. Each block then will be fitted together for the finished monument.

He has the bust of Rogers finished and said he hoped to begin work on the bottom part of the monument "when it gets a little cooler." The project is being held up right now by a lack of money, Willis said.

"We've received $20,000 in tax-free donations and my dad and I have put in $25,000," he said. "Contributors can get their name engraved on a panel outside the figures for $25 each, or a family can take a whole panel for $1,000.

"We need at least $1 million more to finish it. We envisioned it as a $1 million project when we began, but with inflation, it's gone up."

Willis said plans call for a small park at the base of the mountain and a zigzag road to the top. "We hope to build a walkway across Main Street, with a little patio, where people can pose to have their picture taken with the giants."

Everything will be free, he says.

Willis estimated the 3,416 pieces of granite that will make up the monument will weigh 512,400 pounds. It will rest on the granite mountain and will be supported by a steel framework between 10 to 20 feet wide at the bottom and 10 feet wide at the top.

There will be a separation between each 2-foot block "so the monument will be self-cleaning and also to provide a wind easement. We've worked with an architectural engineer, and he has designed it to withstand winds of 160 mph, with a safety factor," Willis said.

Willis got into the giants business because of his reputation in granite engraving. His portraits on granite hang in the Wrestling Hall of Fame in Stillwater, Okla., and the Greer County Museum in nearby Mangum.

Willis said the idea for the giants came because the local tourist organization was looking for a way to attract visitors.

"We anticipate we could draw a million visitors a year to the giants," Willis said. "And all the studies indicate the average visitor spends $25 a day.

"We're talking about a lot of money from a free tourist attraction."

His models were the Charles Banks Wilson portraits of Sequoyah, Rogers and Thorpe that hang in the state Capitol.

"I had to increase the size from 15 inches to 108 feet," he said.

Willis said the portraits were enlarged photographically to 9 feet. Then he drew the photographs off onto 8-inch-square chart paper. What was drawn on each eighth-inch square went onto the 2-foot blocks of granite.

Hermit Of 'Dismal Key' Finding Self

Associated Press Writer
DISMAL KEY, Fla. (AP) — In this maze of 10,000 islands hugging the southwestern coast of Florida, there is only one permanent resident. He's called "the hermit of Dismal Key."

Finding Al Seely's ramshackle house isn't easy. The best way is by small boat, with fishing guides from the Port of the Islands resort at Marco.

The water route, through often shallow channels and bayous, is twisty, risky and confusing; every island is covered with thick mangrove trees and looks alike.

Six miles south and around an unmarked turn between two islands, Seely's makeshift dock comes into view. By the time one ties up, the white-haired and bearded "hermit" will be at dockside with "Digger," a scraggly mongrel he picked up on the mainland nine years ago.

The 65-year-old Seely provides a history of his 16-acre island during the short walk across a clearing to his home 100 yards from the water's edge.

"Dismal Key is about 2,000 years old and consists of 90 percent oyster shells put here by the Indians," says Seely. The island has an altitude of 17 feet, making it the highest in the chain.

"That's a Royal Poinciana, but notice the native orchids growing from the branches," he says, describing the trees. "And that one is a Gumbo Limbo. I call it a 'tourist tree' — It's always red and peeling."

A cement and stone cistern is his only water supply.

His front door barely hangs together — torn screening flapping in the warm breeze and doing little to keep bugs out. Painted over the entrance are the words of naturalist John Burroughs: "I came here to find myself; it's so easy to get lost in the world."

There are two large rooms to Seely's house. "There was another one in back, but it sort of collapsed," he chuckles.

The main room in the 75-year-old structure serves as living room, kitchen and the studio where he paints. It includes a three-burner gas stove, desk, several chairs, pots and pans, a sink without running water and shelves stuffed with paperback books and a set of encyclopedias. A single kerosene lamp provides the only light he has at night. A portable radio keeps him in touch with the world and a wind-up clock paces time for him.

The other room is his bedroom. Neatly folded on an extra bed are his clothes, which he washes by hand. The warped wooden floors are swept clean.

One modern luxury Seely allows himself is a portable toilet.

Seely, who doesn't have a television set or a CB radio, is not too concerned with what goes on outside his island.

"To hell with it," he says, admitting he left "civilization" 15 years ago because of a drinking problem.

"I figured if I lived on an island I wouldn't be able to get it," he says.

Born in Athol, Mass., Seely was a musician during his early years and served in Europe with the U.S. Army in World War II. His first wife died and his second marriage ended in divorce after he came to Florida in 1953.

He was a music therapist at a state mental hospital and drove cabs before moving to the Ten Thousand Islands.

"I got so bored at first, I started painting," he says. His art supplements his small military disability pension.

Seely's paintings are mostly island scenes and movie stars he copies from magazines given him by visiting fishermen and boaters, who sometimes purchase a canvas before leaving his island.

"I get anywhere from $20 to $80," he said, "depending on what kind of boat they came on and how bad they want one. Hell, this stuff isn't art, but everytime they see the painting they'll remember the old nut."

He rarely cooks. "Digger and I eat mostly canned food and I take lots of vitamins."

RECIPES FROM THE A&P KITCHEN

LOW CHOLESTEROL BROCCOLI VINAGRETTE

1 large bunch broccoli
4 tablespoons pimento

2 tablespoons onion (minced)
1 teaspoon fresh minced chives

Remove leaves and cut off large stem pieces from broccoli. Cut up remaining flowers and stems into 2-3 inch pieces. Boil in small amount of water until crisp-tender, not limp. Place in baking dish with flowers all going one way for eye appeal. Combine pimento, onion and chives and sprinkle over broccoli.

POUR VINAGRETTE DRESSING WITH DILL WEED OVER ALL AND ALLOW TO MARINATE FOR SEVERAL HOURS. This looks especially attractive in a red serving dish.

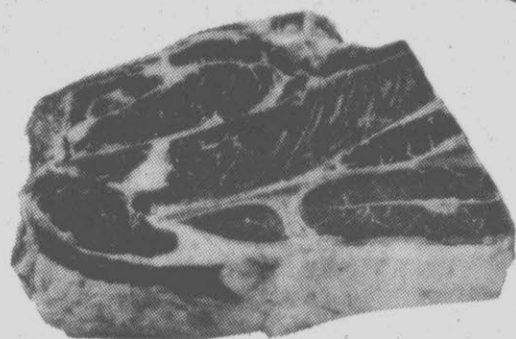

LOW CHOLESTEROL DRESSING

1 tablespoon salt
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice

1 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1/2 teaspoon brown mustard
1/2 teaspoon garlic (minced)
1/2 cup water
2 cups corn oil

Combine all ingredients in a jar with cap. Shake until blended. This can be used as a salad dressing or marinade for many items, either as is or with added spices.

FOR VINAGRETTE DRESSING REMOVE 1/2 CUP LOW CHOLESTEROL DRESSING AND ADD 1/2 TEASPOON DILL WEED.

Volcano Is Giving More Than Taking

By HARALD MOLLERSTROM

Associated Press Writer VEST MANNAEY JAR, Iceland (AP) — This bustling fishing port, partly buried by a 1973 volcanic eruption, is prospering again thanks to the side effects of the massive lava flow.

What the Helgafell volcano on Heimaey Island ruined during its five-month eruption, it is steadily making up to the islanders. Not only did the lava improve the harbor — the island's lifeline — it also provided a unique source of fuel.

Professor Thorbjorn Sigurgeirsson says the volcano has supplied the islanders with cheap energy for a decade — heating 98 percent of their homes as well as the fish-farming plant — and "if you include the improvement of the harbor, I would say the islanders may break even with Helgafell."

Locals called the harbor "where the bones lie," because in this century alone, 121 fishermen have died trying to navigate it.

The entrance was 800 yards wide, wide open to easterly and southeasterly storms. Trawlers had to seek shelter on the western side of the island when the winds blew.

Now the entrance, partially blocked by lava, is only 170 yards wide and gives perfect asylum to threatened trawlers. "I'll say we couldn't have a better harbor," said Tourist Council official Pall Helgasson. "Now there is not even a need for a pier."

Helgafell's eruption in the early hours of Jan. 23, 1973, preceded by two powerful earthquakes, surprised islanders who had rested confident in the knowledge that the mountain had lain dormant for more than 5,000 years.

Lava buried more than 200 houses and massive quantities of volcanic ash seriously damaged another 200.

Most of that is restored now. A new residential area has been built in the western part of town, the islanders taking the precaution of building everything in reinforced concrete.

As a reminder of the volcano's violence, authorities left unrepaired several severely damaged houses at the edge of the lava field.

The houses also remind islanders of their good fortune when the volcano blew. Because the island's fishing fleet was moored in the harbor to ride out a storm, its 5,200 people were evacuated within hours. The fishermen and personnel of the U.S. air base at Keflavik, 30 minutes away by air on the main island of Iceland, joined in the rescue effort.

The lava first crept eastward, toward the tiny island's interior. After a week it switched course, threatening the harbor. Sigurgeirsson, a professor of geophysics at Reykjavik University, suggested using water to stop it.

He said the evaporating water would extract enough heat to solidify the front of the wall of molten rock, acting as a barrier to the lava behind. It worked, just in time to save the harbor.

The original heat content of the lava was equal to that produced by 100 million barrels of oil. It was enormous amount of energy to find on their doorstep, and the islanders began to speculate on ways to exploit it.

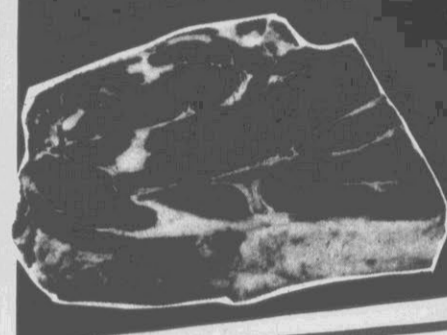

Steam clouds dotted the lava field, the vapor invading even the old lava on which the town is built. Steam also found its way into the basements of houses at the edge of the new field, saturating them with vapor as hot as 212 degrees Fahrenheit.

This was a bit more than the islanders had bargained for. But it did offer possibilities for experimentation. "Sigurgeirsson was assigned to develop a method to exploit the heat economically," Helgasson said.

'Lowe's Low Payment Credit Terms

Your credit must be satisfactory. Lowe's cash price does not include sales tax. The monthly payment & deferred payment price include sales tax at 4%. If sales tax is different in your area, monthly payment & deferred payment price will vary slightly. Insurance is available, but not included in our figures. Delivery charges, if any, are not included.

LOWE'S
Your Household Word

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price, or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price, except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown can be ordered for you.
