Shultz Issues Hard-Line Statement

U.S. Warns U.N.: Keep Israel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States threatened Saturday to halt payments to the United Nations and withdraw from the U.N. General Assembly if the assembly votes to expel Israel.

"Such action would do grave damage to the entire United Nations system and it would hurt us all," Secretary of State George P. Shultz said in a strongly worded statement issued Saturday. He called on U.N. members to "turn aside such initiatives."

"If Israel were excluded from the General Assembly, the United States would withdraw from participation in the assembly and would withhold payments to the United Nations, until Israel's right to participate is restored," the statement said.

It reinforced a similar threat voiced Wednesday by U.S. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick, who said American diplomats are employing a "full-court press" in lobbying against the ouster campaign, mounted by Iraq and Libya against Israel in the 157-member assembly.

U.N. observers have said hardline Arab nations succeeded last week in getting a creditials vote on the matter postponed until Oct. 25, to allow them more time to swing African, Asian and other Third World countries behind their drive.

In the statement, Shultz also said the United States would recall its delegation to the U.N.-affiliated International Telecommunication Union Conference in Nairobi, Kenya, and end further payments to it if the expulsion attempt is approved.

Just three weeks ago, U.S. delegates walked out of a U.N.-affiliated International Atomic Energy Agency conference in Vienna, Austria, following a vote to deny Israel credentials.

"The United States views these threats with grave concern," Shultz said of the proposals to exclude Israel. "We will take ... action in other United Nations organizations if there are similar moves."

The secretary added that the United States is withholding all further payments to the IAEA pending a reassessment of U.S. participation. The agency is a U.N. organization that polices the use of nuclear technology around the world.

Susan Pittman, a State Department press officer, said the United States, which contributes about 25 percent of the United Nations' annual budget, currently owes the world body $149.4 million for the balance of the year.

"The IAEA is owed $8.5 million for the balance of the year," the amount now suspended, Miss Pittman said. She said a U.S. contribution of $2.4 million is due the ITU for 1983 sometime before next Jan. 1.

American officials said any move to withdraw from the General Assembly would not affect U.S. participation on the 15-member U.N. Security Council or any other U.N. body, such as UNESCO or UNICEF, in which there is "no wrongful action against a legitimate member."

But, one official cautioned, "as you can see, we are obviously taking this very seriously."

Shultz said efforts to exclude Israel from U.N. bodies and agencies "defeat the very purpose of the United Nations — to resolve disputes among nations — by creating further conflict and division."

Democrats Show Party Unity At District Rally

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

KINSTON — More than 500 persons — a standing-room only crowd in the hall where the meeting was held — attending the 1st Congressional District Democratic rally here heard Gov. Jim Hunt, Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville and other party leaders blast the present Republican administration in Washington.

Hunt, who told the gathering Friday night that he didn't get to hear President Ronald Reagan's broadcast to the nation earlier in the week, asked: "Did he think things were getting better?"

Saying "of course the president has a great program," Hunt asked: "Do you know what his program was called? The Economic Recovery Act of 1981.

"I would ask you: When ... where is the economic recovery? Wall Street maybe, but Main Street it is not.

"In this district (the 21 counties of the First Congressional District)," Hunt said "six counties have over 10 percent unemployment ... Bertie, Craven, Martin, Northampton, Tyrell, Washington," And a plant closing has just been announced in Hertford County, the governor said.

"Are you seeing economic recovery on the farms? The tobacco program is the only thing that's saving us, thanks to Walter Jones and other good Democrats.

"Are you seeing economic recovery in small business? There are more small businesses going bankrupt than at any time in history.

"Are you seeing economic recovery in your family budget?" Hunt asked.

"It just doesn't make since to 'stay on this course,'" Hunt said, citing Republican television advertisements which urge voters to "stay the course."

"The Democratic Party is the party that can change the course and put us on the right track once again," Hunt emphasized. The issue, he said, is "who's going to get us out" of the economic slump. "America is in a very severe situation. Do you really think the Republicans are going to get us out of it?"

There are more than 22,600 "people unemployed in the 1st District," Hunt said. "Do the Republicans care about that? Do they really care about small business?"

The Republican Party, Hunt suggested "is the party of Wall Street," while the Democrat Party "is the party of Main Street."

"Let's don't let the Congressional Club in 1982 buy the elections in this state," he said.

Introducing Secretary of State Thad Eure, whom Hunt called "the oldest rat in the Democratic barm," the governor said "the real truth is this man is a great North Carolinian. He knows North Carolina better than anybody else does."

"Ain't it nice to be a Democrat?" Eure asked. "Isn't it nice to be represented in the Congress of the United States by such a fine Democrat as Walter Jones?

"Isn't it nice to have the best Democratic governor in the United States come and address this rally? Two years from now, we're going to help him lick the Congressional Club. We're going to put Jim Hunt in Jessie Helms' place."

Urging Democrats to vote in the Nov. 2 election, Eure said, "We've got to stop the apathy and crucify the Congressional Club. Unity is the name of this campaign."

"I'm indeed honored to be the congressman from this district," Jones told the rally, pointing out that there are more than 198,600 registered Democratic voters in the 1st District, compared to 27,888 registered Republicans.

NAACP Mapping Drive For Blacks In Business

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Black leaders will talk with officials of utility companies and food store chains in North Carolina in an effort to increase black involvement in business, NAACP leaders said Saturday.

"This program is the most important this organization has been involved in since we were marching in the streets," Kelly Alexander Jr., chairman of the national Fair Share Council, said during the NAACP state convention.

"What we're doing is targeting specific industries in the Southeast and negotiating," he said. "We want more blacks in senior management, more business for black suppliers, more corporate board seats and more philanthropic contributions."

L.R. Byrd, southeast director of the Fair Share Council, said: "It's very simple. We are going to do business with people who do business with us."

Fair Share is designed to use black purchasing power to move major corporations a step beyond affirmative action, said Alexander. By negotiating with corporate officials, the NAACP wants the private sector to give blacks a full share of business, management reponsibliity and wealth.

"It's been said that the business of civil rights in the 1980s is business," program director Fred Rasheed told a seminar of branch leaders Saturday. "We as a people spend a substantial amount of money with major corporations. And while we picked the cotton and helped create the wealth, we are still disenfranchised from our share of the wealth."

Alexander said Fair Share is now focusing on basic industries such as utility firms, food store chains and banks. Fair Share has begun talks with Duke Power Co., Piedmont Natural Gas, and the Harris Teeter, Buy-Lo, Foodtown and Piggly-Wiggly grocery chains. Harris Teeter is headquartered in Charlotte, and Foodtown main offices are in Statesville.

He said black spending is vital to nearly every major corporation in the country. Those dollars will be used as a lever to gain concessions from industry, he said.

"In Kinston and Lenoir County, blacks make up just under 40 percent of all food purchases," said Alexander. "That means grocery stores in those areas can't exist without black purchases. And we're now talking to those corporations."

His figures show that of $913 million in total 1981 retail sales in Fayetteville, $292 million were black purchases. This includes 31 percent of all food, 31 percent of automotive buying, 31 percent of furniture and furnishings, and 31 percent of general merchandise. Similar proportions were shown in other parts of the state.

Reagan Urges Jobless To Be Patient

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan told jobless Americans on Saturday to "hang in there" because the economy is getting better.

Reagan accused opponents of his program of exploiting the fear that comes in troubled times, and he recalled the famous line from Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1933 inaugural address, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

In his weekly radio address, which itself is reminiscent of Roosevelt's broadcast "fireside chats," Reagan said, "Unemployment such as we have now is a terrible thing, but it may not be our No. 1 problem. Our No. 1 problem may be fear — fear that we're adrift, that there is no plan, that no one is doing anything to make things better."

"Hang in there," said Reagan, who graduated from college and went looking for work in the depths of the Great Depression. "I know from personal experience how tough it can be, but don't give up. The time for confidence, the time for courage, is now,"

Although he said he didn't mean "to minimize the very real plight of the unemployed," Reagan suggested the government's jobless figures may not be as bad as they appear.

"When we're told over and over again, as we have been in the last few days, that as of Sept. 25, 682,500 new claims for unemployment insurance were filed," Reagan asked, "shouldn't we also be told that at the same time, 618,000 left the list?"

Although the Labor Department's weekly claims figures do indicate that 618,000 people left the unemployment compensation rolls that week, that does not mean they found jobs. Some may have gone to work, but most simply exhausted their regular 26 weeks of unemployment compensation checks and ceased drawing benefit checks. The department's weekly publication of new claims figures, however, does not survey those leaving the relief rolls to determine why they stopped getting benefits.

Reagan cautioned his audience not to listen to his political opponents, whom he called "those crepe hangers who are howling like a dog sitting on a sharp rock."

"They howl," Reagan said, "but they haven't proposed one thing they'd do to make things better.

"The truth is things are being done, with no help from them, and things are getting better."

Giving the Democratic response to Reagan's speech, Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey acknowledged that interest rates and inflation have fallen, but said the price has been too high.

"Businesses are failing at the fastest rate in 50 years," he said. "Over 30 percent of our nation's productive capacity lies idle. Most companies have slashed their capital investment budget. So much for rebuilding America.

"And 11 million Americans are out of work. That's more Americans unemployed than at any time since the Great Depression, and those are not statistics, but men and women suffering because they can't find a job. In contrast to the 19 million new jobs created in the 1970's, over 3 million Americans have moved to unemployment lines in the last 13 months."

Speaking from Camp David, his mountaintop retreat in Maryland, the president told his listeners, "Thanks to you, we're nearing the end of a long and painful ordeal."

"As for the 11 million Americans still out of work, they will find jobs as the economy continues to heal," he said.

"We've already floored inflation and sent those high interest rates reeling," Reagan said, "and as surely as single-digit inflation started those interest rates tumbling, getting those interest rates back down to single digits will drive unemployment back down to single digits, too. Once we've done that, we will have delivered a knock-out blow to this recession."

Bradley said he and other Democratic senators are advocating "a sweeping tax reform that would make our income tax system fairer, simpler, and more efficient, with fewer loopholes and lower rates for all Americans."

Homes For Sale Being Shown Again

By MELVIN LANG
Reflector Staff Writer

Reductions in interest rates for VA and FHA home mortgages spurred a renewed interest in homebuying in Greenville last week but lenders and consumers essentially stood still in other financing areas despite continued declines in the prime rate.

Federally backed mortgage rates fell to 12 percent — the lowest in several months and more than 2 percent below the average commercial home loan.

The result: "That phone is ringing again, and that is a pleasant sound to hear," said Ann Bass of Century 21 A. Bass Realty.

"Activity has increased," said Jeannette Cox, who operates a real estate agency bearing her name. "Other agencies have been calling to show homes, too."

Ms. Bass, who said calls to her agency were up by 75 percent last week, noted that "people are calling in and going out to look at houses. They don't want to get on a contract yet, because they want to see if the rates will fall again."

But she also reported that people who had contracts pending with 14 percent or higher interests rates "are calling, saying 'get our loans ready,' so they can get the lower rate."

One bright spot, she noted, was that those "people who have had their homes on the market are now showing them."

New interest in homebuying was also stronger at the Duffus Realty Co., and spokesman Jack Duffus predicted business will improve if the rates remain at the reduced level.

Roscoe King of First Federal Savings & Loan, which does not handle VA or FHA loans, said there has been little change recently in requests for conventional home mortgages. "We're looking forward to seeing this thing change," he said.

Auto loans, typical of instalment loans, so far have not been affected by the falling prime rate.

Dennis Alexander, city executive for the Bank of North Carolina, said the interest rate on consumer loans is moderating and is down by as much as 2 percent from the level two to three months ago. There has been no change in the last week or so, he said, but there "possibly may be some later."

The Bank of North Carolina currently charges 14½ percent interest on auto loans, he said.

Tom Garrett, finance officer at Phelps Chevrolet, said there has been little change in financing rates or in inquiries by the public in recent days. He said GMAC, the financing agency for General Motors, charges about 15½ percent interest on loans for new cars.

Interest rates on consumer loans usually decline at a slower pace than the prime or interest rates on some other fast-paced market items. The reductions, if maintained, eventually will reach all levels of loans, including conventional home mortgages and automoble loans.

Lenders say some homeowners with variable-rate mortgages may be in line for reductions now when their mortgages are reviewed. The amount of reduction, if any, would depend on the basis, usually a financial index, used in setting the interest rate.

A drop of even 1 percentage point in the interest rate can make a substantial difference over the life of a home mortgage. Typically, a $50,000 mortgage written for 30 years at 15 percent would require a monthly payment of about $632. The same mortgage, at 14 percent, would have a monthly payment of about $592.

Rally ...

Jones said "the Republican Party, if nothing else, is full of slogans."

President Richard Nixon's slogan, Jones said, was "take crime off the streets."

"He did that," Jones suggested, and took it "right into the White House."

Reagan, Jones said, "ran on a ... balanced budget. He got what he asked for" from the 1981 Congress.

"What do we have? A projected budget deficit for fiscal 1983 of $150 billion. That is Reaganomics with his own budget," Jones said.

"If you know where this administration is going, please let me know. I'm in Washington and I don't (know)."

According to Jones, "We are dependant in this 1st District on agriculture." Two years ago when Jimmy Carter was president, corn was selling for $3.48 a bushel. "Today it was $2.09," he said.

"Soybeans in October 1980 were selling for $8.06. Today they were $5.06. So what do we have?

Jones suggested a "national work program ... such as the WPA (Works Progress Administration founded under President Franklin D. Roosevelt)," would do much to help the nation's economy and said "I'm going to propose in in the next Congress."

"I'd vote to terminate all foreign aid until we get this country back on its feet," Jones said.

"Is this administration going to say shut up to the unemployed ... old people ... the sick ... the disabled?" the congressman asked.

In addition to Hunt, Jones and Eure, other party notibles at the rally included Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten, State Auditor Ed Renfrow, Labor Commissioner John Brooks, Department of Administration Secretary Jane Patterson and Corrections Secretary James Woodard.

In a press confrence before the rally, Hunt told newsmen that he feels that some Republican incumbents seeking re-election in November are "in more trouble than they are willing to admit."

"I think the Democrats have the issues going for them. The Democrats have the issues. Whether they will use them effectively is another question, " Hunt Said. "But I believe it will be a good year for the Democrats."

Commenting on the arrest of Democratic Congressman Ike Andrews recently in Raleigh on charges of driving under the influence, Hunt said, "I think it's hurt him some."

However, Hunt said, "I think he (Andrews) can win if he works hard enough"

Hunt said he feels his stand on the PCB landfill in Franklin County would not hurt his future political career. "The only thing we could do was put them in a landfill ... to protect all the people," the governor said.

Commenting on the tobacco program, Jones said at the press confrence that many people "may think the tobacco program is guaranteed." However, the congressman said, support of the program is "a continuing fight."

Jones termed the 8-cents per pack cigarette tax placed on tobacco by the Congress this year "a punitive tax."

Hunt noted that "if sales are cut by 4 percent" as some have predicted, the new 8-cents tax is expected to "cost 1,800 jobs in North Carolina," and cut $10 million from the state treasury.

A 10 percent reduction in sales, Hunt said, would "double the loss."

United Nations Charter," he said.

Shultz said the recent moves to oust Israel also threaten progress being made toward bringing peace to the Middle East, a goal to which he said the United States and virtually all U.N. members are committed.

"It would be a tragic irony, if such moves against Israel in the United Nations system were to succeed just at the time where there is renewed hope for progress in the Middle East," he said.

Miss Pittman said that if the General Assembly does vote to expel Israel, the United States will consider exactly what U.S. contributions will be withheld.

The U.S. contribution helps make up the U.N. regular program budget which funds the ongoing activities of the organization.

These include the costs of maintaining the General Assembly, the Security Council, the U.N. secretariat and such other programs as five regional economic commissions, the U.N. Conference on Trade and Development, the U.N. Industrial Development Organization, the U.N. Human Rights Commission, and U.N. public information activities.

Man Sought In Tylenol Deaths Tied To Murder

CHICAGO (AP) — A man being sought in the Tylenol-cyanide killings case has a history of psychiatric disorders and his fingerprints have been linked by police to a murder in Kansas City, according to reports published Saturday.

Authorities declined to confirm the reports.

"We're getting a lot of calls about his whereabouts and we've got to follow them all up," said Police Sgt. John Toenings. "But people are spotting him all over the country and all at the same time."

Lewis, 36, is being sought on a federal warrant charging him with extortion. He is believed to have written a note demanding that McNeil Consumer Products Co., maker of Tylenol, deposit $1 million in a Chicago bank account or risk a second wave of poisonings.

Seven people died in the Chicago area after taking cyanide-loaded capsules of Extra-Strength Tylenol, then the nation's best-selling non-prescription pain-reliever. McNeil has recalled all capsules of regular and Extra-Strength Tylenol.

Fingerprints and handwriting analysis were used to identify Lewis as the author of the extortion demand, authorities said.

While no definite links have been established between Lewis and the killings, Chicago Police Sgt. August Locallo said, "there could be a strong possibility that he's connected." Illinois Attorney General Tyrone Fahner called Lewis' involvement in the case of "great significance."

The Chicago Sun-Times reported Saturday that experts at the FBI's crime laboratory in Washington matched Lewis' fingerprints to those found on a pulley used to hoist a dismembered body to the ceiling of an attic crawl space. The decomposed body of Raymond West, 72, was found later.

Kansas City police Sgt. James Treece said Saturday the 1978 murder case had been closed, and he could not release any information about it unless prosecutor decided to reopen the case.

Kansas City police have said murder charges against Lewis were dropped after the medical examiner was unable to determine a cause of death, and a judge ruled police had acted improperly in the case.

The Kansas City Times reported Saturday that Lewis was institutionalized twice in the mid-1960s, once after attacking his stepfather and then swallowing 36 aspirin tablets in an apparent suicide attempt, and a second time after another overdose at age 19.

During his stay at a state mental health hospital in Nevada, Mo., Lewis was diagnosed as a catatonic schizophrenic, a condition in which the patient may display excessive feigned excitement or simulate an unresponsive stupor, according to Dr. B.U. Sree, assistant medical director of the facility.

Mental health officials in Missouri were not in their offices Saturday.

A warrant also has been issued for Lewis' wife, 35-year-old Leann Lewis, charging her with fraudulent use of a Social Security card. The couple has been described as being "armed and dangerous."

Authorities believe the couple fled to Chicago in December 1981 after they were indicted on theft and forgery charges in connection with a land fraud scheme in Missouri. They left Chicago on Sept. 3, leaving an Amarillo, Texas, forwarding address which later proved false, police said.

PASSING YEARS

Hours became days.
Days became weeks.
Weeks became months.
Months became years.
Three years have transpired since you slipped into a world of silence and peace
Oh, but time does not heal these grieving hearts
The agony grows deeper and deeper
In fleeting moments, it's as though you never left
We remember your voice, your smile and your pain so vividly
We think pleasant memories of you
Your name is pasted on our pressed lips
Oh, it's so dear to our hearts
Rest in peace, our beloved
Rest well until we meet beyond God's horizon.

Then take a look at how much energy and hot water you're using for home laundering. By following some simple conservation measures, you can save energy and money.

Clothes washers carry labels that indicate how efficient they are. When buying a new machine, size the unit carefully to your family's needs: too small a machine will waste energy, because it will take two or three loads to do what a larger machine can handle in one.

Also look for energy saving features. A "Suds-saver" will reuse the wash water, which reduces the need for additional hot water. And "variable water level control" will allow you to select the water level appropriate for your washing needs.

Even with the water level control, try to run your washer only when you have a full load. New detergents will allow you to wash, as well as rinse, in cold water.

Crowd Breaks Up Ku Klux Klan Rally Near Boston's City Hall

BOSTON (AP) — Two dozen robed Ku Klux Klan members were taken away in police vans Saturday after a screaming mob of 1,000 people broke up a Klan rally in front of Boston City Hall.

At least 13 people were injured in the resulting confrontation between protesters and police, authorities said.

Police Superintendent John F. Geagan said police decided to remove the Klan members for their own safety. He said the Klansmen were taken back to their cars and released.

He said the police took the action after the crowd "charged en masse throwing bottles."

Police spokesman Brian McMasters said two men were arrested at the scene, one on charges of disorderly conduct and the other on charges of illegal possession of a switchblade.

McMasters said six people were taken to Massachusetts General Hospital for treatment of minor head injuries. Seven other people were treated for injuries at the scene.

The Klan rally was called by Bill Wilkinson, the imperial wizard of the Invisible Empire, Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, after he was attacked during a television talk show Thursday.

Wilkinson, 40, of Denham Springs, La., and Angie Stringer, a member of the KKK Youth Corps, were pelted with eggs during the live "People Are Talking" show on WBZ-TV.

Wilkinson was punched by one demonstrator and said he was kicked by another person. The Klan leader filed a complaint against three people Friday in Brighton District Court.

"I think that Mayor (Kevin H.) White and the governor should be less than proud of their constituents," said Wilkinson said in a telephone interview after the rally.

"It is a sad commentary when that many people react so violently. I don't believe there's any justification for that action. I believe they (the crowd) were egged on by their (authorities) statements."

Wilkinson said he was unhurt, but "one of our ladies was hit by a bottle. I don't think she was hurt, but she isn't feeling too well right now."

Wilkinson said the Klansmen left in police wagons "by mutual agreement" when he saw that about 15 police "were being overrun. There wasn't enough police. If it were not for the mounted police, we wouldn't have made it."

His call for a demonstration sparked plans for counter-demonstrations by groups that included the International Committee Against Racism, which claimed responsibility for disrupting the television show.

A racially mixed crowd of about 400 people, ranging from priests and nuns to teen-agers, rallied at Government Center in downtown Boston an hour before the scheduled Klan rally.

The crowd grew, with demonstrators waving signs reading, "Death to the KKK" and "The KKK Shoots To Kill, The FBI Foots The Bill."

Geagan said the 22 Klan members, wearing white hoods and robes, marched to the plaza under police escort and were escorted through the crowd.

The crowd erupted, throwing eggs, vegetables and bottles, and some anti-Klan protesters pushed against the wall of police, chanting, "Cops and Klan are just the same."

After about 10 minutes, police herded the Klansmen into two police wagons, and the protesters broke out in cheers and applause.

Police responded by galloping horses across the brick pavement in front of Boston City Hall and running motorcycles through the crowd.

Some of the protesters complained the police used excessive force to break up the demonstration.

"I saw the police hit at least one man," said Cecilia George. "I was so surprised. They are just as racist as the Klan."

On Oct. 15, 1978, Wilkinson and three other men in Klan garb were driven from the same plaza. Eleven people were injured and nine arrested in that meeting. "There were more people and not as many projectiles this time," Wilkinson said, comparing the two rallies. "We just didn't stay long enough this time."

Search For Sub Will Continue

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The search for one or more unidentified alien submarines in Stockholm's southern archipelago, now in its third unproductive week, will go on "indefinitely," the Swedish navy said Saturday.

Media interest has diminished as the weeks have dragged on without concrete results from the navy's hunt for elusive intruders in two bays just off Sweden's main naval base.

Initial speculation was that the sub or subs were from the Soviet bloc.

The few reporters attending Saturday's briefing were not encouraged as the navy's chief spokesman, Cmdr. Sven Carlsson, turned up empty-handed again.

"We have no new indications of foreign subs to report from the past 24 hours. But the search continues and will go on indefinitely," Carlsson said.

Hors Bay, where military personnel first spotted a periscope on the doorstep of the top secret Musko naval base Oct. 1, will remain barred to civilian traffic for weeks, pending completion of the combing of the bay's bottom, he explained.

The military press briefings, moved this weekend from the Berga training base on Hors Bay to barracks in Stockholm, will be phased out. Carlsson said there would be one more scheduled briefing Sunday but henceforth the press would be called only as developments warrant.

Sweden's commander in chief, Gen. Lennart Ljung, has publicly expressed disappointment over the failure to bring up a sub.

Swedish authorities have warned that any intruder detected from now on risks depth charge saturation bombing by the navy which may have let the spy sub slip out by using its weapons too little and too late.

More Service Is The Outlook For Department

Over the past 20 years changes took place on the East Carolina University campus which were exciting and nothing less than sensational.

At one time the university (then East Carolina College) was composed entirely of departments.

The school of nursing was established and all that changed. Now there is the general college, college of arts and sciences, nine schools and three institutes making up the institution.

Chancellor John M. Howell has said the changes of the future will not be as spectacular as in the past.

There will be constant changes, however, and they will be important to East Carolina University's maturing into an important university.

Last week it was announced that Dr. Edward W. Wheatley, a respected marketing professor, had joined the school of business to become acting chairman of the new department of marketing.

The department of marketing became the fifth department of the school of business and culminates an organization plan begun by the faculty in 1968. Dean James Bearden said the new department will serve marketing students, under Dr. Wheatley's direction. It will also make available to the region "a resource in such marketing areas as marketing research, selling, retailing and related fields."

The establishment of the department of marketing represents an important new resource for East Carolina University as it develops to fill its role in North Carolina. As a university, East Carolina will be constantly changing in the years ahead, and this new department is an example of the developments which will be coming.

Alvin Taylor — Sunday Morning Notes

And words can frequently trip us up.

Someone recently passed on some excerpts from church bulletins as they appeared in the Mount Olive Tribune.

Since they were from church bulletins we are certain the writers didn't mean what they said.

Anyway here goes:

"This afternoon there will be meetings in the north and south ends of the church. Children will be baptized on both ends."

"Tuesday at 7 p.m. there will be an ice cream social. All ladies giving milk will please come early."

"Wednesday the Ladies Literary Society will meet. Mrs. Johnson will sing 'Put Me in My Little Bed,' accompanied by the Reverend."

Thursday at 5 p.m. there will be a meeting of the Little Mother's Club. All wishing to become Little Mothers will please meet the minister in his study."

"This being Easter Sunday we will ask Mrs. Johnson to come forward and lay an egg on the alter"

"The service will close with 'Little Drops of Water.' One of the ladies will quietly start and the rest of the congregation will join in."

"On Sunday a special collection will be taken to defray the expense of the new carpet. All those wishing to do something on the carpet, please come forward and get a piece of paper."

Going to church has never been better.

The attractive waitress in a local restaurant was virtually bubbling over even though it was a rainy and dreary day last Wednesday.

When she brought our check she commented that someone at a nearby table had asked her if she was as crazy as she was cute.

"I told them I didn't have anybody to be crazy with," she laughed "It is such a dreary day."

All the more reason to be crazy.

There were 26.3 million gallons of ice cream and 10.7 million gallons of ice milk produced in the state. Thus, each of the state's six million people consumed 6.17 gallons, or nearly 25 quarts or some 247 scoops.

Nothing was said about ice cream sandwiches.

Norman Sandler — Joy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even the profit-takers on Wall Street could not have been happier than President Reagan when the Dow Jones Industrial Average hit what Reagan proudly hailed as "the magic 1,000" this week.

One week earlier, Reagan was in the uncomfortable position of having to defend his economic policies after a drop in the government's leading economic indicators and amid hints of the worst unemployment since the Depression.

The bad economic news so close to the elections seemed tailor-made for exploitation by Democrats. Even Republican politicians in recession-wracked Ohio were reluctant to appear on the same dias with the president.

For the GOP, the warning flags have not been lowered. But Reagan has adopted a new tact to help boost the fortunes of Republican candidates — picking out the good news, playing down the bad and setting the vision of the voters on optimism for the future rather than the problems of the present.

The White House countered the bad unemployment news by staging an elaborate dockside ceremony where Reagan signed a bill to help expand exports. No documentation was provided for his contention it would create "hundreds of thousands of jobs."

And it came as no surprise when Reagan, addressing a prosperous-looking crowd of Republicans at an outdoor rally in Texas Monday, broke from his prepared text to announce the stock market had hit a 15-month high.

Cheers broke out as Reagan announced the Dow Jones had surpassed "the magic 1,000" and hailed it as "a strong sign of confidence in America's future" and in an economic program the markets in the past have regarded with suspicion.

Reagan hoped the bullish market would have at least a short-term political payoff.

No matter that slightly more than 16 months earlier, as the financial community was reluctant to endorse his tax cut, Reagan told a group at the White House, "I never have found Wall Street a source of good economic advice." Investors, he said, view events "through a very narrow glass."

The apparent change of heart led Rep. Tony Coehlo, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, to denounce Reagan's statement in Texas as "a blatant instance of partisan profit-taking."

Reagan, however, was undeterred. After signing legislation to aid victims of crime and missing children Tuesday, he used the public forum to praise a further drop in the prime interest rate as "another burst of sunshine."

On Wednesday, the White House arranged another event — the signing of a compromise job training bill Reagan touted as an answer to joblesslessness, but which is aimed primarily at disadvantaged youths.

This orchestrated effort to sell the good news and divert attention from the bad culminated Wednesday evening with Reagan's address to the nation. With the elections near and Reagan on the defensive, the networks were slow to agree to televise the speech live because of its political implications.

Just the day before Reagan greeeted the latest unemployment figures with his prediction of "hundreds of thousands" of additional jobs, one top adviser remarked only half in jest to a reporter, "Wait 'till you see what we have tomorrow to keep attention off unemployment."

The unemployment issue will not disappear before Nov. 2. But Reagan and his aides are hoping their recent efforts — combined with unexpected help from the Federal Reserve and Wall Street — will at least dilute its impact to minimize GOP losses on Election Day.

Jim Thorpe Played Ball In Rocky Mount

Their withdrawal 70 years ago was a terrible mistake and a dark spot in the history of the international games.

A technicality was involved. The Olympics are for amateurs, and Thorpe had played for a semipro baseball team, in Rocky Mount ... and was paid $2 a game shortly before the Olympics were held.

As one of those natural athletes, Thorpe competed anywhere and everywhere he could. He loved sports and the baseball episode was principally an opportunity to play a game he loved. It couldn't have been the money.

Such purity as the IOC exhibited in 1912 by upholding the torch of amateur athletics was foolish. Some say it was the only lever officials had to unseat a mere Indian who was praised as the greatest athlete in the world for his feats.

We're not sure Jim Thorpe, if he were alive, would have accepted the belated Olympics gesture. He wore the mantle of greatness ... it became him ... and the idea of again accepting medals petty bureaucrats denied him might have been just too much for a champion to swallow.

Craig Webb — Case Pinpoints Dispute Over Inmates' Rights

RALEIGH (UPI) — The case of an inmate caught mailing a $10 bill has sparked a dispute between North Carolina's Correction Department and the Inmate Grievance Commission over prisoners' rights to challenge claims made against them.

The commission says the major infraction authorities imposed on Alvin Wilson was unfair because officials did not prove their case. Correction officials say they were justified.

"A lot of times we do things with proof that's less than proof beyond a reasonable doubt," said Ben G. Irons II, an administrative assistant to Correction Secretary James C. Woodard. "Given the security concerns in a prison, you have to have some flexibility in the nature of the disciplinary actions you take. And that's why the Supreme Court has given us this flexibility."

Wilson, serving an armed robbery sentence, was charged with violating prison rules March 2 when guards at the Caledonia Unit in Tillery confiscated a $10 bill from a stamped and sealed letter bearing Wilson's name as the returnee.

Under prison rules, inmates cannot possess money in denominations as large as $10 and they cannot send money through the mail. Both of those acts are considered minor infractions, usually punishable by the loss of a privilege.

But after Wilson admitted the violations, a disciplinary committee decided to deal with the charge as a major infraction. This is a much more serious type of offense, punishable by loss of time gained through good behavior and possible solitary confinement.

In Wilson's case, the committee imposed a suspended sentence.

Wilson protested to the grievance committee, arguing the department didn't follow its own rules by stating why the infraction was upgraded. Correction officials eventually replied that Wilson's wrongdoings were a major penalty because there were two minor infractions involved and because "He had also been suspected in the past of mailing out large sums of money."

That's poor reasoning, the commission replied.

"Two minor infractions shouldn't make one major," said William A. Dudley, the commission's executive director. He added that the department never produced any proof to back its suspicion that Wilson was mailing out money.

But Woodard disagreed, ruling earlier this month that his department acted properly.

"A prison disciplinary hearing is not part of a criminal prosecution, and the full panoply of rights due a defendant in such proceedings does not apply," he said in his order. While agreeing that his staff could have better justified its suspicions against Wilson, he also said that proof wasn't necessary.

"Wilson was not only possessing the funds, he was exchanging them in an unauthorized manner," Woodard wrote. "The fact that he did not take the money from his trust fund account and send it out in accordance with normal procedures leads to the conclusion that he was involved in some activity that undermined the security of the institution."

But Larry G. Ford of Salisbury, chairman of the grievance commission, remained unmoved.

"Our interpretation is there is sufficient information to determine this was not a major infraction," he said.

Prisons Director Rae H. McNamara said there are cases where the department cannot and should not justify its penalties.

"Sometimes we have informants, and you have to be careful of what you put down so that prisoners can't trace it to anyone," she said.

"I think we might make some mistakes, but the need to be more formal would take far too much more time and money than it's worth."

With Woodard's ruling, the commission cannot carry its case any further. Wilson has the right to appeal the major penalty in state or federal court.

Maxwell Glen Cody Shearer — Editor Faces Another Round With Politicians

NASHUA, N.H. — Mention the 1984 presidential primary to Jon Breen, and he'll probably scowl.

Editor of the Nashua Telegraph, Breen was moderator of the infamous 1980 candidates' debate in which candidate Ronald Reagan grabbed the microphone and sewed up the New Hampshire GOP presidential primary. That and a general discomfort with presidential contenders make him one of about 20 percent of New Hampshire voters whom he estimates wish their state didn't host the nation's first primary.

Breen is now bracing for another round. Though the primary is more than 15 months away, he's already received visits from two long shots, Democratic Sens. John Glenn of Ohio and Alan Cranston of California. "If I had my way, I'd leave the state right after this November's elections and not return until the '84 primary is over," Breen muttered last week.

Yet, Breen knows better than to expect any reprieve from his plight. His state earns approximately $4 million from the infusion of jobs, media and general political activity, and it's not about to give up those revenues.

Indeed, while citizens may yawn and candidates may moan at the lengthy and costly process, financial interest in presidential politics is only one of the obstacles to reforming the nomination process.

Under a more rational approach, such as a series of four time-zone primaries, many of the inequities would disappear. Annoying politicians may never vanish, but the rest of us would probably become more active participants.

James J. Kilpatrick — There Is A Valid Reason To Be President

WASHINGTON — Out on the lecture circuit, not long ago, I fielded an offbeat question from an offbeat student. Thumbs in her jeans, the young lady asked: "Would you want to be president?" I said, yes. With a lugubrious sigh, she then inquired: "Why?" Her implication was that nobody would want that dumb job.

Well, I said, the White House food is good and a president never has to look for a place to park. She was not amused. "Why?" she persisted. I gave it to her straight. "As president," I said, "given the opportunity, I could nominate Bob Bork for the United States Supreme Court."

That is reason enough to satisfy any inquisitor. In Robert Heron Bork, 55, longtime professor of law at Yale, a former solicitor general, now a judge on the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia, we have one of the top judicial minds of our generation. President Reagan had an opportunity to move him up a year ago, but for sound political reasons he chose Sandra Day O'Connor instead. No complaint. Justice O'Connor has done a firt-rate job.

But Bork surely will make it to the high court one of these days. He is cast in the mold of the second Justice Harlan. In a recent address to a judicial conference, excerpted in National Review, Bork had some things to say about judges — present and future judges — that merit wider publication. He warned against the ominous trend, as he perceives it, toward the intellectual breeding of judges who will pursue policies of activism on the bench.

A struggle for dominance in constitutional theory now engages our law schools. Because the struggle is waged largely in law reviews and academic groves, the general public is only dimly aware of what is going on. The struggle has to do with the proper role of judges, especially in the federal judiciary. On the one side are the defenders of strict construction. They are vastly outnumbered by the forces of innovative construction.

Without the slightest apology or the lease embarrassment, Bork identifies himself with the strict constructionists. He is an "interpretivist," which is to say, he believes that acts of the legislative branch should be invalidated only when reasons for such judicial action can be fairly discovered in the Constitution. Only a handful of his fellow believers any longer can be found in the faculties of our law schools. Bork sees the prospcts as "disastrous" for the constitutional law of the future.

"Judges will feel justified in continually creating new individual rights, and those influential groups which form what might be called the Constitution-making apparatus of the nation — that is, the law professors, the courts, the press, the leaders of the bar — will support the courts in doing this. It will be very hard to rally public opinion against groups so articulate and in control of most of the means of communication."

When judges go beyond the boundaries of the Constitution, and begin exploring "natural law" and "morality" and "democratic ideals," the old restraints upon judicial usurpation no longer work. "Tne truth is that the judge wno looks outside tne Constitution always looks inside himself and nowhere else."

Bork grimly foresees a day when state legislative choices will be steadily displaced by federal judicial choices. Moral values will tend to be nationalized. "This is directly contrary to the theory of the Constitution, wnich is that certain moral choices specified in the document are national, but that unless Congress defines a new national consensus, all other moral choices are to be made democratically by the people in their states and in their cities."

Granted, in an era when more and more shadowy decisions are thrust upon our courts, even the best judges may be compelled to forms of activism. Bork's point is that these occasions must be hcld to an absolute minimum. A judge's personal views of what is wise, or humane, or compassionate, or enlightened should not be substituted for legislative judgments without compelling constitutional reasons. Judges, in brief, should judge; they should not legislate.

This is the world according to Bork. I may run for president yet.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Oct. 14 I spent three hours in a courtroom waiting for my case to be tried. I, the school bus driver, turned in a vehicle which had run my stop sign while the bus was at a complete stop with children boarding. The man pleaded not guilty, admitting he had run my stop sign, but saying it was becuase the car in front of him (which I do not recall) couldn't make up its mind whether to get in the turning lane. (The incident occurred on Highway 264). He said his attention was focused on the car, not my bus!

Let's say I had been on another road, a ONE-WAY road. If I had been in the right lane, then the man and the "undecided car" would have been in the left. If I had had children crossing from both sides of the road, then the children on the left would have either been killed or seriously injured! Yet, the driver of the car would probably have not been blamed — I would! Also, I would have witnessed children being killed or injured and would have suffered the reaction of the public toward high school students driving buses.

The judge listened to the evidence, then after a brief moment, stated, "When in doubt, NOT GUILTY." Now I would like to know how a person can admit to something wrong and still be found NOT GUILTY?

You, the public should be aware that high school students who drive buses try their best to get your children safely to and from school. But after going to court for two separate cases in one year and turning in others that were NOT prosecuted, WHAT AM I TO DO?

I suppose the solution will come after a child is killed and I'm blamed.

To the editor:

Troubled by your troubles?

Troubles come in all shapes and sizes at all times of the day and night and at every stage in life. They respect no one, neither excluding the young nor bypassing the old. They crop up in all areas, touching our families, our finances, our jobs, our physical health and our emotional well-being. We may go for long periods without them, but at other times they pile up with such frequency and buffet us with such intensity that we wonder if we'll ever survive.

Here are a few Biblical references to the word "trouble": 1 — Trouble seems to be woven into the fabric of living (Job 14:1) 2 — Many of our distresses are caused by our own sin and foolishness (Proverbs 21:23; Psalms 78: 32,33) 3 — Some difficulties are created by other people (Psalms 9:13) 4 — God allows trouble, but is always in control (II Chronicles 29:8) 5 — We have a refuge and strong defenses in the Lord (Psalms 59:16) 6 — He invites us to call upon Him in our distresses (Psalms 50:15) 7 — We can expect deliverance in keeping with His will (Psalms 107:6; 143:11.

Perhaps we need to be reminded of what a wise old man said to a boy who asked, "what is life's heaviest burden?" The man replied, "To have no burdens to carry." His answer has special meaning for us. Through affliction, we can come to know The Great Burden Bearer in a way that might not otherwise be possible. Without distress, we'd never know deliverance. As long as God is our refuge, we need not be troubled by our troubles.

God does not promise to keep us FROM trouble, but He does promise to be with us IN trouble.

To the editor:

I read with interest your editorial entitled "Oil Royalties Are Justified" printed on Oct. 4. In the editorial, you stated that the finding of oil offshore North Carolina "will be more of an inconvenience than anything else to North Carolina citizens."

Currently North Carolina citizens are the 10th largest consumers among the 50 states of petroleum products. In 1980, approximately 46.3 percent of the energy produced in North Carolina came from petroleum and 9.1 percent from natural gas. This energy heated home, provided transportation and ran factories that employed many North Carolinians.

In a state that currently produces only about 3 percent of the energy we use, the location of domestic, secure reserves of oil or gas should be greatly welcomed. Have we so quickly forgotten the disruption of daily life caused by the 1973-1974 OPEC oil embargo? Would secure reserves of oil or gas have then been an inconvenience?

We concur in the interest that coastal states have in a well-managed offshore oil production effort; but remember, in 1981, 12.2 percent of the crude oil and 27.3 percent of the natural gas produced in this country came from offshore wells. Certainly, as far as offshore production is concerned, the greatest inconvenience we could suffer would be the loss of this production — not its enhancement.

Reagan Takes On New Image

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan in the midst of Campaign '82 is not the same as President Reagan before he hit the campaign trail this year.

In the months following the attempt on his life on March 30, 1981, the president appeared before few crowds. When he spoke in open areas, it was from behind a protective glass shield.

There is slightly less isolation these days. For the sake of security, he doesn't tarry climbing into his car as he leaves Air Force One. Nor does he often pause to shake hands with people in crowds at airports or hotel entrances. Crowds at rallies are screened with metal detectors before the president arrives.

But, says Ed Rollins, Reagan's assistant for political affairs, "there's more flexibility. We keep security in mind, but also give the president access to more people."

So, when he spoke to a Republican rally in Hooper, Utah, the president was perched on bales of hay placed on a ranch wagon. He ate pasta with folks at an Italian-American festival in Flemington, N.J. He sampled the fare at the cafeteria of a Columbus, Ohio, factory.

A popular president can be a campaign's best asset, and Reagan, despite polls showing opposition to his programs, continues to receive high marks personally. The Democrats are said this year to be careful about attacking him as an individual while heartily lashing out at his programs.

And, said Rollins, Reagan "enjoys getting out. It reinvigorates him. He certainly gets the crowd to respond."

That's the standard view of the president as campaigner. But he has occasionally delivered the wrong speech to the wrong crowd. Before a quadrangle filled with students at the University of Nevada campus in Reno, he launched into a statistics-filled recital of his economic program's accomplishments.

The audience's greatest enthusiasm was aroused when the campus mascot, dressed in a wolf suit, presented him with a football jersey, bearing the message "Reagan 84."

At the White House last week, a group of Republican congressional candidates invited for a pep talk sat quietly until one of them began heckling Reagan. The audience came to life and applauded Reagan's retort that included the advice to his antagonist to "shut up."

Until now, the 71-year-old president has campaigned at a less-than-feverish pace: one day here, another day there, with, typically, a short private fund-raiser and a stump speech to a rally at each stop. But then, 18-hour days were not the Reagan style in 1980 when he was running for president.

No travel is planned until next Wednesday, and Reagan's schedule for next week is being revised to take into account polling data and political judgments about where the president can be most effective in the final days of the campaign.

A trip to Peoria, Ill., to campaign for Rep. Bob Michel, the House Republican leader, is on the agenda — one of the rare instances in which the president is visiting a city to campaign specifically for a House candidate.

Michel has led the Reagan lobbying effort in the House, and one of the major industries in his district, the Caterpillar tractor company, is threatened by Reagan's efforts to halt shipment of equipment for a Soviet natural gas pipeline.

From Peoria, Reagan will go to Omaha, Neb., to campaign for Gov. Charles Thone's re-election.

Before the president set out on his campaign schedule early last month, aides said they would concentrate his activities in states where Republican candidates were one point ahead of their Democratic opponents or one point behind. In the coming weeks, the focus may be on those who are down two or three points.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes argued that in smaller states, a presidential appearance can add five to 10 points to a Senate candidate's standing.

"We're trying to reserve the president to go into areas where he can make a difference," said Rollins. Because fund raising takes on less importance late in the campaign, "we'll stay pretty much with 'people events,'" he said.

George Gallup

Poll

PRINCETON, N.J. — Voter interest in the coming congressional elections, now less than three weeks away, is running higher at this time than it was in the last off-year elections, in 1978.

Currently, 45 percent of the adult population say they have given "quite a lot" or "some" thought to the Nov. 2 elections' compared to 39 percent at this time four years ago.

The upturn in interest may be due in part to the fact that in many states this year voters will be voting on issues as well as on candidates, including such controversial topics as gun laws, abortion and a nuclear freeze.

By way of background, a Gallup survey last year found that if Americans could vote on major issues facing the nation as well as on candidates, voter turnout in national elections — now the worst of any major democracy in the world — might improve substantially.

When non-voters in the 1980 presidential election were asked if they would be more or less likely to vote in national elections if they could vote on important national issues as well as on candidates, almost half (48 percent) said they would be more likely to go to the polls.

Here is the question asked:

"How much thought have you given to the coming November elections — quite a lot or only a little?"

Interest In Coming Election

	A lot, some interest
1982, Sept. 17-20	45%
1978, Sept. 22-25	39%
1974, Sept. 27-30	42%
1970, Sept. 27-28	40%

Although the current voter-interest figure suggests that the downtrend in voter turnout during the 1970s may be leveling off, it should also be noted that the level of voter registration has shown no statistical change since 1978. In the latest surveys 71 percent say they are registered to vote; four years ago the figure was 70 percent. In 1978, 35.5 percent of the eligible population voted for candidates for the U.S. House of Representatives.

Political Implications

If the level of voter turnout does increase this year, it would likely benefit Democratic candidates since traditionally Democratic voter groups (blacks, blue-collar workers, etc.) historically have been less likely to go to the polls.

For example, in Gallup measurements of the nationwide vote for Congress based on the total sample (both voters and non-voters), the results are 60 percent for the Democrats and 40 percent for the Republicans. However, in "test elections" based only on those who are most likely to vote, the race is considerably closer. The latest (semi-final) Gallup Poll congressional figures show the Democrats leading, 56 percent to 44 percent.

The results reported today on interest in the election are based on in-person interviews with 1,486 adults, 18 or older, conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period Sept. 17-20. The registration figures are based on 3,062 interviews from Aug. 13-16 and Aug. 27-30 surveys.

For results based on the larger sample, one can say with 95 percent confidence that the error attributable to sampling and other random effects could be two percentage points in either direction and for the smaller sample, three points.

'Staying The Course'

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Theobald disagrees with President Reagan's suggestion that unemployment can be corrected by "staying the course" he has charted for the economy.

"Unemployment will go significantly higher," says Theobald flatly. As if emphasis might be needed, he adds that a rise is inevitable, and that it will be spread among blue collar, white collar and management workers.

"It will stay above 10 percent through the end of 1983, at least," he says.

There are two reasons why you might want to listen to Theobald, a rangy Arizonan who was born in India and educated at Cambridge and Harvard, and who now makes his reputation as an economist — maverick in style — and futurist.

The first, he suggests, is that given the obvious failures of conventional thinking, including the repetitive theme of recovery being just around the corner, you might want to listen to another view of life.

The second concerns his ability as a forecaster. A year or so ago, when some conventional thinkers viewed the recession as shallow and soon to end, Theobald said unemployment would rise to 10 percent or more. And as far back as the 1960s, he foresaw certain other features of the current economic dilemma.

Theobald's views are on record in great volume. He has written numerous articles and 20 books, the latest being "Avoiding 1984," published by the Ohio University Press. When he isn't writing at his home in Wickenberg he is traveling and talking, and consulting with organizations of voluntary, business and government thinkers.

Theobald has a message, both upsetting and promising.

"The international downside forces in the economy continue to be underestimated, as shown by the continuous putting off of recovery," he said in an interview.

There is a banking crisis, he says, and also a reaction to the crisis that may be as worse — that is, banks whose loans to countries are threatened may now react by stopping all loans, creating further problems. And there is a problem of older industries — steels and autos — losing some of their markets.

In his view, however, very few problems are as gravely misunderstood as unemployment.

New office and factory technology will resist efforts to lower joblessness, he feels. It is well known, he says, that the fastest way to industrial growth is through more investment and fewer workers. Known, but maybe not understood.

He rejects attempts to put people back to work through government action, whether in terms of a renewed Works Progress Administration, such as in the Great Depression of the 1930s, or through forced work for those on welfare.

The problem is incorrectly viewed, he says. As he sees the situation, everyone thinks the creation of jobs is necessary when, in reality, the nation is on the threshold of immensely greater production with fewer jobs.

The real issue, he maintains, is not economic but social. And until people recognize it as such, he feels, they and their governments will insist on more jobs. Instead, he says, people must learn to adapt to fewer working hours.

If they don't, and if government insists on pushing existing prescriptions, he says, there could be "social breakdown, protectionism and high levels of international tension."

So long as more jobs are seen as the solution, Theobald argues, people who must work fewer hours to maintain the same living standard as now will simply take a second job, instead of using their time in more creative ways.

Politically, It Was The End

WASHINGTON (UPI) — According to folklore, when an officer of the German general staff made an unpardonable mistake, his colleagues let him know what he should do next by leaving a loaded pistol on his desk.

In political terms, that is what happened to Richard Richards when he went to see President Reagan Oct. 1.

The chairman of the Republican National Committee, who was elected to his post in 1981 at Reagan's behest, was offered a job in the government. That did not mean Reagan really had a new assignment for Richards; it meant he wanted him out as GOP national chairman.

Richards probably wasn't surprised by the offer, which he declined. He had been the target of steady sniper fire from the White House for most of the 18 months he has served in the chairmanship. But in every other time when rumors were floated that Richards was to be dumped, the president or someone publicly speaking for him had denied it was going to happen.

This time, it was Reagan himself who made clear to Richards he wanted a new party chairman. So Richards, like a good soldier, used the Luger.

He announced the next Monday that he would not seek another term as chairman. He went to great pains to declare his loyalty to Reagan, but made clear his opinion that he had been laid low by "clerks" at the White House.

Just what caused all this? To be sure, Richards made his share of goofs while chairman of the national committee, such as hinting that Reagan would not seek re-election in 1984.

But his slips were no more embarrassing than others committed by a number of Reaganites, such as Counselor Ed Meese's public admission that he decided not to awaken Reagan when U.S. planes went into combat with Libyan aircraft, or political director Ed Rollins' comment that he had "twisted the arm" of Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, on the AWACs vote in 1981.

As GOP chairman, Richards had a multimillion dollar budget, a big professional staff and the world's most sophisticated political computer operation. Although he publicly deferred to the White House staff, in fact he only had to keep Reagan and the members of the national committee happy.

Meanwhile, in a building across the alley from the White House, political activists like Lyn Nofziger and Rollins sat with very little to do and very little to do it with.

Being the personal agents of the president, who is the head of the party, it would not be surprising if the White House political staff felt somewhat hobbled by the situation. This has happened before, in Democratic as well as Republican administrations, and it usually ends up with the departure of the national committee chairman.

Party In Office Holds The Edge On National Television

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the autumn of even-numbered years, a president's fancy often turns to thoughts of national television. President Reagan went on the air last week with what the White House calls a non-partisan progress report on the economic situation.

The Democrats, predictably, protest that there is no such thing as a non-partisan, nationally televised address by a Republican president three weeks before congressional elections.

That is exactly what Republicans said when Democrats held the White House and roles were reversed.

The opposition party always demands, and usually gets, broadcast time to respond to the president. But it is not equal time, no matter what the hour or the duration. No rebuttal commands the attention or the audience a president can muster.

Reagan's economic progress report was scheduled after the unemployment rate hit 10.1 percent, highest since the last days of the Great Depression. Larry Speakes, the deputy White House press secretary, said the purpose was to report to the nation on where things stand, not to announce any new administration action.

In every address, at every news conference, and in off-the-cuff comments in between, the president points to declining interest rates and to an inflation rate that has dropped to 5.1 percent, while acknowledging that unemployment remains an agonizing problem.

That context, and the fact that Reagan usually gains support with his television appearances, led congressional Democrats to argue that he shouldn't get TV time for the address. They asked for response time, and they warned that stations broadcasting the Reagan report Wednesday night might be subject to demands for rebuttal time from supporters of Democratic congressional candidates in their viewing areas.

It is a dispute politicians have been rehearsing for years. Whenever the president speaks as president during a campaign, the other party insists he really is speaking as a politician, trying to influence the outcome.

That is standard procedure, even when the issue is an international crisis. After the Cuban missile crisis, which erupted during the 1962 congressional election campaign, Republicans said they had been warning for months that the Soviet Union was shipping offensive missiles to Cuba and suggested that President John F. Kennedy might have timed his response for political advantage.

That response was a naval blockade of Cuba, which Kennedy announced on Oct. 22, 1962. Moscow backed off, and on Nov. 2, Kennedy was on national radio and TV again, with word that the Soviet missile sites were being dismantled.

More frequently, late-campaign presidential reports and initiatives have been on the topic Reagan is addressing: the economy. Democrat Lyndon B. Johnson, Republican Gerald R. Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter all announced major anti-inflation moves during prime campaign time.

Carter outlined his anti-inflation drive in a nationally broadcast address on Oct. 24, 1978, invoking voluntary wage-price guidelines with the threat of sanctions if they were not observed. "If there is one thing I am asking of every American tonight, it is to give this plan a chance to work," he said in that address.

Republicans called his address blatantly political and too little, too late. Whatever the politics of it, the program didn't work.

When presidents ask for broadcast time or, as in the case of Reagan's address tonight, announce that they're speaking and that it is available for radio and TV, they usually get the time. But not always.

Democratic Leader Concedes GOP Will Retain Senate Control

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even the chairman of the Democratic Party concedes Republicans probably will keep control of the Senate in this fall's elections. And, paradoxically, the GOP concedes most of the country's best-known Democratic liberals will win again.

The result, if the trend two weeks before the election holds, will be another two years in which President Reagan has a secure congressional base from which to launch the economic and social issues on his agenda. And two more years of attacks from Sen. Eward M. Kennedy and other liberals bitterly opposed to Reaganomics.

"Only a fool would predict a Democratic landslide, a Democratic sweep," says Leon Billings at the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee.

And Charles T. Manatt, chairman of the Democratic Party, has this modest prediction: a gain of two to three seats in the 33 races for the Democrats. That's not enough to reverse the current 54-45 GOP advantage.

But on the other hand, Sen. Robert Packwood of the GOP Senatorial Campaign Committee has no interest in discussing Republican chances against liberal Democrats Kennedy of Massachusetts, Donald Riegle of Michigan and Paul Sarbanes of Maryland.

That is not to say that the two parties have abandoned hopes of scoring unexpected gains, and officials on both sides are forever producing poll results to buttress claims of longshot upset possibilities. Democrats, particularly, dream about a wave of voter anxiety, the result of a long recession and high unemployment, sweeping across the country in the campaign's final days and dooming the Republican majority.

Barring that, though, Manatt, Packwood and most others agree that in contrast to 1980, voters will treat most if not all incumbents kindly regardless of political party or position on Reagan's economic program.

"We should not lose any incumbent," Packwood said of the 11 Republicans seeking new terms.

Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, echoes that. "I'm of the opinion that all our incumbents are going to be returned," he said. There are 19 of them.

Obviously, they can't both be right about that and about their parties' picking up seats, as well. But others say that in some races where switches once seemed possible — a challenge to conservative GOP Sen. Orrin Hatch in Utah, for example, or to Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd in West Virginia — the incumbent appears to have taken command.

Incumbents aside, there are three states where senators are retiring, and two of them have among the closest races in the country.

In California, where GOP Sen. S.I. Hayawaka is retiring, a huge early lead enjoyed by San Diego's Republican Mayor Pete Wilson has evaporated and the momentum appears to be with Democratic Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. The most recent independent Field poll, published a week ago, gave Brown his first lead in seven surveys, 46 percent to 45 percent.

The race appears just as tight in Virginia, where GOP Rep. Paul Trible and Democratic Lt. Gov. Richard Davis both hope to succeed independent Sen. Harry Byrd, who is retiring. Reagan has campaigned there once in a bid to claim the seat for Republicans. But an Associated Press-WRC-TV poll released last week gave Davis a narrow two-percentage-point lead with one in five voters undecided.

The third "open seat" is in New Jersey, where appointed GOP Sen. Nicholas Brady is retiring. It seems likely to remain Republican, though, with GOP Rep. Millicent Fenwick a likely winner over Frank Lautenberg.

The open seats aside, Republicans say their best chance to unseat incumbents is in the West, where the recession has not hit as hard as elsewhere in the country, and where Reagan remains very popular.

In Montana, Packwood claims, challenger Larry Williams holds a narrow lead over Sen. John Melcher, a Democrat. The Democrats dispute that, but concede the race is close. Melcher's campaign manager, Evan Barrett, adds that if Melcher loses it will be because of the National Conservative Political Action Committee, which has budgeted $250,000 to defeat him.

In Nevada, too, Republicans hope to gain a seat. But Democratic incumbent Sen. Howard Cannon survived a tough primary against a conservative challenger, and even Republicans concede he holds a lead over challenger Chic Hecht.

Republicans are pushing an incumbent hard in Maine, too. But in this case, the GOP challenger, Rep. David Emery, blew a huge early lead and now seems narrowly behind Sen. George Mitchell.

Rancher Wages War With Signs

Bernard Dale, 78, stands near one of the signs on his sheep-breeding farm near Waxahachie, Texas. He has waged a verbal war with the state since 1979 when a highway grass mower tore through the fence. His sign reads: This fence is falling over because the highway road graders have graded away the soil from inside our property fence line. We set our fence six inches inside the property line. What can we do about it? (UPI Photo)

Rancher Ends His Standoff With Army

WHITE SANDS MISSILE RANGE, N.M. (AP) — An 81-year-old rancher left this top-secret U.S. Army base Saturday, ending a standoff that began four days ago when he gathered guns and food and went to reclaim his homestead.

Dave McDonald and his niece, Mary McDonald, left the range about 10:30 a.m. after meeting with two members of New Mexico's congressional delegation, a state legislator and the state's Cattle Growers Association president, said White Sands spokesman Jim Eckles.

The McDonalds sneaked on to the missile-testing facility land early Wednesday morning and set up camp at an old homestead McDonald says the Army took from him 40 years ago. The Army ordered them to leave but the McDonalds refused.

McDonald's departure was a relief to Army officials, Eckles said.

"Now we can get back to business," he said.

Eckles wasn't sure if the McDonalds would be prosecuted for going onto the restricted range. That decision, he said, would be made by base commander Maj. Gen. Niles Fulwyler.

Eckles said Fulwyler agreed to send letters to the Defense Department "informing them of Mr. McDonald's concerns."

"I think we understand Mr. McDonald a little better now and what he's trying to do, and he's a little better aware of our situation, also," Eckles said.

The rancher was angered by a dispute over his claim to the ranch. The Army took the land in 1942 for a bombing range and the atomic bomb development program known as the Manhattan Project. For years, McDonald was paid for the lease on the desolate grasslands.

But in 1980, lease extensions expired and the U.S. Corps of Engineers began eminent domain hearings in which the land was condemned and McDonald was to be paid.

McDonald has not received lease payments and or withdrawn any money from the $35,000 escrow account the corps placed with the federal district court clerk, although some of his relatives apparently have withdrawn about $22,000, said corps spokeswoman Kay Peterson.

McDonald had asked $960,000 for the 640 acres, or about $1,500 an acre. The dispute remains with the federal court, which Eckles said is trying to reach a middle ground through an appraisal committee.

The McDonalds were armed with two rifles, an old pistol and provisions for a month when they drove onto the range in two pickup trucks. But in talks with Army officials, McDonald agreed not to use his weapons.

McDonald and his niece strung barbed wire around the ranch house and erected signs saying, "Deeded Land, No Trespassing" and "Road closed to U.S. Army."

They refused several times to leave the area. Army officials served papers on McDonald on Thursday and repeated their demands Friday, to no avail.

Eckles described the meetings that occurred between military officials and McDonald as "very peaceful and very reasonable."

The group that helped bring the stalemate to an end included Rep. Joe Skeen and Sen. Harrison "Jack" Schmitt, both Republicans. The others were state Rep. James Martin of Socorro and Bob Jones, president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association.

Primate Blasts Poland's Leaders

Meanwhile, riot police patrolled a Krakow suburb where street clashes erupted three nights running, sweeping away flags, flowers and other memorials to a worker killed in the unrest.

Speaking at the All Saints Church in Warsaw, Glemp said Poles had hoped since martial law began last Dec. 13 for "agreement and genuine accord," but wound up without unions and the prospect of starting "from zero."

"That happened without any consultation with the working people!" the archbishop said. "Doesn't the strength of the state rest in cooperation between the authorities and society, on the condition the authorities are not deaf to the voice of society?"

Some witnesses said the strong theme of the sermon was a departure from the moderate line Glemp has followed this year. He spoke on the fourth anniversary of the election of Polish-born Pope John Paul II.

It was Glemp's first public comment since Sunday, when he denounced authorities for creating "bitterness" with a new labor law that bans all unions including Solidarity, restricts the right to strike and forms new unions along strict guidelines.

His voice booming occasionally with uncharacteristic emotion, the primate said the church had been swamped with people asking "What now? Should we let them continue to humiliate us like that? Can a nation of 1,000 years be pushed around?"

Glemp invoked the name of the union several times, apparently counseling people to accept reality, but nurture hope.

"We have great solidarity among people," he said. "Solidarity in work and in national feeling. It doesn't have to be an organization.

"This solidarity, not as an organization any longer but as a movement as a feeling as something that creates links between people must be based on Christian spirit," he said. "It must fight against the attitudes of hatred, egoism and injustice."

In Krakow, riot police armed with clubs and automatic weapons patrolled the suburb of Nowa Huta after the authorities swept away Solidarity flags.

Guerrillas Open New Attack

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Guerrillas launched their biggest attacks on San Salvador in six months, and 4,000 troops were battling leftists in a northern province where an American was reported killed fighting with the rebels, military sources said Saturday.

Judicial authorities said six people were found dead in the capital, but it was not immediately known how or when they died. Many of the bodies found in this country are believed to be victims of right-wing death squads who allegedly collaborate with the government.

Residents of Usuluan, 68 miles east of the capital, said three students were shot to death Friday and a school administrator on Thursday, apparently victims of death squads.

Guerrillas believed to have entered San Salvador from bases on the Guazapa volcano 15 miles to the north attacked at 10 spots around the capital late Friday.

The drive was the leftists' most serious assault on the capital since their unsuccessful attempt to disrupt March 28 elections for a Constituent Assembly.

Combined army and national police drove off guerrillas from the northern, working-class suburb of Ayutuxtepeque after they attacked from sniping positions for about 40 minutes, a local civil defense patrolman said.

Police said guerrillas ambushed a treasury police patrol Saturday in the center of the city, injuring one policeman.

The rebels also bombed five telephone exchange boxes and dynamited two power poles in northern and central San Salvador late Friday, blacking out part of the capital for a short period.

Eight miles north of the city, guerrillas burned a trailer, bombed a fire truck and fought a half-hour gun battle with national guardsmen, a civil defense patrolman in the nearby town of Apopa said. He said two guerrillas were killed and two guardsmen wounded.

Official reports gathered from military commanders around the country said guerrillas have killed or wounded at least 122 troops in their week-long offensive.

Guerrillas claim to have killed or wounded 163 troops in the same period, while official reports claim at least 153 rebels killed.

About 4,000 troops backed by artillery and fighter-bombers battled guerrillas in Morazan province, some 120 miles northeast of the capital, in a counterattack after rebels overran three northern towns, a local commander said.

A Defense Ministry spokesman said that troops had killed an American in Morazan, who he claimed was fighting with the guerrillas.

Col. Marco Aurelio Gonzalez said a fair-skinned man with Anglo-Saxon features was shot dead by troops after he tried to escape an arrest and allegedly seized a soldier's weapon and began firing.

The man was identified as Michael Kline by the signature on about $500 in travelers' checks he was carrying.

"They fired a warning shot, but he shot back, so they killed him," Gonzalez said. The man — dressed in khakis, with long hair and sandals — had been arrested for "looking suspicious" while riding on a bus 100 miles east of the capital.

The local commander, Col. Lisandro Cepeda, said troops have killed 30 guerrillas in heavy fighting centered around seven towns in the northern part of the province since guerrillas took control of Torola, Perquin and San Fernando on Tuesday.

"The guerrillas have been dispersed into the mountains," said Cepeda, commander of the troops based at the provincial capital of San Francisco Gotera. "We have information that they have left the (three) towns, but they are still operating on the outskirts."

The commander said his troops had suffered casualties, but he declined to give any numbers.

He said guerrillas also were driven away from the town of Nuevo Eden de San Juan, in neighboring San Miguel province, after holding it for a short while and giving political lectures in an attempt to recruit new fighters.

Guerrillas have repulsed a massive government counterattack on Las Vueltas in Chalatenango province, 50 miles north of San Salvador, where military commanders have promised to try again with a stronger force next week.

A national guard commander in Chalatenango City, who asked not to be named, said hundreds of refugees had been arriving there from rural villages in fear of intensified guerrilla attacks.

Bus traffic returned Saturday to the nation's highways after staying off them for the previous two days because of guerrilla threats. Government security patrols were out on the highways in force.

Lebanese President To Seek $12 Billion In Aid

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel's talks with President Reagan in Washington this week are expected to focus on withdrawal of all foreign armies from Lebanon, imposition of law and order and a reconstruction program that government planners say could cost $12 billion.

Gemayel, who took office Sept. 23, is scheduled to leave Sunday for New York and address the U.N. General Assembly and Security Council on Monday. On Tuesday he will head to Washington to talk with Reagan, Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

Lebanon's quest for foreign aid in repairing damage which dates from the 1975-76 civil war to this summer's Israeli invasion is underlined by the fact Gemayel's delegation includes Housing Minister Bahaeddin Bsat and the chairman of the Council for Development and Reconstruction, Mohammed Atallah.

"President Gemayel himself is convinced that the main cards are in the hands of the United States," said a government official who briefed American reporters in Beirut on the understanding that he not be identified.

At the same time, Gemayel is seeking to portray Lebanon as a country ready for change with the ability to enforce law and order after seven years of warfare, the official said.

Reiterating the Gemayel government's call for the withdrawal of Israeli and Syrian troops from Lebanon, the official said that "Lebanon's position on this cannot be compromised."

Referring to Israeli demands for a security agreement with Lebanon before Israel's troops withdraw, the official said it was "too soon" for such discussions.

"Israel has no claims on Lebanon and no rights in Lebanon," he said in response to questions. "Only that Lebanese borders are not used as a base against its (Israel's) own territory. We agree with that. Other than that, the Israeli government has no claims."

Gemayel's trip to Washington is seen here as further evidence of Lebanon's belief that the United States is the only possible mediator with enough clout to get the Israelis out of the country. Lebanese and European sources say President-elect Bashir Gemayel, shortly before he was assassinated, secretly met with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin. Amin Gemayel, Bashir's brother, is said to have no plans to do so in the foreseeable future.

One member of Gemayel's government said recently it was too early for direct Israeli-Lebanese talks at any level and that all negotiations should continue to be channeled through the United States. Some sources say any security talks between the two countries must wait at least until the last Israeli soldier has left Lebanon.

The United States is already deeply involved in Lebanon, diplomatically and militarily. U.S. envoy Philip C. Habib, whose mediation efforts this summer led to the evacuation of some 8,000 Palestinian guerrillas from Israeli-besieged west Beirut, is now working on a blueprint for the withdrawal of the estimated 35,000 Syrians, 70,000 Israelis and 10,000 guerrillas remaining.

There are 1,200 U.S. Marines stationed in west Beirut, who with French and Italian troops make up the 4,000-member peacekeeping force deployed after Christian militiamen massacred hundreds of Palestinian men, women and children in two camps in mid-September.

Gemayel is seeking to convince Reagan that he is a strong and capable president with the ability to unite the scores of hostile political and religious factions in this half-Christian half-Moslem nation of 3 million.

The moderate Gemayel, a shrewd politician and successful lawyer-businessman, has won endorsements from Moslem leaders whose followers fought the Gemayel family's right-wing Christian Phalange in the civil war.

But the cooly analytical president lacks appeal among the Christian militiamen who idolized his charismatic brother Bashir and who hold the balance of power in Gemayel's own community. Bashir was assassinated Sept. 14.

Bringing the Christian militiamen under control is likely to be the first real test of Gemayel's authority, political observers say.

"Bashir had the strength to control them. He got rid of troublemakers by finding them very high-paying civilian jobs and making it clear they had no choice but to accept them. Who knows what Amin's solution will be," said one insider in Christian circles who did not want to be named.

But the Lebanese official who briefed U.S. correspondents sought to dispel any notion that Amin was too weak to turn Lebanon into a nation in control of its own territory, and repeatedly referred to the president as strong and decisive.

"I think he's very much like his brother. He does not compromise. His style is the iron fist in the velvet glove," he said.

Lebanese Taking Steps To Disarm Phalangists

United Press International

President Amin Gemayel ordered the Lebanese army to secure positions across east Beirut Saturday to prepare for its greatest challenge — disarming the 20,000-strong Christian Phalangist army of his slain brother.

Army units took up positions at key intersections in the predominantly Christian eastern sector in a bid to be fully deployed before Gemayel flies to the United States Sunday to meet President Reagan.

Lebanese government sources said Gemayel would seek U.S. help in removing Syrian, Palestinian and Israeli forces from Lebanon "before the United States gets deeply involved in its presidential campaign by the end of 1983."

Gemayel said Friday the "most crucial" withdrawal was that of Israel from south Lebanon, "because Israel will not give it up easily."

Beirut radio said the 22,000-man Lebanese army would be fully positioned in east Beirut before Gemayel's departure to reflect the president's determination to gain full control over the capital.

In Beirut, the Israeli military command said Saturday an Israeli soldier and a Lebanese civilian died in the explosion of a booby-trapped car east of Beirut Friday. Officials said the explosion occurred a half-mile north of Bahamdun along the Damascus-Beirut highway east of Beirut.

The army also said Israeli and Syrian soldiers exchanged light arms and mortar fire in the area around Kfar Kuk but there were no other casuatlies.

The delicate task of disarming the Phalangist militiamen — the largest private army in Lebanon — is the greatest challenge yet for the regular Lebanese army, which was left impotent after years of civil war.

PLO Factions Criticize Arafat

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Two radical factions of the Palestine Liberation Organization on Saturday accused PLO leader Yasser Arafat of betraying the Palestinian cause by pursuing plans for a federation with Jordan.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) and the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine (DFLP) charged that Arafat's recent talks with Arab leaders on a U.S. proposed plan for Palestinian autonomy in association with Jordan were aimed at "liquidating the PLO."

Syria, joining in the attack, described the plan as an "American-Zionist scheme" to "blow up all the gains ot the PLO and the Palestinian cause."

The PLO weekly magazine Filasteen Al-Thawra, appearing in Cyprus after a two-month suspension following the PLO evacuation from Beirut, lashed out at what it said were "fierce" attacks from within the Palestinian camp on the "wise and brave leadership of Yasser Arafat."

It said Arafat's meetings with King Hussein of Jordan and other Arab leaders did nothing more than "pursue the goals" of last month's Arab summit in Fez, Morocco.

The Fez summit mandated Arafat to formulate and seek approval of a common stand based on the various peace plans offered in the wake of PLO's evacuation from Beirut in August.

Arafat and Hussein reportedly agreed during their talks last week to start negotiaions with Washington over President Reagan's plan for Palestinian autonomy.

Reagan's plan calls for "full autonomy" for the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, to be followed by Palestinian self-government in association with Jordan.

Prison Inmate Offers Savings For Burials

By DEBRA WILLIAMS

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — A convicted murderer said Saturday he would give $200 he had saved for Christmas to help bury a woman and her son who died during a 70-hour standoff inside an Amtrak sleeping car if no one claimed the bodies.

"I feel sorry for what happened," said William Ellis Childers, who pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in 1976. "I don't think there was any excuse for what he did."

Childers made the statements before it was learned Saturday afternoon that a relative of the dead woman had visited Chapel Hill and identified the bodies.

The owner of a Durham mortuary identified the relative as an aunt of Robinson Ramirez, the dead woman's husband. The mortuary owner said Ramirez's aunt authorized the mortuary to ship the bodies to Barranquilla, Colombia. He said the family has hired the Casa de Funeraria Barranquilla Ltd. to make arrangements there.

The burial will take place at a later date at Jardines de Recuerdo cemetery in Barranquilla.

The bodies of Maria Isabel Ramirez and her son were found in the Silver Star train's sleeping compartment. Mrs. Ramirez' 4-year-old daughter, Zuli Ramirez, was released early last Monday, nearly five hours before Mario Evangelista Villabona Navas surrendered to authorities. The child is under foster care.

Navas, 29, was charged with the kidnapping of Zuli Ramirez in addition to the deaths. He is being held in Central Prison awaiting trial, and has spoken with his attorneys for only about one hour.

Navas and the others boarded the train in Jacksonville, Fla. late Sept. 7 with tickets for New York reserved under the name "W. Rodriguez." Shortly before the train arrived in Raleigh early Sept. 8, children were heard crying and a man shouted in Spanish. Then shots rang out.

The train stopped in Raleigh, where several sporadic shots were fired during the siege.

Two days later police located a man who said he was the husband of the slain woman, but he said he had no plans to come to Raleigh.

"I'm married, got a wife and two small children and I've got to look after them. But I'm willing to sacrifice, if nobody claims them, to bury her and the child, if I can get some more help," said Childers, who had his 60-year prison sentence commuted by Gov. James B. Hunt Jr.

"I'd be willing to give up $200 I've been saving for Christmas for my babies," said the father of a 9-year-old boy and 7-year-old girl.

Childers' sentence was changed to 30 years after the superior court judge who sentenced him told Hunt he had been too severe and asked that the sentence be reduced.

The Rocky Mount resident had maintained throughout his sentencing hearing that he had shot and killed a Durham man only after the man repeatedly threatened him and his family.

"It really hit me bad," Childers said about the ordeal on the Amtrak car. "It's been on my mind ever since. I've been in prison. I pulled six years. But I've been born again. I'm home. I'm happy. I'm sorry for what I did.

"I was very concerned over the mother and baby that was killed. I told my wife I was very concerned over it and I wanted to try and help in some way," Childers, who works for an exterminating company, told UPI in a telephone interview.

"I would lay at night and think about the thing. I'd be willing to give as much as I can to help bury them, if no one claims them," Childers said.

Bethel Man Dies In Wreck

By The Associated Press

Five people have died this weekend on North Carolina highways, including a Bethel man killed in a motorcylce accident, the state Highway Patrol reported Saturday.

Ronnie Eugene Staton, 22, of Bethel, died when the motorcycle he was driving struck a tractor-trailer in Davidson County south of Thomasville. The truck then ran over Staton, troopers said.

Christine Kilpatrick Byrd, 46, of Mount Olive, Brandon Jinette Garner, 9, of Pikeville, and Shirley Cox Pike, 38, of Dudley died in Wayne County in a two-car head-on collision.

Food Stamps Used As 2nd 'Currency'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Investigations in North Carolina and South Carolina reveal that food stamps are used as a "second currency" to buy everything from moonshine and marijuana to machine guns and microwaves, officials say.

In Leesville, S.C., a federal agent working undercover was able to buy $14,000 worth of moonshine with food stamps. In Marion County, S.C., agents have arrested three men on charges of stealing $395,000 in food stamps and burying them in a county landfill. Computer checks have found evidence that in Mecklenburg County alone, some 30 people lied about their incomes to get food stamps.

With simple cheating taking an estimated $1 billion bite out of the nation's $12 billion food stamp program, federal officials have escalated their war on fraud.

"We want to show the public that we are not going to blink and let food stamp fraud go by anymore," said Joe Knott, assistant U.S. attorney for North Carolina's Eastern District, where enforcement efforts led to 42 criminal charges this week and are expected to bring hundreds more. "We're going to root it out, root and branch."

Prosecutions for food stamp fraud were up almost 50 percent nationally in fiscal 1982, and while exact figures are not available in North Carolina and South Carolina, arrests are up.

In South Carolina, a 16-month undercover probe by federal, state and local authorities ended in August with indictments charging 33 persons with illegally trafficking food stamps.

Among those charged was S.C. Rep. Theo Mitchell, 44, of Greenville. He was charged with accepting $5,390 in food stamps as payment on a debt to a legal client. Mitchell pleaded not guilty. His trial ended Friday with a deadlocked jury.

In North Carolina, officials in Mecklenburg and Wake counties have used computers to compare the wages declared by food stamp recipients on applications with the actual wages reported by their employers to the N.C. Employment Security Commission.

The so-called wage match uncovered discrepancies that led to fraud indictments in February against 28 Mecklenburg recipients and a couple from Lincolnton.

In Wake County, the computer bounced back 1,700 possible fraud cases. Federal prosecutors say they'll take 574 cases to court — nearly 10 percent of the county's food stamp recipients.

Similar wage matches are under way in Guilford and Buncombe counties, and three other counties recently converted to computers that make the match possible.

All North Carolina counties are supposed to have the wage match by Jan. 1 as part of a federal mandate to reduce the state's error rate in food stamp applications. In 1981, the last period for which figures are available, an estimated 15.8 percent of the state's food stamp applications contained errors, compared with a 12.6 percent national average.

South Carolina had a 10.5 percent error rate.

Few cheaters escape with huge sums. Wake County's 547 cases, for example, represent an overpayment of about $300,000, or an average of $522 per case.

Operators in the food stamp black market, on the other hand, can reap huge profits, investigators say.

Two Charleston, S.C., welfare workers were charged in July with creating fictitious files to receive more than $50,000 in food stamps that were picked up at post office boxes and then traded for cash.

Merchants who buy stamps illegally typically pay 50 cents to 70 cents on the dollar, then redeem the stamps for face value. Others simply accept stamps in place of cash.

Floyd P. Oswald, 41, of Batesville was charged Aug. 4 with receiving $14,820 in stamps in exchange for money, typewriters, stereos, office equipment, shotguns and a pickup truck.

"Anything you can buy with money, you can buy with food stamps," said Richard Benton, a U.S. Agriculture Department official in Raleigh who supervises undercover operations to combat the misuse of stamps. "You name it, we've bought it."

In his office, Benton has a Thompson semiautomatic submachine gun bought with stamps this year from a grocer in Henderson.

"Last week," he said, "our agents in Florida bought a brand new Chrysler Cordoba automobile."

Burlington Will Use 'Stun Gun'

BURLINGTON, N.C. (UPI) — Burlington police will become the first law enforcement officers in North Carolina to use a new electronic "stun gun" designed to immobilize a person without permanent injury, officials say.

The Taser gun, about the size of a flashlight, uses two small needles or probes to transmit an electrical shock of 50,000 volts. Most electrical outlets in homes carry 120 volts.

Because the needles are not connected to an electrical source, the gun can't seriously injure a person. The gun, which has a range of 2 to 14 feet, shoots the needles into clothing from two power packs.

Lt. John Glenn Jr. said the officers will use the gun in the fall training program.

"If it works, it will be ideal for situations such as the one we had last week when two of our officers were injured while trying to apprehend a subject with a knife," he said.

Police departments in Los Angeles, Washington and Nashville, Tenn., already have equipped their officers with the guns.

Glenn said Burlington's force had been impressed with the effectiveness of the gun, which was tested on patrolman Mark Davis.

"It knocked him flat on his face," Glenn said. "He was up walking around in a few minutes. But it did its job."

The University of Houston found the only physical effects from the gun were a temporary shock and weakening of the joints. The company that manufactures the gun warns the shock may cause the victim to fall.

The gun, sold only by licensed firearms dealers, "is not a play toy," Glenn said.

Glenn said the electronic gun would not be used when police confront a person with a traditional firearm because the electrical shock, which causes the muscles to contract, could cause a person to pull the trigger on a traditional firearm.

The gun, a six-pack of darts, two antennas, a 114-volt battery recharger and targets will cost the department about $409. After the initial expense, Glenn said each shot costs approximately $10.

Lab Will Stress Space Projects

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Space exploration will remain the top priority for the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, and scientists there will steer away from excessive defense work, the new head of the lab says.

Retired Gen. Lew Allen Jr., a physicist and former Air Force chief of staff, said Friday the facility will take on additional national security work only if the JPL can make a unique contribution. He also said the lab will work not only on space missions, but also on earth-based space science work.

Bears Visit Town

LAKE WACCAMAW, N.C. (AP) — Four black bears occupied several trees and captivated Lake Waccamaw residents for hours Friday while a state wildlife inspector tried to dislodge them from a power company truck.

The 300-pound mother bear led her three cubs downtown and up an oak tree in the yard of The Good Shepherd Home, where they sat, munching acorns, until Milton McLean arrived.

McLean, perched in a "cherry picker" provided by Carolina Power & Light Co., pestered the bears with a 20-foot pole while about 50 people looked on, snapping photographs.

After two hours of prodding the bears and hitting the tree limbs, McLean displaced the bears from their new-found home, but the smallest cub was quite persistent and had to be shooed out of a half-dozen trees before it followed its family.

They finally ambled off, without frightening anyone, and headed toward the Little Green Swamp.

Convict Frees Hostage

NEW YORK (AP) — A 33-year-old convict who took five people hostage in a hospital basement during an escape attempt released his remaining hostage and surrendered Saturday, ending a 46½-hour siege.

Larry Van Dyke, a "career criminal" who was to have been sentenced Friday on an armed robbery charge, agreed to give up in exchange for making a final statement to reporters on prison conditions.

"I am not a madman," Van Dyke told reporters through a window shortly before giving up. "I'm a man that was trying to get freedom ... I got caught, I'm here."

The ordeal began at 10 a.m. Thursday when Van Dyke, who had gotten a cast removed from a broken hand, seized a prison guard's gun, wounded the guard in the arm and holed up with five hospital employees in a basement locker room at Brooklyn's Kings County Hospital, the nation's second-largest hospital after Cook County Hospital in Chicago.

At 8:25 a.m. Saturday, Elton Smith, 28, a clerk, was released. Five minutes later, Van Dyke, who is called Larry Gardner in court papers, put his gun on the window ledge and clambered out of the basement, surrendering to heavily armed police and negotiators.

It was not immediately clear what criminal charges Van Dyke would face. Police said a complaint would be drawn up by the Brooklyn district attorney's office after interviews with everyone involved in the case.

In explaining his bid for freedom, Van Dyke told police early in the negotiations that he did not want to spend the rest of his life in prison. That was the maximum term he was to have faced Friday if sentenced as a "persistent felon" on a robbery charge.

However, while in Attica prison in the late 1970s, Van Dyke was pinpointed as an informer on fellow guards and inmates. He denied informing on inmates, but said such reports made his prospects for survival slim if returned to state custody.

He released Smith, who had a pocketknife throughout the incident but chose not to use it, and surrendered after extracting promises he would be held in a federal facility and after alerting reporters to his complaints about prison.

All along, Van Dyke linked his actions to promises of media coverage, repeatedly trading hostages for television and radio time. Various local broadcast stations complied with police requests for help, in one case even to the extent of rerunning a 10-minute statement by the convict during the prime-time news.

Van Dyke, who has spent much of his life behind bars for crimes ranging from car theft to kidnapping, constantly complained the state prison system was rife with corruption and incapable of rehabilitation. He said he also had been used by white prison officials to frame black prison guards on narcotics charges.

Police negotiators who clustered around an 8-foot well leading down to the window of the locker room rode an emotional roller coaster with Van Dyke as the hours passed and he did not sleep. He threatened suicide several times, at one point having Smith tell police, "You're gonna hear a shot. It won't be me. He said the minute you hear the shot you can come and get me."

Another time he told police connected with him by closed-circuit television and telephone, "I've got nothing to lose. We're going to play Russian roulette."

That was the only time police considered rushing Van Dyke. They called it off when the convict spotted movement.

Police Lt. Robert Louden, chief of the Hostage Negotiation Team that says it has never lost a hostage, said after Van Dyke was in custody that those periods were "the most tense for me" because "suicidal persons may also be homicidal persons."

Three hostages were released during the first 14 hours, each after officials complied with demands for food, a radio, a television and media access.

Search New York convict Larry Van Dyke is serched by police after he released the last of five hostages and surrendered. Van Dyke had held the hostages for nearly four days. (AP Laserphoto)

Town Uses Possum To Boost Income

MCCOLL, S.C. (UPI) — Residents threw eggs at their mayor and council members Saturday in McColl's first "Possum Pump Festival," held to save the community from bankruptcy.

Citizens and visitors also ate fried chicken and barbecue and listened to a "Battle of the Bands" — all part of the day-long event designed to bolster the ailing town treasury.

Mayor Robert Jones said the main reason for the shindig was to try to pay off debts the town has incurred in the past 10 years and get cash flowing into the town's bank account. But he said he also thinks the festival will boost the morale of townspeople.

"This is going to help out financially," Jones said. "It will also instill some pride in our citizens and show people that we don't give up and will continue to fight."

"We've had a problem in the last year meeting our monthly obligations such as utility bills and insurance," Jones said. "If the current trend continues the town may face the possibility of bankruptcy in a couple of years from now."

The council came up with the name Possum Pump to symbolize the spirit of the town and the problems it faces.

"The possum is fiesty animal and if he's backed into corner he will fight," Jones said. "We came up with pump because we want to pump money into the city treasury."

The mascot of the festival, an opossum hanging upside down on a tree branch, is emblazoned on first-edition festival tee shirts.

Activities included a dunking booth — on which Jones had the seat of honor — and an egg throw, featuring the mayor and council members as the targets.

Asked if he thought those two particular events would pull in a lot of money, Jones said: "I'm afraid so."

Jones said he expected the festival to raise about $10,000.

He also said the town has taken steps to cut expenses — such as charging $2 a month for garbage collection and pressing collection of back taxes.

"We're making every effort to present a balanced budget in January," he said.

Ex-Weightlifter Saves Trapped Driver

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — George L. Winkleman didn't stop to think when he saw a fellow trucker trapped in a burning rig. As the trapped driver was "praying to the Lord that he wouldn't burn," the former weightlifter helped rip out the steering column to free him.

Moments later, the cab of the overturned truck was engulfed in flames.

"They were calling me a hero or man of the hour," Winkleman, 29, of Morristown, said later. "It makes me feel funny.

"It was just a snap thing. I saw the thing turn over, and I stopped. I didn't care about the fire. I'd take a chance of getting burned to save a man's life. Anybody would."

Winkleman, a driver for Dealer's Wholesale of Indianapolis, said he was driving his rig on Interstate 70 about 2:30 p.m. Friday when he saw a motorist veer from an exit ramp into the path of a truck driven by John Perry of the ABF Freight Systems in Dayton, Ohio.

Perry, 39, tried to avoid a crash by steering his 18-wheeler into the median, but the truck landed in a drainage ditch and tipped over.

Winkleman, who realized Perry was trapped and saw the first small flames emerging from the spilled fuel, pulled his rig over, crossed two lanes of traffic and began tugging at the door of Perry's semi.

"I was scared to death," Winkleman said. "I could see the flames come up around his face. I didn't want to see this man burn."

While Winkleman struggled with the door, other motorists stopped to help out.

"We were trying to get the door open," he said. "He (Perry) was praying to the Lord that he wouldn't burn."

One man sprayed the truck with a fire extinguisher while an unidentified truck driver attached one end of a chain to the door of Perry's cab and the other end to his own truck. He pulled the door off, but Perry still was stuck behind the steering column.

Winkleman fought flames that were entering the cab and wrapped the chain around the column, so that it also could be pulled off. Then he pulled Perry to safety.

After the five-minute rescue was over, Perry was taken to Wishard Hospital, where he was listed in critical condition with second- and third-degree burns over 95 percent of his body, police said.

Grenade Attack Goes Astray

VITORIA, Spain (AP) — Basque separatists fired a grenade at the headquarters of the government's delegate to the autonomous Basque administration Saturday, but it hit an electricity pole, rebounded into a nearby club and failed to explode, police said.

The attack was carried out by several young men who fired the grenade with a launcher from a highway 100 yards from the building.

Astonished motorists told police the attackers got out of their car, halted traffic, calmly aimed the launcher at the building, pressed the trigger and drove away.

Anti-War Marchers Balk As New Sub Is Launched

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — The nation's newest attack submarine, the Salt Lake City, was launched Saturday amid a flurry of red, white and blue balloons and the sound of a Navy band playing "Anchors Aweigh."

Kathleen Garn, wife of Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, smashed a bottle of champagne against the submarine's hull and the vessel slid into the James River.

The $340 million nuclear-powered submarine, built at Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., is scheduled to be delivered to the Navy in early 1984, after outfitting and sea trials.

As a crowd of about 4,500 watched the launching ceremony, about 20 anti-war protesters marched outside the shipyard's gates. The representatives of Pax Christi, a Catholic peace organization, carried signs reading "Make Peace, Not War Ships" and "Thou Shalt Not Kill."

In his speech, Garn defended the Reagan administration's goal of a 600-ship Navy.

"The United States Navy — and, in fact, all of our nation's military services — must be the strongest and most capable we can produce. Only then can we be sure that they will never have to use that strength in warfare," Garn said.

The submarine is the second Navy vessel to bear the name Salt Lake City. Attending the launching were about 20 veterans of the first Salt Lake City, a cruiser that served in the Pacific during World War II.

Death Of Millionairess Baffling Texas Officials

ANAHUAC, Texas (UPI) — Local officials have called in the Texas Rangers to help crack the mysterious slaying of a reclusive, 76-year-old widow who left behind an estimated $4 million estate.

Authorities initially thought Virginia Mayes, 76, died of a heart attack Aug. 1 at her Beach City, Texas, mansion overlooking Trinity Bay, about 30 miles east of Houston. Medical examiners later ruled the death a homicide by suffocation.

The wealthy widow lived alone on the 12-acre estate with a maid and gardener. She rarely ventured out in public. Her husband was dead and she had no children. Her estate, conservatively estimated at $4 million, was left to her relatives and past and present servants.

The woman's maid discovered Mrs. Mayes' body sprawled on her upstairs bedroom floor when she failed to come downstairs for breakfast at the usual time.

Investigators said they found no signs of forced entry into the mansion and no valuables or antiques were missing following.

Sheriff C.E. "Chuck" Morris said authorities had some suspects in the case, but they had not been able to gather enough evidence to charge anyone. So, Morris asked the Rangers for help.

"We will begin helping with the investigation next week. We don't know what we can do at this point until we review the facts in the case," said Haskell Taylor, spokesman for the Texas Ranger's office in Beaumont.

Chief Sheriff's Deputy Fred Dodd said his office was swamped with other investigations and the Rangers had the manpower and expertise to help solve the slaying.

Justice of the Peace Larry Cryer said photographs of the crime scene and the full autopsy reports, made public for the first time Friday, contained the most revealing evidence about the killing.

Cryer said the main signs of foul play were several objects knocked over on a bedside table near the spot where Mrs. Mayes' crumpled body was found.

Photographs showed Mrs. Mayes' body had been straightened out and covered with a quilt, Cryer noted. But her body was lying beside her bed with her head near the foot of the bed, which would indicate she had not simply not rolled off the bed.

The autopsy report, which concluded Mrs. Mayes died of suffocation, made particular note of that mark. The medical examiner also cited bruises and cuts of the inside of her upper and lower lips.

Fine Arts Ball '82

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Fine Arts Ball, sponsored each fall by the East Carolina Art Society, was held Friday evening at the Greenville Country Club.

It will benefit the Greenville Museum of Art. The theme this year was "Amusing Muses."

Dancing featuring music by Bert Massengale's Orchestra followed a seated dinner.

In recent years, funds raised by the ball have purchased the Sohmer parlor grand piano, circa 1890, in the museum, which is used for musical and dramatic events and to renovate the facility including the purchase of a fire and theft security system and new gallery lighting.

The foyer of the country club was decorated with potted mums in yellow and bronze and green plants. A focal point was the credenza which featured a violin arrangement with yellow mums, bronze pom pons, fall foliage and berries. Greeting guests were Mr. and Mrs. Roger L. Mann and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Mills Jr.

The club ballroom and bandstand were accented with potted green plants and mums in fall colors. The walls featured musical notes and instruments painted in fluorescent colors designed by Mrs. William Monroe. Mrs. Tran Gordley created black and white ink bottle mobiles accented by silver glitter which were hanging from the ceiling. The centers were highlighted by art forms including a violin, facial masks, ballet dancers, artist palette, piano and French horn.

Future projects, which could be funded by the Fine Arts Ball profits, include an artmobile which would be a mini museum on wheels circulating throughout Pitt County and eastern North Carolina.

Co-chairmen of this year's ball were Mr. and Mrs. Mann with Mrs. J.C. Whitehurst, invitations, Mrs. Ira Hardy, dinner, Mrs. Don White, decorations, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Harrington and Charles Entzminger, Mrs. Donald Hardee, special activities, Mrs. Ed Warren, tables, and Mrs. Mills, publicity.

DECORATING ... for the Fine Arts Ball was completed by Mrs. Eric Fearrington, Mrs. C. Frank Dail, Mrs. Percy Pair, Mrs. Ed Warren and Mrs. Phillip A. Lewis, left to right.

Rates On Educational Loans To Drop Nov. 1

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interest rates drop Nov. 1 on a federal education loan program for parents and students, and financial aid officials predict a surge in new applications.

The rate on Parent Loans for Undergraduate Students will drop from 14 percent to 12 percent for loans made after Nov. 1, the Education Department announced this month. The rate is tied to interest rates on 91-day Treasury Bills, which dropped for the year ending Sept. 30.

"I suspect we'll see an increase in volume when that change in the interest rate occurs," said Dallas Martin, executive director of the National Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators. "They'll probably borrow for the second semester of the year."

The loan program, originally for parents, was expanded last year to include self-supporting undergraduate students and graduate and professional students. Borrowers must begin repaying interest 60 days after getting the loan.

The PLUS program has more liberal eligibility rules but a higher rate and less attractive terms than the far larger Guaranteed Student Loan program. Interest is 9 percent on guaranteed loans, and repayment does not begin until after graduation.

In the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, banks made $94.6 million in PLUS loans to 24,998 parents and 11,770 students, mainly graduate and professional students, department figures show.

The program expanded dramatically since last year. From January 1981, when it began, through Sept. 30 of last year, only $27 million in loans were made to about 11,000 people.

The PLUS borrowing limit is $3,000 for parents of undergraduate students, $5,000 for graduate students and $2,500 for self-supporting undergraduates.

UNC Board Member Wants Private Aid Reviewed

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A member of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors has called for a change in a state law requiring private colleges in the state to have their requests for state aid reviewed by the board.

The board also approved budget recommendations at its Friday meeting calling for $1.48 billion in the next two years — an increase of $32 million over present levels.

Walter Davis, a Texas millionaire who also serves on the Duke University board of trustees, told board members Friday that the law has been ineffective, has caused dissension and should be abolished. The review requirement was intended to bring about cooperation and comprehensive planning among private and insitutitions.

Davis' suggestion drew support from other board members, who said the oversight requirement border on being a conflict of interest.

Board members said the screening function for private aid requests could just as easily be handled by the Advisory Budget Commission, which already reviews budget requests.

In a separate action, the board voted against endorsing a $175 per-student increase sought by the N.C. Association of Independent Colleges and Universities.

The budget that received approval Friday calls for $713 million in the first year — $12 million more than current funding — and $774 million for the second year — a jump of $20 million.

The recommendations include a request that funding be provided to reinstitute the regular merit salary increases for university employees at estimated costs of $20 million for the first year and $43 million for the second year. In addition, the recommendations proposed that $31 million and $54 million be allocated for academic salary increases, the amounts required for increases of 9 percent the first year of the biennium and 6.5 percent for 1984-85.

The board recommended that current operations appropriations of $50 million for 1983-84, and $58 million for 1984-85, be requested of the General Assembly for the following expansions and improvements to:

— Restore budgeted positions lost in the June 1982 appropriations reductions.

— Meet the cost of enrollment growth of about 1.5 percent over the biennium.

— Complete developmental funding of the East Carolina University Medical School and the veterinary medicine programs.

— Initiate a major new thrust in research and teaching programs in engineering and the sciences.

YIPES! Florida State Does It To Pirates Again, 56-17

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — This time it was supposed to be different. East Carolina coach Ed Emory promised as much. So did many of his players.

It wasn't.

Florida State failed to match its 63-7 win over ECU two years ago, but FSU did not fail in much else it set out to do here Saturday night.

Keyed by a the passing of quarterbacks Kelly Lowrey and Blair Williams and the running and receiving of tailback Greg Allen, FSU rolled up a school-record 706 yards total offense en route to a 56-17 victory over ECU last night.

With a less-than-capacity crowd of 46,283 watching at Doak Campbell Stadium, 19th-ranked FSU rolled up 456 yards passing and 250 rushing.

Florida State's record offensive show eclipsed the Seminoles' old record of 626 set against Memphis State in 1969. FSU averaged 9.17 yards per play for the night against ECU, ranked 16th in the nation in defense going into the game.

"As far as I'm concerned, they are probably one of the most explosive teams in America," Emory said. "It's hard to explain the pain and hurt I feel right now.

"We came into this game with the 16th-best defense in the country and gave up 700 yards," Emory added. "It's really hard to understand how that happened.

"This game was a total embarrassment," Emory said. "For a team like ours with the quickness and strength on defense to give up 700 yards has to be my fault."

The Seminoles did it to the Pirates in nearly every way possible. They rolled to a 35-3 lead at the half and never looked

Negotiations May Be In Serious Trouble

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Negotiations to end the 26-day National Football League players' strike are in serious trouble, sources close to both sides agreed Saturday.

Meanwhile, NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle indicated the two sides had a long way to go before reaching an agreement, but refused to speculate whether the entire season was being jeopardized by the prolonged negotiations.

Sam Kagel, a private mediator who entered the talks Tuesday night, was shuttling negotiators in and out of his suite. With a news blackout in effect, no statements were issued, but sources said progress was at a virtual standstill Saturday, with the key economic issues yet to be touched upon.

"Overall, the talks are in serious trouble. I am usually optimistic but now I am unsure whether there will actually be a settlement," said a source close to management.

A second source, contacted prior to Kagel's reinforcing the news blackout and resumption of bargaining Saturday, agreed and said union negotiators were concerned management was "stalling the talks, awaiting marching orders from the owners."

The owners' six-member executive committee was to meet this weekend in New York, reviewing its options on the remainder of the season.

Rozelle, in a telephone interview from his home in Harrison, N.Y., refused to characterize the status of the talks, but did say, "Nothing would cause you to think that we're imminently going to have something."

Saturday, Kagel said in a terse statement the parties were "engaged in intense, continuous negotiations on non-economic issues."

Kagel has reverted to shuttle diplomacy in an attempt to keep the talks alive. The two sides have not met since Thursday night, except for an acrimonious five-minute encounter Friday.

The talks broke down Friday when the union said management had demanded the dropping of an unfair labor practice complaint against the league as a precondition to further bargaining, and the Management Council said the union was attempting to add new isues to the talks, including the right to institute new litigation after an agreement.

The union stages its first "aal-star" game Sunday at Washington's RFK Stadium, with a second game set for Monday night in Los Angeles. The games are being bankrolled by Turner Broadcasting System, a cable television network.

The Associated Press has learned that the format of future union-organized games was to be discussed at a secret meeting here involving TBS President Robert Wussler and union officials.

Among the items for discussion, according to union sources, was the changing of the games' format, discarding the all-star concept in future games in favor of one bringing together two teams reflecting actual franchises.

Union officials, who asked not to be identified, confirmed the meeting and said it involved the game's format but declined to be specific.

As an example of the management "stalling" tactics being alleged by the union, a source late Friday night said the owners' negotiators have raised the question of "facial hair ... one of the items won by the players in the previously negotiated contract."

A Managment Council spokesman repeatedly refused Saturday to comment on the union allegations of stalling.

With the pace of the talks slowed, it appeared more certain than ever that a fifth weekend of the regular season would be affected by the strike which began Sept. 21. League officials have said that only two of the affected weeks could be made up, leaving — at this point — a 13-week season. The league has also said the integrity of the schedule would necessitate no less than a 12-game season.

Rozelle said he was not concerned yet that the entire season might be threatened. "I expect there'll be ups and downs in negotiations. He (Kagel) has them in intense bargaining. You can't predict what's going to happen."

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gorman Thomas and Robin Yount each drove in two runs in Milwaukee's six-run seventh inning, and the Brewers, their backs to the wall once again, charged to a 7-5 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday to even baseball's 79th World Series at two games apiece.

Trailing 5-1, the Brewers were headed for a third loss in four 1982 World Series games — a deficit from which only four teams have recovered — when they sent 12 men to the plate in the seventh.

"Hopefully, this will give us a lift for the rest of the Series," said Paul Molitor, who walked and eventually scored the tying run in Milwaukee's big inning. "We didn't want to be staring into a situation of having to win three in a row."

Such a predicament would have been nothing new. They had to beat Baltimore on the last day of the regular season — after losing three in a row to the Orioles — to win the American League East. They did.

In the AL playoffs, the Brewers fell behind West champion California 0-2 and had to win three straight games for their first American League pennant. They did.

"The attitude of this team very seldom changes, no matter what the situation," said Yount, whose two-run, check-swing single drew the Brewers to within one run, 5-4.

"When you play in a World Series, every game is important," Yount continued. "This took this game the same as any, with the attitude that we want to win."

At the same time, the 56,560 fans who braved a cold, windy day at Milwaukee County Stadium were left in suspense over whether one of their favorite sons, relief ace Rollie Fingers, was able to pitch.

Left-handed reliever Bob McClure stifled a potential St. Louis rally in the eighth with a double-play pitch, then retired the side in order in the ninth, striking out Tommy Herr and pinch-hitter Gene Tenace to end the game as Fingers warmed up in the bullpen. Fingers has not pitched since Sept. 2 because of a torn muscle in his right forearm.

Afterward, Brewers Manager Harvey Kuenn, who had said earlier in the week that Fingers could pitch perhaps one inning, finally admitted that his ace was unavailable.

"He said his arm was a little stiff, so we would have had to go to Peter Ladd," Kuenn said.

The absence of another relief star, St. Louis' Bruce Sutter, also became an issue.

Stankavage's TD Aerials Pace North Carolina Over State, 41-9

AP Sports Writer

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — In what might have been his last starting assignment, North Carolina quarterback Scott Stankavage tied a school record Saturday as the 11th-ranked Tar Heels routed North Carolina State 41-9.

Stankavage completed 11 of 18 passes for 203 yards and four touchdowns. The scoring passes tied a mark set by Chris Kupec against Army in 1974.

After the game, Stankavage, who replaced injured starter Rod Elkins in the fourth game, sounded like a quarterback about to relinquish his job.

"I'll do whatever I can to help the team," he said. "I put the team ahead of personal goals."

Although Elkins suited up Saturday and sat on the sidelines, North Carolina coach Dick Crum hasn't announced the starter for the Tar Heels' next game Oct. 30 against Maryland. But, he noted, "It's a pleasant problem."

"Both are unique in what they do. Scott stands in the pocket well, while Rod is at his best when he gets chased out of the pocket," Smith said.

N.C. State coach Monte Kiffin said he was surprised that the Tar Heel offense was so successful with its air attack.

"We didn't think they could throw the football that well. Over the last three years we haven't given up that many big pass plays on our coverages, but we did today," Kiffin said.

Stankavage opened with a first-quarter 56-yard scoring pass to tailback Kelvin Bryant, who rushed 20 times for 107 yards in his first start since the opening game against Pittsburgh. Stankavage added a 30-yard strike to Victor Harrison late in the second quarter to give the Tar Heels a commanding 17-0 lead. Following the second of two Brooks Barwick field goals, Stankavage hit Mark Smith with a 20-yard scoring pass with 6:36 remaining in the third quarter to make it 27-2.

The defense provided all of N.C. State's scoring. After linebacker Mark Franklin blocked a punt through its end zone to end the first half, Dee Dee Hoggard took an interception 44 yards for a touchdown with 9:21 left to play.

North Carolina's defense, ranked first in the nation, shut down all facets of the Wolfpack offense. It allowed four first downs and 48 yards of offense in the first half.

N.C. State's offense never crossed midfield as managed only two first downs in the second half.

The Tar Heels are now 5-1, 2-0 in the ACC, while N.C. State dropped to 4-2 and 2-2.

In the opening drive, the Tar Heels moved from their own 26 to the 44, where Stankavage hit Bryant with a 56-yard scoring pass with 7:08 remaining in the period for a 7-0 lead.

In the second quarter, North Carolina drove to the Wolfpack 12, where Barwick booted a 29-yard field goal with 7:54 left to extend the Tar Heel lead to 10-0.

After the North Carolina defense held N.C. State without a first down for the fourth time in six possessions, Stankavage found Harrison behind the Wolfpack defense for a 30-yard touchdown pass with 5:03 remaining.

Austin Sparkles As Tigers Rip Blue Devils With 49-14 Victory

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — Tailback Cliff Austin tore up the turf to lead No. 20 Clemson to a 49-14 football win over Atlantic Coast Conference rival Duke here Saturday afternoon.

The senior from Scottdale, Ga., made three touchdowns and rushed 27 times for 260 yards, breaking Clemson's single-game rushing record of 234 yards, set in 1952 by Don King.

Both teams racked up a healthy share of penalties, which cost Clemson 152 yards and Duke 132 yards.

Duke, capitalizing on quarterback Ben Bennett's passing skills, drew first blood less than 5 minutes into the game. Bennett hit wide receive Chris Castor in the end zone with a 42-yarder for the score. The kick by John Tolish was good for the extra point.

The Clemson Tigers knotted the score with 6:26 remaining as Austin finished a 10-play, 80-yard drive by rushing in for the score from the 1-yard line.

The rest of the quarter was scoreless. But the Tigers ended an 80-yard drive that began in the first period with Austin running 47 yards for a touchdown just 8 seconds into the second quarter. Bob Paulling's kick gave the Tigers a 14-7 lead.

The Blue Devils were behind rest of the game.

Duke, hindered by a 15-yard penalty for clipping, advanced to the 36 before disaster struck. Tiger linebacker Johnny Rembert intercepted a Blue Devil pass and returned it 43 yards for Clemson's third touchdown with 12:57 remaining in the first half.

Clemson was the next to be hit by a turnover as Blue Devil defensive back Brick Johnstone grabbed a pass by Tiger quarterback Mike Eppley, who was subbing for the injured Homer Jordan.

Duke running back Joe Blunk capped a subsequent 15-yard drive with a 1-yard run for the Blue Devils' last touchdown and the last score of the half.

Clemson, the defending national champions, owned the second half as Austin made his third touchdown of the afternoon midway through the third quarter.

Tiger quarterback Anthony Parete, who replaced Eppley, hit tight end K.D. Dunn with a 6-yard touchdown pass early in the fourth quarter.

The win lifted Clemson to 4-1-1 overall and 2-0 in the ACC. Duke dropped to 3-3 overall and 1-1 in the conference.

Tennessee Stuns Alabama, 35-28

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Alan Cockrell fired two touchdown passes, Fuad Reveiz kicked four field goals and Chuck Coleman iced it with a 34-yard touchdown run in the final quarter as Tennessee upset second-ranked Alabama 35-28 in a Southeastern Conference football game Saturday.

The victory ended 11 years of frustration for the Vols, who had not won this annual skirmish since a 24-0 triumph in 1970.

Alabama, which earlier closed a 14-point defficit to seven, threatened in the final 90 seconds, moving to the Tennessee 17 where Mike Terry intercepted a passed, tipped by Lee Jenkins, in the end zone to seal the victory with 17 seconds remaining.

The Vols, trailing 21-13 at halftime, took the lead with an 11-point outburst within a span of 1:32 early in the third quarter.

Coleman had a 21-yard run and Cockrell completed a 13-yard pass in the opening drive of the second half which ended on Reveiz' 45-yard field goal two plays after Cockrell's apparent 24-yard touchdown pass to Darryal Wilson was nullified by an illegal use of hands infraction.

Two plays later, Ken Coley was stripped of the ball as he rounded the right corner and Tennessee's Jenkins covered at the Alabama 38. Two plays later, Cockrell fired a 39-yard touchdown pass to Mike Miller, who made the reception on the Alabama 13. Cockrell then connected with Kenny Jones on a two-point conversion and the Vols led 24-21.

It was the first setback in six games for Alabama as the Crimson Tide's SEC record fell to 2-1. Tennessee went to 3-2-1 overall and 1-1-1 in the conference.

Reveiz came back with a 40-yard field goal with 2:35 left in the third quarter and Coleman applied the clincher on his 34-yard run with 7:21 remaining, getting a springing block from split end Willie Gault.

Tennessee's other scoring came on Reveiz field goals of 22 and 32 yards and a 52-yard pass from Cockrell to Gault, the world class track star who easily got behind the Alabama secondary.

Alabama took a 21-13 halftime lead on a four-yard run by Joe Carter and two touchdown passes by Walter Lewis, a 35-yarder to Jesse Bendross and a 38-yarder to Joey Jones.

After the Vols had built a 35-21 advantage, Alabama quickly drove 79 yards to score on Linnie Patrick's 14-yard sweep with 5:04 remaining.

Pitt (#3) 39
Temple 17

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dan Marino, ending a four-game slump, threw for three touchdowns and 344 yards as third-ranked Pitt erupted in the second half to beat Temple 38-17 in college football Saturday.

Marino, despite throwing three costly interceptions, hit Julius Dawkins in the right corner of the end zone on a 21-yard touchdown play late in the third quarter to lift the unbeaten Panthers to a 24-17 lead.

Marino, completing 26 of 36 attempts for the day, then set up the first of two scoring runs by Bill Beach with a 51-yard pass play to Dawkins in the fourth quarter. Five plays later, Beach gave Pitt a 31-17 lead with 5:41 remaining by leaping into the end zone from a yard out.

Marino staked Pitt to a 17-0 lead by throwing a pair of touchdown passes to Dwight Collins, then rallied the Panthers after Temple struck quickly for a pair of touchdowns within a 2:18 span to make the score 17-14 in the third quarter.

Temple quarterback Mike Riordan hit Reggie Brown on a 58-yard touchdown pass play with 9:13 left in the third quarter, then threw a 33-yard scoring pass to Rod Moore to cut Pitt's lead to three points.

Georgia (#4) 27
Vanderbilt 13

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Terry Hoage, the nation's interception leader, stole three passes Saturday, including one in the final quarter to set up a 7-yard go-ahead touchdown by Barry Young, to boost the undefeated and fourth-ranked Bulldogs to a 27-13 Southeastern Conference football victory over surprising Vanderbilt.

Young's TD plunge gave struggling Georgia a 20-13 lead 4:44 into the fourth quarter. Herschel Walker closed out the scoring with a 26-yard burst in the closing minutes, giving the two-time All-American tailback 42 career touchdowns, equaling the SEC mark set by Charles Alexander of Louisiana State.

The Bulldogs, 6-0, and 3-0 in the league, led 10-6 at intermission in a game highlighted by outstanding defensive play and 11 turnovers, seven by Georgia.

Vanderbilt, 3-3, and 1-2 in the SEC, took a 6-0 lead after only 3:58 of play when Georgia quarterback John Lastinger, who had six turnovers on the day, fumbled on the Bulldogs' first two series deep in his own territory.

Vandy, however, stymied by a tough Georgia defense that sacked Commodore quarterback Whit Taylor nine times for 72 yards in losses, couldn't move the ball and settled for field goals of 29 and 28 yards by Ricky Anderson.

The Bulldogs took the lead 7-6 early in the second period when Lastinger plunged over from 1-yard out after Hoage set up the score with his first interception, returning a Taylor pass 18 yards to the Commodore 24.

Kevin Butler, who had a 35-yard field goal in the third period, kicked a 28-yarder late in the second quarter to give Georgia its halftime edge.

Hoage also set up Butler's third period three-pointer when he grabbed his second interception and returned it 20 yards to midfield.

Hoage now has 10 interceptions for the year, equaling the Georgia season record set by Jake Scott in 1968. The Bulldogs also lead the nation in total interceptions with 25 in six games.

Vanderbilt took a 13-10 lead midway in the third period when Bob O'Connor recovered a Lastinger fumble, his third of the game, and Keith Edwards capped a 46-yard drive with a one-yard scoring plunge.

The Bulldogs, however, tied it three seconds into the final quarter on Butler's 35-yard field goal.

Lastinger wound up with only five completions in 10 attempts for 27 yards and three interceptions. Taylor was 27 of 58 pass attempts for 257 yards, three interceptions and a fumble.

Nebraska (#6) 42
Kansas State 13

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Junior tailback Mike Rozier scored two touchdowns and rushed for 204 yards to lead No. 6-ranked Nebraska to a 42-13 Big 8 Conference football victory Saturday over Kansas State.

Rozier's performance, on 21 rushing attempts, made him the eighth all-time leading Husker rusher. He became the second Cornhusker to rush for more than 200 yards in consecutive games.

Senior tailback Roger Craig, who has been slowed by a thigh injury, carried seven times for 20 yards and became the Huskers' seventh all-time leading rusher.

Nebraska, 5-1, took a 21-to-3 halftime lead on touchdown runs of 27 and 46 yards by Rozier and 3 yards by fullback Doug Wilkening.

The Wildcats, 3-2-1, came back in the third quarter with a 1-yard touchdown run by quarterback Darrell Dickey and a 45-yard field goal by Willis, his longest ever.

Nebraska scored twice in the third quarter on a 2-yard pass from quarterback Turner Gill to tightend Jamie Williams and a 19-yard run by I-back Jeff Smith.

Penn State (#8) 28
Syracuse 7

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Running back Curt Warner, whose contribution has been curtailed by Penn State's switch to a pass-oriented offense, broke loose for 148 yards and two touchdowns Saturday as the eighth-ranked Nittany Lions beat Syracuse 28-7 in the 60th meeting of the Eastern football rivals.

Penn State quarterback Todd Blackledge completed 10 of 15 passes for 120 yards and twice dove across from the 1 for touchdowns.

It was the 12th straight victory for Penn State over Syracuse, and the Nittany Lions' fifth triumph this season against one loss. Syracuse's record dropped to 1-5.

Penn State took advantage of a wind-blown 21-yard Syracuse punt and the first of two pass interceptions by Dave Paffenroth to build a 14-0 lead with 12:34 left to play in the first half.

After the poor punt by Jay Ross gave Penn State the ball at the Orange 35, the Lions scored on a 4-yard run by Warner for a 7-0 lead. They were aided by a 19-yard pass interference penalty and an offside infraction.

Paffenroth then intercepted a pass by Syracuse quarterback Todd Norley at the Penn State 18, and Blackledge then directed an 11-play, 82-yard drive, capped by the first of his scoring dives.

The key plays in the drive were a pair of 21-yard completions by Blackledge to Kenny Jackson and Kevin Baugh, and a 13-yard run by Joel Coles that gave State a first and goal at the 1.

Syracuse scored after Baugh fumbled a punt return at the Penn State 10, and Larry Morris of the Orange recovered. Brent Ziegler picked up four yards on first down, and on third down, Norley passed six yards to Nick Bruckner for the touchdown.

State came right back with a 13-play, 72-yard drive to go ahead 21-7 with 52 seconds left in the half. Blackledge completed four passes, while Warner contributed 21 yards rushing in the drive, which ended with Blackledge's second touchdown.

In the second half, Penn State's defense contained the Syracuse attack, while Warner romped 34 yards for his second touchdown of the game to make it 28-7.

Arizona 15
Notre Dame (#9) .. 13

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Max Zendejas' third field goal of the game, a 48-yarder as time ran out Saturday, lifted Arizona to a 16-13 victory over previously unbeaten and ninth-ranked Notre Dame.

The Wildcats, who had trailed 10-0, mounted a final drive from their own 20, with quarterback Tom Tunnicliffe firing 19 yards to Brad Anderson to set the ball at the Irish 32 with six seconds remaining. After Arizona called time out, Zendejas drilled home the winning points as the clock ran out.

Arizona scored its only touchdown of the game midway through the fourth quarter as Phil Freeman capped a 79-yard drive by plunging the final yard. The score was the first rushing touchdown yielded by Notre Dame this season and Zendejas' conversion tied the game at 13-13 with 8:40 left to play.

Notre Dame, seeking its fifth victory, took an early 10-0 lead on a 25-yard TD gallop by freshman Allen Pinkett and a 22-yard field goal by Mike Johnston.

But early in the third quarter, Arizona's Ray Moret intercepted a Blair Kiel pass to set up Zendejas' first field goal, a 38-yard boot, and Don Be'Ans stripped the ball from Joe Howard on the ensuing kickoff for a Wildcat first down at the Notre Dame 14. Although Arizona could not gain, Zendejas nailed a 32-yard field goal to pull the Wildcats within 10-6.

The Irish, plagued by turnovers all day, managed only one score in the second half, that coming on a 43-yard field goal by Johnston to build a 13-6 cushion.

Navy 39
William & Mary 3

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — Quarterback Marco Pagnanelli ran for two touchdowns and set up two others with key pass completions Saturday, guiding Navy to a 39-3 victory over William & Mary.

The junior quarterback completed 17 of 25 passes for 217 yards before he was shaken up and left the game late in the third quarter. Pagnanelli was not seriously injured, and returned in the fourth qurter to hold the ball on an extra point conversion.

Navy's defense, which had given up 121 points in five previous games, shut out the Indians after allowing a 35-yard field goal by Brian Morris the first time William & Mary got the ball.

Navy bunched most of its scoring within a 5½-minute span in the first and second quarters.

Maryland Rips Deacs, 52-24

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — John Nash ran for three touchdowns, one from 67 yards, and Boomer Esiason passed for three more as Maryland walloped pass-happy Wake Forest 52-24 in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Terps, 4-3, and left them in a first-place tie with Clemson and North Carolina for the ACC lead at 2-0.

Wake Forest, 3-4 including 0-3 in the ACC, pulled to within 31-24 midway through the third period after Michael Ramseur, who rushed for 104 yards, scored two of his four rushing touchdowns with a 44-second span.

But Maryland scored on its next three possessions on runs of two yards by Rick Badanjek and five by Nash, and a 24-yard pass from Esiason to Mike Lewis, to build a commanding 52-31 lead.

Esiason also completed two TD passes to Greg Hill for 22 yards second quarter, and another for 28 yards to start the third quarter, making it 31-10.

Gary Schofield of Wake Forest completed 40 of 65 passes for 363 yards while Esiason was 12-for-29 and 192 yards.

Maryland, which has whipped Wake in 10 of their last 11 meetings, outgained the Demon Deacons 345-83 on the ground.

Auburn 24
Georgia Tech 0

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn Tiger quarterback Randy Campbell hit Clayton Beauford on a 60-yard scoring bomb that broke open a tight game Saturday as a swarming Tiger defense and a running attack led by Lionel James gave Auburn a 24-0 victory over Georgia Tech.

The Tiger defense was so dominant that, near the end of the third quarter, Georgia Tech's Yellowjackets had mustered only three first downs and a total offense of 54 yards.

Auburn's David King picked off his fifth interception of the year in the final quarter as Auburn kept Tech off the board and raised the Tiger record to 5-1. Tech fell to 3-3.

The victory came in the 85th renewal of one of the Deep South's oldest rivalries that gave Auburn of the Southeastern Conference an overall 42-39-4 edge over Tech of the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The game was deadlocked when Beauford, previously Auburn's No. 2 quarterback and now a wideout, raced past the Tech's secondary and Campbell hit on a 60-yard touchdown pass with two minutes left in the opening quarter.

James, leading the Tiger wishbone running game while freshman sensation Bo Jackson was sidelined by an injury, returned a punt 62 yards to set up a 28-yard field goal by Al Del Greco that made it 10-0 at the half.

Auburn put the game away in the third quarter as James sprinted 10 yards for a touchdown capping an 80-yard drive, then Campbell went to the air to lead Auburn to another score, which Greg Pratt claimed with a 1-yard run making it 24-0.

Tech punter Ron Rice kept the score close for a while with booming punts, but Tech quarterback Jim Bob Taylor and runner Robert Lavette were shut down by the Auburn defense.

Florida 77
West Texas 14

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Quarterback Wayne Peace passed for 289 yards and three touchdowns Saturday as Florida demolished West Texas State 77-14 in nonconference college football action.

Lorenzo Hampton accounted for three more touchdowns, including an 86-yard run, and John L. Williams broke loose for two. Williams, a freshman, carried 18 times for a total of 167 yards and scampered 76 yards for his second score.

Florida, 4-2, racked up 783 yards total offense. The last time the Gators moved the ball so freely was 1928, when they gained 651 yards against Mercer.

A homecoming crowd of 72,885 cheered the Gators' biggest victory in 54 years. It was the most Florida had scored since a 59-34 victory over Houston in 1969.

The loss wasn't West Texas State's most humiliating — New Mexico Military trounced the Buffaloes 99-0 in 1917. This drubbing dropped them to 1-5 for the 1982 season.

This may have been a big victory, but it wasn't Florida's biggest ever. That was a 144-0 romp over Florida Southern in 1913.

Peace completed 15 of 17 passes before retiring at halftime, finding Tyrone Young twice and fullback James Jones once in the end zone.

West Texas State turned a pair of onsides kicks into a 14-7 lead in the first quarter, but Florida was up for good before the half was over. Quarterback Victor McGee threw 46 yards to Eddie Johnson 19 minutes into the game for the first touchdown, and added a 16-yard scoring pass to Curtis Bennett with 6:32 left in the period.

Between the West Texas State fumbles, Peace directed an 88-yard scoring drive that took nine plays and culminated in a 2-yard scoring run by Williams.

A third onsides kick failed when the Buffaloes touched the ball before it went 10 yards. The Gators wasted little time and launched a scoring onslaught that didn't stop until time ran out.

The Gators tied it when Hampton dived over from the 3-yard line, capping a seven-play, 49-yard march.

Appalachian 49
Lenoir Rhyne.....0

BOONE (AP) — Stan Goodson passed for three touchdowns, ran for a fourth and was perfect on seven point-after attempts as Appalachian State overpowered Lenoir-Rhyne 49-0 in college football Saturday.

Goodson hit Terrell Murphy on a 16-yard scoring strike and followed with a 6-yard touchdown pass 10 seconds later after the Bears fumbled away the kickoff.

Tim Martin rambled 44 yards for another touchdown and Goodson rolled into the end zone from 1 yard out to make it 28-0 after the first quarter.

After two scoreless periods, Goodson sparked a fourth-quarter eruption when he hit Struggie Smith for a 46-yard touchdown. Running back Johnny Sowell broke free for a 74-yard scoring run and bulled in from the 1 in the closing three minutes.

Sowell led all rushers with 130 yards as Appalachian State won its third straight to even its record at 3-3. Lenoir-Rhyne, suffering from three interceptions and three lost fumbles, fell to 2-3-1.

Facemasking
Virginia Tech tailback Billy Hite (31) is caught and pulled down by West Virginia's Tim Agee during first quarter action. Agee, however, used the facemask of Hite and drew a penalty on the play. (AP Laserphoto)

Furman Shocks South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Furman got two touchdown passes from quarterback David Charpia and a blocked punt for a touchdown from defensive back Ernest Gibson to stun South Carolina 28-23 in college football Saturday.

Furman, a Division I-AA team in the NCAA, built up a 21-3 lead after three quarters and held on, despite a furious three-touchdown rally in the fourth period by highly-favored I-A South Carolina.

Both teams were almost comatose for much of the first half, but South Carolina defensive end Phil Ellis fell on a Charpia fumble at the Furman 11 late in the first quarter.

South Carolina, now 3-3, was unable to move the ball and had to settle for a 21-yard Mark Fleetwood field goal.

Furman, now 4-2, struck for two touchdowns in the second quarter. Charpia drove his team 51 yards in 14 plays and hit tight end Steve Coppenger with a 3-yard touchdown pass late in the quarter.

On the next series, South Carolina was unable to move the ball and Chris Norman had to punt. But Gibson, who had already recovered a key fumble to end a Gamecock drive, broke through and blocked the punt at the Gamecock 10.

The ball bounced into the end zone, where Gibson fell on it, giving underdog Furman 14-3 halftime lead.

The Gamecocks continued to sputter in the second half as Charpia directed his team 78 yards in 11 plays. He capped the march by hitting receiver Jack Borders with a 2-yard touchdown pass to make it 21-3 at the end of the third quarter.

UCLA Storms Past Washington St.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Jojo Townsell dashed 53 yards on a flanker reverse midway through the third period to put sluggish UCLA ahead to stay Saturday and the 12th-ranked Bruins went from there to a decisive 42-17 victory over Washington State in a Pacific-10 Conference football game at the Rose Bowl.

The visiting Cougars, listed as 23-point underdogs, took a 17-14 advantage by scoring 10 points early in the third quarter before Townsell's touchdown run with 6:55 to go in the period ignited a four-touchdown UCLA outburst in a span of 8:39.

The Bruins also scored in the third quarter on a 27-yard pass from quarterback Tom Ramsey to wide receiver Cormac Carney and a 65-yard interception return by linebacker Blanchard Montgomery. They got on the scoreboard again after only 1:44 of the final period on a 20-yard pass from Ramsey to wide receiver Dokie Williams.

UCLA now has a 1-0-1 conference record and a 5-0-1 overall mark while WSU fell to 0-1-1 in league action and 1-4-1 on the season.

The Bruins took a 14-0 lead by scoring touchdowns on two of their first three possessions. A 4-yard pass from Ramsey to fullback Toa Saipale after only 3:59 of play capped a 60-yard, seven-play drive and Burness Scott's 11-yard run with 3:54 left in the opening period gave UCLA a two-touchdown lead.

However, the Cougars then moved 80 yards on 11 plays, scoring on a 4-yard run by quarterback Ricky Turner in the opening minute of the second quarter.

There was no scoring after that until Washington State earned a 14-14 tie by moving 63 yards on four plays on its first possession of the second half. The Cougars scored on their first touchdown pass of the year, a 45-yarder from quarterback Clete Casper to wide receiver T.J. Jones.

WSU took its 17-14 lead with 8:03 remaining in the third period on a 28-yard field goal by John Traut.

Ramsey, who led the nation in passing efficiency going into the game, completed 17 of his 27 passing attempts for 238 yards. He was just six of 11 for 65 yards in the first half.

W. Virginia (#13) . . 16
Virginia Tech 6

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Paul Woodside booted three field goals and Jeff Hostetler fired a touchdown pass as West Virginia's 13th-ranked Mountaineers cashed in on Virginia Tech turnovers Saturday to escape with a 16-6 football victory over the Hokies.

The triumph improved the Mountaineers' record to 5-1 while Virginia Tech slipped to 3-3.

Woodside, a sophomore walkon, connected from 44, 17 and 35 yards with one of his three boots being kicked into the teeth of 23-mph wind. Hostetler teamed with wide receiver Wayne Brown for a 10-yard scoring strike with Brown making a diving catch in the end zone.

The Mountaineers' offense was unable to get untracked for the entire game and depended on Tech miscues for three of their scores.

Punting into the wind, Steve Superick sent a low liner that hit the Hokies' Bob Thomas in the back with Scott Dixon recovering on the Tech 20 to set up West Virginia's only touchdown.

A 24-yard pass from quarterback Todd Greenwood to tight end Mike Shaw set up Wade's 27-yard field goal with 3:45 left before intermission, but Woodside's 44-yarder with 1:20 remaining put the Mountaineers up 10-6.

Todd Campbell's hit on Greenwood knocked the ball loose and Jim Merritts fell on it on the Tech 9 just seven seconds later, and Woodside made it 13-6 with just two seconds left in the half.

The Mountaineers rounded out the scoring on Woodside's 35-yarder with 6:35 left in the game.

So. California (#14) 41
Stanford 21

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Senior tailback Anthony Gibson scored the first three touchdowns of his career to lead a powerful Southern California running attack as the 14th-ranked Trojans routed Stanford 41-21 Saturday before a crowd of 75,185.

Gibson took over for injured starter Todd Spencer and racked up 120 of the Trojans' 227 yards on the ground. Spencer rushed for 99 yards before, he sprained his left knee late in the second period of the nationally televised game.

Steve Jordan set a school record for the Trojans, now 4-1, when he connected on a 52-yard field goal midway through the third period to give Southern Cal a 24-14 lead. He added a 35-yard field goal midway through the final period.

Stanford quarterback John Elway had his toughest day of the season, suffering three interceptions and four sacks. Stanford's record fell to 3-3.

Southern Cal quarterback Sean Salisbury completed 17 of 30 passes for 201 yards. He scored two touchdowns on quarterback sneaks.

The Trojans, scoreless in the first period, stormed Stanford's defense for three touchdowns in the last seven minutes of the second quarter to take a 21-14 lead at halftime.

Trailing 7-0, the Trojans got on the scoreboard with an 82-yard march. Spencer ran for 48 yards in five plays and caught an 11-yard pass before Salisbury bolted over from the one-yard line for the touchdown.

Stanford regained the lead 14-7 when Ken Williams bobbled a kickoff on the goal line, picked up the ball in traffic and broke through a hole to sprint 69 yards to the Southern Cal 31 yard line. Four plays later, at 5:22 of the second period, Elway lobbed a soft pass from the one to Vincent White in the endzone.

The Trojans tied the game again on a 65-yard, 12-play drive capped by Gibson's leap into the endzone from the two at 1:27. The drive was kept alive by a 9-yard pass from Salisbury to Jeff Simmons on third down and nine from the Stanford 15. But a television replay showed Simmons caught the ball after a bounce.

Southern Cal then took possession on Stanford's 41 after a poor punt. Salisbury fired a 32-yard pass to Ware and an 8-yard pass to Gibson inches from the goal line. Gibson ran it over with 10 seconds left in the half.

Ohio State 26
Illinois (#15) 21

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Freshman Rich Spangler kicked a 27-yard field goal with eight seconds to go Saturday to give Ohio State a 26-21 victory over Illinois.

Spangler, who missed three earlier field goals, spoiled Illinois' 14-point fourth quarter rally and handed the Illini their first Big Ten loss of the season.

OSU quarterback Mike Tomczak threw 74 yards for one touchdown and jumped over the goal line for another to give the Buckeyes a 21-7 fourth quarter lead.

But Illinois freshman Thomas Rooks raced 21 yards for one TD, and Eason passed five yards to Kirby Wilson for a second, as Illinois tied the game 21-21 and applied defensive pressure to the Buckeyes.

Tomczak then moved the Buckeyes 69 yards in 14 plays to set up Spangler's game-winning kick.

A homecoming crowd of 73,488 — the second largest in Memorial Stadium history — watched the Illini drop to 5-2, and the Buckeyes improve to 3-3.

Miami (#17) 31
Miss. State 14

MIAMI (AP) — Junior fullback Speedy Neal scored three second-half touchdowns as 17th-ranked Miami erased an 11-point deficit and rode to a 31-14 college football victory over Mississippi State Saturday.

Neal scored on runs of 5 and 1 yards in the third period as the Hurricanes wiped out a 14-3 Bulldogs lead. Then he added a 4-yard burst six minutes into the final quarter as the Hurricanes took a commanding 24-14 lead.

The victory boosted Miami's record 5-2 as Coach Howard Schnellenberger's team bounced back from a bitter 16-14 loss at Notre Dame last week. The triumph also avenged the squad's only defeat at home since Schnellenberger in 1979.

Mississippi State, losing for the fourth straight time, dropped to 3-4, with Southeastern Conference dates with Auburn and Alabama coming up the next two weeks.

Miami took a 3-0 lead on Jeff Davis' 47-yard field goal midway through the first quarter, but fell behind 7-3 by halftime as Mississippi State quarterback John Bond engineered an eight-play, 42-yard scoring drive.

Bond ran the final 3 yards of the march, highlighted by senior fullback Michael Haddix's five carries for 40 yards.

Mississippi State marched 77 yards in 13 plays after the second-half kickoff to take a 14-3 lead on a 5-yard run by fullback Al Rickey Edwards.

But Miami responded with a 10-play, 62-yard drive leading to Neal's first touchdown. Five minutes later, Neal kept an eight-play, 45-yard march as Miami took a 17-14 lead after three quarters.

A Haddix fumble at the Bulldog 14 set up Neal's fourth-quarter touchdown. Quarterback Mark Richt ran 3 yards to complete an 80-yard drive with 35 seconds remaining in the game to give Miami its final margin of victory.

Indiana 40
Minnesota 21

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Orlando Brown rushed for 159 yards and three touchdowns, leading Indiana to a 40-21 Big Ten victory over Minnesota Saturday afternoon.

Brown's running backed up the passing of Hoosiers quarterback Babe Laufenberg, who completed 16 of 27 passes for 236 yards and one touchdown.

The Indiana victory overshadowed the performance of Gophers quarterback Mike Hohensee, who completed 34 of 50 passes for 307 yards and one touchdown. He also ran for 60 yards and became the school's all-time completion leader.

Indiana capitalized on two Minnesota fumbles and three interceptions.

Darrell, Bobby Duel For Lead

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Ricky Rudd will be on the pole for Sunday's Old Dominion 500 Grand National stock car race, but most of the spectators will be watching the duel between Darrell Waltrip and Bobby Allison.

Rudd earned the No. 1 starting spot Sept. 23 with a qualifying speed of 89.132 on the .525-mile Martinsville Speedway track with Harry Gant, the winner of last Sunday's National 500 at Charlotte, N.C., on the outside pole with a speed of 88.787 mph.

But Waltrip, who will start third, and Allison, who will be No. 6 in the lineup for Sunday's 12:30 p.m., EDT, start, will be the drivers in the spotlight as they battle for the Winston Cup point championship for the second year in a row.

"Coming into this race here, we felt we might have an advantage, if you look strictly at past performance," says Waltrip, the defending Old Dominion 500 champion who beat Allison by 53 points in the Winston Cup title series last year after erasing a 341-point deficit.

"We should do well here, and Bobby has never won," says Waltrip, the winner of four Martinsville Speedway Grand National events. "We are in a position to gamble. We don't have anything to lose.

"They are at a crossroads where they might be asking themselves, 'What do we do?' We haven't gotten to the crossroads yet. But I've been there. I was there in 1979."

Three years ago, Waltrip lost the point championship in the final race of the season by 19 points to Richard Petty.

Allison is 37 points ahead of Waltrip going into Sunday's race,hich originally was scheduled Sept. 26 but was rained out, and he professes not to be worried even though his only victory at Martinsville was in a 100-lap Modified event in 1967.

"This is the same car we ran at Richmond, and you know what happened there," says Allison, who was the winner at Richmond. "Here, you have to save the car. It's more important on this short track than any other. It's the only way you can count on being around at the finish."

Allison says "what's happened to me here is in the past. It's another of those deals where the next race is the most important. So we are thinking that right now, Martinsville is our most important race."

The $202,700 event pays $18,550 to the winner, and there also will be $7,000 in lap money offered.

1. Ricky Rudd, Pontiac, 89.132.
2. Harry Gant, Buick, 88.787.
3. Darrell Waltrip, Buick, 88.515.
4. Terry Labonte, Chevrolet, 88.329.
5. Geoff Bodine, ZPontiac, 88.148.
6. Bobby Allison, Chevrolet, 88.115.
7. Buddy Baker, Pontiac, 88.020.
8. Morgan Shepherd, Buick, 87.955.
9. Neil Bonnett, Foord, 87.865.
10. Dave Marcis, Chevrolet, 87.865.
11. Joe Ruttman, Buick, 89.073.
12. Dale Earnhardt, Ford, 88.814.
13. Butch Lindley, Buick, 88.706.
14. Tim Richmond, Buick, 88.602.
15. Mark Martin, Buick, 88.180.
16. Kyle Petty, Pontiac, 87.984.
17. Richard Petty, Pontiac, 87.499.
18. Jody Ridley, Ford, 87.431.
19. Lake Speed, Pontiac, 87.346.
20. Joe Millikan, Ford, 86.905.

Pirate Golfers Finish Eleventh

DURHAM — East Carolina University's golfers improved their position by one in the final day of the John Ryan Memorial Golf Tournament, formerly known as the Iron Duke Classic.

Fumble Return Kills Rampants, 21-9

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

"One of our problems," Vincent said, "is that when the ball has hit the field this year, it's never bounced back our way."

It was a statement that was to echo loudly in Vincent's ears in the third period when Kenny Kirkland, set to take the snap on what the coach said was a "sure touchdown", bobbled the ball, then had it knocked away from him.

Kinston's Harold Flemming picked the ball up at the 14 and raced untouched 86 yards for the killing touchdown and the Vikings went on to take a 21-9 win in the key Big East contest.

The victory keeps the Vikings unbeaten in league play and atop the standings with a 4-0 record. They are 5-2 overall, having lost only in close games to Jacksonville and Goldsboro.

Rose, falls to 2-2 in the league and 3-4 overall. In each of those losses, the Rampants have had opportunity after opportunity to win, and Friday night's game was no exception.

The Rampants were denied on their first possession, as a Willie Levitt field goal attempt was short. Kinston marched right down the field after that with Lou Cooper scoring on a 16-yard run for a 7-0 lead.

Rose cut it to 7-3 as Levitt connected on a 31-yard field goal, only to miss on a later attempt that could have cut it to 7-6.

Then, in the third period, just when it looked like Rose would take the lead, the fumble return pushed Kinston into a 14-3 lead, and after holding Rose, the Vikings drove 76 yards to close the door with Roy Lee Sutton pulling in a 13-yard pass from Vincent Bright for the score.

Andy Woods kicked the PAT after each score.

Rose tried to come back, scoring late in the game on a 14-yard pass from Kirkland to Tyrone Smith, but the Rampants couldn't get on the board again.

"There's no question about it — the fumble was the key to the whole ball game. It was the game in one play," Vincent said.

"We were right there on the two yard line, and the play we called would have worked because they weren't in position to cover it. It would have been a touchdown.

"But it was the whole difference in the ball game," he said.

Rose, which had its chances even before that fateful play, couldn't get in when it had the chance. "It's been the same story all year. We get down there and don't make the plays that win the ball game for us."

This time, it probably will end any hopes the Rampants have of a post-season tournament berth. With two losses, both Kinston and Rocky Mount would have to lose three times to give Rose one of the playoff spots should the Rampants win all of their remaining contests.

Statistically, the game was close. Kinston ground out 239 yards in total offense, all but 13 on the ground. Rose finished with 207 yards, 110 on the ground.

But it was the sputtering offense of the Rampants that cost them the game. The defense gave them the chance, turning over the ball four times on fumble recoveries.

Rose took the opening kickoff from its own 33 down to the Kinston 20 before being stopped. A 36-yard field goal attempt by Levitt never had the height or distance to make it, however.

Kinston then quickly came back, marching 80 yards on just seven plays. On first down, Cooper burst through for eight yards, after seemingly being stopped at the line of scrimmage.

For the most part, the two running backs, Cooper and Michael Pittman, who rushed 20 times for 112 yards, moved only from tackle to tackle, with quarterback Bright taking the ball outside on keepers. Pittman followed Cooper's first run with a 15-yard ramble and two plays later added a 27-yard gallop down to the Rose 21. Two plays after that, Cooper went over right tackle and went untouched into the end zone. Woods' PAT made it 7-0 with 5:09 left in the first period.

The Vikings threatened again on their next possesion, moving from tehir 26 to the Rose 47 before losing it on a fumble. Rose then took the ball from its 42 to the Kinston 17 before also turning it over on a fumble.

But two plays later, Kinston had returned the ball to Rose on another misplay, at the Viking 16. However, three plays netted only two yards, and Levitt came on to boot his 31-yard field goal, cutting it to 7-3 with 7:51 left in the half.

Although Kinston marched quickly back to midfield, it was forced to kick, and Rose drove back to threaten again, taking the ball from its own 37 to the Kinston 21 before again being forced to try for a field goal. This one, from 37 yards out had the distance, but was wide to the right.

Rose got excellent field position early on when Kinston fumbled only three plays into the second half.

Taking over on the Viking 31, the Rampants overcame a rare five-yard "helping the runner" penalty, and on fourth and two at the 12, Kirkland picked up the first down at the nine. Two plays later, they had reached the two, and then it happened.

Kirkland took the snap, but bobbled it, and continued to bobble it, until he was hit from behind by a Viking defender, and the ball rolled free. Flemming finally picked it up at the Kinston 14 and was off on his 86-yard return without a Rampant in sight.

Woods followed with the PAT again, and it was 14-3 with 5:46 left in the third period.

The play represented a 14-point swing in the game. Instead of taking the lead, 10-7, Rose found itself 11 points behind.

It took the life from them.

After forcing a punt, Kinston took over on its own 26 and launched a long 74-yard, 15-play drive that put the game on ice. Along the way, the Vikings overcame an 11-yard holding penalty thanks to a 19-yard run by Pittman on third and 17. Pittman also made the needed yardage on fourth and one at the Rose 42, picking up two yards. Immediately after that play, Rose was flagged for an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty against one of the assistant coaches, and that moved the ball to the Rampant 25.

Cooper then ripped off 13 yards to the 12 and after the next two plays resulted in a one yard loss. Bright lofted the ball to Sutton in the end zone for the score. It was the only pass Kinston completed on the night.

Rose did manage to finally get on the board late in the action. After driving to the Kinston 45 on its first series, the Rampants got it back at the Kinston 48 on a fumble three plays later. Completeing several short passes, Kirkland got the Rampants to the 14, where on fourth and five, he hit Smith for the score with a pass to the left side of the line. A two-point try, however, failed.

Rose then saw its final chance lost when an attempted on-side kick was recovered, but the ball had already touched the out-of-bounds line when it was grabbed.

The Rampants try to get back on the winning side of the ledger on Thursday night, when they play host to Wilson Fike in Ficklen Stadium. Game time will be 8 p.m.

Trinity Blasts Temple By 69-12

Darrell Wells' interception set up a 20-yard run by Mike Reynolds that got the Trinity scoring underway. That was followed by a 30-yard pass from John Moran to Junior Godwin for a 15-0 lead after one period.

In the second quarter, David Casper raced 65 yards for a third Trinity touchdown, followed by a 55-yard scoring pass by Wilson.

The second period scoring was closed out by two more Trinity scores, an 8-yard pass from Moran to Godwin, and another of three yards from Moran to Dale Hudson.

Hudson scored twice in the second half, the first on a five-yard run in the third period. Jimmy Powers then returned an interception 22 yards for a 50-6 lead by Trinity after three frames.

In the final quarter, Hudson scored on a 20-yard run, before Wilson got its second and last score on a 48-yard interception return. Casper returned the kickoff 70 yards for another Trinity tally, and Maurey Harris passed 28 yards to Randy McGowan for one last touchdown.

Trinity climbs to 5-0 with the win, while Wilson is now 0-3. Trinity hosts Lifegate on Thursday, then travels to Edenton on Saturday. Edenton is the defending state champion.

Chargers Squeeze Past Panthers, 7-6

LITTLEFIELD — It was billed as a shoot-out between the two top teams in the Eastern Carolina Conference, and when the dust finally cleared over Ayden-Grifton High School Friday night, it had been just that.

The Chargers, unbeaten on the season, pulled out a 7-6 victory over North Pitt in the contest, preserving its hold on first place in the league.

The Chargers are now 7-0 overall and 4-0 in league play.

North Pitt, which has been the surprise team of the year, saw its record fall to 4-2-2 overall and 3-1 in ECC play. It was the first Panther loss in seven games.

The win didn't come easy for the Chargers, who had their league-leading defense tested and came up shining. North Pitt's number two defense didn't fare badly either. When it was over, North Pitt had rushed for 123 yards, but had failed to complete a pass. Ayden-Grifton had picked up 182 yards in total offense, 99 of it on the ground.

And if the first half had been one play shorter, the Chargers might not have scored at all.

Taking over at the Panther 32 following a 15-yard punt return by Malcolm Worthington, the Chargers got into the end zone on the final play of the half. They overcame a 15-yard penalty on first down as the series got underway, with Joey Kennedy hitting Doug Coley for 15 yards on fourth and ten to keep the drive alive. Later in the 11-play series, Jarvis Koonce went for four yards on fourth and three at the ten to give the Chargers a first and goal from the six.

On first down, the Chargers scored, only to have it called back by offsetting penalties. With five seconds left, Kennedy took the ball from his center, and spotted Tyrone Gay in the right corner of the end zone, where he made a leaping catch for the score as the horn sounded to end the half.

Gay then added the fateful PAT kick and the teams went in with A-G leading 7-0.

It was to be the only Ayden-Grifton threat of the night.

North Pitt, which also never got its offense going in the contest, finally struck back in the third period. Rodney Lawrence blocked a punt by the Chargers, his third of the year, and Dennis Bradley picked it up, returning it 36 yards for the score.

On the fateful extra point, however, William Rollins' PAT kick was blocked by Doug Coley.

"I felt like at that stage of the game, if we could tie it up, there was still enough time for someone to do something," North Pitt's B.T. Chappel said. "It was our own fault that we got it blocked, since we had someone at the wrong place."

Ayden-Grifton's Dixon Sauls was pleased with the win. "It was an extremely hard fought contest on both sides. It's a very key win for our conference asperations. And I'm sure it's a most disappointing loss for a very galland and courageous North Pitt team.

"Kennedy made the big play for us again as he's done all season," Sauls continued. "I thought our defense played a very courageous game. North Pitt had its chances after we turned the ball over several times, but they never let up. Coley made a great play to get to the ball on the extra point. There was no special play, just a great effort on his part."

Chappell was disappointed in the loss. "I thought we outplayed them, and I thought we should have won. But we had a lot of penalties that I didn't think were justified." One of those, he recalled nullified a long pass that would have put the ball inside the A-G 20.

Ayden-Grifton plays host to 2-A Lakewood in a non-conference contest next Friday, while North Pitt entertains SouthWest Edgecombe in a game that will decide if the Panthers have any shot left at the playoffs.

Turnovers Help Jackets Topple Tigers By 28-7

ROANOKE RAPIDS — Williamston, a team hobbled by the loss of most of its senior players due to disciplinary reasons, fell before Roanoke Rapids, 28-7, Friday night in a game much closer than the score indicates.

The Tigers ground out 225 yards in total offense in the contest, while Roanoke Rapids got only 173 yards.

However, the Tigers suffered through four lost fumbles and two pass interceptions — and that proved the difference in the game. Two of those fumbles and one of the interceptions provided the Yellow Jackets with easy touchdowns.

Williamston gained the initial lead in the ball game as Michael Peel dashed 87 yards with a James Ward pass early in the first period of the game.

But except for one drive down near the 30, stopped by a major penalty, the Tigers were unable to get back into the ball game.

Roanoke Rapids drove downfield after the kickoff to tie the game up. Paul Carpenter passed 28 yards to Jeff Maness for the score, and the quarterback also kicked the first of four extra points.

Later in the quarter, Roanoke Rapids pounced on a fumble at the Williamston 31, and Cliffy Proctor went over from three yards out to up the lead to 14-0.

In the third period, another Williamston fumble, at the Tiger 10, set up the next Yellow Jacket score. Clay Walker took that in from ten yards out, running it to 21-7.

Then, in the final period, an interception at the Williamston 30 set up Fitts Ussery's one yard plunge for the final score.

Vikes Stun White Oak, 13-7

HOLLYWOOD — D.C. Conley used a couple of quick scoring plays and fashioned a 13-7 victory over White Oak Friday night, claiming its first Coastal Conference victory — and its first overall win — of the season.

The Viking defense then held White Oak in check most of the evening to preserve the victory after Conley had taken a 13-0 lead at the half.

Conley got on the scoreboard in the first period, scoring after a short punt by the White Oak club. On just the second play after receiving the ball at the 38 of White Oak, Leon Cox hit Mitchell Cox on a 35-yard scoring pass and Mike Long added the extra point.

Late in the quarter, Conley got the ball again at midfield after another White Oak kick. Again, it took only two plays to get on the scoreboard. After a five-yard gain on first down, Steve King took the ball and raced 45 yards to up the lead to 13-0 on the first play of the second period.

It stayed that way until the third period when White Oak climaxed a 74-yard drive with Stanley Monk going in from two yards away. Paul Obernesser kicked the PAT to pull the Vikings within reach, but they were never able to mount another drive.

Conley also never threatened again.

The victory boosts the Conley record to 1-5-1 overall and to 1-1 in the league. White Oak falls to 3-3-1 overall and 0-2 in the league.

Moore Sparks Jaguars Over Aycock By 33-6

FARMVILLE — James Moore scored two touchdowns and rushed for 91 yards to spark Farmville Central to a 33-6 victory over Charles B. Aycock High School Friday night.

The win was the first in four Eastern Carolina Conference games and only the second of the year for the struggling Jaguars. Aycock has yet to win against conference competition and has only one victory to its credit, over 1-A Rosewood.

Farmville broke open a scoreless deadlock in the second quarter of the game, as Moore scored the first of his two touchdowns. He raced 27 yards with the ball for the score, set up by an Aycock fumble, one of two the Falcons lost. That made it 6-0, and it remained that way the rest of the half.

Farmville exploded for three scores in the third quarter, putting the game well out of reach.

Jerry Foreman got the act underway with a 14-yard scoring run. That followed the second of the lost Falcon fumbles. Moore followed with his second touchdown, a two-yard plunge, and it was 18-0.

Tony Hargrove finished off the Farmville scoring in the third period with a 14-yard run and Alan Wooten kicked the PAT to make it 25-0.

Wesley Carmon completed the night's scoring for the Jaguars with an 18-yard run, with Moore running over the conversion for a 33-0 edge.

The win boosted the Jaguar record to 2-6 on the year, while Aycock drops to 1-6. Farmville plays host to Southern Nash on Friday, while Aycock travels to Greene Central.

Mistakes Help Tarboro's Win

ROBERSONVILLE — Tarboro used a long opening kickoff drive and two turnovers to gain a 20-0 Northeastern Conference football victory over Roanoke High School Friday night.

The Vikings used over six minutes on their opening drive, finally scoring on a two-yard dive by Bo Johnson with 5:55 left in the first period. Roanoke blocked the PAT kick try, leaving it at 6-0.

Tarboro then got two more touchdowns in the second period, taking advantage of Roanoke mistakes. First, an interception at the Redskin 46 turned it over, and Tarboro drove in with Calvin Hanson scoring from a yard away. Darren Bryan then passed to Barry Moore for a 14-0 lead.

Minutes later, Roanoke fumbled at its own 31, and again it was Hanson that got the call, again from a yard out.

The rest of the game settled into a defensive struggle, with Roanoke's only scoring opportunity ending around the Viking ten when time ran out.

The loss drops Roanoke to 3-5 overall and 2-4 in conference play. Tarboro is now 4-3 and 4-1.

Ralph's Final Chapter Begins Unfolding

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — The final chapter of the Ralph Sampson era at the University of Virginia began to unfold Friday as the Cavaliers officially opened basketball practice for the 1982-83 season with a three-hour news conference and an intrasquad scrimmage that was open to the public.

Virginia has fashioned records of 24-10, 29-4 and 30-4 in Sampson's first three seasons, and with eight other lettermen joining the two-time national Player of the Year, the 1982-83 Cavaliers are considered strong contenders for national honors.

"We know we have a good team," said the 7-foot-4 Sampson. "I came back to Virginia (instead of turning pro) to win a national championship."

Sampson said he was not bothered by the fact Virginia hasn't won a national title during his first three years in Charlottesville.

"I don't care how I'm measured," he said. "I know I've done the best I can. I've done a lot for this school, and this school has done a lot for me."

Both Sampson and Virginia head coach Terry Holland said the pressure to claim the NCAA title will be no greater in Sampson's final year than it has been in previous seasons.

"We've done everyuthing we could to win a national championship the past three seasons," said Holland, "so I don't think the pressure will be any different this season.

"We've got a large number of players returning from last year. We've got players who proved themselves last year. We're looking forward to the season and the challenge it holds for us."

"Being Number One (as some are rating Virginia in pre-season rankings) doesn't mean anything right now," Sampson said. "It means everybody wants a piece of you. Competition is what this game's all about."

Othell Wilson, Virginia's junior All-Atlantic Coast Conference guard, feels there will be added pressure on the Cavaliers this winter.

"It's a burden," Wilson said. "Last year, we were just talking about doing well. This year, we haven't even started yet and everybody is talking national championship.

"It would be nice if we could win it for Ralph. People have the nerve to criticize him because he hasn't won a national championship, even though he's done so much for this program."

In its bid for national honors, Virginia will play the most demanding schedule in its history. The Cavaliers will play each of the 1982 Final Four participants — North Carolina, Georgetown, Houston and Louisville — along with Missouri, Utah and its traditional ACC rivals.

All told, Virginia will face nine teams that earned NCAA tournament berths last season, and four others who played in the National Invitation Tournament.

The demanding schedule was by design.

"It will be good for us," Holland said. "We have a very fine basketball team and we want to test that team. That's exactly what this schedule will do. It will test us to the limit."

Kyle Gets The Axe

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Kyle Petty, fired by Hoss Ellington after dropping out of the National 500 NASCAR stock car race in Charlotte, will be driving for Petty Enterprises in Sunday's Old Dominion 500 in Martinsville, Va.

"I know my car will run. He just hasn't been running it," Ellington said. "I'm going to put somebody else in the car, and let's wait and see if it doesn't run then."

Petty had been driving for the Fayetteville-based team since June, when he and Ellington agreed to a seven-race package. The package had one race left, at Atlanta next month, but that has fallen by the wayside.

Petty will be back behind the wheel of No. 42, the car he had driven since he became a full-timer on the Grand National circuit in 1981. Having both Kyle and father Richard Petty on the roster was a strain on the time and resources of Petty Enterprises, making it necessary for the Pettys to work with Ellington to ease that burden.

After the move, Richard Petty became more competitive, although he has not won a race since August 1981.

Richard Petty made it clear before the Charlotte race that Kyle wouldn't be driving for Ellington in 1983. He said several deals were in the works to get Kyle a top ride for next season.

Midway Rips Bullets, 41-6

MIDWAY — Midway High School romped to a 41-6 victory over Jamesville in a non-conference football game Friday night.

Jamesville is now 4-4 on the season and has an open date next Friday.

Kickers Top Spiders, 4-2

East Carolina's soccer team gained a 4-2 victory over the University of Richmond Friday afternoon.

The Pirates opened the scoring on a Mark Hardy goal, assisted by Chip Baker, then Tom Lawrence followed for a 2-0 lead. Bill Merwin assited on the latter goal.

Doug Kelly scored two unassited goals in the second half for the Pirates to spark the victory. Richmond's Chris Conroy scored the other Spider goal, assisted by Hans Getzwich.

The victory boosts the Pirates to 6-5 on the year, one win away from tying the school record for most wins in a season, with six matches to play. Richmond drops to 2-9-1.

Goalie Brian Winchell, playing there for the third time this year, recorded 12 saves, while Blaik Widdowson recorded 17 saves for the Spiders. ECU took 24 shots to Richmond's 19.

"I'm pleased with the way we attacked," coach Robbie Church said. "We went forward every time we had the ball. We just didn't stretch it out far enough. I'm pleased with the play of the team thus far. We've played with everyone we've played, but we've made mental mistakes. We need this two-day fall break. It will help us."

The Pirates return to action on Wednesday hosting N.C. Wesleyan.

"We played better than I expected," said FSU coach Bobby Bowden, who openly admitted during the week he was worried about his team's being ready to play ECU. "I guess we played about twice as good as I thoght we would."

Lowrey, who started the game at quarterback, completed nine of 15 for 237 yards and two TDs. Williams, who came midway through the first quarter for Lowrey in FSU's two-QB offense, hit on 12 of 26 for 223 yards and three touchdowns.

Allen, a 5-11, 200-pound sophomore, ran for 60 yards in 11 carries and caught another three passes for 65 yards. He scored four touchdowns, three on the ground ad one through the air.

Leading FSU in receptions was wide receiver Jessie Hester, who caught four for 138 yards and one TD. Hassan Jones had two catches for 40 yards and two scores.

The Pirates, who finished the night with 344 yards total offense, were led in rushing by Ernest Byner and Reggie Branch, both of whom finished with 77 yards. Tony Baker had 60 yards.

ECU, which drops to 3-3, trailed, 14-0, at the end of the first period and did not get inside the FSU 20 until midway through the third period.

Any hopes of the Pirates coming back were quickly ended early in the third period when quarterback Greg Stewart had his fourth pass intercepted and FSU turned the pickoff into a one-yard TD run by Allen.

Stewart was one of 10 for 22 yards, completing more passes (four) to the opposition than to his own teammates (one).

Reserve quarterback Kevin Ingram came in on the next series and led ECU to two second-half TDs — one a 15-yard run by Ernest Byner and the other a two-yard run by Tony Baker.

It was way too little, way too late for ECU.

Said Emory: "Florida State came out and screened on us, drawed on us and went deep on us." From the opening gun, no less.

On a cool October evening, FSU demonstrated early — and often — its superiority over the outmanned ECU squad.

The Seminoles scored on five of nine possessions in the first 30 minutes. ECU thwarted two other at the one and 26.

FSU ended the first half with 17 first downs and a shocking (for the Pirates) 426 yards total offense, led by 277 passing.

ECU, which was unable to get inside the FSU 20 in the first two periods, finished up with 131 yards total offense for the half.

The Seminoles wasted little time in revealing what they hoped to do against the Pirates. On the first play from scrimmage, Lowrey found Jesse Hester for a 41-yard completion to the ECU 25.

The drive fizzled, however, when ECU stopped Allen on fourth down from the one yardline. It was but a momentary stop for FSU.

ECU failed to move the ball on its next possession and the Seminoles took over after a Jeff Bolch punt at the 45.

After an incompletion, Lowrey raced 17 yards to the 38. One play later, Lowrey hit Jones in right flat. Jones outran the Pirates into the corner of the end zone to complete the 38-yard TD connection. The PAT by J.M. Hall was good and FSU led, 7-0, with 10:16 left.

"After the first score we never seemed to regain our defensive poise," Emory said.

After an exchange of punts, FSU was driving again — thanks to a Clayton interception at the FSU 31. It took the Seminoles just four plays to score.

Allen burst up the middle for 16 yards on the first play and Williams hit Tony Johnson for 29 yards to the Pirate 24.

Two plays later, Williams hit Allen for 26 yards and the score with 54 seconds left in the first period.

After the pickoff, Williams hit Zeke Mowatt for 10 yards. A sack put the ball back at the 16 but a pass interference call against Smokey Norris in the end zone gave FSU the ball at the one.

Allen leaped over from there on the next play and Hall added the PAT for a 21-0 lead with 12:58 left in the half.

Taking the ensuing kickoff, ECU put together its best drive of the half. Byner and Reggie Branch each gained 11 yards to put the ball on the FSU 35.

The drive stalled, however, and Heath came on to kick a 39-yard field goal to make it 21-3 with 8:36 remaining.

As the half neared an end, Bolch got off a 69-yard punt, seemingly pinning FSU back on its 11. But, Lowrey hit Cedric Jones with a 12-yard swing pass and then found Dennis McKinnon open on the left sideline for a 67-yard gain to the ECU 10.

Allen carried over from five yards out two plays later to make it 28-3 with 3:06 to go. Moments later, Clayton intercepted his second pass of the half at the FSU 47 to set up his team's final TD of the second quarter.

Reserve running back Tony Smith went for 11 yards and Cedric Jones for 14 to push the ball to the 28. From there, Lowrey hit Hester over the middle and Hester sprinted into the end zone to make it 35-3 at intermission.

If any doubts remained about the outcome, FSU was quick to dissolve them early in the third period. ECU took the opening kickoff and immediately gave the ball to FSU as Harris picked off a Stewart pass at the ECU 31.

Unable to move the ball and with a fourth and 12 at the 32, Lowrey hit Hester for 29 yards to the three yard line. Two plays later, Allen took it over from one-yard to make it 42-3.

ECU, with Ingram in for Stewart, scored its first touchdown of the night moments later. Branch burst through the FSU line for 24 yards and Ingram went for 16 yards to key the 80-yard march that ended with Byner ripping through for 15 yards and the score.

On FSU's next possession, ECU's Smokey Norris forced Mowatt to fumble after a 12-yard completion and Amos Twitty recovered to set up ECU's second — and final — TD of the game.

Reserve running back Scott Lewis, a 5-11, 20-pound freshman from Sanford, Fla., went for 12 yards and Baker raced 34 yards to spark the march. Two plays later, Baker skipped in from two yards out to make it 42-17 with 14:55 remaining in the game.

FSU, showing no inclination of keeping the ball on the ground, put together a 11-play drive to counter the ECU score, with Williams hitting Cedric Jones for 41 and 11 yards.

"We are 3-3 now and there's a lot of schools in the country who wish they were 3-3," Emory said. "The least important game to us is the Florida State game. We cannnot do a damn thing about it."

East Carolina will return to action on Saturday when it plays host to Illinois State.

Retreating

Thomas Didn't Let Slump Stop Him

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Gorman Thomas, although mired in a 3-for-29 slump in postseason play and slowed by a sore knee, said he felt relaxed and confident before he lined the Milwaukee Brewers' game-winning hit in Game 4 of the World Series Saturday.

Thomas drilled a 1-2 pitch by St. Louis' Jeff Lahti into left field to break a 5-5 tie and cap a six-run seventh inning in the Brewers' 7-5 comeback victory over the Cardinals.

"I'm not a .300 hitter, but I always have a lot of RBIs," Thomas said. "That tells me I'm better with men on base.

"When I came up in the seventh I was very confident," he said. "There was no pressure at all. We already had tied the game. I figured I could get a bases-loaded walk or a base hit. If not, the game's still tied.

"After my first time up last night, I made a little adjustment at bat. I hit the ball hard three times last night. I felt I was swinging the bat good. (Dave) LaPoint got me out earlier today on three pitches I just barely missed."

Thomas, one of the most popular players in Milwaukee, was booed by many among the record crowd of 56,560 after he started the big seventh inning by fouling out.

"I started out the inning with a popup to the catcher so, hey, maybe you could say I started the rally," Thomas said. "But then Benji (Ben Oglivie) got on on an error and then it was like an avalanche.

"The noise on our bench kept increasing in magnitude and volume, and then the fans go into it," he said. "When the fans here get into it, they can do damage and rattle you. I think the fans played a big part in it."

Catcher Ted Simmons, walked intentionally to load the bases prior to Thomas' big hit, said he has been telling Thomas for several days to try to relax.

"Of course you press when you're 0-for-20 or 3-for-50 or whatever he was," Simmons said. "You try to relax. The talent is in there. It doesn't go away. It's like it's in a cage. But you may think the talent is not there anymore, and then your confidence evaporates."

After Thomas' popup to start the seventh, Oglivie grounded to first baseman Keith Hernandez and reached base when LaPoint dropped the toss to the bag for an error.

"At the time, it seemed so unimportant, but then Don Money got a hit and picked up the rally," Oglivie said. "I think Hernandez made the right play. I don't think he would have gotten me by making the play himself, or it would have been very close, because he was playing me deep. Fortunately, LaPoint lost possession and it turned out that was all we needed."

Winning pitcher Jim Slaton, who relieved Brewers starter Moose Haas in the sixth with the Cardinals leading 5-1, said none of the Brewers at that point had ruled out a comeback.

"My job all year has been to come in and hold them until we could break loose with a big inning," Slaton said. "What happened today was a long time coming. We didn't exactly bust the cover off the ball, but the big inning definitely helped us relax a little bit."

"The way our team keeps coming back is amazing. I guess we're kind of weird," right fielder Charlie Moore said. "But we're used to having to play hard. We had our backs to the wall on June 1 when we were 8½ games out of first place. We've had to play hard for five months."

"Maybe it looked like we were coming unglued when we gave them four runs in the first two innings, but we had a lot of tough plays in there and just didn't make them," third baseman Paul Molitor said. "But I don't think we ever were nervous. We kept swinging the bats well and played loosely.

"I don't think we realize how important this win is," he said. "We could have been staring a 3-1 deficit in the face. But we got the kind of clutch hits we haven't had for awhile. I know none of us are nervous now."

Thomas, Yount Lead...

"I would only have used Sutter with two out in the eighth," St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said. In the previous two games of the Series, Sutter had pitched 4 2-3 innings while recording a victory and a save.

Sutter was irritable when questioned about his non-appearance.

"I don't have nothing to say. I didn't pitch," he said.

Was he ready?

"Yes, I was ready," he added testily.

After Yount's two-run single, Cecil Cooper tied the score with a single, and Thomas' two-run hit provided the winning margin.

Yount's hit probably was the most unlikely of all, coming on a pitch he didn't intend to hit.

"I wasn't fooled by it. I was trying to hold up," Yount said. "The ball was high. I still hit it solid, but like I said, I was trying to hold up on the swing."

Asked if that was a portent of better things in Milwaukee's future, Yount said, "Things all day long hadn't gone that well, yet we were still in the ballgame and that put us one (run) down. Coop came up with a big hit and then Gorman turned things around for us."

Thomas, who had just two hits in 14 at-bats before his game-winner Saturday, said he had wtched videotapes of himself to try to find flaws in his swings.

"I wanted to find out what was happening to me, and I think that was a big help," Thomas said, declining to say just what he spotted.

Milwaukee's 10 hits Saturday gave them 42 for the Series' first four games, during which they have hit in double figures in three games. The Cardinals, meanwhile, have had just 25 hits and were hitting .197 as a team, compared with Milwaukee's .296.

Game 5 is scheduled here Sunday, with Bob Forsch going for the Cardinals against Milwaukee's Mike Caldwell in a rematch of first-game pitchers. The Brewers won the opener 10-0.

LaPoint had yielded just five hits through the first six innings, but with one out in the seventh, he committed a costly error that would make all six runs unearned.

Doug Bair relieved LaPoint, walking Paul Molitor and giving up a two-run single to Yount. Molitor made it to third on Yount's hit, and Cooper came up to face 43-year-old left-hander Jim Kaat, who was no more successful than Bair.

Cooper slapped a single off the glove of third baseman Ken Oberkfell, scoring Molitor as Yount raced to second. Yount and Cooper each advanced one base on a wild pitch by Kaat, who then was relieved by rookie Jeff Lahti.

Lahti came in with a 2-1 count on Ted Simmons, whom he walked intentionally to load the bases.

Thomas, with only two hits in 11 previous Series at-bats and robbed of a home run Friday night on a leaping catch by the Cardinals' Willie McGee, rapped a sharp single to left that scored Yount and Cooper.

Oglivie was walked intentionally to reload the bases, and the inning finally ended to a deafening cheer from 56,560 fans at Milwaukee County Stadium when Money, the 12th Milwaukee batter in the seventh, flew to left.

On a crisp, windy day with temperatures in the 40s, the Cardinals scored a run in the first inning and three in the second off Milwaukee starter Moose Haas.

Tom Herr and Oberkfell, the 1-2 hitters in the St. Louis lineup, played major roles in this mini-melodrama.

With one out in the first inning, Oberkfell doubled to right field. Haas then fanned Hernandez, who has yet to get a hit in the Series, and George Hendrick came to bat.

Hendrick, with just one hit in nine previous Series at-bats, was protecting the plate with an 0-2 count. It wasn't a mighty swing, but he hit a chopper on the shortstop side of second base. Yount tried to field the ball on a short hop, but it kicked off his glove for a single into center field, as Oberkfell scored.

In the second inning, the Cardinals unleashed their vaunted running game. With one out, McGee singled to left, then stole second on a pitchout as Milwaukee catcher Simmons double-pumped on the throw. Ozzie Smith walked on a 3-2 pitch and both runners advanced when Haas threw a pitch in the dirt in front of Simmons.

Herr then lifted a long fly to center. Thomas backpedaled, catching the ball on the warning track as McGee and Smith tagged. McGee scored easily and, when Thomas slipped, Smith raced around third. The relay to the plate wasn't even close.

It was the first time in World Series history that two runs scored on a sacrifice fly.

Haas, apparently shaken by the odd play, walked Oberkfell on four pitches, and Oberkfell stole second as Simmons' throw was well off the mark.

It was the fifth stolen base against the Brewers' catcher in this Series.

The Cardinals added their fifth run in the sixth inning on consecutive doubles by Lonnie Smith and Iorg.

The National League champs threatened in the eighth, putting runnerss on the corners on a walk to Darrell Porter and a single by Iorg. But McClure came out of the bullpen and got McGee to ground into an inning-ending double play.

DURHAM (AP) — Running backs Tim Lankford and Doug Picotte rushed for one touchdown each to spark Delaware State to a 20-3 victory over North Carolina A&T in Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference football Saturday.

Offensive tackle Terry Staples recovered a fumble in the end zone to give the Hornets a 6-0 lead. The Aggies then turned a Delaware State fumble into a field goal, but Lankford broke away on a 41-yard touchdown run to make it 13-3 in the third quarter.

McGee's Homers Spark Card Victory

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Everybody just knew that the 79th World Series would turn into a long ball show in Milwaukee's cozy County Stadium.

But the last guy you'd expect to reach the seats would be slender Willie McGee, the St. Louis center fielder who managed just four homers in 123 games during his rookie season.

Still, there was McGee doing his home run trot twice Friday night, driving in four runs as the Cardinals defeated Milwaukee 6-2 in Game 3 of the Series to take a 2-games-to-1 lead. And everytime one of the Brewers took aim at the center field seats, there was McGee leaping to make marvelous catches.

"I don't think anybody's ever had a better World Series game than he had tonight," said Whitey Herzog, manager of the Cardinals. "He had two homers and was all over the outfield."

Actually, this was the second big World Series day for McGee. A year ago, during the Series, he was traded to the St. Louis organization in an unheralded minor-league deal in which the New York Yankees acquired left-hander Bob Sykes. At the time, it was nothing more than a line of type in the transactions list, but McGee graduated to the Cardinal roster in May and on Friday night he was a World Series hero.

"I don't believe I'm here," McGee said, a touch of wonder in his voice. "Baseball is baseball. Anything can happen at any time."

Friday night's game began as a pitcher's duel between Pete Vuckovich of the Brewers and Joaquin Andujar of the Cardinals. McGee had gone to the fence in the first inning for leadoff man Paul Molitor's long smash.

"It almost reached," said Molitor, who had been the hottest hitter in the Series' first two games with seven hits. "I hit the ball real well to the deepest part of the ball park. I hadn't noticed how deep McGee plays. He has great confidence in his ability to come in on the ball. He made the catch kind of easily."

Through four innings, each team had just one hit. Then, with one out in the fifth, Lonnie Smith, hitless in the first two games, doubled to left center. After Dane Iorg reached on an error by first baseman Cecil Cooper, McGee came to the plate.

"He threw me a high changeup on the inside part of the plate," the rookie said. McGee sent it well into the right field stands, and just like that, St. Louis had a 3-0 lead.

Two innings later, the Cardinals were back for more. This time, Smith tripled to right center, steaming into third on his stomach. Jim Gantner's relay throw arrived an instant after the runner and skipped past Molitor into the Cardinal dugout for an error, allowing Smith to score.

After Iorg flied out, McGee proved his first home run was no fluke by tagging another one into the right field seats, perhaps 50 feet closer to to the foul pole than his first one.

Vuckovich was impressed.

"Not only is he good looking, but he can hit 'em and take 'em away," the pitcher decided.

Now it was 5-0 and Andujar was cruising with a two-hitter. With one out in the seventh, Ted Simmons hit a one-bounce shot that caromed off the pitcher's right leg. Andujar started after the ball but collapsed in pain, rolling over on the ground.

Simmons was safe on the infield hit and Andujar had to be helped from the field. He was taken to Mt. Sinai Medical Center where X rays and neurological tests were negative. He suffered a contusion of the bone just below his right knee and Andujar said upon returning from the hospital:

"It hurts, but I'll be ready if they need me."

Jim Kaat relieved for the Cards and after striking out Ben Oglivie, he surrendered a single to Gorman Thomas. Don Money pinch hit for Roy Howell and Herzog, going with the righty-lefty percentages, brought in Doug Bair. When Money walked, it loaded the bases and Herzog went for his meal ticket, bullpen ace Bruce Sutter. It was not what the Cardinal manager had planned.

"I was trying not to go seven outs with him," said Herzog. "I was hoping he (Kaat) could get Thomas out."

But with the bases full, Herzog figured it was no time to get cute by using anyone less than his best. So Sutter got the ball and retired Charlie Moore on a foul pop to Ken Oberkfell, who made a neat catch in front of the St. Louis dugout.

An inning later, the Brewers finally cracked through Sutter's mysterious split fingered fast ball. With two out, Robin Yount walked and Cooper smashed a home run to make the score 5-2.

In the ninth, George Hendrick, leading off, reached base when Simmons was charged with catcher's interference for tipping the bat. It marked only the fifth time in World Series history that has happened and it wound up hurting Milwaukee. With two out, Iorg doubled Hendrick to third.

Not willing to see if McGee could hit another homer, the Brewers chose to walk him intentionally, loading the baes. But then Ozzie Smith also walked, forcing in another run.

In the bottom of the ninth, Oglivie reached on Keith Hernandez' third error of the Series. That brought up Thomas who hit a towering shot headed for the center field seats. Again, McGee dashed to the wall, leaped, and came down with the baseball.

It was the last gasp for the Brewers.

"If he doesn't make that catch, Mr. Sutter might be in trouble," said Herzog. "He can do it all. He's great young player."

Believe Andujar Will Be Okay

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals are keeping their fingers crossed, hoping that right-hander Joaquin Andujar will be able to pitch in the seventh game of the World Series, if one is necessary.

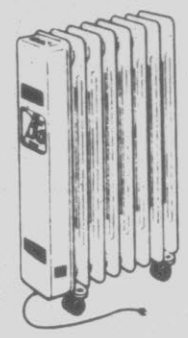
Andujar was knocked out of Game Three of the Series Friday night when a one-hop ground ball off the bat of Ted Simmons, struck him on a bone just below the right knee. He was helped off the field and taken to Mt. Sinai Medical Center, where X-rays and neurological tests were negative.

"He's pitched before after getting hit and he didn't even miss a turn," said Cards pitching coach Hub Kittle, who was the major influence in turning Andujar into one of the better pitcher in the National League this season.

Andujar was cruising along with a two hitter and a 5-0 lead when the injury occurred with one out in the seventh inning.

"I went to get the ball. By the time I got to him, everybody else was around him," said catcher Darrell Porter.

En route to the hospital, Andujar said to those in the ambulance, "All these guys (teammates) are going to get all over me for this."



"Electric Radiator Heaters: Questions and Answers"

Oil-Filled Electric Radiator

Q. What is an Oil Filled Electric Radiator Heater?
A. This is an electric radiant heater made of high grade steel that automatically maintains the desired room temperature similar to the old time steam radiators.
Q. How does the Electric Radiator heat?
A. There are 8 vertical "fins" filled with a special "diathermic" oil, permanently sealed within the heater. An electrically controlled heating element heats the oil from the inside, which heats the 8 "fins", resulting in the heater giving off a large amount of comfortable radiant heat.
Q. How, then, is room temperature automatically controlled?
A. A heat sensitive thermostat is built in with easy to operate controls. As soon as room temperature gets below the desired level, the thermostat senses this, and automatically turns the radiator back on.
Q. Does the Radiator Heater need any special installation?
A. No. There is no special plumbing or wiring needed. Simply plug in the PRESTO Model 08102 into a normal 2 prong wall outlet. The outer dimensions of the PRESTO Model is 17 1/8"x7 3/4"x24 3/4". Weight is 40 pounds. Unit by PRESTO comes with multi-direction casters making it easy to move around, even on carpet. Heat proof hand space makes it easy to move while hot.
Q. Is it necessary to add oil to the radiator heater?
A. No. The Oil Filled Electric Radiator Heater is permanently filled and sealed and never needs refilling. It is a very convenient and clean heater to operate
Q. Will Electric Radiator Heaters consume oxygen like Kerosene Heaters?
A. No. Also Electric Radiators produce no odor, and will not produce any carbon monoxide, which is lethal if inhaled. It is not necessary to leave a window open while operating. Electric Radiator Heaters do not involve any combustion of oil.
Q. Is the Electric Radiator Heater safe?
A. Yes. The PRESTO model 08102 is approved by UL (Underwriters Laboratories). Close scrutiny is given to all safety points and PRESTO, who is the worlds leading manufacturer of Quartz Heaters and other styles of Electric Heaters, passed all safety points with flying colors. It is even safe around children and pets.
Q. Does the Electric Radiator heat the same as the steam radiator heaters of the old days?
A. Yes. The way the radiator heats is natural convection, non-directional heat.
Q. How long does it take to heat a room?
A. Of course this depends on the size of room, degree of outside temperature on a given day, quality of insulation in your home, etc. However, under average conditions, let it run for about an hour and personal comfort should be achieved. After the heater is turned off, residual heat comes from the heater for a good while. Try it in up to a 20 foot square room.
Q. How much does it cost to operate the Electric Radiator Heater?
A. It costs approximately 10 cents per hour to operate in Greenville, N.C.
Q. Which brand should I buy?
A. PRESTO offers a top quality 8 fin 1500 watt, 5120 BTU unit that is backed by a well known national network of authorized service centers. PRESTO's guarantee gives free parts and labor for one year. This is the same PRESTO that has manufactured the world famous super reliable PRESTO Pressure Cooker for 76 continuous years. Since the Electric Radiator is designed to last for many years, length of service that PRESTO can offer on any of their products becomes a major factor when deciding on a brand to buy.
Q. Where can I buy a PRESTO Electric Radiator Heater?

Brewers Stunned By McGee

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Losing pitcher Pete Vuckovich had no more explanation than the rest of his Milwaukee teammates for lithe Willie McGee's sudden show of power.

"Not only is he good looking, but he can hit and he can take them away. I think he showed that tonight," Vuckovich said.

McGee, who hit only four home runs during the regular season, clubbed a pair off Vuckovich to spark the Cardinals' 6-2 victory over Milwaukee Friday night in Game 3 of the World Series. McGee also robbed Gorman Thomas of a possible home run in the ninth inning and made a back-handed catch against the center field wall to rob the Brewers' Paul Molitor of a possible extra-base hit in the first.

The victory gave St. Louis a 2-1 lead in the series that resumes today.

"I thought I made good pitches most of the game," Vuckovich said. "I thought I made good pitches to McGee, too, but he hit a couple of mistakes. Give him credit."

"If you had given me 1,000-to-1 odds that McGee would have hit two home runs tonight, I'd gladly have taken them," said Vuckovich's catcher, Ted Simmons.

Vuckovich, a right-hander who relies on control rather than overpowering hitters, readily conceded the pitches Simmons spoke of were not where he had intended them to be.

"On the first one, laterally it was four inches off and seven inches inside," he said. "The second wasn't much better. I'm no J.R. Richard or Nolan Ryan. I have to make good pitches, or I get in trouble.

"I blame myself," he said. "My teammates made good plays and tried their darndest behind me. I made a couple of mistakes that cost me and I have to apologize to my teammates for that."

Those mistakes put the Brewers into a 5-0 hole in the seventh, which proved insurmountable after the Cardinals brought in relief ace Bruce Sutter, who had earned the victory in St. Louis' 5-4 victory in Game 2 of the Series Wednesday night.

Sutter gave up a two-run homer to Cecil Cooper but, aided by McGee's ninth-inning catch, went on to get the save for starter Joaquin Andujar.

"Any time a pitcher like Sutter comes in with that kind of lead, he's going to be especially tough, but I think we got a couple of good looks at him that may help us later," said Thomas.

Smith Hopes Owens Noticed

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lonnie Smith hopes Paul Owens has noticed him.

"I'm trying to play with the ability I know I have so he'll realize he's made a mistake," Smith said, referring to the Philadelphia Phillies general manager who sent him to St. Louis in a three-team trade during the off-season. "But he'll never admit he's made a mistake."

Smith stroked two key extra-base hits for the St. Louis Cardinals in their 6-2 World Series victory over the Milwaukee Brewers in Game 3 Friday night.

Smith enjoyed a fine rookie year with the Phillies in 1980, helping the club to the World Championship in their first World Series appearance since 1950.

But, he said, Owens never had confidence in him and he might never have received the chance to play regularly had it not been for Dallas Green, who was then the manager of the Phillies.

"The Phillies know what I'm capable of," he said. "I had nothing to prove to them. I admit I do make some mistakes, but I'm happy as long as my teammates think I can do the job."

The speedy left fielder helped snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning Friday when he doubled off Brewers' starter and loser Pete Vuckovich. He later scored on the first of Willie McGee's two home runs. Smith also stroked a triple into the gap in right-center field in the seventh and came home when the relay throw from Milwaukee second baseman Jim Gantner hit him and bounded into the Cardinal dugout.

Smith, who had been 3-for-18 in post-season play prior to the double, said he hadn't been sleeping well because he was worried.

"I tossed and turned and kicked my wife," he said. "It started to get to me because I knew I was a lot better."

McGee Did Not Play Like A Rookie

MILWAUKEE (AP) - Willie McGee's rookie days are nearly over. When the World Series ends, so will his status as a babe in the major leagues.

Friday night he played like a brilliant veteran, not a player who started the year in the minor leagues before being promoted to the St. Louis Cardinals.

The fleet center fielder drove in four runs with two homers and made two splendid catches, one in the ninth on a ball hit by Gorman Thomas that could have spelled some trouble for his team.

The Cards went on to defeat Milwaukee 6-2 and moved ahead in the Series, two games to one.

"I don't think anybody ever had a better World Series game than he had tonight," said Cardinal Manager Whitey Herzog.

"He had two homers and was all over the outfield and he made that catch in the last inning. If he doesn't make that catch Mr. Sutter might be in trouble. He can do it all. He's a great young player.

A great young player just like the Milwaukee scouting report said he was:

"Good hitter, he can run and ... he was an excellent center fielder. He certainly showed that tonight," Herzog said.

Cardinal relief ace Bruce Sutter called McGee "an exciting player. When he came up to replace ... David Green he helped us right away. And when he slumped a little bit Whitey stuck with him, instilling confidence in him, which has helped Willie tremendously."

McGee was acquired from the New York Yankees last October.

McGee is the third rookie ever to hit two home runs in a World Series game. Ironically, the other two were Yankees, Charlie Keller in 1939 and Tony Kubek in 1957.

McGee started the season in Louisville, but was brought up in May to replace Green, who was injured.

"I thought he'd have to go back to the minors but he played so well I had to keep him," said Herzog.

This season, he hit .296 with 54 runs batted in, 43 runs scored and four home runs.

McGee's first home run gave the Cardinals a 3-0 lead in the fifth inning, his second came the next time he came to bat.

In the ninth, Thomas hit a shot with one man on base that looked like it was gone.

"I had to jump. I don't know if it would have gone out or not," said McGee, who did not play in the first game and went 0-4 in the second.

And how did he feel about being here after being in the minors at the beginning of the year?

"I don't believe I'm here," he said.

Sutter Does Job, Keeps Brewers From Rallying

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bruce Sutter, the St. Louis Cardinals' relief ace, says now is no time to worry about fatigue.

"I can pitch again tomorrow if they need me," Sutter said after nailing down the Cardinals' 6-2 victory over the Milwaukee Braves in Game Three of the World Series. "Of course, I might not feel like it, but I would if they asked me."

Sutter provided a 5-0 cushion when he entered the game, let some of the advantage slip away when Cecil Cooper cracked a two-run homer in the eighth.

"I'm all right. I just made a couple of bad pitches," said Sutter, who was also aided by Willie McGee's leaping catch at the center field wall of Gorman Thomas' drive in the ninth inning. "But that's going to happen."

Sutter made 38 pitches during his 21-3 innings stint as St. Louis took a two-games-to-one lead over the Brewers.

"I haven't played in this park enough, so I couldn't really tell whether Thomas' ball was going to go out in the ninth inning," added Sutter, who also pitched 21-3 innings and was the winning pitcher in the Cardinals' victory in Game 2. "But I didn't have trouble telling with Cooper's."

Sutter, who had not surrendered a home run since Sept. 4, joined his teammates in praising McGee, who slammed two homers and drove in four runs.

"Willie's been doing it for us all year. He comes to play," said Sutter.

"That young man is going to be some kind of ballplayer. In fact, he already is."

By homering twice, McGee tied a World Series record by a rookie. Charlie Keller of the New York Yankees was the first to do it in 1939, while fellow Yankee Tony Kubek matched the feat in 1957.

Sutter said McGee is "not really a home run hitter" but one who "makes good contact and hits line drives."

"Usually, when he gets hits, he makes them count," said St. Louis third baseman Ken Oberkfell. "He's picking up a flair for the dramatic, and I kind of like it."

OUTDOORS With Joe Albea

RECORD TURKEY HARVEST — A record 372 wild turkeys were harvested by Tar Heel hunters during the 1982 spring hunting season, the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commision reports. This represents a 27% increase over the 1981 season when 293 birds were taken.

"Several factors accounted for the higher harvest," said Brian Hyder, leader of the Wildlife Commission's wild turkey project. "This restoration porgram, conducted by the Wildlife Commission, has established new populations of the birds in many areas where they were absent only a few years ago.

"This increase in the turkey population," Hyder continued, "is reflected in steadily rising harvests. For example, the harvest this year represents a 300% increase over 1974, when 98 birds were taken."

Warm, dry weather also played a role in the record harvest. "We had a good hatch in the spring and good survival of young during the summer. Also, the growing interest in turkey hunting is producting better hunters, and more hunters are tagging and reporting their kills as required by law."

The highest harvests were in Caswell County where 93 birds were taken. Onslow County with 31, Alamance County with 28, Person County with 26 and Bertie County with 21.

"There are still several problems that are hurting wild turkey populations. Free-roaming dogs destroy nests and young, and illegal shooting takes a toll. Both of these problems are preventing expansion of turkey populations in some areas," Hyder said. "The continued loss of good turkey habitat to development must also be controlled.

"One of the best things that sportsmen can do to help wild turkeys is to join the North Carolina Wild Turkey Federation," Hyder said. "This organization has consistently supported wild turkey programs, and has played a key role in the restoration of this fine game bird in North Carolina."

WILDLIFE FEATURED AT STATE FAIR — Would you like to see living examples of the state's major game fish? Hear how wildlife is managed on game lands? Or, learn more about the effect acid rain has on our environment and wildlife?

If so, be sure to visit the Wildlife Resources Commission's exhibit at the N.C. State Fair (Oct. 15-23). Near the Village of Yesteryear, the wildlife tent will house aquariums with live fish, displays on game lands and acid rain and other interesting exhibits.

Wildlife Commission employees will also be on hand to answer questions about wildlife management along with hunting, fishing and trapping regulations. Subscriptions to Wildlife in North Carolina magazine and Outdoors in North Carolina t-shirts, and art prints will also be sold.

SMALL-GAME SEASONS OPEN SOON — The squirrel season opens this Monday (Oct. 18) and runs through Jan. 31. A plentiful mast crop has assured an abundance of fat and sassy bushy-tails will be found throughout the state.

The bag limits are eight squirrels daily with 16 in possession and a season limit of 75. The hunting season for fox squirrels — open only in Bladen, Brunswick, Cumblerland, Duplin, Greene, Harnett, Hoke, Johnston, Moore, New Hanover, Onslo, Pender, Pitt, Richmond, Sampson, Scotland and Wayne counties — also runs from Oct. 18 to Jan. 31.

The bag limits for fox squirrels is one per day with two in possession and a season-limit of 10.

Those who are stout of heart and strong of limb will not want to miss the opening day of grouse season, which is also Oct. 18. The season runs through Feb. 28, and bag limits are three daily with six in possession and a 30 for the season.

DEER SEASON — Deer season also opens Oct. 18 in most counties. This season is for white-tail deer with visible antlers. Either-sex season opens in some areas (check hunting and trapping regulation manual). Bag limits are one daily, two in possession and four for the season.

FISHING REPORT — Bass fishing picked up at Lake Mattamuskeet this past week. The fishing were hitting both popping bugs on topwater and plastic worms on the bottom.

Nice Catch

Domestic Car Industry Facing More Red Ink

By ANN JOB WOOLLEY
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT (AP) — Sluggish car sales and costs of tooling up for 1983 models will push third quarter domestic automobile earnings as much as $350 million into the red, industry analysts say.

General Motors Corp. and possibly Chrysler Corp. will be the only automakers to report profits in the third quarter, traditionally the industry's toughest, the analysts said.

Third-quarter earnings reports, which are expected in the next two weeks, are hurt by start-up costs for manufacturing new models which do not start selling until nearly the fourth quarter.

"General Motors will make money because they were able to control their costs," said Arvid Jouppi, an independent analyst in Detroit.

Five other analysts agreed in separate interviews this week, with the GM profit predictions ranging from $25 million to $75 million.

GM has earned $688.3 million so far this year. It lost $468 million in the third quarter of last year. U.S. sales so far this year are down 12.8 percent from last year's tally.

The six analysts agreed Ford Motor Co. will lose millions of dollars in the quarter, with the loss estimates ranging from $125 million to $360 million.

"Their North American sales volume in the third quarter was 15 percent below the already depressed levels of 1981," said David Healy, analyst at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. in New York. "And they have no particularly hot-selling car" in the profit-rich luxury or specialty car markets.

The costs of financing sales incentives, ranging from dealer incentives to low interest rates on car loans, also was a burden, Healy said.

Earlier this month, former Ford Chairman Henry Ford II admitted the company would loose money but would not say how much.

Ford lost $97.1 million in the first half of 1982. It lost $335 million in the third quarter of 1981. U.S. sales so far this year are off 8.6 percent from year-ago levels.

United Auto Workers President Douglas A. Fraser, who sits on the board of directors at Chrysler, has predicted Chrysler will show a profit in the third quarter. But he declined to say how much.

Analysts said Chrysler will be "near break-even."

Any profit will be "under $10 million," Healy said.

Chrysler has learned "to contain its losses" through cost-cutting, Jouppi said.

Chrysler reported profits of $256.8 million in the first half of 1982. In the third quarter of 1981, it lost $140.1 million. Chrysler car sales so far this year are off 11.8 percent from a year earlier.

American Motors Corp. will be in the red for the 10th straight quarter, analysts said.

The automaker introduced its first subcompact, the Renault Alliance, in late September. But Arthur Davis, analyst at Prescott, Ball & Turben in Cleveland, says, "I can't believe the car will take off that fast" and pull AMC into the black.

"They can't be making much money on it," added Mary Ann Keller, analyst at Paine Webber, Mitchell Hutchins & Co. in New York. "It's very, very low-priced."

AMC has lost $119.7 million so far this year. It lost $16.8 million in the third quarter of last year. So far this year, AMC car sales in the United States have dropped 34 percent from 1981 figures.

The last time the automaker had a quarterly profit was in the first quarter of 1980, when it earned $1.3 million.

Another domestic carmaker, Volkswagen of America, Inc., is a subsidiary of Volkswagenwerk A.G. of West Germany and does not release quarterly earnings separate from its parent firm.

Cities Nearing Fiscal Breaking Point

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's cities have just about reached the bottom of the tax barrel, while the prices they pay for everything from paper clips to squad cars keep going up, according to a congressional study.

A staff report prepared for the Joint Economic Committee and released on Saturday said that during the past three years, city budgets have been low on resources while spending pressures mounted.

"This year the pressures are evidently more intense," the report said. "Perhaps the most disturbing finding ... is that for 1982 cities are projecting virtually no growth in revenues.

"For cities of all sizes, revenues are expected to increase by an average of only 1.3 percent," the report said. "At present rates of inflation, this would mean a reduction of approximately 6 percent in real terms.

"At the same time, however, current expenditures are projected to grow at an average of 7.8 percent, about equal to the anticipated rate of inflation," the staff reported. "As a result, cities are increasingly subject to cash squeezes and current deficits."

The Consumer Price Index for August, the last month for which it is available, showed inflation for the first eight months of the year at an annual pace of 5.1 percent.

The report said that two out of every five cities surveyed reported their operating expenses and payments on debts exceeded their income in 1981, and 59 percent are projecting deficits for this year.

Although the highest proportion of cities running deficits is found among the larger cities, the fastest increase in distress is among small cities, the report added.

The findings indicate that smaller cities that have been considered relatively free of the urban blight and economic distress of the big metropolitan areas are now running rapidly into the same problems.

The report also said states are moving in many cases to help cities with revenue shortages but that even those states willing to help will not be able to keep it up for long.

State aid was found to be the fastest growing component of total revenue growth for cities in 1981, increasing an average 10.2 percent. But property taxes, already the largest single source of city income, shot up an average 10 percent, a rate that cannot be sustained.

"In 1981, federal aid as a proportion of total current revenues fell for all cities from an average of 9.8 percent to 8.9 percent," the report said. "The greatest loss was in the largest cities, where it fell from 16.0 percent to 14.7 percent of total revenues.

"For every category of current revenues, cities see much slower growth — or decline — in 1982," the report said.

"Cities are projecting that property taxes will grow only 3.4 percent," the study found. "Federal aid is expected to drop by 12 percent. The growth in state aid is also seen as slowing down abruptly."

The report concluded that cities will be forced to turn increasingly to user charges and other local taxes.

"Aside from the regressive nature of these revenues, such increases come at the very time when the local and national economies are in need of stimulus," the report said. "Thus, in the current recession, local government behavior (and state government as well) has hampered, and will continue to dampen, recovery."

In a forward to the report, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., the committee chairman, accused the Reagan administration of neglecting "the significance of the fiscal crisis plaguing so many cities today" and of holding a "survival of the fittest" view that some cities are not worth saving.

"What this overlooks is that our cities, even the most deteriorated, are homes to millions of people, museums, libraries, orchestras, universities," Reuss said.

"Giving up on cities is tantamount to giving up on our culture and civilization," Reuss said.

Mexico's Economic Woes Hitting Hard At Wealthy Little U.S. City

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

CALEXICO, Calif. (AP) — This wealthy little city with its quaint stores was built on trade with Mexicans across the border, but the peso crisis is causing shuttered shops, record unemployment and fears of even worse times ahead.

"People here are just hanging on by the skin of their teeth," said Bill Polkinhorn, a city councilman and merchant in the desert city.

Since Aug. 4, the date of Mexico's second and largest peso devaluation of the year, Calexico, population 14,000, has been skidding toward financial disaster.

For decades, Calexico cashed in on commerce from the city across the border, Mexicali, Mexico, which has 1 million people.

Mexicali shoppers with border-crossing documents flooded Calexico's tiny downtown and made it a retail oasis for American merchants.

But after devaluation, Mexicans found their buying power cut drastically and the Mexican government stopped its citizens from buying dollars legally.

"People could have lived with the devaluation, sooner or later you adjust," Polkinhorn said. "But the fact that the Mexicali people can't get their hands on dollars is killing us."

He estimates that sales have plummeted 45 percent among Calexico's 340 merchants.

A dozen establishments have been forced to close, including five in the last two weeks, according to Carmen Rojas, manager of Calexico's Chamber of Commerce.

More than 550 retail-related jobs have been lost since August and the town has about 1,200 to 1,500 people still working, said Angel Somera, manager of the Employment Development Department office.

Hardest hit was the giant Fed-Mart shopping center, which has laid off upwards of 110 workers, more than half its work force.

Unemployment in Imperial County has doubled in the last five years and now stands at 39.6 percent, an all-time high for California's 58 counties.

In 1972, Calexico led California in per capita retail sales, with stores doing $37 million worth of business. That sum skyrocketed to $138 million in 1981.

Polkinhorn, who is 39 and a lifelong resident of Calexico, operates an international custom house that specializes in commercial trade between the two countries.

To him, all signs indicate another devaluation and another catastrophic jolt for Calexico.

"I don't think we're on the verge of becoming a ghost town," he said. "But I see the population dropping in half.

"Everyone's biting the bullet and the big acid test is how many can last until the first of the year." That's when Mexico reportedly will end its dollar freeze.

Compounding the crisis is the glut of pesos brought on by an overnight explosion of money exchange houses. Their numbers have more than tripled since August, from 14 to 56, resulting in a chaotic exchange rate ranging from 70 pesos to 110 pesos to the dollar.

"It's creating havoc for the merchants," who hold daily meetings on the problem, Polkinhorn said. "It's a state of panic."

Pat Hasham, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said the peso glut and scarcity of dollars has left some merchants holding "up to 9 million to 10 million in pesos," or about $50,000.

The merchant, he said, "is barely hanging on now, and if he's hit with another devaluation before he can get rid of the pesos, it's going to put a lot more out of business." Some merchants drive 120 miles to San Diego daily to unload their pesos, he said.

"The exchanges are controlling the rate," said Larry Holt, manager of Kress' variety store. "They've flooded the town with pesos. They're dealing out of the back of cars and swarming the streets."

If retail volume continues to plunge, the city of Calexico stands to take heavy losses in tax revenue.

"Last September the city generated $250,000 in sales taxes. This year it is less than $100,000," Hasham said.

"I anticipate we're probably going to see a lot of programs cut. It will probably be the only way to the keep the city above water."

Please report any damaged traffic signs or traffic control devices to the Public Works Department, 752-4137.

NOW YOU CAN EARN MONEY MARKET RATES ON CHECKING!

COMBINING INVESTMENT RATES OF RETURN WITH CHECKING CONVENIENCE

Investment Checking works just like your regular checking. Write checks in any amount and make deposits as you like. Home Federal pays you MONEY MARKET RATES that usually mean locking up your funds.

Investment Checking combines interest bearing checking with the higher yield of Home Federal's Retail Repurchase Agreements. A Repurchase Agreement is not a savings account or a deposit and is not insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. However, the Repurchase Agreements are fully collateralized and directly secured by U.S. Government or by U.S. Government Agency obligations for our customers' protection.

Investment Checking - it's not for everybody. It's for modern managers who want the most action for their money. Come over to Home Federal, where checking could be your best investment.

Business Notes

DPMA MEETING

The Coastal Plains chapter of the Data Processing Management Association will meet Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the MGN-East in Goldsboro.

Dennis Hays of IBM will be the guest speaker, according to Ralph Hester, president.

ASSISTANT CASHIER

Don Allen Jennings, a personal loan officer, has been named an assistant cashier for First Citizens Bank in Grifton.

A Pasquotank County native, Jennings graduated from East Carolina University with a degree in management. He has been with the bank since 1981.

VALUABLE SUGGESTION

The wife of a Greenville native was recently awarded $8,000 as a result of a suggestion she submitted to her employer, Prudential Insurance Co., that has a potential annual savings to the company of some $40,000.

Prudential said Ginger Sawyer, whose husband, Douglas, is from Greenville, suggested that one package be placed inside another for daily mailings to the regional office at Jacksonville, Fla., instead of mailing two packages. Mrs. Sawyer, office manager for the company's Roanoke, Va., district agency, received 20 percent of the projected annual savings realized by Prudential's 115 offices in 10 Southeastern states.

Sawyer's parents are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Sawyer of Greenville.

RECORD FIGURES

Branch Corp. reported record earnings for the third quarter ended Sept. 30, surpassing the previous record established in the third quarter of 1981 by 7.6 percent.

For the quarter, income before securities transactions was $3,969,000 or 81 cents per share, compared with $3,689,000 or 73 cents per share in 1981.

Net income for the quarter was $3,140,000 or 64 cents per share compared with $3,128,000 or 62 cents per share for the corresponding quarter of 1981.

For the nine months ended Sept. 30, income before transactions was $10,424,000, $2.11 per share, and $10,367,000, $2.06 per share, in 1981.

STOCK SPLIT

The board of directors of Procter & Gamble Co. have called a special meeting of the company shareholders to consider a two-for-one split in shares of P&G comon stock.

At the Jan. 11 meeting, the shareholders will be asked to consider and take action on increasing the authorized number of common shares from 100 million to 250 million and changing each of the present issued shares of common stock into two shares of common stock.

The board indicated that, provided profits and business conditions justify, it intends to declare a quarterly dividend, payable Feb. 15, of 60 cents per share on the split stock, which is equivalent to $1.20 per share on the present common stock. The figure represents a 14 percent dividend rate increase.

Futures Prices Mixed

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
Associated Press Writer

Live hogs and frozen pork belly futures prices were sharply higher and cattle prices were mixed to mostly lower Friday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Hog prices were supported by higher cash wholesale prices, said Bob Kuhn, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Merrill Lynch Commodities. Cash prices, he said, were pushed higher by higher prices being paid for pork products such as hams, loins and chops. In addition, farmers are spending their time harvesting grain and have less time to market livestock.

As a result, Kuhn said, fewer numbers of animals are reaching the market and meat packers are raising their bids.

Pork bellies were higher on ideas that cash prices have reached a bottom at about 75 cents, Kuhn said. Support also came from concern that the Agriculture Department will report next week that only a small amount of pork bellies are in cold storage, he said.

Cattle prices were mixed amid some profit taking that followed two weeks of increasing prices, Kuhn said.

Live cattle settled .53 cent lower to .43 cent higher with October at 61.90 cents a pound; feeder cattle settled .83 cent lower to .30 cent higher with October at 67.75 cents a pound; live hogs were unchanged to .83 cent higher with October at 58.50 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were .53 cent lower to 2 cents higher with February at 84.40 cents a a pound.

Grain and soybean futures prices closed mostly lower Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prices were stable until noon and fell in late trading.

Mike Hinebaugh, a grain analyst with ContiCommodity Services, Inc., said the decline in late trading was typical of pre-weekend activity during the harvest season.

Commercial firms were among the sellers, as they hedged their anticipated purchases on the cash market over the weekend, Hinebaugh said.

In addition, he said, the weather forecast calls for excellent conditions for the har-vest for the next seven to 10 days.

Diplomatic Work Sends Her Traveling

A FIELD TRIP...during the rainy season was made to Bomi Hills, Liberia. Ginny was visiting a family there.

TOURING IN ROME...Ginny Phillips, right, is standing with Dale Davis in St. Peter's Square. The Vatican is pictured in the background. Ms. Davis was a communicator at the American Embassy there.

She was first assigned to Monrovia, Liberia, in West Africa, as a consular assistant for American services. She then took a direct transfer to Rome and worked as a secretary in the economic section in the American Embassy.

A spark of interest in travel was first initiated during her final year at Pitt Community College when she went on a 10-day European tour sponsored by Don and Faye Dempsey. "I knew I had to work in order to be able to travel," said Miss Phillips. After graduation she went to Kentucky and worked two and a half years as an administrative clerk in a federal prison.

She was assigned to work in the drug abuse program unit. "I learned a lot about people and everyday was different — as a new problem was presented. While there, a year and a half of paper work was started prior to being accepted into the foreign service with the State Department," she said.

After her acceptance, she went to Washington, D.C., for six weeks of training including two weeks of African-area studies — its history and political situation. The remainder of the time was spent in State Department orientation and a terrorism seminar.

The type of cases she handled in Africa included deaths, passport cases, arrests, medical assistance and destitute Americans. "We were there to help Americans with any problem and answer questions.

"I particularly enjoyed the field work in bush country which took me to almost every part of Liberia. Usually the trips were made to contact Americans who could not get to us or we had information or other essentials. Because of the lack of a communications system — the trips were necessary. Often I went to see a missionary or someone serving in the Peace Corps. On one trip, I spent eight hours looking for a missionary because his sponsoring church had not heard from him in six months. Each trip presented a challenge because we didn't know what obstacles to expect.

"For instance during the six-month rainy season, many of the roads were inpassable, but the trips had to be made. I dug myself out of many mudholes. There were times during my year's stay that were dangerous because of the military take-over," she stated.

"The whole experience was a challenge. It was scary and exciting," she added.

During the weekends or free time, she traveled, going to the beaches — "which were gorgeous" - or visiting Peace Corps friends. She spent holidays with other members of the embassy employees. Miss Phillips lived behind the embassy on an enclosed compound that had houses and apartments.

Her weekends in Italy were spent in traveling to all parts of the country. There were so many places to visit and see. "You never run out of interesting sightseeing places and I ate a lot of pasta and read a lot. I gained 20 pounds, the food was excellent," said Miss Phillips.

Miss Phillips spent six weeks on home leave. She visited her mother, Leona Cunio in Lebanon, Ky. and sisters — one in Greenville, Ann Christ, and the other, Norma Phillips, in Gaithersburg, Md. She is now in Washington participating in an eight-week Spanish language course. Her next assignment is Bogota, Columbia. She will be a secretary in the embassy's political section there.

Her future plans are to remain in foreign service — but uncertain in what area. "Of course, assignments depend on the immediate needs of the department. After Bogota, I hope to be posted in the Far East," she said.

"I would recommend this life or career for a single woman; however, being married with children doesn't seem to be a problem for most people at the embassy. This career field provides an excellent opportunity learning about new cultures. There's a lot out there to see and learn. The salary is good, but the benefits are better, such as government housing, utilities, leave time, medical and insurance.

"Working with the people in both embassies provided many enriching experiences. The last two years of my life have been the hardest ones, but at the same time have been the best and most interesting. I probably learned more in those two years than in the previous 23," she said.

A Growing Trend For Joint Custody Of Children

DR. ROBERT FAY

By PETER COY
Associated Press Writer

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Robert Fay, separated from his wife, drove 80 miles to attend a PTA meeting at his children's school only to find the lights out and the doors locked.

Nobody had told him the meeting was postponed. Although he had joint custody of his two children, the school district refused to mail him PTA notices without a specific court order.

"An interest in a child should be nurtured, not obstructed," the pediatrician complained later. "I exist and I care and so do thousands of other fathers."

Joint custody remains a rarity that has not been accepted fully by schools, family courts, lawmakers and, in many cases, divorcing parents. Now, some experts see a tide turning.

"The discussion of pros and cons is getting hotter and hotter," said Dr. Doris Jonas Freed, chairwoman of the custody committee of the American Bar Association.

"We want to humanize the adversary process in child-custody cases. What we're interested in is getting the kids out of the fight," she said.

California's strong joint-custody law, passed in 1979 and since strengthened, has become a model for similar legislation in such states as Nevada, Hawaii, Montana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Idaho.

The laws generally direct judges to give preference to joint custody. If that is not sensible, the judge is advised to award custody to the parent who seems most likely to allow the other to have frequent access to the child.

The law eliminates the motivation for bruising, winner-take-all custody fights by giving parents an incentive to cooperate. If they behave vindictively, sole custody could go to the other parent.

There are more than 1 million divorces annually in the United States, and two-thirds of the couples have children under the age of 14. Ninety percent of all divorcing mothers gain sole custody of their children, and most of them hold jobs.

Effects on children are often economic as well as emotional. U.S. Census Bureau Director Bruce Chapman recently reported that single parenthood "is almost a prescription for poverty, especially in urban areas."

"Fathers wouldn't pay child support so grudgingly if they felt like parents instead of just like wallets," said Fay, who has been divorced from his wife and has joined Equal Rights for Fathers Inc. "The trauma of losing one's children is really not appreciated."

Under the no-fault divorce laws that most states passed in the 1970s, women who sue for divorce get it automatically. Their former husbands find themselves losing not only their wives but their children as well.

Visitation rights are not enough, joint-custody advocates argue. "You can't have frequent and continuing contact when you're a 'zoo' father, or a 'movie' father when it rains," Mrs. Freed said.

Dr. O.C. Coogler of the Family Mediation Association in Bethesda, Md., said his toughest job is convincing couples that joint custody does not mean a tug of war between parents.

Children are usually quick to accept that their divorced parents have different rules on things like when to go to bed and what to eat, Coogler said. They shift between households the way they might shift between home and school.

Coogler and his ex-wife, who live in different states, each have remarried and have kept their young children one full year at a time since their divorce.

"We recognize that there will be changes as there are changes in the needs of the children," he said. "This has not been easy, but on the whole I think it has worked out rather well."

"You don't have to love your ex-spouse in order to work out a businesslike arrangement in the best interests of the children," argues Ellen Kimball, a former Boston radio talk-show host who founded Mothers Without Custody Inc. in Sudbury, Mass., last year.

"Joint custody doesn't work, though, unless the parents are willing to look at it as a situation that will go on forever," she said.

Ms. Luepnitz' study of 91 children from the Buffalo, N.Y., area found that children in the custody of their mothers often treated their fathers like distant uncles.

"The children either devalue or idealize their fathers, and usually it's a strange mixture of both," she said, adding that children of joint custody appeared to have normal relationships with both parents.

A measure of joint custody's success in California was a study of 414 cases in a Santa Monica, Calif., court that found couples awarded joint custody returned to court to resolve disputes only half as often as those awarded single custody.

Even in California, judges continue awarding single custody in most cases. In states like New York where joint custody is merely an option, and not the "preferred" one, joint-custody decrees are rarer still.

"You've got a generation of judges who decreed all the sole custody cases, and now we're questioning the morality of their decisions. They're scampering to defend their decisions," said James A. Cook of Los Angeles, a divorced father and president of the Joint Custody Association.

IMPORTED PINEAPPLE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pineapples are grown not from seeds, but from the stumps of existing pineapple plants.

To develop new plants, the stump of a pineapple is sliced into small pieces, each of which grows into a plant.

Del Monte, which started planting pineapple in Costa Rica in 1978 from plants imported from Hawaii, says it takes 18 to 24 months for a pineapple plant to bear its first fruit.

Lane-Randalls Vows Solemnized Saturday

BURGAW — Bethany Ruth Randalls of Farmville and Greig Sidney Lane of Burgaw were married Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in the Jordans Chapel United Methodist Church here.

Performing the double ring ceremony was the Rev. Fred Dillon and the Rev. C.E. Price. Tom Prescott was organist and Bettina Roberts, cousin of the bride, was vocalist.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Francis Randalls of Candler and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Marion Lane of Burgaw.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father. She was wearing an heirloom gown worn by her aunt and handsewn by her great aunt. The white slipper satin gown, a late 1800's style, featured a rolled collar which formed a V-neckline and buttoned down the front with satin buttons. The long fitted sleeves buttoned at the wrist. The apron effect front extended to a full back which featured a bustle. The double cathedral train was satin covered with chantilly lace and edged with lace. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a crown of illusion leaves and seed pears. It was also worn by her aunt. She wore a strand of pearls belonging to the paternal grandmother of the bridegroom. She carried a cascade of winter white roses, stephanotis, lily of the valley and cranberry baby's breath tied with winter white and cranberry streamers.

The honor attendant wore a formal dress of cranberry crepe back satin fashioned off-the-shoulder with a ruffle falling into a gathered skirt with a hemline flounce. She wore a pink and cranberry ribbon covered barrette with dusty rose baby's breath and carried an arm bouquauet of silk flowers in cranberry, dusty rose and pink tied with matching streamers.

The attendants' dresses and flowers were identical. The junior attendants' dresses were styled like that of the honor attendant in dusty rose. The flower girl wore a similar styled dress with a high neckline in baby pink and carried a white wicker basket with petals and wore a wrist corsage of white pom pons.

The bride's sister, Kimberly Smith of Farmville was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Judy Lane of Hampstead, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, Bettina Roberts of Candler, cousin of the bride, and Laurel Jones of Washington. Leigh Anne Smathers of Candler, cousin of the bride, and Joy Highsmith of Burgaw, niece of the bridegroom, were junior bridesmaids while the flower girl was Mandy Highsmith of Burgaw, niece of the bridegroom.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Charles Lane of Hampstead, brother of the bridegroom, Nick Harris of Burgaw and Mike Caruso of Charlotte. The ring bearer was Chris Batchlor of Burgaw. Junior ushers were Andrew Randalls of Candler, brother of the bride, Marc and Matt Moore of Lumberton, nephews of the bride.

The couple will live in Burgaw after a Florida wedding trip.

The bride graduated from Washington High School and Pitt Community College. The bridegroom graduated from Pender Academy, Cape Fear Technical and Wake Technical Schools. She is a former employee of Wachovia Bank in Greenville and he works for Babcock and Wilcox in Wilmington.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall and was given by the bride's parents. The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and accented with cranberry bows and white wedding bells. It was centered with an arrangement of cranberry, dusty rose and pink flowers and lighted tapers. The cake table was asccented by the flowers of the attendants.

The parents of the couple entertained at a wedding breakfast Saturday morning.1On Friday evening, the parents of the bridegroom entertained at a rehearsal party in the fellowship hall of the church. Family members, out-of-town guests, the wedding party and friends of the couple attended.

MRS. GREIG SIDNEY LANE

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

For years, I've been searching for that one common denominator that would bring the people of this nation together. Some universal topic of conversation that would unite everyone in a unified quest for the truth.

I've found it. A cure for a bad back.

Everyone in the world has a bad back, had a bad back ten years ago, is going to have a bad back, knew someone personally with a bad back, or took a person with a bad back to lunch once.

None of them are happy people. They gather around punch bowls and gas pumps and open a conversation with, "Can you remember where you were and what you were doing the day your back went out?"

Back sufferers are on a first-number and name basis with all the vertebrae of their spinal column. They also share another bit of wisdom. They can cure you if you can stand the pain of listening to the treatment.

Hang from a towel bar by your feet and run the ehower, inhaling as much steam as your lungs can stand.

Import 12 Korean aerobics instructors to dance on your spine.

Sleep in a cradle in a fetal position with a teddy bear between both knees.

Live on a diet of seaweed, kelp, raw fish and a vitamin supplement.

Have a member of your family sneak up behind you and use the Heimlich maneuver on you when you least expect it. (Have a good lawyer before you try this one.)

Someone will invariably recommend a doctor he swore by who plucked him from years of pain by curing him with only one visit. This doctor always passed on two years ago.

Although some of the stories are 40 or 50 years old, back sufferers recount them with the vividness and detail of yesterday. "I was driving down Route 66, going at about 55 miles a clip, when a bit of pollen about as big as the tip of my small fingernail caught in my nose. I remember looking over at Carl; you remember Carl, our basset hound, who had his head out of the air vent, and I sneezed. Right then, I knew my back went out. Florence grabbed the wheel and somehow we pulled off the road..."

Bad backs were invented 200 years before fire and have somehow managed to elude the instant cures of science for several thousand years. I suppose it should be of some comfort that we can still count on them to represent not only a challenge to the medical community but to serve as a social communication throughout the world.

It should be, but it isn't.

Dear Abby

Determine A Wife's Rights

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell me if a wife has any legal right to know some facts about her husband? I've been married for several years, but I don't know where my husband works. (He says, "Somewhere in Detroit.") I don't know what he does, how much he makes, how much he owes, or if he has anything saved. I don't know if he has any insurance, and if he has, who the beneficiary is.

He never has any friends over. He never mentions any names. No one ever calls him at home, yet he must have some friends because he goes somewhere. If I ask any questions, his routine answer is, "Don't worry about it."

Thank God I've got a good job. I make all the house payments. I also pay for improvements. He pays the utilities. I buy my clothes. He buys his.

No mail comes here for him. It sounds as though he could be a criminal, doesn't it? Well, I had the police check, and he has never been arrested for anything. He's never paid any fines or been in jail.

If someone comes to see me, he goes into the bedroom and stays there. No amount of pleading will get him out. After my guest leaves, he yells at me for opening the door. He doesn't even want me to answer the phone. Please help me. I need some answers soon.

IN THE DARK IN MICHIGAN

DEAR IN: Your husband is either sick (paranoid) or he is hiding out. The chances are that he is using a phony name. One thing is certain — something is very strange. First see a lawyer to determine a wife's "rights." You may have to hire a private investigator to find out why his behavior is so secretive. If you choose to live with this mysterious man, it's your right, of course. But I am "in the dark" as to what you are getting out of this marriage besides abuse.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband was named "Junior" after his father. His father is known as John Paul Jones Sr.

When my husband's father dies, will my husband then be known as John Paul Jones Sr.?

MRS. JOHN PAUL JONES JR.

DEAR MRS. JONES JR.: No. He simply drops the "Junior," because if his mother survives his father, she will be known as Mrs. John Paul Jones Sr., and were your husband to become John Paul Jones Sr., you would then become Mrs. John Paul Jones Sr., causing much confusion between you and your mother-in-law.

Yellow seems to be the upcoming color in house furnishings. This year yellow will be seen in all shades and tones from pale straw to the light to midtone colors.

CREAMY TREAT

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — After a woman named Nancy Johnson invented the hand-cranked ice cream freezer in 1846, ice cream quickly became as American as apple pie.

Today, Americans consume nearly a billion gallons of ice cream each year. According to Sealright, a maker of ice cream and dairy packaging, the trend is to richer, creamier ice creams made with natural ingredients.

The observance begins today and will continue through Saturday. Barbara Perry of Rocky Mount will speak this morning at an inspirational breakfast. At a Wednesday evening dinner, the spotlight will be on women in varied vocations. The Rev. Joanne Ver Burg, associate minister of the First Christian Church, Carolyn Harrell, administrator of Greenville Villa Nursing Home, and Jennie Baird, owner and manager of J.B.'s Island Seafood, will be spotlighted.

A progressive luncheon Saturday at the homes of Kemp Baldwin, Clara Carr and Carolyn Harrell will conclude the observance.

Other special activities are scheduled to focus attention on working women including: displays at Joyner Library, East Carolina University, and in Sheppard Memorial Library; television appearances on "Carolina Today" WNCT, WITN AND WCTI; merchant displays at Brody's, C. Heber Forbes and Virginia Crabtree and news releases in "The Daily Reflector."

"The Changing World of Working Women" is this year's theme of the National Federation. The program is designed to direct attention to four aspects of the modern working woman: economic and political status; work world of the future; changing lifestyle; and career directions. Programs throughout the federation will develop these topics.

U.S. rice represents 20-25 percent of all rice moving in international trade. This figure reflects the fact that most of the rice producing countries consume all or most of their production at home and very little of it enters international trade.

Start Career Plans In High School

NEW YORK (UPI) — Too many young people wait too long to get their act together when it comes to future business careers, says the president of a human resources management consulting firm.

Andrew Sherwood, of Goodrich and Sherwood Co., advises teenagers to begin planning careers as soon as possible upon entering high school.

Learn to read with speed and comprehension, he says. Take extra study courses if your reading is weak. Then, turn off television and read, read, read.

After college you will have to read reports, industry magazines, business papers and piles of correspondence to stay on top of your job and get ahead.

Learn to communicate orally and in writing, he adds. You'll need to persuade others to see things your way and keep your superiors posted.

You will have to make oral or written reports and presentations or write intercompany memos. Take courses to help develop such skills, Sherwood says. Make a special effort when doing book reports, history outlines, English compositions.

His other tips:

—Look for chances to speak before school groups and others.

—Learn to work with people in a common cause. If you're athletic, try team sports. Join in group activities at church, in your neighborhood, at Scouts, at the YMCA.

—Learn how to get along with both superiors and peers.

—Engage in extracurricular activities that later will be as helpful to your career as scholastic credits. Become active in student government organizations.

—Talk to and ask advice of relatives or friends who are in careers that interest you.

—If you're headed for college, zero in on your major now so you can design high school courses to better prepare for that major.

—Concentrate on studies. Learn self discipline so you get grades needed for college or grades that will look good to a prospective employer.

—Learn all you can to help in a career. Get practical experience during school holidays and summer vacations.

If you want a job in journalism or public relations, work for your newspaper — without pay if necessary.

—If you want to be a teacher, look for a summer camp counselor's job.

—Take any job you can get at any pay, Sherwood says, as long as it gives you a leg up on the career you want.

New N.C. Posters

RALEIGH — A new series of promotional posters has been printed for use by the North Carolina Division of Travel and Tourism.

Ten scenes ranging from a fall color scene along the Blue Ridge Parkway to the Cape Hatteras Lighthouse at dusk have been reproduced in full color to aid in promoting North Carolina as a travel destination.

Copies of the posters will be sent to hotels, motels, restaurants and other public facilities throughout the state and to the National Tour Brokers Association members to attract more visitors to North Carolina, according to Charles Heatherly, director of the Travel and Tourism Division.

The series, the first in three years, include a Cherokee Indian, a pride of lions at the North Carolina Zoological Park, a young girl in Moravian dress at Old Salem, fall foliage along the Blue Ridge Parkway, the formal gardens at Tryon Palace in New Bern, a woman and young boy on the beach, and a golf scene.

Travel and tourism is North Carolina's third largest industry. In 1981 more than 51 millions visitors came to the state with expenditures in the industry reaching $2.7 billion.

AUTUMN MAGIC — Suddenly they are there, the fairy ring circle of brightly colored mushrooms. Fairy ring mushrooms in eastern North Carolina are most often found in lightly shaded areas under pine trees, but they also appear in open lawns and fields. The group shown here is a segment of a large circle about 40 feet in circumference, with cherry red caps sprinkled with lemon colored encrustrations. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Book News

FROM SHEPPARD MEMORIAL LIBRARY

By JUNE PARKER

Dennis Rogers, an old favorite from The News and Observer in Raleigh, has published a second collection of columns entitled "Second Harvest."

Rogers, a native of Wilson, has been writing for The News and Observer for five years. His first collection, "Home Grown," was published in 1979. He is thoroughly a North Carolinian.

In his latest collection, he describes the 1970s North Carolina-style. He talks about everything from jogging to the rise in divorce and the effects of a consumer-oriented society as seen in his neighbors and friends. He aslo demonstrates the effects of national events on a personal level by relating stories such as the one about Bryan Ellis who died in the attack on the embassy in Pakistan soon after the attack on the Iranian Embassy.

Interspersed among these articles which show national trends or events on a local level are stories that have a unique North Carolina flavor. There is a list of North Carolina's best and worst. Also in this category are stories such as the ones about Whitakers Barbecue, Carolina Opry House and Blackbeard the Pirate.

Other articles deal with the predicaments of everyday living or life in general such as the one entitled "Old People Are Sneaky." Each column, no matter what the type, will evoke either a chuckle, a knowing smile or a tender memory of life in North Carolina.

"Miss Manners' Guide to Excrutiatingly Correct Behavior," another new book in Shepperd's collection, is also the work of a columnist. The author, Judith Martin, is a drama and film critic for The Washington Post and a syndicated columnist.

Judith Martin, under the name of Miss Manners, guides her readers through the social tangles and traumas of modern living. Miss Manners is up to tackling and untangling any problem. She helps readers compose wedding invitations and deal with a husband's mid-life crisis. She treats everything with equal seriousness from how to jog politely to how to act the White House. She mixes her etiquette with a sense of wit that is gently satirical and quiter captivating. She is opinionated and bossy and full of interesting, quirky observations about American manners and more, but she handles all with high-minded aplomb and low-minded mischief.

Her letters and answers are a delight to read even when the reader does not care one bit about the finer points of etiquette.

Show, Sale Of Cels

More than 250 animation cel paintings are the subject of a special exhibit and sale to be held at East Carolina University Thursday and Friday, Oct. 27-28.

The sale will take place from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. in Mendenhall Student Center, with the public invited to attend.

Animation cel paintings, called "cels," are the paintings actually filmed in making animated cartoons. Each character is painted by hand on a clear sheet of acetate, usually 11 by 14 inches or larger, than placed against a background and photographed one-by-one to produce a reel of motion picture film. A cel is the final image that is photographed by the camera.

This exhibit/sale was authenticated by Gallery Lainzberg of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the nation's best-known specialist in this art form. A representative of the gallery will be on hand to answer questions.

Among cel work being shown is that of two Warner Bros. veterans, Chuck Jones, creator of Wile E. Coyote and the Roadrunner, and Pepe le Pew; and Friz Frelong, who created Tweety and Sylvester, and brought Yosemite Sam to life.

Also represented in the exhibit will be a collection of animation cel paintings from Walt Disney films including "The Jungle Book," "Robin Hood," and "The Fox and the Hound."

POW/MIA Day On October 24

NEW BERN — The National Forget-me-not Association has designated Sunday, October 24 as Prisoner of War/Missing in Action Day. In New Bern and Craven County the occasion is being sponsored by the recently organized chapter of the Down East Vietnam Veterans Association.

Observances will be held in New Bern's Bicentennial Park beginning at 3 p.m. Gordon Commodore of the Down East Vietnam Veterans will be the master of ceremonies.

The schedule of ceremonies for the afternoon includes a program of music to be performed by the U.S. Marine Corps Band from Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station, and the reading of a proclamation by New Bern Mayor Paul M. Cox and welcome by New Bern Mayor pro tem Lee Morgan.

First Congressional District Congressman Walter B. Jones will be the guest speaker. Other speakers will be Colonel James Hiteshew, a former prisoner of war in Vietnam, Mrs. Alberta Honeycutt, the mother of a serviceman missing in action, and Clark Williams of the Veterans Center in Fayetteville. Rev. C. Ed Sharp will give the invocation.

A number of exhibitions and events have been planned, such as a show of sentry dogs from Cherry Point and a karate demonstration. There will also be an appearance by Nancy and John Morton, a candlelight ceremony, and a roll call.

The POW/MIA Day serves a number of purposes. Among these are:

- To continue efforts to account for over 2,500 Americans still listed as missing in action in Indo-China or otherwise unaccounted for. Of this number, 61 are from North Carolina. These efforts will include sending congressional delegations to Hanci.
- To enlist the services of humanitarian agencies in efforts to deal with the Vietnamese government on the POW/MIA issue, and to raise the issue in the United Nations as well as solicit support from Third World nations.
- To emphasize that efforts to deal with the Vietnamese government on the POW/MIA issue cannot be tied in with any discussion of war reparations by the American government.

Veterans of the Vietnamese conflict as well as all interested persons are extended an invitation to attend the POW/MIA Day observances in New Bern on October 24.

Civil War Art Show

NEW YORK — "Battles and Leaders of the Civil War," an exhibition drawn from the American Heritage Century Collection of Civil War Art, will open at the National Academy of Design on November 4.

The show grew out of a series of articles of the same name which ran from 1884-1887 in the "Century" magazine. The articles were collected and published in book form in 1888. The series was the first attempt to deal with the Civil War in its entirety and was published in four volumes with 1,700 illustrations.

The illustrations consist of washes and pen and pencil drawings falling into three groups — those by combat artists, those by artists who served in the war, and those by "Century" illustrators.

The National Academy of Design is located on Fifth Avenue at 89th Street. Hours are 12 to 5 Wednesdays through Sundays, 12 to 8 on Tuesdays. Admission is $1.50, free after 5 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Has Show In New York

ALBANY, N.Y. — Willie Marlow, who recently had an exhibition of her work at the Greenville Museum of Art, is having an exhibit of collages and drawings at the Rathbone Gallery Junior College of Albany, N.Y. The show, which also features the work of artist Nance Goren, opened Oct. 4 and will be on view through Oct. 21.

One Program

BEAUFORT — Only one program is scheduled by Hampton Mariners Museum in Beaufort for the coming week. At noon Thursday, a slide program, "Carrott Island: A Proposed Estuarine Sanctuary," will be presented by Steven Benton, head of Technical Services Branch, Office of Coastal Management.

Interested persons are invited to attend.

PRINTS & DRAWINGS

NEW YORK (AP) — An exhibition of some 125 prints and drawings based on the work of Hendrik Goltzius (1558-1617) is on view at the Metropolitan Museum of Art through Nov. 21.

Events get underway Thursday with an Artists Series concert in Hendrix Theater, featuring soprano Joan Morris and pianist William Bolcom, who will present a program of popular songs and show tunes from the past seven decades. Tickets for the 8 p.m. concert are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center.

Hanny Concert On Wednesday

Roger Hannay, since 1966 principal composer at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and now on leave to compose a theater work on the life and work of Edith Wharton, will be a special guest this week of the School of Music, East Carolina University.

Hannay's appearance is part of the School of Music Festival '82-'83. The public is invited to a Wednesday concert for which no admission is charged.

The 8:15 p.m. concert, "New Music by Roger Hanney," will be performed by members of ECU's New Music Ensemble, "Instead," directed by Robert Stine, professor of composition and a member of the ECU music faculty. The concert will be held in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall.

Hannay will perform two of his own compositions — "Sonata for piano solo" and "Masquereade for ARP Synthesizer and Sequencer." The piano piece was composed in 1964 and the work for synthesizer in 1982.

Five ECU musicians — Dan Freeman and Dave Reep, trumpets; Dave Haas, trombone; Jeff Murphy, horn; and Bill Chamberlain, tuba, will play a 1973 Hannay work, "Four for Five for brass quintet."

"Oh Friends!" a 1976 work commissioned by the Friends Seminary of New York, will be performed by 17 student musicians — Sydney Reed and Kelly Via, flute; Kris Elliott and Glenn Webb, clarinet; Dan Freeman and Rick Crane, trumpet; Carlton Clark, cello; Cherly Beazley, piano; Bill Freeman, vibraphone; Bill Congdon and David Garza, glockenspiel; Sharon Ross, Darla Richards, Lorri Holland, and Jennifer Courtney, marimba; and Keith Beck and Brent Montgomery, timpani.

The final work on the Hannay program is "ARP-Dances" of 1977 for dancers, film and tape. Patricia Weeks, a faculty member of the ECU Department of Drama and Speech, is the choreographer. Dancers are Anita Brennan, Patsy Dennis, Shaun Holliday, Beth Patrick, Donna Pritchard, and Susan Roberts. The film used in the piece is by Don Evans.

ROGER HANNAY . . . principal composer at UNC-Chapel Hill, will be at East Carolina University Wednesday as a Festival guest. A program of his compositions will be presented at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday evening in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The public is invited to attend and there is no admission charged.

At UNC, Hannay established and directs the New Music Ensemble and the Electronic Music Studio. He has served as head of the theory-composition area and Chairman of the Division of Fine Arts.

Hannay has been the recipient of numerous awards and grants, including ones from ASCAP, the National Endowment of the Arts, the Kenan Foundation, and the University Research Council. His compositions have been favorably reviewed in the New York Times and in several publications devoted to music.

BIG TIME TWIST — Singer-songwriter John Cougar is making it to the big time, but with a bit of a twist. The 30-year-old rock 'n roller still lives near, if not in the same Midwestern town he grew up in. "I grew up in Seymour, Indiana, but I live in the big city of Bloomington," Cougar says. Sheppard Library Is Now Offering Patrons DIALOG Service

Sheppard Memorial Library is one of the first public libraries in North Carolina to offer its users the service of computer-assisted information searches. Trained librarians will use Sheppard s microcomputer to locate needed information in the database files provided by DIALOG Information Services.

Access to the DIALOG databases greatly enhances the library staff's ability to answer questions and identify information sources. Major reference works, such as Magazine Index, which are not owned by Sheppard Library in printed form, are available as DIALOG databases. Many of the databases are updated daily or weekly so that information is more current than in printed sources.

Each of the 150 DIALOG databases or information files is made up of thousands of records. These records may be statistics, addresses, or more often, summaries of articles, papers, and studies. The Management Contents database, for example, has abstracts of business and management journal articles. U.S. Exports features statistical data, and EIS Industrial Plants give addresses and other basic facts about companies.

For a computer-assisted information search, Sheppard Library's microcomputer is connected by telephone to DIALOG's computer in California. Responding to the librarian's commands, the computer rapidly scans a chosen file's many records for words or phrases related to a speciic topic.

Records which are found to be related to that topic sometimes give the exact information the user needs, such as a company's address. In other cases, the records summarize articles or sources which the user will need to see in full form. The complete text of relevant articles or papers can be obtained through interlibrary loan or purchase from special brokers.

Business people, teachers, and students will find DIALOG searches especially helpful, but the service is available to everyone. Each library user who requests a computer information search will pay the costs of the search. These costs include telephone connection charges, database usage charges, and the cost of photocopying or purchasing documents.

Reference librarians June Parker and Meredith Foltz will do the DIALOG computer searches for Sheppard Memorial Library users. Contact them at the library or call 752-4177 for more information or to arrange for a DIALOG search.

'Annie' Brings Fame

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Thomas Meehan once worked for New Yorker magazine, writing its "Talk of the Town" column. Then he wrote the book for his first Broadway musical, "Annie," about America's most famous cartoon waif.

Then he and the show became the talk of the town.

In short order, Meehan won his first Tony Award, got rich and achieved almost every writer's dream — his own saloon, in this case a bar and restaurant here called the Gardenia Club.

"It's got an overhead fan. Every now and then I fantasize that it's Rick's Place," he says, referring to the smoke-filled joint Humphrey Bogart ran in "Casablanca."

He hasn't had much time lately to lurk in his saloon. He's been at home, writing the book for a new musical, inspired both by troubles over a movie and the belief that if at first you succeed, by all means try, try again.

"Annie II" is the new work-in-progress, a sequel to the musical that since its 1977 premiere has grossed nearly $200 million from Broadway and road companies, plus $9.5 million from the show's movie sale.

"The first scene is really the last scene of the original, which ends on Christmas morning in 1933," he says. "We start with Mrs. Hannigan" — evil, larcenous, boozy orphan-tender by trade — "who has just gotten arrested. She comes out shouting bloody murder, vowing revenge."

Then, he said, it follows Little Orphan Annie, her dog Sandy, and all the others up to the fall of 1934, ending on Oct. 28, which by sheer concidence "is my daughter's birthday."

Sequels to big-hit films now seem the rule, not the exception. But you rarely find any on Broadway. The last specimen, in 1981, was "Bring Back Birdie," a 20-years-later postscript to "Bye Bye Birdie."

That second effort died fast. Same thing could happen to the "Annie" sequel. But what if it proves as big a hit as the original? Might there be an "Annie III," an "Annie IV," and ultimately an "Annie Goes on Social Security"?

Meehan laughs. "I don't think so," he says. "This might be it as far as I'm concerned. I'm not even sure this is a good idea, let me tell you right at the top. We're taking enormous risks, with critics and everybody else.

Unlike the original "Annie," which took 16 months to create and another four to get to Broadway, "Annie II" may come to town by October 1983, according to Meehan.

It amuses him to think that if the sequel succeeds, he may have a stereo musical of sorts on Broadway, with two Annies, two Sandys, two Daddy Warbucks and even two Great Depressions.

Future Uncertain For Grifton's St. Jude Church

Text By Maxine Harker

Photograph By Jerry Raynor

GRIFTON — Until the town got "hooked" on shad, the picture that was used most often to symbolize Grifton was St. Jude Catholic Church. It is certainly one of the most appealing landmarks hereabouts.

How did this large church with its Spanish architecture find itself in a little southern town with such a small share of the religious community?

There doesn't seem to be a written history of the church, but some of the parishioners helped reconstruct a general story of its beginnings.

In the late 1920's there were no Catholics in Grifton. One day a railroad car arrived and was left on a siding. It was about the size of a caboose but was in fact a mini-Catholic church that could accommodate about a dozen or so people.

Attended For Various Reasons

Griftonians who attended the first service did so for different reasons. Some were poor folks who had been more or less ostracized by the local Protestant churches, some went out of curiosity, and in the case of a few young girls, simply because they found the priest very attractive. For whatever reasons, a small congregation was formed and met in the Seymore Building located on Pitt Street. Oral instructions in the Catholic faith, or catechism, was taught by the priest in different homes and several converts were made.

Constructed In 1930

Then, in 1930 Father Charles Gable, pastor of Greenville's Saint Peter Church, supervised the construction of St. Jude. There is a vague story of a rich businessman in Pennsylvania who donated the bulk of the money to buy the land and build the church that everyone in Grifton literally "looks up to," as it is situated on the highest knoll of land in the town.

The architect's name has now been forgotten but the design is Spanish because St. Jude is a mission, and missions are traditionally designed in the Spanish style. Missions are also churches whose congregations are so small they are not self-supporting. The State of North Carolina is, in fact a mission state, having one of the lowest Catholic populations in the nation.

The interior of St. Jude carries out the Spanish ambience with its crimson velvet, wrought iron grillwork and exposed beams.

Parish Assignments

Always maintained as a mission, St. Jude Church was first a part of the Greenville parish, and later of the Vanceboro parish when it was cared for by the Missionary Servants of the Holy Trinity for a number of years. In 1952 the church became a Mission of Farmville, caring for about 15 families in Ayden and Grifton. About 1963 the church was doubled in building size with the addition of space to include a parish hall and rectory.

Another change was made in June, 1970, when St. Jude was designated as a Mission of Holy Trinity Church of Kinston. Father Robert Shea was pastor at that time.

Council Changes

The Ecumenical Council brought with it some changes in the traditional manner in which mass was conducted. Singing in the church became an acceptable practice. Where once the priest's back was to the congregation, he how faced his audience.

In July, 1978 Father Joseph Bumann was assigned to Holy Trinity. He also served Our Lady of Atonement and St. Jude — the three being called The Catholic Parish. Bishop George E. Lynch, Auxiliary Bishop of the Diocese of Raleigh, was in residence at St. Jude.

The priest's vestments and tabernacle coverings change with the season — sometime colors are red, sometimes green, at other times gold, white or black.

St. Jude's terraced hillside grounds also constantly change colors. In spring it bursts into bloom with azaleas, wisteria, and dogwood trees. At that time, it is a photographer's paradise.

Decision To Sell

Some time ago, a decision was made to place the church and the grounds on sale since most Catholic families have left Grifton, and it is no longer economically possible to support the large edifice. Recently, a buyer secured a lease on the property with an option to buy from the realtors, Curtis Realty in Kinston.

Today, St. Jude has the lonely look of a place unused, uninhabited. It's future is uncertain, but for now it remains the lovely Spanish church on the hill, still the most attractive landmark in Grifton.

St. Jude Statue Now In Greenville

The Sacred Heart statue that graced the lawn of St. Jude in Grifton, situated about halfway uphill on the church grounds, has now been moved to Greenville where it has been placed on the grounds of St. Peter's Catholic Church.

Mrs. Bobbie Parsons, who has been active in seeking the return of the statue of the Virgin Mary taken earlier from the grounds of St. Peter's, explained how it came about that the St. Jude Sacred Heart statue has been moved from Grifton to replace the missing Virgin Mary in Greenville.

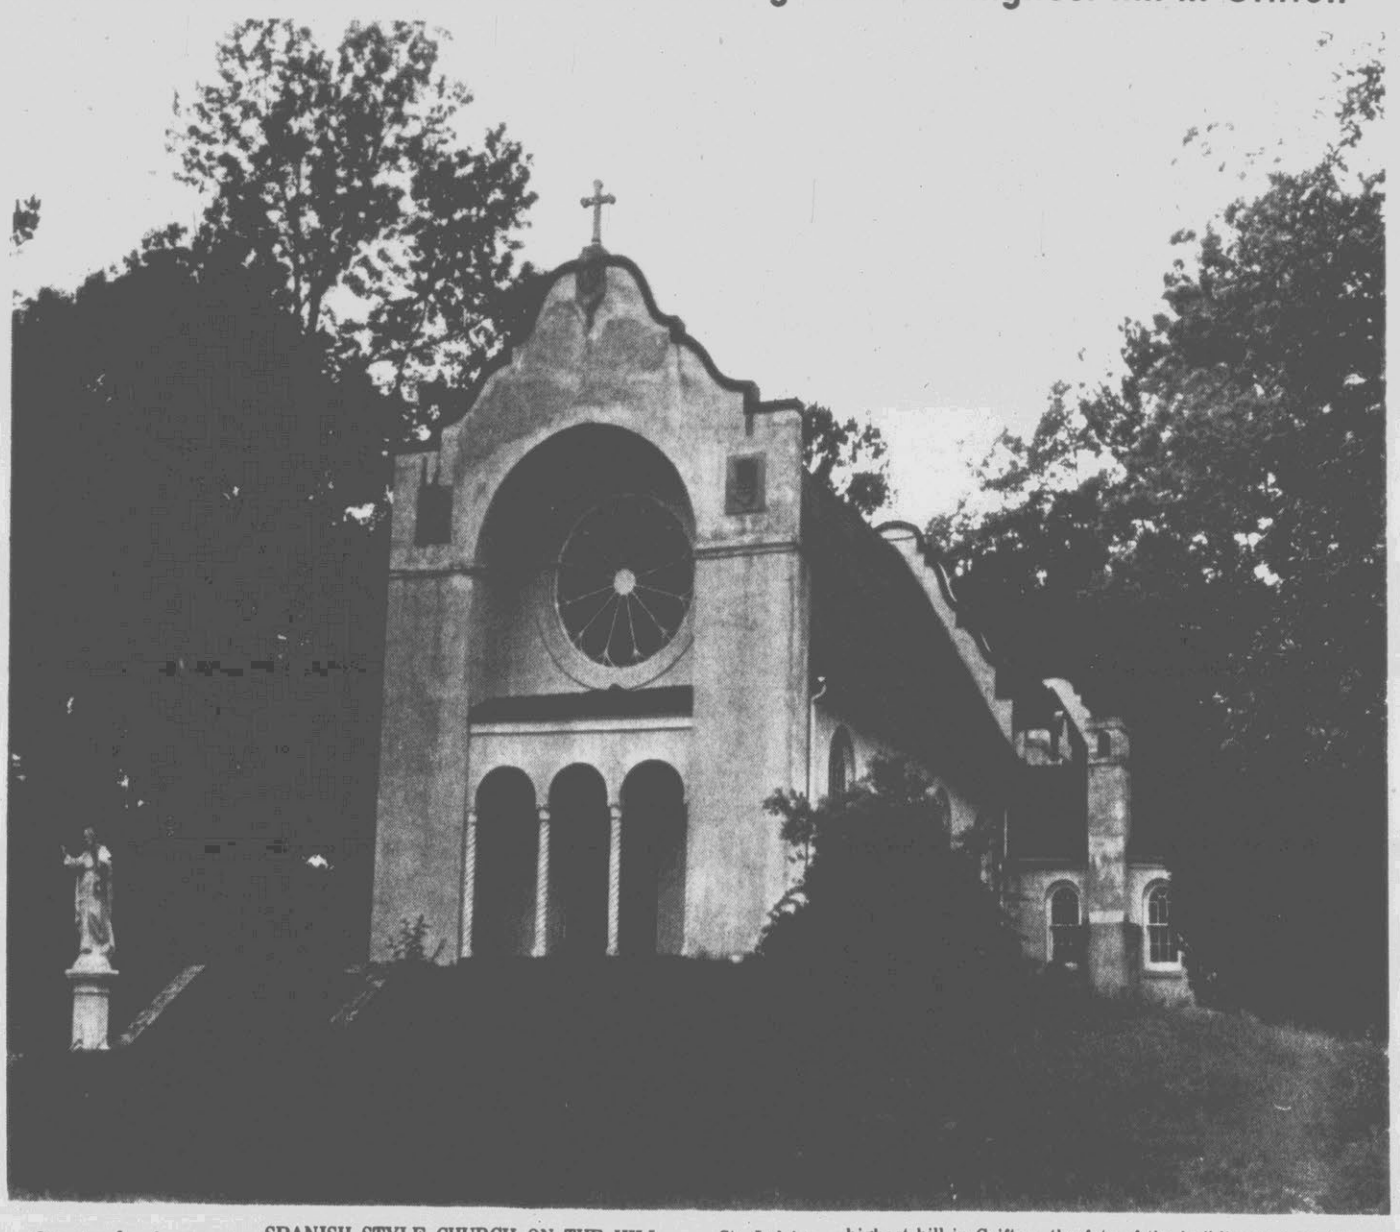
"My husband, Tom Parsons, (Lt. Colonel, U.S. Army, retired) teaches the ROTC course at Kinston High School," Mrs. Parsons commented. "His work takes him by the St. Jude Church in Grifton. One day he mentioned that a lease sign had been posted on the church's grounds and wondered if it might be possible to acquire the statue there for St. Peter.

"Father Frost at St. Peter's discussed the possibility of removing the statue with officials in the Raleigh Diocese, who granted the necessary authority for it's removal.

"My husband then contacted the Knights of Columbus who readily agreed to undertake the task of taking the statue from Grifton to Greenville. It's really very heavy. It took ten men to uproot it and get it onto a truck."

Mrs. Parsons added that despite "our pleasure in having this statue on the grounds at St. Peter's, we are still hopeful that sooner or later we will get our Virgin Mary back. She was there so long, looking out at the children at play. We would love to see her back where she belongs."

...since 1930, the church of St. Jude has graced the highest hill in Grifton



St. Judes' In Grifton

SPANISH STYLE CHURCH ON THE HILL . . . St. Jude's Catholic Church, a mission church constructed a little over half a century ago in 1930, has recently been leased through a Kinston realtor with an option to buy. A landmark on the highest hill in Grifton, the fate of the building is uncertain at this time. The Sacred Heart statue at left has been taken to St. Peter's Catholic Church in Greenville to replace a statue of the Virgin Mary stolen from that church.

Sea Grant Researchers Discover That Snapping Shrimp Destroy Hard Clams

The headline reads: North Carolina hard clams murdered in Back Sound bed. Suspects include members of two underwater gangs — the blue crabs and the whelks.

But detectives Brian Beal and Charles Peterson, University of North Carolina (UNC) Sea Grant researchers and biologists at the UNC INstitute of Marine Sciences in Morehead City, turned up the real culprits — snapping shrimp. The snapping shrimp (Alpheus), still on the scene, gave themselves away by snapping their small lobster-like claws.

Text, Photo, By Kathy Hart, UNC Sea Grant

The shrimp produce a noise much like a person snapping his fingers as they clamp together their powerful claws — capable of crushing a small hard clam. Until their discovery, most scientists thought snapping shrimp used their claws primarily to attract mates. Scientific literature contains no reports of snapping shrimp preying on hard clams, Peterson says.

Peterson and Beal did their detective work as part of a UNC Sea Grant research project. UNC Sea Grant is a federal and state program designed to promote the wise use of the coasts and oceans. Peterson is studying the hard clam, a bivalve mollusk common to North Carolina and large portions of the East Coast, and the effects of harvest methods on the clams and their enviroment.

Clamming, an important fishery in North Carolina, brought state fishermen more than $5 million in dockside revenues during 1981. But three growing problems, predation, overexploitation and pollution, caused fishermen new headaches. Some fishermen began hard clam hatcheries and "gardens" to assure themselves of a harvest.

But clam gardeners are learning not to count their clams before they're in the basket. Predation by blue crabs, whelks and rays take a heavy toll on the gardener's crop. And Beal and Peterson's findings show clam gardeners they can expect even more uninvited guests.

Beal made this discovery as he checked on a seed-clam experiment in Back Sound, where he was monitoring clam growth and survival. To keep out the predators, Beal had enclosed the clams in a wire cage. Instead of finding healthy clams, Beal was greeted by piles of crushed mollusks and a chorus of snapping shrimp.

Suspecting the one and a half inch shrimp may be responsible for the clams' demise, Peterson and Beal set up a laboratory experiment. Their suspicions proved correct as the snapping shrimp cracked as many as three clams a day. Peterson says the shrimp can crush clams up to two centimeters long (about one year old).

The snapping shrimp are abundant in Back, Bogue and Core Sounds, where populations are as high as 10 snapping shrimp per square meter, Peterson says. And, the shrimp aren't particularly choosy about their habitat. They're just as likley to be found tucked away in a sea grass bed as hiding among the oyster rocks.

According to Beal, in light of the findings, previous studies may have overestimated the predation rates of blue crabs. The crushed clam shell left behind by the snapping shrimp looks identical to the crushed shell left by the blue crab. Peterson says he doesn't know what percentage of the hard clam resources is being taken by snapping shrimp, but he believes it may be substantial.

For the clam gardener, the snapping shrimp will mean some added headaches. They can burrow five to six inches below the sound floor.

"The conventional method of putting netting over the clam bed to keep the predators out of the garden is not going to keep snapping shrimp out," Beal says. "They'll just burrow right under it.

With the preliminary investigation behind them, Beal is writing his report on the case of the crushed clams, charging the snapping shrimp with the clams' demise. And what will the snapping shrimp plead? Guilty by reason of hunger.

A Vigorous Poison Climber

POISONOUS EMBRACER — Unusually large poison ivy vines, the larger as thick as a man's arm, entwine each other and encircle the trunk of a large cottonwood tree on the banks of the Roanoke River near Hamilton. Poisonous to man and animals, the vines, which have reached a height of about 40 feet up the tree, are evidently not harmful to its host plant. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

"At the far end of town where the Gickle-grass grows, and the wind smells slow-and-sour when it blows, and no birds ever sing excepting old crows ..." Little did I know three years ago when marathon readings of "The Lorax" etched those immortal words of Dr. Seuss so deeply in my memory that he was describing the backyard of the house in which I now live.

I suppose my yard's miserable condition is my just desert. When we were looking for a place to live, Phillip, true to form, didn't even want a yard. He wanted a brick patio with a foot-wode planting area. I was the one who begged for the half-acre of bulldozed muck that I visualized as a lush green play area for the chidlren.

Naturally, the lawn was seeded before we moved in, but we are cursed with a combination of searing heat, lack of fertilizer and the presence of a flock of doves the size of turkeys who would burrow under the straw to sate themselves of Kentucky Fescue 31 before they half-flew and half-waddled back to their natural habitat. The resulting vacuum was soon filled with a bumper crop of what I immediately identified as Grickle-grass, a spiny little plant that stands on the average two to three inches high and transforms walking barefoot into a Hindu rite of penance.

And this was only one of the varieties of flora with which we were blessed. Lacking even rudimentary credentials in botany, I could identify many of them by their scientific names. I did, however, supply a few descriptive appellations of my own: scrub (patches of grass that look like mildewed hair brushes discarded in the distant past after heavy use by Gene Shalit); mud lillies (resembling miniature water lillies crowned with kelp instead of flowers); and squid clover (a low-growing gound cover that appears to have a lot in common with gangrene). The two varieties of plant life with which I was already familiar were briars and that bane of the weekend yardman without which no list of lawn and garden pests would be complete.

I am referring, of course, to crabgrass. Everywhere we looked it was spreading like a social disease. I felt like a health official in Times Square. Phillip, believe it or not, felt likewise.

Now I'm not going to pretend that a man who has always believed all forms of grass except Astro Turf should be illegal awoke one morning with the true instincts of a gardener. No, three months passed before he even began to differentiate between crabgrass and the real stuff, and another month went by before his increasing hostility toward crabgrass moved him to action. One day, after contemplating the contrast between the verdure of the hills and valleys beyond our yard and our own purple and brown blight on the landscape, he announced, "I can't stand it anymore. We've got to re-seed this yard."

Taken aback as I was, I lost no time in suggesting that we sit down and make a list of what we would need. First and foremost, Phillip insisted, we needed a tractor to plow under the crabgrass. We needed lime to neutralize the soil. We needed fertilizer. And an absolute essential was grass seed.

Then we calculated the cost of supplies and rental eqiupment. According to our checkbook we had $28 to spend. The cost would be closer to $100. Reluctantly, Phillip agreed to forego the tractor. We made up the remaining difference by swearing off meat and hot baths.

Without a tractor, we were forced to pull the weeds by hand. This was no easy feat: The soil, if you can call it that, in our neck of the woods holds roots as tenaciously as cement holds errant gangsters. After half a day of weeding, I had blood blisters on four fingers and Zachary on my back. Every time I bent over, he jumped on, gouged me in the ribs with his heels and shouted, "Giddyap horsie!"

Our harvest of crabgrass would have been worth a fortune if it could have been smoked. It took hours just to dispose of the stuff.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I seem to have eternal difficulties with penalty doubles. I make them often enough, but always, it seems, on the wrong hands. When I don't double, the opponents end up down two or more; when I do, they often make the contract, sometimes with overtricks. Can you give me a few general tips?—J. Chester, Rochester, N.Y.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—It is not easy to list situations when you should or should not double, because so much depends on specific auctions. But here are a few examples of common situations:

Suppose the opponents enter the auction after you have opened the bidding and end up in, say, four spades. Part of your opening bid happens to be based on the ace-king of spades. Don't double. The opponents knew that they were missing the top trumps in their suit, but nevertheless bid to game. They expected to lose those two tricks, so don't double—your hand contains no surprise for them.

Partner opens one no trump and the opponent bids two spades. You have seven points but only a doubleton spade. Don't double because you have them outgunned by at least 23 to 17—opponents have learned not to get into these auctions without a long trumps suit and some probable trick elsewhere. You are risking a gain of 50 or 100 points against a considerable loss.

The opponents voluntarily reach slam in a suit and you hold two aces. Don't double unless you think your opponents are certifiable. If they aren't, one of your aces is sure to get ruffed.

Conversely, double your opponents with confidence when your hand contains a surprise for them. Assume that the opponents stagger into a game and you hold Q-J-10-x in trumps. They crawled into game and surely were not bargaining on having to lose two trump tricks. Double.

When the opponents crawl into a contract and you know that the hand is going to break badly for them, double even if you don't have much in the way of high cards. Partner is marked with some high cards and you know the opponents are not going to be able to set up their long suits.

When partner opens the bidding and the opponents come in at the two-level in a minor suit, it is often right to double when you have no clear-cut action, even if you don't have long trumps. This double is pretty safe. Even if the opponents make their contract they are not going to gain much, but if you hit your partner with the right hand, you could pick up a bundle.

If the opponents reach game in a secondary suit, and you have a void or a singleton in the trump suit and a few defensive tricks, it is often right to double. You know that they have a 4-4 fit and that partner is going to have four or five trumps. That will cause them all sorts of trouble and you could end up with a sizable profit.

I am sure there are many other situations where you should or shouldn't double. However, just following these few pointers could work wonders for your wallet.

History Leaves Mark On Church

The Church of the Epiphany, one of the oldest churches in Rockingham County, has collected a storehouse of interesting data during its 138-year existence.

Consider these:

—The church marriage records show that on April 7, 1847, Stephen A. Douglas, senator-elect from Illinois and debater against Abe Lincoln, was married to Miss Martha Denny Martin, daughter of Col. Robert Martin of nearby Wentworth.

—At the rear of the church is a cemetery with 49 identifiable graves, three of which belong to the great-grandchildren of Patrick Henry of Revolutionary War fame. The three died in the 1840s before reaching the age of 6, probably as a result of a typhoid epidemic.

—The first service in the church was officially held in August 1844. Only 10 charter members attended, including Mrs. Elizabeth Mann Nelson Lee, a great-granddaughter of Virginia governor and Declaration of Independence signer Thomas Nelson. Her husband was the Rev. John Rankin Lee, who served as the first rector of the church, from 1844 to 1857.

—The church was admitted into the union with the Diocese of North Carolina at a Fayetteville convention on May 22, 1845. The Diocese bishop visited the parish in October of that year and confirmed five, including Patrick M. Henry, grandson of the patriot.

—Robert B. Glenn, governor of North Carolina from 1905 to 1909, was baptized at the church in the late 19th century.

A stroll through the adjoining Parish Hall, added in 1956, reveals framed photographs of the church's early spiritual leaders, lending the chamber an aura of importance. Among them is the Rev. Lee, pictured gazing away sternly, his patriarchal, flowing white beard giving him a saintly image.

Another unusual aspect of the church is that its doors have always remained open, so people may use the church for prayer and meditation at any hour of the day and night. Many churches have abandoned that practice to put a damper on vandalism.

Today, 138 years after it was built, the little white church on the hill remains a harbor of Eden's memories, a depot beside the tracks of history.

Here's The Answers

Q. — An outside window sill on our house needs to be replaced because it is in such bad condition. It's a double-hung window where the top comes down and the bottom goes up. I can see how to get rid of the moulding or stoll and the apron, but can't figure out how to remove the sill and then replace it. I hope you can help.

A. — The trick is not to try to remove it in one piece. Instead, saw it through close to one jamb, then do the same on the other side. The large piece that remains in the center can now be lifted up. The parts still there can be taken out with a hammer and chisel or any other tools that seem appropriate. If the pieces become stubborn, simply chop them apart, since you won't need them again. You can then make or buy a sill replacement, being sure you cut it to size or buy one that you can trim to fit. It's a fairly simple matter to hammer the sill into place, using a piece of scrap wood as an aid, but you should seal the new sill first so it won't soak in moisture. If necessary, use a wooden wedge to make the sill fit tightly. Once everything is in place, use thin nails to keep the sill secure.

Q. — I am looking for the cheapest and best way to color some unfinished furniture with stain and varnish. The furniture will be in a child's playroom and need not be finished as an expert would do it.

A. — The cheapest way to get the result you want is with a varnish stain which, as its name implies, is a combination product that stains and varnishes in one operation. However, it will not give you the best result, although it will be passable if you work very carefully. The most important part is that you do not overlap the varnish stain as you apply it. For the best result, you must apply the stain, a sealer and the varnish, each separately and after the previous coat is thoroughly dry. Some wood finishers even apply a sealer below and over the stain.

Q. — I have heard there is such a thing as finishing a piece of furniture by pounding it with a metal chain. Is this true? And why is it done? It seems to me you would get a terrible finish that way.

A. — Yes, it's true. It is one of several ways of producing what is called a "distress" finish. The objective is to give the furniture the appearance of age. It's a rather tricky process that requires a certain amount of know-how. Since I see no reason for pretending furniture is old when it isn't, you will have to get the instructions somewhere else if you are interested in the proedure.

Q. — I am sure you have answered this question before, but I need a reply now. How can white spots be removed from a table top?

A. — It would have helped if you had mentioned what caused the white spots. First try rubbing with spirits of camphor. If that doesn't work, try lemon oil, then vegetable oil. Sometimes, they will disappear if you rub them with the ashes from a cigarette or cigar. Powdered rottenstone also will work sometimes. Ditto powdered pumice and a little oil. With all of these treatments, there is a possibility the finish in that area may be dulled and will have to be touched up.

An excellent home designed for the energy conscious individual. Passive solar energy cuts the cost of heating and cooling this charming 2 bedroom home.

The lower level shows a utility room, large family room and plenty of storage space. The family room opens to a green house via sliding glass doors. An attached garage features entry to the lower level and a separate exit to the patio in front. The 2 story green house is large enough to please even the most avid gardener. The main floor shows 2 bedrooms and a large bath. Both bedrooms have extra large closets. A cozy living room and kitchen/dining area completes the floor plan. Sliding glass doors open onto a balcony overlooking the green house from the kitchen/dining area.

An air-lock entry helps with energy conservation. Skylights in the roof permit entry of the sun's rays into the kitchen. The 2x6 exterior walls have R-24 insulation, the ceiling has R-30 insulation. This passive system supplies 53% of the heating requirements in the Lincoln, Nebraska climate.

Roses Hold On To Top Spot As U.S. Favorite

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Fashions in other flowers may come and go. But roses seem to go on forever.

The supply of roses in the American marketplace reached nearly half a billion in 1981 — a growth of 15 percent compared to 1977, according to The Floral Index Inc.

Domestic producers accounted for the lion's share of the rose crop — 421 million blooms — but imported roses still managed to number about 70.5 million.

Not satisfied with what would seem to be a rosy situation for their favorite flower, Roses Inc. — the growers' trade association — recently began a consumer education program to bring roses more before the public.

The group started by appointing several representatives, among them Marjorie Reed, the New York author of a book on entertaining; Nick Nikcolas, a Chicago restaurateur, and Fred Gibbons, who is known as Hollywood's florist to the stars. The three were introduced publicly and said a few words on behalf of a certain flower in New York at a luncheon recently.

What does one serve at a luncheon honoring roses? Silly question: champagne, salmon and sole arranged to simulate a flower, and a white chocolate dessert in the shape of a petalled flower.

As one might suspect, red roses remain America's favorite, accounting for about 77 percent of all the cut roses sold. However, indications are that color preferences are changing a bit, said Ralph Wright, owner of Utah Roses and chairman of the rose group's trade relations committee.

Although red is still tops, other colors — especially a peach tone in a variety known as "Sonya" — are coming up. Nowadays, peach or coral-color roses account for about 10 percent of total sales in the United Statres. Also available are yellow, pink and white roses. White — the color of innocence and purity where roses are concerned — is the least popular.

Roses are grown commercially under tightly-controlled conditions in greenhouses all over the country. There are approximately 180 commercial growers located in as many as 35 states. California dominates, producing nearly half of all the roses grown in the United States, according to the Society of American Florists.

Americans tend to buy their roses by themselves rather than in mixed bouquets. Almost 4 million households purchased roses in a typical month during 1981. In February — due no doubt to Valentine's Day — the number jumped to nearly 5 million. However, May remained the peak month for rose purchases. In 1981, the national average retail price paid was $1.62 per stem or $19.44 a dozen.

With demand for roses obviously healthy, one could wonder why growers have chosen to begin a public information campaign. The truth is that Americans buy far fewer cut flowers — including roses — than their European counterparts. The average American spent about $20 for fresh flowers and plants in 1980.

Whereas Europeans purchase flowers and plants for everyday use and for themselves, Americans tend to buy flowers only for special occasions such as weddings, birthdays, funerals and holidays.

In order to encourage more frequent purchases, American growers and florists have stepped up efforts to stimulate consumer demand for fresh flowers with promotions such as National Secretaries Week and Friday Flowers — a weekly cash-and-carry special at some florists across the country.

Garden Clinic

Q. I read in Garden Clinic that I could reduce vegetable pests next spring by "destroying" my garden this fall after the last harvest. Please give me some advice on the best way to "destroy" a garden. (R.L., Goldsboro)

A. You destroy a garden by removing all dead and dying vegetable plants as soon as harvest is completed. Diseased or insect infested plant material should be burned or hauled away. Never compost or turn under diseased plants or weeds with mature seed. If the composting process is incomplete, seeds or diseased organisms may survive. Till or disk soil in the fall. Plant material decays more rapidly when mixed into the soil. This reduces potential insect and disease problems and increases the soil's organic content.

Q. I have an old bed of chrysanthemums which hasn't produced many flowers the past two years. What should I do? (W.F., Thomasville)

A. Dig up the old flower clumps and divide them in early spring. Take sprouts from the outside of the clumps, prune the sprouts, and replace them using a three to four-inch mulch. The centers of the old clumps should be discarded.

Q. My neighbor just put in a "French intensive" organic garden. What is French intensive gardening, and are there any advantages or disadvantages to using this system? (S.G., Raleigh)

A. French intensive gardening is also called double-digging. It involves digging a trench where you intend to plant, after having first set aside the topsoil. Then, organic matter is added to the subsoil which is worked and loosened to a depth of one or two feet depending on the soil. Topsoil is then replaced. Doing this will give greater soil aeration, deeper root penetration, and possibly increase your soil's water holding capacity. With this system you can plant closer together, which will allow you to produce more in the same space. Another advantage is a savings on fertilizer — if you plan to use fertilizer, since you only fertilize where the plants grow and not between rows. There are no real disadvantages to the French intensive system aside from the extra time and labor required. For organic matter, you can use decomposing leaves or composted vegetable refuse. Most municipalities will deliver leaves and other organic materials by the truckload on request. Once the work is done, however, your garden should produce better than before.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

From various sources come these bits of information of interest to home owners:

Our recent article about three photovoltaic houses in Massachusetts brought many letters. One of the most interesting was from Georgia Power Co., which said it had on display a photovoltaic house in Roswell, a suburb of Atlanta, open to the public for tours six days a week, after which it will be placed on sale this winter. The house has a computer which eventually will handle all the load management needs of the family, once it moves in, while providing several home entertainment options. It also has a monitoring system of 76 sensors which take readings of humidity, temperature, sunlight, etc., every 15 minutes to enable researchers to learn more about how family needs affect energy consumption. A photovoltaic house generates its own electricity when its cells are hit with sunlight, although it involves certain complexities not apparent in that simple statement.

Builders who are marketing smaller, less expensive houses report brisk sales as contrasted with the "no frills" experiment of some years ago, when it was discovered that most buyers elected to add to the cost by choosing all or nearly all the options offered. According to Professional Builder magazine, many builders are now constructing houses from 800 to 1,200 square feet of habitable area rather than 1,700 square feet or larger houses. Not only are the smaller houses less expensive, they cost less to heat and cool, can be maintained at a lower price and have a smaller tax bill. Featured at the Professional Builder's exhibit in Houston in January 1983, will be several smaller, more affordable houses. Marsh Trible, publisher of the trade magazine, says smaller housing need not be drab or monotonous and "doesn't have to be stripped of the amenities and features that most home buyers want."

Computer studies of passive solar design, issued by the Small Homes Council-Building Research Council, show that a passive solar structure must be planned with a specific climate in mind. Many basic precepts, accepted with little hesitation by solar designers, are true only for the areas in which they were developed and do not have universal application. The studies indicate that the use of passive solar techniques in climates with less than optimum conditions requires careful analysis of the building shell. For instance, poor insulation has a much greater effect than can be overcome with south-facing windows. On the other hand, a super-insulated house does not require a large mass for thermal storage or a large amount of south glass if the heat loss is kept low. Also shown was that a relatively small change in the control range can make a substantial reduction in energy use. Changing the control range from 70 to 78 degrees F to 65 to 80 degrees F reduced the heating load by 34 percent in one simulation.

(Do-it-yourselfers can get much valuable information from Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which can be obtained by sending $1.50 to this paper at Box 5, Teaneck, NJ 07666.)

Fuel Pipeline Across Gulf Coast Remains Mired In Controversy

By KEN KLEIN
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Nearly nine years after plans were unveiled for a Louisiana-to-Florida fuel pipeline, the ambitious project remains mired in controversy.

Even proponents of the $400 million project predict additional delays and a court battle that could last more than a year.

The maritime lobby, which views the pipeline as an economic threat, will resume its high-stakes campaign against the project.

"It's a bad idea," declares pipeline critic Lawton "Bud" Chiles III, a Tallahassee lobbyist working for shipping interests. "By the time they're ready to turn the first spade, the public pressure will be such that they can't reasonably build the pipeline."

Although the pipeline route passes through southern Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, the anti-pipeline movement is centered in Florida. Opponents will try to convince Floridians that the pipeline would damage the maritime industry and threaten underground water supplies.

However, the ports and shipping companies are battling a formidable foe — The Continental Group of Stamford, Conn., which includes Continental Can Co. and holdings in energy, plastics and insurance.

Since 1974, a company that was acquired later by Continental has been seeking permission to expand a southern pipeline network to carry liquid fuel from Baton Rouge, La., to South Florida.

A Florida-based Continental subsidiary, Transgulf Pipeline Co., plans to convert an existing natural gas line into a common-carrier pipeline to transport gasoline, jet fuel, diesel, kerosene and light heating oil.

Now, gasoline and other petroleum products arrive in Florida ports via tankers and barges.

The controversial pipeline project got a boost last month when the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission gave its blessing. Both sides expect an appeal to federal court.

Meanwhile, opponents will try to inspire public dissatisfaction with the project by making these claims:

—The pipeline would put seamen out of work and hurt port areas such as Broward County, home of Port Everglades north of Miami.

In response, the pipeline company says protests about job displacement and economic harm to ports have been exaggerated.

Transgulf President Allen Dorris likes to quote from the federal regulatory report: "The limited injury which maritime interests may suffer is an unavoidable result if the public is to reap the much larger benefits of increased competition, improved energy security, energy savings and cost efficiency."

—Continental could gain too much power by controlling transportation of fuel to Florida, lament pipeline critics.

The pipeline company says its project would offer much-needed competition to shipping interests that bring in most of Florida's liquid fuel.

"A pipeline leak could affect the drinking water of hundreds of thousands of people," warns Chiles, son of Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla.

However, some respected environmental groups have supported the pipeline for years, arguing that it would be less troublesome than shipping fuel across the Gulf of Mexico.

"Since 1974, the Florida Audubon Society, the Florida Wildlife Federation and a number of other statewide environmental organizations have supported the Transgulf pipeline," Audubon Vice President Charles Lee wrote to Gov. Bob Graham in March.

"We have done so because an evaluation of the historical record of pipelines reveals that they are inherently far safer than barge and tanker shipment."

Audubon's Lee and lawyer-lobbyist David Gluckman of the Sierra Club urged Graham to veto a 1982 bill designed to stall the pipeline. The governor did so, saying the state shouldn't be drawn into economic disputes between competing industries.

Even if the 1983 Legislature sidesteps the pipeline issue and the courts approve, the project has more hurdles to cross before construction begins.

Home improvement: keeping up with the times

Trends in remodeling reflect changing lifestyles

But if you are one of the millions of persons thinking of borrowing some money for remodeling your home this year, one thing is for sure: You are not alone.

You and your neighbors across the country will spend a total of $34 billion on remodeling by year's end, according to Census estimates. But some economists place the figure at closer to $50 billion.

This is the first year in history when money spent for remodeling will total more than money spent for new homes.

That money will go into purchase and installation of 2,184,000 kitchens, 3,125,000 bathrooms, 2.7 million insulation jobs, 1 million room additions or dormers, 17 million storm windows, 12 million doors, 2.7 million reroofing jobs, 1.3 million siding jobs, and much, much more.

And these figures refer only to jobs installed by pros. They don't include the do-it-yourselfers who, by some estimates, account for half of the market.

The estimates are from the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI), a nationwide group that includes contractors, manufacturers, wholesalers, lending institutions and the trade press. It results from the recent merger of the 50-year-old National Remodelers Association and the 26-year-old National Home Improvement Council.

And, says NARI, remodeling will increase by about 15 percent next year. It has been growing by that amount each year for the last two decades, and the reasons why are growing, not lessening.

For one thing, we have become accustomed to upgrading our lives, and since World War II this has meant moving into larger homes, into better neighborhoods.

But high land prices, high interest rates and inflation have made new housing unaffordable to many. For example, high land prices and inflation have pushed the average price of a new home up to the $70,000 range.

And, a $60,000 mortgage at the common interest rate of 9 percent only a dozen years ago, meant monthly payments of only $483. An income of about $33,000 per year could support that.

But, at today's interest rate of 17 percent, a $60,000 mortgage will demand monthly payments of $856, and it takes an income of more than $51,000 a year to pay that.

So we are looking the old place over and re-evaluating, and we are upgrading by fixing up.

The upgrading isn't only a matter of making it more luxurious. It is more a matter of changing to fit our changing lifestyles. And just about everyone's lifestyle changes in 15 years.

The young family tends to grow, and then to shrink. The family income tends to increase. The friends change, the social patterns change, the work habits change.

So the third bedroom that once was needed can now become an exercise room in conjunction with a spa-type bathroom. The kitchen can be changed to include a barbecue area and possibly a bar.

Or, we are upgrading to take advantage of our inflated equity by selling. That, of course, calls for upgrading of a different kind, largely cosmetic. It might mean new siding ($3,500) or adding insulation ($1,000). Adding a fireplace is a good way to add sales appeal to a home ($2,500 with hearth and mantle).

Cosmetic remodeling of a bathroom for $1,000 can add sales appeal, but full-scale remodeling of a bathroom ($4,000) or adding a full bath ($5,000) would be hard to recover when selling.

Similarly, complete remodeling of a kitchen now will run at least $8,000, and that could push the resale price of your home up beyond the range for your neighborhood.

But you can fix a kitchen up with new wallcovering, floorcovering and cabinet resurfacing for less than $3,000.

So whether you are staying put or moving makes a big difference in what you do.

A STYLIZED EXTERIOR is more than just a pretty face. The real beauty rests with the time and money realized from exterior maintenance freedom.

Stylizing the exterior of a home can work much like a face lift — rejuvenating both home and homeowner.

Any standard siding job can be turned into a home stylization project that transforms an existing house into a distinctive "custom" home for a lot less money than it would cost to buy a new one. And homeowners are virtually freed from all costly and time-consuming exterior maintenance chores.

"The investment in home improvements — no matter how minor — should not be taken matter of factly. A typical re-siding job represents the perfect opportunity also to change the exterior look of a home without substantially increasing the project cost," maintains Eric Hahn, residential siding product manager for Alcan Building Products.

"All it takes is an appreciation for everything that can be done to fully stylize a home while making it maintenance free as well."

Complementary colors, styles

Many aluminum products, including soffit, fascia, gutters, downspouts and shutters, are designed in styles and colors that complement aluminum siding as well as offer the same tough, durable finish.

To fully stylize a home and enjoy complete exterior maintenance freedom, Alcan Building Products recommends incorporating the following products into the standard siding project.

The installation of aluminum soffit (eave covering) and fascia (roof trim) will protect the roof overhang area from the effects of moisture condensation that can destroy paint and promote decay of wood members. This also can help prevent insects from nesting in the wood overhang.

Maintenance concern

"Soffit panels should provide some ventilation, however, to prevent excessive moisture buildup in the walls and ceiling," cautions Hahn. "Soffits with lanced louver vents can be installed in combination with solid panels to provide proper ventilation."

Another maintenance problem arising from this home area is with rainware. Painted wood gutters can quickly peel and rot from constant exposure to climatic conditions such as rain, snow and humidity.

Aluminum rainware will resist such deterioration. Aluminum rainware also protects sidewalls from roof runoff stains or streaks and helps prevent gardens, shrubs and foundation supports from being washed away.

Peeled and cracked wood window frames can be covered with aluminum window trim for long-lasting protection. And as a finishing touch, aluminum shutters can be added to accentuate window areas.

Stylization of the entire project can be achieved through the proper selection of product colors and finishes — those that best complement the house and its setting.

Before making a final decision, Alcan suggests visualizing the total effect of the products on a home. Because siding samples seen up close may look different once applied over the large exterior of a home, ask the home improvement contractor if he has applied the same products to another home in the area and drive by to take a look.

When choosing siding colors, remember that the lighter the color, the larger the home will appear. A light color also tends to make a home stand out against the dark shade of trees and shrubbery if there is abundant foliage around a home.

Roof and window trim, shutters and even rainware can be used either as "eye catchers" to contrast the siding choice, or used to complement the siding choice.

A home stylized with aluminum products need be only periodically rinsed with a garden hose to remove light surface dirt, leaving homeowners plenty of time to admire the long-lasting fashion treatment from their chaise longue.

ENERGY AUDITS PLUG IN POTENTIAL SAVINGS

Though the fee for home energy audits is as low as $15, many homeowners aren't taking advantage of them. A study by several utilities in Connecticut shows that homeowners who took the audit advice could save about 40 percent on oil and gas and about 25 percent on electricity.

Would you like to significantly increase your home's energy efficiency and comfort this winter? You can, by taking a few simple steps.

Energy experts agree that one of the best ways to reduce energy usage is to make sure your home is properly insulated. To help you determine the correct amount of insulation for your home, Manville Building Materials Corporation offers a free "Homeowner's Guide to Installing Fiber Glass Insulation." It includes helpful hints on ways to conserve energy at home and also provides step-by-step instructions for installing fiber glass insulation.

Your attic is one of the first places you should check to see if you have enough insulation. If your attic is unfinished and unfloored, but has some beams to walk on, you can easily find the R-value of the existing insulation. It will be printed on the top or bottom of the batts.

If your existing attic insulation is loose fill, you will need to measure the depth of the insulation between the framing members. If the insulation is fiber glass, you can use the following guidelines to determine the approximate R-value. Other types of insulation may yield different R-values.

Depth of loose fill insulation	Minimum R-value
3"	R-7
9"	R-21

Once you know how much insulation you have, you can determine how much more you need. Just subtract the R-value of the existing insulation from the recommended R-value for your geographical area. Since R-values differ from climate to climate, you will need to consult your local building materials dealer for the recommended R-value in your area.

If your unfinished attic has a floor, use a ruler to poke through the cracks and around the edges to see how much insulation, if any, is there. If there is less than four inches, consider adding more.

ATTIC INSULATION CHECK: If your attic is unfinished, check the R-value of the existing batts to determine whether or not you need more insulation. Manville's "Homeowner's Guide to Installing Fiber Glass Insulation" shows you how to determine the proper amount of insulation for your home.

The next place to check is your exterior walls. You can determine whether or not they are insulated by removing the cover from a light switch on an outside wall. Turn off the power first. Shine a flashlight into the space between the switchbox and the wall and see if you can see insulation. If not, you may want to consider putting some inside that wall.

Your decision will be guided by the size of your energy bills and the amount of room inside the wall for insulation. A professional contractor can give you a free cost estimate and help you determine if additional wall insulation is feasible.

Next, check for adequate insulation under floors, in crawl spaces and next to foundation walls. If you live in a climate where heating costs are above average, consider insulating in these areas.

In addition to insulating your home, you can also gain energy efficiency with a few simple improvements. Heated and cooled air can escape from your house through cracks around doors and windows. You can stop drafts along these areas with caulking and weatherstripping.

Planning to install vinyl floors? Here are some pitfalls to avoid

Installing your own vinyl flooring is a good way to save money, but some of the most skilled do-it-yourselfers have botched this job because they did not take these few simple precautions. These simple rules will help save you the time and money spent on a job gone wrong.

1. Purchase from a store specializing in vinyl flooring because the salespeople may be more knowledgeable about how to advise you. Tell them that you plan to do your own installing.

No-wax vinyl tiles, which come in patterns for every room and simulate just about everything from mosaic to wood inlay, are the easiest to handle. If you are going to attempt to lay sheet vinyl, there are special tools and do-it-yourself kits for this challenge.

2. Get the recommended adhesives, solvents and other needs. Vinyl backings differ. There are no all-purpose products for this job.

3. If you are installing your new flooring over old vinyl, make sure the new flooring you select can be laid over these surfaces. Heavily embossed and/or cushioned vinyl will probably have to be picked up.

People who have ignored this precaution have found that their new vinyl flooring starts to sink, while the embossing from the old flooring starts to surface.

4. Lay vinyl in areas where the temperature stays above 50°F. Once the temperature drops below that, the vinyl will stiffen and crack.

5. Select a dry, and if possible, warm day for this job. The room temperature should be 70°F for 24 hours prior to the installation, and remain at that temperature for 48 hours after the job is done.

6. If you are laying the vinyl directly over cement, make sure it is alkaline free, sanded smooth, bone dry and, if need be, sealed. And, before you buy your flooring, make sure it can be laid over cement. Some cannot under any conditions.

7. Before you begin, make sure that the surface of the floor beneath your new vinyl is free of dirt, grease and wax.

8. Follow directions.

Once the floor is installed, taking care of it will be a very simple matter, especially if you have laid no-wax flooring. For that all you need is Perk no-wax beauty freshener. It cleans and shines in one easy step and will not build-up. Perk will really help keep that floor looking as shiny as new.

Before you purchase your new flooring, a booklet prepared by the makers of Perk contains a great deal of useful information which can help you in your selection, and could help to save you money as well. Just write Booklet, PO Box 1504, Plainfield NJ 07061. The booklet is free.

TODAY'S NO-WAX VINYLS can even simulate fine wood parquet floors. Perk™ no-wax beauty freshener will keep them clean and looking as shiny as new, and without any build-up.

AVOID WINTERTIME POOL PROBLEMS, and costly repairs for next year's swimming season, by winterizing your swimming pool properly. The best way is to take a water sample to your nearest "BioGuard" swimming pool chemical dealer, where it will be analyzed and recommendations given.

Before winter shutdown, have pool water analyzed

Another summer passed. Those cool fall days here again. Time to close your outdoor swimming pool for another season. How should you do it?

The best way is to take a clean, subsurface water sample to your nearest "BioGuard" swimming pool chemical dealer.

He is specially equipped to scientifically analyze your water and give you a computer printout of specific winterizing instructions, whether your pool is in the frozen north or in milder climates where temperatures merely drop to too cool for comfortable swimming.

Lying in wait

Did you know, for instance, that algae — those summertime pool nuisances — don't really die in the winter? They remain dormant, ready to start growing again when warm weather returns.

And, do you realize that scale formation and corrosion take place even in cold winter pools if the water is not properly balanced?

And, of course, you should never, never, use dangerous automotive anti-freezes in your pool lines or pumps, as they are quite toxic and not designed for that purpose. There is, however, one that is available for pool use.

Costly problems

The presence of dissolved metals, improper pH, winter temperature extremes and other factors all combine to cause staining, pool deterioration and maintenance problems that are costly and must be remedied before you can use your pool next season.

You can avoid these wintertime pool problems by taking a water sample (many "BioGuard" dealers give out complimentary sample water bags) and getting your customized pool water analysis.

Nostalgia looks new in a charming country kitchen

Gleaming copper antiques, a nostalgic wallcovering and the most up-to-date appliances add up to a country kitchen that's warm and welcoming, efficient and easy.

The decorating theme is keyed to the Country Kitchen pattern of "Flair Squares," which features a design of copper teapots and coffee grinders against white brick.

The country feeling is carried through with glowing orange cabinets, wooden table and chairs, and plenty of sparkling copper accessories.

Balancing the nostalgic decor are such contemporary touches as slatted blinds, sleek white countertops, and space-age appliances which feature the newest in electronic controls.

It's easy to dress up a kitchen with "Flair Squares," even if you've never tried wallcovering before. All you need to do is dip each prepasted square in water for about 30 seconds, slide into place and sponge dry.

The squares are easy to handle in irregular spaces; their washable coating makes them practical for kitchens.

Wood windows add up to energy conservation

Plenty of sunlight, fresh air and outdoor views sound like attributes in a brochure for summer camp. Add energy conservation, beauty and low maintenance, and they also describe contemporary, well-made windows.

In these days of high fuel costs, choosing cheap windows when building or remodeling can be an expensive mistake.

Ordinary windows are one of the largest potential sources of heat loss in a home. The way to avoid excessive heat loss through windows is to choose those with wood in the sash and frames because wood is a natural insulator.

Add tight, factory-applied weatherstripping and either separate storm sash or double-pane insulating glass and you have the elements of a well-made window.

Though well-made windows may cost more when you buy them, they are less expensive to own because of the savings in heating and cooling costs.

Another way to save on costs is to install the windows yourself. Many window manufacturers provide do-it-yourself instructions. Anyone skilled in basic carpentry ought to be able to handle window installation.

When choosing windows, remember to pick the right size and style. Remember also that operating windows that are easy to open and close can be used for ventilation when there are prevailing breezes. This saves energy by reducing air conditioning loads.

Wood windows come in stock sizes and various styles at local lumber yards, home centers or building supply stores. Many also come with a low-maintenance exterior cladding that all but eliminates the need for periodic painting.

Home improvements require asking the right questions

Despite current economic conditions, many people today are making decisions concerning the upkeep and maintenance of their homes.

Whether its siding, new gutters and downspouts, new windows, or attic ventilation systems, the decision to make an improvement is just the beginning. Then come decisions concerning the product to use and the contractor to install it.

Making the right decision involves asking the right questions. To help homeowners ask the right questions, we asked Charles Gindele, staff engineer with Alcoa Building Products and a former remodeling contractor, what questions he thinks are important to ask.

According to Gindele, "When you buy a home improvement, you're buying two things: the product and the installation." Today, a lot of people are looking for ways to save money on home improvements and that's good up to a point. However, saving a few dollars on an inferior product or less than professional installation can cost a lot more down the road. Home improvements must be viewed as investments that will pay for themselves over 20 years or more.

From the numerous consumer letters we receive at Alcoa Building Products, there are generally four or five typical questions most often asked.

The best way is through referrals. Ask your neighbors or co-workers who have had homes sided. Find out if they are satisfied with the products and workmanship. Inspect the work. Stand on the sidewalk and look at a house carefully. Ask yourself if it's the quality of work you would want on your house. Find out if the contractor's prices were competitive and if he cleaned up properly after the job was finished.

Is it necessary to get estimates?

Because most home improvements are a major expenditure, it's a good idea to get at least three estimates. After you've talked with all three contractors, you'll have to make a choice based on price, information contained in their presentations and your examination of jobs each has done.

Should I have a signed contract?

If the contractor is highly recommended by someone you trust, and has worked in the area for a number of years, a contract may not be necessary; otherwise, it's best to have one.

The contract should specify which products will be used (the brands, colors, styles), total purchase price, amount of down-payment, terms, payment schedule and types of warranties from the manufacturer and installer. It should also specify that the job will be done in a workmanlike manner, and that the installers will clear away all trash and scraps when the job is completed.

Be wary of contracts that permit the installer to use an "equivalent" product on your home. You may pay for one brand of siding and get another if you sign this type of contract.

Another thing to watch for is a statement that allows the distributor to put a lien on your home if the contractor doesn't pay him for the material. Any contractor who asks you to sign this type of document should be investigated further.

And one more thing — federal law now requires that all home improvement contracts have a clause providing a 72-hour "cooling off" period, during which the homeowner can change his mind. This is particularly important to the homeowner who feels he was subjected to high pressure selling techniques.

What should I look for in terms of warranties?

The product warranty on siding varies among manufacturers. The two things to look for are:

(1) The types of potential problems covered — these should include such things as defects, chipping, peeling, blistering, rusting and flaking.

(2) The length of the warranty. Standard coverage is 25-40 years. The first three to five years are generally a full and unlimited warranty under which the manufacturer will replace materials at his cost; the balance is usually prorated — the manufacturer and homeowner share replacement costs based on a table of percentages and time lapsed. For example, if a replacement panel is needed after six years, the manufacturer may assume 80 percent of the cost and expect the homeowner to pay the rest.

Installers usually warranty their work for at least 12 months. Be wary of any contractor offering less. Also, remember that the product warranty is offered by the manufacturer — the installer shouldn't void or increase it. Any contractor who offers to extend the manufacturer's warranty by five years is making a promise he can't fulfill.

Alcoa Building Products has been manufacturing quality home improvement products for over 20 years. While economic conditions have fluctuated widely during these years, the need to view home improvements as an investment and to ask the right questions has never changed.

If you'd like more information, write Alcoa Building Products, Inc., Suite 1200, Two Allegheny Center, Pittsburgh, PA 15212.

How to clean your home but avoid cleaning out your wallet

The scores of cleaning aids on supermarket shelves are not only costly, but are often unnecessary for today's cleaning projects. So unclutter your closets and save money too, by using one product that can clean and deodorize your home effectively and economically. Arm & Hammer Pure Baking Soda is a multi-purpose product that can help you tackle cleaning chores all around the home.

Kitchen care

A solution of 4 tablespoons baking soda dissolved in 1 quart warm water can clean and deodorize refrigerators, freezers, microwave ovens, coffee makers and small appliances.

For extra dirty or greasy areas such as range hoods, countertops, stainless steel cookware and no-wax floors, sprinkle baking soda on a damp sponge; scrub, rinse and dry. Pure baking soda deodorizes as it cleans and won't scratch the finish on any of these items since it is non-abrasive.

An open box of baking soda eliminates strong food odors and prevents taste transfer between foods in your refrigerator. Ice cubes and ice cream will remain fresher-tasting longer when an open box of baking soda is placed in the freezer as well. Remember to replace boxes periodically and pour contents of used boxes down the drain or garbage disposal to sweeten and clean.

For the dishwasher, sprinkle several handfuls of baking soda on the bottom of the machine before adding soiled dishes. The baking soda eliminates odors, allowing you to save energy by running the dishwasher just when it's full.

Beautify bathrooms

For bathtubs, toilets, bathroom tile, shower curtains and fixtures, sprinkle baking soda on a damp sponge, rub the soiled areas until clean, rinse off and buff dry. Your bathroom will be sparkling clean and free of grime and mildew. Baking soda is non-abrasive so there is no worry about scratching porcelain or fiberglass surfaces.

Laundry treatment

In order to conserve water and energy, try to accumulate a full load of clothes before laundering. But in the meantime, deodorize laundry hampers with a baking soda sachet. Simply place a little baking soda in a square of fabric and tie with a ribbon. The sachet will keep odors at a minimum.

Proper hand tools can make fall fix-ups a breeze

Fall is the time to move from those outside-the-house maintenance chores to in-house projects that can be completed in less clement weather.

Doing it yourself can be both easier and more efficient when you do it with the right tool for the job. But since three of the most popular painter's hand tools — putty knives, wall scrapers, and taping knives — differ only in the width of their blades and degree of flexibility, choosing the right one can sometimes be confusing.

"Any tool produces the best results when it is used for its intended purpose," notes Bob Walsh, Group Product Manager at Red Devil, Inc., one of the leading manufacturers of hand tools. "Trying to adapt a tool to a different use is like trying to put a round peg in a square hole. It is not designed for it."

To help make the choice simple, Walsh has matched tools to the jobs they perform, starting with the most utilitarian, putty knives.

Putty knives are available with either stiff or flexible blades, in widths of either 1¼" or 1½". A stiff putty knife can be used as a specialty scraper for most any small surface area job.

A stiff putty knife can be used to remove vinyl or paper wallcovering, scraping or removing loose paint, and, of course, removing loose putty.

Its small size and stiff blade also make it perfect for odd jobs like removing rust and lumpy paint from outdoor furniture.

Flexible putty knives are right for most any fill-and-smooth operation involving, of course, putty or glazing and vinyl compounds, and plastic wood. For example, a flexible putty knife would be used to smooth over counter-sunk and filled nailheads on door trim or gypsum board.

Wall scrapers, like putty knives, are available with either a stiff or flexible blade, but their 3" blade is twice as wide.

A stiff wall scraper is used for many of the same jobs as a stiff putty knife, but on larger surface areas. It can remove vinyl or paper wallcovering, scrape or remove loose paint.

Flexible wall scrapers are generally used only for patching jobs such as repairing dents, cracks or holes in plaster.

Taping knives have flexible blades in 4", 5", or 6" widths. They are primarily used to seal drywall joints but they can also be used instead of a trowel to apply cement or mortar to home foundations or other areas.

Their flexible wide-blade design also makes taping knives useful in refinishing fine furniture. Using a chemical finish remover, a taping knife will remove the finish without scratching the surface of the wood because of the blade's flex.

Other uses for taping knives include fiberglass boat repairs and applying hard-setting fillers to auto bodies.

For all of the three tool types, Walsh recommends models with a solvent-resistant handle and nail-setting head like Red Devil's 4200 series. A solvent-resistant handle protects the tool from the alkaline found in filling compounds, and the steel nail-setting head allows the tool to be used as a substitute hammer for tacks and finishing nails.

Once you've got the right tool, it pays to pay the little attention required for proper maintenance. He points out that since putty knives, wall scrapers and taping knives are all used on flat surfaces, care should be taken to avoid denting their blades.

After each use, the handle and blade should be cleaned and lubricated with a light household oil since alkaline materials can darken and rust the blade if it is not protected.

USE PUTTY KNIFE TO FILL small nail holes or gouges.

Good habits can improve dishwasher's performance

With more than 52 percent of all working age women out in the work force, the demands on a woman's time are greater than ever. As a result, her interest in convenience products cuts across all product categories.

One category that has received increased attention these last few years is the kitchen and the availability of time-saving appliances.

A dishwasher, once considered a luxury item, has moved up on a homemaker's list of necessities and can be found in nearly 45 percent of all American households. It allows time previously spent on kitchen clean up and maintenance to be spent with one's family or friends or in pursuit of a favorite hobby.

Bad habits, however, often defeat the time-saving benefits of a dishwasher. It's important, therefore, for you to occasionally check your everyday habits so you receive the best possible performance from your dishwasher.

If the design of your kitchen allows it, install your dishwasher on an inside wall, as close to the water heater as possible. Water temperature can drop 10 to 20 degrees over a long plumbing run.

Be certain that the water coming into your dishwasher is hot enough to do a good job. Hot water is needed to penetrate and break down food soils, particularly fats, as well as to activate your dishwasher detergent. Water temperature during a cycle should be between 140°F and 160°F.

To ensure good results, look for a dishwasher which raises incoming water to the correct temperature. KitchenAid is one brand which heats incoming water to 150°F in every full cycle. Because of this special design, it also allows you to reduce the setting on your water heater by 20 degrees and save money on your utility bill.

To utilize the dishwasher's full capacity, always load it according to the manufacturer's instructions. Remember that the water must hit the soiled surface of an item to scrub it clean. Overloading inhibits good water circulation and drainage, causing poor soil removal, as well as spotting and filming.

Only use detergents specially formulated for automatic dishwashers. Never use liquid detergent or laundry detergent. They cause an excess of suds which slow down the action of the wash arm and may cause flooding.

Always use fresh, dry detergent. Detergent exposed to moisture can become lumpy and lose its strength. An unopened box of detergent has a shelf life of one year but, once it's been opened, it will only stay fresh for several months. So, never buy more than you'll use during that time.

If you're returning to a vacation home after a long absence, throw out that box of old detergent. You will save both time and money by starting with a fresh box.

The amount of detergent you need to use depends upon the hardness of your water and/or the amount of food soil on dishes. Start with the amount of detergent recommended by the manufacturer.

Generally, hard water and/or heavy food soil require more detergent; with soft water, use less detergent. To determine the hardness of your water, contact your local water company, an area water softening company or your state university extension service.

Whatever the degree of water hardness, always add at least one tablespoon of automatic dishwashing detergent to the dispenser. It contains ingredients that protect china and metals from the corrosive effect of heat and water.

If spotting and filming on glasses and dinnerware is a problem, there are a number of possible causes . . . and solutions. One cause might be hard water.

Beside using the maximum amount of detergent, condition the final rinse water with a rinse agent. It allows the water to quickly sheet off the surface of your dinnerware and glasses, instead of clinging in droplets to dry as spots. You might also try mixing a packaged water conditioner with your detergent.

Few people realize that low water pressure can also contribute to spotting and filming. (Home water pressure should be 20 to 120 pounds per square inch.) If the water pressure is too low, your machine cannot fill up to the proper level for good washing and rinsing in the time allowed.

In most dishwashers, the water fill should completely cover the bottom of the tank. And as recommended, always load your dishwasher according to the manufacturer's directions to promote good drainage.

In short, your dishwasher can be the labor-saving appliance it was designed to be if you run it as recommended. Put these helpful hints into action and you're sure to find that bit of extra time you've been looking for in every busy day.

A home aquarium makes a decorative, easily-maintained hobby for everyone

It's beautiful to look at. It's easy to maintain. It makes a great pet, or an educational hobby, and adds a decorative and entertaining conversation piece to any room.

In fact, a recent study by researchers at the University of Pennsylvania concluded it is even a benefit in relieving stress. What is it? It's an aquarium filled with tropical fish.

Aquarium pluses

Owning a home aquarium obviously has many positive benefits. Throughout the U.S., 10 million aquariums are being enjoyed in homes, offices, restaurants and hotels.

Undoubtedly you have seen at least one and may have wondered, "How do I or my youngsters (kids love tropical fish and easily get involved in the simple maintenance) get started?"

First, you will want to locate a good dealer in your area. If you have a friend who has an aquarium, ask for a reference; otherwise the phone book lists most tropical fish retailers.

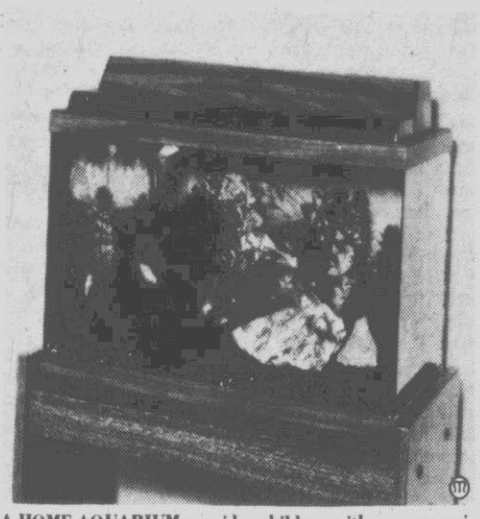
During your visit to a tropical fish store, you will want to get some idea of aquarium sizes and of the equipment you will need, and look over the selection of the fish so that you can choose the ones you will want to keep.

It is advisable to purchase a book that provides complete instruction on setting up and maintaining an aquarium.

One basic rule to follow, however, is to buy the largest aquarium possible since, the greater the water environment, the less chance of water problems.

Prime placement

When determining where to put your aquarium, several factors should be considered. You will not want to put it in direct sunlight, since this will cause algae to grow on the glass and plastic accessories.



A HOME AQUARIUM provides children with an economical, educational hobby, while adults will enjoy it as a decorative conversation piece. To help you get started, the experts at Tetra are offering an informative full-color illustrated starter booklet. For a free copy, write Tetra Sales, 201 Tabor Rd, Morris Plains, NJ 07950.

You will also not want to put it on your best carpeting since, during water changes, it is possible for some water to splash on the floor, and you will be sure to want to put it on a firm stand since water is heavy.

Canopy cover

After you have decided on the aquarium, your first accessory will be a tightly fitting canopy cover equipped with a fluorescent fixture. Fluorescent fixtures throw off a cool light and will not cause fluctuations in the water temperature.

While we are on the subject of the water temperature, tropical fish require an environment maintained at around 75° F (25° C). You will therefore need a good heater and an aquarium thermometer.

A recent development in this technology is the liquid crystal digital thermometer which affixes to the outside of the aquarium yet measures most accurately the water temperature.

You will also need a quality filter. Your dealer can give you proper advice since there are several types of filters and your needs will vary with the size of your aquarium. If you are going to keep a lot of fish, you will also want a separate air pump to add oxygen to the water.

Colorful surroundings

Decorating an aquarium is great fun. There are multi-colored gravels, highly decorative backgrounds and hundreds of ornaments, as well as plastic plants so real in reproduction it's almost impossible to distinguish them from live plants.

Most good retailers will have a complete assortment, and your selection should be based on the size of you aquarium and the amount of money you decide to spend.

Once you have set up your aquarium, you should add a chlorine neutralizer to the water and add only a few fish initially. These few fish will help develop the proper biological conditions necessary to maintain a fully stocked aquarium.

After three to four weeks, assuming everything is functioning properly, you can then go ahead and add the rest of your fish.

Easy upkeep

Aquarium maintenance is a lot simpler than people think. Every two weeks a partial water change (not greater than 20 percent) by siphoning the water from the bottom of the aquarium is all that is required.

A device called the Hydro-Clean allows an efficient siphoning by separating the debris in the gravel and removing it with the water from the aquarium. On a monthly basis, your filter will require minimal maintenance. That's all there is.

Following this simple routine, chances of fish disease or any other aquarium problems are remote. In fact, one of the biggest problems people have is spending too mich time maintaining their aquarium.

Daily care for fish

On a daily basis, of course, fish should be fed and a good quality flake food will provide a complete diet for almost all fish.

Save a little summer for those autumn days

When the grey days of fall and winter creep upon you, have you ever wished that you could preserve at least a bit of the color and fragrance of spring and summer in your home?

With a little imagination and not too much effort, you can, using such things as house plants, decorative touches, and lighting.

Some plants that produce blossoms and leaves in a variety of colors and are easy to care for (even if you don't have a green thumb) include:

Christmas cactus, also called Zygocactus, produces beautiful red blossoms that appear around Christmas. They can be planted in any standard potting compost. In the summer they may be placed in the garden, bringing them indoors near the end of September.

To provide a brilliant contrasting yellow bloom, Pachystacys is particularly well-suited for indoor growing (in fact, it must be kept inside). Grow in light compost, place in good (but not direct) light, and water freely.

For delicate fragrance and a splash of white, try the familiar "buttonhole" plant, Gardenia. It thrives in warm, moist air.

Brilliant and interesting greenery in a variety of shades can be brought into your indoor garden through any number of plants, including Monstera (sometimes called the Swiss Cheese Plant because of the holes in the leaves); Pellaea, with its round, waxy leaves, and the Spider plant. The latter, with its long, thin dropping leaves suggestive of a spider's legs, grows rapidly and keeps well.

There are other ways, too, to bring color and fragrance to any room in your house. For example, a product called "Pretty as a Picture"™ decorative air fresheners comes in three decorator designs which exude a spring fragrance.

The designs — a bright multicolored floral, a pastel blue sailboat scene, and an earth-tone desert sunset — are encased in a translucent polymer. Each comes with its own plastic stand. The product can be obtained at supermarkets and other outlets handling home care items.

Another warm, brightening-up touch can be injected in your rooms by replacing ordinary light bulbs with those with pink-tinted glass. The mellow glow cast by your floorlamps will add another spring touch while awaiting the return of the "real thing."

AS MORE HOMES HAVE SKYLIGHTS, more homes have need of a means to control the sunlight that enters. Ideal is a product of Levolor Lorentzen, Inc. known as Galaxy 50, a blind that does not retract but can be installed on any angle and has vanes that tilt from full close to full open. With two-inch slats, it requires only two rack arms within a skylight 48 inches square, and can be operated by manual or motor control or solar actuator to "fine tune" the light and reduce solar heat gain and glare. Winterize your sunporch for year-round pleasure

As the fall season approaches, the luxury of outdoor recreation begins to fade. The chill of winter in the air quickly reminds us that the days spent in the screenhouse or on the sunporch will soon end. If you're already regretting giving up your seasonal recreation space, why not make this the year to winterize your sunporch.

By installing a modern kerosene heater, for example, you can sustain the "indoor summer environment" and keep warm while the temperature outside falls. A big advantage of heating with kerosene is that you need not sacrifice comfort for economy.

The heater pictured here, the Monitor 20 by Kero-Sun, Inc., is a self contained unit which requires no duct-work, eliminating high installation costs. By following the manufacturer's instructions, you can install the forced-flue venting system in a couple of hours by drilling a 2½" hole in the wall.

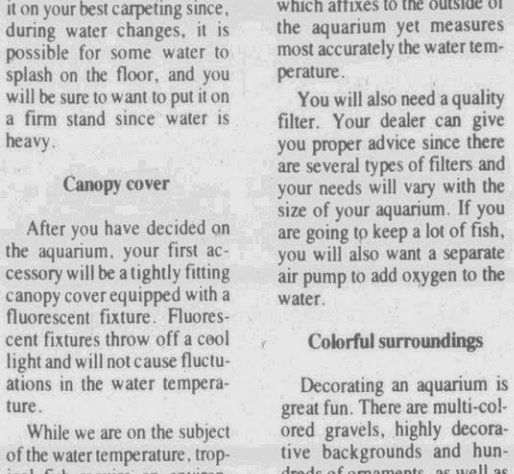
The system draws outside air into the Monitor for combustion, thus avoiding air "infiltration" which robs your home of half its heat.

The Monitor system, is available in the 19,600 BTU/hr. Monitor 20 and the 32,600 BTU/hr. Monitor 30. It has a sleek, contemporary style which adds a decorative element to the sunporch. Even plants and flowers, which are always so costly to replace, will thrive in this environment. An added touch, the outside evergreens, will add fresh color throughout the bleak winter ahead.

Kerosene heating keeps fuel bills to a minimum as compared with wood and coal stoves. The Monitor system is 92 percent fuel efficient and portable kerosene heaters are up to 99 percent fuel efficient. This compares favorably with wood and coal stoves which, on the average, are not more than 50 percent efficient.

With the Monitor system, you can set the temperature you desire or have the automatic timer do it for you. Electric fans combine the convenience of central heating with the efficiency of kerosene heating.

On the safety side, Kero-Sun's Monitor systems emit no combustion by-products, smoke or odor. The automatic shut-off valve triggers immediately, in case of a power failure or any occurrence that interferes with operation.



TURN YOUR SUNPORCH into a year-round retreat without the extra fuel bills, by adding a large capacity vented kerosene heater. The Monitor 20, by Kero-Sun, Inc., pictured here, is 92 percent fuel-efficient, and can be easily and economically installed in a few hours.

Foam or caulking: when to use what

Homeowners have two excellent, time-tested ways to seal, insulate and protect their homes from the approaching winter season — polyurethane foam sealant and siliconized acrylic caulk. But how can you tell which to use, and when?

Insta-Foam Products, makers of Great Stuff® foam sealant and Caulking Stuff™ siliconized acrylic caulk, offer the following basic guidelines to help the fall fixer-upper select the best sealing material for the job.

• How big is the area, hole or crack to be filled and sealed? If it is one quarter of an inch or larger, foam is usually best to use. Foam is ideal for filling voids, the larger the better, since one can of foam equals 15 tubes of conventional caulk.

Caulk small cracks

Foam naturally fills the entire space and is less likely to have unseen gaps. Small, thin cracks, however, are more easily filled with caulk. The resilience and body of acrylic caulk make it the best long range bet for use in crevices and small corners and near edges.

• How deep or hard to reach is the area to be filled? Polyurethane foam's ability to expand and conform to deep recesses and hard-to-reach areas make it the choice for jobs such as filling the area around electrical boxes in walls.

• How about moisture? Both foam and caulk, once in place, are excellent sealants against water. If the surfaces to be sealed are moist in the first place, however, polyurethane foam should be used. Not only is foam adhesion not affected by water, but moisture present actually helps to cure it.

Choice for kitchens, baths

For areas around the kitchen and bathrooms, however, caulk's color, workability, and mildew resistance make it the choice.

• How about appearance? Both foam and caulk can be applied in neat beads, particularly when dispensed from convenient aerosol cans. Both can be painted as well. However, if the filled surface is to be perfectly flush with the existing surface, caulk is usually easier to smooth at the edges.

Keep both materials around the home to keep out moisture, dust and insects while keeping expensive heat in this winter.

A stenciled wall – eye-catching accent worth a thousand words

The Japanese and the ancient Egyptians did it. Even the Victorians did it. For centuries, stenciling has been a unique and personal way to transform ordinary walls into backdrops for favorite patterns and colors.

With stenciling, you can create perfect accents for any room in your home. In the living room, use stencils to highlight the fireplace area or create a conversation piece by stenciling a border around one wall with colors found in your upholstery.

Imagine what a floral arch of stenciled flowers will do for a porch window or sunroom doorway. The real beauty of stenciling is that it is as easy to do as it is to imagine. Here's how:

• Carefully trace your pattern onto a piece of clear plastic using a smudgeless pen. The plastic used for report covers is inexpensive and can be purchased in most drug and art supply stores.

• Next, cut your design out using an easy to maneuver x-acto knife. When cutting, be sure to rest the design against several layers of cardboard or use a cutting board to avoid scratching tabletops and counters.

STENCIL A DESIGN ON YOUR WALLS using your favorite patterns and colors to perk up a room.

• Mark where the design will appear on the wall, then tape the stencil into place. Fill it in using a small artist's brush. Using small amounts of paint on the brush will ensure against drips and splotches.

• After each individual design is completed, wipe the stencil off to prevent smearing.

• The National Paint and Coatings Association recommends using fast drying latex paint that cleans up with water and dries completely in 1 hour.

Installing your own track lighting for a brighter, more useful kitchen

If you're turning your home improvement energies to the kitchen, there's one job you can undertake that will make a big difference in the way your kitchen looks.

One of the chief reasons some kitchens are dreary and difficult to work in is poor lighting. That's because most kitchens were built with a single, centrally located light fixture on the ceiling. This fixture may be sufficient to light the entire kitchen; however, standing between the light and a counter can create a shadow.

To eliminate shadows on work surfaces and generally brighten your kitchen, the installation of track lighting can be a productive home improvement. Track lighting's obvious advantage over a single, centrally located ceiling fixture is that the lights can be moved so that the beams shine directly on your counters and tables.

Installing track lights is a relatively simple task for the homeowner who is equipped with a complete set of instructions and the right tools. The new Ortho book, "How to Design & Remodel Kitchens," for example, provides the following basic guidelines for installing track lights:

First, before beginning any work, turn off the circuit that powers your kitchen light. When the power is off, remove the old cover from the ceiling light and replace it with the canopy cover that is provided with track lights.

Canopy covers are slotted to accept the track and, because the holes on the canopy do not always match the ceiling box, an adjustable box adaptor ring with a variety of adjustable hold combinations is provided.

Before screwing the canopy cover into place, connect its wires to the ceiling fixtures wires. This is done by capping the similar colored wires — white to white, black to black and so forth.

If you're unsure of exactly how to make an electrical connection of this type, you might consult "Basic Wiring Techniques," another new book published by Ortho this year.

After the canopy cover is securely in place, slide the track into the box opening and mark the ceiling with a pencil where the holes should be drilled for toggle bolts to anchor the track. Drill the holes for the toggle bolts, replace the track and screw the toggles into the ceiling.

With the track attached to the ceiling, you're ready to snap the light units into place. Insert them into the channel and slide them along to the point where they will shed the most light on your work surface.

Swivel and tip the lights to the best angles and then secure the lights in place with the locking levers that are provided.

Build a Waferwood dollhouse

The dollhouse is authentic in design and detail and is scaled to the traditional 1" = 1', so that all standard construction materials and miniature furnishings are correctly proportioned.

Although it looks professionally built, any amateur do-it-yourselfer can construct this dollhouse from easy-to-follow plans available from Louisiana-Pacific Corp. The dollhouse is easily assembled and requires only a few simple tools: hand or sabre saw, hammer and nail set, drill and bits, measuring tape, straight edge, and a square.

The dollhouse gets its unique rustic-textured appearance from Waferwood. L-P Waferwood is a versatile new construction panel that is ideal for all types of d-i-y projects. It saws, cuts and nails easily, yet is stronger and less expensive than plywood. And it has no core voids, knots, splits or checks. Solid and smooth on two sides, Waferwood can be painted, stained or left natural.

Just one 4'x8' panel of ¼" Waferwood is ample for this project. You'll also need some pine lumber for the base, porch and steps, and glue, nails, brads and sandpaper. Decorative elements like window frames can be ordered from a number of mail order suppliers.

Complete how-to instructions are available for the Waferwood Dollhouse by writing to Dollhouse, Louisiana-Pacific Corp., 1300 S.W. Fifth Ave., Portland, OR 97201. The plan includes cutting diagram, assembly instructions and information on ordering miniature dollhouse furnishings.

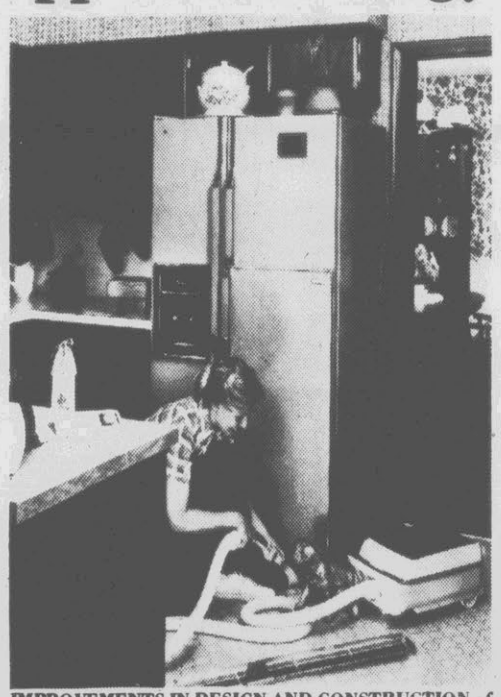
Proper usage is the key to appliance energy savings



IMPROVEMENTS IN DESIGN AND CONSTRUCTION of newer refrigerator/freezers have resulted in substantial savings in the energy they use. According to home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, regular removal of accumulated dust from the condenser coils also helps save energy and prevents possible compressor (motor) failure. They recommend cleaning the condenser every two to three months, using a bottle brush or the crevice tool attachment of your vacuum cleaner.

Some models of the "new generation" of energy efficient home appliances actually use less than half the energy required to operate their 1972 counterparts.

All major home appliances of the 1980s are considerably more efficient than the 10 or more year old products they replace. But, warn home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, not every consumer who buys a high efficiency appliance will get the maximum energy savings possible.

The reason: Energy saving (or wasting) with an appliance is more dependent on the installation and consumer's use practices than it is on the high efficiency motors, compressors, heating elements or other design factors.

Habits (the way we have always done things) are difficult to change . . . and poor ones in the use of an appliance can waste more energy than a manufacturer can save with redesign.

The National Bureau of Standards (NBS) documented the major effect user practices have on the energy efficiency of an appliance. These observation studies revealed that different people using the same range to prepare an identical menu can differ in their use of energy by as much as 33 percent.

Here are some suggestions from Whirlpool Corporation to help you use your appliance more energy efficiently to trim your energy tab while continuing to enjoy the convenience of modern appliances.

• Range – Saving energy in the oven can mean helping to keep heat inside. Resist the temptation to open the door while food is cooking. Don't preheat your oven any longer than necessary and plan "whole oven" meals on top of the range. You should always use the lowest setting that will do the job and make sure the drip bowls beneath the heating units are clean.

• Refrigerator/Freezer — Take energy-saving care of both the inside and outside of this appliance. Keep the inside filled to capacity and use and replace the contents often. Remove frost from manual and partial defrost models before it becomes more than ¼" thick.

On the outside, make sure the door seal is tight and that you clean the condenser coils regularly. As with the oven, avoid opening the door as much as possible.

The refrigerator/freezer should not be placed next to a range or indirect sunlight. The heat generated by these two sources will increase the running time of the compressor and consume more energy which will increase operating cost.

• Automatic Dishwasher — To save on hot water, wash only full loads and use the shortest cycle for the amount of soil. Save drying time by using the air dry cycle.

• Automatic Washer — Avoid wasting hot water by using lower water level settings for smaller loads, using warm or cold water for lightly soiled items, and using all cold rinses.

• Automatic Dryer — Improve energy efficiency from this appliance by first sorting your clothes into light and heavy fabrics and then setting the dryer cycle and temperature accordingly.

A warm dryer can shorten drying time, so plan your washing and drying so that dryer loads can run almost continuously.

A clogged lint screen reduces dryer efficiency so it is important to clean the screen after each load.

Redoing your kitchen cabinets without stripping

Take a good look at your kitchen cabinets and tell me what you see. If they're like mine, most probably you'll notice grease buildup around the cupboard handles, loss of lustre on the wood stain finish and a nasty scratch mark or two. You're probably thinking, "Oh no, I'll have to strip down to bare wood!"

But don't fret . . . because with just a little time and effort on your part, you can get those cabinets looking like new again without stripping. And you won't have to hire a professional. Sound good? Here's how.

First, take off all the hardware. Use a screwdriver on all handles or knobs to remove them.

Next, cleaning is crucial. In time, any wooden cabinet will accumulate its share of wax and grease buildup . . . or have worn out spots, especially around high use areas like door handles where human contact is normal.

Seal and clean

A previously finished surface must be completely sealed and cleaned before stain can be applied. If not, your cabinets may feel "sticky" when stained or varnished. Sometimes, this reaction occurs when leftover grease or contaminants react with varnish when applied and left to dry. So avoid this by cleaning them thoroughly.

Start by cleaning the surface area with ordinary paint thinner and fine steel wool. A nylon bristle brush also works great for that stubborn dirt in open grain. In addition, Trisodium Phosphate (TSP) or a mild detergent will do an excellent job, and can be purchased in any paint or hardware store.

Caution . . . cleaners may leave a powdery film residue. Any dirt and/or leftover cleaning residue must be totally wiped away to avoid possible adhesion failure when stain or clear finish is applied . . . So always rinse with water. Repeat applications if needed to do a good job.

Now, to prepare those problem areas . . . first check for bare spots. These light or gray blemish areas are chiefly responsible for the "stickiness" we've mentioned and can be found in any area constantly touched.

In some instances, bare spots will appear dark for one or two reasons. First, the grease can be so thick, it can actually penetrate into a wood-grain finish and darken a surface area gray . . . Or from constant detergent use through the years, a finish can become blistered severely near the sink and dishwasher areas.

Sand before staining

In either case, after cleaning the surface, sand the cabinets and feather out any dark spot. Use fine sandpaper such as No. 240 grit size. You may have to scuff-sand these areas a little more to remove them . . . but don't use too much "elbow grease" on any area that is in good condition.

And, never sand through the varnish. If you do, you'll have to spot-varnish these areas the same way as you address bare spots which we will explain.

Bleach brightens gray

If you complete this step but the surface still looks gray . . . here's a good tip. Add a drop or two of bleach onto a damp cloth or artist's brush to lighten this area. Sand lightly in the direction of the grain, and dust.

Follow with a damp sponge to remove any bleach residue from the blemish surface. Allow to dry.

Next, with a clean brush, "spot" all bare spots with a thin film of varnish to evenly seal these worn out surface areas. This is important. If the spot isn't treated with varnish, subsequent staining will cause the area to color differently.

This is called "strikin" when wood stain seeps deep into any bare spot area that you neglected to retouch with varnish. These mistakes will appear very dark or light and ruin your color match.

After touching up all all bare spots, remember to lightly sand these areas again, using No. 240 grit size sandpaper. Dust carefully with a tack cloth.

Use vertical strokes

Before staining . . . you have the option to leave your cabinet doors on or off. The choice is yours. Basically it's easier and takes less time to refinish a vertical surface . . . so many people elect not to take them off.

Also, they usually come out a bit smoother because they'll collect less dust. A cabinet door that is varnished and stained on a horizontal surface is subject to more settling of dust.

But taking the doors off does allow a do-it-yourselfer easier access to refinishing the faceframes. Faceframes are the inside wooden areas that are not visible until the doors are opened. Also, with the doors removed, it's more convenient to redo those hard-to-reach areas around the hinges.

But if the doors are left on, stain the faceframes first, too. A good two-inch angular brush will allow you to blend stain around the hinge areas without smudging them.

If you do decide to remove the cabinet doors, always remember to number each. Mark all base cabinet doors on the bottom inside lip area near the hinge areas and openings. (Tape and ink will do just fine.) Upper cabinets should be marked accordingly near the upper hinge area.

If you neglect this you're liable to accidentally switch doors and find hinge holes that are not compatible. So avoid this by marking them!

Another helpful hint is to keep the hinges on the removed doors. That way the hinges won't get mixed up either.

Before you begin to stain, it's important to recognize that you are not staining over absorbent bare wood — but a smooth varnished surface. So it will take less stain.

Select a one-coat stain like Carver Tripp that is designed to go over previously finished surfaces and can be removed easily if you want to change the color shade. The color should be close to, or darker than the original.

Begin by applying stain evenly with a large brush or foam applicator. However, a fine china bristle brush (two-three inch) is perfect for blending. Apply light strokes to keep the color consistent.

For decorative cabinet panels, stain the inside panels and outer lip areas first. Then do any raised front. Use an angular brush to get inside any tight area.

It's also important to know in which direction to stain the panel perimeters alongside the doors.

Also bear in mind this principle — to brush in the direction of the grain. And remember . . . stain drying times are extended because stain is applied over a sealed surface. Your drying time will have to increase because you're not going over bare wood . . . but now over a sealed surface. (Always refer to label instructions.)

To protect your newly stained cabinets and to achieve a deeper color, follow with a clear finish or varnish. Apply the first coat and allow to dry for twelve hours. In higher wear areas such as around sinks, two or three coats are recommended.

One final closing tip . . . Mix a little paint extender into your varnish to reduce brush streaks or drag marks. Your finish will look so smooth, you'll think you did hire a professional. But without the costs!

Colorful, practical aluminum storm windows

If you're thinking about new storm windows to save energy and warm up your house this winter, let them be decorative as well as functional.

With the variety of colors available in aluminum-framed storm windows, it's easy to select a color to match or contrast with the outside of your home and give it a snappier appearance.

On a red brick house, white aluminum-framed storm windows are particularly effective; for a beige or cream-colored house you might consider brown aluminum storm sash or, for a yellow house, bronze color windows.

Other colors that match or complement various shades or siding are available but must be special ordered. If you prefer the natural look of aluminum, mill and anodized finishes are available.

All baked-on enamel-coated aluminum finishes are warranteed for up to 20 years, and they remain attractive indefinitely.

Durable frames

Besides being almost maintenance free, aluminum storm windows are lightweight and easy to handle despite their rigidity and strength. Because the metal won't shrink, rot, swell or warp, the frames are more durable than wood or vinyl plastic type frames.

Most aluminum storm windows today are multiple-track units with self-storing screens that slide neatly into place. This eliminates the time and effort of removing and storing them every year.

Basically, a storm window provides a second window over your prime or original window. Installed over a single-glazed window it creates a double-glazed one; over a double-glazed window it creates a triple-glazed unit, especially important in very cold areas where maximum protection is needed.

Conserve energy

Modern aluminum storm windows are expedient if your old prime windows are in good condition but not airtight. When those old windows have been properly caulked and weatherstripped, good-fitting storm sash can reduce heat loss through the window by as much as 40 percent. If your house is air conditioned, they can also save on cooling loss.

Because of the energy they conserve, aluminum storm windows often pay for themselves in approximately five years. Also, you'll be entitled to a Federal income tax credit of 15 percent up to a maximum of $300, because storm windows are considered an energy saving home improvement.

How much energy they save depends on their U values. That's the measurement of a window's thermal efficiency, or the amount it reduces heat loss. The lower the number, the more effective the window, so comparison shop.

Evaluate quality

It's also wise to evaluate the quality of the various styles of storm windows available. One that is less expensive initially may cost more in the long run because it may not be as energy efficient.

Keep in mind, too, that the heavier the aluminum frame and general construction of the window, the stronger and more durable it will be. Quality ones have thick weather stripping and heavy glass, and joints in the frames are neat and strong.

Attractive, sturdy, properly installed storm windows, in addition to improving the appearance of your house, conserving energy and making you more comfortable, will reduce the level of exterior noise entering the house, and protect the prime windows from wind and weather damage — that requires costly repainting.

Hire expert installer

Once you've decided to add storm windows, hire a competent installer with good credentials, for his expertise is as important as the windows. It's generally wise to get two or three estimates to compare quality and price and, when you've made your selection, check out jobs he has completed.

Also, insist on seeing a section of the actual window he plans to sell you, and a sample of the color you choose.

A qualified installer will take accurate measurements of each window because, to achieve maximum efficiency, a storm unit should fit snugly over the entire prime window.

He will also provide an air space of one inch or more between the two windows. That dead air space is an excellent insulator and helps to reduce condensation on the panes and windowsills, making them warm to the touch inside the room.

Quick installation

Aluminum storm windows come pre-assembled and your contractor can install them quickly on even the coldest winter days. However, to reap fullest benefits from them throughout the season, try to get the job done as early as possible.

For additional information about storm windows, write for free booklets to Dept. FAW-9, Aluminum Window Information Bureau, 438 West 37th Street, New York, NY 10018.

NEW ALUMINUM MULTIPLE-TRACK storm window, with self-storing screen installed over prime window, creates a double-glazed unit which can reduce heat loss through the window as much as 40 percent. The baked-on enamel coated finishes of aluminum storm windows come in brown and bronze as well as white, are warranteed for up to 20 years and don't need painting.

SIMPLIFIED, DO-IT-YOURSELF INSTRUCTIONS make it easy to install the Benchmark Remodeling Door in a few hours by slipping the pre-hung steel door-and-frame unit into an existing wood frame. Owners enjoy lower fuel bills, extra security and permanent added beauty. Cutaway drawing (right) clearly shows advantages of ready-to-install Benchmark Remodeling Door in replacing old entries with new energy savings security and beauty.

New easy-to-install replacement door cuts energy bills, increases security

With the new Benchmark Remodeling Door, any handyman can complete this do-it-yourself transformation in a few hours. You simply install the new door into the existing wood frame, and no exterior remodeling is needed.

This new design comes complete in one carton, with clear and illustrated instructions. You get a steel insulated door, pre-hung in its steel frame. With weatherstripping of TPE non-reactive vinyl that seals like a refrigerator, and a thermal barrier threshold. A total package that blocks heat flow — in or out of your entryway.

With its dense foam insulation and tight sealing against air infiltration, a Benchmark door system provides several times more insulating value than traditional wood door/storm door combinations.

For extra security against the most common method of burglar entry, Benchmark presents the rigid design of a steel door with hinges welded in a steel frame. Additionally, the frame is both nailed and secured with screws to the existing wood framing.

Architectural styles to match decors are available in both traditional and contemporary models. All models provide owners with a handsome new entranceway in a maintenance-free door system that can't warp, rot, crack or swell.

Fiber glass roof for fire protection

Roofing materials can fuel a fire if the shingles are not constructed with an inorganic fiber glass base. The recent fire in Anaheim, California which destroyed 50 buildings in a four-square-block area was fed, according to fire officials, by untreated wood shake roofs.

This is not the first instance where untreated wood roofs have contributed to the spread of fire. Similiar conflagrations have occurred in San Bernardino, Houston, Tulsa and other cities throughout the country.

In each of these fires, burning embers carried by the wind from rooftop to rooftop were a major factor in spreading the fire. This is why, when choosing a roof, it is important to know what the shingles are made of and how well they protect against fire.

Untreated wood shingles are quite common in many parts of the country. Although attractive, they provide no fire protection. Untreated wood burns as well atop your roof as it does in your fireplace. Because of their potential fire danger, untreated wood roofs have been banned in many communities for both new construction and reroofing.

Another popular roofing material, conventional asphalt shingles, are made with a base of cardboard, saturated and coated with asphalt, and sprinkled with ceramic granules. While these shingles provide more fire resistance than untreated wood shakes, they have only earned UL's Class C rating for moderate protection against exposure to fire.

A better alternative to untreated wood and conventional asphalt shingles are Woodlands — laminated fiber glass shingles developed by Johns-Manville Sales Corporation, a subsidiary within Manville Corporation's family.

J-M Woodlands have earned a Class A fire resistance rating from Underwriters Laboratories. Class A is UL's highest fire resistance rating and is only awarded to shingles that resist severe exposure to fire.

During the November, 1980 San Bernardino fire, which destroyed more than 300 homes, owner John Manak saw houses burn on all four sides of his home. "When sparks and burning brands landed on my Johns-Manville fiber glass roof," he said, "they just blew off, not even leaving a scorch mark. When the fire would land on a wood shake roof, it would literally explode in seconds and the whole house would be gone in minutes."

Woodlands fiber glass shingles provide optimum fire protection and are backed by a 25-year limited prorated warranty when properly installed. They are available in a variety of styles and colors — all having the rustic, rough-hewn appearance of wood yet offering UL Class A fire protection rating.

More information on Woodlands laminated fiber glass shingles and their fire resistance, including photographs of UL fire resistance tests, is available in a free J-M booklet (RF-307A), "The Woodlands Roof." For a free copy write: Manville Service Center, 1601 Twenty Third Street, Denver, CO 80216.

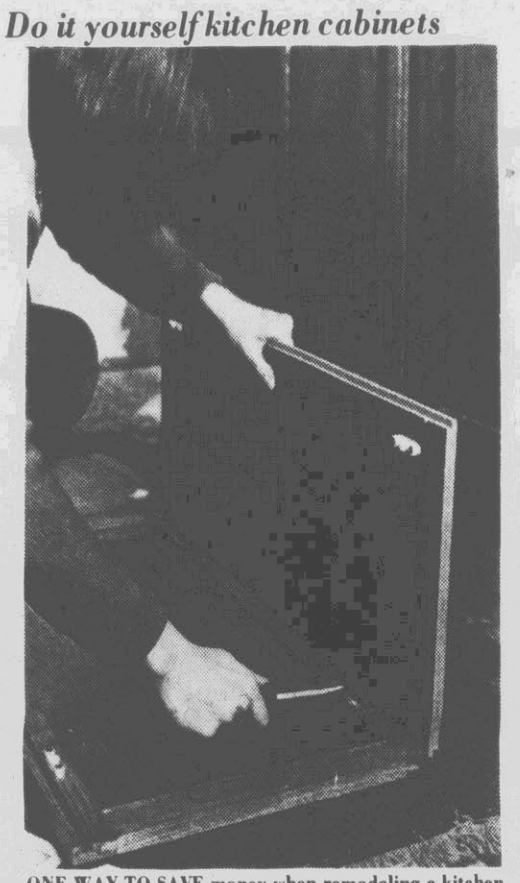
EXPECTED DROP IN MORTGAGE RATES BY 1990

Interest rates on new-home mortgages will peak slightly above 16 percent in 1982 before declining to about 12 percent by 1990, according to a forecast by an affiliate of the Wharton School of Finance.

The firm predicts interest rates will drop enough to enable financing of "pent-up demand" for houses as credit conditions ease.

Do it yourself kitchen cabinets



ONE WAY TO SAVE money when remodeling a kitchen is to do as much of the work as you can; for example, rip out old cabinets and install new ones yourself. With CONNECT•ABLES by Paragon Wood Products, you don't even have to have cabinets delivered. You take them home, each in its own carton, and assemble them with a screwdriver. It takes only minutes and it's easy, as pictured here: you match the two pieces of a connecting mechanism on adjoining panels, slide the lock over the post and tighten the screw a half-turn. The holes are for adjustable shelves; the grooves, for top and bottom panels. For information: Paragon Wood Products, PO Box 231, Red Lion, PA 17356.

Good news for do-it-yourselfers: Ceilings need not be over your head

DO-IT-YOURSELFERS whose requisites for a new ceiling are easy installation and attractive design might choose these oak-like planks from Armstrong. They're being put up without cement or staples by using clips.

Buying ceiling tile used to be something like buying a Henry Ford Model T: You could've had any color tile you wanted, as long as it was white.

Today you have some say. You can get tiles or larger panels that look like cork, marble, oak planking and other materials, with the designs authentically hued, shaded, veined and striated.

If you prefer traditional white, pattern choices have broadened to include reproductions of bleached wood, sculptured plaster, rough-troweled stucco.

Not only design and color choices, but installation options have widened as well. If you don't want to glue, staple or hang your new ceiling in a grid, now you can clip it to the old ceiling.

This wealth of choices can confuse. With so many good materials and methods at hand, how can you be sure to pick the best for your remodeling situation?

A simple way to reach a sound decision is to ask yourself three questions: who, what and where?

• Who will install your new ceiling? If you're bringing in a professional, choose any ceiling that suits you. He'll have the know-how to put it up.

But if you're going to do the job yourself to save money, select an installation method that isn't over your head skillwise.

A suspended ceiling isn't hard to install, and requires no exotic tools. The metal gridwork, especially the 12-foot main runners, may intimidate some novices, however. And it's a job best done by two.

Stapling simpler

Stapling the ceiling is easier for the average do-it-yourselfer. Wood furring strips are first nailed to the old ceiling or exposed joists and then the new tiles are stapled to the strips.

They're unwieldy, those 8- or 10-foot strips, so you'll need a helper to hold the ends when nailing. And you'll need a fairly strong arm and shoulder for squeezing the staple gun above your head.

All-in-one kit

Probably the simplest way to put up a ceiling — one designed especially for first-timers low in confidence — is called Easy Up, newly developed by Armstrong.

Instead of long furring strips it uses 4-foot metal tracks; instead of staples, clips which snap onto the tracks to lock the tiles in place.

The installation essentials — nails, tracks and clips — all come in one kit, so buying as well as installing is made easier for the uninitiated.

• What's the condition of your present ceiling? The answer further clarifies your choice of installation methods.

If your present ceiling is too high, a suspended ceiling — which can be lowered from 5 inches to as far down as you desire — will remedy this. It will also conceal overhead pipes and ducts.

If the old ceiling is the right height and not badly damaged, you can cement the new tiles right to it. On the other hand, if it's cracked or chipped to the point where it won't support tiles directly, you should go with either the stapling or clip-on method.

• Where will the ceiling be installed? Here's where you pinpoint the design and the performance features you want.

If you'd like something on the formal side — perhaps for a dining room or master bedroom — there are ceilings with colonial, Victorian and other classy patterns.

Would-be wood planks are perfect for a rustic den or solarium; relaxing cork-like tile is a natural for a study or sewing room; mock-marble panels enhance the clean sheen of a kitchen or bath.

New piano? Show it off!

A well-designed piano can be the focal point for a room's design as well as a family entertainment center, but many piano purchasers just don't know how to properly display their brand new possession.

They shunt the piano off into an inconspicuous corner with inadequate lighting, and then wonder why it doesn't attract more attention.

Here are some tips from interior designers, culled by the National Piano Manufacturers Association, to make the most of your new piano:

• A piano can be dramatically displayed in a foyer or alcove to create a small music area. Frame old sheet music or playbills and hang them above the piano, or use them as wallpaper.

• A large, visually important painting, poster or wall hanging over the piano will balance its large size while drawing attention to the instrument. Combine this with directional lights on walls or ceiling to highlight the piano's lines and make it easy for the pianist to see.

• Pianos are used for entertainment in many homes. If your family or friends enjoy sing-alongs, place the instrument in a fairly open space, perhaps set apart from the rest of the room with a large circular rug.

• A piano in the dining room? Why not! If your dining room is rarely used for formal meals, consider turning it into an entertainment room with a piano, a bar, a buffet, comfortable seating, and low tables.

MAKING BUDGET-WISE KITCHEN IMPROVEMENTS

Chances are your kitchen needs remodeling. Even in newer homes, builders frequently have not put much thought into the kitchen design.

Yet, the kitchen needs the most design attention of any room in your house. It's a workplace — requiring optimum convenience and efficiency. And it's a place of entertainment and relaxation — requiring attention to aesthetics.

All the difference

A cumbersome set-up can be a daily irritation. By the same token, a well-designed, organized kitchen can brighten your daily routine.

Your remodeling can take place in six areas: lighting, wall covering, flooring, storage space, appliances, and layout. Depending on what you choose to do in those areas, you can make anything from basic budget modifications to an overhaul which produces your dream kitchen.

If high interest rates are preventing you from making major renovations, there are still a number of low-cost kitchen improvements available to you. Changing the lighting arrangement can have a startling impact, for example.

Proper lighting

Many kitchens are designed so that the light fixture is behind you as you work. This casts your shadow on the workspace, preventing you from seeing what you're doing. An easy solution is under-the-cabinet fixtures which focus light directly on your counters.

Another budget-wise idea is installing new energy efficient appliances. While the initial investment may be substantial, their energy savings do eventually pay off. In the meantime, you're enjoying the added efficiency and beauty.

Other ideas are refacing cabinets, installing new counter tops or a new sink. Your kitchen's appearance can also be significantly enhanced by new floor covering or wall paper.

If you have a bit more money to spend, there are a host of other improvements to consider. Installing new cabinets can go a long way toward improving your storage space.

Many luxurious looking floor options are moderately priced and offer a wide range of colors and styles from which to choose. Another impressive alteration is installing a garden window in your kitchen.

Other options

And, if your budget permits, you might consider a major renovation. Opening up the walls of the kitchen is one idea. In older homes, the kitchens are generally closed off from the rest of the house.

But with today's changing lifestyles, many people find they'd rather open up the walls so that the kitchen is an integral part of the family room or another area. And if more family members are working in your kitchen these days, you might find it a real peacekeeper to expand and improve your workspace.

NRA/NHIC, whose membership represents all segments of the remodeling industry, suggests you consult with a qualified contractor on kitchen design before embarking on major renovations. Such people can provide expert advice and help you avoid mistakes.

TRAPPED ODORS AND STATIC ELECTRICITY are easily controlled, and "Love My Carpet"™ is a favorite among pet owners because it effectively counteracts doggy odors as well as smoking and musty vacuum odors.

Carpet padding – an unnecessary expense?

Padding helps to absorb room noise, and will make your carpet feel more luxurious, but is it really necessary? Yes, if you want to stretch, by years, the life of your carpets and area rugs.

But there are two types of padding that are almost worse than no padding at all. Padding that is too thin or those that are too thick and soft.

Many stores include padding and installation with the price of the carpet, but the padding is too often a thin layer of foam rubber which has no resilience. Foam rubber also tends to dry out and crumble.

The classic padding is made of a combination of felt or hair and jute, and is the one recommended for use under Oriental and fine hand woven rugs. It holds its shape, and stands up reasonably well under heavy wear.

However, it's not for homes that are damp and subject to mildew, and some people are allergic to animal hair. Many people like this padding best because it is resilient, doesn't slip, and is firm underfoot.

Different grades

As with all padding, there are different grades. One that weighs from 40 to 60 ounces a square yard will hold up well to wear.

Sponge rubber, which should not be confused with foam rubber, usually has a waffle pattern, and gives the carpet real bounce underfoot. There are several thicknesses available, from 5/16" to ¾", and the price varies according to the thickness.

Here, more does not always mean better because a ¾" padding will probably pop right off the tacking strips. Walking on it would tire your legs, and a pad that is too thick can actually cause damage because it isn't giving your carpet the support it needs.

Minimum weight

Bonded urethane foam is also good padding material, if you want the soft feel without the sponge rubber bounce. Whichever you choose, the weight should be at least the minimum 40 to 60 ounces. Both are mothproof and resistant to mold and mildew.

Another way to stretch the life of your carpet is by keeping it clean, odor free and controlling the static electricity which causes soil to cling more tightly to carpet fibers.

Those trapped odors and static electricity are easily controlled if you sprinkle a little "Love My Carpet"™ rug and room deodorizer on your rug as you vacuum. It will help counteract odors from pets, smoking — even musty vacuum odors.

You now have a selection of four scents with the recent introduction of "Soft Scent." Whichever you choose, when you've finished vacuuming your room will be filled with a fresh clean smell. It's a nice finishing touch.

Make tap water taste "bottled water clean"

If you don't like the water coming out of your tap, but lugging jugs of water home from the supermarket is not your favorite thing, help is at hand.

Now you can make your tap water taste "bottled water clean" — right in your own kitchen. The new Norelco Clean Water Machine uses a patented system to circulate water continuously through a multi-layered filter containing charcoal. Result: ordinary tap water turns into a clean, fresh-tasting beverage.

This clean water is free of the nasty elements that taste terrible — chlorine and sulphur — those that look awful — rust and sediment — and organic and other chemicals that may be bad for your family's health.

If you're so disgusted with your tap water that you've been buying bottled water, you know how good clean, fresh water tastes. Now that you can produce clean water right in your own home, you'll be able to use it for cooking too.

Try clean water for making coffee, mixing frozen juice and making soup to enjoy the foods' true flavor. And be sure to remember the ice cube tray when you're using clean water.

Big picture window can replace smaller ones

Bring the outdoors inside with a spacious picture or bay window in your favorite room if you're thinking about replacing small drafty old wood or metal ones.

You can do this by having the wood supports between a grouping of two or three up-and-down type windows removed along with the old windows. Then a single, large aluminum-framed picture or bay unit can be set in their place.

This type of window will give you more light, conserve energy, and eliminate the need for painting. It will also tend to make your room look larger and enhance the exterior appearance of your house, no matter what its style or surface.

Improve appearance

Although most windows are replaced to save energy, aluminum picture windows, bays and bows, as well as more conventional kinds, come in a range of styles that let you improve the appearance of your home at the same time. This lightweight but durable metal also gives you maximum flexibility in designing the size and shape of the window because aluminum can be formed to any contour.

Your contractor can also match the windows to the style of your home. For instance, in a Colonial type house, aluminum grids that match the new window frames can be set permanently between double panes of insulating glass. This duplicates the appearance of the original smaller panes of glass but leaves only a single pane to be cleaned.

Different styles

If you do decide to update the windows in your house, it helps to know how the various styles differ.

A picture window is stationary, and framed so that it is usually, but not always, longer horizontally than vertically, in order to provide a panoramic view. It can also have one or two movable panes of glass that either slide open sideways, or open from the top and/or bottom.

Generally, a bay or bow window is also stationary, but it extends out from the sill at an angle. The angle of the bay window may range from 30 to 45 degrees, while the bow window has a less extreme angle of about 10 degrees.

Within these guidelines, you may design a new style window from a grouping of old ones, or, if you already have a picture or bay/bow window that needs replacing, increase, decrease or change the angle from its original proportions.

However, specie' care must be taken in framing it and building sufficient support beneath it.

The greater the angle, the more support the window needs, and the further the bay extends out from the house, the more its weight increases. This necessitates heavier supports.

New supports under the window are usually wood, covered to match or blend with the surface of the house.

On one old stone house, for instance, the support was covered with vertical aluminum siding to match the window frames, and on another it was matched to the siding on the upper floor. On a red brick house, the support cover was matched to the white aluminum window frames.

If your budget permits, it's a good idea to replace other windows to blend with the new picture-type window or windows. These can be either double-hung (up-and-down) or slider type aluminum windows.

However, if you can't afford to update the entire house at once, consider replacing all the windows in one or two of the most frequently used rooms, especially the ones where you plan a picture-type window.

This way, you will have made one or two rooms energy efficient initially, because thermalized, pre-finished aluminum windows with double glazing can cut energy losses through the window by as much as 40 per cent compared to older, single pane glass. Matching replacement windows can be added gradually in other parts of the house.

The choice is wide — horizontal sliders, double-hung windows, single-hung units (they have one moving section), windows that tilt in for easy cleaning, or a combination of compatible styles. There are also new aluminum casements built to close tolerances for a tight fit.

A PICTURESQUE ALUMINUM-FRAMED BAY WINDOW can improve the exterior appearance of your house as well as bring more light inside. In this four-section, thermalized and double-glazed window the two side panels are stationary and the center panels slide open for ventilation. Light but sturdy, all four lift out for easy cleaning, and the baked on white finish on the aluminum frames eliminates the need for painting.

96% Efficiency!

It's So Efficient, You Can Vent it with Regular PVC Plastic Pipe.

LENNOX PULSE FURNACE

The Lennox Pulse gas furnace is the most significant breakthrough in furnace design in over 40 years. It produces heat unlike any other furnace with greater efficiency than ever before possible. Operating on a principle of pulse combustion, small quantities of gas and air are electrically ignited at a rate of 60 to 70 times per second. A condensing heat exchanger extracts 200 to 350 degrees more heat from your fuel than is currently possible with conventional gas furnaces.

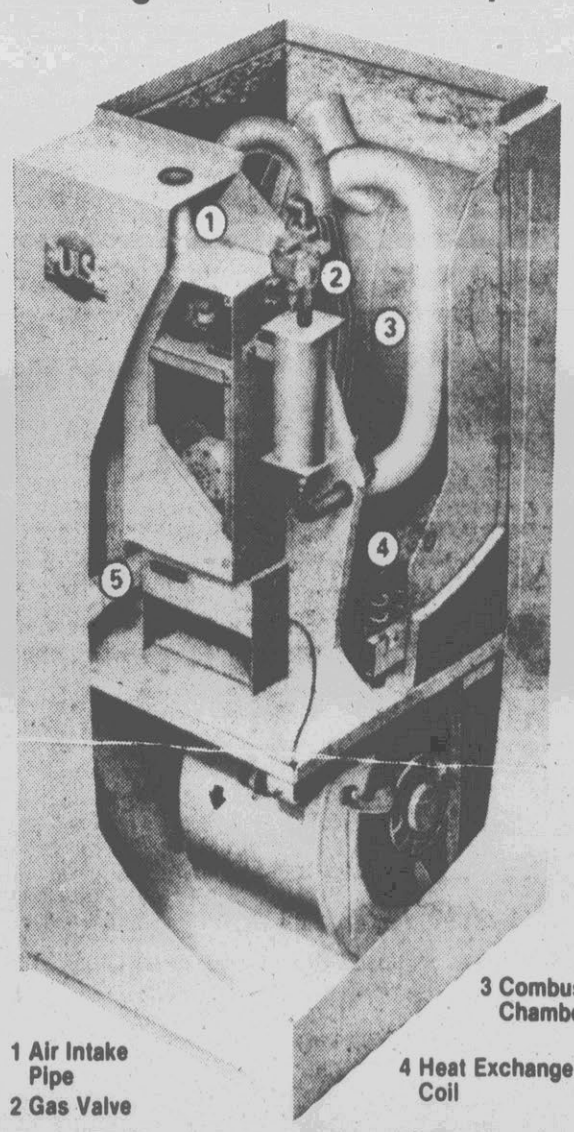
Unprecedented Heating Efficiency

If your present gas furnace is over five years old, it is probably in the range of 55 to 60% efficient, compared to the Pulse's 91 to 96%. This difference can mean drastic reductions in your monthly heating bills — enough to justify replacing your present unit today, even if it still operates. The Pulse furnace is that efficient. Even if your system is a newer "high efficiency" model, you can still save big with the Lennox Pulse.

*Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency (AFUE) as determined by Department of Energy Standards. Th e higher the percentage, the greater the efficiency and your energy savings.

Warrantied Heat Exchanger

The heat exchanger assembly is designed for long service life and carries a 20-year limited warranty against defects and failure.



1 Air Intake Pipe
2 Gas Valve
3 Combustion Chamber
4 Heat Exchanger Coil
5 Flue Vent Pipe

When will the Pulse be available and in what sizes?
Pulse furnaces are available in three input sizes: 40,000, 60,000 and 80,000 Btuh. 100,000 and 130,000 Btuh models will be available in late 1982. Several blower sizes will be available on some sizes making a total of eight up-flow models.

Will horizontal and down-flow units be available?
Lennox is presently working on both horizontal and down-flo furnaces but production dates have not yet been established.
The Pulse heat exchanger will also be applied to our commercial rooftop units and gas/electric packaged units.

GIVE YOUR HOME A SEASONAL SPRUCE-UP with warm, rich autumn colors. Rit Dye makes it easy to create colorful home furnishings and decorative accessories.

Change of season, change of color

When the weather starts to cool and attention turns indoors, make your home warm and inviting with a seasonal spruce-up. You can keep pace with the calendar's changes without making major decorating investments.

Key items such as furniture and carpet can stay the same; the secret lies in changing the little things. A few decorative touches and some seasonal accents will do the trick when you give your home the feeling of Fall with quick, inexpensive Rit Dye color changes.

Bring in the beautiful outdoors with colors that echo the hues of the turning leaves or create warm effects with the colors of fire. Deep, rich shades are most effective since dark colors seem to come in closer to create a snug atmosphere.

Select from a range of fashionable shades like Cardinal Red, Plum, Rust, Wine and Chestnut Brown or experiment and mix color recipes from powdered Rit Dye to create your own custom colors.

It's easy to dye slipcovers, pillowcovers, curtains, fabric lampshades or tablecloths to give your home autumn accents. Just follow the directions on any package or bottle of Rit Dye.

Dye over white or over pale solids, keeping in mind that the original color may affect the final results. Give patterns a darker cast with a richly colored dye-bath.

Unfinished wood and wicker can also be colored warm, country tones by painting or sponging on a hot, concentrated dye solution.

Combine color with thick, soft textures that can actually add warmth to your room. Some dye-it-yourself decorating ideas: dye soft white flannel blankets in jewel tones to throw over chairs or couches; drape windows or skirt tables with harvest colored warm, fleecy sweatshirt fabric; create a thick, shaggy rug to lie in front of the fireplace by stitching together richly dyed cotton janitor mops.

When it's cold and grey outside, you want something to look at inside! Add extra appeal to your decorating scheme by displaying colorful collectibles on shelves or tables and bringing out inviting books, candles, and dishes of nuts or candy.

Create some of your own decorative accessories: Batik or stencil dye heavy cotton to make a wall hanging or screen; dye dried leaves, grasses and straw to make seasonal arrangements and wreaths to add warm, country comfort to your room.

Or make your couch an interesting and irresistible place to roost with the addition of tie-dyed, batiked or stenciled pillows.

Wallcovering designs highlight country and traditional

The country look and traditional are still the front runners in wallcoverings this season, according to the Wallcovering Information Bureau.

These styles connect us to our American heritage and kindle a feeling of comfort, warmth and security — a welcome relief from the pressures of inflation and a tight economy, states Mauro Checchio, Executive Director of the Bureau.

Included in the country look are the quaint little calicos and stencils of the past, as well as the sophisticated small geometrics which make up the new country look. In traditional, there is a strong interest in Victoriana, American Colonial and Oriental.

Contemporary is also popular, with emphasis on grids, stripes, geometrics and the brush stroke look.

The trend in all wallcovering design categories is towards smaller scale patterns in soft, mellow tones. Important in this year's color palette are the berry and spice colors, hunter green, mauve and lilac. The neutrals have taken on more color, and gray has emerged in many collections.

For those who want to create a bright, cheerful environment, today's color palette in wallcoverings also includes delightful, crisp pastels and clear primaries.

Custom look

Decorating with wallcoverings is now easier than ever, thanks to new concepts in sample books where patterns are arranged by color family, enabling the home decorator to mix patterns with confidence, and also make harmonious transitions from room to room.

WALLCOVERING REPRODUCTION — A fanciful, stencil design found in an antique, country quilt was reproduced in a wallcovering and coordinated fabric to recreate the charm and gaity of the past. The pattern is "Moye Quilt" from the Historic House Collection by Thibaut. For a copy of "The Wallcovering How-To Handbook," write to the Wallcovering Information Bureau, Dept. F82, 66 Morris Avenue, Springfield, N.J. 07081.

One of the biggest boons in decorating is the growing number of wallcovering collections which offer a total package of accessories that coordinate with the wallcoverings. These sample books are actually mini-boutiques, offering coordinated sheets, ready-made comforters, bedspreads and draperies, rugs, shower curtains, kitchen and bath accessories, dinner ware and table top items.

Bringing all these elements together successfully used to require hours of shopping or the costly expertise of a professional decorator. Now, the custom look can be achieved by anyone at an affordable price with this one-stop shopping service.

Borders

Today's collections feature a proliferation of borders which coordinate with wallcoverings in all design categories — country, traditional, contemporary and juvenile. Simply using a border to create a chair rail, outline a ceiling, or frame a window, can give an ordinary room architectural interest, personality and charm.

Easy maintenance

The maintenance of most wallcoverings, particularly those with an over-all pattern, is far easier than painted walls. In fact, while painted walls need a new coat every four to five years, wallcoverings can look as fresh and new ten and even 30 years later, states Mr. Checchio.

THE REPRIMAND, "GO CLEAN YOUR ROOM!", will be child's play when your youngster's room is floored with Italian ceramic tile. Spills and crayon marks are easily cleaned with soap and water, and active play won't mar the floor's brilliant shine. Italian ceramic tile will last long after the kids are college-bound.

Tile transforms nursery into room for any child

When children leave the 'toddler' stage and soft carpet and Mother Goose wall paper is no longer appropriate in the nursery, many families are faced with the question of how to redecorate the room to last through the coming years. What type of floor and wall coverings will survive the handprints, crayons and muddy feet of childhood and still look good when the child becomes a teenager?

In recycling a room to avoid the expense of continual remodeling, a good place to start is with beautiful and versatile ceramic tile. Tile is durable, doesn't fade or stain, and is easy to maintain; just soap and water will remove grime or spots keeping the floor looking like new.

Another important reason to choose ceramic tile is for its beauty. Italian ceramic tile in particular offers a tremendous array of designs, sizes and shapes. These qualities make tile a perfect choice for any room in the house.

Have fun decorating a child's room:

- Create a 'rug effect' by laying a different color of tile around the border of the room.
- Use an occasional group of patterned tiles on the wall to produce a built-in picture or mural.
- For added emphasis, use colored or contrasting grout.
- Make a small room look larger by putting the same light-colored tile on the floors and walls.

Italian ceramic tile ranges from small floral prints to hand-painted animals, and most patterns are available in a rainbow of colors and shapes — sleek blue squares, subtle pastel rectangles, terra cotta octagons.

No matter which design is chosen, the beauty of Italian ceramic tile will last for years to come.

Ex-CIA Agent Seeks New Adventure

A man's love for the sea, his insatiable curiosity, a penchant for language, science and art, and an intense loyalty that can become almost obsessive: this all adds up to "Gavilan," NBC's new action-adventure series that premieres Tuesday, Oct. 19 (9-10 p.m.), provided a sixth game of the World Series isn't necessary.

An ex-operative of "The Company," better known as the Central Intelligence Agency, Gavilan (played by Robert Urich) is associated with a Marine Biology and Oceanographic Institute. His love for and knowledge of the sea stems from a long stint (four times around the world) in the Merchant Marine, and it is evident in his studies, interests and magnificent beach house.

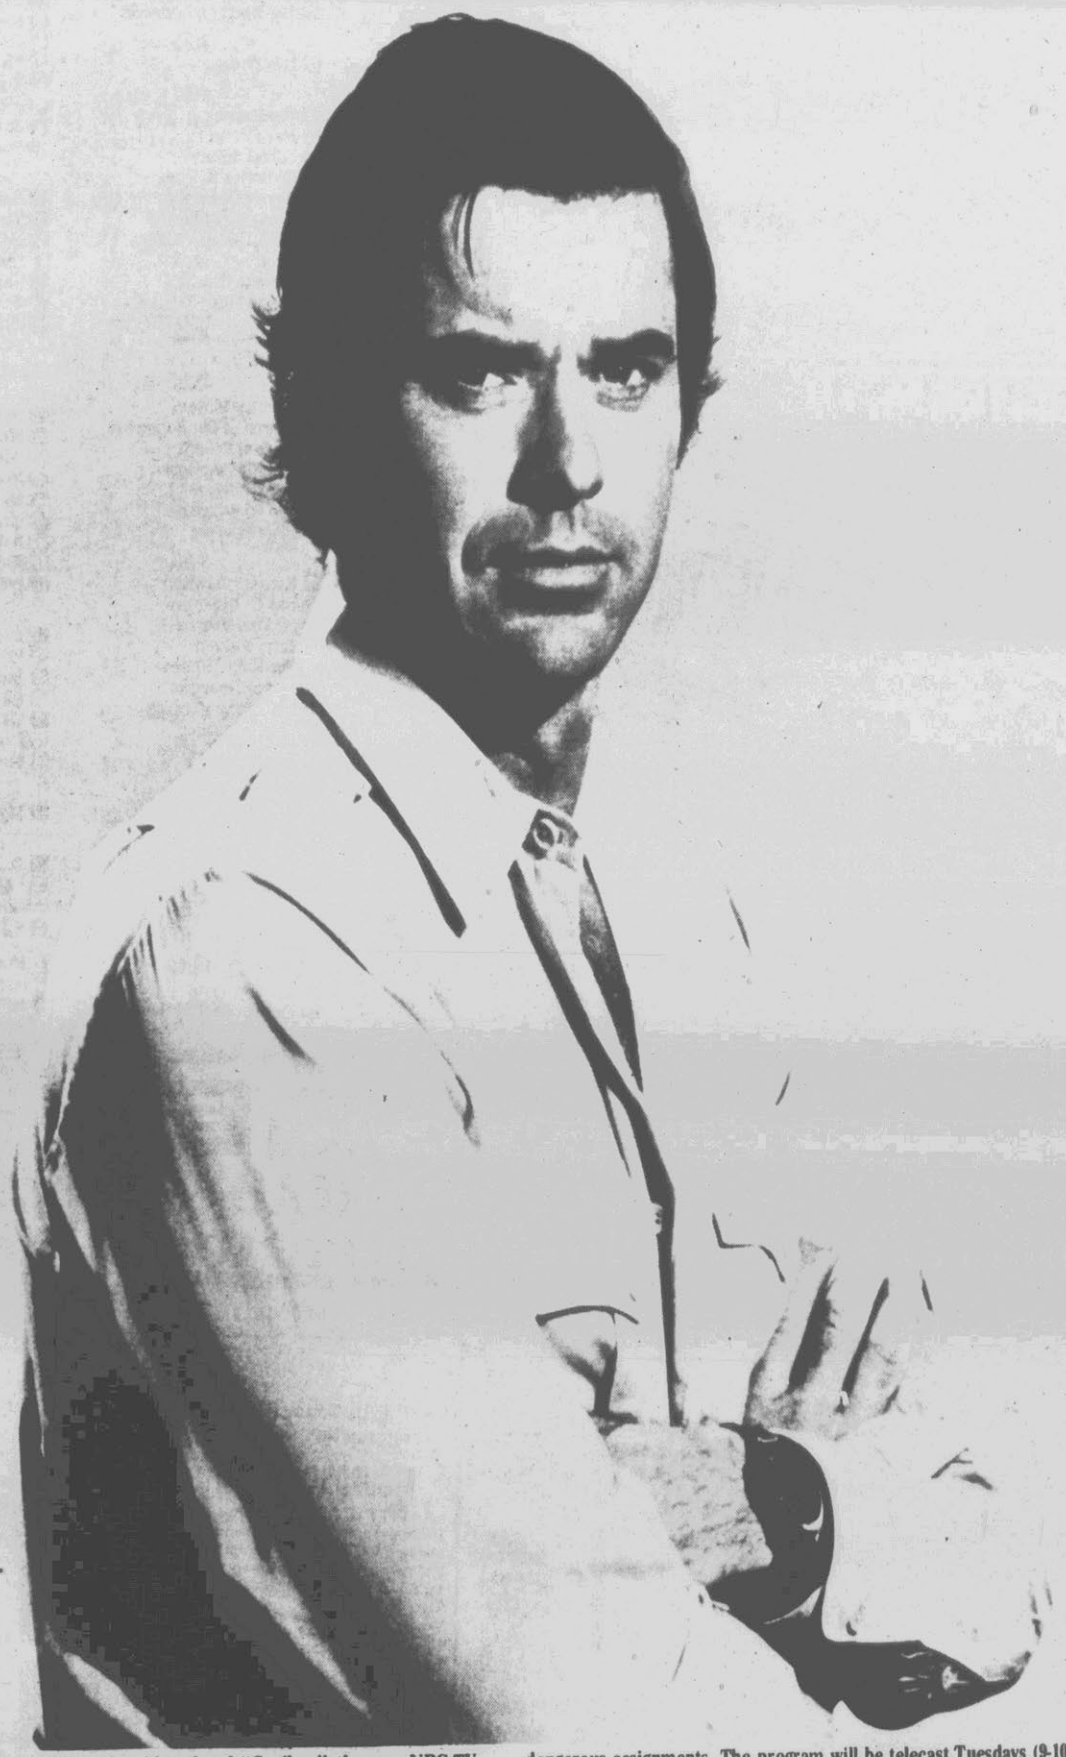
Each week Gavilan will follow a new adventure — motivated by his desire to apply a fresh approach to any kind of problem. With a fast car, scores of female admirers, a career that sparks his imagination and good friends, Gavilan appears to be the proverbial "man who has everything" (including taking a little job for "The Company" from time to time).

"I have never been more excited about a character," said Urich of his role. "The guy is intelligent, sensitive, and very up-front. He's the kind of man, who, when you meet him, lets you know just where you stand. As an ex-CIA operative, he will do almost anything for adventure — he's got that kind of drive and spirit."

Urich noted that his last series role — Dan Tanna in "Vega$" — was one-dimensional and he became restless for a part with humor — like Gavilan. "In many ways, Gavilan is a looney, crazy man...then he comes back to surprise you with a sense of loyalty, scientific curiosity, and a great sensitivity," he said.

The actor grew up in Toronto, Ohio, where he was a high school star athlete, serving as captain of both the football and basketball teams. He received a full football scholarship at Florida State University, where he earned his B.A. in Radio and Television Communications.

His first acting job was at the Pheasant Run Playhouse in St. Charles, Ill., in "Lovers and Other Strangers." Reviews were excellent, which led to his association with two other theatre groups in the area.



ROBERT URICH STARS in the title role of "Gavilan," the new NBC-TV adventure series about an ex-CIA man who is called upon to take on many dangerous assignments. The program will be telecast Tuesdays (9-10 p.m.).

Boxer Gets In Over His Head

"Honeyboy," NBC's feature on Sunday Night at the Movies, Oct. 17 (9-11 p.m.), is the story of a young boxer from the barrio who pays a steep price when high-powered promoters propel him to contender status for the middleweight championship — and in the process he becomes involved with his attractive press agent.

In the film, Erik Estrada stars as Rico Ramirez — the handsome son of a domestic worker and a long-departed ne'er-do-well ex-boxer — who yearns to be champion. After being discovered in a Golden Gloves bout by Frank Ingalls (Robert Alan Browne), a slick promoter, he must fend off the advances of Arlene (Jill Jaress), the man's wife.

When publicist Judy Wellman (Morgan Fairchild) shows up at the Ramierez home with a photographer to do a picture layout on the definitive poverty-fighting hero from the barrio — named "Honeyboy" — Rico is initially wary. For further publicity value, Judy locates Rico's father, Emilio, much to the chagrin of the ambitious and talented young Ramirez and his mother. However, an understanding between father and son does emerge from the reunion.

Promoters set Rico up with "easy" fights, and he becomes a consistent winner and a media hero. As his image is developed, he begins to lose sight of his original goals. Soon, he becomes romantically involved with Judy — who fights the attraction, realizing she and Rico are from different worlds.

While training for the middleweight championship fight against the formidable Tiger Maddox, Rico learns that his biggest victory had been rigged by his promoters. Outraged, he sets out to prove that the legend they created was not all hype.

"Honeyboy," which was written and directed by John Berry, is the first project released by Estrada Productions, Erik's newly formed film company.

Erik Estrada and Morgan Fairchild

"I plan to keep developing good properties for my company, establish credibility as someone who does that and continue with "CHiPs' just as long as it goes," Estrada said.

The actor expressed his affinity for the character of Rico, saying, "Rico wants to be champ. He's got some talent and a lot of motivation.

Romance Of Ages Causes Stir

A doctor in his early 20s and a wealthy divorcee twice his age fall in love, which shocks and angers their friends, her college-age daughter and his parents, in "Forbidden Love," airing Monday, Oct. 18 (9-11 p.m.) on CBS.

In the story, San Francisco businesswoman Joanna Bittan (Yvette Mimieux) and Dr. Casey Wagner (Andrew Stevens), an intern, meet on a ski slope and are immediately captivated by each other. Casey has no qualms about pursuing the elegant Joanna — but for Joanna it's a different matter. She is painfully aware that the handsome young doctor is only slightly older than her own daughter, and she tries to ignore her attraction to Casey.

Nevertheless, she soon finds herself persuading Casey to move into her palatial home, and the moneyless young man manages to overlook the fact that he is about to become the "kept" housemate of a moneyed matron.

Their torrid affair evolves into beautiful and serious love. Then Casey's humble and hard-working parents (Dana Elcar, Lynn Carlin) arrive on the scene and discover their son's living and loving arrangement at about the same time that Joanna's offspring, Pamela (Lisa Lucas), shows up and makes the same discovery.

Can the deep feeling of Casey and Joanna for one another survive the outrage displayed by the elder Wagners and Pamela? As the shaken lovers try to weather that threat, Casey feels within him the stirrings of another one — his gnawing discomfort over his parasitic acceptance of Joanna's lavish handouts.

In her off-screen hours, Miss Mimieux is an archeology buff who has published magazine articles in America and Europe about her various treks to ancient ruins. Among her favorite sites are Bohrabudor in central Java, Angkor Wat in Cambodia, and Pagan in Burma.

She has spent as long as five continuous months on archeological missions in Asia, occupied with such things as studying the relics of the ancient Suko Thai culture in Thailand and living for weeks in a yurt (a Mongol tent) among nomadic tribes.

"Archeology is my passion," she said. "Whenever a film takes me abroad, I try to visit the site of some ancient civilization."

Her hoped-for next expedition will be to the Sian Province of China to do research on the extraordinary "army" of 6,000 terra cotta soldiers guarding a 2,000-year-old imperial tomb. However, finding a film that will take her near that location may take more digging than all of the archeological excavating she's done to date.

Harper Portrays An Attorney Who Cares

"This is a show of the '80s. We're doing it. We're not talking about it anymore," said Lin Bolen, producer of "Farrell For The People," airing on NBC's Monday Night at the Movies, Oct. 18 (9-11 p.m.).

"Liz Farrell has entered the mainstream of law," she continued. "This is not a show about women's lib, rather a movie about a woman who cares about the work she does and the people with whom she's involved."

"Farrell For The People" concerns an assistant district attorney in New York City (played by Valerie Harper) and how she personally reacts to the cases to which she's assigned.

The concept for "Farrell" originated with executive producer Fred Silverman, but the final result was a collaborative effort.

"Valerie didn't want to do 'just' a courtroom drama so we surrounded her with some interesting characters, her fellow assistant district attorneys, her boss, Malloy; as well as what she does when she's not working. Valerie personally was very involved in honing the concept to what you see on the screen," explained Ms. Bolen.

The producers sent their writers to New York and other cities to prepare the background material for the script, which included talking to district attorney staffs as well as the policemen assigned to cases being prosecuted. After the script was completed, Ms., Harper and director Paul Wendkos returned to New York where they visited night court, day court, rode in the backseat of police cars and talked with women assistant district attorneys.

Toni Returns

Toni Tennille will return to the theatrical stage for the first time in 10 years to star in "The Rainmaker" at the Westport Playhouse in St. Louis, Oct. 21 through Nov. 14.

Michele Will Tell

DEAR MICHELE: Could you please tell us who played each of the seven characters on "The Renegades"? Is ABC planning to make it into a TV series? BARB & NICKIE, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

TO BARB & NICKIE: Starring in "The Renegades" was Philip Casnoff as Dancer, Patrick Swayze as Bandit, Randy Brooks as Eagle, Cheryl Paris as Tracy, Paul Mones as J.T., Angel Granados Jr. as Gaucho, and Peter Kwong as Dragon. We haven't heard whether this one will become a series, but if the numbers (Nielsen's) are right, who knows?

DEAR MICHELE: Could I have some information on Philip and Nancy McKeon? JENEEN IRISH, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

TO JENEEN IN GOLDSBORO: Philip and Nancy McKeon were both born in Westbury, Long Island; Philip on November 11, 1964, and Nancy on April 5, 1966. They live with their parents in Studio City, California. Philip sings and plays the guitar, studies several other instruments and is looking forward to the release of his own album. In his free time, off the set of "Alice," he enjoys sports like swimming, hockey, baseball, tennis and horseback riding. Starring as Jo in "The Facts of Life," Nancy says, "when I'm not working or going to school, one way I relax is to jog with my dogs. Exercising and good nutrition — like some health foods — keep me sharp."

DEAR MICHELE: I would like some information on Gary Sandy, who played Andy Travis on "WKRP in Cincinnati." Where can I write to him? A BIG FAN, WELCOME, N.C.

TO A BIG FAN IN WELCOME: Gary Sandy was born on Christmas Day in Dayton, Ohio, and got the "acting bug" there while involved in speech contests in high school. A veteran of theatre and films, Sandy got his big break on daytime television. "The best thing I could wish for any young actor is to get a chance to work in daytime dramas, and then get his own comedy series," he says. Gary is a baseball nut, and likes to see three or four movies in a day when he can find the time. Although 'WKRP' has been canceled, we suggest you write to him in c/o CBS-TV, 51 W. 52 Street, N.Y., N.Y., 10019. The network will forward his mail.

(FOR ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS ABOUT TV SHOWS AND PERSONALITIES, WRITE TO 'MICHELE,' Greenville Daily Reflector, P.O. BOX 30, HOPEWELL, VA. 23860.)

Playing A Beauty Comes Naturally

Delta Burke is a former teenaged beauty contest winner, so playing a money-hungry former Miss Mississippi is duck soup for her.

"I'm just basing her on many of the girls I met in all those contests," she says.

Blue-eyed Delta, and that is her real name, co-stars as Kathleen Beck, the young, greedy widow, in "Filthy Rich," the new CBS comedy series airing Wednesdays, (9:30-10 p.m.). She was born in Orlando, Fla., on July 30, the eldest of three children.

Although the Burke family had no interest in show business, they encouraged Delta when she said she wanted to become an actress.

"I wanted to act and perform even before I entered grade school," she says. "My folks let me do commumity productions and festivals while I was young."

As a teenaged beauty queen, she won 18 beauty pageants. After graduating from Colonial High School in Orlando, she was named Miss Florida and went on to the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City. The dramatic skit she performed won her the talent scholarship and she used the money to travel to England to enroll in the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts.

Delta studied for two years in acting and singing classes and returned to Florida determined to start her career. Her parents were fearful of sending her to Hollywood alone so she drove across country, accompanied by her grandmother.

When she arrived in Hollywood she was signed by an agent and won the co-starring role on television in "Cry for Help," played the lead in the miniseries "The Seekers" and was a regular on the series "The Chisholms."

Price of Stardom

It's the Truth! WE DO NOT HAVE FIVE FINGERS ON EACH HAND!

answer → Morris' Human Anatomy by Jackson confirms the fact that strictly speaking we have four fingers and one thumb. The thumb should not properly be referred to as a finger.

WE DO NOT HAVE FIVE FINGERS ON EACH HAND!

There are many times five reasons why you should deal with us. Wide experience, trained personnel, courteous attention. Come in, TODAY!

If The Name Fits . . .

Convinced that her gender might scare off prospective clients, private investigator Laura Holt invents a male boss and names him Remington Steele. All goes well until her "creation" shows up.

The handsome, debonair and enigmatic Steele soon presents another big problem for Laura: she finds herself having to deny that she is falling in love with him.

This is the basis for "Remington Steele," the new NBC series (Fridays, 10-11 p.m.) starring Stephanie Zimbalist and Pierce Brosnan.

Brosnan was born in Ireland, lives in London and works in Hollywood, giving him a background and life style similar to that enjoyed by the suave, jet-setting Remington Steele.

Born in Ireland, Brosnan was 11 years old when his family moved to London, England, where he now resides.

The tall, dark-haired Brosnan made his professional acting debut in 1976 in a stage production of "Wait Until Dark" at London's York Theatre. His first television appearance was in the British drama "Murphy's Stroke" in 1979. Brosnan's first role in the United States was in the three-part miniseries "The Manions of America."

On the other hand, Miss Zimbalist comes from a family of performers. The daughter of Efrem Zimbalist Jr. and the granddaughter of renowned violinist Efrem Zimbalist Sr., Stephanie says her acting bent was sparked with her theatre activities as a drama counselor at summer camp in Vermont.

"I guess coming from a famous family is supposed to be a burden," she said. "Something about following in another's footsteps — filling those shoes. Well, if you love your parents and you think they are gifted, you just want to be proud and live up to the reputation of your family."

Killer Stalks Chefs

A fast-food franchiser and his ex-wife, one of the world's top cooks, are reunited when they are caught up in a series of murders, all involving master chefs, in "Who Is Killing the Great Chefs of Europe?" to be rebroadcast on The CBS Late Movie, Friday, Oct. 22 (11:30 p.m.). The film was originally released theatrically in 1978.

Vanderveere calls Natasha O'Brien (Jacqueline Bisset), America's foremost dessert chef, to London to prepare her incomparable Bombe Richelieu for the Queen. But on her way to Vanderveere's resplendent mansion, she is kidnapped by her former husband, Robby Ross (George Segal), a fast-talking magnate of the fast-food world.

Dream Comes True

Danny Kaye leads a musical tour through the magical world of Epcot Center in "Epcot Center...The Opening Celebration," airing on CBS, Saturday, Oct. 23 (8-9 p.m.) from Orlando, Fla.

Epcot Center is the latest addition to the Disney World entertainment complex. The Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow (also known as Epcot) is a glimpse of what the 21st century might look like as well as a reflection of the splendors of the world today.

The 260-acre park is split into two parts — Future World and World Showcase.

Future World embodies the realm of ideas and technology. Transportation, energy, communication, imagination and the planet we inhabit are all explored — past, present and future.

World Showcase embodies the realm of culture and heritage. Within a one-mile radius, the unique sights, sounds and histories of nine different nations are there to behold and Kaye recognizes this ethnic diversity with a quick musical tour, "Showcase of the World." Alex Haley, author of "Roots," previews a 10th pavilion not yet open to the public. The American Adventure, with its animated figures of Benjamin Franklin and Mark Twain expounding on American history and culture, is the focal point of World Showcase. Kaye gets a chance to show off his award-winning musical abilities when he steps up to the podium to conduct the West Point Glee Club and All-American Marching Band in "America the Beautiful" and "This Is My Country."

Epcot Center would never have been built if it were not for the dreams of Walt Disney, who died over 15 years ago. Journalist and commentator Eric Sevareid recalls his tribute to Disney written after Disney's death, and shares his insights into Disney — the man and his dreams — and offers some thoughts about Epcot Center.

"It really is spectacular," Kaye said of Epcot. "It is all of the dreams, the creativity and the imagination of Walt Disney taken a step beyond."

Sports Knockout

Boxing is back in the mainstream of television and doing well. "Golf, tennis — it kills those events," says Mike Cohen, former director of sports information at NBC. "The only sport boxing probably can't beat is professional football."

Canada's Way

In a story in Time Magazine, sportswriter Tom Callahan summed up the differences between the NFL and the CFL this way. In Canada, there are always 12 men on the field, it is never fourth down, and signaling a fair catch is not only unmanly but futile.

Brewers Host Fifth Game

The Milwaukee Brewers, who struggled past the California Angels in the American League championship playoffs, will host the fifth game of the World Series, if necessary, in Milwaukee County Stadium on Oct. 17. NBC Sports will broadcast the game beginning at 4 p.m.

The Brewers, under the guidance of manager Harvey Kuenn, have been unleashing their powerful bats all season, consistently racking up crushing scores against their hapless opponents.

The starting roster for the Brewers features a diverse infield, including Cecil Cooper at first base, James Gantner at second, Robin Yount at shortstop, and Paul Molitor at third. Catcher Ted Simmons keeps the peace at home plate.

Cooper, a three-time recipient of the Harvey Kuenn Batting Award, came to the Brewers in late 1976 after a trade with the Boston Red Sox, where he began his career. "Coop" is consistently one of the hottest hitters in the league and the top lefthanded hitter in baseball.

Gantner, a native of Wisconsin, became a regular at second base when Molitor moved to the outfield last year. The 28-year-old Gantner soon proved to be an everyday player as part of the Brewers' keystone combination along with shortstop Yount.

"Rockin" Robin Yount has been with Milwaukee since entering the league in 1974. The 27-year-old Yount is a solid performer who makes few errors — a fact he drove home last year when he led all major league shortstops with a .985 fielding percentage.

Molitor has spent his five years at Milwaukee moving all over the field, wherever his skills are most needed. He began last season as the Brewers' regular center fielder, moving Gorman Thomas to rightfield. Now at third, the 26-year-old Molitor has been keeping the corner clean as Milwaukee sweeps past its opponents.

Simmons is in his second season with the Brewers, coming to the club in a trade with the St. Louis Cardinals that included pitchers Rollie Fingers and Pete Vuckovich.

Fine Is Waived

NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien has waived payment of a $1,250 fine imposed on Harvey Catchings of the Milwaukee Bucks last season. Catchings had appealed the fine, contending that his elbowing of Larry Bird had not been intentional, and O'Brien had agreed to review the situation if no further incidents occurred.

Bass Is Delighted

San Antonio general manager Bob Bass was not unhappy to see Moses Malone sign with the Philadelphia 76ers. That sent Malone out of the Western Conference, which means the Spurs will see him only twice next season instead of six times, as when he played for Houston. "When you get through with Moses," said Bass, "he's got you bleeding."

By Polly Vonetes

LEE MAJORS has just recorded a new record for Scottie Records. Lee sings "Lust in a Lady's Eyes" on one side, and "The Unknown Stuntman" on the other — (if he makes the charts — he will be a popular stunt man).

JACK KLUGMAN has invested in a new business in New York City. If you ever visit the Big Apple and have a craving for some popcorn — drop in at Jack's Corn Crib, a popcorn stand on 59th Street (corny but true).

The anticipated 1983 "Love Boat" filming in the Orient will cost about $12,000,000 for three shows, reports DOUG CRAMER, back after a reconnaissance trip. Producers are still hoping to sign BARBARA STANWYCK, BETTE DAVIS and CLAUDETTE COLBERT for the "Love" cruise.

STEVE KANALY'S car caught fire while he was driving to work in "Dallas." A fan picked him up and drove him to MGM, but when a tow truck arrived to pick up Steve's car — it had been stolen.

DUSTIN HOFFMAN has been shocking his co-workers on the set of his new film, "Tootsie," with his frequent outbursts and temper tantrums. Producer SYDNEY POLLACK insists, however, that in spite of "what's been going on" it's a good film.

Back together again! The word is out that DEAN MARTIN, JERRY LEWIS AND FRANK SINATRA will be making a movie together for none other than PETER BOGDANOVICH — (movies, like politics, make for some strange alliances).

LINDA BLAIR, who at the tender age of 15 shocked us all in "The Exorcist," is at it again. Linda will "bare" all in a layout for Oui magazine.

PERRY COMO is getting an early start, he is currently in France filming his Christmas special, "Christmas in Paris," with special guest star ANGIE DICKINSON.

Investment Dressing

The economy, not fashion fancy, is the strongest factor to be considered when selecting clothing today. In times like these, a clothing purchase must give a customer something that will perform well and hold its shape over the years, as well as be timely enough to keep current with trends and changes. The impressive collection of Fall sport coats in our stores have a styling that is timeless and are cut from the most beautiful fabrics we've ever seen. These natural shoulder coats are classics and represent the finest quality in clothing that we find in the market. We invite you to see them now at any of our fine stores.

FOR PHILIP KINGSLEY, author of The Complete Hair Book (Grosset & Dunlap)

Why are men more prone to baldness than women? Is baldness a modern affliction? —V.B., Easton, Pa.

● Men are only more prone to a high degree of hair loss. Women also lose hair, although usually not to the same extent as men. The main reason is that male hair loss depends on the amount of androgens (male hormones) reaching the susceptible hair follicles. Men produce more male hormones than women because the testes are the main provider. In fact, men castrated before puberty do not go bald. Baldness has been around since prehistoric times, hence all the very old recipes for supposedly curing it. However, modern stresses accelerate hair loss, and so in recent years hair loss in women has increased.

FOR LEE PURCELL, star of Homework

How did you break into movies? —P.T., Troy, N.Y.

● I owe it all to the late Steve McQueen. He was very, very kind to me and gave me my first big break in Adam at Six A.M., opposite Michael Douglas, the first film Steve produced. I met McQueen at an audition where I was one of 400 women. I got to know him but there was never any romantic interest. I owe him a lot and miss him, as everyone does.

FOR STEVE FORBERT, recording star

Were you pushed, or did you choose to perform folk music?—R.O., Chattanooga, Tenn.

● There was a little bar in my hometown of Meridian, Miss., called the Yodeler. I started hanging out there a lot, jamming on acoustic guitar, occasionally with someone sitting in on harmonica. We used to get together and play hundreds of different songs, which opened me up to folk music.

FOR BARBARA BUSH, wife of Vice President George Bush

You seem very even-tempered — are there times when you either become angry or blue? — S.N., Boulder, Colo.

UPI

● The fact that I am amused by the outrageous keeps me from losing my patience. Of course I have felt blue. I suffer when I hear people are hungry, out of work, etc. I feel frustrated about not being able to help. To rid myself of that sadness, I exercise hard.

Rachel Ward: a new romance.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITOR

GOSSIP, QUOTES, INFORMATION, ET AL: When Christopher Reeve left London for Canada to film Superman III, he did not object to being photographed with his girlfriend, Gae Exton, but made sure their 2-year-old son was out of camera range. "Please don't take Matthew's picture," he pleaded. "Funny things happen these days, and we don't want him recognized." . . . When actress Vanessa Redgrave got involved in a battle to save an English school from closing, local officials became wary. They gave the Workers Revolutionary Party militant the cold shoulder. Explained one: "Her motives are suspicious. We do not want her." . . . Meanwhile, Tony Richardson, Vanessa's ex, is busy romancing Rachel Ward, Burt Reynolds's co-star in Sharkey's Machine . . . . Marlene Dietrich still has not delivered the rewritten draft of the autobiography she handed in over two years ago. Problem is, she has ignored certain phases of her life — important, juicy ones. (It's easier to sell ice cubes in the North Pole than to market a star's bio that lacks spice.) However, the publishers are content to wait, because "she is such a grand old lady and we don't want to rush her." Marlene, who says she's 78, is listed in reference books as 81. . . . Barbara Carrera and Bianca Jagger are both up for the same role in Last Plane Out, starring Jan-Michael Vincent. Because they are both from Nicaragua, where tempers aren't always kept in check, the question is, will the loser be gracious, or will the sparks fly? . . . Indira Gandhi consulted a Washington beautician on "deficiencies and congenital problems of the scalp," and he is now advising her by mail. He claims the streak in the Indian Prime Minister's hair is natural, but he's keeping quiet about the rest of it . . . . Former star Suzanne Foster, who starred with Claude Rains and Nelson Eddy in Phantom of the Opera, has been singing only the blues lately. She was recently discovered sleeping in her car, a victim of hard times. "She's still beautiful and has a magnificent voice," said Colleen Camp, an actress who would like to help Foster. But the proud Foster, who was once described as a rival of Deanna Durbin and Dinah Shore, "refuses to burden anyone," said another friend, Marsha Hunt. "However, she wouldn't turn down the chance of a comeback."

PRO AND CON

Should Fringe Benefits Be Considered Income for Tax Purposes?

(Question submitted by Clyde Gardner, Saginaw, Mich.)

PRO Roscoe L. Egger Jr., commissioner, Internal Revenue Service

Yes. The statutory rules governing fringe benefits have been clear for many years. The law broadly defines gross income as all income from whatever source derived, specifically including compensation for services. Similarly, treasury regulations clearly state that if services are paid for other than in money, the fair market value of the property or services taken in payment must be included in income. Therefore, if not specifically excluded as income by law, it is income for tax purposes.

CON Avery E. Neumark, tax attorney

It's hard to define, for tax purposes, what fringe benefits are and what monetary value should be assigned to them. This is evidenced by Congress' inability to come up with objective guidelines. Many employees have relied on the nontaxability of certain benefits based on long-established practices. Abruptly changing these practices would be unfair. Moreover, taxing these benefits would cause employers to lose their leverage in attracting and retaining employees.

COVER STORY

THE DELICIOUS JOHN

By Ray Ratto

John Elway saunters easily into the Stanford University sports information office and plops his 6-foot 4-inch, 202-pound frame into a chair. He is dressed in an ensemble fresh off the rack of a nearby sporting goods store — T-shirt, faded blue jeans, sneakers you have to pay for in installments and, topping it off, a railroad cap he got for $6 on his last trip through K-Mart.

Hardly the attire befitting a young man just a few short months from becoming a millionaire. You see, in the high-stakes card game of professional sports, 22-year-old John Elway is looking out from a full house and about to grab the whole pot.

Ahead sit two worlds, both promising glory, fame and beaucoup dollars, because Stanford's blond, blue-eyed senior has his choice of professional careers. Football or baseball. All-pro quarterback or all-star outfielder. But if the prince of Palo Alto knows which way he's going to play his hand, he isn't letting on right now.

"I like both games and I don't like to compare them," is as far as Elway will go. "If I said I enjoyed one more than another, then people would think that's the way I'm going to go."

Already the bidding war has begun. Witness the key chain he gently tosses on the desk as he leans back in his chair. It bears the logo of the Oneonta, N.Y., Yankees, the New York Yankees' minor-league team he played for the past summer. And the key fits a Datsun 280Z paid for from the $140,000 signing bonus the Yankees gave him, not just to play six weeks of baseball, but to lock up their draft rights to his future.

John's father, Jack Elway, has been a coach for more than half of his 51 years. He has coached basketball, baseball and football almost without remission since 1953 and is currently masterminding the renaissance of the San Jose State University football program. He knows John Elway's potential better than anyone else, having watched it develop from playpen to playing field.

"I used to do a little scouting for the Dallas Cowboys," père Elway says. "They used to send out these questionnaires, and when John was 12 I decided to fill one out for him, just for him to keep. I had him at 6-2, 185 pounds, good arm, smart, a quarterback, good speed, agility, all those things. Plus I wrote that he had a bad attitude, because he didn't clean the swimming pool."

Jack came close. John is a little taller, a little heavier. As a quarterback, he is smart, has good speed, agility, all those things his father he'll make zillions. That's choice.

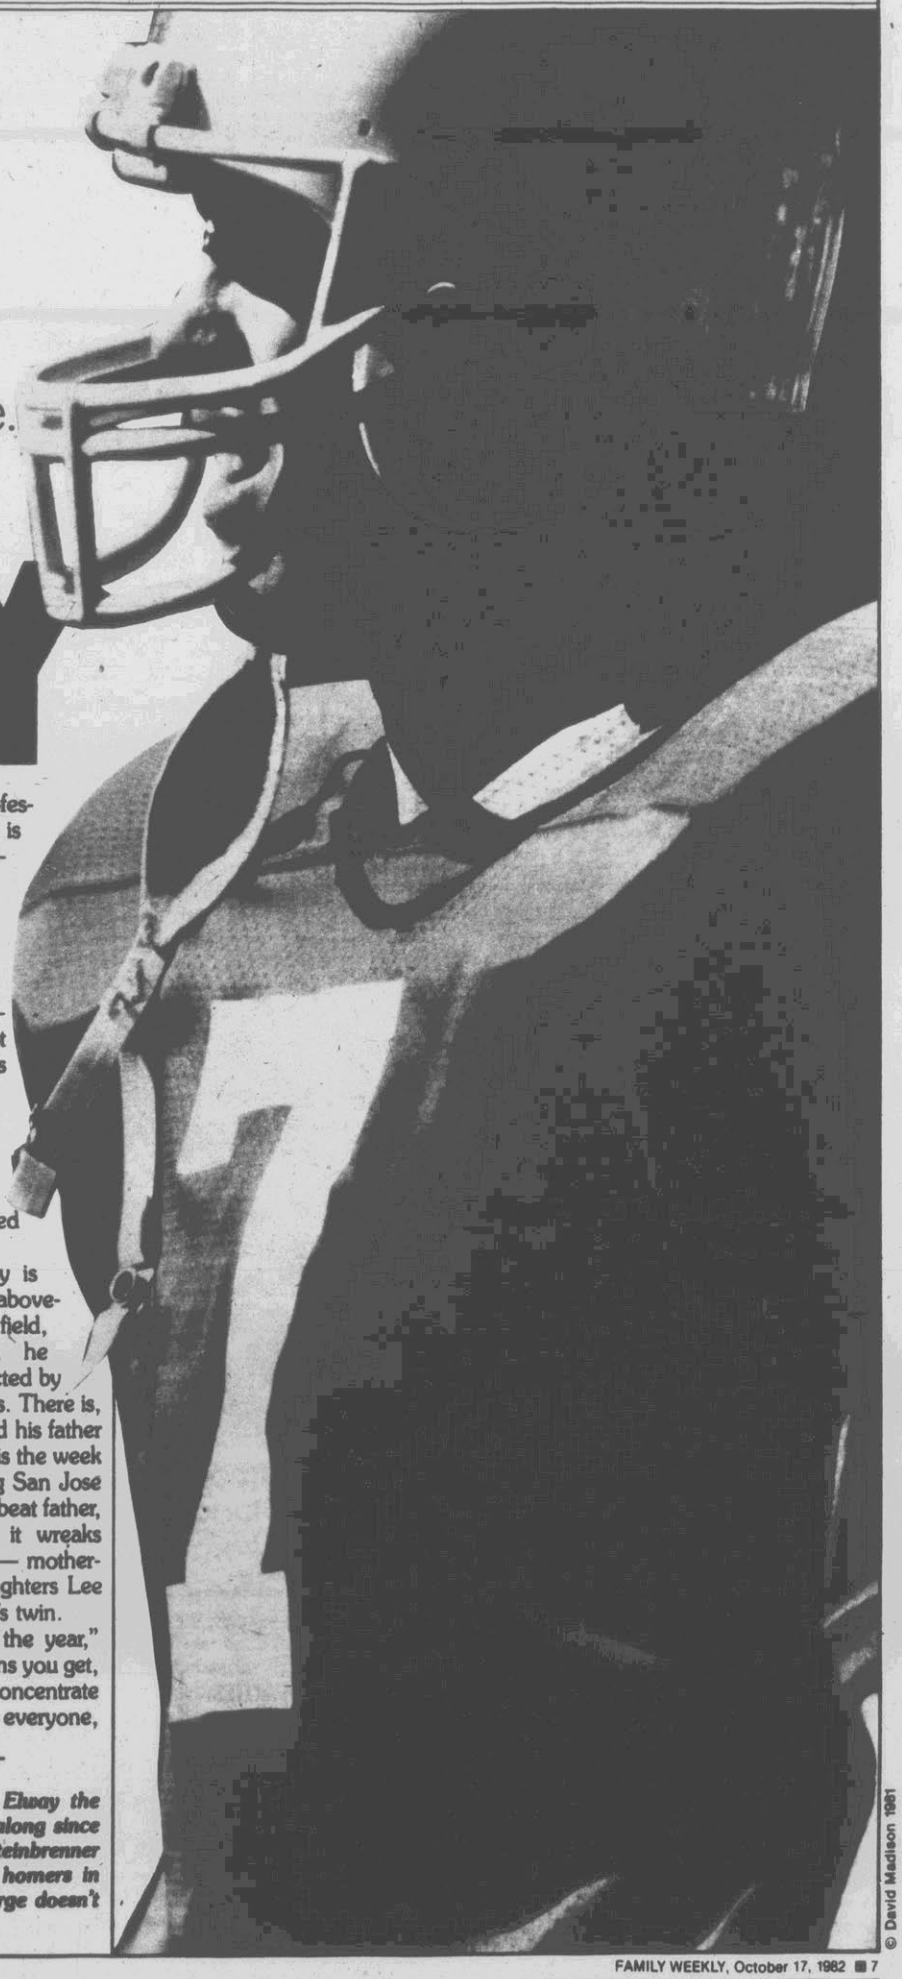
DILEMMA OF ELWAY



predicted. Except for his arm. He has a great arm, not just a good one, accurate to 60 yards and frightfully powerful at any distance. Several football scouts have said it is the best arm they have ever seen.

Even though Stanford's team does not look like a contender again this year, Elway remains a prime candidate for the Heisman Trophy and, barring injury, will almost certainly be the first player chosen in June's National Football League draft. Dick Steinberg, personnel director of the New England Patriots, says Elway is "as good as I've seen since Joe Namath. He can't miss in the pros." Head scout Tony Razzano of the San Francisco 49ers says he is the best quarterback he has seen come out of college in 20 years. John's coach, Paul Wiggin, says, "He can do it all. He's the best quarterback in the nation, no question," ignoring for the moment the plaintive objections of University of Pittsburgh football fans, who tout their own man, Dan Marino.

His baseball future, though, is no less well defined. Yankee owner George Steinbrenner can be excused if, when he looks at the blond brawn of Elway, he sees an incarnation of Mickey Mantle. A left-handed hitter with power, Elway is perfect for Yankee Stadium's short right-field stands. When Elway signed, Gary Hughes, the scout who signed him, said, "Mr. Steinbrenner is thinking about [Dave] Winfield, [Jerry] Mumphrey and Elway as our outfield of the future." Given Steinbrenner's somewhat volatile nature on personnel decisions, Elway could be the only survivor of that proposed troika. Still, a man with six weeks' professional baseball experience is not often named a sure-shot major-league starter.

Says Steinbrenner, "The John Elway I have seen is a little bit of Frank Merriwell revisited for me. He is the perfect all-American boy." (Well, not perfect. Demurs John's mother, Janet, "I used to get mad at him because he wouldn't take out the garbage. And it seems the longer he's in college, the less interested he is in cleaning.")

In short, John Elway is something special. An above-average student off the field, majoring in economics, he struggles to remain unaffected by all the attention he receives. There is, however, one week he and his father dread with equal fervor. It is the week Stanford plays neighboring San Jose State, and son must try to beat father, and vice versa. In fact, it wreaks havoc on the entire family — mother-wife Janet and sisters-daughters Lee Ann, 23, and Jana, John's twin.

"It's the worst week of the year," John says. "All the questions you get, the pressure. It's hard to concentrate on football. But it's hard on everyone, especially my mother. This has been a lot worse than people know."

Jack is more direct. "That damn week," he says, lighting a cigarette. "It's a relief when the game starts. I'm just glad we play them early every year."

"The season begins for all of us after that game," says Jana, a senior at San Jose State. For The Game, Jana wears a hat that has the Stanford emblem and colors on one side and those of San Jose State on the other.

Imagine the slew of emotions bombarding Jack Elway in last year's contest, for instance. San Jose won 28-6. It was Jack's biggest win as a coach and John's worst day as a collegian. Even as Jack cheered on his defense, he watched his son throw five interceptions, get sacked seven times and leave the field at one point with an injured ankle. After the game Mrs. Elway first smiled and embraced her husband, then spotted her bruised and broken son and burst into tears.

John Elway is, if anything, an instinctive athlete. His father played semipro baseball before becoming a teacher and coach, and he noticed that his only son had a remarkable aptitude for sports.

Mickey Pfleger/Sports Illustrated ©Time Inc.

After San Jose plays Stanford, Jack and John both ache.

"He always wanted it," says Jack in the football equipment room at San Jose State. "He was always intrigued by any kind of ball or game. There was a lot of competition with his sisters. By the time he was 10, I could see he had the ability to concentrate, which all good athletes have to have.

"He was a great basketball player when he was young. We'd throw the ball around or shoot a little bit, but I was always the one who wanted to go in first. It was always, 'Five more minutes, just a couple more.'"

John spent his formative high school years in Northridge, north of Los Angeles. Jack had moved the family from eastern Washington, where he was an assistant football coach at Washington State University, when he became the head coach at Cal State, Northridge. The most noticeable part of John's athletic genius, his arm, developed well past normal limits during those years. By the time he was a senior, he had established himself as the most coveted football player in the country and had been drafted by baseball's Kansas City Royals as well. (Once K.C. declined to sign him, his rights went back up for grabs.) He had been named Southern California Athlete of the Year, and schools were stumbling all over each other to sign him to a letter of intent.

"Stanford was always his first choice," remembers Jack. The only person who could have influenced him away from Stanford was, not surprisingly, his father. After three years at Northridge, Jack had been hired by San Jose State to right its floundering program. Only a few thousand suspicious minds made the connection between father and son. Jack has whittled the story into a routine.

Says father Jack, "Sometimes I look at myself and say, 'You had the best damned quarterback in the country across the table from you and you blew it.'"

"I always tell people that I offered John $2,000 under the table, a new car and a mortgage on the house," he begins. "I even offered to sleep with his mother. But I couldn't really ask him to come with me. I think he would have come if I had asked him, but I couldn't do that." Then Jack always follows that disclaimer with, "But

"Try My All Natural Beer.

If You Don't Agree It Beats Bud, Schlitz Or Miller, I'll Send You $5.00 FREE... Plus A Full Refund..."

Hello. My name is Bud Weckesser, President of Bierhaus International.

Many people think that making their own ALL NATURAL beer is dumb... too time consuming, and the beer is flat and cloudy.

Well, I've got five dollars that says they're wrong. Dead wrong.

In fact, since the major American breweries began increasing their prices so steeply, a beer drinker's revolution is starting in America. Quietly. But it's spreading fast. Our company alone has sold over 45,000 mini-breweries during the past 24 months. We now have over 250 dealers coast to coast.

Give me five minutes of your time and I'll show you how to slash $650.00 dollars off your beer bill during the next 12 months.

Let me separate some myths from fact:

MYTH — "I remember people used to make 'home brew' years ago. It was flat and cloudy."

FACT — Old fashioned "home brew" is lousy. No argument. But we're not talking about old fashioned home brew. Our mini-brewery is TOTALLY DIFFERENT. It contains a professional brewer's fermentation tank... the finest hops in the world imported from Bavaria... 100% PURE barley malt... and a superb lager yeast imported from England.

That's why I'm offering my crass $5.00 FREE guarantee. I'm frustrated. I really am. Because I wish there was a way you could ACTUALLY SAMPLE this new beer. It's crystal clear with a thick creamy head. It has a zesty European flavor comparable to Carlsberg, Becks, Heineken, Dortmunder, Spatenbrau and other great European lagers. I ABSOLUTELY guarantee it.

MYTH — "Yes, but it takes too long... and it's complicated."

FACT — Using the Bierhaus mini-brewery, you can brew beer in just 27 minutes on a regular kitchen stove. If you want to make 6-8 cases of 12 oz. bottles, it may take 45 minutes. Let it remain in the fermenter for seven days, pour it in bottles or keg it. You're done.

- No more late night trips to the carry out.
- No more lugging back empty beer cases in the trunk of your car.
- No more chemistry set taste.
- No more standing in line to pay $8-$10 per case of beer.

Just brew what you need once every month or two and that's it! For as little as 11-12 cents per bottle.

FACT — That's like saying because cellophane wrapped pie in the supermarket is baked by a national bakery it's got to be better than a homemade apple pie fresh from the oven.

If you use our mini-brewery and follow the instructions carefully, your beer will be better than commercial beer. Because, by law, commercial breweries are allowed to use up to 52 different artificial ingredients... including tannin and enzymes, calcium disodium ethylenediaminetetra-acetate (to prevent gushing), propylege glycol alginate (to stabilize the foam), and three coal tar dyes for artificial coloring.

Our new mini-brewery — unlike commercial breweries — uses NO ARTIFICIAL INGREDIENTS OF ANY KIND. Absolutely none. As a result, the beer has a fantastic pure taste not found in commercial beer. You have to TRY IT TO BELIEVE IT.

MYTH — "Beer made at home is so powerful it'll knock your socks off."

FACT — No way. You can now brew our Bierhaus Amber Lager with only 90 calories per bottle. And it doesn't taste like water, either. Even better, it contains just half the carbohydrates of many commercial beers. Best of all, it doesn't knock you on your tail after one or two bottles. You control the alcoholic content of the beer when you brew it.

MYTH — "Making beer at home is illegal..."

FACT — House Resolution 1337, passed by Congress and signed by President Carter in February 1978, allows adults to make up to 200 gallons of beer per year — tax free. Moreover, you don't need a Federal license of any kind.

WHERE DO I GET SUPPLIES ONCE I GET THE KIT?

We're the largest home beermaking supply house in America. We stock hundreds of different items... malt to make German amber lager, Irish stout, British ale... plus hundreds of different ingredients. Just call us to reorder.

The new Bierhaus mini-brewery contains an FDA food-grade 7½-gallon fermentation tank, complete with our special anaerobic lid, air lock and other equipment, including caps. Plus enough ingredients to make your first test brewing. The ingredients will be for a standard lager beer so you can compare it to your favorite American commercial beer.

$5.00 FREE!

Our guarantee is simple.

Order the kit and make the beer. Serve it to your family and friends and ask them to compare it to their favorite beer. You do the same. If everyone doesn't agree it's better — far better than commercial beer — simply return the unused portion of your kit. I'll pay the return postage. And I'll send you a check for your full purchase price of $29.95, plus $5.00 extra — total $34.95. And I'll send the refund within three working days from the time I receive the returned kit.

If I'm wrong, you just made $5.00.

But what if I'm right?

Observations

Snips and snails.... And there's more that boys are made of, if they're Scouts: Sleeping under the stars...and studying them. Building campfires...and careers. Learning first aid for snakebite in the woods...and rat bites in the city. Making dinner...making friends...making something of themselves. Scouting today combines all the old-fashioned lore of knots and nature study with modern ideas—like an environmental-science merit badge. Or like job-training courses for young men and women out of high school and out of work. New programs bring Scouting to youth who are physically handicapped, mentally retarded, or emotionally disturbed. Yet what's unchanged are Scouting's goals: to develop character, fitness, and citizenship. That's why we're happy to support the Boy Scouts (and the Girl Scouts, too, among many other worthy causes).

"Trash it." To a Scout, that doesn't mean vandalism, but cleanup projects to keep the outdoors great. Since we care for the environment, too, our Mobil Chemical Company donated 1.5 million sturdy plastic Hefty® bags to the Boy Scouts' "Save Our American Resources" program last spring. It was the largest single corporate contribution ever made to that program—enough bags to collect a yard-wide pile of trash stretching several inches deep from Chicago to Orlando. Scouts used the bags for litter, landscaping, storing fish, in a contest for the handicapped...even "harvesting" gypsy-moth cocoons.

"Are you through with this?"

Hefty and thrifty. Since Scouts are encouraged to earn money to help pay troop expenses, many are now selling Hefty bags that we're wholesaling to participating units. Which is where you could come in. The average family uses more than 25 packages of bags a year, and buying these from a Scout would mean a thrifty $12.50 profit for his troop...and a bonus "Hefty Scout Buck" good toward uniforms and supplies. With each package of bags, you'll also get a 25-cents-off store coupon.

Do your good turn. Scouts thrive in field and forest, but what about boys on city streets? Will they join gangs, or Scout troops? In New York City, for example, five out of six Scouting-age boys are not yet Scouts; many want to be, but often there's no nearby troop to join. City or country, there's always a need for adult help. So get involved yourself: Volunteer your own time. Get your business, union, house of worship or other groups to sponsor a troop, or donate equipment, or provide a meeting place. With your help, Scouting can continue to carry out its challenge: "Be prepared."

It's a fact: For more information on how to help, contact your local Scout Council, or write to: Boy Scouts of America, 1325 Walnut Hill Lane, Irving, Texas 75062.

JOHN ELWAY

sometimes I look at myself and say, 'You had the best damned quarterback in the country across the table from you and you blew it.'"

Elway's arrival at Stanford created no end of excitement on campus. The school had just gone to back-to-back bowl games under Coach Bill Walsh, who recently took the San Francisco 49ers to a Super Bowl title. College fans are acutely drawn to stories of great high school athletes, and Elway's arrival set them to intermittent drooling and babbling.

It also encouraged two quarterbacks already on the team, Grayson Rogers and Babe Laufenberg, to transfer to other schools. They saw with notable clarity their new roles. So did senior Turk Schonert, who beat back the challenge and led the nation in passing before moving on to the Cincinnati Bengals.

Even long-established pro quarterbacks are intimidated by Elway's awesome physical skills. One summer, Schonert, along with fellow former Stanford greats Jim Plunkett, Guy Benjamin and Steve Dils, worked out with the team. It's said that after watching Elway's whistling spirals, nobody wanted to be the next guy up. If Elway continues at his present pace, by the end of the season he should break all Stanford and Pac-10 passing records, moving past all those gentlemen, along with two other alumni slingers, Frankie Albert and John Brodie.

If his physical talents in baseball are no less obvious, they took longer to come to the surface. As a freshman, he hit only .269 versus college pitching, but the next year upped that to .361 with nine home runs and 50 runs batted in 49 games. (N.C.A.A. rules, while allowing Elway to play professional baseball without losing his football eligibility, take away his football scholarship and bar him from playing any more college baseball.)

It wasn't until last summer, however, that he confirmed to his own satisfaction what everyone else already believed to be the truth. He left for Oneonta in June to play in the New York-Penn League, a rookie league. He started the season slowly, managing only three hits in his first 27 at-bats, and his arm grew sore. "Sometimes I just try to do things so well, and that's when I don't," John says. "I wanted to get a good start and I started pressing." He would call home twice or three times a week, but according to Jack, "He never sounded down or depressed. I didn't say much to him, because I figured he'd figure it out himself."

He did. Elway conquered his arm woes by warming up before every game and finished the year hitting a very acceptable .318 and committing only one error in 42 games.

Which golden road John Elway chooses will probably have less to do with money than several other factors. The zillions will be there no matter which sport he picks. Baseball players probably have longer playing careers, but there's something about being a quarterback, being the guy in charge, that's appealing.

"I think my family would say it is up to me," he notes, "but if I told them they could make up my mind for me, I think my sisters might prefer football. They enjoy the faster pace. I'm the quarterback, and they see me doing something on every play. In baseball, I'm out in right field, and I only come up to bat three or four times a game. [According to Janet Elway, "The girls think baseball is kind of dull. They say they won't watch him if he plays baseball."] My mother would be happy either way, but I think she might prefer football, too. My dad is the one who really doesn't care."

Says mother Janet, "John's sisters think baseball is kind of dull. They say they won't watch him if he plays baseball."

Which football team drafts him could weigh heavily on his career choice, though. Elway would prefer playing in California, but the worst teams in the N.F.L., and thus the prime contenders for his services, are found in Baltimore, New Orleans, New England. A trade could be arranged, of course, or the new United States Football League, which begins play in March 1983, could be a factor. To try and lure hometown stars, the U.S.F.L. is assigning draft rights to local franchises, so Elway's rights already belong to the Bay Area team.

But those decisions will have to wait. It's autumn, he's 22, and all is right with the world. (Except that San Jose State won its annual duel with Stanford last month, 35 to 31, making it two in a row for Dad.)

Elway rises from his chair to excuse himself. He scoops up his car keys and tugs his railroad cap over his wheat-color hair. His questioner says, "Well, talk to you in June."

"You and everybody else," Elway laughs. He flips his keys into the air and catches them effortlessly. June is still a long time away. FW

FOOD

Classic Veal Piccata—with a Twist

By Marilyn Hansen

Veal Piccata is a gem, but the "twist" is that you can substitute chicken and cut the cost considerably yet still have a delicious entrée.

Italian Menu

Veal Piccata
Green Beans with Butter and Cheese
Mixed Green Salad with Arugula and Endive
Italian Bread—Butter
Italian White Wine: Orvieto, Vernaccia di San Gimignano, or Bianco di Custoza

VEAL PICCATA

1½ lbs. thin slices of veal scallopini
½ cup all-purpose flour
4 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons olive oil
Salt, to taste
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
3 tablespoons lemon juice
½ cup dry white wine
½ cup veal broth, or chicken broth
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
Thin slices of lemon, peeled

1. Spread flour over a large sheet of wax paper and coat each slice of veal with the flour; shake off excess and place on new sheet of wax paper.

2. In a large skillet, heat 2 tablespoons butter and olive oil until hot, but not smoking. Add veal slices to the skillet, just as many as will fit comfortably. Cook over high heat to brown one side, about 2 minutes; turn and brown the other side. When browned, transfer to a hot platter and keep warm. Continue in the same manner until all scallopini are cooked. Sprinkle lightly with salt and freshly ground black pepper.

3. Leave the pan drippings in the skillet and add lemon juice, white wine and broth. Heat to boiling and boil for 2 to 3 minutes, stirring to loosen all browned particles. Add parsley and remaining 2 tablespoons butter, bit by bit.

4. Place scallopini in the skillet and heat, turning each in the sauce for just a minute or two. Arrange scallopini on warm serving platter and pour the sauce over. Garnish with a few peeled, thin slices of lemon. Makes 4 servings

Note: This recipe can be made using chicken scallopini — that is, boned, skinned, flattened chicken breasts — for a reasonable alternative to the veal. Some markets also carry boneless, skinned, sliced turkey breast which also makes a good substitute.

MONEY

College Costs

How to Save Now For the Class of 2002

By Kate Kelly

Rising college costs and tougher eligibility requirements for Federal aid today mean that parents who intend to put their children through college should start their savings plans earlier and attempt to put more money away.

"Other sources of financing — partly from the colleges themselves — are going to become more and more common, but we still counsel that you should count on having to do more for yourself now than in the past," says Kathleen Brouder, associate director of the College Scholarship Service, a division of the College Board. "The earlier a family starts saving, the better off it'll be."

Saving regularly: "Saving regularly is the first step," says New York financial consultant Margaret Rahn Keene. "Treat it like a bill which must be paid monthly, and pay savings first — not last — or the money might not get set aside."

Some families prefer establishing an automatic system for saving money by requesting regular payroll deductions from their company or asking their bank to transfer a specified amount from checking to savings each month.

Doug Jamieson

How much should you save? That depends on the age of the child and the type of institution you hope he or she will attend. For 1982-3, the average annual cost to attend a four-year state institution (including tuition, room, board and other educational expenses) is $4,388 according to the College Board. The average annual cost for a four-year private institution is $7,475. If your child is 3 when you start saving, then assuming just 5¼ percent compound interest, you would need to put away $63 per month until he or she is 18 in order to save the $17,500 necessary for four years at a state college.

Of course, over time inflation will push college costs higher. Meet with your banker or a financial adviser who can take into account your personal situation (the age of your child, your income and the amount needed) to help you come up with a monthly savings plan.

Investing wisely: High-yield savings vehicles such as money market instruments or time deposit accounts, which currently pay in the range of 9 to 11 percent interest, may be attractive investments for you. As you shop and compare, remember that safety and a high rate of interest are your priorities.

With long-term investments, be sure any penalty for early withdrawal is not too stiff. If the economic situation should change while you are building your savings, you may want access to the money in order to reinvest in higher-yield instruments.

Minimizing taxes: "No matter what income-tax bracket you're in, you'll also want to do what you can to minimize taxes," says financial consultant Keene. "A very simple way is to set up a custodial bank account in the child's name. (Your child will need a Social Security number.) Then, instead of being taxed at your rate, the money will be taxed at the child's rate, which is likely to mean there will be little or no tax."

If you have substantial earnings and assets, you may want to consider a short-term trust (known as a Clifford trust) as another way to reduce taxes and put aside money for your child. The trust must run for 10 years and a day, and while the child receives the trust earnings, which are taxed at his rate, the assets revert to you at the trust's expiration. An attorney can help you set one up. FW

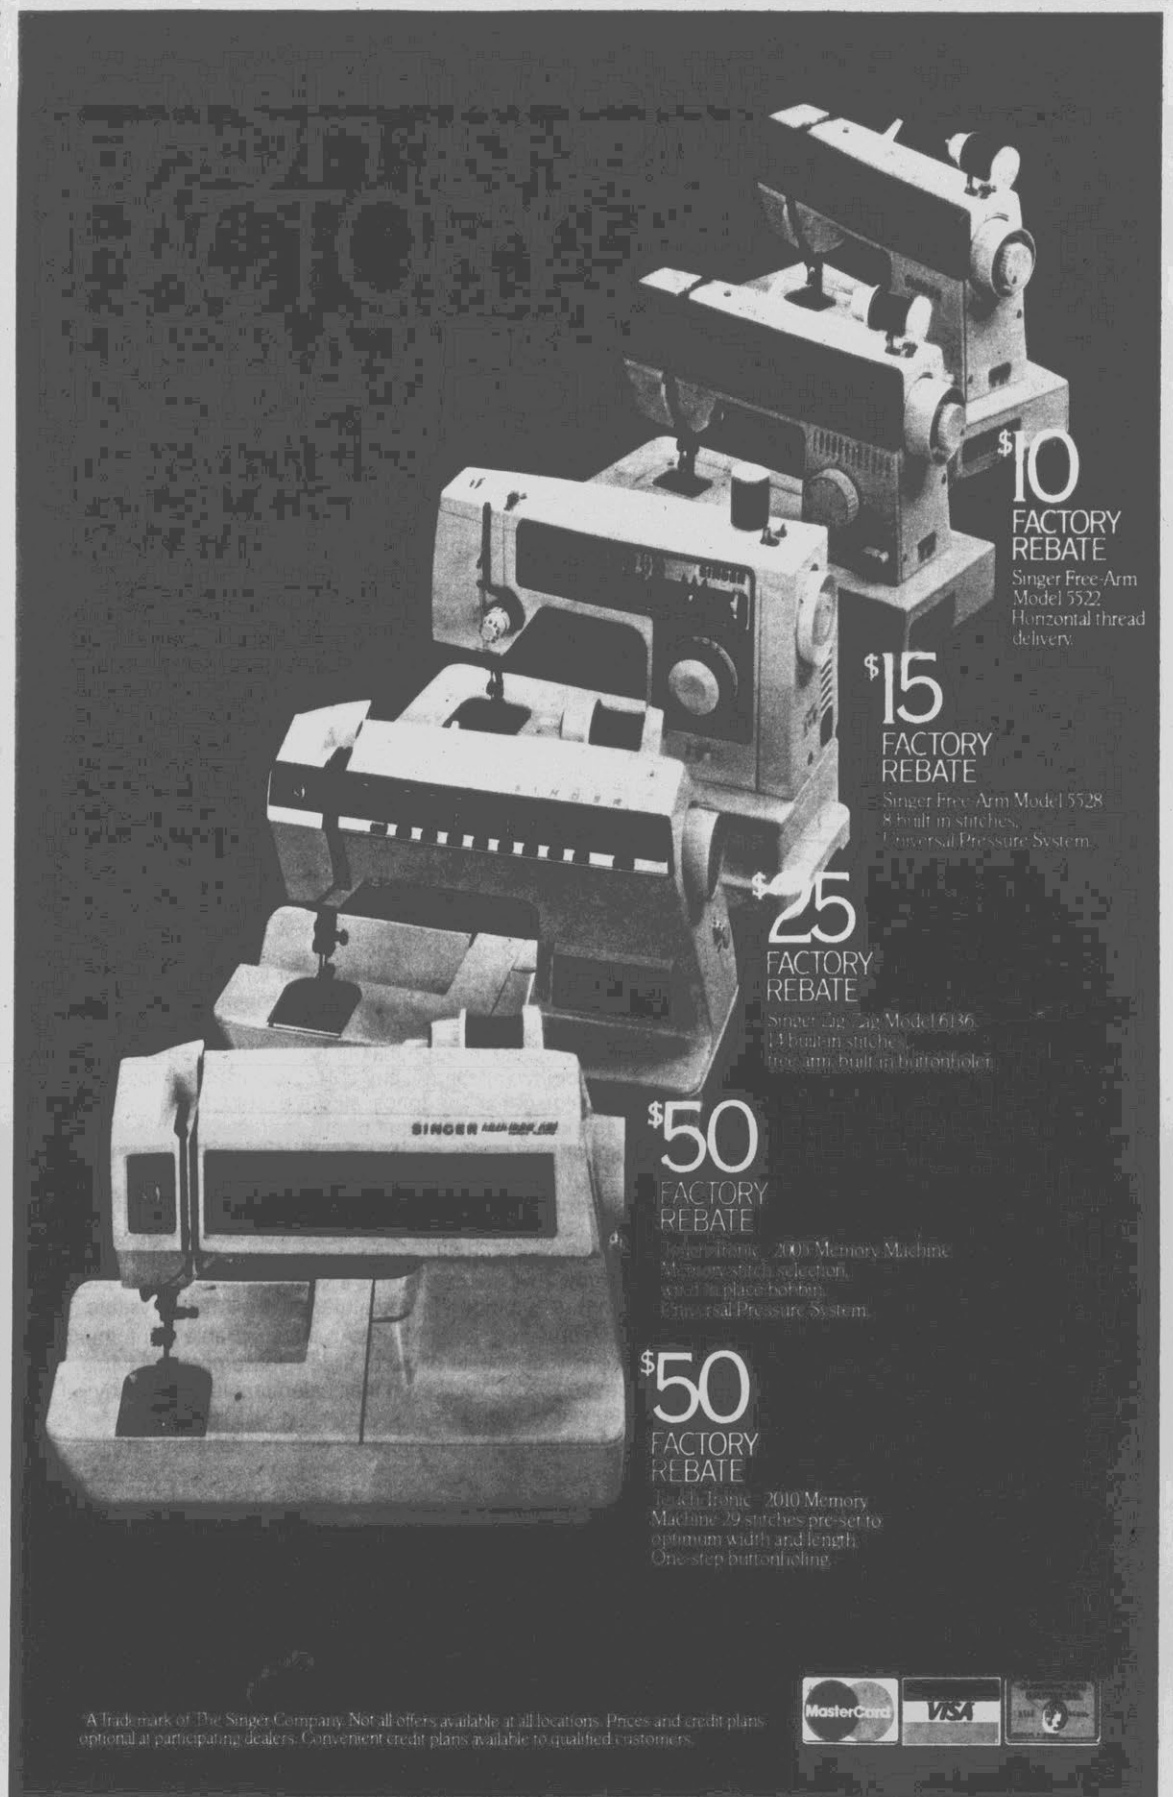
PEOPLE QUIZ

Can We Make Sense Out of E.S.P.?

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. The sharpness of your sixth sense plays a role in how well you succeed.
2. It's easy to tell if you have E.S.P.
3. Intuition is seldom fallible.



A Trademark of The Singer Company. Not all offers available at all locations. Prices and credit plans optional at participating dealers. Convenient credit plans available to qualified customers.

By John E. Gibson

4. It's difficult to tell when your intuitive faculties are working.
5. People who have E.S.P. also tend to be highly vulnerable to falling in love.

ANSWERS

1. True. Studies conducted at Newark College of Engineering conclude that many executive decisions are based on good, old-fashioned hunches. The researchers also note that while middle managers may base most of their decisions on sales orders, shipping schedules and other factual material, top executives can't always do this. They may not have enough information to make a totally logical judgment about whether to invest several million dollars in a brand new venture that may not return an immediate profit. So they act partly on intuition.

2. True. Psychological studies at the University of California, which analyzed more than 80 successful E.S.P. experiments, employed a simple and effective test to determine the extent to which an individual possessed E.S.P. The procedure is to have someone guess the colors of a shuffled deck of cards that the subject cannot see. It is noted that "anyone taking the test has the opportunity to guess, by chance, half of them right; however, if someone consistently guesses the right colors more than 50 percent of the time, then the subject has E.S.P." The more an individual's score exceeds the 50 percent level, the stronger his E.S.P.

3. False. Harvard University studies on the psychodynamics of both logical and intuitive thinking have demonstrated that all of our faculties are fallible and that intuitive thinking can sometimes come up with the wrong answers — just as logical thinking can. It is noted that wishful thinking is often allowed to intrude on both intuitive and logical thought processes — and is a frequent cause for hunches that turn out wrong.

4. False. Psychological studies show that in most cases a person can feel when his sixth sense is working and when it is temporarily dormant or only functioning in part. It is best described as a feeling of optimism and certainty.

5. True. Studies at Western Illinois University on romantic love conclude that intuitive people, those who display the various forms of E.S.P. — accurate hunches, subconscious promptings, etc. — experience intense romantic feelings and are much more vulnerable to falling in love. But, the investigators note, these people "do not necessarily have a greater commitment to their partners" than do less intuitive types. FW

THE SEXES

Why You Really Can Change Another Person

Michael McGill

If only he would change. If only she were different. How many times have we thought those words about someone we love?

The position among psychotherapists has overwhelmingly been that while you can — with effort — change yourself, you cannot (and certainly with any lasting effect) change other people. This position, of course, does little to deter us from trying, using tactics that range from the ineffective to the destructive.

In his recent book, Changing Him, Changing Her (Simon and Schuster), Michael McGill, Ph.D., a professor of organizational behavior at Southern Methodist University, explains why he believes that it is possible to change another person. He discussed his position in an interview with FAMILY WEEKLY.

Q: Why do we so often fail when we try to change a person?

A: Individuals often threaten to force change but they're really not prepared to follow through and then live with the consequences. Empty threats just don't work. Neither does the guilt-anxiety routine.

Q: How can we be more effective?

A: First of all you have to be specific about why and how you want the other person to change. This is hard for most people. It is important to make a conscious decision for change, to think through carefully why you want change and why the other person is likely to resist. Too often we just wish for change and hope the other person somehow guesses what we want. Or we make only a halfhearted attempt. Or, worse, we try to live with something we can't tolerate and get into a martyr-like situation, get mad at ourselves, or go off to get revenge. These patterns must be turned around.

Q: In other words, you think that only a strong stance works if we want to see a change in someone.

A: The only way a relationship can grow is through the process of change, and even confrontation. In some situations you may have to say, "change or else," and mean it.

Q: In the book you make an important distinction between changing attitude and changing behavior.

A: I think that what we want most often from other people is a change in the way they behave toward us. Even when we say that what we want is a change in attitude, behavior change is what we're really after. If we fail to recognize this, it can result in confusing messages. For instance, a woman tells her husband that she wants him to love her more, when what she really wants is for him to demonstrate his love more frequently.

Q: Should we offer rewards or inducements for change?

A: Yes, I think people should be rewarded for change — and told in advance what the reward will be. A lot of times we don't let people know what it is that will be rewarded. Also, most relationships reach a kind of ceiling around rewards. We simply assume that the other person knows we're grateful or we offer our standard thank you's. We need to be more creative when it comes to rewards.

Q: You say in your book that men and women relate differently to the issue of change.

A: Women have a much better idea of what they want to change than men do. I think men just give less thought to it. When I ask a man, "What do you want to change about your wife?", the typical response is, "What do you mean?" or, "I don't know." Then they say, "What have other men told you?" It is as though they simply are not as introspective about their relationships with others as women are. Men also don't talk to other men about what they want to change in women, whereas women do talk to other women about change.

Q: Can trying to change someone ruin the relationship?

A: Change is destructive when people haven't thought through what it means for the relationship and are undecided about what they want to change and why. The "changer" must ultimately respect the right of the other person to say, "I'm not going to do that, I'm not going to change." One thing you have to understand at the outset of the process is what you're prepared to do if the other person says no. FW

PETS

You Can Save Your Pet's Life

By Rosalyn Abrevaya

Each year thousands of household pets are rushed to veterinarians because of health emergencies, many of which turn out to be fatal because they weren't treated in time.

Here are two of the most serious emergency conditions, the symptoms involved and how to effectively cope with each.

Trauma. This is a condition resulting from a serious fall or, more often, from a pet being struck by a car. If the animal is unable to get up, it may be suffering from broken bones, multiple lacerations, bleeding, or neurological injury. "As in all emergency cases," says Dr. Julia A. Johnson, a small-animal practitioner in New Jersey, "you should never fail to call the veterinarian first to alert him that you are bringing in an injured animal. This way he can get everything prepared." Not calling in advance, says Dr. Johnson, hurts the animal's chance of surviving.

Richard Bennett

In dealing with trauma, veterinarians agree on the importance of approaching the animal with caution to minimize injury to yourself and further injury to the animal. First calm your pet by placing a towel, blanket, or jacket loosely over his head and face. In some cases, it might be necessary to use a muzzle, which can be effected by holding the jaws together with a belt — if you can safely handle doing this.

"If there's profuse bleeding," says Dr. Johnson, "apply a pressure bandage of gauze and tape (if a first aid kit is available), or use one of your socks or a handkerchief." If bleeding persists, simply apply hand pressure over the bandaged area until you get to the doctor.

A good way to transport the animal to the veterinarian is in a blanket held taut by two people, points out Dr. Ken L. Ward, president of the Society for Emergency Veterinary Clinicians and manager and director of the Emergency Animal Hospital of Dallas. "Animals are the same as people when injured," he says. "Talk to them calmly and avoid communicating hysteria."

Poisons. Some of the most common toxic substances that pets consume are rat poison, their owner's medications, peeling lead-based paint, fertilizer and, of all things, antifreeze. "Most people are unaware that a few licks of antifreeze can be fatal," says Dr. Johnson. Pets like it because it tastes sweet and may be exposed to it from the garage floor because of a leaking radiator, an uncovered antifreeze jug, or residue in a drip pan.

According to Dr. Johnson, "You can tell when your pet has ingested a poisonous substance because it acts intoxicated and uncoordinated and has difficulty breathing." There is only a short time before it will start to convulse and go into a coma — and that's why it's essential to get the animal to the nearest veterinarian immediately.

Pet owners should also consult a veterinarian if their animal is experiencing vomiting and diarrhea accompanied by cold and clammy skin and sunken eyes; straining during urination (urinary blockage is a common problem for mature male cats); and stomach bloating (which occurs most commonly in large, deep-chested dog breeds, such as German shepherds, collies and Irish setters).

"People tend to want to wait and see if their pet will get better on its own," says Dr. Wayne E. Wingfield, Diplomate American College of Veterinary Surgeons and a director of the emergency clinic at the College of Veterinary Medicine, Colorado State University. "But our success hinges on early diagnosis and prompt, efficient medical treatment."

Dr. Johnson emphasizes that since speed in getting to the veterinarian is so important for serious conditions, "you should establish ahead of time, at a routine visit, exactly what the doctor's procedures are regarding after-hours emergencies." FW

As much as YOU need, as fast as YOU can! No Pills • No Drugs • No Devices

SAY GOODBYE TO FAT, FOREVER!

"It's true! I don't care how fat you are (Some of my patients are hyper-obese). I don't care how many diets you've been on in the past, or how many times you've thrown away your money on the latest weight-loss fad or gimmick. If your only health problem is fat, your problem is over.

"My Wean-Away™ Plan will take that excess weight off fast and keep it off without pills, drugs, devices, or injections. My plan allows your body to lose the most weight it is capable of losing in a short period of time without regular visits to my office.

"You can lose 5 to 8 lbs. in 48 hours, 20 lbs. in a week, or 40 lbs. in a month. But even if your loss is only average, your clothes will start feeling loose this week and your pants or skirt will be falling down within 30 days!"

FAT BURNING FORMULA

"You'll start out on my specially developed Wean-Away Formula, a tasty and nutritious mixture that will help turn your body into a fat-burning furnace from glassful to glassful. You will literally burn up fat, melt away excess weight and reduce bulging body measurements THE VERY FIRST DAY!

"This is the fastest medically sound over-the-counter plan to reduce weight and waistline, EVER. With just the formula alone, you will lose more weight than hours of running, calisthenics, weight-lifting, or swimming. Of course, I recommend exercise with my Wean-Away Formula. This combination is the fastest, most permanent weight loss method known to medical science—the same method that results in losses up to 20 lbs. the first week!"

TAKE OFF EVERY EXTRA POUND—AND KEEP IT OFF!

"Step by step, I'll repattern your eating habits. In just a short time, I'll "wean" you off the formula and you'll be eating 3 full meals, plus a snack!

"Now, the food you eat no longer turns to fat. Thanks to my Wean-Away Plan, you will actually reverse your body's process for building up fat! You will stop excess fat-building calories from entering your system. And, you will keep them from being turned into ugly bulging fat!"

IT WILL WORK FOR YOU—COMPLETELY AT MY RISK!

"That's right. You can lose weight fast. And, my Wean-Away Plan is completely safe. Of course, as with any weight-loss plan, check with your own doctor. But no matter how many pounds overweight you find yourself right now, if you're in good health, my Wean-Away Plan will let you take it off fast and keep it off—or your money back in full (less p&h, of course).

"So, try it. Take your choice of tasty chocolate, delicious vanilla, fruity strawberry or rich banana. Use my formula for five full days. You will be trimmer. You will be slimmer. You will be lighter. And, you will see the difference in your mirror and by the fit of your clothes. Just the same, if you're not happy with my plan for any reason, simply return the unused portion within 30 days for a prompt refund, no questions asked!"

DON'T DELAY!

"Send me your order now. I guarantee that if you follow my plan compared with any other over-the-counter plan, you will lose the most weight that you're capable of losing in a short period of time. And, you will continue to lose as much weight as you want to. Best of all, you will keep that weight off!

"But don't just take my word for it. Try it. Order now, at my risk. Mail in the coupon today!"

Dr. Morton W. Levine, Plastic Surgeon & Obesity Specialist

"My individual plans have been successful with over 10,000 patients, some of whom are pictured here. Now, I've created an over-the-counter plan that will work for you. In 4 easy steps, my Wean-Away™ Plan will help you take it off and keep it off or your money back."

"Take a look at some of my patients. Though you may not lose as much or as fast, remember . . . compared with any other over-the-counter plan, your body will lose the most weight it is capable of losing in a short period of time!"

Knocked Down and Rejected? Make It Work for You

Pictorial Parade, Inc.

By Mary Long

Each of us has met with rejection in our lives, including anyone who has become a success. When Fred Astaire first offered himself to Hollywood, he was rejected as being just a "balding, skinny actor who can dance a little." Needless to say, Fred kept on dancing.

Likewise, when the pianist and walking extravaganza, Liberace, first started making it big in the 1950's, music critics rejected his performances resoundingly — "sentimental vomit"; "nausea."

But Liberace rejected the rejection and played on to fame and fortune. His famous response to the stream of ridicule? "I cried all the way to the bank."

Most of us would agree that being rejected makes us feel worthless. The very word — rejection — can be wounding, implying humiliation, loneliness, defeat. Rejection hurts us the most when it interferes with the secret dreams we have for ourselves. Each of us has his or her own "ego ideal," explains Dr. M. Barrie Richmond of the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis. This is a kind of hidden vision in which we see ourselves as we would most like to be. This ideal may involve achievement in a certain field, mastery of a certain talent, or wild success in our romantic relationships. Rejection in such a situation creates a feeling of hopelessness or helplessness in us because we interpret it as proof that we don't stand a chance of reaching our ideal.

But according to John White, author of the recently published book Rejection (Addison-Wesley), rejection often defeats us only because we respond to the experience as if it were the same thing as failure. White points out that although we tend to think of

THE FASTEST, EASIEST

$100,000

You'll Ever Make in Your Life, Yours Now

- WITHOUT A PENNY OF INVESTMENT
- WITHOUT LEAVING YOUR HOME
- WITHIN 90 DAYS
- "WORKING" ABOUT ONE HOUR A DAY (OR EVENING)

There are all kinds of ways to make money. Good golly, Molly — if anyone knows that, I do! For the past 20+ years I've concentrated on finding, investigating, creating and specifically singling out only the very finest legal and ethical methods for carving out a mass of wealth in a hurry. But believe me, in all those years never have I experienced anything remotely as exciting as this one!

Recently, I came across a fairly new way to make big bux, but after a thorough study I discarded it because it required too much investment of time, money and personal effort. But my study did serve as inspiration to develop yet another fantastic and unusual wallet-fattener — something that until now has never been done — yet fully complies with the tough set of standards I'm noted for demanding of any potential wealth-producing concept:

- Must be able to be started with minimum investment
- Must be possible to start at home and not interfere with family life.
- Must be able to be started and run initially by one man or woman
- Must require only a few hours of spare time per week
- Must have realistic annual profit potential of $40,000 or more

- Start at once — within 30 seconds of studying my report
- Invest not a single cent
- Accomplish everything without leaving your home — heck, you can do it from your favorite easy chair whilst eating pizza or petting the dog (or vicey versey!)
- Have a potential net profit (not gross ... net!) of $100,000.00 by the end of 90 days — tops. And that's cash, not theoretical or paper profits.

For the past two decades Du Vall has captured the imagination of men and women the world over by providing solid, unique direction for their quest for financial freedom. His firm is headquartered in Michigan with international marketing offices in Hong Kong (known as DAX International. John W. Lane, President). In addition to producing some three dozen publications on money-making/self-improvement themes, DuVall is also the creator of the popular Derek Dax adventure/mystery/romance series and the author of the political intrigue novel, "The Big Dream" (published by Lyle Stuart, Inc., New York).

His writings have been used in numerous style and content workshops and accredited courses at such institutions as California State University, UCLA, Fordham, University of Illinois and Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Naturally, you're wondering what all this is — but I'm not going to tell you here. No, it's going to cost you ten smackers to find out. But I will tell you what it isn't so you'll not be off on some wild goose chase:

- ★ No sex or off-color stuff
- ★ No chain letter, pyramid or multi-level scam
- ★ No mail order, envelope stuffing or drop-shipping
- ★ No writing or self-publishing how-to stuff
- ★ No loan brokerage scheme
- ★ No stocks, commodities, real estate, etc.
- ★ No gambling, betting or wagering
- ★ No arts, crafts or special skills
- ★ No party-plan, door-to-door or phone selling
- ★ No catalogs, mailing lists, postage, etc.
- ★ No equipment to buy or rent
- ★ No bothering friends, relatives, etc.
- ★ Not anything you have ever seen advertised anywhere.

WHO CAN DO IT

WHAT IS REQUIRED

Other than my step-by-step detailed report ... nothing. I have thought long and hard about it; A person virtually without a shirt on their back or a pot to plant petunias in could do it. You will of course, have to put my plan into motion — but that's both fun and easy and totally accomplished from the comfort of your own home. (By the way, no one will be coming to your home, either.)

Finally, let me make this clear: Once you have my report, that is all you need to get going! I have nothing else to sell you for this deal. Your purchase of this extraordinary report is NOT a "foot in the door" to get you to buy some extra or expensive "course" or whatever ... this is all you need from me!

WHAT TO DO NOW

You've got several choices:

1. Write or phone me and try to pry out the details for free. It won't work, but what the heck — here's my number: (517) 655-3333.
2. Put this ad aside, wait 90 days or so and lose your chance at $100,000.
3. Do the only sensible thing. Send me the ten bux and get started on wearing in that path to the bank.

Nifty Bonus!

A few months back in our DAX MONEY-MAKER® CONFIDENTIAL NEWSLETTER, we reported on another business that can easily net $1,000 a week for life. It's a bit more involved and does require getting out and about, but our readers were so delighted with it that I'm including it as an extra free bonus when you order our new special DAX report, "$100,000 in 90 Days."

P.S. One more thing (say, this Du Vall is a windy so and so, isn't he!). There are lots of people right now in bad financial straits. I hope you're not one of them, but if you are, having read this ad you now have absolutely no excuse for being broke, because as the saying goes, "This is it!" This could truly be the once-and-for-all solution to any money miseries you have. I guess you'll have to take my word for it until you receive these fabulous reports — but if it eases your mind any, over 100,000 men and women worldwide have been, over the years repeat buyers of my books, manual, reports, cassette tape programs and newsletters. There must be a reason ...

REJECTION

rejection in terms of humiliation and defeat, it can actually be used as a positive force: a challenge, an illumination, a chance for a new beginning.

Rejection has many motives and sources, ranging from kindness to cruelty, and the first step in coming to grips with it is to recognize just what kind of animal has bitten you. Though rejection is painful, it is often rooted, says White, in simple good judgment: "That which is offered is not good enough." Such a rational rejection can be enormously beneficial — if you meet rationality with rationality by carefully considering how you might "improve your product."

But human beings are often not so reasonable, and in certain cases someone will reject another person because he fears that the individual outshines him, or because the new person reminds him of someone who made his life miserable years ago. People also reject each other at times simply because they are terrified of being rejected themselves. Psychologist Roger Callahan, co-author of It Can Happen to You (A&W), calls this a beat-your-partner-to-the-punch rejection and says it is especially common in intense romantic relationships.

A woman, for example, gets involved with a new man and, after a number of weeks, things start to look good for the two of them. She has finally learned to relax with him; they're happy. Then, seemingly out of the blue, she tells her friends that she's planning to break up with him.

What's happening here, says Dr. Callahan, is that the couple is becoming intimate and the woman's own vulnerability is scaring her to death. Her unconscious thought might be: "I'd rather be the one to end it now than take the chance that he'll end it in a month or so."

This type of fear often develops because of rejection by a parent in childhood. "Some people deal with their fear by being ready to reject others at a moment's notice," explains Dr. Callahan. "The slightest hint of disapproval or the least danger of feeling that old pain will cause them to take an aggressive stance out of sheer terror."

Pictorial Parade, Inc.

Recognizing that the person who has rejected you may have done so out of jealousy or his own fear of rejection should relieve the sting; the rejection says more about him than it does about you. Unfair as it may seem, you may be rejected for a reason that has nothing to do with you.

What rejection actually means for you, however, depends not so much on how or why it comes, but on what it does to you and what you do about it.

Some people simply cannot accept rejection or benefit from it. They respond with anger and hostility toward others, as did the daredevil motorcyclist Evel Knievel, who starred in a 1977 movie called Viva Knievel! Critics voted the picture one of the worst films ever made. Evel responded less-than-constructively by bashing one of the critics with a baseball bat — an action which was then "rejected" by a judge, who sent Evel off to jail.

Many people who are rejected respond in much the same way, if in a somewhat lower key, by trying to discredit the person who rejected them, or to invalidate the rejection.

This kind of approach, cautions Dr. Florence Seaman, director of Advance, the Center for Preventative Psychology in Philadelphia, is a cover-up for feelings of worthlessness and will prevent you from drawing honest and helpful conclusions from your experience.

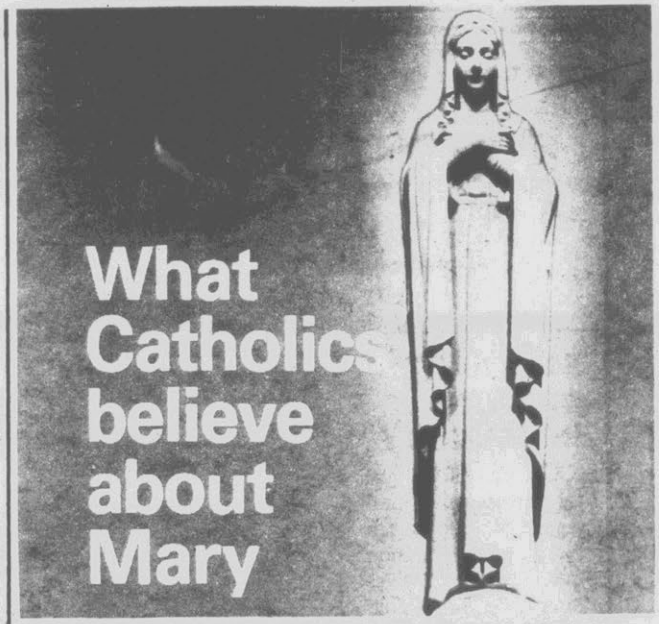
To avoid that doomsday feeling, you've got to look at rejection in a rational way. Begin by making sure you know what was rejected, Dr. Seaman suggests. Most likely it wasn't the very essence of your being but only your idea, behavior, plan, or project that was refused. If that is the case, you must simply acknowledge that other people have the right to disagree with you and that they are bound to do so as often as not.

Then, try to treat the rejection as part of a learning process, which allows you to look more deeply into certain aspects of your own behavior — and then make changes.

"Rejection teaches us far more than acceptance ever can," says Dr. Callahan. "With rejection we have an opportunity to analyze and find out what's wrong. We can ask what kind of chronic, built-in problems we may have that may pop up again and again in our relationships or our work situation unless we confront them. Rejection makes us aware, forces us to take corrective steps. Ironically, if you're never rejected, you could be doomed to failure. It's on the way that we learn how things work."

Rejection can be wounding, though, even shattering, and it's not always possible to toss it aside with a simple, "I'll do better next time." But most rejections are not life-and-death matters.

And however rejection may come, one would do well, suggests White, to refer to Thackeray's story The Rose and the Ring: "While the other guests at the christening of Princess Rosalba are wishing her happiness, beauty, success and so on, good Fairy Blackstick, the wisest of them all, says, 'The best thing I can wish her is a little misfortune.'" FW



No, Catholics do not believe that Mary is equal to God. They do not worship her. They do not adore her images. They do not consider her in any way as the rival of Christ, "the one Mediator between God and men."

What then do Catholics believe about Mary? They believe that all she is, she owes to the goodness of God. He chose her for a unique place in His plans for the redemption of the human race. And for her allotted vocation He endowed her with special graces.

On her part, Mary, as a responsible human being, responded so perfectly, in fact, to God's advances that she is a model of faith and obedience. In a word, Catholics believe that God's power on the one hand and Mary's cooperation on the other made her the kind of person whom all later generations would called "blessed."

For more on Catholic belief about Mary, we invite you to send for our free pamphlet, "The Mother of Jesus." No one will call on you.

WHAT IN THE WORLD

By Eliot Kaplan

SIMILARITY BREEDS INFERTILITY

Ben Colman

The Spolums beam at son Michael.

Compatability is vital for a successful marriage, but couples with too much in common may find themselves unable to have children.

New research at the University of Michigan Women's Hospital shows that if couples' genetic makeup and tissues are too similar, it can cause the woman's body to reject the fertilized egg, resulting in spontaneous abortion.

However, vaccinating the wife with white blood cells from her husband seems to cause her immune system to protect the fetus. This technique has enabled several women in the U.S. and England to bear healthy children, including Judy Spolum of Ann Arbor, Mich., who gave birth to a son in 1980 after seven miscarriages.

Dr. Alan Beer, who heads the Michigan research team, says the odds of choosing a mate with such similar genetic makeup are less than one in 1,000. He notes that, ironically, such couples are ideal candidates for donating an organ to one another with minimal chance of rejection.

HONEY OF A TALE

Yes, they're still coming. Those killer bees everybody's been buzzing about for years. But as they speed on their way, romance seems to be taking a little of the sting out of them.

It all began in 1956 when an experimental group of African bees escaped from Brazil. The African bees are smaller than the conventional honey bee but are much more aggressive. They attack in swarms, will pursue three times further and take 10 times longer to calm down. In the years since the Great Escape, there have been reports (apocryphal mostly) of the bees wiping out domestic animals and attacking airport control towers.

But as they move inexorably northward (they've now reached the Isthmus of Panama), they have been mating with more docile European honey bees, and the strain is gradually losing some of its ferociousness, according to Texas A&M entomologist Jim Smith.

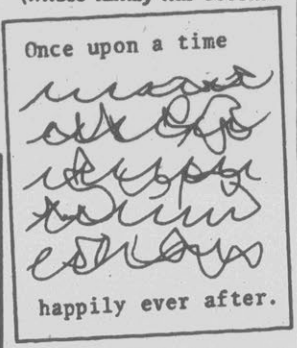
The now less-than-killer bees should reach the U.S. around 1990, but it's too cold here for them to get much north of Texas. They might even be a boon to the economy since they're excellent honey producers — the reason they were brought to Brazil in the first place.

THE WRITE STUFF

Most writers say once they figure out how to begin and end a story, the rest is a breeze (relatively). So if that's what's been holding you back from writing the Great American Novel, you now have no excuse.

Tom Silberkleit and Jerry Biederman convinced 20 best-selling authors, including Isaac Asimov, Stephen King, Belva Plain, Ken Follett, Erskine Caldwell, John Jakes and Alvin Toffler, to provide, in their own distinctive styles, a brief opening and closing for a potential story. They've put them all together in a new book, The Do-It-Yourself Bestseller, and are inviting us to fill in the middle.

The duo, boyhood friends and young would-be writers, got help from Biederman's uncle Irving Wallace (whose family has become masters at churning out these paint-by-number books) and admit they hope this concept is their own ticket to the big time.



The book's publisher, Doubleday & Company, is now running a national contest inviting high school students to fill in one of three select stories. The competition is open to any student enrolled in an English course at a school that buys 10 copies of the book. The winner gets a trip to New York, but, sorry, no book contract.

SKIPPING OUT

Teachers, parents: Beware the ides of March — and October. At least as far as kids cutting classes. William O'Connor, a retired attendance dean, recently sent us the results of a five-year study he did on 1,500 students at his upstate New York high school. He found that these two months were peak times for skipping class. Kids cut twice as often in October as other months, says O'Connor, maybe because their initial enthusiasm for a new term has worn off. Overall, about half the students cut class 10 or more times each year to duck out to the malt shop, or wherever kids go today.

THE (GREEN) PAPER CHASE

Ogilvy & Mather

All we can say about this honor is, "he eaaarned it!" Chosen over some 70 entertainment and sports figures who have appeared in ads in the past year, the venerable John Houseman was recently named celebrity endorser of the year by Advertising Age magazine.

Previous winners include Karl Malden, Bill Cosby and, last year, Brooke Shields. The 80-year-old Houseman, who didn't become famous until his 1970's portrayal of crusty law professor Charles Kingsfield in the film and TV versions of The Paper Chase, won out in 1982 for his memorable work in ads for Smith Barney, Chrysler and Puritan cooking oil.

Some advertising executives think Houseman has already become overexposed, and he admits, "There's a limit to how many [ads] you can do and keep your credibility." And at an estimated $200,000 to $250,000 a year per account, he's not taking any chances and says no more plugs for a while.

Our Story: GALAN HAS RETURNED WITH THE SACRED RING AND YUAN CHEN'S NECK IS SPARED. DEPRIVED OF THE SPECTACLE, THE CROWD TURNS UGLY, BUT EMPEROR HARSHA ORDERS A FEAST BROUGHT OUT. WHEN JAGAT AND HIS PLAYERS ARRIVE, THE SCAFFOLD BECOMES A STAGE. AMID THE NOISE AND CHAOS, ONLY MAYANA FINDS TIME FOR GRATITUDE.

AT HER TOUCH GALAN'S BACK ARCHES IN RECOGNITION! IT WAS THE PRINCESS WHO HAD HEALED HIS BLEEDING FLESH. HE BLUSHES WARMLY.

"WOMEN," HE SIGHS TO HIMSELF, NOT KNOWING WHAT HE MEANS. THE REUNION WITH YUAN CHEN IS SWEET, AS TEACHER AND STUDENT REDISCOVER EACH OTHER'S COMPANY. "YOU HAVE MISSED MANY LESSONS," THE SCHOLAR REBUKES HIM MERRILY. "NOW WE MUST CATCH UP."

NOT LONG AFTER, THE AGING HARSHA GIVES UP HIS THRONE. AMID GREAT POMP MAYANA ACCEPTS THE SACRED RING FROM HER FATHER AND IS CROWNED EMPRESS. THE EVIL TIMUR DOES NOT ATTEND. IT SEEMS HE HAD PROPOSED TO TEACH A CERTAIN DOG A LESSON...

...WHILE THE MASTIFF WAS OF A DIFFERENT OPINION. TO THE RELIEF OF HIS SUBJECTS, HIS KINGDOM PASSES TO MAYANA.

GALAN IS HAPPY IN UJJAIN, WHERE HE IS NO ONE'S YOUNGER BROTHER. WITH THE SPICE CARAVANS HE SENDS NEWS TO HIS FAMILY, BUT OF THEM HE HEARS ONLY SCRAPS, AND OF ARN'S LETTER NOUGHT. "FATHER," ARN BEGAN. "THIS REACHES YOU THANKS TO A CAPPADOCIAN MONK, A PERSIAN SILK MERCHANT, A DAMASCAN SLAYER, AND THE GOLD THAT CROSSED THEIR PALMS."
