Howell Content With ECU Budget Vote

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Dr. John Howell said today he believes East Carolina University was treated fairly Friday when the University of North Carolina Board of Governors voted to request $1.7 billion from the General Assembly to operate the 16-campus university system from July 1, 1983, to June 30, 1985.

"I feel that we were treated fairly and the priorities that the Board of Governors set are very advantageous to us," Howell said. "They are still listing the development of the school of medicine as a priority in the coming biennium. We agree with that and some of the other priorities they set.

"I'm saying this in the context that the (UNC) system priorities might not necessarily suit a constituent institution in a given biennium," Howell noted. "In this particular case I'm very content with their priorities."

The first priority set by the board was to restore the 192 positions sliced from the system's budget in July. This, Howell said, would mean that, if the General Assembly funds the request, 14 staff positions abolished at ECU would be restored.

The second priority, Howell said, would provide the UNC system with funds to increase enrollment by 1.5 percent. He said the "enrollment change for ECU will be about 1 per cent. That is what it was this year and what we expect and what we expect for some time to come. In our situation, it is a very modest percentage ... a modest growth."

The ECU medical school was the Board of Governors' third priority, according to Howell, who said the board "allowed us to propose $6.9 million for the first year (1983-84) and $7.49 million for the second year (1984-85).

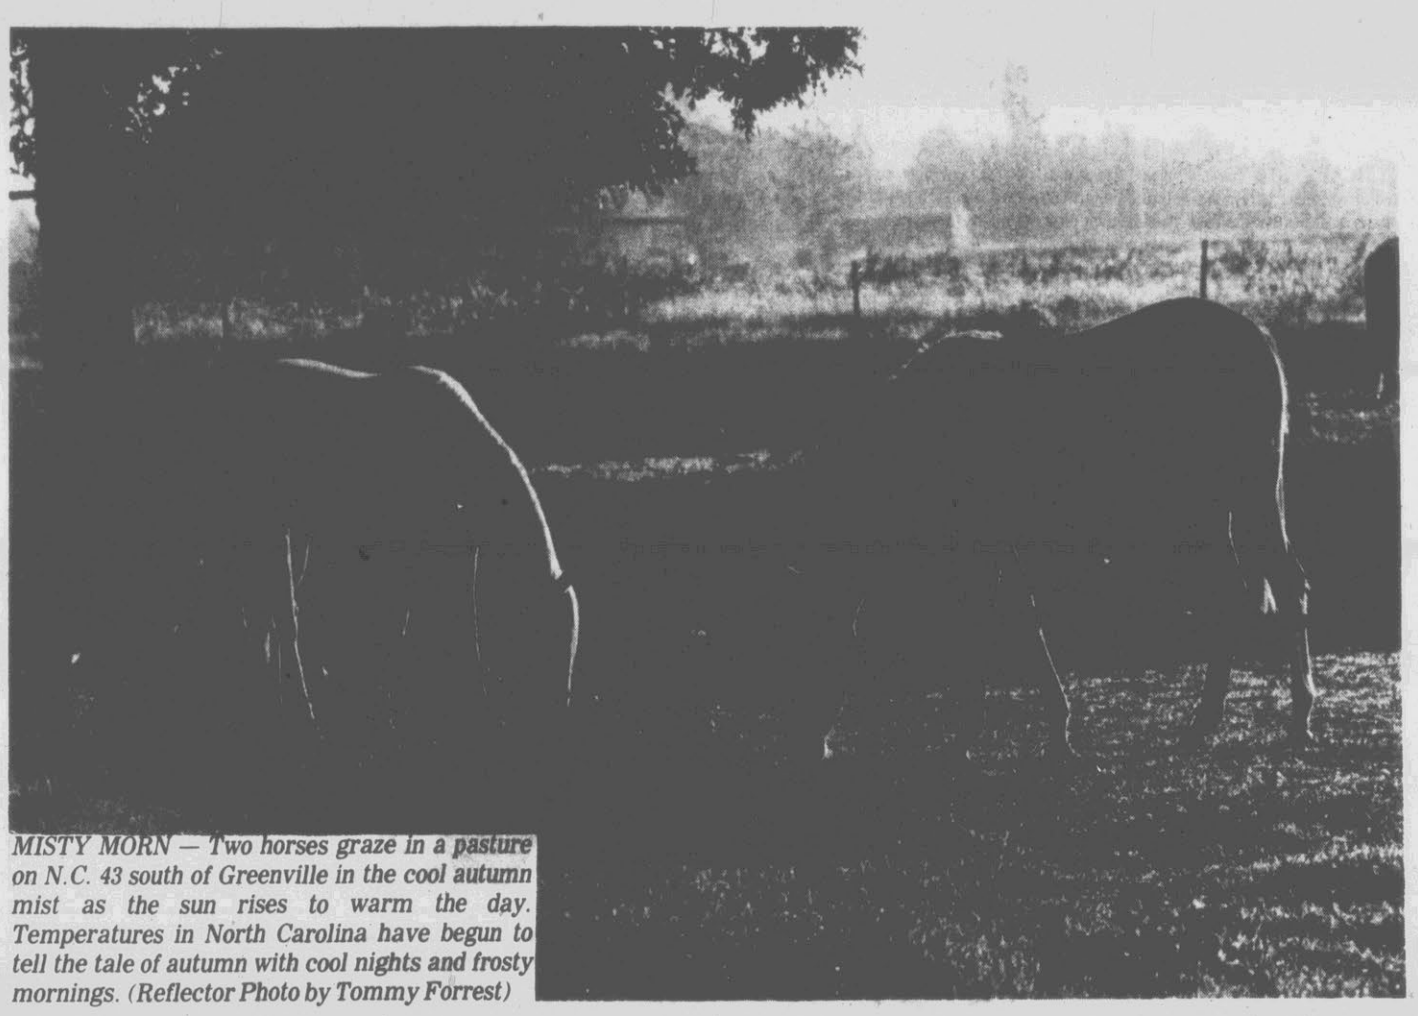

The $14.39 million for the biennium, Howell said, represents new money, and would be used for such things as "positions, equipment, travel and printing ... regular operations.

"This represents the 'change budget,'" he pointed out, money over and above the present $23.5 million operating budget of the medical school, and the $52.75 million operating budget for the rest of the university's program (not including such things as the dormitories and cafeterias that are sulf-sustaining), that will continue.

Although Howell said "we feel they treated us all right on that item," he said "one thing that concerns us is that we are coming to the end, maybe, of the development period in the school of medicine. The thing that concerns us is not that this is being done too soon in terms of years, but that in the past few years the budgets have been cut after they have been proposed."

Some $11 million for the state School of Veterinary Medicine, and $8.2 million to begin a major new thrust in research and teaching programs in the sciences and engineering at N.C. State University, N.C. A&T State University, UNC-Chapel Hill and at UNC-Charlotte were the board's fourth and fifth priorities, while basic program support was the sixth priority in the operations category,

City Schools See Sharply Reduced Assistance Funds

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Federal assistance funds allocated to Greenville schools under Chapter II of the Education Consolidated Improvement Act have been slashed drastically for the current school year.

The 1982-83 allocation is $43,921, less than half of the $96,000 allocated last year for programs now lumped together under the title of Chapter II. Chapter II consolidates 42 former individual assistance accounts.

Fraeger Sanders, coordinator of the federal fund programs, noted that in the Chapter I category, which covers the former Title I and handicapped funds, the Greenville schools received $496,000 this school year, about the same amount as was allocated for the past school year.

In his report to the school board Monday night, Sanders provided a breakdown of proposed usage of the $43,921 that has been recommended by a local committee making decisions on allocations of the Chapter II funds.

A total of $15,000 has been designated for four special projects — $5,000 each to materials for a science improvement program in grades K-12; a math improvement program for grades K-12; $3,000 to the transition block aide program at Eastern School, and $2,000 to revision of the STAR program, grades 4-6.

Chapter II funds, under federal law, are to be made available to private schools located in the individual school district on a student pro-rata basis. This results in $1,180 going to Saint Peter's and $1,153 going to Saint Gabriel's, based on the per student allocation of $8.42.

After allocations to the private schools and the four special projects, the remaining amount of $25,000 has been allocated to each of the city schools, on the pro-rata basis of $5.14 per student. This results in individual school allocations ranging from $529 for Agnes Fullilove to $5,803 for Rose High School.

The board approved three school trips for students. One is a trip to Jamestown, Va., for members of the fifth grade enrichment classes in the city schools. The one-day trip is scheduled for Nov. 9 with an estimated cost of $18.75 per student.

The other two trips approved are the traditional overseas spring trips for students studying Spanish and French. Approximately 40 students are planning to take the March 30-April 8 trip to London, Paris and Madrid. Cost per student will be about $1,375. The other overseas trip is scheduled April 2-10 with about 16 students planning to make the trip.

RonTaylorGiven 5-Year Sentence

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former state Rep. Ron Taylor was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000 today for his role in a bribery scheme uncovered by FBI agents probing corruption in southeastern North Carolina.

U.S. District Court Judge Franklin Dupree imposed the maximum sentence on Taylor, 30, of Bladen County, who also faces up to 40 years for pleading guilty in a separate case to unlawful burning of warehouses owned by state Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington.

Sententing in that case is set for Oct. 25 in Bertie County Superior Court.

The Democrat gave up the state House seat he held for six years and withdrew as a candidate for re-election in the 12th House District when he pleaded guilty to the burning charges.

Taylor, who heads a family farm machine business in Elizabethtown, had been involved in legal battles with Harrington, who also owns a machinery company, over patents for tobacco harvesters.

Taylor acknowledged that he traveled to Myrtle Beach, S.C., to accept $1,500 from undercover agents. Three $100 bills involved in the exchange were later recovered from Graham Franklin Bridgers, the man Taylor said he hired to burn the warehouse.

Income And SpendingUp

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose only a modest 0.3 percent in September, but consumers increased their spending by a full 1 percent, the Commerce Department reported today.

Overall wages and salaries declined about $400 million below August's level, led by a $3.2 billion drop in manufacturing payrolls.

Rising unemployment was one big reason, the report said, adding that "the payroll declines were mostly in the durable goods industries," including producers of motor vehicles, machinery and metals.

On the plus side, government transfer payments, which include unemployment benefits, increased $2.8 billion and interest and dividend income rose $2.7 billion.

Reagan administration officials have been saying for months that the biggest push for economic recovery will have to be provided by increased spending by consumers. And they have noted that personal income has been rising fairly steadily, theoretically making such increased spending possible.

However, retail sales have risen only erratically, gaining 1 percent in September after falling by the same amount in August.

Sticking to his economic guns, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Monday, "The consumer, sooner or later, is going to break out,"

In all, today's report said, total personal income rose to an annual rate of $2.6 trillion in September while personal consumption spending rose to a rate of $2.01 trillion. Disposable, or after-tax, income, rose 0.3 percent to a rate of $2.21 trillion.

Photo Could Be A Clue In Poisoning

CHICAGO (AP) — Investigators in the Tylenol poisoning case say they may have an "extremely significant" clue in a surveillance photo that may show a prime suspect watching one of the victims buying the tainted drug.

The photograph, made public Monday, was taken by a surveillance camera in a Chicago drug store where one of the victims, 35-year-old Paula Prince, bought a bottle of Extra-Strength Tylenol containing cyanide-tainted capsules.

In the photo, Miss Prince is standing near a checkout counter in the store. In the background, looking toward her, is a bearded man resembling Theodore Elmer Wilson, who along with his wife, Leann, was described Monday as a "prime suspect" in the case. Miss Prince later died.

Sources close to the investigation, who declined to be identified, said such a photo could be the case's first real homicide clue — an indication the culprit was interested in its outcome and its victims.

The couple is the target of a nationwide search. Authorities say Wilson has used more than a dozen other names, including James W. Lewis and Robert Richardson. He was known as Richardson in Chicago.

He faces federal charges in a $1 million extortion plot connected to the killings. His wife has been charged with using a fraudulent Social Security number in applying for a job.

Wilson was indicted in a 1978 murder in Kansas City, but the charges were dropped, officials say.

Chicago police Superintendent Richard J. Brzeczek said today that investigators have positively identified the woman as Miss Prince, but that the identification of the man as Wilson is "very tentative."

Investigators have other photographs that provide a clearer image of the man in the published photo.

APPEAL FOR HOUSES

Parkwood Missionary Baptist Church, Rocky Mount, has asked Hotline to appeal for contributions for the family of 7-year-old Bryan House, who is undergoing open heart surgery at Duke University Medical Center today.

Today's surgery on Bryan is is the latest of several heart operations he has had since he was 19 days old. The family has incurred huge medical bills due to Bryan's life-long heart condition and to surgery that his father, Melvin House, recently had to have for a tumor in the eye area. Melvin is employed by Carolina Enterprises in Tarboro. His wife has recently had to give up her job in the schools because of the need for care for Bryan and the church is helping them search for a house, since they recently had to vacate the one in which they were living. The couple has another child, Sherry, 10.

Contributions may be sent to Parkwood Baptist Church, Hunter Hill Road, Rocky Mount, N.C. 27801. Inquiries may be made to Parkwood member Debbie Dew, who works in Greenville, 355-2014.

Martin County Shoe Plant Is Scheduled To Close

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The Blue Ridge Shoe Manufacturing Co. near Robersonville, a firm employing 380 workers, is closing. Announcement of the decision to close was made Monday.

The shoe firm, one of Martin County's largest employer of industrial workers, was established in August of 1970, and produced two types of footwear — waterproofed boots and garage oxfords, both injection-molded products.

Roger McGrady, vice president and general manager of the seven-plant company, said in a telephone interview from Boone this morning that "we deeply regret having to close the Robersonville plant, but we've reached the point because of foreign competition that we are no longer able to compete with the lower prices of imported products.

"At this time, six of every 10 pair of footwear purchased by Americans is manufactured overseas, primarily in Taiwan, Korea, and in South American countries. Now that the dollar is stronger, it's real tough on us trying to compete with foreign competition."

McGrady, whose home office is in Wilkesboro, mentioned that since the orderly market agreement with Taiwan and Korea expired in June of 1981, "imports from these two countries increased 40 percent in the one-year period between June of '81 and June of '82.

Social Services Taking Fuel Aid Applications

The Pitt County Department of Social Services began accepting applications today for this year's Low Income Energy Assistance Program.

The program provides one-time payment to help eligible households pay their heating bills. "The purpose of the program is, not to pay all of a household's heating bills, but to provide some relief from the high costs of energy," Bonnie Cramer, assistant director for program administration of the Department of Human Resources, said.

Last year about 145,000 households received assistance with payments averaging $148. The amount of payment a household receives depends on the number of persons in the household, their income, the region of the state in which they live and the type of heating fuel they use.

North Carolina's share of the $1.8 billion in federal funds authorized by Congress for this year's program is $29.4 million. Crame said that, since Congress has not yet appropriated any funds for the program, she hopes this amount is not reduced when funds are appropriated. County social services departments across the state will determine eligibility.

The only households eligible for financial assistance are those which have heating bills. Applicants also may be eligible if their heating billls are included as part of their rent payments. Households that live in public housing or receive a utility allowance from the HUD Section 8 Progam will be eligible for a partial payment if their utility allowances do not cover all their heating costs, Cramer said.

She estimated that 250,000 North Carolina households will be eligible for this assistance this year. Pitt County Social Services Director Ed Garrison predicted that 3,000 Pitt County households will be eligible and will participate.

STATE'S FIRST LADIES...pictures have been placed in the hallway of the first floor of the Executive Mansion in Raleigh. (Photo by Walton Haywood, N.C. Department of Cultural Resources)

First Ladies' Pictures In Executive Mansion

RALEIGH — The portraits of former governors lining the walls of the Executive Mansion here now have have companions for the first time — framed portraits of the 24 women who have served as First Ladies of North Carolina since the mansion was occupied in 1891.

Assembling, framing and hanging the protraits were special projects of current First Lady Carolyn Hunt, wife of Governor James B. Hunt Jr. Costs were paid entirely from private funds administered by the Executive Mansion Fine Arts Committee, a support group established by an act of the General Assembly in the 1960s to assist in furnishing and maintaining the Executive Mansion.

The committe, chaired by Mary Semans of Durham, also sponsored the publication last year of "The First Ladies of North Carolina," a collection of biographies of first ladies who have lived in the Executive Mansion written by former first lady Jeanelle C. Moore and journalist Grace Hamrick.

"The women who have lived in this house have contributed a great deal to the state of North Carolina," said Mrs. Hunt. "It's true they have been hostesses and helpmates for their husband, but many first ladies are leaders in their own right. I thought it would be appropriate to have some visual mention of them."

The 24 photographs are mounted in four separate framed sets. They hang in the side hall between the dining room and the ladies' parlor on the first floor of the Executive Mansion.

Gathering the photographs took time, care and persistence according to Marla Cramer, Mrs. Hunt's assistant. "Mrs. Hunt worked for about a year and a half contacting families, checking files and researching."

All but one of the first ladies represented are governor's wives. The exception is Helen Fowle, daughter of Gov. Daniel Fowle, first governor to live in the mansion. A widower, Fowle depended upon his daughter to act as hostess, and she agreed, despite the fact that the mansion, unfinished at the time of their move there in 1891.

CHRISTY'S COOKIES

A friend of mine favors this version of raisin oat cookies.

¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup raisins
½ of a ¼-pound stick butter (¼ cup)
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 large egg
2 tablespoons milk

In a medium bowl stir together flour, baking soda and salt; stir in oats and raisins. In a large bowl, cream butter, sugar and cinnamon; beat in egg until blended. Stir in flour mixture one half at a time, alternately with milk; mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls, about 2 inches apart, onto buttered cookie sheets. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden brown — 12 to 15 minutes. Remove to wire racks to cool completely. Makes 2 to 2½ dozen cookies.

1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 large eggs, separated
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon grated lime rind
3 tablespoons lime juice
2 tablespoons butter, melted

In a large bowl stir together ¾ cup of the sugar, cornstarch and salt; reserve. Beat egg whites until foamy; gradually beat in remaining ¼ cup sugar until straight stiff peaks form; reserve. Without washing beater, beat egg yolks and milk until blended; stir in lime rind, lime juice and butter. Beat in until blended a small portion of the egg whites; fold in remaining egg whites. Turn into a buttered 1½-quart casserole (7½ inches wide and 2½ inches deep). Place in a shallow pan with enough hot water to come halfway up side of casserole. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until delicately browned — about 50 minutes. Cool, then chill. Makes 6 servings.

Dear Abby

Therapist Helps Himself To Patient's Cure

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A physical therapist started coming to my home after I was released from the hospital where I had an operation. This therapist is employed by a private nursing company under contract to Medicare.

As I was in bed during his earlier visits, my "therapy" consisted of conversation only, including a discussion of the painkilling pills prescribed by my physician. (They were in a bottle on my bedside table. The therapist examined them carefully.)

On his last visit, I was seated in the living room, and we started on exercises. At one point he asked if he could check the firmness of my bed, so I gave him permission to go into my bedroom.

After he went home, I discovered that the bottle of painkilling pills was missing! I called my sister, and we searched every inch of my room thoroughly. The bottle was nowhere to be found.

I use both hands to propel my wheelchair, so there is no way I could have picked up the bottle and absentmindedly set it down somewhere else. No one else has access to my bedroom, and I know for sure that those pills were on my bedside table before the therapist arrived.

I am sorry for the therapist, but I am also concerned about the other patients he treats. I wonder what standards Medicare uses in hiring therapists and in contracting with private businesses to provide home care.

Do patients have any choices? Any rights? What should I do now?

NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: Immediately contact the private nursing company that sent the physical therapist, and tell the director what you have told me. Also make Medicare aware of your complaint.

I'm sure you know that a person is innocent until proven guilty, but you have a right to request another therapist in the meantime. Patients do have choices and rights.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the angry young wife whose husband always stopped for "a few beers" after work got my attention. Especially when I read your advice: "Set up some ground rules."

We had "ground rules" for my hotelman husband when he would come home late for dinner because he had to have a few drinks with patrons every night.

The "rules" were set by our two preteen children who wanted to see their daddy before bedtime.

"Daddy has to give Mama $5 every time he comes home after 7 p.m." You should have heard his car heading into our driveway at two minutes before 7 p.m. with the children screaming for 7:01 so Mama could collect her $5!

The "kids" are now in their 40s, so if we were to do that today, the loot would have to be $10 to make up for inflation.

FRAN B.

DEAR FRAN: Better make that at least $20.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My friend's house burned to the ground, and everything was lost. She has a 3-year-old child.

Would it be proper to give her another baby shower? Her friends gave her one before her baby was born, but she lost all the baby's things in the fire.

CARING FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Not only is it "proper," I think it's a lovely and generous idea.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There was a survey recently on the pecking order of dogs within the family.

Nearly half of the people who answered the query said they had more rapport with their dogs than any other member of the family. They touched them, smiled at them, and 80 percent talked to them like they were people.

Only 8 percent treated their children with the same affection.

There is a reason for this.

You can call a dog and when he comes running to your side, you can say, "I don't want anything. I just wanted to know where you are," and he won't spit on your shoe.

He'll sit with you through the worst television show in video history and if you like it, never once try to change channels to get something better.

He never entertains friends, forcing you to retire to your bedroom like a felon serving time.

He never lies to you and never gets upset if you don't remember his birthday.

Any relationship is strengthened by a friend who can keep a secret. You tell a dog you don't know what you'll do if you can't come up with the interest on your charge card before the 15th, and he'll keep it to himself.

I love animals, but I think a man in Wisconsin went too far. It seems his wife and dog did not get along, so he reasoned one of them had to go. He put an ad in the paper that read, "Wife or dog must go. Wife is good-looking blonde, but impatient. Dog is German shorthair, 2 1/2 years old, spayed female. Your choice free."

The man received more than 20 calls from people interested in the dog. One caller said he had a short brunette and an English setter and wanted to know if he could swap.

My husband loved that story. He said it made sense. "After all, a dog could give him all the tender loving care his wife could. He could fetch his slippers and newspaper, not hang on the phone all day long, never leave dirty dishes soaking in the sink and would keep his feet warm at night."

I said' "If you feel that way, how come you didn't marry a dog?"

My husband is too smart...too old...and too well-fed to even think of touching that line.

Common Beliefs About Stuttering Said Wrong

Contrary to popular belief, stuttering in young children is not caused by stress, and telling a stutterer to slow down will not frustrate him or make his stuttering worse, Dr. Richard E. Shine says.

Shine, an East Carolina University speech professor, is gaining national and international attention in the field of speech therapy as the author of a stuttering correction program which contradicts the traditional idea that stuttering is the result of an emotional problem.

"There is simply no evidence to support the assumption that parents cause stuttering," he said. "Childhood stuttering is not an emotional, psychological or learned behavior. It is a coordination problem that involves the speech mechanism."

DR. RICHARD SHINE

Shine has been working with stutterers for nearly 20 years. He has developed a program called "Systematic Fluency Training Program for Young Children" which is being marketed in kit form. His interest in stuttering began in 1964 when "I met a preschool stutterer who contradicted everything I'd been taught about stuttering," he said. "That same year I worked directly with a kindergarten-aged stutterer with good success and I began to rethink that whole area of speech pathology."

Since starting research in the field, Shine has written numerous articles and papers and has presented more than 100 workshops and seminars on stuttering thorughout the United States. He has been invited to lecture in Belgium and the Netherlands in April.

"Stuttering can almost always be dealt with successfully if fluency training is begun early," he said. "Preschoolers respond particularly well."

Although Shine's main interest is in the youthful stutterer, he has experienced success in working with older stutterers, too, and is now designing a fluency training kit for adolescents and adults.

Deer Plentiful

Pitt County deer hunters are finding their game plentiful for the start of the regular gun season, Game Warden John E. Waters Jr. said today.

Waters said there was "a lot of activity" on the first day of the season Monday but no count was available of the deer taken by hunters. There were no reports of injuries to hunters in the Pitt County area although Waters said one hunter was killed in an accident in Carteret County.

The deer population appears to be adequate, Waters said. "It's probably too early to tell but we're seeing a lot of deer. It's definitely not below last year's" population, he said.

The regular season runs through Jan. 1. Two special seasons for hunters with primitive weapons — one season for bow and arrow and another for muzzle-loading weapons — already have been held this year.

N.C. Lawmaker Pleads Guilty To Check-Kiting

NEW BERN, N.C. (AP) — State Rep. Roger W. Bone, D-Nash, has received a five-year probationary sentence after pleading guilty to a federal charge involving defrauding two banks of more than $500,000.

Bone, a two-term legislator who is not seeking reelection, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court Monday of kiting checks. In check kiting, a bad check in one bank is deposited in another and the funds are withdrawn from the second bank before the check bounces.

U.S. District Judge W. Earl Britt sentenced Bone to a three-year suspended term with the suspension contingent on five years' probation.

Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina, said the check kiting occurred during Jan. 1, 1979 through March 25, 1981. It involved Planter's National Bank, People's Bank and Trust Co. and Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. Pence said FBI agents had been investigating Bone since April 1981.

Bone was charged with writing checks not covered by adequate funds and "keeping the money moving around different banks when there is really not enough collateral," Pence explained.

Bone pleaded guilty in a plea agreement to devising a scheme to defraud and obtain money and property by means of a false and fraudulent pretenses from the two banks.

Under state law, Bone is automatically stripped of his seat because the crime is a felony.

Bone said in an interview after the sentencing that with the election so close, he would not bother to take the formal step of resigning.

"I'll let it take its course," he said. "We just have two weeks to go."

Bone's attorney, David W. Long of Raleigh, said before sentencing that Bone had never denied his check kiting and that the banks' potential losses had bee3ked.

"He did it out of economic necessity," Long said.

Testimony and documents filed with the court indicated that the loss to the banks involved has been made up by Bone.

In a pre-sententencing statement, Bone said he never intended to defraud anyone.

After reports surfaced in April that he was under investigation for check kiting, Bone acknowledged that his business, Bone International, a Rocky Mount farm equipment and truck dealerhsip, had been in financial difficulty.

Raining Trucks On His House

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Gillon family, whose home sits directly beneath a highway bridge, lives in fear of falling trucks, cars and assorted debris.

It happened again Monday: A tractor-trailer crashed into the wall of the Interstate 70 bridge, raining twisted iron railings and cement chunks on the Gillons' house for the third time since 1977.

"We keep saying it will never happen again and it's just a freak accident, but this is three times now," Joyce Gillon said in a telephone interview from her home in Speers, about 20 miles southwest of here.

"It sounded like a lot of explosions and you could see sparks coming from the bridge," she said.

Mrs. Gillon was helping her 14-year-old daughter dress for school when a truck driven by John L. Boettcher, 32, of Minnesota, hit a bridge abutment and lost control, plowing into the bridge railing, police said.

"We both just looked at each other and my daughter started screaming," Mrs. Gillon said. "She thought the truck had come through the center of the house."

The truck ripped off a 100-foot section of the bridge railing and tore through patches of chain-link fence, police said.

A heavy metal tool box from the truck hurtled over the railing, crashing through the back window of the Gillons' parked car.

Metal siding on the house was gouged by falling debris and a window frame was damaged, Mrs. Gillon said.

Boettcher, whose hometown was not immediately known, was listed in guarded condition at the Mon Valley Hospital with shoulder injuries and face lacerations.

Mrs. Gillon described the damage as "minor, this time." But in the first accident, in January 1977, debris from a truck crash on the highway above tore off the back porch, Mrs. Gillon said.

In the second mishap in September 1977, four men were killed when a truck and car collided and the falling debris damaged the front of the Gillons' house.

"Parts of the truck and car exploded into fire, and took off part of the house," she said.

The state Department of Transportation patched the damaged iron railing with chain link fence following the first two accidents, Mrs. Gillon said.

But although the bridge was resurfaced and cement barriers were built last summer, "they never came back and put good iron railing up," she said. "I and nobody else in this town think that they handled the job right."

Despite the threat of still another accident, Mrs. Gillon said her family won't move after 17 years in the house.

"I don't see how we can," Mrs. Gillon said. "We couldn't sell it with the bad publicity. Who would want to buy it"

Mothers & Babies Exercise Class

Mothers and babies exercises classes are being held each Wednesday and Friday mornings from 10:45 to 11:30 a.m. at Jaycee Park. Mothers can start anytime after birth provided they have had a six-week check-up or a doctor's approval. Babies should be non-walking.

Fee for the five-week, 10-lesson course is $15. Instructor is Margy Maira. The first session begins Friday. Wear comfortable clothing and bring a blanket. To preregister, call 752-4137, ext. 200.

Arrest Two In Robbery Case

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning that Samuel Joyner Jr., 36, of 200 Cadillac St. and Hope Anette Atkinson, 17, of 1803 Kennedy Circle, were arrested Monday in connection with a strongarm robbery that occured May 4 at the intersection of Evans and Fourth streets in which $9 was taken.

Cannon said Joyner was charged with robbery in connection with the case while Miss Atkinson was charged with aiding and abetting in connection with the case.

Two Collisions Yesterday

An estimated $7,700 property damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Monday.

Police said heaviest damage resulted from an 8:31 a.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth Street and Bancroft Avenue involving cars driven by Jerry Lane Jones of 200D Dupont Circle and Timothy McCoy Clemmons of 1800 S. Pitt St.

Officers, who charged Clemmons with hit-and-run driving and driving under the influence, estimated damage at $4,500 to the Jones car and $2,700 to the Clemmons vehicle.

Vehicles driven by Ginger Walker Poole of Courtney Square Apartments and Mark Hardy of Hassell collided about 6:24 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 50 feet north of the Dexter Street intersection, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Poole car and $100 damage to the truck driven by Hardy.

Indictments Make Point

In Wake County last week authorities brought 14 federal indictments charging food stamp fraud. Twenty-four Wake residents were charged with giving false information about their incomes.

Autharities say it is the beginning of a get-tough posture on food stamp abuse.

U.S. Attorney Sam Currin said, "If we're going to impress on people we're serious about this, we need to go ahead and prosecute every single case."

The Wake County district attorney said there are 574 cases in which recipients received $300,000 too much in food stamps which he intends to prosecute.

Other counties have made efforts to curb food stamp abuse by prosecuting those who abuse the system.

Finding and prosecuting those who violate the food stamp regulations is something that virtually everyone should applaude. Those who misrepresent their incomes to obtain extra food stamps, or steal the stamps to sell on the black market are taking resouces away from the needy. They are also passing on the cost of their personal gains to the taxpayers who pay the bills for all government services.

We don't believe there is any lack of commitment in this nation to providing adequate nutrition to those who are in need. The taxpayers, however, have rebelled against waste in the food stamp program and, indeed, all phases of government.

Clearly firm action is needed and prosecution of those who abuse the food stamp program is an excellent place to start.

USS Monitor Important To Us

There was excitement in England recently when a 400 year old sunken warship was raised.

The USS Monitor is not nearly that old, but the Civil War ironclad which was sunk off the coast of North Carolina, is equally important in American history.

The wreck of the Monitor was located in 1973, but it still has not been determined whether it will be feasible to raise the ship.

Scientists at East Carolina University have received a grant for a new expedition to the vessel which may determine whether the ship can be recovered. Even if nothing so spectacular as the salvaging of the ship comes about, the expedition could yield important information about the warship.

This and other projects can lead ECU to play an important role in researching the many sunken vessels off our coast.

THIS AFTERNOON

Croplands Fading

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR

RALEIGH — Old McDonald had a farm. And now they call it MaConald Woods. No pigs, cows or chickens here. Just 200 houses, six swimming pools and a tennis court.

Farmland that once grew North Carolina's crops is now being used for subdivisions, industrial sites, highways and shopping centers. In all, the state probably loses 90,000 acres of crop, pasture and forest land every year to non-agricultural conversion. Institute of Government researcher William Campbell says in a recent article in Popular Government magazine.

It's a national problem. Across the country, about 3 million acres of farmland were converted to other uses between 1967 and 1975. A recent federal report which Campbell cites in his article estimates that the next big boom in farmland conversion will come in the southeastern states. As North Carolina enjoys the boom of the Sun Belt, it can expect to lose big chunks of farmland.

With less farmland available, we can expect the price of food to go up through the economnics of supply and demand. And, if we're growing less each year, that's less food that we can ship overseas to pay for the Arab oil our Toyotas are drinking.

Land goes through a progression of steps from the time it cradles a bushel of wheat to the day before it becomes someone's fescue lawn. At one time it is stable farming land being planted to peak efficiency in annual rotation. At the other time, it is either being pushed for every last kernel of corn it can grow or is being left idle.

Stable farmland — that which is a long time from conversion — is most likely to be part of a large farm holding, Campbell reports. Almost all of the arable land is under cultivation. And, while there may be a few rural crossroads in the neighborhood, this land is most likely to be out in the boondoc;s with access to urban areas fairly restricted.

At the other end of the

spectrum, the land that's about to be converted is probably owned by a nonfarmer who is renting the land to a farmer and waiting for the right time to sell out. There are good roads to the urban areas and water and sewer lines serve the land.

In between these two extremes, Campbell reports several developments that are likely to occur and which are likely to speed the ultimate conversion of the farmland. Land prices will start to increase and as that property gets more vaulable on paper, the tax man will charge the farmer more to live there — or die there and pass it along to his children. Nonfarmers will move into the area and begin to complain of the water and air pollution caused by the farmers. These complaints lead to political action against farmers — local ordinances, for example, that restrict use of certain smelly fertilizers. Or, the nonfarmers may decide to file lawsuits.

Farmers in these changing areas see the inevitable coming and start changing their operations. They stop putting money into their farms. Why build a new barn when you're likely to sell out in five years? And the farmers stop exercising their best conservation practices. If all the hassles get too overpowering, they may leave the land idle and sit back to wait for civilization to pay $12,000 per housing site. In suburban Atlanta, about one-fourth of the land on the urban fringe

FIRST AWKWARD STEP IN HIS LONG JOURNEY!

Cuomo Eyes Role In '84

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — If he is elected governor of New York Nov. 2, Lt. Gov. Mario Cuomo will publically pledge not to seek the Democratic presidential or vice presidential nomination in 1984 — preferring the role of power broker.

His pledge would be intended to expand, not restrict, Cuomo's national influence within the party. He feels that the desire to be on the national ticket so widely advertised by his defeated primary foe, New York City Mayor Bd Koch, would dilute his activities as a party power.

Where Cuomo as governor would seek to throw New York's big delegation is another matter. The state's Democrats generally favor Sen. Edward M. Kennedy in 1984, as they did in 1980. However, Cuomo staunchly supported Jimmy Carter's losing New York primary effort against Kennedy.

New Meese Role

An unaccustomed burden has been placed on the broad shoulders of presidential counselor Edwin Meese III: Find "painless" ways to make massive cuts in the new defense budget to be sent to Congress next January.

That unwanted assignment for the president's chief arms buildup supporter among top White House aides is dictated by alarming deficit numbers beginning to crop up in David Stockman's Office of Management and Budget. By some estimates, the deficit for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1984, will top $200 billion — unless drastic savings are found. Few White House officials believe that entitlement programs offer anything like the required cuts.

Thus, the Pentagon becomes the inevitable target. But not even the most assiduous budget cutting for defense could make a real dent in the deficit without emasculating Reagan's vaunted military buildup. Meese's recruitment was designed to put the job in the hands of friends of the arms buildup.

Gleen Goofs

The recent performance of Sen. John Glenn in Oklahoma, whose predominantly conservative Democrats have looked on him as the answer to Teddy Kennedy, suggests his presidential act needs polishing.

When Glenn learned that several local candidates were to be introducd before his speech at a $20-a-ticket fundraiser at an Oklahoma City motel, he immediately requested and was granted use of an office in the motel. Not until Sen. David Boren's introduction did Glenn emerge from the office. He then delivered a 15-minute speech, following which he promptly left the room — without shaking a single hand or explaining why.

"I've never quite seen anything like it in all my years in politics," one veteran Oklahoma Democrat told us. Glenn later did a little mixing at a $100-a-head affair at the home of Robert S. Kerr Jr., son of the late senator. But Oklahomans who had traveled far to pay their $20 and see the famous astronaut-statesman were disappointed.

GOP Palace Politics

The surfacing of New Right political consultant Paul Manafort as possible successor to Republican National Chairman Richard Richards smacks more of palace politics than a battle over the presidential succession in 1984 if President Reagan does not run again.

Manafort was boosted by conservative activists after White House aide Rich Williamson emerged as a candidate for the job. The argument against Williamson, who is close to White House chief of staff James Baker, is that as national chairman he would tilt toward Vice President George Bush and against Rep. Jack Kemp in the succession struggle.

Actually, Williamson is one of the more ideologically conservative staffers in the White House despite his relationship with Baker. He is on good terms with Kemp. But he has enemies of his own, including fellow presidential aides determined to keep him from the party chairmanship.

Strauss' Non-Wink

Robert Strauss, key inside strategist of the Democratic Party for the past decade, was questioned closely by party leaders in his home state of Texas about the Hail, New Columbia?

WASHINGTON — Barring some belated decision to call the whole thing off, voters here in Washington will go to the polls next month to take a step — or refuse to take a step — toward statehood for the District of Columbia. They will be voting on a proposed constitution for the State of New Columbia.

The referendum, if it carries, probably will have no more substantive meaning than a resolution in favor of National Coconut Week. It is almost inconceivable that the next Congress would agree to admit tne city of Washington, D.C., into the Union as our 5lst state. Self-preservation is the first law of nature, and the nature of political animals is such that the Republican-controlled Senate would never agree to the certain addition of two liberal Democrats.

Even so, the forthcoming referendum is of passing interest. The proposed constitution for New Columbia, drafted by a constitutional convention that completed its work in May, is a remarkable projection of the liberal mind at work. It promises something for everyone, from the cradle to the grave, with no evident thought of where the money might come from to pay for it all.

The general idea is to carve out of the present District of Columbia a "National Capital Service Area" that would create a federal island from the White House to the Supreme Court. The air of unreality that surrounds the whole proposition may be grasped by reference to such metes and bounds as "the southwest corner of Kennedy Center." Presumably the Congress would contract with the new state government to provide public services in the National Capital Service Area, but management of this political and bureaucratic area is one of the little details left to the future.

In any event, the remaining area of the District would become the State of New Columbia. Like honest-to-goodness states, this synthetic entity would have a governor, a legislature of 40 members elected from single-member districts, a Supreme Court and other courts, and the usual panoply of departments, bureaus, commissions and the like. The new state would have a population of roughly 600,000 persons, which would rank it fifth from the lowest after Delaware, Vermont, Wyoming and Alaska.

In sweeping terms, the proposed constitution would prohibit discrimination, public or private, against anybody, anyhow, any way. The bill of rights bans discrimination based upon race, color, religion, creed, citizenship, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, poverty, parentage, physical disability and age.

Under this constitution, a woman's right to an abortion is "inviolable." A right also would be created for all adults freely to engage in "non-commercial private, consensual sexual behavior." Section 20 of the bill of rights says that "Every person should have the right to employment, or if unable to work, an income sufficient to meet basic human needs."

The rights of an accused in a criminal proceeding would be abundantly protected. Among other things, a defendant would have a right "to the discovery of all evidence possessed by the State." In language that might set James Madison to spinning in his grave, "the Grand Jury shall not engage in fishing expeditions." The bill of rights would write the Miranda Rule into the constitution. The sole purpose of bail, it appears, "is to assure the presence of the accused at trial." Some of us might have supposed that one purpose of bail is to keep manifestly dangerous criminals off the street.

To the editor:

With all the progress made on the local, state and federal levels over the past few years to employ, train, educate and provide equal opportunities to the handicapped, I am very disappointed that Pitt County Memorial Hospital will begin to deny its employees that work from a wheelchair access to all of the hospital's conference rooms. The new addition to the hospital's cafeteria includes two conference rooms on the second-floor level with only stairs available as a means of access. Until now, all of the floors at Pitt County Memorial have been wheelchair-accessible.

How can Pitt County Memorial Hospital sustain an Affirmative Action Program while beginning to deny its handicapped employees access to all areas?

As a frequent visitor to Pitt County Memorial, I wonder: Will other visitors carry the message to their communities that Pitt County Memorial Hospital does not care about the well-being of all of its employees?

What messages will the patients and their families take with them when they see how Pitt County Memorial treats its employees?

What message will qualified prospective employees (some of whom happen to be in wheelchairs) get when they tour Pitt County Memorial Hospital?

I do not think Pitt County Memorial Hospital should begin to essentially lock some of its doors to certain employees because these people are disabled when this has not been Pitt County Memorial's policy in the past.

Handicapped employees, like other employees, have the right to come and go. I don't think this has ever been too much for any employee to expect anywhere, whether they are disabled or not.

Gail Suggs
Rt. 3, Box 233
Tarboro

Editor's note: Hospital President Jack Richardson said you are correct in stating that the two conference rooms being built above the hospital cafeteria will not be wheelchair-accessible. He said it was judged too expensive to install an elevator that would serve only those two rooms. "We have some valued employees who are wheelchair-bound," he said, "and we will schedule meetings in which they need to participate in other conference rooms which are easily accessible to them."

Strength For Today

THE ONLY ANSWER

One of the hottest issues of the modern world is racial prejudice. On the national level, it is in the news somewhere every day: desegregation, fair employment practices, equal housing, civil rights. Add religious prejudice and you have covered many of the worst sources of tension in American life.

The complete solution to this problem lies not in law, nor in the United Nations. Only love can unite all men as brothers. "The love of God in Jesus Christ is for all men." "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself". "If God so loved us, we ought also to love one another."

No other force is big enough or all-inclusive enough to embrace all men and women. And like all solutions to really important problems, it begins at home. You and I cannot impose love on the nations of the world from above, but we can begin spreading Christian love on our streets, in our communities, and watch the transormation take place. — Elisha Douglass

A Lowering Of Expectations

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While the big bull ring on Wall Street seldom was more boisterous than last week, and while President Reagan again assured Americans that better times were coming, a familiar thing occurred:

The timing of the economic recovery once again was set back by some of the most influential forecasters.

That news might not seem ominous, in view of the rather poor record of forecasters, but it does have some significance — most importantly, that the professionals aren't impressed either by the market or presidential assurances.

Walter Heller, the economist often credited with being behind the big tax cut that spurred the economy during the early 1960s, told Congress that unemployment was likely to remain above 10 percent for months to come.

Two days before, he and economist George L. Perry wrote in an analysis for the National City Bank of Minneapolis that "the second-half recovery we foresaw is simply not materializing." They blamed high interest rates.

"Both theory and experience teach that aggressive action by the Fed in an economy with huge unemployment and excess capacity can bring real rates down without reigniting inflation," they said.

The Morgan Bank has lowered its expectations for the final quarter of the year. There is a growing conviction, the bank's economists say in "The Morgan Guaranty Survey" just published, "that appreciable recovery may not occur without a further substantial decline in interest rates."

The bank lowered its growth forecast for fourth-quarter gross national product to just 0.4 percent from its earlier forecast of nearly 3 percent. The Morgan economists said interest rates "remain formidably high."

In their weekly economic report, economists at Chemical Bank indicated the most likely forecast, to which they gave a 45 percent probability rating, is one in which "meaningful economic recovery is delayed until early 1983."

As their "first alternative," with a 35 percent rating, the Chemical economists chose one saying "stronger consumer pickup this quarter removes need for inventory correction; production recovery starts fourth quarter."

According to Edward Yardeni, economist for the E.F. Hutton securities firm, "The recession intensified during the third quarter." And the National Association of Purchasing Management found that "except for the price picture, there wasn't any good news to be found in the economy in September."

Oddly, these grim views were being maintained simultaneously with one of the most uproarious and bullish scenes ever witnessed in the stock market.

Even some professional economists find it difficult or even impossible to explain how such bearish and bullish attitudes can exist side by side, and conceivably, in one and the same individual — that is, the bear who buys stock.

Less difficult to understand, but still somewhat perplexing, is the public reaffirmation of trust in the president's policies by big-business leaders, who sometimes in private criticize the same policies as threats to industry.

Whom do you believe?

The stock market sees something that it likes and that something is said to be lower interest rates. But some of the people who claim to have an insight on economics say those interest rates in the meantime might kill the bull.

But all that concerns the future. For the present, the recovery isn't here. That much is certain. Not even the president disputes that.

ECU Budget...

Howell said.

"Basic program support ... it's here we're talking about upgrading our computer facilities, emphasizing our equipment needs," Howell said. "Our priority after that is physical plant maintenance."

Program support funds — $26 million system-wide — will be allocated to each institution on what the UNC general administration "regards as a fair share of that amount, based on enrollment and other factors ... a rational basis. And we are satisfied with the way we're treated on that," Howell said.

In addition to the operating budget, the Board of Governors' budget request includes $14.6 million for a new classroom building at ECU, funds for renovations (including phase two of the Wright Building renovation project and the renovation of Memorial Gymnasium), roof repairs and replacements, energy conservation ("putting in storm windows and things that save energy"), street repairs and other items, Howell said.

"In a separate category," Howell said, "are the proposed raises that will be proposed by the Board of Governors. That will be a very high priority, and clearly is with (UNC) President (William) Friday. It is with us, too.

"If you go without a raise in a period of increasing costs, morale begins to get bad" and productivity drops off, Howell suggested.

Prior to last Friday, Howell said, there was talk of pay increases of up to 25 percent. "What the Board of Governors did was strike a mid-point in there that may be obtainable," and recommend a 15.5 percent increase over the biennium — 9 percent in 1983-84 and 6.5 percent in 1984-85.

Howell noted that "on many of these things, the priorities are ours. It's our change budget. We make those decisions here on campus. When it comes to buildings and building maintenance we set our priorities on that and they gave us a good response.

"We may not get the money, but it's not because they said we don't want to ask for it for you. If we don't get the moeny, it's because the Legislature doesn't have it to distribute."

Pitt Demo Women Told Reagonomics 'Disgrace'

State Sen. Bob Jordan, who termed Reaganomics a "national disgrace," said Monday night that, on election day in two weeks, "We need to start a trend to bring this nation back to sanity."

The Montgomery County senator, speaking at a Greenville dinner meeting of the Democratic Women of Pitt County, said, "I suppose the thing that has disturbed me most is President Reagan's admonition for us to 'stay the course.'"

In questioning what Reagan means by his statement, Jordan said he wanted to ask him: "Do we continue to reduce the opportunities our children have to complete their education?

"Do we continue the highest unemployment since 1938?

"Do we continue to shift the tax burden to working America?

"Do we continue to watch even the giants in America go broke because their products are not being purchased by working America — for you're keeping them out of work?

"Do we continue to allocate more money for defense than they can admittedly spend while the deficits rise?

"Do we continue to talk about balanced-budget legislation while you will not even propose a balanced budget to Congress?"

Jordan told the gathering, "The only reason we are not today in the midst of the second great depresssion is because of three existing programs: FDIC (FSLIC), unemployment security, social security." He said they are Democratic programs that Reagan's administration "has tried to attack."

He said problems in North Carolina today "are not of our own making," noting that the state is maintaining a balanced budget.

"The Democratic Party," said Jordan, "more than even before is the party of the people."

He said Democrats "cannot as responsible citizens allow Reagan to remain in control."

Jordan, who is seeking re-election to his fourth term in the Senate, chaired the ECU Medical School study commission and is currently chairman of the Senate Base Budget Committee, vice chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and chairman of the Administrative Rules Committee.

City School Aid Cut...

This is to Paris and London, at a cost of about $1,250 for each student.

Superintendent Delma Blinson reported that the Greenville Middle School science project entitled "Developing Coping and Cognitive Skills Through Science" has been selected as one of 50 national exemplars in the annual competition coordinated by the National Science Teachers Association.

Blinson, who called it an exceptional honor for the city schools, said a search was still on to find a publisher to publish the materials compiled for the Middle School science project. The project, which entailed work by a number of teachers and others, has been coordinated by Wende Allen.

In other actions before the board at its October action meeting, board members:

•In executive session approved the election of two teachers, granted maternity leave to three teachers, and approved a teacher's substitute list that includes student teachers.

•Heard a report from Dr. Charles Moore, president of the Arts Advisory Council for the city schools. Moore extended an invitation to board members to attend an open house program to be held at Aycock at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 3.

•Heard a status report from Walter Morehead on the progress of efforts being made by the Affirmative Action Committee. Morehead stated that a final report on findings should be due in about six weeks.

•Noted a letter from Margaret Register, supervisor of the Pitt County Board of Elections, that the polling place for Greenville Precinct No. 10 has been moved from Aycock Junior High School to Oakmont Baptist Church.

The imports from South American countries have also increased."

One of the factors which McGrady labled as unfortunate "is the fact we will be able to absorb only a very few of the 380 (eployees) at Robersonville into our other plants. We have another plant in the eastern part of the state, at Aulander, but any openings there are quickly filled from the Aulander community."

Including Robersonville, Blue Ridge Shoe Manufacturing Co. has seven plants, most of them located in the western part of the state.

"With this closure, we will be working with employment security agencies, other industries in the Robersonville and eastern area to do everything we can in efforts to get our employees new jobs," McGrady said.

"This is a wonderful group of hard workers. We've been pleased with the quality of workmanship they have produced over the years the plant has been open."

Saying the plant has no severance pay policy for employees, McGrady said for most workers the only immediate compensation will be for vacation time not taken for which they will be paid.

On the possible disposition of the modern facilty housing the shoe company, located on U.S. 64 between Robersonville and Everetts, McGrady said "at this early date no plans for its disposal have been made. We will be looking into that at a later date."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California, where cars are the dominant form of transportation, now has its first commuter train since World War II.

State Transportation Department spokesman Bill Bronte conceded that the new line, which runs from Oxnard to Los Angeles and was inaugurated Monday, will "take a couple of weeks ... to catch on."

But he said the line, with two morning and two evening runs at a maximum $6.50 one-way, should carry 2,600 daily riders in two months.

Edward Simburger, who paid $2.50 to ride from Panorama City to Los Angeles, said, "The price is right and you get to relax."

'Rejected' Shoots Self

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Kenneth W. Hicks, 34, of Stanleyville, rejected as a blood donor, shot and killed himself Monday in front of a receptionist in the lobby of a blood center, authorities said.

Hicks had given blood to the American Red Cross five times before he was turned down for medical reasons, said Jo Ann Frazier, administrator of the Triad Blood Center. She said the reason for rejecting Hicks is confidential.

A spokesman for police said interviews with people at the center indicate that Hicks was rejected because of high blood pressure.

After being rejected, Hicks left the blood center and went to his car, Mrs. Frazier said. Hicks apparently got the gun from his car, returned to the lobby of the center, stood before the receptionist and shot himself in the head, she said.

She declined to identify the receptionist. Police said the receptionist was upset and was taken to the hospital. She was released later.

Police said Hicks was shot in the head with a 9mm automatic pistol. They said the shooting occurred about 3:30 p.m.

Hicks' neighbors said they knew little about the man and were baffled by his death.

21-month probe of corruption in Columbus and surrounding counties, called "Colcor." In addition to Taylor, prosecutors indicted a District Court judge, the Lake Waccamaw police chief and a county commissioner.

Former Columbus County Commissioner Edward Walton Williamson was sentenced Monday to 10 years in prison for accepting a bribe in the Colcor probe. Trials for most of the other defendants are set for Nov. 15.

In a plea agreement between Taylor and prosecutors, the government said it would recommend that Taylor's state and federal sentences be concurrent, that federal charges won't be brought against Taylor in the burning and that Taylor will cooperate fully with federal investigators and will testify if called upon.

Taylor has been recovering from an automobile accident last month, in which he was travelling at a high rate of speed and lost control of the car in a curve. He was charged with driving under the influence of alcohol and driving in excess of 55 mph, state police said.

Wins Delay In Murder Trial

BLOUNTSTOWN, Fla. (AP) — The trial of a teen-ager charged with murdering two children she was tending has been postponed by 2½ months to give her lawyers more time to prepare their case.

Christine Falling, 19, charged with two counts of first-degree murder, was to have gone on trial here Nov. 8, but the proceedings were postponed Monday until Jan. 24. She also faces trial in Perry on a third murder charge involving a child she was caring for.

Two other children have died in Miss Falling's care. Those deaths have been termed natural and an investigation failed to lead to charges, but the prosecution will be able to cite them during her trials.

Wins A Fight For Hedgehogs

LUDLOW, England (AP) — A retired major with oversized sympathy for the "humble hedgehog" has won his fight to help the porcupine-like animal avoid a major pitfall.

"This is a great day for hedgehogs," Maj. Adrian Coles said Monday as his two pet hedgehogs, Coreley and Cleobury, trotted up a new escape ramp from inside a cattle grid.

The grid of metal bars over a shallow pit is used to deter cattle from going the wrong way when they cross from fields to milking parlors. But the grids also trap hedgehogs who fall between the bars and starve to death.

Coles founded the British Hedgehog Preservation Society when he discovered hedgehogs were dying in a cattle grid near his home and then persuaded Shropshire County Council to put escape ramps in new grids.

"Hedgehog mania is sweeping Britain," he said. "I have been amazed at the response to my campaign."

Shultz Pledges Fresh Democracy Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz says the United States is prepared to devote "new tools, new energies and new focus" to help promote democratic change in communist countries.

Shultz made the pledge Monday to a gathering of more than 60 scholars and other experts attending a State Department conference on ways to foster a peaceful evolution toward democracy in Marxist societies.

The conference was winding up today with a closed-door plenary session at which the conclusions of the discussions will be summarized.

The two-day meeting is a follow-up to a June speech by President Reagan in which he disclosed his intention to make democratization of communist countries an administration goal.

In his remarks Monday, Shultz said, "There is a sense of optimism that democracy can be the wave of the future.

"Recent developments in countries under communist rule also suggest that a new age of democratic reform lies ahead of us.

"The weakness of communist societies are becoming increasingly apparent. Popular desires for freedom remain strong. The concessions that communist regimes make to popular sentiment and to economic necessity may sow the seeds of their transformation."

Shultz emphasized that the United States does not seek to foment violent unrest or to undermine communist regimes. But at least one participant at the conference, Soviet dissident exile Vladimir Bukovsky, recommended "massive help" to freedom fighters in Afghanistan, Angola, Cambodia, Vietnam and other Marxist countries.

Bukovsky, who now teaches at Stanford University, said such assistance "would undoubtedly make it more difficult for the Soviets to support Central American communist guerrilla movements, or send their troops to Poland, or stir up troubles in Pakistan or Iran.

"They will be forced either to lose what they already have gained or to be on the defensive," Bukovsky said.

"We should remember that every Soviet success in new areas disheartens millions of dissatisfied people at home, whereas any failure may bring a chain reaction of liberation," he said.

Ready To Serve Without Fee

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A cut in state's general fund left Alabama's court system without enough money to pay the daily $10 juror's fee, but it didn't seem to matter to the potential panelists.

Ninety people reported for jury duty on Monday and all volunteered to serve free of charge, state officials said.

Most jury trials were suspended from Sept. 30 to Oct. 25 because of a 15 percent cutback in state funds ordered when it appeared revenues would not cover apporopriations. Some cases were ordered to proceed because it would have been too expensive to postpone them.

D.C. Statehood Raising A Storm Of Controversy

By STEVEN KOMAROW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If District of Columbia residents approve a proposal on Election Day aimed at creating the nation's 51st state, they would get more than a new address — they'd be endorsing a plan to guarantee every citizen a job.

When a convention of 45 elected delegates last spring drew up a proposed constitution that would be the basis for statehood, approval by the voters on Nov. 2 was expected to be a cinch.

But the proposal's fate is now in doubt because of controversy over key provisions, which would cost residents $77.6 million a year, according to an estimate by the Greater Washington Board of Trade, the largest business group in the nation's capital.

The most expensive provision in 18,000-word document to create the state of "New Columbia" would be the guarantee of a job or adequate income to all residents, at a cost of $54 million, the board said.

The 18-article constitution would not resemble many other state constitutions; it would give police the right to strike, prohibit grand juries from engaging "in fishing expeditions" and create a state bank to help failing businesses.

Other provisions would greatly expand rights of criminal suspects, ban any restriction on a woman's right to have an abortion and outlaw capital punishment. Sexual freedom between consenting adults is specifically granted.

If the constitution is approved, the mayor would submit it to Congress, where approval by a majority in both houses would be required for passage.

New Columbia would be the eighth-smallest state by population in the union, with 700,000 people beating out Alaska, Delaware, Wyoming, Vermont, Nevada, North Dakota and South Dakota.

If the constitution is rejected, the convention would reconvene to try again. If the second constitution were rejected, it would take a voter initiative or City Council ordinance to bring about a new convention.

Charles I. Cassell, president of the convention that drafted the constitution last spring, said he was not worried about passage on Election Day. "We know that it'll pass," he said.

He said the high cost of the transition to statehood was natural: "It's just like the elimination of slavery. That cost a lot too."

But the city's largest newspaper, The Washington Post, urged in an editorial that the proposal by withdrawn from the ballot. "To insist on a vote now is to kill it," the Post said.

"The only good thing it would do is stop the erosion of our population," said the Rev. John Whalen, chairman of a task force that analyzed the document. "Overnight, we might have 9 or 10 million people moving into the city — anybody who can't find a job elsewhere."

Residents have long called the nation's capital "The Last Colony" because it has no voting representation in Congress. A constitutional amendment passed by Congress to give representation without statehood has been approved by only 10 of the required 38 state legislatures.

Residents often complain the District of Columbia has only one non-voting delegate to the House — the same representation as Puerto Rico, Guam, the American Virgin Islands and American Samoa.

Howard Croft, a convention delegate, said statehood would give the district power to impose a long-sought commuter tax, which he said would raise an added $418 million in annual revenue.

But many local politicians are dodging the constitution issue.

Mayor Marion S. Barry Jr. said he would vote for the constitution, but added that since he had no voice in drafting the document, it was "not 100 percent" to his liking.

The city's small Republican Party, including GOP mayoral candidate E. Brooke Lee, is working against the constitution. The D.C. Democratic State Committee endorsed the constitution in a close vote.

In a bid to quell critics even among its own ranks, the constitutional convention reconvened Oct. 9 to discuss pulling the document from the ballot, but the move was defeated. In an attempt to help passage, the convention asked the City Council to allow voters to decide on the document article-by-article. The council said no.

Number Of Crimes Reported So Far This Year Said Down

By JAMES H. RUBIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of crimes reported in the first half of this year was 5 percent lower than in the first half of 1981, the first such decrease since 1978, the FBI said today.

But law enforcement officials and crime experts warned about attaching too much significance to the latest figures.

Attorney General William French Smith noted that reported crimes reached an all-time high in 1980 and remained at that level through last year.

"While this apparent reversal is encouraging, the fact that the all-time high was reached and maintained for a two-year period should be of major concern to the nation," Smith said.

Crime experts who were interviewed offered a number of possible theories to explain the downturn. But they all cautioned that the explanations were educated guesses at best.

They suggested that the decrease could be related, ironically, to higher unemployment. They also said the "aging" of the American population, increased numbers of offenders in prisons and more young people in the armed forces could be contributing to the trend.

"There are more people in the stir and fewer on the streets," said Albert D. Biderman of the private Bureau of Social Science Research. He also said that with more younger Americans in the armed forces the pool of "likely victims" of many crimes as well as likely offenders is reduced.

"It sounds like good news," he added.

FBI Director William H. Webster noted that in the first half of 1978 there was a 2 percent drop in the number of reported crimes compared to the first six months of 1977.

That was the last time the FBI's Uniform Crime Report showed a decrease for a comparable six-month period.

The latest figures listed a 3 percent decrease for violent crime and a 6 percent decline for the more numerous property crimes.

Murder was down 8 percent; robbery 7 percent and forcible rape 6 percent. Aggravated assault increased 1 percent, the only violent crime on the upswing.

Burglaries plunged 11 percent. Larceny-theft and auto theft each dipped 3 percent.

The FBI reported that there was a 9 percent drop in crime in the Northeast and North Central regions of the country; 2 percent in the South, and 3 percent in the West.

Rural areas recorded an 11 percent decline; the suburbs 8 percent; cities with more than 50,000 population 3 percent, and cities outside of metropolitan areas 6 percent.

Professor Charles Wellford of the Institute of Criminal Justice at the University of Maryland said the figures were more or less consistent with the more broadly based Justice Department statistics based on a survey of victims of crime.

"I don't think we should be surprised by" the FBI report, he said.

He said one theory that could help explain the decrease is the high rate of unemployment, now at 10.1 percent nationally.

Wellford said the fact that more adults are out of work may mean that more are at home supervising their children and lending additional stability to family life. That could be true particularly in families in which both parents have been working, he suggested.

During the Great Depression in the 1930's there was a similar phenomenon, Wellford said.

"During severe economic downturns, the rate of recorded crime for juveniles has decreased even though it has increased for adults," he said.

Since the 16-to-21-year old age group accounts for the largest portion of crime, the overall crime rate is down, according to this theory, said Wellford.

Social scientists have also pointed out that the number in that age group is decreasing in the United States as the children of the post-World War II baby boom come of age.

"The crime-prone group is aging," Wellford said. But he warned that the decrease reported today by the FBI may also be related to other factors.

Jim Lynch of the Bureau of Social Science Research said it was unclear what relationship there was between economic factors and crime rates.

Court Ejected TV Cameraman

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Fayetteville television cameraman and reporter were ejected from a Cumberland County courtroom and had their film confiscated Monday for not following guidelines set down for filming courtroom proceedings.

Monday was the first day that cameras were allowed in state courts under a ruling authorized by the state Supreme Court. The high court tentatively approved in September the use of cameras in courtrooms, provided the cameras are concealed in an architecturally compatible structure within the courtroom.

Carrier Ends Long Sea Duty

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The aircraft carrier USS Ranger is home after covering 50,000 miles in a 6½-month tour of the Pacific and Indian Oceans.

Thousands of relatives and friends were at dockside Monday to greet the ship and its crew of 4,800.

At one time, the Ranger steamed for 102 days in the Indian Ocean without touching land.

Two accompanying missile cruisers, England and Fox, and the destroyer Foster also returned on schedule. Their crews numbered nearly 1,100.

The pilots and crews of 90 aircraft that trained aboard the Ranger flew in Sunday to their bases in Lemoore, Calif., Whidbey Island, Wash. and San Diego.

Sect Loses Law Appeal

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Houston's anti-solicitation law does not violate religious or free speech rights, as contended by Krishna followers, a federal appeals court ruled Monday.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals lifted an injunction that had been imposed by U.S. District Judge John V. Singleton, who had found the law unconstitutional.

However, the court ordered Singleton to conduct hearings on a contention by Krishna followers that the law's provisions create too big a burden in time and money.

The three-judge panel of the appeals court said there was not enough evidence on that one point.

The Houston law requires charitable groups to register and file statements to get a permit from the city tax assessor's office.

A $5 fee must be paid, and among the statements required is one that explains what the money is to be used for.

The International Society of Krishna Consciousness of Houston Inc. filed suit, claiming the law was so vague that it had a "chilling effect" on its constitutional rights.

The appeals court noted that such laws were usually passed after instances when "Krishna followers and others ... pushed their overzealous solicitation to the point of causing an undue annoyance to the public."

The Krishna society said its members are obligated to seek donations, under a religious practice known as Sankirtan.

Former Columbus County Official Sentenced

SENTENCED — Former Columbus County Commissioner Ed Williamson talks to reporters as he leaves the LFederal Building in Raleigh. He pleaded guilty to bribery charges and was sentenced to 10 years in prison. (AP Laserphoto)

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Franklin Dupree has sentenced former Columbus County Commissioner Edward Walton Williamson to 10 years in prison for accepting a bribe in the Colcor probe despite Williamson's plea for leniency.

Another Colcor defendant, former state Rep. Ron Taylor, is scheduled for sentencing today on a bribery and racketeering charge.

Dupree sentenced Williamson Monday after he changed his plea from innocent to guilty. The 56-year-old former commissioner was charged in the FBI's undercover probe called Colcor, which stands for Columbus County corruption.

"I'm very sorry I'm involved in something like this," Williamson said prior to his sentencing. "I know I did wrong... (but) I was influenced a lot (by undercover agents). If you just let me go home, I'll never do anything wrong again."

But Assistant U.S. Attorney J. Douglas McCullough urged Dupree not to be swayed by Williamson's promise or by letters and testimony from character witnesses describing Williamson as a conscientious public servant and devoted family man.

Attending to the needs of constituents is good politics, McCullough said, "but that's not an excuse for selling out the public trust, and neither is poverty."

Williamson, 56, could have been sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined $25,000. He was accused in an indictment of accepting $2,300 to expedite the awarding of a license to undercover agents to sell precious metals.

In a hearing after the plea, however, a federal official said the agents paid Williamson $10,700 for agreeing to do other illegal deeds.

FBI Special Agent Terry Peters said Williamson was paid over a 13-month period beginning in March 1981 in the midst of the two-year probe. The investigation has produced indictments against 23 people, including a former state legislator and a district court judge.

Williamson, who resigned last week from his seat on the board of county commissioners, was released under $15,000 bond and ordered to begin serving his sentence Nov. 8 in a Springfield, Mo., correctional facility. He will be eligible for parole immediately.

During the sentencing hearing, prosecutors played videotapes of meetings between Williamson and undercover agents. The tapes showed Williamson accepting money and discussing his actions.

Peters testified that Williamson agreed to help the agents obtain the license for a metals business without going through the waiting period required by law.

Peters said Williamson told the agents that state Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, might support watering down a proposed bill on precious metals dealings if they would give him a bracelet. Soles accepted a $500 bracelet but was not indicted, and Peters said no deals were made with him.

Williamson agreed to hide shipments of bootleg cigarettes and to use bribery to win passage of a liquor-by-the-drink bill, Peters said. He added that Williamson boasted of receiving payoffs from operators of a house of prostitution.

Peters said Williamson asked undercover agents to "terrorize a Wilmington reporter" and "beat up a political rival." The agent said both requests were refused.

Peters said Williamson sold agents a $200 pistol that had been forfeited to the Columbus County Sheriff's Department in a murder case.

Williamson's attorney, James Nance of Fayetteville, didn't deny Peters' allegations but accused the agents of getting Williamson drunk and encouraging him to say incriminating things.

Price Support Said Harmful

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Milk prices for Class I fluid milk in Noth Carolina and elsewhere will be virtually frozen because of a program that keeps federal support prices the same for the next two years, a dairy marketing official says.

Geoffrey A. Benson, an extension dairy marketing economist at N.C. State University, says the federal minimum support price will be frozen at the current level of $13.10 per 100 pounds for the next two fiscal years, through Sept. 30, 1984.

Benson says the federal freeze means that Class 1 fluid milk prices in North Carolina also will be frozen, Benson said.

"The only bright spot is that it might have been worse," said Geoffrey A. Benson of the three-year program.

The federal price-support provisions will affect North Carolina dairy farmers even though their prices are set by the N.C. Milk Commission rather than a federal policy, Benson said.

"Clearly, for the next two years, the Class II price (for manufacturing milk) will change little, because it is based on manufactured dairy product prices," he said.

"But Class I prices (for fluid milk) in North Carolina also will be affected," he added. "Federal market order Class I prices are based on manufactured milk prices — and these prices are determined by the support price."

Under state policy, price changes are limited to 3 percent above or below the average prices in surrounding states including Tennessee and Virginia, parts of which are under federal market orders, and South Carolina.

The Class I price is higher in North Carolina than in the surrounding states and won't change unless rates in the other states increase, which isn't likely "unless the pricing formula is suspended and the Milk Commission holds a public hearing," Benson said.

Farmers also will be hurt by an assessment of up to $1 per 100 pounds on all grades and classes of milk, Benson said. The money will defray costs of the federal support program.

Starting Dec. 1, all dairy farmers will have 50 cents deducted from every 100 pounds of milk they sell. The deduction will be made at the point of first sale, such as the processing plant.

The money will be sent to the government's Commodity Credit Corporation.

Hunt Goes On

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The search for a foreign submarine in Stockholm's southern archipelago will continue for at least another week, navy spokesman Cmdr. Sven Carlsson said today.

Patrol boats, helicopters and a submarine searched Monday in the area near the Musko naval base where the periscope of a suspected Soviet-bloc submarine was spotted Oct. 1, press reports said.

The navy has been searching for the submarine since then, and at one point blockaded the bay where Musko is located; but the hunt has been fruitless thus far.

On Sunday, fishermen said they had seen an object in the water that could have been a submarine, and Carlsson told a radio interviewer today that "observations" had been made by other civilians in the area.

He said the navy was checking the reports.

Sows: all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson, 54.00; Fayetteville, 55.00; Durham, unreported; Whiteville, 54.50; Wallace, 53.00; Spivey's Corner, 54.00; Rowland, 53.00.

Poultry

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock broiler market was steady. Supplies light to moderate. Demand good. Weights desirable. The dock weighted average price for this week is 41.71 for small purchases of plant grade broilers picked up at processing plants. Estimated slaughter today, 1,769,000.

Hens

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was two cents higher. Supplies light. Demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 18 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices pulled back in heavy trading today after opening broadly higher.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which climbed to a 17-month high Monday, surrendered an early 6.17-point gain and was off 5.06 at 1,014.16 after two hours of trading today. But the transportation and utility measures remained ahead.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed Monday at 1,019.22, its highest close since it reached an eight-year high of 1,024.05 on April 27, 1981. The measure's record high closing was set on Jan. 11, 1973, when it finished at 1,051.70.

Big Board volume totaled 52.09 million shares at noon EDT, against 33.08 million at that hour in the previous session.

The revival of Wall Street's two-month-old rally was attributed mainly to renewed expectations of lower interest rates and heavy institutional buying of blue-chip stocks.

Hopes also persist that lower rates, in helping the economy emerge from recession, will benefit corporate profits in the next few quarters.

Early NYSE-listed gainers included Tandy 7/8 to 39 1/8, Mobil 1/4 to 27 3/8 and K mart 1/2 to 22 7/8.

But Chrysler, facing a possible strike, was off 3/8 to 9 1/4 and Pan Am slipped 1/8 to 2 5/8.

The NYSE composite index fell 0.05 to 78.35.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.15 at 319.28.

Won't Insist On U.S. Talks

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization will not jeopardize an Arab peace initiative by insisting on participating in meetings with U.S. officials in Washington, a top Moroccan diplomat said today.

Mohamed Boucetta, Moroccan minister of state for foreign affairs, said the "PLO is not insisting that it be present where difficulties may arise."

Boucetta spoke to reporters after returning from a meeting with Saudi King Fahd concerning the lobbying effort of the Arab Committee of Seven on behalf of the Arab peace plan.

The committee was formed during the last Arab summit in Fez, Morocco, to travel to the five nations which are permanent members of the U.N. Security Council — the United States, Britain, China, France and the Soviet Union — to lobby on behalf of the plan approved by the summit.

The committee is made up of Morocco, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Algeria, Tunisia, Jordan and the PLO.

Initially, it was thought the PLO would be excluded from the committee delegation sent to Washington because the United States refuses to deal directly with the PLO.

But PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat said last week he would insist on PLO participation in any and all delegations.

Boucetta's comments indicated the PLO had backed down from that position.

The Arab plan calls for peaceful coexistence under U.N. guarantees among all Middle East states provided Israel withdraws from all Arab territory occupied since 1967 and allows the Palestinians to set up a sovereign state in the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

Israel has rejected the plan.

Two Elected Ass'n Officers

Two registered cardiology technologists working at Pitt County Memorial Hospital have been elected to two-year terms as officers of the North Carolina Technologist Association.

Nancy Middleton, EKG supervisor, was named president of the association to fill an unexpired term of the former president and Jody Wylam, clinical coordinator of the graphics and exercise laboratory, was elected treasurer.

Ms. Middleton, who previously was vice president, is a native of New Bern and has been employed by Pitt Memorial for five years. Ms. Wylam, originally from Youngstown, Ohio, has been employed by Pitt Memorial for more than two years.

RESOLUTION NO. 713

RESOLUTION OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF GREENVILLE DECLARING ITS INTENT TO CLOSE A PORTION OF POWELL STREET BETWEEN EAST GUM ROAD AND CHURCH STREET

WHEREAS, the City Council has received a petition requesting that a portion of Powell Street be closed; and

WHEREAS, the City Council intends to close the aforesaid portion of Powell Street in accordance with the provisions of North Carolina General Statute 160A-299;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE CITY COUNCIL that it is the intent of the City Council to close a portion of Powell Street, said portion being particularly described as follows:

That portion of Powell Street, dedicated but never constructed, lying between East Gum Road and Church Street, and is more particularly described on Attachment "A" to this Resolution. (A copy of Attachment "A" is available in the office of the City Clerk).

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a public hearing will be held in the Council Chambers, Municipal Building, Greenville, North Carolina, on November 11, 1982, to consider the advisability of closing the aforesaid portion of Powell Street. At such public hearing, all objections and suggestions will be duly considered.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this resolution be published once a week for four (4) successive weeks in the Daily Reflector; that a copy of this resolution be sent by certified mail to the owners of property adjoining the aforesaid portion of Powell Street as shown on the County tax records; and that a copy of this resolution be prominently posted in at least two (2) places along the aforesaid portion of Powell Street.

Duly adopted this 14th day of October, 1982.

Brewers Go For Series Title Tonight

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Don Sutton's first visit to the World Series was with the Sandy Koufax-Don Drysdale era Los Angeles Dodgers of the mid-60s.

John Stuper was a young baseball fan, growing up in Butler, Pa. then and he remembers those Dodger teams.

"I had this friend," Stuper recalled. "He mixed milk and lemonade so he could get sick and stay home and watch the World Series. And do you know what? It worked."

Sutton, 37 now, is back in the Series again and he'll get the baseball tonight as the Milwaukee Brewers, leading 3-2 in the best-of-seven battle, attempt to nail down their first World Championship in Game 6 against St. Louis.

And his opponent will be the milk and lemonade kid's pal, Stuper, now a 25-year-old Cardinal rookie. The young right-hander has the assignment to keep his team alive and force a seventh game.

Sutton, who won four games for Milwaukee — including the American League East title clincher — in the final month of the season after being acquired from Houston, was asked if he could think of anyone else he'd rather have pitching for his team in this situation.

"Well, maybe a 29-year-old Sandy Koufax or a 26-year-old Tom Seaver," he said.

Since those models are unavailable, the Brewers will take their shot with Sutton, who has 17 years of pitching know-how and uses all of it. Stuper isn't quite as cute in his style.

"I only know one way to pitch and that's to challenge the hitters," Stuper said. "Maybe later I'll learn to nibble."

Sutton and Stuper were the Game 2 starters. Neither was involved in the decision as St. Louis won 5-4. Stuper lasted just four innings that night.

"I hope to pitch a little better and a little longer," he said. "The key is to get ahead of them instead of letting them sit on 2-0 or 3-1 counts. I didn't get ahead and I didn't feel in a good groove that night. I was all over the place."

The pitching pairing is intriguing because it matches a grizzled veteran against a fresh-faced rookie. Does Sutton feel sorry for the kid in this tough circumstance?

"I have no empathy whatsoever," he said.

Stuper didn't expect any.

"I'd be lying if I said there was no pressure," he said. "I'm thinking about it right now and I'll think about it before and after the game. But during the game, it would interfere. It exists, obviously, but I can't let it affect me."

Stuper's major problem, of course, will be to shut down sizzling Robin Yount, who is batting .524 with 11-for-21 in the first five games. Yount has had two four-hit games — the first man in history to do that twice — and is one hit short of the six-game Series record set by Billy Martin of the New York Yankees in 1953.

"There's not much you can do," said Stuper. "I'll try low strikes and hope he hits it at someone."

So far, Yount has avoided that fate. His .524 batting average has him on target for a record. The Series mark for both six and seven games is .500. Dave Robertson did it for the New York Giants in six games in 1917, and Pepper Martin did it in seven games for St. Louis in 1931. The overall Series record is .625 (10-for-16) set by Babe Ruth in the New York Yankees' four-game sweep of the Cardinals in 1928.

The Cardinals' situation is not terribly complicated.

"It's clear cut and simple," said Ozzie Smith, whose stellar defensive work at shortstop has been overshadowed by Yount's big bat.

"Either we win Tuesday or our season is over. I don't think it could be clearer. But we have the type of club that has been up against adversity all year. This club has come a long way together. It all boils down to two wins."

The irony is that the Cardinals seemed in charge of the Series after winning two of the first three games and leading 5-1 in the seventh inning of Game 4. But the Brewers took advantage of a crucial error by pitcher Dave LaPoint to score six unearned runs and win that game, tying the Series.

Then Milwaukee captured Game 5 behind Yount's hitting and a gritty pitching job by Mike Caldwell. Just like that, the Cards were in big trouble.

"You have to be even-tempered to handle this game," said St. Louis catcher Darrell Porter. "This game will humble you in a hurry. We are in a situation where we can't afford to lose. But we can go to our place and win two in a row easy. To say that we are (going to) — I don't know. We could do it in a flash. I'm not conceding anything."

If Stuper, who was 9-7 after being called up in late May, can keep the series going, the Cards would turn to third-game winner Joaquin Andujar for Game 7. Andujar, struck below the right knee by a shot off the bat of Ted Simmons, was expected to be ready.

"He's responding well to treatment and barring any unusual complications in the next 48 hours, he will be able to pitch on Wednesday night if he's needed," St. Louis trainer Gene Gieselmann said Monday.

The Brewers would use Pete Vuckovich, the loser in Game 3, if a seventh game is needed.

Besides pitching, Stuper, who studied journalism in college, is proprietor of the Cardinals' dressing room relaxation, a mock television sports show. He uses an inverted beer bottle for a microphone and conducts incisive interviews.

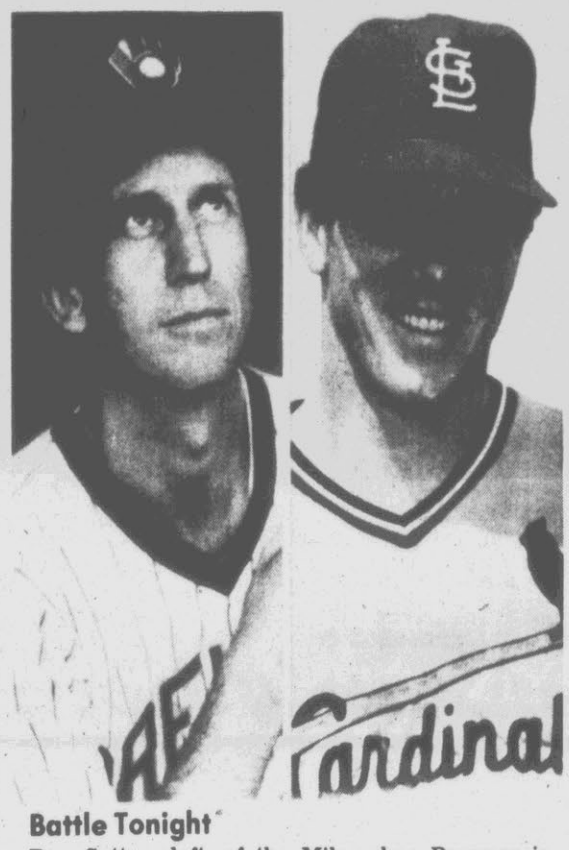

"Mike Ramsey is the best interview but the conversation tends to degenerate. You couldn't print his interview, except if you were Harold Robbins," the pitcher said.

"One of the writers wanted to be a guest. He said he'd tell jokes. I told him, 'Hey, it's our show, not yours.'"

How's the show's rating?

"Out of 100, I'd rate it 101," he said modestly.

If his pitching rates that well tonight, St. Louis will prepare for a seventh game.

Battle Tonight

Don Sutton, left, of the Milwaukee Brewers is slated to start against the Cardinals' John Stuper when the two teams meet tonight in the sixth game of the World Series in St. Louis. Milwaukee can wrap up the championship with a win. (AP Laserphoto)

Huskies Hold To First On AP, UPI Grid Polls

By The Associated Press

The Washington Huskies held onto first place in The Associated Press college football poll for the sixth week in a row Monday, while Alabama dropped from second to seventh and Pitt climbed back into second place.

Washington, a 34-17 winner over Oregon State, received 38 of 56 first-place votes and 1,113 of a possible 1,160 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

While Alabama vacated the runner-up spot by losing to Tennessee 35-28, Pitt, which has been alternating between second and third place for the last six weeks after starting the season No.1, moved back to No.2. The Panthers defeated Temple 38-17 and received 17 first-place votes and 1,050 points.

The remaining first-place ballot went to Georgia, which rose from fourth to third with 974 points for defeating Vanderbilt 27-13.

Southern Methodist, Nebraska and Arkansas also passed Alabama. SMU went from fifth to fourth with 925 points after downing Houston 20-14, Nebraska jumped from sixth to fifth with 840 points by trouncing Kansas State 42-13 and unbeaten Arkansas, idle last weekend, climbed from seventh to sixth with 791 points.

Alabama was seventh with 753 points, followed by Arizona State, Penn State and North Carolina. Arizona State vaulted from 10th to eighth by trimming Texas-El Paso 37-6, Penn State slipped from eighth to ninth despite a 28-7 triumph over Syracuse and North Carolina rose from 11th to 10th by routing North Carolina State 41-9.

The Second Ten consists of UCLA, Southern California, West Virginia, LSU, Notre Dame, Miami, Florida State, Clemson, Texas and Oklahoma.

Last week, it was North Carolina, UCLA, West Virginia, Southern Cal, Illinois, LSU, Miami, Texas, Florida State and Clemson.

Illinois dropped out of the Top Twenty after a 26-21 loss to Ohio State, while Oklahoma, a 38-14 winner over Kansas, reappeared after a five-week absence.

Pittsburgh Again Computer Leader

The Univeristy of Pittsburgh continues to lead in the Reflector Computer rankings, while Washington, leader on both the UPI and AP polls, has dropped off the top 20 here.

Ranked only 15th here last week, the unbeaten Huskies downed winless Oregon State Saturday night, and boosted their computer point total by only 22 points to 104.

Points are awarded for each victory (6), each victim's win (4) and each victim's victim's win (2). Points in ties are split equally between the two teams. Points continue to accumulate throughout the season over previous victims.

The computer rankings thus reflect strength of schedule.

Pittsburgh appears to be making a runaway of it at this point. The Panthers have accumulated 240 points in winning five games, well ahead of number two Georgia, with 186. The Panthers have won five games, four of them over highly regarded teams — North Carolina, Florida State, Illinois and West Virginia. The other win came over Temple University.

Pittsburgh's five wins have brought them 23 secondary and 59 tertiary wins.

While there was a good deal of shuffling among the Top 20, only two newcomers made the poll this week. Brigham Young moved up from 27th place to 17, while Tennessee made a gigantic leap from 45th position to 18th.

The Vols were able to do that with their victory over Alabama, in which they gained 60 points at one blow.

The Top 20 after seven weeks of play:

1. Pittsburgh (5-0)	240
2. Georgia (6-0)	186
3. Penn State (5-1)	174
3. Alabama (5-1)	174
5. West Virginia (5-1)	160
6. Arizona State (7-0)	158
7. Arkansas (5-0)	152
8. UCLA (5-0-1)	143
9. North Carolina (5-1)	142
10. Boston College (4-1-1)	138
10. Florida State (5-1)	138
10. Auburn (5-1)	138
13. New Mexico (5-1)	132
14. Nebraska (5-1)	130
15. Florida (4-2)	126
16. Maryland (4-2)	118
17. Brigham Young (4-2)	116
18. Tennessee (3-2-1)	113
19. Notre Dame (4-1)	110
20. Hawaii (4-2)	108

Only 15 pitchers have won 300 games in major league competition, Gaylord Perry of Seattle being the latest to do so in 1982.

NCAA Presents New Cage Plan

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A plan to toughen membership requirements for the NCAA's top division has been announced, including a stipulation based on minimum scholarship aid.

The plan will be sponsored by the policy-making NCAA Council at the association's annual convention in January.

The council's final proposal makes several adjustments to a tentative plan discussed last month during a meeting of college presidents in Kansas City. That proposal, based primarily on attendance, would have forced an estimated 40-60 lesser basketball-playing schools into the lower divisions.

A spokesman, David Cawood, said he had heard of no estimate on the number of small Division I schools that might be affected by the final plan, which includes the same attendance requirements.

The most notable new wrinkle uses total scholarship aid as a measure of a school's athletic commitment. As explained in this week's edition of the NCAA News, All Division I schools would have to provide at least 50 percent of the financial aid permitted for all Division I sports.

For Division I-A members, the top football schools, the maximum number of scholarships is 180, so the minimum requirement would be 90. For Division I-AA members, the lesser football schools, the minimum would be 80 scholarships. Non-football playing schools, the group the Council hopes to pare down, will need to offer 42.5 scholarships to remain in the top division.

Additionally, basketball programs would need to average more than 3,500 paid attendance per home game the past four years, or average more than 110,000 per season for all basketball games, home and away, the past four years.

All Division I schools also would be required to sponsor a minimum of eight varsity mens sports and be barred from playing more than four basketball games each year against non-Division I opponents.

The membership criteria would become effective Sept. 1, 1984 if approved by a majority vote of the 277 Division I members at the NCAA convention in San Diego in January.

"The objections to the first plan has been that the football-playing schools weren't having to meet the financial criteria the non-football schools were meeting," said Cawood. "The aim is to make sure there is similar criteria for being in Division I whether you sponsor football or basketball."

Pacshal Is The Winner

Herbert Paschal of 1709 Rosewood Dr., Greenville, is the winner of last week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Paschal correctly picked the winners in 26 of the 32 games listed.

Second place went to Jeffrey Miller of P.O. Box 7142, Greenville. He picked the winners in 25 of the games. Miller actually won on the basis of his point total, guessing 88 points. The actual total was 91 scored in Florida's 77-14 win over West Texas State.

Six other contestants picked 25 winners, but were further off the point total.

The two ties were counted as incorrect.

Contestants are also reminded that one only entry per person can be submitted. One potential winner this past week was disqualified for submitting two entries.

The next contest in the series appears in today's paper.

Set Golf Tourney

The University City Kiwanis Club and the Greenville Sports Club will hold an invitational golf tournament on Monday at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Three members of the St. Louis Cardinals baseball team will be on hand for the tournament, and one, Coach Red Schoendienst will be the guest speaker at the Greenville Sports Club on Tuesday, Oct. 26.

The 18-hole tournament will tee off at 12 noon on Monday. A social hour will follow at 4 p.m. with a pig pickin' at 5 p.m. and an awards and auction program starting at 6 p.m.

A $50 donation per person is requested for entry into the tournament.

The field is limited to the first 96 players.

In addition to Schoendienst, pitcher Bob Forsch and trainer Gene Gieselmann will participate in the tournament.

Those interested in participating in the tournament may contact Garner Wholesale Merchandisers or any member of the University City Kiwanis Club.

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

'Cooling Off' Period May Be Asked

COCKEYSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Sources close to both sides in the 29-day-old National Football League players' strike say a cooling-off period in the talks may be called as early as tonight by mediator Sam Kagel to keep the stalled negotiations alive.

Two members of the owners' executive committee and a union source close to the talks said the recess could last for several days.

"I would expect the talks to break off Tuesday or Wednesday, with Kagel calling them back to the table within a couple of days," the union source told The Associated Press.

The two members of the owners' executive committee, who requested anonymity, agreed that a cooling-off period was in order. "I wouldn't call it breaking off; it is more like a recess," said one.

The union and Management Council have been meeting under Kagel's direction since last Tuesday. Since then, some progress has reportedly been achieved in non-economic issues. But the union's demands for a wage scale, central salary fund and percentage of the league's television revenues have barely been touched upon.

A news blackout was placed in effect by Kagel when he arrived last Tuesday and was pierced last Saturday when both sides argued over which one was stalling. On Monday night it was all but shattered when they were reduced to public name-calling in the lobby of the hotel where the talks are being conducted.

The day began with union chief Ed Garvey, union president Gene Upshaw, owners' top negotiator Jack Donlan and his aide Sargent Karch meeting without Kagel to discuss the union's proposed wage scale.

The negotiations then recessed, Garvey taking advantage of the break to return to Washington, D.C., for a conference at union headquarters with several player representatives.

The talks were supposed to resume at 7:30 p.m. But at that time the union, according to one of its spokesmen, requested a one-hour delay.

At 8:30, the union asked for another one-hour delay.

At 9:30, Kagel took matters into his own hands and put off further talks until today.

Within minutes, Donlan strolled through the hotel's lobby and was inundated by newsmen. "We waited all day for a meeting," he told them. "Obviously they had something better to do."

And Jim Miller, the Management Council's public relations director, said, "We were ready to meet at 4:30, 7:30 and 9:30 and we are still ready to meet. Time isn't a luxury."

Barely 30 minutes after Donlan's appearance, Garvey showed up. He was surrounded by the same swarm of reporters. Asked whether he was prepared to resume negotiations, Garvey replied, "We're ready to go right now." And when asked why the talks weren't, therefore, being conducted, Garvey joked: "I suspect both sides are watching the all-star game."

There weren't that may others watching it — in person, anyway. The 70,000-seat Memorial Coliseum in Los Angeles had an announced crowd of only. 5,331 fans in attendance to see the American Conference West team beat the National Conference West (with a liberal sprinkling of players from other divisions on both squads) 31-27.

During the Garvey-UpshawDonlan-Karch conference, sources on both sides agreed a settlement was unlikely at this time, all but assuring that a fifth regular-season weekend of football would be wiped out.

"There is a growing feeling among the participants this is going nowhere," said a union source. And a member of the Management Council said the talks seem to be heading "not toward an agreement."

Garvey said Monday night he hoped the Management Council would change its stance on the wage scale — and insisted the union would not. "There is no possibility of us getting off the wage scale," he said.

'Other' Coaches Find It Tough To Compete In Recruiting Wars

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina colleges battling Atlantic Coast Conference schools for basketball talent can take a lesson from East Carolina coach Charlie Harrison. He simply inherited his new prospects.

Harrison isn't likely to have it that easy in the future, nor will such coaches as Hal Wissel at North Carolina-Charlotte, Mel Gibson at North Carolina-Wilmington, North Carolina A&T's Don Corbett or Campbell's Danny Roberts.

"I didn't recruit them, I inherited them," said Harrison, who took over as Pirate coach a few weeks before practice began, after the recruits had already been signed. "I think the group of new guys are going to help us and have to help us quite a bit the first year."

Tony Robinson, a 6-foot-1 point guard, promises to provide some leadership.

"He has the ability to run a team and play on the offensive end the way I want him to," Harrison said, adding that Curt Vanderhorst, a 6-1 guard from Fayetteville, is another player who may contribute with seasoning.

His other new prospects are 6-6 Johnny Edwards of Laurinburg Institute and 6-8 David Harris of Brooklyn, N.Y., both considered "futures."

Wissel took over at UNC-Charlotte and has four prospects, perhaps led by Emery Atkinson (6-5, 185), Florida's junior college player of the year at Miami Dade-North where he averaged 18.4 points and 10.4 rebounds.

Randy Davis is a 6-1 junior transfer from George Washington where he averaged 13.9 as a sophomore. John Gullickson, 6-3, a transfer from Davidson, was an All-Southern Conference Freshman team performer. He averaged 11.6 points for the Wildcats two years ago.

The fourth prospect is 6-0 speedster Kim Bryant from Yonkers, N.Y., where he averaged 15 points and 7 assists while leading his club to a 21-3 record.

Campbell has four prep signees, a junior college transfer and two transfers from four-year colleges, but Uncle Sam got the guy the Fighting Camels may have needed most.

With the graduation of 7-0 Tony Britto, 6-11 Matt Wilson, a redshirt a year ago, was expected to fill the void. Those expections ended recently when he joined the Army.

Larry Cannady, 6-4, moves in from Chowan J.C. where he averaged 20 points. He is expected to challenge for a starting role. Clark Gillis transferred from Philadelphia Textile and 6-9 Kelvin Nash from Virginia Military Institute.

James Rhone, 6-5, from Fayetteville Cape Fear averaged 25 points his final two prep years and Roberts calls him "instant offense."

Other prep signees were 6-7 Ron Whitted of Fayetteville Byrd, 6-5 Rene Parker of Mandeville, La., and Juan Austin of Greensboro Grimsley.

Players Cheer Turner, But Few Fans Attend To Cheer All-Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As far as the players were concerned, the hero of the second National Football League Players Association-sponsored all-star game wasn't in uniform. And, believe it or not, he's an owner.

San Diego quarterback Ed Luther fired a 54-yard touchdown pass with 12:29 remaining to lift the American Conference squad to a 31-27 victory over the National Conference team in the contest at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The game was televised nationally by the Turner Broadcasting System, and afterward, TBS owner Ted Turner took all the players into one dressing room where the athletes gave him a standing ovation.

"You are the game," Turner, who also owns baseball's Atlanta Braves and the Atlanta Hawks of the National Basketball Association, told the players. "I want you to know I'm with you all the way."

The players then began chanting "Teddy, Teddy, Teddy."

The TBS also televised the first union-sponsored all-star game in Washington, D.C., on Sunday and Turner said the network will do the same with any and all remaining contests. The third one is scheduled at Toronto next Sunday.

The contest, involving players who have been on strike for a month, was reasonably well-played. But financially speaking, the event was a disaster.

The game at the home of the Los Angeles Raiders was played before an announced crowd of 5,331. But Coliseum General Manager Jim Hardy said only 680 tickets were sold for the game.

The seating capacity for Raiders' home games is 70,000.

An announced crowd of 8,760 attended the opening game of the series at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

"I think this is the best system," said Seattle defensive back Kenny Easley of the all-star concept. "This shows that we can play without the owners. Naturally I wish there were a lot more fans."

Luther, who backs up Dan Fouts with the Chargers, completed 10 of 18 passes for 180 yards and two touchdowns. His TD pass to Brown gave the AFC a 31-24 lead.

The NFC drew to within four points on a 22-yard field goal by Detroit's Eddie Murray with 6:48 left, but couldn't score again.

The AFC scored earlier on a 26-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Dan Pastorini of Philadelphia to running back Joe Delaney of Kansas City; a 37-yard field goal by Kansas City's Nick Lowery; a 15-yard pass from Luther to Kansas City's Carlos Carson, and a 29-yard pass from flanker Malcolm Barnwell of the Los Angeles Raiders to tight end Todd Christensen, another member of the Raiders.

Pastorini, an NFC player, competed for the AFC squad because of its shortage of quarterbacks.

Atlanta wide receiver Floyd Hodge scored two touchdowns for the NFC, on a 12-yard pass from Chicago quarterback Vince Evans and an 8-yard pass from Detroit quarterback Eric Hipple. Atlanta linebacker Al Richardson scored the other NFC touchdown when he raced 45 yards with an interception of a Luther pass. Murray added a 40-yard field goal.

The game was billed as an AFC West against an NFC West affair, but players from all six NFL divisions took part.

Luther was named the offensive player of the game, while Denver cornerback Louis Wright was selected defensive player of the game.

Red May Make Lineup Changes For Maryland

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke football coach Red Wilson is contemplating some lineup changes in his defense as his club prepares for its upcoming game with the Maryland Terrapins.

"We will decide on any changes in the lineup later on this week," he said at his weekly news conference Monday. "We will work with the defensive unit and see who wants to play. Everyone will have to prove himself."

Wilson was not satisfied with the defense his team played in a 49-14 thrashing at the hands of defending NCAA champion Clemson last Saturday.

"Our defense did not play with the intensity throughout the game that they should have," Wilson said. "We must work harder this week. I did not see anyone on our football team give up."

Wilson is concerned about the Maryland game since his defense must contend with a potent Terrapin offense that scored 52 points last week in downing Wake Forest, Wilson said he could not afford to take the Terrapins lightly.

"I believe that Maryland was the most underrated team in the ACC in pre-season," he said. "They have a number of fifth year players which rates them as one of the most physically mature teams in the country. They no longer have to depend on a basic running attack. With a quarterback the quality of Boomer Esiason they can throw the ball whenever they need to."

Wilson said his defensive unit would be working on tackling this week in hopes of stalling the Maryland offense.

"The only chance we have of winning is to play error-free ball," he said. "We had poor tackling in the last couple of games. Tackling is mental and we must work to improve this area of our defensive play."

Despite the defensive lapes, Duke's passing attack to continues to click. It's rated fifth in the nation behind the strong arm of quarterback Ben Bennett, who has passed for 5,121 yards to put him third in the ACC for career aerial yardage. Only former Duke quarterback Leo Hart, with 6,116 yards, and former Virginia signal-caller Scott Gardner, with 5,218, have compiled more passing yards.

The Blue Devils are 3-3 on the year, including 0-1 in Atlantic Coast Conference games. Maryland is 4-2, including a 2-0 mark in ACC play.

Claims 25 Percent To Lose NFL Jobs

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Who is going to be out of a job in the National Football League next season?

About 25 percent of the players who are on strike, according to the General Manager the New York Giants.

George Young said Monday that two factors will make about one-fourth of this year's NFL players next year's former NFL players.

The factors: normal attrition and time lost during the four-week-old strike that the players won't be able to make up.

Young says marginal players are caught in a web created by the strike.

"I fell sorry for them," he said. "It's a sad situation."

"Because of the strike, rookies aren't getting experience and they're going to have trouble competing with the class of 1983 because on paper, it's a stronger class," Young said, adding that the Giants had 11 new players on their 49-man roster this season.

"Plus, older players are a year older and by losing the season, they lose an edge," he added.

Young said he is pessimistic about saving this season.

"Slowly but surely, it's beginning to show there's not much room to finish the season," he said. "I don't see light at the end of the tunnel. I've been pessimistic from the beginning because of the circumstances involved."

The general manager contended players are "totally misinformed" by union leaders about the status of the strike and that many don't want a wage scale, one of the major issues in the dispute.

"They're striking for something they don't want and when you have those kind of circumstances, how can you have progress?

"The players don't know anymore than what other people read in newspapers. I feel sorry for them because there are careers involved. It's great to be able to play in the league, but to have that slip away because of something they seem not to be able to control or have a voice in is sad."

Johnny Belinda Back Tonight

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Thomas returns to his rural roots on CBS tonight in an updated remake of "Johnny Belinda." It's a powerful tale of an idealistic man who brings love and communication into a deaf woman's sheltered world.

Jane Wyman won an Oscar for the 1948 movie, about a small-town deaf girl's travails of rape, childbirth and a murder trial. That time, Lew Ayres was a kindly doctor who helped her through the ordeals.

This time, with the eagerly earnest Thomas, John-Boy from "The Waltons" as the star, "Johnny Belinda" is more about the man's story. Despite a chronic case of incredibility, it's a nice, sentimental one.

Bill Richmond comes to the Appalachia-type community as a VISTA volunteer, and initially finds a welcome only from the district nurse (Candy Clark). It turns out she sees Bill as her ticket away from poverty.

Bill meets Belinda McAdam, played with appropriate reserve by Rosanna Arquette. She's supposed to be retarded, but Bill realizes she's a deaf mute. Quicker than you could say Berlitz, he's taught her sign language, and she's transformed into a beauty. She also sees him as more than a teacher.

In a particularly moving scene, Belinda's father, given a crusty dignity by Roberts Blossom, is won over by Bill's sincerity. John McAdam is also excited that his daughter can communicate to him as "father" for the first time.

The acting is first rate, with a notably nasty performance by Dennis Quaid. Last year, he was the heroic friend to Mickey Rooney in "Bill." Tonight, he slips easily into his black hat as the loutish bully, who makes trouble for Bill and Belinda.

Public television's "Mystery!" series begins a delightfully light-hearted tingler tonight, the two-part "Dying Day." It concludes next Tuesday.

"Dying Day" stars Ian McKellen, the British actor known for his Shakespearean roles and his starring performance in the original "Amadeus" on Broadway.

McKellen plays Anthony Skipling, a deadly dull chap whose wife left him because he got on her nerves. As far as anyone can discern, Skipling's only crime is starchiness. So why is somebody trying to knock the poor fellow off?

One day, a bizarre, bearded man sits next to Skipling on a train and begins playing recordings of nature sounds. The man gets up abruptly but leaves one tape. This one has pub sounds, including the voices of two people plotting to kill Skipling on Feb. 28.

"Doesn't know he knows...Have him killed...Professionally."

From that point, Skipling is obsessed with solving the mystery, and you'll be hooked on "Dying Day.".

Seeing a shadow lurking in every shadow, McKellen's tormented Skipling is a comical paranoid, suspicious of those who greet him in the morning, as well as those who do not. It's all so baffling to him. "I'm nobody. I'm nothing," he says.

On the recommendation of his girl friend, Skipling tries being friendly to everybody. That way no way can say he was depressed and committed suicide. So he starts acting like a politician, shaking every hand in sight.

This twister is a "Twilight Zone" with wit and intelligence, and, what's more, the ending can be figured out.

Audience Packs Hall In Tribute To Rubinstein

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — An audience that packed the Waldorf-Astoria grand ballroom Monday night to honor Arthur Rubinstein heard a message telephoned earlier in the day from the pianist in Switzerland.

"Can you imagine how frustrating it feels to be boxed up in an armchair in Geneva instead of being among you to join the fun?" Rubinstein's son John quoted the 95-year-old virtuoso as saying.

Those in the Waldorf's ballroom and its two balconies had paid $500 a plate for a banquet to honor Rubenstein and benefit the Weizmann Institute of Science in Israel.

Rubinstein, who had hoped to attend until his doctor ruled against the plane trip, was being honored for his support of the Weizmann Institute and his contribution to Israel's cultural life.

Sixteen minutes of a televised interview David Frost did with Rubinstein in Geneva in April was shown, followed by a touching speech by conductor Zubin Mehta.

Rubinstein last played in public in 1976. In the interview, he said about his career, "When I played, I spoke about music. Music was in me. Everything I played, I was singing inside. When I played a little piece, it came out of my heart. Then the public started to be fond of me. When I walked out on the platform, they were right away with me, you see. They were right away with me."

Asked how he would like to be remembered, Rubinstein said, "I would like if they like me or love me for what I feel I am. If they exaggerate, I can't stand it. If they try to compare me — a second Paderewski." Rubinstein, making a wry, funny face, for which he has long been famous, added, "I always thought he was a very bad pianist."

Mehta, conductor of the New York Philharmonic and Israel Philharmonic, said that in Rubinstein's last 10 years of playing, he appeared more often with the Israel Philharmonic than with any other orchestra. Mehta said, "I knew that one day I would say that I had the honor of playing with Rubinstein. I didn't realize those days would pass so quickly. There is nobody to fill that.

"There were performances where he was not satisfied with the accompaniment he got — and, boy, did I get it.

"For our making music together, breathing with him on stage, for this I am grateful. I long to call him tomorrow morning, to tell him your little chuckles at his expressions. I want to thank you for honoring him."

Old Songs To Be Featured

ECU News Bureau

Songs from seven decades ago will be featured at the Thursday East Carolina University Artists Series concert by mezzo-soprano Joan Morris and pianist William Bolcom.

Their appearance here, set for 8 p.m. in Hendrix Theater, is part of ECU's anniversary Homecoming events.

Morris and Bolcom have entertained audiences with old songs that were popular during the past century, among them songs such as "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," "After the Ball," "Wait 'Til the Sun Shines, Nellie," and "Meet Me in St. Louis, Louis."

Their live and recorded performanmces of Cole Porter and George Gershwin songs have been praised for the artists' tasteful and charming renditions.

The husband-wife duo has recorded some dozen albums, under the Nonesuch, RCA and Columbia labels. The recordings have received critical plaudits from national newspapers and magazines.

Their TV appearances have included a bicentennial concert with the Boston Pops Orchestra. At present, the two are on the music faculty at the University of Michigan.

Tickets to the Morris-Bolcom concert are available at the Central Ticket Office in Mendenhall Student Center, 757-6611.

Lena Cancels Show To Avoid Dispute

NEW YORK (AP) — Lena Horne has canceled an upcoming engagement of her Tony Award-winning musical in Dallas to avoid being "caught in the middle" of a local racial dispute, her publicist says.

The dispute involved a charity showing of "Lena Horne: The Lady And Her Music." Tickets to the opening night show were to range from $50 to $600, with proceeds to go to "Action for Cultural Arts," which promotes arts in Dallas.

When ticket prices were announced, City Councilwoman Elsie Faye Heggins, who is black, charged that the price was a form of discrimination against blacks.

"This was to have been a charitable event," Miss Horne said in a statement released Monday by the public relations firm of Solters, Roskin and Friedman Inc.

"Charity is something which should be supported by people who can afford it ... regardless of their color," Miss Horne said.

Beverly Sills Is Named To Board

NEW YORK (AP) — Opera star Beverly Sills, an acclaimed soprano for nearly 30 years, has been named to the board of directors of Warner Communications Inc.

Miss Sills, who retired from opera and concert performances in 1980, has been general director of the New York City Opera for three years.

Warner Communications, posting 1981 earnings of $3.24 billion, is a diversified entertainment and communications concern with interests in movies, recorded music and publishing. It also owns Atari Inc., the maker of video games and small computers.

The company's chairman, Steven J. Ross, said Monday that Miss Sills' "qualities of leadership, concern for others, and broad knowledge of all aspects of the arts make her a splendid addition to our board."

Miss Sills has been a director of R.H. Macy Co., the retailer, since 1980, Ross said. She also is a panelist on the National Endowment for the Arts.

New Lebanese Leader

One month ago Amin Gemayel was helping his brother prepare to take office as President of Lebanon. This week the elder Gemayel, 40, elected to lead that nation after his brother's assassination, meets with President Reagan. Many people hope Amin Gemayel can be the conciliator between warring Christian and Moslem militia and foreign troops that threaten to destroy Lebanon. His late brother Bashir and his father Pierre commanded Christian armies. But Amin, a lawyer, has served in Parliament 10 years, working to resolve disputes peacefully between Christians and Moslems. His meetings with President Reagan may determine whether rule by diplomacy can become national policy.

DO YOU KNOW — What political party did Pierre Gemayel found?

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Joe Clark led Canada from May, 1979 to February, 1980.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠.

Some players grab a trick as soon as it is offered. But unlike birds, a trick in hand is not always worth two in the bush!

South had a rebid problem after North's one spade bid was passed round to him. He had a choice between one no trump and a jump in hearts. Eventually he decided that it was more important to stress the quality of his suit. Naturally, the jump rebid to three hearts was not forcing, but North had more than enough to carry on to game.

West started with the king and ace of spades and East completed a peter by first playing the seven and then the five. West continued with a third spade and East ruffed to complete the defender's book. But thereafter declarer was in command.

He won the club return and used the two diamond entries to dummy to take two trump finesses. Ten tricks rolled in, and no one even noticed until much later that East had presented declarer with his contract.

It should be obvious to East that his side is unlikely to take a trick in the minor suits. Declarer has precisely nine cards in the majors, so only four in the minors. Since he must have both the ace and king of clubs for his jump rebid, those cards together with dummy's diamond honors will take care of all declarer's losers in the minors. Therefore, East must score two trump tricks if the contract is to be defeated.

That can be accomplished quite easily if East looks carefully into the position. Instead of ruffing the third spade, he should sluff a diamond! Declarer scores a spade trick, but the contract is no longer makable.

Now there is only one entry to dummy, because East can ruff the second diamond. All East has to do is take care to play the nine or ten of trumps when that suit is led from dummy, and he must get two heart tricks. The doubters among you can try it for themselves.

Says Tight Money Hindering Economy

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — U.S. House majority speaker James C. Wright Jr., D-Tex., says more Democrats are needed in Congress to help straight out the country's economic woes.

"I think we ought to get America moving again," Wright said. "Give us 15 more (Democratic) members in the House and one or two in the Senate and we'll get it moving."

Wright made the comments Monday at the fall Management Conference sponsored by the N.C. Savings and Loan League. He was in the state on the first of a two-day visit primarily to aid Democratic candidates 3rd District Rep. Charles O. Whitley, 4th District Rep. Ike Andrews, 5th District Rep. Steven Neal and 8th District Rep. William Hefner.

He was scheduled to attend two fundraisers today for Andrews in Raleigh.

Wright told the savings and loan group that the Federal Reserve Board's "repressive monetary policy" has hindered the Reagan administration's efforts to boost the economy.

"The two hands are fighting each other," he said. "We've all seen the disastrous results," the Texas Democrat said.

Reagan must plead with Federal Reserve chairman Paul Volcker to loosen the money supply, he said, adding that the board can't continue to permit inflation rates to float.

But Wright said he didn't hold the Federal Reserve responsible for the nation's deficit, but rather he blamed high unemployment and the President's 25 percent tax cut.

Requests	Approved
Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of four requests for solicitation permits in Greenville. Cannon said the requests were submitted by: the Junior Achievement organization of Greenville and Pitt County to conduct a door-to-door solicitation Nov. 1 through March 31 to raise funds for organizing and operating the junior achievement program;	Sadie Saulter PTA to conduct a merchant solicitation Oct. 12 through Nov. 11 to raise funds for the organization through a fall festival; Shrines of The Black Madonna to conduct a sidewalk solicitation Oct. 15 through Dec. 31 to raise funds for the church; and by Red Oak Christian Church to conduct a hot dog and soft drink sale on Oct. 16 to raise funds for abused children.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 10-19

ENKEOK VKXTWHOH YCHPXTOKH YCP-KNPO VKWYOH

Yesterday's Cryptoquip: RETIRED ASTRONAUT USED HIS ROCKER, NOT HIS ROCKET.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: K equals R.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, OCT. 20, 1982

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day to think about and consider the changes that must be made to give you greater expression of your talents. Adopt a more positive attitude in all your dealings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend to an annoying task early and get it out of the way, and then you'll have time for more interesting pursuits.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your intuitive faculties are working just fine and you can become more efficient at your regular routines. Be logical.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Clarify your ideas so that a group matter can be worked out to the satisfaction of all. Strive for increased happiness.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good time to express your true nature to friends and relatives. Forget about a situation that could cause disharmony.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Give more attention to your abilities and you can impress others favorably. Be concerned with making others more comfortable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You could feel tired in the morning but this soon vanishes and you can make the rest of the day a happy experience.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to those duties that need your supervision and gain the benefits they bring. Make this a most memorable evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study your monetary status well and figure out a better way to improve it. Concentrate on happiness tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A time when you should put your finest talents to work and reap the rewards. Show more devotion to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Stretch your budget and you will have ample money to obtain the things you really want. Express love and happiness to others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Follow your hunches and get excellent results today. A new contact could bring you unexpected joy at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan to add some new activity to your present duties and you can become more successful. A happy day for you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one who could be too blunt and talkative so teach to think before speaking and to use tact with others. Teach your offspring to be more understanding of the problems of others. Give good spiritual training.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

The Wachovia 7-Day Money Market Certificate

Another reason why Wachovia is the place for the money you want to invest, but don't want to risk.

Now the best thing about having money to tie up in a high return investment. . .is that you don't have to tie it up for more than a week.

If you have at least $20,000 to invest, are interested in a high rate of return, prefer the shortest term, and want to make certain your investment is safe, the Wachovia 7-Day Money Market Certificate may be for you.

Money Market Rates. Your money will earn at current money market rates, and your interest is compounded daily. A Personal Banker℠ can advise you on the current rate.

Seven Day Term. Every seven days, you can (1) make additional deposits to your certificate, (2) withdraw all of your money with no penalties, (3) withdraw part of your money as long as you maintain a $20,000 minimum, or (4) leave your money on deposit and we'll renew your certificate automatically.

Safety and Stability. At Wachovia, you know your investment is safe, insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and backed by the financial strength of Wachovia, a bank with an unbroken record of stability for over 100 years.

Location Convenience. You can open your 7-Day Certificate, as well as make deposits and withdrawals, at any of our nearly 200 offices statewide.

The Help of a Personal Banker℠. At Wachovia, you have your own Personal Banker to explain the 7-Day Certificate and other Wachovia investment options, and help you determine the combination of investments that's right for you. Anytime you have a question about your investment, simply give your Personal Banker a call.

For More Information. We'd like you to have our brochure explaining the Wachovia 7-Day Certificate and other investment options. It's available at any Wachovia office, or call and a copy will be mailed to you.

Now You Get It All At Wachovia.℠
