Positive Economy Signal From Index Of Indicators

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - A key government economic forecasting gauge rose 0.5 percent in September, reversing an August decline and sending a positive new signal for recovery from the recession, government figures indicated today.

In addition to being apparent good news for the national economy, the new gain in the Index of Leading Indicators was bound to be welcomed by President Reagan, whose economic policies are a main issue in Tuesday's congressional elections.

In fact, White House aides distributed copies of the president's happy reaction even before the report was issued, with the comments embargoed for use afterward.

In those remarks, prepared for a Republican rally in Salt Lake City, Reagan said: "This morning, Americans awoke to see another patch of blue. The leading indicators, which measure the vital life signs of our economy to forecast its future direction, were up in September.

"Pretty soon, even the die-hard doom-peddlers will have to admit it: America is on her way back, and we will lead the way out of this worldwide recession."

The September increase in the index followed an August decline of 0.2 percent that had interrupted four straight months of gains, today's Commerce Department report said.

A Commerce statement accompanying the report said, "Gains in the leading index since March imply a relatively moderate near-term recovery in industrial production."

The statement, which was not credited to any official by name, reiterated the president's contention that the economic problems of the past 15 months were inherited rather than being caused by his administration.

"Rapid inflation and high interest rates were the problems which brought on this recession, and their recent easing has set the stage for recovery," it said. "Gains already evident in the consumer and homebuilding sectors are the leading edges of an upturn which will spread through the rest of the economy."

In September, the report said, five of the index's 10 components improved, with the month's big surge in stock prices making the biggest impact.

Also pushing the index upward was September's gain in building permits for future house construction, an increase in contracts and orders for new plants and equipment, a rise in the nation's money supply and a very slight gain in orders for consumer goods.

The biggest negative impacts came from two labor figures: A decline in workers' average work week and a new rise in initial claims for unemployment benefits. Other negatives were a drop in prices for sensitive crude materials and a decrease in businesses' liquid assets.

There was no change in the rate of business deliveries. Although relatively few

An Uplifting Job

GOING UP! - Lois Borden, window washer, seemed to enjoy her lift to wash windows under eaves of the Fleming-Winstead house at the corner of Third and Green Streets in Greenville. Workers putting the finishing touches on renovation of the house, to be used as Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce offices, employed a fork lift to assist Mrs. Borden in reaching the lofty heights needed to complete her job. (Reflector Photo by Carol Tyer)

DISASTER STRIKES - What appears to be a major disaster is in reality the annual emergency preparedness drill for Pitt County emergency services. Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said the simulated accident was an explosion at a rock concert with about 53 injured persons. Joyner said units from eight Pitt County rescue squads and one fire department sent approximately 75 persons. The drill is held each year in conjunction with the Pitt County Memorial Hospital staff. Each victim was transported to the hospital's emergency department where they were treated like the real thing, even being taken to the doors of the operating room if the "injury" required surgery. Pitt Memorial also sent two doctors and a nurse to the simulated scene. (Reflector Photos by Tommy Forrest)

Pitt Rescue Squad Takes Part In A Mock Disaster

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County rescue squads moved 53 people from the site of a mock disaster on Port Terminal Road just east of Greenville, to Pitt County Memorial Hospital Thursday in 2 hours and 9 minutes during a drill to test the readiness of emergency service and hospital personnel to handle a real disaster situation.
Those transported to the hospital were "victims" of an explosion at a rock concert, Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said.
"The first call went out at 5:03 p.m., and at 5:08 p.m. one of the Eastern Pines (rescue squad) officers was on the scene," Joyner said. "Eastern Pines' truck was out on a real call" at the time and "at 5:09 p.m. Greenville's (Greenville Fire-Rescue Department) truck was on the scene," according to Joyner.
"It was one of the best drills we've had, and the most people we've transported. And all squads in the county sent equipment to the scene except Fountain," which was held in reserve to handle emergency calls in the Farmville-Fountain-Falkland area, the fire marshal said.

Joyner noted that "two doctors and a nurse were on the scene in 33 minutes ... sent by the hospital to help triage (sort) the patients." He said Eastern Pines Fire Department responded with a truck, while Winterville and Simpson fire departments sent manpower.
The "victims" of the explosion were nursing students from Pitt Community College.
Joyner said emergency workers and vehicles had "a lot of trouble with signseers blocking the road," and urged local area residents "not to go to the scene" of a mock or real disaster. "It causes problems at the scene ... traffic hinders rescue efforts," Joyner emphasized.

Carter Prefers Anyone But Kennedy For 1984

NEW YORK (AP) - Jimmy Carter says his first choice for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1984 is Walter Mondale, who served as his vice president, but that several other contenders are more acceptable to him than Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.
The former president said he would "strongly prefer" anyone but Kennedy, the Massachusetts senator who fought Carter almost to the last minute for the party's 1980 nomination.

"My inclination is to support Fritz Mondale, whom I know well and whom I trust and (in) whom I have the utmost confidence," Carter said in an interview on NBC's Today show.
The former president went on to list several other Democrats whom he would choose over Kennedy.
"There are others that I would prefer secondarily," he said. "One would be former Gov. Reuben Askew from Florida; another one would be Sen. John Glenn or Sen. Gary Hart from Colorado, all of whom have professed an interest in the campaign. I could support all of them with great enthusiasm."

Carter said in response to a question that he could support Glenn even though the Ohio senator opposed him on the proposed and still unratified Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty II with the Soviet Union.
The former president, who has been promoting his book of presidential memoirs that will be officially published next week, denied he would be "destructive" of Kennedy's bid if he was the nominee.
"No. Certainly not if he was the nominee of our party, but I would strongly prefer that our party nominate someone else," Carter said.

UNICEF FEEDBACK
The recent Hotline appeal for volunteers for the Halloween canvass of Greenville for the United Nations Children's Fund was successful, chairman Carolyn Parsley said. She reported that adults and children from 18 churches, two sororities and one fraternity will visit homes throughout the city Sunday, the day designated as National UNICEF Day.
UNICEF, founded in 1946 as an emergency aid organization to help children in Europe after World War II, cooperates in basic services projects in 112 countries and promotes awareness of children's needs everywhere, Mrs. Parsley said.

YARD SALE ITEMS NEEDED
Parents Anonymous self-help group for parents under stress will hold a yard sale Nov. 6. Anyone having items they wish to donate may call 752-0119. Pickup can be arranged.

Cites Gain In Industry-Hunt

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - Gov. Jim Hunt told 200 Charlotte business executives Wednesday that his administration's industry-hunting efforts have secured industrial expansions promising 174,000 jobs since 1977.

Hunt said that has helped carry North Carolina through the recession.

Chief Advises Added Caution For Trick-Or-Treaters

Greenville Police Chief Glenn Cannon this morning urged local area children - the Witches, Goblins and Ghosts - who will be trick-or-treating this Halloween weekend to use caution and obey safety rules while on their rounds.
He said, too, that parents have a responsibility to see that their children know what is safe and what isn't.
Cannon suggested that trick-or-treat outings should be made "before dark" if possible, saying Sunday from 4 p.m. until 6 p.m. would be a good time. He said children should stay in their own neighborhoods where they know the neighbors.

If costumes are being used, Cannon said they should be made of non-flammable material and said full face masks that would obstruct the child's vision should not be used.
He also said candles should not be carried by youngsters. However, he said if children are out after dark, they should carry flashlights to light their path and to make them more visible to motorists.
To prevent a traffic mishap, the chief said children should use sidewalks and not walk in the street. He also cautioned children to stop and look both ways before crossing a street.

He said drivers should be especially watchful for children that might dart out into the street.
"The safest thing," the chief said, "is for parents to accompany their children on trick-or-treat outings."
"The best plan," Cannon said, is "for children not to accept treats from strangers." He said, too, that children should not eat any candy or other "treats" until their parents inspect the item.
Suggesting that people might give small toys rather than candy or fruit this Halloween, Cannon said parents should make sure that only candy and other edibles wrapped in sealed containers should be eaten. "If a package has been opened, throw it away," he said.
The chief said homeowners can help by turning on outside lights after dark. Cannon said the light will make it safer for children traveling through the neighborhood and might deter acts of vandalism.

Dear Abby

Do Jokes Reflect Perversity?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am an innocent victim of herpes II — the genital kind. It's an epidemic now, so my kind of misery has a lot of company, but that doesn't make me feel any better. What really infuriates me, Abby, is the way some comedians are now making herpes jokes! Can you believe it? Every time I hear a herpes joke I want to cry. Do people really think an incurable disease is funny? I am a 40-year-old divorced mother.
Please print this. It may help.

HURTING ENOUGH

DEAR HURTING: I'll print your letter, but I doubt if it will help. From time immemorial people have been making jokes about every conceivable human misery. For every tragedy there is a joke. There are jokes about death, rape, cancer, hunger, poverty and impotency. Without thinking, people repeat jokes about fat people, ugly people, the mentally disturbed, the blind, deaf and elderly.

It's perverse to say the least, but there must be just a tad of perversity in all of us.

The late Dorothy Parker wrote this witty little poem using as her theme a tragic and painful subject — suicide:

"Razors pain you;
"Rivers are damp;
"Acids stain you;
"And drugs cause cramp.
"Guns aren't lawful;
"Nooses give;
"Gas smells awful;
"You might as well live."

DEAR ABBY: On Monday, a good friend of mine called and invited me to her home for a small dinner party on Saturday. On Friday she phoned to say that the dinner was off because one of the guests was sick and couldn't make it. Then she said, "I hope you don't mind, but I don't feel like cooking a big meal just for you."
Should I feel hurt? Angry? Insulted? Resentful?
PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: None of the above. Feel flattered that she considered you a close enough friend to have been perfectly candid with you.

DEAR ABBY: My 19-year-old daughter is in love with a 20-year-old fellow I'll call Mel. Both are in college, and neither wants to marry until they graduate. They had a lovely relationship until Mel's mother told him that if he had any contact with my daughter (calling or seeing her) before he graduates — which is two years from now — he cannot live at home or get one dime from his family. Mama feels if they are really in love, they can wait two years. In other words, she has absolutely forbidden any contact between them!

Mel has told my daughter that he loves her, but he can't afford to give up the comforts of a nice home or his parents' financial support until he graduates.

Meanwhile my daughter is bewildered and heartbroken. I advised her to forget the guy — he's already made his choice. If he really loves her, nothing could keep them apart, so she should go on with her life and not wait around for him.

Please advise this confused girl, Abby.
NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: With a mother as smart as you, your daughter doesn't need any advice from Dear Abby.

DEAR ABBY: We are perplexed by a wedding invitation we just received. The ceremony is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. The "reception" is to follow, and get this, the bride-to-be wrote, "The reception will be a covered dish affair. Each guest is expected to bring an item of food. RSVP."

Is this a new trend, or are these people just plain tacky? When the guests provide the food, does this mean they are still expected to bring a wedding gift?
HEARD EVERYTHING IN PA.

DEAR HEARD: Tacky? Not for very dear and close friends who understand that this is an informal, low-budget affair. A new trend? Yes.
Also, a gift is voluntary. It is never obligatory.

DEAR ABBY: I have a suggestion for people who loan money to others and never get it back. Send them this poem:

"I think that I shall never see
"The dollar that I loaned to thee,
"A dollar that I could have spent
"On many forms of merriment.
"The one I loaned to you so gladly
"Is now the one I need so badly.
"For whose return I had great hope
"Just like an optimistic dope.
"For dollars loaned to folks like thee
"Are not returned to fools like me."

Quick Meals Can Be Tasty

Busy homemakers can serve meals that are attractive, tasty and nutritious and still make use of the less expensive and tender cuts of meat.

Beef for stew, which requires long, slow cooking, may be partially cooked the night before it is to be served and then refrigerated. The next day, add onions, potatoes and carrots to the meat and cook all until tender.

Gelatin salad can also be prepared the night before to accompany the hot stew, says Rachel Kinlaw, extension food specialist at North Carolina State University.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Some years ago a friend gave me a recipe for what she called African Chicken. What made the dish so good was the combination of ingredients in the sauce — onion, celery, green pepper, tomatoes and peanut butter.

Recently I had a bright idea. Why not use the sauce ingredients as the base for a peanut soup? We did just that, substituting a red pepper for the green pepper and adding grated carrot. Here is the happy result.

Masquerade Ball

The Roxy Music, Arts and Crafts group will hold its eighth annual Halloween Masquerade Ball Sunday from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Moose Lodge here.

Hints of 40's, 50's Seen In Designs

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Swirling circle skirts hinting at '50s chic and capelets straight from the glamorous '40s have found their way into spring collections of two of fashion's heartiest individualists.

Pauline Trigere, the French iconoclast whose black dresses have become an institution, and Koos van der Akker, known for his bright collages, on Wednesday offered dazzling new interpretations of familiar forms. And they did it without compromising their signature looks.

The Trigere cocktail dress was at its sexiest ever in sheer wavy black lace gracing a full skirt and set off by a plunging neckline that might have left little to the imagination.

As always, however, Miss Trigere managed to be discreet. A nip here, a tuck there; a wisely placed brooch did the trick. She also offered classic double knits in red and navy suits that featured a straight skirt topped by a fitted jacket over a close-fitting double-breasted vest.

But her dazzling new look had full swirling skirts, some done in pleats, cinched with cummerbunds for the tiny-waisted look that worked so well three decades ago. Fabrics were crepe, silk and cotton voile.

What could only be called the gladiola skirt made its debut in a sheer cotton, the voluminous navy skirt dotted with huge white gladiola designs. A sheer white blouse with billowing long sleeves completed the look.

Bows were everywhere — knotted at the neck like a big collar or setting off a waistline. Capes and big-shouldered jackets from the '40s covered sleek halter sundresses.

White puckered capelet sleeves that puffed out from an otherwise straight-lined black shift dress were perhaps a bit of humor by Miss Trigere, as was the print pattern she offered that resembled Pac-Man. She insisted it was not influenced by the popular video game.

Her evening wear was glamorous, with shimmering metallic lace making its appearance on flowing gowns and sequins dotting cotton voile.

Koos also liked the glittery look. His evening wear also relied on metallic lace paired with to-the-floor pleated skirts and rippled high-neck Victorian collars.

But the Koos trademark collages and broad graphics made even the full '50s-style skirt or suits he offered for daywear unexpected.

A full knit red skirt was topped with a bolero-style red jacket that had wide black bric-a-brac edging the lapel and jacket bottom.

Sundresses in melon-colored and green stripes, and skirts with strips of multi-colored plaids, prints and stripes were imprinted with a jagged lightning bolt of color typical of the Koos line.

The effect was that of an artist's palette, lending an air of drama and unpredictability to the most familiar form.

King-Cole Shower Held

A floating miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Joanne Lisa King, bride-elect of Bobby Cole Jr., was held recently at the home of Mrs. Edna Adams of Greenville.

The bridal couple, seated together in the formal living room, were presented gifts. Sprays of ivy and white paper bells were used to accent the room. Miss King was presented a corsage of pink carnations and baby's breath. Mrs. Cathy Brown and Ms. Karen James assisted her with the gift registry.

The refreshment table was covered in white linen and featured an arrangement of blue and white silk flowers flanked by candles in silver holders. The punch bowl was surrounded by sprays of ivy. Punch was served by Mrs. Sharon Craft.

The shower was given by friends of the bridal couple, to be married Nov. 7 in a garden ceremony.

Drug Use Is Down

American young people are using less of some drugs but more of others, says Dr. Leo Hawkins, extension human development specialist at North Carolina State University.

A recent study conducted by the Department of Health and Human Services found the use of cigarettes and marijuana among high school seniors had declined since the late 1970's. Use of alcohol remained the same.

Use of amphetamines and cocaine had increased.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Do not refrigerate eggplant, rutabagas, hard-rind squashes and sweet potatoes. They should be stored at 60 degrees. If these vegetables must be kept at room temperature, use them within a week.

Life As It's Lived

Some People Naturally Like Preserving Trash

By GAIL MICHAELS
Meg was really excited about her school's recent PTA open house. The class had made witches to adorn the walls and pumpkins to grace the desks. They had stuffed Sadie Scarecrow and seated her in the reading center. The teacher had even taped Meg's picture of a witch flying past the Sun-sphere at the World's Fair to the outside of the classroom door.

In other words, the open house promised to be a perfect theme party for Meg's favorite holiday.

Almost perfect, that is. The affair had only one drawback. "We had to clean out everything," Meg sighed. "Even our desks. I had to throw away some of my best scraps."

Only the parents of a bonafide packrat can understand how traumatic an action this was for Meg. Meg saves everything: the price tags off new clothes, used Baggies, grocery receipts, old coloring books, shoe boxes and paper sacks.

"I might need them for something," she explains. "Scraps can be very valuable."

I can identify with this logic. It's the same reason I save any odd bit of fabric that measures over 9 inches in diameter. I sew about twice a year, but my material scraps are now overflowing one chest of drawers and are threatening to take over the hall closet. Still, I keep collecting. It's a compulsion, like Phillip's inability to dispose of old newspaper clippings, ancient check stubs, brochures on a frog farming venture in Okefenokee, and 12 pictures he took of a railroad track for a photography class in 1969.

In short, with these three filing cabinets, two desks, and assorted drawers and closets crammed with the remnants of Phillip's and my determination to save everything but money for the future, Meg's reluctance to part with her treasures should have been predictable. But predictability doesn't resolve the real predicament of a paper miser; she inevitably loses track of what she's got. Upon beginning an applique project, I may vaguely remember that I have some appropriate scraps. Not being able to find them, however, I immediately go out and add to my collection.

Similarly, Meg's current artistic creation may call for several scraps of blue construction paper. Yet, she never bothers to salvage the mangled paper jamming her art drawer. Instead, she cuts up a new piece, and whatever is left of it is stuffed in beside its brothers.

The huge amount of trash she generates in this manner makes it imperative that her room be purged periodically. And given Meg's almost pathological aversion to trash cans, this task falls to me. I take a large plastic trash bag, set it in the middle of her room and start pitching. The last time I did this, I filled one bag with crushed art projects, broken rubber bands, all the paper from seven paper doll books, 12 flattened Band-Aid boxes and two accordion-pleated Burger King Crayon Meal boxes, all from the floor of her closet. I hadn't even started on her desk drawers.

I stamped my foot into the trash bag and added the packaging from a Barbie doll and her wardrobe, volumes of phonics papers, most of them marked, "Use the appropriate colors for these pictures, not just purple," and two shapeless hand-decorated cardboard gift boxes.

I was really worried about her reaction to the absence of the school work and the boxes. I had ascertained at the first of the school year that she was saving her school papers for posterity. She was saving the boxes for Christmas. So when she came home from school that afternoon, I thought it best to warn her before the inconsolable howling started that I had done some tidying. She walked into her room, looked around, and shrugged her shoulders. "I don't see what you did." I wonder if this disposal method will work with Phillip.

Suing Over Fatal Crash

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Actress Mary Martin is suing a cab company, a cab driver and the driver of a van involved in a collision at a San Francisco intersection that injured her and killed her manager.

In a suit filed Thursday, the Broadway actress asks unspecified damages from the Sept. 5 crash.

Also injured were film star Janet Gaynor, 75, and her husband, producer Paul Gregory, 62. Ben Washer, 76, Miss Martin's manager and longtime friend, was killed.

Miss Gaynor, the first actress to win an Academy Award, recently was transferred from the intensive care unit of San Francisco General Hospital. Her condition was upgraded from serious to satisfactory.

Miss Martin, 68, best known for her Broadway roles in "South Pacific" and "Peter Pan," is suing Veteran Cab Co., which owned the cab that carried the four passengers; one of its drivers, Ronald B. Drury; van driver Robert Cato, 32; and Thomas Muller, identified in the suit as owner of the van.

The suit says Veteran Cab Co. was negligent by allowing use of an unsafe taxi and by insufficient training for Drury. A cab company employee, who refused to give his name, said Thursday night that no one was available to comment on the suit.

Cato has been charged with vehicular manslaughter, drunken driving, speeding and running a red light. He has pleaded innocent and is awaiting trial.

Illegal Money Scary

There is so much illegal money in the narcotics trade these days it is frightening.

Many people today remember fortunes were accumulated by bootleggers during the Prohibition Era; but they were as nothing compared to the unbelievable wealth being collected (and spent) by the narcotics king-pins.

The greatest treasures of pirates of the past are dwarfed by the trade; the greatest financial scoundrels of modern history have been outdone.

One great lesson of the past remains, and that is: criminal wealth corrupts. It's a matter of historical fact.

And that historical fact may have already begun to gnaw away at the institutions of our society which must remain incorruptible. There is just no way of knowing.

Some $100,000 or $500,000 may loom large when offered as a payoff to public servants. Maybe too large for some. To drug dealers that is not so much, especially if they get what they want.

When one small airplane laden with $300 million in cocaine was captured in Georgia this week ... and the knowledge that it was just one such cargo of an unknown number ... a shudder of very real fear was in order.

Kate Smith Earned Honor

It came in the twilight of her years, but the presentation of a Presidential Medal of Freedom to Kate Smith can be and should be endorsed by all Americans. The singer never fired a rifle in anger, but her efforts in selling war bonds to help finance this country's military operations was a tremendous contribution to the successful ending of World War II.

As President Reagan said in presenting the award in Raleigh

Tuesday: "Her voice has earned her a place in the history of this country. Kate always sang from her heart and we always listened with our hearts."

Miss Smith, now in her 70s and confined to a wheelchair because of diabetes and several strokes, moved to Raleigh to live with a sister several years ago. Her life there has been similar to the way she sang, simply but meaningfully.

THIS AFTERNOON

Public Policy Issue

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Foreigners now own a quarter million acres of North Carolina farm and timber land. Is that something that ought to concern us?

Beyond the knee-jerk reaction that there's something wrong with foreigners owning that much American land lies a very complex public policy question. A special legislative committee plans a pair of meetings on the question in late November and in January the General Assembly will most certainly be asked to restrict foreign land purchases in North Carolina.

Sen. Vernon White, committee co-chairman, sees foreigners making large land purchases in almost every county surrounding his Pitt County home. "They own the farmland and they can do anything that they want to do with what they raise," he says. "Farmland is the one thing they're not making any more of, it's our most important resource and I would hate to see that get into the hands of aliens."

Foreigners own 247,800 acres of North Carolina real estate, a June, 1981 federal report says. Another 20,000 acres were bought last year, state agriculture officials estimate. The pace of purchases could pick up quickly if the economic conditions which encourage such land-buying return.

When White introduced legislation to restrict foreign land purchases in the state last year, a number of economic arguments were presented to support his bill. It's felt that a foreign landowner will take his profits out of the community. Whereas Farmer Brown spends his crop money on clothes at the local store, the English farm conglomerate sends the profits back to London.

Foreign investors, it is argued, are also likely to bring much of their own equipment with them — thus denying the local equipment dealer of sales he'd make if Farmer Brown stayed on the land.

But there are also arguments for allowing foreigners to buy farmland here. Many farmers protested against White's bill when it came before the 1981 session.

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

They said foreigners will often buy out a farmer but then leave the farmer to manage the land. So the farmer gets a big payoff and gets a good paying job too.

Instead of draining local capital, some argue, foreign purchases increase the wealth of a community by bringing in new money which is then used to create jobs and buy equipment locally.

Dave McLeod of the N.C. Department of Agriculture says many of the foreign investments here are related to timber. Foreign firms have bought idle North Carolina land and put it to use. First the scrub pines are harvested and then carefully managed forests are planted. Of the 250,000 acres under foreign control, 78 percent is timber land — not all of that, of course, was previously lying idle.

If White's committee recommends legislation that bars foreigners from purchasing farm or timber land in the state, they're likely to run into opposition from Gov. Jim Hunt. In 1981, Hunt expressed concern that such a law could hamper the state's efforts to attract foreign industry to the state. Concessions White made apparently did not mollify Hunt's concerns. White says Hunt's support for any bill his committee proposes is essential.

The 1981 bill said foreigners could not buy agricultural land — it did not prohibit ownership of other kinds of real property. It also gave foreigners the right to buy agricultural land for conversion to other purposes, but said that conversion had to be made within five years.

White says he expects his committee to make a few changes in the law proposed in 1981, but not many.

Other Editors Say A Humdinger

(Washington Daily News)

We very conscientiously believe that the people of North Carolina will be witnesses to one of the most unusual political contests ever staged in this state in 1984 when Senator Jesse Helms and Governor Jim Hunt hook up in the battle for the United States senate.

It is going to be unusual for one specific reason. Both men are so well known all over North Carolina that the job of "selling" either one to the people will surely be sidelined. There will be issues debated, of course. There will be charges and counter-charges. The record of Mr. Helms as a senator and the record of Mr. Hunt as a governor will be held up before the people both in terms of praise and ridicule.

We expect all the normal procedures in a political campaign to take place. The issues will be debated thoroughly. Both will campaign throughout the state. The ages of each man will be put before the people. (Age will not really be a factor except for information. In November, 1984, Mr. Helms will be 63 years of age and Mr. Hunt will be 47 years of age.)

Experience will be argued thoroughly. Mr. Helms will cite his experience as senator and the lack of this particular experience by Mr. Hunt. But Mr. Hunt will point to his long executive experience as governor and his thorough indoctrination in government workings.

The political views as to conservative versus liberal ratings will be aired with a completeness and with a charge-and-denial basis that heretofore we have not witnessed from these two men.

So all the regular political contest trimmings will be there. But there is one other factor, which in our opinion, will outweigh all others. That one overriding factor is personality. With two strong personalities in such a political contest, with both so well known in every nook and corner of this state, the political race very likely will be the number one senatorial contest in the United States. It will be watched and followed closely all over the country. Here is an arch-conservative Republican running against a moderate Democrat. Here are two strong-willed personalities in a political clash with the noise sure to be heard around the world.

Personalities will be stronger than issues in this race. Each candidate has a strong base of loyal support readily available now. As time passes, more and more North Carolinians will be taking sides.

It will be a humdinger.

AN ATTENTIVE EAR---TEMPORARILY ANYWAY!

By Walter R. Mears

A Weakened Coalition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even if the most optimistic Republican forecasts come true, next Tuesday's elections will put a crimp in the House coalition that helped launch Reaganomics — and that raises the potential for stalemate in the next Congress.

Not that President Reagan's sometime Democratic allies are in campaign trouble. Most of them are from conservative congressional districts, and most of them will be back.

But for every House seat an opposition Democrat gains from an administration-line Republican, Reagan's coalition builders will have to find two Democrats willing to defy their party leaders on tough economic issues in the 98th Congress.

There will be no shortage of tough economic votes. Reagan has said he is nowhere near done with his drive to curb federal spending, although he'll want more for defense. He says there will be vetoes any time Congress exceeds his budget limits. He plans to renew the push for a constitutional amendment to seek a balanced federal budget.

And there is an even more difficult issue coming up to join those standbys. Reagan's commission on Social Security reform is due to report before the end of the year, and the new Congress will have to act to raise revenues or cut costs in order to keep that system solvent. The commission study has been a welcome political shelter this campaign year, but time is about up.

None of what Reagan wants is going to happen without Democratic support in the House. The budget restraints that were the first installment of his economic program passed the House by a six-vote margin, with the support of 29 Democrats. There were wider margins on later tax and spending reduction measures, some of them deceptively wide because of Democrats who waited out roll-call votes or switched to the winning side once the outcome was evident.

The crucial bloc remains the 30 or so Democrats most likely to side with Reagan when he most needs them.

That bloc won't be enough if the Democrats gain as few as 10 to 15 seats next week, a below-average pickup the Republicans say would represent a major victory for the president's party.

"We'll just have to put together a new coalition," said a top Reagan aide, who asked that his name not be used. But that will be more difficult in a more Democratic, presumably more liberal House of Representatives.

It might take compromises Reagan won't buy, or can't afford for the risk of alienating his conservative political base.

John Sears, the campaign manager Reagan fired in 1980, says there could be a sort of political trench warfare next year, with both sides repeating old refrains and neither side capable of advancing.

There could be a preview this year when Congress returns in lame-duck session after the elections. There's plenty to do, beginning with the 13 appropriations bills that were supposed to have been passed before Oct. 1. But not much happens in lame-duck sessions except speeches. The party that gained strength in the elections has an incentive to stall and leave as much business as possible for the new Congress that will take office in January.

"One could easily presume a kind of paralysis enveloping the Reagan administration in which the Congress becomes unmanageable in early 1983 as it tries to distance itself from a president perceived as unpopular and from policies rejected by the voters," says Sears, a Washington lawyer, writing for the American Enterprise Institute. "A president in the final two years of his term finds his powers severely diminished if his poll figures are poor."

"As every day goes by, the steady increase of political news brought on by the approach of the next presidential race reduces the ability of any president to view things substantively," he writes. "As a result, the last two years of recent administrations have been the most difficult — Johnson was hounded from office, Nixon was forced to resign, Ford became immobile and Carter became irrelevant."

"One would hope that Ronald Reagan will prove himself more resourceful than his predecessors."

An Alliance Is No More

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
PEORIA, Ill. — House Republican leader Bob Michel has had to raise a half-million dollars and campaign as never before to save his House seat because the Reaganite dream of permanent allegiance from the blue-collar worker for the Republican Party is dead in Peoria.

Michel leads his neophyte Democratic challenger and would be defeated on as part of a nationwide Republican bloodbath Nov. 2. Nevertheless, he is losing by 5 percentage points or more in the Peoria metropolitan area, an historic bastion of blue-collar Republicanism.

Bob Michel remains personally popular and is spoken of with respect even by Democratic leaders here, but he is essentially a traditional Midwestern conservative Republican with none of the populist appeal of a Ronald Reagan or a Jack Kemp. That makes it difficult for him to cope with today's Peoria, where unemployment is probably higher than the official 15-plus percent. Counting striking workers at the huge Caterpillar plant, it is over 25 percent. To win his 14th term in Congress, Michel relies on carrying rural areas by 2-10-1.

Nowhere is the change more dramatic than among 20,000 United Auto Workers (UAW) members at the Caterpillar plant, 13,000 on strike and the rest laid off. UAW local President Jim O'Connor claims 80 percent of his members supported Reagan in 1980 and hooted at him for wearing a Carter-Mondale button; today, longtime Republicans and recent Reaganites alike are aligned against Michel.

Official UAW opposition to Michel is inevitable, but bitterness derives from the absence of dialogue over the years between the congressman and the union. O'Connor calls Michel "an arrogant s.o.b." who has claimed he doesn't need the UAW and the congressman's men concede that he might well have said that in pique over the union's hostility.

Polarization in Peoria was intensified by the strike. Asked whether it would hurt him, Michel told us "the strike could very well tend to work the other way" — reflecting Republican hopes of an anti-UAW backlash. But even businessmen here concede that Caterpillar management, burdened by huge inventories amidst global depression, provoked the strike.

The Teamsters, traditionally more congenial to Michel and the Republicans and active supporters of Reagan in 1980, are now ardently anti-Michel. Local President Robert Barker, who reproaches himself for supporting "that phony," (Reagan), told us: "We all became conservatives. We had it too damn good, with big cars and other things. Those things are gone now."

Indeed, the Teamsters helped recruit Doug Stephens, a 31-year-old personal-injury lawyer as Michel's first serious opponent since 1956. Stephens, late father was a Teamsters business agent and he grew close to the UAW shile representing their members in workmen's compensation cases against Caterpillar.

Stephens follows organized labor's current economic line: repealing the third year of the Reagan tax cut and barring the import of competitive foreign products. He is careful to avoid the elitist pitfalls that in recent years have permitted Republican inroads among the blue collar; Stephens takes ambiguously-shaded stands against abortion and gun controls.

But there is precious little debate about taxes, tariffs or social issues here. Badly outspent but not outshouted, Stephens has hammered at Michel for waiting until August to break with President Reagan on Soviet gas pipeline sanctions devastating to Caterpillar. Michel's prowess in ushering the Reagan program through the House thus becomes a liability. Some Republicans here even doubt the wisdom of Reagan's campaign trip to Peoria Wednesday.

Michel's new 30-second television commercial tries to demonstrate that his leadership role benefits his district. A two-year-old news clip showing Rep. Kemp, chairman of the House Republican Conference, introducing Michel as the newly-elected floor leader is followed by a kaleidoscope of

Strength For Today

THE REAL REASON FOR PRAISING GOD

All through the Bible we find the injunction to praise God. Skeptics have maintained that there is an inherent contradiction in this command. If God is all-powerful and all-loving, then he would not be affected one way or the other by our praise, and we would better have saved our breath. On the other hand, if God feels affection for us only when we praise Him, then He is exhibiting simple human vanity and does not have the loving qualities we attribute to Him.

But this argument misses the point. We praise God not because of its effect upon Him but because of its effect on us. It puts life and passion into our love for God. In the act of praise we feel His nearness. If men and women did not praise God He would finally become an impersonal, distant power having little sympathy with the affairs of individual human beings. Therefore, praising God is an indispensable element of religion. Without it, religion becomes a mere acknowledgement of a power that is above ourselves. — Elisha Douglass

Few Have Great Expectations

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — With mortgage rates falling, people in the housing industry are picking up the pieces and returning to their businesses on the slopes of the volcano, trying to disregard whatever rumblings remain.

Unlike five years ago, just before an interest rate eruption overwhelmed them, most are making no big plans and have no great expectations. Some, in fact, are ready to run if they hear any more tremors in the credit markets.

Customers too may be slow to return. Although telephone surveys by the National Association of Realtors showed traffic at real estate offices picked up in September, sales did not. Lots of people were just looking.

Sales of existing houses in September remained at 1.8 million units, the same as in August and the lowest figure for the four-year housing depression. But now, says

Kenneth Kerin, Realtor economist, some improvement can be seen.

Kerin estimates that October resales will come to about 1.9 million, and that the improvement might continue into 1984 if interest rates come down a bit more. But, he says, "it will be modest, it won't be a booming recovery."

Kerin expects that if interest rates for fixed, long-term mortgages fall to 13.5 percent — his surveys show most are now about 14 percent to 14.2 percent, plus 2 points — resales will rise to 2.4 million units for the year.

As he sees it, the low point will be in the first part of the year, with volume of about 2 million units, rising to an annual rate of 2.8 million units by late in the year. No bad, but not even close to the 4 million rate at which existing houses were selling in October 1978, just before the collapse.

The National Association of Home Builders also feels the worst is over. But they too are forecasting no boom. The 1,050,000 new-home starts foreseen for 1982 would make it the worst year since 1946. Next year, the NAHA expects a 1.35 million figure, still low but rising.

From there, says Bob Sheehan, director of economic research, the recovery is likely to produce about 1.6 million starts in 1984 and 1.7 million in 1985, peaking out around 1986.

Overall, the Home Builders are probably more optimistic about interest rates. Although Sheehan concedes some people fear another substantial rise, his expectation is that fixed, long-term mortgage rates could be under 13 percent by the middle of next year. "We think there will be adjustments, but that the trend will be slightly down through next year," he explained.

Throughout the industry is a feeling that bargains abound. "It's a buyers' market," says Kerin, whose figures show only a 1.5 percent increase on posted prices of existing houses over the past year. But, he added, "we know that overstates" the true prices which, he believes, are down 6 percent to 8 percent when below-market seller financing is included.

"In 1982, housing was not an effective hedge against inflation," said Kerin. "We expect that as the market opens up in 1983 prices will hold their own." But, he said, "there will be no surge beyond the rate of inflation," which the Realtors expect will be somewhere around 6 percent.

Sheehan's figures show no change in the median price of new single-family homes over the past year, which means it is really lower when inflation is considered. "With recovery, there should be some firming," probably about 7 percent to 8 percent, he said, which would mean a median of about $77,000.

Ron Taylor Gets 23 Years For Role In Burnings

By ROBIN TEATER
Associated Press Writer

WINDSOR, N.C. (AP) — One attorney for former state Rep. G. Ronald Taylor, sentenced to a total of 23 years for his part in a burning scheme earlier this year, characterized his client as a young man who made the wrong choice at a crucial time.

Attorney Martin Brackett of Charlotte, who was with Taylor when he was sentenced in Bertie Superior Court Thursday, stressed the pressure Taylor was under due to problems with his family farming business.

"Taylor was basically a good man ... who, at a key point in his life, chose the wrong path to follow," Brackett told Superior Court Judge George Fountain.

Brackett was referring to an incident April 23, when three warehouses belonging to a Taylor business competitor, state Sen. J.J. "Monk" Harrington, D-Bertie, were destroyed by fire at a loss of about $1.2 million.

Taylor, 30, a Bladen County Democrat, pleaded guilty in August to unlawful burning and conspiracy to burn the Lewiston warehouses. He received a 20-year prison term for the conspiracy charge and was handed a three-year term for unlawful burning Thursday.

Tears welled up in Taylor's eyes for a moment as he listened to his attorneys explain the events leading up to his arrest.

Allen Bailey of Charlotte, Taylor's other attorney, said the former lawmaker "took the easy route of accepting bribes from undercover FBI agents posing as underworld gangsters because he didn't know how to deal with the adversities of life."

Undercover agents, according to testimony, once taped Taylor talking with another man. Prosecutors identified one voice as Taylor's in a sentencing hearing Wednesday in which the voice discussed killing a man.

Also on Thursday, two Clarkton men who pleaded guilty in the case were sentenced. Fountain sentenced Graham Franklin Bridgers to 20 years in prison and Howard Franklin Watts to 13 years and six months in prison.

Bridgers pleaded guilty to three charges of conspiracy and three charges of unlawful burning. Watts pleaded guilty Monday to three counts of conspiracy to damage property.

Bailey said he would not appeal the case. "No, he's going to take what he gets and do the best he can with it," Bailey said.

Bailey told Fountain he had an agreement with special prosecutor Lester Chalmers that any prison sentence Taylor received on the burning charges would run concurrently with his sentence on a federal charge.

Taylor pleaded guilty to accepting a bribe last week in federal court and was sentenced to five years in prison and fined $10,000. The federal charges resulted from the FBI's color investigation.

Brackett told Fountain that Taylor became desperate after his family lost a $350,000 patent-infringement judgment to Harrington's farm-implements company.

Taylor got so desperate that he visited a witch-doctor or "root-man" in Hampton, Va., Brackett said. Taylor gave the witch-doctor a lock of his hair and a copy of the agreement he wanted Harrington to sign, supposedly for a hex to be put on the Harringtons to mentally compel them to settle the matter, he said.

"Your honor, this is an educated man," Brackett said. "For him to get to this point, to be grasping at straws, indicates the kind of pressure and desperation Ron Taylor was feeling."

A fourth person in the case, Sandy White of Clarkton, was charged in the burnings but was granted immunity for his testimony.

Clarence Griffin of Williamston, Watts' attorney, said Watts had done nothing more than discuss the burnings with the other defendants and FBI agents.

"What a price North Carolina has paid" for granting White immunity, Griffin said. "He'll be walking the streets of Clarkton with the money in his pockets that he got (for burning the warehouses)."

White was described once as Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green's "torch man." Green denies that White ever set fires for him.

Indict Seven In Cocaine Arrests

ATLANTA (AP) — Seven men arrested when authorities seized a plane load of cocaine worth about $300 million in LaFayette have been indicted by a federal grand jury.

The jury Thursday charged the men, who were arrested Monday at the LaFayette airport, with four counts each of violating federal narcotics laws. Federal and state agents seized 647 pounds of cocaine after staking out the northwest Georgia airstrip.

Trial for the seven is scheduled Dec. 6 in U.S. District Court in Rome.

The seven were identified as Charles Donald Boldin, 43, of Clarkston, Mich.; G.C. Easterling, 50, of Cayce, S.C.; Johnny Ray Moore, 50, of Houston; William Page Vicary, 48, of St. Clair Shores, Mich.; Larry Ralph Pace, 24, of Forsyth, Ga.; Lewis Franklin Crump, 44, of Alpharetta, Ga., and John Oscar Luck, 53, of Lilburn, Ga.

Boldin, Easterling, Moore, Vicary and Pace remained in custody under $5 million bond each. No bond was granted for Crump and Luck.

Charges against the seven were conspiracy to import cocaine, aiding and abetting each other in unlawfully importing cocaine, conspiring to knowingly possess cocaine with intent to distribute, and aiding and abetting each other with intent to distribute cocaine, FBI spokesman Dick Berry said.

Waiting state and federal agents seized the cocaine, the twin-engine plane and four cars that were waiting on the ground to pick up the drugs, he said. Two of the men arrested were believed to be the pilot and co-pilot, while the other four apparently were waiting for the plane to land, authorities said.

FBI agents said the plane was flown to Georgia from Colombia.

public-works projects Michel has brought the district. The punchline: "Let's re-elect a congressman who knows how to work for us."

Michel himself is more blunt. "Can you imagine the administration giving this district the time of day if the Republican leader is removed by Doug Stephens?" he asked in a recent interview. That is old-fashioned, bread-and-butter politics likely to save Michel, but it is not the dynamic populist appeal to the blue collars inherent in Reagan's 60 percent landslide win in Michel's current district. In Michel's difficulty can be seen an elitist Republican Party petrified in minority status.

Jack-O'Lantern

FOCUS
For centuries, people have seen Halloween as a night for ghosts, ghouls, and goblins. Most of our Halloween symbols, such as cats and witches, come from the ancient peoples of the British Isles. For them it was the end of the year and a time for wondering about what the new year would hold. The best known symbol, the jack-o'-lantern, can be traced to an Irish legend and a man named Jack. In the legend, Jack couldn't enter heaven because he had been a miser. But because he had played jokes on the devil, he couldn't get into hell, either. Instead, he was doomed to wander the earth, carrying a lantern, until Judgment Day.

DO YOU KNOW — What Christian feast day follows Halloween?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Adlai Stevenson was the U.S. Ambassador to the U.N. during the Cuban missile crisis.

Display Skills Training Center

An open house demonstrating Pitt Community College's Industrial Skills Training Center was held Thursday at the center, located on N.C. 43 west.

The center, which houses the cooperative skills training program, opened in April but was officially dedicated Thursday. It is operated by PCC's Continuing Education Division through the Cooperative Skills Training Program and is designed as an alternative to the traditional curriculum classroom setting.

"Many people, because of their work schedules, cannot participate in our regular campus activities," said Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., president of PCC, "so our staff has put together this center and developed a flexible program in order to meet those individual needs."

Cooperative skills training instructs employees of businesses and industries in specific skills needed for their present jobs or for assuming new responsibilities.

Currently, 20-, 30- and 45-hour courses are being taught in subject areas such as production mechanics, plant maintenance training and management team development.

"Since the center opened in April of this year we've served a total of 67 students representing 13 different businesses or industries," Fulford said.

"Nine of these students have been unemployed persons seeking the necessary skills for employment. The remaining 58 are employed and are adding to or upgrading their skills in order to maintain sophisticated equipment being installed in plants."

The center is open from 2-10 p.m. daily. Students start at individual times and proceed at their own pace.

PCC is one of eight centers in North Carolina offering cooperative skills training. The cost to the industry or business is currently $3.25 per credit hour for curriculum courses or $8 per participant for other learning activities.

"This open house is an additional effort to get our business and industrial leaders to look at one more way that we're trying to respond to training needs," said Jack Robinson, coordinator of cooperative skills at PCC.

"A well-trained, confident technician is our goal and no one fails in this program — it just takes a little longer for some people to reach a competent level."

Mental Health Awards Presented

GREENSBORO — The Greenville Daily Reflector has received the 1982 North Carolina Mental Health Association Award for Newspapers.

Reflector staff writer Carol Tyer accepted the award at the annual awards luncheon of the association today at 12:30 p.m. The award was "for outstanding continuing news coverage of mental health events and awareness."

A similar award for television stations was accepted by Linda Shore, a reporter for WCTI-TV in New Bern.

Hernando Palmer, past president of the Mental Health Association in North Carolina and chairman of the awards committee, presided at the luncheon and presented the awards.

The theme of the three-day annual meeting, which began Thursday, is "Holistic Healing — Mental Health for Everybody."

Outmoded Labs Said Handicap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outmoded laboratory equipment and faculty shortages in the nation's 250 engineering schools limits U.S. ability to compete with Japan and other countries in high-technology markets, the National Society of Professional Engineers says.

The organization said Wednesday that surveys show a 9 percent vacancy rate on the engineering faculties and that the prospect of filling them ip lessens as graduate enrollments decline.

The society estimated that it would cost $1.3 billion to bring the motors, generators, wind tunnels, oscilloscopes and other laboratory equipment and instruments up to the level of modernization that existed in 1971. It would cost $2.2 billion to bring the labs completely up to date and to accommodate the higher enrollments, it said.

Mass Burials A Military Case

By MARTIN ANDERSEN Associated Press Writer

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — There was possible military involvement in the deaths of at least 31 of the people whose bodies were among 400 unidentified corpses in mass graves, court documents released Thursday show.

Judge Hugo Gandara, who earlier this week asked federal courts to take over the investigation, said in the newly released documents that his provincial court "had no jurisdiction in the case due to likely involvement of the Argentine armed forces."

He said municipal burial records at the Grand Bourg cemetery had notations for at least 31 bodies stating "military confrontation" or "army battle."

"The presence of national interests which I am prohibited from judging compromises or prejudices my capacity to act objectively," he said in the document asking federal courts to take over.

The investigation started a week ago, after six members of the Families of Persons Disappeared or Detained for Political Reasons asked Gandara to impound all records and documents relevant to burials at the cemetery, 15 miles northwest of here and opened in 1976.

The petition cited testimony from graveyard workers and neighbors alleging night-time burial of bodies by Argentine security forces as well as the recent discovery in the cemetery of the body of a young labor organizer missing since 1976.

Gandara's decision to remove himself from the case was immediately appealed by the state prosecutor's office.

Human rights groups here say they will protest vigorously if the appeals court decides to move jurisdiction from the civilian courts and hand it to military ones.

"I believe the government wants to see this case taken from the civilian courts," said Jose Westerkamp, an internationally-known physicist and human rights activist.

Human rights spokesmen said Thursday they plan to request investigation of as many as six other unmarked burial grounds within the next week or 10 days.

International and local human rights groups claim that between 6,000 and 15,000 people vanished during the 1970s, when Argentine security forces waged a campaign to wipe out leftist guerrillas. The campaign became known as the "dirty war."

Military rulers have consistently denied knowledge of the fate of the missing people.

Unemployment Rate In Pitt Dips In September

Pitt County's unemployment rate fell to 8.2 percent — 3,990 workers — in September from 8.6 percent in August, according to James Hannan, manager of the Employment Security Commission's Job Service office in Greenville.

Statewide, the ESC said unemployment dropped from 9.0 percent in August to 8.7 percent in September.

Hannan said the jobs rate in Pitt County has been on a gradual decline over the last three months. The 4 of a percentage point decline from August to September reflected the exit of teachers and students from the summer labor force and also a "gearing up" of the tobacco processing industry in September. These factors are primarily responsible for offsetting typical seasonal farm unemployment losses in September.

Donald A. Brande, director of the ESC's Labor Market Information Division, said the unemployment rate decreased in 56 of North Carolina's 100 counties last month as the statewide jobless rate fell for the second consecutive month.

Brande said, "We attribute the decreases in unemployment rates to the fact that in September a large number of workers were recalled to jobs after temporary layoffs. As an example, Graham County's unemployment rate was 12.2 percent in July. In August the rate rose to 32.1 percent as a result of a mass temporary layoff by a major manufacturer, and in September the rate dropped back to 12.2 percent as many people went back to work."

Swain County had the highest unemployment rate — 18 percent — for September, while Orange County had the lowest, 3.5.

Await Supreme Court Ruling On 'Candy Man'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court is deciding whether to permit the Halloween execution of Ronald Clark O'Bryan, dubbed the "Candy Man" because he killed his 8-year-old son with cyanide-laced candy on Halloween in 1974.

The justices were scheduled to consider in conference today a request by Texas officials to overturn an order Wednesday by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals staying O'Bryan's scheduled execution Sunday by lethal injection.

On Thursday, Assistant Texas Attorney General Leslie A. Benitez asked Justice Byron R. White to lift the stay. White referred the case to the full court, which refused in 1980 to review the 1975 conviction of the one-time Deer Park, Texas, optician.

Five people have been executed in the United States since the Supreme Court revived the death penalty in 1976. In the latest, Frank J. Coppola was electrocuted in Virginia last summer. There are an estimated 1,000 or more inmates on death rows in the United States.

Texas District Judge Michael T. McSpadden said he selected Halloween for the execution because O'Bryan "ruined Halloween for everyone." The execution would be the first in Texas since 1964 and the nation's first by lethal injection.

A three-judge appeals panel in New Orleans on Wednesday blocked the execution to give O'Bryan time to pursue further appeals.

In a 2-1 decision, the majority concluded that a "substantial question" was raised by O'Bryan's claims that his trial was not fair because three people who expressed reservations about the death penalty were excluded from the jury.

O'Bryan was convicted of giving poisoned candy to his son, Timothy, who had returned home with his father and sister, Elizabeth, now 13, after trick-or-treating Oct. 31, 1974.

O'Bryan's attorneys contend the state was able to present only circumstantial evidence and never proved O'Bryan actually bought cyanide.

According to trial testimony, O'Bryan permitted his son to eat one piece of candy never bed. O'Bryan told police that the boy became ill within moments and died within an hour.

Detectives later learned O'Bryan had taken out life insurance policies on his children — $20,000 worth on each — without the knowledge of his wife.

'Century III' Leader Chosen

Lisa Wang, a senior at J.H. Rose High School, has been named the school's top Century III Leader. She will be eligible to compete for one of two $1,500 scholarships and an all-expense-paid trip to the National Century III Leadership conference in Williamsburg, Va.

Ms. Wang was judged on the basis of leadership skills, school and community involvement, and a current events examination. She also wrote a short essay on an issue that challenges America in its third century.

Runners-up from Rose High include Teresa McLawhorn and Jay Mahoney. Ms. Wang is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wang of 203 King George road.

LAST SUNDAY MORNING AT 9:15 ANDY ROOK LEFT HOME!

It wasn't the first time. It happens almost every week. You see, Andy spends Sunday morning with about 15 other kids his age at the First Pentecostal Holiness Church. His parents don't let Andy go off by himself. They take him.

Andy loves every minute of it. And his mom and dad love it too. Not just because of the way Andy is growing. But because of the way the church helps the whole family stay closer together.

Maybe you should think about leaving home next Sunday morning! If you do, bring the whole family.

Disaster . . .

At one time, Joyner said, traffic was backed up on N.C. 33 from the Greenville Boulevard intersection to the Port Terminal Road by sightseers.

Dr. Jack Allison, who heads the hospital's emergency department, said from the medical center's standpoint, "I thought the drill did tax the system, but the system responded.

"If I were to speculate," Allison continued, "if last night's drill had been a true disaster, it quite honestly would have been a devastating experience. Yet, I feel the hospital was prepared to accept these victims and to treat them."

Allison said "one of the major problems we (the hospital) had yesterday was that the majority of our surgical staff was tied up with their own patients and we were short ... just didn't have enough surgeons to take care of that many traumatized patients."

Allison expressed pleasure at the field triage efforts and said the nursing students "acted appropriately for simulated patients."

He noted that during the drill "we had at least four (real) emergency patients" who were "treated in a very smooth and rapid fashion."

"This points out that the system still works," according to Allison. "The system still can accommodate someone who needs acute attention."

Allison said "there were a few kinks in the program. But that's the whole purpose of a drill ... to tighten it up ... be prepared for the real thing."

'The Fed' Offers Gloomier Forecast

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board is gloomier than the Reagan administration and most leading private economists about prospects for a moderate economic recovery and declining unemployment next year, according to a confidential forecast.

Government sources say an economic outlook prepared in early October for the board of governors of the nation's central bank predicts the economy will expand at a slow rate in 1983, with unemployment remaining in the 10 percent range.

The forecast suggests that the economy will grow only about 2 percent over the next 12 months, after adjusting for inflation, according to the sources, who did not want to be identified.

Although 2 percent growth would represent the best economic performance the country has experienced since 1979, it still would be anemic for a post-recession period. Prior recoveries since World War II typically had growth rates of 5 percent a year or more.

The Federal Reserve's tight money and credit policies for fighting inflation have been held responsible by most economists for driving up interest rates, which subsequently triggered the recession that began last summer.

The new internal forecast indicates that slow economic growth and high unemployment remain as unavoidable tradeoffs for keeping inflation low so that interest rates will continue coming down.

By one common economic rule of thumb, the economy has to grow 3 percent a year just to keep unemployment from rising further.

In contrast to the central bank's outlook, the Reagan administration and a consensus of 42 private economic forecasters expects the economy to grow at an annual rate of 3 percent to 4 percent next year — just enough to bring unemployment below the double-digit mark — but not by much.

The jobless rate in September reached a 42-year high of 10.1 percent and many economists expect it to hit 10.5 percent soon.

On Thursday, Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said he still expects the economy to grow between 3.5 percent and 4 percent next year. He declined, however, to predict whether unemployment would rise further.

Of late, administration officials and private economists have become more optimistic about the prospects for a sustained recovery because of the recent slide in interest rates, which they attribute to an easing of credit conditions by the central bank.

But the lower interest rates have not made bank officials so bullish. "We didn't have an optimistic forecast," said one senior official at the central bank. The official, who did not want to be identified, added: "It's hard to see a decline in unemployment."

Asked why the bank seemed less optimistic about the outlook than the administration, the stock market and private forecasters, the official said: "Maybe we're a little ahead of everyone else."

However, a congressional economist familiar with the bank's forecast argued that the Federal Reserve may be a little off the mark.

"The Fed's forecast is gloomy because they're talking to the wrong people," said the economist, who also did not want to be identified. He contended that the bank's survey of business conditions overlooked brightening developments in housing, autos and retailing that suggest a much stronger recovery in 1983.

The confidential forecast was prepared for an early October meeting of the bank's policy-making group, known as the Federal Open Market Committee, which uses the outlook as a guide in setting monetary policy. Because the committee makes decisions in response to that forecast, it can alter the economic conditions predicted by the forecast.

At that meeting, the committee reaffirmed a prior decision to allow the money supply to grow faster than earlier planned, at least temporarily, to help encourage a recovery.

Fed Chairman Paul A. Volcker insisted subsequently that the bank's actions do not represent an abandonment of its tough anti-inflationary posture or a significant shift in policy. Rather, he argued, the move was taken because of technical factors that make it difficult to control the money supply precisely over the next few months.

Administration and private economists suspect different motives. They maintain that the Fed decided to loosen its grip on the money supply to help pave the way for lower interest rates because of growing concern about the weak state of the economy, the fragile financial condition of businesses and the failure of a noticeable recovery to emerge.

Some monetary experts believe the bank's actions mark a significant departure from its three-year policy of fighting inflation through control of the money supply and a return to direct manipulation of interest rates.

Other experts, however, say they take Volcker at his word that the change is minor, temporary and made possible by the widespread belief that inflation is not likely to worsen in the near future.

FBI Arrests Four In Insurance Fraud

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The FBI says the arrest of four men on insurance-fraud charges Thursday involved at least 40 false insurance claims in four states.

Robert Pence, special agent in charge of FBI operations in North Carolina, said the arrest of the men — three of them from Rocky Mount — came after a year-long investigation by the FBI, Rocky Mount police and the Insurance Crime Investigation Institute.

Pence said case involved at false automobile accident claims in North Carolina.

Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Virginia. Losses in North Carolina amounted to more than $100,000, he said.

The four were indicted by a federal grand jury in New Bern Wednesday. Pence said. He identified them as:

— Floyd J. Coleman, 52, of Rocky Mount, charged with 16 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 85 years in prison and a $26,000 fine.

— Charlie Lee Foreman, 34, of Rocky Mount, charged with six counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 35 years in prison and a $16,000 fine.

— Carl Maceo Slade, 49, of Rocky Mount, charged with three counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 20 years in prison and a $13,000 fine.

— Orlando Hart, 46, of Philadelphia, charged with 23 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy. The charges carry a maximum penalty of 120 years in prison and a $33,000 fine.

All the men are charged with using the mail to defraud insurance companies, Pence said.

Here Thursday Cars Collided

An estimated $500 damage resulted from a 3:35 p.m. collision on Jarvis Street, 50 feet north of the Third Street intersection, Thursday.

Officers said a parked car owned by Barbara Jean Houston of 405 S. Summit St. rolled from a parking lot and collided with a vehicle driven by Peter Crawford Eure Jr. of 10-0 South Summit St., causing an estimated $400 damage to the Eure car and $100 damage to the Houston auto.

'Thank You'

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir has thanked the United States for helping defeat the Iranian motion to expel Israel from the U.N. General Assembly, the Foreign Ministry said Thursday.

Spokesman Avi Granot said Shamir wrote to Secretary of State George Shultz thanking him "for all the effort the United States put into ensuring the failure of the Iranian motion."

Following a U.S. threat to withdraw from the United Nations and end its financial contribution to the body, 74 nations backed a proposal that no vote be taken on the Iranian motion. Only nine states voted against, and 32 abstained, including most of the Arab League and Communist bloc members.

SPECIAL SERVICE
Special Sunday services will be held at Tabernacle of Faith Revival Center, Old River Road, Sunday at 6 p.m. The Rev. Collins Kornegay and his congregation from Rocky Mount will lead the service.

A Collection By 'Pathfinders'

On Sunday from 4:50 p.m. members of the Greenville Seventh-day Adventist Pathfinder Club will be in uniform visiting homes to collect canned and packaged goods for families with little to eat.

The Pathfinder Club is made up of youth ages 10-15. Each year they collect food that is distributed just before Thanksgiving day. Last year the food was divided among six families.

Distribution of food is managed by the Community Services program operated by the Seventh-day Adventist Church. The program regularly distributes food and clothing throughout the year but the Pathfinder collections allow the organization to offer special gifts during Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Libertarian Candidates For 11 N. C. Districts

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

No election ballots have been cast, but North Carolina Libertarians are claiming a political victory because for the first time they have a congressional candidate running in each of the state's 11 districts.

Dave Braatz, party chairman and 9th District candidate, says half the people who attended the state party convention this year decided to seek public office. That's five times more Libertarian candidates than in 1980.

"They wanted to stand up and say, 'Enough of politics as usual,'" said Braatz, 33, of Mount Mourne in Iredell County. "Republicans and Democrats are both meddling in our lives and messing up the economy and bringing us closer to international conflict."

Unlike their Democratic and Republican counterparts, most of the Libertarian candidates live outside the district in which they are running and are forced to drive miles to campaign.

Congressmen are not required to live in the district they represent.

Braatz, an aquatic biologist with Duke Power Co., says that's part of the party's dedication to spread the Libertarian gospel in new areas.

He said the cause has become a family effort. Braatz' wife, Linda Janca, is running in the 11th District of western North Carolina. Sue Lamm of Wilson is running for Congress in the 2nd District and her husband is seeking a General Assembly seat.

Other Libertarian candidates for Congress are: Bobby Yates Emory of Raleigh, gubernatorial candidate in 1980, in the 1st District; Marshall Sprague of Raleigh in the 3rd; Fritz Prochnow of Apex in the 4th; Naudeen Beek of Durham in the 5th; J. Erik Christensen of Davidson in the 6th; Richard Hollembeak of Winabow in the 7th; Don Scoggin of Charlotte in the 8th; and John Rankin of Gastonia in the 10th.

A Socialist Workers Party candidate, Meryl Lynn Farber of Winston-Salem, is running for Congress from the 5th District.

The Libertarian Party had to collect the signature of 5,000 registered voters to get on the ballot because it failed to capture 10 percent of the votes cast in the 1980 election. Of North Carolina's 2,674,787 registered voters, there are 413 Libertarians and 12 Socialist Workers Party members.

None of the Libertarians has raised $5,000, the level at which they are required to disclose campaign spending. Braatz said the candidates are "disillusioned to see the millions of dollars spent on politics by politicians who explicitly want to make our lives more miserable."

The party is focusing on many of the same issues as Republicans and Democrats. But Braatz believes Libertarians have an advantage because voters are realizing that neither Republicans nor Democrats are improving inflation, unemployment or high interest rates.

"Libertarians would eliminate inflation at its source by abolishing the Federal Reserve system and denationalizing our currency," Braatz said, adding that the party's candidates also would like to abolish many licensing laws and minimum-wage laws.

On other issues:

- The candidates are pursuing non-intervention as an alternative to the defense buildup.
- They would make Social Security a voluntary program.
- They would keep voluntary prayer out of public schools.

While Democratic and Republican hopes are buoyed by large blocs of votes, Braatz says each single Libertarian vote will mean a small success for the party's candidates.

"It doesn't take anywhere near a Libertarian majority to have a positive impact," he said. "From this starting point we can draw Democrats and Republicans closer to our positions."

Farewell, By Energy Secretary

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though he failed in the effort to abolish his own job, outgoing Energy Secretary James Edwards gives himself and the Reagan administration high marks overall on handling energy policy.

In fact, Edwards says the administration's policy has worked so well that the country faces few clouds on its energy horizon.

In his farewell address Thursday after 21 months as the top U.S. energy policymaker, Edwards said the time when energy was one of the country's most serious national problems "is behind us."

"The energy crisis is not permanent," Edwards told the National Press Club. "We do not subscribe to the theory that the government's role is to sustain a high level of tension and anxiety."

Edwards said the country was less vulnerable to oil cutoffs today than at any time in recent years, citing the fact that net imports are at their lowest level in a decade.

He also disputed predictions that once the recession is over, the country would stop conserving and go on another energy binge.

"The old days are gone — gone forever and this is a new era," Edwards said. "The truth is that we have not yet begun to switch to more energy efficient technologies. For the next decade or more we are going to become increasingly more efficient."

To bolster his case, Edwards released a report predicting that net energy imports will decrease by 43 percent by the year 2000.

The report said that barring unforeseen supply cutoffs, U.S. and world oil reserves are sufficient to prevent any "serious energy supply crisis" in the future.

Edwards is leaving his Cabinet job on Nov. 5 to return to his home state to become president of the Medical University of South Carolina.

When Edwards took office he said one of his prime objectives was to fulfill President Reagan's campaign pledge to close the department down and "work myself out of a job."

The administration bill to abolish the department and transfer most of its functions to the Commerce Department, however, has met with little congressional support.

Edwards said even without abolishing the department his cost-cutting efforts have already trimmed DOE employment by 17 percent.

"We have already dismantled the most objectionable parts of DOE. I am going to claim victory and leave town," he said.

The administration has failed in efforts to speed the decontrol of natural gas prices, another of Reagan's campaign pledges.

Edwards said the president has not abandoned his hopes to push decontrol through Congress and predicted the administration would move on that issue in the next session.

Edwards said he was pleased that construction work has finally begun for the Clinch River Breeder Reactor in Tennessee. He said the reactor, which then-President Jimmy Carter tried to kill, was a "symbol of this nation's commitment to step out boldly and remain on the leading edge of advanced technologies."

The report Edwards released predicted that oil imports this year would be 16 percent below the 1981 level and 53 percent below the peak reached in 1977.

It predicted that for the remainder of the century, domestic energy consumption would go up 30 percent and domestic energy production would increase by 35 percent.

While the country will need to increase oil imports by 1.4 million barrels daily in the year 2000, those imports will be more than offset by the doubling of coal exports, the report said. It predicted net energy imports would be 43 percent below the 1980 level.

Fayetteville Is Cleaning Up St.

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — An effort by Fayetteville police and city officials to "clean up" prostitution on Hay Street appears to be working, downtown businessmen and customers say.

In the last two weeks, a five-man unit has arrested about 30 people, most of them on prostitution-related charges. The crackdown has the blessings of Cumberland County and city officials who want to see revitalization efforts work.

Police say the unit's true test will come tonight — a military payday when Hay Street traditionally comes alive. A team of undercover officers is to be on hand should the women return to the streets, officers said.

The unit because it was the best way to tackle downtown crime, Chief Danny Dixon said Thursday. He also said city officials' "get-tough" attitude in recent months has helped.

Officers assigned to the unit say they are not hoping to wipe out prostitution — only move it from the downtown area. Prostitutes are going to other parts of the city, they said.

Two prostitutes who were interviewed recently said they were prepared to move to new locations and said their livelihood depended on Fort Bragg.

"As long as you have Fort Bragg, you're going to have it," one of the women said.

Mayor Bill Hurley said he does not think the five-man force is the final solution.

"I just don't believe that's going to happen," Hurley said. Once he (Dixon) needs those officers somewhere else, we're going to have another situation. We are never going to outlaw this kind of activity in our city."

Hurley said adult entertainment — something for which Hay Street is noted — "go hand in glove" with prostitution.

City officials have committed between $2 million and $3 million to get rid of the strip of bars in Hay Street and other downtown areas in a major revitalization effort.

Cristo Kaprantzas, owner of a restaurant on the street, said the police force seems to be working. "I think it's the best they ever did that I know of."

One owner of a topless bar said he supports the police but said prostitutes are only relocating in different parts of town.

"I'll tell you. They're not cleaning it up," he said. "They're just spreading it around."

Church Trip Is Planned Nov. 14

A chartered bus has been reserved by Sycamore Chapel Baptist Church for a trip to Washington, D.C., on Nov. 14. The Rev. Hue Walston and his congregation will render service on that date at Edgewood Baptist Church in Washington.

The bus will leave Harris Supermarket on Greene Street at midnight Nov. 13. Round trip fare is $15 per person.

Interested persons are to call 758-3851 or 752-1065 after 10 p.m. tonight. Deadline for reservations is Oct. 30.

Women Suffer Alkali Burns

ELKIN, N.C. (AP) — Two Elkin women were treated for first-degree alkali burns Thursday night after someone poured the caustic chemical on the seat, steering wheel and gear shift in their car, police said.

Linda Gale Freeman and Leeann Gordon were treated and released at Hugh Chatham Memorial Hospital.

Police said they are continuing their investigation.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO MATTHEW

*SYNAGOGUE BACKGROUND RECONSTRUCTED FROM RUINS DISCOVERED NEAR THE SITE OF ANCIENT CAPERNAUM.

ST. MATTHEW, THE APOSTLE, WAS A PUBLICAN (TAX COLLECTOR) IN THE SERVICE OF HEROD ANTIPAS WHEN HE WAS CALLED UPON BY JESUS TO BECOME A DISCIPLE, WHILE SITTING IN THE CUSTOM HOUSE AT CAPERNAUM. ALTHOUGH LOOKED UPON WITH CONTEMPT BY HIS FELLOW-GALILEANS, BECAUSE OF HIS PROFESSION, MATTHEW, NEVER THE LESS, BECAME AN IMPORTANT PURVEYOR OF JESUS' MESSAGE TO THE JEWS!

AFTER JESUS' CRUCIFIXION AND RESURRECTION, MATTHEW PREACHED IN JUDEA FOR SOME FIFTEEN YEARS. HIS SPECIFIC WORK WAS TO PERSUADE THE JEWS THAT JESUS WAS THE FULFILLMENT OF THE SCRIPTURAL PROPHECIES—THE COMING OF THE MESSIAH! HIS GOSPEL POINTEDLY QUOTES THE SCRIPTURES TO THIS EFFECT (65 TIMES, MORE THAN MARK, LUKE, AND JOHN, COMBINED). ALTHOUGH MODERN THEOLOGIANs AND SCHOLARS MAINTAIN THIS GOSPEL WAS WRITTEN BY A GRECIAN JEW, UNFAMILIAR WITH HEBREW, ANCIENT AUTHORITIES SUCH AS IRENAEUS, ORIGEN, AND EUSEBIUS, ALL STATE IT WAS WRITTEN BY MATTHEW IN ARAMAIC AND LEFT AS A GUIDE FOR THE JEWS WHEN HE DEPARTED TO PREACH IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES... "AND, LATER, EACH MAN INTERPRETED THEM AS BEST HE COULD..." HOWBEIT, MATTHEW'S MESSAGE WAS CLEAR—JESUS IS THE CHRIST!

If You Have a Habit Of Following The Crowd, We Suggest, The Best Crowd to Follow is the Crowd Going To Church

Nuclear War Issue To The Fore

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

After listening to all sorts of views in the nuclear debate, from pacifists to military experts, a U.S. Roman Catholic bishops committee has issued a ringing "no" to nuclear warfare on any scale, regardless of intentions to keep it limited.

The overwhelming evidence is that, once a nuclear exchange occurred, there would be "no limits," says a new draft of the bishops' proposed pastoral letter on war and peace.

The document collides with U.S. nuclear policy on several points, particularly U.S. insistence on the option of a first-use nuclear response to stop aggression.

Only with reservations does the document accept possession of nuclear arms as a "deterrent" to prevent their use, and then only if simultaneous steps are being made for progressive disarmament.

The 105-page paper is the result of more than a year's work by a committee, including 14 meetings, and testimony from a broad spectrum of moralists, theologians, military and defense experts, Bible scholars and high-ranking officials of present and former U.S. administrations.

Hearing all the different views about nuclear weapons "has been a sobering and perplexing experience," says the committee headed by Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago.

"But we are sure of one moral imperative we should declare: a rejection of nuclear war."

Arrested In Bingo Game

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Nine members of the Rising Ebenezer Missionary Baptist Church were arrested Thursday for playing in a church-sponsored bingo game.

The Rev. W.W. Small said the church planned to build apartments with the bingo revenue.

"We're trying to help people help themselves," he said after police halted the game. "It seems like the vice squad is trying to retard that effort. The police could be doing something better."

Under a law amended in 1981, bingo games must be run under strict rules of eligibility and procedure. A violation is gambling and a misdemeanor.

Small said the church has necessary clearances and the game's operators had letters of proof.

Greensboro Police Capt. Don Jenkins said Tuesday the letters were not prominently displayed at the site as the law requires, but that Small showed proof of tax-exempt status Monday.

Jenkins said officers ordered the game stopped, but one of the people continued calling bingo numbers until he was arrested. Another person then called numbers until he was arrested and the cycle continued until nine were in custody.

"It's obvious that these people don't think the bingo law will be enforced," Jenkins said. "They show an obvious contempt for the law."

Small said the church will pre-emptively pay the $100 fine levied by the city.

Shelves Theory Of A 'Just War'

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Retired Roman Catholic Bishop Carroll T. Dozier of Memphis says that in a nuclear age the church's long-time theory of a "just war" no longer is valid.

"It must be filed away in that drawer which conceals the flat Earth theory and the one about the sun traveling around the Earth," he told the annual U.S. meeting of Pax Christi, a Catholic peace group.

A Curriculum For 'Impaired'

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — The Christian Reformed Church is publishing a Christian educational curriculum for persons with mental impairments.

"It will help persons society has labeled 'mentally impaired' but known to the church as 'children of God,'" says James Heynen, head of the denomination's board of publications.

CONCERT

Evangelists William Spurrill and Mary Carman will be in concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Clemmons Grove Holiness Church in Stokes. Other singers also will appear.

Gap In Pastoral Pay Narrowing

NEW YORK (AP) — The gap between salaries of male and female parish ministers in the United Church of Christ has narrowed this year, reports the denomination's Pension Board.

It says women pastors' salaries have risen more rapidly than men's, with the median salaries of women pastors jumping 12 percent from $13,000 in 1981 to $14,560 in 1982, while salaries of male counterparts rose by only 8.04 percent from $17,446 to $18,850.

But the report noted there's still a difference of more than $4,000.

Re-Elected By Passionists

SOUTH RIVER, N.J. (AP) — The Rev. Paul M. Boyle, a Detroit native and former leader of the Passionist Fathers in Chicago, has been re-elected general superior of the worldwide religious community of about 3,000 priests and brothers.

The election at a general meeting of the order in Rome was announced by Passionist offices here. Boyle, an expert in canon law, was among the few Vatican experts who predicted a non-Italian would be chosen before Pope John Paul II from Poland was elected in 1978.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

The Rock Island Singers of Fountain will render a musical program Sunday at 4 p.m. at Selvia Chapel Free Will Baptist Church. The program will be sponsored by the pastor's aid club of the church.

ANNUAL PROGRAM

The Senior Choir of Philippi Church of Christ will observe its annual program Sunday at 4:30 p.m. The special guest will be the Godly M.R. Wilson Singers, according to program sponsor Martha Spencer.

morally justified. "Non-nuclear attacks by another state must be resisted by other than nuclear means."

U.S. defense officials, in criticizing an earlier draft of the paper which took a similar position, maintained that first use of nuclear arms is an essential part of the "flexible response" options of U.S.-NATO policy in Europe.

Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger said that without an option of nuclear response to a massive conventional attack, the U.S. and NATO allies would lack a "credible continuum of response" to stop aggression.

As for the current policy of maintaining nuclear arms as a "deterrent" to their use, the document says "we are skeptical" of that policy and accept it only providing efforts are being made to restrict and reduce such arms.

Program To Aid The Vietnamese

NEW YORK (AP) — Church World Service, the relief arm of the National Council of Churches, plans to launch a program to help the people of Vietnam. An appeal was expected to be made soon to U.S. churches for $300,000 for the first year of the project in 1983.

"There are very severe human needs in Vietnam after 30 years of war," says the Rev. R. Lawrence Turnipseed, director of the CWS Southern Asia Office.

"We are called to love our neighbors. If people think of the Vietnamese as enemies, Christians also are called to love their enemies."

The program, approved at a mid-October meeting of the service's interdenominational directors, is subject to receiving license approval from the U.S. government for shipping drugs, veterinary materials and agriculture supplies to Vietnam.

Revival

Carson Memorial Pentecostal Holiness Church will hold revival services Nov. 1-7 with Maude Cherry and Viola Carawan from the Greenville Church of God in charge.

Special music will be provided each night and a bake sale will be held downstairs. All proceeds go to the Falcon Children's Home.

"The political paradox of deterrence has strained our moral conception," the bishops' paper says. "May a nation threaten what it may never do? May it possess what it may never use?"

The draft says "we see with clarity the political folly of a system which threatens mutual suicide," but adds: "As clearly unsatisfactory as the deterrent posture of the United States is from a moral point of view, use of nuclear weapons by any of the nuclear powers would be an even greater evil."

District To Hold Meet

The Kinston District of the Goldsboro-Raleigh Assembly will convene at Philippi Church of Christ, 1610 Farmville Blvd., this weekend with the following services scheduled:

*Friday, 7:30 p.m. the district youth will be in charge of the services.

*Saturday, 9:15 a.m., registration will begin; 10 a.m.-12 noon, organization and business session; 12 noon-1:30 p.m., worship service with Philippi Youth Choir and ushers in charge; 1:30 p.m., dinner; 2:30-3:15 p.m., worship service; 7 p.m., St. Joseph Church of Christ in charge of service.

*Sunday, 9:30 a.m., Sunday school; 11 a.m., worship with the sermon by Elder Ronie Hood and St. James Church of Christ in charge; 1:30 p.m., lunch; 3 p.m., Gritton Chapel Church of Christ in charge.

The theme for the weekend services is "Empowered to Be My Witness," Acts 1:8. Seventeen churches comprise the Kinston District.

Martin Luther Stamp Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Postmaster General William Bolger has approved issuance of a commemorative stamp to honor the 500th anniversary in 1983 of the birth of Martin Luther, leader of the 16th century Protestant Reformation.

The Rev. Norman Folkers, coordinator of the Martin Luther Jubilee planned next year, says Bolger telephoned his decision to U.S. Rep. William E. Dannemeyer, R-Calif., an advocate of the stamp.

Morning Worship 11:00 A.M.
Sunday Evening Service..... 6:00 P.M.
In today's rapidly changing world, God's grace and the need of the human heart are changeless. The Church of the Nazarene offers to people today the same warmhearted church and victorious Christian faith that have made it attractive throughout its history. The uncertainties of this atomic age, the failure of a high standard of living to satisfy basic human needs, and the inability of education or science alone to solve the problem of sin and morality affirm the relevance of the church's message and mission.

Kinston Police Investigating
KINSTON, N.C. (AP) — City Manager Bob Brigman said Wednesday that the FBI has been investigating the activities of the Kinston Police Department since mid-March. Brigman gave no details of the investigation. Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina, told reporters the investigation was of a criminal nature and not a civil rights probe. Pence said the investigation involved individuals and not the entire department.

Two Arrested For Phone Calls

ACS Given JC's Check

The Greenville Jaycees presented a check for $7,400 to the American Cancer Society at the society's annual awards meeting Tuesday night. The check represented funds raised by the Jaycees for the cancer society fund drive through the Jail-A-Thon held in August.

Pitt County's goal for the 1982 Cancer Crusade was $30,000 and $35,839 was raised. Among those honored at the meeting were: The Jaycees for the Danny P. Woods Jail-A-Thon; Tom Bennett for serving as chairman of the 1982 crusade; Wayne Mercer for his work on the Walter Hagen Golf Tournament in August; Edith Payne as office volunteer of the year, and Betty Lewis of Farmville and Marsha Tingstead as volunteers of the year.

Among other award winners were Sara Stocks of Chicod, who received the Silver Bowl award given to the township chairman whose contributions exceed the set goal, and S.J. Waters, who received the past president's pin and a marble paper weight.

Dr. Jack Chamberlain was named president for the coming year at the meeting.

Joplin Joins Bird Battle

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — October is for the birds in this southwest Missouri city. Starlings, grackles and blackbirds — millions of them.

"I've been out there when you couldn't see the skies because of the birds," says Joe Dennis, health department sanitarian. "They'll mass so greatly in trees, they'll break four-inch-thick tree limbs."

The invasion is serious business to Dennis and his crews, who use propane cannons, aerial exploding shotgun shells and smudge pots to break up the flocks.

"These birds are responsible, one way or the other, for 25 different diseases," says Dennis.

Every year, the birds journey from Canada to spend the winter in and around Joplin. If they roost in an area long enough, the birds can contaminate it with urine and droppings, which can carry and spread several lung-damaging diseases, Dennis says.

About 50 million starlings spend the winter in Missouri. Three million have already turned up in Joplin, up from about 250,000 several years ago, Dennis says.

So each year, the city Health Departments sends its workers into battle, attempting to drive the birds away from residential areas. Last year's fight cost the city $8,500.

This year's battle began Monday, the workers going out one-half hour before sunset each evening to scare the birds as they return to their roosts.

"It normally takes five to seven days to disrupt the roosting pattern," Dennis says. "We'll just try to move them further south away from the city."

ATTENTION GREENVILLE CITIZENS

RESOLUTION NO. 720
RESOLUTION CONCERNING SAFETY IN TRICK OR TREAT ACTIVITIES

WHEREAS, this year, 1982, Halloween officially falls on Sunday, October 31st.

WHEREAS, the Children of this City are entitled to the fun and festivity associated with the observance of Halloween "trick or treat" custom of going from door-to-door in their immediate neighborhood, masquerading costumes and requesting treats; and

WHEREAS, the possibility of accidents is an ever-present threat during this fun and festive time for the youngsters; and

WHEREAS, it would appear that parents generally favor limiting the hours of trick or treat activities between 5 and 8 P.M. to only youngsters of age 12 and under, for whom the observance was originally intended; and

WHEREAS, in order to insure a safe and enjoyable "trick or treat" outing, for the children of this City, the Mayor and City Council members encourages motorists to exercise extreme caution on October 31 and urge all parents to adhere to some tips suggested by our City Fathers;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED by the Mayor and City Council of the City of Greenville, North Carolina, to encourage the cooperation of all citizens, young and old, to observe the following suggestions in making this a happy and safe occasion for the children of our City:

1. Confine trick or treating visits to homes of persons you know in the immediate neighborhood and call only at homes so lighted.
2. Participation in this annual Halloween fun is limited to children 12 years and younger.
3. "Trick or Treating" activities will conclude at 8:00 P.M.
4. Observe the basic pedestrian safety rules.
5. Wear light-colored costumes, non flammable, decorated with reflective tape and avoid Halloween masks when crossing streets for better visibility.
6. Use flashlights if dark before 8:00 P.M.
7. Youngsters should be accompanied by their parents or other responsible adults.
8. Request that households indicate their willingness to welcome children by keeping their porch or exterior lights on.
9. Bring your "treats" home first to be inspected before tasting them.

This resolution shall be in full force and effect from and after this 25th day of October, 1982.

Pirates Begin Tour At West Virginia

By WOODY PEELE, Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina Coach Ed Emory says he's looking forward to the next four weekends. "We're going to take our football team on a scenic tour," he said at his weekly news conference. "We're going to visit the mountains of West Virginia; Dallas, Texas; one of the nation's historic sites in Williamsburg, Va.; and the City of Brotherly Love, Philadelphia."

And while it might not be all fun for the Pirates, it will be games.

The Pirates meet West Virginia University on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. in the first of those four final football games of the 1982 season — and the Bucs are hopeful of finally pulling off an upset this year.

Thus far, in seven games, there have been no surprises.

The Pirates have won the four games they were expected to win, and lost the three they were expected to lose. Their hopes of upsets in those three have gone by the boards.

Saturday, they have another chance — and a chance to take away some of the chatter of some saying the Pirates belong in Division I-AA instead of the more-highly ranked Division I-A.

It won't come easily, however, despite the fact that West Virginia has said that it will not play its all-American quarterback candidate, Jeff Hostetler. Hostetler, who passed for nearly 300 yards against Penn State last week in a 24-0 shutout loss, is to be rested with toe and knee injuries.

"They didn't say anything about his not being dressed, did they?" Emory inquired at his press conference. "You can bet that if he's needed to pull them out, he'll be out there."

Tailback Tom Gray, who alternates with two others, could also miss the game with rib injuries. He was listed as a doubtful starter.

But the Pirates too, will be missing a couple of important people. Split end Ricky Nichols injured an ankle against Illinois State last week and will not play, and it's highly likely that quarterback Kevin Ingram, with a bruised sternum, will not even make the trip.

Hostetler, coming into the game, had passed 231 times this year, completing 115 for 1,555 yards and seven touchdowns.

But his backup, expected to start against the Pirates is Kevin White, who's put the ball up only 20 times, completing six for 74 yards. He's had one intercepted. Reports are that he is more of an option quarterback than a throwing one, which could alter West Virginia's offensive game plan.

On the ground, the Mountaineers have rushed for only 110 yards a game, led by four runners. Curlin Beck, who will probably start at tailback should Gray not be available, leads with 200 yards while Gray has 199. Reserve tailback King Harvey and fullback Ron Wolfley each have rushed for 109 yards.

Top receivers have been tight end Mark Raugh with 26 for 353 yards, while wide receiver Darrell Miller has caught 21 for 358 yards. Gray has 16 receptions for 144 yards, while flanker Gary Mullen has caught 12 for 144 yards. Rich Hollins and Wayne Brown, also wide receivers, have 11 for 238 and 11 for 169, respectively.

"West Virginia has a great, great team. They have great facilities and a great program," Emory said.

Emory considers the Mountaineers to be a much better team than they were a year ago when they gained a 20-3 win through second half scores.

"They have an outstanding offensive line that's big, mobile and does a great job. They have one of the best tight ends we'll see in Raugh, and their wide receivers have great speed and skill."

"And I think White is a heck of a player. They were saying in spring practice that they didn't know which one would end up being their number of quarterback. He's fresh and young and wanting to prove himself."

"Too, West Virginia is fighting for what every major team is fighting for, a bowl game," Emory said.

Emory cautioned that the 24-0 score of last week was not a true indicator of the game.

"West Virginia had over 400 yards in total offense in the game, and earlier in the year, they had Pittsburgh on the ropes before losing."

Those two losses, to Pitt and Penn State, are the only black marks on the schedule. They've beaten Oklahoma, Maryland, Richmond, Boston College and Virginia Tech.

But while the Mountaineer offense looks awesome, Emory feels that West Virginia has made its biggest strides in defense. "They've got a great player in (outside linebacker Darryl) Talley, and they've got two bookends for tackles." Those two are Todd Campbell, 6-2, 270, and Chuck Harris, 6-3, 270.

"They made you run east and west a lot. They take the inside game away from you and try to force you outside. And, they've got the biggest secondary we've faced."

"They are a solid team with or without Hostetler," Emory added.

And he's not letting West Virginia's national ranking and its record scare him or the Pirates. "We could win all four of these games. It's not out of the realm of possibility. Anything can happen. We could lose all four of them, too, but I don't believe that that will happen."

Following the game, the Pirates stay on the road, traveling to Texas-Arlington for its next outing next Saturday.

Peete Performance

Eagle Helps Peete Pull Into Tie For Disney Lead

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Calvin Peete, noted by his peers as golf's most accurate player, holed out a 148-yard 6-iron shot — the ball hit the "cup on the fly" — for an eagle 2 that helped him into a share of the first round lead in the season-ending, $400,000 Walt Disney World Classic.

"Playing good like this for the last few weeks, I'm fired up. I'm pumped up as much as I can be. My confidence is way up. I feel good about my game, about the way I'm playing," Peete said after his 6-under-par 66 at the Palm course, one of three resort layouts being used for the first three rounds of this event.

"I just hope I can continue to play well," said Peete, who scored his fourth victory of the season — no one has won more — last week in Pensacola.

But he isn't concerned with the possibility of another victory.

"I don't have a plan to win, I'm not thinking about that," he said. "I just have a plan to keep on playing well. And if, on Sunday afternoon, I'm at the top again, well, so much the better."

Peete shared the top spot with Jay Haas, who has won two of his last three starts, and Terry Diehl.

Haas hit 17 greens, all the fairways and didn't make a bogey in his near-errorless effort at the 7,150-yard Magnolia course, the longest and toughest of the three tournament courses. Diehl also played without a bogey at the 6,655-yard Lake Buena Vista course. The format calls for the 132 pros to lay one round, each day with a three-man amateur team, on each of the courses before the field is cut for the pros-only finish at Magnolia on Sunday.

One shot off the lead at 67 were J.C. Snead, Bob Murphy, Howard Twitty, Barry Jaekel and Steve Hart. Snead and Twitty played the Palm course, with Jaekel, Hart and Murphy at Lake Buena Vista.

The big roush at 68 included Steve Melnyk, Danny Edwards, Dan Pohl, Keith Fergus, Roger Maltbie, Charles Krenkel, Tom Jones, Larry Mize and Larry Rinker. Peete, one of the few blacks on the Tour, didn't touch a golf club until he was 23, and didn't join the Tour until the relatively advanced age of 33.

He's averaged more than $100,000 in winnings for the last three seasons and last year led the Tour in two important statistical categories, greens-hit-in-regulation and driving accuracy. He leads in both categories again this season.

And this season, he has come into his own at age 39. Only Tom Watson and Craig Stadler have won as many tournaments this season. And, since 1975, only Watson and Nicklaus have won more in a single season.

"I think it's a matter of

Mountaineer Offensive Line Said 'Banged Up'

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — West Virginia, coming off a tough 24-0 loss to eighth-ranked Penn State, is struggling to put together a healthy offensive line.

But offensive line coach Carl Battershell says he's not worried about his charges will perform when the 18th-rated Mountaineers take on East Carolina on Saturday.

"We're coming off a real physical game with Penn State, and we have a couple of guys who are questionable this week, although nobody has been ruled out," Battershell said.

"No question, it would be nice to be going into this game like we did against Oklahoma (in the season opener) with everybody 100 percent. But a couple of the guys have had nagging injuries and are not 100 percent healthy. They're in the same boat as our quarterback."

This week's injury report not only lists West Virginia quarterback Jeff Hostetler and running back Tom Gray out with injuries, it also shows center Dave Johnson (ankle), tackle Jim Rodgers (knee and ankle), guard Bill Legg (wrist) and guard Andre Gist (ribs and knee) as members of the walking wounded.

Earlier in the season, tackle Rob Schellhaas had arthroscopic knee surgery. Starting tackle Ray Hoisington, who missed last week's game against Penn State with a sprained wrist, will be back Saturday.

With the exception of tight end Mark Raugh and tackle Kurt Kehl, every offensive lineman who was a starter eight weeks ago has been trying to shake injuries.

The rash of injuries has forced West Virginia to juggle its line for most of the season. Gist began the year at one guard position but was replaced by sophomore Scott Barrows after being injured in the season opener. Gist is now playing on the opposite side of the line in place of Legg, who has played backup center behind Johnson.

Rodgers, the team's strongest player, replaced Hoisington three weeks ago, but still is not at full strength following knee surgery.

"We don't do anything special when we send another guy in," Battershell said. "It's not like changing plays or schemes. If a guy is a backup for us, as many repetitions and as much work as he has done, he should be able to go into the game and play well. Of course, we'd like to have a senior backing up a senior in there."

Rose Bows To Eagles

ELIZABETH CITY — Rose High School and Northeastern battled back and forth for 72 minutes before the Eagles finally pushed through a goal to claim a 1-0 win in the final soccer match of the season for both teams.

"We dominated play," Coach Will Wiberg said, "but we just couldn't score. We outshot them 20 to 15."

The lone goal came with eight minutes left to play on a shot by Larry Vaughn.

"Clark and Jeff Stallings played well at midfield, and on offense, Allan Smith and Mark Schmidt played well, creating a number of good scoring opportunities," Wiberg said. "On defense, Greg Fidler and David Jester played very well."

The Rampants finish their initial season in soccer with a 3-7-2 record. Northeastern ends the year at 6-4-2.

"This was a real good season for us, and I'm looking forward to next year," Wiberg added.

The Big East will be represented by Wilson Hunt in the playoffs.

Lady Pirates Top Seahawks

WILMINGTON — East Carolina University's Lady Pirates thumped UNC-Wilmington in four games yesterday in a volleyball match.

A scheduled match with USC-Lancaster was not held due to a mix-up.

The Lady Pirates took the first two games, 15-12, 16-14, before losing in game three, 15-11. They came back with a 15-11 win in the fourth game to win the match.

Still, it left coach Lynn Davidson very displeased with her charges. "I'm very disappointed with the way we've been playing," she said.

"We've not played well since the South Carolina Tournament. Something is just not there and I can't figure out why. I tried yelling at them, pleading with them and it's not working. It's up to the players to straighten themselves out. They've got to get themselves together because we've got some tough matches ahead."

Davidson did find a bright spot in the play of Darlene Hedges, out this year for the first time in volleyball. "Darlene came in and did a great job blocking. She intimidated Wilmington immensely."

The win boosted the Lady Pirate record to 21-12. They travel to Richmond, Va., on Wednesday to face George Mason and hosting Virginia Commonwealth in a tri-match.

The Appreciation Dinner. The dinner will be part of the Rose Homecoming activities which will mark the final game of many Rose High seniors.

Wooten invites other interested citizens and businesses who wish to be a part of this activity to contact him at Greenville Middle School, tel. 756-0521.

Others serving on the committee are Roderick Harrell, Sr., J.B. Smith, Charles Whitner, Joseph Godette, Sr. and Howard Pearce.

Dinner Planned For Coaches

The second annual Appreciation Dinner for the Greenville City Football Coaches will be held Friday, Nov. 5 at the Bachelor Benedict Club on Wyatt Street. Johnny Wooten, chairman of the event, says the dinner will follow the Rose High-Northeastern High (Elizabeth City) football game.

Parents and interested supporters will receive information this week and are asked to respond immediately on receipt of the letters.

Prior to both the Aycock and Rose games (on Nov. 4 and 5), football coaches will send the parents of each player a football jersey bearing their son's number. Parents are being asked to wear these jerseys at both games and at

Looking at this week's games, one would figure that at last there might be a little spread among the panel — but that will be seen only after the weekend's games are completed.

Tom Baines has returned to first place all alone with a 69-25 record, while this writer and Rick Scoppe are tied for second with 68-26 records. Vickie Spivey is fourth at 67-27, while Joe Jenkins is next with a 65-29 mark. Our guests trail the pack with a 62-32 mark. Only four games separate the leader from fifth place, however.

Last week's guest was the new ECU basketball coach, Charlie Harrison, and he turned in an 8-4 record, the best turned in by a coach this year.

This week, we have an old-timer with us, as Tom (Skip) Foreman Jr. of the Associated Press — and a Greenville native — joins us to make his selections.

Our high school picks last week resulted in a 4-1 mark last time out, which brings us to a 46-8-4 record on the season.

This, too, is the next-to-last week on the high school's regular schedule. Only one more week and for most of the teams, it's all over.

But there are some important games, nonetheless.

Jamesville travels to Creswell in a key Tobacco Belt game, while Ayden-Grifton tries to keep its playoff hopes going.

Greene Central will be at Farmville Central, where the Jaguars are shooting for three straight. The Jaguars are finally getting things together, while things just don't seem to be going right at all for the winless Rams. We can't help but pick Farmville in this one, about 28-6.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Southern Nash and the biggest things the Chargers need to worry about is overconfidence. Southern has beaten only C.B. Aycock this year, and should cause the Chargers no problem. We'd call this one for the Chargers, 35-0.

Conley visits West Craven with little actual hope of a playoff berth left. The Eagles haven't won a league game yet, while Conley has but one victory to its credit all year. Things probably won't go well for the Vikings, and we'll go with West Craven, 13-7.

In the others, it'll be Roanoke Rapids over Roanoke, Washington over Williamston, and Creswell over Jamesville for the second Tobacco Belt berth.

Our panel takes a close look at the Rose-Hunt and ECU-West Virginia games.

Rose has been up and down, but so has Hunt. Hunt beat the Rampants last time out, and Rose should remember that one. Neither has anything left but pride to play for, and our own personal observation is that Rose has more pride. We call it 21-13 for the Rampants. The panel gives the Rampants a slim edge, 4-2.

East Carolina travels to West Virginia, still looking for a win over a "name" team. Could this be the week, with WV's top quarterback sidelined? We'd like to think so, but we've still got to pick the Mountaineers, by 24-10. The panel goes down the line with West Virginia, 6-0.

Our other consensus picks: N.C. State over South Carolina, Duke and Georgia Tech, a toss-up; Air Force over Wyoming; Florida State over Miami; Iowa State over Kansas State; North Carolina over Maryland; Virginia over VMI; Auburn over Florida; Houston over Texas Christian; and Southern California over Arizona State.

Farmville Central Captures ECC Junior Varsity Title; Rose Wins

SNOW HILL — Tailback Toronto Moye rushed for 130 yards and scored two TDs to spark Farmville Central to a 24-14 victory over Greene Central to clinch the Eastern Carolina Conference junior varsity championship Thursday night.

Farmville Central, which ends the season with a perfect 5-0 league record and 5-2 overall, jumped out to a 16-0 lead and held on for the win.

Farmville, which had won only five games in the previous three years, used a 17-yard run by Moye in the first quarter to take a 6-0 lead. Edward Davis ran for the two-point conversion to make it 8-0.

Bobby Evans' 19-yard run and Fred Dixon's two-point PAT upped the lead to 16-0 in the second period.

Greene Central, which is now 3-2 in the conference, cut the deficit to 16-6 on a long touchdown pass.

The Jaguars, however, countered later in the period on an 18-yard pass from Moye to Bill Blount to make it 22-6 at the half.

Neither team scored in the third period. Greene Central narrowed the gap to 22-14 on a 37-yard fumble recovery and a two-point PAT. But, the Jaguars then all but sealed the win on a safety later in the fourth period.

The Farmville defense was led by linebackers Dennis Tripp (10 tackles, two fumble recoveries) and Kenny Evans (10 tackles, one fumble recovery). Lineman Jerome Daniels (nine tackles) and Mike Atkinson (eight tackles) aided the Jaguar defensive attack.

Farmville 8 14 0 2-24
G. Central 0 6 0 8-14

Rose 12

Hunt 6

Rose High School's junior varsity football team scored early and late to gain a 12-6 victory over Wilson Hunt yesterday.

Todd Martin got Rose on the scoreboard in the first quarter on a two-yard run. It stayed that way until late in the game, when Charles Vines scored from a yard out in the final quarter. Hunt then added its score on a 80-yard pass play from Johnny Clay to Tony Richardson.

Rodney Moore, Amos Edwards, Bill Zadiets, Jerry Howard and Michael Walsh were cited for their defensive play, while Scott Rush, Robert Joyner, Brian Bridges, Tom Moore and Churchill Thomas were singled out for their offensive play.

Rose is now 5-3-1 and closes out the season next Thursday at Northeastern of Elizabeth City.

Hunt 0 0 0 6-6
Rose 6 0 0 6-12

D.H. Conley 27

W. Craven 0

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley recorded its fourth shutout of the season and set up a showdown with Havelock for the Coastal Conference championship as DHC beat West Craven, 27-0, Thursday night.

The Vikings, now 6-1-1 overall and 4-0-1 in the league, will now play Havelock next Thursday in Havelock with the winner clinching the conference title.

DHC was led by halfback Martin Anderson, who scored two touchdowns and ran for 101 yards.

Steve Mills and Sewell Mills scored touchdowns for the Vikings as well. James Carmon kicked three PATs.

Defensively, the Vikings' top tacklers were safety Steve Mills, linebacker Derrick Parker and lineman Larry Thomas and Gerald Harper.

Mills, Harper, Carmon, Joel Cox and Ricky Rice all recovered fumbles. Parker and Lee Hardee each intercepted passes.

Clemson, NCAA In Long Meeting

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Clemson officials were to meet again with the NCAA's Infractions Committee at a suburban Chicago resort, according to a published report.

In a copyright story in today's editions, the Anderson Independent-Mail quoted unnamed sources at the scene as saying Clemson and National Collegiate Athletic Association officials held a marathon 12-hour session at Indian Lakes Resort at Bloomingdale, Ill., Thursday.

The substance of Thursday's meeting was not revealed, said the newspaper.

Clemson has been under investigation for the last 19 months for alleged football recruiting violations.

The newspaper quoted an unidentified source as saying a session was scheduled today, and that the Clemson party included President Bill Atchley, Coach Danny Ford and Athletic Director Bill McLellan.

The source said 10 to 12 people were in the Clemson party. However, the newspaper said it was not known whether all were officially representing the university.

McLellan, when contacted at his Indian Lakes room by the Independent-Mail, said, "I have no comment."

Walton Begins New Comeback As NBA Opens Season Tonight

By The Associated Press

Bill Walton, whose brittle feet apparently had ruined his spectacular career years ago, begins another comeback attempt with the San Diego Clippers tonight as the National Basketball Association opens its 37th season.

Walton, who has played only 14 regular-season games since 1978 because of feet susceptible to stress fractures, plans to play one game a week between law school classes at Stanford University. He is expected to be in uniform tonight for the Clippers when they host the Phoenix Suns.

"If he continues as he has in exhibitions, after the first of the year he could be up to two or three games a week," Clippers General Manager Paul Phipps said Thursday. "We still have to meet with him again to iron out his schedule."

"He has played very well in exhibitions, just outstanding," Phipps added. "We're hoping he will progress to more frequent activity. Right now, all signs indicate he can play more as the season wears on. By the All-Star break, we hope he can play on regular basis."

The Clippers won only 17 of 82 games last year, so any contribution at all from the 6-foot-11 center who led UCLA to two NCAA titles and Portland to an NBA championship in 1977 would be welcome.

"He will make us more competitive and help the league as well," Phipps said, "because he is a team player and has so much enthusiasm. The other players feel he is an asset whenever he's been able to play."

The opening-night schedule also includes Chicago at New Jersey, Philadelphia at New York, Boston at Cleveland, Atlanta at Detroit, Washington at Indiana, Portland at Kansas City, Dallas at Denver, San Antonio at Utah, Golden State at Los Angeles and Houston at Seattle. Milwaukee, the only team that doesn't play tonight, opens Saturday night at home against the Knicks.

The Lakers hope to become the first team since the 1968-69 Boston Celtics to win the NBA title two years in a row. The defending champion Lakers, who won in 1980 and last season, will have much the same cast of Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Earvin "Magic" Johnson, Jamaal Wilkes, Norm Nixon and Bob McAdoo.

But one major addition, top NBA draft pick James Worthy of North Carolina, might be enough to push the Lakers over the top again.

"I don't know if we have any real, glaring weaknesses," Coach Pat Riley said. "But there are some things we can improve on. Specifically, our overall team defense, allowing teams to shoot a high field goal percentage. I think we can get better there."

The Lakers lost only two games in the entire playoffs last season, but Riley doesn't foresee an easy road to another title.

"There are two major in-redients that contribute to the fact that an NBA champion has not repeated since 1969," Riley said. "First, everybody plays much harder against you every night. Games in December become like championship games, and it's difficult to sustain that through playoffs."

"Second is the mental attitude. The team has to grow closer, because it will be challenged like never before. The team must form a solidarity."

At least three teams — Seattle, Denver and Utah — planned to open the season with 11 men on the roster, one less than the limit. Of the three, only Seattle was among the one-third of the league that made money a year ago.

Aycock Bombs Hunt By 33-0

WILSON — E.B. Aycock got two touchdowns from Anthony Cobb and three touchdowns passes from Ervin Best as it rolled up a 33-0 victory over previously unbeaten Wilson Hunt Junior High School yesterday.

The victory moved the Jaguars into first place in the Big East Junior High league, leaving them needing only a victory over Northeastern next Thursday to wrap up the championship.

The victory moved the Jaguars into first place in the Big East Junior High league, leaving them needing only a victory over Northeastern next Thursday to wrap up the championship of the league.

38-yard pass from Best to Jones.

A number of players were singled out for their play in the game. They included Darryl Perkins, Skip Pascasio, Todd Morris, James Matthews, Jimmy Best, Rodney Harris (2 interceptions), Melvin Jenkins (1 interception), and Jeff Smith. The defense held Hunt to just 39 yards in total offense. Offensive leaders included Brian Walsh, Lee Miller, Mark Elmore, Greg Vacek, Sterlin Edwards, Best, Cobb (102 yards rushing), Jones, Smith and Hutton Cobb.

Now 5-0-1, the Jaguars play host to Elizabeth City Northeastern next Thursday, seeking to wrap up the championship of the league.

NFL Players Go Before Labor Board

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Football League players' strike has moved into its 39th day with attorneys replacing players as the key figures in the dispute that has left the 1982 season in jeopardy.

Jack Donlan, the club owners' chief negotiator, met with National Labor Relations Board General Counsel William A. Lubbers for nearly five hours Thursday to explain the owners' refusal to negotiate on the union's demand for a wage scale.

Donlan was accompanied by Sargent Karch, chief counsel for the NFL Management Council, the league's bargaining agent, and Betty Southard Murphy. Murphy, an NLRB chairman during the administration of President Gerald Ford, is considered an expert on how the Board operates.

On Oct. 21, Lubbers said he would seek an injunction to force the management council to bargain on the union's demand for a wage scale. Lubbers said the league's insistence that the union drop its demand for a wage scale as an alternative to individual bargaining was a violation of labor laws.

Negotiations for a new bargaining agreement are scheduled to resume Saturday in New York, ending a seven-day recess. "We gave Lubbers an update on the talks," Donlan said. "The meeting was to give us an opportunity to give our side of the story concerning the complaint."

If Lubbers proceeds with his plans to seek an injunction in federal court and it is granted, management presumably will be bound to bargain with the union on the wage scale. In arguing against the injunction, Donlan has said the proposed wage scale would end a team's right to enter into individual negotiations with its players.

Last week, Karch said the council was prepared to battle Lubbers, if necessary, to the Supreme Court.

The injunction, if sought, would have no effect on a hearing before an NLRB administrative law judge on Nov. 15. The hearing's purpose is to determine if the management council's failure to negotiate in good faith with the union, as the NLRB has charged, has caused the strike to be prolonged, as the NLRB has further charged.

If an administrative law judge agrees with NLRB regional director Daniel Silverman, who filed the complaint, the league would be barred from hiring permanent replacements for the striking players.

The players have been on strike since Sept. 21. League officials have said that two of the six weeks affected by the strike could be rescheduled by canceling the first round of wildcard playoff games and by rescheduling conference playoffs into the open week just prior to the Super Bowl.

Union officials have contended the season can still be played in its entirety by moving the Super Bowl, now slated for Jan. 30, back into February or March.

"The length of the season is negotiable," Donlan admitted Thursday. "But there are an awful lot of practical and economic reasons why Jan. 30th is pretty dear to us. While the length of the season is a bargaining issue, you have to take a hard look at what you can do."

The resumption of talks Saturday has increased speculation the owners are prepared to deliver a new financial offer in a last-ditch effort to end the strike.

A widely circulated rumor calls for the owners' proposal to include an across-the-board wage increase with the clubs and players retaining the right to individual contract negotiations.

If the club owners were to offer a 20 percent increase, wages would increase this year from $145 million to $174 million, with the average pay rising from $90,000 to $108,000.

"You just can't come up with a big money offer that's as phony as a carrot on a stick," said Doug Allen, assistant executive director of the players' association.

"The extra money doesn't address the five points that are the aims of this strike," Allen said. "A lot of money will be there but there will be a lot of players who never see it."

Under the first year of the union's proposed four-year, $1.6 billion financial package, the average salary would rise to $150,000 this year.

Four States To Be Fighting Crime On The Ballot

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

A proposal to restore the death penalty in Massachusetts and a crackdown on bail in three other states are among law-and-order ballot measures voters will be considering on Nov. 2.

Arizona, Florida and Illinois ballots feature referenda aimed at making it easier for judges to keep accused criminals in jail while awaiting trial. Florida voters also will consider a ballot question to allow judges and juries to consider evidence even if police obtain it illegally.

Massachusetts, which has not had an execution since 1947, will vote on whether to restore the death penalty. Even if the referendum is approved, followup legislation would still be needed. Michael Fields, spokesman for a coalition of groups opposing the death penalty, said up to $200,000 will be spent on media advertising aimed at defeating the referendum.

New Jersey and Rhode Island voters will weigh proposals to build new prisons. Nevada will consider a measure that would make it more difficult for convicts serving lengthy sentences to be paroled.

And while California weighs a gun control proposition, New Hampshire and Nevada vote on state constitutional amendments guaranteeing the right to bear arms.

The bail proposals in Arizona, Florida and Illinois are part of a growing trend in the United States to deny bail to defendants who are considered a danger to the community if they are released while awaiting trial.

Traditionally, courts have said bail must be set at the minimum amount which would reasonably assure the defendant's appearance at trial. Denying bail or requiring a cash bond higher than necessary violates the presumption of innocence, according to traditional rulings. Out of an estimated 11 million arrests in this country each year, only about 80,000 defendants are kept in jail instead of released on bail, according to studies.

However, the move toward "preventive detention" has grown as studies show that 1 of every 6 people out on bail is arrested for a new crime before coming to trial, and the more serious the first charge, the more likely the defendant is to commit violence while out on bail.

Thirty states now allow judges making bail decisions to also consider whether the defendant is dangerous and might commit crimes of violence if released, according to the Pretrial Services Research Center in Washington.

Arizona Attorney General Bob Corbin said the proposal there "would allow judges to take into account the danger posed by the defendant on bail before trial. Too many people are released before trial simply because they have enough money to post bail."

The American Civil Liberties Union opposes the ballot questions.

"The only proper purpose of bail is to ensure that the accused shows up for trial," said Susan Bandes, an ACLU lawyer in Chicago. She said that if the referendum is approved by Illinois voters, it probably will be challenged in the courts.

Another proposal in Florida would strike the state's constitutional "exclusionary rule," the traditional legal doctrine that bars judges and juries from considering evidence the police obtain illegally—such as a confession made without the required police warning that the accused has the right to remain silent and the right to an attorney.

In Nevada, voters will decide whether the state constitution should be amended to allow the Legislature to prevent the granting of parole to offenders whose original sentences did not allow release.

Assemblyman Nicholas Horn said the amendment would correct a "real deception" in the law which allows even defendants sentenced to life in prison without parole to be paroled within 10 to 15 years.

Another proposed Nevada constitutional amendment would "confer a right upon private citizens to keep and bear arms for their defense and security and other lawful purposes."

"Passage of this amendment would prohibit the state Legislature from enacting restrictive gun control laws," Secretary of State William Swackhamer said.

A similar ballot question in New Hampshire would allow citizens to "keep and bear arms in defense of themselves, their families, their property and the state."

In both states, the proposed amendments are opposed by advocates of gun control. "We need to move away from the Wild West mentality where everybody takes the law into his own hands," New Hampshire state Rep. Barbara Zeckhausen said.

In California, Proposition 15 would ban the importing of guns to the state and impose a six-month jail term for carrying an unlicensed handgun. It is sponsored by a group called Californians Against Street Crime, but is hotly opposed by the National Rifle Association and the 125,000-member Gun Owners of California.

In New Jersey, voters will consider a $170 million bond issue to build two new 500-bed medium security prisons and make improvements in overcrowded county jails. And the Rhode Island proposal would provide $8.5 million for expansion and renovations in state prisons.

KEY DEER — A Florida tourist tries to feed a small herd of Key Deer on Big Pine Key in the Florida Keys. The deer, which are small by comparison to the common White Tail Deer, usually measure (for a buck) about 28 inches tall and weigh about 75 pounds. Biologists fear that the deer might be getting larger because of interference by people in its diet. (AP Laserphoto)

Backpacking Trip Planned

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department and the Department of Intramurals-Recreation Services, East Carolina University, is offering a backpacking trip in the Uwharrie National Forest near Asheboro.

The trip will be Friday through Sunday, Nov. 19-21. Cost of the trip, including transportation from Greenville, all equipment (except shoes, clothing and toiletries) and all meals on the trail, is $20. An additional expense of $5 to $10 should cover meals on the trip to and from Uwharrie.

Those taking the trip will leave Greenville at 5 p.m. Nov. 19. The night will be spent at Uwharrie National Forest, with hiking and camping on the trail Saturday. A hike will be taken Sunday morning, with the return home Sunday afternoon.

The trip is geared to the beginning and novice backpacker and will include presentations on camping skills, equipment selection and packing, and ecological awareness.

For more information, call Bill Twine at 752-4137, extension 201.

Sunlamp Safety

I love the sun. The summer is over and I would like to keep my tan. If I began to use a sunlamp soon and used it all winter would it be safe? — Miss L.G.L., Mich.

Dear Miss L.: Overexposure to the ultraviolet light of a sunlamp is just as dangerous as overexposure to the concentrated rays of the midday summer sun.

Some dermatologists give strict orders to some of their patients and advise them to stay out of the sun. This advice, of course, holds for sunlamps too. Skin cancers are sometimes attributed to overexposure to the sun.

There is a specific danger that must be avoided in the use of a sunlamp. Far too many people have a tendency to overdo these ultraviolet treatments in a desire to maintain a high level of tanning. Severe skin burns can follow such overexposure, especially if the sunlamp is too close to the face.

Another danger is the possibility of falling asleep while under the lamp. This happens far more often than is realized. The warm relaxation of the lamp is conducive to sleep. It is for this reason that every sunlamp should be provided with an automatic shut-off, a timing device, and a warning bell.

Protective goggles must be worn. Too often this is neglected in an effort to get a diffuse sunburn around the eyelids. Cotton pads can offer extra protection for the eyes.

It should be kept in mind that some drugs increase the sensitivity of the skin to ultraviolet light. For greater safety, be sure to ask your doctor if there is any reason you should not be exposed to the rays of a sunlamp.

There are now many "sun parlors" which have elaborate programs for maintaining year-round tanning. Many of them are excellently controlled by physicians. This added safety could be enhanced if a written consent would be given by a dermatologist to anyone who is embarking on such a program.

What is the difference between a partial hysterectomy and a complete one? Does a patient ever make the choice? — Mrs. B.K., Tenn.

Dear Mrs. K.: The uterus, or womb, consists of two anatomical parts: the major portion known as the body of the uterus and the smaller part, or opening, known as the cervix.

During a total hysterectomy both the body and the cervix are removed. When the cervix is left, the operation is considered a partial hysterectomy.

Since this operation is done for a wide variety of reasons, the choice depends entirely on the findings of the doctors and surgeons and their surgical judgment.

Whether or not the rest of the female organs (the ovaries and the Fallopian tubes) are removed, must depend on the basic problem and the surgeon's critical judgment.

It is wise that anyone about to undergo this type of surgery know a great deal about the physical and emotional aftereffects. Only in this way can some of the depression associated with the operation be modified or avoided.

A Review 'The Mikado' - A Must-See Musical Treat Opens

Nearly 100 years have elapsed since the premiere of Gilbert and Sullivan's masterful "The Mikado." This ninth in the series of 14 operettas by the enduring team first saw the light of day on March 14, 1885, at the Savoy Theater in London and was received by what contemporaries described as a "tumultuous" press. It ran a consecutive 672 performances — setting a record rarely exceeded until the Rogers-Hammerstein works of the 1940s.

The East Carolina Playhouse production, which opened the season Thursday night at McGinnis Auditorium, adheres pretty strongly to the standard G & S tradition. The uniformly strict, straight lines of the "gentlemen of Japan" and "train of little ladies" all convey very well the charm of a mid-Victorian view of Nisei culture. Fluttering fans, squeaking and giggling "maids from school," oriental bows, and a "Sumi e" painted set all contribute to this tradition. But tradition can also contribute stultifying results as exemplified by the fact that the D'Oyly Carte company which, for over 80 years, presented the G & S operas in much the same way, has become defunct.

Fortunately, and to director Cherry Mir Garrison's credit, this particular production steers a careful path that avoids the more deathly aspects of tradition while still preserving the delightful charms of the work.

The physical production, designed by Gregory Buch and executed by Leonard Darby, has a handsome, if somewhat subdued, coloristic effect. David Downing's lighting accomplishes many striking and interesting things, not the least of which are the fireworks for Nanki-Poo's "patriotic sentiment" and the remarkable "rising sun" for the entrance of Mikado himself.

The orchestra, under the direction of Brett Watson, performs admirably, particularly considering that 22 players were doing the work of 40. The many private little jokes which Sullivan hides in his orchestration are unblushingly in evidence, most notably the quote from Bach's G-Minor Fugue.

The costumes from Malabar Ltd. of Toronto seem singularly untheatrical, particularly since, visually, those of the chorus had a stronger effect than those of the principals, and one wonders why the most striking costumes are those of the Mikado's guards. Patrice Alexander's supervision of these and the 30 or so wigs prove a welcome feature.

Soloists all handled their duties quite well, vocally. Frederick Johnson's Nanki-Poo probably is as viscerally strong as that role has ever been sung. Dianne Pickett is most marvelously threatening as Katisha. Denise Miller's Yum-Yum is a delight to the ears, Amie Keyse's Peep-Bo is charming in a role usually discounted as a cipher, and Sandra Jean Landers' Pitti-Sing rounds out the "three little maids," a really strong and decisive portrayal.

Gerald Murphy's Pish-Tush is complimented by the able Ko-Ko of Jay Fox, whose diction is certainly the best on stage, and Steven Williford's pot-bellied though thin Pooh-Bah. Anton Wesley's Mikado brings a mature command to the vocal duties of the title role. Generally, the entire cast should sharpen up their diction. A good many of the delights of Gilbert's witty text suffers from lack of projection and some awkward timing. In the last analysis, a G & S production stands or falls on the strength of its chorus. This performance has a definite plus in a group of young people who, a few minor places aside, have obviously worked very hard to perfect an almost machine-like accuracy in the "attitudes" of quasi-Japanese culture. One wonders whether the credit for this belongs to Ms. Garrison or to Dance Captain Paula Johnson. Whoever is responsible, accept congratulations. For the most part, the chorus sang and blended well, with credit going to director Julie Moore.

Performances of "The Mikado" seem to be getting rarer and rarer these days. This production is one of the highlights of ECU's 75th anniversary year and is the fourth ECU rendition of the work. The 1982 edition belongs on everyone's "must see" list.

Performances continue to night, Saturday, Monday and Wednesday. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m.

Kate Hepburn Hospitalized

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Katharine Hepburn has been hospitalized for an undisclosed ailment at Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital here, a spokeswoman says.

KATHARINE HEPBURN

An official of the hospital, who refused to identify herself, confirmed today that the 72-year-old actress was at the facility but refused comment about her illness, condition or treatment.

The New York Post reported Thursday that Miss Hepburn's ailment was poor circulation in her arms and that she "has been hospitalized before with the same problem."

The paper also said she was in the hospital's Harkness Pavilion with a guard posted by the door of her private room.

Vivian Hall, an aide to Miss Hepburn's agent, Nat Lefkowitz, said Thursday the agent had "no knowledge" of Miss Hepburn's hospitalization.

"We don't handle anything connected with her personal life, only her business affairs. We do not know what Miss Hepburn does," the aide said.

Consultant Role For Conductor

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Leonard Slatkin, music director of the Saint Louis Symphony Orchestra, has accepted a two-year appointment as Artistic Consultant to the Oakland California Symphony Association. One of his principal tasks will be to help select a new conductor for the Oakland orchestra, whose music director Calvin Simmons drowned Aug. 22 while canoeing near Lake Placid, N.Y. Slatkin will not do any conducting with the Oakland Symphony, but will help in programming and the booking of guest artists and conductors.

Joyous Socialists Celebrate Spain's Election Win

WAVE OF TRIUMPH — Spanish socialist leader Felipe Gonzalez (left) gives a triumphal wave to thousands of supporters outside the Palace Hotel in Madrid after his overall election victory was confirmed. A euphoric waiter (right) shares the limelight. (AP Laserphoto)

By MARK S. SMITH
Associated Press Writer
MADRID, Spain (AP) — Chanting "Viva Espana!" tens of thousands of joyous Socialists celebrated a momentous election victory that returned their party to power for the first time since fascist dictator Francisco Franco drove them into the political wilderness 43 years ago.

The shouts of "Long Live Spain" rang out across Madrid's 17th century Plaza Mayor Thursday night to mark the Socialists' capture of majority control in Parliament, which put the premiership in the hands of their 40-year-old champion, Felipe Gonzalez.

"Democracy and the Spanish people were the winners," Gonzalez, a Seville-born labor lawyer, told cheering supporters at a rally at the Plaza Hotel across town.

Extending an olive branch to his political foes and a military still wary of democracy, Gonzalez said no Spaniard should feel "left out of the beautiful task of modernizing Spain."

In announcing the final result, election officials said 79.5 percent of 26.6 million registered voters went to the polls Thursday. That total eclipsed the exuberant 68 percent turnout in the 1977 elections, Spain's first democratic balloting after the death of Franco.

Campaigning on a moderate platform that turned away from Marxism and shunned industrial or commercial nationalization, Gonzalez' Socialist Workers Party won 46 percent of the vote, earning 198 of the 350 seats in the lower house of the Cortes.

The party's nearest rival was the right-wing Popular Alliance, led by Manuel Fraga, 59, a hardline Cabinet minister in the Franco government. The rightists took 104 seats and 25 percent of the vote, underscoring a left-right polarization.

Popular Alliance, part of a tiny bloc that held nine seats in the last Cortes, emerged as the principal opposition party. Fraga vowed it would provide a "loyal but effective" counterfoil to the Socialists.

The results were disastrous for centrist parties.

The ruling Union of the Democratic Center led by outgoing Prime Minister Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo — who called the elections five months early as his coalition began to fracture — gained only 7.2 percent of the vote, according to the official tally.

Calvo Sotelo was swept away in the Socialist tide and the centrist union was reduced to 13 seats from 168 in the 1979 election, the second post-Franco ballot.

The other main centrist faction, the Democratic and Social Center, led by Spain's first popularly elected premier, Adolfo Suarez, won only two seats.

Election results also were a sharp disappointment to the Communists, whose share of the vote fell from 1979's 10.8 percent and 23 seats to 3.8 percent and five seats.

An assortment of regional parties divided the remaining 28 seats.

Thursday's vote followed a tense, three-week campaign which began inauspiciously with the government's announcement that a group of right-wing army men had been caught plotting to seize power on election eve.

A series of explosions in the independence-minded Basque country added to campaign tensions. Two more blasts on election day injured two policemen.

For Gonzalez, the son of a dairy farmer in Andalusia, the victory capped an eight-year campaign to raise the Socialist Workers Party from an outlawed Marxist group to a moderate force in national affairs.

Spain's last Socialist premier, Francisco Largo Caballero, fled to France during the bloody 1936-39 civil war between Franco's rightists and supporters of the republic.

After taking over in 1974, when the party was still illegal in Spain and its top leaders were in exile, Gonzalez stripped away radical rhetoric and built a new program he hopes will put 800,000 Spaniards to work over four years and cut an unemployment rate of nearly 14.5 percent.

The Socialists also modified their opposition to the American military bases in the country and Spain's five-month-old membership in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. They say their government will review the agreement extending the American lease on base facilities, which the Cortes has not ratified, and call a referendum on NATO membership.

"Spain votes for a change," headlined the independent Bilbao newspaper Tribuna Vasca, echoing the Socialists' campaign call.

Cache Of Old Coins Is Uncovered By Backhoe

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Construction workers digging the foundation for a hotel pulled up two boxes of pre-Civil War coins from the mud, setting off a gold rush by well-dressed prospectors from nearby office buildings.

Businessmen in suits and women in heels began sloshing in the muck to grab some of the gold and silver coins that scattered after one of the boxes broke open Thursday.

"It was worth getting my shoes full of mud," said an unemployed young man who tucked away Spanish coins from the middle 1700s and quarters made in the New Orleans mint in the early 1840s.

"It was like Mardi Gras grabbing for doubloons," he added, refusing to give his name because he didn't want the owner of the site or the Internal Revenue Service to know he had 25 coins.

"They were down in the ground in coats and suits and ties like groundhogs," said Guy Montana, a construction worker.

"One secretary was in a fancy outfit, and she just got down there in the mud and got dirty collecting coins," said Michael Walker, field officer for the company building a hotel on the business-district lot. "But she was tickled pink because she found three coins."

Most of the coins, gathered after a backhoe digging 13 feet below ground hit pay dirt, were silver. A few were gold. The coins included a 1726 Mexican coin, a large 1838 coin bearing the words "Est-Nor-Peruano" and French coins from the early 1700s.

Roy Mouldous, job superintendent for Gervais F. Favrot Co., the contractor at the site, said there were two wooden boxes, each measuring 10 by 12 by 8 inches. They held about 1,000 coins, he estimated.

When the first one fell, "It broke open and 200 hands got in it," Mouldous said.

It was not immediately clear who holds legal ownership of the coins. A policeman at the site said they might belong to the state. But a member of the state Archaeological Survey and Antiquities Commission, who asked not to be identified, said that unlike public projects, excavation of private lands is not supervised by the state.

Walker said his company planned to keep unauthorized people away from the work site today.

"We are not in the business of looking for buried treasure," he said. "We are trying to build a hotel."

The site used to be a bank, said Jack Serio, who owns the building next door.

"This was an old bank — one of the oldest banks in the city," he said. "We've owned this building for 30 years. When we first bought it the bank building was here. It wasn't operating — just an empty building."

At a Whitney National Bank office across the street, employee Frances Kline said about 40 to 50 bank employees ran out to the site.

Mrs. Kline said she came out with four quarters from the 1840s and one Spanish coin. "It was fun. Something you never do. Once in a lifetime," she said.

Some constructions workers were handing out coins they gathered, and Mouldous said he doubted that any construction worker got more than a few.

But the young man who was worried about the IRS said, "I saw one guy who had a workman's glove filled with them."

Eileen Brennan's Condition Said 'Critical But Stable' In Hospital

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Eileen Brennan, the frazzled captain of "Private Benjamin," was in critical condition Thursday after being hit by a car while jaywalking across a street darkened during power outage.

EILEEN BRENNAN

Miss Brennan and Goldie Hawn, co-stars in the movie version of "Private Benjamin," were walking to their cars after leaving a Venice restaurant late Wednesday when the accident occurred, said Los Angeles traffic Sgt. Harry Ryon.

"She (Miss Brennan) had been walking backward, saying goodbye (to Miss Hawn) for part of the way. But she had turned around and was walking forward toward her car when she was hit," Ryon said. "She was not at the corner or in a crosswalk at the time."

"She was not thrown," said police traffic officer Edward Maraglia. "She was picked up, carried on the car's hood for 71 feet, then fell to the ground when the car stopped."

Miss Brennan's legs were broken, her skull and face bones fractured and her pelvis may have been fractured, said Jeff Merkow of Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital in Marina del Rey.

The 48-year-old actress was listed in "critical but stable" condition, he said. "But she is alert. She knows where she is."

"She's still in critical condition, but pending any further complications, the doctor says her prognosis is good," Miss Brennan's publicist, Paul Burditch, said at the hospital.

Miss Hawn, who was also executive producer of "Private Benjamin," was "shaken up," but not injured.

Both actresses were nominated for 1981 Academy Awards for their roles in the movie, Miss Hawn as best actress and Miss Brennan as best supporting actress. Miss Brennan now appears in the TV series spun off from the movie, a portrayal that won her an Emmy.

Miss Hawn and Miss Brennan had just left a restaurant in Venice, a beach community west of downtown Los Angeles, Ryon said. Miss Hawn was getting into her car and Miss Brennan was crossing the street to hers when she was struck about 11 p.m. Wednesday, he said.

"Eileen was on one side of the street. Goldie on the other," Burditch quoted Miss Brennan's sister, Gerry Mangurian, as saying. "She turned to say goodbye and as she did, she saw the car coming and was hit."

Area streets lights had just blacked out because of a brief power outage, although residential and business lights were on, Ryon said.

"The lights were only out for a brief time. Unfortunately, it was during the time of the accident," he added. The reason for the outage was not known.

The driver of the car,

49-year-old Ronald Guajardo of Venice, stayed with Miss Brennan after the accident, Ryon said.

"The driver didn't take off or anything. He stayed with her until the paramedics took her away. He was pretty shaken up, as was Miss Hawn," Ryon said.

Guajardo was not arrested. Ryon said investigators found skid marks on the road that indicated a car was traveling about 50 mph in a 30 mph zone.

"I can state emphatically that neither Miss Brennan nor the driver of the car was intoxicated," Ryon said.

Miss Hawn was taken to the hospital to be with her friend, but went home about 4 a.m. Thursday, said Steve Goldstein.

Argue Against CWIP Ruling

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Attorneys for two major utilities argued for an allowance for construction work in progress, known as CWIP, before a legislative committee Wednesday.

The Legislature in June gave the North Carolina Utilities Commission the discretion to deny construction financing charges for projects still under way. Such charges had previously been passed onto customers.

Attorneys for Carolina Power & Light Co. and Virginia and Electric Power Co. voiced their displeasure with the June change, but stopped short of calling for legislative action to return to the former system of allowing full charges for CWIP.

Russians Rescue 2 People On A Raft

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Two boaters floating in a life raft were rescued Thursday afternoon by a Soviet commercial ship about 90 miles south of Cape Lookout, the U.S. Coast Guard reported.

Chief Warrant Officer Newman Cantrell said the identity of the boaters was not immediately available.

At midnight, a 41-foot Coast Guard boat from Ft. Maccop met the Soviet ship offshore and took the two people to Beaufort.

Petty Officer Ernest Turner said the Coast Guard was not immediately able to find out the name of the boat the people were from, but it was believed to have been a pleasure boat that sank.

He said both sailors apparently were sedated with some type of medication and were unable to speak clearly. In addition, the Coast Guard crews were having difficulty communicating with the Russian-speaking crew of the rescue ship and did not know the name of that vessel.

Coast Guard officials said the pair appeared to be fatigued, but could give no further details on their conditions.

The bidding: East South West North 1 2 2 6 0 Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

Entries are precious. Don't squander them recklessly! We will be kind and describe South's decision to enter the auction as a flight of fancy. In spite of the opponents' partscore, the requirements for an overcall do not change materially, especially at the two-level. More often than not, action of this kind simply prolongs a disastrous rubber. After West offered a competitive raise, North made an eminently reasonable leap to six diamonds!

Luckily for the defense, South's declarer play matched his bidding. He ruffed the opening spade lead in dummy, crossed to the jack of clubs and then took the ace and king of trumps. Muttering about bad breaks when East showed out, declarer then tried to run clubs in the hope that something good would happen. Nothing did. Down two.

In the Matter of the proposed foreclosure of a deed of trust executed by Lissie Belle Coley, in an original amount of $29,000.00 dated September 20, 1976, recorded in Book B-45, Page 674, Pitt County Registry, by Robert R. Browning, Substitute Trustee. See Appointment of Substitute Trustee as recorded in Book D-51 at Page 213 of the Pitt County Registry. NOTICE OF SUBSTITUTION OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE
Under and by virtue of the power and authority contained in that certain Deed of Trust executed and delivered by Lissie Belle Coley, dated September 20, 1976, and recorded in the Office of the Register of Deeds for Pitt County, North Carolina, in Book B-45 at Page 674 and because of default in the payment of the indebtedness thereby secured and failure to carry out or perform the stipulations and agreements therein contained and pursuant to the demand of the owner and holder of the indebtedness secured by said Deed of Trust, and pursuant to the Order of the Clerk of Superior Court for Pitt County, North Carolina, entered in this foreclosure proceeding, the undersigned, Robert R. Browning, Substitute Trustee, will expose for sale at public auction on the 24th day of November, 1982, at 12:00 Noon on the front steps of the Pitt County Courthouse, Greenville, North Carolina, the following described real property (including the house and any other improvements thereon): Lying and being in the Town of Ayden, North Carolina, and on the East side of S. Lee Street, between Third Street and Seminary Avenue, which present address is 416 S. Lee Street, and known as the L. S. Sikes house and lot, and fronting on S. Lee Street, 49 1/2 feet and running back 150 feet, and adjoins the lots of Mrs. Mary Branch and J. A. Phillips, and being the same house and lot where the grantors herein now reside, and being the identical property described as the first parcel in that certain deed from K. B. Jolly and wife to Renno McLawhorn (Edwards) of record in Book K-18, at Page 214 of the Pitt County Registry. See also Book G-16, page 5 of the Pitt County Registry. The address for the property is 416 S. Lee Street, Ayden, N.C. The sale will be made subject to all prior liens (including attorneys fees, foreclosure expenses, and Trustee's fees; unpaid taxes, restrictions and assessments of record and special assessments, if any). The record owner of the above described real property as reflected on the records of the Pitt County Register of Deeds not more than ten (10) days prior to the posting of this Notice is Lissie Belle Coley. Pursuant to North Carolina General Statutes 45-21.10(b) and the terms of the Deed of Trust, any successful bidder may be required to deposit with the Substitute Trustee immediately upon conclusion of the sale a cash deposit of ten (10%) of the bid up to and including $1,000.00 plus five (5%) percent of any excess over $1,000.00. Any successful bidder shall be required to tender the full balance purchase price so bid in cash or certified check at the time the Substitute Trustee tenders him a deed for the property or attempts to tender such deed, and should said successful bidder fail to pay the full balance purchase price so bid at that time, he shall remain liable for the balance of the purchase price so bid as provided for in North Carolina General Statute 45-21.30(d) and (e). This sale will be held open ten (10) days for upset bids as required by law. This 21st day of September, 1982. HOWARD BROWNING, SAMS & POOLE ROBERT R. BROWNING Substitute Trustee P. O. Box 859 200 E. Trained salespeople will help you select a single light fixture, choose a paint for a hallway, or re-do the whole house.

We've got new and improved product displays: new signing to help you quickly locate the merchandise you need; more merchandise on our showroom floor; shopping carts and a quick checkout counter for your convenience; plus all our previous service of trained salespeople and credit, and delivery availability to mention a few.

We've made our store more appealing to today's fashion and value conscious consumer. The decorating section has lighting, wallpaper, paint, kitchen cabinets, bath accessories, floor covering and other merchandise to decorate your home. You'll find a new display of doors and windows, set up so you can see how they'll look in your home. We've set aside part of the store to display lumber, plywood, siding, paneling, mouldings and other wood products. And there's a separate sales office to better serve our professional builders and contractors.

We're proud of the new Lowe's! We believe that we've made a good thing a lot better and we think you'll agree. Come in and see for yourself!
