Missiles May Go To Wyoming
MX Decision Ready

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is poised to announce his decision on deploying the huge new MX intercontinental missile, with all signs indicating he will choose a closely spaced basing scheme that faces opposition in Congress.

Administration sources said in advance of Reagan's announcement, expected late today, they understand he has accepted a recommendation to place 100 MX weapons in super-hardened launch silos spaced about 1,800 to 2,000 feet apart in the West, probably at Warren Air Force Base, Wyo.

Reagan will discuss the MX in a nationally televised speech at 8 p.m., EST. The speech will also cover arms control matters and relations with the Soviet Union.

The entire MX project is expected to cost about $30 billion.

Such a deployment pattern would rely on a theory called "fratricide" to assure the survival of the missiles. According to the untested theory, incoming Soviet warheads would disable each other through blasts, radiation or debris and most of the MX weapons would survive to launch a retaliatory strike.

What makes fratricide work, the experts say, is the close spacing of the MX missiles, which narrows the Soviet target area.

The close spacing concept, which the Air Force calls "dense pack," is a dramatic departure from past missile deployment plans, including the Carter administration's scheme.

The sources, who asked to remain anonymous, said they expect Reagan's package to include a number of "growth options," which might be built into the system in the 1990s if the Soviets develop ways to counter closely spaced basing.

Among those options is "deceptive basing," a method of distributing MX missiles among additional holes.

Last week, sources said, Pentagon specialists and the Air Force were asked to come up with a way to scatter 100 MX missiles in up to 300 holes. Such deployment would force the Russians to guess where the missiles are.

That option was said to have been favored by Thomas Reed, a top Reagan weapons advisor. However, sources said these late studies were abruptly halted over the weekend.

At the same time, sources said they understood that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Reed had debated the "deceptive basing" proposal in what were described as "tough phone calls."

Weinberger was said to have objected to any "deceptive basing" element in the deployment plan, except as a possibility for the distant future.

Reagan returned from his Camp David, Md., retreat Sunday after studying documents supplied by Weinberger and the National Security Council. The president said he would announce his decision today.

Reagan arranged to brief congressional leaders in advance of his public announcement.

Even before his decision was announced, the MX was in for rough sledding in Congress.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., says he's confident Congress will slash MX money from defense spending bills.

The president's decision on basing the MX comes almost two years after he entered the White House.

Prime Rate Cut Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks cut their prime lending rate today by one half a percentage point to 11.5 percent, the lowest since September 1980.

Among the banks lowering their prime commercial lending rate were Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank, ranked in size No. 3 and No. 6, respectively.

Since July the prime lending rate has fallen from 16.5 percent.

Airliner Hijacked

BERLIN (AP) — A security guard hijacked a Polish airliner with 38 people aboard today and forced the pilot to divert the domestic flight to the U.S. Air Force base in West Berlin, base officials said.

The Soviet-built AN-24, a twin-engine plane the Polish state airline Lot uses on its domestic flights, touched down at 10:23 a.m. (4:23 a.m. EST), officials said.

It was carrying 31 passengers, four crew members and three security guards when one of the guards seized control on the first leg of a scheduled flight from Wroclaw to Gdansk by way of Warsaw, they said.

"The plane originated in Wroclaw," a base spokesman said. "One man came off and was escorted away by American security police. He was a member of the Polish Militia who was selected at the last moment to be a security guard on the flight due to a shortage of regular guards."

"The hijacker injured his right foot when he jumped from the aircraft and has received medical attention," a spokeswoman said.

It was the first time that a security guard has hijacked a Polish airliner to Berlin. In previous hijackings, passengers, pilots and other members of the crew diverted the planes to the West.

The spokeswoman said U.S. officials had begun questioning the passengers and crew to find out whether or not anyone else chose to remain in West Berlin.

The Antopov was the seventh Polish airliner to make an unscheduled landing at Tempelhof base since December 1980.

Last month a Berlin court sentenced five members of the banned Polish union Solidarity and two other Poles to prison terms of three and two years for their part in hijacking a Lot airliner to Tempelhof in April.

The April hijacking triggered the biggest aviation escape from Poland on record when 28 of the 52 passengers and the crew of five remained in the West.

Last August, two Poles who described themselves as Solidarity members diverted a Warsaw-bound Polish airliner from Budapest to Munich, where they asked for political asylum.

The plane then took off again for Poland with 71 passengers and a crew of eight.

Pope Softens Mafia Talk

PALERMO, Sicily (AP) — Pope John Paul II ended a two-day visit to this Mafia stronghold and multibillion dollar heroin traffic center by calling on Sicilians to reject corruption, drugs and violence.

But the pope, addressing thousands of young people in a central Palermo square Sunday, dropped a passage from prepared remarks in which he explicitly condemned Mafia crimes for having left "too much blood and too many dead on your streets."

The pope also omitted a portions of his prepared speech condemning the code of silence that keeps witnesses from testifying against Sicily's organized crime syndicate, as well as another paragraph in which he supported an anti-Mafia campaign by Palermo's Roman Catholic bishops.

Rev. Romeo Panciroli, the Vatican's spokesman, told The Associated Press in Rome the pontiff's prepared speech stands "in its entirety."

Panciroli said the pope did not deliver part of his speech because he was running behind schedule and wanted to save time. "This is not the first time the Holy Father cut short his speech" because of schedule problems, Panciroli added.

John Paul arrived later Sunday at Rome's Ciampino military airport after a 67-minute flight from Palermo, where he had flown in Saturday amid heavy security.

Before he spoke, a teen-age girl told him in brief remarks delivered before the crowd that Palermo's young people rejected the Mafia mentality of drugs and violence.

Convicted Spy Says U.S. 'Needs More Traitors'

NEW YORK (AP) — The U.S. government "needs a few more traitors" to keep it honest, says a spy convicted of selling U.S. defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

Christopher Boyce said in an interview broadcast Sunday on the CBS-TV program "60 Minutes" that he doesn't mind being called a traitor because his treason was necessary.

The son of a former FBI agent, Boyce said he became a spy for idealistic reasons. He also claimed to have information that the CIA had meddled in Australian labor strikes and helped topple the government of former Prime Minister Gough Whitlam.

"It's supposed to be an independent, English-speaking, parliamentary democracy," Boyce said. "And if we're not ... playing it straight with those guys, we're not even playing it straight with ourselves.

"... The United States government needs a few more traitors," he said. "Humanity needs a few more."

Boyce was convicted of selling secrets to the Soviets between 1975 and 1977 while he worked for TRW Defense and Space Systems Group, a major defense contractor.

He was sentenced to 40 years in prison and his childhood friend and accomplice, Dalton Lee, received a life sentence. But Boyce escaped from prison in Lompoc, Calif., and was free for 19 months before being captured by U.S. marshals in August 1981 at Port Angeles on Washington's Olympic Peninsula. While he was hiding out, Boyce supported himself by robbing banks. He was sentenced to another 25 years in prison on 21 counts of bank robbery, conspiracy and firearms violations on May 31, 1982.

Queen Mother Chokes On Bone

LONDON (AP) — The Queen Mother Elizabeth, 82-year-old mother of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II, gagged on a fishbone at dinner and after hours of choking was taken to a hospital early today for an operation to remove the object.

The surgery was successful, the queen mother was making "good progress" and should be home by Wednesday, her official spokesman, Maj. John Griffin, said.

Asked if her life had been in peril from the fishbone, he said: "Absolutely not. It was more uncomfortable than anything else." Griffin, speaking from Clarence House, the queen mother's London residence, said her dinner companions and doctor at first tried to dislodge the fishbone. They failed and it was decided to take her to the hospital.

He said the operation was performed under general anaesthetic.

Princess Margaret, the queen mother's 52-year-old daughter, accompanied her to the hospital and stayed until after the operation, the spokesman said. The queen and the rest of the royal family were kept informed.

Notrees Sees A Changing Of Color

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer

NOTREES, Texas (AP) — In Notrees, an almost treeless town of 50 people and as many dogs on the bleak plains of West Texas, autumn is a special time.

"I saw a couple leaves turn color," one young girl exclaimed. "I really did, and was it nice! Not like those yuccas that do nothing."

"It may not seem much to most, but here in Notrees, we have a couple leaves that change color," says Joyce Green, a local gas station attendant. "For us, that's worth celebrating."

"Some even cheer and clap," adds Billy Ray Green, her husband. "Remember, it's not that easy for us to find trees or trees with leaves that change color."

Notrees, 28 miles west of Odessa and smack in the middle of Texas' rich Permian Basin, has more oil rigs on its horizon than trees. But some locals think Notrees, which planted a few mulberry trees the past decade, is misnamed.

"How about Fewtrees?" one redhead asks Green. The gas station owner just shakes his head.

Locals in Green's station, the center of town activities, agree on one matter: fall is still a thing of small beauty even in Notrees, where the season makes the briefest of showings.

"Fall," explains one mother to her daughter. "You know, where the leaves change color. You've seen it on TV."

"I saw a couple leaves change a kind of brown-yellow this month," says Green, a native of Arkansas who came to Notrees when 700 oilfield workers worked here in the 1960s. The town has shriveled ever since, losing more and more workers as the oil business became automated and workers were laid off. Most who work in the area now commute from Odessa.

"There aren't any natives anymore in Notrees," Green says. "And once upon a time, there were no trees in Notrees."

Notrees has no mayor and only four operating businesses. The Cap Rock Cafe has been closed for years, and several empty homes with weathered wood fronts are scattered about a town that for the most part appears ghostly dead.

"More people move out than move in," Green admits. "In truth, there's not much here. At one time, the community chipped in and we planted some trees just to show people there were trees in Notrees. Some of the ones that lived even change color this time of the year."

"But we sure don't have any native trees," Mrs. Green says.

Couple Marries On Sunday

Sharon Lynn Whitehurst and Roger Eugene Bell were united in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in a double ring ceremony performed by the Rev. David Hill in the Sweet Gum Grove Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dewey Whitehurst Jr., of Stokes and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Eugene Bell of Greenville.

A program of music was presented by Gail Crisp, organist and pianist. Brenda Woolard, aunt of the bridegroom, sang "Let It Be Me" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white bridal satin designed with an open Queen Anne neckline outlined in silk Venice lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice overlaid in satin was enhanced with silk Venice lace. The long fitted satin sleeves were accented with imported English net accented with seed pearls and silk Venice lace. The modified A-line skirt and attached chapel length train were edged with silk Venice lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion edged in silk Venise attached to a caplet overlaid in matching lace beaded with pearls. A face blusher with pencil edging complemented the veil. The bride carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations, stephanotis and baker's fern. Sandra Whitehurst, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of rosette crepe back satin designed with an open neckline and fitted bodice. The gown was fashioned with three-quarter length puff sleeves. A self-fabric tie sash encircled the waist from which fell the flared skirt. She carried a long-stemmed pink rose accented with baby's breath and ribbon.

Bridesmaids included Debbie Dunn, sister of the bridegroom of Greenville, Martha House, aunt of the bride of Stokes, Tammy Johnson, cousin of the bride of Robersonville, and Sue Baker of Stokes. They were dressed like the honor attendant.

The best man was the father of the bridegroom and the ring bearer was Joseph Eugene Dunn, nephew of the bridegroom of Greenville. He carried a hand-made pillow fashioned by Elinor Crandell aunt of the bride. Ushers were Clarence Dewey Whitehurst III, brother of the bride, Jimmy House, uncle of the bride of Stokes, and Christopher Bullock and James Shallow of Greenville. Gina House of Stokes and Michelle Whitehurst of Greenville, cousins of the bride, were flower girls and junior bridesmaids. They wore formal gowns of white organza over taffeta designed with a high neckline accented with lace and pink trim. They wore matching flower hair combs and carried a white wicker basket.

The mother of the bride wore a formal teal qiana gown with a chiffon overlay jacket. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of cotton blue lusterglo with a fitted bodice. Both wore orchid corsages. The grandmothers were honored with corsages.

The ceremony was directed by Mrs. Crandell of Stokes and Kay Kilpatrick of Robersonville. Lisa Thompson of Greenville presided at the guest register and rice bags were given out by the junior attendants. A reception was given by the parents of the bride in the church community building. Audrey Whichard, aunt of the bridegroom, served cake and Brenda Whitehurst of Greenville and Ann Johnson of Robersonville, aunts of the bride, poured punch. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Warren, aunt and uncle of the bride of Robersonville. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Willey Bell Jr., aunt and uncle of the bridegroom of Tarboro.

Parents of the bridegroom entertained the wedding party and guests at a pig-pickin' Saturday night at the church community building. A bridesmaids luncheon was given by the bride's mother at the Three Steers.

The couple will live near Greenville after a wedding trip.

The bride graduated from North Pitt High School and is a nursing student at Pitt Community College. The bridegroom graduated from North Pitt and is employed at Home Builders here.

Candlelight Wedding Vows Said

Lisa Ann James and Edward Mar Walker Jr. were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony at 3 p.m. Sunday at the Unity Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. Edward Walker Sr., father of the bridegroom, performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E.J. James and the Rev. and Mrs. Walker, all of Greenville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Eloise Jackson and David McGowan sang the "Wedding Song," "Whither Thou Goest" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with a high neckline encircled with cluny lace. The empire bodice was enhanced by a sheer insert embroidered in a cameo motif beaded with clusters of pearls outlined in rows of cluny lace with ruffled lace styling the bib effect. Matching lace encircled the waistline and accented the full bishop sleeves with rows of lace and ruffles at the cuffs. Panels of lace gave a redincote effect on the pickup skirt that also featured a ruffled flounce at the hemline that extended to an attached chapel length train of a sunburst of accordeon pleats. She wore a fingertip veil of illusion bordered in cluny lace held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in the matching lace beaded with pearls. She carried a silk cascade of white daisies, gardenias, miniature carnations and roses interspersed with pink and cranberry flowers.

The matron of honor was Melody Kissinger, sister of the bride of Raleigh. She wore a formal gown of blush tinstea Italian silk designed with a high neckline encircled with ruffled chantilly lace accented with a rolled tie bow. The empire bodice was enhanced with a yoke of point d'esprit outlined in ruffled chantilly lace. Point d'esprit fashioned the full bishop sleeves which were finished in chantilly lace cuffs. The gown was complemented with a flared accordeon pleated skirt. She carried a nosegay of silk flowers in shades of pink and cranberry and was tied with dusty pink velvet streamers.

Bridesmaids were Tonya Sutton, sister of the bride, Pam Smith, sister of the bridegroom, Jackie Bryant, Melanie Bunch and Beverly Register, all of Greenville. Their gowns were styled identical to that of the honor attendant and they carried nosegays of silk flowers in shades of pink and cranberry and was tied with dusty pink velvet streamers.

Stacey Kissinger, niece of the bride, was flower girl and wore a formal gown of white organza over white taffeta designed with lace encircled at the neckline and matching lace encircled the waistline and accented the full sleeves and ruffles at the cuffs. She carried a white wicker basket filled with white daisies, carnations, gardenias and roses accented with a touch of pink and cranberry.

Gordy Walker, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers included Gary Smith, brother-in-law of the bridegroom of Greenville, Steve Walker, cousin of the bridegroom of Goldsboro, Ricky Capp and Richard Smith of Winterville and Sammy Harris of Greenville.

B. T. Manning of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a formal gown of mauve chiffon and the mother of the bridegroom wore a formal gown of cranberry chiffon. Both were given a white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Lewelyn presided at the guest register. The wedding was directed by Faye Barefoot.

Following the ceremony the parents of the bride entertained at a reception held at the American Legion Building. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Larry Baldree. Wedding cake was served by Becky McGowan and Arlene Gurganus. Punch was poured by Nadine Bowen. Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs.

MRS. EDWARD MAR WALKER JR.

Ray McLawhorn.

An after-rehearsal pig-pickin' was given at the Cherry Oaks Clubhouse by the parents of the bridegroom.

A bridal luncheon was held at the home of Linda Sawyer given by Martha Buck, Pam Smith, Mrs. Sheldon Mahoney, Ceelia Tyndall, Sally Broadrick and Maggie Watson.

The bride is a graduate of Greenville Christian Academy and attended Pitt Community College. She works at Greenville Cardiac Graphics and Pavilion Internists, P.A.

The bridegroom is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is manager of Harris Supermarket on Greene Street.

The couple will live in Robersonville after a wedding trip.

Dear Abby

Unwanted Callers Trip On Language

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I was a student nurse in Chicago, I used an effective method of dealing with unwanted attention, whether it came from an obscene phone call, men trying to pick me up in the Loop or panhandlers who hung around the train station. I pretended I couldn't understand English!

No matter what was said to me, I rattled off two sentences I had learned in my high school German class. The ones I used were, "Let us go to the library" and "I would go with you but I don't have my notebooks."

I kept repeating these sentences in a perfect German accent as though I really knew what I was talking about, and I was left alone immediately. This worked with telephone solicitors, people trying to sell me siding, roofing, magazine subscriptions, etc.

The only difficult part was keeping my face straight while delivering this spiel in German. (I heard some unusual comments from people as they hung up or walked away.)

Any high school student who is currently learning a foreign language could teach you a sentence or two for this purpose. So many people speak Spanish today, I think it might be wise to pick some other language. Auf Wiedersehen!

DEAR SHERRY: Bitte spreche kein Deutsch in Milwaukee (or parts of Pennsylvania) or your little kunst will be kaput! (Translation: Please don't speak German in Milwaukee — or parts of Pennsylvania — or your little trick will be finished!)

DEAR ABBY: Over a year ago I met a retired gentleman (I'll call him George). He is 75. I am 71 and have been a widow for three years, George was married a very short time when his wife died. He's been living with his sister ever since. He is handsome, refined, charming and well-educated. (Would you think me terrible if I told you that he is also a wonderful lover?)

George has told me that he has known a lot of women but he has never wanted to marry again — until he met me. The feeling is mutual, but we have been getting a lot of resistance from our families.

His sister tells me (behind his back) that George is too set in his ways to marry now. And my children warn me that although George is in good health now, if he should get sick I will spend the rest of my life being a nurse for an "old man."

I think I've made up my mind to marry him, Abby. All I need is a nod from you.

YOUNG AT HEART

DEAR YOUNG: I'm nodding. (Now, please don't say, "Thanks for nodding.") Good luck and God bless you both.

DID YOU KNOW...

It's Inviting!

There's nothing more inviting than a wedding celebration. Here are some suggestions about invitations. Invitations should be sent out three to four weeks ahead for a large wedding. More notice than this should be allowed for weddings held during a holiday weekend. For a simple or informal wedding, ten days should suffice. The most important criterion is how far in advance you need a response.

Since an invitation to the reception customarily calls for a gift, many people send announcements instead to far-away friends. However, since people who consider themselves close to the family may wish to know of the event ahead of time, a good alternative is to send them invitations to the marriage ceremony only.

It is a nice touch to send invitations to parents and to members of the wedding party. They need not respond, but will enjoy having the invitation as a souvenir.

It is permissible to post one invitation on your bulletin board at work instead of sending out separate ones to co-workers. However, remember that this means that everyone, plus spouses, is invited. If you need better control, and can afford it, individual invitations are preferable. If your office is near the wedding site, you may wish to post an invitation to the ceremony only.

Patricia Cade Marries Max T. Worthington

WINTERVILLE — The wedding ceremony of Patricia Summerlin Cade and Max Terrell Worthington took place Sunday afternoon at four o'clock in the Winterville Christian Church.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Tom Everton.

A program of wedding music was presented by

Randy Buck. He also sang "If" and the "Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Summerlin of Grimesland and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Worthington of Winterville.

The bride wore a formal gown of white alencon and Venise lace. It was designed with an empire waistline, scalloped Venise border yoke bodice with a V-design neckline accented with seed pearls. The full A-line skirt of alencon lace was bordered with lace edged ruffled organza which flowed into a chapel length train. She wore a Juliet alencon lace covered capulet designed with seed pearl clusters. The waltz length illusion veil was bordered with floral alencon lace. She carried a bouquet of silk flowers.

The mother of the bride wore a street length dress of plum taffeta with a stand-up collar with ruffles. The mother of the bridegroom selected a street length dress of mauve polyester styled with a pleated skirt and lace bodice.

The matron of honor was Mary Jo Rivenbark, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Carolyn Vernon of Grimesland, sister of the bride, and Linda Jackson of Ocracoke, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed in formal wine colored polyester knit dresses with a stand-up collar, split capelet sleeves, blouson bodice and flared skirt.

The church was decorated with a center basket of white assorted flowers flanked by an arch candelabra centered with spiral candelabra. Hurricane globes and candles were used in the windows and family pews were marked with silk flowers.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Carl Worthington Jr., Phil Worthington, both of Winterville and Donny Rivenbark of Greenville.

The ceremony was directed by Rosalie Trotman.

After a wedding trip to the Hawaiian Islands, the couple will live in Ayden.

The bride graduated from D.H. Conley High School and works at Hendrix-Barnhill Co. The bridegroom also graduated from D.H. Conley and is engaged in farming.

A reception was given by the brother of the bridegroom, Carl Worthington Jr. and Sharon Peavoy. Janice Adams poured punch and Sharon Peavoy served cake.

Rice bags were distributed by Betsy Vernon, niece of the bride, and Kimberly Worthington, niece of the bridegroom.

Gould-Hudson Vows Said

Linda Lee Hudson and Keith Richard Gould were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock. The ceremony was performed in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church by the Rev. Cedric D. Pierce.

Peggy Hardee played organ music and Linda Gould, cousin of the bridegroom, sang "Engless Love" and "We've Only Just Begun." The bridegroom sang the "Wedding Prayer" and Vicki Dixon sang "Surround Me With Love" and "You Light Up My Life."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Mayhue Hudson of Route 1, Grimesland and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Turlington Gould of Route 13, Greenville.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. Alice Hines of Plymouth was honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Donna Hudson of Grimesland, sister-in-law of the bride, Pam Brock of Winterville and Angela Buck, both cousins of the bride, Teresa Pittman and Karen Porter, all of Greenville. Tempie Hudson of Jacksonville, niece of the bridegroom, was best man.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Walter T. Gould Jr. of Wallace and Jeff Gould of Greenville, brothers of the bridegroom, Robin Hudson of Grimesland, brother of the bride, Randy Gould of Newport News, Va., cousin of the bridegroom, Dallas Wade and Joey Baggett of Winterville.

For the double ring ceremony, the bride wore a formal gown of white satin over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The empire bodice was accented with alencon lace appliques and finished with matching lace cuffs. The modified A-line skirt was fashioned with an inserted panel of accordeon pleats bordered in re-embroidered alencon lace. The skirt and attached cathedral length train were edged in matching lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion edged in re-embroidered alencon lace held in place by a caplet overlaid in matching lace and beaded with pearls. She wore her mother's pearls and carried her grandfather's prayerbook centered with yellow sweetheart roses and pixie carnations with baby's breath and greenery tied with white and yellow satin.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of emerald green chiffon. The mother of the bridegroom selected a dress of periwinkle knit. Both wore white royal bouquet orchid corsages.

The attendants each wore a formal gown of teal lustreglo designed with a high neckline encircled with ruffled rochele lace. The empire bodice featured a V-yoke of point d'esprit outlined in ruffled rochele lace and enhanced with a crystal pleated chiffon drape. The gown had an accordeon pleated skirt. They carried nosegays in fall shades of lilies, alstromerias, carnations and pom poms with baby's breath tied with matching satin.

The flower girl wore a formal gown of white organza designed with a high neckline encircled with chantilly lace and enhanced with a satin ribbon. It had long sleeves and V-yoke. She carried a white basket filled with fall miniature flowers tied with a matching bow.

Jean Evans of Grimesland directed the wedding.

Duplicate Winners

A duplicate bridge charity club championship was held Saturday at Planters Bank. It was held for the benefit of the National Kidney Foundation.

Winners included: Marilyn Bongard and Bill Bowden, first with 653 percent; Sara Bradbury and Dr. Charles Duffy, second; Mrs. Joyce Lamm and Mrs. Dorothy Barnhill, third; Mrs. Clifton Toler and Mrs. Bernice Tayloe, fourth; Dave Proctor and Gary Bryant, fifth; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Patterson, sixth.

North-South winners Saturday afternoon included: Mrs. J.S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first with 633 percent; Mrs. J.M. Horton and Mrs. W.R. Harris, second; Mrs. Eli Bloom and Mrs. M.H. Bynum, third; Mrs. Barry Powers and Mrs. Wiley Corbett, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Beulah Eagles and Dave Proctor, first with 589 percent; Mrs. Joyce Lamm and Lee Hastings, second; Mr. and Mrs. Geroge Martin, third; Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, fourth.

Mrs. Bertha Jones and Mrs. Blanche Kittrell were first place winners with 666 percent Wednesday morning. Others winning were Mrs. Sidney Skinner and Mrs. Stuart Page, second; Mrs. Van Jones and Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, third; Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. C.D. Elks, fourth.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

Where Now For Boxing

The death of South Korean boxer Duk Koo Kim following a brain hemorrhage suffered in a fight with World Boxing Association lightweight champion Ray Mancini has to weigh heavily on the entire sports world.

The injured fighter was considered brain dead a short while after the fight was over. His body was kept functioning by machines for several days after the fight until relatives could arrive.

His mother made the decision to donate his organs to others, certainly a difficult and brave decision for a Korean woman so far from home.

There have been other boxing deaths and permanent impairments, just as there are in other major sports. The death of this young fighter came only minutes after his last bout was shown on national television. Many who watched the fight were shocked to hear of his critical condition a short time later.

Again the debate will rage over what can be done. Headgear for the participants has long been one suggestion, and stopping the fights sooner has been another.

The fact is, however, that boxing is a brutal sport in which the two men in the ring are committed to knocking each other out, if possible. Boxing perhaps can be made safer; so can auto racing, football, sky diving and mountain climbing. They all carry the risk of injury or death and the only real choice for eliminating that risk is the abolishment of the sport. That might be the ultimate solution, but we have to recognize, too, that major sports have been the ticket to fame and fortune for many young participants.

Tax Cut Speedup Ill Advised

It is puzzling that the Reagan administration would be advocating moving of the 1983 tax cut by six months.

He is already being advised by members of his own party that such a speedup is not feasible. The tax cut in its original form was poorly thought out. It shifted some taxes from the wealthy and, worst of all, it cost the government some revenues at the time when the administration was proposing huge increases in military spending. The result was federal deficits.

President Reagan should recognize his mistakes now. His first priority should be to reduce the awesome deficits that loom ahead. If the tax cut is speeded up the deficit will be still larger. The administration must bite the bullet and bring revenues in line with expenditures.

THIS AFTERNOON

Questions Arise

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH - Everybody wants to get the drunk drivers off the roads. No doubt the 1983 General Assembly will stand 170 to zero on that question. And most likely the count will be almost unanimous on the general direction Gov. Jim Hunt wants to pursue. That is, let's toughen the laws.

But toughening the state's laws opens two questions that every responsible legislator will have to face: Where are we going to try these drunken driving cases and where are we going to jail the drunks we convict?

Every year about 600,000 traffic citations are issued in North Carolina. About one-sixth of them - 98,000 - involve an arrest for drunken driving. With plea bargaining, somebody arrested for driving under the influence can get his charge reduced to a lesser included offense if he or she agrees to plead guilty. Those guilty pleas are essential if the state's court system is to avoid a staggering backlog of cases. A guilty plea can be settled in minutes. A jury trial for drunken driving can take a day or more.

Hunt's proposed package will slow down the movement of drunken driving cases by eliminating guilty pleas in exchange for lesser charges and by adding a sentencing hearing after the trial. Members of his drunken driving study commission predicted in September that the average case will take a half-day of court time.

If Hunt thinks the courts face a potential overload, he's not admitting it. He says district attorneys "find time for murder cases. It's high time we start giving this kind of serious offense the time it needs" in court. If more courtrooms and judges are needed, he says he'll find the money to pay for them.

One solution is being formulated by the N.C.

Courts Commission which wants to decriminalize minor traffic offenses. Rep. Parks Helms of Charlotte predicts that as many as 300,000 citations can be taken out of the court system as a way to make room for the greater drunken-driving time demands.

With 17,000 prison inmates and an overcrowded system of county jails, one has to wonder where the state is going to put the drunken drivers who'll be getting seven to 14-day mandatory sentences under Hunt's proposals. Again Hunt waves off concerns. "We'll find the facilities", he says. "If we have to build more jails, we'll build more jails." That hardly sounds like the governor who has been laying out the state's fiscal woes to us for the last two years.

Heman Clark, secretary of crime control and public safety, says the people convicted of drunken driving will receive mandatory sentences "but they're not necessarily going to jail". Some will go into detoxification programs. Three categories of drunk drivers will be allowed to perform community service or forfeit all driving privileges instead of serving time.

Clark also thinks the county jail may not be needed to hold drunk drivers. The prison system is looking for existing facilities that can be converted to hold minimum security prisoners. Maybe an old unused schoolhouse can be converted to hold people for short terms.

Hunt, Clark and the commission which studied drunken driving are taking a single gamble in proposing

WHEN DO WE HAVE ENOUGH TO TALK CUTBACKS?

By ART BUCHWALD

One Leads To Another

Behind every liberated woman, there is another woman who has to do the dirty work for her.

I discovered this talking to Lila Peabody. Lila works for a law firm from nine to five, or six, or seven, depending on what case she is involved in.

Lila told me she couldn't do it if it wasn't for Juanita.

"Who is Juanita?" I wanted to know.

"Juanita takes care of the house and the children, and cooks our meals. I couldn't work if it weren't for her, and the fact the Safeway stays open until nine."

"You pay her?"

"Of course I pay her," Lila said. "Half my salary goes to Juanita."

"You mean your husband doesn't contribute to her wages?"

"No. He insists if I want to work I have to pay somebody to do the things I had to give up when I took my job."

"That doesn't seem fair. I should think he would be proud of you for being a lawyer and making it in a man's world."

"He is, as long as there is somebody at home. Frankly, I think he's prouder of Juanita. She always knows where his shirts are."

"I didn't know there was such a high price for women's liberation."

"There is if you're married and have to keep a house. For every liberated woman you see in an office, there is another woman behind her providing the support system for the marriage. If the woman is divorced and has children it's even more costly, because no ex-husband is going to pay for his wife and another slave to replace her."

"You have no choice. A husband is willing to go along with a liberated wife as long as things are running smoothly at home. But one breakdown in the support system and then he starts screaming he didn't marry a woman who would ignore her house and children."

"But every magazine you read in the supermarket features husbands of working wives sharing the household duties."

"The magazines are the only place you see them. The American male will accept his wife doing her own things as long as she does everything else as well. When we go to parties my husband introduces me proudly to everyone as 'my wife the lawyer.' When we get home at night, he wants to know why there are no clean sheets on the bed."

"It's funny," I said. "Until I talked to you, I thought every liberated woman had it made. I always saw you as someone who had the best of both worlds. Now it turns out that without Juanita mopping floors you wouldn't be liberated at all."

"You've got the picture," Lila said. "Any married woman who wants to be liberated better have a good pal in a Latin American Employment Agency."

"What happens when your support system gets sick?"

"Then I stay home and everyone in the law firm says, 'We knew this would happen if we hired a woman lawyer.'" also the woman who has to take care of his kids."

ART BUCHWALD

"But at least you're a person in your own right," I said.

"I am as long as Juanita doesn't quit. It isn't easy to find someone who will be a housekeeper and take care of the kids and wait until you get home at night. I've been through three Juanitas in two years. One came from El Salvador, another from Ecuador and this one is from Bolivia."

"Your Spanish must be very good by now."

"It's perfect, but frankly we're all getting a little tired of fried beans."

"It seems ironic in order to be free a woman must find

Deep Split

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON - A deepening split in the American conservative movement is reflected by what political advisers are privately telling Sen. Jesse Helms: If you really want to be elected to a third term in 1984, shut up about abortion and school prayer.

Helms is in deep trouble in North Carolina against Democratic governor Jim Hunt's long-percolating challenge, and some New Right strategists believe Helms might not even run. But assuming he does run, Helms is being told to get back to tax-cutting, budget-cutting, anti-communist conservatism and step away from the Moral Majority's social agenda that infuriates so many well-heeled conservatives.

Beyond the fate of one prominent conservative, at stake is the right-wing coalition that scored stunning election successes in 1978 and 1980 but fell back in 1982. When Rep. Jack Kemp agrees social issues should be put on the back burner until the economy recovers, he risks reprisals from Moral Majority allies who have supported his growth-oriented economics.

The proximate cause of Helms' distress is his vote for last summer's $100-billion tax increase (poison in North Carolina because of its tobacco excise), a deviation from his usual conservative consistency. Tom Ellis, Helms' longtime campaign manager, was so upset he could not even talk to the senator for a time.

But long before that, Helms had offended his state's country-club conservatives. By the summer of 1981, they were saying Helms' "intrusion into the bedroom" bothered them so much that they were ready to vote for labor-backed Gov. Hunt.

This attitude is summed up in a recent letter to a Helms lieutenant by one of the senator's oldest backers: "There is an enormous amount of animosity toward the senator. It's coming from dyed-in-the-wool Republicans, Democrats who have enthusiastically supported him in the past - to put it bluntly, just about everybody. It all has to do with the social issues, i.e. school prayer and abortion - and a little probably with Jerry Falwell and the Moral Majority."

This supporter calls a return to school prayer "a can of worms" considering "all the liberal teachers around" but saves real scorn for the anti-abortion movement: "The senator is coming off as being the one who will force some poor innocent to go through with a pregnancy when she's been raped." The conclusion: "I see conservatives as having a live-and-let-live attitude ... much more tolerant of other people's beliefs that liberals - especially when it comes to social issues."

To one tough-minded Helms adviser, this country-club ambivalence on abortion stems from the upper-income Republicans' feeling that abortion is a useful device to thin the black population and an escape route for their own imprudent offspring. But even Republican operatives who disagree feel a recession is no time for social issues.

Kemp, who has impeccable anti-abortion and pro-school-prayer voting records, said as much over CBS's "Face the Nation" Nov. 7. The social issues, he said "do not rank in the importance and the priority of the American electorate." He then agreed that abortion and school prayer should be put "on the back burner."

That angered such New Right operatives as Paul Weyrich. When Kemp rebelled against President Reagan's tax increase, he was supported by the Moral Majority's Rev. Falwell, despite misgivings by Falwell aides about emphasizing material over moral questions. Future Falwell support for Kemp's supply-side economics may be harder to come by.

The difficulty is all the more pointed for Jesse Helms, a hero to the Moral Majority. He now must either step away from issues considered preeminent by his most fervent supporters or risk playing into the hands of liberal political strategists who long ago made him target No. 1 for 1984.

Strength For Today

TEMPTATION IN LIFE'S GROWTH

In the Lord's Prayer we ask that we not be led into temptation, yet in another part of the New Testament we are told to rejoice when we fall into temptation.

Is there a conflict here? Not at all. In the Lord's Prayer we ask the Lord to go easy on us. Everybody can stand just so much temptation and no more. God sees to it that we get enough temptation to exercise our moral powers and strengthen them. Most of us, however, go out and hunt temptations, and it is these added ones that cause trouble. Temptations suited to our powers are good for us. We grow strong through resisting them. But temptations which God never intended should be in the orbit of our experience - these can be ruinous.

God strengthened and tempered the life of Jesus with temptation. He plans to do the same with us in those temptations He permits us to encounter. If we handle temptation aright, it adds to the power and purpose of our living. - Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Time For Change

(Mt. Airy News)

The chairman of the State Courts Commission has suggested that minor traffic cases can be handled outside North Carolina's crowded criminal courts, and would result in smaller caseloads and more time for concentrating on more serious offenses. We couldn't agree more.

The sheer bulk of speeding, stop sign and lesser violations means that many of the state's criminal courts are bogged down handling cases not really criminal in nature. Along with the time spent in court, there is also a mass of paper work and administrative functions that accompanies each criminal case, no matter how minor.

We agree with the assessment of Rep. Parks Helms (D-Mecklenburg), the courts commission chairman, who says that the resources of the state courts are not being used wisely in this respect.

With crime rates in many communities rising - coupled with an increasing public concern over alcohol-related traffic offenses - more of the court's time needs to be devoted to the most serious cases.

The courts have only so much time, and only so many courtrooms with which to try caseloads, regardless of their size. District attorneys are often forced to take short-cuts, like plea-bargaining and dismissals, simply to keep from being buried by the volume of cases. The end result is that many serious offenses do not get the full consideration by the justice system that they deserve.

Since tough economic times make it impractical to build more courtrooms and hire more judges or court personnel, it makes more sense to change the present system as the court commission recommends.

They have suggested that certain traffic offenses - in which a court appearance can now be waived by paying a fine and court costs - could become "infractions" instead of criminal violations. People who wanted to plead innocent could have their cases heard before a magistrate rather than a judge.

The commission chairman noted such changes will probably be opposed by defense lawyers, but he noted (very aptly) that there is a growing lack of credibility in the court system which needs changing. We echo his sentiments the changes may not please everyone, but they need to be made just the same.

What Leads To A Superboss?

By STEPHEN FOX
AP Business Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) - Why do people work hard for one boss and loaf under another?

Dr. Warren Bennis, professor of management at the School of Business Administration at the University of Southern California, says it is a matter of whether the boss can imbue his office with the energy of a mission.

"People would rather dedicate their lives to a cause they believe in than lead lives of pampered idleness," Bennis says. "The leader of a cult, a traditional religion, an army or a dynamic corporation can tap this desire."

Bennis, a management expert, set out four years ago to determine what makes a "superleader." To do so, he interviewed 90 of them, including chief executives of some of the nation's biggest corporations, university presidents, public officials, newspaper publishers and the coaches of consistently winning athletic teams.

On average, the "superleaders" were 56-year-old males who had graduated from college and were making about $300,000 a year. Most of them, he also found, were enthusiastically married to their first wife.

Statistics aside, Bennis identified five traits his superleaders had in common:

-Vision: the capacity to create a compelling picture of the desired state of affairs that inspires people to perform.

-Communication: the ability to portray the vision clearly and in a way that enlists the support of their constituencies.

-Persistence: the ability to stay on course regardless of the obstacles encountered.

-Empowerment: the ability to create a structure that harnesses the energies of others to achieve the desired result.

-Organizational ability: the capacity to monitor the activities of the group, learn from the mistakes and use the resulting knowledge to improve the performance of the organization.

Bennis found that his superleaders did not pay much attention to popular theories on management and motivation.

"When talking to these people, I didn't hear about humanizing the workplace, the Japanese form of management, better working conditions or innovative compensation schemes," he says.

"One of the most dynamic leaders I discovered was working in an eight-by-ten cinderblock office," he says.

"But that office was the heart of a vortex of excitement and involvement he had created. His employees had been working 80 hours a week for 18 months because they knew they were on the brink of developing a brand-new computer that would make the company famous."

Superleaders come in all sizes, Bennis adds.

"Aside from having the five characteristics I defined, the effective leaders I studied were tremendously diverse. They were tall, short, fat, thin ... They evinced no common pattern of psychological makeup or background," he says.

Bennis also identified a disregard for risk which he dubbed the "Wallenda Factor," for the famous high wire walkers. Like Karl Wallenda, patriarch of the circus family, superleaders simply do not think much about the possibility of falling, he says.

"They don't think about the downside, because then they would be putting their energy into that," Bennis says, adding that they also do not dwell on their errors.

Bennis also noticed that a lot of the leaders he studied did not seem so super outside their area of expertise.

"Socially, a lot of these people are absolute misfits. Very few of them seem to be capable of small talk," he says. "For them, nothing is done without a purpose, and when they're not on that purpose, they're boring. It's as if there's a range of intensity and outside of their range they tune out."

Thus, he says, superleaders are happiest on the job.

"They are very happy, on the whole. But if they can't play in their playground, they can be very depressed," he says. "They're ecstatic when they're acting within their own context, but outside of it they're not."

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦752 ♦K83 ♦AJ9873 ♦A

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
1 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You have an almost insoluble problem unless you use a convention where a bid of the fourth suit, in this case spades, would be an artificial forcing bid. Without that bid, the only sensible thing to do is to jump to three diamonds. Although your suit is not good enough and your hand perhaps a trifle weak (because of the possible misfit) for that action, we can think of no better bid — certainly we don't want to jump raise partner's second suit with only three-card support.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦73 ♦A7 ♦64 ♦AKQ10843

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—This is a hand where we would not waste time. We would wheel out the old Blackwood and bid a grand slam if partner were to show two aces and two kings. We would choose no trump for the final strain, because we might be able to take ten tricks in the other three suits if the clubs don't behave.

Q.3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AJ7653 ♦A8 ♦K543 ♦3

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Go to the bottom of the class if you bid either two or three spades — the first is an underbid and the latter shows a better suit. One thing is sure — North must have a six-card heart suit. Our first choice is to jump to four hearts — our ruffing value should prove useful. Our second choice would be three diamonds, to give North a chance to show three-card spade support.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AQJ106 ♦AQ72 ♦AQJ6

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
4 ♥ Pass Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—West's preempt has really put it to you. A double would be for takeout, but it gives partner the option of converting to penalties. Although that could be the winning action, we need so little from partner to make slam in any one of three suits that we are prepared to take even stronger action — a cue-bid of five hearts.

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQ854 ♦AQJ983 ♦Q7

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—North's bidding has been music to your ears for it sounds as if there is minimal duplication in the spade suit. A slam is a distinct possibility — indeed, even a grand cannot be ruled out. For the moment, however, be content to simply complete the description of your hand. Bid three hearts; that shows a five-card suit and, by implication, guarantees six or more diamonds.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦74 ♦93 ♦AK764 ♦A876

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♦ Pass
3 ♦ Pass 4 ♦ Pass
4 ♥ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Facing a partner who could jump, your hand, with its three prime controls, could easily produce a slam. However, you have no convenient cue bid. The solution is to raise to five hearts. That not only conveys your slam aspirations, but also high lights your two losers in the spade suit.

Loss Of Federal Funds Could Bring Higher Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A survey of the nation's cities indicates that property taxes will go up as much as 45 percent in some areas if the federal revenue-sharing program is not renewed next year, the National League of Cities said today.

The $4.6 billion general revenue-sharing program is set to expire next year, unless re-authorized by Congress, and the survey taken by the league was considered a first round in the fight to retain it.

General revenue sharing is one of the programs President Reagan had earmarked for elimination in his "new federalism" program of turning federally funded programs over to cities and states. However, administration officials are now saying that it may drop any effort to end the program by lobbying with Congress not to renew it, although no final decisions have been made.

The survey also found that small cities will be harder hit than large metropolitan areas if the program of generally unrestricted federal grants is terminated.

One of the key questions asked was how much of a property tax increase would be necessary to compensate for the loss of revenue-sharing funds.

"The answers were dramatic," a report by the league said. "In the smallest cities, rates would have to increase an average of 45 percent. For larger cities, the rate increase would be smaller, but it was even 15 percent in the largest cities."

However, the report assumes that most communities would cut services rather than raise taxes in the face of a distressed economy.

General revenue sharing "represents a substantial share of locally raised revenues and its elimination would result in service reductions, rather than tax increases," the report said.

"Because GRS funds have few federal requirements, they are used for a wide variety of services," the report said.

"Consequently these service cuts will affect many programs that improve the quality of life in cities."

The survey found that for most cities federal revenue-sharing grants account for 5 percent to 10 percent of locally raised revenues, averaging 6.3 percent nationally.

Revenue sharing is "relatively more important to smaller cities than to larger ones," the league said. "For cities with populations of less than 10,000, general revenue sharing equals an average of 7.67 percent of locally raised revenues; in the larger cities, those with populations over 500,000, it equals 4.5 percent."

"General revenue sharing is particularly important for smaller communities because for many it is the only federal aid they receive," the league said.

Gasoline Prices Continue To Fall

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gasoline prices, which usually rise around the holidays, are still falling, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

Lundberg said a nationwide survey of 14,000 stations over the weekend found the overall price for all grades of gas was $1.25, down from the July peak of $1.30, and the wholesale price of gas was 99 cents a gallon, the first time it has gone below $1 since April.

"Prices usually go up around the holidays," laws that will lengthen court trials and increase the percentage of drunk drivers who serve time behind bars. They're betting that this tough package will keep drunks off the roads. "We'll cut down on the number of people who do it (drive while drunk) and that's the whole purpose", Hunt says. Fewer drunks will drive because they'll be afraid of jail and fewer will be arrested, tried and jailed.

It's yet to be seen if the Legislature has the same faith.

Saturday's Cryptquip - AREN'T ELECTRICIAN'S WIVES REAL LIVE WIRES?

Today's Cryptquip clue: T equals A.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Federal Agent Faces Charge

WASHINGTON (AP) - An FBI supervisor who is an expert on office break-ins is expected to be indicted by a federal grand jury on several charges arising from his alleged receipt of stolen diamonds, his attorney says.

Attorney Kenneth Michael Robinson said Sunday that a six or seven count indictment would be returned against H. Edward Tickel, 42, a $40,000-a-year agent working at FBI headquarters.

Robinson, saying he wanted to make sure his client's side was publicized, told the Washington Post the charges would include receiving stolen property, income tax evasion, obstruction of justice, and soliciting perjury.

Tickel told the newspaper he has been under investigation for three years, adding, "I'm glad for the opportunity to fight back."

An FBI spokesman declined to comment Sunday on the indictment or the allegations against Tickel.

Tickel, a 14-year veteran of the FBI, worked as a member of the bureau's technical services division until November 1981 and has been described as the bureau's "black bag" expert, conducting court-approved office break-ins and planting hidden microphones.

Robinson said Tickel was accused of receiving diamonds stolen in a North Carolina jewel heist. The lawyer said the gems came from Tickel's own collection and that their sale wasn't listed on his client's tax return because he received no capital gain from the transaction.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction, as calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University, was 32 Sunday, which means that a solar water heater could have provided 32 percent of your hot water.

"I needed the money and I sold the jewels legitimately to a jeweler in Florida ... diamonds and mounted diamonds," Tickel told NBC News.

In September, Associate Attorney General Rudolph W. Giuliani confirmed that Tickel was being investigated but refused to comment on the allegations against him.

NBC quoted an unidentified Justice Department source as saying, "This will be the most embarrassing indictment in the history of the FBI."

Tickel said, however, that he was being made a scapegoat.

"They (the FBI) finally think they've found some things they can hang their hat on," he added. "We're gonna have to fight. No problem. I think that we'll be OK in the end," the agent told NBC.

Robinson said the FBI would hold a news conference on Monday.

Six Charged With Trespass

Greenville police charged six persons with trespassing after finding four of them on a Greenville Utilities Commission water tank at the intersection of First and Jarvis streets about 4:04 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the men allegedly forced a gate open to gain entrance to the area around the tank and at least four of them climbed the water storage tank.

Those arrested in connection with the incident include: Matthew Hunter Cox, 19, of Hookerton; Alvis Edward Boone Jr., 20, of Route 2, Kinston; Steve Wallace Hart, 20, of Hookerton; Jeffrey John Mindak, 18, of Kinston; Kenneth Earl Brown, 19, of Route 4, Kinston; and Lloyd Ray Freeman Jr., 19, of Route 1, Deep Run.

Fourteen Pitt Community College hospital ward secretary students graduated in ceremonies on the PCC campus Friday night.

Susanne Allison, a PCC hospital ward secretary graduate now working at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, was the guest speaker for the ceremony.

Iris Caldwell of Greenville was presented the Iristeen

Award for clinical excellence. Other nominees for outstanding clinical performance were Sheena Powell and Mirinda Sutton, both of Winterville, Mary McCarter of Ayden, Lisa Kerwin, of Greenville, Lillian Mosley of Farmville, Deborah Clifton of Greenville and Angie Cox of Ayden.

Perfect attendance awards were presented to Mirinda Sutton, Bonnie Moore of Farmville, Janet Stocks of Ayden, Lisa Kerwin and Lillian Mosley.

The presentation of certificates and awards was made by Charissa Colclough, PCC ward secretary program instructor.

Other graduates receiving their certificates Friday include: Janie Brock and Deborah Jones of Greenville, Robin Braxton of Simpson, and Shena Whitehurst of Stokes.

A reception followed the graduation program.

Stabbing

Greenville police were looking for a man today who stabbed Harry Lee Edwards of 1710 Hopkins Park about 11:15 p.m. Saturday.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who said Edwards was admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment, said Edwards was stabbed in the abdomen as he walked near the intersection of 12th and Pitt streets.

Eagle Award Is Presented

Andy Daniel Majette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Majette of Grimesland, received his Eagle Scout Award Sunday at the Proctor Memorial Christian Church in Grimesland. The award, presented by Jimmie Hardee, follows eight years of scouting in Troop 200. Majette is a senior at D.H. Conley High School and has served as assistant patrol leader for one year and patrol leader for five years.

Student Elected Manager

Chauncette Dixon, daughter of Mary E. Dixon of Greenville, has been elected publicity manager of the Mount Olive College Baptist Student Union.

A 1981 graduate of J.H. Rose High School, Ms. Dixon plans to major in dental hygiene. She is a member of Saint Peters Baptist Church.

The Baptist Student Union is an interdenominational organization founded by the Southern Baptist Convention that involves students in matters with the Christian community.

Collision Causes $3,000 Damage

An estimated $3,000 damage resulted from a 2:10 p.m. collision Sunday on Arlington Boulevard, .02 mile east of the Cherokee Drive intersection.

Police said a car driven by James Hagan Sr. of 1522 Memorial Dr. collided with a parked car owned by Penelope Sarah Martin of 113 Ridge Place, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to each of the two vehicles.

Shoulder Bag Is Taken

Greenville police were continuing their investigation today into the theft of a shoulder bag from Ms. Ernestine Daniel Buck of Route 1, Grimesland, Saturday, at Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ms. Buck was entering the front door of the hospital about 9:45 p.m., when a man knocked her to the floor and took her shoulder bag, containing $700 in cash.

The robber was last seen running east along Stantonsburg Road, the chief noted.

Bundy To Attend Meeting

Rep. Sam D. Bundy will attend a meeting of the Mount Olive College Board of Trustees Tuesday at 10 a.m. Prior to the board meeting, he will chair a meeting of the Academic Affairs Committee.

Union Expects Strike To Hold

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A union leader says American Petrofina's plan to hire replacements for the 400 workers on strike since Jan. 8 probably will not prompt union members to cross picket lines.

"This will probably strengthen our group," said Doug Dubose, chairman of the Fina Workmen's Committee of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union. But Fina spokesman Gary Bruner said the company hopes the strikers will begin returning to the oil refinery.

The firm notified strikers Friday that new hiring would begin today, and offered them their jobs back under terms of the contract they rejected when they struck over hiring policies and job security.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

ADULTS AND ORTHODONTICS

Teeth-straightening braces, long associated with school-age children, are now becoming more popular with adults. The American Association of Orthodontists estimates that some 4 million Americans are undergoing orthodontic treatment. Out of this number, over 20% are over age 20.

Why are so many adults subjecting themselves to the orthodontic regimen? There are several likely explanations. The development of braces that are less noticeable, the ability of many adults to pay dental fees that their parents, perhaps, could not afford, a wider acceptance of braces by an adult generation attuned to self-improvement; concern for good health, and naturally, good looks.

Until the mid-1960's it was accepted wisdom in the field that braces were for kids. The theory was that orthodontics could be successful only if the patient was still growing. Now, it's generally agreed that, though growth is helpful, it's not always necessary for effective treatment. Today, you can produce the smile you've always wanted, as the circus announcers tout: "For kids of all ages."

Winter Brings Fear For 'New Poor'

WASHINGTON (AP) — With winter a month away, city officials and social workers are worried that communities across the nation will not be able to provide food and shelter to a growing number of poor people with nowhere to go.

City leaders and officials of the country's major service agencies held a "war council" in Washington today to discuss the problems of caring for the unemployed during the winter ahead.

"Cities across the country are attempting to cope with a life-threatening situation posed by the winter of 1983: increasing numbers of unemployed and homeless persons requiring food and shelter," according to the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which organized the meeting.

"In many cities, existing resources cannot meet needs in a winter predicted by many to be the worst of the century," a briefing paper prepared for the conference said.

The problem is coming from people who aren't ordinarily poor and don't know how to cope. A recent study by the U.S. Conference of City Human Services Officials called them the "new poor."

They are in part the product of a 10.4 percent national unemployment rate, which has nearly 11.6 million Americans out of work — the highest since the closing years of the Depression.

"In cities across the country there is emerging a group that may be termed the 'new poor' — people who are losing their jobs, exhausting their financial resources, exhausting their unemployment benefits and losing their homes," the report said. "These people are coming to human service agencies for the first time, and it is difficult for them to do so."

Officials are most worried that there are not enough resources to care for these people.

"Approximately 600 people are homeless in Baltimore on any given night," Baltimore officials reported in a sampling of troubled cities in advance of today's conference. "There is a need to increase the number of shelters available in the city, particularly for families."

"The local public health department which has traditionally served two priority populations — children and the elderly — is now serving a new priority group," Baltimore reported. "Middle age persons, mostly men who are unemployed."

And in Berkeley, Calif., officials reported "a marked increase in the number of students and unemployed professionals using food banks and soup kitchens." Cambridge, Mass., said that over the past two years, "The number of people seeking housing assistance from the city has increased."

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined broadly today, registering no strong response to the latest declines in interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 8.83 to 1,012.42 by noon.

Declining issues outnumbered advances by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Some large banks today lowered their prime lending rates from 12 to 11 1/2 percent.

After the market closed on Friday, the Federal Reserve cut its discount rate from 9 1/2 to 9 percent. It was the sixth half-point reduction since mid-summer in the charge the Fed sets on loans to private financial institutions.

Analysts said the move was a further signal of the Fed's desire to foster a decline in interest rates and a recovery from the recession.

But Wall Street had been anticipating such a reduction for at least a month, and market-watchers said a lot of its potential impact on stock prices was dissipated during that period. In addition, there was widespread conjecture that the Fed was unlikely to make any further discount-rate cuts in the near future.

Among actively traded blue chips, American Telephone & Telegraph dropped 1/2 to 60; International Business Machines 1/8 to 82 1/2, and Westinghouse Electric 1/8 to 37 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index fell .59 to 78.73. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off 1.36 at 332.80.

Volume on the Big Board came to 35.66 million shares at noon, against 31.42 million at the same point Friday.

NUTS TO YOU — Benjamin Campbell, 75, a retired city janitor who sells peanuts to tourists in Charleston's City Market rather than accept food stamps or welfare, pushes his wares down a sidewalk after being forced out of the market on being given a choice to pay the $6 fee per day or get out. However, public outcry caused the market's managers to change their mind. Campbell only makes $10 a day. (AP Laserphoto)

School Officials Discuss Plan

WINSTON-SALEM — How schools can use Gov. Jim Hunt's "Year of the Public Schools" campaign to boost citizen understanding and support was the focus of a meeting of school officials in Winston-Salem last weekend.

Carolyn J. Ferebee, director of the Greenville Community Schools program, represented Greenville schools at the meeting.

The purpose of the meeting was to suggest ways school personnel can improve communications with local citizens and encourage citizen involvement in the schools.

Dr. Bill Banach, president of the National School Public Relations Association, led the workshop sessions. Also attending were Dr. Craig Phillips, state superintendent of public instruction, and representatives of the governor's office.

Mail Carriers To Use Stickers

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Red stickers will soon mark the mail boxes of some homes here to warn mail carriers of "dangerous" dogs, postal officials say.

Asheville Postmaster William Hoover, in charge of the state's 15 western counties, said the program will begin within a week.

If a carrier believes he may be endangered by a dog, he may hold the mail for one day while his supervisor decides what to do.

Hoover said the program was prompted by the case of a postman who was permanently disabled by a dog that tore flesh from his arm. Homes of dogs not thought dangerous will be marked with yellow stickers.

There are probably more soybeans saved for spring seed than any other crop.

The quality of these seed beans can be affected by several factors. The harvesting operation, mechanical handling, drying and storage management can all deteriorate the quality of the crop coming from the field. Soybeans reach maturity long before they are dry enough to combine.

Ideally, beans saved for seed should be harvested when seed moisture drops to approximately 14 percent. Proper cylinder speed and concave adjustment must be set to keep mechanical damage to a minimum. This means that as you change fields and as moisture content changes that cylinder speed will need to be readjusted. Many growers fail to realize this about the harvesting operation. As we change varieties our seed size also changes. These changed in size will make it necessary for more combine adjustments to be made.

Handling soybeans improperly results in breakage which reduces their desirability as grain and seed. The first rule of thumb for handling soybeans is to handle the crop the least number of times as possible. Do not transfer beans from one bin to another unless it is absolutely necessary.

Bucket elevators do a far better job of handling soybeans with respect to mechanical damage than do augers. Unfortunately, most farmers can not justify a bucket elevator for the amount of grain handled on their farms. Drying of seed is tricky. Under no circumstances should the air temperature reach above 100-110 degrees Fahrenheit. Higher temperatures can cause reduction in germination. In North Carolina and many other Southeastern states, especially when the weather is good, soybeans can be dried from 16 percent moisture content to 11 percent for safe storage with no heat at all. Air is blown through the crop at 65 percent relative humidity or less using layer drying techniques. The mass of beans are brought to a moisture content of 11 percent for safe storage.

Community groups and organizations wishing to know more about the program may contact Ms. Ferebee at 752-4192 or get in touch with any of the school principals.

Appreciation

Appreciation services in honor of Elder Tyrone Turnage will be held at Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church tonight through Sunday at 7:30 p.m., with the exception of Thursday and Saturday.

Tonight Elder E.B. Williams and the Nazarene Church of Christ will lead the service; Tuesday, Elder Maurice Laws and Mount Shiloh Baptist Church, Winterville; Wednesday, Elder J. Earl Williams and Emanuel Hill F.W.B. Church, Kinston; Friday, Elder Joe Dixon and Mary Chapel F.W.B. Church, Maury; and Sunday, Elder J.E. Vance and St. Mark F.W.B. Church, Kinston.

Club Adopts Four Projects

Four principal projects were adopted at the recent meeting of the Pitt County Chapter of Phoenix, held at Bachelor Benedict Club.

The projects are:
• Adopt-A-Family or an inmate or an adult probationer/parolee.

• Have Phoenix serve as a clearing house for volunteers. Several human service agencies will be contacted regarding their specific needs for volunteers and volunteers from Phoenix will solicit services from the community.

• Operate a job bank of volunteers with the assistance of criminal justice staff to investigate employment possibilities at local businesses for adult and Greenville offenders.

• Operate an Advocacy Program for children of female offenders. Volunteers from the local Phoenix chapter will provide appropriate services for children whose mothers are incarcerated.

Persons interesting in volunteer work or other forms of assistance to the planned Phoenix programs may contact Brenda H. Teel, Phoenix president, at 752-1811.

Nominated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House today announced that President Reagan will nominate Harry N. Walters, a veteran who never served in combat, to head the Veterans Administration.

If confirmed by the Senate, Walters would succeed Robert P. Nimmo.

Walters, 46, is now assistant secretary of the Army for manpower. His nomination as VA chief was held up more than two weeks because several influential congressmen complained they had not been consulted.

FARM BUREAU

The Pitt County Farm Bureau will sponsor a tobacco discussion Tuesday at 7 p.m. at the Farm Bureau Building. Dr. W.D. Toulssaint, an economics instructor at N.C. State University, will be the principal speaker.

Mistakes, Injuries AND Fans Few As NFL Returns

The Thrill Of The NFL Is Gone For Many Fans

By The Associated Press

In East Rutherford, N.J., John Cancellieri stood outside Giants Stadium trying to unload his tickets to the Giant-Redskin game. "The thrill is gone," he said. Outside Atlanta Stadium, the scalpers were trying to unload $13 tickets for $2. There were few takers.

The nation's football fans, who went eight weeks without the National Football League, sent the NFL a message Sunday: they can still do without it.

There were 115,586 no-shows at the day's 13 games and a total of 204,575 empty seats, meaning that the league played to about three-quarters of capacity. On the first weekend of the season, Sept. 12, there were 32,373 no-shows, and last year, the league played to nearly 94 percent of capacity.

Many of the fans who did show up were bitter about the 57-day strike, which left the league with a nine-game season and an expanded 16-team playoff format.

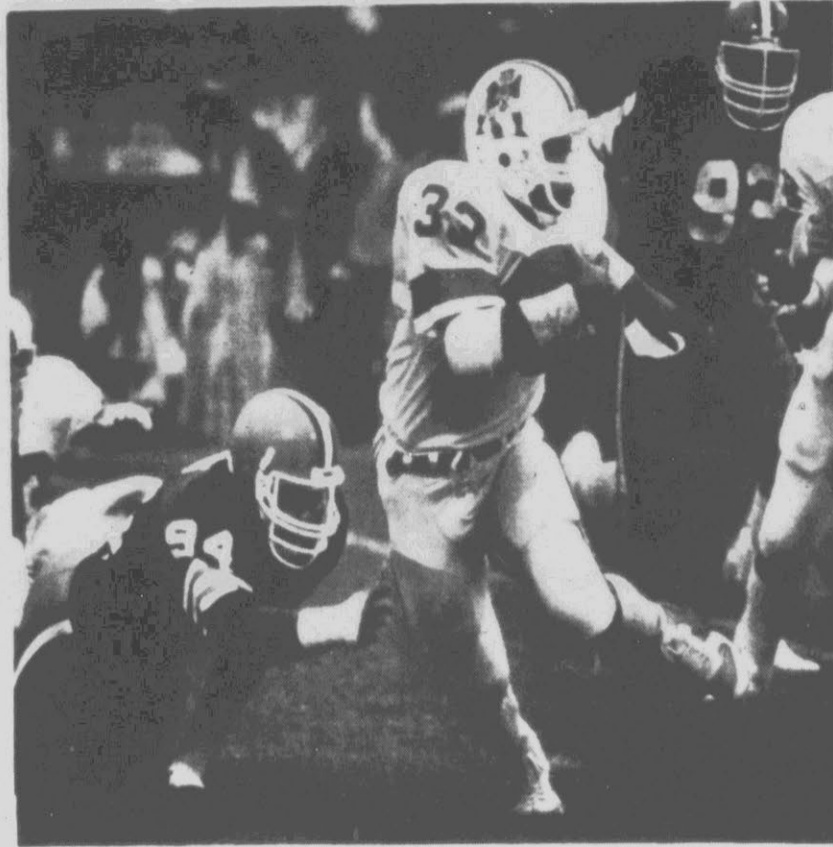

"The season is shot, it's not the same," said Greg Mees of Sandusky, Ohio, who was at the Browns-Patriots game on his uncle's season ticket. "But I'm glad to see a football game."

"They wanted 55 percent of the gross; they're not worth five percent," Dick Winn, a Philadelphia Eagle season ticket holder for 23 years, said of the players. He left Veterans' Stadium in the third quarter of the game between the Eagles and the Cincinnati Bengals and said he wasn't sure he'd be back again this year.

"We wouldn't be here today if we didn't have free tickets," said Dennis Dover, who was at the Houston Astrodome with his wife Connie to watch the Oilers lose to the Pittsburgh Steelers. Another Oiler fan, Nat Messer, said: "Personally, I would have liked the owners to have shut them down and cut them loose, not let any of the veterans play and sign all new players next year."

But other fans felt that once the anger abated, it would be business as usual. "I think people will complain, but they'll forget about it," said Ray Tinter of Cleveland. "I'm a football fan," said Frank Odum of Atlanta, a Falcon season ticket holder. "I think the people like me will keep coming to the games no matter what."

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle attributed some of no-shows to the fact that the league lifted the blackout on televising non-sellouts in home cities. But he acknowledged that the league had a selling job to do.

"Hopefully," he said of the fans, "they'll get back in the mood for football."

The biggest falloff was in Atlanta, where 20,228 ticket holders failed to show up. But perhaps the biggest surprise was in Irving, Texas, where there were 13,439 no-shows for the game between the Dallas Cowboys and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

It was the first time in 45 games that the Cowboys had failed to fill the stadium. "I guess they had plans they couldn't cancel," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "I had plans myself, but I cancelled them."

There were exceptions. In Denver, the no-show total of 1,187 was the lowest in the Broncos three games this year. The previous no-show totals in Mile High Stadium this year were 1,539 in the season opener and 1,204.

The fans who did show up elsewhere made their feelings known. In Cleveland, there were boos when the Browns and Patriots shook hands at midfield before the game in a gesture of union solidarity. The Bears and Lions did the same in Chicago, again to a chorus of boos.

Teams At Midseason Form, But Fans Aren't

By The Associated Press
The mistakes were few, the injuries were few ... and the fans were, too.

From Commissioner Pete Rozelle on down, the National Football League was worried that when the strike finally came to an end, the play would not be NFL calibre, that weeks of inactivity followed by limited preparation time would lead to injuries both numerous and serious and that the fans would turn away from the game.

On Sunday, after eight Sundays without the NFL, after a strike which lasted 57 days and reduced the season to a nine-game horse race to a 16-game playoff field, the game returned — in midseason form.

Most coaches and players agreed that the play on the field, if a bit rusty, was respectable, and, as it should be, entertaining.

And no more than the usual number of players hobbled off the field with the usual bumps, bruises, pulls and the like.

But, empty seats greeted the players, an indication of the fans' alienation of affection for what has become arguably the most popular and undeniably the most profitable of pro team sports.

In all, there were 115,586 no-shows and another 88,989 unsold tickets Sunday — about 76 percent of capacity compared to the 94 percent for the entire 1981 season — in the first NFL football since the pre-dawn minutes of Sept. 21, when the strike began.

Falcons 34, Rams 17
Steve Bartkowski of the Falcons hit 19 of 24 passes for 213 yards, including a 47-yard TD toss to Alfred Jenkins. Andrews, who scored on a 19-yard run in the fourth quarter, gained 119 yards on 21 carries and 88 yards on eight receptions.

Jets 37, Colts 0
Freeman McNeil carried for 123 yards and scored two touchdowns, one of them on one of Richard Todd's two TD passes, as Baltimore — like the Rams — fell to 0-3. McNeil became the first back in Jets' history to rush for more than

Ingram, Twitty & Wyatt Get Honors

East Carolina quarterback Kevin Ingram has been selected Offensive Player of the Week and linebacker Amos Twitty and defensive end Curtis Wyatt have been picked co-Defensive Players of the Week.

The selections were announced this morning after the ECU coaching staff viewed films Sunday of the Pirates' 23-10 win, over Temple in their season finale. ECU, who won its last three, finishes 7-4-0.

Ingram, who returned home to Philadelphia Saturday, rushed for 105 yards and two scores and passed for another 101 yards. Ingram, who scored six TDs in his last three games, connected on six of 12 passes with no interceptions against the Owls.

Ingram, a 5-11, 181-pound junior, transferred to ECU when Villanova dropped its football program two years ago.

Jordan, a 6-2, 223-pound sophomore from Athens, Ga., had 12 tackles for the Pirates Saturday.

Paper Says Duke Has Fired Wilson

DURHAM (AP) — Duke football coach Red Wilson has advised his staff that he is "80 to 85 percent sure" he will not return in 1983, according to a report in a Durham newspaper.

The Durham Sun in a copyright story today said it learned from sources at Duke that Wilson was told Saturday night that he'd taken the program as far as it can go.

The paper said two prospects to replace Wilson are Dick Sheridan of Furman or Jack Bicknell of Boston College.

According to the sources, Wilson was fired Saturday night, following Duke's 23-17 upset of North Carolina.

The paper said all assistant coaches at Duke, except Bob Matheson, also were fired.

Wilson reportedly met with Duke athletic director Tom Butters Saturday night and the paper said that Butters told

Waltrip Wins 2nd Straight Points Title

Woody

East Carolina's 1982 football season came to an end Saturday afternoon in Philadelphia, Pa., and the difference a year has made in the Pirate program is more than noticable.

The Pirates returned to the winning side of the ledger for the first time in three years, finishing at 7-4. It is a season Ed Emory, with a winner for the first time at his alma mater, can relish in.

There's a lot to be happy about when one looks forward to the 1983 season. Hopefully, those injured linebackers will return next season, and the toll will not be as heavy. The Pirates are planning on adding "Anderson braces" to their equipment list for Christmas in the hopes of cutting down on those injuries.

With the return of such linebackers as Mike Grant and the Reid brothers, the Pirates can look forward to the return of outstanding play in that area.

Jody Schulz, East Carolina's all-America candidate will certainly be missed, but hopefully, the Pirates can come up with some good replacements.

Kevin Ingram, it would appear, has finally come to grips with the new Pirate offense, and if his showing in the last three games is an indication, the quarterbacking situation should be improved. The Pirates are, we understand, continuing to seek good recruits at this position, and there has been a rumor that Ingram could be switched to a wide receiver position to make even better use of his quickness and speed should an adequate replacement be found at quarterback.

Regardless, that is one position that should be stronger in 1983.

The running back stable is going to be impressive next year. With the return to good health of Jimmy Walden, along with the return of Earnest Byner, Tony Baker and Reggie Branch, the Pirates have the makings of an outstanding running game.

More beef is going to be needed in the lines, but it should be forthcoming, too.

The real problem spot is at cornerback, and there Emory must recruit some gems. The Pirates fell down in the pass defense department badly this year, and this was the chief area of concern — along with linebacker, and that problem should solve itself with the return of the injured.

And of course, all Pirate fans must feel elated over the fact that Jeff Heath is just a freshman with three more great years ahead of him. Without a doubt, Heath is the best kicker in North Carolina — and is probably among the best in the country even at this young stage of his career.

A good recruiting year could bring the Pirates another step along the road to success — despite the fact that some feel ECU should return to Division I-AA.

The big problem, however, is schedule. The Pirates are finding few takers when it comes to getting on the schedule of Division I-A schools.

There is a definite pecking order among those schools, and those with whom the Pirates have a legitimate chance of victory aren't that interested. Those with whom the Pirates can play evenly feel ECU hasn't the name. And those in the upper echelon are willing to play only at their home fields — when they can squeeze the Bucs in.

East Carolina could go into next year with less than the allowable 11 games. We hope not, but don't be surprised if it works out this way.

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Tim Richmond was excited about his second victory in Grand National stock car racing, but he deferred to Darrell Waltrip, the man who finished third and wrapped up a second straight Winston Cup national championship.

"I won the race, but it's Darrell's day," Richmond said after he ran off to an easy triumph in the Winston Western 500 Sunday at Riverside International Raceway.

Waltrip couldn't seem to make up his mind how to act about the second national title of his 11-year Grand National career.

"After I took the (checked) flag, all the emotions of the day and the championship and everything hit me all at once and I cried all the way around the track," he said with a big smile breaking across his dark, handsome face.

"Then, when I got to the crew and Junior (car owner Junior Johnson), I was just so happy I didn't know what to do. And, tomorrow morning (today), when I wake up and really feel what happened, I expect I'll be so proud I won't be able to stand myself."

"We knew before the race it was just belly up to the bar and get the job done. And that's what we did."

The day began as a shootout between the 35-year-old Waltrip and Bobby Allison, 44, the challenger who came into this season-ending race just 22 points behind Waltrip and practically tasting his first Winston Cup title in 18 years of Grand National racing.

But the 502-kilometer race over Riverside's twisting 2.6-mile road course soon developed into a three-way battle among Waltrip, Allison and Richmond, the 27-year-old who won his first Grand National race on this same track in June.

"I led the first lap (and got the five-point bonus for leading a lap), then Bobby and Tim passed me. But I wasn't worried about that after Tim got in the lead, because that just meant that he (Richmond) was leading the most laps (another five-point bonus) and all I had to do was keep Bobby in sight."

"We (Allison and Waltrip) squared off at one point early in the race, but that's when Bobby had his tire trouble."

Allison, the hard-luck that has dogged him most of the second half of the 30-race season continuing, made a routine pit stop on lap 48. However, the lug on his right-front tire was damaged and the crew decided not to change it immediately.

He tried to wait it out, hoping for a caution flag to allow him to get the wearing tire changed, but the green flag stayed out and the tire went flat on lap 65.

The pit stop to change it cost him more than a lap because Allison had to come into the pits through the garage area — an automatic 30-second penalty. Then, after the tire change, he failed to stop for the penalty, and had to be brought back into the pits two laps later.

To make matters worse, the right-front tire went flat a few laps later, with the frustrated driver having to nurse the car back into the pits on three wheels again. By this time, he was two laps behind Richmond and Waltrip.

Terry Labonte, the third-place finisher in the season point standings, crashed hard just 24 laps from the end of the 119-lap event, with Allison just behind him. Allison spun through the grass trying to avoid Labonte's car and was able to continue, but finally retired after 111 laps when his engine failed. He wound up 16th in the race and 72 points behind Waltrip for the season.

"This is just the way the facts of the (point) race go down," Allison said, swallowing his disappointment. "It still was the most enjoyable season I've ever had. The team was just great. I'm just sorry we couldn't have won it all."

It wasn't all sunshine for Waltrip, either. His gearbox jammed just before the halfway point in the race, changing his strategy.

"We knew Bobby was going to go for the win, so we felt we would just try to stay with him and then go after it (the victory) at the end. But, when the transmission started going, I didn't want to beat myself."

Irish, Stanford Blow Bowl Chances

By The Associated Press

While 23 schools accepted bowl bids and Notre Dame used the time-honored way of blowing one — an upset loss — Stanford, annually one of college football's most paradoxical teams, found a unique way to stay home for the holidays.

It wasn't easy, but Stanford rarely does things the easy way. It took one of the strangest plays in history, plus the assistance of the Stanford band, for California to beat the Cardinals 25-20 after time had expired.

John Elway passed for 330 yards and two touchdowns, while Mark Harmon kicked two field goals, including a 35-yarder with four seconds left that put Stanford on top 20-19 and apparently into the Hall of Fame Bowl against Vanderbilt.

But hold the phone. Also, the trumpets, trombones, cymbals and drums.

Cal's Kevin Moen fielded Harmon's short kickoff at his own 45-yard line and began a bizarre series of laterals and pitchbacks that made it resemble a rugby contest. Richard Rodgers handled the ball twice before Moen got it back on the fifth and final lateral and weaved his way the final 25 yards or so through Stanford band members, cheerleaders and fans who thought the play had been whistled dead and the game ended.

"I didn't see what happened," said Joe Kapp, who led the Golden Bears to a 7-4 record in his first year as a coach at any level. "It doesn't matter. It counted for 6 and we won. The Bear just would not quit. The Bear would not die."

It mattered a lot to Stanford, which wound up 5-6 and out of the bowl picture.

Notre Dame, the nation's 18th-ranked team, was not beaten by a fluke play. The Irish, who could have gone to the Bluebonnet Bowl, were trounced by Air Force 30-17, which then replaced Stanford in the Hall of Fame Bowl.

Four other members of the Top Twenty were beaten — two of them by other ranked teams — the biggest shocker

Washington State's 24-20 upset of No. 5 Washington that knocked the heavily favored Huskies out of the Rose Bowl.

Elsewhere, No. 12 LSU swamped seventh-ranked Florida State 55-21 and won an Orange Bowl bid, while FSU settled for the Gator Bowl; No. 11 UCLA kept its Rose Bowl hopes alive by edging No. 15 Southern California 20-19; Ohio State stunned No. 13 Michigan's Rose Bowl-bound Big Ten champs 24-14 and second-ranked Southern Methodist had its perfect season ended in a 17-17 tie with No. 9 Arkansas that nevertheless gave SMU its second straight Southwest Conference crown and a Cotton Bowl berth, while sending the Razorbacks to the Bluebonnet Bowl.

While the Rose and Bluebonnet were suffering through lost weekends, the Sugar Bowl lined up a possible national championship showdown between Georgia and Penn State.

The bowl lineup looks like this:

Sugar, Georgia-Penn State; Cotton, SMU-Pitt; Orange, Winner of Friday's Nebraska-Oklahoma game vs. LSU; Fiesta, Washington or Arizona State vs. Nebraska-Oklahoma loser; Gator, Florida State-West Virginia; Rose, Arizona State or UCLA

Hardee Leads Rosettes

FAYETTEVILLE — Frankie Lynn Hardee finished first in four events and also all-around to lead the Rosettes at a Class III and IV gymnastics meet here this weekend.

Hardee, competing in the Class III Division in the 15-and-over age group, was first in the vault (with a combined score — compulsory and optional — of 15.60). She also finished first on the uneven bars (9.9), the balance beam (10.25) and floor exercise (14.35) to finish with a 50.0 score all-around.

In other Division III results: Kim Wiles was second on the beam (13.05) in the 9-11 age group and Kelly Sams was fourth on the beam (13.35) in the 12-14 age group.

Also in the 9-11 age group,

ASU Fires Working

BOONE (AP) — Appalachian State officials say they hope to name a new head football coach by Dec. 15 after the school announced Sunday that Mike Working had been fired after three years at the Southern Conference school.

"I'm sure after the 11 o'clock news, my phone will be ringing," said athletic director Jim Garner said in a telephone interview. "Any athletic director worth his salt will be walking around with a list. I have some people I hope would be interested in coming to Appalachian State."

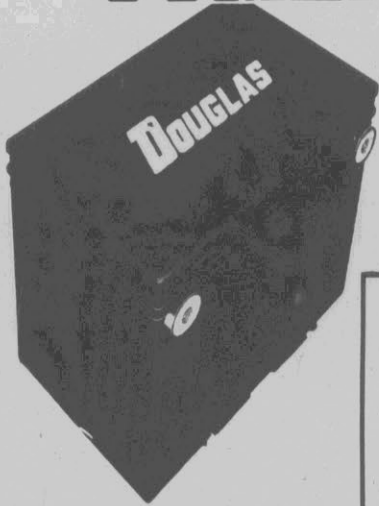

Garner said he hoped to name a successor by Dec. 15.

The announcement that Working had been fired was made at a 7 p.m. Sunday news conference by Garner and Appalachian State Chancellor Dr. John E. Thomas

"Mike Working is being relieved from his position as head football coach ...," said Thomas in a prepared statement. "Our athletic director, Jim Garner, will proceed immediately to recruit a replacement."

Garner, who said the decision was reached after a meeting with Working and Thomas Saturday night, would not specify a reason for the coach's release.

Duke ...

Wilson. "The program has gone as far as it can go under you."
Wilson, asked if he was fired, said, "No comment. Anything will have to come from Tom Butters."
Asked if he expects to return as Duke's head coach next year, Wilson again refused comment.
Wilson was scheduled to meet with his coaches this afternoon at 1 p.m. but, instead, called a 9:30 meeting, where he informed his staff he was all but certain he would not return. Duke's assistants were told "not to go out recruiting."
"He's gone," said one assistant coach, who asked not to be identified.
Wilson completed his fourth season as Duke's head coach. His overall record is 16-27-1. His first team, in 1979, finished 2-8-1, then 2-9, 6-5 and 6-5.
Butters, who could not be reached for comment, is believed waiting to make an announcement due to the coach he has in mind is still involved in the season.
Bicknell told The Durham Sun Friday from his office at Chestnut Hill, Mass., "Honest to God, I haven't been contacted by anyone from Duke, but anything is possible. I'm in the second year of a three-year contract at BC."
Bicknell's Eagles completed their regular-season 8-2-1.

"BB&T is going to make it easy for customers to get what they want. And what they want right now is money."

Vincent Lowe, President, BB&T

Thus, the loan application here. It's a way to take care of most of your loan and credit card request paperwork ahead of time, because we know perfectly well you have better things to do than sit around a bank answering questions.

BB&T'S LOAN LAUNCHER. ASKING FOR A CONSUMER LOAN CAN'T GET ANY SIMPLER.

All you do is fill out the form, then hand it, or even mail it, to any BB&T loan officer. You'll be given a quick answer by telephone and, if your loan is approved, asked to come in, sign the papers, and pick up the money you need for home improvements, car, bill consolidation, vacation, or whatever.

With BB&T's simple interest, you pay interest only on exactly the amount of money you owe for exactly the amount of time you owe it. So if you make payments early or pay extra amounts, you save money.

LOAN LAUNCHER IS THE FIRST STEP TO A SERVICE THAT WILL DO YOU CREDIT.

If you're approved for BB&T's Constant Credit, you'll have a personal line of credit and can get a loan in precisely the time it takes you to write a check. Say your car needs costly repairs. Or you run into a real bargain, but your checking account balance won't cover its cost. You just write a check for more than your balance and we automatically advance you enough to cover it in units of $100 up to your credit limit.

AND, FINALLY, LOAN LAUNCHER CAN PUT A TRUMP CARD IN YOUR HAND.

If you qualify for Visa or MasterCard, you'll have a powerful friend on your side. Because these two prestigious credit cards are honored by merchants around the corner, around the country, around the world. So you can get services, merchandise, transportation, even cash wherever you are.

So if you'd like to apply for Visa, MasterCard, Constant Credit, or a consumer loan for any worthwhile purpose, here's your chance. Pick up your pen, fill out the form and get it to BB&T. We're going to give credit where credit is due.

Why are we doing this, you ask? Why else? We want your business at BB&T, and we're going to give you the kinds of extras that will earn it.

Casino Chefs Preparing Feast For Thanksgiving

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The chefs in this casino town are taking a gamble and preparing enough turkey to feed about 100,000.

The menu for Thursday's traditional dinner includes more than 1,000 turkeys, 4,200 pounds of stuffing and 1,300 pounds of cranberry sauce.

"It's just a little extra work," said Executive Chef Raymond F. Lopez of the Sands Hotel Casino.

Lopez said casino chefs try to make all the birds taste as good as they would if they were cooked at home.

"When people come here to eat turkey, they want to expect nothing less than they would prepare at home, and that's just what we give them," he said.

Monday Football Returns

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tonight marks the return of prime-time football, not to mention Howard, Frank, Dandy Don and, dare we mention, many of our favorite macho commercials.

The strike is over. Bring on those chatterboxes in the booth. Hurray for those high-decibel halftime highlights. And, most important for Madison Avenue, three cheers for those commercials aimed at male viewers.

"The demographics for football are special because men are so hard to reach," said Dave Martin of the

Campbell-Ewald advertising agency. "Men are selective TV viewers."

Jerry Solomon of the D'Arcy-McManus ad agency states it simply: "Football is a sport that beer companies and automakers want."

Last season, an average of 16.2 million adult males watched "Monday Night Football," according to ABC's demographic studies. The ABC replacement movies this past October attracted only 9 million men.

There are 23.5 million men in America between the ages of 18 and 34. More than 45 percent, 10.6 million, watched pro football on ABC, CBS and NBC in 1980, according to the Simmons Market Research Bureau. By comparison, 8.1 percent of men in that age group watched the No. 1-rated "Dallas."

That's why, during the last Monday night game two months ago, the men who were looking at football saw men looking right back.

—Arnold Palmer, the ever affable golf champion, revived his tractor and asked us to trust Penzoid.

—Charlie Daniels, the country fiddler, whose beerbelly is identifiable to sedentary fans, said Skoal was the only tobacco worth his spit.

—William Shatner, an authority figure in space (Capt. Kirk in "Star Trek") and on land (police officer T.J. Hooker), promised to make our homes toasty with Kero Sun heaters.

Other products pitched to them included Buick Regals, Chevy Vans, Michelin Radials and, three times in the first half alone, Budweiser Light beer.

In one Budweiser commercial, a football rookie challenged a veteran. Mock football during real football is one way to deter refrigerator raiding during timeouts.

Another way is the participatory plug. Old Spice promoted an "NFL Classic Play," provided you stayed put for the commercial. Intellivision asked you to play referee on a difficult call. But, for the correct answer, you had to sit still for George Plimpton.

During the strike, ABC's male-oriented Monday sponsors went to other prime-time programming, moved into ABC's weekend sports or saved their money for the NFL's return.

In any case, ABC didn't make as much money. Advertising Age reported that gross ad revenue for each "Monday Night Football" game was $7 million, compared to $2.5 million for the replacement movies. The games had 24 minutes of commercials, while the two-hour movies had 14 minutes of interruptions.

CBS and NBC also lost income on Sundays without football. The replacement sports programming managed one-third to one-half of the NFL ad rates, falling to $70,000 per 30-second commercial from football's $130,000.

ABC said the regular football sponsors of beer, cars and video games will be back tonight. The expectation is that regular viewers will come back, too.

Last season, "Monday Night Football" was the 12th highest rated program. The ratings of the two prestrike games this season were even higher, attracting 19 million homes.

Welcome back, football. The game and the timeouts — not necessarily in that order — were sorely missed.

Highway Funds Remain Problem For Legislature

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The focus of the Legislature's budget problems has moved from highways in 1981 toward finding more than $100 million for state workers' salaries next year.

But some of the needs that brought Gov. Jim Hunt's "Good Roads Package" still exist and threaten to cause headaches for budget committees once again.

Unless the state can find approximately $60 million by July 1, it will lose almost four times that much in federal money for building major highways, said state Highway Administrator Billy Rose.

In the past, the state has put up a small appropriation and money from a 1977 bond issue to match federal dollars. But the bond money is expected to run out this fall and state revenues remain tight.

To compound the problem, President Reagan is considering raising the gasoline tax and highway aid to the states, meaning there will be more money needed to match federal funds.

The General Assembly approved more than half of Hunt's program, including a 3-cent-per-gallon increase in the gasoline tax, before it adjourned in 1981.

The plan generated about $120 million for resurfacing 3,327 miles of roads. Of the money, $30 million went for newly paved secondary roads.

Legislators rejected Hunt's proposed increase in the alcohol tax and tax on automobile products aimed at generating another $60 million.

"I have proposed tax increases to restore the highways. If the Legislature doesn't want to use the ones I suggested, they'll have to find others," Hunt said last week.

He said he opposes increasing any kind of tax except "what's essential in order to keep our roads going, which I've already spoken to."

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, said there is a "very real possibility" that an alcohol tax increase would be considered by the Legislature again this year. But he said he hoped there would be some leftover money in the Highway Fund to meet budget needs next year.

"No one wants to raise taxes but if it would be absolutely necessary to maintain essential services we've got to do it whether we want to or not," Adams said.

Hunt said he remains concerned about the shortfall, which he said was very serious.

"People are very concerned that projects all over the state will come to a halt if funds are not found to match federal funds in the next session," he said.

"I think we will see a lot of uncompleted projects and a lot of work just not being done," Rose agreed.

Tar Heel Cities Move To Cut Down On Noise

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) —

Some North Carolina cities are adopting noise-abatement laws in order to control the loud sounds of noisemakers such as amplifiers, cars without mufflers, clanging garbage cans or whirring power tools.

Raleigh, Chapel Hill, Fayetteville, Garner and Concord have laws to reduce noise. And 35 people from 12 North Carolina communities attended an October noise-control conference in Garner sponsored by two engineers from the University of Maryland.

Most noise ordinances in North Carolina make it illegal to make a lot of noise as measured by decibels. The ordinances often set some time limits, usually requiring residents to be more quiet in the evening and before sunup.

Some of the ordinance single out sounds, such as loud amplifiers, cars without mufflers, clanging garbage cans or whirring power tools. Some provide jail terms and fines for violators.

Charlotte enacted an anti-noise ordinance in 1980 that took effect in March 1981. But that law has been challenged in court and is not being enforced, said Charlotte noise-control specialist James Londeree.

Noise can also create stress and contribute to violent crimes, Londeree said. He said that's why he views himself as a crime-prevention officer.

Londeree, 29, is paid $380 a week to quiet the noise he finds or noise that is reported to the police. A civilian employee of the Charlotte Police Department, he began his work Jan. 6.

"I feel like a pioneer," he said. "This is a new course, especially for this area. We want to quiet the city."

REUNITED ... Kathleen Blackburn of Millen, 1981 when a court declared her an unfit Ga., is rushed away by her attorneys after she mother. The Georgia Supreme Court recently regained custody of her 3-year-old son, ordered the child's father to surrender the Nicholas. She had not seen the child since June boy. (AP Laserphoto)

Father Pledges Fight For Son

MILLEN, Ga. (AP) — A tearful father pledged "I'm going to get my son back" after the 3-year-old was whisked away by his mother, who lost custody a year ago after giving birth to a racially mixed daughter.

Kathleen Blackburn sobbed, "Come here my baby, come here my baby," as she took her young white son Nickolas at a court-ordered reunion Sunday.

The 27-year-old mother, holding her 1-year-old daughter, Jennifer, in the other arm, rushed the boy to a waiting car and sped away from the Jenkins County Courthouse in this east Georgia town of about 3,700 people.

With tears streaming down his face, Mark Blackburn, the boy's father, said he would continue his legal battle for custody.

"No matter what it takes, I'm going to get my son back," he said.

Last year, Jenkins County Superior Court Judge W.C. Hawkins awarded custody of Nickolas to his paternal grandmother, Nancy Blackburn, ruling that Kathleen Blackburn was an unfit mother after she had an illegitimate daughter by a black man.

Nickolas is white, as are both his parents.

The Georgia Supreme Court overturned Hawkins' custody decision in June. Mark Blackburn filed a suit seeking custody of the boy himself, and Hawkins delayed returning Nickolas to his mother, citing the new custody suit.

On Tuesday, the Supreme Court ordered the reunion take place anyway.

Hawkins, who will preside at a Dec. 1 custody hearing on Blackburn's suit, denied the original decision was racially motivated. He once said "this court is colorblind," but also has said Millen "is not ready for that sort of integration."

Nancy Blackburn, her son and their attorney all denied Sunday that their legal efforts are motivated by race.

"Race had nothing to do with it," the grandmother said. "If that had been the issue, why would I have sought custody of Nickolas more than a year before Kathleen became pregnant (with Jennifer)?"

Blackburn said he did not originally seek custody of Nickolas because he was not married. But since he has remarried, he said, his life is more stable "and we can offer Nickolas a much more wholesome lifestyle."

In the latest twist in the case, Blackburn's attorney,

Sims Lanier, said he plans to mail a petition today to the Jenkins County Superior Court asking that Kathleen Blackburn be held in contempt of court for denying his client visitation rights on Sunday.

Under the Blackburns' divorce decree, Blackburn was granted visitation rights each Sunday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. But Mrs. Blackburn and her children were driven off by her lawyer to an undetermined location after Nickolas was turned over.

As she left, Blackburn turned to his new wife, Nell, and his mother. The three broke into tears.

"I hurt. We can take better care of him and give him a better life ... he's a human being," the grandmother said. "He's not a package that someone in Atlanta can pass judgment on."

She had brought a toy dump truck and a stuffed doll for Nickolas, but Mrs. Blackburn left them behind.

NOTICE OF SALE

NORTH CAROLINA COUNTY OF PITT

UNDER and by virtue of the Power of Sale contained in a certain Deed of Trust executed by Charles and Ethel McCallister to James B. Rivenbark, Trustee, dated the 24th day of October, 1982, and recorded in Book D45 at Page 81, in the Office of the Register of Deeds of Pitt County, North Carolina; and under and by virtue of the authority vested in the undersigned, default having been made in the payment of indebtedness thereby secured, and the said deed of trust being, by the terms thereof, subject to foreclosure, and the holder of the indebtedness thereby secured having demanded a foreclosure thereof for the purpose of satisfying said indebtedness and the proper hearing having been held before the Clerk of Superior Court on the 3rd day of November, 1982, and the Clerk having found that the Trustee can proceed under the instrument, the undersigned Trustee will offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash at the Courthouse Door of Pitt County, Greenville, North Carolina, at 10:00 o'clock a.m. on Wednesday, the 8th day of December, 1982, the land conveyed in said Deed of Trust, same lying and being in Pitt County, North Carolina, and more particularly described as follows:

That certain lot situated on the south side of Fourth Street, between Tyson and White Streets, known as Lot 11, Block 1, as will appear by reference to Map Book #2, at Page 49 in Pitt County, North Carolina, and formerly owned by United Development Corporation, and now known as Greenville Heights; Beginning at a point on Fourth Street 100 feet West of the S.W. corner of Fourth and White Streets; thence southwardly with line of Lot 13, 100 feet thence westerly with the northern line of Lot 12, 50 feet thence northwardly with the eastern line of Lot 9, 100 feet to a point on Fourth Street; thence easterly with Fourth Street 50 feet to the beginning, being a part of the land conveyed to R. M. Garrett by W. H. Moore and wife, July 9, 1920, by deed recorded in Book 5-13 at Page 109, and conveyed to W. H. Moore by Virginia Carolina Land Corporation by deed recorded in Book H-13 page 304 of the Pitt County Registry, and being Parcel 1 in that certain deed from Sellers Brick Co., Inc. to Walter G. Ward and wife, Margaret M. Ward, of record in Pitt County Registry in Book E-24 page 476, to which reference is hereby made.

This property is commonly known as 1105 W. Fourth Street, Greenville, North Carolina.

The record owner of the property not more than ten days prior to posting the notice is Charles and Ethel McCallister.

This sale will be made subject to a mortgage to Wachovia Mortgage and any and all unpaid taxes and municipal assessments.

The purchaser at this sale will be required to make a cash deposit of five percent (5%) of the purchase price to show good faith, and in the event the successful bidder fails to make such deposit, the property will be immediately resold at the time and place aforesaid.

Baptists Forecast Change

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The passage of resolutions favoring school prayer and opposing abortion at last week's Baptist State Convention reflect a "groundswell of conservatism" in North Carolina, Baptist leaders say.

"The convention has gone to a historically conservative tone," said Henderson Belk of Charlotte, the convention's first vice president and highest-ranking conservative. "We've gravitated back to fundamentalism."

The reason for the conservatives' optimism is that the convention passed resolutions backed by conservatives calling for stronger anti-abortion measures, and the convention reversed its historical stand by voting for a resolution supporting a constitutional amendment to allow prayer in public schools.

Conservative leader the Rev. Robert M. Tenery, pastor of Burkemont Baptist Church in Morganton, said last week's votes signal "a turning to the right. There is a groundswell of conservatism in North Carolina."

"People are seeing that a move away from Christian principles means a more bizarre nation, so they are returning to conservatism," said Tenery.

Conservatives made an extra effort this year to influence the issues, said the Rev. M.O. Owens, retired pastor of Parkwood Baptist Church in Gastonia. Considered an elder of the conservative movement, Owens said he was surprised by the strength of the conservatives.

"If you had asked me on Monday (last week), I would have said I didn't feel the conservatives were making any gains in North Carolina," said Owens. "But now there appears to be a softening of attitude about the conservative position."

Moderate convention president the Rev. Frank R. Campbell acknowledged the trend, saying, "We're reflecting the conservative swing of the country."

Some of the convention's moderates said the conservatives simply organized better for votes on the resolutions.

"What happened was a complete misrepresentation of the total body of Baptists," said the Rev. R.G. Puckett, editor of the convention's journal, the Biblical Recorder. "North Carolina Baptists have more concern for separation of church and state and religious liberty than that."

Most of the delegates had already left the convention by the time resolutions were considered on the last day of the meeting. Only about one-third of the 3,000 Baptists attending the convention last week in Fayetteville voted.

Police Report Three Wrecks

An estimated $3,250 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 8:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche streets, involving cars driven by Donald Ray Page of Wilson and Nelson Staton of 22D Stratford Arms Apartments.

Investigators, who charged Page with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage from the mishap at $900 to the Page car and $500 to the Staton vehicle.

A car driven by Timmy Hall of Farmville collided with a masonry wall at the intersection of Fifth Street and Bancroft Avenue about 1:47 p.m., causing an estimated $1,300 damage to the car, police reported.

Cars driven by James Clifton Paige Sr. of 102 Kimberly Drive and Irvin Thomas Freeman of 116 Pearl Drive collided about 10:15 a.m. on Dickinson Avenue, 500 feet west of the Patrick Street intersection, causing $300 damage to the Paige car and $250 damage to the Freeman auto.

Domestic Cigarette Use Shows Increase

By CAROLE FELDMAN Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) —

The average American smoker went through more than 1½ packs of cigarettes a day in 1980, the Federal Trade Commission reports.

All told, the FTC said, smokers bought a record 628.2 billion cigarettes in 1980 — an increase of 6.4 billion or 1 percent over the previous year.

Since 1963, annual domestic cigarette consumption has increased by more than 100 billion, the FTC said today in its annual report to Congress on smoking data.

In 1980, the average smoker consumed more than 11,633 cigarettes — or about 969 cigarettes every month, the FTC said.

The surgeon general has estimated that there are about 54 million smokers in the United States.

Although cigarette sales rose in 1980, per capita consumption of cigarettes declined to 3,848 for all U.S. residents and overseas military personnel 18 years of age and older, the FTC said.

For the first time, the average cigarette on the market contained less than 15 milligrams of tar, according to the FTC. This compares to 1968, when the average tar content of cigarettes was 22 milligrams.

Low tar brands accounted for a record 44.8 percent of all cigarette sales, and 65 percent of advertising expenditures by cigarette companies, the FTC said.

All but 8 percent of the cigarettes sold in 1980 had filters, 1 percent more than in 1979 and 34 percent more than in 1963, the FTC said.

The report also noted that the popularity of menthol and longer length cigarettes had increased during the year.

Average advertising expenditures for cigarettes exceeded $1 billion for the second year in a row, rising 13 percent from 1979 without adjusting for inflation, the FTC said.

Newspaper advertising expenditures rose from $14 million in 1970, when a ban on radio and television cigarette ads took effect, to more than $300 million in 1980, according to the report.

Tobacco companies spent another $266 million on magazine ads and $193 million on billboards, the FTC said.

Another $17 million was spent for cigarette company sponsorship of special events, such as music festivals and sports tournaments, in 1980, the FTC said.

The agency is required to submit the smoking data to Congress each year under the Federal Cigarette Labeling and Advertising Act.

Wealth Is Hard To Believe

SOUTHERN SHORES, N.C. (AP) — Residents in the Outer Banks resort town of Southern Shores say a U.S. Census report showing the town's $30,347 per capita income, the highest the state, is rather hard to believe.

"I was surprised when I heard it because I thought about places like Pinehurst and Blowing Rock," said Mickey Hayes, vice president of Kitty Hawk Land Co., Southern Shores' development firm. Blowing Rock's per-capita income was listed at $9,677 while Pinehurst was not incorporated when the statistics were compiled.

The news caught some residents of the 2,600-acre development between the Atlantic Ocean and the Currituck Sound by surprise.

"We're flattered, but I'm reluctant to believe it because we have a variety of people here with a variety of incomes and a variety of homes ranging from moderate to luxurious," said

Mayor Pro Tem Harold F. Via.

The Census Bureau took a sample of all Southern Shore residents — men, women and children — and applied a standard formula to calculate the 1979 per capita income, said Lawrence E. McNutt, information specialist with the Census Bureau's Charlotte office.

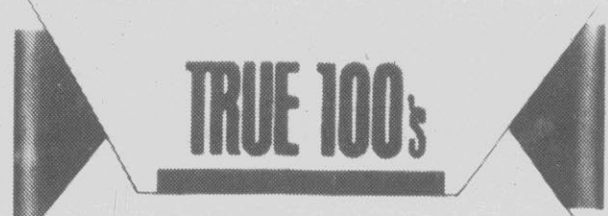

Southern Shores' wealth per household is concentrated. The town's 400 to 500 year-round residents are largely retired couples. Most live off civil service and military pensions.

Although the community has an 18-hole golf course, tennis courts, a swimming pool, marina and large houses, residents insist they're not dripping in wealth.

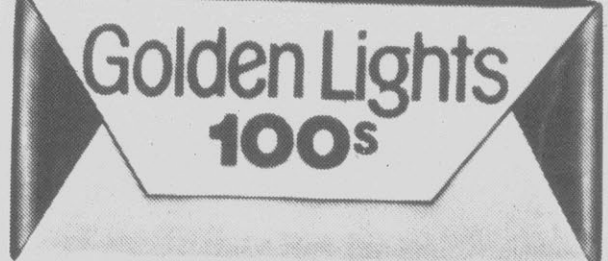

"One of the reasons we picked this area to retire in was that it is reasonable," said Virginia Sholtz. "There are some wealthy families here but there are also a lot of average families, in the $30,000 bracket."
