PLO Leaders Say No To Peace Plan

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization publicly rejected President Reagan's Middle East peace plan today because they said it fails to guarantee Palestinians their rights, PLO officials said.

The PLO's Central Council, a policy-making body of 55 members representing the eight factions of the guerrilla organization, issued a six-point statement rejecting the plan following their nine-hour meetings Thursday and Friday.

"The Central Council declared that the Reagan project does not meet the inalienable national rights of the Palestinian people," the statement said. "This project ignores the right of our people to self-determination and the right of establishment of an independent Palestinian state under the leadership of the PLO."

It also said: "Without this, a just and comprehensive solution to the Middle East problems and its core problem, the Palestinian issue, cannot be achieved."

The statement was read by Khaled Fahoum, chairman of the Palestine National Council or so-called Parliament-in-exile, and was distributed by the PLO's news agency Wafa.

Reagan's peace plan, announced in September after the PLO was forced to evacuate

Israeli-ruled west Beirut, calls for Palestinian self-rule in association with Jordan on lands seized by Israel in the 1967 Middle East War. But the plan does not make provisions for an independent Palestinian state and does not recognize the PLO as the sole representative of the Palestinian people.

The PLO statement came after several stormy sessions of the council during which radical members denounced PLO chairman Yasser Arafat for his friendly overtures to Jordan and Egypt, which are regarded as traitors to the Palestinian cause.

The Central Council statement reaffirmed the PLO's claim that it is "the sole legitimate representative of the Palestinian people inside and outside the (Israeli) occupied territories."

PLO officials who declined to be further identified said earlier that the council debate was marked by emotional arguments and no agreement. They also said Arafat was criticized because of his handling of the situation in Lebanon following the June 6 Israeli invasion and his relations with other Arab nations.

Nevertheless, the council statement included a call for "Egypt's return to Arab ranks and for an Arab return to Egypt." The statement said Egypt should first reject the U.S.-sponsored Camp David peace treaty.

Latin Nations Gear Up For Visit By U.S. Chief

By BRYNA BRENNAN Associated Press Writer BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Reagan's trip to four Latin American nations next week is welcomed by the leaders of the chosen few as a chance to present him with pictures of their economies, which show more red than black.

U.S. presidents have rarely ventured to Latin America, leading to criticism that the United States gives the area lower priorities.

This feeling among Latin America was reinforced earlier this year when the United States supported Britain in its Falkland Islands war against Argentina.

But the shock is wearing off now and Reagan's five-day trip beginning Tuesday has been hailed by the countries he will visit — Brazil and Colombia in South America and Costa Rica and Honduras in Central America.

Reagan will meet the heads of those countries and confer with leaders of two other Central American nations — President Alvaro Magana of war-torn El Salvador and Guatemalan military junta leader Gen. Efraim Rios Montt.

The countries all have severe economic problems in the face of high inflation, worldwide recession and declining demand for agricultural products. Guerrilla warfare also plagues the

Peaceful Holiday

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer

While Thanksgiving Day provided a break in the work routine for many area citizens, patient care at Pitt County Memorial Hospital remained constant as the medical center maintained its normal service level.

Dave McRae, vice president of patient service at PCMH, said that while "there might be less elective surgery scheduled on holidays," the overall activity level at the hospital Thursday was "fairly constant."

McRae said that even though the number of employees working on Thanksgiving Day was somewhat less than usual, the hospital's level of service and sophistication is such that activities do not wind down on holidays.

Traditional turkey dinners were served to patients and in the cafeteria, said McRae, who mentioned that employees who worked on Thanksgiving Day were treated to turkey and all the trimmings courtesy of the hospital.

A spokesman at the Pitt County Sheriff's Department reported a "real quiet day" Thursday with "nothing out of the ordinary" occurring.

The county jail, which has a capacity of 84, was occupied by 73 inmates as of this morning, according to a spokesman. "Turkey and the whole works" were served Thursday at the jail, he said.

An armed robbery Thursday night at the Stop-N-Go on South Memorial Drive was the only major activity reported Thursday by the Greenville Police Department. Office personnel at the department joined other city employees in having Thursday and today as holidays from work.

The fire department also had a quiet day Thursday, a spokesman said this morning.

Blinded Man Uses Ears To Guide His Rescuers

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Bloodied and partially blinded from an accident, Kenneth Meggison listened for sirens as he clutched a telephone in an empty house, using the sounds to guide rescuers.

Meggison had stumbled into the unlocked house and fallen asleep in a bed early Thursday after crawling away from his car, wrecked in a ravine.

When the 20-year-old Topeka man woke up several hours later, "Nobody had been there yet, so I decided I better get up and make the call myself," he said.

But there was a major problem. "I didn't have any idea where I was," he said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press from his hospital bed Thursday night.

He called St. Francis Hospital and was patched through to the Shawnee County Sheriff's Department, which had found his empty, wrecked car about 5:30 a.m.

While Meggison and the hospital stayed on the line, Sheriff Ed Esberger turned on the siren of his patrol car and began a block-by-block search of a residential neighborhood near the accident. Deputy Bill Kilia walked up and down the streets.

"When the siren became louder, he'd tell us," Esberger said. "And when it got dimmer he told us."

Meggison also told authorities a "big dog was in the garage. He was barking all the time I was on the phone."

"I guess they started pounding on the garage door. I said that was the house, and they came on in."

They found him sitting on the kitchen floor, clutching the phone.

Meggison was in satisfactory condition Thursday night with corneal abrasions in both eyes, cuts and bruises, said Rosalind Lewis,

Wilson Youth Fatally Beaten

WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Four teen-agers jumped and beat a 14-year-old Wilson boy so severely that the boy died Thursday of his injuries, police said.

Police said Donald Eugene Klein of the Shady Rest Trailer Park was returning home with his brother Edward at about 10:20 p.m. when they were attacked from behind by youths carrying sticks.

The four youths hit the boys on their heads and demanded money. Police said the assailants fled without getting any money.

Donald Klein was rushed to Wilson Memorial Hospital and was later transferred to Pitt County Memorial Hospital, where he died.

His brother, Edwin, was treated for minor injuries.

Police said they were unable to get a good description of the four youths because the attack happened so quickly. They said they believe robbery was the motive for the attack.

Flames Damage Bank

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Flames raged today through the upper floors of a high-rise bank building where Charles Lindbergh's first airplane is on display, and the spectacular fire caused up to $30 million damage to two buildings before being controlled.

The fire burned out of control for 12 hours, destroying the vacant Donaldson's department store in the heart of downtown and burning the top 12 stories of the adjacent 16-floor Northwestern National Bank building.

The aviation pioneer's Curtiss "Jenny" biplane is hanging in the bank's lobby. Assistant Fire Chief Allan Wold said it hadn't been damaged by the flames, but fire officials said the craft sustained smoke and water damage.

About 10 firefighters were treated for minor injuries at nearby Hennepin County Medical Center. Nine of them were released but one fireman suffering from chest pains was admitted to the hospital's coronary care unit "mainly for observation," a hospital spokeswoman said. No serious injuries were reported.

Hooked On Video? Go Off The Wilkins Way

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Back in the 1950s, Stan Freberg came out with a record on which a mainlining television junkie was trying to kick the habit.

"I need a set!" he cried as withdrawal symptoms began to grip him. "Just the video," he sobbed. "I don't need the audio — just the video."

To Joan Anderson Wilkins, it is no laughing matter.

A self-confessed recovered videoholic who spent years in a soap opera stupor, she now campaigns relentlessly to get Americans — especially American children — off the addiction she claims is atrophying their muscles and turning their brains to mush.

"Children weren't born to sit in front of a box," she said with all the fervor of any addict who has been to hell and back. "They were born to move, to be active, to climb trees, to swim."

She said the tube, as a substitute for such childhood activities, carries right over into adult life — often with disastrous results.

"Marriages cannot stay together if people don't talk," she said. "I know of several divorces where the television has been the third party because daddy comes home, has his drink and turns on the news and that's it for the rest of the evening."

Mrs. Wilkins, who lives in Pearl River, N.Y., with a husband and two sons, all of whom have been clean ever since their television set perished eight years ago in a fatal collision with a 3-year-old, now takes her message on the lecture tour and to schools throughout the New York and New Jersey areas.

To reach a national audience, she also has written a book titled "Breaking the TV Habit" in which she details a four-week plan designed to get even the hard-core junkie off the set and back into a life of productivity.

"The first week, you watch as much TV as you like and clock your hours," she said of her method. "The second week, you watch as much as you like, but you rate the programs."

"That jars you out of the alpha state which television puts the brain waves into. Within a minute, the brain waves begin to go into a sleep pattern which is why television never can be a good learning tool."

"Week three, you put all the television sets in your home away except one, and you begin cutting down — no viewing before school or work, no viewing during dinnertime, one night a week of no television at all.

"Week four, you go cold turkey."

Mrs. Wilkins said only after having learned to live "live" — not on tape — can the addict start watching again, "with perspective." She allows the recovered videoholic up to 10 hours a week in front of the set — considerably less than the 40-plus in which the average family now indulges.

Proof that she is not just another exaggerating viewer-with-alarm of the contemporary scene lies in some awesome findings her research unearthed when her method was applied at home by about 500 grammar school students.

Children, she said, show all the classical withdrawal symptoms normally associated with hard drugs when their families agree to go "cold turkey."

"The world seems empty," cried one fifth-grader in the program. "I am bored. I am lonely," lamented another.

"If they're heavily addicted, it's very hard for them," Mrs. Wilkins said. "I would say 20 percent of the children I work with can't break the habit."

"What happens first is there is a great argument and the parents usually give in. If they don't, the child goes to the fridge — the second most instant gratification source — and just pugs out on anything he can find."

If the habit persists, however, Mrs. Wilkins said the classroom teacher soon is aware of it, and given the preponderance of the habit — with children soaking up an average of six hours a day — teachers are forced to go along.

"Children now think in seven-minute time frames because that's the amount of time it takes between commercials," Mrs. Wilkins said. "That's affecting the educational system."

"Teachers must change the subject, the beat, introduce a film strip — do something — at the seven-minute frame to keep the child's attention. Before kindergarten, the average child has watched between 5,000 and 8,000 hours of television, so that little person is completely programmed."

"Teachers are telling me their job is so much more difficult because they have to constantly redirect the child's energies and bring them back into the learning mode. Television demands nothing of children and it demands nothing of adults either."

Even "Sesame Street" — long touted as the purest piece of "children's programming" ever to hit the tube — gets a bad rap from Mrs. Wilkins. She said by "starring" letters of the alphabet in a bid to teach pre-schoolers to read, it has produced a brand new juvenile affliction called "sensory overload."

"We were seeing tons of toddlers who were just spaced out, hyperactive and gone, and there was nothing wrong with them other than that they were watching huge doses of this material coming at them much too fast," she said.

"They couldn't handle it. They were just mouthing 'R' and 'D' and had no idea what was going on."

She said when cases of sensory overload were documented, the producers of "Sesame Street" did slow the pace, but not enough for children whose parents refuse to allow them to watch anything else. Such parents, she said, still are abdicating their responsibilities.

"Parents are deceiving themselves when they think machines are going to do the parenting," she said. "Do you really want to give your child over to a robot?"

"Many parents in suburbia are big on being in the country ... but you go to these areas now and where are the children? There's no hopscotch, no jump-rope. There are no children in the parks. They're home watching TV because mommy's working and that's the only place she feels her children are safe."

"I have documented research of mothers putting a television next to the crib. They say, 'Well, I just thought it would be nice for baby to have a companion.' I think that's child abuse."

Mrs. Wilkins, who confesses to early child-abuse in the days when she was so hooked on soap operas she wouldn't answer the phone while they were on, does not advocate total abolition of the television set.

"Television shines on major events," she said. "It's not all bad. The wedding in England, the Olympics and some of the specials are tremendous. Television is here to stay — I know that. But let's get in control."

It may be a losing battle. Mrs. Wilkins said many adults — like the alcoholic who hides his pint of whiskey in the toilet tank and covers his breath with mints — won't even admit they have a problem.

"A lot of people say, 'I only watch the news,' or 'I only watch PBS — just the good stuff,'" she said. "But it's like peanuts or chocolate chip cookies. You have no idea how many you've consumed."

"Television is like that. Before you know it, it's taken over and invaded communication time, play time, information time, all time."

"Someone said, 'Television is the environment.' I think that's a sad and frightening state of affairs."

Put a patch of luminous tape on light switches to make them easy to find at night.

Linda Gray Vs. Sue Ellen

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The only characteristic Linda Gray shares with Sue Ellen Ewing, her alter ego in "Dallas," is sexy beauty and a talent for flirting.

Linda is in control of her career, her marriage and children as well as her emotions. Sue Ellen is a victim of her emotions and allows the men in her life, husband J.R. particularly, to walk all over her.

"I couldn't live Sue Ellen's life for a moment," Linda said, knocking back a sip of warm sake and a colorful array of sushi in her MGM dressing room.

"She is a total victim of male chauvinism. Women viewers become irate that Sue Ellen's not smart enough to know J.R. and the others are using her."

"There are a lot of women like Sue Ellen out there, women who want nothing in life but a man to take care of them and provide all the security they need."

"Some, of course, coldly marry for money. Generally they pay the price in the long run, which is exactly what happened to Sue Ellen."

"When I began playing the role five years ago, I made a point of hanging out with wealthy, prominent women. It didn't take long to learn they love being pampered and dependent."

"They're content to lead passive lives. They enjoy taking care of their men. Fine, if that's all a woman wants in life."

"Some know about their husbands' infidelities, but won't confront them. They pretend they're unaware of cheating husbands to maintain their affluent lifestyles."

Linda sipped some sake and frowned — a rare expression on her lovely face.

"She thought Sue Ellen was an isolated, one-in-a-million woman and was shocked when she met dozens of real-life Sue Ellens in Texas and elsewhere."

"It amazes me how they discuss Sue Ellen with me, never dreaming they're exactly like her," Linda said.

"Believe me, they are very real, very shallow. If they know different, they hide it by busying themselves with shopping and volunteer work to avoid reality."

Linda and her husband, art director Ed Thrasher, live on a mini-ranch beyond the Los Angeles suburbs in the Santa Clarita valley with offspring Jeff and Kelly. She is more at home in blue jeans than in Sue Ellen's finery.

She is amused that Sue Ellen is popular among Texans who admire her jewelry, wardrobe and lifestyle. She said Dallas is the only city where stangers call her Sue Ellen, not Linda.

"Sue Ellen represents a tiny segment of American women," Linda said. "But most prime time female roles don't accurately reflect any women I know."

"Most prime time women are products of the male environment, victims or subservient creatures with inferior intelligence."

"They're often seen as fools, helpless, the butt of jokes or just plain dumb. That's totally unacceptable. It bothers me because we actresses serve as role models for women viewers."

"Sue Ellen is at one extreme and Joyce Davenport, the lawyer played by Veronica Hamil on 'Hill Street Blues,' is the other extreme, the efficient, cold, driven professional woman."

"At least Joyce reflects some of the changes being made in women's roles. Southern California is ahead of the rest of the country in accepting the changes in women's position in our culture."

"New ideas are cultivated earlier here and we're challenging the system constantly. Heck, I even cut my hair last month, which fired up Sue Ellen a little bit, getting her out of her rut."

Linda, who doesn't play an active role in the feminist movement, is determined to play roles depicting women as intelligent, caring human beings instead of passive females who react only to the whims of males.

If Linda feels so strongly, does she feel guilty about enhancing negative perceptions of women on TV as Sue Ellen?

"Not at all," she said. "I'm bringing awareness of certain behavior patterns in women that aren't all that common on TV. Sue Ellen gives women viewers a different perspective of themselves."

"I'm sure some women are shocked to see in themselves some of Sue Ellen's qualities and will want to change them. I hope so, anyway."

Almost 100 percent of the United States' dry peas and lentils come from the Palouse, a hilly, 4,000-square-mile region that sprawls across the Idaho-Washington border.

Dear Abby

She Goes To Church Alone

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I think you were right when you told that 15-year-old girl to date boys of her own faith. I had parents who tried to tell me that, but I didn't listen. I was raised a Catholic, but I fell madly in love with a Lutheran boy. (He converted to marry me.)

Now 22 years later I go to church alone, and our four children don't go to church at all. When they were youngsters, they went with me. Their father went occasionally, but his heart really wasn't in it and he slowly drifted away from the church. Soon the children stopped going, too.

I go to church because it is a vital part of my life. We never know when love will "hit," and when it does, it becomes the most important thing in your life. I love my husband, but there is something missing because we don't share our prayers and religious faith. Perhaps I shouldn't complain. It only hurts on Sundays.

THINKING OUT LOUD

DEAR THINKING: Yours was a refreshing relief from the many letters stating that dating was a far cry from marrying. However, I still maintain that dating usually leads to marriage. And if religion is an important part of your life, shop only in a store you can buy from.

DEAR ABBY: There are "anonymous" groups for alcoholics, gamblers, overeaters, etc. I propose yet another — Mistresses of Married Men Anonymous (MOMMA).

Only a woman who has suffered the tortures of being in love with a married man can help another woman survive this living hell.

My lover was 44 and separated from his wife when we met. No one ever told me that a 40-year-old woman could fall so hopelessly in love as to make the passions of a teen-ager look like child's play. The late dates, the stolen hours, the afternoon meetings, the phone calls, the broken promises, the fake names, the endless waiting, the tears, the threats, the confrontations — I've been through it all.

But there were some lovely times. The long drives to out-of-the-way places, the mini-honeymoons, the plans for "some day," the little gifts I couldn't say were gifts.

Then came the guilt, the anger, the desperation, the ultimatums — trying to forget with other men, the alcohol to numb the pain, the drugs, the pills, the prayers — the thoughts of self-destruction.

Have I missed anything, girls? I'm far from recovered, but I'm still alive and I intend to stay that way. My heart still skips a beat when I see a car that looks like his, or hear a song that stirs up memories.

I've moved, changed jobs and have an unlisted phone number. I'm determined not to look back. If I sound as though I'm still hurting, I am. But the pain is duller. Sign me...

GOING SANE

DEAR GOING SANE: There is nothing new under the sun. A "Mistresses of Married Men Anonymous" was formed a few years ago, but if there are any active chapters today, I am not aware of them. MOMMAs, if you're alive and kicking, let me hear from you.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter recently had her first baby. I was appalled to learn that her husband had taken pictures of her during her labor, actually delivering a baby boy! Is nothing sacred anymore?

I found it extremely difficult to look at the pictures of my daughter in labor, experiencing intense pain. And the pictures of the baby in various stages of being born were sickening!

Please don't tell me that an unwashed baby, still attached to the mother by an umbilical cord, is a "beautiful sight."

What are your thoughts?

NEW GRANDMA

DEAR NEW GRANDMA: My thoughts are the same as your thoughts. However, if the pictures were taken with the knowledge and approval of the new mama, it's strictly the business of the parents. Now let's hope that when the new baby grows up, he doesn't sue his parents for having violated his privacy.

Couple Celebrates Anniversary

The 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Earl Lloyd of Greenville was celebrated at an open house reception held Sunday evening at the home of their son, Rudy Lloyd.

Hosts and hostesses were their children, Mr. and Mrs.

Earl Lloyd of Roanoke Rapids, Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Lloyd of Fayetteville, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd of Greenville, Mrs. Grace Durham of Wilmington and Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Hinnant of Kenly.

Guests were greeted by Hinnant and the couple's children. Gifts were displayed by grandchildren of the honorees.

Mrs. Lloyd was wearing a red street length dress complemented by a corsage of white carnations and baby's breath.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace trimmed cloth and centered with an arrangement of yellow and bronze pom pons flanked by lighted tapers. Jo Ann-Lloyd poured punch and Francis Lloyd served the three-tiered cake. Assisting were Sheila Bullins, Caprice Youngblood, Beth, Linda and Lisa Lloyd.

Good-byes were said by the hosts and hostesses.

The couple was married Nov. 26, 1932.

Baked Custard

SPICY SPARERIBS
The ribs are simmered until tender before the sauce is added.

2 pounds (about) fresh pork

spareribs, cut in lengthwise single ribs
2 cups water
1 medium onion, peeled
1 clove garlic, peeled and halved
1/4 cup molasses
1/4 cup ketchup
3 tablespoons prepared mustard

In a 3-quart saucepan bring spareribs, water, onion and garlic to a boil; water should barely cover ribs. Simmer, covered, until ribs are so tender they may be easily freed from bone — 40 to 60 minutes. Remove ribs to a foil-lined shallow pan into which they just fit in a single layer. Stir together molasses, ketchup and mustard; spoon over ribs. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until very hot — 20 to 25 minutes. Makes 2 large servings.

Road Repairs Necessary

President Reagan made his expected recommendation that the federal gasoline tax be increased by 5 cents per gallon Tuesday. The funds would be used to pay for repairs to the nation's highways and bridges.

The tax increase, which seems to be popular with both parties in Congress, would raise some $5.5 billion annually to carry out the repairs program.

The president referred to the increase as a users fee and said it was not designed as a jobs program, but rather to carry out much needed repairs to the nation's highway system.

It makes no difference where we place the emphasis, the highway rebuilding program envisioned by the president will involve jobs, some 300,000 of them. The benefits will thus be two fold in providing jobs for construction workers and bringing our older highways up to standard.

The increase in the tax on gasoline should not be unexpected since the cost of fuel has increased so significantly in the past few years, but the tax we pay per gallon has remained the same.

The need for highway repairs is pressing and will become more so in the years ahead. It only makes sense that those who use the highways should pay for them and that can best be done through the gasoline tax. We think there will be little difficulty in getting this proposal through even the lame duck session of Congress.

Duke, Say It Isn't So

To an academic purist nothing is more discouraging than the way big time sports wags the dog in today's world of high pressure to succeed, mostly at football and basketball, and to bring in millions of dollars.

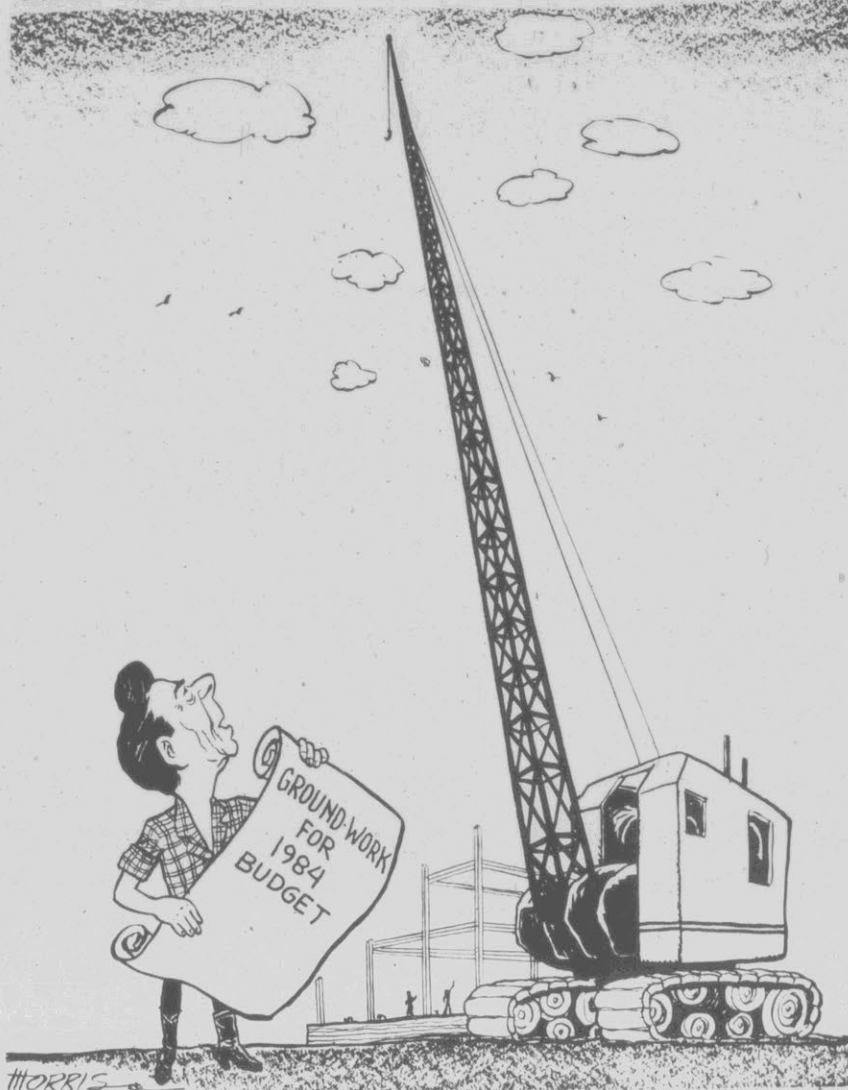

Academia should stand unimpeachable among all our society's institutions as the upholder of right and truth. While student-athletes should strive to win and excel, even that should be secondary to their obtaining the knowledge their institution has to impart and passing it on to future generations as educated people have done for many centuries.

To us, Duke University has long been an institution which upheld such academic principles even when other universities faltered.

Last weekend Duke decided not to renew the contract of its football coach after two years with 6-5 records and after his team had defeated archrival Chapel Hill only hours before. If a university can be a hero, here was one of ours which was suddenly tarnished.

Explaining It All

(President Reagan asked me not to print this column this year to punish the French for supplying oil pipeline equipment to the Soviets. But last week he changed course and lifted the embargo, thus making it possible for me once again to explain what the American holiday "Thanksgiving" is all about.)

One of our most important holidays is Thanksgiving Day, known in France as Le Jour de Merci Donnant.

Le Jour de Merci Donnant was first started by a group of Pilgrims (Pelerins) who fled from l'Angleterre before the McCarran Act to found a colony in the New World (le Nouveau Monde), where they could shoot Indians (les Peaux-Rouges) and eat turkey (dinde) to their hearts' content.

They landed at a place called Plymouth (now a famous voiture Americaine) in a wooden sailing ship called the Mayflower, or Fleur de Mai in 1620. But while the Pelerins were killing the dinde the Peaux-Rouges were killing the Pelerins and there were several hard winters ahead for both of them. The only way the Peaux-Rouges helped the Pelerins was when they taught them to grow corn (maïs). The reason they did this was that they liked corn with their Pelerins.

In 1623, after another harsh year, the Pelerins' crops were so good that they decided to have a celebration and give thanks because more meals was raised by the Pelerins than Pelerins were killed by Peaux-Rouges.

Every year on le Jour de Merci Donnant, parents tell their children an amusing story about the first celebration.

It concerns a brave capitaine named Miles Standish (known in France as Kilometres Deboutish) and a shy young lieutenant named Jean Alden. Both of them were in love with a flower of Plymouth called Priscilla Mullens (no translation). The vieux capitaine said to the jeune lieutenant:

"Go to the damsel Priscilla (allez tres vite chez Priscilla), the loveliest maiden of Plymouth (la plus jolie demoiselle de Plymouth). Say that a blunt old captain, a man not of words but of action (un vieux Fanfan la Tulipe), offers his hand and his heart, the hand and heart of a soldier. Not in these words, you know, but this, in short, is my meaning.

"I am a maker of war (je suis un fabricant de la guerre) and not a maker of phrases. You, bred as a scholar (vous, qui etes pain comme un etudiant), can say it in elegant language, such as you read in your books of the pleadings and woings of lovers, such as you think best adapted to win the heart of this maiden."

Although Jean was fit to be tied (convenable a etre emballe), friendship prevailed over love and he went to his duty. But instead of using elegant language, he blurted out his mission. Priscilla was muted with amazement and sorrow (rendue muette par l'etonnement et la tristesse). (unital)

At length she exclaimed, interrupting the ominous silence: "If the great captain of Plymouth is so very eager to wed me, why does he not come himself and take the trouble to woo me?" (Ou est-il, le vieux Kilometres? Pourquoi ne vient-il pas aupres de moi pour tenter sa chance?)

Jean said that Kilometres Deboutish was very busy and didn't have time for those things. He staggered on, telling her what a wonderful husband Kilometres would make. Finally Priscilla arched her eyebrows and said in a tremulous voice: "Why don't you speak for yourself, Jean?" (Chacun a son gout.)

And so, on the fourth Thursday in November, American families sit down at a large table brimming with tasty dishes, and for the only time during the year eat better than the French do.

No one can deny that le Jour de Merci Donnant is a grande fete and no matter how well fed American families are, they never forget to give thanks to Kilometres Deboutish, who made this great day possible. (c) 1982, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

Challenge

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK BONN, West Germany — Three months before an election crucial to U.S. policy in Europe, the stability of West German politics faces an ominous challenge unique in postwar history and squarely based on the "stab-in-the-back" charge against Foreign Minister Hans Dietrich Genscher by his party's former coalition partner, the Social Democrats (SPD).

When Genscher took his Free Democratic Party (FDP) out of the coalition run by SPD chancellor Helmut Schmidt and joined the new coalition with Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his conservative Christian Democrats (CDU), Genscher was marked for extinction by the SPD. That set up a personal vendetta against Genscher which Franz-Josef Strauss, the powerful leader of Kohl's party in Bavaria, has gleefully joined with his formidable resources.

Strauss wants — and many here think he deserves — Genscher's job as vice chancellor and foreign minister under Kohl after the March election. He could get it only if Genscher's party fails to achieve 5 percent of the vote necessary under the constitution for any party to enter Parliament.

Hence the unique and potentially destabilizing forces in play as Helmut Kohl's party enters the campaign to confirm the conservative chancellor's right to run West Germany by popular vote, following the parliamentary coup d'etat of Oct. 1. In the background is the new and much-feared hyper-liberal Green Party, which established a parliamentary foothold in several state elections earlier this year.

Kohl's senior advisers say privately that the chances are not much greater than 20 percent that the Greens, an anti-establishment party that embodies organized chaos and has no regular leadership, can gain the 5 percent of the national vote necessary to sit in the Bundestag (Parliament).

Nevertheless, the personal vendettas against Genscher being waged with angry intensity by both Schmidt and Strauss are exploiting the "stab-in-the-back" charge. Whether 20 percent chance or more, if the Greens get a toehold in the Bundestag, Genscher's party does not, and the conservatives fail to reach an absolute majority, the result could be a coalition between the socialists and the Greens. That is the spectre that looms over the most critical election here in the life of the federal republic.

Such a left-wing coalition would mean disaster for next summer's deployment of modern nuclear weapons on European soil. With Schmidt having resigned his leadership of the Socialist Party, the SPD Left is riding high. The Greens started as environmentalist groupies but now include the strongest elements of the "peace movement" dedicated to blocking deployment of the new missiles and making "peace" with Moscow.

Chancellor Kohl has moved rapidly and skillfully to consolidate his new power. Perceived by some casual critics the past decade as a victim of "provincialism" who lacked the stature of a Schmidt or a Strauss, Kohl is exhibiting a subtle shrewdness and a zest for making tough decisions. He surprised Cabinet colleagues by speedily ordering a huge cut in the social-services budget of around $2 billion. He acted fast in approving expenditures for NATO that Schmidt's coalition was prepared to drop. "I would say," U.S. ambassador Arthur Burns told a friend, "That Helmut Kohl looks like a prince."

Solitary Position

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR RALEIGH — When Alice Wynne Gatsis sits as a member of the Commission on the Needs of Women, she is the proverbial black sheep, sore thumb and lone ranger all rolled into one. If ever anyone stood out from the membership of a committee, it is Mrs. Gatsis of Rocky Mount.

have both sides represented. Both sides the commission has gotten, although Mrs. Gatsis says she hasn't won a fight yet. "I've been treated very courteously by the committee. Everyone has respected my opinion," she said in an interview. Respect party. Mrs. Woodard began laughing.

Mrs. Gatsis says there are two ways to approach women's issues. North Carolina is currently an "equal protection" state which means the law should protect everyone equally while making adjustments for the different roles of the sexes. The members of the committee want to make the state an "equal rights" state, she says, which leads to "total neutering of the law to the great detriment of women."

On the committee, "all of the legislation and all that comes through there is concerned by one viewpoint only and that is the viewpoint of equal rights. The committee has never once considered any piece of legislation from the point of view of equal protection," she says.

While many opponents of ERA say they favor a comprehensive sweep of state law to assure equal rights are not denied to women, Mrs. Gatsis stands for what we've got right now. So, when the child support legislation is discussed, she is the only voice of opposition. She says that if a parent responsibility law hadn't been neutered last year, we wouldn't have the child support collection problems we now have.

Does she ever get lonely, one conservative on a liberal committee? No, "It's always nice to have lots of people who agree with you... but we have a very big statewide grassroots organization... There are thousands of people who share my position."

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

for her opinion means the other legislators have listened — but little more. During discussion of a proposal to toughen child support laws, Mrs. Gatsis launched into an eloquent recitation of President James Madison and asked the committee why it was necessary to rush more laws onto the books. When she finished the room was silent for several seconds. Then the legislators moved to another matter as though she'd never said a word. A few hours later, Mrs. Gatsis remarked on a husband's right to pro-

To the editor: Just a passing thought as we've celebrated the wonderful Thanksgiving tradition which causes us to travel many miles to be with those we love to celebrate our survival on this planet and our abundance as a nation.

Let us be thankful that we are not among the approximately 41,000 persons who die each day as a result of malnutrition or starvation. Let us be thankful that we do not live in a country, like Haiti, for example, where one out of every 10 children die before they reach the age of one. In Mexico, our neighbor to the south, one of every 20 children dies before reaching age one.

We need to celebrate our Thanksgiving and we need to do it in style, but let us not forget that we have the duty as world citizens to educate ourselves about hunger and to actually do something about it. Here are some suggestions: Find out more about hunger so that you can speak intelligently on the problem. Make a commitment to yourself that you will do your part in alleviating the problem. Once you've become more educated about hunger — locally and on a world scale — then share that knowledge with someone who hasn't taken the initiative to become informed.

The Give And Take On Interest

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst NEW YORK (AP) — The machinery is being erected, according to a source, that would let that old codger, Uncle Sam, "pick pockets" and "loot your savings account" and force you to give him "a mandatory interest-free loan."

In doing so, says the source, he will intrude into your life, probably embarrass you before neighbors, compel your bank to handle his records, force it to raise customer service charges and even lower the interest it pays to you.

The source of this is a speech prepared by the American Bankers Association for use before bank customers, civic clubs and various citizens' groups. In a trial run, said Dan Buser of the ABA, it produced a standing ovation.

It is hardly necessary to say that bankers are against the law — the law, that is, that requires all institutions that make interest or dividend payments to withhold 10 percent of such earnings and forward them to the Treasury.

Americans who earn interest or dividends will lose a lot of money," says the ABA. A "lot of money," it says, is about $3 billion.

On the other hand, Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who promoted the bill as a contribution to lower budget deficits, figures it will take in $4.5 billion — in part by giving government earlier use of the money, and then by reducing the amount lost when recipients fail to pay taxes on interest and dividends earned.

In spite of their angry opposition, the ABA does feel the law contributes in a couple of ways.

Incredibly, Uncle Sam himself was failing to report to the Internal Revenue Service the interest customers earned on Treasury bills. Now he must make such reports. So too must banks that sell $100,000 certificates of deposits, who heretofore were not required to report the amount earned by such customers.

But in general, the ABA says hogwash. It claims proponents of the new law simply needed a number to plug into their matrix and thought $4.5 billion was about the right amount. That number, it suggests, isn't even in the ballpark.

Of 95 percent who file returns on which interest or dividend income is listed, says Buser, 85 percent receive refunds. T hofore, he says, Uncle Sam will borrow money tax-free and then have to give it back in tax refunds.

The loss to the private sector might be much larger than immediately apparent.

Those who have 10 percent of dividend or interest income withheld also stand to lose the compounding effect of this money. The ABA claims the total cost to savers and investors will be close to $3 billion. And banks and brokers stand to lose because of costs in setting up and administering the paperwork.

There may be additional costs, according to the masterfully constructed ABA speech, which bankers and others are being encouraged to adapt for their own audiences. It cites this situation:

"People who are under 64 with a tax liability of $600, or $1,000 on a joint return, or who are over 65 with a tax liability of $1,500, or $2,500 on a joint return, may apply for exemption from withholding.

"But the procedure for getting an exemption brings up a major privacy concern. To qualify for an exemption, you have to go to your bank and hand the teller a form on which you have written your tax liability.

"How would you like your bank teller, who may be your neighbor or a member of your church, to see how much tax you pay? Isn't that a personal matter?"

All this leads up to a conclusion: A real brouhaha, or more alliteratively, a helluva hullabaloo, is brewing. Brokerage houses, commercial banks and savings banks have decided they're going to seek repeal of the law.

They have their selfish reasons for doing so, of course, but Congress can withstand assaults from banks and brokers. The institutions know, however, that Congress has to listen to people, so they concentrate on the human rather than institutional impact.

Which explains this kicker to the ABA's canned speech: "The government wants a piece of your savings. Give Congress a piece of your mind instead." You'll be hearing it often.

Other Editors Say Dream Takes Flight

(Hickory Daily Record) It was a dream. Under different circumstances, with a lucky break here and there, the dream may have materialized. But it didn't.

The dream of tapping one of earth's natural resources — the wind — had faded like a vapor. The $29 million experimental windmill atop Howard's Knob at Boone is for sale.

Designed by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and built by General Electric, the windmill was a hope of harnessing the wind as an energy source. But it was not to be. The windmill could have supplied power to 500 homes, but a faulty part disabled the unit a few months after it was dedicated. It generated power for only 330 hours of the 29,112-hour project.

There were other problems. The people around the Knob complained. When the windmill operated, it was noisy and disruptive to a community accustomed to the quietness of the mountaintop living. They also complained that the wind-driven generator interfered with television reception. It is sad to see the failure of a project which offered such hope in an era of exorbitant energy costs. Much was learned from the experiment. We hope that the dream will not be abandoned, but revised, fined tuned and dreamed again in another place, another time.

In The Area

Board Reschedules Meeting

The Pitt County Board of Social Services meeting, which would normally be held Monday, has been rescheduled for Dec. 2 at noon at the Three Steers Restaurant on Memorial Drive. The meeting is open to the public.

Attended Epilepsy Meeting

The Coastal Plains Chapter of the Epilepsy Association of North Carolina was represented by three of its members at the fourth quarterly board meeting in Charlotte, EANC headquarters.

Those attending were Cathy Jessen, president; Louise Moore, secretary-treasurer, and Scott Luce, president, attended. The next meeting will be hosted by the Raleigh Chapter in February.

For more information about epilepsy or the chapter, write P.O. Box 7121, Greenville, or call 758-6487 (evenings).

Two Injured In Wreck

William Law Woolfolk of 401 Library St. and a passenger in the car he was driving were reported injured in a 4:20 p.m. collision Thursday on Fourth Street, 100 feet west of the Elm Street intersection.

Police investigators said the Woolfolk car swirled and collided with a tree after a front tire on the vehicle apparently went flat. Officers estimated damage to the car at $3,000.

Greenville Man Arrested

Greenville police Thursday arrested James Gerome Davis, 22, of 1108 Legion St. on charges of breaking and entering after officers discovered a man inside South Greenville School.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers, responding to an alarm from the school on Howell Street about 2:15 a.m., arrived at the scene and were almost at a door to the building when Davis stepped outside. He was taken into custody and placed under a $1,000 bond pending a court hearing in the case.

Blast In Beirut Kills 12, Hurts 15

By The Associated Press
French, Italian and Lebanese troopers recovered 12 bodies from the rubble of a Beirut apartment building devastated by a blast that also left 15 people seriously injured, including a woman and her six children, police said today.

Police said the explosion late Thursday in the low-income Moslem neighborhood of Chiyah was caused by a 66-pound dynamite charge detonated by remote control. Officials said they had no clues on who was responsible.

In Cairo, authoritative Arab sources said a high-ranking Palestine Liberation Organization official arrived in the Egyptian capital Thursday and met with Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly.

The sources identified the envoy as Abu-Zaim, the code name for Atallah Mohammed Atallah, director of PLO military intelligence and overseer of about 8,000 Palestinian guerrillas dispersed in Arab countries following their evacuation from Beirut in late August and September.

Abu-Zaim's meetings with Egyptian officials would include talks on ways of opening a dialogue between the Palestinians and the United States on the future of the Palestinians, the sources said.

PLO chairman Yasser Arafat had to defend himself from strong criticism from hard-line Palestinian factions Thursday at a meeting of the PLO Central Council in Damascus, Syria, conference sources said.

Arafat was criticized because of his approaches to Egypt and Jordan, two countries that many Palestinian leaders perceive as traitors because of their moderate positions, officials at the conference said.

Arafat is likely to ask the 55-man council to give him a vote of confidence to pursue his diplomatic initiatives, the officials said.

In Tel Aviv, meanwhile, a poll published today by The Jerusalem Post showed that Israeli public opinion has hardened against President Reagan's Middle East peace plan.

Forty-eight percent of 1,255 Israelis interviewed rejected the plan in late October, compared with 38.6 percent a month before, the Modi'in Ezrahi Research Company said.

Reagan's plan calls for full autonomy for the Palestinians under Jordanian supervision, a freeze on Jewish settlements in the occupied areas and negotiations on the future of Jerusalem.

Police said units of the French and Italian contingents serving in Beirut's multinational peacekeeping force cordoned off the scene of the blast until the early hours of today. U.S. Marines of the 4,000-strong international force were not involved in the operation, police said.

Lebanese officials said U.S. envoys Philip C. Habib and Morris Draper were to report to the Lebanese government in the next 48 hours on the responses they received from Syria and Israel on a proposal for a partial and simultaneous withdrawal from Lebanon.

Habib is proposing a nine-mile pullback of Israeli and Syrian troops in Lebanon's central mountains by the end of the year as a first step toward a total and simultaneous withdrawal in a next stage, the officials said.

Habib was to meet today in Amman with King Hussein of Jordan to discuss progress of U.S. efforts to get withdrawal talks between Lebanon and Israel started, the official Jordanian news agency Petra said.

The PLO's official news agency Wafa said in a report distributed by its head office in Nicosia, Cyprus, that the Lebanese National Resistance Front was responsible for two attacks on Israeli patrols in Lebanon's southern port cities of Sidon and Tyre Wednesday and Thursday. The agency did not elaborate.

The Israeli military press center in Baabda, near Beirut, said no one was hurt in the Sidon gunfire attack on an Israeli border patrol Wednesday, and that it had no information on Lebanon's state radio report of an alleged one-hour shootout between an Israeli patrol and unknown assailants near Tyre on Thursday.

Israeli troops invaded Lebanon June 6 to force out the PLO, and are stationed in the central and southern parts of the country. The Syrians, who entered Lebanon on an Arab League peacekeeping mandate following Lebanon's 1975-75 civil war, are based in northern and eastern Lebanon.

Egyptian officials who asked not to be identified said Abu-Zaim's visit to Cairo was aimed at being briefed on the talks between Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak and visiting President Francois Mitterrand of France, as well as to discuss how the PLO can enter into a dialogue with the United States to pave the way for a Palestinian settlement with Israel.

Rome Court OKs Suspect's Arrest

ROME (AP) — Police had "sufficient evidence" to justify the arrest of a Bulgarian airline official and to charge him with being part of a conspiracy in the shooting of Pope John Paul II, an Italian magistrate said today.

The Bulgarian Embassy has denounced the arrest of 35-year-old Ivanov Sergia Antonov, the airline's Rome station chief, as "illegal and unfounded" and added that its government had no involvement in the assassination attempt last year.

Magistrate Ilario Martella issued a statement today to rebut the embassy's allegation that Antonov was arrested improperly.

But he added he knew of "no plots by international groups. Any such report at the moment is without foundation."

Martella apparently was referring to press speculation that Mehmet Ali Agca, who shot the pope in St. Peter's Square on May 13, 1981, was aided by groups ranging from Turkish rightists to the Bulgarian secret police.

Police allege that Antonov, who was arrested Thursday, is a fourth conspirator in a plot to assassinate John Paul.

The Italian news agency AGI reported Thursday that Antonov booked Agca into Pension Isa, a small hotel near the Vatican, and then drove him to St. Peter's Square on the day of the attack.

Police sources claimed Antonov played a "very active" role and helped Agca in a "material way," but would not give details.

Antonov, as head of the Balkan Airlines office at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport, was able to go to and from parked airliners at will, and could avoid passport control at the official border.

Bulgaria expressed "indignation for the unfounded and illegal arrest" of Antonov and denounced the charges as "absurd and unfounded." The Bulgarian Embassy in Rome said Antonov's arrest was "a new attempt to damage the traditionally good relations" among Bulgaria, Italy and the Vatican.

Agca has always maintained he had no accomplices. He is serving a life sentence in an Italian prison.

Police said Agca had escaped from a Turkish prison in 1979, traveled throughout Europe using false passports and made several trips to Bulgaria before he tried to kill the pope. Police do not know how he smuggled his Browning pistol into Italy.

Giuseppe Balsamo, a police spokesman, said Antonov was arrested Thursday at the downtown Balkan Tourist Office, a travel agency for Balkan airlines. The Bulgarian official, who has been living in Rome for about four years, was taken to a jail cell at police headquarters for questioning, Balsamo said.

Antonov was charged with "complicity" in the attempted assassination of the pontiff, Balsamo said.

Various news agencies have long speculated there could be a Bulgarian connection in the attempted killing of the pope, but all suspects arrested by police until now have been Turkish.

NBC News has suggested that the papal shooting was arranged by the Bulgarian secret police, and that the Soviet KGB intelligence service was aware of the alleged scheme.

The Reader's Digest carried an article by Claire Sterling in September charging the Soviet Union had used the Bulgarian secret service as a buffer in a Communist plot. It said Agca got his false papers and gun in Bulgaria.

Omar Bagci, a Turkish national, was arrested in Switzerland and extradited to Italy earlier this year. Bagci allegedly told Italian police that he had furnished Agca with the pistol used in the assassination attempt, according to Italian press reports.

Another Turkish national, Musar Cedar Celebi, was arrested last month in West Germany and is awaiting extradition to Italy in connection with the assassination attempt.

A fourth Turk, Omer Ay, is implicated by Italian authorities in the case. He was arrested in West Germany and extradited to Turkey, where he is facing charges of murdering a politician.

Navy May Use Nuclear-Powered Sub To Help Hurricane Victims

HONOLULU (AP) — The Navy's nuclear-powered attack submarine Indianapolis stood by at Pearl Harbor today, awaiting a decision on whether it might be used to supply power to hurricane-ravaged Kauai Island.

"This is all very iffy right now. We really don't want to get anyone's hopes up and then not be able to come through," said Lt. Cmdr. Terrence A. Forrester, U.S. Pacific Fleet spokesman. A decision might be made today, he said.

The western Hawaiian island has been without power since Tuesday, when Hurricane Iwa struck with winds up to 110 mph. The lack of electricity also meant water pumps haven't worked. Six portable generators were flown to the island Thursday night to provide power for some of the 39,000 residents.

Residents of Kauai and Oahu continued their cleanup Thursday, many taking time out for a Thanksgiving meal cooked over charcoal fires or portable gas stoves, some using food in danger of spoiling without refrigeration.

Parts of Oahu, the state's most populous island, were also without water. Tanker trucks were used to replenish supplies as officials asked citizens to conserve.

If the submarine is used, it would be moored in Nawiliwili Harbor with transmission lines going ashore to be plugged into the Kauai Electric Co. grid, Forrester said.

"But there are any number of things that have to be resolved, such as: Where do we plug in? Can they use the power we send them? Can we change our electrical power into something they can use? And we also have to answer safety questions," Forrester said.

A team of divers has gone to the island to survey the harbor to see if the sub could make it in safely. More than a dozen boats sank in the harbor during the storm.

Kauai Civil Defense Director Cayetano "Sonny" Gerardo said he and Navy officials met Thursday to discuss the possibility that the Navy might be able to provide a ship to help Kauai.

"The Civil Defense people said they needed a ship that could generate 1,500 kilowatts of power and we looked around and found the Indianapolis was about the only one around that could," Forrester said.

Gerardo said using the Navy sub may not solve

Kauai's electrical needs because much of the problem involved downed transmission lines throughout the islands. However, he said the sub could provide service to some areas.

Public Hearing

The City Council will hold a public hearing at its regular December meeting for citizens to comment on proposed changes to the city's animal control laws.

Proposed amendments will regulate the keeping of chickens and other fowl within the city limits. If adopted, the new regulations will allow for the keeping of four chickens, ducks, pigeons, doves, or other fowl on a single lot in the city, provided the fowl do not become a nuisance or health hazard.

The keeping of more than four fowl will be subject to certain stipulations established by the ordinance. Specifically, fowl will not be permitted to run at large, a chicken coop of suitable construction and size for the number of fowl housed must be maintained, and the chicken house must be thoroughly cleaned at least twice each week.

The ordinance will also prohibit the placement of a chicken house nearer than 175 feet from any dwelling, hospital, eating establishment, or school.

The council will meet on Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in the third floor council chambers at city hall.

"Lame Duck"

While most ducks are flying south, some are flying to Washington for a special session of Congress. They are the "lame ducks" — the members of Congress not re-elected earlier this month and whose terms end in January. In the 18th century, a "lame duck" was part of the Wall Street menagerie, along with the bull and the bear. He was a fellow who could not meet his financial obligations. A congressional "lame duck" also has limited resources and influence, because everyone knows he will soon have to leave his post. Over the years, the term has been expanded to include all political officials who are serving out their time after having been defeated at the polls.

DO YOU KNOW — Which Constitutional Amendment eliminated regular "lame duck" sessions of Congress?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Besides cranberries, the Concord grape and the blueberry are the only other native North American fruits.

African Talks Collapse After Spat Over Chad

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP)— African heads of state called off an Organization of African Unity summit two days after its scheduled opening because they failed to reach an agreement over who should represent Chad at the meeting.

OAU spokesman Peter Onu announced Thursday that "it has not been possible to hold the 19th summit because of a lack of a quorum." He said 30 of 51 member delegations were represented — four short of a two-thirds quorum under OAU rules.

The summit's collapse was the second in three months, and prevented Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy from automatically becoming the OAU's chairman for the next year.

Onu said Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi, OAU chairman since the 1981 summit, would "continue to serve in that capacity."

The summit was scheduled to open Tuesday. But 17 predominantly pro-Western countries said they would not participate after Khadafy refused to seat new Chadian President Hissene Habre.

Habre's presidency is recognized by the OAU majority. But Libya, Ethiopia and Mozambique, among others, back ousted Chadian President Goukouni Oueddei, who has set up an exile government near the Libyan border and is fighting Habre's forces.

In an angry speech Thursday, Khadafy blamed the United States, France and other Western nations for disrupting the summit. "The United States and France and their lackeys wanted to humiliate Libya," he said. "But Libya doesn't feel humiliated. If we had put aside our principles about Chad ... the countries that walked out would be here."

Before the summit was called off Thursday, several delegations made a last-minute effort to reach a compromise agreement whereby Habre's claim to the leadership of Chad would be recognized on condition that he "voluntarily" stay away from the summit.

But Habre announced through his foreign minister, Idriss Miskine, that he "categorically rejected" the proposal because it illegally deprived the government of Chad of its rightful seat at the summit.

Libya, Ethiopia, Mozambique and Madagascar, on the other hand, formally withdrew their acceptance of the compromise proposal under which Habre would have received OAU recognition, Onu said.

In a final, four-hour meeting Thursday, the OAU named a 12-nation "contact group" to "make another attempt to hold the 19th summit," Onu said. No date or place was set.

The group, chaired by Arap Moi, would begin work immediately to seek a solution to the split between African nations that has paralyzed the OAU for nearly a year, the spokesman said.

Goukouni was president of Chad until last June, when he was ousted by Habre's forces at the climax of a civil war that has ravaged the landlocked African nation for nearly two decades.

Shultz Holds Talk On Namibia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George Shultz headed into a meeting today with South African Foreign Minister Pik Botha intent on seeking a formula for achieving black majority rule and independence in the South African-controlled territory of Namibia.

U.S. officials said Shultz was looking for signs of South African flexibility in ending what has become an impasse in the five-year international negotiating effort to make Africa's last colony independent.

South Africa, with strong American support, insists it will not relinquish control over Namibia, also known as South-West Africa, if there is not a concurrent agreement leading to the withdrawal of the estimated 20,000 Cuban forces from Angola, Namibia's northern neighbor.

Vice President George Bush told African leaders during his recent seven-nation tour of the continent that the United States is committed to maintaining the link between the Angolan and Namibian issues.

That linkage has been widely criticized by black African leaders, who argue that Namibia should be granted independence irrespective of the Cuban troop presence in Angola.

Black African officials contend the United States and South Africa have delayed achievement of independence in Namibia by linking that objective to the withdrawal of Cuban troops.

South Africa has launched repeated military raids into Angola in an attempt to destroy bases maintained there by the South-West Africa People's Organization, Namibia's main guerrilla group.

U.S. officials said they hope South Africa will break the current impasse by making a unilateral gesture toward Angola, such as a cease-fire or a partial withdrawal of forces from Angola.

They said that during Botha's visit here, administration officials planned to explore his thinking on that possibility.

"We'll be planting seeds," one official said.

He added that Shultz also planned to make clear to Botha the administration's opposition to any move by South Africa to impose a settlement in Namibia by unilaterally declaring Namibia's independence and installing a pro-South African government there.

"The bottom line for the United States has to be an internationally acceptable settlement for Namibia," the official said.

The U.S. objective in pursuing a negotiated settlement is to "remove Namibia as a source of contention in our relations with the rest of Africa," he said.

The current central authority in Namibia is the South African-backed Democratic Turnhalle Alliance, which has been installed as a provisional government.

Fulfilling the wishes of the vast, sparsely-populated, mineral-rich South African territory is but a small part of what has become an extraordinarily complex negotiating process.

The United States has been joined in the effort by four other Western allies. They have been attempting to implement a U.N. independence plan and to enlist the cooperation of interested parties ranging from black African front line states to the Soviet Union.

Emily Kennedy Reports Theft

NEW YORK (AP) — Three teen-agers snatched the purse of Emily Kennedy, wife of Robert F. Kennedy Jr., as she walked on Fifth Avenue, but she refuses to press charges, police say.

Mrs. Kennedy, a 25-year-old Legal Aid Society lawyer, reportedly has ignored pleas by police and her husband, a prosecutor in the office of the Manhattan district attorney, in her refusal to press charges.

Police said Thursday that Mrs. Kennedy had been walking on Fifth Avenue toward her home on East 88th Street around 11 p.m. Wednesday when three youths ran past and one snatched her purse.

A taxicab driver saw the incident, chased and captured the youths and held them until police arrived. He retrieved Mrs. Kennedy's purse, which contained $120, and gave it to her.

"The woman told officers she didn't want to pursue the matter. She wasn't injured; she got her purse back, and she apparently was satisfied with that," one policeman said Thursday.

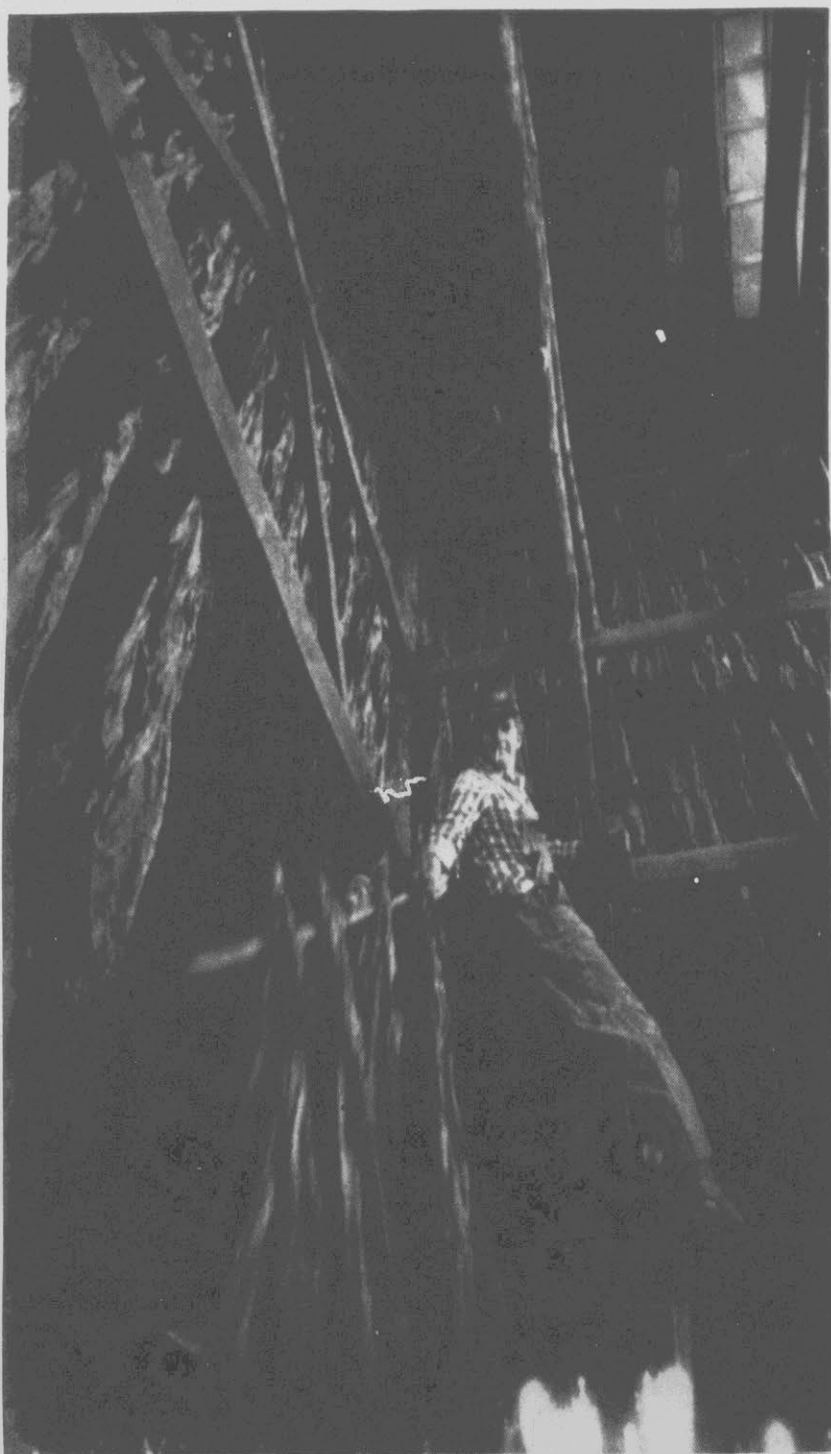

Officers took the names and addresses of three boys, ages 14 to 15, and let them go.

After Mrs. Kennedy got home, she telephoned the precinct police office and reported the incident but still did not press charges, police said.

"We have to call her again and speak to her to see if she wants to go ahead with it," a police officer said.

The Kennedy couple could not be reached as a New York telephone operator said she had no listing for them.

Poisoned Pollen Stolen From Miami Factory

MIAMI (AP) — A poisoned batch of honeybee pollen has been stolen from a small pollen factory, and health officials are warning that the substance may turn up for sale in local health food stores.

Dade County Health Department Director Richard A. Morgan urged consumers and health store owners on Wednesday to make sure recently purchased pollen "came from a reputable source."

A poisoned 6-pound batch used to kill rats was stolen last week along with 8,000 pounds of untainted pollen worth approximately $60,000 from Dr. Felix Murat's tiny pollen factory here.

The local expert on bees and pollen had mixed 5 grams of an extremely potent poison with 6 pounds of pollen, officials said. The lethal mixture was kept in a glass jar that looked no different from the untainted bottles of pollen.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

I've always been led to believe that the key to any successful holiday celebration is good planning and hard work, but after planning several feast days and participating in a whole lot more, I can unequivocally state that good planning and hard work are only marginal defenses against disaster. Far more important to the success of one of these functions is the element of luck.

Now a few of the women who have just finished tidying up the detritus of yesterday's gala are already nodding their heads. Yes, it was bad luck that the sportscasters didn't follow the erstwhile example of the pros and go on strike. And yes, it was good luck that the wives didn't either when their husbands left their plates on the table and clustered in front of the TV set like a display of stuffed turkeys in Kroger's Delicatessen.

But football, inimical as it is to social intercourse, in an isolated curse. I'm more concerned with the way luck affects proceedings in general. In my neck of the woods, for instance, sheer luck stands between introducing a stately browned bird to the table and getting stuck with 18 pounds of medium rare poultry during a power failure. In a family that doesn't expect the hostess to put on the entire feed, sheer luck also often determines whether the members sit down to a well-balanced meal or to 15 desserts and three Jello salads.

Participants in family gatherings are naturally more inclined to admit the roll luck plays than are participants in celebrations confined to the nuclear family. Not only have extended family members experienced or at least feared the possibility of having to play their round cakes at the end of a long row of blue ribbon Bundt pan specials, but they've had to anticipate the seating arrangements. Will they end up next to a favorite cousin or a grunting teenager?

Luck alone or in combination with some family footwork determines whether one lands beside an ordinary run-of-the-mill relative or a family character like Aunt Myrna, who complains endlessly that nothing tastes right to her sensitive palate, which is so afflicted that she is forced to eat like a bird (a condor, some of her less sympathetic relatives assert).

One might luck up and sit beside Aunt Billie, who air conditions her hog pens and who once tried chicken farming but soon gave it up in disgust, transporting her entire flock loose in her stationwagon as a gift to a neighbor. Then again, one might draw an afternoon with Uncle Guthrie, who attempts to conceal his lack of social ease with tasteless jokes.

In any case, most of us, no matter with whom we share our Thanksgiving meal, tend to underestimate our dependence on luck. We are thankful but smug. We are wonderful, deserving people who have earned the opportunity to sit down to a table laden with glorious food that will hopefully stay warm until the lay preacher of the family reminds us of the purpose of our gathering.

I guess I've given more thought than usual to luck this Thanksgiving because of the accounts I've read recently of the new Hoovervilles cropping up across the Sunbelt. The inhabitants of these tents and cardboard boxes are honest, deserving people, too, but after running through their unemployment and losing their homes, they're wondering why we've got all the luck and they don't.

RECEIVES BANNER ... Janet Rodgers, left, Mary Koonce, center, and Carolyn Ipock, members of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc., display a banner that was presented to the chapter in recognition of its recent chartering. The ceremony took place aboard the battleship USS North Carolina memorial in Wilmington.

Soviets Allowed Debate

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Michael Hazen, a professor at Wake Forest University, says debates between Soviet and American students help Americans learn more about the Soviets and the Soviets to learn more about us.

Hazen and three exchange students traveled to the Soviet Union for a two-week visit this fall as part of an exchange program that has been going on for 10 years between the Student Council of the Soviet Union and the Committee on International Discussion and Debate of the Speech Communication Association of America.

Hazen and the students — Margaret Niles of Stanford University, Bill Skundrich of the University of Pittsburgh and John Tokolish from the office of Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan of New York — were permitted to say anything they wanted during their speeches.

They talked about freedoms guaranteed to Americans, and criticized the Soviet Union for its invasion of Afghanistan, violations of the Helsinki Accords on Human Rights and recent actions against Solidarity in Poland.

Hazen said the students got a tough response from the Soviets.

"They'd turn around and criticize (the United States) for unemployment, for our arms buildup and they'd criticize the media here by saying it is controlled by big business.

"The (Soviet students) said that the Soviets were invited into Afghanistan to help that country fight bandits ... and that the U.S. had violated the Helsinki accords by putting restrictions on trade," he said.

Hazen said he still thinks the debates are beneficial. "You just hope you're going to say something that will lodge in someone's mind and have an effect on them in the future.

"Looking at some of the young people, you could see their struggle. They had very human feelings, and then you'd see it turn around. And in five or 10 years, these people will be making Soviet policy."

Attended Meeting

Members of the Eastern Carolina Chapter of Sweet Adelines Inc. recently attended the fall meeting of Region 14 in Wilmington.

A local quartet, Carolina Chord-Jills, participated in the novice quartet competition. Several of the chapter members sang the 90-member regional Star Chorus, which performed aboard the battleship USS North Carolina.

The Eastern Carolina Chapter received a banner from Bev Geier, regional international extension representative, in recognition of the chapter's recent chartering.

Sweet Adelines Inc. is a non-profit organization of women who sing four-part harmony, barbershop style. The chapter meets every Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Baptist Church.

Cocaine Cache Found

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Police say they found cocaine valued at $35 million, one of the largest caches ever seized in Beverly Hills, while investigating a charred drug-making lab.

Investigators said Wednesday they retrieved 34½ pounds of cocaine and $137,000 in cash from a modest, single-story stucco house that was heavily damaged Tuesday in an explosion and fire.

Lt. Lee Miles said the drug had a street value of $35 million.

Paul Tassara, 33, and Francisco Castillo, 42, were arrested Tuesday with a 14-year-old boy shortly after they fled the house. Police did not identify the boy because of his age.

The adults were jailed in lieu of $5 million bail. Arraignment has been scheduled Monday in Beverly Hills Municipal Court, Miles said. The juvenile was taken to East Lake Juvenile Hall, he said.

Police said all three were booked for investigation of possessing cocaine, possessing cocaine for sale and transporting cocaine.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

HOW JESUS VIEWED SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS

JESUS STERNLY REBUKED SELF-RIGHTEOUSNESS WHENEVER HE CAME UPON IT. THE BOASTFUL PHARISEE WHO THANKED GOD FOR MAKING HIM BETTER THAN "COMMON MEN" WAS A CASE IN POINT. ACTUALLY, THE SINNING PUBLICAN WHO ASKED FOR MERCY WAS MORE BLESSED IN GOD'S SIGHT THAN THE PHARISEE. (LUKE 18:13) LIKE THE PUBLICAN, THE HUMBLE, SELF-EFFACING PETITIONER FOR GOD'S GRACE RECEIVES A GREATER REWARD THAN THE SELF-IMPORTANT PHARISEES OF THE WORLD.

Bishops Urge Boost For Women

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Major strides were taken by Roman Catholic bishops last week toward a greater role for women in the church and for new concord with Protestants on Bible texts for Sunday worship.

While most attention focused on the bishops' stance against nuclear weapons, the meeting also included worries about declining candidates for the priesthood, television brutality and a slap at current economic policies.

In discussing a contemplated review of possible ordination of women to the diaconate, a step generally leading to priesthood, several bishops spoke favorably of women being ordained.

Bishop Michael McAuiliffe of Jefferson City, Mo., head of a committee on women, said progress had been made in advancing their cause, but he added:

"The exclusion of women from ordination is, by that very fact, an exclusion of women from all the key posts of authority in the church." He said "significant levels of the church's ministry" could be opened to women, with Scripture providing some basis for their ordination as deacons, a part of holy orders.

Deacons can preach, officiate at marriages and funerals and serve various other ministerial roles, but only priests may preside at celebration of Holy Communion.

In a major ecumenical advance at the grass-roots level, the bishops moved toward coordinating with Protestants the themes of weekly worship in local churches.

The bishops approved for three-year trial use at selected sites an ecumenical adaptation of the lectionary, the yearly schedule of Bible readings used in Sunday worship and on which sermons usually are based.

The adaptation was worked out by a joint committee on Common Texts, including both Roman Catholics and representatives of most mainline Protestant denominations except Baptists.

Bishop John S. Cummins of Oakland, Calif., head of the bishops' liturgy committee, said the development involving a broad spectrum of churches would have a basic and practical ecumenical impact.

Protestants involved include Lutherans, Presbyterians, United Methodists, Episcopalians, Disciples of Christ, United Church of Christ and both the Anglican Church and United Church of Canada.

Some already use the common lectionary — a harmonized cycle of Scripture lessons — and the bishops' step here, subject to Vatican approval, would increasingly involve Catholics.

The common texts committee previously had worked out joint texts for the Lord's prayer, the creeds and various canticles and prayers used in worship.

A committee report was issued, calling "on our nations' leaders to reject current policies which attempt to solve America's economic ills at the expense of the poor and the unemployed."

The report was drawn up by a social-development committee headed by Bishop Mark J. Hurley of Santa Rosa, Calif.

It cited "lengthening lines" of the needy at soup kitchens, emergency shelters and on church doorsteps, blaming the situation on a sagging economy and "deep cuts" in social programs.

While urging churches to expand charitable services, the report said that was not enough and "justice demands that the government maintain its proper role in guaranteeing that basic human needs are met."

Bishop Nicolas E. Walsh of Seattle, noting that only 4,000 of the church's present 11,500 seminarians are studying theology, cited estimates that the priesthood would shrink by half in the next 18 years.

He suggested the problem may "force us to look at those categories of persons" traditionally excluded from the priesthood, an implied reference to women and married men.

Bishop Stanislaus J. Brzana of Ogdensburg, N.Y., charged that the "morally offensive" content of television and films is getting worse and often portray sex as a "casual plaything."

"There seems to be more bedroom scenes involving unmarried partners than scenes involving husband and wife," he said.

Group Sees Profane Forces

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — An ecumenical conference of 60 Protestant and Roman Catholic theologians on the sacredness of life says modern life is being profaned by "destructive forces."

"Dehumanizing forces issue forth in an ever-lengthening litany of evils," the conference said in a concluding statement, which listed these conditions:

An "unraveling of the social fabric," the "prospect of nuclear holocaust, the rise and spread of violence," the "disintegration of families," widespread hunger and "justifications of abortion, infanticide and euthanasia on grounds of expediency."

Participants, including both liberal and conservative scholars, urged efforts to restore "a sense of life's dignity, beginning at conception and continuing all the way to death."

Vatican Will Help Probe

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican will cooperate with authorities to ferret out "the whole truth" about the Holy See's finances, Pope John Paul II said today in an apparent reference to the scandal over church involvement with the collapsed Banco Ambrosiano.

Some Italian officials have claimed the Vatican is responsible for bad loans issued by Ambrosiano, once Italy's largest private bank, and there has been pressure on the church to remove the veil of secrecy over its financial holdings and investments.

John Paul, addressing a College of Cardinals meeting, said the management of Church financial resources demands "a sense of great, meticulous responsibility."

"That is what the Holy See wants to observe scrupulously, asking its collaborators for the spirit of parsimony and faith in the Providence," he said.

"The Holy See is prepared to take all the required steps to find an agreement between both parties so that the whole truth can be brought to light," the pope said.

Visit ...

 Central American nations.
 Here is a country-by-country rundown in the order Reagan will visit them:
BRAZIL
 Latin America's largest nation is staggering under a foreign debt of nearly $70 billion, lagging just behind financially strapped Mexico. Brazil has been sinking billions into energy projects to cut dependence on imported oil. Although it has been struggling to make its payments and inflation approaches 100 percent, the United States has expressed confidence that Brazil will work out of its economic straitjacket when the world situation eases.
 The government of President Joao Figueiredo blames part of the economic crisis on U.S. trade policies, pointing to tariffs on subsidized goods, sugar import quotas and purported protectionism. Brazil has been diversifying its markets, but the United States remains its best customer. Bordering 10 South American nations, Brazil also has assumed the role of spokesman for the so-called non-aligned Third World countries.
 "As Brazil grows, it does have a greater part in the world stage," said U.S. Ambassador Langhorne Anthony Motley. "So it's obviously in the interest of the United States to have good relations with them."
COLOMBIA
 Leaders here have said Reagan's visit could result in a renewed U.S. interest in and a better understanding of Latin America and its problems.
 Foreign Minister Rodrigo Lloredo Quicedo of Colombia has said he hopes Reagan's talks "will permit him to identify very clearly the economic, social and political problems affecting our countries."
 President Belisario Betancur, inaugurated last August, has said he will put Colombia in the framework of the Third World. Diplomats say discussions with Reagan will help define Betancur's motives.
 The United States banks on both Brazil and Colombia to keep up their strong anti-Cuban policies. Neither has diplomatic relations with the small Communist island in the Caribbean.
 U.S. sources say Reagan will have to soothe Colombian concerns about America's dwindling thirst for Colombian coffee, reduction of imported flowers and extensive drive against the billion-dollar cocaine and marijuana traffic.

DOG SHOT ... Dale Rindahl posed in September with Sammy, a leader dog who, in a sense, had given Rindahl back the sight he lost six years ago. On Thanksgiving Day, the dog was shot to death. (AP Laserphoto)

Blind Man's New World Ends With Dog's Death

BRANCH, Minn. (AP) — New doors opened three months ago for Dale Rindahl when a guide dog helped him cope with blindness. But his world shrank again when a neighbor shot and killed the animal, police said.
 Rindahl said the shots on Thanksgiving day "tore the heart right out of Sammy," the female Labrador-Bouvier that had given him affection, mobility and hope of a job.
 A spokesman for the Chisago County sheriff's office said a person was questioned, but no charges had been filed. The officer added, "The dog was on a neighbor's property, and the neighbor shot the dog."
 "You can bet your boots I'll press charges," said Rindahl, 24, adding he "shed a lot of tears" when he learned that his dog was dead.
 Rindahl's diabetes led to blindness six years ago and, later, kidney failure.
 In December 1980, he received a kidney transplant. As his health improved, he dreamed of acquiring a guide dog.
 Lions International gave the dog to Rindahl in August. The Wyoming, Minn., Lions Club sent him to a school in Rochester, Mich., where Rindahl and Sammy spent a month learning to work with each other.
 At home in Branch, in east-central Minnesota, "Sammy became a big part of my life," Rindahl said.
 "I used to have to nag my family to take me for a walk," he said in an interview in September, discussing the difference Sammy had made. "Now I can just go."
 "And if somebody was to try to hurt me, she'd put a stop to it," he added. "The first few days she growled at my family, especially when I was asleep."

 Thursday morning, Rindahl let Sammy outdoors for her regular exercise. A short time later, he went out on the front porch to call the dog.
 "I heard the shots," Rindahl said. "Then I heard Sammy screaming and crying."
WOODBRIDGE, Va. (AP) — A driver stripping off his clothes as he fled the scene of an accident led police on a two-hour chase through four counties, leaving 14 patrol cars damaged and two officers injured, authorities said.
 "It was a fiasco," Prince William County police Lt. Ronald J. Bove said after Thursday's 75-mile chase at speeds of up to 80 mph.
 Prince William police identified the man today as Charles Thomas Lyles, 31, of Woodbridge. Police said they had trouble identifying him because he was naked when he was arrested and carried no wallet.
 Lyles was charged with one count of felonious assault, one count of attempted felonious assault and reckless driving, police said.
 "We have no idea what set him off," a Prince William County police spokesman said. "We got some cruisers behind him and he started throwing things out the window — his belt, a pair of scissors, his pants and other stuff."
 About 1:15 p.m., Prince William police started chasing Lyles' car following a hit-and-run accident involving another car. No one was injured in that accident.

 The fleeing car was temporarily stopped at a barricade. But as a police officer approached, it sped off again, running down the officer and heading toward Manassas.
 The officer, Robert Williams, suffered a broken rib and was treated at Potomac Hospital.
 "We tried to stop this individual with moving roadblocks," said state police Sgt. Glenn Millner. "He rammed a trooper at U.S. 15 and Virginia 55 near Delaplane and went north on U.S. 17. Then he came back down from Delaplane and rammed two more cars in the rear who were trying to set up another mobile roadblock."
 State Trooper E. Ballou suffered neck injuries when his patrol car was rammed, officials said.
 "It's the longest chase I've ever worked," Millner said. "Most guys just give up. This one didn't."

System Would Detect Cancer

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University Medical Center plans to install a new diagnostic system that will be able to detect small changes in the body's use of energy that could help determine if a tumor is malignant.
 The program is a joint effort with General Electric Co. to install a powerful magnet 10 feet tall and eight feet thick, cooled by liquid helium and liquid nitrogen.
 The donut-shaped magnet will weigh more than nine tons and produce a magnetic field 25,000 times as strong as that of the Earth.
 Duke researchers using the device will concentrate on metabolic studies, looking at how disease changes the body's use of energy. Radiologists said metabolic changes often occur before any change in anatomy that could be picked up using X-rays.
 The unit can also be used to diagnose conditions that could lead to later heart attacks or strokes. If the blood flow is cut off to a part of a person's heart, the metabolism in that area changes quickly. If the changes persist, the person may suffer a heart attack.
 In studies of tumors, radiologists will measure tumor metabolism to determine if they are malignant.

Tetterton
 Funeral services for Mrs. Alberta Tetterton, who died Saturday in Holy Cross Hospital, Silver Spring, Md., will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. at Philippi Church of Christ. Burial will be in the Brown Hill Cemetery.

Pirates Open Season Against Duke

East Carolina Pirates

East Carolina University's men's basketball team opens its 1982-83 season Saturday at Duke, facing the Blue Devils in a 7:30 p.m. game.

New coach Charlie Harrison of the Pirates admits that he's nervous about it. "I haven't slept at night I'm so nervous," he said.

Like a kid waiting for Christmas?

"No, it's not like waiting for Christmas. At Christmas at least you know something good is going to happen."

What's going to happen with his Pirates, Harrison is not at all sure whether it will be good, bad or somewhere in-between.

"I consider myself a teacher," Harrison explained. "But I don't know if I've had enough time to teach the things we want to get across. And I don't know how we'll do on the exam."

Harrison, who came to ECU in late July, taking over a program that had already had much of its course for this year charted already, isn't sure what kind of year lies ahead.

The team lost seven lettermen from last season. Four completed their eligibility, one left school with academic problems, and three others quit the team prior to Harrison's coming to ECU.

That left him with just four returning lettermen, two of who have starting experience. They include 6-7, 200-pound senior forward Charles Green and 6-0, 165, sophomore guard Bruce Peartree.

The other two lettermen are 6-6, 215, senior forward Thom Brown and 6-5, 195, sophomore swing man Barry Wright. Wright, who played a major role on the team as a freshman two years ago, sat out last season.

Four other non-lettermen return, 6-9, 220 junior forward Jeff Best, 6-3, 180, junior guard Mike Fox, 6-1, 165, junior guard Herb Gilchrist, and 6-10, 230, sophomore center David Reicheneker. Both Best and Gilchrist are currently sidelined with injuries.

Joining them are four freshmen, 6-6, 225 forward Johnny Edwards, 6-8, 220 center David Harris, 6-3, 195 guard Keith McLeod and 6-1, 180 guard Curt Vanderhorst. Also new to the program is Tony Robinson, a 6-1, 180-pound guard, a transfer from Jamestown Community College.

"We're not very polished," Harrison said, "but the only way to learn is to complete. I wish we had a chance to get ready before having to jump in against such an extremely-talented team like Duke."

Harrison said that normally opening against a team like Duke wouldn't matter. "Once you've got your system and program established, it doesn't matter. But we're young. I'm new. We've only had five weeks to get to know each other. Mike Krzyzewski's got new kids too, but he's had three years, and has a blend of the old and the new."

Harrison said he had not settled on his starters, but might well go with the group he started against Carleton University of Canada in an exhibition a week ago. Starters in that game included Green, Peartree, Wright, Edwards and Robinson. "One spot, maybe two, are still up in the air," the coach said. "We've pretty well settled on who will play (during the season). Starting is really a message of the ego."

Harrison noted that Vanderhorst is playing well now and that Brown could also be a starter. "I'm going to have to look at that real hard. Both of them will play a lot. The others will play too, depending on the foul and game situations. Right now, we're only 11 strong, and all 11 will have to contribute at one time or another."

If the Pirates have something in their favor this year, it would be their quickness, Harrison feels. "We have some quickness and we have to utilize it to our benefit. We have to beat people to the spot, to the ball. We have to pressure the ball. We have to use it to get open and to execute to get the best shot for our personnel. We have to use our quickness to our advantage since we're not strong or big or experienced."

While ECU shot well against Carleton, Harrison notes that "they weren't a great defensive team. We were as big as them and we could shoot over them. I think we had better athletes too."

Defensively, he wasn't that pleased overall against the Canadian team. "At times we showed we could do things, but the degree of concentration was not carried out for long enough periods of time," Harrison said.

He expects to learn much more about his team against Duke than against Carleton. "Any time you play a team with the talent and discipline Duke has you'll find out more."

Harrison isn't putting a lot of emphasis on the game, however. "The game is not our season. It's just one part of it."

If the team has a problem going into Duke, it would be one of identity. "We have to learn to play together as five at both ends of the court with common goals. We're showing signs of that, but we're not constant enough yet."

As to goals, Harrison said that the only goal is to get better every time out. "Wins and losses, I have a goal in my own mind, but I'm not familiar enough with the people we play to really know, and I don't know yet how our kids will respond. I have to see how they respond on the road, in tight games, under pressure. We're still feeling each other out."

Having the tournament to look forward to helps. "It gives you another season," Harrison added.

The Pirates open their home season on Wednesday, hosting Christopher Newport in a 7:30 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum.

Taylor's Good Memory Leads To Giant Victory Over Detroit

By The Associated Press
It's a good thing for the New York Giants that Lawrence Taylor has a good memory.

It was worth a touchdown and a 13-6 National Football League victory over the Detroit Lions on Thursday.

As the Lions lined up for a play in their Thanksgiving Day game at Pontiac, Mich., Taylor recognized the formation as one that the Green Bay Packers had used against the Giants earlier in the season.

So he was ready for a pass play.

With third-and-goal at the Giants' 3-yard line, Detroit quarterback Gary Danielson tried to hit Horace King in the left flat. However, Taylor picked it off and galloped along the sideline for 97 yards to score the game's only touchdown with 10:56 remaining.

"The situation was similar to the one Green Bay had against us earlier in the season," Taylor explained.

"They called a timeout and when they lined up, I recognized the formation as one similar to the Packers'. I was supposed to cover the man out of the backfield (King) and when he went into the flat, I cut in front of him and got the pass."

In the other holiday game, the Dallas Cowboys routed the Cleveland Browns 31-14.

While making his coast-to-coast run, Taylor ignored a sore right knee that has plagued him during this strike-shortened season.

"My knee didn't hurt me a bit as I was running down the field," he said. "I just saw Coach (Ray) Perkins waving his arms and telling me to keep going."

Perkins called it a "must-win" triumph for the Giants, who gained their first victory of the season after three losses.

"Today, we looked like the New York Giants of last year (when they made the NFL playoffs)," Perkins said. "We have to play like this the next five games if we want any shot at the playoffs."

Danielson was driving the Lions toward the potential tying touchdown in the closing minutes before cornerback Terry Jackson made another interception, at almost exactly the same spot as Taylor's, to preserve the victory.

Perkins' joy was tempered by his anger over a fourth-quarter incident which sent Leon Bright of the Giants to a hospital for X-rays and overnight observation. As he got set to field a punt, Bright was leveled by a hit from Leonard Thompson of the Lions and was carried from the field on a stretcher.

X-rays of his neck were negative.

Perkins said he had complained to the NFL about similar plays but said no one was willing to do anything about it. "If anyone gets seriously hurt, it will be the league office's fault because they don't insist that officials follow the rules and throw out offenders."

In Irving, Texas, the Cowboys harassed Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe with a swarming defense and rode the passing of Danny White and the slashing runs of Tony Dorsett to an easy victory over the Browns.

The Cowboys started the rout in the second quarter when White flipped a four-yard scoring pass to Billy Joe DuPree, then completed a 48-yarder to Drew Pearson that set up Dorsett's one-yard TD run. Rafael Septien's 40-yard field goal gave Dallas a 17-0 halftime lead. Dorsett, playing only three quarters, rushed 20 times for 116 yards.

"I was surprised we played that well," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "Our team played extremely well. I was very proud they could come back with just three days rest and play this good."

Dallas defensive back Everson Walls, who had two interceptions, said, "We didn't think it was going to be a runaway. We had a lot of respect for the Browns. We played very well considering the strike and everything."

Cleveland Coach Sam Rutigliano: "It just wasn't our day. We couldn't get a break but Dallas did play very well."

Meanwhile, the no-show trend continued in the NFL in the wake of the players' strike. There were 17,256 no-shows in Irving and 1,578 tickets unsold at the 65,101-seat stadium. In Pontiac, there were 6,478 no-shows and 9,812 unsold tickets in the 80,638-seat Silverdome.

McEnroe Vs New-Look Noah In Cup's Opening

GRENOBLE, France (AP) — John McEnroe faced a new-look Yannick Noah in a bid to give the U.S. tennis team a winning start over France in the Davis Cup final.

"I'm not frightened of Noah — only his new hair style," McEnroe quipped before today's match.

Noah, 22, son of an African father from Cameroon, used to have his hair in close curls. Now he has changed to the West Indian Rastafarian style, with his locks hanging in little braids.

McEnroe and Noah are the rival No. 1 players in the three-day final. When they were drawn to play each other in the opening singles, everyone seemed pleased.

The draw paired Gene Mayer with France's 19-year-old Henri Leconte in the second match. McEnroe and Peter Fleming face Noah and Leconte in the doubles Saturday. Mayer plays Noah in the first match Sunday, and McEnroe winds up the series against Leconte.

"Just what I wanted," said the American captain Arthur Ashe. "I always wanted John to play first and last, and that's how it has worked out."

The French, who are given little chance of winning the Cup, banked everything on Noah beating McEnroe. So they were pleased the two men played each other first, because if Noah won it would take the pressure off the talented but erratic Leconte.

Noah has been in impressive form recently. But victory over McEnroe, who has one of the best Davis Cup records of all time, would be a major upset.

McEnroe has a 24-3 record in Davis Cup singles and is 9-0 in doubles. He had played Noah only once, back in 1977 in the Sunshine Cup, and won that match.

Everyone, including more than 100 American fans who have made the trip to Grenoble, waited to see how the new clay court would behave. The French had it put down two weeks ago in Grenoble's Sports Palace, and the Americans feared it might be slow and take the sting out of McEnroe's service.

"It's not too slow, but it's not all that fast either," McEnroe said. "The balls are light and bounce well. But I expect we will have to play a lot of the time from the back of the court."

McEnroe was not too happy to learn that Bob Jenkins of Britain is one of the two umpires for the final.

Jenkins has umpired for McEnroe in some vital matches in recent years, including last year's Davis Cup final and the last two Wimbledon finals.

In 1981, when McEnroe won the Wimbledon crown from Bjorn Borg, Jenkins slapped penalty points on him for tantrums on court and started a war between McEnroe and the All-England Club which took a year to die down.

"I think it is wrong to have the same umpire in so many matches," McEnroe commented. "They should be switched around a bit."

McEnroe and Mayer faced the prospect of a noisy crowd of 15,000, almost all of them French and wildly partisan.

Mayer, playing in his first Davis Cup final, admitted he was under a lot of pressure.

"It's not my first Davis Cup match," Mayer said, "but a final is different. The pressure builds up over a longer period."

Leconte, too, agreed the final is a big ordeal.

"Not many people of my age have the chance to play in the Davis Cup final," he said. "I want most of all to satisfy the French people who watch me."

The United States is going for its 27th Davis Cup triumph. France won the trophy six times — in six straight years between 1927 and 1932.

Kings Finding Ways To Win

HOUSTON (AP) — The Kansas City Kings suffered through 52 losses last season, but now they have found the best way to forget all that.

Forward Eddie Johnson scored 10 of his game-high 19 points in the third quarter to lead the Kings to a club-record fourth straight road win, an 88-79 defeat of the Houston Rockets in the Summit Thursday night.

The victory gave the Kings a 7-3 record, good enough for the lead in the Western Conference's Midwest Division, and was their fifth straight overall.

The game also was the only one played Thursday in the National Basketball Association.

"We lost 52 games last year and we didn't like it," Johnson said. "So we're doing a lot of things to win. We didn't play real well tonight, but we knew if we kept the pressure on them we'd be in the game at the end."

The Kings were in the game the whole way. It was the Rockets, now 1-12, who struggled to stay in contention after blowing a 13-point lead in the second quarter.

Houston held a 39-26 advantage with eight minutes to go in the first half, but scored only two points the rest of the quarter. Reggie Johnson's dunk off a Mike Woodson steal with 1:05 left gave the Kings a 42-41 halftime edge.

The Rockets committed 10 of their 21 turnovers and shot only 31.6 percent in the second quarter, netting only 15 points.

Houston, which shot just 35.9 percent for the game, scored only 16 points in the third period as Kansas City opened a 70-57 bulge.

"It was a shame we couldn't find someone with a hot hand who could make some shots," said Houston Coach Del Harris. "It's impossible to get better shots against a ball club like Kansas City. They're one of the best defensive teams in the league."

Carolina Struggles To 33-14 Victory

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina had to struggle before a claiming its 33-14 college football victory over Bowling Green Thursday, and coach Dick Crum said he wouldn't have had it any other way.

Scott Stankavage threw a pair of second-half scoring passes and Brooks Barwick kicked four field goals as the Tar Heels played their final regular season game before heading to the Sun Bowl. "People down here tend to put the Mid-American Conference and Bowling Green down," Crum said. "It upsets me when I hear people say games like this are a snap. I'm glad the game was the type of game it was. I'm really glad we had to struggle. We've had a tough month and " was good for our kids to see that hard work can pay off." The Tar Heels trailed by a 7-6 score at halftime before erupting for 13 points in the third quarter. In addition to the victory, tailback Kelvin Bryant rushed for 149 yards on 32 carries, giving him his third straight 1,000-yard season. "I think Kelvin did a better job this year of being a tough, hard-nosed runner than in the past," Crum said. "Today, he tried too hard. He was trying to go 80 yards before he got 5. At the half, I just told him to settle down and things would come for him."

Bowling Green coach Denny Stolz said his Falcons "played about as well as we can against a team with as much talent as Carolina has." "Carolina has great talent and a lot of it," Stolz added. The Bowling Green defense kept the Tar Heels in check for much of the first half, although Stankavage had two sure touchdown passes dropped. Meanwhile, Dayne Palsgrove threw a 9-yard second-quarter touchdown pass to Shawn Potts to give the Falcons a 7-6 halftime lead. North Carolina, which finished 7-4, scored on its first two possessions of the second half to claim a 16-7 edge. Stankavage tossed a 22-yard scoring pass to Eddie Colson at the 11:23 mark and Barwick added a pair of field goals in the period to extend the Tar Heel advantage to 19-7.

The Falcons rallied and closed to within 19-14 when reserve quarterback Steve Swan passed 25 yards to Potts, his second touchdown catch. Gehad Youssef added the extra point with 9:43 left to play. Reserve tailback Ethan Horton ended the scoring with a 22-yard run with 20 seconds left. Falcon Coach Denny Stolz was pleased with his team's play despite the loss. "We played about as well as we could have with as much talent as Carolina has," he said. Bowling Green, headed to the California Bowl to face Fresno State, dropped to 7-4.

Despite Injuries, Kelvin Bryant Still Manages 1,000 Yards Again

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Kelvin Bryant, North Carolina's injury-plagued running back, began the 1982 season as a prime candidate for the Heisman Trophy, but an early-season ankle injury took him out of contention for that prize. But Bryant still came back to post his third consecutive 1,000-yard season after gaining 149 yards in the Tar Heels 33-14 victory over Bowling Green on Thursday. He finished the year with 1,064 yards, despite seeing limited action in several games.

Bryant, who also overcame injuries last year to gain more than 1,000 yards, became the fourth Atlantic Coast Conference back to gain 1,000 yards in three consecutive years. The others were UNC's Mike Voight and Amos Lawrence, and N.C. State's Ted Brown. North Carolina backfield coach Randy Walker says Bryant proved himself more this season because of the problems he encountered. "For one thing, he proved to be a professional runner," Walker said. "We needed to take the heat off him and sometimes we didn't do that." Bryant, a native of Tarboro, N.C., actually has three more games as a collegian before he signs what promises to be a lucrative professional contract. The Tar Heels meet Texas in the Sun Bowl on Christmas Day. Then, Bryant will go on to play in the East-West all-star game and in the Senior Bowl.

Walker said, "I've never seen him play harder than he has this season." Walker says part of the reason things became tougher for Bryant this year is because, in the Tar Heels ground-oriented attack, every team is looking to stop him. "Amos Lawrence (now a professional running back) will tell you and Kelvin will tell you, it gets harder every year," Walker said. "We needed to take the heat off him

Woody Peele

With the 1982 football season behind us — at least locally — we turn toward the start of basketball season.

East Carolina University's women got their season underway on Monday, while the men join in the action Saturday night at Duke.

Bennett ACC's Player Of Year

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
Duke quarterback Ben Bennett, who will own about all the Atlantic Coast Conference passing records by the time he completes his career, has been selected The Associated Press ACC Player of the Year.

The Blue Devils finished 6-5 for the second consecutive season, the first time since 1970 and 1971 that Duke has had back-to-back winning seasons. Bennett was an integral part of each campaign. The Sunnyvale, Calif., junior, chosen by a panel of sportswriters from the Atlantic Coast region of the AP's college football poll, has set 24 school records. This season, he completed 236 of 374 passes for 3,033 yards, to become the first ACC quarterback to surpass the 3,000-yard mark.

The high schools, for the most part, will get their play underway during the upcoming week.

But before passing on to the round-ball scene, we reflect back on the season we leave behind.

The Hall of Fame Bowl almost agreed, naming Duke as one of several finalists to face Vanderbilt in Birmingham, Ala. Air Force was eventually chosen, but the victory over North Carolina virtually made up for it.

"We all thought the only way to salvage this season was to beat Carolina, and the fact that no one over here likes Carolina," said Bennett. "Everybody says 'We're happy to beat Carolina at the end of the season' but we know we should be going somewhere."

But before passing on to the round-ball scene, we reflect back on the season we leave behind.

This was a good year for the area in football. East Carolina University had its first winning season in three tries under Ed Emory — although last year's will always stick in the mind as one which should have been. The closing victory at Temple this year should propel the Pirates into spring drills on a good note as they aim toward the 1983 season opener — which we understand will be at Florida State.

"The consensus is that we should have won a couple of more ball games," he said. "Everybody's really disappointed that we didn't. Everybody says 'We're happy to beat Carolina at the end of the season' but we know we should be going somewhere."

"Right now, it's very uncertain what's going to happen," he said. "What we do know is we have the nucleus coming back to be a good ballclub."

But at that game, he still hadn't been given the ball completely by the coaching staff. He was still sharing duties and only because of illness by Greg Stewart did he get the call. Had he been "for sure" the number one man, playing like he did as the end of the season, the outcome there might have been different.

He'll probably get a chance in that game again next season.

Then, there was the William & Mary contest. East Carolina won it on a heart-stopper, but one must wonder what it would have been like on a dry field. East Carolina's game was hurt more by the field conditions than that of William & Mary. It could have turned into a rout.

"If you had to write out what kind of offense you wanted, this is what you would have," said Bennett. "You've got

The Pirates have a lot of players back, despite some losses, and they know where they have to improve — both on the field and in recruiting.

Hopefully, they'll get these things done.

At any rate, the Pirates deserve a great deal of congratulations for their year.

In the high school ranks, there were several standouts. Rose High School, after seemingly being out of the picture, bounced back to win a berth in the Division II playoffs, winning four of their final five games. Perhaps they could have done better. Certainly three of their five losses could easily have been victories with just a little better play.

At any rate, it was a good year for the Rampants.

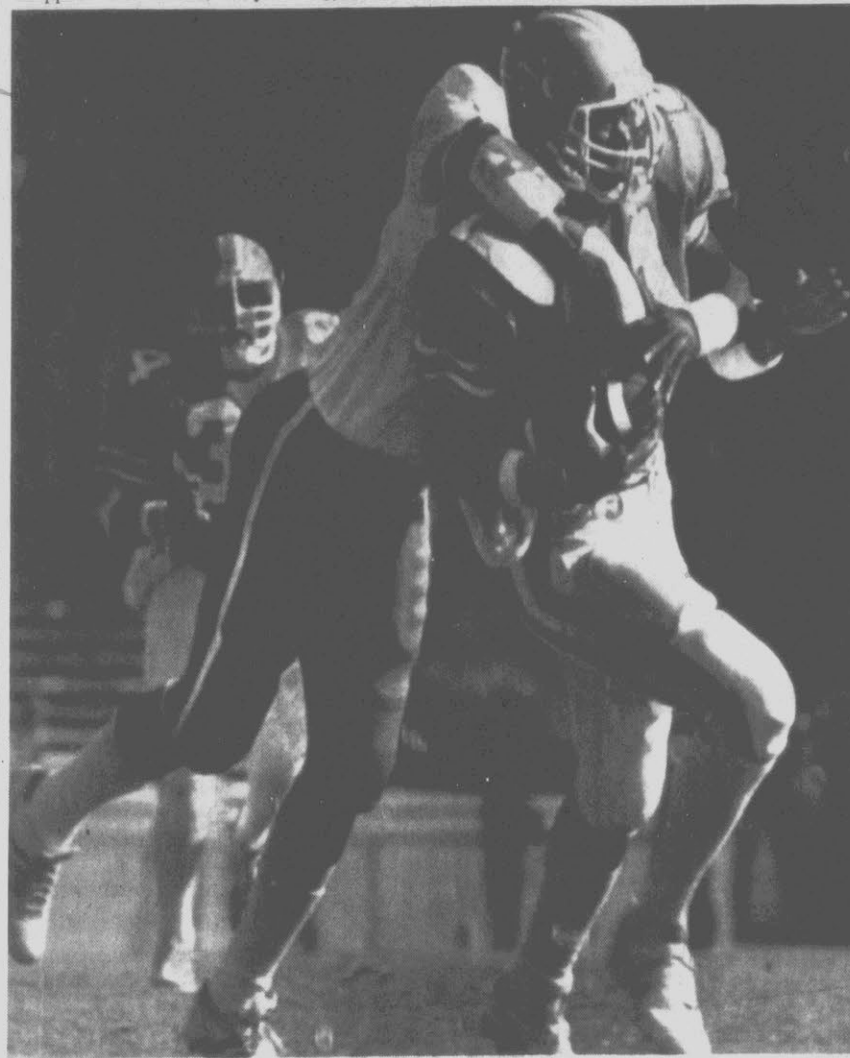

Ayden-Grifton, for the second straight year, moved into the Division I 3-A Playoffs, putting together a 10-2 year this season. Coach Dixon Sauls felt it was tougher to win this year than last year, because it was expected. But he and his Chargers did an outstanding job all year long and were perhaps underrated by many.

Then, there was North Pitt. The Panthers just weren't supposed to do things like that. They put together a 6-2-2 season, losing only their opener and a 7-6 decision to Ayden-Grifton. For B.T. Chappell and his players, it was something to behold — and hopefully a needed lift to the football in the area. May their successes continue.

Individually, there was Roanoke's Donnie Wallace. Some say he didn't have the year he was expected to have. But he played on a losing team, also. Still, he's probably the most sought-after lineman in North Carolina, and one of the top ones in the country.

Where he's going still hasn't been announced as yet, but he has capped the year by being the only area player tabbed for the Shrine Bowl.

To all these teams, to Wallace, and to the rest of the players: congratulations for a job well done.

Reflector Rankings

Following are the Daily Reflector rankings. They are based on points accumulated by wins. Wins over 4-A teams count 4 points, 3-A count 3, etc., with bonus points awarded for each victory the losing team accumulates. For example, a 3-A team with a 7-3 record for the season is worth 10 points for each team which beats it. Later season rankings are more accurate as points accumulate.

Holmes Defends Title Tonight Against Cobb

HOUSTON (AP) — Larry Holmes, happy about the absence of the high-voltage tension that surrounded his last fight, defends the World Boxing Council heavyweight title tonight against Randy "Tex" Cobb, the WBC's No. 5-ranked contender.

"I wouldn't put my dog through what I went through," said Holmes of the pressure-cooker atmosphere of his defense against previously unbeaten Gerry Cooney last June 11 at Las Vegas, Nev.

Holmes still bristles about what he feels was unfair treatment by the media and some of the public in the weeks leading up to the Cooney bout, which he won when he stopped the previously unbeaten challenger in the 13th round.

The champion was accused by some of being a racist, and he feels he was treated as if he were the challenger.

None of that has occurred here. In fact, Holmes' 13th title defense against Cobb, who, like Cooney, is white, is remarkable for its lack of hype. A small crowd is expected in the Astrodome.

The bout, blacked out in Houston, will be televised live on ABC from 9 p.m. to 11 p.m., EST.

Also featured on the show will be a 12-round bout in which Greg Page of Louisville, Ky., will defend the United States Boxing Association title against James "Quick" Tillis of Chicago.

"Cobb is a nice guy," said

Holmes. "He respects me, and I respect him as a human being."

Told that Holmes felt relaxed about the low-key atmosphere of the fight, Cobb, who takes little seriously, at least in public, said, "I'm certainly glad. I was worried about that."

Of course, there is pressure on Holmes, who is 40-0, with 30 knockouts, and who has made 12 successful title defenses.

"My biggest challenge is when I get in the ring Friday night," said the champion. "I'm unbeaten and I want to stay that way. Nobody in the world likes losers."

The late Rocky Marciano, 49-0, with 43 knockouts, is the only heavyweight champion to retire unbeaten.

Holmes, who became 33 Nov. 3, appears to be considering retirement.

One script calls for him to fight next spring, apparently against Lucien Rodriguez of France, then box an exhibition at his hotel near his hometown of Easton, Pa., at which he would announce his retirement.

But Holmes also said he could fight more than once if the money is right — such as $25 million for a rematch against Cooney.

"I don't think Larry Holmes is old at 33," he said.

The 26-year-old Cobb, a Texan who lives in Runnemeade, N.J., has a physical edge over Holmes.

Each is 6-foot-3 and are about even in reach — 81 to 80 inches in favor of Holmes — but Cobb is bigger and heavier — 234½ pounds to 217½. Holmes is five pounds heavier than he was for the Cooney fight.

But Holmes has a big edge in experience over Cobb who had only two amateur fights and is 20-2, with 18 knockouts.

"If I got into it (boxing), I just knew I would do it (well)," said Cobb.

"I'm the one guy in the game that can change. I'm the guy who has great growth potential. I might even fool around and learn to fight."

It shapes up as a match between a boxer-puncher, Holmes, and a mauler who presses the action, Cobb.

"He fights like a puncher, but he's not a puncher," said Holmes. "He's tough and durable and takes a lot of punches. He's a face fighter, and I've never had trouble with face fighters."

"Larry works very, very well when he has established control," said Cobb. "But in the past I've shown I'm not the easiest guy to control."

The non-scoring referee for the fight will be Steve Crosson of Dallas. The judges, who will score on the 10-point-must system under which the winner of the round gets 10 points and the loser nine or less, will be Larry Hassad of Los Angeles, Spider Bynum of Dallas and Charles Minker of Las Vegas.

Page, 20-1, with 16 knockouts, and ranked fourth by the WBC, is returning to the action for the first time since he broke his right thumb in losing a 10-round decision to Trevor Berbick on the Holmes-Cooney card.

Tillis, 22-2, with 17 knockouts, is ranked No. 9 by the WBC. In his last fight, Aug. 14 at Cleveland, he was knocked out in the eighth round by Pinklon Thomas.

Alaska Shootout Again Features Top Freshman

By The Associated Press

For the second year in a row, the Great Alaska Shootout will feature one of the most heralded freshman college basketball players in the country.

Last year, Georgetown's 7-foot sensation Pat Ewing was in the tournament. This year it's 6-9 Billy Thompson of Louisville.

"It's still to be seen what his adjustment from high school to college ball will be," says Louisville Coach Denny Crum as he prepares his team for tonight's opener against Florida in the Anchorage tournament. "But with his talent, I don't think he will have many problems."

Like Ewing, the Camden, N.J., high school product was highly recruited by colleges. He averaged 29 points and 15 rebounds a game last year and was generally regarded as the best high school player in the nation.

The eighth-ranked Cardinals are the only Top 20 team in the Shootout tournament, which also includes Alaska-Anchorage, Washington, Florida, Illinois, Vanderbilt, Texas A&M and Clemson. It's one of many tournaments that will help trigger the 1982-83 major college basketball season.

One Division I game has already been played — the Hall of Fame Classic last weekend in Springfield, Mass., in which No. 19 St. John's upset defending NCAA champion North Carolina 78-74 in overtime. The Tar Heels are ranked No. 3 in the preseason poll.

Coming off that big victory, St. John's will be in action tonight in its own Lapchick Tournament in New York. The field also includes Army, Ohio University and St. Mary's, Calif.

Top-ranked Virginia, meanwhile, plays in the Virginia Tipoff with Johns Hopkins, George Mason and Virginia Commonwealth. Memphis State, the nation's sixth-ranked team, plays in the Mid-South tournament with West Texas State, Tulane and Wyoming among the participants.

Houston, ranked No. 14, will be the only other ranked team playing in a tournament this weekend. The Cougars, who finished in the Final Four last season, are entered in the Kettle Classic which also features Arizona, Lamar and Texas-San Antonio.

In other action tonight, it's second-ranked Georgetown at BYU-Hawaii; No. 7 UCLA at Brigham Young and No. 10 Oregon State at Utah.

Marciano's Children Keeping Memory Alive

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AP Special Correspondent
She remembers papa.

"He was the warmest, most considerate person one could imagine, a wonderful father," said Mary Anne Marciano, Rocky's daughter. "He may have been tough and relentless in the ring. Outside it, he was a gentle soul, no phoniness, no pretense. He loved people and people loved him."

She remembers papa, and wants to make sure that the world doesn't forget this bull-shouldered shoemaker's son, who retired as the only undefeated heavyweight champion in history and died in a plane crash in the prime of his life.

"I was at ringside in my mother's womb, two months before I was born, when my father beat Jersey Joe Walcott for the title in Philadelphia Sept. 23, 1952," Mary Anne recalls. "I was 16 when he was killed."

"We heard the news about two hours after the light private plane had fallen near Newton, Iowa. We couldn't believe it. I kept thinking it must be a mistake. And — dreadful as it sounds — I thought maybe it was Rocky Graziano or somebody else."

"It was shattering to a teen-age girl like myself, who was so close to her father. My brother, Randy, was only 1½ years old. My father had never seen him walk."

Marciano died on his 46th birthday. Five years later, Rocky's widow, Barbara, passed away, also at the age of 46.

Mary Anne, now 29, and Randy, 14, live with their 78-year-old maternal grandmother, Elizabeth Cousins, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Both are busy promoting Rocky Marciano's Sports World, a collection of his memorabilia which will be made available to the public.

"We are now working out of my secretary's office," Mary Anne said. "We have films of all his major fights and we show them on request. I am busy gathering other mementoes. A lot of it is now on display in Chicago at the Italian-American Sports Hall of Fame."

Miss Marciano was in New York this week for the presentation of the Rocky Marciano Champions Trophy to Alexis Arguello at the Downtown Athletic Club.

The trophy is emblematic not only of ring success but also character and contributions to society as a whole.

"My father was always fond of kids," the daughter said. "He was always trying to point them in the right direction."

Marciano was a bull of a man, small by today's standards at 5-11 and 184 pounds, but a fierce, always-on-the-attack gladiator who ring critics said could hit harder than Joe Louis or Jack Dempsey. He retired in 1956 at age 32 with a record of 49 straight victories, 43 by knockout.

He never looked back with regrets.

"He loved to play golf — he could shoot in the 70s — and he enjoyed running on the beach," Mary Anne recalled. "He relished his life outside the ring, the contacts and the people."

Rocky served on President Kennedy's Commission on Physical Fitness and, according to Mary Anne, at the time of his death, was pressuring Congress to set up some sort of a commission or a czar to regulate boxing.

"He thought his first fight with Jersey Joe Walcott was his most brutal," Mary Anne said. "He idolized Joe Louis. After he beat Louis in 1951, he cried about it. He even went to Joe's dressing room and said, 'I'm sorry, Joe, it had to be me.'"

Mary Anne said Rocky also had great admiration for Muhammad Ali, whom he considered the consummate fighter. "They became very friendly when they sparred 70 rounds for the imaginary all-time computer championship — which my father won."

She said her mother attended almost every fight. "She always wore gloves and she got so nervous that after the fight all the fingers were worn out."

She herself never got a spanking, Mary Anne said, but once almost suffered worse.

"Papa was shadow-boxing on the beach," she said, "and I sneaked up behind him and said, 'Boo!' He wheeled and swung a right with all his might. Fortunately I ducked."

"He really scolded me, saying, 'Don't ever do that again.'"

Jobless Tax Under Fire

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan is drawing political fire for a plan under study to tax unemployment insurance benefits of jobless workers and reduce the minimum wage for youth hired in summer jobs.

White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes confirmed Thursday that the two proposals were among eight options developed for Reagan by his Cabinet Council on Economic Affairs to attack the problem of chronic unemployment.

Although Speakes said Reagan had not discussed the ideas with his economic advisers and would take no action on them until next year, the proposals came under immediate attack from organized labor and a ranking congressional Democrat.

In Washington, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, declared: "I don't think Mr. Reagan has thought that one through," or he would have rejected the proposals out of hand. "People on unemployment aren't goldbricks or loafers. They're usually people who are down on their luck, through no fault of their own," said Reuss.

"I wouldn't mind considering some change in the current exemption on taxation. But it would be unconscionable to, in effect, reduce unemployment compensation for the poor by taxing it," Reuss added. Earlier Thursday, his panel predicted that November's unemployment rate might rise a notch to 10.5 percent.

The proposals will not be ready for the lame-duck session of Congress that convenes Monday but will be carried over to early next year, Speakes said.

Rex Hardesty, a spokesman for the 15 million-member AFL-CIO, said, "We hope President Reagan would not support anything so callous as to tax people who did not cause unemployment and are not to blame for their plight."

Hardesty also said the labor federation would resist decreasing the minimum wage for youths.

"It makes no sense to discriminate against one class of people, whether you do it because of their race, their religion or their age," he said.

"This, of course, is an outrageous suggestion," said Studs Terkel, the author who has chronicled the lives of American working men and women for a half-century. He told ABC News in Chicago, "I can't say what I really think of it without being cut off the air."

The unemployment package is separate from a series of steps Reagan will propose to Congress next week to stimulate the economy. Those proposals likely will include accelerating July's 10 percent income tax cut so it would take effect in January.

Currently, unemployment insurance benefits are exempt from taxation unless the recipient's family income is $18,000 or more. The threshold for a single person is $12,000.

An estimated $1.9 billion would be raised in tax revenue if all jobless benefits were treated as ordinary income.

Speakes said studies have shown that jobless benefits discourage people from seeking new work. The money derived from fully taxing those benefits could be earmarked for job training programs, he said.

A tax on unemployment benefits would "make it less attractive" to remain jobless and would "give them the option of getting job training," said Speakes.

The other proposal calls for reducing the minimum wage, now at $3.35 an hour, for youths hired for summer work. Reagan has long favored a so-called sub-minimum wage for teen-agers.

Speakes said he is not certain how the proposal would work. He said one possibility is for youths to get the full minimum wage with the employer receiving a tax subsidy or credit for a portion of their salary.

Also under study is an idea to offer tax incentives to companies who hire the unemployed and offer on-the-job training for work the new employees are not already qualified to do.

Asked about political opposition to the proposals, Speakes said the ideas had to be considered in the context of the entire program. He declined to list the other options being considered.

"You can pull these out one by one and say they won't make it," said Speakes, insisting that "it's a program that would be very attractive to members of Congress."

Reagan and his wife Nancy, meanwhile, hosted a Thanksgiving dinner at their ranch for family members.

Reagan sent a message to the traveling White House press corps that said: "I know it isn't easy being away from home and families today, and as we count our blessings today, we should all remember that chief among them is the uniquely American free press."

Nurses Help Aged China Leader Open New Parliament Session

PEKING (AP) — Ye Jianying, China's ailing 85-year-old head of state, needed help from two nurses today to get through a brief statement officially opening the 1982 session of the National People's Congress.

Ye, who rarely appears in public and is widely believed to suffer from senility, was helped to the speakers' table by the two nurses, one male and one female. Foreign correspondents and diplomats attended the opening session of the congress, China's Parliament.

The congress was convened to consider a proposed new constitution and a five-year economic plan. The proposed constitution, which will replace one written in 1978, is scheduled to be formally adopted next month.

Its changes include ending life tenure for aging officials and restoring the office of president as head of state, which was abolished in 1975. China's last president, Liu Shao-chi, died in disgrace as a "capitalist roader" in 1969 but was later exonerated.

Ye started to read his opening statement that a quorum was present and the session was open, but quickly foundered. There was an awkward pause before the woman nurse moved up and whispered the words into his ear.

Ye, whose formal title is chairman of the congress' Standing Committee, left after 55 minutes. Peng Zhen, a vice chairman, who was reading a report on the proposed new constitution, paused to shake hands with Ye, who then walked off aided by the nurses.

On the evening television news, the scene was edited so that Ye appeared to jump from the opening few words to the last two, "...now open," and the nurse was not seen helping him.

Despite his advanced age and declining health, Ye was re-elected in September to the inner circle of the ruling Communist Party, the standing committee of the Politburo.

In an interview in the party newspaper People's daily on Thursday, Ye said, "I am 85. The future belongs to our young people ... they should cooperate with their elders to ensure the implementation of the constitution."

Deng Xiaoping, China's paramount leader, has been pressing an effort to promote younger, better educated and more professional people into leading positions.

Deng, 78, has withdrawn from day-to-day duties but retains his position on the Politburo Standing Committee, is chairman of the party's Military Commission and also chairman of the newly formed Central Advisory Commission, a body of party elders.

Deng and party general secretary Hu Yaobang, 67, sat two rows behind Ye and Premier Zhao Ziyang, 63, sat immediately behind him on the stage in the 10,000-seat auditorium of the Great Hall of the People.

Ye already was an experienced military officer when he joined the Communist Party in 1927. He rose in the army to the rank of marshal, China's highest military position before it eliminated ranks in the 1960s. He has been Standing Committee chairman since 1978.

In Peng's statement to the congress, he said China would be highly flexible about how it ruled Taiwan under reunification, but would never submit to foreign pressure over the island.

The rival Chinese Nationalists fled to Taiwan and took it over after the Communists won the Chinese civil war in 1949. The Communists consider Taiwan a renegade province and have long pledged to reunify it with the mainland. Taiwan has rejected all peace overtures.

Peking has also objected to U.S. arms sales to Taiwan as an infringement on China's internal affairs and demanded that the sales be stopped.

CHRISTMAS, Fla. (AP) — While everyone else finishes Thanksgiving leftovers, people in Christmas are bracing for the next big holiday. Though it never snows here, the post office expects "an avalanche of mail" for Santa.

December will bring 100,000 pieces of mail to this central Florida village so holiday tidings can bear the Christmas postmark.

"Letters come from all over the world and even some small packages are sent here to be mailed out with the Christmas postmark," says Joy Chittum, postmaster since 1975.

Children's letters arriving here addressed to Santa are answered by a local family that has served as Santa's helpers for years. Mrs. Chittum says they prefer to remain anonymous.

Not quite as remote as Santa's house to the north, Christmas is a spread-out, unincorporated community on U.S. 50, about 23 miles east of Orlando. The only markers alerting strangers they have made it to Christmas are road signs at each end of the village.

"We really have no defined boundaries," said Mrs. Chittum, "and we claim 3,500 residents over about a 100-square-mile area."

Conservative Is Elected Japan's Prime Minister

TOKYO (AP) — Conservative Yasuhiro Nakasone was elected prime minister today by the Japanese parliament and immediately began forming a Cabinet while newspaper editorials questioned the "political ethics" of his leadership.

Nakasone's election was assured by the majority held in the Diet (parliament) by his ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

In the Lower House, where the LDP holds 287 of 505 active seats, Nakasone received 287 votes, against 102 for Ichio Asukata, chairman of the top opposition Japan Socialist Party. Later in the day Nakasone outpolling Asukata 130 to 50 in the Upper House where the LDP holds 134 of 246 seats.

The other votes were divided among four smaller parties.

The LDP, a conservative coalition of factions in power since 1955, chose Nakasone as its president after his convincing win Thursday over three rivals in primary election voting by the party's 1 million rank and file members.

He succeeds outgoing Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki, 71, who announced he was stepping down after two years in office on Oct. 12.

Nakasone and his 20-member Cabinet will be formally inaugurated tonight by 81-year-old Emperor Hirohito if the selection of ministers goes smoothly. The emperor, a powerless symbol of state, has been directed by the constitution to appoint the prime minister chosen by the Diet since the end of World War II.

The Japanese press reported that the foreign minister post would go to Shintaro Abe, who as International Trade and Industry minister under Suzuki was a chief spokesman for Japan's controversial trade policies.

Nakasone retained Susumu Nikaide, a deputy in the largest LDP faction led by former Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, in the powerful party post of secretary general. Several other Tanaka followers also were Asking folks at the town's only general store for directions to downtown Christmas brings this kind of reply: "I guess this is it, except for the post office and community center down the road."

Off to one side of the post office is a permanent yuletide display — a Christmas tree and an assortment of oversized Christmas cards painted on sheets of plywood by members of a local art club.

The town got its name from Fort Christmas, established Dec. 25, 1837, when eight companies of soldiers arrived during the Second Seminole War.

Soldiers at the fort "were offered 160 acres free if they would stay five years, build a house, cultivate the land and fight the Indians," said Reta Barnes, an assistant curator at the fort. Many current residents are descendants of those soldiers, she said.

A replica of part of the original fort, two 20-foot-square blockhouses, is the agricultural community's recreational centerpiece.

The "spirit of Christmas" prevails all year long, says Juanita Tucker, the town historian who served as postmistress for 42 years until she retired in 1974.

"People are good and kindly here," Mrs. Tucker says. "There's a spirit of neighborliness."

expected to receive key Cabinet posts.

Nakasone's opponents in the party race criticized his ties to Tanaka, who was tried on charges of accepting $2 million in bribes to promote the sale of Lockheed aircraft in the early 1970s. The trial is expected to conclude next year.

Nakasone, whose faction ranks fourth in size, was dependent on Tanaka for his victory.

"It is likely that under Mr. Nakasone, who came into power on the basis of support from Tanaka and other party faction leaders, political ethics will further run counter (to democracy). That puts us on our guard," said the mass-circulation Asahi Shimbun daily in an editorial.

The Mainichi Shimbun urged Nakasone to "demonstrate in practice his claim that he is not controlled by former Prime Minister Tanaka and others."

Nakasone said the composition of the Cabinet would reflect the various factions in the party and reflect his determination to carry out the fiscal and bureaucratic reforms of his predecessor. He was a prime mover in Suzuki's small government program in his post as chief of the Administrative Management Agency.

Nakasone on Thursday stressed the importance of Japan's ties with the United States, saying that "when U.S.-Japan relations are shaky, all other foreign policy activities become difficult to carry out." Tokyo's relations with Washington today are in fact unsteady.

The Reagan administration has shown increasing impatience with Japan's reluctance to lift agricultural import restrictions

Court Rejects Minister's Appeal Of Sentence

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The Nebraska Supreme Court has rejected an appeal from a fundamentalist minister who was sentenced to jail for continuing to operate a church school in violation of state law.

The Rev. Everett Sileven must serve the rest of a four-month sentence imposed by the Cass County District Court for operating the Faith Baptist Church School in Louisville, the court ruled Wednesday.

Sileven, pastor of the Faith Baptist Church, was found in contempt of court because the school continued to operate without certified teachers, violating both state law and a court order.

The judges cited their 1981 decision in an earlier Sileven case which upheld state laws governing the operation of church schools. The U.S. Supreme Court rejected an appeal from Sileven in that case.

"We have already found that Sileven and the Faith Baptist Church do not have a first amendment right to ignore the state's school laws," the Nebraska court said.

"Sileven is simply wrong if he believes that he may consistently and continually flout the law by merely declaring that it is contrary to his religious beliefs, no matter how sincerely held," said the opinion written by Chief Justice Norman Krivotha.

Israelies Move To Realism

By MARCUS ELIASON
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) - Two Israeli movies are breaking new ground by turning public attention to issues many would prefer to ignore.

Daniel Wachsmann's "Hamsin" is a darkly pessimistic vision of relations between Jews and Arabs. Yankul Goldwasser's "Undernose" explores the Tel Aviv underworld with humor, compassion and seamy realism.

Both directors tell a strong story with taut professionalism, and their work is being hailed as a breakthrough for Israel's struggling film industry, where talent is scarce and budgets low.

"Hamsin" and "Undernose" signal that Israeli visual art, having devoted much of its energy to recording the drama of building the Jewish state, is finally looking inward to some of the neglected cracks in the edifice.

"Hamsin," which cost $350,000, chronicles the tensions that arise between Jewish farmers and their Arab neighbors over government plans to confiscate large tracts of Arab-owned land for Jewish development.

The movie ends with a downpour of rain that breaks the hamsin, the hot dry wind that chokes the Galilee and symbolizes the pressure ridge of communal strife that has built up. But the implication is clear: Next year's hamsin will be hotter and more oppressive, and this time the rain may not be enough to purge the soul.

The film contains some powerful images. The huge trucks and bulldozers ranging over the parched, rocky Arab land are a bleak metaphor for Israel's crushing military might.

A sequence in which Gedaliah, a rich young Israeli farmer, and Khaled, an Arab worker, playfully spray each other with a garden hose, is a haunting image of the idyll that might have been between Jews and Arabs. The whole concept of

The French Indian Ocean colony of Mauritius was taken by the British in 1810 because it constituted a threat to British vessels trading with India. The island became a British possession under the 1814 Treaty of Paris, which established peace between Britain and France. The island, claimed by the French in 1715, had been called Ile de France.

Opera Replaces Tenor

CHICAGO (AP) - Giuliano Ciannella will replace supertenor Luciano Pavarotti in an upcoming production of Verdi's "Luisa Miller" after Pavarotti bowed out because of family problems.

Ardis Krainik, general manager of the Lyric Opera of Chicago, issued a statement Thursday saying Pavarotti had to cancel his Chicago performances and return home to Modena, Italy, because of "serious family problems." She did not elaborate.

Ciannella, a newcomer to Chicago, is now singing the role of Lt. B.F. Pinkerton in the Lyric's new production of "Madama Butterfly," which received enthusiastic reviews from the city's critics.

"Fortunately Ciannella's repertoire includes the leading tenor role in 'Luisa Miller,'" Ms. Krainik said.

She said the production, which begins Dec. 1, has been sold out since spring.

Cities Gear Up For Christmas

By STEVEN K. PAULSON
Associated Press Writer
With the Thanksgiving turkey barely pushed out of the way, North Carolina communities are already getting into the Christmas spirit.

Glenn Mays of the North Carolina Division of Travel and Tourism says the activities will "encompass a myriad of traditions both old and new."

In North Carolina's oldest town, Bath, handmade ornaments will adorn Christmas trees during festivities Dec. 12-22, with several madrigal celebrations scheduled.

Morehead Planetarium at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill will present a Christmas program on the star of Bethlehem through Jan. 10.

In the Gaston County town of Dallas, children will bring handmade ornaments to place on the town Christmas tree Dec. 4.

In Flat Rock, "Conemara," home of famed poet Carl Sandburg, will be decorated and open Dec. 15-Jan. 6.

The North Carolina Shakespeare Festival in High Point is offering matinees and performances of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Another Christmas tradition in North Carolina has been the decorating of McAdenville, which will become "Christmastown, U.S.A." Dec. 3-26. The community of 947 near Gastonia expects more than a million people during this Christmas season, and has set up a half million lights and 275 decorated trees.

The event began in 1956, and has turned into one of the most popular celebrations in the state.

At Weaverville, just north of Asheville, the Zebulon Baird Vance birthplace is going to be decorated in the traditional 1830 period. Hot

FBI Says 'Cycle Gangs' Losing Power In State

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Undercover agents have infiltrated motorcycle gangs in North Carolina, resulting in the arrests of some gang members on drug and prostitution charges and making others "paranoid," an FBI agent says.

Robert Pence, head of the FBI in North Carolina, says undercover police investigations combined with territorial warfare between motorcycle gangs have taken their toll on the gangs in North Carolina. Pence says their power has drastically declined during the past 15 months.

"The major gangs in North Carolina are not organized," Pence said this week at a news conference to announce the indictment and arrest of 14 Outlaws gang members or associates in North Carolina and Georgia on narcotics and prostitution charges.

Among those arrested this week was the president of the Outlaws motorcycle gang in North Carolina. Pence says more arrests may be forthcoming.

In addition, many gang leaders have been killed in battles with rival groups over territory in which to sell drugs and run prostitution rackets, he said. Others have been arrested and jailed in an FBI crackdown ranging from Florida to Tennessee.

Gang members' fear of penetration by masquerading federal agents is so great that some have abandoned their motorcycles in favor of cars and vans that attract less attention, he said.

"And the gang members are paranoid," he said. "They think they are being surveilled at every turn."

Pence said gang members closely followed the FBI's highly-publicized Colcor probe into corruption in southeastern North Carolina. That investigation resulted in the arrests of more than 20 people, including a state representative and district court judge, on charges ranging from bribery to drug dealing.

"They (gang members) seemed to know what was happening or what was about to happen sometimes before even those involved had gotten the word," he said.

Earlier this month, agents raided an Outlaws clubhouse in Knoxville, Tenn., making 16 arrests and seizing records which Pence said answered some questions about gang activities.

Pence says those records helped prove that Hell's Angels activity and power in North Carolina and South Carolina was not as great as some officials had speculated, Pence said.

Mount Everest is the world's highest mountain. It was named in 1865 for British surveyor Sir George Everest. The Nepalese call the mountain Sagarmatha, and that name has been given to the 480-square-mile national park which includes three of the world's highest mountains.

Attorney's Condition Improving

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh attorney who was wounded in a shootout with two men who entered his home earlier this week was listed in serious condition early today at the Wake County Medical Center.

A hospital spokeswoman says Karl E. Knudsen's condition had been upgraded from critical to serious condition. Knudsen, 30, suffered a stomach wound in the shootout.

One of the two intruders was killed and the other was seriously injured. The dead man was identified as Roy Clifton Coley III, believed to be from Virginia Beach, Va., said Wake County Medical Examiner Lauren J. Kaasa. The other gunman has not been identified.

The shootings took place after two men came to Knudsen's home early Wednesday night to look at an estimated $8,000 worth of jewelry they had indicated they wanted to buy. Police said the two apparently tried to steal the diamonds, and the shootings resulted from that apparent theft attempt.

Charges had not been filed as of Thursday afternoon, said Raleigh police Lt. William Nipper.

Knudsen's mother, Betty Knudsen, said the shootings occurred after two men entered the attorney's home to look at diamonds Knudsen had advertised for sale. Mrs. Knudsen said she wasn't there, but that her son was able to tell police what happened before going into shock.

Knudsen's wife, Kathy Jones Knudsen, was feeding the couple's 6-week-old daughter Kristen when the two men knocked at the door, the victim's mother said.

Karl Knudsen took them into the den, where the men handed him an envelope the attorney believed contained a cashier's check, police said. Instead, he found a note telling him the men intended to bind him and his family and steal the jewelry, police said.

Kathy Knudsen, in another room, heard her husband say, "Oh, come on now," then heard two shots, Betty Knudsen said.

At that point, one man walked into the living room with Kathy Knudsen and told her to stand up, police quoted Betty Knudsen as saying.

"He (the gunman) pointed the gun right at Kristen's head and looked Kathy right in the eye and cocked the gun and fired it," an officer said. "We surmise that Karl got him first because the bullet just missed them."

Knudsen, who had taped a pistol under a table in the den before meeting with the men, began firing, police said. The gunman, hit in the head and neck, staggered to the front door and fell in the doorway. The second suspect also was shot in the head.

Jurors Visit Relatives Via Live TV

SEATTLE (AP) — Home is 300 miles away for the sequestered jurors hearing a triple-murder case, but they got to spend a little time with their families on Thanksgiving — via closed-circuit television.

The trial is in Everett, just north of Seattle, but the jurors are from Spokane County, across the state in eastern Washington.

Snohomish County Superior Court Judge Dennis Britt refused to let jurors in the three-week-old trial go home for the holidays.

But as Britt looked on Thursday, nine jurors in a studio at KING-TV in Seattle shared holiday conversation with their families in a studio at KREM-TV in Spokane.

One juror, Skip Barron, became misty-eyed at seeing his young son for the first time in several weeks. "It's kind of hard breaking up our team," he said.

Speaking to his son, Rory, Barron said, "You know this is the first time we've been apart for more than a weekend in four years? It's been a long time, it looks like you've already grown about five, six inches."

Britt said he hopes the broadcast made up in part for the inconvenience jurors have endured while hearing the murder case against Charles Rodman Campbell, 28.

The jurors were chosen in Spokane County because of possibly prejudicial pre-trial publicity in western Washington. They have not been allowed to see family and friends since the trial began.

Campbell is charged with aggravated first-degree murder in the deaths of Renae Wicklund, 31; her daughter, Shannah, 8, and a neighbor, Barbara Hendrickson, 51. Their bodies were found, throats cut, April 14 at the Wicklund home in Clearview in Snohomish County.

Campbell was in a prison work-release program at the time of the murders.

Final arguments in the case were scheduled today.

Jurors participating in Thursday's 1½-hour broadcast were called one at a time to view and be viewed.

Juror Sue Herzog told her husband she didn't care if he never again took her to a restaurant. She said "going out to eat three times a day is a bit much" and added she was tired of having "to go everywhere with 15 people."

"It's been a nice experience for the most part," she noted. "It's something I'll remember for a long time."

The camera showed a cast on Barron's foot, which he broke while playing racquetball after jury duty. Rory, in turn, showed his father that he'd lost a tooth.

"I'm proud of your report card," Barron told his son.

Once they overcame their camera shyness, most jurors talked freely about what they'd been doing in their spare time — attending a Seattle SuperSonics basketball game and touring the Seattle waterfront.

All said they would miss "home cooking" on Thanksgiving. The jurors ate at the home of the bailiff.

"I love you too," one juror told her viewers. "I just hate missing cooking for all 50 of you. Bye-bye."

U.S. Soldiers Could Find Their Living Areas In Europe X-Rated

By SUSAN J. SMITH
Associated Press Writer

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Jill Grant looked up at the run-down 19th-century building she calls home and scowled.

"Germans don't live like this," she said, shaking her head with disgust. "You know Germans don't live like this."

About 10 feet away, Mrs. Grant's 2-year-old daughter, Precious, played in front of a building where two sex shows are housed on the ground floor.

"Yeah, those women are out here every night," Mrs. Grant said. "I used to let it bother me but now I just ignore them."

"If I'd known it was going to be like this I never would have come over here."

Mrs. Grant, 20, is the wife of an American soldier stationed in West Germany. She and her husband Gene and their daughter live in a tiny apartment in a former Wiesbaden hotel, smack in the middle of a strip of girlie cabarets.

About 42,000 U.S. soldiers in Europe live off base, Army headquarters in Heidelberg says. In West Germany, where most of the Army is stationed, many of these soldiers and their families live in low-rent, run-down housing — all they can afford in this country's overcrowded housing market.

On base, things aren't much better. Gen. Frederick Kroesen, commander in chief of the U.S. Army in Europe, said in a recent interview that housing remains the Army's No. 1 European problem, with a worrisome effect on morale.

"The U.S. Army in Europe's living facilities are old, often crowded, and insufficient," a report from Kroesen's office said last year. "Soldiers are not happy with the facilities that they live with daily."

If a soldier is in the barracks, chances are he is in a building that was constructed during the Hitler era or before. Forty-six percent of the barracks were constructed before World War I, and in Butzbach, bachelor officers are living in a 16th-century castle.

Most of the Army's family housing was built in the 1950s and is now showing the effects of 30 years of high occupant turnover, with plaster falling, walls leaking, plumbing breaking and old electrical wiring posing a hazard.

But some of the worst stories are about people like the Grants, who live off base "on the economy," as the Army puts it.

The report from Kroesen's office noted:

— "A sergeant in Stuttgart has a three-bedroom apartment over a sawmill. He and his wife, who is pregnant, share a single bed and have a fold-down bathtub.

— "A private first class in Mannheim rents an apartment for himself and his wife that has no hot water in the kitchen. His wife washes the dishes in the bathtub.

— "A specialist in Hanau who is entitled to quarters moved to a one-room economy apartment when he learned that there was a 44-week wait for quarters. He pays about $350 each month for rent and utilities, which leaves barely enough money for food.

Mrs. Grant and the other GI families in her building complain there is not enough heat and not enough hot water. There are too many ants, roaches, mice rats and break-ins — four break-ins within two weeks in August alone.

The worst problem is lack of space. The Grants all sleep in the same room, which is about 10 feet by 12 feet and doubles as the living room. It is the only real room in the apartment, which also has a small bath and a kitchen nook too narrow for both a table and chairs.

Home Area

A former hotel, the Goldener Brunnen, which now serves as housing for U.S. servicemen and their families in Wiesbaden, West Germany, does double duty. It not only houses the servicemen but also includes two sex clubs. About 42,000 American soldiers in Europe live off base. In West Germany, many of the soldiers and their families are forced into low-rent, rundown housing by an overcrowded housing market. (AP Laserphoto)

FTC Head Says Law Too Tough

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government demands for proof in advertising may be going too far, the head of the Federal Trade Commission says.

Some companies are precluded from passing on information that could be useful to the prospective buyer because the FTC has such stiff demands for substantiation, Chairman James C. Miller III said.

The commission's consumer protection chief, Timothy J. Muris, agrees.

His favorite example is a 1975 case in which the agency barred General Motors Corp. from quoting a Road and Track Magazine report on the Vega.

The FTC held that the automaker couldn't repeat the magazine's claim that the vehicle, since discontinued, was "the best-handling passenger car" unless it had scientific evidence to prove it. "Thus," says Muris, "the commission prohibited the automaker from providing valuable opinion information from a reputable publication."

"By requiring very high amounts of substantiation, we necessarily increase the risk of prohibiting true claims," Muris said in a 33-page memo to Miller.

Advertisers now are required to have evidence in hand before making their claims. Miller hasn't shaped specific proposals for loosening the rules, but he is circulating the issue among his fellow commissioners.

A notice of possible revisions eventually will be published in the Federal Register, inviting public comment.

Talk about weakening the program has made consumer advocates and the advertising industry unusual allies. "It's actually quite delightful," said Barb Pequet of the National Consumers League.

"Anything that undercuts the need to tell the truth is stupid," said David Greenberg, legislative director of the Consumer Federation of America.

Howard H. Bell, president of the American Advertising Federation, said there is a danger "the public will assume that advertisers will not have to support claims. Public reliance on truthful advertising is important to the industry."

He said it was "certainly appropriate" for the FTC to review the amount of evidence that the program requires, but "my concern is that they not go beyond that ... that they don't say a white lie is OK, that an economic injury is the only test."

Peter Allport, president of Association of National Advertisers, said he, too, believes that parts of the ad program "have been abused and parts could be modified." But he added: "On the whole, we support the substantiation program. We hope the commission will proceed so as to not subtract from the credibility of industry."

Tar Heel Tree To Be Displayed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A 20-foot North Carolina Fraser fir — what some have called "the Cadillac of Christmas trees" — is headed for the Blue Room at the White House.

A smaller 10-foot fir will deck the halls of President and Mrs. Reagan's personal quarters.

The trees are part of some 2.2 million trees that will be cut statewide this year at a $23 million profit.

The two trees going to the White House were grown in Ashe County, which along with Alleghany, Watauga and Avery counties, dominates the state's Christmas tree crop.

The National Christmas Tree Association in Milwaukee ranks North Carolina as eighth nationally in Christmas tree production, with 2,000 growers raising trees on 30,000 acres.

"This year, we're providing 6 percent of the nation's Christmas trees," said William T. Huxster, forest resources specialist with the North Carolina State Agricultural Extension Service. "We have in the ground 15 percent of the nation's future Christmas trees. We have an awful lot of expansion in the ground."

This year's crop is 300,000 trees larger and worth about $2 million more than last year. Farmers estimate per-acre production about $2,000 under perfect conditions, with a gross profit from each acre of $15,000 to $20,000.

"The quality is good and the production is up a little bit," Huxster said. "We're shipping 80 percent of our production out of state. We grow far more trees than North Carolina can consume."

Huxster says growing Christmas trees has become a full-time occupation.

"Virtually every Christmas tree that come to market in 1982 was planted to be harvested as a Christmas tree," Huxster said. "Back in grandpa's day, we all went to the woods to cut our Christmas tree. We don't go to the woods anymore."

Although the mountains' Fraser fir constitutes 60 percent of state production, increased attention is being paid to varieties grown in eastern North Carolina — primarily in Wake, Johnston, Robeson and New Hanover counties.

These varieties include the white pine, Virginia pine, and Eastern red cedar as well as some Douglas fir and Scotch Pine.
