Thunderstorms, Twisters Wreak Havoc In Midwest

By BETSY BROWN KRAFT
Associated Press Writer

A freak December wave of tornadoes tore through three states in the Mississippi Valley, killing six people, injuring more than 140 and leaving hundreds homeless today from wind damage or floods caused by thunderstorms.

Heavy rain from the thunderstorms and twisters in Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois also swelled rivers to flood stage, leaving water waist-high in some homes and 3½ feet deep in streets.

A flash-flood watch was posted this morning in northwest and west central Indiana after a possible tornado severely damaged a storm door and window company in Lowell, police said. One person died in a storm-related traffic accident in the Chicago area and up to three people were missing when a pickup truck was swept down a flooded creek in Normal, Ill.

The violent storms were touched off Thursday when a cold front moving east bumped into unseasonably warm air that was setting record temperatures across the Ohio Valley, forecasters said.

The twisters were "very unusual for this time of year," said Hugh Crowther of the National Weather Service in Kansas City, Mo.

But the West got a break when skies cleared after a storm that killed 18 people as it marched from the Pacific to the Dakotas headed into Canada. And most of the nation enjoyed balmy days that set records for the date.

The twisters killed three people in Arkansas and three in Illinois, and injured an estimated 86 people, authorities said. In Missouri, tornadoes injured 63 more.

In Izard County, Ark., a woman who tried to drive her car over a flood-washed bridge was missing. "The sheriff found an empty vehicle in the creek," said Deputy Jeff Sanders.

School was canceled today in at least three Arkansas counties because of flooding. Overnight flash-flooding forced the evacuation of hundreds of people west of Hot Springs.

One victim died when a trailer park in Alexander, Ark., was hit by tornado winds, damaging up to 175 mobile homes.

"It's mostly nothing left but slabs," said state police Lt. John Bailey.

When the storm hit the victim's home, "The tornado picked it up and carried it across the street," said Pat Hampel, 28, who watched. "It looked like a lumber truck had been dumped on it."

A nearby car "was laid open like somebody had put a grenade in it," Hampel said.

Funnel clouds touched down in town after town in Arkansas, hitting especially hard in Alexander, western Little Rock and rural Rose Bud. About eight tornadoes, some touching down more than once, moved along two general paths, said forecaster George Wilken.

Up to 30,000 Arkansas Power & Light Co. customers lost electricity during the storm, but power was restored to all but 5,000 by late Thursday night.

Water from the Little Buffalo River rushed over a bridge in Jasper, and forced 150 people in Parthenon to flee their houses.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., sent President Reagan a telegram Thursday asking for federal assistance for the state, an aide said.

Authority Acts On Townhouse Project

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Housing Authority has agreed to form a corporation that would be charged with the sole function of providing tax-exempt bond financing for a new 40-unit townhouse development off East 10th Street.

A resolution indicating the authority's intention to apply for a charter to form the Greenville Housing Development Corp. was adopted at a special call meeting Thursday morning.

Endorsement of the agency's role in the project financing took place after representatives of the Westminster Co. of Greensboro and Highland Mortgage Co. of Raleigh approached the authority on the possibility of creating a corporation to provide financing for Greentree Village.

Jim Tanner from Highland Mortgage, which would be the mortgage servicer for the project, said at Thursday's meeting that the proposed GHDA would issue $1.2 million in bonds and neither the corporation nor its individual members would incur any liability. The authority, if it chooses, would administer the housing assistance payment (HAP) contract on behalf of the Department of Housing and Urban Development for the project owners and would receive a monthly per-unit fee for the services.

Tanner said the formation of a corporation to issue bonds is a "tried and tested financing vehicle" that has been successful since legislation authorized such practices a few years ago.

He said that the developers, acting through a limited three-pronged partnership with Westminster as the managing general partner, has until Dec. 31 to secure financing and have everything in place for the project.

The corporation, which would probably be made up of from three to five members of the Housing Authority, would only be required to meet annually to review an audit, Tanner said, and would be under no obligation relative to the operation of the units.

The bonds would be sold by an underwriting firm in New York and the loan used to secure the bonds would be FHA-insured, said Tanner. The project would be 100 percent Section 8 with occupants meeting income guidelines and receiving housing assistance payments as regulated by HUD.

The development, located behind Hardee's near King's Row apartments, would include 26 two-bedroom units and 14 three-bedroom townhouses. Two of the units would be designed for utilization by handicapped renters.

Tanner said that a second meeting would be required with the authority to approve the specifics of the financing package.

Joe Laney, executive director of the authority, said the City Council has been informed of the matter and has offered verbal endorsement of the agency's role in creating the corporation. Laney said the council feels that by administering the housing assistance payments the agency will have at least a degree of input as to the operation of the project. That situation does not exist with other privately operated projects such as Lakeview Terrace on Hooker Road.

As HAP administrator, the authority could prevail upon Highland Mortgage or HUD to cancel the management contract if it feels the project is not being managed in a satisfactory manner by Westminster, Tanner said.

The project was originally intended to be financed through the North Carolina Housing Finance Agency but the development was not included on the agency's last bond sale. A developer in Tennessee had secured initial project approval but abandoned efforts to build the units.

Unemployment Rate At Level Of 10.8 Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. unemployment rate soared to a post-Depression record of 10.8 percent in November, the government reported today. With 440,000 people joining the jobless rolls, there were 12 million Americans out of work.

Unemployment rates for virtually every category of worker — whites, full-time employees, blue-collar and white-collar, adult men and women and Hispanics — reached the highest levels in four decades, the Labor Department said.

Private economists said unemployment was expected to worsen in December, regardless of any Christmas holiday surge in retail spending.

Unemployment has risen for 10 consecutive months.

The 0.4 percentage point increase in the jobless rate was more than enough to eclipse the previous post-Depression record of 10.4 percent established only a month earlier, the highest since 1940.

Office-Holders To Be Sworn In On Monday

Swearing in ceremonies for newly elected officials who will serve and represent area citizens are scheduled for Monday in Greenville, Raleigh and Washington, D.C.

First District Rep. Walter Jones, a Farmville Democrat, will be sworn in for his 10th term in the U.S. House of Representatives during ceremonies in the nation's capital.

Incumbent 9th District Reps. Sam D. Bundy of Farmville and Ed N. Warren of Greenville will begin their eighth and second terms, respectively, in the N.C. General Assembly after taking their oaths in Raleigh.

Sen. Vernon White of Winterville will also be in Raleigh Monday to be sworn in for his eighth term in the state Senate, representing the 9th Senatorial District.

Locally, three county commissioners will be sworn in Monday at 11 a.m. at the county office building on West Fifth Street. Burney Tucker, who has served since an appointment in 1972, and R. Kelly Barnhill, a commissioner since 1980, will begin new terms. Charles McLawhorn, who was elected in November to the seat held for 28 years by retiring B. Alton Gardner, will also be sworn in. Superior or Court Judge David Reid of Greenville will administer the oaths.

Reid will also conduct swearing in ceremonies at 11:30 a.m. Monday in Superior Court for incumbent Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson, who is beginning his fifth term, and incumbent Pitt County Clerk of Superior Court Sandra Gaskins, who has served since May of 1978.

Tom Haigwood, elected in November as the new district attorney for Prosecutorial District 3-A—Pitt County, will take his oath on Jan. 1. Haigwood, formerly chief assistant district attorney, succeeds Eli Bloom, who did not seek re-election after a 48-year career as solicitor, prosecutor and district attorney.

Robert G. Little and Ralph C. Tucker were sworn in Thursday to new terms on the five-member Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District Board of Supervisors.

Reagan Taking Drugs Control Message To Next Tour Hosts

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — President Reagan, moving north on his four-nation tour of Latin America, is likely to run into resistance as he takes his campaign for strict narcotics controls to drug-rich Colombia.

Reagan left this Brazilian capital today for a half-day visit to Bogota, situated 8,630 feet high in an Andean valley, and talks with Colombia's new president, Belisario Betancur. State Department officials said Reagan was prepared to discuss Colombia's huge exports of marijuana and cocaine to the United States.

"There is likely to be some divergence of opinion," said one official, who requested anonymity.

The reason is twofold, said the official: Colombia believes the drug abuse problem must be settled in the United States, and the Reagan administration believes it is a problem of both the supplier and the purchaser.

In addition, Colombia has become relatively wealthy in recent years with $5 billion in foreign currency reserves, largely because it supplies 80 percent of the cocaine and 70 percent of the marijuana consumed in the United States, a U.S. State Department official said.

On the eve of Reagan's visit, demonstrators burned paper American flags and an effigy of Uncle Sam near Bogota's Bolivar Plaza, where Reagan was to lay a wreath today. The group of about 400 people shouted "Yankees out of Colombia," "Reagan out of Colombia" and "Down with imperialism."

In addition, a bomb exploded exploded Thursday outside a Mormon church in a government-built apartment area named after the late President John F. Kennedy. Kennedy, the only other American president to visit Colombia, dedicated the housing project in 1961.

Colombia is the second stop on Reagan's five-day tour, which ends in Costa Rica and Honduras on Saturday. After spending the afternoon in Bogota, he planned to fly to Costa Rica tonight, for a brief meeting with the provisional president of El Salvador.

In a written statement, Reagan said Central America faces "enormous challenges: economic recession, social injustice and the cynical efforts of outside powers to impose non-democratic systems of government on them.

"But I am confident," Reagan added, "we have the will and the ability to overcome these challenges."

Reagan wound up his first stop, in Brazil, with a speech Thursday in Sao Paulo and then spent the night in Brasilia. He proposed that Brazilians and Americans train together for a future flight on the U.S. space shuttle. Brazilian President Joao Baptista Figueiredo, 64, quickly volunteered for the mission.

A senior State Department official traveling with Reagan said the Colombian drug business generated as much as $2 billion in economic activity, in a nation of 27 million where the per capita income last year was $1,269.

In addition to the drug problem, Reagan is likely to talk with Betancur about Latin America after the Falklands war, in which the United States sided with Britain over Argentina; Western economic problems; and the leftist insurgencies in Central America, said the State Department official, who asked not to be identified.

Colombia has had some problems with guerrilla activity, and the U.S. official said the Bogota government was trying to transform an insurgent group known as M19, believed to have had some Cuban support, into peaceful political body by granting it amnesty.

The Reagan administration is proposing $12 million in military aid for Colombia.

ANTIQUE SILVER...made in North Carolina has been acquired by the N.C. Museum of History Associates for the permanent collection. Pictured are tablespoons handcrafted by Thomas Machen, a cream pitcher by New Bern silversmith Freeman Woods and a tankard made by Bernard Dupuy of Raleigh.

Silver Pieces Purchased For Museum

Four pieces of antique North Carolina-made silver have been purchased for the State Museum of History through funds provided by the support group, the N.C. Museum of History Associates.

The new acquisitions were announced by Mrs. Baxter A. Richardson, Pitt County chairman for the associates. Others serving on the committee are Mrs. W.S. Corbitt Jr., Mrs. Edward Davis, Mrs. Howard Dawkins Jr., Mrs. Connor Merritt Jr., Mrs. R.L. Mills Jr., Mrs. Mark E. Tipton, Mrs. Ross J. Shuping, Mrs. Michael Weaver, Mrs. Less Worthington and Mrs.

George Garrett. According to Mary Reynolds Peacock, editor, "Cuten's Silversmiths of North Carolina," the silver purchases include two tablespoons handcrafted by New Bern silversmith Thomas Machen in the early 1800's. "With the exception of one piece in the collection of the Museum of Early Southern Decorative Arts in Winston-Salem, the spoons are the only known silver which carries the Machen mark," Mrs. Peacock said.

Two pieces of N.C. holloware were the other recent purchases, a cream pitcher made by New Bern silversmith Freeman Woods and a tankard made by Bernard Dupuy of Raleigh. Mrs. Peacock said that less than 30 pieces of North Carolina-made holloware are known to exist.

A coffee and museum day on silver was held at the home of Mrs. Dawkins this morning. Prospective members were invited to see a display of silver and a slide presentation from the museum.

Mrs. Dawkins' Williamsburg home was decorated in the Williamsburg Christmas tradition. Greeting guests were Mrs. Corbitt, Mrs. Worthington, Mrs. Dawkins, Mrs. Tom Taft, area chairman, and Mrs. Richardson, county chairman.

Others assisting were Mrs. Jack Edwards, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. Garrett, Mrs. Weaver, Mrs. Merritt and Mrs. Shuping.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

ANTIQUE GUIDES
NEW YORK (AP) — Publisher Alfred A. Knopf has come out with the first four volumes, in what will be a series of at least 10, of collectors' guides to American antiques.

The text is comprehensive — a price guide is included — and there are plentiful illustrations, clear color photographs and neat line drawings.

The first four volumes deal with chairs, tables, sofas and beds; chests, cupboards, desks and other pieces; quilts, coverlets, rugs and samplers; glass tableware, bowls and vases.

Other volumes now in preparation include pottery and porcelain, folk art, dolls and a second book on glass.

Dear Abby

Male Doesn't Like Jeans

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old, handsome schoolteacher, 5 foot 7, 160 pounds with brown hair and hazel eyes. My problem: I'm having a terrible time finding girls my type to date.

I am shy, old-fashioned, respectable, modest and quiet. I've tried churches, dances, nightclubs, dating services, and I am at a dead end. How does a guy like me meet a nice, quiet, shy, homebody-type girl with old-fashioned moral values who likes to dress up? I despise seeing a girl in jeans!

Is there some way I can make contact with the kind of girl I'm looking for?

I am marriage-minded and want a permanent relationship. I would appreciate any advice you can give me. I am tired of one-night stands and getting hurt. Thank you.

WANTS A WIFE IN MASS.

DEAR WANTS: You sound desperate. (Maybe that's your problem — you're too eager.) Ask your neighbors, colleagues and friends if they know a girl who would be interested in meeting a respectable, quiet, modest, handsome, 26-year-old schoolteacher. Accept every blind date you get — even with a girl who wears jeans. Maybe you can talk her out of them.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the 14-year-old who wanted to have a party in the family room, but her father said he uses that room for sitting and relaxing during the evening, and suggested she have her party in the basement, garage or outside.

I had the same problem when I was 15 and wanted my first boy-girl party in our living room. My father was also concerned about disturbing his rest. (He goes to bed at 9:30 p.m. and his bedroom was in close proximity to the proposed party.)

Here's how my father solved the problem: He actually set up a bed in the garage and went to sleep at 9:30! It was OK, but I remember how embarrassed I was when a couple of guests walked near the garage and heard him snoring! I have a nice father, but he's a little weird.

ORINDA

DEAR ORINDA: A father who can fall asleep at 9:30 while his daughter has her first boy-girl party is one in a million. Most fathers in that situation would have their ears to the wall until the last kid went home.

DEAR ABBY: A correspondent from Durango, Colo., wrote: "The most effective way to deal with obscene phone calls is to keep a referee's whistle near the phone. One sharp blast and the caller hangs up, never to call again."

Poor suggestion. One sharp blast could do serious eardrum damage. "Whistle Blower" errs again when he says the caller would not call again. He'd call all right, after getting a whistle of his own.

A.K. IN MO.

DEAR A.K.: Several readers were quick to blow the whistle on "Durango Whistle Blower" for the reason you pointed out. One even cited a case where the obscene phone caller sued his victim for permanently damaging his eardrum — and won!

CONFIDENTIAL TO A. IN ALBUQUERQUE: Voltaire said, "The secret of being a bore is to tell everything." (A truism — but hardly a secret.)

Happy Birthday,
Minnie

Khoshnaw-Joyner Vows Solemnized Sunday

United in marriage Sunday were Jeffrey Lane Joyner and Hero Khoshnaw. The bride is the daughter of Ms. Amineh Khoshnaw of Austin, Tex. Parents of the bridegroom are Dr. and Mrs. Wilton G. Joyner of Greenville.

The wedding took place at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Bartlett. The Rev. H. Lawson Smith performed the double ring ceremony. A program of piano music was provided by Ken McLawhorn. Revalene T. Bartlett, aunt of the bridegroom, directed the wedding.

Escorted by Joe Styron, the bride wore a floor length gown of white bridal satin. Its V-neckline was accented with a stand-up ruffle and the long sleeves were gathered full at the wrist to a wristband. The waistline was emphasized with a cummerbund sash. She wore a halo headpiece of pastel silk flowers. The gown and headpiece were fashioned by the mother of the bridegroom. The bride carried an arm bouquet of lavender and pink statice, yellow lilies, pink alstromerias and pink roses accented with baby's breath tied with a white bow.

Anne Joyner, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor and wore a formal gown of mint green qiana styled with spaghetti straps and gathered bodice and skirt. She wore a halter styled jacket of sheer floral organza which tied in front. She carried a single red rose.

The bride's sisters served as bridesmaids including Hewi K. Mason, whose dress was of yellow qiana, and

MRS. JEFFREY LANE JOYNER

Selma Khoshnaw, who wore a pink qiana gown. Their dresses were styled identically to that of the maid of honor. They carried a single rose matching their dress.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Matt Joyner, brother of the bridegroom, and Bakhtiar Khoshnaw, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bridegroom wore a dress of dusty pink qiana. She was given a corsage of red roses. Mary B. Joyner, grandmother of the bridegroom, was remembered with a white rose corsage.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High School and attended Pitt Community College. She will continue her education at Wake Community College. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by Telerent Leasing Corp. in Raleigh.

After a wedding trip the couple will live in Garner.

Couple Celebrates 49th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Potts were honored at a reception in celebration of their 49th anniversary Nov. 14 at the fellowship hall of Free Union Free Will Baptist Church near Walstonburg.

Host and hostesses were Ray Potts, Donna Rasberry and Ramona Marchant, children of the honorees. Guests were greeted and registered by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Carraway Sr., sister of Mrs. Potts.

The registry table was decorated with a collage of pictures of the honored couple and an arrangement of pink carnations.

Mrs. Potts wore a lavender dress accented with a corsage of white carnations.

Guests were received by the honorees and their son.

Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Potts

The mantel was banked with magnolia and pink lighted tapers. A potted yellow mum was placed near the fire place.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of pink and white carnations interspersed with white lighted tapers. Mrs. Rasberry was assisted by Mrs. John Ward, sister of Mrs. Potts, in serving the three-tiered wedding cake. Mrs. Marchant assisted by Rachel Potts, daughter-in-law of the honorees, poured punch. Assisting were Frances Joyner, Almata Joyner, Wendy Joyner, Audrey Ellis, Debra Brown and Hazel Hughes.

Mr. and Mrs. A.Y. Potts, brother of Potts, said good-byes to the approximately 100 guests attending.

Duplicate Winners

Mrs. Blanche Kittrell and Mrs. Bertha Jones tied with Mrs. Walter Harbin and Mrs. C.D. Elks in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game played at Planters Bank. Their game percentage was 583.

Others placing were Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. Charles Mitchell.

DON'T FORGET ... ONLY 3 DAYS UNTIL super tuesday

Unlike its blackberry or blueberry cousins, the cranberry grows in sand bog, not on a bush.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

One of our sons is a teacher. The other night he was on the phone with a contemporary when I heard him say, "Only my parents."

When he hung up, I said, "What's up?"

He said, "Steve said his class was having nostalgia day and wanted to know if we had anything old hanging around from the '50s and I said..."

I wish I hadn't asked. I'll never figure out why this generation has been so intrigued with the '50s. It was a nothing decade style-wise. Men spent their entire time buttoning and unbuttoning those miserable double-breasted suits. Women dragged around in Dior length skirts looking like Russian street cleaners, and in 10 years I never saw anyone who looked like John Travolta in "Grease."

What you saw in the '50s wasn't unique. What we were was. Morality-wise, we were Neanderthal compared to today's youth.

You want nostalgia? Play this on your components.

Girls never called guys. Ever. If they did and their mothers answered the phone, they hung up on you and said, "What kind of girl calls a boy?"

When you left the house in the morning for school, you spent the whole day there. If you didn't, a teacher checked on you every period and before you got home, your mother had received a phone call.

Mothers were home to receive the phone calls. No one knows what they did all day, but you never had to have a door key to get in and they always nagged at you not to put your books down on the kitchen counter or something awful would happen to you.

Television was just getting into the home in the '50s and not all homes had them. Those that did had sets that were dinky and usually two men sat about six inches from them on a piano bench to watch a televised game while the rest of the room talked.

In the movies, everyone who was married slept in twin beds. When men sat on the edge of the bed and kissed their wives, one foot had to remain on the floor.

Not only did kids not call their parents by first name, most of them didn't even know the name.

It must seem like a weird period to today's youth: License plates didn't spell out anything, clothes didn't have labels on the outside and parental discretion hadn't been invented yet.

Don't laugh. In 30 years, you'll be nostalgic.

Kiffin Was Left Dangling

Once again the world of super competitive athletics on the college campus disappoints with the resignation of N.C. State University football coach Monte Kiffin.

Kiffin made it clear as to why he was resigning. "Quite honestly, I do not feel that the support I have received from the athletic department was sufficient to my needs and the needs of the football program. And further I cannot find the assurance from the athletic director (Willis Casey) that such support will be forthcoming in the future."

Kiffin had been left dangling for an extended period as he attempted to find out about his future. One writer said it succinctly when he commented that for days Monte Kiffin had been left hanging and twisting in the breeze.

It is no surprise that he has decided to resign when those who were to determine his fate as head football coach could not seem to make up their minds. A determination should have been made far sooner than this as to whether Kiffin was to be retained. Nor can we agree with N.C. State Chancellor Bruce Pulton's barb at the press. "I feel the media has put Kiffin and his family under tremendous pressure these past few weeks with speculative stories," Poulton said. If a decision on Kiffin's employment had been made swiftly there would have been no reason to speculate on his future.

There will, of course, be a successor to Monte Kiffin... and he has already received his first instructions. He has been told to win and win quickly and if he is knowledgeable about major college athletics, as he will have to be, he will do a lot of things to win. Hopefully, he will be of such character that he won't resort to recruiting rules violations.

Living Within Our Means

Even more than spending, taxes seem to be on the minds of North Carolina's citizens and government leaders.

There will be problems meeting the budget and providing reasonable salary increases for teachers and state employees, let alone providing for any expansion of programs.

The North Carolina Consumers Council has begun a campaign to end the food sales tax, with recommendations for finding the funds elsewhere. But the decision also seems to have been made that there will be no general tax increase next year, with only the possibility of additional tax increases for highway construction being left open.

Unless economic conditions change the alternative will be a period of little growth in state government and very likely there will have to be budget trimming in some areas, perhaps will some personnel positions being eliminated.

It will be a period when North Carolina will have to live within its means.

Urge 'Ridesharing'

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — The energy crisis is long gone from the front pages of the nation's newspapers, and there's so much gasoline on the open market that prices have been coming down. That doesn't mean, however, that the Department of Transportation has lost interest in reducing gasoline consumption even further. A DOT study committee recently began work on legislation that would make it more profitable to drive to work with a friend.

In DOT's bureaucratic parlance, carpooling is called ridesharing. The term includes vanpooling, buspooling and mass transit. The principle is the same. If four people ride to work together, they use one quarter of the gas they'd need to drive in separate cars, and traffic is reduced.

Despite the obvious financial savings, ridesharing hasn't caught on in any great measure. Most people still ride to work alone. As committee chairman David King said, "We're trying to change behavior patterns which are ingrained habits." He suggests that "rather than doing this with penalties, we do it with incentives." A piece of model legislation formulated by the National Committee on Uniform Laws and Ordinances is serving as their starting point. The committee will work in North Carolina, and suggest legislation to the 1983 session of the General Assembly.

Their model bill recom-

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

mends that the state expand its ridesharing program for state employees and open new suburban and rural parking lots where commuters can meet before ridesharing into the city.

For the public, there are two kinds of incentives. Some aim to make it more profitable for the employers to conduct ridesharing programs for their workers. They suggest allowing employers to deduct from their income tax all costs associated with administering a ridesharing program, and giving tax credits and accelerated depreciation schedules for vehicles bought for ridesharing programs. Supporters of these ideas say they would complement the good business incentives that already exist for employers. For example, R.J. Reynolds, a national leader in employer-run ridesharing programs, cut down its need for employee parking spaces and used the land instead for a plant addition.

Some members of the committee argue that the employer doesn't need any tax incentives. They'd prefer that incentives be directed more toward the commuter. One incentive would make mass transit fares and the costs of carpooling tax deductible. So if you bought a monthly pass on the city bus, or paid your neighbor $4 a week to ride to work with him, you could deduct that money from your taxes.

Workers who bought vans and then conducted vanpools would be eligible for tax credits and accelerated depreciation schedules. They'd also get a break on their vehicle registration fee. Any bank which loaned money to

Andropov's Honeymoon

"What do you plan to do about Yuri Andropov?" I asked a Soviet correspondent in Washington.

"We always give a new leader of the Soviet Union a honeymoon for six months before the press goes after him," he said. "The Soviet people don't want us to be too cruel at the beginning. After all, he won an overwhelming mandate and he should be given a chance," he said.

"We do the same thing in this country," I said. "But if Andropov doesn't fulfill his campaign promises, then the power of the Soviet media will turn against him."

"I didn't know you could do that in your country." "We certainly can and we will. Our readers expect of our press and television is to tell the truth about our politicians no matter what position they hold in government."

"Do you think the fact that Andropov was head of the KGB might hurt his image with the people?"

"No. You people elected a former actor as your President, and it had no effect on Reagan's image."

"But an actor is not the same as a KGB director."

"It is in the Soviet Union. Our people revere the KGB. Anyone who rises to the top is in touch with ALL the people. He can identify with the workers, and the peasants, and the people trying to scratch out a living in the cold Siberian wastes. He knows about crime, and he has dealt with subversive elements in neighboring states. The KGB is much better training ground than Warner Brothers."

"Will the social life in Moscow pick up with Andropov in the Kremlin?"

"It always does when you get a new leader. Mrs.

ruble. If he can do all this before he dies he could go down as one of the greatest Soviet leaders in history. But if his economic plan doesn't work we'll be as tough on him as we were on Brezhnev."

"Do you think he can do it?"

"He's a great communicator, thanks to his days in the KGB. And he has a lot of goodwill going for him. The people want change, but he's going to have to work closely with the leaders of the Presidium to get his programs through."

"I guess he'll have to through a few bones to the right wing of the Communist Party since they did so much work in his election," I said.

"He will. Andropov feels very strongly about prayers in school."

"Who would the schoolchildren pray to?"

"Marx and Lenin. Who else is there."

"So we can't look for anything critical in the Soviet press about Andropov for at least six months."

"That's just about as long as the honeymoon will last. Then the Kremlin correspondents will get bored and we'll start telling it as it is."

"At which point Andropov will say you people are distorting everything he is trying to do to save the country."

"We're used to that in the Soviet Union. When the honeymoon is over every Soviet leader thinks the press is giving him a raw deal. But all Andropov can do is send us to a Gulag for 20 years and you know as well as I do, the Soviet public would never stand for that."

ART BUCHWALD

Andropov is now working with her decorator to change the living quarters, as she's very unhappy with what Mrs. Brezhnev did. She has ordered new china for state dinners. She believes the Kremlin belongs to all the Soviet people and she wants them to be proud of it. She's also ordered new clothes because she feels that the Russians pay close attention to what the first lady of the Secretary of the Communist Party wears."

"Style has always meant a lot to the Soviets," I said.

"It's good newspaper copy. But as far as we newspapermen are concerned it's what Andropov does that counts. He inherited a stagnant economy from Brezhnev and he was elected because he promised to lower the inflation rate, balance the

'Improbable' Can Happen

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy is out of the race but not out of the running.

Too much can happen in 20 months for his renunciation of the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination to be accepted as writ.

A divorce can be granted; the pain — and the publicity — can subside.

The ambitions Kennedy has shelved can reassert themselves in altered circumstances.

The government can change in ways that summon a man back to political battle. It has happened before, to Kennedy's brother.

Power blocs can shift, candidates can come and go.

Kennedy said overriding obligations to his children kept him from the competition. But children grow, and change, even in a year.

Too much of that would have to happen for it to be anything but a remote possibility that Kennedy will be back by Democratic convention time. But it is a possibility.

In 1967, Sen. Robert F. Kennedy said he was working for the re-election of President Lyndon B. Johnson. He said he would not enter the presidential primaries and would, if necessary, file sworn renunciations of candidacy to keep his name from being entered anywhere.

Less than a year later, Johnson was a political cripple, the war in Vietnam had intensified, and Robert Kennedy was running for president. He was assassinated before the Democrats made their choice.

Ever since, Edward Kennedy's name has been the common denominator of Democratic presidential campaigns. In 1968, he stayed away from the convention and renounced a fledgling draft movement. In 1972, he stayed out by signing papers to keep his name from being entered in primaries. In 1974, he said he would neither run nor accept a draft for the 1976 nomination. In 1980, he ran and lost to President Jimmy Carter.

For a decade, his name has topped the list of Democratic prospects in pre-season public opinion polls. It does now, or did, until Wednesday.

Kennedy said he was not shrinking from a tough race. He said it would have been a challenge, and that he believed he could have won it. But he said his obligation to the children led him to sit this one out.

There's always the next election, and the one after that. Kennedy said that he does want to be president, and that he might well run another time. At 50, he can wait 10 years or longer.

But he would not come to a 1988 or 1992 presidential campaign with the political strength he showed in the warmups for 1984. A new generation of Democratic politicians, and candidates, will be along by then. So will a new generation of voters, who won't remember John, Robert, Camelot, and the broken myth of Kennedy invincibility.

Then again, that generation might not remember Chappaquiddick, or the divorce from Joan.

Kennedy aides said their soundings this year showed that the 1969 accident and the broken marriage would not be major problems in a 1984 campaign. Kennedy said his was a decision made for family, not political reasons. He said that if it had been made on political grounds, he would have run.

"I don't think it's any mystery that I would like to be president," he said. "But I have also indicated that I would not be a candidate in 1984 nor would I accept a draft for the presidency or the vice presidency."

That is not a decision he will face unless unlikely circumstances combine to bring him back into competition. Presidential nominations are the greatest prizes in American politics, and they don't go to draftees. There must at a minimum be a waiting, willing candidate, working the telephone, promoting his cause by telling the power brokers that they have only to ask and he'll run.

Again, it isn't likely to (Please turn to Page 6)

Strength For Today

THE LASH AND THE GADFLY

Reformers are almost always hated by their contemporaries. They are the voice of conscience, crying shame upon a complacent civilization and rebuking those in high places.

Jesus put it perfectly when he said that men stone the prophets, and the children of the stoners build sepulchers to the honor of the martyrs. John Knox was a noisy agitator in a day when the pressing issue was whether or not a sovereign had the right to rule without accountability to the people.

William Lloyd Garrison was a man who cried out against chattel slavery. Both were widely denounced for their reform efforts, but are highly regarded today.

Every generation needs reformers because a love of comfort and a desire not to rock the boat lead us to accept many things which need changing. Fortunately it is then that these irritating gadflies sting and anger us and compel us to accept change for the benefit of human welfare. — Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Attractive Idea

(Morganton News-Herald)

The new proposal to increase the state tax on wine as a way to raise money for rehabilitation of alcoholics ought to be considered by next year's legislature very seriously.

The suggestion comes as a recommendation from the Alcoholic Beverage Tax Study Committee, which offered the plan to increase the tax from 5 cents to 10 cents per liter bottle. It would apply to most table wines, which would increase from 21 cents to 26 cents. On a liter of fortified wine, the tax would go up from 24 cents to 34 cents.

If approved, the tax hike would bring in about $2 million a year.

Few of us doubt that alcoholism is a serious problem and that the state hasn't given enough attention to rehabilitation, treatment and education. For example, in 1977 the N.C. General Assembly passed a law decriminalizing public drunkenness. But the state has failed to provide the money to carry out the rehabilitation commitment of that law.

Now with federal budget cuts from Washington, what little is being done statewide in this field is further in jeopardy.

It is also interesting to know that two adjoining states levy much higher taxes on wine. South Carolina levies 30 cents per liter and Virginia levies 40 cents per liter on unfortified and fortified wines.

We find the proposal attractive because it appropriately puts a premium on a portion of that which contributes to the problem, and wine, according to state Rep. W. Paul Pully Jr. of Durham, is the least heavily taxed alcoholic beverage in the state.

Additionally, we believe the principle of the tax is also in order. It would not be a burden to North Carolina taxpayers across the board — only those who choose to buy and consume wine. It's just good common sense and fairness that the user should pay; just as gasoline taxes should pay for highway construction and maintenance, so should alcoholic beverage taxes foot the bill for alcoholism treatment.

Too, while none of us relish the idea of additional taxes for any commodity or service, we also recognize some things must be funded.

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Though legal, it is one of the nastiest of investment tricks. Though criticized into near oblivion a few years ago, the practice managed to survive, and now it thrives again in the competition for IRA accounts.

The trick is to suggest that today's dollar will have the same value over the next five, 25, or 45 years, a suggestion that no reasonable person can accept but which, nevertheless, is made in thousands of advertisements.

"Retire a millionaire," says the bank leaflet, which includes a chart showing the "amazing" growth of $2,000 contributed each year to an individual retirement account. The calculations are based on a 10 percent return.

Annual tax-free savings of $2,000, it states, accumulate to $12,210 after five years, $114,550 in 20 years, $542,049 in 35 years, $1,437,810 in 45 years. If you make 12 percent a year, it indicates, you can accumulate $2,716,460.

In dollars yes, but in spending power no. Calculated into those returns is that old devil, inflation, posing as your benefactor but deluding you as usual, making you feel good financially while robbing you blind.

It's an old story. Uncle Sam himself once used it, suggesting you save U.S. Savings Bonds for a retirement in the cottage of your dreams, knowing that the low rate of real interest he paid might mean the poorhouse instead.

"The basic flaw in today's advertisements is that they compare today's dollars with tomorrow's inflated dollars," says William M. Mercer Inc., a benefits consulting firm at which A. Haeworth Robertson is vice president.

That Robertson gets a bit upset is understandable. He is an actuary, one of those people who try to determine the real value of future dollars. More than that, he is former chief actuary of the Social Security Administration, a position in which he was forced regularly to shoot pie out of the sky.

He says flatly: "We will not become millionaires in terms of today's dollars if we invest in IRAs, as some advertisements have led us to believe." Note the key phrase: In terms of today's dollars.

The only interest rate that really should interest you, say people such as Robertson, is the "real" interest rate. Of course, you say. But as every banker or broker knows, the real interest rates deducts for inflation.

During economic stability, the real interest rate is seldom higher than 3 percent. Earlier this year it rose to about 7 percent and still is around 6 percent, or the rate remaining when the inflation rate is subtracted from the prime rate.

What then would be shown for your efforts if the real yield fell to 3 percent? You wouldn't, of course, become a millionaire, since after 45 years of investing $2,000 a year tax-free you would have accumulated but $185,440.

Worse, you might have missed out on more rewarding investments, although comparisons with such investments also have in them a dangerous element of dreaming. Some IRA plans may involve little risk, and all are tax-free.

In the frenzy of competition, however, those who offer IRA plans sometimes succumb to the big numbers, knowing the numbers are not "real," knowing the the rainbows they paint have no more solid substance than the real things.

Says Mercer: "The conclusions to be drawn... are obvious: We should not accept at face value the spectacular accumulations that are presented in IRA advertisements without considering the profound effect of inflation."

"Claims about becoming a millionaire or a multimillionaire should be tempered by the impact of inflation that will almost surely accompany the high rates of investment return that are used as attention getters," he says.

The world of real interest rates might not have the colors of a rainbow, and sometimes might even be gray. The mythical world of inflated returns brings you "colors," to be sure, but they're mainly black and blue.

Leadership Scholarships

ECU NEWS BUREAU
Past presidents of the Alumni Association of East Carolina University have established a leadership scholarship to be awarded annually to a rising senior in the ranks of the ECU Ambassadors, a campus service organization of student volunteers.

Through this scholarship, the Past Presidents' Club members "express their deep appreciation for the vast amount of volunteer service that the ECU Ambassadors contribute to the progress and welfare of East Carolina University," said Phil Dixon of Greenville, immediate past president of the ECU Alumni Association.

Recipient of the annual award will be selected by the ECU Financial Aid office upon recommendation of the vice chancellor for institutional advancement and planning and the adviser to the ECU Ambassadors. The scholarship, covering in-state tuition and fees, will be for one year.

He'd then charge the employees that amount of money for parking every month. But, he'd also give them that amount in a tax-free payment. For employees who continued to drive to work, things would even out. For those who decided to ride in a carpool, there'd be a few extra dollars a month.

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Proven experiences can be relied upon to handle conditions now occurring and can help you advance in your line of endeavor. Be sure to make the best use of your natural talents.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be more openminded and you can gain the success you seek in the days ahead. Show others that you have wisdom.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Study the situation at home carefully and you can then help to improve it. Take no chances with your reputation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you study conditions well where outsiders are concerned, you can communicate satisfactorily with them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A good time to engage in favorite hobby with congenials. Obtain the information you need from the right sources.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Good day to do whatever will help you to advance in career matters. Forget the frivolity and concentrate on the practical for now.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You have fine practical ideas now that should be put in operation without delay. Strive for harmony at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A usually helpful friend may have different ideas now, so listen carefully, since you stand to benefit from them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Study how to improve your status in life and then take the initial steps in the right direction. Express happiness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Not a good day for making new plans but fine for handling regular routines. Be sure to spend your money wisely.

happen, and if it did, it wouldn't be likely to succeed. But it is not impossible.

As Carter demonstrated, nominations have been won in the primary elections for the past 10 years. Kennedy tried at the 1980 convention to undo the renomination Carter won in the primaries. He failed.

But the Democratic rules have been changed for 1984, and the new ones leave just a bit of room for a nominee from the sideline where Kennedy said he'll be. The party has decided to seat about 550 uncommitted delegates at the next national convention. They would be elected officials and Democratic leaders, and would not be pledged to any candidate. In a closely contested convention that bloc could be pivotal. And it could turn away from the primary candidates to someone else.

That is not probable, either. But in politics, the improbable sometimes happens.

Opening lead: King of ♦.

In the past, we have pointed out how the differences between duplicate and rubber bridge causes declarer to adopt varying lines of play. The same thing applies to defense.

Four spades is an excellent contract and, as the cards lie, impervious to defeat. But let's cover up the South and West hands and see how East should plan the defense at both rubber bridge and duplicate pairs.

Let's assume that we are playing duplicate. It is obviously correct to overtake the king of diamonds with the ace and cash the queen. Since South almost surely has the ace of hearts for his bidding, the best East can hope for is to hold declarer to his contract. At trick three, therefore, East plays a low diamond. West can ruff with the four, forcing dummy to overruff with an honor. Now East must come to a trump trick and declarer just makes his contract. Saving the over-trick can be worth many matchpoints to the defenders.

At rubber bridge, East can afford the luxury of allowing declarer to score an over-trick. The only chance to defeat the contract is to hope that the defenders can take a heart trick in addition to the trump promotion.

Again, East overtakes the king of diamonds and cashes the queen. Now, he cannot afford to continue a third diamond, because when West ruffs declarer can counter by discarding the heart from dummy. The contract can be defeated only if West has the ace of hearts. So, at trick three East must lay down the king of hearts. If West has the ace, the king will win and declarer can now revert to a diamond to promote a trump trick for a one-trick set. Unfortunately, South has the ace of hearts as expected, so he can win, draw trumps and claim the rest of the tricks to make five-odd.

Life As It's Lived

Avoiding The Dream Of Cornering Toy Market

Since last weekend I've been treating shopping centers as if they were adult book stores or health spas. I don't go near them. Or more accurately, I can't go near them because I'd rather be confined to an exercise for the rest of my days than let Zachary spot a Santa Claus with three weeks left before Christmas.

It's not that Zachary is unfamiliar with Santa. On the contrary, he knows all about Santa and "Rubald" the Red-Nosed Reindeer. He is expecting them at his house any minute. One of his chief diversions is flipping through the Christmas issues of my magazines. And his dog-eared copy of "The Night Before Christmas" goes almost everywhere with him.

His problem is that he stubbornly entertains a few major misconceptions about the nature of Santa's generosity. I had to work on him for two weeks before he'd accept the fact that Santa was not bringing the Christmas tree. Then we had to dispose of the idea that the presents would suddenly appear on the same night.

Will Ask Ending Salary Freeze

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly will be urged to lift freezes on salaries for university professors during an upcoming meeting of delegations from University of North Carolina member schools.

A freeze on all state employees' salaries, including the faculty of the UNC system, was passed in June by the Legislature as part of a budget bill.

A spokesman for the N.C. State group said the problem is most acute in the School of Engineering, where professors can be lured away from teaching jobs.

that the tree was decorated. That left me free to explain the limitations on toy requests that Meg, with some residual reluctance, has already learned to accept. Zachary has yet to learn the meaning of limitations.

"I want a hot cycle," he crows when asked about his Christmas list. "And I want a fire engine, a big, big fire engine, not a little fire engine, with flashing lights and it goes AR-R-R-R-R!"

At this point I usually get the uncomfortable feeling that he's dreaming of the kind that is accompanied by a full-grown Dalmation.

"I would like a hot cycle, too," Meg says, "and a suitcase of my very own."

"I would like a shootcase of my berry own, too!" shouts Zachary.

"And I would like some books," Meg continues, "and a few surprises."

"I would like some books, too!" echoes Zachary, "and

Tanker Spill Due Soggy Ground

MOUNT MOURNE, N.C. (AP) — Soggy ground caused a tanker to overturn and spill a flammable liquid that forced hundreds of Iredell County residents to leave their homes for more than 13 hours, officials said Thursday.

The truck was carrying a 6,000-gallon load of toluene, a volatile solvent used in textile and print manufacturing, authorities said.

Jerry Minton, 41, a driver for Ruan Transport Co., had parked the truck about noon Wednesday behind his home near Interstate 77 between Davidson and Mooresville. About 2:30 p.m., Minton said, the 65,000-pound tanker apparently began sinking in the soft ground, causing the liquid inside to shift and the tanker to turn over.

a lot, a lot, a lot of s'prizes!"

"Is there anything you don't want, Zachary?" I ask.

He shakes his curls solemnly. "I do not want a stomach virus," he answers with a conviction born of recent suffering.

Zachary's plans to corner the toy market are minor in comparison to his plans for cornering Santa. When he spotted a picture in a Christmas magazine of a little girl sitting on Santa's lap, he immediately had the answer to the one big remaining question he had about Christmas, the question of when. If the toys didn't come with the Christmas tree, then surely they came with Santa.

He slapped the magazine into my lap. "Will Santa hold me?"

"Certainly, he will. That's when you tell him what you want for Christmas."

"Then he will give me my fire truck."

"Yes," I said wittlessly. "He will bring it to you later when you're asleep."

"No, then! He will get it from his sack." And Zachary pointed to the full sack lying beside Santa in the picture.

"No, later," I began but stopped as the huge tears coursed down Zachary's cheeks.

Somehow I don't think he's going to be satisfied with a mere candy cane.

FOCUS

Democratic Cornerstone

Throughout its history, Costa Rica, about the size of West Virginia, has contrasted sharply with its Latin American neighbors. The majority of Costa Ricans are of European descent. Since 1889, with only two exceptions, Costa Ricans have chosen their leaders in democratic elections. The federal government is divided into three branches, like our own, and the President, who serves for four years, is not allowed to succeed himself. Many Latin American governments have armed forces disproportionate to their size. But Costa Rica's Constitution abolished the army, and the country's navy has just three boats. President Reagan, scheduled to visit Costa Rica tomorrow, has called that nation a cornerstone of democratic freedom in Latin America.

Artificial Heart Recipient 'Critical', Conscious

By DONNA ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A retired dentist who became the first recipient of a permanent artificial heart was doing "very nicely" today, able to write notes to nurses in his first day of life with the new organ, doctors said.

Barney B. Clark, 61, was in critical but promising condition and resting comfortably early today, said Kate Woodworth, a University of Utah Medical Center spokeswoman.

The next several days will be critical as doctors monitor Clark for any complications, said Dr. William C. DeVries, who headed the 15-member surgical team that implanted the device Thursday morning.

"I don't think you should go away without an appreciation of the difficulty of the recovery," said Dr. Robert Jarvik, who invented the polyurethane heart, known as the Jarvik-7.

Potential complications include pneumonia, infections, collapsed lungs and blood clots, but the possibility of rejection — the bane of human heart transplants — does not exist because there is no foreign tissue to set off the body's attack mechanism.

If Clark continues to improve, a respirator connected to a tube in his windpipe, preventing speech, will be withdrawn and he could move to a specially modified house in a couple of weeks, DeVries said. Clark is from Federal Way, Wash., a Seattle suburb.

"His vital signs are good and he is responding," said medical center spokeswoman Pam Fogle. At one point Thursday, Clark communicated to nurses that he had a sore throat, she said.

He also wrote "HO" on a notepad and passed it to a nurse. "What he was asking for was water. It took them a few minutes for them to realize that was what he wanted," she said.

Previous uses of artificial hearts in humans have been stopgap measures to buy time until donated human hearts were available for transplant.

"I'm very pleased and hopeful," DeVries, chief of cardio-thoracic surgery for the medical center, said at a news conference Thursday. "It appears to be going very nicely."

Clark is tethered by 6-foot hoses to an air-driven compressor. The compressor and accompanying equipment, which weigh 375 pounds, are on a cart, but Jarvik and others at the university's Division of Artificial Organs are working on a suitcase-sized portable compressor.

DeVries said he would not schedule more implants until results from Clark's operation are clear, and he said it was too early to tell what the experimental implant means for others with heart problems. But eventually, he said, it may help an estimated 50,000 people per year, including up to 10,000 victims of cardiomyopathy, the inoperative, degenerative heart disease from which Clark suffered.

Dr. Michael DeBakey, a pioneer in the development of an artificial heart, called the operation "a significant development." DeBakey, a chancellor at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, was the first to use a heart pump successfully in a patient.

"I believe that in time there will be improvements in technology, both in terms of monitoring and the device itself," he told ABC World News.

Offer Songs Of Yuletide

The Gospelaire of Greenville, under the direction of organist Rodger Ingram, will present a program entitled "Christmas In Songs" on Sunday at 6 p.m. at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church, located at the corner of Railroad and 13th streets.

New Deliverance Chancel Choir, also under the direction of Ingram, will lead a candlelight ceremony for the Gospelaire's 10th anniversary. A medley of Christmas songs and music will be presented.

Donations contributed during the annual program will be used to provide Christmas gifts for residents of nursing and family care homes, the Department of Social Services Foster Children's Christmas Gift Fund and Operation Santa Claus.

Christmas floral arrangements will be given to Greenville Villa Nursing Center and University Nursing Center.

The Gospelaire, along with the Majestic Ebonaire Civic Club and other interested persons, will carol at these homes Dec. 13-19. Interested persons may call Mrs. Harris, 757-3583 after 5 p.m., or Mrs. Hansley, 752-5612 before 5 p.m.

Dr. Denton Cooley, who has implanted two temporary artificial hearts in humans, said the operation gives researchers their first opportunity "to see just how long a man's life can be maintained by the total artificial heart."

Both of Cooley's artificial heart patients died after the mechanical device was removed and a human heart implanted.

Cooley, also of Houston, said he still believes "the best opportunity for progress in cardiac replacement lies in the heart transplant program."

Several members of Clark's family — including his wife Una Loy, a daughter and her husband — were at the hospital during the operation.

"This man was worth waiting for," said social worker Margaret Miller, a member of the selection committee that chose Clark. He was selected partly because of his strong will to live and his close family. "If we searched the world over, we couldn't find a better candidate."

DeVries said Clark's new heart was beating at about 112 beats per minute, compared to DeVries' own heart rate of about 72. The soft clicking sound is audible through Clark's chest wall. DeVries said it was pumping

5 to 7 liters of blood per minute, about normal for a man Clark's size, over six feet tall and about 225 pounds.

DeVries, the only surgeon authorized by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to implant the heart, said that when the surgical team removed Clark's diseased heart at 12:07 a.m. MST, the organ "was just like tissue paper. It would tear and we had to be very, very careful," he said.

After both ventricles of the artificial heart were in place, the left ventricle was not pumping properly, Jarvik said. It was replaced, a suture was redone and the heart was repositioned, he said.

Clark's new heart was beating on its own by 4:09 a.m. and his chest was closed at 6:35 a.m. after bleeding due to cortisone treatment was controlled.

Commissioners To Meet On Monday

Long-time member B. Alton Gardner will leave the Pitt County Board of Commissioners when the board holds its regular meeting Monday at 10 a.m. at the county office building at 1717 W. Fifth St.

Gardner, 78, chose not to seek re-election to the post he has held for the past 28 years. He will be replaced Monday by Charles McLawhorn.

McLawhorn, a Democrat, won over Republican Bruce Jones of Ayden in the November election, and will take the oath of office along with Commissioners Burney Tucker and Kelly Barnhill, who had no opposition in their bid for re-election.

Gardner, who has represented Ayden, Grifton and Swift Creek townships, has missed only three regular board meetings during his tenure. Gardner missed one meeting when he was in Europe a number of years ago, and another when he was out of state. His third missed meeting came in May of this year when he was a patient in Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

In addition to the swearing in ceremonies, Monday's agenda includes the election of a new chairman and vice chairman of the board, and the consideration of appointments to various county boards, a number of reports, bids received for an ambulance on Nov. 15, and the revised plat for Treetops Subdivision, Section II.

Other business for consideration includes the appointment of various county officials (attorney, manager, finance officer and clerk to the board), approval of public officials bonds, and overcrowding at the county jail.

Christmastown Is Lighting Up

MCADENVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Christmas has been a special time of year in this small Gaston County town since 1957, when a local men's club began the tradition of covering nearly every tree, bush and front porch with lights.

The holiday haven, called Christmastown U.S.A., will light up for the first time this year, beginning at 5 p.m. this afternoon. The lights will shine each week night from 5 to 9 p.m. and on weekends from 5 to 10 p.m. until Dec. 26.

Spruce trees line the main thoroughfares of this town of fewer than 1,000 people, which serves as Yuletide host to thousands of visitors. The trees are strung with millions of green, red and white lights. The trees surrounding the lake also are decorated.

A nativity scene and carolers of plaster are also on display on Main Street and a lighted Santa flies across the side of a mill building overlooking the lake. Piped music and sometimes live songsters add to the holiday spirit.

Last-minute preparations have been keeping folks busy, as workers checked bulbs, raked leaves, hung wreaths and prepared for tonight's annual celebration.

The town's main industry, Pharr Yarns Inc., foots most of the bill for the holiday extravaganza that is known as one of the state's leading Christmas attractions.

Pharr chaplain Bill Miller, who is handling publicity about Christmastown U.S.A., said 213,747 vehicles came through town during the 1981 light show, with an estimated four or five people per vehicle. But he had no estimate for this year's turnout.

"You never can tell how many will come," Miller said. "Economic conditions are bad, but even like they are, people will continue to come. They like to see the lights."

The lights on the trees in front of the community building remain there year-round, but workers have been putting up the rest in stages since late September.

The display has been interrupted only in 1973 and 1974, when energy shortages caused the switches to be turned off.

It's a cool, brisk afternoon in late fall. You're surrounded by nothing but trees and the fresh, pungent aroma of evergreens. You've walked and walked and looked, but you just aren't sure. Cedar? Or fir?

Man Charged After Wreck

Greenville police said Jack Raymond Smith of Fayetteville was charged with driving under the influence following investigation of a 3:40 a.m. collision today on Harding Street, near the First Street intersection.

Officers said the Smith car first collided with a parked vehicle on Harding Street, then traveled 98 feet before jumping the curb and traveling 74 feet across yards at 103 and 101 North Harding St. before colliding with a tree.

Investigators, who said Smith received serious neck injuries in the crash, estimated damage to the Smith car at $1,500, and set damage to the parked car at $300.

Damage to the yard at 101 North Harding St. was set at $200, while damage to a sign in the yard at 103 North Harding St. was placed at $15.

Or maybe Scotch pine or Virginia pine...

Families beginning their yearly search for a Christmas tree are faced with the usual choices in 1982 — artificial trees, live trees and harvested trees. For those that choose a harvested tree, the variety a family buys depends on the members' individual tastes, said Jim Kea, area extension forester for Pitt County.

What's more important, however, he said, is getting a fresh tree and caring for it properly during the yuletide.

"Early purchase and the right care for the family Christmas tree will ensure a beautiful and safe Christmas," said Kea. "Many trees have been cut since before Thanksgiving and most of these are somewhat dry because of weather conditions this year."

The first key to finding a fresh tree is examining the needles, said the forester. "First bend individual needles. Fresh needles will bend, not break, if bent gently," he advised.

"Next lift the tree several inches off the ground, then bring it down sharply on the stump end. Dry needles will fall off in substantial numbers," said Kea.

The tree stump, he added, should contain fresh resin. If it is smooth and dry, the tree may also be dry.

"After you've picked out your fresh tree, keep it fresh by first re-cutting the stump at an angle," said Kea. "This opens the stem so it will take up water. Be sure when you pick out a tree to get one with a stem long enough for this trimming operation."

Once the tree is in the house, place it away from vents, stoves or other heat sources, cautioned the forester, and check the water in the stand two-three times a day.

"It's not necessary to add anything to the water to prevent drying," said Kea.

For those who buy live Christmas trees and plan to plant them after the holidays, Kea said trees with roots still attached should be kept outdoors in a cool, shaded area until just a few days before Christmas.

"After Christmas the tree should be placed back in a cool, shaded area for several days prior to planting," said Kea. "Keep the bag the roots are in damp."

Live trees such as firs and spruces have a poor chance of survival in North Carolina's coastal plain, said the forester, whereas Scotch pine, Virginia pine and white pine grow well here.

"All live trees should be watered and mulched well when planted," said Kea. "I recommend avoiding nitrogen fertilizer the first year or two."

Cool-burning Christmas lights should be used on all trees, he cautioned.

Thursday Saw 5 Collisions

An estimated $8,025 damage resulted from five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:25 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 69 feet south of the Martin Street intersection, involving cars driven by Michael Mooring of Route 11, Greenville, Keith Eugene Hartman of Richmond, N.C., and Shirley Neal Layton of Route 2, Greenville.

Police, who charged Mooring with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident, estimated damage at $400 to the Mooring car, $2,400 to the Hartman vehicle and $75 to the Layton car.

Cars driven by Sammy Kelly Fadel of 1512 Holly Briar Lane and Mercer Abbott Mohr of 2808 Edwards St. collided about 1:15 p.m. on 10th Street, 105 feet east of the Greenville Boulevard intersection, causing an estimated $1,500 damage to the Fadel car and $850 damage to the Mohr vehicle.

Investigators reported an estimated $1,000 damage resulted to a car driven by Pauline Combs McLean of 607 W. Fourth St. when her car collided with a parked auto about 8:10 p.m. at the intersection of Line Avenue and Myrtle Street.

Officers said no damage was caused to the parked car.

Cars driven by Mildred Huston Wright of 213 N. Eastern St. and Janet Long Haseley of Grifton collided about 4:52 p.m. at the intersection of Memorial and Mall drives, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Wright car and $600 damage to the Haseley auto.

A 5:15 p.m. mishap on Charles Street, 440 feet south of the Red Banks Road intersection, involved vehicles driven by Harris Douglas Davis of 203B Standell Drive, Charles Duffy Jarman Jr. of 428 Wedgewood Arms, and Jamet King Gwaltney of New Bern, police said.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $600 to the Davis car, $200 to the Jarman vehicle and $100 to the Gwaltney vehicle.

Legislation To Permit Bigger Trucks

By H. JOSEF HEBERT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Bigger, heavier 18-wheel tractor trailer rigs and twin trailer trucks may soon travel throughout America because of proposed congressional action to force 17 states to conform with the rest of the nation by dropping size restrictions.

President Reagan's proposal for a 5-cent boost in the motor fuel tax includes separate provisions requiring 14 states, mostly in the Northeast, to start allowing twin trailers on their roads.

The measure, which Congress is expected to approve, also will force three states — Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas — to raise their ceiling on truck weight to 80,000 pounds.

The trucking industry for years has been trying to get a uniform weight standard for trucks in all states, arguing the lower weight ceiling in the three is a barrier to interstate commerce.

Trucking officials also say the twin trailers, already in use across much of the West, are needed to increase productivity at a time of stiff competition from railroads. They say twin trailers can cut fuel costs by as much as 20 percent because of greater capacity.

The issue of truck size has been highly controversial. Officials in states that have banned the twin trailers claim they are less safe than the single trailer trucks and do more highway damage. The industry says those claims are unfounded.

Last April, voters in Missouri rejected the larger trucks in a referendum, reversing a law passed by the state legislature raising the weight ceiling to 80,000 pounds.

The legislation proposed by the Reagan administration also would allow longer and wider trucks. Some highway safety experts say rigs eventually could be 20 feet longer than the trucks of today.

The Senate signaled Thursday it was ready for the increased size when it approved a fiscal 1983 Transportation Department appropriations bill that would require states to go along with a maximum truck width of 102 inches instead of the current 96 inches.

The action was separate from the gas tax package expected to be approved by Congress within the next three weeks.

Approval of the industry-sought legislation is not without a price.

The Reagan supported legislation, which is aimed at providing $5.5 billion a year for highway construction, also will increase sharply various fees and taxes on operators of large trucks.

Despite the breaks on truck weights and sizes, opposition to the increased use taxes is expected to continue. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said he expected the trucking lobby, which he called "very effective and strong," to fight the legislation.

The American Trucking Associations, the industry trade group, estimates the additional excise taxes and the additional 5-cent tax on diesel fuel will require a typical operator to pay about $5,000 in taxes a year compared to about $1,750 now.

Transportation Secretary Drew Lewis says the shifting of the tax burden to the large trucks reflects government findings that those trucks do a disproportionate amount of highway damage.

The double trailers have been fought in a number of states. Iowa and Wisconsin agreed to allow them only after being ordered to do so by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The following states still ban them: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee and Alabama.

A Transportation Department study last year concluded that an examination of accidents in six Western states showed twin trailer trucks had a higher accident rate.

Likewise, a study by researchers at the University of Michigan concluded that the fatal accident rate involving the double trailers was 50 percent higher than for other tractor trailer rigs.

But another study by the University of Michigan in 1971 examining traffic on the Indiana Toll Road concluded that the accident rate of double trailer trucks was half that of single trailer rigs. And the U.S. Supreme Court in invalidating bans against 65-foot twin trailer trucks in Wisconsin and Iowa said it found no justification for the prohibition on grounds of safety.

Leadership Institute Begins

Twenty individuals have been selected to participate in the Pitt-Greenville Leadership Institute — a new program sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce.

According to Eugene Parker, chairman of the Institute Steering Committee, the Leadership Institute is designed to identify potential community leaders and acquaint them with the needs of the community and the processes for dealing with them.

The first session was held recently following a kickoff luncheon at Greenville Golf and Country Club with the participants, sponsors and steering committee members present. This will be followed, said Parker, by 10 additional programs dealing with a variety of community topics.

Winterville Man Injured

Roland Gauthier of Route 1, Winterville, was in guarded condition in Pitt County Memorial Hospital today from head injuries received in an accident in the Carolina East Mall parking lot about 11:25 p.m. Thursday, according to Greenville police.

Officers said the motorcycle Gauthier was riding collided with a traffic island in the parking lot, causing the vehicle to flip end over end several times. Damage to the motorcycle was estimated at $2,000.

Legion Post Cites Best

Dr. A.A. Best of P.J. Norfleet Jr. Post 160 of the American Legion of Greenville has been selected as the post's Legionnaire of the year for 1983.

Dr. Best served as an infantry officer in World War II and was stationed in Italy during 1944-46. He was awarded the Purple Heart and Bronze Star for activities during that period and received an honorable discharge in January 1954.

Money Taken From Car

Greenville police were continuing their investigation today of the theft of $218 from a car parked at a drugstore on West Sixth Street Thursday between noon and 1 p.m.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Cathy Ann Baker of Greenville, who reported the theft at 4 p.m., told officers the money was taken from a wallet left in the unattended car.

Sorority Chapters Meet

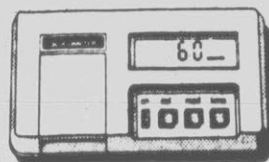

Rhonda Fleming of the East Carolina University School of Music presented a program of music entitled "Holly Days In Sing" Thursday at a joint meeting of the Beta Alpha and Delta chapters of Delta Kappa Gamma at Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Members were given an opportunity to make contributions to the World Fellowship Fund, the Scholarship Fund and the Recruitment Grant. A survey was taken by ballot to determine the preference of the members regarding formation of a new chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma.

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The trend on the North Carolina hog market today was 25 cents to 50 cents higher. Kinston 54.50, Clinton, Elizabethtown, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pink Hill, Chadbourn, Ayden, Pine Level, Laurinburg and Benson 55.00, Wilson 55.00, Salisbury 54.00, Rowland unreported. Sows: all weights 500 pounds up; Wilson 47.00, Fayetteville 47.00, Whiteville 47.00, Wallace 47.00, Spivey's Corner unreported, Rowland 48.00, Durham 49.00.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 39.25 cents, based on full truck loads of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½- to 3 pound birds. 87 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed, with a preliminary weighted average of 38.35 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for moderate, instances good demand. Weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Friday was 1,629,000, compared to 1,025,000 last Friday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady with weak undertone. Supplies light to adequate. Demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday slaughter was 25 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned higher today as interest rates fell in response to signs of persistent economic weakness. The Labor Department said the unemployment rate jumped to 10.8 percent in November from October's 10.4 percent, reaching a new 42-year high.

Seven stocks rose in price for every six that fell in the midday tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, which rose 2.02 points Thursday, was up another 6.63 points at 1,039.74 at the end of the first two hours.

Stock trading was mixed in the previous two days following a 36.43-point surge in the Dow Jones industrials on Tuesday, the fourth-largest daily gain ever in the blue-chip average.

The bigger-than-expected rise in unemployment helped reduce interest rates in credit-market trading, with yields on six-month Treasury bills falling one-fifth of a percentage point. Lower returns on bonds made stocks more attractive investments.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .28 to 80.40. But at the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .94 at 335.56.

Big Board volume reached 31.54 million shares a third of the way through today's session, down from the 35.49 million that changed hands in the same period Thursday.

American Telephone & Telegraph, the volume leader for the past two sessions, topped the NYSE active list again today, down ¼ at 60½.

Northrop, which rose sharply earlier this week on rumors that Turkey would buy its fighter planes, fell ¼ to 68½ after the company said it was unaware of an impending order.

British Expel Soviet Naval Attache Today

LONDON (AP) — Britain expelled the Soviet naval attache in London today and resumed the spy trial of former NATO official Hugh Hambleton.

Government sources said the two cases were not connected.

The government said Soviet Capt. Anatoli Pavlovich Zotov was given a week to leave the country for engaging in "activities incompatible with his status," the usual diplomatic parlance for spying.

Government sources said Zotov, who arrived here last Jan. 12, had tried to use agents to obtain classified information but had failed to get material which harmed British security. "His departure ensures that this remains the case," said a government source who asked not to be identified.

Zotov was the third Soviet Embassy official expelled by Britain's Conservative government in the past 15 months.

Soviet sources were quoted by Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, as saying British security services were "simply trying to prove their worth" following exposure of "information leaks from the Cheltenham Communications Headquarters."

Geoffrey Prime, a former translator in Russian at the top-secret intelligence gathering center, was jailed for 35 years Nov. 10 for spying for the Soviets.

Threatened By Pricing Policies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent gasoline wholesalers have told a House Small Business subcommittee that predatory pricing policies by major oil refiners are putting them out of business.

"On many occasions, we find ourselves paying more for gasoline than the majors are selling gasoline for at the pump," Lester Wright of the Illinois Petroleum Marketers Association told the panel Thursday.

Bill Bailey, president of the Texas Oil Marketers Association, said that refiners are charging independent higher prices in an effort to gain control of the retail market.

Spokesmen for major refiners denied the allegations. They said that shifts in the way gasoline is marketed were prompted on by oil shortages during the past decade.

Expect Little From Defector

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. officials say they do not expect to obtain much in the way of sensitive information from Eduardo Gomez Cabale, a mid-level Cuban health ministry employee who defected to this country.

Prime's was the most damaging and embarrassing case in a recent spate of British espionage and security scandals. Six people have been charged in the past three weeks, in apparently unrelated cases, under Britain's anti-espionage Official Secrets Act.

Several were tried at the Old Bailey central criminal court, including Hambleton, who today initially refused instructions from judge Sir David Croom-Johnson to write down the name of a Canadian intelligence official he said was aware of his Soviet contacts.

After twice refusing the judge's order to write down the address too, Hambleton scribbled on a piece of paper which was handed to the judge.

"Can we discuss this, not in public?" he said. But the jury trial, in its fifth day, continued in open session.

Hambleton, a 60-year-old Canadian who has been economics professor at Quebec's Laval University since 1964, was a NATO economist in Paris from 1956 to 1961. He was arrested in London last June when he came here on a British passport, saying he wanted to take a sailing course.

Hambleton pleaded innocent at the start of his trial Monday to two charges under Britain's Official Secrets Act of spying for the Soviets from 1956 to 1979.

He said he was really a double agent and told the court Thursday that NATO documents he slipped to KGB agents in Paris were deliberately "doctored" by a French intelligence officer. He said he reported regularly to the French officer whom he identified as Jean Masson of France's Service of External Documentation and Counter Espionage.

Initial efforts in Paris to find out about Masson were unsuccessful.

In September 1971, Britain expelled 105 Soviet officials, including 45 diplomats, on grounds they were involved in spying. Two other Soviet officials alleged to have spied were ordered out in 1973 and second secretary Victor Lazin was expelled last year.

Recent events have led to an outcry from British politicians and newspapers about lax security here.

The row started with the July 9 intrusion of drifter Michael Fagan into Queen Elizabeth II's Buckingham Palace bedroom. It grew worse when 10 days later her Scotland Yard bodyguard Michael Trestrail resigned, admitting a homosexual relationship with a male prostitute.

On Monday, Rhona Ritchie, 30, a former British diplomat in Tel Aviv, admitted slipping her lover, an Egyptian diplomat, confidential Foreign Office telegrams. She got a nine-month suspended sentence.

On Wednesday, Robin Gordon-Walker, 36, a senior official in the government's Central Office of Information, and son of a former British foreign secretary, was charged under the Official Secrets Act with "careless handling" of official documents. He was released in his own recognizance until the case resumes Jan. 6.

Lady Pack Eases Past Pirates, 75-63

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer
RALEIGH — A Pack of Lady Wolves proved too hard to handle for a bunch of Down East Rats Thursday evening in Reynolds Coliseum.

The Lady Wolves — a.k.a., the 14th-ranked N.C. State women — relied on a fast break fueled by Angie Armstrong's 20 points and six assists to spark them past East Carolina, 75-63, in a women's college basketball game before a crowd of 3,000.

The game was the lone meeting between the two teams this season, and was only the second time in the last five games NCSU has defeated the Lady Pirates. ECU beat NCSU in their last meeting, 68-60.

"I think this game meant a lot to our players after losing last year to them in Greenville. I think our players were more tense about this game (than their previous two)," NCSU coach Kay Yow said.

"I didn't feel we ever relaxed," Yow said. "I felt we had confidence, but we were tight. We never relaxed and flowed."

East Carolina Begins Long Road Trip In Game Against Samford

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
East Carolina University's Pirates, after their lopsided victory over Christopher Newport, take to the road again Saturday night, traveling to Birmingham, Ala., to face Samford University.

Both teams bring a 1-1 record into the contest. ECU lost its opener, on the road at Duke, 70-65, before rolling over Newport in its first home game, 96-62.

Samford bowed on the road in its first game, falling to Illinois-Chicago Circle, 85-82. The Bulldogs then beat Tennessee Tech, 76-71, to even its record.

"They're a good team," ECU Coach Charlie Harrison said of his opponent. "They're about the same size and speed that we are. They're well-coached and they play hard."

Harrison said that second year coach Mike Hanks, who was 11-15 last year, has brought in eight new players to this year's team.

"We play a similar style of basketball," Harrison said, "although we probably play a little more aggressive defense." Both coaches did some of their apprenticeship under Indiana's Bobby Knight.

"I think they have more depth than we do, mainly because he brought in eight of his own kids this fall," Harrison noted. The new ECU coach, however, is working with totally inherited players having taken over at East Carolina in July after recruiting had been completed.

"It's their Homecoming game, so that will probably put more people into the stands in a small gym. It'll make for a more intense atmosphere."

Harrison said the main players for Samford include 6-6 sophomore Craig Beard at one forward and 6-6 senior Lanauze Hollis at the other. "Both of them are very talented," Harrison said.

Bernie Matthews, a 6-3 junior guard, is described by Harrison as the floor leader, "even though he isn't the point guard. He's started nearly every game last year."

The other starters include 6-9 sophomore center Andy Donnelly and 6-2 freshman guard Daryl Hagler.

"We have to get them under control early and apply pressure. We have to make them work for everything they get. We have to make them play offense and not give up quick scores and second shots. They rebound well, sending four men to the glass every time and that could cause us problems."

Harrison said the Pirates

Colorado Hands Duke First Loss

BOULDER (AP) — Billy Houston and Vince Kelley scored 18 points each to pace Colorado to a 79-70 college basketball victory over Duke Thursday night.

During the first half, Rob Gonzalez and Houston each scored 10 points. Gonzalez from under the basket and Houston taking the long shots, to spark the Buffs to a 33-28 halftime lead.

In the second half, the Buffs used an alternating 3-2 and 2-3 defense to pressure Duke into playing outside of the key.

The Blue Devils rallied and closed to 57-56 with 4:20 remaining before the Buffs pulled away.

Gonzalez wound up with 16 points for Colorado, followed by Jay Humphries with 13.

Duke freshman Johnny Dawkins was game-high with 24 points.

Colorado hit 24 of 47 from the field for 51 percent.

Duke shot 48 percent from the field, hitting 30 of 63 attempts.

The Buffs are now 3-0 and return to action at home Saturday to play Texas.

Duke fell to 2-1 and continues its road trip. Next stop is Saturday against Cal-Berkeley.

Schulz To Blue-Gray

East Carolina University defensive end Jody Schulz has been selected to play in the annual Blue-Gray All-Star Game, set for Christmas Day in Birmingham, Ala.

The honor is the second for Schulz as far as all-star games is concerned. He was earlier picked to play in the Japan Bowl, to be held January 16 in Yokohama, Japan.

The Blue-Gray game will be covered nationally over CBS, starting at 12 noon on December 25.

Schulz was earlier named this week to the ECAC-Division I All-Star team, and to the first team All-South Independent.

KENTUCKY STRAIGHT BOURBON WHISKEY. 80 PROOF DISTILLED AND BOTTLED BY JAMES B. BEAM DISTILLING CO., CLERMONT, BEAM, KY.

Montana Leads 49ers Past Rams, 30-24

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco's Super Bowl champions could be on the road back after a near-disastrous start this season. But Coach Bill Walsh wishes he had a running game to go with Joe Montana's passing.

The San Francisco quarterback threw for 305 yards Thursday night to tie the National Football League record of four straight games of 300 or more passing yards set by San Diego's Dan Fouts in 1979.

Forty-four of the yards came in a fourth-period comeback drive that lifted the 49ers to a 30-24 victory over the Los Angeles Rams in their nationally televised aerial battle. The teams combined for 636 yards through their air while rushing for only 113 yards.

The victory raised San Francisco's record to 2-3 in this strike-interrupted season while Los Angeles fell to 1-4. Before the game, Walsh had said he didn't believe a 1-4 team could make the approaching Super Bowl playoffs. Four games remain for both the 49ers and Rams.

"We had to go to the air because they bottled up our running game, which we had hoped would work," said Walsh. "We don't have a balanced attack. We're too dependent on the pass. We're not a great running team, but we do have to get a better balance."

Running back Jeff Moore scored all three of San Francisco's touchdowns. The first for 636 yards through their air while rushing for only 113 yards and the finale and game-winner came on a 1-yard smash.

Montana threw 37 passes and completed 26 with no interceptions.

With regular quarterback Bert Jones sidelined because of an irritated nerve in his neck, Vince Ferragamo took over the job he relinquished after the 1980 season to go to Canada.

Ferragamo returned to the Rams after his season with Montreal proved a fiasco. In this initial start in 1982, he completed 20 of his 43 passes for 286 yards and had two interceptions — one by Dwight Hicks in the San Francisco end zone.

"They stopped the run with (linebacker) Jack Reynolds (a former Ram) and we felt we could pass," said Ferragamo. He threw one touchdown pass, a 27-yarder to running back Wendell Tyler.

Tyler also scored the other two Los Angeles touchdowns on runs of one and 15 yards. Ray Wersching booted field goals of 33, 44 and 38 yards for the 49ers. Mike Lansford kicked a 36-yarder for the Rams. Lansford missed a 52-yard attempt late in the first half.

"It's really tough to lose a game when you play hard," said Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi. "We made a couple of mistakes that hurt us."

"I thought the offensive line played well. Our defense played well at times, but not good enough. Thirty points is too much."

A crowd of 58,574 watched at Anaheim Stadium on a clear, chilly night. There were 9,975 no-shows. The game was televised locally as well as nationally.

Los Angeles took a 10-3 first-quarter lead but the 49ers scored 17 points in the second period with Moore catching his two touchdown passes.

Moore, who asked the 49ers for a tryout after being cut by Seattle said, "This is the first time I've been interviewed — and I was not proud of my running game tonight. But it is the first time I've ever scored three touchdowns in a game."

Montana said that Moore "was just too quick for the Rams' linebackers."

Montana referred to the passing plays. On the ground, Moore gained just 25 yards on 14 carries.

The Rams dominated the third quarter but scored only a single touchdown. They missed another chance when Hicks came up with his end zone interception on a ball deflected by San Francisco's Eric Wright.

In the final period, the Rams took a 24-23 lead on Tyler's final touchdown. But Dana McLemore returned the ensuing kickoff 45 yards to the San Francisco 47-yard line. Montana then whipped five passes in a 53-yard drive as the 49ers rallied to win. They scored the game-winning touchdown with 4:40 to play.

Ferragamo won't know until later if he had won back the starting Los Angeles quarterback job.

"That decision is up to the coaches," he said.

Less At Stake In Annual Texas-Arkansas Shindig

By The Associated Press

It's a far cry from previous Arkansas-Texas games played in December, when national championships were on the line in 1969 and 1970.

There's not even a conference championship on the line, with Southern Methodist already assured of the Southwest Conference title. The sixth-ranked Razorbacks and No. 12 Longhorns have to be content with berths in the Bluebonnet and Sun bowls, respectively.

But pride and a revenge motive makes it certain that neither team will take Saturday's nationally televised game in Austin lightly.

Last year, when the game was played in October, Arkansas beat Texas 42-11 to knock the Longhorns out of the No. 1 ranking.

"You can say that last year won't be a factor, but it's hard not to think about it after you got walloped," Texas Coach Fred Akers said.

"We know Texas will be ready for us after last year, but that's what football is all about," said Billy Ray Smith, Arkansas' All-America defensive end. "It should be fun."

The Texas-Arkansas game is one of only four major college games to be played Saturday. Army and Navy meet in Philadelphia in their annual service academy battle, No. 3 Nebraska is at Hawaii in a special 12th game for the Cornhuskers and Florida is at No. 15 Florida State in a night game.

Arkansas lost a chance at a share of the SWC title and a berth in the Cotton Bowl when it tied SMU on Nov. 20. Akers said, however, he didn't believe the Razorbacks would suffer a letdown because of the two-week interval.

"If we had played them two minutes after that game, then we might have benefited," Akers said. "But they've had two weeks to prepare for us and they were even having pep rallies last week."

Arkansas, 8-1-1, leads the nation in allowing only 8.2 points a game, while Texas, 8-2, ranks No. 11 in scoring, averaging 31.4 points a game.

Texas also leads the SWC in total offense with 412.8 yards a game, followed by Arkansas at 390.1 yards. The two teams also are 1-2 in SWC defense, with Arkansas first with an allowance of 242.5 yards and Texas second, giving up 279.7 yards.

The Texas offense features the running of tailback Darryl Clark, who has gained 952 yards, and the passing of quarterback Robert Brewer to all-SWC receiver Herkie Walls, who has scored 10 touchdowns, or about once every four times he touches the ball.

Arkansas counters with an almost certain first-round pro draft choice, runner-receiver Gary Anderson, who has scored four touchdowns in three games against the Longhorns, and three all-SWC offensive linemen.

"The seniors would like to finish with three victories in four years against Texas, but we know they will be out to beat us, especially after last year," Anderson said.

Arkansas, which hasn't beaten Texas on the road since 1966, is a three-point underdog.

Woody Peele

It's the time of year when rumors fly about as often as footballs went into the air during the past season.

And some of them aren't even about football.

For the last week or so, a rumor has floated around Greenville that East Carolina University Athletic Director Dr. Ken Karr turned down a bid from the ECAC-South to hold the 1983 league baseball tournament in Greenville.

The rumor went on to say that it would have cost ECU nothing to put on the tournament: that the ECAC picked up the expenses of the event, except for travel, meals and lodging by the teams involved, which are paid by those schools.

Well, it turns out that it's not quite that way.

First, ECU was never offered the ECAC-South tournament. What did happen was that Karr decided submit a bid for the school to hold the 1983 event. As a result, only Richmond and James Madison made requests for the event and it was awarded to Madison again.

Reportedly, several coaches in the league said that they would back ECU should it make a bid for the tournament, but it then turns out that the ECAC coaches have little or no voice in where the tourney is held.

That, according to ECAC vice-commissioner Brian Petrovek is decided by a committee of seven people. These seven include two athletic directors each from the ECAC's South, New York and New England divisions, plus the chairman of the committee.

As to expenses, that's up in the air at this time. Petrovek said that a formula is being worked out now so that expenses are paid from gate receipts, and if there is a further deficit, it would be shared by the teams involved. Even there, what the total expenses involved would be, or whether just the schools playing, or the entire league, would share in the deficit, hasn't been decided.

We approached Karr on why he had nixed an ECU bid, and his reply was that he didn't want ECU to hold a tournament if it couldn't put it on in a first class way.

He said that while ECU's field is an outstanding one (it's the only ECAC-South field with lights), the locker facilities were his prime concern as not being first class.

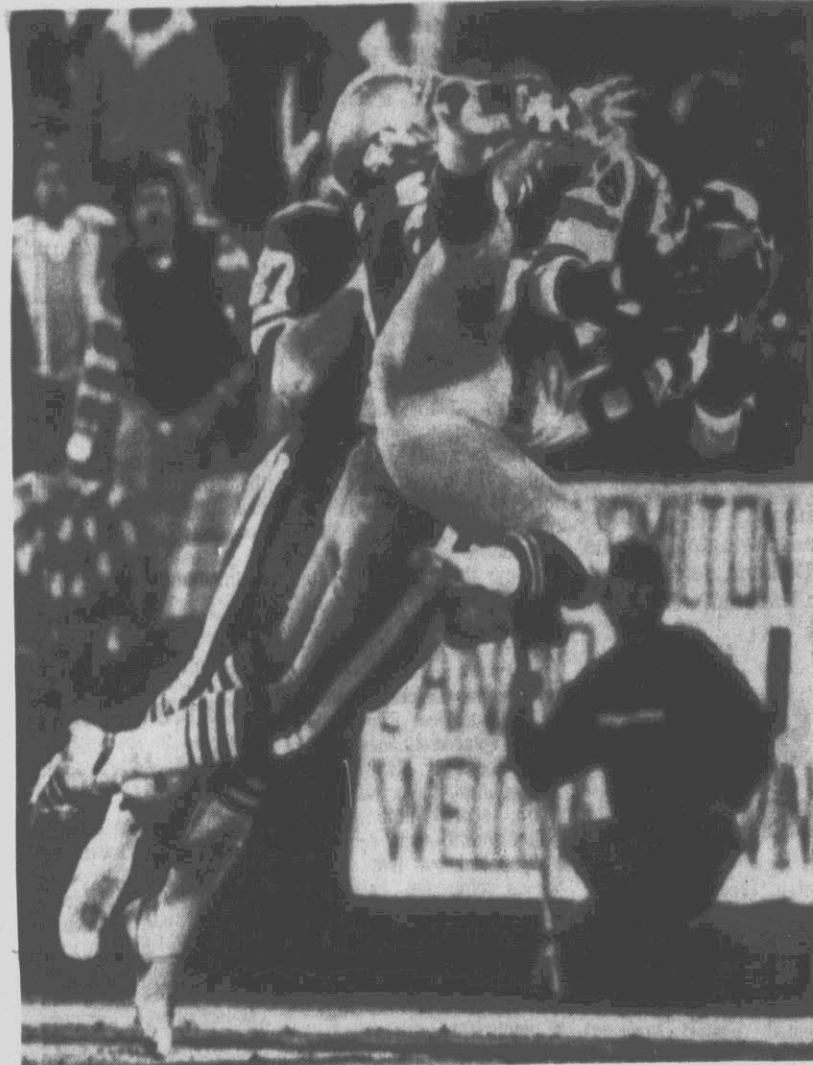

However, construction is now underway in Scales Fieldhouse to provide additional locker facilities. Would these be enough?

They would, Karr said, but he was uncertain at the time when the bids had to be submitted whether these facilities would be totally completed and in use by the first of May.

He did state without hesitation that he saw no reason whatsoever why East Carolina could not submit a bid to hold the tournament in the 1984 season, however.

So, hopefully, the Pirates would indeed have a chance in 1984 to host the event.

Karr added that he felt the same way about fielding a major basketball tournament (although the ECU women do host the Lady Pirate Converse Classic). He said that locker facilities in Minges are just not what he considered adequate for a first class tournament.

Dallas Coach Is Happy

By The Associated Press

For many National Basketball Association teams, an 8-7 record might not seem like much. But for Dallas Mavericks Coach Dick Motta, it's almost heaven.

"I'm very pleased with this club. It's one heck of a start," said Motta after the Mavericks went over the .500 mark with a 110-100 victory over the Golden State Warriors Thursday night.

Although Motta admits he's "not buying my tickets for the playoffs yet," it's quite a turnaround for the once-hapless Mavericks, who last season lost 24 games by the time they had won eight.

For the first time this season, the Mavericks got 20-point performances from four of their players: Mark Aguirre with 27 points, Rolando Blackman with 22 and Jay Vincent and Kelvin Ransey with 20 apiece. Ransey said he played his best game of the year in a new role — coming off the bench.

"My body was alive as it can be," said Ransey, who came to Dallas last summer in a trade with Portland for Wayne Cooper and a draft choice. "I've never come off the bench before and it's new to me. I'm just glad that I'm finally playing well."

It was the eighth straight road loss for the Warriors, who also have lost eight of their last nine games and have fallen to 5-12 for the season.

In other NBA action, Utah turned back Portland 119-112 and Philadelphia beat Phoenix 116-108.

The Mavericks never trailed after taking a 54-53 lead late in the second quarter but had to overcome a 40-point performance by Golden State's Purvis Short, who has scored 80 points in his last two games.

Jazz 119, Trail Blazers 112. Adrian Dantley scored 37 points and Darrell Griffith added 20 to spark Utah over Portland. Dantley, Griffith and Dolph Schayes, who scored 19 points, helped the Jazz run up its largest margin of the game, 87-74, with 3:43 left in the third period.

But Calvin Natt, who led Portland with 29 points, and Mychal Thompson triggered a Portland rally early in the fourth period, and with six minutes remaining the Blazers had caught up and gone ahead 103-101.

Utah tied it up again, moved into the lead with four minutes remaining and pulled away again, leading by 117-107 after a Griffith three-point goal with a minute to go.

UCLA Nips DePaul By 73-70

ROSEMONT, Ill. (AP) — UCLA, huffing and puffing, was glad the game was over. But DePaul Coach Ray Meyer would have liked to see another overtime "because they (UCLA) would have died."

Sixth-ranked UCLA, relying on six players for all but a few minutes of the action, pulled out a 73-70 overtime college basketball victory Thursday night over unranked DePaul, which had its 27-game winning streak at the Horizon arena snapped.

UCLA was the only Top Twenty team in action Thursday night.

In boosting their record to 2-0 and handing DePaul its first loss in three starts, the Bruins shot 56 per cent from the field which helped overcome 24 turnovers, forced by the scrappy Blue Demons, composed mostly of sophomores and freshmen.

"I was really pleased with our defense late in the game and late in the overtime. We had backed ourselves into a corner," said UCLA Coach Larry Farmer. "Our defense loosened in the second half. It was discouraging to make a great play and see them get a layup."

Darren Daye, a 6-foot-8 senior, led the Bruins with a career-high 23 points, on 10-of-16 shooting from the field, and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Michael Holton, UCLA's sixth man, sank two free throws with 1:29 remaining in overtime to give the Bruins a 72-69 lead and they hung on to spoil the 40th anniversary of Meyer's coaching debut.

UCLA led by as much as 12 points in the first half and was in front at intermission 41-32. "I thought that we played tentatively in the first 15 minutes," said Meyer. "We let UCLA run on us and gave them charity baskets."

But DePaul, paced by Bernard Randolph, the lone Blue Demon senior to play, rallied in the second half and went ahead 58-57 on Randolph's tip-in with 7:05 left.

It was close the rest of the way and UCLA had a chance to win in regulation play when Rod Foster, the NCAA's leading free-throw shooter last season with a 95 percentage, was fouled with seven seconds left.

Foster missed the first free throw but made the second, sending the game into the extra session tied at 65.

"The one player they weren't supposed to foul was the nation's leading free throw shooter under any conditions," said Meyer.

"But we have so many youngsters and they're going to make mistakes. But mark my words, this team will be heard from. We competed with one of the best teams in the nation."

Randolph, who fouled out with three minutes left in regulation play, led DePaul with 21 points. Sophomore Tyrone Corbin added 12 and junior Jerry McMillan 10 as the Demons shot 41 per cent from the field and committed 18 turnovers.

UCLA got 15 points from Kenny Fields, 12 from Ralph Jackson and 10 from 7-footer Stuart Gray, who also grabbed 10 rebounds.

In other college basketball action, Shelton Gibbs scored 22 points, including 12 of 13 from the foul line, to lead St. Peter's (N.J.) to a 68-47 victory over George Washington; Kevin Black scored 18 of his 19 points in the second half to lift Rutgers to a 71-65 victory over Jacksonville; John Devereaux scored 18 points and pulled down 18 rebounds to lead Ohio University over Marietta 90-68; Derek Harper and Scott Meentz each scored 13 points as Illinois beat Valparaiso 94-59 and David Taylor scored 24 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to pace Hofstra past Stony Brook 97-70.

Also, Eddie Childress' 22 points led Morehead State over Eastern Illinois 72-65; Danny Pearson triggered Georgia Tech on a string of 15 straight points late in the game to seal a 76-54 victory over St. Francis; Glen Green scored 20 points as Murray State defeated Southern Illinois 63-41; Matt Clark collected 16 points and 10 rebounds as Oklahoma State bounced the College of the Ozarks 80-61 and Claude Riley poured in 19 points as Texas A&M rolled to a 91-70 win over Texas A&I.

Barry Stevens scored 30 points to lead Iowa State to an 80-78 come-from-behind overtime victory over Minnesota; Jeff Dishman and Carl Henry each scored 17 as Kansas defeated Mississippi Valley State 63-51; Dion Brown's 25 points led Southwestern Louisiana over New Orleans 70-68; Lorenzo Jenkins scored 20 points, leading Eastern New Mexico to a 71-66 victory over Oklahoma City; Derrick Pope scored 20 points as Montana rolled past St. Mary's College 69-56; Dane Suttle connected on a 20-foot jump shot with two seconds remaining, giving Pepperdine a 77-75 win over UC-Santa Barbara; Mark Steele's 19 points led Colorado State over Oral Roberts 61-46; Renaldo O'Neal sank an 18-footer with five seconds left to lead Rice to a 32-30 comeback victory over Tulane and Billy Houston and Vince Kelley scored 18 points each to pace Colorado to a 79-70 victory over Duke.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Howard Cosell believes something needs to be done about professional boxing. One of his suggested alternatives is to abolish the sport.

Cosell, who has informed ABC-TV that he will no longer cover professional boxing, said Thursday that another choice would be to improve the protection for fighters.

"I realize the sport is one man seeking to knock the brains out of another, but it still has been a very important part of my life," said Cosell, who has described and commented on major fights for ABC for several years. "I think anyone over two years old who has seen what's going on should know that something needs to be done."

Cosell, who was in southern California for the telecast of Thursday night's National Football League game between the San Francisco 49ers and Los Angeles Rams at Anaheim Stadium, worked last week's World Boxing Council heavyweight title fight in which champion Larry Holmes pummeled challenger Randy "Tex" Cobb for 15 rounds.

Cosell repeatedly wondered aloud why the fight wasn't being stopped and, at various times, called it "brutal ... savagery ... outrageous."

That one-sided fight came in the wake of the beating absorbed by Alexis Arguello in a World Boxing Association junior welterweight title fight with Aaron Pryor and the fatal beating of Duk-Koo Kim in a WBA lightweight title fight with Ray "Boom Boom" Mancini.

Cosell said the accumulation of events made him decide to quit broadcasting boxing.

"I have seen a lot in boxing, and I have done my best over the past two years to change things," he said. "I have testified before the government."

"But my fighting for new standards was denounced by the print media. They said keep the federal government out of it ... But something's wrong when a fighter can get knocked out in New Jersey then fight in Las Vegas a week later."

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

THE BIBLICAL CHARIOT!

THE CHARIOT, IN BIBLICAL TIMES, WAS THE COUNTERPART OF OUR MODERN AUTOMOBILE...EXCEPT IT WAS USED MAINLY FOR WAR! THE FIRST BIBLICAL MENTION OF THE CHARIOT OCCURS IN GENESIS (GEN. 41:43) WHERE JOSEPH, AS A MARK OF DISTINCTION, WAS PLACED IN PHAROA'S SECOND CHARIOT. THE ISRAELITES DID NOT USE CHARIOTS UNTIL AFTER THE REIGNS OF DAVID AND SOLOMON WHO NOT ONLY GOT THE IDEA FROM THE EGYPTIANS BUT ALSO THE NECESSARY EQUIPMENT: HORSES AND CHARIOTS! EVEN SO, ONLY KINGS, PRINCES, AND NOBLEMEN, AMONG THE ISRAELITES, RODE IN CHARIOTS AND KINGS QUITE OFTEN HAD A SECOND CHARIOT FOLLOW THEM WHEN IN BATTLE IN CASE THE FIRST ONE WAS DESTROYED. ODDLY ENOUGH THE NEW TESTAMENT MENTIONS A CHARIOT ONLY ONCE (ACTS 8:29) IN CONNECTION WITH THE ABYSSINIAN EUNUCH OF QUEEN CANDACE.

Re-Make Of Agatha Christie Movie Is Still Superb

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The classic works in art and film are not like laundry detergent. Nobody's going to come up with a better and brighter Mona Lisa, nor are they going to make a new and improved "Witness for the Prosecution."

With that said, go ahead and wrap yourself in the mystery web and courtroom dramatics of "Witness for the Prosecution," the CBS remake on Saturday night. If you didn't see the 1958 black-and-white movie original with Charles Laughton and Marlene Dietrich, or the Agatha Christie play before that, you'll be thoroughly shocked and entertained. If this isn't your first time, then you'll just be entertained.

The setting is 1954 London, when there was a death penalty carried out by hanging. In the first scene, an old woman is scurrying down a dark, deserted street. Of course it's raining. Of course there's thunder and lightning. Of course there's sharp footsteps on the cobblestones.

Of course you know this isn't going to be Gilbert and Sullivan.

American Leonard Vole (Beau Bridges) is charged with murdering a rich widow. He claims his innocence and says he didn't know the dead woman's will left him 80,000 pounds. His only alibi is that he was with his German-born wife (Diana Rigg here, the more mysterious Miss Dietrich in the original) when the murder was committed.

Vole's barrister is the well-respected Sir Wilfred Robarts, played by the well-respected Sir Ralph Richardson, who gives the role the requisite dashes of puckish charm. Sir Wilfred can't resist the case, despite doctors orders to steer clear of criminal courtrooms following his heart attack.

When we first meet the cantankerous Sir Wilfred, he's been discharged from the hospital, although a nurse says "expelled" would be more appropriate.

Sir Wilfred smokes too many cigars and drinks too much brandy. When he slips away from his persistent nurse (Deborah Kerr), he tells the taxi driver: "Forgive my haste, but my nurse might be following on her broomstick."

The original movie's barrister was Charles Laughton, whose wife, Elsa Lanchester, played the nurse. Their ongoing, patient-busybody relationship was given fuller treatment, but the shorter TV movie had to be cut somewhere.

The courtroom detonations and detours, though, still remain the movie's show-stoppers. But, enough said. It would be criminal to give away too much.

Let's just say that "Witness for the Prosecution" contains delectable twists and a classy cast, although Bridges is too boyish to be convincing as the womanizer with blood on his hands.

"Witness for the Prosecution" is produced by Norman Rosemont, master of the remake. Rosemont respects the classics and doesn't tamper too much. Some of his other successes have been "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," and "Les Miserables."

The movie is a Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation, a reliable television vehicle since 1950. Hallmark looks to spread good cheer and commercials for its greeting cards around Christmastime. Originally, Hallmark's showcase was going to be CBS' homage to the courtship of Prince Charles and Lady Di.

But, in trying (as it turned out, unsuccessfully) to beat ABC's royal wedding movie to air, CBS pushed the program ahead three months. You don't sell Christmas cards in September, so Hallmark found a different film to sponsor.

And a better one, too.

"Witness for the Prosecution" is a can't-miss puzzler.

Filmed in London, it even manages a shot of Buckingham Palace, but Charles and Di aren't waving from the balcony. Not to worry. Agatha Christie writes better stories than they do.

Altman Finds An Ally In War On Hollywood

By MARLA DONATO
CHICAGO (UPI) — It could turn out to be the entertainment world's biggest knock-down drag-out. Renegade film director Robert Altman finally has found a formidable ally in his war on Hollywood.

Even as battlelines are drawn, however, the fight may be over before it starts. Altman said Hollywood already has begun to self-destruct through crass commercialism. Its creative refugees are beating a path to cable television, with Altman himself in the lead.

Best known for his smash successes of "MASH" and "Nashville," Altman declared last year he was fed up with the Hollywood system. He sold his production company, Lion's Gate Films, and left the West Coast film world.

With the opening of his latest feature film this fall, "Come Back to the Five & Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean," Altman has returned to the wide screen, but without the studios.

"The studios are not in the same business I'm in," Altman said. "It's like talking about insurance companies. They're trying to serve current trends commercially ... they're not dealing in art. The only thing they're going for is commerce. They'll destroy themselves."

Altman is highly optimistic about the possibilities of cable, however.

"It has knocked out the number one enemy, which is censorship, because it's not using the airwaves," he said. "And paid cable now is getting rich, and when they start getting money, they'll want to get richer and then you'll have more alternatives."

With more money, cable will be able to compete on Hollywood's own big stakes terms. Altman estimates the average cost of a Hollywood film at $7 million to $10 million. He blames major distributors, which he claims are in league with the unions to drive film costs up.

Those high costs, he said, force filmmakers to go through the big studios that are interested only in copying past successes rather than moving forward to create something new and unproven.

That has set up a sour relationship between Hollywood and the maverick director, whose pictures also include "A Wedding," "Quintet," "A Perfect Couple," "Health" and others that failed to impress fans and sometimes critics.

But Altman has found creative alternatives — the stage, art film circuits and cable TV. His latest project, "Jimmy Dean," touches all of them.

Altman staged the drama, by playwright Ed Graczyk, first on Broadway, where it did poorly, and then as a film for cable. It came out looking like a movie suitable to theaters, took the grand prize at the recent Chicago film festival, and is now showing theatrically. It has drawn cautious, but generally good reviews, including one from New Yorker film critic Pauline Kael who wrote that the film "shouldn't work but does."

IT'S A TAKE — First Lady Nancy Reagan prepares to tape one of several television and radio public service announcements at the United Way of America's audio-visual communication and training center in Alexandria, Va. The announcements will be part of an awareness campaign about the problem of youth abuse of drugs and alcohol. (AP Laserphoto)

'Shadow Box' Splendid Play, Beautifully Acted

Michael Cristofer's "The Shadow Box," which opened Thursday night at McGinnis Theater and will be presented each evening at 8:15 through Monday night, has won both a Tony Award and a Pulitzer Prize. It's highly deserving of these honors.

Unabashedly emotional, Cristofer's superbly crafted script is a thoughtful, honest, often comic probe into the lives of three persons who are trying to learn to live with, to accept, the fact they are terminally ill. Their efforts to cope, to accept, to make each remaining hour or day worthwhile are shared by companions who serve them in their illnesses and family members who visit them.

Each of the nine cast members in this East Carolina Playhouse production obviously relishes their roles — each gives performances that are finely attuned to the nuances in the human tug of love, hate, bafflement, disgust delineated in the intelligent script.

Set in the framework of terminal patients isolated in cottages on the grounds of a modern hospital, the action shifts skillfully back and forth between the occupants and their visitors. Playwright Cristofer uses the device of asides, in the form of conversations with the offstage interviewer (the conscience of each character) to tie together and expand on the interaction of the characters. This can be a risky device to rely on — in "The Shadow Box," it rings true — adds an extra dimension to the rich texture of the play.

"The Shadow Box" shows clearly that life is essentially a celebration of being alive, of the determination to hang on to life even while on the threshold of death. It shows, too, the toughness of fragile mankind able to bring to the battle the most formidable weapon of survival — the ability to laugh in the face of fate while seeking courage to accept the inevitability of death.

This gut comic response to the terrors of dying gives birth to passages of human comedy among the finest in contemporary drama.

Instances of the ability to compromise fear through laughter abound throughout the play. In Cottage Two, for example, novelist Brian (Gregory Watkins), the young middle-aged terminal case who has found success during his illness, nonchalantly makes capital of his condition by telling his visiting former wife, Beverly, (Catherine Rhea) that his success is in due part to "a huge market for dying people."

Beverly, in turn, reveals her own screwball philosophy of life by a joyfully vulgar explanation of the history of her jewels to Mark (Robert John White), the insecure, sensitive young homosexual companion to Brian. "These are the medals of former passions," she declares as she flamboyantly struts about the living room, removing one after another item of jewelry from her body and gaudy red dress, providing names and circumstances of their acquisition.

Veteran actress Hazel Stapleton as Felicity, the dying old woman in Cottage Three, angrily accuses the interviewer of having no compassion for the fact she survives only due to "wires and batteries in place of a heart, a piece of plastic for a stomach." Moments later, she shocks and baffles her plain, puritanical daughter Agnes (Allison Thompson), by singing bawdy verses from "Roll Me Over in the Clover" immediately after Agnes had been singing a church hymn.

It is only in Cottage One that the healing outrage of comic defiance is more subdued. As a consequence, the ill man, Joe (Dick St. George), has a more difficult struggle to adjust to the inevitable. His wife Maggie (Susan Netznik) is incapable of expressing gut humor, despite her touching Jewish Mother type of concern that has prompted her to arrive laden with bags of goodies. She fills the void with sentimental reminiscences, but has not the courage to accept her husband's illness or to reveal it's existence to their teen-age son Steve (Jeff Benninghofen). Benninghofen, who has the most minor role of any of the eight stage characters, is a young actor gifted with an exceptionally resonant voice.

Paul B. Jarrett as the offstage voice in the role of the interviewer is consistently effective both as spur and foil to the inner doubts of each character.

Cedric Winchell has inspired the fine cast to make the demanding transition from the lighter vein of the first act to the deeper, more dramatically compelling tenor of the second act.

As usual in the Playhouse productions, Gregory Buch's scenic designs, David Dowling's lighting, and Patrice Alexander's costumes are instrumental in providing a first rate framework for the Playhouse offerings.

"The Shadow Box" is a remarkable adult dramatic experience that comes to grips with the specter of death while celebrating the joy of living. Beautifully acted, it is a warmhearted experience that should not be missed.

Rules Film Did Not Copy Book

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The movie "Coming Home," starring Jane Fonda, did not copy a book called "Concomitant Soldier — Women and War," a federal appeals court has ruled.

Author Sonya Jason had filed suit against Miss Fonda and eight others for copyright infringement, unfair competition, misappropriation and breach of implied contract. She contended the movie copied her novel.

But the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed Thursday with a ruling by a federal judge, who ruled for the defendants in 1981.

The judge said Mrs. Jason presented evidence showing no more than a "bare possibility" the defendants had access to her work.

He also said the two works weren't substantially similar.

Children In Soap Opera Are Looking For Homes

By JERRY SCHWARTZ
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A 15-year-old orphan making a guest appearance on "Search for Tomorrow" hopes the show can give his own life a soap-opera twist — by finding him a family.

Allen Johnson was joined on the set of the NBC-TV program Thursday by seven other adoptable children who appeared as extras in a scene from an episode to be broadcast Christmas Eve.

"It feels really great," said Johnson. "Such excitement ... not knowing what's going to happen next and whatnot."

After the show is broadcast, an advertisement will urge viewers in the New York area to adopt one of the eight children or others in the care of Little Flower Children's Services. Viewers elsewhere will be exhorted to adopt children in their areas.

Officials at Little Flower admit some people might be offended by the use of television to facilitate adoptions. But they say new tactics are needed to attract prospective parents for children who seem too old, the wrong color or somehow defective.

Even before "Search for Tomorrow," the adoption agency, with headquarters in Wading River on Long Island, had attracted $17,000 in grants to film ads about its children and to buy television time.

"It's called marketing and perhaps that sounds a little hard. But marketing is what we do today," said Adrienne Carr, director of development for Little Flower, which takes in 1,600 abused and abandoned children each year.

Three of eight children already shown in Little Flower commercials are in the process of being adopted, she said.

"It's the power of the medium that's making it happen. Perhaps some people think it's in bad taste, but I have to think beyond that. If one child's life is saved, it's worth it," she says.

Anita Delaney, who works for the city department of special services for children, said, "I think many years ago, we would have had qualms about doing something like this. But now, we feel that we have to use means that are available to us."

Robert Getz, producer of "Search for Tomorrow," said his staff had suggested using adoptable children as extras in a Christmas party scene. In addition to possibly finding homes, each child will receive $87.75 for less than two hours of work, he said.

Officers Named By Builders Ass'n

Dennis Harrington has been installed as the 1983 president of the Greenville-Pitt County Home Builders Association.

Harrington's installation by Nelson Callahan of Goldsboro, the 1983 president of the N.C. Home Builders Association, took place during the GPCBA's annual awards and installation banquet at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Harrington is part owner of Ollie Harrington & Son Builders Inc., a local building firm.

He received his degree in business at East Carolina University and also holds a master's degree in public administration. Harrington is a graduate of the N.C. State Home Builders Institute and is a licensed building contractor and real estate broker.

Other officers installed were Bill Clark, first vice president; Ed Tipton II, second vice president, and Billy Davis, secretary-treasurer.

DENNIS HARRINGTON

Directors installed were Stanley Peadar, Dave Rogers, Donnie Brewer, Bob Dail, L.D. Thomas, Thomas Butts, Lee Ball, Charles Hood, David Evans Jr. and Merle Bowser.

The business trade organization is made up of builders and associates whose purpose is to promote the building industry.

IN SEARCH OF A TOMORROW — Actress Lisa Peluso, who portrays Wendy in the television series "Search for Tomorrow," plays with Nancy, a 5-year-old homeless child cared for by Little Flower Children's Services of Wading River, N.Y. during a break in the filming of an episode of the series. Nancy was joined by seven other adoptable children on the set — all of whom appear as extras in a scene to be aired Christmas Eve. An advertisement urging viewers in the New York area to adopt one of the eight children will follow the program. (AP Laserphoto)
