NEW STYLE CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS? — The Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity took a new look early this morning, and the intention was not with the Christmas season in mind. Graduates of a recent pledge class who are being inducted into the fraternity decorated the yard with toilet paper. Many rolls of the white, fluffy, squeezably soft stuff were used to create a mass of white that hung from almost every tree in the yard. The fraternity is located on East Fifth Street. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Christmas Blues Afflict Some People Even Now

By LEE WILDER
ECU Medical Writer

The holiday affliction known as "Christmas blues" could be augmented this season by economic problems of the unemployed and the uncertainties of single men or women who find themselves alone when everyone else seems to be together.

This despondency during the holidays starts even earlier now for some people, says Dr. James L. Mathis, chairman of psychiatric medicine at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

"It may begin in October, when stores hang Christmas decorations, and it drags on through the piped-in music and overdone commercialism to an unendurable point. The two months of Christmas may make Scrooges of us all."

"People who remember past Christmases as a golden time of perfection may be clinging to a childhood fantasy that could embitter their attitude toward the present," Mathis says.

This is not a pathological depression and most often represents a normal reaction, but it is a particularly bad time for people who have suffered recent losses such as a death in the family or separation and divorce. Mathis feels that these people are in the most jeopardy.

Actually, the Christmas of yore may not have been a 100 percent happy time at all. Mathis suggests that if the past can be viewed with honesty, an almost impossible task, the individual may realize that family gatherings included ordinary people with everyday faults who sometimes bickered, even at Christmas.

Complicating the scene this year may be the head of the family who is without a job and suffers the additional stress of being unable to buy a plentiful array of gifts.

Much of the Christmas tradition had its origin in the stereotype of the omnipotent father, or Santa Claus, who always was a good provider. The contrast is felt deeply in the unemployed father who feels as if he has failed his family.

Mathis says the current economic tension may produce an increase in family strife and violence such as wifebeating and child abuse, and suicides also appear to increase before and after holidays.

There are positive steps that people can take to help beat the blues.

The person who is newly alone, especially, should plan some type of activity outside the house with a friend or acquaintance. "Make plans with other people," Mathis says.

Other specific suggestions: — Volunteer to help out at the hospital, whether it is visiting patients or doing more specific jobs.

— Avoid excesses of alcohol at parties or alone, because drinking can make the situation worse, instead of better.

— Visit nursing homes and take along books, flowers, small plants or some talisman that will make an aging person feel someone cares about them.

— Clean out closets and take a carload of clothing to agencies that will distribute warm coats, sweaters, toys and books, to people who need them.

— If a well-meaning friend invites you to join the family circle on Christmas day for dinner, think about it. This may produce the feeling of a forced situation in which no one is completely comfortable.

"Sometime it may be better to make a determined stab at accepting the present rather than wallowing in self-pity while dwelling in a past that possibly wasn't that good, anyway," Mathis says, but Christmas remains a pleasant time for most people in spite of the negative aspects.

"For the minority who yield to despondency, remember that 'this, too, shall pass.'"

Rare Stamp Found 27 Years Later

CHICAGO (AP) — A rare stamp worth about $150,000 was recovered here 27 years after it was stolen from a stamp exhibition in Virginia, the FBI says.

The 1918 U.S. airmail stamp, known as an "inverted Jenny" because of its upside-down picture of a Curtiss-Wright "Jenny" biplane, was turned over to the FBI by a collector who "became suspicious" of its origins, FBI agent Robert Spiel said Tuesday.

The 24-cent stamp was the second to be recovered from a block of four stolen at an American Philatelic Society convention in 1955 in Norfolk, Va., Spiel said. Another of the stamps was recovered in Chicago in 1977.

The Cleveland FBI office has been pursuing leads in the case since April, according to Joseph E. Griffin, head of the office. The collector, who was not identified, met with FBI agents on Nov. 16 in Chicago and confirmed that he had an inverted Jenny.

Agents saw the stamp several days later, and stamp experts confirmed that it was one of the stolen stamps.

Spiel said the FBI had delayed announcing the recovery of the stamp to give experts time to authenticate it and return it to its owner, the American Philatelic Research Library in State College, Pa.

No arrests have been made in the case, Spiel said.

The collector who had the stamp told the FBI that two appraisers had placed the stamp's value at $150,000.

Board Reduces New Ayden School Cost

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Education agreed Tuesday to changes in water and sewer lines for the new Ayden Middle School that will cut project cost by $4,000.

The $4,000, board members agreed, will go to the town of Ayden to be used toward construction of the lines. Pitt School Superintendent Eddie West called this exchange "an act of faith between two government boards."

The town requested that the school board allow substitution of an eight-inch water main for a six-inch main specified in the plan and that the water service enter the west side of the building instead of the right side.

In a letter to Dudley, Shoe & Hite, architects for the project, McDavid Associates, engineers for the town of Ayden, noted that the existing six-inch service line provides water to a shopping center and is "presently approaching its operating capacity."

"Currently, the town is aware of other developers who are planning construction of a second shopping center and a 52-apartment complex, all of which would receive water service from the existing six-inch main," stated the letter.

Both Cameron Dudley, representative of Dudley, Shoe & Hite, and Thomas Craft, associate superintendent of Pitt County Schools, told board members that the eight-inch main would benefit the project by providing the school with more water pressure than the six-inch.

The town also requested and received approval from the Board of Education for a permanent utility easement of 15 feet on the new Ayden Middle School property line to allow construction of two sewer mains from two existing lift stations tying into the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewer District main, located on N.C. 11.

The town of Ayden said they planned to complete construction of all water and sewer needs by August 1983.

In other business, the board: •Reviewed bids from banks and awarded Wachovia Bank the contract for county school funds.

•Appointed Patricia Angle school treasurer for Pactolus School.

•Heard Finance Officer Dan Thomas report that the schools received $15,985 in fines and forfeitures in November, $152 above the $15,833-per-month estimate calculated in the 1982-83 budget.

Reagan Says Reversal Of MX Setback Is A 'Must'

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says defeat of production plans for the MX missile was "a grave mistake" that must be reversed, and White House officials worry it signals a new post-election mood in Congress against a huge buildup in Pentagon spending.

Reagan vowed to "do everything I can to take this case to the country," on Tuesday when the House — by a surprisingly wide 245-176 vote — deleted $988 million intended for building the first five missiles.

The House did not kill the MX missile program, however. The bill still contains about $2.4 billion in research and development funds for the MX and its basing system.

"Unless reversed in coming days," Reagan said, "it will seriously set back our efforts to protect the nation's security and could handcuff our negotiators at the arms table."

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he expects the Senate to take up the bill containing MX funds early next week. "We are somewhat stronger over here," said Baker, an MX supporter.

Although the vote was a major setback for the president, who had waged an intensive lobbying campaign to save the MX, both supporters and opponents agree the fight isn't over.

"We won the battle, but we haven't won the war," said Rep. Joseph Addabbo, D-N.Y., leader of the anti-MX forces.

"I don't think this means MX is dead," said Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., a leading MX supporter.

But Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said today that the vote should not have surprised the White House. "I think there was a feeling that defense was on the chopping block," he said. "This clearly demonstrates defense will not escape unscathed next year."

Dole predicted on NBC-TV's "Today" show that a lengthy expected Senate debate casts doubt on whether Congress will approve MX missile funds this year. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, appearing on "CBS Morning News," also expressed uncertainty whether the Reagan administration can win Senate approval before Congress adjourns.

Weinberger said the vote reflected a feeling stemming from the Nov. 2 elections that defense spending ought to be reduced, but "it's actually going to cause us to spend more on defense because when you delay production ... you've just automatically made things more costly."

The defense secretary said the administration had failed to make its case for the MX. "... Some way we have not yet been able to convey to the American people or to the Congress the really serious nature, the growing nature of the peril" represented by the rapid Soviet arms buildup, he said.

White House strategists planned to meet today to work on a plan to assure victory for the MX in the Republican-controlled Senate. That would guarantee the MX would be a subject of joint House-Senate negotiations on the defense bill, and would mean another vote in the House.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes predicted today the MX production funds would fare better in the Senate, although he conceded the vote could be close.

Although it has not been decided how Reagan will promote his case, his options include a television address and speeches to various audiences.

Audit Indicates Farmville In Excellent Financial Condition

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — The town of Farmville is in excellent financial condition, according to an audit report given town commissioners Tuesday night by auditor Earl Umphlett. He said, of all the towns his firm audits, that Farmville has the best system of investing its money to secure maximum benefit.

The commissioners expressed their pleasure at the clarity of the audit report and of Umphlett's assessment of them as "cheapskates," good stewards of Farmville citizens' money.

A resolution was enacted recognizing Tuesday as Pearl Harbor Day and honoring those who have served in World War II and other wars in which the United States has participated.

Following a public hearing, the town zoning ordinance was amended to have three alternate members added to the board of adjustments. These members will have staggered terms and will be appointed. Two will be residents of Farmville; the other a resident of the town's extraterritorial jurisdiction. They will receive all the information that regular board members do and will be called on only when they are needed to constitute a quorum.

A traffic ordinance was enacted to make Ryon Drive one-way northward during the hours the Recreation Department has athletic events at an adjacent playing field. Truck traffic will be allowed only 325 feet into Ryon Drive from Horne Avenue. The final plat of tract one of the Old Monk Plant Subdivision was approved, allowing the go-ahead of plans for Old Dominion Truck Lines to use the building and grounds as a freight terminal.

The board accepted $1 million in state funds for the third year of the town's Community Development Block Grant and the mayor was authorized to sign the grant agreement. An ordinance enacting a $1,015,000 budget was adopted.

A Community Development Block Grant loan repayment plan was amended to reduce an individual's repayment rate because the number of persons living in the household is smaller. This situation will continuously be monitored, so the rate can reflect the situation if it changes again.

Public works elements of the third-year CDBG program were discussed. Being considered are parking and an alley on the west side of

Casual Turns Fancy

ON THE TOWN — Holidays are the time to dress up and step out, and the fun is in dressing up basics — putting informal looks together in unexpected combinations, such as these separates that offer a casual play on top hats and tails. For him, it's stone-washed jeans paired with traditional, wing-collar tuxedo shirt. For her, a stone-washed denim mini with an updated shirt that's strictly female. (All from The Gap Stores.)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

This country is controlled by demographics. And the magic numbers are: 18 to 35.

No one under 18 or over 35 reads books or magazines.

No one under 18 or over 35 watches television or buys the products that sponsor it.

You can't get hired for a job unless you're over 18 or under 35.

This group is supposed to have the greatest number of athletes, the greatest number in the military and the largest number of desires.

Or so the advertisers would have you believe.

Let me tell you something they forgot about under 18 and over 35: buying power.

If I were selling cosmetics in this country, I'd go for the one that needs it the most and can afford it: the over-35s. The women who take three days to get ready for bed and a year and a half to pull themselves together for their class reunion.

If I were selling sports cars, I'd go for the guy with the bald spot on his wallet going through his mid-life crisis. The guy with the high blood pressure and a low tolerance for boredom.

I saw a stunning elderly model with gray hair on "Good Morning, America" the other morning who was complaining that the only products she was hired to sell were laxatives, cures for arthritis, bran flakes and glue for false teeth. These seemed to be the only commodities the over-35s buy.

Seemingly, we never take showers, watch our weight, care about our breath, or go for the gusto.

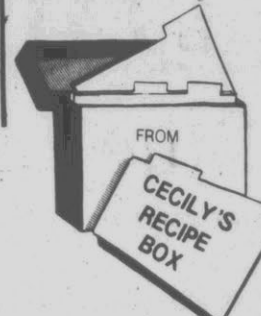

I daresay the over-35s buy more products aimed at youth than any other group. Realistically, what have we got to lose?

As for the under-18s, they are the most powerful buying group in the world. Those who have been indulged by loving grandparents and childless aunts and uncles with checks and savings bonds (with no overhead to pay out) wield more influence over the over-35s than any other group around. (Grow up. Who do you think pressures parents into buying all those video games and boxes of Pimple Pricklies?)

The emphasis on 18-to-35 buying power has been overrated for a long time. If advertisers are going to research the buying habits of the 18-35s, they should look beyond who buys all the records, goes to the movies, and reaches out and touches someone.

They should ask, where do they get the money in the first place? The answer is they put the bite on the under-18s and over-35s.

Cooking Is Fun

- 4 medium carrots, thinly sliced
- 1 green pepper (seeds and membranes removed), thinly sliced

Sprinkle brisket with salt, pepper and paprika. Turn the onions, carrots and green pepper into a casserole not much wider than the meat. Place meat, fat side up, over vegetables. Cover tightly. Bake in a 300-degree oven (no need to preheat) until beef is very tender when a fork is inserted in it — 3 to 3½ hours. If casserole is heavy, it should not be necessary to add liquid during the baking. Skim off fat, before serving, if you like. Makes 4 servings.

Bride's Choice Makes Her Father Blue

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old college graduate who has had one year of law school.

Last June I met the man I am going to marry. We have been constant companions since we met. He is 72 years old and a childless widower.

From the beginning, my father (age 65) has opposed this relationship. I am Dad's only daughter and the eldest "child," and he still treats me as though I were 13 years old. I haven't lived with my parents since 1977.

My problem is how to tactfully, firmly and lovingly tell my father to mind his own business. Hurry your advice, as the wedding is set for next month.

INDEPENDENT

DEAR INDEPENDENT: Every father's "business" is his daughter's happiness, so don't blame your father for opposing your decision to marry a man 49 years your senior. Your letter reveals an intelligent, articulate and strong woman. Now all you have to do is assure your father that you love him, and all you want are his "best wishes," but no advice.

DEAR ABBY: A message to "Jane," who suspects her boyfriend is a "closet gay" because she feels a certain "distance" when they kiss:

Maybe it's your breath. I've been dating a very attractive lady for about two months. I love to nuzzle, cuddle, hug and caress her, but I hate to kiss her because her breath is terrible.

Abby, how do you tell a lady she has bad breath?

KISSLESS IN SEATTLE

DEAR KISSLESS: Tell her lovingly, confidentially, frankly and directly. But do tell her. Bad breath is often a warning signal of stomach trouble, disease of the mouth or a number of other serious ailments. It would be a kindness to tip her off. Do so without delay.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 31-year-old male with a 7-year-old daughter who was born out of wedlock. (I'll call her Betty.) Betty's mother, who was 22 at the time, was afraid to have an abortion, so she had the child but wanted nothing to do with her at the time of her birth or later.

For the first two years I raised Betty myself. It was very difficult, so my married sister and her husband took over, and Betty thinks they are her "real" parents. I contribute to her support and am considered a loving uncle.

What bothers me now is that when Betty grows up, it will come as a shock should she accidentally learn the circumstances of her birth.

I would like to tell her soon that I am her father. But how do I go about it? And what should I say if she asks about her biological mother? We live in different cities (my daughter and I) and I have no intention of taking her away from her present home.

SERIOUS AND HOPEFUL

DEAR SERIOUS: Discuss this with your sister and her husband. I think Betty should be told by you the circumstances of her birth — in the presence of the couple who have raised her as their own. It will not be easy, but your daughter deserves to have all her questions answered truthfully.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. Write to Abby, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Kids Call Pets Best Friends

By JANET SHEDD
CHICAGO (UPI) — A mutt named Melvin is the Lone Ranger of the dog world in disguise, says his owner, 7th grader Mike Larsen. The only difference between the masked mutt and the masked man is that one has fleas.

For 5th grader Mark Flemmig, his dog Fluffy is his pal, who "wants to tell me everything will be OK." And a bulldog named Homebrew, 6th grader Ginger Mason says, "is my best friend at play time."

With rising divorce rates and a growing number of families with both parents working, pets often become a child's playmate, companion and comforter, say officials for the Pets Are Wonderful Council.

The group sponsors informational and educational programs to promote the benefits of pet-owning. It says studies show a pet often is the most popular member of a household.

The organization recently sponsored a nationwide essay contest that gave more than 44,000 grade school children a chance to tell the world about their pets.

Melvin, for instance, is a dog with a social conscience who "likes helping the society in poverty, diseases and other major problems in the city," Mike Larsen, of Billings, Mont., wrote.

After hearing inflation was a major problem, Melvin made a special trip to talk to President Reagan, Mike said, and the president announced he would try to reduce inflation and decreed that dogs should be paid tribute every July 5.

Mark Flemmig, Mohegan Lake, N.Y., said of his dog Fluffy: "I tell her my problems. I hold her and she kisses me. She makes me feel good, like she wants to tell me everything will be OK."

While owners may be dogged about their pets, pets should be choosy about who feeds and houses them, Tasha, a cat, wrote through her owner, 7th grader Laura Orme of Southfield, Mich.

"If the human approaches you with an outstretched hand," she wrote, "don't accept him. He wants a dog."

Tasha also offered other felines helpful hints on how to manage owners. "When you notice that your human has not recently cleaned out your eat box, master the art of picking up pieces of litter and dropping them in commonly walked areas. If this does not work, try the bathtub."

Poinsettia, a cat belonging to 5th grader Rebecca Yaker, Bloomfield Hills, Mich., let the world know she thinks she's the cat's whiskers.

Even though she admits she eats "unusual things like cream cheese ... ice cream, cookies and potato chips," Poinsettia maintains she has "fine feline features and a '10' type body."

Ginger Mason, Rome, Ga., says her dog, Homebrew, "never minds me but I enjoy telling him what is what."

"Homebrew isn't married. There for a while he had several girl friends. But simple life is for my dog... If you want a good dog, get yourself a pit bulldog."

Adoption Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Lane Fussell of Rocky Mount announce the adoption of a daughter, Courtney Lane, on Dec. 7, 1982.

Hurricane Season Over

You might as well climb out of the storm cellar. The 1982 Atlantic hurricane season is over.

While you were down there, we surface people had an unusually calm season (only five storms) and not one of them threatened the United States.

The weather-watchers tell us the hurricane months saw the fewest storms in 50 years, and only five names were used: Alberto, Beryl, Chris, Debby and Ernesto. Debby and Ernesto finally qualified as hurricanes (it took a lot of huffing and puffing), and Alberto hit Cuba before it died.

Of course, hurricanes are not all that predictable. They have a season all their own and sometimes they ignore the rule book and raise their flags on their own initiative.

Like those hurricanes in the Pacific.

Their season was well behind them, too; but one zapped Hawaii, and another storm that should have worn a hurricane label did some awesome things to the West Coast.

Like we said, it could happen here, too, but it would surprise the Weather Bureau. We bet they've already discarded their list of hurricane names.

Wait! Don't go back in the cellar yet; well...

If that's they way you feel, just stay in there. It'll save having to do it all over again next June 1.

European Farm Subsidies Hit

United States trade negotiators have not been able to get agreement from the European Economic Community for a reduction of their government subsidies for farm products.

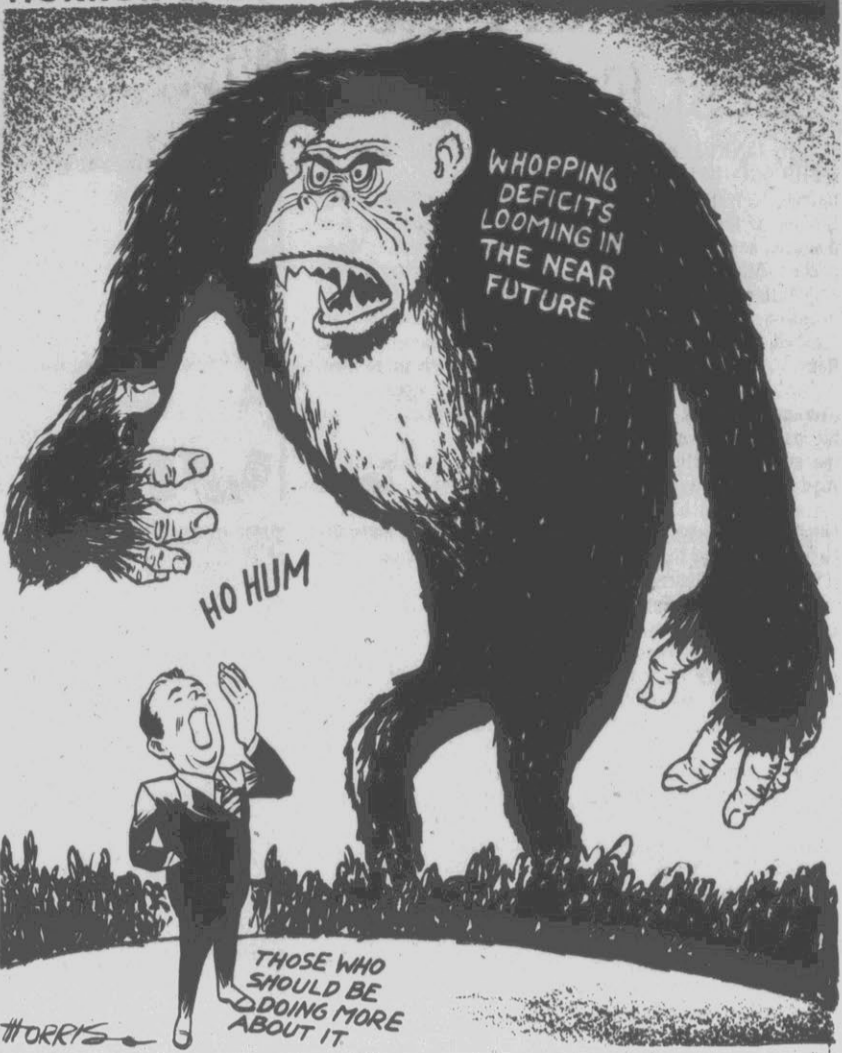

The problem has brought an angry blast from Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina. Helms said Congress will not stand by and "let the American farmers go down the tube by tolerating practices that are detrimental to our farmers."

Helms suggested that there might be retaliation by Congress if the $2.2 billion in farm export subsidies of European countries is not reduced.

Certainly something will have to be done if some progress is not made in reducing the subsidies. United States farmers are at a hopeless disadvantage in the world market if foreign crop exports are subsidized by their governments.

Let Test Apply To All

The Pentagon is seriously considering the use of lie detectors to test the veracity of its 3 million employees as well as defense contractors, and government workers in other departments. They say they want to use the polygraph tests for security reasons.

I have no objection to Defense resorting to lie detectors providing that the top people take them, too, particularly when testifying on The Hill concerning the military budget.

It doesn't seem too much to ask Secretary Weinberger, his top assistants and the high-level brass to put on electrodes when they face a you mean with wings and wheels on it?"

"I'm afraid I wasn't specific. Yes, I do."

"To get it in the air it will cost $234,567,891.50."

"Good. Now this would only be the bare plane and not include such items as radar, communications, bomb racks, cruise missile launcher and parking lights?"

"That's correct, sir. We might add on another $40 million for the equipment, give or take $5 million."

"The polygraph is acting up again, General. How much did you say?"

"Sixty-five million dollars."

"Very good, General. Now may I ask you about the tests the Air Force has made on the B-1? Are your people satisfied that the contractor will bring in the plane at that price without serious overruns?"

"We're certain of it, sir. They should deliver it on schedule without any bugs in it."

"The needle seems to be flying all over the place. Are you sure of this?"

"No, sir. We're not. But we need the plane."

"We're going to give you the plane, General. We just want to know what we're getting for our money."

"Every plane has bugs in it."

"Don't pout. We know that. Which brings us to the question of the C-5A cargo"

Few Innovations

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — Gov. Jim Hunt's legislative agenda for the 1983 General Assembly session will be less ambitious and generally less controversial than those he's presented in his previous three sessions. In a year when there will be considerable pressure to cut programs from the state budget, Hunt's primary job will be to consolidate and "fine tune" the initiatives he's sponsored in the past six years.

On Nov. 30, Hunt told a meeting of the N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry that he will "have a short list for the Legislature this year." He promised harsher drunken driving and drug trafficking laws, restrictions on bail, and other unnamed anti-crime measures. He'll also support the replacement of welfare programs with workfare.

In an interview earlier, Hunt said the Legislature has given him most of the legislation he needs to accomplish what he's set out to do. Now he has an "executive agenda" to get that work done.

Politically, Hunt's legislative agenda is remarkable for its public-pleasing aroma. When he opposes a general tax increase, promises to get tough with drunk drivers and criminals and demands workfare instead of welfare, Hunt is surfing on pretty strong public waves. This is not to say some of his specific proposals won't be opposed by special interests like lawyers and tavern owners. But his general direction is what the public is saying it wants now.

This is not to call Hunt a coward, a follower only of prevailing political winds. Remember his 1981 gasoline tax increase and issues such as gubernatorial succession, student testing, speedy trials and creation of the Public Staff — ideas he supported although initially they were either unpopular or unknown.

Several factors might explain why his agenda is less ambitious and controversial this year. First, as he says, he may have accomplished his legislative goals. Second, Hunt is nearing the end of his governorship — a time when governors often lose their clout. He may be proposing as much as he thinks he can get passed. When asked if his influence is waning, Hunt gave a vague answer but added that he wouldn't be asking for much, anyhow.

Or, he may have his eye on 1984 when he is expected to run for the U.S. Senate seat held by Jesse Helms. This kind of an agenda gives Hunt the news exposure he needs to build some momentum for that campaign.

All would be truly rosy for Hunt if the economy was good. But it isn't and that spells trouble for him and his budget. Gary Pearce, his press aide, says, "I wish I was as optimistic as you that everything he's going to propose in the next two years will be popular." Pearce foresees budget headaches galore. Tax collections are running behind what was expected and Hunt has promised state employees that he'll do everything in his power to get their merit increase pay schedule returned to the budget for 1983-84. To the editor:

As a student at J.H. Rose High school, I would like to express my views on the legal drinking age in North Carolina. I think the legal drinking age should be lowered to 19.

At present, the legal drinking age is 18 for beer and wine and 21 for hard liquor. It is a fact that teen-agers today have no trouble obtaining alcoholic beverages if under age. No matter if you're in your early teens, there is usually a way to get the beverage. I don't think someone in their early teens is as capable of handling situation involving alcohol as a 19-year-old though. Just because you're 21 doesn't mean you're automatically capable of handling alcohol.

I believe a 19-year-old should have the same right to purchase alcohol as a 21-year-old. I am aware of the unfortunate incidents that occur no matter if you're 19, 21 or even older.

To the editor:

I'm writing to this paper to tell how I feel about handicapped people. It makes me mad to see that when a person parks their car, the first place they go is to the handicapped parking spaces because of their convenient locations. What would happen if a handicapped person wanted to park? They would have to park on the outer edges of the parking lot while their space is unnecessarily taken.

Another thing, when you offer to help them in something, they probably get mad because they have heard that same question all day long. "Can I help you do that?" You shouldn't get mad. Just be patient. Most of the time they didn't mean anything by getting angry in the first place. They probably just want to show that they aren't totally helpless babies.

To the editor:

There is no doubt that drunken driving is a serious problem everywhere. I think the punishment for drunken driving is too lenient and should be more severe. There is an extremely high number of innocent people who are seriously injured or even killed by drunken drivers daily.

There is no reason for drunken driving and there is no reason why the public should have to suffer for another's carelessness. Therefore, if you drink, don't drive. Have a friend drive for you. It could save a lot of sorrow in the long run.

To the editor:

Everyone in the world has contact with the public in many ways. I recently took my first public job at a dry cleaners. One of the first things my boss told me was not to let the public's attitude get to me. I thought peoples' attitudes can't be that bad. I was wrong.

Often we don't think about a situation before we act. We should learn to be patient with one another and learn to control our feelings of frustration when things don't go our way.

I challenge "the public" to be more polite and strive to be a joy to work with instead of a burden.

Democrats' Token Plans

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Now comes the push for a jobs program, to have the government create and finance what the private economy can't deliver. It is a familiar call, and President Reagan says he will not need it.

The president is threatening to veto the kind of public works employment plan Democrats demand — and some Republicans want, too. Reagan calls them makework, dead-end jobs, and says the spending that would create them is more likely to prolong the economic slump than to solve anything.

Even the most ambitious of Democratic proposals would be only tokens toward creating work for the army of 12 million unemployed Americans. If Senate Democrats got what they want in the current, postscript session of Congress, they say it would create 655,000 jobs. They are not likely to get it; there isn't time.

Even if they did, the work wouldn't exist for many months. There are projects to be designed, contracts to be let, before the unemployed could be put on government payrolls repairing highways, federal buildings, water systems, park facilities and the like.

The administration argues that such programs are ineffective because by the time Congress gets around to enacting them, the recession they are supposed to counteract is near its end. As a result, the Labor Department contends, private employers are starting to hire again, at better pay, and with better prospects, than the government financed jobs.

But the administration has been claiming for months that recovery was at hand, and it wasn't.

Unemployment has continued to rise, now to 10.8 percent. So the pressure has mounted, heavily — but not entirely — from the Democrats.

Strength For Today

OVER-PAMPERED?

If plants are watered too much or are watered altogether from the top, they do not develop an adequate root system. They grow lazy, and the evidence of their decline is a profusion of yellow leaves. The plants are only healthy if they have to dig down into the soil hunting for moisture.

Thousands of parents often say, "I don't want my youngsters to have to scrape and sacrifice as I did. I want them to have advantages. We have enough income to give them everything they want, and we are going to do it."

If boys and girls do not have to go through discipline and perhaps a little agony to get their own root system established, parents may be disappointed to discover plenty of yellow leaves showing up as the years pass. Healthy plants must have good root systems, and they will establish only such root systems as they are compelled to establish. — Elisha Douglass

New Job Market Of Tomorrow

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Twelve million Americans are out of work today. You could be joining them tomorrow — if you're not prepared for the job market of the future.

No one can predict exactly what will happen to the unemployment rate — at 10.8 percent during November — or when the recession will end. Nor can anyone guarantee you a particular job in a particular place.

You can get some clues, however, from the Labor Department's periodic reports on employment prospects for about 250 occupations. The reports give the job outlook for the coming decade and the growth expected in each area.

You can get the latest report from the Consumer Information Center in Pueblo, Colo., 81009. There is a charge of $2.75. Address your request to Dept. 124L and ask for "The Job Outlook in Brief."

The department warns that the reports are subject to error; they depend — to some degree at least — on assumptions about things like population growth and the demand for individual goods and services. And they deal with the picture for the entire nation and may not reflect local job markets. You should use them as a general guide, not as a detailed blueprint for career planning.

Total employment in the United States is expected to grow from 102.1 million in 1980 to between 119.6 million and 127.9 million in 1990 — an increase of about 17 percent to 25 percent. Here are some areas where employment is expected to grow faster than average:

ACCOUNTANTS AND AUDITORS: Employment is expected to increase by between 25 percent and 34 percent during the 1980s as managers rely more on accounting information to make business decisions. You'll probably need advanced training, however; college graduates will be in greater demand than those without degrees.

AUTOMOBILE MECHANICS AND BODY REPAIRERS: Employment should grow by up to about 30 percent due to the increased number of vehicles and traffic accidents. Job opportunities will be plentiful. Business machine repairers also should find plenty of work; the number of jobs should increase by between 60 percent and 74 percent as the number of machines increases.

CASHIERS: Plentiful job opportunities are expected as employment grows by anywhere from 28 percent to 36 percent. Widespread adoption of automatic checkout systems — already in place in many supermarkets, for example — could slow future growth, however.

CORRECTIONS OFFICERS: Employment is expected to increase by between 47 percent and 49 percent as correctional facilities — prisons, etc. — expand and additional officers are hired to provide closer supervision of inmates.

DENTAL ASSISTANTS: The number of jobs should increase by about 40 percent as dentists use more chair-side assistants. There should be excellent opportunities for full-time and part-time work. Prospects also are good for dental laboratory technicians due to — the expansion of prepaid dental plans.

FOOD COUNTER WORKERS: Employment is expected to grow by up to 48 percent as with the increase in the restaurant business and in the number of meals eaten away from home. Job openings will be plentiful.

HEALTH SERVICE AD-

MINISTRATORS: Employment is expected to grow by between 43 percent and 53 percent as the demand for health care increases and management becomes more complicated. Again, you'll need special training — probably an advanced degree if you want one of the top hospital positions.

PHYSICAL AND OCCUPATIONAL THERAPISTS: Employment is expected to increase by up to 60 percent for physical therapists and up to 71 percent for occupational therapists because of increased concern about rehabilitation services and the growth of therapy programs.

PROGRAMMERS: Employment is expected to grow by between 49 percent and 60 percent as the use of computers expands, particularly in accounting, business management, data processing services and research and development. The best prospects are for college graduates within computer science or related fields.

TRAVEL AGENTS: Employment should increase by up to 52 percent, but job opportunities will be highly sensitive to economic conditions since travel spending often depends on the overall business climate.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Lyme Disease: A Mysterious Malady

A cousin of mine became sick about six weeks ago. The diagnosis was made at a consultation with a group of doctors who came to the conclusion that it was called Lyme's disease. Can you tell me anything about this? It all sounds very strange. — Mrs. G.V., Conn.

Dear Mrs. Y.: Lyme disease is a condition named after a small city in Connecticut. Almost 10 years ago it was recognized as being an illness caused by the bite of a tick. Often it is confused with juvenile rheumatoid arthritis. Officials of the Connecticut State Health Department have been actively searching to unravel the mystery of this condition.

In conjunction with research workers at Yale University in New Haven, cases of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis have been tracked down in an effort to learn if the tick bite was indeed responsible for that condition which is called Lyme disease.

Scientists working together with the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta seem to be nearing a conclusion about the cause and treatment of this strange condition.

Our newborn child is 2 months old. From the time of birth I noticed that his bellybutton sticks out. Could this cause any trouble later on? — Mrs. N.K., La.

Dear Mrs. K.: Only in rare instances does the protrusion of the umbilicus (or navel) cause any symptoms. Sometimes, but very rarely, there may be an enlarged umbilical ring. This is the place where the umbilical first comes out from the abdomen. Even if there is a widening of the ring, it very often becomes small after the first few years of life. In some very rare instances, a hernia at this site may be present. If it is, a simple operation can repair it.

I am certain that your doctor has given you assurance that this protrusion of the navel will not affect the growth, the health and the development of your baby.

My son, Frank, broke his leg this summer. He seems to be in good health and is doing as much running around as he ever did. He is an active sportsmen. Is that leg more vulnerable to injury than before? — Mr. E.P.P., Calif.

Dear Mr. P.: Once a fracture heals in young people, the bone is considered to be just as strong and firm as it was before the injury. Yet it must be remembered that the muscles, ligaments and tendons, having been in a cast for many weeks, may be thinner and less strong than they were before. With active and passive massage, and with well-regulated exercise, these, too, will return to their normal healthy state.

Once your son has been thoroughly checked out by his doctor, there is no reason why the bone should not be as strong as it ever was. He should not be deprived of healthful sports because of that one experience.

Dr. Coleman welcomes questions from readers. Please write to him in care of this newspaper.

Sees Support Rise For Death Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Support for the death penalty may be increasing in North Carolina, says an attorney who handles death penalty appeals for the state.

"Recently when I've been in murder cases, about 95 percent have been in favor of the death penalty," says Donald W. Stephens, an assistant attorney general who heads a group of seven lawyers who handle the death penalty appeals.

Stephens says only about half of the jurors would profess opposition to the death penalty a few years ago.

George Gardner, executive director of the N.C. Civil Liberties Union says Tuesday's death of convicted murderer Charlie Brooks Jr. in Texas will result in an increase in the number of people sentenced to die in North Carolina and throughout the country.

"It's going to start off with a trickle that will build to a flood," Gardner said.

Brooks was the first person executed by lethal injection and the second person put to death against his will since capital punishment was resumed in 1977.

North Carolina's death row population could increase from the 28 now there to more than 100 as enforcement of the death penalty becomes more commonplace, says the executive director of the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union predicts.

Twelve people have been sentenced to die in the state's gas chamber this year, far more than any other year since capital punishment was reinstated.

When the state's death sentence was struck down in 1976, there were 115 people on death row.

of new funding requests from state agencies and universities, a lot of people are going to feel left out when Hunt reveals his budget.

Hunt recognizes that he told the business leaders that he was ready to close down "unnecessary and outdated programs" even though he knew some of those decisions could be unpopular.

With the public behind him on the few "big news" items he'll be presenting, Hunt is almost assured of coming out of the session with a few more victories to his credit. It is the betting in this corner that those victories will overshadow the budget negatives and will improve Jim Hunt's standing with the voters.

"Half a billion dollars."

"Would you like to try that again?"

"I meant to say a billion dollars. These electrodes are giving me a headache."

"We're sorry about that General. But actually the idea for introducing the lie detector came out of the Defense Department. Since you people have been using it so successfully we decided to use it, too."

"We're only using it to find out who the whistle-blower is in the department, and who is leaking detrimental stuff to the press. We would never use it on someone discussing the Defense Department budget."

"Why not, General?"

"Because when it comes to military spending testimony, we consider ourselves officers and gentlemen."

be at its peak," said Senate Republican leader Howard H. Baker Jr.

The National Governors Association endorsed the Reagan measure, and said the projects it will fund should be put out for bids within four months of enactment. They said the projects should be handled under construction standards already on the books "in order to put funds and people to work as quickly as possible."

The gas tax-roads plan may not be a straight jobs program, but that certainly is part of the pitch.

But the administration insists that as far as the government should go. The Labor Department says the record proves it.

John Cogan, an assistant secretary of labor, points to public works programs enacted a decade ago, in slumps that ended before the jobs became available.

Cogan says a $900 million public works program enacted in 1972 took effect only after the economy had turned upward. As a result, he says, the people who finally got the jobs worked an average of only 4.2 weeks for skilled workers and 3.7 weeks for unskilled laborers.

"The reason for this is that these types of jobs are traditionally low-paying, and when the economy improves, participants find better work," he says.

He also says that an $875 million jobs act passed at the end of 1974 took effect only two months before that recession ended.

Congressional Republicans also argue that the spending involved takes tax dollars from people who are still employed, and can retard economic recovery.

That's the case the administration will be making as the jobs proposals move toward the top of the congressional agenda.

Small Things Bring Cheer To Flood Victims

TOWN GAMBLE — "We took a gamble and we lost," says Times Beach mayor Joe Capstick. Floodwaters destroyed 99 percent of the small rural community two years after residents voted not to carry federal flood insurance. (AP Laserphoto)

By ED SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer
VALLEY PARK, Mo. (AP) — Refugees from a flood that turned a comfortable neighborhood into a swirling sea of rooftop islands are taking solace in small things. "Look," a teen-age girl said Tuesday as she clutched a shopping bag filled with borrowed clothes. "You can see the top of a van over there. You couldn't see it before. The water's going down."

Another girl cheered when her father returned from their flooded home clutching two cages holding a parakeet and a cockatiel.

"They're safe," said Angela Cotton, 13. "We thought they'd be dead. We haven't found our rabbit, though. I guess he is dead."

Her father, Jack Cotton, had to swim part way to rescue the birds from the flooded house, which the family was forced to evacuate Sunday night.

Many of the town's 3,200 residents gathered on an elevated railroad right-of-way Tuesday and waited for volunteers with boats to take them to visit their homes.

Boats came and went, filled with grim-faced families anxious for a first look at their damaged homes. Many came back in tears.

"It's gone," said Jean Sprock, 43, after seeing her brick home being torn apart by the water. "I had it almost paid for. If anything went wrong, I always counted on having that to fall back on," she said.

Most still could not get into the houses, but they were anxious to see for themselves what the rampaging Meramec River had done.

"I'm not ready to go back there yet," said James Coleman, 34, as he watched the receding waters pull at

Eileen Still In Hospital Care

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Eileen Brennan, who plays the captain on "Private Benjamin," is progressing from injuries in an accident but probably will remain hospitalized during the holidays.

Miss Brennan is "sitting up in a chair with assistance, but not walking yet," Christy Plank, a spokeswoman at Daniel Freeman Marina Hospital, said Tuesday.

the structures still standing. "I'm afraid to go into it."

Coleman, his wife, Pauline, and two sons, had escaped with very few belongings.

"If they'd told us it was going to rise to 39 feet, we'd have gotten out sooner," Coleman said. "But we didn't believe it would get this high."

Others had suffered from the river's whims before.

"Crying doesn't do any good," said Alma Tinker, 58, a veteran of many floods. "You just never trust the river. This time it came up so fast we just couldn't save anything. Forty-two years down the drain. I guess it's still not real to me. It's a bad dream."

Valley Park Mayor Fred Palmer said his town will need time to recover. "More than 40 percent of our people and all but three businesses have been forced out. We'll just have to see."

In another Missouri town, residents huddled in evacuation shelters less than a year after they turned down federal flood insurance by one vote.

The government had warned the 2,000 people of Times Beach that they would have to comply with federal standards if they wanted to get federal flood insurance, the only kind available to residents of a flood plain.

"Among other things, nearly every building in town would have had to be raised 10 to 14 feet," said city attorney Thad Niemura. "It was just economically and physically impossible."

In a non-binding referendum in the spring, residents voted by a margin of just one not to participate in the plan. As a result, the National Flood Insurance Administration now says it will accept no claims from Times Beach.

Leftists Freeing Some Of Kidnapped Victims

By LUIS ROMERO
Associated Press Writer
SAN SEBASTIAN, El Salvador (AP) — A leftist guerrilla commander says rebels who tried to recruit new fighters by kidnapping an estimated 200 people at a soccer match are freeing captives who want to go home.

"The army recruits by force, but we raise the consciousness of the people and those who are in favor stay," said the commander, who did not give his name. "Those who aren't in favor can go."

The rebel leader spoke to reporters Tuesday at a bridge near this town 30 miles north of the capital San Salvador. The commander's guerrillas refused to let reporters cross the bridge into hills where the captives were believed held.

The rebels staged the mass kidnapping Sunday afternoon, firing automatic weapons in the air and lining up 200 people at the soccer match. They marched them off into the hills where they maintain a fortified camp. A soldier and a spectator who tried to escape were reported killed.

Witnesses, escaped captives and officials said the mass abduction was part of a guerrilla effort to recruit new fighters in the rebels' 3-year-old fight to topple the U.S.-backed government.

The rebel commander did not say how many captives had expressed their desire to leave, but said the guerrillas' underground radio station, Venceremos (We Shall Overcome) said it would "issue later an official communique."

The rebel camp is in an area known as Cerros de San Pedro, a stronghold of the popular Liberation Forces, the largest and most radical of the five rebel factions in the Central American nation.

Twenty-one captives sneaked away under cover of darkness Sunday night and another 17 — eight women and nine young men — cried and protested so loudly that the rebels let them go Monday, the freed captives reported.

"They mistreated no one," said Alberto Mejia, 26, one of those released. "They told us they were going to train us and give us arms. We were worried because we didn't want to stay."

Ramon Leonel Rivera, a soccer player who was also released, said the rebels "never said exactly why they took us. What is happening is that they don't have anyone to help them in their fight."

Reports have differed on the number of people kidnapped. Some of those released said there were more than 200, others estimated around 150.

Local military commanders here said they did not have more precise details, but all agreed the majority of captives were young people between 15 and 25 years old. They said the guerrillas also seized women and children to keep the army from pursuing them.

Some of the people freed said the guerrillas were low on arms, ammunition and food, and were desperate for new recruits. They asked not to be identified by name for fear of reprisals.

Guerrillas reportedly suffered heavy casualties when 6,000 army troops swept through the area in August. Western military observers say the rebels have logistical problems in supplying themselves with food and arms.

Human rights groups say more than 38,000 people have been killed in fighting since 1979, many of them civilians caught in crossfires or shot by rightist paramilitary gangs that allegedly collaborate with the army.

Pleads Guilty In Baby's Death

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Raleigh man pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in the death of his infant son, who died in September after a rag was lodged in his throat.

Michael Douglas Boswell, 25, entered his plea after Superior Court Judge Robert L. Farmer dismissed a first-degree murder charge for lack of evidence.

Boswell was given a three-year suspended prison sentence and placed on probation for three years. He was ordered to serve four months in jail and pay a $200 fine plus court costs.

Boswell rushed his 2½-month-old son, Brian, to the office of pediatrician William O. Jones on Sept. 21. Jones testified that the baby appeared dead and said when he tried to revive the child with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation he discovered a rag in the baby's throat.

Claim Sentence Is Too Light

MINEOLA, N.Y. (AP) — Five men who raided and terrorized a diner and a house party have been sentenced to 15 to 30 years in prison, but some Long Island residents said the punishment was too light.

About 25 people demonstrated outside a sentencing hearing Tuesday to protest because the five Brooklyn men, who pleaded guilty Nov. 1, could not be sentenced to longer terms.

The five were charged with forcing their way into a family party on May 29, ordering everyone to undress, robbing the guests and rapping two of the women.

Christmas Requests Pour Into New York's Santa Post Office

By EILEEN PUTMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Juanita Foley of Manhattan said she didn't believe in Santa Claus, but she wrote him anyway to ask for world peace and Jordache jeans.

Eric Black of Queens helpfully included the page in the Sears catalog where Santa could order a Space Invader set, and Lewiston resident Jessica Hubbard promised "a plate of cookies and a carrot for Rudolph."

Their letters and those from children all over the country were sent to the North Pole — sometimes to "Icicle Lane" or "Rudolph Avenue" — and ended up at the General Post Office on Eighth Avenue.

Postmaster George Shuman said the office expects to get more than 9,000 Santa letters this year as part of its 50-year-old "Letters to Santa" program.

Originally, postal employees read the letters and tried to respond to them. Now Santa's helpers are New York City high school students, who began reading the letters Tuesday to make sure the writers get responses from Mr. Claus.

If the letters can be believed, most children have been very good this year or, as one child wrote, "as good as I could be."

"I do all of my work at school and I sing to God," wrote a correspondent named Lucas, of Buffalo, who wanted a Kermit the Frog puppet.

"I'd like a tote bag, a gerbil and a fast food stand," wrote Sue Wisan, 6, of Staten Island.

Shannon Carle of Wilkes Barre, Pa., simply requested that Santa "pick me up on Saturday at 10:00."

Antonetta Lambros of Farmingville wanted "my own goldfish," and Laura Chema of Yonkers wanted a "German shepherd girl puppy" even though Santa's reindeer "would get jealous."

Some children also thought of others. One little girl asked that Santa bring her mother "a new car, chocolate candy and three new bras."

Many were money-conscious. One little boy listed the prices of the items on his list and added that Santa could "find most of these things at May's (a discount department store)."

Some requests were less concrete than others, like Juanita's: "I don't believe in you, but ... I want peace in the world, people will like me more, a Jordache pocketbook, Jordache jeans and Atari."

There were other skeptics and some worriers. Billy DeVas of Clifton, N.J., wanted to know how Santa got into the house when the chimney was too thin and the roof too steep and angular.

"And how do you get some of the gifts all the way in the back of the tree without making all the ornaments fall down?" he asked. "P.S. Fasten your seat belt."

Some writers injected a sad note, like Andy Freire, 12, of Flushing, who had his house burglarized and last year's Christmas gifts stolen.

"My mom has been depressed lately. If you can, could you please send my mom a bottle of Chanel No. 5?" he said.

Mary Seay of Rustburg, Va., wrote that "Most of all I want to see my grandmother. She has been in a hospital for a long time."

Some grownups wrote, too. A woman from Manhattan wrote to say she can't get anything this year for her three children.

"It hurts me," she wrote. "If there's anything you have to make my children happy, I know they would be overjoyed for it."

Clark Again Is Named 'Builder Of The Year'

The 1981 recipient of the Greenville Home Builders Association's "Builder of the Year" award has received the honor again in 1982. William H. (Bill) Clark received the organization's highest honor during the annual awards and installation banquet recently.

WM. H. (BILL) CLARK
Clark has been president and owner of Bill Clark Construction Co. Inc. and secretary-treasurer of Clark-Branch Realtors Inc. since March of 1977.
L.D. Thomas Jr., owner of U-Ren-Co rental service at 2803 Evans St., was named

"Associate of the Year" by the GHBA during the annual event.

The association announced that Clark was selected because of his contributions in the community and his involvement as second vice president of the GHBA during 1982. Clark was the recipient earlier of the "Spike of the Year" award for recruiting the most members in 1982.

Clark's construction company built some 70 homes in the Greenville-Pitt County area in 1982. Clark-Branch Realty is a residential-commercial sales brokerage agency that also does some management of rental property.

Clark was an assistant vice president of Wachovia Mortgage Co. from 1968 until 1972 when he became vice president of Cherry Oaks Inc. and Lanco Inc. of Greenville. He was associated with those firms until 1977.

A member of the local association's board of directors for 1977, 1978, 1980 and 1981, Clark was a "Parade of Homes" winner in two categories for 1980 and 1981. He served on the board of directors for the National Association of Home Builders in 1977.

Clark attended East Carolina University and received an AB degree and a masters in business administration. He is married to Gloria Jean Elias and they have three children, Hunter, Heath and Lance.

A Concord native, Thomas has operated U-Ren-Co here for the past seven years. He is a current member of the GHBA's board of directors and has served as chairman of the organization's Parade of Homes activities.

A graduate of the University of Maryland, he is married to the former Linda Coltraine of Williamston and they have three children. The family resides at 109 Camelia Lane.

Profit Is Music To Disciples

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Profit is music to the ears of some disciples of an Indian guru who plan to open a nightclub soon in Portland.

Followers of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh say they plan to open the "Zorba The Buddha Rajneesh Nightclub Restaurant" in mid-December.

The nightclub endeavor will feature vegetarian food, cocktails and dancing to the music of a band of disciples, said Swami Krishna Deva, who also is mayor of the new city of Rajneeshpuram.

Arrest Suspect In Obscene Calls

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — Authorities say they have arrested a man they believe posed as "Sgt. Bob Johnson" to set up hundreds of obscene telephone calls over the past three years.

Phillip Fields Jr., 24, a clerk at the state liquor store, was charged Tuesday with harassment and impersonating a public official. He was released after posting $1,000 bail.

The "sergeant" has been "a real thorn in our side," said police Lt. Charles Circo in Omaha, across the Missouri River from Council Bluffs. He said the caller would ask women to listen to an obscene phone call, supposedly to aid a police investigation, then make the obscene call himself.

Ohio Legislator Not Just Mad; He's Getting Even

By SHEILA GARDNER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — After 16 years of being taken for granted in the Ohio legislature, Sen. M. Morris Jackson isn't just getting mad. He's getting even with fellow Democrats by lining up with the GOP.

The deal Jackson cut with the Republicans will give them a 17-16 voting majority when the Senate reconvenes Jan. 3.
In return, GOP members promised to elect the Cleveland lawmaker Senate president, making him the third most powerful man in Ohio government and one of the nation's highest-ranking black legislators.

Republicans mostly have declined comment on the arrangement, although Republican Paul E. Gillmore, this year's Senate president, confirmed a deal had been struck.
"I don't think there's any question that it's workable," said Sen. Thomas A. Van Meter, another Republican, who leaves office this year.
Jackson, who also serves as a member of the Democratic National Committee, said he is angry because he repeatedly was promised key committee and party assignments, only to see them go to other Democrats.

Although he is second in seniority, he has been "the 17th person on the Democratic totem pole," he said.
Jackson, 58, who works as community relations director for a Cleveland supermarket, said he will not change his registration but will vote with the Republicans on party issues.
The switch will allow the GOP to retain control of the Senate and give the Republicans more leverage in opposing the programs of the incoming Democratic governor, Richard Celeste. The Ohio House is controlled by Democrats.
Jackson's disenchantment with the Democrats began in 1980 when he and Sen. Oliver Ocasek were ousted from the leadership by Sen. Harry Meshel. Ocasek was president and Jackson was assistant president.
Jackson said he was promised a seat on the powerful Elections, Financial Institutions and Insurance Committee when Meshel was elected minority leader, but never got it. He sought the same job this year but was offered only a minor committee post, Jackson said.

"I really can't understand why he would make those statements," said Meshel. "The impression is being left ... that we didn't offer him anything. That simply is not true. He would not indicate what he wanted."
Meshel, who had been in line for the Senate presidency, said the Democrats would like to talk to Jackson to persuade him to switch back. But Jackson has been maintaining a low profile. Aides say he is out of the state on vacation.

Jackson announced his switch in newspaper interviews over the last two weeks.
"They never gave me anything last time and have given away everything that's good this time," he said of the Democrats, adding his decision was final.
"I am committed to remain as I am," he said. "I'm not looking to call anybody, talk to anybody at all about what has transpired or what is contemplated."
But he refused to say whether he would return to the Democrats if Meshel stepped aside and his own party backed him for president. "This is sheer speculation," he said.

Jackson's switch is not unprecedented, although the benefits can be short-lived.
In Washington state, for example, Sen. Peter von Reichbauer threw control of the Senate to Republicans in February 1981 when he defected to the GOP. Democrats had a one-vote majority, 25-24, prior to his change of parties.

Von Reichbauer survived a recall election instigated by angry Democrats and retained chairmanship of the Senate Transportation Committee. But he will lose the post in January when control goes back to the Democrats, who picked up a Senate majority in the November election.

Report Planning 35 Settlements

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — An Israeli newspaper said today that the government has decided to build 35 new settlements in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River. A senior official denied the report.
The daily Haaretz said the settlements were listed in an internal document it obtained, and would be constructed "in the coming years" at a cost of $140.6 million.
It said the 35 settlements would include 22,500 housing units for 70,000 people.
The paper said these settlements were "additional to what has already been made public." But a senior official, asking not to be named, said the list published by Haaretz contained nothing new.
He said the list contained settlements which have already gone up, others under construction and some whose future construction has already been announced.
Haaretz said half the settlements would go up on state land and the rest on privately owned Arab real estate. It listed a variety of political parties, construction firms and private investment groups which would build the various outposts.
The official said no decision on new settlements had been made since Sept. 4.

when the ministerial committee on settlements, the highest body empowered to deal with the subject, approved the construction of seven new outposts.
A month ago the United States issued another of its strong denunciations of Israel's settlement policy, saying it impeded Mideast peace efforts.
At the time, Deputy Agriculture Michael Dekel, who heads an interdepartmental committee on settlements, said 20 outposts would go up in the coming year.

Find No Cause

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A white Raleigh police officer who fatally shot a black man last summer should not be prosecuted, U.S. Attorney Sam Currin says.
In a letter to William Bradford Reynolds, assistant U.S. attorney general for civil rights, Currin said an FBI investigation showed no further action was needed in officer Lynn Howard's shooting of Phil S. McLean on Aug. 30.
City officials requested the FBI probe after area black leaders sought an independent investigation of the incident.

Di Insists She Is Big Eater

COVENTRY, England (AP) — Princess Diana, described in tabloid newspapers two weeks ago as suffering from a dieter's disease, appears to have found her taste buds again.
The princess ate a hearty lunch Tuesday while visiting the Belgrave Lodge home for the elderly in this central highland city.
"I have an enormous appetite despite what people say and so has Prince William," she said of her 6-month-old baby. "He takes after his mother."
Princess Diana's remarks were relayed to reporters by Jean Papps, cook at the home. She said of the princess, wife of Prince Charles: "She had a full plate of food and she ate the lot. She really did it justice."
Two weeks ago, London tabloids reported that the 21-year-old princess was suffering from a compulsive dieter's disease, anorexia nervosa, since the birth of her baby in June.

FOCUS

The Rights of Human Beings

Someday soon the free human being could become an endangered species. According to Freedom House, an organization dedicated to strengthening democratic institutions, only 36% of the world's people have the right to cast a meaningful vote, express themselves without fear, and get uncensored information. Almost a billion people today live in limited freedom, and nearly two billion live in conditions regarded as not free. Most frightening of all is that, while the world's population continues to grow, the percentage of human beings living in freedom is decreasing. This is Human Rights Week, a time to consider those freedoms that we often take for granted but that two-thirds of our planet's population must live without.
DO YOU KNOW — When did the United Nations adopt the "Universal Declaration of Human Rights?"

Lawyer Fears Door Opened To More Executions

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The death by lethal injection of Charlie Brooks Jr. opens the door to more executions in Texas, says a lawyer whose client faces the death penalty next week.

James Autry, 28, is scheduled to die Dec. 17 for a murder committed during a convenience store robbery in 1968.

His attorney, Charles Carver of Port Arthur, said Tuesday he will seek a stay of execution in federal court on grounds that a potential defense witness was not offered immunity for his testimony.

Carver's conviction already has been upheld by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals, the state's highest criminal court. In October, the U.S. Supreme Court denied a motion to review the conviction.

"I don't want to second-guess a judge," Carver said, "but to be honest with you, I think it will be more difficult (to win a stay)." The execution Tuesday morning of Brooks "opens the door" to more use of the death penalty, he said.

Brooks, 40, convicted of killing a young mechanic, was executed a few minutes after midnight, the first U.S. convict to be put to death by injection and the sixth inmate to be killed since the Supreme Court allowed reinstatement of the death penalty in 1976.

However, courts in two states ruled Tuesday in favor of inmates sentenced to die.

In New Orleans, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which had rejected Brooks' last-minute appeal, threw out the first-degree murder conviction of Colin Clark. The 28-year-old, convicted of a holdup-killing in Baton Rouge, La., now must be retried or resentenced, the appeals court said.

In Mississippi, the state Supreme Court stayed the execution of McArthur King, 20, only hours before he was scheduled to die. A new execution date of Jan. 12 was set, giving King time to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court his sentence for drowning an elderly woman during a burglary.

The execution of Brooks, which came after he lost several last-ditch efforts to stay the sentence, had prompted a flood of calls before his death, said Texas prison officials.

Spokesman Jay Byrd of the Department of Corrections said many callers wanted to tell Brooks they were praying for his salvation. Byrd said he "doubted" the messages were relayed to the prisoner.

A California woman, who did not identify herself, also offered to pay the corrections department $1,000 to stop Brooks' execution, Byrd said. "We simply referred her to the attorney general's office in Austin," he said.

The remaining 171 prisoners on Texas' Death Row seemed stunned by Brooks' execution, the spokesman said.

"It was extremely quiet on the two cell blocks (that house condemned prisoners)," he said. "The warden said that the prisoners were not talking. They were just staying to themselves."

Brooks' body was taken to the Harris County Medical Examiners' Office in Houston, where an autopsy began at 6:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Prison officials and Walker County Peace Justice Lloyd Roark, who ordered the autopsy, declined comment when asked if the post-mortem was to determine how much lethal injection it took to kill Brooks.

Corrections department chief W.J. Estelle says he probably won't propose changing the execution procedure. He said all involved "performed their duties, I think, with dignity."

Prison spokesman Rick

Hartley said the injection method, using sodium Pentothal, is the least cruel way to administer the death penalty.

"I've always said that if there is a humane way of executing people, and I don't know that there is, that this would probably have to rank at the top of the list," he said.

The Forecast For Thursday, December 9

Low Temperatures

Fronts: Cold Warm Occluded Stationary

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts snow and snow flurries for Thursday in the Southwest and Northeast. Rain is expected for the southern half of the Atlantic coast. Most areas will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

Cooler temperatures are headed for North Carolina today and tonight. Skies will be mostly sunny across North Carolina today, although some cloudiness will persist near the coast. Highs will be in the 50s with some low 60s in the southeast.

Increasing cloudiness is on tap statewide tonight with a chance of showers in the east. Lows will be in the 40s to low 50s except for 30s in the west.

On Thursday, partly cloudy conditions will prevail along with cooler temperatures and rather brisk northerly winds. Highs are going to be in the 40s and 50s except in the northern mountains where readings are expected to remain near 30 during the day.

Along the coast, a small craft advisory is in effect on the North Carolina coastal waters. Northeast winds at 15 to occasionally 25 knots will decrease to 10 to 20 knots by tonight. On Thursday winds on the coastal waters will become northerly and increase to 25 to 35 knots.

Skies were clear early this morning across the Tar Heel state except along the central and southern coastal areas where there was some lingering high cloudiness. Temperatures were in the 30s over inland sections while readings remained in the 40s near the coast.

A frontal system out over the Atlantic has moved far enough away from North Carolina so that the threat of rain it held for the piedmont and coastal plain has diminished.

A high pressure system centered over the northeastern U.S. was responsible for our fair weather this morning. By tonight the high will be moving out to sea as a cold front in the midwest moves steadily to the southeast. Behind the front, a large and frigid high pressure system was pouring out of Canada.

The front will pass through North Carolina late tonight and early Thursday morning. Accompanying the front will be some cloudiness and, perhaps, a few showers mainly in the eastern part of the state. Following the frontal passage, winds will shift to a northerly direction and cooler air will spread over the area.

The main push of cold air will bypass North Carolina since the center of high pressure will move from the midwest into the northeastern states toward the end of the week.

Talk Of Relocating Statue Of Liberty

ABINGDON, Va. (AP) — What began as a one-man argument with New York City over a parking ticket has grown into a tongue-in-cheek campaign to relocate the Statue of Liberty.

Larry Bowman, editor of the weekly Washington County News, got a court notice in April 1981 from New York's Traffic Violations Bureau demanding he pay a $25 fine for overtime parking.

Bowman said he hadn't been in New York at the time of the alleged violation and wrote back saying so. His answer from the city was another notice — with a penalty attached.

Despite verbal promises by city officials to correct the error, Bowman said notices kept arriving with still more penalties. The bill now totals $590.

So he wrote a tongue-in-cheek editorial hinting he would seek title to the Statue of Liberty as damages for harassing an innocent citizen.

The only question, he wrote, was where to put the statue. Teacher Anna White posed the question to her seventh-grade class at Wallace Elementary School. The class responded with written suggestions.

"I know it's a tough decision," wrote student Mike Mann. "I would set the statue behind Wallace Elementary School. I think it would make the school look very graceful."

Alison Nash suggested planting the statue in nearby Holston Lake because, "that way, people won't have far to go."

Other students took up Bowman's cause and wrote letters to New York City officials.

"Mr. Bowman has never parked illegally or legally in New York City," wrote Donna Holbrook. "I should hope you will learn from this incident how to handle your city in the future."

Order Dogs Put To Death

PAOLI, Ind. (AP) — A judge has ordered 13 dogs that attacked and killed a 10-year-old girl as she rode on her bicycle to be put to death.

Orange Circuit Judge Max W. Apple on Tuesday said the animals, now at the city animal shelter, should be destroyed by a veterinarian in a humane manner. A sheriff's deputy said they would be killed sometime this month.

The dogs' owner, 72-year-old Clifford Bird, pleaded innocent Monday to charges of criminal recklessness for allowing the animals to roam free. Marilyn Darlene Thacker was killed Nov. 10 as she rode past Bird's house on her way to her grandparents' house.

A Christmas Police Tip: When Christmas shopping, park in a well-lit area, as close to the entrance as possible!

Sweet Idea To Reward Drivers

WORLAND, Wyo. (AP) — Local police think they've hit upon a sweet idea for rewarding safe motorists. Courteous drivers will be given certificates good for five-pound bags of sugar.

Police Chief Allen Tonney says the idea is to compensate the courteous driver — who uses turn signals, yields the right of way to pedestrians and obeys speed limits.

Worland Police officers and Washaki County deputies will be stopping motorists for the giveaway program from Dec. 19-24.

"We got the idea from Los Angeles," Tonney said, where police were awarding turkeys to people for safe driving.

"Not having that type of finances available, we got together with the local Holly Sugar factory here in Worland and visited with them about a public relations type of project," Tonney said Monday.

"It's our way of saying 'Merry Christmas' and making the streets safer. It sounds like it might be fun. I think it's going to be a good project."

Mental Injury Is Ruled 'Applicable'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has ruled that "serious personal injury" may be mental as well as physical and could be applied in cases of first-degree rape.

The court also ruled this week that interest paid on inheritance and estate tax deficiencies may be deducted by executors as administrative costs for state tax purposes.

The state's highest court on Tuesday defined "serious personal injury" for the first time. Previously, in order to be guilty of first-degree rape, North Carolina law said a defendant must have engaged in forcible intercourse with the victim and must have inflicted serious personal injury.

Chief Justice Joseph Branch, writing for the court, said the mental injury must be more than an immediate response — such as crying — to a forcible rape or sexual offense.

"It would defy reason and common sense to say there that there could be a forcible rape or forcible sexual offense which did not humiliate, terrorize and inflict some degree of mental injury upon the victim," Branch wrote.

He wrote that the state must offer proof that mental injuries suffered were caused by the defendant and that the injury extended for an extended period of time following the crime itself.

The unanimous ruling came in the case of Daniel Boone, a Halifax man who was convicted of attempted first-degree rape and a first-degree sexual offense.

The court reduced Boone's rape conviction to attempted-second degree rape and the other charge to second-degree sexual act in finding that Boone had tried to forcibly engage in intercourse and in a sexual act with the victim, but that there was no residual injury to the mind or nervous system of the victim.

In its inheritance ruling, the state's highest court ruled against N.C. Revenue Secretary Mark G. Lynch, whose office had refused to allow the executors of a Martin County estate to deduct administrative costs from interest paid on inheritance tax.

In its opinion, the Supreme Court said it disagreed with the appeals court's finding that interest expenses from borrowing money to pay federal estate and state inheritance taxes may not be deducted from a person's gross estate as administrative costs.

In other cases handed down Tuesday, the Supreme Court:

— Upheld the conviction and sentencing of Paul Woodruff Jr., given consecutive life imprisonment sentences on convictions of first-degree burglary, two counts of kidnapping, two counts of armed robbery, and two counts of first-degree rape.

Woodruff was charged with first-degree murder and conspiracy and a life sentence for Cleaster Woods, but ordered that his 10-year sentence for conspiracy be lowered to no more than three years.

— Affirmed a second-degree murder conviction and life sentence for Timothy Rogers Chamberlain, convicted of killing an 83-year-old man in Lenoir County by hitting him in the head with a brick.

— Affirmed an Onslow County first-degree murder conviction for James A. Bush.

— Upheld the first-degree sexual offense conviction of H. Lewis Fennell.

— Upheld convictions of first-degree murder and conspiracy and a life sentence for Cleaster Woods, but ordered that his 10-year sentence for conspiracy be lowered to no more than three years.

— Affirmed a second-degree murder conviction and life sentence for Steven Douglas Reynolds.

— Upheld convictions on charges of kidnapping, rape and armed robbery against Carlton F. Corbett and Carl L. Rhone, and affirmed two life sentences plus seven years for both.

— Upheld Alfred Burns' conviction on two counts of first-degree sexual offense and two life sentences.

Volunteers Make Yule Happier For Sailors

NEW YORK (AP) — As the Christmas season approaches, several thousand knitters in almost every state step up their production pace.

The volunteers make woolen socks, sweaters, scarves, watch caps and even slippers for the Christmas-at-Sea project sponsored by the Seamen's Church Institute of New York and New Jersey.

Founded by the Episcopal Church as a social agency to aid seafarers back in 1834, the institute has been distributing Christmas gifts to men at sea for nearly seven decades.

This year, according to Robin Pearce who directs the annual effort from the institute's headquarters building at the foot of Manhattan, gifts will go to more than 10,000 American and foreign merchant mariners and naval personnel. Each will receive a colorful Christmas gift box with a hand-knitted garment, plus toiletries, sewing kits, stationery and Christmas cards, some of which are donated by corporate groups.

During the past few months, institute ship-visitors have been compiling a registry of vessels that will be at sea on December 25. As they dock in Port of New York-New Jersey anytime before Christmas Day, the ships will be loaded with cartons of gift boxes for distribution by the captain on Christmas morning.

Last year, the top 25 knitters alone produced nearly 2,000 of the more than 16,000 garments made. For some, it's been non-stop knitting since early January, using yarn supplied by the institute.

Ella Johnson of Pomona, Calif., a spry 100, who's been a Christmas-at-Sea volunteer for over 30 years, explains the dedication of the volunteers this way: "It's so good to know that even at my age you can make a contribution. They are lonely men out there at sea and their wonderful letters of appreciation make it all so worthwhile."

Mrs. Johnson meant letters like the one from an Egyptian seaman aboard the M-T Corinthian who wrote: "You cannot imagine my happiness when I received your very kind gift on the occasion of Christmas and the New Year. I would like to kiss the hands of who knitted the beautiful pullover. This gift gives me not only material warmth, but also spiritual comfort."

Giving is a two-way street. Last year, the officers and crew of 52 naval and maritime vessels, U.S. and foreign, sent donations to the Christmas-at-Sea fund to show their appreciation.

Will Celebrate Museum Opening

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A two-day celebration will mark the opening of the N.C. Museum of Art in April, officials say.

"It's really going to be a media schmeer, but in the best taste, of course," assistant director Areta B. Swartz told museum trustees.

The museum's grand opening will follow four days of preview openings for groups, such as business leaders, legislators, educators and founders. The opening for the general public will follow on April 9-10.

Sharon Broom, communications director, said the museum is trying to arrange grand-opening performances by jugglers, jazz groups, chamber music ensembles, mime groups, the N.C. School of the Arts, folk dancers, ballet troupes and demonstration artists.

The ceremonies will be paid for with contributions, Ms. Swartz said.

Couldn't Reach Country Singer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Celebrities often don't want bothersome telephone calls, so they get unlisted numbers. But for country singer Tammy Wynette, the idea almost cost her more than she bargained for.

The Internal Revenue Service said Tuesday that it has a tax refund for a Tammy Wynette in Hendersonville but had been unable to reach her.

"We don't know if it is THE Tammy Wynette," IRS spokeswoman Jean Tuleen said. South Central Bell Telephone Co. said the only Tammy Wynette listed in Hendersonville had an unpublished number.

Ms. Tuleen said the refund apparently was mailed out after Ms. Wynette's tax report was processed but it was returned by the postal service.

After learning of the IRS statement, a spokeswoman for the 40-year-old singer said she would alert Miss Wynette's accountant.

"They audit us every year. I don't know why they couldn't find us," the spokeswoman said.

Three-Foot-Tall Student Just Uses What He Has

His classmates at Columbia

All the normal stuff of

That's why, as a sopho-

"He threw a pass and he Ron Margo. "He got excited and twisted himself. He said,

'Oh, no!' and you could see he was really in pain."

"He broke a bone just by a twitch if you can imagine that," Margo said.

"You couldn't count the number of broken bones I've had with one sheet of paper and a pencil," Terry said of the dozens of breaks he has suffered.

But Terry, now a senior, says he doesn't allow the disease to rule his life.
Margo says Terry studies the rules for football, baseball, basketball and golf with the rest of his classmates.

"Then, instead of physically going out on the field," the teacher said, "we set up teams on a video screen and he transfers the physical part of the game. ... Here, a student confined to a wheelchair can get out and put a team on the field and play, show what his mind can do."

Terry became interested in athletics when he started taking physical education as
and problem of brittle bones, he knew he would never be a jock, but he wanted to do as much as he could.

Terry is now learning to scuba dive, his weight supported by a sling apparatus in the swimming pool.

"Every day is a little rough," he said. "The valve actually shut off the first day

I started scuba diving.

"You scream and you kick and you get attention," he added with a grin.

"I have learned how to use what I have physically and emotionally and mentally, too," Terry said. "I've learned a lot about myself and how to work around things.

"If you have lived with something like this all your life, you just accept it and make the best of it. And sometimes the best is better than some people's lives that are physically normal."

Lyn Nofziger Sends An Apology To Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's former political aide Lyn Nofziger has written Vice President George Bush apologizing for his remark that Bush loyalists might seek to take over any Reagan re-election campaign. The Washington Post has reported.

Nofziger praised Bush's loyalty to the president and added in the letter, "Would that all who work for the president were as dedicated," the newspaper said in its Wednesday editions.

As a result of Nofziger's remark last week, the White House ordered its aides and political troops to boycott a meeting of Reagan loyalists that Nofziger convened on Monday to "see what 1984 will bring."

White House staff chief James A. Baker III — who directed Bush's presidential campaign effort in 1980 — called Nofziger from Air Force One in South American to chastise him when he first heard of the comment.

Nofziger's letter to Bush was quoted as saying he had not meant "to cast any aspersions on Jim Baker."

Chief Glenn Cannon said Joyner was taken into custody by officers after a masked man approached store employees when they left the building on their way to make a bank deposit and demanded the cash. The chief said the employees threw the money bag at the robber and ran.

Cannon, who declined to say how much money was taken, said most of the cash was recovered, along with a .22 caliber rifle allegedly used in the holdup. Bond for Joyner was set at $10,000 pending a hearing of the case in court.

Add Five To Staff Of Social Services

WILLIAMSTON — Members of the Martin County Board of Commissioners have approved a temporary increase of five workers for the work force of the county Department of Social Services and have authorized a survey to assess the need of computers to serve county agencies.

Later, after the results of the survey, and studies to determine the cost feasibility of purchases or rental leases, commissioners will make a decision on computerizing the agencies.

Two commissioners were sworn in. One, a new commissioner, Henry Winslow of Hamilton, succeeds Francis Worsley of Oak City. Winslow represents the Goose Nest (Oak City)-Hamilton District. The other commissioner sworn in is Russell Griffin, who enters his fourth term representing the Williamston-Bear Grass-Poplar Point District.

Commissioner John House of Robersonville was re-elected chairman of the board, and A.C. Bailey of Williamston was elected vice chairman.

In other actions, commissioners approved the low bid of $1,090 for painting the area in the County Office Building occupied by the ASCS Office. Geoffrey Corey was low bidder.

Sikhs Ask Army To Relax Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation of American Sikhs has asked the Army to drop its ban on soldiers wearing beards, turbans, bracelets and "unshorn hair," a policy Sikhs claim has prevented members of their faith from enlisting.

Three Sikhs conferred briefly with John Shannon, deputy undersecretary of the Army on Tuesday. Army officials said Shannon promised to forward their request through "the right channels." Presumably, this means it will get to Secretary of the Army John Marsh.

Stickers Are Postal Alert

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Mail carries in western North Carolina who spot red and yellow stickers know that the residence they are about to deliver mail to may have either a "definitely dangerous" or "potentially dangerous" dog.

The beware-of-the-dog stickers began adorning area mailboxes Tuesday, a policy that soon will protect mail carriers throughout western North Carolina, says local Postmaster William H. Hoover Jr.

If the program works, it may be instituted nationwide, said U.S. Postal Service spokesman Jim Van Loozen of Washington, D.C.

Postal officials placed stickers on about 30 mailboxes in West Asheville and said 70,000 eventually will be posted in 15 western counties.

The stickers either will be red, warning that a "definitely dangerous" dog is on the premises, or yellow, meaning the dog is "potentially dangerous."

Asheville postal officials decided to distribute the stickers after carrier Hudson

Morgan was bitten so severely on his arm that he required surgery.

By the end of January, downtown Asheville and the Oteen, Grace and Biltmore sections of Buncombe County will have the stickers, Hoover said.

Fifteen western North Carolina counties will have them by May, he said.

Last year, more than 5,700 postal carriers throughout the country were bitten by dogs, postal officials say. A California carrier died in 1981 after developing blood poisoning from a pit bulldog bite.

Pigs Heart Valves Useful In Surgery

HUGHSON, Calif. (AP) — One little piggy went to market. One little piggy stayed home. And one little piggy donated a heart valve for human surgery.

Actually, Bill Macedo Jr. makes sure most of his pigs donate their heart valves for human implantation.

The Stanislaus County farmer raises or slaughters 12,000 to 15,000 pigs a year under the cleanest conditions possible, to guarantee the value of the aortic valve.

Macedo's pigs and thousands from other ranchers are killed at his ranch for shipment to retailers in San Francisco's Chinatown for meat.

But before they leave the ranch, a small piece of tissue that regulates blood flow from the heart to the arteries is carefully trimmed away.

"They can take the heart valve, then clean off the muscle fibers and it is purely connective tissues of the valve that is transplanted," explained Dr. Everett Johnson, a Turlock physician.

With time a critical factor, the valve is packed in a saline solution for shipment to a laboratory in southern California. It must reach the lab within 72 hours to be of any use, the 45-year-old rancher said.

"After the valve is cleaned and sterilized, it's packaged in a vacuum-type container and put on a shelf and kept until needed," Johnson said.

He noted a similarity between porcine and human blood-pumping organs.

"The pig's heart and the human heart are very much alike," Johnson said. "Their digestive tract is a lot like ours."

About 90 percent of the pig valves are usable. The remainder are discarded because of damage or disease.

The pigs are fed a high-protein grain diet to keep both their meat and valves useful.

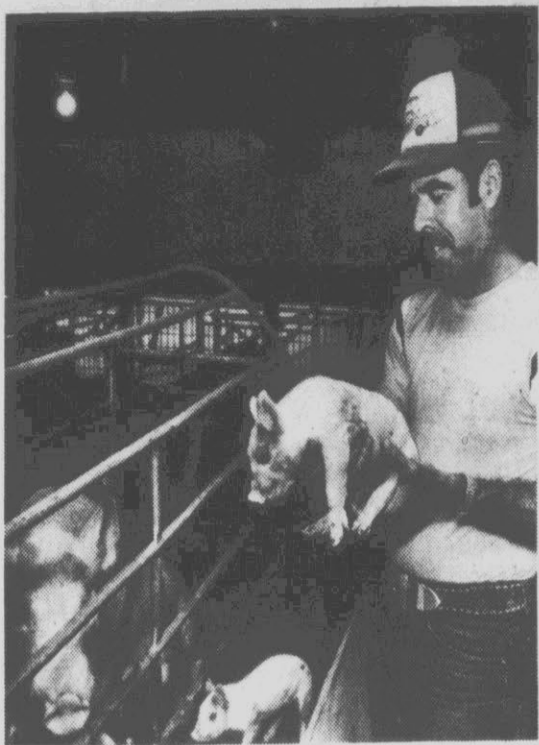

The valve business represents less than half of Macedo's income, but his product can mean life or death for patients in need of a new valve.

Leonard Ellefson, a 67-year-old Turlock pharmacist, has been living with the aid of a pig valve for eight years. A synthetic valve had to be replaced after several years when he suffered a series of small strokes.

"I had to go through several years in a terminal situation," he recalled. At one time, he required ready access to oxygen and stuck to a salt-free diet.

The natural valve gave him more freedom than the original substitute for his ailing heart. He now does 100 pushups daily and rides an exercise bicycle.

"When they use the pig valve, if they are very careful to clean off the muscle, it does not give any more trouble than a human valve," Johnson said. "And it's much better to be able to go into the shelf to get the right size. You don't have to wait until someone dies."

Surgeons measure a patient's valve size during surgery and trim one to fit before suturing it in place, he said. The pig valve can replace both the aortic and mitral valves in humans.

The rejection rate is similar to that involved with a human valve transplant, Johnson said.

Macedo has a pretty good idea of how valuable his pig valves can be to heart patients. He suffered a massive heart attack three years ago, and his farm schedule was partly to blame.

Luckily, he didn't require the kind of surgery that his farm makes possible.

A Sweet Tooth Is Job Requirement

By ELIZABETH BALINT
Syracuse Herald Journal
FULTON, N.Y. (AP) — How would you like to get paid for eating chocolate goodies all day?

Harold Kenyon does — and he's not complaining a bit. Kenyon has the most delectable profession imaginable — one courted and coveted by children and chocolate lovers of all ages.

Kenyon is an organoleptic analyst for the Nestles chocolate plant in Fulton; in laymen's terms — a chocolate taster.

Kenyon and fellow chocolate taster Phil Williams tarry daily in a chocolate-lovers' heaven — tasting, smelling, analyzing and testing the internationally loved commodity in all shapes, sizes, flavors and varieties.

"People always say to me 'Boy, I wish I had your job.' The job certainly does have its rewards, and eating chocolate is one of them," said Kenyon, who specializes in analyzing candy bars.

"And I love chocolate, or I wouldn't be doing this job," he added.

Williams, a specialist in beverage tasting, said, "Kids go wild when they hear we eat chocolate all day long. What a job!"

But although being an organoleptic analyst naturally includes chocolate tasting, a true chocolate connoisseur must employ all of his physical senses in the analysis of the products.

"That means using every sensual perception possible to analyze the chocolate's flavor, odor, mouth-feel, appearance and texture," explained Curtis Norpell, quality control manager for Nestles.

"Chocolate analyzing is not just popping a piece into your mouth; it involves a few minutes of real concentrating to determine smoothness, creaminess and richness of flavor," Williams noted as he carved off a small piece of chocolate from a larger chunk, examined it, and then rolled it around in his mouth, concentrating fully on the creaminess, taste, and feel of the chocolate morsel.

Then, he tasted the "perfect sample" chocolate piece, the established control standard the test piece is analyzed against. "We don't talk while we're tasting the chocolate product. We need to concentrate fully on the analysis," Kenyon said.

A Religious Note In Fight For Land

By DAVID EGNER
Associated Press Writer
YELLOW THUNDER CAMP, S.D. (AP) — Perspiration pouring down his naked body, Indian occupation leader Russell Means prayed softly in the holy sweat lodge. At Yellow Thunder Camp, he said, religion is a way of life.

Indians who have spent 20 months in this scenic Black Hills valley say their belief in the traditional Sioux religion is the reason for their occupation of land in the Black Hills National Forest. They consider the Black Hills, which they call the Paha Sapa, a holy land.

Twelve miles away in Rapid City, a legal battle is now being waged in U.S. District Court to determine if the government can close the camp and evict its 35 residents. A countersuit by the Indians seeks permission to turn Yellow Thunder into a permanent, religion-based community.

The Sioux need a place to pray in the Black Hills because "This is our birth place, the graveyard of our ancestors and the center of the Universe," said Means, a 43-year-old American Indian Movement leader. He said the Lakota Sioux believe they emerged from the underground spirit world into the Black Hills millions of years ago.

"Grandfather, Great Mystery, we beg you to stop the wasicu (Lakota for white man) from raping the sacred Mother Earth and raping her children," Means prayed, alternating between English and the Lakota Sioux language. "Give us strength to battle the wasicu." Forty stones taken from an outside fire radiated intense heat in the sweat lodge, and Means splashed water on the stones every few minutes to fill the small round tent with steam that stung the naked flesh of its three occupants.

Some of Means' prayers were given in a rhythmic chant in the darkness of the tightly sealed sweat lodge, which stood opposite a circle of four buffalo skulls.

Means, who was raised as a Christian but became disillusioned with it in college, prayed in English for the future of the Indian people, for Yellow Thunder Camp and for whites and Indians to live together in peace and understanding.

Prayers were offered to "our Grandmother the Mother Earth," and to all living things, which Means called "all our relatives, the winged, the four-legged, our green relatives."

These prayers are said almost every day at Yellow Thunder, where the small population, living in teepees, fluctuates from week to week, said Means who took up the Lakota Sioux religion after joining AIM in 1969.

Means criticized recent court testimony by James Hanson, a white historian who said tourism promoters after World War I invented the story about the area's special meaning to the Indians.

Hanson testified Thursday in U.S. District Court that the Lakota Sioux migrated to the Black Hills about 1776, and the traditional Sioux religion never considered the Hills sacred.

"Every Indian nation has hills or mountains that are sacred, because they represent the breasts of our Mother Earth. They give us spiritual nourishment," Means said. "The Black Hills means to us what Jerusalem means to Christians, Jews and Moslems, what the Vatican means to Catholics, and what Bethlehem means to Christianity."

The sweat lodge symbolizes the womb of Mother Earth, Means said.

"That's why we're naked, because we are in the womb," he explained.

The sweat lodge, about eight feet in diameter, is designed to cleanse the soul, Means said, as he stood in the snow and dressed after more than an hour in the tent.

Many other religious ceremonies are also conducted at the camp, including several where a sacred pipe is smoked, Means said.

"The pipe is our strength," he said later in his tepee home, his shoulder-length black hair still soaked in sweat from the lodge. "The bowl represents Mother Earth, the stem represents the tree of life...the tobacco represents all our green relatives...and the smoke is symbolic of carrying our message to the four winds."

Women can follow the traditional ways without participating in any religious ceremonies, although they are allowed to take part Mother Earth naturally, are purified and cleansed naturally every cycle of the moon," Means said. "They are above the ceremonies. After all, they carry out the miracle of birth."

Criminal Penalties In Migrant Abuse Backed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A proposal that would establish North Carolina's first criminal penalties for involuntary servitude has been given preliminary approval by a legislative study committee.

The Legislative Study Committee on Migrant Workers on Tuesday also gave tentative approval to a measure that would require farmers and leaders of migrant labor crews to provide workers' compensation insurance to farm workers.

The anti-slavery proposal would make it a felony to hold someone in involuntary servitude.

The proposed legislation covers any person, including any grower, who engages in or has knowledge of involuntary servitude. Suggested fines range from $100,000 to $1 million, with the higher figure addressing large scale "corporate" farmers.

Terry Sullivan, a staff lawyer for the Legislature, says there are no criminal penalties for involuntary servitude, even though it is banned by the state and U.S. constitutions.

During a debate, the commission voted to delete a provision creating criminal penalties for farm owners if a migrant worker was held in involuntary servitude on their land.

The commission, which holds its final meeting next month, expects to bring the involuntary servitude proposal and other measures before the Legislature when it reconvenes next month. Workers' compensation coverage or similar liability insurance for farm workers would eliminate the "farm laborers' exemption in the state workers' compensation law.

Farmers or crew leaders with fewer than four farm workers would continue to be exempted because of another exemption in the law for small businessmen.

"If we don't put something in the law to make those who hire migrant workers responsible, we the taxpayers are going to pick up the tab," said Rep. Rachel G. Gray, D-Guilford.

Billie R. Ellerbe, an attorney for Farmworkers Legal Services, said in an interview that he knew of several occasions when farm workers were hurt and there was no money for medical care.

But an attorney for the N.C. Department of Agriculture said in an interview that most farmers carried some insurance to cover their workers.

The panel also voted to support establishment of an 11-member North Carolina Farmworkers Commission. The governor would appoint four members and the House speaker and lieutenant governor both would appoint two.

Other commission members would be the secretary of the Department of Human Resources, the agriculture commissioner and the labor commissioner or their designees.

The panel would try to improve migrants' lives by bettering services to them, helping coordinate their activities and proposing needed legislation. The group would report to the governor each Feb. 1.

The committee also decided the statewide commission should consider requiring registration of migrant crews.

Predicts Year Of Recovery

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The economy will recover in 1983 more strongly than most experts predict, says the senior vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, Va.

James Parthenos told the Greater Charlotte Chamber of Commerce recovery depends on how well the federal deficit is brought under control and the consistency of the nation's monetary policy.

"I should be here to bring you glad tidings of joy, but if my tone is optimistic, attribute it to the holiday season," Parthenos said.

NASA Has Ordered Designing Of A Space Station

Editors note: The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has granted $787,500 to eight companies to design America's first space station. Target date for orbiting a station that can support four crew members is 1989. The following is what that station might look like, based on an assessment study by Boeing Aeronautics Co. in Kent, Wash. What life will be like in America's first space colony.

By JAY MacDONALD
United Press International

Welcome aboard America's first orbiting space station. You are now 250 miles above the earth. As you float through the different modules, your questions will be answered by Gordon Woodcock, whose work with the Boeing Aerospace Division helped bring about the final design of this project.

"It's a little bit like building a house. You start with two or three rooms, and pretty soon you have a mansion," says Woodcock.

The living quarters, approximately 14 feet in diameter by 50 feet in length, fits within the bay of the shuttle. It was pre-fabricated and tested on Earth before its delivery here.

The life support systems housed in the exoskeleton of this chamber close the water and air loops necessary to sustain life, by reclaiming oxygen and hydrogen through a distilling process and venting overboard the waste methane.

Water is reclaimed from showering, toilet use and the dehumidifier, which collects what the body gives off in perspiration and respiration.

"It is possible to recycle even solid wastes, but it is difficult," says Woodcock. "To do that, we would completely close our environment. The scientific community does not yet understand fully closed environments."

Nor is it necessary. Because crews on the space station are rotated quarterly, it is possible to store wastes in the hanger bay for transport back to Earth every three months.

At one end of the living unit is the bathroom and shower. "To shower was such a chore in the early Shuttle," says Woodcock. "There was a sort of plastic bag you drew up around you to trap the water. Then you had a vacuum tube to collect all the water drops, and it turned out to be too much trouble to use."

The new station shower is an actual stall with flat walls. In weightlessness, up to an inch of water will cling to those walls, due to surface tension. Woodcock and his crew arranged for a mild air flow to move the water down the walls toward the floor, where it can be more easily captured.

—Private quarters
There are individual private quarters for every member of the crew, with bed, television, a reading light and a desk.

The video screens are programmed for a variety of games, as well as reception from any of the hundreds of communications satellites.

"It provides privacy," says Woodcock. "It's important because people respond better when they have some kind of privacy."

It also is needed because the station has admixed crew of men and women.

"The objective was to make things as Earth-like as possible. That's why we have a food freezer and a refrigerator and some kind of oven. They eat bread, but I don't think they care too much for crackers. And I don't think rice would work very well."

Tiny vacuum holes on the table hold plates and drinking containers in place. The low railings beneath the table are for putting your feet under, rather than on, to hold yourself in place.

This area also serves as an exercise room. Mission control has devised some paddle games to help crew members stay fit.

"It's important for people in this kind of environment to keep fairly busy. Time really weighs on your mind unless you do," says Woodcock. "And you lose cardiovascular tone very rapidly in zero gravity. It's like bed rest all the time."

Science uses the space station to create pharmaceuticals and compound crystals for computer technology in weightlessness. These items, expensive to produce on Earth, can be grown readily in the zero gravity.

Moving out of the living quarters, there is an observation deck where the Earth, moon and other planets may be seen during off hours. Also visible are the solar matrix which powers the station, several docking bays where additional modules or shuttles may connect, and the hanger where the refuse from the station is stored for eventual transportation back to Earth. It looks like a giant aluminum can and was constructed in space, "like a portable shed from Sears."

Next to it is the laboratory module, where visiting scientists from private foundations and industry conduct their research. Years ago, NASA alone employed and trained astronauts. Now private firms can send their researchers into space aboard the shuttle with little or no preparation.

Why not simulate gravity in the space station? The idea was included in most early designs of space stations, dating back to the Werner Von Braun space wheel of 1950.

"Up to a duration of many months, you really don't need gravity," says Woodcock. "Perhaps someday, when we build big space stations, we may have spun and despun segments. There are interests in the life sciences that could benefit from partial gravity in space."

Those long narrow tubes running up the side of the station contain small thruster rockets to correct for the degradation of the station's orbit. It goes back to the rather embarrassing experience with Skylab.

"NASA didn't have the foresight to put a little propulsion on Skylab to keep the orbit well up," Woodcock says. "Everything since has had self-correcting propulsion."

By 1995, NASA will have achieved the optimum size of this space station. It will house a crew of 12 and support onsite construction and servicing of satellites.

The unit you have just seen cost $5 billion in 1982 dollars.

New Marine Fisheries Director Works On A Marketing Program

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — If O.B. Lee has his way, the nation's consumers will soon be eating more of North Carolina's rich seafood harvest.

Lee, named a month ago as the new director of the state's Marine Fisheries Division, said in a telephone interview Tuesday from his office in Morehead City that he considers developing a good seafood marketing program the top priority in his new job.

"On the positive side, Gov. (Jim) Hunt wants to institute a good seafood marketing program," Lee said. "We're going through the reorganization process now to begin doing that."

"I have seafood marketing background, which I believe is one of the main reasons I was hired. A good marketing program is something that will be good for the whole state," Lee said.

As part of the marketing program, Lee says he hopes to hire a home economist within six months to stimulate seafood sales here at home.

"This will help promote seafood in Raleigh, Charlotte and Winston-Salem as well as Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York," Lee said.

The state's seafood industry, which Lee estimated as about a $300-million-a-year business, is closely tied to North Carolina's tourism industry, he said.

The marketing initiatives, he said, can have a direct effect on boat charters and other tourism industries along the coast.

In addition to the marketing initiative, Lee said he has already begun to revamp the use of proclamation authority by the division, which gives the agency the authority to close fishing areas and make other changes that affect the fishing industry.

"It gives us a lot of power, maybe more than we should have," Lee said. "I've instituted a policy that in cases other than pollution of beds, which have to be closed, we go out with the fishermen before signing the proclamation.

"It delays things seven to 10 days, but I think it's worthwhile," Lee said. "It makes the people directly affected by the action feel like they've had a chance for their say."

"There have only been two substantive proclamations since I've been here, but the new policy seems to have been well received," he said.

Lee said he will continue the shellfish rehabilitation program started before he was hired.

Where the division can help improve the shellfish industry, it will, Lee said.

"There are some situations where we can help, and some where we can't," Lee said. "It's hard to fight Mother Nature, which has a big impact on the shellfish industry."

"We are going to be traveling up and down the state to see where we can plant more oyster, clam and scallop shell," Lee said. "We have the capability to plant shellfish, and to relay shellfish from polluted water to good water."

Social Trends

LONDON (AP) — Britains had 2 million fewer babies last year than a decade ago, but twice as many divorces, an official survey shows.

The 1971-81 survey by Britain's Central Statistical Office released Tuesday, also said cohabitation before marriage was more popular than 10 years ago, and the percentage of illegitimate births was rising — from 8 percent in 1971 to 12 percent in 1981.

The survey, entitled "Social Trends", showed a record 3 million criminal offenses — a 10 percent increase between 1980 and 1981. But it said the crime detection rate was down from 45 percent in the early 1970s to 38 percent in 1981, although Britain had 25 percent more police than a decade ago.

'CONSPIRACY'

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Nine high school teachers and a radio station employee have been arrested on charges of forming a communist conspiracy to overthrow the state, police said today.

How Tar Heel House Members Cast Their Votes

Roll Call Report Service
WASHINGTON — Here's how area House members were recorded on major roll call votes Nov. 29 through Dec. 1. There were no substantive Senate votes.

NUCLEAR WASTE — The House adopted, 190 for and 184 against, an amendment making it extremely difficult for a state to resist becoming the national repository for high-level radioactive waste. By 1987, the federal government is to pick a geologically-suitable site for permanent underground storage of nuclear waste. Presently, the waste is temporarily stored in various above-ground locations.

Under this amendment to HR 3809, the chosen state will be able to veto its selection only if one house of Congress votes to sustain its position. The vote replaced language the required both houses to act to override a state's refusal to become a national repository. HR 3809 later was passed and sent to the Senate.

Supporter Beverly Byron, D-Md., called it "potentially dangerous" to allow a single state to veto "any aspect of our atomic energy activities."

Opponent Edward Markey, D-Mass., says a state "being asked to become the nuclear garbage can of this country for eternity" is entitled to strong powers to resist such a dubious distinction.

Members voting "yea" wanted to make it easier for the government to require a state to accept the nation's permanent repository for high-level radioactive waste.

Reps. L.H. Fountain, D-2, Charles Whitley, D-3, Eugene Johnston, R-6, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, and William Hendon, R-11, voted yes.

Reps. Stephen Neal, D-5, Charles Rose, D-7, and W.G. Hefner, D-8, voted no.

Reps. Walter Jones, D-1, and Ike Andrews, D-4, did not vote.

DOCTORS — By a vote of 245 for and 155 against, the House adopted an amendment to prohibit Federal Trade Commission regulation of the business practices of medical doctors, dentists and other state-licensed professionals. The vote soothes the medical community's anger over FTC anti-trust policies the agency says are necessary to promote competition among doctors. It occurred during debate on HR 6995, an FTC funding bill that was passed and sent to the Senate.

Supporter Thomas Luken, D-Ohio, said, "I do not want the FTC to practice its brand of quackery in regulating these...professions."

Opponent John Dingell, D-Mich., said the amendment would "grant a special exemption for a single class of professionals from the normal rules of the free market. The consumer will ultimately pay."

Members voting yes wanted to exempt doctors and other state-licensed professionals from FTC regulation.

Reps. Jones, Fountain, Whitley, Andrews, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Hendon voted yes.

Rep. Broyhill voted no.

Rep. Neal did not vote.

FTC BUDGET — By a vote of 241 for and 158 against, the House cut the Federal Trade Commission budget by $42 million over three years beginning with fiscal 1983. The vote came during debate on HR 6995 (see preceding vote). It sets FTC funding at $60 million in 1983, $55 million in 1984 and $54 million in 1985. The vote was primarily a protest against the FTC.

Supporter Tom Tauke, R-Iowa, said that when Congress is curbing FTC powers "it is appropriate that we also hold down the (budget) level."

Opponent James Florio, D-N.J., said "in a time of economic distress, the public needs more protection, not less, from anti-competitive behavior and fraud."

Members voting yes wanted to curb FTC anti-trust enforcement actions and at the same time save $42 million over three years.

Reps. Jones, Whitley, Fountain, Andrews, Johnston, Rose, Hefner, Martin and Hendon voted yes.

Rep. Broyhill voted no.

Rep. Neal did not vote.

BUDGET CUTS — The House voted, 193 for and 172 against, to inflict a 2 percent across-the-board cut in the fiscal 1983 appropriations bill for the Treasury Department, Postal Service, White House and other agencies. The $10.8 billion measure (HR 7158) was passed and sent to the Senate.

Supporter Clarence Miller, R-Ohio, said the $116.6 million saved by the vote was "a small amount compared to the total in this bill."

Opponent Edward Roybal, D-Calif., said one result of the cut would be fewer Internal Revenue Service agents "who are devoting their time to the collection of revenue."

Rain Forests Losing To Man
 NEW YORK (AP) — On the average, every three seconds a portion of original rain forest approximately the size of a football field disappears, as man fells the trees, extends his cultivation, and pushes his urban and suburban environment into the wild.

According to Rand McNally's "Great Geographical Atlas," although climactic conditions allow rapid regrowth of secondary forests in the tropics, the loss of primary forest areas is destroying literally thousands of plant and animal species that will never again be seen on Earth.

Even by conservative estimates, the atlas says, it is likely all of the world's primary tropical forest will have disappeared by approximately the middle of the 21st century, unless the present trend is reversed.

NOW BOOK-BINDINGS
 LONDON (AP) — Two pairs of British army camouflage pants sent to the Falkland Islands for the war with Argentina last spring have returned to Britain and will be used in the binding of an art book about the conflict.

NEW YORK (AP) - The stock market headed lower today, giving up some of its gains of the past two sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 25.58 points Monday and Tuesday, dropped 5.34 to 1,051.60 in the first half hour today.

Losers held a slim lead over gainers in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that selling began to intensify Tuesday as the Dow Jones industrial average made a bid to surpass the record closing high of 1,065.49 it reached on Nov. 3.

They said traders apparently wanted to see some fresh evidence of declining interest rates or a pickup in economic activity before bidding stock prices much beyond their present lofty levels.

Albert Wojnilower, economist at First Boston Corp., predicted Tuesday that the Federal Reserve would cut the discount rate from 9 to 8 1/2 percent later this month as "a sort of Christmas present" to the economy.

Pan American World Airways led the active list, unchanged at 4. A 198,000-share block traded at that price.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average of 30 industrials, up about 10 points at midday, closed with a 1.29 gain at 1,056.94.

Advances outpaced declines by about 3 to 2 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 111.62 million shares, against 83.88 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose .52 to 82.13. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.93 at 338.91.

Bethel Okays Cable Accord

BETHEL - Members of the Bethel Town Board have approved an ordinance to grant a non-exclusive contract for cablevision to Cable TV of Greenville.

At the board's meeting Tuesday night, members conducted a second reading of the proposed ordinance. Agents on hand representing Cable TV of Greenville were Alan Julich and Ray Bell.

The expected operational date for cablevision in Bethel is April 1983.

Ricky McGhee, who has been with the Mid-East Agency for six years, will be working with Bethel officials on appraisal of seven lots in the town's Community Development Project. McGhee was introduced to the board by Mid-East director John Robertson.

In the matter of an application for a day care center in Bethel, Patsy Manning and Faye Little met with the board. The two are seeking authorization to operate a center to be named Bethel Tender Loving Day Care Center, planned to take care of 73 children, with an opening date of April 1983 scheduled.

A report to the board reveals that a new roof has been installed on the building housing the police and fire departments.

Board members approved three resolutions. One is to call attention of citizens to the necessity of making sure that dogs do not run loose.

The other two resolutions were ones of commendation - one to the North Pitt High School football team and the team's coach, B.T. Chappell; the other to the North Pitt High School girls' volleyball team and to coach Lynn Roberson. Ms. Roberson was named coach of the year for the Eastern Carolina Conference.

A Bethel citizen, Miss Ella Little, appeared before the board to express her personal appreciation for the good work being done by the board. Miss Little said she just wanted the board to know how she felt about their efforts.

Water system rates were adjusted to make rural customers' rates the same as those of in-town users. In-town residents' rates for the first 3,000 gallons would be raised to $3.65 a month and out-of-town ones would be reduced from $5 to $3.65 a month. Farmville would thus become a regional system having the second-lowest water rate of 11 regional systems surveyed. The adjusted rates will be effective Feb. 1.

Approval was given for presenting to the town of Fountain the need for a long-term contract for supplying of electricity if Farmville is to spend $95,000 on reconducting a circuit to serve Fountain. If agreed to, this work is expected to be completed prior to June 1983.

The recreation director was authorized to proceed with the erection of basketball goals at Bundy School. The town's share would be $461.76 in cash and $159 in-kind services. The Pitt County schools also are participating. The goals are being locally fabricated per the suggestion of the board several months ago.

The rewritten town code will be considered during the February board meeting, it was decided.

The town administrator was asked to check with the state again about whether a traffic light can be put up at the corner of Main Street and Horne Avenue. This is on the state system and it is the commissioners' contention that traffic control is needed here.

Recommend A 'Standard' Radio

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Delco Electronics division of General Motors Corp. has recommended that the giant automaker adopt an AM stereo radio system developed by Motorola Inc. as the standard for its cars.

The decision, the first by a major manufacturer of car radios, could shorten a competition among four designers of AM stereo systems fighting for the acceptance of broadcasters.

Four companies have each developed a transmission system that allows AM radio stations to broadcast in stereo, just as FM radio stations do. But all four systems are incompatible, meaning that a radio built for one will play the stereo signal of another in ordinary single-channel sound.

As a result, broadcasters are unwilling to buy a system until they know which will become the market standard.

Panthers Nip Rose, 53-52

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
North Pitt's Charles Harris hit a baseline jumper with seven seconds left to allow the Panthers to pull out a 53-52 victory over Rose High School last night. It marked the second win in three starts for the Panthers, while Rose was falling to its second loss in as many outings.

Earlier in the evening, Rose's girls won their first game of the year with a 55-52 decision over the Pant-HERS, who fall to 2-1.

Down by as many as eight points with just under three minutes left in the third period, North Pitt finally began putting it together after having taken advantage of Rose mistakes throughout previous play. North Pitt trailed by only five going into the final quarter, 41-36, then scored the first five points of the period, all by Greg Hines.

Hines made two free throws, then added a three-point play 13 seconds later to tie it up, 41-41. Rose managed to hold the lead, however, moving back out on three straight trips down the court.

Harris tied it up at 47-47 with 4:52 left, then Hines hit the first of two free throws for a 49-47 lead. It was the first time since the second period that the Panthers had lead.

Hines had been blocked by Rose's Allen Dickens on moving screen. Seconds later, Rose's Donnell Lee turned the ball over and fouled Hines again as he tried to get the ball back, and this time the Panther made both of them for a 50-47 lead — the biggest edge enjoyed by the Panthers.

Lee came back with a two-person three-point play to tie it up. Lee, driving in, twisted a knee and went out as Carlton Wilson came on to hit the free throw with 3:03 left, making it 50-50.

Dennis Bradley missed a chance to put North Pitt back up, but then Tony Clemons missed on the other end and David Keel was fouled. Before he could get off his first shot, however, a double lane violation was called, and North Pitt controlled the jump ball.

Hines was injured on a foul, and Keith Clark hit the first of his one-and-one, putting the Panthers back up 51-50. On the shot, Keel fouled Wilson under the boards, and Wilson made both shots with 50 seconds left for a 52-51 Rose lead.

North Pitt, after putting the ball back in play, worked the clock down to single digits, tried to get it inside, and saw Harris hit from 16 feet out for the winning bucket.

Rose called a time out with five seconds left to set up a play, but didn't get off a shot in time.

"We did a lot better in the second half," a well-pleased North Pitt coach Cobby Deans said. "This was a good defensive team victory. Our offense did a good job, but we missed some easy shots. We played up and down, but generally good on defense."

Both coaches felt that free throw shooting and turnovers played a key role in the outcome. North Pitt hit only 36 percent of its field goals, as compared to 50 percent for Rose, (18 of 50 to 22 of 44), and Rose held a 39-29 rebound margin.

But — North Pitt canned 17 of 23 free throws, while Rose made good on only 8 of 16. And — the Rampants committed 28 turnovers as compared to just 16 for North Pitt.

"We did better on free throws," Deans said. "The guys concentrated well on defense and free throws and that helped us a lot."

"Our free throw shooting and the turnovers caught up with us," a disappointed Rose coach Jim Brewington said. "But we're young and we're still learning. I said before the season that it would be a while before we become a good basketball team.

We should have won, though. North Pitt has a pretty good team, but that third quarter took us out of it. I really wanted us to win, because I think these young kids need a victory for their confidence."

For much of the game, Rose center Jeff Hopkins dominated the inside game, blocking a number of shots and getting a number of rebounds. "When we overloaded one side, he (Hopkins) had to come out and that helped to open up the middle," Deans said of his team's fourth quarter play.

He also had set things up for Harris to get the fateful shot. "We wanted to get the ball inside to him, but they blocked it up well, and we had to kick it back outside. He was there to get the shot, though."

The first period was a saw-saw affair that saw both teams lead early. North Pitt held no more than a one-point lead, while Rose stretched its lead out to three at one point. The lead changed hands seven times with Rose holding a 12-11 edge at the horn.

Early in the second period, the Rampants upped the lead to five, 18-13, then finally moved out by as much as eight, 27-19, as Hopkins hit four of those points, taking Rose from a 19-18 deficit to the lead. The quarter ended with Rose up 27-21.

But after Rose scored the first basket of the second half, North Pitt scored seven straight to cut the lead to 29-28 three minutes into the frame. Rose came back on two baskets by Lee and a free throw by Hopkins to run back out by six, and after Greg Briley scored to snap the North Pitt string, Rose got two more, one basket each from Albert Brown and Clemons to resume the eight-point lead, 38-30.

But over the next two and a half minutes, North Pitt outhit Rose, 6-3, to cut the lead to 41-36 going into the final fateful quarter.

Hines paced North Pitt with 18 points, while Harris had 14. Lee led Rose with 14, while Clemons had 12 and Hopkins had 10.

Both North Pitt and Rose lost healthy leads along the way as the Rampant girls battled to their victory, sinking four of six free throws in

Sloan Front-Runner For Blue Devil Job

DURHAM (AP) — Mississippi coach Steve Sloan appears to be the front-runner for the head coaching job at Duke University, according to reports in newspapers in Raleigh, N.C., and Jackson, Miss.

Sloan, Vanderbilt assistant Watson Brown, Furman's Dick Sheridan and Duke assistant Bob Matheson reportedly met with athletic director Tom Butters on Tuesday, and the News and Observer of Raleigh quoted an unidentified source as saying Sloan was in a "strong position" to get the Duke job.

The Jackson, Miss., Clarion-Ledger also quoted a source close to Butters as saying, "I feel like Sloan has an excellent chance. My gut feeling is that it is Sloan-Brown-Sheridan in that order."

The Clarion-Ledger also quoted the unidentified source as saying Alabama coach Paul "Bear" Bryant has talked with Butters about Sloan. Sloan is a former All-America quarterback at Alabama and played two years with the Atlanta Falcons.

"I know for a fact that Bryant has talked to Butters about Sloan and has given him a high recommendation," the story said.

Sloan, Brown and Sheridan have been the most prominently mentioned possible successors to Red Wilson, who was fired two weeks ago after four seasons as the Blue Devils' coach.

Sloan, who became a head college coach 10 years ago at age 27, had five successful seasons at Vanderbilt and Texas Tech, but has had five losing seasons at Mississippi.

Roanoke Wins Third Straight

WASHINGTON — Forward Greg Everett scored 14 points and Roanoke withstood a furious rally by Washington to come away with a 36-34 win Tuesday evening in a Northeastern Conference basketball game.

In the girls' game, Roanoke placed five players in double figures to demolish Washington, 78-18.

It was the third straight road game for Roanoke. Roanoke, now 3-0 overall and 1-0 in the league, trailed early on but built a five-point lead late in the final period. However, the Pam Pack took advantage of Redskins turnovers to cut the deficit to two with three seconds left.

After an inbounds pass by Roanoke hit the rafters, Washington Steve Boyd's jumper from the baseline failed to drop and the Redskins came away with the win.

Ricky Highsmith had 10 points for Roanoke. Washington, now 0-3 and 0-1, was led by Wayne Wooden with 12 points.

Washington led, 12-8, at the end of the first period, but Roanoke surged back to take a 19-18 lead at the half. Roanoke upped its lead to 25-23 after three periods and then held on in the final period.

In the girls' game, Roanoke had little trouble winning its first game in three outings.

The Lady Redskins outscored Washington (0-3, 0-1), 14-2 and 12-4, in the first two periods and then blistered the Lady Pam Pack, 26-7 and 26-5.

Duke Meets No. 1 Cavs

DURHAM (AP) — Top-ranked Virginia meets a young but talented Duke team tonight in what is being called an "historic" Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

The Virginia-Duke matchup will be the first ACC game under new league rules employing a 30-second shot clock and a 19-foot, three-point shot.

Virginia coach Terry Holland says the new rules are important, but the old standard of how you play is an even bigger factor.

"It's the first time, so we'll all be looking at it as an experiment," Holland said. "And a lot will depend on how each team plays."

"But Duke has excellent outside shooters, so I think the three-point shot should work to their advantage. On the other hand, the 30-second shot clock should work to our advantage."

They'll have to shoot the ball, and there will be more possessions."

Holland says is confident that his players would not look past Duke to the Wahoos upcoming game with No. 3 Georgetown.

"The Georgetown game has attracted so much publicity," Holland said. "But I feel our players are thinking as much as humanly possible about playing Duke. They realize the Duke game is truly more important to us than the Georgetown game because it's a conference game."

The Blue Devils, coming off an 0-2 road trip that left them 2-2, have had as many as four freshmen start in recent games. But Holland expects Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski to go with a more experienced lineup tonight.

"They've got some excellent young players," Holland says,

"but I see (seniors) Tom Emma and Chip Engelland, especially with the three-point shot."

Winning at Duke is never any easy assignment, but the Cavaliers, 4-0, haven't lost there since Ralph Sampson stepped onto the Virginia campus.

"We expect a physical game," Holland says, "because Duke is known for playing that brand of ball. Cameron Indoor stadium is one of the toughest places to play."

Said To Have Fallen Asleep

Bulls' Dailey A No-Show

CHICAGO (AP) - Quintin Dailey, Chicago's first-round draft choice, caused team officials some concern when he failed to show up for the Bulls' game with the New York Knicks.

But a spokesman for the National Basketball Association team said the rookie guard was found later at his apartment. The Bulls suffered no ill-effects from his absence, however, beating the Knicks 91-85 on Tuesday night.

Dailey fell asleep in his suburban Northbrook apartment but was not the object of an intensive police search, said spokesman Tim Hallam.

Hallam said he was not aware who reported earlier that Dailey had disappeared and was the object of a police all-points bulletin. Hallam added, though, that he was "under the impression" that police had been contacted after Dailey failed to show up for the game.

"That was the information I was told," Hallam said. "The word just filtered down that they had contacted the authorities."

Hallam said Dailey had not been feeling well and had fallen asleep at his home. When he failed to arrive at the Chicago Stadium on time, team officials called his home but there was no answer, Hallam said.

Hallam said Dailey apparently slept through the telephone calls, which he said registered on an answering machine that tape-records telephone messages.

Just before game time, the Bulls announced that Dailey had been "unavoidably detained."

The Bulls won the game 91-85.

Dailey, who pleaded guilty to the assault of a San Francisco nursing student earlier this year, was signed by the Bulls after the NBA draft.

Team management later became the target of protests by the Illinois Chapter of the National Organization for Women and Take Back the Night, an anti-rape coalition.

Gatlin Spurs DHC By A-G

HOLLYWOOD — Keith Gatlin poured in 32 points and Donald Wilson hit a pair of free throws in the final seconds to lift unbeaten D.H. Conley to a 61-58 win over Ayden-Grifton Tuesday night in a nonconference basketball game.

In the girls' game, D.H. Conley placed four players in double figures to down Ayden-Grifton, 65-49.

Conley, now 3-0, led by eight going into the final period but A-G cut the gap to one with less than a minute to go. But Wilson, who was DHC's second-leading scorer with 13, hit two free throws with six seconds to seal the win.

"We had a chance to win the ballgame, but it seemed like we took the wrong shot at the wrong time," Ayden-Grifton coach Bob Murphrey said. "We're just not organized right now."

The loss drops the Chargers to 1-2.

The game began in a tight battle, DHC going up by one (12-11) at the close of the first period. The Vikings opened up in the second period, outscoring A-G, 16 to 8, to take a 28-19 lead at the half.

The third period was nearly even, with A-G cutting the DHC lead by one, 39-31, going into the final period. The Chargers whittled the deficit to one late in the final period by could not get closer.

Thomas Anderson led A-G with 27 points and Tyrone Gay added 14.

Knights Blister Lifegate, 101-24

Greenville Christian Academy had little trouble last night in picking up a pair of basketball victories. The Knights downed Lifegate Christian, 101-24, while the girls rolled over Mt. Calvary, 56-20.

Both the boys' and girls' teams are now 2-0 on the season.

In the boys' game, the Knights jumped off to a 22-4 lead in the first quarter and were never in trouble. By the end of the half, GCA had run its lead out to 48-10.

GCA kept up the pressure in the third period, with a 25-6 margin that made it 73-16 at the end of that quarter. They polished off Lifegate with a 28-8 margin in the final period.

"Despite the margin, we played well," Coach Dale Thatcher said. "We got a lot off the fast break and had a lot of assists."

Daren O'Brian led the Knight scoring with 18 points, while Jerry Butts had 14, Steve Stencil had 13 and Mike Griner, Brian House and Bobby Leneave each had 10.

No one hit double figures for Lifegate.

In the girls game, it was not quite the same. GCA slipped into only a 5-4 lead after one period. But in the second frame, the Lady Knights pushed in 14 points, while holding Mt. Calvary to only four again for a 19-8 lead at the half.

The warmup completed, GCA went to work in the second half. The Lady Knights outhit Mt. Calvary, 15-6, in the third period for a 34-14 lead, then rolled up a 22-6 margin in the final quarter to put the win away.

North Pitt took an early 13-5 margin — its biggest lead — in the first period, but Frances Barhill led an 11-2 scoring reversal with five points, as Rose gained a 16-15 edge at the end of the frame.

The lead changed hands several times until the final two minutes of the half, when Linda Harrell put North Pitt ahead, 28-27. Harrell hit two more baskets around a turnaround jumper by Patricia Daniels to give the Pant-HERS a 34-27 halftime lead.

Rose, behind three straight baskets by Barnhill and two by Ajima Atkinson, rallied in the third period, finally moving ahead on a three-point play by Barnhill with 1:09 left, 40-39. Another basket by Barnhill made it 42-39 at the end of the period.

Rose held the ball early on, inching out to a 45-39 lead, and then to a 49-42 margin, its largest. North Pitt fought back on the play of Delores Pittman, however, to cut the lead to three, 51-48 with 31 seconds left, but Rose's ability to hit the crucial free throws made the difference in the time remaining.

"It was sloppy but we got it," a delighted Dennis Gibson said of his team's win. "What frightened me most was looking out there and seeing three inexperienced players out there at one time."

"First half turnovers almost killed us, but we cut them down in the second half (13 of 16 in the first half). At the half, I told them to cut down on the turnovers and they did it. We got some good rebounding, and Frances got hot in the second half, too."

North Pitt's Randy Avery, disappointed in his team's first loss, said that Rose has the best team he's seen there since coaching at North Pitt. "That Rose team is going to be a lot of people this year," he said.

"In the fourth period, we let them take charge of the game and they ran time off the clock. We started standing around on defense.

"We got hurt bad when Linda Harrell fouled out and Sudi Sharpe played hurt most of the game. She's got a lot of heart to go back out there like that."

Avery said his problem is that he hasn't found the right combination at guard. "We stand around waiting for the ball and they were able to intercept a bunch of passes. We played better than in our first two games, but this is the best Rose team I've ever seen."

Barnhill led Rose with 18 points, while Atkinson and Doris Richardson each had 13. North Pitt was led by Pittman with 14, while Harrell had 11 and Sharpe had 10.

Rose plays host to Conley on Friday, while North Pitt entertains Williamston on Saturday.

Jet's Blinka Is Suspended

NEW YORK (AP) — Stan Blinka of the New York Jets was suspended for one game without pay and Leonard Thompson of the Detroit Lions was fined $1,000 today by National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle for committing flagrant personal fouls in recent games.

Blinka, a linebacker, delivered a forearm to the face of Green Bay wide receiver John Jefferson during the Jets' 15-13 victory over the Packers Nov. 28. Thompson, a member of Detroit's special teams, struck Leon Bright of the New York Giants while Bright was fielding a punt during the Giants' 13-6 Thanksgiving Day victory.

Rozelle said Blinka's hit on Jefferson "ranks with the worst infractions I have witnessed in an NFL game."

Bench Keys Seattle By Houston

By The Associated Press
Even without injured regular David Thompson, the Seattle SuperSonics could be a contender for the National Basketball Association title because of a strong bench.

Seattle substitutes scored 45 points Tuesday night, led by Greg Kelser's 13, as the SuperSonics improved their record to 9-1 and their overall mark to 16-3 with a 107-88 victory over the Houston Rockets.

Phil Smith, normally a backup but a starter for the last five games in place of the injured Thompson, added 14 points for the Sonics.

"The big difference is the bench and depth," said starting center Jack Sikma, who had 19 points and 12 rebounds against the Rockets. "Guys keep stepping in and doing the job. It gives us more confidence in being able to handle different situations."

Sikma said the Sonics have been smart not to dwell on Thompson's absence.

"Over the last few games, we haven't thought about David not being in there after the game starts," he said. "Don't get me wrong. We miss him and we need him back, because he's a great player."

In other NBA games Tuesday, Atlanta beat Cleveland 102-90, San Antonio tripped Dallas 106-92, Chicago squeezed past New York 91-85, Portland outscored Utah 137-121 and Golden State defeated San Diego 121-114.

The Sonics' overall record matches Philadelphia's as the best in the NBA, but they have been especially tough on the road.

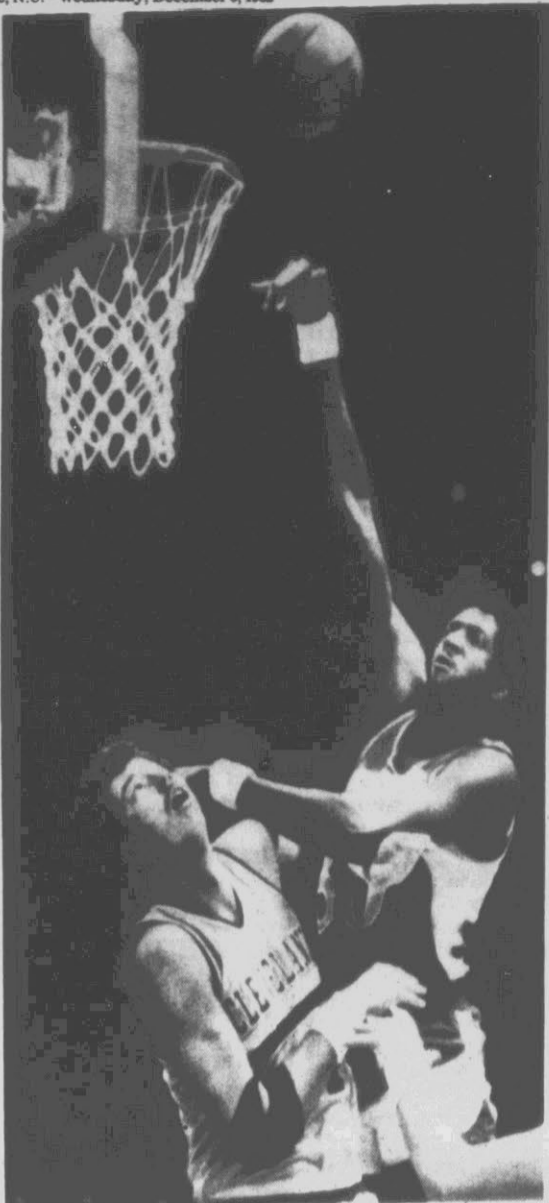

"At home, emotion plays a big part, but on the road, you have to play intelligent and get more out of your bench," Sikma said.

"They're tied for the best record in the league and there's a good reason for it," Houston Coach Del Harris said. "They are a tremendous team in terms of depth, and have all the ingredients for a good basketball team."

Seattle cruised to a 29-18 lead in the first quarter while limiting the Rockets to 33.3 percent shooting. Houston played the Sonics even in the second period and trailed only 49-41 at halftime, but a 33-21 third quarter by Seattle, led by Sikma's 11 points, gave the Sonics an 82-62 bulge that Houston couldn't overcome.

Caldwell Jones led the Rockets, now 3-15, with 17 points and 15 rebounds. Elvin Hayes had 14 points and 12 rebounds.

the final minutes as New York went the final 4:23 without scoring.

The Bulls, who broke a seven-game losing streak, were playing without top rookie guard Quintin Dailey, who did not show up for the game and slept through calls to his home.

Blazers 137, Jazz 121
Jim Paxson scored 17 of his career-high 35 points in Portland's 40-point third quarter that swamped Utah.

The Jazz, who hit all 39 of their free throw attempts in the game but were outscored 51-34, led 67-64 at halftime. But Paxson hit five straight baskets midway through the third period to spark the Trail Blazers to a 40-22 advantage in the quarter.

Adrian Dantley led all scorers with 36 points for the Jazz.

Spurs 106, Mavericks 92
George Gervin scored 26 points to lead San Antonio to its wire-to-wire triumph over Dallas.

The Spurs took a 10-2 lead in the first quarter and were never headed as Artis Gilmore added 19 points and Mike Mitchell 18. Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks with 27.

Warriors 121, Clippers 114
World Free scored 30 points and Purvis Short 24, including 10 in the final three minutes, to pace Golden State over San Diego.

The Warriors were clinging to a 109-107 lead when Short started his outburst, hitting six free throws and two jump shots to clinch the victory.

Tom Chambers had 19 points to lead the Clippers, nine of them in a two-minute span in the third period to give San Diego a short-lived 71-67 lead.

Hawks 102, Cavaliers 90
Dominique Wilkins scored 25 points and Dan Roundfield 23 as Atlanta handed Cleveland its 16th loss in 19 games.

The Hawks led 76-67 going into the fourth quarter and put the game away with 10-0 and 9-0 streaks in the final 12 minutes. Scott Wedman, who scored 11 points during a 19-6 rally by the Cavaliers in the final period, led Cleveland with 24.

Plymouth Downs Tigers

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School swept a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball games from Williamston last night as the two opened league play.

The loss dropped Williamston to 1-2 (boys) and 0-3 (girls), while Plymouth is now 2-1 and 3-0, respectively.

In the boys' contest, Plymouth eased out into a 17-12 lead in the first period, then outshot the Tigers, 22-13, in the second quarter. That put the Vikings into a comfortable 39-25 lead at the half.

Plymouth held Williamston to only eight third quarter points while scoring 20 of its own as the Vikings ran their lead out to 59-33 during the third period. They polished off the Tigers, 24-17, in the final quarter.

Myron Bell led Plymouth with 28 points, while Lonnie Ford had 17 and Tony Brown had 12. Williamston was paced by David Little with 10.

In the girls' game, Plymouth broke away to a 14-3 lead in the first quarter. Williamston came back with an 8-6 margin in the second frame, but still trailed, 20-11, at intermission.

The Lady Tigers put on another rush in the third period, 19-8, taking a 30-23 lead into the final period. But Plymouth rallied and outscored the Tigers, 11-4, to pull out the victory.

Benita Bell led Plymouth with 15 points, while Timberly Rodgers had 10 for Williamston.

The Tigers play host to Ahsokie on Friday.

Hearns Down For About 12 Weeks

DETROIT (AP) — The wrist injury to fighter Thomas Hearns, more serious than originally believed, will need about 12 weeks to heal, according to a physician.

Hearns, the new World Boxing Council super-welterweight champion from Detroit, suffered a dislocation of two bones in his right hand as he beat Wilfred Benitez in New Orleans Friday.

The injury likely will delay a title defense by Hearns at least until April and probably longer.

Hearns wore a soft cast and heavy bandage over the wrist at a Tuesday news conference at the Kronk Boxing Team headquarters in Detroit.

"The hand is still swollen quite a bit, but it doesn't hurt much," Hearns said.

The fighter suffered a separation of the carpal and metacarpal bones in his hand and wrist, according to Dr. Frederick Lewerenz, the team physician.

The injury occurred in the eighth round.

"They apparently lifted (bowed) when he struck a blow," Lewerenz said, adding that Hearns would be sporting the cast for about six weeks, with about 12 weeks needed for a full recovery. No lingering effects are expected, he added.

With Second-Half Surge

Hoosiers Roll By Irish

By The Associated Press
The Irish of Notre Dame were probably thinking the third time would be a charm after they trailed sixth-ranked Indiana by one point at halftime.

Notre Dame was looking for its first victory this season over a ranked team after losing to No. 2 Kentucky and No. 5 UCLA. But Indiana wasn't going to have any part of that.

The Hoosiers scored the first four points of the second half, taking a 30-25 lead, and coasted to a 68-52 victory Tuesday night in South Bend, Ind.

"Indiana, Kentucky and UCLA are three teams that could very well win the national title this year," said Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps, whose team fell to 2-3.

Senior forward Steve Bouchie led the Hoosier charge in the final 20 minutes, scoring 14 of his game-high 19 points. Ted Kitchel added 17 points as Indiana improved its record to 4-0.

"Steve Bouchie got open well inside and so did Ted Kitchel in the second half," Indiana Coach Bobby Knight said. "Bouchie had his best game tonight. I'm not saying he didn't play well the first three games, but he performed tonight like he does in practice. He's a very good practice player."

Notre Dame had two more field goals, but the Hoosiers made 28 of 35 free throws to only eight of 14 for the Irish to decide the outcome.

Forward Bill Varner had 16 points, Joe Price 13 and John Paxson 10 for the Irish. Paxson, the only senior starter, injured his knee earlier in the week and had a sub-par performance.

In the only other game involving a Top Twenty team, Kentucky whipped visiting Detroit 83-46.

Center Melvin Turpin scored 20 points and guard Jim Master added 14 as the Wildcats hiked their record to 4-0. Kentucky Coach Joe B. Hall used substitutes most of the second half after taking a 41-20 advantage.

"It was really a good opportunity for us to use our bench and give a lot of guys some experience," he said. "With the schedule we have (Butler, Notre Dame and Villanova) we haven't been able to get as many people into the game as we would have liked."

Detroit, 0-2, was led by Albert Blakey and Roy Simms with eight points apiece.

Elsewhere Tuesday night, it was Illinois State 72, DePaul 62; Iona 88, Monmouth 61; Penn State 86, Philadelphia

Chocowinity inched out to a 16-12 lead at the end of the first period and put together a 24-13 scoring surge in the second quarter to lead at halftime, 40-25.

Jamesville was led by Richie Ange and Rex Bell, both of whom scored 14 points. Kenny Moore added 12 points and Tracy Peele 10.

Nordiques Crush Bruins Behind Stastny Brothers

By Associated Press
Marian Stastny doesn't know what he and his brothers are doing to attain the phenomenal success they are having with the Quebec Nordiques this season.
"You never know what to expect in a hockey game," Stastny said Tuesday night after he and his brothers, Peter and Anton, combined for four goals and nine assists in a 10-5 National Hockey League victory over the Boston Bruins.
The splurge raised the brothers' total to 136 points in 27 games, but it came only three days after the trio was shut out in Quebec's 3-2 victory over the Buffalo Sabres last Saturday.
"We did not do anything special, compared to our Saturday night game," Marian said. "Sometimes it goes well and sometimes it doesn't, even if you do the same things. That is why I like the sport."

Marian scored twice and added three assists, Peter scored once and assisted four times and Anton had a goal and two assists. Real Cloutier added three goals for the Nordiques.
The victory was marked by an explosive second period that saw both teams combine for 10 goals, only the fifth time in NHL history that two teams reached double figures in one period.
The record for goals in a period by two teams is 12, in the second period of a Buffalo-Toronto game on March 19, 1981. Buffalo won that game 14-4. In three other games, both teams have scored 10 times in one period.

In other NHL games, the New York Islanders beat Toronto 6-3, Edmonton edged St. Louis 3-2, Winnipeg and Washington tied 3-3 and Los Angeles and Calgary deadlocked 4-4.
Cloutier, who after a slow start seems to be regaining last season's form when he had 37 goals and 60 assists, said increased ice time is the secret to his rejuvenation.
"It's all a question of confidence," Cloutier said. "The more ice time you get, the more ready and confident you are. You need lots of ice time to play well."
Boston Coach Gerry Cheevers was miserable over his team's performance.

"The Nordiques were the the instigators all night. We didn't hit a soul," Cheevers said. "We can't outskate or outscore Quebec in this type of game. We didn't attack or force the play."
Oilers 3, Blues 2
Wayne Gretzky scored two goals for Edmonton against St. Louis to extend his record streak of games with at least one point to 30.
Gretzky broke a 2-2 tie at the 9:10 mark of the third period with his 24th goal of the season, after a breakout pass from Randy Gregg. Gretzky's first goal, which tied the score 1-1 in the second period, was credited to him although he may not have actually put the puck over the goal line.

Islanders 6, Maple Leafs 3
The three-time defending Stanley Cup champions won for only the second time in their last nine games, with John Tonelli collecting a goal and two assists for New York.
The Islanders jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first period, with Tonelli getting the first goal on a power play at 2:08. Toronto, 0-11-2 on the road this season, outshot the Islanders 18-6 in the second period, but the Maple Leafs were still behind 4-1 at the end of the session as New York goalie Roland Melanson sparkled.
Jets 3, Capitals 3
Washington stretched its unbeaten streak at home to nine as Milan Novy tied Winnipeg in the third period with his second goal of the game.

Novy, who hadn't scored a goal in his previous nine games, tipped in Scott Stevens' shot at 5:25 of the final period, just 50 seconds after the Jets' Doug Small put his team ahead 3-2.
Kings 4, Flames 4
Los Angeles fought back from a 3-0 deficit to tie Calgary on a goal by Daryl Evans with 5:33 remaining.
Pierre Rioux, Lanny McDonald and Carl Mokosak scored for the Flames in the first five minutes of the game, but Steve Bozek made it 3-1 before the end of the first period and Dave Morrison tied it with two goals in the second period.

Bear Grass Girls Remain Unbeaten

AURORA — Aurora High School and Bear Grass split a pair of basketball games last night as the two opened Tobacco Belt Conference play. Aurora's boys took a 57-49 win, while the Bear Grass girls came away with a 38-29 win.
The victory left Aurora's boys at 3-0, while Bear Grass slumps to 1-2. Bear Grass' girls climb to 3-0, while Aurora is 0-3.
In the boys' contest, Aurora used a strong first period to build up the lead it used to carry it to victory. By the time the horn sounded, the host team had built up a 13-3 lead. The Bears matched points with Aurora in the second frame, but still trailed 27-17 at the half.

In the third period, Aurora again pulled away, outshooting the Bears, 20-10, for a 47-27 lead. Bear Grass rallied, 22-10, in the third period, but fell short.
Richard Coffey led Aurora with 24 points. Lawrence Watson had 14 and Phillip Peele had 12 for Bear Grass.
Aurora eased out into a 10-8 lead in the first period of the girls' game. Bear Grass cut that back to 14-13 by half-time.
In the third frame, Bear Grass took command, 12-6, moving out to a 25-20 lead. They outshot Aurora, 13-9, for the victory.
Angie Mizelle led Bear Grass with 18 points, while Aria Williams added 10.
The Bears play host to Jamesville on Friday.

Players Said Ready With Contract Vote

NEW YORK (AP) — Peace for the next five years — off the field, at least — is one step away and 1,500 National Football League players were expected to take that step today when they vote on a $1.6 billion collective bargaining agreement.
"We now have a contract that is likely to be ratified," union chief Ed Garvey said after three weeks of clarifications and revisions of the Nov. 16 agreement were concluded. The 28 player representatives then voted 19-9 Monday to recommend that the union membership approve the package.
Jeff Van Note, Atlanta's player rep and a member of the union's executive committee which helped negotiate the contract, said late Tuesday: "I feel the Falcons will pass it, and league-wide it will pass, too."
Mark Murphy, Washington's player rep and, like Van Note, a union executive, also said he expects ratification. But he said he was one of the nine to vote against it. "For the time we were out," he said, "I just didn't think we gained enough. I just couldn't recommend it."
The players struck for 57 days, shutting down eight of the season's 16 regular-season weekends. Assuming the agreement is ratified, one of the weekends will be made up Jan. 2-3, leaving the league with a nine-game season, the shortest in its 63-year history.
Garvey said each team's vote is to be counted by its player rep and reported to the union's Washington, D.C., headquarters by 6 p.m., local time, today. That means West Coast teams have until 9 p.m. EST to call in their results.
Garvey said he would announce the results "only if it is overwhelming one way or the other." If it is close, Garvey said, each ballot will have to be validated, a process which could take as long as a week.
If the players reject the contract, said Jack Donlan, the owners' chief negotiator, the league would "reassign" its position on the makeup game, the expanded playoff field and the $60 million in bonus money, all of which would provide larger paychecks for the players this year.
When the agreement was first announced last Nov. 16, the player reps voted to pass it along to the membership — but without any recommendation. The meetings with Donlan and other owners' negotiators began shortly thereafter. "Negotiations over the past three weeks have improved the agreement to the point where two-thirds of the reps and (union president) Gene Upshaw now recommend ratification," Garvey said. "Had we formally voted at our rep meeting two weeks ago, a clear majority would not have recommended ratification."

NEW YORK (AP) — Pittsburgh tackle Jimbo Covert was inadvertently left off The Associated Press All-America college football team announced Tuesday.
Covert actually was a second-team selection on offense.
Darrell Christian, deputy sports editor of the AP, said Covert's name was accidentally deleted from the list of tackles nominated for the team.
He had been ranked third on the list.
When the error was discovered Tuesday, Covert was restored to the second team, Randy Theiss of Nebraska was dropped to third team and Sid Abramowitz of Tulsa from third team to honorable mention.

DECEMBER SKY DRAMA — The record-breaking warm weather of early December gave rise to dramatic cloud formations more like summer clouds than the usual smooth gray skies associated with late autumn and winter. In this scene near Weeping Willow Crossroads, gray, gold, and silver clouds roll east above a lone pine along a narrow stream. (Reflector Photo By Jerry Raynor)

N.C. Farmer Gave Up Raising Tobacco To Raise Chickens

By CHARLES HERNDON
Wilson Daily Times
WILSON, N.C. (AP) — Billy Tillman figured he knew a good thing when he saw one.

Watching his television two years ago, he saw a commercial advertising for chicken growers in eastern North Carolina and, because he had been thinking about retirement and raising a crop a little less strenuous than tobacco, he signed up.

When Tillman, 41, agreed to become a caretaker for more than 52,000 chickens for Perdue Inc., he joined a growing group of chicken farmers in North Carolina who are turning to raising broiler chickens as a cash crop.

The state has long been strong in broiler production. North Carolina now ranks fourth behind Arkansas, Georgia and Alabama, but producers in the state increasingly have been finding eager farmers to raise the birds.

In fact, some companies like the Maryland-based Perdue have targeted disgruntled tobacco growers in the state as likely chicken farmers. Extensive advertising entices readers with guarantees of as much as $21,000 gross annual income for the first six years of production with one 500-foot chicken house.

Tobacco, long the state's leading cash crop, has irritated many farmers, who say that too many governmental controls on the crop and market fluctuations make profits harder to earn.

"The market for Perdue broilers in the Northeast is growing faster than we can grow chickens," says one advertisement. "If you're interested in a sound investment, we're interested in you."

State agricultural officials and figures indicate the market is growing in the state. "It's been growing over the last couple of years and I suspect there will be continued growth in it. A lot of farmers work part time in this though," says John Carey, a poultry specialist with the state Agricultural Extension office.

According to Julius Peele, an agricultural statistician with the North Carolina Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, broiler producers in the state raised almost 423.5 million chickens last year, or nearly 1.75 billion pounds.

Tillman's farm two miles west of Fremont in Wayne County now produces tobacco, wheat, corn, soybean ... and chickens, lots of chickens.

Tillman's well-insulated chicken houses, which cost about $80,000 each, went up in July and he already is working on his third flock.

Each of Tillman's flocks total 52,000 chickens, and Perdue guarantees him at least $7,700 for each flock plus fuel allowances for heating oil to keep the flock warm.

The mechanics of operating a chicken farm are simple enough. A farmer who contracts with the company becomes a caretaker for the chickens, which arrive from hatcheries the day after they are born. Houses are bought from Perdue at reduced prices.

The company supplies the birds, feed, transportation to the farmer and back, and labor.

SMOTHERED IN FRESH SOUR CREAM,

WITHOUT LEAVING YOUR CHIP IN THE DIP

Here's how new BREAKSTONE'S Gourmet Dips end up with a taste that's easy to love and a texture that's easy to dip. We start with real, creamy, fresh, natural sour cream. Next we add special ingredients that make each of our five new dips so special. Mounds of mushrooms and green herbs; or toasted onion bits; or crunchy bacon and onion; or a spicy blend of Jalapeno pepper and natural Cheddar cheese; or for sea-food lovers, real Chesapeake Clams (and lots of them).

Then each is blended to be smooth and creamy, not too thick—not too thin.

Doctors Request Help in Deciding Who Shall Live

By LAWRENCE KILMAN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Who deserves an artificial heart, and another chance to live, when such marvels of medical technology are available to only a few?

With the rise of bionic men and women, highlighted last Thursday when an artificial heart began beating in the chest of a retired dentist at the University of Utah, medical doctors are turning to doctors of philosophy for answers to such ethical questions.

Columbia University's medical school joined the trend Tuesday, announcing it was adding philosophers and historians to its staff.

"There is a need to bring non-physicians into medical science," said history professor David Rothman, who will direct the Center for the Study of Society and Medicine at the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Columbia joins other universities, including Georgetown in Washington, D.C., and Baylor in Texas, which are accelerating research into "bio-ethics."

About 60 schools offer courses in social medicine, ranging from "one course given by a semi-retired physician to full-fledged programs," said Baruch Brody, a doctor of philosophy who heads the Center for Ethics, Medicine and Public Issues at Baylor.

The program at Baylor, which began in July, was started because doctors "were not feeling particularly well-trained but recognized the issues were there," he said in an interview from Houston.

The oldest academically-based program in medical ethics began in 1971 at the Kennedy Institute of Ethics at Georgetown University, according to Robert Veatch, a professor of philosophy at the school.

"When these issues first began to emerge, the primary focus was over terminal cases — what to tell dying patients, how long treatment should progress," Veatch said in a telephone interview.

The questions now include the definition of death and policies surrounding "in vitro" fertilization, he said.

He foresees the creation of "who shall live?" committees at medical centers when artificial hearts leave the experimental stage. There will be more patients than hearts, and the committees will have to decide who gets the new devices.

A similar problem arose during the early days of kidney dialysis research, before dialysis machines were widely available, Rothman said. But the government underwrote development "at incredible cost," spreading the technology and solving the problem.

In the case of artificial hearts, doctors may be faced with questions like: Do you make the hearts available only to the rich, who can afford them? Do you have equal access for all? Do you decide that no one over 50 will get one?

"Those questions already exist in areas where there are scarce resources. We don't have enough intensive care beds to go around," Rothman said. "At some point, we have to make decisions."

At Baylor, faculty members go to hospitals and deal with actual cases. For example, the professors often find severely deformed newborns in neo-natal intensive care units.

"These are particularly crowded units; there is a real shortage of beds. Can you justify spending the resources on infants whose life prospects are very dim?" Brody asked.

Setting criteria for such decisions is an example of what the new center at Columbia will do, Rothman said.

"The medical center understands the need for this sort of perspective," Rothman said. "They're beginning to understand what the possibilities and the problems are."

The Mascot Is Missing

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The Arizona Humane Society normally would be glad to have one less puppy in its shelter.

But not when the missing dog is Zeus, a sick, 9-week-old terrier mix who became the shelter's mascot before disappearing Sunday as people waiting to adopt pets crowded the shelter.

Zeus is presumed stolen, shelter workers said. The dog was last seen wearing white fur with brown patches and freckles and a tan collar with silver studs.

Zeus was brought in about six weeks ago by Darlene Beaver, who runs the shelter's front desk, and soon became a favorite of the shelter's 20 workers.

Ms. Beaver got the dog from a friend after the pup's mother was killed by a car.

"He's really a neat little dog," said supervisor Barbara Snyder. "We all fell in love with him. We all have had a hand in feeding him, in training him."

Zeus suffers from a virus, she added, saying "We just started treating him Friday. We have to get him back. We have to continue treatment."

"We want Zeus back," Ms. Snyder said. "No questions asked. We won't press charges."

The saguaro cactus, which dominates the deserts of Mexico and the southwestern United States, can grow to more than 50 feet in height. But it may take 200 years to reach its full height, according to Rand McNally's "Great Geographical Atlas." More than four-fifths of its weight may be water, stored in the stem to be used in times of drought.

Opening lead: King of ♣.

Too many players seem to believe that their voices are the sound of music. All too often, they are simply suffering from a case of loose lips.

This hand was played simultaneously at four tables in a world championship team competition. It is noteworthy for the fact that, at all four tables, the opening bid was three spades, even though it is theoretically unsound to open with a preemptive three-bid on a hand that contains a first-round control, either an ace or a void, in a side suit. At three of the tables, North raised to four spades and that ended the auction.

At the fourth table North-South were one of the greatest pairs in the history of bridge—Benito Garozzo and Giorgio Belladonna of Italy's Blue Team. Rather than raise tamely to four spades, Garozzo started with a cue-bid of four clubs, and Belladonna responded with a diamond cue-bid.

Now West elected to get into the action. No one can be sure of the reason for his double—he was surely going to be on lead, and it seemed a bit premature to suggest a sacrifice to his partner. All he succeeded in doing was to make it easy for the Italians to get to their optimum spot.

North's pass of the double was forcing, and South's redouble confirmed that his cue-bid was first-round control and not second-round. There were no further problems. Five no trump was the Grand Slam Force and South, holding two of the top three honors, leaped to seven spades.

The play was soon over. Declarer ruffed the diamond lead, crossed to the ace of spades and returned to his hand with a diamond ruff. When both defenders followed to the king of spades, declarer could claim the rest of the tricks.

'Nazi' Wants Trial Moved

OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — A self-styled Nazi leader who pleaded innocent to killing a teen-age boy wants his trial moved to another county because of publicity surrounding the case.

Perry "Red" Warthan entered his plea Tuesday. His lawyer, Donald Blake, said he will subpoena newspaper editors across northern California for samples of their coverage of the story. Warthan, 41, is charged with killing 17-year-old Joseph Hoover. The boy's body was found shot eight times in a secluded recreation area. According to police, the teen-ager had been providing information about racist leaflets distributed in lockers at a local high school.

Need Matching Funds To Use Gas Tax Money

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A 5-cents-a-gallon federal tax hike on gasoline may enable the state to complete the Interstate 40 link between Benson and Wilmington, but the state must come up with matching funds to get the money.

North Carolina's share of federal highway funds would increase from about $160 million to about $250 million under the tax, state Transportation Secretary William R. Roberson Jr. said Tuesday.

But much of the highway money could go unused if the state does not raise enough money to pay its share of road projects as the bill required, he said.

The Reagan Administration agreed Monday to allow hard-pressed states to postpone paying their matching share of highway aid. States pay between 10 percent and 25 percent of construction costs in the federal highway system, depending on the type of project. State Highway Administrator Billy Rose and other state officials had warned that the 90-mile, $260 million link to Wilmington was in jeopardy because of proposed Reagan administration cuts in the federal highway aid program.

But Rose said in an interview that the gasoline tax would generate enough additional revenue to ensure completion of the I-40 project.

"What it will mean is that we'll be able to continue work - (on the Wilmington highway), but it probably won't be completed as fast," he said.

The U.S. House voted Tuesday to increase the tax from 4 cents to 9 cents per gallon. The U.S. Senate is expected to consider the measure Thursday.

The tax should raise $5.5 billion and create 320,000 jobs nationwide, administration officials said.

Rose also warned last month that unless North Carolina found another source of matching funds, its highway construction program would dry up by the end of next year.

North Carolina will need about $40 million without the new tax, and $60 million with it, a transportation department spokesman said.

The state has relied on a five-year bond issue authorized in 1977 for its share of federal highway projects, Roberson said. That bond issue expires next July.

Roberson said he and Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. will not make any specific recommendations to the 1983 General Assembly on how to raise additional highway matching funds.

Rep. Allen C. Barbee, D-Nash, House speaker pro tem, said the Legislature might have to consider another tax increase to provide the matching funds.

After a heated political battle in 1981, the Legislature approved a state gasoline tax increase that raised $120 million for the Highway Fund.

Scientists Display Ancient Indian Mud Drawings

By WARREN E. LEARY
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unique series of ancient Indian drawings, which date as far back as the 12th century, exist on the mud-clad walls of a subterranean cave in eastern Tennessee, scientists disclosed today.

Discovery of the still-moist, fragile drawings is a significant step in understanding the artistic and religious lives of Indians who probably were predecessors to the Creek or Cherokee peoples, they said.

"We have had no prehistoric art in deep caves in this country before," said Dr. Charles H. Faulkner of the University of Tennessee, leader of the team studying the drawings, known as glyphs.

"A decorated cave like this is unique in North America, so far, and it may be unique in the world," Faulkner said.

The 350-foot-long passage, dubbed Mud Glyph Cave by the scientists, is covered with representations of faces, animals, stick figures and other unknown symbols, said a report to the National Geographic Society, which sponsored work at the site.

Most of the drawings appear to have been made using fingers or sticks on mud deposited by past flooding in the passage, said the scientists.

Some of the glyphs appear to have been struck with the butt of a club, suggesting attempts to ritually strike at the real object or person depicted, they note.

The main cave where the glyph passage was found has long been known, said the scientists. But it wasn't until 1979 that Walter Merrill, a U.S. Forest Service ranger and amateur cave explorer, squeezed through a series of small openings and followed an underground stream to the passage.

"He immediately realized what he had found, that it was Indian art and was very fragile," Faulkner said.

Fearing for the safety of the find, Merrill did not tell anyone about the discovery until 1981, Faulkner added. At that point the Forest Service called in Faulkner, who then contacted the Society for research funding.

The team, including Drs. Patty Jo Watson of Washington University in St. Louis and Jon Muller of Southern Illinois University, photographed the entire passage in detail and did preliminary digging for artifacts.

The only items found so far are charcoal bits from cane torches used to light the dark, damp cave. This absence of artifacts indicates the Indians used the cave for ritual or artistic purposes rather than for mining or shelter, the researchers said.

"Even if we wanted to remove some of the glyphs, we couldn't," Faulkner said in an interview. "The clay is still soft. The environment is that passage hasn't changed in a thousand years — it stays at about 55 degrees and 100 percent humidity."

Carbon dating and the motifs of the drawings indicate they most likely were made between the 12th and 14th centuries.

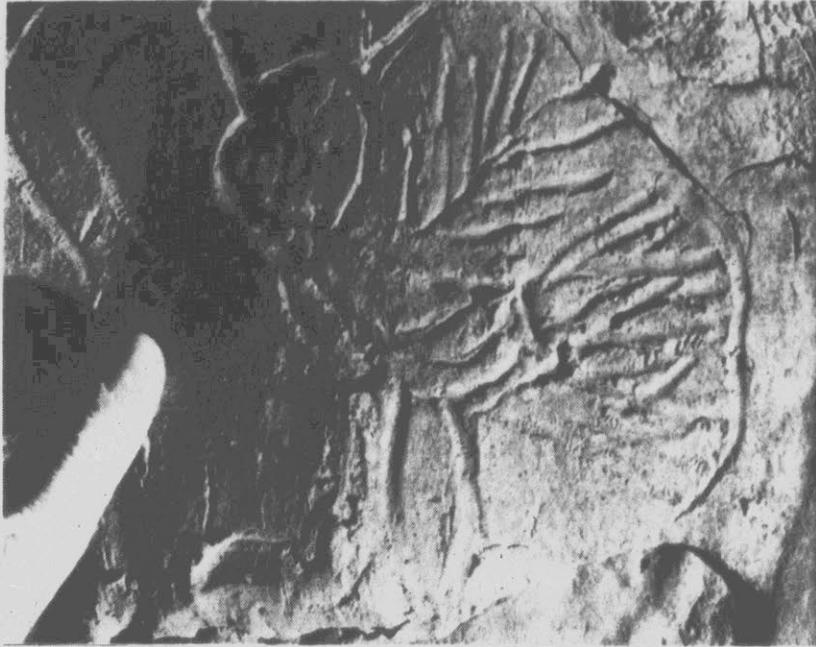

The researchers will not disclose the exact location of the find, saying only that it is on private property in the eastern part of the state.

Not only do the landowners wish to remain anonymous, Faulkner said, but all involved want to protect the site from curiosity seekers and vandals.

"This site is very, very fragile," Faulkner said, "It's the kind of site where a simple swipe of the hand can destroy them (the glyphs)."

FOUR CHARGED
LONDON (AP) — Three police detectives and an unemployed man have been charged with complicity in hijacking truckloads of whisky and clothing in Leeds, northeast England, a Scotland Yard spokesman says.

Ask Help In A Robbery

SAND SPRINGS, Okla. (AP) — Outside the suburban residence of the Rev. H. Craig Hackney and his wife is a sign of the times: "We've Been Robbed!"

Burglars broke into the residence Sunday and ransacked it, stealing the couple's Christmas gifts for relatives.

Soon after the robbery, the Hackneys placed a large sign on their front lawn which proclaimed: "We've been robbed! Did you see any car here Sun. morning 9-12 ... Please help us."

"It was my husband's idea," Rosie Hackney said. "And we already had the sign. We just hope it'll help. Someone had to see them."

Mrs. Hackney said she discovered the burglary when she arrived home about noon Sunday from the South Sand Springs Church of God, where Hackney is pastor.

"They took every present in the house," she said.

The sign placed in the couple's front yard normally is used at the church to announce upcoming events.

"Even if it doesn't help us, we have made our neighbors more aware," she said. "It might prevent someone less fortunate from having their home burglarized."

Las Vegas Marriage Mill Busy Despite Recession

By ROBERT MACY
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — In tuxedos and elegant gowns, barefoot and in bathing suits, couples flock to the Clark County Courthouse at all hours of the day and night, matrimony on their minds.

Despite a recession that has battered the economy of this gambling city, county officials estimate some 58,000 marriage licenses, nearly 160 a day, will be issued at the downtown courthouse this year. Last year, 56,510 were issued, says County Clerk Loretta Bowman.

The increase has occurred during troubled times for Las Vegas. Nearly 13 percent of the people in Clark County — about 32,000 — are out of work. Tourism has slackened because of the soft economy, higher airfares and competition from Atlantic City.

But that hasn't stopped the marriage ceremonies.

Hollywood stars were the first to flock to this desert oasis to tie the knot because of liberal Nevada marriage laws — no blood tests, no waiting period — and the attendant publicity.

"The cost today for a short civil ceremony — $50 and 10 minutes time.

Licenses cost $25 and can be purchased at the courthouse from 8 a.m. to midnight Monday through Thursday, and around the clock Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

About 85 percent of those who buy a license are from California. Arizona ranks second.

Gone are the days when the marrying was done by justices of the peace who could make $100,000 a year on the services.

"At one time it was the prize office because they made more money than the governor," says the Rev. Mel Pekrul of the First Baptist Church. "They just sat there and banged out those weddings all day long."

Now marriage commissioners — eight paid county employees — have taken over that role. They will perform marriages for $25 during regular office hours (8 to 5 Monday through Friday) or for $30 at other times.

About 20 percent of the city's marriages are performed by these county officials, Ms. Bowman estimates.

"It's really more like being sentenced than being married," Pekrul says of the civil ceremonies in the two-room office.

Religious services are performed by about 200 ministers who must be certified by the county.

In addition to ordained, denominational ministers there are what Pekrul and others refer to as "Marryin' Sams" — ministers licensed by the county who deal mainly in the lucrative marriage trade.

"I know one who holds his services each Sunday in a hotel room and blesses finger sandwiches for anyone passing by," Pekrul said.

Most of the non-denominational ministers are on call at two dozen wedding chapels around the city.

One of the most popular chapels is the Little Church of the West at the south end of the Las Vegas Strip.

In the past four decades a host of stars have exchanged vows there, including Betty Grable, Harry James, Mickey Rooney (five times), Wayne Newton, Robert Goulet, Ann Miller, Judy Garland, Rhonda Fleming and Bob Cummings.

Merle Richards, who started out as a wedding photographer and later purchased the popular chapel, says 50 or 60 couples are married there on an average weekend.

The record is a 127-marriage marathon at the chapel on Valentine's Day 1982.

"They were standing in line, waiting to be run in," Richards recalled. "And you have to have a little finesse when you push 'em out the door."

bureau in Las Vegas. The office is open 24 hours on weekends and holidays. (AP Laserphoto)

License Plate Collection Is Bit Of History

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Dick Pack has a penchant for plates — the rectangular metal kind.

He's packed 16,000 license plates into a collection which he claims is the fourth-best in the world, including auto registrations from the United States and 74 other countries.

"The basic idea is to get one plate from every state for every year that that state has issued a plate," says the 42-year-old Pack, a Greyhound bus driver who moved here nine years ago from Chicago because of "winters."

There are around 3,400 possible combinations of plates issued in the United States, he says, and he's missing 88 or 89.

two years after Pennsylvania became the first to give out a yearly plate. Most of the early plates were of porcelain, he says.

The oldest plates tend to be rare and, if in good condition, valuable.

But some states' issues are easier to get than others. For instance, early licenses from New York and New Jersey would be easier to get than from states such as Maine, New Hampshire or Vermont.

Early Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Hawaii plates also are difficult to find. "Smaller population, climate has a lot to do with it," Pack says.

Alaska? "There's only one 1921 Alaska plate known. And it's in someone's collection," he says with obvious displeasure.

Another toughie is a 1914 Arizona issue, the state's first plate.

Pack says he rates his collection so highly because "I know most of the older and bigger collectors, and I know pretty much what they have in their collections. They know what I have in my collection."

For instance, those issued in Arizona include wheelchair, vanity, vehicle dealer, three types of antique auto — classic car, horseless carriage (1919 and older) and historical vehicle (currently 1920 through 1957) — medal of honor winner, prisoner of war and consular plates.

Many states issue special plates for elected officials. Arizona issues only the number "1" for the governor.

Pack also collects various types of motorcycle plates.

But he says he's most proud of four or five dozen plates, particularly one that reads "Apollo 11 City of Chicago 1969." The special plate, designed on a 1970 Illinois issue, was obtained from the then-Illinois secretary of state, who had a spare set from a parade Mayor Richard J. Daley hosted in honor of astronaut Eugene Cernan, an area product.

Another favorite is a counterfeit South Dakota dealer plate he managed to get through a friend.

He estimates the church has been the scene of 250,000 marriages since it was opened just prior to World War II.

The Rev. Richard Allen Gilster II, one of the city's more active non-denominational ministers, recently married a couple at 12:30 a.m. in a limousine parked on a road overlooking the city.

And he performed a double wedding for members of an Ohio motorcycle gang passing through the city.

There have been marriages in boats, aircraft, casinos and swimming pools.

Although ministers are provided as part of a chapel's wedding package, the bridegroom is encouraged to tip the minister. The chapel packages can also include rings, flowers, photos, a recording, gown and tuxedo rentals, limousine service, a live organist or taped music, and a videotape of the services.

And entertainment has ranged from a 100-voice choir packed into a 45-seat chapel to the Harmonicats to the late Mario Lanza, who used to enjoy showing up unannounced at chapel ceremonies.

But his collection goes far beyond the minimum that the 2,000 to 3,000 traders, fanciers and serious collectors require. He has an impressive array of specialty plates.

He says he got into the license-plate collection business — actually a hobby — about 20 years ago. He's bought most of his plates from fellow collectors.

The first U.S. plate was issued by New York City in 1900, he said, though "there's some conjecture about that." He adds, "The oldest I have is a 1901 city of Philadelphia plate." Cities began issuing the registrations before states did, Pack says.

Initially, they gave out what were called dash discs for dashboards, but motorists also had to mount the same numbers, on contrasting pieces of material, on the front or back of their vehicles, Pack says.

"Wealthier people used porcelain enamel or wrought-iron," but leather and tin were used as well, mounted on another piece of metal, he says.

Massachusetts issued the first statewide plate in 1903, intended as a perpetual registration. It went to an annual plate five years later —

Digging Deeper For Charities

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Despite a recession and high unemployment, Kansas City residents are reaching deeper into their pockets this year to help local charities.

Membership in Kansas City's "Two Percent Club," a group of companies that donate 2 percent of pre-tax profits to charity, has more than doubled in the last year, from 35 to 78 firms.

And individual contributions to social service, education and arts programs increased more than $9 million, from $25.2 million to $34.6 million, according to a recent report from the city's Public Solicitations Commission.

Illinois ranked second after California, followed by Rhode Island and North Dakota. Another cold-weather state, South Dakota, ranked seventh with 2,000 riders trained last year.

Cold Fails To Stop Cyclists

LINTHICUM, Md. (AP) — Cold-weather states apparently have no shortage of motorcycle rider education enthusiasts, says the Motorcycle Safety Foundation.

It says new data shows three of the top four states in numbers of riders taking such courses are in the North, where cold weather prevents year-round rider training.

It Will Melt In A Dryer

REDMOND, Wash. (AP) — Plastic long underwear is softer than cotton and nearly as warm as wool, but don't put it in the dryer, says the manufacturer.

Helly-Hansen (US) Inc., a Norwegian-based sportswear manufacturer, opened its first U.S. plant in Redmond, a Seattle suburb, just 22 months ago. It expects to sell 300,000 pieces of its synthetic long underwear this year for gross sales of $6 million.

The sales figure exceeded the company's five-year growth projections in less than two years.

"It's the best-selling thing we have right now," said Susan Silletto, a products buyer for Recreational Equipment Inc., a sporting goods store. "It's a good product sold by word of mouth. For any kind of active sports, it keeps dry and warm. It works."

Synthetic underwear, manufactured from a polypropylene fabric, is as soft as cotton and nearly as warm as wool. When wet, the material is superior to natural fibers. Its wicking action keeps moisture away from the body, making it ideal underwear for skiing, hiking and other active outdoor sports.

Just don't put the underwear in the dryer, Helly-Hansen warns. If you do, you'll end up with a useless ball of plastic.

Be Nice To Yourself, Says Sid Caesar

By KENNETH R. CLARK
UPI TV Reporter
NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Kennedy is reported to have told his famous sons, "Don't get mad, get even." Sid Caesar, who has come home after a season in hell, would say he was only teaching them to waste their time.

"Getting even is the biggest waste of time in the world," he said. "Don't waste your life getting even and carrying a grudge around. That's what causes strokes and heart trouble... First, get even with yourself. Be nice to yourself. Appreciate yourself. Have a little faith in yourself and you'll do it."

It was neither a stroke nor a heart attack that took one of the funniest men in America out of the limelight and into obscurity for 20 years.

It was booze, pills and the growing conviction that some "power" beyond himself would suddenly take away his gift for laughter, leaving him naked and alone before the mockery of millions.

Throughout the 1950s, backed by the comic writing genius of Mel Brooks, Woody Allen, Carl Reiner, Neil Simon and Larry Gelbart, Caesar and his co-star, Imogene Coca, presided over two of the winningest events ever to hit television — "Your Show of Shows" and "Caesar's Hour."

It all ended in 1958 when film editors replaced "live" cameras, and canned laughter replaced the studio audience. That's when dope and alcohol replaced Professor Von Sedative, the Hickenloopers, the Fly and all the other manic characters to which Caesar and his cohorts had given birth.

Four years ago, while stumbling through a Canadian stage performance of "Last Of The Red Hot Lovers," Caesar hit bottom and found only one question there.

"I had no belief in myself ... because some power was going to take away my talent," he said. "All those superstitions were making me crazy, aside from the booze and pills... So I sat down in front of a mirror and said, 'Hey, do you want to live or do you want to die?'"

He did not elect to die, but it was close.

"Dying's easy," he said. "It's the easiest thing in the world. A few more pills, a few more bottles, and that's it. If you want to live, it's hard, but boy, it's worth it."

Caesar — lean, trim and clear of eye now — is brutally candid about his struggle, and he has just detailed it in an autobiography titled, "Where Have I Been?"

"You have to tell the truth," he said. "You can't lie to yourself, so you can't lie to anybody. It's much easier that way — not to have to lie your way through life... You get in the habit of thinking, 'Where's the pills? Where's the bottle? That takes up all your time.

"When you give it up and take control of your own life, my, my — all the cliches come true."

The cliches Caesar deplores are the ones he sees being foisted on the public today in the form of contemporary television, and he said he would love to come back to prime time and set things right again — with live comedy and "human" situations.

"People want to see about people, not things," he said. "Every summer it's special effects. Here it comes — starring nobody. This season is 'ET' season, and it's beautiful and there's room for it, but my God, put something else on too."

"The people in this country are being neglected. They don't know how to laugh anymore. The laugh machines are laughing for them. A country in that kind of position is in terrible, terrible trouble."

wouldn't be cruel. I'd take things on, but with taste."

"We used to be a 'can-do' nation in the '50s. Nothing was impossible. Now it's 'Hold it, call my accountant, he'll call my lawyer and he'll get back to you with my agent.' And this is just to say hello!"

Throughout Caesar's ordeal ("I once lost a whole continent," he said. "We toured Australia and I still can't remember anything about it") his wife, Florence, stayed with him. The mention of her name brings tears to his eyes.

"She deserves much more than I can ever give her," he said. "She's a woman of tremendous strength and patience and such loveliness, and I ... what's the sense in talking?"

But tears give way readily now to the laughter that means so much to Sid Caesar.

"If you laugh too hard, you start to cry," he said. "And if you cry too hard, you start to laugh, so it's the same emotion. If you laugh, you can laugh yourself well."

"This country needs a good shot of laughter."

Win Ratings Via Specials

LOS ANGELES (AP) — CBS, after taking second place to ABC last week, won the ratings battle handsomely for the week ended Dec. 5 with the help of four popular specials and the No. 1 program on television.

Its victory margin was 3½ points ahead of second-place ABC in the ratings from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

The most popular show of the week was CBS' "Dallas," and the network had eight of the Top 10 programs. It had three specials in the Top 10 and a fourth in the next 10.

CBS took the week with a Nielsen rating of 20.2. ABC trailed with a rating of 16.7, and NBC was third with 14.8. The networks say the CBS rating meant that in an average prime-time minute, 20.2 percent of the nation's homes with TV were tuned to CBS.

The CBS specials in the Top 10 were the "All-Star Party for Carol Burnett," which placed second; "The Seventh Annual Circus of the Stars," tied for fourth place with "60 Minutes;" and "GE Theatre, 'Something So Right,'" in ninth place.

The Hallmark Hall of Fame remake of "Witness for the Prosecution" on CBS placed 17th.

Placing third was ABC's "Three's Company." The NBC Monday Night Movie, the second episode of "Executioner's Song" was sixth. The first episode finished in seventh place the week before.

"M-A-S-H" was seventh, "Falcon Crest" was eighth, and "Simon & Simon" was 10th. All are on CBS.

Despite its victory, CBS has a few ratings problems. "The Dukes of Hazzard," one of the network's most popular shows from the past season, has slipped in the ratings this season. CBS also switched time slots of two low-rated shows, "Bring 'Em Back Alive" and "Walt Disney."

"The Dukes of Hazzard," seventh overall for the 1981-82 season, was in 33rd place for the season through the week ended Nov. 28.

Helped Unseat Somoza, Would Oust Sandinistas

By JOSEPH B. FRAZIER
Associated Press Writer
SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — From his well-guarded villa in the hills near here, the former Sandinista guerrilla hero known as Commander Zero says he would need less than a year to peacefully topple the leaders he helped install in Nicaragua.

Closer to town, former Nicaraguan junta member Alfonso Robelo says force is the only way left to oust the Sandinista government and salvage the democratic goals of the 1979 Nicaraguan revolution — which he and fellow dissidents say has sold out to Soviet and Cuban interests.

Eden Pastora and Robelo are part of a new refugee movement, made up of early Sandinista supporters who left the country and were subsequently labeled traitors to the revolutionary cause.

The San Jose-based exiles have formed a rebel coalition, the Revolutionary Democratic Alliance.

Pastora gained prominence when, identifying himself as Commander Zero, he led a guerrilla band that seized 1,500 hostages in Nicaragua's Capitol building in August 1978. The rebel action was widely believed to have helped topple the dictatorship of Anastasio Somoza.

Robelo, 42, a U.S.-educated engineer who mobilized Nicaragua's private sector against Somoza and was on the original governing junta after the guerrilla victory, said he resigned after nine months when he saw the government was drifting quickly to the left.

Although their methods differ, Pastora, Robelo and hundreds of their followers in the Costa Rica-based coalition are trying now to bring down the Marxist-oriented, nine-man directorate of the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

They say the goals of the revolution, a free press, pluralistic society, a mixed economy and non-alignment, have been violated by those now in charge.

"They (the directorate) ceased to be Sandinistas when they took power and implemented their Marxist-Leninist policies," said Pastora, who led the Sandinista troops on the southern front during the revolution and was vice minister of defense in the Sandinista government.

"They have just taken the Cuban revolution and passed it over the coals (warmed it over) in Nicaragua."

In separate interviews, both men said they are banking on a split within the Nicaraguan military, and added they are prepared to act when the moment is ripe.

Pastora said that many of the troops he led are still loyal to him and would defect if he only could reach them. "We want them to decide whether they are going to die for Communism and for (Interior Minister Tomas) Borge or whether they are going to die defending the true Sandinista revolution."

He said that "if they would let me operate out of Honduras I could topple the Sandinista directorate in six to 12 months without firing a shot."

Costa Rica, a democratic country worried about deteriorating relations with neighboring Nicaragua, has allowed the exiled Sandinistas to talk with reporters but prohibited the Nicaraguans from engaging in political activities such as organizing opposition forces.

Pastora said the United States is blocking his efforts and instead backing former Somoza national guardsmen who are using Honduras as a base for raids into Nicaragua. The Reagan administration has admitted providing some support to Nicaraguan exiles in Honduras, but said such aid was not intended to topple the Nicaraguan regime.

"We will be taking some actions soon to make our presence known within Nicaragua," Robelo said in an interview. "You will excuse me for not saying more about that now."

Robelo said that "the only door left open to us is force. It may not be military. It could be strikes or pressures from inside or outside Nicaragua."

Although he said his rebel coalition has neither sought nor received support from foreign governments, Robelo said he had visited Washington and other world capitals and believed U.S. help was possible.

"I received indications from the United States that they would be willing to act if Cuban, Soviet or other foreign troops get involved in an internal Nicaraguan struggle," he said. Pastora and Robelo brand the former Somoza guardsmen as counter-revolutionaries, and say U.S.

support for the Honduran-based exiles leaves Nicaraguans with a choice of the government they have or the one they fought for years to get rid of. Robelo says those in the dissident coalition agree a "government of national unity" should rule Nicaragua for six months, followed by constituent assembly elections. The Nicaraguan government has set elections for 1985, but said the polling could be postponed if U.S.-backed exile raids threaten the country's security.

Offered Recruit A Brief Future

NEW YORK (AP) — William J. Donovan, who became the founder of the World War II Office of Strategic Services, the OSS — the forerunner of the CIA — developed a legendary reputation for bravery.

According to a new biography of him, "Donovan: America's Master Spy," it was Donovan who, as a young army officer leading a World War I infantry charge against seemingly impregnable German positions, turned to his men and uttered the now famous taunt:

"What's the matter with you guys? You want to live forever?"

Apparently, Gen. Donovan expected the same kind of courage in the spies he recruited during World War II. The Rand McNally biography reports that when one day he encountered a young man he considered promising, he attempted to recruit him on the spot, as follows: "We need young people like you with imagination and daring." Donovan then told the prospect, "Nine of our people were shot in Greece just yesterday."

Cockroaches Are Resilient

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Cockroaches have been around for more than 350 million years. They reproduce rapidly and often develop biological resistance to pesticides.

The hardy insects can live almost anywhere, even inside electric appliances. In homes, they thrive on warmth and leftover human or pet food, and drink the water in bathrooms and kitchens. Even the glue in furniture and wallpaper provides them with nourishment.

The most effective way to combat roaches is to keep a clean house and to use an appropriate insecticide on a regular basis, according to the manufacturer of Spectracide pest-control products.

Some Physicians Say Ulcer Drug Overprescribed

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It's one of the nation's most popular and controversial drugs, a bitter sea-green tablet called Tagamet that millions say soothes the debilitating pain of ulcers.

But some physicians contend it's overprescribed, needlessly exposing patients to possible complications, and argue that cheaper antacids can cure many ulcers now being treated with the drug.

At least 20 million people in 120 countries have taken Tagamet, which is manufactured by the SmithKline Corp. of Philadelphia. The company says 95 percent of its 1981 sales of $776 million came from Tagamet, known generically as cimetidine.

The drug is used for two types of ulcers — gastric, which are found in the wall of the stomach, and peptic, located in the intestine. These crater-like sores afflict 10 million Americans and kill 6,000 annually, ac-ording to the Center for Ulcer Research and Education in Los Angeles.

Folklore says worrywarts and workaholics are prime candidates for ulcers. Too much smoking, coffee, aspirin and heredity are considered more likely culprits for the excessive acid that eats away at stomach or intestine lining.

After the Food and Drug Administration approved Tagamet in 1977 for peptic ulcer use, doctors and patients embraced it. It was approved for gastric ulcer use in May.

The drug seemed the answer to studies which questioned the good of traditional bland diets for ulcers and for patients who found frequent doses of antacid a nuisance.

Supporters also pointed out that surgery to repair the intestine or stomach lining, estimated at about 100,000 operations a year in the United States, often fails.

Tagamet's biggest problem could be its phenomenal popularity.

"There aren't that many patients with ulcers to account for that volume" of Tagamet sales, says Dr. John Kurata, an epidemiologist for the ulcer center.

Proponents say Tagamet is in demand because it works so well. "It's one of those rare drugs that actually change the course of therapy... a revolutionary drug," says Bob Holland, a SmithKline spokesman.

"Like any drug, when it first comes out, it's the savior," says Dr. David Watts, of the department of gastroenterology at the University of California, San Francisco.

"We begin to find after a while, it's less the panacea.

Still, it's a very good and promising drug," says Watts, who thinks Tagamet is too often prescribed when antacids would work as well.

Tagamet, says Holland, "has a pretty long history of safety and efficacy... It's probably the most studied drug in the history of the world."

Tagamet is an antihistamine. Researchers, who began work on Tagamet in England in 1964, thought histamine, a complex body substance which causes allergies, also caused the acid that eats away at the stomach.

Antihistamines for allergies didn't affect acid production, so researchers figured there were two separate receptors in cells which interact with histamine. Cimetidine blocks the receptor involved in acid secretion.

Known adverse reactions are relatively few and mostly minor — "one of the reasons physicians use it as freely" as they do, said Dr. Robert Donaldson, chief of internal medicine at Yale University Hospital.

The Physicians' Desk Reference lists dizziness and "reversible" confusion among elderly or severely ill patients; mild, temporary diarrhea; and muscular pain.

However, Dr. Leslie Hendeles, a clinical pediatrics professor at the University of Florida, points out that Tagamet is one of those drugs that tend to react strongly with other medica-

One such case involved a teen-ager with chronic asthma, whom Hendeles gave theophylline, a standard treatment for asthma. Another doctor gave her cimetidine for a stomach ailment. Theophylline built up in her body because Tagamet interfered with its elimination.

Other potentially harmful interactions with fairly common prescription drugs include: excessive stupor in combination with Dilantin, an anti-seizure drug; extending the effective time of the tranquilizer Valium; excessive bleeding in combination with the blood-thinner Warfarin; and sharp drops in blood pressure with Inderal, an anti-hypertension medicine.

However, the National Institutes of Health says overprescription is "difficult to document." Doctors may be prescribing cimetidine instead of over-the-counter antacids.

Few disagree about the drug's results. In clinical trials, the healing rate for ulcers was 60 percent to 80 percent within four weeks. But the Physicians Desk Reference cautions that results of long-term use are not known, and points out that the rate of recurrence among Tagamet users was "slightly higher" than for other groups.

Because of Tagamet's popularity, other companies are entering the market. Marion Laboratories, Inc. of Kansas City, Mo., is developing a drug which binds with protein at the ulcer site to make a barrier and let the sore heal itself. It has "virtually none" of Tagamet's side effects, says company spokesman Larry Wheeler.

Another challenge comes from Glaxo of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Its ulcer medicine, which the FDA is about to approve, according to Glaxo president Joseph Rouvane, reportedly has fewer side effects and can be taken in fewer doses than Tagamet.

Glass Fiber To Fix Potholes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — The potholes in the nation's highways may have met their match in a new repair system made of glass fiber.

Michael Sullivan of Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp. says the "roadglas" spot repair system could mean an end to potholes by helping to prevent one of their primary causes — reflective cracking. Reflective cracking is the recurrence of cracks that form in road underlayers as a result of stress, moisture and erosion.

The new system is also less costly than conventional repair methods, Sullivan adds, and enables road crews to complete repairs in less time than previously required.

SMALLEST FIRE ENGINE — Produced by a French society of Saint Maur, Suburban Paris, the "MICRO 100" is powered by a British Leyland engine and is 2.35 meters long for 1.48 meters wide. Particularly adapted to urban areas, this vehicle is the world's smallest fire engine. (AP Laserphoto)

Students Try Create Taste For Old Foods

By JOE B. MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The job market is never a problem for students of Dr. Wilbur Gould.

Making potato chips that taste like roast beef or popcorn that tastes like pecans hardly sounds like prime job qualifications but Gould, director of the food technology program at Ohio State University, says those are passing fancies en route to a greater goal.

"The food industry is making demands for our students in the technical side of the food business," he said. "Our students are in great demand. We don't have enough of them."

The 40 students currently enrolled in the program, which comes under the College of Agriculture, are about evenly divided in their work between graduate and undergraduate.

While his program deals with the science of preserving fruits and vegetables, some meat and dairy products, it is more specifically concerned with the technology of assembling and preserving specialty food products and the distributing and marketing of food.

Preserving offers a wide choice of study areas for his students. They may cook, can, freeze, dry, dehydrate, pickle, ferment, or reconstitute food and some of its byproducts.

The tempura process — deep-fat frying — is the way of the future in food preparation, Gould said, taking note of a fast food trend toward Mexican dishes.

"Most Mexican products are corn-based, dried, ground, reformulated, extruded, rolled into sheets," he said. "We do some work here on corn and potato chips. It's an area where the industry is begging for technology."

Much of the research in the program is done by students and for private industry which brings many of its problem to the university. One such item is potato chips with a ketchup flavor. It grew from a long habit of dipping french fries in ketchup and while the chips aren't big yet in Ohio, Gould says they are catching on fast in East Coast restaurants.

The tomato industry came to him a few years ago for help in sorting tomatoes for commercial use, separating ripe from less ripe and unripe fruit. The result was a water trough developed by Gould, who knew that ripeness of tomatoes related directly to their density and water volume.

The test kitchen used by the program has all the equipment of any modern commercial kitchen with a few extra devices for experimentation. One developed at the university is a tomato peeler.

Aside from potato chips flavored to taste like beef or ketchup, Gould, the program's five faculty members or the students make chips taste like chicken or popcorn taste like peanuts.

If taste seems relative, Gould says the first aim of technicians in preparing a food is how it looks.

"We eat with our eyes," he said. "After we know it looks good then we — most of the time — taste it. We make sure first that it is safe to eat and the microbiology lab determines this."

"Then we look at the taste. The nutritional value comes last. We check for the vitamin C content, look at the sodium content, determine other vitamins and minerals. We are not nutritionists but it is a part of what we do."

As he talked, Jackie Caplinger, a graduate student in food technology, popped two small dishes into a microwave oven and in seconds set out a sample bowl of popcorn and a plate of breaded hors d'oeuvres. The popcorn had a nutty flavor, a mix of natural peanut butter and artificial pecan flavoring.

The plate had diced tomatoes, cucumbers and zucchini, all breaded in a batter and deep fat fried.

One recent assignment at the program was to make something useful from spent grain after distilleries finish making drinking whiskey. Until now, its primary use has been as feed for livestock. Gould found the grain akin to cereals.

"We converted it to a snack food," he said, holding a handful of bits resembling corn chips or beer nuts. "One ounce of our snacks is equivalent in protein to four ounces of hamburger. We can flavor it any way you want — strawberry, ketchup, popcorn."

"We like to think we're ahead of the pack," Gould said. "We might develop something and it's ten years before it catches on. Ketchup-flavored potato chips is an example. I talked about them five years ago and now they're just catching on in the East."

"Low sodium (salt) chips are another of our ideas, four or five years ago and it's just now beginning to take hold."

First Get Mud, Then The Oil

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — It's hard to drill for oil without mud.

Into almost every well, oil drillers pump thousands of gallons of "mud" — actually a scientifically formulated mixture of chemical additives and oil or water — to cool the drill bit and carry rock fragments to the surface.

Winner Had Name Easy To Write-In

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — If dentist Ron Packard's name were not so simple — say if he'd been Alphonse P. Cibinic — he might still be back home in Carlsbad, Calif., fixing teeth.

But because he persuaded 66,000 Californians to write his name, Packard is in Washington this week, taking orientation courses on how to be a congressman.

The story of his fight against the odds is classically American.

Born in an Idaho farmhouse, he was one of 17 children. His election last month shows that strange twists are still possible in American politics, despite the way campaigns have been packaged and made seamless by professional consultants.

Packard discussed how he managed to break the rules and get here in an interview Monday, between talks for new members of Congress on the responsibilities and perquisites of public service.

When five-term Rep. Clair W. Burgener decided not to seek re-election in his solidly Republican district in parts of San Diego and Orange Counties, 18 Republicans, sensing opportunity, declared themselves candidates for the GOP nomination to take Burgener's place.

Among them was Packard, 51, a dentist for 25 years and the elected mayor of Carlsbad.

In the primary, Packard finished second, just 92 votes behind recreation vehicle manufacturer Johnnie R. Crean, who won the nomination with only 16 percent of the total vote.

But Crean's tactics apparently soured a lot of Republicans. He spent a personal fortune to win the nomination. His attacks on opponents and the tactics used by hired campaign consultants outraged many. He was condemned by the Orange County Republican Party and some of the local newspapers.

When the votes were counted, all 16 other losers in the primary urged Packard to run as a write-in candidate.

Write-ins don't often win congressional seats. In 1980, Republican Joe Skeen won a write-in campaign in New Mexico, but the only candidate on the ballot was a Democrat since the Republicans had no official candidate. Not since 1958 had a write-in won where there were two candidates from different parties on the ballot.

Moreover, the GOP — at county, state and national level — discouraged Packard, saying it had to support the official nominee and worrying that a split in the Republican vote would elect the Democratic candidate. President Reagan even wrote a letter to every registered Republican, saying he supported the party nominee, Crean.

On issues, Crean and Packard were not far apart. "I'm a Reagan-style Republican," Packard says. "I'm conservative by nature and politically."

Packard geared his entire campaign toward teaching voters how to vote for him.

He sent out 350,000 pieces of mail in a replica of the ballot. On election day, 2,600 volunteers handed out 60,000 pencils bearing the words the Packard voter had to know — "Ron Packard, 43rd Congressional District."

In San Diego County, casting a write-in vote is a complex procedure: the voter must write both the name of the candidate and the office he seeks on an envelope containing the computer card he would otherwise use to cast his ballot. In Orange County, a different method was used.

Under the law, voters did not have to spell Packard's name precisely. As long as officials could decipher the voter's intent, the ballot would count.

"The thing that worried me the most of all was that Johnnie Crean might come up with the idea — and I kept it under my hat — of going out and paying someone $1,000 to run as Don Packer, or something like that."

In that event, he said, his name would have had to be written precisely right.

By MARK BERNIS
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Michael McCanham is a loser, probably the biggest loser you'll ever see — and that makes him happy.

A year ago, McCanham — Mickey to his friends — was anything but happy. He stood 5-foot-8 and weighed 460 pounds.

Now, the 27-year-old McCanham weighs 250 pounds and plans to weigh in at 180 pounds by the end of March.

The secret? McCanham hasn't eaten solid food since Dec. 2, 1981.

Well, to be absolutely honest, he did eat two pretzels in February.

"I didn't even realize I ate them until after, when I tasted the salt in my mouth. You know how it is, you see a bowl of pretzels and you take one and eat it," he said.

In a recent interview at home, McCanham said he was slightly chubby as a child but his battle with obesity didn't really begin until after high school.

He said he began piling up the pounds because he was depressed after breaking up with a woman he had dated for seven years. After carrying the excess weight for about four years, it took him nearly a year to make the decision to fast under a doctor's supervision.

Besides the pretzels, all the rapidly shrinking McCanham has consumed in the past year is a twice-daily protein drink, a potassium supplement and vitamins, and three quarts of liquid a day.

"The first three months, I couldn't keep it down very well," McCanham said, referring to the vanilla malt-flavored protein drink he was mixing in the small kitchen of the suburban Detroit home where he lives with his parents and two brothers.

The protein supplement, visits to a doctor and behavior modification and nutrition classes cost $95 each week. McCanham also walks three to five miles a day and does stretching and toning exercises.

What's left of McCanham has a much better personality than the original, according to his mother, Marie McCanham.

"He was such a bear," she said.

"Now I'm pretty and I'm such a nice fellow," McCanham joked as he headed back to work as an executive at Shatterproof Glass Corp., which manufactures automobile windows and other glass products.

"I let very little bother me any more," he said. I put a lot more value on my friends. My convictions are my convictions and I stick with them — I've done more growing in this one year than in any five before."

Later, at the studio where McCanham also hosts a weekly radio program of Irish music, the "Man Who Wouldn't Chew in '82" said, "It's the hardest I've ever consciously worked at anything in my life. It's a constant mental job. The first month and a half was a breeze, because I'd spent a lot of time getting up for it. Then the press hit and that carried me a bit further."

Publicity helps to prod him any time his resolve starts to weaken, particularly when visiting one of Detroit's Irish pubs, he says. While his friends drink beer, McCanham sticks to tea or soda.

"There are a couple things that I'd like to taste," he admitted. "Stroh's Signature beer came out since I started the fast, and I'd like to taste that, and I have a buddy who's a bartender and makes great Bloody Marys."

Come April, though, it isn't likely that McCanham will be missing much. After a gradual re-introduction to solid food and the establishment of a maintenance program to keep the weight off, he can start calling in all the rain checks.

"I have dinner invitations and drink invitations that could last me a year," he said. "I wouldn't have to buy any food for a year."

Lowe's Pricing Policy

Many items in this tabloid carry a reference retail price. The reference is intended to provide a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area and may be useful in identifying different units of the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail price based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference retails do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that our reference retail prices, as described above, represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a knowledgeable and better informed buying decision. We suggest that you also do comparative shopping and compare our prices. (Prices in this tabloid do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)
 Lowe's Refund Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown can be ordered for you.
