

Future Growth Plan Before Hospital Bd.

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County Memorial Hospital Trustees voted Tuesday night to pursue a Long-Range Facilities Plan that will enlarge the hospital on its present site to as many as 900 beds between now and 1995.

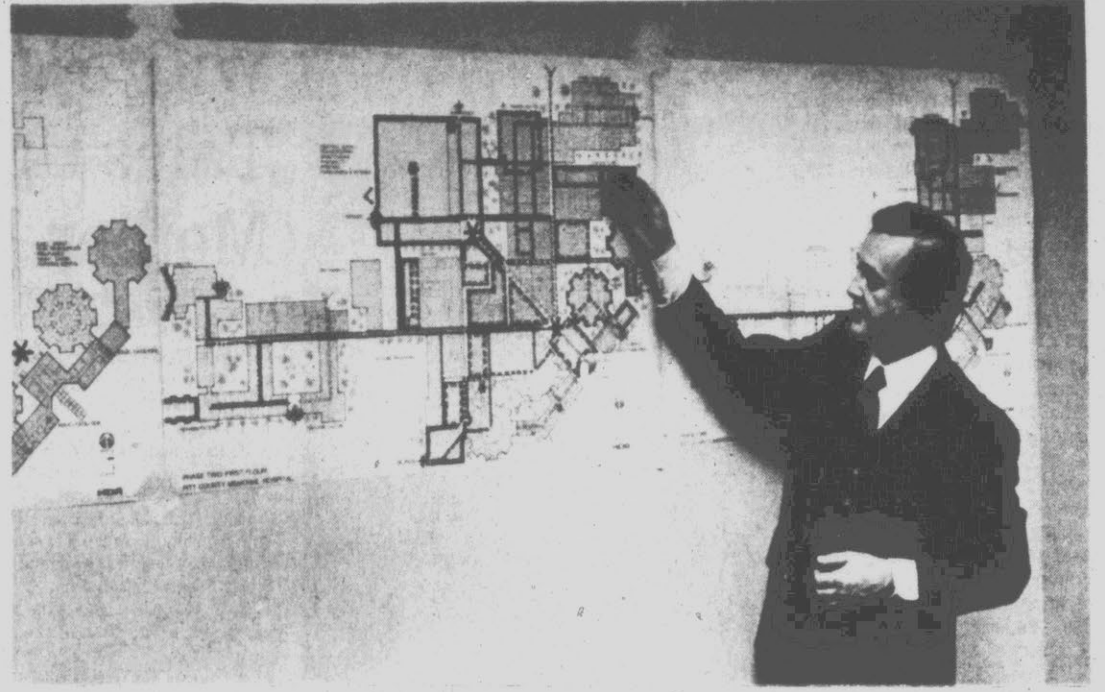

It was voted to adopt and fund Phase 1 of the plan, which would enlarge the surgery, radiology, emergency and psychiatric bed areas of the hospital at a cost of about $5.3 million. Additions would be made to house surgery and emergency and renovation would be made to expand radiology into the present emergency area once the new addition is complete.

The addition of non-acute beds in the psychiatric area would be a separate project to begin sooner than the proposed summer 1983 construction startup of the surgery-emergency-radiology project.

The decision followed a presentation by representatives of Henningson, Durham and Richardson and Hamilton Associates of a long-range plan for the medical center and the East Carolina University School of Medicine. This study was authorized in the spring of 1982, along with a separate study by A.F. Naylor Co. of long-range radiology needs. A total authorization of $540,500 was made to retain HDR to complete programmatic studies and prepare architectural and engineering drawings and local architects to design modifications to reassign spaces and meet certificate of need designation of 569 beds — the next step in the proposed expansion.

Trustee Bernice Turnage questioned how much money the hospital has on hand for Phase 1 and was told that there is now about $3.8 million that can be used for this project.

Planning-Zoning Bd. Approves Annexation Study

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A staff report on the feasibility of annexing approximately 500 acres of basically residential and commercial property in four study areas was endorsed Tuesday night by the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission.

The annexation report, prepared by the city's planning department, will be forwarded to the City Council for consideration and possible initiation of steps to make the areas part of the corporate network.

Generally, the study areas include: a 79-acre section in the North Greene Street-Memorial Drive area adjacent to the northern city limits; some 407 acres along Mumford Road as well as Country Squire Estates subdivision; roughly 44 acres involving Heritage Village and Tuckahoe subdivision along 14th Street extension southeast of the present boundary; and a site of less than one acre involving a single-family dwelling and the tract on which it is located adjacent to the Greenville Utilities Operations Center on Mumford Road. The small tract was not included when the GUCO land was annexed in 1978.

The City Council, which adopted an on-going program of annexation in the late 1970s, directed the planning staff to study the residential and commercial areas and submit its findings to the planning board for consideration.

According to the report, the triangle of acreage in the North Greene Street area has developed property that includes North Carolina Department of Transportation facilities, a small mobile home park, several businesses and a vacant building.

Prominent land features in the 407-acre tract studied along Mumford Road include Shady Knoll, Quail Hollow and Tice mobile home parks, Country Squire Estates, a concentration of mixed residential and commercial uses around Mumford Road, the Virginia Electric & Power Co. substation, and an auto junk yard. There are 325 mobile homes, 75 single-family dwellings, a duplex, nine commercial uses and two institutional uses within the study area.

The Tuckahoe-Heritage Village area considered was part of a larger study area that involved Brook Valley, Camelot and other possible residential sections included in an "Annexation Report 1982" prepared by the planning staff.

The current report mentioned that the satellite incorporated areas of Windy Ridge and Quail Ridge on 14th Street extension are in the center of the study area, and would become a part of the contiguous city limits. The total area under consideration is basically residential in character and is eligible for non-petition annexation.

Planning Director Bobby Roberson said statutes require that at least 60 percent of an annexed area must be used for urban purposes and he said there is little latitude as to the possibility of annexing totally vacant land.

House Adjourns; Senate Still Hostage In Filibuster

By GENE GRABOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House members are on their way home for Christmas, but the Senate, hamstrung by a filibuster, is still joylessly laboring over a proposed nickel-a-gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax.

The House finished its work Tuesday night — voting 180-87 to send the compromise jobs-creating gasoline tax hike to the Senate. Then it quit for 1982.

In the Senate, however, conservative Republicans immediately mounted their third filibuster against the tax increase, forcing another post-midnight session.

Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vowed to bring the measure to a final vote even as Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., announced his continued determination to block it.

It was nearly 1 a.m. today when Baker and Helms agreed to take a vote Thursday on whether to choke off debate, which would clear the way for final congressional action on the measure. The Senate then recessed until later today when a pro forma session will be held.

The question now is this: Can Baker persuade enough senators to stay in Washington through Thursday to vote down the filibuster and pass the gas tax bill? It takes 60 votes to break a filibuster.

If he cannot, the bill will die.

Two other controversial measures passed by the House in the lame duck session — a bill that would pay farmers in grain for withholding production, and President Reagan's Caribbean Basin initiative — are expected to be ignored by the fight-weary Senate.

Senators had hoped they could follow the lead of the House and adjourn after approving the tax increase, raising the gasoline tax from 4 cents to 9 cents to finance $5.5 billion worth of highway, bridge and mass transit repair jobs.

"I'm still convinced the wise thing for the Senate to do is reject this measure one way or the other," said Helms, one of a small core of conservative Republicans who have filibustered the measure off and on for 10 days.

Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., labeled Helms' action an "obdurate and obnoxious performance."

Amid the grand polemics, Congress is quietly sending President Reagan legislation that will restore millions of dollars in Social Security disability payments to tens of thousands of people whose eligibility has been challenged.

The bill allows disability recipients who are declared ineligible before next October to continue receiving Social Security payments until their appeal of the decision is resolved. Beginning in 1984, it requires a face-to-face hearing between recipients and Social Security officials before benefits can be terminated.

The measure also extends until next July the current exemption from requirements that public pensions be reduced to compensate for spouses Social Security benefits.

The legislation, tacked onto a minor bill clarifying tax rates for the Virgin Islands, passed both the House and the Senate late Tuesday without a negative vote. It now goes to the White House, where Reagan is expected to sign it.

Another bill quietly on its way to the White House imposes new security and reporting requirements on oil companies operating on Uncle Sam's land. The legislation is designed to curb oil theft on federal property.

It was approved by the House Tuesday night and sent to President Reagan for his expected signature. The Senate passed the bill earlier.

Regan was on Capitol Hill to call for up to $8 billion in increased short-term emergency lending by the United States.

Unemployment In N.C. Inches Up

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Unemployment in North Carolina rose to 9.5 percent in November, an increase of 0.2 percent, the North Carolina Employment Security Commission announced today.

Glenn R. Jernigan, chairman of the commission, said the figures mean that 278,700 workers were without jobs in North Carolina last month and that an additional 2,500 people were out of work.

The rate was below the national unadjusted unemployment rate of 10.4 percent.

Jernigan said further seasonal employment losses in agricultural, manufacturing and self-employed fields outweighed minor gains in some non-manufacturing divisions.

The most pronounced declines were in the fields of tobacco manufacturing, down 2,300, and textile mill products, down 2,100. The losses were offset by gains in trade, up 1,000, and government jobs, up 4,600.

Jernigan said jobs in the trade field were down 4,100 over a year ago.

"In a season when trade is expected to be the highest, it is discouraging to realize how many jobs have been lost in this sector," he said.

The average hourly earnings of North Carolina's production workers in manufacturing increased. In mid-November, earnings averaged $6.46 an hour, up from $6.39 an hour the previous month.

Closed

All Pitt County government offices will be closed Friday and Monday for the Christmas holidays, and will reopen on a regular schedule Tuesday, County Manager Reginald Gray said today.

Gray also said all county offices will be closed for New Year's on Dec. 31, except the offices of the Pitt County tax collector. The tax collector's office will remain open Dec. 31, Gray said, to give property owners a final opportunity to pay their taxes before Jan. 1.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell you problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

WHEELCHAIR FEEDBACK

Gary Epling, assistant district manager of the Social Security Administration, has expressed appreciation to the Hotline readers who responded to the recent appeal for a wheelchair to be used in the Social Security office. "The wheelchair that was donated will serve many of our disabled and elderly people in a most helpful way," he said.

CAT NEEDS MEDICATION

A large gray tabby and white male cat that needs medication in order to live has been lost in the Dickinson Avenue-Ridgeway Street area of Greenville. The cat when last seen Dec. 13 was wearing a reflective flea collar with tag that says Kiyoko. He has been appealed for extensively by his owner and she is using Hotline as a last resort to locate her pet. Call Kathy Taylor, 758-3022.

PANCAKE — Pilot Christie W. Hartman of Laguna Niguel, Calif., says he warned his wife their plane was about to crash, and told her he'd set it down as gently as he could — with this result. Mrs. Hartman suffered minor injuries. The home in Phoenix — owned by Chuck Harris but with all the family gone at the time — sustained $50,000 damage. (AP Laserphoto)

Judge Is Abducted And Robbed At Knife Point

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A federal administrative law judge from South Carolina says he thought "the show was over" after he was abducted at knife point and robbed of $200 earlier this week.

"There have been about three experiences in my life — one parachuting, one flying and this — when I felt the show was over," Judge Kenneth P. Glover, of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, said Tuesday after his brief abduction and robbery in downtown Charlotte Monday night.

Glover said two men forced him into the front passenger seat of his car and drove to a public-housing development about a mile from the hotel where was staying. One man held an 8- to 10-inch butcher knife on him during the drive, he said.

"One of the men seemed just after money. I don't think the other had an attitude of restraint or respect for anyone. There was no doubt in my mind they would use the knife," he said.

When the driver stopped the car in a parking area at the housing development, the two men took about $200 in cash from the car's glove compartment, Glover said.

Glover, who works for the Office of Hearings and Appeals in Charleston, S.C., came to Charlotte Monday for four days of hearings on Social Security-related cases.

He said his abductors used abusive language, but he suffered no physical injuries except a couple of superficial nicks on the side of his neck.

The incident began about 10:50 p.m., when Glover went to his car for a pair of shoes and his checkbook and the cash in the glove compartment.

"I leaned over to the glove box, and when I raised up, there was a knife at my throat," he said.

The men took Glover's cash and his car keys and fled on foot. Glover returned to his car and locked the door, but then realized he couldn't stay there all night and began knocking on doors until a couple let him to use their phone.

Police said no arrests had been made by this morning, but said they had obtained some fingerprints from the vehicle.

Wedding Ceremony Performed Saturday

WALLACE — Susan Morris Taylor of Burgaw and Harold Yann Blake of Wallace were united in marriage Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in the Wallace Presbyterian Church. Dr. Carl Uzzell performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Gladys Morris of Raleigh and the late Ira T. Morris. The bridegroom is the son of Clara Blake of Wallace and the late J. Gordon Blake.

A program of wedding music was presented by organist Karla Casteen and soloist Danny Sanderson.

The bride was given in marriage by her son, Dean Taylor. She wore an ivory formal gown of schiffli lace over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in schiffli lace. The fitted bodice was overlaid in imported illusion and schiffli lace. The long fitted sleeves fashioned of matching lace featured button closures. The semi-flared skirt of imported illusion and schiffli lace was enhanced with a deep tiered flounce of schiffli lace that extended to form an attached chapel length train. She wore a chapel length veil of illusion edged in schiffli lace held in place by a Camelot cap overlaid in matching lace. She carried a cascade of red roses and baby's breath, accented with greenery and ivory ribbon.

Matron of honor was Penny Miranda and maid of honor was Paula Cheeming, both of Burgaw. Bridesmaids were Evie Haynes of Greenville and Wanda Braxton of Winterville. The honor attendants each wore a formal gown of royal blue crepe de chine. The V-neckline was edged in a ruffled flounce and the full gathered sleeves ended with buttoned cuffs at the wrist. Each attendant carried a single long-stemmed red rose accented with baby's breath, greenery and lace streamers.

MRS. HAROLD VANN BLAKE

The mother of the bride wore a light blue knit dress with matching jacket and a corsage of red roses and baby's breath. The mother of the bridegroom wore a long sleeved light rose dress of georgette with ruffled neck and sleeves and a corsage of red roses and baby's breath. Serving as best man was Jimmy Blake of Mobile, Ala., brother of the bridegroom. Ushers included Melvin Batson of Wilmington, Phillip Carawan of Swan Quarter and Thurman Casey of Rocky Point. Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of Drs. Conrad and Penny Miranda in Burgaw. A rehearsal dinner given by the mother of the bridegroom was held Saturday evening at the Rose Hill Restaurant in Rose Hill. The bride attended Pitt Community College and is a clerk at the Pender County Health Department. The bridegroom attended N.C. State University and the University of North Carolina-Wilmington. He is assistant principal at Pender High School in Burgaw.

After a wedding trip to New Orleans and Mobile, Ala., the couple will reside in Wallace.

Dear Abby

Wife's Unhappy Tales Upset Mother-In-Law

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell your daughter-in-law not to call you up and tell you what a terrible son you have?

I have told her countless times that I don't want to hear about their fights and misunderstandings, but she still calls me. It starts out with, "Hi. How was your day?" And before I can get the words out, she proceeds to tell me about the argument she and my son just had. She never calls to tell me anything nice he did — only the bad things. They have been married for a short time and I see little hope for a first anniversary.

She has even called me up at 11 p.m., just before I go to bed, to tell me about this terrible fight they just had, saying he stormed out of the house, slammed the door and raced off in the car. She never calls back to tell me he came home and everything's fine. So I lie there all night worrying that he's out drinking and driving when all the while they have already kissed and made up.

Any suggestions besides telling her not to call? I've tried that and it hasn't worked.

UNNERVED MOTHER-IN-LAW

DEAR UNNERVED: The poor girl probably has no one else to dump on. She sounds like an immature, angry child frantically crying for help. And to compound the problem, she's punishing you. (Look what your rotten son did to me!) Insist that both she and your son get professional help from a marriage counselor. It's a matter of survival for their marriage, and your's.

DEAR ABBY: I am a healthy 20-year-old male who would like to donate one of my eyes to a blind person right now while I am living. Many people get along all right with only one eye, and I'm sure I could, too. It would be well worth the inconvenience knowing that I gave a blind person the gift of sight.

I do not want any publicity. I just want to donate one of my eyes anonymously as a gift. Has a blind person ever received a transplant from a living donor, or would I be the first?

ANONYMOUSLY YOURS

DEAR ANONYMOUSLY: Your generosity is indeed commendable, but I am informed by a spokesperson for the Lions Club, whose pet project is the cornea transplant program, that a cornea is never taken from a living person.

DEAR ABBY: Reams have been written about women in love with married men. However, not much has been written about the aftermath. Let me tell you how it was with me.

Years ago I was head over heels in love with a prominent Chicago doctor. I was thrilled and proud to think that this important man found a few hours for me. I froze in his car as he made hospital calls to visit patients. Everyone told me he would never divorce his wife and leave his children for me. I knew in my heart that one day — when he got his finances straightened out — we would end up together.

Well, his children are all through college, married and have homes of their own. His wife just took a trip to the Holy Land. Me? I'm retired on Social Security. The doctor? He died of a heart attack in his wife's arms in 1954!

Thoughts About Holidays Shared By Area Residents

By ROSALIE TROTMAN
Reflector Woman's Editor

With the hustle and bustle of the holiday season, several people gave some thought to "What I like best about Christmas."

"Peggy Bond of Greenville said, "The part I like most about Christmas is sharing family traditions. My family gathers at my mother's house on Christmas Eve and there we light the luminaries that light the streets of the neighborhood. We then have our dinner which is prepared by my mother and the family takes part in the candlelight communion service at our church to enjoy the true meaning of Christmas."

"Carol Reid of Greenville added, "Christmas is another name for love, fellowship, family gatherings—a time of giving and of sharing. It is not just Christmas trees and ornaments—it's the birth of Christ. Christmas is Jesus Christ."

"Edna Dennis of Bethel noted, "Christmas is a season of magic. I think it kindles within each of us a spirit of caring and sharing. When I see the lights reflected in the eyes of a child, I think of a baby in Bethlehem in a manger. When I hear the beautiful music, I am reminded of a heavenly choir. When I see my family gathered around the table or around the piano singing carols together, I am almost overcome."

"Margaret Creech of Snow Hill said, "The most enjoyable part of Christmas is watching the expressions on your children's faces and feeling the love and closeness of your family."

"Christine Cashion of Chocowinity said, "The best part of the Christmas season is the happy mood it invokes in people. It seems that whether you like the shopping, the weather, the children's faces or church services, there is some little thing that

Rescue Service Expands

Thirteen members of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department were among graduates of an intermediate emergency medical technician advanced life-support course at the ECU School of Medicine.

They join members of the Winterville and Grifton rescue squads who have previously completed the course. The graduation is particularly significant for Greenville because the fire-rescue department will begin on Jan. 3 sending at least one person on each rescue call who is certified to perform life-support duties.

This can mean that lives will be saved in some instances. The certified personnel are trained to begin intravenous fluids, insert airways and the application of anti-shock trousers. In the cases of severe physical impairment, such as heart attacks, these early actions can be essential to the patient's survival.

The EMTs who have taken the course should be well prepared. Through the medical school they have taken 140 hours of classroom instruction, participating in learning laboratory and hospital clinical experience.

The personnel of the Greenville Fire-Rescue Department, county rescue units and those of surrounding counties who have completed the intermediate course are to be commended for furthering their training so they can be of additional service to their communities.

Take In The Homeless

Under the title "100 Neediest Families," we are asking everyone who can possibly do it, to take in one MX missile this Christmas. A cruel and unyielding House of Representatives has made MX missiles homeless during the holiday season. Originally they were supposed to be sheltered in a dense pack 20 miles long and a mile wide near Cheyenne, Wyoming, in concrete silos. But the plan was vetoed and now the MX missile has no place to go.

The MX missile will not give you any trouble if you take it in your home. You can put it in your attic and just visit it once a day to see if it needs any fuel or water. It has 10 nuclear warheads on it, but you don't have to touch them, because they've already been targeted for someplace in the Soviet Union.

You might ask, "Why should I take an MX missile into my home?"

The reason is that the MX is a deterrent against first-strike aggression, and President Reagan says we need it as a chip in the nuclear arms talks in Geneva. Those of us who are blessed with so much should show the MX missile family that they are not alone during the happiest season of the year. How can anyone in this country enjoy the Christmas holidays when they are aware that there are hundreds of missiles who have no place to celebrate and no one to turn to on what should be a festive occasion?

We took an MX into our home last week. At first there was apprehension in the real thing."

"Does it have a joy stick on it?" my daughter asked.

"I'm not sure," I told her. "But even if it does, I don't think you should fool with it until I read the instructions."

"How do we get one?"

"I'm going to call the U.S. Air Force now," I said.

I placed a call to the Pentagon and told a colonel, "We'd like to take in an MX missile for Christmas, as we understand you have many who have no homes."

"Bless you," the colonel said. "We've had a hard time placing them during the holidays. We were afraid we'd have to keep them on the base. We'll have one delivered to your house tomorrow morning."

The next morning a two-ton Air Force truck arrived and the service personnel gingerly carried our MX guest up to the attic and positioned it so it would be aimed toward Europe.

"We'll come back for it after the holidays," the colonel said, "as we still haven't tested it. If you know anyone else that wants one for Christmas just give us a call."

I assured him I would.

After they were gone we all went up into the attic.

My daughter put a quilt on it because she was afraid it would get cold. My other daughter petted its nose. My son put warm milk next to it "in case the 10 nuclear warheads got hungry." My wife got into the spirit of things and decorated its fins with holly leaves.

The MX didn't respond in any way and seemed to be contentedly sleeping.

My daughter asked me, "No, it's not a toy. It's the one name.

Adelson says his show has filled a gaping hole that once existed in the computer industry.

"When computers were large and cost millions of dollars they were sold direct," he says. "But with the advance of technology and the drop in prices the computer industry needed to get out in the marketplace and sell computers."

"This show does that. Anyone you get 1,000 companies out on the floor together, they're going to be selling to each other."

The fall show proved to be such a success, Adelson started a COMDEX-Spring show, which debuted in New York City in 1981. The fall show is always in Las Vegas, but the spring show moves around — it was in Atlantic City, N.J., this year and will be in Atlanta next April.

Adelson, 49, has built a $70 million-a-year company, Interface Group in Framingham, Mass., based mainly on computer shows.

'Hog Jowls' Plays Santa

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
STATE UNIVERSITY,
SOMEWHERE (AP) —
Sigma Omicron Kappa's great Christmas caper actually was hatched on Thanksgiving Eve.

The "Soaks," as the members of State U's booziest fraternity rendered their Greek acronym, had gathered in their basement Weinstube for the traditional turkey gobble and gin guzzle relieving the pain of upcoming midterm exams.

"Alors et Viola!" shouted frat President Corky Monroe, who had just flunked intermediate French and took out his frustrations with periodic sorties against the language, "I have it. This year for our annual holiday humbug, we shall zero in on the townies. Instead of gifting Dean Witherspoon with a ton of fertilizer or decking the campus tree in the quod with old gym socks, as in days of yore, we shall have our gibbost and flabbiest brother Soak apply for the Santa Claus job down at Myers' Department Store. Quel Noel! Quelle blague incroyable!"

Huzzahs and hosannas all around for Homer "Hog Jowls" Higgins, who was both glib and globular, and at the moment his nomination to lead the Soaks' seasonal assault on a civilized Christmas was busy chug-a-lugging a two-quart stein of extra-malt into the bottomless pot bulging beneath his Pickwickian tattersal vest.

"How perfectly wizard," agreed Higgins, punctuating his acceptance speech with thunderous burps. He always affected British dress and idioms to point up his major in English Lit, with a minor in drama, also the fact he had once played Major Pickering in a school production of Shaw's "Pygmalion," until the director cast him out for tottering drunkenly into the footlights during a matinee for faculty families.

"Now your job, if you get the job," Monroe thickened the plot, "will be to tell the little wimps off, give them a piece of Santa's mind they never will forget. Throw in as many insults as you can at the parents, too, and don't spare the old grandmothers. What we're after is a Don Rickles Santa Claus with the cheery personality of a Marine drill instructor. No more Mr. Nice Guy from the North Pole, is it?"

And the miracle down at Myers, of course, was that Hog Jowls actually got it. He got the job. Among 40 or so candidates, Homer Higgins came across as the most rotund and the most ed nosed (thanks to dedicated soaking it up with the Soak. He also had the high-decibel count in the ho-ho tests.

The pay was $4.75 an hour, although no frat brother expected him to last that long if he played his role to the hilt. His debut was set for the first Monday in December. Wally "Woofler" Gundersen, the Soaks' hi-fi expert, wired and miked Hog Jowls underwear with hidden tape recording devices so the frat brothers could enjoy instant and constant replay of his rude renderings of the reindeer legend. All Soaks solemnly swore to keep away from Myers on the appointed morning for fear of inhibiting his insults or giving the gag away from the sidelines.

As the tape verified, Hog Jowls got off to a splendidly splenic start. The first to climb on Santa's knee was a 6-year-old girl who had pushed her baby brother out of the way.

"So your name is Nancy, and you want a Betsy Wetsy Doll for Christmas," Santa began amiably, "before letting her have it. Well, after the way you just treated your brother, I wouldn't bring you a dead cat for Christmas. Or maybe I will. You're about the most spoiled brat I've ever seen. Who ever heard of a 6-year-old being allowed to put on nail polish?" Her piteous wails could be heard clearly on the tape, along with a soft gurgling sound which indicated Santa was nipping at the flask of holiday cheer in his right mitten.

Next came a runny nosed boy, somewhere around 9 or 10, who wheezed into Santa's face that he wanted an E.T. (Please Turn To Page 5)

Rubinstein Gave To Us

It is the destiny of some to bring joy to millions during their time on this earth. If we are born with a mission, providing great music was that of Arthur Rubinstein who died in Switzerland this week at the age of 95.

His was a full life performing as a concert pianist throughout the world, but particularly was he loved and appreciated in the United States.

Rubinstein summed up his life best when he once said, "I think I can say no man has lived his life more fully than I have. I think it's late enough in the day for me to have the right to say it: My life is made. If I die today, still I had it. Nobody can say I've been deprived of anything."

The great pianist obviously felt he had received much from life. He had, but he has given so much more.

A 'No' Expectable

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — State agencies and universities haven't been shy this year in asking for money for new capital projects. They'll find, most likely, that the Legislature won't be shy, either, when it comes time to slam the door on those requests next year.

In hearings before the Advisory Budget Commission, state agencies and universities sought $496 million for new buildings, equipment and renovations this fall. To put that figure in perspective, remember that the entire capital budget for fiscal year 1981-82 was only $31.2 million and for 1982-83, $70.8 million.

Maintenance comprises a major chunk of the requests. According to the state Office of Budget and Management, total requests for repair and renovation totaled $154.5 million. Legislative staff and officials of the state Department of Administration have been warning for months that the state faces a major "infrastructure" problem — state buildings are deteriorating quickly and state equipment is wearing out. But maintenance is the red-haired stepchild of the appropriations process and past Legislatures have shown more interest in new projects than in fixing the leaking roofs of old projects.

The UNC Board of Governors, with a total request of $194.9 million, tops the list of money seekers. They have 18 new buildings or major additions planned at a total cost of $127.9 million. The biggest requests are $16.1 million for a public health and environmental sciences building at UNC-Chapel Hill, $14.6 million for a classroom building at East Carolina and $13.4 for a physical activities building at UNC-Greensboro. The Department of Agriculture is the next largest seeker of funds with $93.4 million in requests. The Department of Correction, $64.8 million, and the Department of Human Resources, $54 million, follow.

The Agriculture Department is pursuing two major Raleigh projects — a $27 million farmers' market and construction and about $50 million for the most serious maintenance problems. If that information is right, it'll be the first time in a long while that the governor's budget hasn't included at least some brick and mortar.

Rep. Billy Watkins of Oxford, chairman of the House Expansion Budget Committee, predicts the Legislature will spend a "little bit, but less than normal. There's just going to be so much effort on the part of everybody to take the (salary) freeze off and if you do, you have to look everywhere in the world for a little something." wholesale food distribution center and a $42 million new Museum of Natural History.

How likely is it that anyone will get any of this money? Not very. The state budget is extremely tight and expanding the capital budget beyond the current level of spending would appear to be out of the question. Expansion, we're told, will come first in the area of employee salaries.

Sources in the administration of Gov. Jim Hunt say the budget he will propose to the Legislature in January will contain no money for new

Other Editors Say Shorter Session

(Transylvania Times)

A North Carolina study commission has proposed that the length of legislative sessions be limited. The idea has merit. As Sen. W.G. Hancock, who chairs the study committee along with Rep. John Church, said, "We've about reached a point where the average citizen is in no position to serve even if they can get elected."

Unfortunately that's how it is. Just the cost of getting elected is more than many people can handle. But even for those who manage that, the length of the terms makes it extremely difficult for anyone running a business, practicing law or pursuing any kind of job which requires fairly close supervision or physical presence to serve in the Legislature.

People who live in Western North Carolina have a particularly difficult time. The miles are just too many to Raleigh to be able to check on a business at all during the week, and those who commute each weekend must be exhausted with all that time on the road.

Limited sessions might allow some talented, interested people to run for election and to serve in the Legislature who could not consider it otherwise.

The committee report offers a "model" that could be phased in in 1983 and 1984 and fully implemented by 1985.

The model proposes to: Limit the regular session of the Legislature in odd-numbered years to 60 legislative days or 90 calendar days. Regular sessions now convene in mid-January and usually last until late June or mid-July.

Limit the session in the even-numbered years to 30 calendar days.

Allow the Legislature to implement the split-session approach for regular sessions with the Legislature meeting in January to organize and start legislation. The lawmakers would recess until April 1, then return to complete the session by the start of the fiscal year, July 1.

The committee also proposes that committees be allowed to work between sessions on proposed legislation and to file bills before a session so that committees can begin hearings.

Under the proposal, the number of standing committees would be reduced to no more than 10 or 20 per body. As of now, the House has 59 standing committees and the Senate has 38.

The Legislative Committee on Agency Review has done its work well. The Legislature will be well advised to act positively on its proposals.

PETTY THEIEVRY

Hotel managers declare that on the average one hand towel per guest disappears from their hotels every day and one bath towel per guest each week. Some hotels even report that occasionally the Gideon Bibles disappear. It is said that millions of dollars' worth of goods is smuggled into the United States each year not by professional smugglers but by ordinary tourists returning from foreign countries.

The people who commit these so-called peccadilloes are not thieves — they are people with double standards of morals. They seem to feel that because they have paid for a night's lodging or a trip abroad, they deserve a few extras. People who do these things are for the most part honest in their business dealings and are, on the whole, quite reliable. But they fail to realize that principles of honesty apply equally to the little things of life and to the big things. — Elisha Douglass

Real Explosion Is Yet To Come

By TIM DAHLBERG

Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sheldon G. Adelson's first COMDEX trade show in 1979 drew 4,000 computer industry people and was considered a success.

Three years later his COMDEX-Fall '82 show here attracted more than 50,000 people, and Adelson says the real computer explosion is yet to come.

"The momentum to use computers in our daily lives is coming from every which way," he says. "I think I'd be hard-put to find anybody that will say more than 5 percent, 10 percent of the computer market has been tapped today."

More than 1,100 companies making computer-related products from software to computer terminals exhibited their wares at the latest fall show in the Las Vegas Convention Center.

COMDEX stands for Computer Dealers Expo, and the show is aimed mainly at third-party distributors — retailers, dealers and "systems houses," which package different makers' products and sell them under one name.

Adelson says his show has filled a gaping hole that once existed in the computer industry.

"When computers were large and cost millions of dollars they were sold direct," he says. "But with the advance of technology and the drop in prices the computer industry needed to get out in the marketplace and sell computers."

"This show does that. Anyone you get 1,000 companies out on the floor together, they're going to be selling to each other."

The fall show proved to be such a success, Adelson started a COMDEX-Spring show, which debuted in New York City in 1981. The fall show is always in Las Vegas, but the spring show moves around — it was in Atlantic City, N.J., this year and will be in Atlanta next April.

Adelson, 49, has built a $70 million-a-year company, Interface Group in Framingham, Mass., based mainly on computer shows.

The two COMDEX shows are the cornerstones of the firm, whose other shows include Federal DP Expo, aimed mainly at government data processing and held each year in Washington, D.C.; Interface shows, aimed mainly at the high-volume, mainframe market; and Computer Showcase Expo, several of which are held in various cities for business, professional and corporate users of small computer systems.

In addition, last month the company put on its first COMDEX-Europe show at Amsterdam in the Netherlands, bringing together computer makers and third-party distributors from America, Europe and Japan.

Adelson began the COMDEX show in 1979 at the MGM Grand Hotel here with 157 exhibitors and 4,000 delegates. But the show has grown so big that Adelson ran out of exhibitor space this year at the convention center, one of the largest in the country.

He projects 1,500 companies will participate in the show next year, drawing 70,000 people.

"I was just in the right place at the right time," he says about his successful show. "I smelled that less and less were the manufacturers going to sell direct and more and more the independent sales organizations would sell computer equipment."

Adelson says the show is "an indication of the worldwide growth and acceptance of computers in our society."

Besides the booming home computer market, computers are being used in almost every aspect of society. "It's anybody with a need to collect, store or transmit information," Adelson says. "It's business, government, education and any other area you can name."

Adelson says he believes reports of a shakeout, at least in the personal computer industry, are premature. "I ceased to be amazed at the number of people out there," he says. "Whoever prognosticates on this marketplace continues to be outguessed."

The success of his shows, he says, reflects "that we're in the hot industry. We're in the right place at the right time."

Schuller To Seek Regain Exemption

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — The Rev. Robert Schuller says he will fight to win back the tax-exempt status of his Chrystal Cathedral, assessed $400,000 in taxes by state officials who say the church is used for commercial purposes.

The state Board of Equalization on Tuesday cited the Chrystal Cathedral's dance classes, commercial weight-loss meetings and $60-a-ticket concerts in making the assessment.

But Schuller, the television evangelist who built the $18 million glass-paneled church, says he will get the tax status-exempt back.

"I don't believe we have a problem," he said, adding that all the non-religious activities cited by the board have been canceled or moved.

Schuller, whose weekly sermons are carried on the nationally televised program "Hour of Power," said activities labeled as commercial by the board are non-profit events and argued that they actually save the public money.

"Only God knows how much we have saved local taxpayers in what would otherwise have been expanded police services, added welfare costs of unemployed persons, added social services because of marriages that would have been broken, added foster-home care for children that would have been abandoned, if not hooked on drugs," he said.

The ruling said many activities at the church are non-religious and the church failed to provide documents supporting the exemption.

The cathedral houses the Garden Grove Community Church, a congregation of the Reformed Church of America, a Protestant group. Under state law, churches must show that exempted property is used solely for charitable and religious purposes.

Watkins adds that he thinks the Legislature has met the state's current capital needs. "We don't have any (requests) that many consider imminently necessary." That assessment is shared by one Hunt administration official who cautions, however, that new prison facilities may be needed.

Rep. Al Adams of Raleigh, chairman of the House Base Budget Committee, says there will be no capital budget if the economy doesn't improve. Adams goes further to say there may be no expansion budget at all — no new spending anywhere — with the exception of a pay raise.

Buchwald Col. . . .

"Do MX missiles dream?" "I'm sure they do," I told her. "I wouldn't be surprised at this very moment that it was dreaming of blowing up Leningrad."

We all tiptoed quietly downstairs filled with the spirit of peace and good cheer. By taking in a homeless MX missile during this holiday season we all had learned the true lesson of what Christmas is really all about.

costume and the book based on the movie. "Hey, kid," Hog Jowls went into his Kojak imitation, "this has got to be a shakedown. You're old enough to know there ain't no Santa Claus and no E.T. either. Is that your mother out there in the fake fur coat? Get her to break down and buy you a handkerchief. I don't want your grungy germs contaminating my reindeer herd. Now get lost." A pudgy tear-streaked little girl, who was in a snit because her mother refused her a triple decker marshmallow sundae at the soda fountain, was told her Christmas present would be "two months at Weight Watchers" and there would be no Easter bunny until she "shed some of that blubber. Why, even baby elephants don't carry that much baby fat."

Twin brothers who wanted a set of trap drums, a portable radio and a full line of Pac-Man TV games lost it all when they confided their home was out near the university. "You little monsters make enough racket without inflicting those torture instruments on our community," Santa lit into them. "Your old man deserves a padded cell for Christmas if any of that loot shows up under the tree. What you both need is a pingpong paddle to take the dust out of your Doctor Dentons. Now buzz off, the two of you."

Perhaps a dozen more urchins approached Santa's throne and departed in tears before the Complaint Department filtered the complaints of the outraged parents up to the executive floor and Mr. Myers descended in a huff on the express elevator. Hog Jowls hung up his beard and fur-trimmed uniform, punched out his time card just as noon was striking, and joined his brother Soaks in jubilation in the Weinstube, where he was voted their all-time Humbug. But then a week later, just as Humbug Higgins was glorying in his new nickname, the career counselor at the university employment office telephoned him in great excitement. Myers himself was hunting all over town for him. Parents were calling in to say how good as gold their kids had been since seeing Santa, and now hundreds of other shoppers were bringing in their unruly offspring for a chat with the Santa who told it like it is. Would he please come back at double the salary?

This story has no moral.

A Young Asian Democracy

It is election day in Sri Lanka. Today, voters in that tiny Asian country go to the polls to decide whether President Junius Jayewardene of the United National Party should rule for another six-year term. Self-government is relatively new to the people of Sri Lanka. This Wisconsin-size island country was occupied first by the Portugese, then by the Dutch, and finally by the British in 1798. Sri Lanka did not become a self-governing dominion of the British Commonwealth until 1948, and it gained its independence only ten years ago. In 1978, the nation changed from a parliamentary to a presidential form of government, so today marks Sri Lanka's first presidential election.

DO YOU KNOW — What was the name of Sri Lanka prior to 1972 when it gained independence?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — King Hussein took over the Jordanian throne in 1952.

Set To Join In Drug War

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's war against the nation's $80 billion illegal drug business will heat up next month when task forces in 12 cities start work on specific cases of narcotics trafficking by organized criminal groups.

Attorney General William French Smith said Tuesday that some of the cases will be new while others will "focus on promising avenues that we know about but have been unable to pursue fully because of resource problems."

Justice Department officials outlined new information on the drug task forces, announced Oct. 14 by President Reagan, after congressional approval of a $127.5 million appropriation for the program.

Rudy Giuliani, associate attorney general, said the cases chosen will be ones "with potential for infiltrating the upper organization of organized crime."

However, he quickly added that he was using "organized crime" in the generic sense to include not only its historic meaning such as the Cosa Nostra or Mafia but also groups with connections in Colombia and Mexico and with motorcycle gangs.

The task forces are based in Baltimore, New York, Boston, Atlanta, Houston, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Diego.

The funding from Congress includes:

- $57 million and 1,260 positions for additional law enforcement personnel, representing approximately 620 additional FBI and Drug Enforcement Administration agents, 400 Internal Revenue Service, Customs Service and Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agents, and approximately 240 people for clerical support.

—$11.7 million and 340 positions for additional prosecutorial support, including an additional 200 assistant U.S. attorneys along with secretarial and paralegal support.

—$1.6 million for state and local costs, principally for overtime related to the task forces.

—$3.2 million for DEA air surveillance and intelligence.

—$18.8 for DEA and FBI automation to support investigations.

—$12 million for secure FBI communications to provide sophisticated radio equipment to prevent monitoring of on-going investigations.

—$18 million for prison construction at existing federal facilities to add 780 more bed spaces and help avoid releasing criminals prematurely because of overcrowded conditions.

—$5 million for renovation of local jail facilities to ensure adequate space for pre-trial detention.

"The task forces are expected to be at full strength by summer—certainly no later than August 1," Smith said.

Giuliani said the typical task force will have approximately 50 to 55 additional FBI and DEA agents, 20 additional Treasury agents and 20 more prosecutors.

"The task forces will supplement—not replace—existing narcotics efforts," said Smith.

"Those assigned to the task forces will be experienced investigators and prosecutors—not novices," said Smith.

Morgan Undecided On Political Plans

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Former Democratic U.S. Sen. Robert Morgan says he not made up his mind regarding his political plans in 1984.

Supporters have suggested that he run for state attorney general then, but Morgan has said he wants his Senate seat back.

"I'm not in a position to talk about politics," he said. "I really don't know what I'm interested in."

Morgan, who was defeated for reelection to the Senate in 1980 by Republican John East, said in a speech earlier this year that he wanted his "voice back in the Senate."

While Morgan has not closed the door on a 1984 Senate bid, he is not expected to challenge Gov. Jim Hunt in a primary contest. Hunt is expected to challenge Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., in 1984.

The attorney general's post, which Morgan held until his election to the Senate, would open in 1984 if current Attorney General Rufus Edmisten seeks the governorship as expected.

The attorney general's race has been mentioned to Morgan by at least two of his former aides: Thomas Adams, director of the North Carolina Medical Society, and Michael R. Mann, director of the North Carolina Wildlife Federation.

Adams and Mann confirmed that they had suggested to Morgan that he consider the race in 1984, but both said they were posing it as an option, with the 1986 Senate race being another.

Adams declined to say what he was urging Morgan to do, but Mann said he preferred that Morgan take the Senate race.

Congress Votes King Statue

WASHINGTON (AP) — A memorial to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been approved by Congress, making the late civil rights leader the first black person to be represented among the statues at the nation's Capitol.

The Senate passed the resolution establishing the memorial by voice vote Tuesday. The House had approved the measure earlier in the session. President Reagan's signature isn't required.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., the resolution's sponsor, said the honor for King was "long overdue and appropriate."

The resolution authorizes the congressional Joint Committee on the Library to procure a bust or statue and place it in the Capitol.

Competition for design of the memorial will probably open in the spring, Mathias said.

King was assassinated in Memphis, Tenn., in 1968.

Child Can Choke On Holiday Snacks

From Halloween to New Year's Day, homes are filled with holiday decorations and party favors dangerous to young lungs. Party snacks on cocktail tables, gift wraps and trinkets on the floor, and removable parts of small toys are all likely to find their way into tiny hands, and from there into the mouth.

"A child finds these goodies and in a state of holiday excitement, the youngster can easily breathe in the foreign objects. Such small items can choke a child or lodge deep in the lungs, causing severe lung problems," warns Susan Roberts, Christmas Seal chairperson for this area.

Aspiration of foreign objects is the most common cause of accidental death in the homes of children under 6 years.

Ms. Roberts said aspiration of foreign objects requires immediate medical attention but noted there are preventive measures that can be taken to avoid a holiday tragedy:

•Do not put objects in your mouth, or bite on toothpicks, straws, etc.

•Explain the dangers of foreign objects in the mouth to your children, no matter how young.

•Never bend over a baby, or take him in your arms without checking that there are no points, buttons or jewelry loose within the baby's reach.

•Inspect toys for small or loose parts, such as eyes, buttons and fragments of metal, plastic or wood.

•Don't leave holiday trimmings and party favors on low tables.

For more information on aspiration of foreign objects, contact the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region, and ask for its pamphlet, "Keep Your Child From Choking," which is available as a Christmas Seal service.

Don't Limit Giving To Christmas

Christmas is a time for giving, but for 200 volunteers at Pitt County Memorial Hospital, the giving is not limited to the Christmas season. They have given their time throughout 1982 and will sing "Auld Lang Syne" to the tune of 20,000 hours of volunteer time.

If you equate that with today's minimum wage, the hospital has benefitted from $67,000 in labor, free of charge. And as Christmas approaches, a group of the volunteers is undertaking the task of organizing the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The first meeting of the auxiliary was held Nov. 3. Working from a set of bylaws adopted by the hospital's trustees in 1975, the auxiliary elected Edythe Price president and named Alyce Wrubei and Hazel Thiel vice presidents; Jean Weaver, secretary, and June Keel, treasurer.

The auxiliary will work closely with the volunteer program and act as a voice for the volunteers to the administration of the hospital. According to the bylaws, however, the auxiliary will be a separate body, and its membership will not be limited to volunteers. Membership is open to all persons interested in rendering service to Pitt Memorial and its patients.

Etsil Mason, PCMH director of volunteer services, said the auxiliary will allow the volunteer program to expand.

"The strength of a good volunteer program should not rest on one person," Mason said. "The auxiliary will serve as an inner support system which will give strength to the whole volunteer program."

Mason said volunteers work throughout the hospital and have extensive personal contact with patients and their families. Volunteers see patients' needs first hand, and in many cases, they identify needs that the patient and the hospital do not meet. An example of this are the toiletry kits the volunteers now distribute to people who find themselves in the hospital without these necessities.

The auxiliary plans to provide such patient benefit programs as the toiletry kits and will assume the responsibility for the fund-raising necessary to finance the projects.

Persons interested in the volunteer program or the auxiliary may call the Pitt Memorial Volunteer office, 757-4491.

Comet Probe

BRISTOL, England (AP) — The European Space Agency says it is launching a $55 million space probe on an eight-month, 93-million-mile voyage to a 90-minute rendezvous with Halley's Comet on March 12, 1986.

The probe will be named Giotto, after the 14th century Italian painter who is believed to have depicted the Star of Bethlehem with a tail in one of his Padua frescoes because he had seen the comet.

The space agency said its probe will "provide data on the chemical composition of the coma region surrounding the nucleus and of the tail of the comet. A camera will take color photographs of the comet and measurements will also be made of its magnetic field."

The Soviets and the Japanese also are expected to launch probes at the comet's next swing past the sun in 1986.

In The Area Agency Offers Money For Oil Shale Plant

Candlelight Service

A candlelight communion service will be held Christmas Eve at 7:30 p.m. at Hooker Memorial Christian Church, corner of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street. The service will be open to the public.

Concert Honors Composer

A concert, "Tribute to the Late Sam Cooke," live from off-Broadway in New York City, will be presented in two performances on Sunday, at 3 p.m. and again at 6 p.m. at the Wiz Night Club, located on the Greenville Bypass one-quarter mile beyond the new Pitt County Fairgrounds.

The show, by the producers who created "Beatlemania," stars Lea Harrington. Cooke was the composer of songs such as "Another Saturday Night," "Wonderful World," "Cupid" and "You Send Me."

Tickets in advance, at $5, are available at Fleetway Cleaners. Tickets at the door will be priced at $6.

Music Director Resigns

Beth Carter, a senior in the East Carolina School of Music, has resigned as music director at Ayden United Methodist Church. Miss Carter, who had held the Ayden position for two years, will do her student teaching in Chesapeake, Va.

Miss Carter is from Salisbury, where her father is superintendent of the Salisbury District of the United Methodist Church.

Service For Ministers

A special service for ministers and the public will be held Christmas Day at 11 a.m. at St. Matthew Free Will Baptist Church. A sermonette will be given, along with music by the Last Generation singers.

Elder David Daniels will preach a Youth Day sermon Sunday at 11 a.m., with music by the No. 2 Choir of St. Matthew. At 3 p.m., the pastor, Eldress Hattie Cobb, and the congregation of St. Luke Church will hold services in Vanceboro. At 7:30 p.m. Eldress Marie Grimes will preach at St. Matthew.

Madrigal Singers In Yule Broadcast

ECU News Bureau
WASHINGTON — Christmas music from the 17th and 18th centuries will be broadcast by WITN-TV, Washington, Channel 7, at 11 p.m. on Christmas Eve. Featured performers are the East Carolina University Madrigal Singers and the ECU Collegium, an instrumental ensemble. The program will last for half an hour.

The broadcast was videotaped earlier in the pavilion of the Maude Moore Latham Memorial Garden at Tryon Palace in New Bern. Master of ceremonies is James Rees of the ECU speech faculty.

Herald trumpeters are Daniel Freeman, Heurleton, N.Y., John Mark Moore, Woodbridge, Va., and James O'Connor Jr., Fayetteville.

Madrigal singers are Timothy Stephen Parker of Newport, Kevin Bagby of Chesapeake, Va., Beth Carter of Salisbury, Mary Ann Bristow Davis and Philip Dean Brown of Rockingham, Amie Samone Keyse of Scott City, Kan., Timothy Ward of Durham, and Catherine Wafford, Wilson.

Collegium Musicum instrumentalists, performing on replicas of antique musical instruments, are Jonathan Noble David of Miami, Amy Davis of Hillsborough, Jeffrey Stephen Hargett of Concord, Michael Sheard of Woodbridge, Va., Elizabeth Shelton of Tullulah, La., and Mary Ann Thomas of Rockville, Md.

Performers, directed by Dr. Charles Moore of the ECU School of Music faculty, will dance a Renaissance pavane and sing several early carols — "When Christ Was Born of Mary Free," "Infant Holy," "Carol of the Drum," "Carol of the Bells," "The Twelve Days of Christmas," and two Spanish carols.

The program originally was part of the entertainment at ECU's 1982 Madrigal Christmas Dinner series sponsored by the ECU Department of University Unions.

Santa Learns Secret Hopes

By ANGELA LINGERFELT
Reflector Staff Writer

Once again boys and girls have been sitting on Santa's lap, looking sweetly into his eyes and telling him which toys they desperately want him to pile under their trees. Santa's requests have been many, but there are several toys that most kids seem to want this year.

The most popular request Santa has received this year, according to the Santa Claus who is visiting Carolina East Mall, is for an Atari video game. For those who already have Atari's, the cartridges that are used with them are very popular.

For boys, the Dukes of Hazzard items follow closely behind the video games. Other favorites are G.I. Joes, racing tracks, trains and bikes. According to the Santa at Pitt Plaza, most boys ask for powered toys like remote control cars, go carts or minibikes.

The ever popular Barbie dolls, with all their accessories, place first on girls' Christmas lists. For younger girls, Strawberry Shortcake and Tippy Toes items are popular.

Santa said "E.T." items and Smurfs are often requested.

Some of the less popular items on kids' Christmas lists include chemistry sets, rifles, Pink and Pretty dolls, stuffed animals and radios.

The older girls that sat on Santa's lap asked for knights in shining armor (usually a 6-foot tall blond-haired guy with blue eyes) that own bright red sports cars and have plenty of money.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government agency charged with getting a synthetic fuels program underway has taken its boldest action yet to lure private industry to build the giant plants.

The Synthetic Fuels Corp. said Tuesday it was willing to offer up to $1.6 billion to get a 10,000 barrel-a-day oil shale plant built in Colorado or Utah.

The corporation said it expected much of the money would be spent for price guarantees on the synthetic crude produced. Officials said the government would guarantee a price of $67 a barrel — about twice what crude is currently selling for and the $67 would rise with the general level of inflation.

The promises marked the first time the corporation has spelled out in such detail how much aid it would provide. Corporation officials said the $1.6 billion was the most the government would pay out and the price would likely be driven lower as companies competed for the award.

Another step toward an award came with the announcement that an energy consortium had accepted a "letter of intent" signed by Edward Noble, chairman of the corporation.

That letter made a non-binding promise of $465 million in loan guarantees and price supports toward the cost of a $576 million plant in North Carolina to produce methanol from peat found in coastal swamps.

The project would get $1.02 a gallon, rising 2 percentage points above the inflation rate, even though methanol costs about 50 cents to 75 cents a gallon in bulk.

The project, known as Peat Methanol Associated, is a venture of Energy Transition Corp. — Eto — and First Colony Farms.

First Colony is owned by shipping magnate Malcolm MacLean, whose land contains the peat, while Eto, which has a 9 percent interest, has as stockholders several prominent officials of the Ford administration as well as William Casey, current chief of the CIA.

Corporation officials hope, by being specific about what the government is willing to do, they will be able to drum up more interest among oil companies to build synfuel plants.

Created by Congress in 1980, the corporation has yet to make a single award from the $15 billion it was given to spur development of plants to convert America's abundant reserves of shale and coal into liquid and gaseous fuels.

Some members of Congress, unhappy with the pace, have threatened to abolish the agency and take back the money unless they start to see results. Supporters say the industry, buffeted by slumping oil prices and high interest rates, is in dire need of government help.

In May, Exxon Corp. announced it was writing off $1 billion it had invested in the Colony oil shale project in Colorado.

May One Day Resume Dental Practice

By GEORGE TIBBITS
Associated Press Writer
SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Encouraged by Barney Clark's steady improvement, doctors say the artificial heart recipient may one day be able to resume his dental practice and can "certainly" get in some golf putting when he recovers.

Clark, completing his third week with the Jarvik-7 heart beating in his chest, is in serious condition in an intensive care room at the University of Utah Medical Center. But doctors said Tuesday he was gaining in strength, standing on his own and spending much of his time out of bed in a reclining chair.

Dr. Chase Peterson, university vice president for health sciences, said Clark was showing a "steady recovery," taking part in conversations, sipping fruit juices, exercising lightly and sleeping soundly for eight hours at a stretch.

He was also breathing mostly on his own, spending two hours off a respirator for every hour on, Peterson said.

Asked whether Clark's activities would be hampered if he makes a full recovery, Peterson said, "Really there is no limit to his physical activity within the geographic limits of the tether" — two 6-foot-long air hoses linking him to the external compressor that powers the heart.

Clark should be able to perform most personal and household functions — dressing, cooking and otherwise taking care of himself, he said.

"He can even practice dentistry if you think about it," Peterson said. "He can sit down by the side of a patient and do all the things a dentist would have to do."

Clark, once president of the Rainier Golf and Country Club in Seattle, may even return to the golf links, Peterson said. Swinging a driver probably would be too much, but "he certainly could putt," Peterson said.

On Dec. 14, 12 days after the initial implant, the 61-year-old Seattle-area man was rushed to surgery after a broken valve caused his blood pressure to plunge. The entire left side of the plastic heart was replaced during a four-hour operation.

Following that surgery, Peterson described Clark as "a very, very sick man" who faced "some awfully tough slugging."

Clark made rapid progress, however, and was taken off the critical list over the weekend.

Clark also visited Tuesday with Dr. Willem Kolff, one of the developers of his new heart, and encouraged him to continue his work, Peterson said.

Kolff, head of the university's Artificial Organs Division and a developer of the artificial heart, artificial kidney and the heart-lung machine, dropped by Clark's room Monday, Peterson said.

"Dr. Clark gestured for Dr. Kolff to come over and he said very firmly, 'Don't quit,'" Peterson said. By that, he said, Clark meant "don't quit with Dr. Clark and don't quit with the program."

Clark is limited mostly to mouthing words and making gestures because of a tracheostomy tube in his throat, but can say some words.

Occupational therapist John Durkin said Clark looks forward to twice-daily sessions of mild exercise. Durkin said he helps Clark move his arms and legs, giving him a little resistance to build strength.

"I think he's enthusiastic about it," Durkin said of the half-hour workouts.

When Clark rose from his bed to transfer to his chair Tuesday, he stood almost entirely on his own. Durkin merely steadied him. But both Durkin and Peterson said they doubted Clark would attempt to walk before the weekend.

Clark, who suffered from cardiomyopathy, an inoperable deterioration of the heart, was within hours of death when his new heart was implanted Dec. 2.

Durkin said Clark tires easily, but he seems to be improving more quickly than other post-operative heart patients because his mechanical heart performs so strongly.

In addition to the hoses that drive the polyurethane heart, Clark still has an intravenous tube in his arm and two other tubes that monitor cardiovascular activity.

Peterson said Clark has not directly said how he feels about having an artificial heart, but "indirectly he has indicated twice that he prefers this noble experiment to the graceful death."

Sentenced In Fatal Wounding

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A Marine corporal was sentenced to four months imprisonment at hard labor after a court martial convicted him of negligence in the fatal wounding of a woman.

Brian K. Brown, 22, of Jeffersonville, Ind., also was ordered to forfeit $300 per month for four months. An additional penalty of $200 per month was suspended for six months. Brown's confinement was deferred pending review of the case by division commander Maj. Gen. Alfred M. Gray Jr.

Brown was gun section chief during an exercise when a 155 mm. Howitzer fired two rounds with a faulty charge. The shell went past the target area near Camp Lejeune, and a piece of shrapnel hit Mrs. Teresa Slovik.

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — It's the first day of winter — a season of beauty and sport to some, of chills, sniffling and hardship to others — a season that refuses to be ignored.

Winter officially began at 11:39 p.m. EST Tuesday, according to astronomers.

Skiers will pray for snow. So will children hoping to get an unscheduled holiday from school. People who travel regularly will dread the inconvenience and dangers winter weather brings. Those who can't afford sufficient heat for their homes will fear for their lives.

"More people died last year from extreme winter cold than from any other weather phenomena, including hurricanes, floods and tornadoes," said Dr. Richard Hallgren, director of the National Weather Service.

Weather Service officials reported that winter claimed 350 lives last year, and cost the nation more than $8 billion.

The sudden sharp cold snap last January, after a relatively mild fall, was blamed for the unusually high death toll.

But it was typical of recent winters. During 1977 and 1978 the winter weather-related death toll was 650 people.

The numbers would drop if people took safety precautions, prepared for the cold and heeded warnings, Hallgren said.

Violent temperature changes caused by cold fronts sometimes catch the unwary off guard.

The record dip occurred between Jan. 23 and Jan. 24, 1916 at Browning, Mont., when the thermometer showed a drop of 100 degrees Fahrenheit, from 44 degrees on one day to 56 below zero the next.

On Jan. 22, 1943 it was a moderate 54 degrees at 9 a.m. in Spearfish, S.D. But 27 minutes later the temperature had plummeted to minus 4 degrees, a 58 degree drop.

There were 75 record low temperatures recorded across the country during the most severe cold snap of last winter.

In January, snow cover reached record proportions when 75 percent of the surface of North America was blanketed in white.

Prospect Creek in northern Alaska holds the nation's cold weather record at minus 79.6 degrees, recorded Jan. 23, 1971. In the 48 conterminous states, Rogers Pass, Mont., holds the record with a Jan. 10, 1954 reading of minus 69.7. Among the 50 states only Hawaii has never experienced temperatures below zero. That state's all-time low was 14, on Jan. 2, 1961.

In preparation for this winter, Hallgren suggests that people keep an emergency supply of food on hand in case of severe storms. He said warm clothing should always be kept available and batteries should be fresh for radios and flashlights.

Weather experts warn against overexertion in the cold. Every year heart attacks fell dozens of people shoveling snow.

The Weather Service maintains local radio stations across the country that broadcast weather reports continually. They offer vital warnings of a storm's approach. Commercial broadcasters also provide warnings and forecasts.

Most people understand the terms used in these warnings, even if they don't know the exact definitions. Here are the weather service definitions of some phrases that will be heard.

—Blizzard: strong winds with large amounts of falling or blowing snow. The winds are at least 35 mph.

—Freezing rain or drizzle: rainfall that freezes on landing, forming a coating of ice.

—Sleet: frozen raindrops.

—Snow: when used without a qualifying word, it means steady snow falling for several hours.

—Snow flurries: intermittent snow with little accumulation.

—Snow squalls: brief intense snowfalls with gusting winds.

—Heavy snow warning: a snowfall of at least four inches in 12 hours or six inches in 24 hours.

—Traveler's Advisory: a warning of hazardous driving conditions caused by snow, sleet, freezing rain, fog or other weather condition.

No Diaries Or Notes For Book

NEW YORK (AP) — Lord Laurence Olivier says he had no diaries or notes to work from when he began writing his memoirs, so he had to rely on his "memory telescope."

The 75-year-old British actor's just-published autobiography, "Confessions of an Actor," describes his life from his schoolboy acting days, his marriage to actress Vivien Leigh and his prolonged period of stage fright.

"The whole idea of keeping a diary is one hell of a bore," Olivier is said in an interview with The New York Times. "I would write in my diary, 'First rehearsal, 2:30, first performance, 8 o'clock,' and I wouldn't say what the play was."

So at the urging of his wife, Joan Plowright, he just sat down at the typewriter and began writing.

"I did up to 1942 straight from my memory in the pure conviction that it was correct."

Trip Cancelled By Eye Problem

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A chronic eye problem has forced comedian Bob Hope to cancel any Christmas shows for U.S. troops in Lebanon, according to his spokesman.

"He is not going to be able to go at this time," spokesman Ken Kantor said Tuesday. "The doctors said he absolutely must take it easy for a month or so."

"It breaks my heart that I'm not going," Hope, 79, was quoted as saying by Kantor. Kantor said Hope, who has been doing Christmas shows for U.S. troops abroad since World War II, still plans to entertain the servicemen in Lebanon, but doesn't know when.

The comedian's right eye became infected by blood from a small vein washing over his retina. Hope has undergone surgery for the problem four times in the past 24 years.

CIA Files Offer Some Secrets Of Early History

By ROBERT PARRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Top U.S. intelligence and military officials assured Congress in secret testimony 35 years ago that the CIA wouldn't spy on Americans and thus safeguards against such action were unnecessary.

"I would not try to be too specific," said Allen Dulles, a top U.S. intelligence operative in World War II and later director of the CIA. "It is a delicate field, and you cannot be too specific" about restrictions on CIA activities. The testimony of Dulles and other officials, given June 27, 1947, and released Tuesday by the House Intelligence Committee, reflects many of the same concerns that later became the focus of congressional investigations in the mid-1970s into CIA spying against Americans.

At the secret hearing, Dulles also testified that 10 percent of German military intelligence was helping the United States during World War II.

The aid provided by the Abwehr, the Nazis' military intelligence arm, included "some of the first information we had about the German development of the guided missiles," such as the V-1 "buzz bomb," a subsonic jet, and later the V-2 rocket, Dulles said.

The House Committee on Expenditures held the closed hearing to take testimony on the proposed National Security Act, the 1947 law that created the Central Intelligence Agency.

At the hearing, several committee members expressed concern that the CIA might grow into an American "Gestapo." Although the bill barred the agency from a police or internal security role, specific guidelines on the CIA's functions were left to a presidential executive order.

"That is one of the weaknesses in this bill that we have before us," said Rep. Clarence J. Brown, R-Ohio, father of current Rep. Clarence J. Brown. "Nobody knows what those functions are...."

"The Congress, as the representatives of the people, has a duty and a responsibility to guarantee the protection of those people and their rights and privileges under the Constitution."

But Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, then-chief of the Air Force, said that since the CIA's clear role was foreign intelligence, there was nothing in the bill "that can possibly affect any of the privileges of the people of the United States."

In 1976, a Senate investigation found that in the late 1960s, the CIA directed intelligence operations against anti-Vietnam War protesters and other dissident groups in the United States.

The investigation also discovered that the CIA had for years been opening U.S. mail.

Despite the disclosures, congressional attempts in the late 1970s to put into law restrictions on CIA activities failed, and the only detailed guidelines on the agency's actions still are left to presidential orders.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., a House Intelligence Committee member, announced the declassification and release of the testimony, saying that although it contained "nothing really exciting," it had historical value.

Also, in the 1947 testimony, Peter Vischer, a World War II intelligence officer, said Army intelligence had learned two months earlier that Italian dictator Benito Mussolini would be ousted, but discarded the report because it could not be confirmed.

On the penetration of German intelligence, Rep. Walter Judd, R-Minn., asked Dulles, "Is it not true that Adm. (Wilhelm) Canaris ... was your agent?"

Canaris directed the Abwehr from 1934 to 1943. He was hanged by the Gestapo for alleged complicity in the July 20, 1944 bomb plot against Hitler.

"That is going a little far," Dulles answered. "I had working with me several of the men in Canaris' organization and I was in direct touch with Canaris."

Judd asked, "Then it is too much to say he was your agent, but he was giving you intelligence and he and his men were assisting you?"

"That is correct," Dulles answered. "About 10 percent of the Abwehr, as it is called, was involved."

"About 10 percent of the Abwehr or German counterintelligence became anti-Nazi," Dulles said. "They became disgusted with Hitler's activities against the Russians and his treatment of the Russians and, as a result, it was possible to penetrate the Abwehr."

The German rocket and atomic research facilities were at Peenemunde, an island in the Baltic Sea. They were heavily damaged by British bombers in the fall of 1943.

Dulles was a top operative in Switzerland of the Office of Strategic Services, the predecessor of the CIA. He directed the CIA from 1953 to 1961.

Dix Workers Fight Closure

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt will make a decision about what the state plans to do with the Dorothea Dix Hospital in the next few weeks, an aide says.

Hunt met with 10 of the hospital's employees and parents of 16 patients in two closed sessions Tuesday. Those who met with Hunt urged him to keep the 126-year-old mental facility open because it provides unique services.

Parents of some patients told Hunt they were concerned that a facility be kept open to treat their children. They said not all of them were ready to return to their communities for treatment.

The governor will meet today with Raleigh and Wake County government officials and members of the Wake County legislative delegation. He also will meet with residents of neighborhoods near Dix.

Melvin L. Whitley, a hospital employee and chairman of the Save Dorothea Dix Committee said after Tuesday's meeting with Hunt that he asked for a moratorium until a statewide operational audit is done on the state's mental health facilities.

"We want a comprehensive check to see where we can get the better dollar," Whitley said.

Whitley said Dix should remain open because it offers research programs to universities across the nation — a unique service among state hospitals of its kind.

He said the employees were concerned about Hunt's decision because many of them "have given their whole lives to the job. The patients are like an extended family for them." Gary Pearce, a spokesman for Hunt, said the governor would make a decision during the next several weeks.

Pearce said the meeting helped Hunt get a better understanding of why they feel the hospital shouldn't be the one picked out to be closed.

Dr. Sarah Morrow, state secretary of human resources, has recommended closing certain units at the state's oldest mental hospital, saying the state no longer needs four psychiatric facilities.

She recommended that some Dix units be transferred to other state psychiatric hospitals — Cherry in Goldsboro, Umstead in Butler and Broughton in Morganton.

The Department of Correction has said it would consider housing up to 2,000 inmates at Dix. Raleigh officials have proposed that the site be used as an industrial park combined with residential areas.

There now are about 650 patients and 1,310 employees at Dix, a 1,054-acre facility. The hospital has a $32.1 million annual budget.

After heated debate of the proposal, Hunt agreed to four one-hour meetings with employees, patients' families and hospital friends, local officials and area residents.

Sitting in on Tuesday's meetings were Pearce, budget officer John A. Williams and Emmett Burden of the North Carolina State Employees Association.

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices were mixed today, running into some resistance after Tuesday's strong rally.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by almost 2 to 1 in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

But the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 1.01 to 1,029.25 in the first half hour.

Tuesday's upsurge was attributed to falling interest rates in the credit markets, which sent government bond prices as much as $25 higher for every $1,000 in face value.

The drop in interest rates touched off speculation that a new reduction in the Federal Reserve's discount rate might be in the offing.

But many analysts questioned how much higher the stock market could go until investors got some more concrete signs of a recovery from the recession.

Comsat led the active list in early trading, unchanged at 77 1/2. The company announced a public offering of 1 million shares at that price.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 25.75 to 1,030.26.

Advances outpaced declines by about 8 to 5 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 78.01 million shares, against 62.21 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index rose 1.20 to 79.74. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.89 at 328.48.

Jerry Lewis In Good Condition

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Comedian Jerry Lewis, recovering from open-heart surgery, will be able to resume working for his "kids" with muscular dystrophy, and already is exhibiting a "good grip," according to family and friends.

"He's going to be great," said his manager, Joe Stabile. "He's going to be himself again."

The comedian was reported in good condition this morning, 24 hours after he underwent the operation.

Telephone operators at Desert Springs Hospital said the switchboard was flooded with calls from well-wishers.

"Our prayers are with him and his family," long-time friend Sammy Davis Jr. said from Los Angeles.

Lewis, 56, entered the hospital Monday with chest pains. Tests revealed a blockage in arteries leading to his heart and he underwent two hours of double-bypass surgery that began before dawn Tuesday.

His recovery has been "excellent" and there were no complications from surgery, hospital spokeswoman Barbara Scarantino said. "The prognosis is good and under normal circumstances he would be hospitalized seven to 10 days."

Four of his six sons visited their father later in the day. One of them, Chris, said Lewis had a "good grip and his eyes were wide open."

Stabile said Lewis' fiancée, whom he identified only as Sandee, was at the comedian's side before he was taken to surgery. He said the two were to be married after the first of the year.

Stabile said Lewis often works 20-hour days on his films and appearances for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and recently has been "going heavy at it." He said he was told the only restriction will be that the entertainer quit smoking.

"He had just returned from Germany where he was doing a tour to publicize his new film, 'Smorgasbord,' and was working very hard on that project," Stabile said. The comedy, written by, directed by and featuring Lewis, is scheduled for release in May.

Stabile said Lewis had planned to go to Los Angeles on Monday morning to work on that movie, but instead went to the hospital after suffering chest pains.

Craig Wood, an Muscular Dystrophy Association spokesman in New York, said he assumed Lewis' Labor Day telethons for the association would continue.

"Knowing his style as I do, he's a tough guy to hold down," Wood said. "He's a real fighter. We think he will recover beautifully."

Wood said Lewis has raised more than $300 million for the association, including $275 million from his 17 Labor Day Weekend telethons.

program for the hospital was approved. Starting this new program would cost about $400,000, the board was told.

Dr. Jack Wilkerson was welcomed as the new chief of the medical staff. Wilkerson, who will represent the medical staff on the board, succeeds Dr. William McConnell, who was recognized with the presentation of a plaque for his services to the hospital as chief of staff over the past two years.

New Senior Vice President Fred Brown also was welcomed. A contract was approved for the medical direction of pathology and diagnostic medicine services to the hospital beginning Jan. 1, 1983. The contract is with Dr. Thomas Norris, now of Seattle, Wash., who is also expected to have a medical school faculty appointment.

A resolution of reaffirmation of the hospital's affirmative action policy of employment was enacted.

The pension plan for employees of the hospital was amended to add the limitations required by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982.

Reports were given on the hospital's new employee parking program and on Christmas activities, including a concert in the lobby, decorating contests and a neonatal graduation party.

Capital expenditures of $139,310 were approved. Among the purchases are a Lektrier 80 for medical records, $16,000; expanded disc capacity pac for cat scanner for radiology, $25,000; a colonofiberscope/lecturescope and high intensity light sources for special medical services, $17,000; five bedside monitors for CCU III, $37,045; a cardiac monitor for 3 North-B, and furniture for the new education building, $30,275.

Prior to the meeting the board members had their pictures taken, had Christmas dinner and were entertained with religious Christmas music by Kelly and Brauna McClure, hospital employees who also are professional musicians.

Planning-Zoning...

Roberson said that in order to annex property, the city must decide if it is financially feasible and have cash on hand. He said contracts must be let for water and sewer services within 12 months of annexation and funds must be available.

He said there are four basic ways that annexation may be accomplished. They include: through a special act of the Legislature; by petition; through satellite measures if non-contiguous provisions are met, and by municipal ordinance on a non-petition basis.

Roberson said all of the areas considered are eligible for annexation.

In other business, the board voted to recommend that the council approve a request by Preferred Properties and Mr. and Mrs. Eugene W. Hiner to rezone 4.36 acres in Section IV of Westhaven Subdivision from R-15 to R-9 residential.

Faryce Goode, staff planner, said the purpose of the rezoning request is to make the property conform with existing zoning in the surrounding area and to create conforming lots on the western side of the property. She said the present land use involves vacant lots and one single family dwelling and is recommended for residential development in the comprehensive plan.

Commissioners endorsed an amendment to the Zoning Ordinance relative to canopies and awnings, which are not addressed in the present ordinance. Existing structures that do not meet the amended ordinance provisions would be allowed under the "grandfather" clause as non-conforming uses.

Board members elected Rick Miller to serve as vice chairman, replacing Wes Hankins, who will fill the unexpired term of Clarence Tugwell as chairman. A resolution of appreciation was adopted for Tugwell, who submitted his resignation recently.

The commission welcomed three new members - Chuck Ziehr, Les Turner and Dr. Wallace Wooles.

Rap Prices In Time Of Glut

WASHINGTON (AP) - A consumer group has asked the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to alter current contract provisions and force gas companies to buy lower-priced natural gas when it is available.

The Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition petitioned the commission Tuesday, saying that it makes no sense for gas prices to be rising during record gas surpluses. They place the blame on high take-or-pay requirements - contract provisions that require pipelines to continue paying for a certain percentage of gas whether it can take immediate delivery or not.

Many pipelines have shut down production from low cost gas wells and continued to buy the high-cost supplies with the take-or-pay requirements, passing on the higher costs to consumers.

Conley, North Pitt Gain Tourney Finals Vikings Rip Farmville By 66-45 | Bradley Sparks Panther Rally

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
D.H. Conley's Vikings, still stinging from their first defeat of the season last Friday night, did a little stinging of their own last night in the first round of the Pitt Holiday Classic at Rose High School. The Vikings romped to a 66-45 victory over Farmville Central that really could have been worse than it really was.

Conley, now 6-1, will meet North Pitt, a 53-49 victor over Rose High School in tonight's finals at 9 p.m. Rose meets Farmville, 4-4, in the 7 p.m. consolation game.

"I can't remember playing that poorly in three years," a disgusted Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell said afterwards. "We didn't play at all. I'm not taking anything away from Conley. They played well, they executed well. But this is the first time we've been blown out in three years."

And "blown out" was an apt term. The Jaguars never led in the game, shot poorly and were outbounded most of the way. Conley, meanwhile, took fine shots, hit them, and dominated the boards.

By the time it was over, Conley had hit on 26 of 41 shots from the floor, a fine 63.4 percent. Farmville, in contrast, hit on just 18 of 50 — 36.0 percent.

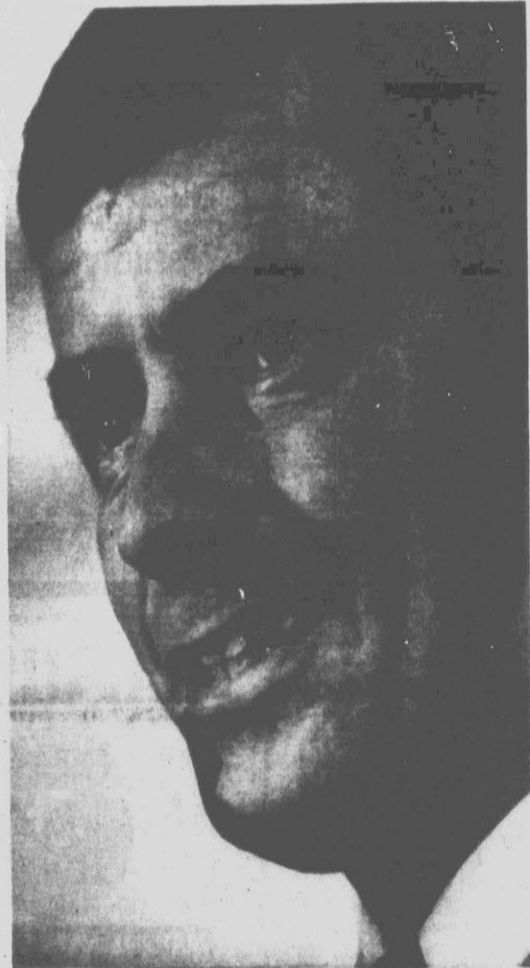

And prior to the final period, when the Jaguars made seven of 12 shots, Farmville was hitting only 28.9 percent — 11 of 38. Conley, up to that point — and thanks to an eight-of-nine performance in the third period — was connecting on 21 of 30 — a blazing 70 percent of its shots.

Conley also enjoyed a 35-28 rebounding edge. "We're finally getting into our offensive game and taking better shots," Conley coach Shelley Marsh said. "We've been concentrating a lot on defense, but tonight we looked more like a team on offense than we have before."

Marsh said he was satisfied with the defensive effort of his team, "with what they're trying to do." "We used the press not so much as to try and steal the ball but to get them out of their offensive pattern and I think it worked pretty well. Our transition from the press to man-to-man was good too, except for the last quarter. Then, we started reaching instead of moving out feet."

State Robs 'Cradle' To Get A New Coach

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State ended two weeks of searching for a head football coach by robbing the "Cradle of Coaches" and getting Tom Reed to lead the Wolfpack.

New State Coach
Tom Reed, head football coach at Miami of Ohio for the past five years, is all smiles as he is introduced as the new N.C. State football coach. Reed is the successor to Monte Kiffin, who resigned earlier this winter. Reed posted a 34-19-2 mark at Miami. (AP Laserphoto)

Reed had been head coach at Miami of Ohio for the past five seasons before he was named successor to Monte Kiffin, who resigned on Dec. 1. Coaches leaving the Redskin football program is nothing new, however. The school has produced such notables as Bo Schembechler, Woody Hayes, Paul Brown and Weeb Ewbank, thus the nickname. Another product of that program is Dick Crum, head coach at North Carolina and Reed's boss for several seasons at the Oxford, Ohio, school.

The 37-year-old Reed inherits a program that is seeking a return to prominence. A consistent challenger for Atlantic Coast Conference supremacy in the 1970s, the Wolfpack struggled under Kiffin. N.C. State compiled records of 6-5, 4-7 and 6-5 in the three years that Kiffin coached.

In his five years as head coach at Miami, Reed was 34-19-2. In his first two seasons, the Redskins were second in the Mid-American Conference. After a 5-6 campaign in 1980, his only losing season, the team climbed to 6-5 in 1981 and an 8-2-1 finish this season.

Additionally, Reed's already done what Kiffin was unable to do — beat Crum and North Carolina. The Redskins took a 7-3 victory in 1978 in Chapel Hill.

During a news conference, Reed made it clear he had some lofty goals for Wolfpack football. "I think a goal is to develop this football team to be competitive every week next fall," Reed said. "Down the road, without a question, the goal is to win the Atlantic Coast Conference championship as soon as possible."

An immediate challenge to that aim is bringing in quality athletes. Although N.C. State went two weeks without a head coach, Reed said the time lost was not detrimental to recruiting.

"I think there's been some excellent work done in the interim, therefore, I don't perceive us as far behind as you might think," said Reed. "We'll go right out and be extremely aggressive in recruiting and get after it as fast as we can."

Reed said he'll attempt to keep his recruiting as regional as possible, ruling out any efforts to lure players out of his native Ohio, the state he recruited for 16 years. "I see right here as the key area for us," he said. "North Carolina first, move north to Virginia, Georgia, possibly go into Florida some. If you have to go out and search talent across the country, I don't think you're going to be consistently good."

Another stumbling block is the NCAA's investigation into alleged recruiting problems. "You have felonies and you have parking violations," Reed added. "I perceive everything here to be of a minor nature. It had absolutely no impact at all on my decision." Details of Reed's contract still are being hammered out, he said, but he intimated that something beyond three years, the length of Kiffin's contract, would be suitable. "North Carolina State wanted some continuity, some longevity. They wanted that

Tar Heels Win, But Wolfpack Falls

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State gave 14th-ranked Louisville a run for its money but the Wolfpack came out a little short, while North Carolina managed to chalk up a road victory behind Michael Jordan's last minute heroics Tuesday night.

Although Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano was not happy that his 15th-ranked club lost a 57-52 decision at Louisville, Valvano was satisfied that his team played well in a difficult road game.

"I'm disappointed we didn't win but I'm not discouraged," Valvano said. "I'm pleased with the way we played in our first time on the road in what was surely a hostile environment."

"I still think we are one of the best teams in America, but there are 100 good ones," Valvano said.

Louisville, now 8-1, proved it is one of those good ones.

Charles Jones scored 17 points and freshman Jeff Hall came off the bench to provide a second-half spark to lead the Cardinals to victory.

The Wolfpack jumped out to a big lead behind the hot shooting of senior guard De-reck Whittenburg. Whittenburg had 18 points in the first half as N.C. State led most of the first half.

But Louisville battled to a 33-33 halftime tie. Jones and Hall each scored four points in a 12-4 Louisville run early in the second half that put the Cardinals on top 48-41.

Hall, who finished with eight points, helped key an aggressive Louisville defense that held the Wolfpack, 4-1, to less than 35 percent shooting in the second half after they shot 56 percent in the first 20 minutes.

He held Whittenburg to just four second half points as he led N.C. State in scoring with 22. Thurl Bailey added 13 for the Wolfpack.

Rodney McCray was the only other Louisville player in double figures with 11 points. McCray had a game-high nine rebounds.

North Carolina also came away with a road victory Tuesday as Michael Jordan scored 7 points in the game's final 66 seconds and blocked a shot to pace the Tar Heels to a comeback 73-66 victory over Tennessee-Chattanooga.

Jordan, a sophomore forward who wound up the game's high scorer with 27 points, tallied a 3-point play to put North Carolina, 5-3, ahead 67-64 with just over a minute to play. He then scored on a stuff shot, blocked a shot at the other end and sank two free throws. He entered the game as the Tar Heels' leading scorer with 19.9 points per game.

Sam Perkins and Matt Doherty scored 16 points each for North Carolina, which was playing for the first time in years without being ranked as a top 20 club.

Jordan's performance overcame dazzling shooting by Tennessee-Chattanooga's Willie White, who scored his season-high of 26 points on the strength of 9 of 13 floor shooting in the first half.

The Moccasins, who slipped to 6-2, built their biggest lead of the game at 36-30 with 1:12 remaining in the first half when Chris McCray stole the ball and scored on a drive.

The Mocs led 38-34 at halftime.

Coach Dean Smith said UT-C was as good as several of the teams which defeated

UNC earlier this year.

"We're very happy to have won the game against an outstanding team," Smith said. "I would rank Chattanooga with teams the caliber of St. John's and Missouri."

In the only game involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams tonight, Wake Forest is at home against Robert Morris.

Edenton Downs Williamston

WILLIAMSTON — Edenton High School held off Williamston to gain a pair of Northeastern Conference basketball victories last night in the final pre-holiday action for the Tigers.

Edenton's girls downed Williamston, 44-36, while the boys' followed that with a 22-11 win.

The loss dropped the Williamston boys to 2-6 overall and 1-4 in Northeastern play. The Lady Tigers are now 2-6, 2-3.

Williamston inched out into a 14-13 lead in the first period of the boys' game, but couldn't hold it. Edenton came back with a 22-11 margin in the second quarter, storming out to a 35-25 lead at the half.

Williamston rallied in the third period, 14-6, and trailed by only two, 41-39, going into the final quarter. But Edenton prevailed, 7-5, in that period, to take the win.

Robert Coe field led the Aces with 14 points, while David Walker added 10. Williamston was led by David Little with 13 while Donnell Griffin had 12.

The girls' game saw Edenton take a 10-6 lead after one period. Williamstons stayed close, however, and the Lady Aces led, 20-17, at the end of the half.

Jaguars Win Two Weights

LUMBERTON — Two members of the Farmville Central wrestling team won championships at the Lumberton Invitational Wrestling Tournament yesterday.

Joel Shackelford and Jerry Foreman both won their individual weight classes.

In addition, Shackelford was named the tournament's Most Outstanding Wrestler.

Other information on the tournament was unavailable.

Elgin Baylor of the Los Angeles Lakers set an NBA record for points scored in a playoff game with 61 against the Boston Celtics in 1967.

Disillusionment Led To Career

MISSION, Kan. (AP) — Marcia Morey says the disillusionment that followed the end of her athletic career is one reason she became the first woman investigator in the cloak-and-dagger world of NCAA enforcement.

"After I was finished athletically, it was a tremendous disappointment to realize my value as a human being was not what I thought it was," she said. "My value was pretty much athletically related."

Deans said.

It wasn't all good news, however. Hines was injured in the third period and at first it was feared he had a broken ankle, but it turned out to be a bad sprain, which will keep him sidelined for several weeks.

That made Deans philosophical: "I'd rather let them have the win and have Greg back," he said.

North Pitt took the initial lead, scoring the first four points. Rose came back to tie it at 4-4 and 6-6 before a three-point play by Walston put the Rampants ahead, 9-6, for the first time. They stretched that out to 17-12 before the period ended.

Rose continued to lead by as much as seven points throughout half of the second quarter. But in the final four minutes, Bradley led the Panthers in a rally that cut the lead back to two, 25-23, before Eventually, she realized it was not a unique experience among athletes. And, after completing work on a law degree at the University of Illinois, she was hired in September as the first woman on the NCAA's investigative staff.

"I feel the NCAA works for ideals," the 27-year-old native of Decatur, Ill., said in an interview. "We're all concerned with people. We're concerned about life after the competition is over, and seeing that they're well-rounded people who are able to pursue their academic talents to the utmost as well as their athletic talents."

"The job just fell from heaven, almost literally. Another woman law student had just returned from an interview and I happened to overhear her conversation. I immediately went to a pay phone and applied for the job."

A summa cum laude graduate of Millikin University in Decatur, she holds a master's degree as well as a law degree.

Competing in the 100 and 200-meter breaststroke, she won silver and bronze medals at the world swimming championships in Cali, Colombia in 1975 and the following year co-captained the American women's team in the Montreal Olympics.

She's already begun work on about a dozen cases, mostly involving women's programs. "She's not limited to women's issues, but that's her main priority right now," said Bill Hunt, head of the NCAA enforcement division. "I think she would like to just come in

Jaguars. "We didn't play good defense, we didn't hustle and we played poorly overall."

As to whether the Jaguars could rebound against Rose, Terrell said, "That's up to them."

and do the job and not be singled out as our first female investigator. She's a very idealistic person. She's putting a lot of enthusiasm and energy into her job."

One of the first things Ms. Morey learned is that people seldom have a warm greeting for NCAA investigators, no matter what their sex.

"I say, 'I'm with the NCAA enforcement staff,' and suddenly it's like I have leprosy, or I'm a tax auditor," she said. "I'm not used to that kind of reaction from people, not at all. They're sometimes very reticent, and very suspicious. I have a business card that says 'Enforcement Representative,' and before I give it to people I usually scratch in with pencil, 'Friendly Enforcement Representative.'"

She says she's encountered no problems being the lone woman in a male-dominated arena.

"I was the only girl on my block growing up, playing army, and I learned all about male language as the only female on an all-male swimming team," she said with a laugh. "I don't believe there will be any problems. We're all human beings."

Garvey Signs Big Pact With Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Steve Garvey, his 34th birthday brightened by a five-year contract worth a possible $2 million a year, wants to repay the San Diego Padres with a pennant in 1983.

Shortly after signing the guaranteed $6.6 million contract, the former Los Angeles Dodger first baseman predicted a National League Western Division title for the rising Padres in the "very, very near future."

During the news conference Tuesday, club President Ballard Smith said the Padres paid a heavy price for the eight-time all-star, but called it "a case of desperately wanting Steve to play for us."

Part of Garvey's lucrative package is reportedly being underwritten by Ray Kroc, the ailing 80-year-old owner and founder of McDonald's fast-food empire.

"We desperately wanted to provide a ballclub that Ray could be proud of," said Smith, Kroc's son-in-law.

Calling it "the most difficult decision" of his career, Garvey, who has admitted having political plans after baseball, said staying in California was a major consideration.

"My heart is here in Southern California," said Garvey, who became a free agent at the end of the season after 12 years with the Dodgers.

He chose San Diego over the Chicago Cubs, San Francisco Giants, New York Yankees and Houston Astros — with the Cubs and Giants going down to the wire in the bidding war.

Garvey, a lifetime .301 hitter in 12 big league seasons, declined to say if the Padres' offer was the best one he received.

Manager Dick Williams, who directed the Padres to a fourth-place finish in 1982, said the acquisition of Garvey automatically moves San Diego a notch higher and "throws us right into a contender's role."

Williams said he tentatively plans to bat Garvey "third or fourth" in the lineup, between Sixto Lezcano and Terry Kennedy, the Padres two top power hitters.

He said the Padres were "in dire need" of a slugging first baseman.

Garvey has averaged 21 home runs and 98 runs batted in the last nine seasons.

At one point during the press conference, Garvey drew cheers when he said San Diego would have a title by next fall.

Closing the book on his Dodger days, he said Los Angeles represented "a long chapter in my life. Now that chapter has closed."

If his consecutive game streak of 1,107 games stays intact, he would break the National League record held by Billy Williams on April 15 at Dodger Stadium.

That meeting, his first against his former teammates, would be "an emotional series," he said.

The guaranteed portion of Garvey's contract is for $6.6 million, but The Associated Press learned that the deal includes individual and attendant bonuses of $575,000 per year.

If Garvey were to collect on all of the bonuses, the contract's value would balloon to $9.475 million per year.

His agent, Jerry Kapstein, would not comment on details, but a source close to the negotiations said Garvey would earn no less than $1.5 million per year.

The Dodgers had offered a four-year contract for $5 million. Garvey earned $361,000 last year in the final season of six-year, $1.97-million contract.

Smith said the Padres initially wondered "whether we could afford him," but changed their minds after meeting Garvey and reviewing the club's needs.

"We're signing him because the potential rewards are great," he said, adding that with Garvey the club expects to draw two million fans in 1983. The club attendance mark is 1.6 million, set in 1978 when the Padres went over the 500 mark for the only time in their history.

Garvey, who began his baseball career as a batboy for the Dodgers at spring training in Florida, has not missed a game since Sept. 1, 1975. His consecutive streak is the fourth longest in major league history.

He enters the 1983 season with 211 home runs and 992 runs batted in, six 200-hit seasons, seven 300 seasons and career highs of 33 home runs and 115 RBI, both in 1977.

Padres' reserve second baseman Tim Lincecum gave up his uniform number in order that Garvey get his familiar No. 6.

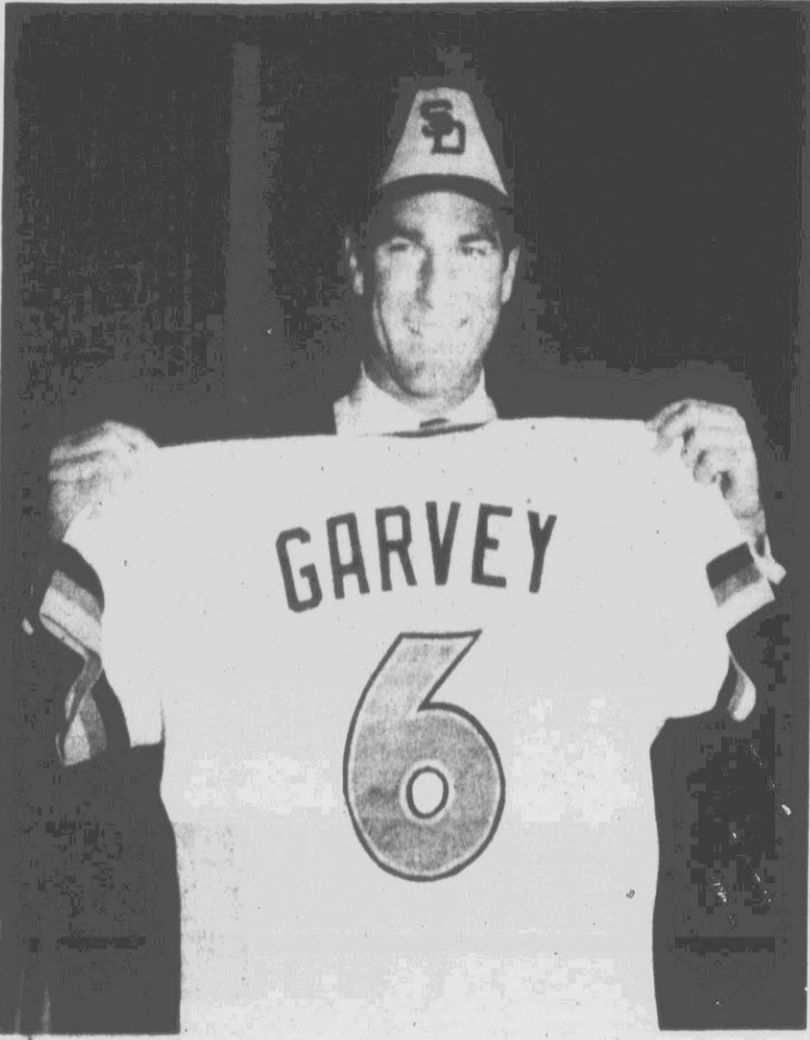

The addition of Garvey was welcomed by his new teammates.

"It's a great Christmas present," said veteran utilityman Kurt Bevacqua. "It's like finding the missing piece of a puzzle. He fits. I'm not saying we're going to win a pennant next year, but this is a major step to put in position to do it."

Shortstop Garry Templeton said Garvey brings leadership to the Padres and solidifies an already outstanding defensive infield.

"He's going to win games for us on offense and save a lot of games for us on defense," said Templeton.

Greene Central Fails To Hold Lead; Drops Sixth

STANTONSBURG — Greene Central's hapless Rams, still looking for their first win, continued to come ever closer, but Wilson Beddingfield handed them their sixth loss in a row last night, 40-35.

Earlier, Greene Central's girls upped their record to 5-1 with a 33-31 win over the Lady Bruins.

Beddingfield edged ahead in the first period of the boys' game, 11-8, but Greene Central came back to close the gap to just one point by the end of the half, 18-17.

In the third quarter, Greene Central moved ahead, taking a 27-25 lead into the final period. In that, the Rams moved out by five points with 5:19 left in the contest, but a three-point play by Darrin Bynum cut the gap back to two, and the Rams committed three straight turnovers after that that allowed the Bruins to take the lead and hold it.

Baron Burks led Beddingfield's scoring with 16 points while Bynum added ten. James Thompson had 11 to lead the Rams.

In the girls' game, Beddingfield zoomed out to a 14-7 lead in the first period, but Greene Central held the Lady Bruins to only two points in the second quarter. The Lady Rams scored 11 of their own to take an 18-16 lead at the half.

In the third period, Greene Central inched one more point out, taking a 25-22 lead.

In the final period, Beddingfield stayed close, and had the chance to take the lead, trailing by one, 32-31, with a one-and-one opportunity. However, the Bruins missed, then missed on a shot off the rebound before Cindy Hicks came up with the second loose ball and was fouled. She made the first of two free throws for the 33-31 lead with four seconds to play.

Hicks led the Lady Ram scoring with 10 points, while S. Woods had 13 to lead Beddingfield.

Rules Change Could Help Land U.S. A Medal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A change in international rules to allow professionals to participate in the Olympics and the creation of a new Team America franchise in the North American Soccer League could land the United States a medal in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

John Kerr, executive director of the North American Soccer League's Players' Association, said Tuesday creation of a professional team of American players could result in a medal for the Americans.

"I am confident a team of American professionals could compete with 75 percent of the teams in the world," Kerr said. "And with the proper training and playing at home in 1984 I would not be surprised to see the U.S. reach the final four."

The executive committee of the International Federation of Football Associations (FIFA) has proposed allowing professional soccer players to participate in the Olympics.

NASL officials are close to reaching agreement with an undisclosed private investor and corporate sponsors to bankroll a professional team of native-born Americans.

The Associated Press has learned of agreement on a contract in principle for 15 home games to be played in 55,000-seat Robert F. Kennedy Memorial Stadium in the nation's capital. The stadium was the former home of the NASL's defunct Washington Diplomats soccer franchise.

The NASL begins its regular season on April 27.

Team America, a joint venture of the NASL and the United States Soccer Federation, would serve as the U.S. national team to develop American players for world competition.

"We would hope to have all the pieces for Team America completed and the puzzle put together by early January," said NASL chief executive Howard Samuels.

Samuels added that if the team is formed, former New York Cosmos and Washington Diplomat coach Gordon Bradley would be involved in the project.

"When I presented Gordon's name for consideration to both the local interests and the prospective investors it was unanimously accepted," Samuels said.

Samuels said the NASL, which has been reduced from 24 to 12 teams in the last two years and reportedly lost $25 million in 1982, needs a competitive Olympic team if soccer is to succeed as a pro sport.

"Pro soccer will never be considered a major sport in this country until we can prove we can play on the world level," he said.

Leahy Gains Coach's Nod

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (AP) — "I have made my decision and Pat Leahy is our kicker," said New York Jets Coach Walt Michael Tuesday.

Leahy, a nine-year National Football League veteran, has been in a slump lately. In the last four games, Leahy has missed five of 12 extra points and five of 10 field goal attempts.

Leahy missed an extra point in the Jets' 20-19 loss to Miami last Saturday. He also kicked a 49-yard field goal which gave New York a 19-17 advantage in the fourth quarter.

Daile Returns, Leads Bulls To Win

By The Associated Press
Scorn is turning to cheers for Quintin Dailey, who has had his share of problems in his rookie season in the National Basketball Association. Dailey, who succumbed to the stress of playing in the assault of a nursing student, returned to the Chicago lineup Tuesday night and scored 18 points on 8-of-12 shooting as the Bulls beat the Atlanta Hawks 124-116 in double overtime.

Dailey had missed six games and was under the care of a psychiatrist before his return. The object of criticism and protest since the Bulls chose him in the first round of this year's college draft, Dailey got a loud ovation at Chicago Stadium when he entered the game for the first time in the second quarter. He hit his first four shots and later became a key factor in Chicago's victory, twice forcing overtimes with 20-foot jumpers.

Moses Malone scored a 114-109 advantage before Atlanta scored. David Greenwood was 0-for-10 from the field for Chicago but led the Bulls in rebounding with 15. Dominique Wilkins scored 24 points and Dan Roundfield and Rory Sparrow 22 each for Atlanta.

Maurice Cheeks, who had 22 points for the 76ers, defused the rally. Suns 114, Spurs 113. Kyle Macy, who scored all eight of his points in the fourth quarter, hit a 15-foot jump shot with 39 seconds remaining to give Phoenix its narrow victory over San Antonio.

Thompson had 12 points in the third quarter, and his 14-footer with 3:18 to play in that period put the SuperSonics ahead for good at 68-67. That basket started a 14-4 run that put Seattle in front 80-71. Mychal Thompson had 22 points and 20 rebounds for the Trail Blazers.

Bullets 77, Cavaliers 74. Greg Ballard scored 28 points and broke a 74-74 tie with a three-point play with 17 seconds remaining as Washington won its fourth straight. Cleveland dropped its seventh game in a row.

DiGard Team, Allison Get Miller As Sponsor

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — NASCAR driver Bobby Allison, saying he needs to load his gun with a little more "black powder," will be sponsored by The Miller Brewing Co. for the upcoming Winston Cup series.

"We had a really great year with Gatorade last year," Allison said. "But we came up a little bit short. This might offer us the opportunity to load our gun with a little more black powder."

"And with Miller's support and DiGard's preparation, I think we can do even better in 1983."

Gardner said Allison, who is expected to drive a Chevrolet Monte Carlo in 1983 when the NASCAR season begins February in Daytona, Fla., would drive under No. 22, leaving his old No. 88 to Stokely-Van Camp.

"I think the Miller High Life people are anxious to form their own identity in NASCAR and felt they should start with a clean slate," Allison said. "That's certainly fine by me. I can't remember a number ever winning a race."

Officials did not reveal the terms of the agreement or the reasons for splitting with Stokely-Van Camp. But sources said the expense of running a first-class NASCAR Grand National team, estimated at $750,000 or more, grew past Stokely-Van Camp's capabilities.

Allison, a five-time winner of NASCAR's Grand National "Most Popular Driver" award, expressed confidence in his new sponsors. "We are coming off a tremendous season," said the 19-year veteran, who has won more than 500 stock car races and $4 million in earnings.

World Free scored 10 points in the fourth quarter for Cleveland as the Cavaliers rallied to take a 71-69 lead with 3:51 remaining. Ballard then hit two straight jumpers to put the Bulls back in front.

The Milwaukee-based brewer, which sponsors the Miller High Life 500 at Charlotte Motor Speedway in October, announced a multi-year agreement with DiGard Racing Tuesday shortly after DiGard Chairman Bill Gardner was released from his contract with Stokely-Van Camp's Gatorade.

Miller has had a long involvement with auto racing. "Miller has had a long involvement with auto racing," Gardner said during a joint news conference in Charlotte Tuesday. "We are extremely pleased they have decided to go racing with us. We think their decision will be well rewarded come this time next year."

Officials did not reveal the terms of the agreement or the reasons for splitting with Stokely-Van Camp. But sources said the expense of running a first-class NASCAR Grand National team, estimated at $750,000 or more, grew past Stokely-Van Camp's capabilities.

Allison finished second in the NASCAR point standings in 1981 and 1982, when he won 13 races and earned more than $400,000. Allison hinted money was a reason for the switch, in a reference he made to last season's second-place finish behind Darrell Waltrip in the Grand National point standings.

Warriors 92, Rockets 85. Purvis Short led the winners with 24 points and Golden State outscored Houston 25-9 in the first quarter en route to victory.

The Rockets, who got 23 points from Joe Bryant, managed to take a 45-42 edge in the third period.

Walton Gets OK To Play A Little

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bill Walton got the go-ahead from his doctors Tuesday to begin playing twice a week for the San Diego Clippers and possibly go fulltime in mid-January, team officials said.

The 6-foot-11 Walton, attempting a comeback after about a year and a half on the sidelines with a painful foot injury, got the OK from his doctors after undergoing an examination Tuesday in Los Angeles.

Currently, Walton plays center just once a week for the Clippers while testing his three-fractured left foot to see if it could withstand the stresses of playing in the National Basketball Association.

"This is a big step for us and it's a good day for Bill," said Clippers General Manager Paul Phipps. "The foot showed no problem. We're very pleased because that's what he wanted."

Walton has appeared in seven games so far this year and has grabbed 68 rebounds while averaging 13.4 points. But the Clippers are 0-7 in the games that Walton has played.

Warriors 92, Rockets 85. Purvis Short led the winners with 24 points and Golden State outscored Houston 25-9 in the first quarter en route to victory.

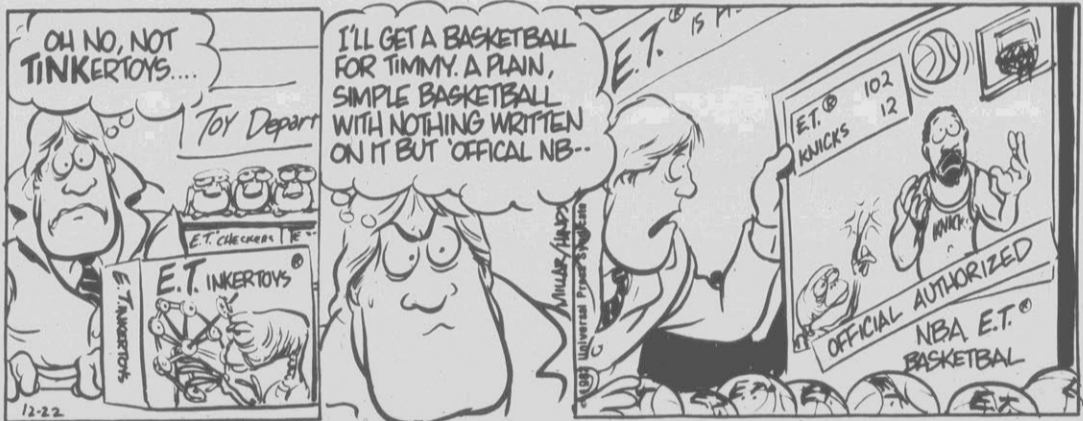

The Rockets, who got 23 points from Joe Bryant, managed to take a 45-42 edge in the third period.

Stetson Surprises Mountainers

By The Associated Press
Bill Thompson is the most heralded of Louisville's freshman, but it was another frosh, Jeff Hall, who sparked the 14th-ranked Cardinals to victory over No. 15 North Carolina State.

Thompson, 6-foot-8 from Camden, N.J., scored only two points, while Hall, 6-4 from Fairview, Ky., came off the bench Tuesday night to spark Louisville to a homecourt 57-52 triumph, its eighth in nine college basketball games this season.

Hall, who was the second schoolboy to announce his attentions to attend Louisville after Thompson, scored eight points — hitting all four shots from the field — in the second half and helped key the Cardinals' defense which shut down the Wolfpack in the second half.

In other games involving the Top Twenty, No. 12 Arkansas rallied to edge Southern Mississippi 64-62; unbeaten Stetson upset No. 16 West Virginia 79-69, and No. 17 Las Vegas-Nevada advanced the final of the Rebel Roundup in Las Vegas against Baylor by ripping Long Island University 101-78.

"I've been looking for some help from the bench and Jeff Hall came in and really picked up the slack," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum.

Louisville needed help because Lancaster Gordon, its leading scorer, hit only one of five shots and finished with five points.

Hall said, "Something I try to do is come in and give the team some spark." The teams were tied at halftime 33-33 as North Carolina State shot 56 percent from the field before intermission.

The Wolfpack shot only 35 percent in the second half and suffered its first loss in five starts.

Charles Jones, 6-8 junior, led the Cardinals with 17 points. Rodney McCray was the only other Louisville player in double figures, scoring 11 points. He also grabbed nine rebounds.

Dereck Whittenburg, who scored 18 points in the first half, finished with 22 for the Wolfpack.

Arkansas boosted its record to 7-0 as Darrell Walker scored 18 points, including the go-ahead goal, against visiting Southern Mississippi, 6-2.

The Razorbacks tied the score at 52 on John Snively's 20-footer. Snively then stole a pass which led to Walker's go-ahead basket.

Arkansas went up by six points on two free throws by Ricky Norton with 25 seconds left and hung on. "They're the best team we've played," Razorback coach Eddie Sutton said.

Kenny Bailey paced Southern Mississippi with 22 points.

Frank Burnell scored 21 points and Glynn Myrick 19 as host Stetson, 7-0, never trailed and dealt West Virginia its first setback in nine games. Greg Jones led the Mountaineers with 22 points.

Burnell said it was "the biggest win in Stetson's history. Now everyone will know we're good."

Sidney Green scored 25 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in leading Nevada-Las Vegas over LIU. Larry Anderson added 23 for the Runnin' Rebels, while Todd Person paced LIU with 21 points.

Jay Shakir's 19 points, 13 rebounds and six assists gave Baylor a 71-66 victory over Morehead State in the opening game of the Rebel Roundup.

Meanwhile, defending NCAA champion North Carolina, which dropped from the rankings this week, got seven points from sophomore Michael Jordan in the final 66 seconds and beat host Tennessee-Chattanooga 73-66.

Jordan scored 27 points and Sam Perkins and Matt Doherty 16 apiece for the Tar Heels, now 5-3. UT-Chattanooga dropped to 6-2.

Unbeaten San Diego State, with 19 points from Eddie Morris, routed Howard (D.C.) 89-61, and another unbeaten, Boston College romped over Fairfield behind 24 points from Martin Clark and 20 each from Jay Murphy and Michael Adams. Both teams raised their records to 7-0.

In other games, Darrell Browder scored 21 points in helping Texas Christian to a 77-52 win over previously unbeaten Colorado; Ohio State crushed Holy Cross 81-60 behind Tony Campbell's 22 points; Mississippi, led by Carlos Clark's 24 points, topped Illinois Wesleyan 77-65; Devin Durrant scored 26 points in a 66-52 victory by Brigham Young over Providence, and Pat Marshall's goal with 15 seconds left earned St. Joseph's (Pa.) a 65-63 victory over Bradley. Londell Owens' desperation shot at the buzzer earned Kent State a 66-65 win over Pepperdine; Leon Wood paced 7-1 Fullerton State over Portland 55-54; Bobby Jones' 21 points powered Western Kentucky over Dayton 68-58, Oklahoma State, led by Leroy Combs' 21 points and 13 rebounds, took the Blade-Glass City Classic by defeating host Toledo 76-69; Southwestern Louisiana won the Wolf Pack Classic 69-63 over Nevada-Reno and Ball State captured the Cardinal Club Varsity Classic, downing Louisiana Tech 81-77.

Weekend's Play Could Put Five Into Playoffs

By The Associated Press
Five teams, four of them from the American Conference, can clinch National Football League postseason playoff berths with victories this weekend.

The Cincinnati Bengals, Miami Dolphins, San Diego Chargers and New York Jets of the AFC and the Green Bay Packers of the National Conference are the teams that need victories to earn guaranteed spots in pro football's expanded playoff field.

The postseason format for 1982, altered after the 57-day players strike, eliminates division standings and counts only conference records.

In recent years, 10 teams (six division winners and four wild cards, have qualified for the playoffs. This year, the field has been expanded to 16 teams, eight from each 14-team conference.

Four teams have locked up playoff berths so far. They are the Los Angeles Raiders (6-1) in the AFC and the Dallas Cowboys (6-1), Washington Redskins (6-1) and Atlanta Falcons (5-2) in the NFC.

Just three of the 28 NFL teams have been eliminated from playoff contention. They are the Denver Broncos (2-5), Houston Oilers (1-6) and Baltimore Colts (0-6-1), all from the AFC.

That leaves 21 teams scrambling for 12 remaining postseason berths. But five of them — Kansas City in the AFC and Chicago, Philadelphia, the Los Angeles Rams and defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco in the NFC — are close to elimination with just two games remaining in the regular season shortened from 16 games to nine by the strike.

The Rams, at 1-6, are the longest of the longshots. For them to make it, they'd have to be involved in a seven-way tie at 3-6, along with New Orleans, the New York Giants, Chicago, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Tampa Bay. Conference records would then come into play as the first step in the NFL's tie-breaker system.

Dallas, Washington and the Raiders can lock up the home field in the Jan. 8-9 first round of the playoffs by winning on Sunday.

The Bengals, Dolphins, Chargers, Jets and Packers each need only one victory in their remaining two games to clinch playoff spots. All four of those AFC teams were in the playoffs a year ago, with the Bengals reaching Super Bowl XVI. The Packers, though, are bidding for their first playoff appearance since 1972, the year Bart Starr retired as their quarterback and became their quarterback coach. He is now Green Bay's head coach.

This year, the playoffs will run four weeks, culminating with Super Bowl XVII on Jan. 30 at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif.

Wildcats And Hoosiers Clash

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Indiana-Kentucky basketball game used to be a high-scoring, physical matchup. That was in the early years of coaches Bob Knight and Joe B. Hall.

Now it's just physical. "It's always a tough game," says Hall, who brings his second-ranked Wildcats into Assembly Hall to face No. 5 Hoosiers tonight. "This will be another tough one."

Knight, hoping to break a three-game losing string against Kentucky, says the Wildcats have "an excellent team . . . the best team at this point that we've played."

Only one time since 1975 has a team scored more than 80 points in the Kentucky-Indiana showdown. That was last year, when the Wildcats beat the Hoosiers 85-69 at Rupp Arena in Lexington.

Overall, Indiana has a 13-11 advantage in the series that began in 1925 and has been waged annually since 1970.

"It'll be another tough, physical game," says Wildcat senior Derrick Hord, a 6-foot-6 forward who leads the team in scoring at 13.9 points a game. Right behind Hord is 6-5 junior guard Jim Master, averaging 13 points a game.

The Wildcats, as a team, are shooting 61.1 percent from the field, and the defense is holding the opposition to 38.3 percent shooting.

Indiana's leading scorer is 6-6 senior swingman Randy Wittman at about 20 points a game. But most of the other Hoosiers have been inconsistent, including 6-8 senior forward Ted Kitchel, the team's top scorer a year ago.

"We're not a great basketball team," says Knight. "We have to scratch, scramble and scrape. Our whole key is being smart. We have to be smart, and we really should be a smarter team than we are."

Knight is expected to start an all-senior lineup of Kitchel and Wittman at forward, 6-8 Steve Bouchie at center and 6-3 Jim Thomas and 6-2 Tony Brown at guard.

"They still play a tough man-to-man defense and a strict, hard-nosed offense," Hall says of the Hoosiers. "But they do push the ball upcourt much more than they have in the past. Their seniors include two fifth-year men (Kitchel and Wittman), it's on their home court, they want to avenge their losses against us, and they're ranked fifth in the country."

Kentucky is without injured 7-1 Sam Bowie, but the Wildcats figure to start 6-11 Melvin Turpin at center, Hord and 6-6 Charles Hurt at forward, and Master and 6-3 Dirk Minniefield at guard. The Wildcats also are missing 6-8 freshman Todd May, Kentucky's high school Mr. Basketball last season, who quit the squad last week.

It's fine and dandy to have enough tricks for your contract. Just make sure you can reach them, and that you develop them so as not to set up enough tricks for the opponents to defeat you.

South was not quite strong enough to open two no trump but too good for one no trump. He elected to open in his minor rather than his major to make it easier for his partner to respond. Because of the mild diamond fit, North might have preferred a two club response, but all roads led to the same spot. Against three no trump,

West chose to attack with his major suit rather than his minor. Declarer was one of Europe's leading players, and his play was a classic demonstration of winning rubber bridge technique. He won the first trick with the queen of hearts and immediately led the queen of spades. East took his king and persevered with hearts — no other suit would have been better.

Declarer could now count eight tricks, and he quickly set up his ninth by ducking a low club in both hands. He won the heart return, cashed the ace of spades and ran four club tricks for his contract.

Simple wasn't it? At the other table, however, declarer played the ace and queen of spades. East allowed the queen to hold. When West got in with a club, he returned a spade. East took two spade tricks and switched to a diamond — down one!

Elderly Brothers Plan A Little Pleasure With Gift

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two elderly brothers who were driven from their apartment by repeated robberies plan to "have a little pleasure" with $34,000 that people nationwide donated to replace their stolen life savings. "I am going to be a rich man," feisty Herman Konig, 85, said Tuesday from his hospital bed, where Mayor Dianne Feinstein presented him with a bank book representing the donations, which amount to 40 times the cash stolen from Konig and his

95-year-old brother, William. "I am going to spend some of that money. I am not going to let somebody else have the fun out of it," Herman said. He would like to spend some of the money to catch the robbers who beat him and his brother Dec. 4 and stole $800 from a homemade safe.

"I want them caught. I would give $1,000 of my money" if the culprits were caught, Herman said.

On Dec. 2, the brothers beat off an unarmed mugger using William's crutch and a sawed-off table leg. Earlier in the week, Herman routed a knife-wielding man by kicking him in the groin.

But when the old men were attacked in their home a third time on Dec. 4, they were overwhelmed.

"They jumped on me, I couldn't fight two," said Herman, who weighed 120 pounds and has been hospitalized since the attack. William, who is blind, was unable to fend off the two attackers after his brother went down.

The Konig brothers were to be taken today to their new home at the Veterans Home of California in Yountville, about 40 miles north of here. They will be delivered by a procession of vintage limousines.

$5 Million Dollar Bonds Set In Large Drug Bust

By WILL LESTER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Citing the high incidence of ball jumping in drug cases, a federal magistrate set $5 million bonds for four of six suspects in the richest drug bust ever in South Carolina.

"This is a jumbo bail case," said U.S. Magistrate Charles Gambrell during a hearing in Columbia Tuesday. "I have not seen a case of this magnitude. These people have access to substantial sums of money."

Federal authorities ranked the 955 pound cocaine bust among the five largest busts in the nation.

U.S. Magistrate Charles Gambrell set bond at $1 million for a fifth suspect and refused to set bond for the sixth person arrested in the case.

A preliminary hearing for the suspects was scheduled for Jan. 3 at 10:30 a.m.

All six could face charges of smuggling cocaine, conspiracy to smuggle cocaine, possession of cocaine with intent to distribute, and conspiracy to possess cocaine with intent to distribute, said McMaster, who said the federal grand jury meets in January.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Lionel Lofton said the maximum penalty for each of the four charges is 15 years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

The 955.1 pounds of cocaine seized in the Monday night arrest at Sumter County Municipal Airport had a street value ranging from $350 million to $500 million, authorities said.

"That's a white Christmas in a whole lot of counties," said Gambrell.

Those arrested by state and federal officers included former Sumter car dealer Robert Edward Lee, 48; Newby Franklin Love, 47, of Columbia; and Susan Robinson Youngblood, 40, of Stone Mountain, Ga.

Also arrested were: Luis Gonzales, 30, of Medellín, Colombia; Juan Carlos Ruiz, 20, of Miami and Hernan de Jesus Restrepo of Youngstown, Fla. The latter three are South American and are not U.S. citizens, according to McMaster.

Bond of $5 million was set for Ms. Youngblood, Restrepo, Ruiz and Gonzales. Lee's bond was set at $1 million and Gambrell said he would set no bond for Love.

Gambrell said he privately heard sworn testimony that indicated Love had "threatened the integrity of the court system." He did not elaborate.

Lee, who owns property in South Carolina and Florida, pleaded for lower bail, saying he did not have that much money and would never jump bail because his wife and daughter live in Florida. But Gambrell was skeptical.

"The last man to tell me that was gone before the ink was dry on his form. The incidence of flight in drug cases is very bad," the federal magistrate said. "Nobody goes to Woolworth's and picks up 955 pounds of cocaine."

An affidavit signed by Norman Shumard of the Drug Enforcement Administration, said authorities received information about an aircraft scheduled to land in the Sumter County airport or at an airstrip on jointly-owned Sumter County property.

The affidavit said surveillance teams watched Lee's movements from a Miami airport until he allegedly landed at Sumter County Municipal Airport about 9:45 p.m. Monday.

Information had been received from sources that Love and several others were planning a "major cocaine smuggling venture from Colombia, South America," the affidavit said.

After the twin-engine aircraft landed about 9:45 p.m. Monday, police seized Gonzales hiding in nearby bushes and caught Lee trying to speed off in a pickup truck, the affidavit said.

Twenty duffelbags of cocaine were found in the plane, police said. Agents arrested Restrepo and Ruiz in a motorhome as they were leaving the private airstrip. And Love and Ms. Youngblood were taken into custody near the private airstrip about 2 a.m., the document said.

'Koo' Again Sees Prince

LONDON (AP) — American actress Koo Stark, who took a much-publicized Caribbean holiday with Prince Andrew in October, has visited the prince again — this time at Buckingham Palace, the Daily Mirror reported today.

The tabloid paper said Andrew, second son of Queen Elizabeth II, arranged the castle meeting late Monday after flying from Balmoral, Scotland, to London earlier in the day.

There was no immediate comment from the Buckingham Palace press office.

The newspaper said Miss Stark, 26, took a taxi to the palace, spent four hours with Andrew and left at 2:15 a.m. Tuesday.

It quoted cab driver John Branch, who drove the actress to the palace, as saying: "It made my night."

Miss Stark's romance with the 22-year-old prince has caused a sensation here because she made two soft-porn movies in her teens.

Andrew and Miss Stark went on vacation for eight days to the island of Mustique after the prince, a Royal Navy sub-lieutenant, returned from duty in the Falklands war against Argentina during which he served as co-pilot of a Sea King helicopter.

The late-night tryst Monday was "the latest in a series of meetings" between the couple, the Mirror said.

Publish Leftist 'Communique'

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The government agreed to demands by leftist kidnapers of the Honduran president's daughter, permitting publication today of a statement that accuses the United States of using "puppet armies" to dominate Latin America.

Publication of the communique was the only announced condition for the release of Dr. Judith Xiomara Suazo Estrada, 33, who was kidnapped Dec. 14.

Her abductors, members of a previously unknown guerrilla group, had said she would be released within 48 hours after their statement was published in certain Mexican and Central American newspapers.

Spokesmen for the Excelsior and Uno Mas Uno newspapers in Mexico said they were printing it as a paid advertisement today.

Relatives of the victim said it also was being published in Central America, according to a government statement giving her family permission to have it printed.

Part of the 12-page communique, obtained in Mexico, said "Yankee imperialists," wealthy oligarchs and their military dictatorships exploited and dominated Latin Americans, particularly Central Americans.

All Latin American countries, the communique stated, have felt the effects of what it called U.S. domination "in the unfolding of misery, unemployment, illness and ignorance."

It accused the United States of "directing, training and arming the oligarchs' puppet armies" to keep Latin Americans subject to "exploitation and oppression" and massacre those who resist.

A section entitled "Honduras, imperialist headquarters for the invasion of Nicaragua" said Honduras was a base for invasions of Nicaragua and El Salvador and for smashing revolutions in Guatemala and the Caribbean.

The title of another section described Honduran President Roberto Suazo Cordova, father of the abducted woman, as "the buffoon of the imperialist plans."

Nicaragua charges that the United States and Honduras encourage Nicaraguan exiles fighting its leftist Sandinista government from bases in Honduras.

The communique said the purpose of the kidnapping was to get the statement published.

Dr. Suazo Estrada's kidnapers identified themselves as members of the "Pedro Diaz Command of the Revolutionary Movement of the Ixim People." "Ixim" is a Mayan Indian word meaning food. Pedro Diaz was not identified.

Guatemalan newspapers needed government permission to publish the communique because of emergency powers decreed by President Gen. Efraim Rios Montt, who says the country is under a state of siege.

The government said it was agreeing to the family's request to publish the communique for "humanitarian reasons" and would not accede to any further demands the kidnapers might make.

Earlier Tuesday, relatives said the family had asked the abductors for a delay in publishing the communique because it was not received until late Monday. The deadline given by the guerrillas had been Monday for local papers and Tuesday internationally.

Dr. Suazo Estrada, abducted as she was leaving the hospital where she works as a radiologist, is the Honduran president's daughter by his first marriage to a Guatemalan citizen and has lived in Guatemala for 20 years. She also is a Guatemalan citizen.

Review Rule On Nat'l Cemetery

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army is reviewing eligibility standards for placing the cremated remains of veterans in Arlington National Cemetery following the interment of the ashes of an anti-nuclear protestor who had threatened to blow up the Washington Monument.

Pentagon spokesman Henry Catto said at a briefing Tuesday that the review of regulations is aimed at preventing the remains of such a person from being accepted at the cemetery.

The ashes of Norman David Mayer, fatally shot by police Dec. 8 after threatening to detonate 1,000 pounds of dynamite at the base of the monument, were placed in at the cemetery late last week over the formal protest of Secretary of the Army John Marsh.

Mayer was a Navy veteran. hung on the trees by contributors who write their own messages.

BUSINESS MEETING
There will be a business meeting at Brown's Chapel Holiness Church Thursday at 8 p.m.

Susan Roberts, regional Christmas Seal chairperson, said "the Forest offers the public a wonderful opportunity to find out more about lung diseases and help others through their contributions."

Urban Growth May Wipe Out American Crocodile

By JOHN THOR DAHLBURG
Associated Press Writer
KEY LARGO, Fla. (AP) — They revel in Florida's warm ocean waters, bask on its wide sandy beaches and love to cruise through expanses of lush green mangroves.

That is part of the problem for American crocodiles, now running a life-or-death race with the time-share condominiums, beach clubs and chic restaurants mushrooming on Key Largo, the northernmost islet in the archipelago stretching 101 miles southward to Key West.

It is not a race the crocodile, an endangered species in the United States, is equipped to win.

likes are the same ones people want to live on and build on," said biologist Steve Klett of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. "It's the saddest thing."

Unlike its alligator cousin, the crocodile is an American rarity, and becoming rarer. As few as 50 may remain on Key Largo and in Everglades National Park, their only American habitats.

Though known to grow to nearly 15 feet long, the American crocodile is bashful, lives a reclusive life in mangrove-lined ponds and saline pools and has an undetermined diet that may include mullet and blue crabs.

In contrast, the alligator is more resistant to noise and pollution and will feast on almost anything. A pointed snout and an elongated fourth tooth fitting into a groove on its upper jaw give the crocodile a more wicked grin than the alligator, and he is quicker on land and in water. But unlike the alligator, who likes inland canals and marshes, the crocodile prefers to be near salt water — on the same lands builders like for expensive waterfront homes.

Though basically shy, the crocodile can be vicious in combat, and can rip a large animal into pieces by thrashing its cigar-shaped body lengthwise in the water.

But, biologists say, the killer reputation of the giant reptile with the gray-green hide is unjustified.

"Crocs have gotten a bad rap from the movies, you know, where you see them slide off the banks of the Nile to go kill something," said Klett. "The American crocodile is hardly what you'd call a man-eater."

The crocodile never has been abundant in U.S. waters, and extreme South Florida and the Keys mark the northern boundary of an intercontinental habitat that extends to Ecuador and Colombia.

Once American crocodiles nested as far north as Lake Worth near Palm Beach and in Florida Bay on the state's southwestern tip. Now, biologists and wildlife lovers fear developments exploding south from Miami may cover one of the crocodiles' few remaining habitats in concrete.

"It's the 11th hour for the crocodile and other endangered species that live on Key Largo," said Don Wood of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission. "Check that: It's the last minute of the 11th hour."

In 1979, state and federal biologists compiled a plan to cordon off a preserve on North Key Largo — Crocodile Lake National Wildlife Refuge.

"People in Florida get excited about things like saving deer," said Klett. "That's good, but they forget crocodiles are animals, too, and need to be saved."

But the project, which also would have given a wild haven to the endangered Key Largo woodrat, the Key Largo cotton mouse and a species of swallowtail butterfly, bogged down when administrations changed in Washington.

"We've kind of altered course in midstream," acknowledged U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service spokesman Craig Rieben in Atlanta. "The crocodile preserve has been on hold since (Interior Secretary) James Watt said if we take care of what lands we have, we shouldn't have to buy any new ones."

Only 202 of the 7,100 acres planned for the refuge have been bought.

"I won't even speculate on the chances of the refuge going through," Rieben said.

Earlier this month, the South Florida Regional Planning Council approved the 2,806-unit Port Bougainville project at North Key Largo, the largest ever planned for the Keys.

The vote came despite vigorous protests led by The Miami Herald and environmental groups like the Izaak Walton League.

According to the newspaper, 15 other hotel, condominium and luxury home projects planned for the island could give Key Largo's northern tip 45,000 residents by the year 2000 — a larger population than Key West's in an area where only hardwood hammocks and tangled mangroves now stand.

The effect of so much growth on the wilderness and the American crocodiles that live there would be "potentially devastating," said

Paul Moler of the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission.

On Key Largo, the war to save one of America's largest reptiles may already be over, said Wood.

"We've gone on record as opposing new development, but it's probably a futile gesture on our part," he said.

LIFE-OR-DEATH — The American crocodile, designated an endangered species in the U.S., may be running a life-or-death race with the time-share condominiums, beach clubs and chic restaurants mushrooming on Key Largo. (AP Laserphoto)

Meet Standards On Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two national studies of food stamp recipients' eating habits indicated that, on the average, they meet dietary standards for many of the nutrients studied.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture surveys covered the periods November 1977-March 1978 and November 1979-March 1980.

Eleanor M. Pao, of the department's Human Nutrition Information Service, says the second survey showed improvement in intake of some nutrients that were low in the first. She says iron intakes in the second study came closest to meeting the Recommended Dietary Allowances published by the National Academy of Sciences in 1980.

Participants in both surveys included people in the food stamp program and others who were eligible for it.

Killed In Van, Truck Collision

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — A man was killed and two others injured when a van and truck collided, police said.

The driver of the van, 72-year-old Sam Calvin Currie of Burlington, died when the vehicles collided on Graham Hopedale Road about 1 p.m. Tuesday.

Two other people whose identities weren't disclosed received minor injuries. They were taken to Alamance County Hospital.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — ON WHAT GROUNDS WAS OUR HONEST GARDENER ARRESTED?
Today's Cryptoquip clue: T equals M.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Lives Changed In Just 48 Hours

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Within 48 hours, George and Theresa Parr became grandparents — three times over — and added the titles great-uncle and great-aunt for good measure.

One of the couple's four daughters, Cheryl Ann Slaski, 24, gave birth to twin sons early Thursday morning, although the babies were not due for several weeks.

On Friday morning, daughter Kathleen Lhotsky, 22, gave birth to a son. Three hours later, the Parrs' niece, Pamela Arthur, 23, delivered a daughter.

"This is the best Christmas present anybody could get," Parr said. "...It happened all at once."

"The tears flowed," said Mrs. Parr, describing her husband. "I never realized he wanted a boy so much. We have three grandsons now. My husband's chest must have grown 20 inches."

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A U.S. Armed Forces radio station has signed on the air to broadcast to the 1,200 American Marines in the multinational peacekeeping forces in Lebanon.

Tar Heel Native, Age 52, On Shuttle's Team

By The Associated Press
Faison native William E. Thornton Jr., remembered by childhood friends as a youth with a scientific mind who liked to invent things, may become the oldest astronaut to fly in space when the space shuttle Challenger blasts off next year.

Thornton, 53, is tentatively scheduled to blast off from the Kennedy Space Center in June with four other astronauts in the shuttle's third space mission, NASA officials said Tuesday.

The Challenger flight will be Thornton's first in space since becoming an astronaut in 1967.

Some of Thornton's childhood friends said in interviews Tuesday that Thornton's childhood exploits included building and testing homemade scuba gear, flying model airplanes and starting a radio-television repair shop. They remember Thornton as an ambitious young man with a keen interest in electronics and an inquisitive, scientific mind.

"I am so thrilled. He has waited so long to go into space," said Anne Stroud Taylor, a close friend who says she remembers that Thornton had worked in an electronics shop in order to pay his college tuition and support his widowed mother.

"The last time I talked with him, he didn't feel there was much chance he was going up," said Faison postmaster Luther E. Taylor Jr., brother-in-law of Mrs. Taylor and another of Thornton's childhood friends.

Thornton, who is married and has two sons, was always an inventor, creating things with friends and then trying them out, Mrs. Taylor said.

Thornton's boyhood abilities as an inventor have carried over into the space program.

Stephen A. Nesbitt, a public information officer at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration in Houston, Tex., says Thornton has extensive experience in space research and holds more than 15 patents for space-related equipment, including a treadmill that astronauts have used in previous space flights.

In 1966, while Thornton was a physicist and physician at the Aerospace Medical Division of Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio, Tex., he developed a "space scale" that was nearly 100 times more precise than earlier devices used to weigh things in outer space. "He also developed a number of experiments used on flight five of the Columbia that related to balance and motion sickness," Nesbitt said.

We've been offering the "newest thing in banking" for two years now.

The new money market accounts are all two years behind North State.

North State's Funds Management* 12.00%.

Ours is better.

Practically every financial institution in the country is introducing a new account this week. And practically every one of them will have a different name for the one they introduce — designed to try to convince you that theirs is somehow more advantageous.

But if you examine them closely, you'll find that they differ from North State's Funds Management™ in four basic respects.

- 1) They require a bigger initial deposit.
- 2) They require a minimum balance.
- 3) They don't pay as much interest.
- 4) They are all brand new.

Compare North State's initial deposit.

North State requires an initial deposit of $1000 in our Funds Management™ Account. Compare that with other financials that require $2500 or so to start.

Just like theirs, our Funds Management™ is insured to $100,000. But at North State, you can enjoy the high interest of a money market account for a lot less.

If they have a minimum balance, it's higher than ours.

Funds Management™ will pay you money market interest on a nickel. Or a penny. We figure it's to your advantage to keep a high minimum balance. So, except for a 3-transaction maximum, we don't burden you with restrictions, requirements, fine print or other things like that.

Since we give you the best deal, we feel certain you'll keep a lot of money with us. But we don't require it.

You get the highest rates at North State.

North State will pay you a better rate than the other new accounts, too.

That's our policy.

Nobody's going to give you a better rate now or in the future.

Compare the Funds Management™ rate. If nothing else, our rates will convince you that Funds Management™ is better.

We've got two year's experience with money market accounts.

Everybody else is two years behind. We have our accounting procedure, all the mechanics for Funds Management™ already in place.

We've been competing successfully with money market funds for quite a while. And we believe that makes Funds Management™ better.

So examine the new accounts closely. We believe that if you do, you'll come to North State and open a Funds Management™ Account.

* This is the net 7-day annualized yield for the preceding reporting week. Reporting weeks are from Tuesday to Monday. The yield will fluctuate each week as money market rates and reporters vary so it is not necessarily representative of future rates. Deposits are insured to $100,000 by the North Carolina Savings Guaranty Corporation.

Venezuela's Fuel Tanks Fire Killed Up To 200

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Rescue squads sifted scorched rubble from a fuel-tank inferno today looking for more bodies, and police said saboteurs may have started the blaze that took up to 200 lives.

A pall of mourning shrouded the Christmas season in this city as Venezuelans mourned victims of one of the nation's worst disasters. Flags flew at half staff after the government decreed three days of mourning Tuesday.

Most victims were engulfed by a huge fireball after the explosion of oil tanks Sunday at a power plant run by the Electric Company of Caracas 20 miles outside of the capital.

Radio stations suspended normal programs and broadcast solemn chamber music. The normally heavy traffic in this city of 4 million people seemed lighter.

Firefighters brought the blaze under control Tuesday, giving them a chance to sift through the rubble for the remains of victims. They recovered 145 by Tuesday night.

Flames continued flickering at the site, but fire department officials said they posed no threat to lives. They said the fire would probably burn for another two or three days.

Caracas Police Chief Jose Gabriel Lugo said investigators were not ruling out the possibility of sabotage.

Initial estimates placed the damage at $10 million in the nation's greatest disaster since a 1967 earthquake killed nearly 500 people.

Most of the recovered bodies were badly burned. The Venpres News Agency said that by late Tuesday only 51 bodies had been identified.

"They are not recognizable," a fire department spokesman said. "The fire destroyed the bodies, and it is possible that some of the bodies have been completely consumed by the flames."

Officials feared up to 200 people died and another 500 were injured in the fire, which trapped as many as 110 power plant employees and 87 firefighters and rescue workers.

Among the dead at the plant were nine journalists and photographers and at least 50 firemen trapped in a secondary explosion.

"I was saved by a miracle," television cameraman Freddy Garcia said. "I began praying when the giant ball of fire rolled over me and I thought I was going to die. Then I began running when I saw a space between the flames."

The plant is Caracas' principal supplier of electricity. Authorities appealed to people to reduce their energy use by reducing their use of air conditioning and elevators. Many people responded by declining to turn on their traditional Christmas tree lights.

Four Canadian pilots had been ready Tuesday to help tackle the fire with planes designed to drop fire retardant chemicals. But utility officials asked them at the last minute to hold off because they feared the chemical drop would disrupt recovery operations at the plant.

Two U.S. Coast Guard firefighting experts were brought in to help with blaze and to advise the Venezuelan government on measures to combat pollution in the Caribbean from the oil spill.

Sports Cable Network Edging Into Direct-Mail Advertising

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ESPN, the 24-hour sports

cable network, is getting into the sportswear business.

By next month, ESPN hopes to have its own line of products from jogging suits and gym shorts to bats and balls. "If they can sell clothing with 'Gloria Vanderbilt' on it, why not 'ESPN'?" asked Fred Schwartzfarb, manager of ESPN's direct-response advertising.

The ESPN Fashion Line is a logical extension of the successful direct-response commercials, a staple of the advertiser-supported cable networks, of which ESPN and Cable News Network are the two most popular.

Since these networks reach significantly fewer households than ABC, CBS and NBC, new commercial sources had to be found, particularly for programs with small, select audiences. ESPN viewers know they'll be inundated by direct-response advertising during horseshow jumping, rodeos and motorcycle racing.

Direct-response advertising sells products on TV that are not available in the stores. These products, ranging from Ginzu knives, oriental steamers, special records, magazines and paintings, used to be the exclusive province of late-night local TV stations.

Now, they're all over the cable dial, reaching a wealthier, better educated viewer. According to the Simmons Research Bureau, viewers in 12.2 percent of ESPN's households make more than $30,000 and 20.8 percent have professional or technical jobs.

On ESPN, however, you won't see a knife slicing a tin can, nor will you hear such spiels as "Order now and every country-and-western hit ever written will be yours!"

"We had a Mickey Gilley record offer and it just died," Schwartzfarb said. "The meter didn't jump at all, even though we put it on during rodeos and what I call redneck racing. Our public doesn't want cheap records. Those things don't even have jackets. They come in paper."

ESPN, which now has a potential reach of 22.5 million households, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., used to be less selective about its direct-response commercials.

"Sometimes, it looked like we were hawking on the Boardwalk in Atlantic City," Schwartzfarb said. "My charge was to weed out the commercials that had a bad look. We didn't want Anheuser-Busch and our other top sponsors sharing time with cheapos."

Gone are the liquid eraser, inexpensive watches and "the hot one," an illegal golf ball that traveled twice as far. "In good conscious, we couldn't carry golf events and be an all-sports network, while promoting some phony ball," Schwartzfarb said.

Generally, ESPN stays away from women's products, except for direct-mail Christmas gifts. "We runs those as a service for men guilty about watching 24 hours of sports," Schwartzfarb said. ESPN ran Christmas ads for women's jewelry and a Pac-Man wrist watch for kids. "The idea was to save shopping time," Schwartzfarb said. Neither, however, sold like hotcakes.

ESPN's direct-response appeal is with sportsmen. On the first day that ESPN offered Fish Formula 1, designed as a better fishing lure, 850 bottles were sold. In the first two months that a $1,250 Leroy Neiman silk screen serigraph was available, ESPN filled more than 40 orders.

In ESPN's direct-response advertising, ESPN personnel monitor special phones, and the advertiser is charged for each sale. The weekly responses are applied against a minimum $2,000 guarantee, which the sponsor pays in return for 20 minutes a week of TV time.

"If the products do well, then $2,000 a week is nothing," said Schwartzfarb.

'Dallas', '60 Minutes' Gave Edge In Niensens

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS won the networks' prime-time ratings race for the third week in a row with seven of the week's 10 highest-rated programs, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed.

"Dallas" finished in first place and another CBS program, "60 Minutes," was second.

In winning the three-way competition for the ninth time in the 12 weeks of the current TV season, the network recorded an average rating of 18.9 to 16.4 for ABC and 14.7 for NBC. The networks say that means in an average minute of prime time, 18.9 percent of the TV-equipped homes in the country were tuned to CBS.

For "Dallas" and "60 Minutes," the competition in the week ending Dec. 19 was another installment in their continuing battle for dominance.

"Dallas" now has been No. 1 two consecutive weeks and four times in the current season, while "60 Minutes" has been first five times since the season began.

The rating for "Dallas" was 26.2. Nielsen says that means of the nation's homes with TV, 26.2 percent saw at least part of the top-rated program.

CBS' Top 10 shows included a special, "E.T. and Friends" in third place, and a movie, "I Was a Mail Order Bride," in ninth place. "Newhart" on CBS was the week's highest-rated new show, tied for 12th place with "Dynasty" on ABC.

NBC scored points with George Burns' recent movie, "Oh, God! Book II," in fifth place and was a boost, and with a holiday perennial, "Chipmunk Christmas," in sixth.

Four of the week's five lowest-rated programs were on NBC, and all five were episodes from newly introduced series: NBC's "Voyagers" was 71st, followed by "Ripley's Believe It or Not" on ABC and three NBC programs, "The Devil Connection," "Gavilan" and "St. Elsewhere."

Here are the week's 10 highest-rated shows:

"Dallas," with a rating of 26.2 representing 21.8 million homes, "60 Minutes," 24.2 or 20.2 million, "M-A-S-H," 23.3 or 19.4 million, and "E.T. and Friends," 23.2 or 19.2 million, all CBS; Movie—"Oh, God! Book II," 23 or 19.1 million, and "Chipmunk Christmas," 22.6 or 18.8 million, both NBC; "Love Boat," 22.1 or 18.4 million, ABC, and "Magnum, P.I.," 22 or 18.3 million, Movie—"I Was a Mail Order Bride," 21.8 or 18.2 million, and "Falcon Crest," 21.5 or 17.9 million, all CBS.

The next 10 programs: "One Day at a Time," CBS; "Dynasty," ABC, and "Newhart," CBS, tie; "Barbara Walters Special," ABC; "The Jeffersons," CBS, and "Smurfs Christmas Special," NBC, tie; "NFL Monday Night Football," Dallas vs. Houston, ABC; "Real Peoble," NBC; "Simon & Simon," CBS, and "Three's Company," ABC.

College Gift Certificates

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) - Just in time for Christmas, something new in gift certificates is being offered by The College of Charleston. The certificates can pay for either credit or non-credit courses or even tuition.

The concept is based on life-long learning, says Donna Richter, associate dean for continuing education. "What we envision people buying is a non-credit course for $25 to $50.

Non-credit courses include yoga, photography, financial planning, the Gullah dialect and historic Charleston and others aimed at professional development such as assertiveness training.

Gift certificates also are available for tuition, at $50 per credit hour or $650 per semester for a full-time undergraduate student.

The college, chartered in 1785 as the 12th oldest institution of higher learning in the United States, has about 5,400 undergraduates, one-fourth of them over 25 years old.

Newspapers

A Good Mulch

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI) - Newspapers, except for color pages, make good organic mulch for gardens, says an article in a recent issue of the newsmagazine of a Burlington-based national membership organization for gardeners.

The feature by Ron Sissons says black and white newspaper, which is 75 percent ground wood pulp and 25 percent purified fiber or cellulose, contains all the nutrients and trace elements found in the trees from which the paper was made.

NOTICE TO OWNERS OF PROPERTY IN PITT COUNTY

The listing of property for tax purposes in Pitt County will begin January 3, 1983, and will continue through January 31, 1983.

Any person, firm, corporation or organization owning property in this county as of January 1, 1983, whether real or personal, must list such property within the listing period or be subject to the penalties prescribed by North Carolina Law. Property must be listed in the township in which it is located.

Persons who requested to list by mail should receive their listing forms early in January. These forms must be completed and returned to the office of the Tax Supervisor before the deadline of January 31, 1983.

Bring your social security number and your motor vehicle registration cards with you when you come to list.

Application for the Age and Disability Exemption should be made at the time of listing, but no later than April 15th. Once application is made and approved, you will not have to reapply unless circumstances change within the household.

Owners and operators of parks or storage lots renting space for three or more trailers or mobile homes are required by law to furnish the Tax Supervisor of the county in which the lot is located, the name of the owner and a description of each trailer or mobile home situated thereon. This list must be submitted by January 15th of each year. Owners and operators failing to comply with the law shall be liable to payment of tax in addition to a penalty of $250.

Persons having custody of taxable tangible personal property belonging to another firm or individual that is held for storage, sale, rent, or any other business purpose shall furnish the Tax Supervisor a report of such property by January 15th or will be liable for the tax on the property plus a penalty of $250.

FOR A COMPLETE LIST OF LOCATIONS AND DATES FOR LISTING TAXES IN JANUARY, SEE OTHER AD IN THIS PAPER.

Everyone Is A Loser On Cotton Crop

By MARK LANGFORD
BIG SPRING, Texas (UPI)
Cotton farmer Jerry Rogers manages his 2,000 acres of cotton as well as anyone, but he still will take a loss this year.

He financed his own crop, owned and maintained his equipment and used a computer for highest efficiency. But with last year's massive carryovers dictating low market prices, he'll be in the red.

Unlike some other producers, Rogers is not in danger of losing his farm although his net worth has declined during the last two years. He plans to plant another crop next season.

But his losses in 1982 are indicative of a depressed market that no longer guarantees success for efficient, financially sound managers while those forced to borrow money from the bank go to the wall.

Rogers graduated from Texas Tech University in 1957 with a degree in mechanical engineering and went to work in the aircraft and missile industry.

He worked on airplane hydraulics design and flight simulation for LTV Inc. of Dallas, designed liquid propellant loading systems at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene and worked for Boeing Aircraft in Wichita, Kan.

But his heart was in the cotton country north of Big Spring, where his father and grandfather had farmed.

"I was born and raised on the farm," Rogers says. "It's been good for me, but the last couple of years haven't been so good."

With his farming history and technical background, Rogers is in a unique position. Money made when times were better allows him to finance the planting of 2,000 acres of cotton with no interest charges.

His mechanical skills enable him to save money on equipment, which he repairs and maintains himself. He has not needed to purchase new equipment since 1979.

"You can't afford not to keep your equipment in top shape. It looks like I'll be using mine for a while," he says.

An Apple computer helps with his bookkeeping, saves tax dollars and tells him what's getting out of line in feed, seed and fuel costs.

Despite the advantages, Rogers says he will not even make expenses on his 1982 cotton crop, which cost about $200,000 to plant, maintain and harvest.

"Most of the bad managers are already gone," he says. "The people who are losing money now are not necessarily bad managers. I'm still in pretty good shape, but I'm not making any money."

After losing money in 1980 and 1981, Rogers was struck this year by pounding rain and hail storms that forced him to replant 800 acres. Market prices that plummeted last year failed to rebound in the face of record cotton carryovers, and energy prices have continued a steady rise.

He says cotton prices have remained basically the same since 1950 while the cost of diesel fuel has jumped from 12 cents to about $1.10 a gallon.

With so little potential profit margin available, Rogers says that farm management, which includes the ability to identify market whims, is more important than ever before.

And since farmers have so little influence on market prices and legislation governing agriculture programs, Rogers says more than good management is needed.

"Eventually, we will organize. They're running the little farmers out and when we get thinned down, we will organize and you will pay the price," he says.

But for now, Rogers says he only wants to be around "when they throw out the first ball next year."

SENTENCE DEFECTOR BRAUNSCHWEIG, West Germany (AP) — A former East German border guard who killed a fellow soldier while defecting to West Germany on May 5 was convicted of manslaughter Monday. The 19-year-old was sentenced to five years in a juvenile correction facility.

Seek Start-Up Of Fusion Reactor By Year's End

FUSION POWER — Workers at the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor at Princeton University attempt to seat a large metal chamber which will be attached to the side of the reactor. Scientists hope the project will someday produce more power than is required to operate it. (AP Laserphoto)

By RICHARD T. PIENCIAK
Associated Press Writer
PLAINSBORO, N.J. (AP) — Princeton University scientists are working in non-stop shifts to start a magnetic fusion reactor by the end of the year, a major step in the effort to prove the feasibility of fusion power.

They hope the Tokamak Fusion Test Reactor will someday produce more power than is required to operate it, a breakthrough that could lead to commercial use of fusion power early in the 21st century.

The Princeton research has been compared to Enrico Fermi's efforts when he demonstrated the viability of nuclear fission power 40 years ago in Chicago.

In a fission reactor, energy is released by splitting heavy atoms such as uranium. In a fusion reactor, energy is released when forms of hydrogen atoms are fused, creating helium as a by-product.

A fission reaction can run out of control but a fusion reaction just stops if conditions are not ideal.

Last week, about 200 sub-contractors completed work on the federal Department of Energy project at the Princeton University Plasma Physics Laboratory on the school's sprawling James Forrestal campus.

The remaining personnel, including 350 scientists and engineers, have been working around-the-clock to complete construction and start the reactor within budget and by a scheduled

Dec. 31 deadline.

Once operating, the reactor will be put through a series of experiments aimed at reaching the power break-even level in 1986, when radioactive tritium will make its debut as a fusion fuel, said Paul Rutherford, the project's associate director for research.

TFTR, as it is called, will be the largest operating tokamak in the world. In a tokamak — the name comes from the Russian acronym for "toroidal magnetic chamber" — a very hot ionized gas called a plasma is shot into a stainless steel, doughnut-shaped vacuum vessel.

Powerful magnetic fields hold the plasma away from the vessel walls to prevent cooling. Magnetic fields are generated by massive coils and by an electric current sent through the plasma.

"TFTR should easily succeed," Rutherford said. "There is no doubt it will reach its objectives."

But he added that "fusion is still in the scientific development stage." Government officials estimate that commercially feasible fusion power remains at least 30 years away.

Larger, more powerful demonstration units would have to succeed the TFTR to show the commercial potential of the tokamak method, the most advanced fusion concept.

The goal of the $314 million TFTR project is to confine and heat heavy hydrogen isotopes — deuterium and tritium — long enough at an extremely high density so that the energy released through the fusion reactions equals the energy used for heating.

For the TFTR, that means a temperature six times hotter than the sun or 180 million degrees, a density of 100 trillion particles per cubic centimeter and a confinement time of up to a half second.

Its predecessor, the Princeton Large Torus, achieved temperatures of 147 million degrees, about one-third the density and a confinement time of 25 thousandths of a second.

Although not part of the formal TFTR goal, scientists hope to go beyond the break-even point to "ignition," where the energy in the helium will be sufficient to heat the plasma, Rutherford said.

Before ignition can be achieved, however, scientists must learn how to heat the plasma more efficiently and reduce power consumption. Started in 1951 at Princeton under the code name Project Matterhorn, tokamak research has led to repeated reductions in the difference between power produced and power used in the production. The number of skeptics in the scientific community has decreased with each advance.

Proponents say there is inexhaustible fuel for fusion reactors since deuterium and tritium can be extracted from sea water. They say other advantages are that there is no chance of a runaway or meltdown, no chemical combustion products, no suitable materials diversion to nuclear weapons production and radioactive by-products with significantly shorter half-lives than those produced by today's fission reactors.

Dr. Jim McKenzie, staff scientist at the anti-nuclear Union of Concerned Scientists, acknowledges that fusion is safer in the sense there can be no meltdown.

But, he says, fusion commercial plants may prove to be prohibitively expensive and will expose cleanup workers to significant levels of radiation.

TFTR is the first of a new generation of tokamaks seeking to reach the energy break-even point.

The others will begin operation in Great Britain sometime next summer, in Japan in 1984-85 and even later in the Soviet Union, where scientists developed the tokamak principle.

Rutherford said it will take several years for the TFTR "to reach its full expectations." First, while all the system's parts have been operated separately, the firing up will be the first time all the parts work together.

In 1983, researchers will study the ionized gas without increasing the temperature.

Neutral beam injectors — now being tested in Livermore and Berkeley, Calif. — will be installed in 1984 to increase the heat, followed in 1985 with an increase in gas density, Rutherford said. The tritium will be introduced in 1986 experiments.

Brazil Professes Democracy, But Authoritarianism Exists

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Despite the current climate here of elections, open political debate and a free press, authoritarian elements in the armed forces and the police are showing they still can get tough.

Brazil, which had a military coup in 1964, now is under the guidance of President Joao Figueiredo, a retired general who has taken major steps to revoke dictatorial decrees and restore civilian rule. But contradictions persist.

The most-talked-about case of this nature has been the arrest of Portuguese pop singer Sergio Godinho, on charges of being in Brazil illegally and possessing marijuana.

In a scenario reminiscent of the military dictatorship a decade ago, Godinho, 37, claims he was held incommunicado and tortured with electric shocks and that the marijuana was "planted" in his luggage. Brazil's federal police, who are holding the singer, deny any mistreatment. But Alberto Dines, a journalist and intellectual, said, "The hard liners are using Godinho as an example to show the Brazilian left they still have power and can use it whenever they want."

Even the conservative Rio newspaper O Globo, which usually supports the government on everything, wrote that the Godinho case "is more than a simple police episode" and is causing "embarrassment."

President Reagan, on his recent visit to Brazil, warmly greeted Figueiredo and praised his policy of bringing back civilian rule. But after Reagan left, Figueiredo told the nation, in tones more typical of the days of dictatorship, "The name of my successor will be determined when I judge it to be convenient."

The next president, who will serve from 1985-1991, is to be picked by an electoral college made up of civilian officials who were elected last month in Brazil's broadest elections since the military takeover. The college does have a majority from Figueiredo's Democratic Social Party, but opposition parties are in it too and — theoretically — should have some voice.

In another seeming contradiction between civilian rule and military control, the army minister, Gen. Walter Pires, praised 1982 as the year of "the perfecting of Brazilian democracy." Then, a few seconds later, he warned that the armed forces would "prevent the importing of models or any kind of internal interference from international socialists."

Brazil also demonstrated the iron fist behind the scenes when, just hours before Reagan's departure from Brasilia, the Supreme Military Court upheld the convictions, on subversion charges, of two French Roman Catholic priests the government charged were stirring up Amazon jungle peasants with revolutionary ideas.

The Revs. Aristides Camo and Francois Gouriou — who were granted slight reductions in their prison terms by the high court — claimed they were defending the peasants against powerful and ruthless landowners.

In yet another seemingly arbitrary act, federal police agents, bearing submachine guns, seized a recent issue of the small leftist Rio newspaper O Povo, which in Brazil's Portuguese language means The People. The police said they were acting "on orders" from the Justice Ministry and that the raid was "legal" in accordance with the constitution and the press law.

And prisoners at Rio's Central Penitentiary Hospital took advantage of a prayer visit by Cardinal Eugenio Sales, the city's Roman Catholic archbishop, to complain they were being routinely mistreated. The head of the hospital denied knowing anything was amiss but promised the cardinal he would "open an investigation."

Americans Are Giving More, But Also Need More

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans are giving more to charitable organizations this holiday season than they have in previous years, but the groups say donations still do not meet the soaring number of requests for help.

And there is "a different kind of person" asking for help this year, say charity spokesmen who are being tapped for assistance from people who in previous years were donors.

Miller said. "Suddenly they are finding themselves in the embarrassing position of having to ask for help."

Miller said many of those asking for assistance are unaccustomed to charity. "These are people who are not eligible for public assistance because they own their own home," said Miller. "We had a letter from a man in suburban Detroit who has helped us in the past who is now selling his furniture piece-by-piece to put food on his table."

Miller, who has worked for the Salvation Army for 48 years, said donations are greatest in areas most in need of assistance, like Detroit, where contributions are running about 10 percent higher than last year.

"There is an acute awareness of need that is more intense than any time in my memory," he said.

Congress heard testimony last week on the plight of 2 million homeless and jobless Americans who could freeze or starve this winter unless helped.

"The homeless population is growing astronomically and changing radically," Mary Ellen Hombs of the Capital's Community for Creative Non-Violence said before the House subcommittee on housing. "Unemployment, Reaganomics and the economy have combined to drive hundreds of thousands of middle-class people into utter and absolute destitution."

At the United Way of America, one of the nation's largest fund-raising organizations for health and welfare agencies, contributions are up about 6 percent over last year, said spokesman Stephen Delfin.

He said this year the organization expects an increase of $100 million in donations over $1.68 billion raised last year.

"People give more in hard times if they're working because they like to help people in a worse state than they are," Delfin said. "But giving would have to increase 100 percent in one year to cover the new needs."

Delfin said a recent survey of holidays operated by United Way in 15 major cities showed there has been a sharp increase in requests for such basic services as food, shelter, job training and family counseling.

In Compton, Calif., the Compton Welfare Rights Organization reports between 600 and 700 applications for Christmas aid, compared to 150 applications last year.

"Donations are up, but it doesn't fulfill the need," said Phyllis Drierson, director of the program which gives food, clothes and toys during the holidays to those who are unemployed or underemployed.

"City employees and fire departments — people who are working — know how bad it is this year and donated 500 baskets of food," she said. "Last year they gave 300."

In Detroit, a civil rights organization called Focus Hope reports contributions to its assistance programs are 20 percent higher this holiday season than last year.

"People who would have given $10 are giving $15 or $25," said Eleanor Josaitis, child.

Ms. Josaitis said that its feeding program for mothers, infants and children fed 49,704 last month, compared to 31,000 a month, compared to 10,000 on a waiting list.

She said the organization is helping 200 families in its adopt-a-family program but local area have offered holiday assistance to needy families that have asked for help.

She said that in one case, a suburban Detroit post office adopted eight to 10 families for the holidays and will provide them with food, clothes, and a toy for each child.

Ms. Josaitis said that its feeding program for mothers, infants and children fed 49,704 last month, compared to 31,000 a month, compared to 10,000 on a waiting list.

The Community Christmas Bureau in Cleveland reports that more companies in the area have offered holiday assistance to needy families.

"We have 75 families being helped by companies now, about a third more than last year," said Carolyn Miller, co-director of the program. She added, however, that there are between 2,000 and 3,000 more families than last year who have been referred to the program for assistance.

"I've noticed that there have been more calls for household appliances like refrigerators, stoves and beds," Ms. Miller said. "We're saying that this year more people than ever need the basics for housekeep-

"In terms of contributions, we're up 12 percent over last year," said Keith Jones, spokesman for the Salvation Army in the Washington area. "But requests for our Christmas services such as groceries, gifts to shut-ins and toys for children in poor families are up in excess of 20 percent."

Jones said the demand for emergency financial assistance for such items as food, medicine, clothing and fuel is up close to 30 percent over last year.

Lt. Col. Ernest Miller, national spokesman for the Salvation Army, said this year the organization has received many letters from regular donors saying they are now in financial distress. "So many of those who had been our donors now find themselves unemployed," and the economy have committed on housing. "Unemployment, Reaganomics and the economy have com-

Speaking of Your Health... HDL Can Prevent Some Heart Attacks

All my adult life I have been aware of the fact that cholesterol is injurious to good health. In fact, it has always been my feeling that high cholesterol is one of the important causes for heart attacks.

In recent months I have read that maybe cholesterol is not the whole answer to heart attacks. In fact I have read that there are some kinds of cholesterol that might even be beneficial. Why the shift in this attitude? — Mr. B.M., Ore.

Your confusion is probably based on new information about a type of cholesterol known as "high density lipoproteins." This substance, now referred to as HDL, has recently been an area of intensive study by doctors and scientists everywhere.

HDL is only a small fragment of cholesterol. The early studies indicate that HDL can actually play an important role in the prevention of some forms of heart attack. The substance has been found to be higher in the bloodstream of people who actively exercise. Men and women whose tobacco and alcohol intake is moderate may have a higher level of HDL in the blood.

For the time being, you must simply accept the fact that doctors still agree that high cholesterol in the bloodstream is a threat to health. It would be unwise for you, without the specific advice of your doctor, to embark on a technique of "elevating" your cholesterol by eating foods that were prohibited all your life.

More and more information is being accumulated about high density lipoproteins and low density proteins.

When and if there is total substantiation of these scientific findings, then and then only should you dramatically alter your present diet.

My husband constantly takes his pulse. I think it's silly. He is so nervous that sometimes he counts the pulse beat 20 times a night. What should the normal rate be for a normal person of 50? — Mrs. J.Y., N.M.

The normal rate of the pulse beat is identical with that of the regular heartbeat. It varies from 65 to 85 beats per minute in the normal healthy man. The rate is slightly higher in women.

After exercise or while under emotional stress, the pulse rate increases rapidly. When the stress factor is removed, the pulse rate usually returns to normal.

There are a great many variations of the pulse rate in people in health and in illness. Tobacco, coffee, alcohol and stimulating drugs can all be responsible for changes in the pulse rate. Patients who have debilitating disease and those who have increased activity of the thyroid gland are known to have a faster pulse rate than most other people.

Constantly taking one's pulse is an indication of some underlying psychoneurotic level of anxiety. People who are fearful will take their pulse rate at regular intervals without any awareness of its meaning. I might, incidentally, add that many people who have their own blood pressure machines are compulsive about taking the blood pressure many times during the day.

Suspension Bridge Is Only Access

By JAMES LAWRENCE
GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Mama and Papa Bair, unlike their storybook character namesakes, don't worry much about trespassers on their 6,000-acre ranch on a mountain top in Colorado's scenic Glenwood Canyon.

T. Golden Bair, 73, and his wife Thelma, who affectionately use their citizens band radio handles "Mama" and "Papa" when addressing one another, relish having only one pathway to their ranch, one of the biggest in Colorado.

The pathway allows the Mormon couple to see visitors about a mile away from their 100-year-old white frame home.

Visitors, invited or otherwise, first must park their vehicle on a gravel lot adjacent to a busy highway which winds through the picturesque canyon, open a wire fence gate and walk across a 400-foot suspension bridge about 200 feet above the Colorado River.

Having completed that topsy-turvy traverse, they face another 500 feet uphill climb through four additional gates strategically placed to ensure the Bair's 4,000 sheep will not run astray.

"We laugh when we see people jogging for their health," said a loquacious Mrs. Bair, standing in the doorway of the couple's modestly furnished home. "You get all the physical activity you need living on this ranch."

Bair, a wiry, soft-spoken man, has lived on the ranch since his parents moved from Utah 60 years ago.

Sitting on a kitchen stool, he fondly recalled how he and a neighbor boy got started in the sheep ranching business at age 13, working together for $40 a month — half the wage then paid grown men.

Eight years later he homesteaded 640 acres in the canyon at the top of the mountain from his existing ranch and purchased 500 sheep with the help of a trusting local banker.

"It was hard living there on top of that mountain," Bair said. "It often got down to 40 degrees below and colder. To bring in food, you had to pack saddles on horses."

In ensuing years Bair acquired additional acreage, including 1,575 acres of mountainous rangeland and the big home, for $53,000.

"This banker friend of mine tried to push things on me," said Bair, whose formal schooling ended in the fifth grade. "After he let me have the first bunch of sheep and land, and I done so good, then he figured I'd do good everytime."

For Bair, good is somewhat of an understatement for a man who used sheer determination to turn his mountaintop into one of the largest sheep ranches in Colorado.

He attributes his success to hard work, rising before dawn seven days a week, and having a miserly nature.

"This really isn't a profitable business," Bair said. "You have to watch your pennies. That's why we drive '77 and '73 pickups that we bought second-hand. A feller can't make it if he's borrowing money."

Thelma, Bair's second wife whom he married 13 years ago, glowingly describes her husband as a typical westerner, unafraid to challenge the world.

"His mother named him for an apostle in the Mormon Church," Mrs. Bair said. "He (the apostle) was quite a witty character and Papa Bair has turned out to be quite a witty character too."

Bair, father of two sons, ages 30 and 50, seems the type who rarely is aroused. But appearances are misleading as the Colorado Highway Department discovered the past few years.

The department, which two years ago began a $161 million project to widen 12 miles of highway through the canyon, took more than 100 acres of Bair's ranch. Bair relented, but not without a fight.

"I hated to see them take my land just to make a park on the highway," he said. "They're pushing the farmer further into the back-ground."
