

County Receives Plans For Insurance Changes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, at a workshop session Wednesday, heard proposals from two Charlotte insurance consulting firms to provide an analysis of the county's existing insurance program, develop a revised insurance program and prepare specifications for accepting bids for any insurance changes.

Commissioners are to study the proposals and may take some action on hiring one of the firms at Monday's regular board meeting.

Richard Canovia, president of Risk Consultants Inc., told commissioners his firm's review and development of the Pitt insurance program would cost $3,900, which would include continued consulting service for a 12-month period.

Canovia said the marketing of the property and casualty coverages "are guaranteed" to produce annual premium savings of at least $3,000 (the cost of preparing specifications, marketing and analysis of the new policies), "or our fee will be reduced to an amount no greater than the savings."

William D. Kemp, a consultant with Industrial Insurance Management Corp., said his firm would provide audit, development and marketing services to the county for $7,000 per year for a three-year period.

"We're the insurance department for the client," according to Kemp, who said IIMC has, for several years, served as insurance consultant to the Greenville Utilities Commission.

In other business Wednesday, commissioners gave tentative approval to a plan to purchase three trucks and begin hauling containers from the various solid waste container sites with county employees.

Assistant County Manager Don Davenport told the board that it would cost an estimated $219,000 (based on the current number of hauls) to hire a mechanic, and three drivers, purchase the trucks and pay the related costs involved in the hauling operation for one year.

Davenport said at present, based on the same number of hauls, the county's cost for a contract hauler is $328,605 per year.

While there would be unforeseen expenses involved, Davenport said they should be far less than the $109,096 difference between the county hauling and contract hauling costs.

The board also agreed to investigate the "single audit concept" under which the county's regular auditor would conduct the audits of the county's books as well as for all federal and state programs, such as grants, operated by the county.

County Manager Reginald Gray said federal and state agencies have recently approved the concept.

He said the single audit program would save county workers time by requiring them to pull records for only one auditor. At present he said, the same records have to be pulled for several different auditors at different times.

County Finance Officer Margaret Roberts told commissioners that initially the single audit might cost the county more, but should ultimately save money.

Thousands Brave Chill To See Earth's Shadow Cross Moon

By The Associated Press

Despite the hour and the early-morning chill, thousands of people turned their eyes and telescopes heavenward today to watch the Earth's shadow pass across the moon.

The lunar eclipse, visible across the nation under largely clear skies, began at about 4:50 a.m. EST. The moon was totally obscured by 5:58 a.m. and started to reappear at 6:29 a.m.

Some astronomers said the eclipse was the darkest in recent memory because of an April 4 volcanic eruption in Mexico that spewed volcanic dust into the atmosphere.

The next total lunar eclipse visible across most of the United States is due on August 16, 1989. A lunar eclipse will be visible in California on April 24, 1986.

The last total lunar eclipse took place in July. In Los Angeles, some 800 people trekked to the Griffith Observatory early today to view the eclipse.

The observatory crowd was in "jolly holiday spirits," said Griffith Director Edwin Krupp.

"The audience has great spirit tonight even though it's cold," he said. "This is the great New Year's Eve-eve-and-up-past-your-bedtime lunar eclipse."

Some observatory staff members and members of the public lugged their own telescopes to the site. The observatory's 12-inch telescope was open to the public.

"It's one of the darkest eclipses probably ever," said observatory guide Art Thurman.

Forecast Of Economic Health

Index Gains Again

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Nearing the year's end on a promising note, the government said today its main forecasting gauge for national economic health rose 0.8 percent in November, the seventh gain in the past eight months.

Although many economists say the recession probably was persisting last month, the November gain in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators appeared to be a new signal that there will be at least moderate recovery early in 1983.

In a separate report today, the Labor Department said Americans' initial claims for unemployment benefits rose to 544,000 in the week ending Dec. 18 from 533,000 the previous week. But the new claims were still far fewer than the weekly totals that exceeded 600,000 during most of the fall.

The leading-indicators index is a compilation of 10 separate economic statistics covering a wide variety of areas, including layoffs, inflation, stock prices and orders for factory goods. When most of those components rise, overall business activity is supposed to rise soon thereafter.

In November, the report said, seven of the indicators rose, led by a big increase in the nation's money supply.

Also showing improvement were an increase in the average work week, a decline in initial unemployment-benefits claims and increases in orders for consumer goods, building permits for future housing construction, prices of certain raw materials and stock prices.

Indicators showing weaker performance in November included business deliveries, total liquid assets and contracts and orders for new plants and equipment.

After declining for 11 straight months, the index began a rise that has been interrupted only by a 0.5 percent decline in August. The index rose 0.8 percent in September and 0.3 percent in October.

Those three results were revised downward in the new report. They had been reported earlier as a decline of 0.2 percent and gains of 1.1 percent and 0.6 percent, respectively. The new November figure is also subject to later revision when more complete surveys are available.

In the past, the national economy has at least begun significant recovery within a few months after the index began to rise. But recovery has been much slower in coming for the 1981-82 recession.

"It's long overdue," said

Allen Sinai, senior vice president of Data Resources Inc. in Lexington, Mass. Commenting before the new report was released, he said the new gain is "yet another sign the recovery is just about here. The recovery is imminent."

Most other private analysts agree, as do Reagan administration officials. But no one is predicting robust recovery soon.

In fact, officials indicated on Wednesday that the administration's official projection for economic growth next year will be scaled back from previous estimates.

Israel, Lebanon Report Progress Made In Talks But Agenda Unsettled

KIRYAT SHMONA, Israel (AP) — Israel and Lebanon wound up their second round of talks today, failing to agree on an agenda but saying they resolved some of their differences.

Although the negotiators failed to agree on an agenda for their talks, "further progress was made" toward overcoming that first hurdle, said Foreign Ministry spokesman Avi Pazner, reading a joint Lebanese-Israeli statement.

"Some differences were resolved and others were narrowed," said the statement.

Israeli sources who refused to be identified said the main obstacle was how to define the item on the agenda concerning future Lebanese-Israeli relations.

Israel wants normalization of relations with Lebanon to head the agenda, but Lebanon wants to focus on withdrawal of Israel's invasion army from its territory.

Pazner said the Israeli, Lebanese and American negotiators worked "in a friendly and cordial atmosphere."

The next session is set for Monday at Khalde, outside Beirut.

The meeting lasted about five hours.

The negotiators met around a doughnut shaped table in Beit Edelstein, the community center, which like many other buildings in Kiryat Shmona bore the scars of Palestinian guerrilla shells.

The town's chief rabbi greeted the negotiators with the traditional offering of bread and salt, and 2,000 schoolchildren cheered and waved Israeli and Lebanese flags as the negotiators headed for the table.

"Peace is not a dream anymore," read a poster waved by the children.

The talks are aimed at ridding Lebanon of foreign forces and establishing a lasting peace along Israel's northern border. Israeli and Lebanese negotiators remain divided over which issue should be taken up first, but sources close to the negotiations said a compromise was in sight.

The sources, who declined to be identified by name or nationality, suggested the two issues could be discussed simultaneously, either in subcommittees or in some other format.

In Beirut, however, a state radio broadcast said the government had adopted an "unalterable position" to oppose "normalization of relations" with Israel as part of a withdrawal package.

Tax Deadline Is Wednesday

Taxpayers who pay Greenville and Pitt County property taxes have only a few more days to pay without having interest imposed for late payment.

For both city and county taxes, the deadline for non-interest payment is Wednesday. An interest rate of 2 percent will be added to taxes paid Jan. 6 and after, with an additional three-quarters of a percent added for each month thereafter that taxes are not paid.

The tax collector's office in the Pitt County Courthouse will be open Friday, although the rest of the courthouse offices will be closed that day. The tax collector's office in the Greenville City Hall will be closed Friday.

In a related matter, tax listing for 1983 for the city and county will begin Monday at the tax office in the courthouse and at the 15 listing places located throughout the county. Jimmy Hardee, Pitt County tax supervisor, said all listing places will be open each Saturday during January until noon.

Listing is required by law during the month of January, and a penalty is imposed on any late lister.

Hardee said that an increasing number of property owners are listing by mail, and that 25,000 tax listing forms have been mailed out to taxpayers who have opted for this method of listing property.

FBI To Study Miami Rioting For Violations

MIAMI (AP) — Uneasy calm returned to a sealed-off ghetto today after a second day of racial violence sparked by the fatal police shooting of a young black man. But more arrests and injuries were reported in incidents outside the downtown slum.

Nevel Johnson Jr., 21, who was shot Tuesday by a Hispanic officer, died Wednesday. The Justice Department said the FBI would investigate the shooting.

Riot-equipped police officers today still ringed a 192-square-block area of the predominantly black neighborhood of Overtown, where black gangs attacked motorists, set fires and hurled rocks and bottles in two days of violence after Johnson was shot.

About 50 helmeted, baton-carrying officers were posted in a park five miles north in Liberty City, the scene of racial violence that claimed 18 lives two years ago.

Some rock-and-bottle throwing was reported and at least one business was looted in Liberty City overnight, police said. In another incident outside the riot area late Wednesday, several police cars had their windows broken out by rocks and bottles.

"It's quiet," Miami police spokesman Mike Stewart said this morning of the Overtown riot area. "But we made nine additional arrests and had four more reports of injury..."

That brought to 26 the number of injured and 38 the number arrested in the two nights of violence, Stewart said. On Tuesday, an looting suspect, 17-year-old Alonso R. Singleton, was shot and killed by a policeman.

Sgt. Jack Sullivan, another police spokesman, said the

Teens Taught By SuperSitters

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR
ATLANTA (UPI) — It's easier to find a good baby sitter in Atlanta these days thanks to "SuperSitters," a program that teaches teenagers the precautions and rules of caring for young children.

There are an estimated 1,200 SuperSitters around Atlanta now who have been trained in a program established by volunteers at the Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children. Similar programs operate in some other cities.

For the past 18 months, the hospital has sponsored a free two-hour clinic for baby sitters taught by medical personnel, a policeman, a fireman and a recreation therapist.

The youngsters attending the clinics range in age from 12 to 15. The class size ranges from 150 to 200 students. The result of the clinic, according to hospital marketing director Janice E. Moore, has been the creation of a roster of baby sitters trained to handle most emergencies that might arise while they are looking after children.

The names of these SuperSitters are put on a register at the hospital. Interested parents can call Ms. Moore's office at the hospital and the staff will put a SuperSitter in touch with the parent.

"The idea is not new," Ms. Moore said. "It is being done at several hospitals in the Northeast. We held our first clinic in May of 1981.

"We have been well pleased with the response. Some people have copied our ideas. There are even some places that are now training baby sitters on a commercial basis.

"Every time we do one of these clinics, we get hundreds of phone calls asking to be put on the list."

Helping Ms. Moore run the clinics are Ms. Jackie Bennett, assistant director of nursing; Mrs. Betty Schaefer, Ms. Moore's executive secretary; Linda Julian, and Marsha Harris, both registered nurses. All donate their time, along with Fulton County police officer N.B. Broward and Capt. Benny Shippey of the county fire department.

Safety — "they are very worried about what could happen" — is the top concern of the teenagers attending the clinics, according to Ms. Bennett.

The potential SuperSitters, who receive a certificate if they pass a written exam, are given extensive safety instruction and taught how to get emergency help quickly.

The kitchen is the most dangerous place in the home, they are told, because of hot stoves and toxic substances like bleaches and detergents. Children should be kept away from knives, scissors, pins and other sharp objects; small things like beads, buttons and nuts; matches, cigarettes; dishes, glassware; strange animals; medicines and hot liquids.

The sitter should stay awake, keep the TV turned low, check on the children regularly, keep doors locked and never open them to strangers, and in case of a prowler, call police.

Included in a batch of instructional material given each SuperSitter is a formula for making a non-toxic play dough.

These are just a few of the hundreds of tips covered by the clinic, says Ms. Bennett. Other points impressed on the teenagers include what to do in case of fire, injury, poisoning, and illness.

Even the rudiments of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and artificial mouth-to-mouth respiration are taught, using an 18-inch doll.

"They are definitely what we call them — a SuperSitter," said Ms. Bennett. "We tell them baby-sitting can be fun, but it is also a responsibility. I think that just the size of our classes tells us it is successful."

Dear Abby

In New Year, Strive To Be A Regular Man

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: When I was in grade school many years ago back in Roswell, N.M., a teacher read a poem to us. It was in the form of a prayer, and the thrust of it was, "Dear God, make a man out of me."

I can't remember who wrote it, but it was a gem. Have you (or any of your readers) ever heard of it? I would love to have it to keep.

NOSTALGIC IN PORTALES, N.M.

DEAR NOSTALGIC: The author was Edgar A. Guest. And what a timely piece with which to usher in the New Year. The poem:

LORD, MAKE A REGULAR MAN OUT OF ME

This I would like to be — braver and bolder,
Just a bit wiser because I am older,
Just a bit kinder to those I may meet,
Just a bit manlier taking defeat;
This is my prayer for the New Year and my plea —
Lord, make a regular man out of me.

This I would like to be — just a bit finer,
More of a smiler and less of a whiner,
Just a bit quicker to stretch out my hand,
Helping another who's struggling to stand,
This is my prayer for the New Year to be,
Lord, make a regular man out of me.

This I would like to be — just a bit fairer,
Just a bit better, and just a bit squarer,
Not quite so ready to censure and blame,
Quicker to help every man in the game,
Not quite so eager men's failings to see,
Lord, make a regular man out of me.

This I would like to be — just a bit truer,
Less of the wisher and more of the doer,
Broader and bigger, more willing to give,
Living and helping my neighbor to live!
This for the New Year my prayer and my plea —
Lord, make a regular man out of me.

DEAR READERS: Apropos of the above: The expression "regular man" need not apply to males only. Edgar Guest meant it to describe a person of character and dignity.

In Yiddish the word is "mensch." And a woman can also be a "mensch."

No one defined a "mensch" better than Leo Rosten in his book, "The Joys of Yiddish" (Simon & Schuster):

"MENSCH, MENCH. Rhymes with 'bench.' From German: Mensch: 'person.' Plural: menshen.
"1. A human being. 'After all, he is a mensch, not an animal.'

"2. An upright, honorable, decent person. 'Come on, act like a mensch!'

"3. Someone of consequence; someone to admire and emulate; someone of noble character. 'Now, there is a real mensch!'

"It is hard to convey the special sense of respect, dignity, approbation, that can be conveyed by calling someone 'a real mensch!'

"As a child, I often heard it said: 'The finest thing you can say about a man is that he is a mensch.' Jewish children often hear the admonition: 'Behave like a mensch!' or 'Be a mensch!' This use of the word is uniquely Yiddish in its overtones.

"The most withering comment one might make on someone's character or conduct is: 'He is not (did not act like) a mensch.'"

"To be a mensch has nothing to do with success,

Less than two percent of U.S. crop land acreage is planted in rice.

wealth, status. A judge can be a zhlob; a millionaire can be a momzer; a professor can be a shlemiel, a doctor a klutz, a lawyer a bulvon. The key to being 'a real mensch' is nothing less than — character: rectitude, dignity, a sense of what is right, respectable, decorous. Many a poor man, many an ignorant man, is a mensch."

You're never too old (or too young) to learn how to make friends and be popular. For Abby's booklet on Popularity, send $1, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to Abby, Popularity, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

It's the end of another year.

During this final week, newspapers will be filled with what happened in 1982. Who died. Who was born. Who was the best and the worst. Who made the front page. Who made history.

Humor columns are rarely remembered. They're like a Chinese dinner. Two hours after reading them, you want to laugh again. They appear from time to time to guide readers down the yellow brick road so that in seeing your life through an unstable person's eyes, you might find some humor and perspective in it.

A couple of weeks ago, I gave a writer's seminar and the question that kept coming up was, "It's easy for you to write humor. Things are going well. But what about people who are depressed? How do they overcome it?"

I'm just lucky, I guess. Looking back, there were so many fun things in 1982 I missed.

A son moved home from a foreign country with guitar, stereo, motorcycle helmet (motorcycle was in L.A.) and memories of a 1975 economy. He struck fear in our hearts when he announced, "I'm not working for less than $6.50 an hour."

Mother was pushing her cart through a supermarket and slipped on a bottle of gin and broke her arm. Her first words after surgery were, "If I had drunk it, I wouldn't be here."

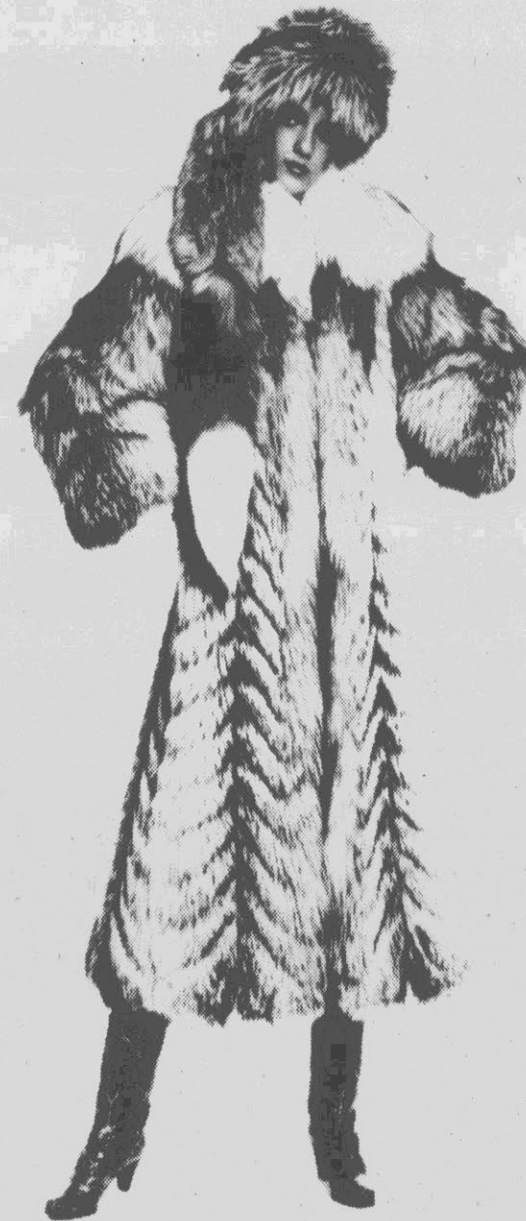

My father went into the hospital for surgery and lightning hit new house being built. No letter in four months from daughter who moved to coast. L.A. son had car stolen and wrote his brother to send helmet for motorcycle.

New house was vandalized. Favorite uncle died back east, and vacation was cancelled when husband developed back problems. Mom and Dad and my entire wardrobe went on the vacation instead. Son announced, "I refuse to work for less than $3.25 an hour."

Husband went in hospital for back surgery and I went to bed with flu. Dog started to lose fur on right foot. Battery went dead on car we were just ready to sell. Planned another vacation with friends. He lost his job.

New house was finally finished. Old one is not sold. Son leaves for Peace Corps for an hourly rate which he refuses to talk about.

This is the 151st and last column of 1982. Frankly, I'll be glad to see 1983. If I have to laugh at this one one more time I'm going to be sick.

Tar Heels Pay Higher Taxes

RALEIGH — North Carolina residents will pay higher state individual income taxes this year than most other Americans, a state economist says.

Paul Zipin compared taxes across the nation for an article in the fall edition of "Popular Government," a magazine published by the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill. He found that one of every five North Carolinians filing a state income tax return in 1979 had taxable earnings between $6,001 and $10,000. The average amount of taxes due was $345.

There are only three states with higher taxes for a married couple with two children in that income bracket, Zipin said. He compared the taxes by computing the effective tax rate — the amount of taxes due as a percentage of gross income.

State income tax forms will be mailed to North Carolinians next week and already some groups have promised to ask the General Assembly to hold taxes steady or reduce them.

Suit Called 'Publicity Stunt'

RALEIGH — A U.S. Justice Department suit seeking an injunction to keep North Carolina from segregating inmates at Central Prison by race is a "publicity stunt," says state Attorney General Rufus Edmisten.

The complaint filed in U.S. District Court in Raleigh on Wednesday asks the court to order the state to desegregate all facilities in the state prison system, assign prisoners to housing "on the basis of valid and reasonable non-racial standards," correct the effects of past discriminatory practices, and issue regulations with the purpose of establishing a state policy of providing non-segregated housing for prisoners.

Edmisten and other state officials say they are puzzled by the timing of the suit, which comes about a month before more than 300 prisoners are scheduled to be transferred to single cells inside a new addition to Central Prison.

Use Of Drugs Restricted

RALEIGH — A consent decree signed by a federal judge restricts the state's administration of "psychotropic" drugs to inmates only under conditions in which the inmate's safety or the safety of others is threatened.

The consent decree bars involuntary administration of the drugs for "the purposes of coercion, punishment, or other inappropriate purpose(s)."

The judgment, signed by U.S. District Court Judge Franklin T. Dupress, resolves part of a February 1981 suit filed against the state by Paul Mack Baugh. The inmate contended he was forcibly committed to mental health facilities at Central Prison and Wayne County Correctional Center and given psychotropic drugs against his will.

Baugh is serving a 23-year sentence for a 1966 armed robbery conviction in Mecklenburg County.

Watts Says Tape Doctored

GOLDSBORO — An FBI spokesman has denied allegations by convicted COLCOR defendant Howard Franklin Watts that the FBI doctored a videotape to imply that Watts said Sandy White Jr. was a "torch man" for Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

Watts, interviewed in prison by The Fayetteville Times, said he never made the recorded statement that White is "known to be a torch man" for Green.

When Watts was sentenced in Bertie County on arson charges, state prosecutors played a videotape of a conversation between Watts and FBI agent Robert Drdak. Watts accused the FBI of tampering with the tape and said he believes the FBI inserted the statement about Green into a recording made of a conversation between him and agents on April 26.

"The statement was made that I said Sandy was Jimmy Green's torch man. Yet I was not in the picture. It's my voice, and yet how did they change it to make it say that because I never said that," Watts said during the interview.

Robert Pence, special agent in charge of the FBI in North Carolina, denied that agents had tampered with any of the tapes. He said if Watts had any solid evidence to back up his allegations, it would be investigated.

Soul City Land Sought

WARRENTON — Land formerly set aside for Soul City, a now-defunct project to provide economic development opportunities for blacks, may be used for an industrial park to bring more industries to rural Warren County.

A Warren County delegation met last week with state industry recruiters to ask for help in persuading the federal New Communities Development Corp., a division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, to use the land for industry.

Soul City was a federally subsidized residential, industrial and commercial project started in 1974 by civil rights leader Floyd McKissick. It was designed to be a black-operated enterprise that federal officials hoped would spark economic development by providing jobs, housing and public investments.

Much of the land between Warrenton and Soul City, now in federal hands, has sewer lines connecting it to a new waste treatment plant. The $5.8 million facility has a capacity of 2 million gallons a day and a water system that draws from Kerr Lake.

Reagan Hopeful For Arms Talks

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan says U.S. officials feel the Soviets are negotiating in earnest at Geneva and he is "a little optimistic" about the prospects for an arms reduction agreement in 1983.

The president, arriving Wednesday at this desert playground for a four-day New Year's holiday, indicated American representatives at the strategic arms reduction talks think negotiations are moving along.

Meanwhile, White House sources said Reagan was likely to name former national security adviser Brent Scowcroft to head the commission that will study possible deployment modes for the 100 MX missiles Reagan wants to build.

Scowcroft served as deputy White House national security adviser under Henry Kissinger during the final two years of the Nixon administration and was national security adviser under former President Gerald Ford. He is now a partner in the consulting firm of Kissinger Associates, Inc.

The announcement of the commission's makeup could come as early as today. The sources said that although it had once been considered highly likely that former defense secretaries Harold Brown and James Schlesinger would be named to the panel, Schesinger was considered an unlikely candidate now because "the president decided he didn't want him."

Reagan agreed to name the commission after Congress voiced strong objections to his plan to place the missiles in a "Dense Pack" formation in underground silos near Cheyenne, Wyo.

The president's remarks on the Geneva talks were prompted by the prediction of his chief arms negotiator, Edward Rowny, that there is a 50-50 chance the Soviets and the United States will reach an arms agreement next year. The new arms limitation talks began last summer.

Rowny said the two sides have done in six months what it took two years to accomplish during the SALT II talks.

Police Investigate Five Wrecks In City

An estimated $10,200 property damage resulted from a five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Wednesday.

Heaviest damage, officers said, resulted from a 4:45 p.m. collision on 10th Street, 40 feet east of the Cedar Lane intersection, involving vehicles driven by Battle Hawkins Emory of 300 N. Oak St. and Julian Lyder Cleveland of Tarboro.

No charges were made by investigators who estimated damage at $1,400 to the Emory car and $1,500 to the Cleveland truck.

Percy Ray Hart of Route 1, Hookerton, was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 12:35 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Police said the Hart car was involved in the mishap with cars driven by Melrose Respess Moore of 1118 Ragsdale Road and Jane Welch Arbasmith of Farmville.

Damage to the Moore and Arbasmith cars was set at $700 each, while damage to the Hart vehicle was placed at $1,200.

Cars driven by Louis Paige Davis of Washington and Evelyn Venters Williams of Route 2, Greenville, collided about 1 p.m. at the intersection of First and Reade streets, resulting in an estimated $2,000 damage to the Davis car and $500 damage to the Williams auto.

A car driven by Hugh Lee Fulcher Jr. of 402A Lewis St. and a truck operated by William Thomas Edwards of Kinston collided about 4:45 p.m. at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Elm Street, causing $1,500 damage to the Fulcher car and $300 damage to the truck, officers reported.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 7:43 p.m. incident at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and St. Andrews Drive.

Police identified the drivers of the cars involved as Robin Ann Herring of 202 Georgetown Apartments and Joan Bond Giordano of 152 Oxford Drive.

Battleships Return

The battleship New Jersey is one of the giant war vessels which is being returned to duty. The vessel has been recommissioned and will be on active duty for the fourth time. The sight of the huge war ships is stirring and by sheer size they appear invincible. Alas, in this day of atomic weapons they can be wiped off the earth in a puff of smoke.

The New Jersey was refitted at a cost of $326 million and is armed with missiles and modern electronic equipment. It has a cruising speed of 35.6 knots and perhaps could be of value in a conventional naval war. It would be a steady target for a nuclear-tipped missile, however.

Perhaps the battleships we are putting back in service will be symbols of the naval might the United States hopes to build. The big ships can be awesome as they ply the seas, but are they worth the $326 million it took to outfit this one? And is the huge operating expense of keeping the battleships going worth it to us?

If we need to build our military perhaps the battleship money could be better spent elsewhere.

Costs Nothing To Hope

The Christmas shopping spree, all across the Southland and extending north and west, underscored a premise we've hung on to through the dark days of economic recession. That is — a lot of potential buyers were "psyched" into a non-spending attitude.

Those huge turnouts at sporting events, the record attendance at new movies, the travel and vacations, the many millions of dollars in profits scored by those computer games (largely provided by youngsters) all pointed to money waiting to be turned loose into the economy.

There was hope that Christmas and the habit, need or desire to spend might overcome that natural reluctance. It might be the "trigger" to a general turnaround that could stimulate the circulation of money that stimulates demand, sales, production, etc.

We have seen it happen before.

Admittedly, the '82 recession is deep and far-reaching with international undertones that require more than a flash-in-the-pan rebound.

Still, it costs nothing to hope.

Tax Jump Cited

By PAUL O'CONNOR

Individuals and families have seen their state and local taxes increase rapidly in North Carolina over the past 20 years while at the same time business taxes have grown more slowly.

Charles D. Liner, an Institute of Government economist, writes in the most recent issue of Popular Government magazine that North Carolina tax rates are among the highest in the nation, a finding that debunks the popularly held notion that our taxes are among the lowest. Liner says that individual and family tax payments in North Carolina rose two and one-half faster from 1960 to 1980 than did business tax payments.

business. The state's personal taxes are high compared to those of other states, he says. But "overall, the level of business taxation in North Carolina is comparatively low."

"Mainly because of the large increases in individual income tax revenues, taxes on business as a proportion of total tax revenue have declined steadily over the case. Let's say a family of four had an income of $8,985 in 1960. If over that 20 years they received no pay increase in real terms, just enough to keep up with inflation, they would have earned $25,000 in 1980. In 1960, this family paid $175 in state income taxes and $54 in sales taxes — a total of 2.6 percent of their income. In 1980, they paid $1,068 in state income taxes and $393 in sales taxes — 5.9 percent of their income.

When Liner extends his hypothetical case further into the future, it gets worse for this family. Again, assuming they get nothing other than a 6 percent inflation raise, their total state tax burden jumps to 6.3 percent and 6.6 percent of their income in the years 1985 and 1990, respectively. His numbers show that while the family's income grew by 178 percent in those 20 years, their taxes grew by 538 percent. While their income will grow by 79 percent this decade, their taxes will jump by 103 percent.

Under the progressive tax system, the tax bill continued to increase even though the Legislature did not raise tax rates. In fact, there were even two tax cuts. Legislators voted to up the personal exemption from $600 to $700 in 1980 and to $800 in 1981.

past few decades," he writes. The increase in the state's tax collections from corporation income taxes was half the national average. "As a percentage of state tax collections, revenues from the corporation income tax, state franchise taxes, and other state license taxes on corporations in general declined as a percentage of total state tax revenues from 13 percent in 1960 to 10.6 percent in 1980."

To show how the personal tax burden has increased for North Carolina families, Liner sets up a hypothetical

Security Plans Sabotaged

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Only the Capitol Hill appropriations committee elite were fully aware that the undecipherable, 300-page federal financing bill passed on Dec. 20 undermines key national security designs that President Reagan had every reason to believe were inviolate.

Reagan was sabotaged and so were majorities on Senate and House legislative committees dealing with national security. Down the drain that evening went Reagan's military aid program for Pakistan, along with the president's plan to stockpile arms and supplies at NATO forward bases, to guard against surprise Soviet attack.

"Serious damage to our national security may result," an irate Sen. John Tower, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, lectured his colleagues just before passage of the continuing resolution financing the government to next Oct. 1. In an accusation many senators agreed with, Tower excoriated the Senate Appropriations Committee as simply not equipped to give more than "superficial consideration" to national security issues.

The mad-hatter appropriations process now in Capitol Hill vogue ignored legislative committees with at least some expertise in specific areas. Policies and money are pounded together into an impenetrable package by the all-powerful appropriations committees and brought to the floor on a take-it-or-leave-it basis in the dying hours of the session.

The Pakistan arms package was peculiarly vulnerable, and emergency aid is now required early next year. The Senate-House conference agreement on the money bill to finance much of the government for most of next year ignored Pakistan. It ignored Reagan's personal assurance to President Zia ul-Haq in Washington only two weeks earlier.

That the pro-Israel lobby was at work here, moved by Israel's concern over an alleged "Islamic" bomb, is suspected inside the administration but not substantiated. The simpler truth is that members of the appropriations committees are ignorant about key phases of U.S. foreign policy.

As bad as the slight to Pakistan, equally perverse was the decision by the two appropriations committees to deny Reagan power to reduce arms aid for Spain, Portugal and Greece, among other nations. That compels the president to stay under the imposed overall ceiling by cutting aid to Morocco, Tunisia, Bahrain, Oman and possibly other states that happen to include this country's best Arab friends.

With only a handful of copies of the resolution printed, even well-informed members of Congress who back Reagan's policies abroad were aghast to learn — hours after the voting ended — what they had voted on. But one unsurprised lawmaker was Tower, who kept himself informed on the radical changes forced on him by Sen. Ted Stevens, chairman of the military appropriations subcommittee.

MX missile money was doomed before the appropriations committees exacted their tribute, but a late change in that item infuriated Tower and his armed services colleagues. Under the MX compromise agreed to earlier, the armed services committees were to be the judge of Reagan's 1983 MX deployment plan, thus becoming traffic cop for releasing production money. Stevens grabbed that key role for himself and the appropriations committee, neither expert nor sympathetic when it comes to national security.

NATO's frontline stockpile money, backed by Tower's committee and earlier by the Senate, was excised by Stevens to satisfy politically-powerful demands of the National Guard lobby. That shredded the top fiscal 1983 priority of NATO's supreme commander, Gen. Bernard Rogers.

Conversion of appropriations committees into elite tribunals has revolutionized Congress and threatens the White House. A backlash is certain, led by strong committee chairmen such as Tower. Ronald Reagan, victim of the congressional mad-hatters, will be cheering Tower on.

Strength For Today

STONE IN THE ROAD

A legend of medieval origin tells the story of a king who decided to teach his subjects a lesson. In the middle of his most important road he placed a large stone which seriously impeded traffic. Day after day, as he expected, travelers came by, cursed the stone and went around it. All complained about the stone, but none moved it. Finally the king summoned the people to his palace, went out on the road, and in their presence lifted the stone himself. Underneath was a bag of gold marked, "For the one who moves the stone."

The day has passed when we can expect to receive a bag of gold for an unselfish and considerate action, but working for others still has rewards just as great and sometimes just as tangible. Whatever we do to help others helps ourselves in a very real sense. The Golden Rule is not a childish platitude; it is a basic foundation for building a better life for all. — Elisha Douglass

Coalition Is Fraying

By WALTER R. MEARS

AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's governing coalition seems to be fraying at the far conservative edge, but there's a made that he would risk a lot more if he catered to the right.

It is made by A. James Reichley of the Brookings Institution. He's one of those pragmatic Republicans the conservatives mistrust most.

In Reichley's view, Reagan was elected as the candidate of a coalition, and while he has turned government sharply to the right, he has held it together through his first two years, and needs to keep doing so.

Reichley writes that the frictions within the coalition were inevitable because it spans the Republican spectrum, from establishment conservatives to the religious New Right and supply side economic theorists to the moderate and progressive wings of the party.

Those are the factions Reagan had to beat to win his GOP nomination, but they have supported the administration, because of his popularity, because they see it as important to the party future, and, according to Reichley, because they agree in large part with his programs.

The conservatives complain that Reagan has spent too many appointments and tailored too many programs to the liking of the Republican center, instead of doing what his real friends want done.

But according to Reichley, the programs came first and the more liberal Republicans came along because they agreed on goals. "Many of Reagan's initiatives expressed elements in the moderates' and progressives' own philosophies — though he often carried these beyond what they would have preferred," he writes. "Moderates and progressives, like most other American conservatives, believe deeply in the ideas of federalism and the market system. Both ideas have been given new life by Reagan."

According to Reichley, some elements of the Reagan coalition, particularly the groups he calls conservative fundamentalists, are irate at the president's moves away from dogmatic ideology, in his appointments, in such steps as the tax increase passed last summer, and in a relatively cautious approach to the Soviet Union.

They certainly are. Richard A. Viguierie, the conservative fund-raiser who has become a spokesman of the New Right, calls Reagan's foreign policy "Carterism without Carter."

"The domestic policy is not too far away from that reality, either," Viguierie says, arguing that Reagan takes conservative support too much for granted and so is risking it.

To the editor:

Retiring District Attorney Eli Bloom leaves a long and illustrious legacy for which he should be highly commended. The very nature of the job, with its associated complexities and responsibilities, does not lend itself to service without controversy, misunderstanding or even undeserved criticism. Those of us who render public service, all too often, do not get proper credit for the good things we do. But on the other hand, we get far too much blame for the most trivial things which go wrong. I am sure that Mr. Bloom's experiences make him understand and accept this as one of the inescapable facts of life.

It is expected that Mr. Bloom's successor will develop his own criteria, and fashion his own policies in the execution of his duties in connection with the operation of his office. It is hoped that fairness and concern for true justice will be among his top priorities. There should be just as much concern for the protection of the innocent as there is for the punishment of the guilty. An innocent man sent to prison represents a far greater tragedy than a guilty one who goes unpunished because of a reasonable doubt. In the district attorney's office, the diligent and unbiased search for truth should never end.

Here's wishing the incoming district attorney the greatest success in his new job.

To the editor:

Your Dec. 14 edition carried the account of Ayden Commissioner Elliot Dixon's motion to refuse Ayden's share of ABC Board funds because it was "sinful" and "tainted." I hear many good things about Commissioner Dixon and can understand his point. But there are always two sides.

Some years ago a minister was said to have been approached by a bootlegger who wanted to contribute a large sum to help build a new sanctuary. He approached the preacher with some dread, saying, "Preacher, I'm a bit embarrassed because you know I got this money selling corn liquor." The preacher responded, "Well, sir, that's right. But I'm happy to take your donation. I reckon the Devil's had it long enough!"

Reorganization Helps Family Save Its Farm

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

WECOTA, S.D. (AP) — You reach Charles Bellman's farm compound after driving lonely miles through treeless farms and ranches on roads that run straight to the horizon, clean as a draftsman's line.

Driving home from a meeting with bankers in Aberdeen, 55 miles northeast, Bellman and his fiancée, Lois Papousek, conceived the idea of how to save Bellman Farms Inc. from foreclosure.

"I didn't think I had any rights, that creditors just led you down the path," he said. "I was depressed. It was my business, my home, and all I had worked for and everything my parents had worked for."

But he and Lois remembered having read about a law allowing businesses to reorganize rather than accept foreclosure.

Instead of meeting with the bankers on Dec. 1, 1981 to arrange the sale of farm assets, he and Lois filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy law, seldom used by farmers.

Chuck and Lois still work the farm with a hired hand and her teen-age son, Kelly. "We've gained a year with no interest, we've got money in the bank, grain in the bins and cattle to sell to pay on our loans," he said.

They did more. Chuck wrote and published a small book on how to save farms from foreclosure, and he and Lois founded an organization to spread the word. So far, they've written or spoken to 1,100 farmers in 47 states. Many of them have similarly sought court protection.

Chuck Bellman, 50, is a hardy, versatile man. A former military pilot, he worked toward a doctorate at the University of Minnesota, taught at the University of North Dakota and once owned a newspaper in Vermillion, S.D.

He bought the farm from his parents in 1974, when it consisted of 960 acres worth $145 an acre, including house and barns, and another 3,200 leased acres. That year he bought another 160 acres for $20,000, and in 1975 he added 960 acres for $187,200. Together with $240,000 worth of equipment and short term assets such as cattle, he valued the property at $586,000 in 1975.

In 1981, with land values having soared to about $360 an acre, he estimated the value at $2.5 million, including 2,000 cattle at $700 a head. But more than inflation was occurring. Crop prices were falling, and drought had cut yields.

Worse, interest rates were rising. Still, the lack of operating profits forced Chuck to do what most other farmers were doing. He borrowed on the inflated equity in the farm. His loans mounted to $2 million.

"When they jacked up interest rates they put us out of business," he related softly, always with grim humor at the awful twists of fate. Atop it all, drought forced him to send cattle all the way to Nebraska for pasture.

Then the bankers called him to Aberdeen. The Production Credit Association, to whom he owed most of the money, told him his debt to equity ratio had fallen below limits. To accommodate them, he sold 500 cow-calf pairs for $650 a pair. A year earlier, in 1979, he believes he could have obtained $700 a head.

"I tried to sell back down and instead kept getting into worse trouble because the prices I got were less than what I had paid," he said. Because of such conditions, land prices understandably fell, probably to $210 an acre.

"The bank," the Production Credit Association, a sort of credit union operated under the Farm Credit Association, told him to sell "voluntarily."

That's when he and Lois filed to reorganize, betting that crop and land values would rise again, and that interest rates would rise again. So far, their reorganization plan hasn't been accepted.

Meanwhile, they founded FAMINE, an acronym for Farmers of America Merge in the 1980s, and began sending mimeographed letters to every newspaper in the country, informing farmers how to protect themselves.

Lois is a stunning blonde who can ride a horse or tractor, research legal and economic data, and pound a typewriter. She is organized, and seemingly tireless. "I'd be in the booby hatch without her," said Chuck.

The two, who hope to marry when legal matters are settled, met after Chuck, father of two grown sons, was divorced. Lois, divorced long before, owned a dance hall, protecting herself and three sons with a pistol under the bar.

From a library office equipped with an electric typewriter and photocopier, they prepare a detailed, monthly newsletter for which they ask a $15 donation. The mimeographed book, "A Second Chance," sells for $10.

The telephones, two of them, are in the kitchen. They ring regularly, up to 30 times a day, the calls coming from desperate farmers, many of whom, Chuck and Lois say, probably spent the night staring out the window.

The phone rings at dinner-time. Holding it in her right hand, Lois patiently assures a farmer that he mig' buy time to get on his feet, all the while stirring with her free hand the pheasant cooking on the stove.

Holiday Revels May Be Lean For Nightspots

By DAVID GREEN
Associated Press Writer

New Year's Eve revelers who drink and drive risk a visit to jail after their night on the town, but staying at home may be in style anyway if hotel and restaurant reservations give any clue.

Several states have enacted tougher drunk-driving laws and many areas will have stepped-up police patrols on Friday night. In New Jersey, the drinking age rises from 19 to 21 when the clock strikes midnight.

Imbibers who have second thoughts about hitting the road will be able to get a lift for a happy New Year in some areas, where Good Samaritans will be serving up coffee and transportation to the tipsy.

A number of holiday nightspots report their reservations aren't as heavy as hoped, but some fancier spots say business is booming.

Reservations for the New Year's Eve party at the Marriott Hotel in Omaha, Neb., at $110 a couple, are "below expectations," said Keith Cook, sales manager.

"With all the spending for Christmas, people just are not in the mood to spend more money because there's not much money to spend in the first place with the economy," Cook said.

The New Year's Eve ticket price has been cut from $10 to $5 at the Hummingbird, an Indianapolis nightclub where co-owner Steve Magers says business has fallen 40 percent.

"The economy is just so bad that we felt like people don't have the money to spend like last year," he said.

But at the Colony restaurant in the Hartford, Conn., suburb of Vernon, reservations are at least as strong as last year, said manager Jennifer Silway.

"People are still going out a lot. Economy or no economy, they're still going out," she said. Dinners range from $8.95 to $16.95.

At New York's Waldorf-Astoria, where the party will be nationally televised on CBS, reservations are running ahead of last year, said spokeswoman Melinda Lande. The cost ranges from $200 to $225 a person.

Thousands are expected to show up for an equally famous celebration across town when a lighted "Big Apple" drops down 1 Times Square Tower at midnight. At nearby Nathan's, the famous fast-food restaurant expects to sell 3,400 to 4,000 hot dogs for $1.03 apiece.

President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will be spending New Year's Eve at the 200-acre estate of millionaire publisher Walter Annenberg in Palm Springs, Calif.

To the northeast, and a few hours later, more than 1 million people are expected in Pasadena for the 94th annual Tournament of Roses Parade, followed by the Rose Bowl football game New Year's Day. The nationally televised parade will include 60 floats, 22 marching bands, a herd of elephants — and a human cannonball.

Three new provisions of California law on drunken drivers take effect Jan. 1, tightening rules on blood alcohol tests and license suspension hearings. The California Highway Patrol is stepping up patrols and expects some 1,500 drunken driving arrests statewide over the weekend.

In Tennessee, police say they are cracking down on drunken drivers, and a new state law requires at least 48 hours in jail for convictions.

The drinking age change in New Jersey will not spoil the celebration of 19- and 20-year-olds on New Year's Eve. It does not affect those who will turn 19 by Friday.

A presidential commission urged earlier this month that the District of Columbia and 35 states with drinking ages lower than 21 raise it to combat drunken driving, blamed for 25,000 traffic deaths annually.

Several churches in Phoenix, Ariz., are sponsoring free rides for people who are too drunk to make it on their own.

"All we want to do is just keep some people alive," said the Rev. Greg Gearing of the Southern Baptist Temple.

Snow Deflates Dome's Roof

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The fabric roof of the Hubert H. Humphrey Metrodome deflated this morning, the victim of heavy ice and snow buildup.

No injuries were reported. It was not immediately known whether the roof could be repaired in time for the Monday night football game between the Minnesota Vikings and the Dallas Cowboys.

The roof began going down about 4 a.m. Witnesses out watching a lunar eclipse said they heard a groaning sound and then watched as the roof went down.

The dome was designed so it would fall to a deflated position if its snow-melting system failed or if a panel of the teflon-coated, fiberglass fabric tore, releasing the hot air that holds it up.

The New York City architecture company that designed the roof and officials of Metropolitan Sports Facilities Commission have said there would be no danger to anyone sitting in the arena if the dome deflated suddenly.

FOCUS

It's A Date

Believe it or not, that new calendar that just arrived from your insurance company took mankind centuries to perfect. It is a Gregorian Calendar, named for Pope Gregory XIII, and it is accurate to 26.3 seconds per solar year. Before the 16th Century, the world ran according to a calendar developed by the astronomer Sosigenes for Julius Caesar in 46 B.C. But the Julian Calendar was 11 minutes and 14 seconds longer than the solar year. This extra time mounted up, and, by 1582, the Julian Calendar was ten days ahead of the seasons. So Pope Gregory dropped ten days. By papal decree, October 5, 1582 became October 15 — too bad if your birthday was one of the missing days.

DO YOU KNOW — What was the original Roman name for the month of July before it was changed in honor of Julius Caesar?
WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Sam Houston was the only President of Texas.

New Jobless Claims Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 544,000 Americans filed first-time claims for unemployment insurance compensation benefits in the week ending Dec. 18, an increase of 11,000 over the previous week but well below the level of recent months, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's Employment and Training Administration said the total of new applications, adjusted to take seasonal variations into account, was below 600,000 for the fourth consecutive week.

Economists have been generally cautious about basing forecasts of future employment trends on the weekly unemployment claims statistics, noting that these figures tend to bounce up and down. Assistant Labor Secretary John Cogan has called the unemployment claims report a "volatile" economic indicator.

Nonetheless, first-time applications for jobless benefits have been declining in recent weeks, raising the possibility that unemployment may be peaking. The national jobless rate hit 10.8 percent of the labor force in November. Figures for December are to be released Jan. 7 by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

In its report today, the department also said there were 4,500,000 people drawing jobless benefits under state-run programs in the week ending Dec. 11 — a decline of 24,000 from the previous week.

The insured unemployment rate — the proportion of the U.S. labor force drawing unemployment compensation insurance payments — fell from 5.2 percent to 5.1 percent in the week ending Dec. 11.

West Virginia, at 10 percent, had the highest insured unemployment rate among the various states. It was followed by Pennsylvania, 7.8 percent; Michigan, 7.6; Alabama, 7.5; Idaho, 7.4; Oregon, 7.3; Arkansas, 7.1; Kentucky, 6.9; Washington state, 6.9, and Illinois, 6.5.

Some 363,600 Americans were drawing 13 weeks of extended unemployment benefits under a joint federal-state program in 12 states and Puerto Rico. That was up from 355,900 during the previous week.

Approximately 716,200 people were getting between six to 10 weeks of extra benefits under provisions of the special Federal Supplemental Compensation Act program — a decline of 51,600 in the week ending Dec. 11, the agency said.

Climber Presumed Dead

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Famed Japanese mountaineer Yasuo Kato, 33, the first non-Nepalese to scale Mount Everest three times, was "presumed dead" on the world's tallest mountain, Nepal's Ministry of Tourism said today.

Quoting a radio report from Kato's base camp near the summit, it said his long-time Japanese climbing partner, Toshiyuki Kobayashi, 33, also was believed to have frozen to death on Everest.

The ministry report said the two men are presumed to have died near the summit of the mountain Monday night or Tuesday. The ministry decreed Kato as one of the "foremost climbers in the world."

After the Nepalese liaison officer read the official death report, Yoshimas Sasaki, 27, the expedition's deputy leader, said, "They are no more...no more."

Kato had succeeded in reaching the summit of Everest for the third time last Monday, while Kobayashi, suffering frostbite, failed to make it to the top.

The two climbers had spent Monday night at a makeshift camp 900 yards below the 29,028-foot summit under severe weather conditions, but did not make a promised radio report Tuesday.

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 41.75 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. Too few of the loads offered have been confirmed to report prices. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for a light to moderate demand. Weights desirable to heavy. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Thursday was 1,581,000, compared to 1,028,000 last Thursday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady with weak undertone. Supplies fully adequate, demand light. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Wednesday and Thursday slaughter was 15 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today in the next-to-last trading session of 1982. Trading remained relatively quiet. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 1.84 to 1,057.76 by noon. Gainers held a slim lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened the government reported that its index of leading economic indicators rose 0.8 percent last month. That marked the seventh increase in the last eight months for the index, which is designed to function as a kind of barometer of economic activity. However, advance estimates by Wall Street economists had called for a rise of as much as 1 percent. Toys R Us dropped 3 to 41 1/2 in active trading. The company reported a 25.6 percent increase in toy sales for the peak November-December selling season, but the figure evidently fell short of some investors' expectations. Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines rose 1/2 to 97 1/2, while American Telephone & Telegraph was down 1/2 at 59 1/2 and DuPont slipped 3/4 to 36 1/2.

Pantego Man Held In Theft

A 21-year old Pantego man was arrested by Greenville police Wednesday night on common law robbery charges shortly after a woman's purse was snatched from her hands in the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center. Chief Glenn Cannon said a man allegedly grabbed a purse from Margaret McCormick of Winterville as she walked along a sidewalk in the shopping center, and ran. Witnesses chased the thief across Arlington Boulevard to near Kroger Sav-on Food & Drugs. Cannon said when officers arrived at the scene, they found Dwayne Whitney hiding in a large cardboard box behind Maxwell Furniture (next to Kroger's), and took him into custody.

Weinberger Says More Cuts Would Ax Security

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, facing rising demands for defense spending reductions, said today, "I do not believe we can cut more from our defense programs without risk to our national security."

Riot ...

(Continued from page 1) additional arrests and injuries stemmed from "sporadic incidents" outside of the riot zone. Most of those were arrested on burglary and loitering charges. One person was charged with aggravated assault and one with encouraging a riot.

Howard Gary, Miami city manager and its highest-ranking black official, credited the peace to community leaders and restraint of the police. He had ordered police to stop using tear gas because of fears that it had incited new violence Wednesday. He said it had not been necessary to impose a curfew Wednesday night.

Police used gas during the day to disperse gangs of black youths roaming the run-down neighborhood, tossing rocks and bottles, overturning and torching cars. Among the injured were an elderly woman who was badly shaken when a gang attacked her car Wednesday and snatched her purse. A policeman received minor injuries when a rock was hurled through his windshield and a motorist was hit in the face with a chunk of concrete, authorities said.

In Tallahassee, a spokeswoman for Gov. Bob Graham said the National Guard had been alerted in case conditions worsened. Other cities in the Dade County area had their forces on standby.

The disturbances came during Orange Bowl week celebrations and the beginning of the winter tourist season. All Orange Bowl events remained scheduled, but subject to cancellation depending on the severity of the disturbances, said Ed Goss, publicity chairman for the Orange Bowl Committee.

The huge Orange Bowl parade is scheduled Friday night and the parade route would take it within three blocks of Overton. The district was reopened to traffic Wednesday, but then sealed off again, with police called back in, after residents and business owners called to demand protection. Liquor stores and gas stations were ordered closed.

Gary urged motorists to avoid Interstate 95 and the Dolphin Expressway through Overton after black youths hurled rocks and bottles at suburb-bound cars Wednesday afternoon. Downtown state and county offices, and some private businesses, closed early so workers could get home safely. Engineers used a computerized traffic-light control system to speed the outbound flow.

UNC Wins Third Straight

Boxes on page 10
By The Associated Press
Defending national champion North Carolina began the 1982-83 basketball season on a rocky road, losing three of its first seven games.
But the Tar Heels get a chance to recoup some of their wounded pride when they play in the finals of the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu tonight.
Coach Dean Smith's club won its third consecutive game Wednesday night, defeating Oklahoma 77-69 behind the strong play of center Sam Perkins to advance to the finals.

UNC also gets the chance for some revenge in tonight's finals as it faces Missouri, a 73-58 winner over Hawaii. Missouri is one of the teams that defeated the Tar Heels earlier.
In games involving other Atlantic Coast Conference teams Wednesday, Wake Forest went down to its first defeat in eight games by losing to St. John's 72-65 in the finals of the Holiday Festival in New York; fourth-ranked Virginia coasted to a 102-85 victory over Richmond in the semifinals of the Richmond Times-Dispatch Invitational Tournament; Duke stormed past New Hampshire 82-48 and Clemson lost a 69-59 decision to Texas-El Paso in the Sun Carnival tournament in El Paso, Texas.

At Honolulu, Perkins had one of the better games of his

DHC, Aycock In Finals

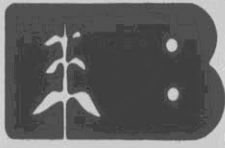

HOLLYWOOD — Undeclared D.H. Conley withstood a fourth-quarter comeback by Goldsboro and C.B. Aycock outlasted Greenville Rose as both teams advanced into the title game of the Conley Girls Christmas Invitational Basketball Tournament last night.
The Valkyries beat 4-A Goldsboro, 34-32, and C.B. Aycock downed the Ramettes, 54-48, to move into tonight's finals. Game time is 8:30.
Rose, now 2-4, will play Goldsboro, now 4-3, for third place at 7 p.m.
In other games last night, Farmville Central won its first game of the season, defeating West Craven, 57-46, and Southern Wayne upended North Pitt, 48-40. The Lady Jaguars, now 1-8, play Southern Wayne, now 2-5, for fifth place tonight at 5:30.
In the opening game today at 4 p.m., West Craven, now 1-8, battles North Pitt, now 4-5, for seventh place in the eight-team tournament.
The Valkyries, now 8-0, surged to a 14-point lead after three periods only to have Goldsboro rally to tie it, 32-32, with less than a minute left. Conley's Irish Barnhill made the first of a one-and-one to give DHC a 33-32 lead and DHC's Karen Barrett grabbed the missed second shot.

Then, with four seconds left, Darlene Cannon was fouled and made the front end of her one-and-one to up the lead to two. Goldsboro rebounded the miss and got off a shot but it missed, sending DHC into the finals.
Alma Bethea led Goldsboro with 14 points. DHC was led by Mechio Kornegay with 11 points.
The Valkyries jumped out to a 10-6 lead in the opening period and then upped their lead to 18-10 at the half. DHC outscored Goldsboro, 10-4, in the third period to push its lead to 28-14 going into the final period.
Goldsboro scored 18 points in the final eight minutes — four more than it had managed the other three quarters combined — but the Valkyries held on for the win.

C.B. Aycock, the defending tournament champ, inched out to a 15-12 lead over Rose at the end of the first period. Both teams scored 16 points in the second period and CBA led at the half, 31-28.
The Lady Falcons upped their lead to 43-36 after three periods. Rose battled back to tie the game at 43-43 with three minutes left, but three straight trips down court without a bucket allowed Aycock to regain the lead and escape with the win.
Rose was led by Francis Barnhill with 18 points and Doris Richardson with 11. CBA's Sheri Williams topped all scorers with 19 points. Marsha Hester added 15 and Zina Jones 12 for the Lady Falcons.
Rose turned the ball over 17 times to 12 for the Lady Falcons. The Ramettes lost the battle of the boards, 38-287.

Southern Wayne raced to 14-4 lead after the first eight minutes against North Pitt only to see the Pant-HERS rally to narrow the deficit to 22-20 at the half.
The Lady Blue Devils all but sealed the win in the third period when they outscored North Pitt, 10-2, to take a 32-22, lead going into the final period. The Pant-HERS outscored Southern Wayne, 18-16, the final quarter but it was far from enough.
North Pitt lost the game at the foul line, where the Pant-HERS were a meager 16 of 43. Southern Wayne was 12 of 17.
North Pitt's Linda Harrell topped all scorers with 19 points. Delores Pittman had 12 points for the Pant-HERS.

Bear Goes Out A Winner

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Bear Bryant won't have college football to kick around any more.
The final majestic line in the record book reads 323 victories, 85 defeats and 17 ties in a 38-year head coaching career, but it is the winning, winning, winning — the absolute refusal to settle for anything less than the best — which future generations of football fans will recall when they remember Paul William "Bear" Bryant.

The Bear and the Crimson Tide of Alabama wrote the final chapter to a fabulous career Wednesday night and sent the 69-year-old coach shuffling off into retirement with an exciting but sloppy 21-15 triumph over Illinois in the 24th annual Liberty Bowl despite a record 423-yard passing barrage by Tony Eason of the losers.
"This is a happy occasion, as well as a sad one, for everybody on our team because we not only lost a coach, but we lost a man who has been very inspirational in most of our lives," said split end Jesse Bendross, who scored Alabama's second touchdown on an end-around in the third period.

The Bear, of course, was not going to change his act at what he called "my last roundup," and he bowed out insisting as he had so many times in the past that "we won in spite of me. I had no input in what they were doing. The staff did a heck of a job. I don't recall making the right decisions all night."

To a man, the Alabama players sounded like Bryant clones, refusing to take any credit.
"I don't feel too good about the offensive player award because I made a mistake that could have cost Coach Bryant his last game," said quarterback Walter Lewis, who directed scoring drives of 76, 50 and 66 yards but fumbled the ball away at his 24 with 4:38 left to play.
The outstanding player award went to cornerback Jeremiah Castille, who had three of Alabama's seven interceptions, batted down a two-point conversion pass to preserve a 14-12 lead early in the final period and forced a fumble after Illinois completed a pass at the Alabama 2-yard line in the second quarter.

"I can't take credit for this award because it was a good pass rush that set up the interceptions," Castille said.
But no one poormouths like the Bear, who insisted that "my retirement was not a quick decision and I do have regrets for my mistakes over the years."

As it has so often, Alabama's defense kept the Bear from going out a loser.
"I am just thankful and happy that we could win one for Coach Bryant just like Notre Dame did for the Gipper," said linebacker Robbie Jones, whose interception at his 30 with 16 seconds left finally put Illinois down for the count. "At the end of the game, we were trying to pull together on every play as a defensive unit."

It was a night filled with nostalgia, and more than a few tears were shed.

"When I wake up in the morning and realize I'm no longer in this business, I may have some second thoughts about it, but I don't think so," said Bryant, who compiled a mark of 232-46-9 in 25 years at Alabama. "I told the players before the game people will always remember them for this game ... they'll remember me for this game because of the circumstances ... and it'll certainly make my future years a lot more pleasant."

The scoreboard will show that fullback Ricky Moore barreled four yards for a first-period touchdown and his backup, Craig Turner, scored the decisive touchdown from the 1 midway through the final quarter.
Eason completed 35 of 55 passes for 423 yards, a Liberty Bowl record and the most ever against Alabama in its 37 bowl trips. Eason's backup, Kris Jenner, got in for three plays when Eason was shaken up and threw three passes. Each one was intercepted.

Illinois scored on Joe Curtis' 1-yard run with 1:03 left in the first half, on a 2-yard, fourth-down pass from Eason to Oliver Williams early in the final period and on Mike Bass' 23-yard field goal with 6:12 remaining.

But the events on the field were transcended by Bryant, the object of everyone's attention.

"Maybe I'm speaking for the coaches all over the country," Illinois' Mike White told a post-game news conference held in a specially erected tent across the street from the stadium to accommodate the large media contingent. "We're losing a great guy. It's fitting that he won."

Turning to Bryant, White said, "We're going to miss you."

When the final gun went off, the Alabama players tried to life Bryant onto their shoulders. That didn't work, so instead they surrounded him and escorted him slowly and lovingly off the field as the message board flashed, "Goodbye, Bear, we'll miss you."

A record Liberty Bowl Memorial Stadium throng of 54,123 saw the prestigious event. Alabama finished with an 8-4 record, Bryant's poorest since 1970, while Illinois wound up 7-5 after its first bowl trip in 19 years.

"Coach Bryant has definitely touched the lives of all his players, and they are better men for it today," said Lewis. "He has definitely helped college football, and I'm sure people everywhere will miss him."

Indiana Routs Grambling; UVa Whips Richmond

By The Associated Press

Bobby Knight was his usual, unassuming self. His Indiana basketball team had just demolished Grambling 110-62 in the inaugural Hoosier Classic, and Knight was fielding questions about how it felt to be No. 1.

"We're still a long way from being a great team," he said. "It'll take a while to become that kind of ballclub, and if there's anyone who knows what it takes to be a great basketball team, it's me."

Although he could not favorably compare this team to his national champions of 1980-81 or 1975-76, when Indiana went undefeated, Knight's Hoosiers were impressive in their first game this season as the top-ranked club in America.

Indiana led 20-6, 49-30 and 108-60, playing reserves most of the way against a hopelessly overmatched Grambling team. Sophomore Winston Morgan, in a reserve role, scored a career-high 15 points. Randy Wittman added 13. The Tigers were led by Kim Cooksey's 18 points.

Indiana's 110 points were the most they have scored since their undefeated season, when they ran up 114 against Wisconsin. The victory raised the Hoosiers' record to 9-0.

The Hoosiers will meet Nebraska in the title game of the tournament tonight at Indianapolis. Stan Cloude scored 14 points to boost the Cornhuskers over Cornell, 66-56.

Rated teams were involved in seven other tournaments. Fourth-ranked Virginia whipped Richmond 102-85 in the first round of the Richmond Times-Dispatch Invitational, No. 6 Alabama clobbered 10th-ranked Georgetown 94-73 in the title game of the Winston Tire Classic, seventh-rated St. John's beat Wake Forest 72-65 in the title game of the ECAC Holiday Festival, and No. 15 Nevada-Las Vegas upset eighth-ranked Tennessee 70-54 in the final of the Las Vegas Holiday tournament.

Ninth-ranked Iowa defeated Seton Hall 85-63 for the championship of the Rochester Classic, No. 12 Missouri beat Hawaii 73-58 in the semifinals of the Rainbow Classic, and No. 16 Villanova beat 19th-ranked Tulsa 75-68 on the opening night of the Cabrillo Classic.

In other games involving ranked teams, No. 3 Kentucky whipped Kansas 83-62 and 14th-rated Syracuse defeated Canisius 109-76.

Forward Jim Miller scored a season-high 19 points to pace Virginia over Richmond. Ralph Sampson added 18 points as the Cavaliers ran off nine straight points to take a 25-12 lead six minutes into the game. Virginia, 9-1, meets undefeated Old Dominion, which beat Virginia Commonwealth 90-85, for the tournament title tonight in Richmond.

David Russell scored a game-high 21 points as undefeated St. John's battled previously unbeaten Wake Forest most of the way before prevailing at Madison Square Garden. The Redmen, 11-0, led by just seven points, 57-50, before Russell hit three straight field goals to put the game away.

Terry Williams scored a career-high 28 points, and Bobby Lee Hurt added 17 to help 8-0 Alabama to an easy victory over Georgetown in the Winston tournament's championship game in Los Angeles.

Georgetown, 8-3, cut the lead to 69-60 with 8:57 left, but Alabama scored the next eight points to lead 77-60 with 7:16 to play.

Bill Martin led the Hoyas with 24 points, and Patrick Ewing had 19 with 13 rebounds.

Sidney Green, a senior center, scored 25 points to lead undefeated Nevada-Las Vegas over previously unbeaten Tennessee. The Volunteers, 8-1, pulled within 10 points, 60-50, on a jump shot by Dale Ellis, but that was as close as Tennessee could come. Jeff Collins, a junior transfer, added 18 points for the Runnin' Rebels, 9-0, while Ellis topped Tennessee with 24 points.

Center Greg Stokes scored 20 points to lead Iowa to an easy victory over Seton Hall. Iowa outscored Seton Hall 18-5 at the outset of the second half to win going away. The Hawkeyes, 8-1, will meet St. Bonaventure for the Rochester Classic title. The Bonnies downed James Madison 58-54.

Kentucky, 8-1, led by 17, 38-21, at halftime and never really had any trouble with Kansas. Derrick Hord scored 23 points and Charles Hurt grabbed 13 rebounds for the Wildcats.

Southern Wayne was led by Kim Hill with 16 points. Cynthia Kornegay had 10 points for Southern Wayne.

Earlier, Farmville Central won its first game of the season, beating West Craven.

The Lady Jaguars trailed after the first period, 11-8, but outscored the Lady Eagles, 16-8, in the second period to take a 24-19 lead at the half. Farmville maintained its lead through the third period and then outscored the Lady Eagles in the final eight minutes, 16-12, to win by nine.

Farmville was led by Stephanie Newton with a game-high 23 points. Debra Joyner added 12 points for Farmville.

West Craven was led by Charlotte Smith with 17 points and Beverly Peel with 16.

career as he scored 23 points and pulled down a personal high 23 rebounds in leading the Tar Heels past Oklahoma.

Perkins, hitting underderneath and outside as well, scored eight of his 23 points in the first 10 minutes of play as the Tar Heels roared to a early 28-10 lead.

The Sooners battled back late in the game, closing the gap to 73-69 with 55 second to play. But Matt Doherty converted two free throws to make it 75-69 with 22 seconds left, and Perkins capped the game with a slam dunk at the buzzer.

North Carolina, now 7-3, outbounded the Sooners 42-36. Michael Jordan pumped in 22 points and also contributed eight rebounds. Jim Braddock chipped in 11 points with a perfect night from field, hitting five of five shots.

At Richmond, reserve forward Jimmy Miller scored a season-high 19 points to lead the Cavaliers, 9-1, into tonight's title game against unbeaten Old Dominion, 4-0.

It was the first game for Virginia since last week's upset at the hands of small college power Chamainade in Hawaii. Coach Terry Holland said after that "it was nice to win again."

The Cavaliers had little difficulty with Richmond, as Ralph Sampson added 18 points, Othell Wilson 17, Tim Mullen 12 and Rick Carlisle 11.

In New York, Wake Forest lost for the first time as David Russell's 21 points helped the Redmen to their 11th consecutive victory.

St. John led 30-27 at halftime, and pulled away early in the second half as Russell hit four field goals and a free throw, and the Redmen moved to a 41-31 advantage. The Deacons battled back, closing to within six, 47-41, after a pair of field goals by guard Danny Young.

However, reserve Kevin Williams and 6-10 center Jeff Allen sparked St. John's midway through the half, boosting the Redmen's lead to 55-43 with about eight minutes remaining.

Two free throws by Russell and a field goal by Allen kept St. John's in front down the stretch. Allen finished with 12 points and 10 rebounds, while Mullin added 14 points. Young led Wake with 20 points, and Alvis Rogers added 10 points.

Duke evened its record at 4-4 with its easy win over New Hampshire. Freshman guard Johnny Dawkins led the way with 18 points and senior Chip Engelland added 14.

At El Paso, Clemson lost for the second time in two nights as Luster Goodwin scored a career-high 24 points to lead Texas-El Paso. Clemson had led 33-29 at halftime, but Texas-El Paso outscored the Tigers 10-1 in the opening minutes of the second half and then coasted to victory.

Fred Gilliam paced Clemson with 14 points, and Raymond Jones contributed 13 points for the Tigers, who fell to 5-6.

The latest ACC states show that Maryland's Adrian Branch has taken the scoring lead in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball, while Virginia's Ralph Sampson leads in rebounds and placed in the top five in three categories.

Branch is averaging 22.6 points, followed by Michael Jordan of North Carolina at 20.8, Georgia Tech's Mark Price with 19.8 and Sampson at 17.6.

Sampson is second in the ACC in field goal percentage, hitting 59.2 percent from the field behind John Toms of Wake Forest who is shooting 63.6 percent. The 7-foot-4 center averages 12.3 rebounds, while Maryland's Ben Coleman is a distant second at 8.6.

Jordan, hitting 57.4 percent from the field, is third in field goal percentage, followed by Coleman at 56.9 percent and Duke's Johnny Dawkins at 56.8 percent.

Price leads the free-throw battle, hitting 95 percent from the charity stripe. Teammate Anthony Byrd follows at 88.2 percent with Mark Alarie of Duke connecting on 87.1 percent of his shots.

Sidney Lowe of North Carolina State leads in assists with an average of 9.4 per game, while Price averages 5.2 and Dawkins has 4.9.

North Lenoir Beats Winless Rams, 49-47

WHEAT SWAMP — Maurice Thorbes hit a jumper with time running out to carry North Lenoir past winless Greene Central, 49-47, in the consolation game of the Tri-County Holiday Basketball Tournament last night.

Greene Central, now 0-8, rallied from seven points down with three minutes to go to tie it at 47-47 after both teams failed on one-and-one chances down the stretch.

Thorbes, who led all scorers with 22 points, canned a jumper with less than a half minute to go. The Hawks then got the ball back but missed a one-and-one with five seconds left.

The Rams hurried down court and Bonerae Johnson put up a 15-foot jumper that rolled around the rim and fell off at the horn. "It just wasn't meant to be," Greene Central coach Lewis Godwin said.

North Lenoir, now 3-5, inched out to a 12-11 lead in the first period and went up, 24-21, at the half. The Hawks upped their lead to 37-31 after three periods and extended their lead to seven in the final quarter before the Rams rallied — only to fall two points short at the end.

Greene Central was led by James Thompson with 15 points and Theodore Edwards with 11.

In the championship game tonight, Ayden-Griffon (4-3) plays South Lenoir (5-2) at 8:30. Prior to that, Greene Central (6-1) will play Ayden-Griffon (3-4) for the girls' title at 7 p.m.

Greene Central returns to action Tuesday night when the Rams entertain West Craven.

Cookies Will Bring You Parade Of Roses

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you're seeing double New Year's Day, it might be the results of the night before or it might be Saturday's double coverage of the Tournament of Roses Parade, which will be broadcast live on both CBS and NBC.

If that doesn't send you back to the double martinis, maybe this will: Nabisco, makers of Oreo and Chips Ahoy! cookies and other foodstuffs, has bought every commercial — 76 of them — on the two networks during the parade.

And every one will have Nabisco's new three-note musical signature, eight months in the making and guaranteed to bounce in your head even when your head stops bouncing. That jingle and its expanded song were written by former Motown record producer Billy Davis, who wrote "I'd Like to Teach the World to Sing" for Coca-Cola.

It's not unprecedented for the networks to double-team an event. The first Super Bowl was on CBS and NBC, and major news events are carried by all three networks. The Tournament of Roses Parade has been on both CBS and NBC for years, receiving ratings almost as high as the afternoon bowl games.

Last January, the parade broadcasts on CBS and NBC each received a 16.8 rating and a 34 share, which translates into 45 percent of all TV households, 40 million homes and 70 million viewers. Similar numbers are expected Saturday.

What is believed to be a television first, however, is one company having 4½ hours of exclusive sponsorship on two different networks.

Since it merged with Standard Brands in 1981, Nabisco, with annual sales of $7 billion, has tried to make the public aware that Planters Peanuts, Moosehead Beer and Butcher Bone Dog Snacks, among others, are in the Nabisco family.

The food conglomerate has such a variety of products that most commercials will be seen only once. According to Lee Abbott, Nabisco's vice president for marketing services, 26 brands will be pitched on each network.

There's a risk that Saturday's commercial bombardment could irritate viewers. But Nabisco, with an international advertising budget of $250 million, isn't paying the networks $4.5 million to turn off shoppers.

"The Tournament of Roses Parade reaches great numbers of people," said Don Ohlmeyer, former executive producer of NBC Sports whose production company advises Nabisco on TV strategy. "It's one of the great pieces of Americana."

"New Year's Day is a family day, and the parade can be enjoyed by the entire family," Ohlmeyer said. "It's nice to be associated with a Tiffany event and get positive, associative ruboff."

'60 Minutes' Tops List

NEW YORK (AP) — The CBS news magazine "60 Minutes" was first in the weekly prime time ratings for the sixth time this season, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

"Dallas," which was first last week, was pre-empted by "The Muppet Movie," which finished in 54th place this week.

CBS finished first in the networks' competition for the 10th time this season. CBS had an average rating of 15.8, while ABC was rated 14.5 and NBC 14.0 for the week.

The networks say that means in an average minute of prime time, 15.8 percent of the country's homes were watching CBS.

The lowest rated programs were divided among the networks with NBC's "Voyagers" in 68th place; "CBS News Special 'Eye on the Media: Business and the Press'" in 67th place; "CBS Reports" in 66th; ABC's "Pinochio's Christmas" in 65th; and ABC's "Friday Night Movie" in 64th.

Here are the week's 10 highest rated shows: "60 Minutes" with a rating of 24.6; CBS' "Bob Hope Christmas Show," 24.2; NBC's "One Day at a Time," 23.5; "Jefferisons," 23.2; "Gloria," 22.6; "Newhart," 22.5; and "M-A-S-H," 22.4, all CBS; "Dynasty," 21.5, and "NFL Monday Night Football," 21.4, both ABC; and "Hill Street Blues," 21.0, NBC.

The next 10 programs: "Archie Bunker's Place," "Magnum, P.I." and "Trapper John, M.D.," tie, and "Yogi Bear Christmas," all CBS; "Three's Company," ABC; "Cagney & Lacey" and "Frosty the Snowman," tie, and "G.E. Theater," all CBS; "Hart to Hart" and "Fall Guy," both NBC.

Hollywood Had Good Year In '82

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The Hollywood community likely would be content if the new year turns out like 1982, which provided record revenues and renewed interest in movie going, proving the old saw, "There's nothing wrong with the movie business that good pictures won't cure."

A string of hits, led by the stratospheric "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial," pushed box office sales to an estimated $3.4 billion. That's up from $2.97 billion for 1981.

Ticket sales for 1982 have been projected by the Motion Picture Association a $1.17 billion, highest in 20 years. The increase over 1981 is 100 million tickets, which is virtually the number of admissions for "E.T."

A.D. Murphy, who teaches future film executives at the University of Southern California, says the movie business improved 15 percent in 1982, almost three times the rate of inflation. But he cautions about 1983:

"It's difficult for any industry to leapfrog the way movies have in 1982. We still have the bottom of the recession to deal with. When people run out of money, they can't go to theaters."

Americans were drawn to theaters in 1982 by a string of diverse and attractive films. There was "On Golden Pond," which was released late in 1981 to qualify for the Oscars and netted the awards for stars Henry Fonda and Katharine Hepburn. Summer brought "Rocky III," which showed surprising strength for a sequel, as well as "E.T."

"An Officer and Gentleman" "Poltergeist" and "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan."

"Whenever there is an outstanding year, theaters are offering one, two, three or more particularly appealing pictures," observes Murphy. "It's not a matter of hauling people out of their homes; grandparents just don't go to movies."

Exemptions Set For Air Rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is planning to excuse more than 300 communities that will miss a Friday midnight deadline for meeting national air quality standards.

But administration officials say another 150 counties with severe air quality problems won't be so lucky and will be faced with the loss of millions of dollars in federal highway funds and air quality grants and bans on construction of new factories.

For several months, Environmental Protection Agency chief Anne Gorsuch has been warning of the economic calamities caused by Clean Air Act sanctions on counties which do not meet a Dec. 31 deadline for air quality standards.

The agency last month prepared a list of 472 counties that have not met the standards and thus could be subject to sanctions next year.

However, EPA officials on Wednesday said they have decided to divide that list into two groups. The first group will contain counties that have met the standards but have not been reclassified as "attainment" areas by the EPA, and those communities that are close to meeting the standards.

Federal Phone Tax Going Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting in January, consumers will see their telephone bills rise by 2 percent as Uncle Sam begins collecting more tax.

Under the terms of a tax bill passed by Congress last August, all telephone companies must begin levying a 3 percent excise tax on their customers' bills Jan. 1. The current tax is 1 percent.

Officials at the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the United States Independent Telephone Association estimate the 2 percent hike will generate an extra $1.3 billion next year for the government.

Instead of collecting about $630 million from their customers for Uncle Sam, the nation's roughly 1,500 telephone companies will collect a total of about $1.9 billion in 1983, according to AT&T's Pic Wagner and Hank Wieland of USITA.

They said the tax applies to all telephone service, both local and long-distance. Thus, even if a customer doesn't place any long-distance calls, he will still pay the 3 percent tax on his local service charge.

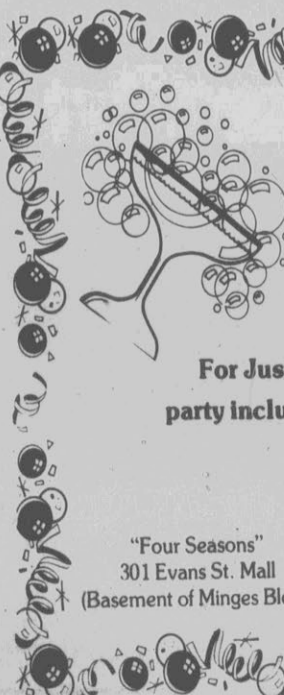

The telephone increase is part of a massive $100 billion tax law that affects a variety of other areas like cigarette taxes, medical deductions, airline travel and interest and dividend withholding.

Judge Refuses To Cut Bond

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge has refused to lower bond below $10,000 for a former Amoco Oil Co. employee who pleaded innocent to extortion and racketeering charges.

U.S. Magistrate Ray McQuary said Wednesday $10,000 was a "very, very low bond based on the charges" against Alton S. Edwards.

Edwards, who faces up to 35 years in prison and $22,500 in fines if convicted, allegedly wrote a series of letters threatening to damage Amoco's Texas City refinery.

Bridge Opening Delayed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Plans to lower two spans onto the William B. Umstead bridge to repair damage caused last month by a barge were delayed today by winds that gusted as high as 35 knots, the Department of Transportation said.

A department spokesman said weather problems could delay reopening of the bridge. Motorists had been forced to detour more than 150 miles to get from Manns Harbor to Manteo, or wait for ferry service, since the accident occurred Nov. 6.

Bill Jones said the length of delay depends on the weather.

"If the wind is too high, they cannot lift the spans to put them in place. They don't want to injure anybody and they don't want to damage the span," he said.

He said the forecast for Friday also predicts high winds.

"This will delay the opening a little bit. As far as how much, it just depends on how much of a delay their is in replacing the spans."

After the spans are in place, workers still must bolt the spans and rewild railing on the bridge. Jones said some of the railing had to be cut out so the spans could be lifted out.

The bridge spans Croatan Sound and is a major link to the Outer Banks. It was taken out of service after a barge rammed it, crippling a support and causing about $1 million damage.

A contract calls for the bridge to be opened by Jan. 31.

Poison Probe Spreads To Home

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Police looking for "some residue of cyanide" seized bottles, dust and a vacuum cleaner from the home and car of a man whose wife was poisoned a month ago by tainted Maximum Strength Anacin-3.

But Police Chief Joseph McNamara said Wednesday that the husband, Richard Bowen, is not officially a suspect in the poisoning of his 30-year-old wife, Susan, and had not been arrested or charged.

Two officers earlier said Bowen was "a suspect." McNamara said those statements should not have been made.

Bowen's home and car were searched Monday after police obtained a warrant because of "some inconsistencies between what he said and what our investigation showed happened," McNamara said.

Evidence gathered at the home was sent to a crime laboratory for analysis "to determine whether or not any cyanide was in Mr. Bowen's possession," McNamara said. He said investigators took clumps of dust from a vacuum cleaner and bottles "that might have had some residue of cyanide."

Bowen, 29, a district circulation manager for the San Jose Mercury News, could not be reached for comment Wednesday; there was no answer at his home. He has previously refused to talk to reporters.

Mrs. Bowen collapsed, stopped breathing and became rigid after taking at least one of the pain relief capsules at home on Nov. 26. Doctors at Good Samaritan Hospital first thought she had suffered a stroke but later found a foreign substance in her blood.

Tests confirmed that Mrs. Bowen's blood contained 10 times the normal level of cyanide, more than enough to kill her. She suffered residual brain damage and is undergoing therapy at Valley Medical Center for slurred speech, an arm tremor and swallowing difficulties.

McNamara said affidavits explaining the reason for the search of Bowen's home have been filed in municipal court and will remain sealed until Jan. 5.

"We had reached the point where we felt there was sufficient evidence to ask for the search warrant," McNamara said.

Bowen, who has refused to take a lie detector test, told police he took the capsules to the hospital, druggists and state and federal health agencies before tests conducted by the state confirmed the presence of cyanide in some of the capsules on Dec. 8.

Before McNamara's news conference, San Jose police Lt. Bud Bye and Officer Bud Davis said Bowen was being considered "a suspect," but the police chief said he assumed "that statement was a miscommunication because it is our policy not to label individuals as suspects in any criminal case."

Police said the poisoning of Mrs. Bowen, which prompted several drugstore chains to pull Maximum Strength Anacin-3 from their shelves, appeared to be an isolated incident unrelated to the Chicago-area deaths of seven people poisoned in late September and early October with cyanide-tainted Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

A San Pedro, Calif., woman turned in a bottle of Maximum Strength Anacin-3 capsules that carried the same lot number, F229, as the bottle that poisoned Mrs. Bowen. Tests showed the capsules contained non-lethal doses of cyanide, but no poison has been found in thousands of other samples tested by the state Department of Health Services and the federal Food and Drug Administration.

The San Pedro incident is "very hard for us to evaluate," McNamara said. "We don't know what occurring there. We are pursuing this as a local investigation of an attempted murder."

McNamara said the FBI has been involved in the San Jose case from the start. He said the bureau is awaiting results of tests that are able to determine "almost with the precision of a fingerprint" whether the cyanide found in San Jose is similar to the poison found in San Pedro.

Soviets Launch Personal Attack Against Pope

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a stinging attack on Pope John Paul II, has accused him of being a rigid anti-communist who cloaks political rhetoric in prayer.

The unusual personal attack carried Wednesday by the official news agency Tass also accused the Roman Catholic Church of carrying out subversion in Poland and other East-bloc nations.

There was no explanation for the attack, which denounced the Vatican for using the "cover of religion" to engage in "anti-communist propaganda on a broad scale."

Condemnations of the church typically have been distributed by the government-run media by quoting articles "written in other Eastern European publications and focusing on the church's role in Poland's chronic unrest.

The Polish-born pope was cited by name in an article Tass said appears in this month's edition of the journal Political Self-Education, published by the Soviet Communist Party Central Committee.

Tass said the journal takes note that the Vatican policy is influenced by "the growth of aggressive designs of imperialism and the stepped-up activity of the opponents of detente," catchwords for the United States.

"Unlike his predecessors, the present head of the Catholic church ... has taken a much more conservative and rigid position vis-a-vis the socialist world," Tass said, quoting from the journal.

"It goes without saying that the present 'executor of St. Peter' prefers ... to speak the language of Christian prayer," Tass said. But it said the pope's statements are of a political nature and "the real thrust of his statements is clear."

Old Logging Town Goes On The Auction Block

By JANE SEAGRAVE
Associated Press Writer

DREW, Ore. (AP) — The post office is closed, the old store could use some work and on rainy days Elk Creek swells to within spitting distance of Trish Franceschi's back door.

But all things considered, Mrs. Franceschi figures $36,000 is "pretty cheap" for a whole town that's up for sale.

Drew, all 1½ acres of it, hugs a curve on a winding road that links tiny Canyonville to timber Trail, deep in the hills of southern Oregon.

Even in its prime, it was hardly a bustling metropolis, although oldtimers remember when loggers from miles around gathered at a dance hall Saturday nights to drink and kick up their heels.

But when the Drew post office closed in 1972, "it more or less started the demise" of the community, said Mrs. Franceschi's husband, Gus, a kindergarten teacher who works 37 miles away in Tri City and bought the town four years ago on a whim.

Now, Drew — five buildings' worth — is for sale.

"We want someone to come in here and carry forth with what we can't afford to do," said Franceschi, 31, who lives with his wife and 15-month-old daughter in the back of what used to be the Drew Cash Store. "We want somebody to put a mom-and-pop little grocery store in here that will serve the local people."

Exactly who those local people are depends on what one considers Drew's boundaries.

In downtown Drew, two small cabins and a three-bedroom barn owned by the Franceschis are vacant. A third cabin is rented by Richard Bean, who works for the U.S. Forest Service.

Around the bend is R.M. Bonney, 64, known as "Bob," who hauled logs for 20 years before retiring three years ago. Bonney, the town's longest-tenured citizen, was 2 months old when his parents came to Drew in 1918 to homestead and raise cattle.

Across the street from Bonney is Hugh Ziemer, 82, at one time a cowpuncher, mechanic and logger who says he now does "everything but raise marijuana."

Other people are scattered "up and down the canyon and in the mountains," Franceschi said.

To live in Drew, a person has to like solitude and simple pleasures, said Franceschi, who first arrived in town "with nothing more than a backpack and a thumb."

The Franceschis' way of life is still austere by most standards. There's no television, no stereo and, on a clear night, the portable radio picks up two stations. Telephone service arrived in time for Christmas.

TOWN FOR SALE ... Patricia Franceschi holds her daughter, Devon, on the porch of the Drew Cash store in Drew, Ore. Patricia and her husband, Gus, bought the town about four years ago and are now trying to sell it for $36,000. (AP Laserphoto)
