'Overture' No Formal Offer

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer
PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Aides to President Reagan say the new Soviet leader's overture to the United States should not be interpreted as a "formal call" for a summit conference between the superpowers.

Larry Speakes, the deputy White House press secretary, said Thursday he saw nothing new in the comments Yuri Andropov made to Hearst newspapers indicating an interest in a summit after "good preparation."

Reagan, meanwhile, was preparing to celebrate the arrival of the new year at a black-tie dinner at this desert resort area, as he has for more than a decade.

Before tonight's party, Reagan was meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and National Security adviser William Clark.

Speakes said the overall scope of U.S.-Soviet relations would be a likely topic at the meeting, but he did not know if the Andropov's remarks would be discussed specifically.

Clark accompanied Reagan here for the New Year's holiday, and Shultz was coming for the annual New Year's Eve party given by Walter and Leonore Annenberg, at whose 200-acre estate the president and Mrs. Reagan are staying.

Annenberg, a millionaire publisher, was the U.S. ambassador to Britain during the Nixon administration.

Mrs. Annenberg was Reagan's chief of protocol in 1981.

Among those expected to attend the formal party were Attorney General and Mrs. William French Smith and several members of the "kitchen cabinet" of wealthy California businessmen who helped Reagan get started in California politics. Some served as advisers early in the administration.

The traveling White House was provided with a transcript of Andropov's remarks Thursday morning.

Andropov, in written responses to questions transmitted through the Soviet embassy in Washington, was reported to have said he "certainly" believes the two nations can reach a nuclear arms reduction compromise.

According to the report, he showed a willingness to meet with Reagan after "good preparation" to assure success — a requirement similar to that voiced by Reagan for two years.

"I don't think it is a formal call for a summit," Speakes said of Andropov's remarks.

"There are no plans for anything different from what we've been doing," Speakes said.

"I don't regard it as any change in our position or any change in the Soviet position," he said, adding, "With adequate preparation and a reasonable chance of success, we would certainly proceed to a summit."

Asked whether he viewed the Andropov statement as an indication of a willingness to meet, Speakes said "I wouldn't call it that."

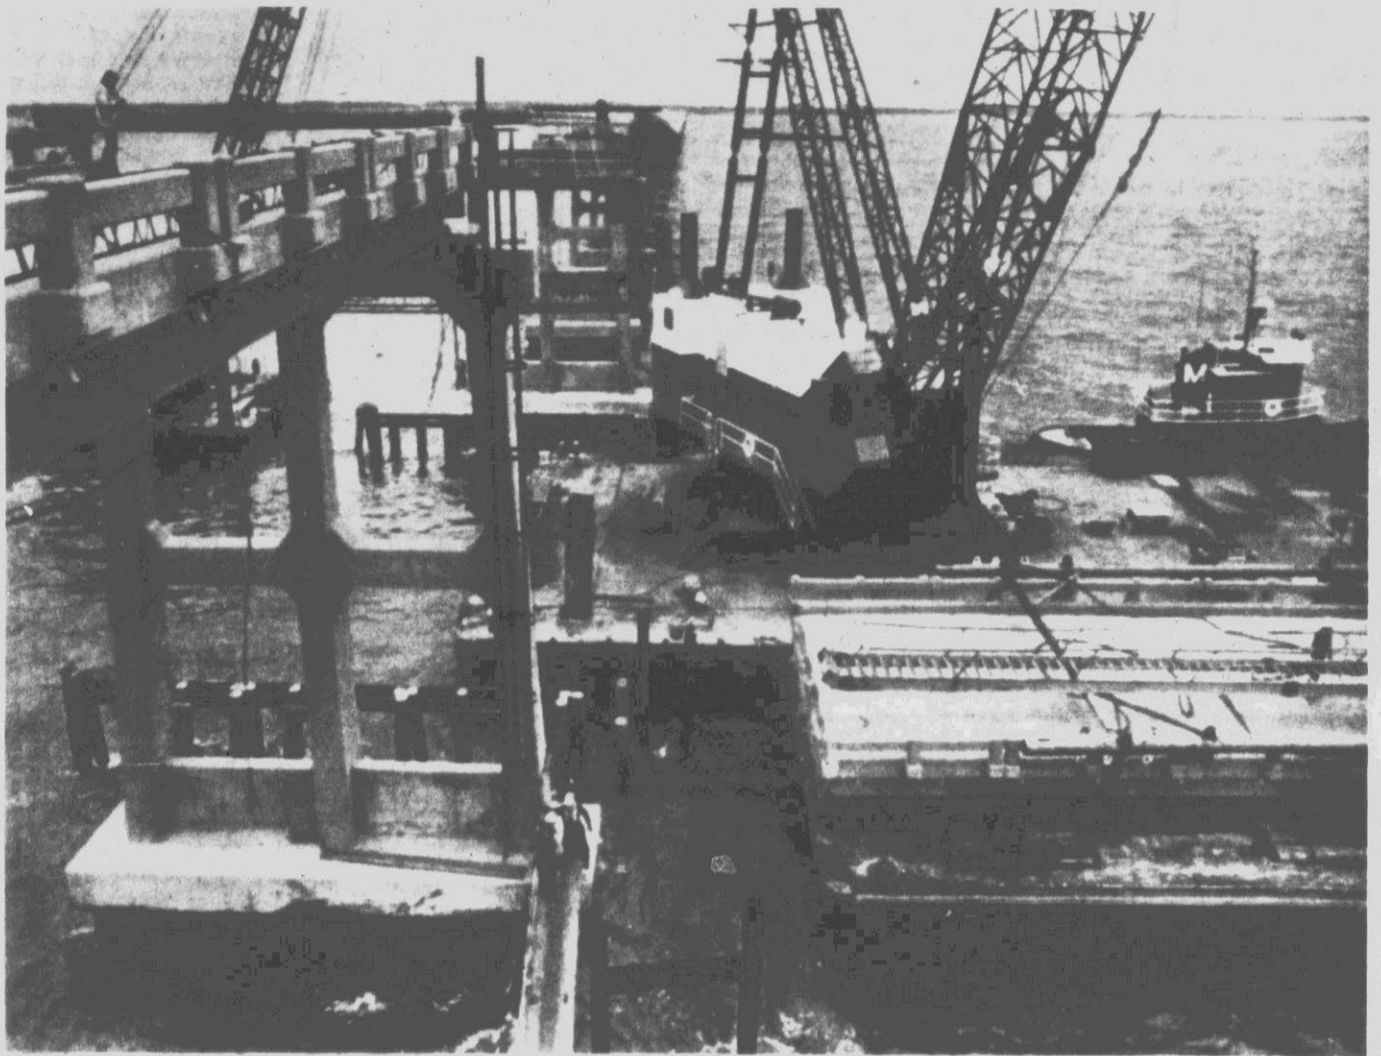

In other developments Thursday, Reagan:

—Signed a bill providing $7.9 billion for the Interior, Energy and Agriculture Departments for the current fiscal year.

—Signed a bill authorizing the federal government to pay businesses for losses as a result of the federal ban on the use of the flame retardant Tris in clothing, fabric, yarn or fiber, if the U.S. Court of Claims awards damages to a claimant.

—Said in a written statement that the United States would withhold its payment of $500,000 to $700,000 for the United Nations' Law of the Sea Preparatory Commission. The administration has objected to the Law of the Sea Agreement and has contended that U.N. membership does not obligate the United States to support the commission.

The Reagans return to Washington Sunday.

Not Ready

WORK DELAYED — High winds and rough seas Thursday forced postponement of work being done to repair the William B. Umstead Bridge. State officials had hoped the bridge would be ready this weekend, but predictions of more bad weather today and Saturday made that seem unlikely. The bridge, a primary link to the Outer Banks, has been out of commission since it was struck by a bridge last month. (AP Laserphoto)

Opened Fire In Error

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Soviet troops fired on a group of Afghan government soldiers at Kabul airport, apparently mistaking them for anti-communist Moslem insurgents, a well-informed source said today.

The source said the firefight occurred Tuesday, but details remained sketchy. He said he had no word of casualties, but speculated that they might be high because the Afghan soldiers returned fire.

The source, who declined to be identified, said he obtained his information from an Afghan refugee who crossed the Pakistan frontier at Peshawar.

No other details were immediately known and it was not possible to confirm the report because the Afghanistan government restricts coverage of the conflict.

The Kremlin has poured more than 100,000 troops into Afghanistan in a 3-year-old effort to aid the Marxist Afghan government in its war with Moslem fundamentalist rebels opposed to communist rule.

Martial Law For Poland Eased

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The communist government suspended martial law 24 hours ahead of schedule today, trading military restrictions for new civil controls designed to bar repetition of the upheaval inspired by the Solidarity movement.

The suspension, at midnight Thursday, caught many Poles unawares. Others appeared indifferent to the edict relaxing one year and 18 days of martial law.

"I thought it was supposed to be tomorrow," an elderly woman told a reporter.

The regular midnight newscast by state radio contained a one-paragraph announcement that martial law was suspended, but there was no explanation for why it came 24 hours before Jan. 1, the suspension-date previously announced by the government.

After the terse announcement there were no outward celebrations in Warsaw. The capital's streets were nearly deserted.

"This suspension is a lot of nothing," said a middle-aged woman walking her dog downtown.

The government declared the "state of war" — its term for martial law — Dec. 13, 1981 to crush the Solidarity union and end 16 months of political and social upheaval that followed the birth of the first independent labor movement in the Soviet bloc.

Under martial law, Solidarity was suspended and its leaders interned. Parliament officially outlawed the union Oct. 8 under a new labor law that sharply curbs workers' right to strike and establishes a network of tightly-controlled state unions.

The government cemented its post-martial law rule on Dec. 18 when Parliament passed legislation giving it wide powers of social control to prevent any more political threats. Jaruzelski has set no date for full lifting of martial law, and the 21-man Military Council of National Salvation.

North Carolina Spending Ranks Low, But Bills Rapidly Rising

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina ranks low nationally in government spending but its bills are rising faster than those of many other states, shows a study by an Institute of Government researcher.

Charles Liner, in the fall edition of the Institute's quarterly magazine, "Popular Government," reports that North Carolina spent an average of $1,300 per person in 1980; ranking it 45th nationally in per capita spending.

But Liner says the state ranks eighth in growth of spending with a 566 percent increase between 1960-80 and second in growth of public employment for the period with a 91 percent increase.

Liner warns that the low ranking may be misleading because when compared with states in the Northeast and West, North Carolina has a relatively low wage level, bringing down government costs. He said the state also lacks large cities that throw spending "way out of line."

Saturated Lower Mississippi Valley Scheduled To Receive More Rainfall

By DEAN FOSDICK
Associated Press Writer

Forecasters said it may take two weeks for floodwaters to recede in the lower Mississippi Valley, where swollen rivers already at record levels continued to rise with more rain due today.

Freezing rain and snow fell today in New Mexico and the Texas Panhandle, while unseasonably mild weather lingered in New England, leaving ski slopes green and resort operators seeing red.

More than 2,300 Louisiana families have been affected by recent flooding and tornadoes since Christmas with many rivers not expected to crest until this weekend, officials said. Gov. Dave Treen has placed 16 of the Louisiana's 64 parishes on the flood disaster list and was to tour some of the hardest hit areas today.

Officials were trying to determine a statewide damage total, but figures will not be available until the waters begin to recede, Treen said. Forecasters said it may be two weeks before the waters recede.

"That water is not going anywhere for a while because the delta is so flat and the water is spread out everywhere," a weather service spokesman said Thursday. "The rivers and creeks are still extremely high and with the Mississippi River rising, there's no place for the water to go."

In Mississippi, more than 600,000 acres were under water as overburdened rivers and streams surged over the saturated countryside. As much as 12 inches of rain has fallen during the week in some areas.

Hugh Crowther, a National Weather Service forecaster in Kansas City, said more rain was expected to move into the region this evening or early on New Year's Day.

ATTENTION, L.A.W.: STOLEN SWITCHED

Two women wore fur stoles bearing the initials L.A.W. to a party held by Branch Bank and Trust Co. at the Greenville Country Club Nov. 18. One of them took home the wrong stole and apparently never realized it, probably because the two are so similar. Attempts so far by bank personnel to correct the error have been unsuccessful. The person having the incorrect stole or anyone else able to shed light on this situation is asked to call Mimi Miller at BB&T, 752-6889.

Panel Of Liars Selects 'Best'

BURLINGTON, Wis. (AP) — A story about a Wisconsin windstorm that was just a bunch of hot air has won the 1982 Burlington Liars' Club award.
 "We had a terrible windstorm here in northwestern Wisconsin on July 4, 1976," wrote Dean H. Hesselberg of Winter, Wis. "The velocity of the wind had telephone lines stretched out so far that when I called my neighbor across the road, I was charged $17.60, plus tax, for a long distance telephone call."
 Hesselberg was declared the World Champion Liar on Thursday and received a parchment certificate from the club.
 Club president John Soeth said the more than 200 entries in this year's contest came from 20 states and two provinces in Canada.
 An honorable mention went to Augie Baumeister of Burlington for his tale of pheasant hunting in Nebraska.
 "After three or four weeks of the pheasant season the birds get wild and flush a long way ahead. It takes a good shot to bring them down," he wrote. "This year I solved one of the problems, though. I mixed salt with the shot to preserve the bird while I made the long walk to retrieve it."

Walter M. Theobald of Clinton, Ill., wrote that he started swimming daily at a local swimming pool.
 "I have been very faithful at it. But, one morning I was the first one at the natatorium and I noticed how smooth the surface of the water was. Then I noticed something else. In the lane in which I regularly swim there was a sharply defined rut in the water, worn there by my everyday use of that particular lane."
 Robert Sonnek of Beach, N.D., wrote about the drought there this past year.
 "It was terrible. The cattle were so thin the ranchers saved time by placing a piece of carbon paper be-

Moderates Talk A 'Power Play'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Twenty Southern Baptist moderates from across North Carolina met Thursday to plot strategies to wrest power from the fundamentalists who have won the presidency of the Southern Baptist Convention since 1979.
 While immediate plans centered on a statewide seminar, the group hoped to bring state Baptists to the national convention in Pittsburgh next June, said the Rev. Henry Crouch of Providence Baptist Church, where the conclave was held.
 Crouch and his colleagues said the February seminar in High Point would be open to all N.C. Baptists.
 "We want to talk to North Carolina Baptists about the issues and encourage them to go to Pittsburgh," said the Rev. Cecil Sherman, of Asheville's First Baptist Church.
 "The big part that North Carolina can play is that we're so close to Pittsburgh," Crouch added. "We're hoping we'll have a large turnout." Crouch said.
 Each Baptist church is entitled to send at least one "messenger" to the national meeting. None can send more than 10.
 The principal issue facing the nation's 16.3 million Southern Baptists is a power struggle between moderates and conservatives, or fundamentalists.
 Fundamentalists seek theological conformity in the Church, including a common view that the Bible is free of error.

Life As It's Lived

Little Point In Saving Time; Spend It Better

By GAIL MICHAELS
 New Year's has traditionally been a day both for looking forward and for looking back. In short, for contemplating Time itself.

Many of the people who are concentrating at this moment on the future are making resolutions about using time more wisely in the coming year. They want to get organized. They want to stop wasting time and energy. Although this is indeed an admirable goal, I have noticed during my annual unsuccessful attempt to get organized that my effort to save time usually involves an enormous waste of that resource.

My coupon drawer in the kitchen is a good example. If I were to get organized and clean that out, I would have to examine all the expiration dates, including the dates on the rebate offers. I would have to make several trips outdoors to the garbage can, and whatever was left over would have to go in some orderly fashion into a coupon organizer. I'd have to remember to take this coupon organizer with me to the grocery store. I'd have to remember to whip it out of my purse at the check-out counter. I'd even have to remember to buy the right brands. All this would involve an enormous expenditure of physical and psychic energy. But as it is, I only waste energy when I cut out the coupons in the first place.

My husband tells me that the reason I find getting organized so difficult is that I have not yet developed the right frame of mind. Once I get organized, he asserts, I may be using the same amount of time but I will get ever so much more accomplished. Of course, this wisdom comes from a man who dreams of the day we have a home computer so that I can computerize my kitchen by keypunching every food item I have in the cupboard plus all the ingredients in my favorite menus in order that the computer can print out my shopping list.

Still, his schemes for my kitchen aside, he does have a point. Being organized is a state of mind. Organized people don't step over toys without noticing them. They pick them up. They throw away their old magazines. They iron while they can still lose the doors to their laundry rooms. And they fold up their ironing boards afterwards instead of using them as buffet tables.

In other words, they make organization a full-time occupation. They may not be as guilt-ridden as the slobs who associate with them, but they certainly aren't saving any time by their efforts. The organized person spends his lifetime doing what the slob can accomplish in three hours once every two to four months.

At this point it seems appropriate to question the efficacy of attempting to save time at all. Is there a bank at which on some future date we can redeem our stockpiled minutes? Looking back at this year, I flinch at finding that our family's catchword appears to be "Hurry!" — especially with regard to Meg, who has raised dawdling to an art form. Undoubtedly, Meg does need a little push now and then, and more than a few big pushes, too, but I'm reminded of Andy Rooney's observation concerning fast people and slow people: they all seem to arrive at their destination at the same time, the former with ulcers, the latter without.

 So as I enter into the new year, I hope that I will be more concerned with the way I spend time than with the way I save it, for to quote from a lovely children's book by Michael Ende, "The Grey Gentlemen:" "Time is life itself; and life dwells in the heart."
 Have a Happy New Year and may you enjoy to the fullest every second that you waste.

The showdown at Pot Roast Pass.

The way some supermarket TV commercials are filmed nowadays, you might get the idea that roping cattle and grilling t-bones over an open fire is as common in many families as passing pot roast around the table. But the simple, perhaps unfortunate truth is that ground beef is as close as most of us will ever get to cattle country.

Which is exactly why we'd like to suggest that you come to Overton's the next time you buy meats. We know as little about punchin' cows as television actors. But we do know meats. T-bones and other expensive cuts. And everyday meats like pot roasts. And not just beef. Pork, specialty meats and poultry, too. We're the home of Greenville's best meats. So we have to do a better job. Of selecting. Butchering. And especially fixing cuts to order.

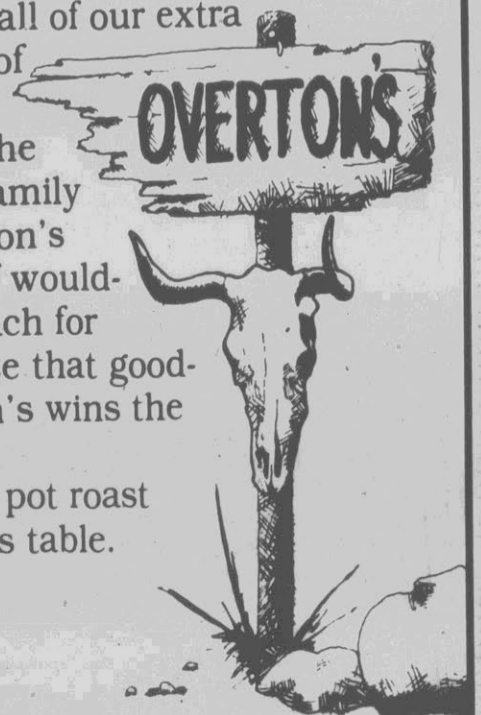

We sincerely believe that all of our extra trouble and care means all of our meats taste better.

So, prove it to yourself. The next time you corral your family for a meal, try one of Overton's meats. And as your gang of would-be cowpokers smile and reach for more, we think you'll realize that good-tastin' meat is how Overton's wins the showdown.

The showdown when the pot roast passes around your family's table.

Come see us.

Dear Abby

Build New Year Day By Day

By Abigail Van Buren

1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last New Year's Eve you published some New Year's resolutions. I cut that column out and taped it on my bathroom mirror where I could read it every morning. I want you to know that it has helped me to become a better person. I am not saying that I kept every one of those resolutions every day, but I kept most of them, and they have now become habits that have made a remarkable improvement in my personality and character.

I hope you will repeat that column every New Year's Eve. I'm sure it will benefit many others as it has me.

NEVER TOO OLD

DEAR NEVER: By popular demand, my "resolutions" column has become an annual tradition, and here it is:

DEAR READER: These New Year's resolutions are based on the original credo of Alcoholics Anonymous. I have taken the liberty of using that theme with some variations of my own:

Just for today I will try to live through this day only, and not set far-reaching goals to try to overcome all my problems at once. I know I can do something for 12 hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just for today I will try to be happy. Abraham Lincoln said, "Most folks are about as happy as they make up their minds to be." He was right. I will not dwell on thoughts that depress me. I will chase them out of my mind and replace them with happy thoughts.

Just for today I will adjust myself to what is. I will face reality. I will try to change those things that I can change and accept those things I cannot change.

Just for today I will try to improve my mind. I will not be a mental loafer. I will force myself to read something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today I will do a good deed for somebody — without letting him know it. (If he or she finds out I did it, it won't count.)

Just for today I will do something positive to improve my health. If I'm a smoker, I'll make an honest effort to cut down. If I'm overweight, I'll eat nothing I know is fattening. And I will force myself to exercise — even if it's only walking around the block, or using the stairs instead of the elevator.

Just for today I will be totally honest. If someone asks me something I don't know, I will not try to bluff; I'll simply say, "I don't know."

Just for today I'll do something I've been putting off for a long time. I'll finally write that letter, make that phone call, clean that closet or straighten out those dresser drawers.

Just for today, before I speak I will ask myself,

"Is it true?" "Is it kind?" And if the answer to either of those questions is negative, I won't say it.

Just for today I will make a conscious effort to be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk softly, act courteously and not interrupt when someone else is talking. Just for today I'll not try to improve anybody except myself.

Just for today I will have a program. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it, thereby saving myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just for today I will have a quiet half-hour to relax alone. During this time I will reflect on my behavior and will try to get a better perspective on my life.

LOVE, ABBY

Worst May Be Behind

It may have been a long time since Pitt County has seen a year such as 1982. It was filled with good news and bad. There were economic concerns and hopeful signs for the economy.

At East Carolina University a veteran campus administrator became the new chancellor. He was in time to preside over the opening of the Brody Building which houses the university's School of Medicine, that offers so much to eastern North Carolina in the way of improved medical care.

There was another change on campus as Ashley Futrell resigned as chairman of the board of trustees and was replaced by C. Ralph Kinsey.

There were changes at City Hall as Gail Meeks replaced Ed Wyatt as city manager and in the county schools as Edwin West Jr. replaced Ott Alfred, who died, as superintendent.

Area industries saw some layoffs, reflecting the troubled national economy, but there were also industry expansions and the industrial community was considered stable at year's end.

Tobacco had a hectic year with tobacco growers beginning to pay an assessment to cover the costs of the price support program. Nevertheless, it was a good crop and a good sales year for growers.

There were some slow times for retailing but in the final month of the year most merchants reported brisk sales.

The area economy was operating in a sea of difficult economic times, but Pitt County's economy for 1982 would be rated as better than average.

Although there were hard times for some, 1982 was a good year generally for Pitt County and the area. There is reason to hope we have come through the worst of a difficult national economy and there will be real growth ahead.

Violence Is To Be Deplored

The shooting of a man by a policeman in Miami Tuesday led to a night of violence in which seven people were injured and one was killed by police.

The incident brought out riot squads and led to the sealing off of an 84-block area.

The violence continued Wednesday morning as extra police patrolled the area.

Too often, looting and violence have rocked our cities with the spark lit by an isolated incident. Innocent citizens who live in the areas are intimidated and inconvenienced. It is to be deplored. Citizens have every right to register grievances through proper channels. However, when the discontent turns to lawlessness the authorities should do what is necessary, within the law, to bring the situation under control.

THIS AFTERNOON

Traffic Safety Tip

By PAUL O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — A quick quiz on traffic safety: "Of the seven major holidays, New Year's, Easter, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas, which is the most dangerous and which is the least dangerous?"

You may be surprised to learn that Thanksgiving is the most dangerous and New Year's the least. Statistics compiled by the state Highway Patrol show that Thanksgiving was the most dangerous holiday for the years 1977 to 1981 in all three categories of statistics kept. Thanksgiving has the highest average of traffic accidents (1,766), of personal injuries (1,039) and of deaths (21). New Year's, to the contrary, was seventh in all three categories with an average of 1,250 accidents, 720 personal injuries and 16 deaths. The patrol data did not include the 1982 holiday death tolls and thus does not count New Year's 1982 when only four people were killed in North Carolina traffic accidents.

Christmas is the second most dangerous holiday followed closely by the Fourth of July, then Labor Day, Easter and Memorial Day.

Col. Edwin Guy, director of the Governor's Highway Safety Program, thinks several factors help make New Year's less dangerous. First, people have come to associate the weekend with drinking drivers. Therefore, they're more careful and don't do unnecessary driving. Second, it is not as big a family holiday. After traveling across the state to see grandma at Christmas, you're not as likely to get back in the car for New Year's.

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

He also thinks that drinkers are more careful with their New Year's celebrating. Most of it is done at parties where there are responsible, non-drinking friends to drive drinkers home.

These statistics do not show that New Year's is a safe time to be driving, only that it is less dangerous than other holidays. Over these five years, North Carolina has averaged 1,500 traffic deaths a year, or 4.1 a day. For the New Year's weekends, however, the daily average is 4.9 deaths with corresponding increases in the number of accidents and injuries.

What is a safe time to be driving? If you go along with the assumption that you're safest when the drunks are home sleeping it off, then you're safest from 4 a.m. to noon. It's most dangerous from 8 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Saturday is the biggest day of the week for drunken driving arrests. Of the 96,404 drunken driving arrests in 1981, 30,391 were on Saturdays. That's 32 percent. With 23 percent, Sunday follows closely behind — much of it spillover from Saturday night drinking. On Fridays, 16 percent of the week's drunk driving arrests are made.

From those statistics, the patrol identifies two eight-hour periods when the drunks are out in force — Friday and Saturday from 8 p.m. until 4 a.m. the following mornings.

The patrol statistics also profile the drunken driver, using information taken from those required to attend driving school in 1981. Nine out of 10 were men, more than three-quarters were white. More than half had at least a high school diploma — 16 percent had attended college and 1 percent graduate school. The unemployment rate among the drunken drivers was 8 percent, two-fifths were single, a third married, only 8 percent divorced. Those under 25 years of age made up 44 percent — and those under 30, 56 percent — of the drunken drivers arrested.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

A Cherry Bomb's Bang

WASHINGTON — This month's flap over the Legal Services Corp. may have had no more than a lacyracker's impact across most of the nation, but here in Washington the story went off with the bang of a cherry bomb. Let me pick up a few missing pieces.

For the record: Congress created the Legal Services Corp. in 1975 to provide legal aid to the poor in civil matters. The agency has been a battleground ever since. On one side are the liberal activists, who want the LSC's lawyers to bring class action suits, to lobby in state capitals for social legislation and to seek sweeping changes in the law. On the other side are the conservative stand-patters, who want the LSC's lawyers to stick to aiding poor persons in such areas as small judgments, evictions, divorce and government services.

In point of fact, the great bulk of the LSC's work has been in the conservatives' areas, but the activists have controlled policies and staff from the beginning. President Reagan, a longtime critic of the corporation, proposed to reverse the situation last year. He nominated nine persons to a new board of directors, headed by William F. Harvey, but the Senate refused to confirm his choices. A couple of weeks ago the president withdrew all his nominations. Meanwhile the board had elected a new corporation president, Donald Bogard. He took office on Dec. 13.

The big bang came two days later. The Washington Post broke the story under a Page One headline: "Legal Service Appointees Get Fat Fees." The gist of it was that the Reagan nominees have been collecting "large consulting fees," at a rate "at least twice as large as those paid to any previous board." In the first 11 months of 1982, board members had been paid $156,200, compared with $72,000 for the former Carter board in all of 1981. Chairman Harvey, it was reported, had billed the corporation at $221 a day for four days of driving to and from his home in Indianapolis in order to attend board sessions here.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

The story grew. The Post seized gleefully upon the contract given President Bogard. It contains a clause by which the corporation will pay his dues in a private social club of his own choosing. For several days The Post regaled its readers with juicy tidbits intended to show that the Reagan crowd, as a congressman viewed it, had all four feet and a snout in the trough. "It is disgusting," said a Post editorial. The New York Times weighed in with its own me-too editorial. "Chiseling on the Poor." The Times was outraged that one Reagan nominee, Washington attorney William Olson, had "bagged" $19,000 for part-time work.

As a smear job — and that is precisely what it was — The Post's reporting had all the beauty of John Randolph's mackerel in the moonlight. The job both shined and stunk.

Why were the 1982 per diems double those of 1981? The Reagan board put in 28 days on corporation business in 1982, the Carter board only 12 in 1981. The per diem rate had been raised by Congress from $192 in 1981 to $221 in 1982. The Reagan members followed the identical practices of the Carter members in terms of fees and travel expenses.

Strength For Today

MADE NEW

The word "sincere" comes from two Latin words, "sine" meaning "without", and "cereus" meaning "wax". It is said that in the pottery shops of ancient Rome a card bearing the words "sine ceres" was often placed above pots and vases, meaning that they were without wax — newly made and not patched up old vessels.

The Bible is clear that God's grace is not something designed to patch up our lives, but to make them over.

Human plans for the betterment of the world always involve patching. The worldly philosophy holds that the best we can expect to do with humanity is to keep it from getting out of hand altogether. Evil cannot be eradicated; it can only be regulated.

Jesus Christ came into the world for the purpose of making people new. "If any man is in Christ he is a new creature." Christianity is not a patching up process; it is the process of creating anew. — Elisha Douglass

Americans Pursue Fun

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — Those of us skiing down slopes or soaking up rays this holiday need not feel guilty.

Word has just come in that hedonism is dead in America. In fact, hedonism may never have thrived here, if one is to believe a newly-published study of how Americans spend their free time.

While this news may surprise some folks, however, it by no means heralds a Puritan renaissance. In their own way, Americans still pursue pleasure with a vengeance and, unlike good Calvinists, enjoy it.

Puritanism wasn't the hunch of New York City's Research and Forecasts, Inc., when it began its survey of 1,000 Americans over 18. Commissioned by a major media concern, the study had been expected to document what everybody has come to assume: that most people waste their leisure time. (On one level, the activity found to be the most popular daily pursuit — television watching — tended to uphold that assumption.)

But to network advertisers' possible distress, the surveyors found that 44 percent of all TV viewers pay little attention to programming, using the set as a backdrop for other activities. Similarly, they discovered that 70 percent of Americans read newspapers daily, from which there is surely no distraction.

We Americans, they found, also listen to music at home every day and talk a lot on the phone to friends. Analysts seem startled by evidence that exercise, gardening and even visiting with relatives are more a daily routine than sex. Surprise, surprise.

Moreover, most Americans (62 percent) gave a higher priority to work than to leisure but viewed one as a means to the other. Ironically, a similar percentage said that free time needs a "purpose" to be well-spent.

Those statistics were enough for John Crothers Pollock, the survey supervisor, to conclude, "Hedonism is not alive and well in America." We don't go in for pleasure for pleasure's sake, he told us later.

Of course, everyone knows that Americans have never made nude beaches the cultural fixture that have, say, the French and Germans. By and large, we can't imagine devoting an entire month's vacation to tanning and eating. (To be sure, a "minister of free time," as French President Mitterrand has under him, would never play well here.)

But as much as most Americans don't swing enough for places such as Club Med, they're by no means monastic. They play as hard as they work, a decidedly modern twist on the Protestant ethic.

One only has to consider the nature of work today to understand why. Most jobs stink — even those we often consider glamorous. They're repetitive, unfulfilling and dull. Unfortunately, as new technologies sweep the old drudgery from offices and other workplaces, they're only liable to create a new variety of drudgery.

As hard times make longer hours inevitable, our obsession with well-spent leisure time will probably increase proportionately — for sanity's sake, if nothing else.

Indeed, it shouldn't be surprising that a national survey found Americans oriented more toward community

Other Editors Say The Law Works

(Hickory Daily Record)

Since North Carolina's law requiring auto safety restraints for children under 2 years went into effect on July 1, not one child in that age group has died in a motor vehicle accident while properly restrained.

The Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill has analyzed preliminary data and has found that while many young children continue to ride unrestrained, more parents are complying with the law.

The state's Child Passenger Safety Law requires that children under 2 be safely restrained while traveling with their parents in a family-type vehicle. North Carolina is one of 19 states requiring some form of child restraint in autos.

Data by the research center shows that approximately 50 percent of the children in the age group affected by the law are being restrained. However, that leaves about 50 percent of the children riding unprotected.

Statistics by the center indicate that during the Christmas holidays about 160 North Carolina children under 2 years will be involved in auto accidents. If the center's statistics are on target, only about half of them will have proper restraint.

Statistics released by the National Transportation Safety Board show that nationally 1,300 children were killed and another 10,000 seriously injured in traffic accidents during the last two years. The board is calling on other states to enact mandatory restraint legislation.

Human nature woos itself into a false sense of security by thinking tragic occurrences in life always happen to someone else. Sadly, however, practically all survivors of accidents in which fatalities (such as the loss of a child occurred) thought the same thing. How many times have you heard someone say or be quoted as saying "I never thought it would happen to me."

One official of the research center said statistics show that "almost every week a serious injury is prevented by virtue of a child being safely restrained ... the safety law is perhaps the single most important child safety legislation ever passed in North Carolina."

Businessman Reduces His Expenses To Survive

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — Marty Kostere, founder and owner of United Block Co., supplier of building blocks and transit-mix concrete to builders and sub-contractors, was upset.

"I can't believe we have so many brilliant people in this country, and yet we've been headed for disaster," he said.

"Whoever is doing the thinking," he had said earlier, "is way off base, killing the economy. We have to get interest rates down to 9 percent or 10 percent. People are out of work, not paying taxes, not paying to Social Security."

Kostere — trim, disciplined, straight-talking, and hardly looking his 70 years — is upset about many things.

Though he supports President Reagan, he is very concerned about the economy. And about "spoiled" youth and labor, "spendthrift" cities and states, the size of the defense budget, taxes, unions.

Upset as well because he's had to lay off workers. Before the recession he had 45 employees. Now he has 20 workers, and as he spoke many of his 30 trucks seemed to be idle in the yard.

Kostere has been able to deal with recession by cutting expenses to the nub. Though his work force is half what it was, he claims volume and profit are off only 30 percent.

"Now we get a day's work out of them." Before, he claims, some workers "thought all they needed to do is show up and they'd get paid."

In that sense, and despite his earlier criticisms of economic policy, he feels Reagan has steered the economy onto the recovery road. "He made unions realize they can't go on getting everything they want."

Some presidents, snapped Kostere, who reminds people of Humphrey Bogart, "should have been impeached."

When business is good, Kostere says he can take in $3 million a year, and in very good years keep 10 percent of that, an amount he suggests isn't large when you consider all he put into the business.

In 1944, fearing he might become "a gray-haired grandfather playing for the kids" at high school proms, Kostere left music. He had played all over the country, taught, and sold instruments. He knew little about construction.

Driving around, he spotted the brick company, then "only a little lean-to." He and a friend bought it for $1,000 down and $30,000 to be paid over five years. Times were good. The business expanded. United Block now is operated from a single-story, red brick building with green and white awnings and a lawn running 40 feet to the sidewalk. Behind it rises the mix plant, surrounded by a repair garage, a block factory, trucks and a five-acre yard and many piles of gray building blocks.

It costs a lot to keep it all going. "I have a mechanic who earned $34,000 plus $12,000 in fringe benefits," he said. "A new transit mixer costs $80,000. A train (a 57-foot-long hauler) runs $120,000."

Kostere has expenses on the tip of his tongue. "Fleet insurance, $17,000 a year. License plates, $15,000. We pay a federal tax of $10 a year for each axle, and the train has 11 axles, so we pay $110 on that alone."

The list continued with the union pension plan. "We contribute to that, $51 a week

(each) for all union people, the Teamsters. And $45.50 for health and welfare per person every week."

There is also unemployment compensation. Back in the office, Kostere calls his secretary. "How much do we pay for unemployment compensation?" he asks. "Eight and a half percent," she replies. "Of the entire payroll," said Kostere. The figure is high, he agrees, because of all his layoffs.

He handles dismissals himself. "Letting guys go is the very last step I take, and then only because the guy sandbagged, sat around on the job. It's not as if they're the productive people."

His feelings seemed ambivalent. "The poor working guy," he said later. "These guys working for you will work as hard as you do if you set a good example. None of these guys takes an hour off."

Kostere also has cut customers. "We keep it down," he said, referring to writeoffs of about $7,000 a year. "We cut about 10 or 12 a year. You find little fellows who don't know how to run a business. They're better off working for someone else."

Why does he continue to deal with the problems?

For one thing, it's a good living. Kostere and his wife spend nine weeks of winter at Pompano Beach, Fla. He plays golf, but also keeps a suggestion pad and calls the office several times a week.

His family won't be taking over the business. His daughter died of leukemia. His son has his own business in Royal Oak, designing and manufacturing leather garments.

"I thought of selling," he said, "but then I see the people at Pompano with nothing to do."

Then he confessed: "I love this business."

Seeking A Future In An Old Horror

MONUMENT TO SUFFERING — A monument depicting suffering prisoners opens one entrance to the Andersonville Prison Cemetery in Georgia. Thousands of northern prisoners died at the notorious site during the Civil War. (AP Laserphoto)

By SCOTT SHEPARD
Associated Press Writer

ANDERSONVILLE, Ga. (AP) — The village of Andersonville, a hell on earth for Union prisoners during the final months of the Civil War, has taken a step back into time to find its future.

"We're trying to keep Andersonville as quaint as possible. And we've got history on our side," said Lewis Easterlin, the 73-year-old mayor of this southwestern Georgia town.

Until about seven years ago, the town of 300 people "was drying up" with an unemployment rate of 12.2 percent, then one of the highest in the state, Easterlin said.

"We had to do something or disappear," he said. "You've got to take what you got and use it. We had history. And if somebody doesn't preserve history, it's gone."

Andersonville has gone beyond simply preserving its history. It has promoted it. And in doing so, it has bounced back from economic hardship, aided by an influx of tourist dollars.

The town began promoting itself at about the same time that Jimmy Carter's presidential candidacy was attracting hordes of tourists to the Carter hometown of Plains, located fewer than 20 miles from here.

Now, a steady flow of more than 150,000 tourists visits Andersonville and a nearby national park throughout the year, their numbers swelling each October for the Andersonville Historic Fair. And despite the recession and a national unemployment rate near 11 percent, the mayor estimates Andersonville's jobless rate is down below 10 percent.

The annual fair, Easterlin's idea for getting Andersonville on the tourist map, features a parade, mock Civil War battles, dancing, puppet shows and displays of Southern arts and crafts.

But the most dramatic event of the fair is a candlelight tour of the site of the infamous Andersonville prison, where more than 12,000 Union soldiers died under wretched conditions in the final year of the Confederacy.

Most of the Union prisoners who died in the Confederate stockade perished from lack of food, clothing and shelter. Hundreds of Southern guards died from the same deprivations.

"The Union soldiers would get up in the morning, see who was dead and take the bodies to the South Gate," said John Tucker, superintendent of the 470-acre historical preserve.

The bodies were hauled to a crude shelter where they awaited transportation to the cemetery about a half-mile away, he said. Fellow prisoners buried the dead without coffins in long, six-foot wide trenches. A wooden marker with only a number was placed in the ground over the grave.

After the war, a former prisoner and Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, came to Andersonville to identify each grave with a master list of the numbers and names of the dead.

"But there are probably still bodies buried in the stockade area somewhere," Tucker said.

Admittedly, our conventional lives may seem a bit dry against the images that Hollywood and Madison Avenue purvey. Obviously, we're not as naughty as we think we are.

Yet, if the Pollock survey shows us to be less than ace, blue-ribbon hedonists, it also underscores how far we've come since the lean days of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Leisure, not work, has become our goal in life.

It may not be straight hedonism, but it would have turned those Puritans green.

organizations than bars, more toward book than bed. We're locked into traditional diversions, but they are diversions nonetheless.

Similarly, those of us with more freedom — namely singles and childless couples — simply have more opportunities for leaving the workaday world behind. With fewer obligations, this group is more able to pursue in excess the exercise, movies, hobbies and travel that virtually everyone covets.

Kilpatrick Col. ...

The $19,000 that Olson "bagged" represented $29 an hour — about one-fourth of the going rate for a Washington lawyer. The Times did not mention that board member Josephine Worthy, who serves as the officially designated poor person to represent client interests, bagged $20,000 plus $17,500 in travel expenses.

As for the Bogard contract, the private club provision parallels the same provision in the contracts of his predecessors — a fact The Post grudgingly acknowledged three days after the story broke. Bogard's contract assures him a year's severance pay, double the severance period provided for last year's president, Dan Bradley, but the circumstances are different. To accept the post as head of the LSC, Bogard resigned from Stokely-Van Camp, where he was chief of litigation, and agreed to move his family from Indiana to Washington. With dissolution of the Reagan board, Bogard now has been left high and dry. Bradley had no such obligations or uncertainties.

Viewed objectively, with the facts in perspective, the story never was much of a story. Most of us in my business, which is the news business, were taught as cubs to keep our reporting fair, balanced and neutral. Reading The Post, you kind of wonder whatever became of those elementary rules.

N.C. Traffic Deaths Hit 20-Yr. Low

By The Associated Press
Although a recession causes problems for most people, highway officials say one benefit is that it may be the primary reason 1982 had the lowest number of traffic deaths in 20 years in North Carolina and South Carolina.

"The only good thing about a severe recession is that the traffic deaths tend to come down," says Dr. B.J. Campbell, director of the Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina.

In 1982, 1,280 died through Dec. 28 on North Carolina highways compared to 1,497 fatalities in 1981. In South Carolina, 1982 traffic accidents claimed 726 lives through Dec. 29, while 846 died in 1981 crashes. The fatality figures were the lowest in both states since 1962.

The 14 percent decline mirrors a nationwide trend in which deaths are expected to run about 4,500 less than 1981 when 49,268 persons died on America's roadways, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

No one is sure why the sudden decline happened, but there are plenty of theories.

Highway safety experts say that in recessions, motorists cut down on unnecessary trips, such as driving to restaurants or vacation spots, or letting their teenage children drive.

"Some people think that people (during a recession) tend to drink more at home and less in roadside taverns where the beer is more expensive," said Dr. William Hadden, president of the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, a Washington research group financed by insurance companies.

Some safety groups say support for tougher laws against drunken driving, child restraint devices and greater law enforcement efforts against traffic violators might have helped lower fatalities.

"That is a large part," said Fran Nathanson, cofounder of Citizens for Safe Drivers, a 15,000-member organization in Bethesda, Md. But she acknowledged, "At this point there are no real statistics that can say how much is due to anything."

The California-based Mothers Against Drunk Driving isn't ready to say driving reforms have led to fewer deaths.

"It would be wonderful to jump on that and say, 'Yeah, we're responsible for that.' But we can't," said Andrew McGuire, MADD executive director. McGuire said it would be several years before MADD can evaluate how new (drunken driving) laws affect fatalities.

Legislatures in North Carolina and South Carolina are expected to debate proposed legislation on drunken driving in 1983.

North Carolina has had a vigorous anti-drunken driving campaign in the past two years, said Campbell. But he said road improvements, safer cars and increasing urbanization could also have cut highway deaths.

As urban areas grow more cluttered, more driving is done at slower speeds, Campbell said, adding that there are more fatal accidents in rural areas.

A new child-restraint law has been in effect in North Carolina since July and may have saved the lives of about five children under 2 through late December, based on statistics from 1,700 accidents, Campbell said.

South Carolina also had more law enforcement programs in 1982 to catch speeders and other traffic violators, said Dr. Edwin Clark, a Clemson University traffic engineering professor and a consultant for Gov. Dick Riley's Highway Safety Program. He said he was studying the data and might know more in three or four months.

 IN BIBLICAL DAYS CITIES WERE BUILT ON HILLS, BECAUSE OF THE EASE OF DEFENSE. NATURALLY, THE CITIES WERE FORTIFIED WITH HIGH WALLS, GATES, AND BARS, AND FURTHER DEFENDED BY TOWERS. The New Year is A Starting Point; Where Life Can Head Toward New Goals, Proceed To Higher Levels Of Achievement, And Travel To Deeper Experiences Of Grace. It is An Occasion For Us To Check Our Course, Re-evaluate Our Causes, And Measure Our Concerns. However The New Year Does Not Remain New Very Long; Also Our Year Will Not Be Better Because It is New, Purpose And Fulfillment is Most Realized When Christ Becomes And Remains Saviour And Lord Of Our Lives.

'Woman-Chaser' Buys A License

DALLAS (AP) - Sgt. Johnny McKeel Jr., a former hostage in Iran who said he was happy he could "get back to chasing women," has gotten himself a marriage license.

McKeel, 29, of Balch Springs, and Vicki Dianne Kent, 29, of Mesquite, picked up the Dallas County license Tuesday.

McKeel and 51 other American hostages held hostage in Tehran were released Jan. 20, 1981, after 444 days of captivity.

At the hostages' first formal news conference, McKeel said: "As soon as they let us get home, so especially the Marines can get back to chasing women, everything will be perfect."

McKeel is stationed at El Toro Marine Air Base near Tustin, Calif.

Three Dead In Accident

BOLTON, N.C. (AP) - A Kure Beach woman and her two teen-age sons were killed Thursday when she lost control of her car on U.S. 74, veering into the path of an oncoming car and tractor-trailer truck.

Killed were Mary Radford Deyton, 35, and her sons Paul Eugene, 15, and Bryne Travis, 11, all of Kure Beach, said trooper Franklin Hasty of the N.C. Highway Patrol. No one else was in the car.

The drivers of the other vehicles were treated at Columbus County Hospital for minor injuries and released, Hasty said.

The trooper said Mrs. Deyton and her two sons were heading home from a visit with relatives when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Deyton's husband, Cornelius Bill Deyton, is a sergeant at Ft. Fisher Air Force Station near Kure Beach, the trooper said.

Hasty said he was unable to determine what caused the 2:15 p.m. accident about one mile west of Bolton in Columbus County.

Mrs. Deyton was driving east in rain when her hatchback car went off the two-lane highway to the right, the trooper said. The car crossed the center line when she pulled it back onto the road, he said.

Mrs. Deyton's car side-swiped a station wagon and slid sideways into the cab of the truck, he said.

The boys were pinned inside the car and apparently died instantly. Mrs. Deyton was thrown from the car and was taken to Columbus County Hospital, where she died about 4:30 p.m.

The truck driver, Clayton Jones Jr., 29, of Effingham, S.C., was operating a 14-wheel tractor-trailer owned by American Bakeries Co. The trooper said the truck ran into a ditch.

The other car that was struck was driven by Debra Hardee Hamilton, 30, of Wilmington.

Probing Death At Rest Home

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) - The State Bureau of Investigation is probing the death of a 24-year-old retarded man at a Cleveland County rest home that was sold last summer after the state sued the home for allegedly assaulting and neglecting patients.

Mason Stalls ECU Rally At Foul Line

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 FAIRFAX, Va. — For Andy Bolden, George Mason's junior point guard, it was somewhat of a farewell party, and he made the most of it.

Bolden, who was a thorn in the side of East Carolina University's Pirates twice last year, has been declared academically ineligible for the rest of the 1982-83 season, and last night's ECAC-South game between GMU and ECU was his last appearance for this year.

Bolden, who has been playing only sparingly — and not up to his usual standards — for the past few games after learning that he'll sit out the rest of the year — was all over the court last night. As a result, GMU managed to hold off East Carolina for a 69-68 victory in the foul-filled contest.

Bolden finished the contest with a game-high 21 points, double his 10.6 average. He hit on seven of ten field goals and seven of nine free throws to lead the Patriots to their sixth win in eight starts.

But it took two free throws from John Niehoff to seal the win away with five seconds left.

East Carolina, which fell behind by as much as 13 points, stormed back to tie it up on three occasions and to trail by only one point with 13 seconds left, saw Niehoff, who had missed on his only previous trip to the line, knock in both ends of a one-and-one to give the Pats a 69-66 lead with five seconds left. Mike Fox then hit at the horn to pull the Pirates within one at the end.

There were several big factors in the game:

- Regular center Johnny Edwards did not start, and didn't enter the game until 5:50 had been played. Coach Charlie Harrison said Edwards' benching was due to a "Jack of communication" between him and Edwards. "Johnny has to learn that we do things as a group," Harrison said, not further elaborating.
- The Pirates, whether because of Edwards being out of the action or not, didn't score a field goal for the first 6:33 of the game, and went 6:17 with but two points of any kind. After scoring the first points of the game 16 seconds in on two Barry Wright free throws, ECU went scoreless as GMU built up a 7-2 lead.

- One technical and what Harrison thought was the absence of another was another factor. Harrison drew his first technical of the season and GMU scored on both free throws. The call came after Bruce Peartree had driven in for a basket and came down on top of a GMU player and was called for charging. The basket was ruled no good. "I didn't deserve the technical," Harrison said later. "I asked him why it didn't count, and he said, 'You're yelling at me,' and gave me a technical. I could have probably gotten a couple of more if I'd wanted to." Harrison was also miffed when, after GMU's opening basket, a number of rolls of toilet paper were thrown from the stands onto the playing floor as the Pirates were moving down court — halting play. Harrison asked the officials why no tech was awarded here but got no answer.

- East Carolina enjoyed an 18-point advantage from the floor, scoring nine more field goals. But GMU went to the line 33 times, hitting on 27 of them, while ECU made just eight of 15 tries. "I didn't think the officiating was very constant," Harrison said. A total of 32 fouls were called against ECU with 29 against the Patriots.

- After pulling back within one at 47:46 with 11:13 left, the Pirates had three chances to take the lead, but could only get a tie out of it. After that, GMU ran off eight straight points to take a 59-51 lead and although the Pirates fought back, they could never draw even again.

Harrison didn't credit the early drought to GMU's defense, although he credited them with good defensive effort. "They were playing us a soft man, and although we got good shots, they just wouldn't go in the hole. Then, Tony (Robinson) had three turnovers in that period and we made some poor judgements, too. Still, if we'd made our free throws, we'd have won the game."

Going back to the officiating, Harris said that there were a couple of calls at the end that really made him mad. On one Peartree put up a shot that Harrison claimed was interfered with while in the cylinder. "One of their men definitely had his hand in there," he said. "But the one that made me madder than any was when we had their guy trapped under the ECU basket and he shoved off and they let him get away with it."

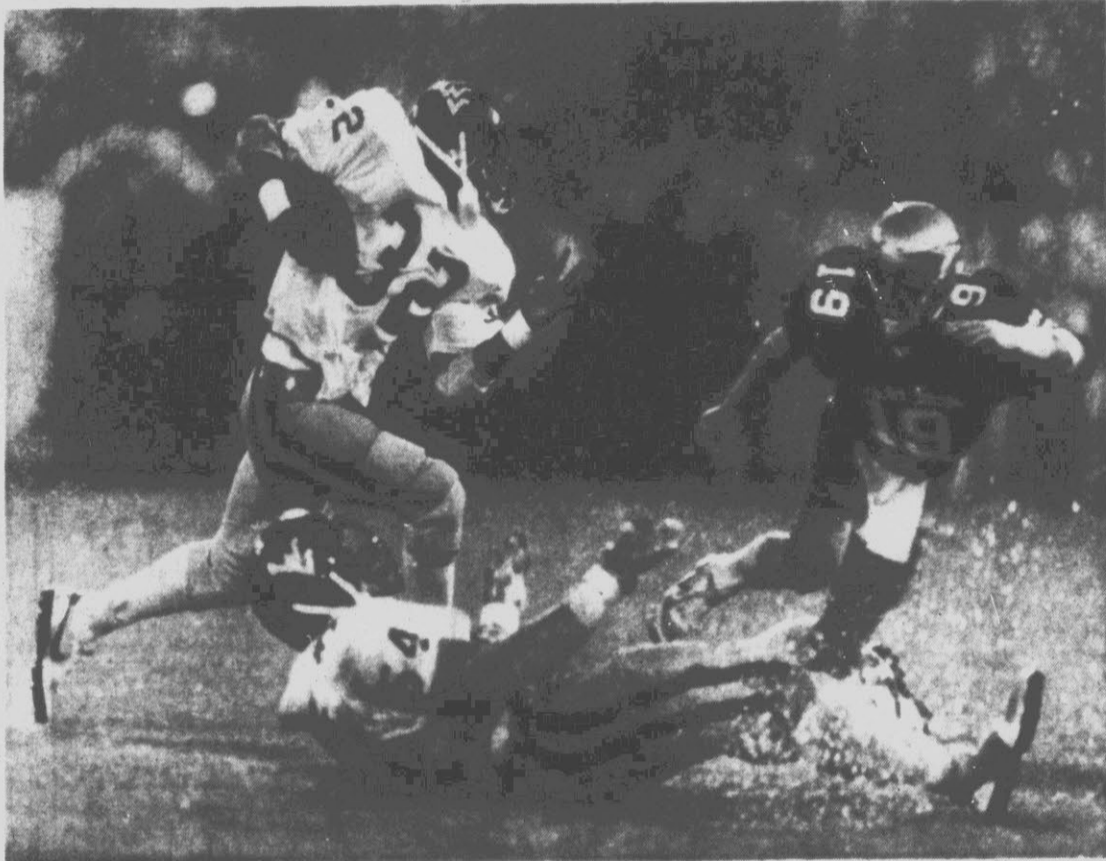

GMU, under pressure, eventually got a time out to avoid a ten-second call, and, after getting the ball back in play, added a pair of free throws to pad its lead.

"We missed so many easy shots," Harrison said of the Pirates' 51 percent in the first half. "But the kids showed a lot of character. They kept coming back, coming back, coming back. They never quit. They just have to get more consistency through the course of the ball game."

Foul trouble also hurt the Pirates: three players, Charles Green, Barry Wright and Thom Brown each had three first half fouls, and Green drew his fourth only seconds into the second half.

Lady Pirate Rally Falls Short As Notre Dame Gains 52-50 Win

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — The University of Notre Dame built up a 14-point lead in the second half, then held off an East Carolina University rally to take a 52-50 women's basketball victory yesterday afternoon.

It was the first game for the Lady Pirates in 19 days and was their third loss in four road games this season.

"It was a very disappointing loss," Coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "No question Notre Dame is a very good team. Both teams played well offensively, but we were hurt in the first half when we could not play the type of offensive game we needed to play."

Andruzzi was referring to ECU's attempts to get the ball inside to center Mary Denkler, and Notre Dame sagged in three defensive people onto at each opportunity. They also left Delphine Mabry virtually unguarded as someone switched off to get to Denkler, who ended the game with a season low 14 points.

Notre Dame also was taller overall and that helped the Fighting Irish to hold a 34-30 rebounding edge in the game and to cause ECU to shot only 38.9 percent for the. Notre Dame shot 47.1 percent.

The game was close through the first five minutes of play as the Irish inched out to a 10-8 lead. But over the next eight minutes, they outscored the Pirates, 14-6, to build up a 24-14 lead. Trina Keys, a 6-0 freshman, came off the bench to score six of those 14 points.

Throughout the remainder of the half, the Irish led by from eight to 12 points, holding a 30-21 lead at intermission.

In the early minutes, the Irish scored five straight points, including a three-point play by Ruth Kaiser, to run their lead out to its largest, 35-21.

At that point, the Pirates began to get into the action, scoring six straight to reduce the lead to eight. After an Irish time out, ND outscored the Pirates, 5-2, to pull back out to an 11-point lead.

East Carolina scored the next six before the Irish hit again, followed by another basket by ECU, cutting it to 42-37.

After another Irish basket, ECU scored seven straight, including three points by Darlene Chaney to pull even at 44-all with 5:17 left.

East Carolina took the lead when Loraine Foster stole the ball with 3:04 left and scored on a layup, 46-44 — it was the first time ECU had led.

With 2:04 left, Notre Dame tied it for the second straight time, 48-48. Then, with 1:11 left, Mary Beth Schueth scored on a layup to return ND to the lead, 50-48.

The Pirates failed to score and Schueth scored again with 35 seconds left to take a 52-48 lead. After an ECU time out, Denkler hit with 24 seconds to go pulling within two again.

The Irish held it until nine seconds were left before Foster fouled, forcing an in-bounds play by Notre Dame.

but the Pirates were unable to get the ball back in the time remaining.

"We did not do a good job of picking up their backcourt," Andruzzi said in retrospect. "We let them run their offense too much in the first half. That hurt us a great deal."

"With 18 minutes to go, Notre Dame was up by 14 but we continued to play hard and with 5:17 we tied the game. At that point, we had game momentum and they were getting tired," she continued. "But offensively we weren't getting the ball inside to the right people. I credit that to our lack of penetration as much as their defense. They made it very difficult to get it in there. At the end, we came back tremendously. We closed the gap in a fashion we practice so often. However, we should have done it in the first half."

Andruzzi listed three things that were the keys to the loss: "We have to get used to the height disadvantage, because we'll face that a lot this year. Our free throw percentage (8 of 13 for 61.5). And third was our fast break. We converted on just six of 13 fast breaks."

In addition to Denkler's 14, Foster also added 14. Chaney, playing her first game since November 27 (she left the team for just over a week), scored eight points and pulled eight rebounds in a reserve capacity.

Notre Dame was led by Laura Dougherty with 12 points, while Shari Matvey had 11 and Schueth had 10.

The Irish climbed to 7-2 on the season, while the Pirates fall to 4-3.

East Carolina travels to Western Kentucky on Monday for its next outing on the current four-game road trip.

Conley Second In Tournament

MOREHEAD CITY — D.H. Conley's wrestlers, missing two grapplers, finished second in the West Carteret Invitational Wrestling Tournament yesterday.

The Vikings won two weight classes as William Bridgett took the 157-pound title and Mike Long won at 187.

But two wrestlers were not along with the team and that didn't help matters. The Vikings were missing 100-pounder Allen Nethercutt and 169-pound Willie Greene, both of whom were out with illness. Greene is a defending conference champion.

In addition to the two victories, Conley also had four seconds, three thirds and one fourth. Only one Vike wrestler failed to place in the eight-team event. Cary won the tournament with 161 points, while Conley had 148½. Hosting West Carteret was third with 129, while Havelock had 105½. The bottom four were Athens Drive with 60½, Wilson Hunt with 51, Kingston with 21, and Camp Lejeune with 12.

"For just having 11 guys there, we did well in the tournament," Coach Milt Sherman said. "One of the big problems is that of six matches with (Coastal Conference foe) Havelock, we only won one."

Havelock is the next opponent for the Vikings, who visit that school next Thursday.

Game-Breaking Plays Give Gator Victory To Florida State, 31-12

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden took hold of the Gator Bowl championship trophy, hoisted it high into the air and exclaimed: "This is for the team!"

He didn't deny that the Seminoles' 31-12 triumph over 10th-ranked West Virginia in the 38th Gator Bowl Classic Thursday night had been satisfying. But he insisted it wasn't because it came against the school he coached for six seasons before moving to Florida State in 1976.

"I got no thrill whatsoever in the fact that we beat West Virginia," he said. "I am happy because we won the Gator Bowl."

Bowden said the victory, which boosted Florida State's record to 9-3, was more important to his players because it halted a two-game losing streak.

"We needed this game real bad because if you don't watch it, you can destroy all your confidence," said Bowden, whose team lost the last two games of the regular season to plunge out of the Top Twenty.

"I'm extremely proud of the way we responded to this challenge," he added. "It was very important to wind up on a positive note."

For West Virginia, meanwhile, it was a disappointing end to what has been described as the school's greatest season.

Third-year Coach Don Nehlen said the 9-3 Mountaineers were simply a victim of too many game-breaking plays.

"Boy the big plays bothered us," said Nehlen. "Just like Bobby said all week, when they make the big plays they win and when they don't they lose."

Billy Allen ignited Florida State by returning a kickoff 95 yards for a touchdown and Greg Allen scored on runs of 29 yards and 1 yard as the Seminoles stopped West Virginia's four-game winning streak.

"It was wonderful because it was a sparkplug for our offense," Billy Allen said of his return. "We started slow, but that picked us up and we went on from there."

Florida State was in command from start to finish.

The Seminoles began their first three possessions from the West Virginia 35, 38 and 33-yard lines after blocking a field goal attempt, partially blocking a punt and intercepting a pass. But the Seminoles could only generate three points.

West Virginia drove 36 yards for the first of two Paul Woodside field goals, a 48-yarder with 14:14 left in the half, but the game shifted dramatically on the ensuing kickoff.

Billy Allen took the ball at his own 5 and started up the left side of the field. He found a huge hole, crossed to the right sideline and glided to the end zone for a 10-3 Seminoles lead.

"It must have been meant for me to do that," he said. "We were in a formation to the left, but once I got over on the right it was clear sailing."

Bowden conceded that the kickoff return was a big boost, but said he thought two other sequences were more significant.

Quarterback Blair Williams tossed a 27-yard touchdown pass to a leaping Dennis McKinnon just before the half ended. And, the Seminoles' defense kept West Virginia off the scoreboard after Willie Drewrey returned a punt 82 yards to the Florida State 7 early in the third quarter.

"That told us we could win the ball game," said Bowden.

Greg Allen, the nations leading scorer with 21 touchdowns during the regular season, led all rushers with 138 yards on 15 carries.

Williams completed 16 of 30 passes for 202 yards, while West Virginia quarterback Jeff Hostetler hit only 10 of 28 for 118 yards and two interceptions.

Backup quarterback Kevin White directed the Mountaineers' only touchdown drive, a 9-play, 96-yard march that he completed with a 26-yard scoring pass to Darrell Miller.

The national championship probably will be decided New Year's night in the Sugar Bowl, where the only unbeaten and untied major college team, top-ranked Georgia, faces No. 2 Penn State. The Bulldogs, who won the national title by going unbeaten two years ago, are led by Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker and a staunch defense.

Penn State, 10-1, also has a star tailback in Curt Warner and quarterback Todd Blackledge leads a potent air game. The Nittany Lions also have a tough defense and enter the game a slight favorite.

In the Orange Bowl, also on New Year's night, No. 3 Nebraska, 10-1, pits its high-scoring offense against Louisiana State's rugged defense. The Cornhuskers, whose only loss this season came in the final seconds at Penn State, are hoping for a tie in the Sugar Bowl, combined with their own one-sided victory over the Tigers, 8-21 and ranked 13th. Given those circumstances, Nebraska could sneak to the top of the final rankings.

Southern Methodist, 10-0-1, is the host team against Pittsburgh, 9-2, in the Cotton Bowl on Saturday afternoon. The fourth-ranked Mustangs, champions of the Southwest Conference, have only a tie with Arkansas to mar their record and feature the rushing of Eric Dickerson and Craig James. No. 6 Pitt moves behind the quarterbacking of Dan Marino and a powerful offensive line.

The Rose Bowl on New Year's Day has Big Ten champ Michigan, 8-3 and rated 19th, with All-American wide receiver Anthony Carter, against Pacific 10 winner UCLA. The Bruins, 9-1-1 and ranked fifth, won at Michigan earlier this year but lost to the Wolverines in the Bluebonnet Bowl a year ago.

The fifth New Year's game is the Fiesta Bowl, with No. 12 Oklahoma, 8-3, against Arizona State, 9-2 and ranked 11th. The Sooners have a super freshman running back in Marcus Dupree, who will test the Sun Devils' stingy defense.

Aycock Tops Conley For Tourney Title

By RICK SCOPE
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley coach Joy James is getting tired of second place. She also could do without playing C.B. Aycock — at least in Conley's own Christmas Tournament.

The Lady Falcons not only won their second straight tournament title but also handed the Valkyries their first loss of the year as C.B. Aycock defeated DHC, 43-35, Thursday night.

"This is getting old," James said afterwards while holding the second place trophy. The Valkyries, now 8-1, played perhaps their worst half of the season against the Lady Falcons and trailed, 26-13, at halftime. DHC cut the lead to eight in the final period but could not get closer.

"We just didn't hustle," James said. "We were playing scared. We were just scared of C.B. Aycock." The Lady Falcons, now 7-2, used the inside power of Sheri Williams, voted the tournament MVP, and the outside touch of Lisa Bunn to take an eight-point lead (12-4) at the end of the first period.

Williams scored 16 points — half of which came in the first period — and Bunn added 12 to lead CBA. Aycock upped its lead to 24-7, on a driving jumper down the lane by Williams with 3:20 left in the half. The Valkyries scored three straight buckets to cut the lead to 13 at intermission.

Two jumpers by both Bunn and Williams and a follow shot by Marsha Hester gave the Lady Falcons a 36-21 after three quarters, before DHC guard Irish Barnhill almost single-handedly led a run that narrowed the deficit to 38-29 with 4:15 left.

Barnhill, who scored 16 points and was the only DHC player in double figures, canned three jumpers and two free throws to key a 8-0 surge that cut the lead to nine. Barnhill followed her own miss to make it 41-33 with 32 seconds remaining, but Hester swished both sides of a one-and-one — C.B. Aycock missed three straight one-and-ones in the last minute — with 11 seconds left to seal the win.

"I thought Irish Barnhill was the only player who played like she wanted to win," James said. "She was the only one in the fourth quarter who wanted to win." Barnhill and Mechio Kornegay were both named to the 12-player all-tournament team from DHC. Aycock placed three players — most of any club — on the team. Named from CBA to the team were Zina Jones, Hester and Bunn. But it was Williams who did the most damage.

North Carolina didn't get mad at 12th-ranked Missouri — the Tar Heels just got even. Center Sam Perkins scored 22 points and Michael Jordan added 19 as the Tar Heels sizzled in the second half to take a 73-58 victory over the Tigers Thursday night in the finals of the Rainbow Classic basketball tournament in Honolulu.

The win was especially sweet for Coach Dean Smith's defending national champions, who lost to Missouri in their second game of the season. Perkins and Jordan helped Smith's club to their third Rainbow Classic championship. The score was tied at 31-31 at halftime before UNC pulled away in the second half.

Guard Jon Sundvold scored 20 points for Missouri. The victory was North Carolina's fourth in a row, raising its record to 8-3. Missouri fell to 9-2.

Perkins was named most valuable player in the eight-team event. Jordan and Perkins were named to the all-tournament team.

In the only other game involving Atlantic Coast Conference teams Thursday, Virginia won the Richmond-Times-Dispatch Invitational Tournament with a 75-59 victory over previously unbeaten Old Dominion.

Rusty Memphis Just Does Win

Coach Dana Kirk and his undefeated Memphis State Tigers may have had a little too long to think about this one. Idle for a week, the second-ranked Tigers escaped with a 63-58 victory Thursday night at Mississippi, and Kirk said defense had been a point of worry in this slow-starting contest.

"Ole Miss is a very good team, and Coach (Lee) Hunt has done an excellent job with the basketball program," Kirk said. "They play a very intense man-to-man defense. We thought for several days about what type of defense to use against them." The Rebels trailed by just three points, 61-58, with five seconds left on a 20-footer by Carlos Clark. However, the Tigers hit two free throws after Mississippi was forced to foul as time dwindled.

derneath with 11:13 left to pull the Pirates within one, 47-46, but Peartree missed a chance to put the Pirates ahead. After a GMU turnover, Wright made the second of a two-shot foul with 10:26 left, tying it at 47-47.

He was pleased with the job done on Carlos Yates, the ECAC-South's leading scorer with a 26.6 average. Although Yates got 20 points, half of them came from the foul line, where he was 10 of 11 and Harrison questioned most of the fouls called against him as "cheap."

But after Yates missed and Edwards rebounded, Wright missed on a poor shot and Dillard was fouled, making two free throws. ECU tied it up twice more at 49-49 and 51-51 before Bolden made a jumper and two free throws and Rob Rose added two baskets for a 59-51 lead with 4:43 left.

After falling back by as much as nine in the first half, the Pirates trailed 30-23 with two minutes left when Peartree drove in for an apparent layup, only to have it wiped out by a charging call. That drew the technical on Harrison and Mike Yohe hit both shots, followed by his hitting two more before the half ended giving the Pats a 34-23 lead before Peartree hit with 17 seconds left to cut it back to nine.

Chargers Take Title In Tri-County, 67-64

WHEAT SWAMP — Ayden-Grifton's boys and Greene Central's girls came away with the titles in the Tri-County Holiday Classic last night. Greene Central downed Ayden-Grifton, 45-41, while the Chargers topped South Lenoir, 67-64.

In the girls' game, Ayden-Grifton broke out into an early lead, building up a 14-9 lead after one period. But Greene Central rallied, 11-6, and tied it up at the half, 20-20. Ayden-Grifton again took charge in the third period, outscoring the Lady Rams, 14-10. That gave the Lady Chargers a 34-30 lead to take into the final frame. In that, however, Greene Central rallied for a 15-7 margin — enough to pull out the victory.

Cindy Hicks led Greene Central with 17 points while Antoinette Wilkes added 12. Cora Faison had 15 and Cynthia Hicks had 12 for Ayden-Grifton.

In the boys' championship game, Ayden-Grifton rolled out to a 17-11 lead after one period and were never caught after that. The two teams matched points in the second quarter, 12-12, leaving AG in a 29-23 lead at intermission.

Ayden-Grifton added three more points to that in the third period, 18-15, building the lead out to 47-38. But in the final quarter, South Lenoir was able to put together a 26-20 rally cutting it back to the final three-point margin.

"We missed a number of free throws in the final period," Coach Bob Murphrey said. "We didn't shoot them as well as we usually do. We also lost Thomas Anderson on fouls with about four and a half minutes to go and that hurt us. We handled the ball well, but we didn't hit those free throws."

Pirates were unable to make up the ground, as Bolden made a basket and three of four free throws in the final 2½ minutes to keep the Patriots in front.

In addition to Bolden's 21 and Yates' 20, Yohe had 10 points for the Patriots. East Carolina was led by Edwards with 17, while Green had 16, and Wright and Peartree each had 11.

The loss dropped the Pirates to 4-4 overall. They travel to Virginia Tech on Tuesday.

Anderson, selected as the tournament's Most Valuable Player, led Ayden-Grifton with 22 points, while Tyrone Gay added 15, Marvin Smith (also all-tournament) had 13 and Calvin Peterson had 10. North Lenoir was led by James Dunn with 14, Wade Smith with 13, Darryl King with 12, Sylvester Whitfield with 11 and Donald Ingram with 10.

"I thought Gay should have been all-tournament, too," Murphy said. "He had an outstanding tournament."

AIRING ON NEW YEAR - An in-depth radio interview of writer-composer Brant Mewborn by WOOW Program Director John Anthony will air at 12:30 p.m. Saturday on WOOW Radio. Mewborn, a Snow Hill native, is an assistant editor of The Rolling Stones magazine and has recorded a single record with words from Beate song titles set to his music as a tribute to the late singer John Lennon. Great Moments In 1982's TV

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) - "My Favorite Year" was a movie about a television program in 1954. Unfortunately, television programs in 1982 have not made this my favorite year. But there have been great moments. At year's end, here are some personal favorites:

Favorite Commercial: Federal Express. The latest one, with the poor schnook without the slides for his business presentation, is another gem. The guy does great shadow animals.

Favorite Animal on TV: Mick Belker of "Hill Street Blues" wins over the one-eyed mutt on "Tales of the Gold Monkey." The dog is the second best thing about "Gold Monkey."

Favorite TV Songwriter: Mike Post, who wrote the themes for "Hill Street Blues," "Greatest American Hero," and "Tales of the Gold Monkey." The song is the best thing about "Gold Monkey."

Favorite Male Sex Symbol: Tom Selleck of "Magnum, P.I." He can still laugh at himself.

Favorite Female Sex Symbol: Stephanie Zimbalist of "Remington Steele." Classy enough to look good in hats.

Favorite Relationship: Miss Zimbalist and Pierce Brosnan on "Remington Steele." They put the intrigue and mystery back into sex.

Favorite Evening News Anchor: Dan Rather. He's relaxed and loose now. If only he didn't say good night as if it was a question.

Favorite News Commentator: Bill Moyers. A pundit who knows how the political process doesn't work. He tells us why precisely and perceptively.

Favorite Late-night Anchor: Ted Koppel. He does a live juggling act every night on "Nightline" and never drops the balls.

Favorite Morning Male Anchor: Bryant Gumbel on "Today." If you have to be up early, he makes it easier. So persistently pleasant, he can sweeten day-old coffee.

Favorite Morning Female

Anchor: Diane Sawyer on the "CBS Morning News." CBS News has the courage to let a woman co-anchor really be co-equal. Miss Sawyer can be tough and diplomatic at the same time. A real force in TV news.

Favorite News Program: "Sunday Morning." The right combination of program tone, time, day, and anchor: the cultured and intelligent Charles Kuralt.

Favorite 60 Minutesman: Mike Wallace. At 64, he has a remarkable zest for his work and seems to care deeply about his stories. CBS just signed him to a five-year extension. We're glad he'll be scrutinizing Social Security, not collecting it.

Favorite Historical Documentary: NBC's "Bataan, the Forgotten Hell" made a 40-year-old event brutally memorable again.

Favorite Topical Documentary: On CBS, Moyers' "People Like Us" reduced the Reagan budget cuts to human terms, and Kuralt's "After the Dream Comes True" examined shopping malls and found that America is replacing its soul with dollar signs.

Favorite Special Series: "To Serve Them All My Days." The 13-part "Masterpiece Theater" ends Sunday. It's truly been a masterpiece.

Favorite Weekly Series: "Hill Street Blues." Nothing comes close.

Favorite Hill Street Blue: Bobby Hill. He's such a good guy, he even gets along with red-neck Renko.

Favorite TV Transportation: "Taxi." The General Lee of "Dukes of Hazzard" should be impounded for reckless endangerment of the next generation of drivers.

Favorite Foil: Maj. Charles Winchester on "M-A-S-H." He manages to be the butt and still maintain his dignity. What other buffoon on TV can say that?

Favorite Kid on TV: Don Meredith on "Monday Night Football."

Favorite Singer on TV: Don Meredith. "The Party's Over."

Favorite New Comedy: "Cheers." "Archie Bunker's Place" is a washed-up watering hole. Sam Malone's saloon is now the place for drowning your sorrows.

Favorite TV Weatherman: Willard Scott of "Today."

Favorite TV Comic: Willard Scott of "Today."

Favorite New Series: "St. Elsewhere." But this hospital series is taking the reality kick too far when you need "Gray's Anatomy" to follow the story.

Favorite Doctor: Hawkeye Pierce of "M-A-S-H." He operates on our heads and funny bones, and it's never painful.

Favorite TV Feud: Laverne and Shirley.

Favorite To-do About Nothing: Two TV movies about Prince Charles and Lady Diana, when the real thing, done live, was so much better.

Favorite Year in TV: 1983?

Says Plans 'Sabotaged'

NEW YORK (AP) - Northern J. Calloway, who plays David on television's "Sesame Street," has filed a $25 million suit charging business associates with sabotaging a project to produce an animated movie for children and families.

Calloway filed the suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court asking for damages and a court order "to enforce and protect his rights as an artist, producer and copyright owner" of the project.

Calloway said he conceived and developed the motion picture project "as a full-length science fiction musical, with state of the art computerized animation, for children and family entertainment."

He said the project was tentatively entitled, "The Skyriider." But he charged his managers and lawyers conspired with others and "misappropriated" his copyright materials and violated certain agreements to deprive him of his production rights.

Among listed defendants were LMN Productions Inc., which was formed to market the project and two LMN officers, Michael B. Klein and Luis Quiros. Klein and Quiros allegedly were engaged by Calloway in January 1981 to aid in obtaining production financing.

The suit did not list addresses for the defendants, and their whereabouts could not be determined to obtain comment on the suit.

Shaffer Returns With A Spoof Of Whodunnits

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Drama Critic
NEW YORK (AP) - Back in 1970, Britain's Anthony Shaffer gave Broadway a rousing, Tony-winning thriller, "Sleuth." Now he's back with Broadway's final offering of 1982, a spoof of whodunnits called "Whodunnit."

Set in the '30s, played on Andrew Jackness' superb, two-level, wood-paneled library set, it's described as an old-fashioned English country-house murder mystery and comes equipped with seven suspects.

Sounds like fun. Too bad it isn't. This strained, broadly played caper, bowing Thursday and known in London as "The Case of the Oily Levantine," is almost dead on arrival, even with two murders and one butler.

It opens in darkness, with a clap of thunder and what sounds like a woman's voice that periodically returns during the play, gloating every time. The voice cheerfully reveals that "I did it" - the murder to come - and urges you to pay attention to the clues and see if you can figure who she or he is.

meaning "TV might be better." Returnees will find a slightly better second act, mainly because of the presence of tall, sad-faced Fred Gwynne, fine and funny as a Scotland Yard inspector overjoyed at the prospect of a challenging case and not the "run-of-the-mill villain" of his long career.

Inspired by the detective novels he and his jittery sergeant love, he becomes an "eccentric sleuth," which here means he dons a cape, an Irish walking hat and starts walking with a limp.

As for the case at hand, suffice it to say none of the suspects, ditto the victim (who turns out to be a no-good actors' agent), are what they first seemed to be. Ah, the old mystery-within-a-mystery game.

Inspector Gwynne recreates the murder. Oh-oh, another cast member is croaked. But the case finally is solved, and the proceedings limp to an end after a whimsical, moderately amusing false finale.

The supporting suspects, Hermione Baddeley (the Dame) and Gordon Chater (the butler) among them, give all this a good professional try. In vain, though. Even with a few hoary sight gags, this spoof is a no-show.

I will go out on a limb and say "Whodunnit," which Michael Kahn directed, so to speak, may run through the end of 1982. But not much longer.

Frank Rich wrote in The New York Times that Shaffer "does have one funny surprise up his sleeve" but "he fervently insists that the audience slog through a full act of utter tedium to get to it."

Rich's review concludes: "... We don't need Scotland Yard to solve the mystery of who killed the fun in 'Whodunnit.' Any armchair detective can plainly see that the author done it."

Inspector Gwynne recreates the murder. Oh-oh, another cast member is croaked. But the case finally

Jerry To Vow No Smoking

NEW YORK (AP) - Comedian Jerry Lewis, recovering from double coronary bypass surgery in Las Vegas, will give up smoking as his New Year's resolution, according to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Lewis has been associated with the organization for 30 years. It issued a statement from New York saying Lewis "looks forward to a very happy, healthy, and productive New Year" and plans "to crusade as vigorously as ever (for) his kids" with muscular dystrophy.

Robert Ross, executive director of the association, said he knew Lewis was serious about his New Year's resolution when "he asked me if I knew anybody who needed 738 lighters."

Lighting up with a foot-long flame is a standard part of the Lewis' nightclub act.

Admits Beating Wife, Denies Cyanide Poisoning

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — A man who had blamed his wife's near-fatal poisoning on cyanide-tainted Anacin capsules was in jail today, accused of trying to kill the woman he admitted hitting "a couple of times."

Richard Ray Bowen, 29, was taken into custody Thursday on charges of attempted murder and willful poisoning of medicine. No bond was set and an arraignment was set for Monday.

Police Sgt. Bob Burroughs said Thursday that Bowen's wife Susan was poisoned with cyanide, but that the poison was not contained in Maximum Strength Anacin-3 capsules as Bowen had claimed.

The poisoning incident, which occurred Nov. 26, triggered the removal of the pain reliever from hundreds of stores in five states.

In an interview shortly before he was arrested, Bowen admitted that he had a history of violence against women in his family, including his wife, but denied that he tried to kill her.

"What have I got to gain by killing my wife?" Bowen asked. "There's no life insurance."

The arrest came just a few hours after Bowen's attorney, Melvin Belli, announced a suit against the makers of Maximum Strength Anacin-3 for "way over $1 million."

Mrs. Bowen, who nearly died from the poisoning, cried loudly for nearly 10 minutes after her father told her of Bowen's arrest.

"She's taking it real hard," said her father, Melvin Lyon. Asked whether his daughter believed that her husband tried to kill her, Lyon said, "I don't want to say." He gave the same answer when asked what he thought.

Mrs. Bowen is undergoing therapy at Valley Medical Center for slurred speech, swallowing difficulties and a tremor.

Mrs. Bowen divorced her husband in 1977, but they remarried. Bowen was arrested in San Jose in 1978 on suspicion of assault, battery and trying to run down his sister and a girlfriend with a car. The case was dropped when the women said they couldn't press charges.

Bowen, a circulation district manager for the San Jose Mercury-News, said in an interview with the newspaper before his arrest that his 30-year-old wife swallowed an Anacin-3 capsule on Thanksgiving just before she stopped breathing, collapsed and began frothing at the mouth.

In the interview Bowen said, "Yeah, I did hit her a couple of times."

Belli, a flamboyant liability and malpractice lawyer, blamed the company for poisoning Mrs. Bowen. He said he'd represent Bowen in both the civil suit and the criminal case.

Belli accused the San Jose police of grandstanding and said he has instructed his client not to cooperate with their investigation or take a lie detector test.

"The police did a despicable thing," Belli said after the arrest. "I said, 'If you want him, I'll bring him in, we'll cooperate with you. We'll do anything we can to find out how his wife got poisoned.' They said, 'We don't want him.' ... And all this time they had a couple of cops out with a warrant for him."

After Mrs. Bowen's seizure was first diagnosed as a stroke, it was her husband who urged hospital and state authorities to look into the possibility that she was poisoned. He brought them the bottle of Anacin-3 for diagnosis.

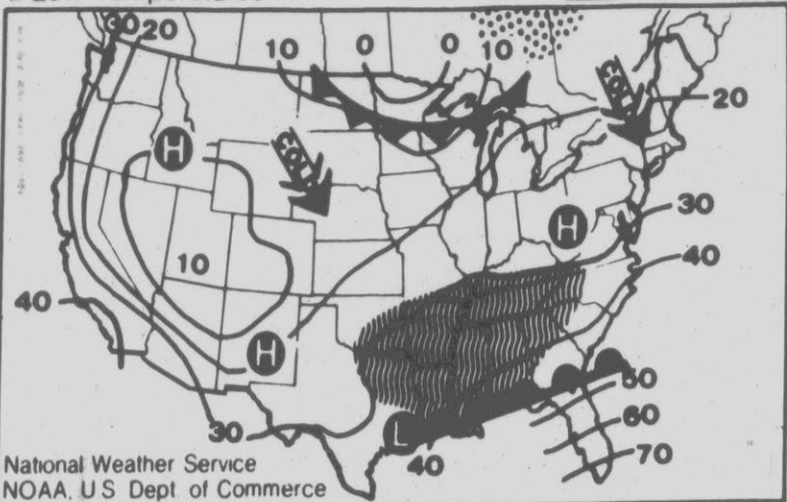

Tests performed later by the state Health Department showed some of the capsules in the bottle contained lethal doses of cyanide.

The FBI is still working with San Jose police to see if the cyanide used to poison Mrs. Bowen was the same as that used to kill seven people in the Chicago area who died after taking poisoned Extra-Strength Tylenol capsules.

Police Chief Joseph McNamara said there was no reason to believe Mrs. Bowen's case is related to the Chicago poisonings or to the discovery of a small amount of cyanide in an unused bottle of Maximum Strength Anacin-3 turned in by a San Pedro woman. The San Pedro sample carried the same lot number, F229, as the Bowens' bottle.

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Saturday predicts rain showers for much of the lower Mississippi River Valley states from southern Missouri to the Gulf of Mexico. Rain showers

By The Associated Press
The New Year may start off on a wet note in most of North Carolina.

There is a chance of rain statewide New Year's Day. Highs in the 40s to mid 50s. Lows tonight will be in the 30s and low 40s.

The mixture of precipitation that fell across North Carolina Thursday and Thursday night moved out of the state this morning.

Rain early today was confined mainly to the east and northeastern sections of the state, while over sections of the northern Piedmont the rain has been mixed with some freezing rain, sleet and snow.

Very little of this freezing and frozen precipitation has been sticking to the ground but some slick spots are possible especially on bridges and overpasses.

Cloudy weather was the rule early Thursday across North Carolina with some rain that continued along the coast. An upper level disturbance moved out of the western Gulf of Mexico during the morning hours.

This disturbance spread a mixture of precipitation across the western and central sections of the Tar Heel state of the state during the afternoon and evening. For the most part, the freezing rain, sleet and light snow was confined to the mountains eastward across the northern piedmont.

Elsewhere a cold rain was the rule.

Temperatures across North Carolina recovered little from the early morning lows. Highs only reached the upper 30s from the mountains eastward across the northern Piedmont. Elsewhere highs were in the 40s ranging into the low and mid 50s along the south coast.

Rainfall during the past 24 hours has been the heaviest along the coast where Wilmington had over an inch of rain. Cape Hatteras had nearly two inches. Over the central and western sections rainfall amounts have been around a third of an inch or less.

As the rains moved out of the state this morning, skies will continue to cloudy. Another low pressure area forming in the western gulf of Mexico today will threaten North Carolina New Year's Day. But at the moment it appears that the majority of the rain will be to the south of us New Year's Day.

Knighthood From Queen

LONDON (AP) — Stage director Jonathon Miller, Olympic decathlon champion Daley Thompson and "Chariots of Fire" director David Puttnam begin 1983 with laurels from the queen.

Queen Elizabeth II today bestowed New Year's honors on the three, along with 674 other people.

She awarded knighthoods to Shakespearean actor Michael Hordern, 70; John Pritchard, 60, the new chief conductor of the BBC Symphony Orchestra; and David Piper, director of Oxford University's Ashmolean Museum.

Dr. Olga Uvarov, the first woman president of the Royal College of Veterinary Surgeons, was made a Dame of the British Empire, the female equivalent of a knighthood.

Puttnam, whose "Chariots of Fire" won an academy award as the best picture of 1981, was named a Commander of the British Empire.

The same honor went to Miller, who aside from being a leading director of operas and plays, is a British TV personality and comedian.

Thompson, 25, who won his gold medal in 1980, was made a Member of the British Empire.

The awards are granted by the sovereign on recommendation of the prime minister to reward distinguished service to the nation, and in some cases to repay political debts.

Ask Investigate Tobacco Vote

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service has asked federal officials to investigate charges of voting irregularities in the recent tobacco referendum.

John Cooper, ASCS director, said Thursday that his office has forwarded about 20 complaints to the Inspector General's Office of the U.S. Agriculture Department.

Growers in Wilson, Harnett, Randolph and Franklin counties allege that some people voted more than once or voted when they were not eligible in the Dec. 16 six-state vote. The final tally showed overwhelming support for federal price support and quota programs for tobacco.

It's About Time

The next leap year is 1984. But when is the next leap second? Quite possibly, it's today. But you don't have to worry unless you have an atomic clock on your mantel. Atomic clocks, which are tuned to vibrations of atoms, gain or lose only a few seconds every 100,000 years. But while atomic clocks are constant, the Earth's rotation isn't. So the Bureau de l'Heure in Paris sometimes orders scientists to add or subtract a second on December 31, just to keep atomic time and astronomical time in balance. While you're celebrating the New Year, give a thought to the dedicated scientists who might be staying up late night to wind their atomic clocks.

DO YOU KNOW — What do "A.M." and "P.M." stand for?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — According to the Roman calendar, the month of July was originally called Quintilis.

Lawrence makes a world champion. Perhaps foremost, the Californian Mike Lawrence, who has several world titles to his credit, at his deal from the Pairs event at the World Olympiad in Biar France. South's hand improved greatly when North led the one spade to the heart opening bid. North's jump preference to hearts at his next turn convinced South to continue on me.

Lawrence was playing Eddie Kantar of Los Angeles. He led his fourth club and declarer ruffed. The spade ace was lost, and East recovered with clubs. Declarer ruffed and now led a slight error—he led a heart to the queen. Since he could not have the ace of hearts, he passed and had already shown the king of spades and ace-king of clubs). Declarer should have led the king of hearts from hand to retain control. He could then win any return, draw one more round of trumps and then play winners until someone ruffed with the last trump. He would lose only two trumps and a spade.

Declarer now could not lead another trump—the defenders would be able to collect all the rest of the tricks but two—and Lawrence was able to profit from the error. Declarer started cashing his winners.

On the third spade Lawrence discarded a diamond, and on the last he sluffed a club. Declarer tackled diamonds, but West still refused to ruff. He parted with clubs on the first three diamonds, and when declarer led a fourth diamond from hand, he let go another club. But this time Kantar was able to ruff with the four of trumps. So after making six successive discards, Lawrence was able to score the last two tricks with the ace-king of trumps!

Note that, if Lawrence ruffs at any point, declarer prevails. He wins any return by Lawrence, leads a trump to crash both outstanding trumps, and scores the rest with his last trump and the good diamonds.

TUMBLE-DOWN SHACK IN THE WEED PATCH

American music, poetry and literature are rich in nostalgic references to tumble-down shacks in the mountains, on the prairies, or by a rippling stream — places that kindle remembered scenes from childhood. Here, on a rural road near Stokes, are the remains of a structure in the very last stages of tumble in the middle of a weed patch. One non-sentimentalist said it reminds her more of a huge roadside double bed than a shack in poetic decay. (Reflector Photo by Jerry Raynor)

Brazil Unable To Pay $800 Million Due On Loans

By RICHARD COLE
Associated Press Writer
RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) - Hoping to avert insolvency in March, Brazil says it will withhold more than $800 million in principal payments due on loans from U.S. and other foreign banks.

"There doesn't exist any alternative," Jose Serrano, international director for the Brazilian central bank told reporters Thursday. International bankers were told of the plan last week in New York.

If Brazil's plan for re-scheduling principal payments due in January and February is not accepted by international bankers, Serrano said, "We will enter into de facto insolvency on March 1."

Brazil has the world's ninth-largest economy and is the Third World's largest borrower with $90 billion due foreign lenders. It owes $446 million in principal on loans in January and a similar amount in February, Serrano said.

In Sao Paulo, central bank president Carlos Langoni stressed the procedure involved only repayment of principal and interest payments would continue to be made on schedule.

Serrano said the central bank has given 686 creditor banks a proposal to turn the January-February principal into deposits that lenders would have to leave in Brazilian banks, which would in turn deposit them in the central bank. He said a "good portion" of the foreign banks had responded favorably, but not a majority. He said Brazil would go ahead on its own and withhold payments to any foreign bank that does not respond to the plan by Saturday.

Langoni said the money deposited in the central bank would be repaid to the foreign banks under new terms similar to a regular eight-year loan, beginning with a 30-month grace period in which no payments would be made.

The central bank will pay interest on the money and the foreign banks will have the option of reloaning the money to a Brazilian client, rather than leaving it in the central bank, Langoni said.

Brazilian reports say large U.S. banks were agreeing to the deal but smaller regional American banks, along with European and Japanese lenders, were balking.

"If the majority accepts, the minority will have to go along," Serrano said, adding he was certain the majority of banks would accept the deal.

Two Brazilian bank directors attending a meeting Wednesday where the plan was discussed said it amounted to a unilateral rescheduling of Brazilian debt by the government.

"It is a bit high-handed," said one of the directors, who asked not to be identified.

There was little immediate reaction from U.S. bankers. Citibank of New York, one of the major lenders to Brazil, had no comment Thursday. At the National Bank of North Carolina in Raleigh, a small lender to Brazil, senior vice president William Vandiver said he was awaiting clarification from Brazil, but insisted the plan "is not being jammed down anybody's throat."

Meeting with international bankers in New York on Dec. 20, Langoni and other Brazilian officials asked them not to take $4 billion in loan payments out of Brazil when they are due in early 1983. At that time, the Brazilians also asked for new loans totaling $4.4 billion.

On Dec. 15, Brazil reached a tentative agreement with the International Monetary Fund to borrow $5.9 billion as an emergency financing measure. That agreement followed a $1.2 billion loan by the United States.

Brazil, along with Mexico and Argentina, has experienced major problems in repaying its foreign debt this year. The world recession, decline in prices for their exports and rising costs for imported goods have drained the dollar reserves from all three nations.

Adding to its economic woes, Brazil finished 1982 with a 99.7 percent inflation rate, according to the Getulio Vargas Foundation. The research group's figures are accepted as official by the government.

The rate was the second highest in Brazilian history, after 1980's 110 percent, and represents a 4.5 percent increase over 1981. Wholesale prices finished the year up 97.7 percent over December 1981 with a 6 percent increase this month.

Warn Jet Lag Involves Risks

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - Airline pilots and frequent fliers may age prematurely and have their life span shortened due to jet lag, researchers say.

Dr. William Zung, professor of biological psychiatry at Duke University Medical Center, says jet lag disrupts the body's biological clock.

"When we fly from one time zone to another, it disturbs the body's natural rhythm of waking and sleeping," Zung said.

"For most of us, it means losing a little sleep," he said. "But as studies involving long-range aviation suggest, there is greater physiological cost for someone who constantly shifts his body rhythms over the course of 20 or 30 years. He can actually shorten his life span."

He says the body's waking-sleeping cycle, called the circadian rhythm, is tied to daylight and darkness.

"When we move suddenly to another time zone, we're changing the length of daylight and darkness to which our bodies have become accustomed," he said.

In the absence of light, brain signals that keep the body awake and alert dwindle and we become sleepy.

After a flight from New York to Los Angeles, encompassing a three-hour time difference, it may take three full days to recover, Zung said.

"As a rule it takes one day for every hour of change," he said. "That means six days if you fly from New York to London."

For short trips, Zung recommends living on your home time.

Traveling west, you can close the blinds to keep the early morning sun from setting off your internal alarm. But you lose time traveling east, shortening the day and lengthening the night, Zung said.

The longer the flight, the more impractical it becomes to adhere to your local time. But Zung has some hints on how to get to sleep during the adjustment period.

"Instead of tossing and turning, do something recreational that doesn't involve the next day's business," he said. "Read a book or watch television. When you read yourself to sleep, you're really practicing self-hypnosis."

By focusing your attention on the printed page, to the exclusion of all other stimuli, the parts of the brain that aren't involved in the act of reading begin to shut down."

Warn Again As To Diets

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Food and Drug Administration has issued its third warning against using the low-calorie Cambridge Diet - or any diet providing less than 800 calories a day - without medical supervision.

The Cambridge Diet, promoted by Cambridge Plan International of Monterey, Calif., provides 330 calories a day in a flavored powder mixed with water.

The agency said it had received 181 complaints of illness and six deaths possibly associated with the Cambridge Diet since November 1981, but had been unable to confirm any link because the data were too limited, because of pre-existing illness or because of the use of medication.

In a response, Vaughn Feather, president of Cambridge Plan International, said, "To the best of our knowledge, for the hundreds of thousands of individuals who have followed the plan, no serious side effects have been experienced that can be responsibly attributed to Cambridge." He said Cambridge and FDA officials planned a January meeting to discuss the diet.

Airport Plans New Terminal

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) - The Raleigh-Durham Airport will begin construction on a new terminal by 1990 to replace its 30-year-old "B" facility, according to John Brantley, airport director.

The new terminal will be located next to a runway scheduled for competition by 1986.
