County Votes Funds To Move Old Depot

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning voted to appropriate $7,616 to aid the Pitt County American Legion Fair in the acquisition and moving of the old Seaboard Coastline Railroad station in Winterville.

The depot, built in the 19th century, will be moved to the fair's historic village site to be used as a museum.

Commissioners, under state law, are allowed to spend money for preservation of historic sites and buildings.

The board today also adopted a resolution opposing a proposed state regulation which would require volunteer fire departments to replace their present protective clothing and breathing equipment with new items.

Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act regulations require new types of equipment for industrial fire brigades, but the regulations exempt volunteer fire departments.

However, the N.C. Department of Labor, which enforces the OSHA regulations in the state, proposes to include volunteer fire units.

Pitt Fire Marshall Bobby Joyner said he estimates that it would cost fire departments in the county $250,000 to meet the requirements.

Commissioners also adopted a resolution supporting Pitt County Memorial Hospital's plan to expand surgery, radiology and emergency department facilities, in accordance with a recently approved long range plan.

The expansion, expected to be completed within two years, is estimated to cost $5.3 million.

In conjunction with the expansion project, the board also approved a plan to begin open heart surgery at the medical facility here.

Hospital officials have said that facilities could be made available so open heart operations might begin here as early as mid-summer.

Something For All To Dislike

By CLIFF HAAS

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Drafters of a $169 billion plan to rescue Social Security concede it has something for almost everyone to dislike, but they say the reluctant support of President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. should help it pass Congress.

Organizations representing retired people, government workers and small business already have served notice they will try to pressure Congress to change or drop the package, which would affect nearly all taxpayers and retirees, some as early as this summer.

It includes a speed-up in scheduled increases in the payroll tax, taxing benefits received by upper- and middle-income retirees, a one-time six-month delay in this July's cost-of-living increase and an expansion of Social Security coverage to new federal employees beginning in 1984.

In addition to generating $169 billion in new revenues and savings over the next seven years, experts said that, barring severe economic conditions, the compromise also would help keep the Social Security system in the black for at least 50 years.

The package was approved by the Social Security reform commission on a 12-3 vote Saturday night following days of negotiations with White House officials.

Reagan and O'Neill, D-Mass., who had communicated only through intermediaries, publicly endorsed the deal after the commission vote.

But, as the president noted, he, O'Neill and other congressional leaders were backing the plan because they saw it as the best deal that could be struck on the politically sensitive issue.

"Each of us recognizes that this is a compromise solution," Reagan said. "As such, it includes elements which each of us could not support if they were not part of a bipartisan compromise."

Republican economist Alan Greenspan, the commission's chairman, said, "All of us swallowed very hard and accepted individual notions that we personally did not actually support."

Greenspan, asked on the CBS "Morning News" program today about the effect of Congress passing only pieces of the rescue plan, replied:

"If they start to do that, it will unravel very rapidly. I'm not saying that this particular package has to be passed with every single word, every single dot in it exactly the same. It can't be, it's not legislation. But it's got to be passed essentially as it now stands or it won't pass at all."

Eighty-two year-old Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., a commission member whose support was crucial to the deal, said Sunday that he had not thought it would be possible to get a settlement with the White House that included no benefit cuts.

"It was an evening of celebration for the elderly people of America, not only now, but hereafter" Pepper said. "We've protected the future recipient as well as the present."

Sen. William L. Armstrong, R-Colo., who cast the dissenting votes with Rep. Bill Archer, R-Texas, and former Rep. Joe Waggoner, D-La., said, "This is a package of tax increases" that would do nothing to restore the public's confidence in the system.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has announced that hearings on the reform package will begin Feb. 1. He also has said he expects the full House to consider Social Security legislation in March.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman Bob Dole, R-Kan., said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that the legislation must pass Congress and be signed into law in early May so that the government can make the changes in benefit tables to reflect the proposed delay in the July cost-of-living increase.

"There's no question that you cannot go from a piece of paper, which is basically what this is, into legislative

Federal Budget Needs More Spending Slashes

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although President Reagan has shown he is willing to make some cuts in 1984 defense spending, two influential Republican Senate leaders say those reductions don't go far enough.

Sens. Bob Dole of Kansas and Pete Domenici of New Mexico said Sunday that Reagan must reduce spending on big weapons systems over the next three or four years or face continuing huge federal deficits.

Domenici, chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, and Dole, who heads the Senate Finance Committee, said in separate interviews that economic recovery hinges on further big cuts in Pentagon spending, which Reagan has resisted.

Defense Secretary Caspar

Weinberger said last week he would be prepared to cut $8 billion from the pending 1984 defense budget by capping military pay raises and using less fuel for military exercises.

But even with that reduction, the Pentagon's spending authority in 1984 would be $35 billion more than the level in 1983, Domenici noted.

"I am not satisfied," Domenici said on CBS's "Face the Nation" interview show.

Similarly, on NBC's "Meet the Press," Dole said cutting pay raises ignores the problem of $300 billion deficits coming in 1985 and later. He urged slower spending on costly strategic weapons programs.

Domenici said Weinberger has yet to show why it is necessary to spend billions of dollars so quickly on big weapons programs in a time of large deficits and a deep recession.

"I think the burden of proof is on him, (Weinberger) to convince us he needs that much," said Domenici, who has met with Reagan on budget issues several times over the last few weeks.

"We ought to take a look at weapons systems," said Dole, a potential 1984 presidential candidate if Reagan decides not to run for reelection.

In the interview shows, both Dole and Domenici indicated they are willing to break with the president on a number of budget issues, including Reagan's insistence on more cuts in social programs.

Hunt To Air 'Priorities'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Education, including lifting the freeze on teachers' salaries, will be the focus of Gov. Jim Hunt's State of the State speech today, sources say.

Hunt has said he would seek $100 million to lift the freeze on pay for teachers and state employees — his only major spending request of the General Assembly.

Administration sources say he also will ask legislators to do whatever they must to find money to match federal highway funds, probably by raising the alcohol tax.

It is estimated the state needs about $40-60 million a year to match federal money. In the past, the matching funds have come from bonds but that money runs out June 30.

Hunt will outline his ambitions for the next two years in the speech to be delivered at 7 p.m. Tuesday, he will submit his budget and a written message to lawmakers.

Under another expected budget provision, the committee that administers health insurance for state employees and teachers would be moved outside any state department because of recent complaints about a backlog in processing claims.

Some hospitals and doctors are complaining that they have had to carry large amounts of unpaid bills because of processing delays by EDS Federal Corp., the company that has been administering the plan since Oct. 1.

Hunt also has said he will propose more modest amounts to set up summer institutes for teachers of math, science and writing.

Administration sources said Hunt will propose spending several million dollars on new equipment for community colleges and completing the North Carolina Microelectronics Center, one of Hunt's pet projects.

There will be a substantial increase in the Medicaid budget because of rising medical bills but most other programs will be held at current levels and there will be no money for new buildings, sources said.

Hunt has repeated his 1981 proposal to raise the tax on beer by 1 cent per can and the tax on liquor by about 45 cents per $5 bottle of whiskey to generate some $20 million a year for the General Fund. The House approved the bill, which would have used the alcohol tax to replace about $59 million from the sales tax on automobile accessories that was to be shifted to pay for roads.

Sen. George Marlon, D-Surry, already has introduced a bill this session to raise the tax on liquor and wine by one-third and the tax on beer by one-half. He said he has discussed the bill with Hunt, who supports the general idea.

Another budget proposal would mean private colleges and universities no longer have to funnel requests for more state aid through the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

The arrangement has caused tension between the two groups although UNC governors are not allowed to rule on the requests for aid. The board of governors must comment on the request and then pass it to the appropriate agency.

Hunt is expected to recommend that the Advisory Budget Commission screen requests for aid from both private and public universities and colleges.

He also is proposing that travel allowance rates for state workers be raised from $35 a day to $42 for in-state travel and from $45 to $52 for out-of-state travel.

There were hints last week that legislators may take issue with Hunt's estimates of how much money will be in the state pocketbook.

Hunt has said he based the 1983-84 budget on revenue growth between 8 percent and 9 percent.

"Some may say our revenue figures are too optimistic," he said last week. "But I think our estimates are responsible and as accurate as we can be at this time."

But Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery, co-chairman of the Senate Base Budget Committee, said Thursday, "We'll have a less optimistic estimate than (he) will, probably."

Proposed Social Security Rescue Plan

RESCUE PLAN — Part of the $169 billion Social Security rescue plan endorsed by President Reagan and leaders of Congress will involve a payroll tax increase, starting in 1984, with a planned increase each year through to 1990. This chart shows the percentage increase predicted on a yearly wage of $35,700 that would be deducted from an individual's payroll for Social Security through the remainder of this decade. GENEROUS GIFT

The recent Hotline appeal for fencing and cages for the Pitt County Humane Society elicited a generous response from the East Carolina University School of Medicine. Excess caging and fencing was donated to the Humane Society and is now in use by the Society. "We have the best facilities we've ever had, thanks to the medical school," Humane Society volunteer Bobbie Parsons said.

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa knelt in prayer today outside the main gate of the Lenin Shipyard and said he would appeal to the courts to get back his electrician's job inside the sprawling factory where Solidarity was born.

Walesa, who was turned away from the shipyard gates last Friday when he first tried to report for work, said Sunday that he would go back today to try to get his job back. Instead, he chose another tack.

"I have changed my plans," he told reporters at a news conference at the former Gdansk headquarters of the outlawed Solidarity labor union.

"I am waiting for an answer to my letter on resuming work at the shipyard," he said, referring to a protest he sent the shipyard management after he was rebuffed Friday.

"If I am not reinstated at the shipyard, I will go to the courts to settle the problem of my employment," he said.

Leaving the news conference, Walesa drove to a monument outside the shipyard gates and knelt briefly in prayer.

The towering steel crosses that make up the monument are a memorial to scores of workers killed there in a clash with authorities in 1970. The memorial was erected in 1980, under an agreement between the government and the fledgling Solidarity movement.

"I will always be faithful to those crosses," Walesa said. "I was and I remain a unionist."

On Sunday, Walesa accused authorities of using "special tactics" and erecting "administrative obstacles" to stop him from returning to the shipyards, which were militarized under the year of martial law that saw his labor union suspended and then outlawed.

He claimed Polish law is "unequivocal" on his right to go back to the shipyard, but said management told him he first needed to prove he was not employed elsewhere in the last two years and also had to produce a statement on Solidarity finances.

Walesa was released last November after 11 months' martial law internment. Since then, the government has claimed it found "irregularities" in Solidarity's bookkeeping and has summoned Walesa several times for questioning.

Walesa ignored at least one such summons, and authorities detained him for nine hours last Dec. 16, the day he was to address a memorial rally for riot-slain workers outside the Lenin shipyard.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Some people like to knit in sculptured cables while others prefer lace-like stitches — take your choice and create an heirloom afghan, sure to be treasured for years. Either afghan is made all in one piece, with no sewing necessary.

To obtain directions for making both elegant afghans, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-1163 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler "The Daily Reflector", P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. KK-1163 by sending a check or money order for $24.50 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit includes the instruction leaflet and sufficient Wintuk yarn for making either afghan in your choice of the following colors: creamy white, mist green, bisque, pale blue, light gold or sea coral. Shipping charges are included in the kit price.

Nothing can do more to add interest and excitement to your knitting than the imaginative use of pattern stitches. Some are best used in panels while others are most effective as overall patterns. Some pattern stitches require a great deal of concentration, while many others are much simpler than they appear.

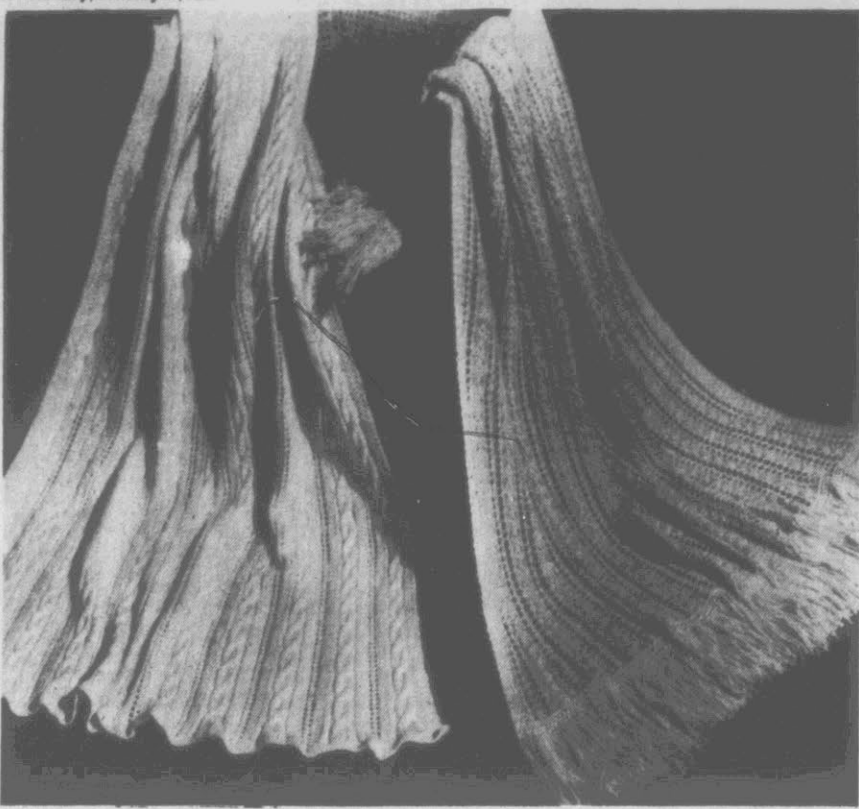

The wave stitch is a good example of the latter. It requires a multiple of 9 stitches — that is, it can be worked on any number of stitches, evenly divisible by 9. On the first and second rows, all stitches are knitted.

For Row 3 (knit 2 stitches together, knit 2, yarnover, knit 1, yarnover, knit 2, knit 2 together). Repeat the steps between parentheses over and over across the row. Until you become thoroughly familiar with the pattern stitch, you will probably need to refer back to the instructions for each repeat of this row. After a few repeats, however, you will probably sail along even on this row.

On Rows 4 and 6, purl all stitches; on Rows 5 and 8, knit all stitches; on Row 7, repeat Row 3. Repeat the eight rows over and over for pattern.

A most interesting effect is created with simple knits and purls in the Canterbury stitch. To work this stitch, use one needle 3 to 4 sizes smaller than the other and work on any uneven number of stitches. The smaller needle is used for all odd-numbered rows and the larger one for the even-numbered rows.

On each row, after working the first stitch or stitches, repeat the steps given within parentheses to the end of the row, or until you reach the stitches needed to end the row.

Row 1: Knit 2 (purl 1, knit 1). End the row with purl 1, knit 2.

Row 2: Knit 1 (purl 1, knit 1 in back of the next stitch). End with purl 1, knit 1.

Row 3: Knit 1 (knit 1, purl 1).

Row 4: Knit 1 (knit in back of the next stitch, purl 1). End with knit in back of a stitch, knit 1. Repeat these four rows over and over for pattern.

A mock-cable stitch can be worked on any number of stitches evenly divisible by 4 with the edition of 2 top stitches (a multiple of 4 plus 2).

For Row 1: purl 2 (knit 1, yarnover, knit 1, purl 2). On this row and the third row, repeat the steps between parentheses over and over to the end of the row.

On Rows 2 and 4, purl all stitches.

Work Row 3 as follows: Purl 2 (slip 1 stitch, knit 2, pass the slipped stitch over the 2 knitted stitches, purl 2). Repeat the steps between parentheses as before.

If you are one of the many knitters who works everything in stockinette or garter stitches, take out some needles and a variety of yarns and "play around" with these pattern stitches. You might be surprised at how much fun you can have and at the interesting effects you achieve. There are literally hundreds more pattern stitches available and most of them are within the skill level of the average knitter.

EGO AND TAXES

NEW YORK (AP) — Ego, economic frustration and taxes have helped spur an entrepreneurial boom in America, a recent study indicates.

Ego enters the picture because entrepreneurs must be risk-takers who have the confidence to start new enterprises, according to Business Centres International, which conducted the study.

The frustration has been caused by inflation, recession, unemployment and credit crunches, leading to creative attempts to deal with the situation, the company says.

It adds that a recent cut in taxes from 49.5 percent to 28 percent for investors has helped achieve a better climate for taking financial risks.

Dear Abby

Mother's Will Is Not The Child's Will

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My mother died recently, and it has come to light that all the money I've been sending her for years was saved by her! This is very upsetting to me, as I sent money to her hoping she would use it for luxuries for herself — but now I know she spent none of it and lived quite frugally instead.

Mother did not leave much, but her "estate" (according to her wishes) shall be shared equally among her three children.

I feel that since most of the money she left was "mine" in a sense, it should be returned to me. My sister and brother are well aware that the money Mother had saved came from me and me alone, but they have not offered to return it to me.

Am I wrong to feel that my own money should be returned to me instead of shared with my brother and sister? Should I make that suggestion? I do not want to create a rift in the family, but fair is fair.

THE ONE WHO GAVE

DEAR ONE: Fair is indeed fair. But once a gift is given, it becomes the property of the recipient — in this case, your mother. Since your brother and sister are aware that the money came from you, if they don't offer to return it, don't ask for it.

DEAR ABBY: Artie and I have been married for 10 years. We have two nice children. When we got married, I was 18 and Artie was 19. We had gone steady since the eighth grade and neither one of us ever had another sweetheart. We've had our ups and downs, but compared to most, we have a good marriage.

All of a sudden Artie says he wants to be free to have sexual experiences with other girls. He says he was so young when we got married, he thinks he missed out on something. He says he doesn't want to sneak around behind my back, he wants to be open and honest about it. He also said it would be OK with him if I had flings with other guys.

Abby, I love Artie and it would tear me up inside to know that he was having sex with other girls, I sure don't want any flings with other guys. I love Artie and don't want to lose him. Please tell me what to do.

TORN APART

DEAR TORN: Tell Artie that you are committed to your marriage vows and have no desire to break them. Of course, you can't prevent him from doing what he wants to do, but to condone his "flings" would be flinging your marriage out the window.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for devoting an entire column to warning parents that a toddler can actually drown while playing in a toilet!

We lost a beautiful 8-month-old son that way last August. We, too, were so careful with our precious little guy, we never dreamed such a "freak accident" could happen. One of the firemen who tried to revive him told us that this occurs more frequently than most people realize.

Our baby wasn't even walking yet, but he crawled to the toilet, pulled himself up, put his face in the bowl and fell in. He wasn't out of my sight for more than a few minutes!

I pray that the grieving parents who were good enough to write to warn others will throw this heavy burden on the Lord, for he will indeed sustain them. It still hurts terribly, but having faith in the Lord does lighten the burden. We know.

A MATTER OF TIMING

If you're contemplating setting the date for your wedding, here are some good and not-so-good dates to choose.

Holiday weekends (Memorial Day, Labor Day, Fourth of July, Mother's Day, etc.) should be avoided for several reasons. Your guests will encounter more traffic trying to get to your accommodations; and prices for receptions are generally at a premium, with the help paid overtime for working on a holiday.

Dates which traditionally get booked up fastest for churches and reception halls are: all weekends in May and June, the last weekend in August, the first weekend after Easter, the weekend after Labor Day, the weekends before and after Thanksgiving and Christmas. Other times may be more or less popular depending upon the geographic area.

Allow at least six months to plan any but the most simple wedding. Entertaining a small number of people at lunch will take less time to arrange than a large number for dinner and dancing. If you have a very fixed desire — one specific church or minister, specific reception hall — you may need to allow even more time.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Four Die In N.C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Four people died on North Carolina highways this weekend, including a pedestrian struck by a car on a Stokes County road, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

Ruth Beatrice Flippin, 23, of Walnut Cove, was killed when a car struck her Saturday morning while she was walking on a rural road three miles east of her hometown.

Juan Dale Cooper, 36, of Asheboro, died Saturday when another vehicle, whose driver had fallen asleep, struck Cooper's car in Randolph County about 4 miles west of his hometown.

Georgia Q. Gupton, 55, of Durham, died Friday night after the car in which she was riding was hit by a car that ran a stop sign at the intersection of N.C. 41 and U.S. 421 in Sampson County.

Friday night Gary Wayne Lail, 28, of Denver, was killed on N.C. 16 in Lincoln County when he lost control of his car, which overturned several times and threw him out.

The deaths raised the number of traffic deaths in the state to 28, compared to 35 fatalities at this time last year.

Two Collisions Here Saturday

An estimated $4,300 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers said Michael Bruce Poulin of Wilson Acres was charged with driving under the influence and hit and run driving following investigation of a 12:30 a.m. collision on Elm Street, 200 feet north of the Third Street intersection.

Investigators said the Poulin car collided with a parked vehicle owned by Clell Heath and William Gibbs Moore of 209 South Elm St., causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Moore car and $1,500 damage to the Poulin vehicle.

Jackie Lynn Nichols of Route 6, Greenville, was charged with following too close following investigation of an 11:48 p.m. mishap on Tenth Street, 450 feet east of the Lawrence Street intersection.

Police said the Nichols car collided with a vehicle driven by Ellen McAuliffe of 111 N. Jarvis St., causing $1,000 damage to the Nichols car and $800 damage to the McAuliffe car.

UMW Officers Installed Today

Mrs. Edgar S. Douglas Jr. was installed this morning as president of the United Methodist Women of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. James H. Bailey conducted a communion service.

She succeeds Mrs. Charles Kavanaugh, immediate past president, who conducted the installation. Mrs. Kavanaugh will become new membership chairperson for the group.

Mrs. Douglas is the wife of a local obstetrician and gynecologist, Dr. Douglas. She is chairperson of the church tape ministry, secretary and pianist of the Bible study Sunday school class.

Other WUM officers appointed were: Mrs. Les Worthington, first vice president; Mrs. Richard Modlin, second vice president and organist. Mrs. W. Phil Moore Jr. headed the nominations committee.

New mission coordinators are: Mrs. Martin Armstrong, Christian personhood; Mrs. Ed Clement, Christian social involvement. New group leaders include Mrs. Richard Vaughn, Mrs. Rufus Stark, Mrs. Lacy Blanton and Dorothy Johnson. Mrs. Henry C. Ferrell Jr. heads the nominations, Mrs. J.C. Whitehurst, program resources, and Mrs. Jack Brinn, kitchen.

Officers reinstalled are: Mrs. Dan Gregory, secretary; Mrs. J.B. Newman, treasurer; Mrs. Kemp Baldwin, assistant treasurer; Mrs. Fred Irons, Christian supportive community; Mrs. W.H. Taft, Christian social involvement; Mrs. Charles Alford, Mrs. Howard Satterfield, Christian global concerns; Mrs. Robert Daniel, Helen Hawes, Mrs. C.E. Fleming, Mrs. Ed Davis, Mrs. Wyatt Brown, Annie Laurie Askew, group leaders; Mrs. Jonathan Havens, nursery; Mrs. W.L. Johnson, book of remembrance; Irene Fleming, Mrs. Howard Mims, telephone; Mrs. Hoover Taft, Mrs. W.C. Taylor, fellowship; and Mrs. John Bettis, scrapbook.

The Rev. Susan Pate, associate minister at the church, presented special music.

Inmates Learn Via Computers

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — Some inmates at the Burke County prison for teen-agers are using computers to help them learn everything from high school grammar to college chemistry.

The program, the first of its kind in a North Carolina correctional institution, is designed to help inmates earn high school diplomas, said Jackie Williams, principal of the center's educational program.

Ms. Williams said the program will be evaluated Feb. 1 to see if it has been a success. She said that after 20 hours of instruction, a student should show an improvement of one grade level.

Car Overturns; Driver Injured

Police said Mary Luellen Shine of New Bern, was injured when the car she was driving overturned at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Greenfield Boulevard about 1:13 a.m. Sunday.

Officers said the vehicle skidded out of control and overturned when Miss Shine attempted to stop for a stop sign.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $3,500.

No MD Surplus In N.C.

A Duke University Medical Center vice president says there might be a surplus of physicians nationally by 1990 but there is no need to change the number of admissions to medical school classes in North Carolina.

Dr. William Anlyan, vice president of health affairs at Duke said a predicted national surplus will not affect our state.

The Graduate Medical Education National Advisory Committee has predicted a surplus of doctors nationally by 1990.

Dr. Anlyan said this will affect some states like Illinois and Michigan which are training too many physicians, because they over-responded to the shortage of 20 years ago. But, he said, North Carolina, which admitted 446 medical students last fall, has a "pretty good state of balance."

And, even though there might be a surplus of physicians nationally by 1990, there will still be shortages in some specialties of medicine.

The assessment by Dr. Anlyan bears out the wisdom of developing the East Carolina School of Medicine. Nationally the supply of physicians might be building but here in North Carolina it was necessary to look at our own needs. There is certainly no surplus of physicians in rural areas of North Carolina, particularly the East and there is not likely to be for many years. It is a problem peculiar to this state's four medical schools and what is happening in Illinois or Michigan bears little relevance here.

A Pay Freeze Is Necessary

Pay freeze are words that strike fear in the hearts of anyone who labors for a paycheck.

For federal bureaucrats such a thing is downright unbelievable.

That is the proposal, however, which is filtering out of the Reagan budget making process — to freeze federal salaries, including the military.

Yet in this time of staggering unemployment, a bad economy, and projected $200 billion federal deficits, a freeze should be a small price to pay on the part of the federal bureaucracy. Except in selected areas, there is little likelihood that the government or the military will lose qualified people, considering there are few civilian jobs for them to seek.

The pay freeze makes sense. It is necessary to help get this nation on its feet economically again.

THIS AFTERNOON

Influence Tested

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — News reporters have long had the reputation for skill in tipping the bottle. Anyone who's seen "The Front Page" or any theatrical depiction of life in the newsroom knows that the drunken reporter is as much a stereotypical character as the sore-foot policeman.

Over the holidays, a pair of North Carolina reporters added a new dimension to the tradition of sneaking one between editions. They got drunk on the job — for the job.

Keith King of The Gastonia Gazette and Bill Moss of the Salisbury Evening Post both did New Year's Eve feature stories based on their experiences with a bottle. Both drank under the supervision of local police officers and then wrote personal accounts of how the liquor impaired their judgement, physical skills and response time.

Moss wrote a humorous front-page report on how self-conscious he became while drinking in front of a highway patrolman. After drinking five beers in two hours, he registered .098 on the breathalyzer, just shy of the almost automatic conviction level of .10. He reported how despite attempts to concentrate on a physical skills test administered by the patrolman he had trouble walking a straight line and touching his nose with his index finger. At that point, Moss said he considered his performance passable.

Fellow Post reporter Mark Wineka, assigned to watch Moss, was less generous in his assessment. "Moss failed miserably" at the dexterity tests, Wineka reported in a companion piece.

In Gastonia, King didn't pussfoot around with beer. In two hours he downed eight shots of 80 proof rum. His breathalyzer score was close to .020. Despite all that liquor, King says he wasn't drunk. And that's where his article makes a strong point for the rest of us to consider when we leave a party to drive home.

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

"Influence is the key word, not drunk," King wrote. He was under the influence of the rum and the policeman was able to ask him a troubling question: In this condition, could he react to a traffic situation as quickly and as correctly as when sober?

The policeman "said the average person takes three-fourths of a second to react to any situation — to see the stimuli, decide what to do and then take action. Every shot (of rum) was adding a fourth of a second to that time." Counting the body's filtration system, King calculated that his eight drinks had slowed his reaction time by 1.5 seconds — enough to carry him an additional 120 feet when driving at 55 miles per hour. That is the margin, for many drivers, between life and death.

After a hard day of work, King's editor drove him home. Moss walked.

Last year we learned that legislators can't hold down the button of a microphone and talk at the same time. Now we hear that they can't read numbers.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, president of the Senate, wants to put the upper chamber on a system of color-coded legislation. A bill up for the first reading might look nice printed on blue paper. For second reading, we'll try pink. Third reading, or a committee substitute, might look good in yellow.

Green's reason, senators often get confused when working on legislation and look at the wrong version of a bill. "Okay children, everybody pick up the turquoise sheets in front of you." Now, bills have numbers — but honestly, can we expect our senators to read those numbers before they rise to debate a bill?

Green doesn't think so.

Other Editors Say A New Dimension

(Greensboro Daily News)

Being first is getting to be old hat for former state Sen. Henry Frye of Greensboro, who will become the first black justice of the North Carolina Supreme Court on February 1.

But the important thing about Frye's appointment is not that he is the first black appointee to the bench.

No, the paramount thing is that Henry Frye is an excellent choice, period. And Gov. Jim Hunt knew it when he tapped Frye to succeed outgoing Associate Justice J. Phil Carlton.

Carlton, a longtime Hunt associate, is resigning to resume his law practice because he found the court's work confining. Carlton has been an able judge and one of the current court's best writers. He will be missed in Raleigh.

Hunt, who tried once before to persuade Frye to take a Supreme Court appointment (he declined in 1981 because of the timing), called Frye "an outstanding attorney" who has "the professional qualifications, breadth of understanding and commitment to justice and order in society that will make him an exceptional member of the N.C. Supreme Court."

Throughout a distinguished career as a public servant, Frye has worked doggedly and with a quiet dignity on behalf of his constituents, who rewarded him with steadily growing vote margins each year he ran for election. When he chose to retire from the state Senate last year to attend to his law practice, Guilford County lost its most experienced legislator and an effective lawmaker.

But with his acceptance of the appointment, the state gains an able and conscientious jurist who will bring a new dimension to the Supreme Court. With his quick wit and deep sense of compassion, and his experience as a military officer, a federal prosecutor, a member of both the state House and Senate and a participant in numerous civic and public endeavors, Frye is the ideal choice for the state Supreme Court.

Sweepstakes Proposal

There is one solution to the Social Security bankruptcy problem that has not been suggested yet, and that is the government might hold a sweepstakes for eligible senior citizens. The Department of Human Resources could hire one of the professional sweepstakes companies to write and mail out brown envelopes to everyone on the Social Security rolls.

The letter would read:
DEAR MRS. DALTON,
Do not throw away this letter. You may have won one of 300 prizes adding up to $1,000,000 in the 1983 SOCIAL SECURITY SWEEPSTAKES. Yes, that's what I said, ONE MILLION DOLLARS in prizes offered to you absolutely free by the SOCIAL SECURITY CLEARING HOUSE. All you have to do, MRS. DALTON, is return the enclosed coupon with your LUCKY number on it and you will be eligible for our MILLION DOLLAR SWEEPSTAKES.

Just think, MRS. DALTON, if your number is picked on March 15th, you could win $250 A MONTH FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE. You may be holding the WINNING ticket in your hand right now. But if you don't send it back right away you could be the sorriest senior citizen in America.

I know what you're saying. No one wins in a SWEEPSTAKES. But MR. CARLOS SEGURA, aged 70, of Long Beach, California, won $50,000, MISS KITTY SOAMES of St. Louis, aged 83, won $75,000, and MR. MRS. JASON MARKS of Sun City, Arizona will receive Social Security checks for the next 20 years worth (are you ready for this?) over $100,000.

If they can win, MRS. DALTON, there is no reason why you can't join this illustrious list of people who took the time to send in their coupons.

Not only will you be eligible for the GRAND PRIZE of $250 A MONTH FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE, but you will also have a chance for other SUPER PRIZES in this once-in-a-lifetime SOCIAL SECURITY SUPER-SWEEPSTAKES DRAWING.

ART BUCHWALD

Listen to some of these other GRAND prizes.
A MONTH'S STAY in a PRIVATE room in the hospital of your choice, ALL MEDICAL EXPENSES PAID or $60,000 in CASH.
FOOD STAMPS FOR FIVE YEARS worth $20,000.

FREE HEATING FOR ONE YEAR worth $5,000.

A TWELVE MONTH VACATION in a NURSING HOME WITH YOUR OWN

ROCKER WORTH $30,000.

PLUS HUNDREDS OF OTHER VALUABLE MERCHANDISE including EYE GLASSES at a 50 percent DISCOUNT, PRESCRIPTION DRUGS AT COST, and a YEAR'S SUPPLY OF POLIDENT.

Now you understand, MRS. DALTON, why we want you to send in your SOCIAL SECURITY LUCKY NUMBER right now.

You are probably asking how we can afford all these unbelievable prizes at NO COST TO YOU.

The answer is that the SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION has a trust fund which was set up to take care of American senior citizens. The trust has decided the fairest way to distribute the money it has left in it is to hold a SWEEPSTAKES, making it possible for people who otherwise would get nothing from the system to win a SUPER PRIZE.

This is how the SWEEPSTAKES will work. On March 15th all the Social Security numbers that people like yourself sent in will be placed in a large silver bowl in the Rose Garden of the White House, and Miss America of 1983, in the presence of the SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY, will draw the GRAND PRIZE WINNER — the person who will win $250 a month for the REST OF HIS OR HER LIFE. If you are the winner you will be flown by AIR

More Folly In MX Saga

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The depth of the administration's selfinflicted wounds in the dreary saga of the MX missile was unwittingly revealed when a top presidential adviser told the National Security Council just before the first meeting of the new blue-ribbon MX panel that "our duty now is to minimize further damage to the president."

Saving what is left of President Reagan's credibility in the administration's extraordinarily inept handling of the MX was not the given reason for the commission being appointed. The purpose was to salvage the MX, not the president.

But like so much else in an administration whose foundation seems to be cracking, the MX has become a microcosm of what ails Reagan and his men. To White House insiders, the present objective is to steer the MX commission into a unanimous pro-MX recommendation to save the president in an increasingly anti-MX Congress and with an increasingly bewildered Western alliance.

Even before the commission got down to its work in a Pentagon sanctuary, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger was being faulted by bitter grandees in Congress. Their consent will be essential if the commission's recommendations are to be accepted and Reagan's prestige saved from further damage.

After discounting for overblown congressional pride and arrogance, the bitterness is real. It threatens whatever new basing plan Reagan sends to Congress in the next two months and has two sources, one tied directly to the MX . follies and the other to the new defense budget.

First, although Reagan's Jan. 3 statement appointing the MX rescue mission specifically noted the importance of "the views of Congress," leaders of the defense-oriented congressional bloc were ignored in the composition of the commission. Weinberger did not help himself on Capitol Hill by personally eliminating former defense secretary and energy secretary James Schlesinger, a specialist in nuclear defense issues who packs a political wallop with the Democrats.

Weinberger is also charged in Congress with vetoing former defense secretary Donald Rumsfeld, an ex-congressman still well regarded on the Hill. This failure to consult congressional leaders over commission membership ranked the pro-defense leaders whose good will and consent are so badly needed by Weinberger and Reagan.

Second, Weinberger on Jan. 11 agreed to an $8 billion reduction in defense spending for the new fiscal year (mainly cosmetic cuts), completely bypassing the Senate's Mr. Defense — Sen. John Tower, chairman of the Armed Services Committee. It was that imbecilic omission that provoked the usually benign Tower to lash out at Weinberger for a "squalid political approach" to the national security issue.

Such rancor on Capitol Hill compounds the president's problem with the MX that started with his ridicule of the old "racetrack" basing plan of Jimmy Carter and his defense secretary, Harold Brown. Now it is that same Harold Brown who is the key member of the MX commission.

If Brown wants to return to some modified form of the old and ridiculed "racetrack" scheme with its built-in deception, Reagan and Weinberger will bite their tongues and go along. Without Brown's approval, there is no conceivable way that Reagan could persuade Congress to accept the MX in any way, shape or form.

Hence the irony. If further political damage to Ronald Reagan in the strange case of the MX missile is to be "minimized," the minimizer will not be Cap Weinberger or any other Reagan factotum. It will be Harold Brown, transformed overnight by the political folly of the Reagan administration from vilified to beatified.

Strength For Today

RISKS — FOR WHOM?
in the last 2500 years Mt. Vesuvius has erupted frequently and has killed an estimated million people. Yet this does not deter farmers from living on its slopes and continuing to till the hillsides in spite of the danger. They take this risk because the hillsides are fertile. They run a big risk to get a good crop.

It is commendable that people should put thoughts of personal safety aside in facing life's larger issues. It is not commendable, however, if people think so much of fertile fields and good harvests that they will risk the lives of their loved ones wantonly.

Among people of this kind are men who give everything to business and no time to their families. Also, there are the convivial parents who are going to have a gay time whether it hurts the kids or not. Again, there are the people who clamorously demand what they consider to be their rights and as a result arouse antagonism against themselves and their families. — Elisha Douglass

Pose Questions Before Giving

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The recession and government budget cutbacks have prompted more appeals from private charities, and a philanthropic expert says people should ask questions before they open their wallets.

Helen O'Rourke, vice president of the Philanthropic Advisory Services of the Council of Better Business Bureaus Inc., says it is particularly important in today's hard times to find out just who you are giving to and what the money will be used for.

"If they (contributors) give that dollar to the wrong charity, then they're hurting," she said. "They're hurting themselves and they're hurting the charities."

Mrs. O'Rourke said there already are signs that people are becoming more selective about giving. She said the Philanthropic Advisory Service, which answers questions about national and international charities, had almost 250,000 requests for information in 1982, compared to about 150,000 in 1981. Individual Better Business Bureaus, which keep tabs on local groups, reported a one-third increase in inquiries last year, she said.

"We're also getting a lot of organizations that we never heard of," said Mrs. O'Rourke. Many of them are asking to be included on the advisory service's "Give, But Give Wisely" list which covers the charities about which there are the most inquiries, and indicates whether they meet standards for charitable solicitations established by the Council of Better Business Bureaus.

Mrs. O'Rourke said the current listing includes about 300 charities; the next listing, due in February, will cover 1,000. Copies of the "Give, But Give Wisely" brochure are available from the Philanthropic Advisory Service at 1515 Wilson Boulevard, Arlington, Va., 22209. Send $1 via check or money order and a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope for each copy.

Another brochure from the advisory service, "Tips on Charitable Giving," offers advice on making sure your money goes to the place where it will do the most good. It is available from the same address as the "Give, But Give Wisely" listing. There is no charge, but you must send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope.

Mrs. O'Rourke said both individuals and corporations are giving money to causes which are "a little closer to home."

"I think there's going to be a pullback in giving to national organizations," she added. "Individuals are going to start hearing that the aged or some group in their town is having trouble and they'll have a tendency to give to local groups."

Mrs. O'Rourke said questions to ask before you give include:

—What is the name and address of the organization? Does the solicitor have any identification?

—How much of the money will go to programs to carry out the purposes for which the organization exists and how much will go for fundraising? In order to meet standards set by the Council of Better Business Bureaus, at least 50 percent of total income must be spent on programs and activities directly related to the group's purpose.

—Is your contribution tax-deductible? This is particularly important for

Sponsor Contractor's Seminar

The city's engineering and inspections department will sponsor a contractors' seminar Thursday dealing with rules and regulations pertaining to licensing laws and requirements for North Carolina contractors.

The session, which will be held at the recreation-library complex on Cedar Lane, is scheduled for 1:30-4:30 p.m.

William Walker, assistant secretary-treasurer of the N.C. Licensing Board for General Contractors, will speak on laws and requirements for general contractors. F.O. Bates, executive secretary of the State Board of Examiners for Plumbing and Heating Contractors, will talk about the general licensing laws and other requirements for heating and plumbing contractors.

Other speakers will be D.F. McCarley, assistant city attorney, and Bobby Roberson, director of the city's planning and community development department. McCarley will speak on inspections department procedures and responsibilities at the local level, and Roberson will discuss zoning compliance requirements.

All building, plumbing, heating, and insulation contractors are invited to attend.

Suspect Arrested In Break-In

BETHEL — A Route 1, Bethel man was arrested early Sunday and charged in connection with a break-in at Tri-County Feed Mill on Highway 64 near Bethel, according to Sheriff Ralph Tyson.

He said that officers arrested Jimmy Dean Edwards, 22, after finding him under a table in the office area of the business, owned by Dalton Perry. Edwards was charged with breaking and entering and attempted larceny, the sheriff said.

Tyson said the burglar alarm went off at the firm around 12:13 a.m. and Bethel police and Pitt deputies responded. Tyson said that officers found that entrance to the office had been gained after a glass was taken out of a window.

Tyson said bond for Edwards was set at $10,000.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Lawyers defending suspected drunken drivers should witness Breathalyzer tests while posing as the defendant's friend and should choose jurors who mistrust such tests, a legal manual advises.

The "North Carolina Drunk Driving Cases Manual," published by the Wake Forest University law school, tells attorneys how to have their clients dress for court, how to have charges reduced and how to get their clients back behind the wheel of a car.

When attending the client's first visit to the jail, the $35 book advises, the lawyer should not shave or wear a coat and tie.

"... Tell the keeper of the gate that you have a friend who is about to take the Breathalyzer and wants you to witness it," the manual says. "Do not admit you are an attorney unless you are directly asked."

"If you have dressed in the proper attire, unless the gatekeeper recognizes you, he will probably deny you admission, which is precisely what you should be able to do to the Breathalyzer if it's offered in evidence."

During the initial interview with the suspect, the lawyer should find out where the driver was, his destination, and his eating habits during the hours before the arrest, the manual says.

Percy L. Wall, a Greensboro attorney and one of the manual's six authors, writes that he finds it "helpful if the client has been involved in a wreck which is not viewed by the (arresting) officer.

"Also, substantial injuries to the client can likewise be very helpful. In many cases, the officer does not have any contact with the client until after the treatment has commenced. This can affect the sobriety test depending, of course, upon the nature of the treatment."

Attorneys should measure distances between stoplights and time the duration of red lights along the road where his client was arrested, the book says. Such factors could back up a claim that the motorist wasn't drunk because enough time had not passed after he drank to let his system absorb alcohol.

The book says the defendant should wear good clothes in court and add: "...you may want him to have his pregnant wife along or his employer who thinks well of him and plays golf with six of the district judges. You would tell him not to bring his girlfriend who is the only person who can put him behind the wheel before the accident."

The manual gives a number of tips on selecting jurors, warning against non-drivers, reformed alcoholics and women about the same age as a female defendant. It suggests that attorneys look for people leery of machines like Breathalyzers.

David P. Shouvin, a Winston-Salem attorney, says the book is a legitimate, ethical tool that serves the interests of justice by helping attorneys defend their clients the best they can.

"We (defense lawyers) have to drive on the streets, too," he said. "We're not in there gleefully opening the doors to prisons. We're not saying to the drunks, 'Get out there and drive, we'll take care of you if you're caught.'"

CITY DIRECTORY CENSUS TO BEGIN

Johnson Publishing Company survey workers are contacting local residents to obtain current information to update the next Greenville City Directory. Local people have been hired to conduct the survey. In most cases the census will be conducted by telephone, however some residents may be contacted in the evening or in person at home. You will not be asked to buy anything.

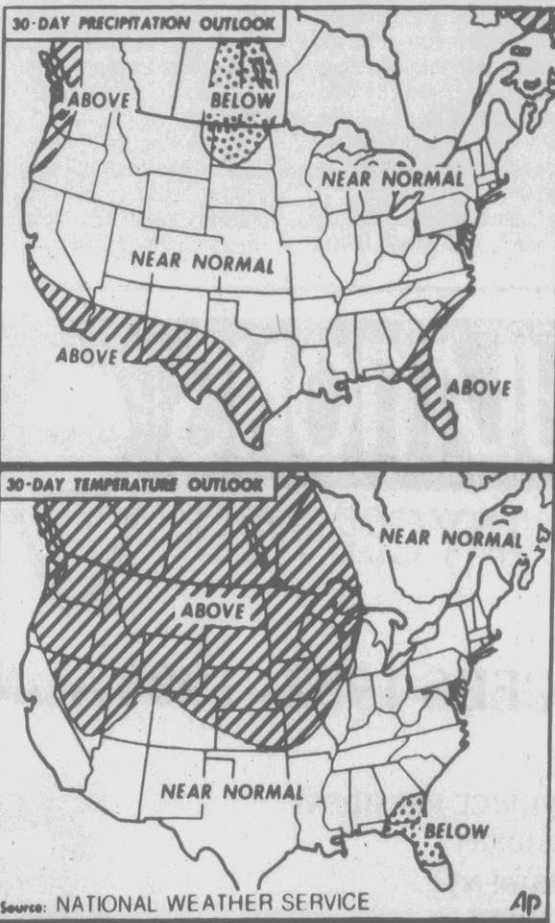

You will be asked:

- Husband and wife's names, occupations
- Address and telephone number
- Home ownership
- Number in family

Businesses will be asked to provide the correct firm name, names of owners and officers, address, telephone number and nature and classification of business.

Information gathered in the survey is to be used in the next edition of the Greenville City Directory—a community reference book used by local businesses, governmental agencies and emergency services. Your cooperation with our survey workers will be appreciated.

It's hard to imagine an insured money market account
more convenient than this.

Unless it's this.

BB&T's new Money Rate Savings Account has just about everything you want in an investment.

To begin with, it pays market rates. But unlike traditional money market funds, it's insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for up to $100,000. To top it all off, it's convenient. You can withdraw your money anytime, without penalty, at any BB&T office or 24-hour teller machine. What could be more convenient than that?

BB&T's new Money Rate Checking Account also pays market rates, is insured and lets you make withdrawals any time. But with this account, you can also write checks whenever you want.

How do you decide which account is right for you? Well, a lot of investors keep their checking and savings money separate. So, like them, you might want both. And you can open both with minimum deposits of $2500 each at any BB&T office. What could be more convenient than that?

Political Mileage In Appointments For Lt. Gov.

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green has reorganized the Senate committee system this year in a way that stretches his patronage power and gives him more chances to influence legislation.

Few legislators are openly critical about the move but many acknowledge that the changes could help Green if he decides to run for governor in 1984.
Power in the General

Assembly stems from the committees and the lieutenant governor's greatest power comes from making those assignments. But legislators say the appointments were especially difficult this year because of the large number of veteran lawmakers returning and critics' calls to streamline the committee system.

"This was his fourth time in appointing basically the same people," said Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery. "Forty of them felt like they should have chairmanships."

"He always wanted to cut down the number of committees," said Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham. "It was his last chance. He thought it was a good time with a particularly tough session."
But Green seems to have made the best of both problems.
He streamlined the system by reducing the number of committees from 38 to 34. 39 of the 50 senators chairmen.

Two of the committees he dropped, Senate and congressional redistricting, are needed only once every 10 years.
The others abolished were those on Alcoholic Beverage Control, Courts and Judicial Districts and the University Board of Governors.
But Green added a new Housing Committee, created a series of nine umbrella committees and named co-chairmen for five of the busiest committees to name

Legislators who served before the 1981-82 session got four chairmanships and all six House members who moved to the Senate got a committee to lead or co-chair. Eleven committee chairmanships remained unchanged.
One freshman, Sen. Charles Hips, D-Haywood, got a job as chairman in the Local Government Committee. The appointment sparked speculation that Green may be trying to shore up his popularity in the West before 1984.
"There are probably commitments behind those chairmanships," said one senator who asked not to be named.
Green also appointed Royall, Senate majority leader and one of the most powerful senators, to every committee to coordinate the flow of legislation. In exchange, Royall gave up his chairmanship of the Ways and Means committee.
Green made a similar move in 1975, when he was House speaker and appointed Rep. C. Kitchin Josey to every panel.
The move could give Green access through Royall to break close committee votes and most importantly let committee members know where the lieutenant governor stands on an issue. There has been a more informal system for accomplishing those goals in the past.

"The governor has a legislative liaison, why shouldn't the lieutenant governor," asked Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir. "He needs somebody to coordinate things and let him know" what's happening in the committees.

Jordan compared Royall to a fireman, who could be sent by Green to any committee where he considered things to be getting out of hand.
The committee system operates differently in the House, where the number of committees was reduced this year from 59 to 57. The committees that were disbanded were those on congressional and House redistricting and the Select Committee on Transportation. A new committee — Judiciary IV — was created to ease the workload on technical legal bills.
Ramsey switched 12 chairmen from one committee to another, kept 21 chairmen the same and the rest of the committee chairmen did not return.

Some Say Relaxing Of Freeze Is Not Enough

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Not all state employees will benefit if the General Assembly agrees to lift a freeze on salaries — a fact that has led some state officials to lobby for a wider reaching proposition.
Gov. Jim Hunt is seeking $100 million from the Legislature to restore an automatic 5 percent raise for teachers and merit pay increases for up to two-thirds of eligible state employees. The raises were frozen by the General Assembly June 30 to balance the budget.

Of the $100 million, about $16.3 million is earmarked for State Personnel Act employees, while $6 million would go to community colleges, $7 million to higher education, $56 million to public schools and about $5 million to employees under the Highway Fund, said Emmett Burden, director of the N.C. State Employees Association.
Arch Laney, executive director of the N.C. State Government Employees Association, said he expected about 30 percent of state employees would come away with nothing even if the freeze was relaxed.
"We have appealed to the governor to do something more to help everybody," he added.
Hunt said Friday he would not oppose an across-the-board pay raise, but said lifting the freeze should come first.

Urge Right For Dying Patients

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Legislature should change laws to make it easier for terminal patients to end their own lives, the Board of Governors of the North Carolina Bar Association said Saturday.
The board voted to recommend that lawmakers amend the existing Right to Natural Death Act, said association spokesman Liz Otwell.
"They said the General Assembly should recognize an individual's right to a peaceful and natural death and that a patient has the right to control the decisions of his own medical care, including the decision to have extraordinary means withheld or withdrawn in cases of terminal condition," she said.
The association said the law should be amended to let the family doctor bring up the subject of pulling the plug on a terminal patient, Ms. Otwell said.

Before the freeze, employees in the first two of the nine salary steps received automatic raises, said John Ward, personnel analyst for the Office of State Personnel.
In fiscal 1981-82, of 62,849 state workers, 15.8 percent or 9,930 received no increase under the merit pay system, Ward said.

By December, there were 64,049 state workers in the system. Of those, 5,275 were earning top scale and 4,585 were within half a step of top scale, he said.
"It's hard to say what will happen when the freeze is over," Ward added. "You could even give raises to more than two-thirds because you can give a half-step increase."
Rep. John M. Jordan, D-Alamance, chairman of the House committee on state personnel, said approval of the $100 million budget item would look good should Hunt decide to seek another political office.
"He (Hunt) would much rather see some state employees get small increases than to see this fail to go through (the Legislature)," he said.
Hunt has said he regrets that not all state employees would benefit from the measure, but he supports the merit-pay system, saying it's an important tool for managing employees.
"I feel for all state employees who might not get something, but those who are most able and are doing the best job are the ones we have the most commitment to," he said.
But Jordan said he wasn't sure how much merit was involved in merit pay.

School Paddling Results In Suit

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A teacher at West Millbrook Middle School was charged with assault after the father of a student complained that his son was physically punished.
Irmis Estes was released without bond after Alfred L. Inscore filed a formal complaint with authorities.
Inscore charged that Estes paddled his son, Clarence, on Tuesday for fighting in school. He said three blows were administered with a 2-foot-long paddle.
Estes declined to comment Friday.

Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

WORLD'S MOST PREVALENT DISEASE

What is the world's most prevalent disease? If your answer is the common cold, you're wrong! Tooth decay is the most universal disease in the world. Only a minute fraction of the world's people are free of it. Only 2 percent of the American population has been spared. Earliest cavities show up right after primary teeth erupt. The average 13-year-old already has at least five cavities in permanent teeth. Girls seem to get more cavities than boys; but then, girls get their teeth sooner.

A cavity is a hole in a tooth caused by decay which is produced by the combination of plaque and acid. It doesn't take a few days for trouble to develop. Tooth decay can start in less than 15 minutes after eating. All that is needed are three ingredients: a tooth, bacteria (in dental plaque) and sugar. When the bacteria and sugar meet, acid is formed. When the acid and tooth meet, the acid starts etching a hole in the tooth.

Today's diets, high in refined sugars and carbohydrates, are conducive to decay. But careful and PROMPT oral hygiene procedures after eating will reduce, if not eliminate, the decay-producing activity of the modern diet.

Little To Show In Consolidating

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Mental Health Director Eugene Douglas says plans to consolidate programs at Dorothea Dix Hospital probably will not save money that could be used in community health programs next year.

Douglas and the North Carolina Mental Health Association had backed the closing of Dix, saying it would free at least $6 million that could be redistributed to community programs.
He said he hoped there would be some savings at Dix. But he added that because of the expenses, he probably could not save any money during the next fiscal year.

Would Continue In PTL Probe

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission should continue probing allegations that PTL misused money donated to the religious television network, three FCC members say.

The allegations include charges that PTL president Jim Bakker gave false testimony and that other witnesses were corruptly influenced during the FCC probe, according to documents obtained by the Charlotte Observer.
Commissioners Josephy Fogarty and Henry Rivera

wrote that PTL was faced with "serious questions of misconduct involving the fraudulent use of the airwaves and abuse of agency proceedings."

The criticism surfaced in dissents published after the FCC voted 4-3 on Dec. 8 to let PTL transfer its only FCC broadcast license from WJAN-TV in Canton, Ohio, to a Tulsa, Okla., missionary group.
By allowing the transfer, the FCC effectively ended its probe because its only authority over PTL stems from the license it issued.

Bridge Collapse Fatal To Five

By JACK A. SEAMONDS
Associated Press Writer
ANTWERP, Ohio (AP) — Four cars drove off a collapsed bridge one after another, toppling into a dry drainage ditch with a sound "just like dynamite" and leaving five people dead and four others injured, authorities said.

The cars were left stacked on top of each other where they crashed about 9:30 p.m. Sunday, while state and federal officials continued their investigation, the Ohio Highway Patrol said.

"We believe the cars just went through the bridge, one by one, on top of each other," said Jerry Flaugh, 42, Paulding County Chief Sheriff's deputy.

Gertrude Rister, whose house is about 50 yards from the county bridge, said she heard the cars topple off within a few minutes of each other and also heard cries for help.

"Every time one went in, it sounded like a big blast, just like dynamite," she said.

Mrs. Rister, 70, said she lives alone and that an unidentified passerby stopped and called police.

"I was getting ready to call and a woman came to my door," Mrs. Rister said. "She was driving by and she wanted to call, so I let her do the calling. She said she had seen that the bridge was out and got out of her car and heard people screaming and calling for help."

The bridge, about three miles east of Antwerp near the Ohio-Indiana border, was on County Road 180, a generally straight, black-topped, two-lane road. Antwerp is about 60 miles southwest of Toledo.

Highway Patrolman Daniel Hardeman said the 30-foot bridge may have crumbled before the cars drove onto it.

"It's speculation right now," he said. "But they believe that it had collapsed and the cars drove into it."

All four cars toppled within a span of about 15 minutes, dropping about 20 feet, Flaugh said. Three of the cars were headed east and one west, and emergency crews had to use crowbars to pry open doors and windows to free the injured.

A 10-foot asphalt section dangled above the cars and officials feared it too would drop.

The deaths were caused by head and internal injuries, Flaugh said.

There was no water in the 10-foot-wide ravine, known locally as Zuber Ditch. During periods of high water, the ditch drains into the Maumee River, about a mile to the south.

A 55 mph speed limit was posted on the road and there were no skid marks leading into the ravine, Flaugh said. Although there was about an inch of snow on the ground, the road was dry.

Mrs. Rister's son, Robert Rister, 48, of Antwerp, said the bridge slowly had been settling. Road crews would apply asphalt from time to time to bring it level with the road surface, he said.

Paulding County Engineer Dan Stouffer said he had no idea what caused the collapse.

Stouffer said the bridge was about 10 years old and had been inspected annually.

Norman Grigsby, an engineer for the Ohio Department of Transportation, said the state planned an investigation. Highway Patrol Lt. Tom Fiser said the National Transportation Safety Board also would investigate.

The injured were taken to Paulding County Hospital in Paulding. Three later were transferred to hospitals in Fort Wayne, Ind., about 20 miles away.

Hardeman identified the dead as Samuel E. Smith, 75, of Paulding; Glendale Glass, 56, and his wife, Rosemary, 52, of Antwerp; Louise Underwood, no age available, of Antwerp; and Janice Goshia, no age available, of Defiance.

He said the injured were Cassandra Miles, 6 weeks, of Antwerp, hospitalized in good condition at Paulding County Hospital with a broken leg; Betty Underwood, 21, of Antwerp, in serious condition at Lutheran Hospital in Fort Wayne; Janet R. Miles, 21, of Antwerp, in serious condition at Lutheran Hospital; Robert

L. Goshia II, 10, of Defiance, in serious condition at Parkview Hospital in Fort Wayne.

Planning-Zoning Meet Tuesday

Three rezoning requests are among the items scheduled for consideration by the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission at Tuesday's 8 p.m. meeting at city hall.

The requests were submitted by: James H. Ward to rezone two acres, located south of section three of Sedgfield Park subdivision and Pinehurst Drive, from R-15 (residential) to office and institutional; Elizabeth K. Dunn and Elaine D. McCloy to rezone 2.21 acres in Section II of Westhaven Subdivision, south of Westhaven Road, east of N.C. 11/Memorial Drive and Eastern Construction Co., from highway commercial to R-9 (residential); and by Phillip L. Goodson, Joseph H. Goodson, and William S. Goodson to rezone .82 acres, located north of 12th Street, south of the Walter Perkins property, west of Clark Street, and east of William Taft Jr. and Atlantic Seaboard Coastline property, from R-6 (residential) to unoffensive industry.

Other business includes: consideration of a request to amend the Thoroughfare Plan by deleting the proposed Sedgfield Drive between St. Andrews Drive and Memorial Drive, and a request to close the Sedgfield Drive section; consideration of preliminary plats for Greenridge subdivision and Red Banks Executive Center;

Appointment of a city member from the planning board and also an engineer or architect to the task force committee; discussion relative to expanding membership on the task force committee; and establishment of a committee to develop a five-year annexation plan for the city.

Satellite In Failing Orbit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tumbling nuclear reactor section of a Soviet spy satellite has dropped in orbit to within about 128 miles above the surface of the earth, the Pentagon said today.

The satellite, powered by nuclear fuel, broke up in space some two weeks ago and its 1,000-pound reactor portion has gradually been slipping downward.

It originally was in an orbit which carried it within about 1,600 miles of the earth, intelligence sources said.

The Pentagon said the projection still estimates that debris from the satellite probably will reach earth late this month.

Last week, Dr. Richard Wagner described as "unpredictable" the time and place where the remains of the satellite will reach earth. Wagner, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger's special assistant on nuclear matters, said last Thursday "there is a very small chance" that hazardous nuclear fuel aboard the tumbling Soviet satellite would reach the surface intact.

"I PUT A LOT INTO IT, AND I GET A LOT OUT OF IT."

"If I had it all to do over again, I would definitely go with Perdue broiler houses. But I would start a lot earlier.

My husband and I built our first Perdue house in 1974. I was working in a public job then. Under a lot of strain because I was on production and some days you might not make quota even though you worked hard. But when I started helping with the chicken houses, the pressures went away.

Not only did the pressures disappear, but all of a sudden I was enjoying my work. Watching those little chicks grow day after day, it's just a thrill to me because I've always liked chickens.

Perdue helped us from the very start. We've always had good servicemen who knew how to grow good chickens. By listening to them and working hard, we always had good flocks.

When my husband passed away, some folks thought I might sell my broiler houses. But with a little help from my sister-in-law and her son, I can run three broiler houses as good as the next grower. In fact I won the top broiler grower award on my route last year. I just try the best I can. You get what you put into it.

Sure I like to grow with Perdue. I've always been a farm girl anyway. I like to get outdoors, so Perdues right down my line.

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing — chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern supermarkets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market staged a broad advance today amid hopes for lower interest rates and a spreading economic recovery.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials gained 9.38 to 1,090.23 by noon.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said traders were generally encouraged by the latest statistical readings on the state of the economy.

The government reported Friday that wholesale prices rose only 0.1 percent in December, and that the decline of industrial production slowed to 0.1 percent in the same month.

"Generally, while the economy remains very weak, some promising signs are beginning to appear," Standard & Poor's Corp. said in its weekly publication "The Outlook."

Leading the market higher, as they did last week, were International Business Machines, up 1/2 at 100, and American Telephone & Telegraph, up 1/2 at 67 1/2.

Rowan Cos., which reported lower fourth-quarter earnings, dropped 1/2 to 12 1/2 in active trading.

The NYSE's composite index climbed .71 to 85.38. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.18 at 371.38.

Volume on the Big Board came to 41.57 million shares at noon, against 38.41 million at the same point Friday.

format without hearings, markup sessions in the Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee," Greenspan said on Cable News Network's "Newsmaker Sunday."

"It's not going to be easy, but it's a terribly formidable group of political figures who are supporting this compromise," Greenspan said.

But Jim Hacking, a spokesman for the American Association of Retired Persons, said his group would fight the cost-of-living freeze, payroll tax hikes and taxation of benefits. "We're looking for an alternative, a rewrite."

Even before the commission had finished its work, organizations representing small businessmen had said they would work to oppose an acceleration of the payroll tax.

Mo Biller, president of the 320,000-member American Postal Workers Union, vowed a strong lobbying campaign to drop the provision bringing federal workers under Social Security.

"We don't want to give anybody the impression that we're coming down to clobber the Congress over the head, but they need a re-education," Biller said Sunday. "Their staffs have been totally unfamiliar with this and the commission has ... looked and said, 'Where can I grab something to patch up this Social Security system?'"

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, one of the reform commission members, supported the overall package but added that he opposed making coverage of federal employees mandatory.

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The judicial commission probing the Beirut massacre has heard final testimony from representatives of Israeli officials who were warned that the inquiry might harm them, and has retired to consider its findings.

A commission communiqué said it took the testimony Sunday from spokesmen for six of the nine warned officials.

Representatives for Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Maj. Gen. Yehoshua Saguy — head of military intelligence — did not present arguments at Sunday's final hearing.

LWV Meeting Slated Tuesday

The status of industrial development in Pitt County will be the topic of a public meeting to be held by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Fellowship room of the First Presbyterian Church, corner of Elm and 14th streets.

Jetliner Wheel Assembly Fails

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The collapse of a main wheel assembly on an American Airlines Boeing 747 jetliner before takeoff was the first such accident since the jets went into service in 1968, a company official says.

The collapse at Los Angeles International Airport halted the plane, bound for New York's Kennedy Airport with 355 passengers aboard. No one was hurt and the passengers, who were evacuated by portable boarding ramps, were taken on a later flight.

The plane did not list, but fire officials said fuel leaked from a ruptured tank after the accident.

The Greenville Jaycees began their celebration of Jaycee Week today with the annual prayer breakfast at the Three Steers Restaurant.

Ed Walker, president of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, spoke to the breakfast gathering, focusing his remarks on the importance of service to humanity.

Bobby James, Jaycee chaplain, recognized special guests at the breakfast. They included: Mayor Percy Cox; City Manager Gail Meeks; state Rep. Ed Warren; Mayor Pro Tem Janice Buck; Pitt Board of County Commissioners Chairman Charles Gaskins; and Bruce Strickland and Burney Tucker, Pitt commissioners.

The highlight of Jaycee Week will be the Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night banquet, scheduled for Thursday night at the Greenville Country Club.

Had Mild Days — Cold Nights

Mild days and cold nights were the rule this past weekend, with temperatures during Friday, Saturday and Sunday ranging from 41 to 50 degrees, night from 24 to 33 degrees.

From Friday at 8 a.m. to Saturday at 8 a.m. the temperature ranged from 24 to 50 degrees; Saturday at 8 a.m. to Sunday at 8 a.m., from 33 to 48 degrees; and from Sunday at 8 a.m. to Monday at 8 a.m., 27 to 41 degrees. Total rainfall during this period was .06 inches.

Rural Firemen Had 51 Fires

During December the rural fire departments in Pitt County answered 59 alarms and had 51 fires to fight.

The alarms were as follows: six houses, three mobile homes, three buildings, six motor vehicles; six grass or woods fires; one false alarm, 26 "others" and eight mutual aids.

There was $592,000 worth of property involved in fires; $1,042,500 exposed; $225,250 lost; and $1,409,250 saved by the rural fire departments.

The Eastern Pines Fire Department had the most fires — 14, Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner said.

Urge Public To Adopt Restraint

DETROIT (AP) — Voluntary restraints on Japan's auto exports to this country should be intensified, the chairman of Ford Motor Co. says.

"The amount (of cars) will have to be worked out ... (but) I think a lower number probably would be fair," Phillip Caldwell said Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley."

Since 1981 Japanese automakers have held auto exports here to 1.68 million because of depressed sales of U.S.-made cars, but still imports took 27.8 percent of the market here in 1982.

He has said the dollar's strength against the yen helped the Japanese keep the competitive edge, and restraints will be necessary until the currencies balance out.

Tortured In Iran Prison

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. citizen says he was subjected to mock executions, torture and months of solitary confinement in seven Iranian jails during 966 days of confinement.

Zia Nassry, released Nov. 6, was quoted in today's editions of The New York Times as saying he was snatched from his room in the Tehran Hilton Hotel by three masked men, blindfolded, interrogated and then declared guilty of espionage and sabotage. He was ordered shot.

"They read a brief statement and they found me guilty," Nassry said. "They tied me up on a pole. They opened fire. ... I could feel gun powder or the wind of the bullet going past."

"At first I thought I had been hit," he said. "A minute or two later they shouted, 'Bring that so-and-so here.' Then they were nice and gave me cigarettes."

Nassry said he soon learned there would be more.

During his ordeal he was regularly beaten, put again before mock firing squads, kept in solitary confinement for months and hung upside down from his ankles.

Nassry and two other Americans were arrested shortly after the siege of the U.S. embassy in Tehran. The others, however, were released soon after their capture.

Nassry, a 36-year-old Afghan-born management consultant from New York, said he was in Iran to try and meet with officials on methods of aiding refugees in Afghanistan in their struggle against the Soviet Union.

But this mission of mercy turned into a nightmare, Nassry said, when he was accused of being an agent of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Miami Routs Chargers; Cowboys Outlast Packers

Dolphins Romp, 34-13, Face Jets In AFC Finals

MIAMI (AP) — Miami Coach Don Shula wore a broad smile and his eyes glowed in anticipation of next Sunday's American Conference championship game against the New York Jets.

"Two teams from the AFC East ... It should be some kind of battle," Shula said Sunday after the Dolphins' top-ranked National Football League defense shut down the San Diego Chargers' high-powered offense in a 34-13 semifinal victory.

"We all have a great deal of respect for the Jets," said Shula, whose club defeated New York twice during the strike-shortened, nine-game regular season. "We didn't beat them for four years, so we know what they are capable of doing to us."

The 8-3 Jets, who defeated the Los Angeles Raiders 17-14 in the other AFC semifinal on Saturday, and the 9-2 Dolphins will collide at 1 p.m. EST in the Orange Bowl. The winner will advance to Super Bowl XVII in Pasadena, Calif., on Jan. 30.

"The Jets have always been tough on us," said Miami quarterback David Woodley, alluding to New York's string of seven victories and one tie against the Dolphins from 1978-81. "We've been doing some good things against them this season and we'll need to continue."

The Dolphins snapped the eight-game winless streak with a 45-28 season-opening victory at New York, and nipped the Jets 20-19 on Uwe von Schamann's last-minute field goal last month.

Sunday's triumph avenged a bitter 41-38 overtime loss to the Chargers in the AFC semifinals a year ago, and again left San Diego frustrated in its pursuit of the Super Bowl.

"I still think this is a great team and I'm proud to be a part of it," said quarterback Dan Fouts, rejecting suggestions that the Chargers added to their reputation of not being able to win "big" games. "I wouldn't trade places with anyone."

Fouts, however, did not try to hide the frustration. "The older you get, the disappointment is a little more," said Fouts, who has led the team into the playoffs the past four years.

The keys Sunday undoubtedly were Miami's ability to control the football offensively, and contain Fouts, who averaged a NFL-record 325.9 yards per game passing this season.

"If you can have productive ball control — and that means keeping it away from their offense and putting points up on the board — you can beat a team like San Diego," said Shula.

The Dolphins held the ball for more than 40 minutes, amassed 413 yards total offense and stifled Fouts, who completed only 15 of 34 passes for 191 yards, with five interceptions. The Chargers also fumbled two kickoffs that set up 10 points in the second quarter.

"It was just a great overall performance, which is what we needed against an explosive team like San Diego," said Shula.

"This team has worked hard to get where it is," he added. "We went through some tough times and turned it around the last three or four weeks."

For a half, Sunday's game was a virtual mirror image of the 1982 Chargers-Dolphins playoff clash which saw San Diego take a 24-0 lead before Miami rallied to make a game of it.

This time, though, it was Miami that capitalized on San Diego turnovers to build a 24-0 lead, before making some costly mistakes which gave the Chargers new life.

The defense rose to the occasion in the second half, however, holding the Chargers scoreless, and Woodley — who completed 17 of 22 passes for 195 yards and two touchdowns — completed the rout with a 7-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Gerald Small's interception of a Fouts pass set up Woodley's first touchdown pass, a 3-yarder to Nat Moore, and Andra Franklin capped a 13-play, 89-yard drive with a 3-yard scoring run as Miami took a 14-0 lead with 13:32 left in the second quarter.

The advantage was 24-0 six minutes later after the Dolphins used Hank Bauer's fumble of a kickoff to set up Woodley's 6-yard touchdown pass to Ronnie Lee, and James Brooks' fumble on the ensuing kickoff to move to von Schamann's 24-yard field goal.

"You had to have the feeling that it's great to have the lead,"

ECU Out To End Skid Vs. Baptist

East Carolina's Pirates seek to snap a two-game losing streak tonight when they play host to Baptist College in a 7:30 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum.

The Pirates, who have not lost more — nor won more — than two games in any streak this year, come into the game with a 6-7 record, having lost their last two outings, both ECAC-South games.

Both of them were played without the services of forward Charles Green, one of the team leaders in scoring, rebounding and defense — as well as one of the senior leaders. Green suffered a shoulder separation in the early minutes of last Wednesday's William & Mary game. The Pirates bowed, 68-56, to Richmond on Saturday.

Baptist, a team that has shown vast improvement in its program in the last two years, comes into the game with a 6-4 record, not counting its game with Southeastern Louisiana Saturday night.

East Carolina leads in the series, 6-0, having won five games over the last three years.

Senior guard Reggie Walker (6-4, 175) is the leader for the Buccaneers with a 16.2 average. He has led the scoring in seven of the games played to date from his wing position.

Who's Number One??

By The Associated Press
With the No. 1 ranking up for grabs, Arkansas and Nevada-Las Vegas stand as the nation's only unbeaten college basketball teams among the nation's Top Twenty.

No. 7 Arkansas is 13-0 and No. 8 Nevada-Las Vegas 14-0 following weekend action that was marked by upsets, including the topping of third-ranked St. John's from among the unbeaten.

No. 2 Virginia, No. 6 Kentucky, No. 10 Alabama, and No. 18 Tennessee and No. 20 Ohio State also lost Saturday. Top-ranked Memphis State began the week of upsets by losing to Virginia Tech last Monday night.

Arkansas scored a 63-56

Southwest Conference victory over Southern Methodist at Dallas, giving Coach Eddie Sutton his 200th career victory. Darrell Walker helped make it possible by scoring 13 of his 17 points in the second half.

"I don't remember all the 200 victories," Sutton said, "but I can certainly remember the 51 losses."

"We're happy to get out of here with a victory. SMU is a good team. In our opinion, before the season started, we thought they might be a year away. That's not true. They've arrived this year."

The Razorbacks, the defending SWC champion, are 3-0 in the conference. SMU is 10-5 and 2-2.

Sidney Green's 16 points and Larry Anderson's 14 paced Nevada-Las Vegas to its fourth Pacific Coast Athletic Association triumph, 56-48 over visiting Fresno State, which was held scoreless for the last two minutes. Ron Anderson's 21 points led Fresno State, 10-4.

Saturday's upsets included No. 11 North Carolina, the defending national champion, scoring its ninth straight victory, 101-95, over Virginia, Boston College tripping St. John's 69-64, Auburn downing Kentucky 75-67, Georgia topping Alabama 67-64, Mississippi State upsetting Tennessee 75-74 in overtime and Illinois beating Ohio State 63-55.

Dallas To Meet Redskins For NFC Championship

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys were wanted — by the Washington Redskins, and they got their wish. Dallas outlasted the Green Bay Packers 37-26 Sunday in a wild, free-wheeling battle to set up a Cowboys vs. Redskins shootout Saturday for the National Football Conference championship.

Washington's only loss this year was 24-10 on Dec. 5 — to the Cowboys.

And how will Dallas Coach Tom Landry feel being surrounded by all those Redskins, not unlike his credit card?

"It's for the championship, we'll go anywhere," Landry said, wishing it was going to be as easy as swinging through the saloon doors of his commercial and leaving his adversaries behind.

"The first time we played Washington it was a matter-of-fact game," Landry said. "We did them a favor by beating them. If they had beaten us they would have gotten cocky."

The Cowboys had to survive a pumped-up Packer team to make it to their 10th NFC championship game in 13 years.

It took 14 points in 14 seconds, three field goals by Rafael Septien, a fourth-quarter touchdown pass by Danny White, a 49-yard "receiver-to-receiver" pass, an 89-yard kickoff return by rookie Rod Hill, and three interceptions by Dennis Thurman to subdue the Pack.

"It was a great game for the fans," said Landry. "Most people hadn't seen Green Bay play. They can play. But we made the plays we had to."

Dallas built a 20-7 halftime lead and most teams would have wandered to their dressing room in shock.

After two Septien field goals, Green Bay took a 7-6 lead on a 6-yard pass from Lynn Dickey to James Lofton.

Then Dallas struck. Timmy Newsome scored on a 2-yard run with 1:18 left. Fourteen seconds later Thurman returned a Dickey pass 39 yards for a touchdown.

Refusing to belly up, Green Bay's Jan Stenerud kicked two field goals to another one for Septien after Hill's kickoff return. Then the Packers struck.

Lofton dashed 71 yards for a touchdown on an end around to narrow the count to 23-19 in the fourth period after Hill blocked the extra point.

Stung, White took the Cowboys 80 yards and flipped a 7-yard scoring pass to tight end Doug Cosbie.

Green Bay retaliated on Mark Lee's 22-yard interception return for a touchdown.

Then Landry decided enough was enough. He ordered wide receiver Drew Pearson to throw to wide receiver Tony Hill. The play covered 49 yards and fullback Robert Newhouse rushed the final yard for the game-clinching touchdown at 4:22 to play.

Thurman intercepted his third pass at the Dallas goal in the final minute to beat back the Packers' final thrust.

Packer Coach Bart Starr said "I wish we had caught them a couple of weeks ago when they were having some problems. Dallas was very, very good today."

Landry said Washington "executes better than any team I've seen this year."

He said the crowd would be a big advantage to the Redskins.

"Up there you just hope you can hear the signal count," Landry said. "But we have played there before so we know what to expect."

"Washington is on a roll now much like the (San Francisco) 49ers last year. We'll have to eliminate the errors we made against Green Bay because Washington will not make any mistakes."

Landry added "The Washington fans wanted us

Ex-VMI Coach Gets Job

ECU Picks 'D' Coordinator

Ex-Virginia Military Institute coach Thomas Wayne Throckmorton was named this morning as East Carolina University defensive coordinator by ECU coach Ed Emory.

Throckmorton replaces Norm Parker, who resigned in December to become a coach at Michigan State University. Parker had been defensive coordinator at ECU for three years.

Throckmorton served as defensive coordinator at VMI from 1980 to 1982 and was also a defensive coach at the University of Richmond before coming to ECU. The 41-year-old Richmond native was an offensive coach at Randolph-Macon College and a defensive coach at N.C. State in 1971.

While heading up the VMI defense, Throckmorton helped lead to Keydets to upset road wins over Virginia Tech and Army in 1981.

Throckmorton was also head football coach at Fieldale-Collinsville High School in Martinsville, Va., and head football coach at George Wythe High School in Richmond.

"We are extremely happy and fortunate to have a coach of the caliber of Tom Throckmorton join our staff," Emory said in announcing the addition to the ECU staff. "He has proven to be an over-achiever in past coaching positions and is held in high regard in the coaching ranks."

He is a very intense person."

Throckmorton is a graduate of Randolph-Macon in Ashland, Va.

With the addition of Throckmorton, Emory now

NFL TV Expose Sloppy, Lacks Evidence

By The Associated Press

The main problem with "An Unauthorized History of the National Football League," to be shown tonight on public television stations, is that it tries so hard to prove its point that it loses sight of some elementary journalistic practices.

Yes, there are billions bet on football games; yes, there are shady characters who try to get close to players and coaches; yes, it's even possible there may have been a game or games fixed at some time in the past.

But the producers, pending any last-minute changes in the show screened for the press last week, try too hard with too little evidence to jump from the first point to the last; they spend far too much time trying to shock the audience with the unshocking news that people bet on football, they toss out underworld gossip from paid informants as fact.

Finally, they resort to guilt by inference and sloppy reporting — showing a film clip of an interception or a missed tackle by a player they've just identified as suspect; confusing Edward DeBartolo Sr. and Jr.; talking about NFL owners who have been seen with people who have been seen with ... well, someone whose name ends in a vowel.

The show, opening offering in PBS' "Frontline" series, made its first splash at its press screening in New York last Thursday. Much of it is a rehash of previous NFL problems with gambling. But there were two new items:

—An imprisoned gambler's allegation that he was part of a scheme between 1968 and 1970 in which the coach, quarterback and defensive captain of an NFL team were bribed to shave points in four games per season.

—A suggestion that Carroll Rosenbloom, late owner of the Los Angeles Rams, was murdered by being pulled under water by a wet-suit clad swimmer off a Florida beach in April, 1979. The official verdict on his death was accidental drowning. The motive, never spelled out, is presumably his alleged betting on games — something he had been cleared of by the league.

Neither is backed up as solidly as it should be. The producers in fact, said after the screening that they would pursue information up to air time.

But what was telling was this comment from senior producer Mike Kirk when asked if he would make the names of the alleged fixers public:

"We don't want to transmit slander. We don't have enough information to name the names. We are carrying a story. We believe it enough to carry it. But we can't prove enough of it."

Proving it, presumably, is up to the proper authorities. One of them, the NFL, which was turned down by the producers when it asked for an advance screening, says it will have no comment until it sees the entire film. Another, the federal government, says it won't reopen the Rosenbloom case.

The basic problem is just what Kirk implied. Too much, too fast — an air time was set before the case was made so facts had to be found to make it.

The secondary problem — uncharacteristic for PBS — is an attempt to overdramatize, even shock.

For example, twice during the Rosenbloom segment, we see Rosenbloom's discolored body on a slab, presumably in the morgue. Once is too much for what the shot adds to the narrative, but twice?

At another point, talking about Rosenbloom's alleged gambling, there is talk of suitcases full of cash being exchanged in Las Vegas. The camera cuts to shows hands and legs exchanging suitcases. Hollywood does it better.

Finally, after narrator Jessica Savitch outlines the Rosenbloom allegations, a paid witness named Gino Tropicano says he has "heard" that the witness to the drowning, a Canadian named Raymond Tanguay, has disappeared. Ah, but the wily producers have hired a private detective to track down Tanguay. He succeeds and Tanguay appears to tell us, in French, what he saw.

So why was Tropicano on the screen to imply that Tanguay had been rubbed out. If PBS could find him, so could the mob if it wanted to.

A serious subject deserves a more serious approach.

Running Wins In NFL Playoffs

By The Associated Press

Dan Fouts is gone. So are Ken Anderson and Tommy Kramer and all those other guys who threw for four zillion yards. The National Football League playoffs are proving that the pass may look nice, but the run wins games.

During the strike-truncated NFL regular season, it was no longer a novelty to see a quarterback throw for 300 yards in a game; 400 yard-games weren't unusual. Scores were reminiscent of the old American Football League: 51-34, 40-34, 41-37, 44-26, 34-31. It became a cliché to say that the new rules had made pass defense all but impossible.

Well, there have been 12 NFL playoff games so far this year of the supposedly unstoppable passer. In all but Green Bay-Dallas, the team that ran for the most yards won the game and Green Bay won that rushing battle 158-109 primarily because of a trick play — James Lofton's 71-yard touchdown run on a reverse.

In the dozen playoff games, the winners have rushed for 1,987 yards, an average of 165.6 a game. The losers have run for 1,127 yards, an average of 93.9. Seven players have rushed for 100 or more yards, all of them players on winning teams.

Losers have outpassed winners in five playoff games. But they have also been intercepted more and sacked more. As college coaches Darrell Royal of Texas and Woody Hayes of Ohio State used to say in justifying their four yards and a cloud-of-dust philosophy: there are three things that can happen when you throw and two are bad.

So, show the stats, winners have had 27 interceptions to 11 for the losers; and 37 sacks for 267 yards in losses to the losers' 21 for 189.

The importance of rushing also shows up in defensive statistics. It's a lot easier to win if you shut off the other guy's best runner, thus forcing the other team to rely on the pass.

Rose Swimmers Beat Goldsboro

The Greenville Rose boys' and girls' swim teams defeated Goldsboro in a dual meet here Saturday.

The Rose boys downed Goldsboro, 58-33, while the girls won, 67-33.

Rose's boys are now 2-2 and the girls are 3-1.

Rose travels to Duke Saturday to meet Durham Jordan and Chapel Hill.

said Shula. "But then you remember they had the lead last year and we came from behind."

Indeed, the Chargers roared back.

Fouts, given excellent field position after Miami was penalized for a face mask penalty on a Brooks' punt return, took only 21 seconds to move 28 yards and put the Chargers on the scoreboard with Chuck Muncie's 1-yard run.

Von Schamann's 23-yard field goal made it 27-6 with 1:05 left in the half, but Fouts responded with a 5-play, 76-yard scoring drive that consumed only 43 seconds as the Chargers trimmed the deficit to 27-13 on a 28-yard touchdown reception by Charlie Joiner.

"At halftime, we stressed going out like it was nothing to nothing and winning the second half," said Shula.

San Diego wide receiver Wes Chandler, who caught 49 passes for a NFL-high 1,032 yards this season, had only two receptions for 38 yards. Tight end Kellen Winslow caught a playoff-record 13 passes against Miami a year ago, but caught only one Sunday.

"Their defense was tough, but it wasn't anything we haven't already seen. We've seen everything from A to Z," said Chandler. "Give them credit, though. They played well, probably better than anybody we've faced."

For Fouts, it was his worst day passing since Cincinnati held him to 185 yards in the AFC championship game last January. The Chargers' total offensive output of 247 yards was the lowest since Nov. 18, 1979 when the club amassed only 218 in a 35-7 victory over Pittsburgh.

has one vacancy remaining to be filled on defense.

ECU officially announced this morning that offensive coordinator Larry Beckish and receiver coach Ricky Bustle have resigned to join the United States Football League's Arizona Wranglers.

Beckish will serve as offensive coordinator for the Wranglers and Bustle will be a receiver coach.

"We regret losing both of these very fine coaches," Emory said. "But this again points out the caliber of people we've had here on our staff."

Beckish, 40, joined the ECU staff only a year ago from Wichita State and installed a new I-offense and helped guide ECU to a 7-4 record.

Bustle, 40, joined the ECU staff in 1980, Emory's first year at ECU.

New Year's Day was a holiday for most people, but for the Saturday staff at THE DAILY REFLECTOR it was a day filled with work.

For the sports fan, New Year's Day is a big one with major football bowl games overlapping one another.

Two of the biggest games began at 8:00 p.m. Saturday—the Orange Bowl in Miami and the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans.

The full story of these two bowl games, as well as the afternoon games—the Rose Bowl and the Cotton Bowl—appeared in the Sunday morning edition of THE DAILY REFLECTOR.

In the area you could not have read about the games anywhere else on Sunday morning, January 2, 1983.

Palmer Encouraged By Effort At Open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Any thoughts of leaving the game he loves so well now are gone from the mind of Arnold Palmer.

There have been those thoughts over the last few, frustrating years.

He talked of them at one time or another last week. "I've decided," he said at the time, "I'm either going to start playing better or playing not at all."

The Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open over the weekend was a major test.

And Palmer played better. Much, much better. For 3½ rounds, for 63 holes, he was very much in title contention. He didn't win. But he was there, right there, in the hunt again, responding to the gallery's roar with a clenched-fist salute to a birdie, driving on the leaders, once even passing them and taking the lead alone.

It didn't last.

He couldn't sustain it over the final few holes Sunday. But for a while, for quite a while, he was exercising that half-remembered magic that once was his alone.

But it wasn't a complete loss. He extended his playing life.

"This answers some questions about my game," he said. "My game was getting to where, in my own mind, I felt I didn't hit the ball strongly enough to stay in. But this obviously answers that I am."

"I'm encouraged that I hit the ball better. Only time will tell if that is good enough."

It was good enough to exert his old-time magic over the galleries. When he got in contention at the end of three rounds, officials hastily printed up an additional 3,000 tickets for Sunday. Sold them all.

"I'm physically stronger than I have been in the last few years," said Palmer, 53, a former national seniors champion who has not won on the regular PGA Tour for 10 long years.

"I'm driving it longer than I have in years, maybe as long as ever."

Gallery Favorite

Morgan's Second Triumph Overshadowed By Palmer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gil Morgan won the golf tournament and hardly anyone noticed.

They were still cheering — cheering thankfully and gratefully — for Arnold Palmer, who gave them a moment of Camelot, a brief and shining moment of a joyous past.

"I suppose they didn't think it was possible. Maybe they were right," Palmer said Sunday after his bid to turn back the clock failed over the last nine holes of the Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open.

He was out of it when he came to the 18th. By that time Morgan had the victory locked up. But the gallery was still Arnold's.

He received a resounding ovation from the crowd surrounding the 18th green, standing a dozen-deep and announced at 26,890.

They'd come to see Palmer, the most popular player the game has ever known. Old friends who had watched him in the glory years, youngsters who couldn't honestly claim to remember his last Professional gol tour triumph, now 10 years back, all came to watch the 53-year-old Palmer make a bid to become the oldest man ever to win on the tour.

They perched on roof tops. They climbed trees. They hung from the wire fence surrounding the driving range at the Rancho Park Municipal course.

And Palmer, at least for a time, gave them what they came for. Starting one shot back, he birdied the first hole and was tied for the lead. A 4-iron shot to one foot gave him a tap-in birdie on the fifth. And, for that moment, he had the lead alone.

But he 3-putted for bogey on the sixth and never led again. It all started coming apart on the ninth, a par 5 which is decorated with a plaque commemorating a horrendous "12" Palmer took during the 1961 Los Angeles Open. He pushed his second shot well to the right and had to settle for a par. He drove poorly on the 10th and bogeyed. He 3-putted the 11th for another bogey. He was bunkered on the 12th and bogeyed again.

The dream was over. "Just terrible, that back nine," he said after finishing off a 1-over-par 72 that left him at 275, nine under par but five back of Morgan, who played in the group behind Palmer and enjoyed something approaching solitude.

"It's great that Arnold played so well. I'm sure everyone wanted to see him win — including me to a certain extent," said Morgan, whose solid, winning, last-round 68 was all but overlooked in drama of Palmer's challenge.

Morgan added this title to the Tucson Open championship he acquired a week ago with a back-nine move that separated him from a closely bunched pack that had seven men either leading or sharing the lead at some point during the day.

He got in position with consecutive birdies on the 12th and 13th and nailed it down with a critical, 15-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

The victory, the sixth of his career, was worth $54,000 from the total purse of $300,000 and pushed his earnings for a 1982 season, unbeaten season to $108,000.

Running back Tony Dorsett took note of the fact that this is the third time Dallas has been in the NFC title game after back-to-back losses to Philadelphia and San Francisco.

"Right now I'm thinking that the third time is a charm," said Dorsett. "We've been beaten the last two years. Yesterday I was sitting in my living room and heard the chant in Washington that they want Dallas."

"We're going up there like good doctors. We have to make a house call."

He added "the crowd has been great here the last two weeks. It's up to us now to do this on our own in Washington."

Waltrip Named

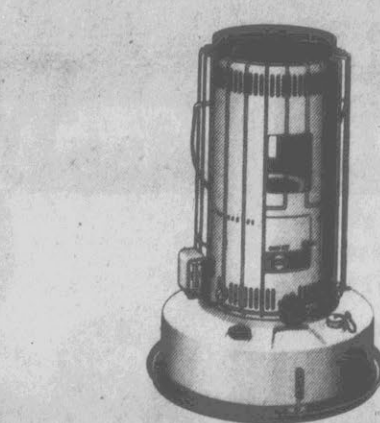

Drive Of Year

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — NASCAR stock car champion Darrell Waltrip will receive the National Motorsports Press Association's Driver of the Year award for the second consecutive year tonight.

Association President Benny Phillips will present an engraved silver wine cooler to Waltrip at an awards dinner at the Myrtle Beach Hilton, the association said. The dinner will cap the writers' group's annual convention.

The presentation will mark the third time the Franklin, Tenn., driver has gotten the honor. He was named NMPA Driver of the Year following the 1979 and 1981 racing seasons.

'The Skin Of Our Teeth' Will Be Carried Live By PBS-TV

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "American Playhouse," introduced last season in a gutsy, and generally successful, attempt to provide the Public Broadcasting Service with top-quality television drama on a weekly basis, steps boldly once more with "The Skin of Our Teeth" — live from San Diego.

It's the first live broadcast of a stage play in public television history — though the form was common in TV's "Golden Age" in the 1950s — and, says the director, Jack O'Brien, "I'd be a fool if I said we're not going to be up for grabs during some scenes."

The two-hour show from San Diego's Old Globe Theater, starting at 9 p.m. EST Tuesday, revives Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play, which opened on Broadway Nov. 18, 1942.

"The Skin of Our Teeth" is the premiere program in the second, 39-week season of "American Playhouse," the collective effort of a consortium of four public television stations and systems — WNET in New York, Boston's WGBH, KCET in Los Angeles and the South Carolina Educational TV network.

Other than news and sports, live television is risky business these days, with the viewer accustomed to a perfect product. So many things can go wrong.

"But it's not foolhardy, what we're doing," O'Brien says. "We're taking meticulous care of one another, and the event. And we're having great fun with it."

O'Brien, artistic director at the Old Globe, has touched up the original a bit to give the play a more contemporary feel. But, he says, "The relevance of the story seems more important today than ever. I believe thoroughly that it's a piece that's come into its own time."

"The Skin of Our Teeth" follows George Antrobus, his family and their maid, Sabina, through fire, flood, pestilence, seven-year locusts, the ice age, the black pox and the double feature — all of which they survive by the skin of their teeth.

The play was written with the United States about to enter World War II, and Wilder himself suggested the story "mostly comes alive under conditions of crisis." O'Brien says he had that in mind when he chose the play for the television production.

"I'm always so stunned by what this man wrote," he says. "He's a kind of novelistic visionary, working as a playwright. Look at what he was talking about — personal responsibilities, family roots. Some of what he said has more meaning today than it did 40 years ago."

The Old Globe production stars Blair Brown as Sabina, Harold Gould as George Antrobus, Sada Thompson as his wife, and Jeffrey Combs and Monique Fowler as the Antrobus children, Henry and Gladys.

Lindsay Law, the executive producer of "American Playhouse," took the idea for the live production to O'Brien, who says, "I had mixed feelings about television and the theater. I think we're still looking for a style, a blend of the two."

The pay TV networks have been especially active in adapting stage productions to the small screen, using a number of different methods — with audience, for instance, or without. The Royal Shakespeare Company, in yet another approach, completely restaged the popular London and Broadway production of "The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby" for the syndicated Mobil Showcase Network.

NBC, meanwhile, has done three "Live Theater" broadcasts in the last several months, the most recent a revival of "The Member of the Wedding" from Nashville.

"American Playhouse" continues Jan. 25 with Eric Roberts and Arthur Hill in "Miss Lonelyhearts," followed Feb. 1 by Dick Goldberg's "Family Business," starring Milton Berle.

Threat Cancels Parton's Shows

OWENSBORO, Ky. (AP) — Singer Dolly Parton canceled two shows here after the police department received a telephone call warning of possible harm to the entertainer.

Ms. Parton, who told police that similar threats had been made in two other cities, decided to cancel the planned shows at the Executive Inn Rivermont here Saturday night after meeting with Owensboro police, a spokesman for the Executive Inn said.

Ms. Parton and her management believe the threats may be coming from a former convict who apparently believes that some songs written by Ms. Parton are about him, said Don Warden, road manager for Ms. Parton.

Warden said she had been prepared to go on for the first show because people were already lined up outside the motel for it. Owensboro police said that to establish security in the show room, they would need to search all 800 patrons, prompting officials to cancel the show.

Before leaving Owensboro late Saturday, Warden said he had been in contact with Ms. Parton's management firm in California, and said a private detective had been hired to investigate the threats.

Owensboro police Sgt. Clyde Thorpe said a young-sounding woman "in her 20s or 30s" called police at 7 p.m. Saturday and asked if Ms. Parton had a police guard.

The woman told police she knew of someone who "hated the ground Dolly Parton walked on and felt like she had done him wrong," Thorpe said.

The caller told police the man was not where he should be, and she felt like he might do Ms. Parton bodily harm.

"We notified Miss Parton of this, and it was her feeling, considering the short time we had to provide security in the building, that she should cancel the shows and leave town," Thorpe

'Stunned' Over Divorce Ruling

NEW YORK (AP) — Roxanne Pulitzer says she was stunned by a divorce judge's ruling in which she lost custody of her twin 5-year-old sons and virtually all claim to her ex-husband's $12 million fortune.

"It was like someone had reached in and grabbed my insides and pulled them out," she said in an interview in the Jan. 24 issue of People magazine.

Mrs. Pulitzer, 31, who has hired "palimony" specialist Marvin Mitchelson to appeal the ruling, says she "never did anything to warrant" her estranged husband's accusations that she was unfaithful, but blamed the lawyers in the case for sensationalizing the 18-day proceeding in West Palm Beach, Fla.

Mitchelson told the magazine that Mrs. Pulitzer's ex-husband, newspaper heir Peter Pulitzer and his lawyers "have branded Roxanne the Scarlet Woman of the South. I don't like that, and I'll attack this man as much as I can."

Movie Boom For The Year

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Hollywood greeted the new year with an unprecedented, all-time high in box-office receipts for 1982 and a rousing blitz for the final holiday week.

Daily Variety reported all movies during the final week of 1982 accounted for $60.6 million compared with $48.6 million in 1981 and $50.7 million in 1980.

Thanks in large part to "E.T. The Extraterrestrial," 1982 broke all annual box-office records with a total take of $3.2 billion. In 1981,

'Superdad' Copes With Protests, Too

By STACEY COWLES
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Living is tough enough for a man with one wife and 10 kids. But with two families, in two houses, with 20 kids?

"It isn't easy," admits John Knight, a 46-year-old who has been dubbed "Superdad" by the British press and has fended off critics of his state-supported, prolific existence since the mid-1960s.

Knight has 11 children by his wife of 20 years, Carole. One has left home, making a family unit of husband, wife and 10 children.

He also has nine children by his mistress for 18 years, Claire Martines, and has set up a separate home for them, joined by an extra child Mrs. Martines brought along from an earlier marriage to one of Knight's friends.

They all live in two homes within 10 miles of each other in the market town of Doublebois, Cornwall, in rural southwest England.

There was public outrage last month when the local district housing committee spent 30,000 pounds ($48,000) to move Knight's wife and their 10 children into a modern house in Doublebois.

That left Mrs. Martines and the rest of the family in a primitive stone cottage on Bodmin Moor, where the entire clan had lived in two nearby cottages for the past two decades.

The partial move into town, the 325 pounds ($520) a week Knight's family receives in welfare, and his carefree sexual mores have infuriated the straight-laced farming community.

David and Amy Stubbs, the Knights' new neighbors, organized a campaign to lower the taxable value of homes in Doublebois because they felt the Knights' arrival signalled decay.

Local newspapers carried letters expressing disgust, some suggesting the Knights undergo sterilization.

But Knight and the local welfare council are unrepentant.

"The obscene letters and the press attention over the move are unfair," Knight was quoted as telling the Plymouth Western Morning News. "I'm seriously thinking of ways to support my family."

As proof, he said, he did not claim his 75-pound ($120) unemployment check in early January because he charges out-of-town reporters 200 pounds ($320) a session for interviews. That, he said, "cuts down the hassle and pays my bills at the same time."

He's also had an offer to record his guitar-accompanied folksongs, provided he and his wife also write an advice column on sex problems.

"We don't have any, but I'm taking the offer," he was quoted by the Plymouth newspaper as saying.

Knight has not had a paid job since he quit a government clerical post several years ago.

"I'm not lazy though," he said in the newspaper interview. The burly, bearded patriarch jogs between his two houses twice a week to share his attentions with his 38-year-old wife and his mistress, 41.

Before the December move, he said, he spent most of his time chopping firewood and carrying water from backyard springs since neither of his family's two-bedroom stone cottages had running water or electricity.

"The Knights are just as entitled to support as other needing families," Tony Maycock, a housing officer for the Caraden District Council, told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

"Moving them was perfectly routine. Without adequate sewerage their cottage was unquestionably unfit for human habitation."

Housing Committee Chairman Joyce Crabb

added: "Everybody who knows the Knights says they are a very nice family, polite and well-spoken, not layabouts. The children have been brought up well."

The Knights have no car and no television.

"Everyone of the Knights is an equal partner in family decision-making," a friend, Michael Taylor, told the AP.

"They hold family gatherings and every member aged 7 months to 21 years who can speak, has a say."

Knight has said his "first" family had mixed feelings about moving from their cottage to a five-bedroom modern house, even though they gained toilets, hot water and electric lights.

"We're now a family broken in two halves," he told the Morning News. His wife explained in the same interview, "It's awful for Claire and the others to be stuck 10 miles out on the moor with us living in this lovely new home."

After divorcing one of Knight's friends, by whom she had five children, Mrs. Martines moved in with the Knights in 1965, she has said. She split her part of the family off into a second cottage after she and Mrs. Knight each gave birth to two children.

"John has always said he couldn't see why if you fall in love with someone else it should jeopardize your relationship with someone you already love," she said.

Truckers Plan Protest Strike

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A strike by the nation's independent truckers on Jan. 31 will determine whether truck owner-operators will "sink, swim or drown," says one driver who plans to join in the protest.

Bob Norton of Lexington, N.C., who was in Charleston last weekend delivering a truckload of Texas-grown fruit, said the drivers are planning the strike to protest increased taxes, including a five cent per gallon federal gasoline and diesel fuel tax hike.

"If something isn't done soon, we'll all be out of business in a couple of years," Norton said. "We've already been pushed as far as we can stand. We've bent to where we're about broke."

In addition to the diesel tax hike, a bill signed by the president will raise user fees for the heaviest category of trucks from about $1,200 to $1,900 a year, add a 12 percent sales tax on new trucks, and increase federal taxes on truck tire purchases, Norton said.

Norton said expenses have gone through the roof in recent years, with an on-the-road oil change costing $100, a tire replacement $375 and a minor tune-up about $400.

"I drove about 190,000 miles last year, and my truck took in about $102,000," Norton said. "But my expenses were $89,000. How long can I keep going like that?"

The strike has not been sanctioned by the American Trucking Association or the West Virginia Motor Truck Association. But Norton said he thinks its time the independent truckers, who own their own rigs, did something.

"I doubt the strike will really accomplish much," Norton said. "But I've been doing this for 19 years. It's my way of life. I feel like I've got to do something."

FOCUS

A Record Year

Stevie Wonder, left, and Lionel Richie are only two of the nominees who will be waiting to find out whether they have received American Music Awards during tonight's scheduled celebration. The American Music Award winners are chosen by the people who buy their records — and Americans buy a lot of records. In 1981, music fans in this country bought 273 million albums and 47 million singles. Record sales fell off a bit from 1980, but cassette tapes made up the difference, with sales of 124 million — 25 million more than the year before. And 1981 was a record year for profits — $3,626,000,000. Those profits should be music to anyone's ears.

DO YOU KNOW — What record album sold more copies than any other in 1981?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Ralph Bunche was the only black American besides Martin Luther King, Jr. to be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize.

'Retirement' Talk Dismissed

BOSTON (AP) — It is "very superficial" to speculate that Edward M. Kennedy may resign from the Senate before his current term expires in 1988, a spokesman says.

Don Dowd, who was active in Kennedy's five Senate campaigns and ran the field organization in the most recent one, has told friends he believes the Massachusetts Democrat will step down in a year or two, the Boston Sunday Globe said.

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JAN. 18, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day finds you inclined to think in a negative manner about problems that come up. Look upon the constructive side of things and gain your goals.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Try to help associates solve a problem and gain their goodwill. Don't take risks with money at this time. Avoid a troublemaker.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Avoid an outside foe and be more concerned with improving business affairs. Study every angle of a new project.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Schedule your activities wisely so you get maximum use of your time. Be sure to use extreme caution in motion today.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make sure you take care of monetary affairs sensibly and don't become involved in any fly-by-night schemes.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Go after your finest personal aims and you can easily gain them. Sidestep a foe who could spoil your happiness.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be sure to finish regular routines before engaging in amusements. An argument with a friend is not serious, so forget it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Go after personal aims with more enthusiasm and effort and you can easily gain them. Be alert at all times today.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to the ideas of higher-ups and go along with them for best results now. Take no risks in motion today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can make a good impression on others by showing you are honest and decent. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Be more objective in dealing with others where business matters are concerned or you could jeopardize your security.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be sure to keep the promises made to family members. Come to a better accord with associates. Think constructively.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Go after your aims in a positive manner and get excellent results. Contact loyal friends who can be helpful to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of comprehending a great deal of knowledge, so give the finest education you can afford and there can be much success. Don't neglect religious tenets that are important to a good way of life.

'Suspicious' In Death Of A Witness

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Convicted murderer Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald said Sunday he is suspicious about the death of a key witness in his bid for a new trial and criticized a coroner's report saying the woman died of natural causes.

However, the former Green Beret physician serving three consecutive life sentences for the slayings of his pregnant wife and two daughters said the death of Helena Stoeckley Davis would not hurt his case.

"We have her statements. We have tape-recorded interviews. We have video tapes and we have her psychological and psychiatric interview and profile," MacDonald said in a telephone interview from a federal penitentiary at Bastrop, Texas.

"All of that is admissible evidence. We would rather have her, but I think we can proceed ... We do have her statements and they're taken under oath ... basically her recollection and her identification of the other assailants," he said.

Attorneys for MacDonald allege that Mrs. Davis was part of a drug-crazed hippie group that slaughtered MacDonald's family in 1970 at MacDonald's Fort Bragg home. Federal prosecutors have discounted Mrs. Davis' testimony, in which she often said she could not remember the events of the night.

But MacDonald said his attorneys had discovered the identities of those responsible for the slayings.

"We know the people who were in my house that night. We are on the road to locating them, and we are on the road to corroborating their presence in my house," he said.

"But I think it's more frightening than that. I think for a major witness in a triple homicide to turn up dead at age 30 and have the authorities say very casually that it is a natural death, that's absurd, and I think it has to make one think, 'What's going on.'"

Oconee County (S.C.) coroner Theron Durham said Saturday that preliminary results from an autopsy on Mrs. Davis at the Medical University of South Carolina at Charleston showed she did not die as the result of any violence.

MacDonald called the coroner's report "a political statement from the prosecution."

"A pathologist at this point has to reserve judgement until he gets the tissues, slides and toxicology report," he said.

Mrs. Davis was found dead in her Seneca, S.C., apartment on Friday, her body half clothed with water running in the kitchen sink.

The final laboratory reports, which may take more than a week to complete, are what he is awaiting, MacDonald said.

MacDonald disputed reports that Mrs. Davis may have died from cirrhosis of the liver or hepatitis.

"Illnesses like hepatitis or any major illness are not a sudden, explosive thing that kills you in minutes or hours. It kills you in days, weeks or months," he said. "And it's very difficult to say that a woman of age 30 like Helena couldn't have gotten to a phone and called for help or at least gotten out of the house. So it's very bizarre to us."

MacDonald said he was not certain whether his attorneys had acquired an independent medical examiner to witness the autopsy.

"I have made several calls today, but I have been unable to get through to anybody," he said.

Mrs. Davis' death "stunned" but did not surprise him, MacDonald said.

"It's very frightening from my viewpoint to have this witness to suddenly die with no obvious cause," he said. "There's no question it adds to my anxiety and the fear of being here."

Japan Will Consider A New Canal For Panama

By EUGENE MOOSA
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — A group of Japanese executives is going to Panama next month to discuss the possibility of building a new canal there.

The idea of building a second canal through Central America to accommodate supertankers and other vessels too large for the U.S.-built Panama Canal has been discussed for years, with Panama mentioned as one possible site and Nicaragua as another.

Skeptics, while acknowledging the benefits of a new link between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, have questioned the financial risk — and the engineering feasibility — of a project that might cost $10 billion and take a decade to complete.

In the past month, however, there has been a revival of interest in the idea here, beginning with a Japanese government decision in late December to allot $22,700 in the 1983 budget for "pre-feasibility studies" on a new canal. That means official, if not full-fledged, sanction of the project, according to industry sources who asked not to be named.

Government officials subsequently announced that representatives of four ministries — foreign, transport, construction, and international trade and industry — will take part in the second round of the U.S.-Panama-Japan preparatory committee on the canal in mid-March.

More recently, Shigeo Nagano, president of the Japan Chamber of Commerce and Industry, disclosed that he will lead a delegation of top executives of 21 Japanese construction, heavy industry, steel, security and banking firms on a five-day visit to Panama beginning Feb. 2.

The 82-year-old Nagano, a longtime champion of a second canal, said the group will discuss the project with President Ricardo de la Esparilla of Panama.

Advocates maintain there are many advantages to having a second, sea-level canal:

—It could handle supertankers and wide-hull cargo ships up to 500,000 tons, in contrast to a maximum of 60,000 tons in the 69-year-old Panama Canal.

—It would speed the voyage between Japan and the east coasts of North, Central and South America by one-third.

—It would allow more flexibility for naval movements. The biggest U.S. ships such as the aircraft carriers Enterprise and Vinson cannot use the present canal.

Provision for a feasibility study on an alternative canal was written into the U.S.-Panama Treaty, ratified by the U.S. Senate in 1977, which calls for the transfer of jurisdiction over the existing canal to Panama by the year 2000. At least one preliminary study suggested that a sea-level canal could best be built by using nuclear blasts to dig the channel.

A new canal would "cost as much as $10 billion and require a peak employment of 100,000 workers for a construction duration of at least 10 years," according to a study by Penta Oceans Construction, a Japanese firm known for the renovation of the Suez Canal in the late 1970s.

The estimate, based on a 1979 joint study by Nagano's staff and Penta Oceans, calls for a waterway paralleling the present canal about 12.5 miles to the west. It would be 61.3 miles long, with 36.3 miles to be dug inland to provide a passage 660 feet wide and 109 feet deep.

"With regard to engineering capabilities and technology, it's perfectly possible. The rest is financing and politics," a Penta Oceans spokesman said.

Commercial bank officials said President de la Esparilla invited Nagano's group, made up of officials from companies that might be involved in such an undertaking.

The group includes chairmen and presidents of such firms as Mitsubishi Corp., Mitsubishi Heavy Industries, the Bank of Tokyo, C. Itoh and Co., and Kashima Construction. Mitsubishi Corp. would be the principal trading company to coordinate the project, the bank officials said.

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KJ3 ♥KJ83 ♦A1052 ♠K5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 1 ♠ 2 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You have more than enough trump support for partner, but raising his diamond suit is the second-best choice. Your most likely game is in no trump—nine tricks are easier to make than 11. And with your tenaces, you should be declarer, so bid two no trump now to protect your holding.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦A ♥62 ♦K87653 ♠KQ102
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♦ 1 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—In terms of point count, perhaps, your hand is worth 16 points, but in playing strength you are in the slam zone—partner needs little besides the two red aces to give you good play. Experience shows that, when you have a powerful hand and partner has opened the bidding, you do best to make your move below the game level. Here, a cue-bid of two spades is a stand-out.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦7 ♥A9832 ♦KQJ92 ♠83
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—We could forgive almost anything except three hearts! That is not even forcing, and in support of hearts your hand revalues to 14 points. Four hearts is acceptable, but does not do justice to your hand's playing strength. We recommend a jump shift of three diamonds. Even by a passed hand that is a one-round force and shows a fit for partner's suit into the bargain.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦KQ3 ♥854 ♦AJ752 ♠93
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—We are sure that you did not make the dreadful mistake of bidding two diamonds. Since you are a passed hand, that is not forcing, and partner might pass—and we can't believe you would rather be playing in diamonds than spades. It is simply a question of whether you should bid two spades or three spades. Since partner opened in third seat and you have only three trumps, albeit very good ones, we would take the conservative course of raising only to two spades.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦KQ762 ♥8 ♦AK ♠AK542
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You are in slam territory, and should advise partner of it as soon as possible. We tend to frown on a leap to four no trump to inquire about aces—you won't find out enough to know whether or not you are going to be in a good slam. We suggest a jump shift to four clubs. That way, partner will know whether he has the right cards for slam—club shortness or the queen is worth its weight in gold; red suit secondary honors should be discounted.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦K10652 ♥3 ♦J5 ♠K8762
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
1 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—You have a mediocre hand on this auction, but it is unbalanced and one no trump is unlikely to be the best spot. Bid two clubs. After partner has shown a minimum by rebidding one no trump, a new suit by responder is no longer forcing. So you can afford to probe for a better spot with impunity—partner won't think that you hold the world.

Indirect Role

ROME (AP) — A suspected Austrian gun runner may be charged with indirectly providing the pistol used by Turkish terrorist Mehmet Ali Agca when he shot Pope John Paul II on April 13, 1981, the newspaper Corriere della Sera reported.

Horst Grillmayer, arrested in Austria on gun-smuggling charges, is suspected of selling the Browning pistol to Omar Bagci, a Turk jailed in Italy on charges of complicity in the assassination attempt.

Bagci has admitted giving Agca the weapon in Milan shortly before the pontiff was wounded in St. Peter's Square.

Some See Dairy Problems As Regional Situation

Farm Scene

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some critics of the government's dairy policy say surplus milk production — a $2-billion-a-year load for taxpayers — actually is a regional problem and should be dealt with accordingly.

In some parts of the country, goes the argument, there is not enough milk being produced and supplies have to be shipped in to meet demands. Meantime, in other regions, there is too much milk to be sold on store counters — and it is this milk which winds up in surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk.

The Agriculture Department, by law, is required to buy the surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to prop up the price of milk paid to all farmers across the United States.

Agriculture Secretary John R. Block maintains that the dairy situation is national in scope and that a solution must be found that is equitable to all dairy producers.

"Milk and dairy products move in a single national market, unlike the 1930s and '40s when markets were insulated," says Block. "There is absolutely no justification for singling out one region to blame. Just because some producers are located near large consumer centers doesn't mean they do not contribute to the problem."

Dairy production increased rapidly to record levels in recent years. A new dairy situation report by USDA's Economic Research Service takes a look at milk output on a regional basis.

"Total U.S. milk production rose 7.5 percent between 1979 and 1981, while the state with the highest output, Wisconsin, increased its production 3.9 percent," the report said. "Milk production in the second largest producing state, California, rose 13.4 percent during the same period."

Others in the top eight milk states and their percentage increases in milk output in the 1979-81 period, included: New York, 4.4 percent; Minnesota, 10; Pennsylvania, 10.9; Michigan, 5.6; Ohio, 2.8; and Iowa, 9.6.

The upper Midwest — Wisconsin, Minnesota and Michigan — account for more than one-fourth of the nation's total milk output. In terms of actual quantity, the region showed the largest gain from 1979 to 1981.

"The Northeast region accounts for about 20 percent of U.S. production," the report said. "Production in Pennsylvania ... had been increasing by about 1.5 percent a year during the 1970s. Increases were over 5 percent in 1980 and 1981."

New York, the third largest producer, had an annual increase in milk output of about 1.5 percent in the 1970s. Production rose 3.2 percent in 1980 and then gained only 1.1 percent in 1981.

"Milk production in the Corn Belt fluctuated more than in other producing areas in the 1970s," the report said. "In Ohio, production in the 1970s averaged annual increases of 0.6 percent, then increased 2.8 percent between 1979 and 1981."

California, which accounts for 10 percent of the nation's milk, increased output an average of 3.5 percent annually since 1970.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Animal health authorities in the Agriculture Department are warning hog farmers that cold weather can bring more outbreaks of pseudorabies, which is often fatal to baby pigs.

Dr. Leroy W. Schnurrenberger, a veterinarian in USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service, says that if the disease is present within a herd, it is more likely to spread when hogs are in close contact with each other.

While pseudorabies — which also is called "mad itch" or Aujeszky's disease — may not seriously affect adult swine, the adults can shed the virus which causes the disease and cause serious losses in younger animals.

"Pseudorabies is especially destructive in the farrowing house, where active outbreaks can kill all the baby pigs in a litter," Schnurrenberger said.

Swine are the only known reservoir for pseudorabies. It can also affect cattle, sheep, dogs, cats and wildlife. It does not affect humans. In cattle, the disease symptoms may resemble the furious stage of rabies, from which pseudorabies gets its name.

"Pigs under three weeks of age may lose appetite and show evidence of incoordination, depression and nervousness, with vomiting and diarrhea," he said. "The entire litter may be affected with convulsions, followed by death."

Schnurrenberger said that infected older pigs show a lack of appetite, cough, rub their noses and sneeze. They can have convulsions, reproductive problems, abortions and stillborn or mummified pigs.

Retires As Institute President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edwin M. Wheeler has retired as president of The Fertilizer Institute.

Judson Drewry, the institute's chairman of the board of directors, said in a brief announcement that Wheeler's request for early retirement had been accepted.

Drewry said that "a growing difference of opinion between the board of directors and Mr. Wheeler on the management, philosophy and style" led to Wheeler's decision.

A successor will be announced shortly, Drewry said. The institute is supported by the fertilizer industry and for many years has published monthly and annual figures to show fertilizer production and use.

Tests To Show PCB Effects

AFTON, N.C. (AP) — Blood samples taken from people living within three miles of a hazardous waste landfill in Warren County will be saved to show base levels of polychlorinated biphenyls, state health officials say.

Blood taken from each Afton resident between 12 and 65 will be broken down and the serum frozen, said Dr. Charles Smith of the Health Services Division of the state Department of Human Resources.

Smith said the samples will not be analyzed right away, but would serve as a base level if higher amounts of PCB are found in local wells.

Smith said the frozen samples will be kept in Raleigh until there "is some indication that PCB is getting out of the landfill."

The four wells around the landfill will be checked regularly, he said. The first test of the wells was conducted Thursday, and results showed less than one part per billion of PCB.

If higher levels in the wells are found, new blood samples will be taken and all sets will be sent to one of three private laboratories outside the state that have some experience in analyzing the chemical.

Two sets of air samples taken during the last 10 days at the landfill have shown only small amounts of PCB in one of the venting pipes in a pipe leading from the leachate collection system, state health director Ronald Levine said.

The PCB, illegally dumped along state roadside in 1978, has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals. State workers scraped it up last fall and placed it in the landfill over the objections of area residents.

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman
The United States Department of Agriculture is considering a number of alternative measures that it might take to help reduce the current surplus of feed grains, wheat and cotton. Much of the carry over stock, which consists of three billion bushels of corn and one billion bushels of wheat, is stored at government expense, either in the farmer-owned reserve or by direct ownership in the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The size of the farmer-owned reserve has grown beyond its intended purpose, which was to minimize the effect of year-to-year variations in production. The cost of maintaining those inventories has also grown beyond acceptable levels. Furthermore, these burdensome stocks are hanging over the market and are helping to keep farm prices low.

There is still a great concern that these programs may not be completely successful in reducing the surplus to more desirable levels. History suggests that partial acreage reduction programs do not necessarily decrease production. This past year is the most recent example.

It is probably this concern that has led USDA to consider some non-traditional methods of reducing production and lowering the level of surplus inventories. One of the more interesting proposals being considered is the "payment in kind" program. Because this is a relatively new concept, the details of implementation have not fully developed.

In general the program would provide grain rather than cash to farmers who agree to idle a portion of their 1983 acreage. This program would operate in addition to the already announced acreage program. If the program is successful, it would reduce the huge and growing stockpile of government-owned surplus commodities. According to Agriculture Secretary John Block it would also save about $1 billion in direct cash payments that otherwise would be made to farmers by 1984.

The goal of USDA is to cut corn ending stocks in 1983 by one billion bushels and wheat stocks by 500 million bushels. Most of the reduction would come out of farmer-owned reserves instead of CCC stocks. USDA is considering two options for implementing the program.

One would be for farmers to use PIK to take 50 percent of their base acreage out of production. This would minimize any negative impact the program would have on related agricultural industries such as fertilizer and farm machinery manufacturers and grain elevators.

The other option would be to allow a farmer to withhold all his acreage from production. Exercise of this option would be on a bid basis in order to prevent entire counties from shutting down production and hurting industries and businesses. Payments for whole base reductions would be based on bids submitted by farmers with USDA accepting the lowest bids first and retaining the authority to cut bidding off at any time.

New Resistant Tomato Seen

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Crossing tomatoes with wild varieties grown in Ecuador may result in a tasty plant that makes its own insecticide, scientists at North Carolina State University say.

Before the self-defending strain of tomato is perfected, however, a synthetic version of the insecticide found in the Ecuadorian tomatoes should be available as a spray to protect crops, said Dr. Jon Bordner, a chemistry professor who helped determine the structure of the substance.

Bordner said the self-protecting plant could be perfected within the next five or 10 years, while the commercial spray could be marketed within three years.

An important advantage of the self-defense plants, Bordner said, is that the insects they repel will have to turn to weeds. The diversion will help control weeds and thus lessen the need for herbicides.
