Rep. Sam Bundy Dies Of A Heart Attack

RALEIGH — Pitt County Rep. Sam Bundy died this morning after he suffered a heart attack in a restaurant at the Raleigh Hilton Inn and was rushed to a local hospital. According to Bundy's son retary, he was taken to Rex Hospital where he died. His son and his wife were reportedly at the hospital with him. Patty Wells, front desk manager at the hotel, said

Bundy "apparently had a heart attack this morning" about 8:30 a.m. and the rescue squad was notified.

Bundy was 76. Bundy was currently serving as a member of the Advisory Budget Commission, and served on a study commission for state textbooks and on the commission for the teachers and state employees retirement system. Pitt Sen. Vernon White said Bundy's death was "quite a shock to me. Sam was such a good and loyal friend and was a dedicated public servant. Pitt and Greene counties and North Carolina suffer a great loss and we all will miss him."

Rep. Ed Warren was at the hospital with Bundy's family this morning and was unavailable for comment.

Bundy has represented Pitt County in the General Assembly continuously since 1971.

Prior to his first term in the Legislature, Bundy was a school administrator for 42 years, of which the last 24 years were served in his native Farmville. The final six years of his school service was as principal of the Sam D. Bundy School, named in his honor.

Bundy has served on committees for education, agriculture, mental health, state personnel, election laws, constitutional amendments, highway safe-

Award Contracts On New Radiation, Therapy Center

RADIATION THERAPY CENTER — Construction will start in February on the $5.2 million radiation therapy center at the East Carolina University School of Medicine. The center will be located between the Brody Medical Sciences Building and Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Contracts have been awarded for construction of the $5.2 million radiation therapy center at the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The 24,000-square-foot facility will provide comprehensive cancer care for patients in eastern North Carolina. The center's staff will work closely with existing therapy units in New Bern, Kinston and Goldsboro.

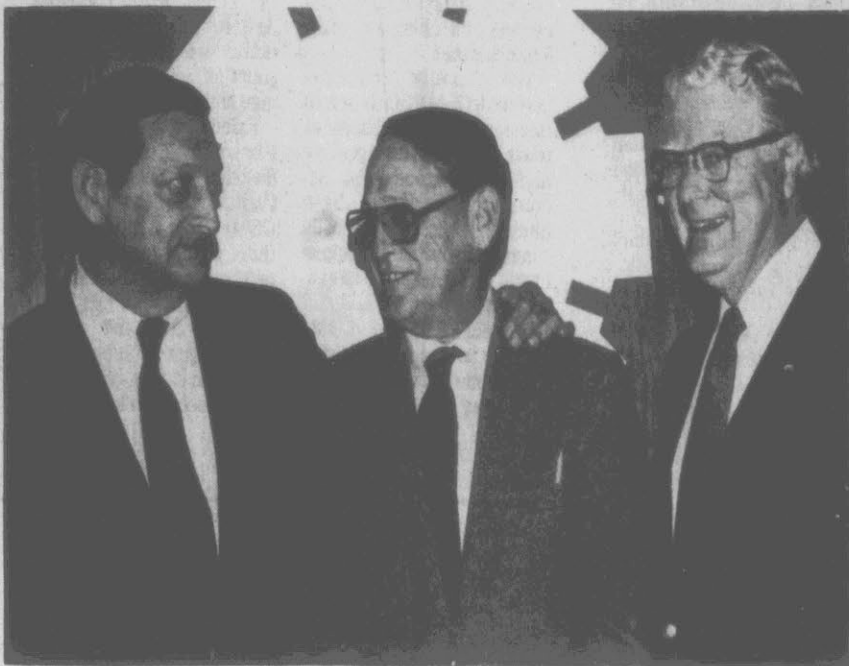

J.H. Hudson Inc. of Greenville will be the general contractor for the project. Other contracts were awarded to Braxton Britt Plumbing and Heating Co. Inc. of Wilson, Henry Baker Heating Co. Inc. of Wilson and Live Wire Electric Co. Inc. of Goldsboro.

The center will be located between the medical school's Brody Medical Sciences Building and Pitt County Memorial Hospital. Construction will begin in February and is expected to be completed in the summer of 1984.

The radiation therapy center will house two medical linear accelerators, a 6-million-volt unit and a 20-million-volt unit. Linear accelerators generate high-energy radiation used in the treatment of malignant tumors.

The unit will also include a radiation therapy simulator that provides high quality radiographic images necessary for planning radiation treatment and determining the appropriate doses. Nearly half of the center's $5.2 million budget will be used to purchase equipment.

Name Bldg. For Gaskins, Leslie

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Trustees of Pitt County Memorial Hospital voted Tuesday night to name the new administration-education building expected to be ready for use in March for county Commissioner Charles Gaskins and trustee board Chairman Henry Leslie.

The building, located on the grounds of the hospital and being built entirely with hospital funds by hospital workmen, will be known as the Gaskins-Leslie Center, board members said. The designation, proposed by board member Reid Hooper "in appreciation for the outstanding leadership of Mr. Gaskins and Mr. Leslie in the development of Pitt County Memorial Hospital," was unanimously approved by the board.

Dr. Tom Norris was introduced as the new director of pathology for the hospital. He will begin work April 1, coming here from Seattle, Wash.

A nominating committee composed of Noel Lee as chairman and Gene Paramore and Moses Moye as members was appointed. This committee will present a slate of officers at the February meeting of the board. Those nominated will be voted on at the March annual meeting, along with nominations from the floor.

Protocol for a new salvage committee was explained by hospital Vice President Fred Brown. The purpose of this committee is to more advantageously handle disposal of no-longer-needed hospital equipment.

Approval was given for the adding of $400,000 to the funded depreciation fund of the hospital, moving it from the general fund.

The board appropriated $80,000 for completion of the Gaskins-Leslie Center. About $500,000 has been spent so far on the project. Cost is expected to be about $22 a square foot, with open house slated for early March.

Architects' fees for hospital expansion were increased by $30,000.

Approval was given for the purchase of a four-channel monitoring system for the radiology department at a cost of $26,605.

It was pointed out that the hospital takes in about $164,000 a day. Patient days are down about 5,000 from those anticipated for so far this year, but ancillary services are up, a report showed. Decrease in patient days is making full-time equivalent (labor) costs higher in proportion, it was reported.

It was announced that special services and medical records departments will be moving into newly prepared space this week.

An exchange cart system to better store and transport supplies and keep inventories lower, yet sufficiently available, is being planned, Brown said. He said he plans to institute a "Program for Institutional Effectiveness Review" similar to those he has seen carried out in several hospitals. This is a way of measuring effectiveness in all areas of endeavor in the hospital, he said.

Computer specialist John Ennis reported on the hospital's "next giant step" of putting nursing stations on computer. Terminals at each nursing station will bring the number being used up from about 60 to 123, he said. Patient information will then be readily available and also easily transmittable to various departments that figure in the care of the patient. Cost savings will be realized, he said, by the quick transfer of information, which will often save in supplies, food, etc., not to mention labor. Confidentiality will be built into the system, he asserted.

Dr. Jack Wilkerson, the medical chief of staff, reported that blood transfusion and nutrition committees of the medical staff have been appointed.

Dr. William Laupus, dean of the East Carolina University School of Medicine, said the selection of medical school first year students for next year is about 60 percent complete.

New Hospital Announced

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Presbyterian Hospital officials announced plans Monday for a 150-bed general hospital in southern Mecklenburg County. The site has not yet been chosen, officials said.

The $15.8 million hospital would operate as a satellite of the main hospital and would be paid for by cash on hand a tax-exempt revenue bonds.

ty, appropriations and finance.

On three of these committees — education, state personnel and constitutional amendments — Bundy has served as committee vice chairman.

A Mason, Bundy served as Grand Orator of the Grand Lodge of Masons in North Carolina. He was a 32nd Degree Scottish Rite Mason and a Knight Commander of the Court of Honor. He is also an active member of the Farmville Kiwanis Club, and in 1945 was district governor of the Carolinas District of Kiwanis International.

A long-time member of the Farmville Christian Church, Bundy has been an elder and a member of the church board. He has served as president of the North Carolina Christian Men's Fellowship and president of the State Convention of the Disciples of Christ.

Since 1972 Bundy has served on the board of trustees of Mount Olive College. Other activities in which he has been involved include membership in the Pitt County Farm Bureau and the Pitt County Agribusiness Association.

One of the areas in which Bundy has been best known to the public is the role of after-dinner speaker. On these occasions, he has made it a practice to donate all honorariums to charity.

The body is being returned to Farmville Funeral Home today.

Drunken Driving Bill's Scrutiny Is Begun By State Legislators

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — It will take at least a month and probably longer for Gov.

Jim Hunt's proposals on drunken driving to work their way through House and Senate committees, a sponsor of the legislation says.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, made the prediction Tuesday after convening the House Judiciary III Committee, which will consider the Safe Roads Act. Lancaster is chairman of the House committee while Sen. Henson Barnes, also D-Wayne, is chairman of the Senate Judiciary III Committee considering an identical bill which Barnes sponsored.

"We're going to move as expeditiously as possible," said Lancaster. "But it will take three to four weeks just to go over the bill, not counting time that probably will be needed in areas where we'll get bogged down."

Both committees were briefed on the 72-page bill that would rewrite drunken driving laws, raise the drinking age and punish people who sell alcohol to under-aged or drunk customers. A public hearing on the package was scheduled for today in the Legislative Building.

The bill would do away with the existing driving under the influence law and related lesser offenses, replacing them with a single driving while impaired offense.

Sentencing for those convicted under the new law would be determined after a hearing in which a judge would consider the defendant's driving record and other factors.

The bill also would raise from 18 to 19 the minimum (Please turn to Page 18)

NO ANIMAL CONTROL WEEKENDS

I'd like to complain about no animal control in the city of Greenville Saturdays and Sundays. People know there's no enforcement then and they let their dogs roam. There was trash all across my yard early Saturday morning. S.W.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon, who supervises the city's Animal Control Section, confirmed that the Greenville animal control officers do not work routinely on Saturdays and Sundays. They are on call, though, he said. Anyone having a serious problem is asked to call the police department and report it. People should really look, though, he said, at whether they can handle a situation themselves with their neighbors before calling for assistance from animal control. He said his officers will not call out the animal control officers during their free time for what they deem to be less than valid reasons.

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission endorsed three related requests Tuesday night involving an amendment to the Thoroughfare Plan, the closing of part of a street and rezoning property.

Commissioners voted to recommend that the City Council approve a request to amend the Thoroughfare Plan by deleting a section of Sedgfield Drive between St. Andrews Drive and Memorial Drive.

Staff planner Skip Browder said that parts of Sedgfield Drive have been constructed and other parts have been withdrawn, resulting in a loss of continuity. Browder said the planning staff has no problem with the concept of deleting the additional section.

He said that Pinehurst would dead-end under the amended configuration and Browder said it is recommended that the board ask that a suitable turnaround be provided on Pinehurst. He said Kenneth Barnes owns a lot that would have access from Sedgfield Drive. Browder said that if the street is deleted, it would deny Barnes access to his lot from Sedgfield.

Fred Mattox, an attorney who made the request as agent for James H. Ward, said what the petitioners ultimately want is for Sedgfield Drive to be withdrawn from the plan and then abandoned. Deletion of the street segment would make the Ward property 35 feet wider and rezoning from R-15 (residential) to office and institutional in order to develop the tract would be sought.

Mattox said that with the property rezoned, the developers would be able to put in a new internal street with a cul-de-sac that would provide access for the 2.75 acres of land.

Commissioners voted to recommend the deletion of the Sedgfield segment from the plan and also that the section be closed. In addition, the board voted to recommend that the council approve the request by Ward to rezone the property, located south of section three of Sedgfield Park subdivision and Pinehurst Drive, north of the Greenville Church of God property, west of St. Andrews Drive, and east of Memorial Drive.

The board's endorsement of the requests was made with three conditions: that a suitable turnaround be provided at the end of Pinehurst; that a 20-foot sewer easement from Memorial Drive eastward to Pinehurst be provided, and that Barnes be notified relative to the proposed closing of Sedgfield and his situation regarding access.

Ward, a member of the planning board, did not participate in voting on the three requests.

In other business, the board voted to recommend that the council approve a request by Phillip L. Goodson, Joseph H. Goodson and William S. Goodson to rezone .82 acres north of 12th Street from R-6 (residential) to unoffensive industry.

The property, located in the South Evans community development area, is located south of the Walter Perkins property, west of Clark Street, and east of the William Taft Jr. and Seaboard System property.

Bobby Roberson, planning director, said that an existing fertilizer business on property abutting the Goodson tract is also zoned R-6 and he said it is recommended that the property be included in the rezoning.

What To Do On Highway At Night?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You could help a lot of females if you'd answer this question: What does a girl (or woman) do if her car breaks down on the highway and she is alone at night? My mom says I should sit in the car with the windows rolled up and the doors locked, and wait for a police car to stop.

But a friend of mine said I should get out of the car and hide while waiting for the police to come by because if a potential attacker should find you, locked doors and windows would not prevent him from carrying out his intentions. Another friend told me I should try to flag down someone for help, but how long can you wait out in the open in the winter?

I'm an attractive 19-year-old woman who lives in a small Midwestern town. Many friends live in adjacent towns. I am alone on the highway quite a lot at night, and my mom is worried.

I'm really puzzled. What's the safest thing to do should I have car trouble alone at night on a highway?

SITTING DUCK

DEAR DUCK: Turn your emergency blinkers on and/or lift your hood to indicate you have car trouble. Then sit in your car with the windows rolled up and the doors locked. If an older couple stops and offers to help, the chances are it would be safe to go with them. If a lone man stops, and he looks questionable, roll your window down just enough to talk to him, but not wide enough for him to get his hand through the window. Ask him to send the police or a tow truck to help you. I wouldn't recommend flagging anyone down or "hiding."

An ounce of prevention: Minimize your chances for "car trouble" by making sure that you have plenty of gas and that your car is in good condition. Always keep a signal flare and a flashlight in your car. And, of course, if you have a CB radio, you'll never be a sitting duck — you'll be a lucky duck!

DEAR ABBY: I have started dating an older man. (I am 22.) He has been married twice and says he wants to marry again, but good sex is important to him and he doesn't want to make the same mistake he made before, so this is his proposition:

He wants me to go away for a weekend with him so he can see how I measure up. He wants to "grade" me on my sensitivity, endurance, responsiveness, willingness to explore, etc. He is by far the most attractive man I have ever met, and I would very much like to be his wife, but this "trial weekend" he suggests turns me off.

I have not had sex with him, and although I am not a virgin — a fact he knows because I was completely honest with him — I do not want to be graded like a side of beef.

How can I let him know how I feel without losing him entirely?

PRIME

DEAR PRIME: It's my guess that if you don't take his "test" you will lose him — which is probably the best thing that could happen to you.

DEAR ABBY: I have enjoyed your column for years, but there's something that mildly irritates me: What's the virtue of ("I'll call him Joe") — or whatever name they submit?

Writer Devises Computerized Calorie-Counter

By KEITH GAVE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — For dieters who have everything but success, Harry Friedman has developed a computerized scale that counts calories — not to mention carbohydrates, protein, fat, cholesterol and salt.

The device, called COM-PUCAL, works like a grocer's digital scale, printing out calory counts instead of dollars for almost 700 foods.

Friedman, 36, a former writer and producer of television's "Hollywood Squares," for which he wrote scores of weight-trivia questions, is a veteran dieter himself, who once carried 235 pounds on his now-slim 5-foot-9 frame.

The 2-pound, battery-powered COMPUCAL stores information on all kinds of foods, including both generic and name brands. An accompanying index lists three-digit codes for foods ranging "from the ridiculous to the sublime, from caviar to Spam," Friedman said.

He demonstrated COM-PUCAL at a housewares exposition this week, putting a Hershey chocolate bar on the scale, then entering its code. He got its exact weight, both metrically and in pounds and ounces.

In addition, the computer said the candy bar contained 392 calories, 6.8 grams of protein, 26.2 grams of fat, 37.8 grams of carbohydrates, 58 milligrams of sodium and no cholesterol.

Then Friedman took a bite of the candy bar and put it back on the computer. It dropped to 326 calories.

"I wish I hadn't done that," he said with a laugh. "I didn't need those 60 calories."

The computer also measures various liquids, automatically subtracting the weight of the container. And it will keep a running daily, weekly or monthly count of calories for up to nine individuals.

Friedman, president of Personal Computer Industries in Sherman Oaks, Calif., said the idea for COMPUCAL came about three years ago as he filled a notebook with his daily intake of calories, carbohydrates and sodium from figures supplied in books and charts.

"It doesn't take long to realize that every chart is different and that portion descriptions are impossibly vague," he said.

He said his research found that about 120 million Americans exceed their ideal weight and that about a third of them are trying to do something about it. An additional 10 million are on strict diets to reduce salt intake.

"I'm not usually big on statistics, but numbers like that you can't ignore," Friedman said, noting that dieting is a $14 billion industry.

OUT TO COUNT — A computerized food scale called "Compucal" that counts calories and measures nutritional elements in food items is shown at a housewares exposition in Chicago. (AP Laserphoto)

I find this and ("not his real name") equally distracting. First of all, who knows if that's his real name, and second, who cares? Please explain.

MERT (MY REAL NAME) IN FLORIDA

DEAR MERT: Sometimes the writer does this to mask the identity of the people in his letter, otherwise it could be very embarrassing — or worse yet, libelous.

Sometimes I change the names for the same reasons, and I use "not his real name" to ensure that readers will not mistakenly think a person mentioned in one of my letters is someone they know.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LOOKING FOR MS. RIGHT: A clergyman in Worcester, Mass., told me: "In marriage, it's not so important to find the right person as it is to be the right person."

Sorority Gave

A donation to the national Beta Sigma Phi Endowment Fund was voted during a meeting of the Eta Delta chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority which met Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Patti Weisenberger.

Mrs. Jeanne Clark, program director, passed out information about the Cerebral Palsy Telethon. It was decided to reveal secret sisters in December instead of at the end of May. Therefore, for this year, secret sisters will be revealed at the upcoming meeting. Mrs. Barbara McMillon, ways and mens chairman, discussed Casino Night, which will take place Mar. 26 at the Elks Building.

The sisters of Eta Delta were surprised last Saturday when they were kidnapped by their sister sorority, Xi Gamma. at 7:30 a.m. to go to a breakfast in the home of Kaye Galloway.

ARC-PC To Set Goals

Goals and objectives for 1983 will be discussed during the regular monthly meeting of the Association for Retarded Citizens-Pitt County to be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Greenville Parks and Recreation Building on Cedar Lane.

This will be a combined board and general membership meeting.

New officers of the organization are Hester Latham, president; Dan Pickett, vice president; Sandi Hall, past president; Kay Teeter, secretary; and Bill Twine, treasurer.

Bone-Chilling Cold For Pitt's Residents Today

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

A mass of arctic air turned Pitt County into an ice cube today, pushing the mercury into the teens and making goose flesh out of anyone who had to be outside.

By 11 a.m. temperatures were still below freezing with the thermometer showing a shaky 25 degrees, according to Greenville Utilities Water Plant. A numbing low of 18 degrees was recorded by GUC at 8 a.m. — a four-degree drop from a reading of 22 at midnight.

Temperatures Tuesday were frigid also — the high reached 38 and the low plummeted to 22.

The frosty forecast has sent many folks scurrying for the thermostat and others scurrying for help. Mrs. Robert Davis of the Salvation Army said requests for fuel assistance have been numerous this week.

"We had folks in our office when we came this morning," she said. "Our office is constantly full — it's been this way since Christmas but we've seen an increase in the last couple of days."

Mrs. Davis said the organization had assisted 94 families so far in January and more than usual had requested help keeping warm.

"It's been a constant need this year because of the high cost of utilities," said Mrs. Davis. "We've had many requests for wood, oil, etc."

Greenville Utilities reported electrical usage peaked today at 130 megawatts at 7:30 a.m., the highest demand to date for the year, according to Roger Jones, distribution engineer for GUC. An average peak for a winter day, he said, is 120-123 megawatts.

Planning-Zoning...

have the owner of the fertilizer plant property notified relative to having the land rezoned along with the Goodson tract.

The preliminary plat of Greenridge subdivision, located on the east side of State Road 1204, about one-half mile south of NC 43, was approved. Browder, who said the plat calls for the development of 18 lots, mentioned that the board had previously approved the development of parcels fronting on 1204 and duplex units are being built there.

Commissioner Wallace Wooles suggested that it would be wise to annex the property now since it meets requirements for satellite annexation and the developer has indicated no opposition to being in the city.

Bryant Kittrell, who is developing the property, said he would like to have the city services and would not object to annexation but he would not want the process to delay his development.

Roberson said that normally annexation is considered when final subdivision plats are submitted.

The preliminary plat of Red Banks Executive Center, located near the southwest corner of Red Banks Road and N.C. 43, was approved with Wooles voting against the proposal. Wooles said he feels the development would place an additional traffic burden on N.C. 43 and create a safety hazard in being so close to the present intersection at Red Banks Road.

Ron Sewell, director of engineering and inspections, said there might be some traffic delays as a result of the access on N.C. 43 but he pointed out that the property owner can not be denied access to the land. Sewell said that from an engineering standpoint, he would prefer that the street serving the new executive center be tied in with Wedgewood for access other than on the main highway. Wooles cited existing traffic problems at the Red Banks Road-N.C. 43 intersection and said the new development is a matter of making a bad situation worse.

Board members voted to appoint Rick Miller, a commissioner, to the planning and zoning task force committee, to fill the unexpired term of Dick Farris. The appointment of Donnie Brewer of the engineering firm of Rivers & Associates to membership on the committee was also approved.

The expansion of the committee to possibly include representatives of area neighborhood groups was endorsed and it was decided that actual membership additions will be determined after the groups are contacted.

Wooles and Barbara Fenner volunteered to serve on a task force committee to develop a five-year annexation plan for the city. The board decided that the committee will be made up of three members with current or prior experience on the planning board.

A motion that the third member to serve with Wooles and Ms. Fenner be from outside the city limits was approved with Wooles voting against the measure. He said that it narrowed the number of choices considerably to say that the third member must reside outside the city.

The Overall Picture

Gov. Hunt has proposed that the state's private colleges and universities should not have to forward their requests for increased state grants through the UNC Board of Governors.

The proposal is seen as a move to ease tensions between the state university system and the 38 private colleges and universities which receive grants from the state for North Carolina citizens who attend.

Presently the requests are submitted to the board of governors which reviews and comments prior to sending them on to the State Legislature.

There seems to be little controversy over the proposal since UNC President William C. Friday, UNC Board Chairman John R. Jordan, Jr. and president of the N.C. Association of Independent Colleges and Universities John T.

Henley, have all said they support the change.

Since the UNC board had no real authority in reviewing the state aid increases it is understandable that the UNC administration would just as soon be rid of the problem.

It has to be remembered, however, by whoever makes the final decision that the funds for the state grants to the private colleges and universities and funds for the public universities come from the same pot. When increases are made in the private grants inevitably they are going to make inroads in the available funds going to public universities.

Whether the UNC Board of Governors or someone else makes the decision the effects on public higher education in the state are going to have to be considered when requests for increased state aid to the private institutions are approved.

M*A*S*H Rides Into Sunset

For M*A*S*H fans, and there are a lot of them, the Korean conflict will end on Feb. 28. Never mind that President Eisenhower has had many successors and that those who participated in the war have long since pursued other roles in life.

The Korean war will end when the popular television show brings it to an end. When it does, Hawkeye, Col. Potter, Maj. Houlihan, Cpl. Klinger, Father Mulcahy and Maj. Winchester will take their leave of Uijongbu as many of their predecessors have in past years.

M*A*S*H, of course won't be gone. There will be reruns forever and some of the stars may move on to new series in their present roles. But the war will be over in one mighty special, and it never will be possible to start it up again.

The Korean war owes much to M*A*S*H. It would have already been forgotten, given the Vietnam era, if it hadn't been for the show. All of us owe the show a lot for telling us about the bloody side of war and how it affects those who have to deal with it.

Afford Guns, Salaries?

The big question in defense this week is not whether the country can afford guns and butter — but whether it can afford guns and military salaries.

Nobody was more surprised than the military brass when Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger announced that he intended to cut the Pentagon budget by rescinding wage hikes for the armed forces.

Unofficial Washington, which is always suspicious when it comes to defense spending, has two theories on the Weinberger announcement.

One is that by announcing a freeze on military pay, the Defense Secretary is sure he'll be overruled by Congress, and they will restore the cuts, leaving him with the budget he originally asked for.

The other theory is that if the military feels the defense cuts are going to come out of their salaries they may take another hard look at their requests, and find ways of saving money on hardware that they swore they couldn't do without.

It wouldn't surprise me if at this very moment a group of Army, Navy and Air Force generals were meeting to go over their new weapons budgets right now.

Admiral, the Air Force is willing to give up its antisubmarine all-weather laser-directed Snail Darter Helicopter if your people will cancel your nuclear Satellite Missile Program.

"We're willing to deal providing we know what the Army is willing to cut out of its budget."

"Gentlemen, I've talked to my R & D experts and we've decided we can do without the M 112 Boomwracker."

"What the hell is that?"

because it's still on the drawing board, but it was supposed to make a helluva bang for a buck."

"Okay, if we give up these three programs, how short are we for military pay hikes?"

"I figure we need 40 billion dollars more in cuts before I can afford to send my kid to college."

"You think you have problems. I've got a $100,000 mortgage hanging over my head and I'm going to lose my house if I don't get a pay raise."

"How would you like to be a two-star general and have the bank threaten to take your car away?"

"There's still a lot of fat here we can cut out. Admiral, does your service really need 600 fighting ships?"

"Whoever said we did?"

"You did in your budget."

"Don't believe everything you read in the budget. We can do the job with $20."

"Good. Now I don't want to leave this room, but the Air Force doesn't need half the AWAC's it's asking for. We were just being redundant in case Congress balked at the price."

"The Army is willing to sacrifice its investment in its Denspack Anti-Rocket Personnel Carrier."

"I thought you told us an Armored Division couldn't move without it."

"The damn thing failed every test, but we went into production, because we couldn't admit we made a mistake."

"We've almost made enough cuts to have our salary raises restored."

"I'll offer to cancel 50 cruise missiles for the carrier fleet."

"Put me down for two B-1 bombers we don't need tomorrow."

"You can have the money we set aside for the overrun on the poison-tipped Comanche rocket."

"That should do it. Let's go see Weinberger and tell him we've overestimated our defense hardware needs, and we'll take the money for pay raises instead."

"Suppose he gets mad?"

"Why should he get mad? It's coming out of the services' pocket — not his."

Shultz Out Of Picture

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON

Secretary of State George Shultz, considered the rising strongman of the Reagan Cabinet, was so out of the picture in last week's shakeup of the arms control agency that he barely recognized the name of the man selected to replace Eugene Rostow as the nation's top disarmament official.

William P. Clark, President Reagan's national security director, handled every detail of the surprising choice of Kenneth Adelman to replace the ousted Rostow as director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). Learning of Clark's choice within the secretary of state's jurisdiction, Shultz was frantically asking around the State Department: Who in the world is this Ken Adelman?

Adelman, who held a variety of middle-level jobs in the Nixon-Ford administration, has been deputy to United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick and, like Kirkpatrick, is considered a hard-liner on arms control. Clark's choice of Adelman is meant to underscore Reagan's continued insistence on a tough negotiating stance with the Soviets.

Heckler's First Offer

The stunned surprise among prominent White House aides over the selection of ex-representative Margaret Heckler as secretary of Health and Human Services (HHS) is explained by the fact that only a few weeks earlier she was offered — and turned down — a middle-level post as congressional lobbyist for the space agency (NASA).

The NASA post was offered Heckler shortly after her defeat for re-election to Congress Nov. 2. But when Richard Schweiker unexpectedly quit as HHS secretary, White House personnel chief Helene Von Damm put forth Heckler's name. Backed by longtime Reaganite Lyn Nofziger (who is worried about the gender gap), Heckler's selection cleared in record time without normal political, congressional or health industry clearance.

Stunned by the selection, some White House aides pointed out that the last few weeks of Heckler's losing campaign consisted of trashing Reagan in a futile effort to capture the newly-drawn, heavily liberal congressional district. Presidential assistant Richard Darman defended the selection on grounds she was only doing what was necessary to win.

Howard Baker's Swan Song
Contrary to widespread speculation about a political master plan, Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker's early indication that he will not seek re-election to the Senate next year resulted from an unintentional leak.

Baker's aides had been discussing whether, some time in the future, his retirement should be announced back home in Tennessee or on the Senate floor. Consequently, they asked the Senate staff for a "precedent" on where then-Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield announced his retirement in 1976 (it was on the Senate floor). But that request leaked to alert reporters, who contacted Baker's intimates and soon flushed out his intentions.

Nevertheless, political insiders still see the fine hand of master political operative John Sears, Ronald Reagan's former political manager, trying to boost old friend Baker into the '84 presidential sweepstakes should Reagan not run. Sears denied to us that he had anything to do with it, but called Baker's early tip-off "a good idea."

Reagan's Reluctance

President Reagan is rejecting advice from his pollster and political adviser, Richard Wirthlin, that he signal his clear re-election intentions. The president argues that would make everything he does henceforth "look political."

Whether that concern over mere presidential indecision is the real reason, Wirthlin and other political advisers have not been able to break Reagan down. Not even the president's closest aides can really say whether he will or will not run.

A footnote: Despite his dressing-down from White House chief of staff James Baker, Reagan political operative Lyn Nofziger has informed associates that

Problems Of EDS

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR

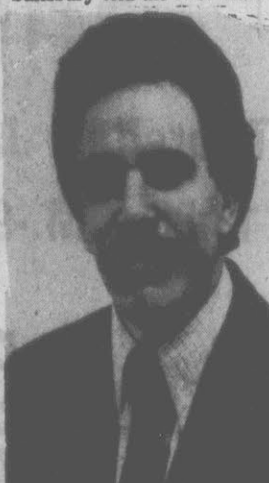

RALEIGH — A state employee was vacationing in Florida recently when his son was injured in an accident. When he took the boy to the emergency room, hospital officials refused to accept his North Carolina health insurance identification card. They knew nothing of the state-run plan which covers state workers and wouldn't accept the card as an assurance that they'd be paid.

Last October, state employees, teachers and retirees went on an enw health insurance plan. The state backs the plan with its own money. Electronic Data Systems (EDS) manages the program, having won the contract away from the better known Blue Cross-Blue Shield of North Carolina.

Down in Florida, the state employee with the injured son was experiencing one of the problems EDS has had with cranking up its operation. Members of the health plan who live in northeastern North Carolina, and who must get their medical care in Virginia, are already very much aware of the drawback. Outside of North Carolina, not many hospitals and doctors have heard of EDS and they're reluctant to file claims in lieu of payment. They want their patients to pay and seek reimbursement on their own.

Which leads to another problem EDS is encountering — payment of claims. State employees who've contacted the two state employee associations have complained that their claims have gone unpaid for 45 to 60 days — twice the average lag when Blue Cross insured state workers. A complaining state employee from Salisbury told the N.C. State

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

Government Employees Association (NCSGEA) that she was getting letters from her local hospital complaining that her account hadn't been paid.

One complaining employee reported filing a claim for an X-ray on Oct. 28. As of Dec. 20, the claim had not been paid.

With the delays, state employees have been trying to phone EDS to complain. But they can't get through — the telephones are almost always busy, both the toll-free line (1-800-662-6661) and the local Raleigh number (919-782-2097).

Arch Laney, NCSGEA executive director, says problems are to be expected with a program that covers 400,000 members. But these problems try one's patience.

Emmett Burden, executive director of the N.C. State Employee Association, says "certainly, at this time, their performance has been improved ... State employees ought to be able to go for health care with no hassles about getting into the hospital or having their claims paid."

But both Laney and Burden said fairness requires that EDS be given time to straighten out its procedures.

Ray Sparrow, chairman of the health plan's board of trustees, describes the difficulties as technical in nature — problems that will be worked out in time. He says EDS had to start from scratch collecting information from 400,000 people. Some of these members slowed the system down by not getting that information back to the company.

The phone situation, Sparrow says, is a real

To the editor:

Stuart Savage's front page story (Jan. 10) on the "Budgetary Headache" faced by our General Assembly revealed no evidence of leadership or genius amongst our lawmakers.

If new federal funds are to be generated for highway construction via the new federal gasoline tax, won't state matching funds be required?

If we keep doing such a fine job of sending more and more people to prison, won't that require more funds for their keep?

If North Carolina is to become Silicon Valley II, won't we have to improve public schools, community colleges and universities, instead of crippling them?

Hand-wringing will not produce answers or progress for our good state but that seems to be all we have in sight.

I have a suggestion. The North Carolina law makers could vigorously search out and repeal the tax breaks and loopholes they created over just the past 10 years. Most of them, no doubt, have favored everybody in the book except the middle class working citizen who is hurt most by the present depression.

I dare say such a legislative session would balance the budget and leave money to spare to re-employ some of the clerks, secretaries and other good state employees who have lost their jobs as a result of freezes and personnel cuts.

It's so easy to give tax breaks and so hard to accept that most tax breaks simply transfer the tax burden to some group which is less competent at legislative lobbying. Well, now it's time for the General Assembly to bite the bullet and undo some of their previous generosity toward vested interests.

A Deficit Means Overspending

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — If the 1983 budget deficit comes to between $150 billion and $200 billion, a reasonable estimate, it will mean overspending by every man, woman and child of $647 to $862.

If you aren't impressed, then consider that it means overspending of $1,508 to $2,010 per worker, based on a total of 99.5 million civilian employees.

Need more? It means $2,000 to $2,667 for every taxpayer in the United States, of which there are about 75 million.

Breakdowns of this sort are becoming more common today, and for a very good reason: Multibillion figures, which once mesmerized viewers, have become so familiar they tend to lose their ability to shock.

This in turn shocks many others, such as J. Peter Grace, chairman of W.R. Grace & Co., who supplied the figures used above, and probably even more so, the National Taxpayers Union. The latter has now begun mailing, in windowed envelopes, its annual "Statement of Account," informing the recipient — in red ink, of course — that his or her share is now $148,653, and growing.

"This bill's no joke," the union's chairman, Jim Davidson informs the recipient. "While you've been working to make ends meet, politicians have been wracking up debt — which you'll have to pay."

The itemized bill begins with a public debt figure of $1.29 trillion, with "Your Share" listed in red at $16,125. Accounts payable by Uncle Sam come to $167 billion, with each taxpayer's share amounting to $2,083.

Undelivered orders, $487 billion, or $6,088 per taxpayer. Loans and credit guarantees, $360 billion, or $4,500. Insurance commitments, $2.3 trillion, or $27,838. Annuity programs, $7.3 trillion, or $91,013.

There are other items too, which Davidson says contribute to an estimated $1.9 trillion. "The politicians cost you more than you spend on food, shelter, or any other necessity," he informs the recipient.

"What's worse, much of your money has been wasted," he continues, informing the taxpayer that "The U.S. Treasury has actually helped finance both sides in 14 different wars over the last 20 years."

You are, he estimates, paying interest — not principal — on the national debt at the rate of $119,821.84 per minute. No, not per taxpayer, but someday at the rate it's growing ...

He reaffirms that taxpayers are paying for waste too. "$200 million wasted every year in grants to do unnecessary research. One 'researcher' was even paid to hang around a Peruvian brothel."

Billions more are wasted on inefficient maintenance and unneeded supplies, he informs the recipient. "Navy cargo ships," he claims, "are repaired at a cost 58 times greater than similar commercial vessels."

As the late Sen. Everett Dirksen is reputed to have said, a billion here, a billion there — pretty soon it adds up to real money.

Davidson, of course, is looking for money for his organization, but he maintains he uses it wisely.

"Each dollar we've received in membership dues or contributions has helped to trim or prevent as much as $150,000 in federal spending," he asserts.

It becomes almost too much for the mind to assimilate. Broken down on a per capita basis, or on the basis of taxpayers, the figures still seem too big to understand. Can anyone imagine an investment with such a return?

What taxpayers are beginning to understand, say those who use such techniques, is that they must pay. No, not eventually, as they once thought. But right now.

How? In the form of inflated prices, unemployment, factories operating at half their capacity. In general, in a lower standard of living.

The bills, say Davidson and Grace, aren't being passed on to anyone else. And the day of reckoning is not sometime in the future. It is already here. Look about you.

A Literary Mystery

Today is the birthday of Edgar Allan Poe, a great American writer and the creator of the modern mystery story. Poe died in 1849, but every year since 1949, on the anniversary of his birth, someone has sneaked into the graveyard in Baltimore where Poe is buried and placed three roses and a bottle of brandy on his grave. No one has discovered who leaves the gifts, or why. Some think the bottle is for the author himself and that the roses are for Poe, his wife, and his mother-in-law, who are buried in adjoining plots. But no one knows whether the phantom fan will strike again tonight.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the title of the poem by Poe in which a talking bird repeats the word "Nevermore?"

Plans Introduce Boost In State's Sales Tax

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Despite a promise by Gov. Jim Hunt to fight any general tax increase, state Rep. J.P. Huskins says he plans to introduce a bill that would increase state-level sales tax from 3 percent to 4 percent.

Huskins, D-Iredell, says the tax increase could raise up to $240 million a year, which would be earmarked for schools, local governments, highways, state salaries and other operating costs.

All counties except Burke now levy an optional 1 percent additional tax.

He said a tax increase is needed for the Legislature to meet all of Hunt's funding requests, including lifting the freeze on state salaries.

"I think it is time for the General Assembly to face reality," Huskins said.

House Speaker Liston B. Ramsey says that Huskins' bill would probably receive serious consideration from the Legislature.

"It's obvious we need more money," Ramsey said. "And that would be a proper way to go. I'm not pushing it, but I'm not opposing it either."

Under Huskins' proposal, 40 percent of the new revenues would be earmarked for the General Fund, the state's chief operating budget. That would produce the $100 million needed to lift the freeze on merit pay increases for state employees and automatic step increases for teachers, Huskins said.

He said the rest of the money would be divided up as follows:

— Thirty percent, about $60 million a year, would be earmarked for county governments for capital projects. Huskins said the main use of the money would be for school construction, but it also could be used for hospitals or other local public buildings.

The money would alleviate the need for a $600 million state bond issue for local school construction that school officials have sought in recent years, Huskins said.

— Twenty percent, more than $40 million, would go to local government for water and clean air projects. Huskins said the bill would include a repeal of legislation passed by the last Legislature to submit a $300 million water bond issue to voters.

— Ten percent, more than $20 million, to provide money needed to match federal highway construction aid. The Legislature is faced with raising about $60 million a year in matching funds.

Acting Role Gets Praise

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. always claimed he was camera shy, but his professional acting debut has won rave reviews, even before the program reached the airwaves.

"He knew all his lines perfectly," said Dick Winters, publicist for Paramount Television, commenting on the congressman's 5-minute cameo appearance in the NBC comedy series "Cheers."

In the production, taped Monday, the 70-year-old O'Neill ducks into a pub in Boston and runs into Norm, the series' unemployed accountant played by George Wendt. Norm complains about a "do-nothing Congress," not realizing he's speaking to the Speaker of the House.

"Are you out of work, too?" Norm asks O'Neill.

"No, I'm in the House," O'Neill replies.

"Got the wife working, huh?" Norm replies.

Winters said O'Neill's only other such appearance was in a high school play where he played the butler.

"The man was terrific. The professionalism of the man was unbelievable," Winters said Tuesday, adding it was not yet certain which "Cheers" show would use O'Neill's skit.

'Computerland' Opens Thursday

ComputerLand, which said it is the world's largest franchise network of retail computer stores, opens its third North Carolina store in Greenville on Thursday, the firm announced.

ComputerLand of Greenville, located at Carolina East Centre, is owned and operated by Jim Clemmons and Ray Craft, both residents of the Greenville area. They said their store is the first ComputerLand facility to be opened in the eastern North Carolina area.

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony at ComputerLand Thursday at 10 a.m. with city and county officials scheduled to participate.

The company, with more than 380 stores in 24 countries, retails small computers used in offices, schools and homes. ComputerLand Corp., founded in 1976, has headquarters in Hayward, Calif.

The new Greenville store carries computer supplies, magazines and instructional materials as well as packaged software and computer systems and add-on equipment.

Regular store hours are from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday, and 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. Saturday.

Craft, who was raised in Greenville, received a degree in business administration from East Carolina University. Before joining ComputerLand, he was an outside industrial sales representative.

Clemmons was raised in Burlington and moved to Greenville in 1978 to open Stereo Village on Arlington Boulevard. He was part owner of the business for approximately three years.

Cap's Anti-Freeze
Although the administration has tried to cool the furor over President Reagan's charges about Soviet manipulation of the nuclear-freeze movement, Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has become the first official to claim a large hand by "foreign agents."

Weinberger, who seldom minces words, wrote conservative Sen. John East of North Carolina that "sufficient evidence is available to confirm the participation of foreign agents whose objective has been to instigate such a movement and conduct activities to sustain it."

While offering no new evidence about Soviet penetration of the peace movement, Weinberger in his choice of words left no doubt that the evidence is available. Inability to release such evidence is a principal reason why the administration generally has refrained from making such public accusations.

Catch-22. EDS has 40 phones but they're all busy answering problems. That means that people who need help can't get through and they're more likely to file incorrect claims. As the claim backlog is reduced, the phone problem will correct itself. As for claims made in other states, North Carolina can only hope that hospitals will call the toll-free line if they have questions about coverage.

"These are all problems we expected," Sparrow says. "It's just that the people we cover didn't expect them."

Milk Record By Producers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Last year's milk production is officially estimated at about 135.17 billion pounds, 2 percent more than the previous record of 132.6 billion pounds in 1981.
The 1982 production figures, released Monday, were in line with previous USDA forecasts.
An average of 11,019,000 milk cows were in the nation's dairy herd last year, up from 10,919,000 in 1981, the report said. Production of milk averaged a record 12,267 pounds per cow, up from 12,147 pounds in 1981.

Carolina Sales Indictments Hearing Jan. 31 Are Returned

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A hearing has been scheduled for Jan. 31 in United States Bankruptcy Court in Wilson on an application for the sale of the personal and real property of Carolina Sales Corp. to three Greenville men for $1.1 million.

The Greenville firm, a major wholesale distributor for 53 years, closed its operations in December after attempts to retain distributorships for its heavy appliance and air conditioning divisions were unsuccessful. The firm had filed last August for reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy statutes.

The offer to purchase certain assets of the business, according to the hearing notice, was tendered by P.S. Prasad, Phil Flowers and V.P. Raju to Walter L. Hinson, trustee for Carolina Sales.

The purchase offer, according to bankruptcy court documents, "is conditioned upon the assumability of the first mortgage indebtedness due and owing by Carolina Sales Corp. to Home Federal Savings and Loan Association."

The documents listed total assets of Carolina Sales as $1,765,073.56, including properties of $984,553.33 (real estate, buildings, equipment, furniture and fixtures, and vehicles) and inventories of $375,000. Liabilities listed included the long term debt to Home Federal of $652,057.

J.T. Little Jr., president of the firm that was established by his father, said in December that court-supervised liquidation could follow the closing of the business unless someone came forth "with an offer to acquire the business and its properties."

Little said the firm's operational problems began earlier in 1982 when Kelvinator Corp. dropped its wholesale distribution program in favor of direct sales. He said the Trane Co. also announced cancellation of all its distributors of air conditioning projects with their change to factory-direct sales.

"These problems, coupled with a serious cash flow problem brought on by a reduced loan arrangement with our financing source, were more than we could overcome by ourselves," Little said.

Carolina Sales employed just over 30 workers.

Indictments By Grand Jury

RALEIGH — A federal grand jury Tuesday returned indictments charging a Farmville woman with embezzling $96,000 from the First Union National Bank and Trust Co. office in Farmville, and charging a Craven County man with the armed robberies of the First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. offices in Grifton and Cove City.

Jean Harrell Webb, 46 of 112 Grimmersburg St., Farmville, was charged in the indictment with embezzling $96,000 from First Union, over a 15 year period.

She was a senior teller and had worked at the bank since 1955.

A spokesman for the U.S. Attorney's Office said if convicted, Ms. Webb could receive a maximum sentence of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine.

David Eugene Garris, 22, of New Bern, was charged with robbing the First Citizens' Grifton office on December 15, and with robbing First Citizens' Cove City branch on January 11.

Garris surrendered to officers shortly after the Cove City robbery, where he allegedly used a handgun to take an estimated $3,742 of the bank's money. In Grifton, Garris allegedly used an air rifle to take an estimated $10,394 in cash.

Garris could receive a maximum sentence of 50 years in prison and a $20,000 fine if convicted on both charges.

ECU Female Students Outnumber The Males

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The percentage of female students enrolled at East Carolina University substantially exceeds the percentage of male students enrolled for the spring semester.

The total enrollment of 12,330 on-campus students, including undergraduates, graduate students and students in the medical school represents a record enrollment for a spring semester at ECU.

Registrar J. Gilbert Moore said that, prior to beginning of registration on Jan. 5, 10,774 students had pre-registered, a slight increase over last year's spring pre-registration figure. Registration continued through Jan. 11.

Figures provided Wednesday by Diana Morris, associate director of the Office of Institutional Research at ECU, show that, of the total enrollment of 12,330 students (after drop-add had been completed), 10,592 are undergraduates, with 1538 in graduate programs, including seven doctoral candidates. Enrollment in the school of medicine is 200.

Tabulation of the figures given by Mrs. Morris reveals that female students enrolled in the spring semester, numbering 6,962, constitute 56.46 percent of the enrollment. Male students, numbering 5,368, make up 43.54 percent of the student body.

The number of caucasian students enrolled for the spring semester is 10,825, or 87.8 percent of the total figure. In the minority categories, there are 1,505 students enrolled, or 12.2 percent of the student body.

By individual groups, minority students are: black,

1,255; foreign, 78; American Indian, 69; Asiatic, 61, and Hispanic, 42.

Of the 200 students enrolled in the ECU medical school, 41 are seniors, 40 juniors, 50 sophomore and 69 freshmen.

The fall semester on-campus enrollment at ECU was 13,314.

Eye For Sky

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A telescope so sensitive it can spot a speck of dust a mile away will be lofted into space next week to search the heavens for invisible pieces of the cosmos and clues to the birth of stars.

The $80 million Infrared Astronomical Satellite will "look at the whole sky" in infrared wavelengths which, though invisible to the eye, will let astronomers peer through dense clouds of dust to spot objects too dim for Earth's biggest observatories, Gerry Neugebauer of the California Institute of Technology said Tuesday.

Neugebauer, director of the Palomar Observatory and co-chairman of the international scientific panel for the project, described the telescope as "a very classy piece of work. It's 100 to 1,000 times more sensitive than any other instrument we know about ... We can see a speck of dust something like a mile away."

The infrared telescope will be able to look into the dust-shrouded heart of the Milky Way galaxy where a black hole may be lurking, watch dust and gas collapsing into dark "protostars" — destined some day to add their glitter to the night sky — and likely will find whole new classes of objects, he said in an interview.

George Jones' Trial Delayed

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A trial for country singer George Jones on a charge of cocaine possession has been delayed until next month.

Jones had been due in court today, but a secretary at the office of the singer's Nashville, Tenn., booking agent, John McMeen, said Jones and McMeen were out of town this week on a cruise.

Also, Jones' lawyer, Tom Binkley of Nashville, said he was busy with another trial.

Plan No Action Over Teacher

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — A school board board has decided to take "no action" against a pregnant, unwed teacher, despite demands from some parents to fire her.

In November, the board received petitions to have 41-year-old Patricia Hope dismissed because she was "immoral" and was setting a poor example for her students.

Supporters spoke on her behalf last month. In a statement read at Tuesday's meeting, board president James McIntyre said, "The board intends to take no legal action regarding Ms. Hope's employment status with the school district."

Death Sentence Despite Pleas

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A man who pleaded with a jury to spare his life has been sentenced to death for slaying aerospace pioneer Courtlandt Gross and two other people in a burglary last July.

The Montgomery County jury found Roger P. Buehl, 23, guilty after 6 1/2 hours of deliberations Tuesday. After a hearing on the penalty, jurors deliberated for about an hour before returning with the death sentence.

Some Congressmen Fly Away To Sunnier Climes

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While Congress is in recess, waiting to receive President Reagan's budget at the end of this month, one of every 10 members is on a business trip to sunnier climes — from Zimbabwe to New Zealand. Taxpayers are picking up the tab for most of the foreign travel, but the total cost won't be known until the legislators return and file reports. While traveling, members of Congress are entitled to per diem payment for living expenses, based on varying State Department rates. In Brazil, one favored destination, it's $72 a day. Visitors to Greece get $48 a day.

A survey of congressional offices by The Associated Press showed that 10 senators and 50 representatives, more than 10 percent of the combined membership of the House and Senate, planned to go overseas during the January recess.

The Senate recessed one day after the 98th Congress convened on Jan. 3 and the House quit after a week. The idle time until Jan. 25 was officially designated as a "district work period" — a time when legislators often return home to meet with their constituents.

But not everyone planned to stay home. Eight congressmen led by Rep. Clement J. Zablocki, D-Wis., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, left on a 16-day tour to Brazil and several countries in Africa and Europe.

The purpose of the trip: "to assess U.S. relations with each of the countries to be visited on key political, military and economic issues."

The delegation included Reps. William S. Broomfield, R-Mich.; Larry Winn, R-Kan.; Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Calif.; Kika de la Garza, D-Texas; Thomas J. Huckerby, D-La.; Bill Nelson, D-Fla., and Bruce Vento, D-Minn.

Another extensive tour is a 17-day trip to Peru, Brazil, Chile and Argentina by Reps. Michael D. Barnes, D-Md.; Barbara Mikulski, D-Md.; and David E. Bonior, D-Mich., that is ending on the eve of Reagan's speech.

Barnes, chairman of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee, said the trip is for discussions of political, economic and foreign policy issues involving South America.

Sens. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., have been touring Latin America since Jan. 10 for 11 days of meetings with government and business leaders in Mexico, Peru, Brazil and Venezuela. Glenn also planned to visit Barbados, and Dodd's itinerary included stops in El Salvador and Panama.

Sen. Charles E. Grassley, R-Iowa, went on a 10-day trip to the Soviet Union to talk to officials there about cooperative agreements in agriculture, science and culture.

Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., went to Zambia, South Africa and Zimbabwe. She and a separate group of five congressmen took part in a conference in Zimbabwe on U.S.-African relations.

The five, Reps. Howard Wolpe, D-Mich.; William H. Gray, D-Pa.; George W. Crockett, D-Mich.; Mervyn M. Dymally, D-Calif., and Ted Weiss, D-N.Y. also visited Mozambique, Tanzania and Egypt on their 12-day tour.

Sen. Paul E. Tsongas, D-Mass., took a 13-day trip for meetings with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, King Hussein of Jordan and President Hosni Mubarak of Egypt.

Sen. Patrick J. Leahy, D-Vt., made a six-day swing through El Salvador, Honduras, Guatemala and Panama. His aides said he was investigating human rights violations in El Salvador.

A foundation financed a week-long visit to Japan by Sen. Jim Sasser, D-Tenn., and Reps. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.; Richard H. Gephardt, D-Mo.; Willis D. Gradison, R-Ohio; Lee H.

Hamilton, D-Ind.; Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill.; Norman Y. Mineta, D-Calif., and James M. Shannon, D-Mass.

A spokesman for Gradison said the trip, which included talks with Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and tours of Japanese factories, was financed by a private foundation under the U.S.-Japan Parliamentary Exchange Program.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., was seeing officials in Germany, France and Spain to discuss trade. Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., made an 11-day trip to England, Belgium and West Germany to inspect U.S. military facilities and confer with CIA officials.

Sen. Frank H. Murkowski, R-Alaska, is attending the dedication of a pipeline in Panama that is expected to facilitate shipment of crude oil from his state to refineries in Eastern states.

A group of representatives left Jan. 9 on an 11-day trip to Venezuela, Uruguay, Brazil and the Virgin Islands "to view transportation and public works projects." Members of the delegation are Reps. James J. Howard, D-N.J.; Nick Joe Rahall, D-W.Va.; Donald J. Albosta, D-Mich.; Gus Savage, D-Ill.; Gene Snyder, R-Ky., and Arlan Stangeland, R-Minn.

Fifteen congressmen met with European parliamentarians in Athens, Greece. They are Reps. Tom Tantos, D-Calif.; Sam Gibbons, D-Fla.; Larry Winn, R-Kan.; Donald J. Pease, D-Ohio; James R. Jones, D-Okla.; J.J. Pickle, D-Texas; Don Bonker, D-Wash.; John F. Seiberling, D-Ohio; Bill Frenzel, R-Minn.; William M. Jones, R-Calif.; William F. Clinger Jr., R-Pa.; E. Thomas Coleman, R-Mo.; Norman F. Lent, R-N.Y.; James J. Florio, D-N.J., and Norman D. Shumway, R-Calif.

Before the Athens meeting, most of the congressmen planned to visit Hungary, Romania, Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union to consult with U.S. Embassy officials about trade and immigration matters.

Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla., is leading a delegation studying scientific facilities in New Zealand, Australia, Japan

Critically Question Phone Rate Boost

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A request for a substantial rate increase by Citizens Telephone Co. of Brevard met with critical questioning Tuesday at a hearing before the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

The privately-owned telephone company, which serves some 11,000 customers in Transylvania County, applied for a rate increase on basic telephone services in August to generate nearly $1.5 million. It was the first rate increase sought by the company since 1975.

When the commission's public staff, which represents utility customers, countered with a proposed increase of $589,462, or 39 percent of the initial request, the telephone company responded by paring its request to $1.09 million.

Company officials said they were unsure how the reduced request would affect monthly rates. They said they wanted the rate hike for residential and business telephone service because the company can't upgrade its system with current revenues.

Residential customers pay $8 per month for basic service, while businesses pay $20.85 per month, not including telephone rental.

The company has asked the commission to approve a jump to $14.60 per month for the residential fee, and $40.15 for business.

Japan's Exports To U.S. Drop

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's trade surplus with the United States and Europe shrank slightly in 1982 as annual exports declined for the first time in 30 years, the Finance Ministry announced today.

Japanese exports for the calendar year 1982 dropped 8.7 percent, declining to $138.854 billion from $152.030 billion in 1981, the ministry said in a published report.

It was the first time since 1952 that Japan's exports have declined on an annual basis.

The announcement of the new trade figures came on the second day of Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's fence-mending trip to Washington. The United States has been pressing Japan to even out the trade balance between the two nations.

Imports in 1982 fell for the first time in seven years, declining 7.9 percent from $143.29 billion in 1981 to $131.97 billion last year, the report said. It added that Japan posted a total trade surplus of $6.884 billion dollars for 1982, down from a surplus of $8.741 billion in 1981.

Japan's trade surplus with the United States last year was $12.178 billion, down from the revised Japanese figure of $13.312 billion for the 1981 surplus, the report said.

The government report listed Japan's 1982 trade surplus with the European Economic Community as $9.516 billion, down from the revised figure of $10.341 billion in 1981.

Although Japan's trade surplus with Western Europe declined slightly in 1982, it still represents a high portion — 39 percent — of the $24.633 billion dollars in two-way trade.

In contrast, Japan's trade surplus with the United States is 20 percent of the $60.5 billion total trade between the two countries.

A Finance Ministry official, who declined to be named, said general economic sluggishness in world markets was believed responsible for declines in exports of a broad range of Japanese goods.

WALKED OFF JOBS

ROME (AP) — Italian workers walked off their jobs in several Italian cities Tuesday for up to four hours to protest tax increases and demand new three-year contracts.

Among developed nations, only France, New Zealand and England saw an increase in Japanese exports in 1982. Japanese imports from developed nations declined broadly in 1982, with only those from Italy, South Africa and France rising, according to the report.

Prince Edward To Cambridge

LONDON (AP) — Despite some controversy over his grades, Prince Edward, the youngest of Queen Elizabeth II's three sons, will enter Cambridge University this fall.

Students at the college have protested that the prince's final British high school examination grades last summer were not high enough to warrant a place at Cambridge. Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, reported he got a "C" in English Literature, a "D" in history, and a "D" in the joint subject of economics and political science.

Knox Warns Of Disaster Brink

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox, campaigning in Pitt County today in his bid for election as governor in 1984, said the state is facing a "very serious problem" and may be "on the brink of having a disaster" if the economy fails to improve.

Knox said reductions in federal spending are "beginning to hit the states now" and "will hit harder" in the future. He suggested that state government is the last to feel the effects of inflation and federal spending cuts.

"If inflation holds," and the growth in state revenue is in the 7 to 9 percent range, Knox said, there should be no problem in funding the budget Gov. Jim Hunt proposed to the General Assembly Monday. However, Knox said, if inflation goes up again to 13 or 14 percent, the state will face severe problems.

In conjunction with the budget problem, Knox said, "I think it is critical that the state start to plan its education money" more wisely.

Pointing out that 75 percent of the state budget goes for education — the 16-campus University of North Carolina System, the community colleges, private colleges and universities, public school education — Knox said "collective planning" should be done to "try to make cuts ... (to) get the most efficiency" out of money spent on schooling.

Knox, a member of the North Carolina Senate from 1971 to 1974 and chairman of the North Carolina Commission on Correctional Programs from 1974 to 1977, said more emphasis should be given to reducing the number of drug-related crimes, robberies and aggravated assaults. He also said better coordination is needed in the state's court system.

Knox said one thing that can be done to combat crime is better citizen education programs, citing programs in Charlotte that have reduced house break-ins by 8 percent.

He said people need to be aware that they should lock their cars and lock their houses as a means of deterring crime.

Knox appeared on WNCN-TV's Carolina Today program at 7:15 a.m., toured the Eastern Carolina Vocational Center and attended a noon luncheon at the Ramada Inn.

He was scheduled to speak to a group of farmers at the East Carolina Stockyard on N.C. 11 between Ayden and Grifton at 3 p.m.

During his television appearance, Knox said that, as a politician, you "learn to be patient and listen" and "don't promise too much."

"What I try to do is be very basic ... try to be innovative," he said.

Pair Charged In Break-In

Donald Renee Buzzard, 21, of Glendale Court and Mack Waddell Beaman of Route 2, Greenville, have been arrested on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a breaking at a Courtney Square apartment Jan. 12.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Buzzard and Beaman allegedly took $340 worth of jewelry and silver, and $37 in cash from the dwelling.

Cannon said that Buzzard, who was accused of selling two class rings that were taken from the apartment, was also charged with possession of stolen property.

Fast Food Stop Is Provided Birds On The Flyway

By FRANCES D'EMILIO
Associated Press Writer
TIBURON, Calif. (AP) — From a gentle hillside dressed in Indian paintbrush and sweet fennel, Rose Rodrigues deFonta Verrall could see double-crested cormorants dive for fish and northern pintails bob on Richardson Bay.

Winter after winter, tens of thousands of birds winging along the Pacific flyway have flocked to Richardson Bay, a northwestern arm of San Francisco Bay. Its tidepools teem with herring eggs, its grassy shores shelter mother birds, and their young from predators.

It is an eating paradise for birds — a fast food restaurant on the migratory freeway for feathered friends.

Rosie Verrall, who died in 1963, also could see skyscrapers crowd the San Francisco waterfront. And ringing her 11 acres, once part of a Mexican land grant, were look-alike tract homes and apartment complexes as developers turned dairyland into suburbia.

She had lived on this corner of paradise since 1886 and didn't want it to disappear after she died. In 1957, she entrusted her land to Marin County environmentalists and, four years later, the National Audubon Society gratefully accepted the Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary.

Developers wanted to level hilly Tiburon Ridge, southeast of the sanctuary, and fill in shallow Richardson Bay to make land for 2,000 houses. The society and worried Marin residents raised money and bought and leased the threatened area.

Today, the sanctuary anchors 900 acres of tideland. From October through March each year, friends of the sanctuary put a patrol boat on the bay and ask sailors and fishermen to leave the waters to the wildlife.

The refuge also is for people — lovers holding hands and giggling as they watch a pelican dive-bomb into the bay; children running through a dell of wildflowers; birders with binoculars intently scanning the sky.

Meryl Sundove, a guide, opens eyes to stunning details of nature's handiwork. She's glad to teach visitors the difference between a Rufous-sided towhee and a brown towhee.

And she's just as pleased to explain the entwining of creatures and their habitat along a marked, quarter-mile trail.

"The neat thing about the monument is it's a lot of little environments," she says as she stands beside a stream shaded by silver poplars. "It's not a national monument really, but there's an old orchard, a thicket, riparian woodland, grassland...a magnificent outdoor classroom."

A few steps and she stops at the stump of a eucalyptus that crashed in last winter's storms. She picks up the delicate bones of mice that fed an owl before it lost its home.

Next, a gentle grade leads to a tidal pool. It may look quiet, she says, but under each rock there are many living things for spotted sandpipers and black turnstones to find when the water goes out.

In the morning, Ms. Sun-dove says, some 300 long-necked cormorants fly above the beach and spy for food.

Brown pelicans are regular customers, to her relief. The pesticide DDT was banned partly because the chemical made eggshells too brittle to last until hatching. The big-billed birds have made a comeback.

It's a short, healthy climb up a hill covered in sagebrush, soap plant and bunch grass — the latter a now-rare native California greenery.

"This is why Rosie was pressured to have her land developed. What a great view of San Francisco," says Ms. Sundove, looking across the glittering, cornflower blue bay.

On a given afternoon, 20,000 to 40,000 birds sun themselves or fish the waters, she says. Some winter here, while others join seals and sea lions and feast on herring eggs spawned in shallow waters and which wash ashore. The bird population has reached 200,000.

Ms. Sundove allows visitors to look through her scope aimed at ruddy ducks and western grebes. Two white egrets wade regally at the foot of a wooden staircase leading from a cliffside house to a narrow beach.

"Birds have been using the sanctuary for eons," says Ms. Sundove, who lectures and leads schoolchildren through the refuge. "If we can help people to have a little love of nature ... that's sort of our reason for being here."

N. C. Distribution By Coors Planned

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Adolph Coors Co., the nation's 6th-largest brewer, will announce today that it will begin distributing Coors beer in North Carolina by July, a Coors spokesman said Tuesday.

The addition of North Carolina will bring to 25 the number of states where Coors distributes its beer.

Kristi McBey said in a telephone interview with the Associated Press that the expansion is a continuation of Coors 1983 expansion in the Southeast.

Peter H. Coors, division president, said in a prepared statement that "our market surveys have indicated an extremely high awareness of and demand for our product among North Carolina consumers. We are extremely excited about offering our beer product to consumers in the Southeast, particularly in North Carolina."

Ms. McBey said the beer will be sold by current distributors of Schlitz and Miller beers. It will be manufactured in Golden and sent by rail and refrigerated trucks to North Carolina distributors.

In recent months, numerous beer wholesalers throughout the state have submitted applications to the company for the rights to distribute the beer.

The company has already begun expansion into Florida, Georgia, Alabama and eastern Tennessee.

Competition among wholesalers for the rights to sell the highly popular Coors beer has been keen. After completing market surveys, the company allowed certain wholesalers to submit applications for the distributorships.

Because Coors, unlike most other beers, is not pasteurized, it requires constant refrigeration from the time it is produced until it reaches the consumer.

It's hard to imagine an insured money market account more convenient than this.

Unless it's this.

BB&T's new Money Rate Savings Account has just about everything you want in an investment.

To begin with, it pays market rates. But unlike traditional money market funds, it's insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for up to $100,000. To top it all off, it's convenient. You can withdraw your money anytime, without penalty, at any BB&T office or 24-hour teller machine. What could be more convenient than that?

BB&T's new Money Rate Checking Account also pays market rates, is insured and lets you make withdrawals any time. But with this account, you can also write checks whenever you want.

How do you decide which account is right for you? Well, a lot of investors keep their checking and savings money separate. So, like them, you might want both. And you can open both with minimum deposits of $2500 each at any BB&T office. What could be more convenient than that?

Home Brew Today Better Than Six-Pack; Cheaper

By GLENN BLACKMON
United Press International
For many people home-brewed beer conjures up a Prohibition-era image of a foul, even poisonous, drink made in the basement by those who were desperate for a drink — sort of a poor man's bathtub gin.

Since those days, home brewing methods have changed some. Brewing results have changed a lot.

Today's home brewer can make a beer far superior to the grocery store six-pack and it can cost less.

Indeed, it's hard to convey to the beer drinker weaned on the product of Milwaukee, St. Louis or Golden just how good a beer made with quality ingredients and a little patience can be. It's even harder to persuade him such a beer can be made in his own kitchen.

The first question usually asked an amateur brewer is, "How do you do it?" Home brew at its simplest involves boiling a commercially-prepared malt extract with sugar and hops, fermenting the preparation for about a week and bottling it. Three weeks later, after a final burst of fermentation has carbonated the bottled beer, it is ready to be enjoyed.

Extracting the sugars from barley is the most difficult part of the brewing process. It involves allowing the grain to sprout, kiln-drying it to stop the growth and finally soaking it in water at carefully controlled temperatures to free the different sugars. Fortunately for the home brewer that already has been done commercially.

Malt extract — usually imported from Britain, Germany or Canada — can be purchased in syrup or powder form. That is combined with sugar to provide the raw ingredient which yeast can convert into alcohol. The extract and sugar are boiled along with hops, part of the flower of a hemp plant, which adds aroma and flavor to the beer and is a natural preservative.

This mixture is called the wort. It is fermented using beer yeasts to produce the home brew.

After the wort has fermented, it is siphoned into bottles along with a small amount of additional sugar. The extra sugar ferments in the bottle, producing the carbon dioxide that makes the beer fizz. After a week of fermentation and three weeks of carbonation, the beer is ready to serve.

Home brewing is even legal, as long as the beer is not sold. Federal law limits home wine and beer production to 100 gallons a year per person, up to 200 gallons a year per household.

The ingredients for a five-gallon batch of beer will cost about $10 and will produce just over two cases of beer, which averages out to 20 cents a bottle or $1.20 a six-pack.

Home brewing is a kitchen hobby, but it does require a little equipment not usually found in the kitchen, primarily a five-gallon plastic pail which can be tightly covered to protect the wort while it is fermenting, a siphon hose for bottling, an airlock to allow carbon dioxide to escape during fermentation, bottles and a large enamel or stainless steel pot to boil to wort.

The basic equipment can be purchased for about $30, and a careful shopper can often scrape up the essentials for a lot less. To prevent off flavors in a beer though, the pail should be of food-grade plastic and have a tight-fitting lid and an aluminum pot should not be used. Also returnable beer bottles should be used since they are much less likely to break under pressure than the thin-walled throwaway variety.

Most winemaking supply shops, which are established in most cities, now stock beer-making supplies. Beer making is an increasingly popular hobby, and malt extract producers say they plan to offer soon homebrew kits in drug and grocery stores as well.

The shops can provide both ingredients and equipment, along with advice, literature and often classes in home brewing. A cheaper source for bottles is a local commercial beer distributor, who often will sell empties for the price of the deposit.

It's possible to spend a good bit more on both ingredients and equipment of course. Advanced brewers often use a second fermentation vessel to age their beer, do some of their own malt extraction and use more advanced carbonation methods. That adds to the quality of the beer and also pushes up the price.

The finished product is a drink that's hard to compare to commercial American beers. U.S. beers have almost no hop taste and lack body because rice and other fillers are used to supplement the more expensive barley. Most commercial beers require preservatives and additives and are carbonated by injecting carbon dioxide, like a soft drink.

Home brew could better be compared to the European beers which sell in the United States for well above $1 a bottle.

While there's far more taste to a home brew, compared to American brews the calories and carbohydrates are closer to those of a light beer.

The major question usually asked an amateur brewer is, "Why do you brew your own beer?" Part of the answer is the pleasure of consuming import quality beer at below domestic prices.

There also is the satisfaction a home brewer gets from consuming his own product is only part of the lure of home brewing though.

The real enjoyment comes when you pour a bottle of your own beer into a tall glass, watch a firm head form on the top of the clear golden liquid and hand it to a friend. With more than a little hesitancy he takes first a small sip and then a larger one.

"You made this beer?" he asks incredulously, with emphasis on the "you." He quickly takes another sip. You know why you're a home brewer.

Graphic Sign Is Rejected

CAPE MAY, N.J. (AP) — Not wanting to be hounded for poor taste, City Council members have rejected anti-littering signs that graphically depict a dog leaving unwanted souvenirs on public sidewalks.

Instead, the anti-defecation signs — using the universal slash-in-a-circle symbol of many traffic signs — will be auctioned off as collectors' items, the council said after Monday's vote.

City officials ordered eight of the signs, sight unseen, from a Marblehead, Mass., company. But they were a bit taken aback when the realistic signs arrived, said Mayor Arthur Blomkvist.

They questioned the propriety of posting such signs in this resort city, where families seek summer refuge in dozens of Victorian boarding houses.

The signs were intended to tell dog owners about the local "pooper-scooper" law requiring residents to clean up after their pets.

"We're very interested in trying to see that our ordinances are enforced in the city and that was one reason the sign was brought to the council's attention," Blomkvist said. "But the sign was not really done in good taste and we thought we needed a sign a little bit more dignified."

'Mines' Old Computers For The Precious Metals

By ABNER KATZMAN
Associated Press Writer
RUMPT, Netherlands
(AP) — By his own reckoning, Jan Meijers took a sledgehammer this past year to more than 50 computers that time and technology had pulled the plug on.

Computer advances that can make last year's technological marvel next year's junk have given him a new career, prospecting for precious metals in data processors headed for the scrap heap.

Deep in the silent recesses of obsolete mechanical brains — some of them weighing many tons — Meijers probes for the telltale gleam of gold, silver and platinum, as well as more exotic space-age metals such as titanium, vanadium, germanium, and palladium, all used in computers.

After 10 months in business, he calls himself either a "computer-wrecker" or "the first Dutch computer metal recycler" — depending on his mood.

The Netherlands Association of Computer Users said Meijers is the only computer salvager it knows of. Although there is a small second-hand computer market, obsolete models are usually sold as steel scrap, according to industry spokesmen.

As Meijers, 36, tells it, he had left his last job as a chemical trader for a British company in March, and was crossing the English Channel to his native Holland without a way to support his wife and three children in this southern Dutch village.

"Sitting in my underpants, with a glass of whiskey in my hand, I started to wonder 'What am I going to do?'"

Meijers recalled recently.

He realized computers could be a cheap, untapped source of valuable metals for anyone who knew where to look.

"Many of the companies which at the end of the '60s and the '70s had automated, and in the meantime have purchased a new computer, are stuck with a disposal problem," said Meijers.

"The old computer is too large. The cost of maintenance is sometimes more expensive than the purchase of a new system."

"It's got no more second-hand value, and the garbage man doesn't want it in his truck."

So Meijers started taking out ads in computer magazines and asking around for old computers.

His first find was a Gamma 55, a one-ton model from a nearby factory that took him and his wife, Beertje, five days to strip.

"There's a lot more to it than just taking it apart with one screwdriver and one hammer and a laughing face," said Meijers, whose biggest project, a 12.5-ton Philips P1175, took him 15 1/2 hours to hack apart with a steel-cutting power saw and cart down from an eighth-floor office, and another two weeks to pick it apart for its valuable metals.

Sometimes the junk computers cost nothing. The owners are just glad to get rid of what has become a white elephant for them and a storage problem as well.

Sometimes the old computers cost money. Meijers recently bid between $14,400 to $18,500 for a 30-ton IBM.

After he finds the computer, Meijers cuts it apart and hauls it home by truck to his small rented shop near his home.

Then comes the detective work to find the valuable metals, sometimes involving acid tests, according to Meijers, and even guesswork.

But, as far as computers go, Meijers knows the difference between a diode and a triode.

"There's titanium alloy in the top of the printer section," said Meijers. "Vanadium is in the revolving section that punches cards. There's germanium in the electrical diodes. There's tantalum in the condensers."

He's found gold in some transistors, and small amounts of silver and platinum.

The metals he salvages are sold to refiners in Belgium, Germany, England and France.

"You can't buy a Cadillac every month," but so far he's making a living, says Meijers.

There are more career clouds on the horizon, however.

The development of microprocessors and miniaturization means that new computers will be smaller and smaller and have less and less of the metals Meijers mines, and he says he'll be out of job five years from now.

"There will be practically no more old computers in which there are interesting amounts of rare metals."

Like the computers Meijers now wrecks, his job will soon be obsolete.

Plan Change Road's Name

KNIGHTDALE, N.C. (AP) — Community leaders say Knightdale is tired of being the butt of jokes about its Jack Ass Road.

"Let's face it, Jack Ass Road sounded fine around the turn of the century," said Wake County Commissioner John T. Massey Jr. "But it's time to have this changed, because Knightdale is wanting to be progressive."

The road was named in honor of the late mule trader Haywood Poole, who once lived and worked on the road.

"It just doesn't sound right to say that businesses, like the Knightdale Pharmacy and Poole Funeral Service, are located near the corner of U.S. Highway 64 and Jack Ass Road," Massey said.

L. Harold Poole, owner of the funeral home, said he was surprised to learn the descriptive location of his business.

"I was listening to the police scanner one day and I heard a fireman say there was a fire on Jack Ass Road near my funeral home," Poole said.

"That was a shock. Jack Ass Road is not a name that is enticing to the funeral home. In fact, when I tell people how to get here, I say turn at the red light on Rural Paved Road 2049."

Banks Compete For Auto Loans

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Automakers' continued use of low interest rates for new-car loans is making competition fierce for banks.

"We can't compete with 11.9 percent or 9.9 percent interest rates," said Ed Harrison, president of Metrolina National Bank. "And we don't want to get into a shootout."

Finance companies owned by Ford and General Motors are offering 11.9 percent rates on 1982 or 1983 cars for the first three months of 1982.

Bankers surveyed said it is too early to estimate any current or potential losses of business from the competition.

Interest rates on new car loans at most Charlotte banks range from 13 to 14.5 percent for 48 month loans.

Back To Khan

PEKING (AP) — More than 1,400 residents of Southwest China's Yunnan province have asked for official recognition as descendants of the golden horde of Genghis Khan, the Mongol who conquered China more than 750 years ago, the Xinhua news agency reports.

Xinhua said 4,000 people in Yunnan are already registered as Mongols. It said they and the new applicants are descendants of an army which Genghis Khan's grandson Kublai Khan led 3,000 miles from their homes in the grasslands of North China in 1253 to take over Yunnan.

Stock And Market Reports

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a small loss today, continuing the decline that set in Tuesday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 27 to 1,079.38 in the first half hour.

Losers held a narrow lead over gainers in the early count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Some analysts saw the pull-back as only a temporary pause after the market's sharp rally since last summer.

As the market opened this morning, the government reported that economic output declined at a 2.5 percent annual rate, after adjustment for inflation and seasonal factors, in the fourth quarter of last year.

That marked a slightly bigger drop than had been previously estimated by the Commerce Department, but analysts said the figure came as no surprise to Wall Street.

American Telephone & Telegraph led the active list in early trading, down 1/4 at 68 3/4. A 160,000-share block traded at 69.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.16 to 1,079.65.

Declines outpaced advances by about 8 to 7 on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 78.38 million shares, against 89.21 million in the previous session.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .16 to 84.63. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.04 at 371.73.

CAMPAIGNING ... Television personality Slim Short chats with Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox and his wife Frances after they appeared on WNCN-TV's Carolina Today this morning. Knox, a age for buying beer and wine.

A third provision, the so-called dram shop statute, appears to be the most controversial. It would make ABC permit holders civilly liable if they sell alcohol to under-aged or already drunk people and those customers cause accidents.

The bill would extend from six to 12 months the time a driver's license is revoked for refusing to take a Breathalyzer test. Anyone taking the test and registering a blood alcohol content of .10 percent or more would automatically lose his license for 10 days.

Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, sponsor of the Senate bill and chairman of the Senate Judiciary III Committee considering it, called it an "attitude-changing bill."

"It's designed to change people's belief that drunken driving isn't a serious matter," he said. "It's designed to get their attention."

Several legislators questioned minor points of the bill, but major discussions were delayed. Many questions concerned the dram shop statute and indicated it faces some opposition.

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, asked why the statute applies to ABC permit holders but not to those holding only brown-bagging permits or to groups or individuals providing mixers at parties.

"A country club with a brown-bagging permit sells chasers," he said. "Why shouldn't they be liable?"

But Heman Clark, state secretary of crime control and public safety and a member of the Governor's Task Force on Drunken Driving, said people who provide mixers aren't legally responsible for what people put with them.

Responding to questions, Barnes said legislative analysts were studying whether the bill would create additional judicial costs — especially by requiring sentencing hearings. The package provides no allocations to cover such costs, he said.

Californians To Get Refund IOU

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Millions of California residents expecting a state tax refund this year could receive IOUs instead, and will need a newspaper to know when payment is ready.

The state controller's office said Tuesday that registered warrants — in effect, promises to pay — will be issued unless a way is found to eliminate the state's deficit. Estimates of its size by the end of the June 30 fiscal year range from $1.5 billion to $2.4 billion.

Under the warrant system, taxpayers getting refunds would have to wait until the number of their warrant appears in a newspaper, indicating that the state treasury has the cash to pay up.

Such a system hasn't been used here since the 1930s.

HBO Planning To Foil Dishes

NEW YORK (AP) — Home Box Office, hoping to foil television viewers who have their own satellite dishes, says it will scramble its signal starting later this year to prevent unauthorized reception.

HBO spokesman Mark Harrad said Tuesday that satellite receiving equipment is readily available on the open market, and "it's not going to be any less a problem for the future."

HBO, the nation's largest pay-cable operation, serves about 11 million subscribers through 4,400 local cable systems. A side benefit to the scrambling, HBO said, will be a capacity to transmit in stereo.

Boy Scouts See Year Of Growth

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The leader of the Boy Scouts of America says hard times and a shift to "basic values" helped the organization enjoy its largest membership rise in 14 years during 1982.

Total membership in Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts and Explorers reached 3.4 million in 1982, an increase of 5.6 percent — or more than 96,000 — over the previous year.

Chief executive J.L. Tarr said he believed there was "a shift in the mood of the nation's young people back to the family and the basic values of a generation ago." He also said Scouting is "relatively inexpensive compared with ... private clubs or camps."

Sen. Rachel Gray, D-Guilford, introduced a bill that would eliminate mandatory retirement at age 70 for state and local government employees. The change would take effect in 1984.

Ms. Gray also introduced a resolution requesting that Gov. Jim Hunt "consider the appointment of elderly citizens to state boards and commissions in fair proportion to their population with the state of North Carolina."

A bill introduced by Ms. Gray would allow an income tax break for people who spend up to $3,000 a year to care for their parents.

Wolfpack Faces Streaking UNC

(Related story page 22)

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State begins the hardest part of its schedule with a game tonight against North Carolina, and the Wolfpack has to try to make it through without 3-point specialist and team leader Dereck Whittenburg.

Coach Jim Valvano's club was languishing in the lower echelon of The Associated Press college basketball poll for several weeks, but dropped out after suffering losses to Missouri and Virginia last week.

But the biggest loss the Wolfpack suffered was when Whittenburg went down with a fractured bone in his right foot in the Virginia game.

At the time of the injury, the Glenarden, Md., senior had scored 27 points in the first half against the Cavaliers. He landed on Othell Wilson's foot after taking a jumper and it didn't take him long to figure out he'd suffered a serious injury.

"I can twist my ankle, run down the court and it will be fine," Whittenburg said Tuesday. "But I said to myself 'it's that metatarsal.' I told the trainer that before I left. I was hoping it was a small fracture, but it was a pretty good break."

Whittenburg said the injury is more tolerable now because he knew the extent of the damage. It's harder for him, he added, to accept not leading the Wolfpack through the Atlantic Coast Conference wars.

"My role was to score for this team," he said. "I consider myself a better player in the bigger games. I like to get up for the big games and I've been pretty successful in the big games."

Whittenburg said he suffered a fractured metatarsal in high school and returned to action in four weeks, but he said he's not ready to force a return to the lineup this time.

"Without a doubt, I can be back before the tournament. Without a doubt means if it's fully healed," he said. "Surgery

Pirates Battle South Carolina

A Staff Report

East Carolina's Pirates seek to snap back after three straight losses tonight as they entertain the University of South Carolina in a 7:30 p.m. game in Minges Coliseum.

The Gamecocks come into the game with a 10-3 record, having downed Georgia State, 91-79, on Saturday and beaten Brooklyn College, 81-63 on Monday.

East Carolina trails in the five game series, two games to three, but has won the last two meetings of the teams, downing the Gamecocks, 86-84, in 1980 in Columbia, S.C., and taking a 56-55 win here in 1979. The 1979 game drew 6,300, within 200 of capacity. The first game between the two teams, back in 1969, saw 7,500 jam the coliseum, as the Pirates faced the then number-one ranked team in the country.

The 'Cocks come into the game riding a six-game winning streak, and having won seven of their last eight. East Carolina, in contrast, has lost its last three games — all without the services of senior forward Charles Green, sidelined with a shoulder separation.

In addition, reserve guard Kurt Vanderhorst suffered a sprained ankle Monday night in the 64-56 loss to Baptist College. Guard Bruce Peartree also did not dress for Monday's game because of an injury. Vanderhorst is expected to miss at least one week, while Peartree's status is uncertain.

Meanwhile, South Carolina is expected to be without the services of point guard Gerald Peacock, the team leader in assists. He is sidelined with a pulled ligament in an ankle and did not play in the last two games.

The Gamecocks are also without head coach Bill Foster, who suffered a heart

Chargers Lead Jaguars By One-Half Game

A-G, Farmville Clash For First

By RICK SCOPPE

Reflector Sports Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville Central and Ayden-Grifton — the only unbeaten teams left in the Eastern Carolina Conference — square off Thursday night for early-season supremacy in the ECC.

The two teams come into the game, which ends the three-day exam break, playing as well as anyone in the ECC. The Chargers have won eight in a row, the Jaguars five.

The Chargers lead the league with a 4-0 mark after a 66-59 victory over Greene Central. But, the Jaguars were even more impressive last Friday, whipping North Pitt, 57-41.

For Farmville, the win was its second over a team picked in the preseason as a contender for the ECC title. A week earlier Farmville beat SouthWest Edgecombe, 70-62.

Farmville, which plays host to A-G Thursday and then entertains conference foe C.B. Aycock Friday night, is 3-0 in the ECC, one-half game behind the Chargers. Farmville is 9-4 overall; Ayden-Grifton is 9-3.

"We're playing well right now," Farmville coach Mike Terrell said. "It'd be a big plus if at this time of year if we win Thursday night. But, there's still a lot of basketball left this year."

A-G is led by Thomas Anderson, the ECC's top scorer, with a 17.2 point average. Anderson, a 6-1 senior, is also averaging 8.6 rebounds per game, third best in the league, and is shooting an ECC-best 60% from the field.

Forward Mike Woods, a 5-11 junior, is the shooting 59% from the field, second to Anderson in the league. Senior Tyrone Gay, a 6-0, senior, is averaging 12.5 points and 6.1 rebounds a game.

A-G leads the league in shooting percentage with a 50% average.

"Ayden-Grifton is the quickest team in the conference," Terrell said. "They have got a very strong outside shooting team."

The Jaguars, however, are not without talent. Farmville has what many consider the top frontline in the ECC in forwards Terrance Pettway and Tony Hargrove and center Andrew Edwards.

Pettway leads Farmville in scoring with a 13.3 average. Edwards is second with an 11.7 average. Pettway also leads the team in rebounds with a 6.1 average and Edwards is second with 5.6 average.

"We've got to get it to our inside people," Terrell said. "With our height, we should be at an advantage. Rebounding — offensive and defensive — could be the key phase of the game."

"We've got to win the backboards. We've got to limit them to one shot and get two or three ourselves."

In other games Thursday night, North Pitt (3-1, 9-4) goes to D.H. Conley (2-0, 10-2) in a nonconference game and C.B. Aycock (0-4, 0-12) is at Greene Central (0-3, 1-11) in a meeting of the bottom two teams in the ECC.

On Friday:
In the ECC — Greene Central travels to Southern Nash (1-2, 2-9) and North Pitt journeys to SouthWest Edgecombe (1-2, 9-4).

In the Northeastern Conference — Washington (3-4, 5-8) goes to Roanoke (7-1, 9-2) and Plymouth (6-1, 10-2) is at Williamston (2-6, 3-8).

In the Big East — Greenville Rose (1-2, 2-7) plays host to Wilson Fike (1-2, 5-6).

In the Tobacco Belt Conference — Bath (3-4, 3-4) is at Jamesville (0-7, 0-10) and Bear Grass (1-6, 2-7) is at Creswell (0-7, 0-10).

Also Friday, the Greenville Christian junior varsity and girls' teams travel to Mount Calvary.

In Saturday's only high school game, Greenville Christian's varsity, girls' and jvs travel to Wake Christian.

At the core of the NCAA's latest brouhaha is a new bylaw, which, unless amended, come Aug. 1, 1986, will define those eligible to compete in athletics as freshmen.

"... A high school graduate (who) at the time of graduation from high school presented an accumulative minimum grade-point average of 2.000, based on a maximum of 4.000, in a core curriculum of at least 11 academic courses, including at least three in English, two in mathematics, two in social science and two in natural or physical science ... as well as a 700 combined score on the SAT verbal and math sections or a 15 composite score on the ACT."

That legislation was passed at the recent NCAA convention and the SAT-ACT part split the delegates into black vs. white. Predominately black universities bitterly denounced the measure as racial and even made noises about withdrawing from the NCAA.

"It's not a black-white issue," says Dennis Green, a black and head football coach at Northwestern University. "It's as much a problem in the rural South as the inner cities of the North; there's just not as much opportunity as in the suburbs of, say, Pennsylvania or California."

"I'm absolutely in favor of the rule as far as core courses and academic preparation courses. If an athlete has to meet standards to play, he'll meet them. But a 700 or 15 score is unfair as criteria for admission into a college. The minimum aptitude achievement test basically discriminates against poor people more than just blacks because the educational systems in major cities have some very serious problems. For a young man to score more than 700 or 15 coming from those inner-city areas doesn't happen very often."

Since Northwestern is one of the nation's most prestigious academic institutions, Green's viewpoint is not a selfish one based on losing potential recruits.

"It's much better for a young man to do well in the classes he takes, to do well against his fellow students," Green says. "It takes much more individual ability to achieve in college than on an aptitude test."

"Because you don't score as well (as someone else) doesn't mean you don't have the ability to achieve as much if you're given the motivation. Achievement tests are indicators of what you've learned, not what you will learn in the future. Achievement tests definitely discriminate against the poor socioeconomic areas."

"Certain people are not going to score well on achievement tests. A very small percentage in the inner city of Philadelphia or Los Angeles can score 700. You can find a good grade-point average because someone has taken good classes, but they don't have the preparation to do well on achievement tests."

"Someone with a 1,100 SAT and a 2.3 GPA is less likely to succeed in college than someone with a 600 SAT and 3.8 GPA. Someone with a 2.3 GPA is very lazy, an underachiever."

The new rule's staunchest supporter at the NCAA convention was Penn State Coach Joe Paterno, who charged that predominately white colleges have "raped" black athletes for 15 years. He accused black educators of "selling the black athlete down the river."

Says Green: "We act like athletes have to be superior to everyone else. Didn't anyone ever flunk out of Penn State or Notre Dame? The more black athletes, the lower the graduation rate. And the graduation rate is so low (at some colleges) not as a result of the high schools, but rather what happens when they get into college. We're shifting the blame. These are not football-related problems — they're education-related problems. Educators are not doing a good job."

"It's unfair to expect a kid from Natchez, Miss., or the New York inner city to score over 700. Over 2.5 GPA — yes. Algebra and geometry — yes. Two years of language — yes. History — yes. Biology — at least, for a science. Obviously, four years of English. And all that with at least a 2.0 GPA."

Thorpe's Medals Officially Returned To Family

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "My dad's life was like a Greek tragedy," says Grace Thorpe, daughter of the great American Indian athlete, Jim Thorpe. "He went from the bottom to the heights and back down to the bottom again."

On Tuesday, Thorpe's name again rose to the top, nearly 30 years after his death.

Juan Antonio Samaranch of Spain, president of the International Olympic Committee, officially returned to Thorpe's family two gold medals he had won in the 1912 Olympic Games but lost a year later when he was stripped of his amateur status.

"The 70-year-old marathon is over," said another daughter, Charlotte, 63, one of six Thorpe children who attended the ceremony.

Thorpe won gold medals in the decathlon and pentathlon at the 1912 Olympics in Stockholm, Sweden. Afterward, he was ordered to hand them back because he had admitted playing baseball for $2 a game for a resort team in 1910. That was an infringement of the strict rules of amateurism on which the Olympic Games were run.

One athlete who competed against Thorpe at Stockholm was Avery Brundage, a 24-year-old American who went on to become a powerful president of the IOC and refused to budge one inch from the Olympic code of amateurism.

Through the 20 years of Brundage's presidency, every plea for the return of Thorpe's medals to his family was futile. Brundage's successor, Lord Killanin, was no more sympathetic.

But under Killanin, and again under Samaranch, the eligibility rules were broadened by stages. The Olympic Charter does not mention amateurism any more.

Julian K. Roosevelt, elected to the IOC executive board last summer, finally persuaded the board to return the medals.

"I don't think it's possible to say why this has happened just now," said William Simon, president of the U.S. Olympic Committee. "All I know is that I am very lucky to be the president of our committee when it happened. I would like to pay tribute to President Samaranch, who had the courage, the compassion and the wisdom to see these issues as they really are."

Added Samaranch: "It is impossible to enumerate all those who protested against the decision (to take away Thorpe's medals) and made every effort in order to reverse it."

One of those who did not try to get the medals returned was Thorpe himself.

"Thousands of people have worked to get dad's medals returned, but not dad himself," said Grace Thorpe, 61, of Tahlequah, Okla. "He didn't even like speaking about them."

"I think he simply had the satisfaction of knowing he had won two Olympic events, and was content with that," she said.

The medals presented to the family were replicas of the ones Thorpe won. The replicas were cast in the same Swedish foundry where the medals were made for the 1912 Games.

"It would be unfair to ask survivors of the second place finishers to return their medals," Samaranch said.

When Thorpe's medals were taken from him in 1912 they were given to the men who finished second to him — Ferdinand Bie of Norway in the pentathlon and Hugo Wieslander of Sweden in the decathlon.

Bie's medal was among family possessions stolen three years ago and has never been traced. The other is believed to be in Stockholm, in a large chest containing hundreds of Olympic relics.

"It would be a very difficult task to find it and identify it," said Wolf Lyberg, secretary of the Swedish Sports Association.

Thorpe, born in 1888 as part of the Sac and Fox Indian tribe, was named The Associated Press Athlete of the Half Century in a poll in 1950.

Thorpe competed in several sports for Carlisle Institute in Pennsylvania and later played professional football for the New York Giants between 1915-26. In 1920, he served as president of what was to become the National Football League and was voted in the NFL's Hall of Fame in 1951.

He also played professional baseball with the New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds and Boston Braves.

'Skins' Riggins Speaks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Washington Redskins running back John Riggins ended his 18 months of media silence on Tuesday as he spoke to reporters for the first time since returning to football in 1981 following a year-long contract dispute.

The 33-year-old Riggins, whose running has almost singlehandedly carried the Redskins to the brink of the Super Bowl, held court for reporters for more than an hour.

He jolted them with a mock retirement announcement and then plunged into a wide-ranging discussion which touched among other things on the meaning of Saturday's championship game, the Dallas Cowboys and the secrets of a successful running back.

On the Cowboys, Saturday's opponent in the NFC Championship game, Riggins said: "I don't dislike the Cowboys, it's just that they and (coach) Tom Landry are so successful year in and year out you want to beat them. With Tom Landry and just the uniforms they could be tough to beat. Put some people in those uniforms and you have some problems."

A victory Saturday will put Riggins into the Super Bowl for the first time in a 12-year pro career that began after his graduation from the University of Kansas.

"Each game gets bigger and bigger, but some of these younger guys may not realize it but it may be another 10 or 12 years before they get an opportunity like this," he said.

If the Redskins are to win on Saturday, they will have to break a Cowboy streak of six straight victories between the two teams.

"We have a history against Dallas of getting behind early and have had to throw the ball. Hopefully on Saturday we can stay in the game and run the ball," Riggins said.

The announcement that Riggins would speak to reporters for the first time since June 1980 was enough to draw more than two dozen reporters and eight television crews.

Jet 'D' Told To Be 'Deaf'

NEW YORK (AP) — A veteran of past campaigns has warned the New York Jets defense to turn a deaf ear to the praise directed at them.

Specifically, Jets defensive backfield coach Bill Baird wants his secondary to be realistic.

"You've got to be realistic with defensive backs," says Baird, a defensive back on New York's 1969 Super Bowl championship team. "I tell them that their receivers are getting paid more to catch those passes, and the quarterbacks are being paid more to throw them than you are."

"The receivers and quarterbacks are supposed to make the plays. If they have a completion, don't let it bother you."

The Jets meet the Dolphins at Miami Sunday for the American Football Conference championship, the winner advancing to the Super Bowl against either Washington or Dallas.

In playoff victories over the Cincinnati Bengals and Los Angeles Raiders, the Jets secondary has four interceptions, including a 98-yarder by Darrol Ray for a touchdown against the Bengals.

Ray said Baird warned the Jets not to pay attention to Raiders owner Al Davis before last weekend's game. He said: "We can beat this team, but don't let Al Davis con you. You're going to read in the papers from Davis how great you are."

With Miami quarterback David Woodley hot, the Jets secondary will play a key role again. And, as game day approaches, Dolphins Coach Don Shula has supplanted Davis in the role of con man. Shula has been near boundless in his praise of the New York defensive backfield, making much of his vote for Jets cornerback Ken Schroy for the Pro Bowl.

However, Baird said there is an important difference between Shula and Davis. "Don Shula they know," Baird said. "They play the Dolphins twice a year."

The Jets lost both meetings to the Dolphins this season, the second 20-19 on a 47-yard field goal by Uwe von Schamman in the closing seconds.

But von Schamman could be hindered Sunday because of a hairline fracture to a small bone in his back. He sustained the injury Sunday in Miami's playoff victory over San Diego.

The Dolphin kicker admits he probably will be below par. He is expected to play, but will not know much more about his condition until he resumes kicking on Thursday.

RALEIGH — Gaylord Perry, baseball's ageless "Ancient Mariner," has been named the winner of the Raleigh Hot Stove League's 1983 Governor's Award.

Perry, who won his 300th career victory last season with the Seattle Mariners, will receive the award during a banquet at N.C. State's McKimmon Center on February 8.

The 44-year-old Williamston native has won 21 or more games five times and is the only pitcher to win the Cy Young Award in both the American and National Leagues. His first award came when he was with Cleveland in 1972 when he had a 24-16 mark, and the second came in 1978, when he was 21-6 with San Diego.

Former N.C. State hurler Mike Caldwell, a Tarboro native, will share the spotlight with Perry. Caldwell was earlier named as the Will Wynne Award winner.

Dick Jones of WITN-TV will be honored as the media award for sportscasters.

Vultures Flee As Tar Heels Find New Life

RALEIGH (AP) — Just when the vultures began to circle over North Carolina's basketball program, the third-ranked Tar Heels found new life.

"I think we're playing much better and executing much better," said Coach Dean Smith.

With three of the five starters from the national championship team, North Carolina was expected to challenge for a second title. But early season injuries to Michael Jordan, Sam Perkins, sophomore Warren Martin and two freshmen cast doubt on the beginning.

The Tar Heels limped into a season-opener which they lost to St. John's, followed by a rare second straight loss to Missouri. North Carolina then struggled through three overtimes to beat Tulane.

Next, they suffered through a 9-point first half before rallying to beat Louisiana State. After a victory over Santa Clara, North Carolina then split two games in the Oil City Classic, prompting their exit from the college basketball poll.

When all appeared lost, the Tar Heels swept through the Rainbow Classic at Honolulu, avenging their earlier loss to the Tigers in the championship contest.

At 12-3, the Tar Heels are on a nine-game tear, looking to extend that streak tonight against North Carolina State.

"It's really a situation where we're playing with more confidence. Of course, the schedule remains difficult," Smith said. "We have a long way to go yet."

One of the difficult games was eliminated last weekend when the Tar Heels visited Virginia and took a 101-95 victory, helped by a career-high 36 points from Sam Perkins.

"We shot well against Virginia. It would be nice to shoot that well all the time, especially with N.C. State coming in."

Smith said his players are finally learning how they fit into the system, something they couldn't do last November because of injuries.

"People have gotten used to playing with one another. They didn't learn that in the first six weeks simply because we had so many injuries," he said. "Now we have this experience, but it's still too early to get excited, although the win over Virginia in Charlottesville was exciting."

Smith isn't ready to start talking championships, however, especially with the Wolfpack baying at his door.

"I hope we're ready mentally," he said. "They haven't won over here in a while but they sure have come close. They always seem to give us a battle."

Charles Leaves Wake Forest

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Wake Forest University reserve forward Sylvester Charles has left the Demon Deacon basketball team and apparently will transfer to another school, an assistant coach said Tuesday.

"He just came in Sunday afternoon and told us," said assistant basketball coach Mark Friedinger. "It even surprised the players. They came to practice and were asking where Syl was."

Friedinger said Charles was apparently unhappy because of his lack of playing time.

"He expected more and with Kenny Green coming back to school and Todd May transferring in, I guess he's looking to the future," he said.

Charles was averaging 5.6 points and 3.7 rebounds per game. He scored 21 points in Wake Forest's 121-56 rout of SUNY-Buffalo earlier this season.

helped a lot because it will speed up the recovery, but I wanna be sure (a re-injury) doesn't happen anytime soon."

Following the starting five is a relatively inexperienced crew. Whittenburg's replacement, Ernie Myers, scored 27 points in a victory over Georgia Tech last weekend and Whittenburg thinks he'll improve with the added court time.

"If he learns and gets mature, he will score 30 points very easily," he said. "He definitely can score, but if he'll take what the defense gives him, he'll be a great help to the team and himself."

"If Myers gets tired or gets in foul trouble, we have all freshmen," said Whittenburg. "Terry Gannon hasn't played that much. When you've got big games, they might make mistakes. There's nothing you can say about that."

UNC Women Upend N.C. State

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — Eileen McCann scored on a layup with 32 seconds remaining to lift North Carolina to a 68-66 Atlantic Coast Conference women's basketball victory over No. 19 North Carolina State Tuesday night.

The Tar Heels led 64-55 with 4:57 left, but N.C. State scored 11 of the next 13 points, knotting the score on Priscilla Adams' driving basket with 52 seconds left.

North Carolina was led by Tresa Brown's 21 points, 12 of which came in the first half, and 11 rebounds.

Arnold Palmer

Bob Hope

Palmer Adds Lure To Classic

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
"He still is America's hero — boyish appeal and a 'let's-get-it-done' grit that everybody loves," said Bob Hope. "It's great to have Arnie back and charging again."

A rejuvenated Arnold Palmer is just what the ageless comedian needs to add extra lure to his annual Bob Hope Desert Classic in Palm Springs, Calif., this weekend, traditionally the nation's most watched golf tournament but this year bucking — although not going head-to-head — with the weekend NFL conference championship games leading to the Super Bowl.

"It was hairy for a while," Hope said by telephone from the West Coast. "Luckily both games landed in the Eastern time zones (Washington, D. C., and Miami). If the Western teams had won, we would have had to do a lot of juggling and taping."

As it stands, the Redskins and Dallas Cowboys will meet for the NFC crown in the nation's capital Saturday (12:30 p.m. EST CBS-TV) and the New York Jets and Miami Dolphins clash in Miami's Orange Bowl Sunday (1 p.m. NBC-TV), leading directly into the Hope showdown, also on NBC, 4:30 to 6.

The Desert Classic, which regularly has beaten out the Masters, Open and PGA in TV ratings, was strategically placed in the open week preceding the Super Bowl, giving it little competition, but the player strike fouled up that nice situation.

"Arnie was terrific last week," said Hope, referring to the veteran's vintage performance in the Los Angeles Open where he led with 10 holes to play. "I think he's found it again and will keep playing like that. It's a big boost for golf."

Hope is the country's funny bone who for more than half a century has been the royal court jester, equally at ease with presidential golf partners as with golf legends, boxing champions, baseball and football stars.

After his big pro-am golf event, a five-day affair, he will get busy taping his "Bob Hope's All-Star Super Bowl Party," a football lampoon, to be shown Saturday night (NBC 8-9 p.m., EST and PST).

Merlin Olsen, the massive onetime defensive tackle of the Los Angeles Rams and current star of TV's "Father Murphy" series, was in on the original idea of the show, helped produce it and is one of the actors.

It's madcap stuff. Hope and Rickles provide the one-liners. Six gargantuan pro players dress up like Shirley Temple in wigs and dresses and sing "Good Ship Lollipop." Terry Bradshaw plays a guitar and sings.

Imagine Hope and Olsen dressed like cheer leaders, trying to crash the high-kicking line of some of the NFL's prettiest.

The boundless energy of the 79-year-old Hope continues to astound us all. He never stops. He's always on the road to somewhere. But he never wears of fraternizing with athletes, industrial tycoons and political bigwigs, probably rated in that order.

Although stricken last month with an eye ailment, he teed off in the opening of his Pro-Am today with former President Ford, House Speaker Tip O'Neill and defending champion Ed Fiori.

He is at his most comfortable on the golf course. He was one of the original cast in Bing Crosby's National Pro-Am at Pebble Beach, dating back to 1937. He was a favorite partner of the late President Eisenhower. He has played with almost every big name you've read about, including Babe Ruth.

"A terrible left-handed hook," he said of the Bambino.

His own tournament, started in 1960, coincided with the rise of Arnold Palmer and golf's first exposure on TV. The sport boomed.

"Imagine 20,000 people pushing just to get a sight of Arnie, age 53, last week,"

Hope said. "The Army is still alive. Arnie hasn't got a graceful swing. He almost falls off the tee. But he's like Jack Dempsey. It's all muscle. It's like U. S. Steel."

Hope said magnetism comes in different packages.

"I played many times with Ben Hogan, a machine," he said. "As Jimmy Demaret said, he only spoke two words, 'You're away.' Sam Snead was pure poetry. Jack Nicklaus is remarkable. He's actually had two careers — one as a fat kid with a crew cut, the other as a golden-haired matinee idol."

Put Teeth Into Traffic Tickets

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 20,000 North Carolina drivers with outstanding traffic tickets will be required to get their cases resolved or pay fines owed before their driver's license will be renewed, state officials say.

Under a 1981 change in state law, traffic tickets automatically become traffic convictions if drivers fail to pay up or appear in court within 90 days of their court dates.

And the new law prohibits drivers license examiners from issuing a new license until the outstanding case is tried before a judge or cleared by paying the fine. Drivers can't change names or addresses on licenses if they have unpaid tickets. Drivers licenses must be renewed every four years in North Carolina.

"Now, sooner or later, it'll come up," says J.T. Baker, assistant director of the drivers license section of the N.C. Division of Motor Vehicles.

So far, Baker said, only about 1,000 drivers with tickets more than 90 days old have paid up since the law was changed in 1981. He said there are more than 20,000 drivers who now have outstanding tickets.

Drivers could leave a ticket unpaid for as long as four years, Baker said.

Offenses for which motorists can pay fines and avoid a court appearance include speeding less than 15 mph over the speed limit and running stop signs.

In Mecklenburg County, more than 25 percent of alleged traffic offenders fail to appear, said Chief District Judge James Lanning.

Before the "90-day failure" law went into effect, Lanning said, a warrant had to be issued for a traffic offender who failed to pay a ticket. Then a police officer had to serve the warrant.

He said the process cost about $130 for offenses that could bring in maximum fines and court costs of just over $50.

The police department had time to serve only about 10 percent of the warrants for unpaid traffic offenses, Lanning said.

Home Heating Costs Dipped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of heating American homes was $1.37 billion below normal during December because of unusually mild weather, the federal Assessment and Information Service Center reports.

Americans spent $7.328 billion to heat their homes last month, down an average 16 percent, according to the center, which is a part of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The savings amounted to about $6 per person.

The agency said per capita use of heating energy was the third lowest for any December in the last half-century.

December temperatures averaged 5 to 10 degrees Fahrenheit above normal in the section of the country east of Mississippi River, with many locations setting daily and monthly highs.

IT'S TET TIME
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam has made its annual appeal to China for a cease-fire Feb. 5-19 along their border for Tet, the Vietnamese New Year.

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union are engaged in a propaganda struggle aimed at influencing West German public opinion in that country's pre-election debate over nuclear weapons deployment.

The result is an unusual degree of public diplomacy by the superpowers in defense of their respective negotiating positions at the arms control talks in Geneva.

Normally, U.S.-Soviet arms control negotiations are carried out in private. But a new dimension has been added to the Geneva talks because of the March 6 West German elections.

Rarely a week goes by without a new Soviet gesture aimed at turning West German public opinion against the proposed NATO deployment, starting in December, of 572 Pershing II and cruise missiles in Western Europe.

Of the five NATO countries where the missiles would be deployed, none is more important than West Germany, which would receive all 108 Pershing II's slated for deployment and 96 of the 464 cruise missiles.

The Soviets have offered sharp reductions in their more than 600 SS-20 warheads targeted at Western Europe as a means of turning European — and especially West German — opinion against the NATO plan.

Under a 1979 NATO decision, the American missiles will be deployed unless there is a superpower arms reduction agreement before December. The centerpiece of the U.S. approach is President Reagan's call for a ban on all land-based intermediate range nuclear forces on the continent — the "zero option."

U.S. officials, who asked not to be identified, credit Moscow with a waging a sophisticated public relations campaign.

One official recalled that Soviet leader Yuri Andropov had long experience in "misinformation and disinformation" during his tenure with the KGB and said this has been reflected in the Soviet peace offensive.

"It would be a big prize for them to forestall the NATO deployment and not have to pay the price for it," he said.

The United States generally has been on the defensive in the propaganda struggle, often finding itself responding to Soviet initiatives and to public doubts as to whether it wants an agreement with the Soviets after all.

These doubts reached a high point last week when the director of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, Eugene Rostow, was forced from office.

To counter reports that Rostow was perceived by administration and congressional conservatives as too eager to reach an agreement with the Soviets, Reagan called a news conference last Friday to state his unwavering dedication to arms control.

This week the debate has been dominated by the visit of Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko to Bonn.

Monday night, Gromyko offered to negotiate an agreement for the mutual reduction of tactical missiles with a range of 600 miles.

He coupled that offer with a warning that if the NATO deployment proceeds as scheduled, West Germany could find itself caught up in an intensified U.S.-Soviet confrontation.

Gromyko's conciliatory side re-emerged on Tuesday with his pledge to dismantle some SS-20 missiles if NATO cancels its weapons deployment plan.

The State Department has had difficulty dealing with the Soviet peace offensive, with officials worried that Moscow's activities could obscure what to Washington is the most crucial element in the debate — that the Soviets have a "massive advantage" in the European power balance as a result of their SS-20 deployments.

Washington and Moscow have shied away from making endorsements in the West German elections but there is little doubt about where their respective sympathies lie.

Officials here leave the impression that they would prefer a victory by Chancellor Helmut Kohl and his Christian Democratic Party because it is much more united in support of the NATO deployment plan than are the Social Democrats, led by Hans-Jochen Vogel.

Vogel has traveled to both Washington and Moscow this month, and there was a decided difference in the warmth of the reception he was offered in the two capitals.

Vogel had a meeting of more than two hours with Andropov. With Reagan, he got 15 minutes.

Singapore Tries Boost Morale In Its Defenders

By KENNETH L. WHITING
Associated Press Writer
SINGAPORE (AP) — Enlisted men don't have to address officers as "sir." New recruits are no longer scalped by their first army haircut. Reservists are encouraged to use their military rank in civilian life. These and a number of other steps have been introduced as Singapore tries to improve morale and give more status to those in its armed forces. Defense Minister Goh Chok Tong wants all 2.4 million people in this prosperous island republic to be aware of the need to defend it against foreign threats. "It must be a total effort that all of us must mount on the entire population. That way we hope it will seep down to the level of the private soldier," he told a recent forum. Goh, who sometimes is listed as a possible successor to Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew, did not identify any potential external threats. In recent years Singapore, which is about the size of Chicago, has had friendly relations with its two closest neighbors, Indonesia with a population of 150 million and Malaysia with 13 million people. Other senior officials occasionally question the regional ambitions of Vietnam and the Soviet Union. Defense strategy is based on the porcupine which is small and normally friendly but is armed with dangerous quills to use against attackers. "Very few animals take on the porcupine — that's the kind of overall defense strategy we will have," Goh said.

Concern about low morale is not new in Singapore. A 1978 book titled "Youth in the Army" reported that many draftees did not understand why they were in the service and wanted only to shed their uniforms as soon as possible. The book said goldbricking was common with some desperate enough to chop off their trigger fingers to avoid active duty. To curb draft dodging, the government recently increased the bond that young men eligible for military service must put up before they go abroad to study from $23,585 to $35,377. Those who complete their 24 to 36 months of full-time service can wind up in jail if they ignore followup compulsory reserve training each year until they are 45. The army has 35,000 men plus 50,000 reservists. The navy has 3,000 personnel and the air force 4,000. Other paramilitary units include 7,500 police and a home guard of about 30,000. Women are not subject to the draft but do serve in non-combat roles. Singapore is part of a five-power defense agreement with Australia, Britain, Malaysia and New Zealand. New Zealand bases a battalion here under this pact which requires Australia, Britain and New Zealand to consult — but not necessarily make a defense commitment — if there is an external threat to Malaysia or Singapore. In addition to unmotivated draftees, defense planners have been bedeviled by the lack of suitable training space at home. Taiwan has been used for armor and artillery training and maneuvers are sometimes held in Australia and Brunei, the British-protected sultanate on Borneo.

Singapore newspapers warn the public when exercises are to be held on this crowded island. The last two lines usually say, "Blanks and thunderclashes will be used. The public is advised not to be alarmed." Officials say it is still too early to measure how much more attractive a series of moves might have made military life to young Singaporeans. —Career officers got an average 26 percent pay increase earlier this year. —The dreaded first haircut, which exposed much of the scalp and left recruits looking like prison inmates, was replaced by a modified crewcut. —Junior officers and enlisted men were given the option of addressing their superiors by rank rather than the traditional sir. Performance in the reserves is expected to be a factor in determining advancement in civilian life. Officials said formerly confidential military records would be made available to private employers and government departments to help influence their decisions about whom to promote. New career development programs have been devised for officers. The chief of the general staff, Maj. Gen. Winston Choo, 41, returned from Duke University in the United States in July with a master's degree in history. Other senior officers are studying in the United States, which this year provided $50,000 to aid professional officer training, the only military aid Singapore received from Washington. Reserve and retired officers are encouraged to use their military ranks in civilian life. They may add their ranks to business cards, letterheads and personal and official correspondence, officials said.

Enjoy Stay At Hospital

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — An outbreak of Pac-Man fever has broken out at Portland Adventist Medical Center, with patients being treated to electronic games instead of standard television. After 11 games were installed in the pediatric and orthopedic wards, "we now have kids who don't want to leave the hospital — kids who hang onto the video controls until the last minute before they're wheeled off to surgery," said spokesman Scott Roskelley. "Even visitors are enamored with the new addition," he said. "Conversations are easier when there's more to do than discuss hospital food and the weather."

At St. Vincent Hospital, the game craze is bingo, transmitted over an in-house television channel every Tuesday to all patients who want to play for half an hour. Volunteers distribute cards and donate prizes. "Enjoyment is the sole purpose of the service — a break in the tedium of a hospital stay," said Barbara Blakey, director of volunteer services.

Parton Advised Cancel Her Concerts Schedule

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Entertainer Dolly Parton has been advised to cancel all her concerts until a private security specialist finishes investigating threats on her life, says the performer's publicist.

The singer-actress, who turned 36 today, has lost an estimated $200,000 in concert revenue because four appearances have been canceled. They include concerts scheduled this weekend in New Orleans and the Texas cities of Beaumont and Fort Worth.

Last Saturday she decided not to perform as scheduled in Owensboro, Ky., because of a threat telephoned to police.

Miss Parton has hired Gavin DeBecker of Los Angeles, who specializes in investigating threats on the lives of celebrities.

DeBecker, who serves on President Reagan's advisory board on the safety of public officials, told her to cancel all concerts until his investigation is complete, said Katie Valk, Miss Parton's publicist in New York.

The three concerts this weekend were the only ones scheduled for the immediate future.

Miss Parton, who is said to draw as much as $50,000 per concert appearance, did not return a reporter's phone calls Tuesday. A report broadcast by WNGE in Nashville described her as "shaken."

"She's obviously not pleased," said Ms. Valk. "Anything further than that, I can't help you."

Ms. Valk said Miss Parton had been threatened several times but would not elaborate.

The threats against Miss Parton may be from an ex-convict who apparently believes some of her songs are about him, her road manager, Don Warden, said Monday. He said the ex-convict is married to a woman named Dolly.

The entertainer, who starred in the movies "9 to 5" and "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas," canceled the Kentucky engagement after a woman called police there and said she knew a man who "hated the group that Dolly Parton walked on" and who was going to harm her, police said.

Miss Parton, known for such songs as "Here You Come Again," "I Will Always Love You," "Jolene," "The Seeker" and "Love Is Like a Butterfly," also has increased security at her two-story home in the Nashville suburb of Brentwood, where a closed-circuit television monitoring system is used, according to published reports.

The Williamson County sheriff's office and Brentwood police said they were not involved in the extra security, but said she may have hired a private firm.

Another country music star, Tammy Wynette, was abducted in October 1978 from a Nashville shopping center by a man who beat her, then released her 80 miles away. The case was never solved and a motive was never determined.

Seven years ago, Miss Parton canceled a show in Wheeling, W.Va., after a threat against her life.

U.S. Bishops See Little Change For Nuke Stance

By JOHN PHILLIPS
Associated Press Writer
VATICAN CITY (AP) — A leading U.S. bishop says his colleagues plan no major changes in their draft anti-nuclear statement, even if European Catholic prelates do not lend support to the Americans' sweeping condemnation of nuclear warfare.

The U.S. bishops and their counterparts from Italy, France, West Germany, Scotland and England were to conclude today a closed-door conference sponsored by the Vatican at the American's request to provide an exchange of ideas on the proposed statement.

Drafted at a Catholic conference in Washington last November, the 25,000-word pastoral letter is up for formal adoption in Chicago next May.

The draft document condemns any intent or threat to use nuclear weapons and said even possessing them as a deterrent can be tolerated only if steps are being taken toward mutual disarmament by the United States and the Soviet Union.

Archbishop Joseph L. Bernardin of Chicago, a leader of the U.S. bishops' anti-nuclear effort, told a news conference here Tuesday day that the document may be amended "to affirm the right to self-defense that individuals and nations possess" and to add "more comprehensive commentary on U.S.-Soviet relations."

But he said no substantive changes could be expected and that any opposition voiced at the Vatican conference "won't significantly affect American bishops" in their strong anti-nuclear stance.

"Our position is the same as that expressed by the Holy Father (the pope) to the United Nations in June, namely that deterrence is not an end in itself but a means to an end, and that it is morally acceptable only in this qualified sense," Bernardin said.

Asked if they would change the document if the bishops from Western Europe disagreed with them, Bernardin said, "There are many factors that will be taken into consideration, but in the final analysis, the last revision is in the hands of our national hierarchy."

A Vatican official, who asked not to be named, described the public stance of French and West German bishops as more "middle-of-the-road" than the Americans' while the English and Scottish bishops have been closer to the U.S. bishops.

Italian bishops have made only one major statement on nuclear arms, expressing concern over plans to install U.S. missiles in Sicily as part of a NATO buildup.

In a sign of the importance Pope John Paul II attaches to the meeting, the Vatican assigned Secretary of State Cardinal Agostino Casaroli and its top theologian, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, as moderators.

The Vatican has made no official comment on the U.S. bishops' statement, but Bernardin has said its reaction was "basically supportive."

The U.S. bishops received a considerable volume of mail on the question of disarmament and about two-thirds supported their stance, Bernardin said.

"One third was critical but most people said they think we should be talking about these things," Bernardin said.

The American bishops, who are in the vanguard of the church's anti-nuclear movement, attack some aspects of U.S. strategic policy in their draft pastoral letter. The Reagan administration has said the document's call for a nuclear freeze, for example, damages the U.S. negotiating position at disarmament talks with the Soviet Union.

In Moscow, the Soviet Union's official Tass news agency on Tuesday accused the Reagan administration of waging a "campaign of blackmail and threats" and enlisting "right-wing circles (in) frenzied persecution" of the U.S. bishops to get them to soften their stand on nuclear arms.

The Soviet Union, which has a long history of tense relations with the Catholic church, recently lashed out at the pope for being too political in his public statements.

But this hand sealed their fate.

Using artificial methods, Sontag-Weichsel bid to a slam which looked to have virtually no play. Even if declarer guessed the location of the queen of hearts, it seems that he must lose two diamond tricks.

West led a trump, declarer won and drew a second round. He overcame his first hurdle when he successfully finessed the eight of hearts. Next, he cashed the ace of diamonds — in case a defender held a doubleton king and forgot to unblock!

Declarer crossed to the ace of hearts and discarded a diamond on the ace of clubs. A club ruff was followed by the king of hearts and the fourth heart, ruffed by declarer.

With the strip completed, declarer led a diamond and closed his eyes. But all was well. West had been dealt the only diamond combination with which he could not unblock — a doubleton king-queen.

In the other room, the contract was a more mundane four spades. Sontag's team won 13 International Match Points and the championship.

Bobby Wolff, Bob Hamman, Peter Weichsel, Alan Sontag, Ron Rubin and Mike Becker won the Trials, held in Minneapolis, to select the team to represent North America in the 1983 World Team Championship. Since both North America and Europe will have two teams in the event, the beaten finalists, Dr. George Rosenkranz, Eddie Wold, Mike Passell, Jim Jacoby, Jeff Meckstroth and Eric Rodwell will also play in the event.

After trailing by a considerable margin for most of the match, the eventual runners-up had pulled to within striking distance with a handful of deals still to go.

HUD Official Is Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department of Housing and Urban Development has suspended an assistant secretary who has been accused of using his employees for private work.

HUD Secretary Samuel R. Pierce Jr. ordered the suspension of Emanuel S. Savas, a department housing administrator, while federal investigators look into the allegations against him, HUD officials said in a statement.

The agency didn't say what actions or allegations were being investigated. But Savas has been the subject of recent published reports that he had government employees proofread and retype — on government time — portions of a book he wrote.

Savas has said he was unaware that government employees were working on his book. He said he gave the task to an aide to do on his own time, but the aide, now working in another department, has disputed the account.

Banks Fight Withholding

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Two North Carolina banks began campaigning this week against a new federal withholding tax on dividends and interest set to take effect July 1.

Wachovia Bank and Trust Company and First Union National Bank distributed letters to customers explaining the new tax law and asking customers to oppose it in letters to their congressmen.

The provision calls for a 10 percent withholding tax on interest and dividends of $150 or more annually. There are some exemptions for elderly and low-income taxpayers.

"The new legislation is a disincentive to savers and comes at a time when I really think there should be more saving," said Alva V. Fuqua, president of the N.C. Bankers Association.

"What this is is a tax increase," said James T. Brewer, executive vice president of Wachovia. "The government is taking a part of the interest and dividends that would either be used by the consumer to live on or to earn additional dollars."

Banks also will have to pay for the administrative paperwork involved with the new tax, costs Brewer said would be "substantial ... hundreds of thousands of dollars."

Award Goes To Wayne Co. Fair

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wayne County Agricultural Fair won the "Image" award, presented by the North Carolina Association of Agricultural Fairs at its annual meeting on Jan. 14-15.

The award is given to the fair that best demonstrates the balance between agriculture, exhibits and amusements. The Robeson County Fair placed second.

Bea Arthur Reappears In A New Role

By VERNON SCOTT
UPI Hollywood Reporter
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bea Arthur, who created one of television's most memorable characters in "Maude," has resurfaced after four years to star in the new "Amanda's" sitcom.

Bea has shed so many pounds she is scarcely recognized as the imposing, flutilla-like Maude. Her demeanor, silhouette and voice are different.

Once an intimidating Mrs. Fullcharge with the capacity to make any difficult situation worse, Maude seemingly has disappeared.

In her place is Amanda, a more tractable — albeit no less caustic — female who owns and runs a small resort hotel, Amanda's By The Sea, in the neighborhood of Carmel, Calif.

A widow, Amanda is beset by an incompetent staff, a long-suffering son and a daughter-in-law who would appear to prefer Cleveland to Carmel.

"Amanda's" takes to the tube Feb. 7 with Bea, of course, expected to carry the show. The actress, perhaps because she has lost her battleship profile, is uncharacteristically intimidated by the prospect.

On the basis of her performance as Maude, Bea often gave the impression of personally being equally dauntless, not to say impregnable.

But of beginning a new, untested series, Bea says, "I'm scared to death."

"I purposely stayed away from a new show from a basic human failing — fear! I felt, rightfully, that when you've been in as big a success as 'Maude' for six years, how can you equal or top it?"

"During the past four years I read scripts and treatments, hoping all of them would be terrible so I wouldn't have to commit myself to anything."

Bea settled for traveling around the country singing at tributes for musical friends, making the occasional TV guest appearance and starring in a couple of TV specials.

She spent the first couple of years following "Maude's" cancellation in 1978 tending her canyon garden and recouping her strength. These days her two sons, Dan, 18, and Matthew, 21, demand less of her time.

Once a dedicated New Yorker and theater actress, Bea has made her home in Southern California for 11 years but remains aloof from the show business social whirl.

"I've been to Beverly Hills only a couple of times in the past year," she said. "Once to a cheese shop and once to Georgio's shopping."

ADVERTISING CURBED
JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli Parliament has outlawed most cigarette advertising and ordered manufacturers to print a health warning on cigarette packs.

"Why leave the house, which I love? The weather out here is great. It's like one long vacation. I took time out for a four-month run at the Lincoln Center in Woody Allen's play, 'The Floating Light Bulb.' It was fun, but I came right back here."

Bea wisely chose to give herself and viewers a rest from the abrasive Maude. Her image in the role was so strong — and perhaps still is — that it would have been difficult for audiences to accept her in another characterization.

"Of course I expect viewers to associate me with Maude when I go back on the air next month," she said. "But what can you do? I'm still five-foot-nine and my voice is still deep. But I'm not going to cut off my legs or change my voice."

"Eventually, if 'Amanda's' succeeds, people will gradually forget about Maude."

"The new series' style and humor are very different. This comedy is more farce, like the old Lucille Ball shows. There is no cerebral humor and no social conflict in 'Amanda's.'"

"There's more comedy in the situations than in the characters and ideas. Amanda is a survivor but not a crusader like Maude was. She's softer and perhaps not as antagonistic."

At any rate, Amanda is more vulnerable than Maude, less strident and somehow more appealing in that she runs a shoestring outfit and viewers will be pulling for her to save her establishment from bankruptcy.

"I felt I was part of a big family when I did 'Maude' for Norman Lear," Bea said. "There was a protective aura about Norman and his organization."

"Now I'm out there on my own and it's truly frightening."

Psychiatrists Favor Prison For Insanity Defense

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using John Hinckley's acquittal as its springboard, the American Psychiatric Association recommended today that defendants found innocent by reason of insanity be subject to possible imprisonment after they are no longer deemed insane.

Under the proposal, a Hinckley could be made to serve the same sentence as a sane person convicted of the same crime.

Hinckley, who shot and wounded President Reagan and three others, was acquitted last June 21 and remains confined at St. Elizabeths Hospital until a judge orders that he be freed. St. Elizabeths is a federal mental institution in Washington.

In the uproar that followed the Hinckley trial, some 20 bills were discussed or introduced in Congress to restrict the insanity defense.

There was criticism of Judge Barrington D. Parker's instructions that the jury could convict Hinckley only if the government had proved he was sane at the time of the shootings. And there was widespread carping about the quality of psychiatric testimony in insanity trials.

The psychiatric group, whose manual of mental disorders was a virtual textbook at the Hinckley trial, said it was particularly concerned about insanity acquittals of people charged with violent crimes.

"The 'dangerousness' of insanity acquittees who have perpetrated violence has already been demonstrated," the APA said. "Their future dangerousness need not be inferred. It may be assumed, at least for a reasonable period of time."

The APA said modern psychiatric treatment in hospitals emphasizes reduction of mental illness symptoms and that does not necessarily mean a cure has been achieved. That means treatment often is required after a patient is released.

"There can be no public guarantee," the statement said. To protect the public, any defendant released should be carefully supervised and made to undergo out-patient treatment.

If that is not available, the APA said, the person should not be freed.

The association praised a program in Oregon where a panel — similar to a parole board — has control "as long as the criminal sentence that might have been awarded were the person to have been found guilty of the act."

The APA recommended that "when psychiatric treatment within a hospital setting has obtained the maximal treatment benefit possible, but the board believes that for other reasons confinement is still necessary, the insanity acquittee should be transferred to the most appropriate non-hospital facility."

The association "speaking as citizens as well as psychiatrists" believes that the insanity defense should be retained in some form. But it counseled against widely advocated verdicts of "guilty but mentally ill," now being tested in nine states.

"The idea of moral blameworthiness would be diminished within the law," the APA said. "This does not seem right." It called such a jury verdict "an awkward device" for decisions concerning a person's need for treatment.

In the Hinckley trial, the jury was confronted with an array of diagnoses by psychiatrists that he suffered from personality disorders of varying degrees. Without referring to that case, the APA said that "persons with antisocial personality disorders should ... be held accountable for their behavior."

Mental disorders potentially leading to acquittal must be serious, the APA said, "of the severity, if not always of the quality, of conditions that psychiatrists diagnose as psychoses."

The association said it is "exceedingly reluctant" to take a position on whether the prosecution must prove a defendant sane when the insanity defense is raised or whether he should have to prove himself to be insane for acquittal.

But it expressed no qualms about laws restricting psychiatric testimony about whether a defendant was sane, insane, or responsible for the act charged.

"We adopt this position because it is clear that psychiatrists are experts in medicine, not the law," the APA said. "Determining whether a criminal defendant was legally insane is a matter for legal fact-finders, not for experts."

Publishers Okay Reagan Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of publishers of 55 large U.S. newspapers said in a survey that President Reagan has done a good or excellent job in his first two years in office.

Nearly eight out of 10 of the publishers said they expect Reagan to be renominated by the Republican Party for a second term in 1984, according to the survey conducted by the Washington bureau of RKO General Broadcasting.

The results of the survey are based on responses from 47 publishers to a questionnaire mailed last month to 96 publishers. The 47 publishers oversee a total of 55 newspapers with circulation over 100,000 daily.

Four publishers said Reagan has done an excellent job, while 20 said he has done a good job. One publisher rated his work "good to excellent."

Three publishers gave Reagan "fair to good" marks.

Fourteen said Reagan has done a fair job and four said

Reagan has done a poor job.

Eighty-one percent of the publishers said they expect Reagan to be renominated in 1984, and the remainder do not expect him to run.

Reagan's greatest strength, according to the publishers, is his ability to communicate and persuade others to go along with his views.

The weakness of the Republican incumbent most often mentioned by the publishers in the survey was his "lack of understanding" of various issues and an inability to compromise.

PRISON SENTENCE
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Maj. Gen. Peter M. Kariuki, commander of the air force when it tried to overthrow President Daniel Arap Maj last Aug. 1, was sentenced to four years in prison Tuesday for failing to prevent and suppress the uprising.

Most Sanitariums Closed; Tuberculosis Remains

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Most of the sanitariums were shut down years ago. The mobile X-ray units no longer roll through dilapidated neighborhoods, and school children no longer fidget in anticipation of skin tests.

But the disease — tuberculosis — hasn't disappeared.

"It is particularly problematic for us," says Dr. Gerald Burke, chairman of the department of medicine at Cook County Hospital. "We have to see either the poor who can't afford the medications or the prototypical skid row bum, who as soon as he leaves the hospital, stops taking the medications."

Cook County Hospital treated twice as many tuberculosis cases in 1982 than in 1981 — up to 600 from 300, according to Burke.

Health officials nationwide reported 27,373 new cases of tuberculosis in 1981 — a slight decrease from 1980. But authorities say the figure can be misleading because it fails to reflect a great number of victims who have had the disease for many months or years.

And it also fails to show the gains TB is making in some metropolitan areas. In Los Angeles and San Francisco, new cases rose 18 percent in 1981, and Miami had the highest TB rate in the nation — 87 cases per 100,000 people.

"I think there has been a return of interest in tuberculosis as a problem," says Dr. Kenneth E. Powell of the TB control division at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. "Everybody had thought TB was simply going to disappear. It may disappear, but if it does, we're going to have to work at it."

New treatment methods have done more to promote the perception that tuberculosis has disappeared than an actual reduction in the number of cases, Powell says.

"In the old days, people were sent to sanitariums for months at a time, but now they are usually treated in a hospital for only a few weeks, and many don't have to enter a hospital at all," he said.

Patients don't spread the disease as long as they continue medication, he says. When TB is spread, it almost always goes by air. If a person who has the disease coughs, bacteria are dispersed in water droplets which evaporate, each leaving a "droplet nucleus" which can be inhaled by someone nearby.

If the nuclei reach the smallest air sacs of the lungs, they lodge there. The body builds a wall of cells and fibers around the invading bacteria to confine them, forming a small, hard lump called a "tubercle."

As the bacteria grow in the lung, they invade new cells and the area of lung tissue they occupy becomes larger. The tissue cells die, and the whole area becomes soft. Finally, the soft tissues liquefy and the liquid material is coughed up, leaving a small cavity in the lung.

Formerly incurable, the disease was once so widespread it was called the white plague. In 1918, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, 118,000 people died in the United States of TB. But medical advances in the 1940s led to three effective drugs — isoniazid, streptomycin and paraaminosalicylic acid — used alone or in combination to effect a complete cure.

"TB no longer has the destructive impact that it used to have. People aren't sent away from their homes. In many cases, a person never has to be put in the hospital at all," Powell says.

Yet tuberculosis killed 1,780 people in the United States in 1981. And at best, successful treatment requires 18 months.

From 1968 through 1978, the number of new TB cases in the United States declined an average of 5.6 percent annually. But from 1979 through 1981, the decline slowed to 1.4 percent.

"It looks like (during 1982) we may have resumed our previous rate of decline, but it's really too early to say," according to Powell.

"A lot of the cases in 1979 and 1980 were attributable to the Indochinese refugees," says Powell. "But in 1981, that no longer seemed to account for the failure of the rate to decline."

Higher incidences of the disease seem to move around, Powell says. In California, the incidence increased in 1979, 1980 and 1981. In Kansas and South Carolina, the incidence rose for both 1980 and 1981. Twenty-one states had a higher rate in 1981 than in the previous year.

Part of the problem, says

Burke, is the resistance to medication some tuberculosis bacteria develop when treatment is discontinued after a short period of time.

"And it's not just resistance to one drug, it's to a number of drugs," and that requires long-term hospital stays," Burke says.

"A lot of people think it's a disease of the past and are surprised to learn that it's still around," says Dr. Laurence Farer, director of the CDC's division of TB control. "It hasn't disappeared and it isn't going to disappear for many, many years. It's going to be a long, hard battle."

Slow Start To Any Fire

LLOYD, Fla. (AP) — This north Florida community may have the slowest fire truck in the nation — at least when it's going out the door.

The vehicle is kept in the freight room of an old train depot, and the entrance leaves barely an inch to spare.

"When the alarm goes off, I have to creep out of the station," said John Nixon, one of the 12 members of the volunteer fire department. "I spend a lot of time just trying not to scrape the truck on the door."

He added, "It slows down response time."

"The first thing we do is train a new guy to get out the door with the truck," said Fire Chief Tim Barfield.

The squeeze is so tight that the mirrors have to be swung out of the way before the 20-year-old vehicle can come out.

"And the sides of the truck are all scratched up," said Nixon.

The firemen are trying to raise $5,000 to build a new station with donated labor — making room for the department's second truck, a 1,000-gallon pumper that sits in the fire chief's back yard.

The non-profit organization that owns the station wants to keep it with no alternatives. "They said we could keep the truck here until we found a better place," said the chief. "I think our time may be about up here."

Air Traffic Up Slightly In '82

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air traffic was up only slightly in 1982 over the depressed previous year despite price wars on many flights, the airline industry says.

The Air Transport Association said revenue passenger miles, the number of miles flown times the number of paying passengers, increased 4.8 percent on domestic flights last year, including a 5.3 percent increase in December.

But international traffic declined 5.2 percent, including an 8.7 percent drop in December, bringing the overall yearly increase to 2.9 percent.

Look Ahead To Passion Play In '84

By WERNER ZWICK
Associated Press Writer
OBERAMMERGAU, West Germany (AP) — Because of a vow their ancestors took 350 years ago, the men and women of this Bavarian village are once again letting their hair grow. The men have set side their shaving gear.

It's the first step for the 1984 Passion Play, usually a once-a-decade spectacular involving all 4,800 villagers and some of their livestock.

But next year's play is special, marking the 350th anniversary of the city's deliverance from the plague.

Mayor Frank Hofmann launched preparations Jan. 1 issuing the traditional "Hair and Beard Ordinance," forbidding men to shave and both men and women to cut their hair.

"Twenty years ago people would point their fingers at us if we went to Munich or another town looking like this," said Hofmann, sporting a half-inch stubble. "But with today's longer hair styles things have changed."

The next step in the process will be cast selection, scheduled to begin May 14. About 1,600 men and 300 women will be chosen by village selection committees. All roles are filled by villagers with the only outside help coming from a speech therapist.

The play will begin May 20, 1984. It is expected to run 100 days with eight-hour shows beginning at 9 a.m. five times a week.

Performances are held in a 5,000-seat auditorium.

The story of the play goes back to the time of the 30 Years War. European powers of the day were skirmishing across Germany, bringing destruction, famine and plague.

According to the town records, the plague hit Oberammergau in 1632.

In a few months 84 villagers were known to have died from it. There may have been more but there is no record because two priests who kept the village's "Death Book," the Revs. Primus Christeiner and Marcellus Ffiga, were themselves fatal victims.

The villagers are said to have sought relief by promising God that they would stage an elaborate play reenacting the life and death of Christ if Oberammergau was saved.

"From that day on, the Black Death (plague) did not claim a single life in Oberammergau," a 1633 account says.

In 1634 villagers made good on their promise and put on the Passion Play in the cemetery.

It was postponed in 1770 and 1810 and during the two world wars but otherwise has been held at least at the beginning of each decade, growing into an elaborate and world-famous event.

The play was controversial as far back as the 1700s, when Roman Catholic Church authorities insisted on changing the script to reduce the part played by the Devil and various demons.

Adolf Hitler saw the 300th anniversary play in 1934, which helped give rise to later charges it was anti-Semitic.

In 1970 American Jewish organizations called for a boycott, an effort that left many empty seats during performances that year.

The villagers eliminated passages considered objectionable and there were no new protests when a revised script was presented to American Jewish organizations.

All seats were filled in 1980, the last performance, when about 500,000 people saw the play. The village said it turned down 100,000 requests for tickets.

The money earned from the play goes to the village and is its major source of revenue.

The 1980 performances grossed the equivalent of about $11.3 million but Mayor Hofmann said he still doesn't know what the profit will be because of a tax dispute with the state.

But about $5 million has been allocated for an indoor swimming pool with a wave maker. Another part of the revenue is going toward a new $5.8 million town hall, which is under construction.

The Prized Palomino Is Costly Hobby

By PAT REMICK
MINERAL WELLS, Texas (UPI) — Roy Rogers' now-departed Trigger was probably the most famous of 45,000 palominos registered in this small Texas town.

For 41 years, the Palomino Horse Breeders Association of America has been a national registry for the palomino, which has been in high demand for thousands of years simply because of its color.

"The ideal color is that of a newly minted United States gold coin," said Robert Shiflet, executive director of the association. "If you have a gold ring, you could lay it up on the horse's back and it should get lost in the color."

"Of course, it has a high sheen when shampooed so it should look metallic. But in all honesty, people watching horse shows seem to prefer the darker color because there's a lot more contrast," he said.

Former Texas Gov. John Connally is a member of the association that claims members in every state as well as Canada and Europe. So is former Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox. President Reagan, Roy Rogers and Dale Evans are among its honorary members.

Shiflet said the average member has three palominos, which are not a cheap hobby. Training, boarding and feeding the animals costs between $150 and $200 a month, he said.

"We have our share of the wealthier people, but we also have an awful lot of regular people," he said. "A lot of our people are actually ranch people that will use their show horse during the week for ranch work and working cattle."

"Then they'll load it up on the weekends, clean and pretty it up for show. So many people are of the mistaken idea that palominos are nothing but show horses," he said.

He said the group has had a 50 percent increase in registrations in the past 10 years.

"The horse business all over the country is experiencing tremendous growth. My personal theory is that as economic pressures get worse, people look to some way of escaping even if it's just going to a horse show."

"Then after they get into it, they see it's not cheap and they decide to make some money at it by breeding palominos and selling them."

The palomino is usually a cream, golden or light-chestnut colored horse. Registered palominos have white manes and tails, but white body markings can extend no higher than the horse's legs and hocks.

To be registered in Mineral Wells, the horses also must be registered with one of nine recognized breeding associations such as the American Quarterhorse Association.

"Virtually every breed has the palomino color. The palomino is actually not a breed. A breed is something that will breed true," Shiflet said.

"If you breed a palomino with a palomino, you're not sure you're going to get a palomino. There's a 50 percent chance you will get an albino, genetically speaking. Normally you breed a palomino with a sorrell or chestnut-colored horse."

The association registers horses and transactions, approves horse shows through the United States and Canada, keeps records of show results with a point system for horses and distributes a monthly magazine.

"Normally, you take a double-registered palomino with good color and a real good breed and it will sell for about 25 percent more than a comparable horse of regular color," said Shiflet.

The largest concentration of palominos in the world is in the Bigsby and Broken Arrow area of Oklahoma, where there are more than 2,000 to 3,000 registered.

Much of that is due to Bent Arrow Ranch owner Jack Anderson, known as "Mr. Palomino." Anderson's Broken Arrow, Okla., ranch has the slogan: "We Breed for Quality and Hope for Color."

New Symbol Sees Hard Times

By MICHAEL L. GRACZYK
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — It was compared to the Colossus of Rhodes and touted as a beacon of hope for one of America's struggling old northern cities.

Unlike the ancient Colossus, which fell victim to an Aegean earthquake in 224 B.C., Detroit's Renaissance Center is in no danger of toppling. But it has fallen on hard times.

The highly publicized complex wallows in at estimated $140 million of red ink. This month, its owners defaulted on a $200 million mortgage when the January payment was not made, even after a 10-day grace period.

The $357 million RenCen, as it is known to local residents, includes a 740-foot cylindrical, glass-walled hotel surrounded by four matching 39-story office buildings. A multi-level shopping mall provides the base for the complex.

The financing was a unique partnership of 51 Detroit-area companies spearheaded by Henry Ford II, who since has retired as chairman of the auto company which bears his name.

It is uncertain just how much money was owed.

"We have always maintained some cloak of secrecy," says Richard

Routh, a spokesman for Ford Motor Land Development Corp., a Ford Motor Co. subsidiary and owner of 65 percent of the property. "It is a private project."

Ford first proposed the center on Nov. 24, 1971. Eighteen months later ground was broken. The complex opened officially in April 1977, with Ford delivering the ribbon-cutting address.

Amid the optimism, he cautioned that the center itself would have to be a success in order to provide the impetus for a reborn downtown Detroit.

Although the center served as headquarters for the 1980 Republican National Convention as well as the 1982 National Football League Super Bowl game, the complex struggled to attract people.

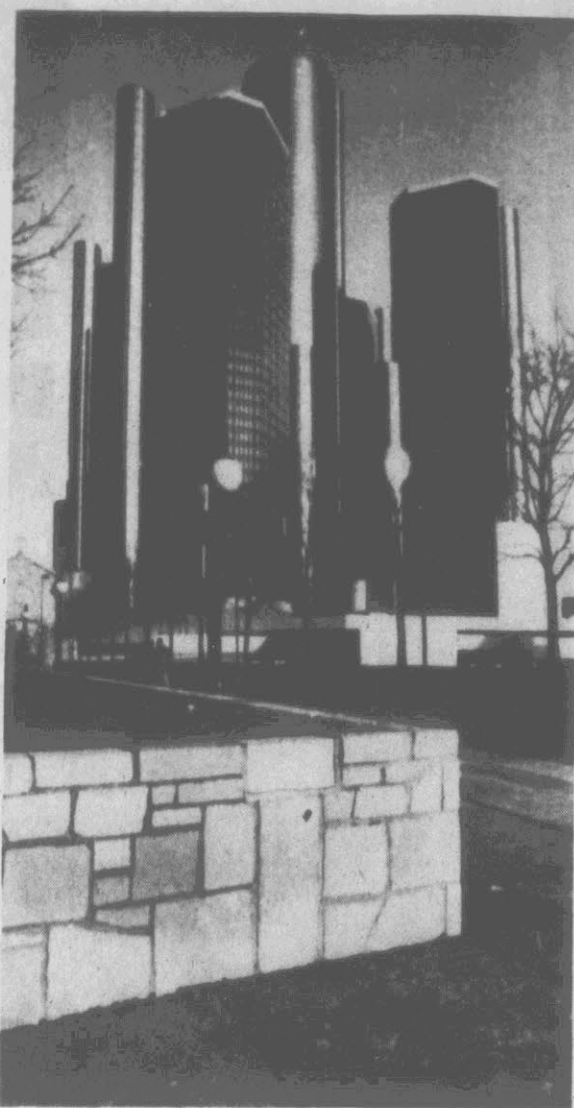

"I think generally, Renaissance Center has had some positive effects on downtown, but not nearly enough to overcome the absolutely awful economy," says Gary Sands, associate professor of urban planning at Detroit's Wayne State University. "It brought a lot of people downtown to see it. But apparently not enough have come back."

Last April, nearly five years to the day of the formal dedication, Ford announced the planned sale of Renaissance Center to a group headed by Theodore Netzk, a Chicago attorney and accountant, for $505 million.

The sale has not been completed. Both Netzk and Wayne Doran, president of Ford Land Development, have declined to comment. Published reports persist that the Chicago group is having difficulty arranging financing.

A story in today's editions of the Wall Street Journal quoted real estate sources as TOWERING TROUBLES — The Renaissance Center, once touted as the salvation of downtown Detroit, has fallen on hard times. The complex, which includes a hotel, office towers and shopping mall, is estimated to be running $140 million in the red and its owners have defaulted on the $200 million mortgage. (AP Laserphoto)

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

First Lady's Skin Cancer a Most Common Form

Since the wife of our president had an operation on her upper lip, a great many inquiries are being made about this type of tumor. In most instances, it is called a basal cell carcinoma. It probably is the most common form of skin cancer that occurs in Caucasians.

Some physicians believe that there is a hereditary predisposition. Others deny that there is any connection to familial background. During the past few decades, long exposure to ultraviolet light has been incriminated.

From the technical point of view, there are a number of different types. These can be differentiated by those experts who have been dealing with this problem for a long time. Occasionally these small, localized tumors on the skin surface develop crusts and bleed when irritated. They grow slowly and are non-invasive to the underlying tissue and rarely ever metastasize, or extend, to other organs.

These basal cell epitheliomas or carcinomas tend to occur mostly around the bridge of the nose, on the cheeks, near the eyelids and on the forehead. They occur less frequently in the skin of other parts of the body.

When this tumor is recognized, it can be treated by surgical removal, by electrocoagulation, by radiotherapy or by cryosurgery. The latter is the use of a cold probe frozen to many degrees below freezing. Other forms of treatment have been tried and are less effective.

Once these tumors are completely removed, they almost never return or become complicated. The key to their removal is to be sure that all the surrounding tissue is normal before the wound is sewed together.

A lesson must be learned from Mrs. Reagan's experience. When Mrs. Reagan was informed about this condition, she came face-to-face with the problem immediately and wasted no time before submitting to surgical treatment.

We wish her well.

The retina is a thin, delicate layer that lines the inner surface of the eye. Certainly there is no organ in the body that has such delicacy and plays such an important role in the destiny of man.

For many complex reasons, sometimes the retina is detached from its base. Interference with sight is immediate.

The causes of retinal detachment are many. It can occur as a complication of diabetes and sickle cell anemia. Injury, inflammation and infection can also be responsible.

Remarkable advances have been made in the surgical control of this problem. Reattachment of the retina can now be accomplished with cryotherapy, with photocoagulation, with the laser beam and with diathermy. A surgical approach to this problem is sometimes used in carefully chosen instances.

The advances made in this type of surgery are spectacular and are responsible for maintained vision in thousands of people who might otherwise be blind.

saying that the prospective buyer cut the price he is offering by nearly 50 percent in hopes of salvaging the acquisition. Heitman Financial Services Ltd. of Chicago, which Netzk joined as a partner in November, is proposing a price tag of "under $300 million," Heitman's chairman, Norman Perlmutter, told the newspaper.

Doran met last week with lenders in New York about restructuring or reducing the payments. Refusing to elaborate "because of the sensitivity of the thing," Doran said more discussions would be held soon. He gave no timetable.

The building's current financial problems are not its first. The mortgage was renegotiated in 1980, said Albert Abend, a spokesman for Aetna Life and Casualty Co. of Hartford, Conn., one of the lenders. "What we tried to do was give them breathing room," he said.

Aetna, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Boston, and Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York hold about equal $50 million shares. Travelers Insurance Co. of Hartford holds a $30 million share, and Ford Motor Credit Co. holds a $20 million share.

Office space consistently has been the strongest part of the center, holding at about 96 percent occupancy, spokesman Routh says.

ing to a prospectus sent by the Netzk group to potential investors, is about 60 percent. "That's not good enough," Sands says.

And the retail space, known as "The World of Shops," has failed to live up to expectations, fluctuating at only about 60 percent capacity. Although some 95 retailers remain, 20 stores have come and gone since the center opened, many of them specialty shops offering expensive items while the jobless rate in Detroit, now at 17.1 percent, continued to increase.

Center officials are trying to make the shopping area more palatable to traditionally blue-collar residents.

"Over the past two years, we slowly have been shifting the store mix to moderately priced merchandise," Routh says.

Still, the confusing circular maze of stores fails to draw crowds of shoppers like competing suburban malls, where people have the choice of department stores and where parking is more convenient — and free.

The center's task was made more difficult with the closing Monday of the huge downtown J.L. Hudson store, the last major department store in the city's downtown area.

"On Saturday afternoon, do you go to Fairlane (a popular suburban mall) or do you go to downtown Detroit?" Sands asks.

Most Still Sip Coffee

WASHINGTON (AP) — The majority of Americans still drink coffee, but their numbers have dwindled steadily the past 20 years, says the Agriculture Department.

In 1962, 56.3 percent of the population drank coffee. That was down only one-tenth of a percentage point from 1981. But in 1962, 74.7 percent of the U.S. population drank coffee.

The USDA's weekly Farm Paper Letter issued Monday noted some other details about American beverage habits published in a recent report:

—While per capita consumption of coffee reached a 40-year high of 3.12 cups per person per day in 1962, it has declined steadily and averaged only 1.9 cups per person daily in 1982. That's a 40 percent decline.

—Regular coffee still accounts for 7 out of 10 cups of coffee consumed in the U.S., although its consumption decreased 4 percent last year while consumption of instant coffee increased 4 percent.

—While coffee remains the favorite U.S. beverage, soft drinks are coming on fast. Only 32 percent said they drank soft drinks 20 years ago, 53 percent do now.

—Milk, which ranked No. 2 behind coffee in earlier years, now is third. Only 49 percent said they drank milk now, compared to 54 percent 20 years ago.

—Fruit and vegetable juices are gaining slowly, with 44.5 percent saying they drank them now, up from 41 percent 20 years ago.

—Tea has gained but still ranks as the least-popular non-alcoholic beverage among Americans, with 32 percent saying they drank it last year, compared to 25 percent in 1962.

Prison Life In Japan Is Tough, Tidy

By ANTONIO KAMIYA
TOKYO, Japan (UPI) — The occupant of the cramped but surreally bright and tidy room presumably was American — a well-thumbed New York Times magazine sat on the meticulously made bed awaiting his return from work.

And he would return before dawn — to do time in Japan's largest jail house, Fuchu Prison.

The furnishings of the 6 by 11-foot cell are spartan — one bed and a small writing table — and the cubicle's sparkling, clean yellow walls give it the air of a cheap but well-kept hotel.

Just an hour's ride from the heart of Tokyo, sprawling Fuchu prison houses the country's most hardened criminals: murderers, drug peddlers and rapists.

It also is the only penitentiary in Japan specifically designed to house foreigners who fall on the wrong side of the law.

Japan's prisons traditionally are closed to public view, but a spate of recent scandals forced the Justice Ministry into relaxing its iron rules on prison visits.

We want to show the world that the life of a prisoner here isn't all that bleak," Kiyoshi Taru, the warden of Fuchu, told UPI during an exclusive tour inside the prison walls.

Surrounded by a 16-foot-high concrete fence, the entrance to the 42½-acre compound is guarded by two uniformed but unarmed prison wardens.

A couple of watch towers soar over the walls, but none of the 412 guards and wardens, who handle some 2,500 male inmates, wear guns. Yet prison breaks or riots are practically unheard of at Fuchu or at the country's 58 other jails.

It can be difficult to tell guards from inmates. Both wear the same sort of uniforms, and caps hide the prisoners' crew-cut hair. The only real distinction is the color of the uniforms — brown for inmates and dark green for the wardens.

Instead of having serial numbers emblazoned on their shirts, prisoners in Japan wear small name plates pinned to their breast pockets, just like those worn by most Japanese workers.

Taru, who has spent 37 years working in prisons, said Japan's penal system is aimed at eventual rehabilitation of convicts.

"It is not our job to punish or to humiliate the prisoners," he said. "They are here because they have broken the rules of society. They are here to learn discipline."

At Fuchu, discipline is tough. Inmates are forbidden to unbutton their prison uniforms no matter how hot it may be. No graffiti is allowed on the walls.

The smallest infraction of the rules makes a prisoner liable to discipline ranging from the withdrawal of mail privileges to what prison authorities euphemistically call "penitence sessions."

Inmates who seriously misbehave may be locked up in isolation cells for several weeks to "reflect on their mistakes," according to a senior Fuchu official.

Several recent prisoner "mistakes" led to the scandals that forced officials to open the jail to the press.

A couple of months ago, one ex-convict with gangster links was found to have secretly manufactured two handguns in the machine workshop at a prison in southern Japan. The incident, which brought a formal apology from the Justice Minister to the Japanese parliament, was followed by allegations that drugs are routinely smuggled inside the jails.

At Fuchu prison, a supervisor was nearly hacked to death by an inmate allegedly unhappy about work rules.

The rehabilitation track record of Japanese prisons is nothing to brag about either. Some 53 percent of those jailed last year were "repeaters," according to Justice Ministry statistics.

Prison officials also admit that Japanese inmates are not as meek as they might wish.

"Ours is a shame culture with a highly structured homogeneous society," Taru said.

"Once they are locked up, our people tend to obey orders from their guards. But these days, the inmates also tend to insist more on their rights than their duties."

Prisoner duties, apart from what prison officials call "obedience and good behavior," include 44 hours of compulsory labor each week. At Fuchu, prisoners can choose from 21 workshops providing apprenticeships in such trades as auto mechanics, leather work and carpentry.

Most Japanese inmates share communal rooms with up to 11 other prisoners, and sleep on matted floors. Each communal cell is equipped with a small black-and-white TV set, flicked on by remote control for two hours after dinner.

Each inmate is allowed up to 10 books in his cell. But no pornography, said a jail warden, or anything the prison censors feel might "excite" the prisoners.

Foreigners are locked up in single cells in a special section reserved for aliens, and sleep on beds.

There are no TVs in the single cells but radio speakers broadcast programs recorded from the American Military Forces Far East network.

Meals, too, set foreigners apart. But as the Japanese, as a people, do not distinguish one foreign national from another, prison officials at Fuchu also lump them together and feed all the same "foreigners' meal."

At last count, there were eight Americans, nine Chinese, six Taiwanese, five Filipinos, one Briton, one Thai, one Chilean and an Argentine serving time at Fuchu. All eat bread and use forks and spoons.

"Do the Chinese complain of not having rice? Certainly not," said Seitei Okumura, the Fuchu officer in charge of education and welfare. "Why should they? The meal served foreigners is much better."

Apart from a bread roll and a pat of margarine, the "foreigners' meal" that day consisted of two pieces of fried bacon and pork plus vegetable salad and an apple.

Back To High School To Catch The Drug Dealers

By KATHY HORAK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — It took George Flores two weeks to find a drug supplier among his classmates at Franklin High School, a girl George recalls as a "punk rocker" who sat in front of him in English class.

"We just started talking about drugs. She knew her dealers and I asked if I could meet them. She never introduced me, but she'd buy for me."

Joe Bravo had a harder time making connections at Belmont High. "I wasn't from the neighborhood or Central America," where many of Belmont's students were born. "They're very tight — it took me a month to make my first buy."

Every time George and Joe bought drugs, the marijuana, hashish, PCP, psychedelic mushrooms or cocaine wound up in boxes at the Los Angeles Police Department's Juvenile Division. The two students are policemen, recruited right out of the Police Academy.

Their deceptively youthful looks and lack of street exposure made them perfect candidates for the LAPD's "School Buy Program," an 8-year-old effort to catch drug sellers at the city's 55 high schools. Users aren't targeted.

Each fall and spring, undercover officers register at 10 high schools selected on a rotating basis. In blue jeans and sweatshirts — with no badges, guns, teachers or back-up officers to help — they spend 10 weeks pretending to have few other ambitions than scoring dope.

The program provides a negative thing — "Don't sell on campus because there might be a narc around" — but it's about the only negative thing (teens) see," says Capt. Robert Taylor of the department's Juvenile Division. "Movies, rock stars, sometimes their parents — everything else encourages drug use."

Based on student-officers' reports, Taylor estimates as many as 50 percent to 60 percent of the city's high school seniors use drugs at least once a week.

Taylor concedes his figures aren't scientific, "but I don't know anyone better qualified to make an estimate."

Student-narcotic agents spend a month in training before entering schools. "They all get a crash course in what it's like to be an undercover narc. Most of them have never purchased before so they don't know how," says Taylor.

George Flores, 17 — actually George Lopez, 22 — signed up for English, art, auto shop, math and a health class at Franklin. In real life a 1978 graduate of Los Angeles' Fairfax High, he claimed he was transferring from a high school in Texas.

"I thought it was a lot different than when I went through high school and it really wasn't that long ago," Lopez says. "A lot of the students I busted were 10th graders just coming into the school. They do drugs with the older kids just to get into the groups. And nobody seems to look down on it."

"One guy I busted was a straight-A student on the basketball team who sold me Hawaiian (pot). The principal was surprised at the people I got — they're not all low lifes."

Lopez made most of his buys on school grounds, but only 14 of the 21 people he arrested were students. His biggest purchase was 2½ ounces of PCP from the 46-year-old father of a girl at school.

In a similar case, Bravo — actually Joe Zepeda, 22 going on 17 — got to the father of a girl who marketed cocaine for her parent.

Each day after class, the two policemen would tell their superiors whom they talked with and log what they bought. Taylor says that documentation is a key reason for the program's 95 percent conviction rate.

"Most often, officers made more than one purchase from the same person. It's all documented and we have evidence," he said. Of the 303 arrests last fall, 192 were repeat dealers.

No one was arrested until the 10 weeks were up. Then the "students" helped lead other police in a one-shot roundup.

Lopez expressed few doubts at arresting acquaintances.

"You try to refrain from making friends because you know you have to bust 'em," he said. "It plays with your mind a little bit, but you just have to look at it that it's your job."

Taylor conceded that emotions "periodically become a problem. An officer will develop some friendships, then realize he or she has to do what he was hired to do."

The program withstood a legal challenge in 1975, when a Los Angeles Superior Court judge ruled against a suit by the American Civil Liberties Union. Taylor maintains entrapment isn't an issue, since "we're just providing sellers with an opportunity to sell."

Still, ACLU legal director

Fred Okrand insists, "Our position is it's a fundamental violation of academic freedom and students' right to privacy."

Only the principal knows an officer is at school, but not his or her identity.

Lopez said the hardest part of his assignment was buying drugs but never taking them. When asked to parties, football games or other situations where using drugs would be hard to avoid, he told other students he had to work.

"It gets hard leading two different lives," he conceded. "You can never act like a 17-year-old, especially with girls. They always seem to catch on right away."

Birdwatching With Comfort

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Early winter is a good time for birdwatchers who want to pursue their hobby from the comfort of home, says Charles R. Smith, a Cornell University professor.

Attracting and feeding birds in the yard in early winter gives them time to locate the feeder and get accustomed to using it, says Smith, who also is director of public education at the university's ornithology laboratory.

He says a bird feeding plan should be simple and uncomplicated.

"There are two myths about feeding birds," he says:

—First, they do not have to be fed.

—And if you do feed them, there's no need to do so daily for the rest of the year. "Birds are very resourceful at finding their own food."

Scattering seed on the ground should be avoided, he adds, because it encourages bird predators and attracts rats and mice.

Bread crumbs should be used cautiously, if at all, he says, because they may make the birds ill if the crumbs mold.

Instead, he recommends well-stocked bird feeders, designed and located to be safe from cats, squirrels and other predators.

Squirrels are very talented at finding bird feeders and stealing the seed. Specially designed feeders have squirrel guards, Smith says, and the most effective are those with clear plastic domes.

"Don't hang the feeders under the trees or branches or in areas that squirrels can easily climb or jump to, unless the feeder is adequately baffled against squirrels from above and below."

They should also be protected from prevailing winds.

"Feeders can be anything from recycled plastic containers to store-bought feeders costing as much as $35," he adds.

For convenience, they should be placed near a window.

Because birds feed most often in early morning and late afternoon, a location near a kitchen or dining room window might coincide with your own meals.

What you put in a feeder helps determine which birds you attract. For instance, chickadees, woodpeckers, nuthatches and other insect-eating birds prefer beef suet.

Smith suggests high-grade kidney suet in a plastic mesh bag hung where raccoons can't get it.

Seed-eating birds such as cardinals, juncos, sparrows, finches and grosbeaks prefer a mixture with sunflower seed, finely cracked corn and white millet.

Seed is available in large, inexpensive lots from farm supply stores.

"Avoid mixtures containing large amounts of red millet and milo," Smith says.

Eye Efforts To Up Grain Export Sale

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Efforts by the United States to boost grain exports are being watched closely by foreign competitors, according to Agriculture Department analysts.

President Reagan a week ago announced an expanded export program to provide qualified buyers an additional $1.25 billion in credit to buy U.S. farm products this year.

The USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service said Monday that competition among grain-exporting countries "has continued to sharpen" because of an improved crop outlook in the Southern Hemisphere and a greater emphasis on price and credit deals.

Noting the new U.S. credit arrangements, the report said "Australia and Argentina are reportedly also now considering export credit expansion schemes" of their own.

"The only main exporter to institute major production controls to date has been the United States, where a payment-in-kind (PIK) diversion program was recently announced," the report said.

A look at the bulging world grain situation can help explain the renewed competition for export markets. The grain figures include wheat, coarse grains such as corn and barley, and milled rice.

According to recent supply-and-demand figures by USDA, world grain production in 1982-83 is estimated at a record of more than 1.53 billion metric tons. That is up nearly 3 percent from 1.49 billion tons in 1981-82.

The United States produced 337 million metric tons or 22 percent of the total world output.

A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

Counting grain left over from previous harvests, the total world supply in 1982-83 is about 1.75 billion metric tons. The U.S. grain supply is 443.8 million tons or more than 25 percent of the world total.

Of the world's total grain supply — about 1.75 billion metric tons — an estimated 226.4 million tons will be bought and sold in international trade. That is about 13 percent of the global grain supply this year.

The U.S. share of the export traffic currently is estimated at 107.2 million metric tons or a little more than 6 percent of the world grain supply. However, U.S. shipments would make up about 47 percent of the world grain trade.

According to USDA's latest figures, more than 1.48 billion tons of grain will be consumed by humans and livestock in 1982-83. The U.S. grain consumption was estimated at 181.6 million tons — mostly coarse grains fed to cattle, hogs and poultry.

The amount of grain left over in the world at the end of the 1982-83 marketing season was estimated at 265.9 million tons, up from 218 million at the beginning of the year.

In the United States, the carryover is expected to be 155 million metric tons, up from 106.4 million at the start of the 1982-83 year.

The U.S. carryover also will be nearly 60 percent of the world's grain reserve at the end of this season.

Seek Overturn Sentence

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals, the nation's highest military court, has been asked to overturn a private's death sentence and strike down as unconstitutional the death penalty for servicemen.

Three groups of lawyers made the request in a "friend of the court" brief filed in the case of PFC Wyatt L. Matthews of Media, Pa. He was convicted by a court martial in Germany in 1979 for the rape and murder of a military post librarian.

Matthews is one of six servicemen facing execution. The last time the military put a man to death was in 1961.
