Missile Talks Begin In Geneva

By W. JOSEPH CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators conducted three hours of talks today on reducing medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe, following efforts by both sides to win European support for their positions.

No details of the discussions were announced, in keeping with the mutual agreement to say nothing publicly about the talks. The two sides are scheduled to meet again Tuesday.

The NATO allies plan to start deploying hundreds of new missiles in Europe in December if there is no agreement at the bargaining table.

Asked if he expects an accord this year, Soviet delegate Yuli A. Kvitsinsky said before the talks resumed: "I don't know."

Moments later, veteran arms control expert Paul H. Nitze arrived at the Soviet diplomatic mission in Geneva to start bargaining after a two-month recess. He declined to comment to reporters.

There were few signs that any progress had been achieved when the negotiations recessed in late November.

Kvitsinsky warned that time is running out for reaching a missile-limiting accord.

President Reagan strongly hinted in his State of the Union address Tuesday night that he is prepared to compromise at the negotiating table if the terms are right.

The president said, "We are also prepared to carefully explore serious Soviet proposals."

Nitze said as he arrived in Geneva on Tuesday that he was "prepared to examine every kind" of Soviet offer that meets the Western alliance's security interests.

He also said that the United States "certainly is not locked into" the bargaining stance it has maintained since the talks opened 14 months ago. The Soviets repeatedly have rejected that stance.

Kvitsinsky told reporters at his arrival Tuesday: "The time is approaching when a choice will have to be made between an agreement on joint steps to reduce the level of nuclear confrontation, or a new round of the arms race."

Reagan so far has been insisting on a plan Washington officials call the "zero option," which he put forward last year.

Under that plan, the United States would cancel plans to begin deploying in December 572 new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in NATO countries — if the Soviets dismantle their arsenal of highly accurate, SS-20 missiles aimed at Western Europe.

Push N.C. Budget Requests

Chancellors Warn Of Quality Decline

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chancellors of three University of North Carolina campuses warned a legislative committee of dire consequences if their budget requests are cut.

"I must say ... we're very much at the precipice," said

Chancellor Albert Whiting of N.C. Central University in Durham. "Further reductions could easily topple us into a decline (in education quality)."

Whiting and chancellors John Howell of East Carolina University in Greenville and E.K. Fretwell of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte addressed the Joint Appropriations Base Budget Committee on Education Wednesday.

"When you do not fund the university, the whole community suffers," said Howell. "Education is not a frill to be cut in hard times. It is a necessity to help us out of hard times."

The chancellors described their programs, outlined their budgetary needs and efforts to cut spending and stressed education's importance to the economy.

"We cannot afford further erosion of our public education," said Fretwell. "I hope you'll have the political courage to take whatever steps are necessary to (maintain) ... our enviable record..."

The officials didn't comment specifically on Gov. Jim Hunt's proposed budget, which includes a 1.3 percent spending increase for the 16-campus university system. About 7 percent of Hunt's proposed pay raise for state employees is earmarked for UNC.

The UNC system — the second largest department in state government — would receive about $606 million, 17 percent of the General Fund operating money in 1983-84. This year's appropriation was $598 million and $613 million for 1984-85.

In other legislative action Wednesday:

More than 250 individuals and nine clubs, organizations and businesses were honored Wednesday night at the Volunteer Appreciation Banquet of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department held at Elm Street Gymnasium.

The banquet, held every other year, recognizes those who have made substantial contributions in volunteer time and effort to activities of the department that in turn enriches the quality of life in Greenville.

Oil Price War

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — The government says it is raising oil production by 45 percent to match increased competition from other OPEC members following the cartel's failure to agree on production quotas.

Oil Minister Mana Saeed Oteiba, who announced the production jump from 1.1 million barrels to 1.6 million barrels on Wednesday, also predicted a price cut in Persian Gulf crude.

The emergency meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries collapsed in Geneva on Monday after some members of the 13-member cartel refused to agree on reduced production quotas they were already ignoring and other members refused to stop cutting prices below the $34 base.

The once-powerful cartel, which has relied on production quotas to hold down the oil and keep prices artificially high, has been torn by internal rivalries and a worldwide oil glut that has forced prices down.

"Some OPEC states have started pumping additional quantities of oil at lowered prices", Oteiba said in a local television interview.

HEATER NEEDED

A Greenville family with one older child is bringing a new baby home today to a house heated only by a small electric heater. They have had two portable kerosene wick heaters stolen this winter and do not have money to buy a third. Their church, Lifeline Full Gospel Assembly of Washington, N.C., has asked Hotline to appeal for donation of a heater or funds toward one. The money may be sent to Lifeline Full Gospel Assembly, c/o the Rev. and Mrs. James McIver, 1506 Dickinson Ave., Greenville, N.C. 27834. Inquiries may be made by calling the McIvers, 752-8335.

CHURCHES MADE THE DIFFERENCE

The Greenville Ministerial Association and the congregations of its associated churches are responsible for raising at least 90 percent of the money collected so far for the family of the baby who's having a bone marrow transplant in Florida today. As of this morning, the ministerial association has raised about $4500.

The Rev. Richard Miller, president of the association, pointed out that the churches were at work from the time they were informed of the situation on the Friday before the Hotline appeal was published on Jan. 10, and that most of the collections are a result of their efforts.

Hotline salutes the Greenville Ministerial Association and its members' in rallying the Greenville area community to the needs of this child and his family.

Eaton Corporation Is Restructuring Operations

Eaton Corp. announced Wednesday that its industrial truck division, which includes the Greenville plant, is being restructured and will become an independent company with international partners this year.

The industrial truck operations, which manufactures and markets fork lift trucks under the Yale product line, also include facilities in Lenoir; Salem, Va., and Wendsfield, England.

A spokesman at the Greenville plant said that operations will continue as usual involving the manufacture of electric-powered lift trucks and assembling internal combustion engine units. No changes are anticipated relative to the present employee roster of 315, it was mentioned.

Eaton said that Yale will be established initially as a wholly owned subsidiary and then as an independent company. As a result of the restructuring, Yale's income and earnings will no longer be consolidated into Eaton's financial results.

Alfred M. Rankin Jr., president of Eaton's materials handling group, said, "Yale is most definitely not being discontinued or shut down. This action is only the most recent event in a continuing program of investments, consolidations, rationalizations and product innovations that have brought Yale to a position as a truly global competitor."

Rankin said, "Neither is Yale being abandoned by Eaton. On the contrary, Eaton will be making a substantial financial commitment to Yale's future by creating a new and imaginatively structured company and will continue to have significant financial interest in Yale."

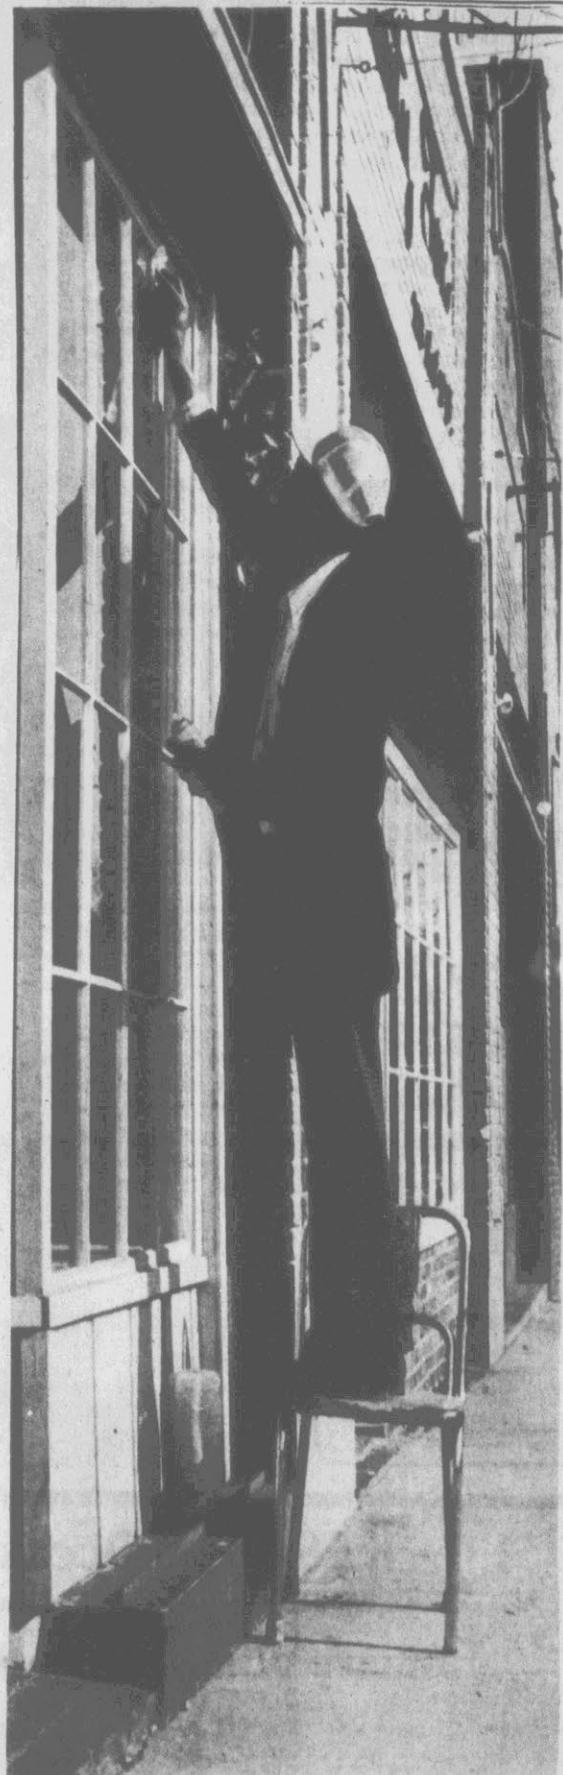

Yale, under the restructured posture, will be based on a global partnership involving companies that Rankin said are "strategically positioned and philosophically committed to success in the industrial truck business."

The official said the companies in the partnership are Jungheinrich of West Germany and Sumitomo (Please turn to Page 21)

Fewer College Students Want To Become School Teachers

By MARGARET SCHERF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Fewer college freshmen are interested in becoming elementary or secondary school teachers today than at any other time in recent years, according to a survey of entering freshmen.

Since 1966, when 21.7 percent of the entering freshmen were planning careers as school teachers, student interest has declined steadily to the point where only 4.7 percent of the 1982 freshmen want teaching careers.

The career choice that has shown by far the largest gain in popularity during the same period is business, which increased from 11.6 percent of the freshmen in 1966 to 20.2 percent in 1982, according to the survey conducted by the University of California at Los Angeles and the American Council on Education.

"When these trends are viewed in the light of other recent data about prospective school teachers, the outlook for our educational system is grim," said UCLA professor Alexander W. Astin, director of the survey.

"Since recent studies of college admissions tests show that education majors have much weaker academic skills than students majoring in most other fields, it appears that we are headed for a crisis not only in the quantity but also in the quality of persons who want to teach in our elementary and secondary schools," he said.

Other career choices which have shown sharp declines in popularity since 1966 are college teacher, from 1.8 percent to 0.2 percent; scientific researcher, 3.5 percent to 1.5 percent; and social worker, 2.9 percent to 1.1 percent.

Careers that have shown dramatic gains in recent years are engineer, 4.7 percent in 1974 to 12 percent in 1982; and computer programmer analyst, from 2.9 percent in 1977 to 8.8 percent in 1982.

The popularity of careers in business, engineering and computer programming reached all-time highs in the 1982 survey.

"The attitudes and values of the 1982 freshmen showed a greater degree of materialism and less altruism and social concern than those of any previous entering class," according to a news release on the study.

"Being very well off financially" was endorsed as a very important goal by 68.9 percent of the 1982 freshmen, compared to 65.2 last year and 43.5 in 1967.

At the same time, "to be able to make more money" was endorsed as a very important reason for attending college by 69.8 percent of the 1982 freshmen, compared to 67 percent last year and 49.9 percent in 1971.

By contrast, fewer of the 1982 freshmen endorsed goals such as "participating in programs to clean up the environment" — 22.9 percent, down from 24.8 percent last year and 44.6 percent in 1972.

The goal of "helping others in difficulty" was endorsed by 61.6 percent, down from 62.9 percent last year and 66 percent in 1975.

"Helping to promote racial understanding" was listed by 30.7 percent of the 1982 freshmen, compared to 31.0 percent last year and 35.8 percent in 1977.

And "developing a meaningful philosophy of life" continued its steep decline, from 82.9 percent in 1967 to 46.7 percent in 1982.

The survey is based on questionnaires completed by 267,185 new freshmen entering a national sample of 492 two- and four-year colleges and universities. There are approximately 1.74 million full-time freshmen.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Don't ask me why, but I cannot resist taking a marriage quiz.

It's stupid when you think about it. What am I going to do if I flunk it? Drop out and go into real estate? Change my major? Hire a tutor? Face it, I'm too old to learn from my mistakes and too tired to shop.

And what happens if I get a terrific score? Will we live out the rest of our lives bored out of our skulls finishing one another's sentences?

I must tell you it was with some apprehension that I checked our answers on a quiz we both took last week.

"At least I know your mother's phone number," I said. "That's 4 points for me."

"How could you know my mother's phone number when she's been gone eight years?" said my husband.

"It's her old one. I also said that in a dentist's office, you'd rather read National Geographic than stare at the wall."

"It all depends," he said.

"On What?"

"On whether the National Geographic is a new one or one that I've read."

"Don't nitpick."

"Or what's on the wall."

"I get 4 points," I snapped.

"Now, what's the item of clothing that you bought for yourself recently? I said it was a shirt in 1972."

"It was a belt in 1976."

"I should have remembered. You buy a belt every bicentennial."

"There's no need to be testy."

"Why don't you want me to get a good score? What are you afraid of?"

"Who's afraid? Let me check some of my answers. Here's one: 'Does your wife know who Harry Von Zell is?' I said yes."

"What is that? Some kind of a trick question to find out my age? Of course I don't know who Harry Von Zell is."

"You remembered my deceased mother's phone number and not Harry Von Zell?"

"I'm not into sports. You know that."

"Okay. How about this one: 'Does your wife think Carol

Dan D. Lion Helps Take Scare Out Of Hospitals

By PAT REMICK
SHREVEPORT, La. (UPI) — Dr. Dan D. Lion is among the colorful creatures populating hospitals where two Louisiana women are making things easier for the child in all of us.

The bright cartoon characters dance across walls and ceilings, coloring books, placemats and mobiles. They even hide in-travenous feeding bags.

They also have shown up on hospital billboards and baseball team shirts.

Mary Jane Hall and Leone Reeder, working three days a week at Mrs. Reeder's home, are the brains and enthusiasm behind Medicon Inc., a consulting firm.

"We live in such a technological world that hospitals tend to be antiseptic," said Mrs. Reeder. "We go in as a patient advocate and say, 'You've got a fabulous machine, but don't forget the patient.'"

"We really feel there is this need in hospitals. We started in pediatrics. But everybody is like a child when they go to the hospital."

Word-of-mouth mentions have kept the two women so busy they haven't prepared an advertising brochure or obtained a business telephone listing.

In four years they have been asked by five hospitals in Louisiana, one in Chicago and one in Philadelphia to transform green hospital walls into colorful wonderlands.

They have created a world where it's OK to cry if you're scared, but easier to smile back at an animal on the ceiling above an examination table.

"We can't take the unpleasantness out of a room, but we can try to alleviate anxiety," Mrs. Reeder said.

Using wagons instead of wheelchairs goes a long way toward easing hospital fears. So does ensuring each child's name is posted in big letters on the room door so anyone entering can call the child by name.

"We can see the difference it makes to patients and hospital staff. It visually reminds everyone in the hospital community," Mrs. Reeder said.

Medicon got its start when Mrs. Reeder, 44, and Mrs. Hall, 39, began seeking a creative outlet beyond their husbands, children and volunteer work.

"A child's world is bright and happy at home," Mrs. Reeder said. "Mary Jane and I couldn't figure out why this couldn't be carried over to the hospital where the child will feel safe and secure."

They now decorate intensive care units, X-ray rooms and cancer wards and are thinking of working up a theme for a youth center.

Their jobs begin with a $500 consultation that includes visits to the hospital and staff meetings, followed by brainstorming at home on ways to solve the hospital's problems.

All hospitals so far have opted for a coloring storybook introducing children to the facility and explaining such important things as the difference between hospital and school tests, the names of the doctor's tools and yes, that shots will hurt, but it's OK to get a little teary-eyed.

"After we develop a theme we come up with several sketches," Mrs. Hall said. "We say this is the name of the character and what we want it to look like. We paint a visual picture for our graphic designer, Drew Hunter."

Hunter then makes sketches. If the partners approve, the sketches and plan are submitted within two weeks of the consultation.

"We even develop the storybook, and the hospital staff can make comments in pencil," said Mrs. Hall.

Medicon's fee is $10,000 and $15,000 for a pediatrics unit optimum plan carrying the theme through every area a child will be in during the stay — from the patients' rooms to surgery holding rooms. They plan storybooks, murals, placemats, educational materials, ceiling designs and even a video introduction to the hospital.

Included are special badges of bravery for sick kids.

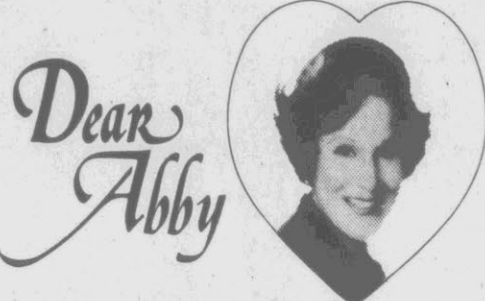

"Some hospitals choose to only implement a few things at a time," Mrs. Hall said. "We're still working at one four years later."

If the price seems high, the women say it's nothing compared with the hundreds of dollars lost with every empty hospital bed.

Both say their families are very supportive of their part-time work.

They visit hospitals when they travel with their husbands. Mrs. Hall is married to an ophthalmologist and Mrs. Reeder's husband is managing partner of a company that owns radio stations in Shreveport and Oklahoma City.

Give Necklace Back To Gerald

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Last summer my fiance gave me a necklace for my birthday. It was worth about $400. It came with a card saying, "A gift from ()," and Gerald signed his name.

We have since broken up because of his mother's constant interference. She has called me several times to tell me that Gerald wants the necklace back. I told her that I would have to hear from Gerald, so she put him on the phone and told him what to say. I decided to keep it anyway.

Since then she has called me several times and asked me where the necklace was, and I have told her I have no intention of returning it. I found out the other day that Gerald still owes $100 on the necklace. (The store called and informed me.)

I know I am legally entitled to keep it because I have proof it was a gift. My parents say I don't have to give it back or pay what's owed on it. My friends say I should give it back.

What do you say?

CONFUSED IN MISSOURI

DEAR CONFUSED: Give it back. And be glad you're not stuck with a wimp like Gerald.

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is being married soon. She's living in a one-bedroom apartment and has no room to store anything. After the wedding, she and her husband plan to live in the same apartment.

Would it be proper to include a letter with the wedding invitation suggesting that if anyone wishes to give a gift, money would be greatly appreciated?

Our daughter wants to do this, but my husband and I wonder if it would be considered poor taste.

SOMEWHERE, U.S.A.

DEAR SOMEWHERE: You and your husband are wise to wonder. To include such a letter in the wedding invitations would be in very poor taste.

DEAR ABBY: This is in reply to "Sick Inside," a mother who fears her son may be gay. She wrote that her husband had a heart condition and she was afraid he couldn't handle discussing the situation.

Please let that mother know that in all the years of helping parents to understand their gay/lesbian children, we have never lost a parent. However, we do know of gay/lesbian people who have committed suicide because their parents either did not understand them, or refused to accept them.

Whether her son is gay or not, we here at PARENTS FLAG (Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays, Inc.) are in a position to support and help her. We have parent groups and contacts throughout the United States.

The latest edition of our booklet, "About Our Children," with information in five languages (English, French, Chinese, Japanese and Spanish), is now available free if the request comes with a stamped (20 cents), long, self-addressed envelope. The address: Box 24565, Los Angeles, Calif. 90024.

ADELE STARR, PRESIDENT

To Three 'R's' Add 'C' For Computer

By ALLEN HOUSTON
PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — At an elementary school, students spend hours with pencils and paper doing math problems that computers perform in a fraction of a second.

In a high school business class, students pound out practice letters on typewriters, although the jobs they will seek require them to use the latest information-retrieval and word-processing equipment.

Down the hall, students perform science experiments, unchanged since their parents' days in school, using techniques that would be archaic in modern research labs.

"What we have is a very rapidly growing discrepancy between what the typical high school lab looks like and what people do in science labs in the real world," says David Moursund.

A professor of computer and information science at the University of Oregon, Moursund has written a book, "A Parent's Guide to Computers in Education."

He also has organized the International Council for Computers in Education, with 11,000 educators interested in instructional uses of computers in elementary and secondary schools.

"There is a revolution going on in industry, and we need to prepare our young people for it," he said.

"What the computer educators want is for people to grow up with the computer, becoming aware early on of what it can do so it becomes another tool to study other areas," said Moursund, whose own four children grew up with computer materials at home.

He said many schools lag in teaching students to use computers.

The problem stems partly from a lack of teachers trained to teach computer skills, he said, and partly from a shortage of computer-related instructional materials.

He said some teachers and adults fear computers as they did the New Math.

Computers no longer are too expensive for most schools, he said.

The national average is one computer in school use for every 230 elementary and secondary students, although the ratio varies depending on a school district's wealth and the community's approach to education, Moursund said.

In Eugene, home of the University of Oregon, the ratio is one for every 100 children. In some schools, no computers are available.

"So what we are getting is sort of a 'haves' versus the 'have-nots,'" he said. "We tend to use education as the great leveler to make everybody equal, but it doesn't work out real well."

Moursund thinks the government should help. He said studies are needed of ways courses can be revised to use computers to better advantage.

It is not clear whether computer education can start too early. Moursund said research on the effects of computer education on pre-schoolers and 1st graders provides some indications that a computer is a useful instructional tool, and that kids are not damaged at this level, but that more study is needed.

Moursund said it might be better for young children to learn in traditional ways, such as using building blocks to learn about volumes, developing their sensory and kinesthetic skills at the same time.

He speculated that social interaction among young children also might suffer if computers were used extensively.

"If a loving teacher comes up and puts her arm around the 1st grade child and looks at what it's doing on paper, that's a tremendously different interaction than if the kid is sitting at the terminal and the speaker says, 'Hey, you're a neat kid and you're doing fine.'"

"The intent might be the same, but we know human-to-human contact is effective. We don't know nearly so much about computer-to-person interaction in that setting."

Still Staying The Course

While President Reagan has attempted to be positive about the state of the nation's economy, his proposals in the State of the Union address seem to indicate that the nation does have major economic problems.

The president, speaking Tuesday night, recommended a spending freeze on some government programs to hold down the deficit in fiscal year 1984.

There was an unusual proposal for a standby 1 percent income tax surcharge and a tax of $5 per barrel of old for 1985 based on several restrictions.

For the unemployed the president recommended extending unemployment benefits and giving tax credits for hiring long term unemployed, programs to assist displaced workers and a lower minimum wage for summer youth workers.

He proposed tax breaks for parents who save for their children's education and tuition credits for parents sending their children to private schools.

In the major field of health care he said he would recommend the option of private health plans for Medicare recipients, catastrophic illness insurance under Medicare and a fixed payment plan to hospitals for specific services.

Some of what the president proposed is positive. A federal spending freeze might help to reduce the deficit if it is sweeping enough. The 1985 standby tax has so many question marks over it that it is impossible to know whether it ever could be implemented.

The cost control value of the fixed payments to hospitals could be helpful to holding down Medicare and Medicaid costs.

There were few startling proposals in what the president said, however, for tackling the problems of unemployment, recession and huge deficits. He still seems to be depending on the economic policies which he brought with him when he took the office of president to solve the nation's economic ills. So far they have not and it has to be questioned whether they will in the next two years.

Telethon Was A Success

Even in recession times the people of our area will come to the aid of a good cause.

Thus it was that the local United Cerebral Palsy telethon exceeded its goal last weekend. The director Nita Rasberry said there were gifts and pledges of approximately $66,000 — $16,000 over the goal.

Mrs. Rasberry said the telethon was a "magnificent experience of people working together for a worthy cause."

It certainly was, and all who worked to make the telethon a success and those who contributed can take their bows for a job well done.

THIS AFTERNOON

Need Redefining

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
RALEIGH — In his State of the State address, Gov. Jim Hunt told the General Assembly that the budget he's recommending for the 1983-85 biennium was "the most austere North Carolina has seen in a decade." The budget is so tight, Hunt said, that he could recommend only one expansion item, the reinstatement of the increment salary increase program for state workers.

This budget may be tight but if it has only one expansion item in it, then a number of legislators never understood the difference between the base budget and the expansion budget.

A little background. The base budget (alias the continuation budget) covers the costs of continuing programs. In this budget, the governor recomputes what last year's services will cost this year. The expansion budget covers new items and programs.

The morning following Hunt's speech, Marvin Dorman, deputy budget officer, laid out the details of the budget to the Appropriations committees. Included in the base budget are what a number of legislators think are expansion items. As House Expansion Budget chairman Rep. Billy Watkins (D-Granville) said, "There's no way any human being can call those continuing (base) items."

Watkins and Rep. Bobby Etheridge flicked through a budget summary listing the "base budget" items they think would be better placed in the expansion budget:

PAUL T. O'CONNOR

Money for "additional equipment" for the community colleges, money for "additional new" industrial training, money for Hunt's new program to improve math and science education — and the list went on.

Rep. Dave Diamont (D-Surry) broached the subject during Dorman's presentation. "Mr. Dorman, I'm a little bit confused about what qualifies for the continuing budget and what qualifies for expansion." Later, Diamont said $17.3 million over two years for the state's microelectronics center was expansion money. "No one ever said anything about $17 million last year" when the assembly approved construction of the center.

Dorman's answer to Diamont was pure testimony to his personal honesty. An expansion item is whatever the governor says it is. Same thing with base budget items. "There are four or five items on there that might have been considered expansion items in the past," he said.

Why switch items from one budget to the other? Watkins says, "The items they want to expand, they put in the continuing budget. The items they think they have the public's pressure behind, they put in the expansion budget."

It's harder to cut things out of a base budget, Watkins claims; and it'll be harder to deny the pay raise when it's the only item in expansion.

Etheridge said, "When you do that, it's very difficult to determine what is expansion and what is base." To which Watkins added, "He's saying

Other Editors Say A Broad Concern

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. deserves much credit for his involvement in drunken driving legislation that will be coming up before the General Assembly. Most of his recommendations are certain to be passed. He has held three recent meetings, two at the governor's mansion and one in Asheville, just to discuss the problem with 700 and 800 ministers and explain his 72-page proposal. It is a worthwhile and much-needed bill with little or no opposition. In a recent Charlotte Observer poll on drinking and driving, 59 percent of those interviewed favored changing the laws dealing with driving under the influence of alcohol.

The whole country is alarmed about DUI, and public sentiment is going to do as much to keep drinking drivers off the roads as new laws. Once greatly disturbed about a common problem, Americans unite and correct it. DUI cases over the past six months have created more concern than interest rates, inflation and a balanced budget.

Hunt proposes that the minimum drinking age for beer and wine be increased from 18 to 19. Gov. Richard Riley of South Carolina goes a step further. He proposes a three-year phase-in of a 21-year-old drinking age. He proposes that the legal age for purchasing beer and wine be raised to 19 this year, 20 in 1984 and 21 in 1985. The minimum drinking age for liquor in South Carolina is already 21.

Riley based his proposal on statistics from other states. Since 1980, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Maryland, Nebraska, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Rhode Island, Texas and Virginia have raised their legal drinking ages.

"In a survey of nine of the states," Riley said, "there has been an average 28 percent reduction in nighttime fatal crashes in the affected age group. Some states have experienced (a reduction) as high as 75 percent."

The Newspaper has not decided about the legal age at which a person should be allowed to start drinking. However, a youngster who drinks and gets behind the wheel of an automobile should lose his license until he is at least 21. If the country continues to be alarmed about the problem, there will be continuing reduction in instances of driving under the influence.

HERE AND NOW

The Homogenized Radio

By MAXWELL GLEN and CODY SHEARER
WASHINGTON — Often described by New Yorkers as a city lacking cultural and spiritual depth, Washington learned recently that it would lose a local institution that suggests an opposite impression.

A progressive radio station long recognized as a national pioneer in promoting new sounds and fledgling musicians, WHFS-FM, announced that it will be sold to a Rhode Island media conglomerate and would assume a newsier format. Many people in this city, particularly its younger residents, were heartbroken.

Like many FM stations spawned during the late 1960s, WHFS challenged the top-40 predictability of AM radio. Its programming dodged commercials for album plays, introducing Washingtonians to artists such as Bruce Springsteen, David Bromberg and, more recently, the Go-Go's and Human League.

Unlike most other "progressive" FM stations, however, WHFS refused to go mainstream during the 1970s. Its programming remained too eclectic to classify: In a single hour, it has been known to mix rock, new wave, jazz, Texas swing, latin, English folk, fusion, rock-a-billy, R&B, and reggae. The station's disk jockies, many of whom have been broadcasting for a dozen years from the studios in suburban Bethesda, Md., possess a knowledge of contemporary music that goes beyond simply knowing what sells.

For many Washingtonians, life without WHFS will be akin to confinement in a cell fed continuously with top-40 hits. Weekly "play lists," based on record sales, already dictate what most FM stations air here and in other markets.

Indeed, as economics pinch budget-conscious stations, many owners have found that outside companies can select, tape and supply "music packages" more efficiently than an inhouse music director. As a result, radio preprogramming is a booming business.

In little more than a year, for example, 200 stations have begun to pay a Dallas-based firm $1,000 a month to provide 24-hour music via satellite. Subscribers to the Satellite Music Network (SMN) rebroadcast to local audiences live programs which originate in Chicago. SMN programs include station IDs, news and commercial breaks and generic time checks, and come in either rock, country or "beautiful music" formats. Music by satellite isn't exactly free-spirited: Satellite Music officials told our reporter, Michael Duffy, that their rock DJs stick to a 30-song display list when spinning records.

Meanwhile, hundreds of stations routinely purchase reel-to-reel tapes from "music consultants." Tapes produced by TM Productions, of Dallas, can provide continuous play on standard studio equipment for days on end. Station managers can flip a switch and walk away. The technique is about as spontaneous as Muzak.

"It's the McDonald's of radio," admitted Bernie O'Brien, manager of WWWW-FM, a Warrenton, Va., station which once resembled WHFS in format but now takes its music via satellite. "They cook out everything but what they know is going to be absolutely successful."

Centralized programming, of course, means that fewer people determine what Americans hear on their radios. In turn, reliance on record sales assures little air time for the new and unhyphenated music that has made progressive FM radio exciting. "Musically, we've been pretty conservative up to now," said Satellite's programming chief George Williams. "We have to make sure that an artist is exposed in every part of the country prior to going with a particular record."

While both consultants and record promoters admit that preprogramming has overtaken the radio industry, they say that little can be done to alter the situation. The Federal Communications Commission, which has purged a number of low-watt college stations in the last several years, has rejected a proposal that would open the airwaves to more AM stations. Meanwhile, cable radio syndicates have begun to sell programmed audio channels to cable TV subscribers, further reducing demand for diverse local programming.

Losers in this centralization abound. The already-slumped music industry, whose long-term profits de-

Researchers Strike Out

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent
DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Anyone who goes out of his way to watch television commercials ought to have his head examined.

So I did. I went to Neurocommunication Research Laboratories in Danbury, Conn., to watch some television commercials and, as a volunteer guinea pig for marketing research, had my head examined.

A lab assistant escorted me into a pine paneled room with a viewing screen that looked like Archie Bunker's basement den. She then glued three tiny electrodes about the size of a man's short collar button to the back of my head and behind my ears. The electrodes on wispy silken wires were hooked to a computer which coughed up a print out of my brain waves responses to what would be shown on the screen.

"Don't chew gum, don't talk to your neighbor and above all don't take your eyes off the screen," she ordered in the no-nonsense voice of a head ward nurse.

A half dozen of us, four women and two men, sat erect in the semidarkness watching what seemed to be an abstract painting of colorful hands and boxes that a ribbon of light suddenly danced across.

The electronic paraphernalia, we were told, was measuring electrical activity in the left or analytical hemisphere and the right or emotional hemisphere of the brain. The name of the game was CEP — Cortical Evoked Potential — studying the brain wave fluctuations generated by the viewer, which differs considerably from GSR, Galvanic Skin Response, studying how much people sweat when a commercial or new TV show grabs them.

"Please focus your eyes on the screen," a voice out of Orwell's "1984" reminded us over the intercom.

There was no place else to look, but the viewing immediately improved when the test pattern dissolved into the movie "Casablanca." We had missed the beginning, but there was old Sydney Greenstreet in a fez looking menacingly debonaire in a huge wicker chair under a slow turning ceiling fan.

My brain waves were finely tuned to Bogie and Claude Rains bantering about an exit visa for Victor Lazlo, the wimp who was already married to Ingrid Bergman, when all of a sudden the scene cut to a pert young lady gushingly giving her preference for an item of intimate feminine hygiene via what was purported to be a hidden microphone. The young lady seated beside me laughed out loud at my discomfort.

I trust the print out recorded my disgust for this type of commercial, along with my skepticism about the hidden microphone.

Back in Rick's "Cafe American," I realized for the first time after seeing the movie at least a dozen times before that Humphrey Bogart didn't know how to pronounce bourbon, the American whiskey, or didn't know how to mispronounce it according to current usage. He pronounced it BOOR-BON, as if calling on the old French royal house to help drown his sorrows, instead of BURR-BIN, as we do around here when ordering three fingers of red eye.

The picture was next interrupted by a news break. An excited young lady was telling us that a man had been killed by the police while attempting to blow up the nuclear power plant at Indian Point, N.Y., apparently a fictional spin-off on the real life story of the anti-nuclear activist who recently threatened to blow up the Washington Monument. Was one of the networks gauging our reaction to a new candidate for a new anchor job? TV executives and advertisers often employ physiological tests like this one to measure potential audience reaction to new shows, stars and soap operas.

We returned to "Casablanca" again, the scene in which the hot headed patriot from the Free French belts an officer of the Third Reich right in the chops and Bogie masterfully cools the situation. The going was too good to last, as it always is with TV movies. We dissolved to the problem of ring around the collar and

Strength For Today

FRESH BREAD

A little boy was asked one day why he prayed for his daily bread, and his reply was "Because I want it fresh every day."

There is nothing stale about God's blessings. They have about them freshness which comes out of the very life of God himself. When men really want the gifts of God and ask for them continually, they receive them, and get them fresh.

Some people's religion is moth-eaten and dusty. On the other hand, there are those to whom faith seems to bring freshness, and whose lives are strengthened and made new every day by the coming of spiritual power. Like the little boy, they get their daily bread fresh, and they get it fresh because they ask it of a heavenly Father who not only wants to give good gifts to his children but to give them continuously.

Jesus said that he was bread from heaven. When people sustain themselves on Him, they have life indeed. — Elisha Douglass

More Loans To The Bad Risks

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — When oil prices soared following the Arab oil embargo less than 10 years ago a quake rumbled through energy-dependent Western economies, toppling stocks, undermining profits and depleting national treasuries.

In the United States, the worst recession since the Great Depression soon developed, followed by an even worse recession in 1981 and 1982. Oil-producing countries prospered. Oil-dependent nations fought to avoid bankruptcy.

So great was the shock that forecasts of depression, unmentionable since the 1930s, reappeared in the news. And even today, some scholars say it was only the lessons learned in the 1930s that prevented a repeat in the '70s.

Now, with disunity among the 13-member Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries suggesting a decline of at least several dollars in oil prices, fears about stocks, profits and the world economy are back in the news.

Opposite actions — oil price increases versus declines — but similar reactions. Why?

Least important, perhaps, are fears that oil company profits may decline sharply, a feeling reflected almost immediately by the stock prices of big oil producers, including Exxon, Mobil and Standard Oil (Indiana).

Such companies, however, are almost certainly strong enough to absorb such punishment and keep it from spreading. What is bad for them may not be for the rest of the corporate world, which stands to gain from any decline in costs.

U.S. consumers too are likely to benefit, in the billions of dollars, from expected declines in gasoline and home heating oil prices. And some underdeveloped nations, oppressed by oil prices, may get a breath of prosperity.

But whatever good news comes from OPEC's failure to maintain production quotas and price levels seems, for the time being, to be offset by great fears over the stability of the world monetary system.

Consider this: Some of the world's biggest oil producers are also among the world's biggest borrowers, and some of them, such as Mexico and Venezuela, already are having difficulties repaying.

Debt of the magnitude seen today was unheard of in the 1970s, when the two largest renegotiations of repayments to banks were by Turkey and Peru, each of which had about $3.5 billion to $4 billion of outstanding bank debt.

According to Rimmer de Vries, Morgan Guaranty senior vice president, more than 25 countries around the world are now in arrears, in the process of rescheduling, or have already rescheduled portions of their bank debt.

Their combined outstanding bank debt is estimated to be more than $200 billion. de Vries' figures show Venezuela owing $10.7 billion and Mexico owing $5.2 billion to U.S. banks alone. Indonesia is said to owe $2.4 billion, Nigeria $1.2 billion, Algeria $1.2 billion. All are less developed nations. And all owe additional sums to banks in other nations.

In part, the banks attribute their lending spurge to new opportunities, often based in new oil wealth. The banks found such nations willing to pay attractive interest rates, better than in the United States.

Some of those countries, unable even to pay their current debts, are now likely to be weakened further by the decline in oil prices. From being the most attractive countries in which to invest they are now among the worst.

Nevertheless, the conventional thinking in banking circles is that these countries cannot be cut off. In fact, it is argued, they must be maintained with further loans, a case of the least credit-worthy having the strongest hold on bank assets. To cut them off now, it is said, is to bankrupt them.

Should bankruptcies occur, inevitably they would spread. And, it is feared, bring down the entire world's monetary system, with depression to follow.

Find Evidence Of Elusive Subatomic 'W' Particle

NEW YORK (AP) — A giant atom-smashing machine in Switzerland has produced clear evidence of the subatomic W particle, sought for 40 years and believed to carry the "weak force," one of the four basic forces of nature, scientists say.

Researchers believe the discovery is the strongest support so far for a theory that says two of nature's basic forces — electromagnetism and the weak force — are really the same phenomenon showing itself in different ways.

It may be a step toward formation of a "grand unification theory," which postulates that all four basic forces evolved from a single force.

Professor Carlo Rubbia of Harvard University, head of a team working at the giant particle accelerator near Geneva, Switzerland, operated by the multinational CERN consortium, disclosed the discovery Wednesday at a meeting here of the American Physical Society.

The CERN machine is a hollow ring four miles in circumference in which billions of protons — components of the atom's nucleus — are fired at high speed against a beam of antiprotons, mirror images of protons.

Rubbia said a computer examination of billions of particle collisions in the machine last month showed five "clean" events providing clear evidence of W particles.

"This is indeed a major step forward in contemporary physics," the CERN report said.

Modern physics postulates four fundamental forces in nature: the electromagnetic force that binds atoms and molecules together; the strong force that holds an atom's nucleus together; gravity, and the weak force, which is responsible for certain forms of radioactivity.

Ever since James Clerk Maxwell showed in 1865 that electricity and magnetism were different manifestations of the same phenomen, physicists have tried to show that all forces could be tied together in one theory.

In the early 1930s, physicists showed that the force involved in electromagnetism could be thought of as being carried by photons, the basic massless particles that make up light.

Over the years this led to theories that a particle of some kind carries all forces.

In 1967 Steven Weinberg and Abdus Salaam proposed that the weak force and electromagnetism were identical. The W particle, which they called the "intermediate vector boson," should carry the weak force — but it should be extremely heavy and thus detectable only in the decay products of extremely energetic collisions of other particles.

The W particles, about 60 times as heavy as the proton, were found in the fallout of a fireball that released 540 billion electron volts, among the most energetic bursts ever attempted. One electron volt is the energy gained by an electron accelerated by one volt.

Theorists now are trying to tie the "electro-weak" force to the strong force — believed to be carried by massless particles called gluons — in a single theory. No one yet has convincingly been able to bring gravity into theoretical union with other forces.

The Rubbia team's report, to be published in the Feb. 25 issue of Physics Letters, said the work had confirmed "the idea of unification of the weak and electromagnetic forces."

Rubbia said that in addition to the five "clean" cases with strong evidence of W particles, three other possible ones had been identified so far.

Study of the computer data will continue, and beginning in April, another three-month search for W particles will get under way.

Rubbia predicted that as the efficiency of the machine improves, discoveries of the particles will take place at a greater rate.

it's easier to hide things this way."

Rep. Al Adams, (D-Wake), chairman of the House Base Budget Committee, doesn't agree. The only thing being done differently this year involves the reinstatement of the increment salary steps. In the past, that went into the base budget, he said.

Sen. Bob Jordan (D-Rockingham), base budget co-chair in the Senate, said if any members have quarrels about which budget an item has been placed in, they should speak out. Items can be changed, he said.

The matter is likely to get more confused this year as the committees try to decide what the base budget actually is. Is it the budget they approved in 1981? Or, is it the level at which Hunt has allowed state agencies to spend? That's 6 percent lower.

let our brains fluctuate over the promises made by Whisk detergent.

The news anchorman interrupted once more, telling the same story about the nuclear power plant in a more subdued voice. Then several lab assistants passed among us with a tray of cold cream jars containing a scented substance which we were asked to sniff and evaluate. The passing out of the perfume came in two sections, like the Greyhound to Washington; one was called "Romance" and the other "Sport." On a questionnaire attached to a clipboard, we were asked whether the proffered smell was appropriate to a sporting event or a romantic evening or whether our noses were neutral on the subject. Also, the sponsors wanted to know whether "the scent and the name fit each other." Answers like that I could blow out of my lefty nostril.

Lastly, with Bogie vanished completely from the screen before he even asks Sam to play it again, we dealt with written questions about the two commercials and the news cast we had witnessed. This, I presume, was the lie detector part of the process, since physiological testing is based on the principal that people are more aroused by what they experience on a screen than they are willing to admit in person or on paper.

The good news about all this research is that TV commercials may soon be getting shorter. Lab tests have demonstrated that 30-second commercials can have more brain arousal power than 60 second commercials. There is growing evidence, the researchers attest, that most commercials are too long and viewer's minds begin to wander before Whisk or whatever comes to their rescue. Dr. Sidney Weinstein, head of Neurocommunication labs, has demonstrated that as far as holding power goes 5- to 20-second commercials can be more effective from a company's standpoint.

If briefer TV commercials really do come to pass, then loaning my brain to science will not have been in vain. And now this...

pend on the success of new artists, is sapping its own lifeblood. "It's a Catch-22," said longtime WHFS DJ John "Weasel" Gilbert. "You can't sell records unless you get air time, but you can't get air time unless you sell records."

Cut off from the new and different, many listeners will also miss out on the depth and breadth of contemporary music. Whatever its technological wonders, the dark side of centralized programming may be personified by the rollerskater who, ears wrapped in a Walkman, listens unwittingly to music fed from a tape machine 3,000 miles away.

Demos List 18 Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic leaders made a series of proposals in their nationally televised response to President Reagan's State of the Union message.

Here is a list of the 18 specific proposals put forward during the 28-minute show produced by the Democrats and carried by the major commercial television networks after Reagan's speech Tuesday night.

1. Fair Rate Tax — A tax reform package that would "simplify tax laws and make them equitable by eliminating unfair loopholes. It will also lower tax rates significantly for all Americans," said Sen. Bill Bradley of New Jersey in the nationally televised Democratic show.
2. Pay-as-you-go budgeting — "It says simply that no bill or program can be enacted until a way of paying for it has been found," said California Rep. George Miller.
3. Byrd-Wright Interest Rate bill — "It directs the Federal Reserve board to make sure interest rates are lowered and lowered automatically in relation to inflation," said Rep. Barbara Bailey Kennelly of Connecticut.
4. Commitment to research and development — At least 3 percent of the Gross National Product should be spent on research and development, with the government cooperating in the effort.
5. Economic Cooperation Council — A group made up of business, labor and government designed to "work together in building our country's economic future," said Rep. Timothy Wirth of Colorado.
6. Low interest rates for small business — Loans to help small businesses get started should carry the lowest possible interest rates.
7. More R&D for small business — A greater share of research and development money would be allocated to small companies.
8. Reform for small business — "Surely we need to reform tax and regulatory policies toward small business," said Rep. Parren Mitchell of Maryland.
9. Export Trading Companies — Such companies should be formed to help farmers market their products around the world.
10. National Investment Corp. — The government should set up a national investment corporation to help "provide the capital funds for revitalization and modernization of our basic industries," said Sen. Robert Byrd of West Virginia.
11. Tougher trade policies — "America must get just as tough on trade as our world competitors to make sure that every other nation plays by the same fair rules that we do," Byrd added.
12. American Defense Education Act — This bill would propose greater emphasis on math, science and computer literacy; more teacher training and rigorous testing.
13. Energy independence — "We propose a goal of becoming a net energy exporter by the year 2000," said Sen. Walter Huddleston of Kentucky.
14. Alternative energy sources — More money should be allocated to research into other sources of energy, Huddleston added.
15. Military strength and readiness — "The Soviet military buildup is real and we must respond to it," said Sen. Paul Tsongas of Massachusetts.
16. Better military coordination with allies — The allies should pay their fair share of defense costs even as coordination among American allies is improved.
17. Control Pentagon waste — Better control should be exercised on wasteful military spending.
18. Nuclear Freeze — "The Democratic Party believes that it is time to negotiate a mutual and balanced and verifiable reduction of nuclear arms on both sides," said Rep. Tom Daschle of South Dakota.

Watt Points To Tenure Success

WASHINGTON (AP) — Squaring off with his congressional critics at the mid-point of President Reagan's term, Interior Secretary James G. Watt says he has had "two years of marvelous success" at the department.

"I came with an agenda. I came with a resolve to bring about change," Watt said in an appearance before the House Interior Committee on Wednesday.

"The federal estate and other natural resources — the national parks, the national refuges, the coastal barriers, the wetlands, the national forests and public lands — are better managed today than they were two years ago," he said.

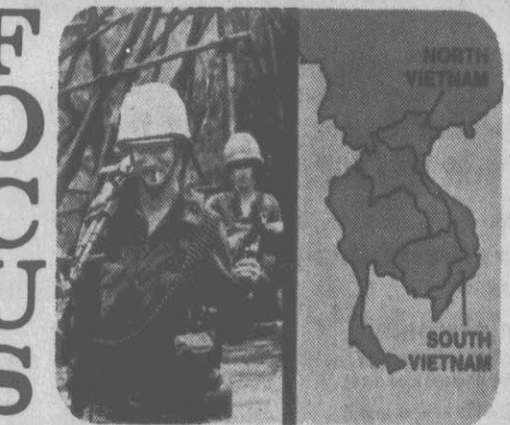

Watt, who has run into a storm of criticism for remarking that Indian reservations are examples of "failures of socialism, agreed to take part in a series of congressional hearings aimed at formulating a national policy on Indians.

Stress Need Of Role In Space

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the new Air Force Space Command says the United States needs a strong military space program because the Soviet Union has accelerated its military activity in space.

Gen. James V. Hartinger told a National Space Club luncheon that establishment of the command last Sept. 1 was "a crucial milestone in the evolution of military space applications."

He said the Pentagon set up the command, which equals the Strategic Air Command on the organization charts, because it recognized that space has become a theater of operations, just like the land, sea and air.

FOCUS

The Longest War

Ten years ago today, the United States and North Vietnam, along with South Vietnam and the Viet Cong, signed peace pacts in Paris, ending the longest war in U.S. history. In 1950, 35 American advisors went to Vietnam to help French forces maintain colonial rule of their Southeast Asian provinces. The French were defeated in 1954, and Vietnam was divided into two parts. But the war continued. From 1954 on, the U.S. sent military advisors to help South Vietnam in its war against the communist North. By February of 1969, 543,000 U.S. troops were there. The last Americans were evacuated in April, 1975, when South Vietnam fell. In 23 years of U.S. involvement, 57,702 Americans died.

DO YOU KNOW — What U.S. President first sent military advisors to Vietnam?

WEDNESDAY'S ANSWER — Devils Island was the French penal colony off the coast of Guiana.

Home Inspections To Begin

A representative of Talbert & Cox Associates is scheduled to begin inspecting homes this week in the area to be affected by the North Winterville Revitalization Project, according to Winterville Town Clerk Elwood Nobles.

The Town Board of Aldermen held a special meeting earlier this week to inform citizens how the project, funded by a $729,254 Community Block Grant, will be administered.

"In time the representative will get to each person individually," Nobles said. "If you are not contacted at once, you will be soon."

The budget for the project is as follows: water service and fire protection, $38,964; street improvements, $29,232; clearance activities, $5,000; relocation assistance, $5,500; rehabilitation of private dwellings, $561,000; administration, (fee for Talbert & Cox) $89,558.

Bloodmobile Collects 494 Pints

The Bloodmobile experienced what Ruth Taylor of the Pitt Red Cross described as "two excellent days" this week at East Carolina University as the campus drive netted almost 500 pints of blood.

Mrs. Taylor said 238 pints were collected Tuesday and 256 on Wednesday for an overall total of 494 units. She said there were 64 deferrals recorded during the two-day drive at Mendenhall Student Center.

The campus drive was sponsored by the Biology Club at ECU, headed by Karen Thomas, president. Volunteer help was provided by the Greenville Service League.

The next Bloodmobile is scheduled for Feb. 9 at Rose High School, followed by a Feb. 28 visit at the Moose Lodge.

Cars driven by Anne Carol Fisher of 105A Cherry Court and Luke Brown Jr., of Ayden collided about 9:25 a.m. Wednesday at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street.

The early-morning rain that fell in Pitt County today totaled only .14 inch by 8 a.m., according to a spokesman at the Greenville Utilities Water Plant.

Temperatures remained moderate this morning with a 42-degree Fahrenheit reading recorded at 8 a.m. by GUC. The high Wednesday was 52 degrees and the low reached 28 degrees.

The forecast calls for sunshine to return Friday with partly cloudy conditions throughout the weekend. Highs in the 50s to 60s and lows in the 30s and 40s are expected.

Solicitation Requests Approved

Police Chief Glenn Cannon announced the approval of two requests for solicitation permits.

He said the requests were submitted by: Piney Grove Free Will Baptist Church to conduct a merchant solicitation through April 23 to obtain items to be auctioned at a sale on April 23; and by the American Cancer Society, Pitt County unit, to conduct door-to-door, merchant and special event solicitations March 28 through July 31 to raise funds for the annual Cancer Crusade.

His Law Office 'Mobile'

MOBILE LAW — Paul Swanson, 79, has practiced the last 11 of his nearly 52 legal career from the back of his Volkswagen van since a mild heart condition forced him to give up a second-floor office. (AP Laserphoto)

EAGLE MILLS, N.C. (AP) — Attorney Paul Swanson's shingle has been hung in the same place for 10 years, but his clients still have trouble finding it.

The 79-year-old Moravian Falls native has been working out of a 1969 Volkswagen bus in Wilkes and Iredell counties since a mild heart attack forced him to give up his Statesville office in 1971.

"It's not much, but you can't beat the rent," Swanson said of the bus, which is equipped with a kerosene heater, sleeping bag, battered typewriter and law books.

"I used to pull up in a parking space next to the old Iredell Courthouse and just keep feeding the meters, but a judge came along and said, 'Paul, don't know how many, but you're violating at least three city ordinances.' So I had to move."

So Swanson took his practice to a friend's driveway near the new Iredell County Hall of Justice.

"I'd just put my sign out and wait," Swanson said. "He didn't charge me anything, and people came to know where to look for me."

While Swanson's business cards still list that address, the site has since been sold for the construction of a new Northwestern Bank branch. Now the attorney parks in the driveway of his Eagle Mills home.

Swanson worked as a postal clerk, coal miner, carpenter and Fuller Brush salesman before passing the state bar examination in 1931. He was licensed to practice law without having earned a law degree.

Swanson practiced law in Wilkes, Ashe and Alleghany counties. In Alleghany, there were only three other attorneys when he began practicing law there.

"I had a client that I represented from Ashe County who sent me 37 cents for my services," Swanson said. "He said he figured that would be enough, and I didn't tell him any different. He might have been right."

But after more than half a century of practicing his profession, Swanson said he doesn't have an enemy in the world.

"As the man said, I guess I've outlived all the rascals."

Stoppard Play Is Named Best

LONDON (AP) — A new play by Tom Stoppard, called "The Real Thing," had enough right stuff to be named the best play of 1982 by The Standard, a London evening newspaper.

The play about love and infidelity stars Roger Rees, who played Nicholas in the Royal Shakespeare Co.'s recent and acclaimed adaptation of Dickens' "Nicholas Nickleby."

Alec McGowan's portrayal of an aging Adolf Hitler in the play "The Portage to St. Cristobal of A.H." won him the best actor award.

Judi Dench was best actress for her performances as Lady Bracknell in "The Importance of Being Earnest" and in Harold Pinter's latest play, "A Kind of Alaska."

A special award to Sir John Gielgud was presented by his longtime colleague, Sir Ralph Richardson, in honor of his six decades on the British stage.

CRITICS PUNISHED
ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — A martial law court has fined the editor of the Istanbul daily Cumhuriyet the equivalent of $50 and sentenced his columnist to prison for three months for publishing an editorial critical of the new constitution before the national referendum that approved it.

Bruising Pacific Storm Has Moved Inland

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer
A bruising Pacific storm slammed inland today after destroying seaside buildings with barn-sized waves, forcing dozens of coastal residents to evacuate, darkening 100,000 California homes and closing two highways with heavy rain that sent rivers overflowing.

The string of coastal storms which began Sunday is already blamed for seven deaths. Wednesday's violent weather was only the vanguard of a still worse storm expected to hit today.

In unusually forceful language, the Weather Service warned people who lived near creeks and rivers in Northern California that they might have to "act quickly to save yourself and those who depend on you. You may only have seconds."

The storm whipped down the Pacific Coast and was expected to cross the Rockies today, reaching western Wyoming and Montana. In the Midwest, meanwhile, heavy snow made driving hazardous and two traffic fatalities were reported in Missouri.

"It's a nasty one," said Harry Gordon, of the National Weather Service's Severe Storm Center in Kansas City.
Near Redding, Calif., a mudslide Wednesday shoved two pickups, a bulldozer and a bus carrying Shasta County prisoners down a 60-yard ravine and into a creek, killing a county employee, public works crewman David Waterman. The prisoners had been trying to clear a flooded road choked with mud.
In southern Oregon, 80-100 mph wind gusts interrupted a search for a hiker lost near Mount Ashland, and waves pulled one man and four trucks into the surf of Coos Bay; all were safely retrieved.

At least 100,000 homes, most in the San Francisco Bay area, lost power, said Dennis Pooler, spokesman for Pacific Gas & Electric Co. Pacific Telephone reported 3,000 phone circuits out.
Posh San Francisco hotels offered bargain rates to commuters stranded by mudslides and power failures on electric trolley lines.
Tides rose to a record 9.93 feet at the Rio Vista Bridge on the Sacramento River, said state flood emergency coordinator Bill Helms.
North of San Francisco, high tides forced 35 people from their homes at San Rafael, and 20 people fled homes along Corte Madera Creek at Corte Madera, also in Marin County.
The storm sweeping over the Santa Cruz Mountains was expected to bring a foot of rain to the area 90 miles south of San Francisco, where 18 people died when mudslides crushed several homes last January.
Downpours caused the Russian and Navarro rivers to spill their banks Wednesday, forcing closure of two highways. People living along creeks and rivers were warned to prepare for possible evacuation.
The California Transportation Department said it might close a three-mile stretch of a freeway in Fresno so it could be used as a giant catch basin for runoff that otherwise would flood low-lying subdivisions.
Thirty-foot waves rocked Humboldt Bay near San Francisco. Five fishermen rowed an emergency skiff to shore after their 58-foot wooden boat sank near Alcatraz Island, the Coast Guard said.

In Point Arena, a coastal town 150 miles to the north, winds and rain destroyed a pier supporting a cafe and a fish packing company. The breakfast crowd had to leave their eggs to flee the wreckage, which was washed out to sea.
Residents in coastal cities stacked tons of sandbags to protect their homes against a high tide coupled with 15-foot waves, which tore boats loose from moorings.
"It's just raining like mad," said Master Chief Bob Manners of the Coos Bay Coast Guard station. With breakers of 25 feet, he said, the "swells are coming in and throwing rocks on roads near the water."
To the east, up to half a foot of snow fell in Kansas, causing scores of rush-hour accidents in Kansas City and St. Joseph, Mo. Schools closed in much of northwest Missouri. An 18-year-old woman was killed when a car driven by her twin sister slid into the path of another car near Sedalia, Mo., and a truck driver died near Boonville, Mo., when his truck slid down an embankment.
By early today, the snow had spread eastward from northern Mississippi to western Pennsylvania and New York, with travelers advisories issued for North Carolina.
Earlier, 6 inches of snow was reported in the Kansas towns of Marysville, Manhattan and Washington, with 5 inches on the ground at warrensburg, Mo.
In southern Oregon, the brutal winds and eight-foot snowdrifts hampered the search for snowshoe hiker Don Sweet, but rescuers hoped to resume their mission later today.

In southern California, shifting sands trapped vessels inside Santa Barbara harbor.
At Carpinteria, 12 miles east of Santa Barbara, 4 feet of sand was washed from at least one beach, leaving only rocks. Residents boarded up windows on beach homes and sandbagged against predicted 15-foot waves that were expected to ride in today on a 7-foot tide.
The severe weather also slowed the progress of the 85,000-ton aircraft carrier USS Kitty Hawk, which left Bremerton, Wash., on Monday for its home port of San Diego, the Navy said.

The Forecast For Friday, January 28

Low Temperatures

Rain [diagonal lines] Snow [dots]
Showers [horizontal lines] Flurries [asterisks]

WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecasts cold weather for most of the country on Friday. Mild weather is due for the Pacific coast and Southeast and rain in northern California. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press
Snow should turn into flurries in mountain areas of North Carolina tonight, and precipitation should come to an end in most areas of the state by the late in the evening.
Accumulations of from 1 to 3 inches of snow were expected in the mountains today before tapering of flurries late in the afternoon.
Lows will range from the 20s in the west to 30s east. Highs will be in the 40s.
As a low pressure area moves up the coast tonight, northerly winds across the Tar Heel state will usher some colder air into the state. This colder air may change the rains to some snow flurries across the Piedmont and Coastal Plain before the precipitation ends.

Weather Friday should be partly cloudy, except for the Outer Banks where there is a chance of morning rain.
Along the coast winds blowing east to northeast will increase to 15 to 25 knots by tonight. Small craft advisories may necessary later today.

A low pressure area along the Gulf Coast early today spread a mixture of precipitation into North Carolina during the early morning hours, with central and Piedmont areas getting some rain mixed with sleet.
Some rain will linger along the Outer Banks into early Friday, but for the most part clearing to partly cloudy skies will be the rule across the state.

An Easy Winner In Vote On Falklands

LONDON (AP) — With a 52-vote majority, the House of Commons has endorsed an independent report absolving Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government of blame for failing to foresee or block Argentina's invasion of the Falkland Islands last spring.
Wednesday's 292-240 vote defeated an opposition Labor Party motion seeking to condemn the Conservative government for not having seen the April 2 attack on the British colony coming.
The Conservatives have a 36-seat majority in the 635-seat Commons.
The vote capped a raucous two-day debate on a government-ordered inquiry into the 74-day war with Argentina, which claimed 255 British and 712 Argentine lives. The report found Mrs. Thatcher, her aides and ministers could not have foreseen or prevented the invasion.

Laborites claimed the report, published Jan. 18, was a whitewash. They claimed testimony during the inquiry headed by Lord Franks showed the government could have avoided the war.
During Wednesday's debate, Mrs. Thatcher said her government regarded the wishes of the 1,800 fiercely pro-British Falkland Islanders as paramount in deciding the future of the South Atlantic islands off the southeast coast of Argentina.
To opponents who wanted her to negotiate with Argentina about the islands' future, she said: "About what? It is obvious that the Argentines see the negotiations solely as a means of achieving the direct transfer of sovereignty of the Falklands and the dependencies to Argentina."

She said Argentine ideas of Britain transferring sovereignty of the disputed islands are "totally unacceptable to us and to the islanders, and no amount of pressure will induce me to enter into negotiations on that basis."

Solar Fraction

The solar fraction for this area Wednesday, as computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 46. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 46 percent of your hot water needs.

State Revenues Not Yet Pointing To An Upturn

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State Revenue Secretary Mark Lynch says North Carolina may be on the edge of an economic upturn, but that trend isn't reflected in the December 1982 tax collections.

The revenue report released Wednesday shows that general tax collections rose only 2.6 percent in December compared with December 1981. That brings the revenue growth for the first six months of the fiscal year to 4.6 percent.

The increase falls short of a projected 8.9 percent increase for the 1982-83 fiscal year and a 3.4 percent increase in November.

Gov. Jim Hunt has ordered state departments to reduce spending to avoid a projected $150 million shortfall this year.

The statistics are "not very encouraging," Lynch said. "It is my uneducated feeling that North Carolina's economy is approaching a turnaround situation," he said.

State budget administrator Karen Bunn told the Senate Finance Committee on Wednesday that she also believes an upturn is coming soon. She and Lynch pointed to lower unemployment, manufacturing inventories and interest rates.

Ms. Bunn said that the size of increases in state revenues have been limited to the rate of inflation for the past year.

Lynch said the main reason for the sluggish revenue growth in December was the income tax collection, which grew only 1.4 percent. More than half the general tax revenues come from income taxes.

He noted that the sales and use tax collections rose 6 percent and holiday retail sales will not be reflected until January statistics are released.

Taxes on new car sales rose 29 percent but Lynch said that figure was exaggerated because there was a decrease in those revenues in December 1981.

About $1.8 million was taken from the cigarette tax collections in November and December to reimburse local governments. Lynch said the state reimburses cities and counties for 15 percent of the cost of increasing the homestead exemption for the elderly from $7,500 to $8,500.

General tax collections for December were $256.8 million compared with $250.2 million in December 1981. Collections for the first six months were $1.6 billion compared with $1.5 billion in 1981.

Highway Fund collections in December were $41.6 million, a 3.3 percent increase over the $40.3 million collected in December 1981. Monthly gasoline tax collections were $32.3 million, almost the same amount collected in December 1982.

Highway Fund collections for the first half of the year were $251.6 million, up 3.9 percent from the $242.2 million collected in 1981. Gas tax receipts for the period were $193.8 million, up 1.9 percent from $190.2 million for the previous year.

Computer May Turn Living Room Into Classroom

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Home computers and new video discs may turn living rooms into classrooms so effective that public schools will have to abandon their blackboards to compete, researchers say.

Video discs capable of storing an hour of film make it possible for students to learn from their mistakes, said John Pyecha, a mathematician at Research Triangle Institute at Research Triangle Park. He was among more than a dozen experts appearing Wednesday at a symposium on electronic leisure at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

"The military is very much into video discs now," Pyecha said. "They can run an ROTC candidate through a simulated command process in which he can make decisions and see their outcomes."

For example, a student may be shown a film in which a lieutenant is hurrying to meet his superior when he notices a sergeant neglecting his duties. The computer will ask, "What do you do?" and the response dictates how the film progresses, Pyecha said.

"It takes you through and paces you," he said. "If you make a mistake, you can go back and try another solution."

"This kind of thing could have a direct bearing on the controversy over parents educating their children at home," he added. "At the very least, it will live up to that issue."

"We learn best by doing, yet even today if you look at the schools, they teach by language," said Ralph Wileman, a professor of education at UNC. "The technology is here to the point that a recent audio-visual show filled the Superdome in New Orleans with it."

"The schools have basically ignored it," he added. "But all of this technology portends well for the home as a center for learning. This will make the schools even less credible."

A video disc system, which reads discs with lasers, now costs between $1,500 and $2,000, while a home computer capable of running it may be purchased for as little as $1,200, Pyecha said.

Wileman, saying discs cost only one-tenth as much to produce as video tapes, predicted further price reductions.

"The video disc will do to the moving image what the paperback did to the book," he said. "As soon as we get standardization, you'll see a tremendous plummeting of prices."

However, Wileman said, the sudden advance in computer literacy could leave the poor behind.

"All of you will have it and your children and their children will benefit," he said. "But those who can't afford it will suffer a new kind of deprivation."

The computer's exceptional ability to teach is closely tied to the qualities that make video games so enthralling, said Doug Sessoms, chairman of recreation curriculum at UNC.

"This kind of play gets you into total involvement because of the multi-stimulation from all your senses," he said.

Computer teachers might even be used to train workers who lost jobs to computers — an ever increasing problem.

"Technology in general involves replacing manual labor with machine labor," said Stephen F. Weiss, a computer science professor at UNC. "But somebody's got to build those industrial robots. Somebody's got to maintain them and somebody's got to program them."

John Silva, a sports psychologist with the UNC Department of Physical Education, said conventional education has been too slow to keep pace with technology.

"We need to have a commitment to people in addition to our commitment to the machine," he said.

Earlier Wednesday, Robert N. Wilson, a UNC sociologist, cautioned against spending too much time with games.

"The video games so far as I know them are essentially contentless," he said. "They represent a form of what I would call empty leisure. They replace more valuable forms of the leisure experience. Self-knowledge is going to be one of the main losses to video-game overplaying."

Expert Testifies No Change In Wayne's School District Lines

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A demography and planning expert has testified there was an enormous shift of whites outside of Goldsboro city limits between 1960 and 1980 but that school district lines were not adjusted to keep a racial balance.

Yale Rabin, testifying for the Goldsboro City Schools, also testified that 91 percent of all white county students, including Goldsboro, reside within the county, while only 9 percent reside within the city limits.

"Ninety-one percent of white pupils are over the safe barrier of this immovable line that separates Wayne County and the Goldsboro schools," said Rabin, an associate professor of urban and environmental planning and an assistant dean of the school of architecture at the University of Virginia.

Rabin said while there was "very little change in the black population" from 1960 to 1980, there was "an enormous shift of the white population."

He made his remarks in U.S. District Court Wednesday in the seventh trial day of a lawsuit filed by the Goldsboro City Schools against the county school system. The suit seeks a solution allowing greater city-schools integration.

Goldsboro City schools are more than 77 percent black while Wayne County schools are more than 32 percent black.

Rabin, hired in 1981 by the Goldsboro School district to prepare a study of demographic changes, said Goldsboro school district's white population declined 43.5 percent between 1960 and 1980 while the county's increased 70.6 percent.

In that time, he said Goldsboro black population increased 10.4 percent while the county's rose 1.2 percent.

Seymour Johnson Air Force Base is "predominantly white," Rabin said, and it accounts for 16.6 percent of Wayne County's pupils, including 11.5 percent of all whites and 7 percent of all blacks, and 7.7 percent of Goldsboro's students.

The base is within the Goldsboro city limits, but not the school district lines.

"It is certainly clear that no attempt was made to alter the districts in response to the changes or was any attempt made to bring black students in," Rabin said. "Portable classes added to accommodate these changes sent the message, 'You (white students) keep coming, we'll provide the room."

Rabin said a school "has to have room to accommodate more students to be a white haven," in addition to being mostly white. Rabin said that in one instance, at Rosewood School, the School Board and administration helped foster that by adding portable classrooms.

"Their actions had no function but to preserve the racial characteristic of the Wayne County schools," he said.

Earlier Wednesday, the director of the Wayne County Industrial Development Commission testified that a racial imbalance between city and county schools has made it hard to attract new industry to Goldsboro.

W. Craig Kennedy Jr. said a study in 1980 showed that a disagreement between the city and county school systems over merging had hurt development of the community.

Goldsboro City Schools filed suit against Wayne County Schools, claiming the county was promoting a dual school system in the area with the city schools mostly black and the county schools mostly white.

Defends Waste Disposal Effort

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A state House committee should delay consideration of a bill that would sharply limit hazardous waste disposal, says the chairman of the Governor's Waste Management Board.

Claud "Buck" O'Shields also defended the board Wednesday against allegations that it was dragging its feet on completing a list of hazardous wastes produced in North Carolina.

Debate on the waste disposal bill was held up as members of the House Water and Air Resources Committee said they couldn't proceed without the audit. Introduced by Rep. Joe Mavretic, D-Edgecombe, the bill would prohibit placing most hazardous wastes underground or in landfills.

O'Shields said the listing process had been slowed when a federal requirement that the lists be compiled was scrapped last year. He said a report containing most of the information would be finished by late February and urged the committee to delay action on the bill until then.

"We decided we needed a more in-depth analysis and we contracted with a private company to do it," O'Shields said. "The report would be a guide that I think the committee would find helpful."

O'Shields said all but a few North Carolina industries voluntarily supplied information on the wastes they produce after the federal requirement was eliminated.

But Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, disagreed.

"If the cooperation was so wonderful, why don't we have a satisfactory audit?" Pulley asked. "It's kind of hard to regulate something if you don't know what it is you're regulating."

In an interview after the meeting, O'Shields said North Carolina has avoided the problem of waste disposal by shipping the wastes to other states and warned that that might not always be feasible. He said 96 percent of the hazardous wastes in the state were treated on site but that provisions must be made for disposal of the remaining wastes.

The bill, entitled "Public Protection from Landfilling," specifically mentions pesticides, PCBs, cyanide, toxic wastes, flammable liquids and explosives. But Mavretic complained that without the audit, "a precise definition of hazardous substances is very difficult."

"This bill satisfies the desire of the people of North Carolina," Mavretic said. "The people want prohibition of the burial of hazardous wastes in this state.... This promises to be a short, controversial bill."

Rep. Foyle Hightower Jr., D-Anson, a co-sponsor of the bill, also praised the legislation.

"If there's one underground facility in the United States that is not leaking, I'd like to know where it is," he said. "We're talking about deadly chemicals... the kind that kill people, that deform babies."

Dog May Live If Out Of N.C.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The city of Charlotte and the owner of a dog that mauled a boy have agreed to spare the dog's life — if the animal is sent out of the state.

"I specified certain conditions that must prevail," said Assistant City Manager Don Steger Tuesday after a hearing. "One of the principals is that the animal be transported to Louisiana. At no time will the dog be kept in this county."

Meanwhile, the dog, Thunder, a 2-year-old Alaskan Malamute, will remain in the custody of the animal shelter.

Thunder mauled 8-year-old Charles Jason Brown of Charlotte last October when the boy was playing in his yard. The boy received more than 50 stitches in the arm and upper lip. His father, Charles Franklin Brown, said the child will have to have plastic surgery.

The dog was declared vicious by the city Animal Control Division, which recommended that the dog be destroyed. But Thunder's owner, James Edgehill, appealed the recommendation, saying his dog attacked the boy because the boy had beaten the dog with a stick.

Nicaragua's Clergy Keep Banned Role

By ISAAC A. LEVI
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — Despite a papal order banning clergymen from political activism, five priests hold high government posts in Nicaragua and others are fighting alongside guerrillas in El Salvador and Guatemala.

For the most part, however, direct clergy involvement in Latin American politics appears to have decreased since its high point in the 1970s.

Pope John Paul II on Tuesday signed a revised set of church laws incorporating his opposition to priests and nuns holding political office.

In 1980, while on a trip to Mexico, he declared that any clerical political involvement was incompatible with a religious vocation — a doctrine that later was made part of church policy.

The pope's considerable personal popularity in Latin America, combined with his stand that priests and nuns are duty-bound to help the poor, worked to persuade the clergy in most countries to be more low-key, church observers say.

The main exception is in leftist-ruled Nicaragua, where five priests have kept high positions, including the post of foreign minister, in the Sandinista regime that overthrew the rightist dictatorship of the late Anastasio Somoza in July, 1979.

This may be a source of embarrassment to the pontiff when he visits in March during a planned Central American tour. The new church laws clearly state that priests and nuns are forbidden from holding public offices without their bishop's authorization.

Nicaragua's foreign minister, the Rev. Miguel D'Escoto, accuses the local church hierarchy of trying to portray him and the other four priests as being "in rebellion."

"I am a priest," he said in a recent interview with The Associated Press in Managua. "By the grace of God I am a priest and that's something they cannot take away from me ever."

D'Escoto defended his participation in the government by quoting from the parable of the Good Samaritan, the social outcast who helped the wounded man ignored by church officials and the rich.

He compared the wounded man to his own country and said, "I too have run into the wounded man. My people were suffering, and I had to dedicate myself fully to the task of helping them following the example of Our Lord."

The four other priests in the government are the Rev. Ernesto Cardenal, culture minister; the Rev. Fernando Cardenal, head of the Sandinista Youth Movement; the Rev. Alvaro Arguello, a member of the state advisory council, and the Rev. Edgar Parrales, Nicaragua's ambassador to the Organization of American States in Washington.

The church in Nicaragua backed the anti-Somoza rebellion, which included many Marxists, but later accused the revolutionary government of abandoning democratic pluralism for a course toward totalitarianism.

Church leaders asked the five priests to resign in 1981, arguing that the period of national emergency following the revolution had ended and their participation in government was no longer needed.

An agreement was reached under which the priests were barred from practicing their ministry in public as long as they remained in government.

In El Salvador, reporters in the fighting zones have seen at least four priests fighting with guerrillas, including Father Rogelio, who celebrates Mass in the main plaza whenever the rebels seize a town. He periodically conducts Mass for "Los Muchachos" (the boys) on the guerrillas' clandestine Radio Venceremos.

In Guatemala, the government says at least seven priests have joined the guerrillas. Guerrilla publications distributed in Mexico mention at least four priests on their side.

Seek Wisconsin 'Official Soil'

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Wisconsin will have an official state soil, Antigo silt loam, if a state senator has his way.

"It's high time we recognize what's underfoot," said Sen. Fred Risser, a Democrat from Madison, announcing plans Wednesday to introduce legislation containing a salute to soil on the grounds that Antigo silt loam is found only in Wisconsin.

"Soil has always been an indicator in determining wealth and quality of life, and Antigo silt loam has been particularly useful in Wisconsin," the senator said. "It supports dairy farming, potatoes and timber, attesting to its unique versatility."

Mail

The state revenue secretary would be able to pay an outside firm to mail state income tax forms at a cheaper rate under a bill that received its second reading in the House.

The measure, introduced by Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, would allow the forms to be mailed out directly by the Pennsylvania firm that prints them.

The company now ships the forms to Raleigh, where the Revenue Department addresses and mails them.

Lilley said his bill would reduce the cost for mailing each form from 20 cents to 17 cents.

Inheritance

Lilley introduced legislation aimed at making North Carolina's inheritance tax law conform to recent federal changes concerning "gifts in contemplation of death."

Under the bill, gifts given within three years of the donor's death would not be subject automatically to the inheritance tax.

Currently, gifts given with a three-year period prior to the donor's death which exceed $3,000 are subject to the tax.

Lilley also said he would consider recommending that the annual gift tax exclusion be raised from $3,000 to as high as $10,000 "to keep up with inflation."

Committee members shouldn't take a stand on tax bills until they've heard from both sides in the matter, Rauch warned. Otherwise, they might find themselves committed to vote for a bill they really did not support.

Inmates

A measure was approved by the House Corrections Committee including females among the inmates for whom local governments are reimbursed for accommodating.

The bill was sent to the Finance Committee.

Currently, cities and counties are reimbursed only for feeding and housing male inmates.

"County commissioners will love you for this," said Rep. Howard Chapin, D-Beaufort. "It's really the least we can do."

Evidence

Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, introduced a bill that would gather North Carolina's rules of evidence used in court into one law. Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, introduced similar legislation in the Senate.

The legislation follows a four-year probe by a legislative study commission.

"It carries forward in one body of law the laws or rules of evidence now scattered in various court decisions and some state statutes," said Pulley.

He said the measure would simplify the rules of evidence, save court time and make it easier for attorneys to try a case on its merits.

The bills were examined individually in the 1981 session, said Rauch, chairman of the Finance Committee. The Appropriations Committee traditionally has handled spending bills as a package and Rauch said when he was Finance Committee chairman in 1979 he followed that procedure with tax changes.

Committee members shouldn't take a stand on tax bills until they've heard from both sides in the matter, Rauch warned. Otherwise, they might find themselves committed to vote for a bill they really did not support.

Vikes Win, Set Up Battle For Top

WHEAT SWAMP — D.H. Conley's Vikings downed North Lenoir, 85-78, last night to set up a meeting with chief Coastal Conference rival West Craven on Friday. Both teams come into the game unbeaten in league play.

Conley's girls, however, suffered their first league loss, falling to North Lenoir, 49-44. Both teams had come into the game with no defeats in the league.

Conley, now 3-0 in boys' play, eased out into a 17-15 lead in the first period and was able to slightly increase it to 41-38 at the half.

The Vikings continued to ease away in the third period, building the lead out to 60-55. They outthit North Lenoir, 35-23, in the final quarter to claim the win.

"I wasn't surprised at the closeness of the game over there," Coach Shelley Marsh said.

The Vikings got top games from two players, Mitchell Cox and Otis Payton. Both were 8-for-13 from the floor, with Cox handing out seven assists, while Payton had nine rebounds and three assists.

"We're beginning to get a little of the balance we need," Marsh said.

Keith Gatlin led the Vikings with 20 points, while Cayton had 18 and Cox had 16. Alvin Clemons added 12 more. North Lenoir was led by Maurice Thorbes with 26, while James Fisher had 21 and Larry Johnson had 14.

Conley is now 12-3 overall. North Lenoir is 1-2 in the league and 5-10 overall.

Conley's girls, now 2-1 in Coastal play, matched points with North Lenoir, 10-10, in the first period. In the second neither team could gain an edge and it ended at 18-18.

The third period, however, saw the Lady Hawks begin to pull away. They outthit the Valkyries, 12-6, and took a 30-24 lead. Conley tried to rally, 20-19, but fell short.

The difference was at the foul line, where North Lenoir hit 9 of 20, to Conley's 2 of 6.

Stephanie Hemby led North Lenoir with 16, while Wilhelmina Cratch added 11. Conley was paced by Irish Barnhill and Mechio Kornegay, each with 12, while Darlene Cannon had 10.

Conley's is now 14-2 overall. North Lenoir is 3-0 in the league and 12-3 overall.

Conley plays host to West Craven on Friday.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — As a youth, he wrestled a bear. As a man, he wrestled with something else — a drive for perfection the world of college football had never seen before.

Paul William "Bear" Bryant — craggy-faced, gravel-voiced, the toughest kind of field master, the softest touch to friends in need — is dead at 69.

Flags at the Alabama State Capitol in Montgomery flew at half-staff today as though a national hero had fallen. And for many, including the president of the United States, one had.

"We Americans lost a hero who always seemed larger than life," President Reagan said as eulogies for Bryant came in from every corner of the country.

Bryant, four weeks to the day after he shuffled off into retirement as the winningest coach in the history of his sport, died Wednesday of a heart attack, a death that stunned Alabama's followers and reduced strong young athletes to tears.

"Quit coaching? I'd croak in a week," he once said. It took almost a month.

The entire 1982 Alabama football team — a squad that struggled to an un-Bryant-like 8-4 record but capped the Bear's career with a 21-15 victory over Illinois in his final game at the Liberty Bowl last Dec. 29 — will serve as honorary pallbearers at funeral services Friday.

Eight will be selected to carry the casket of Bryant, who earned his famed nickname as a youth when he wrestled a bear in a traveling circus. He will be buried at Elmwood Cemetery in Birmingham after services at the First Methodist Church in Tuscaloosa.

Many of the foremost figures in college football are expected to attend, many of them Bryant disciples who played or coached under him during the course of his record-setting 38-year career.

Bryant's death, caused by a sudden massive heart attack at a hospital one day after he was admitted with chest pains, left Crimson Tide followers in tears. Some wept on the air as radio stations broke off regular programming to open call-in shows about Bryant.

The death was also mourned at the highest levels of government.

Reagan eulogized Bryant as "a hard, but loved, taskmaster. Patriotic to the core, devoted to his players and inspired by a winning spirit that would not quit, Bear Bryant gave this country the gift of a life unsurpassed."

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, ordering flags at the capitol lowered, called Bryant "a man among men who brought great fame and honor to Alabama."

Bryant captured the imagination of many by sending his often small, always well-disciplined teams to the top of the rankings, winning national titles in 1961, 1964 and 1965.

Later he would add two more — in 1978 and 1979 — and closed his career with a 323-85-17 record. He passed Amos Alonzo Stagg's mark of 314 career victories in 1981.

Bryant's death was unexpected, even though he suffered from mild heart trouble in recent years.

His doctor, William A. Hill, said Bryant's heart stopped at 12:24 p.m., CST, Wednesday and efforts to restore his heartbeat began immediately.

"We did put a pacemaker through his chest and were able to restore a weak heartbeat" for about an hour, Hill said. Bryant was declared dead at 1:30 p.m.

Conley Wins, Ices Mat Title

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley's wrestling Vikings celebrated a few things last night after pinning Havelock with a 44-25 defeat. Not only did the victory sew up a second straight Coastal Conference regular season title for the Vikings, but it brought Coach Milt Sherman his 100th victory at the school.

Sherman is now 100-14 in his career at Conley.

Conley's season record climbs to 13-1 overall and 5-0 in the league. The Vikes have one remaining dual meet, tonight at home against West Carteret at 7 p.m.

Conley had little trouble in the match, winning eight of the 13 weights, six of them in pins. Three of those pins took less than a minute. William Bridgett pinned his opponent at 157 pounds in 28 seconds, while 187-pounder Mike Long took 41 seconds. Heavyweight Stacy McCarter pushed his opponent's shoulders to the mat in just 38 seconds.

The other two Vike wins came on a simple and a superior decision.

Havelock won two pins, a simple and a majority decision, and had a forfeit.

Conley will be seeking the tournament title next Friday at Jacksonville.

moned to Druid City Hospital and were present when he was pronounced dead.

Hill said Mrs. Bryant "showed a great amount of courage. She held up well, certainly with a high degree of dignity."

The family — Bryant also is survived by a son and daughter — asked that no flowers be sent. They asked that any memorial contributions be made to the university's athletic department in care of scholarship funds.

Ray Perkins, the former Alabama star and New York Giants coach who was picked to succeed Bryant last month, learned of the death while on a recruiting trip in North Carolina.

Perkins, who planned to cut short his trip and return to Tuscaloosa, said Bryant, who was to have remained at Alabama as athletic director, was "a greater man than a football coach because of what he has meant to so many people during their playing careers and then afterward."

"All you had to do was call on the man," Perkins said. "If you had done right by him, there was nothing he wouldn't do for you. Coach Bryant, to those who have been associated with him, has been much more than just a genius with X's and O's."

Bryant, whose 38-year career spanned coaching stints at Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and finally Alabama for the last quarter-century, sent players like Joe Namath, Lee Roy Jordan, Ken Stabler and Richard Todd to the pros.

Others among "Bear's Boys," who became head coaches and are still active, include Bum Phillips of the New Orleans Saints, Charley Pell of Florida, Danny Ford of Clemson, Jackie Sherrill of Texas A&M, Howard Schnellenberger of Miami, Pat Dye of Auburn, Jerry Claiborne of Kentucky, Steve Sloan of Duke and Perkins.

Hill, at a news conference at the hospital, said Bryant had been on medicine for mild heart trouble the past few years. He said Bryant was visiting Tuesday with a close friend, Jimmy Hinton of Tuscaloosa, when he com-

Lady Pirates Lose Two More

East Carolina University guards Loraine Foster and Delphine Mabry, both injured in games earlier this season, were to undergo surgery today to correct their problems.

Foster, a 5-6 sophomore from Spartanburg, S.C., sprained a ligament in her left knee after falling on a cheerleader's pompon during last week's UNC-Charlotte contest and has not played since. Foster will have arthroscopic surgery performed to determine if further surgery is necessary. Those findings will determine the length of Foster's absence.

Mabry, a 5-4 freshman from Rocky Mount, tore a radial collateral ligament in her left pinky against Old Dominion and will have reconstructive surgery performed. Mabry, on a track scholarship at East Carolina, had the option of having the surgery performed at this time or waiting until after the basketball season. She chose surgery now to be ready for the outdoor track season.

This leaves only seven active players on the ECU Lady Pirate roster. The Lady Pirates return to action on Saturday at East Tennessee State, then play Appalachian State on Sunday. They return home on Tuesday for the first time in 60 days, facing Old Dominion.

The losses to the Lady Pirates, bring to five the number sidelined or no longer on the time at this time. In addition to the two injured players, Eunice Hargett and Brigitte Jenkins, two freshmen, quit the team prior to the start of the season, and senior Loletha Harrison quit prior to the Christmas break.

Darlene Chaney also quit the team early in the year, but returned shortly thereafter.

Myers Doing Just Fine As He Leads State Win

By The Associated Press
North Carolina State freshman Ernie Myers had some big shoes to fill when he stepped into the Wolfpack's starting lineup following an injury earlier this month to senior guard Dereck Whittenburg.

While Myers doesn't pretend to be able to do all of the things that Whittenburg could, he's doing just fine thank you. Just ask Duke.

Myers broke a Wolfpack scoring record for freshman and tallied the second highest total ever by an Atlantic Coast Conference freshman as he poured in 35 points Wednesday night to lead N.C. State to a 94-79 thrashing of the Blue Devils.

In other games involving ACC teams Wednesday night, Ralph Sampson led Virginia past stubborn George Washington 59-44; Herman Veal sank a 12-foot-jumper at the buzzer to give Maryland a 55-53 victory over Holy Cross and Georgia Tech breezed by Francis Marion 88-76.

Third-ranked North Carolina travels to No. 19 Wake Forest tonight in a battle for the conference lead, while Clemson plays arch-rival South Carolina.

In the Duke-N.C. State game, Myers received help from senior forward Thurl Bailey, who had 22 points, and senior point guard Sidney Lowe, who contributed 18 points, 10 assists and five steals.

Duke stayed in contention on the outside shooting of senior guard Tom Emma, who finished with 19. Freshmen Johnny Dawkins and David Henderson had 16 and 15 points respectively.

The win enabled N.C. State to even its ACC record at 3-3, and its overall mark improved to 9-6. It also was a welcome relief for Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano.

"We really needed it," Valvano said afterward after watching as his team nearly blow a 15-point lead.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski said rebounding made the difference in the contest.

"They beat us badly on the boards," he said. "When we played well defensively, we played well on offense. We just didn't play well on the boards."

Duke is now 1-4 in the ACC, and 7-9 overall.

At Charlottesville, Va., it was Sampson's show all the way as he scored 16 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and had four blocked shots.

Virginia led only 38-35 with 7:30 to go, but the Cavaliers reeled off 8 straight points to open up a 46-35 lead at the 5:14 mark. George Washington, 8-8, never got closer than 8 after that.

Reserve Jim Miller added 11 for Virginia, now 16-2.

Maryland lead most of the second half but needed Veal's shot at the buzzer to seal the victory over Holy Cross, 10-6, at Worcester, Mass. Ben Coleman led Maryland, now 10-5, with 16 points while Adrian Branch added 14.

Freshmen center John Salley's 19 points and freshman guard Mark Price added 18 to lead Georgia Tech in its victory over Francis Marion. Salley tallied 16 points in the second half, while Price did the damage in the first 20 minutes by hitting for 14 of his points.

The Yellow Jackets are now 8-7 for the year. Francis Marion falls to 7-9.

AP Special Correspondent
There are men who transcend events, and one of them certainly was Paul "Bear" Bryant.

One can count on the fingers of one hand the personalities who can walk into a crowded room and suddenly create a tremendous hush, a turning of heads and whispers sounding like a gentle breeze.

One of them was the "Bear," a great molder of men and teams who died in Tuscaloosa, Ala., Wednesday, his mission accomplished.

His was a special aura of greatness. To a degree, the same could be said of Joe DiMaggio and Muhammad Ali, among sports figures, few below presidential and general status among others.

It's an extraordinary magnetism, a quality that elevates them above us ordinary mortals. People, even the great, the rich and the famous, have looked upon them as special golden threads sewn into the nation's tapestry.

The death of Bear Bryant strikes particularly deep to me because we were of the same era — our respective careers crossing more than 40 years ago and then branching out in divergent directions.

It's something I've written before — as one often does when growing long on the tooth.

I was a struggling sports writer in Nashville when Red Sanders, the Vanderbilt head football coach, summoned a young assistant from Alabama to be what would now be called a defensive coordinator but then was simply a line coach.

His name: Paul Bryant, a rangy, handsome man who had played the opposite end of the great Don Hutson on the Alabama team that beat Stanford 29-13 in the 1935 Rose Bowl.

He looked like a Hollywood matinee idol — over six feet, lean and ramrod straight with bluish green eyes that some might say were like icy steel yet more resembled the waters of a placid lake.

His wife, Mary Harmon, was his college sweetheart, a campus queen. They were an immediate hit in the city from whose outlying environs "Old Hickory," Andrew Jackson came and which even then was the capital of country music.

But the "Bear" was not long for this place — those piercing eyes looked toward other horizons ... Maryland, Kentucky, Texas A&M and the last 25 years his alma mater, Alabama, where he was to fashion the greatest record in all football.

It was little more than a year ago that the Bear had scaled the winning pinnacle reached before only by Amos Alonzo Stagg and then last month he announced his retirement, choosing to spend his final years removed from the constant pressures of his chosen profession.

There is a touch of irony in this. It's as if, with no distant star to drive him, the old bear wrestler from Forttyce, Ark., just sighed and passed the pigskin to other hands.

Had he not shunned repeated beckoning calls from the pros, the "Bear" might well have been at the Super Bowl with a championship team this week playing for the game's highest prize.

The mercenary game never appealed to him.

"I like to work with kids and watch them develop," Bryant said on many occasions. "I wouldn't care to coach a ready-made team."

Yet pro coaches held him in as much awe as his college peers. He was the game's most respected mastermind.

His former pupils saturate the country — players, coaches, successful businessmen and plain, everyday guys who learned from him a little extra something on how to fend against the tentacles of life.

He could be a stern task master, yet he was universally hailed as a teacher and motivator.

His impact is reflected in the eulogies which poured in from everywhere:

"He was a man's man."

"I'll never forget the discipline he gave me."

"He seemed tough on the outside. Inside he was all heart."

As the years passed, and victory piled upon victory, Paul Bryant became a national legend as millions watched him perform his magic on TV — the familiar hound's tooth hat pulled over his eyes, his shoulders slightly stooped, his strong face creased by the sun and advancing age.

He won an amazing 323 games — "I didn't do it, the players did. I was just chairman of the board," he said modestly. He sent teams into 29 bowl games, winning only one more than he lost or tied (15-12-2, once going 0-7-1 in a losing streak).

Yet his spectacular bowl record should be a lasting monument to his sensitivity and values.

He worked his players hard to turn them into winners. To him, bowl games were never a personal ego trip but a reward and vacation for his exhausted kids.

For the "Bear," it was always the kids.

Gatlin, Mizelle Leading

Conley's Keith Gatlin and Bear Grass' Angie Mizelle held onto their scoring lead this week, in games through Tuesday, but Mizelle is beginning to get more of a threat to her leadership from cross-county rival Kim Floyd of Jamesville.

The top three scorers in the boys' race remained the same this week, but there were a number of place changes throughout the rest of the top 20. The biggest leap forward was by Greene Central's Theodore Edwards, unranked last week, who jumped in at the number 16 spot.

Gatlin maintains a healthy lead among the boys with a 24.2 average, down slightly from last week. Ayden-Grifton's Thomas Anderson is second at 18.1 and Roanoke's Greg Everett is third at 16.9.

North Pitt's Dennis Bradley, 14.4, and Greene Central's James Thompson, 14.3, round out the top five.

In the girls' race, Williamston's Lynn Mills took the biggest jump, moving from 20th to 16th this week with a 9.8 average.

Mizelle holds first place with a 19.6 average, while Floyd jumped from fourth to second with a 16.5 mark. Greenville Christian's Kathy Vernelson is third at 16.1.

Mechio Kornegay of Conley is fourth at 14.9 followed by Ayden-Grifton's Cora Faison at 14.7.

Ayden-Grifton is the top offensive boys team at 61.3, while Roanoke has the best defense, allowing 42.2. Conley has the best winning margin at 6.8 per game.

For the girls, Conley leads in offense at 54.5, while GCA leads in defense with a 27.3 average. Conley has the top winning margin of 18.3 points a game.

PINETOPS — Greene Central rallied in the second half to pull out its third straight victory and its fourth in the last five games, downing Eastern Carolina Conference foe, SouthWest Edgecombe, 67-61, last night.

Earlier, SouthWest's girls had little pity on Greene Central's lassies, rolling up a 70-20 victory.

SouthWest's boys moved out into a 14-11 lead in the first period and outscored the Rams, 23-16, in the second period. That gave the Cougars a seemingly comfortable lead at halftime, 37-27.

But in the third period, the Rams began to rally, outscoring SouthWest, 18-10. That cut the lead back to just 47-45, as the final quarter opened. In that, the Rams outthit SouthWest, 22-14, to pull out the victory.

"We shot well in the first half, hitting 50 percent, but they beat us on the boards and down the floor," Coach Lewis Godwin said. "I think we were a little scared of them. But in the second half, we settled down. We didn't try to do it all at once, but were patient. We didn't get the lead until about a minute was left, when Clifton Joyner hit to make it 61-59. After that, we got some key free throws, and they started throwing up long ones and missing."

Theodore Edwards led the Rams with 23 points, while James Thompson had 14 and Bonnerene Johnson had 10. SouthWest was led by Tim Walker with 22, while Darrell Clark had 12.

Greene Central is now 3-3 in ECC play and 4-11 overall.

SouthWest falls to 1-5, 9-7.

SouthWest's girls jumped on Greene Central at the start and never let up on the way to their 50-point victory. By the end of the first period, it was 14-6, and that was extended to 24-12 at intermission. SouthWest poured it on in the third period, outscoring the Lady Rams, 30-4, to run the lead out to 54-16. They finished things off with a 16-4 final period margin.

Janice Draughn led SouthWest with 18, while Kim Edmundson had 14 and Theresa Mayo had 12. Cincy Hicks led Greene Central with 12.

SouthWest is now 5-1 in the conference and 14-2 overall. Greene Central falls to 3-3, 9-6.

The Rams travel to Farmville Central on Friday.

plained of chest pains and was taken to the hospital by ambulance.

Shortly before going to the hospital, Bryant had talked about his life since retirement.

"I don't wake up in the middle of the night any more sweating and worrying," he said then. "I haven't looked at a football film. I may never see another football film."

For most of his life, football consumed him. He discovered the sport as a tall, raw-boned Arkansas country boy and used it as a way out of the poverty of his youth in Moro Bottom, Ark.

He became a coach after playing as a two-way end for Alabama and by the end of his career he was far, far removed from the hardscrabble life of his youth. He had wealth, celebrity, friendships with presidents.

To a nation that watched college football on Saturdays, he was that gruff-talking man in the houndstooth hat whose teams played to win — and most often did.

He went to Maryland in 1945, fresh from serving in the Navy during World War II, began his career with a 60-6 rout of Guilford and finished his first year as a head coach with a 6-2-1. Some 317 victories were still to come.

Then he moved to Kentucky, where in eight seasons his teams went 60-23-5, appeared in four bowls and, most memorably, whipped Oklahoma 13-7 in the 1951 Sugar Bowl to end a 31-game Sooner winning streak.

In 1954, his first year at Texas A&M, Bryant went 1-9, the only losing season of his life. Before that campaign, Bryant took two busloads of players to training camp at a dusty spot called Junction, Texas. It was hot and it was brutal. By the end, barely one-fourth, 27 players, stuck with him.

But he had laid the groundwork for a 24-5-2 mark the rest of the way at Texas A&M, winning a Southwest Conference title in 1956. Also while at A&M, Bryant produced his only Heisman Trophy winner, halfback John David Crow.

Alabama had won a total of only four games in the three years before Bryant came home — hearing "Mama call," as he put it. His first Crimson Tide team went 5-4-1. His second one went 7-2-2, inaugurating the Liberty Bowl and a record 24 consecutive bowl trips for Alabama.

In 1961, Alabama won its first national title with an 11-0 season.

A legend at Alabama had been born.

A legend now reserved to memory.

Tributes Roll In For Bear

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

AP Sports Writer
"A hero who always seemed larger than life".... "Bigger than the game itself".... "A man's man".... "A monumental figure in intercollegiate athletics".... "The best that's ever been".... "The master coach!"

The tributes poured in Wednesday, each seemingly more glowing than the last one, as the stunned world of college football tried to find the proper words to pay tribute to Paul "Bear" Bryant, who died of a massive heart attack at the age of 69, the winningest coach in history.

But in the final analysis, Bryant was simply a football coach. And one after another, his admirers kept coming back to the same phrase — "the greatest football coach of all time."

"When you saw football, you thought of Coach Bryant," said John Cooper, athletic director and head coach at the University of Tulsa.

Almost 50 of "Bear's Boys" — his former players and assistants — became head coaches in the college and pro ranks. The latest was Bruce Arians, who coached the running backs last season and is the new head coach at Temple University.

"I have a hollow, hollow feeling right now knowing Coach is not there," Arians said. "I was looking forward to going back and visiting him and he had made plans to come to our game with Penn State next year. He said he wanted to get around to see as many of his former players and coaches as he could."

College football wouldn't have been quite the same without the Bear prowling the sidelines next fall. Now, he won't even be in the stands.

"It was going to be difficult not seeing him on the sidelines, but his death is going to leave a void in so many places," said Clemson Coach Danny Ford, a player and coach under Bryant at Alabama. "He is going to be missed by so many people because he helped so many. That was his main goal in life, to help people. And he reached so many of them. He taught all his players something about life."

"He related football to life, and everybody who was under his teachings had to come out a better person. And when you think about the thousands of players who wore his colors, it's easy to determine that this world is a little bit better because of Coach Bryant."

Charlie McClendon, executive director of the American Football Coaches Association and former coach at LSU, who played under Bryant at Kentucky, saw him two weeks ago at the AFCA convention in Los Angeles.

"He looked as good and as useful as ever," McClendon said. "I still don't want to believe it."

Yale Coach Carmen Cozza also saw Bryant in Los Angeles. "He joked with us that he was going to go fishing," Cozza recalled. "My God, he couldn't even enjoy it."

One of the last people to visit with Bryant was Ray Perkins, his successor as Alabama's head coach.

"I saw him this morning (Wednesday)," Perkins said. "He made the statement to me that he was feeling real good. He looked good. He was sitting up on his bedside having breakfast."

"We talked about why he went to the hospital. Then we talked about recruiting and me leaving on a trip. In fact, I kinda had to run out of the hospital to catch a plane."

"The last thing I remember, he was going to call a young man that we're recruiting for one of our coaches last night (Tuesday) and he didn't get to make that call. He wanted me to tell the coach that he was sorry he didn't get to make that call."

Penn State's Joe Paterno, whose 1982 national champions lost only to Bryant and Alabama, said:

"The death of Paul Bryant is a tremendous shock and difficult to believe. He almost appeared to be indestructible. He was a monumental figure in intercollegiate athletics, a man who set standards not easily attainable by men. He was a giant, and we will miss him."

President Reagan, who telephoned Bryant's widow Wednesday evening to express his condolences, said Bryant "made legends out of ordinary people... He was a hard, but loved, taskmaster. Patriotic to the core, devoted to his players and inspired by a winning spirit that would not quit, Bear Bryant gave his country the gift of a life unsurpassed. In making the impossible seem easy, he lived what we all strive to be."

Richard Williamson, executive director of the Bluebonnet Bowl and a former player and assistant under Bryant, called him "a totally honest, totally dedicated person. He always gave you a totally honest answer, and there's not a lot of people who can give you that these days."

"He was a winner," said former Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes, whose team was whipped 35-6 by Alabama in the 1978 Sugar Bowl. "He was honorable, and he won with good, clean ballclubs."

Pat Dye, head coach at Auburn University, Alabama's bitter intrastate rival, spent nine years as an assistant under Bryant. "He was like all great people who have come through American history," Dye said. "Though he may be gone, his teaching will last forever in the lives of those he touched."

Jones Ramsey, sports information at the University of Texas who held that position at Texas A&M when Bryant coached there and whose son, Paul, was named after

Bryant, said that "what his kids thought of him as a person meant more to him than winning, and that's what they'll remember him for."

Steve Sloan, the new head coach at Duke and once rumored to be the leading candidate to succeed Bryant, called his old coach "a godfather-type person for everybody in coaching. Last month, I spent a night there in his house. We watched one of the pro games and he was in excellent health. He was feeling good, and the only worry he had at that time was whether to retire or whether to coach."

"The thing that I'm of course saddest about was that he was looking forward to having some time on his own to hunt and fish and play golf. I remember last time I saw him that's what he remarked to me, that he just wanted to spend some time doing things that he wanted to enjoy."

"He was more than just a football coach, more than just a friend," said Charley Thornton, a member of Alabama's athletic department for 18 years until he became assistant athletic director at Texas A&M last winter. "I think the nation lost a legend in the same mold as John Wayne or George Patton. He taught living, and how to handle moments like this. Anybody can get by when things are going good, but he taught you how to reach down and get that little something extra. He took an awful lot of us when we were still children and made men out of us."

It was after a 20-10 loss to LSU last November that Bryant first talked publicly about retiring. LSU Coach Jerry Stovall said Bryant "influenced more young men as players and coaches than any man who ever touched the game. We have all suffered a great loss in his death, but we were blessed for 69 years with his presence."

Florida Coach Charley Pell, who played at Alabama two decades ago, talked with Bryant on Tuesday, a few hours before the coach entered the hospital.

"He was in good spirits and laughed often. It was the best talk we've had since I've known him and I got to express many of my strong feelings for him," said Pell, who had not been as close to Bryant over the years as some others. "He talked about going to Florida and lying in the sun. That was Coach Bryant — he never looked back."

Women's Stories Need To Be Told

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Trying to get some people interested in women's sports is like trying to feed a reluctant child spinach: it's tough, and sometimes impossible.

Many sports fans are interested only in how their favorite major league teams performed last night — and not how a woman set a world record in a marathon.

And yet, a panel of journalists agreed Wednesday, the women athletes' stories need to be told.

"It is our challenge to find stories that make my 15-year-old daughter read the sports section — to find the things women will relate to and read about," said Los Angeles Times Sports Editor Bill Dwyre.

"The media should cover women's sports like it does everything else," he said. "I think recognition is occurring, and I hope this sort of progress continues."

San Francisco Examiner reporter Stephanie Salter said there was an "obvious neglect" of women's sports by the press, but she didn't think the media could "cram it down the throats of the readers."

Amy Rennett, editor of Women's Sports magazine, agreed, saying, "I'm not sure the fans are there yet. We're seeing new records set all the time. And still that doesn't transfer to readers' interest."

"Perhaps the female interest in sports will never equal men's," she added. "But I think we should give it a chance."

The comments came during a journalism conference panel discussion on the media's role in women's sports.

Panelists agreed women have very few role models or heroes to look up to in athletics — other than male athletes — because of lacking media coverage.

Rennett said because of an absence of fan interest, "I don't think women should get the same coverage as baseball or football. While I'd like to see quantity, I'm more concerned about the quality coverage of women's sports."

She added that she hoped women's sports "would learn from some of the problems of men's sports."

Joan Blount, special contributing writer to Sports Illustrated magazine, said she prefers writing about women athletes who haven't been given the same opportunities as men, because "their achievements seem to me that much greater."

"How should women's sports be covered? With all the seriousness, muscle, difficulty and passion that they bring to their own lives," she said.

Knox To Seahawks

SEATTLE (AP) — Chuck Knox, who had problems with his owners in Los Angeles and Buffalo despite winning six division titles in 10 seasons, has resurfaced as head coach of the Seattle Seahawks.

Knox, 50, became the third head coach in the National Football League club's seven-year history Wednesday, just one day after resigning in Buffalo.

"Nobody in this business is a miracle worker," Knox stressed. "We have not set any timetable to win this or win that. But we will be competitive."

Knox takes command of a team yet to the NFL playoffs. His 91-51-1 record, a .636 winning percentage is third among active coaches behind only Miami's Don Shula, 710, and San Diego's Don Coryell, 640.

The late Carroll Rosenbloom, who drowned in a swimming accident in 1979, gave Knox his first NFL head coaching opportunity in 1973. Knox, then 40, was a little-known NFL assistant coach in Detroit.

In five seasons with the Rams, Knox won five division championships. But he never got the Rams to the Super Bowl and Rosenbloom was particularly critical of Knox's offense, calling it dull and unimaginative.

Rosenbloom gave Buffalo owner Ralph Wilson permission to talk to Knox and Wilson signed Knox to a six-year contract for a reported $12 million.

But Knox apparently ran into philosophical problems in Buffalo with Wilson. He felt Wilson did not want to spend enough money to win big and Wilson felt Knox wanted to spend too much, sources said.

So Knox resigned Tuesday with one year left on his Buffalo contract. On Wednesday, he flew to Seattle and was introduced at a news conference as the Seahawks' new head coach.

At a news conference, Knox would not disclose any terms of his contract nor its length. But, presumably, it was a long-term pact worth more than the $200,000 annual salary that he made in Buffalo.

Knox, a 10-year NFL head coaching veteran, refused to acknowledge that he was a candidate for the Rams' head coaching job but he reportedly was made a lukewarm offer for the post.

At a news conference at the Seahawks' Kirkland, Wash., offices, he said, "I don't want to discuss what other options I had. That would be a slap in the face to other people."

Knox refused to talk about the reasons he left Buffalo.

"I have no complaints about Ralph Wilson," he said when asked about reports that he was unhappy with Wilson's commitment to win.

Knox was effusive in his praise of the Nordstrom family, which owns 51 percent of the Seahawks.

"I'm satisfied here," he said. "I'm satisfied that John Nordstrom (a spokesman for the Seattle ownership) has a commitment for a winning football program here."

"I feel very strongly that the Seattle Seahawks exist for one reason and that's to win."

Knox, who won one division championship in Buffalo, said he first talked to the Seahawks last weekend.

After the 1982 season, in which Buffalo went 4-5 and failed to make the playoffs, Knox said he asked permission from Wilson to talk to the Seahawks about the vacant Seattle head coaching job.

"Ralph gave me his permission," Knox declared.

Mike McCormack, president and general manager of the Seahawks, introduced Knox at the news conference Wednesday and said, "His record speaks for itself. We made a commitment to the organization, football team and the area to go after the best man we could. I believe in getting Chuck Knox we have fulfilled that commitment."

Knox said he expected to bring some members of his Buffalo coaching staff to Seattle and expected to retain some Seahawks' assistants. The contracts of most NFL assistant coaches expire Monday.

There was speculation here that Knox will retain defensive coaches Jackie Simpson, Frank Lauterbur and Jack Christiansen from Jack Patera's old coaching staff here. In Buffalo, there was conjecture that Tom Catlin, Knox's defensive coordinator, would be the next head coach of the Bills.

The other Seattle assistants here this past season were Jerry Rhome, Andy MacDonald, Howard Mudd and Rusty Tillman.

On Wednesday, Knox made it clear that he didn't want to become general manager-coach and said he was looking forward to working with McCormack, whom he called "a quality guy."

He explained, "I've never been interested in signing players. I don't want to get involved in that aspect."

In Buffalo, Knox compiled a 37-36 record in five seasons after compiling a 54-15 record in Los Angeles. Buffalo was only 5-23 in two seasons before Knox got there.

McCormack, former head coach in Philadelphia and Baltimore, came here as director of football operations after being fired by the Colts following a 2-14 1982 Baltimore season.

McCormack was named president and general manager of the Seattle franchise Jan. 3, one day after the 1982 season was completed.

The Seahawks were 4-5 this past season, including 4-3 under McCormack, who was named interim head coach after Patera, Seattle's original head coach, was fired Oct. 13.

The Seahawks have a seven-year record of 39-62.

Knox was believed to be the second man offered the Seahawks' head coaching job. Arizona State Coach Darryl Rogers reportedly was offered the post this month but elected to stay in Tempe, Ariz.

Memphis State, Louisville Have Battle For Lives In Big Apple

By Associated Press

Two of the nation's Top Ten college basketball teams visited New York and learned that it's not always Fun City.

Fifth-ranked Memphis State and No.8 Louisville had to fight for their lives before coming away with hard-earned victories over Iona and Rutgers Wednesday night in a Madison Square Garden doubleheader.

First, Memphis State held off Iona 94-88 behind Keith Lee's 28 points, including a pair of free throws with three seconds left when Iona called a timeout although it had none remaining and was hit with a bench technical.

Then, Louisville froze the ball for more than seven minutes late in the game and nosed out Rutgers 54-49 for its eighth consecutive triumph.

In other games involving The Associated Press Top Twenty, second-ranked Indiana outlasted Northwestern 78-73, No.6 Virginia trounced George Washington 59-44, ninth-ranked Houston clobbered Rice 76-40, No.12 Arkansas nipped Texas Tech 62-59, No.13 Missouri defeated Kansas 76-63 and No.15 Georgetown crushed Seton Hall 71-48.

Top Ten

Memphis State, 15-1, took advantage of foul problems by Iona's top two scorers — Steve Burtt had 31 points and Gary Springer added 15 — to move from a 61-59 lead to 70-61. Lee and Bobby Parks, who finished with 21 points, each scored four for the Tigers during that span.

Memphis State's first 15 opponents had averaged only 61.4 points a game and Coach Dana Kirk called Iona "the first team we've had this year we couldn't contain offensively."

In the nightcap, Louisville Coach Denny Crum said he thought it was obvious why he ordered the Cardinals to freeze the ball with a 51-49 lead and more than eight minutes left.

"We shot 37 percent in the first half, and I doubt it was that good in the second half," he said. "When you play against a zone, you don't get any easy shots. We were shooting to begin with, but they obviously didn't want to come out and play us."

Rutgers' Tom Young said his players didn't challenge Louisville's stall "because we were tired. I wanted to rest our players and then come out and foul with two minutes to go. Who figures they're going to stall against us for five minutes?"

The slowdown finally was interrupted with 31 seconds left when Scooter McCray was fouled and made two free throws. Sophomore Milt Wagner led the Cardinals with 22 points, including two baskets that gave them a 51-47 lead.

In Chicago, Ted Kitchel scored 29 points after being held scoreless for the first nine minutes and led 15-1

Indiana over Northwestern in a Big Ten game. The Hoosiers trailed through most of the first half, but finally went ahead to stay early in the second half on a three-point shot by Kitchel and a basket by Jim Thomas. Randy Witman added 25 points for Indiana, while Art Aaron topped Northwestern with 21, including a trio of three-pointers.

Kitchel, who connected on four three-point shots, said he doesn't like the new rule.

"I don't like messing with the game of college basketball," he said. "It's a good game. You don't need new rules and shot clocks. They should leave college basketball alone."

At Charlottesville, Va., Virginia's Ralph Sampson scored 16 points, grabbed 16 rebounds and blocked four shots and the Cavaliers, 16-2, pulled away from George Washington in the final few minutes. Reserve Jim Miller added 11 points, all in the second half.

Houston's Abdul Akeem Olajuwon scored 20 points, pulled down eight rebounds and rejected four shots to lead the Cougars, 16-2, over Rice in Southwest Conference action.

Second Ten

In another SWC game at Lubbock, Texas, 16-1 Arkansas used clutch free throws down the stretch to fend off Texas Tech. Darrell Walker had 18 points for the Razorbacks, who converted 16 of 24 free throws in the second half.

A.G. Cox Takes Pair Of Games

A.G. Cox took a pair of junior high school basketball games from Wellcome Middle School yesterday at Wellcome.

In the boys' game, Cox took a 45-34 win, led by Ricky Farrow, who scored 11 points. Daniels had 11 for Wellcome.

The Cox girls rolled up a 34-15 victory in their game. Trellany Boyd led Cox with 12 points, while T. Beacham had six to pace Wellcome.

Plans Opposed By Republicans

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, his hand weakened by the November elections and a faltering economy, is finding his 1984 tax and spending proposals under attack in Congress from Republicans and Democrats alike.

In the GOP-controlled Senate, Republican leaders told Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger in private Wednesday what they have said publicly. Reagan must agree to cut more from his defense buildup than the $8 billion he's agreed to.

In the Democratic-controlled House, it was public repudiation with a flourish.

"I can't conceive of a freeze in domestic spending," Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., declared as he dismissed in a single sentence one of the key elements of Reagan's budget plan.

"He spoke of creating jobs, but opposes jobs legislation," said the speaker.

"He spoke of fairness but insisted on retaining the third year of his unfair tax program and insisted on protecting the defense industry from the same level of austerity that he wants to impose on domestic programs," he said.

The meeting in the Senate and O'Neill's comments came the day after Reagan sketched his tax and spending plans in his State of the Union address. His formal budget presentation to Congress will be made Monday.

But that Congress will be far different from the one that received his first two plans in 1981 and 1982.

The biggest difference is in the House of Representatives, where there are 26 more Democrats than the old Congress. As a result, O'Neill and the Democrats now have effective control, instead of the nominal majority they had the last two years.

"We have the votes" to pass a Democratic budget, Rep. Brian Donnelly, D-Mass., declared. Aides said O'Neill and other party leaders would draft a Democratic alternative and secure its approval.

For both the House and the Senate, Reagan's budget will arrive with Republicans and Democrats concerned about the lingering recession, the high joblessness and deficits that will remain over $100 billion through 1988.

As a result, it seems that Reagan faces opposition wherever he looks:

—He proposed standby tax increases to reduce the deficit in future years. Opponents include Senate Republican Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee as well as the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas and the top Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Barber Conable of New York. Sen. Russell Long, D-La., the top Democrat on the Finance Committee, also opposes the plan.

—He proposed an $8 billion cutback in his defense buildup, a position that sources said Weinberger staunchly defended at his private breakfast with GOP Senate leaders. Baker and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., say the cuts must be deeper. O'Neill said he feels the same way.

—He said he would accept no change in the 10 percent income tax cut scheduled for this year or in the plan to adjust the tax rates for inflation beginning in 1985 — a provision known as indexing. GOP Leader Baker and Democratic Speaker O'Neill both favor repeal of indexing.

And O'Neill and Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia made it clear Democrats will attempt to repeal or limit the scheduled 10 percent tax cut for wealthier taxpayers.

WORKSHOP DESTROYED — Winterville firemen battle a blaze behind the residence of W. H. Woolard Jr. of Route 2, Winterville, Wednesday morning. According to Mark Pilgren, who tends the land, the wood frame workshop was used by Woolard for woodworking. Woolard, who was reportedly in the shop when the blaze started, suffered a cut hand when he apparently tried to remove a table saw from the burning building. There was no estimate of damage caused by the fire. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Heavy Industries of Japan. Jungheinrich, subject to the approval of its advisory board, has agreed to acquire Yale operations in West Germany where they will continue to manufacture and market the Yale line, Rankin said. He said Jungheinrich is the market leader in European-designed narrow aisle and motorized hand trucks.

Sumitomo and Yale have jointly been producing and marketing industrial lift trucks for the past 12 years.

According to Rankin, Yale employees, through an employee stock ownership plan, and the global partners will own 40 percent of the new company. Eaton will retain a 19 percent investment position and the remainder will be distributed to Eaton shareholders.

Eaton, as well as the West German and Japanese companies, will have appointed representation on the new company's board of directors.

Rankin said that as a group, the Yale network will be able to develop the potential benefits of shared-product lines, componentry and world-wide marketing.

He said two things will happen almost immediately within the structure of the new company. The operations of the three major marketing groups — North American, International and Parts — will be consolidated and Yale headquarters will be moved from Eaton's old Philadelphia plant to expanded facilities at Yale's parts distribution center in Flemington, N.J.

Rankin said he will serve as Yale's board chairman and chief executive officer. Reg Eklund, current vice president of the industrial truck operations, will be president and chief operating officer of the new company.

"In fact," said Rankin, "the management team will remain essentially intact and will provide the vital thread of continuity required throughout the transition and beyond."

He said, "Yale is by no means starting off from scratch as a new company. It is off and running with financial stability, world-wide manufacturing, an experienced management team and an established dealer network. The decision to evolve Yale from an Eaton division to an independent company with global interests and strategic partnerships positions Yale as a stronger and more competitive force in the world industrial truck marketplace."

The Greenville plant began operations in 1974 and began assembling internal combustion engine fork lift trucks last fall.

Honor Contributions...

Certificates were given to volunteers, with one major award going to a person, agency or group deemed to have made an especial contribution to the Greenville community.

The plaque for outstanding contribution for the past two years was awarded to The Daily Reflector newspaper. John S. (Jack) Whichard, co-publisher, accepted the award on behalf of the paper. The plaque cites The Daily Reflector "for its personal commitment to the advancement of leisure in our community activities."

Lib Proctor, chairman of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission, and Charles Vincent, director of recreation, jointly presented the award. The department's executive director, Boyd Lee, was unable to attend due to a death in his wife's family.

Other groups and businesses honored for outstanding volunteer contributions and persons accepting the recognition were: Branch Bank and Trust Co., Mimi Miller; Builder's Club at E.B. Aycock School, Jodi Ross; Chi Omega Sorority, East Carolina University; Gamma Sigma Sigma, East Carolina University; Rebecca Traylor; the Circle K Club, Carl Stroud and Tim Merck; Fellowship of Christian Athletes, Kevin Samuel; Greenville Athletic Club, Margaret Mewborn; Health Career Club, Mary Vick; and Pitt County schools, Alice Keene and staff.

Keynote speaker for the occasion was Dr. Douglas Sessoms, president of the North Carolina Recreation and Parks Society. Greetings to those present were extended by Mrs. Proctor and by Mayor Percy Cox.

A program of musical entertainment was provided by the "Double Paradox" barbershop quartet, and Dr. Gene Lanier of the department of library sciences, East Carolina University, introduced the guest speaker.

Bars Compromise Over A Dram Shop Statute

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt said today there is no room for compromise on his proposal to make bar owners and convenience store operators civilly liable for selling alcohol to underage or drunken customers.

"We are literally in a war to save the lives of Americans, of North Carolinians and especially of young people," Hunt said at his weekly news conference.

"When you are in that kind of critical situation sometimes you have to take unusual steps for preservation," he said.

The dram-shop statute is part of Hunt's "Safe Roads Act" now being considered by the General Assembly. It would make bar owners and convenience store operators civilly liable if they sell beer, wine or liquor to minors or drunken people who later are involved in an accident.

Those bar owners and store operators have objected to the proposal, saying it will place an undue burden on them. They say it is not easy to tell who is drunken and argue that such responsibility should be extended to ABC store operators too.

But Hunt disagreed, saying that the number of illegal sales by ABC stores is small compared to the number of abuses by others who sell beer, wine and liquor.

He acknowledged that the law would impose high standards but said those standards are not unreasonable. Hunt said it would be easy to tell which customers already are drunk because intoxicated, "means almost falling down drunk in this state."

On another subject, Hunt said he hasn't taken a stand on bills before the state House that would prohibit placing another PCB landfill in Warren County and outlaw use of landfills for certain kinds of hazardous wastes.

"I have indicated to them in Warren County that the state should not put any other disposal sites in that county," Hunt said, adding that he would support a bill to do that.

Hunt said the state needs some more time to analyze the other bill and complete an inventory of hazardous wastes produced in the state. He said the inventory was held up when a federal rule requiring waste producers notify the government of their products was deleted.

Hunt said he hoped the federal government would go back and adopt the inventory rule again and if not, he hoped the state would consider requiring such an inventory.

Far Apart Over Union Contract

MIAMI (AP) — Talks between Eastern Airlines and its largest union have been suspended because both sides are far apart on a contract to replace one that expired Dec. 31, 1981, a federal mediator says.

The talks collapsed Wednesday and officials for both the airline and the 13,500-member International Association of Machinists say a 30-day strike countdown may begin next week.

The impasse was declared a day after Eastern announced losses of $74.9 million in 1982. Eastern says it cannot afford the 30 percent raise over three years that the union is seeking; the union says it cannot accept a two-year wage freeze proposed by management.

Top-grade machinists now average $13.44 an hour, the union says.

No End To Wars For Hanoi People

WAR IS NOT OVER — Homeless people in Ho Chi Minh City, Vietnam, sleep on the street. A decade after the signing of the Paris peace pact and eight years after the communists rolled into Saigon, Vietnam continues to battle hostile neighbors and internal problems. (AP Laserphoto)

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A decade after American troops fired their last shots and eight years after Communist tanks rolled into Saigon, ending resistance by South Vietnamese forces, Hanoi continues to fight.

It fights in two Indochinese countries and maintains the world's fourth largest army to deter another neighbor, China.

It also fights at home — battling food shortages, international debts, farmers who don't want to sell their rice to the state and stubborn South Vietnamese who would rather flee the country.

An estimated 900,000 people have left Vietnam in the last 10 years, while some 425,000 others have applied for resettlement in the United States under a special United Nations-sponsored program. The regime says it still holds 20,000 incorrigibles in "re-education centers," described by American diplomats as forced labor camps.

Most of the refugees and internees are South Vietnamese who have found adjustment to communism difficult.

Thursday marks the 10th anniversary of the Paris peace agreement which ended America's military involvement in Vietnam. The conflict left 57,939 Americans dead or missing. However, the battles didn't end for the Vietnamese until 27 bloody months later, on April 30, 1975, after a final, brilliant offensive by the North Vietnamese.

But the fruits of victory have not been sweet.

Vietnam's soldiers continue to fight and die. About 180,000 in Cambodia and 45,000 in Laos are helping pro-Hanoi regimes. Both China and Vietnam report frequent skirmishes along the Sino-Vietnamese frontier, following their 17-day war in 1979.

Vietnam maintains a military force estimated at one million men, a resource-draining measure for a nation which the International Monetary Fund lists among the dozen poorest in the world. Gross national product per capita is $160 per year.

Although Vietnam has expressed a desire for normalized relations with the United States, prospects for diplomatic ties are dim.

Small U.S. government missions and private groups, however, deal with Hanoi on such matters as the 2,500 Americans still missing from the Indochina war; the controversial issue of the defoliant Agent Orange which U.S. forces employed in Vietnam, and, most recently, the fate of several thousand Amerasians, children of American fathers and Vietnamese mothers still living in Vietnam.

The Vietnamese have allowed three airlifts of these children to the United States, with the fourth and largest scheduled to take place Thursday.

"We have been able to win on the battlefield, but we can't win in the economic field," Vietnamese officials have told visiting newsmen. Vietnam's economy — which was in danger of collapse during the five years following the war — continues to be plagued by a lack of raw materials, poor transportation, admitted waste and corruption as well as mounting debts.

Reporters visiting Vietnam in 1982, however, noted some improvements and Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach summed it up saying, "Very bad but not worse."

Free enterprise has been given some encouragement.

Farmers and factory workers in northern Vietnam have been allowed to devote part of their time to personal rather than collective labor, while in southern Vietnam the rush to full-scale socialism has been slowed.

In the Mekong River delta, Vietnam's rice bowl, the government has increased the price it pays farmers for rice and has otherwise allowed them to remain free producers.

Vo Van Kiet, the country's new economic czar, announced last year that Vietnam hoped to attain self-sufficiency in food during 1983. In the past, mismanagement, natural disasters and foreign wars have led to huge food deficits, which the Soviet Union and its East European allies have had to fill.

Life in Vietnam's capital, Hanoi, is spartan, drab and organized. Most of the people live in overcrowded tenements, carefully count their ration coupons for necessities and save for years to buy small luxuries. A worker who earned 200 dong ($22) a month last year had to spend 120 dong if he wanted a new bicycle tire.

In contrast, Saigon — now called Ho Chi Minh City — remains tough, cocky, resilient and greedy. It has an officially tolerated black market which offers stereos from Singapore and beer from Australia.

But there is a far greater gap than in the north between those who have and those who must eke out an existence on the streets.

Many want out. They fear re-education, being shipped off to rugged "new economic zones" in the countryside and future political and economic crackdowns.

Escapes by sea continue but at a declining rate. The office of the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees says 44,135 boat people reached Asian shores last year, as compared to 79,113 in 1981. Another 12,500 exited via the orderly departures program, with about 4,000 going to the United States.

China, the United States and the non-communist countries of southeast Asia have hoped that Hanoi's problems would force it to compromise, especially on the key issue of pulling its troops out of Cambodia which the Vietnamese invaded in late 1978. So far, it has not given in.

"Sometimes I think of Vietnam as a rubber band that's been stretched too much. I keep expecting it to snap but it doesn't," says one American diplomat.

Risky Friction In Lebanon Over Who's To Govern

By NICOLAS B. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Deep division has developed between Lebanon's Moslems and Christians over how power will be shared once the estimated 60,000 foreign troops leave the country.

Israel's invasion last June upset the precarious internal balance of power among the 17 officially recognized religious sects in the nation of 4 million people.

Rightist Christians who had allied with the Israelis gained the upper hand and Moslems who sided with Palestinian guerrillas lost influence.

For now, President Amin Gemayel, a Christian, appears to have a mandate from both sides to try to re-establish government authority. But there are increasing signs of friction and some Moslem leaders have been pressing for a national debate on a solution.

Moslem politicians have accused Gemayel's government of failing to use the 21,600-man Lebanese army to disarm and disband the 4,000-man militia led by the Phalange Party founded by the president's father, Pierre Gemayel.

Takieddin Solh, a former prime minister and Sunni Moslem leader, said in an interview: "Moslems are disarmed while the (Christian) Lebanese Forces still have weapons. We are being very watchful."

"Also, we worry as to the nature of the state. The president belongs to a disciplined political party (the Phalange). Will it be a one-party state? How much is he willing to share power?"

Other major Moslem sects in Lebanon are the Shias and the Druses.

Gemayel's insistence on having emergency powers for six months aroused Moslem suspicions that he was trying to change the form of government from a parliamentary system in which the powers of the sects were carefully balanced to a strong presidential form of government.

Those suspicions were deepened by an attempted car-bomb assassination of leftist Socialist Progressive Party leader Walid Jumblatt, a Druse, in December and by published but unverified reports that the Phalangists planned to set up political offices in the Moslem sector of this capital.

An unwritten national covenant for the sharing of political power was created after independence from France in 1943.

Under that system, the president is a Maronite Christian, the prime minister a Sunni Moslem, the Parliament speaker a Shiite Moslem and political power is divided up in Parliament and the civil service on the basis of the relative strength of the sects in the 1930s when the last formal census was taken.

The power-sharing agreement collapsed twice — in 1958 and 1975 when Moslem-Christian civil wars were fought. Younger politicians from both the Christian and Moslem communities are now calling for a new formula.

"I believe the 1943 formula is unworkable in the present situation of Lebanon," said Dany Chamoun, 48-year-old civil engineer and political heir of his father, former Christian President Camille Chamoun.

Young Chamoun advocates a strong presidency and an "American-style system" of checks and balances. He proposes creating a senate in which seats are equally divided between Moslems and Christians and a lower house where members are elected on the basis of "one man, one vote."

George Adwan, a 34-year-old lawyer who leads the Tanzim militia allied with the Phalangists, agreed with Chamoun that the formula for power sharing should be revamped.

"Part of the responsibility for what has happened in Lebanon lies with the 1943 covenant," he maintained in an interview.

"People have tended to hide behind confessionalism (sectarianism) so they won't be punished or held accountable. We must change this system."

Adwan and Chamoun believe the civil service should adopt a merit system in which posts are awarded for ability rather than religious affiliation as it is now.

But Moslems fear that because the Christian community has a generally higher level of education they will dominate in the civil service. They also are wary of Christian proposals to divide Lebanon into states or cantons under a federal system.

"I am afraid of partition," Nabih Berri, leader of a now-inactive paramilitary group of Shiite Moslems, said in an interview, reflecting widespread Moslem beliefs that a federated Lebanon would be a divided Lebanon.

Berri suggested a national congress with all sects represented to debate future power sharing.

Underlying the debate on the future government is a traditional suspicion the Moslem and Christian communities hold for each other.

Christians, particularly the Maronite sect affiliated with the Roman Catholic Church, are wary of the Pan-Arab philosophies that espouse the unity of the Arab and Islamic nations of the region. As a consequence the Christians have aligned with the West and Israel while the Moslems look to the Arab world.

"Relations with the different communities in Lebanon should be equal but with the recognition of the responsibility of the Christians" to head the government, said the Rev. Boulos Naaman, a Maronite abbot who is active in Phalange Party politics.

"There cannot be a Moslem regime in Lebanon because the government has to be free and independent of all the currents in the area."

Although census figures do not exist, Moslems are convinced they constitute the majority of the population and should have at least an equal say.

Commented former Prime Minister Solh: "The Christians feared the preponderance of the Moslems in the past and we gave them the presidency and the commander in chief of the army. What else do they want?"

Israel's demands for a formal peace treaty and normalization with Lebanon have exacerbated the underlying conflict in the Christian and Moslem outlooks.

"Our geography and our whole economy is based on being part of the Arab world," Solh said. "It would be suicidal if we treated with Israel, we would be ostracized in the Arab world."

Kindergartener Struck By Car

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A Guilford County kindergarten student was seriously injured Wednesday morning when she was struck by a car as she prepared to board a school bus, police said.

Trooper B.D. Barnhardt said Stephen Wells Baker, 25, of Whitsett, was charged with passing a stopped school bus, careless and reckless driving and improper registration.

Monique S. Mitchell, 6, was in the intensive care unit of Moses Cone Memorial Hospital late Wednesday. She was listed in serious condition with head and back injuries, officials said.

Barnhardt said Baker's brakes were not working when checked after the wreck. The investigation is continuing, he said.

GDANSK, Poland (AP) — The Lenin Shipyard has put Lech Walesa back on the payroll, but still won't let him start work until he produces documents showing he was not employed elsewhere and has his business affairs with the banned Solidarity union in order, a spokesman for the labor leader said.

Walesa, who was detained under martial law for nearly a year, tried to get his job back on January 14, but was turned away at the gates of the shipyard where he founded Solidarity during an August 1980 strike.

Shipyard officials told him that before he could return, he must obtain government certification.

Block Sees Improved Attitude In Rural America

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he believes many farmers and rural people share President Reagan's view that "America is on the mend."

"When you go across the country, there's an improved attitude in rural America today," Block said Wednesday.

"I just feel that there's a lot of hope, if we'll just look to the future and hang in there tough and see this thing turn around for us."

High interest rates, which have been "just devastating to agriculture," have dropped sharply, he said.

"I think that rural America is quite aware that we are taking a very aggressive approach to our export markets and we're moving ahead with those — we're not going to be soft,"

Block said. "We're going to compete, even in difficult times."

Another reason for optimism is that inflation has been reduced, Block told a group of farm editors in a telephone interview. Last year, he said, the cost of producing crops on U.S. farms increased only 2½ to 3 percent, "the smallest increase, I suppose, in about 20 years."

This year, Block said, costs of crop production may not increase at all — or by only a small amount, perhaps no more than 2 percent.

Despite Block's optimism about things getting better — a view he has expressed consistently since joining the Cabinet two years ago — there are indications that it may be another year or more before broad-scale improvements are seen in agriculture.

Net farm income as reported by the Agriculture Department was down in 1982 for the third straight year. Preliminary figures put net income last year at about $19 billion, down from $19.6 billion in 1981, $24.4 billion in 1980, and $26.7 billion in 1979 — when it rose from $25.6 billion in 1978.

The USDA has not forecast net farm income for 1983 but sources have said that a range of $15 billion to $19 billion appears likely, based on the current situation.

Block and others in the administration have conceded that it will take time for the new payment-in-kind program to reduce grain stocks and thus trigger higher commodity prices.

Under PIK, qualified farmers will get surplus wheat, corn, sorghum, cotton or rice in exchange for reducing their 1983 crop acres. They can sell or use the commodities as they wish.

By reducing crop acreages — while moving surpluses into the marketing pipeline — Block hopes that crop prices eventually will rise and boost farm income.

Block said Reagan's proposal to freeze most federal spending "is not going to have any specific direct effect on the farm economy" so far as government commodity programs are concerned.

Such a freeze, however, "is going to have a very positive effect on the farm economy indirectly" because it will help keep inflation and interest rates under control, he said.

Subsidies Helping Farmers In Europe To Prosper

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Common Market's program of government subsidies is helping millions of European farmers make more money at a time when their American counterparts are hard hit by falling prices and ballooning costs.

But the government support programs have touched off a heated dispute with the United States, and the Common Market's agriculture chief says they also may be getting too expensive to continue.

The 10-nation European Economic Community will give $13.3 billion this year to growers of products as varied as a weekend shopping list: grain, meat, fish, vegetables, wine, sugar, milk, cooking oil, fruit, cotton and tobacco.

"The common agriculture policy has to a large extent shielded the farm population from the consequences of the general economic crisis," said Common Market Agriculture Commissioner Poul Dalsager.

The average increase in farmers' incomes last year ranged from 17 percent in West Germany to just 1 or 2 percent in Italy and Greece, where most farmers scratch out a living on rocky hillsides. The average increase with inflation and other factors deducted was 8.6 percent for Common Market farmers.

"This is an excellent result," Dalsager said. "Coming after three years of decline, it represents the best progress which has been made since 1973. It is far better than most sectors of our economy experienced."

With U.S. farm income down last year to $19 billion, from $25.6 billion in 1978, the Reagan administration has been under growing pressure to dump surplus commodities — such as dairy products and grain — on the world market at cut-rate prices.

U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block says he is working on a program to counter the European subsidies, but has not been specific about what it might entail.

Meanwhile, a new U.S. plan to subsidize a 1 million ton sale of flour to Egypt has been criticized by Common Market officials as the opening U.S. move to fight European farmers with their own methods.

Market paid $120 million to stockpile a record 605,000 tons of Danish cereal. Producers also got $350 million from Common Market export subsidies, which make up the difference in the European price and the lower world market price.

Similarly, when Britain's grain farmers produced a record harvest of 20 million tons, the Common Market stepped in and purchased a large percentage of it.

Farmers in Greece and Italy did less well because the average farmer has little land and lacks the organizational support required to take full advantage of Common Market programs.

Negotiations are scheduled to resume in February in an attempt to keep the trans-Atlantic subsidy fight from turning into an all-out trade war. A round of talks late last year failed to produce any agreement on the critical issue.

Dalsager says the Common Market must reform its farm giveaway programs, but "not under pressure from across the Atlantic. We do it because it is in our own interest."

"This state of affairs is unhealthy," he said. "It is bad for the Common Market because of the high costs involved."

Report Cutback In Sheep, Lambs

WASHINGTON (AP) — After increasing for three consecutive years, the nation's flock of sheep and lambs has been clipped again — to the lowest level since the government began counting them 116 years ago.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that 11,904,000 sheep and lambs were reported as of Jan. 1, down 8 percent from 12,966,000 head a year earlier.

According to USDA records, the Jan. 1 flock was the smallest since the first annual sheep count was reported in 1867 — 46,327,000 head.

The U.S. sheep industry peaked at 56,213,000 head in 1942, when a wartime nation was clamoring for more meat and wool.

As recently as 1960, there were more than 33 million U.S. sheep and lambs. But there were steady declines after that, and it wasn't until Jan. 1, 1980, the inventory showed an increase, rising to 12.7 million head from 12.4 million on Jan. 1, 1979 — the previous record low.

Reasons for the decline are many, including the world market for wool, which can be volatile at times, and an American preference for beef, pork and poultry. Predators in the West also have been blamed.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said that the value of all sheep and lambs as of Jan. 1 was $615.7 million, down from $737.8 million the year before, and $903.3 million on Jan. 1, 1981.

Last year's average was $51.70 per head, down from $56.90 on Jan. 1, 1982, and $69.80 on Jan. 1, 1981.

Production Of Ranch-Grown Mink Has Seen Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Production of ranch-grown mink is estimated to have increased nearly 8 percent in 1981-82, according to the Agriculture Department.

The USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service said Wednesday that production climbed to 24 million skins from 22.3 million in 1980-81. Denmark was the leading producer with 4,550,000 skins.

Other leading mink producers in 1981-82 and production for 1980-81 included:

United States, 4,400,000 skins last season and 4,000,000 in 1980-81.

Finland, 4,050,000 and 4,100,000.

Soviet Union, 2,800,000 and 2,700,000.

Sweden, 1,525,000 and 1,400,000.

Canada, 1,400,000 and 1,175,000.

Others, 5,175,000 and 4,925,000.

The report said U.S. output for 1981-82 is an estimate and that official production figures will be released in mid-1983. Also, it said, the Soviet figure was based on exports.

Slaying Suspect Held In Florida

WENTWORTH, N.C. (AP) — A Midland truck driver charged in the slaying of a 22-year-old woman has been arrested in Jacksonville, Fla., Rockingham County officials say.

Jacksonville police Tuesday arrested James Alfred Mercer Jr., 22, who was charged in a warrant in Rockingham County with the slaying of Kim Marie Kirchoff, said Rockingham sheriff Bobby Vernon.

Kirchoff's body was discovered Dec. 17 beside U.S. 29 under an overpass about 8 miles north of Reidsville. She had been stabbed six times in the chest and suffered four blows to the head.

Yesterday's Cryptquip — COD DOCTOR NEEDED
STURGEON SURGEON.

Today's Cryptquip clue: V equals E.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

1 ♦ Pass 1 ♦ Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♦.

When you have a two-way finesse to take, it helps if you can get a count of the opponents' hands. But you must do all you can to assure that the count is as complete as possible.

The auction was a matter of simple arithmetic. After South had shown a balanced hand of 13-15 points with his one no trump rebid, North added in his 20 points, came up with enough for slam and wasted no time in bidding it.

Because of the unfortunate duplication in hearts, there are only ten fast tricks. The only place for declarer to develop two more tricks is in the club suit, and to do that declarer will have to find the queen of clubs.

If declarer wins the diamond and cashes out all his winners, he will learn that West started with five diamonds and two hearts and that East began with five hearts and two diamonds. However, he will have no way of knowing the distribution of the black suits. Is the club finesse, therefore, a pure guess?

Steel-Framed Houses Said A Dilemma-Solver

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A Dallas, N.C.-based businessman is convinced that his company's steel-framed houses costing $30,000 will revolutionize the housing industry.

"I think we will become the McDonald's of the building industry," says Everett Jewell. "Our main priority now is coming up with the people power to get the word out."

Jewell's $2 million company, Jewell Building Systems, makes pre-engineered, vinyl-walled steel-frame houses that he says are so simple to build that home buyers or contractors with basic hand tools and a little building knowhow can put one up in a few weeks.

In addition to being affordable to build, Jewell says his houses are cost-efficient. He says heavy insulation should keep heating and cooling bills for a standard 1,025-square foot model at $30 or less a month. He says steel doesn't deteriorate like wood and costs much less to maintain and that fire-insurance premiums may drop sharply for residents of steel-frame homes.

He says he's confident his idea will catch on, even though the nation's largest steel companies haven't been successful in sales of metal-structured homes.

Jewell's company was cited recently by "Inc." magazine as the nation's 175th fastest growing private company. He says he is building six plants, in addition to the one in Dallas, to supply patented steel frames for his houses.

Jewell says about 80 percent of potential homebuyers can't afford to buy a home. He says most would gladly pay $300 to $300 a month to buy a $30,000 house. But he says conventional builders can't make money on $30,000 wood-frame houses.

"Contractors build homes that they personally feel people want to live in," says Terry Chamerlain, Jewell's national sales manager. "They are shoving aesthetics down the throats of people who don't want it. One man's aesthetics is another man's liability."

Heated Waterbeds At San Diego's Zoo

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The latest creature comforts at the San Diego Zoo are heated waterbeds.

A Chinese wild dog, also called a dhole, got the first one by pretending to be pregnant. The animal didn't have any offspring, but got to keep the bed.

"She's attached to it," said zoo physiologist Andrew John Phillips. "She likes it so much that when she conks out at 7 p.m., she just stays there until morning."

"It would be very hard to take it away," he said, apparently referring to the dhole's sharp teeth.

The zoo's waterbeds are thin sandwiches of flexible aluminum packed with water. Tiger claws can't puncture the material and the beds can be hosed off with water.

Covered with hay, they are comfortable and are kept at 75 to 80 degrees, said Phillips, the inventor.

Jill, an Indochinese leopard that really is pregnant, has been nesting on a waterbed for two weeks. "She's so attached to it, she will actually drag her food onto it," Phillips said. "She won't chew her food until she's on the waterbed. She thinks that's her den."

A spider monkey and baby got a waterbed on Monday and apparently are pleased.

Although some zoo enclosures have central heating, most are inefficiently warmed with heat lamps, Phillips said, and the animals sleep on cold concrete.

On chilly, wet nights in the zoo canyons, baby animals have sometimes become separated from their mothers and died. That happened a year ago when Jill bore two cubs. One got separated and died the next day, partly because it didn't stay warm enough, said Phillips.

Juicy, fresh cut beef...always!

British Breakfast TV Proves A Hit; Viewers Changing Routines

By ANDREW WARSHAW
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Breakfast-time TV is a hit with British viewers after 10 days on the air, baffling critics who said the American-style news and entertainment show couldn't compete with the beloved daily newspapers.

Even supporters say they're surprised at how quickly Britons are giving up their traditional morning routine to watch the British Broadcasting Corp.'s "Breakfast Time."

"We've been totally amazed," says Ron Neil, editor of the new show.

He claims skeptics "who said there wasn't an appetite for 'Breakfast Time' have been proved wrong."

A National Opinion Poll commissioned by the BBC said this week that an average 8 million of Britain's 56 million people tuned in during the program's first four days and 80 percent liked what they saw.

The Observer newspaper, in another survey, said 37 percent of households with a television switched on at some time during the first four shows and 11 percent said they would watch "often."

Before "Breakfast Time" went on the air, British television carried only test patterns and educational programs in the morning.

The BBC show, which had its debut Jan. 17 and runs from 6:30 to 9 a.m., bears strong similarities to the early-morning shows "Today" on NBC and "Good Morning America" on ABC. But there are no commercials on "Breakfast Time," which has more leisurely interviews and features offbeat items such as daily horoscopes, a recent survey of fast-food restaurants and a look at feeding time in the Edinburgh Zoo.

The BBC says the show's biggest attraction so far is Diana Moran, a 43-year-old mother of two, who wears a tight green leotard for a 5-minute exercise spot. She is known as the "Green Goddess."

"The sexiest lady to hit the telly screen in years," remarked the tabloid Sun after she invited commuters at London's Waterloo rail station to join in a televised morning "stretch."

The ratings also have exceeded the expectations of the rival TV-AM company, whose "Daybreak" and "Good Morning Britain" shows will be launched on the ITV commercial network next Tuesday.

The "Daybreak" and "Good Morning Britain" shows, which will air back-to-back, also will have characteristics similar to their American television predecessors.

Both the BBC and ITV had aimed at 4 percent to 5 percent of the potential viewing audience — mindful that Britain has 10 national morning newspapers including the high-brow Times and the tabloid Sun.

Peter Jay, former British ambassador to the United States and chairman of TV-AM which he has launched with interviewer David Frost, said the BBC ratings were "absolutely staggering."

Despite the impressive ratings for the new BBC show, some critics are unmoved.

Noises Of A Real World Echo In Background Of 'Hill Street'

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Most television programs take the E.F. Hutton approach to the noises of real life. Everything seems to stop dead, as the waters part for the principal characters.

The scenes may be of teeming streets, prisons or bars, but every location sounds like the plains of Kansas.

"TV tends to be homogenized," said Greg Hoblit, a producer-director on NBC's cop opera "Hill Street Blues," an unconventional show in many ways and, particularly, in its sense of sound.

"Most TV and bad movies show and tell," Hoblit said. "They show a picture and explain it. Oh, here's three of you sitting in a room. Oh, hello three of you."

"Hill Street" takes a different road, one that offers potholes, honking horns and a broken traffic light or two. You might say it echoes the cluttered, complicated real world outside the TV studio. The effect is greater tension, energy and viewer involvement.

"We like to pepper the senses with a lot of inputs and images," said Hoblit. "We'll have clipped, incomplete dialogue and a lot of information that doesn't get spelled out."

This busy business is most obvious in roll call, the scene that opens every episode. A day in the life of the Hill Street Precinct starts with Sgt. Phil Esterhaus (Michael Conrad) dispensing assignments and Aristotle amid blood-shot eyes and black coffee.

You could call it Dungeon Din. Phones jangle, chairs scrape and cops moan, cackle and shriek. There's shop talk, sex talk and small talk. Some you pick up; some you don't. But most of it is actually phony, off-camera sound, the rantings and ravings of Off The Wall, an improvisational comedy group.

"We just put them in a room with a microphone and let them create voices," said Hoblit.

Watch closely tonight. The only distinct words come from the regulars, the Renkos, Hills and Coffeys. The rest is the soundtrack from Off The Wall's greatest hits.

"There's also an economic factor," Hoblit said. "Whenever an extra mouths an audible word, he ceases being an extra, and we have to pay him more."

From the squad room to the hallway, you're likely to hear another "Hill Street" trademark: continued or overlapped dialogue.

"I love to start a conversation off-screen, when you hear Bates (Betty Thomas) and Coffey (Ed Marinaro), but you can't see them right away because they're behind a post," said Hoblit. "A few words sweep you into the scene. A standing start is dead. It just sits there."

Some viewers, used to experiencing television with one eye and one ear, may have trouble paying such close attention to "Hill Street." "We like to create a sense of discomfort," said Hoblit. "You can't casually watch us."

Some sounds enhance emotional impact. In an episode last year, Detective J.D. LaRue (Kiel Martin) was shot at; from close range. The sequence was shown in slow motion, with the gun blast echoing after the screen went black. LaRue — and his frightened expression — both survived well past the commercial break.

A weekly series' tight scheduling requires completing post-production work, including music, dialogue dubbing and sound effects, in one day, as compared to months for a theatrical film.

"We know we can do this better," Hoblit said. "Sometimes we'll do some fancy footwork in post-production to heighten a scene, like putting in the sounds of a throbbing helicopter, even though you can't see it."

"But some things can't be fixed. If a scene in the squad room falls flat, we'll wonder if we could fly a helicopter in to save it."

CBS Ordered Give 'Outtakes'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The California Supreme Court has ruled that CBS must turn over all outtakes and unpublished material from a 1979 "60 Minutes" segment to a physician suing the television network for slander.

The court denied without comment Wednesday a request to review rulings by the Los Angeles Superior Court and a state Court of Appeal against the television network.

Dr. Carl A. Galloway of Los Angeles sued CBS Inc., correspondent Dan Rather, Steve Glauber and Don Hewitt, claiming he was defamed by a segment of the program broadcast on Dec. 9, 1979, called "It's No Accident."

CBS contended its constitutional rights and those of other media organizations would be "severely hindered or chilled" if the lower court decisions were not reversed. CBS officials could not immediately be reached for comment on Wednesday's decision; employees at network headquarters in New York said no one was available early today to discuss it.

CBS' petition said that in October 1979, it arranged for Rosa Bravo, an employee of a private investigator, to enter the Manchester West Doctors Clinic to request a phony medical report.

It said that on Nov. 13, 1979, Ms. Bravo returned to the clinic and was given a medical report reflecting 19 visits to the clinic, "notwithstanding the fact she had been there only once."

The petition said the report was signed by Dr. Carl A. Galloway.

The resulting segment related details of Ms. Bravo's experience as a part of a larger story about insurance fraud, CBS said.

The 15-minute segment contained interviews and reports having no bearing on the Bravo episode or the medical report bearing the name of Galloway, the petition said.

CBS contended there was no dispute that Ms. Bravo received the report, that it was phony, and that it bore the name Galloway.

Galloway's suit declared he did not sign the report and that he was defamed by the broadcast.

Last June, Galloway sought an order to allow him to see all unpublished material relating to the segment regardless of whether it had anything to do with him or not.

On Aug. 4, the Superior Court ordered production of unpublished material referring directly or indirectly to Galloway.

CBS said it undertook to comply and had produced various materials.

Tammy Wynette Is Hospitalized

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Country singer Tammy Wynette was in fair condition at Akron City Hospital today after suffering from abdominal pains between nightclub acts, officials say.

Miss Wynette, 40, was admitted for observation and tests, said Margie Gelhausen, a supervisor at the hospital.

John Paule, Miss Wynette's road manager, said the singer became ill about 9:30 p.m. Wednesday after a performance at the Breakaway nightclub in Akron.

An ambulance that was at the nightclub on another call relayed her symptoms to hospital officials, who advised the singer to seek medical help, Paule said.

Miss Wynette was hospitalized several days last week in Nashville, Tenn., with similar symptoms, Paule said.
