

Hunt Says Greenville Can Expect Funds

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Gov. Jim Hunt said today Greenville "can expect to receive a $7.8 million federal grant to construct a new 10.5 million-gallon-per-day wastewater treatment plant" because of the city's placement by the N.C. Environmental Management Commission on the 1983 federal Environmental Protection Agency construction grant funding list.

Hunt, who was to speak at the installation of Dr. John Howell as chancellor of East Carolina University, said in a prepared statement that the EMC's list has been submitted to the EPA "and we expect approval any day now."

"If the plans and specifications get the expected approval from the state Division of Environmental Management on schedule, construction could begin about August 1, and 10 years of hard work on the part of your fine director of public utilities, Charles Horne, and many others, will take a giant step toward reality," Hunt said.

According to the governor, the construction of the new sewage treatment facility will mean that the city will be able to meet new environmental standards required to protect the Tar River, and will also mean that Greenville "will no longer have to turn away new industry or discourage population growth. In short, this project means that Greenville is 'back in business,' and no one is happier about that than me."

Hunt said the $7.8 million federal grant represents 75 percent of the estimated $10.5 million cost of the project. The state, he continued, through a Clean Water Bond grant, will contribute another $1.3 million or 12½ percent of the total cost.

"In addition, you may receive another 10 percent as bonus money from the Environmental Protection Agency for the technologically advanced portions of the project," Hunt said.

"I want to commend the leaders and citizens of Greenville for developing a well-designed, efficient and effective wastewater treatment plant. And I want to commend you for having the foresight to purchase, with local money, enough land to meet your needs for the next 40 years, instead of the usual 20 years.

"This proves that Greenville is a good municipal citizen of this state, that it is indeed a progressive city and a good place to live and work and enjoy 'the good life' that we North Carolinians have come to expect."

Responding to Hunt's comments, Horne said: "Speaking for the Greenville Utilities Commission, the city of Greenville and the public we serve, we are delighted to know that our wastewater treatment plant is on the 1983 funding list. We greatly appreciate the efforts of our governor and other state and federal officials to make our plans a near reality."

The GUC director said "this action once again proves that when local, state and federal governmental agencies work together, we can get the job done — to the benefit and best interest of our citizens."

Horne said planning for the new wastewater treatment plant began 10 years ago. But changes in regulations and federal red tape delayed the completion and final approval of preliminary plans until mid-1981.

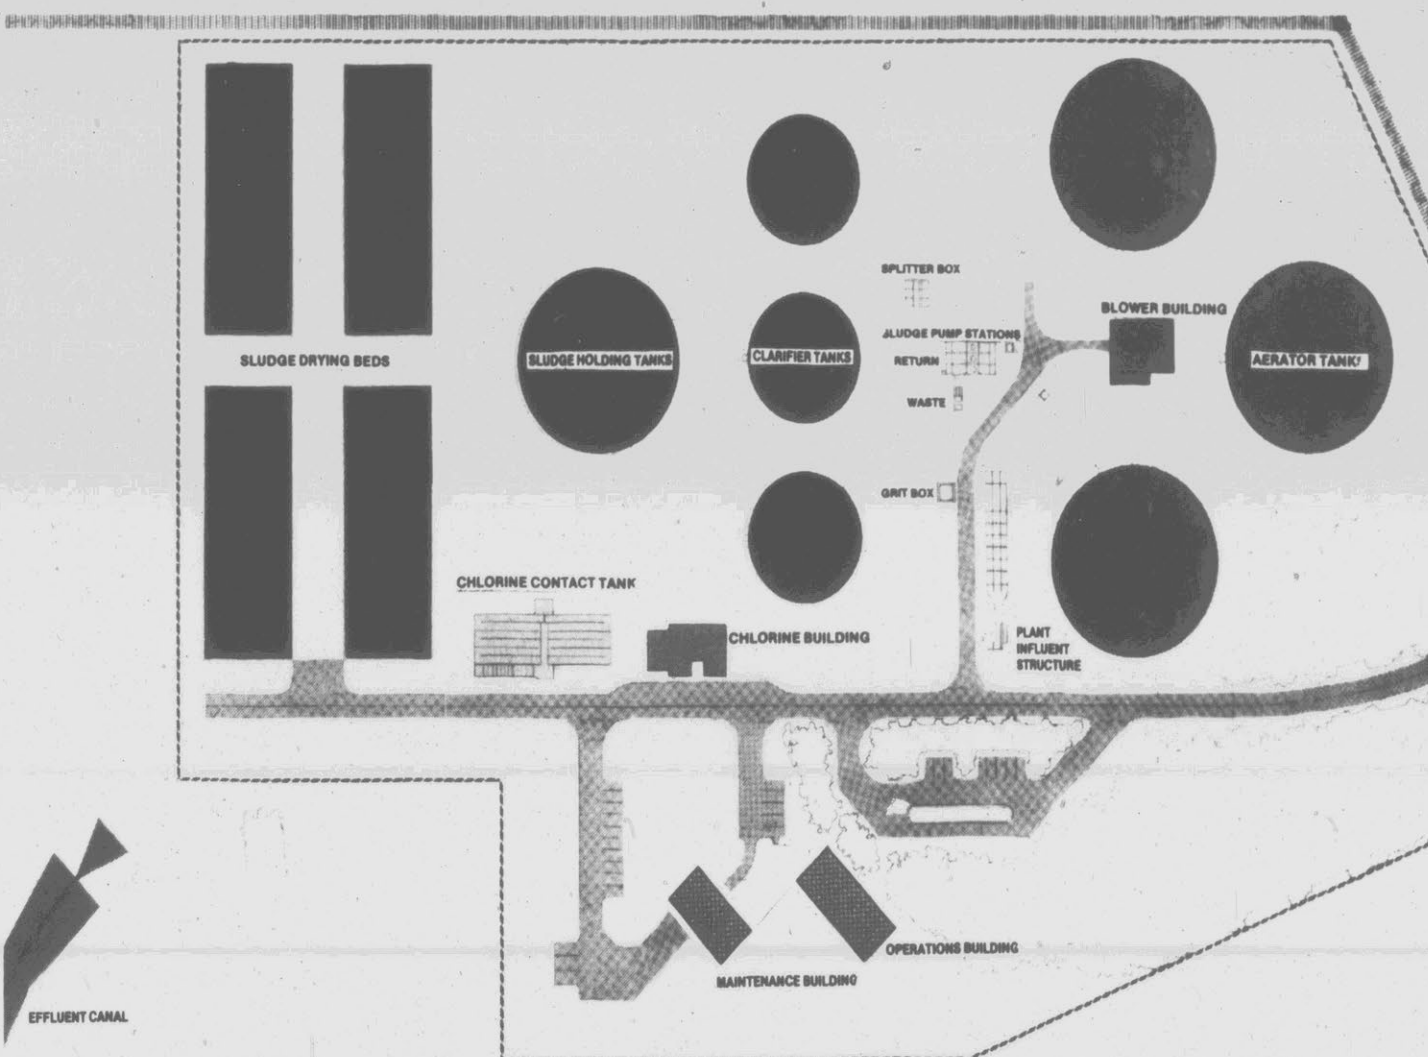

At that time, Greenville's priority rating was so low and the threat of a drastic reduction or complete elimination of federal aid so great, that members of the Utilities Commission voted to use local money and move ahead with the detailed design of the proposed facility. The commission also created a capital reserve fund to save money to help offset construction costs.

Detailed plans for the new plant were completed last year at a cost of $505,000 in local money, but officials still believed that it would be 1984 or 1985 before any federal funds would be available for construction.

However, in January the state DEM approved changes in the funding priority list which, if approved by the EPA, assures federal and state funding for the project this year.

According to Horne, none of the $4 million in bonds approved by local voters in 1979 for the sewer plant will have to be sold. He said the $2 million now in the reserve fund should be more than adequate to pay the local share of the costs.

The new facility will be located on a 200-acre site north of the Tar River and east of the Eastern Bypass bridge.

WASTEWATER PLANT LAYOUT ... This is a diagram of the proposed wastewater treatment plant for Greenville. Untreated wastes will enter the plant through the influent structure, then move through the aerator tanks to the clarifier tanks. Sludge will be collected in the sludge holding tank and dried in the drying beds. The water will pass through the chlorine contact tank and into the Tar River through the effluent canal, below and to the left of the drying beds. Future expansion of the plant will be to the left of the sludge drying beds.

Unemployment Drops Due Omission Of Military

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unemployment nationwide declined to 10.2 percent last month because military personnel were included in the computation for the first time and there were fewer layoffs than expected, the government said today. The rate even fell sharply for the all-civilian labor force.

The Labor Department added some 1.7 million uniformed military men and women to the calculation for January, a change that swelled the ranks of the employed while adding no one to the rolls of the jobless.

For the civilian labor force alone, January's unemployment rate fell 0.4 percentage point from December's 10.8 percent to 10.4 percent, mainly because of the lower-than-expected layoff total.

It was the lowest unemployment rate for civilians since the rate stood at 10.2 percent last September and the first time in a year that the rate actually fell.

The jobless rate last declined — from 8.8 percent to 8.6 percent — from December 1981 to January 1982 because of the same seasonal adjustment process that helped produce last month's decline. That adjustment reflects the fact that, because pre-holiday employment did not rise as much as would be expected in better economic times, there were fewer seasonal layoffs in January.

In Geneva, Switzerland, Martin Feldstein, chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said the drop in the civilian unemployment rate was the first significant decline "since the recession began some 17 months ago."

He did not define what he meant by significant, but the difference between the decline registered a year ago at this time and the new decline was only 0.2 percent.

Feldstein also said today's report "confirms that a recovery is either beginning or already here in the United States." He conceded, however, that unemployment "may bounce back up."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "In human terms, this is deeply gratifying news. We know it's been a difficult period for many, many Americans. We hope this will offer encouragement to them."

In the civilian labor force last month, the number of unemployed, when seasonally adjusted, plunged by nearly 600,000, from more than 12 million to 11.4 million, while total civilian employment held steady at roughly 99.1 million.

Two Truckers Are Seriously Wounded In Michigan

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

Two truckers were seriously wounded by gunfire in Michigan and Maine today, some truck stops laid off workers and more produce dealers reported shortages in the fifth day of a violent nationwide truckers strike.

One unidentified driver was hit in the face by a shotgun blast on Michigan 21 east of Capac and another driver with a load of potatoes was wounded in the shoulder on U.S. 95 in northern Maine. Both underwent surgery.

It was the most serious bloodshed since the first day of the strike when one driver was killed in North Carolina, a teen-age girl was hit in the head by a brick in Pennsylvania and a California driver was hospitalized in Utah.

But so far their have been more than 800 incidents of violence, mostly sniper attacks on trucks, with many minor injuries and only 17 arrests.

Michael Parkhurst, the head of the Independent Truckers Association, deplored the violence today on ABC's "Good Morning America" program and said the independents may be getting wrongfully blamed in some cases.

"In Indiana, some Teamsters had shot at some Teamster members," he said. "They weren't independent truckers. They were young guys who were drunk in Maryland two days ago (and) were arrested for shooting at trucks."

Parkhurst added that in Pennsylvania, the Teamsters union has organized a "SWAT team" to protect their drivers. "I realize they are unarmed, but nevertheless, they're going around beating up truckers who have been peacefully picketing," he said.

In Connecticut this morning, two dozen rigs converged on the state Capitol in Hartford with a deafening roar, hoping to meet with Gov. William O'Neill. But police blocked the trucks from gaining access to the grounds of the Capitol and the drivers had to settle for parking a few of the rigs on the street in front of the Capitol.

Meanwhile, wholesale prices for fresh fruits and vegetables rose 10 to 20 cents on some items "and that will start to show up in the retail stores," New York City's consumer affairs department warned Thursday.

"This morning we started to see some ugliness as far as pricing," reported James Lambert, general manager of the New Haven Food Terminal in Connecticut. "The prices started to creep up."

Produce and livestock shipments were down Thursday and drivers still on the road were collecting premium rates because of the strike called Monday by the Independent Truckers Association to protest rising fuel taxes and truck fees.

The ITA claims to represent 30,000 owner-operators, but other trucking groups dispute the figure and many drivers are staying off the roads because they fear violence.

At least 283 trucks in 32 states have been hit by gunfire and 541 others have been damaged by bricks, firebombs and other missiles, or had their tires slashed, authorities say.

"We're paying an extra $250 a load ...," said Robert Strube, president of Market Service Association, which represents about 166 Chicago wholesalers. "And the $250 isn't much to pay a driver for risking his life."

Strube, whose members normally get 90 percent of their produce from independent truckers, said the strike was costing them $415,000 a day and "the trend is upward."

Retail food shortages could begin in a week or 10 days, he said. "It depends on the violence on the highway. It's only common sense: If you're going to get killed, you stay away from it."

On Thursday, a shot from a passing car shattered the windshield of a truck carrying tuna on the Artesia Freeway in Anaheim, Calif. No one was injured, but it was California's first confirmed attack on a truck.

The state has already been hurt in other ways. In Fresno, shippers got $2,600 a week ago for taking broccoli, celery and lettuce to New York, but now the rate is $3,500, said produce broker Bill Causey of Western Ag Trucking. He said Western Ag shipments nationally have dropped from 200 a week to "30 at most."

Some NASCAR Grand National auto racing teams said they were nervous about transporting their cars and gear to Daytona Beach, Fla., for next week's National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing events. Driver Charlie Morgan said he is organizing a daytime convoy to minimize the risk of strike-related attacks.

Some striking drivers defended the violence on the highways.

"The only thing they understand is war," owner-operator Norman Pyle, in Somerset, Pa., said of the non-strikers. "That's the only way they're going to get the message, when they're scared."

Truckers still on the road who formed convoys for protection and drove only in daylight were slowing down the flow of goods, officials reported from around the country.

Soviet Union Is Challenged To Offer Missile-Banishing Plan

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — Vice President George Bush today challenged the Soviet Union "to come up with a plan to banish" intermediate-range nuclear missiles, and promised a U.S. initiative toward a treaty ban on chemical weapons.

Bush, who later sat down with the Kremlin's arms negotiators, said he planned to tell them "to be as reasonable as we are" in the talks, but would not use the occasion to negotiate. It was the first time such a high-ranking U.S. official met with Soviet negotiators since the superpowers opened the Geneva talks in November 1981.

In an address earlier today to the 40-nation U.N. Committee on Disarmament, the world's principal multilateral disarmament forum, Bush said the United States' so-called "zero option" proposal at the intermediate-range arms reduction talks here "is not a take it or leave it proposition."

he said. "Well, that argument is not good enough. I say to the Soviet leadership: Come up with a plan to banish these ... missiles."

In the intermediate-range arms talks, running parallel to negotiations on reducing longer-range arsenals, the United States has offered to cancel NATO plans to deploy 572 new nuclear missiles in Western Europe starting in December if the Soviet Union dismantles its arsenal of about 250 SS-20 missiles aimed at the Western allies.

The Soviet Union has rejected the proposal as one-sided. It has offered to reduce, but not eliminate, its SS-20 arsenal if NATO cancels the planned deployment. President Reagan earlier this week offered to meet Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov to sign a pact that would amount to the "zero option," but Andropov dismissed the offer as "nothing new."

In his speech, Bush said the Soviet position at the other set of superpower talks, those on reducing strategic arms, "does not go far enough" in trimming the numbers of intercontinental weapons.

Bush, who is midway through a 12-day tour of seven European nations to bolster support for U.S. arms control policies, also said that "a complete, effective and verifiable ban on chemical weapons is long overdue."

He said the U.S. delegation to the Committee on Disarmament will soon submit "a new document containing our detailed views on the content of a convention we believe could effectively ... eliminate the chemical weapons threat."

A chemical weapons ban has been among the goals of the long-running disarmament committee, which traces its legacy to the mid-1920s.

Bush repeated accusations that the Soviet Union has used chemical weapons in Afghanistan and southeast Asia. The charge drew a prompt retort from Soviet delegate Viktor L. Issraelyan, who took the podium after Bush spoke and said the vice president was spreading "lies."

The exchange ended amiably; the two men smiled and shook hands.

Before coming to Geneva, Bush visited the North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters in Brussels, where he said he had asked leaders of West Germany, the Netherlands and Belgium to propose alternatives to the official U.S. bargaining position on intermediate-range weapons.

Viktor P. Karpov, the chief Soviet negotiator to the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks (START), said Thursday he will have little to volunteer to Bush.

"I will be awaiting his questions to answer," Karpov said. "If he asks questions, I will answer."

The vice president, upon arriving at Geneva, said United States has presented to the Soviets the "most far-reaching set of nuclear arms reductions ever placed on the negotiating table."

Soviet deployment of sophisticated and highly accurate intermediate-and intercontinental-range missiles, he said, "poses an alarming threat to Europe and the world's security."

Margaret Mead: Was Her Book Misleading?

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer
CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — More than half a century ago, a young anthropologist wrote a portrait of easygoing life on a tropical island, a paradise of teen-age love and serene people without emotional hangups.

"Coming Of Age In Samoa" became a classic and so did its author, Margaret Mead.

Now a new book says Miss Mead's Samoan research missed the boat.

Derek Freeman, professor emeritus of anthropology at the Australian National University at Canberra, writes that Miss Mead's portrayal of Samoan culture "is

Freeman said he spent six years living among the Samoans in 1940-43 and 1965-68, and other years of research in the field, and found "Samoan society and culture are by no means simple and uncomplex; they are marked by particularities, intricacies and subtleties quite as daunting as those which face students of Europe and Asia."

Freeman's key points: —Competition is inherent in Samoan society, with contests of all kinds plus the emotional factors of jealousy, rivalry and revenge.

—Samoans are aggressive, have a history of wars and ferocities, and have village brawls that can continue for several days.

—Samoans on Manu'a at Miss Mead's time had long been devout Protestant Christians with strong ideas about sin, guilt, punishment and obedience.

—Child rearing shows the attachment behavior of parent to child as in other populations, and children are alternately indulged and punished.

—Adolescence is anything but a relaxed, untroubled time. Police records show a variety of offenses against authority.

Freeman said Mead presented a conflicting picture, reporting on one hand that female virginity was highly valued, with a virginity-testing ceremony at weddings of all ranks, "while at the same time adolescence among females is regarded as a period 'appropriate for love-making,' with promiscuity before marriage being both permitted and expected."

Freeman said that in fact, Samoans "value virginity highly and so disapprove of premarital promiscuity as to exercise a strict surveillance over the comings and goings of adolescent girls."

The Australian researcher said Samoans contend that Miss Mead made an honest error. They said the young girls she interviewed were embarrassed about sexual matters, and told her lies to tease her, "regaling their inquisitor with counterfeit tales of casual love under the palm trees."

Freeman also claims his research may be more valid because he learned the Samoan language and lived with a Samoan family, while Miss Mead's knowledge of that language was rudimentary and she lived with an American health officer.

Miss Mead may have foreshadowed the current debate. In June 1972, she wrote a preface to a new edition of her Samoan book, saying she had turned aside the idea of writing a revision.

"It must remain, as all anthropological works must remain, exactly as it was written," she said, "true to what I saw in Samoa and what I was able to convey of what I saw, true to the state of our knowledge of human behavior as it was in the mid 1920s; true to our hopes and fears for the future of the world."

Sandpipers Give Program

RALEIGH — A musical program by the choral group from Sanderson High School in Raleigh was given at the Tuesday meeting of the Sir Walter Cabinet.

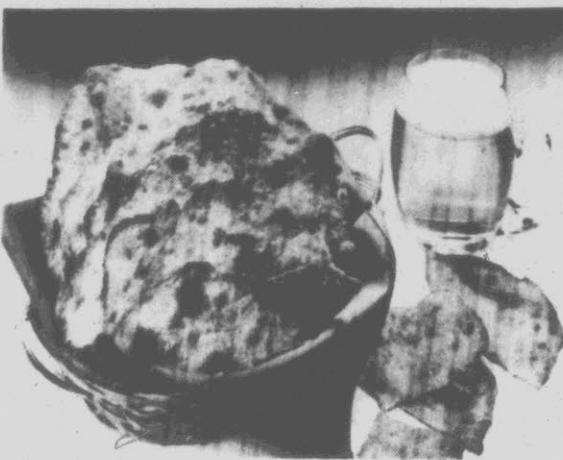

The "Sandpipers" performed at the White House in December. Their program was concluded by a song written for the first family entitled "The First Family Christmas."

Dr. E. Peters Bowron will be the group's next speaker.

Mrs. Ed Warren, wife of Rep. Warren of Greenville, is recording secretary for the women.

Americans consumed 389 million gallons of wine in 1981. Of the total, according to Cella Wines, imported table wines accounted for 25.3 percent. Cella says figures compiled by the Italian Trade Commission showed Italy shipped some 59.9 million gallons of wine to the United States in 1981, or 61 percent of all imports. France was second with a 15.3 percent market share, and Germany was third with 13.3 percent. The United States is the world's sixth largest wine producer.

FLAVORSOME ONION CRACKERS — You can bake them at home.

Take A Crack At Baking Crackers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Some of the best crackers we have ever baked aren't like storebought crackers — ours have their own individuality. But storebought crackers and our homemade ones do share one virtue — both are delightfully crisp.

Our crackers are large: each is an uneven round about 8 inches in diameter. To roll out the dough for each cracker easily and quickly, we use a pastry cloth and a stockinet-covered rolling pin.

We first tried a cracker recipe of this sort, using all white flour, about half a dozen years ago. Since then we've experimented with the formula, using white flour plus flour milled from grain other than wheat.

This latest version of the cracker recipe calls for both white and whole wheat flour and adds a flavorful and good ingredient — dehydrated onion. To my knowledge, no undesirable preservatives are added to dehydrated onion.

One word about serving these crackers. Pile them in a basket and offer them whole. Guests usually enjoy taking one of the huge crackers and breaking it into bite-size pieces — so have small plates and cocktail napkins on hand. The crackers are delicious enough to serve without a spread or a dip.

ONION CRACKERS
1 cup all-purpose white flour

$\frac{3}{4}$ cup whole wheat (graham) flour
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon baking soda
 $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup real mayonnaise
 $\frac{1}{4}$ cup plain yogurt
1 tablespoon honey
Salt

In a medium bowl thoroughly stir together white flour, whole wheat flour, soda and salt; stir in onion. With a pastry blender cut in mayonnaise until well mixed and coarse crumbs form. With a fork, stir in yogurt and honey. With your hands, press dough firmly into a ball; cut into 10 equal pieces; roll each into a ball. On a pastry cloth with a stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll each ball until paper-thin — an 8-inch uneven round. Place on ungreased cookie sheet; sprinkle lightly with extra salt.

Bake in a preheated 400-degree oven until lightly browned — 6 to 8 minutes. With a wide metal spatula, remove to wire racks to cool completely. Store in a tightly covered container. Offer whole, to be broken into pieces as served. Makes 10.

Note: These crackers are also delicious when the onion is omitted. — C.B.

A Crowd Pleaser Talk

North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms, in a statewide television talk recently, offered his plan for restructuring Social Security.

The senator outlined a plan which would embrace a private pension system with employees paying a part of Social Security taxes into individual retirement security accounts. The government's role would be a certificate guaranteeing the retiree his pension and Social Security benefits. The senator would also bring all federal employees under Social Security and there would be tax credits for individual retirement accounts by 1994.

The senator's much hailed North Carolina television talk on Social Security hardly caused a ripple in Washington, where no one in power would think of proposing dismantling the Social Security system as the Helms plan appears to do.

The questions abound.

How much pension and Social Security payment would the government be guaranteeing? If the government had to pay off on those guarantees, where would the money come from?

What about widows with young children?

How about people who for some reason do not have an individual account, but wind up equally sick and poor in old age?

It may as well be recognized that we now live in a society where public opinion will not allow anyone to starve or die in the streets. For those who do not set up accounts for their old age, care will still be needed, and that care will come from tax dollars. Thus, the Helms plan simply shifts government obligations to some other accounts.

The Helms proposals for providing for security in old age is nothing more than an attempt at a crowd-pleasing speech. At best it does no harm and at worst it might to some degree undermine the work of the president's commission to study Social Security. Other than that we cannot imagine it having any effect on the ultimate solution to Social Security's problems.

Local Deliveries Continue

As of the middle of this week the violence of the truckers strike seemed not to have affected deliveries of freight to this area.

Grocers and wholesalers said their deliveries, some of them by company-owned trucks, were still coming in and most anticipated no immediate problems in obtaining deliveries.

Drivers were concerned, however, as violence spread throughout the nation. Some were doubling up on runs and some were avoiding truck stops and traveling only during the day.

Truck deliveries are vital to our community and it is reassuring that trucks are continuing to make their runs into the area. We would like to see the truckers strike ended. Until it is, however, we certainly hope that other trucks can keep running and the drivers will not have to fear violence at every turn.

THIS AFTERNOON

'Flashbacks' Hurt

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR

RALEIGH — Judge Donnie Smith looks back on that gray October evening and says, "You bet it bothers me." Over and over, he's relived that entire evening — from the time he left the Robeson County Courthouse in Lumberton, heading home to Raleigh, to the time he slammed on his brakes on the I-95 exit ramp in Benson, a second too late to avoid hitting and killing a migrant farmworker who unexplainedly was running across the highway.

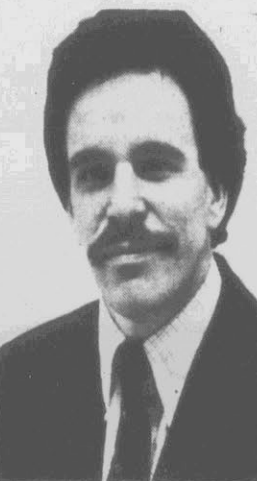

If there was ever any question that Smith was at fault, it was shortlived. The investigating highway patrolman quickly ruled that Smith was not to be blamed. The migrant, to this date still unidentified, had simply come out of nowhere.

Smith, however, isn't so quick to absolve. He questions himself repeatedly, focusing on all of fate's details, which, when added together, had he and that farmworker reaching the exit ramp at the same instant.

"I blame myself, but I blame myself in a different way. That night, I'd thought about turning off the highway at Dunn instead of Benson. If only I had, I wouldn't have hit him. Or, I think about the lawyer I stopped by to talk with in the parking lot outside the courthouse. If I just hadn't stayed so long. Or, I stopped at a men's store I regularly go to down there. If I just hadn't stayed so long, or if I'd stayed longer with my old friends there."

Talking about the accident over lunch, Smith seems the same easy-going "regular guy" this reporter has known for five years. He's 43, considered one of Raleigh's most eligible bachelors (although one young lady does appropriate much of his time) and one of the state's finest trial court judges. Smith is unflappable and steady, a man with the inner strength a judge needs to stare down posturing defense lawyers and prosecutors. He runs a no-nonsense, no-pomp court that gives both sides a fair trial, defense attorneys and prosecutors will tell you.

In his 10 years on the Superior Court bench, he's had plenty of experience in the swirls of controversy. He presided over the Jamsam trial in Concord, the Christian schools licensing case and the Atkinson family heroin smuggling cases. Where there's a grisly murder to be tried, Smith often gets the call. At one point in 1980, half of the state's 12 Death Row inmates had been tried in Smith's courtrooms.

The fact that he's a judge is a political controversy in itself to some people. He's the state's only Republican Superior Court judge, having been initially appointed by Gov. Jim Holshouser but then re-appointed by Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt. He's

Other Editors Say Unjustified Jollies

(Raleigh Times)

The bulk of the world's non-joggers probably find some justification jollies in believing that jogging can be hazardous to health.

Every time these people, sitting in their well-upholstered cars, whisk past a jolting, jouncing, hard-breathing roadside runner, they tend to think "Ah poor soul, he's probably overdoing it..." And, rolling on, they glance in the rear-view mirror a time or two to be sure not to miss his keel-over should it happen while they're still in range.

Unfortunately for these sedentary souls, that's simply not the way it works — or not nearly often enough to discourage anyone in reasonable health from getting started at his own moderate exercise program.

The evidence is laid out clearly by the new head of UNC-Chapel Hill's School of Public Health, Dr. Michel Ibrahim, in an editorial for the February American Journal of Public Health.

He does not claim jogging is riskless. It isn't. While it's estimated that only 77 per 100,000 people would die during exercise by chance alone, one recent study found every 100,000 joggers had 13 deaths. And joggers encounter other added risks — cars, dogs, falls.

As Ibrahim hastens to add, however, the crux of the matter is not this slight increased risk but how it weighs up against the potential benefit.

Leading down the latter side of the scale is clear evidence, based on many careful studies by different scientists in different parts of the world, that better health, and especially the health of the heart, is among the long-term effects of exercise, including jogging.

If the improvement were only marginal, it might not be worth the slight extra risk. But it is substantial. One British study of office workers, for example, found men who exercised vigorously had only half as much coronary trouble and coronary deaths as those who didn't. Even the chemical processes by which exercise helps the heart have been outlined.

Ibrahim's conclusion: While jogging can have adverse effects, and we need to know more about them, clearly many of them could be reduced by better conditioning, equipment, terrain and medical advice.

Meanwhile, the more the public goes in for reasonable physical exercise, the healthier that public will be.

Damage Control Team

Just when the White House staff thought it was safe to send the President out to meet the people, Ronald Reagan blew his entire "My Heart Goes Out To The Poor 'State of the Union'" speech by telling hi-tech business executives in Boston that he might be in favor of abolishing the corporate income tax. He said, "I realize there may be a great stirring and I will probably kick myself for having said this. But when are we going to have the courage to point out in our tax structure, (sic) the corporate tax is very hard to justify its existence."

White House staffers who stayed behind to see how the President's speech was playing on Capitol Hill were dumbfounded when someone rushed in and said, "He blew it in Boston. Get the damage control team right away."

Sirens rang in the White House and six men dressed in asbestos Brooks Brothers suits with fire extinguishers rushed into the political war room. They gathered around the AP news ticker and read the statement.

"Oh, my God," one of them said. "This is worse than announcing on Thanksgiving Day we were thinking of taxing unemployment benefits."

The chief damage control officer said, "Let's not panic, men. We have to think clearly. Dave, start flooding the media with confusion."

"Should I say he didn't say it, or he didn't mean it?"

"We can't say he didn't say it, because they'll show him making the statement on TV tonight. And we can't say he didn't mean it, because we'll make him look as if he doesn't know what he's talking about."

ART BUCHWALD

"So how can we snuff it out?"

"We'll say he was speaking for himself and not as President of the United States."

"That won't fly."

"We'll say it's an idea the President would like to implement at some future time when the country is on the mend."

The phones were ringing in the war room. An aide picked one up and said, "We know all about it. We're trying to get the fire under control..." He turned to the others. "It's the Treasury Department. They're asking what happened."

"Tell them nothing happened. The President was just having a little fun in Boston with corporate executives about taxes."

The aide repeated the message and then turned to the damage control team.

"They say they've just issued a press release that we're planning to tax medical bills and make old people pay more of their hospital costs. The President's remarks are going to blow them out of the water."

"We can't worry about their problems now. We'll call them back when we figure out how we're going to handle it."

An aide on another phone yelled, "It's Larry Speakes in Boston. Be says he's under siege by the press traveling with the President."

The head damage control officer grabbed the phone.

"How bad is it Larry? ... Real bad? ... The press is licking their chops and doing back flips over the statement? ... What about the President visiting the job training program in Roxbury or a blue collar bar in Boston? ... I was afraid of that. Look, hold on as long as you can, Larry, until we can come up with something here that can turn the tide ... Stonewall them. That's what you're paid for."

Another aide was on the phone. "It's Howard Baker on the Hill. He says the Democrats are dancing in the aisles."

The chief grabbed the phone. "Cool down, Howard ... No, I haven't spoken to the President yet but I swear to you this is the first time anyone ever heard of this idea. Howard, we know this is making your life tougher, but we'll get it straightened out ... No, Howard, he doesn't have his feet in concrete on this one. At least we don't think he has."

The chief damage control officer repeated the

Projections Are Fragile

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration economists have etched a less-than-inviting political landscape for Republicans heading toward the 1984 campaigns for the White House and Congress. They figure that the economy will be improving, but ever so slowly.

And there is little doubt that the economy will be the dominant issue as the presidential campaign takes shape. That is going to give the Democrats plenty to talk about, just as they are talking now.

"With 14 million people out of work — the highest number in history — it is time for a combined program of relief, recovery and reconstruction," says House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

Accepting the administration's budget projections, about 10 million people would be out of work a year from now, with the campaign under way and the season's first presidential primary elections approaching. Democratic candidates are likely to be working off a similar script. And Republicans probably will have more to defend than to brag about.

Unemployment is expected to be headed downward, but at a tortuously slow pace. The budget projections anticipate a rate averaging 10.7 percent this year, just one-tenth of 1 percent lower than the current post-Depression record. The administration foresees unemployment of 10.4 percent at the end of 1983, and 9.5 percent at the end of 1984.

This year's forecasts are gloomier than those of the recent past on every economic front except inflation. President Reagan says that the economy is "now on the road to a healthy recovery," despite the hardships wrought by unemployment.

His Council of Economic Advisors forecasts economic gains, but at a rate slower than that of the comeback from past recessions, and warns at the same time that massive federal deficits could prolong the slump.

The new Reagan budget anticipates an unemployment rate of 9.9 percent in 1984, 8.9 percent in 1985, and 8.1 percent in 1986. By those projections, it would dip to 7.3 percent in 1987, slightly below the rate of joblessness at the time Reagan took office.

The budget projections anticipate a 4.9 percent increase in the consumer price index this year, and 4.6 percent increases in each of the following three years. Prior budgets had projected substantially higher rates of increase in the cost of living.

Those assumptions are fragile; in the past, they've been wrong. "During the past 10 years, longer-term economic assumptions made by the government have uniformly and systematically been excessive and unrealistically optimistic, thus masking the growing problems of budgetary imbalance," the Reagan budget says.

It goes on to suggest that misleading forecasts have undermined public confidence, making "realistic and prudent" projections particularly important this year.

The economic seers don't have to miss by much to see the budget bent out of shape. For example, an unexpected, 1 percent increase in unemployment would add about $5.3 billion to the budget. An anticipated rise in interest rates would do the same. One percent at the beginning of the year would cost the government $7.1 billion; at midsummer, $5.8 billion.

Last time, the administration, the Congressional Budget Office, and private forecasters all were off the mark. Their consensus was that the gross national product would grow by 3 percent. It declined by 1.2 percent. They forecast unemployment of 8.8 percent at year-end, low by two points.

That apparently is one reason for the cautious projections in the new Reagan budget.

Besides, projections that now look like political minuses for the administration and the GOP could turn out to their advantage if the economy gets better faster.

Strength For Today

GETTING AHEAD

Have you ever read in the paper of someone's winning a great deal of money, or inheriting a large fortune, or making a successful business coup? We all have, and probably our first reaction is to wish we could be that lucky. But we should remember that with the greater privilege of wealth or high position comes not only added responsibility but also added temptation. Great riches make it easier to spend wastefully. Power in politics or business lends itself to abuse. High positions tempt some to pride and vanity.

The workings of the world are such that what we most want may be capable of doing us the most harm. It is not good for people to become "bigger" in the eyes of the world unless they also become bigger and better in spirit also. Some people grow to fit their opportunities. Some remain small. So don't strive merely for the larger boots of the men ahead of you. Strive first to be big enough to fill them! — Elisha Douglass

Behind The Derailed Executive

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In every corporation there are executives who come close to winning one of the top 10 to 20 jobs only to derail — that is, become demoted, transferred, fired, retired or plateaued.

Those seeking quick explanations may attribute it to the Peter Principle — that the executive rose beyond his level of competence — or perhaps to the possession of some fatal flaw.

The Center For Creative Leadership dug deeper, and while it might not have developed any laws of success, since chance was found to be too important a factor, they did manage to find a few consistent patterns.

They found, for instance, that what might have been a candidate's strength when he was farther down the ladder, can become a fatal flaw higher up. Such as ambition or playing politics or overmanaging.

"Every strength is a weakness also," say Morgan McCall Jr. and Michael Lombardo, who conducted the study. Loyalty, for instance, can be reinterpreted as overdependence or narrowness or cronyism, they said.

The scholars studied many executive careers for the center, a non-profit, educational and research organization begun in 1970 with assistance from the Richardson Foundation, named for the Vick Chemical Co. family.

Those who arrive and those who derail are more similar than different, say McCall and Lombardo. They are very bright, are identified early, produce fine track records, have flaws, are ambitious and make many sacrifices.

But arrivers also may have characteristics that separate them. They do more different kinds of things well, maintain composure under stress, handle mistakes with poise and grace, focus on problems and solve them, and get along with all kinds of people, being outspoken but not offensive.

"At the levels of excellence at which executives deal," they found, "even a small difference is more than sufficient to create winners and losers."

McCall and Lombardo found that the flaws in all executives tended to show when one of five things happened:

—They lost a boss who had covered or compensated for their weaknesses.

—They entered a job for which they were not prepared, usually coupled with having a new boss whose style was quite different.

—They left behind a trail of little problems or bruised people, either because they handled them poorly or moved through so quickly they failed to handle them at all.

—They moved up during an organizational shakeup and were scrutinized until during the shakedown period.

—They entered the executive suite, where getting along with others under conditions of high stress is critically important.

These wart-revealing events in themselves may not have been as important as how the executive dealt with them, the authors say. Very often, they say, an executive may derail during such crises through insensitivity to others. Under stress, some of the derailed managers became abrasive and intimidating.

In contrast, it was found that a strong trait of successful executives was the "ability to handle flaws and situations that cause them to matter."

Among the more serious flaws revealed in the studies were betrayal of trust, overmanaging and failing to delegate, ambition and politics, failing to staff effectively, inability to think strategically, inability to adapt to a boss with a different style, and overdependence on an advocate or mentor.

But all this having been said, McCall and Lombardo concede that "events conspire, too."

Some of the derailed, they say, apparently did little wrong. "They were done in politically, or by economic upheavals. Essentially they weren't very lucky."

2nd Graders Decide Fairy Tale Trials

PRESCOTT, Wash. (AP) — The Big Bad Wolf was guilty of property destruction as charged. Gretel was cleared of murder in the killing of the old witch, but it took four polls of the jury to acquit her.

Teacher Bill Wolford uses fairy tale characters who are good, bad or just everyday citizens to show his class of about a dozen second-graders at Prescott Elementary School how the American judicial system works. He said it also trains them to think on their feet.

The students, ages 7 and 8, play defendants such as the smirking wolf who blew down the Three Little Pigs' houses, or the frightened Gretel, who shoved the witch into the oven and banged the door shut.

Students also play witnesses, lawyers and jurors.

"Their reading, comprehension and listening have developed because they have to think," Wolford said Thursday. "I generally sit down with the students and let them throw out ideas."

Wolford said he sets aside 45 minutes each Friday for the discussions and fairy tale trials for his pupils in this southeast Washington community.

"I guide the discussion by keeping them on track, but I let them develop it. Afterwards they explain how they reached their conclusions. It's important that the decision-making process be shared," he said.

Angela Gessel, 8, appropriately defiant as the Big Bad Wolf, was grilled about whether she huffed and puffed and blew down one little pig's straw house.

"Just as I was beginning to talk to the little pig, a strong wind came up and blew the house down," she claimed. The jury didn't buy that story and convicted her. In the case of Gretel vs. The Second Grade, the jury had a tougher time. Gretel baked the witch to death, that's clear; but was it murder or justified homicide?

It's Formal

The appointment of Walter B. Jones Jr. of Farmville, son of U.S. Rep. Walter B. Jones, as a state representative to complete the term of the late Sam Bundy, was announced Thursday afternoon by Gov. Jim Hunt.

Bundy, who had served in the Legislature since 1971, died of a heart attack Jan. 18 in Raleigh.

Jones' appointment was recommended to Hunt by the 9th House District Committee, which met Monday in Snow Hill to interview prospective appointees and review resumes. The district includes Greene and most of Pitt counties.

Jones will be sworn in Monday at 11 a.m. by Secretary of State Thad Eure in the House chambers of the Legislative Building in Raleigh.

In announcing the appointment, Hunt said, "Walter Jones will be an outstanding addition to the General Assembly. He will be a worthy successor to Sam Bundy, who served his constituents with great distinction for so many years."

Jurors finally acquitted Gretel because of testimony by a woodcutter who said that after the witch died, all her belongings vanished. The woodcutter added, however, that the witch always fed him cookies and seemed nice enough.

Since the witch tried to roast Hansel and Gretel, she had to be a bad witch, not a good one. Gretel, the jury concluded, did what needed doing.

When students recently discussed "Jack and the Beanstalk," they questioned whether Jack had the right to run off with the giant's golden horn.

"I read the story and then asked them if there was anything wrong with it," Wolford said. "They agreed Jack was stealing and that wasn't right."

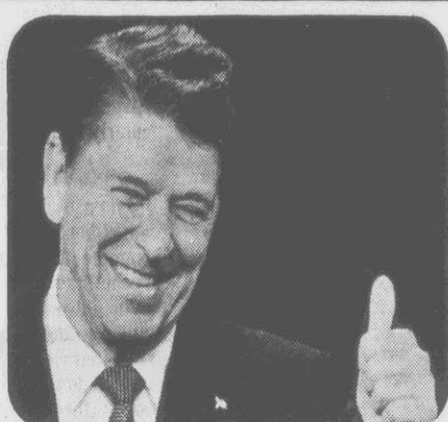

"Then they started thinking about Jack's cutting down the beanstalk and killing the giant. Some pointed out that if he hadn't cut it down, the giant would have killed him. But one boy said he could have just scrambled down the stalk" and run away.

"Then another boy asked if he'd ever tried to outrun a giant."

The beanstalk caper was just a matter of discussion, and Jack will not be tried, Wolford said.

Happy Birthday, Mr. President

Sunday marks the 72nd birthday of Ronald Wilson Reagan, 40th President of the United States. Born in Tampico, Illinois, on February 6, 1911, Mr. Reagan is a walking advertisement for the old cliché that any kid can grow up to be President. He was born to a modest family. His father, John, was a shoe salesman who eventually settled in Dixon, Illinois, where Ron grew up. There, "Dutch" Reagan played football, worked summers as a life guard, and was elected to his first political position — president of his high school student body. He went on to Eureka College and worked his way through, then went to Chicago to try for a job in radio broadcasting. And the rest, as they say, is history.

DO YOU KNOW — Who was the oldest President ever to serve in the White House?

THURSDAY'S ANSWER — Texas elected George Bush to two terms in the House of Representatives.

up for reappointment again this year and Democratic lawyers in the Legislature say privately that they'll work to help him keep his job.

Smith is the kind of person you'd expect to hold himself together in the aftermath of such a tragedy. And apparently he has. One of his best friends is Brent Hackney, Hunt's deputy press aid. "There were some rough times for him," Hackney says, "but he's handled it about as well as anyone could. He had some nightmares and he had some sleepless nights, he told me, but he's gradually come out of it. Even now you can tell it still bothers him, that it's still on his mind."

It gets on his mind, Smith says, when he gets back in his car. "You have some flashbacks. I can tell you that. You're amazed how you can remember every minute detail and when you're driving, that affects you. A paper bag can blow across the road and your reflexes have you jumping on those brakes so fast. And when someone is walking along the road, you just slow down till you're almost stopped because you don't know if he's going to walk out in front of you."

officer hung up. "No more calls."

An aide who was on the phone said, "It's the President in Boston. He wants to know how he's doing."

The Chief took the receiver. "Yes, sir. You're doing just great. The calls on your 'State of the Union' have been phenomenal, and the telegrams are pouring in. Where do we want you to go next? We think you better stay in the White House until your budget is passed. A trip to Boston can be pretty taxing for you. By the way, Mr. President, speaking of taxing..."

Charlotte Police For Fingerprinting

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A fingerprinting program designed to help identify missing or dead children is being encouraged by Charlotte police. "I can see setting up fingerprinting stations at shopping malls or schools," said Charlotte policeman Sgt. Pete Toomey. "We're hoping off-duty police officers will volunteer their time to train civilians in the art of fingerprinting. We've scheduled meetings with public school officials regarding their roles," he said.

The plan, which would be voluntary, is still on the drawing board in Charlotte, but similar programs are thriving in other states. Under the new Missing Children Act, the FBI will include children's fingerprints in its computer of missing persons. Charlotte's plan would involve citizens, parents and police volunteers. "Police haven't decided who will pay for the program, who will keep the records and what age child should be printed. "It's hard to get a print from pre-schoolers because their (fingerprint) ridges aren't as easily definable," said Charlotte Police Capt. Bill Ensley of the department's crime laboratory identification section.

Other crime laboratory technicians said it would take no more than a few hours to train volunteers to take good prints.

Volunteer programs are necessary because North Carolina law prevents law enforcement officers from taking photographs or fingerprints of a juvenile without a court order.

"Cost for the whole thing should be at a minimum," said Toomey. "And the actual fingerprinting itself should take less than a minute to complete."

Late Payment To Cost State Heavy Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A federal appeals court order requiring North Carolina to begin paying Medicaid and welfare applicants $50 a week every time their payments are delayed may cost the state as much as $6 million over the next four months, officials say.

The state was ordered by U.S. District Court Judge James McMillan to begin paying penalties, effective Thursday, because of what he called excessive delays in complying with a court order to speed up processing of applications.

William W. Webb, an attorney for the state, said it could cost the state as much as $6 million over the next four months. However, John Syria, spokesman for the state Department of Human Resources, estimates the decision would cost the state around $1 million.

The state asked the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond, Va., to delay execution of the court order, but the two-judge panel refused to hear the request. The state said it sought the stay because it felt the ruling by McMillan was too strict.

"We have to implement this. We did not get the stay," he said. "It's going to cost, too. The counties are still working on getting caught up," Syria said.

He said the state will pay any penalties caused by delays by state workers, but that counties will have to pay the penalties for any delays caused by them. He said the ruling applies to all 100 counties in North Carolina.

The state now is behind in 350 to 400 cases, and hopes to have many of them caught up by the end of the month, Syria said. Some cases could be delayed until April.

McMillan ordered the penalties after he became frustrated with delays by the state in complying with court orders stemming from a suit filed in 1974. That suit claimed that the state was not meeting federal deadlines in processing welfare claims for people receiving Medicaid and Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Federal rules now stipulate that the state has 45 days to process claims for aid to families, and 60 days for Medicaid.

In a hearing in Charlotte, McMillan also ruled that some cases characterized as overdue with good reason — such as delays caused by the applicant — were being deliberately miscoded.

Webb said that finding "may have prompted the latest order in which he imposed fines."

Webb said the estimated $2 million to $6 million is not all for penalties. He said some of the money will go to cover lost federal financial aid, because federal regulations do not recognize remedial fines as justified welfare payments.

Webb said the state will argue at the March 1 hearing that McMillan's order was too strict.

Watt To Soon Announce Oil Exploration Plans

By The Associated Press
Interior Secretary James Watt may announce soon whether Kuwait will be allowed to explore for natural gas and oil in the national forests of North Carolina and other states, says a spokesman for U.S. Rep.

James McClure Clarke, D-N.C.

Recent reports have indicated Watt would allow Kuwait to explore on U.S. public lands, but John Crumpler of Clarke's office said that Watt had told the House Interior Committee he would make a decision by Feb. 15.

Kuwait owns Sante Fe International Minerals Corp. which is seeking permits to prospect on 235,000 acres in Pisgah, French Broad, Toecane and Grandfather districts of the Pisgah National Forest.

Permits are being sought by all major oil companies on almost 1 million acres of Forest Service land in North Carolina. An exploration permit carries with it the permission to drill or mine if a potentially profitable find is made.

But without waiting for Watt's decision, Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., has introduced a bill that would deny Kuwait and other foreign nations from exploration, said Dennis Clark of Clarke's staff. Kuwait bought control of Sante Fe International late in 1980 to extend its ownership of U.S. firms. Sante Fe, at the time it was bought by Kuwait, already held $10 million worth of energy exploration leases on federal lands in Oklahoma, Louisiana and Colorado.

Its applications for permits to explore Pisgah National Forest lands are currently on hold in the offices of the national forests in North Carolina, said Dick Moore, manager of lands.

"We are processing none of them," he said, "until we get orders to do so," Moore said.

He said his office is processing other applications.

Meanwhile, International Petroleum Co., headed by Charles Siler Slagle of Macon County, and Jack Brettler of Hendersonville, has "over-filed" on 11,000 acres of forest land in the Grandfather District — that is, the two have filed for rights to prospect on 11,000 acres Sante Fe filed for first.

"We think there'll be oil there," Brettler said.

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — About 200 people, some carrying placards bearing photos of missing men and women, marched through downtown Bogota.

They also sent an open letter to President Belisario Betancur claiming the army and previous government's security agents were to blame for the disappearances.

The marchers Thursday said most of those who disappeared were arrested during a state of siege declared by President Julio Cesar Turbay, whose six-year term ended last August.

Killed Mother After Arguing

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A 12-year-old seventh-grader has been charged with murdering his mother by stabbing her with a butcher knife after arguing with her about his grades.

Late Wednesday morning, police received a call from a boy who said he had killed his mother. Soon afterwards, they found the body of 30-year-old Patricia Rice Rustin, sitting slumped over the arm of a couch in her den.

Because the youth arrested for Mrs. Rustin's murder is a juvenile, police are forbidden by law to release his name and any details of the case.

Greenville Salvation Army Annual Banquet Held

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Salvation Army, now in its 100th year of witness and service, is a balance of spiritual and social endeavor, Commissioner Andrew Miller said Thursday night during his keynote speech at Army's annual banquet.

Miller, who heads the Army in the Southeast, said a recent survey by an outside agency found that the Army is respected in all parts of the country equally. Those outside the organization see it more as a social agency, while Salvationists, those who attend its worship services and volunteer in its services, see it more as a church.

He said he personally was pleased with the balance that has been attained between the evangelism and service to all regardless of acceptance of beliefs and he resolved for this to continue into the Army's second century of service.

Presentations of awards were made by Les Garner, Christmas campaign chairman. Bell ringer awards went to the top three producers during the Kettle Campaign of this past year. These were the University City Kiwanis Club with $3,841.41; the Golden K Kiwanis Club with $1,793.07, and the Greenville Rotary Club (Night) with $1,092.17. Also recognized were the Kiwanis Club of Greenville with $955.94; the Moose Lodge No. 885 with $774.20; the VFW Women's Auxiliary with $497.92; the Future Business Leaders of America of Rose High School with $339.62; the Rose High Keyettes with $248.41; the Business and Professional Women's Club with $176.75; the Progressive City Kiwanis Club with $121.27; the Anchor Club of Rose High School with $108.86; Kappa Delta Sorority of East Carolina University with $63.97, and the Salvation Army Advisory Board with $2,060.37.

It was reported that some 3,318 persons were assisted during the Christmas campaign; 800 clients were interviewed, and 472 food baskets, 524 personal care kits, 3,318 toys and 1,109 fruit and candy bags were given. A total of $15,903.92 was collected through kettles, $13,138.17 through a mail appeal, $10,236.75 through special committees and other efforts, and $377.91 through the annual doll show.

Divisional Commander Maj. David Holz installed new officers, including Jerry Powell as chairman, Jimmy Sutton as vice chairman, Julian Vainright as secretary and James Sullivan as treasurer. Also installed were new advisory board members Greenville Banks, Glenn Hardee and Dr. Jim Galloway.

A $12,750 check was presented by outgoing chairman Lyman Ormond Jr. as part of the $100,000 that the Greenville area has set as its goal for contribution to the Army's education and retirement fund. He said $38,000 has been pledged.

radio were recognized for their assistance to the local Army program with public relations.

Ormond and his wife, Polly, were recognized for their contributions to the Army during his tenure as chairman. Garner announced he would serve one more year as Christmas campaign chairman. Music was provided by the Salvation Army East Carolina Area Band made up of Salvationists from 12 towns in eastern N.C.

City Counts 4 Collisions

An estimated $4,850 damage resulted from a series of four traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 4:36 p.m. collision on Darden Drive, 350 feet north of the West Roundtree Drive intersection.

They said a car driven by Lonzy Lee Cox of Route 1, Bethel, collided with a parked school bus owned by the Greenville Board of Education, then struck a parked car owned by David Allen Blake of 410A Darden Drive, forcing that car into another parked vehicle owned by Blake.

Police, who charged Cox with driving under the influence and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $450 to the Cox car, $200 to the bus, $200 to one of the Blake cars and $800 to the other Blake vehicle.

Cars driven by Helen Ruth Brown of Route 1, Bethel, and Vernon Lee Leggett of Route 3, Greenville, collided about 8 a.m. at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Chestnut Street, causing an estimated $900 damage to the Brown car and $450 damage to the Leggett auto.

A 7:45 a.m. collision at the intersection of Greene Street and Airport Road involved cars driven by Mark Russell Copenhaver of Route 5, Greenville, and Robert Andrew Miller of Route 1, Greenville.

Investigators estimated damage at $400 to the Copenhaver car and $300 to the Miller auto.

Cars driven by Monica Jill Bullard of Wilson Acres and Terrelle Earl Bowen of Chocowinity, collided about 12:19 p.m. at the intersection of Elm and Fifth streets, causing $250 damage to the Bullard car and $400 damage to the Bowen car.

An estimated $200 damage resulted to a car driven by Calvin Curtis Henderson of Winterville in an 11:15 a.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Lone Street.

Officers said the Henderson car collided with a vehicle driven by Ethel Stocks Cannon of Ayden, resulting in an estimated $300 damage to the Cannon car.

Now All Homes Have 2 Phones

BONE, Idaho (AP) — This tiny town made headlines last summer when its 40 residents finally got telephone service. Now, all 23 households have not just one phone — but two.

NBC television gave out the second phones free and taped the residents riding on snowmobiles to the Bone Store to pick them up on Wednesday.

The segment will be shown on the daytime "Fantasy" program.

"The people in Bone are obviously really something to have survived so long without phones and stuck it out through some difficult situations," said "Fantasy" director Dan Funk.

"I thought it was all over last August," said resident Dahl Butters concerning all the publicity. "It's kind of exciting, really."

SOLD BABIES
KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Two women accused of selling 108 babies for adoption have been sentenced to 10-month jail terms for three of the sales.

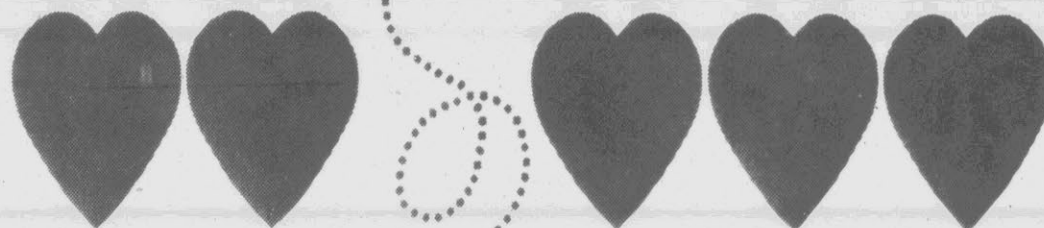

OFFICES TARGETED
NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Powerful explosions severely damaged offices of Air France and Iraqi Airways in downtown New Delhi about midnight Thursday, police reported.

BELL RINGER AWARDS ... for major contributions to the Christmas Kettle Fund of the Salvation Army were accepted Thursday night during the Army's annual banquet by N.G. Raynor (second from left) of the Golden K Kiwanis Club; Ken Bryant (center) of the University City Kiwanis Club and Dr.

Jasper Lewis (second from right) of the Greenville Rotary Club (Night). Posing with them are Les Garner, Christmas campaign chairman, and Maj. Ronald Davis, commanding officer of the Salvation Army, Greenville.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

PROPHECY DOOMED ELI

ONE OF THE GREAT EARLY PROPHETS WAS ELI BUT IN HIS OLDER AGE HE BECAME MORE OF A DOTTING FATHER THAN HE WAS A PRIEST. HIS TWO SONS COULD GET AWAY WITH ANYTHING SHORT OF MURDER IN THE EYES OF OLD ELI. THE SONS, AS LESSER PRIESTS IN THE TEMPLE, USED TO CONFISCATE MEAT THAT WAS FOR SACRIFICES USING IT FOR THEIR OWN MEALS AND WASHING IT DOWN WITH SACRIFICIAL WINE. COMPARED WITH SOME OF THEIR OTHER EVIL DEEDS THIS WAS ONLY A MINOR OFFENSE. ELI, ALTHOUGH HE KNEW OF THESE MISDEEDS, DID NOTHING ABOUT THEM UNTIL IT WAS TOO LATE. FINALLY GOD SENT A PROPHET FROM THE WILDERNESS WHO PROCLAIMED BEFORE ELI THE DOOM THAT HE FACED. (1 SAMUEL 2:27-31)

NOW HEAR THE WORD OF THE LORD: I WILL CUT OFF THY HOUSE THAT NONE SHALL GROW TO BE AN OLD MAN IN IT - THY TWO SONS, HOPHNI AND PHINEAS, SHALL DIE IN THE SAME DAY AND THY HOUSE SHALL PERISH FOREVERMORE!

Mixed Values Said Destructive

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

A currently popular idea is that mixed values are essential to democracy and that moral absolutes are out of place. But a noted theologian says that view could destroy democracy itself.

"The perverse notion that democracy is incompatible with moral absolutes spells inevitable collapse and chaos for democracy," says the Rev. Carl F.H. Henry, a widely influential evangelical scholar.

On that issue, he says, "American culture is at a fateful crossroads."

Henry, honored this week in Washington, D.C., at the annual convention of National Religious Broadcasters on his completion of a monumental six-volume work, "God, Revelation and Authority," spoke at the affair's closing banquet.

He said a "new secular mindset" in American society seeks "social escape from all the ethical demands of civilized existence" and holds that the only rule of action is "private decision and personal creativity."

In earlier generations Americans judged themselves by Judeo-

Christian principles," he said, but now a "growing vanguard of society" regards those standards as a "threat to self-fulfillment."

"Today's narcissistic philosophy considers biblical imperatives a barrier to self-realization and the church an impediment to free and creative selfhood," he said.

"Human existence is deliberately and routinely collapsed into a me-first philosophy in all dimensions of life."

Henry's thesis touched a common chord among the gathering of about 3,000 religious broadcasters and producers, many of them of evangelical bent. But he also chided them for sometimes catering to the same trend.

In the modern "defiance of inherited truth" and biblical morality, he said the "new image" of fulfillment is "defined in terms of physical gratification, material influence and worldly status."

Similar attitudes, he added, show up in some evangelical preaching, suggesting faith not only will enhance spiritual and moral well-being but also physical and financial well-being.

"Compound this with sexual fulfillment and — total bliss — one caters completely to the worldly agenda of self-satisfaction," he said.

He said such evangelical appeals — to "be born again and God will put you in clover" — need divine editing to read, "get right with God and he will show you how many excesses you can really do without."

Henry was presented with a leather-bound set of his new theological opus by the publisher, Word, Inc., of Waco, Texas.

He said some modern sociologists maintain that the "special distinctive of democracy is its tolerance of divergent views. Tolerance thus becomes a rationale for uncritical public acceptance of any and all deviation." But he said that "by itself tolerance destroys even itself in destroying all norms."

Like Henry, several of the other speakers, including evangelists Billy Graham, Luis Palau, Oral Roberts, James Robison, Jim Baker and Rex Humbard, see "secular humanism" or "naturalism" as a spreading, damaging influence.

It "deprives personality of ultimately real status and thus jeopardizes the transcendent nature of all personal and social values," Henry said.

Declaring that human dignity and genuine human rights "cannot long survive on the basis of a merely naturalistic theory of man and the world," he said:

"Man is perceived as an animal oddity of nature, a mammalian masterpiece, his sex life is reduced to a series of stimulating encounters between biologically differing mates, events with no moral significance or religious answerability."

 (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 43 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2 1/2 to 3 pound birds. 76 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed, with a preliminary weighted average of 43.89 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is higher and the live supply is moderate for a good demand. Problems with delayed or unshipped product caused by truckers' strike are fewer today. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,891,000, compared to 1,655,000 last Friday.

Hens
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)
 (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was steady. Supplies fully adequate, demand moderate. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 16 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped .09 to 1,064.57 by noontime.

But gainers held a 3-2 lead over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened, the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate dropped from 10.8 percent in December to 10.4 percent last month.

The decline, which put the jobless rate at its lowest level since last September, was greater than many analysts had expected. Martin Feldstein, President Reagan's chief economic adviser, said it might portend stronger economic growth this year than the administration has forecast.

Pan American World Airways led the active list, down 1/4 at 5 1/2. Late Thursday the company reported a $272.9 million fourth-quarter loss.

The NYSE's composite index gained 23 to 83.49. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.62 at 362.27.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 36.93 million shares at noontime, against 36.29 million at the same point Thursday.

Askew Already Spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although he still hasn't officially announced he is running, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew has reported spending more than $336,000 last year on his bid for the 1984 Democratic presidential nomination.

Federal Election Commission documents released Wednesday showed the expenditure and a smaller amount by another unannounced Democratic presidential candidate.

Colorado Sen. Gary Hart reported spending about $127,000, the report of the campaign committee said.

Both Hart and Askew have scheduled announcements of their candidacies for the Democratic nomination later this month.

Seeks Re-Offer DUI Measure

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Gov. Pierre S. du Pont IV is seeking a special session of the General Assembly to reintroduce a drunken-driving law that was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court.

The court ruled unanimously Thursday that du Pont did not have the right to cut funds for alcohol rehabilitation programs to $20,000 from $135,000 when he signed the measure into law last June.

Deadline Is On Feb. 15

The deadline for participation in the North Carolina Department of Labor Safety Awards Program is Feb. 15 at 5 p.m., according to Russell Poe of the Department of Labor.

Any firm with 10 or more employees and any mining company with five or more employees may apply. The current program covers 1982 on-the-job safety records.

To qualify for an award, a firm must have had no job-related fatalities during 1982 and have maintained either a perfect on-the-job safety record or recorded a lost-time incidence rate at least 50 percent below the statewide average for its particular industry. An incidence rate is calculated from the number of occupational injuries or illnesses in an establishment.

The Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce will co-sponsor along with the Department of Labor the Safety Awards Banquet on June 2 at the Ramada Inn in Greenville.

For more information about the program or to request an application, contact Russell Poe, Safety Awards Program, N.C. Department of Labor, 4 W. Edenton St., Raleigh, N.C. or call 752-4101.

Suspect Heater Caused Blaze

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — A fire that killed six people in a row house without gas or electricity may have been started by a kerosene heater, officials said.

Among those killed in the fire Thursday was 7-year-old Dean Lewis O'Bryant, who suffered from muscular dystrophy. His brother, John, 10, was taken to the Wilmington Medical Center in serious condition.

"They had no heat or electricity," said David Poindexter, a neighbor.

"They used a kerosene heater and a kerosene lamp."

Fire Battalion Chief Bill Maichele said the fire appeared to have started near the kerosene heater, and an investigation was under way.

Man Charged In Shooting Death

WASHINGTON — A Beaufort County man who was scheduled to undergo an examination at a mental health center was charged with murder Thursday after his brother-in-law was shot as he waited with a group of law enforcement officers outside the man's home, authorities said.

Sheriff Nelson Sheppard said that Obediah Linton, 52, of the Acre Station community north of Washington was charged with first-degree murder in the death of McKinley Augusta Woolard, 64, of Route 1, Plymouth.

Sheppard reported that officers went to Linton's home around 4 p.m. to transport him to Tideland Mental Health Center in Beaufort County for an examination prior to his commitment at Cherry Hospital in Goldsboro. He said officers had been at the residence for a short time when shots were fired from inside the house, pinning down the officers.

According to the sheriff, Woolard was in the group of officers outside the house and was struck in the chest by a blast from a high-powered rifle. Woolard died at the scene, Sheppard said. He reported that all of the gunfire came from within the house and officers did not shoot.

Contact was later made with Linton by telephone and he indicated he wanted to surrender, Sheppard said. The sheriff said Linton threw a shotgun and two rifles out the door about 4:45 p.m. and was taken into custody.

Sheppard, who said no other injuries occurred in the incident, reported that Linton was placed in the Beaufort County jail without privilege of bond. A first appearance hearing was scheduled for today in District Court here.

Investigation is continuing, Sheppard said.

Minor Surgery For Gerald Ford

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Former President Gerald R. Ford is facing minor surgery to correct a problem created by an old football injury to his left knee that kept him off the golf course.

The problem forced Ford to cancel his annual appearance in the Bing Crosby Pro-Am Golf Tournament at Pebble Beach this week, said spokeswoman Penny Circle.

She said the knee has troubled Ford occasionally since a football injury in his youth.

Ford, 69, will have arthroscopic surgery Saturday at Eisenhower Memorial Hospital here, she said.

In the surgery, doctors make a small incision in the knee and insert an 8-inch fiber-optic tube slightly thicker than a pencil. The tube allows a surgeon to look into the knee and use instruments to repair the damage.

Ford has had the surgery before.

Yates, George Mason Visit Pirates

East Carolina's Pirates seek to begin a climb out of the ECAC-South cellar Saturday night when they face George Mason's Patriots and Carlos Yates, the second leading scorer in the nation.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

Yates, rookie of the year last season in the league, has lived up to his top billing on the Patriot team. The 6-5 sophomore guard is currently scoring at a 27.8 average, second best in the country. In each of his last three games, prior to last night's contest at UNC-Wilmington, Yates has scored 30 or more points. He was held to 23 last night.

The Patriots come in with a 12-7 record following their 59-57 victory over the Seahawks in Wilmington last night. They are 2-3 in ECAC-South play.

East Carolina, meanwhile, is 10-9 overall and 1-4 in the conference.

The two teams are meeting for the second time this year.

Earlier, in the first ECAC game of the year, the Pirates rallied from nine points down at the half to within one on two occasions before finally bowing to the Pats, 69-68. East Carolina had nine more field goals in the game than did GMU, but the Patriots converted on 27 of 33 shots at the line — while ECU was making but eight of 15.

Freshman Johnny Edwards led the Pirates in that one with 17 points and six rebounds, while Charles Green had 16 points and eight rebounds. Barry Wright and Bruce Peartree each scored 11 points.

Mason Nips Wilmington

WILMINGTON (AP) — Carlos Yates poured in 23 points, including two decisive free throws, to lead George Mason to a 59-57 non-conference college basketball victory over N. Carolina-Wilmington Thursday night.

Yates, the nation's second-leading scorer with a 27.8 per game average, converted both ends of a bonus situation at the 1:03 mark to give the Patriots a 58-56 lead.

With 33 seconds left, Frankie Dickens cut the lead to one, but missed the second free throw. George Mason's Ricky Wilson then sank a free throw with 11 seconds left before the Seahawks' Shawn Williams missed at the buzzer.

Wilmington led 35-31 at intermission, but Yates scored seven straight points to give the Patriots the lead with 16 minutes left. The Seahawks played catch-up until Tony Anderson's free throw tied it with 1:15 left.

Rob Rose added 10 points for the Patriots, now 12-7.

Carlos Kelly's 11 points, all in the first half, led the Seahawks, now 8-11, while Williams streak of 23 straight games in double figures was halted when he was held to nine.

GEORGE MASON (50) Rose 5-0 4-10, Grace 3-0 4-6, Hanlin 1-0 4-2, Wilson 4-4 12, Yates 8-7 23, Shannon 0-0 0-0, Nichoff 2-0 4-4, Yone 1-0 2-2. Totals 24-11-14-59.

N. CAROLINA-WILMINGTON (57) Kelly 5-13 11, Shiver 2-2 3-6, Gordon 3-2 6-6, Anderson 4-12 9, Williams 4-12 9, Dickens 2-2 3-6, S. Prudhoe 1-0 2-2, Johnson 2-2 2-6, M. Prudhoe 1-0 2-2. Totals 24-17-17-57.

Halftime — N. Carolina-Wilmington 35, George Mason 31. Fouled out — Shannon. Total fouls — George Mason 19, N. Carolina-Wilmington 15. Technical — Gordon, A-2, 200.

Yates was held to 20 points in the matchup, but Andy Bolden, who has been a thorn in the side of the Pirates in all three meetings of the two teams, led the way with 21.

However, Bolden will not be around this time, having become academically ineligible just two games after the last meeting with ECU. The Pirates, of course, will be without Green, still sidelined with a dislocated shoulder.

Yates is the lone Patriot in double figures at the time. Other starters include 6-3 freshman guard Ricky Wilson (6.3 average), 6-9 senior center Mike Hanlin (3.3), 6-5 freshman forward Rob Rose (9.8) and 6-7 senior forward Mike Shannon (3.2).

East Carolina comes into the game following a heart-breaking loss to Navy on Saturday, 66-64, on a tap-in at the horn; and a heart-lifting win over UNC Charlotte, 60-58, on a shot by Barry Wright with four seconds left. "These guys continue to amaze me," Coach Charlie Harrison said, "especially how hard they play. They just will not quit. I'm glad something good finally happened to this club. They deserve it with the way they have worked and played."

Edwards continued to be the brightest star for the Pirates, averaging 18.0 points and 8.3 rebounds, second best in the ECAC in both categories. In a head-to-head battle with Navy's Vernon Butler, the league leader in rebounding, Edwards took a 15-12 decision.

The Charlotte native is considered an outstanding prospect for rookie of the year honors in the conference, averaging 20.1 points and 9.4 rebounds over the last seven games.

Senior co-captain Thom Brown has also shown great improvement in recent games, especially on the boards. In the last four games, he's averaged 10.3 points and 8.8 rebounds, hitting 52 percent from the floor.

Wright is the second leading scorer on the team with an 11.9 average, and is tied with Edwards for the most steals with 27.

Both guards Tony Robinson and John Williams — mostly overlooked because of the front court play — has come on to be contributors. "I think Tony and John have really helped at the guard positions of late," Harrison said. "John had his strongest game for us against Charlotte while Tony really controlled the game there."

Following the contest, the Pirates travel to Williamsburg on Wednesday for a game with ECAC-South leader William & Mary, then head for Charleston next Saturday seeking revenge for a 64-56 upset in Minges Coliseum two weeks ago.

Lady Pirates Face Two Foes Over Weekend

East Carolina's Lady Pirates, after suffering their second lopsided defeat at the hands of Old Dominion Wednesday night, 76-37, will try to get back on the winning side of the ledger this weekend with two contests.

The Lady Pirates travel to Harrisonburg, Va., on Saturday for a 2 p.m. game against James Madison, then return home on Sunday for a 6 p.m. game with Richmond.

The latter game was originally scheduled to be played in Richmond, but the school's Robins Center had a scheduling conflict, and the game was switched to Greenville. ECU season ticket holders will be admitted by showing their ticket book at no further charge.

James Madison entered the week with a 4-12 record, in comparison with ECU's current 8-9. The Dutchesses are led by 609 sophomore center Michele James, who is averaging 17.1 points per game. Not far behind is 5-6 sophomore guard Sue Manelski, hitting 15.9 points a game. Freshman forward Sue Flynn, 5-10, is just off the double figure pace with a 9.9 average.

The Dutchesses are a strong rebounding team, with James pulling 10.1 per game, while Manelski and 6-10 freshman forward Georgia Deren are getting 5.6 per game and Flynn, 5.7.

"James Madison always gets a good job from Manelski and they have a good inside game," ECU coach Cathy Andruzzi said. "Manelski played tremendously last year and she looks for her teammates well. They have a competitive squad."

Richmond, on the other hand, had posted an 11-5 mark early in the week with three games prior to the meeting with the Lady Pirates on Sunday.

The Lady Spiders have been led by 6-2 sophomore center Karen Elsner, hitting 23.5 points and pulling 11.2 rebounds a game.

Junior forward Ruthel Jarvis, 5-6, is scoring 12.7 points and grabbing 6.7 rebounds, while 6-0 junior forward Betsy McCormick has an 8.1 rebound average.

Sophomore guard Jackie Isreal, 5-5, is averaging 9.9

points, while 5-4 senior guard Terri Fossum has a 9.4 average.

"They have scrappy rebounders, especially in Karen Elsner. She was highly recruited and plays a super inside game. We will need to get the ball inside and control the tempo. We'll have to play hard to beat them."

The Pirates are still led by Mary Denkler, hitting 22.2 points a game, and with 13 against ODU, moved into the number two career scoring post at ECU, a spot she will not be able to improve on. She trails all-time leader Rosie Thompson by some 800 points.

And while the Pirates have been without the services of 14.5 ppg scorer and point guard Loraine Foster, out with knee surgery, 6-2 center Darlene Chaney and 5-8 forward Sylvia Bragg have come on to take up some of the slack.

The Lady Pirates, following the two games, are idle until the following Saturday when they host Clemson, Detroit and last year's national runner-up, Cheney State, in the Lady Pirate Classic.

Crenshaw In Trouble

Tom Watson Up A Tree

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Watson got into a conversation with old friend Sandy Tatum while he was standing around waiting — without success — for his ball to drop out of a tree and preserve his share of the lead in the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am.

Watson's ball remained stuck up in the tree on the 18th hole at Cypress Point. He eventually called it a lost ball, took his penalty and scored a double-bogey on the hole, letting Joe Inman take sole possession of the first-round lead with a 7-under-par 65.

"I was 7-under going to the 18th, then hit it in the tree and it didn't come down," Watson said Thursday. "I walked up there and waited around for the allotted five minutes, waiting for it to fall, or an instant storm to come along and blow it down."

"I asked Sandy if I could throw a club up there and try to knock it out of the tree," Watson said.

Tatum, playing in the same foursome, is a former president of the U.S. Golf Association and regarded as an expert on the rules of golf.

"Sandy said 'No'. There were two or three balls up there," Watson said, "and I asked Sandy if I could use binoculars to try to identify my ball. Sandy said: 'No.'"

So Watson went back to the point from which he'd hit his second shot, dropped in his divot, rattled his fourth shot around some more trees to a position short of the green, chipped close, one-putted and marked a 6 on his card, finishing off a 67 that left him two strokes back.

All that took place at Cypress Point, a course Watson said "inspires me." At about the same time, at Pebble Beach, Inman was finishing off his 7-under-par effort with a 30 on his back nine. He one-putted eight times on that side.

Fred Couples, who played at Cypress Point, and Ken Green, at Spyglass, shared second with 66s. Watson was tied at 67 with Gil Morgan, winner of the first two tournaments on the 1983 PGA Tour schedule.

The big group at 68 included Australian Open champion Bob Shearer, Cal Peete, Bruce Lietzke, John Fought, Keith Fergus, Ron Commans, Donnie Hammond, Steve Melnyk and Lindy Miller. Fought played at Spyglass. Shearer, Commans, Hammond and Miller were at Pebble Beach. Melnyk, Peete and Lietzke were at Cypress Point.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 71 at Cypress Point.

The format calls for the 168 pros, each with an amateur partner, to play one round on each of the courses before the field is cut for the final round at Pebble Beach.

Watson, the 1982 Player of the Year and holder of both the U.S. and British Open titles, faced Spyglass Hill today with some apprehension.

"It's my nemesis," he said. "It's always a big problem for me to get by Spyglass. If I can shoot par, or 1-over, that's a good score for me. It just doesn't fit my game very well."

His last two rounds will be at Pebble Beach, where he beat Nicklaus for the American national championship six months ago.

Watson, a two-time winner of the Crosby, two-putted for birdie on a couple of par-5s, then holed a 25-footer for eagle on another one. He dropped three more birdie putts in the 8- to 12-foot range and "had a good round going" before his problems on the 18th.

Inman shot 1-under on his front side, then made his round on his last nine holes, which he played 6-under. And it almost was better as two approach shots for eagles went in and out of the cup.

Schultz Says Rules To Hold

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Atlantic Coast Conference athletic directors will not vote to eliminate use of the 3-point field goal and 30-second shot clock in the ACC tournament, predicts Virginia athletic director Richard Schultz.

There has been speculation that the leagues' athletic directors may take action to return to the standard NCAA rules for the ACC tourney during their meeting in Innisbruck, Fla., on Feb. 10.

"My feeling is that it won't happen," Schultz said in a telephone interview Thursday.

Schultz is the chairman of the conference basketball committee which will consider the changes. Clemson basketball coach Bill Foster, a member of that committee last season, said he received word from the office of ACC Commissioner Bob James, asking him to talk with his athletic director and faculty representative concerning the elimination of the rules for the tournament.

"I guess there is going to be some discussion," he said, adding that he'd prefer to keep the rules through the end of the ACC season.

"Let's play the year out and look at the statistics this summer," Foster added. "I'd prefer to go with what we decided to do. Changing it now wouldn't make a lot of sense."

Foster added, however, that if a majority of conference coaches choose to dump the rules for the tournament, "I wouldn't buck it."

One consideration was the post-season switch from the conference rules to the NCAA rules, which include neither a shot clock of any kind or a 3-point field goal. Five conferences have both a shot clock and a line for 3-point baskets. Four conferences have only the line and four more utilize just a clock.

Foster commented that the transition shouldn't make any difference.

"I don't see how. All of us have played 10 or 12 games the other way. There are certain people who've just made up their minds that this was an idiotic rule."

Duke basketball coach Mike Krzyzewski, who replaced Foster on the basketball committee, was unavailable for comment and James was out of town Thursday and could not be reached.

Gatlin, Mizelle Still Lead

There were no changes among the top three scorers for either boys or girls this past week in the Tri-County Area, with Keith Gatlin of D.H. Conley and Angie Mizelle of Bear Grass holding to first place. Games played last night are not included in this week's figures.

Gatlin's average dipped slightly, however, while Mizelle's went up to pass the 20-point mark. Both still maintain comfortable margins over their second place followers.

Gatlin holds a 24.0 mark, down slightly from 24.2 last week. Thomas Anderson of Ayden-Grifton holds to second with a 17.9 average, while Roanoke's Greg Everett is third again at 16.5.

Farmville's Terrence Pettway moves up from seven to fourth at 14.2, while Dennis Bradley of North Pitt slips a notch to fifth at 14.1.

The biggest jump was made by Greene Central's Theodore Edwards, who rose from 16th to 10th at 12.1. The biggest drop was by Rose's Mac Walslow, who fell from 11th to a tie for 15th at 10.5.

Conley leads the team stats in scoring with a 62.4 mark, followed by Ayden-Grifton at 61.2. Roanoke is the best defensive team, allowing 43.7, while North Pitt is giving up 47.3. Conley has the best winning margin, outscoring its foes, 7.8, with North Pitt second at 6.8.

Mizelle has upped her average to 20.3 on the season, up from 19.6 last week. She's followed by Kim Floyd of Jamestown at 16.7 and Kathy Vernelson of Greenville Christian, 15.1. They hold the same position they held last week.

Cora Faison of Ayden-Grifton has pulled even with last week's fourth place holder Mechio Kornegay of Conley at 14.6, to round out the top five.

There were only minor changes among the remaining top 15.

Conley continues to lead in team offense at 54.8, with Roanoke second at 50.3. Greenville Christian tops the area in defense, allowing 29.7, with Bear Grass second at 34.2. Conley has the widest winning margin at 17.5, with Roanoke second at 11.0.

Sumners Dazzles Skate Judges

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Elaine Zayak may be the world champion, but Rosalynn Sumners was in a world of her own at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

Sumners dazzled the judges — and the crowd — with a shining smile and a gymnastics-like performance replete with jumps and flashy footwork to earn a long ovation, four near-perfect 5.9 scores and victory in the ladies' short program Thursday night.

Tonight, Sumners tries to win her second U.S. title in a row and keep Zayak from doing what she did in last year's world championships — somersault past the rest of the field with a final program filled with spectacular triple jumps.

"I've been blocking out of my mind that I'm the defending champion," said Sumners, 18, of Edmonds, Wash. "This is a whole new competition." Zayak, 17, the "Princess of Paramus," N.J., hopes she can dominate tonight's long program after her acceptable but not spectacular short program. She was left in fourth place behind Sumners, Vikki de Vries, 17, of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Melissa Thomas, 19, of Massapequa, N.Y.

"Free skating is my forte and I have more confidence than I've ever had," said Zayak, who makes no secret that she plans to load her performance tonight with six triple jumps. That probably will force her competitors to also try the exciting but risky jumps.

But even Mary Lynn Gelderman, an assistant to Zayak's coach, Peter Burrows, said Sumners had more "sparkle" than Zayak.

Drawing the biggest cheers and the highest marks of the night with her near-flawless skating, Sumners wasn't the only defending champion to do well Thursday.

Two-time men's champion Scott Hamilton won the compulsory and will attempt to build his lead tonight in the short program before an expected sellout crowd of 16,000 at the Civic Arena. Hamilton, 24, the world champion from Denver, hopes to win his third consecutive title Saturday night.

Kitty and Peter Carruthers, the brother and sister who grew up skating late into the night on a pond behind their New England home, won a third consecutive pairs championship with a solid final program featuring several difficult throws and lifts.

They easily won out over runners-up Lea Ann Miller and William Fauver, who skate out of the same Wilmington, Del., club as the winners, and third place finishers Burt Lancon and Jill Watson of the Los Angeles Skating Club.

The Carruthers, scoring higher than they did a year ago, were awarded nothing lower than a 5.8 from the nine judges.

"We came and did what we wanted to," said Peter Carruthers. "We're really delighted."

His sister, who has battled a pulled groin muscle and the chicken pox this year, said the support of the crowd helped them. "They get inside you and you want to do well for them," she said.

Their father, Charles Carruthers, of Burlington, Mass., sat several rows behind the judges, calmly taking pictures as he watched his children successfully defend their title.

As Peter and Kitty skated off the ice, accepting flowers and cheers from the crowd, Peter leaned over and gave his sister a kiss on the cheek.

"Dick Button was talking on TV recently about how well they get along," said their father, smiling at the memory. "Of course, they're not always like that. At the minute he was saying that, they were having an argument in the middle of the living room. That broke them up."

The elder Carruthers said his children first began skating on a pond behind their home, rigging up lights and speakers so they could skate after dark and to music.

Both Peter and Kitty were adopted within weeks after being born.

"My wife and I asked for active children," said Charles Carruthers. "We got them."

In ice dancing, two-time defending champions Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert won the compulsory dance segment Thursday despite a fall by Blumberg. It was the first fall in over two years for Blumberg and Seibert, who represent the Pittsburgh Figure Skating Club.

Second in the compulsory dance were Elisa Spitz and Scott Gregory of the Wilmington, Del., Skate Club, followed by Richard Dalley and Carol Fox, who finished second overall last year.

Cavaliers Dump Deacs

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — It looks like Virginia's third-ranked Cavaliers have cut in the afterburner for the stretch run of this basketball season.

After toying with then No. 8 Louisville last weekend, the Cavaliers manhandled Atlantic Coast Conference foe Wake Forest Thursday night at Charlottesville, 89-75, with All-American Ralph Sampson scoring 30 points and hauling in 12 rebounds in just 24 minutes of playing time.

"Ralph was pretty much the story," summed up Virginia Coach Terry Holland.

Sampson had 25 first half points in leading the Cavaliers to their 18th victory in 20 starts. Virginia, which also got 12 points from Jim Miller and 11 from Othell Wilson, is now 6-1 in the ACC.

Wake Forest, dropping its third straight game, fell to 4-2 in conference play and 13-5 overall.

The Deacons, who haven't won at Virginia since 1977, got 21 points from Anthony Teachey, 17 from Alvis Rogers and 14 from Delaney Rudd.

Virginia led by 12 points at the half, 53-41, but Sampson picked up his third and fourth personal fouls in the opening minute of the second half and, with 16:36 left, Wilson also was whistled for his fourth personal.

Rogers hit one of two free throws after being fouled by Wilson to pull Wake within nine points, 57-48. But with Sampson and Wilson on the bench for the next nine minutes, Virginia, playing tenacious defense, outscored the Deacons 14-11.

When Virginia's two leading scorers returned to the lineup, the Cavaliers held a 12-point advantage, 71-59.

"The second half proved that even the greatest player can be taken out of a game pretty quickly," said Holland. "The rest of the guys took up the slack when he (Sampson) was out."

"I thought we were in control offensively and defensively the whole way," Holland said. "We were moving the ball better than we were earlier in the year. We seem to have more concentration."

Former Wake Coach Is Named By NFL's Chiefs

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Five years ago this month, when the Kansas City Chiefs had one of the worst defenses in the National Football League, they introduced as their new head coach Marv Levy, a defensive specialist and lover of blood-in-the-mud football.

Concentrating on defense, Levy and his bosses assembled one of the NFL's best while the offense languished. This year the team fell to pieces following the 57-day player strike, and Levy was fired after fewer than 12,000 fans showed up for the last game of a 3-6 season.

The offense had become, if not the NFL's worst, perhaps its dullest.

Now the task of rebuilding the Kansas City offense falls to John Mackovic, 39, the quarterback coach of the Dallas Cowboys who favors the passing game.

"I will work basically with the offense and I intend to call the plays," he said Thursday after signing a five-year contract as the Chiefs' fifth head coach since 1974. "Professional football today is the passing game. The key is to have a successful passing game. You might be behind two or three touchdowns in the NFL today and you've got to be able to throw the ball."

Mackovic spoke by telephone from Hawaii, where he is helping Dallas Coach Tom Landry prepare the NFC for Sunday's Pro Bowl. Watching his assistants graduate to NFL head jobs is becoming routine for Landry, who sent Mike Ditka to the Chicago Bears in 1982 and Dan Reeves to the Denver Broncos in 1981. Former San Francisco and New Orleans coach Dick Nolan was once a Cowboy assistant and New England Coach Ron Meyer put in time as a Dallas scout.

"You never want to lose a coach, especially after you've trained him, but I could never stand in the way," Landry said in Hawaii. "I wasn't surprised that John took the job."

Mackovic inherits a team that was 31-42 during Levy's five years. Since Hank Stram was ousted in 1974, the Chiefs' record of 43-72 is the worst in the AFC, and they have not been in the playoffs since 1972.

"You hire a coach to get you into the playoffs, and into a position to win the Super Bowl," Mackovic said. "The key is at what rate this is happening. We don't know how long it will take."

"He's one of the brightest young men I've ever met," Chiefs President Jack Steadman said at a news conference at Arrowhead Stadium.

"He's had head coaching experience. John Mackovic was the man we wanted and he's the man we got. I think he'll bring a lot of positives to our organization. I think we can build a strong organization around him."

Mackovic played quarterback at Wake Forest in the early '60s but never played in the NFL. He put in stints as an assistant at Army, San Jose State, Arizona and Purdue and was head coach at Wake Forest for three years before joining the Cowboys two seasons ago as quarterback coach.

His Wake Forest teams were famous for their wide-open offenses. He inherited a team that had been 1-10 and guided it to a best-ever 8-3 mark and a berth in the Tangerine Bowl in 1979.

"He took a program at Wake Forest that was a disaster and turned it around," said Steadman.

"I'm extremely excited about having this opportunity to be a head coach again," Mackovic said. He said he discussed the Chiefs job several times with Landry. "I enjoyed Dallas so much, but I enjoyed being a head coach very much and this was my chance to be a head coach again."

Levy's teams were characterized by a stout defense and a dull, run-oriented offense. Mackovic made it clear he intends to change that.

David Little lead Williamston with 14 points. Larry Brown chipped in 11 and James Ward added 10.

The Bears were led in scoring by James Williams with a game-high 21 points. Lawrence Watson added 11.

Bear Grass was led by Angie Mizelle with a game-high 20 points and Mary Rawls added 13.

Williamston was led by Lynn Mills and Lynne Sanders with 10 each.

NASCAR Teams Worry About Taking To Road

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Some NASCAR Grand National auto racing teams are a little nervous about driving trucks loaded with cars and gear to Daytona Beach, Fla., during the national independent truckers' strike.

Most teams are based in North Carolina, where one truck driver has been shot to death since the strike began Monday.

Charlie Morgan, driver for the DiGard team in Charlotte, is organizing a caravan of race team tractor-trailers that will make a run to Daytona International Speedway next Wednesday as teams gather for the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing events.

"We've got eight or nine teams so far," said Morgan, who will transport Bobby Allison's Chevrolet. "We're going to run 55 or 60 mph all the way. I read in the paper that riding in a caravan is supposed to be safest. If we can get 10 or more trucks together, we can have a state patrol escort."

The teams of Darrell Waltrip, Neil Bonnett, Harry Gant, Joe Ruttman, Tim Richmond and Mark Martin are all committed to Morgan's caravan, he said.

In an interview with The Savannah Morning News, he said the caravan would leave Charlotte Wednesday morning and would not travel after dark.

Doug Williams, driver for the Dale Earnhardt-Bud Moore team in Spartanburg, S.C., said he would avoid driving after dark, but that he might by-pass main roads as well. "We're taking two trucks and we're not going to drive on the interstates — that seems to be where the trouble is."

Like most of the drivers, Morgan considers himself a race team member first and a truck driver second.

"We're not hauling a product or anything," he said. "I'm not real scared because we're not a real threat to the striking truckers, but they might not know that. They're going to be looking at every truck on the road."

His plan for defense is pretty simple. "All we're going to do is stay together and watch closely. We'll keep informed by talking back and forth on the radios."

Terry Hall of the Stuart, Va., Wood Brothers-Buddy Baker team is considering joining the convoy, but may leave a day early.

"If we leave on Thursday, we'll just drive during the day," said Hall. "We're taking two trucks and as long as we drive in the daytime, I don't think we'll be bothered."

Hall had to pick up his team's new trailer earlier this week and said, "There was some shooting around Knoxville, so I went a different way to avoid that. Naturally, I'm worried."

But there are those who aren't worried. A spokesman for Petty Enterprises said the cars of Richard and Kyle Petty will be hauled to Daytona Beach "as normal — as if nothing is wrong. We're not going to let the truck strike bother us."

Illinois Achieves Upset The Old Fashioned Way

By The Associated Press

The experimental clock and three-point goal have sent college basketball scores soaring this season, but Illinois achieved its 62-61 upset of 13th-ranked Iowa the old-fashioned way — the Illini earned it with defense.

"We told our players we had to concentrate on defense after last week (two high-scoring victories), and that is what won the game," Illinois Coach Lou Henson said after Thursday night's triumph. "On offense, we were tight and weren't very effective. We weren't smooth, but we did a super job on defense."

Besides Iowa, the only other member of The Associated Press Top Twenty to stumble was No. 18 Washington State, which took seventh-ranked UCLA into overtime being bowing 89-87.

Elsewhere, sixth-ranked Indiana trailed Wisconsin 44-36 and then ran off 14 consecutive points to defeat the Badgers 83-73; Ralph Sampson poured in 30 points as third-ranked Virginia trimmed Wake Forest 89-75 and No. 16 Illinois State won its 11th straight, shading Drake 65-59.

At Champaign, Ill., Iowa's Steve Carfino missed a jump shot with 13 seconds to go and Illinois held on. Iowa is 13-5 overall, 4-4 in the Big Ten.

The Hawkeyes led almost the entire first half, but never by more than seven points. They were hampered by foul trouble and Greg Stokes, their leading scorer, played only eight of the first 20 minutes.

The turning point came with 8:03 to go when Stokes, who was held to 11 points, fouled out and Doug Altenberger's free throw gave the Illini a 51-50 lead. A three-point goal by Carfino with 3:09 to go put Iowa on top 61-59. A basket by Illinois' Anthony Welch tied it and Derek Harper's free throw with 1:37 to go won it.

"The one big difference in the game was that they took care of the ball better down the stretch; that's what killed us," said Iowa Coach Lute Olson.

Henson agreed. "Our guards have the quick hands, and if you fool around with the ball too much they're going to take it away from you," he said.

Efram Winters led Illinois with 17 points.

Top Ten

At Bloomington, Ind., Ted Kitchel scored 29 points and Randy Wittman added 20 for Indiana, which moved into a first-place tie with idle Minnesota in the Big Ten.

A basket by Kitchel started the Hoosiers' 14-point surge. Jim Thomas hit two baskets, Uwe Blab scored twice on rebounds and Kitchel and Thomas hit again for a 50-44 lead. Indiana, 16-2 overall, outscored Wisconsin 20-6 over the next five minutes for a 79-58 bulge. Wisconsin was led by Brad Sellers with 23 points and Cory Blackwell with 20.

"Blab was the key," Wisconsin Coach Steve Yoder said of Indiana's 7-foot-2 center. "There was no way we could handle him once he got the ball down low. He's not putting the ball on the floor like he used to and he can be very effective if you've got Kitchel and Wittman going on the sides."

At Charlottesville, Va., Virginia's 7-4 Sampson had 25 first-half points and the Cavaliers withstood foul problems in winning for the 18th time in 20 starts. Wake Forest, which hasn't won at Virginia since 1977, got 21 points from Anthony Teachey.

Virginia led 53-41 at halftime, but Sampson picked up his third and fourth personal fouls in the opening minute of the second half and Othell Wilson was whistled for his fourth with 16:36 left. But with Sampson and Wilson on the bench for the next nine minutes, Virginia outscored the Deacons 14-11.

Coach Terry Holland conceded that Sampson, who scored Virginia's first 13 points, was "pretty much the story. Ralph was just awesome in the first half. The rest of the guys took up the slack when he was out."

At Los Angeles, Kenny Fields scored nine of his 26 points in overtime, leading UCLA to a Pacific-10 victory over Washington State. Darren Daye added 25 points for the Bruins, 15-2 overall and 7-0 in the conference. Steve Harriel led Washington State — 15-3 and 7-1 — with 29, but missed a jumper from the foul line that would have won the game in regulation. Fields put UCLA ahead to stay 86-85 when he hit a turnaround jump shot with 53 seconds remaining.

Second Ten

At Normal, Ill., Dwayne Tyus scored 15 points to lead Illinois State, 17-1 and 9-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference, past Drake. The winners trailed by as many as nine points in the first half, but three three-point goals by Brad Duncan were part of a 14-1 streak that sent the Redbirds ahead 31-27.

In other noteworthy games: •Tom Sewell's 32 points led Lamar to a 93-62 rout of McNeese State and into sole possession of first place in the Southland Conference.

•Sophomore Carl Papke's 26 points led lead Wichita State to a 101-80 Missouri Valley Conference romp over New Mexico State.

•Reserve Marcus Reese sank two fouls shots with six seconds left as East Tennessee State handed league-leading Marshall its first Southern Conference setback 75-73.

•Derrick Pope's 20 points led a balanced attack and Montana's defense held Nevada-Reno's high-powered offense in check as the Grizzlies took over sole possession of first place in the Big Sky Conference with an 84-56 victory.

•Michael Cage scored 20 points and San Diego State used an 18-0 run to crush New Mexico 61-37, the Lobos' worst loss at home in the 17-year history of University Arena.

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —

ABC's "The Winds of War" is too long, and too mediocre a human story to warrant 18 hours in front of the tube. Cecil B. de Mille did "The Ten Commandments" in a fraction of the time.

"The Winds of War" is Herman Wouk's screenplay of his own best-selling novel of a decade ago. It tells how the United States came to be involved in the European conflict, from the perspective of a fictional U.S. naval officer, "Pug" Henry (Robert Mitchum), and his family.

The glossy $40 million production, filmed in lush colors and shot on location in this country and Europe, begins Sunday night and continues on consecutive evenings, with the exception of next Saturday, for a full week.

Wouk uses Pug as our historical eyes and ears, assigning him different tasks in the military and diplomatic hierarchy from 1939 to 1941. This allows him to become a pen-pal and confidante to President Franklin D. Roosevelt and also to rub shoulders with other world leaders, including Winston Churchill, Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler.

Churchill, Josef Stalin and Adolf Hitler.

And that's the best thing about "Winds of War." At times, it provides a "you are there" feel to history and a realistic re-creation of the era. We see Roosevelt (Ralph Bellamy, who played a younger FDR in "Sunrise at Campobello"), formulating his lend-lease plans, and Hitler (Gunter Meisner) ranting against his more moderate advisers.

But there is frustration in watching a seven-part maxiseries yet getting only half the story. A week with this production, and you still won't know who stays with whom. Wouk completed the tale in his sequel, "War and Remembrance." But ABC hasn't acquired the rights, and besides, says Brandon Stoddard, a network executive, the sequel would take another six years to produce — and 26 hours to show.

"I thought we turned the corner on a lot of the personal stories here," says Stoddard. "I didn't feel cheated at the end. I wasn't totally satisfied, but I was satisfied."

Advertisers, paying $175,000 for 30-second commercials, have bought all the available time. That means ABC has recovered much of its investment, but not without padding the project to meet the bottom line. Party and wedding scenes seem to be long-winded play-by-plays.

This bears the imprint of gun-ho producer-director Dan Curtis, who keeps the linear story moving well and stages some exciting action sequences (Pearl Harbor, for example), but fails to elicit any subtlety or humor.

If the script says Mitchum is supposed to walk into a scene, sure enough, the camera catches him walking in. Often. Talkies have been around for some time; now ABC has the first "Walkie."

At 65, Mitchum is about 15 years older than the novel's protagonist. Although he often looks tired, he does command respect in every scene. The trouble is that he only shows one emotion — unemotion.

Pug is supposed to be a stoic, all-Navy character. But that stiff upper and lower lip is not supposed to be the essence of Natalie Jastrow, the woman who marries Pug's son, Byron (Jan-Michael Vincent.) In the book, Natalie displays a wide range of passion, but Miss MacGraw, still youthful enough at 43 to play a 30-year-old, never gets beyond her bratty "Goodbye, Columbus" act.

Other performances are more appealing, including Vincent, as Pug's headstrong, maverick son; Polly Bergen, as Pug's bubble-headed but sympathetic wife who doesn't know which dress to wear to the war, and, in the most captivating performance of all, newcomer Victoria Tennant, as the young woman who loves and cherishes Pug.

Steve Martin's idea might be better. His "Winds of Whoopee" on NBC Sunday night is only an hour long.

A Double Garage That's Too Small For One Car

By GAIL MICHAELS

We have a double garage in the house in which we're now installed. And although I suppose that we're lucky to have this convenience, it does have its drawbacks.

It's true that we no longer have to worry about finding an inch of ice on our behemoth station wagon's windows when we're already 10 minutes late for an appointment. And we no longer risk frozen engines or unloading groceries and children during a monsoon. If only we didn't risk breaking our necks each time we step out the kitchen door, the situation would be ideal. But unfortunately, our garage doubles as an attic. More unfortunately still, Phillip is as averse to cleaning out attics as he is to manual labor of any other kind. I keep telling him that such chores combine exercise with a feeling of accomplishment, but he's not as glib as we housewives. He continues to insist that he'd rather play rquetball.

For awhile, I had visions of sorting through the boxes and throwing away everything that wouldn't fit on a 60-inch-long set of shelves. But as that would include all my pet furniture refinishing projects for the next 25 years as well as the freezer, I had to relinquish that goal.

Besides, every time I manage to get rid of an item, he dumps at least two more, usually beside my car door. I park on the left side of the garage and he on the right, and he complains that the right side of the garage is piled with furniture and toys and that he has to squeeze his car in between them and the space-hogging station wagon, then negotiate his way through whatever space is left while protecting his suit. He has no sympathy at all for my plight.

It bothers him not at all that to get to my driver's seat, I must negotiate a path obstructed with a disassembled jungle gym, a stroller, a trash can, the cat box, the lawnmower, two bags of bark chips and a grill. The last time I tried to go anywhere, I fell over the grill and got ashes all over my new blue wool pants.

I was not amused. "What is the use of having a grill with a top if we leave it in the garage?" I growled upon my next encounter with my husband.

"I didn't want it stolen."

"Do you want it smashed, because that's exactly what I intend to do if it stays where it is much longer. I am tired of tripping over your junk."

"It's our junk," he said in his most patronizing voice.

"And if you're upset because you thought that I'd be upset because you knocked over the grill, just say so. There's no need to pick an argument."

I could feel my hair bristling. The only motive I had for picking this fight was unadulterated irritation, and it was getting stronger every minute. "I want that garage cleaned out!" I howled.

"And it will be," he said soothingly. "But there are other things that will have to come first."

I have a feeling that what will come first will be moving.

Quizzed Her Governor

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Reporter Naomi Liebowitz had a personal reason for asking Gov. Mark White at a news conference what he planned to do for Texas public schools. She goes to one.

A fourth-grader at Brooke Elementary School, 10-year-old Naomi was invited to the weekly news conference after she requested an interview with the governor for her school paper, the Lion's Mane.

Other reporters vied for White's attention by trying to out-shout each other, but Naomi won the chance to ask a question Thursday by simply raising her hand.

"I believe this lady has a question," said White, quieting the three dozen other reporters, regular members of the Capitol press corps.

Naomi stood up and asked, "What do you think are the three basic needs of Texas schools and what can you do about them?"

After the governor replied, the youngster asked whether the state will build a new museum in Austin. White said that is under consideration.

Later, the governor invited Naomi, accompanied by her mother, into his office for a personal interview.

"I asked him a few questions like why he wanted to be governor," she said later. "He said he wanted to be governor because he knew some things needed to be fixed and he wanted to help them figure out the problems."
