Bids Accepted, Contracts Delayed By County Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners this morning accepted bids for an optical scanner for the data processing center and for a maintenance garage building at the county landfill, but decided to study the bids before awarding contracts.

Only two bids were received for the optical scanner - a $49,067 proposal from National Computer Systems, and a $5,379 bid from Scan-Tron Corp. The Scan-Tron bid, however, did not include disc drives that were included in the NCS package.

Bids for the garage facility included: $19,954 from Windham Brothers, $25,000 from Boyd Associates, and $21,750 from Bill Clark Construction Co.

Department of Social Services Director Ed Garrison told the board this morning that if an appeals court does not overturn a U.S. District Court judgement in the Alexander versus Hill case, the county may have to pay between $500 and $900 in penalties to from five to 10 DDS clients.

The district court order provides that a penalty be paid if applications for assistance are not taken by social service departments across the state the same day that a client appears to make application.

Garrison noted that 315 applications for assistance were taken by the department in January.

Tax Collector W.R. Smith reported that his department collected some $3.77 million in taxes during the month of January.

County Finance Officer Margaret Roberts told the board that collection of 1982 taxes through the month of January total $10.79 million, or 89 percent of the levy.

She said some 86 percent of the 1981 tax levy had been collected through Jan. 31, 1982.

WASHINGTON (AP) —

The radioactive remnant of a Soviet nuclear-powered spy satellite tumbled to its doom over the South Atlantic ocean 1,100 miles east of Brazil at approximately 6:10 a.m., EST today, the Defense Department said.

Confirmation of the apparently harmless re-entry had been delayed nearly four hours until the North American Aerospace Defense Command could complete checks by its tracking radar.

The defense command estimated the re-entry location at 19 degrees south latitude and 22 degrees west longitude, in an area of open water between Brazil and Africa.

A Pentagon statement said U.S. officials would use nuclear fallout data collection facilities to check for any increased levels of radioactivity in the area.

NORAD tracked the final section of Cosmos 1402 as it gathered speed in the ever-increasing grip of gravity.

"It is impossible to predict whether significant amounts of radioactive material will reach the Earth's surface," the Pentagon said in a statement before the satellite re-entered the atmosphere. Officials had predicted that the core would burn up nearly completely as happened with an identical satellite which disintegrated over northern Canada five years ago.

Small radioactive particles from that 1978 satellite, Cosmos 954, "were spread over large areas with pieces of hardware distributed over a track several hundred miles long and about 30 miles wide."

The satellite section that descended today was all that was left in space from an 8,000-pound ocean surveillance satellite launched by the Soviets last summer. The main section plunged into the atmosphere and burned Jan. 23 over the mid-Indian Ocean.

The last section was believed to weigh about 200 pounds and include 110-pounds of enriched uranium fuel.

A Cold Wait

These snowflakes in a local drug store window were the only ones to be found Monday morning even though temperatures were dipping into the snow range. Although the only snow around was made of paper, Annie Gray Robinson of Greenville said her wait for the bus at Evans Street Mall was a cold one. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

Rep. Walter Jones Jr. Is Formally Sworn In Today

Area Officers Keeping An Eye On Truckers

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Local law enforcement officials said today that there have been no acts of violence against truckers reported in Pitt County since independence truckers went on strike and sparked acts of violence in other areas.

Gov. Jim Hunt has asked local law enforcement agencies to help protect truckers from violence.

Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper said this morning that "we only have a small area," and "everything's been peaceful here."

"We have not had any requests for assistance, and not had any acts of violence or attempts. But if we should get a request for help, we would help."

Greenville's Chief Glenn Cannon said, "We're assisting in Greenville, but thus far, we haven't had any problems."

Ayden Police Chief Tommy Burney said, "Truck traffic, since the strike, has been very light through Ayden. We've not observed as many trucks passing through our area, and haven't had any incidents reported in this area."

Burney noted, "We're just keeping a lookout for trucks, but with no incidents reported, there's not a lot we can do. I hope we don't have any problems."

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said members of his department are "just keeping a lookout for anything out of the ordinary ... watching trucks passing through."

"We haven't had any problems, but it seems like we're seeing more trucks come through. Maybe it's just because we notice them more."

The sheriff added that local law enforcement agencies have, since last week, "had a special number to call to report any incidents involving truckers to Raleigh."

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Walter Jones Jr. was sworn in today as the state representative from Pitt and Greene counties, replacing Sam D. Bundy, who died of a heart attack.

"This is a great honor and something I wanted for years," he said. "I love public service, not politics, public service is the key word."

In a ceremony attended by friends and fellow legislators in the House chambers, Jones, 40, of Farmville was sworn in by Secretary of State Thad Eure at the seat he will occupy.

After the ceremony, Jones' wife, Joe Anne, and their 11-year-old daughter, Ashley, gathered around with friends to congratulate Jones.

Also attending the ceremony was Jones' mother, Mrs. Walter B. Jones. The senior Jones, a Democratic congressman, was in Washington and could not attend.

About the family, the new representative's mother said, "It has been a beehive of political activity for a few years."

After being sworn in, Jones said, "I could never fill Rep. Bundy's shoes, but I will do what Bundy would want me to do — and that is work hard to represent the constituents."

Jones was chosen by a committee from both counties after Bundy died two weeks ago.

"I think he will do a superb job," said Rep. Ed Warren, another Democrat representing the 9th District of Pitt and Greene counties. "And I'm looking forward to working with him."

Mail Truck Shot At On N.C. Road

By The Associated Press

Gunshots were fired at a U.S. mail truck in Moore County this morning but the driver escaped injury, bringing the number of North Carolina shooting incidents in the truckers strike to 22, officials said.

Meanwhile, violent incidents on North Carolina highways decreased over the weekend as Gov. Jim Hunt called a meeting between state Highway Patrol officials and local law enforcement agencies to combat highway violence.

Moore County sheriff's deputies said N.R. Fowler of Monroe was driving a Postal Service tractor trailer on N.C. 211 when he saw a flash and heard a gunshot from a passing car at about 1:30 a.m.

Fowler continued driving to Aberdeen before reporting the shooting to police, deputies said. There was no report on damage to the truck.

In a statement released Sunday, Hunt called for a statewide "cooperative effort to protect truckers from acts of violence."

"I have instructed the patrol to work with county sheriffs and chiefs of police to keep as many law enforcement officers as possible on the road at all times," Hunt said.

On Sunday, a Goldsboro trucker pulled over on U.S. 117 when he saw a flashing blue light only to be held at gunpoint while his truck was vandalized.

Eugene Winn of Patelos

Door Co., told police he stopped his tractor-trailer when he saw what he assumed was a law enforcement vehicle.

Two men got out of a 1974 dark blue Chrysler. One held a shotgun on Winn while the other man broke the truck's headlights with a pipe. The incident was similar to one reported Friday in Cumberland County.

Also Sunday, state troopers in Cleveland County said a truck driver Sunday reported that three men pointed shotguns at his rig on the highway, but the driver has not been identified and there has been no confirmation on the report.

Several reports to state troopers on shootings near Rocky Mount Saturday night were apparently prank calls, said Sgt. W.D. Parrish. Numerous calls came into the highway patrol from people operating citizens band radios that shots had been fired at trucks.

"We couldn't find any trucks shot at and we had a trooper in a car at an exit where it was supposed to have happened," Parrish said.

Shots were fired at a truck, hitting the trailer, on the U.S. 70-Bypass Raleigh Beltline after 11 p.m. Saturday, Highway Patrol Lt. H.B. McKee said.

James Phinehart of Smithport, Pa., reported he heard what he thought was a blowout, but when he stopped his truck he found the bullet hole, McKee said.

All traffic was sparse yesterday, partly because of the weather, McKee said.

"It's lighter early in the day on yesterdays anyway," he said. "We've had no problems or reports of incidents."

National Guard helicopter patrols, which Hunt ordered on Friday, were canceled because of bad weather yesterday but probably would resume surveillance today, McKee said.

Advise Removal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Judicial Standards Commission recommended today that suspended District Court Judge J. Wilton Hunt Sr. be removed from the bench.

The recommendation was issued after Hunt was convicted on racketeering and interstate gambling charges as a result of the FBI's Colcor investigation of allegations of corruption in Columbus County.

The judicial commission's recommendation still must be approved by the state Supreme Court.

First Snow Show Of Winter For Pitt Sunday

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

Sunday snow abets missed Old Man Winter's first snow show yesterday as a dust of the white powder sneaked up on Pitt County and blanketed it near dawn.

The snowfall, which varied in depth from community to community, left behind only a trace of ice by the time most folks were up and stirring. Early risers, though, were treated to a surprise show before the snow succumbed to warmer temperatures and rain.

Winterville had an accumulation of an inch, according to A.R. Hines of the Public Works Department. The snow was "over the shootop" early Sunday, he said. "Everything was white when I went out."

Bethel also reported one inch of snow, according to Walter Gray, a consultant for the town.

Greenville had "only a trace — not enough to measure" said a spokesperson for Greenville Utilities' Water Plant.

In Ayden, the snow was "gone by 6:30 a.m." said Ralph Ford, a resident of the town. "At 5:30 (a.m.) the ground was covered but the rain washed it all away," he said.

According to Nannie Smith of Grifton, snow was falling there at 5 a.m. "but it stopped and started raining soon after."

GUC measured .73 inch of rain from 8 a.m. Sunday until 8 a.m. today. Temperatures Sunday ranged from a low of 30 degrees Fahrenheit to a high of 40 degrees. Saturday was cooler, with the low touching 22 degrees.

At 8 a.m. today the mercury stood at 35 degrees. Temperatures are predicted to dip into the mid-20's tonight.

Dear Abby

Hotline For Runaways Is Lifeline

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: The Saturday after Thanksgiving our 16-year-old daughter walked out of our home. A few days later she phoned a friend and told him she had too many problems to face so she was leaving town. We haven't heard from her since.

We felt very close to our daughter and knew she had some emotional problems for which she was receiving professional help. The pain we felt through Christmas and New Year's was almost unbearable. We love her very much and pray each day for her safe return.

Abby, please publish your message to runaways and the Runaway Hotline number as you have done so often in the past. Our daughter read your column every day in the Las Cruces (N.M.) Sun-News. Maybe she will read it today wherever she is.

THE SHAW'S

DEAR SHAW'S: With pleasure. Runaways, call this toll-free number: 1-800-231-6946. If in Texas, use this number: 1-800-392-3352.

An operator will take your call and telephone your parents anywhere in the United States with a message from you. There will be no lecturing or recriminations. Your call will not be traced. And only one question will be asked: "Do you need anything?" If you do, you will be told where you can get it, free. I repeat, no attempt will be made to contact you or bring you back home — regardless of your age.

If you are a runaway, I beg you to forget the past and send a message to your parents now. They will sleep better tonight and so will you. God bless you.

ABBY

P.S. Runaway Hotline was established in September 1973 by a handful of public-spirited volunteers with the support of the governor of Texas. To date, it has placed over 500,000 calls from runaways, assuring their families that they are OK. Beautiful!

DEAR ABBY: I have a son named Brad. He is 7 years old and deaf. Like most kids, Brad was very excited about Christmas, and he prepared his "want" list.

I am enclosing his letter. The words are his, but I took the liberty of correcting the spelling and punctuation. Being a mother yourself, I think you will understand how this made me feel.

Abby, please print this. It might call attention to what deaf people must face every day.

JANE GALLAGHER, YORBA LINDA, CALIF.

"Dear Santa: My wish is to have no voice on TV because our TV station doesn't have C.C. (closed captions) very much. I want no voice at all on TV for the hearing people until they give up and let all shows be C.C. Then everyone can watch TV at the same time and enjoy it. OK?"

BRAD

DEAR ABBY: For Christmas I received several "gifts" that were not my idea of what a gift should be. I was simply notified that since I didn't need anything, a "gift" had been sent in my name to a charity of the giver's choice.

I think it's very generous to give to charity at Christmastime, but what it really amounts to is a tax-deductible gift.

Now, who gets the deduction? The generous bigshot who decided to make a donation in lieu of giving me a present? Or, since the "gift" was made in my name, do I get the deduction?

What sayest thou, fair oracle?

GIFT HORSE

DEAR HORSE: Whoa! The person who makes the contribution gets the deduction.

OPEN PAIRS COMPETITION...was held Saturday afternoon. Players include, left to right, Mrs. Fred Sorensen, Jan Pittman of Raleigh, Dr.

George Cook of Texas and Wright Williams of Raleigh.

Sectional Bridge Event Held

The Winter Duplicate Bridge Sectional Tournament held during the weekend had 190 tables in play during the event. Players were here from North and South Carolina, Virginia, Florida, Texas, Colorado and Minnesota.

Greenville winners Friday afternoon in the unimixed pairs were Mrs. Effie Williams and Emma B. Warren, third overall and Claude Goodman and George Martin, third in the section.

Dave Proctor and Gary Bryant were first overall in the masters pairs Friday night. Mrs. Williams was second in the North-South section and Lee Hastings placed first in the East-West section.

The non-masters pairs was also played Friday night and the first overall winners were Mrs. C.D. Elks and Ms. Estelle Eastwood. Mrs. J.N. LeConte and Mrs. James Foster were second in the East-West section while Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Mrs. Barry Powers were fourth in the North-South section.

Several Greenville players qualified in the two-session open pairs Saturday afternoon. Winning in the Saturday night consolation event were Mrs. Eloise Gabbert and Mrs. Warren, third in section, Mrs. Stuart Page and Mrs. Sidney Skinner, fourth in the East-West section and Dave Proctor, fourth in the North-South section.

Prizes were given to overall winners and also to section top winners. Prizes were given for the most points won during the three days. The regular Greenville player winning the most points during the event was Dave Proctor.

The Swiss team of four competition was held Sunday and Sunday evening. Seven matches were played. Mrs. William McConnell and Mrs. Wiley Corbett and Mrs. Barry Powers and Lewis Newsome won four matches. Mrs. Neva Barrett and Mrs. Tom Lunney and Mrs. C.D. Elks and Ms. Estelle Eastwood won three and three-quarter matches.

Baby Face

SKILLMAN, N.J. (AP) — Babies pay attention to faces, face-like patterns, prefer patterns to solid colors and enjoy variety instead of staring at the same object, according to a behavioral scientist.

Dr. Doris Welcher, a consultant to Johnson & Johnson Child Development Products Division, says very young babies can only focus clearly on objects about 7 to 12 inches from their eyes. It isn't until about six months that they can see as well as normal-sighted adults.

An older baby, she adds, prefers pictures that contain increasingly complex details.

FITNESS

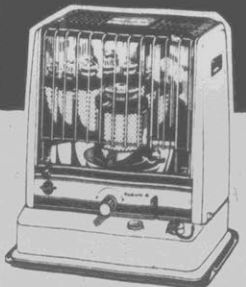

DALLAS, Texas (AP) — Runners who run more than about 15 miles a week are getting more exercise than they need, says Dr. Kenneth Cooper, a founder of the running boom.

"More than that will greatly increase the incidence of joint and bone injuries," he says.

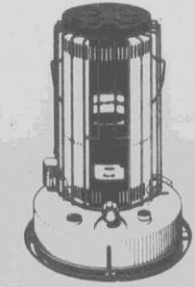

Cooper, a physician who helped launch the fitness movement with the publication of a best-selling book, rates swimming ahead of running as the best all-around exercise, because it involves more muscle groups with less risk of injury.

CHILI TACOS

The chili is handy to have on hand.

1 pound ground chuck beef
2 medium onions, finely chopped
Large clove garlic, crushed
1-pound can kidney beans, undrained
8-ounce can tomato sauce

1 tablespoon (or more) hot chili powder
1/4 teaspoon ground cumin
Salt to taste
Packaged tacos
Grated cheddar cheese
In a 10-inch skillet, over moderate heat, cook beef and onion, crumbling with a fork until beef loses its color. Stir in garlic, beans, tomato sauce, chili powder, cumin and salt. Cover and simmer, stirring several times, until there is only a small amount of sauce — 30 minutes. Makes about 4 1/2 cups. Heat as many tacos as needed and stuff with chili mixture; sprinkle with cheese. Serve at once. (Store leftover chili in freezer if all of it is not used.)

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Take a classic pullover out of the ordinary with the magic of a panel of fascinating Aran Isle cables. The pattern panel is worked perfectly straight so that there is no increasing or decreasing to figure out — an ideal way for the less experienced knitter to explore the wonderful world of pattern stitchery.

This handsome sweater is designed to be worked with 4-ply knitting worsted-weight yarn with directions written for sizes 34 through 40. The size denotes the finished chest measurement in inches.

To obtain directions for making the Pattern Panel Pullover, send your request for Leaflet No. KL-2683 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. KK-2683, containing the instructions and Bernat Berella-4 yarn by sending a check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. For sizes 34 and 36, send $15.50 or for sizes 38 and 40, send $18. Please specify your choice of the following colors: wedgewood blue, brown, camel, gold, purple, scarlet, white, black, rose or olive green.

I have often said in this column that unusual cables are no more difficult than the traditional cables that even the beginning knitter often masters with ease. If you find this hard to believe, just try the Tic-Tac-Toe Cable Stitch.

Cast on 20 stitches for your practice piece. For the first row, knit 4, place a marker on your needle, purl 2, knit 8, purl 2, place another marker on your needle and knit 4. The stitches between the markers are your pattern stitches. The first and last 4 stitches of every row will be worked in stockinette stitch (knit on right-side rows and purl on wrong-side rows).

In these directions, you will be told to work front and back cables. To work a front cable, slip the next 2 stitches to a cable holder and hold in front of your work while you knit 2 stitches from the left needle; then knit the 2 stitches from the holder. To work a back cable, do exactly the same, except hold the cable holder in back of your work.

All of the directions below are for only those stitches between the pair of markers. For Row 2 and all other even-numbered rows, knit 2, purl 8, knit 2 on the pattern stitches.

For Row 3, purl 2, make a back cable on 4 stitches, then make a front cable on the next 4 stitches and purl 2. For Row 5, purl 2, knit 8, purl 2. For Row 7, purl 2, make a front cable on 4 stitches, then make a back cable on the next 4 stitches and purl 2.

There are a number of ways to keep track of the rows as you work. Perhaps the easiest for this pattern would be to jot down the instructions for each odd-numbered row on a sheet of notebook paper, allowing one line for each row. Then, as you finish a row, make a check mark beside that row on your notebook paper.

You might even want to use a different color pen or pencil for each full repeat of the pattern stitch to make it even easier to identify your exact location when you pick up your work at any time. That is, the first time you work from Row 1 to Row 32, make the checks with a pencil. The next 32 rows could be checked with a black pen, the following 32 rows with a blue pen and so on.

With these simple aids, you should have no trouble with this pattern and should be encouraged to try other beautiful cables.

Wrappings

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — No package can be considered tamperproof.

David Woodruff, a packaging specialist for RJR Archer, says protective wrappings, seals or liners made of plastic or foil only serve as evidence that a container hasn't been opened.

Before using a product, consumers should examine packages carefully, asking themselves the following questions:

— Is the package crushed, ripped or damaged in any way?

— Have wrappings or protective bands been torn or removed?

— Are the seals intact around or beneath the lids of bottles and jars?

If in doubt, return the product unused, Woodruff advises.

The original title of D.H. Lawrence's novel "Lady Chatterley's Lover" was "Tenderness."

Jackie Rush To Speak

Tips on refunding and couponing will be offered Wednesday and Thursday at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service office.

Jackie Rush will speak on how to get started and organized. The Wednesday session begins at 10 a.m. and will be repeated Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

"Coupon and refund users boast of saving 20-25 percent per week. Refunding can be easy, profitable and even fun. But it does take time and experience to learn how to get the greatest benefit from it. Many people become confused and discouraged when everything doesn't work out as easily as they expected," said Evelyn Spangler, Pitt County home economics agent.

MEDIEVAL WEDDINGS

In the Middle Ages, marriage was both a festive and a solemn event. Here are some ways our ancestors went about their weddings.

Betrothal was a ceremony, blessed by a priest and difficult to break. The engagement period had to last for 40 days, to allow the banns to be spread and any previous marriages or betrothals uncovered. But it allowed the betrothed couples some special privileges denied during courtship: they could eat porridge from the same bowl, walk together without a chaperone, and compose love poems to each other.

Midsummer was the favorite time for medieval weddings. The harvest was gathered and the weather was warm—important, since the ceremony and the celebration were held outdoors.

There was no traditional wedding costume. The bride often wore her Easter dress. Only the nobility could afford to have a special dress made for the occasion. Vivid colors were considered ideal, and yellow, violet and red were common wedding-garment colors. The groom was similarly decked out in his finest.

Cut Military Costs, Too

President Reagan presented a $848.5 billion budget to Congress last week, one which calls for a startling $189 billion deficit.

Those who hoped for a change in presidential thinking found little encouraging. It was a no-increase budget with the exception of defense spending and inevitably the increase in interest for the national debt.

While military spending was showing a 14 percent increase the funding of programs for the poor is actually being decreased in the proposed budget.

Some desirable measures for holding down projected government spending were included. Salaries of government employees and military personnel would be frozen for a year. This should be acceptable and the time should be used to study the salaries, benefits and pensions of government employees to determine where effective changes can be made.

Social Security benefits cost of living increases would be delayed for a year which is preferable to the system collapsing.

There is also a $146 billion standby tax provision for fiscal 1986 through 1988 if needed to hold down the deficit.

The total budget for 1984 did not show a large increase over the budget for 1983. The increase was $43.3 billion or 5.4 percent. And those who think responsibly about government spending will agree that the slowing of budget growth is necessary.

The president, however, has failed to recognize that if we cannot afford additional social spending then we cannot afford run away military spending either. Congress must take a hard look at not only the increases in military spending, but all military appropriations with an eye toward getting more for our dollars.

A Freedom To Protect

Covering the news is an activity that is relatively unfettered in this country. While some public bodies might attempt to avoid the news people, there are few who would ban them.

Not so in the communist nations. The latest to fall victim to the repressive society is United Press International reporter Ruth Gruber who was expelled from Poland. When the United States retaliated by expelling the Polish correspondent, UPI was ordered to suspend its news gathering activities in Poland.

Ms. Gruber's expulsion was intended as a warning to other correspondents to watch their step.

By western standards such government interference with the flow of information is intolerable. It is a principle that could be lost to us if we are not eternally vigilant in protecting our freedoms.

THIS AFTERNOON

2 Sides Stressed

By PAUL T. O'CONNOR
CHAPEL HILL — Fred Friendly, the former CBS News producer, told editors assembled here for the 1983 N.C. Press Institute an amusing variation on the tale of Little Red Riding Hood. The lass heading for grandma's house comes away less as the victim, and more as the culprit, when the story is told from the wolf's point of view.

The story, written by a fifth-grade student of Friendly's wife, is not of a wolf who tries to eat a child but of a child who lures a wolf to grandma's house, "cries wolf" in a bid for attention, and ends up ruining the wolf's reputation.

Friendly used the story to make a point in his survey of First Amendment law in this century. But the story, and its moral, fit well with comments made by three state political leaders in their presentations at the institute. There are two sides to every story, the politicians told the newspeople, but sometimes only one side is told and it is the politicians who are left with reputations besmirched.

Gov. Jim Hunt was the first "wolf" to come to the table. He was complimentary and sympathetic but critical of press lapses.

"The only time I really get upset with you is when I feel you aren't doing your job, you aren't getting enough information and asking enough questions. I get mad when I see an editorial that bases its entire line of reasoning on an incomplete wire story written under deadline pressure. Sometimes, editors and editorial writers need to be reporters, too."

Call the press office and get the administration's side of a story before editorializing on it, Hunt said. A little fairness, he said, might lead to greater accuracy. In private, some of Hunt's advisors have grumbled lately about what they see as a proliferation of "poorly researched, shot off the hip" editorials.

Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, was a bit more acerbic when he spoke during a legislative panel the following day. Royall and other legislative leaders have been soundly criticized by the Raleigh News and Observer for what that paper sees as a legislative power grab. Royall specifically criticized the paper saying they did not understand the reasons behind recent organizational moves made by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green. He said he'd written a letter to the editor of the paper but that he didn't expect it to run. He offered the letter to any other paper which was interested. The N & O ran the letter the next day.

But the harshest words came from Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake. With Green sitting at a nearby table, Adams launched into a tirade about the unfairness of last October's reports connecting Green with a "torchman."

"I'd be less than frank with you here today if I didn't say that the attitude of the press that is directed to the Legislature is essentially negative."

Reading from the N.C. Press Association's statement of principles, Adams asked if the reporting on Green had met the tests of fairness and accuracy which editors have laid down for themselves. "I didn't say you ought not to be fair," Adams told an editor afterwards. Those are tough words from a man who is an ideological ally of the state's large liberal papers and whose law partner represents the press association.

After the panel discussion, one editor conceded that

Heroics In Perspective

It's hard to imagine what happens to a person who lives in a town that has won the Super Bowl. For Washington, D.C., a city that never gets any respect, you have to be very careful so all the adulation doesn't go to your head.

I am happy to report as a Redskins fan I've kept the greatest football victory in modern history in its proper perspective.

It hasn't been easy, because ever since the final whistle of Super Bowl XVII blew I've been taking calls from all over the country from friends congratulating me on the championship.

On Monday, when the first one came in, I resorted to what I now realize was false modesty. When the caller said, "Congratulations, you were magnificent," I responded, "I had nothing to do with the win, though of course I am happy with the results."

"What do you mean you had nothing to do with it? You've been a Redskins fan for years. Jack Kent Cooke, the owner, and Joe Gibbs, the coach, said on nationwide television they couldn't have won the championship without the fans."

"We were always there when they needed us," I admitted. "But just because you root for a team doesn't mean you can take any credit when it wins."

"It's typical of someone like you to play down your role," he said. "But I want you to know I am proud I have a friend in Washington who never lost faith that his team would win all the Super Bowl marbles."

The calls kept coming in — from Oklahoma City, Chicago, Los Angeles, and even Dallas, congratulating me on the magnificent victory I had achieved.

By early afternoon I decided to drop the pose that I had nothing to do with the Redskins triumph.

When a call came in from an old college schoolmate in San Francisco, I changed my tune.

"I never thought when we roomed together that someday you would be a Super Bowl champion," he said.

"I couldn't do it alone," I told him. "There were 49 other guys on the field that I have to share the triumph with. The thing that did it for us is that we played together as a team."

"But you were a believer from the beginning. It was your inspiration that defeated the Miami Dolphins."

"I only did what any Red-

skin fan would do under the circumstances. I yelled my heart out."

"I know you're just saying that, but I'm sure you had a lot more to do with it than that."

"Let's just say it was a team effort and let it go at that. I don't want any of the other Redskins to think I'm getting more than my share of the credit."

By late afternoon I decided I had been protesting too much.

When Bob Markay, a Jet fan from Long Island, called to say if anyone had to win the Super Bowl he was glad it was me, I told him, "After my game against Dallas, I was sure I could beat the Dolphins. Their defense was overrated and I knew if I could open a hole for John Riggins, he would do what he was paid to do. In the fourth quarter when we were down 17 to 13, I told Joe Theismann, my quarterback, 'The game isn't over until the fat lady sings.' It gave him new life, and the kid took it from there."

Bob said, "Nobody deserves a Super Bowl ring more than you."

"The ring is important," I told him. "But what really counts is that I'm finally going to get some respect."

That night when I got home I asked my wife if there were any calls.

"Why? Were you expecting any?"

"I thought President Reagan might call to congratulate me on my victory."

"Why would he call you?"

Unrepentant Phil Gramm

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
COLLEGE STATION, Texas — The unyielding, doctrinaire conservatism that led Phil Gramm to switch parties and quit Congress was on display here when his triumphant tour of the Texas A. M. campus was interrupted by an angry student who accused him of "taking the food right out of our mouths."

"All this country promised you was an opportunity," Gramm shot back. That ended the dialogue. The response of the former Aggie economics professor expressed the political philosophy that prompted him to switch from Democrat to Republican and resign the 6th District seat to which he was elected for the third time last Nov. 2.

Although it is not an absolute certainty that he will surpass 50 percent in the Feb. 12 vote against a dozen Democrats and thereby avoid a runoff, Gramm does not trim his sails. Hostility from brass-collar Democrats to a turnout does not induce Gramm even to consider strategic retreat.

That makes this special election worthy of national attention, and makes Gramm one of the handful of nationally-known congressmen. It promises to make him the slumping Republican Party's most formidable statewide candidate in the future. At a moment when the president himself is softening his rhetoric, Phil Gramm has no apologies for having been Ronald Reagan's favorite Democrat.

Addressing three dozen farmers and ranchers at Brazos Center near here, Gramm delivered a tough pitch against agricultural subsidies (leavened only slightly by opposition to grain embargoes as a Cold War weapon). His talk ended with an appeal that the U.S. should "go back and analyze our cheap food policy and see if we can dismantle it." Even with that dose of strong medicine, Gramm got only mild questioning.

That same night, speaking to several hundred home builders in nearby Bryan, he used economic facts to attack jobs bills as no cure for unemployment. "The trouble with a $5 billion jobs bill is that we don't have the $5 billion," he said; every dollar would come straight out of the savings pool needed for home building.

Running against what he sarcastically calls "those born-again fiscal conservatives, Tip and Ted" (House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy), Gramm has sent 811 volunteers to knock on 40,000 front doors. The day he announced his resignation from Congress after the Democrats kicked him off the Budget Committee for being too cozy with Reagan, an unsolicited $24,000 was mailed in (87 percent of it in checks of less than $100). Starting with his huge war chest from last fall's campaign (almost certainly preserved with his resignation in mind), he has money to burn.

Gramm's only problem is whether he can persuade conservative, rural, brass-collar Democrats to desert deeply-rooted generational voting habits.

At lunch in the modish Brazos County Senior Citizens' Center, one of four luncheon tables was empty. "We've had some calls," said Mrs. Herschel Burgess. The callers were "upset" at their club being used to honor or even recognize a Republican. "One of our friends called him a traitor," Mrs. Burgess' husband told us. Anti-Grammism by brass-collar Democrats runs deep; even as a Democrat in 1978, 1980 and 1982, he was opposed in party primaries by 13 out of 14 county chairmen.

The tug of the brass collar was felt by Gramm on a 3 walking tour of downtown Bryan. A nattily-dressed voter shook his hand but when Gramm asked for his vote exploded:

"I will never straddle the fence" — that is, vote for a Republican.

Somewhat similar sentiments came from a retired Air Force colonel at a coffee in suburban Bryan for Gramm's principal

Strength For Today

CATHEDRALS — OLD AND NEW

As the year A.D. 1000 approached, and later the year 1500, Europe was thrown into great excitement by the conviction that Jesus Christ would come back to earth. One result of this belief was the building of ever larger and more imposing cathedrals.

An English church leader has pointed out that this development has a special reference to the age in which we live. This is not a cathedral building age; it is a scientific age in which we are in danger of losing fundamental spiritual values.

Therefore, as the Europeans centuries ago feverishly built cathedrals to glorify the Lord when he should return, so we in this age need to be fashioning our marvelous civilized era in such a way that the Spirit of Jesus Christ will enter it now, and that when the Lord returns in glory he will find these inspiring achievements of men serving the cause of his kingdom. — Elisha Douglass

Other Editors Say Royall's Bill Best

(Richmond Co. Daily Journal)

It is early in the legislative session, the traditional time for floating trial balloons, for running legislative proposals up the flagpole to see if anyone salutes them. Right now, there seems to be one proposal that has an awful lot of legislators standing at attention and saluting — an increase in the state sales tax.

Several different plans for increasing the sales tax have been presented; all would boost the tax by a penny. They primarily differ on how they would spend the money, not how they would raise it. The one exception to that rule is the proposal of Sen. Kenneth Royall, which would couple the hike in the overall sales tax with a phased removal of the sales tax on food.

Royall is one of the most powerful members of the General Assembly, and it can be expected that his sales tax bill will get extremely careful consideration. His proposal is also the most appealing of those put forth to date, because removing the sales tax on food would correct the most unfair aspect of a tax that inevitably weighs more heavily on the poor than the rich.

Another facet of Royall's bill would boost the tax on new cars from 2 percent to 3 percent and change the maximum limit on the tax from $120 to $300. Again the tax hike is softened by bringing a little bit of fairness to a tax that at present hits the purchaser of a Toyota pretty hard, but gives the Mercedes buyer a big break.

Royall presents a rather complicated formula for distributing the money to be raised by his tax, but the bulk of the money would be spent on such locally vital projects as school construction and water and sewer improvements. He would also allocate funds to state highways to insure that the state could provide matching money to get its share of the federal funds provided by the new federal gasoline tax.

Royall's distribution of proposed tax income can be quibbled with, and undoubtedly will be; but if a hike in the sales tax proves to be the most practical way for the state to raise the revenue it needs, then Royall's proposal seems the fairest way to set up that tax increase.

Bargains For Tourists Abroad

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A strong U.S. dollar means you'll be able to buy more for less if you visit a foreign country these days, and new customs regulations mean you'll be able to bring home more of your of your purchases tax-free.

Depending on where you go, the value of American currency is higher than it has been in several years. In England, for example, you can get almost 65 pounds for $100 today, compared to about 54 pounds a year ago. You can get more than twice as many pesos for your dollar in Mexico as you could only a few months ago.

You have to be careful about exchanging money, however, if you want the most for your dollar.

Do NOT expect to get the same exchange rate that you see quoted in newspaper stories about the value of foreign currencies; those rates apply only to transactions involving large sums of money. You will get slightly less for your dollars.

Change money at banks, rather than at hotels or stores. You will get a better rate. Shop around; in many countries, different banks offer different rates. And use travelers checks instead of cash. Most banks give you more for travelers checks than they do for cash and the checks are safer to carry.

If you use credit cards, don't be surprised if your bill is more than you thought it would be. Some card issuers add a surcharge or commission on purchases made in a foreign currency. Both American Express and Diners Club, for example, add a 1 percent conversion fee.

Bringing purchases back with you will be easier if you learn the regulations of the U.S. Customs Service before you go. You can get a set of brochures explaining the basics by writing to Travel Pack, U.S. Customs, Washington, D.C., 20229. There is no charge for the information.

New rules, which went into effect Jan. 27, mean that each returning U.S. resident can bring back $400 worth of goods without paying any duty or tax. The old limit was $300.

The duty-free exemption applies to all individuals, including infants and children. And the head of the family can make a joint declaration, lumping the family's purchases together. Suppose a husband and wife and their two children go abroad. The children are unlikely to spend the full $400 allowed each of them; their parents may spend more. As long as the family's total purchases do not exceed $1,600, however, they are not subject to any duty.

If you spend more than the limit, you will have to pay duty. There is a flat 10 percent tax on the first $1,000 worth of goods beyond the $400 duty-free limit. (The 10 percent rule used to apply to the first $600 beyond the duty-free exemption.) Purchases beyond $1,400 per person will be taxed on a sliding scale, according to the individual item. Check customs publications for specific rates so you can include high-tax items in your basic exemption.

U.S. residents coming from Guam, American Samoa or the U.S. Virgin Islands are entitled to an even bigger exemption — $800, up from a previous limit of $600. The tax on the first $1,000 of goods beyond the limit is 5 percent.

The limit also has been raised on the value of gifts that can be shipped home without the recipient having to pay duty. The new limit is $50, up from $25. You can send as many gifts as you like, but you can't send more than one duty-free gift per day to a single individual.

Customs forms will be distributed to you on your return flight! You must fill out the identification section of the form. You generally do not have to list the items you purchased abroad, however, unless they are worth more than the duty-free exemption or if you are bringing in more than one quart of alcoholic beverages, 200 cigarettes or 100 cigars. Instead, you can make what is known as an "oral declaration."

You must declare all items that you acquired abroad and are in your possession when you return. This includes gifts you received or goods you're bringing back for someone else. It also includes things bought in airport duty-free shops; the "duty-free" in this case refers to the country where the shop is located — not to the United States.

House Taking Up Separation Of Powers Measure

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The House this week is considering a separation of powers measure that may do more than widen the gap between the governmental branches, lawmakers say.

The bill removes legislators from several executive agencies and restructures the authority for setting the pay for many agency officials. It also redefines the role of the powerful Advisory Budget Commission, which has been known in the past to operate separately of all three traditional branches of government.

"I think it (the bill) has served to sharpen the distinction that when the budget comes to the Legislature, it is an executive budget," Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake.

Adams said the ABC used to smooth the passage of the administration's legislation. "It weakens the recommendation of the ABC, which is the loss, really, of the executive branch," he said. "The Legislature will have to take a closer look."

Rep. George W. Miller, Jr., D-Durham, who sponsored the bill, said it would broaden the gap between any agencies and the General Assembly.

"You won't have a direct relationship where the appointee from the Legislature could make a direct report back," said Miller, chairman of the House Judiciary I Committee, which is considering the bill. "Now it's going to be a two-step procedure."

North Carolina Supreme Court rulings in 1981 prohibiting legislators from serving on boards that implement laws — a duty reserved to the executive branch — sparked the bill. It is the first of two measures recommended by a joint study commission on separation of powers, which Miller and Adams both served on.

Miller said his committee would likely finish its first run through the bill this week before reexamining troublesome passages.

"We'll take as long as we need to do it right," he said. "But we're going to move on it and get it out of the way."

Adams said the second measure, which will change rule-making authority in government, is likely to be much more difficult.

Legislators may wind up with the duties of executive committees, who once made rules and then administered them.

"Since legislators cannot serve on these committees and there is a question about how much authority the Legislature can give to a committee, it looks like the only thing they can do is make the rules in the Legislature," Adams said. "It would put a terrible burden on the Legislature, he added. But so far we haven't come up with any alternative."

The changes in setting salaries would have little impact on the working of the Legislature, Adams said, while the rest of the separation-of-powers package may force some changes.

Adams and Miller agree the changes would be awkward, but neither was sure whether the final outcome would be good or bad.

"The power is being divided into three directions," Miller said. "If the Legislature feels it should have a say, then it goes to the Legislature. If we conclude it is an executive matter, it goes to the executive."

"It isn't going to stop all the problems," he added. "We'll just have to wait and see."

challenger, moderate former state representative Dan Kubiak. The colonel praised Gramm's party switch, but in words that carried a sting, Gramm "knew he was sailing under false colors as a Democrat," he confided to us.

For Gramm, there is neither remorse nor regret. An intellectual whose Wellesley-educated wife is also an economist, he learned his politics in on-the-job training. Rejecting the traitor epithet, Gramm prefers to wear the martyr's mantle. He never went to Congress, he tells voters, "to sit in 'Redneck Row' under the thumb of the (Democratic) leadership." He went to Congress "to win" fights such as the 1981 budget battle when he beat O'Neill with the Reagan-backed Gramm-Latta resolution.

Gramm views the House as "the major hurdle for changing the direction of this country." The change he wants parallels the change Reagan wants: drastic cutbacks in federal spending and federal controls over citizens. Most voters in the 6th District agree with Reagan and Gramm. But for the brass-collars who deplore the thought of a turncoat Republican as their congressman, Phil Gramm offers no conciliation to make it easier in the voter's booth on Lincoln's Birthday. He offers only his convictions, straight up.

there was considerable truth in the criticism. Many reporters are overly negative, the editor said. Many are also unfriendly and rude to elected representatives. Views On Dental Health

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A.

CANKER SORES

The canker sore (or aphthous ulcer) is one of the best known and most persistently annoying dental lesions. It is small and whitish and may occur on the gums, cheeks or tongue. It appears singly and in clusters. A blister usually forms first, without notice, then breaks to form an open sore or canker. Then the acute pain begins.

The open canker sore is especially sensitive to touch and to hot or spicy foods. Fortunately, the lifetime of the canker sore normally runs its course in about a week or ten days.

No good treatment is known for its cure at present. There's not much you can do except to make sure you avoid irritating foods. Some people are especially prone to canker sores. They seem to run in families and there may be a connection between canker attacks and emotional stress, though there is still no definite information on the cause of this puzzling disorder.

A dentist can treat canker sores to relieve the pain. However, certain kinds of cankers tend to persist or come back in spite of any treatment now known.

Prepared as a public service to promote better dental health. From the office of: Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S. P.A. Evans St., Phone: 752-5126.

Farm Scene

By ROGER COBB
Agricultural Extension Agent

Believe it or not it will soon be time to plant corn. Pitt County had an excellent crop in both 1982 and 1981. We probably cannot expect those very high yields to continue every year. There are things that we do to help improve our corn yields. We must, however, still depend on mother nature to supply the needed rainfall, unless we have some type of irrigation.

One area that has a big influence on yields is plant populations. Often farmers shooting for high yields are not putting enough seed per acre to obtain the yields they expect. Very few actually obtain the final stand they wanted when they started planting.

Something very important with plant populations is plant spacing in the row. Uniformly spaced plants have much more yield potential than do irregularly spaced plants. Adjustments need to be made on planters before you go to the field in the spring.

Sprayer calibration is a low-cost item that every farmer needs to do. Improper calibration can affect your weed control, nitrogen rates, plant stand and your pocketbook if you apply too much of certain chemicals. So please take time to calibrate your equipment before you go into the field.

Consider split applications of nitrogen especially on sandy land. Nitrogen can leach from corn fields just like it can from your tobacco fields. Splitting the nitrogen applications can usually mean higher yields on somewhat sandy soils.

Variety selection is one of the most important tasks a farmer faces every spring. He needs to evaluate the hybrids he has been using in the past. If they continue to give high yields, stand well and resist disease, you may well be justified in continuing with these varieties. Extension tests and talking with neighbors who you know get good yields are two more good sources of variety data. Remember to only plant a new variety on a limited acreage until you see how it will perform for you on your farm.

Be sure to look into the acreage reduction and PIK (Payment in Kind) programs. If they present an opportunity for you to make more money than planting be sure to consider participating. Always be aware of opportunities to market your crop for more than market price at harvest time.

Gas Price War Dangers Cited

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Many service stations are becoming casualties of gasoline price wars, a trend that eventually could harm the nation's transportation system, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

A worldwide petroleum glut coupled with rebates and discounts offered by competing oil companies have caused gas prices to drop an average 13 cents a gallon since January 1981, Lundberg said in the weekly Lundberg Letter.

"The rebates and discounts have contributed to the recent downward price spiral, though they have not caused it," Lundberg said.

While "this may seem well and good for consumers, use of the (sales) devices is sowing seeds of trouble for the national automotive transportation system."

Many service stations have already gone out of business in the last few years, Lundberg said Sunday in a telephone interview, so losing more could mean real problems for motorists.

"We may at long last have arrived close to an irreducible number of service stations that are able to maintain our mass transportation system," he said. "We may be getting close to a possible logistical breakdown."

He did not estimate the numbers of stations closed or the number he considered minimal before such a "breakdown" occurred.

Oil companies have been battling for customers since Atlantic Richfield Co. eliminated its credit cards last year, Lundberg said. Competition is likely to continue indefinitely because no single company can set bottom-line prices if others don't cooperate, he said.

"There are wide varieties of strategies being used to generate volume. It started with Arco giving up their cards and was answered by Exxon, Amoco, Chevron and others giving discounts for cash," he said.

Atlas Wooten On Committee

Atlas Wooten of Route 4, Greenville, has been appointed to the Tobacco Advisory Committee of the American Farm Bureau Federation by Robert Delano, president of the national farm organization.

Wooten's committee will discuss issues and programs having to do with tobacco and make recommendations to the American Farm Bureau's board of directors for its consideration in policy execution and other matters.

N. Pitt Team Wins Quiz Bowl

The North Pitt High School team won the 1983 Pitt County Quiz Bowl held Saturday morning in the auditorium of the Library-Recreation Building in Greenville. This is the fourth year that Sheppard Memorial Library has sponsored the local Quiz Bowl.

Woody Leggett, Judson Joyner, Ken Whitehurst, and Renee Oakley are the members of the winning team. Alternate members are Eric Garriss and Daniel Keel, and faculty members advising the team are Barbara Garrenton and Jim Shallow.

The North Pitt team was awarded a trophy which will be displayed at their school during the next year. Funds for the trophy were donated by The Daily Reflector and Burroughs Wellcome Company.

North Pitt won the championship by defeating the Rose High School team 165 to 125 in the final question-and-answer round of a double-elimination tournament.

Other schools represented in the Pitt County Quiz Bowl were D.H. Conley, Farmville Central, and Ayden-Grifton.

Moderators for the event were Dr. Helen Steer of the ECU Department of Drama and Speech and Willie Nelms, director of Sheppard Library. Judges were Dr. Thomas Durham, ECU Department of Psychology; Dr. Gene Lanier, ECU Department of Library Science; and Dr. Charles Coble, ECU Department of Science Education.

As Pitt County winner, the North Pitt team will participate March 5 in a regional Quiz Bowl to be hosted by Wayne County Public County Library in Goldsboro. The two top teams in the Goldsboro regional contest will face other regional winners in the state finals on Saturday, March 26, in Raleigh. This year, the first — and second-place state teams will meet the winning teams from a similar competition, Hi IQ, in April.

Spectators are welcome at all local, regional, and state Quiz Bowl competitions.

Commission Meets Tuesday

The February meeting of the Greenville Recreation and Parks Commission will be held at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Administrative Office Building, 2000 Cedar Lane.

Three items are on the agenda. A discussion of the first draft of agreement between East Carolina Vocational Center and the Recreation and Parks Department on the use of ECVC's pool is the old business agenda item.

The two items under new business are: a presentation of donation by the Kiwanis for Special Olympics T-shirt; and presentation of Greenville's Little League annual financial report.

Recession Has Cut Dropouts

CHICAGO (AP) — The failing economy is helping keep teen-agers from dropping out of high school because jobs are hard to find, a school superintendent says.

The dropout rate in Chicago for 1981-82 was 5.7 percent, the lowest rate in six years, according to the National Center for Education Statistics in Washington, D.C.

Mental Health Perspectives

INTRODUCING OURSELVES

As a community mental health center, we are charged with educating the public about mental health services and mental health-related issues. This is somewhat of a formidable task. We believe one good approach to the problem is to increase our use of the mass media. As a result, Pitt County Mental Health, Mental Retardation and Substance Abuse Services will sponsor an educational article to appear weekly in this paper.

In future editions, we will discuss child development, family relations, personal adjustment, alcohol and drugs, mental retardation, coping skills, stress, alternatives to psychiatric hospitalization, divorce, single parenting, depression and many other issues which may be of concern to you. Our objective is to increase awareness of these issues and to provide information that will be beneficial and readily useful.

If you have a question you would like for us to answer through this column, please submit to Community Services, Pitt County Mental Health Center, 306 Stantonsburg Road, Greenville, or call Community Services, 752-0119.

Some people think an IRA won't help until retirement. Nonsense. A BB&T IRA helps every April 15.

An IRA, you see, is more than a fast-growing retirement fund. It's a tax shelter.

Now, the tax-wise have been taking advantage of tax shelters for years, contributing money to charity, for example, so they can take big deductions and pay smaller income taxes.

Well, we think it's about time working people got a piece of the action. And they can with BB&T's Individual Retirement Account, a tax shelter that's yours when you make a contribution to the charity closest to your heart: you and your family.

YOU CAN DEDUCT AS MUCH AS $2,000 A YEAR FROM YOUR GROSS INCOME.

You're allowed to invest as much as $2,000 a year in your IRA ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if you both are). And every penny is deductible. Which means big tax savings. If you're in the 25% tax bracket, for example, and you and your working spouse put $4,000 into an IRA, your refund check from Uncle Sam will be $1,000 fatter than it would be otherwise.

YOU DON'T EVEN PAY TAX ON THE INTEREST YOU EARN UNTIL YOU RETIRE.

Which is nice, because at BB&T, you'll be earning at a rate that's tied to money market rates, with a guaranteed minimum of 8%. What's more, we don't compound that interest annually or quarterly as some banks do. We compound daily, which can make a difference of thousands of dollars in interest over the years.

Amount Deposited @ Years	Daily Compounding*	Annual Compounding*	Net Gain With Daily Compounding
10 $20,000	$ 32,097	$ 31,291	$ 806
20 $40,000	$104,323	$ 98,846	$ 5,477
30 $60,000	$266,846	$244,692	$22,153
40 $80,000	$632,553	$559,562	$72,991

*Based on 8% interest rate

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds between 59½ and 70½ years of age, when you'll probably be in a lower income tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

YOU CAN BUILD UP ENOUGH IN YOUR IRA OVER THE YEARS TO RETIRE RICH.

If you start an IRA in your early thirties, a $2,000-a-year investment, with all the interest it earns, will turn into a really tidy sum by the time you're sixty-five. And even if you were born too soon to start that early or can't afford an investment that large, you'll still pile up a sizeable retirement fund.

Call or visit any BB&T office and get your IRA started before another day goes by. After all, how can you pass up a plan that gives you big bucks in the September of your life and a bigger refund check every April?

Poultry
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 43.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. 90 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed, with a final weighted average of 43.95 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is trending higher due mainly to the truckers' strike. The live supply is moderate for a moderate to good demand. Weights mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,806,000, compared to 1,790,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran up a strong gain today, challenging the record highs it reached several weeks ago.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up 13.25 Friday, gained 11.86 to 1,089.77 by noontime today. The average reached its all-time closing high of 1,092.35 on Jan. 10.

Gainers outnumbered losers by more than 2 to 1 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Mesa Offshore Trust led the active list, unchanged at 1 1/2. A 500,000-share block traded at that price.

Financial Corp. of America rose 1 1/2 to 30 1/2 on top of a 3 1/2-point gain Friday, when the company projected sharply higher earnings for the first quarter and the full year.

The NYSE's composite index gained .68 to 84.97. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 2.66 at 368.62.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 38.51 million shares at noontime, against 36.93 million at the same point Friday.

Arms Policy Criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratic presidential candidate Alan Cranston says Kenneth Adelman is a "novice" whose nomination to head the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency reflects the Reagan administration's lack of commitment to nuclear arms control.

Cranston, appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press" program Sunday, said he has "no great confidence" in the Reagan administration's commitment to arms control and its understanding of the problems posed by the nuclear arms race.

The California senator said the latest example of the administration's attitude is Reagan's nomination of Adelman, who has been forced to make a second appearance before the Republican-controlled Senate Foreign Relations Committee's confirmation hearings.

"He is a novice in this field," Cranston said. "He has no understanding of what it takes to achieve arms control."

"He made some absurd statements about previous people who have headed the arms control agency and others who have worked in this field, and I am determined to do all I can to make plain that that nomination symbolizes the lack of commitment to arms control of the Reagan administration," Cranston said.

Three People Rob TRW Plant

Three people, one of them armed with a pistol, took an undetermined amount of money from a machine at the TRW Inc. plant here early Sunday after tricking a security guard into opening a door, Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported.

Tyson said the guard, Joe Howard Ward Jr., told deputies that a door buzzer at TRW sounded around 3 a.m. Sunday and a woman told him she had been put out of a car and needed to make a telephone call. Ward reported that when he opened the door, two black males and the woman forced their way into the building.

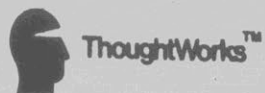

According to Tyson, Ward said he was placed in a closet and guarded and two of the intruders took a cutting threat belonging to TRW and cut open a coin change machine in the cafeteria area.

The guard told deputies that one of the men had a ski mask pulled over his face. Ward, who was not injured in the incident, reported that the three fled from the building after taking the money.

Tyson said investigation of the robbery is continuing. The incident was reported at 4:17 a.m.

UNC-Virginia — Another Game Of The Century

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.
AP Sports Writer

Once again, it's time for the Game of the Century. This week's version is the Atlantic Coast Conference rematch between third-ranked Virginia and No. 1 North Carolina on Thursday night in Chapel Hill.

Both the Tar Heels and the Cavaliers set themselves up for the game with convincing victories this weekend. Wake Forest, third in the conference, increased its chances for post-season play with a 78-65 triumph over Marquette, while Maryland claimed a share of fourth place as it trounced last place Georgia Tech 77-68.

Clemson downed Baptist 81-60, while North Carolina State stopped The Citadel 57-47 in the Saturday nightcap of the North-South Doubleheaders in Charlotte.

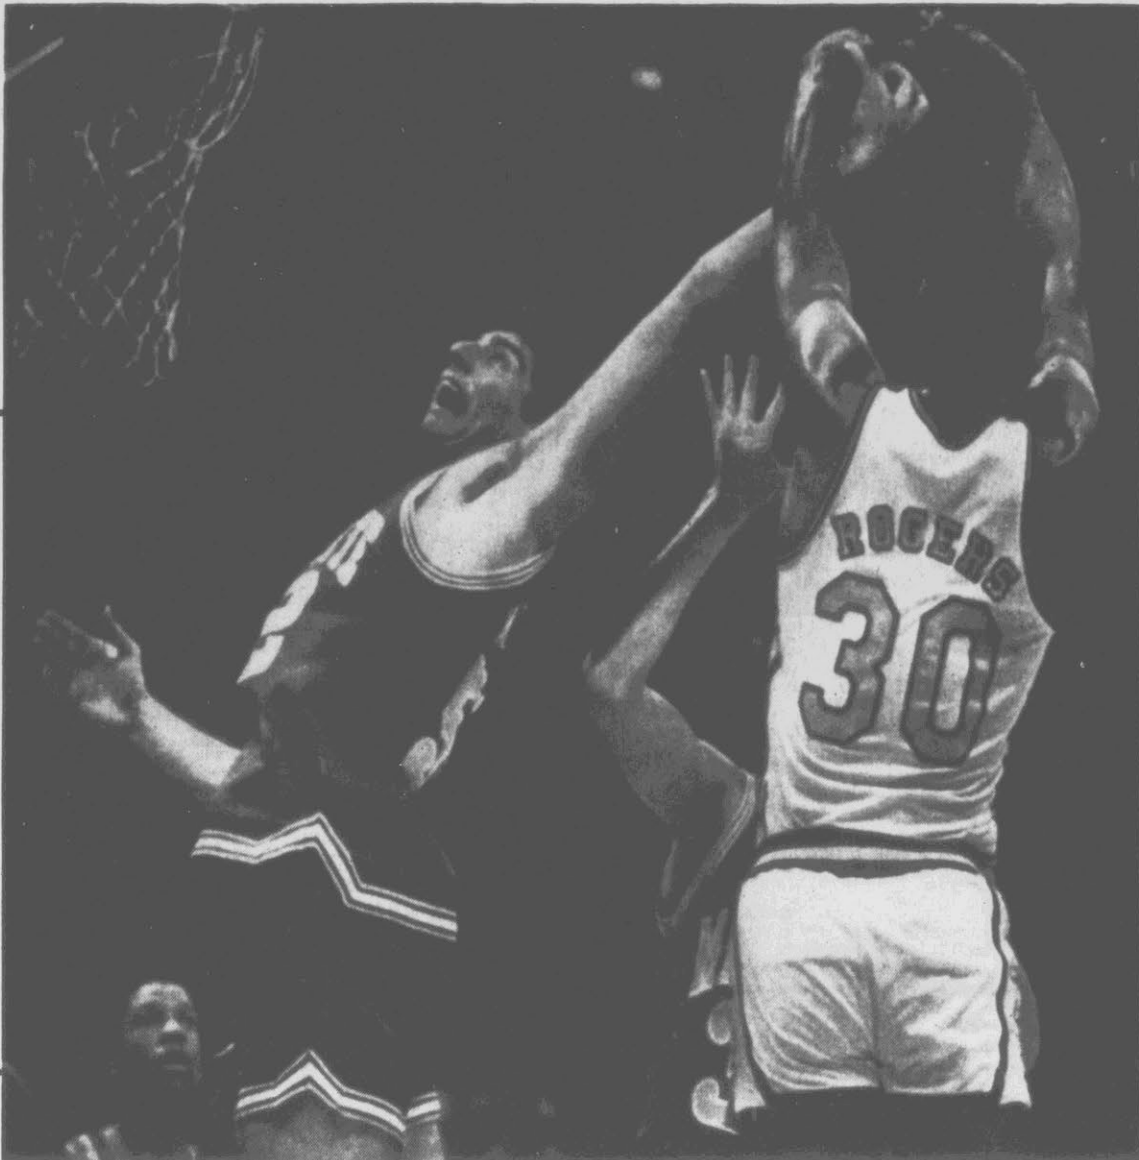

In the first game of the Charlotte twinbill, North Carolina knocked off Furman 78-43 and raised its slate to 20-3, a record 13th consecutive season in which Dean Smith has coached a 20-victory team. He didn't celebrate too long, though reminding reporters that there's still plenty of ground to be covered.

"We're going to be facing different people than Furman and Citadel athletes in our next game Thursday," Smith said.

Sam Perkins, who scored 36 points in North Carolina's victory over the Cavaliers, knows nemesis Ralph Sampson and his teammates will be ready to even the score.

"They're gonna come into our place high-strung," said

Perkins. "We're gonna try our best."

Virginia is 19-2 and 7-1, a half-game behind the Tar Heels after its 105-84 pasting of Duke. Although Sampson scored just 10 points, Tim Mullen posted a career-high 23 points to lead four other Cavaliers in double figures.

"We don't have to win it because it's not for the national championship," said Sampson. "But it is a big game that we're going to win. We're sure not going down there to lose."

N.C. State needed key thefts by Ernie Myers to hold off a late Citadel rally and increase its record to 12-7, setting up Wednesday's matchup with the Tigers.

"We've got a three-game winning streak going now," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "Our next six games are at home. That will tell us a lot about what our post-season chances are."

The Demon Deacons were without guard Danny Young, who injured an ankle in practice. Senior Alvis Rogers took up the slack, scoring 21 points and helping raise Wake Forest's record to 14-5.

"Danny Young's injury sparked the drive, put the fire in the eyes that we needed," Tacy said. "I'm delighted with the efforts, and the work that they gave us."

Wake Forest will try to increase its record at home Wednesday against a Maryland team which has won seven in a row and is tied with N.C. State for fourth. Reserve Len Bias scored a career-high 19 points, 12 in the second half but coach Lefty Driesell would not say whether Bias had earned a starting role for Wednesday's contest in Greensboro.

"What matters is who gets the job done at the end of the game," Driesell said. "We've got a good bench. That's what's making us strong now."

Baptist held a 35-32 halftime lead over Clemson, but the Tigers romped to a 29-6 spree in the first 10 minutes of the second half as it climbed to 8-14 and turned its attention to the Wolfpack.

Duke, 2-5 and 9-10, travels to Georgia Tech, 8-10 and 1-7, on Wednesday in addition to the Clemson-N.C. State and Maryland-Wake Forest games.

Rogers Helps Deacons End Losing Streak

GREENSBORO (AP) — Wake Forest's Alvis Rogers wanted to take the leadership role in Sunday's matchup with Marquette, knowing his Demon Deacons could be hard-pressed in their efforts to snap a three-game losing streak.

Rogers succeeded, scoring 21 points and leading the Deacons to a 78-65 victory, despite the absence of leading scorer Danny Young, who sprained his right ankle in practice Saturday.

"Danny Young's injury sparked the drive, put the fire in the eyes that we needed," Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy said.

"We wanted to get the ball up court and get into our offense," Rogers said. Rogers did that often enough to become the Deacons' 10th leading career scorer with 1,367 points. Delaney Rudd added 17 as the Deacons handed Marquette its second straight loss.

"We knew we had to get together to keep us together," Rogers said. "We had to keep our confidence. We've got a tough road ahead."

Rogers scored 10 first-half points and Rudd 8 as Wake took a 36-24 halftime lead, but Marquette helped dig its own hole. While Wake Forest was hitting 16 of 26 field goal attempts, 61.5 percent, the Warriors could manage to connect on only 12 of 43 tries, 27.9 percent.

Wake Forest finished with 29 of 46 shooting for 63 percent, while the Warriors raised their marks only slightly, hitting 32 of 93 for 34.4 percent.

"Our poor shooting percentage was a combination of their inside defense and the fact that we hurried the shots," Marquette coach Hank Raymonds said. "They were able to get the ball inside quite a bit, which I really didn't think they would. They shot well in the first half, in fact, their shot selection was better than ours."

Marquette did rally once in the second half, scoring eight straight points to cut Wake's lead to 42-36 with 14:51 left. However, the Deacons responded by scoring eight of the next 10 points to push the margin back to 12 with 10:32 left.

Marquette could get no closer and Wake Forest scored 12 of its last 16 points at the free-throw line as the Warriors were forced to foul to gain possession. Wake

Richmond-ECU 'Snowed' Out

Snow — in Virginia, not North Carolina — forced the cancellation of the East Carolina-Richmond women's college basketball game Sunday night in Minges Coliseum.

Richmond was unable to drive to Greenville because of the weather conditions Sunday, forcing the game to be called off.

No makeup date has been announced and it is likely the game will not be made up.

The Lady Pirates, 9-9 this year, return to action Saturday evening when they host their Converse Lady Pirate Classic.

In opening-round action, Cheyney State plays Clemson at 6 p.m. and ECU faces Detroit at 8 p.m. in Minges.

The consolation game is set for Sunday at 6 p.m. followed by the title match at 8 p.m.

Kite Holds On To Win Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite got the victory and said it was a step in the right direction toward an undisclosed goal.

Rex Caldwell tied for second — the third week in a row he has had a least a share of the runnerup spot — and said he's already achieved a goal.

"When I first came on Tour, it was my dream to be recognized in any pro shop I went into. Now they recognize me in any grocery store I go into. It's great," Caldwell said Sunday after chasing Kite to the title in the 42nd Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf tournament.

Caldwell, who has yet to win on the PGA Tour, lost in playoffs in the Bob Hope Classic and the Phoenix Open, his two previous starts. He didn't force it to a playoff this time. Kite won outright, by two shots, with a closing 73 in rain and wind and cold that raked the Pebble Beach Links, and a 276 total.

Caldwell also had a 73 over the final 18 and a 278 total. He shared second with Cal Peete, who pitched in for a eagle-2 on the way to a closing 70.

But Kite was the first to note that it could have been different.

"If Rex had made those (birdie) putts on the last two holes, you could have had a very interesting story," Kite said.

But Caldwell missed them and Kite, despite bogeys on three of his last four holes, rode his once-commanding five-shot lead to his fifth PGA Tour triumph, a surprisingly low total for the man who led the 1981 money-winners and has taken the Vardon Trophy for the past two seasons.

"I'm awfully glad to get the win," he said. "This is one you set your sights on, for a couple of reasons; the courses and the fact they always have such a strong field."

"This is a stepping stone, but I have a long way to go to complete my goals for the year."

He declined to name those goals, however.

A year ago, however, in a plane over the Atlantic headed for Great Britain, he spelled them out: "Win, and win consistently. Win in the majors, and win more than once."

The victory was worth $58,500 from the total purse of $325,000 and lifted Kite a couple of notches on the all-time money-winning list. He now has $1,723,715 for a 12-year career and moved past Hall of Famers Billy Casper and Gary Player into the No. 9 spot.

Edwards Named Rookie Of Week

CENTREVILLE, Mass. — The honors keep coming in for East Carolina freshman Johnny Edwards.

Edwards, a 6-5, 210-pounder, was selected Rookie-of-the-Week in the ECAC-South for a fourth time, it was announced this morning.

Edwards, who attended South Mecklenburg High School and Lauringburg Institute, scored 51 points and grabbed 18 rebounds in two games this week. Edwards hit 22 of 39 (56.4%) of his field goal attempts and seven of nine free throws in those two games.

Edwards poured in 26 points and grabbed seven rebounds in ECU's 66-64 win over UNC-Charlotte Monday. Then, Saturday night, Edwards scored 25 points and pulled off 11 rebounds in ECU's 59-58 double-overtime loss to George Mason.

Edwards leads ECU in both scoring (18.4) and rebounding (8.4) and is second in both categories in the league.

The Pirates are 10-10 overall and are last in the ECAC-South with a 1-5 record this year. ECU returns to action Wednesday when the Pirates travel to William & Mary to face the league-leading Indians.

White's Late TD Toss Lifts NFC Past AFC, 20-19

HONOLULU (AP) — The Pro Bowl, showcase for the National Football League's elite, wasn't the most flawlessly played football game ever, but it had its moments.

The most decisive was in the final moment, as Dallas quarterback Danny White and Green Bay wide receiver John Jefferson combined to pull out a 20-19 victory for the National Football Conference on Sunday.

Trailing the AFC most of the game, the NFC marched 65 yards to the winning touchdown, the score coming on an 11-yard pass from Pro Bowl rookie White to Jefferson with 31 seconds left.

Washington's Mark Moseley, who had missed three field goals and had another blocked, kicked the extra point to give the NFC the triumph — but only after his first attempt was wiped out by a penalty against the NFC.

A diving reception by Jefferson on the play before the touchdown kept the NFC's winning drive alive. The NFC had fourth-and-7 at the AFC 25 when the Packers' receiver made a fingertip grab of White's throw for a 14-yard pickup.

On the next play, Jefferson broke open momentarily over the middle and White drilled the ball in for the touchdown.

"It was a little like playing sandlot ball there at the end," said White, who completed 14 of 26 passes for 162 yards while splitting quarterback duties with Washington's Joe Theismann. "We were making up plays in the huddle. On(kourse J.J. Jefferson) made it work."

"The guys really wanted to win," said Jefferson, named the game's most valuable player with San Diego quarterback Dan Fouts of the AFC. "Now we have bragging rights for a year."

Moseley, whose field goal misses could have made him the game's goat, said he wasn't nervous when he lined up for the decisive PAT.

"I would have liked to have had a better day," said the Redskins kicker, who missed from 27, 48 and 49 yards and had a 33-yard attempt blocked. "But all in all, it came out fine in the end."

The NFC victory overshadowed a Pro Bowl record passing performance by Fouts, who completed 17 of 30 throws for 274 yards while sharing the duty with Cincinnati's Ken Anderson. Both Fouts' passing yards and his completions were Pro Bowl records.

Fouts, thinking of the losers' shares of $5,000, half that of the winners, said, "That's a tough way to lose five grand."

Lopez Nails Down 26th Tour Triumph

NORTH MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Nancy Lopez says she had thoughts of Rex Caldwell on her mind as she and Jo Anne Carner moved toward the conclusion of the $150,000 LPGA Elizabeth Arden Golf Classic.

Caldwell, the PGA tour veteran, lost two tournaments last month in sudden-death playoffs, and Lopez said she wasn't looking forward to playing more than the 18 scheduled holes on Sunday.

As it turned out, she didn't have to.

Carner birdied the 15th hole on the 6,122-yard Turnberry Isle Country Club course to pull into a tie with Lopez, but then faltered with a double bogey on No. 17 — clearing the way for Lopez to nail down her 26th tour victory.

"I thought a lot about Rex Caldwell today, about how he lost two playoffs," said Lopez, who finished with a four-day total of 3-under-par 285 and a one-stroke victory. "I didn't want to have to go into a

Vols Roll Past NCSU Women

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee's Mary Ostrowski scored 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the eighth-ranked Lady Volunteers to a 91-78 victory over 15th-ranked North Carolina State.

Tennessee built a 42-35 halftime lead and never let the lead slip under 5 points in the second half Sunday to claim its 17th victory in 21 outings.

North Carolina State, now 14-5, was paced by Linda Page's 29 points.

Karen Morton had 15 points and Paula Towns 14 for the Lady Vols.

playoff. "I looked at the leader board all day," she added. "When Carner and I were tied, I thought, 'Don't make a mistake because whoever makes the mistakes won't win. Play conservatively.'"

Lopez shot a final-round 73 and earned $22,500 to boost her career winnings to $976,660. Carner, who shot a 71 for a 286 total, finished in a four-way tie for second with Betsy King, Pat Bradley and Stephanie Farwig. They each won $9,675.

"I played really well. I hit one bad shot and that was on (No. 17)," said Carner, who missed a chance to climb back into a tie when her 18-foot putt for an eagle came up short on the last hole. "... On 18, I just had to hit straight in. I just didn't hit it hard enough."

Janet Coles, the second- and third-round leader, and Kathy Whitworth were tied at 287, while Donna Caponi, Jan Stephenson and Sandra Spuzich were bunched at 288.

Lopez started the day one shot behind Coles and managed only one birdie. She bogeyed the par 4, 391-yard first hole and the 374-yard, par 4 fifth. She had her only birdie at No. 12, where she dropped a five-foot putt.

"I struggled so much on the front side. I was lucky I was making putts," said Lopez, 26, who now needs nine more victories to qualify for the LPGA Hall of Fame and $23,340 in earnings to become the tour's youngest $1 million winner.

Carner birdied No. 15 to pull into a tie with Lopez, but ran into trouble when her tee shot on No. 17 — a par 3, 132-yard hole — landed in the water.

Coles, who was seeking her second professional victory, shot a 4-over-par 76 with bogeys on No. 4, 6, 10 and 17 where she had a triple bogey during Saturday's third round.

Lewis Sets Indoor Mark

DALLAS (AP) — Herschel Walker, the Heisman Trophy winner and All-American from Georgia, has a track hero and it isn't himself.

He'd like to be just like Carl Lewis, who now owns the world indoor long jump and 60-yard dash records.

"Carl is an outstanding athlete and person on and off the track," said Walker. "He's a super guy with a great personality. I think anybody would like to have a kid just like Carl. He's an example of a winner."

Lewis beat Walker with a world indoor record run of 6.02 seconds in the Dallas Times Herald Invitational Meet Saturday night.

"It's a second world record and I always wanted it, but I was a little surprised since it

Woody Peele

I'd like to give a little tip of the hat to a group of East Carolina fans.

They're doing a good job.

For a number of years, I've served as the official scorer for East Carolina basketball, and in those years, I've heard a lot coming out of the stands, quite a bit of it unprintable on these pages. And some of the places I've covered basketball in would cause some people to wonder what was being taught in these hallowed institutions of higher learning — and lowered vocabularies.

But the group of fans who currently sit behind the scorer's table are a good group. In the games this year, both men's and women's, they've ridden the opponents unmercifully — and 99 percent of the time it's been good, clean fun. They do take exception to some calls by the officials — but that's to be expected, if not supported.

This past Saturday night was no exception as East Carolina battled through two overtimes before finally losing to George Mason, 59-58.

Early on, they got to GMU Coach Joe Harrington — the first coach this year who's been intimidated enough to respond to the crowd. "Sit down, Joe!" they yelled early. "I'll stay up the whole — game if I want to," Harrington responded.

That only served to bring further wrath down on him from the crowd.

Then, at the end of the first overtime, GMU's John Niehoff was fouled and went to the line with two free throws and the scored tied at 56-56.

Harrington turned to the crowd with a smirk on his face. "It's all over!" he yelled to the stands. "It's all over!"

That brought the fans to their feet as they screamed at Niehoff, who promptly missed the first shot. ECU quickly called a time out to let him think — and the fans yell — a little longer.

Niehoff missed again, and ECU picked off the rebound, turning those stands into a frenzy. "It's all over, Joe," they yelled back at the bench.

Harrington didn't reply.

Well, as it turned out, GMU finally did pull it out, but there were no further brags from Harrington along the way.

The fans did it. It's something that hasn't been present at East Carolina in the previous 19 seasons I've been covering here. I hope it keeps up. It's that sixth man that Charlie Harrison wants. I hope it keeps up and spreads not only among the students and fans right behind the scorers' table but all the way around Minges until, perhaps, that intimidation — clean intimidation — will spell the difference in a close game like Saturday night's.

I love it!

Kings Lose 20th Straight In L.A. Forum

By The Associated Press
When you're hot, you're hot, and when you're not, you're the Kansas City Kings.

Especially the Kings when they're in Inglewood, Calif.

"Needless to say, the Lakers were very good," Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said Sunday after the Kings lost for the 20th consecutive time in the Forum, where they haven't won since 1974, dropping a 116-106 National Basketball Association decision to Los Angeles. "In order for the Kings to beat the Lakers, we have to be on a roll. We are not on a roll now."

Well, perhaps they are. After all, they've rolled over in eight of their last nine games.

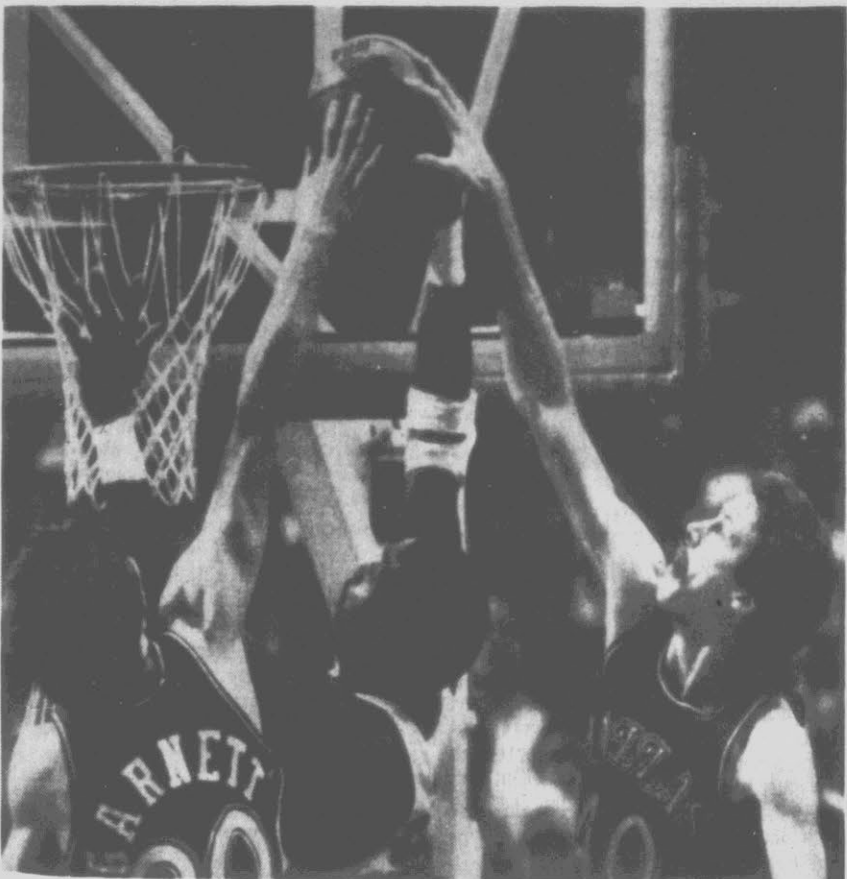

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 18 points to lead a balanced Los Angeles attack against slump-ridden Kansas City. Reserve guard Clay Johnson gave the Lakers a big lift with all 13 of his points in the second quarter as Los Angeles opened a 64-53 halftime lead. Bob McAdoo came off the bench to add 16 points, while Kurt Rambis and James Worthy each had 15.

Hawks 116, Celtics 111

Dominique Wilkins, Dan Roundfield and Eddie Johnson sparked a decisive third-period rally and Atlanta held on to snap Boston's six-game winning streak. The Hawks, who led by as many as 11 points in the first period before falling behind 58-56 at halftime, took an 87-78 lead in the third quarter and built the advantage to 13 in the fourth period before holding a furious Boston charge.

The Celtics, pulled within 110-108 but Quinn Buckner missed two free throws with 28 seconds to go. The Hawks also snapped the Celtics' nine-game winning streak in Boston Garden, disappointing the Celtics' 100th consecutive sellout.

Wilkins scored 10 points and Roundfield and Johnson six apiece in the third period. Johnson and Roundfield topped Atlanta with 22 points, Wilkins had 18, Rory Sparrow 16 and Mike Glenn 15. The Celtics were led by Larry Bird with 29 points and Robert Parish with 21.

"Coming into Boston Garden and winning like this doesn't happen every day," said Hawks Coach Kevin Loughery. "This was probably our best win of the year. We've played inconsistently all season, but we went back to the basics recently. We stayed with that trend today and hung in there. We deserved to win."

76ers 97, SuperSonics 96

At Seattle, Moses Malone scored 24 points and pulled down 20 rebounds, and his layup with 28 seconds left produced the winning points. It was the Sixers' 21st victory in 23 games. Philadelphia lost in Portland Friday night, but has not lost two in a row so far this season. No NBA team has ever avoided two consecutive losses in regular-season action. Reserve guard Fred Brown led the Sonics with 20 points.

Mavericks 112, Blazers 105

At Portland, Mark Aguirre scored a career-high 44 points to pace Dallas to its 10th victory in the last 13 games. Aguirre scored 24 points in the first half as Dallas took a 59-48 lead. The Blazers went ahead 103-100 with 2:13 left but Aguirre hit two consecutive jump shots and Elston Turner made a three-point play with 46 seconds left for a 107-103 lead. Jay Vincent added 21 points and Brad Davis had 19 for Dallas. Jim Paxson led Portland with 25.

Suns 109, Warriors 92

At Oakland, Maurice Lucas scored 25 points and grabbed 20 rebounds as Phoenix beat Golden State. The lead changed hands 15 times in the first quarter before Walter Davis, who finished with 20 points, put the Suns ahead 32-31 with a jumper at the end of the period. They were never behind after that. The Warriors were led by Ron Brewer with 23 points and Joe Barry Carroll with 21.

Bullets 103, Pacers 99

At Landover, Md., Frank Johnson and Rick Mahorn scored 21 points apiece as Washington posted its fifth victory in seven starts following a nine-game losing streak.

McEnroe Finally Beats Lendl In Indoor Finals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "It was about time," sighed John McEnroe after beating Ivan Lendl to win the $375,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships for the second consecutive year.

McEnroe, 23, had lost to Lendl seven straight times before prevailing Sunday 4-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-3 and ending the 22-year-old Czech's indoor winning streak of 66 matches.

The top seed from Douglaston, N.Y., who before Sunday had lost 19 of his last 22 sets against Lendl, said he got a lot of advice on how to play the second-seeded Czech.

"I had to decipher what was meaningful," said McEnroe, who got some tips from, among others, tennis hall of famer Don Budge.

"What it came down to was going back to my roots," McEnroe said. "I decided to come in and volley. That's my game. I figured if I was going to lose, it would be against the way I play best."

McEnroe said this was an important victory for him.

"He was darn tenacious," McEnroe said. "It was a close match. And I think he felt the pressure of his streak."

A practitioner of the art of plain talk, McEnroe commented, "I played better than Ivan and needed to."

His own mistakes made the victory that much tougher to achieve, McEnroe noted. "I missed some easy ground strokes I couldn't believe and put pressure on myself early. But I felt I volleyed pretty good."

Lendl said one reason he lost was his serve, which he felt let him down.

He said he wasn't disturbed by McEnroe's cries and gestures of displeasure on calls throughout the match, noting, "He does that all the time. It was nothing new."

As for the streak, Lendl said simply, "It's over. There'll be another one."

Both players were upset by calls in the second set tiebreaker. Lendl said he kept thinking about one call which particularly upset him.

But McEnroe didn't think Lendl lost because of the tiebreaker.

"He seemed to get worried in the fourth set when my serve began picking up and I got that early break," he said.

Lendl broke McEnroe's service in the fifth game of the opening set and held service to win. Each scored a break in the second set as it went to the tiebreaker, won by McEnroe 9-7 on the fourth set point.

In the third set, McEnroe broke Lendl in the ninth game for a 5-4 lead and then held service to win the set.

McEnroe broke Lendl's serve in the second game of the fourth set and again in the ninth game, when a frustrated Lendl drove over the baseline on the third match point.

McEnroe earned $54,000 for his triumph.

"MY CHICKENS HELPED KEEP ME ON THE FARM"

"When I graduated from North Carolina State two years ago, I wanted to return to the family farm in Leggett. Perdue made that possible. Using a minimum of acreage, I built two Perdue broiler houses to provide a supplementary income to our other farming operations.

But you don't have to be a farmer to take advantage of a Perdue broiler operation. For instance, I know a high school teacher who has three houses. You don't need a degree in agriculture. Perdue will help you all the way.

Many people think that chickens require all of your time; seven days a week, around the clock. But they don't realize the modern technology and equipment that Perdue utilizes. They've made raising chickens a science — with automatic ventilation, feed, water, and alarm system — the house does much of the work. That's the beauty of Perdue. My two houses are providing a steady income and are building equity, all for part-time work.

I would urge anyone interested in getting into farming to look at a Perdue house first as I did. If you want a sure income for years to come, for a few hours work each day, I think you'll find Perdue just what you're looking for."

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing — chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern supermarkets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. Call 1-800-682-8729 or send in the coupon below, and talk chicken with a Perdue representative.

'Mother Lode' Offers Unrealized Potential

What we have here is an old-fashioned melodrama. I'm sorry I can't say it's a good old-fashioned melodrama.

The story of "Mother Lode" is intriguing enough: a young couple, Jean Dupre and Andrea Spalding, go in search of a friend who has disappeared into the wilds of British Columbia in search of the Mother Lode. They encounter a crafty old Scottish prospector, Sila McGee, and (somehow) their search turns into one for gold. Consumed by greed, Dupre becomes convinced McGee has found the Lode, and their confrontation is the climax of the film. Sounds good.

But it doesn't quite come off. A good adventure film needs someone to root for, someone to root against, and an excitement that will keep you on the edge of your seat. This one misses on all three counts.

The protagonist, Jean Dupre (Nick Mancuso), has none of the traditional characteristics of the hero. Instead, he emerges as totally unlikeable: selfish, swaggering, unsympathetic.

The antagonist, Silas McGee (Charlton Heston) is obsessed to the point of near-madness, but is fairly likeable and draws our sympathy.

Result: Confusion. Who are we supposed to root for?

Part of the problem is with the actors: Heston himself said in our interview he didn't really think of McGee as a villain — "After all, it was his mine" — and his usual thorough preparation for a role may have backfired here. In addition, his Scottish accent is so thick and incomprehensible that most of what he says is lost. His dual role cannot really be called such: the part of Ian, Silas' brother, is more of a "cameo" appearance, an enticing red herring that was never developed.

Mancuso fails to deliver any appealing qualities to his character, Dupre; even the touches of humor don't work in his scenes.

Kim Bassinger as Andrea is very pretty, but serves more as window dressing. As with Dupre, her motivations are unclear, and some of her actions suspended my suspension of disbelief.

One saving grace: as the trapper, Elijah, John Marley all but steals the movie, bringing to life every scene in which he appears. The vignette of him and his family is a memorable one.

The other part of the problem is with the screenplay and the direction. The movie would have benefited from more character development; in fact, the premise lends itself more to a study of human nature. But the rule here seems to be "action for action's sake", and if that involves overuse of coincidence, gratuitous shock effects, shallow characterization, and lack of subtlety, then it's too bad.

And it is. The movie has a potential that is unrealized. On the plus side, there are stunning aerial shots, superior cinematography, beautiful scenery, and some exciting action scenes staged by Joe Canutt. On the negative side, the film is marred by melodramatic touches, a hard-to-follow storyline, overdone violence, and unnecessary profanity. It is definitely not a film for younger children, and deserves its PG rating.

Heston directed as well as starred; the attempt seems to have diffused his talent, and both functions suffered. Tighter editing would have helped — the movie was overlong. A little subtlety would have done much to give depth to the characters.

Action/adventure buffs may enjoy "Mother Lode," but for me, the essential fact remains: A good story requires caring — the audience must care about the characters and they must care about each other. These didn't... and neither did I.

Saga Takes Liar Trophy

TERLINGUA, Texas (AP) — The crowd may not have believed Vann Lister's tale about a case of Mexican moonshine that gave him a real lift — right up to the sky — but they liked it well enough to give him the Silver Tongue award.

The tale was tall enough to edge out Richard Sharp's story of cucumbers that migrate to New Mexico.

Four contestants faced five judges and an audience of about 100, swigging beer as they perched on the tailgates of station wagons and pickup trucks backed up to the Chisos Mining Co. store in this West Texas ghost town.

Standing on the store's porch, Lister, a 37-year-old carpenter, spoke for 10 minutes Saturday night about how he bought a dozen bottles of "sokol" — fermented cactus juice — from a Mexican moonshiner to savor during the Christmas holidays.

"I had 12 — that was too heavy," Lister explained. "So I drank one ... which lightened my load."

It also lightened his memory, he said: He forgot where he had stashed the other 11.

Then, a traveling band of schoolteachers happened and asked if they could come in from the cold. Lister lit his fireplace — "and with a flash I remembered where I had hidden the sokol."

To the cheers of the crowd, Lister detailed how his house flew off into the sky, powered by the flaming bottles of cactus juice. "Upon the blast," he said, "they (the teachers) looked reverentially toward the sky. They thought it was the Second Coming."

For his efforts, Lister was given Terlingua's Silver Tongue Award — a plaque depicting a man with an enormous tongue — was named first president of the Silver Tongue Club and was promised a free car wash.

Friends Recall Singer's Ordeal Of Depression

CYPRESS, Calif. (AP) — About 60 mourners paid their last respects to pop singer Karen Carpenter, filing into a memorial chapel during the first night of a public visitation.

Her brother Richard and her parents, Harold and Agnes Carpenter, were visitors at a Sunday night wake for Miss Carpenter at Forest Lawn Memorial Park.

Miss Carpenter, who with her brother won three Grammy Awards and sold 60 million recordings of their easy-listening music, died Friday of congestive heart failure at the age of 32.

Funeral services were set for Tuesday at United Methodist Church in Downey, the Los Angeles suburb where Miss Carpenter spent much

Found Ballet A Willing Slavery

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Reagan, the 24-year-old son of the president, says working in ballet was a "mistake," and he's quitting the dance so he and his wife can settle down and have a family.

"Ballet is much more and much less than I'd imagined as an 18-year-old," says Reagan, who dropped out of Yale University to become a dancer. "I admit my mistake."

Writing in the "My Turn" column in the Feb. 14 issue of Newsweek magazine, Reagan called dancers "willing slaves of an art in which management calls the shots and holds their contracts."

battle with anorexia nervosa. "For a long time, none of us understood why she wasn't eating," Bettis said. "Anorexia nervosa was so new to me that I didn't even know how to pronounce it until 1980."

"From the outside, the solution looks so simple. All a person has to do is eat. So we were constantly trying to shove food at Karen. ... My feeling is that everything came so naturally to Karen — the singing and even the dancing on a TV special — that she felt she was earning her stardom by denying herself food."

The exact cause of death was still under investigation by the Los Angeles County coroner's office.

Friends said Miss Carpenter weighed as little as 85 pounds at one point last year. Her publicist, Paul Bloch, said she had undergone treatment for the disorder and seemed to be recovering.

Herb Alpert, the trumpeter who co-founded A&M Records and signed the Carpenters to the label that issued such hits as "We've Only Just Begun," said Miss Carpenter "bounced into the office last week and said 'Hey, look at me.'"

"She had gained 20 to 25 pounds or so and she was talking about recording again and doing concerts," Alpert said. "She was very positive. She was on the up side again. That's what's doubly sad about all this."

John Bettis, who wrote lyrics for many of the Carpenters' songs, recalled the frustration of the singer's

CRYPTOQUIP 2-7
VWR, SVFTNWTEE EODBMN ENEYTS
DMHTWN BTFFY OFRTH.

Saturday's Cryptoquip — WHY DIDN'T POOR SPICE MERCHANT WASTE THYME?

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals Y.
The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

FOCUS

A Century of American Music

Today is the 100th birthday of James Hubert Blake — better known to music lovers as "Eubie," the last of the great ragtime composers. He was born in Baltimore, the son of ex-slaves. By 1921, he was famous, largely because of his hit Broadway musical, "Shuffle Along," written with partner and lyricist Nobel Sissle. "Shuffle Along," a Broadway landmark, brought new attention to black American music and black performers. In 1978, "Eubie!" — the fourth musical based on Blake's music — premiered. "Eubie!" features Blake's best-known songs, like "I'm Just Wild About Harry." Kennedy Center plans a gala performance entitled "A Century of Music" to celebrate Eubie Blake's personal centennial.

DO YOU KNOW — What great American composer wrote "St. Louis Blues?"

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — Ronald Reagan is the oldest President ever to serve in the White House.

Found Exercise Improved Mind

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke University researchers say a recent study of the relationship between physical activity and mental outlook indicates exercising is good for the mind.

In a study conducted by Duke University Preventive Approach to Cardiovascular Disease, 16 middle-aged, healthy adults agreed to walk or jog 30 to 45 minutes three times a week for 10 weeks.

A comparable group matched by sex, age, education and health status to the Dr. James Blumenthal said 66 percent of the exercise group members claimed their health improved, compared to 16 percent of the control group.

In The Area

Six Person Injured

Six persons were reported injured and an estimated $8,550 damage caused in three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Saturday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 6 a.m. mishap on Fourth Street, 60 feet east of the Hickory Street intersection, where a car driven by James Edward Fairest, D2 Cannon Court collided with a utility pole.

Investigators, who said Faire was thrown from the vehicle and injured, estimated damage at $5,000 to the car and $250 to the pole.

Cars driven by Lyman Lee Cox of Winterville, and Arthur Kennedy Evans III of Route 1, Greenville, collided about 5:43 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 1,000 feet west of Pitt Plaza, causing an estimated $1,000 damage to the Cox car and $1,500 damage to the Evans auto.

Both drivers, as well as a passenger in the Cox car and two passengers in the Evans vehicle were reported injured by police who charged Evans with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cars driven by Rita Marie Babian of 98 Lancaster Drive and James Douglas Tucker of Raleigh, collided about 11:32 p.m. at the intersection of Evans Street and Arlington Boulevard, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Babian car and $500 damage to the Tucker auto.

Arrest Is Made In Break-In

Greenville police arrested Samuel Earl King, 25 of 1715 South Greene St. about 1:45 a.m. Saturday on breaking, entering and larceny charges in connection with a break-in at New York Fashions at 410 Evans Mall.

Chief Glenn Cannon said King allegedly broke a window from the front of the store and took an estimated $200 worth of merchandise.

The chief said officers took King into custody near the intersection of Third and Greene Streets shortly after the incident.

King was placed under a $5,000 bond pending a hearing of the case in court.

Lottery To Be Studied

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A legislative subcommittee has been appointed to study the feasibility of a statewide lottery, which supporters say could boost North Carolina's revenues by $100 million a year.

Resolutions calling for a legislative commission to study the feasibility of a lottery have been sent to House and Senate committees. Senate President Pro Tem Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, Friday appointed a subcommittee to report to the Senate Rules Committee by April 1.

Lawmakers and lobbyists on both sides of the issue agree lotteries have been proven successful in other states.

But opponents say a lottery means gambling and that the people should decide whether to have one in the state.

"Shame on a government that feels it must appeal to people's weaknesses, instead of their strengths, to raise money," said Coy Privette, president of the Christian Action League.

Politicians say their constituents, desiring neither a tax increase or cuts in government programs, are looking with increasing favor on lotteries despite moral misgivings.

Two Babies Abandoned

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — An abandoned infant girl was found in a cardboard box Saturday while another, found in a trash dumpster last September, was placed in her grandparents' custody Friday.

An employee at the Hawthorne Community Center found a girl, believed to be about a week old, wrapped in a white blanket beside the center's front door, said Police Capt. J.D. Price.

The girl was taken to Charlotte Memorial Hospital where she was listed in good condition, Price said.

She will probably be turned over to the city's Child Care Center while investigators try to locate her parents, but if they aren't located, the courts would likely take custody and place the baby in a home, Price said.

Mecklenburg Juvenile Court Judge William Jones said the grandparents of the child found in the dumpster may decide someday to give legal custody to their 17-year-old daughter, now a high school senior.

The mother faces a hearing Tuesday in district court for sentencing on a misdemeanor charge of child abuse. The newborn, wrapped in a plastic trash bag, was found by newspaper carriers at an east Charlotte apartment complex. The mother pleaded guilty Nov. 9 and could be sentenced to two years in prison.

Prefer Trees To A Paved Street

RUBY, S.C. (AP) — The state Highway Department says it's ready to shell out $33,439 for a new sidewalk along Deacon Street, but some residents of this rural community say they'd rather have the trees.

"We just don't need it," according to William Rushing, who says 13 of 16 people who own land along the street have signed a petition against the sidewalk.

"The money needs to be used on filling potholes or paving," Rushing insisted in a recent interview. "Besides, we don't have enough lawn space now, and before long, they'll be cutting down our trees."

Mayor Calvin Gullledge said the town council in this community of 256 people approved the project three years ago because Deacon Street residents said a sidewalk was needed for children's safety.

"I guess it took so long to get it that their kids are out driving instead of playing on the sidewalks," Gullledge quipped.
