OK Absentee Votes In Local Elections

Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council breezed through a four-page agenda Thursday night, taking action on a variety of items that ranged from authorization for absentee balloting in city elections to consideration of rezoning requests.

The board, taking less than an hour to dispense with the long list of business material, voted unanimously to adopt a resolution permitting absentee voting in local elections, including primary or general elections, or referendums.

Mayor Percy Cox said the city had received "a lot of requests" to permit absentee voting and while providing the service will be expensive, he feels it is something that should be offered to the citizens.

Commenting on the suggested additional cost to the city of between $700 and $1,000 for absentee voting, Councilman William Hadden called it an "expensive proposition" but one he considered well worth it for Greenville residents.

City Manager Gail Meeks, in a memorandum to the mayor and council on the matter, pointed out that state Elections Director Alex Brock indicated that Greenville is probably the largest municipality in the state which does not allow absentee ballots.

Mrs. Meeks said the provision of absentee voting will require additional time and recordkeeping on the part of the Pitt Board of Elections staff and will require that the board conduct two meetings each week in the month before the election and four more meetings in the eight days immediately preceeding election day in order to consider and approve ballot applications.

The city manager said the additional cost involves staff time required for elections board recordkeeping and compensation for board members for the required meetings.

Council members voted to continue until the March meeting action on a request by James H. Ward III to rezone two acres, located south of Sedgefield Park Subdivision, Section III, and Pinehurst Drive, north of Greenville Church of God property. west of St. Andrews Drive, and east of Memorial Drive. The petitioners are seeking rezoning from R-15 (residential) to office and institutional.

The board continued the item after John Williams, who resides on St. Andrews Drive, reported that residents of the neighborhood had expressed concern about the Ward proposal but had met with him and reached an agreement on the rezoning, contingent upon a portion of Sedgefield Drive between St. Andrews Drive and Memorial Drive being closed.

Council members voted to adopt a resolution of intent to close the Sedgefield Drive segment and scheduled a public hearing on matter for the March meeting. In continuing the Ward request, the council will be able to consider both the

Following a public hearing during which no opposition was expressed, the board voted to approve a request by Phillip, Joseph, and William Goodson to rezone, from R-6 (residential) to unoffensive industry, .82 acres situated north of 12th Street, south of the Walter Perkins property, west of Clark Street, and east of the William Taft Jr. and Seaboard Coast Line Railroad property.

Approval was given to an ordinance establishing the 1982-83 Small Cities/South Evans grant project budget amounting to $999,500. The budget includes $381,505 for acquisition in the project area, $202,000 for rehabilitation of privately owned dwellings, and $192,972 for relocation assistance.

The council adopted a resolution designating and approving the boundaries of the "Heart of the City" revitalization area. The resolution noted that the Comprehensive Plan Committee

Wholesale Prices Down One Percent

WASHINGTON (AP) - Wholesale prices plummeted a record 1 percent last month, the government said today. Sharpest-ever drops in natural gas and home heating oil costs, plus plunging gasoline prices, led the way.

Food prices also fell, although at a more modest rate. Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called the new report a "striking confirmation of the progress that has been made in reducing the underlying rate of inflation. This is good news and indicates that the administration and the Federal Reserve, working on the same wavelength, achieved these

As for energy prices, which declined a record 4.2 percent overall at wholesale, Labor Department analysts said in releasing today's report that the mild winter was largely responsible for the surprising 2.7 percent fall in natural gas prices and the 9.7 percent drop in home heating oil costs.

Fuel oil costs have also been restrained by the worldwide oil glut, as have gasoline prices, which were off 3.3 percent. The department's energy price calculations actually lag a month behind the rest of the index.

Food prices, as reflected in today's Producer Price Index for finished goods, fell 0.2 percent. Pacing the drop were declines in the wholesale cost of vegetables, fish and poultry.

The new report gave a big boost to economists' predictions that inflation at the wholesale level this year might be as low - or even lower than - the 3.5 percent clip posted for all of

That was the smallest rise since the 3.2 percent of 1971. when wage and price controls were in effect for part of the year. Wholesale prices rose 7.1 percent in 1981.

Besides the oil glut, the lingering recesion and abundant crops have also been credited with improving the inflation

Wholesale prices rose a revised 0.2 percent in December and 0.6 percent in November. All the monthly calculations are adjusted for normal seasonal variations. Not since the wholesale price index was first compiled in 1947 have prices dropped a full 1 percent in one month. If that rate held for 12 straight months, the yearly decline would be 11.9 percent. For the last 12 months, wholesale prices, after seasonal adjustment, rose a scant 2.1 percent, the smallest 12-month rise since the period ending with January 1968.

In reporting its inflation figures, the department bases its compounded annual rate on a more precise calculation of monthly changes than the monthly figure the department

January's declines in energy prices overall, in natural gas costs and in fuel oil prices were the sharpest since those prices were first recorded in 1974. The 2.7 percent drop in natural gas prices compared to a 20.7 percent jump for all of

That gain had been attributed in part to congressional decontrol of new-gas costs. Earlier this winter, congressional investigators said residential natural gas bills have more than doubled since decontrol began in 1978.

In all, the unadjusted Producer Price Index stood at 283.6 in January, meaning that goods costing $10 at wholesale in 1967 would have cost $28.36 last month.

Undecided Yet As To Surgery For Gov. Hunt

By JAMES GOGEK

Associated Press Writer RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) Gov. Jim Hunt's personal physician said no decision yet been made on whether surgery will be needed right away following the governor's acute gall bladder attack Thursday.

Dr. Larry Tyree and staff surgeon Dr. Fred Ng at Wake Medical Center, where Hunt is expected to stay for another day or two, said Thursday they would make a decision on surgery in 48 to Tyree said the governor was still in a little pain when he saw him at 7:30 a.m. this morning, the governor's press aides report. The doctor said Hunt will be sitting up and eating solid food today after being on intravenous fluids Thursday.

Hunt was hospitalized for the gall bladder attack, commonly known as gall stones, after he collapsed while giving a speech at the Holiday Inn North in Raleigh Tyree said Thursday that Hunt was in good condition. He and Ng said they would recommend the gall bladder be removed eventually.

Tyree said it was not unusual that the governor fainted, because of the great pain involved in such an

"The governor is a very brave man," Tyree said, adding that Hunt apparently had continued his day's activities after the severe pain had begun, which resulted in his fainting.

Aides said the governor had complained about stomach pains early Thursday morning before his weekly press conference. His collapse came at a speech after the press conference.

The governor can probably resume his schedule in a week or so if all goes well," Tyree said.

truckers say they're ready to pull their 18-wheelers back onto the highways, others accused strike leaders of caving into the government and said they may ignore the back-to-work call.

We are officially asking independent truckers ... to get back to work as soon as possible," declared Mike Parkhurst, president of the Independent Truckers Association.

In a raucous news conference interrupted by truckers who demanded that the strike continue, Parkhurst announced he was ending the protest after winning assurances from at least 35 congressmen that the truckers complaints would be examined.

But that was far short of Parkhurst's earlier promise that the strike would continue until Congress pulled back the new taxes and fees that truckers say will force many drivers out of business.

Even before the announcement, however, the shutdown that began Jan. 31, was losing steam. Authorities reported a sharp drop in violence in recent days and officials around the country said truck traffic was on the upturn with minimal interruption of commerce.

Parkhurst, the trucking magazine publisher who called the strike, said the informal commitmentby the congressmen to examine the complaints about new truck fees and taxes was the best that could be obtained.

"You have to be realistic," said Parkhurst, whose group claims to represent 30,000 truckers.

But that didn't set well with some truckers who attended Parkhurst's news conference.

Rising for the audience, George Sullivan, head of a rival truckers group, shouted at Parkhurst that many truckers want to continue the strike and that the congressmen's promise is "not worth the paper its written

Sullivan later said his Independent Truckers Unity Committee, which he claims has the support of thousands of independent drivers, plans to hold meetings this weekend to decide whether tocontinue the strike. Other truckers said they were ready to return to work.

"I think we've reached the conclusion that we no longer will be ignored," said Bill Osgerhoudt, a leader of striking drivers in Arizona. John Jarnecke, a trucker in LaCrosse. Ind., said he was prepared to strike longer but that others are "not in that good a position" and need to return to work. Parkhurst was accompanied at the news conference by several congressmen including Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa. who called the letter signed by the congressmen "a commitment of a willingness to listen" to the truckers' problems. It does not bind Congress to any specific ac-

While Parkhurst said he was "more than pleased" at obtaining support from more than 35 congressmen, the number represented less than 9 percent of the House members. Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Finance Committee, rejected any hearings on the truckers complaints about the taxes. Even before Parkhurst's announcement Dole said he considered the strike over.

The federal government estimated that in the early days of the strike as many as 20,000 of the nation's 100,000 independent owner-operators parked their trucks - some because of the protest and others because of fear of violence.

During the strike there were more than 1,700 reports of trucks being damaged, including 560 hit by gunfire. One trucker was killed by gunfire during the first day of the shutdown, and 66 others have been injured. Police have arrested 95 people in connection with the

The truckers' anger stems from sharp increases in truck fees voted in by Congress just before Christmas as part of the 5-cent motor fuel tax increase. The annual highway use fees for the large trucks is to increase from $240 to $1,900 over the next six years with the steepest jump, to $1,600, coming in 1985.

Storm Lashes Eastern Seaboard; Brings Snow

By KIM MILLS Associated Press Writer

A Dixie storm plastered the Eastern Seaboard with more than a foot of snow in places today, closing schools, leaving thousands without power and snarling traffic from North Carolina through Washington to New Jersey.

A pedestrian was killed late Thursday when he stepped into the path of a pickup truck during a heavy snowfall on U.S. 11 in southwest Virginia.

Elsewhere, 35-foot waves in the highest surf in 14 years slammed into Hawaii beaches, forcing 1,000 people to evacuate their homes on Oahu's north shore and injuring six tourists. Thunderstorms and tornadoes rolled through South Florida.

In West Virginia, where up to 16 inches of snow had accumulated in the southeastern part of the state, snow-laden tree limbs falling on power lines knocked out the power to about 22,000 homes and businesses, mostly in the

Business Started To Aid Larger Women

(Doubleday).

By GAY PAULEY UPI Senior Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) Larger Americans are in style and demanding the styles to fit their needs.

No one realizes better than Pat Swift and Maggie Mulhern that not every woman is a size 8. There are a heck of a lot of 16s, 18s on up out there.

Miss Swift built a business on the basis of that fact and her own size as an 18 or 20. Five years ago she quit modeling and established her own agency featuring big, beautiful people, and catering to every facet of fashion advertising and promotion.

Maggie Mulhern was a big girl, and a top talent with Miss Swift's agency. Then, she said, "my metabolism changed. That's what two larger woman's problems with dress, and with selfimage, to write the new "Great Looks, a Full-figured Woman's Guide to Beauty"

Their timing was perfect. Some fashion resources long had recognized special needs of big people. The rest of the world of retailers, manufacturers and advertisers started catching on to the fact there were profits galore in the big person market for both sexes - and that statistics from the government and insurance companies show Americans are growing bigger. Miss Swift established Plus Models Management, Inc.. and now similar agencies are springing up all over the country

Pat Swift, born in Des Moines, grew up in Hempstead, N.Y., and holds a degree n criminal justice from the University of Southern Florida.

She was a store detective in the Garden City, N.Y., branch of Bloomingdale's, the retail chain, when her large-size modeling career materialized.

The Swift-Mulhern book advises the large woman to thumb her nose at relatives, friends, even strangers who comment on her size. Their advice: "Say to yourself, 'Hey, I'm not going to be what you want. I'm going to said. "I can gain 5 pounds just looking at a chocolate sundae.

The Misses Swift and Mulhern have found that many large people go on the defensive; society's attitude does that to them, despite the fact that large women (and men) are far from alone.

They cite government statistics and a private study done by Celanese and the Fashion Group, whose members are in some phase of the industry Of the estimated 65 million large-size people in America, 30 million are women. One of every three women wears a size 16 or larger and 10 million of those women are a size 22 or larger. Miss Swift said the demand for larger men models is on the increase, too. She's added two to her roster one 6-feet-4, the other 6-2.

Her women models range from 5-feet-7 to 5-11, with a few wearing 18-20 size, and some half-sizes to show fashions for the shorter, plumper

"I'm thinking of branching into petites," said Miss Swift. They're another fashionneglected group."

'The key in modeling," said Miss Swift, "are the three Ps - pretty face, personality, and proportionate measurement. Big

Israel Acts Properly

A state commission with the Israel Supreme Court chief justice as its head has concluded that the nation's top military and civilian leaders bore some responsibility for the Palestinian massacre in

The massacre was done by Christian Phalangist militia who passed through Israeli lines.

The removal of Defense Minister Ariel Sharon and three generals was recommended and Prime Minister Menachem Begin, Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and others were criticized.

The report was considered a bombshell in Israel and it could bring down the Begin government.

The committee's report seems appropriate to us. It might have never been made since Prime Minister Begin originally opposed such a commission. Only a public outcry forced him to order the

The Jewish people have suffered attrocities that are unparalleled throughout history, with the acts of Nazi Germany in World War II being the ones that are most remembered at present.

It is not appropriate for a people who have properly denounced attrocities of the past to condone inhuman acts against others today.

The people of Israel have shown their revulsion for the terrible acts committed in Lebanon. The study commission has recommended that strong action be taken and the government seems to be following through. Israel will be a better nation for it.

The successful transplant of genetically mismatched bone marrow in humans has a potential for even greater things.

Doctors accomplished their medical miracle at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center, and they see in it the wider use of bone marrow transplants to cure leukemia, some blood diseases, immune deficiencies and some congenital defects that together afflict about 14,000 people a year.

party-line approach on controversial economic issues and will be careful "not to kick our bipartisan mood. For two years, the president insisted that his program was the only way the nation would pull itself out of an economic slump that became the worst recession since World War II.

WASHINGTON (AP) - President

Reagan seems to have shifted in recent days from emphasizing a bipartisan approach to the nation's economic problems to claiming full credit for the signs

But administration officials say the president has no intention of taking a of economic improvement.

Cut the budget, cut taxes, and the rates of inflation and interest will tumble, prompting business to expand and unemployment to drop, he argued.

But on Jan. 25 — at midterm and two months after the Democrats gained 26 seats in the House — Reagan softened his rhetoric if not his approach.

Citing the efforts of a Republican and Democratic commission to solve the problems of the Social Security system, Reagan said in his State of the Union address: "I hope and pray the bipartisan spirit that guided you in this endeavor will inspire all of us as we face the challenges of the year ahead.'

The president's aides insisted this was more than a friendly gesture to the Democrats he had whipped in 1981 and who suddenly appeared to have an upper

Then came a rash of good economic news bulletins, and the president asked the audience of his weekly radio address last Saturday: "What has happened in those 16 months of Reaganomics'

He answered his own question: "Well, with the help of the Federal Reserve Board, inflation has dropped to only 3.9 percent for all of 1982, the lowest it's been in 10 years. Interest rates are about half of what they were. The effect of that is a 40 percent increase in housing starts. Automobile sales are up, as are all retail sales. Factory orders have begun to increase.

Unemployment dropped 0.4 percent, by one count, and 0.5 percent by the government new count, which considers both the civilian and military workforce.

Bipartisanship may be the approach to take when addressing a joint session of the House and Senate, but with new figures bolstering his argument, Reaganomics - even if the president doesn't care for the shorthand coined to describe his program — started looking mighty good.

"In the weeks ahead there'll be debates as to what course we should follow," the president said in the radio speech.

'The choice that will be offered is to turn away from our economic recovery program and go back to what was being done before," he said, adding in a reference to the rosy ecomomic reports of recent days: "May I point out, all of the good things I've mentioned didn't begin until after our program, Reaganomics, if you will, was put in place. Prior to that everything had been a mess for three years or

Still, said one White House official who spoke under the condition that he would not be identified by name, despite some occasional crowing about the recent signs of progress, "we want everything to look bipartisan. When we do take credit for everything working, we don't want to do it in a terribly partisan tone."

"Our polls have always shown the public does not want confrontation with Congress. They feel a lot better when the president and Congress work together.1

Unavoidable Collision Ahead

WASHINGTON - A new campaign by the Israeli lobby to turn its friends in Congress against President Reagan's peace plan while convincing them that protracted occupation of Lebanon is necessary began on Feb. 4, coinciding with the escalating blasts against the U.S. in Israel by Defense Minister Ariel Sharon Senior aides of about 50 prominent members of the Senate and House from was saying in Israel a few days earlier.

both parties, chosen because of their seats on committees influential in Mideast affairs, listened behind closed doors for two hours to an Israeli government specialist on Lebanon. He explained why Israel may have to keep troops across the border "between five and 10 years" — a situation fatal to Reagan's proposed Israeli-Arab political solution.

That resonated with what Gen. Sharon exploiting incidents in Lebanon between the U.S. Marines and Israeli forces to "tarnish" Israel's reputation. "Israel's will cannot be bent," Sharon declared. The two events point to a seemingly unavoidable collision course between the U.S. and Israel. Such a confrontation surely will be followed by punitive U.S. action against Israel, no matter what Reagan's advisers say publicly. That punishment could be cutting off or reducing U.S. aid but it is not yet decided just what the president will do to ensure an American Mideast policy independent of

The Feb. 4 briefing on Capitol Hill marked the reentry of the American-Israel Public Affairs Commission (AIPAC) into aggressive lobbying in behalf of Israel. A period of unusual quiescence by AIPAC began when its executive director, Thomas A. Dine, publicly applauded Reagan's Mideast peace plan unveiled Sept. 1. Taken in conjunction with Sharon's attacks on the administration, the president's foreign policy advisers regard the renewal of operations on the Hill by Dine as bad news

In the opinion of one congressional insider who attended the Feb. 4 briefing, AIPAC "never moves" without testing the water in Israel. Thus, Dine's reemergence reinforces white House concern that Sharon and Prime Minister Menachem Begin will not make life easy for Reagan in the crucial weeks just for Reagan.

The president himself had been coming to that conclusion, with rising anger. When Reagan heard about the first checkpoint incident between Israel and the Marines, he told aides that the Israelis must have threatened the Marines intentionally - "like they did with the Liber-

Strength For Today

All of us, at one time or another, have come in contact with braggarts who make much of whatever success they have had in life, no matter how little it is, and deride everyone who has criticised them or not acknowledged their eminence.

In order to succeed, one has to have self-confidence; but the people who think that this consists in throwing their weight around and treating with contempt everyone who disagrees with them, will soon find themselves alone and friendless.

All knowledge begins in the capacity for self-criticism. Nothing is so productive of real values in our lives as to be able to stand off and take a good look at ourselves. The old statement about seeing ourselves as others see us has been worked thin and smooth by much use, but it still remains one of life's essential truths. If we can look, and see, and evaluate; and do something on the basis of what we have learned, we have really started toward success.

Public Forum

I, along with many other citizens of Pitt and Greene counties, enthusiastically endorse the selection of Walter B. Jones Jr. as the Democrat to fill the legislative seat left vacant by the death of the late Rep. Sam D. Bundy.

Throughout his adult life, Mr. Jones Jr. has been active in politics at the local, county, state and national levels. He was a salaried employee in Governor Jim Hunt's initial campaign for governor of North Carolina, and from 1977-1980 he served as a full-time salaried representative of the governor's office for the entire eastern section of our state.

In 1976 Mr. Jones Jr. served as a salaried member of President Jimmy Carter's original North Carolina Presidential Campaign Committee. According to a written memo from one of President Carter's campaign coordinators, "Walter B. Jones Jr. was the essential ingredient to President Carter's success in the First District of North Carolina."

Mr. Jones Jr. has worked in the North Carolina General Assembly as a full-time legislative assistant and, in his college days,, he was elected president of the North Carolina State Young Democrats

Club. He currently serves as Farmville precinct chairman for the Democratic

In a Feb. 2, 1983, editorial in your newspaper, you criticized the selection of Mr. Jones Jr., using phrases such as "shoddy use of the democratic process" and "political nepotism at its worst." However, the public, not the editors of The Daily Reflector, will ultimately be the judge of the propriety of this appointment. Congressman Walter B. Jones has served the First District of North Carolina well and should be applauded for his efforts on our behalf. And, while the editors of your newspaper sit and hold their noses. I stand and applaud the selection of his son as our new legislative representative.

Walter B. Jones Jr. has the experience, initiative, energy and desire to be an excellent representative of the people of Pitt and Greene counties. He deserves our congratulations and, above all, he deserves the chance to prove that he can get the job done. J.Y. Monk III

In A Boat, You've Got To Be 'Down And Gone' Drunk

RALEIGH - It is a hot summer Saturday at the B. Everett Jordan Lake in Chatham County. It seems that half of the population of the Triangle has decided to escape the heat and lounge on the newly opened beaches there. Hundreds of others are in motorboats that race across the reservoir.

In these crowded conditions, Jordan, and many other lakes in North Carolina, may be a lot more dangerous than you'd think. The danger comes from that 18-foot motorboat you see skimming the waves. The guy driving it is flat out

The attention which the drunken driving package has received in the General Assembly this year has prompted two western senators to begin thinking about drunken boating. There are 180,000 registered boats 28 feet and shorter in North Carolina. Most of them are probably motorboats. The two senators, Bill Redman, R-Iredell, and Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, say they've seen too many of those boats being driven by drunks. They're considering a bipartisan piece of legislation to help the state Wildlife Commission stop it.

At a recent meeting of the Senate Committee of Natural Resources, western senators reported that many wildlife officers are very concerned about drunken boaters. On these crowded lakes, drunken boaters often cut in front of other boats, swamp smaller boats and endanger water skiers.

Yet there's little you can do to stop these people. Hipps, a Waynesville lawyer, says state law concerning drunken boating is very hard to enforce. The legal test for a drunken boater is not the same as for a drunken automobile driver. You can't convict someone for operating a boat while under the influene of alcohol. You must convict him of being intoxicated. The difference, in legal cirles, is enormous.

A drunken driver can be convicted for blowing a .010 on a Breathalyzer. But, you can't submit Breathalyzer results into evidence when trying a drunken boater. Even if you could, under current state law, the conviction mark would probably be much higher than .010. In drunken boating cases, Hipps explains, you must prove through an officer's observations that the boater was intoxicated. And the courts have interpreted that test to mean that the boater must by really blasted. No convictions for just being onver the line. The man must be down and gone. A wildlife official in Raleigh said that only four boaters were convicted of boating while intoxicated during 1982. Anyone who's been on the water lately knows there's a lot more drunks out there than that. The wildlife official said it is "practically impossible" to convict someone under current laws. Although he didn't check the files of the four convicted, he said they were probably cases in which an accident occurred. Otherwise, they wouldn't have been

Redman says he's working with the Wildlife Commission and planning legislation that he'll introduce later on in the

Both senators said a new drunk boating act should impose the same standards for boating that we have for driving. That is, boating under the influence of alcohol should be prohibited. The boater shouldn't be allowed to be on the water when he's drinking heavily. Breathalyzers should be available to wildlife officers and their results should be admissable in court. Penalties for drunken boating should be brought into line with those for driving under the Redman says he asked sponsors of the proposed Safe Roads Act to add a section on boating. It was decided that might 'muddy the waters' for the drunk driving bill. So, Redman says he'll have to come up with a seperate piece of legislaion and he'll call it the Safe Waterways Act.

India Bandit Queen Said In Custody

Associated Press Writer NEW DELHI, India (AP)

A bandit queen who gunned down 20 men to avenge her lover's death was reportedly in custody today after eluding police in the twisted ravines and jungles of central India for more than two years.

PHOOLAN DEVI

A formal surrender ceremony for Phoolan Devi, described as an illiterate with a pock-marked complexion and close cropped hair, was set for Saturday, authorities said.

Phoolan was born to a family of boatmen 27 years ago. She reportedly was wed by the age of 12 to an older farmer who beat her, fled back to her family which scorned her for leaving her husband, then grew up a notorious criminal

She is wanted for about 70 murders, armed robberies and kidnappings.

Press reports said Phoolan° planned to turn herself in because she feared police forces from the neighboring states of Uttar Pradesh and Madhya Pradesh were closing in on her.

Authorities originally said the female outlaw would give herself up today, but they announced that her scheduled surrender had been postponed 24 hours until Saturday without giving any reason for the delay.

The United News of India reported that the gang leader, accompanied by five male followers, emerged from hiding Thursday near Jakmoli village of Bindh district in Madhya Pradesh and contacted police.

The group was taken to another village at her request for a Hindu religious ceremony before the formal surrender at the local college campus at Bindh, 180 miles southeast of here, the agency

She has been in police custody since then, the United News of India said.

Police Deputy Inspector Gen. M.D. Sharma had told The Associated Press by telephone from Bind Thursday that except for a few details, the surrender ceremony was certain for today. He declined to elabo-Phoolan, described as a short, stout woman who usually wears blue jeans, became the area's most feared desperado in 1981 when she and her gang massacred 20 men in the Uttar Pradesh village of Behmai. She claimed the village was harboring two landlords who reportedly trapped and raped her after killing her lover, Vikram Mallah, on Aug. 13, 1980.

Police from the two states clashed over the bandit queen this week, with authorities of Uttar Pradesh arresting six police from Bhind and accusing them of kidnapping relatives of Phoolan and her current lover. Man Singh.

Apparently the surrender terms included giving Phoolan's relatives police protection in Madhya Pradesh. Phoolan reportedly put out feelers about her surrender in Madhya Pradesh because of its easy surrender terms compared with Uttar Pradesh, where police are known for a "dead men tell no tales" shoot-to-kill policy against outlaws.

Local officials said in a statement that the chief minister of Madhya Pradesh, Arjun Singh, would personally accept Phoolan's surrender on a specially built rostrum at the college. Some members of her gang were expected to accompany her and local police said they were negotiating with another outlaw leader, known only as Rhanshyam, to give himself up as well.

FDA Says Sweetener At Raleigh Store Poisoned

He said chemists asked the Bureau of Foods in Washington for a methodology to test for degradation, which it received Jan. 25.

"When we opened the sample on the 26th, we realized we were dealing with with a tampered product, not simple decomposition," he said. "We had no reason to suspect that it was as toxic as sodium fluoride."

Chemists thought it might be an organic product, such as strychnine. Spectroscopic, physical and chemical tests ruled that out, and by Feb. 2, they "suspected strongly" the chemical was sodium fluoride, Bellman said.

"Not until the beginning of this week did we realize it was very dangerous," he said. "It's a detective operation ... a complicated analytical scheme. The vast majority of complaints we get are nothing.

Bellman said the lab was testing another tampered sample of Equal from Knoxville, Tenn. "It does not appear to be the same type of thing," he said.

Equal is produced by Searle Phameceuticals, Inc. in Chicago. The contaminated boxes carried the serial number 2E03P. Richard McGraw, vice

But Zachary finally got tired of waiting for me to be a dutiful mother. Last Saturday he announced that he was not only ready but eager for training

'Wouldn't you rather wait a few more years?"

"No," he said. "I don't like diapers no more.

With the greatest re-luctance I cleaned up the potty chair and dragged out a stack of training pants. "All right," I told him with a lot more bravado than confidence, "this is it. I don't intend to change any more pants. If you're big enough to wear these pants, then you're big enough to keep them

Then Phillip and I sat down to await the deluge.

It didn't come. All Saturday he stayed dry. I was in "It can't be this I told Phillip, "not after all the terror I've felt at the prospect. Something has to go wrong.

And it did. By Sunday the novelty had worn off. Whether he had tired of interrupting his play or was bored with the literature we had thoughtfully placed beside his plastic throne, I don't know, but he an-nounced at the breakfast table that he preferred his diapers to training pants

I was all to ready to acquiesce. But Phillip pointed out that, if I did, I might be sending him to college in monogrammed Luv's. So'I held my ground.

And Zachary held his. Within minutes after he donned his training pants, he wet them.

"Go to the bathroom and change them," I said. He plastered his chin with his lower lip. "No. I was firm. "Yes. No one likes to be around a wet boy. When you have on dry pants you can come out.

He came out anyway. 'Stay in the bathroom," I said as I ushered him back He did not.

I was finally reduced to holding the door closed. He kicked and screamed and begged for his mommy. Then he crawled up in the sink and turned on the water.

NASA Finds Another Leak

(AP) — The space agency is facing another delay in the launch of its troubled new shuttle, unless technicians can show that a replacement engine is not defective.

A management conference concluded Thursday that two days of tests indicated a leak in the liquid oxygen heat exchanger of the $30 million engine, brought here to replace the cracked No. 1 engine on the spaceship

Testing was to continue for another day or two, but senior officials were already mulling over two options bringing in another new engine or using one from the first space shuttle. Columbia. Either way, it would mean that an early March target launch date would have to be set back another week or two, officials said.

"Unless something else shows up, we will have to take one of those two options," said spokesman Jim Ball at Kennedy Space Center. "We do feel we've got a probable leak.

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) - The government has given a Soviet diplomat two weeks to leave Denmark, accusing him of spying for Moscow by gathering technological data from manufacturers of military equipment.

The Foreign Ministry identified the official as Yevgeni L. Motorov, a science attache at the Soviet Embassy

Foreign Ministry spokesmen said ministry official Eigil Joergensen summoned Soviet Ambassador Nikolai Egaritgchev to his office Thursday and told him Motorov had "engaged in illegal espionage during his posting in Denmark' Joergensen specifically accused Motorov of collecting military-related technological information, the spokesman said

That's what Huron School Superintendent Jeffrey Weaver learned with an experiment that gave high school students with perfect attendance the option of skipping semester exams.

Attendance did improve under the experiment, which began in September, but parents and some teachers complained that students went to school even when sick so they wouldn't have to take exams.

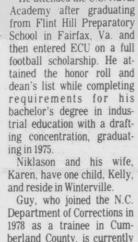

And local physicians complained to Weaver that students were reluctant to miss school for doctor and dentist appointments because of the

Under the experimental policy, students with perfect attendance in any class could skip the exam for that class as long as they were passing. A student with perfect attendance could take an exam to raise a grade. Semester exams make up 20 percent of a student's final grade.

The experiment was ended Wednesday by a unanimous vote of the Huron Board of Education

Average attendance at the school last year was 96.4 percent. "We thought we could make a good thing better," Weaver said. During the experiment, attendance went up to 97.5 percent.

Facts About The JOHN LEHTI

JETHRO'S FORESIGHT!

WHEN JETHRO, MOSES' FATHER-IN-LAW, WAS VISITING THE CAMP OF THE ISRAELITES HE CAUTIONED MOSES WITH A BIT OF ADVICE. AND BECAUSE OF HIS ADVICE PEOPLE EVEN TODAY DELEGATE AUTHORITY IN A LIKE MANNER. WHAT JETHRO SAW, THAT CAUSED HIM CONCERN, WAS THE FACT THAT MOSES SPENT FROM MORNING TILL NIGHT LISTENING TO THE TROUBLES OF HIS FOLLOWERS AND STRAIGHTENING OUT SQUABBLES AMONG FAMILIES, ETC., TO THE EXTENT THAT MORE IMPORTANT NEEDS WERE NEGLECTED. HE RECOMMENDED ASSIGNING MEN TO SPECIFIC DUTIES TO RELIEVE MOSES OF PETTY DETAILS. "...MEN OF TRUTH...TO BE RULERS OF THOUSANDS, AND RULERS OF HUNDREDS, RULERS OF FIFTIES, AND RULERS OF TENS: AND LET THEM JUDGE THE PEOPLE AT ALL SEASONS..." (EXODUS 18:21,22) AND TO THIS DAY JETHRO'S ADVICE IS POTENTLY PRACTICAL!

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer The flak still is flying thickly, and from many quarters, about recent criticisms of interdenominational church councils by articles in the Reader's Digest and on the CBS show "60 Minutes."

The magazine and TV show examined the National Council of Churches, a cooperative organization of most major Protestant and Orthodox denominations, and the World Council of Churches, a counterpart on the international level.

The articles and the TV show singled out aspects of each organization that portrayed them as supporting leftist or pro-Marxist ideologues. That's what ignited the denials and counterclaims.

Strong protests have come from a succession of church leaders, in one case by top officials of 23 Protestant denominations, calling the charges slanted, sensationalized and misleading.

Reaction from the pews also has been hot and heavy. "It's the biggest mail campaign I've ever seen," says Don Hewitt, executive producer of "60 Minutes." He says some of the letters, accusing the program of "McCarthyism" and "a poisoned message," were quoted on a subsequent "60 Minutes.'

Others defending the "60 Minutes" segment - "The Gospel Accoring to Whom?" "are beginning to come in," Hewitt says. More than two weeks after the showing of that segment, Hewitt says, "I think we're going to put this thing to bed now.

Morley Safer, the moderator and on-camera interviewer for the segment, says he "stands on what it said."

Leaders of five denominations demanded air time from CBS under the Federal Communications Commission fairness doctrine to reply to the show's content They charged "errors and exaggerations" have raised doubts among members that could do "irreparable damage" to the churches.

The National Council has issued two lengthy rebuttals while the writer of "Do You Know Where Your Church Offerings Go?" in the January 1983 edition of Reader's Digest, Rael Jean Isaac, has issued her own seven-page rebuttal to the rebuttals.

Resolutions By Record Number

NEW YORK (AP) - A record number of religious organizations - 115 of them have filed shareholder resolutions asking 19 major U.S. corporations to reconsider their activities related to nuclear and chemical weapons. The Roman CAtholic and Protestant agencies, acting through the Inferfaith Center on Corporate Responsibility of the National Council of Churches, hold more than 850,000 shares worth about $42.2 million in the companies

"This is the largest number of church-related agencies ever to sponsor resolutions on any one issue," says Valerie Heinonen, director of the center's militarism program. She attibuted the broad concern to "the moral imperative" of halting the arms

That article and another that appeared in August 1982, 'Karl Marx or Jesus Christ?" by Joseph Harris, were "meticulously researched and we stand by everything" in them, says Charles Pintchman of the Digest, but he declined comment on specific objections raised. Some of the allegations raised by the magazine articles and the TV show are old, while others are about relatively recent but minor activities Much of the broadcast and magazine criticism focused on the World Council's Fund to Combat Racism, which has made grants specified for humanitarian purposes to black groups that were formerly guerrilla organizations, such as those whose leaders now are the elected administration of Zimbabwe (formerly Rhodesia).

However, the World Council points out that denominational allocations cannot be used by that fund which is made up only of gifts specifically designated for it, largely by West European governments.

Meanwhile, Epworth-by-the-Sea, Ga., 133 district superintendents of Southeastern jurisdiction of the United Methodist Church called on its bishops to appoint a blue-ribbon panel to examine the allegations.

The superintendents said in their resolution that they "affirm the worldwide ministry" and work of the national and world church councils, but need clarification to cope with the resentment stirred among members.

The religious press was loaded with the controversy articles, letters and editorials, mostly chiding CBS and the Digest for their handling of the material.

Headquarters of some denominations, including the Episcopal Church and the United Methodist Church, turned out special reports for inquiring members about their role in the councils and challenging attacks on them.

Also getting prominently into the act was a recently formed group called the Institute for Religion and Democracy, run by a board of about 30, which accuses the mainline churches of leftist. pro-Marxist tendencies. Its charges were featured both by the TV show and the magazine articles.

The National Council of Churches and the World Council of Churches carry on a host of projects and programs, ranging from joint missionary work and food for the hungry to producing Christian literature and Bibles.

Policies and programs of the councils are determined by boards representing member denominations and elected by those denominations, including 32 in this country with about 40 million members and 301 in the World Council with 400 million members.

An average of about 80 percent of their contributions stay in local congregational budgets. The rest of the money goes mostly to regional and national denominational operations. From U.S. churches, only twotenths of 1 percent goes to the National Council, it reports, and a tinier fraction to the World Council.

Heels Pull Off Miracle Rally, 64-63

On The Move

Virginia's Othell Wilson (11) tries to drive on North Carolina's Jim Braddock (24) during first half action in Thursday night's ACC game being played at Carmichael Auditorium in Chapel Hill. Carolina rallied for a 63-62 victory in the game. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press With nine minutes left and his team trailing third-ranked Virginia 56-40, North Carolina Coach Dean Smith figured there was little need for him to start diagramming plays for his top-ranked Tar Heels. Instead, he relied on his team's determination and some more heroics from sophomore Michael Jordan to pull out a 64-63 come-from-behind victory over the Cavaliers.

Jordan, whose late jumper against Georgetown led the Tar Heels to the national championship last season, tapped in a Jim Braddock miss with 1:07 left. He then converted a steal into a dunk with 52 seconds left to lead North Carolina to its 18th straight victory, an 8-0 Atlantic Coast Conference mark and a 21-3 record

"This wasn't a game of strategy," Smith said. "The players just decided to go out

Craig Robinson, whose 16 points led the Cavaliers, sparked a 17-0 spree that lifted Virginia from a 28-25 deficit late in the first half to a 42-28 lead with 17 minutes left. His jumper at the 9:45 mark opened the 16-point gap that looked insurmountable.

"At the nine-minute mark, we said forget any special defense," said Smith. "Treat Sampson like he was anybody else and let's go at them. Our defense was aggressive.

"Settle down, keep your poise, don't let it be a runaway game," Jordan said were his thoughts as the Tar Heels stared at the deficit.

Virginia opted for a semi-into a deep freeze which saw them score nine points in the last 10 minutes.

'We got too laid back. We didn't attack them," said 7-foot-4 center Ralph Sampson, who added 15 points. "We didn't take the ball at them. We had a few mistakes and they eased back into the game.

A 9-2 North Carolina spurt cut the Virginia lead to 58-51 with 6:25 left. Braddock had five of those points on a layup and a three-point field goal After falling back by 63-53 on Jim Miller's three-point play, North Carolina ran off seven unanswered points and trailed only 63-60 with 2:54 left.

Sampson missed the front end of a bonus with 1:20 left and Sam Perkins grabbed the rebound for the Tar Heels. After Braddock missed a three-point attempt, Jordan sneaked inside for the tap with 1:07 left Rick Carlisle then started up the floor, only to have Jordan pick his pocket for the game-winning basket. Once again, the Wilmington, N.C., native was the hero.

"It's just opportunity." Jordan said. "I don't know why it keeps happening to me, but I guess that's the way

Braddock finished with 14 points, while Matt Doherty had 11 and Perkins added 10.

Actually, Thursday night's game was one that the Tar Heels had every right to lose. They trailed the Cavaliers by as many as 16 points, 56-40, late in the second half and Coach Dean Smith had very few positive thoughts at that "I thought it was a real possibility we might lose tonight," Smith said. "We were very fortunate to win."

Sampson said earlier that he'd intended to come away from Chapel Hill a victor Instead, the 7-foot-4 senior lost for the third time in Chapel Hill and for the sixth time in 10 games against North Caro-

"It's another loss in our loss column," Sampson said. "It hurts, but we're going back, look at the game and see what we did wrong. Hopefully, we'll get them again in Atlanta (at the ACC tournament).'

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 2 Nevada-Las Vegas whipped the University of Pacific 79-62; No. 4 Indiana edged No. 19 Minnesota 63-59; No. 5 UCLA turned back Oregon 67-56; Creighton upset No. 17 Illinois State 53-41 and 20thranked Iowa whipped No. 18

Top Ten Sidney Green scored 34 ond-half surge that paced tant. Nevada-Las Vegas over the University of Pacific. It was the Rebels' 21st consecutive victory of an unbeaten season.

Although the Rebels led 42-39 at the half, UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian said he was embarrassed the lead was so narrow because Pacific played shorthanded with only eight players due to academic problems.

"Obviously we played a lot better in the second half, but that's because we went to Sid a lot," he said.

Pacific Coach Tom O'Neill: 'We were able to generate good shots in both halves, but they didn't go down in the second half, and I think a lot of that was caused by fa-

Indiana's Ted Kitchel scored 26 points, including two crucial free throws in the final minute, to lead the Hoosiers over Minnesota. The victory gave Indiana, 8-2 in the Big Ten and 18-2 overall, a twogame lead in conference play. Minnesota Coach Jim Dutcher thought that might be impor-

"With their (Indiana's) schedule, if they don't sustain an injury, they'll be tough to catch. Not impossible, but real tough," Dutcher said.

Michael Holton and Darren Daye triggered a second-half rally that propelled UCLA over Oregon. The Bruins trailed 41-34 with 14:09 left. But they outscored the Ducks 20-4 over the next 101/2 minutes to take command. Second Ten

Benoit Benjamin and Gregory Brandon had 14 points each to lead Creighton over Illinois State.

"I'm very proud of the great play of (Mark) Jones and (Vernon) Moore," Creighton Coach Willis Reed said of his guards. "We weren't making our outside shots so they played smart ball and helped us get the ball inside. I felt we had to win on the inside and we beat them there.

Greg Stokes had 18 points and 10 rebounds to lead Iowa over Purdue.

Pirates Seek Revenge Against Baptist Five

East Carolina University's Pirates will be out for a little revenge Saturday night when they travel to Charleston, S.C., to face Baptist College.

The Buccaneers pulled off a 64-56 victory over East Carolina as the Pirates lost their third straight game after the loss of Charles Green to a dislocated shoulder.

Now, the Pirates are riding another two-game losing streak and Baptist has the chance to hand them only their second three-loss string with another victory. That win back in January, by the way, was the only one for Baptist in seven meetings between the two schools.

East Carolina comes into the game with a 10-11 record following back-to-back ECAC-South losses to George Mason and William & Mary, the former in double overtime in Minges Coliseum, 59-58. William & Mary took a 70-64 win Wednesday at W&M Hall.

Baptist is 10-10 with a game tonight against Georgia State. Their latest outing was Wednesday when they romped to a 106-73 win over South Carolina

In the opening game be-tween the two, East Carolina shot its worst field goal percentage of the year, 35.6

Johnny Edwards led the Pirate scoring with 18 points smart basketball," Coach and also had ten rebounds. Barry Wright added 17 points and five rebounds.

Jack Avent, a 6-5, 210-pound senior center and Marcus Beasley, a 5-11, 150-pound sophomre guard, led Baptist with ten points each.

Oddly enough following that game, the Pirates won four of their next five before bowing in their last two outings. Baptist lost five in a row before snapping that against College of Charleston on February 2. They've now won two of their last three.

Reggie Walker, a 6-4, 175pound senior swing man, leads the Baptist scoring with a 13.5 average, while Avent is hitting 11.6 per game. John Battle, a 6-8, 205-pound junior forward, is hitting 8.5 points and pulling on the road for the Pirates, who have only an ECAC league game with James Madison left on their road schedule before the conference tournament in Richmond starting March 10.

They return home on Wednesday hosting Richmond in a league game, and have three other home contests to wind up the season. Those are with Navy, UNC-Wilmington and Penn State-Behrend.

The leading rebounders are Nealy at 7.5 and Gumbert at all kinds of adversity,' East Carolina's Mary Denkler comes into the field with the leading scoring average. The 6-0 senior foward is hitting 21.2 points a game, and pulling 6.7 rebounds.

However, in recent games, 6-2 sophomore center Darlene Chaney has come on strong. She's had four straight double figure games in both scoring and rebounding, including 12 points and 13 rebounds against taller and nationally ranked Old Dominion. Chanev is currently averaging 9.5 points and 8.2 rebounds.

The other starters on the Lady Pirate roster are 5-8 freshman forward Sylvia Bragg, 7.5 points per game; 5-8 senior guard Fran Hooks, 4.7; and 5-6 senior guard Caren Truske, 2.9.

The biggest problem facing the Lady Pirates is depth. There are only eight players on the team, and one of them only recently joined the injury-plagued teams, playing only briefly in one game. The Pirates miss two former opened a 98-80 lead. Clippers 101, Suns 100 At San Diego, Michael Brooks' free throw with 11 seconds left gave San Diego a dramatic come-from-behind victory With the game tied at 100, the Clippers missed three shots before Brooks was fouled by Larry Nance. San Diego trailed 90-78 with 10:30 left before Brooks and a stifling defense shut down the Suns with only two field goals and 10 points the rest of the way. Terry Cummings had 26 points and 15 rebounds to lead the Clippers.

SuperSonics 105, Jazz 99 At Salt Lake City, Jack Sikma scored 31 points and pulled down 25 rebounds as Seattle snapped a three-game losing streak and handed Utah its ninth consecutive setback. Seattle, which trailed most of the game, first pulled ahead 86-85 with 9:40 to play on Mark Radford's jumper. After Utah briefly regained the lead 89-88, Sikma knotted the score at 90-all and Seattle took control of the game. The Sonics' biggest lead came late at 103-95 after two Sikma free throws.

Teen-Age Boy Shoots Himself As Dad Confiscates Television Set

OAKLEY, Calif. (AP) - "I can't stand another day of school and especially another minute without television," the scribbled note said.

It was found next to the body of Genaro Garcia, a lonely, overweight 13-yearold who shot himself with his father's revolver rather than give up the safe world of television for a troubled life at a new school, his family

'I know I've been a lot of trouble and I'm sorry," the youth wrote in the note, which was translated and read to his Spanish-speaking parents by a coroner's investigator.

"Please tell my classmates what happened and watch if they are sad or if they laugh. But that's obvious. I never really had any friends.

The boy left the note and killed himself with a single shot to the head on Jan. 26, according to a Contra Costa County coroner's report.

Genaro shot himself just hours after his father had removed the television from his son's room, according to family members interviewed by the San Francisco Exam-Genaro Garcia Sr. recalled telling his son to quit complaining about imaginary ailments and go back to school if he wanted the television back. Garcia said his son was concerned about his appearance — the youngster was 5-foot-6 and weighed 225 pounds.

Before enrolling at his new school after the family moved to Northern California three months ago, Genaro sent his father to see whether students were required to shower together after physical education classes. They were.

GENARO GARCIA Jr.

After that, Garcia said, the boy complained of aches in his back and legs and said he couldn't go to school.

Genaro shut himself in his room, not letting anyone in without permission. He would watch TV, play video games or read.

"I'd say 'What are your problems?' and he'd say, 'I don't have any problems,' Garcia said.

His father, an unemployed ianitor who moved his family north from Southern California three months ago at the invitation of a relative, prized a good education for Genaro and his three other children, Maria, 12, David, 10, and 6-year-old Nancy.

Ironically, he had presented the TV to his son as a reward for earning almost an A average at his previous school in Los Angeles County

PHOTO WINNER

"I used to tell him, 'Mi hijo (my son), I want A's, and I will buy you this and that," said Garcia. "Then he'd get those grades.

Although his teachers described him as a bright, capable student, the Examiner said, Genaro detested going to his new school, Edna Hill Intermediate School in the community of Brentwood, east of San Francisco.

The family has had hard times lately - Garcia couldn't find a job, the family went on welfare and moved out of his relative's house to a small trailer on a dirt lot. But Garcia doesn't believe poverty played any part his son's suicide.

"We were always poor," said Garcia. "I was always a poor kid ... even now I'm depending on help. But we've always worked for everything we had. We've even peddled oranges.

Genaro's handwritten will, found by his father and mother, Gregoria, left his family the possessions he had most cherished.

"Last will: To whole family. I leave my stereo to Maria, I leave my Atari games to David and Nancy and I leave everything to my

Tentatively OK Dram Shop Bill

Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - A dram shop statute closely resembling the one proposed by Gov. Jim Hunt has cleared an initial hurdle but still has a long way to go before becoming law.

A state Senate subcommittee tentatively agreed Thursday on a compromise version of the statute, the most controversial portion of Gov. Jim Hunt's legislative crackdown on drunken driv-

However, the subcommittee scheduled another meeting for next Tuesday and indicated it might make changes before submitting its version to the full Senate Judiciary III committee.

"We're on our way," said Sen. Tony Rand, D-Cumberland. "It seems to me that what we've done is necessary if the bill is to have the effect it's intended to have.

As originally submitted, the Hunt bill proposed making any restaurant, tavern, store or other establishment liable to civil lawsuits if they sell to minors or to already drunken customers who later cause traffic accidents. The liability would apply equally regardless of where the beverages are consumed.

The amended version, hammered out by lawmakers and Hunt administration officials earlier this week. would retain liability in all cases involving sales to minors. There also would be liability for sales to those already intoxicated - but only if they do their drinking on the premises.

In another major change, the compromise statute would shift burden of proof of negligence from the defendant to the plaintiff, or from the dealer to the person suing

Over An Inch Of Rainfal

Over an inch of rain pelted Pitt County Thursday night and early today as a winter storm that dumped six inches of snow in the North Carolina mountains and four inches in the Piedmont moved through the area.

Greenville Utilities' weather station recorded 1.11 inches of precipitation from 8 a.m. Thursday through 8 a.m. today. Rain continued to fall this morning.

The downfall pumped the level of the Tar River up nearly a foot during the night. According to GUC, the river stood at 9.7 feet on the National Weather Servcie Gauge at 8 a.m. Thursday but by 8 a.m. today measured 10.2 feet.

Greenville Public Works Director Mayo Allen said his department had not received any complaints about flooding. "We had no calls this morning concerning any problems," he said. "We've got crews out looking as usual and checking catch basins to make sure they're clear, but (there's) nothing

Allen said most of the inch of rain was "running off."

"The ground is so wet it can't soak in," he said.

The temperature at 8 a.m. today was 45 degrees Fahrenheit. The low during the night dipped to 35 degrees F.

Partly cloudy and cool conditions are forecast for the weekend, with highs in the 50s and lows in the high blessing for the astronomers who work in the building. Astronomers at some other observatories have to use dry ice to keep sensitive telescope components cool.

Dark Sky's 18-inch telescope is hooked up to two computers, which keep it aimed at a star that is being studied. The computers in the observatory are shrouded in sleeping bags to protect them from the cold.

Astronomers at Dark Sky have to work in the cold since it is one of the few observatories in the country where the telescope is operated on site. Most bigbudget observatories are completely computerized and astronomers operate them from nearby computer Rafert said the observatory is unheated because hot air escaping from the dome roof through which the telescope peers would distort its vision.

"It would be about the same as heat waves shimmering on a highway on a hot summer day," Rafert said.

When it gets too cold to work in the observatory, astronomers can warm up in a small house down the ridge. The house was donated by Lowes Cos. Inc. of North Wilkesboro.

Meanwhile, Rafert is trying to get a larger telescope for Dark Sky. He said the observatory is on a federal means.

"We don't plan to go completely to computers because part of our plan is to provide a place for students to get training and experience." he said. Series like "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Hill Street Blues" and "Cagney and Lacey" have done much to adjust the image, as have movies like "Eleanor, First Lady of the World," "Games Mother Never Taught You" and "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman.

But a recent study by the National Commission on Working Women found that women on television are more likely to be younger than in real life, white, a professional, and either upper middle class or wealthy. How do women actually working in the television industry view the issue?

"The image on 'Hart to Hart' is one people want to see," said Susan Baerwald, NBC's vice president for miniseries and novels for television. "Is it real? I don't know. I'm not sure that people want reality.

Ann Beatts, creator and producer of the CBS comedy 'Square Pegs,'' said, "'Gloria' is about a woman finding herself. I'd like to see a show about a woman who's already found herself.'

Others were not so optimistic.

"We have done some good things in television, but the majority of women on television are victims and harlots," said Virginia Carter, senior vice president for creative affairs at Embassy Television. "I think it's outrageous.

Deanne Barkley, producer of the NBC series "The Family Tree," worries that the image of women projected by television makes them vulnerable to violence.

'Who gets beat up on television?" she asks. "It's usually women. I know when I'm on the street I worry that I may be seen as a victim. It unnerves me.

A 1978 University of Pennsylvania study concluded that women were outnumbered 3-1 by men in prime-time television, more likely to be a victim of violence and were usually shown in roles subordinate to Lillian Gallo, a producer and former network executive, feels that the influx of women into decision-making roles within the industry is improving the situation.

"It's getting stronger Women have more roles," she said. "More women are becoming network executives and they tend to do more stories with women." NBC's Susan Baerwald said, "I think we get a little bit of everything. For instance, a realistic image such as Joyce Davenport on 'Hill Street Blues' is still idolized. I think she's somewhat of a man's view of the perfect woman. The hookers on 'Hill Street Blues' are gorgeous. They're a man's

She said, however, she liked the image portrayed by Jaclyn Smith in the upcoming miniseries "Rage of Angels.

"I think she combines a vulnerability with a sense of strength," Ms. Baerwald "It is idolized, but I think it's an accurate picture of the modern woman.

Sidney Sheldon, who wrote the novel on which "Rage of Angels' is based, said, 'What's needed is a series with a woman in control and who is good at what she does. I didn't realize until about 15 years ago how chauvinistic we are. Society is slanted against women fulfilling themselves.

"I like to write about women who are talented and capable, but most important, retain their femininity. Sheldon said. "Women have enormous power - their femininity - because men can't do without it."

One of the most seen women on television is Maj. Margaret Houlihan of CBS' "M-A-S-H." In the beginning, 11 years ago, she was "Hot Lips," a shrill woman of easy morals. In recent years she evolved into a warm and caring person.

"It wasn't so much as how she was behaving as how they treated her," said her alter ego, actress Loretta Swit. "I never tried to lose her passion. The promiscuity never bothered me as much as the fact that they couldn't see her as a human being ... I was able to show some of her feelings in the later years."

Cheryl Ladd, who was one of "Charlie's Angels." takes a different view of the show that was criticized as the epitome of "jiggle," a 1970s phenomenon that shoved television's woman out of the kitchen and into a bikini. "Charlie's Angels' was one of the first TV series where the women were the stars," she said. "Up to that time they were mostly wives and sidekicks. I think in that sense it was a breakthrough.

But the battle is neverending.

"In the 1930s we had Carole Lombard, Myrna Loy, Katharine Hepburn and Bette Davis playing strong women. Look at 'The Thin Man.' They were equal partners," said Ms. Beatts.

CBS announced the show's end Thursday and said it was also taking "M-A-S-H" off the air after a 212-hour episode Monday, Feb. 28. The popular comedy will end its 11-year run, but reruns will be telecast on CBS later in the spring until September.

The hour-long Disney show, at first called "Disneyland," made its debut in September 1954.

It was the first major Hollywood movie studio venture into television, which at the time was seen as a threat to filmmakers. The struggling ABC network snared Walt Disney by agreeing to help finance his dream, the Disneyland park at Anaheim, Calif.

Both the show and the park were enormous successes. Almost every American child who grew up in the 1950s waited eagerly for the program and dreamed of visiting the amusement park, which was featured prominently in many segments and in opening footage showing Tinkerbell swooping in front of Sleeping Beauty's

Other American heros followed: "The Saga of Andy Burnett " "Texas John Slaughter" (starring Tom Tryon) and "Swamp Fox" (starring Leslie Nielson).

There were also adaptations of such classics as "Alice in Wonderland," "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" (narrated by Bing Crosby), 'Robin Hood'' and "Treasure Island."

Documentaries dealt with everything from space travel to animation. And of course there were cartoon features starring such Disney oldtimers as Mickey Mouse - whose voice came from

Duck, Pluto and Goofy. In later years the shows turned increasingly to nature and wildlife: "Sammy, the Way Out Seal," "Greta, the Misfit Grevhound," "Joker, the Amiable Ocelot" and a menagerie of talented animals, some with child

The series survived several name changes, to "Walt Disney Presents" in 1958; "Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color" in 1961 when it went to NBC and became a showcase for the color TV sets manufactured by NBC's parent, RCA; "The Wonderful World of Disney" in 1969 and "Disney's Wonderful World" in 1979

City Council...

"has identified as one of its primary objectives the revitalization of the 'Heart of the City' areas, including downtown, East Carolina University, the Tar River neighborhood, the West Fifth Street area, the Higgs neighborhood, the South Evans area, and the Dickinson

According to the resolution, revitalization of the area "is vitally important to the economic well-being of Greenville" and "will encourage re-use of properties in the area."

The council appointed the committee to provide advice and assistance in addressing community concerns and in guiding the city toward future growth and physical development.

Board members endorsed a recommendation by the committee that the city and county planning staffs work together on the development of an area-wide land use policy. The policy would address development in and just beyond the extraterritorial jurisdiction of the city, utility services, annexationa, extraterritorial zoning, refuse generation and disposal, and other issues of mutual concern.

The council also endorsed a committee recommendation in adopting a resolution requesting the N.C. Department of Transportation to improve the intersection of Memorial Drive and Stantonsburg Road. It was noted that the local D.O.T. office has developed a proposal to improve the intersection by providing dual left turn lanes from Memorial Drive onto Stantonsburg Road. Funding will be considered by the Raleigh D.O.T. office.

In other business, the council:

Approved an application by Carolina Precious Metals Inc. for a privilege license to operate a pawn shop at 405

- Reappointed Dr. Herbert M. Hadley to a seven-year term on the Greenville Foundation;

Adopted a resolution endorsing and supporting the establishment of a Recreation and Parks Department Trust with the Greenville Foundation;

 Adopted a resolution requesting the Department of Transportation to improve S.R. 1534 in the vicinity of the new wastewater treatment plant:

- Endorsed a recommendation by the Traffic Commission in approving a request from Harry F. Kelly, 305 Lewis St., to establish a controlled residential parking area on the west side of Lewis Street from East Third Street to East Fourth

 Adopted a resolution authorizing the execution of an agreement with Southern Railway Co. holding them harmless for any claims for injuries or loss to property resulting from any claim which may arise from the city's placement of the water level marking on the railroad's bridge on Dickinson

- Adopted a resolution requesting the General Assembly to dissolve the Tar River Port Commission (dissolution of the commission requires mutual agreement by the city and county — the county has not yet taken official action); and

Adopted a resolution endorsing and supporting the Carolinas Association of Passenger Train Advocates in an effort to promote and secure Amtrak service from Greenville to Raleigh and Charlotte

Russians Quit World Body Of Psychiatrists

The Soviet Union quit the World Psychiatric Association five months before the organization was to discuss resolutions to suspend or expel the Communist country for abuse of psychiatry to suppress dissidents, the association announced. The Soviet move aroused speculation that Soviet Communist Party leader Yuri V. Andropov, who has made no statements on human rights since he came to power in November, was indicating his resistence to foreign pressure to make reforms

The world association announced Thursday that a five-page letter of withdrawal was received from Moscow on Tuesday.

In Washington, the American Psychiatric Association issued a statement saying it would seem the Soviet action was "a political rather than a scientific decision.

Ellen Mercer, director of international affairs of the U.S. group, said the Soviet All-Union Society of Psychiatrists and the world organization "too

Some world association sources thought the Kremlin might have ordered the withdrawal to save face because the Soviet society had said it would try to arrange for a foreign panel to visit the Soviet Union and investigate long-standing charges that psychiatry is being used to stifle political dissent.

Ms. Mercer said she believed when the psychiatrists went to the government to arrange for the foreigners' trip, the government vetoed the visit and decided withdrawal from the association was the least embarrassing way to cancel the psychiatrists' offer.

The Soviet withdrawal letter, sent by the association to 77 national member

Vienna because the secretary-general of the organization, Dr. Peter Berner, was out of town until Friday

The Soviet move came five months in advance of an association meeting in Vienna next July that had been expected to take up American and British resolutions to suspend or expel the Soviet organization for abuse of psychiatry to suppress dissidents.

Professor Kenneth Rawnsley, the president of Britain's Royal College of Psychiatry, told The Associated Press in London

he thought the Soviets withdrew because they 'would have found it difficult to have coped with the possibility of a humiliating defeat in the full glare of public debate" at the congress.

Today marks the 54th independence anniversary of Vatican City. In 1929, the Treaty of the Lateran recognized the Vatican as a separate nation within Italy, making it the smallest independent state in the world, with a total area of only 109 acres (about 1/6 square mile) and a population of 1,000. Still this tiny nation issues its own postage stamps, coins, and automobile license plates. It has its own telephone system, water supply, and lighting and streetcleaning services. Fever Is the Body's Defense

It is well established that fever is the body's defense mechanism against illness. It is believed that associated with fever comes the release of white blood cells that act as a protective force against the invasion of bacteria.

It has been speculated that exercise raises the body temperature and may also serve a function as an added resistance to body infection and to increase immunity.

On the basis of this, some people unwisely force themselves to exercise when they are not in the best physical condition. Ardent sports enthusiasts have gone overboard and have forced their bodies to continue the exercise even though they have been devitalized by impending

Consider Big Changes In Interest Rate On Loans

By MARY ANNE RHYNE Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Senate subcommittee will consider bills that could result in major changes in interest rates on loans.

Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, introduced a complex bill that would let lenders increase interest charged on some loans while reducing interest on others.

Currently companies can charge 36 percent interest on loans up to $600 and 15 percent on loans between $600 and $5,000. Under Swain's bill companies could lend up to $10,000, with 30 percent interest on the first $1,000 and 18 percent above $1,000.

Swain said there is no company in the state using the law now because it is not profitable.

Chuck Harkey, representing the North Carolina Consumer Finance Association, said 75 percent of the loans now made by smaller finance companies are between $600 and $3,000.

Sen. Cecil Jenkins, D-Cabarrus, introduced a bill to maintain current interest rates at 36 percent on loans up to $600 and 15 percent on loans between $600 and $3,000.

Links, the bill is enacted, the rates charged by small.

Unless the bill is enacted, the rates charged by small finance companies will revert June 30 to their 1975 levels — 36 percent on loans up to $300 and 18 percent on loans between $300 and $3,000.

"It would revert and mean no rate increase in eight years," Jenkins said.

In other legislative action:

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The N.C. Environmental Management Commission has voted to allow treated sewage to be dumped in ocean waters along the North Carolina coast despite opposition from conservationists.

The N.C. Division of Parks and Recreation, the state Marine Fisheries Commission, the Sierra Club and officials of several beach communities had opposed ocean disposal, which previously had been banned in the state Critics fear that dumping off the coast would spark a building boom along the Outer Banks since the current shortage of sewage connections would be alleviated.

They also say the sewage could contaminate swimming and fishing areas and threaten some ocean species. But the environmental commission gave its approval Thursday after Duke University oceanographer Dr. Richard Barber had held a public hearing on the issue.

Barber says using the

Doubt Officer Was Speeding

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Durham police say they do not believe an officer was speeding when he struck and killed a pedestrian Wednesday night on East Club Boulevard.

The pedestrian, Larry Eugene Cole, 17, was killed by a patrol car driven by Public Safety Officer Grayling Dawson. Dawson was not injured.

Police said Thursday that Dawson did not have his siren on while driving to a store to help in a chase for a shoplifter. He was using his emergency lights and flashers, police said.

The accident occurred as Dawson was passing another car while driving west on East Club Boulevard near the city limits. Cole was in the eastbound lane and had bent over to pick up some coins when he was struck.

Consider 'Free Ride Home'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)

— Charlotte officials are considering a plan in which drunken teen-agers would be given a free ride home to avoid the risk of accident or iail.

"There is a lot of interest in the community about having such a program, and it just needs to be coordinated," said city council member Ed Peacock, who is asking the council to approve it.

A city-backed program, called "Drive-A-Teen." has been successful in Chapel Hill, where teen-agers can call a number 24 hours a day to ask for a ride home if they or their friends have been drinking.

Under Duncan's bill, a commission member would be elected in each of the state's 11 congressional districts for a two-year term.

Duncan said he preferred elected board members because "they might yield to the people more than some appointees." He said he was not satisfied that the commission is keeping rates as low as they should be.

The Senate gave final approval to a House bill letting the Revenue Department contract out some mail to outside firms — a move expected to save the department $60,000 a year.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, said the bill would let the state ship mailing labels out of state to the firm that prints income tax forms for the state instead of shipping tons of forms into North Carolina to be mailed. He said that would save $15,000.

In addition, he said the state could save $60,000 by bulk mailing refund checks for 17 cents each instead of 20 cents. However, $15,000 of those savings would be paid to a firm hired to sort the mail.

Video Games

Three percent of video game receipts would go to the state's General Fund under a bill introduced by Rep. D.R. Mauney, D-Gaston. He said the idea is to place a kind of sales tax on the games to raise an estimated $2.5 million to $4 million a year.

Other bills introduced this session would place a license tax on each video game. Mauney said his idea is fairer because, "If you make it (money) you pay it (the tax)."

A Senate subcommittee studying the feasibility of a state lottery met for the first time to outline the scope of its investigation.

Chairman Sen. Robert Swain, D-Bumcombe, said the panel would look at how other states use lotteries, how much money they bring in, what expenses lotteries entail and whether lotteries are associated with increasing crime.

Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, suggested that the question of a lottery go before the voters.

"I'd sure like to get the monkey off our back and let them decide," he said.

Sen. Rachel Gray, D-Guilford, echoed the sentiments of the entire panel when she said, "I would hope we could stay out of any moral issues if we can."

Armed Robbery

Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, introduced a bill clarifying the crime of armed robbery.

Clark said the previous law did not make it clear that the mere possession of a weapon during a robbery would constitute armed robbery.

Under the bill, even if a weapon is concealed during a robbery, the law would apply, Clark said.

Elderly Transportation

Local school boards could let senior citizens use school buses for transportation under a bill approved by the House

Aging Committee.
"We've been wrestling with this thing since 1977," said Rep.
Gus Economos, D-Mecklenburg, who originated the bill.

The bill would allow bus use within a 50 mile radius of the school district without regard to state and county boundaries. Economos said only a half dozen districts in rural counties were likely to use the provision.

The Senate Judiciary II Committee approved and sent to the full Senate a bill that would require parties adopting children to sign notarized consent forms, effective Oct. 1.

The state Department of Human Resources sought the added provision of notarization because of problems with people denying that they had consented to the adoption.

Revoked Licenses

The punishment for driving under a revoked drivers license will become uniform under a bill approved by the Senate Judiciary II Committee.

Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, said most judges interpreted current law to require a mandatory one-year prison term without the possibility of suspension or parole.

"I propose that the punishment be from 30 days to two years, that 30 days of it cannot be suspended and, at the discretion of the court, a fine of up to $1,000," he said, adding that he saw no reason why the state should spend $8,000 a year imprisoning violators of that law.

The bill was approved and sent to the full Sen.

The bill was approved and sent to the full Senate.
Courts

The House voted 79-32 to delay consideration of a bill that would allow enforcement of child support, child custody and alimony decisions while they are being appealed in the courts.

Bill sponsor Rep. Paul Pulley, D-Durham, said the appeals may take up to a year and "during the interim severe hardship can occur."

But Rep. William Watkins, D-Granville, said he was worried about people who may pay alimony or child support and then have those payments ruled unnecessary. Watkins asked how they could recover that money.

Annexation
Rep. Brad Ligon, R-Rowan, introduced a bill to repeal the 1959 involuntary annexation laws. The existing law allows cities to annex areas without the consent of the people living in those areas

"They look at the rich fertile soil of the suburbs to harvest in dollars for their lavish spending," Ligon said, adding that it appears to be almost taxation without representation.

New Bills

Rep. Gus Economos, D-Mecklenburg, introduced a bill to set up a fund too pay for the injuries of armed robbery victims.

Sen. Cary Allred, R-Allamance, introduced a measure that would permit disabled veterans to use parking spaces marked for the handicapped.

marked for the handicapped.

Rep. Bertha Holt, D-Allamance, filed a bill that would allow referenda on proposed constitutional amendments to be held only on the dates of statewide elections.

A bill by Sen. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, would provide that all occupational licensing boards receive interest on funds deposited by them with the state Treasury for investment.

Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, introduced a bill that would authorize local law enforcement officers to inspect all premises for which Alcohol Board of Control permits have Over 60 Brokers Want Your Business. So We Have To Offer You A Better Deal.

For years, Americans have been taking rates of commission for granted when they went to Wall Street to trade stocks, bonds and other securities.

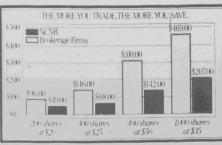

But that's all over now. At least, it is for people making their own decisions on the market.

Save 40%, Even 50% On Commissions.

Now NCNB introduces its new Brokerage Service, through an arrangement with Fidelity Brokerage Services, a member of the NYSE, ASE and other principal exchanges.

And we don't think you can find a better deal for your money anywhere in the neighborhood.

Here's why.

In the first place, you can save up to 50%, or even more, on the commissions you pay.

What's more, we negotiate commissions on trades that are over $50,000.

Second, while you save money, you can still get the fast service you expect.

NCNB's Brokerage Service: It's like having America's financial district right in the neighborhood.

After you've opened your account with us, you can call our toll-free number, place an order and get written confirmation the next business day.

Up-To-The-Minute Quotations: 1-800-438-1111.

Third, you can also get all the latest stock quotations. Just call anytime from 9 to 5.

Finally, you can also get the flexibility of dealing through 1) a Checking or 2) a Money Market Account at NCNB and/or 3) a margin account with Fidelity.

Plus The Best Banking In The Neighborhood.

Now, if you're going to do business with NCNB's Discount Brokerage Service, you'll also probably want to get in on our DeLuxe Banking service.

With a $2,500 balance in NCNB Regular Savings, or $10,000 in a Certificate you can get all the services you're likely to need at special rates or no charge.

Ask for the details. Nobody else offers anything quite like it.

Which, after all, is the way that you have to operate when you want to offer the best bank service—and the best brokerage service—in the neighborhood.
