Another Cold Storm Ravages East Coast

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

A new East Coast storm spread snow and freezing rain across the Carolinas and parts of Virginia today while roads clogged by the Blizzard of '83 caused rush hour delays in the cities of the Northeast.

Office workers in Washington were urged to play hooky. Although snowplows cleared major thoroughfares Sunday from Richmond to Boston after a record blizzard that killed at least 70 people, many side streets remained blocked.

Schools were closed in Philadelphia and its suburbs, where up to 2 feet of snow fell and many streets remained unplowed. Officials said traffic jams developed because people ignored a plea from Mayor William Green to use mass transit systems.

"They have to be taught that we mean what we say," said

Officer Frank Miller at the Philadelphia Snow Emergency Center.

The storm also caused a blood shortage in Baltimore. Pat Owens of the Red Cross said Bloodmobiles were unable to work over the weekend and the donor center in downtown Baltimore was closed, so an anticipated 900 units of blood went uncollected. She said today the Red Cross was "very short of blood, especially Type O."

It was standing room only on commuter trains and buses in cities such as New York, Washington and Baltimore, with many running up to 30 minutes late.

Dozens of bus routes in New York City and Washington were not operating.

Florists complained they were having trouble delivering flowers for Valentine's Day.

But few problems were reported on the highways as residents heeded warnings from officials that roads were only partially open and all the street parking places were covered with mounds of snow.

Al Long, spokesman for the transit authority in Washington, urged people "not to go to work today if they don't have to."

A new storm was spreading from Georgia to central Virginia, with forecasts of up to 3 inches of snow and gales off the South Carolina coast. As temperatures warmed, the snow was expected to change to freezing rain, making driving treacherous.

By early today, trees and power lines glistened with ice in North Carolina and the weather service advised "extreme caution" for any outdoor activities.

Some light rain or sleet could fall on the major metropolitan areas in the Northeast that were hit by the blizzard that dumped up to 3 feet of snow Friday and Saturday, forecasters said.

But the weather service said temperatures would remain on the cold side for the next five days, preventing any significant snow melt and promising a week of traffic problems.

New Marine Force Lands

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
KHALDE, Lebanon (AP)

— Twelve hundred North Carolina-based Marines arrived in Lebanon today to replace 1,800 Marines from Camp Lejeune who have been serving on the multinational peacekeeping force.

The routine Marine rotation conducted by 6th Fleet ships began as American, Israeli and Lebanese negotiators held the 15th round of troop withdrawal talks in this suburb south of Beirut.

Gunnery Sgt. Floyd Penton at Camp Lejeune said soldiers from the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit will be leaving Lebanon in several days and will go to Rota, Spain. They are then expected to return to the United States, but a date has not been set.

There was no reported progress on the Israeli troop withdrawal talks.

Asked whether the political storm in Israel over the judicial inquiry into the Beirut massacre last September had any impact on the progress of the talks, an Israeli official who requested anonymity said: "none whatsoever."

In Jerusalem, the government said Israel's Ambassador to Washington Moshe Arens accepted the job of defense minister, replacing Ariel Sharon, who will remain in the Cabinet as minister without portfolio. The massacre inquiry commission said Sharon bore responsibility for failing to prevent the atrocity.

As the withdrawal talks were under way, an Israeli jeep turned over on a coastal road bridge a mile south of the negotiations site and two Israeli soldiers were injured, the privately owned Voice of Lebanon radio station reported. An Israeli spokesman in Beirut said only one soldier was injured.

State and private Lebanese radio stations also said an Israeli highway checkpoint near Damour, seven miles south of Khalde, stopped and disarmed Lebanese army and police convoys heading for Beirut.

Ambassador Is To Fill Israel Cabinet Seat

JERUSALEM (AP) — Moshe Arens, Israel's ambassador to the United States, has accepted the post of defense minister, the government announced Monday.

Yehiel Kadishai, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's secretary, told reporters that Arens will return to Israel in a few days to go through the parliamentary procedure of taking up his new post.

Arens, a strong defender of Israeli policy in Washington, had been considered the front-runner for the job almost as soon as Ariel Sharon announced he would leave the Defense Ministry.

Sharon intends to remain in the Cabinet as a minister without portfolio. He agreed to leave his post after the Cabinet accepted the recommendations of an inquiry commission which found him personally responsible for the Sept. 16-18 massacre of the Palestinian refugees in Beirut by Lebanese Christian militiamen.

After a Cabinet meeting Sunday, the government said Begin would run the Defense Ministry until Sharon's successor was installed.

Arens must be confirmed by the Cabinet and Israel's parliament, the Knesset.

He is believed to be acceptable to all factions in the Cabinet. Nevertheless, sources in the Liberal Party faction of Prime Menachem Begin's Likud coalition said they were likely to be some bargaining before the five Liberal ministers in the 19-member Cabinet accept Arens.

MOSHE ARENS

Because Sharon intends to stay in the Cabinet, the Liberals reportedly are demanding another portfolio for themselves to make a balance with Begin's Herut faction of the Likud bloc.

The Liberals were given six ministers to Herut's eight when the government was elected in June 1981.

Israel invaded its northern neighbor June 6 to crush the Palestine Liberation Organization and has about 30,000 troops deployed.

Candy, Cards, Notes And Flowers Celebrate A Day

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Hope springs eternal in the savage breast, or at least it does within the hearts of us who haven't had a Valentine in years.

All day we will watch fellow employees receive roses, cards and candy and while dutifully admiring their haul, will weep within our hearts.

But wait, you may have indeed received a Valentine, and the only way you will know is to read the classified section of today's newspaper. Your name might just be included in the numerous "Sweet Something" messages on page 14.

Even if you are not mentioned, you will get a warm glow and a chuckle or two by reading these love inspired messages.

"Patient, understanding, love and sympathy, unselfish and kind, this is what you mean to us Happy Valentine's Day Mom."

"Cutie Pie, Thanks for taking me out to eat, Love your Fruit Cake."

And, "Fuzzy-wuzzy Rabbit, I love you. Three Blind Mice," are just a few.

This is the first year the Daily Reflector has undertaken delivering Valentine's messages, but the newspaper hopes to do it again and again. Co-Publisher Jack Whichard said the paper began soliciting the Valentine's ads a week and a half ago. Minimum cost for the ads was $1.35 for three lines.

"We got a few chuckles over some of the pet names," Whichard said. "I even put one in there to my children from their pet dog," he added.

If you did not get your ad in on time and haven't put much thought to letting your Valentine know how much you think of them there is still time.

Cards, flowers and candy can be bought at any number of places.

At Julieanne's Florist, roses were going for $4 a piece. One should do ... or if you are feeling extravagant, buy a dozen. Prices are similar at other local florists.

Sales were going well at Central Books and Card Shop this Valentine's season. "We have just about sold out of the high and low priced candies," an employee said Monday morning. "We still have some cards and a few boxes of candy left though," she added.

At Carolina East Mall's Belk Tyler, sales have been quite brisk. "We're doing superbly. The candy is just taking off like you wouldn't believe," Gene Sweeney, division manager said. Dieters are being considered by buyers this year as well, he said. "We've sold quite a bit of dietetic candy and the card stock is just about depleted. I think we have about 10 percent of the original stock left for late comers to choose from," he said.

One of the biggest card stores in town, Lynn's Hallmark at Carolina East Mall, was just about sold out. "We have maybe 16 feet of cards left and we started with over 50 feet," store manager Carolyn Harrell said this morning.

Mushy cards are still the leading seller as they have been in past years, she said. "This year we've also sold a lot of stuffed animals."

"People were just fighting over this one item, a little, red, stuffed devil called the 'Horney Devil' with a cape that said I love you," Ms. Harrell said.

Ceramics and miscellaneous stuffed animals were also big sellers. "We try to keep a variety stocked to give customers something to choose from. It seems every year people are trying to find something a bit different," she said.

Local drug and convenience stores are also stocked with Valentine's gifts. Hollowell's Drug Stores still had candy and cards this morning, and a few little stuffed animals. Fast Fares are getting in on the spirit of giving by offering silk roses and candy.

If you haven't much money, homemade Valentines are always appreciated and doilies and construction paper can be bought at card shops, art stores and drug stores.

A Reckoning

BOSTON (AP) — The city starts a crackdown today on 50,000 parking scofflaws who owe up to $15 million on about a million tickets, Boston's traffic and parking commissioner says.

Boston will begin turning over the names of 50,000 violators to the state Registry of Motor Vehicles, which will notify them by mail that they cannot renew drivers' licenses or vehicle registrations without paying up.

Seven Persons Arrested, Big Plane Seized In Drug Traffic

CHOCOWINITY — A plane loaded with from 12,000-15,000 pounds of marijuana and 10-12 pounds of cocaine was seized by authorities east of here Sunday morning and seven persons were arrested on drug trafficking charges, according to Beaufort County Sheriff Nelson Sheppard.

The sheriff said the four-engine DC-4 aircraft was seized after it landed around 5 a.m. on a dirt airstrip off N.C. 33 in the area known as the Great Pocosin, about eight miles east of Chocowinity.

Sheppard, who said that two trucks parked at the airstrip were also seized, reported that authorities arrested some of the men in a wooded area near the airstrip. He said it has not been determined how many people were aboard the plane or were waiting with the trucks but he said more arrests are expected.

Sheppard identified the seven arrested as: Marvin Arthur Denard, 62, of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Bernard Williams Desjardins, 35, Atlantic Beach; Nices Blaine Johnson, 45, Harkers Island; Jeffrey Dean Garner, 26, Newport; Joseph Francis Allen, 33, Morehead City; John West Weatherington, 21, Beaufort; and Thomas Edward Day, 30, of Atlantic Beach. Three men were captured soon after they fled and at least one of the seven was apprehended this morning.

Sheppard said the bundled marijuana would have a street value of $400 to $450 per pound and the cocaine, which he noted was about 90 percent pure, would have been cut down to about 5 percent for sale at approximately $2,200 per ounce.

Sheppard said the airstrip, located on property owned by the Weyerhaeuser Co., had been under surveillance.

He said that in addition to Beaufort County officers, agents of the State Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Customs office, the federal Drug Enforcement Agency, and also state Highway Patrol troopers were involved in the joint investigation.

Sheppard said that tracking dogs from the state prison department were also used in searching for the men and a helicopter from the customs office and two airplanes and a helicopter from the state were utilized.

Woman Of Stature Finds Her Man

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: A wedding is taking place because of you. Four years ago I wrote the following letter to you:

"Dear Abby: For years I have suffered from an inferiority complex because of my height. It has ruined my whole life. I am a woman, 5 feet 9. I love to dance, but in heels I'm taller than the average man, and I feel like a fool when a man looks up at me.

"I am uncomfortable unless I wear flats. I won't even walk to the coffee machine at work because I feel so conspicuous. I became so desperate I even asked my doctor if he knew of some kind of operation to shorten the bones in my legs, but he said no one has ever attempted such an operation. I told him I would be more than willing to be the first.

"Abby, you can't imagine what a miserable feeling it is to walk into a room and pray to God that there is someone there taller than you are! Would you believe that I have even considered taking my life? I'm sure there are other girls who feel the same way.

"Any advice you can give me will be appreciated. Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist because that is where my problem has already landed me. Signed . . . Tall in Canada"

You replied:
"Dear Tall: Since you've already wisely consulted a psychiatrist, you must surely know that it's your attitude — not your attitude — that needs changing.

"You are much too self-centered in assuming all eyes are constantly focused on you. Not true!

"Instead of those negative feelings you have about your height, stand tall, throw your shoulders back, chin up, and come on proud, confident and alive! If you have two good arms, legs, eyes, a voice and a mind, thank God in your prayers!

"Get rid of those flats (they make you shuffle); wear heels. It will improve your figure. Practice walking with grace and dignity. You get no sympathy from here, dear. Now get going, and remember those prayers of gratitude."

Well, Abby, I took your advice. I not only started to pray, I also started to judge men by what they were, not how tall they stood. It took me three years to get rid of the feeling that unless the man I was with was taller than I, we would look foolish together.

A year ago I met a man who stands 5 feet 5, but in my eyes he's 6 feet 5! He told me that he had grown up feeling self-conscious about being "short," but he overcame it by rising above his peers scholastically.

We're being married in June, and you're invited!
COULDN'T BE HAPPIER

DEAR ABBY: When you receive an invitation to a wedding or anniversary reception and it requests "no gifts," what should you do?

Do you take a gift, or give those being honored money instead? Or do you go empty-handed? That just doesn't seem right to me.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Respect their wishes and go empty-handed. Then, make a contribution to a charity in which they are particularly interested — in honor of the occasion.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: St. Valentine's Day is here again, and it's time to remind you to be a sweetheart. Call a friend you've been meaning to write to for months and say, "I'm thinking about you." Visit a shut-in, compliment your teen-ager, clean your closets and make Goodwill happy, donate some blood, tell your parents you appreciate them, send a donation to your favorite charity, forgive an enemy, spay your dog, neuter your cat, take a lonely person to lunch, fix up a date for someone who doesn't have many, smile and thank God you're able to, and don't wait until next St. Valentine's Day to be a sweetheart.

Love, ABBY

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

HIS AND HERS

Whether the bride and groom are leaving their family homes for the first time or are combining two readymade households, there are always cherished items neither wants to part with. Here are some tips for combining "his" and "hers" into "ours."

A hope chest or childhood toy box can be made into a useful and attractive storage piece. Use padding and fabric to make the top a bench; interior could hold sweaters or records.

If there's furniture involved, consider using that armchair in the bedroom or those tables on the patio. If diverse pieces of furniture need to be combined in the same room, paint them to match, or use curtains or wall coverings in colors that are compatible to both.

Too many bureaus? Try putting one in a closet and using it for linens.

Extra bookcases and dressers can be cut down and refinished; they'll do double duty as end tables that way.

Valentine Hopes To Cash In

By RANDALL HACKLEY
Associated Press Writer
VALENTINE, Texas (AP)

Residents of this tiny Texas town, tired of dumb Valentine's Day jokes and requests for directions to Cupid's house, have decided to make Valentine's Day pay.

"I mean, how many Valentines are there in the world? So we might as well take advantage of it," said Mayor Jesus Calderon.

But some skeptics say nothing could lure lovers to Valentine.

A Southern Pacific brakeman who has traveled the 155 miles between El Paso and Valentine for decades said the town has "nothing for no one," including its 300 residents.

Five U.S. border patrolmen sipping coffee at The Mile Post Cafe laughed when asked if the two-gas-station town had any tourist potential.

But Calderon said a Valentine's Day chili cook-off could generate publicity and pad Valentine's pocketbook.

The town already has scheduled the coronation of its Valentine's Day queen, with four local high school maidens vying for the crown. The high school also holds an annual Valentine's Day boys' and girls' basketball tournament.

Further, Valentine's post office plans to continue stamping letters mailed on Valentine's Day with its special heart-shaped stamp. Last year, about 30,000 letter-senders nationwide requested the free service.

Calderon is mulling whether to charge for the practice.

"It's a popular item," he said.

A Valentine artist has designed a card Calderon hopes will become a best seller. It features a large red heart encircling the state of Texas, with a tiny heart to mark the town of Valentine.

Couples still use the town's lover's lane beside the old red windmill, Calderon said.

Proceeds from the chili cook-off would help pay for repainting the windmill, he said.

Do you have home-canned food that doesn't look just right? If you see any signs of spoilage, such as bulging lids, lots of cloudiness, gas bubbles, mushy food, mold, unnatural color or odor, throw the food out.

Before Marriage: The Time To Disagree

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The days and weeks before the wedding are perhaps the most romantic time in a couple's life together. Every day is Valentine's. Everything is hearts and flowers, seashells and balloons, sweetness and light.

But now comes Cecile Weich, the lawyer in the white hat, to kick cupid squarely in the diaper. And to draw up a contract that will spell out the legal and financial rights and responsibilities of both bride and groom while they are married — and if they divorce.

"When there is love in the heart and a smile on the lips, that's the time to disagree," says Ms. Weich, who has been writing prenuptial agreements for two decades.

She says more couples are putting their vows in writing as more women have careers and enter marriage with money or property they want to protect. "Women used to think more with their hearts, while men think more with their heads," she says.

In addition, she says the increase in divorces — which now total 1 million a year in the United States — has made both men and women more aware that they may need a prenuptial agreement.

Prenuptial agreements — also called "antenuptial" or simply "marriage contracts" — are nothing new. They date back to ancient times, when a wedding might depend on how many camels the bride's family paid the bridegroom's. In this country, prenuptial agreements have typically been used by the rich. The classic example is the aging tycoon who requires the young chorus girl to waive her claims on his bankroll if they divorce or he dies.

But now, according to Ms. Weich, anyone who has money, stocks, land, jewelry or other property should consider a prenuptial agreement before saying, "I do."

In most states, couples who divorce must share whatever wealth they accumulated during the marriage. But Ms. Weich says a prenuptial agreement can guarantee they will leave the marriage with at least what they brought into it.

Ms. Weich, who dresses in white from her stylish shoes to her wide brim, says her prenuptial contracts range from three to 200 pages. The length usually depends on how complicated the financial arrangements are, but she says many couples include non-monetary clauses, too.

For instance, some couples spell out each other's domestic responsibilities, such as child care duties. One contract specified that the husband and wife take turns cleaning the bathroom. Another required the husband to keep his toothpaste on the left side of the medicine chest and the wife to keep hers on the right side. Yet another said the couple must have sex at least twice a week.

"Personally, I think there's something to be said for spontaneity in some areas," says Ms. Weich, who has been married for half her 48 years. She says she and her husband did not have a contract because neither one of them had any money when they got married.

She will put anything in a contract as long as it's not illegal or unfair. But she cautions people that courts will normally only enforce the financial aspects of prenuptial contracts. "Most judges are loath to get involved in people's personal business," she says.

Ms. Weich says couples entering prenuptial contracts should each retain a lawyer. "Lovers make the best bargainers," she says. "Lawyers make the best bargainers."

Many people don't like the idea of a contract that anticipates the marriage failing, believing that if a couple needs a marriage contract, they probably shouldn't be getting married. Ms. Weich turns it around: If a couple can't make a prenuptial agreement, perhaps they shouldn't get married.

"A lot of people would rather just take their chances," she says. "But if it's really a good relationship, it's going to survive the making of an agreement."

Mayor Marjorie McDonald, who officiated at the brief ceremony in a city auditorium, said the 468 people were the most ever remarried at one time in North Miami Beach.

"We were surprised by the response to this," she said. "We had to turn away about 300 couples who wanted to take part. It just goes to show you that love isn't dead."

For 18-year-olds Dominic and Donna Sorrentini, the ceremony marked a new beginning to their eight-month marriage.

"We moved to New York shortly after getting married in June, and they stole everything we owned," Donna said. "We moved back here and decided to start over. We thought this was the first step."

Special Guests At Dinner

Mayor and Mrs. Percy Cox were special guests at the monthly birthday supper at University Towers Apartments.

The Coxes were invited to participate in appreciation for Mayor Cox's being instrumental in getting the building of the Towers underway. Ms. Betty LaForce, house chairman said. A special song about the Towers written by Ms. LaForce was sung by the residents to the Coxes.

Barbecue and covered dishes prepared by the residents were served.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

You can work fashion magic with your crochet hook in just a matter of a few hours. Crocheted triangular shawls, sometimes with one end draped over a shoulder, are one of the fashion favorites of the '80s.

Directions are given for two versions. One, shown here, is very open, airy and lacy — perfect for extra special evening events. The other shawl is more tailored and can carry you all through the day and into the night. These beginner-easy shawls are worked in one piece with no sewing required. Either can be made in a cloud-soft fluffy, brushed acrylic for a truly elegant air or with basic sports-weight yarn for economy.

To obtain directions for making the Shell Stitch Shawls, send your request for Leaflet No. C-0213 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order a kit containing instructions and sufficient yarn for making either shawl by sending a check or money order to Pat Trexler at the same address. Send $17.50 for Kit No. CK-0213-A with the brushed acrylic yarn or $10.50 for Kit No. CK-0213-S with the sports-weight yarn. Please specify your choice of ivory, camel, sea coral or any of the following pastels: pink, blue, green or yellow.

When visiting us recently, my daughter-in-law discovered that she hadn't brought a warm cap for her 2-year-old. So she asked if I had some spare yarn and a crochet hook. As you can well imagine, this brought a big laugh from my husband who claims I have yarn in every nook and cranny of the house except for his bathroom!

After I gave her the necessary materials, she whipped out a darling little ribbed stocking cap in just a couple of hours. I was intrigued with the shaping of the cap, so I asked her to show me how she did it so I could share the directions with you.

She used knitting worsted-weight yarn and a Size J hook, but you could use any yarn you wish with a hook size suitable for your choice of yarn.

First, work a chain for the desired length of the cap from top to bottom, plus an extra inch or two for a turned-back cuff. For a starting point, you might try working a chain of about 9 1/2 to 10 inches. After seeing how this fits, try to adjust the length of your chain. The entire cap is done in single crochet worked through the back loop of each stitch.

For the first row, work a single crochet in the second chain from hook and in each remaining chain. Chain 1 and turn. On Row 2, work a single crochet in each stitch of the previous row to within four stitches of the end. Do not work any stitches in these last four stitches. Chain 1, turn. For Row 3, single crochet to the end of the row. Chain 1, turn. Row 4: Work a single crochet in all stitches, including the skipped stitches of Row 2. Chain 1, turn. Row 5: Single crochet to end of row. Chain 1, turn. Repeat Row 2 through 5 over and over until the cap is wide enough to fit around the head.

The end where you have been skipping stitches and then working the skipped stitches two rows later will be the shaped top of the cap, so the opposite end will be the bottom, which will be the one you will want to have wide enough to fit around the head. When the desired width is reached, end with completion of Row 3 of the pattern and sew the side edges together. If you wish, top the cap off with a pom-pom.

With knitting worsted-weight yarn, you can get a cap out of approximately 2

Farms Need Joint Effort

There was a time when farmers were urged to diversify in their crop production. Vegetables were cited as a crop which could be shipped to the big markets of the northeast.

No more. Extension specialists are now cautioning farmers that there might be a vegetable glut if as many of them as now indicated turn to vegetable production.

Dr. William J. Lamont, NCSU horticultural extension specialist, said grain and tobacco farmers are requesting information on growing vegetables. He warned that increased production could depress prices and eliminate profits. That is what happened in sweet potato production and the possibility exists for other crops.

In 1981 vegetable sales were $171.8 million or 4.3 percent of cash receipts for North Carolina farm products.

There is also concern about handling and marketing of the additional vegetable crops.

No doubt by now the farmer is frustrated as to just what he should do to bring in additional income for his operations. Certainly overproduction is not the answer. That has historically led to lower prices and reduced profits.

There will always be a market for food, but in the modern world the product will have to be promoted to assure its sale. Proper handling and processing will have to be certain to keep the product moving. It will take the combined efforts of the farmer, processor and deliverer to keep farm products profitable.

Trend Looks Encouraging

There is growing evidence that money is moving back into traditional pipelines and that it is being used in North Carolina for home loans which should stimulate the entire housing market.

The federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta reports that North Carolina savings and loan deposits were triple in December those of the same month in 1981. The bank also reported that mortgage lending activity more than doubled the corresponding month of the previous year.

Mortgage loans closed in North Carolina for December 1982 totaled $122 million. For December 1981 the total was $54.9 million. All that means more houses were being built and more household goods were purchased as individuals moved into new homes.

This is important for the state's economy. If the trend is the same nationally it will be important for manufacturers of furniture and other household items in our state.

Judge Exercises Judicial Heresy

WASHINGTON — Down in Alabama the other day, a U.S. district judge provided a personal profile of courage, and doubtless a profile of foolhardiness also. District Judge W. Bervard Hand of Mobile had the audacity to rebuke his superiors on the U.S. Supreme Court in this matter of prayer in the schools. He said some things about the Constitution that cannot be said too often.

The facts in the case before him were not in dispute. Ishmael Jaffree, an agnostic who lives in Mobile County, has three children in the public schools. One of his children attended E.R. Dickson Elementary School, where the child's teacher, Charlene Boyd, regularly led her class in singing the familiar prayer that begins, "God is great, God is good, let us thank him for our food." The other two children experienced substantially the same activity in their schools.

Jaffree complained repeatedly that his non-believing children were left embarrassed and isolated by these prayers. When his complaints went unanswered, he brought suit for an injunction to stop the practice. Last month Judge Hand dismissed Jaffree's suit, on the grounds that — never mind what the Supreme Court says — the Constitution leaves regulation of religious practices to the states.

This sort of thing amounts to judicial heresy. Lower court judges are expected to follow their appellate superiors slavishly. In this area of constitutional law, the Supreme Court has spoken repeatedly and emphatically. The high court has held that the First Amendment, which says plainly that "Congress" shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, applies with equal strength to the states. How come? This is because the 14th Amendment somehow "incorporated" or "absorbed" the original Bill of Rights; and because the 14th prohibits the states from depriving any person of "liberty," therefore the states cannot permit prayers to be said in public schools.

This bizarre reasoning has amazed mere laymen (and many lawyers) for years. It is beyond dispute that the original Bill of Rights had nothing whatever to do with restraints upon the states. The first 10 amendments were demanded by the founding fathers as a restraint upon the national government only. It was the "Congress" that could make no laws abridging, and so forth.

At one time in our jurisprudence, the pole star of constitutional construction was simply charted: The intention of the framers and the understanding of the ratifiers — these were to guide us. In the matter at hand, there is not a scintilla of convincing evidence to show that back in the 1860s the framers and ratifiers of the 14th Amendment ever intended to extend the First Amendment's proscriptions to the states. In his opinion last month, Judge Hand rounded up an impressive volume of documentation on the point. The Supreme Court, he said flatly, "has erred in its reading of history."

Judge Hand leaped fearlessly into a continuing controversy: Are constitutional provisions to be construed today according to original intent and understanding? Or is the Constitution a living document, "which changes to suit the needs of the times and the whims of the interpreters"?

"The only proper approach," said Judge Hand, "is to interpret the Constitution as its drafters and adoptors intended.

The Constitution ... contains provisions for amending it. If the country decided that the present text of the Constitution no longer satisfied contemporary needs, then the only constitutional course is to amend the Constitution by following its formal, mandated procedures. Amendment through judicial fiat is both unconstitutional and illegal ..."

That is sound doctrine. It has been sound doctrine since George Washington warned in his farewell address against change by usurpation, but for the past 50 years successive Supreme Courts have embraced the flawed theory of "incorporation." Bit by bit the judges have extended their power by blotting up the Bill of Rights into the 14th Amendment.

There is no reason to hope that Judge Hand's opinion will affect the process. Justice Lewis Powell already has stayed the order of dismissal in the Jaffree case. The high court will swat the 59-year-old Alabama jurist as if it were swatting a fly. But let it be said that Judge Hand, if only for an hour, raised a beacon that shed a guiding light.

First Child Brings Fears

RALEIGH — Horror stories. That's pretty much all you hear when you're a first time expectant father.

People find out you and your wife are about to have your first child and, as if it was their duty, they lay out all the dreadful details of their experience. Or their sister's experience. Or those of the woman down the street.

This space is usually devoted to politics and government. But today I'd like to relate a little of what went on in my life over the past nine months — during the days which led to the birth Feb. 1 of my eight-pound, seven-ounce son, Michael George O'Connor.

Disaster is what you worry about first. Too many people have stories to tell the expectant father — but thank heavens not the expectant mother — of cousins or neighbors whose children were born with birth defects. One month into my wife's pregnancy, I could honestly say that all I wanted was a health baby.

But, while we were waiting for Michael to arrive, we saw disaster hit two couples with whom we are close friends. Both women were carrying twins. One had her babies at seven months and I watched the father, day in and day out, as he rode the emotional roller-coaster of watching two three-pound children fight for their lives. It is a testimony to modern science, and this state's perinatal program, that those two children survived.

The other couple lost their children. The twins, born in the middle of the sixth month, died only hours after birth. "I've got a whole new perspective on the world now," the father told me several months later.

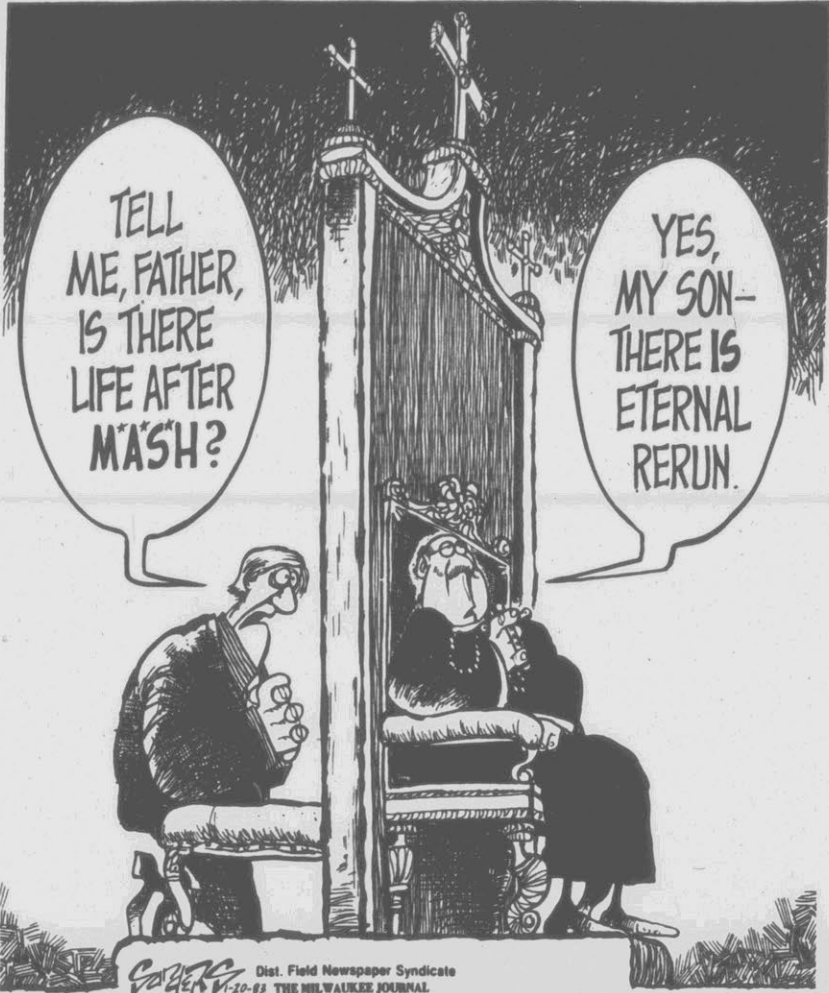

Pregnancy must be an absolutely frightening experience for a woman. Not only does she have the anxieties connected with entering parenthood, she must also go through the discomfort of carrying the child and then the pain of delivery. I can't understand why any woman who has been through pregnancy, and who understands how anxious a time it can be, would insist on telling horror stories to a first-timer. Yet, that's about all my wife heard — that it would be so painful, that she'd be in labor 24 hours, that the baby would turn into a frog if she took any pain medicine.

I'm writing this with one week's experience as a father. So, I'm an expert. Let me say how Michael has changed my life.

My wife and I can't run out on a minute's planning and see a movie. The house is a little crowded. I've lost a little sleep. Everyone in my family, and hers, is calling all the time, so I can't watch the TV news at night. Terrible things to happen to anyone.

We've built new ties with our neighbors — all of whom have been incredibly helpful — and we've given a new generation to our families. The first grandchild. My wife and I have never felt closer. And there's this little guy in the crib who needs us — who literally cannot live without us. No doubt, any longer. There's a reason I'm here.

Michael's changed my life all right. All for the better.

Domenici's Claim: In Right Place At Right Time

WASHINGTON (AP) — One day last year, slow-talking, chain-smoking Senate Budget Committee chairman Pete Domenici stepped from his battered blue Volkswagen into the White House driveway and surveyed the scene.

Lined up behind him were a sleek black limousine occupied by David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, and another shiny auto belonging to Bob Dole, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Further back were more cars of more recent vintage carrying participants to a meeting on the federal budget.

"Look what kind of car the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee rides in," said Domenici. He was joking but the moment was an apt symbol of the austere personal style of a politician who has quickly risen to become one of the most powerful members of a Republican Senate.

The New Mexico senator's climb is partly the result of being in the right place at the right time. Domenici became chairman of the budget committee in 1980 just when Ronald Reagan was elected president on a budget-cutting platform.

Before that, Domenici was relatively unknown, and was frequently confused with another senator of Italian heritage with a similar sounding name, Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.

No more. Over the last three years, the 51-year-old Domenici has won respect in his own right as a fair-minded and independent — some say stubborn — spirit who has more than once challenged Reagan when he thought the president had gone too far in cutting taxes, or not far enough in reducing the Pentagon budget.

"You never heard Pete Domenici make the argument that you could balance the budget, have significant defense increases and multiyear tax cuts simply by eliminating waste and fraud," he has said, a shorthand description of the original Reagan program.

Once in 1982 when Domenici was annoyed at the president, he spoke into a microphone he incorrectly thought was switched off and said Reagan's advisers were "stupid" for refusing to bend when presented with a compromise federal budget supported by Senate Republicans.

When journalists reported the remark, Domenici was furious at what he thought was an unfair intrusion on what he said was a private conversation.

Later, Domenici, the son of an Italian grocer, publicly conceded that in making the remark, he may have been a "chiaccherone," the Italian word for chatterbox or one who talks too much.

Already in 1983, the 98th Congress just under way, Domenici's star is continuing to rise in Washington, even as there is some doubt about chances for his own re-election to a third Senate term in 1984.

With the announcement last month by Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker that he would not run for re-election, speculation began immediately that Domenici was among those who might seek to replace the popular Tennessean as Senate leader.

Will he run? "It is impossible to say," Domenici said in a recent interview. "I don't rule it out."

Domenici, a stocky, well-built man whose bland speaking style is unlikely to stir any political crowd to ecstasy, is running hard for 1984 re-election in a state where more voters are registered Democratic than Republican.

Domenici is a devout Roman Catholic, father of eight children.

Economist Says Labor Priced Itself Out Of Jobs

clearly permit higher employment and more sales of lower priced steel and cars, mitigating some aspects of the recession," argues Dunkelberg, a Purdue University professor and chief economist of the National Federation of Independent Business.

That argument raises the ire of union officials, who maintain the lower wages lead only to lower purchasing power.

Yes, says Dunkelberg, but there would be "more people working and fewer people receiving unemployment benefits, which are financed by taxes on those who are working."

And he contends that in the long run a more competitive wage structure would improve the competitive position of steel and autos, providing more jobs and lower-priced output, and attracting investments.

Choosing not to work in the hope that previous wages can be maintained and eventually enhanced is futile, the professor says. The market, he observes, has already made the decision that such hopes are unattainable.

The issue is not whether to adjust, he says. "The market has already forced the adjustment on workers and the economy."

Ironically and sadly, said Dunkelberg, skilled auto and steel workers who lose their jobs seem willing to take major wage cuts to find less skilled work in other industries. Why not, he asks, remain in their own industries?

When workers voluntarily elect unemployment to lower wages, he continues, there is a net loss of skills and crafts, and a serious structural and labor force dislocation when they seek other jobs.

Dunkelberg says he would like to see heavy industry workers escape the fate of New England textile workers when the mills closed a few decades ago.

He notes that it took many years for newer industries to replace textiles, and that many former textile workers remained idle during that time. Moreover, when electronics jobs developed, many of them were without skills to fill them.

He insists that the heavy industries of the Midwest, and the workers in them, need not suffer that fate if they adjust to the realities. To adjust, he says, would at least buy time for a smooth transition, and save the jobs and self-respect of senior workers who might not find jobs in newer industries.

But, he continues, throughout the Midwest he sees cities frantically seeking newer, high technology companies to replace the smokestacks of the old heavy industries. He wonders if it isn't foolish to do so.

"Why do we have to lose jobs at all?" he asks. "Why do we have to go through retraining and social costs? Why do we have to write off these industries, anyway?"

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦AKJ62 ♠AJ2 ♦Q52 ♣95
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Dble Rdbld 2 ♣

What action do you take?
A.—If you answered that you don't know, you are right! Partner has promised another bid with his redouble. If he does not have a spade fit, your best result could be obtained by doubling the enemy, even at a low level. Pass, and allow partner to make the decision.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦AJ83 ♠92 ♦K982 ♣A87
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ Dble Pass 1 ♣
Pass?
What action do you take?
A.—You have a minimum takeout double, and there is only one way to show that—you must pass at this turn. If you raised to two spades, you are showing about an ace more than you actually hold.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦8 ♥J9542 ♦8762 ♣763
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Dble Rdbld ?

What action do you take?
A.—If you elected to pass, you need to brush up on your basic bidding theory. There is a distinct danger that, if you take no action, partner will run to one spade, and that is hardly where you want to play the hand. Bid one heart. That promises nothing in the way of strength—it simply tells partner that you have a strong preference for hearts over any other suit.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦8752 ♥KJ93 ♦765 ♣94
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♣ Dble Rdbld ?
What action do you take?
A.—The last problem should steer you to the right answer to this one. Despite the fact that you have two honors in hearts, you cannot be sure that you want to play the hand in that strain. Since you have support for all three unbid suits, you want to play in partner's best suit. Pass, and let partner choose.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♦K45 ♥AK7 ♦A983 ♣J73

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♣ 1 ♥ ?
What do you bid now?
A.—A cue-bid of two hearts would be acceptable, but it would be our second choice, because you might have trouble later in the auction convincing partner that you have a flat hand with two heart stoppers. We feel that slam is unlikely unless partner has more than a minimum opening bid. Had East passed, you would have responded three no trump, we suggest that you should still make that bid—it describes your holding exactly and leaves it up to partner to make a move.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♦7 ♥A982 ♦KQ10953 ♣J6
Partner opens the bidding with one no trump. What do you respond?
A.—We would not fault you greatly if you elected to jump to three diamonds, but that runs the risk of missing a 4-4 heart spot. We would start with two clubs—the Stayman Convention. If opener does not show a heart suit, we would make one more move with three diamonds. That leaves open all our options—we can play in no trump, hearts or diamonds, and we have also made a mild try for slam.

Found Dead In Hospital Ward

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Police say a Duke Hospital employee was found dead Saturday morning in an unused ward of the hospital.

Dorothy P. Williams, 26, had been beaten in the head, said Duke public safety director Paul Dumas. She was found behind some furniture in the Old Halstead Ward on the third floor of Duke South, he said.

Dumas said Mrs. Williams was reported missing by other Duke employees shortly after midnight. Public safety officers searched for her all night.

He said it appeared that Mrs. Williams, a supervisor with the hospital's housekeeping department, was killed in the same area where her body was found.

PORCELAIN COATED METAL CROWN

If you have a chipped, discolored, broken, poorly shaped or badly decayed tooth-as long as the root remains-there is still hope for restoring its natural appearance and function. An artificial crown does the job.

The veneer crown actually comprises a jacket of porcelain fused to metal, cemented in position to replace the enamel of the tooth. It fits over the natural tooth surface which is prepared in such a way as to provide a strong base for the crown.

The cosmetic result of this procedure is beautiful. Tooth shade is carefully analyzed and the shade determined by taking into account such considerations as stains, grooves, enamel thickness, complexion and age. Carefully matched veneer crowns many times resemble the adjoining natural teeth so closely that it is possible to fool even a dental hygienist who is cleaning the teeth.

Laboratory techniques now enable us to do marvelous things with porcelain that were unthinkable not too many years ago. Further, porcelain is color stable. It will not change color with time.

terly as some banks do. We compound daily, which can make a difference of thousands of dollars in interest over the years.

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds between 59½ and 70½ years of age, when you'll probably be in a lower income tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

YOU CAN BUILD UP ENOUGH IN YOUR IRA OVER THE YEARS TO RETIRE RICH.

If you start an IRA in your early thirties, a $2,000-a-year investment, with all the interest it earns, will turn into a really tidy sum by the time you're sixty-five. And even if you were born too soon to start that early or can't afford an investment that large, you'll still pile up a sizeable retirement fund.

Call or visit any BB&T office and get your IRA started before another day goes by. After all, how can you pass up a plan that gives you big bucks in the September of your life and a bigger refund check every April?

BB&T

Some people think an IRA won't help until retirement. Nonsense. A BB&T IRA helps every April 15.

An IRA, you see, is more than a fast-growing retirement fund. It's a tax shelter.

Now, the tax-wise have been taking advantage of tax shelters for years, contributing money to charity, for example, so they can take big deductions and pay smaller income taxes.

Well, we think it's about time working people got a piece of the action. And they can with BB&T's Individual Retirement Account, a tax shelter that's yours when you make a contribution to the charity closest to your heart: you and your family.

YOU CAN DEDUCT AS MUCH AS $2,000 A YEAR FROM YOUR GROSS INCOME.

You're allowed to invest as much as $2,000 a year in your IRA ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if you both are). And every penny is deductible. Which means big tax savings. If you're in the 25% tax bracket, for example, and you and your working spouse put $4,000 into an IRA, your refund check from Uncle Sam will be $1,000 fatter than it would be otherwise.

YOU DON'T EVEN PAY TAX ON THE INTEREST YOU EARN UNTIL YOU RETIRE.

Which is nice, because at BB&T, you'll be earning at a rate that's tied to money market rates, with a guaranteed minimum of 8%. What's more, we don't compound that interest annually or quar-

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

This could be a year when farmers may put some money in their pockets from soybeans if they are willing to make a few concessions. For the first time in recent history, southeastern farmers are entering a production year with little likelihood that production costs will be up over the year before. Some fertilizer and herbicide prices are actually dropping. General inflation has slowed, keeping other costs more predictable and lower than might have been expected a year or more ago.

We are due an average year that should take care of much of our excess production and boost soybean prices. If our farmers will just hold back and not overplant, we could be looking at a turnaround year on soybean income in 1983.

Even current low prices may have a positive impact by encouraging increased purchases of soybeans at bargain prices. But even with these reasons for hoping that prices may improve, we believe that this is a year to be conservative in any decision to plant soybeans and in the amount of money you spend to make the crop.

Look at each field individually and decide which fields have a potential of producing an acceptable yield without undue expense. This may be a good year to leave some fields fallow. If one field is badly infested with nematodes, weeds or pests, or if one is too sandy or extremely low in fertility, it may cost too much to bring the field up to acceptable conditions to make it worth planting soybeans there this year.

Bailey Death Said Great Loss

Greenville Banks, manager of Belk-Tyler's in Greenville, said today that "the loss of Mr. L.A. Bailey is a great personal loss to all of us, something we'll not get over quickly."

Bailey was found murdered in a Fayetteville hotel room Friday. The 56-year old man was executive vice president of Belk-Tyler company, stationed in the company's executive offices in Rocky Mount.

"Mr. Bailey was a terrific fellow, a very caring person who supported every facet of the community, in historic, civic and religious areas," Banks said.

NAACP Notes Emancipation Proclamation

Members of the Pitt County NAACP met Saturday at the Holiday Inn in Greenville to celebrate the Emancipation Proclamation which freed American slaves in the 1860s.

More than 100 people attended the dinner meeting to hear Charles Smith, deputy executive director national NAACP organization, discuss the past and future of black people.

"Today is the 74th birthday of the NAACP which was created 44 years after slavery was abolished. We have come a long way and we still have a long way to go," Smith said. Smith spoke about the Lincoln decree in 1863 which freed all slaves in rebelling states and the 1865 amendment, freeing all slaves.

One woman attending remarked that the meeting was one of the most exciting gatherings of the year because "it brings people, young and old, together in a common bond."

The banquet was followed by a mass meeting at Phillippi Missionary Baptist Church in Simpson with the Rev. J.C. Purvis directing the service.

Speaker for the meeting was the Rev. F.R. Peterson of St. Mary Missionary Baptist Church. Remarks were also delivered by Pitt County NAACP President D.D. Garrett.

As executive vice-president of Belk-Tyler, Bailey was the immediate supervisor of Banks.

"I've been with Belk-Tyler for more than 25 years," Banks commented, "and I've known Mr. Bailey through the years. For a number of years he was Mr. Tyler's assistant, and later became a partner for Belk-Tyler stores."

"I was a merchandise manager at Elizabeth City when I first knew him. Mr. Bailey has been the one person most responsible for helping me in my career all these years."

ELECTED — Lawrence Davenport, of J.P. Davenport & Sons, Greenville, has been elected vice president of the N.C. Crop Improvement Association. The election came during the association's annual meeting.

Mental Health Perspectives

No. 1 Killer

by Deborah Wells, M.S. DUI Specialist

Traffic accidents are the leading cause of death for people under age 25. Take a moment to consider the youngster in your life. 60% of young people (ages 16-24) killed on the highways are killed as a direct result of drinking and driving. In over half of the accidents there is at least one passenger involved. 70% of these deaths occur on weekends.

The 16-24 year age group is responsible for over 44% of night time fatal automobile accidents. These drivers only make up 22% of the licensed driving population. If your teenager has the keys to the car, take some time to help him survive. Make sure your son or daughter knows and understands the driving laws. Set up responsible rules regarding the automobile and alcohol use for your child to follow, such as (a) no driving while drinking, (b) do not ride with someone else who is drinking, and (c) call me, anytime, if you need a ride home and no questions will be asked. Discuss the consequences of not following the rules: physical, emotional, social, legal and financial. Taking a few minutes now to talk may save guilt and tears later at his funeral.

If you have a question you would like for us to answer through this column, please submit to Community Services, Pitt County Mental Health Center, 306 Stantonsburg Road, Greenville, or call Community Services, 752-0119.

"FOR AN HONEST SECOND OPINION, ASK PERDUE'S FIRST GROWER."

"When Perdue started looking for broiler growers in North Carolina, they called on me. They liked the Bertie County area and knew that I was familiar with most of the folks here through my work with the Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service. They wanted me to give them some leads on potential broiler growers: Perdue did a good job of convincing me it was a good investment, because I became the state's first grower!

That was eight years ago, and since then, they've really put a lot of money into this area. It's helped our economy a lot, and it's helped many individuals make a profit each year out of their farming operations. With all the changes I've seen in the other crop programs, it's nice to see a company like Perdue providing a good steady income. You can count on Perdue year after year.

With tobacco, peanuts and corn, the expenses keep growing faster than the market prices, and that's cutting the net incomes of a lot of farmers. With a Perdue house as a supplemental income, you've got something that doesn't require a major investment every year. And once you've paid off the house, as I did three years ago, profits start looking even better.

If anyone has second thoughts about getting with a poultry company, they shouldn't worry about Perdue. The way they have expanded in Bertie, Hertford, Halifax and surrounding counties, there's no doubt in my mind Perdue will be here for a long time to come."

It's A Great Time to Grow with Perdue. Perdue is into one thing — chickens. That's why our poultry products outsell all the others in the northeastern supermarkets. The demand is increasing for our products, so we need more producers. Start growing with a growing company. Call 1-800-682-8729 or send in the coupon below, and talk chicken with a Perdue representative.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina f.o.b. dock quoted price on broilers for this week's trading was 46.00 cents, based on full truck load lots of ice pack USDA Grade A sized 2½ to 3 pound birds. 75 percent of the loads offered have been confirmed, with a final weighted average of 46.33 cents f.o.b. dock or equivalent. The market is steady and the live supply is moderate for a moderate to good demand. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter of broilers and fryers in North Carolina Monday was 1,825,000, compared to 1,806,000 last Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices headed higher in quiet trading today after a hesitant start.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off more than 2 points in early trading, was up 3.34 at 1,089.84 by noon-time.

Advancing issues held a 3-2 lead over declines among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said many traders were concerned about the prospective course of the Federal Reserve's credit policy.

In the view of many observers, the Fed has allowed the money supply to grow relatively quickly of late to help foster a recovery from the recession.

They said the Fed might now tighten credit, exerting upward pressure on rates. If it doesn't, they argue, fears of renewed inflation might push interest rates higher anyway.

"For the stock market to hold its advanced level, let alone go even higher, interest rates will have to start back down — and do it soon," said William LeFevre, analyst at Purcell, Graham & Co., in his weekly market commentary.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines rose 1½ to 98½ and General Motors was up 1 at 63½, but American Telephone & Telegraph slipped ¼ to 68.

The NYSE's composite index gained .30 to 85.48. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.08 at 378.60.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 27.34 million shares at noon, against 46.61 million at the same point Friday.

Heavy Rainfall

The rain swollen Tar River stood only four inches from flood level this morning as water continued to pour out of the sky and run off the already wringing wet ground.

According to Greenville Utilities' weather station, the Tar measured 12.6 feet on the National Weather Service Gauge at 8 a.m. today. The flood stage on that same gauge is 13 feet.

Only .42 inch of rain fell between midnight and 8 a.m. today but precipitation continued, along with robust winds, throughout the morning.

According to the National Weather Service, winds gusted to 20-30 knots during the morning. Temperatures remained mild today, with a mercury reading of 49 degrees Fahrenheit at 11 a.m.

Report Hinckley's Condition Is Stable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John Hinckley Jr. was in serious but stable condition today, hooked to a respirator, as authorities tried to determine where he got the drugs he took in an apparent suicide attempt.

Hinckley, 27, was found semi-conscious from an overdose Sunday morning on the floor of his room at St. Elizabeths Hospital, where he was confined after his acquittal by reason of insanity in the shooting of President Reagan.

Authorities were unsure what Hinckley took. Wayne Pines, a spokesman for St. Elizabeths, said it was a "reasonable assumption" that Hinckley had tried to commit suicide for the third time since he wounded Reagan and three other men outside the Washington Hilton Hotel in March 1981.

Hinckley was given cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and oxygen, and his color was blue and he was having difficulty breathing when he was brought to Greater Southeast Community Hospital, said Dr. James Levy, the hospital president.

"We will not be able to tell you for certain for the next 24 to 48 hours whether he's out of the woods," Levy said.

Hospital spokesman Stephanie McNeill described Hinckley as "alert and oriented" early today.

House Committee Names Chairmen

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, chaired by Rep. Walter Jones, met last week to elect subcommittee chairmen and to select subcommittee assignments.

The subcommittee chairmen named at the session include: Rep. Mario Biaggi (D-N.Y.) chairing the merchant marine subcommittee; Rep. John B. Breaux (D-La.) chairing the fisheries and wildlife conservation and the environment subcommittee; Rep. Gerry E. Studds (D-Mass.) chairing the Coast Guard and navigation subcommittee; Rep. Carroll Hubbard Jr. (D-Ky.) chairing the subcommittee on Panama Canal/Outer Continental Shelf; and Rep. Norman E. D'Amours (D-N.H.) chairing the oceanography subcommittee.

Jones and Rep. Edwin B. Forsythe (R-N.J.), the ranking minority member of the committee, are ex officio members of the subcommittees.

East Questions Pay Increases

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. John East has charged that a 4 percent pay hike paid to federal judges in January could be a violation of federal law, and has asked for a review of the pay increase by the U.S. Comptroller General Charles Bowsher.

In a letter to Bowsher, East said present law requires specific authorization for any increase and suggested that no such authorization was included in the appropriations bill signed by Pres. Reagan in December.

"The comptroller general himself in October last year said no pay increase for judges was allowable without specific congressional authorization, and nothing has happened since then to alter that," East said.

East asked Bowsher to review the legality of the pay increase and to inform the administrative office of the U.S. courts that if it is acting in violation of the law, all unauthorized payments should be returned to the treasury.

Splits The 'D'

East Carolina's Lisa Squirewell (31) splits Cheyney State defenders Anna Strong (14) and Rosetta Guilford (20) during the title game of the Lady Pirate Classic Sunday night. Guilford, who was named the tournament MVP, scored 33 points to lead Cheyney State to a 85-57 win over ECU. In the consolation game, Clemson defeated Detroit, 83-58. Story on page 10. Rosetta Guilford, who scored 30 points in the opening round of the Lady Pirate Classic, apparently wasn't satisfied with her game. So last night in the finals against East Carolina, she did just a little better.

Guilford, who was later named the tournament's most valuable player, scored 33 points in leading fifth ranked Cheyney State to an 85-57 victory over East Carolina in the finals.

"She's an excellent player," East Carolina Coach Cathy Andruzzi said afterwards. "We put Fran (Hooks) on her and I think Fran is an excellent defensive player and she couldn't stop her."

Guilford completed the game with 15 of 22 shots from the floor and three of five at the line, adding seven rebounds and four assists. She also was credited with one steal.

Guilford set three tournament records: most points one game (33), most points tournament (63) and most field goals (15).

Not that it was a solo effort that led the Lady Wolves to the title. No, she got help from several of her teammates, most prominently, Yolanda Laney, who scored 19 points and Sandra Giddins, who scored ten, and Sharon Taylor who led both teams with 13 rebounds.

Taylor and Laney joined Guilford on the all-tournament team, announced at the end of the game. East Carolina's Mary Denkler and Clemson's Janet Knight rounded out the squad.

Taylor put Cheyney State ahead at the start, but East Carolina came back on two jumpers by Darlene Chaney to take the lead, 4-2.

However, Taylor hit again to tie it up, and Laney followed with a 15-footer to put Cheyney ahead for good, 6-4. The Wolves added three more baskets for a 12-4 lead before Denkler broke the string.

Over the next few minutes, Cheyney slowly pulled away, giving up two points at one end of the floor, but getting four at their end. By the time the clock read 5:03, Laney had maneuvered inside for a layup to make it 36-16, a 20-point spread for the Wolves.

With 1:10 left, Paulette Bigelow hit a jumper to give the Wolves their biggest lead of the half, 43-20, but the Lady Pirates got baskets from Denkler and Hooks to close the gap to 43-24 at halftime.

However, there was little the Lady Pirates could do to dent the lead. Giddins and Laney both hit to start the second half, pushing the lead back to 23. Cheyney continued to pull away during the next 11 minutes, building up a 34-point margin with 6:52 left as Karen Draughn hit from underneath to give the Lady Wolves a 73-39 lead.

East Carolina slowly began to pull closer after that as they fouled the Lady Wolves in order to get the ball. Cheyney, which hits a higher percentage from the floor than from the line, saw its lead dwindle back to as little as 24 because of the ECU tactic.

"Unfortunately, we couldn't do too much of it, or start too soon," Andruzzi said. "We don't have the bench to start losing people."

Cheyney State finished the game with a fine 55.9 floor percentage — and only 47.4 from the line. East Carolina hit on 43.3 percent of its floor shots, but did even worse at the stripe, just 38.5 percent.

"I don't know how to explain that," Andruzzi said. "We're a better free throw shooting team than that."

The Wolves held a solid 50-29 rebounding edge, led by Taylor. However, Lisa Squirewell pulled away ten for East Carolina.

"I was pleased with the effort," Andruzzi said. "The kids were intense from beginning to end. And Cheyney State is an excellent, excellent basketball team. We played against some of the finest of players. There is not question about the difference in talent."

Andruzzi said she felt the Lady Pirates would have to cut off Cheyney's drives and perimeter shooting, but they were unable to do it. "They shot with a hand in their face every time, but they still hit. That they shot over us is a credit to them."

However, the Lady Pirates didn't give up, despite the odds, Andruzzi thought. "(Cheyney State) had to earn every shot, but with their skill and quickness, they didn't have to work all that hard."

Of her own team's shooting, Andruzzi felt the Lady Pirates got and took good shots. "They fell for us on Saturday night, but not tonight," she said. "They only shot eight more times than we did, but they made 12 more."

East Carolina's scoring was led by Denkler with 26, while Sylvia Bragg added 11.

The loss evened the Pirate record at 10-10, while Cheyney State goes to 20-1.

East Carolina returns to action on Thursday night, hosting Morehead State.

Wildcats 'Snow' UNC

By TOM FOREMAN Jr.

CHAPEL HILL — About the hardest part of 12th-ranked Villanova's 56-53 upset of top-ranked North Carolina was getting the Wildcats from their campus to an airport and eventually to Chapel Hill.

This weekend's blizzard closed down Philadelphia's airport. Thus, to get to Chapel Hill, Villanova took a bus from its campus to Atlantic City, N.J. From there, the Wildcats a charter flight to the Raleigh-Durham Airport, about 30 minutes from Chapel Hill.

"The rough part just was hanging around school waiting," said center John Pinone. "We had to wait about three hours to find out what time we were leaving. It makes you tired and groggy just hanging around waiting to see what you're going to do."

Villanova certainly didn't wait around once it reached Carmichael Auditorium in Chapel Hill. The Wildcats took a 10-point lead in the second half, then used three clutch free throws by Wayne McClain to put an end to North Carolina's 18-game winning streak.

The Tar Heels trailed third-ranked Virginia by 16 points last week, but rallied and pulled out a one-point victory. The Wildcats were aware of that, but said they weren't too worried about their own chances.

"We feel when there's three or four minutes to go and we've got the lead, we're not gonna lose," said Pinone, whose 14 points led the Wildcat attack.

"Last year, I didn't play well against them," said Villanova guard Stewart Granger. "We begged (Coach Rollie Massimino) to play North Carolina. Once you get another chance, you can't refuse it. You've gotta come right at 'em."

Villanova seized the lead by scoring the first seven points. North Carolina, meanwhile, needed a basket by Matt Doherty to break an 0-for-5 slump. The Wildcat lead grew to 21-12 before a Sam Perkins dunk tied the score at 23 late in the first half.

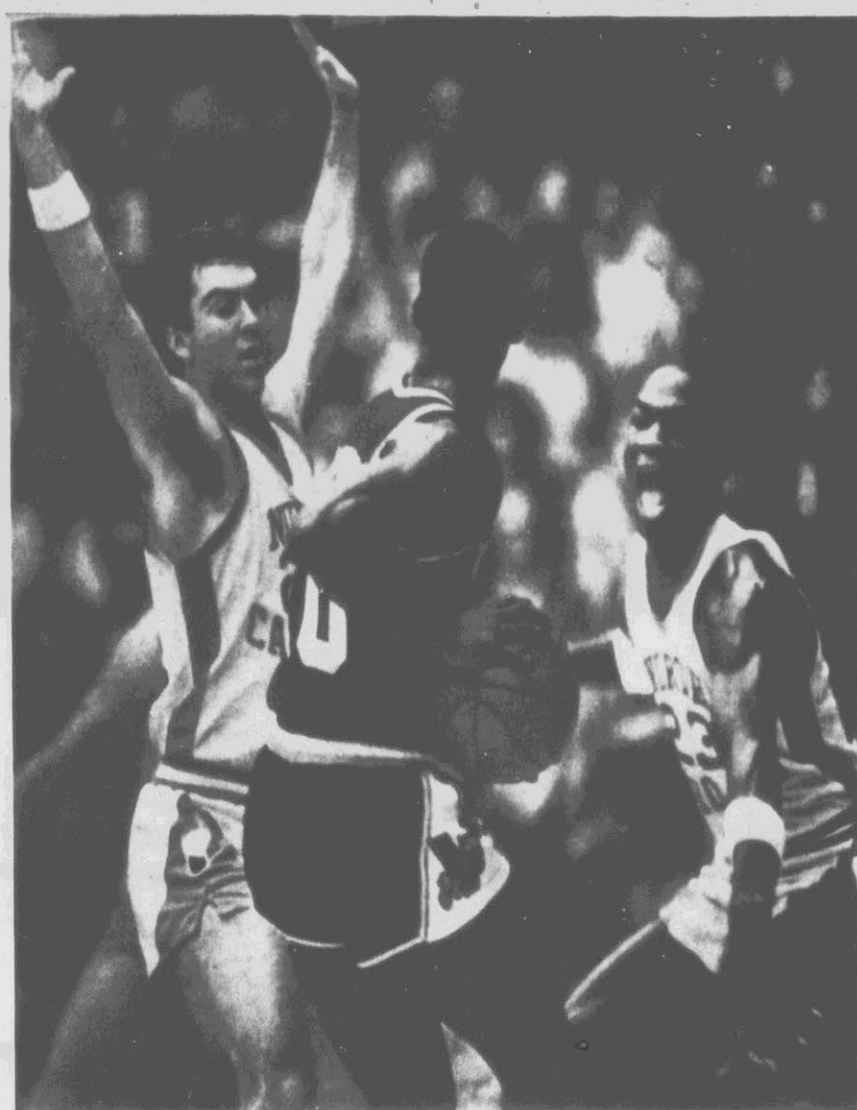

Michael Jordan's follow shot early in the second half gave the Tar Heels their first lead at 31-30. Villanova regained control, but North Carolina tied the score at 35-all on Jim Braddock's jumper with 12:30 left. Finally, Mike Mulquin scored on a baseline jumper, giving Villanova the lead for good at 37-35 with 11:58 left.

Villanova went to a delay and spread the Tar Heel defense. The Wildcat lead grew to 47-37, but North Carolina got as close as 49-45 before McClain hit three of four free throws and Pinone added two more.

The Wildcats also out-rebounded the Tar Heels, 30-21. "We knew they were a strong rebounding club," said Jordan, who scored a game-high 20 points. "We knew we had to keep Ed Pinckney and John Pinone off the boards. With good players like that, it's very hard."

With a 17-4 record, Pinone said the victory provided another stepping stone to the NCAA tournament.

"We were just looking to get

In The Middle

Jordan (23) during their game Sunday in Chapel Hill. Villanova upset No.1-ranked UNC, 56-53. (AP Laserphoto)

a big win to build some momentum going down the stretch," said Pinone.

North Carolina dropped to 21-4, but Coach Dean Smith found a silver lining in his team's cloud.

"It's good to have a tough non-conference game here before the NCAA tournament," said Smith.

Added Perkins: "I don't think we're really down. We just lost to a good team. Even if we had won here, we'd still have to face Maryland on their home court. We'll have to go there, try hard and win."

Georgia Tech is trying harder these days and winning. Its latest effort was a 70-69 victory over Wake Forest in Atlanta, and the victory came after the Demon Deacons blew four opportunities in the last 1:35 to win. The Yellow Jackets blew three bonus opportunities but escaped with their second straight conference victory, the first time they've posted back-to-back ACC triumphs.

"Obviously, this was a great win for our program," said Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins, whose team climbed to 10-10 and 3-7 and meets South Carolina on Wednesday. "I thought it had gotten away from us and we were going to lose."

Wake Forest is third in the conference at 5-3 and 15-6 overall. It will travel to Clemson on Wednesday.

"It's a nice win for Georgia Tech," said Wake Forest coach Carl Tacy, hoping to get into the NCAA tournament for the third straight year.

North Carolina State's chances for post-season play suffered a blow Saturday when Notre Dame took a 43-42 victory, leaving both teams at 13-8. Dan Duff's free throws settled the issue for the Fighting Irish, but the Wolfpack had a chance to win when Terry Gannon fired up a 20-footer with time running out.

"Terry really was wide open," said N.C. State coach Jim Valvano. "You couldn't ask for a better shot. The ball just didn't go in."

Aoki First Japanese To Win On U.S. Tour

HONOLULU (AP) — Everyone was thinking playoff.

"I was trying to prepare myself, mentally prepare myself, for a playoff," said Jack Renner.

"My only thought," Isao Aoki said through an interpreter, "was to get it close and make a birdie and go to a playoff."

But the playoff wasn't necessary in the $325,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Aoki, trailing by one stroke, pitched in from the light rough from 128 yards out for an eagle-3 on the 18th hole Sunday, making him the first Japanese to win on the American PGA Tour.

"I know the Japanese people expected me to win in the United States," said Aoki, generally considered the finest player in golf mad

Japan. "It was their dream, too, that Aoki win in America. I am very happy I could make that dream come true."

It had something of a nightmare quality for the composed, self-contained Renner, however. He was sitting in the scorers' tent as the leader, his day's work done, and Aoki, the only man who could catch him, was chopping up the 539-yard 18th.

After driving into the rough, Aoki hooked his second shot into the gallery.

"The ball hit a spectator and came back out," Renner said. "It would have been a difficult birdie from there, but

Can't Tell NASCAR Drivers Without A Program

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — A $3 program would probably be a good investment this week at Daytona International Speedway for those who want to know who's who.

A monsoon-like rain that began nearly 24 hours earlier continued Sunday, washing out pole qualifying for next Sunday's $1 million Daytona 500, a 200-mile ARCA stock car race and the $200,000 Busch Clash. The few folks who came to the speedway hoping the show could go on had to wait until today, when all three events were rescheduled, but that gave them plenty of time to study the thick "Daytona Speed Weeks" program.

There has been a considerable shuffling of drivers, cars, teams and sponsors since the 1982 NASCAR Grand National stock car season ended last November at Riverside, Calif.

Drivers with new rides include three-time Winston Cup champion Cale Yarborough, Daytona 500 record-holder Buddy Baker, as well as Neil Bonnett, Tim Richmond, Benny Parsons, Kyle Petty, Jody Ridley, Lake Speed and Dick Brooks.

Last year, it was the 1982 Buick Regal that dominated the series, with series champion Darrell Waltrip leading the way by winning 12 of the 30 races in a Regal.

However, this year's early-season favorite is the new Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS — a virtual copy of last year's Monte Carlo except for a sleek, new aerodynamic nose.

When Junior Johnson, Waltrip's car owner and a trend leader, chose the new Monte Carlo, many of the top teams followed suit.

"If Junior decided to go racing with a wagon and four square wheels, there'd be people who'd copy it the next week," Waltrip says.

Another exciting new addition to the Grand National circuit is the small, sleek 1983 Ford Thunderbird, which Baker, Brooks, Bill Elliott and Dale Earnhardt are driving.

Drag racer Raymond Beadle has formed a new team, with Richmond the driver of his new Monte Carlo. Yarborough made his move to Harry Ranier's team after the team he was driving for, operated by M.C. Anderson, went out of business.

The biggest shift came in sponsors. The individual teams are more concerned about the corporate money that can make or break their efforts. But the fans are concerned about the sponsorships because they determine the color and design of the individual cars.

Waltrip's corporate sponsor of recent years, Pepsi, made the decision to switch from the green and white color scheme of Mountain Dew to the yellow, red and white of Pepsi.

Allison, driving for the DiGard team, which parted ways with Gatorade at the end of 1982, has changed from the familiar green and white design to the white and red of Miller High Life. Meanwhile, Gatorade has taken No. 88 and the green and white to Cliff Stewart's team, with Geoff Bodine in the driver's seat.

Beadle's new Chevrolet will sport the white and red of Old Milwaukee Beer; Parsons' Buick, owned by Johnny Hayes, will be the green and white of Skoal; Billy Hagan's Monte Carlo, with Terry Labonte driving, picked up the red and white Budweiser color scheme, and the Wood Brothers' Ford, with Buddy Baker handling the wheel, is white, red and black to display the Valvoline sponsorship.

"There are only going to be a couple of really recognizable cars out there at first," noted Parsons, who won last year's Daytona 500 pole in the Ranier car, which then was sponsored by J.D. Stacy. This season, the car will be wrapped in the white and orange of Hardee's and driven by Yarborough.

No Mudder, Daniel Still Takes Classic

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Beth Daniel considers herself a good bad weather player, but not necessarily a "mudder."

"In order to be a good mudder, you've got to be playing well," said Daniel, who holds a two-stroke lead over JoAnne Carner in the rain-delayed $175,000 LPGA Sarasota Classic.

"If I'm not playing very well, then I'm not going to do well in the rain."

Daniel, the defending champion in this event and winner of five tournaments last season, is playing well, and that's why she's at 7-under par through 15 holes of the third round on the soggy 6,128-yard Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course.

She had an opening round of 70 Thursday, despite stiff winds and a thunderstorm; took advantage of dry weather Friday to shoot a 68, and came back Saturday to battle rain again and stand 1-under for the day when third-round action was suspended.

The rain continued Saturday night and Sunday morning and tournament officials decided to wait until today to try to complete the event.

Twenty-seven golfers, including all the leaders, were still on the course when play was stopped Saturday, as the steady rain left many of the greens under water.

Daniel admitted that she is playing well, but said she also was lucky, considering the condition of the course.

"I've played well in the rain and won a lot of tournaments after it's rained," Daniel said Saturday. "It comes to a certain time, though, when the rain takes skill out of the game and you become lucky."

"The course is in as bad a shape as I've ever seen," said Daniel, who qualified for the tour here in 1979 and has played in this tournament four times.

"I thought they would have called it sooner than they did. It was getting to be a joke out there by the time they did."

Carner, who also was 1 under through 15 holes for the day, was two shots behind Daniel and 5 under for the tournament. Kathy Postlewait followed at 3 under and Alice Miller, Donna White and Jo Ann Washam also were on the leader board at 1 under.

Best Of The Best, Dr. J Sparks East Past West

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — By vote and by peer acclaim, "Dr. J" was the best of the best.

Displaying his soaring, twisting dunks, fingertip layups and other feats of athletic agility that seem to defy laws of gravity and human physiology, "The Doctor," Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers, was voted the Most Valuable Player in Sunday's 33rd annual National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

He scored a game-high 25 points for the East, which never trailed en route to a 132-123 victory over the West. It was the fourth consecutive triumph by the Eastern Conference and 22nd in the series.

It marked the second All-Star MVP Award for Erving, 32. He had been honored for his play in the 1977 contest, a one-point loss by his East team.

Among his most impressed "fans" Sunday were his fellow players on both teams.

"Dr. J is unbelievable and he did a great job of making things happen," said Los Angeles' Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who was impressive himself with an All-Star record 16 assists and 17 points in the loss. "If the fans have a particular favorite move, I'm sure they saw it happen in this game. People got their money's worth, no doubt about it."

West Coach Pat Riley smiled and shook his head in wonder as he described Erving's performance.

"Julius always seems to have great All-Star Games," the Lakers' coach said. "He makes great plays look routine. He's great. He's the best."

Erving, who scored 17 of his points in the second half as the East kept thwarting West comeback bids, said he was honored to be selected the contest's MVP, but tended to downplay his performance.

"As many complimentary things as people say about me, I only play one way," Erving said. "It's not a matter of getting up for a game. I just go out and play. Shots that others call amazing are shots that are just a part of my game."

He said that the MVP balloting, in which he drew 51 votes from the media to 25 for runnerup Isiah Thomas of Detroit, reminded him of his 1977 award.

"A lot of guys played well," Erving said. "I know, like before when I was the MVP, the voting was far from unanimous. Magic and Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar of the Lakers) played spectacularly ... There were so many great plays."

Thomas scored 19 points for the winners, Milwaukee's Sidney Moncrief had 20, and Boston's Larry Bird had 14 points and a game-high 13 rebounds.

Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 points and made a number of fine defensive plays in the middle for the the West, which trailed 69-64 at halftime but fell behind by as many as 18 points in the third quarter before closing the gap in the final period.

"The East got some really outstanding individual efforts from bonafide superstars like Larry Bird and Julius," said Abdul-Jabbar.

Ex-Notre Dame Halfback Heads College Hall Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Notre Dame halfback Bill Shakespeare, hero of one of the most famous rallies in college football history, was one of five men named to the National Football Foundation's College Hall of Fame today in the deceased category.

Besides Shakespeare, others named to the Hall of Fame were Southern California guard John Baker, Army quarterback Arnold Galiffa, Michigan center Ernie Vick and Frank Murray, who coached at Marquette and Virginia.

The selections were made by the foundation's Honors Court. The deceased Hall of Famers will be inducted at special on-campus ceremonies next fall prior to a home game to be designated by their respective universities.

Shakespeare was the hero of Notre Dame's 18-13 triumph over Ohio State in 1935. The Irish trailed 13-0 entering the final period but eventually won on Shakespeare's touchdown pass to Wayne Milner with 32 seconds remaining. Shakespeare died in 1974.

Baker, who won four football letters at Southern Cal, kicked the field goal with one minute to play that gave the Trojans a 16-14 triumph in 1931 that snapped a 26-game Notre Dame unbeaten streak. Baker died in 1979.

Galiffa, who died in 1978, was a standout quarterback at West Point from 1947-49 and also played baseball and basketball. He served in the Army for two years before receiving an appointment to the Military Academy and later was on active duty for three years during the Korean War.

Vick, who won four letters at Michigan, was named to the 1921 All-America team by Walter Camp. He later played professional baseball and was a catcher with the world champion St. Louis Cardinals in 1926. He also played pro football with the Chicago Bears and was a long-time football official. He died in 1980.

Murray, who never played football, coached at Marquette from 1922-36 and again from 1946-49 and at Virginia from 1937-45. His Marquette teams were unbeaten in 1922, 1923 and 1930 and his overall record was 145-89-11, including a 16-6 loss to Texas Christian on Jan. 1, 1937, in the first Cotton Bowl game. Murray was one of the pioneers of the huddle and one of the first coaches to exploit flankers and the spread formation. He died in 1951.

Eagle Lifts Aoki To Win...

I was trying to prepare myself for a playoff. He's one of the world's best short-game players."

But Aoki's wedge shot covered the flag, took one hop and ducked into the cup for an eagle. There was a stunned silence for a moment, then Aoki raised his arms in triumph, tears forming in his eyes as the mob of Japanese tourists began a screaming celebration.

"Apparently, it wasn't meant for me to win," shrugged Renner who, with the one swing of the club, went from a one-shot leader to a one-shot loser. "But I'm looking at it positively. I played well. I had a good tournament. I got beat by a shot."

The shot finished off a round of 67 for Aoki and a 268 total, 20 strokes under par on the Waialae Country Club course. Renner, who played the par-5 holes 5-under for the day and lipped out an eagle putt on the final hole, shot a closing 66 and had a 269 total.

Ben Crenshaw, one of six men who led or shared the lead over the final 18 holes, was third alone at 271 after a 66 in the warm, sunny weather.

Tied at 272 were Hale Irwin,

Andy Bean, Peter Jacobsen and Ed Fiori. Irwin had a closing 65, Bean 67, Jacobsen 70 and Fiori 71.

Aoki's victory was worth $58,500 from the total purse of $325,000.

The 40-year-old Aoki has won the Japanese PGA for four of the last five years. He has a total of 39 career victories in Japan, plus the 1978 World Match Play Championship in England.

This, however, was "the greatest thrill of my career," he said.

Aoki, who uses a peculiar putting style with the toe of the club raised, first came to national attention in America when he chased Jack Nicklaus to the 1980 U.S. Open title. In two years as a full-fledged member of the U.S. Tour, however, he had indifferent success and last season finished 122nd on the money-winning list.

NEWLYWEDS — Comedian Jerry Lewis underwent emergency heart surgery. The couple had a very small and private ceremony. (AP after they were married on Key Biscayne (Florida) Sunday night.

From Heart Surgery To Second Marriage

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — A happy Jerry Lewis, newly married to a 32-year-old dancer in a private ceremony, joked that his change of status won't be slowing him down.

Lewis and SanDee Pitnick were wed Sunday. It was the second marriage for both.

The comedian, who recently underwent heart surgery, said he and his bride chose Sunday for the ceremony because it was Feb. 13, and 13 is Lewis' lucky number.

The wedding was described as "very small, very private," by Craig Wood, spokesman for Lewis' favorite charity, the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Wood said none of the comedian's famous friends attended the nuptials.

Lewis joked with photographers as the newlyweds left an elevator at the Sonesta Beach Hotel for a private dinner after the service.

When someone in the crowd of people gathered in the lobby yelled, "Are you going to settle down now?" Lewis responded, "I'll settle down when (Israeli Prime Minister Menachem) Begin runs the Vatican."

The couple would not discuss their honeymoon plans.

"If you guys run out of film, I've got plenty more in my pocket," bantered the 56-year-old entertainer, wearing a dark blue double-breasted sport coat, light blue slacks and red bow tie.

His auburn-haired bride wore an ivory chiffon dress and a crown of baby's breath and pink roses.

The comedian went home from a Las Vegas hospital on New Year's Day after undergoing double bypass heart surgery, and was given a check up last week by his friend, prominent surgeon Dr. Michael DeBakey.

DeBakey gave the comedian permission to resume a normal life, but ordered him to quit smoking and watch his diet, Wood said.

Lewis recently divorced his wife of 36 years, Patti. He has six sons from the former marriage.

The comedian, who has resumed a film career after a 10-year break, met Ms. Pitnick in the Miami area three years ago when he auditioned 150 disco dancers for his movie "Hardly Working."

Ms. Pitnick, a native of Winston-Salem, N.C., is a former stewardess who once danced with the Harkness Ballet Co.

The comedian plans to begin working on a new movie in France in April, but he will return to the United States in time to host the annual Labor Day telethon to raise funds to fight muscular dystrophy, said association spokeswoman Donna Peltier.

Ann-Margret Brings Aura Of Love To Film

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — After a week watching Ali MacGraw skim annoyingly over every moment of caring or feeling in "The Winds of War," it's refreshing to see Ann-Margret give dignity and love to a supremely courageous woman in the ABC movie, "Who Will Love My Children?"

The movie, based on a true incident from the 1950s, focuses on Lucile Fray, an Iowa housewife who, realizing she is dying from cancer, endeavors to find adoptive homes for her 10 children.

The specter of impending death for two hours would seem a real downer, but "Who Will Love My Children" is a buoyant film because of Ann-Margret (in her dramatic TV debut), a script by Michael Bortman, and direction by John Erman ("Roots").

The film consistently accents the positive — even to the point, sometimes, of too much personal heroics. Although Lucile is dying of cancer, the story scrupulously avoids physical pain, debilitation or any death scenes.

Many glamorous roles are going to younger stars, so, to get work, actresses must stretch their abilities and sensibilities. When we first see Ann-Margret, she looks frumpy and haggard — as distant from her Las Vegas act as possible.

Lucile is about to deliver her 10th child, and her husband arrives just in time. Ivan (Frederic Forrest) is a not a bad man. He loves his family, but his alcoholism and arthritis are related tortures that make him unreliable and incapable of raising 10 kids alone.

When Lucile learns she needs a mastectomy, her first reaction is how will Ivan feel? Selfish is not part of her vocabulary.

Neither is deception. When the cancer spreads, she dishes out some honesty, along with the macaroni and cheese at dinner. In a manipulative scene that is successful because of the actress' sincerity, Lucile tells the children about the future without her.

Somehow, she manages to stay composed, even when one daughter, milk coating her lips, says: "I'd rather go to heaven with you, Mommy."

In fact, one of the few times Lucile gets emotionally distracted from the business of finding new families for her kids is when she realizes Ivan's pain. While this movie is about hope and new opportunities for the kids, Ivan is losing his family and being abandoned.

Forrest, who received an Oscar nomination for "The Rose," powerfully conveys Ivan's plight. In one scene, he senses his alienation from his kids. "It's all disappearing on me," he says.

The script's humor and gentleness balances the emotional trauma of a mother giving up her children. In one trial visit, one son bounces home and announces he was rejected: "They changed their minds. They want a girl."

The movie is filled with warm moments. The desperate situation brings out the best in everybody. One child appreciates his new parents, yet isn't ready to designate them mom and dad. The man says softly that his name is "Alfred."

One of the most difficult placements is the family's epileptic son. The local welfare bureaucracy, which isn't supportive of Lucile's one-woman adoption agency, wants him institutionalized. Lucile fights for a real home, soliciting medical families, believing they would be less fearful of the seizures.

One problem with inspirational, true-life stories is that you never know where Hollywood starts and reality ends. "Who Will Love My Children?" needs a postscript to update the story.

Be My Valentine

Valentine cards have changed over the years, but their sentiment remains the same. The original Valentine card was actually a simple slip of paper with a name written on it. In Britain in the 1700s, young people gathered on the eve of Valentine's Day to celebrate the occasion. At those meetings, the young women would write their names on slips of paper and put them into a vase. Then each young man would draw a name to find out who his "valentine" was to be. The young men pinned their valentines' names on their sleeves and wore them there for several days. The old expression "wearing your heart on your sleeve" probably came from this custom.

Nab Matriarch Of Drug Ring

WEST MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A jilted boyfriend helped authorities arrest the suspected matriarch of a 70-member cocaine ring in a raid that was "like something out of a 'B' movie," narcotics agents said.

MARTHA CARDONA

Martha Libia Cardona, 36, was taken into custody Saturday while she was attending a baby shower at a Latin restaurant, officials said.

Authorities were led to the party by Ms. Cardona's jilted boyfriend, Mario Estevez, said Drug Enforcement Administration agent Brent Eaton. Estevez is to testify this week in a drug trial.

According to Eaton, Estevez walked into a roomful of "about 50 very well-dressed ladies at a lavish shower with a lot of nicely wrapped gifts." Estevez scanned the group of chatting women, spotted Mrs. Cardona and pointed her out to waiting DEA agents and West Miami police officers, he said.

"She was supposed to have had bodyguards there, but nobody interfered at all," Eaton said.

As the commotion began, two men who looked like bodyguards showed up, one carrying a violin case and the other a guitar box.

"They looked in at what was happening and ran out the door," taking the instrument cases with them, Eaton said. "This is like something out of a 'B' movie."

The woman had a little trouble identifying herself, agents said.

"She paused and said, 'I am ... Aurora Gomez,'" Eaton said. "But several women said, 'Lily, Lily Reyes, why are they taking you away?' Someone else said, 'That's Martha Libia; why are you taking her away?'"

When Mrs. Cardona was booked into the Women's Detention Center, "all she said was, 'Look, what can I tell you?'" Eaton said. Jailers took thousands of dollars worth of diamonds from the woman when she was booked.

Eaton said the woman wore a ring set with "three extremely large diamonds worth $30,000 to $40,000; a $20,000 woman's Rolex watch with five to 10 diamonds, and a huge diamond pendant."

She also carried $1,200 in cash.

Investigators believe Mrs. Cardona took over Colombia's Gabriela crime network after her husband, Carlos, was shot to death in New York in 1977. Since then, five network employees have died violently, agents say.

Mrs. Cardona jumped a $1 million bond on drug and weapons charges two years ago, officials said.

Mrs. Cardona, her sister Martha Laura Cardona and Aura Giraldo all became fugitives after their arrests in December 1980, authorities said.

City Services Brochure Issued

City Manager Gail Meeks announced the publication of a new 26-page city services brochure prepared by the city's public information office.

Mrs. Meeks said the booklet will "serve as a fingertip information resource for citizens who are interested in learning more about city government or who may have particular questions about services provided by the city."

She said the brochure will provide readers with brief historical data, a summary of the form of government, and a one-page reference of most frequently used city telephone number. Summaries on the various types of city services are included.

Copies of the booklet are available at city hall, or interested citizens may call Nadine Bowen in the city manager's office for a free copy.
