'Reduction In Force' Policies Discussed

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposed Reduction in Force (RIF) policy encompassing four points, prepared by a teachers' Liaison Committee, was presented to members of the Greenville Board of Education Monday night.

The proposal is part of a continuing effort to fashion an instrument to be used, if it becomes necessary because of declining enrollment in the city schools and cutbacks in funding, to reduce the staff of the school system. The proposal presented Monday night was not for action, but for consideration by the board.

Fay Creagan, in the role of spokesman for the Liaison Committee, presented the four-point proposal.

Under the structure of the proposal, each of the four points will carry a maximum determining allocation of 25 points in a plan to reach a decision on which staff members (basically teachers) would be dropped from the ranks if reduction must be made.

The proposed structure is:

•Years of service in the teaching profession — one point per year for service to a maximum of 25 points.

•Years of service in Greenville schools — one point per year for service to a maximum of 25 points.

•Certification based on North Carolina teaching certificate — A certification, 14 points; G certification, 17 points; advanced certification, 20 points; PhD degree, 23 points; plus 2 points for each additional area shown on N.C. Certification, for a maximum of 25 points.

•Performance — Scale worked out by a computer based on the 33 weighted indicators, maximum of 25 points.

Ms. Creagan said the proposal represents the majority "consensus of our teachers who voted for an objective RIF policy based on seniority and certification." She said that seven of the schools voted in the majority for the Liaison Committee proposal, two voted against the proposal, and one school abstained because of a tie vote situation.

Ms. Creagan also said that "after the Liaison Committee became aware of the administrative team's philosophy, which is based on performance being the decisive predominant variable, we went back to the teachers and devised a second proposal" (The four-point presented Monday night).

She called the proposal a compromise.

Two teachers, Mena Lassiter and Leveta Weatherington, presented opposing views of teachers on the four-point proposal, basing their concern primarily on their conviction that performance and seniority are separate entities and should not be used together in one instrument, or policy paper for reduction in force.

"An equitable Reduction in Force policy should be based on seniority," Ms. Lassiter commented. "When performance is included in such a policy, it becomes a teacher performance appraisal instrument."

"We ask you not to place us in a position of being competitive among ourselves as teachers when faced with implementing a Reduction in Force policy. A RIF-ed teacher should be able to walk away from the Greenville city schools system with dignity and perception that he is a qualified, competent professional having met the standards provided by the Teacher Performance Appraisal. This would not be possible if performance is an indicator within the Reduction in Force policy," Ms. Lassiter concluded.

Ms. Weatherington, saying she represented the NCAE, stressed that the opinion among many teachers is that competence is dealt with effectively in the state tenure regulations and in the mandated evaluation process.

"When RIF is in any way based on performance, serious

Job Legislation Speeds Toward House Approval

By MIKE SHANAHAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Emergency jobs legislation recommended by President Reagan and modified by Democrats is speeding toward quick congressional action, and is likely to clear the House within two weeks.

House Democratic leaders agreed Monday to accept the recession relief measure proposed by President Reagan's senior advisers last week.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said House Democrats will likely add about $1 billion to the $4.3 billion Reagan jobs proposal, and then later approve a long-term employment measure the president is almost sure to oppose.

For now, however, there was broad agreement among Republicans and Democrats in Congress and at the White House that some form of quick aid should be signed into law within the next several weeks to help the jobless and those unable to pay for food or lodging.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said today that presidential aides were expecting a formal reply on the package Wednesday from congressional Democrats.

He would not say whether any items in the package fall into the category of "make-work, dead-end jobs" that Reagan has repeatedly said he opposes.

"Let's wait until we have an agreement ... and then we can analyze it," Speakes said.

O'Neill said House Democratic leaders agreed it was necessary "to move the measure quickly, in order that we bring relief to those millions of Americans who must suffer through this winter without the basics of food and shelter."

"We are making good progress (toward an agreement)," said Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Baker, House Minority Leader Bob Michel of Illinois and other Republican leaders were to meet with Reagan today to discuss specifics of the measure.

Aides said House Republicans have already agreed to accept the proposal in general.

Among the items in Reagan's proposal were many he had threatened to veto when a jobs bill was approved by House during last year's lame-duck session of Congress.

Conceding that a majority of Democrats in the House want a broader, more expensive jobs package, O'Neill said Monday, "This is not the best bill we Democrats could write, but it may be the best bill we can enact into law."

Among the relief measures in the proposal are:

—$250 million for food and shelter for the homeless.

—$1 billion in grants to local governments which they would be expected to use to hire the unemployed.

—The remaining $3 billion would go to speed up federal purchases or construction projects planned for later years.

More specifically, the money would include $300 million for military housing, $100 million to repair Veterans Administration facilities and $400 million for buses and subways.

There would also be money to upgrade parks, airports, highways, Indian reservations and federal health facilities. Some $50 million would be earmarked for government purchases of cars and trucks, an idea designed to give a slight boost to the auto industry.

Another $3 billion would extend by nine months the eligibility of workers for unemployment benefits at a time when 10.2 percent of the work force is unemployed.

Last year, Reagan labeled almost half of the $4.3 billion as "pork barrel." But pressures from congressional Republicans changed his mind, and he is now supporting the same projects he threatened to veto three months ago.

Hefty Education Cuts In North Carolina Expected

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State education officials say President Reagan's proposed budget would be "extremely destructive to North Carolina" — costing the state as much as $23 million in federal funds by the 1984-85 school year.

In a budget analysis announced Monday by the Department of Public Instruction, officials said the state could lose 900 teachers and 400 teacher aides if Congress approves the budget for fiscal 1984.

Most losses would come in child nutrition, special instruction for poor students, migrant education, Indian education and vocational education, the report said.

"It would be extremely destructive to North Carolina if this budget were enacted," said Joseph B. Webb, special assistant for federal programs to state Superintendent A. Craig Phillips.

Webb predicted the state would be unable to make up the funding cuts if Reagan's budget is approved as proposed. Webb says he is hoping Congress will reject some of the recommended cuts.

For the 1980-81 school year, North Carolina received $285.8 million in federal aid for major educational programs, Webb said. That dropped to $254.4 million in 1981-82 and increased to $257.2 million in 1982-83, when Congress did not follow Reagan's budget, he said.

Under the present plan, the state would get about $239.8 million for the 1983-84 school year, Webb said. That would be a loss of $17.4 million in major programs, in addition to $5.6 million lost under the proposed budget for other programs.

The state would lose $7 million in school year 1983-84 and an additional $10 million in 1984-85 in funds for the federal program intended to help students who come from low incomes home under Chapter 1 of the Education Consolidation Act.

The cuts would be based on census data about which Webb said he was skeptical. According to 1980 census data, there were about 30 percent fewer children from low-income families in North Carolina than in 1970.

The program's cut would mean a reduction of 1,208 teachers and teacher aides and elimination of services to more than 40,000 students over the two-year period.

The child nutrition program, which also benefits children from low-income families, would sustain substantial cuts under the Reagan budget.

The school breakfast, child care and summer food services program would be lumped into a block grant, the report said.

The breakfast program would be cut 43 percent in the 1983-84 school year compared to 1982-83.

The child-care feeding program would undergo a 40 percent cut and the summer food program a 49 percent cut.

The Reagan budget also would reduce "impact aid" to the states, which has been an important element of budgets for school systems near military installations.

Webb said the exact number of students, teachers and services that would be involved in cuts in the impact aid program cannot be determined yet.

Programs aimed at the children of migrant farm workers would be cut by half by the 1984-85 school year, eliminating services to more than 6,000 migrant children and 150 teaching positions.

Reagan proposes to rescind 37 percent of funds appropriated for Indian education from 1983-84 and to end all funding in 1984-85.

Plants In Greene And Wayne Preparing To End Operations

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

The scheduled closing late next month of Young Squire apparel plants in Mount Olive and Hookerton will result in a total layoff of over 700 employees in Wayne and Greene counties, officials report.

Philip Talerico, manager of the Mount Olive facility, said today that the 375 employees in production and management there are being laid off in phases and the closing should be complete "probably sometime the latter part of March."

Talerico said the Young Squire, a subsidiary of U.S. Industries, received advanced word "about 18 months ago that USI was going to divest itself of certain of its divisions." He said it was known at that time that Young Squire was one of the targeted subsidiaries but "we were hoping maybe it wouldn't happen."

The facility at Hookerton, operating under the name of Togs as a manufacturing plant for Young Squire, has had an employee roster of some 300 production workers and about 30 salaried personnel, according to manager Mack Stocks.

Stocks said a phased layoff at his plant has already cut back the employment roster about 75 percent and the employees still working will probably be maintained until the close-out after completion.

Ayden Bd. Wants Keep ABC Store Downtown

By MARY SCHULKEN
Reflector Staff Writer

AYDEN — The Town Board of Commissioners wants the ABC Store to remain downtown, members said Monday.

A resolution stating that the town board is "desirous that the (ABC) store remain in the central business district or in the fringe areas" was approved by commissioners at their meeting Monday night.

The ABC Store is now located downtown but its current lease will expire April 1. A new site at the West Third Street shopping center has been sought by the ABC Board.

The Ayden Commissioners' resolution, which suggests that the ABC Board "strongly consider downtown sites," will be sent to the State Chairman of the ABC Board and the Pitt County Commissioners.

The resolution states that the proposed West Third

Winterville Tables New Plea By Sunnyside Eggs

Winterville Aldermen tabled a request Monday night from L. E. Wooten and Co. to discharge wastewater from Sunnyside Eggs through the old Winterville treatment plant site.

The board last month rejected a similar request, saying the town's main lift station was already operating at capacity. The Wooten company, an engineering firm, said Sunnyside's average daily wastewater discharge would be approximately 3,000 to 5,000 gallons of water.

The board said Monday that more study is needed.

In other business heard by the board, an application was submitted to Seaboard

Coastline Railroad for six crossings over the tracks from Boyd Street to Sylvania Street.

In new business, David Whitley, representing Coastal Electronics, made a proposal to the board for a service contract on the town's police communications equipment. The total cost for the contract would be $84 a month. The board said this probably would be included in next year's budget. No action was taken.

Winterville Rescue Squad members Wayne Nobles and Ashley Dail asked the board to approve the town's paying the insurance, totaling $675 a year on the two rescue vehicles in use by the squad. This would be under the county's policy.

The board approved the request.

The board authorized Town Clerk Elwood Nobles to advertise for bids for the paving and resurfacing of Jones, Knox, Academy, Church, South Railroad, North Railroad and Depot streets. The recommended date for the bid opening was slated for March 4, 1983, at 1 p.m.

The board also approved a municipal maintenance agreement with the state for a traffic control device located at the intersection of Mill and Main streets.

A bill in the amount of $362 with Wynn's Chevrolet in Bethel for repairs to the town fire truck was also approved.

Esther Snyder Still Waits For Call After One Year

By ALAN L. ADLER
Associated Press Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) — A year ago, 62-year-old Esther Snyder signed up to take the written police exam — and passed with flying colors. Now she's awaiting the next step — the physical test.

"I'm in that age group that people think are too old to do anything," Ms. Snyder said. "Everything is against me as far as the police department is concerned."

Ms. Snyder scored 99.47 percent on the written test, 194th among the 2,378 applicants who took the test last March.

Although she's not sure whether she could pass the physical exam, Ms. Snyder said she wants to try.

Ms. Snyder said she understands the city has budget limitations, but she believes she was discriminated against because of her age and sex.

"They have desk jobs filled by men with their bellies hanging over their desks," she said.

But she admits it would be a "miracle" if she was hired.

The two-minute test requires an applicant to run 100 yards, climb a 6-foot fence, walk a 12-foot-long balance beam, run another 100 yards, and grip a dynamometer to show 75 pounds of strength in each hand. After a 30-second break, candidates must run 50 feet while dragging a 145-pound dummy, then place it on a 2-foot high platform.

Although a test date hasn't been scheduled, Ms. Snyder said she is preparing by doing calisthenics, squeezing rubber balls and jogging.

STILL WANTS TO BE A COP...Esther Snyder, 62, still wants to be a Cleveland police officer but says her time is getting short. (AP Laserphoto)

"I'm not a crusader," she said. "But I think there's something radically wrong with our society. I'm not trying to run down the Cleveland police department, but I want to strike a blow for all these older people."

like myself, who are being wasted."

Cleveland has hired no new officers in the last year, according to personnel department records. The department recently laid off 30 cadets because of a city budget deficit.

"I haven't talked to anyone lately because it's plain that no one is being hired," she said. "From everything I've heard, read and seen, if I get on (the force), it will be a miracle."

Ms. Snyder said that after she and her husband were divorced, she raised the couple's four children alone. She has a master's degree in elementary education and taught for 13 years in Cleveland schools.

"I think I could hold my own in any type of situation,"

Ms. Snyder said. "I live in the neighborhood with the second-highest crime rate in the city. I walk at all times by myself."

Ms. Snyder lives on her savings and $267 a month that she gets from early Social Security benefits. Although she said she would like more money, her sense of self-worth is more important.

"I don't intend to ever get old-timers disease," she said. "I'm frustrated. I can always talk myself out of discouragement."

Mrs. E.H. Brunelle was welcomed as a new member. It was decided to donate $100 to the Pitt County Department of Social Services fuel emergency fund.

Cooking Is Fun

CHERRY CAKE — Fun to serve for a party on Feb. 22, Washington's Birthday.

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press
Food Editor

Every once in a while a cook has asked me how to bake a German pound-type cake made with tart red cherries. I was familiar with recipes for Black Forest Cherry Torte, but not with the sought-after cherry cake.

Then recently I tasted it at a friend's house and discovered she had made it from a recipe in "Chef Tell's Quick Cuisine" by Chef Tell Erdhardt with Rosalyn T. Badalamenti (Warner Books).

Chef Tell's knowledge of German cooking can be trusted. After working in restaurants in Europe, he became, at 24, the youngest man in West Germany to earn the title of Master Chef. And for a dozen years before he made his home in America and became a television star, he served as the executive chef at a famous hotel in Germany's Black Forest region.

Our adaptation of his Cherry Cake recipe follows. You may want to serve it as is at a brunch or with whipped cream for a dinner dessert. In either case, we agree with Chef Tell that the cake should be offered warm.

CHERRY CAKE
Streusel, recipe follows
2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup cornstarch
2 teaspoons baking powder
Two 1/4-pound sticks (1 cup) butter
1 1/2 cups sugar
3 large eggs
3 tablespoons kirsch (clear cherry brandy)
1-pound can tart red pitted cherries (packed in water), well drained

Grease and flour a 9-inch springform pan. Prepare Streusel.

On wax paper or in a bowl sift together flour, cornstarch and baking powder.

In the large bowl of an electric mixer, at medium speed cream butter and sugar; beat in eggs, one at a time, until blended. Beat in kirsch. Add flour mixture; fold in with a rubber spatula. Turn into prepared pan.

Cover batter with cherries, leaving a 1/4-inch space at the edge. Sprinkle Streusel over top.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 1 1/4 hours. With a small metal spatula, loosen edges and remove band. Serve warm with whipped cream flavored with vanilla and sweetened to taste. Makes 12 servings.

STREUSEL

In a small bowl stir together 1/4 cup all-purpose flour, 1/4 cup granulated sugar and 1 teaspoon cinnamon. With a pastry blender cut in 1/4 cup butter until coarse crumbs form.

Send Regrets To Bridal Shower

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received an invitation to a bridal shower. It stated, "Anything for the kitchen or bath will be appreciated." A "P.S." was included: "Check with one of the hostesses to avoid duplicates."

In the first place, I am not a close friend of the bride-to-be. In fact, I barely know her. And the three hostesses are total strangers to me!

I have no interest in attending this shower but was told that I am obligated to send a gift whether I attend or not. Can that be?

What is the object of such a shower?

APPALLED IN OHIO

DEAR APPALLED: The object of such a shower is to soak as many people as possible. Since you barely know the bride, and the hostesses are strangers to you, your only obligation is to send your regrets.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, my 50-year-old husband of 20 years had a one-night "romance" with a co-worker half his age on the night before he was to move to another state.

I thought we had the perfect marriage, but evidently we didn't. Abby, the pain was terrible. I can't understand why he did it. I thought if we talked openly about it and I knew exactly what happened between them — in detail — I might be able to see things from his point of view, but he refuses to discuss it.

He said he was sorry and it would never happen again, so in time I forgave him. The problem is, I can't forget.

Not one day goes by that I am not reminded of this girl and what went on between them. I feel her presence constantly between us — especially at night. It's as though she is always lying in bed between us. I keep telling myself that if this happened once, it could happen again with somebody else.

I can't live the rest of my life feeling this way. Please help me.

DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: People who say they can forgive but can't forget have not really forgiven. Don't press your husband for a more detailed account of "what happened"; it would only give you more to agonize about.

Your inability (or unwillingness) to let go of this punishing incident indicates that you need professional help to put these destructive feelings to rest once and for all.

DEAR ABBY: Keep hammering away in your campaign to encourage adults as well as children to expose anyone who attempts to sexually molest them.

My sister's husband sexually assaulted women and children for 30 years before I got enough information to present to my sister. His victims included two of my sisters, my daughter, three cousins, two nieces, a sister-in-law, his own daughter, as well as his daughter-in-law.

Only one child reported it to her mother. Then her mother kept it a secret without even confronting the molester! My daughter told me only after she had grown up. I began asking women in the family, and only then did the victims tell. I'm sure there are many other cases where the victims don't tell because they think theirs is just one isolated incident, and they don't want to cause trouble in the family.

It wasn't easy to get the facts about my brother-in-law. I felt like a gossip and tattletale, even though I knew I was doing the right thing.

Secrecy is on the side of the molester.

See Correlation With Growth In Abuse Due To Joblessness

By MARCELLA S. KREITER

United Press International
The dismal state of the economy is apparently having a cruel side effect — an increase in deaths of children as a result of child abuse.

Specific figures are few. Authorities in the field, however, agree there is a significant increase in such deaths. Individual cases usually are attributed to other causes. But, based on the overall increase in child abuse which can be more easily tracked, authorities believe the pressures of unemployment are an underlying factor. They say cutbacks in funds for social services to prevent child abuse also are a factor.

"We do know the unemployment rate has skyrocketed this year as has the number of child deaths," said Anne Cohn, executive director of the National Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse.

Jim Harrell, a spokesman for the National Center on Child Abuse and Neglect in Washington, estimates there are now 1.1 million cases of neglect and abuse annually. He says as many as 5,000 of the victims die.

Richard B. Krugman, director of the C. Henry Kempe National Center for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect in Denver, cites Colorado as an example.

There has been a 67 percent increase in unemployment in Colorado in the past four years, he says. At the same time, there has been a 100 percent increase in the number of cases of child abuse and a five-fold increase in the number of deaths as a result.

Krugman, as do other experts, points to a lack of national statistics and study that would verify a direct relationship.

"But," he says, "we here in our center and our child protection team at University Hospital have noticed a dramatic increase in both abuse and child deaths this past year."

Krugman said 175 cases of child neglect and abuse were investigated by the center in 1979. In 1980, the figure rose to 180. In 1981, the number jumped to 221. In the first 11 months of 1982, the number of cases passed 350.

There was one child abuse death in Colorado in each of 1979, 1980 and 1981, Krugman said. At the end of November, the number stood at five for 1982.

"Unemployment was 3 percent in 1979. Now it's 5.1 percent," Krugman said. "That doesn't seem dramatic when you compare us to Toledo or Michigan, but it's a 50 percent increase in unemployment in this state."

"We are seeing not just more deaths, but it is our impression that the physical abuse we're seeing is more severe."

Baby killing
Both Krugman and Dr. David Chadwick, medical director of San Diego Children's Hospital, said most of deaths from child abuse are of infants and toddlers.

"Most of our deaths are under three," Chadwick said. Infants, he said "are more vulnerable. They're easier to hurt and easier to kill.

"Infants and pre-schoolers, in our experience, are usually injured with the hands. Babies are shaken to stop them from crying a shaken so hard they suffer brain injuries. We've seen three or four this year who suffered burns. These were toilet training non-accidents where the child is immersed in hot water. They suffered severe burns to the buttocks and feet."

In 1979, Chadwick said, there were no child abuse deaths at Children's Hospital, largely due to county prevention programs.

"We thought we were doing something right," he said. "But there were four in 1980, six in 1981 and in 1982 we'll wind up with six again."

"I think there is more physical abuse. Mostly it has to do with those services that were beginning to learn to prevent some of it. They were in the county Department of Social Services. But county governments have been broke. They've cut back the services rather significantly."

"The real impact has been in the last year and a half."

Impact of cutbacks
A study conducted in South Carolina following a mill closing revealed that in the first five months of this year, five youngsters died of child abuse — more than double the rate in 1981.

"What this means is that unemployment is causing stress on families and their inability to deal with it is causing many parents to abuse their children," said Thomas Birch of the National Child Abuse Coalition, an umbrella for 15 organizations concerned about children and their families.

Ms. Cohn said a nationwide survey found 33 states reporting more severe incidents of child abuse and 14 states reporting an increased number of deaths as a result of abuse. Only five states said no increases had been noted.

"Unemployment puts families in a double bind," Ms. Cohn said. "And the cutbacks on services — food stamps, job-training, health services, day care — have taken their toll."

Many cases unreported
Harrell said an estimated 2,000 to 5,000 children die each year as a result of child abuse and neglect.

"The number of deaths are up 50 percent to 100 percent above a year ago in some states," Harrell said. "In those places where they do a careful tie-in with medical examiners, they're finding there are a lot more than ever get reported anywhere (else). We've heard of figures as high as 90 from Los Angeles County alone."

Harrell said there nearly 850,000 cases of abuse and neglect reported in 1981, an increase of 70,000 over 1980.

"But for every reported case, two go unreported," Harrell said. "However, we find that 50 percent of all reported cases are unfounded, so we estimate there are 1.1 million cases a year."

Like animals?
Little research has been done on infanticide because "it's a repulsive subject," said Dr. Glenn Hausfater, a Cornell ethologist and co-organizer of a 1982 conference on the subject.

"Many people regard it as reprehensible to even think about it, but we're trying to see if there's any connection between animal infanticide and child abuse, neglect and killing by humans."

Killing offspring is not a trait unique to humans. It is widely practiced among other animals and often animal behavior parallels human behavior, he said.

William Irons, associate professor of anthropology at Northwestern University, cited infanticide among humans throughout history. He said societies have cast off their deformed, controlled their populations and altered the male-female ratio by killing undesired infants at birth.

Infanticide also is committed as a result of economics or illegitimacy, he said.

"Among hunting and gathering people, having babies too closely together would overburden the mother," Irons said. "She often can go into the fields with one infant, but carrying two would make it impossible for her to gather food."

"In those cases, the father often is away, the woman has her baby alone. There are no witnesses. She kills it at birth."

"In child abuse cases, step-parents are more likely to abuse," he said after earlier noting that animals are more likely to kill offspring of others than their own.

"It is more likely to be the mother than the father who is the abuser. In most societies, the overwhelming proportion of people who kill are male. When women do kill somebody else, it is most often their young children."

Cases in point
Along with the other experts, Chicago Police Sergeant Robert Dart says he believes "child abuse goes up in hard economic times, just like crime in general."

But, in recently recorded instances of infanticide, other factors were invariably cited.

Dart reviewed 15 infanticide cases recorded in Chicago in the past three years. The mother was the alleged killer in 10 cases, he said. In most of the cases, the babies were beaten because they were crying and the wails got on their parents' nerves.

A Chicago woman, Vera Webb, 33, is facing murder charges in the early September death of her 4-week-old daughter, Traci. Ms. Webb allegedly dropped Traci into the Little Calumet River from a bridge in suburban Dolton and then attempted to commit suicide by jumping in after her.

A few days later, Norma Moran, 45, despondent over loss of a limb to diabetes, and her three children, ages 11 to 16, got into the family car, which was parked in the garage of their Aurora, Ill., home. Mrs. Moran turned on the ignition and the four died of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Dale Mifflin, 29, a former Champaign, Ill., resident, said he hit his young son, Sean, on top of the head and threw him against his crib because the 14-month-old boy had pulled figurines and smoking pipes off a coffee table.

"I was very upset," Mifflin testified at his November trial. He was found guilty of murder.

A Minnesota college student, who gave birth in her dorm room without assistance, was convicted in late September of second-degree murder in the strangulation death of her newborn daughter, Margaret Kinsky, 20, of St. Paul, was sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Killers often psychotic
DePaul University psychologist Sheila Ribordy said studies back up the observations the mother kills her child more often than does any other family member.

"Sometimes it's an attempted suicide-homicide — a woman who is extremely depressed, often psychotic," Ms. Ribordy said. "She is feeling helpless and has no hope things will improve in the future."

"She is out of touch with reality. She is not deliberately thinking about the implications for the child. She sees the child as an extension of herself. To kill herself, she must kill her children."

Ms. Ribordy said a woman in that situation often sees the world as "hostile, alien and harmful" and sees death as a way of protecting her children.

"She would feel better about killing the child than leaving it to be raised in that kind of environment," she said.

"Bad economic times compound the problems. The child abuse rate shoots up. It's displaced anger, particularly if the child was

Teacher Uses Motorcycle To Interest Kids

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer
TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Mike Murphy rolled his motorcycle into a seventh grade classroom, cranked it up and said, "This is what science is all about."

He had the immediate attention of the 29 students, 12 and 13 years old.

"Many folks think science is worthless. I'm going to show you they're wrong," said Murphy, a science teacher at the University of Alabama who was visiting Tuscaloosa Middle School.

"I wish I was in your class all the time," one of the youngsters said.

The school was the fifth on Murphy's list of 40 in Tuscaloosa, Hale, Pickens and Greene counties that he plans to visit as the weather allows him to ride his cycle.

"I try not to be scientifically rigorous," he said before taking his vehicle into the classroom. "I just want to get them interested in science. Many of them don't like science and don't think they need it."

"I do this for fun. I talk about the science of motorcycles."

As the kids crowded around, he pulled a spray gun, a toy airplane and a carburetor from a basket attached to the cycle and handed out diagrams of the three.

"They all work on the same principle," he said. "As air moves faster, air pressure goes down."

Murphy then showed them how air pressure forces gasoline up and out of a carburetor and paint from a spray gun; how it helps an airplane take off and stay aloft.

He was demonstrating Bernoulli's Principle. Murphy at other times deals with combustion, gases, batteries, light and lenses, magnetism, polymers and motion.

Several of the student helped in his demonstrations, when they could keep their eyes off the motorcycle.

Murphy then showed them a chart of various jobs, pointing out that the higher paying ones invariably require some knowledge of science.

"That's the point of all this stuff," he said. "If you can't read specs, you can't be a mechanic. If you don't know anything about scientific principles, you can't be a doctor, a systems analyst, an electrical engineer, a computer programmer. But you can be a garbage collector."

"If you make something of your time now, you can get a better job later. When your teacher asks you to read something a little technical, do it, because when you get to college you'll be asked to read the same type things."

Murphy said he decided on his motorcycle lectures "as a service to the community and because it doesn't cost any money."

"Whenever there's a chance to share a little bit of science, I can't resist."

Most schools, he said, "have a high degree of scientific illiteracy. We will continue to have shortages of trained professionals in technical fields if this trend isn't reversed."

"Every modern, westernized country has better math and science training than the United States."

"Science is for everyone."

At the end of his hour with the students, few if any could spell Bernoulli.

But they knew a motorcycle will not run without gas and that gas will not get where it is needed without air pressure.

At Wit's End

I've been following the inequities of women for years.

The salary differences, the tax laws, Social Security benefits and appropriations for women's sports in schools. The list goes on.

But what it comes down to is the thing that people seem to get hung up on the most is the restroom facilities. Mention unisex bathrooms and everyone goes crazy.

Believe it or not, it was one of the major points in the election of Barbara Jordan in 1966 as the first congresswoman to join the all-male body of the Texas legislature.

The question wasn't what can she do, but where will she go to the bathroom? (They built one. It's done all the time.)

I've been associated with unisex bathrooms all my life. I've cleaned them, coaxed kids out of them and barricaded myself in them for a little peace and quiet and frankly I don't know what the flap is all about.

In fact, I've been wondering how the women made out in the Bass Club competition in Tallahassee, Fla. It seems every year, male and female anglers pair up in a boat to see who can outsmart the local bass. This year, the men announced the competition would be restricted to men only. Their reason was some wives might object to their husbands spending the day with another woman and — you got it — the old where-would-they-go-to-the-you-know-what.

The first complaint seemed rather invalid when you tried to figure out what you could do in a boat on a lake bobbing with other boats and fisherpersons.

The response to the second reason came from the women anglers themselves who said, "The men are just afraid the women will show them up."

The association finally compromised by letting each entrant check off whether or not he was willing to fish with a member of the opposite sex.

What the critics don't realize is that these things have a way of working themselves out. Women who have traveled with men before are well aware of the problems. I am married to a man who has bionic kidneys and has been known to travel an entire day on the road without stopping for so much as a chili dog or a gallon of gas. And I have sat beside him in a boat all day long waiting for the six most beautiful words in the English language, "They're not hitting. Let's go in."

As for unisex bathrooms: They're not so bad. They work real simple. First the man goes in and locks the door and comes out. Then the woman goes in, locks the door and comes out.

Smart people, these airline companies.

Over the past decade, Americans have added an average of about three years to their life expectancy, according to the American Council of Life Insurance.

Was It Really A Surprise

As a footnote to history, the FDR memo of Aug. 10, 1936, to the chief of naval operations is of more than passing interest to those who endured the 1941-45 years of war.

We would venture to guess there are many letters and notes tucked away in the National Archives that would be equally illuminating.

The Roosevelt note released to the public last week made clear the president and the Navy were equally convinced of Japanese espionage activity in the Hawaiian Islands. The counter-measures "in the event of trouble" (including a "concentration camp") suggests a carefully thought-out response to what (in 1936) appeared to be indicators of future conflict; all this five and one-half years before the "surprise" at Pearl Harbor.

This foresight, augmented by Adolf Hitler's rearming of Germany and war in Europe, provided President Roosevelt with needed time to mold American public opinion into an understanding of the stakes and a sense of purpose in the years of ordeal that were to follow.

It makes one wonder, under the circumstances of the latter-half of 1941 with a very bellicose government in Japan, how the events of Dec. 7 came as such a surprise.

Perhaps future disclosures will shed more light on that eventful period.

Sick Calls Are Infrequent

Gov. Jim Hunt is clearly a man who drives himself. Consequently, it is not surprising that he carried on last Wednesday even as painful gallbladder and appendicitis attacks were plaguing him.

The condition caught up with him as he made a talk during the day and the governor was taken to a Wake County hospital where his physician diagnosed a gallstone condition and, later, the appendicitis. His physicians said that, other than the gallstones and the now-absent appendix, the governor is in excellent condition.

We hope Gov. Hunt will take care of himself. Governors rarely call in sick as most of us must do. No one will blame any high public official, however, for taking the rest of the day off in the event of something as serious as a gall bladder attack.

Percy Is At Crossroads

WASHINGTON — Illinois Sen. Charles Percy's six-month run-around with the White House is about to end. At Percy's urging, the administration is expected next week to suggest modifications for two treaties which limit nuclear weapons testing.

Since hearings on U.S. nuclear policy last September, Percy has pressed the administration for its stand on the two unratified treaties, the Threshold Test Ban Treaty (TTB) and the Peaceful Nuclear Explosions Treaty (PNE). He was originally promised a reply by last Oct. 1; when that date passed, the White House gave him a Dec. 10 "absolute" deadline.

Late last month, with still no word from the White House, Percy announced that he would withhold the confirmation of Kenneth Adelman, director-designate of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency pending the administration's response. Then, on Friday, Feb. 4, Adelman himself told the Foreign Relations Committee that Reagan would decide the fate of the treaties by next Tuesday (Feb. 15).

Today, as last year, the choice is simple: Either ratify the treaties as they are, or seek modifications in consultation with the Soviets. The two U.S.-Soviet agreements, signed by former presidents Ford and Nixon, would limit underground nuclear tests for non-military purposes to yields of no more than 150 kilotons (kt).

Since Reagan backed off last summer from two decades of bilateral negotiations on a comprehensive test ban (CTB), speculation about the administration's proposed modifications has centered on reports that the White House favored on-site inspection in the aftermath of tests of more than 70 kt. Recently, proposals to require stricter verification or to raise the threshold above 150 kt have been reported. These modifications would scuttle the existing agreements.

Percy believes ratification of one or both treaties would be a painless way to assure Europeans and the Soviets of the sincerity of American arms control efforts. Percy knows, moreover, that Reagan — if he so desired — could have the treaties ratified within a week.

If the administration makes yet another bad-faith proposal next week, it may not only jeopardize relations with the patient senator but lose the Adelman nomination as well.

Footnote: Some congressional staff members fear that the forthcoming Reagan proposals could undercut an effort on behalf of a Comprehensive Test Ban. Since last month, 70 House members and 36 senators have cosponsored a resolution urging Reagan to resume negotiations on a CTB; House hearings on the measure are scheduled to begin in mid-March.

Rita Lavelle's departure from the Environmental Protection Agency has precipitated cheers on both sides of the aisle in Congress. Her abrasive administrative style and go-slow approach to hazardous-waste clean-up, which she supervised, had antagonized most of the legislators and aides with whom she had to deal. Conceding a former aide to Rep. Judd Gregg (R-N.H.), who saw a waste site in his district made a "test case" by the EPA: "There were extraordinary efforts made on our behalf that weren't extended, even to the nth degree, to other members."

North Carolina's conservative leader, Republican Sen. Jesse A. Helms, undoubtedly senses political trouble back home, where he faces a tough re-election battle next year. Last week, he attended a Capitol Hill reception, sponsored by the University of North Carolina Alumni Association and UNC student newspaper veterans for one of their own, first-term representative James Cooper. Not only is Cooper a Democrat from Tennessee, but Helms has traditionally criticized the Chapel Hill campus as a bastion of liberalism.

Despite Congress' enthusiastic new commitment to science and mathematics training in public schools, improvement may be long in coming. Only one state requires three years of math for a high school diploma; only nine demand two years of the subject for graduation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential candidates already are referring to March 13, 1984, as "Super Tuesday" and suggesting that may be the date the Democratic presidential nominee is determined.

At least 10 states are likely to hold Democratic presidential primaries or caucuses on that day.

They range from Florida, Alabama and Georgia in the South, Maine and Massachusetts in the Northeast, Minnesota and Oklahoma in the Midwest and Washington, Alaska and Hawaii in the West.

And there are rumbles from California and Ohio that those two states may decide to join the Super Tuesday bandwagon.

That's a lineup that is spawning a lot of anguish among the strategists for Democratic presidential aspirants and endless speculation about who will benefit from the early crush of delegate selection.

Here are some of the possibilities: Former Vice President Walter F. Mondale generally is given the edge over his rivals in organization and fund raising and those two factors could prove the most important to anyone's hopes of a good showing in a single day in which 10 or more states are choosing delegates.

Another factor in Mondale's favor is name recognition. Sen. John Glenn of Ohio is the only other candidate who is as well known as Mondale.

If Mondale also enters the early primaries and caucuses with the organizational boost of an endorsement from the AFL-CIO, that could be another plus on a crowded schedule.

But there's hope for others in the delegate distribution.

Florida chooses 123 delegates and former Gov. Reubin Askew expects to get most of them.

Glenn is hopeful of running well in states like Alabama with 52 delegates, Georgia with 70, Oklahoma, 43, Washington 61 and Alaska 11.

Two other Southern states, Mississippi and South Carolina, will choose their delegates the following Saturday. And even if Glenn is nearly as popular in the South as he thinks he is, he'll have tough competition for support in the region.

Sen. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina should have most of his state's 41 delegates and compete for backing in other Southern states. There also are whispers from Alabama that Gov. George Wallace would like to go to the convention as his state's favorite son.

If Ohio moves up to March 13, to choose 154 delegates, that's another big block for Glenn.

But if Ohio moves, what will California do?

Sen. Alan Cranston's presidential strategy depends heavily on solid backing from the California delegation, which will be the largest at the Democratic National Convention.

State party officials are agonizing now over how and when to select their delegation. There is talk of moving the primary, but that's considered unlikely. An alternative would be to choose all or part of the 345-member delegation in caucuses with the assumption that Cranston would get most of them.

But life is complicated, especially in California. The state's primary traditionally is held the first Tuesday in June and that's when it will be held in 1984 to choose Republican National Convention delegates as well as nominees for state and congressional offices.

That primary ballot often contains a long list of controversial propositions that attract more attention than the candidates. For example, the tax-limiting Proposition 13, was on the June 1978, primary election ballot.

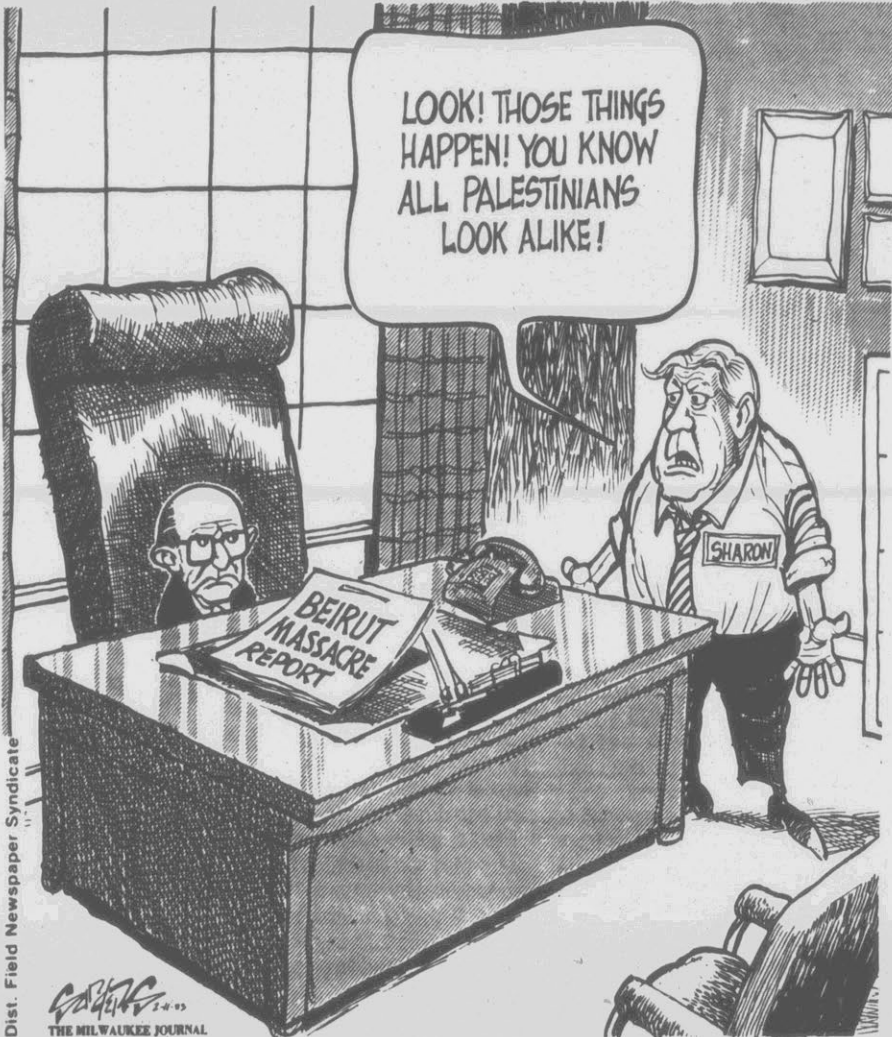

That raises concern among California Democrats that if they choose their presidential convention delegates in March, the Democratic turnout for the June primary will be low and Republicans might take advantage of the opportunity to push through conservative propositions.

There is a good chance that when all factors are considered neither Ohio nor California will move up.

The most tantalizing possibility of all is that after all the votes are counted on March 13, no Democrat will have broken from the pack and be able to claim the presidential nomination.

Public Forum

To the editor:

I am a high school student driving a school bus for elementary students. There is a man on my route who likes to complain about bus drivers blowing their horns at the bus stops. One of my stops is in his area. He calls the school complaining all the time about my blowing my bus horn.

I don't blow unless it's absolutely necessary. On occasion when the fog is heavy and/or it is real cold, I have to alert the children. I can understand why the children wait in their homes and not outside by the road due to weather conditions.

This neighbor of theirs evidently does not understand this. If he did, he wouldn't complain that the horn wakes him and his children up. At 7:30 in the morning, you would think he would be up getting ready for work. As for his children, what if it were his kids I picked up, and didn't blow my horn and the kids were left? Then he, along with other parents, would start complaining that I leave their kids.

If people would just consider for a minute if the shoe were on the other foot, they might have different feelings about the situation. My first concern is getting my children on and off my bus safely, and I am sorry if it inconveniences other people.

Beware Of Nouveau Oil During Turmoil

You can't believe what disarray the oil-producing nations are in until you visit an open market oil bazaar and see for yourself. I went to one last week to buy a barrel for Valentine's Day.

A sheik from Kuwait was singing, "Oil for sale, oil for sale. Sweet crude oil for sale."

"How much is it?" I asked. "Thirty-four dollars a barrel. But since it's Valentine's Day I'll let you have it for 32."

I was about to taste it, when a man grabbed my arm, and pulled me into his tent. "That man is a thief. Here, try this delicious Libyan oil." He handed me a tin cup.

"Very tasty!" I said. "How much for a barrel?"

He smiled. "Thirty dollars. We're having a Kaddafi Day Founders' Sale."

"I'll be back," I promised him. I walked along the dusty streets of the bazaar as Nigerians, Saudi Arabians and oil merchants from Qatar all implored me to buy their products.

A man wearing a sombrero said, "Senor, please, would you like to buy this 1983 vintage which just came out of an offshore well off Venezuela?"

"Is 1983 a good year for oil?" I asked him.

"It's nouveau oil. The weather was just right for pumping it out of the sea. You can refine it today."

"How much is it?" I asked. "If you promise not to tell anyone I will sell you a barrel for $29," he said. "That's $5 below the OPEC price."

"I spit on OPEC. They are all double-crossers, and are undercutting me all over the bazaar. I have a family to feed and that is why I am sacrificing my oil at cost."

"I'd like to think about it," I said.

"As I walked farther down a man in a sombrero standing in an alley called to me. "Psst, amigo, are you looking for some fast action?"

Strength For Today

There is a story in II Kings about a Hebrew woman, poverty-stricken and about to be sold with her family into slavery. And the prophet Elisha said to her, "Tell me, what hast thee in the house;" and she said, "Thy handmaid hath not anything in the house save a pot of oil."

Then Elisha told her to go and borrow from her neighbors all the vessels they would let her have. After that, she was to shut the door upon herself and her sons and pour some of the oil into each of these vessels.

And as she did so, the oil in each vessel increased until the vessels were all full to the brim.

The moral of this story is similar to that contained in the story of our Lord's feeding of the five thousand.

There is scarcely a Christian believer who is not aware that at some place in his life God touched the little and it became much. He laid his finger on something insufficient and it became adequate to change a life and bring peace and happiness.

Annual Reports Come In Muted Grays This Year

by the reports is one of great somberness.

Color is greatly reduced. "In a word, this year's crop is black and white, and red all over," he says. The purpose isn't to avoid using red ink to show losses — clever officials long ago decided it was better to merely put brackets around losses — but to cut costs.

Annual report budgets have been slashed, says Dunk, who estimates that small-company reports might cost up to $3 each, and those for larger companies with big press runs about $1.50.

"Even companies that are still using full color photos have sliced photo budgets or cut the number of pages in half," he says. Even companies with record earnings, he says, believe they should display restraint.

Notable among the latter is COMSAT, the communications satellite company, which is producing a black-white report even though last year was its best ever. Dunk calls it "elegant but restrained."

The reports this year deal with the hard realities rather than with a nebulous future, Dunk said.

Earlier, he said, companies had been telling readers about grand strategy and how the company would surge when the recession ended. That optimism has been shaken.

"Now they're taking the steps which will either get results or insure survival today — closing down losers, cutting expenses, chopping divisions or capital programs," he reports.

Many books feature research and development, the purpose being to assure readers that ways will be found to deal with high costs. "They are saying they will innovate their way out," says Dunk.

Growth isn't publicized the way it used to be.

Too many companies have been forced to divest themselves of units acquired only a few years before. Growth, therefore, no longer impresses. Besides, because of the recession, it is difficult to achieve.

Profits, rather than growth, are being stressed.

Air Products and Chemicals Inc., a growth company, emphasizes "profitable growth" this year. And smokestack companies, Dunk observes, are portraying their efforts to obtain profits even though their industries may be shrinking.

"Financials" are probably more understandable this year. Financials are the numbers — the balance sheet and statement of income, most notably, and perhaps the footnotes that accompany them too. "Some companies are trying to put the footnotes in English," Dunk's survey reveals.

Overall, Dunk feels that greater effort might be going into fine writing, which he considers an intelligent direction to pursue.

Fine writing always impresses annual report readers; it's always in style, he says.

Sen. East Sets March Hearings On Court Reform

WASHINGTON — Sen. John East has scheduled three days of congressional hearings in March to consider legislation that would sharply limit the power of federal judiciary.

East, a critic of the federal judiciary, said the proposed legislation is designed to reduce the heavy workload of the federal courts and at the same time to limit their power.

Among other things, the proposed legislation would reverse federal court rulings that the states are subject to the Bill of Rights and transfer those guarantees of individual rights to state courts; repeal the "exclusionary rule," which allows criminals to be set free when evidence of their guilt has been obtained through illegal search and seizure, and allow judges to punish law enforcement officers for "contempt of the Constitution" if they obtain evidence illegally, and sharply restrict the ability of prison inmates to file habeas corpus petitions for their release by first requiring them to exhaust their appeals in state courts.

The proposed legislation would also allow Congress to review the conduct and decisions of federal judges every 10 years and recommend impeachment if it is determined they have failed to meet standards of good behavior.

East first introduced the proposed legislation late last year. The legislation will be introduced following the hearings.

The senator, who chairs the Senate Separation of Powers Subcommittee, said "some change or modification seems to be in order" since the courts have been "projecting themselves into the policy-making process."

According to East, the federal courts have "become, in the judgment of many, too actively involved in issues that have historically been left to state and local government or state and local courts."

East acknowledged that there is little chance the entire bill will become law, but suggested that the proposal will help focus public attention on the question of judicial reform.

The proposal having the most support in Congress is the repeal of the exclusionary rule, which has allowed suspects in serious crimes to be set free because of technical errors made by police officers during arrests.

The proposal to abolish the federal courts power to enforce the Bill of Rights in cases involving local and state governments is the most controversial part of East's bill.

East, who said the courts are using the Bill of Rights as an extension of federal power, said the Bill of Rights was only intended to be a check on the powers of the federal government.

There is no evidence to suggest that the states would erode individual liberties "if you allowed them greater autonomy in this area," East said.

Constitutional law experts, law enforcement officers, Reagan administration officials and federal judges are expected to testify at the subcommittee hearings.

Gov. Hunt Cuts Travel Schedule

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt is expected to remain hospitalized for several more days and then will spend more time resting at home while recuperating from last week's appendectomy, a spokesman says.

"He's in good spirits. His parents visited him Sunday," Hunt spokesman Brent Hackney said Monday.

Hunt has canceled his travel schedule for the next two weeks and issued written instructions to his staff Monday.

Hunt was able to take a short stroll around Wake Medical Center and also watched a basketball game on television. Hackney said Hunt will continue to handle the duties of governor.

Hunt's personal physician, Dr. Larry A. Tyree, said patients normally will be hospitalized for a week to 10 days after surgery.

Hackney said Hunt will require surgery later to remove his gall bladder, but a decision on when to perform that surgery has not been made. He said Hunt, who was elected governor in 1976 and reelected in 1980, is continuing to handle the duties of governor.

Hackney said Hunt's primary concern is handling legislative strategy, including his good roads package that he wants to get the Legislature to pass.

Hunt, 45, was taken to Wake Medical Center on Thursday after he fainted during a speech before a group of mental health officials.

Doctors at first diagnosed his ailment as an intestinal virus. Physical examinations and X-rays showed that Hunt had gallstones, and doctors decided to keep him at the hospital for observation.

However, when Hunt's surgeon, Dr. Fred Ng (pronounced Nong) visited Hunt on Friday, Hunt's pains had moved to the lower right side of his abdomen, indicating that his appendix had become inflamed. He was taken to surgery for an operation that lasted 45 minutes.

Ng said he, Tyree and press aides to Hunt decided to keep the surgery secret for more than five hours until after Hunt was in the recovery room, to make sure Hunt had entered a normal recovery.

Gary Pearce, a spokesman for Hunt, said he decided to withhold news of the surgery because "it could have led to all sorts of rumors and information."

He also said there were security considerations.

Hackney said the decision to keep the surgery secret was primarily medical, to let doctors determine during surgery what was bothering Hunt and to be able to make a complete statement.

Fire Shut Down DukePower Unit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Unit III of Duke Power Co.'s Marshall Steam Station went off line Monday afternoon when a transformer providing power to the unit's auxiliary systems caught fire, a Duke spokeswoman said.

The fire at the 1.9 million kilowatt coal-fired plant on Lake Norman was quickly extinguished and there were no injuries, said Mary Boyd. She said no further interruptions of power were expected.

Five More Arrested

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Authorities arrested five more people on drug trafficking charges Monday, bringing to 12 the number apprehended after a plane carrying marijuana and cocaine was seized at a dirt airstrip east of Chocowinity.

Beaufort County Sheriff Nelson Sheppard identified the five arrested as: Tommy Glenn Styron, 43, Harkers Island; Stanley Arnold Ferrell, 34, Atlantic Beach; Benjamin Michael Forbes, 37, and Robert Talmadge Weatherington, 38, both of Morehead City, and Robert Edward Calhoun, 45, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Sheppard said that bond for the 12 was set at $1 million each and first appearance hearings were scheduled for today in Beaufort County District Court.

County, state and federal authorities seized the four-engine DC-4 aircraft after it landed around 5 a.m. Sunday at the airstrip located off N.C. 33 about eight miles east of Chocowinity, Sheppard said. He said the plane had a cargo of from 12,000 to 15,000 pounds of bundled marijuana and 10 to 12 pounds of cocaine.

Six people were arrested Sunday following the plane seizure and a seventh suspect was apprehended around 7 a.m. Monday, the sheriff reported. He said the other arrests took place throughout Monday, including some in Craven County. All of the suspects were on foot when they were apprehended, said Sheppard.

He said that investigation by the sheriff's department, State Bureau of Investigation, U.S. Customs office and federal Drug Enforcement Agency is continuing.

Mike Messick of Home Security Life Insurance is chairman of the fund-raising campaign, which will continue through the remainder of February.

For information on how to assist contact Beverly Burnette, 758-4622.

Local alumni volunteers worked in four areas: Fayetteville-Cumberland County, Tidewater Virginia, Durham and Raleigh-Wake County.

All four "telefund" campaigns raised record highs in pledges, he noted. Pledge totals were: Fayetteville-Cumberland County — $3,082; Tidewater Virginia — $8,286; Durham — $4,334, and Raleigh-Wake County — $12,792.

Car Struck Officer Directing Traffic

A Greenville police officer, directing traffic at the scene of a collision on Greenville Boulevard, was struck by a car and injured about 10:35 p.m. Monday.

Cars driven by Kelly Lenora Butler of 104

Greenwood Drive, James Walter Carter of 417 South Longmeadow Road, Dennis Martin Symons of Route 4,

Hertford, and Christopher Ferrell Bryant of Riegelwood collided about 10:30 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard at the Rosewood Drive intersection. Highway Patrolman Fred Davis said Officer Frederick Royce Frye of Route 1, Winterville, who had been called to the scene to help direct traffic, was struck by a car driven by Sharyn Elaine Pugh of 1017 W. Wright Road.

Davis, who estimated damage to the Pugh car at $500, said Frye was thrown about 40 feet by the force of the impact and was taken to Pitt County Memorial Hospital for treatment.

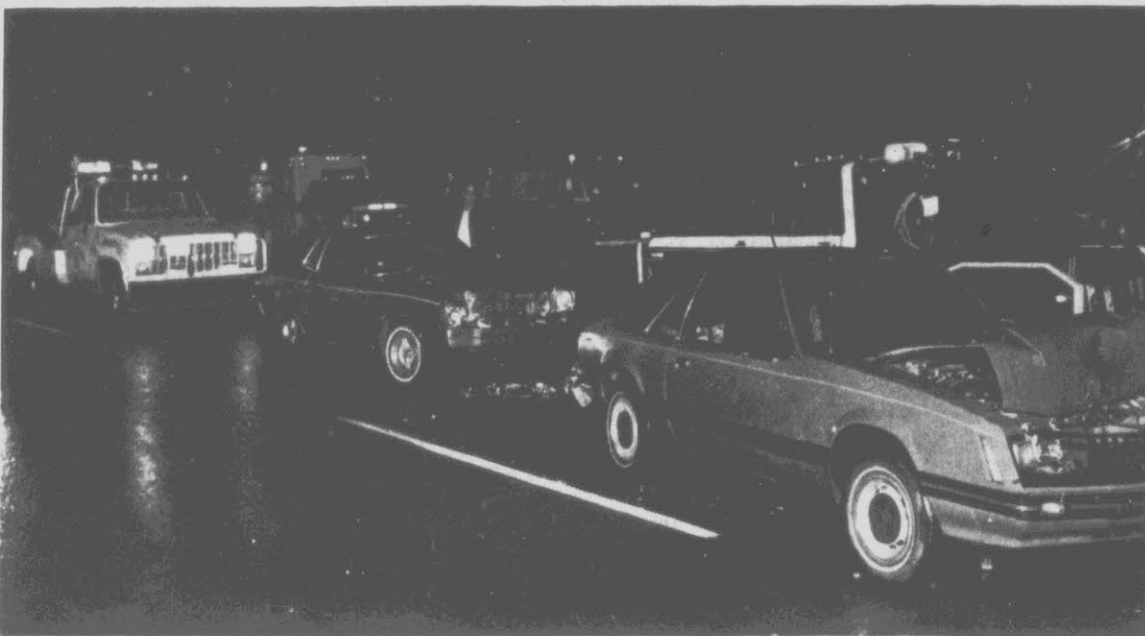

Chief Glenn Cannon said Frye, who suffered head injuries, remained hospitalized this morning for observation.

Police estimated other damage from the four-vehicle collision at $400 to the Carter car and $4,500 to the Symons vehicle. No damage resulted to the Butler car, officers said, and no damage was reported for the Bryant auto.

Investigators charged Larry Earl Green of Route 2, Farmville, with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a third collision Monday.

Police said cars driven by Green and Edward William Caldwell Jr. of Newton collided about 1:50 p.m. on Memorial Drive, 50 feet south of the Fifth Street intersection, causing an estimated $500 damage to the Green car.

No damage resulted to the Caldwell vehicle, officers said.

questions arise, exist. Any RIF based on a policy with performance as a criteria is going to leave a stigma."

Ron Hochmuth, saying at 30 he is in the younger contingent of teachers, remarked that, "I am comfortable with the Liaison Committee proposal. I have been assured that it is legal, within the letter of the law, and I feel it is only fair to recognize seniority in the system."

Hochmuth mentioned that he prefers the one-year trial period recommended for the four-point Liaison Committee proposal as opposed to the three-year period recommended by the administrative team's proposal. That team's proposal opts for increasing the weight given to performance at 25 points for the first year, increasing the weight given performance by 15 points for the second and third years until at the end of the third year performance would carry a predominant 55 points.

Another spokesman, Walter Morehead, representing the community's Affirmative Action Advisory Committee, said he believes "the goals in the Liaison Committee proposal are based on community support and are legally defensible. We feel it is a good decision, a policy based on needs."

"We look on it not as a matter of competence, but as an instrument to be used in case RIF is necessary. It's a matter of supply and demand."

Stocks said the Greene County plant, which has operated for approximately 20 years, has employees from several neighboring counties, including Pitt, Duplin and Lenoir. He said USI has owned the plant since the early 1970s.

According to Stocks, the manufacturing operations are located in three buildings and comprise approximately 26,800 square feet.

Talerico said that Young Squire has been a member of the Wayne County industrial community for 20 years. He U.S. Industries is attempting to sell the 130,000-square-foot facility as well as the Hookerton plant.

He cited economic troubles as underlying factors that attributed to the plant closings and he noted that market saturation resulting from import pressures have also had an impact.

Talerico said there are no plans regarding relocations for employees to other plants within the USI network but he said he would do what he could to help his workers, some of them longtime employees. Stocks also said he would assist workers at his plant but he knew of no possibilities for relocations since USI has no other facilities in this area.

Ordered To Finish Term

MONROE, N.C. (AP) — A Waxhaw man who was mistakenly released from jail after a driving under the influence conviction was ordered back to finish his sentence yesterday.

Leroy Funderburk, 55, was ordered to serve the rest of his six-month sentence by Union County Superior Court Judge William Helms. Funderburk had been freed during Gov. Jim Hunt's traditional Christmas commutation after spending 17 days in jail.

Funderburk was re-arrested last week, but he challenged the arrest's legality.

The case attracted statewide attention because of Hunt's outspoken support for new laws to crack down on drunken drivers.

Helms, allowing news cameras to film court proceedings for the first time in Union County, ruled that Funderburk was lawfully jailed last week and that the mistake that freed him was a "good faith" error.

Funderburk's lawyer argued the state has not been fair to his client and that Funderburk should be given credit on his sentence for the time he was out of jail between Dec. 15 and Feb. 2.

Recession Is Making Mardi Gras 'Nicer' This Year

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Early celebrants cruised the streets of the French Quarter with painted faces and drinks in hand for today's Mardi Gras revels, but officials said rainy skies and a poor economy could dampen this year's fun-making.

Arrests were down leading up to the annual Shrove Tuesday debauch, there were empty rooms at city hotels and rain was forecast for today's parades, authorities said.

Police spokeswoman Ruth Asher said Monday there had been 1,626 Carnival-related arrests — down sharply from last year, when the total reached 3,467.

"People are being good this year," she said.

Mardi Gras, French for Fat Tuesday, is a festival with origins tracing back to pagan times. In predominantly Catholic New Orleans, it is the climax of Carnival — a long season of parties and formal balls that begins shortly after Christmas and ends at midnight Tuesday with the beginning of Lent and its 40 days of penance before Easter.

Before midnight tonight, Carnival will have seen 54 gaudy, noisy parades of papier mache floats and brass bands that social krewes, a cute spelling of crews, put on in the New Orleans area. To the east, officials in Mobile, Ala., said 50,000 people would attend that city's festivities.

In New Orleans, each krewe has its own royalty, but the two undisputed leaders are Rex and the masked King of Comus, who close the festivities at midnight by toasting each other at a gala in the municipal auditorium.

Longtime residents steeled themselves for the annual party.

"At 80 years of age, I can't have much of a good time but I am happy to see it," said M. G. (Baron) deBaroncelli, who lugged groceries to his apartment in the Quarter on Monday.

"I never miss Mardi Gras, though it's not as much fun as it was when I was a young man and we danced in the street. Too many people now and they are all excited, agitated."

Commercially, this Mardi Gras has been a disappointment. Sidewalk vendors said profits were down. Tourists were less plentiful. The recession hurt hotels long accustomed to boosting prices and refusing to accept less than four-day reservations.

"Most of the hotels dropped their packages, trying to pick up whatever business is interested in coming in," said Ralph Nogal, director of the Greater New Orleans Hotel-Motel Association.

The Mardi Gras Coalition — 300 medical and legal volunteers from Tulane University — were doing their bit to aid the celebration Monday.

Coalition medics in teams of four, equipped with walkie-talkie radio, patrol the crowd looking for casualties. Law students and lawyers work in shifts getting people out of jails that were crowded before Carnival began.

"If we didn't do that, with the number of people getting arrested every day the system would bog down," said law student Steve Miller.

Jim Rich of Amarillo, Texas, said he came to Mardi Gras to save souls.

Toting a 4 by 4-foot sign reading "Jesus Heals," Rich said he and about 95 Christians from Texas were in New Orleans not to protest the celebrations but to make an impression on observers.

"Mardi Gras is strictly a pagan type of holiday. There are a lot of people who are just observing here. It's the observers, not the participants, who we're primarily interested in," Rich said.

Mobile, Ala., a port city about 150 miles east of New Orleans on the Gulf Coast, claims to have started Mardi Gras in 1830 with mystic societies made up of young men, and passed the idea on to New Orleans in 1857.

"We aren't anti-New Orleans," said David Cooper, head of Mobile's carnival association. "They don't want a Mardi Gras like ours. We don't want one like theirs."

Mobile's celebration is more family-oriented, Cooper said, but it didn't start out that way.

Now Mobile celebrates with parades and souvenir trinkets, which draw about 50,000 people, most of them Mobile residents, Cooper said.

Undecided Over A Probe Of Sinking

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee has not yet decided whether to order a congressional investigation into the weekend sinking of a vessel.

Rep. Walter B. Jones of North Carolina told his staff Monday to compile all the data available about the sinking of the coal-laden ship about 30 miles off the Virginia coast.

Only three men survived after the vessel, Marine Electric, capsized and the crew abandoned ship at 4:13 a.m. Saturday in 20-foot seas and 40 mph winds.

There were conflicting reports as to whether there were 34 or 36 men on board.

Massachusetts Rep. Brian J. Donnelly wrote to Jones on Monday, calling for an investigation into the sinking of the vessel which was bound for Somerset, Mass. from Norfolk, Va.

Two survivors were from Massachusetts: Eugene S. Kelly, 31, of Norwell, and Robert M. Cusick, 59, of Scituate. The third survivor was Paul C. Dewey, 28, of Norfolk, Va.

Investigations into the tragedy are already planned for later this week by the Coast Guard's Marine Safety Office in Norfolk, Va. and the National Transportation Safety Board in Washington.

Gerry Seifert, general counsel for marine affairs for the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, said Jones will review the data the staff compiles before deciding whether to order hearings and if so, where and when they should be held.

He said among the questions the staff will try to answer are these: when was the vessel last inspected, when was it refitted, was it the appropriate ship for carrying coal and were all its papers in order.

In addition, Seifert said, the staff will focus on the response time of the Coast Guard and whether there should be any changes in reporting requirements for ships plying waters just off the coast.

A Coast Guard helicopter did not arrive until shortly after 5 a.m., almost an hour after the crew abandoned the Marine Electric.

Lawyer Letters Held Acceptable

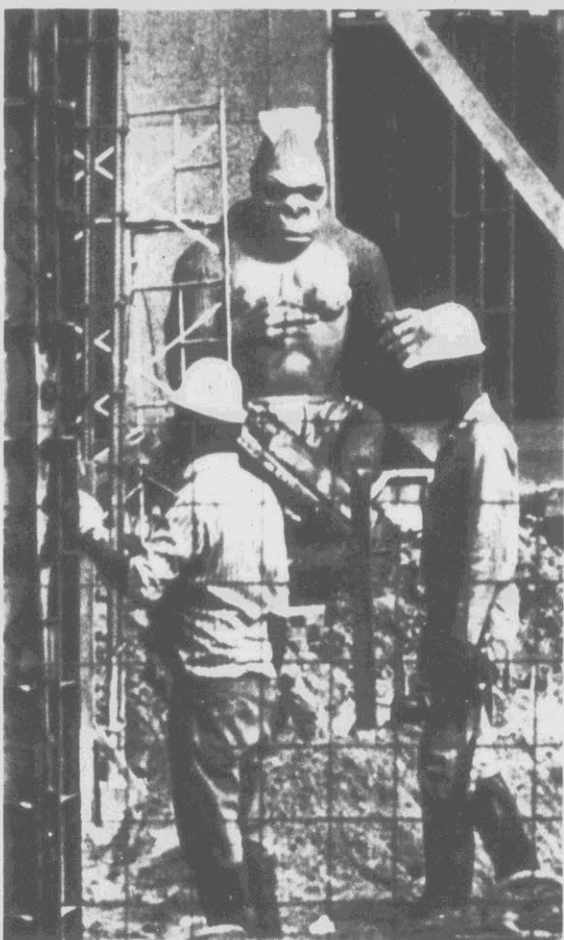

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Letters to Fort Bragg military personnel designed to drum up business for a local attorney are acceptable under a December state Supreme Court ruling, the N.C. State Bar ruled.

Attorney Ed Brady mailed 4,000 letters to the base, including some addressed to every first sergeant and captain at Fort Bragg. In some of the letters he offered to represent troops charged with driving under the influence or to provide debt relief for those with financial problems through bankruptcy proceedings.

"It looks like the practice of law has turned into active commercial pursuit," said Joe McLeod, chairman of the local ethics committee, which passed the question to the bar.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices showed some scattered gains today at the threshold of the 1,100 level in the Dow Jones industrial average.

The average of 30 blue chips, which climbed 10.60 points Monday to a record high, edged up .18 to 1,097.28 by noon Tuesday.

Gainers outnumbered losers by about 4 to 3 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors continued to respond enthusiastically to signs that the economy is beginning a recovery from the recession.

But they said it remained to be seen whether the market could climb past the Dow 1,100 level without a struggle.

When the average reached that point for the first time last month, it quickly turned back as traders cashed in profits from the market's sharp rally since last summer.

Many Wall Street observers have also expressed concern lately over the recent upswing in interest rates.

Among actively traded blue chips, International Business Machines rose ½ to 99½, and Eastman Kodak gained ¾ to 88¾, but American Telephone & Telegraph dropped ¾ to 67¾.

The NYSE's composite index added .08 to 85.97. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 3.14 to 383.34.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 38.74 million shares, against 27.34 million at the same point Monday.

Sunshine Aids Drying Process

By MARY SCHULKEN
 Reflector Staff Writer
 Sunshine peeped out today and began slowly drying the rain-soaked sponge-of-a-ground that absorbed its limit of water during Monday's rain.

Nearly an inch of rain fell on Pitt County's already-drenched ground Monday and sent the Tar River five inches above flood stage. At 8 a.m. today, the Tar measured 13.5 feet on the National Weather Service gauge. Flood stage is 13 feet.

Greenville Utilities' weather station recorded .79 inch between midnight Sunday and 8 a.m. today. Winds topping 30 mph were clocked throughout the day by the Pitt-Greenville Airport.

The sopping fields in the county shouldn't cause farmers any unusual hardship in the upcoming planting season, said Sam Uzzell, Pitt County agricultural extension agent.

"We still have some acres of soybeans and corn that have not been harvested and will not be harvested," he said. "Other than these, and possibly slowing down some folks seeding tobacco plant beds, the rain isn't holding up anything. Uzzell said February and March are normally wet months and predicted it "may get even damper."

"Even though it's wet now it will be better before it gets drier," he said. "But it will dry out — it always does."

Despite the wind and the water, Greenville Public Works Director Mayo Allen reported no serious problems from the weather.

"We had no problem as far as the water," he said. "It ran on off. We did have some debris problems due to the wind."

Allen said many dead limbs landed in streets and at least one tree was toppled by winds. "But we had nothing unusual at all," he added.

John Ferrer, assistant director at Greenville Utilities, reported no electrical difficulties from the storm.

At 11 a.m. today the temperature was 48 degrees, with highs expected to reach the 50s this afternoon and again Wednesday. The forecast calls for increasing cloudiness on Wednesday with a chance of rain again by Thursday.

The assessment, or curb and gutter fee each resident of the street would be required to pay, would be $15-$20 per square yard, Russell said.

Allen agreed to resubmit a valid petition backing the project.

In other business: •Board members approved a $9 per KWH electrical refund scheduled for March billing.

•Mercer & Son Construction Co. received the contract for the installation of a wet well and water line that will serve a proposed apartment complex adjacent to Ayden Elementary. Mercer & Sons was low bidder with a bid of $16,765 for the wet well and a bid of $1,675 for the water extension.

•The town's tax lien sale was set for May 9 and the beginning date for tax advertisements was set for April 14.

Aim Legislation At Fat Lawmen

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Fat police officers and firefighters would get a stern lecture and an exercise program under a new state Assembly bill.

The bill introduced Monday would require a doctor to counsel officers or firefighters who show up for annual physical examinations "regarding ways of living which are detrimental to his health."

The doctor also would have to "provide the employee with a program to develop his physical fitness."

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Dave Nicholas of Incline Village. It was referred to the Labor and Management Committee.

Approves Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Walter B. Jones, chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, has announced the committee's approval of a report examining the need for changes in the cargo preference laws as they affect cargoes generated by U.S. government action.

The committee report suggested that the cargo preference laws for government-imposed cargoes are not as effective as they should be and that the evasion of compliance by government agencies may be attributed to ambiguities in the laws.

The cargo preference laws are designed to promote and maintain a vigorous U.S. merchant marine by requiring certain cargoes to be transported by U.S. flag vessels.

East Carolina Hosts Spiders

East Carolina University's Pirates hope — for the first time this year — to put more than two victories together this week as they play host to two ECAC-South opponents, both of whom have claimed earlier wins over them.

Wednesday night, at 7:30 p.m. in Minges Coliseum, the Pirates play host to Richmond, while on Saturday night, the U.S. Naval Academy comes to town for the first time ever.

It is the Spiders, of course, that will occupy the attention of the Pirates until late Wednesday night, and a victory over Richmond could do a lot toward aiming East Carolina into the ECAC-South tournament, just over three weeks away.

In their first meeting this year, Richmond gained a 68-56 victory over the Pirates, giving the Spiders their fourth straight win over East Carolina over the past two years.

That first meeting this year was the first full game for the Pirates without senior forward Charles Green, who had dislocated his shoulder in the previous game against William & Mary, and the Pirates were in the midst of a three-game losing streak trying to adjust to that loss.

Green returned to action on Saturday night for the first time, coming off the bench to score ten points and direct the Pirates to a 73-59 victory over Baptist — avenging an earlier loss to that team.

In that first meeting, Johnny Edwards led the Pirates with 18 points and six rebounds, while Barry Wright scored 13 points and Tony Robinson had 11.

Richmond, which hit 59 percent of its shots from the floor in the first game, was led by their big 6-10, 220-pound senior center, Jeff Pehl, and 6-4, 195-pound senior guard Tom Bethea, each with 14 points.

A big difference in that game too was the free throw shooting, where Richmond scored 16 points and the Pirates got only four. Richmond also held a definite rebounding edge with a 32-19 margin.

Since that game, 6-7, 185-pound freshman forward John Newman has come on strong and has replaced Bill Flye in the starting lineup for the Spiders. He's started the last five games for the Spiders and has been in double figures for the last eight games — averaging 19.2 points over that span.

And right now, he's the leading scorer for the Spiders, who have three starters in double figures. For the year, Newman is averaging 12.2 points.

Pehl is next at 11.8 followed closely by Bethea at 11.7. Pehl is also the leading rebounder with a 6.6 average.

The other two expected starters are 6-2, 175-pound sophomore Kelvin Johnson, averaging 9.4 points a game, and 6-6, 210-pound senior forward Bill Dooley, hitting 3.1 points a game.

Richmond comes into the game with an 11-11 record and a 2-4 ECAC-South mark. The Spiders are on the verge of being mathematically eliminated from the title race, and a win by ECU would knock them out of any chance at the title.

The Pirates, meanwhile, are also 11-11 overall and have a 1-6 ECAC-South record. Their only victory of the year in the conference came in early January when they defeated defending champ James Madison, 43-41. East Carolina has already been eliminated from any chance at the regular season title.

Navy, which comes in for Saturday's game, downed the Pirates in their first meeting, 66-64, on a rebound shot at the buzzer.

Bonnett Wins Busch 'Crash'

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It's called the Busch Clash, but the fifth edition of the 50-mile sprint race for a $50,000 first prize could have been more appropriately called the "Busch Crash" or "Busch Bash."

Neil Bonnett, who started 15th in the 16-car field, barely avoided crashing his Chevrolet Monte Carlo SS halfway through the event but went on to pass Darrell Waltrip two turns from the end for a half-length victory at Daytona International Speedway.

Bobby Allison, Terry Labonte, Dale Earnhardt and Buddy Baker weren't as lucky, all of them winding up sitting uphappily in the infield grass in badly damaged cars. None of them was injured.

Bonnett moved all the way up to fourth place by the third lap when Allison slid through some oil in the fourth turn. He slammed into the outside retaining wall, then slid down the banking, across the grass and into another fence near the entrance to pit road.

That crash brought out the first caution flag in the history of the rich race for the previous season's pole winners.

Bonnett still was running fourth, behind the 1982 Ford Thunderbird of Bill Elliott, when the leader suddenly slowed near the end of the 10th lap and slipped back into the pack, tapping both the Monte Carlo of Waltrip, who grabbed the lead, and the 1983 Thunderbird of Earnhardt.

"I had the car as far out of control at that point as I ever have at Daytona without losing it," Bonnett said.

Bonnett, the only member of the Clash field to make it on the basis of a wild card draw among the fastest second-day qualifiers of 1982, fell in behind Waltrip two laps later.

That's the way it stayed until the backstretch of the final trip around the 2.5-mile, high-banked trioval.

At that point, Bonnett dived low and beat Waltrip into the third turn. The two tapped fenders, but both stayed in control. Bonnett managed to fend off the defending Winston Cup champion the rest of the way.

"I can't think of a better way to start with a new team," said Bonnett, who is driving for the combined team of Warner Hodgdon and Rahmoe Racing in 1983.

"I got down as low as I could in the backstretch, right down on the apron, and shot up the track into the corner. It was just enough to get by him, and I knew at that point I could stay ahead."

Terry Labonte, whose Monte Carlo had been running third, tried to get around Waltrip on the high side of the track as Bonnett went underneath. But Waltrip moved up toward the outside wall and Labonte suddenly skidded sideways and hit the wall.

Farmville Central Out To Wrap Up Regular Season ECC Title

By RICK SCOPPE
Reflector Sports Writer

FARMVILLE — Farmville Central, the ECC regular-season championship within its grasp, will try not to lose its grip this week as the Jaguars face a team that has yet to win and another that has won just five games.

Farmville is at Charles B. Aycock (0-19, 0-11) tonight and is home Friday for its season-finale against Southern Nash (5-13, 4-6). Farmville can, by winning both games, clinch no worse than a tie for the title.

Farmville and North Pitt are tied for first in the conference at 8-2, but the Jaguars have beaten the Panthers twice this season and if the two teams end up tied, Farmville would receive the top seed for the Eastern Carolina Conference post-season tournament.

North Pitt (15-5) entertains SouthWest Edgecombe (13-7, 5-5) tonight and ends the regular season Friday at home against Ayden-Grifton (12-8, 7-4).

"It's going to be a tough week," Farmville Central coach Mike Terrell said, whose team defeated North Pitt and A-G — its two principal challengers for the title — last week.

"We've really got to approach this week like we did last week. The two teams are not as strong as North Pitt or Ayden-Grifton, but they're conference games and we've got to have the right mental attitude."

"That's the key: we've got to have the same mental attitude that we had last week," he said. "Last week we were playing for a chance. This week we've got a golden opportunity to win it."

The Jaguars, who whipped North Pitt, 42-37, last Tuesday and came back to nip A-G, 59-58, Friday, are led by forward Terrance Pettway, who is averaging 14.0 points and 6.4 rebounds a game. Pettway also is averaging 49 percent from the floor — tops on the team.

Center Andrew Edwards is averaging 11 points and 6.6 rebounds a game. Forward Tony Hargrove is averaging 8.3 points and 5.3 rebounds a game.

Completing the starting lineup are guards Reggie Gorham and Gary Hobgood, who is averaging nearly three assists a game.

The Jaguars whipped Aycock, 74-33, earlier this season, but Terrell said this is a different Falcon team.

"Aycock has improved quite a bit. We've got to execute well both offensively and defensively," he said. "We've got to respect that (C.B. Aycock) can beat us."

"I just hope," Terrell added, "that the opportunity to win the conference championship is enough motivation for us."

C.B. Aycock, which is being outscored on average by 28.9 points a contest, is led by Mark Radford, who is averaging 11.4 points.

Southern Nash is led by David Spivey, who is averaging 12.6 points an outing. Terry Battle leads the Firebirds on the boards with a 7.6 average. Jimmy Pulley is averaging 6.1 rebounds.

Farmville, 14-6 overall, defeated Southern Nash, 50-44, in the teams' initial meeting. The Firebirds have won two of their last three and upset the Chargers 53-51 earlier this season.

In tonight's only other ECC game, Southern Nash travels to Snow Hill to battle Greene Central (6-14, 4-6).

In the Coastal Conference D.H. Conley, which clinched a tie for the regular-season title last week, is at West Craven (16-3, 6-2) and can wrap up the crown with a win. DHC is 17-3 and 8-0.

Kinston (4-5, 8-7) is at Greenville Rose (4-12, 3-7) in the Big East, while in North-eastern Conference Roanoke (15-3, 13-2) goes to Roanoke Rapids (8-8, 8-6) and Washington (6-14, 4-10) travels to Williamston (4-14, 2-12).

In the Tobacco Belt, Jamesville (0-18, 0-14) travels to Bath (5-9, 5-10) while Creswell (10-8, 7-7) travels to Bear Grass (7-10, 6-8).

Also Tuesday, Greenville Christian entertains Faith.

The 1982-83 regular season ends on Friday for the ECC, CC, NEAC and TBC. In action Friday, Greene Central plays host to SouthWest Edgecombe, Williamston is on the road against Edenton, Bear Grass is at Jamesville and D.H. Conley plays host to Havelock.

Also Friday, Rose is at Wilson Pike. The Big East ends its regular season next week.

Wake Unhappy With Crowds

WINSTON-SALEM (AP) — Two years after the marriage of Wake Forest University basketball and the Greensboro Coliseum, the relationship is on shaky ground with rumblings that new arrangements could be made.

The Demon Deacons abandoned Winston-Salem Memorial Coliseum, which seats approximately 8,200, because of its dilapidated status and chose to play its games in the 15,600-seat Greensboro Coliseum. Rarely, however, have all the seats in the coliseum been filled for Wake Forest games.

Officials at Wake Forest have said they've sold 12,000 season tickets for the nine-game Greensboro package.

In beating Maryland last week, Wake Forest played before less than 8,000 people. The only time Wake Forest has exceeded that total is when they've entertained North Carolina, which also calls the coliseum home several times a season.

After seven of its nine home games, Wake Forest is averaging 8,654 fans, a 33 percent decline from its first year of occupancy. Subtract the Tar Heel game last month and the average falls to 7,513, almost 700 short of the capacity of Memorial Coliseum.

"We'll just have to wait until the end of the year and take a good hard look and see what the final figures are," said Wake Forest athletic director Gene Hooks. "We'll have TV for eight of the nine games here, and I think we've tested our people pretty hard."

Wake Forest basketball coach Carl Tacy, who has never favored the move from the school's home town to an arena 30 miles away, said the situation is like "walking a tightrope."

"We're the only nomadic team in college basketball," said Tacy. "We play everywhere and everywhere we go, we never have a homecourt advantage."

Crowds have also been kept down by television coverage as well as inclement weather several times this season. Tacy admits that television is the key to drawing top athletes to Winston-Salem.

"Television and national ranking are two of the most important things in recruiting a player," he said.

Also upset with the attendance is Greensboro Coliseum manager Jim Oshust, who said the weak attendance has been costly to his arena.

"I think it's a case where we would like to see them do better so we could sell more hot dogs and parking," Oshust said. "Wake Forest happens to be as good a school as any. It just happens to be suffering the problems of being the smallest school in the ACC."

Both Tacy and Hooks would like to see Winston-Salem officials build a new arena, but voters twice have overwhelmingly defeated a bond issue which would have provided a new home for the Demon Deacons.

"I can't bang the door too hard on something like that, but I'd very much like to have a new arena," Tacy said. "It would be an advantage to the program."

Oshust has suggested that Wake Forest begin a sales campaign for the 1983-84 season, which is the final year of the three-year contract between the two parties. He also said he would like to amend the contract so that Wake Forest would compensate the coliseum for no-shows and crowds reduced by television and inconvenient starting times.

"We're not going to adjust the contract," Hooks replied.

There has also been talk that Wake Forest might split its schedule between Greensboro and Winston-Salem, providing just another dilemma for a program trying to find a suitable home.

"There is not a day that goes by that I don't wonder if we're doing the right thing," Hooks said. "Once I do something I don't second guess myself, but I'm also hard-headed. We're between a rock and a hard place."

Wilson Sparks Virginia

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Junior guard Othell Wilson scored 20 points and led four players in double figures as Virginia's fifth-ranked Cavaliers rolled to a 92-69 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory Monday night over Georgia Tech and Coach Terry Holland said defense was the key.

"We made them take the tough shots," Holland said of the Yellow Jackets. "I think they normally shoot a better percentage than that."

For the game, Georgia Tech hit only 32 percent.

Virginia, rebounding from its 64-63 setback last Thursday at North Carolina, clinched its fourth consecutive 20-victory season. The Cavaliers now are 20-3 overall and 8-2 in the ACC.

"We came out Saturday and had an excellent practice, the kind of response you need after a game like that," Holland said of the North Carolina defeat.

Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins said "obviously we didn't play well. We have such a young team. If we don't play well, we really don't have a chance. Virginia is a fantastic basketball team."

Craig Robinson scored a season-high 17 points for Virginia. Ralph Sampson added 14 points and Jim Miller 11.

Sampson, now three points shy of becoming the third Virginia player to score 2,000 points in his career, had only two points in the first half. He did not take a shot from the floor in the first 20 minutes.

Georgia Tech, 10-11 and 3-8 in the ACC, got a game-high 31 points from freshman guard Mark Price and 13 points from reserve Anthony Byrd.

Following four early lead changes, Virginia ran off 12 unanswered points to open up an 18-7 lead. Robinson started the run with a short hook, Wilson converted a three-point play, Miller hit a six-footer, Kenton Edelin made two free throws and Wilson added a three-point basket.

After Price got a fast-break layup, Georgia Tech's first points in more than five minutes, Virginia outscored the Jackets 8-2 to expand its lead to 15 points at 26-11 with 7:08 left in the half. The Cavaliers led, by 41-27 at intermission.

Georgia Tech, which had beaten Duke and Wake Forest in its last two ACC starts, failed to score on 14 of its first 17 possessions in the game. The Jackets shot a miserable 20.7 percent, six of 29, and turned the ball over nine times in the first half.

Sampson got his first field goal to open the second half and Rick Carlisle hit four straight free throws to boost Virginia to a 47-27 lead with 18:03 to play. Georgia Tech got no closer than 15 points the rest of the way, a three-point goal by Price bringing the Jackets within 69-54 with 7:20 left.

Virginia's largest lead was 27 points at 87-60.

Rebels Run To Poll Top

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — In this hype-happy town, where superlatives reign supreme, No. 1 has a new meaning.

The University of Nevada-Las Vegas Runnin' Rebels were perched atop the Associated Press college basketball poll today for the first time in their 25-year history.

The Rebels, 22-0, and the only unbeaten team in the nation, took over first place after Villanova upset last week's leader, North Carolina. The Tar Heels fell to third place while Indiana slipped into second.

For Rebel guard Danny Tarkanian, the rating was particularly sweet. He had watched his father, UNLV Coach Jerry Tarkanian, roll up 12 straight 20-victory seasons en route to becoming the winningest active coach in college basketball.

Yet until last week's No. 2 rating, a Tarkanian club had never been ranked higher than No. 3.

"When you're ranked second, third or fourth, you're always behind somebody," the younger Tarkanian said. "In 10 or 15 or 20 years from now,

I can say to my kids that I was on the No. 1-ranked team in the country."

"If they ever dreamed of not making us No. 1, it'd be the biggest ripoff ever. Everybody else has lost, and some more than once," the fiery guard said.

"They haven't been giving us the justice we deserve," chimed in forward Larry Anderson after Monday's practice. "I didn't think they'd give it to us. I really didn't think this would happen."

The news of the latest poll by a panel of sports writers had hardly cleared the AP wires when signs began popping up on Strip marquees proclaiming the Rebels as the nation's best college basketball team.

Coach Tarkanian held something of a different view.

"Getting to the Final Four is more important," he said Monday. "The best part of this season is that we're winning. Being No. 1 is great, but it's something you can't really sit back and enjoy, because you have to go out and play again."

Tarkanian has said since last Spring that his 1982-83 edition didn't have the raw talent of last year's team, and certainly not the power of the 1975-76 club that went 23-0 before finishing in the elite Final Four.

But Tarkanian says he has always liked the way this year's team worked together. What they lacked in talent, they made up in hustle and determination, he said.

Now the Rebels are sneaking up on that old victory string, and could break it with wins over San Jose State and Utah State at home this weekend.

And, in a city where who-you-know is more important than what-you-know, clout is now being exercised to extricate Final Four tickets.

Detractors ask if the Rebels are real in light of their schedule. Defenders note the club has beaten the nation's top offensive club, Oklahoma, and twice whipped Fresno, the country's top defensive team.

The ranking was hardly a runaway, with UNLV gaining 31 of 54 first place ballots, finishing with 1,031 points, just 19 ahead of Indiana. The Hoosiers, 19-2, received 13 first place ballots.

Following North Carolina,

21-4, was Houston, 20-2 — now riding a 15-game winning streak. Virginia, 19-3, slipped from No. 3 to No. 5.

Sixth place went to St. John's, 20-2, followed by Arkansas, 20-1, and Villanova. Louisville was rated No. 9 and UCLA slipped from No. 5 to No. 10 after its loss to Oregon State.

Kentucky was ranked 11, followed by Missouri, Memphis State and Georgetown. Wichita State was 15, followed by Iowa, Syracuse, Boston College, Oklahoma and Ohio State.

Cale Yarborough's Misfortune Is Lucky Break For Rudd, Bodine

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Cale Yarborough's misfortune in qualifying for the Daytona 500 was a stroke of good fortune for Ricky Rudd and Geoff Bodine.

Although they both were considerably slower than Yarborough on the 2.5-mile, high-banked track Monday, it will be Rudd and Bodine who will start from the front row positions Sunday in the $1 million race — the 25th edition of the prestigious Daytona 500.

Moments after Yarborough appeared to win the pole with the first 200 mph lap ever recorded at Daytona by a stock car, the three-time Winston Cup champion found himself upside down in his new Chevrolet Monte-Carlo SS, sliding into the outside retaining wall in turn four.

"There's no question it (the second lap) was going to be better," the uninjured Yarborough said dejectedly. "I think a gust of wind got the car coming off turn three. When that first gust hit it, it just took the traction right off the rear tires."

Yarborough's first lap average of 200.503 mph, accomplished despite winds gusting from 20 to 25 mph, will go into the Daytona record books. But it will not be counted as the race qualifying record since the car will not start Sunday.

Although Yarborough was not injured, the wild crash damaged the frame of the car so badly that the Ranier team was forced to withdraw the entry.

Yarborough now will have to qualify another car to get in the race. The team immediately sent their transporter on the 18-hour roundtrip to the Ranier shop in Charlotte, N.C., to bring back their Pontiac LeMans backup car in time for practice today.

"The (backup) car was all ready to go, and we were going to bring two cars, but we just didn't have a second truck available," Yarborough said.

Rudd's fast lap was 198.864 in another Monte Carlo, followed by Bodine's 197.139 in a Pontiac Grand Prix.

Only the top two official qualifiers clinched places in the starting lineup for the race, with the next 28 positions to be decided in two 125-mile qualifying races Thursday. The rest of the 42-car grid will be filled through further time trials today and Wednesday.

Yarborough still must establish a qualifying speed in the LeMans in order to qualify for one of Thursday's races.

The 43-year-old driver said his car was running smoothly when it suddenly began to slide.

"It didn't drag or anything," he said. "The rear tires just came off the ground."

The car got sideways at about 190 mph and winds that had hampered other qualifiers appeared to pick up the car, flipping it onto its roof. It slid rear-end first into the outside wall, then whipped around, striking the front end on the wall and bouncing back onto its wheels before spinning down the banking and into the infield grass.

That crash ended the reign of Ranier team manager and engine builder Waddell Wilson, whose cars had won four straight Daytona 500 poles.

"It's really too bad," Wilson said. "But that's the way this sport goes. The car was running great."

Rudd, who drives for former Grand National competitor Richard Childress, said, "I'm sorry to see Cale have that misfortune, but the pole position means a lot of money and a lot of prestige, so I'm glad we won it. The crew got a real mental boost from it."

Yarborough's fast lap broke the absolute Daytona record of 199.093 mph set Friday by Rick Roland in a 1977 Pontiac LeMans ARCA stock car. The ARCA cars are allowed to run larger engines than the NASCAR Grand National cars.

Lady Terrapins Move Up On Women's Cage Poll

By The Associated Press

Maryland, which enjoyed one of its biggest victories in history by upsetting Old Dominion, 82-66, last week, reversed its slide and jumped from eighth to sixth in the weekly major women's basketball poll.

This is the 100th weekly poll since its start seven years ago and the Terrapins are the only team to have appeared in every one of them, plus the seven preseason ballots.

"I think the key for us has been our pride as a team," said Maryland coach Chris Weller. "No one thinks about individual statistics. We really have a lot of balance."

The Terrapins, who went to the final four of the first NCAA women's tournament last year, visit No. 18 North Carolina State, Saturday, in an important Atlantic Coast Conference game.

When Maryland appeared in the first poll, the top three names were Delta State, Wayland Baptist and Immaculata. This week, the trio continues to be led by Louisiana Tech, which received all 50 first-place votes and 1,000 points from the national panel of coaches.

Southern California and Texas held the second and third spots.

Tennessee rolled past three nationally-ranked teams — N.C. State, Kentucky and Georgia — last week to leap from sixth to fourth. But that position, which the Vols held in this year's preseason vote, may be short-lived after being upset by Old Dominion, 90-66, Monday night.

The Monarchs had fallen from seventh to ninth after losing to Maryland last week.

Cheyney State held fifth with 806 points, only five behind Tennessee, while Kentucky dropped from fourth to seventh, receiving 742 points, three fewer than Maryland.

Kansas State moved one spot to eighth with 624 points, three more than Old Dominion's total. Long Beach State had two victories to move back into the Top Ten at the bottom of the group.

Georgia's two losses to unranked Vanderbilt and Tennessee dropped it from 10th to 12th.

The Second Ten included, in order, Arizona State, Georgia, Rutgers, Auburn, Penn State, Mississippi, Louisiana State, North Carolina State, and Missouri. North Carolina and Ohio State tied for 20th.

Carr Faces Wichita State To Victory

By The Associated Press
Antoine Carr could be operating as smooth as a Rolls Royce.
Wichita State's 6-foot-9 forward was running on all cylinders Monday night as he paced the 15th-ranked Shockers to an 80-65 Missouri Valley Conference victory over Drake.

Carr scored a season-high 31 points, 21 in the second half, blocked five shots and intimidated Drake's shooters on several other attempts.
"He was outstanding," Wichita State Coach Gene Smithson said. "He was terrific on defense, phenomenal on offense. He was so good on internal defense he took away everything that they had on the inside."

Five others members of The Associated Press Top Twenty also were in action and all came through without too much sweat. Fifth-ranked Virginia breezed past Georgia Tech 92-69. No. 7 Arkansas defeated Southern Methodist 71-61, 11th-ranked Kentucky downed Florida 73-61. No. 13 Memphis State trimmed North Texas State 80-63 and

No. 14 Georgetown trounced Connecticut 77-60.
Carr hit on 10 of 12 shots and 11 of 12 free throws as the MVC-leading Shockers, 19-3 overall and 11-1 in the conference, beat Drake for the 11th straight time. Aubrey Sherrod contributed 14 points for Wichita and Xavier McDaniel added 13 to go with his 17 rebounds.

Drake, playing at home, trailed 39-33 at halftime and kept pace with the Shockers until Carr took charge midway through the second half. Two baskets by Carr and a jump shot by McDaniel gave Wichita State a 55-43 lead with 11:49 left. Carr later contributed two baskets and a free throw during a run of seven straight points that expanded the lead to 66-49.

Drake Coach Gary Garner called Carr "the best player we've played against in my two years here. Tonight we were manhandled. We've been in just about every game here, but not this one."

Top Ten
At Charlottesville, Va., Othell Wilson scored 20 points and four other Virginia players also hit in double figures in the Cavaliers' rout of Georgia Tech. Virginia, rebounding from its 64-63 setback last Thursday at North Carolina in which it blew a 16-point lead down the stretch, clinched its fourth consecutive 20-victory season. The Cavaliers are 20-3 overall and 8-2 in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Craig Robinson scored a season-high 17 points for Virginia, while Ralph Sampson added 14 points and Jim Miller had 11. Sampson, three points away from becoming the third Virginia player to score 2,000 points in a career, had only two in the first half, both on free throws. He did not take a shot from the floor in the first 20 minutes.

N.C. State Gets ACC Reprimand In Football Recruiting Incident

RALEIGH (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Conference has publicly reprimanded North Carolina State for violating rules in recruiting a football player, the league announced Monday.

ACC Commissioner Robert C. James said in a letter to the university that "the conference voted unanimously to publicly reprimand North Carolina State University for violations of the NCAA Contact Rule and for providing more than the allowable number of campus visits to a prospective student-athlete."

Clauston Jenkins, university counsel, said the investigation established that N.C. State violated the rules in the recruitment of one football player who enrolled at the university.

The player had been identified as defensive lineman Reggie Singletary, a freshman from West Columbus High School.

Dr. Bruce Poulton, N.C. State chancellor, said he was not surprised by the reprimand.

"To be truthful, we were expecting that," Poulton said Monday. "I am obviously unhappy with it because it is an embarrassment to an otherwise outstanding university."

Jenkins said N.C. State must appear before the National Collegiate Athletic Association Committee on Infractions later this month on the matter, and could not comment further.

Turns". When an attempt was made to find a set of quads for the part, an agent suggested the Goldmans. Weeks later, CBS realized that the quadruplets who had inspired their own parts were in fact acting them out. (AP Laserphoto)

Johnny Cash Emerging As Right Hombre For Gary Cooper's Roles

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — His voice sounds like it's bounced along too many dusty roads. His movements are like a hound dog who's found the shade on a lazy summer day. His acting is a cross between sleeping and telling campfire yarns.

Still, Johnny Cash is a Presence, and, until somebody more true blue comes along, he's the right hombre to be Gary Cooper. Proof comes tonight in CBS' "Murder in Coweta County," a relentlessly captivating story (based on a 1948 killing in Georgia) and framed by rich, drawling Southern atmosphere.

Cash plays Sheriff Lamar Potts of Coweta County, a laconic man with neon ties who has a preacher's devotion to law and justice. There aren't too many men who can get away with knocking on a door and saying, "It's the law." Cash does. But barely.

The dialogue, you see, is the weakest link in this tight, tense drama. When Cash tells a crooked sheriff — "You sold that badge, the same badge I stand behind" — you think this might be a lyric from a Johnny Cash ballad.

On the other side of the law, and in the next county, is John Wallace. He's a vile man man with a toothy smile. Cross him, and he'll pull the gun from his belt without any thought or conscience. He owns Meriwether County.

Andy Griffith, who once played the folksy sheriff of Mayberry on "The Andy Griffith Show," is oh so delectably nasty. The man can act, and he seems to relish his new black-hat career. He was the vengeful father in "Murder in Texas" several years ago.

It's John Wallace's misfortune and miscalculation to have done his latest killing across the border in Coweta (Cash pronounces it like a Japanese city, "Kyeeda").

"Potts is a tracker," says a Wallace henchman.

"He can't find a body if there's no body," says Wallace, who disposed of the corpse in a state that requires an evidentiary stiff to make a murder charge stick.

It's a great battle of will and wits, culminated by a crackling courtroom scene, with real Georgian townfolk hanging inside and outside the building. The film, shot in Georgia, sets out to be simple entertainment — and succeeds.

This week's "American Playhouse" is not so sure what it wants to be. "The File on Jill Hatch," a three-part miniseries, works well the first two weeks as a story about an interracial couple who meet and marry in England during World War II.

Carl Hatch (Joe Morton) is a sophisticated black American soldier. Sheila (Frances Tomelty) is white, from a blue-collar family. When the war ends, their war against discrimination is just beginning.

Tonight's episode traces the reactions of Sheila's family and countrymen. Next week, in the strongest segment, the couple comes to the United States, where miscegenation laws in the South force Carl to don a chauffeur's uniform when they travel in public.

Carl's mother (Gloria Foster) is cold, not because of race but because of Sheila's limited reach. "She has no wings," Carl's mother tells him. "She's not up to you."

The story then moves north, where Carl furthers his education and Sheila gets a job. This independence

Yesterday's Cryptquip — THE WISE MONARCH'S DENTIST MADE HIS CROWNS.

Today's Cryptquip clue: T equals N.

The Cryptquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Burley Growers Approach Vote

By The Associated Press

Burley tobacco growers, facing a cut in this year's quota and an increase in fees, will vote Feb. 28-March 3 on whether to continue the government marketing-quota and price-support program for the next three crop years.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced on Feb. 1 that the basic marketing quota for the 1983 burley crop will be 5 percent less than for 1982.

And with adjustments for over- and under-marketings, effective farm quotas for 1983 are expected to total 677 million pounds, a reduction of about 13 percent from last year's effective quota, the department said.

Meanwhile, burley growers can expect to pay a higher rate of assessment on their 1983 crop to help finance the government program. The fee, required by the new tobacco law passed by Congress last year, was only a penny a pound for the 1982 burley crop.

The 1983 assessment probably will not be known before the referendum or before quota leasing begins, said Jim Davis, director of the Tobacco and Peanut Division of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Davis said the assessment shouldn't cause any problems in burley leasing.

The new law does not require holders of burley allotments to pay the assessment on the quota pounds they lease to growers, as does the law on flue-cured allotments, Davis said. For burley tobacco, the new law requires only that the grower pay an annual assessment as he sells his crop.

The 1983 assessment will be determined after sales of the 1982 burley crop are completed by the end of this month, Davis said. The rate will be based on the interest cost on tobacco received under government loan.

More than 250 million pounds — about 31 percent of the season's burley volume so far — has already gone under government loan. The total loans on the burley crop — $500 million — will be slightly higher than the loans on the 1982 flue-cured tobacco crop.

Almost all the burley loan stocks from previous crops have been sold. Less than 1 percent of the 1981 crop was received under government loan.

The growers will vote in a mail referendum to be conducted in the eight burley-producing states. In North Carolina, the crop is grown mostly in mountain counties.

Not Against A Friendly Hand

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. George C. Wallace, who once warned Americans not to "turn your back on a communist," has shown he isn't against stretching out a friendly hand to the mainland Chinese.

Wallace met with Wu Xiaoba, the consul general of the People's Republic of China, on Monday to discuss ways to improve relations between mainland China and Alabama.

Wallace said he favors "any contact" with mainland China that is aimed at improving trade and cultural relations. But such contact must not compromise "political principles," he said.

Wallace, long a supporter of Taiwan, once paid a visit to Chiang Kai-shek, the late leader of the Taiwan government.

Mardi Gras in New Orleans

It's Mardi Gras—a time for celebration, parades, and general craziness in New Orleans. The festival takes place each year on Shrove Tuesday, the day before the beginning of Lent, a traditional period of fasting for Christians. French colonists introduced Mardi Gras in Louisiana in 1766, and the celebration still includes many of the original French customs. Societies called Krewe's organize and pay for most of the special events. On Shrove Tuesday, members of the Krewe's and anyone else who wants to join the fun parade in the streets in masks and fancy outfits. Presiding over the festivities is Rex, the King of the Carnival, who is the only one to parade unmasked.

DO YOU KNOW — What is the meaning of the French expression "Mardi Gras?"

MONDAY'S ANSWER — Juno was the ancient Roman goddess of love.

his doubles of the major suits were sound. He was in the swing of things, so when South wriggled out of three no trump into four clubs, he felt obliged to make one more double, on general principles.

When West led her singleton heart, two down seemed certain. After getting a heart ruff, West could shift to the queen of diamonds, and the defenders would collect the ace of hearts and two ruffs, and two diamond tricks.

That is certainly how the play would have gone were it not for one hitch — Dianna dropped the king of hearts under the ace! That sent East into a stew for a while. Finally, he decided that it was unlikely that such an attractive young lady was trying to pull the wool over his eyes. So he shifted to a club, and Dianna quickly cashed her ten tricks for a top score.

Californians Barry Crane and Kerri Shuman were unable to defend their World Mixed Pair title at the recent Olympiad in Biarritz, France. But the title stayed on this continent when Canadians Dianna Gordon and George Mittelman waltzed off with the crown.

Dianna sat South on this deal. Her double of three diamonds simply showed a maximum no trump response. East let the world know that
