Wind, Rain, Flood On California Coast

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO

Associated Press Writer Storms pounding California with hurricaneforce winds and floods sent residents of some communities scrambling to their rooftops today, while mudslides blocked major highways and railroads and the death toll climbed to National Guardsmen were called out to help evacuate residents along the Sacramento River and its tributaries and a dam burst near Santa Ynez, 100 miles northwest of Los Angeles, sending water 5 feet deep through a mobile home park.

March also roared in like a lion in the Southeast, where Mexico prompted gale warnings and coastal flood watches from northeast Florida to Virginia on the Atlantic Coast and from northwest florida to Louisiana on the gulf Coast.

In Southern California, the winds gusting to 84-mph in places toppled at least three trucks on rain-slickened Los Angeles freeways.

The Southern Pacific Railroad's coastal route was knocked out of business when 50 feet of track was covered with 4 to 5 inches of mud about 70 miles northwest of Los Angeles. A spokesman said all trains were being held up at Santa Barbara.

The railroad's main inland route to Los Angeles was blocked when a bridge in Newhall was closed by high water. In northern California, a 240-foot trestle washed out at Gerber, halting Amtrak passenger trains. The collapse of the earthen dam near Santa Ynez forced the evacuation of about 25 residents while other mobile homes were afloat at a traler park in the mountains north of Castaic Lake, 50 miles to the east.

Widespread flooding along the Sacramento River in northern California forced the evacuation of more than 100 people early today in Tehama County about 60 people were evacuated by boat to an old fire hall.

"we were rescuing people off roofs," said police dispatcher Susan Myers.

"It's at least four feet deep in several houses," said Officer Bruce Bonner.

Tehama County sheriff's officers were evacuating residents of Tehama and Los Molinos, where the river was expected to climb 6 feet above flood stage.

"I would imagine when it's all figured, it's going to be a tremendous amount of damage," said Undersheriff Mike Blanusa. "We're getting a lot of flash flooding all over the

Greenville Utilities Bill Now In House Committee

A bill that would allow members of the Greenville Utilities Commission to set their own compensation has been introduced in the State House and is now in committee, Rep. Ed Warren said Monday

In December, the City Council adopted a resolution asking that Warren introduce the measure to allow the commissioners to set their own pay

City Manager Gail Meeks said the pay for Utilities Commissiom members, set by the General Assembly, has been $50 per month "for many years." The City Council, she said, decided it would be best if the commission was allowed to set its own compensation.

"The City Council appoints members of the Utilities Commission and has authority over the approval of the budget. If they feel the salary is too high, the council could control it," Mrs. Meeks noted.

At present, the mayor receives $3,600 a year, while the mayor pro-tem gets $2,700 a year. Other members of the council receive $2,400 a year.

Commission Chairman Harry Hagerty said compensation for commission members was set at $10 per month "when the commission was set up, then increased to $50 by the Legislature, when the council salary was at $50 per month. It hasn't been adjusted since then.'

He said he views the action by the council in seeking to give the commission the authority to set the compensation rate for its members as "a matter of confidence in what the commission is doing.

an Ocala tow truck driver he was pulling people from who was rear-ended after exploded. He was reported in driving into the dense smoke fair condition late Monday.

The warning, in a memo by Edward A. Kurent, associate enforcement counsel for waste, followed recent congressional assurances by Mrs. Burford that an aggressive hazardous waste enforcement program was a top priority of the agency.

Unemployment Up For State

The unemployment rate for January was up in 94 of the state's 100 counties, with 66 counties having rates in double digits.

The total unemployment rate for January was 10 percent.

Dare County had the highest unemployment rate. with 42.1 percent of the local work force out of jobs. The Employment Security Commission said 1.260 of the county's labor force of 2,990 was unemployed.

Other counties with high rates included Swain, 30.7 percent; Clay 23.9; Graham 23.7 and Tyrrell 23.2.

The rate decreased in four counties and was unchanged in two counties, said Glenn R. Jernigan, chairman of the North Carolina Employment Security Commission.

"Usually, weather conditions and post-holiday layoffs in retail trade account for the major increases in unemployment during January. This year was no exception. From all indications, improvements will be slow in the months ahead but we're hopeful that construction and tourism will help lead us out of the recession," he said.

Counties with the lowest unemployment rates were Orange, 3.9 percent; Durham 4.8; Wake 4.9; Watauga 6.1

Extradition Waived By Suspect In Two Killings

A New Jersey man charged Saturday with the double murder of a Grifton minister and a Goldsboro man has waived his extradition rights in Newark and was expected to be returned to Greenville today, Pitt County Sheriff Ralph Tyson said.

Tyson said that deputies who have been in Newark several days investigating the deaths of the Rev. Leslie L. Thorbs, 31, and Anthony Ray Herring, 27, were to escort Dwight Parker 23, back to Pitt County, where an appearance before a magistrate was sched-

The weighted bodies of Thorbs and Herring were pulled from the Tar River near the N.C. 222 bridge in the Falkland area last week. Authorities said both men died of gunshot wounds to the head.

Tyson said that Essex County authorities in New Jersey located Thorbs' black and gold Cadillac in a Newark parking lot Monday afternoon and State Bureau of Investigation agents will go to Newark to process the vehicle for evidence. Tyson said the car will probably be brought back to Pitt County after the SBI completes its work.

Pitt authorities arrested Carolyn Pippins, 20, of Route 4, Greenville, Thursday on charges of being an accessory after the fact of murder in the deaths of Thorbs and Herring. He said Parker had been visiting in this area and apparently had stayed at the home of Ms. Pippins and her mother.

Tyson said his department's investigation of the murders was continuing.

The Soviet Union Remembers

Kremlinologists wonder what Soviet leader Yuri Andropov will say this weekend on the 30th anniversary of the death of Joseph Stalin, who ruled his nation from 1929 to 1953. Through a series of 5-year economic plans to industrialize his nation, Stalin helped the Soviet Union become a superpower. But at a terrible price. A harsh dictator known for "purges" of those he considered threats, Stalin set up a secret police system that sentenced millions to death or to slave labor camps. After his death, the government denounced his crimes against loyal communists. In 1961, Stalin's body was removed from its tomb next to Lenin in Red Square and placed in a simple grave.

DO YOU KNOW - Which Soviet leader denounced the Stalinist "cult" in 1956?

Governors Urge Cut In Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) -Despite President Reagan's opposition, Republican and Democratic leaders of the National Governors' Association are supporting a resolution that demands less defense spending to help lower federal deficits.

The resolution, which the nation's governors were to vote on today, was approved by the executive committee Sunday

Although the governors generally stick to stateelated issues, supporters of the measure say the national economy has become the No. 1 issue because of its impact on their state economies.

North Carolina Gov. Jim Hunt told Reagan on Monday

To Survive Gun Wound

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said today a 31-year-old Greenville man who drove almost two miles to his home after shooting himself in the chest Monday afternoon is expected to survive, Police Chief Glenn Cannon said this morning.

Cannon said officers were called to 2707 Edwards St. about 3:55 p.m., where he said they found David Howard Lamb with a bullet wound in his chest, seated in a chair in the living room. Cannon said a .38 caliber revolver was found on a table nearby.

Cannon said Lamb left his home earlier in the afternoon. His wife called the rescue squad and law enforcement officers when he returned wounded.

The chief said Lamb told officers he went to St. Paul's Episcopal Church at 401 E. Fourth St., shot himself in the chest with the .38 caliber pistol, then drove home.

Cannon quoted doctors as saying the bullet was deflected by a rib and lodged in a muscle in Lamb's back.

schools is to the economy of America the equivalent of unilateral disarmament in national defense."

If the spending resolution passes, it will be the first time the governors have injected themselves in the overall budget debate.

Reagan told the governors at a White House meeting Monday that he shares their loathing for deficits, which are estimated at between $100 billion and $300 billion annually for the next five

But Republican Gov James Thompson of Illinois, vice chairman of the group, said the president "took strong issue" with some of the remedies, particularly the suggestion that defense spending be scaled back.

'He came out swinging on the matter of his defense position," said Gov. Scott Matheson of Utah, the Democratic chairman of the association. Heading a delegation of governors discussing education and economic development with the President, Hunt said the nation and states must focus on education, research and financial support for new technology in order to compete in world

'Another dimension to what we have to do to have strong economic growth in addition to changing the tax structure and reducing regulations is to develop a high quality education system,' Hunt told Reagan. "A productive society requires a strong, educated workforce."

Radio Plea For Help Could Send Wrong Signal

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A woman signed "Sitting Duck" asked what to do should her car break down while she's alone late at night in the middle of nowhere. You told her if she had a CB radio she could call for help and thereby be a "lucky duck.

Abby, if this stranded lady called for help on her "CB" giving her exact location, she would be advertising to the world that she was alone and helpless! Instead of the police officer, highway patrol person or good samaritan she hopes will come to her aid, a "bad guy" could pick up her damsel in distress signal and do her harm before help arrived. Then she'd be a "dead duck. CAUTIOUS IN COLORADO

About 30 years ago I was widowed and started seeing a divorced gentleman. As time went on, marriage was brought up, and he said the only woman he ever really wanted to marry had a father who did not care for him, so he decided to wait patiently to outlive the girl's father.

Guess what? The father is still around. Not only is he living, but just last week I was told that "Father," now 93, is disgusted to be bowling only 150! P.S. The divorced man is still unmarried

Our kids scarfed away everything but the check. I was 35 years old before I knew what a doggy bag was.

It's The Parent's Duty

Those of you who read the classified advertising in The Daily Reflector may have been shocked last Tuesday. There was a full page of legal ads on behalf of minor children filed by the Pitt County Department of Social Services. Those ads were aimed at missing parents - parents who have not acknowledged their responsibility for the child, which now is being cared for at the expense of

The ads were a legal requirement. They must be run before the department can seek court action against the absent parent, which usually is the father. In some cases, county officials said, paternity must be proven even if the parent is found before an assessment of child support can be made.

Typically, when such a parent is found and an assessment is ordered by the court, it makes a difference of about $100 a month per child in the amount of tax money needed to support that child.

It's an extensive problem, one that obviously is not going away by itself. Parents have skipped out on unwanted spouses or children since the days recorded in Genesis. Welfare, or public assistance if you prefer that term, has made it even easier for one or both parents to abandon an unwanted child.

Pitt is only one of 100 counties in North Carolina, and ranks well down the list in population. Yet, county Social Services people say that public assistance has been responsible for the well-being of nearly 3,000 children since September 1975. Today, there are about 350 legal suits pending and twice that number of cases that have not even reached that level

State legislation gave the county the right three years ago to intercept any state income tax refund that was going to the missing parent of a child receiving public assistance. Any money due for child support can be withdrawn before the remainder, if any, of the refund is sent on to the taxpayer. The same right to intercept federal tax refunds was granted under the so-called federal "Reaganomics"

At first blush it seems like a procedure foreign to a democracy. But second thoughts tend to take another tact.

These children are here, presumably, because of voluntary acts of their parents. The parents — one of them at least — have chosen not to exercise their responsibility for the child. That throws that responsibility on the government, which means the child will be supported by tax monies paid by you, me and any other taxpayer. If that missing parent is receiving a tax refund, it stands to reason that much, at least, can be used to support his or her child.

If it takes such action to make the missing parent pay, be on with

Confidence Is Needed

President Reagan was moving belatedly last week to clean house in the Environmental Protection Agency. Two administrators had been fired and before this is read, more may have followed.

White House spokesmen indicated that changes are being made to strengthen the management of the agency charged with protecting the nation's environment.

Some firings may be a start, but President Reagan is going to have to clearly demonstrate to the American public that he is firmly behind the continuing efforts to keep our rivers and streams clean and protect us from the dumping of dangerous chemicals.

There is a deep feeling in the nation that our water ways are crumbling and that we are endangered by some chemicals which are dumped where they can seep into water supplies. The president underestimated this feeling and, through neglect, allowed the EPA to become lax. Now he must win the confidence of the public in this

'Squeal Rule' Could Make Things Worse

WASHINGTON - You can spin Mr. Rubik's cube all night and not find more conflicting sides than you find in this troublesome business of Congress, the courts and the "squeal rule." Everybody is wrong, and on the other hand, everybody is right. Let us reason

What has happened, in brief, is that in 1970 Congress added a section known as Title X to the Public Health Service Act. Under this provision, federal funds were provided for public and non-profit private 'family planning projects." In plain language, the funds were provided for birth control clinics. In 1978, Title X was further amended to provide specifically for services to adolescents.

A Senate committee report explained why: Of an estimated 21 million persons between 15 and 19 years of age, 11 million were thought to have had sexual intercourse. Twenty percent of the 8 million 13and 14-year-olds reportedly were sexually active. Approximately 1 million teenagers were getting pregnant every year. In 1978, roughly. 544,000 unmarried women gave birth to children; of these.

In 1981, when the 1978 act came up for renewal, Congress further amended the law: "To the extent practical, entities which receive grants or contracts ... shall encourage family participation in projects assisted (under Title X)." A conference committee report contained this statement: "While family involvement is not mandated, it is important that families participate in the activities authorized by this title as much as possible. It is the intent of the conferees that grantees will encourage participants in Title X programs to include their families in counseling and involve them in decisions about services.'

Pursuant to this 1981 amendment, the secretary of health and human services last month laid down what has become known as "the squeal rule." The regulation requires the federally funded clinics to notify the parents of anyone aged 17 or younger whenever prescription contraceptive drugs or devices have been provided to the minor.

On Feb. 14, U.S. District Judge Henry F. Werker in New York ruled that the 240,000 were between 15 and 19 years of age. Another 9,400 were under 15. regulation was inconsistent with congressional intent. He ordered enforcement of ional intent. He ordered enforcement of the regulation suspended. Judge Werker's injunction has put everything in limbo pending appeal. (Two other courts have made similar rulings.)

> Where are the rights and wrongs? The issue presents a painful and poignant conflict. between theory and reality. In theory, sex education, including education in contraceptives, ought to be a parental responsibility. In theory, young people ought to go as virgins to the marriage bed. The realities are something else entirely. The realities include unwanted pregnancies, venereal disease and botched lives.

One reason for the demonstrable promiscuity, so it is said, lies in the decline of family authority. The 1981 amendment was intended to strengthen these traditional values. The secretary, in imposing his rule, reasoned that a 15-year-old girl might decide to avoid or postpone sexual relations rather than have a federal clinic report her visit to her parents. In this fashion, it was supposed, the number of teen-age pregnancies might be reduced.

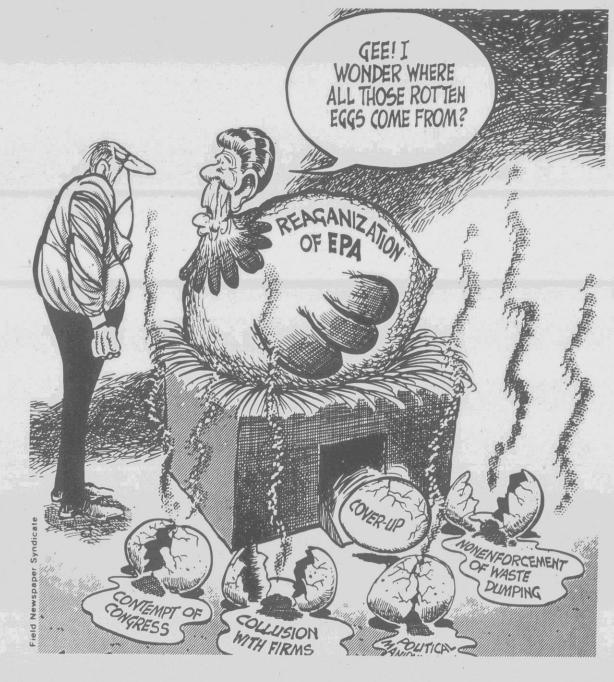

Any adverse consequences of the rule were merely "speculative.

To Judge Werker, that notion was "fatuous." Common sense, he said, dictates but one conclusion: The regulation would not diminish, but rather would increase, adolescent pregnancies. The secretary's position, said the court, "is nothing more than an exercise in

It was strong language. Such terms as "fatuous" are not terms of jurisprudence, but of editorial writing. We do not appoint life-tenured judges to impose their own notions of "common sense," but to expound the law - and a large body of law says that administrative rules, like statutes, should not be voided without compelling reason.

Anyhow, that is where the matter stands. I'm sorry the feds ever got into this area, but given the facts and the law, have to go along reluctantly with Werker's injunction, despite his flamboyant language. Bad as the situation is, the squeal rule would serve only to make

'It's On The House'

WASHINGTON - President Reagan used a White House breakfast with senior Washington correspondents recently to demand that banks bring down interest Twice during a one-hour question-andanswer session the president stressed he feels the persistency of high rates is the fault of the banks and not the Federal Reserve Board. "It is up to the banks," he said. "They are the ones There is no reason, I do not think, why the banks could not bring those interest rates down another notch or two.

In other high points of the wide-ranging session, Reagan

* Contended that the recent test-firing of a new Soviet missile "makes it plain" that Moscow has been engaging in an arms buildup during supposed adherence to the SALT II treaty, and indicated there would have to be some forthcoming Soviet gestures in order to call a summit with Sovet leader Yuri Andropov.

* Took a tough line with Israel, insisting on a deadline for an Israeli troop withdrawal from Lebanon and questioning whether Israel can "go on forever living as an armed camp.

Opposed Democratic congressional moves to remove the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) from the administration's control, again praising the embattled agency for doing a "fine job" in fighting pollution.

Reagan appeared before the 'Breakfast with Godfrey' group - some 40 Washington bureau chiefs, reporters and columnists - organized by Godfrey Sperling, Washington bureau chief of The Christian Science Monitor - who have been interviewing newsmakers over breakfast the past 17 years. Although the correspondents usually eat at a Washington hotel at their own expense, they breakfasted Wednesday in the State Dining Room of the White House at the taxpayers' expense. "It's on the house," the president said in opening the session.

He was at his best, more relaxed and more fluid in his answers than in formal, televised press conferences. But the more intimate atmosphere brought no revelations about his plans for 1984. Arguing that a re-election announcement "leaves you open to the charge that everything you try to do is based on politics" and an announcement of non-candidacy would make him "a lame duck prematurely," he said, "It's a decision that I will come to and I will make at what I think is the appropriate time.'

Interest Rates: The president for the first time went out of his way to jawbone the banks. "I believe that, with inflation at the level it is," he said, "that interest rates can come down more and should, because it leaves the real interest rate higher than is necessary to cope with inflation.

When asked later during the breakfast whether he wants the Federal Reserve Board to force down interest rates or he feels the present Fed policy is adequate, Reagan minced no words in putting the burden on the banks. "I think it is up to the banks," he said. "And I do not know of what the Fed could do to force that. They cannot give orders.'

Soviet: Reagan showed no enthusiasm for a quick summit with Andropov. "Right now," he said" "I think the ball is a little bit in their court. I think that we need some deeds rather than words to indicate that there is something to negotiate, that we could have a meeting and discuss some of the differences between us.

The president virtually accused Moscow'e Feb. 8 missile test-firing of breaking an informal agreement by both sides to obey the unratified SALT II treaty's provisions. Although he expressed doubt about finding "the hard evidence" to make past alleged violations by the Soviets "stand up in court," Reagan contended "this last one comes the closest" to being a clear violation. "This one," he added, "makes it plain: The Soviet Union has really continued its buildup (since SALT II was signed in 1979).

Israeli: Reagan clashed repeatedly with the Israeli government. In response to Defense Minister Moshe Arens' statement that new Soviet missiles in Syria threatened to tip the military balance against Israel, the president said: "I don't think that anyone can make a claim of a military imbalance." He then repeated his insistence on a deadline for Israeli troop withdrawals from Lebanon prior to an Israeli-Lebanese peace treaty, directly counter to Jerusalem's position. Strength For Today

There are many figures of speech which are continually applied to this earthly existence life is a pilgrimage, a vale of sorrow, an adventure.

All such designations contain some truth, but the designation of life as a school is probably the truest of all. We are pupils, and the world is our schosolroom. The tasks to which we are set. the trials we must bear, the temptations we encounter, the probelems we must solve - these are our lessons. Some pupils are unruly and are expelled from school. The Bible refers to these as lost. Others are chastised. Some are kept in after school to learn through hard years the lessons they obstinately set themselves against learning.

Then comes commencement day, and to those who have passed, the Great Teacher says, "Well done, good and faithful servant. Thous has been faithful in a few things; I wilsl make thee ruler over many things. Enter into the joy of thy Lord."

Public Forum

I am writing to inform you and your readers about some pending congressional action in Washington that will have a devastating impact on postal and federal workers everywhere, as well as on the general public — the American taxpaver.

Congress is now debating proposals that would force newly hired postal and federal workers to pay into the Social Security System.

Since 1920, well before Social Security was available, postal and federal employees have paid into the Civil Service Retirement System. Currently, we pay 7 percent of our income into that fund, and when we retire, we receive a pension. Incidentally, the pensions we receive, unlike Social Security, are considered taxable income and we do pay taxes on them.

Social Security is in serious trouble. Congress is unwilling to face the issues squarely and find a real solution. Instead, it wants to "patch" the problems and hopes the Social Security mess will go away.

The amount of money newly hired postal and federal workers will be required to pay into Social Security will have little impact on that system's problems. But when the money is diverted from the Civil Service Retirement System, it will create major problems. Our retirement system wil find itself in the same leaking boat as Social Security, and Congress will have to appropriate the more than $500 billion it will take over the new 40 years to fund Civil Service retirement pensions.

If Congress wants to help Social Security, it should spend its time figuring out how to get the 12 mnillion Americans currently unemployed back to work. If these workers and their employers were paying into Social Security, that system's problems would go away. Jessie R. Nobles, President Greenville N.C. Local American Postal Workers Union, AFL-CIO

Reagan, Queen Obituaries Market Reports Plans Thwarted

Associated Press Writer SANTA BARBARA, Calif - With her yacht bobbing in waves and his ranch awash in mud, Queen Elizabeth II and President Reagan were meeting at an airport today after weather fouled their elaborate reunion plans

The new schedule, drafted Monday night amid severe weather conditions, called for the queen's party to fly today to Santa Barbara from the royal yacht, which will remain anchored about 150 miles south at Long Beach,

Reagan and his wife, Nancy, were to meet them at the Santa Barbara airport for an arrival ceremony. Initially, the yacht was to sail into the Santa Barbara husband, Prince Philip, the Duke of Edinburgh, had planned to drive up through the Santa Ynez mountains to the Reagans' secluded 688acre ranch. But Santa Barbara County Supervisor Bob Kallman said that was canceled, and the royal couple planned instead to lunch with the Reagans at a local restaurant and also visit the Santa Barbara courthouse.

Eric Rosenberger, U.S. press coordinator for the queen's visit, said, however, that plans for a royal visit to the Reagan ranch had not been canceled.

'The weather sure changed the transportation plans and they had to reconsider everything," said White House spokesman Anson Franklin. "The plans are still subject to change.'

The queen's plans were interrupted by what was described as the season's fiercest storm, with the National Weather Service forecasting waves of 25 feet to 30 feet. Weathermen pre-

Gryphons End Year For Rose, 84-70

Reflector Sports Editor

ROCKY MOUNT - The 1982-83 basketball season finally came, mercifully, to an end for the Rose High School Rampants last night - as again — they lost a lead and fell to Rocky Mount, 84-70. Rose, up by as many as six points in the first half, still led as the midpoint of the third quarter approached, but the Rampants — as they have done so many times before fell apart then, and Rocky Mount outscored them in the final 12^{1} ₂ minutes, 47-32 to win handily. and we just couldn't keep up with them. They got their fast go.

The loss, in the first round of the Big East tournament, finished the season for Rose with only a 4-17 record, and with eight consecutive losses at the end of the year. In nearly everyone of those games, the Rampants had been able to build up leads, some of them substantial, before Tosing.

"We just ran out of gas," Coach Jim Brewington said. "We got tired. They started running it back up the court break going and we just sat Brewington felt that one of the big reasons for the problems was that Donnell Lee was on the bench much of the third period in foul trouble. Lee picked up his fourth personal with 4:20 left in the third period — at the point at which Rocky Mount took the lead for good. "With Donnell in foul trouble and on the bench, we just don't have it," Brewington said. "We have to

"And, too, we just didn't have any kind of defense in the third and fourth quarter."

Rose, unable to keep up with Rocky Mount when it did get its fast break going, also proved vulnerable to the back door and to jump shots from Rocky Mount led only once in the first period, at 4-2. Rose scored the initial basket on a shot from underneath by Allen Dickens. But the Gryphons got a basket from Ernie Griffin and single free throws from Chuck Robbins and Jerome Garrett to take a 4-2 lead.

Lee, however, to push back althought Rocky Mount tied it never got closer than three ahead, 6-4. Griffin retied it, but Dickens scored and Tony Clemons followed to push Rose out into a 10-6 lead. They later stretched that to 16-10 the Rampants' biggest lead, before Rocky Mount came back in the final two minutes to score six straight and tie it up at 16-16, the last on a shot from underneath by Garrett with four seconds left. Robbins pushed Rocky Mount into the lead early in the second period, but Rose pushed back out on a threepointer by Dickens. After another exchange of baskets, Rose inched out by two on a Rose got two straight from free throw by Jeff Mahoney,

New Beginning For Some Veteran St

By The Associated Press

As the major league baseball camps officially opened, several veteran players found themselves in new locales - or in new positions.

The most notable changes involved Steve Garvey and Don Sutton, a pair of former Dodgers who are beginning this season with new teams, and Bob Horner and Jack Clark, who will experiment at different positions.

All major league players were required to report by today, with the exhibition games beginning on Saturday. Garvey arrived in the San Diego Padres' training camp at Yuma, Ariz., while Sutton reported to the Milwaukee Brewers' base in Sun City.

"It's like my rookie year in 1970," said Garvey, 34, who there, the challenge is there." The right uniform wasn't, however: the No. 6 uniform supplied him had his name spelled G-R-A-V-E-Y.

Sutton, who finished 1982 with the Brewers, pitching the division-clincher on the final day of the season, had no uniform problems. Nor does he expect to have any fitness

"The last thing I can afford at my age is to get out of shape and try to get back into it," said the 38-year-old Sutton, who has won 258 games in 17 major league seasons.

Sutton is aiming at winning 300, though he has set no goals for this season.

"A few years ago, I stopped setting short-range goals," he "I set some long-range goals. If I do everything in my power to reach the long-range goals, the short-range goals will take care of themselves."

Clark, the slugging right fielder with the powerful arm, might be moving from the outfield to first base. San Francisco Giants Manager Frank Robinson hasn't made up his mind on that switch,

"Jack said he would give first base a try, but I told him not to worry about it," said Robinson. "I want him in right field but if we have to make a change, I'll give Jack plenty of time to work at first base.

Horner could be moving from third base to left field, where he will play during intrasquad games today and Wednesday. Horner has played third base exclusively since joining the Braves in 1978.

The Braves would like to make room in the starting lineup for Jerry Royster, a superior fielder, at third, but only if Horner can hack it in

The Baltimore Orioles have arranged for rain insurance for the entire home portion of their 1983 schedule. The team estimates it lost about $1 million in revenue after seven postponements last season. So Lloyds of London is providing the insurance.

"Nobody's ever asked them to insure a season before," said Orioles owner Edwards Bennett Williams. "They'd insured individual dates, but never 81 openings.'

There are 18 teams training in Florida and seven in Arizona. The California Angels train at Palm Springs, Rookie managers are Doug Rader at Texas, Steve Boros in Oakland and Mike Ferraro in Cleveland. Other new managers are Joe Altobelli at Baltimore, John McNamara at California, Bill Virdon in Montreal and Billy Martin, back again with the Yankees after three seasons in Oakland.

BELHAVEN - Belhaven's boys' basketball team gained a 69-67 victory over Creswell in a special playoff game to complete the pairings for the District 1-A basketball tournament which begins Thursday at Bath.

Belhaven, Creswell and Chocowinity had finished the regular season in a three-way tie for third place in the Tobacco Belt League standings, but only four teams were to qualify for the district event. Chocowinity took second seeding in the district by winning the league's tournament last week, and Creswell and Belhaven played for the remaining spot.

Thursday, at 7 p.m. Chocowinity and Bear Grass meet in a girls' game, with Choeowinity and Aurora colliding in a boys' game at 8:30 p.m. Friday, Bath and Belhaven meet in a girls' game, with Mattamuskeet and Belhaven meeting in the boys' game.

The surviving teams meet next Tuesday night for the district titles and the right to move on into the regionals at Atlantic Christian College the following week.

Adding to Houston's misery is the fact that Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton has lost only six of 106 games in Barnhill since becoming head coach eight seasons ago.

Houston players have chosen a stiff upper lip and business as usual.

"They've been saying we (Southwest) conference last were No. 1 since last Friday, so this is no big deal," guard Michael Young said. "We just have to keep playing our best and not let anyone get bigheaded and play our regular game

NEW YORK (AP) - Walter Davis of the Phoenix Suns, who broke a National Basketball Association record by scoring 34 points before missing a shot in a game at Seattle last Friday, was named the NBA Player of the Week.

Davis, a 6-foot-6 guard, averaged 24.5 points and 5.8 assists a game in leading the Suns to a 3-1 record last week. He hit his first 15 field goal attempts and four free throws against Seattle, breaking the mark of 32 points without a miss set by Larry Costello of Syracuse in 1961.

year and we didn't, and we were picked to win it again this year, and that's what we're aiming for now," Anders said. "The SWC is what's on our minds."

Coach Guy Lewis, seeking his first victory against a Sutton-coached team in Barnhill, said the timing for being rated No. 1 could have been better.

"I'd rather be ranked No. 1 April 4," he said.

The No. 1 ranking has humbled the nation's finest. Virginia, currently rated

No. 2 behind the Cougars, spent four weeks in the lead followed by Indiana, two weeks; Memphis State and UCLA, one week each, and North Carolina and University of Nevada-Las Vegas, two weeks each.

Houston out-balloted the Cavaliers 42-15 in first-place votes and had a 1,130-1,081 team to gain the No. 1 distincadvantage in points.

Houston has not reached the No. 1 position in the AP poll since the Elvin Hayes-led Cougars won 31 straight games in 1967-68. The only other Southwest Conference

In winter, West Palm Beach becomes a mini-New York. Many of the Big Apple's leading bridge players have condominiums there, and the social rubber bridge games often have the same casts as those of New York's bridge clubs. On this hand, our associate Lee Hazen held the North cards and his wife, Sylvia, was in charge of the South holding. Purists might challenge North's decision to jump to three no trump. Others might feel that South should try four hearts rather than four spades. But Sylvia Hazen expected to find two spades in dummy, and she was afraid that her hand might not produce many tricks at a heart contract, so we sympathize with her

Against four spades West selected the unwise lead of a heart - the auction suggested a minor-suit attack. Mrs. Hazen took the finesse and was relieved to see it win. Entries to her hand were a problem. There were two certain trump losers, and she had to avoid losing more

No matter what he did, declarer would be able to draw the last trump, repeat the heart finesse and get rid of the diamond loser on the ace of hearts. Declarer lost only two trump tricks and the ace of clubs.

The final episode of "M-A-S-H" - number 251 of the hit parade - was true to the ambition of the first one and all of the others in between. It made us laugh, it made us sad, and it made us feel.

This wasn't "Hogan's Heroes." "M-A-S-H" dealt honestly and realistically

VIDEO FORECAST

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) Improved profits for the video industry in 1983 are forecast by a manufacturer of industry products.

'The real growth story in 1982 was video cassette recorders and cameras," says Rick Williams of GE's Video Division "We see that growth continuing, with VCR sales of about 2.4 million units and cameras approaching the half-million mark. The reason is that as the economy improves, consumers will have more dollars to spend this year.

the kid quiet. Scared out of her mind, she strangled her own child.

Hawkeye, who had heroically saved many lives, was devastated by the responsibility of losing this one.

Hawkye's psychological debilitation and gradual recovery were the major threads running throughout the 21/2-hour final program which became a national event, along with "Who Shot JR?" segment on "Dallas," the final episode of "The Fugitive," and "Roots."

Hawkeye and the six other regulars survived the war, but one essence of "M-A-S-H" has been that it leaves scars, and this episode certainly did.

Father Mulcahy (Willam Christopher), the gentle, soothing padre, lost most of his hearing when a bomb exploded while he was rescuing enemy prisoners of war.

The 4077th had become an artillery target because an American tank was stuck there, with on-high orders to stay put. Did "M-A-S-H" ever suggest that war made sense?

Finally, Hawkeye, well enough to have returned to the camp, drove the tank away to the M-A-S-H suburbs. Was that the action of a sane or an insame man? The separating line had never been all that clear in "M-A-S-H.

"I don't know why I always have to take out the trash,' Hawkeye said.

Maj. Charles Winchester (David Ogden Stiers), who used classical music as a release and refuge during the war said it was now a tormenting reminder.

He had become attached to enemy POW musicians and was teaching them to play Mozart. The universality of Mozart's language survived here; the POWs did not, in yet another example of senseless killings

Ms. Welch announced four months ago that she was pregnant and pulled out of the Broadway musical "Woman of the Year" to rest

Margaret (Loretta Swit), the all-khaki major, continued her growth as a human being. She decided to leave the army and work in a U.S. hospital. She even buried the hatchet with her nemessis Hawkeye, sharing one of the longest smooches in TV history.

Col. Sherman Potter (Harry Morgan), who rode out of camp on his favorite horse, left with the total respect of his troops. Hawkeye and B.J. Hunnicutt gave him their rarest tribute: they saluted. Potter was looking forward to a semiretirement as a country doctor.

Max Klinger (Jamie Farr), married a Korean girl, who wore a white dress from Klinger's wardrobe.

The couple remained in Korea to search for her family

Somehow, Klinger, Potter and Mulcahy will meet stateside next season to work in a veterans hospital in 'Aftermash."

B.J. (Mike Farrell), rode off on his motorcycle to find a California sunset and the wife and daughter he so desperately missed. He promised to visit Hawkeye in Crabapple Cove, Maine. Hawkeye was headed back there to practice leisurely medicine. He had seen enough action in Korea. In symbolic contrast to the

Maxwell Furniture Operation Repurchased By Original Owner

(PRINTED FEB. 18, 1983)

Maxwell Brothers, Inc. today completed its purchase of the 68 store Maxwell Furniture store chain from Wickes Cos. of Santa Monica, California.

In doing so, it brought the chain back to the Maxwell family who started it 75 years ago. The family had sold the chain to Family Finance in 1968, which was acquired by Gamble-Skogmo, Inc. in 1977, which in turn became part of Wickes in 1980

The Maxwell stores are located in North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Four of the original 72 stores and two warehouses will be-closed.

"As part of the purchase agreement, 2 warehouses and 4 stores have been closed. The result is $5,000,000 worth of brand name furniture and appliances being distributed into all store locations. This has created extremely overstocked inventories in our remaining 68 stores.

Now's your chance to save like never before by purchasing furniture at Maxwell's."

Grover C. Maxwell, Jr., President
