Five Marines Wounded By Grenade In Lebanon

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A grenade thrown at a U.S. Marine patrol from a window of a building near Beirut airport slightly wounded five Marines today in the first attack on the American peacekeepers, the Marine commander said.

An anonymous caller told the French news agency, Agence France-Presse, that a hitherto unknown organization called al-Jihad al-Islami, or Islamic Holy War, "declares its responsibility for the attack on the American occupation forces." The caller did not elaborate.

The attack came 10 hours after eight Italian peacekeepers were wounded by grenades and rifle fire in two ambushes near the airport. The Italian ambassador, Franco Ottieri, said two of the Italian troops were "paralyzed for life," and another had his right foot amputated. He called the assaults on both the Americans and Italians "an organized plot" to keep the peacekeepers from carrying out their mission.

The U.S. Marines and the Italians are part of a peacekeeping force that has been in Lebanon since September.

America's U.N. ambassador, Jeane Kirpatrick, deplored the attack and told reporters in Tel Aviv it "was presumably provoked by someone who is interested in maintaining war and destroying the possibility of peace."

But the Marine commander in Beirut said that patrols would continue and that the Marines "would not allow a single act of terrorism to stop us from our mission." An Italian officer said, "Nothing will change. We will continue our mission and our regular patrols. We know peacekeeping requires sacrifices."

In southern Lebanon, witnesses said an Israeli soldier shot and wounded a Palestinian woman in a crowd of stone-throwing demonstrators demanding their relatives be freed from the Ansar prison camp near Sidon. The Israeli command said it had no report of casualties in the incident.

The attack on the 12-man Marine patrol in Beirut occurred shortly before 9 a.m. About 30 suspects were reported arrested, and 200 Lebanese soldiers set up checkpoints and began searching cars and houses in the predominantly Moslem area bordering the airport.

The Marine commander, Col. James M. Mead, of Boston, told reporters a single hand grenade was tossed at a Marine patrol from a second-floor window at the end of a street connecting the airport and the coastal road on the southern outskirts of the Lebanese capital.

All five wounded Marines were flown to a Navy hospital aboard the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal, part of a 6th Fleet flotilla off Beirut's coast supporting the peacekeepers.

None of the Marines was immediately identified.

"I would like to make it very forceful that the five injuries are superficial, but we have still sent them out to the ship for at least a 24-hour observation period, for X-rays, that type of thing," Mead said. "There is no danger of loss of life at all."

Planning Board Endorses 2 Requests For Rezoning

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Two requests to rezone property located north of the Tar River received the endorsement Thursday night of the Greenville Planning & Zoning Commission and were recommended to the City Council for approval.

The planning board voted in favor of a request by residents of the West Gum Road area to rezone 8.8 acres, located east of and adjoining North Memorial Drive, north of Gum Road and west of the Fred Webb Elevator Inc. property, from R-6 (residential) and unoffensive industry to R-6-mobile home.

The residents, in seeking to change the zoning designation, said the new zone would bring mobile homes in the area into zoning conformance. The city sponsored the rezoning petition for the neighborhood.

Faryce Goode, staff planner, pointed out that land uses in the area consist of 18 single family dwellings, two mobile homes and a church. She said the church and 14 of the dwellings are permitted uses under the residential zone, while the mobile homes are non-conforming uses in the R-6 classification. The remaining four dwellings are non-conforming uses in the unoffensive industry zone, she reported.

The planner said the R-6-mobile home zone would bring bring the non-conforming uses into conformance and maintain the current status of the church and residential units.

Commissioners also voted in favor of a petition sponsored by the city to rezone approximately 19.08 acres in the North Greene Street area, located between Seaboard Coast Line Railroad and North Pitt Street, from Moore Street northward to the city limit line, from highway commercial to downtown commercial fringe.

The petition stemmed from a request submitted last month by Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. to rezone .64 acres on North Greene Street to CDF in order to expand its drive-in facilities. The board tabled the matter in order to look at a several other blocks along Greene Street for possible inclusion in a

City Engineer Has Resigned

Greenville City Engineer Ron Sewell has submitted his resignation, effective April 1.

City Manager Gail Meeks said this morning that she received Sewell's letter of resignation Monday.

She said Sewell is resigning to accept a position as director of public works for the city of Burlington, where he will have 123 people working under his supervision in public works, engineering and building inspections.

Sewell has been employed by the city of Greenville since June 1974 and now has nine employees under his supervision in engineering and inspections.

Sewell has "done a fine job for us," Mrs. Meeks said.

She noted that the city will advertise "early in April for a replacement. We are now recruiting for a finance officer so it will probably be between the 1st and the 15th of April," before the search for a city engineer gets under way.

Pitt Hospital Bd. Opposes New Psychiatric Hospital For Pitt

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board went on record Tuesday night opposing the location of a privately run psychiatric hospital here.

It was announced last week that Charter Medical Inc. of Macon, Ga., has plans to construct such a hospital here for the care of 65 psychiatric patients, mostly adolescents. A public hearing on the proposal is set for March 22 at 6 p.m. at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade streets here. The hospital administration and trustee representatives will be there to oppose the proposal, board chairman G. Henry Leslie said.

The hospital board resolution echoed a similar resolution by the PCMH medical staff and followed the recommendation of the executive committee of the board which met Tuesday afternoon. Copies of the board's resolution will be sent to the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency and the Certificate of Need Section of the N.C. Division of Facility Services, Department of Human Resources.

The board, which held its annual reorganizational meeting, elected G. Henry Leslie unanimously as chairman. Reid Hooper is the new vice chairman; Mamie Smith, secretary; Bernice Turnage, assistant treasurer, and W. Jeffrey Senter, B. Gene Paramore, Dr. Frank Longino and Noel Lee, members of the executive board.

Eldon Coltrain, D.T. Jones Jr. and Moses Moye were honored for their past six years of service to the board. Among the past chairmen present to be honored were W.W. Wooten, J. Beverly Congleton, Kenneth Dews, Wilton Duke, Ed Waldrop and Walter Stroud. Mrs. Thurman Williams represented her late husband.

Former hospital adminstrator C.D. Ward also was present and honored.

Debbie Davis was announced as the new administrator for rehabilitation services.

The moving of business offices to the new Gaskins-Leslie Building will begin Monday, according to Ralph Hall, vice president for facilities services.

Credentials were approved for 99 physicians on the hospital staff, including Dr. Jack Wilkerson, chief of staff, who made the request based on the recommendation of the credentials committee of the medical staff.

During an education program given by Dr. Jack Allison on the Emergency Residency Program and during the meeting itself, acknowledgment was made of the hospital staff's work in coordinating the disaster efforts following the recent explosion at the Village Green apartments.

Special credit was given to hospital public relations specialists Georgette Hedrick and Marian Carson for the way they coordinated the hundreds of calls from news media and worried families during the crisis. Vice President Fred Brown was also cited for setting up

Federal Drug Agents Say Many COLCOR Suspects Fled State

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Federal drug agents today said as many as 20 suspects, including Shallotte Police Chief Hoyal Varnum Jr., may have fled before a grand jury indicted them on drug charges Tuesday.

Michael E. Grimes of the DEA's Wilmington office said only two suspects were arrested Monday because of a "leak" that arrests were pending in a drug investigation code-named Gateway.

"I'm very angry. There are some things I'd like to say but I want to keep my job," Grimes said today. "I hope this doesn't happen in the future. This is not the way the DEA operates."

Meanwhile, U.S. Marshals said they expected state Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, to surrender to federal officials today on charges that he conspired to influence legislation in exchange for a gold bracelet. Those charges resulted from the FBI's Colcor investigation of allegations of corruption in Columbus County.

Soles was charged with conspiring to affect commerce by extortion — a felony that carries a maximum punishment of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Grimes said the two arrests included "an old junk man because he doesn't wander far from his junkyard and (Brunswick County Sheriff) Herman Strong because he couldn't be wheeled from the hospital." He said Strong was recovering from an operation and that arrangements were made for Strong to turn himself in after he is released.

"Everyone else fled because of premature speculation," he said.

He said those who fled included Varnum, chief of police in Shallotte, and his brother Steve Varnum.

"I don't know who leaked the information," Grimes said. "The DEA has a mission to accomplish and this can only be accomplished in secrecy. Our investigation was intact up to the time it went to the grand jury," he said.

He refused to say who leaked the information.

The federal grand jury, which met Tuesday, indicted Soles and charged 22 others, in the drug trafficking crackdown in Brunswick County.

The Gateway probe by the State Bureau of Investigation and federal Drug Enforcement Administration was aimed at blocking the door by which drugs are entering the state, said U.S. Attorney Sam Currin.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Doug McCullough said he expected Soles to surrender about 10 a.m. today in Raleigh. Soles, who was followed around the Legislature on Tuesday by reporters and photographers, has refused to comment on the charges.

McCullough said the charges are an outgrowth of the Colcor investigation.

The Soles indictment says that former Columbus County Commissioner Edward Walton Williamson suggested to FBI undercover agents that they meet with Soles and seek his help in blocking legislation dealing with precious-metal dealers.

Williamson was sentenced to 10 years in prison after pleading guilty to racketeering.

Soles promised in May 1981 to help undercover agents Robert Drdak, Bradley Hoferkamp and Jerry King in exchange for a gold bracelet, the indictment charges.

The indictment also charges that Soles authorized Herbert Riggins, named as an unindicted co-conspirator, to help the agents get a liquor-by-the-drink referendum passed in Bolton.

The indictment charges it was part of the conspiracy that Riggins, Williamson and J.C. Hines, another unindicted co-conspirator, be "taken care of" with payments from the agents with the knowledge and approval of Soles.

The payments would benefit Soles by keeping his political machine working, the indictment charges.

In other Colcor-related indictments Tuesday, Howard Franklin Watts Sr. and Sandy White Jr. were indicted on one count each of conspiracy to damage and destroy by explosives property affecting interstate commerce and one count each of actually damaging and destroying the property — the Clarkton Farmers Exchange warehouse.

Each faces a maximum punishment of 15 years in prison and a $20,000 fine.

The indictment charges the warehouse was destroyed Dec. 28, 1980, by a fire fueled with explosions from a mixture of gasoline and air.

ECU Commencement Will Be 'By Invitation'

ECU News Bureau

For the first time in its history, East Carolina University's annual commencement on May 6 will be a "by invitation" affair.

Participating graduates, more than 3,000, have been told that they must request guest invitations for family and friends by April 15. Those making requests will receive at least two guest tickets, possibly more, according to C.C. Rowe, commencement committee chairman.

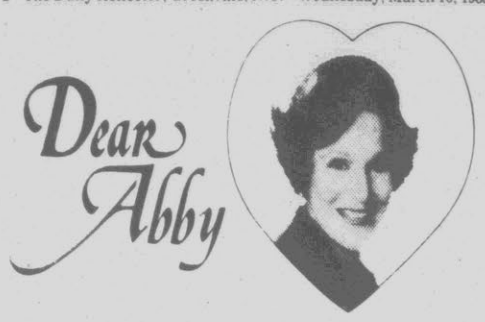

Officials expect Minges Coliseum, which seats only 6,900 for such events, will be filled to overflowing. Last year, more than 13,000 people attended outdoor commencement cermonies at Ficklen Stadium. Ficklen is unavailable this year because the football field is being resodded.

To ease crowded conditions in Minges, arrangments have been made for seating in two rooms for approximately 200 people to watch on closed circuit television. Hundreds more may have to listen on loudspeakers outside the coliseum.

After April 19, Rowe, said, any guest invitations that have not been claimed will be available on an equal distribution basis.

Former U.S. Sen. Robert B. Morgan, ECU alumnus and former chairman of the ECU trustees, will be the commencement speaker.

Morgan and Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU chancellor-emeritus, are to receive the first honorary degrees in the school's history in special ceremonies at the 74th commencement.

Businessman Accounts For Time

By Abigail Van Buren

1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a busy businessman writing in reference to "Tired of Waiting," who had a long wait at the doctor's office.

I had the same problem and this is how I solved it. I had an appointment with a local physician who kept me waiting for a very long time. The next time I had an appointment it was for 11 a.m., so I phoned the doctor's office at 9 a.m. with this message: "This is ( ), and I have an appointment this morning for 11 o'clock. I need to know if the doctor is on schedule. You see, I, too, am a busy person and do not have time to sit in your waiting room doing nothing, so if the doctor is running behind, I prefer waiting in my office rather than his. If you will please call me when he's ready, I can be there in 20 minutes. I know he doesn't think 20 minutes is a long wait since I waited over an hour to see him for my last appointment."

Well, Abby, guess who was ready for me when I got there? I rarely have to wait more than 10 minutes for this doctor now.

NO WAITING IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR NO WAITING: Beautiful. But let's hear from a doctor's secretary:

DEAR ABBY: I work for two pediatricians, and try as we do to keep to a schedule, it's nearly impossible, and this is why:

Joe Jones calls. He must have a physical exam to continue playing basketball with his high school team. He's lucky. We're able to find a spot for him within a couple of days. His appointment is at 3 p.m. right after school.

He calls from school to tell us that his car won't start. A friend will bring him, but he can't get there until 3:30. Can he still have his checkup? Of course he can. We'll work it out somehow. But someone will have to wait.

Mrs. Smith called this morning. She needs an afternoon appointment because her child has an earache. She shows up with two children because in the meantime the other one has gotten sick. Will we see both children? Of course. But someone will probably have to wait.

Mrs. Anderson is bringing in her first baby. He's 6 months old, and she is nervous and has lots of questions for the doctor. Will he take the time to reassure her, to answer her questions and help her to deal more comfortably with the baby? Of course he will. But someone will probably have to wait.

Something like this happens nearly every day, but we cannot refuse to help our patients when they need us. I won't even talk about what happens to our schedule when emergencies come in, or when the telephone rings off the hook.

MARGARET IN GLENCOE, ILL.

DEAR MARGARET: Now, let's hear it from a doctor's wife:

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe you printed that tired old complaint from "Tired of Waiting," the woman who had to wait to see her doctor.

Hey "Tired," just calm down! Have you ever written to Dear Abby to say you got in to see the doctor on time?

Doctors' wives, let's unite and write to Dear Abby about the times we've waited and waited for our husbands who have been called back to the hospital to see "Tired of Waiting."

Mrs. Battle Entertained

Myrtle B. Battle was honored at a surprise birthday dinner given by her children Saturday at the American Legion Building, Post No. 160.

A special feature was a song presentation by the honoree's 13 grandchildren.

The room and tables were decorated in spring shades of green and yellow. The table featured a centerpiece of assorted spring flowers. Mrs. Battle was given a corsage of matching flowers.

The honoree's children are Annie Ward of Oxon Hill, Md., Sadie Atkinson of Clinton, Md., Betty Hines, Carolyn Parker, Mary Baker, Brenda K. Battle and William L. Battle, all of Greenville.

Special guests present were Mrs. Battle's parents and sisters, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Dupree, Mrs. James Ebron Jr., Sinie Reddick and Dorothy McLawhorn.

Dr. Hampton Gives Talk

FARMVILLE — Dr. Carolyn H. Hampton gave the program at the meeting of the Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR Saturday. Her topic was the light houses on the state's Outer Banks.

She is a professor of science education at East Carolina University. Dr. Hampton showed color slides of the light houses and historic pictures of wrecks along the coast.

Mrs. R.T. Williams told of plans for the bridge benefit to be held April 7 and is being sponsored by the chapter.

A memorial service was conducted by Nancy Darden, chaplain, for Margaret Lewis Speight and Christina Smith. Mrs. Russell Britt gave the national defense program.

Mrs. Elmer Flake told of the NCDAR Convention held recently in Pinehurst. The group was on the honor roll and won a ribbon for the outstanding yearbook among the N.C. chapters.

Nancy Darden gave a report on the NCCAR Convention held in Raleigh. It was attended by 13 members of the Dr. Robert Williams Chapter CAR of Farmville.

Meeting hostesses included Mrs. Russell Britt, Mrs. Gordon E. Lee and Mrs. E.P. Bass.

Marriage Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Tony James of Stokes announce the marriage of their daughter, Karen Annette, to William Allen Hines Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William Allen Hines of Greenville, on March 11 in South Carolina. The couple will be living in Greenville.

Garden Tour Tickets Are Being Sold

Tickets for the first spring garden tour, under sponsorship of the Greenville Area Preservation Association, went on sale today. Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Kavanaugh are serving as chairpersons for the event.

The tour is scheduled for April 16 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The Robert Lee Humber historic house at the corner of Fifth and Washington Streets here will also be on the tour and will be ticket headquarters. The house has been completely renovated by the City of Greenville and Pitt County and will be opened for the first time since its renovation for the GAPA tour.

The traditional turn-of-the century wood frame house, built in 1895, has been given to the city and county as a memorial to Dr. Humber, a former state senator and advocate of the arts and of world government. It will soon be used as the Eastern Branch Office of the N.C. Division of Archives and History.

Gardens and grounds on the tour will be: Mr. and Mrs. Graham Flanagan Jr.; Dr. and Mrs. Ira M. Hardy II; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Mann; Dr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rob; Mr. and Mrs. E. Hoover Taft III; the greenhouse at East Carolina University; the herb and vegetable gardens of Virginia Tate, located five miles west of Bethel, where herb refreshments will be available during the day.

Walter Faulkner, president of the preservation association, announced the following tour committees:

Treasurer, Mrs. Albert D. Warshaeur; garden hosts and hostesses, Mr. and Mrs. J. Harry Hastings; Robert Lee Humber house coordinators, Mr. and Mrs. Wes Hankins; publicity, Lee Wilder.

Tickets, Michael G. Cotter; Polly Dail; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Duncan; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Goetz; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Harwell; Catherine Lang; Mr. and Mrs. Donald McLane; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mattox; Dr. and Mrs. David S. Phelps; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Phillips; Elizabeth Ross; Mrs. Samuel A. Sewall; Mr. and Mrs. B. Bruce Sugg Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Stallings; Robbie D. Tugwell; Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Wheless; Mrs. Don F. White; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Worsley.

Tickets will also be sold at the ECU Regional Development Institute, Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce, Greenville Museum of Art, Topscott Designs or purchased by writing the Greenville Area Preservation Association, P.O Box 673, Greenville, 27834. Tickets for the tour are $5.00. In the event of rain, the tour will be held April 23.

Only two American presidents are buried in Arlington National Cemetery — William Howard Taft and John F. Kennedy.

Clean Range Last Longer

A clean range lasts longer and certainly looks better, says Dr. Nadine Tope, extension specialist-in-charge, foods and nutrition, North Carolina State University. She offers the following hints which can keep the stove from becoming stained and dirty.

•Wipe up food spills immediately, using a soft, sudsy cloth or sponge.

•Use baking soda on stubborn spots on porcelain. To cut grease, use a tablespoon of household ammonia in the wash water. A coarse scouring powder will scratch the finish, damaging it permanently.

•A sudsy pipe cleaner or old toothbrush is perfect for crevices and around switches and handles that cannot be removed.

•Use heavily-soaped steel wool pads to clean chrome rings around the units of the electrical range or burners of the gas stove. Clean the drip pans under the units or burners in the same way.

•If you don't have a self-cleaning oven, place a small bowl containing water and ammonia in a cold, closed oven and leave overnight to help losen baked on grease. Soap or detergent will finish the job. Of course, commercial oven cleaners may also be used.

•Don't forget to clean the range's storage cabinets and drawers. In addition, the top of most ranges can be lifted to clean the area around the burners.

Children Did Listen

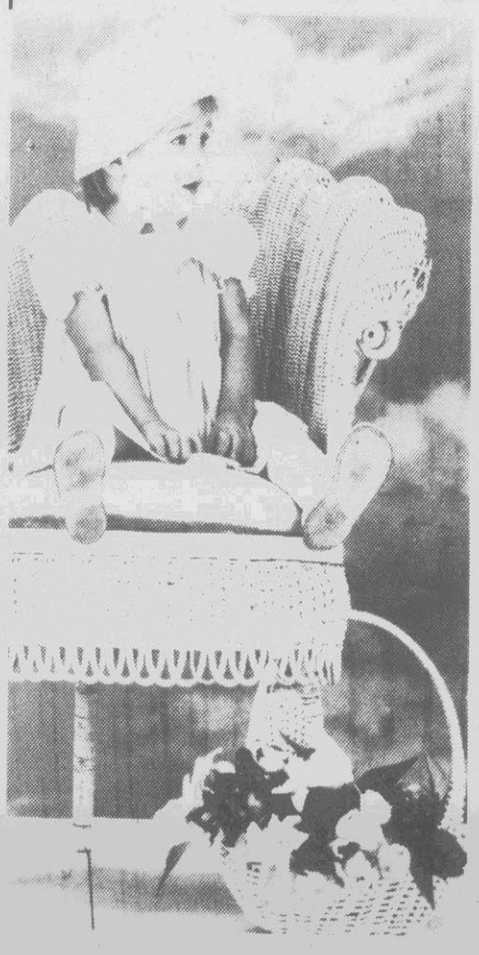

Do kids listen?

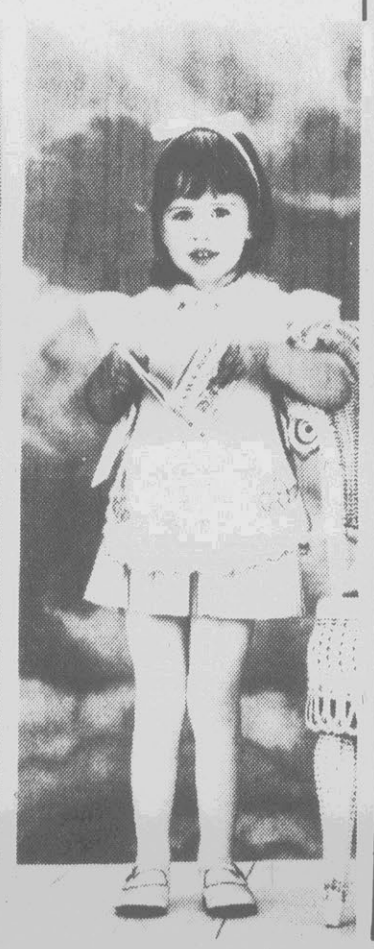

They did when nutritional information was presented in the cafeteria at Stanford University over a nine-month period. Researchers presented information on calories, fat and colesterol content, other nutritional facts and recommendations for food choices, and it made a difference, says Sarah Hinton, extension nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University.

Nonfat milk consumption increased significantly, mainly cutting into the sales of whole milk and low-fat chocolate milk.

The longer the information was available, the greater the effect, but even when it was presented for a short period of time, the students responded.

Parent Of LD Child Believes In Correct Education For Others

BY CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Lana Grooms of Greenville is the parent of a learning disabled child and a parent advocacy trainer.

She says that, because she believes strongly that appropriate education is the only answer for her nine-year-old daughter, Shannon, and because she cares about other children with special educational needs as well, she has taken special training to qualify herself as a parent advocacy trainer. In this capacity she makes herself available to other parents in a 16-county area for information and guidance about how to get the best educational opportunities possible for one's children. She also serves as chairman of the Exceptional Children's Advisory Committee of the Greenville City Schools.

A nurse who works part-time in an ambulatory surgery unit of Pitt County Memorial Hospital, Mrs. Grooms is the wife of Greenville City School Board member Frank Grooms, who she says supports her work for educational opportunities for the exceptional children, whether physically or mentally handicapped or gifted. She says they both feel that Greenville has very good exceptional children's education programs and want to keep it that way. She has seen big deficits in neighboring counties, she said, and would like to see services there as good as those offered here.

A current project is the holding of a Parent Training Workshop at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade streets here Saturday, March, 26, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. It will offer parents of exceptional children the most up-to-date practical information concerning laws affecting the education their children. She is cooperating with and being assisted by the Parents' Educational Advocacy Center of the Governor's Advocacy Council for

Lana Grooms

Persons with Disabilities to hold this workshop.

Among the questions Mrs. Grooms expects the workshop to answer are the following: What are the rights of the exceptional child? What are the resources available to him or her? What can a parent do to get his child's needs met within the system? And how can a parent best communicate with key people at the child's school?

Mrs. Grooms said the workshop will emphasize communication. She has experienced this particular workshop herself, she said, and knows it's an unusual one in that those present really get to participate. The speakers are Mrs. Grooms, Toni James and Jill Kagan. James and Kagan are professionals working out of the Parent Educational Advocacy Center, Raleigh.

The workshop, Mrs. Grooms said, will be a community effort with persons from the school systems, the Department of Social Services, the Health Department, the Epilepsy Foundation, the Mental Health Center and Mental Health Association, the Association for Retarded Citizens, and the Development Evaluation Center participating. All of these agencies will be used as channels to contact parents who should be involved. Those of handicapped children, whether mentally, physically or educationally are urged to attend. Other interested citizens are also invited. Lunch will be provided.

For consultation with Mrs. Grooms as parent advocacy trainer, she may be reached at 355-6328. For more information about the Parent Training, call her or Claudia Bunch, 758-0467.

Sgt. Jackson Shows Film

Sgt. Doug Jackson presented the program at the meeting of the Greenville Woman's Club Friday.

After the showing of a film "Crime Prevention," Sgt. Jackson held a question and answer session. He stressed the importance of the neighborhood watch program and offered the assistance of the police department in organizing a program for neighborhoods.

Club members will have a food booth at the spring festival to be held on Evans Street Mall April 9.

Meeting hostesses were Florence Holt and Geneva Pollard.

Boy, 13, Draws And Publishes Comic Books

By WILLIAM E. HAUDA

POYNETTE, Wis. (UPI) — While most kids just read comic books, David Werden creates them.

The 13-year-old 7th grader is the owner, author, illustrator and business manager of Nimitz National Comics. His publications, like "Silver Bullet," appear on display racks alongside "Superman" and are sold as far away as New York and California.

David, whose father is a musician and mother a songwriter, started drawing when he was 6.

"Whenever I would see a real good movie, I'd put it into comic book form," he said. "Around 5th grade, I started writing my own stories and doing them in comic books, too."

The books quickly caught the eye of art teacher Janet Evans. She said David showed an exceptional sense of space, an ability to convey movement, and talent for telling stories.

"It's really easy to pick up on his talent — it just jumps right out at you," Miss Evans said.

With her help, David launched his publishing company, named for his favorite World War II hero, Admiral Chester Nimitz.

"Although we sold primarily through Poynette private businesses, we also had a few buyers in San Francisco, Chicago and New York City," Miss Evans said.

The books went on sale at the Madison Art Center this year and Miss Evans said she is now searching for a publisher.

Production has been time-consuming. David creates a hand-colored original, and the master copy is duplicated on a color photocopier. The books are then assembled and stapled by hand.

Bound in acetate, the comic books cost about $3 each to produce because they are done in limited quantities. They sell for about $6 each.

"I know the price is high for a comic book, but I don't have any qualms about it because of the quality of David's work," Miss Evans said.

She said the books, which tell tales of heroes like the Silver Bullet battling the evil Gorton, "are not just fun stuff. He confronts problems that we are facing as individuals and as a society and he offers us heroes and models for fighting the evils."

David tackles subjects like nuclear war, metaphysics, cybernetics and cloning, as well as the problems of unemployment, street crime, alcoholism, drug abuse and terrorism.

"His is the type of 13-year-old imagination that gives adults faith in the future," Miss Evans said. "David could have quite an impact if only given the right audience and the right opportunity."

Will he make a career of comic book publishing?

"I really don't know if I want to do this when I grow up," David said, "but for now, it's fun."

Card Benefit Announced

FARMVILLE — The Major Benjamin May Chapter DAR will sponsor its annual bridge benefit April 7 at the chapter house here. Proceeds are used by the group for the upkeep of the chapter house.

There will be a morning session with the house opening at 9:30 and playing starts at 10'clock. The evening session will begin at 8 p.m. and the house will be opened at 7:30.

The price of tickets is $2.50 each. Tallies and pencils will be provided; however players are asked to bring bridge cards.

Reservations can be made by contacting Mrs. Frank Bradham, ticket chairman, 753-5809, Mrs. Fred Sauls, Mrs. Moses Moye, Mrs. Elmer Flake and Mrs. R.T. Williams.

Overall chairmen for the event are Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Albert Lewis.

Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" was first published in London in 1843.

Apples And Oranges

Once upon a time, teachers used apples and oranges to introduce youngsters to math. Now, the Veterans Administration is using apples and oranges to explain away a gross injustice to possibly thousands of Americans exposed to Agent Orange in Vietnam.

Agent Orange is a blend of the herbicides 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T, a concoction used to defoliate forrests in Vietnam. One of the ingredients in that blend of chemicals is dioxin, the same health-threatening product that once was sprayed at will on dirt roads in Missouri.

Now come the apples and oranges. A VA spokesman points out they are not at all alike. He also says dioxin is not the same when it is used in Missouri as it is when it is used in Vietnam. That, he said, is why the government repeatedly has refused to compensate any veterans exposed to Agent Orange (dioxin) in Vietnam while it has bought up an entire community in Missouri.

That VA spokesman acknowledges that levels of exposure in both places were greater than the minimum allowances set by the government. But the risk was greater, he said, in Missouri. It doesn't matter that the troops in Vietnam were there fighting in the name of their country, already facing enough risks to taint any apple or orange.

Lewis Milford, a lawyer with the Vietnam Veterans Law Center at American University, explains the opposing positions thusly: "This is no more than a position taken for political rather than scientific reasons."

Or said simply, once they've rotted, there's little difference between an apple and an orange.

Lighting Is Safer

The Greenville Utilities Commission, as requested by the city government, has installed 18 new high-pressure sodium street lights on Fifth Street from Memorial Drive to the road which leads to Pitt County Memorial Hospital emergency entrance.

Eight mercury vapor lights were replaced in the area at a cost of about $4,000.

It was an excellent move. The new lighting makes it easier to find the road entrance to the emergency area of the hospital. Even though a lighted sign marks it, making the turn quickly, as is necessary in an emergency, was difficult. The entire stretch is safer and more attractive at night due to the new lighting installation — and that is befitting a growing regional hospital.

Bishops Stand Pat Against U. S. Policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Once again, bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States are standing in firm opposition to U.S. policy in El Salvador.

And once again, it appears they could have a major impact in changing the policy.

The differences revolve around whether there should be negotiations to end the three-year guerrilla war. The bishops, supported by Pope John Paul II, favor negotiations and abhor the U.S. emphasis on a military solution.

The Reagan administration, claiming negotiations on anything but participating in the next elections would be tantamount to letting the rebels "shoot their way into power," has just asked Congress for an additional $110 million in military aid.

The church and the administration also have different views of who should emerge victorious. The administration sees the conflict as an East-West struggle, to be won either by the pro-West government, or pro-Soviet guerrillas.

In a speech last week defending his Salvadoran policy, President Reagan said an "aggressive minority has thrown in its lot with the communists, looking to the Soviets and their Cuban henchmen to help them pursue political change through violence ... their first target is El Salvador."

The bishops see it much differently, believing a third outcome is possible which would provide justice to long-persecuted masses without letting El Salvador fall under under Soviet domination.

Washington Archbishop James Hickey, testifying before a congressional committee on behalf of American Catholic bishops, said "the primary issue in El Salvador is the domestic political and economic structure of the country, not the role of the Soviet Union or Cuba in Central America."

He said the bishops "have always opposed interpretations of the Salvadoran and Central American conflict which places primary emphasis on the superpower or East-West rivalry."

He said he was "profoundly disappointed" at the Reagan request for more military aid.

The pope also showed a preference for a third way in his recent call on Christians throughout Central America to seek change in society "without resorting to violence or to collectivist systems that can prove no less oppressive to the dignity of man than pure economic capitalism." He urged "authentic dialogue and reconciliation" to end the Salvadoran conflict.

It is a message Washington would rather not hear.

Mindful that church opposition succeeded in halting a 1981 effort by the administration to become more deeply involved militarily in El Salvador, the administration took steps to blunt church criticism.

It made the effort appear coincidental, but it was surely more than that. These things happened all within a few days:

— On the eve of the pope's visit to the region, the administration let it be known it wanted more military aid for the Salvadoran government and might send more American advisers.

— Secretary of State George Shultz complained to a congressional committee about "churchmen who want to see Soviet influence in El Salvador improved."

Poor And The Rich—One Thing In Common

There are two kinds of people who don't pay any income taxes in America — the very poor and the very rich. One tends to look down on the poor when they don't pay taxes, because they're a burden on society — but show me a rich man who doesn't pay any money to the government and I'll show you a real American hero.

My role model is Harvey Ripplemyer, a millionaire many times over, who has hardly paid a cent in income taxes to the federal government for the last 10 years.

"How do you do it?" I asked Harvey the other day.

"I don't do it myself," he said modestly. "I pay people to do it for me. I believe it's an American's right, I might even add duty, to take advantage of every loophole our tax laws offer."

"I'm sure every taxpayer feels the same way. But not many of us can achieve the ultimate of not paying any taxes at all. What is your secret?"

"You need money not to pay money to the IRS. The more money you have, the less you have to give them. What you have to do is find paper tax losses to offset your real income. Then you prove that you've actually lost money in the fiscal year and therefore you owe the government a pittance."

"Okay, but how do you find a way to do that?"

"You hire the best tax lawyers that money can buy. They usually happen to be former IRS attorneys who know all the loopholes. They're experts on what will fly and what won't."

"What happens when the IRS closes a tax loophole for somebody like you?"

"Then my tax lawyers find another loophole. Fortunately our tax laws are such that when the IRS thinks they've got you trapped, you can always crawl through a hole they left open. It's really a poker game, but you have to have a big pot going in to play. What you need are large carry-over losses, huge interest deductions, big depreciation write-offs, and solid tax shelters. Now, the average person doesn't have the stakes to acquire all these things, so he has to pay his taxes."

"What about your attorneys' fees? They must be very high."

"Not really. They're tax deductible."

"Do you ever have any guilt about paying hardly any taxes?"

"Does anyone have any guilt if they can beat the tax system?

"Do you know why this is the greatest country on earth?"

"I think I do, but I'd like to hear it from you."

"Because if a man can beat the tax system he can keep everything he has. And it's possible to do it here without violating the law. You don't have to be born rich to avoid paying taxes. This country allows you to become rich and not give any of it away. That's why I love America."

"And that's why everyone loves you, Harvey. You're an inspiration to every taxpayer in America who aspires to be in your position right now."

"Anyone can do it," Harvey said. "With a little luck, a lot of money and a good tax lawyer who really knows what he's doing, and has your interests at heart."

Dirty Tricks Still Around?

WASHINGTON — Paying college Republicans to infiltrate anti-war groups and snitch on dope smokers was one of the GOP's sleazier pursuits in 1972. Such dirty campaign tricks eventually brought disgrace to the party.

Nonetheless, a decade later, some members of the GOP's youngest wing are behaving as if Watergate never happened. Operating out of the Republican National Committee's headquarters here, the College Republicans have undertaken a campaign to immoblize a no-less legitimate organization, Ralph Nader's campus-based Public Interest Research Group (PIRG).

Established 13 years ago to inspire consumer advocacy in college students, PIRGs now operate on 160 campuses in 26 states. For the most part, their members are idealistic students who function in the highest tradition of do-gooders. Among other things, they report on campus consumer prices, investigate toxic waste dumps and fight for recycling — activities which few can label subversive. Like organizations on most campuses, PIRGs are supported by student activity fees.

Sen. Charles Percy of Illinois, speaking for many Republicans, commended PIRGs in 1979 "for their valuable contributions."

Yet such a perspective was absent in a lengthy memo introducing the anti-PIRG campaign, known as "Project Inform," several weeks ago. In his message to College Republican chapters, group chairman Jack Abramoff said the project intended to "defeat PIRGs and to make sure they never get started."

According to Steve Baldwin, the project's 25-year-old mastermind and chief strategist, PIRGs "lobby on gay rights, for a nuclear freeze, against draft registration and are anti-business .... Many work hand-in-hand with various disobedience groups such as the Committee Against Registration and The Draft (CARD) and Marxist groups such as the United States Student Association (USSA)."

While Baldwin insists that his group's aim is simple, to end easy PIRG access to college activity money, the facts tell a different story.

For one, on most campuses students can already file for a refund of the share of their semester's fees that goes to the local PIRG (usually $2 or $3). The national College Republican group advises students to monitor publications and activities for information suitable for anti-PIRG negative campaigns. Where PIRGs don't operate, it recommends a preemptive strategy of warning college officials about possible suits by PIRGs and tangles with the local business community. Tactical suggestions include the creation of anti-PIRG front organizations and "stacked" PIRG organizational meetings. (That way, the memo suggests, "it doesn't look like an attack on the left by the right.")

Those who need legal assistance in fighting PIRGs are urged to contact the College Republicans, who claim to have connections with several conservative legal foundations "interested in fighting PIRGs in court." (The Mid-Atlantic Legal Foundation already has the New Jersey PIRG in court.) College Republican chapters that "rid their state of this pestilence" are eligible for "certificates of recognition."

It's easy to understand why the college Republicans would want to do all this. Some PIRG chapters often antagonize likely GOP constituencies — price-gougers and chemical waste dumpers, for example. Moreover, PIRGs have always been an easy target for better financed partisans who have nothing else to do. (The Republican National Committee provides more than half of the College Republicans' budget).

Yet, if their program succeeds, warns PIRG godfather Ralph Nader, "it will reimpose the further disenfranchisement of thousands of students," for whom consumer issues are particularly relevant.

Ten years ago, then-Republican National Committee Chairman George Bush chastised those College Republicans who made an early career of dirty tricks. One wonders how he would react to the current effort to destabilize one of the embattled consumer movement's remaining legacies.

Strength For Today

We have remarked in this column before about the admirer of President Andrew Jackson who, when asked whether he thought Jackson would get to heaven, replied that he would if he wanted to.

This is true not only of Jackson — it is true of every one of us. The world is full of people who know nothing about heaven and apparently care nothing about it. A thoughtful reading of the Bible clearly indicates that no one is ever saved unless he or she wants to be saved. God never thrusts salvation upon anyone.

Inasmuch as everyone eventually dies, it would seem to be in order to ask, "What next?" Some of our forebearers spent most of their time getting ready for the next world. They perhaps thought too little about this world.

Many in the present generation have gone to the opposite extreme. The truly wise person orients himself or herself not only to this world but to the universe; not ony to the present, but to eternity.

Bad Checks Take The Limelight

RALEIGH — Proponents of alternative forms of incarceration for non-violent offenders have picked up some powerful allies: North Carolina merchants and small businessmen.

Dennis Julian, director of government affairs for the National Federation of Independent Businessmen, and Bill Rustin, lobbyist for the N.C. Merchants Association, told a legislative committee recently that jail isn't the proper punishment for people who pass bad checks. Instead, these people ought to be sentenced to community service and required to compensate the person to whom they passed the bad check.

The two told the Senate Small Business Committee that they've drafted a bill that would require restitution by anyone convicted of passing a bad check. Judges currently have the authority to order restitution but they aren't required to. If we're to have a mandatory restitution law, we'll need sentences that don't include jail. You can't pay your debts when you're behind bars.

So, the businessmen want communities to develop programs whereby those convicted of passing bad checks would be put to work. They'd earn money at the jobs but the courts would collect their salaries and pass it along to the people who got stuck with the bad checks. That's the idea behind a lengthy set of recommendations made this fall by the Citizens Commission on Alternatives to Incarceration. Many kind words were said about the commission's report but politicians were generally wary. The whole idea just looked too liberal and too soft on crime.

"I don't buy the argument that these alternatives would be too soft," Rustin said after the meeting. "The heck with sending them to jail, except for the hard core. Get them to pay restitution. Let everyone know that if they pass a bad check, they'll be seen out in front of that courthouse every Saturday morning washing the police cars for $3.35 an hour. That's going to embarrass a heck of a lot of people. The visible element alone is going to deter a lot of people."

Julian reported that Moore County puts people to work cutting wood and then sells the wood to pay for the work.

The two said they expect opposition. Legislators worry that if they toughen the worthless check laws, they'll end up punishing honest people whose only crime is an inability to balance a checking account. (Maybe some legislators?) But Julian and Rustin argued that their bill would only punish people who set out to pass a bad check.

Another objection is that taxpayers would end up paying for the community service. That might be so with some of the jobs, they said. But it would still be cheaper than putting people in jail and feeding them while they're there. "The alternative is to keep building prisons," Rustin said, "at $30,000 or $50,000 a cell."

And then there are the critics who say the businessmen simply want the courts to become collection agencies for slipshod merchants who extend easy credit, or who fail to take proper caution in cashing checks.

That argument really rankles Julian. It is the duty of the court to enforce the law. Businessmen, for their part, take worthless checks very seriously, he said as he listed several initiatives with which state banks are now experimenting.

Members of the committee told the two that they'd heard more about bad checks this year than in any year in recent memory. If that's true for the whole assembly, the bad checks issue might prove to be a real catalyst for the alternatives to incarceration agenda.

Scout Earns Eagle Badge

Billy E. Mayo, the son of Sharon Tripp Mayo of Ayden, has been presented the Eagle Scout Award, the highest rank in scouting.

To get the award, a scout must earn 21 merit badges and complete a service project beneficial to the community. He also must be interviewed by an executive committee from the Boy Scout Council and, if approved, his application is sent to national headquarters for final approval.

Mayo has been active in Ayden Scout Troop No. 34 for several years. He has held leadership positions and is serving as senior patrol leader. he worked with the Weblos during the fall camporee.

For his service project, Mayo restored a vacant lot located behind Ayden United Methodist Church into an area suitable for parking.

Mayo is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tripp of Ayden and attends Arendell Parrott Academy in Kinston.

Pair Killed By Hit-Runs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman's body was dragged by a car for two miles after she and her husband were hit and killed by two separate hit-and-run drivers, police said.

The identities of the couple, who apparently had been walking home from grocery shopping, were not immediately available, said Sgt. Alex Salazar of the Rampart Division. Both were in their 30s.

Salazar said the two were crossing a street Tuesday night "when a vehicle traveling westbound hit them both. It knocked the husband one way. It flipped (the wife) in the air, and she fell back down and her sweater caught on the car antenna.

"The husband started to get up and he was hit by a second car which killed him," Salazar said. "In the meantime, she was being dragged by the sweater."

The car dragging the woman went out of control and jumped a curb, stopping on a grassy area in front of an apartment building about two miles away, he said.

"The two occupants, both male, jumped out and ran," he said.

Salazar said the driver of the second car that killed the man also drove away.

"There were some witnesses to the accident," he said.

Ruritan Club To PresentPlaques

At the regular monthly meeting of the Pactolus Ruritan club (Mar. 14), the club voted to award recognition plaques to the outstanding community farmer of the year and the outstanding community business man of the year for 1983.

Community citizens were urged to recommend nominees to club president Dan Wynne or John Langley, chairman of the business and professional committee, prior to October 1. The awards will be presented at the December meeting.

In other club business, plans for upcoming events were finalized and committee reports were heard.

rezoning recommendation.

Ms. Goode said there are 39 land uses in the petitioned area and under the highway commercial zone 21 of the uses conform to zoning requirements. Under a downtown commercial fringe designation, 33 of the uses would conform. The commercial zone has a 50-foot setback requirement, she said, while the downtown commercial fringe designation has a 10-foot setback provision.

Ed Stallings, who operates a business in the petitioned area, said he was not opposed to Wachovia's request but he has an interest in the new zoning provisions since it affects his livelihood.

Staff planner Skip Browder explained that the number of land uses considered non-conforming under the commercial zone would not increase under the CDF classification. He noted that the board action involved only a recommendation and the council will conduct a formal public hearing on the matter before any zoning change is made.

Commissioners, with Dr. Chuck Ziehr opposing, voted to recommend to the council that sections one and two of Greenridge subdivision, located west of the city on the east side of State Road 1204 in the extraterritorial jurisdiction, be annexed into the city.

Browder said an initial petition submitted involved only section two of the subdivision and the matter was tabled last month in order to see if residents in section one would agree to be included in the annexation. Browder said the residents are in agreement and the new petition would involve 6.3 acres and 24 lots.

Ziehr questioned a projected expenditure figure of $40,740 listed by the police department in order to service the new area. Police Chief Glenn Cannon said that the expenditure involved additional personnel and equipment to police the area.

Cannon said the projected expenses were included in a package that included annexation of Colonial Mobile Home Park and he suggested that if only the Greenridge area was involved, there would probably be no extra expenditures. He said it is projected that the expenses to service the mobile home park would amount to some $81,600.

Greenville Utilities spokesman John Ferren said water and sewer services could be provided for the area at no additional expense. He said the west side sewer outfall is located near State Road 1204.

Commissioner Rick Miller said he felt at some point in the future, it might be good to consider the area for annexation. He said, however, that he could not see bringing the two duplexes that are complete on the property into the city and have to provide full services when the remaining lots are not yet developed.

Commissioner Wallace Wooles said the tax benefits from the area may not be realized immediately, but they may be in the foreseeable future. Wooles said it "seems the city should not be in a position of saying we will come get you (Greenridge) when we are ready."

The board, at the request of Jim Roberts, attorney representing Colonial Mobile Home Park, voted to continue consideration of an annexation petition for the development until the April meeting. Roberts said he would like to have time to review material prepared by the city relative to cost estimates and revenues regarding the annexation.

In other business, the board approved preliminary plats for:

— University Medical Park Apartments, located at the end of Seales Place in the medical park, involving 76 units on seven acres;

— Kings Arms Apartments, located on 9.37 acres on the east side of Charles Boulevard just north of its intersection with 14th Street, involving 120 one-bedroom units in three-story central courtyard configurations; and — Block C, lots one, two and three, of Shenndoah, located on the west side of Shiloh Drive in the Shenandoah-Tucker Farms development, involving 17 two-bedroom units.

Commissioners voted to void preliminary plat approval granted in January to developers of Red Banks Executive Center due to the impact of a design conflict relative to streets in Wedgewood Arms development on an adjoining parcel. By virtue of voiding the preliminary plat for the executive center, the board was able to approve a revised final plat of section one of Wedgewood, located in the southeast quadrant of the intersection of Red Banks Road and Arlington Boulevard.

The developers of the executive center will be required to submit new preliminary plans for the center, it was pointed out.

Wooles, who is serving with two other board members on a subcommittee to prepare a recommendation on a five-year annexation plan, reported that due to pending legislation in the General Assembly pertaining to laws governing annexation, the committee is recessing its work. Wooles said the committee met once and agreed to wait until the legislative session is complete before resuming its study.

Board chairman Wes Hankins urged the commissioners to attend the 26th annual North Carolina planning conference scheduled for April 14-15 at the Institute of Government in Chapel Hill. He said that strategies and techniques for economic development will be discussed.

Hankins said the board has received a letter of resignation from Dick Farris. He said a resolution thanking Farris for his service on the commission will be drafted.

Sanctions Urged By AFL-CIO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO is lending its support to a call by Chilean trade unions for international sanctions against the regime of Gen. Augusto Pinochet.

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, flanked by Chilean labor leaders, told a news conference Tuesday that the labor movement seeks "to draw world attention to the systematic program of repression, torture and murder" pursued by the Pinochet regime over the past 10 years.

The AFL-CIO chief said no military aid should be sent by other nations to Chile until human rights conditions improve there. He called on the world's democracies "to take action to isolate the Pinochet regime, both politically and economically."

Thatcher A Target For Letter-Bombs

LONDON (AP) — Workers at a central post office intercepted a letter bomb addressed to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher today, a day after similar devices were sent to her official residence and to a U.S. Navy office in London, police said.

Scotland Yard said the latest bomb, contained in a 9-inch by 4-inch brown manila envelope, was intercepted at the Victoria postal sorting office. Police explosives officers defused the bomb, and no one was hurt.

A Scotland Yard spokesman said the incendiary device, intended to cause burns rather than heavy damage, was discovered during routine sorting after a worker became suspicious and called police.

"The device is now being examined," said the spokesman, who did not want to be identified. "So far, it looks very similar to yesterday's devices."

On Tuesday, letter bombs were sent to Mrs. Thatcher's No. 10 Downing St. residence and to the U.S. Navy's European headquarters in London.

The device sent to Mr. Thatcher was intercepted and defused. But the other, addressed to the U.S. naval communications unit, was opened by Senior Chief Petty Officer John E. Williams III, who was burned slightly on the hand.

No group claimed responsibility for any of the three letter bombs, but press reports said police were linking them to an obscure Ukrainian nationalist group known as Makhno's Secret Army.

The group, named after the late Nestor Makhno, an anarchist active in the Ukraine in 1981, claimed responsiblity for a series of letter bombs sent in recent weeks to the Soviet Embassy and the London offices of three Soviet organizations.

Other recent letter bombs have been attributed to the Scottish National Liberation Organization and animal rights extremists.

Nuclear Carrier To Visit Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. James Watkins, chief of naval operations, says he doesn't expect any problems when the U.S. nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise visits Japan next week.

This will be the first such visit by a nuclear-powered carrier to Japan since 1968. The Enterprise made that port call, too.

At a Pentagon news conference Tuesday, Watkins told reporters, "I'm well aware of the sensitivities of the Japanese people on many occasions to the nuclear-powered warship visits."

However, Watkins recalled that "we've had nuclear-powered warship visits there for years," although they have not been aircraft carriers.

He appeared to blame the Soviets for objections among Japanese critics to the coming visit of the Enterprise.

"They are concerned in whipping up a frenzy," said Watkins.

Solar Fraction

Greenville's solar fraction for Tuesday was 84. The fraction is calculated by the department of physics of East Carolina University. The reading means that a solar water heater would have provided 84 percent of your hot water.

New Ohio DUI Law In Effect

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A tough new drunken driving law that mandates a 72-hour jail term for first offenders took effect today in Ohio, but a sheriff says it will only add to jail overcrowding.

"Where are we going to start putting all of these people?" said Ken Etzwiler, president of the Buckeye State Sheriffs Association and sheriff of Ashland County.

The law also increases penalties for repeat offenders, gives officers the right to automatically seize a drunken driver's license and provides for a one-year license suspension for anyone who refuses to take a breath test.

Hunt's DUI Bill Finally Sent To House

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State senators hotly debated last-ditch attempts to amend Gov. Jim Hunt's drunken driving bill, then passed it unanimously and sent it to the House of Representatives.

"I'm glad it's finally going over there," said a weary Sen. Henson Barnes, D-Wayne, who sponsored the bill, shepherded it through three committees over two months and defended it for hours on the Senate floor. "I'm happy with what we have. It's basically like I wanted it to be."

The Senate's 48-0 vote on the bill's third and final reading Tuesday also pleased Hunt, who said North Carolinians "have cause to be proud of (the) overwhelming vote ... to give our state the toughest and most comprehensive drunken driving law in the nation."

"I am confident the Legislature will soon complete its work on the Safe Roads Act of 1983 and put these vitally important protections for our people into law," Hunt added in a prepared statement.

The bill now goes to the state House, which has yet to act on its own version of the Hunt program. The House bill has been approved by the House Judiciary III and Finance committees and was scheduled to go before the Appropriations Committee today.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, said the bill he sponsored won't go immediately to the House floor from the Appropriations Committee. Instead, it will referred back to the Judiciary III Committee, which will try to reconcile it and the Senate bill, he said.

The centerpiece of both bills is a new charge, driving while impaired, which would replace driving under the influence and lesser related offenses and do away with plea bargaining in those cases. Sentencing would be determined in a separate hearing and depend on the severity of the offense as reflected by "aggravating" or "mitigating" circumstances.

The bills also would raise the legal minimum age for drinking beer and unfortified wine from 18 to 19, while leaving the minimum age for drinking hard liquor at 21.

Barnes, who said he hoped to see the Senate bill reach the House floor by late this week, persuaded his colleagues to vote down all but one of a barrage of last-minute amendments. The Senate approved 30-19 an amendment to subject a driver to arrest if his passengers possess open alcoholic beverage containers.

The Senate resisted efforts to remove another key provision — immediate, 10-day driver's license revocation for anyone blowing .10 or higher on the Breathalyzer. It also defeated an amendment to restore provisions of the "dram shop" portion stricken in committee, while retaining civil liability for vendors selling alcoholic beverages to underaged patrons who later cause traffic accidents.

Barnes acknowledged that the amendment on open alcoholic beverage containers in autmobiles, introduced by Sen. George Marion, D-Surry, was well-intentioned. But he said it was unfair to blame the driver for the actions of a passenger.

"The governor has said he wants a tough bill," said Marion. "This Senate and the House and Mothers Against Drunken Driving want a tough bill. And this (amendment) is tough."

Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, introduced an amendment to delete immediate license revocation that was soundly beaten, 40-8.

"This (provision) flies in the face of something more basic to our system of liberty than even the Constitution," said Winner, a former judge. "It violates the principle of innocent until proven guilty."

Under the administrative revocation provision, any driver blowing .10 on the Breathalyzer immediately would lose his license for 10 days. The defendant could request a hearing, but it might take several days to arrange.

"If they're later found innocent — well, too bad," Winner said.

But Barnes said removing administrative evocation would "take out the heart of the bill," saying that immediacy of punishment gave the bill credibility.

"It's supposed to change attitudes, to let people know that if they drink and drive they're going to lose their license and lose it immediately," he said.

Sen. Ollie Harris, D-Cleveland, proposed raising the maximum fines for each of the five sentencing classifications the bill establishes. Under the bill, the sentences range from $100 for least serious offenses to $2,000 for most serious violations. Harris proposed raising the ceilings to range from $250 to $3,000.

The amendment failed, 26-23.

The Senate defeated 36-12 a proposal by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe, to delete refusal to take the Breathalyzer test from the list of aggravating factors that could lead to a tougher sentence.

Swain said it wasn't fair to punish people when they have a constitutional right to refuse to take the test. But Sen. Charles Hipps, D-Haywood, said the U.S. Supreme Court had upheld the policy.

Sen. Robert Davis, D-Rowan, introduced an amendment to restore civil liability to bars, restaurants, stores and other firms selling alcoholic beverages to intoxicated customers who later cause traffic accidents after drinking the beverages on the premises.

The Senate Appropriations Committees removed that provision from the bill before it reached the floor in a move Barnes reluctantly supported as essential to get the package to the floor. Earlier, the Senate Judiciary III Committee removed dram shop liability for off-premises consumption.

The Senate voted 40-8 to table the amendment.

Five Guilty In Shooting Death

MIAMI (AP) — Five men convicted on murder charges in the shooting death of a federal agent during an undercover drug deal face sentences of up to life in prison.

Two men were found guilty of first-degree murder and three others were found guilty of second-degree murder Tuesday after a U.S. District Court jury deliberated seven hours.

Killed in the Dec. 2 shootout was agent Ariel Rios of the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. Agent Alex D'Atri was injured at the Miami motel where the undercover exchange was set up.

Two other defendants charged with cocaine conspiracy and distribution of cocaine were convicted on both counts.

Supervisor Completes 40 Years

John G. Harris Jr. completed 40 years of service this month as an employee of the Pitt County Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Harris, a Winterville native, is supervisor of the Pitt County ABC Board. He said he was hired as a clerk in 1943, managed a store here from 1946-1971 and was named supervisor in 1971. When he began there were eight stores in Pitt County, two in Greenville. Now there are 10 in the county, three in Greenville.

Harris supervises the 10 stores, does all ordering and merchandising and reports to the ABC Board.

A member of the Winterville Missionary Baptist Church and the Mohican Tribe No. 56 of the Loyal Order of Red Men of Winterville, he and his wife, Doris Mizelle Harris, have a daughter, Llewellyn McGowan of Greenville, and two grandchildren.

PIK Bids To Be Opened

Pitt Alumni Pledge $25,466

Pitt County alumni of East Carolina University pledged a total of $25,466 to the unversity's annual fund during last week's ECU Alumni Telefund campaign conducted by alumni volunteers.

The total pledge represented a 23.1 percent increase over last year's Pitt County Telefund results, according to Phil Herrington, ECU's annual support director.

During the telefund campaign, 60 local area alumni manned telephones during four nights, canvassing 4,222 Pitt County alumni. Of the total pledges, 131 were new, first-time pledges of financial support to the university.

Local alumni leaders who captianed teams of volunteers for the telefund campaign were Jim Hicks, Randy Doub, Phil Dixon, Mike Renn, Al Nichols and Walter House.

Rape Victim Asks For $10 Million In Lawsuit

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (AP) — A woman who police say was gang-raped on a tavern's pool table has filed a $10 million civil suit against the bar and the bartender, saying they did nothing to help her.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Bristol County Superior Court in the name of "Jane Doe" by attorney Scott E. Charnas, sought the damages for the 21-year-old woman's "pain and suffering and mental and emotional anguish" in the March 6 attack.

District Attorney Ronald Pina meanwhile presented evidence to a grand jury Tuesday seeking indictments against four men arrested in the rape.

The woman's lawsuit charges the bartender "observed the events ... and took no reasonable action" to stop them and claims the tavern corporation was responsible for preventing such an attack.

"I don't think what happened to her has really hit her yet," Charnas told reporters. "I don't think it will until the trial."

The suit seeks damages from the bartender and the corporation operating Big Dan's Tavern, where "Jane Doe" said four men grabbed her and raped her repeatedly for two hours.

Russell Sobral, attorney for bartender Carlos Machado and Machado's brother, tavern operator John M. Machado, said he could not comment on the lawsuit until he had read the full document.

Both of his clients are embarrassed and sorry about the incident and do not want to discuss it in public, Sobral said.

According to the police, Carlos Machado said he feared the consequences if he tried to call police during the attack, but said he gave a dime for a telephone call for help to a patron who dialed the wrong number.

According to the suit, 55 percent of the interest in the Big Dan Corp. is controlled by Deborah Brum, who voluntarily turned in the tavern's liquor license last week after attack was reported.

She is the sister of both John M. Machado, who holds 45 percent of the stock, and Carlos Machado. She reportedly was involved in the corporation because her brother, John, is not a U.S. citizen and cannot hold a liquor license under Massachusetts law.

Sobral said Mrs. Brum resigned as president of the corporation Monday night after 2,500 anti-rape demonstrators marched in protest in New Bedford.

The tavern has been closed, and Mrs. Brum had its bar cut up with a chain saw and carted away, along with the business's other equipment and furniture.

Reduced Its Energy Use

WASHINGTON (AP) — Since the 1973 oil embargo, Washington, D.C., has reduced its total energy consumption by 21 percent — the highest percent reduction in the nation.

Honeywell's Energy Management Information Center says New Englanders followed the district's lead, with Massachusetts reducing its energy use by 18 percent, and Rhode Island showing a 14 percent decline since 1973.

Tornado In Winter's Storms

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

A tornado demolished homes in southern Texas, a foot of snow closed highways in Colorado, and Minnesota residents found their early spring iced by freezing rain as a massive winter storm trudged eastward from the nation's midsection.

Meanwhile, forecasters predicted that another in a series of Pacific storms that have slammed into California this year with disastrous results would strike today or Thursday.

"I think the whole coast will get it," said National Weather Service forecaster George Pericht in Redwood City, Calif., adding that rainfall could total another inch or two in the California lowlands and more in the mountains.

On Tuesday night, a tornado tore through Harlingen, Texas, destroying two frame houses and two mobile homes, demolishing $50,000 in farm equipment at a ranch and injuring at least three people, including 42-year-old Alice Peters who remained hospitalized today with cuts, bruises and a broken bone.

Snow fell Tuesday from Denver to Minneapolis, and two highways east of Colorado Springs, Colo., were closed because of poor visibility. A snowslide blocked Loveland Pass in the mountains northwest of Denver, the State Patrol said.

The weather service forecast more snow today from northeastern New Mexico to southwestern Minnesota, gradually turning into rain.

Stapleton International Airport outside Denver played host to stranded travelers Tuesday, the third time this winter the airport has been partially or fully closed by snow.

Frontier Airlines ordered thousands of sandwiches, coffee, soft drinks and diapers to distribute to the grounded passengers. Half the runways were closed Tuesday, but all had reopened by today.

"This is our hometown, so we do feel we have an obligation to do everything we can," said Frontier spokesman Bob Schulman.

By early today, the snow was more than a foot deep in the Colorado mountains and up to 10 inches deep on the plains.

The weather service said this March is already the wettest in a century for Denver, with 4 inches of precipitation so far eclipsing the 3.91 inches recorded in the Mile High City in 1891.

To the north in South Dakota, the storm was "putting some cars in the ditch, banging up some fenders," said one state trooper.

With the snowpack in the Sierra Nevada of California and Nevada three times as deep as normal for this time of year — up to 17 feet in places — officials were worried about a massive snowmelt causing disastrous flooding. Reservoirs and rivers already are brim full.

"All that we can hope and pray for is that we have a normal melt," said Robert Vickers, regional director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency in California.

In southern Minnesota, snow changed to freezing rain Tuesday night triggering a travelers advisory. Earlier, snowstorms put an end to the recent spring-like weather in the state. New Ulm, Minn., got 7 inches and a 2½-inch blanket of the white stuff covered Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Elsewhere, Casper, Wyo., had 6 inches of snow in its second big winter storm in 10 days, following two months of sparse snowfall in most of the state.

'Golden Fleece' Awarded Navy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., today gave his Golden Fleece award to the Navy for going outside normal purchasing channels to spend $11,225 to furnish a captain's office.

Proxmire said the Navy could have decorated the office for $4,602 had it gone through the General Services Administration, which buys furniture and other supplies for federal agencies.

The unidentified captain, commanding officer of the Camp LeJeune Naval Regional Medical Center in Jacksonville, N.C., sits on a $1,882 chair that cost $500 more than the one President Reagan uses during Cabinet meetings, Proxmire said.

"This is one commanding officer who sits pretty while the taxpayers are sitting on lighter pockets," the senator said in a statement announcing the award, which he bestows monthly on what he considers "wasteful, ridiculous or ironic" use of tax funds.

The Navy said it was exempt from having to go through GSA channels because the order for furnishing the new $49 million, 205-bed hospital was so large, he said.

Instead, he said, the service hired an interior designer, who selected the expensive furnishings. They were procured last year by the Naval Supply Center in Norfolk, Va., through competitive bids, he added.

Proxmire said the Navy explained that it did not go through the GSA because "the number and types of items available on GSA contracts had been drastically reduced due to internal problems."

But he said the GSA countered that the Navy did not seek the required waiver to make the outside purchases and that the agency could have helped the service even if the items were not under contract.

The GSA calculated its $4,602 cost estimate on the basis of items that regulations permit a top-grade federal executive, Proxmire said. For example, he said, the $1,882 desk chair would have cost $331; an $800 5-by-9-foot rug, $81.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAR. 17, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

U.S.-Trained Greeks Hold Top Jobs In Homeland

By KERIN HOPE
Associated Press Writer

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Dozens of Greeks with credentials from the Ivy League and other prestigious U.S. universities have come home — some at financial sacrifice — to join Premier Andreas Papandreou's effort to build socialism in Greece.

Papandreou, a former American citizen and economics professor at the University of California at Berkeley, has attracted home both experts with established reputations and eager idealists in their early 30s. The premier himself studied at Harvard and the University of Minnesota after leaving Greece in 1937 for the United States.

"It was a unique chance to enter public life at a time when Greece was poised for a political experiment. Whatever happens, it will have been an invaluable experience" said a political scientist with a doctorate from an American university. He asked not to be identified for publication.

Papandreou himself returned to Greece at Premier Constantine Caramanlis' invitation in 1961 to head a newly founded economic planning center, KEPE. The job became a launching pad for his political career in Greece.

Some returnees say they would like to follow Papandreou's example and run for political office in a few years. Others say they are intrigued by the prospect of trying out social and economic theories in practice.

"It's hard to come out with the exact motivation," said Deputy National Economy Minister Costas Vaitsos, 41, a world expert on transfer pricing, a specialized field of economics concerning the profits of multinational companies. "It was both a personal and a political choice."

Vaitsos, like Papandreou himself, attended Athens College, a wealthy American-backed prep school here which counts many distinguished Greeks among its alumni. He has a doctorate from Harvard, taught at Sussex University in England and worked as a development adviser to 10 countries before coming home.

His superior, National Economy Minister Gerasimos Arsenis, 52, did graduate work at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and went on to become a top-ranking international civil servant. He gave up a post as director of foreign trade financing at the U.N. Conference of Trade and Development to plan the Socialists' restructuring of the Greek economy.

Other advisers have taken time off from careers still in an early stage. Louka Katselli, 33, took over Papandreou's old job at KEPE last summer, while on sabbatical from teaching at Yale.

"It's a very exciting time to be working in Greece, doing things from within," she said in an interview. "I always intended to come back to Greece and I'd done some work for PASOK (Papandreou's Panhellenic Socialist Movement) while they were in the opposition. But I didn't expect to find myself on the team formulating the five-year plan."

None of the returnees expects to get rich. Ms. Katselli, divorced with one young child, earns less than $1,000 a month and lives in an unpretentious Athens suburb.

During the government's 16 months in power, some of the returnees' initial enthusiasm has waned as they came up against what one called "the stupefying inertia" of the Greek bureaucracy.

Structural economic reforms are lagging behind schedule. The five-year economic plan is two months overdue and will be released, it now appears, in installments. Health and welfare reforms have been put back.

"We may have had to delay some measures, but we're still on track and I think we're getting more effective with time," said Yannis Papanicolaou, formerly a lecturer at the London School of Economics and now an adviser to Papandreou.

To many conservative Greeks, the Socialist technocrats are bent on transforming Greece's free enterprise system into a model of state control.

The conservatives have tried to underscore their charges by noting that Finance Minister Dimitrios Koulourianos, who got his Ph.D from Berkeley and worked for the World Bank, was an economic adviser to the Marxist-led military government in Ethiopia.

Koulourianos left Greece in 1968, during the military dictatorship, fired by the junta from his job at the Bank of Greece.

But James Petras, an American sociologist here, offers the view: "They're not wild-eyed radicals, but social and economic engineers with a managerial approach. In the States, they'd belong to the Democrats' liberal wing. In Europe, they'd be Social Democrats."

The Socialist government would like to entice home many more trained experts, especially scientists to organize research and development.

Research and Technology Minister George Lianis, 57, an expert on thermodynamics who used to teach at Brown University in Rhode Island, made an extended trip to the United States last year in search of Greek-American talent.

"We're now working on a program of incentives to repatriate experienced Greek scientists from abroad. It's vital we get know-how in science and technology, expecially microelectronics and biotechnology, to develop for the future," he said.

Experiments By Non-Americans

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — For the first time, a non-American university will conduct scientific experiments on the U.S. space shuttle Columbia.

Officials at Aberdeen University here say they will place three undergraduate experiments aboard the January 1984 mission of the Columbia.

The experiments will be a study on the movement of particles in a low pressure gas; a study on dimensional stability, and an experiment to determine the behavior of plant spores in space. They weigh a total of 17 pounds.

A student from the university will bring the experiments to the United States in July.

Hooked On Volunteering

TARENTUM, Pa. (AP) — John Henry, 10, has more than a famous name.

He has his own individual fishing coach on "Fish for Fun Day," an annual event for handicapped children.

The outing is led by volunteers such as Gulf Oil's Bob Bargerstock Sr., who has been involved for five years.

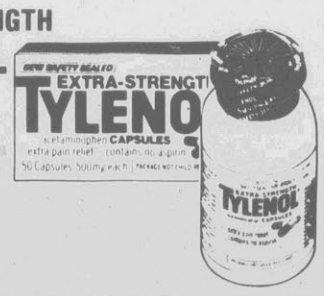

"We enjoy ourselves as much as the kids do," Bargerstock said.

Meteorites From Mars?

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine meteorites found scattered around the world may be chips of Mars, possibly the first fragments of another planet to reach Earth, the space agency reports.

If some of the meteorites are from Mars, NASA officials said they could be the most important extraterrestrial rocks studied since the return of lunar samples by American astronauts in 1969. They would provide scientists with their first chance to study in detail the chemistry and geology of the Red Planet.

The discoveries — including a piece of the moon — dispel an age-old theory that all meteorites come from broken-up asteroids or burned-out comets.

The findings are being discussed today at a lunar and planetary conference at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Johnson Space Center in Houston. They were released in advance at NASA headquarters here on Tuesday.

The moon meteorite — the first of its kind — was found in Antarctica last year and has been easier to identify than the nine suspected Martian chunks. Scientists were able to compare it with lunar samples collected by American astronauts, and they said it closely matches highland material returned by the Apollo 15, 16 and 17 crews.

"It's clearly lunar," said Prof. Klaus Keil of the University of New Mexico. Analysis indicates the fragment was blasted away from the moon by an asteroid impact about 100,000 years ago.

NASA's Dr. Bevan French speculated the meteorite, the size of a golf ball and weighing one ounce, might be from the far side of the moon, the side never seen from Earth. If so, he said, "we may be able to learn a great deal about a huge and unexplored region of the moon from this one little rock."

Identifying the nine suspected Martian meteorites is not so simple. The oldest has been a mystery to scientists since it fell near Chassigny, France, in 1815. The most recent find — and the one considered most likely to be of Martian origin — was picked up in Antarctica in 1979.

Others were found in India, Egypt, Brazil, Nigeria and in Lafayette, Ind.

Each of the nine pieces is about 1.3 billion years old — considerably younger than the thousands of other meteorites that have fallen to Earth. Most meteorites date back 4.5 billion years to the beginning of the solar system and the majority are believed to have formed in the asteroid belt between Mars and Jupiter.

All nine are igneous rocks, which means they cooled and crystallized from molten lava from volcanic eruptions. Scientists, who seriously began studying the rocks in the 1960s, identified Mars as the only planet large enough and near enough to have generated internal heat for such relatively young volcanic activity 1.3 billion years ago.

The Mars speculation gained impetus in the 1970s when America's Mariner 9 and Viking orbiters and landers returned pictures of numerous volcanic features on Mars, many between 1 billion and 3 billion years old.

Analysis of the 17.5-pound 1979 Antarctica meteorite showed traces of argon, krypton, xenon and other noble gases similar to those measured on Mars by the Vikings. Dr. Donald Bogard, a NASA geochemist, reported his recent experiments have turned up isotopic patterns in the meteorites that are close to what the Vikings measured.

"It is one more line of evidence," he said. But on the side of caution, he said, "Our studies are like fingerprint comparisons. But in the case of Mars we have a rather smudged print."

Most planetary scientists agree that the only way to be sure is to send a human or a robot on an expedition to collect and return pieces of the Red Planet. Said Dr. Michael Duke, chief of the space agency's Planetary and Earth Sciences Division:

"The only conclusive thing would be to go to Mars and find out."

Hunger Strike By Protestor

WARRENTON, N.C. (AP) — The fasting leader of protest against Warren County's PCB landfill, who underwent hospital tests Tuesday, says he'll continue his hunger strike, now in its 13th day.

Ken Ferruccio, chairman of Warren County Citizens Concerned About PCB, was taken from the Warren County Jail to Warren General Hospital, sheriff's department officials said.

His wife, Deborah Ferruccio, said the test lasted about 20 minutes. "As far as I understand, he's alright," she said.

Mrs. Ferruccio said her husband has agreed to post bond and leave jail on March 21 to attend a rally, but that he had no plans to end his fast.

Ferruccio has refused to eat and leave jail on bond since his arrest two weeks ago on charges of stealing a landfill pipe and trespassing at the landfill site in Afton.

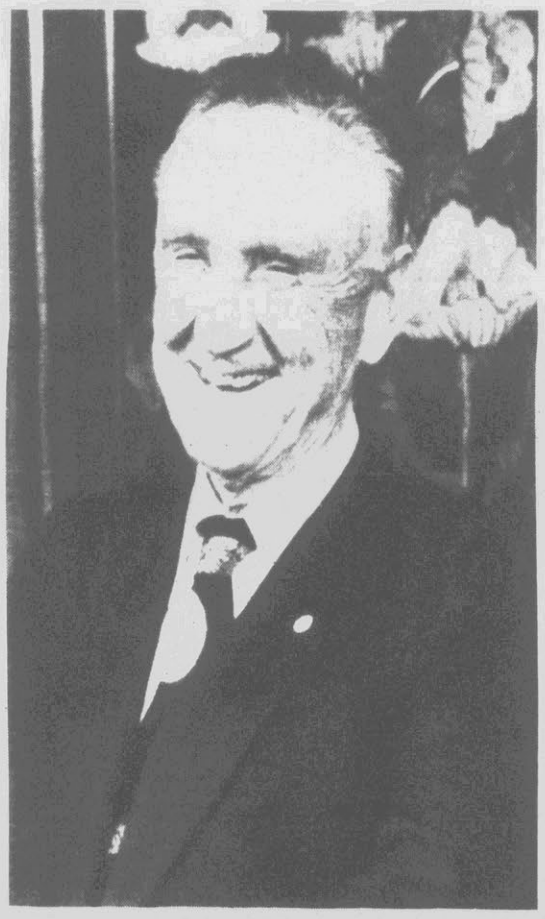

After persuasion by members of the protest group, Ferruccio volunteered to undergo testing, officials said.

The PCB, dumped illegally along more than 200 miles of North Carolina roadside in 1978, was scraped up last fall and stored in the landfill over the objections of area residents.

More than 500 arrests were made of protesters during rallies and marches at the landfill's entrance last fall. Demonstrators contend the state chose Warren County for the landfill because the largely black county has little political power.

PCB, formerly used in electrical transformers, has been shown to cause cancer in laboratory animals.

Ferruccio said he's fasting to protest the pumping of water from the landfill into a holding pond. The group contends the state should install a metal tank at the site to contain the water until tests show it isn't contaminated with PCB.

NOT YET QUITTING — Mike Mansfield, the U.S. ambassador to Japan, turns 80 today, but has no plan to retire in the foreseeable future. Appointed to the post by former President Jimmy Carter in 1977, the former Senate Democratic majority leader said in a recent interview with the Associated Press: "There's too much to be done and I want to do what I can to help bring about accomodation, compromises and solutions in the difficulties between our two countries." Concerned Over Billboard Impact

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa (AP) — A woman who greets arriving visitors may have a statuesque figure, but City Councilman Charles Smith wants her off the streets before she gives the city a bad name.

The woman in question — more accurately a bigger-than-life replica of a woman — stands atop Blondie's, a bar along Interstate 80.

"For so many people that's the first welcome to Council Bluffs," Smith said at a council meeting Monday. He directed City Attorney Terry Timmins to determine if the sign is legal.

Smith said he is worried about the woman's effect on Council Bluffs' reputation. City officials suspect the sign is the same one which once stood at a discount tire center.

"I didn't find it to be as offensive as where it is now," Smith said.

Cities can order billboards to be taken down but there could be a legal wrangle over compensation for the sign owner, Timmins said.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 3-16

LWHNDKOOTOAP NTXAD KNEEWPH GOJVOL PX HVJWP GNKOH.

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — FETTUCINE CHEF IS TOLD TO USE HIS NOODLE.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: N equals A.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

2 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ◇.

Players have a natural tendency to try to develop a long suit. But that is not always the best plan to adopt. Consider this hand.

Note North's decision to raise hearts at his third turn. He had already shown at least a six-card diamond suit with his rebid, so he judged that his high honor in partner's first suit merited the preference.

Against four hearts West chose to lead the queen of diamonds. That immediately alerted declarer to the likelihood that the suit would not break, but even without that clue there was good reason to ignore the diamond suit.

Suppose that the suit did break 3-2 and could be established. Declarer would have to draw trumps before he could run diamonds. Where, then, would be the entry to the diamonds? If the king of spades was an entry, declarer did not need the diamond suit. He already had nine tricks, and the spade would be the tenth!

The spade suit offered a much better chance for a tenth trick. If West held either the queen or jack of spades, declarer could establish his game-going trick by force.

Declarer won the ace of diamonds and drew trumps in three rounds. He then ran the nine of spades to East's jack. East shifted to the queen of clubs, but declarer was a tempo ahead. He won the king and repeated the spade finesse. East took the ace and continued clubs. Declarer won, entered dummy with the king of spades and sluffed a club on the high diamond. Declarer lost only two spade tricks and one club.

FOCUS

FREEDOM'S JOURNAL.
NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, MARCH 16, 1827.

Black Press Day

"Freedom's Journal," the first black owned-and-operated newspaper in the United States, appeared on the streets of New York 156 years ago today. John Russwurm founded "Freedom's Journal" as a response to white newspapers that had attacked freed blacks for demanding an end to slavery. The newspaper became a forum for black abolitionists. Russwurm — born in Jamaica and the first black to earn a college degree in the U.S. — was a leader of the "back-to-Africa" movement and went there in 1829. But other black newspapers continued to fight for an end to "the peculiar institution" of slavery.

DO YOU KNOW — What African nation was founded in 1822 as a home for free blacks from the U.S.?

TUESDAY'S ANSWER — The swallows return to San Juan Capistrano, California each year on March 19.

Class Writes Its Own Brainteasers

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — A ninth-grade English class that couldn't relate to questions on a standard achievement test has written its own brainteasers and sent them to McGraw-Hill Inc.

"The In Your Face Test of No Certain Skills," created by Rob Slater's basic English class at Hill High School, begins with four pages of utterly incomprehensible instructions: "You may doodle inside the margin. Do opposite of these directions. Turn answer sheet sideways. Print your name backwards."

Then comes the vocabulary section: "The test you are about to take is to show how well you know street language. If you turn the page before you take the test your life may be in DANGER."

The test asks, for example, what "G.Q." means and offers the following choices: A. good food; B. cat litter; C. pig shoes; D. nice rags.

It asks the definition of "Chill Pill." A. a fat lady; B. a pork chop; C. Batman's shoes; D. to be cool. (The answers are both D.)

John Stewart, who is in charge of marketing the McGraw-Hill test, said Monday he didn't know exactly how the company would respond to the students' test.

"We'd probably get a group together and take it," he said.

GROWING TOLL

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The death toll in the weekend landslide on Phupan in the Himalayan foothills has risen to 84, a government spokesman says.

Raising A Fuss Over Four-Letter Word In Advertising By S&L

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The president of a Muskogee savings and loan association is raising a fuss about a four-letter word.

The word is "bank."

The Oklahoma Bankers Association and Oklahoma banking commissioner have sued Victor Savings and Loan because the firm is using the words "bank" and "banking" in its advertising.

Oklahoma statutes say only chartered banks may use the words, said John Simpson, president of the savings and loan.

Simpson said Monday if he has to stop using the word, so will the bankers association, the banking commissioner and the state banking board. Piggy banks also would be in violation of the law, he said.

Simpson said he plans to start a contest next Monday among his customers to suggest new names for the Oklahoma Bankers Association, the Independent Bankers Association of Oklahoma, the state board and commission.

"The winner of the contest will get an all-expenses-paid trip to Oklahoma City, with the highlight a guided tour of the premises around the defunct Penn Square Bank," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, showing little follow-through to Tuesday's late rally.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 3.10 to 1,121.42 in the first half hour.

Advances held a small lead over declines in the early count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts noted that the market's upswing in the last hour of Tuesday's session came on light volume, with nothing par- ticular in the news to inspire it.

Since the Dow Jones industrial average reached a record closing high of 1,141.74 on March 7, the market has followed an erratic, zigzag course.

Evidence has accumulated in recent days that the recovery from the recession might be running at a slower pace than strong January statistics sug- gested earlier. On Tuesday the Federal Reserve reported that industrial production rose 0.3 percent in February, against a revised 1.3 percent jump the month before.

Today's early prices included K mart, up ⅛ at 32⅝; Sears Roebuck, up ⅛ at 35⅝, and Halliburton, down 1⅜ at 31½.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 10.07 points to 1,124.52, reversing a three-day decline.

Eight stocks rose in price for every seven that fell on the NYSE.

Big Board volume edged up to 62.41 million shares from a two-month low of 61.89 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .23 to 87.22. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down .27 at 383.15.

a reception area for these people in the rehab unit of the hospital.

Capital expenditures of $1,056,305 were approved. These included $860,000 for digital radiography equipment for radiology; $12,000 for four infusion pumps for pediatrics; $20,000 for landscaping projects for facilities services; $19,500 for a gas sterilizer for central services; $55,910 for five volume ventilators and accessories for respiratory therapy; $54,400 for a parking lot for the Gaskins-Leslie Center (low bid by Barrus Construction); $3,750 for television units, $5,000 for furniture for two waiting rooms and $25,745 for a word processor system for laboratory medicine.

A $6,000 gift was accepted from Doug Hill of the Pitt County Insurance Exchange for landscaping for the Gaskins-Leslie Center.

A $117,000-plus expenses contract with Hamilton Associates for further planning for hospital expansion was approved.

Changes in the retirement system were approved. One change was a "bad boy" clause which would remove retirement benefits to anyone convicted of or admitting to embezzling or otherwise stealing from the hospital.

The board went on record as opposing a proposed change in Joint Committee on the Accreditation of Hospitals manual. This action was requested by Wilkerson.

Executive Jet Said Abused

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Government Operations Committee is asking the Transportation Department to get rid of two Coast Guard executive jets that congressional investigators said have been used wastefully.

The Gulfstream planes, which cost nearly $3 million a year and 28 full-time personnel to operate and maintain, are "totally unjustified and an invitation to 'joy ride,'" Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said Tuesday.

Brooks responded to a General Accounting Office finding that the planes "were used primarily to transport high-ranking DOT and Coast Guard officials, as well as their spouses and guests," to locations in the United States and overseas "generally served more economically by commercial airlines."

The GAO also said that most of the flights were for routine travel that "did not appear justified" by the need to get to a location by a certain time.

Experiencing A Rabies Outbreak

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Three separate major outbreaks of rabies in the United States are posing "the greatest rabies threat in the last 20 years," a federal health official says.

Skunks and raccoons are spreading the viral disease across the Great Plains, in the Southeast and in the Mid-Atlantic region, said Dr. William G. Winkler of the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control.

Winkler discussed the problem at a Tuesday breakfast session of the American Animal Hospital Association's 50th annual meeting here.

Rabies, an infectious virus, can be transmitted to humans through the bite of rabid animals, and attacks the central nervous system. It can be fatal.

A "huge" outbreak of rabies in skunks has swiftly spread through Texas and Oklahoma, north to the Dakotas and west to Montana, Winkler said.

The second rash of rabies has been transmitted by raccoons and spread through several Southeastern states, including Florida and Georgia, he said.

A similar outbreak, also distributed by raccoons, has quickly moved through Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania and to the Washington D.C. area, he said.

"It's affecting large metropolitican areas," Winkler said. "Raccoons are the most urban rabies problem we have today.

"People don't realize how much they (raccoons) populate some sections of urban areas," he said. "I saw one in downtown Atlanta the other day."

Rabies outbreaks, with raccoons as the prime carrier, have hit Eastern metropolitan areas such as Baltimore, Philadelphia and Trenton, N.J., he said.

Rabies also has been reported among dogs, cats, bats and foxes.

CDC figures show 816 reported confirmed cases of rabies nationwide through March 6, compared to 754 in the similar period last year.

Playmate Shot By A Four-Year-Old

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy apparently took a revolver from his mother's bedroom, walked up to an 8-year-old waiting for a school bus and shot him, police said.

John F. Watkins was listed in fair condition Tuesday night at Hampton General Hospital with a bullet wound in his left shoulder.

The second-grader at Merrimack Elementary School had left his home about 7:45 a.m. and was walking to a bus stop when he met the younger boy, said detective Edgar Browning.

The younger boy, whom police would not identify, apparently had taken a .22-caliber revolver from the nightstand in his mother's bedroom, Browning said.

"He (the 4-year-old) told him (John) he was going to shoot him, and he shot him," Browning said. He said there was no evidence the shooting was provoked and there were no other witnesses.

"There was no indication he (the 4-year-old) thought it was a toy (gun)," Browning said. "I don't think he had a real appreciation of the fact that bullets come out of the end of the barrel. That was the impression I got from trying to talk with him."

Police said the injured boy, covering the wound with a hand, ran to a neighbor, Natalie Hudgins, screaming, "I've been shot, take me to the hospital."

Mrs. Hudgins drove the boy to the hospital.

ARREST

Greenville police Tuesday arrested Gerry Thomas Swindell, 19, of 1105A Chestnut St. on second degree burglary charges. Chief Glenn Cannon said the charge stemmed from a Jan. 31 incident at 1301 Dickinson Ave.

Beland

AYDEN — Mr. John B. Beland died Monday. Funeral services will be conducted Friday at 2 p.m. at Farmer Funeral Chapel by the Rev. C.L. Patrick. Burial will follow in the Ayden Cemetery.

Mr. Beland was born in Elm City but had resided in Ayden for 18 years. He was a member of the Ayden Christian Church, Ayden Masonic Lodge and the Scottish Rites in New Bern. He was a veteran of World War I.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Johnnie G. Beland of the home; one daughter, Mrs. Hugh Turner Sr. of Huntington Beach, Ca.; one brother, Milton E. Beland of Rocky Mount; six grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

The family will be at Farmer Funeral Home from 7-9 p.m. Thursday. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to the Ayden Christian Church.

Bolton

Miss Dorothy Bolton, 66, died Sunday at her home on Oak Street. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. W.J. Hadden Jr. Burial will be in Cedar Lawn Cemetery in Rich Square at 3 p.m.

Miss Bolton was born and reared in Rich Square and was a graduate of East Carolina University. During World War II, she served with the American Red Cross. In 1952, she became associated with the Pitt County Department of Social Services and was appointed director in 1969. She retired in 1979. She was a member of the Rich Square Baptist Church, a former member of the North Carolina Social Services Association and the Salvation Army Board of Directors.

Surviving are three brothers, Stafford L. Bolton of Richmond, Va., Roscoe L. Bolton of Badin and Thomas M. Bolton of Fayetteville.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the American Red Cross or the Foster Children's Fund of the Pitt County Department of Social Services.

The family will receive friends at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. tonight.

Daniels

WINTERVILLE — Mr. Edgar (Ed) Daniels of 536 Maye Drive, Winterville, died at his home Wednesday morning. He was the husband of Mrs. Mary Daniels. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Mitchell's Funeral Home, Winterville.

Hall

Mrs. Vonda Lee Hall, 66, died in Eustis, Fla., Tuesday. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the Wilkerson Funeral Home.

Hawkins

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Mr. Frank Hawkins died Sunday in Beaufort County Hospital. His funeral service will be conducted Friday at 1 p.m. in the Randolph Funeral Chapel. Burial will be in White Oak Cemetery.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Martha Hawkins of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Ella Hardy of Baltimore; three sons, William "Bass" Hawkins of Grimesland, Van Hawkins of Hampton, Va., and Linwood Hawkins of Voarhess, N.J.; 33 grandchildren; 50 great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

The family will receive friend at the funeral home Thursday evening.

Heath

Mrs. Nancy Dail Heath, 90, died at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Tuesday morning. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Larry Stevens. Burial will follow in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mrs. Heath was a native and long-time resident of Winterville where she was a member of Parker's Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Surviving are two sons, Leniard Heath of Kinston and Earl Heath of Farmville; a daughter, Mrs. Junior Lee Dail of Simpson; a foster daughter, Mrs. Ed Whaley of Ayden; 11 grandchildren; 24 great-grandchildren and six great-great-grandchildren.

The family will receive freinds at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. tonight and at other times will be at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ruby Dail, 406 S. Simpson St., Simpson.

Mayo

Mr. Odell E. (Gabby) Mayo of Route 1, Stokes, died Tuesday in Georgetown, S.C. Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Friday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel of Greenville by the Rev. Larry Stevens. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Mayo was a native of Pitt County and spent most of his life in Greenville. He was an employee of Daniel's Construction Co. and worked in Georgetown.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Marie Heath Mayo; two daughters, Vieda Cheryl and Dee Dee Mayo, both of the home; his mother, Mrs. Josephine Warren Mayo of Wilson; a sister, Mrs. Joyce K. Beacham of Wilson; two half-brothers, David Mayo of Wilmington and Lloyd H. Mayo Jr. of Greenville; and four half-sisters, Mrs. Pete Brickard of Robersonville, Mrs. Henry Johnston of Williamston and Mrs. Ray Moore and Mrs. Lucy Ross, both of Greenville.

The family will receive freinds at the funeral home from 7-9 p.m. Thursday.

Sherrod

TARBORO — Mr. Don Sherrod died Tuesday in Nashville Hospital in Rocky Mount. He was the husband of Mrs. Annie Boddie Sherrod of the home and the father of John Sherrod of Bethel.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at the Hemby-Willoughby Mortuary.

A Note of Thanks

The family of the late Mr. Cornelius (Neet) Whitaker would like to thank each and everyone for the food, flowers, cards, telegrams, visits and especially your prayers during the loss of our loved one.

ECU Presents Baird With 100th Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina and Fairfield met yesterday in a second baseball game and both teams had ample reason to win. The Stags were trying to give Coach Dave Cook a birthday present, while the Pirates were attempting to present Coach Hal Baird with his 100th career victory.

The prize went to Baird, as East Carolina came away with an 8-4 win in the game, taking their eighth straight win.

"It's nice that the kids were able to do it," Baird said afterwards about win number 100, all as head coach at ECU. "But it's also good to win ten games early."

Winfred Johnson started the contest for the Pirates, working the first five plus innings — claiming his fourth victory in as many starts. Chubby Butler came on in the sixth with the Pirates up only 4-3 and the tying run on third and didn't allow a run or a baserunner until the ninth.

"It seems to be the same thing. We kick a few around then get a couple of late runs to ice it," Baird said. "Winfred threw well and Chubby came on and did a fine job. I'm glad to see it so we could rest some arms."

The Pirates again hit well, banging out 11 hits, including a three-run homer by Daniel Boone in the fourth that kept the Pirates in the lead. Mike Williams then added a bases-loaded triple in the seventh that put the iceing on the cake.

"I really thought we were a little sluggish today," Baird said. "We really shouldn't be. We should realize that you can't be that way and win consistantly."

The Pirates grabbed the lead in the game in the first inning. Kelly Robinette opened the game with a double to left center, moving up on an infield out. He scored on Todd Evans' single for a 1-0 lead.

It stayed that way until the fourth when the Pirates added three more runs to take a 4-0 advantage. David Wells opened with a single and was sacrificed up. David Horne reached on an error, putting men at the corners. Boone then got his first collegiate hit — a homer that sailed and sailed and finally cleared the fence in right.

Fairfield finally erupted in the sixth to score three times and get back into the game. Carmine Farese walked and Mark Portanova reached on an error that could have started a double play. Joe Charno then singled, scoring Farese and Steve Carlotto doubled to right, driving in both Portanova and Charno. Carlotto advanced to third on the relay home.

That brought on Butler, who got the first man to ground back to short, holding the runner at third. Tom Reardon then fly to short center and Robert Wells threw a strike to home plate, again holding the runner.

"That was probably the key play of the game," Baird said later. "That kept them from scoring the tying run."

The next man grounded out ending the threat.

East Carolina then padded its lead with four more in the seventh. With one down, Evans and David Wells both reached on errors and Robert Wells' grounder to the infield was played too late at second to get anyone, leaving the bases loaded. Williams then stroked a triple to right, driving in all three runners. Williams then scored on a fielder's choice after Boone reached on a freak single. He hit a bouncer over the mound and the Stag shortstop, attempting to field the ball, slipped down.

Fairfield added its final run in the ninth, on a solo homer by John Martin. That came only one play after Williams threw out Reardon trying to stretch a single into a double.

Boone and Jack Curlings each had two hits for ECU, while Martin and Charno each had three and Carlotto had two for Fairfield.

Now 10-2, the Pirates play host to Clemson on Thursday at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Conley, Warren Clash

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

It's been just over a week since the Valkyries of D.H. Conley took a 47-40 win over North Lenoir for the District II 3-A Conference Tournament title, but they've hardly had time to rest on their laurels as they prepare for a Thursday showdown with Warren County at Wilson Beddingfield High School.

"We've really been busy," said Conley coach Joy James, whose team sports a 25-3 record going into the regionals. "We've been working on their strengths more than anything. We won't change anything as far as our game plan is concerned."

The Valkyries exhibit a balanced scoring attack, with Mechio Kornegay leading the team with 15 points per outing, followed by Irish Barnhill with 12.2 points, Darlene Cannon with 11.4 and Karen Barrett with 10.3. Cannon leads the Conley offense, dishing out six assists per contest.

Against Southeast Halifax in the District I Tournament Finals at Ahoskie, Warren County trailed by 11 points at halftime. But its aggressive press on defense and shot selection on offense provided a two-point overtime victory to raise Warren County's record to 19-4 on the season.

"We match up pretty well as far as defense is concerned," she said. "One of the keys to the ballgame is going to be that we have to beat their press.

"We have good ballhandlers, so if they try to use a cheating, aggressive type of defense I think we'll be able to move the ball around and work for the best shot, whether it's inside or outside. I doubt they can beat us on quickness."

Warren County will have the height advantage, but, as is usually the case, the Valkyries have better overall speed. Both teams use zone defenses most of the time, but James believes her team's speed will be the key to the game.

"They try to take the ball inside," said James, "but we've done a pretty good job of denying the easy inside shots this year.

"They're taller than we are, so we'll have to hit the boards pretty hard. But then, that's nothing new."

Barrett leads the Valkyries with 11 rebounds a game, with Kornegay hauling down 10. Barnhill paces Conley with three steals per game.

Pressure is nothing new to the Valkyries; they lost to North Lenoir 51-50 in the Coastal 3-A Conference Tournament finals Feb. 25 and had to play them in the District finals 11 days later. A 15-point effort by Kornegay, 11 from Barnhill and 10 from Barrett made the outcome of the district tourney more to James' liking.

"I think we come out of a very strong district," she said. "We've been in a lot of tough games this year, and they don't get any easier from here on out.

"I look for a lot of movement on our part, but I think what it will all come down to is who can hit the shots the other team is letting them have."

Chancellor John Howell, second from right, and Les Garner, second from right, Co-Commanders of the Fleet, look over Pirate Club information during a training session held this morning to kick off the Siege of '83, the Pitt County Pirate Club drive. Pirate Club Drive Set

The Siege of '83 began to mount its attack this morning.

Fourteen Pirate ships have been readied for launch April 5 in Pitt County, all a part of the Pirate Attack Fleet.

No, the Navy is not about to invade Pitt County, but volunteers in a reorganized Pirate Club membership drive are.

The Pirate Club, formally known as the Educational Foundation, Inc., a fund-raising organization for athletic scholarship dollars, is putting together the most concentrated effort ever to solicit new members.

The Siege of '83 opened for volunteers this morning with a training session at the Holiday Inn, headed by the club's executive director, Richard Dupree; the Commander of the Fleet for the siege, Les Garner; and his co-Commander, Chancellor Dr. John Howell.

The 14 Pirate ships and captains of each are: Pirate Ship Commercial, Joe Hallow; Pirate Ship Business, Larry Mallard; Pirate Ship Professional, Conley Branch; Pirate Ship Medical, Ray Minges; Pirate Ship Industrial, to be named; Pirate Ship Financial, Max Joyner; Pirate Ship General Membership, Phil Dixon; Pirate Ship Public/Academic, Charles Blake; Pirate Ship Special Gifts, Bill Clark; Pirate Ship Ayden, Marvin Baldree; Pirate Ship Grifton, Ed Casey; Pirate Ship Farmville, Frank Gill; Pirate Ship Bethel, Gene Briley; and Pirate Ship ECU Students, Charles Shavitz.

Each captain will have several lieutenants, and in turn, lieutenants will have several mates, to help with the massive fund drive. The idea is to get a lot of people involved to cover a lot of area.

As East Carolina University continues its strong commitment to NCAA Division I-A athletics, the need for a stronger scholarship base als increases. The goal for the Siege of '83 is to double membership of the Pirate Club in Pitt County. The Siege will be staged during the month of April.

Panthers Top West Craven

North Pitt's Panthers evened their record at 2-2 on the year yesterday with a 9-2 victory over West Craven in a non-conference baseball game.

The Panthers jumped into the lead in the first inning, scoring a pair of runs. Lee Manning singled and stole second, moving to third on Greg Briley's single. An errored pickoff play allowed Manning to score. Ken Whitehurst then tripled to drive in Briley for a 2-0 lead.

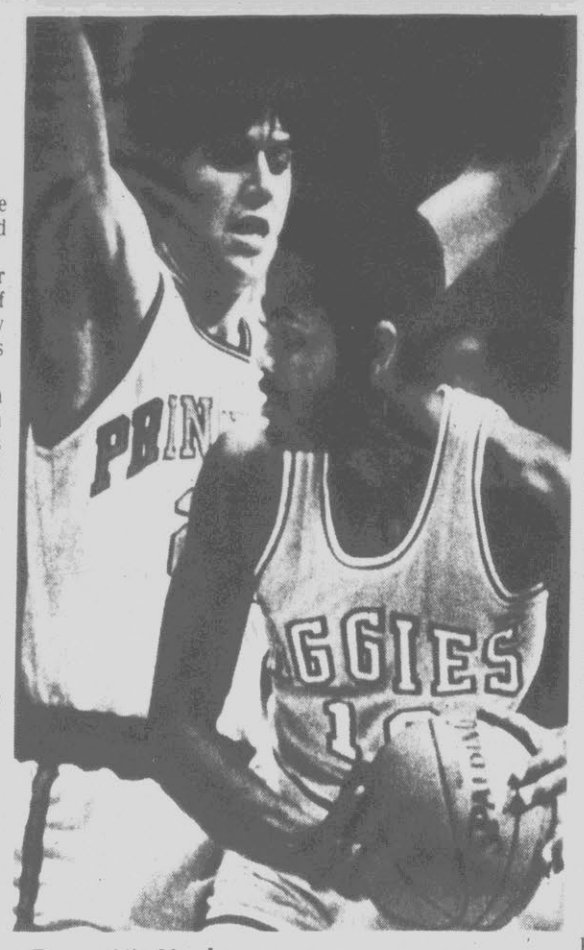

After West Craven rallied for a pair in the second, North Pitt came up with one in the third, and that proved to be the winning run. Whitehurst walked and moved up on a single by Chris Ayers. Both runners moved up on a wild pitch and an error on the attempted pickoff allowed Whitehurst to score.

The Panthers added four more in the fourth, three of them coming on a homer by Whitehurst. Two final runs scored in the sixth.

Manning and Briley each had three hits to lead North Pitt, while Whitehurst, Ayers and Barry Strickland each had two. No one had more than one for West Craven, which got only four hits off Ayers.

The Panthers return to action next Tuesday, traveling to West Craven for a return match.

A&T Falls To Princeton

By The Associated Press

You'll have to forgive the Colonials of Robert Morris College if they're not exactly looking forward to a case of deja vu.

Last year, in their first-ever appearance in the NCAA Basketball Tournament, the Colonials were wiped out 94-62 by Indiana in the first round.

Tuesday night, they survived a preliminary-round test — an NCAA first — by defeating Georgia Southern 64-54, and their first-round opponent Thursday night in Tampa will be another Big Ten team from the Hoosier State, Purdue.

"Experience in the NCAA helps," Robert Morris Coach Matt Furjanic said after the Colonials' triumph in the first half of a doubleheader at Dayton, Ohio, where Alcorn State defeated Xavier of Ohio 81-75 in another prelim. "The first time you have a tendency to sit back and enjoy it. The second time you get a little hungry. We're a better team right now than we've ever been."

In another twin bill at Philadelphia, Gordon Enderle scored 18 points and Craig Robinson added 15 as Ivy League champion Princeton defeated North Carolina A&T 53-41, and sophomore forwards Albert Butts and Ralph Lewis sparked a second-half drive that powered La Salle over Boston University 70-58.

In first-round action later this week, La Salle meets Virginia Commonwealth at Greensboro, N.C., on Thursday night, while on Friday night, Princeton faces Oklahoma State at Corvallis, Ore., and Alcorn State meets Georgetown at Louisville.

Forest Grant scored 17 points and Chipper Harris added 16 to lead Robert Morris past Georgia Southern. The Colonials, 23-7, have won 19 of their last 20 games.

Robert Morris led 26-21 at halftime and three quick baskets at the start of the second half by Roy Dudley helped the Colonials build a 14-point lead.

Michael Phelps scored 18 points to lead Alcorn State over Xavier, which was in the NCAA field for the first time in 22 years. The Braves are making their third NCAA appearance in four years.

Alcorn's full-court pressure bothered Xavier in the first half, resulting in 19 turnovers and a 40-32 Alcorn lead. The Braves opened the second half with five straight points, fashioned a 17-point lead and then withstood a rally that brought Xavier within three points with a minute left.

"It's helped us, as a black-oriented school, to break down the so-called race barrier and show that you don't have to have 20,000 students to get the job done," said Marino Casem, Alcorn's athletic director. He said the low ranking of the conferences involved in the preliminary round "should serve as an incentive to the kids" representing those leagues.

Princeton, 19-8 and riding a 10-game winning streak, had little trouble with North Carolina A&T's zone defense and ran off six straight points to take a 14-7 lead midway through the first half. It was 23-19 at the half and the Tigers, helped by A&T's cold shooting, took a 34-25 lead on a three-point play by John Symth with 13:22 left.

Robinson scored 11 points in the first half, hitting all five attempts from the field. Enderle scored 13 in the second half.

La Salle, the East Coast Conference champion, outscored Boston University 14-4 in the first eight minutes of the second half, with Lewis getting eight points and Butts seven. The Explorers' zone defense kept the Terriers under control the rest of the way.

Conley Stops Charger String

HOLLYWOOD — D.H. Conley won its second straight and handed Ayden-Grifton its first loss of the season yesterday, as the Vikings claimed a 5-2 baseball victory.

Daryl Edwards scattered four hits in hurling the win for Conley, walking two and striking out seven. He threw only 79 pitches during the seven-inning contest.

Conley got all it needed in the first inning, scoring three times. Mitchell Cox reached on an error and Steve Mills walked. Chris Via then singled and an error on the play scored both runners and moved Via to third. He then scored on Mike Gurkins' ground out.

The Chargers came back with two in the top of the second. Doug Coley walked and Joey Kennedy singled him to third. Kennedy stole second and R. Moye reached on a bunt single. After an out, Terry Garrett reached on a ground-ruled double, scoring both Coley and Kennedy. Edwards then struck out the next two batters to get out of the jam, and Ayden-Grifton couldn't push in another run the rest of the afternoon.

Conley later added single runs in the fifth and sixth innings.

No one for either team had more than one hit.

Now 2-0, Conley plays host to SouthWest Edgecombe on Friday, while Ayden-Grifton travels to West Craven.

Jaguars Take Opening Win

WHEAT SWAMP — Farmville Central gained its first baseball victory of the season yesterday with a 4-2 win over North Lenoir.

The Jaguars pushed into the lead in the top of the third inning scoring two runs. Taylor Walston walked as did Roy Roman. Ken Askew then singled, loading the bases. Randy Daniels followed, reaching on an error when his fly to center was dropped, allowing both Walston and Roman to score.

North Lenoir came back with a run in the bottom of the inning, then tied it up with another in the fourth.

But Farmville scored twice more in the fifth to put the game away. With two away, Billy Godley reached on a double and scored when Daniels followed with another double. A third straight double, by Wade Corbett brought in Daniels for the final 4-2 margin.

No one on either team had more than one hit, with the three doubles being the big blows for Farmville. North Lenoir's Maurice Thorbes had a double to pace the Hawk hitting.

Farmville's Alvin Baker allowed only two hits in the game, striking out seven and walking three.

Now 1-1, the Jaguars return to action on Friday, hosting North Lenoir in a return match.

Price Gets Rookie Honor

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech's Mark Price says it means a lot to him to be named the Atlantic Coast Conference rookie of the year.

"I feel it's a great honor," Price said Tuesday. "It's a thing a lot of people would like to have, I'm sure. I outvoted some really great players. It means a lot to me."

Price finished the year with a 20.3-point-per-game average and leads North Carolina's Michael Jordan by one-tenth of a point in ACC basketball scoring. But Jordan's scoring in the NCAA tournament will be figured into his average before an ACC scoring champion is decided.

Price, a 6-foot, 165-pound freshman guard from Enid, Okla., received 83 of the 137 votes cast by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association for its Ray Reeve Award. Duke guard Johnny Dawkins polled 53 and N.C. State's Ernie Myers received one vote.

"This is a great honor for Mark and our basketball program," said Yellow Jackets head Coach Bobby Cremins, who was named the ACC's coach of the year earlier Tuesday. "Mark has done it all for us this year and a lot of our success must be credited to his play and leadership. I just hope he will continue to grow and become the great player everybody thinks he can be."

Price said it was an honor to beat out Dawkins.

"I'm not going to say I'm that better than Johnny Dawkins," he said. "Johnny's a great player. We don't play anything alike. I think the way our team finished up, being ahead of Duke had something to do with it. If Duke had finished ahead of us, he probably would have won. Plus, I think us beating Maryland in the (ACC) tournament probably helped out a lot, too."

Rams Bomb Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO — Greene Central captured its second straight baseball victory over Goldsboro High School yesterday, rolling up a 15-6 win.

The Cougars pushed ahead in the first inning, scoring twice, but Greene Central got one in the top of the second. Goldsboro then added two more in the third, and after the Rams scored once in the fifth, Goldsboro added two more in the bottom of the frame to hold a 6-2 lead.

The Rams then exploded for 11 big runs in the top of the sixth, taking a 13-6 lead.

Press Harris led off the frame with a double and scored on Otis Barnes' hit. Todd Grant walked and Kevin Langston was hit by a pitch, loading the bases. Tommy Goff singled and when the ball got through in center field, all three baserunners scored and Goff ended up on third. Chris Suggs then reached on an infield hit and James Moore singled to score Goff. Elmer Dixon reached on a fielder's choice that scored Suggs but got one of the other runners. Harris back up, walked and Barnes singled, scoring Moore. Grant was safe on a fielder's choice, scoring Dixon, but getting Harris. Langston then singled in Barnes, and Goff drove in the final run.

The Rams added two more in the seventh to finish it off.

Goff, Suggs, Langston and Barnes each had three hits to pace Greene Central, while Stan Mozingo had two hits, a double and a triple, for Goldsboro.

Now 2-0, the Rams travel to Rose on Friday.

Jaguars Second In Golf Match

WILSON — Wilson Hunt nipped Farmville Central by a single stroke yesterday as the Jaguars opened the 1983 golf season. Hunt finished the round at Wedgewood Country Club with a 327 total, while Farmville had 328.

Beddingfield finished two more shots back at 330, followed by Kinston at 357 and Rocky Mount at 362.

Gary Hobgood of Farmville had the best round of the afternoon, a 79. Other Jaguars scores included Alan Wooten, 81; Daryl Baker, 80; and Scott Lewis, 88.

Hunt was led by Craig Parrish with 80, while Scott Vandenberg had 81, Kent Williams, 83, and Mike Kennedy 83.

For Beddingfield, Kelly Exum had 83, Harry Tyson, 81; Tony Bass, 82, and Brooks Pierce, 84.

Kinston was led by Tinsley Mitchell with 82, followed by Frank Brownlee at 85, while Lee McGee ahd Sim Hodge each had 95.

Jeff Vaughn and Warren Gold led Rocky Mount with 90, while Larry Clark had 92 and Reggie Pryor, 94.

Now 3-1, Farmville hosts Fike and Northern Nash this afternoon.

Williamston Nips Plymouth

PLYMOUTH — Williamston High School opened the 1983 baseball season with an 8-5 Northeastern Conference win over Plymouth.

Williamston pushed into the lead in the first with one run, then added two in the second. Plymouth also came up with two in the bottom of the frame on a homer by Baker.

Then, in the fifth, Williamston came up with four runs to push out into a 7-2 lead that won it. Roger Barber singled and James Ward reached on an error. Les Keel singled, loading the bases. Gray Thomas walked, forcing in Barber, and Keith Perry's hit brought in all three baserunners.

Williamston added an eighth run in the top of the seventh on a homer by Perry, then had to hold off a three-run Plymouth rally in the bottom of the frame to claim the win.

Keel and Perry each had three hits and Barber added two for Williamston. Mark Mizelle had two for Plymouth.

Williamston returns to action on Friday, hosting Ahoskie.

Vucky May Miss Year

SUN CITY, Ariz. (AP) — Pete Vuckovich, who helped Milwaukee win the pennant last year and received the American League Cy Young Award, may be unavailable this season because of an injured shoulder.

The Brewers reported Tuesday he has a torn rotator cuff, the sort of handicap that can keep a pitcher off the mound for many months.

"We are as sorry for him as we are for ourselves," General Manager Harry Dalton said of the news.

Vuckovich, 30, has a 32-10 won-lost record with the Brewers in the last two seasons. He was 18-6 in 1982.

South Florida, Vandy In NIT Wins

By The Associated Press

Charlie Bradley was the nation's second leading scorer during the regular college basketball season, but perhaps now the nation will know who he and the University of South Florida Bulls are.

Bradley, a sophomore, scored 34 points Tuesday night to lead USF to an 81-69 victory over Fordham in a first-round National Invitation Tournament game.South Florida, 22-9, overcame a seven-point halftime deficit in posting its first post-season tournament victory ever before its hometown fans in Tampa.

"I think this is by far the biggest win in the history of the school because it comes in a national tournament," said Coach Lee Rose, who previously guided North Carolina-Charlotte and Purdue to the Final Four of the NCAA Tournament. "It was a tremendous team effort, but you have to single out Charlie. He had a great game, and not just scoring."

At Nashville, Phil Cox scored 25 points and led a 15-4 Vanderbilt blitz early in the second half to pace the Commodores to a 79-74 victory over East Tennessee State.Cox scored nine points during the first 6:39 of the second half as the Southeastern Conference team turned a 43-37 halftime disadvantage into a 52-47 lead.

USF's Bradley, the Sun Belt Conference's co-Player of the Year, hit eight of 12 shots in the first half to keep the Bulls in the game as Fordham led by as many as 10 points. South Florida outscored the Rams 15-2 in the first six minutes of the second half to take control of the game. Keith Douglas added 15 points for the winners and 7-foot Jim Grandholm contributed 14.Michael Cooper paced 19-11 Fordham with 20 points and Mark Murphy added 15.

"They are a very explosive team," said Fordham Coach Tom Penders. "When that kid (Bradley) is hitting like he was tonight, I don't see many teams beating them. As far as just being a shooter, I haven't seen any better this year, and I hope I don't run into another like him ever."

"We just took the shots and they fell for us," said the 6-6 Bradley, who finished with 14-of-21 from the floor. "The crowd got excited in the second half when we came back and it really helped us get in the game."

East Tennessee State made a late run at Vanderbilt, charging to within one point twice in the final two minutes.But Vandy freshman James Williams hit two free throws and scored from the baseline to help the Commodores, 19-13, win their first-ever NIT appearance. East Tennessee State ended the season with a 22-9 record.

"It's our biggest win so far this season," said Cox."We're still alive, and every game you win from now on is your biggest win."

Seven more first-round games will be played tonight. They are Texas Christian at Tulsa, Idaho at Oregon State, Old Dominion at South Carolina, St. Bonaventure at Iona, New Orleans at LSU, Minnesota at DePaul and Texas-El Paso at Fresno State. There also will be five first-round games Thursday night and two more on Friday night.

The red, white and blue basketball, a novelty not seen in widespread use since the death of the American Basketball Association in 1976, is enlivening the NIT. One coach said he thought it could affect the quality of play.

Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson said it can be distracting to "see something red, white and blue coming at you when you're used to seeing something brown coming at you."

Richardson said he played with the multi-colored ball during a stint in the ABA and the more visible rotation "affected me the first couple of weeks."

But Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller observed: "A basketball is a basketball. It feels the same. It's just a little different color."

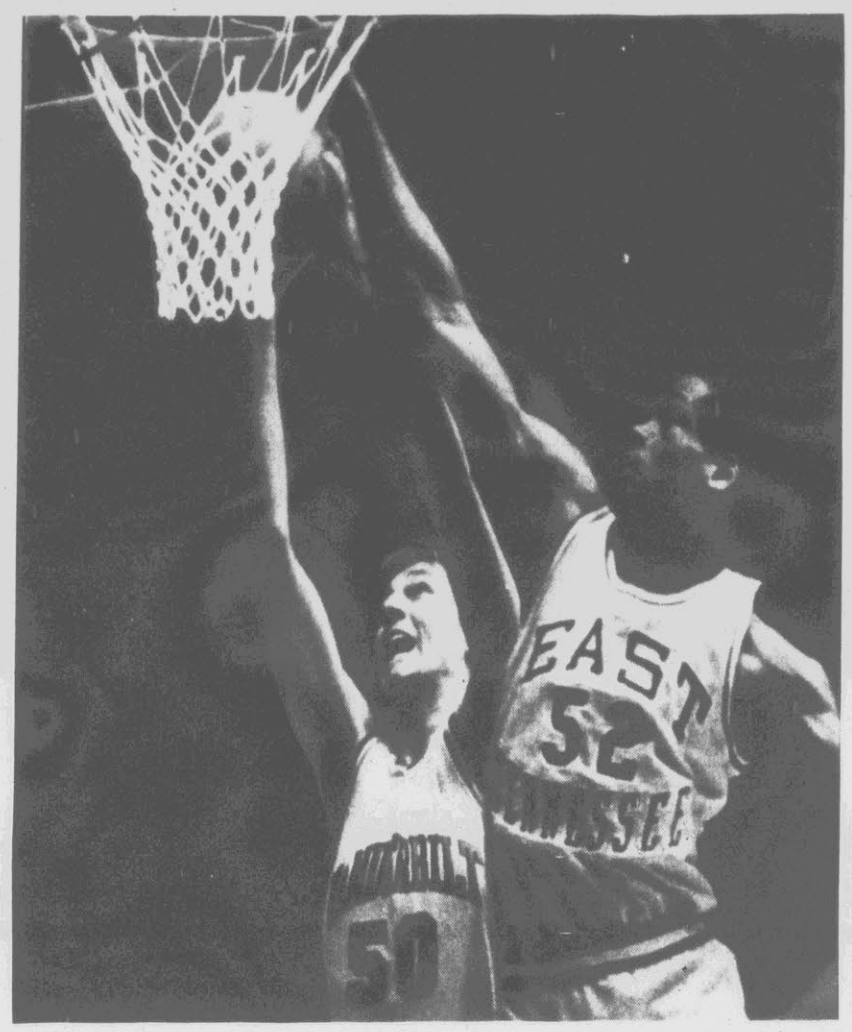

The use of a 30-second shot clock — discontinued for the final four minutes of each game — also has some coaches disconcerted.

"My opposition to the shot clock," Miller said, "has to do with stereotyping the game, trying to make basketball a totally offensive game and hurting coaches in teaching the team concept."

And Coach Ray Meyer of DePaul said: "We practiced with one of those and nobody ever looked at it. Not once. We keep yelling for them to watch the clock, somebody, anybody, and they just treat it like it's the strangest thing in the world."

Conversely, Richardson said he thought the clock might help Tulsa. "We're kind of an up-tempo team as it is," he said. "We're hoping it will work more to our advantage. We hope to do some pressing."

Lady Tigers Lose In Opener

PLYMOUTH — Plymouth High School's girls handed Williamston a 12-8 defeat as the Lady Tigers opened their 1983 softball season yesterday.

Plymouth scored once in the first only to see Williamston come back with four in the second inning. Plymouth then tied it up in the bottom of the inning, only to fall back again as Williamston scored twice in the third.

However, the Valkyries came up with one in the bottom of the third, then pushed ahead for good with three in the fourth for an 8-6 lead. Plymouth added four more in the fifth, and held Williamston to just two more runs, both coming in the seventh.

Wanda Price led Williamston's hitting with three, while Valerie Smith and Hope Hopkins each had two. K. Alexander had two for Plymouth, now 2-0.

Williamston, 0-1, plays host to Ahoskie on Friday.

SNOW HILL — Greene Central held off a late Beddingfield High School rally yesterday and gained a 14-12 softball victory over the Lady Bruins.

Beddingfield took the initial lead with single runs in the first two innings, but Greene Central scored four in the bottom of the second to take a 4-2 lead. After Beddingfield tied it up with two in the top of the third, the Lady Rams added two more in the bottom of the frame on a homer by Cynthia Jones. It stayed 6-4 until the sixth, when Beddingfield added three more for a 7-6 lead.

But in the bottom of the inning, the Rams exploded for eight, taking a 14-7 lead. Patricia Woodard had a solo homer to spark that inning. The Rams then held off a five-run rally in the seventh to take the win.

Andrea Dixon led the Greene Central hitting with three, while Woodard, Jones and Trynette Daniels each had two hits. Artis, Hooker and Bunn each had two for Beddingfield.

Now 2-1, the Lady Rams travel to Greenville Rose on Friday.

Bullets Top Choco Nine

CHOCOWINITY — Jamesville High School erupted for eight runs in the top of the seventh inning and came away with a 10-0 win over Chocowinity in its first baseball game of the year yesterday.

Tim Norris threw a one-hitter at Chocowinity, striking out ten and walking three.

The Bullets took the lead in the top of the fifth inning, finally breaking the scoreless tie. Kevin Perry walked and Terry Perry reached when his sacrifice bunt attempt was errored. Both were sacrificed up, and Greg Hardison walked to load the bases. Ritchie Ange then walked, forcing in the run.

After the Bullets added a second run in the sixth, they came up with eight in the top of the seventh, including a grand-slam homer by Rex Bell before Chocowinity called it quits before the inning ended.

Bell and Hardison each had two hits to lead Jamesville.

The Bullets return to action on Thursday, hosting Bear Grass.

Perkins: Heels Need To Work On Concentration

By RICK SCOPPE
Associated Press Writer

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina center Sam Perkins says the Tar Heels need to work on their concentration and ability to adapt to different situations as they enter the NCAA tournament.

"We're not concentrating enough," Perkins said Tuesday at a noon news conference. "Everybody is not applying themselves like they should. We are going to need to do that going into the Regionals.

"We really have to get psyched up and get prepared for any team we have to play," he said.

The No. 8 Tar Heels, 26-7, are the second seed in the East Regional and have a opening round bye. On Saturday, they will take on the winner of the Friday's James Madison-West Virginia game in Greensboro Coliseum.

The Tar Heels won the NCAA title last year with a 63-62 victory over Georgetown.

"Last year we were pretty set in everything," Perkins said. "This year we're young — well not really young but we've got some inexperienced guys who don't have that much experience.

"They don't know what it (the NCAAs) is like," he added. "Last year's team was more adaptable. But I think this year we have a good chance to get to the final four.

History disputes that. The Tar Heel have not won an NCAA tournament game after losing in the ACC tournament.

North Carolina, the defending National Collegiate Athletic Association champion, enters the tourney following a 91-84 overtime loss to North Carolina State in the ACC tournament semifinals.

"I don't think it follows that if you win the tournament you play great and if you don't win the tournament you aren't going to play great," North Carolina coach Dean Smith said. "I think so many factors are involved. I really think we'll bounce back and play pretty well."

The Tar Heels defeated James Madison 52-50 in last year's opening round, but haven't played West Virginia since 1966.

James Madison is 19-10, West Virginia 23-7 and Smith said both could give the Tar Heels problems.

"There's a tremendous pyschological advantage for the nonseeded team," he said. "They have a game under their belts and then they're mad, especially if they think they deserved a seed."

The NCAA tournament marks the end of the 30-second clock and the 3-point field goal for the Tar Heels. Smith said he doesn't anticipate any changes — except the mental aspect.

"All of sudden when Michael (Jordan) pulls up on a jumper for a 3-point (basket), which he has done all year, I don't want that now," Smith said. "I want him to fake that jumper and take it to the basket."

Smith said James Madison could cause his team more adjustment troubles than West Virginia.

"We had a practice geared to a 26-24 full-court game," Smith said. "And a lot has to do with mentally getting used to (a slower tempo). If we play James Madison that would be very much of a problem. They want a 32-30 game. Then if you play West Virginia, I assume they still want a fast tempo."

Jordan, averaging 20 points per game, has shown he can play at any tempo.

Jordan was chosen first team All-America by The Associated Press Tuesday while Perkins was named to the third unit.

EC Women Top UNCW

WILMINGTON — East Carolina's women evened their record at 1-1 with a 7-2 victory over UNC-Wilmington yesterday.

The Lady Pirates took five of the six singles, losing only at number six, to sew up the win. They added the first two doubles before bowing at number three.

The Lady Pirates play River Birch Tennis Club on Thursday.

Chaminade Advances

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The most memorable event in Chaminade's basketball history came when the Silverswords upset powerhouse Virginia 77-72 earlier this season.

But the most important, says Coach Merv Lopes, was the Hawaii school's 90-72 victory over Alabama-Huntsville Tuesday night in the first round of the NAIA Basketball Tournament.

"We could go 35-0 and win the NAIA national title and get one-fourth of the recognition that we got for the win over Virginia," he said. "It's crazy that one game could do that.

"Tonight's win is bigger than the Virginia win, because it is tonight. Now is what matters. What is in the past is not important today. Tomorrow's game will be more important than the win tonight."

Ralph, Jordan 1st Team All-America

NEW YORK (AP) — Wayman Tisdale, Oklahoma's record-breaking 18-year-old, has done something even Virginia's Ralph Sampson never accomplished by becoming the first freshman ever named to the first team of The Associated Press' All-American basketball squad.

The 6-foot-9, 240-pound Tisdale joined seniors Sampson and Dale Ellis of Tennessee and sophomores Patrick Ewing of Georgetown and Michael Jordan of North Carolina on the first team, which was announced Tuesday.

It marked the third straight year that Sampson was named to the first team. He was an honorable mention choice as a freshman.

"Wow, I can't hardly believe that," Tisdale said after being informed of his selection. He averaged 25.1 points and 10.6 rebounds in leading Oklahoma to a 23-8 record and a berth in the NCAA playoffs.

The Tulsa, Okla., native led the Big Eight Conference in scoring and rebounding and was named the league's Player of the Year. He broke every freshman scoring record and eclipsed the Sooners' single-season scoring record with 779 points while hitting 58.2 percent from the field.

He also blocked 76 shots.

Sampson, 7-4, averaged 19.1 points and 11.7 rebounds and blocked 91 shots in leading the Cavaliers to a 27-4 record and a share of the Atlantic Coast Conference's regular-season title with North Carolina. He made 59.3 percent of his field goal attempts.

In his career, Sampson has scored 2,171 points, the third-highest in Virginia history, and grabbed 1,477 rebounds and blocked 249 shots — both Virginia records. Virginia, also headed to NCAA playoffs, has won 110 and lost 22 during the Sampson era.

Sampson, the ACC's Player of the Year, is the only repeater from last year's first team. He was the AP's Player of the Year the past two seasons.

"The year will be complete with the national championship," said Sampson, who spurned pro opportunities after his first three college seasons. Despite his effort, the Cavaliers have failed to win the NCAA crown during his reign.

Ellis, a 6-7 second-team choice last season, plays the low post in the Tennessee offense and averaged 23.0 points this season on 60.2 shooting from the field and 6.7 rebounds. He was the Southeastern Conference's Player of the Year, is the 10th highest scorer in SEC history and the third-highest in Tennesee's history with 2,032 points and a 59.1 shooting percentage.

Ewing, a 7-footer who was the leader of the young Georgetown team, averaged 17.4 points with a 56.8 field goal percentage and 10.2 rebounds. He also had 104 blocked shots.

His intimidating style earned him the Big East Conference's Defensive Player of the Year honor.

Jordan, a 6-5 swingman who averaged 20.1 points on 54.1 percent field goal shooting and made 77 steals, specializes in late-game heroics. Coach Dean Smith calls him "Old Reliable." His goal gave the Tar Heels last year's NCAA title over Georgetown and he came through in the clutch to pull out the second game with Virginia this season.

Underclassmen also dominated the second and third teams.

The second team included sophomore Keith Lee of Memphis State, a second-team choice last season, and juniors Clyde Drexler of Houston and Derek Harper of Illinois. Seniors Steve Stipanovich of Missouri and Darrell Walker of Arkansas complete the second team.

Juniors Sam Perkins of North Carolina and Kenny Fields of UCLA and sophomore Ennis Whatley of Alabama are members of the third team, along with seniors John Pinone of Villanova and Wichita State's Antoine Carr.

The teams were selected by a panel AP sports writers.

The AP Player of the Year will be announced April 1.

Put more great men in your future.

North State's IRA pays more interest: 10.50%

The real difference between all the available IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts) is the amount of interest you get paid.

So check around. You'll soon find that North State's IRA pays you more.

And retirement will bring more big bills like Jacksons, Grants and Franklins when you open a North State IRA.

As little as $100 starts an IRA at North State. And even if you already have an IRA someplace else, you can open a new one and start getting North State's higher rates.

As with any IRA, you get tax deductions now (deduct deposits up until April 15 from your 1982 return) and income when you retire. So come in and let us tell you about a North State IRA at the office nearest you.

And while you may think that IRAs look a lot alike right now, a higher-rate North State IRA sure will look better later on.

Because it puts more great men in your future.

You'll get the highest rates with a North State IRA.

*This is the annualized effective yield of North State's fixed rate IRA based on a daily compounding of a nominal rate of 9.99%

Minority Contractors' Bill Argued In Legislature

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A bill that would let local governments mandate minority participation in construction contracts would help end the "good old boy purchasing system," a supporter told a state House committee Tuesday.

However, opponents said the bill would force contractors to raise prices to accommodate the increased risk of using minority contractors and suggested it might be unconstitutional.

North Carolina laws now allow the state to comply with federal requirements for minority participation in contracts when doing otherwise would result in the loss of federal funds. In other cases, state law demands competitive bidding.

The state Attorney General's office has informally ruled that voluntary minority participation systems proposed in Charlotte and Durham might violate state law. Charles Murray of the state Justice Department said Clark's bill would make state policy consistent.

Rep. Billy Clark, D-Cumberland, who introduced the bill, told the House Judiciary IV Committee it would "address past discrimination in such affairs."

Black businessmen were also optimistic about the changes the bill would bring.

"It may help put an end to the good old boy purchasing system," said Lewis Myers, assistant secretary of the state Department of Commerce in charge of minority business development. "Minorities and women have been subject to severe competitive disadvantages from many years of being out of the mainstream of business."

Contractor Phillip Cooper said all 15 subcontracts his company received since 1979 came because of federal mandates about minority involvement.

"The process of being independent is similar to learning to walk," he said. "You need a hand at first."

"You can't have a quota system that doesn't discriminate," said Jim Allison, an attorney representing the Carolinas Branch of the Association of General Contractors. "These are drastic measures and should be used only under unusual circumstances by Congress.

"The competitive bid process is hurt and the taxpayers pay for it," he added. "And this bill would open up an administrative nightmare. We have 456 municipal governments and 144 school boards ... each of which could have its own requirements."

He said that would be a deterrent for outside companies who might wish to bid on projects.

Eddie Williams of the N.C. Steel Erectors Association said he opposed the bill on the grounds of fairness.

"I feel strongly that none of us should just be handed something without having to bid competitively for it," he said.

In other legislative action:

Second Primaries

A bill that would reduce the number of state political party primary runoffs was voted down by a House subcommittee despite lobbying by the bill's sponsor, Rep. Ken Spaulding, D-Durham.

Spaulding said the current system which requires a candidate to receive more than 50 percent of the vote to avoid a runoff is "wasteful, archaic and irrational."

He is recommending that a candidate who receives more than 40 percent of the vote in the first primary be declared the winner.

Spaulding said his bill could substantially reduce the number of runoffs, saving money and encouraging the election of women and minorities.

"The current system thwarts the efforts of capable women and minorities to serve in high positions," he said.

Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, chairman of the House Elections Laws subcommittee, argued that second primaries sometimes draw greater participation than first primaries. He also said he had problems with any bill that would restrict the vote.

Reps. Robert McAlister, D-Rockingham, Bob Hunter, D-McDowell, and Ray Fletcher, D-Burke, voiced similar objections.

"When you go to a reduced percentage, you reduce that broad base of support," said Hunter.

"You eliminate a lot of qualified people from office," added Fletcher.

Involuntary Commitment

The House Mental Health Committee approved and sent to the House Judiciary III Committee a bill allowing the involuntary commitment of mental hospital outpatients.

The bill could make North Carolina the first state to let a judge commit someone without proving he is dangerous to himself or to society, said Lynn Gunn of the state Mental Health Study Commission.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, who introduced the bill for the commission, said it was designed to prevent the "revolving door" syndrome in which patients keep returning to mental hospitals after they fail to continue recommended treatments.

Lancaster, who chairs Judiciary III, said that panel would fully examine constitutional and legal issues before recommending it to the full House.

The bill would allow outpatients to be commited without legal counsel — a provision that bothers legal advocates for mental patients. It would also omit the current requirement that patients be dangerous before being committed.

Lancaster said the result would be more mental patients living safely in the community.

Deborah Greenblatt of Carolina Legal Assistance for the Mentally Handicapped told the committee the bill would merely "create a second revolving door."

"Someone would be committed based on a future prediction of dangerousness," she added. "Psychiatrists cannot predict dangerousness."

Notaries Public

The House State Government Committee approved a bill requiring notaries public to take a four- to five-hour community college course before being certified.

Secretary of State Thad Eure said the bill would help "clean up all the fraud that has occurred under the largely unsupervised process."

The committee also sent to a subcommittee a bill that would require licensing for hospices that care for terminally ill people.

Retarded Education

The House Mental Health Committee approved and sent to the Appropriations Committee a bill that would require the state to pay the cost of educating mentally retarded adults older than 18.

The program would cost about $3.5 million over the next two years if approved and would cover a wide range of classes at state community colleges.

House Action

The House approved a bill requiring that all counties have rest home advisory committees and sent it to the Senate for concurrence on amendments.

The House also approved a Senate resolution urging Congress to oppose federal tuition tax credits for private schools.

Rep. David Diamont, D-Surry, said tuition tax credits and the current decline in federal aid to public education would result in private schools in urban areas receiving twice as much as public schools.

"It's a bad education policy and a bad economic policy," he added.

Delinquent Taxes

The House Finance Committee established a subcommittee to study a bill that would increase the interest charged for delinquent property tax payments.

Rep. Ruth Easterling, D-Mecklenburg, said the increase — from 2 percent to 5 percent for the first month and from ¾ percent to 1 percent for each subsequent month — was needed to prod people who were profiting by keeping their money invested instead of paying taxes.

"Local government is becoming a loan agent for these people," said Ms. Easterling.

The bill was sent to a subcommittee chaired by Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake, which already is considering a bill that would boost the interest charged on delinquent taxes to 3 percent for the first month and 1 percent for ensuing months.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green appointed Sen. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg, to the Advisory Budget Commission, a panel that helps the governor prepare his proposed budget.

The commission membership recently was increased from 12 to 15 members.

House Speaker Liston Ramsey has appointed Reps. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, and Luther Jeralds, D-Cumberland, to the commission.

Gov. Jim Hunt has yet to name his appointee.

Amendments

Rep. Bertha Holt, D-Alamance, filed a bill to require that summaries of proposed constitutional amendments be published and made available to the news media at least 60 days before the election.

Nuclear Wastes

Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, filed a bill under which North Carolina and seven other southeastern states would cooperate on disposal of nuclear wastes.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina, which has already spent about $9.25 million controlling Carolina Beach erosion, should carefully consider requests for more money to protect the state's coastlines, a budget analyst said Tuesday.

Jim Newlin told the Joint Appropriations Subcommittee on Natural and Economic Resources that there is a request for another $975,000 in 1984-85 to maintain Carolina Beach.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will ask the state to contribute $1 million in 1986-87 for erosion control at Wrightsville Beach, followed by $192,000 a year after that for maintenance, he added.

He said the two New Hanover County projects could cost the state $517,000 a year in the future and urged the lawmakers to decide how much they should invest in the beaches.

Newlin also asked the committee to consider whether it wants to spend $400,000 to deepen a channel to accomodate a vessel in the state's 400th anniversary celebration.

Joe Grimsley, secretary of the Department of Natural Resources and Community Development, said several requests by coastal counties to levy a special hotel and motel room tax to pay for beach have been rejected.

But he said he believed controlling erosion was a good investment.

Newlin also asked lawmakers if they wanted to spend $400,000 next year to deepen the channel of water from Manteo to Wanchese — a move designed to accommodate a replica of a 16th century vessel to help celebrate the state's 400th anniversary next year.

But Newlin said the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers believes future economic development will justify the expense.

Sen. Melvin Daniels, D-Pasquotank, said the work on the channel would help local fishermen and boat traffic from a new marina.

Others were skeptical about the expenditure.

"Have we built a boat so big we can't get it out of the basin?" asked Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell. "I'm glad we don't do that but once every 400 years."

Beth Christensen, another legislative analyst, told the committee that federal money primarily used to administer the Coastal Area Management Act is being phased out.

She said federal funds of $1.2 million in 1981-82 will dwindle to $384,000 next year, and will disappear in 1984-85. As a result, state funding for the program will be increased from $218,000 in 1981-82 to $1.2 million in 1984-85, she said.

The total spent on the program will be $1.1 million in 1984-85 compared to about $1.5 million in 1981-82.

Several committee members suggested that the coastal land management program, which now affects 20 counties, needs to be extended to the rest of the state.

Sen. Joe Thomas, D-Craven, charged that the coastal counties have suffered because development in counties bordering them has not been limited. He said there is a double standard.

Many Pose For Playboy Camera

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Between 100 to 150 students, some seeking fame and fortune and others seeking a rare experience, posed for a Playboy magazine photographer at the University of North Carolina Tuesday.

Photographer David Chan snapped head-and-shoulders pictures of the women for the magazine's September pictorial feature "Girls of the Atlantic Coast Conference."

A recent advertisement announcing Chan's appearance at North Carolina and other ACC schools sparked protest from some students, with a few school newspapers refusing to run the ad.

However, the ad did appear in the University of North Carolina school newspaper, The Daily Tar Heel, and the response kept Chan busy on the first of his eight days' work at the conference schools.

"I'm interested in getting into modeling, and I thought it would be a good opportunity to get started," said Elizabeth Parker, 20, a junior from Morehead City. She said she had gained previous modeling experience by posing for art classes.

Fort Wayne Still Recalls 1982 Flood

By JOHN M. DOYLE
Associated Press Writer

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — The water and debris are long gone, but the memories remain a year after rising rivers forced 10,000 people from their homes and sparked a "children's crusade" to keep a flood from destroying this northern Indiana city.

After a brutal winter and an early thaw in 1982, the city's three rivers began rising, and by the week of March 14, Main Street looked like a canal and rowboats were the surest means of transportation.

Mayor Winfield Moses Jr. ordered high schools closed so students could help municipal workers and volunteers.

"My gosh, out they marched and stayed not only during school hours but through the night and the next day and refused to leave in dangerous moments," Moses said. "They stacked one million sandbags in a one-week period — 365,000 in a 24-hour period — to replace the Pemberton dike. It was just phenomenal."

The mayor later called the battle to save the Pemberton (Drive) dike on the city's eastside "The Children's Crusade."

"On Wednesday night out on Pemberton dike, the Army Corps of Engineers said it was just not possible to save it. It was sinking. When you touched it, it was like a sponge," he said.

Officials decided to evacuate the sandbaggers and let the area flood rather than risk lives.

"As we talked it over with the kids out there, they just absolutely refused to leave. They said, 'Give us a chance. It's not coming through yet.' They then pumped up the production of sandbags to 30,000 an hour. That hour, that day was the outstanding moment," Moses said.

The mayor plans to mark the flood's anniversary by unveiling a life-sized sculpture this week honoring the city's high school students and other volunteers.

The city of 170,000 mustered thousands of volunteers who stacked sandbags along the soggy dikes. President Reagan and Gov. Robert D. Orr flew in to survey damage that officials later estimated at $51 million. Reagan even hefted a few sandbags himself.

The city has recovered and is focusing on plans for an $8 million convention center and downtown mall instead of keeping alive memories of the flood, Moses said. But for some, a sense of loss remains.

"I have a sense of loss because I had to leave my house, not knowing what I'd be coming back to," said Andrea Davies, a resident of an area called Nebraska, where the flooding was the worst. "It didn't hit me right away. I think I was kind of numb when we first had to leave our home. It wasn't until I could get back and see what all the water had done that it upset me."

Mrs. Davies, 32, whose husband Robert was unemployed at the time, said her house sustained $3,000 in damage.

"I fear that it could happen again," she said.

"There's no concealing that people in Nebraska and those other areas that went under water will never be fully compensated for the damage that occurred in homes," Moses said. "Our responsibility is to make certain that they're protected and that it won't happen again."

The mayor said the dike has been raised at 15 sites around the city and there is city money available to complete reinforcing it in the Nebraska section.

At O'Sullivan's Italian Pub on Main Street, owner Frank Casagrande remembers the flood as a marathon effort to get the bar cleaned up for St. Patrick's Day.

"The Fort Wayne Rugby Club sand-bagged the place because this is their bar and they wanted to make damn sure they had a place to come to on St. Patrick's Day.

"We had four feet of water in the basement. Me and my partner Tod Davis were up 24 hours-a-day pumping out water," said the cigar-puffing Casagrande. "By Tuesday night (March 16) I decided we were going to open."

Some N. C. Forest Land's Sale Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government has targeted 71,358 acres or six percent of North Carolina's national forest land for possible sale to private interests.

But Gaylord Nelson, chairman of the Wilderness Society, is urging Congress to reject the Reagan administration's plan for the possible sale of up to six million acres of National Forest land.

Nelson called the proposal an "opening salvo in an unprecedented assault" by the administration on the forest system. He also said the plan represented asset liquidation, "clearly not asset management," and urged Congress to reject the proposal.

North Carolina's congressional delegation also will fight the proposal, said Brent Hackney, a spokesman for Gov. Jim Hunt.

"We're very concerned about it and we certainly reserve the right to oppose any action in Congress that would endanger national forest land in the upper part of the state. We're very skeptical about it."

The acreage includes 41,879 acres of the Uwharrie National Forest land; 1,908 acres in the Croatan National Forest; 18,167 acxres in the Nantahala National Forest and 9,403 acres in the Pisgah National Forest.

The Uwharrie Forest, which encompasses 46,767 acres, was a prime target for disposal of government land since it is scattered with privately owned tracts.

"That is a proposal to totally eliminate the Uwharrie forest," said James Dockery, chairman of the state chapter of the Sierra Club. "I am frankly stunned. It meets important public needs, principally for hunting and wildlife management and outdoor recreation."

The only section of Uwharrie not being considered for sale is about 4,500 acres of the Burkhead Mountain area, which has been designated for study as a wilderness area, protected from development, building of roads and use of motor vehicles.

However, Joseph Grimsley, secretary of the state natural resources and community development department, said sale of most of the forest would eliminate buffer zones designed to protect Burkhead Mountain.

Other criticism of the plan came from Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a presidential candidate.

"This is merely an attempt by the administration to take these lands out of the public domain where they can be enjoyed by all Americans and to sell them to rich property owners and corporate timber interests," Cranston said.

"The wealthy will be able to put up 'no trespassing' signs and close these national forests off to future generations," he said.

Overall, the potential sale represents 3.2 percent of the 190.8 million acres of public land in the system operated by the U.S. Forest Service.

None would be sold, however, until an "intensive study" is made of the land, which is scattered among 39 states from Florida to Washington.

"Under present plans, the intensive study of the six million acres to determine which are suitable for disposal will not begin until after authorizing legislation is passed," the Agriculture Department announced Tuesday.

"Details of how the studies will be conducted, including opportunities for public involvement, are being formulated," it said.

A Forest Service spokesman said the agency hoped to have the legislative package ready for Congress within one or two months.

The Forest Service said it found in a recent inventory that about 134 million acres of land in the system was unsuitable for potential sale and "will be added to the 51 million acres of national forest system areas already marked for retention."

"Selection of the six million acres for further study does not mean all those acres will be sold," it said.

Dean Assails Proposed Certification Changes

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Local school systems would be given too much authority under proposed rules to keep teachers working within their field of certification, a North Carolina State University educator says.

"As I see it, there would be no external quality check and the certification process would become a farce in too many cases," said Dr. Carl J. Dolce, dean of the university's school of education.

North Carolina is one of 15 states that has no policy prohibiting out-of-field teaching.

The state Board of Education voted earlier this month to hold a public hearing April 22 on new rules proposed by the staff of the state Department of Public Instruction. The board is expected to make a final decision in May.

Dolce advocates a system of temporary permits that could be issued in school systems unable to attract enough teachers in certain subject areas.

If a system continued to use teachers out-of-field when fully qualified instructors were available, the system should face a possible reduction in state funds, he said.

However, if the proposals are adopted, a person teaching a subject for more than half the day would be required either to hold a certificate in the subject or to be working toward the certificate.

A person teaching outside his subject area for less than half the day would have to have an endorsement in that area or be working toward an endorsement.

An endorsement would show the teacher had certain skills to teach the subject and was being recommended by a local committee appointed by the superintendent.

In evaluating a person's qualifications, the committee could consider several factors but no specific requirements are mandated by the rules.

"We're not equipped with enough people to cover the classes to be taught," said State Superintendent A. Craig Phillips. "Endorsement is a way to provide a clearer description of that teacher's qualifications. To imply the endorsement is an effort to water down the need for credentials is just the opposite of what it is."

Library Not For Campus

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — The University of California-Irvine campus has been crossed off the list of potential sites for the Nixon Presidential Library, university officials say.

Academic Senate Chairwoman Marjorie Casario called the decision by representatives of former President Richard M. Nixon "disappointing," and said she planned to send a letter of explanation to faculty members Tuesday.

The Richard M. Nixon Archives Foundation notified university Chancellor Daniel Aldrich last Thursday that "because of time constraints," the campus would no longer be considered as a potential library site, said Assistant Chancellor Ramon Curiel.

Nixon's representatives told Aldrich that they wanted to approach Congress by May for funds to operate the library, which will be built with private funds at whatever site eventually is selected.

To meet that deadline, the university's proposal required approval by the UC Board of Regents this week, said Vice Chancellor William Lillyman.

But faculty members wanted more time to study the proposal.

With the rejection by the Nixon group, Aldrich told the committee to discontinue its study, Curiel said, although the university still is interested in being the library's site.

Duke University in Durham, N.C., had been considered as a site for the library, but some faculty and staff objected and the issue is still in limbo.

New Device For Resuscitation

NEW YORK (AP) — A new resuscitation device for use by ambulance technicians could save the lives of many of the 300,000 Americans who have heart attacks outside hospitals each year, the manufacturer says.

The Heart Aid machine can automatically diagnose a heart malfunction and deliver an electric shock if necessary to correct the organ's rhythm, officials of Cardiac Resuscitator Corp. of Wilsonville, Ore., said Tuesday at a news conference.

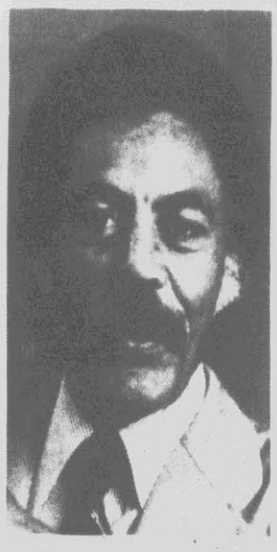

The device is intended for use in combination with cardiopulmonary resuscitation, said Dr. Alred Aronson, the company's medical director.

UNDERMINED

PEKING (AP) — A flow of underground water undermined the mountain that collapsed last week in northwest China, killing 277 people, the official Xinhua news agency says.

HEART SURGERY — Barbara Bel Geddes, who plays the mother of the villainous J.R. Ewing on "Dallas", was reported in stable condition in a Los Angeles hospital after quadruple bypass surgery for a massive heart attack. "Miss Ellie" suffered the heart attack Tuesday morning at the hospital after she was admitted Saturday complaining of chest pains. (AP Laserphoto)

INVESTIGATION — The House ethics committee has informed Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif., that he and his staff are under investigation for allegations of purchase and use of marijuana and cocaine, CBS News said Tuesday night. (AP Laserphoto)

Auditions For Summer Shows Slated Saturday

ECU News Bureau

Local auditions for the 1983 season of the East Carolina Summer Theater have been set for Saturday in Room 206 of ECU's Messick Theater Arts Center. Auditions will be held from 1 to 5 p.m.

More than 100 actors, singers, dancers and technicians are being sought for the season, which will include productions of "Pippin" (July 4-9); "A Little Night Music" (July 11-16); "No, No, Nanette" (July 18-23); and "They're Playing Our Song" (July 25-30).

Performers will be hired by the show, or for the entire season, with rehearsals to be begin June 19 in Greenville.

Auditioning singers should bring music and prepare a song of their own choice which shows the voice to best advantage. An accompanist will be provided — no "a capella" singing will be permitted.

Dancers should bring rehearsal clothes and shoes (including tap) and will be given standard routines by the choreographer. Technicians should bring a resume with letters of reference for an interview.

A number of apprentice positions will also be available.

Further information about the auditions is available from Scott Parker, Summer Theater general manager, at 757-6390.

Other auditions have been held or are planned at the N.C. School of the Arts in Winston-Salem, the Institute of Outdoor Drama, Chapel Hill, the Southeastern Theater Conference, Savannah, Ga., and the Theater in the Park, Raleigh.

GULPED THEM ALL

DURHAM, England (AP) — A lovesick 20-year-old convilct swallowed 14 bedsprings after his girlfriend snubbed him, the top-security Frankland Prison says. The inmate, not identified, gulped all the half-inch diameter springs he could pull from his bed Tuesday, a spokesman at the prison said.

Overnight News Watchers A Difficult Count To Achieve

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Reuven Frank has some unscientific evidence on who's watching overnight news. "We get a fair number of letters at that hour from nursing mothers," says the president of NBC News.

And at least one regular viewer of CBS' "Nightwatch" (2-6 a.m. EDT) manages to watch between servings of ham and eggs. "You keep me awake because (it) is slow this time in the diner," writes a pen pal from the Triangle Diner in Wingdale, N.Y. "I tried to call many times. Please call me."

One can assume that babies, their bleary eyed parents, griddle jockeys and other overnight workers are viewers (well, at least the set is on) of the relatively new news programs in late-night: "Nightwatch," "NBC News Overnight" and ABC's "The Last Word."

But accurately tracking the late-night audience is difficult. The A.C. Nielsen Co., which offers reliable ratings the rest of the day, is less confident of its overnight measurements.

Although the meters tick in Nielsen's 1,250 sampling homes throughout the night, the ratings service isn't sure whether the television set is being used as a night light or whether people have nodded off in front of it. And Nielsen can't double-check by phoning viewers at 3 in the morning.

So, besides conventional measurement techniques, letters and viewer phone-ins from the late-night audience help establish who the viewers are.

A special Trendex study of 919 "Newswatch" viewers offered a variety of reasons for watching overnight news: It's on at work; the viewer is up with the baby; the viewer wakes up, can't sleep or wants to be up; the viewer returns from work and watches for entertainment, or wants to catch up on the news.

Jack Smith, director of news research for CBS, estimates that "Nightwatch" is seen in about 920,000 homes, or by a million viewers each night — figures based on an average Nielsen rating of 1.1 for the four-hour period, which means about 1 percent of the nation's TV homes is watching.

In Los Angeles and Philadelphia, the rating has climbed to 3. Why Los Angeles? "I suspect there are a lot of aerospace and second-shift workers in Los Angeles," says Smith. Why Philadelphia? "I have no idea," he says.

The viewer profile that Smith has assembled, as well as the one prepared by ABC for its faltering "The Last Word," coincides with the belief that a high percentage of late-night viewers are second-shift factory workers. The "Nightwatch" audience skews toward the 35-54 age group working in the big cities.

Smith believes many overnight viewers are computer operators, airline pilots, aerospace workers, policemen, firefighters, hospital staffers and restaurant workers.

Among audiences watching "Nightwatch," the 35-54 group has the highest rating — a 1.6, compared with 1.2 for 18-34 and 0.5 for 55 and older.

In contrast, the 55-and-over group has the highest rating among demographic groups watching all three networks' earlier evening newscasts. "Retired people don't have to stay up all night to catch the news," says Smith.

But those who stay up are knowlegeable and well-informed, says Bob Ferrante, executive producer of "Nightwatch."

"At first I thought our audience was just the strange crowd," he says. "But the callers are just too informed for me to believe that anymore."

For example, when "Nightwatch" did a piece on convicts, the bulk of the callers were ex-cons. "A lot of viewers see us as a comfortable companion," says Ferrante. "This is their prime time."

After five months and 120 broadcasts, Ferrante has activated his seven-second-delay cut-off button only once. "We get very few crank calls," he says. "Callers have to pay for the call, and they often hold on for 20 minutes."

Which is just another way to kill time overnight.

How Tar Heel Representatives And Senators Voted

Roll Call Report Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes March 3-9.

HOUSE

SOCIAL SECURITY The House passed, 282 for and 148 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1900) designed to keep the Social Security System solvent at least until the mid-21st Century.

The least controversial section of the bill would raise at least $135 billion for the Social Security trust funds over the next several years in order to eliminate the short-term deficit.

In part, the short-term solution would accelerate already-scheduled tax hikes, curb and delay beneficiaries' cost-of-living increases, and make Social Security mandatory for members of Congress, federal judges and new federal civil servants.

The most disputed section of the bailout addresses the staggerng post-2000 deficit expected because lengthening life spans combined with declining birth rates will make Social Security top-heavy with beneficiaries. The bill seeks to solve the "demographic problem" chiefly by gradually raising the retirement age from 65 to 67, beginning in 2000.

Support Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., called the bill a compromise that "evenly distributes the pain that is the price we must pay for reform."

Opponent Michael Barnes, D-Md., objected to including new federal workers in Social Security, saying this means "federal retirement would become the single greatest disincentive to joining federal service."

Members voting yes favored the Social Security rescue plan.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Walter Jones, D-1, Tim Valentine, D-2, Charles Whiteley, D-3, Ike Andrews, D-4, Charles Britt, D-6, Charles Rose, D-7, W.G. Hefner, D-8, James Martin, R-9, James Broyhill, R-10, James Clark, D-11.

Voting no: None.

Not voting: Stephen Neal, D-5.

AGE By a vote of 228 for and 202 against, the House adopted a Social Security amendment (to HR 1900) that in the next century will raise the retirement age for full benefits above the present 65 years. Between 2000 and 2017, the age will rise gradually to 67 years. Early retirements still will be permitted, but at the expense of sharper benefit reductions than now apply.

The amendment, originated in committee by Republicans but backed on the floor by many Democrats, posed the key philosophical and political dilemma faced by the House — whether to save Social Security by emphasizing the old approach of higher payroll deductions that upset taxpayers or a new approach of structural change that antagonizes beneficiaries.

Supporter William Thomas, R-Calif., said "the basic problem...is that the American people's demographic pattern has changed."

Opponent Bill Richardson, D-N.M., said "the cold hard fact is, this amendment calls for a cut in benefits for future retirees."

Members voting yes wanted to gradually raise the retirement age next century.

Not voting: None.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill.

Voting no: Ike Andrews, Britt, Rose, Clarke.

Not voting: Neal.

TAX The House rejected, 132 for and 296 against, an amendment (to HR 1900) to eliminiate the 21st Century Social Security deficit by raising the payroll tax in 2010. Employees and employers each were to abosrb a .53 (point-five-three) percent tax hike on top of the 6.2 percent each will be paying at that time.

Supporter Thomas, O'Neill, D-Mass., said "each generation always has paid in American for the generation that has gone before them. Should we change the tradition? I say no."

Opponent Bill Archer, D-Tex., called the payroll tax hike "just another Band-aid."

Members voting yes wanted to eliminate the long-term Social Security deficit with higher payroll taxes paid by employers and employees.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Ike Andrews, Rose, Clark.

Voting no: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Britt, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill.

Not voting: Neal.

JOBS The House passed, 324 for and 95 against, and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 1718) appropriating $4.9 billion to create an estimated 1 million temporary jobs in the public sector. The bill also provides humanitarian relief for victims of the recession who are destitute, special funding of health services, and outlays for mass transit, home insulation for the poor, job training and other programs.

Supporter William Ratchford, D-Conn., called the bill "a signal to 12 million unemployed Americans, Americans on the edge of despair, that finally in Washington there will be the beginning of a movement that will put Americans back to work."

Opponent Norman Shumway, R-Calif., said "public works are a wholly inadequate way of fighting the problem of unemployment...this legislation will not have a direct impact on unemployment for a minimum of 18 months."

Members voting yes favored the bill creating public-sector jobs.

NORTH CAROLINA Voting yes: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Ike Andrews, Britt, Rose, Hefner, Clarke.

Voting no: Broyhill.

Not voting: Neal, James Martin.

SENATE

FLYING By a vote of 50 for and 42 against, the Senate failed to acheive the two-thirds majority needed to ratify an international treaty on damages paid as a result of airplane crashes. The U.S. thus rejected the so-called Montreal Protocals drafted in 1975.

The rejection was a victory for the trial lawyers' lobby and a defeat for the airline lobby. The treaty limits airline damage awards to crash survivors and relatives of victims to $320,000 per plantiff, while establishing essentially a "no-fault" assumption unless it can be proven in court that "willful misconduct" by the carrier caused the crash.

While giving up the chance for higher awards, U.S. plaintiffs would be freed of high legal fees and time- consuming trials in foreign courts.

Supporter Jon Danforth, R-Mo., said that without the treaty American travellers or their survivors would be left at the mercy of foreign courts.

Opponent Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. said it was wrong to deny by treaty the chance of American plaintiffs to obtain large damage verdicts.

Senators voting yes wanted to ratify the Montreal Protocols.

Those voting in North Carolina are John East, R, voted no. Jesse Helms, R, noted no.

Tricentennial For Immigrants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 300th anniversary of German immigration to the United States and the contributions those immigrants have made to the nation is being celebrated this year as the result of a proclamation signed by President Reagan.

More than 60 million Americans claim German descent, according to a 1979 Census Bureau report.

The "Tricentennial Anniversary Year of German Settlement in America" will be marked by a series of events and activities through the year in the United States and the Federal Republic of Germany.

The culminating event will be a banquet in Philadelphia Oct. 6, the anniversary and the site of the arrival of the first immigrants from Krefeld, Germany, in 1683.

Engineering Marvel Recalls A Story Of Lost Love

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer

HOMESTEAD, Fla. (AP) — A stonecutter's skill and 20 years of solitary labor contributed to the making of "Coral Castle" — a monument to one man's lost love.

How Edward Leedskalnin singularly quarried massive chunks of coral, carved them into pieces of furniture and moved them into place in an open courtyard surrounded by a stone wall continues to stump engineers three decades after his death on Dec. 7, 1951.

"Ed was a very private man and never allowed anyone to watch him work," said Bob Gross, manager of the site that attracts an average 75,000 visitors each year.

Leedskalnin did much of his work at night so others wouldn't learn how he mastered the science of physics and built his "castle" from perhaps 1,000 tons of coral, Gross said. Many of the stones he cut and carved are three times bigger than the largest used in the Great Pyramid of Egypt.

Scientists and engineers using computers remain unable to explain how this 5-foot-man, who never weighed over 120 pounds, was able to carve a 9-foot gate from a single slab of stone, stand it on end and find the exact center of balance so it can be opened or closed with one finger.

Leedskalnin called his place "Rock Gate Park" admitting it was inspired by his love for Agnes Scuffs, a 16-year-old girl he was engaged to marry in Latvia, once an independent nation on the Baltic Sea but now part of the Soviet Union.

However, "Sweet Sixteen" (as he referred to her throughout his life), rejected him the day before they were to be married in 1913, saying the 10-year difference in their ages made him too old for her.

Broken-hearted, Leedskalnin left his homeland and never returned. His travels took him to Canada and later to California and Texas. A touch of tuberculosis brought him to Florida around 1918 and two years later he bought an acre of land near Florida City. There he began carving his stone furniture in hopes "Sweet Sixteen" one day would join him.

In 1936, more people began moving to Florida City so Leedskalnin bought 10 acyes in a more isolated area near Homestead.

To haul the large carvings to his new home, Leedskalnin made a flatbed trailer from an old truck and asked a neighbor to drive it.

"Ed wouldn't even let his friend see how he picked up those stone pieces and put them on the trailer," Gross said. "He'd just tell him to come back in a couple days. When he did, the trailer would be loaded and Ed would then unload it at the new place only when he was alone and no one could see how he did it."

The coral furniture is placed in groupings around the open courtyard. These include a bedroom, bathroom, children's play area, dining room and even a throne room. There are no chisel marks on the furniture and the chairs, which weigh an estimated half-ton each, are contour-shaped and remarkably comfortable. Many are rockers and even a child has little trouble in making them sway back and forth.

His "throne room" contains a 5,000-pound rocking throne for him and a two smaller models which he said were for "Sweet Sixteen" and a child. Directly behind his throne, he placed the only uncomfortable chair in the place. He enjoyed telling visitors that one was reserved for the mother-in-law he never had.

Gross says he learned in 1980 that Leedskalnin's "Sweet Sixteen" was alive in Latvia and aware of the monument he built for her. But she never has seen it.

A Casket For Georgia's Fans

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A funeral home operator has a special package for University of Georgia sports fans who want to take their love of the Bulldogs with them — a red and black casket.

But Rick Williams, owner of Williams Memorial Chapel, said he doesn't really expect many sales.

"It's possible someone would want to use it, but I didn't buy it with the idea of selling it," Williams said. "It's a conversation piece more or less."

The 6½-foot casket, made by Rome Casket Co., is painted metallic red with black highlights, the Georgia school colors. The lining is white, and the "head cap" — or lid above the deceased person's head — is decorated with a glowering Bulldog.

Williams said he believes the Bulldog coffin has helped convince people that funeral homes can be something other than grim.

"I was afraid I'd get some negative responses, but people have been sort of glad to hear that they can get whatever they want," he said.

Chrysler Corp. Can Acquire Jet

DETROIT (AP) — A new Canadair Challenger jet that Chrysler Corp. can now purchase because of a profitable year is needed by the No. 3 automaker as "a business thing," a company spokesman says.

Chrysler had been barred from having a private plane by the federal Loan Guarantee Board, overseeing $1.2 billion in federal loan guarantees to keep the company afloat after it lost $3.27 billion from 1979 to 1981.

The company posted a $170.1 million profit last year, and Chrysler spokesman Bob Levine said Monday the board two weeks ago approved buying the jet, at an estimated $13 million.

Big Sales For Luxury Imports

DETROIT (AP) — The past year was not the best for major U.S. automakers.

The luxury import car story, however, had a different ending. Many foreign cars sold here posted sales records.

Graham W. Whitehead, Jaguar's chief of North American operations, reported the best sales year ever for the luxury cars produced in Coventry, England. Sales were 10,349 automobiles, up 120 percent from 1981.

Jaguar models retail in the U.S. for from $30,000 to $34,000.

Bridge Covered By Old Insurers

NOVATO, Calif. (AP) — The same company which insured construction of the Golden Gate Bridge in the 1930s now is covering a reconstruction project for the span.

A $52.4 million performance bond has been provided by Fireman's Fund Insurance Companies on the replacement of the deck on the 1.7-mile-long national landmark spanning the entrance to San Francisco Bay.

Heroin Rise Spurs Dread

By DOLORES BARCLAY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Heroin use is on the rise again, and a better quality drug at a lower price is threatening the nation with an increase in addict-related crimes and overdose deaths.

In some parts of the United States, authorities say the problem is already severe. "We're not in store for an epidemic. We're in the process already," said Commander Lawrence Forberg of the Chicago Police Department's Narcotics Division.

"It's economics," he said. "More people are becoming drug dealers because it's the only type of employment they can have right now.

"Right now, it's 8.2 percent pure. It was .001 percent pure in 1979," he said. "Our OD's (overdose deaths) have increased since 1979. It's very dangerous. We're quite concerned."

Pure heroin is rarely sold on the street. To increase the volume that can be sold, the white powder is mixed with sugar, starch or powdered milk to reduce purity.

In the past eight months, the federal Drug Enforcement Administration has discovered new drug networks from Pakistan and Lebanon and has noticed a higher quality drug coming from Mexico.

Before 1982, said Kevin Gallagher, chief of the DEA's heroin investigations section, Mexican heroin was inferior quality "brown heroin." Since June, he said, the DEA has had "dozens of instances of seizures of heroin running 60 percent to 90 percent pure. The Mexicans have discovered how to make better quality heroin."

"Pakistani heroin was not a problem until eight months ago," he continued. "The Pakistanis are controlling it and shipping directly to Pakistanis in the United States," specifically in Detroit, New York, Texas, Washington, D.C., and Los Angeles.

Lebanon is a new supplier, he said: "We discovered it in the past three months, since the hostilities there eased."

Heroin was first synthesized from morphine in 1874 in an effort by a German pharmaceutical company to create a pain killer that wouldn't cause addiction like morphine, a derivative of opium. It was two to three times as potent as morphine.

Heroin appeared commercially in the United States at the turn of the century and was hailed as a wonder drug. By 1920, it was being condemned as the nation's primary drug problem. In the 1950s, as illicit use kept growing, all existing pharmaceutical stocks of heroin were ordered destroyed.

In the 1960s and early '70s, the estimated heroin addict population increased from about 50,000 to 500,000, according to Dr. Robert L. DuPont, former director of the Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention and the National Institute on Drug Abuse. At the same time, crime rose.

NIDA is currently studying the correlation between crime and drug abuse. According to a 1975 DEA report, heroin users committed an estimated $3.9 billion worth of property crime in 1974.

The heroin epidemic did not abate until about 1977, when the DEA reported a downturn in availability, reduced purity and fewer heroin-related deaths.

The current number of heroin users in the United States can only be estimated, by counting people who enter treatment centers or pass through the criminal justice system. The government says there are 400,000 addicts, but most authorities place the number higher.

More than half the nation's heroin addicts live in New York. Many cluster in particular neighborhoods, selling and buying in the East Village or in Harlem along Eighth Avenue between 114th and 119th streets.

"The increased availability creates a law enforcement problem for us," said Inspector Dennis Ryan, head of the New York City Police Department's narcotics division. "It's bringing the addicts out into the open."

"We're in the midst of a heroin epidemic," added N.Y. Special Narcotics Prosecutor Sterling Johnson. "There will be more and more addicts and more and more crime and more and more rhetoric.

"We have everyone getting 'Mr. Big,' but no one has addressed that problem on 114th Street," Johnson said. "The Feds have not addressed themselves to the middle- or low-level pusher and haven't given us funds on the local level to do so."

Seizures of heroin and arrests over the years show a pattern, according to DEA statistics:

—1967: The old Bureau of Narcotics seized 265 pounds of heroin.

—1973: 1,483 pounds seized, 3,796 arrests.

—1976: 2,255 pounds seized, 5,349 arrests.

—1981: 332 pounds seized, 2,859 arrests.

—1982: 608 pounds seized, 2,282 arrests.

According to the National Institute on Drug Abuse, 930 of the 8,329 drug abuse deaths in 1981 involved heroin. In 1980, heroin was involved in 856 of the 3,825 deaths reported.

With today's increased purity levels, authorities fear that overdose deaths will climb.

"The addict who's been an addict for a number of years has been injecting heroin that was maybe 3 percent pure," Ryan said. "Now they're doing 8 percent pure. There has to be a chemical reaction, and they can die."

Edgar Adams, assistant director for statistics and epidemiologic analysis at NIDA, said many more people are showing up in emergency rooms for heroin abuse.

"There is a population of users who may have used heroin heavily at one point — maybe eight or 10 years ago — and then stopped or slowed down," he said. "With increased purity, these people may have OD'ed inadvertently because they lost the tolerance."

"We don't understand yet what forces combined to create the dramatic epidemic of the '60s," said the director of NIDA, Dr. William Pollin. "We don't know enough so we can say with any certainty that it won't happen again."

Receptionist Is Error Victim

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Pity the receptionist at Millerman & Millerman Insurance, who this year will get to answer calls for 12 businesses because of an error in the new telephone directory.

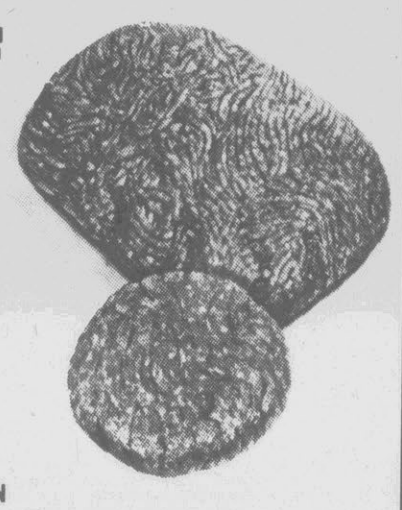

Southwestern Bell's 1983 Yellow Pages correctly listed Millerman & Millerman's telephone number — but then gives the same nunber for 11 other agencies in a joint ad by the Independent Insurance Agents of Abilene.

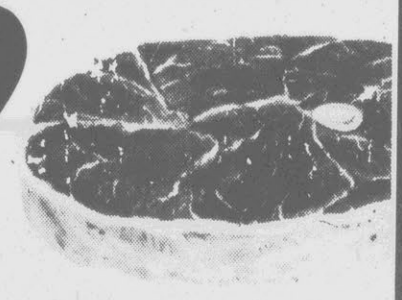

Southwestern Bell spokesman Jay Allen said Monday that the data was entered incorrectly either into a computer or at the book's printer.

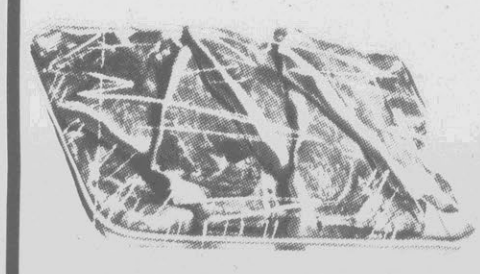

Nothing can be done about the numbers now, and the 12 insurance agencies will have their money refunded, Allen said.

Bankruptcy Killed Town

By DENNIS PATTERSON
Associated Press Writer

PARKEWOOD, N.C. (AP) — When the North Carolina Millstone Co. went bankrupt in the early 1890s, more than just a business disappeared from Moore County.

So did an entire town.

Overnight most of the several hundred residents of Parkewood rode into oblivion, and the booming town became Moore County's lost city.

"No one knows why they left or where they went to," said Thurman Maness, county historian for Moore County. "A few people stayed until their houses just fell down, but most took off.

"My daddy told me the workers just finished up one day and the bosses told them to shut everything down," Maness said. "The workers just rode off and left their houses and everything behind. Nobody knows where they went."

At least one theory on the company's bankruptcy and Parkewood's demise blames Ed Taylor for stocking the company store with merchandise that was too expensive for workers to buy.

Others say the town did not survive because a major investor refused to allow a church to be built in the community.

Historians say that in 1893 there was a statewide depression, where prices dropped so rapidly that businesses that couldn't cut their costs went under.

Whatever happened, the community came to an abrupt end.

"I came down here in a buggy in 1921, and the beds in the old hotel looked like somebody had just gotten up," said John Manness, Thurman's brother. "The quilts were thrown back, and the hotel register was still lying open on the front desk. If I remember right, the last man to register in the book was Will Myrick in 1883."

What remains of Parkewood is hidden in a dark valley just 50 yards off N.C. 22 near Carthage. No sign tells drivers they are passing a ghost town, but a worn spot at the side of the road shows where those who know its location have stopped to wander among the ruins.

Oak trees have grown up in the middle of the town's streets. Stone foundations for houses and workshops dot the ridges and valley floor, and in the underbrush broken pieces of shaped millstones mingle with sections of rotting planks.

The stone-walled basement of the old company store is all that's left of an emporium that was once the talk of the county.

"This was some place when it was operating," said Maness as he peered through the trees on what had once been the town's main street. "The first telephone line in the county ran from Parkewood to Cameron and Carthage. The company store was supposed to have had anything you could want to buy."

Below the company store, a line of foundations lead to the quarry where workers cut out blocks of conglomerite used for milling stones. The blue granite impregnated with chips of hard white flint first brought Lewis Grimm to Moore County to form the North Carolina Millstone Co. and found Parkewood in 1880.

Grimm had a novel idea for grist mills. He brought stonecutters, carpenters and masons to Parkewood and produced complete portable grist mills. The finished mills were hauled by wagon and oxen to the railroad depot at Cameron 30 miles away.

Grimm found the best mill rock was in the bed of a stream running through the valley. The stream still runs through the artificial channel workers dug out more than 100 years ago to divert the stream from their new quarry.

The quarry, however, has long since filled with water, and is now marked only by the piles of conglomerite boulders around it.

"Daddy told me they had about 70 working here at one time," said John Maness. "It was quite a place, with the hotel and store and so on.

"That hotel was a beauty," he said, "with two floors and about 20 rooms. The whole place was made out of heart pine. All gone now, though."

Grimm sold stock in his company and T.W. Stemmler became a major investor. Grimm later made George Taylor of Baltimore, Ed's brother, a full partner in the business.

But there is little more than legend to support the theories. The records only show that Stemmler purchased the property and machinery, but never reopened the business.

A caretaker was installed in one of the houses into the 1930s, but he could do little to prevent the vandalism and disappearance of the town.

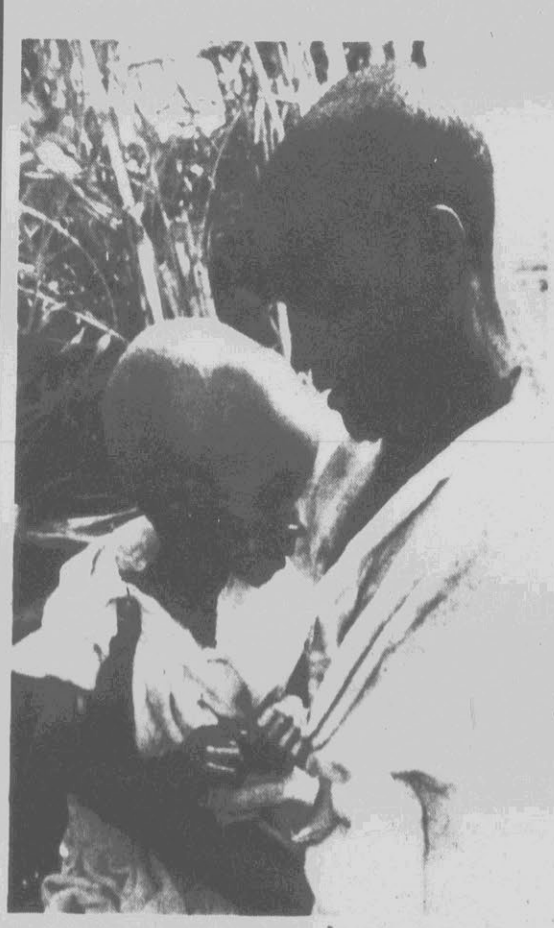

The property was purchased in the 1950s, and has been leased to a timber company.

In 1953, the nearby village of Hallison changed its name to Parkwood at the request of local residents, so the name — if not the town — would survive.

BLUE GRASS

DALTON, Ga. (AP) — Synthetic turf, originally intended to duplicate the look and feel of grass, was available only in the color green until recent years.

Today, consumers can choose from such colors as blue, red, brown, yellow, orange and black, as well as tweeds and other patterns, reports the Synthetic Turf Council.

Beaver Island Residents Endure Wintry Isolation

By MICHAEL McKESSON
Associated Press Writer

BEAVER ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — With a stiff winter wind blowing off Lake Michigan, the lighthouse on Beaver Island can't be seen through the falling snow. But when it's cold, there aren't many people looking.

Separated from the nearest mainland by 32 miles of water, about 350 full-time islanders enjoy their isolation.

"There's no place else as far as I'm concerned ... no robbery, no rape, no murders," says Bill McDonough, 21, who helps run the general store his grandfather opened in 1933. "We refer to this as our own place — the rest is the United States."

Even an underwater cable that carried power to the island for a decade wasn't missed after it was accidentally severed in December. An old generating system keeps the island's power alive.

They don't really need the cable, and the weather won't allow its repair until spring.

With 58 square miles of land, mainly forest, Beaver is the largest island on Lake Michigan. Its village, St. James, is its activity center.

The winter's snowfall has been light in northern Lower Michigan this year, but on the island the weather has been more severe, and the county plow has been working.

"This is the time we like it best," says Archie LaFreniere, who has lived here all of his 70 years. "You got security and you don't have the pressure of people running over the top of you."

In the summer, campers, cottage owners and tourists ride a ferry from Charlevoix. But now, when the weather keeps boats off the water, the island is quiet. There's no one in sight during a midday walk down St. James' main street, which rings the frozen harbor.

Between December and April, groceries, mail, medicine, machinery and anything else the island needs must be flown in. A charter air company makes the 15-minute trip twice on most days.

But when weather grounds flights, winter visitors get anxious.

"All they want to know is 'When can we leave?,'" says an islander passing time in the Shamrock Tavern, sometimes the only place an outsider can buy a meal.

For local residents, the physical isolation is a buffer against mainlanders with "their city ideas," LaFreniere says.

Isolation was what James Jesse Strang was seeking when he led his Mormon followers here in 1847 after a disagreement with Mormon leader Brigham Young. Strang's community, which crowned him king, displaced the Irish fisherman who had homes on Beaver.

By 1856, when the red-bearded, polygamous king was assassinated by two disgruntled followers, his flock had grown to 2,000 people.

But Strang's followers were driven from the island shortly after his death, according to island historians. The Irish returned, and the community prospered from lumber and fishing operations.

By the turn of the century, the population climbed again to about 2,000. Protected from the Great Depression by an abundance of Lake Michigan whitefish, the settlement thrived until after World War II, when overfishing and the lamprey eel depleted the bounty.

Sons and daughters of third-generation islanders were forced to the mainland to find work, and by 1950 the population dwindled to about 500. By 1960 it was down to 150, but during the next 10 years, vacationers discovered the island and created a new economic base.

Residents who earn a living from the tourists in the summer become jacks-of-all-trades when cold weather arrives. There is a little lumbering, a saw mill, some beaver trapping, some construction work and even fishing when the ice permits.

Only a handful of farms are still being worked in the warm weather. "They ran the soil pretty well out," says LaFreniere, recalling that the island had 40 active farms when he was a boy.

"This is our unemployment season, but it's our play time," says Barbara Rakowski, 35, superintendent, principal and one of five full-time teachers at the 65-student Beaver Island Community School.

Islanders describe their economy as "recession-proof." Officials at the Department of Social Services in Charlevoix say welfare statistics support the claim.

Four households receive payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and four receive food stamps, according to Doug McCombs, a spokesman for the department.

The island's slow growth creates pressure to leave.

"It's getting harder and harder for kids to stay here," said Tim McDonough, 26. His brother, Bill, was one of five graduates of the island school in 1979 — three of the others were his cousins and two of them have left.

But some transplanted mainlanders don't even want a taste of the world they left behind.

"They want a simpler life," said Ms. Rakowski, 35, an island convert. "There's a gentleness, a warmth, a greatness on this island you'll never find anywhere else."

DELIVERY BY AIR — Betty Welke, right, watches as her husband unloads a tray of bread from the small plane that brought it to Beaver Island, which has only 350 full-time residents. Most of the islanders' staples have to be flown in. (AP Laserphoto)

See Condominium Trend Near Campus

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Developers in the Carolinas say there's been an increase in condominium sales near college campuses as parents try to turn their students' college housing into a real estate investment.

Student condos are just starting to take hold around the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and at Clemson University in Clemson, S.C., with similar plans afloat at North Carolina State University in Raleigh and Duke University in Durham.

"Over the last six months or so, there's been a very, very definite upturn in the condo market around colleges," said A.C. Robbins of the A.C. Robbins Associates real estate firm in Chapel Hill.

At the heart of these new developments is economics — the belief, so far correct by developers, that people will grab the condominiums and calculations by parents that they'll get pleasing dividends on their investments.

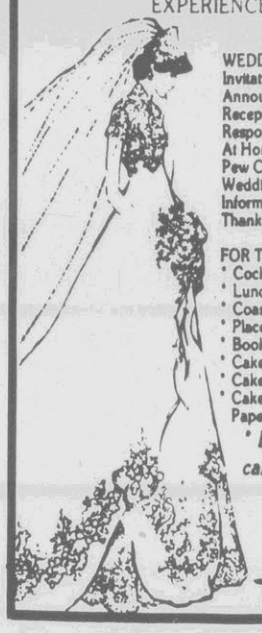

College officials at Duke, North Carolina, N.C. State, the University of South Carolina and Clemson say they have received frequent calls from condominium developers and investors recently, asking about possibilities.

One of the reasons is the housing shortages, both on and off campus, at several schools.

Burning Garbage For Energy Igniting Opposition

By DAVID STAATS
Associated Press Writer

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Burning garbage to produce energy once kindled the imagination of civic leaders as a solution to the mounting problems of urban solid waste disposal and scarce energy. Now it is igniting opposition across the country.

Last November, voters in at least two cities blocked construction of new recovery plants. Technical failures and financial problems plague many other completed plants.

"Resource recovery has a miserable record in this country of cost overruns, technical breakdowns and environmental problems," said Mimi Roberts, a member of the Berkeley (Calif.) Solid Waste Management Board and a proponent of a successful initiative that slapped a five-year moratorium on any garbage incinerator in the city.

"We kept looking for examples of a system that worked, to be some sort of model," she said. "We were hard pressed."

But manufacturers of garbage-to-energy plants still insist more will be built, as cities, particularly large ones, realize they have no other way to get rid of garbage.

"They make an energy source out of a nuisance product," said John Kehoe, of Wheelabrator-Frye Inc., a New Hampshire-based manufacturer of the plants. "And they're not violating the earth, as landfills (do)."

However, besides Berkeley, proponents have lost a battle recently in Oregon City, Ore., a Portland suburb, where voters blocked municipal plans for such a plant. And in New York, where city officials plan at least five resource recovery plants, angry citizens turned out at public meetings last year to protest placement of plants in their neighborhoods.

Unlike ordinary incinerators, resource recovery plants use heat from incineration to generate steam. The steam can be used either for heat or for propelling turbines to generate electricity.

But despite the criticisms, the environmental opposition is not united.

"None of the big national environmental groups has taken a position one way or the other, because resource recovery is an alternative to landfilling, which we're all opposed to," Ms. Roberts said.

Still, opponents of resource recovery cite some troublesome technical and financial history to support their case. They tick off failure after failure:

—In Bridgeport, Conn., a resource recovery plant closed in 1981 when its operator, Combustion Equipment Associates, Inc., could no longer pay its bills.

—In Hempstead, N.Y., a plant operated by Parson Whittemore Co. closed in 1980 because of serious odor problems and the discovery of dioxin, a hazardous chemical, in its stack emissions.

—In Eugene, Ore., county officials refused to accept a plant built by Allis-Chalmers Corp., until the company made a cash settlement. Officials said the plant's high ash output made its fuel unmarketable.

—Emissions from plants in Nashville, Tenn., and Saugus, Mass., failed to meet air pollution standards until expensive corrections were made in the late 1970s.

—Plants in Akron, Ohio; Chicago; Milwaukee; Tacoma, Wash., and Baltimore have faced difficulties ranging from low heat recovery to lack of cleanliness.

"They failed for technical, legal and financial reasons," said Neil Seldman of the Washington-based Institute for Local Self-Reliance. "As a result, we don't have much burning of garbage going on."

When discussing the success rate of resource recovery plants, some authorities distinguish between plant types. Some plants work better than others and many of the smaller plants are operating without major problems, federal officials say.

Two major processes have been used in this country's resource recovery plants.

The most common shreds garbage and sorts it, pulling out the burnable part to create a "refuse-derived fuel." It has been plagued by problems.

The second process, known as mass burning, simply feeds unsorted garbage onto a grate for burning. Nearly all of the 16 plants across the country listed by the U.S. Conference of Mayors as in the advanced planning stages would use this technique.

"Mass burning has a much higher success rate than anything else," Seldman said. "The Canadian government has even stopped research on refuse-derived fuel. It doesn't work."

Proponents, discounting past and present failures, say mass burning plants will prove the reliability and safety of resource recovery.

"These are the latest in technology, and they're environmentally safe," said Kehoe of Wheelabrator-Frye. "They make good neighbors."

John Charles, executive director of the Oregon Environmental Council, agrees that time is on the resource recovery industry's side. "The garbage has to go some somewhere," he said.

The future of resource recovery may depend on educating people to accept garbage burners as an alternative to landfills, viewed as environmentally unsound because of possible leaching of hazardous wastes into groundwater.

"People have been saying for the last 10 years that the industry is going to take off," said Christopher Kouts, a program manager in the Energy Department's resource recovery division. "It has never happened. But we're seeing projects happening nonetheless."

The Precious Gift of Sight

"To see a world in a grain of sand,
And a Heaven in a wild flower.
Hold infinity in the palm of your hand,
And eternity in an hour."

I have often quoted these lines of William Blake that offer a gentle and poetic tribute to the joys of seeing.

Only when sight no longer exists, can man fully understand the immensity of the loss of this priceless possession. For a fortunate few, this treasure is returned to transform a sunless, lusterless, colorless world into one filled with ecstatic happiness.

The return of the treasure of sight can be one human being's planned gift to another human being.

One of the truly miraculous accomplishments of modern medicine and surgery is the successful transplantation of the cornea from one person to another.

This delicate operation now performed by eye surgeons in major hospitals all over the world has evolved from a fantasy to a regularly repeated reality.

Thousands of people are once again blessed with vision because of the generosity of others who have contributed their gift of precious corneas for transplantation.

Many more thousands in various stages of blindness patiently wait for the treasured corneas that have been promised by unknown benefactors.

William Blake's poem and the promise of returned sight is a testimonial to a dear friend and colleague, Dr. R. Townley Paton, one of the founders and supporters of The Eye Bank for Sight Restoration.

This dedicated agency, founded in 1944, sought the generous people who would bequeath the tiny microscopically thin piece of eye tissue that spelled the difference between incapacitating blindness and serviceable sight.

The magnificent response of many benefactors has made this program a national one with eye banks in cities all over the United States.

Despite the gigantic expansion of this prograam, there is still a vast shortage in the number of available "gift corneas."

The banking of corneas has stimulated far-reaching research aimed at restoring sight in many types of blindness previously accepted as being incurable.

There can hardly be a greater example of humanitarian philanthropy than the unselfishness of those who leave behind the gift of sight as a living testimonial of man's devotion to man.

Those interested in learning more about the Eye Bank should write to The Manhattan Eye, Ear and Throat Hospital at 210 East 64th Street, New York, N.Y. 10021.

Builders Expect An Active Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — A nationwide poll of contractors and builders predicts an increase in construction projects in 1983.

The market survey by Associated General Contractors of America, a trade group representing 32,000 construction industry firms, shows that declining interest rates and the underlying strength of private construction markets will cause a rise in construction.

The largest hike in volume, says H.C. Heldenfels, AGC president, is expected by commercial builders who foresee an 11.3 percent jump in their 1983 construction volume. Utility construction needs of local government are expected to rise 7.1 percent, according to the study, while heavy industrial construction, such as dams, ports, locks, levees, railroads and mass transit facilities, should increase 3.8 percent.

Baby Bonus Unlikely To Be Abolished

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer—

TORONTO (AP) — Once a month, every Canadian mother finds a government check in the mail, a token of the country's appreciation for her efforts in bringing up the next generation.

When the first family allowance checks were sent out in 1945, the government said they would boost the economy, help the poor and recognize the role families play in Canadian society.

Opponents said the real idea was to keep the Liberal government in power. If so, it worked.

But whatever the reason for its birth, the "baby bonus" has grown up to be so popular it is unlikely any political party would even think out loud about tampering with the program.

"Family allowances became in time, if you'll forgive the pun, a motherhood issue," says Ken Battle, director of the National Council of Welfare, a panel of citizens set up to advise the welfare ministry.

In early March, the council recommended an overhaul of Canada's general approach to benefits for children under 18, but urged the government to keep its hands off the baby bonus.

"A government which tampered with the principle of universal payment would risk alienating a large segment of the electorate, and an opposition party which advocated repeal of universal family allowances might lose more votes than it would gain," the council warned.

The report proposed scrapping the existing income tax exemption for parents, which it said "makes no sense as a social program" because it gives higher benefits to those who have higher taxable incomes.

With the $900 million from the tax exemption, the council proposed increasing the existing child tax credit, which favors the poor.

Under the current scheme, even Canadians who pay no taxes receive the maximum credit of $279 as a refund. For those who earn more than about $23,000 the size of the credit diminishes and eventually disappears.

By getting rid of the exemption, Canada could nearly double the tax credit while keeping the baby bonuses intact.

The council's proposals won immediate endorsement from Monique Begin, the federal minister of health and welfare, who said they were "very much according to my heart." She said she would urge Finance Minister Marc Lalonde to consider the recommendations.

Family allowances are paid each month to 3.6 million parents on behalf of nearly 6.7 million children under the age of 18.

In eight of the 10 provinces, parents receive $23 per child each month.

The average payment is the same in the other two provinces, Alberta and Quebec, but they prefer to make payments for older children slightly larger, while those for younger children are smaller.

Quebec parents also get higher payments as more children are born, encouraging larger families.

The baby bonus checks are sent out in the name of the mothers — except of course in households headed by single fathers — making the family allowance program especially popular among women.

Joan Eddis-Topolski, a spokeswoman in the Health and Welfare Ministry, says homemakers — even those whose husbands make good wages — appreciate having a source of money they didn't have to ask for.

For some mothers, Ms. Eddis-Topolski said, the baby bonus check "is the only recognition she has."

In its report on Canada's child benefits programs, the National Council of Welfare said a proposal to cut off the family allowance to rich families could make more than $300 million available to improve benefits to the poor.

But the council says even a limited cut in the program "could prove a political liability that might haunt a political party at the next election."

On a more idealistic note, the panel said, "Universal family allowances recognize the value our society places on child-rearing."

That Degree Is Worth Up To $300,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youngsters debating whether to go to college may want to consider a new government study that shows a degree can add more than $300,000 to lifetime earnings.

Men with college degrees increase their potential earnings by $329,000, the Census Bureau reports, while for women the sheepskin is worth about $142,000.

But Census officials cautioned against comparing the figures, noting that there are many reasons why men earn more than women.

The earnings were given in terms of 1981 dollars, and were calculated by using surveys of Americans' income for the years 1979, 1980 and 1981, the bureau reported.

According to the study, today's 18-year-old man who gets a bachelor's degree can expect lifetime earnings of $1,190,000, compared to earnings of $861,000 for a man with a high school diploma. Earnings for a man who doesn't complete high school would be $601,000, according to the study.

A woman in the same age group can expect earnings ranging from $381,000 with a high school diploma, compared to $523,000 with a bachelor's degree. Without high school she would expect to earn only $211,000.

Census Director Bruce Chapman cautioned that "It is improper to compare the estimates for men and women without accounting for the significant differences in amount and continuity of previous work experience, and in other important characteristics, between men and women."

John F. Coder, author of the study, said there are "lots and lots" of reasons for the difference between the earnings of men and women. Coder, chief of the bureau's Current Income Statistics staff, said time in the work force and generally lower pay for women are the most important reasons women earn less. He noted that the Bureau of Labor Statistics estimated that the average man works for 38 years, compared to 28 years for women.

The study also noted that women with a two-to-four year break in work experience averaged 13 percent lower annual earnings, and those who had taken a five-year break had 19 percent less income on average.

Traditionally, women were more lilkely to interrupt their work experience during childbearing periods, but Chapman said statistics were not available to calculate exactly how many do so.

Coder's report noted that the effect of salary discrimination cannot be determined with the figures available. He said income statistics between men and women should only be compared for persons with the same educational backgrounds, occupations and previous work experience.

The overall figures in the study include all individuals, whether they work full or part time or not at all.

Symposium

RALEIGH — A symposium entitled "Architects-Women-Women Architects" will highlight events scheduled by the North Carolina State University student chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

The symposium will be held Saturday in the NCSU School of Design Auditorium. It will open at 10 a.m. and is open to everyone. Tickets are $7 for the public, $5 for students, and $4 for members of student chapters of AIA.

For reservations or more information, call 737-2206.

Lowe's Pricing Policy:

Many items in this catalog are accompanied by a reference retail price. The reference is intended as a guide to the range of retail selling prices in our area, and may be useful in identifying different items from the same manufacturer. An item's reference retail price is either the manufacturer's suggested retail price or our determination of its full retail value based on prices at which it or similar merchandise is offered by principal retailers (department stores, specialty shops and other non-discount sellers) in our selling area. While we believe our reference prices do not appreciably exceed the highest retail prices at which sales are made in our selling area, we cannot assure you that the reference retail prices described above represent the prices in every community on any given day. Some items in this advertisement are listed at "regular" selling prices. The merchandise is offered at this price except during a special sale. The purpose of showing a reference retail price (or a regular price) is to assist you, our customer, in making a better informed buying decision. We suggest you also do comparative shopping. (Prices in this catalog do not include delivery charges. Ask us about delivery rates.)

Lowe's Raincheck Policy: If we sell out of an advertised item, we'll issue you a raincheck. When we restock, you'll be notified so you can buy at the previously advertised price (except for products marked "Limited Quantities"). Our smaller stores may not stock all advertised items. But every item shown here can be ordered for you.

Home Center of the Year — 1982 Award Winning Program

The designer's touch... yours for the asking

Dramatic home decorating is more than cans of paint and rolls of wallpaper. It's a flair that results in elegant family living. That kind of professional help is usually expensive. But at Lowe's, it's yours for the asking. Our interior designer sifted through the thousands of items in our Home Decor Center and blended color, pattern and texture into exciting decor schemes. These "snapshots" show what's possible using our Home Fashion panels as guides.

The Devon, Used for Bath Above

The Heritage, Used for Kitchen Above

Choose from 12 Home Fashion Panels

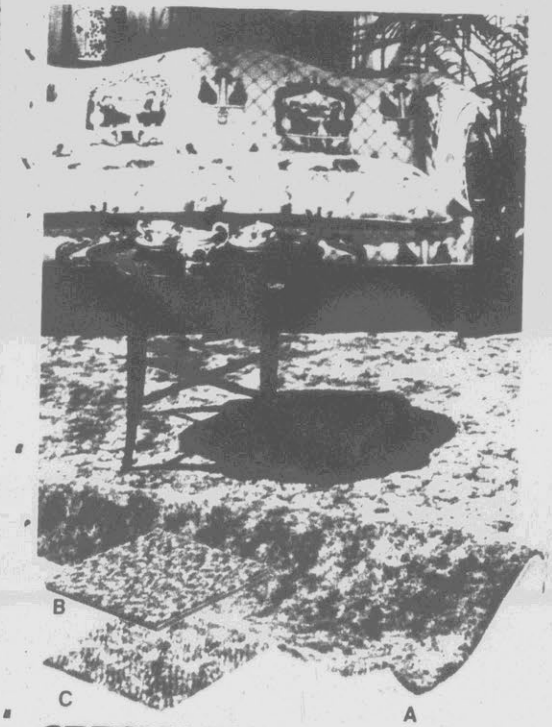

Each of the 12 panels holds samples of brand name paint, flooring, carpet, wallcovering and laminate — all harmoniously blended. At a glance, you'll know what to expect. That's important, because when decorating, you want predictable — and beautiful results. The moods range from contemporary to country to traditional. You can coordinate your home in the same style or boldly combine several. Come visit Lowe's Home Decor Center, see and touch the panels and ask for more details. Then begin enjoying a beautiful home!

SPRING ARRIVALS ON SALE 29.99

The dress spirit is back.

Orig. $46. What's the news in fashions for Spring? Rediscovering the dress. Clearly feminine. Always appropriate. And these are all on sale at one great price. Styles that work for work. And stay in style overtime. Like singular sensations of poly/rayon for the classic look of linen. And we can top that, too. With jackets. Perfect partnerships to suit your style beautifully. All these pay attention to detail, too. Like tuck front, ties, pleats and more. For misses' sizes. At 29.99 each, it's easy to catch the spirit!

20% off Sheer Toes Control Top™ pantihose.
