GREENVILLE, N.C. FRIDAY AFTERNOON, MARCH 18, 1983

JUST THE RIGHT WEATHER FOR DUCKS ... With all the rain many Pitt Countians have begun to believe the standard dress is a rain coat and boots. Most hope the rain will cease and the weekend will see the return of sunshine. Here the Green Mill Run has water nearing the overflow level on its banks at Green Springs Park. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Despite Heavy Precipitation, No Flooding Problem For Pitt

Although Pitt County didn't get the three inches of rain that was predicted Thursday night for eastern North Carolina, it did get a soaking.

Over an inch of rain — 1.10 inches according to Greenville Utilities' measurements — fell late Thursday and early today. This morning periods of heavy rain continued, pushing the level of the Tar River to eight feet on the National Weather Service Gauge.

Despite the precipitation, no serious flooding was reported this morning by local public works and transportation departments.

"It's been just like any other rain," said Greenville Public Works Director Mayo Allen, "a little washout here and there but nothing serious as of this morning."

Allen said he felt Greenville's drainage system was "working very well for the amount of rain we've had."

C.L. Haislip of the North Carolina Department of Transportation said this morning his department didn't know of any specific problems brought on by the deluge.

"For the past month we've had considerable problems on our soil roads," he said, "and I imagine the rain today is adding to them (problems). They (the dirt roads) are just not able to dry out enough for us to work on them."

Wet fields have some farmers behind schedule, said Pitt Extension Agent Roger Cobb, but late tobacco beds have lessened the problem.

"Our tobacco beds are coming slower this year and our farmers are not as pushed as in past years," he said. "Otherwise, the wet fields would be more of a problem to most folks."

Cobb said the rain could also delay farmers waiting to fumigate fields with multipurpose chemicals. Up until Thursday, he added, most farmers were working in the fields.

Sees Funding As A Continuing Problem

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

Funding will continue to be a major concern of Greenville and cities across North Carolina, according to Morganton Mayor Andrew M. Kistler II.

Kistler is president of the North Carolina League of Municipalities, an organization whose purpose is to maintain and promote common interests of its member municipalities. He met with 115 eastern North Carolina municipal representatives to discuss the future of small towns and cities at the Ramada Inn in Greenville Thursday night.

The fate of North Carolina cities lies in the hands of federal and state government, Kistler said.

"On the national level, there are several bills under consideration, one of which is the re-enactment of general revenue sharing. If the bill is not passed it could mean an increase of 13 to 23 percent in property taxes," Kistler said.

The bill, part of the presidential budget, does not call for any increases from 1981-82 figures. "It is set at a flat rate of ($4.2 billion)," Kistler said.

Should the bill be passed, North Carolina cities would receive $27 million and $60 million would go to North Carolina counties.

"We feel pretty good about the bill's passage in the Senate, but we are not so sure about the House. We will probably see more of a struggle over re-enactment there, so cities and counties should contact their senators and representatives through personal letters," Kistler said.

At this time, Greenville is receiving approximately $600,000 a year in revenue sharing funds, according to City Manager Gail Meeks. "If that program is not re-enacted, we would receive our last payment September of 1983, meaning that we would lose $300,000 in the next year's budget. The following year we would lose about $600,000," Ms. Meeks said.

"Right now we are using our revenue sharing to operate our portion of Sheppard Library and our share of the Pitt-Greenville Airport Authority," Ms. Meeks said. Revenue-sharing funds are also used to support the city's public transportation program, for buying capital equipment like police cars, garbage trucks and rescue vehicles, and is used to pay for street resurfacing and drainage.

In past years, revenue-sharing funds have been used to support projects such as building the fire rescue station on Memorial Drive, the municipal swimming pool and the bath house, joint recreation facilities and the library building at Jaycee Park. In 1973-74-75 a major street resurfacing program was paid for with revenue-sharing funds.

Wholesale Prices Rose Slightly During February

By SALLY JACOBSEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices rose a slight 0.1 percent in February as the steepest food price jump in 10 months cancelled out fresh declines in gasoline and fuel oil costs, the government said today.

The small rise in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for finished goods, coming after a record 1 percent drop in January, bolsters economists' predictions that the wholesale inflation rate might be down substantially from last year's moderate 3.5 percent.

Indeed, one economist predicts the year's inflation rate could be as tiny as 0.1 percent, which would be the economy's best showing since the 0.2 percent decline of 1963.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes called the new report "more good news on the economy."

"We have made substantial progress in the fight against inflation," he said.

The lackluster income report was likely to give little comfort to analysts who have said they would feel better about the economy's prospects for rebounding from the serious recession if consumers were making more and spending more than in recent months.

In the February price report, the department said energy costs overall fell 2.9 percent, the third straight monthly decline. Energy prices fell a record 4.2 percent in the previous month.

Fuel oil prices were off 7.2 percent, the new report said, after plummeting 9.7 percent.

Gasoline prices fell 5 percent, outpacing the previous 3.3 percent drop.

But natural gas prices, down a record 2.7 percent in the previous month, rose 3.2 percent in the new report. Those prices had soared 20.7 percent in all of last year, largely as a result of congressional decontrol of new-gas costs.

The energy price calculations reported today were actually for January and do not reflect any drops brought about by OPEC's recent $5 a barrel cut in its base price for crude oil. Energy price calculations always lag a month behind the rest of the index.

In its new report, the department provided these other details on February price changes:

—Food prices overall rose 0.6 percent, the sharpest monthly jump since the 1.6 percent increase of last April. Food prices fell 0.2 percent in January.

Fish prices last month surged 8.8 percent, after tumbling 4 percent in January. Beef and veal prices rose 1.3 percent, matching January's gain, while dairy product prices rose 1 percent, ahead of the 0.2 percent rise of the previous month.

Poultry prices were up 0.9 percent after falling 1.6 percent in the previous calculation. Pork prices fell 1 percent after a tiny 0.1 percent increase in January and vegetable prices were off 0.3 percent after rising 0.6 percent in the previous month.

Little Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans' personal income rose a slight 0.1 percent last month, and consumers increased their spending even less, the government reported today. Both figures were down from lackluster showings in January.

Although government officials and private analysts say they are confident recovery from the 1981-82 recession is under way, they also say they would feel better about economic prospects if consumers were making and spending more than they have in recent months.

The new report was likely to provide little comfort in that area, details said:

—Total personal income rose to an annual rate of $2.643 trillion in February after rising 0.2 percent the previous month.

With inflation still low in February, it was still possible that income kept pace with prices of goods and services. The Labor Department said today that wholesale prices rose only 0.1 percent last month, and the government's Consumer Price Index for February is due next week.

—Disposable, or after-tax, income rose less than 0.1 percent to an annual rate of $2.24 trillion last month after rising 0.3 percent in January.

—Personal consumption spending — just about all expenditures except interest payments for purchases on credit — also rose less than 0.1 percent to an annual rate of $2.054 trillion. Such spending had risen 0.6 percent in January.

—There was a 0.4 percent decrease to an annual rate of $124.5 billion for new savings. That put the national savings rate at 5.6 percent of disposable income, the same as in January.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

New Hearing Date

A preliminary hearing scheduled for today for Dwight Parker Sr. of Newark, N.J., who is charged with the double murder of a Grifton minister and a Goldsboro man in February, has been rescheduled for March 25.

District Court Judge Robert Wheeler set the new date for the probable cause hearing here this morning after appointing counsel to represent Parker in the murder case.

Parker, 23, is charged with murder in the deaths of the Rev. Leslie L. Thorbs, 31, and Anthony Ray Herring, 27. The weighted bodies of the two men were pulled from the Tar River in the Falkland area in late February after they had been reported missing several days earlier. Authorities said both men died of gunshot wounds to the head.

A Route 4, Greenville, woman, Carolyn Pippins, was arrested during the investigation and charged with being an accessory after the fact of murder in the deaths of Thorbs and Herring.

Ms. Pippins waived her preliminary hearing on the accessory charges this morning. Her case will be scheduled for the next session of the Pitt County grand jury.

Medical Community Is Rallying To Oppose Psychiatric Hospital

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The medical community of Greenville is waging an attempt to block a bid by a Macon, Ga., firm to construct a 65-bed psychiatric hospital here.

Charter Medical Inc. has applied for a certificate of need for the hospital, which it says will serve mainly adolescents. Hospital officials maintain the private facility is not needed as Pitt County Memorial Hospital already has plans under way to expand its number of psychiatric beds.

The hospital board of trustees and the PCMH medical staff have adopted resolutions opposing the move.

"We feel our resolution is in the best interest of the people of Pitt County and eastern North Carolina," hospital board chairman G. Henry Leslie said. "We at Pitt Memorial keep our fingers on the pulse of the medical community to know its facility needs. Our Facilities Needs Committee has studied the need for more psychiatric beds thoroughly and we are in the process of preparing for 36 additional beds, some of which will be used in the psychiatric area.

"We strongly feel that any addition of private psychiatric beds in this community would result in division of the use of the hospital by persons having third party and private means of paying for services. Pitt, which is very proud of its record of serving all the people regardless of ability to pay, would be faced with greatly increased usage by charity patients. This would not be in the best interest of the taxpayers or the patients."

The psychiatric staff of the hospital is in agreement with the board, Department Chairman James Mathis said. He said these physicians have been active in the planning of the expansion of the Psychiatric Unit of the hospital. These additional beds, coupled with the fine care provided in the 44 beds available to Pitt County patients at Cherry Hospital, Goldsboro, make the need extremely hard to see, Dr. Mathis said.

Hospital president Jack Richardson said a number of representatives of the hospital and the medical community will be speaking or available to answer questions during a public hearing by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency, Tuesday at 6 p.m. at the Willis Building, corner of First and Reade streets here.

The proposed hospital is expected to cost between $6 and $8 million. There are Charter hospitals in Greensboro and Winston-Salem and one is approved in Raleigh.

William Earl (Bill) Clifton, 30, believed by his family to be living in Greenville, is asked to contact his mother or sister. His father is undergoing lung surgery in Maryview Hospital in Portsmouth, Va., Tuesday and he is needed by his family. Anyone knowing Clifton is asked to encourage him to call or to contact his mother at 946-1477 collect or his sister at 524-4595 collect. Hotline is being used as a last resort since efforts by law enforcement officers in Pitt and Beaufort County to locate him for his family have so far been unsuccessful, his sister said.

Try Somewhere Else

SOMEWHERE ELSE, Tenn. (AP) — This figment of a state senator's imagination is cluttered with toxic waste sites, regional prisons, Tennessee Valley Authority power plants and halfway houses.

Sen. Leonard Dunavant, speaking on the Senate floor in Nashville, proposed Thursday that the state incorporate the town of Somewhere Else in the County of Not Here as a dumping ground for all the problems that nobody wanted.

Sen. Bill Richardson was among several state senators who agreed that Somewhere Else would solve a lot of problems.

"I had a call yesterday from a county executive who was very much opposed to having anything located in his county," Richardson said. "He said it's got to go Somewhere Else."

Dunavant's bill read, "Any community in Tennessee needing a facility which it does not want to build in its own territory is authorized to construct such a facility in Somewhere Else."

"The state is encouraged to construct prisons, work camps and halfway houses in Somewhere Else. The Tennessee Valley Authority is encouraged to construct power plants in Somewhere Else."

"Chemical companies are welcome to dump waste chemicals in Somewhere Else."

Dunavant told the Senate, "We want more people in prison but we understandably don't want them around us."

"We want halfway houses to help people who are mentally retarded but we don't want them next door. We want the products that chemicals create but we don't want the wastes around us."

The solution, however, may still be Somewhere Else; Dunavant withdrew his bill before it reached a vote.

AFRICAN THEATER — The cast of the Mwando Theater dances and sings on stage in Katuba, Zaire, performing "Kwashiorkor", a play named for the protein disease that kills tens of

African Theater Teaches Health, Family Planning

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer
KATUBA, Zaire (AP) — Lounging under parasols, breast-feeding their babies, several hundred women laugh and shout at the actors in the lively tradition of African theater. When the play ends, it's the cast's turn to shout questions at the audience.

The play is "Kwashiorkor," named for the protein-deficiency disease that kills tens of thousands of young Africans every year. The plot teaches mothers that kwashiorkor, which produces bloated bellies, reddish hair and stunted growth, comes from malnutrition, not an infection.

Tribal societies have for centuries employed fireside narratives and other forms of theater to pass on tribal history, morality and beliefs about the origin of man. Now, from Nigeria to Swaziland, Africa is turning to theater to teach basic health care, family planning, conservation and problem solving.

It's been particularly effective in the countryside, where there is no electricity to run movie projectors and television sets.

Accompanied by guitar and antelope-hide drums, the cast of the Mwando Theater tells the story of "Kwashiorkor" in Swahili. It's not a lecture — the cast dances and sings, the crowd roars with laughter. African audiences like to get involved, and this is no exception.

The play is about a father who meets a prostitute in a bar and gives her his money. He returns home late and, when his wife won't open the door, he beats her. She runs away.

The next day, the father leaves his children with his sister, who has several children of her own and no husband.

"Mother, you know we never have enough. How can you let more people in?" one of the sister's children screams. Her children slap their cousins in the face when they try to eat.

One of the boys dies of malnutrition, and his father and mother accuse each other in his death.

A cast member steps in to say: "If a child does not have essential nutrients, he gets the type of disease the child died of. Also, you parents should not have so many children when you cannot feed them all properly."

He points at the audience and says, "There are women here who have twins but before they (the children) are one year old, (the women) are pregnant again."

The cast then asks the audience who was to blame, and a loud discussion begins.

Mobyem Mikanza, director of the National Theater of Zaire, which operates the Mwando Theater, says the technique works "because many people are not educated. In the United States and Europe they can read books. Here they can't read."

"But with theater, they can see. They like drama. They like shows. This is why theater is so important. It can teach more than a book," he said.

In Swaziland, American foreign aid helps finance university theater workshops that produce plays designed to provoke the audience into discussing their problems and finding solutions, instead of waiting for someone else to do it.

Story lines are selected after villagers are polled, and often include joblessness, poor sanitation, alcoholism, family planning and the need for cooperation.

Botswana began a theater campaign in 1974 to try to overcome apathy in its remote northern areas. More conventional methods had failed. Zambia's Chikwakwa Traveling Theater has operated since 1971, shifting its emphasis from scripted plays to local issues and improvised dramas.

The theater department at Ahmadu Bello University in the northern Nigerian city of Zaria has been working directly with farmers who develop plays themselves. The final production is viewed as less important than the process of creation, in which the farmers find their own answers to problems.

In one drama, farmers who were being kicked off their land to make way for a World Bank project acted out possible ways of seeking redress. Some farmers became so interested in the plays they began taking them to neighboring villages.

Students and amateur theater groups have performed similar plays in Tanzania, Uganda and Sierra Leone. And the Marxist Frelimo government of Mozambique has used theater to show villagers the problems and responsibilities brought by independence.

Western groups often finance or help direct theater schools but the concept is not alien to Africa. French anthropologists found the Bambara people of present-day Mali using theater to amuse and instruct at the turn of the century.

Feeling Tired? Determine Reason

Have you been feeling tired lately? Perhaps you have iron deficiency anemia.

"It is possible. Iron deficiency anemia happens when there is too little iron in your body. People with anemia often feel tired, look pale and are more likely to get sick," says Sarah Hinton, extension nutrition specialist at North Carolina State University.

Before you buy an over-the-counter iron supplement, have a doctor administer a hematocrit or hemoglobin test. Many problems can cause that tired, dragged-out feeling, so it is important to get a proper diagnosis.

The body is very careful with its store of iron. Red blood cells are manufactured in the bone marrow and sent out into the blood, where they circulate carrying oxygen, with the help of iron, for three to four months. Then the cells die, but the liver retrieves the iron and sends it back to the bone marrow where it is reused.

Iron is absorbed from food, and little is lost from the body. Children and teenagers need more, because they are growing. Women need more because they lose blood each month through menstruation. Dieters may have trouble getting enough iron if they eat less than 2,000 calories a day. And older folks may need extra iron in their diets because they frequently have lowered stomach acidity, which interferes with the absorption of iron.

Iron deficiency anemia can also be caused by a low-grade constant blood loss, such as a bleeding stomach ulcer, bleeding hemorrhoids, parasites or cancer. "In these cases, the over-the-counter supplement will hide a more serious condition," the extension specialist says.

Iron deficiencies in children can cause some psychological disturbances, such as hyperactivity, decreased attentiveness and even a reduced IQ. These effects are reversed when the diet has enough iron. Another side effect in some iron-deficient subjects is the development of pica. Some people develop an appetite for ice, clay, starch or other non-nutritious substances. Pica also clears up dramatically within days after iron is given.

The best way to prevent anemia is to eat a well-balanced diet, Hinton says. Foods rich in iron include: liver and organ meats, shellfish, dried beans and peas, eggs, lean meat, canned fish, nuts and peanut butter, hot cereals, fortified cold cereal, rice, whole wheat and enriched breads, prune juice, dried fruit, watermelon, spinach, lima beans, blackeyed peas, sweet potatoes and greens.

Get in the habit of reading labels to see if breads and cereals are "enriched" or "fortified with iron." Offer nutritious foods for snacks, as well as at meals.

"Since vitamin C helps your body absorb iron, try to eat foods high in vitamin C when you eat foods high in iron. Oranges, grapefruit, brussels sprouts, strawberries, broccoli, collard and mustard greens, cauliflower, cantaloupe, cabbage, tomatoes and tangerines are all good choices," Mrs. Hinton says.

Babka: Easter Coffee Cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Cooks interested in breads and coffee cakes traditionally made in various countries during the Easter season, will find about 30 recipes for these in one chapter of "The Festive Bread Book" by Kathy Cutler (Barron's).

One of the most famous of these coffee cakes is Polish Babka, and Kathy Cutler gives two recipes for it. I tried the one calling for the smallest number of egg yolks and it worked beautifully. Because this Babka does not have the candied fruit and almonds added to some versions, I found it especially delicious toasted and slathered with butter and strawberry jam. This treatment of Babka may be frowned upon by some purists, but it's mighty good eating.

Another of the Cutler Easter recipes is for an Italian Easter Basket with colored uncooked eggs baked in it — an offering you may have admired in Italian bakeries and would enjoy duplicating at home.

Easter is, of course, only one of the holidays treated in "The Festive Bread Book." Sixteen others — from New Year's to Christmas — are given their due. And all the recipes are clearly and concisely written. In addition there are short introductory notes to them. Color photographs by Bill Helms show the baked breads and coffee cakes.

The author of "The Festive Breads Book" teaches bread-baking in New England and knows whereof she writes.

KATHY CUTLER'S BABKA

- 1 tablespoon dry yeast
- 1/4 cup warm water (105 to 115 degrees)
- 1 stick unsalted butter, melted
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 4 egg yolks
- 3/4 to 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
- 1 teaspoon rum
- 1/4 cup warm milk (105 to 115 degrees)
- Fine dry bread crumbs
- Confectioners' sugar
- Dissolve yeast in warm water. Set aside for 5 minutes. Cream butter and sugar in mixing bowl. Add egg yolks, 1/2 cups flour, and mix thoroughly.
- Add yeast mixture, salt, vanilla, and rum.
- Add milk and enough remaining flour to form a soft dough.
- Knead on lightly floured surface until smooth — about 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl, turning to coat top.
- Cover; let rise in warm place until double — about 1 hour.
- Punch down dough. Generously grease 10-inch bundt pan. Lightly coat pan with bread crumbs. Put dough into prepared pan.
- Cover; let rise in warm place until double — about 45 minutes.
- Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 45 minutes or until done.
- Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Then remove from pan. Cool on rack. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar before serving.

Food Editor's Note: In trying this recipe, we used a fluted round 9-cup pan that measures 9 by 3 1/2 inches — C.B.

"The Festive Bread Book" is published by Barron's.

BABKA — The word means 'grandmother' in Polish, and it is traditionally baked in a fluted mold so its sides will resemble a woman's skirt. The above turn-of-the-century print is from the culinary collection of Cecily Brownstone, Associated Press Food Editor.

A Warning For Smoking Teen-Ager

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My 14-year-old son sent away for your booklet "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know," and I happened to pick it up. Your message on smoking was something I wish every teen-ager could read. You would be doing your young readers a big favor by printing it in your column. Will you please consider it?

MARK'S DAD

DEAR DAD: Consider it "considered." Here it is:

ON SMOKING

You certainly know by now what doctors say about smoking: that it contributes to lung cancer, heart disease and emphysema (impairment of breathing). In other words, it's bad for your health. So, let's look at it as a habit. Smoking makes your breath smell, your clothes (and you) stink and your fingers yellow. It's also expensive.

It makes non-smokers avoid you, particularly indoors. More and more, smokers are becoming social outcasts. It is, to put it bluntly, a stupid habit. It does nothing for you, a lot of things to you, and drives others from you.

If you want to smoke because you think it looks "grown-up" — don't. If you're sneaking it, how "grown-up" are you?

Boys, if you begin smoking to prove you are a man, 30 years later you will try to quit for the same reason.

Girls, a startling number of boys and men have told me they prefer girls and women who don't smoke.

So your grandfather smoked like a chimney and he lived to the ripe old age of 88? Well, good for Gramps. He was one of the lucky ones. Maybe you'll inherit Grandpa's luck. And maybe you won't. It's a fact that nicotine is habit-forming, causes cancer in mice, and it offends others, so what's the sense?

Millions of smokers already have kicked the habit. If you smoke, quit. If you don't smoke, don't start. Never mind that "everybody else" smokes. They don't. And even if they did, why be as stupid as "everybody else?" — Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I know a man who continuously makes dates with me only to show up at my regular "hangout" with another woman. He is very attractive and a real smooth talker.

I'd like to know how to handle him the next time he proposes a "date" because I've had better times at a funeral.

A FOOL IN FLORENCE, S.C.

DEAR FOOL: I am reminded of a little ditty I learned as a child:

"Fool me once, shame on you.

"Fool me twice, shame on me."

The best way to handle him is to smother him with indifference.

DEAR ABBY: What is the difference between saying you will do something and promising to do it?

JUST WONDERING

DEAR JUST: If the person's word is good, there is no difference.

Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Mrs. and Mrs. Ottis R. Winstead of Washington announce the marriage of their daughter, Debra Carol, to Willie James Rogers Jr., son of Mrs. Willie James Rogers Sr. of Greenville and the late Mr. Rogers, on Feb. 27. The couple will be living in Washington, N.C.

RACING STRIPS

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The most common cockroach species today is the German cockroach, a prolific breeder that produces an average of 40 offspring in a one-month period.

A typical German cockroach is about one-half inch long and is light brown with two dark stripes behind the head.

Despite its regional name, the insect is a worldwide pest, reports the maker of Spectracide-XP, a home pest control. Favorite hiding places include hot water pipes, household appliances, the rubber door linings of refrigerators and under radiators, sinks and ovens.

Some 330,000 buses carried more than 22.5 million pupils to school daily during the 1979-80 school year.

CREOLE LIMAS

From the pantry shelf and freezer — quick and easy.
10-ounce package frozen small green lima beans
1/4 cup butter (1/2 of a 1/4-pound stick)
1 medium-small onion, diced medium fine (1/2 cup)
1 medium green pepper, diced medium fine (3/4 cup)
14-ounce can Italian peeled tomatoes, undrained
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook lima beans according to package directions; drain. In a 10-inch skillet melt butter; add onion and green pepper; cook gently until wilted. Stir in tomatoes; boil gently until liquid is reduced — about 5 minutes. Stir in lima beans; cook until beans are reheated — about 2 minutes. Stir in salt and pepper. Makes 4 servings.

Shower Given Miss Proctor

A floating bridal shower was given for Ruth Elizabeth Proctor at the home of Mrs. Ernest Stine Saturday. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Jim Woods, Mrs. Jack Kear and Mrs. Floyd Mattheis.

The bride was remembered with a corsage of pink camellias. The mother of the bride, Mrs. William E. Proctor, and the mother of the bridegroom, Mrs. James A. Hecker, were also presented corsages of pink camellias.

Refreshments were served in the dining room. The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth over pink and a five branch candelabra centerpiece flanked by magnolia leaves and pink camellias.

Miss Proctor is the bride-elect of Brian Jeffery Hecker.

Feast Or Famine

There is never anything certain for oil but the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries has apparently forstalled a price war by setting the cost of oil at $29 per barrel. It was a $5 per barrel drop and the first reduction in the price of oil in 20 years.

The OPEC action was quickly followed by reports that the Soviet Union was cutting its crude prices to $28. The Soviets are not members of OPEC but that nation is a large producer of oil.

Whatever occurs among the oil producers, the effects of declining energy prices are already evident in the United States and throughout the world. Gasoline costs less per gallon than it has in many months.

ECU business professor Dr. Louis H. Zincone thinks that the reduction in price will help in the economic recovery and in holding down inflation. But we might not see much of it passed on to consumers, particularly since the 5 cents per gallon federal tax is due to go in effect April 1.

Zincone thinks that the trend toward conserving energy will not be reversed even if costs continue to drop. People have already invested in energy-saving devices and that is expected to continue.

The economies of the oil-producing nations will be affected by the drop in revenue, but it has always been thus. Zincone pointed out that the fortunes of Brazil are inexorably tied to the prices received for coffee. It is a feast or famine situation which will apply to the oil-producing nations.

Thus, for us who consume oil products, the price drop is favorable. The upward pressure in energy prices has at last been stemmed and, perhaps, we can look forward to a period of energy cost stability. At this point, however, it is not realistic to look for any great reductions in the per gallon cost of gasoline at the pumps. Even so, price stability will be welcomed.

Good Host Is Gone

Old Arthur Godfrey fans were saddened by news of his death this week. The radio and television entertainer died at the age of 79.

For those who don't recall the Godfrey era in radio and television, it is difficult to imagine how dominant he was at that time. He had two weekly prime-time television shows and a daily radio show. He said what he wanted about sponsors' products and got by with it.

His fans were shocked by the firing of singer Julius LaRosa on the air and stunned by the news of his operation for lung cancer. In recent years the elderly Godfrey appeared occasionally on television commercials, but it was Godfrey who did much to shape television in its infancy. As any good host, Godfrey was adept at putting his guests and the television audience at ease and that may well be the secret of his popularity.

Precinct Changes

RALEIGH — You're at the polls, ready to vote. But, when you identify yourself to the registrar, she tells you, "Sorry, when you moved across the street last summer, you changed precincts. You can't vote this year."

When you move, you're supposed to inform your local board of elections. They update your registration and assign you to a new voting precinct, if necessary. But like a lot of things we're supposed to do, many of us don't get to this little task when we move. We go to vote on election day and we're faced with a choice. Either we tell the registrar that we changed addresses — and in the process lose the opportunity to vote — or, we lie. We give our old address as our current address, we vote and we technically commit voter fraud.

Don't think this is any small matter. A lot of people get turned away at the polls for this reason and, when they do, they get plenty angry and they let their legislators know; several legislators said at a recent meeting of the House

Elections Laws Committee. They're discussing two alternatives for allowing people to vote despite their failure to register their new address.

The first alternative, introduced by Rep. Anne Barnes, D-Orange, would allow us to show up at our old precincts, fill out a change of address form, and get authorization to vote in what should be our new precinct.

The second alternative, advocated by Alex Brock, state elections director, would amend the state Constitution so that we could vote one time in our old precincts.

The alternative put forth by Mrs. Barnes could bug up the flow of voters. While the registrar dealt with a wrong precinct voter, other voters would be waiting in line.

But the alternative offered by Brock has even more problems, legislators said. If I vote in my old precinct, I might be voting for legislators, county commissioners and school board members I'm not eligible to vote for. I may not live in their districts anymore. How do you straighten out which voter gets which ballots?

Although more than half the committee has signed on to sponsor Mrs. Barnes' bill, the committee agreed to send it to a subcommittee where the two alternatives will be studied.

Men in North Carolina will be relieved to learn that they are no longer violating the law when they walk on the campus of a women's college. The General Assembly has repealed an obsolete state law that created a separate category of disturbing the peace for men who were so bold.

Repealed at the same time were statutes that forbade the disruption of scientific and temperance meetings, religious congregations, entertainments and picnics.

If you break up one of those events now, you'll be handled as a common disturber of the peace.

People in the South are getting more education these days. The Department of Public Instruction reports that the median level of schooling in the South, in terms of years, rose considerably between 1950 and 1980 — up from 8.4 to 12.3. That means that half of the adult population of the South had taken some post high school education in 1980. For North Carolina, the figures were up from 7.9 in 1950 to 12.2 in 1980.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lower oil prices are considered a spur to domestic business and economic health, but there is at least one very important category in which they might be having a depressing affect.

That category is capital spending — spending for new or improved plants and equipment — an activity that seems to be weakening instead of strengthening as you might expect at this stage of the economic cycle.

Late last year the amount projected for such activities was estimated at $315.7 billion, a 5.2 percent decline from 1982. But a more recent survey, for February-March, puts the figure at just $310.9 billion.

Economists offer many possible reasons for the decline, including the high cost of borrowing and the enormous amount of existing capacity that remains unused because of the recession of 1981-1982.

In spite of interest rate declines, for example, borrowing costs remain discouragingly high in relation to historic standards, especially when recent government figures show plants operating at less than 70 percent of capacity.

But the most intriguing argument is that related to oil prices. It has two components.

First, companies of various kinds that might have considered modernizing in order to reduce energy costs may now feel more complacent amid prospects for lower-cost oil.

Secondly, outlays by the petroleum industry itself are falling, reflecting the shelving of projects that would be economically feasible only if oil prices remained higher than they are.

Argus Research, whose analyses are distributed mainly to investment houses, observes that "about 70 percentage of the shrinkage in total expenditures can be attributed to the cut in petroleum industry spending."

It reasons that other industries, such as chemicals, paper and airlines, are finding that existing plant and equipment "has become more efficient in an environment of substantially lower relative oil prices."

Otto Eckstein, head of Data Resources, a numbers factory that supplies economic projections to various industries, points out that the decline between the late 1982 and early 1983 government surveys might be an illusion.

The lower figure in the more recent survey, he says, reflects a decline in forecasts of inflation. The cut, he contends, wasn't in capital activity plans themselves, but only in dollars needed to carry them out.

Nevertheless, you can search through the surveys of spending for big ticket items without finding any great enthusiasm, in spite of federal and sometimes state and local tax benefits enacted to encourage such activity.

Capital spending, in fact, is probably nearer than anything else to being the centerpiece of the entire Reagan economic program which, you may recall, aims to redirect funds into productive rather than consumptive activities.

Economists and business people contend that in some ways the administration itself has helped undermine that goal, primarily because its budget deficits tend to drain the available credit pool and unnerv big investors.

But if the administration must share in the blame for weak capital spending plans, falling oil prices must also.

With business budgets already stretched, and with oil prices likely to fall even more, logic suggests that capital planners will stretch out their big spending projects rather than seek efficiencies immediately.

The 'Real' Story On Anne Burford

The story on Pennsylvania Avenue is that the press got Anne McGill Gorsuch Burford, head of the EPA. The rumor has been fanned by President Reagan as well as Mrs. Burford. It is unfortunately, untrue.

If you're looking for the culprits who put the contract out on the EPA director, you don't have to go any further than the inner sanctum of the White House.

I got this directly from a horse's mouth in the West Wing.

He told me, "We had to eliminate Anne Burford without prejudice."

"That was a shame. She seemed like such a nice person. I always thought she was a team player."

"Perhaps. But the heat was on, and we couldn't let it touch the President. We had to keep hazardous waste out of the White House."

"But from what I can gather, Mrs. Burford was only following White House orders. Didn't you people want to dismantle EPA and make it easier for business to dump their sludge all over America?"

"Sure we wanted it. But we were hoping it could be done quietly. We asked for a surgeon, not a butcher."

"But from all I can tell Mrs. Burford was only following instructions. I thought her marching orders were to make the environmentalists look like the neo-Nazis of the United States."

"We miscalculated the political ramifications of the environment issue in the United States. For some reason, which we didn't foresee, the American people don't like dirty air or dirty water as much as we thought they did. When Congress started making a mountain of acid druzm out of every molehill, Mrs. Burford's days were numbered."

"So she was crificed for political expediency?"

"We don't enjoy putting a contract out on anyone in the Reagan administration, but our job in the White House is to protect the President at all costs. When push comes to shove — you always shove the EPA head and not the President."

"Does the President know you put a contract out on Mrs. Burford?"

"I think he suspects we did, though the less he knows, the better it is for him. He still wants to believe the press was out to get her and not us."

"Just out of curiosity, how did the White House force someone like Mrs. Burford to resign?"

"The best way was to trickle down leaks to the press. One of our people told a White House correspondent Mrs. Burford was a lousy administrator. Another leaked that she played politics with the agency. A third handed out the EPA hit list. Then a staffer told a columnist where to look for conflict of interest in her staff. Our task was to make smoke and let the media fan the fire. To make sure it didn't look as if we were being disloyal, we denied everything that was printed in the press appeared on television. When the President announced he had utmost confidence in Mrs. Burford and she could stay on the job as long as she wanted, even Mrs. Burford knew it was time to resign."

"It was clean and painless," I said in admiration. "And I'm sure Mrs. Burford doesn't even know who stabbed her in the back. She'll probably go through life thinking it was the press and the environmentalists who threw her in the acid pit."

"We hope so. The last thing we want a person we dump in the EPA ashan to believe is that we had anything to do with it. After all, we need Mrs. Burford for the 1984 Republican campaign, particularly since her philosophy towards cleaning up the environment is the same as ours."

A Scholarly Soap Opera Unfolds

WASHINGTON — In the real world, thousands of newly- and nearly-born babies have been murdered in rural Chinese villages.

But in the academic world of Steven westly Mosher, who first reported modern China's infanticidal habits in 1981, reality has become virtually irrelevant. Unimpressed by his methods, Mosher's dons at Stanford University bounced him from the doctoral program Feb. 24.

Mosher, 34, says his dismissal was a matter of publishand-perish. For anthropologists at Stanford and social scientists elsewhere, "unethical" and "illegal" behavior was the pivotal issue. In the end, a pox falls on both houses, blemishing scholars and scholarship.

For all those who thought Margaret Mead's techniques were anthropology's only controversy, a brief synopsis of this scholarly soap opera may be in order:

For nine months ending in June 1980, the former naval officer studied rural Chinese life in the ancestral village of his (now divorced) Hong Kong-born wife. As part of a new scholarly exchange between China and the U.S., Mosher's research was the first of its kind in a country understandably suspicious of social scientists.

In the course of his field work, Mosher discovered and documented with photographs the darker side of China's birth control crusade: abortions forcibly performed on rural women in the third trimester of pregnancy, newly-born females killed outright. An illustrated article on these practices, written under the byline Steven Westley (Mosher's first two names), appeared in a Taiwanese news magazine in May 1980. Not surprisingly, the People's Republic didn't like the story; nor did many American academics, who blamed Mosher for China's subsequent restrictions on visiting U.S. scholars.

Stanford insists that the two-year investigation leading up to Mosher's expulsion was aimed at more than a reconciliation with its Peking colleagues. Last week, it also said that Mosher's choice of a less-than-scholarly journal for publishing his story was irrelevant to the verdict.

"There were numerous violations of our ethical standards," said James Fox, one of the 11 anthropology faculty members who voted against Mosher. "... and they were serious and included illegalities."

Unfortunately, the evidence for these claims lies in a 47-page report that neither Mosher nor Stanford will make public out of fear, each says, of "injuring innocent parties." Nevertheless, until the report is made public, a number of important questions can be raised in Mosher's defense:

"If illegal acts occur in a totalitarian country, does it matter? Had Mosher been studying in South Africa, would the "illegalities" be taken so seriously? In any event, charges first passed by Peking to U.S. officials hardly seemed damning. (According to the Chinese, Mosher drove an imported van through restricted areas and exchanged gifts with villagers for information.)

"If Mosher acted unethically, whose standards was he subverting? Mosher, by all accounts one of Stanford's top anthropology students, says he received no specific instructions on the do's and don'ts of Cantonese field work. So far, no one has questioned his research procedures, per se. (Stanford's case isn't helped by the fact that it relied on testimony from three people who had a stake in the decision: Mosher's scorned wife and two professors who wanted access to the mainland.)

"If Mosher's article wasn't the issue, why did Stanford wait until after its publication to begin investigating? By all accounts, allegations of misconduct had been known for more than a year.

Indeed, Mosher's problem was that he did something extraordinary for his field — he made news — without following standard practices. Instead of choosing an obscure scholarly journal (he did eventually publish his story in the respected Asian Survey), he chose Taiwan's equivalent of Time magazine, where his story automatically became propaganda. Even Mosher admits that move was dumb.

The case, for now, is closed. Academic relations with the Chinese, precious to so many institutions, are on the mend.

But, for many of us, irreparable damage may have already been done to the notion of scholarship and pursuit of knowledge. Emphasis on means requires equal recognition of the ends.

Two Collisions Here Thursday

An estimated $1,400 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Thursday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from an 11:22 a.m. collision at the intersection of Evans and Reade streets involving cars driven by Ann Moore Johnson of 103 Kenilworth Drive and Linda Hawkins Taylor of Goldsboro.

Damage from the mishap was estimated at $400 to the Johnson car and $500 to the Taylor vehicle.

Cars driven by Kenneth Robert Tursam of 1607 Sulgrave Road, and Callie Hudson Cash of Route 1, Greenville, collided about 4:20 p.m. on Farmville Boulevard, 150 feet east of the Memorial Drive intersection, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Tursam car and $200 damage to the Cash auto.

Hunters Guilty Of Violations

NEW BERN — Two hunters arrested near the Pungo National Wildlife Refuge on Jan. 27 have been found guilty of hunting migratory waterfowl after sunset.

William Everett Salter of Sea Level also was found guilty of exceeding the daily limit of Canada geese. He was fined $750, given a six-month suspended prison sentence and ordered not to hunt waterfowl until 1984.

His hunting companion,

Timothy Allen Lee, was fined $350. Lee was acquitted of a charge of exceeding the bag limit.

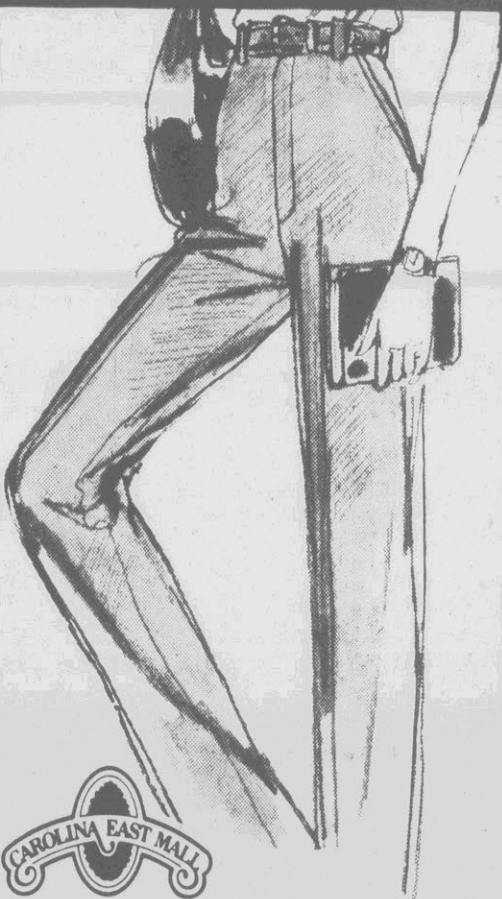

Hunters may take only one Canada goose per day. State and federal officials who made the arrest at 1:30 a.m. Jan. 27 said they confiscated eight geese.

A third man arrested at the refuge, Danny Respass of Pantego, was acquitted on two counts of aiding and abetting.

White House Says It Has Disputed EPA Papers

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's spokesman disclosed today that the White House received two Environmental Protection Agency documents dealing with a toxic waste dump in California at the time the agency chief decided to hold up award of a federal cleanup grant.

Larry Speakes, the chief deputy White House press secretary, said the documents turned up in a search of central White House files. He said they had been sent to Craig Fuller, a presidential assistant handling liaison with the EPA. Speakes' announcement provided the first indication that the White House had been alerted last summer — before the 1982 midterm elections — about the delay in the grant for cleaning up the Stringfellow Acid Pits in California.

Former EPA employees and agency critics have charged that the delay was prompted by concern by EPA administrator Anne Gorsuch, since remarried as Anne M. Burford, that the grant might boost the U.S. Senate campaign of former California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democrat.

Mrs. Burford, who resigned under fire March 9, has denied this allegation.

The spokesman said one paper, a weekly report sent on July 26, 1982, alerted the White House to the agency's decision to issue the $6 million grant. A second paper on Aug. 3, 1982, he said, disclosed Mrs. Burford's decision to delay the grant because of "legal technicalities."

The "legal technicalities" were not explained in the documents, Speakes said.

Speakes said the documents had been turned over to Rep. James H. Scheuer, D-N.Y., chairman of a House subcommittee investigating the EPA.

Until the material was found in a second search, after Fuller's files had already been checked, there was no indication that the material had been sent to the White House, Speakes said.

According to the spokesman, the July 26 weekly report from the EPA to the White House said the agency chief would fly to California the next day to announce the decision on granting the money from the $1.6 billion waste cleanup "superfund."

Speakes said that Fuller, assistant to Reagan for Cabinet affairs, did not circulate this document until Aug. 2.

"No one in the White House, except Fuller, knew the contents of this weekly report until Aug. 2," Speakes said.

He said that while Mrs. Burford was flying to California she "reviewed the material and decided that because of legal technicalities in the operative agreement, that the signing of the agreement" would be postponed.

"No one in the White House that I can determine was aware of her decision until Aug. 3," when the next weekly report arrived and disclosed the decision to delay award of the grant, Speakes said.

The White House disclosure coincided with testimony before congressional investigators by a regional EPA official who says he changed a pollution report about the operations of Dow Chemical Co. on orders that his superiors in Washington denied giving.

Valdas Adamkus, head of EPA's Midwest regional office in Chicago, was appearing today before the House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee.

In all, six congressional committees are investigating the EPA, looking into allegations of political manipulation, perjury, conflicts of interest and "sweetheart" deals with polluters.

Adamkus was testifying on an EPA report on dioxin contamination in central Michigan. Adamkus has said he was ordered by his Washington superiors to delete references blaming Dow Chemical Co.'s Midland, Mich., plant for the contamination.

"Some pressure was exerted by some people," Adamkus said. "This should never have happened. I hope it won't happen in the future. It will be a good example so we don't create any conflicts of interest."

His statements on the Dow report appeared to conflict with sworn testimony by the EPA's acting administrator, Dr. John Hernandez, who told another House subcommittee on Wednesday he gave no such orders.

Hernandez said he allowed Dow to review scientific evidence and suggest changes in the draft report because he believed some of the conclusions could not be supported. But he added: "I had no idea what was deleted. I did not request anyone to delete anything."

The allegations concern a 1981 study of pollution in central Michigan from dioxin, a potent byproduct from the production of herbicides.

The draft report by scientists in the regional office blamed Dow, saying the chemical company "has extensively contaminated their facility with (dioxin) and has been the primary contributor to contamination of the Tittabawassee and Saginaw Rivers, and Lake Huron."

The report, authored by J. William Clark, health effects specialist of the regional office, recommended that consumption of fish from the waterways "should be prohibited."

Those sections did not appear in the final report.

Adamkus said that after Dow reviewed the draft, the company objected to the critical references.

After conference calls between regional scientists and the dioxin work group in Washington, he said, orders came from Washington to omit the conclusions from the final report.

Adamkus said he was shocked by the order.

"We were forced to remove recommendations and final conclusions," said Adamkus. He said in the end, EPA probably acted "in an inappropriate way in the preparation of a vital document."

Adamkus has not directly implicated Hernandez in the order. An aide to Adamkus, Kathy Brown, said earlier this week the order came from a dioxin task force headed by Dr. Donald Barnes, whom she said was accountable to Hernandez.

Nevertheless, the controversy over the Dow report may have eliminated Hernandez from the White House list of possible nominees to become EPA's permanent chief.

Senators Today Pushing Ahead On Social Security Package

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate was pushing ahead today on a Social Security rescue plan as opponents of a proposal to extend coverage to new federal workers were taking their last shot at killing the provision.

The Senate made halting progress on the $165 billion bipartisan package Thursday as the chamber interrupted work on the measure so it could pass a jobs bill.

With that problem cleared away, Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., had hoped to complete most of the work on the Social Security bailout bill today. But he acknowledged this morning that many senators would be leaving town for the weekend.

"I still hope we can finish Monday," Baker said.

The House passed its version of the legislation last week.

One of the thorniest issues still remaining is whether to bring new federal employees under Social Security, as recommended by the National Commission on Social Security Reform.

Baker, saying he will urge the Senate to oppose moves to exempt federal workers from Social Security coverage, added it is "a very hard issue, tough debate and probably a close vote."

Organizations representing active and retired federal workers have mounted a vigorous, but so far unsuccessful, campaign to delete the recommendation from the package. Senate action on the bill is their last major opportunity.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., has signed up about two dozen co-sponsors for an amendment to delay mandatory coverage of new federal workers by Social Security until Congress approves a supplementary pension plan for them.

But Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., who as chairman of the Finance Committee is guiding the rescue bill through the Senate, is fighting the delay arguing that federal workers just don't want to pay into the system.

"I believe that's (delay) an effort by the federal employees to never come into the system," Dole said Thursday. "To say, 'Well, we can't come in until we have a supplemental plan.' And then there'll never be a supplemental plan to their liking so they'll never come into Social Security."

Coverage of new civil servants starting in 1984 is expected to pump $9.3 billion into Social Security's trust funds during the rest of the decade.

In action Thursday, the Senate:

—Rejected 84-12 a proposal to start raising the Social Security retirement age from 65 in 1984 by one month per year until it hits 68 in 2020. The Senate version of the bill already includes a provision which would raise the retirement age to 66 by 2015. The House bill would raise the retirement age to 67 by the year 2027.

—Adopted by voice vote an amendment to accelerate a bonus for aged workers who delay accepting Social Security. The original bill would have gradually boosted the bonus, now 3 percent for each year delayed until age 70, to 8 percent between 1990 and 2010. The amendment would make it 8 percent in 1995 — the same year the bill wipes out limits on how much those ages 65-69 can earn without losing benefits.

—Adopted on a voice vote an amendment barring the payment of any benefits to the criminally insane.

—Voted 96-0 for an amendment to ease the schedule on which small businesses must send the government their payroll taxes. Firms that withhold up to $5,000 a month would have until the middle of the following month to forward the funds. It would cost Social Security $1 billion through 1989.

Moon 'Church' Is Challenged

LONDON (AP) — The government is challenging the tax-exempt status of two British trusts controlled by the Rev. Sun Myung Moon's Unification Church, the attorney general's office announced.

It said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher and legislators of all parties are backing law officers' efforts to curtail the activities of the church, whose members are known as Moonies.

The two trusts are the Holy Spirit Association for the Unification of World Christianity, accorded charity status in 1968, and the Sun Myung Moon Foundation, six years later.

Agitation over Moonie activities followed years of complaints by parents of losing the affection of their children who became members. Last year, the church lost a legal fight to overturn a High Court jury's finding that the Daily Mail newspaper was justified in accusing the church of brainwashing converts and breaking up families.

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The government has granted the Palestine Liberation Organization bureau in Prague diplomatic mission status, the state-run CTK news agency reported.

Foreign Minister Bohuslav Chroupek told Atif Salem Abu Bakr, the PLO's chief representative in Prague, of the Czechoslovak decision on Thursday, CTK said.

Coca-Cola Plant Given Med School

The Eastern Carolina Coca-Cola Bottling Co. has presented its former bottling plant in Greenville to the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The 16,500-square-foot building is located on the corner of Dickinson Avenue and Pitt Street. The gift also includes the facility's storage building and an adjacent lot.

Tom Segrave, vice president and general manager of Coca-Cola, presented the deed to the property to medical school Dean William E. Laupus and ECU Medical Foundation President Edwin W. Monroe on behalf of the company's board of directors.

"Plans for Dickinson Avenue and surrounding areas open a number of possibilities for future utilization by the university or other interested parties, but our immediate plans call for the building to be used as a storage facility for the university and medical school," Laupus said.

According to the Pitt County Tax Supervisor's office, the two buildings and lot on which they sit have a tax value of $80,430. Replacement value of the two structures was listed at $177,000.

The original building was erected in 1941, while the storage facility was built in 1945, according to tax records.

Opry House Is For Sale

HOUSTON (AP) — The Opry House in Nashville, Tenn., home of the Grand Ole Opry and a site revered by country music fans, is for sale.

American General Corp., a Houston-based diversified financial group that acquired the property last year, said the Opryhouse, a hotel, a theme park, a cable television company and two radio stations are being offered for sale at the urging of Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander.

American General chairman Harold S. Hook said the sale was proposed after a corporate committee met with the governor and Alexander "stressed the role the Opry has played in developing the cultural heritage of Tennessee and emphasized the positive benefits of Tennessee-based ownership."

American General executives, said Hook, "share these views." The company acquired the Opryland properties last November as part of its $1.5 billion purchase of NLT Corp., a Nashville insurance holding company.

The Opryland properties include the Opry House; Opryland U.S.A., a theme park; Opryland Hotel, a 600-room hotel that is now adding 468 rooms; the Nashville Network, a cable television system jointly owned with a Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. subsidiary, and two radio stations.

Pressure For State Lottery Growing In Assembly

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Pressure for a bill to start a statewide lottery mounted Thursday as members of a Senate subcommittee studying the concept gave glowing accounts of the benefits of and public support for legalized gambling.

"It's a different way of making money and from all that I've heard I think it would pass," said Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba.

"People in Colorado, which just started one, say it's going fine," said Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham. "In all of them (states with lotteries) they talked very favorably of them."

"It's hard for a person not to be impressed with these figures," said Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, chairman of the subcommittee, after reviewing the money earned in states with legalized gambling.

And Sen. Rachel Gray, D-Guilford, said calls she received indicated people thought a lottery might even help reduce illegal gambling.

Royall said a survey in Durham showed support was running 80 percent in favor, while Ballenger said telephone calls to about 300 Republican precinct leaders showed 65 percent supported the idea.

Staff attorney Ken Levenbook debunked several myths about lotteries, saying there was no evidence from other states that they increased crime or were played mostly by the poor.

"The people (believing the myths) have got the wrong idea, based on everything I've learned about the lottery," Royall added.

The panel instructed Levenbook to draft two bills for the full Senate Rules Committee. One would authorize the formation of a lottery commission and a lottery, while the other would put the lottery into a public referendum.

Levenbook said a lottery could begin within six months of its legalization, at an initial cost of about $5 million. But he said that money would be recovered after 14 weeks of lottery ticket sales.

Sen. Richard Barnes, D-Forsyth, who introduced the measure and appeared with Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, on a radio show about the lottery, said most of the calls favored it.

"The only problem they seemed to have was from the morality standpoint, which, to me at least, is a matter of choice," he said.

In other legislative action:

Primaries

Rep. Ken Spaulding, D-Durham, vowed to resurrect a bill that would reduce the number of runoff political primaries in North Carolina after a House committee effectively killed it.

"We'll just have to issue a minority report," said Spaulding after the House Committee on Elections Laws voted 11-6 to give his bill an unfavorable report. "We've got the 25 percent (of the committee necessary) to bring it to the floor."

Spaulding's bill, rejected by a subcommittee Tuesday, would allow a candidate in a party primary who received 40 percent of the vote to be declared the winner. Current laws allow the loser to demand a runoff if the winner received less than 50 percent.

Subcommittee Chairman Rep. Dennis Wicker, D-Lee, asked Thursday that the full committee reject the bill without considering an amendment proposed by Rep. Joe Roberts, D-Gaston.

"I felt compelled to go ahead so that the question could be decided up or down," Wicker said. "That's why the subcommittee was made in the first place. I feel like the amendment was a strategic move to prolong consideration of the bill."

Workers Comp

The House Manufacturing and Labor Committee heard from a Winston-Salem nurse's aide who said she was unable to collect workers' compensation despite being injured on the job.

Diane Helms, who injured her arm while lifting a patient, said it did not qualify as an accident under existing laws.

Rep. William Clark, D-Cumberland, said North Carolina was the only state that would have denied Ms. Helms compensation. Clark has introduced a bill that he says would remove restrictions that allow compensation only when the worker slipped, tripped or fell while working.

Hatcher Kincheloe, a Charlotte attorney representing business, said he did not think the law should compensate people like Ms. Helms because workers' compensation was not designed as a disability policy.

The committee scheduled a public hearing for next week on the workers' compensation bill.

Wine Bill

The state Senate rejected a request to suspend the rules and consider immediately a controversial bill giving wineries and wholesalers the right to enter into franchise agreements.

The bill already has passed the Senate, but is being returned for approval of several amendments tacked on by the House.

Sen. Elton Edwards, D-Guilford, opposed a motion for immediate consideration by Sen. Robert Swain, D-Buncombe.

"The Senate is in serious danger of demeaning itself by abusing its own rules," said Edwards. "The rules should be suspended in emergency situations... this is a substantive bill and should be handled in the (course of) normal business."

The bill was scheduled for debate today.

News Media

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green chastised members of the news media for what he called undignified behavior during Senate sessions. He warned that reporters failing to abide by Senate rules could be expelled from the chamber.

"The Senate of North Carolina is a deliberative body and has the right to an atmosphere of dignity and decorum," said Green. He said reporters' improper behavior had "reached a crescendo which cannot and will not be tolerated."

Green didn't give any examples of improper behavior by media representatives. However, during recent debate on Gov. Jim Hunt's drunken driving bill he complained about television lights being shined in lawmakers' faces.

Additionally, Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, shouted at a television cameraman who followed Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, onto the Senate floor Tuesday. Soles had been indicted earlier that day by a federal grand jury on conspiracy charges.

Coastal Management

The House Natural and Economic Resources Committee approved several bills on coastal management.

One bill would provide for estuarine beach access, extending a policy now in effect for ocean beaches. Another bill would shorten the maximum time allowed for issuing permits for coastal construction — from 90 days to 75 days for major projects and from 30 days to 25 days for minor projects.

A bill to regulate conversion of coastal wetlands for farming and peat mining was sent to a subcommittee.

Lawyers

Rep. Bob Etheridge, D-Harnett, filed a proposed constitutional amendment requiring that the state attorney general and all district attorneys be licensed attorneys.

Etheridge said the amendment was needed for the sake of consistency, since the Legislature has required that judges be lawyers.

"I don't know that this affects anyone, and hopefully this problem would never arise," he said. "But we need to make sure. As complicated as the law has become, we need to make sure that people interpreting it are qualified."

Lt. Gov. Green's Votes Upset Nuclear Freeze Push In Senate

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green cast two crucial votes, his first after nearly seven years in office, as the North Carolina Senate killed a nuclear weapons freeze resolution and acted to keep it buried.

Sen. Gerry Hancock, D-Durham, sponsor of the joint resolution, conceded defeat Thursday but hinted he would try again in subsequent legislative sessions.

"The debate on this is far from over," he said in an interview. "It will continue in the General Assembly, in Congress, and elsewhere until the political leaders of the state and nation understand that the people want a sane nuclear weapons policy."

The Senate action leaves the General Assembly divided on the nuclear freeze question. The state House of Representatives already has approved a separate freeze resolution, which did not require Senate concurrence.

"I'm very disappointed," said Rep. Parks Helms, D-Mecklenburg, sponsor of the House resolution. "But at least the issue has raised the consciousness of the General Assembly and has served a useful purpose."

The joint resolution originally was identical to the separate House resolution, which called on President Reagan and Congress to negotiate a bilateral, verifiable freeze on nuclear weapons production. In a concession to potential opponents, Hancock agreed to an amendment recommending "on-site verification when necessary and appropriate."

But Sen. Harold Hardison, D-Lenoir, introduced an amendment that, when passed, effectively doomed the resolution. It deleted the crucial adjectives "bilateral" and "verifiable" in the body of the resolution.

Hancock fought the amendment, saying that with it the resolution would "call on the President of the United States to negotiate a freeze that can't be verified. That's irresponsible."

"The real purpose of this amendment is to make the resolution unworkable, untenable and to kill it," said Hancock.

Hardison, a leading opponent of the freeze resolution, countered that his amendment actually strengthened it.

"I, as much as anyone in this world, want a nuclear freeze, but I do not agree with the approach this resolution takes," he said. "We must not negotiate from a weakened position."

The Senate vote on the amendment was 24-24. Green then voted yes, breaking the tie.

Sen. Dennis Winner, D-Buncombe, moved to table the amended resolution, saying its original intent had been distorted. The Senate agreed, 25-23.

Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, then invoked a parliamentary maneuver called a "clinch," moving that the vote to table the amended resolution be reconsidered. Green broke a 24-24 tie by voting against the motion.

Under Senate rules, once a vote to reconsider is rejected a two-thirds majority — 34 votes in the 50-member Senate — would be needed to bring up the issue again.

Hancock acknowledged he didn't have that many votes.

"It's eloquent testimony that the only way opponents of this resolution could defeat it was to resort to parliamentary tactics," Hancock said.

He said 28 senators had agreed to support the original resolution, but avoided voting on it by siding with the Hardison amendment.

Hancock said he wasn't surprised by Green's stand.

"His opposition is well known," said Hancock. "He supports the peace through strength coalition, whose efforts in this state are largely funded by the Congressional Club," a conservative organization whose honorary chairmen are Republican U.S. Sens. Jesse Helms and John East.

Hardison denied that his amendment was designed to derail the resolution.

"This was no maneuver," he said. "Since we had included the part about on-site inspection, we didn't need the part about being verifiable. I honestly thought this (resolution) was going to pass and I just wanted to make it more palatable."

Asked why he moved to delete "bilateral" from the resolution, Hardison replied, "That refers just to Russia and us. There are lots of countries like China with nuclear weapons that can blow us out of the water. If we're going to negotiate a freeze, let's negotiate with everybody."

House Committee OKs Easing Inventory Tax

By JOHN FLESHER

Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

A bill that would ease the inventory tax burden on North Carolina businesses at a two-year cost of up to $110.9 million to the state has been approved by the House Finance Committee.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said the losses projected by fiscal analysts could be offset by new industry flocking to the state in response to the relaxed laws.

"We will see a marked increase in new industry, with new tax revenues and new jobs," he said. "This will far outstrip any losses in the long run. If not, we can do away with the new system."

The bill would allow businesses to write off on their state income taxes 10 percent of the inventory taxes they pay during the year beginning Dec. 26, 1982, and ending Dec. 26, 1983.

For the year beginning Dec. 26, 1983, and ending Dec. 26, 1984, the income tax credit would be 20 percent. The following year, it would be 25 percent.

Under existing law, corporations with an estimated tax liability of at least $100,000 must pay income taxes on a quarterly basis. The bill would require that corporations with liability of $5,000 pay in quarterly installments.

Firms paying too little tax would be penalized, and those paying too much would get a refund.

This system, too, would be phased in over three years, ending in 1985.

A number of state officials, business leaders and legislators praised the bill as a way to help businesses without completely gutting the inventory tax.

"Anything we can do to get rid of the inventory tax we should do," said Commerce Secretary Lauch Faircloth. "It's a detriment to growth in North Carolina."

Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake, a staunch opponent of a similar bill during the last legislative session, said he considered the new bill "much more reasonable... an experiment that's worth trying."

The 1982 proposal was to eliminate completely the inventory tax, but only for manufacturers, Adams said. Sen. Ben Tison, D-Mecklenburg, said industries have chosen to locate elsewhere because North Carolina has an inventory tax when many neighboring states don't.

"This inventory tax has just been a thorn in our sides," said Tison, an industrial developer with North Carolina National Bank.

Jack Bowling, a Siler City businessman and a member of N.C. Citizens for Business and Industry, said the bill was needed to lessen a "serious competitive disadvantage" the inventory tax places on North Carolina businesses.

The textile industry also would be helped by the legislation, said Clyde Rhyne, an official of the N.C. Textile Manufacturers Association.

Lilley, the bill's sponsor, said it didn't go as far as he would have liked toward eliminating the inventory tax, but said it was necessary to compromise to get something passed.

"The bill is designed to meet current economic conditions," he said. "Maybe we can expand it in the future."

Committee Eyes Cut In Youth Services Sums

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

Programs that send emotionally disturbed children to wilderness camps and put juvenile delinquents in training schools were flagged for possible cuts Thursday by a joint House-Senate base budget committee.

Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, who chairs the Appropriations Committee on Human Resources, pointed out that the state was spending $3.1 million a year to send 226 children to four wilderness camps in the state.

The camps, run under a contract with a Florida firm, are for children usually under age 15 who have trouble in school or with the law, said Mike Watson of the Division of Youth Services.

He said groups of 10 children and two counselors learn to build campsites, plan trips, read maps and confront problems as a group with an average stay of 10 months. There is no formal education during the wilderness camps, which some children have attended for up to three years, Watson added.

"In everything else we're doing, we're talking about putting people back into their communities," said Rep. David Diamond, D-Surry, who suggested the project might be eliminated. "You stick them out in the woods, how do you expect them to function?"

Watson said the program dealt with many of the children who might later end up in training schools after being convicted of crimes, adding that the camps were less expensive than training schools.

Department of Human Resources officials pointed out that training school populations have declined since the state decided to include only those convicted of crimes enter them. That left open the possibility of moving wilderness school children to training schools.

"We ought to do some consolidating," Diamond said.

But committee members pointed out that while wilderness camps are voluntary, training schools are not.

Gov. Jim Hunt is used to hard-nosed reporters, but chances are Thursday was the first day a metal-nosed individual ever showed up at his weekly news conference.

Hero 1, a 24-inch talking robot built by Durham Technical Institute, introduced himself to Hunt and raised a North Carolina state flag which he gripped in his mechanical hand.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN LEHTI

A BAND OF PROPHETS

THERE WERE COMMUNITIES OF PROPHETS WHO LIVED, STUDIED, AND WORSHIPED TOGETHER. WE FIND MENTION OF IT IN FIRST SAMUEL (10:5). THESE PROPHETS LIVED IN GIBEAH AND WERE VISITED BY SAUL. IN FACT, SAUL, BEFORE HE WAS ANNOINTED KING, PROPHESIED WITH THEM ON SEVERAL OCCASIONS. THE PROPHETS SPENT ALL THEIR TIME IN STUDY AND WORSHIP. THEY FARMED A LITTLE BUT MOST OF THEIR FOOD WAS DONATED BY PEOPLE IN THE COMMUNITY ROUND ABOUT. LATER IN THE NORTHERN KINGDOM MORE PROPHETIC COMMUNITIES MADE THEIR APPEARANCE FOR A BRIEF WHILE. THEY MAY HAVE BEEN FOUNDED BY ELIJAH FROM THE MODEL OF THE EARLIER SOCIETIES FROM THE DAYS OF SAMUEL. THESE LATER MEMBERS WERE DESIGNATED "SONS OF THE PROPHETS."

Terps, JMU Capture NCAA Openers

Flying High

James Madison's Keith Bradley (32) loses control of the ball as he gets pressure from West Virginia's Greg Jones, up in the air, and Russell Todd, during first half action in Thursday night's NCAA first round tournament game being played at the Greensboro Coliseum. By The Associated Press
The only clock that counts in college basketball these days is the one that ticks down to the final buzzer.

Beat-the-clock heroics were the order of the day — or evening — in the NCAA Tournament Thursday night, with three of the eight first-round games decided in the closing seconds.

—In the Midwest Regional at Houston, freshman Len Bias' 17-foot jumper with two seconds left capped Maryland's comeback back from a 14-point deficit for a 52-51 victory over No. 15 Tennessee-Chattanooga, the first Top Twenty team to bow out of the tourney.

"It wasn't my play; someone else had the shot," said Bias. "The play was designed for Adrian (Branch). They were double-teaming him, so when I got the ball I dribbled once and looked to pass but no one was open, so with six seconds left I knew I had to take the shot."

—In the Midwest Regional at Tampa, Fla., Steve Reid drilled a 22-footer from the top of the key with five seconds remaining as Purdue withstood a valiant second-half comeback to edge Robert Morris 55-53.

"I looked up at the clock and saw single digits," said Reid. "I didn't want to panic and I wanted to make sure we got a shot off."

—But the most dramatic finish took place in the second half of the Tampa twinbill when Ohio University freshman Robert Tatum hit an off-balance, 15-foot shot at the buzzer for a 51-49 upset over Illinois State.

"I didn't think it was going in. The feeling was unbelievable," said Tatum, who grabbed a long pass that was deflected by an Illinois State defender, double-pumped and netted the winning basket.

In the second Midwest Regional game, underdog Lamar rode the shooting of Lamont Robinson and Tom Sewell and stunned Alabama 73-50.

In the East Regional at Greensboro, N.C., James Madison upset West Virginia 57-50 and Virginia Commonwealth trimmed LaSalle 76-67. And in the West Regional at Boise, Idaho, Washington State whipped Weber State 62-52 and Utah shaded Illinois 52-49.

Scores were mostly lower than those recorded in many conferences during the regular season because shot clocks and three-point goals are not being used.

Purdue's Reid was an outstanding substitute throughout the season and was making only his fifth start. But he led the way with 20 points, hitting nine of 11 shots — including his first seven. Robert Morris, which overcame a nine-point deficit in the final 7:28, saw Forest Grant's 45-foot heave at the buzzer bang off the back of the rim.

The victory advanced Purdue to a second-round battle with ninth-ranked Arkansas. Ohio U. now takes on Kentucky.

Tatum, who finished with 11 points, appeared to have given the Bobcats the victory with 14 seconds to go when he hit a layup after stealing the ball from Illinois State's Michael McKenny. But ISU's Raynard Malaine drilled a 20-footer from the left corner to tie the game with three seconds remaining.

But Tatum made that incidental when he caught the ball in traffic around the free throw line and hit the game-winning shot.

Maryland's triumph pushed the Terrapins into a second-round match against the No. 1-ranked Houston Cougars. Saturday's other second-round game in Houston will send Lamar against No. 13 Villanova.

The Terrapins trailed Chattanooga 32-18 early in the second half before Branch sparked their comeback by scoring 17 of his game-high 22 points after the intermission.

Lamar's Robinson, averaging only 7.2 points a game, scored 10 in the first half and finished with a game-high 20 — Sewell had 19 — as the Cardinals kept alive their record of never having lost a first-round NCAA game in four tries. It was Alabama's first loss to a team outside the Southeastern Conference. Robinson also held Ennis Whatley, Alabama's star guard, to 10 points. Three Alabama players fouled out and the Crimson Tide committed 32 fouls to nine for Lamar.

Kornegay Paces Valkyries Past Warren Into Regional Finals

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

STANTONSBURG — The Valkyries of D.H. Conley outscored the Warren County Eagles 18-8 in the third quarter and cruised to a 50-36 victory in their semifinal game of the Eastern Regional girls 3-A Tournament at Wilson Beddingfield High School. The Valkyries will face Southeast Guilford for the championship Saturday at 7 p.m.

In the other semifinal contest, Southeast Guilford shocked top-ranked East Bladen with a 58-48 victory. Lori Phillips posted 22 points, with Kathleen Tompkins adding 15 and Ann Byrd 11 for Southeast Guilford. Michele McCoy netted 18 for East Bladen.

Forward Mechio Kornegay fired in 15 points and grabbed 11 rebounds to lead the Valkyries to their 26th win of the season against just three losses. Karen Barrett poured in 11 points, and Irish Barnhill added 10 for Conley.

The Eagles, who finished the 1982-83 campaign with a 19-5 record, got 12 points from Angela Fleming and 11 from Gloria Kearney.

Conley held a 21-17 advantage at halftime, but the Eagles faltered in the third period and were outscored 13-4 through the opening 4:21 of the quarter. Barrett scored six of her total during the third quarter rally which saw the Valkyries expand to a 39-25 lead.

"The last four or five games, we haven't played well in the third quarter," said Conley coach Joy James. "I knew we would have to play in the third quarter if we were going to win. I really can't tell right now what happened to change that."

Kearney pumped in five points at the start of the final period to cut the lead to 41-30 with 5:44 remaining, as Conley managed a pair of free throws from Barnhill.

Kornegay and Barrett boosted the Valkyries' offensive attack for a 46-31 advantage with 3:17 to play. After a free throw by the Eagles' Evontio Williams, Lisa Mills connected on a move inside to give the Valkyries a 48-32 advantage with 2:35 to play — their biggest of the night.

Kearney swished an attempt from 17 feet to cut the margin to 14, but Barrett drove inside to close out the Conley scoring for the night. An 18-foot jumper with 19 seconds on the clock set the final margin of 14 points.

"I think in the fourth quarter we made some stupid mistakes which could of gotten them back in the game," James admitted. "We made some turnovers and fouls that we shouldn't have. Our scouting report said that they play tough, aggressive defense, and we worked on that in practice this week."

Although Warren County committed 19 turnovers on the night compared to 18 for Conley, the Valkyries cut their third quarter total to just three while the Eagles gave away six. After being out-rebounded 17-10 in the first half, the Valkyries cut the final margin to 28-24.

After a see-saw first quarter in which the lead changed hands five times, the Eagles controlled the second period until Kornegay connected on a jumper with 1:45 till intermission. Darlene Cannon added a free throw and Kornegay drove through the lane for a 21-17 halftime edge.

"I think Warren County has a better team than what they showed tonight," James said. "Our guards did a good job tonight; they were continuously pressed. I think the difference of the game was that I have three good ballhandlers."

"The team we're going to play Saturday has good ballhandlers, as well. They have five shooters — they're very balanced. They play a sticky defense, but I don't think they press any more than we do.

"They do the fundamentals very well. They're not going to give you anything; they make you work for the good shots. I think player-for-player we're quicker than they are."

Rains Wash Out Area Contests

Rain today has forced the postponement of several area sports activities scheduled for Tuesday.

D.H. Conley's boys' and girls' track meet at West Carteret was rescheduled for April 1, while the school's softball game with North Pitt was postponed because of the girls' continued participation in the State 3-A Basketball Playoffs. It will be rescheduled at a later date, if possible.

Roanoke High School's tennis match with Bertie was reset for next Wednesday, while its participation in a track meet at Ahsokie was cancelled.

Williamston, in the same track meet, will run at Ahsokie today for both boys and girls. A Williamston tennis match with Washington was reset for Monday.

Jamesville has rescheduled its baseball and softball games with Bear Grass for today.

A tennis match between Parrott Academy and Greene Central has not been rescheduled as yet.

The continued rain and wet conditions in the area also left most of today's activities in jeopardy.

Boys Open Regionals

RALEIGH (AP) — Today's opening round of the NCHSAA boys regional will see the reversal of last year when North Carolina's first- and second-ranked Class 4A basketball teams meet, says Greensboro Page coach Mac Morris.

Top-rated Page, 23-0, goes against defending state champion and No. 2 Chapel Hill, 24-2, in the West Regional nightcap at East Burke, No. 5 Charlotte Independence, 25-2, and 21-5 McDowell, ranked 7th, meet in the 7 p.m. opener.

While Chapel Hill had the size to eliminate the Pirates in the state semifinals, Page has the size advantage this year.

"It's certainly something we've been looking forward to for 12 months," Morris said. "They're not nearly as big without John Davis (last year's 6-5 center). It's almost like a role reversal."

"Last year they were the defending state champions with several players back that had played together a long time," added Morris. "This year, we're certainly a veteran team with starters that are 45-3 over a two-year period and who have seen just about every style there is. We're a lot more mature and poised this year."

Leading Page is 6-foot-10½ junior Danny Manning, averaging 19.3 points and 9.3 rebounds. Chapel Hill will be anything but easy, especially with 6-0 junior guard Ranzino Smith, one of the state's top scorers with a 30.4 norm.

Independence is led by 6-4 Mark Maye, 6-0 Jeff McGill and 6-1 Tony White, all averaging 15 points as is McDowell's leader, 6-5 junior Ron Hausley.

On Saturday, first-round victors will get a chance to move on to the state finals March 26 at Greensboro, as will the winners of the Class 3A regionals. Class 2A and 1A finalists square off March 25.

The Class 4A East features Goldsboro, 20-6, against No. 8 Wilmington Lane, 20-4, followed by Wilson Beddingfield, 15-11, against Raleigh Enloe, 15-10.

Anthony Richardson, 6-6, a 19-point scorer, and 6-7 Howard Spencer (15 ppg) lead Goldsboro while Lane is paced by 6-4 Tommy Herring (15.5 ppg) and 6-10 Ray Gromlowicz (15).

Beddingfield's best is Baron Burks, a 16-point scorer, while Enloe depends on 6-5 Jim Dillard, a 21-point scorer, many on a variety of spectacular dunks.

Class 3A
Both 3A fields, the East at Wilson Beddingfield and the West at Hickory, feature three ranked teams.

No. 2 East Bladen, 21-2, meets No. 3 Roanoke in the East. Rodney Rhoda, a 6-3 senior, averages 20 points for East Bladen while Roanoke, a regional entrant two of the last three years, looks to Greg Everrett (16.8).

Opening the tournament will be Graham, 18-9, and No. 9 West Craven. Graham, led by Tim Jones' 23-point average, will have to find a way to slow West Craven's running game, sparked by 6-6, 205-pound Ronnie Bellamy, an 18.6 scorer.

The West nightcap sends No. 3-ranked North Surry, 26-3, against No. 5 Asheville Reynolds, 23-3. Six-four Kevin Strickland, 23.0, leads North Surry while Reynolds' big man is 6-8 Greg Dolan, 20.6 and 8.3 rebounds.

Opening West action will be Kannapolis Brown, 22-2, and No. 10 East Rutherford, 21-8. South Piedmont Conference player of the year Mark Brown, 15.1 points and 12.2 rebounds, leads Brown while East is paced by Parrish Miller, with 15.5 point and 12.4 rebound norms.

Class 2A
West Montgomery, first-ranked and the only entry listed among the state's Top 10, appears the favorite in the West. In the East, No. 2 Fairmont leads the field.

West Montgomery, 27-0, opens action at Lenoir-Rhyne against West Davidson, 24-4. Burrell Christian, 6-3 and a 16-point scorer, leads West Montgomery while West Davidson, 10-14 last year, is paced by Eddie Laws at 16.8.

In the other game Bunker Hill, 21-6, and 6-2 Eric Gibbs, 20.2, goes against Ashe Central, 22-6, which has four players in double figures, topped by Kevin Denny's 15-point average.

In the opener at Wilson Fike, Fairmont, led by Ricky McCormick (15), faces No. 5 Sampson Union, 25-1, and 6-4 sophomore Bobby Lee Smith (21).

No. 10 Clayton, 20-5, featuring 6-5½ Arnold Vinson's 23 points and 14 rebounds, meets Perquimans, 20-3, and its top scorer, 5-11 Troy Jackson and his 26.4 point norm.

Class 1A
Mattamuskeet has the only state-ranked team in the 1A Regionals and will meet Raleigh Cardinal Gibbons, 24-8, in the East nightcap at Atlantic Christian College. Mattamuskeet, 22-2, is led by 6-3 Harry Burrus (21 ppg) while Gibbons' leader is Tom Axberg, a 15.6 scorer.

Stoneville, 14-9, will play 16-9 Aurora. Stoneville's leading scorer is Joe Martin at 12 per game while Aurora is topped by Jeffrey Blango, 16.9.

At Waynesville Tuscola in the West, Edneyville, 15-11, meets Andrews, 17-7. Edneyville is paced by 6-5 junior Keith Pryor, a 25.6 scorer, and Pat Staton at 16.1.

The nightcap pits Cullowhee, 17-12, against Tryon, 18-7. Cullowhee's record includes seven forfeits for using an ineligible player, but it still has the Darden brothers, Russ and Gibb, both averaging 16.5 points per game.

Summer Loop Folding Up

The North State Summer League, which included East Carolina and other collegiate teams playing throughout June and July, has been dropped for the coming year, league president Walter Rabb announced yesterday.

East Carolina withdrew from the league earlier this year, announcing that it would not be able to financially carry the burden of the summer team, according to ECU athletic director Ken Karr.

Following ECU's withdrawal, efforts were made to get a new team into the league, and reportedly, former member Louisville Junior College, was the prime candidate for the spot.

However, North Carolina then withdrew from the league, and the group decided to fold for this summer, at least.

The Pirates had been charter members of the league, but did not participate throughout the entire history of the league.

Chaminade Nips Liberty Bapt.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The most talked-about victory in college basketball this year was nothing compared to the 3-point squeaker over Liberty Baptist College, says Tony Randolph, who was involved in both.

Chaminade of Honolulu, which beat then-No. 1 Virginia in December, barely escaped with a 63-60 victory Friday night over Liberty Baptist in the quarterfinals of the NAIA basketball tournament.

"This was a tougher game for us than the Virginia game because we had to work for it," said Randolph, the Silverswords' tallest player at 6-foot-8. "The Virginia game just happened."

In tonight's semifinals, Chaminade takes on Charleston, S. C., a 67-62 quarterfinal victor over Santa Fe, N.M., and Fort Hays, Kan., meets West Virginia Wesleyan. Fort Hays downed Loras College of Iowa 74-71 and West Virginia Wesleyan upended Carson-Newman of Tennessee 86-78 in other quarterfinal action.

In womens play today, top-seeded and defending champion Southwestern Oklahoma goes against local favorite Missouri-Kansas City and Alabama-Huntsville meets Portland, Ore. Southwestern crunched Nazareth of New York Thursday 69-38, UMKC whipped Saginaw Valley 74-67, Alabama-Huntsville beat Campbellsville, Ky., 76-66 and Portland upset Wayland Baptist of Texas 65-60. The championship games for men and women are Saturday night.

The Chaminade-Liberty Baptist game was one of the best this 32-team tournament has seen in years. The Silverswords threw a 15-0 blitz at the unseeded Flames of Lynchburg, Va., in the first half, but could not subdue Steve Isaacs, a 6-foot-8 senior who wound up with 30 points. The outcome was not decided until Chaminade's Mark Wells, with 12 seconds to go, dropped in two high-pressure free throws for what turned out to be the final margin of victory.

"My feeling is, survivors survive," said Merv Lopes, the Chaminade coach who's team stands 33-3. "There is a chance we may lose. It doesn't matter how you do it, just that you survive. In order to be successful, you must overachieve."

I have some overachievers on my team."

After Eric Gordon's jumper sliced Chaminade's lead to 59-58 with 2:08 left, Richard Haenisch put the top seeds from Hawaii back on top by three with a 10-foot bucket. Then Wells missed the front end of a one-and-one free throw 15 seconds later.

After an exchange of turnovers, Wells was fouled again, but again missed the front of a one-and-one. Liberty Baptist got the rebound and Isaacs charged down court to put in an off-balance jumper that made it 61-60 at the 1:11 mark.

After a Chaminade turnover, Isaacs missed from the top of the key, then Randolph was fouled, only to miss the front end of a one-and-one. But the 6-1 Wells grabbed the rebound, was fouled, and redeemed his earlier misses by knocking in two from the line.

"Our kids had great determination," said Liberty Baptist Coach Jeff Meyer. "We did not execute that well early, but our players overcame and got back into the game."

"I would like to be able to say that we lost by three points to the national champion," Meyer continued. "Yes, I would like to see Chaminade go on and win the title. Steve Isaacs' asserting himself offensively was a direct reflection on the good defense that Chaminade played. They took us out of just about everything we tried."

Trio Knotted In New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mark Hayes birdied the 18th hole, Curt Byrum parred it and Jay Haas took a bogey there, and as a result, the three were tied going into today's second round of the $400,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

Hayes said his 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole was his only good putt of his round, which was played in an early drizzle and 14 mph winds on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

"I was below the hole all day, which I was trying to do," said Hayes, tied for the lead after shooting a 4-under 68 Thursday. "I hit some good iron shots. They were all below the hole and all against the grain."

"If you have it against the grain, it's hard to make yourself hit it hard enough, especially going uphill. And the grain changes on you," he said.

Hass was 5-under going to the 18th before missing a six-foot putt for par, which dropped him into the three-way tie.

"I hit a good drive. I just didn't pull it off," Haas said. "Eighteen was really playing tough today. It's on a nob there, and it's really hard to get a good line on it."

Seven players, led by Bill Rogers and Jim Simons, were tied at 69. Another 13 were at 2-under 70s. Included in that logjam was Tom Watson, who won here in 1980 and 1981.

Last year, rain washed out late starters on Friday and wiped out play on Saturday and Sunday. That forced players to complete Friday's round on the following Monday, along with a final 18 holes to make it a 54-hole tournament.

Scott Hoch got off to a rough start Thursday in defense of his rain-truncated title. Suffering a sore thumb, he was well back in the pack at 75.

"The north wind made it a little more difficult," Watson said. "Three holes on the front side and four on the back side are all with the wind in your face."

New Orleans is the final event on the Seiko Grand Prix, a year-long series based on accumulated points on the Professional Golfers' Association tour. Players get 60 points for a first-place finish, 58 for second and so on.

First place in the Grand Prix is worth $150,000. Second is worth $60,000, on down to $10,000 for eighth place.

Ray Floyd, leading the Grand Prix with 644 points, shot a 73 on Thursday.

Deacons Win; Irish Unlucky

By The Associated Press

The Fighting Irish looked like the "Fainting Irish" to Digger Phelps.

"We just didn't respond defensively," said the Notre Dame coach after his basketball team dropped a stunning 71-57 decision to Northwestern Thursday night in a first-round game of the National Invitation Tournament.

"And when Aaron got hot, that was the key."

"Aaron" is Art Aaron, who scored 17 points for the Wildcats, 14 in the second half when Northwestern pulled away to a surprisingly easy victory.

"It's got to be our biggest win ever," said Northwestern Coach Rich Falk after the Wildcats improved their record to 17-12, best in the school's history, in their first-ever post-season playoff game. "To beat a team like Notre Dame, which has such a great tradition, is really an accomplishment."

In other NIT action, Virginia Tech stopped William & Mary 85-79, Nebraska defeated Tulane 72-65; Mississippi tripped Alabama State 87-75 and Wake Forest turned back Murray State 87-80.

The NIT completes its first round tonight with Bowling Green at Michigan State and Fullerton State at Arizona State.

Northwestern got 16 points each from Michael Jenkins and Jim Stack. But the real hero was Aaron, a junior forward who bounced back from a miserable first half to lead the second-half scoring binge that sealed the victory for the Wildcats, their first over Notre Dame in 22 years.

Notre Dame led 32-28 at the intermission and was ahead 40-35 early in the second half when Aaron and Co. went to work. Aaron hit a jumper to cut the lead to three, and Michael Jenkins came up with a steal and basket to pull Northwestern to within one.

Aaron hit another jumper to give Northwestern its first lead at 41-40 with 12:45 to play. After Tim Kempton scored to give the Irish their last lead at 42-41, Northwestern outscored the Irish 16-5 over the next five minutes. Paul Schultz capped the surge with a three-point play at 6:19 to give Northwestern a 57-47 lead, and the Wildcats costed home from there.

Bill Varner and John Paxson shared scoring honors for Notre Dame with 18 points each.

Virginia Tech, spurred by Dell Curry and Reggie Stepe, outscored William & Mary 23-6 over the last 7:42 of the first half to erase a six-point deficit and go on to defeat the Indians.

The spurt, in which Curry scored three field goals and Stepe added four points and several steals, staked the Hokies to a 43-32 halftime lead. The closest Indians got after that was five points, 51-46, with 12:49 left.

Virginia Tech Coach Charlie Moir said the key to the Hokies' victory was "outstanding defense in the closing minutes of the first half."

"Reggie Stepe was the sparkplug for us in this game," said Moir. "He came in and did a great job and got the entire team fired up."

That's the best he has played in quite a while."

Stan Cloudy's 20 points lifted Nebraska past Tulane. Cloudy, a 6-4 junior forward, not only led four Nebraska players in double figures, but added seven assists and 14 rebounds.

The Green Wave led early in the second half, 41-40, but a Greg Downing jumper gave Nebraska the lead for good at 14:57. The Huskers led by as many as 10 points, 66-56, en route to the victory.

Tulane Coach Ned Fowler said he was "a little surprised by their outside shooting, although we knew Cloudy could hit them if he was left unguarded."

Carlos Clark scored 26 points and Cecil Dowell added 15 free throws to lift Mississippi over Alabama State. Ole Miss sank 79 per cent of its free throws and outrebounded Alabama State 36-31.

The game seasawed early, but the Rebels scored seven straight points on Michael Partridge's layup with 10:30 left in the first half for a lead they never relinquished.

Alabama State's Lewis Jackson paced all scorers with 27 points.

Delaney Rudd scored 18 points to lead Wake Forest over Murray State. Danny Young added 17 points and Kenny Green 16 for the Deacons, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

The Racers built a 16-12 lead in the game's opening seven minutes before Wake Forest took the lead for good with a 12-2 run. Green hit three inside baskets and Rudd added a pair of layups in the streak.

seconds helped James Madison defeat West Virginia and move into Saturday's second round against eighth-ranked North Carolina, the defending NCAA champion. North Carolina squeaked past James Madison 52-50 in the second round a year ago.

With the score tied at 37, Keith Bradley scored on a turnaround jumper to give the Dukes the lead for good at 39-37 lead with 8:30 remaining. Fisher led the Dukes with 13 points, while Greg Jones, WVU's leading scorer with a 22.8 average, was held to six.

Calvin Duncan scored 22 points and Fred Brown added 18 as VCU used clutch free throw shooting — 17 of 20 in the last 7½ minutes — to oust LaSalle. The Rams will play Georgia in the next round.

Craig Ehlo scored 18 points and reserve Aaron Haskins contributed 13, while Washington State outrebounded Weber State 38-21. The Cougars meet fourth-ranked Virginia on Saturday, while Utah tackles No. 7 UCLA. Washington State also got 13 points from Bryan Pollard.

"We're a very good rebounding team," said Coach George Raveling. "If we could rebound UCLA, we could rebound Weber State. That's not to be taken as a disparaging remark against Weber State. But their athletes aren't as good as UCLA's."

Reserves Scott Hill and George Furgis each sank a pair of free throws in the final 44 seconds to lift Utah over Illinois. Freshman Manuel Hendrix and senior Peter Williams scored 14 points apiece to lead the Utes, with Hendrix hitting two free throws and then driving for a layup that put Utah ahead 48-44 with 1:15 remaining. The tourney continues tonight with four more first-round twin bills. In the East at Hartford, Conn., Syracuse meets Morehead State and Southwestern Louisiana plays Rutgers. In the Midwest at Evansville, Ind., Tennessee faces Marquette and Oklahoma goes against Alabama-Birmingham.

In the Midwest at Louisville, Ky., No. 20 Georgetown plays Alcorn State and Iowa tangles with Utah State. And in the West at Corvallis, Ore., No. 19 Oklahoma State meets Princeton and No. 16 North Carolina State faces Pepperdine.

Rocky Mount Girls Move Into Finals

By The Associated Press
Matching her season's average, Kim Taylor scored 32 points to lead Rocky Mount to a 64-40 victory over Goldsboro in the NCHSAA East Regional 4A basketball playoffs Thursday night at Wilson Hunt.

The 6-foot-3 Taylor got some assistance from Sharon Pratt with 13 points as the Gryphons improved their record to 19-6, winning for the 18th time in its last 19 starts. Charyste Best and Amy Betha scored 10 points each for Goldsboro, which finished 23-5.

In the opener, No. 2-ranked and unbeaten Raleigh Broughton got 18 points each from Matisha Brown and Kim Joiner as it ran past Fayetteville Pine Forest 48-33 for its 28th victory.

Broughton shook off a slow start to take a 21-14 halftime lead and Pine Forest, riddled by injury and illness, could never recover. Torchel Pegeus had 14 points to lead the 26-2 Trojans and Brenda Scott added 10.

Competing for the regional title Saturday beginning at 7 p.m. will be Rocky Mount and Broughton.

Class 3A
At Wilson Beddingfield, Lori Phillips scored 22 points to lead Southeast Guilford to a 58-48 upset victory over top-ranked East Bladen.

The Falcons, 24-3, had an 8-point lead over the Cougars in the third period, but East Bladen pulled to within one in the final quarter, but Guilford sank 6 of 12 free throws to maintain their lead. The Cougars end the season with a 22-1 record.

In the second game, D.H. Conley used an 18-8 scoring blitz in the third quarter to seal a 50-36 victory over Warren County.

The Valkyries, 26-3, were led by Mechio Kornegay with 16 points, Karen Barrett with 11 and Irish Barnhill with 10. The Eagles, 19-5, were led by Angela Fleming with 12 points and Gloria Kearney with 11.

The Falcons meet the Valkyries Saturday night at 7 p.m. for the title.

Class 2A
Amy Townsend scored 26 points to spark 8th-ranked Orrum to an 80-58 upset victory over the 2nd-ranked and previously unbeaten East Carteret Lady Mariners 80-58.

April Ford added 18 points, while Tanya Evans had 17, as the Raiders raised their record to 24-2. The Lady Mariners, 28-1, were led by Della Burney with 22 points and Stephanie Willis with 14.

The Franklinton Lady Rams pulled another upset, knocking off 10th-rated Whiteville 38-36 in the second game with two free throws by Suzette Canady wrapping up the victory.

Canady's free throws with 34 seconds left gave the Lady Rams a 37-34 margin. After the Wolfettes scored on a field goal, the Lady Rams' Angela Brown hit a free throw with one second remaining for the final margin.

Franklinton is now 21-3 while Whiteville fell to 25-2.

Orrum and Franklinton play Saturday at Wilson Fike for the championship at 7 p.m.

Class 1A
Marion Williams scored 21 points and Sheila Silver 20 as the Eastern North Carolina School for the Deaf defeated Chocowinity 50-46 at Atlantic Christian College.

The Indians, 19-5, were led by Wendy Elks with 16 points, followed by Kim Green with 13 and Verna Myers with 10. The Hornets, now 18-5, held the lead down the stretch behind Williams' hot hand.

In the nightcap, Cathy Ellis scored 32 points and grabbed 23 rebounds to lead Rosewood past Belhaven 58-51.

Ellis was followed in scoring for the Eagles by Karen Bond with 12 points. The Bulldogs were led by Telli Cotton with 17 points, Daphne Leathers with 14 and Toni Hutson with 11.

The Hornets face the Eagles for the fifth time this season on Saturday night in the championship. Rosewood has won three of the previous meetings.

Jackie Anderson's 25 points boosted number one and unbeaten Gastonia Hunter Huss to a 79-54 triumph over Greensboro Page at East Burke in the NCHSAA West Regional 4A basketball playoffs Thursday night.

The Huskies, 27-0, also received 18 points each from Alley Wilson and 5-10 Karen Robinson.

The Lady Pirates, eliminated at 18-4, were led by Angie Green with 17 points and Anita Bennerman with 16. Gastonia Huss led 45-34 at halftime but outscored Page 12-2 in the third period to clinch the victory.

Gastonia Ashbrook also used a big third quarter as it knocked off East Mecklenburg 49-40 behind the shooting of the Tate sisters.

Kathy Tate scored 19 points and Deanna Tate added 18 as Ashbrook ran its record to 20-4 and set up an all-Gastonia final. Leading 21-17 at halftime, the Lady Wave outscored the Eagles 14-6 in the third quarter.

Julie Theberge and April Whitten had 10 points each for the Eagles, who closed at 18-7.

Huss and Ashbrook have met three times this season with Huss winning each. They will tip-off the championship tilt at 7 p.m.

Class 3A
Donna Johnson scored 17 points, including the winning layup with 16 seconds left as Madison-Mayodan knocked off Kannapolis Brown 49-47 at Hickory in a battle of unbeaten.

Johnson's layup may have proved costly as he injured her ankle on the play and required X-rays. Kannapolis Brown, which led 43-39 entering the final period, was led by Amy Privette's 21 points.

Madison-Mayodan's record rose to 28-0 while Brown closed at 24-1.

Michelle Barrett scored 17 points to lead the Enka Sugar Jets to a 56-39 victory over Lincolnton. Enka, 26-3 jumped into a 29-21 halftime lead and extended it throughout the second half.

Lincolnton closed at 17-6, despite getting 16 points from Clarissa Metts.

Madison-Mayodan and Enka compete for the title Saturday at 7 p.m.

Class 2A
Defending state champion Bandys and once-beaten Monroe Parkwood will meet Saturday at 7 p.m. for the championship after posting victories at Lenoir Rhyne College Thursday night.

Bandys shot 65 percent from the floor and hit 37 of 57 free throws as it downed Sylva-Webster 83-70. Parkwood hit its free throws down the stretch to deal Southwest Guilford its first loss 50-48.

Beverly Greenard and Tina Ijmes each scored 19 points for Bandys, 29-0. The Lady Trojans have now won 35 straight games. Angie Benson had 19 points to lead Sylva-Webster, 28-3.

Cynthia Monroe paced Parkwood, 21-8, with 16 points, while Dana Gregg had 13 for the losing Cowgirls, 25-1. Parkwood coach Bobby Lutz is in his first year at Parkwood after serving as an assistant at Bandys last year.

Class 1A
Martha Simonds scored 18 points and Pam McNabb added 17 to lead defending state champion Hiwassee Dam to a 61-37 victory over Cherokee.

The Lady Eagles are now 25-3 while Cherokee fell to 14-10, with leading scorers Layne Johnson, Doris Johnson, and Trudy Welch each scoring 8 points.

The Bravettes were hampered by the loss of leading scorer Dee Owle, who is out with an injury.

In the second game, Highlands connected on six straight free throws in the final minutes and held on for a 55-54 victory over Polk Central. Morgan Higgs, with 23 points, was the leading scorer for Highlands, now 22-6, while Debbie Head added 15 and Marty Caye 14.

Caye's two free throws with seven seconds left put the Lady Highlanders ahead 55-52. Melissa Pruett led the Lady Patriots, also 22-6, with 17 and Jo Miller finished with 15.

Spinks, Braxton Clash

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Michael Spinks and Dwight Braxton, who pounded one another in sparring sessions as up-and-coming light heavyweights with only pride at stake, fight tonight for an undisputed championship of the world.

"This is the healthiest thing for the division that has been promoted in a long time," said Archie Moore, one of history's great fighters.

As light heavyweight champion from 1952 until 1960, Moore toiled in the shadows of heavyweight kings Rocky Marciano and Floyd Patterson and such smaller fighters as Sugar Ray Robinson and Kid Gavilan.

Moore, here for the scheduled 15-round bout at the 14,000-seat Convention Hall, recalled that he got $800 when he won the 175-pound class title on a 15-round decision over Joey Maxim in 1952.

Promoter Butch Lewis has announced the purses as $2.1 million each, but some boxing people feel Spinks and Braxton will be getting closer to $1.2 million apiece.

A sellout, with tickets priced from $300 down to $25, would mean a gross gate of $1.7 million. Other revenue will come from the Home Box Office live telecast beginning at 10:27 p.m. EST and limited closed

Epilogue To Winter

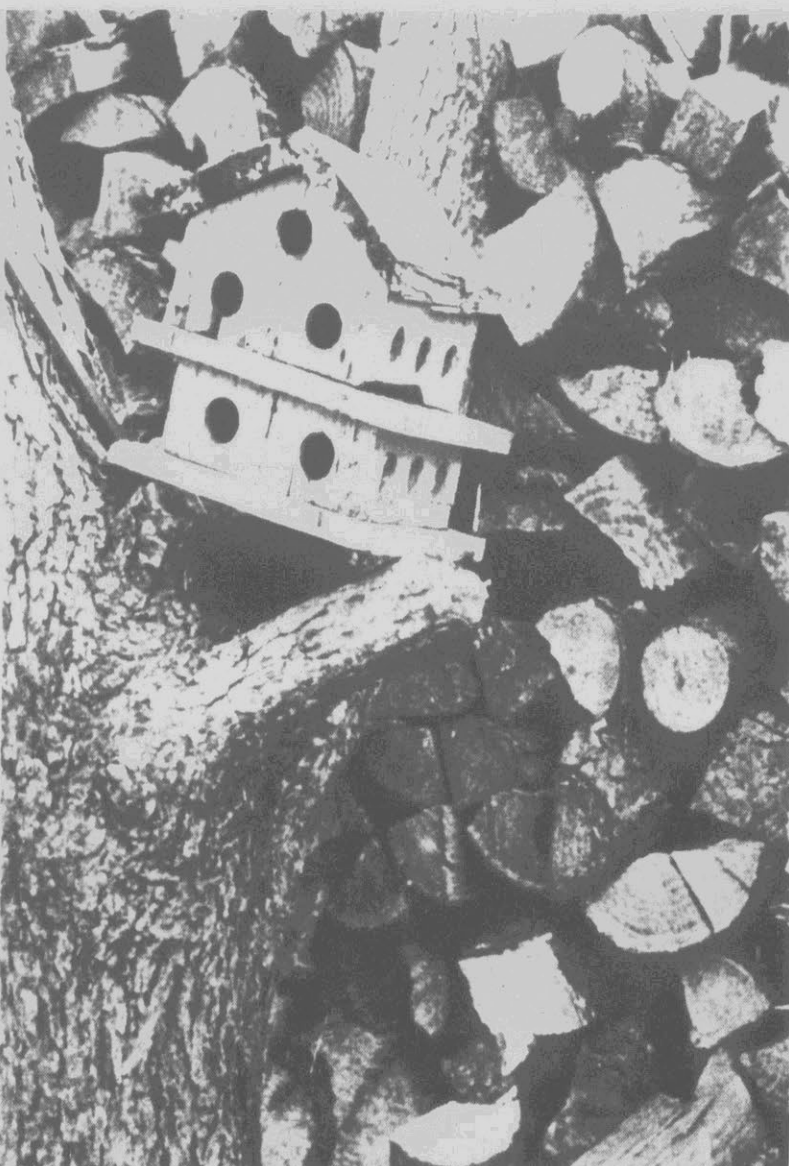

The first tokens of spring appear in eastern North Carolina days and even weeks before the March 20 calendar date marking the season's official entry. Henbit, tulip trees, daffodil, forsythia, pear trees and dandelions are among flowering harbingers that say "winter's past, spring stands ready to be ushered in."

For a brief time span in mid-March, nature conspires to provide an ideal interval in which the basic bareness of trees and fields coincide with early days of warm wanderlust weather.

This transitional period is an ideal time to explore the local countryside: to view buds burgeoning on the tips of tree branches; to enjoy a final glimpse of winter's tracery of trees against a cloud-scudded sky; and in low-lying areas to seek out new waterscapes created by winter rains overflowing creeks and rivers in the area.

It's a magic time for exciting discoveries and rediscoveries; to smell the damp fragrances of fertile earth; to experience the caress of sunlight gentle on face and shoulders.

This epilogue to winter's masculine bareness bridges the days between winter's end and the prologue to springtime's verdant feminine glory.

CONTRAST IN WOODS ... are among discoveries to be made before summer vines appear and hide from sight a discarded old birdhouse wedged in the crotch of a living tree against a pile of cord wood.

An Overflow Of Waters

AFTER THE WINTER RAINS ... an overflow of waters create new water images to be discovered. In this photograph, taken in Greenville's River

Park North, native willow trees, normally on dry ground, stand reflected in more than two feet of winter water.

Lowly Kudzu Gets
Aura Of Respect

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Kudzu, the irrepressible, choking vine that Southerners love to hate, has gained a measure of respect in these parts.
County commissioners voted Wednesday to designate kudzu the "official weed" of Hamilton County.
A.J. Bulstrode, vice chairman of the unofficial Long Range, Way Down the Road and Out of Sight Planning Commission, requested the designation.
Bulstrode's group organized the "Kudzu Ball" last August in Chattanooga. The tongue-in-cheek celebration raised more than $7,000 for the Chattanooga Birth Defects Center, and another Kudzu Ball is planned this year.
Bulstrode had first intended to ask that kudzu be designated the city's official weed, but, he said, "Kudzu knows no city limits.

"It knows no county limits either, so we may soon be in Nashville or Washington," he added.
The plant was imported to this country from Japan and China. The Department of Agriculture urged farmers in the 1930s to plant the tough vine on hillsides to battle widespread erosion in the South.
Today, the choking tendrils are the bane of property owners. Kudzu covers an estimated 7 million acres in 12 southeastern states.
Hamilton County Executive Dalton Roberts hailed the commission's recognition of kudzu.
"We think it typifies the people in Chattanooga," he said. "We're persistent, durable and cute."

Familiar Faces Won Choice Awards

AWARD — Henry Thomas, left, Drew Barrymore and Robert Macnaughton, young stars of "E.T.," hold on to their crystal People's Choice award after the film was named Favorite Motion Picture. (AP Laserphoto)

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Jane Fonda scored for the fourth straight year as the nation's favorite actress, while actor Burt Reynolds and country star Kenny Rogers both repeated as tops in their fields at the People's Choice Awards.

Barbara Mandrell, who last year took three awards, was a repeat winner Thursday as favorite all-around female performer, and "M-A-S-H," which recently ceased production after 11 years, got the nod as favorite TV comedy program for the sixth straight year.

"Hill Street Blues," 1982's favorite new series, was this year's favorite TV dramatic program.

The nationally televised ninth annual awards were determined by a Gallup poll.

The box-office smash, "E.T. the Extra-Terrestrial" was chosen as favorite film, and "The Blue and the Gray" was named favorite new TV miniseries.

Reynolds was named favorite all-around male entertainer and favorite motion picture actor, repeating his triumphs in the two categories last year. Reynolds now has won the film acting award four times and the all-around award three times.

Rogers also repeated two wins from last year, winning favorite country music performer and favorite musical performer during the two-hour CBS awards telecast hosted by Dick Van Dyke at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

Miss Fonda shared the favorite-actress award this year with Katharine Hepburn, her co-star in "On Golden Pond."

Gary Coleman of NBC-TV's "Diff'rent Strokes" also won his fourth consecutive award as favorite young television performer, while Brooke Shields took favorite young motion picture performer for the third straight year.

Linda Evans of "Dynasty" picked up her second consecutive favorite female TV performer award, which she shared with Loretta Swit of "M-A-S-H."

Tom Selleck, the "Magnum, P.I." star who in 1981 was voted favorite male performer in a new TV series, graduated this year to favorite male TV performer.

This year's favorite new programs both are set in Boston. "Cheers," about the denizens of a saloon, won in the comedy category, while "St. Elsewhere," which follows the goings-on at a large hospital, took drama honors.

Voted favorite female and male performers in a new series were Patty Duke Astin, the working wife in "It Takes Two," and David Hasselhoff, who uses a computerized car to fight crime in "Knight Rider."

The evening's third tie was for favorite song, which went to Lionel Richie's "Truly," Tiger, the theme to "Rocky and Survivor's "Eye of the III."

Ruining Movie

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The producer of "Special Bulletin" says NBC is ruining his movie, in which a fictitious network news department reports on a terrorist nuclear bomb threat.

Concerned that some television viewers might be fooled by the simulated coverage of the threat to blow up Charleston, S.C., NBC on Thursday ordered "cautionary procedures" designed to reassure viewers of "Special Bulletin" on Sunday night.

Some of those disclaimers include written and verbal messages following commercial breaks, emphasizing that the movie is fiction and not an actual news event, and the advisory, "A Dramatization," placed on the screen during "climactic portions of the program."

"Special Bulletin" was taped like an actual news production, rather than filmed, to add to the realism.

The fictional RBS network frequently interrupts regular programming for reports from Charleston, where a docked tugboat is carrying a nuclear bomb, the terrorists and a TV correspondent who can broadcast live on the network.

Producer Don Ohlmeyer, reached at his home in Hawaii, said he was dismayed by NBC's last-minute treatment of his film. "The only way to do this movie is realistically," he said. "The answer is not to destroy the picture."

Ohlmeyer, formerly executive producer of NBC Sports and now an independent producer, said he is looking into the possibility of withdrawing the program from broadcast. But Curt Block, an NBC spokesman, said the network "has every intention of broadcasting the program Sunday night. It will be seen."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cable television operators across the country are apparently making good on their vows to drop various TV channels rather than pay higher copyright fees.

As a result, millions of consumers have lost access to distant TV stations that were generally available to them only through cable.

The new copyright fees, which took effect Tuesday, are paid by cable operators for the right to retransmit the signals of independent TV stations located outside their cities. The best known "distant signals" are the so-called super stations distributed nationally via satellite — WTBS-TV in Atlanta, WOR-TV in New York and WGN-TV in Chicago.

An informal survey by The Associated Press Thursday found those three stations alone reporting estimated losses of 2 million viewers.

That doesn't include cable subscribers who lost so-called regional distant signals — a TV station that a cable operator imported from a nearby larger city that might be as close as 35-to-40 miles to his system.

"It's as bad as we thought it would be," said Edward Dooley, a spokesman for the National Cable Television Association. "It was definitely 'Black Tuesday.'"

Dooley said Thursday the trade association had yet to attempt a comprehensive survey of its members. Nonetheless, he added, the association is sticking with projections from an earlier survey that found roughly 6.3 million subscribers would be affected by the loss of a distant signal when the fee increases took effect.

That survey, was based on reports from the nation's 28 largest cable operators.

Balloon Message Brings Answer

Kim Morris of Bell Arthur, a second grader at Sam D. Bundy School in Farmville, recently received an answer to a message she placed inside a helium-filled balloon that was released in January.

The response came from a woman in Seymour, Conn., who wrote that her husband and a coworker found the balloon while clearing a gravesite.

Kim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lanny Morris of Bell Arthur, released a balloon during a Chi Rho Youth Group "Balloons over Bell Arthur" launch. Each member of the youth group had learned several Bible verses which they wrote on slips of paper and placed in helium balloons, along with their names and addresses.

The Chi Rho group, which is sponsored by the Arthur Christian Church, estimates that Kim's balloon traveled more than 500 miles in less than three weeks.

Suing Psychiatrist For Hinckley Shots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The three men wounded with President Reagan by John Hinckley Jr. are suing his psychiatrist for $14 million. They are charging Dr. John J. Hopper Jr. "knew or should have known" that Hinckley would attempt a political assassination.

President Reagan did not join in the suit.

The suit accuses Hopper, who treated Hinckley for five months before the March 30, 1981 shootings, of being negligent in his diagnosis and treatment and of failing "to warn law enforcement officials of Hinckley's dangerousness."

Presidential press secretary James Brady, the most severely injured with a bullet in the brain, asked $8 million in damages; Secret Service agent Timothy J. McCarthy, hit in the right chest by a bullet that pierced his lung and liver, $2 million; patrolman Thomas Delahanty, struck in the neck by a bullet that lodged near his spine, $4 million.

The suit was to be filed in U.S. District Court in Denver today.

Hopper did not return a telephone call to his office in Evergreen, Colo., a small town outside Denver where Hinckley lived with his parents, but he told station KOA in Denver that he could not comment on the suit until he talked to his attorney.

Hopper last examined Hinckley on March 26, 1981. Four days later Hinckley shot the president and the three others.

FOCUS

A Matter of Time

A hundred years ago, each community in the U.S. had its own time — a time that was usually different from the neighboring towns. As rail travel became more and more commonplace, these time differences confused passengers who needed to change trains. After missing a train connection because of this confusion, Sanford Fleming, who built the Intercolonial Railway across Canada, drew up a plan to divide the world into regulated or standard time zones. An international conference in Washington, D.C. adopted Fleming's idea in 1884. But it was not until 1918 — 75 years ago tomorrow — that Congress passed the Standard Time Act which set boundaries for time zones in the U.S.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 Pass 2 Pass
4 Pass Pass Pass
Opening lead: Queen of ♦.

Yes, the North-South hands and the auction are the same as in yesterday's column. But no, this is not the same hand requiring the same play, because the East-West hands have been changed, thereby creating a completely different problem for declarer.

In yesterday's hand, East held all the missing trumps. Today they are in the West hand, and so declarer has a sure trump loser and a lot of work to do.

Again, as a matter of technique, declarer should duck the opening spade lead and win the continuation. A trump to the king reveals the sad news about the trump break, and now declarer needs a minor miracle.

There is only one combination of cards that allows declarer to bring home his contract — he must hope that the hand with the ace of clubs has only two diamonds. To take advantage of that lie of the cards, declarer must now cash his two high diamonds and then lead a club.

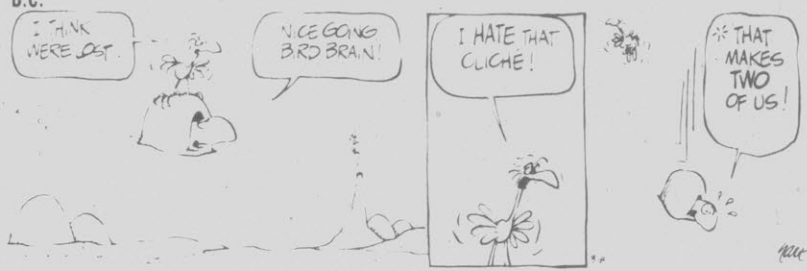

West can win the ace of clubs, but he is end played. If he leads a trump, he gives up his trump trick; if he leads another club, declarer will pitch his diamond loser, and if he tries to exit with a spade, declarer will ruff in dummy and sluff the losing diamond from his hand. Declarer will lose only one trick in each suit except diamonds.

Life As It's Lived

It's Another Period Of A Growing Vocabulary

By GAIL MICHAELS

Zachary is beginning to exhibit that fascination with language which is the hallmark of the 2- to 4-year-old set. He mimics his friends and family indiscriminately, or almost. The more expressive of strong emotions the word is, the better he likes it.

Suddenly, for instance, he "hates" everything. He hates broccoli. He hates spinach. He hates squash, bedtime, potties, clouds, mud, wet socks and cat food (after a few preliminary taste tests). All of these things, according to him, are "yukky," and each time he says this word, he rolls his tongue to one side of his chin and scrunches up his nose to signify the extent of his revulsion.

"Yukky" things are to be distinguished from "stupid" things. Our car is stupid. So is any pedestrian who happens to slow our car down when its out on the road. So are red lights and anything that falls and breaks when Zachary is not supposed to be handling it. And so is anything that causes him emotional or physical pain (aside from spankings which, for some inexplicable reason, are always classified as "yukky" and nothing else).

If yukky and stupid were the only new words Zachary had added to his repertoire, I wouldn't be too concerned, although Meg was taught at that age that stupid was a word better left unsaid. Phillip and I watched our language so carefully that a few times I did slip and call a particularly irritating character a stupid idiot or something equally colorful. Meg was appalled at my simple abandon.

I would like to attribute Zachary's more extensive vocabulary to the influence of an older sister and her friends but, unfortunately, it is I who must accept the blame. I find that as I get older, I am experiencing a decline in self-control.

Or it may simply be that two children are too much for me to handle without letting off some verbal steam. Even I am aghast at some of the words coming out of my mouth lately; dummy, yoyo and expletive deleted are but a few. And Zachary has carefully catalogued each one for future use.

I gain some solace from noticing that other mothers with more than one child are behaving in the same irrational manner. A 2-year-old down the street from us shocked her mother with the use of a four-letter word.

"Leslie, we don't say that in our house," she admonished.

"You do," replied the child.

"Well, then, you don't say that in our house."

Naturally, Leslie assumed after that discussion that decorum demanded that use of the word be confined to the garage, patio and church.

Phillip, who benefits from 10 hours a day away from minor provocation, is not particularly sympathetic to my plight. He told me I absolutely had to learn to control myself before

Zachary comes up with something worse than the "dem, dem, dem, dem" with which he greeted Phillip the other evening.

"Them what?" Phillip asked.

"Just dem," Zachary said.

"De cat is making me angry."

"Is the cat 'them?'"

Zachary was truly exasperated. "Don't you know dem? Dat's what you're suppose to say when you're berry mad."

Exercise In Creativity

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)

A concert of Stephen Foster songs played on cardboard instruments was the noisy culmination of an exercise in creativity for art students at the University of North Carolina.

When conductor and design instructor Jim Gallucci gave the downbeat Thursday, the hall suddenly filled with a cardboard cacophony that bore little resemblance to "Way Down Upon the Swannee River." But it did give the performers and crowd a good laugh.

"I've lost my place!" shrieked one student amid the confusion.

Each of Gallucci's students had to construct a "functional" musical instrument out of cardboard that could play three notes. Each also had to give a three-minute solo performance for the crowd.

For Gallucci, a UNC-Greensboro art instructor for six years, it is merely the latest in a series of cardboard projects he has dreamed up for his classes.

In years past, they have had to design and produce cardboard vehicles that could carry a 155-pound payload for 20 yards, "air machines" that would carry 10 pounds the length of a football field, a whole room of furniture, and water machines they wouldn't mind floating around a lake in.

"Don't ask me what my next one will be," he said. "It took me a whole year to think up this."

'Resentful' Of An Implication

WASHINGTON (AP)

Roman Catholic bishops have voiced resentment at what they term recent Reagan administration implications that church policy in Central America serves Marxist interest.

The president of the U.S. bishops, Archbishop John R. Roach of St. Paul, Minneapolis, has asked President Reagan for a meeting about it, saying in a letter to him:

"Any hint that the fundamental pastoral vision and ministry of the Catholic Church are based on an alien ideology or seek to serve its purposes must be rejected."

SPEAKER — W. Burkette Raper, president of Mount Olive College, will speak at the 11 a.m. service Sunday at Bethany Church.
