New Hospital Argued At Public Hearing

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A proposal to erect a 65-bed privately operated psychiatric hospital in Greenville drew opposition Tuesday night from representatives of Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

Opponents said the proposed Charter Pines Hospital would "draw off the cream" of the paying patients while leaving the rest to PCMH. A handful of speakers favoring the Charter proposal said it would improve psychiatric care available in eastern North Carolina by providing more facilities and competition to the PCHM medical complex.

The pros and cons of the proposal were voiced at a public hearing held by the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency.

Charter Medical Inc., based in Macon, Ga., has applied to the ECHSA for a certificate of need to build a 65-bed psychiatric hospital — to be known as Charter Pines Hospital — at an estimated cost of $6 million. The facility would provide 44 psychiatric beds, primarily for children and adolescents, and 25 beds for the treatment of adult alcohol and drug abuse patients.

Charter Medical, a stock company listed on the American Stock Exchange, operates 44 hospitals in the United States and several foreign companies, including a 100-bed facility in Greensboro, and a 75-bed hospital in Winston-Salem. The firm has recently received approval for a new hospital in Raleigh.

Louis Ridgeway, a member of the ECHSA project review committee, presided at the hearing and told the estimated 150 persons attending the meeting that the session was being held to "solicit comments." He said the hearing was "not a debate and will not be conducted as such."

Ridgeway, administrator of Edgecombe General Hospital in Tarboro and a member of the ECHSA's governing board, said the results of the hearing would be presented to the full project review committee and to the ECHSA governing board for action.

The EC HSA project review committee will meet at the Willis Building at 7 p.m. March 30 to consider the Charter Medical proposal, while the ECHSA governing board will meet April 13 at 7:15 p.m. at the Ramada Inn.

Chris Mansfield, associate director of the ECHSA, told the audience that the questions to be considered by the health systems agency were "much larger than Pitt County." He explained that over the past several months applications have been submitted for "14 free-standing psychiatric facilities" statewide. Three of them, he said, are "competing applications" affecting eastern North Carolina.

He said applications have been received from Cumberland Mental Health for a hospital in Rocky Mount and from Neal Realty for an 80-bed hospital in New Bern.

Quality Not In Question

Accreditation Loss Calmly Accepted

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University officials said today that they are not overly concerned about the loss of accreditation for the school's teacher education programs by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education, indicating that the accreditation should be restored next year.

NCATE, a Washington-based national organization, voted March 4 to deny accreditation, effective Sept. 1.

Dr. Angelo Volpe, acting vice chancellor for academic affairs said this morning that the NCATE action was based on problems it perceived with organization and administration of teacher education programs. He indicated that the denial is temporary and emphasized that it would not affect teacher certification or degrees.

"The quality of the programs was never in question but ... administration and supervision of the teacher education programs was different from the standards which they promulgate and which they are accustomed to," Volpe explained.

The ECU program, according to Volpe, "has not changed substantially from the program that was fully accredited five years ago by NCATE. But apparently the standards as applied by NCATE have undergone an evolution of the past five years."

Volpe said the ECU teacher education program has emphasized diversity and "authority in such a program is not centralized. The format of diversity is one of the areas NCATE had difficulties with."

"What we have perceived as a strength, they have perceived as a lack of centralization of authority," he said.

University officials are "confident that renewal of

Consumer Prices Dropped In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — Record declines in gasoline and fuel oil prices sent consumer prices tumbling 0.2 percent last month, the government said today. It was only the second time since 1965 that consumers' costs have actually fallen.

Gasoline prices plummeted 6.7 percent; over the last four months they have fallen 10.8 percent. Fuel oil prices fell 4.7 percent.

The costs of food and housing were unchanged. Medical care expenses soared 0.8 percent.

Today's report from the Labor Department — following three months of little or no gain — boosted economists' predictions that the Consumer Price Index for all of 1983 may match last year's 3.9 percent, the smallest rise in a decade.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the new report "proves that we have made decisive progress against inflation ... while, at the same time, beginning a recovery, which is our ultimate goal."

As for gasoline and home heating oil, economists say they expect even further declines in the coming months as a result of OPEC's decision last week to slash its base price for crude oil by $5 a barrel, to $29.

Today's report said that gasoline prices, as of last month, were 16.6 percent below their peak level of March 1981. Last month's record drop came after a 3.3 percent decline in January and a 0.8 percent fall in December.

Food prices, unchanged last month, have risen only 0.8 percent in the last 12 months. Economists, however, expect those prices to pick up somewhat later this year, partly as a result of the heavy farmer participation in the Reagan administration's new Payment in Kind program to trim price-depressing crop surpluses.

Analysts also say the heavy rains on the West Coast may have damaged California fruit and vegetable crops so severely that prices will rise further. Last month, however, those prices tumbled sharply.

When restaurant and alcoholic beverage prices are added in, overall food prices last month rose 2.1 percent. Those prices had risen 0.1 percent in January after being unchanged in both November and December.

Last month, fruit and vegetable prices fell 1 percent. Prices for meat, poultry, fish and eggs rose a slight 0.1 percent, as did prices for dairy products. Cereal and bakery goods prices rose 0.3 percent while restaurant meal prices were unchanged and prices for alcoholic beverages rose 0.5 percent.

For the last 12 months, consumer prices overall have risen 3.5 percent.

If last month's 0.2 percent decline held steady for 12 straight months, the yearly drop would be 2.4 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of monthly prices that the figure the department makes public.

Consumer prices rose 0.2 percent in January, fell 0.3 percent in December and were unchanged in November.

NATO Reaffirms Deployment

VILAMOURA, Portugal — Western alliance defense ministers today renewed a pledge to deploy U.S. missiles in Europe this year to counter an expanding Soviet nuclear arsenal.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and 12 counterparts in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization declared their solidarity with a nuclear deployment schedule that is denounced by of millions of Europeans opposed to nuclear weapons.

In discussions Tuesday, the Europeans told Weinberger they favored new U.S. proposals at Geneva as an alternative to President Reagan's so-called zero-option plan which has been rejected by the Soviets. Weinberger said today that if progress was made in the Geneva negotiations the NATO deployment could be halted.

"All of the ministers agreed that the nuclear arsenal of the Soviet Union is far more than they require for defense purposes, whatever the combination against them," said NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns.

In their communique, the ministers said the Soviets have 1,053 warheads on their triple-warhead SS20s and an additional 250 warheads on shorter range SS4 and SS5 rockets.

"Ministers noted that the Soviets are replacing older shorter range missiles with formidable array of new more accurate systems, namely the SS21, SS22 andSS23, which if deployed forward could reach deep into Western Europe," the communique added.

"They agreed that such a concerted buildup, in spite of a decade of restraint by NATO, was far more than was necessary for purely defensive purposes," the communique said.

Weinberger said "there was full reaffirmation of the need to deploy." At the same time, he said, if an arms limitation agreement is reached with the Soviets at talks in Geneva the deployment would be stopped. If it comes after the missiles are deployed they wil be removed.

"What goes in can come out," Weinberger said.

British Defense Minister Michael Heseltine said "the commitment to the deployment is total," but he added that "nobody would be more pleased than theBritish government" if agreement to avoid the missile basing is reached.

The best way to get the Soviet Union to agree to arms reduction would be to proceed with the deployment plans, Heseltine said.

Neither Luns, Weinberger or Heseltine would give a timetable on U.S. consideration of proposals for an alternate negotiating proposal to the current Reagan administration demand for elimination of all intermediate missiles in Europe.

"It's up to the president," Weinberger said.

A senior U.S. official told reporters the European members of the alliance unanimously favored urging the Americans to come up with new proposals to break a stalemate in disarmament talks in Geneva, Switzerland, between the United States and the Soviet Union.

No progress in the talks has been reported since last year, when Reagan offered the "zero option" — a promise to scrap plans for the NATO deployment if the Soviets dismantle their SS-20 force.

The Soviets rejected the plan and offered a proposal that would leave the Soviets with 162 missiles and no new U.S. missiles in Europe.

Britain's Heseltine, and Manfred Woerner of West Germany want the U.S. administration to offer an interim solution that would permit the signing of an agreement before the missiles would be deployed.

Farmville Chief Police Is Chosen Man Of Year

FARMVILLE — Farmville Police Chief Ron Cooper was named Farmville Man of the Year Tuesday night during the annual chamber of commerce-civic clubs banquet here.

"I've never seen the boss at a loss for words many times," Police Sgt. Jenny Childers said, "but when he heard the announcement he was speechless."

This award is given each year here to the male citizen of Farmville deemed by a secret committee to have contributed the most during the past year to the well-being of the Farmville community.

Chamber of commerce Chairman Gene Gray, in presenting the award, noted that Cooper has set up a senior citizens call-in-for-safety program for the town, has established and led a Police Explorer Scout program for several years, has established Crime Watch programs in 98 percent of the town, has upgraded traffic safety programs at the three public schools within the town limits, and has been actively involved in the promotion of education and services to autistic children since he became the stepfather of an autistic child three years ago.

Gray said the Farmville community's greatest debt to Cooper, though, is for the peacefulness, effectiveness and professionalism with which the police department has been run since he came here as chief in 1977. Gray said Farmville had long had a history of controversy surrounding and high turnover within the police department. This has been turned around under Cooper's administration, he said, because of Cooper's constant going to bat for his personnel and his encouragement of them to keep themselves totally involved with and responsible for the well-being of the community.

RON COOPER

Originally from Knoxville, Tenn., Cooper has been in law enforcement since 1972 when he joined the Durham City Police Department. He left there with the rank of sergeant and went to the Durham County Sheriff's Department. In 1973 he became chief of the Whiteville Police Department; in 1977 chief in Farmville. Last year, with the blessings of the Farmville Town Commissioners, he retained his position here while running unsuccessfully for sheriff of Pitt County.

He studied law enforcement at Southeastern Community College in Whiteville and has taken numerous advanced courses in law enforcement. He is a state-certified law enforcement and firearms instructor. A veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, he is a member of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, the National Association of Chiefs of Police, and the North Carolina Police Executives Association; a past-director of the N.C. Police Chief Association, president of the Coastal Plains Advisory Board of the Coastal Law Enforcement Academy, and a past board member of the Farmville Mental Health Center.

He and his wife, Ginny, a member of the Farmville Public Library staff, have five sons — Ronnie and Chad Cooper and Steve, Mark and Tony Natale.

Contacted this morning, he said, "I am thrilled. Anything I have accomplished has not been done alone. All the professionals within this department have worked together to make police service in Farmville what it is. I salute these people and thank them for their contribution to bringing me this honor. I also salute the wonderful woman I married since coming to Farmville."

Kuwait Invests In U. S. Land

KUWAIT (AP) — This oil-rich Arab nation has invested $144 million in federally owned territory in the United States, the Kuwaiti oil minister says.

Sheik Ali al-Khalifa made the disclosure to Parliament on Tuesday while protesting a recent decision by U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt to ban foreign investment in federal lands.

"We shall seek to rectify this decision, through legal means," the sheik said. He added, however, that the investment represented a "negligible" percentage of Kuwaiti funds invested in U.S. territory.

New Evidence Supports Bulgarian Involvement

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence from a Bulgarian defector supports testimony by Mehmet Ali Agca that he was working for Bulgaria when he tried to kill Pope John Paul II, The New York Times reported today.

Iordan Mantarov, 48, a Bulgarian diplomat who defected to France in July 1981, told French intelligence agents that a plot to kill the pope was devised by the KGB, the Soviet intelligence agency, and by the Bulgarian secret service, the newspaper said.

The plan was drawn up, Mantarov said, because the two agencies believed the pope was the keystone of a United States effort to subvert the Polish government and move it away from the Communist bloc.

Mantarov said he was a close friend of Dimiter Savov, who he said was a high-ranking official in the counterintelligence division of the Bulgarian state security agency. The Times said independent intelligence sources confirmed the existence of an agency official by that name, although they could not be sure of his position.

The Bulgarian government has called the implication that Bulgarians were involved in the May 13, 1981, assassination attempt on the pope a fabrication by Western intelligence agencies.

The Soviet Union repeatedly has denied any role in the attack.

Mantarov's account, according to French intelligence sources, represents the first report from a Bulgarian defector who was in an official position at the time of the shooting. It was uncovered during a two-month investigation by the Times, in seven countries, of the purported assassination plot.

The Times said the new information was not conclusive. The Times said the investigation also found that Sergei I. Antonov, 35, an official of Bulgarian Airlines being held by Italians on suspicion that he was Agca's accomplice, repeatedly contradicted information he gave to Italian authorities about his movements and contacts in Italy.

The newspaper said its investigation found that Turkish smugglers who Agca said financed his travels after his escape from prison in Turkey in November 1979 had close ties with the Bulgarian authorities, including state security police. Agca is Turkish.

International Report Calls Women 'The World's Poorest'

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Women who toil at U.N. headquarters marked International Women's Day earlier this month by focusing on what they called "The Exploited Half — Women, the World's Poorest."

Backing up that title was a report claiming that, while women represent half the world's population and account for one-third of its labor force, they earn only one-tenth of world income and own less than one-hundredth of its property.

The report, by the U.N. Ad Hoc Group on Equal Rights for Women, also said two out of three illiterates, worldwide, are women.

Gloria Steinem, looking skinnier, was there and proved she's still a heavyweight at arousing women to their needs.

The Ms. Magazine editor was moderator of a symposium featuring women active in politics, trade unions and grass roots organizations concerned with women and poverty.

"Women are oppressed all over the world," she said.

A male, possibly with Britain's Margaret Thatcher or India's Indira Gandhi in mind, asked:

"Why is it when a woman is in the highest position, such as prime minister, in the cabinet there are only men?"

"It is tokenism," Ms. Steinem said. "It is worthwhile, though, to have those tokens. It gives boys and girls a chance to see women in those positions and it releases the dreams of those boys and girls.

"It is a step in the right direction but a very tiny step."

The most robust applause was directed at Motlalepula Chabaku, who wore a T-shirt under her business suit. She grippled lapels of her jacket and pulled it wide open, pointing a slogan that read: "Some leaders are born women."

Ms. Chabaku is the founder of the Black Women's Federation of South Africa, now outlawed in that country.

"When I speak of the inquality of women in South Africa I cannot speak for white women there," she said.

"I can only speak for my people. We are the very dispossessed people. But white women are part of the ones that are suppressing us.

"We have some women in South Africa who have sacrificed their lives for our cause."

The U.N. Ad Hoc Group, sponsor of the March 8 International Women's Day events at U.N. headquarters, also focused on the status of females at the United Nations itself.

The report prepared by the group said the average salary for men at U.N. headquarters is $44,000 compared with $27,000 for women.

"In the United Nations, New York, for every one dollar a man earns a woman earns 62 cents," the report said, citing the fact that most of the women are in lower paid jobs.

After noting there are no men among 14 under-secretary-generals ($118,566 a year), the report said that of a dozen assistant secretary-generals ($105,869), only one is female. At the next lower grade, directors ($70,000 to $90,000), there are only 12 women in a total of 190.

At the professional level ($25,000 to $75,000) there are 1,388 jobs, 601 held by women.

In the general serhe categories — typists, secretaries, file clerks ($13,000 to $32,000) — 1,734 jobs are filled by females compared with 863 by males.

In releasing its salary survey, the Ad Hoc Committee said:

"The hopes of women staff members were raised in 1975 at the advent of the U.N. Decade for Women."

"Seven years later we are not sure that anything except occasional lip-service is being paid to the concerns of women inside the organization.

"Statistics show ... the situation of women in the U..N. has not improved substantially."

The Ad Hoc Committee said the goal of 50 percent women at all levels in the United Nations "will always remain a dream unless the working conditions ... are greatly improved."

The committee said, "The daily work environment for most women is still filled with sexist remarks, jokes and innuendo, sexual harassment, inconsiderate behavior and stereotyping."

In a statement delivered in his absence, Javier de Cuellar acknowledged an interim goal of having women in 25 percent of staff in posts filled by women by 1982 has not been achieved. But he said the world organization had reached 22 percent, with women accounting for 30 percent, 40 percent and even 55 percent of the professional staff in some departments.

"On the whole, the General Assembly's initial target is being met at headquarters," he said.

Of the world situation, the secretary-general said that "remarkable progress has been made over the past decades in the advancement of the status of women."

Dear Abby

Battered Male Needs Support

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem is probably more common than most people think. I am a battered husband. My wife and I have been married less than two years, and because of this problem, we're both seeing therapists individually and she goes to group therapy. I am writing not only for myself, but for all those men who are beaten by their wives and are too ashamed to tell anyone. We hear a great deal about wife-beating but very little about husband-beating.

Can you direct me to some kind of support group to help me deal with this while my wife and I try to work it out? She is aware that she beats me, except when she is actually doing it. And believe it or not, we really love each other.

If there are no support groups of this kind available for men in the Manhattan, N.Y., area, how can I go about forming one?

FRIGHTENED IN MANHATTAN

DEAR FRIGHTENED: I know of no support groups for the battered husband, but if there is one in your area, your local mental health association or your therapist can direct you to it.

As for forming one, because (as you stated) most battered men are too ashamed to come forward, it would be difficult to recruit members. Ask your therapist if he can put you in touch with fellow victims.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Please tell "Holding Out and Proud of It" to be careful. (She's a 27-year-old virgin who is saving herself for the man she marries.)

I fell hard for a man who used to kiss me on the hand when we said good-night. He never made a move to be any more intimate than that. I thought, Bravo! At last I have found my dream man. He respects me!

After 14 months of this, I let him put a ring (engagement) on my finger. He still never made a pass at me. But I returned his ring when I found out he made a pass at my kid brother.

END OF STORY IN DETROIT

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married for five years. We had gone together for two years, so I thought I knew him quite well. The first two years of our marriage were wonderful, but after that he became less loving and started working nights and weekends. Naturally I suspected another woman. He finally asked for a divorce. When he told me he was leaving me for his homosexual lover, I was shocked! I nearly had a nervous breakdown.

Our divorce was amicable. We sold our home and divided the proceeds of the sale equally. He insisted that I keep all the furnishings.

It's been over a year. We have not talked to each other since, and I plan to keep it that way. However, his mother phoned me last week and asked me if I would please return the silver she gave us at the time of our marriage, as it has been in her family for many years. I told her that the silver now belonged to me, and I had no intention of returning it. She seemed very upset.

I am certain that she doesn't know the reason her son and I were divorced. Should I tell her the truth? And don't you think I'm entitled to keep the silver?

VIRGO ON THE CAPE

DEAR VIRGO: Concerning the silver: It couldn't possibly mean as much to you as it means to your former mother-in-law, so I would recommend generosity on your part. Concerning the reason for your divorce: Silence is golden.

Her Service Aids The Elderly And Retired

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Clara Weathers is an energetic woman who derives her well-being from contributing to others. One of the ways she's contributing now is through a new kind of job service for the Greenville.

About the first of February the University Towers resident saw an article in The Daily Reflector which told of a successful senior citizens' employment agency in Clearwater, Fla. Mrs. Weathers decided she'd tackle organizing the same kind of service in Greenville. She placed an ad in The Daily Reflector calling the service, "Dial-A-Grandma Hire-A-Grandpa," and defining it as "A service which helps locate odd and end jobs for elderly and retired citizens." Among the chores with which she suggested people might need the help of her clients are babysitting, gardening, tutoring, carpentry, sewing, office work, painting, house sitting, and errands. "If you wish to hire someone or desire to be hired, please call Clara Weathers at 758-6887, she suggested in the ad.

CLARA WEATHERS

Soon calls were rolling in.

"I've been amazed by the response," Mrs. Weathers said. "Most of the calls have been from people wanting to find an older person to relate to their children. There really seem to be a lot of people here who do not have older family members to share themselves with their children. I've felt good about some of the kids and gramps I've got together."

Babysitting, house sitting, German conversations, small construction jobs, yard and gutter cleaning, sewing assistance — all have been arranged by Mrs. Weathers so far and she expects to constantly add to the variety of the requests she gets. She finds searching out a good match fun and challenging, she says.

Minimum wage is what is paid to most of Mrs. Weathers' hirees. And her fee is a minimal amount based on the amount the person is paid, how long the job is to last, etc. She's charged as little as $1 for some efforts, not more more for any of them."

"Yes, I need the money," she said, "but the main objective of Dial-A-Grandma Hire-A-Grandpa" is to serve other people. That gives me great satisfaction and an outlet for my energy. I have a lot of energy. There's always so much I want to do.

Has she ever filled a job herself? "Yes," she said. There was one she couldn't resist. Someone wanted somebody to sit with 6-year-old twins.

"I'm very partial to twins," she said, "because my only grandchildren are twins and they're far away in Georgia. Plus, I was a twin myself. I just had to take that job because I knew how much I'd love being with those twins."

Mrs. Weathers works half days at the Pitt County Council on Aging Office. A former public school teacher, since being back in Pitt County she has done some substitute teaching and has looked for a job in some computer-using field since she recently completed a keypunch course at Pitt Community College. She attends both St. Paul's Episcopal and Hollywood Presbyterian churches and sings with the Sweet Adelines of Greenville.

A Greenville native and the former Clara Crumpler, Mrs. Weathers lived away from Greenville most of her adult life, mostly in Georgia. She and her twin sister, Ruth, attended East Carolina Teachers College and represented North Carolina in the Annual Twin convention in Waco, Texas, in 1940 while both were ECTC students. Besides teaching, during her earlier years, Mrs. Weathers did extensive charity and volunteer work, especially in the fight against polio. She was named by the Georgia Federation of Women's Club as "The 100 Per Cent Good Citizen of Georgia" Award in 1957. Later the annual award was named for her. She was also honored by the Ladies Home Journal as one of 10 outstanding women in the United States in community service.

Vote For The Right

For those who are not aware that the 1984 political campaigns have started, it only takes a look at the nuclear arms freeze resolution which was considered by the state Legislature.

A resolution passed the House and appeared headed for action in the Senate. Following various maneuvers by the opposition, however, an amendment came up for a vote which resulted in a tie. The deciding vote against was cast by Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green.

The resolution asked Congress to negotiate a freeze on nuclear arms of the two countries. The agreement would be bilateral and the numbers of nuclear weapons would be verified.

Green is virtually certain to be a candidate for governor next year and a conservative stance is always good politics for a gubernatorial candidate.

The North Carolina resolution has also been opposed by the National Congressional Club, the organization of GOP Sen. Jesse Helms.

Gov. Jim Hunt, who figures to be Helms' opposition in 1984, recently voiced opposition to the resolution, although the governor apparently did not work against its passage in the Legislature.

The resolution, even it if had passed, would have only been persuasive with the Reagan administration and Congress. It came about as a part of the national movement to limit the threat of nuclear annihilation.

The fact that it even came close to passage in a state as conservative in North Carolina will be duly noted in Washington and perhaps in that way it will have as much impact as would have approval.

Within the state, however, it gave potential candidates for major office the opportunity to strike a stance to the political right.

Thankless Task

Mayor Percy Cox has proclaimed this week Teacher Appreciation Week. The mayor's proclamation cited teachers for performing "their jobs with dedication and care while enduring many hardships." The proclamation called teaching "one of the most noble professions on earth."

Public education comes in for criticism, but education can only be improved through public awareness. It should never be forgotten, however, that teachers and educational administrators have the toughest jobs around.

During this Teacher Appreciation Week the teachers of the area should know that with all the criticism they receive and all the concern about education, the public does appreciate the job they are doing. Teaching is often a thankless task, but nothing is more essential to our society.

Legislators Want Facts About Golf

RALEIGH — Every week between April and September, about 30 Raleigh-based federal employees of the N.C. National Guard take an afternoon off to play golf. They leave the office about 12:30 p.m. and play 18 holes of league golf at various local golf courses.

At a recent Appropriations subcommittee meeting, Ingram came under close questioning from a pair of freshmen legislators — Rep. Murray Pool, D-Sampson, and Rep. Bob Slaughter, D-Stanley — who wanted to know why he was playing golf on state time.

"We're talking about 30 to 35 people going out playing on somebody else's time at somebody else's expense," Pool said as he pressed Ingram on the matter and refused to accept his explanation.

Ingram says that he works much more than 40 hours a week. He considers these afternoon golf dates as his opportunity to take compensatory time off. Bob Melott, state assistant secretary for crime control and Ingram's superior, told the subcommittee that what Ingram was doing was quite proper. State personnel policy says that if you work overtime you're entitled to take "comp" time in return. Ingram said he'd worked six weekends in a row recently. Melott said it was common knowledge that the Guard worked of weekends.

But the two legislators weren't giving up easily. They asked Ingram to prove he was working overtime. They wanted documentation to prove that he'd worked the extra hours needed for him to take the compensatory time off. They also questioned Ingram closely about the federal employees although he pleaded with them to understand that he had no jurisdiction over their personnel practices.

As you may have guessed, there's more to the story than pars and birdies. Pool is one of about 20 eastern legislators who plan to make trouble this year for the Guard. They're fed up with the way Ingram and other Guard leaders have treated their region and they plan to make trouble for him.

"The golf, that's nitpicking," one legislator familiar with the story and sympathetic to Pool's maneuvering said privately. "We're not after Ingram. He's retiring in October. But we want to make sure people know that when he leaves, we want things running right. So, in the next few weeks, keep your eyes open for more legislation."

Across the state, Guard morale is low, the legislator said. But, things hit rock bottom with two recent developments in the southeast. First, a Wilmington Guard group thought it got overlooked, unfairly, for a trip to Italy. Second, regional legislators feel that a Whiteville guardsman was unfairly overlooked when a new local commander was chosen.

In that case, Maj. Nat Robb of Raleigh, a former state purchasing officer in the administration of Gov. Jim Holshouser, was chosen for brigade commander over Maj. Herbert Ezzell of Whiteville. Not only did a non-local get the job, legislators cried, it also went to a registered Republican.

After the meeting, Ingram told Melott he thought the golf questioning amounted to a "personal vendetta." But the two legislators involved said that wasn't true.

"All we want to do," Slaughter said, "is know that the money we're appropriating is not only being properly, but well spent." He continued to say that the subcommittee wasn't saying he shouldn't play golf on weekday afternoons. "We just want to determine the facts."

Federal Garage Sale Goes On

The U.S. government is continuing its garage sale. First James Watt announced he was going to sell off a lot of federal land that we didn't need, and now the White House has announced President Reagan's plans to sell the U.S. Weather Service. The reason given, of course, is to save money and involve the private sector in activities that it might perform as well or better than the federal government.

The irony of the decision is that while most Americans always complain about the weather, I've never heard anyone gripe about the U.S. Weather Service. It was one of the few services the government provided that worked well, whether you were on land, sea or in the air.

I have no objection to Mr. Reagan selling off our weather satellites and ground stations to private enterprise, but the big question is how would a company make any money on the weather?

A weather analyst with Merrill Lynch told me he thought the profits were there, provided that enough people were willing to pay for a forecast.

"The company would have to set up a rate card for different types of weather," he told me. "For example, if you wanted to find out what the weather would be like tomorrow in your own town it might cost you a dollar. If you wanted to know what the weather was like in another area, it would be $3 a prediction. And if you wanted the weather profile for the entire United States, it would be $10."

"What about hurricanes and blizzards?"

"I believe hurricanes and blizzards would be worth $25. Tornado warnings would be $50, and there would be a surcharge for any predictions coming out of Canada."

"Why would someone pay for a weather forecast if they could get it free on television?"

"No company would buy the weather satellitesunless it was assured that they would be the sole distributor of weather information. The TV stations would have to pay substantial fees for the service, if they're going to transmit this copyrighted information to their viewers for nothing."

"Who do you foresee as the large users of the private weather service?"

"The government will probably be the number one customer. They need weather information for planes, ships, and when the Queen of England visits the West Coast. I predict the large governemnt contracts for weather will pay for the system, and everything after that will be profit."

"If the government is going to pay millions of dollars for the service, why don't they just keep it, instead of selling it off?"

"The president wants the government out of as many things as possible. His philosophy is that the federal weather forecasters should get off the people's backs. He doesn't believe some Washington bureaucrat should be telling the farmers in Nebraska they're in for a hailstorm."

"What worries me," I said' "is that if a private company takes over the weather service it might tend to predict better weather than is actually coming, just to attract new subscribers."

"The company might at the beginning. But if they're wrong too many times, the customer will just cancel out on them, and tune into the BBC, for their weather reports."

"what do you think President Reagan will unload after the weather satellites?"

"The rumor on Wall Street is that he might sell the U.S. Coast Guard to the private sector. But no one has been able to confirm it. On the other hand, it makes a lot of economic sense. The Coast Guard is a big drain on the budget, and the federal government shouldn't be in the business of saving lives, Particularly when they don't charge for it."

Public Forum

To the editor:

By thinking of a country as a war zone, we may unconsciously dehumanize the land. By reducing our information, our frame of reference, on a distinct area with its particular culture and history and ecology to a brief segment on the news or a paragraph in a newpaper, we view the country in question through the wrong end of a telescope, miniaturized except for violence which suddenly colors our conception, flooding our senses with fragmentized information.

I'm like everyone else. But 20 years ago I found the book, "Dymaxion World" by Buckminster Fuller at a garage sale. And 18 years ago I lived in Ayacucho, Peru, as a Peace Corps volunteer. Returning home, a friend and I rode a motorcycle from Panama City to Chicago. In maintaining a view of the world as Fuller's Space Ship Earth and because this is Central America Week, because March 24 marks the death of Archbishop Romero, killed in 1980 in El Salvador while saying Mass (Becket?), I have been reliving this particular time in life when I was privileged to meet the people of Central America.

Breaking Precedent

WASHINGTON — Convinced that the latest Soviet missile test last month was an out-and-out violation of the SALT II treaty, administration officials agreed behind closed doors on March 8 that President Reagan should break precedent and take the violation directly and publicly to the Kremlin.

The president himself has not yet been made aware of the unanimous finding of middle-level officials. If Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger go along, this tough decision would be posed for Reagan: whether to junk cumbersome verification procedures that always have thwarted the U.S. in the past and, instead, challenge the Soviet Union publicly to prove that it did not in fact violate SALT II.

If he accepts that recommendation, Reagan would in effect only be completing the thought he himself uttered Feb. 23. He told reporters then that the Feb. 8 Soviet missile test "comes the closest to indicating that it is a violation." Nevertheless, going public would be a major deviation from decade-long practice and would renew international, though unjust, warmonger charges against the president.

Ever since the first SALT treaty, in 1971, any suspected violation has simply been handed over to a U.S.-Soviet Commission for investigation. "That consigns the issue to months and months of futile palaver," one high administration official told us. The Feb. 8 test of a "new" intercontinental missile, he said, "is too serious for routine handling." Thus, the test posed for Reagan by the Soviet missile test is whether he shall risk the rage of the detentists, or permit continued Soviet strategic advances under the canopy of the unratified SALT II treaty.

Gathered at the extraordinary March 8 session were officials just under the top level from the National Security Council, State Department, Pentagon, Central Intelligence Agency and Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA). The meeting was co-chaired by Adm. Jonathan Howe, head of the State Department's Political-Military Bureau, and Assistant Secretary of Defense Richard Perle.

Howe first suggested that, despite strong evidence presented by the CIA that the Soviet test was an outright violation of SALT II, the U.S. should take its case to the U.S.-Soviet Commission as usual. Disagreement came from Dr. Manfred Eimer, confirmed by the Senate only the day before as chief of ACDA's Verification and Intelligence Division. He argued that the strength of the evidence and the peril to the nuclear balance of continuing Soviet testing required an immediate American response.

Indeed, Eimer argued, the Feb. 8 test, together with an earlier Soviet test firing last October, raised the strong possibility of "multiple" violations. But while it might be hard to prove the "multiple" charge, he said, there was irrefutable evidence of at least a single violation. Joining him in making this case was Perle, who started warning about Soviet test violations long before he joined the Reagan administration.

When the session ended, Howe and every other official present had accepted Eimer's thesis. A formal paper incorporating and elaborating the panel's view is being drafted for Shultz, weinberger and William P. Clark, Reagan's national security aide, who presumably will immediately take it up with the president.

Concurrence by Reagan and his senior advisers would convert the U.S. from silent protester over repeated allegations of Soviet nuclear cheating to public accuser. The exact violation charged to the Soviets in last month's test is still a closely-held secret, but it concerns the SALT II ban on more than a single "new" intercontinental missile.

Junk Mail Writer Convinces Himself

NEW YORK (AP) — So convincing is John Francis Tighe, a junk mail writer — the kind who write form letters inviting you to subscribe to a magazine or support a charity or aid a cultural activity — that he sold himself.

While writing a subscription letter for Friends of Carnegie Hall he became enthusiastic about its cause — support of the music hall and its artists, contributed, became a member and used his own testimonial in the letter.

There is a good chance you, too, have been convinced by Tighe, one of the top practitioners in the booming direct mail advertising industry, a segment of advertising that, you may have noticed, is growing by billions of letters.

In fact, some industry figures now put the value of such advertising at close to $10 billion a year, mainly in newspapers, letters, radio and television. And the amount of merchandize moved is estimated at $140 billion. Few households are immune; if you exist you are likely to be a recipient.

Once considered an inferior form of merchandizing, it has now arrived — some say as an alternative to poor service in retail outlets, others because it saves on costly display space.

It is also more widely accepted by buyers, who once were a bit suspicious. It has earned respectibility too, and Tighe now teaches a course in direct mail writing at New York University.

Tighe's art is a rare one. Although he has never been a fly fisherman he studied and absorbed the feel and sounds and words of fly fishing and then designed an entire letter package for "Fly Fisherman" magazine.

Though not especially adept at mechanics, he understands the minds of those who do, a knowledge he used in establishing credibility for a winning letter — a winner is determined solely by the response — for Popular Mechanics.

He is proud of his skills. "I didn't start out to be a junk mail writer; I wanted to be a real writer," he said. Then he reflected. "There are all kinds of writers," he said. "Not just novel writers and working journalists."

It would have been nice to be a Norman Mailer, he mused, "because that's the kind of person people respect. But as a writer I can't think of a better way to make a living. Having arrived at this I am very happy doing it. I don't want to do something else."

The living is good. "The work is looking for you." If, of course, you have the rare skill. "I am a hack writer, a formula writer, but I do it with skill," he said.

Though it might seem so, the work isn't repetitive either. Were it to become so it would be deadly, because the junk mail writer must appreciate his product, albeit vicariously or in the imagination. He must have credibility.

The work is rewarding in other ways too. "You can get better and better at the formula," he said. "When I get into a subject I get all excited. Like Dickens."

Strength For Today

Jesus tells his followers that if an eye offends them, they are to pluck it out; if a hand offends them, they are to cut if off. Jesus is here setting forth the tremendous discipline and sacrifice required in order to achieve eternal life.

We are saved not by good works but by faith; nevertheless, good works are involved in our salvation. It takes a tremendous effort sometimes for us to get to the place where we can accept the salvation God is offering us.

We have some indulgence which we feel we cannot give up. We may have to pluck out the eye before we can deal with the desire. It may be some prize in life toward which our hand eagerly reaches. We may have to cut off the hand before we can be saved.

Faith means a willingness to accept what God has to offer, and this may mean the giving up of things which now may appear to us more precious.

NASA Is Hopeful Over Spacelab Mission

By IKE FLORES
Associated Press Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — After more than two months of delay, NASA officials say there is "no doubt" that space shuttle Challenger's launch in early April will proceed as planned, paving the way for the sendoff of Spacelab by year's end.

An April 4 start for Challenger's maiden five-day voyage "would give us a shot" at launching the next flight in early June and another in early August, launch director Al O'Hara said Tuesday at a shuttle briefing at Kennedy Space Center.

That would alleviate the space agency's concern about its ability to carry out the important seven-day Spacelab mission aboard Columbia, the first shuttle, early this fall.

The Columbia-Spacelab mission, a joint venture of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the European Space Agency, is scheduled for September.

Nagging problems with the new shuttle's engines have so far forced more than a two-month delay in its first flight. NASA has been concerned not only about setting back Challenger's other two flights, but about the possibility of having to cancel Spacelab for this year.

Much of the success of the Spacelab mission, officials say, depends on a new space communications system that will use two tracking and data relay satellites being deployed by Challenger.

The first of these 2½-ton TDRS satellites is on the manifest for Challenger's first flight. The second is to be deployed during Challenger's third flight, just before the Columbia-Spacelab mission.

After deployment from Challenger 150 miles above Earth, the satellites will be boosted by rockets into geosychronous orbit 22,300 miles above the equator. They will replace numerous ground tracking stations now used by NASA to monitor its orbiting hardware.

O'Hara expressed confidence that Challenger will make its latest launch target date after overcoming persistent engine problems. He said a 93-hour launch countdown would begin March 30.

"We are very pleased with the engines after going through a very agonizing period of time ... We are confident the engines are in excellent condition ... There is no doubt at all about proceeding with the mission," O'Hara said.

Right now there is "no particular area of concern" in sending up the new shuttle the day after Easter Sunday, O'Hara told reporters.

The test team was "comfortable" with the April 4 launch date, he said, and although the launch preparation schedule is tight, "we feel we have enough contingency time" to handle any routine hangups.

A 25-hour halt in the countdown will begin at midnight April 2 to permit launch crew members to observe Easter Sunday at home, O'Hara said. The countdown clock will start again at 1:10 a.m. EST Monday, April 4, for the 1:30 p.m. liftoff.

Challenger's cargo, the TDRS satellite, was pronounced in good shape Tuesday after being contaminated by dust and debris during a late February storm.

"We feel very, very confident that we have gotten all the contaminants that could have caused us a risk," said John Lovelace, a satellite mission manager from Goddard Space Flight Center in Green Belt, Md.

Challenger will have only an 18-minute launch "window" because enough daylight is needed in case something goes wrong during liftoff and the shuttle has to make an emergency landing at Dakar, Senegal. But O'Hara said that time could be extended another 15 minutes if the weather at Dakar is clear.

If for some reason the launch window expires before liftoff is achieved, the shuttle could be launched anytime later that week.

The Land of the Pure

The turbulent history of Pakistan began 43 years ago today when the Moslem League of India called for the creation of a Moslem nation, separate from the Hindu majority. The call came as a result of decades of civil strife between Hindus and Moslems. In 1947 that Moslem state became a reality, though its two halves were separated by 1000 miles. It was called Pakistan, or, in the Urdu language, "land of the pure." On March 23, 1956, Pakistan gained its independence from Britain. But by 1971, differences between West and East Pakistan had erupted into civil war. With the help of India, the East won the war and declared itself an independent nation.

Can Now Keep Lost $45,000 He Found

CONCORD, Calif. (AP) — Honesty paid off handsomely for a born-again Christian who turned in $45,000 that he found on a bus stop bench, and can now keep because it went unclaimed for 90 days.

Richard Wooten, a 32-year-old electronics technician and a recovered alcoholic, found the package on Dec. 1. He should get a $45,000 check from the city "any time now," Concord Administrative Accountant Everett Clift said Tuesday.

Wooten had said that he agonized for several hours about giving up the money after he found it. He called a news conference and described, with great emotion, the impact the event had on his life.

"A year ago, I would not have turned that money in," Wooten said in December. "Money has always run my life because I've always been short of it. I had always realized that money comes first, but now I trust the Lord and he comes first. And this event gives me an opportunity to share that."

Police Sgt. Jerry Thomas said that during the past 3½ months, several people have tried to claim the mystery money.

Thomas said the department also received a handful of calls from other police agencies investigating cases of lost money.

Orphans Benefit In Finger's Loss

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Ayub "Mike" Seth says the loss of his finger may turn out to be a blessing for orphans. He has donated to charity part of the money he received for the accident.

While working as a machine operator at Sewell Plastics Inc. in February, Seth accidentally severed the tip of his right index finger and had to have it amputated.

He said some of the $400 workers compensation check he received should be used to help the needy, so he donated $50 to the United Way of Mecklenburg and Union Counties Inc.

"It would be difficult not to have a good, warm feeling, not just about the money, because that's the least of it, but about a man who was in a lot of physical pain and despite that physical pain could think of others," said Harvey Cohen of the United Way.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAR. 24, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have excellent judgment in the early part of the day, so make important decisions at this time. Figure out how you can structure your life more sensibly and gain your aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact higherups and get them to go along with a sensible plan you have in mind. Improve your appearance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan time for conferring with associates about the future. Once your work is done, devote yourself to the romantic side of life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle those important business matters well during daytime and seek advice from experts. Be more practical.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) If you come to a better agreement with associates, much more can be accomplished in the future.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Find better ways for getting ahead in your line of endeavor. You can benefit by engaging in civic work at this time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A special skill you have can be used at this time. Find the right appliances that make your work more productive.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take the time to please family members today by doing what is expected of you. Use utmost care in travel.

New Hospital...

He said all of the facilities would be about the same size, but pointed out that the projected cost of the proposed 65-bed hospital in Rocky Mount is $2.5 million, while the estimated cost of the 80-bed hospital in New Bern is $2 million.

He said that, according to the applications, the estimated cost per patient day at Charter Pines Hospital would be $300, while the cost at the Rocky Mount hospital would be $180. The cost per day at the proposed New Bern hospital is estimated at $155.

Under the state's health facilities plan, only 70 psychiatric beds are available for allocation in the 29 counties in eastern North Carolina served by the ECHSA.

Heading the list of 10 speakers opposing the Charter application was Pitt County Memorial Hospital President Jack Richardson, East Carolina University medical school Dean William Laupus, and Henry Leslie, chairman of the PCHM board of trustees.

Richardson said PCMH's long-range master development plan calls for the addition of 32 psychiatric beds at the hospital as the beds are needed. He said that, over the past five months, the present 40-bed psychiatric unit has had an 83 percent occupancy rate.

Richardson also said that the facility provides "care for all citizens of Pitt County and eastern North Carolina, regardless of their ability to pay." In 1982, Richardson said, the hospital provided $145,164 in "free care for psychiatric patients."

He suggested that additional psychiatrtic beds at the public hospital would be more cost effective and serve the public's interest better than beds at a private facility.

Laupus said his comments referred "to all three applications under review, regardless of the proposed locations," and not just limited to the Charter Medical proposal.

"Each of the three proposals implies endorsement from the school of medicine. Let me state emphatically that these implications are totally incorrect and misleading. At no time during the proposal development of any of the three has the school of medicine indicated it would support the proposal," Laupus emphasized.

Laupus said that, while there is a demonstrated need for additional psychiatric beds in eastern North Carolina, "It is our conclusion that the construction of any single psychiatric facility would be detrimental to the region's delivery of mental health services."

Under the current state medical facilities plan, Laupus said, "There is a ceiling on the number of psychiatric beds that are allowed. We feel that these beds should be distributed throughout the region and that the community hospitals should be given the opportunity to have these beds allocated to their facilities. We have several community mental health services areas ... (in the east) that have no psychiatric units."

Laupus said construction of a single psychiatric facility would tend to over-develop mental health services at one site "while causing irreparable harm" to areas that need services.

"A community hospital without a psychiatric bed allocation would have an extremely difficult time in recruiting a psychiatrist" if there were no other beds available in the area, he said.

Laupus said neither of the three proposals appears to have "widespread professional support" or overwhelming public or private mental health support.

The dean suggested that since each of the three proposed hospitals are corporate facilities which have obligations to groups of stockholders, they were "initiated primarily for the profit potential and not out of concern for improved mental health services," and that the cost per patient day "will severely limit the categories of patients who can be admitted. The medically indigent and those without adequate inpatient psychiatric hospitalization insurance coverage will not be appropriately represented in the patient population."

Laupus also said all three proposals "appear to be following a course that runs contrary to current trends in psychiatric care. Professionally, the emphasis has been on community-based outpatient treatment with supporting inpatient services for acute situations in community hospitals.

"It is our belief that this method best serves the needs of the patient, the family, and the community. The proposed concentration of psychiatric services would run counter to this philosophy of care and treatment.

Concluding, Laupus said the three proposals "appear to conflict" with the planned development and expansion of patient care, teaching and research programs at the medical center in Greenville.

"We would like to propose that all three applications be denied approval," Laupus said, "... based on our continued belief that a decentralized approach to mental health is sound and deserving of support."

Leslie said the 65-bed Charter proposal would "disrupt" the planned, orderly growth at PCMH and be "financially disastrous" by increasing the hospital's "charity load."

Cathy Pierce, a psychiatric nurse at PCMH who also voiced opposition to the Charter application, suggested that psychiatric patients should "not be isolated" in a separate hospital by themselves. She said that, "in the best interest" of the patients, they should be treated in an environment "like we have now" at PCMH.

Dr. James L. Mathis, chairman of the med. school's department of psychiatry and head of the psychiatric unit at PCMH, said 65 additional psychiatric beds are not needed in the Greenville area at this time and warned against centralizing psychiatric beds. "Spread the beds out," he suggested.

Psychiatric "treatment is best done in a hospital setting" like is now available at PCMH, Mathis said.

Others voicing opposition to the Charter facility included: Charles Gaskins, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Commissioners, who read a resolution from the board; Dr. Jack Wilkerson, chief of staff at PCMH, who read a resolution adopted by the medical staff's executive committee which said the county's "needs would not be best served" by a private hospital, and psychiatrist Dr. Phillip Nelson, who said a private facility would be a "drain" on PCMH because "paying patients" would go to Charter Pines while "non-paying" patients would end up at PCMH.

Tony Mulvihill of Raleigh, executive director of United Health Services for Alcohol and Drug Abuse (a statewide United Fund agency which supports treatment for addictive diseases), said Charter Medical "runs very good programs, there's no question about that." However, he voiced opposition to the Charter application, suggesting "they are very expensive."

Jack Austin of Kinston, a Lenoir Memorial Hospital administrator, also objected to the Charter Medical application.

He said the 281-bed Lenoir hospital has "no in-patient psychiatric unit," although long-range plans include such facilities. "Patients should be treated as near to their home as possible," he said.

Voicing support for the Charter Medical application were Jim Beck, project manager for Charter Pines Hospital; Denny Shelton, administrator of Charter Medical's Charter Hills Hospital in Greensboro; Vickie Williams, a social worker with the Pitt County Department of Social Services, and psychiatrist Dr. Barry A. Moore.

Beck, who said Charter Medical has "invited (local) participation in the development of the hospital," said the proposed facility will provide "services not now at" PCMH. He also said Charter Pines "intends to provide our fair share of indigent care. We're willing to provide it."

Shelton said the 100-bed hospital in Greensboro was faced with the same opposition as voiced by opponents at the hearing but "overcame this handicap" and now enjoys widespread community support.

He said Charter Hills accepts "patients regardless of their ability to pay," and "works closely with the the school of nursing at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro to provide clinical training for students.

"We are proud of our record in Greensboro," Shelton said, "and we're not in conflict with other facilities in the area."

Shelton noted that Charter Hills now cares for about 50 patients.

Miss Williams voiced support for Charter Pines because she said there is a "need for extended care" for young people which is "not available" in the area at this time.

Moore said "I favor the development of this hospital" because "I had rather have a choice" of where to send patients. "Competition is healthy," he suggested.

Others speaking at the hearing included local businessman Stuart Shinn, a member of the Greenville City Council who said he was speaking as a private citizen, and local builder and land developer Bill Clark.

"As I see this, one of the largest psychiatric care groups is betting $6 million that there is a need now for 44 psychiatric beds and 25 substance addiction beds," Shinn said.

"If they bet wrong with their money they will fail. If they fail we might get a good buy on a good psychiatric hospital."

Clark said "I think the fundamental question is: 'What is best for the citizens of Eastern North Carolina?'

"If we do have a need, I am for having this hospital come to Greenville. If there is not a need, then I don't think it should go anwyhere."

USS Pittsburgh Plans Reunion

WILDWOOD, Ga. — Crewmembers of the USS Pittsburgh (CA 72) will hold their sixth reunion in Nashville, Tenn. on Sept. 29-Oct. 2.

Town Voters In A Bind

DENMARK, Tenn. (AP) — With election day near, folks here find themselves in a bind: A municipal candidate must get signatures of 25 voters, but Denmark has only 24 of them.

"Yeah, it's sort of unusual," said Mayor Robert Hardee, owner of the town's general store. "But we'll work something out."

Election day is set for May 3, but no one has qualified to run. And apparently no one will. Denmark has about 50 residents but only two dozen are registered to vote.

"I've been worrying about it and thinking about it for months trying to figure something out," said county Registrar Maridel Roberts. "There's just no way to fix it."

Hardee said Denmark's last municipal elections were in 1948. But state election officials realized the omission last summer and ordered a new round.

"Wasn't any need to have any, I reckon," the mayor said. "Everyone seemed to be happy."

Hardee said Denmark bosted a population of several hundred residents in the late 1800s, but a tornado and fire destroyed much of the town and a railroad was built a few miles away.

"It's just sort of gone with the wind," he said.

Refuses Wear Navy Uniform

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Navy seaman who refused to wear a uniform because of her beliefs was being held in "disciplinary segregation" with nothing to wear but a sheet and blanket, officials said.

Seaman Leslie Anne Cole, 28, who had asked for conscientious objector status and decided to act on her beliefs after seeing the movie "Gandhi," was court-martialed for failing to go to her duty station and was sentenced to 60 days hard labor and discharge. She has not been allowed to see her family because "she has to be in the proper uniform to see visitors," Julius Simms, spokesman at Fort Meade, said Tuesday.

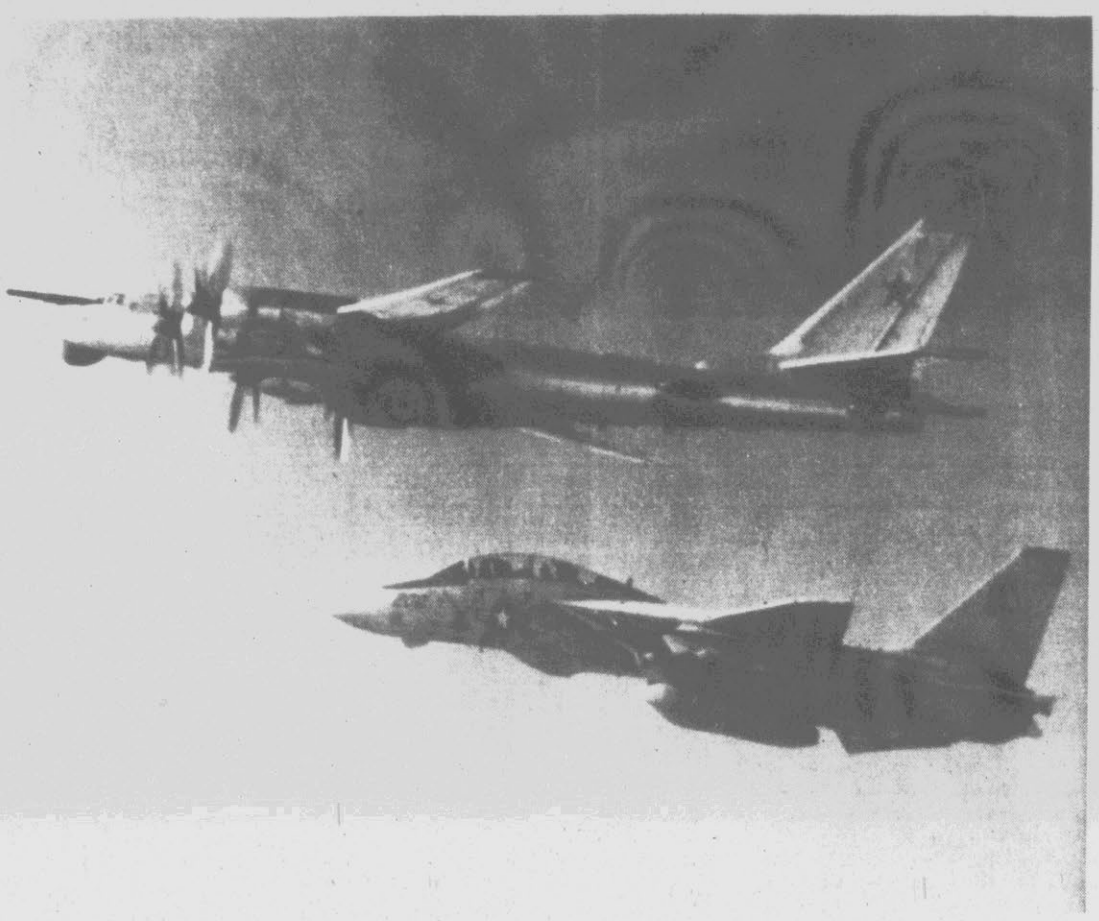
Reagan Will Urge Public Support Defense Buildup



INTERCEPTION — A Russian TU-95 Bear maritime reconnaissance aircraft is shown being escorted by a Navy F-14A launched from the USS Eisenhower last Saturday in the Caribbean. The Soviet plane was escorted as it approached a Navy fleet exercise. (AP Laserphoto)

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, stepping up his sales campaign for a big Pentagon buildup, is ready to reveal secret aerial photographs of Soviet-supplied weapons and installations in trouble spots around the world.

The president will address the nation tonight in a nationally broadcast speech from the Oval Office at 8 p.m. EST.

An administration official, speaking anonymously, said Reagan would display now-secret photos that document the existence of Soviet-supplied arms and installations in Central America and perhaps in the Middle East. As president, he is empowered to declassify secret material.

Intelligence specialists have long been opposed to disclosure of reconnaissance photos from spy planes and satellites, arguing it would show adversaries how good — or how bad — U.S. capabilities are.

An administration official said the pictures probably would be those taken by high-altitude aircraft, instead of by super-secret space satellites which reportedly are capable of taking pictures from as far out as 25,000 miles.

"There's a lot of debate going on about how much to reveal," the official said. "Whether we show the most sophisticated stuff — I doubt it."

For strategic reconnaissance outside the Soviet Union and China, the United States frequently uses the Blackbird SR-71 spy plane, which flies at above 100,000 feet.

Although aerial photos frequently appear grainy to the untrained eye, they can provide a wealth of information to photo interpreters. Pictures taken by satellite 150 miles above the Earth and beyond can show sharp details about personnel, missiles, submarines and tanks and can be used to track the progress of missile silo construction, according to military officials.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the major objective of tonight's speech "is to acquaint the American people to the threat we face."

Asked how the address would differ from Reagan's earlier speeches on national defense, Speakes said, "The president thinks its important to underscore his viewpoint on it, and to address it in what may be certain new terms."

After conferring with Reagan on defense issues, Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., quoting the president as saying "he would allow some photographs to be used that might help share his concern about the threat that we face from the modernization program advanced by the Soviet Union."

Speakes pointedly noted that congressmen have been urging Reagan to declassify some secret material and share it with the public. "While I can't promise it, I would urge you to wait and see," said Speakes.

Administration strategists hope the speech will encourage Americans to put pressure on an increasingly balky Congress for a big increase in defense spending.

Speakes said Reagan considers tonight's address "a particularly important speech since it comes at a critical juncture in our national discussions of security issues," with Congress poised to cut deeply into Reagan's $273.4 billion defense budget.

Speakes said the speech "will underscore the administration's commitment to restoring the United States' defense posture, with particular emphasis on the threat which now confronts us."

Reagan has proposed a 1984 Pentagon budget of $273.4 billion, amounting to a 10.1 percent increase over 1983. House Democrats are pushing a budget that would cut the increase by more than half, down to 4 percent.

Even Reagan's GOP allies in Congress insist he will have to cut back. There is increasing talk among Senate Republicans of pushing for only a 5 percent increase. House Republican Leader Robert Michel of Illinois said Tuesday a 7 percent increase might be acceptable.

Speakes said tonight's speech goes beyond the vote on the Democratic budget, which likely could be decided before the president speaks.

Kemp said Reagan "said he wanted to give more information to the American people from which the Congress could make a rational decision about defense spending as opposed to just irrationally cutting defense spending to such a point that we lose one third of our modernization program."

Sets $75,000 Bail For Cathy

TORONTO (AP) — A York County judge set a $75,000 bail today for Cathy Evelyn Smith, the singer charged with murder in the drug overdose death of comedian John Belushi.

Judge George Ferguson set the bail at the end of a one-hour hearing and ordered Miss Smith to stay in the Toronto area and report to police twice a week while she fights extradition to California.

Ms. Smith, 35, is a former back-up singer for Gordon Lightfoot and other performers. She was indicted last week by a grand jury in Los Angeles County on one charge of murder and 13 counts of supplying and administering dangerous drugs to Belushi.

The extradition hearing was tentatively set for next Tuesday.

Ms. Smith was smiling and animated as she entered the courtroom and took a seat in the prisoner's dock. She sat quietly with her hands clasped in her lap through the hearing.

Another county judge, Stephen Boring, postponed Ms. Smith's bail hearing for 24 hours Monday because her lawyer, Brian Greenspan, was busy representing another client in a separate case.

Ferguson placed a ban on publication of any evidence presented at today's hearing, a step commonly taken in Canada in highly publicized criminal cases.

Prosecutor Ari Coomaraswamy said earlier the defense would have a chance to present witnesses to back its contention that Ms. Smith should be free on bail while she attempts to block U.S. attempts to extradite her.

"The onus of establishing that she should be released on bail is on her," he said.

Coomaraswamy said the hearing was not likely to deal with the central issue of whether Ms. Smith should be extradited, because "we have to await the evidence from the States."

Jury's Verdict Not End Of The Battle

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — As jurors struggled behind closed doors to reach a verdict, attorneys in the Groucho Marx estate trial said any decision the panel makes will not end the bitter legal battle involving Marx's companion, Erin Fleming.

The jurors begin their fifth full day of deliberations today with no sign of whether they are near a verdict.

The bank, executor of Marx's estate, asked that Miss Fleming be forced to return $428,000 to the estate, claiming that she pressured the late comic into giving her the money. The defense argued that Marx willingly gave her money and gifts which he intended for her to keep.

Miss Fleming's attorney, David Sabih, reported that she is still optimistic the jury will rule in her favor.

"I talked to her on the phone," Sabih told reporters. "She said, 'Don't worry. The longer they talk, the better it is for us.'"

Sabih said Miss Fleming felt that 12 reasonable people discussing the issues for such a long time would eventually see things her way.

Meanwhile, the lawyers told reporters a number of complex, "equitable issues" must be decided by Superior Court Judge Jacqueline Weiss, who presided at the two-month trial. She has set a hearing April 1 on those issues — presumably after the jury has returned a verdict.

Attorney J. Brin Schulman, representing the bank, said the judge must decide whether Miss Fleming gets to keep "real property" at stake in the case, including two homes, a car, stocks and her interest in Groucho Marx Productions.

The jury's verdict, Schulman said, deals only with monetary damages — the actual cash she received in salaries and gifts during the six years she was Marx's companion.

Tracing 'Mystery Professor' Only Just Beginning

By RICH KIRKPATRICK
Associated Press Writer

SHIPPENBURG, Pa. (AP) — A mystery professor accused of using bogus credentials to get two college teaching jobs in Pennsylvania may also have taught at a suburban Baltimore university, an official says.

The suspect, known to authorities as "John Doe," remained behind bars today on $150,000 bail on a variety of charges stemming from his alleged forgery of credentials to get a teaching job at Shippensburg State College.

Until his arrest Monday, the suspect was known as John Bryon Hext at Shippensburg and as Peter H. Pearse at Millersville State College. He taught at the two schools on alternate days beginning last fall.

During arraignment Tuesday, "John Doe" refused to answer questions about his age, marital status and whereabouts before coming to Pennsylvania.

Attorney General LeRoy Zimmerman said earlier that the man was "crafty" and had taken officials on "a merry paper chase that hasn't ended yet ... This case is just beginning, believe me."

Deputy Attorney General Kim Daniel said German marks, Swiss francs, British pounds, Canadian dollars and Australian currency were found in the man's wallet. In addition, he had one or more passports and printed stationery and other documents that indicated he had as many as 13 aliases.

Katie Ryan, a spokeswoman for Towson State University in Maryland said Tuesday that "it sounds very likely" that David A. Gordon, a part-time business teacher who resigned last March, is the same man.

Gordon abruptly resigned in mid-semester "apparently to return to teach in London," Ms. Ryan said. "Though it is easy to say this is the same man, it is not easy to prove."

Among the 16 cartons of documents found in "John Doe's" Lancaster, Pa., apartment, were records of a checking account with Baltimore's Union Trust Bank in the name of David Gordon.

Investigators also turned up a telephone credit card issued to Paul Crafton, of Potomac, Md., in the Lancaster apartment. A woman at the Potomac address referred all questions to John Pyfer, a Lancaster, Pa., attorney representing the suspect.

A Towson State student, Robert Parker, called The Baltimore Sun on Tuesday to say a published photograph of the suspect resembled Gordon. Parker said he had taken a course from Gordon in 1981.

At arraignment, the man seemed nervous and politely answered the district judge in a faintly British accent. The man was of medium height and appeared to be in his early to mid 50s, had salt-and-pepper hair and a beard.

"We don't know who the man is," Daniel told District Justice Donald W. Daihl. "We have to consider him a prime bail risk."

The man's double life came to light when students at Shippensburg complained he was incompetent. An investigation uncovered that the name Hext was apparently borrowed from an Australian professor. The man was arrested Monday as he reported for classes at Millersville.

"John Doe" is charged with five counts of forgery and five counts of tampering with public records for allegedly submitting a fraudulent resume and three letters of recommendations from fictitious people.

He is also charged with theft by deception, false swearing, and tampering with public records. He is accused of fraudulently accepting over $14,000 in salary from Shippensburg.

He was committed to Cumberland County prison and a preliminary hearing was set for March 29.

A search of the professor's apartment in Lancaster found 16 cartons neatly stacked and full of credit cards, identification cards, business cards, blank checks from banks in New York, Baltimore, Washington and other cities and a list of letters attesting to courses taken at Cambridge, Oxford and other universities in England.

Daniel said there were letterheads with a name followed by an "M.D." Some had correspondence on them, but Daniel wouldn't elaborate.

A Miracle Year Of Contributing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Giving to United Way campaigns across the country was up 6 percent last year, despite the recession and increased unemployment, the national umbrella group for charities said today.

United Way of America Board Chairman Donald V. Seibert termed the growth "nothing short of miraculous."

Contributions in 1982 to the 2,200 United Way campaigns across the country totaled $1.78 billion, Seibert said in a speech prepared for a National Press Club luncheon.

"It tells us that those Americans who are in a position to give, did give — more than ever before," said Seibert, who also is chairman and chief executive of J.C. Penney Company, Inc.

He said more than 64 percent of contributions came from individuals, 27 percent from corporations and small businesses, and the rest from foundations and other sources.

While giving is up, the economy has also boosted the demand for services to the needy and unemployed, Seibert added.

Regionally, he said giving was up 9 percent in the West, 7.7 percent in the Southeast, 5.9 percent in the Northeast and 5 percent in the Midwest.

He said he was particularly impressed with giving in areas facing hard economic times. Detroit, with 17.7 percent unemployment, increased its giving by more than $100,000, about a tenth of a percent above 1981. Other cities with increased giving despite large unemployment problems included Cleveland and Birmingham, Ala..

The campaign in the New York City area, including parts of Connecticut and New Jersey, became the first local group to raise more than $100 million, Seibert added.

DISMISSES PREMIER

MBABANE, Swaziland (AP) — The Great She Elephant, queen of Swaziland, has dismissed Prime Minister Mabandla, the speaker of Parliament announced. The reason was not disclosed, but Mabandla is known to have angered traditional Swazi chiefs with his modern approach to government, including creation of a commission to investigate corruption.

"I'M EATIN' LESS SUGAR AND LOVIN' EVERY BITE!"
He's eating new Quaker Halfsies.
New Halfsies is one of the sweetest ways we know to get your kid to cut down on sugar. It's the cereal with only half the sugar of most other sugar-coated cereals—one teaspoon per serving—that's 50% less!
But even though we cut the sugar we didn't cut the taste. Halfsies still has a whole lot of sweetness your child's going to love! How did we do it? With just a smidgen of NutraSweet,* a new nutritive sweetener. Doesn't touch the taste...or the nutrition. Halfsies gives your child all the wholesomeness of corn and rice, plus 9 essential vitamins and minerals.
New Quaker Halfsies. You're going to love half the sugar.
And your kid'll love every bite!

2 Pitt Women Elected

Newly-elected officers of the Women's Committee of the North Carolina Association of Electric Cooperatives are, from the left: Linda Whitehurst of Route 5, Greenville, vice chairwoman; Jane Patterson of Farmville, chairwoman; and Anne Williamson of Route 1, Whiteville, a member of the board of the National Rural Electric Women's Association.

Two Pitt County women have been elected to top leadership posts with the Women's Committee of the statewide organization of rural electric cooperatives.

Jane Patterson of Farmville, a member of the women's committee of Pitt and Greene Electric Membership Corp., Farmville, has been elected chairwoman and Linda Whitehurst of Route 5, Greenville, a member of the women's committee of Edgecombe-Martin County EMC, Tarboro, has been elected vice chairwoman.

Mrs. Patterson, whose husband J.D. Patterson is manager of Pitt and Greene EMC, had served for the past year as vice chairwoman of the group.

The statewide EMC women's committee serves as a liaison between the co-ops and their consumer-members in the areas of education and public relations.

President Hails Afghan Efforts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says the struggle by the Afghan people against the three-year-old Soviet occupation "is an inspiration to those who love freedom."

"To the Afghan people, I say on behalf of all Americans that we admire your heroism, your devotion to freedom, and your relentless struggle against your oppressors," Reagan said.

In a statement marking the second Afghanistan Day observance here, Reagan also called on the Soviet Union to "end the bloodshed so that an independent Afghanistan can again take its place in the community of nations."

Nader Says N. C. Congressmen Forget Consumers

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer

North Carolina congressmen, especially Rep. Walter Jones of Farmville, were called to the mat Tuesday by consumer advocate Ralph Nader who accused them of forgetting consumers and ignoring the environment.

"Congressman Walter B. Jones scored 10 out of a possible score of 100 for protecting consumers and the environment on the Public Citizen Congress Watch," Nader said in an appearance at East Carolina University.

"For example, Jones voted against used car legislation that would have required dealers to disclose any known defects. He also voted to support the nuclear industry, (specifically) the Clinch River Breeder Reactor, despite the best interests of consumers. Technology on the Clinch River reactor is not only obsolete, it is not worth the taxpayers' money," Nader said.

Sens. Jesse Helms and John East were also criticized as being "corporate tools."

"Both have very poor environmental and consumer voting records. Helms supports agriculture and industry where it benefits him," Nader said. "Where he would oppose doing away with supports for the tobacco program he turns around and is an enemy of foodstamps," Nader explained.

Rep. Charlie Rose was rated as one of the most environmental- and consumer-minded North Carolinians with 30 points out of 100 on the Congress Watch scale. "Charlie Rose is North Carolina's raging populist with 30 points," Nader said.

North Carolina's problem with poor leadership, Nader said, is not wholly the fault of politicians. "North Carolina is rated on the bottom of the list of statewide citizen activity. Here you have ... (few) unions and relatively few citizen organizations. The victims need to be organized," he said.

Asked who he would support in the 1984 senatorial election, Gov. Jim Hunt or Helms, Nader said Hunt would be the better choice.

"Hunt would be a progressive politician. He's got his finger to the wind. If citizens would organize and reflect their attitudes toward corporate power, he'd become more progressive and respond to that," Nader said.

"I do not believe Helms would."

Nader commented on other problems facing North Carolina including toxic waste disposal and Reagan's proposal to sell off national forest land.

"I don't think it (selling of national forest land located in North Carolina) will happen by 1984, but if Reagan is re-elected, it is a distinct possibility," Nader said. "Of course they would have to get congressional approval to do this."

"What is dismaying, is the low level of trusteeship by the Department of Interior and government in taking care of public lands," he said.

On toxic waste landfills, Nader said: "Peoples' fears are very well grounded on this matter. Anyone who says there are safe methods for toxic landfills dosen't know what they're talking about."

Nader's solution for toxic-waste disposal problems would be to "mothball" the wastes until technology to detoxify the chemicals or substances is developed. "We also need to question the products in terms of purported consumer use. For example, we now have a PCB substitute, showing us that PCB was never necessary."

However, Nader said there may be some hope for the environment if Reagan's new head of the Environmental Protection Agency, William Ruckelshaus, "is strong enough to challenge the laws."

"But it would be hard to envision someone entering the post half the way through the term and being strong enough to challenge the laws.

"This could turn out the other way," Nader said. "This appointment could be worse because Reagan will have a more credible spokesman for his policies."

Nader, head of a self-created consumer advocacy board, was the principal speaker for ECU's spring lecture-seminar, "Consumerism Update: Where Has it Been and Where is it Going."

Fair Manager Leaving Post

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The longtime manager of the North Carolina State Fair has resigned after the department criticized his handling of fair operations.

Arthur K. Pitzer resigned about Feb. 1, with the resignation to take effect May 1.

"We got a lot to do out there, and I think he was just getting tired," Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham said Tuesday. "Exactly what he told me was he didn't want to die on the job."

Pitzer and Graham said the decision was Pitzer's, but earlier this year Graham wrote Pitzer a letter saying he was "extremely uncomfortable" with the operation of the State Fair.

"I saw the need to re-examine the overall fairgrounds operation and asked members of my staff for information and records for the purpose of critique," Graham said in the letter dated Jan. 19.

"Frankly, I am dissatisfied with some of our findings," he said in the letter. "There is evidence of unconcern and certainly a lack of control."

Graham asked Pitzer to report in detail by Feb.1 on how he planned to accomplish improvements outlined in a report attached to Graham's letter.

Instead, Pitzer, who will be 65 in November, submitted his resignation.

Asked whether Graham's letter precipitated his resignation, Pitzer said "It could have contributed to it. I just felt like 30 years was enough.

"I want to wake up one time in October and not worry about whether it's raining or not," Pitzer said.

Graham said he decided over the weekend that Sam G. Rund, Pitzer's assistant for the past four years, would take Pitzer's place.

LUCK'S®
Celebrates 30 Years of Great Cooking in the Southern Tradition with a 30th Anniversary "EVERYBODY WINS" Recipe Contest

GRAND PRIZE
in U.S. Savings Bonds

50 SECOND PRIZES 7 piece Ekco® Flint Stainless Steel Cookware Set. Includes 1 and 2 quart Covered Saucepans, 4 quart Covered Saucepot, and 9½" Open Skillet. A $115.00 retail value.

PLUS everyone who enters will be sent a Free Luck's Recipe Booklet.

OFFICIAL RULES—NO PURCHASE NECESSARY

1. On a plain piece of paper no larger than 8-1/2" x 11" print or type your name, address, zip code and your recipe for a dish including at least one can of LUCK'S Beans, Greens or Peas as an ingredient. List ingredients in order of use, measurements, complete directions for preparation, baking or cooking time and number of servings the recipe makes. Ingredients should be readily available and given in specific level, standard American measurements. Mail your recipe along with the Universal Product Code from any label of LUCK'S Beans, Greens or Peas to: LUCK'S COUNTRY STYLE RECIPE CONTEST, P.O. Box 3184, Syosset, NY 11775. Enter as often as you wish, but each entry must be different, mailed separately and received no later than May 31, 1983.

2. Entries will be judged by National Judging Institute, Inc., under the direction of a qualified home economist. Winners will be selected from among the finalists by a panel of qualified judges. Judging of the written recipe will be based on the judges' perception of: originality and creativity—(0-30 points); visual appeal—(0-20 points); taste appeal—(0-20 points); ease of preparation—(0-20 points); availability of ingredients—(0-10 points). Decisions of judges are final. Only one prize to an individual or family. Prizes are nontransferable and may not be exchanged or substituted. All prizes will be awarded and winners notified by mail. No entry will be returned or acknowledged. No correspondence will be entered into about any entry.

3. Each entry must be the original work of the contestant. Judges may disqualify recipes known to have been previously published or to have been winners in contests unless they feature changes which, in their judgement, are significant. Winners may be required to execute an affidavit of eligibility and release. All entries become the property of American Home Foods and constitute permission for American Home Foods to edit, adapt, modify, publish and otherwise use in any way it sees fit any recipe received, without further compensation or payment to the contestant.

4. Contest is open to all residents of the U.S., except employees and their families of American Home Products, its affiliates, subsidiaries, advertising agencies and Don Jagoda Associates, Inc. Also ineligible are people involved in the preparation of food or recipes as a profession.

5. Void wherever prohibited or otherwise restricted by law. Taxes are the responsibility of the individual winners. No substitute or cash equivalent is available in lieu of any prize.

6. For a list of major winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: LUCK'S RECIPE CONTEST WINNERS, P.O. Box 3282, Syosset, NY 11775.

7. BONUS — Everyone who enters will be sent a free LUCK'S recipe booklet!

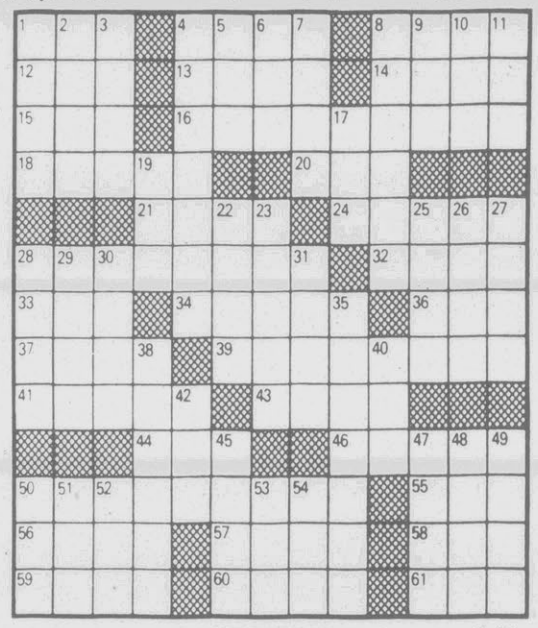
Answer to yesterday's puzzle.



CRYPTOQUIP 3-23

JLV FKBEKWVC'W XVJJVCW GCV AT-FKBEXVJV AS GXX GCV LGXS TKJVW.

Today's Cryptoquip clue: C equals R.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Seven of ◇.

The big hands usually attract most of the attention. That is not surprising, for one big swing can decide a match, or turn a loser into a winner at the rubber bridge table.

Among experts, however, partscores are the trenches where the battle is fought, with give and take by both sides and an occasional decisive thrust that turns the tide of battle. Today's hand is from a rubber bridge game at New York's renown Cavendish Club.

You need sound values to overcall a one club opening bid with one diamond. That is because you have not consumed any of the enemy's bidding space. But when partner is a passed hand, you can relax your requirements slightly if you want to get in a lead-directing bid. So East interposed in the auction in the event that South should become the declarer, and that proved to be the case.

West dutifully led a diamond, East won the queen and cashed the ace. Then he continued with the eight of diamonds, to show that his entry as in the higher-ranking of the remaining side suits—in this case, hearts. West ruffed and followed instructions by shifting to the jack of hearts. East won the ace and unerringly found the best defense.

From East's point of view, the defensive prospects were bleak indeed. The most he could hope for from his partner was the ace of clubs, so the setting trick had to be developed in the trump suit.

East led a fourth diamond! Declarer discarded from his hand and overruffed West's spade ten with the queen. As the cards lie, declarer could still get home by playing East for J-9-x of trumps, but he was not blessed with ESP. Instead, he led a trump to his king—down one.

No Support For The Ugly Club

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Knox County Commission, which turned down funding for the Miss USA pageant, also refused to come up with a buck to back an "Ugliest of the Ugly" show.

Two city officials, claiming to be founders of an Ugly Club, are planning the pageant May 11, the day before the nationally televised Miss USA beauty contest is completed at Civic Coliseum.

Backers of the Miss USA pageant weren't able to get the commission to contribute $100,000 of the $600,000 they originally said was needed to produce the show in Knoxville.

UNENDORSED

PEKING (AP) — China's family planning minister says the government does not endorse forced abortions, though some may occur as part of the country's birth control program.

One Lawmaker Barks Approval

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A lawmaker barked approval for a bill that would allow tenants 60 and older to keep dogs, cats, birds, fish, mice, gerbils, hamsters, guinea pigs or chinchillas as pets in public housing projects. Turtles were added to the list.

Two backers admit they have some conflict of interest. The grandmother of Sen. Greg Lunn of Tucson, Dorothy Lunn, wants to keep cats in her rooms at the city-owned Tucson House. And Sen. Luis Gonzalez, also of Tucson, wanted turtles added, saying his grandmother prefers them to the other creatures named.

A House committee approved the measure Monday by a vote of 11-0 with one of the votes an "arf" from Rep. Jim Skelly of Scottsdale. "I love dogs, cats — I love them all," he said.

"This is obviously a weird idea and grandma's apple pie and all that," said Rep. Pete Goudinoff.

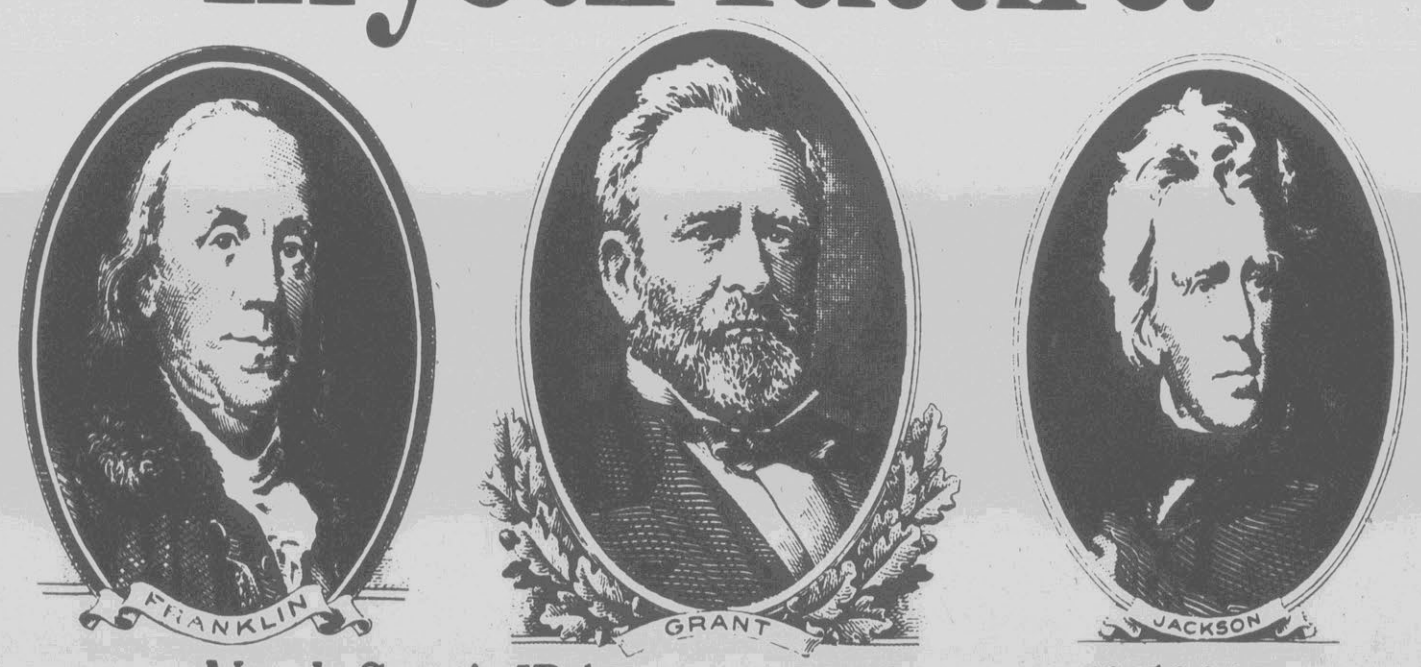
Put more great men in your future.



North State's IRA pays more interest: 10.50%

The real difference between all the available IRAs (Individual Retirement Accounts) is the amount of interest you get paid.

So check around. You'll soon find that North State's IRA pays you more.

And retirement will bring more big bills like Jacksons, Grants and Franklins when you open a North State IRA.

As little as $100 starts an IRA at North State. And even if you already have an IRA someplace else, you can open a new one and start getting North State's higher rates.

As with any IRA, you get tax deductions now (deduct deposits up until April 15 from your 1982 return) and income when you retire. So come in and let us tell you about a North State IRA at the office nearest you.

And while you may think that IRAs look a lot alike right now, a higher-rate North State IRA sure will look better later on.

*This is the annualized effective yield of North State's fixed rate IRA based on a daily compounding of a nominal rate of 9.99%

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward today with the help of some better-than-expected inflation news.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 2.71 to 1,125.68 in the first half hour.

Gainers and losers were about evenly balanced in the early tally of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Before the market opened the government reported that the consumer price index declined 0.2 percent in February. Wall Street an sts generally had been looking for the inflation measure to be flat or show a small increase.

Larry Speakes, spokesman for President Reagan, said the report was an indication of "a steady recovery" for the economy.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrial average slipped 2.32 to 1,122.97.

Advances slightly outnumbered declines on the NYSE.

Jury Proposes Let No Parole

FORT PAYNE, Ala. (AP) — A jury has recommended life in prison without parole for an 18-year-old mother of three found guilty of torturing and killing a 13-year-old girl she picked up to have sex with her husband.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated three hours and 45 minutes Tuesday before convicting Judith Ann Neelley of Murfreesboro, Tenn., in the death last September of Lisa Ann Millican.

Circuit Judge Randall Cole set sentencing for April 18. Under state law, he may either accept the jury's recommendation or sentence Mrs. Neelley to death in the electric chair.

Accreditation....

"Not only will we seek the renewal of accreditation but we intend to build upon our already excellent teacher education programs which we consider among the finest in the state."

While "we are not particularly disturbed" over the loss of NACTE accreditation, "we are naturally disappointed."

Chancellor John Howell said, "we've just gone through our accreditation for the Southern Association (of Colleges and Schools), our primary accrediting organization, with no serious problems" and won reaccreditation for 10 years. The Southern Association is a general purpose accrediting organization "that accredits all of the university programs," Howell explained.

NCATE, he said "is a specialized accrediting agency" that deals with teacher accreditation, "comparable to medical school or business school accreditation ... dealing with just one discipline."

Pointing out that most programs at the university "do not have specialized accreditation," Howell said, "What you get with specialized accreditation is some sort of special attention for the welfare of people in that particular discipline and power and control for people in that particular discipline.

"They do look at the quality of programs to see if they measure up, but you get this other thing, too, and it's this other thing (power and control) that they are talking about in this particular report. They are not talking about the substance or the competence of the faculty in these programs, they are talking about the way they are organized for administrative purposes. That's their main problem in this report."

Howell said, "The gist of their criticism is that there is not enough centralized control over teacher education programs."

The chancellor suggested that "most institutions that have developed like this one have or will have problems" with NCATE. ECU, he explained, developed as a teacher education institution, controlled by a president and dean. Education is just one department in a teacher education college that deals with the professional aspect ... "the how to, as opposed to content."

As the university developed, the education department became the school of education, Howell said, adding that, "People who dealt with the education part of history stayed in history ... stayed in art or what have you.

"If you put all these programs into a college of education within the university, the people in history and art would say you divided history and art," Howell explained.

"That's what we've got to deal with here in the next few months: how are we going to reorganize education to satisfy them (the NCATE).

Suggesting there are several ways of reorganizing, Howell said the "most sweeping" would be to transfer all teacher education programs into a college of education.

"Another way is to establish an arrangement to give the dean of the school of education some control over all teacher education programs, whether they are in the education department or not.

"We've already done that, but they (NCATE) haven't considered it. As soon as we knew they had this reservation, we created the position of coordinator of teacher education, a staff position reporting to the vice chancellor for academic affairs. They just said they wouldn't pay attention to that ... just said you are accrediated on the basis of how you were the day we came."

Howell said, "What we'll do is ask for a revisit next year sometime. We'll get a new team and start fresh ... be accredited on the basis of where we are the day they come."

Howell said NCATE accreditation is "nice to have but we don't need it." He said the most essential accreditation is certification by the State Board of Education.

Less than half of the 44 public and private colleges and universities in North Carolina that provide some form of teacher preparation are accredited by NCATE, although all of them have state accreditation.

Mammoth Tusk

MOSCOW (AP) — The tusk of a mammoth which roamed the region 70,000 to 80,000 years ago was found in the outskirts of Moscow by a construction brigade digging a foundation, a local newspaper reported.

The find was made in the town of Dolgoprudny, 12 miles northwest of the Soviet capital near Sheremetyevo international airport.

Khomeini Sees 'Evil Hands'

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has told Iranian officials that "evil hands are at work," but "under present circumstances no one is able to launch a coup" against his government.

The official Iranian news agency, IRNA, quoted Iran's spiritual and political leader Tuesday as saying, "the Iranian people and government are invulnerable as long as they preserve their unity.

"But nevertheless, in view of possible divisions emerging among them, the probability of a coup attempt would increase because there are evil hands at work against the Islamic Republic, waiting for such an opportunity."

Honors Pile Up On Conley's Gatlin

From Wire and Staff Reports

The honors continued to pile up for D.H. Conley basketball star Keith Gatlin, named only yesterday to the Associated Press' All-State first team. Today, Gatlin was named as the AP's Player of the Year in North Carolina, was named to play in the Capital Classic in Washington, D.C., and was honored by McDonald's, the sponsoring organization of the McDonald's All-American team.

Last week, it was announced that Gatlin had been chosen as a member of the McDonald's All-America team and would play in the Atlanta, Ga., East-West game sponsored by the hamburger chain.

Today, it was announced that Gatlin would also play in the 10th annual Capital Classic to be held at Capital Centre, outside Washington, D.C., on April 1.

The game, also sponsored by McDonald's, brings in ten of the nation's finest players to face a team of all-stars from the Metropolian District of Columbia area.

Gatlin will be a member of the National team that will face the Metro team.

Gatlin, along with Coach Shelley Marsh of Conley, will be in the D.C. area for five days, participating not only in practice sessions for the game, but visiting various sites throughout the D.C. area, including the White House and the Capitol.

• •

This morning, at D.H. Conley, representatives of the restaurant chain honored Gatlin for his being picked on the McDonald's team, presenting him with a certificate denoting his selection. He was also presented with a certificate by Greenville mayor Percy Cox, proclaiming today as "Keith Gatlin Day" in Greenville. McDonald's also presented him with an ACC basketball and luggage for his upcoming trips. His mother was also presented with a trip to Atlanta to see the all-star game there.

• •

That was topped off by Gatlin's being named as the Player of the Year by the Associated Press this morning.

A panel of North Carolina sports writers chose Gatlin of as The Associated Press' 1983 boys basketball Player of the Year while Kim Taylor of Rocky Mount and Bandys' Beverly Greenard share the girls' version.

A four-year starter, Gatlin scored 1,612 career points, closing out this season shooting 55 percent from the floor and 92 percent from the foul line.

The 6-foot-5, 165-pound point guard averaged 25.7 points, 9.8 rebounds, 6.2 assists, 2 blocks and 2.5 steals before choosing Maryland from among the 210 colleges recruiting him.

"It would be a long time before another one comes along like him," Conley coach Shelly Marsh said. "He's the best all-around basketball player I've ever coached."

Gatlin narrowed his college choices to Maryland, Wake Forest and North Carolina State before opting for the Terrapins.

"He may not necessarily start, but he'll play a lot (as a freshman)," Marsh predicted. "What I've seen of Maryland they could use a penetrating guard and that's the kind of guard he is. I don't theink they have a guard with the ability to penetrate and dish off like Keith."

Taylor, 6-3 and 165 pounds, averages 32.2 points while taking 20.3 rebounds and blocking 4 shots per game. Against Kinston in the Big East Conference semifinals, she hit 21 of 26 field goal attempts en route to a 48-point night.

"We played all our non-conference games without her (because of a shoulder injury) and we were 1-5," Rocky Mount coach Judy Bradshaw said. "Since she's been back, we're 17-1."

Taylor was recruited by many colleges, from Mississippi to Southern California, but has verbally committed to North Carolina State.

"She's very coachable and has a good attitude," Bradshaw said. "I think she'll do well in college. She's going to have to make adjustments, like everyone else going to college."

Taylor, a unanimous all-conference choice, averaged 23 points and 23 rebounds as a junior and 18 points and 18 rebounds her sophomore year.

"She's an only child," Bradshaw said. "I hate that, too. I was hoping she'd have five or six sisters."

Greenard has led Bandys to two straight state titles and has it in line for another. At 5-11, 175 pounds, she's strong but has a feather shooting touch which has resulted in 72.8 percent accuracy from the floor.

"When you look at a player being good or bad in sports, you look at consistency," Bandys coach Mike Matheson said. "She's as consistent as a player can be. She's been a great player for us."

Greenard has been in double figures in 74 consecutive games while rolling up 2,090 career points. She's averaging 19.4 points and 10 rebounds this year, but hasn't decided on her college future yet.

"She has a lot of determination and one of the greatest shooting touches I've ever seen," Matheson said. "She's got all the combinations you'd want in a player.

"She's a post player, shot over 72 percent this year," Matheson added. "I'm sure she'd be over 60 percent the last four years, probably closer to 70 percent. I've never seen her take a bad shot, she's always under control."

Two Named As Top Coaches

RALEIGH (AP) — Fayetteville Pine Forest girls coach Tom Jackson and Greensboro Page boys basketball coach Mac Morris and have been selected as The Associated Press' 1983 prep Coaches of the Year.

The veteran coaches were chosen by a panel of North Carolina sports writers.

Pine Forest's Jackson received his 350th career victory when the Trojans defeated Jacksonville 51-43 for the Mid-South Conference tournament title. His teams have lost 181 in 23 years.

Although this year's 26-2 record is superior to last season's 17-10 mark, it wasn't an easy year for Jackson. One starter missed the Jacksonville game, another who was injured earlier played for the first time in several games and it was later discovered that guard Tracy Vann had scored 16 points in the title tilt while playing with a ruptured appendix.

"The conference only had one representative in the playoffs and we had to win on the road at Jacksonville, which beat us the previous year at Pine Forest," Jackson said.

Despite the injuries, Jackson was optimistic entering this week's regional play. That optimism was stifled Thursday in the 4A East Regional semifinals when the Trojans were beaten by Raleigh Broughton 48-33.

"This is quite an honor and I'm very proud to get it," he concluded. "But, of course, without the girls it wouldn't have been possible."

Morris was a classmate of Virginia coach Terry Holland at Davidson and there have been many parallels in their careers. Holland has the 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson and Morris has his own big man in 6-foot-10½ junior Danny Manning. And both know the pressure of being expected to win.

But there are also differences between the two within their own levels of competition.

Holland has never won the big prize, in his case the NCAA championship, but Morris led the Pirates to the 1979 Class 4A state title.

There have been other differences, too.

"I was a team manager and he was a player," Morris said of his Davidson days. "That's why he's making $100,000 a year and I'm making $10,000 a year."

In 15 years, Morris has led Page to a 247-92 record, including a 23-0 mark entering this year's regionals.

"I certainly think that this year any honors I get is the result of having such great individuals on the team," Morris said. "It has been a real pleasure to coach a talented team like this. They're capable of doing things in the past we haven't been able to do. I'm sure that has a lot to do with it and I'm sure that has a lot more to do with it that anything I've done."

Camels Desert ECU, 7-1

BUIES CREEK — Campbell's Darin Cloninger, son of ex-professional Tony Cloninger, tossed a six-hitter at East Carolina and held the Pirates to one unearned run as the Camels rolled to a 7-1 baseball victory yesterday.

The loss marked the second straight for the Pirates and their third in the last four games. East Carolina is now 11-5 on the year, while Campbell climbs to 10-7-1.

While the Pirates were having trouble getting on base, Campbell seemed to do it with ease, taking advantage of mental mistakes on the part of the Pirates — and a few "seeing-eye" hits.

The scoring started in the third inning when Campbell came up with three runs. With one away, Bill Wilkes got a single that was just beyond the reach of both first baseman Todd Evans and second baseman David Horne. Bob Posey then reached on a bunt that Evans fielded with plenty of time, but pitcher Robby McClanahan forgot to cover the bag, leaving both runners safe. Kelly Hoffman then followed with a double to left that got by Mike Williams and both runners scored. After a second out, Tom Montgomery singled, driving in Hoffman for a 3-0 lead.

The Pirates got their lone run in the fourth. John Hallow doubled down the left field line and Evans singled him to third. Winfred Johnson flew out, and Evans was put out for leaving first too early. David Wells then reached on an error, scoring Hallow.

In the sixth, the Pirates gave up three more runs. With one away, Mickey Kradel walked as did Bob Spicer. Wilkes singled, loading the bases, and after a second out, Hoffman doubled to left, with the ball getting past fielder Mark Cockrell allowing all three runners to score, making it 6-1.

A final Camel run came over in the eighth. Kradel doubled to center, over the head of Robert Wells, and Spicer singled him to third. Kradel scored on Wilkes' ground out.

It all served to leave ECU Coach Hal Baird with a bitter taste in his mouth.

"We've seen so many seeing-eye hits against us and our bullets are getting caught," Baird said. "Jack Curlings and Mark Cockrell both hit the ball well and one makes a shoestring catch and the other leaps up and gets it. You know you're hurt when your best player is gone, but I've never heard of it psychologically huring a team."

Baird was referring to the absence of shortstop Kelly Robinette, who is with his family following the death of his sister.

Of McClanahan's effort on the mound, Baird said, "It was better. There were two or three times when pitchers with more savvy would get out of it, but he's coming. He had pretty good stuff because of all the fly balls they hit. I really can't think of any hard-hit ball other than Hoffman's double off Chubby (Butler — on in relief)."

Wilkes led the Campbell hitting with three, while Hoffman and Montgomery each had two. Hallow had two hits to lead the Pirates.

East Carolina is at home today for a game against Ohio University, with the two teams scheduled to meet against on Thursday. ECU then entertains ECAC-South foe James Madison on Saturday.

Chargers Hold Off Conley Rally, 7-6

By JIMMY DuPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD — Roger Moye's two-run homer in the first inning and a two-out single by Joey Kennedy that drove in a pair of runs in the second led the Ayden-Grifton Chargers to a 7-6 victory over the D.H. Conley Vikings Tuesday.

Conley jumped on A-G starter Doug Coley for a pair of runs in the first, as he walked Steve Mills and Chris Via. They advanced on a single by Todd Rouse, and Mills scored when centerfielder Tyrone Gay lost Mike Gurkins' pop fly in the wind. Glenn Clemmons' pop-up fell in with the aid of the wind to score Via.

"It wasn't a very pretty game," said Ayden-Grifton coach Allen Wilson, whose team is now 4-1 on the season. "I didn't think we played as well as we did early in the season. We've only been on the field two days since last week because of the weather.

"Coley had more control problems today than I've ever seen him have, but I thought (Terry) Garrett came on and really did a good job for us on the mound."

Gene Johnson reached first on a fielder's choice for the Chargers and moved to third on Coley's single. An error by Viking right fielder Todd Rouse on a fly ball by Kennedy allowed Johnson and Coley to score.

Wesley Hardee rapped a leadoff single for Ayden-Grifton in the second, stole second base and scored on a single to left by Johnson. Johnson moved to third on a single by Gay, and Gay stole second on the first pitch to Coley.

After Coley drew a base-on-balls, Johnson and Gay scored on a single by Kennedy. Kennedy stole second and Coley broke for home on the throw but was out as catcher Stacy McCotter blocked the plate and applied the tag to end the inning.

The Vikings added a run in the third as Mills led off with a single and moved to third on a walk by Via and an error by Jackie Conway. A wild pitch by Coley allowed Mills to cross the plate to trim the margin to 7-3.

Mills singled off the right field wall with two out in the fourth and scored on a double off the wall in center by Eddie Robinson.

Glenn Clemmons was hit by a pitch and Edwards reached first on a fielder's choice in the fifth. Both advanced a base on another Coley wild pitch and scored on a single to center by Mitchell Cox. Garrett moved to the mound for the Chargers and got out of the inning with a pop fly by Mills.

Garrett led off the fifth with a single for the Chargers, and courtesy runner Charles Mitchell stole second and moved to third on a passed ball. The ball slipped by McCotter again, but he recovered and shuffled it to Rouse for the tag.

Garrett retired the side in order in the sixth, but walked Kite to open the seventh. McCotter reached first on a fielder's choice and stole second on a missed bunt attempt. But Garrett struck out John Brown and got Cox to ground out to second to end the game.

O'Brien No-Hitter Leads Knights

Greenville Christian got a no-hitter from Daren O'Brien in the opening baseball game of the season for the Knights yesterday as Bethel Christian fell, 8-4.

O'Brien walked 11 in the contest, however, while striking out ten.

After Bethel had pushed over a run in the top of the first, Greenville came back with four in its half of the frame. O'Brien singled and stole second with Chris Stox walking. Jay Wynne then doubled to score both runners. Wynne moved to third on an error and Chris Harris walked. On an attempted double steal, an error let Wynne score. Billy Stancil then grounded out, scoring Harris.

What proved to be the winner crossed in the second for the Knights. Troy Stox walked and O'Brien singled. Chris Stox then singled in his brother with the fifth GCA run of the day.

The Knights added single runs in the third, fifth and sixth. Bethel scored two more in the fifth and one in the seveth.

O'Brien also led the GCA hitting with four, while Wynne had two. Wynne, who played catcher, threw out seven baserunners trying to advance during the game.

Now 1-0, the Knights play host to Falls Road on Friday.

Turnbill Commits To Play For East Carolina

Wilmington New Hanover High School basketball player Jack Turnbill has made a commitment to East Carolina Univeristy to play that sport.

The 6-9, 185-pound senior was named honorable mention all-state just yesterday. Playing a forward position for the first time ever this season, Turnbill averaged 15 points and 12 rebounds per game.

"We are very pleased, very happy to get this commitment from Jack," said Pirate coach Charlie Harrison. "Jack gives us some size, but most important, size on the perimeter. He can play either small or big forward in our offensive scheme.

"We feel Jack is an excellent shooter and can really pass the basketball. He does some things you just can't teach. He's only 17, but already 6-9 and he will get stronger.

"Jack loves to compete. One of the things we look for in a recruit is how they progress during a season. Jack has gotten progressively better his senior year."

Turnbill was recruited by Sun Belt schools, Southern Conference schools, West Virginia and made a visit to Clemson of the ACC. He narrowed his choices to ECU and Appalachian before selecting Harrison and the Pirates.

"For a kid his size, he had good quickness and excellent shooting ability," noted his high school coach Bill Wade. "We moved Jack from center with his back to the basket this year, to playing him outside facing the basket. After Christmas he really had adapted and his averages were more like 20 points and 14 rebounds per game."

Turnbill is the second player to commit to ECU thus far. Earlier, it was announced the defensive star William Grady, 6-2 guard from Eastside High in Patterson, N.J., signed a grant-in-aid under the new early signing rules of the NCAA.

Goff's Two-Hitter Defeats Hawks 2-1

WHEAT SWAMP — Greene Central used a two-hitter by Tony Goff and some late scoring to pull out a 4-1 baseball victory over North Lenoir yesterday.

Goff, in hurling the complete game, allowed just the two hits, while striking out four and walking an equal number.

North Lenoir got its only run in the first. Donnell Thorbes singled and Kevin Lee walked. The next batter grounded into a double play, moving Thorbes to third, and he scored on a wild pitch.

The 1-0 lead held until the fourth when Chris Suggs tied it up with a solo homer for the Rams.

Then, in the seventh, Greene Central came up with three to put the game away. With one out, Elmer Dixon walked and Chris Harris singled. Todd Grant then singled, loading the bases and Otis Barnes walked to force over Dixon. Kevin Langston doubled in Harris and Grant for the final 4-1 margin.

Suggs and Grant led the Greene hitting with two each.

Now 3-1, the Rams play host to Farmville Central on Friday.

Jamesville Takes Early Lead, Blasts Aurora

AURORA — Jamesville exploded for nine runs in the first inning and went on to take an 18-2 baseball victory over Aurora yesterday.

By the time the first inning was over, the Bullets had the game wrapped up.

Matthew Moore opened the inning with a walk and Greg Hardison reached on an error. Richie Ange walked, loading them up, and Rex Bell was hit by a pitch, scoring Moore. Tim Norris hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Hardison, but getting Bell. Rusty Holliday then walked, reloading the bases.

Kevin Waters singled in Ange and Norris, and Kevin Perry's single scored Holliday. Terry Perry's grounder got Waters, and Moore, back up, reached on an error, scoring Perry. Hardison also reached on an error, scoring both Terry Perry and Moore. Hardison ended up on third on the play, scoring on a passed ball with the ninth run.

Jamesville added one in the second, seven in the third, and one in the sixth. Aurora got single runs in the third and fifth.

Lady Pirates Sweep Pair At UNC-Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina University's Lady Pirate softball team took a doubleheader victory from the University of North Carolina yesterday, 9-3, and 6-2.

In the opener, the Lady Pirates took the lead with a pair of runs in the first and added two more in the second for a 4-0 lead. Carolina came back with one in the bottom of the second and it stayed that way until the seventh, when the Lady Pirates exploded for five. Carolina came back with one in the bottom of the inning.

Sherri Stout, Yvonne Williams and Robin Graves each had two hits for ECU, with Stout getting a triple and Williams, a double. Ginger Rothermel also had a double. Key Holt led the UNC hitting with two.

In the second game, the Lady Pirates pushed over a run in the third, then added two each in the fourth and sixth. Those latter four runs all came on homers by Mitzi Davis, who accounted for five runs batted in during the outing. ECU then added a sixth run in the seventh. Carolina scored both of its runs in the sixth.

In addition to Davis' two hits, Melody Ham added two for the Pirates. Sharon Tuttle had two hits for the Lady Heels, while Janet Braxter had a double.

"It's always nice to go to Carolina and come back with a victory, especially when it's both games of a doubleheader," Coach Sue Manahan said. "On defense, we played well fundamentally; the outfield came up with some excellent catches. We hit the ball crisply throughout the lineup. We're developing something we didn't have last year, which is threats throughout the lineup. The team as a whole is showing a good attitude. They are willing to sacrifice their batting averages to advance teammates on the bases."

East Carolina is now 7-4 on the year while North Carolina drops to 6-6.

The Pirates host Pembroke State and Virginia Commonwealth Saturday in a round-robin affair, and host N.C. State in a doubleheader on Sunday.

Parrott Downs Chargers

GRIFTON — Parrott Academy, despite medalist honors by Ayden-Grifton's Warren Agee, downed the Chargers yesterday in a golf match at the Indian Trails Country Club.

Parrott finished the afternoon with a 323 total, while Ayden-Grifton had 340.

Agee recorded a 77 to lead all golfers. Other A-G scores included Marc Davis, 84; Brian Heath, 88; and Dan Bleizeffer, 91.

D.J. Patrick and Jim Blount each had 79 for Parrott, while B.H. Casey added 80. Ed Miller and Chris Harper each had 85 to round out the Parrott scoring.

Ayden-Grifton returns to action on Thursday, hosting Southern Wayne.

Roanoke Snaps Losing Streak With 14-4 Win

PLYMOUTH — Roanoke High School blasted Plymouth, 14-4, yesterday, snapping a four-game losing streak to gain its baseball win of the year.

Roanoke grabbed the lead in the first inning, scoring three times. Ricky Taylor walked and Stacey Wallace also walked. A third walk, to Darius Hudgins, loaded the bases. Greg Capser also walked, forcing in Taylor and bringing on a new Plymouth hurler.

After striking out the first batter, the new pitcher walked Charles James, scoring Wallace, and Terry Griffin followed with a fielder's choice, scoring Hudgins for a 3-0 lead.

After scoring once in the second, Roanoke added two more in the third to sew it up. James led off the third by reaching on an error. With one away, Mitch Modlin singled. Then, after a second out, Taylor doubled, driving in both runners.

Roanoke added two in the fifth and six in the sixth. Plymouth scored two in the fourth, and one each in the fifth and seventh.

Taylor led the Roanoke hitting with four, while Wallace had three, two of them doubles. Modlin had two hits, while Hudgins had a solo homer in the sixth.

Steve Hart had two of the three Plymouth hits, both of them homers, accounting for three of the four Viking runs.

Roanoke, now 1-4, plays host to Ahoskie on Friday.

Lady Bullets Slip By Aurora

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School's girls' softball team slipped past Aurora, 10-8, yesterday in a Tobacco Belt Conference game.

Jamesville grabbed the lead in the first inning with three runs, and added one in the second. Aurora then came up with two in the third and scored five in the fourth to take a 7-4 lead.

Jamesville rallied with four in the bottom of the frame, regaining the lead, 8-7. Aurora tied it up again in the top of the fifth, but Jamesville got two in the sixth to take the lead for good.

Crystal Perry had two hits, including a double, while Donna Coburn had two with a triple and three runs batted in. Kim Floyd added two hits, a double and a triple and also had three rbi's. Lori Hardison had three rbi's all on three sacrifices. Kim Hale and Robin Manning each had two hits to finish off the Jamesville totals.

Aurora was led by D. Powell with three hits, while T. Barrett and M. Brown each had two hits.

Jamesville plays host to Belhaven on Thursday.

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir High School ripped Greene Central's girls' softball team, 15-5 yesterday.

The Lady Hawks jumped on the Lady Rams early, scoring three times in the first inning. After Greene Central scored twice in the second, North Lenoir added four for a 7-2 lead.

The Hawks picked up six more in the third and two in the fifth. Greene Central scored single runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh.

Deedee Phillippe led the North Lenoir hitting with two, both homers, solo shots in the first and second innings. Howell and Chapman each added two hits.

Greene Central was led by Patronelle Davis, Trynette Daniels and Lisa Radford with two each.

Dean Says Buckeyes Better

CHAPEL HILL (AP) — North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith thinks the Ohio State team he and his defending national champions Tar Heels will face in the NCAA East Regionals Friday is a lot better without Clark Kellogg.

Kellogg was a forward on last season's team that lost a first-round East Regional game to James Madison. Kellogg would have been a senior this year, but moved on, declaring himself eligible for the National Basketball Association and becoming a member of the Indiana Pacers.

Smith told reporters at a news conference Tuesday that the difference is that the Buckeyes are playing more team-oriented basketball since Kellogg's departure.

"I really felt Ohio State was struggling seriously at that time because Kellogg was thinking pro and getting some points and rebounds," Smith said. "That's why I really believe that they have a much better team without Kellogg. Not that Clark isn't a fine player. It just did something to their chemistry."

The new Buckeye chemistry resulted in a 79-74 victory over Syracuse in last weekend's second-round game at Hartford, Conn. The loss denied Syracuse a chance to play an NCAA tournament game on its home court, the Carrier Dome.

"Some of you were talking last week about playing Syracuse at Syracuse," Smith told the reporters. "That's why you should never discuss some game that won't come about."

Smith said he thought his team would have been ready to play the Orangemen, but they'll have to work especially hard for the Buckeyes. He mentioned guards Ron Stokes and Troy Taylor as key members of the Ohio State attack.

"They certainly look to fast break," Smith said. "Their guards will penetrate and they try to get it inside to (center Granville) Waiters and (forward Tony) Campbell, although Campbell can shoot outside."

Campbell is the team's leading scorer at 19.1 points, while Taylor averages 12.8 and Waiters is at 10.6.

"We must stop the penetration of their guards," Smith said. "If we can play defense as well as we did last Saturday, then that will go a long way in helping us."

The Tar Heels opened defense of their crown last Saturday with a 68-49 victory over James Madison, the same team it defeated last year en route to the title. Sam Perkins scored 18 points and Michael Jordan added 16 in the victory.

The 6-foot-7 Jordan is the team's leading scorer at 19 points per game and was a first-team selection to The Associated Press All-America basketball team.

Smith declared Perkins much improved from his toe injury of two weeks ago. Freshman center Brad Daugherty is still recovering from severe shin splints and junior forward Matt Doherty is hindered by a recurring lower back problem. The latter two are expected to start Friday night.

Rose Tracksters Open Year, Down Northern

Rose High School's boys' track team opened its season yesterday, gaining an 85-56 victory over Northern Nash.

Burney Carraway led the victory, winning three events for Rose. He captured first place in the pole vault, then added both of the hurdle events. Edward Frazier added two more victories for the Rampants, winning the 100 and 400-meter dashes.

Overall, Rose won ten of 14 individual events, but Northern gained a lot of ground by taking all three of the relays.

Panthers Rip Eagles By 11-2

VANCEBORO — North Pitt captured its third victory of the young baseball season yesterday, rolling to an 11-2 win over West Craven.

West Craven grabbed the initial lead, scoring twice in the first inning. Charlie Daughtry walked and Eddie Moore singled. Both moved up on an out, and Randy Elks' single plated them.

It stayed that way until the third when North Pitt exploded for six big runs. Alvin Grimes opened with a single and moved up on an out. Junior Huber then singled and a hit by Greg Briley scored both baserunners. Ken Whitehurst reached on an error and Daniel Keel tripled, again scoring two runs. Brian Briley singled in Keel, and a hit by Jay Hines brought Briley over for the 6-2 lead.

North Pitt came back to add five more in the fifth to put the game on ice.

Alvin Grimes led the North Pitt hitting with two.

Now 3-2, the Panthers play host to Charles B. Aycock on Friday.

Ralph Resumes Hunt For Elusive Title

By The Associated Press

Ralph Sampson is taking them one at a time in his pursuit of one of the few things to elude him in his brilliant college basketball career — a national championship.

Sampson and the fourth-ranked Virginia Cavaliers meet the fast-flying Eagles of No.11 Boston College in the West Regional semifinals at Ogden, Utah, when the NCAA Tournament resumes Thursday night.

One slip and the 7-foot-4 Sampson's college career — he is a three-time All-American — will be over. That is why Sampson is throwing around the old bromide about playing them one at a time.

"I probably thought about that once," Sampson says when asked about the stigma of never having won a national championship. "I try and think about what I have to do Thursday to get the job done to get to Saturday."

"It's his last turn around and, fair or not, that's the way people will label him for the rest of his life," Holland says.

"It's definitely going to be tense because it's that time of year when you have to win one game or you're out, and nobody wants to go back home," says Sampson.

Utah and No. 16 North Carolina State are paired in the other West semifinal.

Thursday's other action is in the Mideast Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., where second-ranked Louisville meets No.9 Arkansas and fifth-ranked Indiana faces No.12 Kentucky.

On Friday, in the East Regional at Syracuse, N.Y., third-ranked St. John's meets Georgia and eighth-ranked North Carolina, the defending NCAA champion, plays Ohio State. And in the Midwest Regional at Kansas City, Mo., top-rated Houston plays No.17 Memphis State and No.13 Villanova tackles Iowa. The regional winners advance to the Final Four in Albuquerque, N.M., April 2-4.

Sampson says Virginia must play better than it did last weekend in a 52-49 victory over Washington State, a game in which Sampson was held without a field goal in the second half.

"We have to rebound the basketball, run the break and play defense inside the lane and outside the lane and not give up easy shots," Sampson says."I'm going to be hard on myself and the team anyway because I think we can play better always."

Besides Virginia, the two other Atlantic Coast Conference teams in the tournament — North Carolina and North Carolina State — are still alive. The Wolfpack of N.C. State are bidding to become the Cinderella team. First, they knocked off North Carolina and Virginia on succesive days to capture the ACC tourney. In the tournament, they nipped Pepperdine 69-67 in double overtime and sixth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas 71-70.

"I've been waiting four years for this," a senior engineering major shouted from the midst of the throng during the latest demonstration in Raleigh on Sunday night. "Four years."

After trailing by as many 12 points in the second half, N.C. State came back again. Thurl Bailey grabbed a missed shot and scored with four seconds left, handing UNLV only its third loss of the season.

"When we were down 12, I just told the kids not to quit," said Coach Jim Valvano. "I told 'em that when we do some 'smart' things at the end, something good usually happens."

North Carolina expected to have its hands full with Syracuse on the Orangemen's home court, but Ohio State altered that with a 79-74 upset of the Orangemen.

"Some of you were talking about playing Syracuse at Syracuse — that's why you should never discuss some game that won't come about," North Carolina Coach Dean Smith said Tuesday.

Smith said the Buckeyes will provide problems because of the quickness of guards Ron Stokes and Troy Taylor, who account for almost 22 points per game, while 6-foot-7 forward Tony Campbell leads the team with a 19.1 average.

"I don't think anybody is quicker than Stokes and Taylor," Smith said. "Campbell is All-Big Ten and we think that he's just a tremendous player. If we can play defense as well as we did last Saturday (in a 68-49 victory over James Madison), then that will go a long way to helping us. Everybody I've talked to says they're a better team than they were last year.

Since Syracuse lost to Ohio State, ticket sales for the East Regional have slowed to a standstill at the Carrier Dome.A spokesman said Tuesday that just over 22,000 ticket packages had been sold for the arena, which seats 32,000 for basketball.

In Knoxville, however, fans are paying $300 and more for $30-ticket sets to the three-game Mideast Regional, whose biggest selling point is the possibility of a Saturday match between Kentucky and Louisville — the "dream game" which Bluegrass basketball fans have been awaiting for years.

"I've been at UT 33 years and I've never seen anything like this," said Gus Manning, Tennessee's ticket manager.

Knoxville's two newspapers carried 21 classified advertisements Tuesday for tickets and would-be buyers outnumbered sellers 19-2. One ad offered a pair of ticket books for $500. Another said, "Will pay any price." One advertisement, with a Louisville telephone number, offered to pay cash or swap for Kentucky Derby tickets.

Tennessee fans, whose Vols were eliminated by Indiana, don't seem to be parting with their tickets.

"Everybody is calling from up north saying, 'When are the Tennessee fans going to sell their tickets?'" Susan Crane of UT's ticket office said. "But they're not. Most of the fans here just want to see the good basketball games."

The Knoxville Journal quoted an unidentified man who said he sold 16 ticket sets for $2,000. A short time later, another man called offering to pay $4,800.

"I was sick," the scalper said. "If he had only called earlier."

Huskers Face Problems

By The Associated Press

The Texas Christian University basketball team features an all-senior front line that ranges from 6-foot-8 to 6-10.

That could present some tall problems for Nebraska in Thursday night's National Invitation Tournament quarterfinal game at Lincoln, Neb., according to Husker Coach Moe Iba.

"They're a tough team for us to go against because of their size," says Iba. "They play a good matchup zone defense and the 30-second clock will favor that. They'll also run their motion offense as well as anybody we'll play all year."

The TCU-Nebraska game is one of three NIT contests Thursday night. In other action, Wake Forest meets South Carolina in Greensboro, N.C., and Fresno State plays at Oregon State. The quarterfinal round will conclude Friday night, when Mississippi takes on DePaul in Rosemont, Ill.

Quarterfinal winners will advance to the semifinals Monday in New York's Madison Square Garden. The title game will be played March 30.

TCU is playing some of its best ball of the season. Two weekends ago, the Horned Frogs upset then sixth-ranked Arkansas 61-59 in the semifinals of the Southwest Conference tournament in Dallas. TCU followed that victory with a 62-59 loss to nationally top-ranked Houston in the SWC championship game.

In the first two games of the NIT, the Horned Frogs took a 64-62 decision over Tulsa, the 1981 NIT champion, and then beat Arizona State last Monday night.

"TCU will be a very physical team for us to play," says Iba, thinking mainly of the Horned Frogs' front line of 6-10 center Brian Christensen and 6-9 Doug Arnold and 6-8 Doug Cucinella at forwards.

"We're going to have some short practices, so we don't wear our kids down. They're better off fresh. You've got to make sure you have your legs and some bounce in a physical game. You've got to be able to jump."

Nebraska beat Tulane 72-65 in the first round and then knocked out Iona 85-73 in the second round.

In Monday night's other second-round games, Mississippi won 65-57 over South Florida, DePaul downed Northwestern 65-63, South Carolina trimmed Virginia Tech 75-68, Fresno State turned back Michigan State 72-58, Wake Forest beat South Florida 65-57 and Oregon State walloped New Orleans 88-71.

The Ole Miss victory has pumped up Ken Turner, Mississippi's assistant coach. "We're in Newark, just across the bridge," said Turner, implying that he had the New York skyline in his sights.

The most exciting game of the second-round was between DePaul and Northwestern, won by the Blue Devils on a 35-foot buzzer shot by Kenny Patterson. Ironically, Patterson wasn't even first choice to take the final shot for DePaul. The plan formulated by Coach Ray Meyer called for either Bernard Randolph or Tyrone Corbin to take the final shot.

"But they overloaded on both of them," explained Patterson. "So they threw the ball back to me, figuring the worst it would be would be a tie."

Iona Coach Pat Kennedy missed his team's loss to Nebraska. Kennedy had stayed at home Sunday when his wife gave birth to a son, and then was unable to make connections for a flight to the game Monday.

Iona's knockout marked another NIT tourney without the possibility of a New York-area team in the winner's circle. The last team from the city area to win the New York-based tourney was St. John's in 1965.

Vilas Gets Win

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Second-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina defeated Czechoslovakia's Pavel Slozil 7-6, 6-3 in a first-round match of the $365,000 Cuore Tennis Cup.

In other matches, third-seeded Gene Mayer lost to Australian John Alexander 7-6, 6-0; fifth-seeded Steve Denton was eliminated by Sweden's Thomas Hogstedt 7-6, 3-6, 7-6, and sixth-seeded Andres Gomez of Ecuador was upset by American Mark Dickson 4-6, 6-4, 6-3. Also, South African Kevin Curren downed Australian Paul McNamee in straight sets and Czechoslovakia's Tomas Smid beat American Fritz Buehning 6-4, 6-0.

"I Can Cope" is the title of a patient-family education program being sponsored by the Pitt County Unit of the American Cancer Society each Tuesday from April 12 to May 17 at 8 p.m. in Room 247 of Pitt County Memorial Hospital.

Dr. and Mrs. Dave Buck of Greenville are coordinating the program designed to help cancer patients and their families relieve themselves of worries and anxieties by learning from other people in the same situations.

The program is free of charge. The sessions are divided into the following segments; 1. introduction to cancer-the-disease; 2. coping with daily health problems; 3. expressing feelings; 4 liking yourself; 5. living with limitations and 6. community resources and graduation.

Further information about the program may be obtained by calling the Cancer Society office, 752-2574.

Rector To Discuss Central America

Father Charles Mulholland will speak at East Carolina University Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Baptist Student Center on 10th Street on his recent trip to Central America as part of the local observance of Central America Week. Mulholland, rector of a church in Cary, once led the St. Gabriel's congregation here.

A candlelight vigil will be held prior to Mulholland's lecture at 7 p.m. at the Pitt County Courthouse to mark the third anniversary of the murder of El Salvadoran Archbishop Oscar Romero, killed while celebrating mass.

The ECU Committee on Central America also will hold a one-hour demonstration in front of the ECU Student Supply Store beginning at noon Thursday. Anyone who opposes U.S. military aid to Central America and who wishes to see peace in the region may participate, committee members said.

Father Mulholland

Boys Choir To Sell Doughnuts

The Greenville Boys Choir will sell doughnuts in Greenville Saturday with proceeds to be used for expenses of operating the organization and defraying expenses of the choir's annual spring concert.

The concert is scheduled for April 12 at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. Carolyn G. Ipock directs the choral group which is composed of boys from Greenville and the surrounding area.

A group of Pitt Community College Adult Basic Education students visited Raleigh recently on a field trip and toured the Legislative Building, the Justice Building, the Capitol, the Governor's Mansion, the Museum of Natural history and the Museum of Archives and History.

Two Collisions Here Tuesday

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a three-vehicle collision at the intersection of Evans and 13th streets about 5:26 p.m.

Drivers of the vehicles involved were listed as Susan Annette Horne of 206 Greene Dorm, Joseph H. Goodson of 105 Martinsborough Road and Timothy J. Lancaster of 1221 Evans St.

Damage was estimated at $800 to the Horne car, $300 to the Goodson car and $600 to the Lancaster vehicle.

Cars driven by Ralph Hardee Rives of 309 Lewis St. and Shirley Nunn Price of 1306 E. First St. collided about 3:44 p.m. at the intersection of First and Jarvis streets, causing an estimated $100 damage to the Rives car and $400 damage to the Price vehicle.

Police said Mrs. Price was injured in the collision.

First Entry In Race For Governorship

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The 1984 governor's race officially opened Tuesday as Democrat and former Superior Court Judge Lacy H. Thornburg of Webster announced his candidacy.

Thornburg, who represented Jackson County in the state House from 1961 to 1967, made the announcement in a news conference on the Capitol steps. He was accompanied by his wife and four children.

"The first priority of state government must become the creation of jobs through an active program of encouraging private industry," Thornburg said. "We must depend on the private sector for a positive response."

He said the poor economic health of the state has threatened North Carolina's way of life and stressed that the state must satisfy citizens' needs to work without concentrating on one area of the state over another.

The "fundamental role of education must be assured and strengthened" and the state must take another look at the pay scale for teachers to maintain a first-class school system, he said.

Thornburg said the role of technical colleges also must be strengthened and extended to those in prison, so they can train to return to society as valuable workers.

He acknowledged that his name is not a household word in eastern North Carolina but said he is concerned about that area's agricultural mainstay — flue-cured tobacco.

He said the federal government apparently has "gone to war" against the tobacco industry and the state must anticipate the turmoil which destruction of the tobacco program would create. Thornburg called for a study of alternative cash crops and alternative uses for tobacco.

Thornburg stepped down from the Superior Court bench March 1, because state law requires that a judge vacate the bench before running for another political office.

Gov. Dan Moore appointed him a special Superior Court judge in 1967. Gov. Bob Scott appointed him as resident Superior Court judge for the far western counties in 1971 and he has been elected to the post since 1972.

He acknowledge Tuesday that he may not be as well known as other potential Democratic candidates — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green, Attorney General Rufus Edmisten and Insurance Commissioner John Ingram. But Thornburg said the contest has not been won or lost yet.

By announcing his candidacy first, Thorburg said he hoped to gain some notoriety and "do away with the rumors that I had in mind running for another office."

Not Worth Legal Fees

JACKSON, Mo. (AP) — A man who successfully appealed a $150 speeding ticket says the victory wasn't worth $6,000 in legal fees.

Robert Langford was returning from dinner with three other people on April 28, 1981, when he was pulled over by a Jackson police officer and charged with traveling 55 mph in a 40 mph zone.

"I honestly wasn't speeding," Langford said.

He took the case to court and was fined $150, but appealed on the grounds that there was no evidence the radar gun wielded by Lt. Larry Koenig was accurate.

The Missouri Court of Appeals in St. Louis agreed Tuesday and voided the ticket.

"Our review of Lt. Koenig's testimony establishes that it was insufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the radar unit was found to be operating properly at the site of and reasonably close in time to the arrest of defendant," it said.

Despite the victory, Langford advised others in a similar situation to "just pay the initial fine, unless you're a lawyer."

Cumulative TV Ratings Ignored By Madison Avenue

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The ballyhooed network ratings race is like the potato-sack competition at the company picnic. It's great for back-slapping, ego-boosting and prestige-building, but outside the office, it's really meaningless.

The networks make a big fuss over beating one another, and Nielsen's comparative numbers are made available to the public, through their hometown newspapers, eac week. Everyone who cares knows that CBS is No. 1 so far this year.

"There's glamour in winning the season," says H. Weller Keever, ABC's vice president for sales. "Cumulative ratings are very meaningful to stations, program departments and stockholders."

But advertisers — the people who pay the bills — consider this season-long competition virtually insignificant.

"We have practically zero interest in it," says Richard Kostyra of the J. Walter Thompson ad agency. "Those figures are based on households, and our clients care about specific targets, like women 18-34. There's an old-but-true cliche: Households never buy anything. People do."

That means if sponsors want women, they buy into a show like "Dynasty" on ABC. If they want men, they pay for a chunk of NBC's "Hill Street Blues." The ratings scorecard reflecting overall network performance is mostly for show, or show business.

And here's another surprise from Madison Avenue. Although major miniseries attract large audiences, network ratings inflated by these blockbusters are disregarded by advertisers when they purchase commercial time for the next season. "They have no relation to buying," says Keever.

Ratings for individual programs do establish next season's ad rates for those shows. In setting commercial charges, advertisers disregard abnormal ratings from special broadcasts like miniseries, the World Series or one-of-a-kind programs like the "M-A-S-H" finale, Keever says.

So the full rating point ABC gained from its 18-hour "Winds of War" in February didn't translate into the $50 million in future ad revenues a Nielsen point is supposed to be worth. The networks say that rough dollar figure applies only to ratings earned by regular series programming.

"Advertisers buy programs or packages of programs on a program-by-program basis," says David Poltrack, CBS' head of sales. "They don't buy a network's national average. Buyers are very astute."

ABC's revenue from "The Winds of War," which averaged a 38.6 rating, came from the $175,000 the network charged for a 30-second commercial. ABC will charge $150,000 for "The Thorn Birds," the 10-hour miniseries, which runs four consecutive nights, starting Sunday.

ABC says that all commercial time has been sold, even though some advertisers balked because "The Thorn Birds," the story of a priest tempted by the love of a woman, will be shown during Holy Week. The United States Catholic Conference complained about ABC's scheduling.

Ratings interest at the networks is running high now. With the prime-time season over April 17, ABC is making a last-gasp — but probably futile — bid to catch CBS with "The Thorn Birds." Kostyra says the advertising community expects "The Thorn Birds" to earn ratings comparable to "The Winds of War."

Originally scheduled for May, "The Thorn Birds" was moved up so it could be counted in the 1982-83 season.

Although ABC gained ground during its week of "The Winds of War," the network hasn't sustained the momentum and trails CBS by a full point. Through March 17, CBS had an 18.4 rating for the season, ABC 17.4 and NBC 15.5. Ratings measure the average percentage of TV households watching a given minute of prime time.

CBS has won every week since "The Winds of War," and the two programs ("Condo" and "Amanda's") that ABC introduced during "The Winds of War" blitz have fared poorly.

ABC wasn't able to take advantage of the smashing success of "The Winds of War." Half the commercial time for "The Thorn Birds" had been sold before "The Winds of War." So even though "Winds" became the second highest rated miniseries, reconfirming the intense interest in these major productions, ABC couldn't increase its ad rates.

Keever says the two miniseries were just too close in time. "The advertising budgets for most companies were already spent," he says. "You can't get more blood out of a stone."

'Special Bulletin' Fail To Lift NBC's Ratings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Although NBC's movie about nuclear terrorism got most of the attention last week, CBS continued its first-place domination of the A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings.

"Special Bulletin" used a simulation of news coverage to tell the story of a group of terrorists armed with a nuclear bomb holding the city of Charleston, S.C., hostage in return for the surrender of all military nuclear detonating devices. More than a thousand people telephoned NBC stations and police departments across the country because of the realistic portrayal.

The NBC movie was pushed aside in the ratings by its CBS opposition, "Trapper John, M.D.," which was No. 4, "Newhart," No. 8 and "The Jeffersons," No. 11.

"Special Bulletin" got a rating of 15.1, which means it was seen in 12.6 million homes. A movie about rape on ABC, "The Face of Rage," was buried even further. It finished in 50th place.

CBS won the week with a lead of more than 4 ratings points over second-place ABC. CBS had a rating of 19.6 and ABC had 15.2. NBC was in third place with 14.3. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 19.6 percent of homes with television were tuned to CBS.

For the season to date, CBS leads with a rating of 18.5. ABC is second with 17.3 and NBC is third with 15.4. The current season extends from last Sept. 27 to April 17.

CBS had seven of the Top 10, with "60 Minutes" in first place followed by "Magnum, P.I.," "Dallas" and "Trapper John." ABC's highest-ranked show was "Three's Company" in fifth place.

"The Ninth Annual People's Choice Awards" on CBS was in sixth place. Next came ABC's "Dynasty" and CBS' "Newhart," tied for seventh. They were followed by CBS' "The Wizard of Oz" and NBC's only entry in the Top 10, "The A-Team."

"Still the Beaver," a CBS movie taking an updated look at 'The Leave It to Beaver" series," was in 19th place.

Here are the Top 10: "60 Minutes," a rating of 27.2 or 22.6 million households, CBS; "Magnum, P.I.," 25.8 or 21.5 million, CBS; "Dallas," 25.0 or 20.8 million, CBS; "Trapper John, M.D.," 23.4 or 19.5 million, CBS; "Three's Company," 22.3 or 18.6 million, ABC; "The Ninth Annual People's Choice Awards," 22.2 or 18.5 million, CBS; ABC's "Dynasty" and CBS' "Newhart, 22.0 or 18.3 million, tied; "The Wizard of Oz," 21.7 or 18.1 million, CBS.

Satellite News Is Begun Today

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Satellite News Channel begins operations today, offering some cable television subscribers regional news in addition to national news similar to that offered by Ted Turner's Cable News Network.

One of those sites will be in Raleigh, where Capitol Satellite and Communications Systems Inc. will provide regional news for North Carolina and South Carolina in conjunction with WRAL-TV. Both are subsidiaries of Capitol Broadcasting Co. Inc.

In addition to WRAL, television stations providing Capitol Satellite news will be WSOC in Charlotte, WFMY in Greensboro and WWAY in Wilmington for North Carolina and WCSC in Charleston and WSPA in Spartanburg for South Carolina.

"We have built a new studio, new satellite control center and video satellite transmitter to send the programming to the Westar V satellite which bounces it back to the cable systems," said Capitol Satellite's Steve Grissom.

Thus far, 30 systems have agreed to carry the channel, which will telecast regional news daily at six minutes past the hour from 7:06 a.m. until 11:06 p.m.

"It's the first full-capacity video uplink on the East Coast — north of Atlanta and south of Washington," Grissom said. "For the first time, viewers have access not only to non-stop news, but also have access to frequent regional news telecasts."

In addition to news, the regional portions will include weather information and sports news as merited, he said.

"We have hired the anchor and production staff and we are repackaging material generated by these other stations," Grissom said. "We'll put in a format that is logical for this type of broadcast."

Like CNN, SNC and the regional newscasts are advertiser supported.

"One of the key differences between CNN and SNC is that SNC can offer viewers regional news on a regular consistent basis and CNN can not," Grissom said. "That's why we're in it, because we know the value of local news."

Takes The Job To Write Book

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Author Roger Kahn, who wrote "The Boys of Summer" about the old Brooklyn Dodgers, says he took on the presidency of the Columbia Mets farm team to provide literary fodder for another baseball book.

"If I'm a great president and write a bad book, I won't be satisfied," said Kahn, who plans to call the non-fiction work "Diamond in the Rough."

"I guess there's a little George Steinbrenner in all of us," he said, referring to the New York Yankees' general manager.

Kahn will live in Columbia this summer and will be involved in the "day-to-day operation of the club," Mets Vice President Lou Gorman said at a news conference Tuesday.

Green Seeks Ceiling On Candidate Expenditures

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green is calling for a ceiling on expenditures by candidates for governor, lieutenant governor, Council of State and the General Assembly.

Green, who is expected to run for governor in 1984, announced Tuesday that he has asked Sen. Jim Edwards, D-Caldwell, to introduce a bill on campaign spending limits this week.

Green said he has talked with a number of people who were "appalled at and disgusted with" the amount of money spent by certain candidates.

"I believe that North Carolina voters need the assurance in law that their choice of state executive and legislative candidates is not made for them according to how much money each can attract," he said in a prepared statement.

Candidates for governor would be limited to $750,000 or twice the four-year salary for the office in the primary, whichever is less; 20 percent of that amount in the second primary and $300,000 in the general election.

Candidates for lieutenant governor and Council of State would be limited to twice the four-year salaries or $300,000 in the primary, whichever is less; 20 percent of that amount in the second primary and $200,000 in the general election.

The lieutenant governor and all but two Council of State members earn $47,928 a year, which would make the spending limits $300,000 instead of the $383,424 limit based on the salaries. The state superintendent of public instruction and the attorney general earn $53,976 a year.

Legislative candidates would be limited to three times the two-year salary or $40,000 in the primary, whichever is greater; 20 percent of that amount in the second primary and $20,000 in the general election.

Also Tuesday, the sponsor of a a joint General Assembly resolution asking Congress to oppose selling National Forest Service land in North Carolina says the measure has already received "a lot of support."

Meanwhile, U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said he would use his position as Senate Agriculture Committee chairman to stop any sales of North Carolina national forests.

"A lot of people are concerned about this," said state Sen. Joe Thomas, D-Craven. "I've had maybe 20 or 25 people sign this. So far no one has turned me down."

The U.S. Department of Agriculture has requested the authority to sell up to 6 million acres of forest service land nationwide, including up to 71,358 acres in North Carolina, which has 1.25 million acres of national forests.

"We've got to let Congress know how we feel about this kind of plan," Thomas said.

Helms said in a telephone interview Tuesday the issue had been blown out of proportion.

"I am in a position to block (the sale) and I will block it. I think a political issue is being made of it," Helms said.

"The Uwharrie will not be sold as long as I'm chairman of the Senate Agriculture Commmittee."

Finance Committee

The House Finance Committee approved two bills allowing local governments to use property and sales tax revenues for housing projects.

The committee also approved a bill allowing the state to keep 10 percent of the child support payments it collects for people who aren't on welfare. But it recommended that the bill be sent to the House Judiciary IV Committee for discussion of its legal implications.

Rep. Louise Brennan, D-Mecklenburg, said the bill is needed because many divorced mothers not on public assistance but "on the borderline" are unable to collect child support from fathers.

While the recipient would lose 10 percent of the payments the state collects for them, it's better than getting nothing without state collection assistance, she said.

Several committee members who are lawyers, however, expressed concern that the bill would set fees that attorneys can charge for collecting the delinquent payments.

A subcommittee was established to study a bill requiring that day care centers pay their privilege tax immediately upon licensing and that the money be used for a statewide "day care information system."

Rep. Betty Thomas, D-Cabarrus, said a mechanism was needed to "help parents make a more informed choice on which day care facility is right for their children."

But Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, said he feared the bill would mean that the privilege tax revenues would be "for advertising instead of regulation."

Education Board

A Joint House-Senate Education Committee approved all three of the governor's nominees for the State Board of Education.

C.D. Spangler Jr., the current board chairman, and board member Norma B. Turnage were recommended for reappointments while Mebane M. Pritchett of Lenoir would be a new appointee.

The recommendations must b affirmed by the full House and Senate to be final.

Spangler, a Charlotte banker who was first appointed in August to replace Dr. David Bruton, warned the committee that public education is not receiving the same share of state funds it got 10 years ago.

"Many of the things we're talking about remedying won't work unless we start now," he added. "Otherwise, 10 years from now we will either have much larger class sizes or lower standards for teachers."

Private colleges and universities in the state would no longer be required to have funding requests approved by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors under a bill approved by the Senate Higher Education Committee.

The bill was recommended by the governor and the Advisory Budget Commission because of fears that the board, which oversees state colleges, might appear to have a conflict of interest in handling private funding requests.

UNC spokesman R.D. McMillan said the Board of Governors had no objection to the plan.

Notaries Public

The House Judiciary IV Committee approved and sent to the full House a bill that would require a three-hour community college course before someone could become a notary public.

Secretary of State Thad Eure told the committee the bill was similar to an administrative rule his office started in an attempt to reduce fraud.

"We felt like something must be done about it," he said. "I can't believe it's because they want to practice a fraud on the public. I just don't think they understand their duties."

The course would be required before new notaries could be commissioned, but would not apply to those whc already work as notaries.

Eure said the course, offered by an increasing number of community colleges, would cost about $8.

Ways & Means

Senate Ways and Means Committee Chairman Sen. Bo Thomas, D-Henderson, chastised his panel for inefficiency after it approved only two of seven bills before it and delayed consideration on the rest.

"I don't see where we've been very cost effective for North Carolina," he said after the hour-long session.

The committee approved a bill exempting tow dollies from motor vehicle registrations and a measure authorizing the state Department of Transportation to construct ride sharing facilities to make use of 80 percent federal funding.

Resign To Run

Sen. Cass Ballenger, R-Catawba, filed a bill to require that state and local officeholders resign if they decide to seek another elected position.

"When an officeholder sets his sights on higher office, I believe he owes it to his or her constituents to step aside so that the duties of the incumbent's office are fulfilled," said Ballenger.

The bill, requiring that candidates resign their other positions before the last day of filing for the other position, would take effect in January 1984.

Accident Reports

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, filed legislation to require that any automobile accident resulting in $500 damage or more be reported to the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

Currently, accidents doing damage of $200 or more must be reported. That's no longer a realistic amount, Wright said.

"Nowadays you don't have to have that serious an accident to get even $500 damage," said Wright. "Raising the limit would do away with a lot of paper-work."

Pollution Exemption

A bill was filed to do away with a 1981 property tax exemption on equipment companies install to cut down on internal pollution.

Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, who co-signed the bill, said the 1981 law was intended to encourage textile companies to install devices that would clean up the factories' air and reduce the risk of brown lung disease.

But he said that utilities and other companies had begun to apply for the exemption, causing local officials to worry that they would lose significant portions of their tax base.

"While the bill we've filed today would do away with the exemption altogether, it probably will be just a starting point," said Wright. "We'll probably end up with a committee substitute that will restore the bill's original intent.

"We still need to provide this exemption for textiles, but not for every plant that wants to get a windfall while eroding the local tax base."

Powers

The House Judiciary I Committee approved several more changes to a separation of powers bill that realigns responsibility between the legislative and executive branches of government.

One amendment would give the state budget director flexibility to decrease the size of construction projects that use state money and to decrease or increase the size of projects using private gifts.

The committee has several other areas of the bill to approve before the measure is considered by the full House.

CAMA

The House almost unanimously approved three bills affecting the Coastal Area Management Act, the land use plan that affects coastal counties. The bills now go to the Senate.

One bill would let the Coastal Resources Commission adopt rules to issue blanket permits in some cases rather than going through the lengthy permit process now required.

Another bill would shorten the length of time which the commission has to act on permit applications.

The third bill would allow the commission and Natural Resources and Community Development secretary to declare a state of emergency in an area and allow construction without the normally required permits.

Inventory Tax Bill Is Delayed

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State House leaders say they had enough votes Tuesday to approve a bill easing the inventory tax burden on industry but they moved instead to send the bill back to committee.

"We want to get all our major tax bills together," said Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, chairman of the Finance Committee, which is handling the bill. "We need to know where we stand with the dollars."

"There is no attempt to destroy the bill," said Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, the bill's sponsor. "The bill will be back on the floor."

Other House leaders acknowledged that they were hesitant to act on the bill while an identical measure is stalled in the Senate Finance Committee.

Senate Finance Committee co-chairman Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, said his group has no plans to consider the bill in the next week or so and he said he didn't know how the Senate feels about the bill.

House members noted that in past sessions they have endorsed the idea of repealing the inventory tax while the Senate balked at the idea because of the revenues it would cost the state.

House leaders said they'd like to keep the option of pursuing the windfall idea even if the Senate fails to go along with the inventory tax relief. The money could be used to pay for repairs to state buildings, including schools, they said.

Businesses pay ad valorem taxes to cities and counties based on their inventories. But under the bill, they would get a credit on their state income taxes for part of the ad valorem taxes paid on inventories.

That credit would be equal to 10 percent of the inventory tax in 1982-83, 20 percent in 1983-84 and 25 percent after that. During the next three years, the change would cost the state $107 million.

At the same time, the bill would begin speeding up payment of state income taxes for corporations with estimated tax liabilities of at least $5,000 to generate an additional $120 million over the next three years.

Lower Interest Kindles Sales

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Falling interest rates, particularly for new cars, has increased loan volume at North Carolina banks and should rekindle auto sales, bankers say.

But at the same time, many lenders also feel that interest rates won't go much lower.

"I really think rates are about as low as they are going to go," said Tom Ridenhour, senior vice president at First Union National Bank. "I think the consumer is going to increase his purchases of durable goods in the spring. I really look for an increase in consumer spending."

Many North Carolina banks have dropped car loan rates below 13 percent, rates which reached 18 percent in the past two years.

IF YOU LIKE THE OUTSIDE... YOU'LL LOVE THE INSIDE!
(Yes, It Is Expensive)

This 4 bedroom, 3 1/2 bath home is not only luxurious and elegant but in every feature you will see the care that was employed. Built-in cabinetry and detail work along with the design and layout makes this truly one of the finest homes Greenville has had to offer. From the moment you enter the entry hall and see this lovely staircase it continues throughout the home to be as breathtaking as it has when you drove into the circular driveway. Successful families are the only ones that can afford this gracious estate. A custom built home with fountain, wrought iron and full front upstairs porch. Call for private showing.

DESIGNED WITH DISTINCTION ON 25 ACRES

Custom Spanish Contemporary constructed with the utmost attention to detail. This home will be a retreat for the family and offer an outstanding opportunity for a large family to enjoy the out-of doors lifestyle to be found. Truly a home for all reasons.

Upon entering the home you will be immediately impressed by the feeling of warmth. From the entry you may enter either the formal living room, family room with its massive stone fireplace, exposed beams and a view to the study and large country kitchen with island bar, the kitchen will be a gourmet delight for nothing has been left for the imagination, truly a spot for the family to gather to enjoy good food and pleasant atmosphere. Unique wet bar. Mexican tile floors can be found in the Dining Room. There's a game room for family fun. 4 bedrooms, the Master suite with Garden tub and shower and for the master and his love there's skylights and an electric drapery opener to let the beauty of the day in as breakfast is served in their private suite. These are only a few of the wonders found inside. Now lets go out to the screened porch or patio and gaze at the fruit trees and beautiful landscaping and there we will see an acre of pond filled with fish. There's something for everyone because if you've got a hobby we've got a 900 square foot workshop. A few paces from that you will find your own 2 stall barn with hayloft and tack room plus tool shed. There is half a mile of salt treated split rail fence, room for horses and gardens. Five sets of lawn sprinkler. Front acreage has 16 acres of pasture or has been subdivided for future development.

A Giant In The Art Of Making Lilliputian World

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Writer

SKOKIE, Ill. (AP) — Norman Forgue, surrounded by more than 150,000 mini-items, lives in a Lilliputian world of his own making.

One of his projects is carving lifelike human figures an eighth of an inch high from wood matchsticks and painstakingly painting them.

There is a farmer with a pitchfork, a gypsy king sitting on a throne, and Don Quixote ready to tilt windmills.

"People say it's incredible that I can do this," said Forgue. "I look at these tiny things, and sometimes I can't believe it myself. Everything is right down to the last detail.

"It'c tedious work with a special knife. I can't work on them steadily. I have to put them aside and start on something else. Figuring it all in, it takes from 10 to 12 hours to carve one figure."

Somewhat larger fighting men by the 78-year-old master of miniatures are his 20,000 toy soldiers, ranked in display cases or boxed in the workshop basement of his home northwest of Chicago.

He has thousands of tiny autos and train cars, and a fleet of 50 warships. Many he made himself from scratch. Others came in pieces that he put together and painted.

Forgue, who has won more than 200 ribbons for his work, also casts dollhouse rooms in lead from molds he designed, including little dishes. "I must have cast 100 to get just six — they kept breaking," he said recently. The matched dishes are the only two-of-a-kind thing I've ever made.".

Currently, Forgue is planning an all-oriental room for a collector.

"It will be absolutely authentic, scaled one inch to the foot," he said. "The kind of wallpaper I wanted finally has arrived from Japan, and I have most of the accessories on hand now."

The craftsman is best known, however, for his beautifully illustrated, 2½-inch books. "If you can read a newspaper, you can read these little books," he said.

They were an outgrowth of his full-size book designing business that he turned to in the Depression years of the early 1930s.

"I served famous publishers all over the world," he said. "I started the miniatures in 1961 and have a list of about 140 people ready to buy each book as it comes out. In a year, most of them go out of print and bring 30 to 50 times the published price from then on."

He said his first miniature book — "100 Proverbs — originally sold for $3.50 a copy. "It fetches 100 times that now," he said.

It was translated from Japanese by Forgue, who once served a 21-month duty tour with the Navy in Japan and learned the language.

"I get along fine as just another bifocal guy," he said.

Rich Bolivian Cocaine Lords Are Thriving

By PETER J. McFARREN
Associated Press Writer

SANTA ANA DE YACUMA, Bolivia (AP) — When Roberto Suarez Jr. came home from a Miami jail, acquitted of drug trafficking charges, a brass band greeted his plane on the dirt landing strip of this village in Bolivia's cattle country.

His father, Roberto Suarez Gomez, head of a multimillion dollar cocaine operation centered here, arrived under heavy guard by air from one of his nearby ranches and threw $5 and $10 bills to children from the plane's window.

Fifty suckling pigs and 20 calves were flown from the main provincial city, Trinidad, and another plane crossed the Andes from La Paz, the national capital, with a cargo of whiskey and beer.

For the next several days, the 5,000 people of Santa Ana de Yacuma feasted, drank, danced and gambled away thousands of dollars, uninhibited by law enforcement officials of Bolivia's new civilian government.

The homecoming party late last year was one indication how openly Bolivia's cocaine barons have continued to operate since President Hernan Siles Zuazo took office in October pledging to fight the trafficking tolerated by a string of military regimes.

Government officials have reported a few arrests of minor drug dealers and the seizure of nearly 500 pounds of cocaine paste in four months. This is less than 3 percent of Bolivia's estimated production during that period, drug enforcement experts say.

The lack of progress was one factor in the breakup of Siles Zuazo's fragile three-party leftist coalition in January. The leftist Revolutionary Movement relinquished its six Cabinet posts after failing to force the resignation of Interior Minister Mario Roncal, who is responsible for law enforcement.

Testifying before Bolivia's Senate at the time, Roncal conceded: "They say drug trafficking is on the increase; that is true. They say airplanes carrying 100 to 200 kilograms (220 to 440 pounds) of cocaine leave the country; that is also true."

Blaming "an acute shortage of economic and technical resources," Roncal added that "if the United States, with all its resources, cannot prevent the arrival of planes loaded with drugs, less so can a poor country like ours prevent these planes from leaving."

In an interview, Siles Zuazo said: "We are committed to arrest people like Suarez and other godfathers. This is part of plans and operations that cannot be made public until they are carried out. The drug traffickers have a lot of money and are better armed than our national guard. To fight them will demand not only a high material cost but also a high cost in lives."

Drug enforcement experts say, however, that Bolivia can do more with what it now has to slow drug traffic, such as setting up controls at airports and investigating the finances of people who suddenly become conspicuously rich.

The influx of "coca dollars" has replaced cattle as the chief source of income here in Bolivia's northeast Beni Province over the past year and a half, and it continues unabated. One public official estimated half the guests at Trinidad's elegant Hotel Ganadero are involved in the drug trade.

Some ranchers lease their airstrips to drug traffickers while others complain of the inflationary effect on land prices. Bankers in La Paz say drug dealers in Trinidad are often the only source for trading in the U.S. currency during Bolivia's chronic shortages of foreign exchange.

Santa Ana de Yacuma and the nearby villages of San Ramon, San Borja and Santa Rosa have moved quickly out of the ox-cart age and welcomed late model cars, sophisticated airplanes and shiny motorcycles thanks to the drug money.

Suarez, head of a cattle-raising family, has earned a Robin Hood reputation in his home village by donating money for public works and sewing machines for the women.

First Lady To Host Programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan says she will host two programs on public television that focus on the drug problem among adolescents.

The programs, called "The Chemical People," will air Nov. 2 and Nov. 9. Public television stations which plan to broadcast them are working with 26 service and civic groups to organize town meetings across the country to watch the programs and follow up with task forces to fight drug abuse.

Mrs. Reagan, whose favorite project is working to combat drug use among teen-agers, also made a guest appearance Saturday on an episode of NBC's "Diff'rent Strokes" to deliver an anti-drug message.

Re-Arming America Found Costly, Grows More So

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten years ago, the Army decided to build a light new bazooka that would pierce tank armor head-on and could be mass-produced for $75 each. One "Viper" now costs $787, although it can't knock out an oncoming tank and still isn't being mass produced.

According to several new studies, the blame should go to the Pentagon's inter-service rivalries, politics and inefficiency.

Criticisms of military procurement are almost as numerous as the stories about cost overruns and problems with new hardware.

But the most recent studies, particularly one by a young Pentagon analyst, have drawn close attention on Capitol Hill and given ammunition to critics of President Reagan's $1.7 trillion program to "rearm America."

In response, the Pentagon says things have changed, arguing that a series of reforms by the Reagan administration will help cut down overruns.

"We are very sensitive to this problem," says David Chu, chief of the Pentagon's office of Program Analysis and Evaluation.

The studies have a central theme: that the record spending which Reagan has proposed won't buy as many weapons as the Pentagon says.

Spinney studied 30 years of Pentagon purchasing and 111 weapons systems. His two-hour briefing, entitled the "plans-reality mismatch," has played to standing-room crowds before congressional committees.

Spinney is a reluctant critic — he argues that defense spending needs to be increased, not cut.

But his message is that there are "structural problems" that lead to cost overruns and that strong corrective action is needed. Otherwise, defense budgets might have to be increased by as much as 30 percent to buy all the planned weapons, he says.

One problem, says Spinney, is that contractors "buy in" to a big job by proposing an unrealistically low initial cost.

The Pentagon contributes to the problem, he argues, by continual design changes. For example, the Air Force one year proposed 360 changes — almost one a day — in the FB-111 bomber, he says.

"You're dealing with the most complex bureaucracy in Washington," he says. "Everybody is fighting to save their programs" and during the battle the most optimistic cost projections are used.

Congress adds to the problems, he says, by "stretching out" a program to cut costs in a specific year, which saves money in the short run but eventually drives up costs because economies of large-scale production are lost, he says.

And Congress often forces the Pentagon to buy weapons the military doesn't want, Spinney notes, because of political considerations such as home-state jobs in a defense plant.

Similar conclusions were reached in studies by the Council on Economic Priorities, which has been critical of the defense build-up, and the conservative Heritage Foundation, a supporter of Reagan's plans.

Consider the Viper. Shortly after the weapon was proposed, it was redesigned with a lighter-weight explosive head which had less punch. And the motor was reduced in size to cut down the noise.

The result was that the Viper, intended to puncture tank armor head on, couldn't do the job.

Rather than killing the weapon, the Army changed its mission — proposing that it be fired at a tank from the side or the rear.

The Pentagon responds that Spinney's study is "historical" and doesn't take into account the 32 procurement reforms known as the "Carlucci initiatives," after Frank Carlucci, the former deputy defense secretary who ordered them in 1981.

The initiatives include increased "multi-year" funding instead of year-to-year purchases, fixed production rates and consideration of a contractor's past cost performance in awarding contracts.

These changes, according to Chu and other top Defense Department officials, will make production lines more stable and curb the inefficient "boom-and-bust" cycle of military spending.

While Chu says it is too early to tell, he contends that the Carlucci proposals are helping to bring costs back into line.

But Gordon Adams, author of the Council on Economic Priorities study, concluded that "there is serious doubt that the initiatives will ever succeed in reducing costs."

EPA Proposes $4 Million Fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is proposing a $4 million fine against a Chicago-area gasoline distributor accused of fuel switching.

The penalty proposed against Pep Petroleum Co. of Palatine, Ill., is the largest ever sought for alleged violations of federal regulations governing use of unleaded gasoline.

In addition, the EPA said it was seeking fines of $1.3 million against 16 other Chicago-area gasoline retailers and distributors on similar fuel-switching charges.

The notice of violation gives those accused an opportunity to dispute the charges or to settle the allegations. If a settlement cannot be reached, the cases will be referred to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Rezoning Is Given Okay

A request to rezone property located south of section three of Sedgefield Park subdivision from residential to office and institutional was approved Monday at a special call meeting of the City Council.

The request by James H. Ward to rezone two acres north of the Church of God property, west of St. Andrews Drive and east of Memorial Drive, had been continued at the council's March 11 meeting.

The council also adopted a resolution to close a portion of Sedgefield Drive between St. Andrews Drive and Memorial Drive. A public hearing on the street closing was also conducted at the March meeting and the council continued action on the matter until the special call session.

The board approved an agreement between the city and the Police Executive Research Forum of Washington, D.C., for a police management study of the administration and operations of the police department, at a cost of $13,800.

An ordinance amending the 1982-83 city budget, increasing non-departmental appropriations by increasing utilities franchise tax revenues by $13,800, was approved by the council.

Worms Help Ecology Plan

By ABNER KATZMAN
Associated Press Writer

VOORSCHOTEN, Netherlands (AP) - Piton vermicultures has about 16 million full-time workers who labor day and night, live in the dirt and eat garbage. But no one ever complains.

In fact, company founders Pieter Frijters and Anton van Es see themselves as men with a humanitarian mission, developing what they consider the world's most ecologically efficient waste disposal method.

Success for their infant enterprise depends, however, on the continuing appetite of their workers, known to science as Eisenia Foetida, or the common manure worm.

Worms have the ability to convert raw organic garbage into highly nutritious manure fertilizer. And the little creepers have gargantuan appetites, every day munching their own half-gram weight in organic waste, including paper products.

So Frijters and van Es, both 34, decided to put it all together into a reliable method of garbage disposal that produced something beside pollution.

For the past year, Frijters, a former sports car salesman, and van Es, an ex-high school language teacher, have been perfecting their own version of earthworm alchemy in a vacant greenhouse.

They developed a system of large octagonal mazes, each filled with about 50 tons of garbage and stocked with about 2 million hungry worms. The 4-inch invertebrates can chomp their way through that amount of trash in about 90 days.

Frijters, van Es, and their three employees shovel out what's left, known to the trade as "castings," and refill the empty section for the earthworms' next circuit. So far they have eight mazes in operation for breeding purposes. This spring they begin merchandising their year's stockpile of earthworms and manure, as well as franchising the patent-pending garbage conversion system that produced it.

Piton Vermicultures (a combination of Pieter, Anton and the Latin for worm) plans to franchise the mazes in groups of five each, which they estimate can convert 80 tons of garbage a month. Each five-unit installation would sell for about $111,000.

Forty such mazes, requiring only about 2.5 acres of land, could eat up the garbage of a city of 50,000, the partners claim.

Van Es got hooked into the earthworm enterprise through the only close contact most people ever have with the lowly invertebrate.

"I was fishing in Scotland, and you need worms for fishing there. I couldn't find any, and I couldn't buy any, so I thought there was a hole in the market."

The two partners went into the worm-ranch business, using traditional mesh-bottom boxes, from which the worms had to be shovelled out to reach the valuable droppings, a highly labor-intensive method usec in Japan.

There had to be a better way, for van Es and Frijters as well as the worms.

The partners discovered that keeping the prolific worms happy kept them hungry, and that they ate and bred at a far slower rate when they were mixed in helter-skelter with juvenile worms in the old box method.

"When they are not at ease, they crawl away," said van Es of the mature worms.

"We were struck with the idea, when they want to crawl, why don't we let them crawl in the direction we want them to go."

The method they hit upon was the octagonal maze, with four passages leading to gaps in the maze walls.

As they make the circuit around the maze, the worms on the periphery eat their way out through the gaps, and the other half remain in the maze.

But for the lucky worms, van Es and Frijters provide job security for a lifetime, which in the case of worms, can be four years.

A Market For Flintlock Rifle

By DENNIS SCHOLL
Bethlehem Globe-Times

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — Thirteen years ago, Herman Hendricks wouldn't have been able to tell the difference between a firing pan and a frying pan.

But that's not the case now. The 38-year-old Bucks County man is in demand, so much so that his "signature" on a reproduction flintlock rifle is worth a couple of thousand dollars.

But Hendricks remains modest to the point that his exquisite rifles, powder horns, pistols and hatchets are sometimes given away. If he has a friend or relative who at one time admired his work, Hendricks may decide to make a present of it.

In this day and age, that may be difficult to understand, especiallly considering his rifles require more than 300 hours' work. But to Hendricks, giving is often better than receiving.

"When you make this stuff and put so much time and love in it, I don't mind giving it away," he says.

"My personality is in those guns. And I'm not a chintzy old so-and-so."

Like many muzzleloader enthusiasts, Hendricks began his career with a flintlock kit. It proved to be a good deal of fun and helped spark his curiosity.

It wasn't long before he was collecting as much information on flintlocks as he could find.

"I had a few books, copied a few things, asked questions, and things picked up little by little," he recalls. "I thought we had gone as far as we could with high-powered rifles, and I was looking for a challenge. It turned out to be a lot of fun."

The Pennsylvania counties of Bucks, Northampton and Lehigh comprised one of the centers of the flintlock industry during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, an era known as the golden age of rifle-making.

Each county had its own school of thought, and there were often several schools of thought within each county, depending on the creative whims of those families who carried on the trade.

Hendricks is following in the footsteps of such well-known flintlock makers as Herman and John Rupp, Adam Angstadt and Andrew Verner. He attempts to follow the design of these Colonial weapon-makers as closely as possible and it is often painstaking work.

The wood, usually a variety of maple, is purchased from a supplier in Lycoming County. It is very rough in shape when Hendricks receives it. He must first provide an inlet for the rifle barrel, then determine the correct location of the lock and trigger assembly, the butt plate, trigger guard, nose cap and ramrod thimble.

"After everything is laid out and the brass work is on," he says, "I can have the engraving done."

"I believe my products are as good as anybody's," he says. "And we don't overprice anything. I sold three pieces, a matched set of a hatchet, pistol and rifle, for $3,500.

"I don't get much hunting in myself, but I still love the rifle. I'm just glad I can carry on the tradition."

Indian Artifacts Make Up A Large Collection

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press Writer

WAVERLY, Ky. (AP) — The fact that Indian tribes once roamed the western Kentucky hills didn't mean much to Louie Mattox, until he started kicking up some dirt in a field 10 years ago.

"It was during dinner and I was just poking around," Mattox recalled recently. "I found an arrowhead or two and it got me thinking."

It also got him looking. Just about every lunch hour was spent poking around in the dirt. Soon, his weekends were spent in the fields. In time, Mattox's lifelong fishing and hunting habits gave way to seeking Indian artifacts.

"I knew an arrowhead when I saw one, but that was about it," Mattox said.

About a month after he started, Mattox found a clay pot. That hooked him.

His new hobby led to memberships in archeological societies and subscriptions to magazines. Mattox, 47, has become something of an expert on early residents of western Kentucky. He has amassed an impressive collection of arrowheads, clay pots, ceremonial beads and other materials left by the Indians from as far back as 2,000 years ago.

"For a private collector, I've got quite a bit," Mattox said. "But I've never bought or sold anything."

However, Mattox's artifact-hunting days are mostly over now. An accident in 1979 at an aluminum plant in Newburgh, Ind., left him unable to work. It is now difficult for him to stand for long periods.

Before the accident, Mattox often hunted for artifacts with friends, he said. Once, he and another man came on an old burial ground that proved an archeological gold mine.

"The other guy sold all his stuff," Mattox said. "He ended up with nothing and I ended up with my collection."

There have been attempts to buy pieces from his collection, including a $1,000 offer for a perfectly preserved catlinite pipe, used by the Mississippian culture 500 years after the birth of Christ.

Joan, his wife of 26 years, accompanied Mattox on many of his expeditions. "Mostly, though, I just cleaned up the stuff after he found it," she said.

Like many collectors, Mattox has not confined himself to one area. He has a large collection of Avon glassware, silver spoons, TV Guides and hundreds of coffee mugs from Boy Scout conventions, collected during his years as a scoutmaster.

Only Chairman Against Growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four members of the Securities and Exchange Commission — all but its chairman — are telling a congressional subcommittee the agency needs a bigger, not a smaller, staff.

The Reagan administration's budget for the commission calls for a 6 percent reduction in staff, a figure that SEC chairman John Shad has defended.

But in a letter to the subcommittee chairman, Rep. Timothy Wirth, D-Colo., the other commission members objected to the proposed cut.

"We have concluded that a 6 percent cut in staff positions would make it exceedingly difficult to maintain a satisfactory presence in each of the important areas of our responsibility," they said.

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP) — There were times, Harriet Rowand says, when all she wanted to do was eat supper and find out what had happened to her two children.

But for 10 years, hospitals around the country offered no help to Mrs. Rowand, or to others like her — nurses looking for steady hours.

While Mrs. Rowand stuck it out at St. Barnabas Hospital here, a quarter of the nation's 1.4 million registered nurses abandoned active practice and almost one-third of the remaining nurses now work only part time, according to the American Nurses Association.

But the rotating schedules that drove away thousands of Mrs. Rowand's fellow professionals and played a part in the 100,000 current vacancies in nursing positions, are beginning to change.

For Mrs. Rowand, her days of dinner on the run are over. She now works two 12-hour weekend shifts and gets paid for a full 35-hour week under an innovative scheduling program here.

The new schedule is one of many designed recently by hospital officials looking for ways to keep nurses on the job and to attract others to the field.

"You have a recruiting war going on, where they (nurses) can go to the highest bidder," said Ronald Del Mauro, the St. Barnabas vice president for personnel. "It's happening all over the country."

"The staff nurse today can go anywhere to work," said Grace Guidera, acting vice president for nursing at St. Barnabas, which patterned its program on a similar one devised by Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas. "You have to make it inviting."

Hospitals with flexible schedules hold an edge, even when competitors pay higher wages, Del Mauro said. Many are responding to the nursing shortage by offering counseling services, self-help programs and day-care facilities.

"There were days when I was standing in my white uniform at the stove," said Mrs. Rowand.

"When I started nursing there was nothing for us," said Mary Jo Truskowski, a nurse at St. Barnabas for 15 years. "The hospitals still have a way to go. You'll see even more changes in the next five years."

Mrs. Truskowski is the single parent of a 9-year-old son, Alex. Another new program — the "night incentive plan" — allows her to work from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. Sunday through Wednesday, be paid for five nights of work, and have Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays free.

"Working a night shift is very tiring and it disrupts your sleeping pattern, so having three nights off in a row really makes a difference," said Mrs. Truskowski, who now has more energy for her son and time for twice a week college studies toward a bachelor's degree.

"Nursing professionals are looking for a relatively sound lifestyle. Rotating schedules and working weekends are burdensome," Del Mauro said.

Hospital administrators say they have not computed the extra cost created by innovative schedules. But they note the tab is reduced by lower turnover rates and decreased absenteeism.

And nurses working regular schedules can plan their personal activities around their work, reducing their need for unscheduled days off and the resultant overtime costs to the hospital, administrators said.

Mrs. Rowand said she is much happier with her new schedule, even though the 12-hour weekend shifts in the emergency room are arduous.

"It's good my children know longer need to ask, 'Do you have to work tonight?' They like to tell me what happened to them during the day and now, I'm not too tired to listen," said Mrs. Rowand.

At Baylor, where the two 12-hour weekend shifts are used in every unit except the emergency room, hospital officials reported cuts in the turnover rate of 32 percent in 1980, the first year of the program, and of 25 percent in 1981.

They also noted a decreases of 15 percent and 5 percent in vacancy for 1980 and 1981, respectively, even though Baylor increased its staff from 700 nurses to 1,100 nurses to accommodate the new scheduling.

"It's worked out wonderfully," said Joyce Ross, a Baylor spokeswoman. "We've had hundreds of calls, though we don't know how many other hospitals have implemented this. We actually stopped counting inquiries because they were too numerous."

"We got the idea from a tire company," Ms. Ross said. "General Tire of Akron, Ohio, had a weekend work force and someone in our management development people read about it in trade magazine. We looked at it and modified it."

How Tar Heel Senators, Representatives Voted

Roll Call Report Service

WASHINGTON — Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll cal votes March 10-17.

HOUSE

FREEZE The House rejected, 209 for and 215 against, a pro-Administration amendment to make the nuclear freeze resolution (HJ Res 13) more acceptable to conservatives and others who fear it is weighted in favor of the Soviet Union. The freeze measure awaits final action in April.

While the resolution lacks direct legislative impact, both sides call it a powerful statement that could influence future defense votes in Congress, world opinion, and U.S. and Soviet attitudes during arms control talks.

It urges bother superpowers to immediately freeze nuclear arsenals under "mutual and verifiable" procedures. An important but subordinate goal of the resolution — intentionally described by freeze authors in fuzzy language — is reducing arsenals.

The apparently lower priority given reductions upset lawmakers who argued the Soviets have nuclear superiority and that, therefore, a freeze would tie the U.S. into a position of weakness and tempt the Soviets to seek a conquest. Freeze advocates countered that, even if the Soviets are ahead, the question is academic because each superpower has enough weaponry to destroy the other many times over.

The amendment at hand sought to change the wording of the resolution to call for a "freeze and/or reductions."

Sponsor Mark Siljander, R-Mich., said "this freeze would lock us into non-mutually assured destruction. This is ridiculous."

Opponent Edward Markey, D-Mass., asked, "Are we going to let the atomic age return us to the Stone Age? Or are we going to seize our destiny and work toward world peace?"

Members voting yes wanted arms reduction to be a top priority of the nuclear freeze resolution.

Not voting: Stephen Neal, D-5.

CHALLENGE By a vote of 226 for and 195 against, the House adopted an amendment to HJ Res 13 (see above) that was supported by freeze backers and opposed by the Administration.

The effet of the vote was to defang a pending amendment that would have gutted the nuclear freeze resolution by stating that nothing in it could prevent the U.S. from "modernizing" its nuclear deterrent while the freeze was in effect.

Sponsor Clement Zablocki, D-Wisc., said "this is the time to move in the direction of disarmament by negotiations. This may be the last time we have this opportunity."

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said "the greatest challenge is not just to prevent the occurrence of nuclear war — we can do that today, just disarm, just lay down our arms and get on our knees and face east."

Members voting yes wanted to prevent the nuclear freeze resolution from being gutted.

Voting no: Walter Jones, Valentine, Whitley, Hefner, James Martin, Broyhill.

Not voting: Neal.

SENATE

CLOTURE By a vote of 59 for and 39 against, the Senate failed to acheive the three-fifths majority needed to end a filibuster centering on the 1982 law requiring banks and savings and loans to withhold for the Treasury 10 percent of the interest and dividends they pay a depositor or investor.

The withholding is not a tax hike but a collection device supported by the IRS on grounds it will raise billions from those who would otherwise fail to report and pay taxes on the income.

Most of the 59 senators voting to ent the filibuster also favored an amendment in the wings to repeal the withholding law. The agreed with the American Bankers Association and other lobbies that withholding, among other ills, creates a costly paperwork burden and works a hardship on honest taxpayers.

Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., who wanted to move from the filibuster to a vote on the repeal amendment, said the withholding seeks tax honesty "in such a cumbersome and costly way that Illinoisans have taken pen in hand to let me know of their strong opposition to this method of tax collection."

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kans., said repeal would amount to "a tax cut we cannot justify on grounds of fairness or fiscal policy," adding that "it is important that we understand how the American Bankers Association has misrepresented this provision..."

Most senators voting yes favored repealing the tax withholding law.

Voting from North Carolina were John East, R, voted yes. Jesse Helms, R, voted yes.

JOBS By a vote of 82 for and 16 against, the Senate passed and sent to conference with the House a bill (HR 1718) appropriating $5.2 billion to create primarily public works jobs and provide humanitarian relief for recession victims.

Most of the new jobs would result from accelerated spending on public works projects, with $2.1 billion of the outlay targeted at areas with the highest unemployment. Also, the bill appropriates $5 billion so that 27 states can immediately replenish their funds for paying unemployment benefits.

Senators voting yes favored crash spending, even at a time a staggering budget deficits, to deal with the recession.

VOTING YES: All senators except the following 18:

NOT VOTING: Bumpers and Hollings.

CORPS By a vote of 45 for and 51 against, the Senate rejected an amendment to the jobs bill (see above) to cut $209.7 million from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and Bureau of Reclamation outlay and add $200 million to the Environmental Protection Ageny's sewer construction program.

Supporters argued that EPA spending would be spread throughout the country and create jobs immediately. They said spending by the Corps and reclamation bureau spending, by contrast, would prolong existing jobs and further fill the pork barrell in the South and West.

Opponents defended corpos and reclamation spending as job-creating and vital to stimulating the economics of all regions.

Sponsor Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., said "this is a jobs bill but nothing but not a penny of the (corps) construction money can be spent in ...a timeframe that would hve effects upon employment unless you anticipate a decade of depression."

Asthma Education Program Scheduled

An asthma family education program for children ages 6 to 15 and their parents will be sponsored by the American Lung Association of North Carolina, Eastern Region.

The program will be held on four consecutive Tuesday nights beginning March 29 and concluding April 19. All sessions will be held between 7 and 9 p.m. at the Brewster Building, Rooms B304 and B305, on the East Carolina University campus.

Deborah Bryan, regional director, said the purpose of the program is to increase the family's knowledge of asthma and its treatment, to enhance the child'd confidence through better knowledge and increased participation in physical activity. It will also allow asthmatic patients and their families to discuss their feelings about asthma and the problems they experience.

Enrollment is limited to 20 families. If possible, both parents should attend sessions with their child. A $10 fee is charged to cover the use of the facility. All staff time is donated to the program. A limited number of scholarships will be available.

The weekly sessions will include breathing exercises, basic asthma education, mechanisms of asthma, evaluation, signs and symptoms and other related topics. At each session the children will be involved in swimming.

Families may register for the program by calling the American Lung Association, 752-5093 between 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

Deny Loss In Satellites' Sale

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed sale of the nation's four weather satellites would have no effect on weather forecasts, hurricane and tornado reports and other warnings, National Weather Service officials say.

"(The) weather radio will keep blaring, (the) weather wire will keep at it ...," Bob Sorey, director of meteorology at the weather service, says.

Sorey denied reports that fees would be charged for the National Oceanic Weather and Atmospheric Administration weather and disaster services.

Take Risks To Smuggle Out Children

By NEAL ROBBINS

HONG KONG (UPI) — Parents desperate to be reunited with their children are hiring smugglers to get the youngsters illegally out of China into Hong Kong.

The smugglers, known locally as "snakeheads," sneak the children past barbed wire barriers and armed patrols along the border, or bring them in by sea to be reunited with parents who fled their homeland to find new homes.

"I have seen some of these children ... tucked under the floorboards of a leaking sampan, frightened out of their lives, in some cases drugged so that they wont make a noise and be detected," said Police Commissioner Roy Henry.

"And then if they are detected, they're abandoned by the racketeers and left either to drown because the racketeers have jumped over the side, or to wander in a confused state of mind not knowing where they are, not knowing what they are doing."

Nearly 4,000 children, averaging only 6 years old, have been smuggled into Hong Kong since October 1981, when Hong Kong revised its immigration laws and no longer granted illegal immigrants permanent residence.

Now many of those who entered Hong Kong before the cutoff want to be reunited with children they left behind in China. But getting permission from Chinese authorities is uncertain.

Immigration authorities are secretive about the laws applying to illegal immigrant children, apparently to avoid encouraging the smuggling.

The general policy for illegal immigrants — children and adults alike — is to send them back from whence they came. But with minors, authorities said, each case is judged "on its own merits."

Police said children smuggled into Hong Kong normally turn up at the immigration department in the hope of being granted residence papers. Most apparently succeed.

Getting the youngsters into the colony in the first place is the business of snakeheads who charge anywhere from $350 to $1,200 per child for their services.

Police said most of the smugglers have come from China recently themselves and are members of or have links with the notorious "triad" gangs.

Traffickers instruct the parents to tell relatives in China to escort the children to an agreed-upon place on the Chinese side of the border, police said.

Depending on how much money is involved, the racketeers use anything from small fishing sampans to delivery trucks and speedboats to evade patrols along the fenced Chinese border.

Police, who apprehend only only two or three children a day, have discovered trucks carrying children hidden under stacks of vegetables piled so high that a slight shifting of the load could suffocate the human cargo.

In one instance, the driver of a truck pursued by police abandoned his charges and fled. Authorities later located the truck and found 15 bewildered children huddled underneath.

But most children are smuggled in by speedboats that make the 90-minute sea crossing at night.

This has led to tragedy when smugglers pursued by marine patrols abandoned their vessels and the frightened children. In one case, a 2½-year-old drowned when a boat with eight children aboard capsized in bad weather.

When the children arrive in Hong Kong they are held until parents rendezvous with the smugglers in restaurants to make payment to redeem their children.

"People always pay up," said Police Superintendent Y. P. Tsang. "They have to because the children are in the hands of smugglers."
