New Water Treatment Plant Dedicated

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The city's new $12.5 million water treatment plant, dedicated at an 11:30 a.m. ceremony today and named in honor of Greenville Utilities Commission Director Charles O'Hagan Horne, was termed "a symbol that Greenville cares about tomorrow" by Gov. Jim Hunt.

The plant can produce 12 million gallons of water per day and can be expanded.

Gov. Hunt, who attended the dedication, said "this outstanding new water treatment plant is an excellent example of Greenville's growth and progress and its wise planning for the 21st century."

"This important facility shows the real spirit of cooperation and commitment among those of you here today — a strong partnership of legislators, business and government leaders, the Greenville Utilities Commission, and involved local citizens."

According to Hunt "Greenville is a growing community. East Carolina University and its outstanding medical school are good examples of progress in Eastern North Carolina."

Hunt emphasized that "water capacity is crucial when industries are looking at new development or expansion" because "water is so vital to industrial operations."

Because the new facility "has the very latest in equipment for water monitoring and control," and the "capacity to sample and analyze the water at every stage of treatment in a modern state-of-the-arts laboratory," the governor said the plant "will help eliminate the threat of bacterial contamination which can threaten the health and well being of local citizens."

Hunt also said, "The computerized water control center not only allows complete automation, it is also the most efficient and cost effective method of water production and distribution that Greenville has ever had."

"Conservation of our energy and natural resources," Hunt said "such as water, is more important now than ever before. In many parts of America, our water supplies, particularly underground supplies, are being used up faster than they are being replenished."

"We have been fortunate in this state to have, not only enough water, but also highly qualified professionals to make sure our water is safe for drinking."

Hunt said, "You have in this new water treatment plant a symbol to be proud of; a symbol that shows Greenville cares about tomorrow. By working together, you have built a strong foundation for the future."

The plant is located on a 100 acre site off the Old River Road behind Pitt-Greenville Airport. It replaces a 6-million gallon per day facility that has been in operation for 50 years.

Mayor Percy Cox, in welcoming those attending the dedication program, said, "The Greenville Utilities Commission is to be commended for their foresight in the planning and construction of this new water treatment plant."

"We are extremely proud of this kind of initiative. It is a sure indication of how Greenville Utilities is working so that Greenville may meet its obligations to serve our growing section of 'Down East' North Carolina."

Cox said, "Only a short time ago, industrial prospects were limited when a great deal of water supply was needed." But now, Cox said, "Greenville is in a position to accommodate the needs of prospective industry and to keep pace with our community's growth pattern by having this new facility."

Later just before the governor, the Mayor, Horne and GUC Chairman Harry Hagerty cut the ribbon officially opening the new plant, Cox — in a move that was a surprise to Horne —

Fail To Find A Poison

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Health Ministry said today it had found no traces of poison at six Palestinian girls' schools on the occupied West Bank where more than 300 children fell ill.

Ministry Director-General Baruch Modan, in an interview with Israel Radio, said he would not discount the possibility that the children suffered a psychosomatic illness.

The rash of illnesses at girls' schools in Jenin and nearby Arraba over the past four days has raised tensions in the usually calm towns and triggered charges that the girls were poisoned for political reasons.

The girls have suffered symptoms such as nausea, fainting and headaches.

The Soviet Union charged today that "war gas" was to blame, and the Palestinian news agency said, "Israeli elements have attempted to murder en masse hundreds of Palestinian school girls."

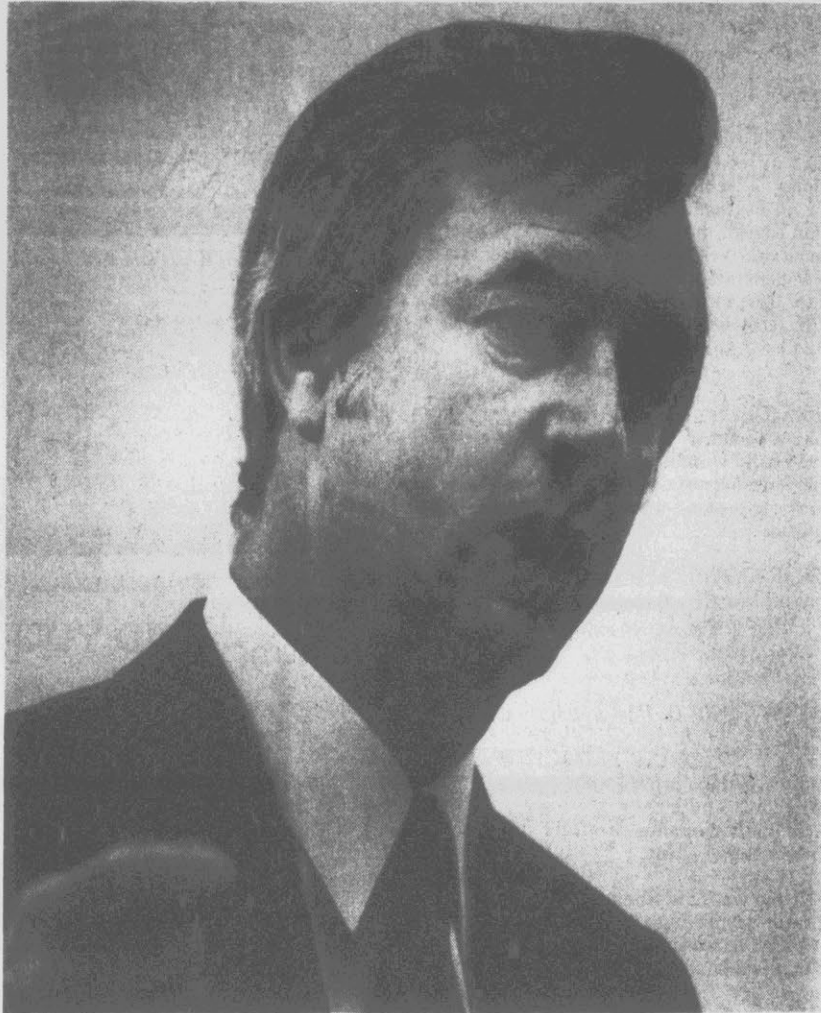

But Mordan said a group of 15 experts agreed there was no sign of deliberate or inadvertent poisoning in the Jenin area.

He said test results were not yet complete and he would not make a final judgment until then. However, he noted that in the past there had been cases of mass symptoms in England, the United States and Canada, and it was discovered the children were reacting to "a certain event."

Israel Army Radio said earlier authorities had determined that the girls were affected by gas, possibly phosphor-sulfate, and not by chemicals ingested through food or water.

On Sunday, Israel Radio said medical teams took samples of a yellow powder with a high concentration of sulfur. The powder, whose origin was not clear, was said to be emitting a gas.

The Army Radio said about 250 girls were treated over the past two days in five hospitals in the Nablus and Jenin area of the West Bank and that some had returned to complain of more symptoms. A Health Ministry spokesman said 52 students fell ill Thursday at the Arraba school near Jenin. None of the victims was reported in serious condition.

HUNT AT RURAL EDUCATION INSTITUTE...North Carolina Governor Jim Hunt spoke to school superintendents, officials and county commissioners from eastern North Carolina at the Rural Education

Institute held today in Greenville. Hunt addressed the issues currently shaping public education in North Carolina. (Reflector Photo By Mary Schulken)

Rural Education's Role Underlined

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Our future will be as great as our children are smart," Gov. Jim Hunt told those attending a Rural Education Institute Conference here this morning.

"Eastern North Carolina children who live in the country are as smart as any anywhere and, with the help of people like Kathryn Lewis, director of the Rural Education Institute, Eastern North Carolina is going to be the frontier for the development of educational and economic well being in this state, 75 percent of which is considered rural," he asserted.

"The real answer to across-the-board economic growth is quality education," he said. He cited a study by the New York Stock Exchange which he said showed that Japan has achieved strong sustained economic growth that we would aspire to almost entirely because of education. It has gone from 45 percent of its students staying in school till graduation to 95 percent. The rate in the U.S. is 74 percent, Gov. Hunt said; the rate in North Carolina, 72. Ninety-nine percent of all Japanese people can read and write, he said. The rate is much lower here. He asserted that any school that is accredited and still has a high dropout rate can consider its accreditation undeserved.

"Our imperatives for the 1990's must be commitment to excellence in education and equality of opportunity for all." He said the public schools have long held a monopoly on the employment of the best-qualified college-educated women and minorities. This is no longer true, he said, and the public schools are going to have to compete with private industry with pay and benefits and other rewards so as to continue to attract and maintain the best-qualified people to educate our young people.

He said he is in favor of a system of certifying master teachers and principals who would be judged on the quality of their teaching and rewarded monetarily accordingly, not just nominal amounts, but thousands of dollars more. This, he said, would have the effect of attracting into teaching the kind of young persons who would aspire to such excellence and thus continue to bring quality to education for our children and our children's children.

School educators and legislators from 33 eastern counties were here Sunday and Monday to discuss issues facing rural public education.

Two Men Are Arrested In Kidnap And Robbery Case

FARMVILLE — Two Farmville men were arrested here early today by local police on charges stemming from the kidnapping and robbery of a newspaper delivery man, Chief Ron Cooper reported.

Cooper said police officers arrested Marvin Williams, 21, and his brother, Timmy Williams, 20, both of 108 Nicks Nook, and charged them with kidnapping Hesley Earl Ross of Winterville, larceny of money and vehicle, and common law robbery.

The chief said Ross told police that the Williams brothers were helping him deliver News and Observers and a delivery had just been made on Walnut Street when he was jumped and taken to an abandoned house in the Seven Pines community north of Farmville. Ross said he was tied to a chimney in the abandoned house and his abductors took his money and delivery van and left.

Cooper said that Ross, who was tied and gagged with a scarf, his belt and black electrical tape, managed to free himself and get to a telephone. Ross, 25, was not injured, according to Cooper.

Officers Calvin Craft and Mitchell Thigpen arrested the Williams brothers around 3:30 a.m. today in Farmville, said Cooper. He said the kidnapping apparently took place about an hour earlier.

Bond for each man was set at $25,000 and first appearance hearings are scheduled for April 7 in district court here.

Cooper said Marvin Williams is currently on parole for a breaking, entering and larceny incident and charges levied earlier against Williams on another breaking, entering and larceny and forgery case are pending.

Former Sergeant Adds Fuel To Allegation U. S. Shielded Barbie

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — U.S. agents drew straws after World War II to decide who would kill Nazi Gestapo officer Klaus Barbie, but abandoned the plot in favor of sending him to South America, a former Army sergeant says.

The former sergeant said U.S. agents wanted to kill Barbie rather than turn him over to French intelligence, the Dayton Daily News said Sunday.

"We trusted the French just about as much as we did the Russians," said Gene Bramel of Centerville, near Dayton, in a copyright story. Bramel was a sergeant in the 66th Army Counter Intelligence Corps in Augsburg, Germany, from 1950 to 1952.

"Here was an intelligence service that we (didn't trust) wanting a man ... who could identify every safe house (used in intelligence work), who could identify indigenous personnel who worked (for us), and we could not allow this. ... We could not let the French have him," Bramel said.

"If worse came to worse, the one who drew the short straw would take him up to the Autobahn (highway) and shoot him," Bramel said. "Drive him up the Autobahn at night. Pull off in a parking place. Shoot him. Push him out. Come back."

Bramel said he didn't get the short straw and he wouldn't say who did.

The French wanted Barbie — called the "Butcher of Lyon" — for war crimes he allegedly committed while he was Gestapo chief in Lyon. He is accused of causing the deaths of thousands of French Jews and Nazi resistors.

Barbie, now 69, fled Germany to South America, reportedly in 1951, and lived there until last month. Bolivia expelled him and he was flown to France for trial on charges of "crimes against humanity."

State Department documents in the National Archives show that Barbie was kept in a "safe house" in West Germany by U.S. Army Intelligence while he provided information on the French Communist Party, The Washington Post reported today.

The Post also said that the French government formally asked for Barbie's extradition three times in 1949 and that the request was ignored for months. The Post said the State Department eventually suggested to the French that they ask the U.S. High Commissioner's office in Germany for Barbie's surrender. The Post said the French made the request without success and that a year later Barbie was in Bolivia.

The Post said other archive documents show that the State Department and Army Intelligence recruited as agents hundreds of former Nazis wanted by Soviet bloc nations for war crimes; coordinated efforts to prevent their extradition to Eastern and Western European countries, set up an elaborate network to keep them in the Ammerican and British zones of then-occupied Germany, and even allowed them — like Barbie — to emigrate under cover to South America.

The Post said the State and Justice departments would not comment on the documents.

Allegations have surfaced that U.S. officials helped Barbie flee to South America in 1951. Two former Army counterintelligence officers have said they were ordered to shield Barbie from French authorities in Europe in the late 1940s, and one said Barbie was paid during the last half of 1948 for cooperating with U.S. intelligence.

Congress, through the General Accounting Office, and the U.S. Department of Justice are investigating the allegations. Justice Department and GAO officials declined last week to comment on Bramel's story because of the investigation.

The French twice convicted Barbie for war crimes of killing Resistance fighters and sentenced him to death in absentia, but because the death penalty has been abolished in that country, Barbie faces a life sentence in the new trial.

Bramel, now a representative of a student exchange program, said his unit worked with Barbie to gather information on the German Communist Party and coordinate activities of other Europeans running "safe houses."

He said that later, "We were informed the Air Force had come up with an alternate plan to blowing (Barbie's) brains out, and that was to get him to South America. That's all we were told and we weren't in on anything after that."

Bramel said he doesn't know where the orders originated, but he assumes they came from outside his unit. He said he didn't think the unit's chief "would ever have made that big of a move without approval."

'Contempt' Case Is Not Pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Responding to an extraordinary request in a still-raging dispute over prayer in public schools, a Supreme Court justice today refused to begin contempt-of-court proceedings against the Mobile, Ala., school board.

Justice Lewis F. Powell turned away arguments that the school board is acting in "dogged defiance" of an order he issued last month banning officially sponsored prayers.

Powell's order, however, left open the possibility that contempt proceedings could be initiated in an "appropriate lower court."

School board lawyers did not deny that teachers were being encouraged to lead prayer sessions.

They argued instead that only certain state-endorsed prayers had been blocked by Powell's February order.

The Mobile controversy has its roots in a 1982 Alabama law that allowed teachers to lead willing students in a prayer at the start of each class, and provided to all schools a suggested prayer.

In a surprise ruling in January, U.S. District Judge W. Brevard Hand of Mobile refused to block enforcement of the law.

Hand conceded that his ruling — stating that federal courts are powerless to ban state-sponsored worship in public schools — conflicts with 20 years of Supreme Court decisions. He portrayed his ruling as "a cry in the wilderness."

The judge's ruling now is being reviewed by the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, and chances appear slim that the appeals court will agree with Hand.

HOUSING FOR NURSE EXTERNS SOUGHT

Jan King in the nursing office of Pitt County Memorial Hospital has asked Hotline to appeal for housing for about 100 senior nursing students from all over the country expected here this summer to take part in the PCMH Nurse Extern Program.

Rooms, apartments to lease short-term or sublease, and even housesitting arrangements are sought for on or about May 16 through on or about July 29. Anyone who can help is asked to call Ms. King, 757-4470.

Two Indicted By Grand Jury In Drug Probe

A Pitt County grand jury has indicted two women employed by Pitt County Memorial Hospital as nurse-anesthetists on charges of obtaining controlled drugs by fraud and falsifying records at the hospital.

The two named in the indictments are Lillian Perry Gray of Route 1, Grifton, and Barbara Jean Jequay of 309 Tobacco Road.

According to the indictments the woman did "intentionally acquire and obtain possession of controlled substances by misrepresentation, fraud, deception and subterfuge," and "did intentionally furnish false and fraudulent material information in and omit material information from reports and documents required to be kept (controlled substance disposition documents, also known as Controlled Drug Administrative Records)," under state law.

The drugs involved, according to the indictments included Meperidine (Demerol), Diazepam (Valium), and Fentanyl (Sublimaze).

Court records indicate that the alleged violations by Ms. Gray occurred between August 1 and October 31, 1982, while the alleged violations by Ms. Jequay occurred between October 1 and October 31, 1982.

The incidents were investigated by the State Bureau of Investigation.

Remarriage Presents Difficult Roles For Parents And Kids

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The U.S. divorce rate declined last year for the first time in two decades, the National Center for Health Statistics said last week. But the annual total remains well over 1 million couples.

And one result is an increasingly common phenomenon — remarriage and the creation of stepfamilies.

"Do you know that there are 1,300 stepfamilies with children under 18 being formed every day!" says Claire Berman, who is affiliated with the Child Welfare League of America and has written widely on adoption and stepfamilies.

"Stepfamilies live in glass houses," said Mrs. Berman, whose three children are 19, 17 and 12. "People feel very free to comment on stepfamilies. But remember, everyone doesn't have to love everyone else. The children didn't make the parents fall in love. There will be issues but they can be worked out."

Mrs. Berman's latest books are, "Making It As a Stepparent" (Bantam Books), for which she interviewed more than 200 families, and, "What Am I Doing In a Stepfamily" (Lyle Stuart), in which she approaches the situation through a child's eyes.

"Becoming a stepfamily takes longer than the ceremony that creates one," Mrs. Berman says.

Various sources estimate one child in six now is part of a stepfamily, a percentage that has risen steadily over the past 15 years.

With three of four divorced men and women marrying again within five years, and with the divorce rate hovering around 1 million a year, it is statistically likely that by 1990 more people will be a part of second marriages than first ones.

This creates problems not only for new couples but also for his-hers-their children.

One group studying the problem is the Stepfamily Association of America, Inc., of Palo Alto, Calif., with 35 chapters in 19 states.

The founders are Emily and John Visser, who had eight children ages 5 to 16 between them when they were married in 1959. Mrs. Visser is a psychologist and family therapist. Her husband is a psychiatrist with the San Mateo County health department.

"The children's over-riding problem usually is a sense of lack of control and love," said Mrs. Visser in a telephone interview. "They're dealing with so many changes when what they want is a return to the original family."

"For the parents, it's the problem of how to rear the children. By the time one gets older (as in the case of the remarried), they have some different notions about raising children. Money almost always is a problem — especially about who's going to keep control."

The association, a self-help group, grew from parents' needs to sit down and discuss their problems with other parents in similar situations.

Another major issue in step-families is discipline.

In his book, "How to Discipline — with Love," Dr. Fitzhugh Dodson writes, "Some parents will effectively discipline their own children. I think this is a mistake. You want to start out slowly, disciplining your stepchildren, but you are abdicating your position as an authority in the house if you leave all the disciplining to your spouse."

"Remember that emotional rapport is an absolute prerequisite to discipline. ... Remember also not to confuse discipline with punishment. Reward positive behavior and use a variety of techniques to discourage misbehavior."

Elizabeth Einstein, an association board member and author, doubts there is any one formula for success in building a happy stepfamily.

Children have loyalty conflicts, she said in an article in U.S. News & World Report magazine. They may ask, "If I like my new stepmother, will my mother get upset?"

Children sometimes feel guilty or disloyal talking about their former family and things they did, she added.

According to Ms. Einstein, researchers say a new stepfamily takes four to seven years to become stable, to work out a sense of "we." One study calls the process the "stepping cycle."

It begins with fantasy, she said — "It's going to be better the second time around."

"Then comes the chaos, the confusion and craziness stages until you think you can't stand it. That's when a lot of people give up and the marriages collapse.

"If you can get over that hump, the family begins to resolve problems and understands what it can and cannot do."

"Stepfamilies force people to be more flexible and to develop an ability to compromise," Ms. Einstein told the magazine. "Children also get more varied role models. Two sets of parents, and if both parents remarry, eight grandparents. They're exposed to more sets of values, habits and ways of doing things, and experiences are broader."

"... Kids who have witnessed a marital breakup can have their faith in marriage restored when a second marriage involving their parents succeeds."

Quality Kitchen Knives Are Best

A good knife can make a world of difference in the kitchen. Three types of metal are generally used in knife blades. They are common stainless steel, carbon-steel and high-carbon steel.

Carbon-steel blades take a sharper edge and keep it longer, essential traits in a knife. But carbon-steel rusts. It must be washed and dried immediately after each use, says Dr. Nadine Tope, extension specialist-in-charge, foods and nutrition, North Carolina State University.

Stainless steel knives are recommended for use in coastal areas, where the humid, salty air will pit and corrode carbon-steel blades. The metal stainless steel is harder than carbon steel; in some cases it is too hard to sharpen. Knives bearing the words, "never needs sharpening" are usually too hard to sharpen.

"Ideally, knives should be sharpened after each use. All it takes is a few strokes with a sharpener. Hold the sharpener steel or whetstone at a 10 to 20 degree angle to the blade. The idea is to rub a minimum amount of the blade without disturbing the finish that was painstakingly put on by a master grinder," Dr. Tope explains. "Sharpen, good blades by hand, rather than using an electric sharpener." Serrated-edge knives cannot be resharpened.

The high-carbon stainless steel knife, sometimes called no-stain, will never pit or rust. It also takes a sharp edge beautifully.

Good blades have been tempered, annealed and hand-ground. In tempering, the molten metal is slowly heated to a desired point and then cooled rapidly by immersion in a chemical bath. This hardens the steel but leaves it so brittle it will shatter. So the steel is then annealed. In this process it is heated to a lower temperature and then air-cooled slowly. This toughens the metal. Grinding puts the cutting edge on the blade. The finest edge is done by hand by a master grinder.

Never test the sharpness of a blade by running a finger along its edge. If necessary, brush the fingertip lightly across the blade.

Knives should not be washed in the dishwasher, where the high temperature can affect tempering. They should all be washed in hot, soapy water as soon as possible after using, and then dried with a soft cloth. Store knives in a rack rather than in a drawer, where its edge can be nicked or dulled by contact with other knives or utensils.

Professional butcher's knives have plastic handles for sanitary purposes, but these should be avoided in the home kitchen. The shiny plastic handle can attract grease, making it slippery.

"Brazilian rosewood makes the best type of handle. It's hardwood grain goes in all directions, making it resistant to cracking or splitting. It is also a tacky or sticky wood, which gives a naturally nonslip surface that improves with use," Dr. Tope says.

Knife sharpening was discussed recently on Extension's television show Almanac, and a leaflet was prepared on the topic. Anyone wishing to receive this information should write to Almanac, Box 5037, Raleigh, N.C. 27650.

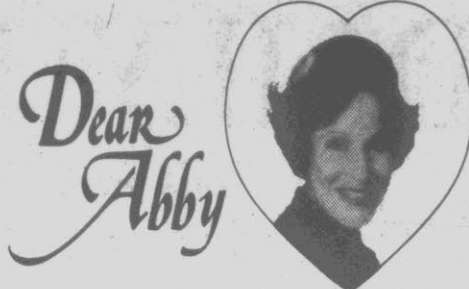

Birthday Is Held

Roxie Clemmons of Greenville was honored at a surprise birthday party Saturday at the Holiday Inn in celebration of her 80th birthday today.

The honoree was presented 11 pink carnations, symbolizing her 11 children. The presentation was made by Ann Clemmons Teel.

Decorations for the occasion were done in pink.

The party was given by her children, who returned to Greenville from as far away as Texas. A majority of her 24 children and seven great-grandchildren were also in attendance as well as friends and relatives.

Designing Wife Paints Hubby Into A Corner

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'll bet you are going to get mounds of mail on this one! "Peeling Paint in Dayton" said his wife's deathbed wish was to be cremated. She wanted her ashes mixed with paint to be used to paint the ceiling of their bedroom. Obviously, the wife had hoped this would prevent her husband from entertaining other women.

You advised the man to honor her request, but to entertain elsewhere. Abby, no way! That letter had to be a joke! No woman in her right mind would make such a request. And if there's no law against it, there should be.

If a ghost were looking for a place to live, that bedroom would be it. Abby, you goofed!

DEAR HARMONY: It's not always easy to know when a reader is joking. This off-the-wall lady may have really wanted to end up on the ceiling.

Serious or not, here's a reader who was sufficiently impressed with the situation to write a poem about it:

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column signed "Peeling Paint in Dayton" inspired the following poem. If you think it's worth printing, be my guest.

Hubby, hubby, promise me,
When alive I ain't,
You'll sift my ashes carefully
Into a can of paint.

Stir me well, and then apply,
Under proper light,
A patch to test that when I'm dry
I'm just a shade off-white.

Brush me thickly overhead —
Finish every ounce —
Coat the ceiling 'round the bed

If you bring a hussy there,
Watch it; when I feel
A sudden heating of the air,
I'll blister, crack and peel.

HONEYMOONS FOR SHOPPERS

You may think that shopping will be low on the list of your honeymoon priorities. Nevertheless, you may find lots of bargains and be unable to take advantage of them if you haven't planned ahead. Here are some popular honeymoon spots that are also shoppers' heaven:

If you're heading for Niagara Falls, you'll be right on the Canadian border. The U.S. dollar goes a lot further in Canada, and there are many British imports that you can't even find in this country. Canada's a good place to fill in the gaps in your Waterford or Wedgewood collection.

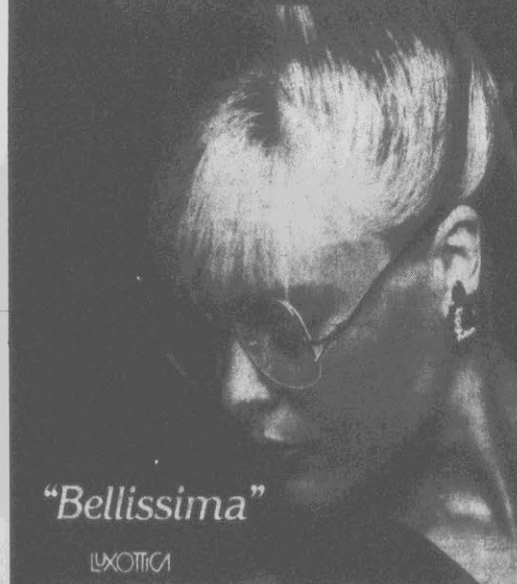

...
Throughout the Caribbean, duty-free liquor and cigarettes can be significantly cheaper than at home. Even if you don't smoke or drink, it's a good place to buy gifts for friends.

...
Mexico is a great value these days, with the dollar buying more there than ever before. Besides attractive local pottery, onyx and clothing, items of silver and leather are particularly good buys.

...
The French West Indies have some of the world's best prices on French perfume. You'll want to stock up, for yourself and your friends.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

Here's one of the brightest new ideas in plastic needlepoint projects — a sunny birdhouse flower holder, worked on quick-stitch 7-mesh plastic canvas. It's sure to be a conversation piece whether you fill it with garden-fresh flowers or artificial ones. Even the beginner should find this a snap to make in a simple, basic needlepoint stitch.

To obtain directions for making the Birdhouse Flower Container, send your request for Leaflet No. NL-3273 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29582.

Or you may order Kit No. NK-3273 by sending a check or money order for $11 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit includes the instruction leaflet plus canvas, yarn, needle — and a jaunty little feathered bird to perch on the birdhouse! Shipping charges are also included in the kit price.

Innovations are constantly occurring in the plastic canvas needlepoint field. Colored plastic canvas was introduced a couple of years ago and made a big splash — it's just great for fun projects, with only a minimum amount of stitching necessary.

Bridal Policy

A black and white glossy five by seven photograph is requested for engagement announcements. For publication in a Sunday edition, the information must be submitted by 12 noon on the preceding Wednesday. Engagement pictures must be released at least three weeks prior to the wedding date. After three weeks, only an announcement will be printed.

Wedding write-ups will be printed through the first week with a five by seven picture. During the second week with a wallet size picture and write-up giving less description and after the second week, just as an announcement. Wedding forms and pictures should be returned to "The Daily Reflector" one week prior to the date of the wedding. All information should be typed or written neatly.

PIQUANT FRUIT

You can make this relish quickly with fruit from the freezer.

2 teaspoons cornstarch
½ teaspoon curry powder
1 tablespoon light brown sugar

1½ teaspoons cider vinegar
10-ounce package frozen mixed fruit in syrup, thawed and undrained

In a 1-quart saucepan thoroughly stir together cornstarch, curry powder and brown sugar. Gradually stir in vinegar and some of the syrup from fruit, keeping smooth. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened, clear and bubbling. Serve hot or chilled. Makes 1 cup.

SUNNY BIRDHOUSE...flower holder is worked on seven-mesh plastic canvas and should be a snap even for the beginner.

7-mesh sheets for Christmas projects were available. Because of the fast market acceptance of this, the manufacturers soon introduced pastel colors and then a wide range of other colors. Next, color was introduced in the 10-mesh canvas sheets.

Many of you found these colored sheets to be ideal — well almost ideal — for making place mats, by stitching in only a border or scattered designs. The only problem was that the 10 1/2-inch-by-13 1/2-inch size was too small except for breakfast or luncheon mats.

Again the manufacturers responded to the demand by introducing larger 12-inch-by-18-inch rectangular sheets in clear and colored plastic canvas. About the same time, oval sheets were also introduced in large place mat size.

Circles in 7-mesh canvas have been around for years, but the holes changed size on every round from the center out, making it impractical to use most standard needlepoint stitches. At least one manufacturer now is offering 2 1/2-inch and 4-inch sizes of circles, in clear and colored canvas, with all but a few holes near the outer edge exactly the same as all of the other holes. These are made so that you can fit them easily onto a cylinder made from the regular sheets of canvas.

There are a variety of other pre-cut shapes being made, some available individually in retail stores and others only in kits. I recently received a full set of all of the letters of the alphabet — each 5 1/4 inches high — from a manufacturer who wanted my opinion of them before they were introduced.

I experimented with using a variety of pattern stitches and colors on each initial and then glued each one onto a plain fabric tote. While this is only one idea for using them, I was delighted with the outcome, and am sure there will be many uses for them.

For some time, it was nearly impossible to find yarn for plastic canvas projects in small skeins. While many of us have boxes full of leftover yarns, there are so many times when we need only a few yards of one color and have to buy a full 3-to-4-ounce skein to secure it.

Fortunately, as the demand is growing, small skeins are beginning to appear on the market. If you haven't yet tried them, you might like the new nylon and herculon yarns packaged in this way, specifically for plastic canvas work. While not really suitable for traditional cotton canvas, they are a really good choice for 7-mesh plastic canvas.

Spring Fashion Show To Benefit Jenkins Scholarship

The East Carolina University Club held its annual spring fashion show-luncheon Saturday at the Greenville County Club.

Proceeds will benefit the Lillian J. Jenkins Scholarship Fund.

Jim Rees narrated the show which was coordinated by Becki Orr and Ann Givens. They were assisted by Carol Dohm, models coordinator; Tricia Anderson, store coordinator; Barbara Hall and Barbara Stone, script writers; Kay Davis, Mrs. Givens; Ruth Gooding; Pia Leahy; Vicki Marx; Mrs. Orr; and Anne Williams, invitations; Karen Flickenger; Emily Lewis; Nancy Crowe; Joy David; Mrs. Gooding; Marlene Hughes; Mrs. Leahy; Mrs. May; Mrs. Orr; and Kathleen Sinar, special events.

Show models were Gerta Nischan, Cindy Barakat, Barbara Luce, Gloria Grimes, Barbara Stone, Amy Dohm, Barbara and Ginny Close, Karan Israel, Marcy

Byrd, Vi Rosenfeld, Linda Davis, Sue Lanier, Renetta Smith, Dorothy Woolees, Linda Seykora, Melinda Turner, Barbara Slusarski, Nelda Hedges and Evelyn McNeil.

Fashions were shown from Certain Things, C. Heber Forbes, X-Tra Special, Virginia Crabtree, D.A. Kelley's, Brody's and Hodges.

Spring colors included white, periwinkle, purple, hot pink, black, red, kelly green, gray, lilac, watermelon, amethyst, khaki, mustard and turquoise.

Sports wear, suits, blazer and skirt combinations, shorts, afternoon dresses and skirts were among fashions shown.

Background piano music was presented by Charles Bath.

Ready For The Future

Today the dedication was held for Greenville's new $12.5 million water treatment plant located on a 100-acre site on the Old River Road north of the river.

It is an important occasion for every present and future citizen of Greenville, so important it called for Gov. Jim Hunt to make the dedicating address.

We as consumers tend to take clean water for granted. We only think about it if we turn on the faucet and nothing happens. Nevertheless, Greenville has been fortunate to have a good and reliable water supply since it was founded. The principal water source has been the Tar River and a water treatment plant on West Third Street at the old utilities plant has provided a water supply for many years. There are also eight deep wells which tap the groundwater reserves of the area. A growing city, however, needs increased water supplies, hence the decision to construct the new water treatment plant which is now in use.

The computerized plant is as modern as can be constructed today. Equally important, it is expandable to meet the needs of our community for 50 years. The new plant and wells can produce 15 million gallons of water per day, enough to handle the city's needs for 20 years. With expansion of the plant 24 million gallons per day can be produced.

It has taken planning and foresight on the part of Greenville Utilities and the city government to provide the water plant which was dedicated today. The facility means that we as consumers will not have to be concerned about our water supplies for many years in the future. As we need water it will be there, and that is very important to any community.

Information Is Needed

One would like to be comfortable with President Reagan's "vision of the future" which calls for development of an impregnable high-technology defense against attacks by enemy missiles.

The president proposed that such a system could be developed by the end of the century.

He did not, however, give much details on how the Star Wars-type weaponry would be developed. Even though the system, which would presumably use lasers, was billed as defensive, it touched off concern that its development would ignite a new arms race. If we develop such a defense the Soviets would be working on new systems to penetrate it.

At best what the president proposes is an expensive gamble. The public and Congress need more assurance that such a system is even practical before we commit the large sums of money which will be needed for its development.

John Cuniff

Seldom Cured

NEW YORK (AP) — Like they say about alcoholism, inflation may be controlled but seldom cured.

Elated by the decline in consumer prices in February, only the second time this has happened since 1965, people who should really know better are ready to declare the malady licked.

It is at this point the patient becomes vulnerable.

Those who examine the economic disease know this. Without denying President Reagan his due credit, they know that so many factors enter the analysis that never, ever can the defenses be relaxed.

They know, for example, that there are few people who wouldn't like to go out and spend up a storm, that there are few unions that are happy with wages and benefits and few corporations satisfied with profits.

They know that all three institutions — the household, the union and the corporation — feel they should be improving their lot, and that each of them is just waiting to seize that opportunity.

They know that Americans have learned much about economics over the past few years, but they know also that it is in the nature of competitive people and institutions to push, push, push for even more.

And they know this cannot happen unless the country improves the capacity and efficiency of its plants, laboratories and offices — that is, makes a bigger pie so everyone can have a bigger slice without denying the other.

They are aware that while inflation has indeed come down it hasn't come down for everyone. Sharp drops in heating oil and gasoline prices lead the February decline. But what if you don't use heating oil and gasoline?

Millions of people don't use either product, of course. They rent cars and apartments, and because they do they will not benefit immediately from the two big price declines. Later, and indirectly, of course, but not immediately.

The so-called economic authorities — sensible practitioners seldom call themselves experts anymore — are aware that a fundamental reason for the price decline is the decline in economic activity. Prices decline when plants are closed and workers unemployed and producers cannot sell their products.

They know that it took a severe recession rather than any new knowledge of economics to get prices down, and they fully understand that what went down can come up again when buying and selling resumes.

When, for example, a family that postponed buying a house for several years sees an opportunity to get one — the last opportunity, they tell themselves. Or the kid decides now is the time to upgrade from a jalopy to a sports car.

Inflation is lower for many, many reasons, including the relatively mild weather experienced by much of the northern part of the country. But above any other reason, inflation is down because economic activity is down.

What happens, the worriers ask, when the capacity of the nation's idle factories is finally reached and companies need to borrow for expansion. Will the money be available? And at what rate?

They worry about the federal budget deficit. Will government credit requirements leave sufficient money in the credit pool for the private sector to conduct its activities? Or will interest rates rise again?

Nobody really knows. But those who claim to know something about economics and inflation say we shouldn't even be talking about being cured, because to do so is to assume the cocky attitude that comes before the fall.

Be modest, be vigilant, and never forget, they say.

RALEIGH — North Carolina's involuntary annexation law: It's either our best tool for orderly growth or an oppressive weapon of city government.

Ask a city councilman what is his roughest job and he'll answer, "a forced annexation." Few local issues raise as much hostility. On one side are the city fathers responsible for maintaining the tax base and orderly growth. On the other are homeowners and businessmen who've moved outside the city to escape the congestion and taxes.

Now the General Assembly is getting into the debate. A research commission spent a year studying the state's annexation laws and it has offered a package of suggested changes. Rep. Brad Ligon, R-Rowan, has put in a bill of his own.

Cities can annex in five ways. One method, called "standards and services," is drawing the most attention. Under this method which was established by the assembly in 1959, a municipality may annex contiguous territory on its own initiative provided it meets two criteria. First, the area to be annexed must be urbanized to a degree that meets statutory standards. Second, the city must demonstrate that it can provide to this area the same services it provides within its current boundaries.

Ligon's bill addresses on of the two main concerns regarding this method: People affected by the annexation don't get the opportunity to vote on their fate. Ligon would repeal the "standards and services" method. Cities could then annex based on petition of the homeowners or by putting the question to a referendum. Absent a political miracle, Ligon's bill is headed for the legislative graveyard, most observers agree.

The study commission's bill, which is sponsored by Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, has a much better chance of passage. It would repeal all of the local annexation laws that the assembly has piled onto the books. (These laws require referenda in some cases, deny the right to annex in some areas, provide special petition protections in others.) The "standards and services" method would be modified in ways which should make the process more palatable to those being annexed.

Under the proposal, cities would be required to provide more extensive reports on their annexations. They'd have to provide property owners with official notice of annexation. The whole process would be slowed down, from the possibility of a 38-day annexation now to about 15 months. And, it mandates that a city start construction of sewer lines into the annexed areas within one year and finish that work within two.

Other provisions of Plyler's bill address the second major concern about the "standards and services" method: The harm an annexation can cause to rural fire departments. If a fire district loses its most heavily populated area, it may not be able to continue operating in less populated areas which don't get annexed. Rural residents get hit with greater fire district taxes and some firemen lose their state pension.

But anyone who thinks Plyler's bill in the compromise that will end the animosity created by forced annexations will also believe there's a middle ground between a Carolina fan and a State fan. No matter what you do to help one side, it's going to hurt the other.

At a public hearing on Plyler's bill, representatives of several North Carolina cities and the League of Municipalities generally supported the bill while picking away at some of its provisions. Then came Dean Weber, a New Hanover County activist, who called the current annexation laws a "license to steal" and Plyler's proposal simply continuation of "24 years of unobstructed tyranny."

Nuts And Bolts Stuff

The President has issued an executive order requiring every federal employee with a security clearance to sign a non-disclosure pledge and submit to lie detector tests if asked.

Mr. Reagan's given reason was to prevent leaks of classified information. His real reason was to stop leaks that make his administration look incompetent or bad.

Will this stop leaking in Washington?

"Not on your life," said Stanley Pincher, chief coordinator of Leaks for High Government Officials. "But the government will now have much better control over what is leaked to the press and what is withheld because it would give us a black eye."

"What constitutes a good leak?"

"Top secret information about the nuclear superiority of the Soviet Union. We want that leaked out as fast as possible, especially while Congress is debating the defense budget."

"What, in your opinion, is a bad leak?"

"Top secret information of sweetheart deals with U.S. defense contractors on weapons now in production that don't work and cost three times as much as we said they would."

"I can see why you wouldn't want that kind of information leaked," I said. "The lie detector will be a great help in stopping whistle blowers from raving on the administration."

"It may not stop all unofficial leaks but it will certainly have a chilling effect on anyone who leaks to cover up wrongdoings."

"How does your department operate?"

"We have a National Council of Office Leakers, which meets every Monday morning. It is composed of senior officials from all the departments and agencies, and is chaired by a very high White House source. Each official presents the leaks he would like to pass on to the media that week. If, for example, the Gross National Product is going up, Commerce will ask to leak it, and if unemployment is going down we'll let Labor leak it."

"This is all nuts and bolts stuff. The big leaks, to have any credibility, have to come directly from the White House."

"Would you give me an example?"

"Well suppose it's decided that Secretary of the Interior James Watt will have to go because of the EPA scandal. I'm not saying we have decided it yet — but we can't rule out that he is becoming a political liability. A White House aide will tell a reporter 'This is off the record, but the President has no intention of firing Jim Watt.'"

"The very fact that the White House aide denied it without being asked immediately alerts the reporter that something is in the wind. He reports it and the rest of the media pick it up. When Watt reads about it he calls the President and asks him if he wants him to resign. The President says of course not. Watt can have his job as long as he wants. This private conversation is also leaked to the press, and pretty soon the only question is not will Watt resign but when."

"It's the old 'leak by denial' trick," I said. "They've used it on me a hundred times."

"It never fails. The trick of leaking when it comes to firing somebody in the administration is not to push him out the window, but make him jump of his own free will."

Combatants Switch Sides

Carter proposed to withhold taxes on interest and dividends.

The second remark was made in the Senate this month as Dole, now chairman of the GOP-controlled Finance Committee, led the fight against repeal of a similar provision. It was proposed by the Republican administration of Ronald Reagan and approved by Congress last year with strong GOP support.

Listen to what the Republican Party Platform said in 1980: "We also oppose Carter proposals to impose withholding on dividend and interest income."

Listen to what Reagan had to say last week about the banking industry's campaign to repeal the measure: "We should not accept an amendment designed to prevent the collection of taxes that are already owed on interest and dividends."

Reagan even promised this month to veto a politically popular jobs program if the withholding repeal were attached to it.

A number of Democrats have switched as well. Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, who swapped Finance Committee posts with Dole in 1981, thought enough of the withholding idea in 1976 to propose it. Now, he's opposing it, borrowing some of Dole's arguments in 1980.

Three years ago, when Long was running the show, Dole sponsored a resolution opposing interest and dividend withholding as being "detrimental to the economic well-being of the United States." Thirty-four of the Senate's 41 Republicans were co-sponsors, along with 26 of the 58 Democrats. Long was not among them.

Last year, a move in the Senate to defeat the provision was blocked by the Republicans. Only 10 of 54 GOP members voted against it, but 37 of 46 Democrats were opposed.

One might get the feeling that partisan politics has more currency in this city than devotion to principle. Why else would Republicans who once resisted withholding as a needless tax on savers and investors now defend it as a necessary drive to crack down on tax cheats? Why else would Democrats who once saw the need for improving tax compliance now cast themselves as the small saver's protector from the greedy tax man?

Long explained his conversion on the grounds that "I am in a position to be somewhat of a statesman about this issue. I have heard both sides and made both arguments." He obviously believes the bankers' arguments are correct, according to his spokesman, Raphael Bermudez.

Dole justifies his conversion on the grounds that the current withholding law is better than the 1980 proposal — it withholds a smaller percentage of income and has broader exemptions for elderly and low-income savers.

Dole also was concerned in 1980 that the Democrats "were only looking for a way to bring in more revenue to finance increased spending," says the senator's spokesman, Walt Riker. He apparently no longer has that concern, according to Riker.

Let people speak under the protection of anonymity, they come up with different explanations for the switch. Listen:

"When you govern, you have to be responsible; when you're the opposition, you don't," said one administration official, who offered that view solely on the condition that he not be identified by name or job.

Adds a Senate Republican source: "Obviously, a lot of it is politics. That's the bottom line. No question about it."

Nuclear Anniversary

Four years ago today, at four o'clock in the morning, a series of equipment failures and human errors began at the Three Mile Island nuclear power plant near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. It was the start of the first major nuclear reactor accident in America. The break-down resulted in the release of radioactive steam into the atmosphere and, by some reports, brought one of the reactors close to a meltdown of its uranium core, threatening extensive contamination. It was the most expensive industrial accident in history, and although there were no immediate injuries, the full impact of the incident on workers and local residents may not be known for years.

DO YOU KNOW — What film about a fictional "meltdown" was released only days before the Three Mile Island accident?

FRIDAY'S ANSWER — About 30 percent of U.S. college graduates hold degrees in scientific fields.

Brennan At The Dinner

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Eileen Brennan, in her first public appearance since she was hit by a car five months ago, joined other celebrities as a guest presenter at the Los Angeles Drama Critics Circle Awards dinner.

The 48-year-old actress, who portrayed a hard-boiled company commander on "Private Benjamin" before the TV series was canceled, is undergoing a therapy program that "is very strenuous and sometimes it inflames a lot of pain," publicist Dick Guttman said. Miss Brennan joined John Houseman, Shirley Jones, Ford Rainey, Lynn Redgrave, Dick Shawn and Hal Williams at the Drama Critics dinner Sunday night. She was struck by a car

Oct. 27 after dining at a restaurant in the beachside Venice district with Goldie Hawn, her co-star in the film version of "Private Benjamin."

The two were walking on a dark street when Miss Brennan stepped off the curb to cross the road and was hit.

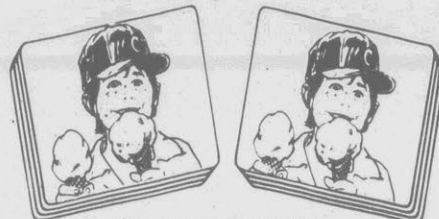

Although she suffered no internal injuries, both her legs and some facial bones were fractured. She was hospitalized for eight weeks.

STOLEN AGAIN

NICE, France (AP) — For the second time in less than a month, a bronze bas-relief of the late Princess Grace of Monaco was stolen from a commemorative pillar on the outskirts of this city on the French Riviera, police said today.

An Invisible Pet Winner

AURORA, Colo. (AP) — An out-of-sight 7-foot ostrich named Florence took top honors at the second annual Invisible Pet Show, an exposition where winners are considerably less than meets the eye.

"I know she's not your typical pet," said 12-year-old Todd Shatritz, stroking the invisible neck of the make-believe creature.

"Sometimes she lays one of her invisible eggs on the living room carpet and we accidentally step on it, smelling up the whole place. Invisible ostrich eggs can get pretty smelly, you know."

The pet won Shatritz and fellow trainer Paolo Cammarota $300 in real money Saturday at Aurora Mall. Other entries in the tongue-in-cheek contest were 'umbling centipedes, attack mice, a vicious Tasmanian devil and Iceberg, a woolly mammal.

"Last year, the winner was an invisible skunk who did a wide assortment of tricks," said Susan Braatz, promotions director for the mall. "But this year, we have more unusual animals, but of course, you can't see that."

Seeking Limit Federal Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., is working to reduce federal power in enforcing the Bill of Rights and to increase federal power in dealing with labor unions.

East, chairman of the separation of powers subcommittee of the Senate Judiciary Committee, held hearings last week on proposals to curtail the power of the federal courts and on an unrelated bill to give the federal government new authority to prosecute labor union violence.

At a hearing Friday, he voiced support for legislation that would shift responsibility for enforcing constitutional protections to the state courts when state and local government actions are involved.

But at a hearing Wednesday, East argued for greater federal power when he supported a bill that would make labor union violence that disrupts interstate commerce a federal crime. Dealing with such violence is now the responsibility of state and local authorities.

In an interview, East said he saw no contradiction between his positions.

The recent cold weather and surprise snowfall may adversely affect some plants, trees and crops in North Carolina. The full extent of damage due to cold temperatures and high winds may not become apparent for a few days. Prior to the snowfall of March 24, many plants, especially ornamentals and some fruit trees, had been blooming ahead of schedule.

The tender foliage and flower buds are the most easily damaged tissues of the plant. The cell walls of the new growth in spring are thinner and there is a high water content within the individual cells. When temperatures fall below the freezing point (32 degrees Fahrenheit) the water in the cell wall expands as it freezes. The end result is that the ice breaks the cell walls and tissues disintegrate. Often these tissues will blacken and dry out.

Where flowers are affected by freezing temperatures a dark discoloration of the flower would indicate cell damage has occurred. Cold damage on leaves often appears as irregular, blackened areas or entire shoots blighted, black and wilted.

Many factors influence the degree of injury inflicted by low temperatures including:

- The stage of development of the crop. If the frost or freeze is preceded by several days of warm weather, the plant and fruit will be in a vigorous stage of growth and damage will be greater than if the freeze had been preceded by several days of cool weather. Buds in tight cluster will not be damaged as easily as more open buds.

- The amount of leaf cover over the blossom and fruit. The more exposed blossoms and fruit will be most severely damaged.

- The type of plant and the variety. Some plants are not damaged by freezing temperatures but the buds, blossoms and fruits may be damaged at 31 degrees F. Others can withstand 27-28 degrees F. before damage occurs.

- The severity and duration of the freeze. The colder the temperature and the longer the freeze period the more severe the damage.

•Wind speed and cloud cover. A heavy cloud cover will prevent the temperature from dropping as low as would be expected under a clear sky. A four-mile-per-hour wind will prevent damage from frost as long as the air temperature remains above 32 degrees F.

Often the weight of snow or ice on limbs causes limb breakage. It is interesting to note that limbs which come off the trunk at a close to 90 degree angle are stronger than those limbs which come off the trunk at a more acute angle. Limbs that have a narrow branch angle often have enveloped bark inside the branch junction and are much weaker.

Limbs that have been broken off should be broken off flush to avoid jagged edges and to promote rapid healing of the bark. It is not necessary to use pruning paint on the cut surface.

Some plants which may sustain more injury than others include blueberry, pear, peach, cherry, apricot, azalea, forsythia, fig, aucuba, centipedegrass, bulbs, camelia and others.

Most of the injurious effects of the cold and wind may have been lessened by the covering of snow's insulating qualities. But for those plants with exposed flowers, time will tell about the overall effect of cold weather.

It is usually better to withhold fertilizer on shrubbery until new growth is budding out on its own. Often fertilizer applied prematurely will force new growth too early and a late frost will do more damage. Normally we escape extensive damage in most years. But last year's frosts in April and this year's variable weather may cause problems for people who depend upon the fruit of flowers borne in early spring. Hopefully North Carolina's fruit growers will do better this year than in 1982.

EXTENDED WEATHER OUTLOOK FOR N.C.

Fair Wednesday through Friday with moderating temperatures; highs Wednesday in 50s to low 60s, warming into 60s Thursday and Friday. Lows Wednesday and Thursday in 30s and low 40s; lows Friday in 40s except for some 30s in the mountains.

Council Accepts Nectarines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Peach Council has accepted nectarines — described as the "fuzzless peach" — into its fold.

"Although horticulturists cannot agree whether the nectarine is a fuzzless peach or a cross between a peach and a plum, the nectarine is probably an ancestor of the peach," the council said.

The council has its headquarters in Martinsburg, W.Va., and traditionally issues its news releases on peach-colored paper.

Ernest Fischer of Porter Okla., past president of the council, said that despite the uncertainty over ancestry, the nectarine's production, care, harvesting and marketing is almost identical to the peach.

"It's time we included them, too, in the future projects of the council," he said.

The council said consumer interest in nectarines has increased, rising to a per capita consumption of 1.5 pounds in 1981 from six-tenths of a pound in 1970.

3 Accidents Here Friday

Three accidents investigated Friday resulted in an estimated $4,250 property damage.

Officers said Floyd Linwood Dunn of 1019 East Wright Road was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety and driving with an expired license following investigation of an 11:33 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Ninth and Cotanche Streets.

Police said the Dunn car collided with an auto driven by Paul Leslie Goodson of 1808 Rosewood Drive, resulting in an estimated $700 damage to the Dunn car and $1,200 damage to the Goodson vehicle. Cars driven by Paul David Lynch of Route 6, Greenville, and Martha Hill Best of 208 Queen Drive, collided about 4:44 p.m. on Greene Street a half-mile south of the Farmer Street intersection, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Lynch vehicle and $1,000 damage to the Best car.

Investigators reported a truck driven by Deborah Kay Forbis of 910 Clement Dorm collided with a parked car owned by Doris Boyd Harris of 105D Lakeview Terrace about 5:58 p.m. at the intersection of Arlington Boulevard and Cherokee Drive.

Damage from the collision was set at $50 to the Harris car and $1,000 to the Forbis truck.

Drought Affects

Australia Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says severe drought for more than a year has reduced the outlook for planting Australia's 1983-84 wheat crop in June and July.

"Subsoil moisture reserves are presently low over the entire eastern half of the country, which accounts for two-thirds of the total crop," the department's Foreign Agricultural Service said in a recent report.

Yellow nutsedge

Purple nutsedge

You're looking at the best reasons for using Vernam® in peanuts.

Nutsedge. It's your biggest weed problem. If you treat only yellow nutsedge, you could be overlooking another problem weed: purple nutsedge. But there is one herbicide that can control both varieties. Only one. Vernam.

And Vernam has a lot going for it besides nutsedge.

Like the 20 other grass and broadleaf weeds Vernam can control by itself. (In a tank mix with Balan,* it gets tough buffalograss as well.) Or, that you incorporate Vernam, so it gives you reliable coverage in wet weather or dry. With Vernam, you don't have to rely on precisely the right amount of rain to do the job.

You know nutsedge is a problem in your peanuts. And you know Vernam can get the job done. That's why peanut farmers like you have been relying on it for the past 15 years.

Follow label directions. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.

*Reg. T.M. of Elanco Products Co.

To control weeds in tobacco, you have to make two difficult decisions.

1. Should I treat for nutsedge? Nutsedge has been called the world's worst weed with good reason. Spreading by seed and by tuber, above ground and below, nutsedge can reduce tobacco yields, lower crop quality and increase harvesting costs. Even one tuber per square foot can escalate into a major infestation in just 20 weeks. So if you think you'll get nutsedge this year, you should seriously consider applying a preplant herbicide that can control it.

2. Should I treat preplant? If nutsedge might be a problem, the only time to get effective control is preplant. So you can decide to apply your herbicide early. But if you have problem weeds that don't include nutsedge, you could decide to apply your herbicide at layby or transplant instead. Not only will a single application last through the growing season, but you'll run less risk of injuring young plants.

And one easy one.

1. Which herbicide should I use? Choosing application time is the hard part. Choosing the herbicide is easy. Devrinol® selective herbicide. Preplant, Devrinol can be mixed with Tillam® to control both yellow and purple nutsedge, along with many other grasses and broadleaves. And if layby or transplant is your decision, Devrinol can save you up to 50% in herbicide costs. Devrinol may not remove the entire load of decision making from you, but it can help simplify it. Follow label directions. Stauffer Chemical Company, Agricultural Chemical Division, Westport, CT 06881.

Six Lost Lives In N. C. Traffic

By The Associated Press
Weekend traffic accidents on North Carolina roads claimed six lives, including three pedestrians, the state Highway Patrol reported today.

Jennifer Ann Talley, 11, of Durham was killed at about 9:50 a.m. Saturday when she walked into the path of a car on a rural road about a mile south of Durham, troopers said.

Robert H. Stephenson, 24, of Dover, Fla., was killed at 12:17 a.m. Saturday when he walked into the path of a vehicle on U.S. 74 2.7 miles west of Charlotte.

Later in the day, at 2:15 p.m., Ronald Columbus Green, 24, of Candor died when he jumped into the path of a car on N.C. 73, 4 miles south of Norman in Richmond County.

Two passengers in separate cars were killed just outside Charlotte early Saturday when a car traveling in the wrong lane of U.S. 74 struck another vehicle head-on. The victims were identified as Samuel Theodore Brady, 25, of Monroe and Lisa Ann Wolfe, 14, of Charlotte.

Johnny Wayne Bostick, 33, of Kannapolis died at 4:15 a.m. Saturday when the car he was riding left a road south of Concord and plunged into a creek, injuring the driver.

The deaths raised the highway toll for the year to 237, compared to 232 at the same time last year.

ADOLESCENT CHEMICAL DEPENDENCY
by Porter Shaw
Substance Abuse Program Director

The following is a questionnaire in which you answer YES or NO to determine your relationship with alcohol or other drugs.

1. Do you drink because you have problems? To face up to stressful situations?
2. Do you drink when you get mad at other people, your friends, or parents?
3. Do you often prefer to drink alone, rather than with others?
4. Are your grades starting to slip? Are you goofing off on the job?
5. Do you ever try to stop drinking or drink less — and fail?
6. Have you begun to drink in the morning, before school or work?
7. Do you gulp your drinks as if to satisfy a great thirst?
8. Do you ever have loss of memory due to your drinking?
9. Do you avoid leveling with others about your drinking?
10. Do you ever get into trouble when you are drinking?
11. Do you often get drunk when you drink, even when you do not mean to?
12. Do you drink to lose shyness and build up self-confidence?
13. Is drinking affecting your reputation?
14. Does it bother you if somebody says maybe you drink too much?
15. Do you have to drink to go out on a date?
16. Do you hang out now with a crowd where stuff is easy to get?
17. Do your friends drink less than you do?
18. Do you drink until the bottle is empty?
19. Has drunk driving ever put you into a hospital or jail?
20. Do you get annoyed with classes or lectures on drinking?
21. Do you think you have a problem with liquor?

If you answer YES to any of these questions maybe it is time to take a serious look at what your drinking or drug taking might do to you. If you have further questions about alcohol or drugs you would like to discuss with a substance abuse counselor, please feel free to contact the Pitt County Mental Health Center.

If you have a question you would like for us to answer through this column, please submit to Community Services, Pitt County Mental Health Center, 306 Stantonsburg Road, Greenville, or call Community Services, 752-0119.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Baptist State Convention is planning a $600,000 expansion of its conference center that will include a new suite of conference rooms and 32 bedrooms at the Camp Caraway complex.

Some people think an IRA won't help until retirement. Nonsense. A BB&T IRA helps every April 15.

An IRA, you see, is more than a fast-growing retirement fund. It's a tax shelter.

Now, the tax-wise have been taking advantage of tax shelters for years, contributing money to charity, for example, so they can take big deductions and pay smaller income taxes.

Well, we think it's about time working people got a piece of the action. And they can with BB&T's Individual Retirement Account, a tax shelter that's yours when you make a contribution to the charity closest to your heart: you and your family.

YOU CAN DEDUCT AS MUCH AS $2,000 A YEAR FROM YOUR GROSS INCOME.

You're allowed to invest as much as $2,000 a year in your IRA ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if you both are). And every penny is deductible. Which means big tax savings. If you're in the 25% tax bracket, for example, and you and your working spouse put $4,000 into an IRA, your refund check from Uncle Sam will be $1,000 fatter than it would be otherwise.

YOU DON'T EVEN PAY TAX ON THE INTEREST YOU EARN UNTIL YOU RETIRE.

Which is nice, because at BB&T, you'll be earning at a rate that's tied to money market rates, with a guaranteed minimum of 8%. What's more, we don't compound that interest annually or quarterly as some banks do. We compound daily, which can make a difference of thousands of dollars in interest over the years.

COMPARISON OF INTEREST COMPOUNDING METHODS
Amount Deposited a Year	Daily Compounding*	Annual Compounding*	Net Gain With Daily Compounding
10 $20,000	$ 32,097	$ 31,291	$ 806
20 $40,000	$104,323	$ 98,846	$ 5,477
30 $60,000	$266,846	$244,692	$22,153
40 $80,000	$632,553	$559,562	$72,991

*Based on 8% interest rate

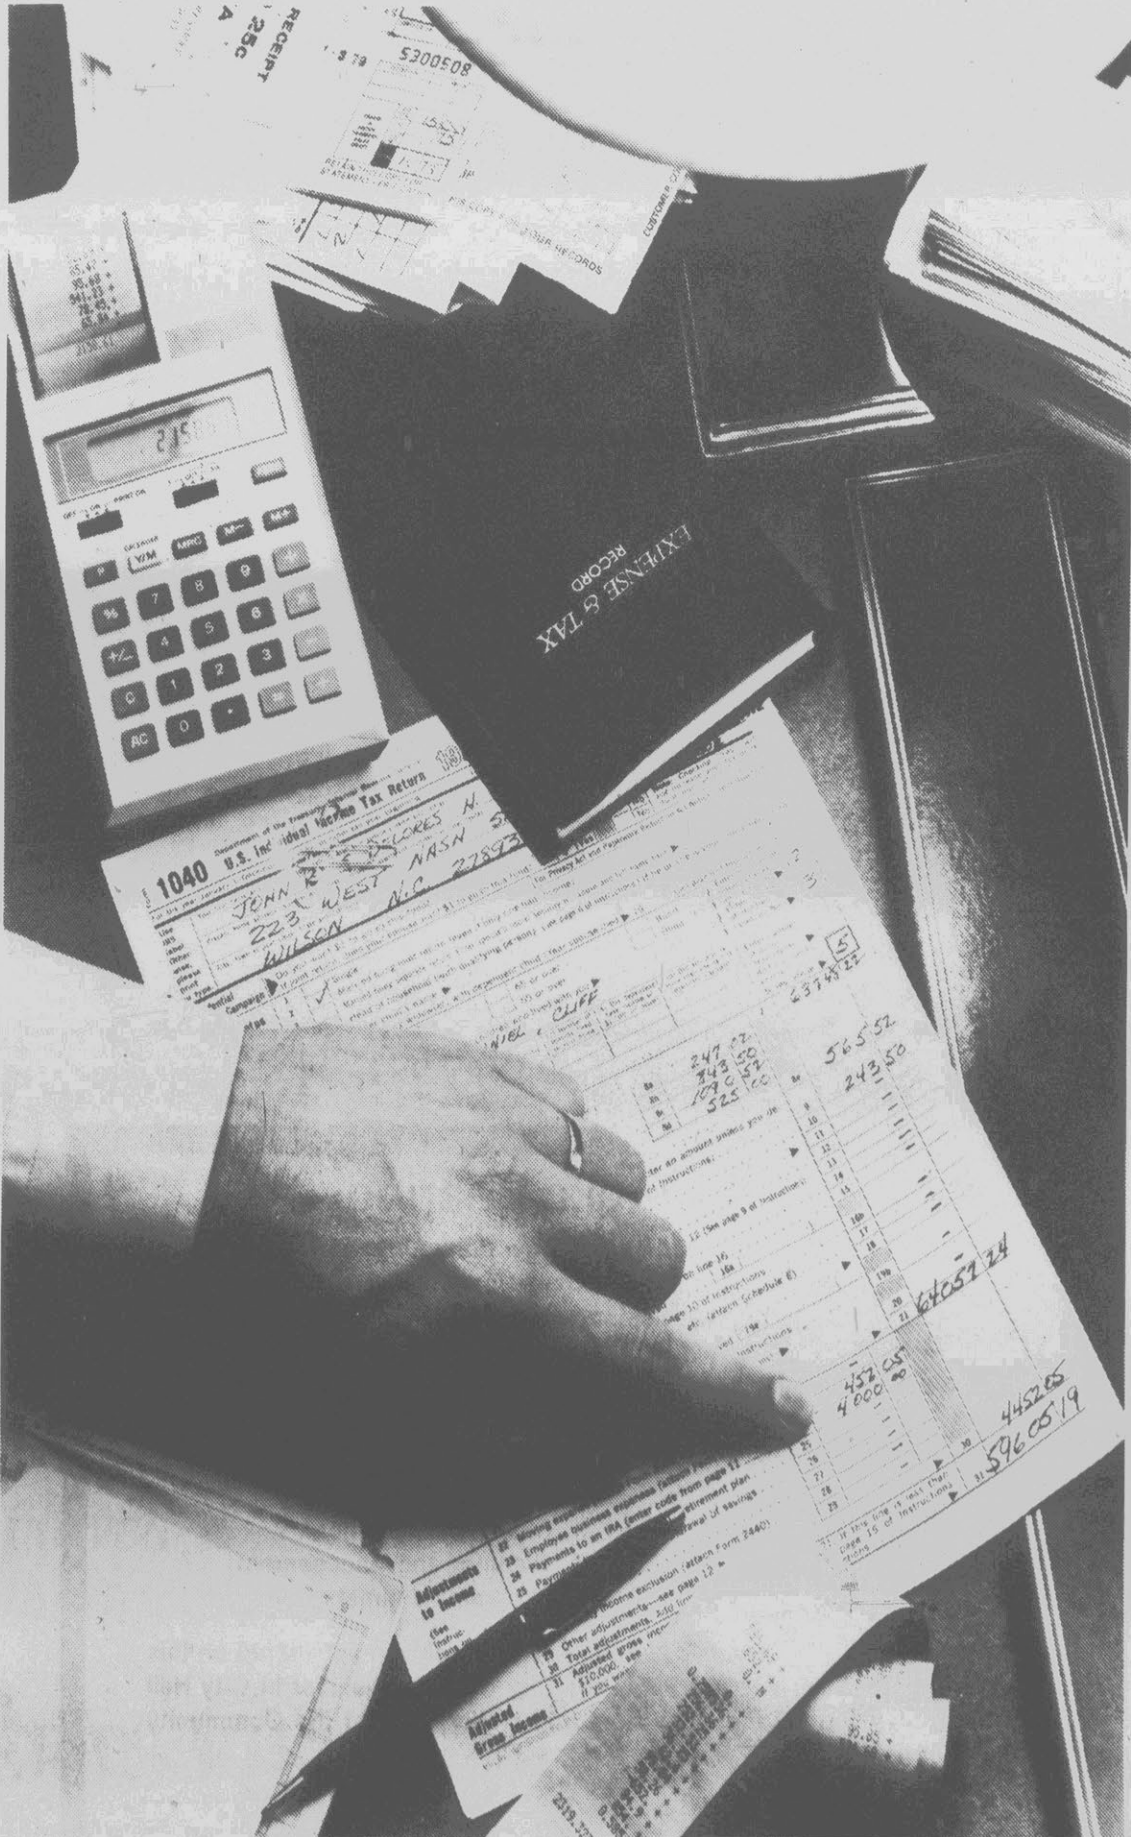

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds between 59½ and 70½ years of age, when you'll probably be in a lower income tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

YOU CAN BUILD UP ENOUGH IN YOUR IRA OVER THE YEARS TO RETIRE RICH.

If you start an IRA in your early thirties, a $2,000-a-year investment, with all the interest it earns, will turn into a really tidy sum by the time you're sixty-five. And even if you were born too soon to start that early or can't afford an investment that large, you'll still pile up a sizeable retirement fund.

Call or visit any BB&T office and get your IRA started before another day goes by. After all, how can you pass up a plan that gives you big bucks in the September of your life and a bigger refund check every April?

Kenneth T. Perkins, D.D.S.P.A.

ON TOOTH PICKS

The next sentence may surprise you: Toothpicks are okay! Not recommended to be used in public, they do have value in helping to keep teeth clean and gums healthy.

The history of toothpicks is rather interesting. They were used as early as 3500 B.C., in the form of twigs, reeds and pieces of grass.

A wealthy, ancient Greek would probably carry a ring with several impressive looking toothpicks dangling from it. These toothpicks might be made from gold, silver, ivory or ebony. Others were delicately carved or embedded with jewels. Dentists object to the abuse of toothpicks, not their use. They should be used gently or they will injure your gums. A dentist should really instruct you on how to use them.

A toothpick can be a lifesaver if you've just finished a steak and can't reach that maddening spot. A soft, flat wooden toothpick, not a bobby pin or sharp instrument, can free the debris stuck between your teeth and make you feel instantly more comfortable.

Egg Hunt Sat.

The annual Easter Egg hunt sponsored by the Greenville Recreation and Parks Department, originally scheduled for Sunday afternoon, March 27, was cancelled due to inclement weather.

The hunt has been rescheduled for 10:30 a.m. Saturday, to be held in three locations — Elm Street, Thomas Foreman, and South Greenville Parks. All Greenville children ages 2-12 are invited to take part and to bring along their Easter baskets. Special baskets will be given children in each age category who find a hidden golden egg.

Treatment Plant...

announced that the City Council has named the plant for the GUC director.

Reading from the council's resolution, Cox said Horne "has served the City of Greenville and its citizens with distinction as director of the Greenville Utilities Commission since September 1, 1968 ... has contributed considerable time, effort and leadership to guide" the commission "through the greatest growth period in its history," and "under his leadership and initiative, the City of Greenville has experienced great strides in the area of public utilities service due to his abiding sense of responsibility and effective implementation."

Continuing, Cox said that since Horne's many years of service have been "characterized by his dedication, diligence, devotion, integrity, and incomparable preception ... the City Council does hereby express its appreciation," by naming the new water treatment plant the Charles O'Hagan Horne Jr. Water Treatment Plant.

Horne, a Greenville native and graduate of N.C. State University, is responsible for the overall operations of the city's electric, water, sewer and natural gas systems which serve more than 25,000 customers.

He is a member of the board of directors of Electri-Cities of North Carolina, an agency representing some 72 cities in the state with municipal-owned electric systems and is a member of the board of directors of the North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency.

He was a member of the NCEMPA negotiating team that worked out the details for the agency's purchase of nine Carolina Power & Light Co. generating units from which Greenville and the other member cities now receive their electric power through the power agency, and is a member of the agency's rate advisory board.

Asia, Africa Life Quality To Be Subject

ECU News Bureau Traditions and quality of life in the developing nations of Asia and Africa will be explored in East Carolina University's Joint International Symposium Wednesday and Thursday.

The symposium theme is "Changing Human Values and the Quality of Life in Developing Countries." All sessions are open to the public.

Wednesday events include a 7 p.m. screening of films about South Asia in Bewster Building, room D-302.

The following speakers will be featured in Thursday daytime sessions, all in room 244 of Mendenhall Student Center:

Hon. Ranjan Mathai, first secretary of the Embassy of India, Washington, D.C., will speak about "Democracy, Political Development and Quality of Life in India" from 9:30-10:45 a.m.

Dr. Marilyn Waldman of Ohio State University will speak about "Islamic Traditions and Quality of Life in Asia and Africa" from 11 a.m. until 12:15 p.m.

Dr. Prabhu Datt Sharma of the Lineberger Center in Hickory will speak on "Gandhi's Legacy: Relevance for Developing Countries" from 2:30-3:15 p.m.

An evening session, set for 6:30 p.m. in Bewster Building room D-313, will feature a second presentation by Dr. Waldman entitled "Islamic Influences on Europe During the Medieval and Renaissance Period."

The symposium is sponsored by ECU's African and Asian Area Studies

Committees, the ECU Medieval and Renaissance Studies Program and the South Atlantic States Association for Asian and African Studies.

Additional information about the symposium is available from Dr. Marie Farr of the ECU College of Arts and Sciences, 757-6249, or Dr. Avtar Singh, 757-6162.

Dedication Will Be Held

DURHAM — A dedication ceremony for the opening of the Burroughs Wellcome Chemistry Laboratory at the North Carolina School of Science and Mathematics will take place at 11 a.m. Thursday in the school's assembly building.

The new laboratory has been constructed with the aid of a $150,000 grant from The Burroughs Wellcome Fund. Charles R. Eilber, director of the school, says the new science education addition will make facilities at NCSSM among the most modern available.

A highlight of the dedication ceremony will be an address by Dr. George Hitchings, president of The Burroughs Wellcome Fund, who will give a talk on careers in chemistry.

Before making any alterations or repairs to your home, contact the City Engineering and Inspections Department at 752-4137.

DR. JAMES CHASTEEN

Accreditation Visit To PCC Set

Pitt Community College will be visited by the Southern Association of Schools and Colleges (SACS) Reaffirmation of Accreditation Committee on May 10-13.

Dr. James Chasteen, president of John C. Calhoun State Community College in Decatur, Ala., has been named chairman of the Reaffirmation Visiting Committee. Dr. Chasteen will make a preliminary visit to PCC Tuesday, March 29 to go over details with PCC officials prior to the committee's visit.

Class Reunion Being Planned

The Rose High School class of 1963 will have a 20-year reunion meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at Jaycee Park in the recreation and parks building.

Plans for this year's class gathering will be discussed. Anyone who is unable to attend but is interested in further information should contact Charles Vincent at 756-7568.

He said all area Rose High classmates from 1963 are urged to attend.

Meets Tuesday

The Pitt County Board of Education will hold its regular meeting Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the third floor conference room of the Pitt County Office Building.

The meeting will be preceded by an executive session at 1 p.m.

Items on the agenda include a report on the 1984-85 budget process and a report on the needs assessment information.

'Dem Dawgs' Bite Heels

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — With a regional championship and a berth in the Final Four nailed down in Georgia's first try at the NCAA basketball championship, Coach Hugh Durham thinks his team merits some respect.

"They deserve a little attention because they've accomplished something this year," he said Sunday after the 18th-ranked Bulldogs surprised defending national champion North Carolina 82-77 in the East Regional final to qualify for the NCAA semifinals Saturday at Albuquerque, N.M.

Georgia, 24-9, goes up against 24-10 North Carolina State, another unlikely survivor from the 52 teams that began tournament play.

"I told them I had tickets to Albuquerque regardless, and it would be nice if the team came along," joked the 45-year-old mentor, whose 1971-72 Florida State team lost to UCLA in the NCAA finale.

Coincidentally, Durham and the Seminoles defeated Coach

Dean Smith's Tar Heels in the Final Four that year before going up against UCLA.

North Carolina, ranked No. 8, finished the season at 28-8.

Smith said "the book" on the Bulldogs was that they couldn't shoot from the outside. He said he feared the team's explosive fast break but expected to make up points on the inside game.

"But they did a real good job on (6-foot-9 Carolina center Sam) Perkins," he said. "And they scored from outside. In the stretch run, we had to score every time we had the ball. We didn't, but if we had it would have been a more interesting ball game," he said.

Georgia responded to Durham's invitation with near-perfect execution of his game plan: hit the outside shots which were supposedly absent from its arsenal, collapse on Perkins defensively and force the taller, slower Tar Heels into mistakes.

Forward James Banks scored 20 points, netting five of his seven field goals from the perimeter, and Georgia guards Gerald Crosby and Vern Fleming contributed 17 each, making up for the absence of 6-7 center Terry Fair, who picked up his fourth foul early in the second half and never re-entered the game.

"I've been in that situation before. Terry has been in foul trouble before, but this game meant more and I really wanted to do something when I came in," 6-6 sophomore Richard Corben said after scoring seven points, blocking two shots and picking up three rebounds in the last 18:08 of the game.

Durham said, "The reason he (Fair) didn't come back in is that we had the momentum going with the people we had in the game."

Georgia outshot North Carolina 56 percent to 49 percent.

The Tar Heels' Michael Jordan, an All-American in his sophomore season, led all scorers with 26 points, while teammates Brad Daugherty and Perkins added 15 and 14, respectively. Jim Braddock and Matt Doherty scored 10 each for North Carolina.

Until the game, Durham was glad the limelight was on higher-ranked teams. In back-to-back contests, Georgia whipped St. John's, the No. 3 team in the nation, and North Carolina. But he saw trouble looming when Fair got into foul trouble.

Instead, Georgia pulled away. At the time of the fourth foul, the Bulldogs led 41-40; nine minutes later, the lead was 60-51 after a pair of Banks free throws.

Georgia grabbed a 13-point lead at 70-57 on a 20-footer by Crosby with 4:28 to play and maintained double-digit margins from the foul line from that point on. The Bulldogs led 80-65 with 1:28 remaining, and time ran out on the pressing Tar Heels.

In the first half, the score was tied six times, and the lead changed hands 10, with neither team leading by more than two points until Lamar Heard hit two jumpers for a 23-19 Georgia advantage.

Georgia led 37-35 at halftime.

The Bulldogs finished in a four-way tie for fourth place in the Southeastern Conference and got into the NCAA playoffs only by winning the SEC tournament. Now Georgia owns a seven-game winning streak and its 24 victories are a school record.

Smith's Tar Heels had been in seven previous regional championship games — 1967, 1968, 1969, 1972, 1977, 1981 and 1982 — and had won all seven.

Pirate Golfers Finish In Palmetto Classic 14th

SANTEE COOPER, S.C. — Chris Perry's 139 for the 36-hole rain-delayed Palmetto Classic Golf Tournament led Ohio State to a 717 total to claim the title over the 18-team field.

Chris Kite of Wake Forest fired a 140 and Davis Love of North Carolina shot a 141.

Other team scores included: Clemson 722, Wake Forest 729, Virginia 732, South Carolina 736, Furman 738, North Carolina 740, Maryland 755, Eastern Kentucky 759 and East Tennessee State 760.

East Carolina finished the tourney in 14th place with a 774. David Dooley led the Pirates with a 36-hole total of 151, followed by Chris Czaja at 152, Roger Newsom at 153, Kelly Stimert 159, Don Sweeting at 160 and Jon Riddle at 164.

East Carolina will compete

April 8-10 at the University of North Carolina Invitational in Chapel Hill.

Green, Edwards Head Basketball Award List

Freshman Johnny Edwards was the only double winner, named the top newcomer and top rebounder. Edwards led the club in scoring and rebounding with 18.6 points and 8.4 rebounds. The Charlotte native was named to the ECAC-South five man all-league team.

The best defensive player award was given to Barry Wright. The sophomore from Norfolk typically drew the toughest assignment defensively and without question responded. The 6-5 guard/forward also won best defensive player his freshman season at ECU.

The most improved award

Five players off the 1982-83 East Carolina University team share in the awards announced today by the Pirate basketball program.

Senior co-captain Charles Green was named most valuable player. The 6-7 forward from Washington, D.C., averaged 11.7 points and 6.6 rebounds per game. But his importance to the team was most apparent during a 10-game stretch in which ECU was 4-6. The period of 11 games before the injury and the 15 games after it were all within a winning stretch, including 10 of the last 15. Green was named to the five-man all-ECAC-South Tournament team.

was won by Thom Brown. The senior co-captain from East Greenwich, R.I., more than doubled his playing time over last year, upped both his scoring and rebounding averages and played a major role in keeping the team together during the absence of Green.

Bruce Peartree, sophomore from Pantego, won the free throw shooting award by leading the club with 58 out of 68 attempts for an 85.6 percent mark.

East Carolina finished the initial campaign under head coach Charlie Harrison with a 16-13 record — the first winning season in three years.

going into the final 18 holes of the chase for a $126,000 first prize, the largest yet offered on the American tour.

Cook, 25, has a 210 total for three trips over the Players' Club course that has undergone a full week of criticism, often harsh and derisive, from some of the game's more established pros. Clampett, 22, who shot a third-round 70, is at 211.

Vance Heafner, 28, was next at 69-212. They were scheduled to play together in the final three some today.

"It's sort of deja vu," Cook said, "playing with Clampett."

Clampett agreed.

"We used to play together in the Porter Cup as amateurs, four years ago," he said.

Sigler, Moreno Represent N.C.

Debbie Sigler took first place and Kerri Moreno finished third in the Class II all-around competition at North Carolina State Championships this weekend and earned berths on the seven-member state team which will compete at the regional gymnastics championships.

Sigler's winning total of 68.10 was her best of the year. She placed first with a vault score of 17.90 and remained undefeated on the uneven parallel bars with a 17.45 performance. Her 17.30 score for floor exercise took second place.

Moreno posted an all-around score of 66.10. A 17.50 score gave her first place in the floor exercise event, while she placed third on the balance beam with 16.55.

Sigler and Moreno will compete against girls from seven other states at Southern Mississippi University April 22-23 at Hattiesburg in the Region VIII Championships.

In Class I competition, Peggy Becker finished third in the floor exercise with a score of 15.95 and fourth with a vault of 16.65. She finished eighth in the all-around standings with a 61.05.

Akeem Leads Houston To NCAA Semis

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Guy Lewis' team didn't sneak up on anybody this time.

A year ago, the Houston Cougars were the surprise of the NCAA Basketball Tournament, upsetting Tulsa and Missouri before bowing in the semifinals to eventual champion North Carolina.

But this time, everybody expected the high-scoring Cougars to be in the Final Four — and that's just where they are.

"We wanted to go to Albuquerque very bad," said Lewis after top-ranked Houston capitalized on a bruising inside game to overpower Villanova 89-71 Sunday for the Midwest Regional championship.

"Last year, nobody expected us to go to the Final Four, and it was a great feeling. This year, almost everybody expected us to, and that's even tougher. But it's still great."

The Cougars will take a 30-2 record and a 25-game winning streak into their semifinal game next Saturday against Louisville, 32-3, which thumped Kentucky 80-68 in overtime Saturday for the Midwest Regional title.

Lewis called the Cardinals, who also are making their second consecutive trip to the Final Four, a very good basketball team.

"They have quickness and great jumpers. But I'm concerned with Louisville's whole team, not just one aspect of their play," said Lewis. "They have great talent and a great coach (Denny Crum)."

Quick or not, the Cardinals may have their hands full with the taller Cougars, nicknamed Phi Slamma Jamma for their fondness for dunks and blocked shots.

Houston's dominance under the basket was the difference against No. 13 Villanova, 24-8, which shot only 34.1 percent from the floor in suffering its worst defeat of the season.

The Cougars boasted 10 dunks and 13 blocked shots against the Wildcats, who trailed 37-27 at halftime and never got closer. Houston had 12 of its blocks in the final 20 minutes and finished with a 47-43 edge in rebounds.

And no one stood taller than Akeem "The Dream" Olajuwon, the Cougars' 7-foot sophomore from Lagos, Nigeria, who was voted the regional's outstanding player.

The big center scored 20 points, snared 13 rebounds and jammed eight Villanova shots back into the Wildcats' faces. Olajuwon hit 10 of 11 shots from the floor, including five slams.

"I think it was my best game," said Olajuwon, who had 21 points, six rebounds and five blocks in Houston's 70-63 regional semifinal victory over Memphis State on Friday night. "I blocked more shots and got more rebounds," Senior forward Larry Micheaux was just as effective, scoring a season-high 30 points, crashing the boards for 12 rebounds and blocking four shots.

"I think this was one of the best games I've played," said Micheaux. "I have a lot of confidence in Akeem. We play great together. We back each other up on blocked shots."

Despite considerable evidence to the contrary, Villanova's senior center John Pinone claimed the inside presence of Olajuwon had little effect on the Wildcats' play.

"He wasn't intimidating at all," said Pinone, who hit seven of 17 shots. "I've been saying that all week long. We just didn't shoot the ball very well. We got it inside whenever we wanted. The shots just wouldn't fall."

"There were a few shots that I thought were goaltending, but it's not up to me to call them. But Olajuwon wasn't the difference in the game today."

"I don't see how anyone can say that," Lewis said in amazement after being told of Pinone's statement. "Of course his presence made a difference, blocking shots, making them change shots."

"I'll tell you something: He made a difference in the way I felt on the sidelines. I'm glad to have him on our side."

Villanova owned an 11-8 lead with 13½ minutes left in the first half, hitting five inside shots and a free throw. But Houston ran off the next 10 points — six by Olajuwon — to make it 18-11.

Dwayne McClain's baseline shot helped the Wildcats cut the lead to 22-20 at 5:24, but the Cougars answered with an 8-2 run and went into the dressing room ahead by 10 at halftime.

Houston, which fired away at a 58.2-percent clip from the field, removed all doubts about the outcome in the first five minutes of the second half, outscoring Villanova 16-6 to make it 53-33.

The Wildcats could come no closer than 10 the rest of the way.

"I was disappointed in the loss, but not to the point of being embarrassed," said Villanova Coach Rollie Massimino. "We played hard and never stopped trying to get back in the game."

Guard Michael Young added 20 points for Houston, while Pinone and forward Ed Pinckney scored 18 apiece for Villanova and McClain had 17.

"Talent-wise, they are the best team we've played this year," said Pinone. "They are going to be tough to beat in the Final Four. I think Louisville has the best chance of beating them. You've got to keep them off the boards to win."

Holmes Chants Way Through Title Defense

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — The fight was dragging and promoter-champion Larry Holmes thought it needed a little life.

So with about a half-minute left in the fifth round of his title defense against Lucien Rodriguez of France, Holmes let out a war whoop that would have made Tarzan proud.

"I was bored," Holmes said later after pitching a shutout with a unanimous 12-round decision over the European champion Sunday in a National Guard Armory.

"This guy doesn't talk English. I couldn't talk to him. I wanted to put some excitement in the crowd."

It worked. The fans started chanting "Lar-ry, Lar-ry," saluting the man who had promised to bring the heavyweight championship back to this town where he began his pro career and fulfilled the pledge, even though he had to promote the fight himself.

Don King, Holmes' regular promoter, didn't want the Rodriguez fight now with the champ set for a May 20 defense of the World Boxing Council crown against Tim Witherspoon. But Holmes was determined to have it anyway.

"I figured I got as much money as any promoter so why can't I do it myself?" Holmes said. And if it required pumping up the fans with some extracurricular howling in mid-fight, he proved he could provide that, too.

King must have been proud. Holmes certainly was.

Ten years ago, he earned $63 in his first pro fight here and he remembers his roots. He promised to come back one day and he did.

"I just wanted to give a fight to the people I love," said Holmes, who lives in Easton, Pa., about 85 miles south of here. "I wanted to do something for the city."

IOC Cracks Down On Eligibility

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The International Olympic Committee is expected to crack down on professionals in soccer and ice hockey between now and the 1984 Olympic Games.

The IOC's eligibility commission, headed by Willi Daume of Germany, will meet the federations controlling the two sports and will tell them their present requirements for eligibility will not do.

"Nobody who has been a professional may compete in the Olympic Games," Daume told a news conference Sunday after the IOC had debated the eligibility problem over two days at its session here.

"That was always the rule of the Olympic Games, and it has not changed."

Daume spoke of the bizarre situation in soccer, where the qualifying rounds of the 1984 Olympic tournament have already started and professionals have played with some European teams.

"We had no time for a meeting with FIFA (world soccer federation) before this session of the IOC," Daume said. "So FIFA has started it off under its own rules."

Daume added: "I know professionals are playing, and we have had no control over this so far. But we are to meet FIFA and see that the Olympic rules are enforced by the time we reach the final stages of the tournament at Los Angeles next year."

The German IOC veteran, now nearing 70, who played in the basketball tournament at the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, said problems in ice hockey mostly affect Canada and the United States.

"The Canadian and American hockey federations allow professionals to be reinstated as amateurs," Daume said. "We cannot allow it in the Olympics."

The same rules applied to the last Winter Games at Lake Placid in 1980, and they did not stop the United States winning the gold medal. The U.S. team of young players trained for six months and defeated the Soviet Union in the biggest upset of the Games.

The IOC broadened its eligibility bylaws in 1981 to give the sports federations more flexibility in deciding their own eligibility formulas. But they have to conform to the basic rule that once you a professional you cannot take part in the Olympic Games.

The 26 federations involved in the Summer and Winter Games were required to report to the IOC on their eligibility proposals. Only soccer and ice hockey failed to win approval.

The IOC accepted all the International Amateur Athletic Federation's controversial plans for permit meets, with participation money to be paid to national associations for setting up trust funds for the athletes.

Ashwini Kumar of India was elected a vice-president of the IOC — the first member from his country to fill such a position.

Richard Pound of Canada and Major Sylvio Padilha were elected to the executive board. Pound, 41, is one of the youngest men ever to serve on the board.

Long Takes Wolfpack Open Wrestling Title

RALEIGH — Mike Long captured the championship of the Wolfpack Open Wrestling Tournament at N.C. State Saturday, while three other D.H. Conley teammates also placed.

Madison-Mayodan, another reigning state champion. Rounding out the Conley group in the tournament, Gerald Harper finished third at 198.

Long won his title at 188-pounds, and it marked the third straight championship at the Wolfpack Open for him.

William Bridgett took second place in the 170-pound class, losing only to Jay Stainback, the defending state high school champion from Sanderson.

Stacy McCarter also finished second, in the heavyweight division, losing only to Jon Bullins of

ECU Freshmen Excel At Florida Relays

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — East Carolina University freshman Craig White's winning time of 13.93 in the 110 high hurdles at the Florida Relays Saturday fell just .01 off the national qualifying time for the event.

Erskine Evans placed third in the 100 meters with a time of 10.73, while the winning time was 10.71.

The mile relay team of freshmen Eddie Bradley, Reuben Pierce, Willie Fuller and junior Ray Dickerson placed third with a time of 3:12.07. They qualified Friday with a time of 3:11.26.

"That's an outstanding time for a group of freshmen; they're coming on well," said ECU coach Bill Carson.

The 4 X 100 and 4 X 200 relay teams qualified for the finals at the meet but were forced to withdraw as Chris Brooks was spiked on an exchange.

The Pirates will compete Saturday in the Duke Invitational at Durham.

Cale Celebrates With Coke Win

HAMPTON, Ga. (AP) — Cale Yarborough celebrated his 43rd birthday by capturing the Coca-Cola 500 Grand National stock car race, which was nothing new for the veteran who is nearing the $4 million mark in earnings.

"All I know is today is my birthday and this is a pretty good present," said Yarborough, who received $33,300 for his triumph Sunday at Atlanta International Raceway, increasing his career earnings to $3,898,989.

Twice before, Yarborough has won races on his birthday — last year at Rockingham and in 1981 at the Atlanta raceway.

The Timmonsville, S.C., driver, in a Chevrolet Monte Carlo, swept past Benny Parsons with only 25 miles remaining to capture his 76th career victory while winning this race for the sixth time.

It also marked one of the best starts for Yarborough, who has won two of the three events he has entered this year. He won the Daytona 500 and was leading at Rockingham two weeks ago when Neil Bonnett's car crashed into Yarborough's vehicle with 42 laps to go.

Yarborough's winning time Sunday averaged 124.055 mph over the 328-lap, 1.522-mile oval in the race which was marred by seven caution flags for 62 laps. In all, 16 cars in the field of 41 failed to finish.

Yarborough led on four occasions for a total of 77 laps before taking charge with 17 laps left.

Parsons had taken the lead from Bonnett with about 40 miles left, but relinquished the lead to Yarborough a short while later before blowing an engine with six laps to go.

Bonnett finished second, 1.5 seconds behind Yarborough, but earned $34,530. His winnings exceeded Yarborough's because of a $13,000 bonus for being the lap-leader. He led

Martina Reconfirms Top Ranking With Slims Win

NEW YORK (AP) — Respect was what Martina Navratilova wanted. Respect is what she got — along with the $80,000 first-place prize, reconfirmation of her No. 1 ranking and another tennis title.

"I'd been hearing all week and seeing how well Chris (Evert Lloyd) had been playing and hearing how determined she was," Navratilova said. "Some players were picking her to beat me for the match."

"I think I deserved a little bit more respect than I was getting because I really had been dominating, been beating everybody."

On Sunday, Navratilova added another victory, a for 83 laps.

Yarborough, despite starting from the 22nd position, was in contention the entire race.

"I didn't like it (the 22nd position), but it really doesn't matter where you start. It's where you finish. I've started from further back before and won," Yarborough said.

"I lost at Rockingham at my last start, so I realized I can't win them all, but I'd like to win the rest of them," said Yarborough who said the Atlanta track was one of his favorites.

"I won my first super speedway race here in 1967, and I enjoy it, although it's a tough, old racetrack. You've got to stay tough to beat it, and I'm that," he said.

Buddy Baker, in a Ford, finished third followed by Joe Ruttman, in a Chevrolet.

Richard Petty was fifth in a Pontiac.

Pole-sitter Geoff Bodine was the first to drop out with engine trouble after leading the first 16 laps. He was followed shortly by defending champion Darrell Wal

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—East-West vulnerable, four clubs.

as South you hold:
♥KJ72 ♦9542 ♠A10765

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South

1 ♥ Dble Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—With your hand, you have no reason to suspect you can beat any heart contract below the game level, especially since your trumps are in front of the bidder. Partner has asked you to bid your best suit, so oblige. Bid two clubs. Since it is impossible to evaluate how useful your king of hearts, or your spade void, is going to be, you can't afford to jump.

Q.2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQJ63 ♥92 ♦8 ♣AK1076

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 3 ♣ Pass
4 ♣ Pass 4 ♥ Pass
5 ♣ Pass 5 ♦ Dble ?

What action do you take?

A.—There is a conventional bid to handle this situation. Redouble. This tells partner that you have second-round control of the suit and that he needn't fear any diamond losers if he is interested in a grand slam.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠A952 ♥974 ♦5 ♣KJ63

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North

1 ♠ Pass 1 NT 2 NT
Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—First, partner's two no trump bid can't be natural — if he expects to make eight tricks at no trump, he would have doubled West's one no trump response. Therefore, it must be the unusual no trump, requesting a takeout for the minor suits. In that event, you have a fine hand for partner, almost enough to jump to five clubs. But we think you should give partner a bit of leeway and bid

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♦754 ♥A42 ♦Q984 ♠A52

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South

1 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—This is very tough. Since you should deduct a point for such a flat hand, you are not worth a two-over-one response. Therefore, the choice narrows down to one no trump or a raise to two spades with three low trumps. We prefer the latter, because with our maximum we want to make as encouraging a bid as possible.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK4 ♥AJ10 ♦J985 ♣AQ4

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East

1 ♠ Dble Pass 1 NT
Dble Pass 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—Consider the auction. Partner could not take any action over West's takeout and your double of one no trump showed a strong hand. Yet partner was not prepared to defend. He must have very little, so don't get out of your depth. You have a very sound pass of two spades.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♥AJ8542 ♦K109642 ♣J

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South

1 ♠ 2 ♣ Pass ?
* preemptive

What action do you take?

A.—We hope you are not suffering from a fixation that you are the Greatest American Hero and that you must dash to partner's rescue. For his vulnerable preemptive bid partner probably has a suit better than either of yours, and you have some useful cards for him. Pass, before you really get your side into trouble.

MARRIED — Harrison

Ford, star of such swash-buckling movies as "Raiders of the Lost Ark", has married the screenwriter of "E.T., the Extra-Terrestrial", a spokeswoman for the actor said over the weekend. Ford and Melissa Matheson were quietly married in Santa Monica Superior Court on March 14, said Pat McSweeney. (AP Laserphoto)

Emphasis Given Authenticity In 'Thorn Birds'

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — It's

safe to say that "The Thorn Birds" is the only production ever to employ consultants for both religion and shearing.

Father Terry Sweeney, a Jesuit priest from Los Angeles, coached Richard Chamberlain in the role of Father Ralph de Bricassart, whose love of God is tested by Rachel Ward's Meggie Cleary.

Charlie Swaim Jr. schooled several cast members in the rigorous practice of sheep-clipping. The realistic results are apparent tonight in an exciting shearing contest during the second installment of the 10-hour miniseries.

Authenticity and attention to detail are trademarks of the work from David Wolper and Stan Margulies, who produced "The Thorn Birds" but are best known for their historic "Roots."

"Thorn Birds" was slightly easier than "Roots," says Margulies. "In 'Roots' we were inventing the form. We had to go by instinct. Now we know how much physical energy is necessary, so we scheduled in some two-day breaks."

In its series programming, ABC is a leader in insignificant television. But the network knows its way around memorable long-form broadcasts. "Roots," the top-rated miniseries, was a sociological masterpiece. Last month's "Winds of War," which was not produced by Wolper and Margulies, ranks as the No. 2 miniseries.

"ABC has a better understanding of the miniseries experience," says Margulies. "It's more than just money. If money was the answer then Ted Turner would be William S. Paley."

Margulies says "The Thorn Birds" cost $21 million to make, which is about twice the cost of a typical theatrical film, yet more than five times longer. A miniseries producer has to know how to economize.

When looking for the film's major location, a sheep farm in Australia, Margulies chose the Simi Valley outside Los Angeles. The Simi Valley was used by Steven Spielberg for "E.T."

Margulies says that shooting in Australia would have added $2 million to the budget for housing and transportation alone. And why film the Vatican in Rome, when the Los Angeles City Hall offered a similar look at bargain-basement prices?

RADIO GUESTS

City Manager Gail Meeks announced that the guests on the "City Hall Notes" radio program this week will be Sammy Mills of the transit division and Pat Bundy of the police department.

Mills will discuss GREAT bus programs and special transit promotions, and Bundy will talk about police identification services.

The program is aired each Tuesday and Thursday at 6:30 p.m. on WOOW Radio.

The production's largest single expense was the construction of the Drogheda sheep farm. It cost $2 million, and part of the 12-building set gets burned to a crisp tonight in a fire sequence, which took three nights to film.

While an Australian farm was manufactured, native animal life was harder to create. Southern California is not known for kangaroos. Just like ABC's insistence on monkeys in "Roots" to authenticate Africa, Margulies thought a kangaroo hopping about would put an Australian stamp on "The Thorn Birds."

One kangaroo was seen in the first episode. What you didn't see, when the cameras finished shooting, was this thespian trouper immediately keeling over from the heat.

Sheep also are alien to Southern California, and 1,500 were rented. "It was more sheep than I ever hope to see again," says Margulies. "They don't take direction well."

One achievement of this miniseries is that you couldn't tell.

The few funny moments in tonight's "Foot in the Door," a new CBS comedy about a widower (Harold Gould) sowing his wild oats, occur early.

Jonah Foot's wife has just died after 40 years of suffocating him in marriage. Tin cans trail from his car, along with a sign that reads: "Just Deceased." Then, after burying the battleaxe, he says: "Let's just hope she doesn't have a crowbar."

But the premise of an old geezer moving in with his son and daughter-in-law in New York gets tiresome very quickly.

If CBS believed otherwise, "Foot in the Door" would not debut on a night when ABC is showing "The Thorn Birds."

Kicks Up Heels After Reviews

NEW YORK (AP) — Natalia Makarova, who made a giant leap from ballet to Broadway to star in the musical "On Your Toes," says she was so scared she really wanted to run away from it all about the time rehearsals began.

But now the 42-year-old performer is kicking up her heels because of reviews praising her comic talent and sexy dancing in the revival of the 1936 Rodgers & Hart musical.

The prima ballerina says in this week's issue of "People" magazine that she hasn't forgotten her first love, ballet, and this summer will appear at the Metropolitan Opera with the Roland Petit company.

SURPRISE! SURPRISE! — Carol Burnett, seated at left, in the middle of taping an episode of "All My Children" for ABC-TV, on which she is a guest star, is surprised by the appearance of Elizabeth Taylor wearing charwoman costume Friday in New York.

Miss Taylor showed up unexpectedly during the taping, and the producers allowed her to don the costume and do her surprise walk-on, catching Miss Burnett completely off guard. (AP Laserphoto)

Billy Joe Seeking Country Comeback

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Billy Joe Royal hit the top of the charts in the 1960s with "Down In The Boondocks." Now, almost two decades later, he finds himself living those words.

Where he once played the concert halls of New York, London and Las Vegas, Royal now appears in small clubs in small towns around the South.

Even more troubling than his 13-year absence from the record charts is the approach of middle age, he said recently while appearing in this east Georgia city. At 39, his hair is graying, the wrinkles are deeper and he figures his days as a rock 'n' roller are numbered.

To breathe new life into his career, Royal is turning to the country pop field, working with Nashville producer Bob Montgomery toward a possible comeback.

"I don't like to use the word 'comeback.' It sounds like I've been in a home somewhere," said Royal.

"But when you haven't had a hit record in 14 years, I guess there's no other word to describe what I'm trying to do."

"John Lennon was right when he wanted to leave the Beatles back in 1969," he said. "Lennon said he didn't want to be a 40-year-old parody of himself, and I know exactly what he means. It's silly for a man my age to be jumping up and down like a teen-ager every night."

'Making Deals', But No Movies

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Peter Fonda says Hollywood isn't making movies anymore, it's making deals.

As keynote speaker at the fifth annual River City Film Conference in Omaha, the 44-year-old son of the late actor Henry Fonda criticized Hollywood studio executives for what he describes as the dearth of quality films being produced today in the United States.

It's more difficult than ever to make good films in Hollywood because the men running the studios don't have film backgrounds, Fonda said in his speech Saturday. "Agents make deals. Lawyers make conference calls. Nobody makes films," he said.

Such a system all but shelved his own 1979 film, "Wanda Nevada," Fonda said.

Modern Lab Facility

Lab technician Joe Hudson takes a water sample for testing at the new laboratory. The outlets provide sampling at the various stages of treatment.

Operations Center

A modern control center is housed in the main building at the new water treatment plant. Here the controls provide complete automation of the plant processes, monitoring of levels in tanks, pumping throughout the facility. The computer displays the information in color-graphics form on a monitor.

Cooperative Education Workshop Set
ECU News Bureau

Employers and educators will meet here Wednesday for a regional workshop on participation in post-secondary cooperative education programs.

The workshop at Mendenhall Student Center is one of three meetings across the state sponsored by the N.C. Cooperative Education Association. Dr. Betsy Harper of the ECU office of cooperative education is eastern region coordinator for NCCEA.

The program includes an overview of cooperative education and a panel discussion by employers, educators and students discussing the benefits which may accrue from cooperative education participation.

Also, discussion groups will be held for employers, educators from two-year colleges and educators from four-year universities and colleges, concluding with summary reports.

Clifford Swain, dean of students at Craven Community

College, New Bern, is the luncheon speaker for the workshop discussing "Attitudes."

Heavy Damage In Collisions
An estimated $2,100 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Officers said a car driven by Sidney Raymond Spain of 402 Highland Ave., ran off the road at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and St. Andrews Drive about 2:25 a.m. and collided with a sign and lights in the yard of the Pitt County Farm Bureau building, causing an estimated $800 damage to the car and $500 damage to the Farm Bureau property.

Spain was reported injured in the collision.

An estimated $400 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 4:52 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 40 feet east of the 14th Street intersection.

Drivers involved were identified as Herman Claud Nichols of Route 1, Raleigh, and William Bernard Myers of Raleigh.

Chickens Are Stolen
Police said five cases of chickens, valued at $154, were taken from a storage room at Spain's Foodland at 1414 Charles St. Friday night or Saturday morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves removed a padlock from the storage room door to gain entrance. The incident was reported at 9:20 a.m. Saturday.

Tools Taken From Workshop
Greenville police are investigating the theft of an estimated $768 worth of tools from a workshop at 1311 North Overlook Drive.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the theft was reported at 8:24 a.m. Saturday. He said the tools were taken from the workshop, located behind the home of Julius Linwood Stoneham.

Break-In Reported At Grocery
Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a break-in at Adam's Grocery at 1701 South Pitt St. discovered by officers at 3:42 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves forced open a rear door and took $2 in pennys, a $500 television, $80 worth of postage stamps, $18 worth of cigarettes and $404 worth of beer, wine, meat and butter.

Wet Day For County Sunday

An ark or two would have been just the thing to get around in Sunday as Pitt County once again got wet. Grey skies — alternately drizzled and dumped most of the day and night, soaking already soaked to capacity land.

But Saturday's respite from rain may have kept the Tar River from rising. This morning at 8 a.m. the Tar level was recorded at 17.0 feet, down 8 inches from the Friday morning level of 17.8. The temperature was 58 degrees Fahrenheit.

Superintendent Malcom Green of Greenville Utilities said no electrical outages or problems from falling trees were reported Sunday. "We just got another thorough soaking," he said.

Weather more typical of spring will cover the area today and through midweek according to the National Weather service. Lots of sunshine and warmer temperatures ranging from the mid 30's to 60's are predicted to last through Thursday due largely to a high pressure front moving in to replace the cold front that has been dictating cool, wet weather.

Rose Senior Is Recipient

Mahlon Alan Dickens, a senior at J.H. Rose High School, has been named the recipient of a freshman scholarship at North Carolina State University for the 1983-84 academic year. The award is valued at $1,000.

MAHLON ALAN DICKENS

Winners of freshmen-year scholarships are selected on the basis of academic excellence and potential academic performance at NCSU.

Dickens, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mahlon Bolton Dickens of Greenville, was a Morehead Scholarship nominee and an alternate for admission to the N.C. School of Math and Science. He attended Governor's School in 1982.

He plans to study pre-med courses at NCSU. The scholarship he received is among 55 awarded this year though NCSU's Merit Awards program.

Two Collisions Are Reported

An estimated $5,200 damage resulted from two traffic collisions investigated Saturday by Greenville police.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 12:27 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and Riverbluff Drive, involving cars driven by Nesh Chhaganlal Patel of 2725 South Memorial Drive and Thomas Christian Miller of 47 Riverbluff Apartments.

Officers, who charged Miller with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety, estimated damage at $3,000 to the Patel car, $500 to the Miller vehicle, and $400 to a fence at the Putt Putt Golf Course.

Vehicles driven by Benjamin Cuttle Peele of Williamston, Bernice K. Moseby of 111 Lee St., and Lee Roy Hardee of Route 9, Greenville, collided about 1:20 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, a half-mile south of the Red Banks Road intersection.

Police set damage at $400 to the Peele car, $600 to the Moseby auto and $300 to the Hardee truck.

Recital Set For Tonight

A dual faculty recital by soprano Antonia Dalapas and baritone Ed Glenn is being presented at 8:15 tonight in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall. The two will be accompanied by faculty member Dr. Everett Pitman, pianist.

This recital is a re-scheduling for an earlier recital date that had to be cancelled. The event is free and open to the public.

Their program will include the Count and Susanna duet from Mozart's opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," and a scene and duet from Verdi's "La Triavata." Faculty tenor Charles Moore will join the two in one selection, the trio and finale from Donizetti's opera, "Rita." The second half of the program will feature a selection of American popular music.
