DOT Program Accepted By Pitt Board

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday voted to accept the Department of Transportation's secondary road improvement program for the coming year, which proposes to spend $573,189 on six major projects and a number of minor ones.

Heading the list of improvements is the paving of 1.41 miles of SR 1534, from the end of the present pavement to SR 1735, at a cost of $127,900. The road, known as the Old Pactolus Road, will serve Greenville's new sewage plant site North of the Tar River and East of the Eastern by-pass.

Other projects include the paving of 1.3 miles of SR 1778 (the Galloway Road), from SR 1760 to SR 1777 for $67,300; paving 1.3 miles of SR 1562 (the Alvin Farm Road) from N.C. 33 to the dead end for $135,000; acquire right-of-way, grade, drain and stabilize .6 mile of SR 1742 from SR 1700 to the dead end for $35,000; widen 1.6 miles of SR 1517 from 16 feet to 20 feet from N.C. 33 to SR 1544 for $63,900; and widen 1 mile of SR 1418 from 16 feet to 20 feet from N.C. 33 to SR 1417 for $50,800.

Other projects include spot stabilization of 16 secondary roads at an estimated cost of $86,000.

George Harper of Kinston, a member of the Board of Transportation, outlined the projects for commissioners.

Harper, who said Pitt is "one of the most progressive counties in North Carolina," reported that work on the U.S. 264 project is continuing on schedule.

In other business Monday, commissioners adopted a resolution supporting House Bill 426, which would add 1 percent to the state-wide sales tax. If approved by the General Assembly, the state would return 50 percent of the increased revenue to county and municipal governments on the same basis that the present 1 percent local option sales tax is now distributed.

In a written report to the board, Pitt County School Superintendent Eddie West said construction work on the Ayden Middle School has been delayed because of the "water saturated land," and said architects are "running behind" on the Chicod lunchroom project, although "we anticipate letting bids in May, with construction being completed by mid-November."

West also said Research Triangle Institute consultants have been meeting with staff members of both the Pitt County and Greenville school systems and "excellent information is being shared." He added that optical scanner forms on each child, designed to gather data for the merger study, have been completed and returned to RTI.

French-Soviet Relations Have Reached New Low

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — France's expulsion of an estimated 47 suspected Soviet spies has plunged Franco-Soviet relations to their lowest point since the French elected a leftist government two years ago.

The Soviet Embassy called Tuesday's expulsions an unjustified political act and said France would have to bear the negative consequences. Neither country would say exactly how many Soviets left France on Tuesday aboard a special plane sent from Moscow, but the French Interior Ministry said the expelled officials had tried to steal military and technical secrets.

Ironically, the biggest spy sweep in French history was carried out by a Socialist-Communist government.

French commentators of both left and right said President Francois Mitterrand had timed the sweep carefully to increase his prestige at an economic summit meeting scheduled in June with six other Western leaders in Williamsburg, Va.

Government spokesman Max Gallo told reporters after a Cabinet meeting today that the expulsions demonstrate France it is not a "soft belly" in Europe for the theft of military secrets.

"France is applying on its territory that which others apply with much more rigor on their own territory," Gallo said. "As much as espionage is a current practice, it is also a rule that he who is caught is punished."

There has been little love lost between Moscow and Paris since Socialist party leader Mitterrand's presidential victory in May 1981 ended 23 years of conservative rule in France.

Moscow had publicly supported the failed re-election bid of Mitterrand's conservative predecessor, President Giscard d'Estaing.

Giscard had pursued a policy of dialogue with the Soviet Union in hopes of lessening international tensions. He irked the Western allies by holding a surprise summit meeting with the late Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev in Warsaw in May 1980 — five months after Soviet troops moved into Afghanistan.

Mitterrand took office a year later and immediately declared the presence of Soviet troops in Afghanistan an obstacle to normal relations with Moscow. He also was an early and outspoken critic of the December 1981 military crackdown in Poland.

But the Soviets have been most incensed by Mitterrand's stance on the European missile crisis.

Although France is not a member of NATO's military wing, Mitterrand has strongly supported the alliance's decision to begin deploying U.S.-built Pershing 2 and cruise nuclear missiles in Europe this year if the Soviets refuse to withdraw their new SS-20 missiles from East bloc countries.

Mitterrand also has repeatedly rejected Soviet suggestions that France's independent nuclear force be counted along with NATO's missiles in arms reduction negotiations.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda said in Moscow's first detailed analysis of Mitterrand in October 1981 that the Kremlin was deeply concerned about his views on nuclear weapons.

Pravda noted that despite earlier pledges to work for the dismantling of military blocs, Mitterrand and Premier Pierre Mauroy had instead "rejected the policy of neutralism and in every way possible stressed their allegiance to the Atlantic Alliance."

The Pravda article also criticized Mitterrand for failing to condemn U.S. plans to produce the neutron warhead.

The Housing Authority hopes to proceed soon with modernization work in Kearney Park, an 18-year-old housing project, following the submission of blueprints and specifications to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Ken Noland, director of operations, said Tuesday night that a note sale was scheduled for today and with funding expected to be in hand in the near future, the modernization project should be ready to move along.

Noland said blueprints and other documents were received Tuesday from the Dick Bradfield architectural firm in Atlanta and they are being forwarded to HUD for consideration.

Under the $1.1 million emergency funding package approved by HUD, approximately 90 percent of the items projected in the authority's initial modernization application will be covered. The authority has voted to designate some $260,000 from its own reserves to complete the Kearney Park work, which will involve interior and exterior refurbishing of the 160-unit project.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported that the authority has received $100,000 from HUD as an advance payment to begin purchasing parcels in the West Meadowbrook area for the construction of 40 units of new conventional housing units.

Laney said the acquisition of one parcel on Taylor Street has been closed and three other purchases are expected to be completed soon. Options are being prepared on additional sites in Meadowbrook, he said. Some of the units will be placed on community development parcels purchased from the city.

Commissioners approved a revision to the authority's occupancy policy, eliminating a "three refusal rule" that allowed applicants at the top of the housing waiting list to turn down up to three available units before accepting a project location. The revision, as recommended by HUD, reduces the number of refusals allowed to one and stipulates that if the available unit is rejected, the applicant will move to the bottom of the waiting list.

Laney said the revision should help applicants for housing move through the waiting list quicker. He said that HUD feels some of the projects are out of balance racially and the revised policy could help to improve the mix of black and white tenants.

The director reported that Section 8 program activity remains stable with 96 of the 100 units authorized under the existing housing segment leased and 107 units leased under the moderate rehabilitation program. All 60 units in the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly are occupied.

Laney said he has been asked to serve on a committee that will study energy efficiency in public housing in North Carolina. He said Michael Stegman, a professor of planning in the UNC Center for Urban Studies, is setting up a statewide committee of city managers and housing directors to study the energy situation. Commissioners endorsed Laney's membership on the study board.

Transfers resulted in two temporary vacancies in March among the 702 units operated by the authority, according to Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs. She reported that average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $91.97; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $103.43;

N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $95.60; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $109.23; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $75.95; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $80.83. She said the overall average was $92.84.

Mrs. Streeter said that Darlene Gardner, a senior at D.H. Conley High School, has been nominated for the annual $1,000 scholarship offered by the Carolinas Council of Housing and Re-development Officials. She said Miss Gardner resides with her family in one of the authority's Section 8 housing units here.

Practice Day For A Walk In Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla.

(AP) — Challenger's astronauts, awakened by a sultry love song, plunged into a day of tests and experiments today, including a dress rehearsal for Thursday's space walk. Specialists on the ground said they expect to salvage the satellite ejected from the shuttle early in the mission.

"Teach Me, Tiger," sung by the sexy-voiced April Stevens, was the wakeup music beamed to the orbiting ship by Mission Control in Houston. Capsule communicator Mary Cleave asked if they were reading and got this reply: "Loud and clear."

The astronauts were also relieved that they were not to blame for the problems encountered by the communications satellite.

The space travelers had asked several times if anything they had done had caused the rocket failure that sent the 2½-ton payload tumbling into the wrong orbit after they ejected it from Challenger's cargo bay Monday night.

Mission Control, after analyzing the problem, assured them Tuesday night they were not at fault.

"It was a rocket problem; it was definitely not a crew problem, and you're being congratulated on the job you did," capsule communicator Guy Gardner radioed the orbiting ship.

"That's good news," replied astronaut Story Musgrave, who more than the others was responsible for the checkout and deployment of the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite.

Musgrave and his crewmates, commander Paul J. Weitz, Karol J. Bobko and Donald H. Peterson, also were pleased to learn that ground controllers had regained control of TDRS and had successfully commanded through radio signals all of its systems into operation.

Musgrave asked if the experts were optimistic about moving the payload out of its egg-shaped orbit into its intended stationary outpost 22,300 miles high.

"They're looking at using the on-board fuel to boost it up to geosynchronous orbit," Gardner said. "It looks like they'll be able to do it and that we'll have a good TDRS for future shuttle missions."

TDRS is the largest, most complex and most expensive communications satellite ever built, but to be effective it must be in an orbit matching the spin of Earth. It is designed to serve as a space switchboard between the Earth and as many as 26 satellites, including the shuttle fleet.

Challenger, the second ship in that fleet, continued its near-flawless performance. There were only a few minor problems, and Gary Coen, one of the flight directors, said: "Challenger is a super vehicle."

Claim Sabotage Of High Tech Shipment

BERN, Switzerland (AP)

— American high technology equipment shipped to the Soviet Union via Switzerland and France in violation of U.S. regulations was sabotaged by Western agents before it reached Moscow, a Swiss newspaper reported today.

In a report from Moscow, the Bern newspaper Der Bund said Western intelligence services "cooperating with French middlemen" had followed the equipment on its way through Europe and sabotaged it en route.

"All important parts had been removed or changed" before the equipment was unpacked in the Soviet Union, the newspaper said, quoting "reliable" but unidentified informants.

"Two French middlemen received allegedly $1 million for scrap," the paper said.

The paper said the equipment, needed for manufacturing micro-processors, had been sold by a U.S. firm to a Swiss importer, Favag, which then sent it to France via a Geneva firm. The newspaper said the equipment then was shipped to the Soviet Union but did not specify how.

Hotline gets things done for you. Call 752-1336 and tell your problem or your sound-off or mail it to Hotline, The Daily Reflector, Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Because of the large numbers received, Hotline can answer and publish only those items considered most pertinent to our readers. Names must be given, but only initials will be used.

PAID ASSISTANCE NOT NECESSARY

Fred Lilley, manager of the Greenville Social Security office, has asked Hotline to let it be known that a company is canvassing North Carolina marriage and birth records and offering to change newlyweds' names on Social Security rolls and obtain Social Security numbers for newborn babies for a fee, usually $10. He said this company is offering nothing that cannot be done by the individual himself without charge simply by visiting or contacting by mail the Social Security office and providing the necessary documentation.

Name-change proof can be marriage certificates or licenses showing the name change, old and new driver's license, old and new utility bills showing the name change, or old and new bank statements.

Proof accompanying the obtaining of a birth certificate for a child can include identification (birth certificate, driver's license, etc.) of either parents and two forms of identification for the newborn (birth certificate, hospital record, etc.)

Lilley said, in his opinion, there is nothing illegal about the company's activity, but he feels consumers should not be made to think that a name change or getting a Social Security number is complicated or expensive.

Hunt Says Twin Trailer Access Needs Study

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) —

The state needs to study whether trucks pulling twin trailers should be able to travel access roads in North Carolina, Gov. Jim Hunt said today.

Hunt also expressed opposition at his weekly news conference to a bill in the General Assembly requiring the bottom of hazardous waste landfills be 30 feet above the water table.

The twin trailers are legal today on interstate highways in North Carolina as a result of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982. Hunt signed an executive order last Friday, bringing the state into compliance with the federal law at 12:01 a.m. today.

That means twin trailers can travel on interstates, highways built with federal money and access roads to terminals. The state now allows them on highways that are at least 22 feet wide.

The twin trailers can be as long as 56 feet compared to the conventional trailers that are 42 to 45 feet long. They have been allowed in only a few states in the East.

"There is no question that twin trailers have the right to run on interstate highways," Hunt said at his weekly news conference. "The question is what about the small highways they need for access."

"I am very concerned that the twin bottoms not go on roads that are too narrow and create a real safety hazard," he said.

He said the state Department of Transportation is looking at the safety issue and may come up with some recommendations soon.

Meanwhile, Hunt said he remains opposed to charging truckers more money to keep up the roads they travel. He said the industry, one of the state's largest, has been hit too hard by the recession to pay more for the roads.

But he left open the possibility of charging truckers more in the future, after it's been seen how much road damage the twin trailers will cause.

Grinds Teeth Over Advice

1983 by Universal Press, Synticate

DEAR ABBY: In responding to "Vacationing," who asked if it was all right to pick her teeth at the table, you have done a great disservice to your readership.

Today many practices that were considered no-nos in years gone by are now socially acceptable. Among them is the use of toothpicks.

Teeth care is very important, Abby. Routine brushing, flossing and frequent use of toothpicks to dislodge particles of food trapped between the teeth are essential for good oral hygiene. Dentists confirm this. And as for suggesting that the lady might pick up Dutch elm disease from chewing toothpicks — that is impossible. All domestic manufacturers of toothpicks (and I am one) use white birch.

Please correct the record and reinstate your credibility.

ARTHUR J. HAUG, PRESIDENT,
FORSTER MANUFACTURING CO., INC.,
WILTON, MAINE

DEAR MR. HAUG: All right, no Dutch elm disease from chewing toothpicks — that was a little joke that went over like a falling California redwood.

But I still think toothpicks should not be used at the table. Now, meet Connie in Minneapolis:

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column you said it was "inelegant to pick one's teeth in public."

In Japan in the finest restaurants you will see people cupping one hand over their mouth while picking their teeth.

CONNIE IN MINNEAPOLIS

DEAR CONNIE: Hooray for the Japanese! But that's a long way to go to pick your teeth after eating a chicken sandwich in Minneapolis.

DEAR ABBY: When two men and a woman ride together in a car, should the two men sit in front and let the woman sit alone in the back seat?

Or should the man who isn't driving sit in the back with the woman, and let the driver sit alone in the front?

CURIOUS IN WHITE BEAR LAKE

DEAR CURIOUS: This is no "gender bender." Gone are the days when the men sat in the front and the women sat in the back. Today, the woman could be driving, with either one or both men in the back.

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Rejected," who wrote that after her hysterectomy her husband told her that she had lost all appeal for him (claiming he could "feel" the difference); then he found someone else:

I am a male, 34, now remarried. When I was 29 and separated from my first wife, I became involved with a 40-year-old neighbor whose husband had left her using the same excuse as "Rejected's" spouse.

Versatile Fashion Designer Enjoys Being Challenged In Her Work

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — "I love to make beautiful things," is Draga Carroll's simple explanation for her success as a fashion designer of furs, men's and women's apparel, homes and whatever else strikes her fancy.

"I'm an idea designer," she said in an interview. "I enjoy a challenge and I accept changes, but you must keep the elegance."

Her talent and imagination were most recently displayed when she designed the interior of a Rolls Royce stretch limousine that sold for $250,000. The vehicle, named "The Spirit of Draga," has red upholstery, telephone, color television, videotape recorder, a well-equipped wet bar and other luxurious accessories.

Born in Cleveland to Croatian parents, she prefers being addressed as "Draga," which means "sweetheart" in Croatian. Her hip-length black hair is almost always wound about her head and her basic means of transportation is a bicycle. "That's how I stay in shape," she says.

Her age is her secret. "Women who tell their age, tell everything," is her philosophy.

After graduating from the Cleveland School of Art, Draga went to New York in the ready-to-wear business. It wasn't long before she was designing all types of women's clothing for some of New York's most elegant Fifth Avenue stores. Next it was men's clothing for a time.

Along the way, she developed fashions for furs and, once asked for help by the sequin industry, introduced a new trend in bathing suits using the bright, sparkling ornaments sewed onto cloth.

She also served as an interior decorator for a well-known New York furniture store.

For years, she owned her own clothing manufacturing firm in the garment district of New York City — an effort that allowed her to live in a fashionable Park Avenue apartment. Palm Beach, however, has been home for the last 15 years.

A religious woman, she has done much for charity — particularly with children's organizations.

Draga never married. She attributes that to the deep love and close ties she had with her mother and father. Both have died in recent years.

"First comes God and then my parents," was the order of her life's values.

Not as active now as she was, Draga is a licensed insurance and real-estate agent and serves as a consultant to the fashion industry. For friends, she still designs apartments or townhouses and guides their interior decoration.

Soup Pays Off Day Before Payday

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Up to now, when I thought of really good barley soups Scotch Broth (made with a base of mutton or lamb, vegetables and barley) came to mind. It is, of course, Scotland's national soup.

Or, I thought of Poland's famous Mushroom and Barley Soup (made with meat or poultry stock, mushrooms, vegetables and barley). It never occurred to me that meat or poultry stock didn't have to be part of barley soup.

But recently a friend sent over a bowl of her vegetarian-style barley soup made with celery and vegetable stock. It was good, but I persuaded her to try it with chicken broth. I admit I like the latter combination, but vegetarians may disagree. So here's a recipe I hope will suit both vegetarians and other cooks.

This is a thrifty soup to serve as the main dish for supper the day before payday. Or for a weekend lunch or supper. Offer good bread with it and a homey dessert — a fruit pie or fruit pudding would be perfect.

- CELERY BARLEY SOUP
6 cups chicken or vegetable broth
1 cup chopped (medium-fine) onion
5 cups thinly sliced celery
2 cup chopped celery leaves (packed)
1 teaspoon dried thyme leaves, crushed
1 1-16 teaspoon pepper
1 bay leaf
1-3rd cup pearl barley
Salt to taste

In a large saucepan bring broth to a boil. Add onion, 3 cups of the sliced celery, celery leaves, thyme, pepper and bay leaf; bring to a boil. Simmer, covered, for 30 minutes. Remove bay leaf.

In an electric blender, puree the soup in two batches. Return the puree to the saucepan; bring to a boil. Add barley; simmer, covered, until barley is almost tender — about 25 minutes. Add remaining 2 cups sliced celery; simmer, covered, until celery and barley are tender — about 5 minutes. Stir in salt. Makes about 1 quart. If thicker than you like, thin with chicken broth. If thinner than desired, cook gently to reduce. Serve hot. Pass a pepper mill.

Enforcement Needed

Today's ho..hum, at least with a large segment of motorists, might be that Gov. Jim Hunt has proclaimed April 17-23 and Sept. 19-24 as Clean-Up Litter Weeks in North Carolina.

One only has to look at the assorted beer cans, hamburger wrappers, bags of trash and every other kind of litter known to man along any highway right-of-way to see how much a litter clean-up campaign means to some people.

The state's highways are considered a logical dumping place by a significant minority for all the assorted garbage that can be accumulated. This is still true despite the fact that most counties have now erected dumpster locations where people can take their trash for proper disposal.

Some seem to consider it a right to be able to throw a can or bottle or wrapper out the auto window. Unfortunately, it costs the state $2.2 million annually to clean up the mess. Municipalities and counties must spend an additional amount. This is money that could go for other government services.

"With the public's cooperation, we will be able to divert some of the annual litter pick-up costs to higher priority items such as patching and other maintenance of our highway system," State Transportation Secretary W. R. Robison Jr. said.

We wish him luck, but observation tells us that nothing works with slobes except enforcement of the laws. If we want a significant Clean-Up Litter Week we will draw up more stringent highway litter laws, and then enforce them.

Shocking Increases

The city of Greenville showed a 16 percent increase in reported crimes during 1982, the highest for the state's 15 largest cities.

Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, however, protests that the report by the N. C. Police Information Network is not a fair comparison since Greenville reports even the smallest crimes as a model city for PIN.

That may well be true, but there were five murders in Greenville in 1982 compared to two in 1981. There were 16 rapes in 1982 compared with 10 the previous year. Burglaries were up from 750 to 855, motor vehicle thefts from 72 to 114 and robberies from 39 to 87.

These are shocking increases in major crimes. The police cannot be blamed because criminals commit crimes; nevertheless, the increases in major crimes are of concern to the community.

Amateur Investors Show How It's Done

John Cuniff

GROSSE POINTE, Mich. (AP) — Back in 1940, when the Great Depression was a recent memory and the post-war boom a dream, a group of amateur investors began contributing $10 to $20 a month each and investing it in stocks.

They kept at it. A few nights ago, the Mutual Investment Club of Detroit, now 19 members strong, held a dual celebration: Its 43rd anniversary, and its new stature as a millionaire, its assets having reached $1,128,000.

Following dinner at the Country Club of Detroit, retreat of the Fords and other great industrial families, it was also revealed that deposits totaled $145,716 over the years, and withdrawals were $319,229.

The latter sum, explained Thomas O'Hara, a member from the first year, was used to found private businesses and careers, finance educations, buy houses, finance vacations and assure financial security in retirement.

"The financial record is an amazing indication of what amateur investors can accumulate at the rate of $10 or $20 a month," said O'Hara, who now serves as chairman of the National Association of Investment Clubs (NAIC).

At the end of the first year, the young club showed a liquidating value of just $812, an amount whose size was offset by monumental — and some felt, unwarranted — hopes.

The hopes were justified. By the end of 1946, club members had deposited $5,080, withdrawn $2,519, and still had a liquidating value of $15,347. After a post-war slump, the value rose to $27,471 in 1951, and to $33,222 by 1952.

Despite repeated withdrawals, the club's value doubled again by 1955, once more by 1959, and again by 1965, when the portfolio's liquidating value was put at $246,738.

By 1969, after having deposited $75,327 over the years, the portfolio was worth $535,604. A catalytic mass had been established; the dividends — always reinvested — now totaled more each year than members' contributions.

Then bad times hit and tested the club's philosophy. Brokers went broke, investors lost fortunes, many investment clubs disbanded, and millions of people who had dreamed of fortunes now sought only to survive the present.

The credo of the Mutual Investment Club — now the underlying philosophy of the entire investment club movement — does not allow for faint-heartedness. Down markets, it states, are buying opportunities.

The record seems to show the club may have wavered, but just a bit. In 1972, the accumulated deposits of members fell for only the third time since 1941, to $90,819 in 1972 from $93,493. Nearly $44,000 was withdrawn.

It didn't happen again. Though the stock market lost much of its appeal during the inflation of the 1970s, members continued to increase their annual contributions, generally by about $7,000 or $8,000 a year.

But their investments suffered. From the 1969 peak the portfolio value fell to $394,434 in 1970, recovered to more than $430,000 in the next three years, and declined again to $387,959 in 1974.

But the investment philosophy paid off: The club had established positions when prices began rising again. Through the next few years members were able to "grow" their shares while also withdrawing $12,000 to $38,000 a year.

By 1979 the portfolio was valued at $759,038, and by the end of 1982, when the market rediscovered fundamentally sound stocks, the portfolio was above $1 million — $1,124,038 on Feb. 28, 1983, to be exact — on deposits of $145,716.

All this was reported by George Nicholson Jr., the club's broker from the beginning and a member soon after, a man of rare perception and intellectual versatility, and — with some justification, it turns out — vast optimism.

Two of the six founding members — Norman Hill and Lee Jacobson — remain active in the club, and nine of the other members have been with the club almost from the beginning.

In all probability, Mutual Investment will outlive its founders, because young investors have caught the spirit. O'Hara's two sons are members. Kenneth Janke, president of the national association, is a member, and so is Kenneth Janke Jr., 23.

Members have been successful in business. One owned five Howard Johnson franchises. Another built a company so successful the club invested in it. They have been successful in professions too. O'Hara, whose fulltime work was running and building the national investment club association, was a director of the New York Stock Exchange.

Bonzo Comes Through With The Solution

President Reagan was relaxing in his office at five o'clock, after putting in a hard day's work, with his best friend Bonzo. The president was sipping a scotch and water, and Bonzo was drinking a banana daiquiri.

"You know what worries me the most, Bonzo?" the president asked.

"This whole concept of MAD — Mutual Assured Destruction. We can no longer go into the 21st century building bigger and bigger weapons. We have to figure out a way of making nuclear weapons impotent and obsolete so our children and your children will no longer be faced with the specter of war."

Bonzo started to clap his hands. "If our scientists put their great minds to work, we could develop a sure-fire system to destroy the greatest force of evil in the world."

Bonzo jumped off the couch and onto a chair, where he started angrily beating a map of the Soviet Union with both hands. "The question is, how can we do it?" the president mused.

Bonzo put his hands on his head, which he always did when he was thinking. Then he let out a squeal and went to a drawer and took out a photograph of a chimpanzee and jumped on the president's desk.

The president said, "What have you got here? Why it's a photograph of Ham, the first chimp who went into space. What are you trying to tell me Bonzo?"

Bonzo kept pointing out the window towards the sky.

"Ham is dead?"

Bonzo shook his head again. Then he hopped over to the TV set, turned it on and put an Atari Star Wars game on the screen. Bonzo, who amused himself all day long playing video games, started to shoot down objects as they flew across the screen.

"Stop horsing around Bonzo," the president said. "This is very important."

Bonzo hopped over to the president and tugged him on the sleeve, pulling him towards the TV set.

The president let Bonzo drag him to the set. "Just one game Bonzo, and then let's get back to my problem."

Bonzo pointed to the TV screen and then pointed to the map of the Soviet Union.

The president realized Bonzo was trying to tell him something. "Don't help me, Bonzo. I think I'm getting it. If we could put something in space we could shoot down Soviet missiles from the sky. Is that what you're driving at?"

Bonzo squealed again and threw his arms around the president.

"That's it!" the president said. "All we would need is some powerful death ray that could zap the missiles as soon as they were launched. But how?"

Bonzo went over to a radiator and sat on it.

The president looked at him. "Radiator?"

Bonzo shook his head.

"Radiator? Heat? A heat-seeking death ray that would make their ICBM's inoperable!"

Bonzo squealed again and hugged the president.

President Reagan rushed over to his telephone and got the Joint Chiefs of Staff. "I want everyone in my office tomorrow morning."

Then the president poured Bonzo another banana daiquiri and said gratefully, "Bonzo, you've done it again."

Museum Of Art—A Work Late In Coming

RALEIGH — The new N.C. Museum of Art opens this week and, not surprisingly, a lot of people long-affiliated with the museum can hardly believe that opening day ever got here.

It's been 17 years since the state began planning the museum and those years have been filled with one nasty fight after another. Politicians, art enthusiasts, society's chosen, Raleigh neighborhood groups, almost everybody has been embroiled in fights over the site and the design of the building, the museum's artistic direction, the role of volunteers, even the landscaping of the spacious West Raleigh campus.

The building has been shown to the press and, no doubt, some will say the wait was well worth it. The wait was not well worth it. The wait was inexcusable. While the whole mess stewed in a political pot for 17 years, inflation ate up an entire 16,000-square-foot wing of the building. The $10.75 state appropriation and the $5 million provided by private contributions didn't end up buying as much museum in 1977, when construction began, as it would have bought in the early '70s. So a wing of the building was dropped from the plans. Now, to make up for that lost space, areas designed for other purposes are being pressed into service as galleries.

"There's no telling how much that wait cost us," one museum official said during the press tour. "It just cost us a lot."

But as the philosophers say, "that's all water over the dam now." And the museum that opens this week promises to be a real treasure for the public.

Not all of the galleries will open in April. The European and African galleries open later this year. A gallery of Judaic art is also planned. But what is available to be seen now is more than enough or a day's visit.

Those who remember the tight quarters of the old building will recall that pictures were jammed next to each other on the walls. Not here. Museum Director Edgar Peters Bowron has purposefully given each picture a great deal of space on the walls. Another big change comes at the entrance. First thing you saw in the old building were European painting of the Renaissance period. In this new modern building, you're hit with a lobby full of extraordinary modern American paintings.

One fascinating aspect of the museum, however, will not be available to the public. The press, in its full tour of the building, was shown the large support areas where the state's $50 million collection is stored and maintained.

Modern museums exist not only to show off great works of art, but also to preserve them. Conservators working in the conservation laboratory are cleaning and restoring most of the 5,000 peices in the state collection. In the lab, sophisticated equipment is used to retailize old canvas and protect recent restorations. An X-ray machine examined the work of art beneath its surface. And it found some interesting details. With one European painting, the conservators found a female figure that doesn't appear in the painting as the naked eye sees it.

In addition to the galleries, the museum will offer a number of other attractions. There'll be lectures and films and art history courses. A reference library is also open to the public.

The museum was a long, bitter time coming and, for many, hard feelings still exist. But the important thing is that the public now has its art museum. And, it's a museum we should enjoy. It's just too bad that we had to wait so long to start the show.

Strength For Today

There are two questions which constantly plague the mind of any person who thinks seriously about religion. The first is, "Where did I come from?" The second is, "Where am I going?"

The Scripture gives us practically no hint as to how we may satisfactorily answer the first question. As to the second question, "Where am I going?" — Jesus said, "I go to prepare a place for you."

It is God's will that we go to a place of untold blessings. We are being prepared for a mighty fellowship. Again, as Jesus said, "If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and he will come unto him, and make our abode with him."

It is marvelous to think of the destiny which is yours and mind. Think of it — little people like us being prepared to fellowship with God! It's incredible, unbelievable — but the thrilling reality is that, in spite of our incredulity, our belief, it's true.

Chances For Survival

WASHINGTON — A high White House official got short shrift in mid-January when he privately asked Sen. Alan Cranston if he would meet and spend a few minutes with Kenneth Adelman, just nominated to be director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency (ACDA).

No, said the usually obliging Cranston, he would not. Then, on Jan. 27, six days before announcing his presidential candidacy, the Senate minority whip and key member of the Foreign Relations Committee swung into campaign gear. He publicly pilloried Adelman at the committee's first confirmation hearing — starting his attack before Adelman's home-state, senator, Virginia's John Warner, even had a chance to introduce the nominee.

In the intervening weeks, the administration's Capitol Hill lobbyists have inexplicably put Adelman on "hold." That costly, quiescent period of keeping the ar-name if Adelman is defeated on the floor (as he was, by a single vote, in the Foreign Relations Committee). One likely successor: Brent Scowcroft, chairman of the president's MX Commission, whose broad arms-control background is more compatible with the old Republican establishment than with the Reaganite Right.

Thus Adelman's survival chances now hinge on a power fight between two factions: liberal Democrats led by Cranston who believe the arms control issue contains millions of votes that the sharp focus of Adelman's defeat would help deliver to them; and conservative Republicans upset by President Reagan's desertion of his zero-zero European nuclear option and his silence about possible Soviet cheating in recent missile tests.

Adelman's utility to both sides is strictly symbolic. That is an agonizing and painful position for a presidential nominee who, on obscure evidence, has had his intelligence, his knowledge and then his integrity questioned and attacked for reasons beyond his own actions.

The confidential proposals of the chief arms control negotiator, Ambassador Edward Rowley, for possible personnel changes at ACDA that caused so much liberal fury were handled discreetly and providently by Adelman. They became known because Rowley sent a copy to Adelman's deputy-designee, former representative David Emery, at ACDA, where Emery does not yet have an office. The letter with the proposal inside was opened by holdovers and quickly leaked.

Rowley's suggestions fueled both sides in the bitter struggle: Cranston saw in them new evidence of Adelman's evil intentions; to conservative Republicans, impatient for an ACDA housecleaning for two years, they were a beacon.

Court Broadens Compensation Criteria

By JOHN FLESHER
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Chronic lung ailment sufferers may be eligible for worker's compensation even if their illnesses are only partially the result of job conditions, the N.C. Supreme Court has ruled.

In a 4-3 decision Tuesday, the court broke new legal ground by ordering another hearing before the state Industrial Commission for a mill worker denied compensation although idled by emphysema and bronchitis that doctors said were caused to some extent by cotton dust.

Writing for the majority, Associate Justice James Exum said the N.C. Industrial Commission misinterpreted the law in denying compensation to Margaret Rutledge, a 48-year-old Georgia resident and former employee of Tultex Corp. and Kings Yarn of Gastonia, N.C., and several other cotton mills.

Ms. Rutledge claimed she had developed a cough while working at Kings Yarn in the late 1960s and that by the late 1970s was so weak she could not work. Doctors testified that her illness appeared to have been caused by exposure to cotton dust and by her longtime, pack-a-day cigarette habit.

The Industrial Commission ruled that Ms. Rutledge didn't have an "occupational disease" and therefore wasn't eligible for benefits. The N.C. Court of Appeals declined to reverse the ruling.

The Supreme Court overturned the commission's decision and ordered it to conduct another hearing under principles the court set forth.

"There is evidence from which the Industrial Commission could have made findings which in turn would have supported a conclusion that (Ms. Rutledge's) ... disease was an occupational disease," the ruling said.

The court said was adopting a "significant contribution principle" in order to "strike a fair balance between the worker and the employer in the administration of our Workers' Compensation Act as it is applied to the difficult lung disease cases."

To insist that inhaling cotton dust be the sole cause of the illness would be excessively harsh to workers, the ruling said. But, it added, it would be equally unfair to industry to award benefits automatically "if cotton dust exposure contributes to the slightest extent, however minuscule or insignificant." In a dissenting opinion, Associate Justice Louis Meyer said the court's ruling effectively rewrote the criteria for workers' compensation, which should be the job of the General Assembly.

"In effect, the majority has redefined 'occupational disease' to include all ordinary diseases of life to which conditions of the workplace have significantly contributed, irrespective of non-work-related causal factors," Meyer wrote.

Exum was joined in his majority opinion by Associate Justices Henry Frye, Burley Mitchell and Harry Martin. Dissenting with Meyer were Chief Justice Joseph Branch and Associate Justice William Copeland.

In other decisions handed down Tuesday, the court:

— Upheld the death sentence given Douglas Williams Jr., convicted of sexually assaulting and beating to death a 100-year-old Edgecombe County woman.

— Upheld the death sentence given Michael V. McDougall, convicted of stabbing to death a 27-year-old Charlotte woman and seriously wounding her roommate.

— Upheld Cleveland Sylvester Harris' conviction of raping and robbing a female cab driver in 1974. Harris has been charged in an unrelated case with murdering a Peace College professor.

— Reversed an appeals court ruling in favor of a black former employee of Sandhills Youth Center who sued the state corrections department, claiming he was fired because of his race.

The State Personnel Commission had ruled that Earl Gibson was discriminated against when dismissed for negligence in the escape of two inmates. A lower court judge overturned that decision, but his ruling was reversed by the N.C. Court of Appeals.

In its ruling, the Supreme Court said the appeals court had put on the department of corrections an unfair burden to prove it hadn't discriminated.

'Gardeners Sunday' At Tryon Palace Scheduled

NEW BERN — Thousands of tulips and daffodils, along with pansies and viola plants, and the flowering boughs of trees and shrubs including dogwood, redbud, Japanes cherry, forsythia, quince and others are expected to be in full flower for the annual free "Gardners' Sunday" at Tryon Palace in New Bern.

The annual free garden day will be on Sunday, with the grounds open to the public from 1 to 5 p.m. The free tour include all eight gardens in the palace grounds.

The Wilderness, a naturalized garden typical of mid-18th century England, has bulbs growing in drifts among the trees. Other gardens, such as the formal Latham and Kellenberger gardens, feature tulips planted in geometric patterns.

Across the street from the palace, on the grounds of the John Wright Stanley House, surrounded by an English townhouse garden, Japanese cherries frame diamond-shaped tulip beds.

Other houses in the Tryon Palace complex that feature camellias, azaleas and beds of pure white flowers may be visited as part of the palace tour. These are the late-Victorian style Commission House, the Jones House, and the Stevenson House.

A FORMAL ARRANGEMENT ... in one of the gardens at Tryon Palace is one of many styles of garden layouts featured at the palace and adjacent houses in the palace complex. A free "Gardners' Day" is being held Sunday, with the public invited at no cost to visit the gardens at the peak of spring flowering.

Death Rows See Population Rise

By The Associated Press
Velma Barfield of Raleigh and Joseph Shaw of Columbia, S.C., are members of one of the Carolinas' fastest growing prison minorities - Death Row prisoners.

In all, 55 inmates live on Death Rows in North and South Carolina. That's 37 percent more than a year ago, when there were 40 inmates, and 77 percent more than in April 1981, when there were just 31.

The population is growing for a simple reason - prisoners aren't being put to death because they are appealing their sentences. Appeals take time. Meanwhile, new Death Row inmates join the old ones and begin their own appeals. No one knows when the first execution will be.

"The courts proceed with extreme caution in these cases," says N.C. assistant Attorney General Joan Byers. North Carolina has 29 Death Row prisoners, 10 more than a year ago.

"You won't find anyone in the state who will give you a good estimate," says S.C. Attorney General spokesman Mark Dillard.

South Carolina has 26 prisoners on Death Row, up from 21 a year ago.

The Carolinas' Death Row population increase mirrors nationwide trends.

In 1980, there were 688 prisoners awaiting execution across the country, and 838 in 1981, according to federal figures. Figures for 1982 weren't available, but an

Groups Battle

Annexation

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Two groups battling Greensboro's planned annexation of 10 square miles north and west of the city have appealed a Superior Court judge's ruling that the annexation was legal.

The deadline for appealing Judge Thomas Seay's March 23 order was Tuesday.

C. Allen Foster, representing the Opponents of Forced Annexation, and Max Ballinger, representing himself, neighbors and his wife's private school, filed the appeals to the N.C. Court of Appeals Friday afternoon. At the time of the ruling, both groups had indicated they planned to appeal.

City Attorney Jesse L. Warren said the annexation would not take effect until the appeals are resolved and the city gets approval from the U.S. Department of Justice.

Ranger Won't Return To Job

SEATTLE (AP) — A former ranger who petitioned for the ouster of Interior Secretary James Watt says he won't return to the Park Service, even though Mount Rainier National Park officials agreed to delete a reprimand and poor evaluation from his record.

Michael J. Sepal, 26, "has a right to engage in speech activities on his own time," Kathleen Taylor, his lawyer, said Monday in announcing an out-of-court settlement of his complaint.

Sepal, said he was off duty and out of uniform when he sought signatures on a Sierra Club petition in 1981 that called for Watt's removal. Park Superintendent William J. Briggie said the case was settled because it wasn't worth the money to fight it.

Sepal, now a passport examiner, said he left the park service Sept. 19, 1981, because his job was seasonal and terminated at that time.

N. C. Budget Panels Consider Problems

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Members of a legislative budget committee disagreed Tuesday who should have authority to determine the number of unmarked cars used by the state Highway Patrol — the troopers or lawmakers.

But the joint House-Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Justice and Public Safety voted 6-5 not to name a special panel to look into the matter after one lawmaker said he will introduce a bill on the subject.

Meanwhile, a joint appropriations subcommittee on education finished its work and a panel on general government got bogged down in a lawmaker's attempts to eliminate the Council on the Status of Women.

All three budget committees are hurrying to complete their work by the end of the week so the full House-Senate Appropriations Committee can begin voting on cuts.

Rep. William Grimsley, D-Guilford, told the Justice and Public Safety Subcommittee that he is ready to introduce a bill giving the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety secretary control over the number of unmarked cars used by the Highway Patrol.

The change was contained in a report to the subcommittee last month from a special panel.

Current laws allow the Highway Patrol to have only 17 percent of its vehicles unmarked. The special panel recommended allowing the Highway Patrol to have up to 25 percent of its cars unmarked or allow the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety to decide the number.

Rep. Dan DeVane, D-Hoke, said Monday that he was not satisfied that the matter had been fully investigated. DeVane said many women are afraid to stop at night for blue lights in unmarked cars because they have no assurance that the driver of the car really is a trooper.

Other members of the subcommittee said they thought it would be more of a deterrent to violators to have the officers in marked cars.

Sen. Bob Swain, D-Buncombe, said it seems officers in unmarked cars are getting special treatment.

"It is a prestige type thing," acknowledged Maj. D.R. Emory, a Patrol administrator. He said it could be argued that unmarked cars are more of a deterrent to crime.

Swain also said he believed the Legislature should set the policy on using unmarked cars.

"It seems that the Highway Patrol is coming up here wanting to exercise legislative powers," Swain said. "It is our duty to determine the policy of this state."

Grimsley disagreed.

"I think we ought to entrust them with administration of the department," he said. "I don't think we are in a position to do that. I think you've seen people here vent frustration at having been caught by an unmarked patrol car."

The special panel also recommended:

— Giving the Highway Patrol and other law enforcement authorities power to remove drunken pedestrians from roadways when they are obstructing traffic or are dangerous to themselves or others.

— Requiring law enforcement authorities to investigate accidents only when property damage is greater than $500. They now must investigate accidents involving more than $200 property damage.

— Raising the salary grade for commissioned officers and extending shift pay benefits to sergeants and first sergeants. The higher salary grade would cost the state $77,491 in 1983-84 and $77,733 in 1984-85. The money would come from the Highway Fund.

Meanwhile, the joint House-Senate Base Budget Appropriations Subcommittee on Education completed its search for ways to cut the public schools' budget by 3 percent but was reluctant to recommend the cuts.

The subcommittee voted to accept as information ways to eliminate $45.8 million from the 1983-85 budget for public schools. The cuts would eliminate 1,718 teachers and aides and reduce money for books, buses, testing and supplies.

Sen. Jim Edwards, D-

Caldwell, said he didn't want members of the full House-Senate Appropriations Committee to have the information but Rep. Malcolm Fulcher, D-Carteret, subcommittee chairman, said the panel was obligated to find ways to cut the budget.

Fulcher and others agreed to send the full Appropriations Committee a resolution opposing the cuts.

In the joint House-Senate Base Budget Appropriations Subcommittee on General Government, Rep. Brad Ligon, R-Rowan, continued to attack the Council on the Status of Women.

Last week he issued a report saying the council used taxpayers' money for lobbying and criticizing the group for spending too much money to train women for jobs.

Ligon noted that a recent state audit of the council showed average expenditures of $3,652 for each trainee in an air conditioning and heating class while the state Labor Department spends only $115 for each of its apprentice trainees.

But State Auditor Ed Renfrow pointed out that the council was required to pay trainees at least minimum wage because the money for their program came from the federal Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

Administration Secretary Jane Patterson, whose department includes the council, answered Ligon's attack on the group's lobbying.

"The Council on the Status of Women and many other councils hold conferences on bills coming before the Legislature," she said. "The council does have a task force (on legislation). They (task force members) are not paid. They are citizens. They can take any position they want to take."

Ligon insisted the item be marked for possible cuts, but spokesmen in the administration said they believed they had enough votes on the subcommittee to avoid the cuts.

Bank Trims Prime Rate

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. plans to lower its prime rate from 10 1/2 percent to 10 percent on Wednesday, bank officials said.

The prime rate is the interest rate the bank charges to its most creditworthy customers. The rate at most banks still is 10 1/2 percent.

"There has been dramatic improvement in short-term rates for the past year," said L.M. Baker Jr., Wachovia's executive vice president and director of loan administration.

"Even in light of temporary fluctuations, the trend has been for lower short-term rates," he said. "This has been in line with our previous experience in economic cycles, and we feel that this current prime rate adjustment is appropriate and reflects consistency in rate movement."

Wachovia is one of North Carolina's three largest banks. Officials at NCNB National Bank and First Union National Bank said they had no plans to lower their prime rates. NCNB officials said Wachovia's move came as a surprise.

Alternative Plan Proffered By East

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John P. East, R-N.C., Tuesday offered an alternative defense plan that would increase military spending by $2.9 billion more than the Reagan administration has requested.

East urged Congress to authorize that increase, saying the money should be used to increase anti-ballistic missile defenses, create a new carrier task force in the Caribbean and form a new Army division.

The Reagan defense plan "is the bare-bones minimum we can accept, while the House proposal would severely jeopardize our security and guarantee continued U.S. inferiority and heightened Soviet adventurism," East said.

"My alternative would provide the margin of safety we badly need," he said in a statement released by his office.

President Reagan has proposed a $278.3 billion increase in defense spending next year, a real growth rate of 10 percent. But the U.S. House passed a budget resolution that included money for only 4 percent real growth rate in defense spending.

East proposed that the additional money for defense be financed by cutting foreign aid by a like amount.

Chief Deputy Sheriff Jerry Beach said Staton was jailed without bond following the 7:55 p.m. Saturday shooting of 27-year old Alton Ray Best, an Edgecombe County resident also of Route 1, Bethel. Best died early Sunday evening at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Beach said Best was shot in the forehead during an incident at the residence of Effie Clark near Lewis' Store just inside the Martin County line five miles north of Bethel. The murder weapon, Beach said, has not been found and efforts were continuing to find the weapon.

A preliminary hearing date of April 18 has been scheduled.

Falkland Store Break-In Reported

Pitt County authorities were investigating a break-in and larceny incident at the Louis Smith Grocery in Falkland today that was discovered this morning by a deputy on patrol.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson said the deputy discovered the front glass door of the store broken at 4:09 a.m., and notified W.D. Little, who operates the business.

Tyson said Little reported an estimated $111 in merchandise, including two cases of beer, assorted ice cream, and several pairs of sunglasses, was stolen. In addition, a two-piece suit of clothing was taken but was recovered in front of the post office, he said.

According to Tyson, the electric meter at the store was ripped from the wall and two bathroom doors were torn down.

Farmville Bd. Sets Development Course

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Farmville commissioners differed among themselves Tuesday night through lengthy discussion on whether to employ a full-time or a consulting administrator of Community Development block grant work of the town.

It was finally decided to seek concurrently a director and accept bids on consulting service so as to see which would meet the needs of the town at least cost.

Included in the discussion was the desirability of hiring a local firm, McDavid and Associates engineers, to administer the program. Two representatives of the firm, Van Lewis and Mike Barnette, made a presentation on the use of consultant services for administering CDBG programs.

Commissioner Mike Dixon voiced his favor of retaining McDavid and Associates while Commissioner Joe Kue spoke in favor of a full-time director. It was pointed out that, even if a consulting firm is used, the proposal will have to be put out for bids rather than merely retaining McDavid.

An electric rate restructuring was adopted that will result in a 4.2 percent increase for residential customers to make rates reflect what it costs the town to serve the customer. A 13 percent increase is being passed to the town by the North Carolina Eastern Municipal Power Agency. Small commercial customers, who commissioners said have long carried a burden, will see a 13.4 decrease.

John Gay appeared before the board requesting that his house at 406 W. Perry St. not be demolished before he makes the repairs directed by the building inspector. He said he has repaired a house owned by him adjacent to this one and will complete work on this one as soon as he has enough money. He expressed an unwillingness to comply to the town's requirement that the second house be either moved or torn down because there is not enough space on the lot for both dwellings, according to zoning regulations.

Building Inspector H.P. Norman pointed out that negotiation with Gay about the house has been going on since March 1980, and that Gay was told in District Court to comply with town regulations within 60 days, by Feb. 24. The second house is not in compliance with the town zoning ordinance and, therefore, must be moved or torn down, Norman said.

The commissioners deferred the adoption of the condemnation ordinance the building inspector had requested and asked the town attorney and the building inspector to look into what can be done to follow the law and yet assist Gay in making compliance as little of a hardship on him as is possible.

Mayor Rusty Duke appointed Commissioners John Turner Walston, Oliver Murphrey and Charles Joyner to a committee to explore possibilities for meeting the town's office space needs.

In other business the board:

•Adopted a resolution concerning procurement procedure for the Community Development Block Grant Program.

•Accepted offers from three property owners, pending agreement with the remaining two owners, to buy a tract on the southwest corner of South George Street. The goal is to purchase the "White Line" area and make it available for better use.

•Awarded the sale of a redevelopment parcel at 703 George St. to Roger W. Sutton for $3,810.

•Authorized the closing of the 100 block of Belcher St. on April 17 between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. for a "Concert in the Park" being sponsored by the Farmville Community Arts Council.

•Adopted a resolution of intent to exchange property (a computer disk) with the town of Cary.

•Authorized Town Administrator Bob Morgan to issue final payment to Billings and Garrett Co. for a sewer rehabilitation project in the amount of $11,826.86. The amount owed this company has been in dispute for some time and the board acknowledged the work of the town administrator and Town Attorney Chris Burti in negotiating this settlement.

•Approved the low bid, subject to the approval of the Environmental Protection Agency, of R.E. Hayes Co. of Dunn in the amount of $149,990 for the construction of additional drying beds at the wastewater treatment plant.

•Approved the purchase of 18 mercury rental light units from WESCO for $5693 and the purchase of eight three-phase electric meters from Rigby Electric for $1,506. Each was the low bidder.

•Approved a 45-day extension to L.A. Reynolds Co. for the completion of street construction work now under way. Inclement weather was offered as the reason for the extension request.

•Decided to get facts and figures about placing fire hydrants in rural areas for fire protection. This study was suggested by Fire Chief H.P. Norman.

that the town needs to reorganize the Downtown Improvement Committee to see that the appearance of the area continues in keeping with the aims set when the area was rehabilitated with public funds several years ago. The matter was turned over to the Planning Board for study.

•Approved a design of the Town Common, with stipulation that the board be kept informed of funding and progress on the project to be sure it is completed satisfactorily.

Viper Victim Said Improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — A youth who was bitten by a deadly Gaboon viper stolen from the National Zoo was reported recovering today at a local hospital, but may suffer permanent damage.

Doctors at Children's Hospital said Louis Morton, 16, under constant supervision in the intensive care unit, was taken off the critical list and was considered in serious condition.

But his doctors said Tuesday night that Morton probably would suffer permanent damage to the muscle and skin around his right shoulder and arm, where he was bitten.

Hospital spokesman Harold Kranz Jr. said Morton's bleeding had been stopped and that anti-venom serum was still being administered after he was bitten Monday night.

"We don't know how long we'll have to administer the serum," said Dr. Murray Pollock. "There's a scarcity of medical literature on it, and that's why we've been calling around the world."

The physician said there were fewer than 10 recorded cases of bites by the Gaboon viper, one of the two or three most poisonous snake species in the world. He said the last known case in the United States occurred in 1942.

The Gaboon viper's venom, which is injected through 1½-inch fangs, can kill an untreated victim within minutes.

All of the zoo's supply of anti-venom serum was used to treat the youth, and additional serum was flown in from Philadelphia, Baltimore and New York.

Individuals and zoos across the country had offered to contribute serum and Children's Hospital anticipated no shortage, Pollock said.

The youth was carrying two four-foot-long Gaboon vipers in a plastic bag when he was bitten on the shoulder, authorities said.

He had taken the bag onto a transit bus near the zoo late Monday night, according to police. Morton, who lives in southeast Washington, rode about three miles and then got off the bus in the downtown area, slinging the bag over his shoulder, according to transit spokeswoman Marilyn Dicus.

Soon thereafter, he returned to the bus and told the driver he had been bitten by a snake, Ms. Dicus said. The driver called police on her two-way radio, and the youth was rushed to the hospital.

The vipers were returned safely to the zoo early Tuesday morning, said Laurie Bingaman, who works in the zoo's reptile house.

Minor Injuries In Accident

The wife and small child of a Greenville policeman were treated at Pitt County Memorial Hospital for what appeared to be minor injuries received in a traffic accident on N.C. 33 near Grimesland this morning, a PCMH spokesman said.

Deborah Hamill, wife of Barry Mitchell (Mike) Hamill, and her young son were listed by the emergency department as "satisfactory pending further evaluation," according to the hospital spokesman.

The accident, which occurred west of Grimesland, involved a car operated by Mrs. Hamill and a truck. Identity of the truck driver, who was not transported to Pitt Memorial, was not available.

(AP) — About $4.5 million was raised in the first day of an auction to sell $50 million worth of leftover construction equipment from a canceled nuclear power plant, officials say.
Approximately 1,000 contractors and wholesalers from 35 states and five foreign nations watched or took part in Monday's bidding. The auction is expected to continue all week to dispose of earth movers, cranes, dump trucks and other construction equipment.
The Tennessee Valley Authority spent about $1 billion on the twin-reactor Phipps Bend nuclear plant, but decided last year to scrap the facility because the agency had overestimated demand for electricity.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed a modest loss today, continuing the decline of the past three sessions.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 23.13 points in the past three trading days, dropped 3.19 to 1,116.97 in the first half hour today.

Losers took a 4-3 lead over gainers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Interest rates dropped in the credit markets Tuesday, and the Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. of North Carolina lowered its prime lending rate from 10 1/2 to 10 percent.

But no other banks exhibited any haste to match that reduction. Brokers said stock traders remained doubtful about the interest-rate outlook.

If rates remain at high levels relative to inflation, many analysts argue, the recovery from the recession will have trouble gathering much momentum and could even stall.

Among today's early volume leaders, Standard Oil of Ohio fell 1/4 to 43 3/4; International Telephone & Telegraph lost 1/4 to 35, and Beatrice Foods was unchanged at 25 1/2.

On Tuesday the Dow Jones industrials fell 7.45 to 1,120.16.

More than eight issues fell in price for every seven that rose on the NYSE.

Big Board volume totaled 76.81 million shares, up from 66.01 million Monday.

The NYSE's composite index fell .59 to 87.47. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .50 at 388.19.

The solar fraction for this area Tuesday, as computed by the East Carolina University Department of Physics, was 40. This means that a solar water heater could have provided 40 percent of your hot water needs.

Cheap Gas Is Big Pleaser

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — For one wild, happy hour, filling station owner Jerry Konty sold gasoline for less than the taxes on it, but he says the promotion was worth every dollar it cost.

Hundreds of people, including four men sleeping in two cars when Konty opened for business at 7 a.m. Tuesday, mobbed his station. But only 65 had time to inch past his pumps during the appointed hour, from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m., to buy 927 gallons of gasoline at 13 cents a gallon.

"I lost one dollar a gallon, but with the advertising I got out of this, with people saying thanks, well, I could have gone to the race track, bought a bale of hay for a pony and come back with nothing," said Konty. "Here, I made friends. And just to see the people ... it was unbelievable."

Konty said he decided last month to sell cheap gas after a friend living on Social Security complained about the cost of keeping a car.

"I wanted to give guys like him a break," said Konty. "I give the gas, you pay the tax." I told him. Then I decided, why not give the price to everybody?"

Old Dominion Blasts Pirates, 13-2

By WOODY PEELE

Reflector Sports Editor

Just before the start of last night's East Carolina-Old Dominion baseball game, ODU coach Mark Newman found he had to make a change in his lineup. With his regular catcher unable to play, he inserted another and moved number five batter Nick Boothe up to the clean-up spot.

Boothe took it to heart — and cleaned up against the Pirates, banging two home runs to account for five runs as he led the Monarchs to a 13-2 romp over East Carolina.

It was the third straight loss for the Pirates and their fourth in the last five games.

"They did everything better than we did," ECU Coach Hal Baird said. "But the game was really not like the score. They had a lot of dumpers (cheap hits), and we're just finding different ways to get taken out of it."

Different indeed. The Pirates only batted their way into four double plays during the evening — enough to kill a bunch of rallies.

"It's frustrating. The kids are playing hard. That (first home run by Boothe) took a lot out of us," Baird continued. Boothe's homer came just after a two-run homer by John Hallow had put the Pirates ahead, 2-1. Boothe's blast left them trailing 3-2, and they never got it going again.

"The bad thing about it," Baird said, "is that I had just told Bobby (Davidson, the pitcher) that he had a base open and not to give him anything good, but he cocked that fast ball...."

Old Dominion threatened in the first inning off Davidson, putting three men on base — one was thrown out trying to go from first to third on an error on a pickoff try. Another runner was left at second in the third.

The Monarchs finally broke the ice in the fourth, scoring an unearned run. With one out, Lou Berge singled and Jerry Nicks came on to run for him, moving up when Paul Keyes walked and was then forced by Rob Sessoms.

Sessoms then broke for second, and the relay was in time to get him, but he pulled up and second baseman Tony Salmond dropped the ball as he prepared to throw back to home, and that allowed Nicks to score for a 1-0 lead.

The Pirates, who had put runners on base only to have them set back down on a double play and a caught stealing play, came through in the fourth. Kelly Robinette opened the inning with a double to right, and Hallow followed with a homer over the fence in right. That powered ECU to a 2-1 lead.

But it was not to be. Only one other Pirate got as far as second base the rest of the night. The Pirates collected only five hits off starter Boo Bennett and his relief.

The Monarchs, meanwhile, quickly pushed back ahead with two in the fifth on Boothe's first home. With one out, Davidson hit Lenny Koperna and after a second out, Boothe drilled it out in right center for a 3-2 lead.

ODU added a fourth run in the sixth. Sessoms led off with a walk and Tom Reichel singled. Both were sacrificed up and Joe Millis grounded out, scoring Sessoms.

Then, in the eighth, ODU put it away with five big runs. With one away, Reichel doubled to left and Tim Druzgala reached on an infield hit. Millis singled in one run and Koperna followed with a hit, loading the bases. Rob Gilland, who struck out four times during the evening, got a measure of revenge, however, banging a triple into the corner in right, clearing all three runners. Boothe reached on a fielder's choice that got Gilland at the plate, and successive walks to Berge, Paule Keyes and Sessoms forced in Boothe for a 9-2 edge.

The final four came in the ninth. Druzgala walked and Millis singled. Koperna got a hit to score Druzgala, and Boothe finished things off with his second homer of the night, driving in three runs to make it 13-2.

Millis led the ODU hitting with four, while Berge had three, and Koperna, Gilland, Boothe and Reichel each had two.

The Pirates get their chance quickly, hosting Virginia Wesleyan this afternoon at 2 p.m.

David Wells had two of the five Pirate hits.

"This is the worst streak of playing since I've been here," Baird said. "Right now I'm beginning to question our ability to beat the good teams."

"If we jell and some of the holes get ironed out — and we can get to the (ECAC) tourney, you never know what will happen. I mean, just look up the road at State. The kids are more down right now than they've been in a long time. It's been a tough couple of days for us, but we've got to play better too."

Pack Given Hero's Welcome

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina State forward Thurl Bailey was filled with emotion as he stood in front of 15,500 people with a microphone in his hand and a tear on his cheek.

Bailey and his Wolfpack teammates were being given a hero's homecoming welcome at Reynolds Coliseum Tuesday, a welcome earned the night before with a 54-52 victory over Houston and its Phi Slama Jama "fraternity" to win the NCAA basketball championship.

Reynolds Coliseum rocked to the noise of the celebrating N.C. State fans, and even a "moment of silence" for Houston's victory hopes wasn't all that quiet.

It grew louder when coach Jim Valvano walked on stage to introduce the team.

"You've heard of Phi Slama Jama," he said. "Let me introduce you to Phi Pack Attack."

But there was a deafening silence after Bailey was introduced and the applause stopped.

"I thank God for a lot of things," a reflective Bailey said, then pausing as tears slipped from his eyes and he swallowed hard to clear the lump from his throat. "And I thank Him for this opportunity."

Bailey told the crowd something that the Wolfpack knew all along, but had only convinced most others by winning the school's first national championship since 1974.

"Everybody talked about the way we got to where we are now," Bailey said. "First, they said we were lucky. Then they said it was destiny. Then they called us a Cinderella team. They tried to find any way but the right way — that we are a great basketball team."

"It was great winning the national championship," said flu-ridden coach Jim Valvano. "But the greatest moment of my life is as I stand before you right now."

But Valvano, who charmed the media and the fans at the Final Four in Albuquerque, let his players do most of the talking. More than anything they told of how they enjoyed playing before the Wolfpack fans.

"It's been a pleasure playing with these guys and I'm glad I'm going to have the privilege of playing in front of you all for two more years," said Lorenzo Charles, whose stuff shot with one second left signalled the end for Houston.

Guard Sidney Lowe took over emcee honors from teammate Derek Whittenburg and turned the microphone over to "The Cannon," guard Terry Gannon.

"I'm glad Whit didn't have the microphone," Gannon teased. "He didn't pass me the ball all year."

Officials said that by 4 p.m., there were already 12,000 people in Reynolds to await the team's 5:30 arrival. While they waited, the band played, the cheerleaders cheered and there were plenty of banners to read.

When the band struck up "The Stripper," a fan in a box high above the floor obliged by taking off his clothes, stopping at his underwear.

The gathering was far more organized and peaceful than Monday night's celebration that saw 25,000 merge on the campus and spill onto a nearby street. Fourteen people were arrested on various charges and two were seriously injured, one when he was struck by a car while crossing the street and another who suffered a broken leg in a fight.

But Tuesday was a time for the team and Valvano knew how to let the crowd know.

"What time is it?" he asked while raising his arm and tugging at his sleeve. "Let's look at our championship watches."

And Valvano knew it was time to thank the crowd and for he and his players to get some deserved rest.

"The greatest thrill of college athletics is people," he concluded. "And you people are the biggest thrill in my life."

NO WIN FOR JACK

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Despite his many victories in headline golf tournaments in the past two decades, the Canadian Open remains a jinx tourney for Jack Nicklaus.

According to a PGA spokesman here, the Golden Bear considers that the only void in his brilliant career record.

Early Runs Help Ayden-Grifton Slip Past Greene Central, 7-6

WILSON — Ayden-Grifton scored early and then held off a rally by Greene Central for a 7-6 baseball victory in the semifinals of the Wilson Optimist Tournament last night.

The victory moved the Chargers into the championship game of the tournament, set for tonight at 7:45 p.m. in Fleming Stadium. Greene Central will play for third place.

The Chargers jumped into the lead in the first inning scoring three times. Gene Johnson led off with a single, moving up on a passed ball. He then scored on Tyrone Gay's single. Gay stole second and Joey Kennedy singled him to third. Kennedy stole up and both scored when Roger Moye doubled.

Both teams scored single runs in the second inning, giving the Chargers a 4-1 edge. The Rams also came up with a run in the top of the third, cutting the margin to 4-2.

But in the bottom of the third, Ayden-Grifton pushed over three more to put the game away. Terry Garrett was hit by a pitch and Wesley Hardy walked. Charles Mitchell singled in Garrett and moved up on a passed ball. Jackie Conway's grounder was error, allowing Hardy to score. Walks to Doug Coley and Gay then forced Mitchell over with the seventh Charger run.

Greene Central rallied for three in the sixth and one in the seventh, but fell short.

Conway and Kennedy each had two hits for Ayden-Grifton, while Ritchie Chase had four hits to pace Greene Central, including a pair of doubles. Chris Suggs added two more for the Rams.

The win boosted the A-G record to 7-2 on the year.

In other games yesterday, Fike downed Hunt 9-0, Raleigh Enloe beat SouthWest Edgecombe 10-7 in nine innings, and North Lenoir topped Beddingfield, 10-5.

Today's slate has Hunt and SouthWest playing for seventh place at 11 a.m., Fike and Enloe battling for fifth at 2 p.m., Greene Central and Beddingfield meeting for third at 5 p.m., and North Lenoir facing Ayden-Grifton for the championship at 7:45 p.m.

Stalls Paces Rose Past New Bern, 6-5

By JIMMY DUPREE
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose pitcher Kenny Kirkland scattered five runs and five hits over the first four innings and leftfielder Rudy Stalls ripped four hits in as many trips to the plate to lead the Rampants to a 6-5 victory in their semifinal game of the Pitt Easter Tournament against New Bern Tuesday at Guy Smith Stadium.

The Rampants will play the Kinston Vikings tonight at 7:30 for the championship, with junior hurler Mike Kinley, 3-0, slated to start on the mound. Kinston, which defeated Washington 12-9, came alive at the plate with a homer by first baseman Paul Jones in the third inning. Washington will play New Bern at 2:30, while Havelock plays Farmville Central at 5 p.m. Farmville defeated D.H. Conley 2-1.

Kirkland struck out the last two batters the Bears sent to the plate to recording his first decision of the year, as he retired eight of the last 10 batters New Bern sent to the plate without incident. New Bern pitcher Ward Withrow struck out seven Rampants while giving up just two walks as he went the distance on the mound, also.

Stalls drove in a pair of runs with a double over the centerfielder's head in the second to continue on a hitting tear which includes seven-out-of-eight trips to the plate in the Easter tourney and 10-of-13 over the last three games, as well as three doubles and seven RBI.

"I've got a lot of confidence in that player," said Rose coach Ronald Vincent. "He's really hitting the ball well this early in the season."

"I thought Kirkland really threw well in the late innings. We'll have to play well against Kinston to win."

The Rampants jumped on Withrow for a pair of runs in the top of the first as speedy centerfielder Randy Warren drew a base-on-balls, stole second and moved to third on a single by Stalls. Stalls stole second, as well, and Kinley drew a walk to load the bases before Eric Woodworth ripped an infield single off Withrow's leg to drive in Warren and Stalls.

The Bears got one of the runs back in their half of the inning when Scott Overby and Withrow walked and Overby scored on a double to left by designated hitter Gray Beasley.

Rose added two more in the second for a 4-1 advantage. Bobby Buie reached first on a fielder's choice, took second when Warren was hit by a pitch, and both scored on Stalls' two-out double to center.

In the bottom of the second, Curtis Leoni reached first when his grounder got by Rose second baseman Toby Fisher. Leoni moved to third when David DeBruhl's pop fly got away from Stalls in left after a walk to Matt Smith. A sacrifice fly by Eric Lewis drove in Leoni.

The Rampants stranded runners on first and third in the third inning, as Evans reached first on an error, stole second and moved to third on an infield single by Bill Johnson. Withrow got Traye Fuqua to pop up to the infield to get out of the inning.

Withrow helped his own cause in the bottom of the third with a leadoff homer over the left field fence to cut the margin to 4-3.

But Rose bounced back with a pair of runs in the fourth to put the game out of reach. Buie led off with a slicing double to left and scored on a single by Warren. Bear shortstop Jimmy Singleton tried to get Warren going to second on an infield single by Stalls, but heaved the ball to the outfield allowing him to move to third. A double to left-center by Kinley scored Warren and moved Stalls to third.

Smith led off the fourth with a double, moved to third on a single by DeBruhl and scored on a passed ball. A double to left by Lewis drove in DeBruhl for the final scoring of the game. Lewis tagged and moved to third on a fly ball by Overby but was ruled out on the appeal at second.

The Bears threatened in the fifth with two out, as Singleton singled to right and the ball got by Johnson allowing him to move to second. Leoni drew a base-on-balls, but Singleton was running on the pitch and was nailed at third to end the inning.

The Rampants had runners on first and second with none out in the seventh, but a strikeout by Evans and a double-play got Withrow out of the jam.

Woodworth went two-of-four at the plate for the Rampants with a pair of RBI, and Warren scored three runs as he walked, was hit by a pitch and singled.

Farmville Rally Carries Past Vikings By 2-1

By ALAN WOOTEN
Reflector Sports Writer

It seemed, midway through the sixth inning Tuesday, as though D.H. Conley was going to advance to the 5:00 game on Wednesday to play Havelock.

The Vikings led Farmville, 1-0, and Darryl Edwards was working on a nifty one-hitter with two gone in the Farmville sixth. Maybe it was 'destiny' on the part of Farmville but somehow, somehow, the Jaguars came up with two runs—the last unearned—and held off a Viking rally in the top of the seventh for a 2-1 win in the second round of the Pitt County Easter Tournament being played at Guy Smith Stadium.

The victory moves Farmville, 3-4, into the third-place game on Wednesday versus Havelock, a 12-6 loser to Kinston on Monday.

"We played a good ballgame," Farmville coach Billy Davis said afterward. "We just have to learn to be consistent. We've got some inexperienced players in some positions but they'll learn, just given a few more ballgames."

(Billy) Godley did an excellent job on the mound today," Davis said. "He stayed ahead of the hitters and pitched a real good ballgame."

"It was a heart-breaker," Conley coach Gerald Garner said. "You have to be in position to tie before you can be in position to win."

Bobby Carraway got the first hit of the afternoon off Edwards in the fourth inning with two outs, an infield single. He was thrown out trying to steal second to end the inning.

Carraway came up again with two gone in the bottom of the sixth and FC trailing 1-0. This time he hit the ball to the same place (just to the right of shortstop Steve Mills) and reached base again. He was successful in stealing second base this time, also.

Gerald Wilson followed with a slicing line drive that just was in play on the rightfield line for a double, scoring Carraway.

Taylor Walston hit a routine grounder to Mills that seemed to be a sure third out. However, Mills throw to first was in the dirt and Walston was safe as Wilson raced home with the winning run.

But Conley wasn't about to give in easily.

Edwards and Glenn Clemmons drew walks to open the top of the seventh and Craig Phillips sacrifice bunt moved them to second and third, respectively, with only one out.

Stacey McCarter came up next and after a couple of pitches, Garner flashed the squeeze signal. McCarter failed to bunt the ball and pinch-runner Tim Elks could not evade the tag of catcher Alvin Baker. Baker threw to second trying to double off Clemmons but the throw was just late.

Godley then got a called third strike by McCarter to end the game.

"It was a belt-high fastball, he just bunted through it," Garner said of the missed squeeze. "He's still one of our better bunters. He's had seven hits this year and four of them have been on bunts."

"We had Godley on the ropes," Garner said. "Our sticks are still solid. I think we just left them at our last Easter party. Farmville played well."

While Edwards was working on a no-hitter, Godley was settling down to pitch a four-hitter. Three of those hits came in the first inning when Conley got it's only run.

With one out, Mills singled to center. Todd Rouse followed that with a shot back at the box which went off Godley's leg and into

North Pitt Rolls Over Bears; Roanoke Falls To Tabor City

ROBERSONVILLE — North Pitt and Tabor City advanced into the winners' bracket of the Roanoke Easter Baseball Tournament yesterday with wins. North Pitt took a 9-1 win over Bear Grass, while Tabor City dumped hosting Roanoke, 10-2.

In the opening contest, Bear Grass scored first, getting a run in the opening frame. Tony Leggett singled and Lawrence Watson reached on an error. David Price singled to load the bases and a sacrifice by Mark Taylor plated Leggett for a 1-0 lead.

North Pitt came back to tie it up with one in the third. Greg Briley doubled and moved on to third on an error. He scored on Ken Whitehurst's single.

The Panthers pushed over the winning run in the fourth. Brian Briley walked and stole second. Barry Strickland's single moved him to third, and a balk brought him home for a 2-1 lead.

The Panthers added five in the fifth and two in the sixth to wrap up the contest.

Greg and Brian Briley each had two hits for the Panthers, while no one had more than one for Bear Grass.

Tabor City quickly jumped on Roanoke for four runs in the first inning and put its game on ice. After two were out, Willie Gore doubled and scored on Rodney Allen's single. Kevin Patterson got a hit and Colby Jernigan's double brought in both Allen and Patterson. Randall Duncan then singled in Jernigan for a 4-0 lead.

The Red Devils added four more in the second, three on a homer by Allen, and one each in the third and fourth. Both of the Roanoke runs crossed in the seventh as Allen held the Redskins to only three hits.

Darrell Fowler, Gore, Allen,

Patterson and Duncan each had two hits for Tabor City.

In today's second round, Roanoke and Bear Grass meet at 3 p.m., while Plymouth faces North Pitt at 5:30. Tabor City and Williamston collide at 8 p.m. in the final game of the day.

The consolation and championship games are on Thursday.

Stadler Says He's Ready Now

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Defending champion Craig Stadler says he has corrected a flaw in his putting grip just in time for the 47th Masters golf tournament.

"My game is centered around putting and I've got my confidence now," Stadler said Tuesday following his first practice round on the rolling hills of the Augusta National Golf Club course.

An elite international field of 82 begins the chase for one of golf's most prestigious championships Thursday with no clear-cut favorite in sight.

It took a second-place finish Monday in the weather-delayed Greater Greensboro Open to place Stadler's name on the list of contenders because he had not been playing well this season.

Jack Nicklaus, the only five-time champion in Masters history, always ranks among the favorites along with Tom Watson, twice a winner at Augusta.

Stadler, the burly 200-pounder who won four tournaments in 1982, said he discovered the flaw in his putting grip on the 17th green during the pro-am that kicked off last week's tournament at Greensboro.

He said he always ran the index finger of his right hand down the shaft of the putter, but happened to notice it was curled under.

"I don't know how long I had been doing it," he said. "Maybe it was that one hole, but I corrected it and that's all it took. It was the confidence factor. Confidence is nine-tenths of the battle as far as putting is concerned."

Asked if his game were in shape to repeat as Masters champion, Stadler replied: "Yes, it's good enough."

He said his second place finish at Greensboro bolstered his confidence and that he played well during his practice round Tuesday.

"I probably shot four or five under par through 18 holes," he said.

Stadler said he still had a little work to do on his short game before he would have as much confidence as he had before the start of the 1982 Masters.

Nicklaus historically hones his game for the major events, and the 43-year-old all-time leading money winner owns a career record 19 major titles.

He is entering this year's Masters playing better than he has in several years at this stage of the season. Nicklaus had a string of four consecutive tournaments where he finished eighth or better.

"I'm hitting the ball well and my putting is not bad," Nicklaus said. "There is no reason I can't win again."

The field of 82 breaks down into 60 U.S. professionals, 13 foreign professionals and nine amateurs, seven of those from the U.S.

Among others who could be in line for the green jacket awaiting the winner are Tom Kite, Johnny Miller, Ray Floyd, Bill Rogers, Hal Sutton and Lanny Wadkins.

The foreign contingent is headed by Australian Greg Norman, a long-hitter who will be a threat on Augusta National's par-5s, and Japan's Tommy Nakajima, the leading money winner in his country last year.

Gary Player, the South African who has won three Masters, made his return to competitive golf at Greensboro last week after being sidelined by an ailing back.

Kite has a history of playing well in the Masters, finishing in the top 10 seven times in the last eight years, including five finishes in the top five.

"I've been in position to win here but I can't remember any time I thought I should have won it," Kite said Tuesday.

Lady Bucs Top Heels In Pair

East Carolina's Lady Pirate softball team picked up a pair of 1-0 lackluster victories over the University of North Carolina yesterday.

The victories moved the Lady Pirates to 11-4 on the season, while Carolina slumps to 7-9.

East Carolina's Jeanette Roth held the Tar Heels scoreless for most of the first game, giving way to Fran Hooks in the sixth inning of the first game. Roth then came back to shut out the Tar Heels again in the second contest.

The Pirates got their lone run in the fifth inning of the first game. Cynthia Shepard singled and moved up on an out. Jolanda Clayton then singled her to third. Sandra Kee hit a line drive that was caught at short, and when the throw was made to first in an effort to double up Clayton, Shepard tagged up and streaked home to score the game's only run.

The second game also saw Shepard play a key role. The game remained scoreless until the seventh, when the Lady Pirates finally scored. Yvonne Williams reached on an error and Shepard tripled her in with the winning run.

Shepard had two hits in the second game, and was the only hitter to have more than one hit in either game for either team.

"I think when games are close, it's nice to come out on top," Coach Sue Manahan said. "There was no intensity on either team's part. We were lucky that they were no more intense than we were. I don't know if we were tired or looking ahead (to Florida State)."

"I think Jeanette kept us in both games. She kept them off balance in both games. It's difficult to be upset when you win."

East Carolina plays host to Florida State, twice defending national champions, on Thursday.

Some Things Change, Some Don't In Baseball

By The Associated Press
Some things never change... like Billy Martin arguing with the umpires. And some things do... like the California Angels bringing in a left-hander to pitch to Milwaukee's Cecil Cooper.

It took exactly three batters for Martin to get into the swing of things as he began his third term as manager of the New York Yankees. He ran to argue with rookie second base umpire Dan Morrison, who called Dave Winfield out when he tried to stretch a single into a double.

But Martin's biggest gripe came in the Seattle half of the third when Morrison allowed a leadoff double by Julio Cruz to stand although television replays showed that a fan leaned out of the stands and deflected it away from a leaping Winfield.

The hit triggered a four-run inning and the Mariners went on to nip the Yankees 5-4 on Al Cowens' seventh-inning sacrifice fly, the 21st time in 33 games they have beaten New York in the Seattle Kingdom.

"The best player the Mariners had tonight was that umpire at second base," Martin said. "He had a brutal night. Maybe he's a bad umpire. If he is, he won't be in the league very long."

Meanwhile, in Anaheim, John McNamara, the Angels' new manager, summoned Andy Hassler, a journeyman left-hander, with two out in the top of the ninth inning, two runners on base, California leading by a run and dangerous Cecil Cooper, a left-handed hitter who had doubled home Milwaukee's first run, at bat.

It was a familiar scene.

In the fifth and deciding game of last year's American League playoffs, Gene Mauch, then the California manager, stuck with right-handed Luis Sanchez with two out in the bottom of the seventh and the Angels leading 3-2. Cooper delivered a two-run single and the Brewers went on to win the game — and the pennant — 4-3.

Mauch was second-guessed, with one of the loudest second-guessers being Hassler. Mauch resigned a few weeks later.

Tuesday night, after throwing a wild pitch to put runners at second and third, Hassler retired Cooper on a grounder to second to end the game.

"That's what they pay me for," said a grinning Hassler. "Looking back, yeah, I was aware of the irony."

In other AL action, Texas

beat the Chicago White Sox 3-1, Toronto whipped Boston 7-1, and Detroit hammered Minnesota 11-3.

The Mariners erased a 1-0 Yankee lead in the third inning. After Cruz's double, a passed ball by Butch Wynegar and a walk to Steve Henderson, they scored the tying run on Manny Castillo's grounder. Richie Zisk slammed a two-out homer for a 3-1 lead and the Mariners added their fourth run on a single by Dave Henderson and an RBI double by Pat Putnam.

"That changed the entire complexion of the game," said Winfield. "I felt I was ready to make the catch and the ball never touched my glove. The umpire didn't see the play. He wasn't close enough to see it."

The Yankees tied the score 4-4 and chased 44-year-old Seattle starter Gaylord Perry with three runs in the sixth. After Roy Smalley opened the inning with a single, Winfield and Steve Kemp homered on consecutive pitches.

California's Bruce Kison made the first opening-game start of his 12-year big-league career and held the Brewers to five hits and one run over the first 62-3 innings.

The Angels took a 1-0 lead off Don Sutton in the first inning on rookie Daryl Sconiers' second major league homer. California went ahead to stay in the fourth on singles by Reggie Jackson, Doug DeCinces and Bobby Grich and made it 3-1 in the fifth when Brian Downing walked, was sacrificed to second, took third on a fly ball and scored on a passed ball by Ted Simmons.

Rangers 4, White Sox 1

For the second consecutive night, Texas got help from an unexpected source — its much-maligned bullpen. Mike Mason and Odell Jones put Chicago down without a hit over the final 21-3 innings in relief of winner Jon Matlack and the Rangers roughed up Floyd Bannister, the White Sox's $900,000-a-year free agent pitcher.

The Rangers broke a 1-1 tie in the fifth inning when Bucky Dent singled and Billy Sample walked. Dent stole third and scored on Buddy Bell's infield hit. Larry Parrish's double and Dent's single made it 3-1 in the sixth.

Blue Jays 7, Red Sox 1

Willie Upshaw drove in three runs with a homer and a single and Rance Mulliniks hit a two-run homer, while Dave Stieb allowed just three hits in six innings, including Dave Stapleton's homer in the sixth.

Boston starter Dennis Eckersley was warned by umpire Larry Barnett in the fourth after hitting Mulliniks with a pitch. In the fifth, Boston's Jim Rice was nicked on the helmet by a Stieb pitch and had to be restrained from going after the Toronto pitcher. Both dugouts and bullpens emptied but no punches were thrown.

Tigers 11, Twins 3

A three-run homer by Larry Herndon in a six-run first inning triggered a 15-hit attack, which included six extra-base hits. Jack Morris went seven innings for Detroit, yielding six hits, walking two and striking out six, while Minnesota starter Brad Havens was shelled for seven hits and eight runs in 11-3 innings.

Lou Whitaker and Alan Trammell opened the game with singles and Herndon followed with a 410-foot home run. Lance Parrish and Chet Lemon walked. Parrish scored on Mike Ivie's double and Whitaker, batting for the second time in the inning, drove in Lemon and Ivie with a single.

Candelaria Looks For Healthy Season

By The Associated Press
Pittsburgh pitcher John Candelaria says his "big objective this year is trying to stay healthy." One game into the 1983 season, Keith Hernandez and the St. Louis Cardinals are probably already sick of him.

Candelaria, a left-hander who two years ago in St. Louis nearly saw his career come to an end when he tore a muscle in his pitching arm, ripped through the Cards' lineup Tuesday, scattering four hits and striking out 10 batters — including Hernandez three times — to hand the 1982 World Series winners a 7-1 loss in their National League season opener.

Also Tuesday in the NL, Tom Seaver and the New York Mets muffled Philadelphia 2-0, San Diego outmuscled San Francisco 16-13 and Los Angeles buried Houston 16-7. The Montreal Expos' season opener against the Cubs in Chicago was rained out and rescheduled for today.

"You're playing a team that won the world championship last year," Candelaria said. "If you aren't up to play, it's time to take a hike. The challenge is there."

"When I'm healthy and I'm throwing well," he added, "I think I'm a pretty decent pitcher."

From first pitch to last, Candelaria challenged the St. Louis lineup to hit the ball — he walked only two batters — and the only hit that hurt was George Hendrick's RBI double in the bottom of the first.

"This is the kind of day that you can complete a game if you're throwing strikes. The weather doesn't take a lot out of you," said Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner. "He kept the ball over the plate."

After baffling Hernandez all afternoon, Candelaria observed: "Keith is such a good hitter that I'm sure that isn't going to happen very often. I'm sure by the end of the year it's going to even out."

While the Cardinals were waving helplessly at Candelaria's offerings, the Pirates were pounding Bob Forsch and five relievers for 11 hits. Lee Lacy, Dale Berra and Lee Mazzilli hit solo home runs off Forsch in the first five innings and Jason Thompson unleashed a three-run shot off Doug Bair in the ninth.

"You hit four home runs in this ballpark and you're hitting pretty good," said St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog.

Mets 2, Phillies 0

Tom Seaver made his return to New York virtually a perfect one, silencing Philadelphia on three hits through six innings. He might have gone further if the muscles in his left thigh — the one he'd pulled during spring training — began to tighten.

"There was no sharp pain but I felt if I went another inning I'd definitely pull it again," he said.

Fortunately for the Mets, Manager George Bamberger called upon rookie Doug Sisk. He finished the shutout, allowing two hits and striking out three over the final three innings, and picked up his first victory in the major leagues when the Mets nicked Steve Carlton for two runs in the seventh inning on a bases-loaded single by Mike Howard and a sacrifice fly by Brian Giles.

"The first couple of innings were very emotional," said Seaver, who had spent 5½ seasons in Cincinnati following 10½ with the Mets. "It's great to be back, especially when you get a warm reception like I did. When something like that happens, you don't want to go out and fall flat on your face."

Padres 16, Giants 13

Steve Garvey made his debut with San Diego a successful one, getting two hits and an RBI in four at-bats — not that the Padres needed them. They pounded Mike Krukow and five San Francisco relievers for 17 hits, eight of them in an eight-run fifth inning.

Garry Templeton drove in four runs and scored three and pitcher Tim Lollar had three RBI. Bob Bremly had four RBI for the Giants.

Twice the Padres built 10-run leads, then they fended off the Giants, who amassed 16 hits of their own. There were five homers in the game, four by San Francisco. It was the highest scoring Opening Day in the Giants' 100-year history.

"I can't recall any game — playing, coaching or managing — as wild as this one," said San Diego Manager Dick Williams. And Giants Manager Frank Robinson mused: "I hope we hope don't have to score 17 runs every game to win."

Dodgers 16, Padres 7

Ken Landreaux's six RBI on a double, single and sacrifice fly and Pedro Guerrero's five with a homer and a triple paced the Dodgers to their biggest Opening-Day victory since 1978, when they pummeled Atlanta 13-4.

Fernando Valenzuela, the Dodgers' million-dollar baby, wasn't around long enough to enjoy the fireworks. He saw plenty of his own — off Houston's bats. The Astros tagged him for six runs on seven hits and chased him in the third inning. Los Angeles put the game away with a six-run sixth.

Akeem, Drexler To Return In 1983-84

HOUSTON (AP) — University of Houston Coach Guy Lewis already has started planning for next season and he expects to include Akeem Olajuwon and Clyde Drexler, two players rumored ready to turn in their Phi Slama Jama fraternity pins.

"They've told me they are coming back and I believe them," Lewis said Tuesday after the Cougars arrived home to a pep rally of 5,000 appreciative fans.

Drexler and Olajuwon are rumored to be planning to forfeit their college eligibility in favor of the National Basketball Association.

"I'm going to stay no matter what," said Olajuwon, a sophomore. "I would give away all the awards I've won just to win that game."

"We blew it this year. The whole team did, not just one person. We think we can come back and win it next year."

Drexler, a junior, also said he plans to be playing for Houston next fall.

"Right now I'm going to stay in school and get my degree," Drexler said. "But I've to consider any offers and how much I love the University of Houston."

"Winning the national championship means the world to me and we came so close to doing it. It's no fun to be a loser."

Houston's season came to a close Monday night when underdog North Carolina State beat the Cougars 54-52 for the NCAA national title on a last-second stuff shot by Lorenzo Charles.

Lewis can look forward to having four starters returning from the national championship finalist if Olajuwon and Drexler stick with their current plans to remain in school.

Only three players, starter Larry Micheaux and reserves David Rose and Bryan Williams will graduate.

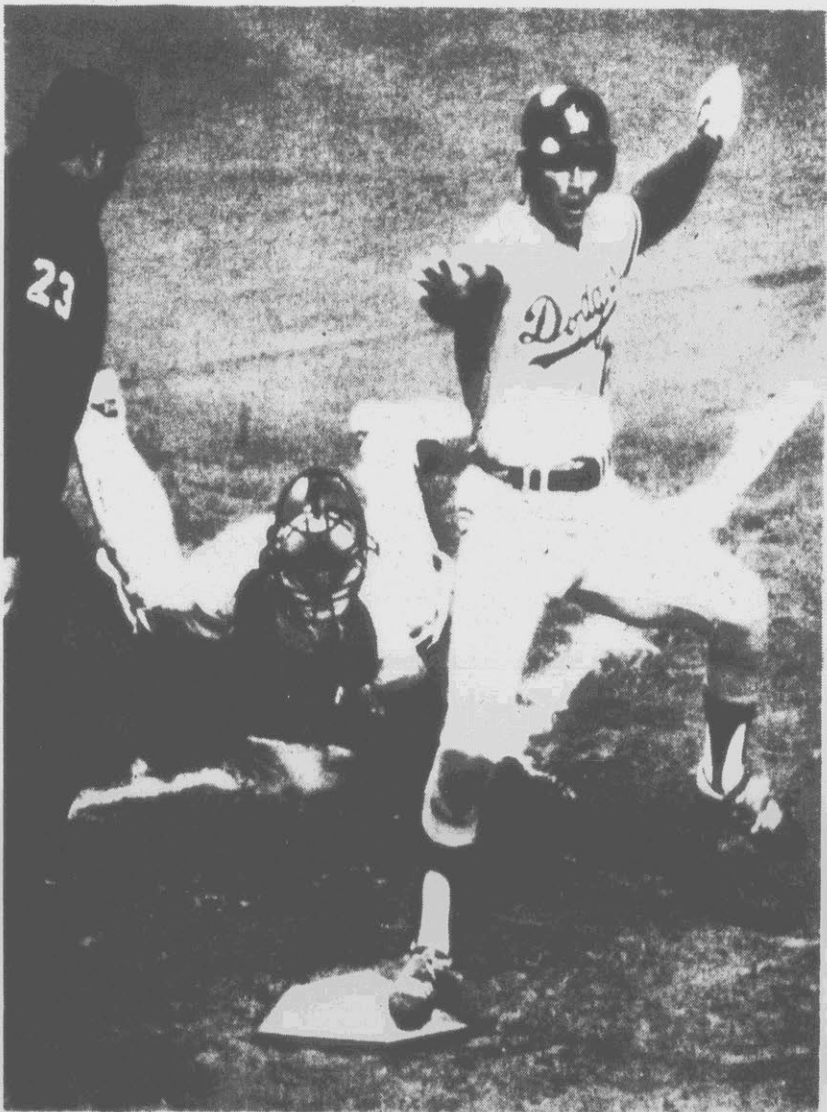

Olajuwon finished the season with 175 blocked shots and 68 dunks while Drexler was second in Phi Slama Jama dunks with 55 and finished second on the team with 129 assists.

The Cougars arrived at Robertson Stadium in two buses as the band played the school fight song and the crowd chanted "Phi Slama Jama." Coach Guy Lewis led his team to the platform with his young granddaughter in tow, wearing a red knit sweater inscribed "Ask About My Grandad, Guy Lewis."

Lewis heard again questions about his use of a passing game in the second half against the Wolfpack.

"I've been criticized for going slow and going fast," Lewis said. "We didn't win the game so I am going to get criticized. We'd like to have brought back that championship trophy but we didn't."

"It wasn't because we took them lightly. Believe me, we knew that game yesterday was going to be a tough one."

Smith Drops Steelers, Jumps To USFL Stallions

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Wide receiver Jim Smith, known for his ability to make long bomb catches in six NFL seasons, has dropped a bombshell of his own on the Pittsburgh Steelers. He's jumping to the United States Football League.

Smith, expected to move into the Steelers' starting lineup this season because of Lynn Swann's retirement, instead signed a lucrative three-year contract Tuesday with the Birmingham Stallions.

Smith, 27, plans to suit up this weekend for the Stallions, who are coached by former Steelers' offensive line coach Rolfe Dotsch.

"Jim was a premier receiver in the National Football League and I think he's one of the best there is," Dotsch said.

Smith's sudden jump apparently caught the Steelers by surprise. Steelers President Dan Rooney is in Los Angeles for the Raiders-NFL trial and was unavailable for comment.

Smith earned a base salary of $107,000 in 1982, but will earn more in the new contract than any receiver in National Football League history, according to his agent, Howard Slusher. But no money figure was disclosed by Smith, Slusher or the Stallions.

"I had six wonderful years there (in Pittsburgh)," Smith told the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette. "I'm leaving because this is an opportunity that I won't ever have again."

"When a monetary opportunity like this comes along, with a chance to play for a young team, for a first class organization and a first class coach like Rolfe Dotsch, it's the sort of deal I just can't refuse."

Smith's jump to the USFL is one the more significant to date made by an NFL player and means the Steelers now have lost two of their three top receivers since January.

Amateurs Challenge Odds At Augusta

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Masters — the golfing dream of a great amateur yet a tournament an amateur has never won.

Robert Tyre Jones, out of whose head came the magnificent Augusta course and the annual spring tournament that brings the sport to life, died in December, 1981, without ever seeing his hopes fulfilled.

Now the odds grow longer every year that a young man out of the Jones mold and representing his ideals of golf for fun can pierce the steel ring of touring professionals. "I don't say it's impossible for an amateur to win but the chances are remote — and they're going to get tougher all the time," says Charlie Coe, former U.S. Amateur champion from Oklahoma City who finished just a shot back of winner Gary Player's 280 in 1961, tied with Arnold Palmer.

"There's so much money to be won that kids don't wait around long enough to mature as amateurs — they turn pro as quickly as they can."

Jack Nicklaus says an amateur has a better chance to win the Masters than the U.S. Open because of the unfettered fairways and spacious greens.

"It would be a long shot," Nicklaus conceded, "but can't ever say never — especially at the Masters."

Besides Coe, a member of the exclusive Augusta Club, the greatest amateur charge was made in 1954 by the aggressive, wild-hitting Billy Joe Patton, who scored a hole-in-one in finishing a shot back of Ben Hogan and Sam Snead. Snead won the playoff.

Seven amateurs are in the field of 82 slated to tee off Thursday in the 47th Masters, including Bing's kid, Nathaniel Crosby, a U.S. Amateur winner.

None is better than a 100-1 shot.

Yet a little scenario played back in 1960 in Monterrey, Mexico, might have changed the whole thrust of bigtime golf if a small twist had gone the other way.

Nicklaus, a two-time U.S. Amateur champion, at age 20 was agonizing over an important decision while waiting to play on the U.S. team in the America's Cup amateur event, matching top players of this country, Canada and Mexico.

Tremendous pressure was being applied on him to turn professional. Jack, with a strong feel for amateur golf such as that of Bobby Jones, wasn't sure the tour was the life for him.

Many higher ups in the golf establishment were among those seeking to keep Jack an amateur. Jones wrote a lengthy, impassioned letter pointing out the benefits of remaining an amateur while pursuing a business career.

A report came out of New York that Nicklaus already had made a decision to turn pro and was violating the amateur code by not withdrawing from the Americas Cup matches.

Jack and his father, Charlie, were livid. They insisted that the report was unfounded and untrue.

The golf world was envisioning another great amateur-pro rivalry between Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, the popular pro, comparable to the Jones-Walter Hagen confrontations in the 1920s.

"That was impractical," Nicklaus said here Tuesday after an Augusta practice round. "It's true I was undecided about turning pro for a while but, regardless, no lasting rivalry would have developed."

"There is no way an amateur can compete with a top pro, who is playing topflight competition week-in and week-out."

"The only competition an amateur can get is once a year in the U.S. Open and, of course, maybe the Masters."

It was this thinking that ultimately compelled Jack to take the pro route.

"I decided if I was to make golf an important part of my life," he said, "then I must participate at the highest level. That's the pro level."

Nicklaus' rationale was justified. He has become not only the world's most successful player but also one of its most successful businessmen — winner of 69 tour events, an unprecedented 19 majors, prize earnings of $4 million and wide involvements in golf course architecture and other ventures.

Jones was the ultimate amateur. Born of well-to-do Atlanta parents, he started playing golf as a tyke and by the time he was a teen-ager was beating most grownups.

By the time he was 28, he had won every major championship, including the 1930 Grand Slam (U.S. Open and Amateur, British Open and Amateur), and had elected to retire. He made movies of golf instruction and endorsed equipment but always refused to allow himself to be called a pro. In December, 1971, at age 69, he died, leaving the Masters as his legacy.

Johnny Miller Looking Forward To Masters Tourney, 1983 Tour

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Just the hint of a smile, as if he knew a secret, flitted with the corners of Johnny Miller's mouth.

"I think it's going to be an exciting year for me," the one-time Golden Boy — now a seasoned 35-year-old — said after a practice round for the 47th Masters tournament, the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

His comeback has been confirmed. And now, Miller said, he's primed and ready to challenge for a return to the position of dominance he once held.

Miller went into a four-year decline after his glory years of the mid-70s, but rebounded with a victory in 1980. He now has won at least once, including the Inverrary Classic earlier this season, in each of the last four years.

"Each win was another step back up the ladder," he said. And now he's looking at still another step, a major stride.

"Even when I was winning everything, I wasn't a consistent player. I either won or finished nowhere," he said.

"Over the winter, I set two goals for myself.

"One is that, for the first time in my career, I'm going to be a consistent player. I had a consistent year last season. I only won once, but I had a stroke average of 70.7 and that's not bad. I was top 10 five or six times.

"Well, this year I want to be even more consistent."

And Miller is right on target. He's been top 10 three times and has a scoring average of 70.3.

"I've always played good on the West Coast, but I've never played well in the spring and summer," he said.

"The way I'm putting, the way I'm playing, I'm expecting a good spring and summer."

And, he suggested, it may be even better than good.

"The win at Inverrary was important. It was another step up the ladder," he said.

"I think I'm ready to make a shot at the leaders again."

"Maybe I'm not yet ready to be No. 1. But I might be No. 2 or 3."

"I think I'm ready for that."

The second goal he set for himself, Miller said, was "win in the majors again, and win this year."

"I'm really excited about the majors. All of them. Look at the courses. I couldn't have picked them better."

"There's Riviera (in Los Angeles, the site of the PGA). I've won there. It's one of my favorites."

"There's Oakmont (for the U.S. Open). I've won there (the American national championship in 1973).

"There's Royal Birkdale (for the British Open). I've won there (the British Open in 1976).

"And then there's Augusta National. I've been second here three times. There's no reason I can't win here."

"It's all a matter of putting and nerves. If my putting holds up, and my nerves hold up, I can win."

"I might be ready to challenge again, challenge in the majors."

"I think it's going to be exciting."

Pacers May Be Forced To Move

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indiana Pacers are making a determined effort to fill the vacant seats in Market Square Arena next year. The trouble is, there probably won't be a team here, says General Manager Bob Saliers.

Financial problems that were aggravated by a 50 percent drop in attendance this season have all but spelled doom for the National Basketball Association franchise in Indianapolis, says Saliers, reporting a grim decision by co-owners Sam Nassi and Frank Mariani to unload the club.

In other words, Saliers told a news conference on Tuesday, if the team is not sold, it will likely fold. There is a "very high probability" it will not be in Indianapolis, the Pacers' home for their entire 16-year existence.

"Yesterday, I would have said there's a possibility the team might not be here next year. Today, there's a very high probability. That's the biggest difference (in the team's status)," he said, reporting a telephone conversation early Tuesday morning with his California bosses.

The Pacer's Indianapolis management had scheduled the news conference late last week. It was supposed to be an announcement of a major price reduction in tickets in an effort to lure disenchanted fans back to the 17,000-seat arena, which has seen a decline in attendance from a high of more than 12,000 per game in 1977-78 to 10,000 two years ago to 8,000 last year and about 4,000 this season.

Nassi, who bought the team in 1979, has raised ticket prices twice in the past two years, and seats currently average more than $13 — second-highest in the 23-team NBA. The new ticket scale would lower the most expensive seats from $20 to $14, and the cheapest seats from $7.50 to $4. Tickets would average $8.87, Saliers said.

Speaking in front of a 48-foot billboard showing Uncle Sam in a Pacer uniform and proclaiming "The Indiana Pacers Are Drafting For You," Saliers said, "I'm not up here telling people to buy tickets, or that if they do buy them we'll stay here. I'm not authorized to say that. But it's my personal opinion that season ticket sales will be a consideration."

The current ticket prices put the Pacers second only to the Los Angeles Lakers. But the Pacers have come nowhere near matching the Lakers' success on the court or in the stands. Indiana currently is in the Eastern Conference cellar with the team's worst record in history.

Several potential out-of-town buyers have talked with Nassi, including baseball's Reggie Jackson, but he has not received any offers, Saliers said.

Nassi has set no deadline for sale of the team. Saliers said if no buyer is found, there is a possibility the team could be acquired by the league, which would likely mean its demise.

One possible ray of hope is that the Pacers will have four of the top 39 draft selections in June. If they finish last in the East, they would flip a coin with the last-place team in the Western Division, currently the Houston Rockets, for the right to pick first in the draft.

Still, Saliers said, the local management is not counting on that as a franchise-saver.

The money from ticket sales will be put in escrow and returned to purchasers if the team is moved or folded, said Saliers.

"There are a lot of variables that will determine the fate of this franchise, and ticket sales are one. But I want this to be absolutely clear, that we are going ahead with the ticket campaign knowing the probability the team won't be here next year is high," he said.

Saliers also said he had talked with city and local business interests in hopes of keeping the team in Indianapolis. "I wouldn't have expected any commitment from them; I haven't been given any encouragement by them," he said.

The Pacers, charter members and three-time champions in the old American Basketball Association, joined the NBA with three other ABA teams in 1976. Only once in seven NBA seasons has Indiana finished above .500 — in 1981 — when the Pacers went 44-38.

Indiana was 19-56 going into tonight's game at New Jersey.

Coach Jack McKinney, who was named NBA coach of the year for his first season with Indiana in 1980-81, is only the third coach in the team's history.

The European Junior Championships produced much good bridge. The juniors showed remarkable maturity in all phases of the game. Watch the technique of A. Eastwood of England on this hand.

North showed his distributional hand by passing over West's preemptive jump and then pulling his partner's double. After North subsequently confirmed a six-card heart suit, South drove to slam. He selected six no trump to protect his king of diamonds from a lead through.

West did not want to present declarer with a diamond trick, so he chose the safe lead of a heart. Declarer won in hand and cashed two more heart tricks. When West followed to both, it was obvious that the black suits were not going to break. Since West surely had at least six diamonds for his weak jump overcall and he had shown up with three hearts, he had at most four cards in the black suits.

If you plan a squeeze play, you usually must need to make the rest of the tricks. To bring about such a position, you sometimes have to concede a trick to the opponents to correct the count. South could not afford to do that here because he was missing both the ace and queen of diamonds. Therefore, his only hope was to play for a squeeze "without the count."

Declarer cashed all of dummy's hearts, coming down to three spades and four clubs in his hand and four spades, two clubs and a diamond in dummy. East had to hold four spades and three clubs to protect against declarer running the black suits, so he was forced to let go all his diamonds. The rest was easy. Declarer cashed the ace-king of clubs and conceded a club to East, setting up the fourth club in his hand. In all, he made three spade tricks, six hearts and three clubs, while not losing a diamond trick.

Youth Groups Reverse Decline

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Officials of mainstream youth organizations in North Carolina say membership is increasing again, reversing a trend of declining enrollments.

Girl Scouts in the state have seen their ranks swell to 60,940 in 1982 from 50,631 five years earlier — a 20.3 percent increase.

The state's Boy Scouts recorded only a 2.3 percent increase in the same period, from 83,985 to 85,923.

But scouting leaders say that given the competition from video screens — along with the declining birthrate — even a small increase is worth noting.

"For the last three years, we have had steady growth, just like the Boy Scouts of America nationwide," said Bill Evans, director of field services for the Raleigh-based Oconeechee Council. "Now we are ahead of the national average in membership."

Evans said the renaissance for the Boy Scouts came in 1977 with the goal of enrolling every boy in the nation. The result was a larger enrollment of inner-city youths, changes in basic scouting programs and a switch in emphasis from service to recruiting.

But overall enrollment dropped, and the scouts hired an opinion research firm to find out what today's youths really want.

"The study found the boys wanted the same things they wanted 60 to 70 years ago when we first got started," Evans said. "They wanted camping and other outdoor activities and some other, more sophisticated things to do."

Girl Scout activities now include business and computers, aerospace and crime-fighting, said Arlene M. Tobias of the Pines of Carolina Girl Scout Council in Raleigh, the largest of the state's councils.

"We revised our program materials to meet the needs and interests of today's girls, but we continued to adhere to our traditional philosophy of career-oriented activities," she said.

The 4-H Club, which has an agricultural heritage, is taking advantage of what some say is a movement back to tradition. From 1978 to 1982, membership in the state's 4-H clubs rose to 101,000 from 97,000, primarily because the group expanded to urban areas.

Massive Storm Brings Snow, Twisters, And Floods

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

A massive storm stretching from Utah to Virginia brought snow, twisters and floods that forced hundreds from their homes, while tornado-like winds turned a Disneyland gondola into a terrifying ride for 104 tourists.

The storm that first hit the West Coast on Sunday and then stalled over the nation's midsection, causing eight deaths, was forecast to bring more drenching rains to the saturated heartland today.

Another quick-moving storm slammed into Southern California on Tuesday, packing tornado-like winds that temporarily trapped 104 people in an elevated gondola at Disneyland.

Snow fell from the southern Rockies to Nebraska to the Texas Panhandle, halting travel with chest-high drifts.

Causing the assorted problems was "basically one big system" carrying moisture through the nation, said Steve Corfidi of the National Weather Service's Severe Storms Center in Kansas City, Mo. "It's really a static situation in a sense."

At Disneyland, many children were among those stranded above the Anaheim amusement park when the high winds struck, officials said. They were rescued with a truck-mounted "cherry picker."

"I was freaking out," said one passenger, teen-ager Gerrit Winkelaar from Medicine Hat, Alberta. "I was screaming and my sister said, 'Shut up. If you panic, I panic.'"

High winds ripped the roof off a building in another part of Anaheim, winds swirled through nearby Fullerton, and a Thousand Oaks man was critically injured when he was struck by lightning. At least 10,000 customers in the Los Angeles area had power knocked out by the storm, officials said.

A twister in the small southwestern Mississippi town of Bude heavily damaged 13 homes and three businesses and injured four people.

Kathy Perkins, whose husband Larry was hospitalized for arterial injuries after he broke a window at a damaged trailer to rescue his niece, said "it was just all of a sudden" that the twister hit. "We heard a roar and everybody hit the floor."

Winds roared across northern Utah, gusting up to 74 mph Tuesday, and knocking out power transmission towers. The gusts Monday and Tuesday caused $5 million in damage to the Utah Power & Light system, a utility spokesman said, with more than 10,000 customers still without power Tuesday night.

Drenching rains swelled parts of the Mississippi River and its tributaries to up to 8 feet above flood stage.

In southeast Tennessee, 50 families were evacuated Tuesday and two men were killed in a flash floods when their car stalled crossing a creek and was carried downstream. Many bridges were washed out.

The storm also was blamed for four deaths in California, one in Colorado and one in Texas.

Flooding forced at least 60 families out of their homes along the Illinois and Spoon Rivers in central and southern Illinois.

"Two-thirds of the town is virtually inaccessible," said Alderman Ed Amburg in Grafton, Ill. where the river was expected to crest at 9.6 feet above flood states.

At Hannibal, Mo., where 20 families were evacuated, the Mississippi River crested 8 feet above flood stage, held back by sandbag dikes.

The Army Corps of Engineers issued more than 150,000 sandbags to residents of St. Charles, Mo., where the Missouri River was 7 feet above flood level and still rising.

The Highway Patrol closed off about four miles of Highway 63 near Jefferson City, Mo., after a dike broke and water flooded two lanes.

Two inches of rain pushed the Pearl River at Jackson, Miss., toward a 28-foot flood stage, as rain continued to fall.

Tornadoes touched down in Hattiesburg, Miss., Owens Crossroads, Ala., and Walker, La., the weather service said, causing "several injuries." Marble-sized hail bombarded Baker, La., and parts of Arkansas.

Winds gusting to 37 mph in Baton Rouge, La., felled trees and snapped branches, knocking out power to up to 10,000 customers, authorities said.

More snow was forecast in the southern Rockies, where the storms have produced up to 40 inches of new snow in some areas.

The Forecast For Thursday, April 7

• Low Temperatures

WEATHER FORECAST - The National Weather Service forecasts rain for Thursday from the central Gulf to the mid-Atlantic states. Snow is forecast for the Southwest, and most areas will be colder. (AP Laserphoto Map)

By The Associated Press

More rain is likely for North Carolina at least through Thursday, with some hope of clearing by the weekend.

The combination of weak high pressure well off the coast and low pressure stretching from the Gulf of Mexico increased moisture over the South during the past 24 hours.

Considerable cloudiness with periods of rain and a few thunderstorms were reported in the western part of North Carolina yesterday and last night. Rainfall in some sections of the mountains ranged from one to two inches.

The clouds and occasional rain kept temperatures in the upper 40s and mid 50s over the mountains yesterday. Meanwhile, some sunshine over the east allowed temperatures to reach the low and mid 70s over the southeast.

Cherry Point and Fayetteville topped the list at 75, while Jacksonville and New Bern were close seconds at 74.

Overnight, the temperatures levelled off in the upper 40s to mid 50s early this morning.

It will be mostly cloudy across the state Thursday. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms will be more frequent over the western and northern portions tonight.

The threat of showers will diminish somewhat Thursday as a weak cold front moves into the eastern part of the state. This front will be nearing the mountains tonight, and move slowly across North Carolina during Thursday. High readings Thursday will again be mostly in the 60s and 70s.

A 'Serious' Senate Resolution To Honor Wolfpack

By F. ALAN BOYCE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Senate will vote on a "serious" resolution honoring North Carolina State's NCAA basketball champions today after a suggestion to name U.S. bomber squadrons after the Wolfpack's most potent long-range weapons failed to fly.

Under a resolution introduced Tuesday by Sen. Bob Davis, D-Rowan, Congress would have been asked to name its squadrons after Derek Whittenburg, Sidney Lowe and Terry Gannon. All three fired shots from beyond 20 feet to help N.C. State defeat Houston 54-52 in the championships Monday night.

"We witnessed trench warfare buttressed by the most devastating bomber attack ever seen on a basketball court in the NCAA championship game between Houston and the 'Cardiac Kids,'" Davis told the Senate, which had to suspend its rules in order to consider the bill.

Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell, then suggested coach Jim Valvano be included and Sen. Conrad Duncan, D-Rockingham, said, "How about Thurl Bailey?"

"I just put the bombers in. They wanted the men in the trenches," Davis said.

Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, finally suggested the matter be delayed until Wednesday.

"This is a lot of fun," he said. "But I think we should pass a resolution to honor them."

The Senate agreed to draft a more serious resolution.

Lt. Gov. Jimmy Green tried to assure onlookers in the gallery that the Senate was not always so rowdy.

"This is the first time this tomfoolery has gone on in this session and I don't want the gallery to get the wrong impression," he said.

Moments later, Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, moved the Senate adjourn in honor of "the Cardiac Kids and Jim Valvano, who have brought fame and honor to this state."

A similar motion accompanied House adjournment.

Governor's Appointees

The General Assembly unanimously approved Gov. Jim Hunt's three appointees to the North Carolina Board of Education in a joint session.

The legislature renewed the appointments of C.D. Spangler Jr., the current board chairman, and Norma B. Turnage of Rocky Mount. The joint session also approved Mebane M. Pritchett of Lenoir as a new appointee.

Spangler, a Charlotte banker, was appointed to the board in August 1982 to replace chairman Dr. David Bruton, who resigned. Pritchett is the executive director of the John Motley Morehead Foundation in Chapel Hill and has a background in law.

Session Length

A Senate subcommittee continued discussions on a proposal to limit the length of legislative sessions and reorganize the General Assembly's committee structure.

The State Government Committee panel agreed to formulate several specific plans before it meets next week.

The option that seems most popular among subcommittee members is limiting by statute the biennial sessions but allowing standing committees to operate between sessions.

Committee chairman Sen. Gerry Hancock, D-Durham, said under the new system some legislative study committees might be absorbed by the standing panels.

Hancock said that by lopping 20 days off the average legislative session, the state could save $400,000, although he acknowledged that the savings would be offset by increased costs of stepped-up activity between sessions.

Convening the legislature on March 15 every other year, instead of in January, would give the governor and state departments more time to organize and present their programs, he said.

Appropriations committees might have to be slimmed down and permitted to convene before the full legislature, said Hancock.

"We may need to look at the entire appropriations procedure," he said. "It's the tail that wags the dog ... it determines the way we do everything."

"Unless the General Assembly wants to try to become a small executive branch, maybe we should stop being 'so painstaking over every small item (in the budget).'"

Teacher Exchange

A mandatory teacher exchange program between universities and public schools would not improve schools or teachers, a University of North Carolina System official told the House Education Committee.

Donald Stedman, associate vice president for academic affairs, said he opposed a bill that proposes studying the feasibility of requiring some college professors to teach in public schools while schoolteachers addressed their college classes.

He said UNC's quality assurance program is already addressing the concerns that prompted the bill by Rep. Howard Chapin, D-Beaufort. Stedman also warned that the pilot study would cost the state money and that "pilot programs become policies in some form" when they are done.

Chapin contends the exchange would upgrade the quality of teachers by showing educators and the professors who train them what the job requires.

The committee delayed action on the bill until more people wishing to be heard could appear.

Hazardous Wastes

The Senate Judiciary I Committee postponed action on a House bill that would require the bottoms of hazardous waste landfills to be 30 feet above the water table.

The bill was attacked sharply by some committee members as unfair to western North Carolina, while state officials said it was an inadequate response to the hazardous waste disposal problem.

Ron Levine, director of the Division of Health Services in the Department of Human Resources, said landfill locations should be determined on the basis of factors other than proximity to the water table.

"Distance isn't the most important thing. Soil composition is," he said. "If your soil is sandy, the wastes can reach the water table (even if it's 30 feet down) within three days."

O.W. Strickland, head of the division's solid and hazardous waste branch, said under the House bill 90 percent of the state would be unfit for a landfill.

The only suitable area would be several counties in the foothills, he said.

Committee chairman Sen. Julian Allsbrook, D-Halifax, scheduled a vote on the bill for April 14, giving supporters and opponents a chance to appear before the panel.

Housing

The Senate approved four housing bills, including one designed to hold down interest on housing loans and a resolution to continue federal funds for low-income housing.

Also approved was a bill removing the state Housing Authority from the authority of the state Utilities Commission and a resolution asking Congress to set up tax deferred savings plans for those wishing to purchase their first homes.

Option Rental

A bill to bring rental-with-option-to-buy transactions under the Retail Installment Sales Act won quick, unanimous approval of the House Judiciary II Committee.

Rep. Jeanne Fenner, D-Wilson, said the bill would close a loophole in the 1971 law, which was designed to protect consumers who rent merchandise with the understanding that they can buy it later.

Some businesses have been misleading customers by failing to specify in contracts that the buyer must make all weekly payments to own the item, Ms. Fenner said. Thus, when they fail to make a payment the property is repossessed and the customer loses credit for the payments he has made.

Under the bill, all such transactions would be defined legally as sales, thus requiring that the contracts make the arrangements clear. The transactions also would be subject to other regulations on sales such as limited interest rates.

Colleges

The House Higher Education Committee approved a bill that would allow private universities and colleges to bypass the University of North Carolina Board of Governors when it makes budget requests.

John Henley of the N.C. Association of Independent Colleges and Universities said the group is selecting five college trustees and three college presidents to handle budget requests and work with the General Assembly.

He noted that some UNC board members have felt a conflict of interest when asked to recommend funding levels for private institutions.

The committee sent to subcommittee a bill that would limit the state subsidy for college students from outside North Carolina who attend a school in the UNC system. The subsidy would go from $2,800 to $1,200, said Rep. John Jordan, D-Alamance, bill sponsor.

The bill also would increase the subsidy for in-state students attending private colleges. The subsidy would go from $850 a year to $1,200.

Jordan said the measure would save the state $15 million a year.

Savings and Loans

The House voted 97-7 to enact changes in the laws governing savings and loans.

Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare, said the new law lifts limits on the amount of stock in a savings and loan which one person may own. It also removes restrictions on loans to directors of the financial institution.

Drunken Driving

House Speaker Liston Ramsey appointed seven representatives to the conference committee that is trying to resolve differences between the House and Senate versions of Gov. Jim Hunt's drunken driving bill.

Rep. Martin Lancaster, D-Wayne, the bill's House sponsor, will be chairman of the committee. Other members are Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake; Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus; Rep.

William Watkins, D-Granville; Rep. George Miller, D-Durham; Rep. Charles Evans, D-Dare; and Rep. Robert Hunter, D-McDowell.

Public Hearing

The Village of Simpson is conducting a public hearing on April 7, 1983, 7:30 p.m. at the Phillippi Baptist Church Education Building to discuss a proposed project area and program activities which could be included in an application to be submitted to the N.C. Department of Natural Resources and Community Development for a Small Cities Community Development Block Grant.

All citizens are encouraged to attend this hearing to provide comments and program activities as well as a project area the Village should consider.

Legislators Study Bolstering Of Unemployment Insurance

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials have come up with a plan to keep North Carolina's unemployment insurance fund healthy by increasing employers' contributions and reducing benefits for some jobless workers.

Rep. Jeff Enloe, D-Macon, submitted the plan in a bill Tuesday.

"The whole purpose is to keep the state fund sound," he said. "If unemployment stays where it is now, by 1984 we will be in trouble and have to borrow money from the federal government to pay benefits."

The bill would increase employers' contributions to unemployment insurance by $92 million a year and reduce the yearly amount of benefits paid by about $80 million.

But Don R. Teeter, attorney for the state Employment Security Commission, said the changes would not affect more than 40 percent of the workers now receiving unemployment insurance benefits.

"The employer will bear the brunt of this," Teeter said. "Maybe that's as it should be because the unemployed need all the help they can get."

He said employers who manage, their work force well, with few layoffs, will continue to contribute less money to the insurance fund.

North Carolina's jobless fund is not in immediate danger but it isn't as healthy as it used to be. State officials say the fund is the third most solvent in the nation. But Teeter noted that it contains about $315 million now compared to more than $500 million last year at this time.

Part of the problem is that the state is paying about $10 million a week in benefits and collecting about $15 million a month from employers.

The government estimates that the state will have to borrow $146 million at 10 percent interest in 1984-85 unless some changes are made.

Teeter said the ESC devised the plan after looking for places where benefits are higher than employer contributions warrant.

He said one of the inequities of the existing system is that a person who worked for 20 weeks can collect up to 26 weeks of unemployment benefits while a person who worked up to 52 weeks can collect benefits for a maximum of 52 weeks.

The bill would change the way employers pay into the fund by putting the contributions on a sliding scale tied to average yearly wages.

Employers now pay a percentage of a set taxable wage base — $7,000. The percentage they pay ranges from .1 percent to 5.7 percent, with employers who have a steady workforce paying the lowest percentage.

Enloe's bill would require employers to pay a percentage of the average yearly wage, or $8,200 for 1984. That would be a 17 percent increase in contributions but Teeter said he didn't expect the difference to be so great in future years.

Medicine Show Lacking Depth

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC's "Ryan's Four," about four overworked hospital interns and their mother-hen guardian, is an over-the-counter medical show that treats significant issues with aspirin and Band-Aids.

"Ryan's Four" begins its series run tonight after a 90-minute pilot episode that was broadcast Tuesday night. This review is based on the pilot.

While NBC's "St. Elsewhere" brought humanity, reality and emotional involvement into the good-doctor genre, "Ryan's Four" seems to have taken a hypocritical oath. The characters seem to be reading lines without sincerity and mouthing ideological and trendy slogans without credibility.

"My God, he was just alive," says one doctor commenting on an emergency patient who goes berserk in the trauma room — and dies — after taking the drug PCP. You would think that doctors working in a hospital would have a passing acquaintance with death, wouldn't you?

"We kill them so young," adds another doctor.

On Tuesday night, the program raised the emotionally charged issue of euthanasia and resolved it in one easy lesson — after one intern shared breakfast with the troubled family.

Subjects such as these deserve fuller exploration than "Ryan's Four" is willing or capable of giving them, especially since the pilot indicated that the series is locked into resolving all crises by the end of the hour. In that episode, each intern became emotionally involved in one case, and everything was patched up by the time the patient voluntarily — or involuntarily — had checked out.

Since "St. Elsewhere" and "Hill Street Blues," it's now fashionable to give professionals a home life. Marcus Welby never had it so good. But in the personal peeping on "Ryan's Four," we're given a noisy argument between one intern and his wife, who is impatient over his 100-hour work-week.

"I stood by you when you were in 'Nam,'" she screams.

Tom Skerritt stars as Dr. Thomas Ryan, a father-confessor to four interns — one black (Albert Hall), one female (Lisa Eilbacher), one feeble-brained (Timothy Daly) and one feeble-handed (Dirk Blocker).

Blocker is the son of the late Dan Blocker, Mr. Hoss Cartwright of "Bonanza." Daly is the brother of Tyne Daly ("Cagney and Lacey") and son of James Daly, who began the family's practice in "Medical Center" a decade ago.

Dr. Ryan is nothing if not concerned. His son hanged himself because he couldn't cope with the rigors of being an intern, so the doctor is hoping an open-door policy and mega-doses of understanding and sympathy will prevent future medical suicides.

Skerritt, too young to be credible in this role, goes around bucking up his charges with pat, pat-on-the-back pep-talks like: "Bad day today, huh?" "It's OK." "The world goes on." Skerritt is so soothing, he could be mistaken for a catatonic playing doctor.

For comic relief, one intern gets a fever and starts acting like a spoiled, childish patient. It's all unbelievable and painfully silly.

Henry Winkler of "Happy Days" is one of the executive producers on "Ryan's Four." In honor of Winkler's Fonzie character, we'll give this series a thumbs-down.

The CBS movie tonight, "In Defense of Kids," is an engaging examination of the rights of kids. It's a story that is rescued from becoming too trite by the sincerity generated by Blythe Danner.

The estimable Miss Danner stars as Ellen Wilcox, a successful lawyer who chucks the material benefits of a prestigious practice to open a store-front office specializing in kids who fall through the cracks of the legal system.

"In Defense of Kids" doesn't patronize in its philosophy, but offers disparate examples of how minors can be mishandled by the bureaucracy.

Sam Waterson plays Ellen's supportive husband, and he's fine whenever he's given anything to do. Georg Stanford Brown plays a dissatisfied lawyer who joins Ellen's firm, but he's got even less to do.

'Casting Coup' In Cable Movie

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Casting coup of the decade has to be the pairing of Laurence Olivier and Jackie Gleason in the title roles of "Mr. Halpern and Mr. Johnson," a cable TV movie for Home Box Office.

The veteran dramatic star and the rotund TV comedian will co-star in an unorthodox romantic triangle wherein Halpern (Olivier) meets Johnson (Gleason) at the grave of Halpern's recently deceased wife. Halpern discovers Johnson had an affair with his wife for 40 years — leading to interesting complications.

An HBO spokesman said, "Olivier and Gleason together encompass an incredibly broad range of performing expertise. 'Mr. Halpern and Mr. Johnson' will provide an ideal forum for their legendary talents."

Fans, Friends Want Stars For '3 Stooges'

By JOAN GOULDING
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The Three Stooges, offended by their absence from the Hollywood Walk of Fame, once considered painting a star in the middle of Hollywood and Vine to win their rightful spot on the famed tourist attraction.

Better judgment — and fear of arrest — persuaded the zany comedians to forego the slap at the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, which is now under growing pressure to award a star to the Stooges.

The original Three Stooges — Moe and Curly Howard and Larry Fine — all died without seeing a star to commemorate their status as one of the most popular comedy teams and top box office draws in motion picture history.

Mo Howard's daughter, Joan Maurer, and Gary Owens, a Southern California radio star who gained nationwide recognition on TV's "Laugh-In," have mounted a letter-writing campaign to persuade officials the Stooges deserve a star when the committee votes in June.

Comics Steve Allen, Carl Reiner, Tim Conway, Arte Johnson and Mel Brooks are also supporting the movement.

"The Stooges really should be included," Owens said. "You've got people like Maurice Diller with stars and even the Chamber of Commerce doesn't know who Maurice Diller is."

"I've researched it and he may have been Greta Garbo's agent."

Mrs. Maurer said her father was hurt when the comedy team was not included among the hundreds of radio, television and film stars honored when the Walk of Fame — commemorative stars of terrazzo and brass set in the sidewalks — originated in 1959. Those stars were paid for by the Chamber of Commerce, but now applicants must pay the $3,000 it costs to make the star and set it into the pavement.

"My father felt he shouldn't have to pay for it," Mrs. Maurer said. "I think being left out rankled him."

"One time there was a joke my father was going to get together with the other two Stooges, go to the corner of Hollywood and Vine and paint a star in the intersection."

"But he chickened out, he thought he would get arrested," Mrs. Maurer said.

Moe died in May 1975, six months after Larry. Curly died in 1952.

Today, 1,760 stars line Hollywood and Vine including stars for each of the Marx Brothers and one for Jules White, director of many of the Three Stooges films.

Owens, a morning talk show host of KPRZ in Los Angeles, said he has received about 600 letters a day since he asked listeners to put their support for a Stooges star in writing.

A spokeswoman for the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, which awards 13 stars a year, had no explanation for the absence of a star, but said the organization was working closely with Owens and Mrs. Maurer.

The Stooges peculiarly violent form of slapstick earned them fans around the world and for 22 straight years won the Laurel Award given by the Motion Picture Exhibitors Association for the best box office draw, Owens said.

The trio, which later included Shemp Howard, Joe Besser and Joe de Rita, made hundreds of two-reelers in the 1930s through the 1950s. The movies still appear on television throughout the nation.

A Disney-Like Title Included

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Disney Studios is producing a new TV special with the Disney-like title, "Believe You Can ... And You Can!," an hour-long show introducing new attractions and rides in Disneyland's Fantasyland.

Featured in the show, to be telecast April 21 by 100 stations across the country, will be Heather O'Rourke, the little girl kidnapped by ghosts in Steven Spielberg's "Poltergeist" thriller.

Along for the ride is comedian Morey Amsterdam, surrounded by such Disney characters as Mickey and Minnie Mouse and Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

A Renaissance Master

Five hundred years ago today, one of the greatest artists of the Renaissance was born in Urbino, Italy. His name was Raffaello Sanzio, but he is better known to art lovers as Raphael, the painter of this well-known "Madonna" and other Renaissance masterpieces. In honor of his anniversary, eight tapestries he designed for the Sistine Chapel are scheduled to go on display there today. It is the first time these tapestries have hung in the Chapel since they were stolen by invading troops of the Holy Roman Emperor Charles V in 1527. The exhibit will then travel to Florence, Paris, London, Washington, and finally to the artist's birthplace.

Tick Fever Season Approaching N.C.

By The Associated Press
Spring may bring beauty to North Carolina's forests, but it also brings the American dog tick and Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever.

North Carolina last year led the national in fatalities from the tick-borne disease. A dozen people in the state died last year from the disease and 213 other cases were reported. Nationwide in 1982 there were 981 reported cases of spotted fever.

"I don't know why we're so blessed," said Dr. Jared Schwartz, a pathologist at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. "Last year, North Carolina had more fatal cases than any other state."

Schwartz, who urged Gov. Jim Hunt to declare this week Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever Awareness Week, said the disease is particularly common in Cabarrus, Mecklenburg and Rowan counties.

Tick fever, as it is commonly called, attacks the lining of the small blood vessels, causing flu-like symptoms, an occasional rash and shock or stroke if untreated. It is caused by rickettsia, a bacterium carried by about one of every 20 ticks in the Piedmont.

Schwartz said people should try to prevent contact with ticks by using insect repellent and wearing heavy clothing when walking through the woods.

He said parents should check their children and themselves - especially the scalp - when in woods, bushes or tall grass and after playing with dogs. Pets should be checked too.

If a tick is found, it should be removed promptly with tweezers and flushed down the toilet.

Okays Pesticides-If Needed

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — People shouldn't be afraid to use pesticides when necessary, but the need should be there without question, says University of Arizona expert George Ware.

"While we can't do without chemical controls, if the need is not there don't disturb the balance of the equation," he cautioned recently in an interview based on his definitive new book, "Pesticides: Theory and Application."

A one-time Arkansas farm boy, the 55-year-old Ware is head of the U-of-A's Department of Entomology. He has a doctorate in entomology and plant pathology and a background of 32 years' research on the subjects. An earlier book was long a standard text in agricultural colleges.

In the new book, Ware calls for an "intelligent man's pest control," or integrated pest management.

"I don't think, quite honestly, that even our grandchildren will be without the chemicals," he said. "Once you reach an economic loss condition, or economic threshold, there is nothing that will do the job except something that reduces the pest numbers immediately, and the only materials — the only condition that will do that — is to introduce a toxin of some sort.

"You can't do it by biological controls. Biological control is something that has to have been going on for several generations of the controlling organism."

He defines pesticides as chemical substances used to control or kill pests.

His definition of pests includes insects; weeds; rodents that feed on grain; disease-transmitting flies and cockroaches; plant diseases; termites nibbling on homes; algae in swimming pools, and birds that eat their weight every day in young plant seedlings.

"The need for pesticides will not diminish," Ware said. "They are as indispensable to U.S. agriculture as the tractor or mechanical harvester. Thus, we must know what they are, what they do, when to use them, and how to use them for the most effective yet safest results."

"Right now about one-third of the world's food crop is destroyed by pests during growth, harvesting or storage," Ware said.

But, he said, the pesticide arsenal is not keeping up with our pest problems. Surviving insects or weeds develop a resistance to certain chemicals. There are environmental problems, as demonstrated by DDT.

"Whatever the cause of declining effectiveness or availability of chemical tools, we need to refine our practices to preserve their period of usefulness by using them when and only when they are needed," he said. "Our alternatives are less than encouraging."

Communicator Plans To Retire

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Everett C. Parker, pioneering church communications and press relations expert, says he is retiring Aug. 31 as director of the Office of Communications of the United Church of Christ.

He has held the post for nearly 30 years, since establishing the department in 1954. Besides raising the professional level of church communications, Parker also has spearheaded efforts for citizen rights in broadcasting.

Dubbed a "gadfly" in that field, he was cited as one of its most influential figures by Broadcasting Magazine in reviewing the past decade. Going to court, Parker forced various policies on rights and fairness in the industry.

His office was the first church agency to combine press, broadcasting, films, research and educational functions under one head, a structure that has been adopted by most denominations.

Lady Ambassador Pays Price For Diplomatic Job

By TAMARA JONES
Associated Press Writer
BERLIN (AP) — She finds companionship in Agatha Christie's fictional sleuth Miss Marple and fulfillment in negotiating international maritime treaties. But then, everything about Rozanne Ridgway's life seems worlds apart.

Now she is alone in East Berlin, trying to "assemble" a lifestyle as the U.S. ambassador to East Germany, thousands of miles from a new husband, her family, old friends.

After flipping around the globe like a tiddlywink during a 26-year diplomatic career — Manila, Palermo, Nassau, Helsinki — Rozanne Ridgway has learned one truth the hard way.

"Life isn't cost-free," she says with a throaty chuckle. She repeats the phrase 20 minutes later, without laughing.

Sitting in the understated elegance of an embassy office where the only personal touches are a photo of her husband and a volume of Finnish poetry, Ms. Ridgway reflects that the price indeed has been high.

But worth it. "Every morning I discover I'm a survivor," the 47-year-old diplomat said in an interview with The Associated Press recently in East Berlin.

The discovery comes "on a rainy, gloomy day, 8,000 miles from home, and 8,000 miles from the nearest close friend, and 8,000 miles away from your husband."

And farther still, in a sense, from the white-picket fence entwined with calla lilies where Ms. Ridgway grew up in St. Paul, Minn.

Her father sold tires at a service station near the stockyards and her mother stayed at home. Some summers she and her two brothers visited relatives in Ohio, other summers, kin in Nebraska.

She went to grade school right across the street. High school was six blocks away. Hamline University, where she studied history, was just one block from the white picket fence.

Then, at age 20, Rozanne Ridgway joined the U.S. Foreign Service, boarded a plane to Manila in the Philippines and left home in grand, "look, no hands" style.

A dozen years and a handful of countries passed by, and "I looked up and realized there was nothing else I wanted to do," she recalls.

"Indeed, you could say the Foreign Service is the ideal career for the person who seeks security and at the same time doesn't like the notion of being the kind of person that does seek security."

"I've had the same employer, soon, for 26 years. There's nothing more secure, more conservative than that."

ROZANNE RIDGWAY

She counts 13 moves, and figures that it takes about six months to adjust each time.

Maybe more this round. After marrying Theodore Deming, a captain in the U.S. Coast Guard, on Jan. 2 and honeymooning in Chicago for a week, the bride headed for the divided German city and the groom returned to the Alaska base he commands.

Schedules permitting, they'll see each other again in June, in Alaska, then "maybe two or three times a year," Ms. Ridgway says. Neither has any intention of abandoning a career to join the other.

"Not another 'Can This Marriage Survive' story," the ambassador pleads.

Well, then, moving along to sore point No. 2. ... When she arrived in Helsinki, Finland, as the new ambassador in 1977, "every women's magazine wanted to interview me and very often the question was, 'What is it like to be a woman ambassador?'" she winces.

"I'd be happy to tell what it is like to be a woman as seen by one woman and what it is like to be an ambassador as seen by one ambassador, but I don't know this commodity called the woman ambassador."

Cigarette waving, she launches full-throttle into the subject she didn't want to discuss.

"I once was aware of a proposal that somehow a woman should be in a position in the State Department so that she could review all messages dealing with policy in order to bring a woman's point of view," she says.

"Food production, health and sanitation, population control. ... The assumption was these were areas in which women could bring a special background and a special concern."

"I not only reject that, I'm offended by it."

"Women as citizens have as much a right to a point of view on security matters, but I also am offended by it because men as citizens have just as much right to a viewpoint on population or nutrition or international health standards."

"And it's from that perspective, whatever it reveals about the way I approach things, that I don't like the notion of a woman ambassador."

Neither, apparently, did some early superiors. She toiled at diplomatic routines for several years — issuing visas, public correspondence — before discovering the double standard.

She blames the early lack of progress as much on her own naivety as sexism, claiming the drudgery provided needed skills.

"So for the wrong reasons, perhaps, I've had all the right experiences." Her career, she explains, "is the weaving of a fabric rather than the building of a ladder."

"until now" to be the negotiation in 1976-77 of a series of bilateral agreements with 14 nations fishing off the U.S. coast.

"I was terrific," she declares with unabashed pride. That, she confides, was also when she met Deming. In East Germany, "I have been welcomed and the hope has been expressed that a bilateral relationship with some positive elements might be established, and that's how we talk to each other."

Representing Washington on the front line of the Soviet bloc's Warsaw Pact puts her "right at the heart" of questions between East and West, issues that "reach the heart of American security."

But when the ambassador's day is done, the woman listens to the disembodied voice of her husband on a cassette and records her reply.

Sometimes she reaches for the stack of Miss Marple on her nightstand, escaping in a mystery that she solved long ago but still relishes.

"I'm neither lost nor alone."

Writer Laments A Lack Of Curiosity

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Soviet free-lance writer Maria Werner says she finds life "complex, wonderful and glorious," and cannot understand why American students do not have characteristically youthful curiosity.

"Students in America are not very interested in what's going on outside this country. In the papers you can always find 'Andropov, Andropov, Andropov,'" said Miss Werner, who free-lances for Pravda and for German-language weeklies in Moscow and Yugoslavia. "But there are 280 million other Soviet people, and no one writes about them."

Miss Werner, in Tucson to visit relatives, said in a recent interview, "When I return to Moscow, I will have guests and guests and guests of the university youth. They will want to know what are the interests of students in America. How you feel about war, the arms freeze, and what you think about Soviet youth."

A Croatian Yugoslav who became a Soviet citizen in 1948, Miss Werner says she hasn't found the Soviet system oppressive.

"People in America make the mistake of comparing the two countries' political systems," she added. "Each people have their history, desires and ideas on how to build up the society. Your idea of freedom in this

"But you mustn't think everything is imposed from above," she said.

The Communist Party Congress, she said, has the task of carrying out policies and is elected by the people. She added that Pravda published ordinary citizens' letters — even those with complaints.

She says it is a mistake to compare economic, social and technological development of the United States and the Soviet Union. "The Americans made their revolution 200 years ago," she said. "The Soviet Union made its revolution some 60 years ago."

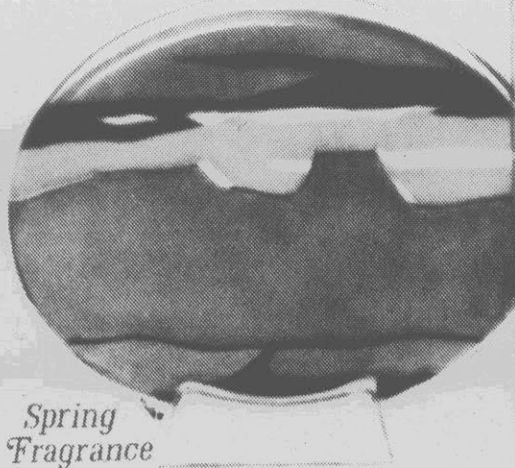

Miss Werner, who declined to reveal her age, said she had been interested in writing about people since she graduated from the University of Vienna with a philosophy degree.

"I could not think of another profession than journalism. I was born a journalist," she said.

As one, she said, she appreciates American frankness. "There is such a lack of formality, it allows the natural aspects of people to come out," she said.

On the other hand, she says she dislikes the lack of interest Americans show in spiritual things, in particular saying that "they are too much involved with business and how to earn money."

Nuclear Warheads Growth Industry

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the national unemployment rate hovers above 10 percent, Union Carbide is hiring at its secretive Y-12 plant in Oak Ridge, Tenn., and the unemployment rate in Los Alamos, N.M., is 2.3 percent.

The sites are two key components of the nuclear arms business, which is booming despite calls for an atomic weapons freeze.

The U.S. government is building more nuclear weapons than it has at any time since the early 1960s.

The exact number of weapons in the U.S. arsenal is classified. But private experts say the current stockpile has about 26,000 weapons, and about 17,000 new weapons will be built in the next decade. About 11,500 will replace aging weapons that have been around since the early 1960s, but some will be new weapons that will raise the total stockpile to around 32,000, the experts say.

At least 15 types of warheads are now being produced, including the W-76 for the Navy's Trident missile, the W-78, an upgraded warhead for the Minuteman III missile, and the W-87, the bomb that will sit atop the MX missile should Congress approve deployment.

In addition, at least five more types of warheads are nearing production and will be added to the nation's stock of 24 different warheads.

The weapons are built by private industry at seven government-owned plants around the nation after research is done and checked by three laboratories. Then they're evaluated at the Nevada Test Site. There were 19 announced tests last year, the highest total since 1970, and three so far this year.

While much of the public assumes that the Pentagon builds the bombs, the entire program is actually run by the Energy Department, a holdover from post-World War II debates which were resolved by mandating civilian, not military, control of atomic weapons.

Officially, the Energy Department talks little about its weapons activities beyond saying that the fiscal 1984 budget for weapons will rise to $6.8 billion from $5.5 billion in the current fiscal year. That's 57 percent of the Energy Department's budget.

Employment at the 10 facilities where the weapons are researched and built from will rise from 33,388 in fiscal 1982 to 37,337 by fiscal 1984, the Energy Department estimates.

Estimates of the size and nature of the stockpile come from figures compiled by the Center for Defense Information and the Institute for Policy Studies, a pair of private organizations which have in the past been critical of Pentagon spending priorities.

The stockpiled weapons range from a small 58-pound Army mine that can blow up a small bridge to the huge B-53 bomb, a 9-megaton weapon whose 9 million pounds of explosive power could destroy a city.

The weapons are developed by researchers at the Los Alamos lab in New Mexico and the Lawrence Livermore lab in California, both of which are run for the government by the University of California. Their work is checked by Sandia National Laboratories, also in New Mexico, run for the government by Western Electric.

The two labs compete with each other, another holdover from the World War II Manhattan Project when differing research groups vied to come up with the best way to build the ultimate weapon.

Los Alamos designs won out in two recent competitions for the air- and submarine-launched cruise missiles and the Pershing II missiles. The warheads will sit atop the weapons starting later this year when they are deployed in Europe, a plan that has stirred controversy from anti-nuclear groups.

Components for the weapons are constructed at six plants, operated by private firms. They include Bendix, which runs the Kansas City, Kan., plant that produces non-nuclear components; DuPont, which operates the Savannah River, S.C., facility which makes tritium; General Electric, which runs the Pinellas, Fla., plant; Monsanto, which builds detonators at Miamisberg, Ohio; Rocky Flats, Colo., where Rockwell runs a plutonium-production plant; and Y-12, where Union Carbide makes uranium and metal components.

All the parts are eventually shipped to Amarillo, Texas, where they are put together at the Pantex plant. Another major job there is to disassemble old weapons — many of the components can be used again.

Pantex has been the subject of some anti-nuclear protests, as has the Livermore lab, but there has been little impact on the work.

Age, not protests, has been the biggest problem. Pinellas, built in 1958, is the youngest plant, and the Defense Department believes that the facilities need to be upgraded.

Strange Export Requirements

By TIM PETTIT

Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Korea was looking for king snakes. France wanted turkey tails. Denmark was in the market for queen bees and Ecuador for beehives.

Although those exotic orders were not filled by Pennsylvania firms, state agriculture companies do their share, albeit a small one, of exporting.

A knowledge of Middle East beverage likes and dislikes led Knouse Foods of Adams County to create a sparkling apple cider in a champagne bottle. It became a prime seller among Arabs, who do not drink alcohol.

Selling dimension lumber to furniture firms in West Germany and England is the only thing keeping the Dreeco Lumber Co. afloat in rural Bradford County.

With an eye on those successes, the state Agriculture Department is trying to get Pennsylvania firms to take advantage of overseas markets. Farm exports from the state make up about $260 million of a total agricultural production of $2 billion a year.

"You see countries like Cyprus with elaborate stands at food expositions. They're far more active in the world market than we are," said James Sumner, a state Agriculture Department official, who spent a couple of weeks at a food show in Paris.

A nationwide reporting system called AGNET pumps out a slew of foreign requests for anything from fish heads for Japan to trout fodder for Syria.

Pennsylvania recently set up a computer to tap into AG-NET's export requests daily, rather than waiting for them to arrive in the mail.

"We hope our computer linkup will give us a jump on other states and other countries," said Sumner, director of the Bureau of Marketing.

Knouse, the sparkling cider maker, needed no outside push. It began selling its bubbly cider in Kuwait and Saudi Arabia in the late 1970s. The firm's marketing analysts suggested it might be accepted, and an unexpected bonus followed.

"We discovered there was as big a need domestically for this and domestic sales now are much bigger than foreign," said Kenneth Guise, a Knouse official. "It's served in place of champagne overseas and it commands a top price over there."

Dreeco, which employs 50 workers, didn't get into the export market until 18 months ago, and it was a lifesaving move.

"If it weren't for our foreign markets, we'd be out of business because of the economy," said Tom Schoonover, controller of the lumber company. "Ninety-five percent of our business is foreign and it's kept us alive."

Deny Effort To 'Destabilize'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department is denying allegations by the West African country of Ghana that U.S. diplomats are trying to undermine that country's left-leaning government.

The latest in a series of allegations of U.S. destabilization efforts was made last week by a top Ghanaian official, Kojo Tsikata, who produced a document that he said confirmed America was meddling in the country's internal affairs.

But Alan Romberg, deputy State Department spokesman, said the administration has reason to believe the document was fraudulent. In any case, he said, the charges Tsikata made were "patently absurd."

MASSACRE

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Nine people in a remote Philippine village reportedly were hacked to death and then beheaded last week, but officials disagree as to who carried out the massacre.

Group Saves War Planes Of WW II

By RON HARRIST
Associated Press Writer
JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Vernon Ricks says there's something special about an outfit that has all chiefs and no Indians and where members have their own unique reason for belonging but still share a common love — war planes.

Ricks is a colonel and leader of the Mississippi Wing of the Confederate Air Force, an organization which locates, restores and flies World War II vintage aircraft.

In this organization, started in 1957 by Lloyd Nolan in Mercedes, Texas, every member has the title of colonel. Currently there are about 7,500 members in the United States and the CAF has a number of wings in foreign countries.

"There are almost as many different reasons to be in the Confederate Air Force as there are people in it," said Ricks, former jet fighter pilot who owns a farm machinery business in Greenwood. "If you ask them, some will tell you it's the chance to travel, the glamour, the association with others with the same interest."

"Or, if they're like me, it's the love of the machine — not just working on these old planes but flying them," Ricks said.

He said the Mississippi wing had grown from four members two years ago, including Ricks and his son, to about 100 members. He said there were no organized wings east of Mississippi but that the Tennessee wing had 75 members, Louisiana 82 and Arkansas 64.

About half of Mississippi's wing are pilots and there are a few members who actually flew or repaired the war planes from 1939 to 1945.

William H. Hatfield of Booneville says he joined the CAF a couple of years ago because he wanted to be part of an organization which was helping preserve an important part of history.

Hatfield was a military pilot for almost 27 years and for 3½ years was a member of the Four Horsemen precision flying team. The team, which operated out of bases in Oklahoma and Texas, used the giant four-engine C-130 aircraft for aerobatics instead of the sleek fighters used by the better known flying teams.

Hatfield said the demands for better fighting aircraft during the war had sparked major technical advances that later paid off in the space program, in computer developments and in other areas.

Jack Gordon of Greenville has a somewhat personal reason for belonging to the CAF — the national organization is restoring a B-26, one of only five known to be in existence and the only one that will actually fly.

Gordon spent his years in the military repairing the medium bombers as a member of the 17th Bomb Group made famous by Gen. Jimmy Doolittle, leader of the B-25 bomber raid on Tokyo from the carrier Hornet. For 30 months in places like Africa, Sardinia and France, Gordon helped patch up the group's B-26 craft.

Ricks, who flew jets during the 1950s, said he was attracted to the organization not only because of his love for the machines but because "as I grew up all my heroes were World War II pilots."

He said the national organization had a museum at its headquarters in Harlingen, Texas, but "rather than parking these planes, we actually operate them. We locate the aircraft, purchase and restore them, and then let people see how they performed."

He said the group owned 122 planes, including some of the last surviving examples of many models.

"For example," he said, "we've got the only flying B-29 like the kind that dropped the first A bomb" on Japan.

He said members in Mississippi Wing owned advanced fighter trainers and a Navy Corsair and that the wing had acquired and was restoring a twin-engine C-45 transport.

Ricks said the wing held both business meetings and working sessions throughout the year and staged air shows to display the aircraft.

An Airplane Flies Her To School

By JACK A. SEAMONDS
Associated Press Writer
NORTH BASS ISLAND,
Ohio (AP) — When teacher
Nancy Ritter goes to school on Monday mornings, she rides with the groceries and other cargo aboard an aging single-engine airplane roaring 1,300 feet over Lake Erie.
Miss Ritter, 23, of Madison, Ohio, is teacher, principal, janitor and athletic director in the one-room school for six children of the 41 inhabitants of North Bass Island, the most remote of a half-dozen Ohio islands off Port Clinton.
During the school year, she lives in an apartment at the schoolhouse, spending weekends on the mainland with relatives.
This is her first job since graduating from Ohio Northern University in Ada last year. Although she's a veteran passenger now, it wasn't long ago that she flew a white-knuckled flight into North Bass to interview for the job.

"I'd never flown before, so it was quite an experience," she said. "I didn't even know the islands existed back then, but I was looking for a job and this one sounded exciting."

Miss Ritter said the prospect of having only six students ranging from first to eighth grades was appealing.

There are drawbacks. The island has no bank, no grocery store, no drugstore.
And few single men, Miss Ritter admits.

"It's not the greatest place to meet guys," she said.

But a job is a job and most Mondays, Miss Ritter hops aboard the Otter airplane for the flight north.

"The school board added some to my salary to make up for the plane fare," she said. "In good weather, we can take boats back and forth to the mainland."

During the week, Miss
Ritter stays close to school.
Her students walk home for lunch. On Mondays, they listen not for a school bell but for the sound of a plane's engine to announce their teacher's return.

An unusual aspect of her classroom is the ages of the students — one minute she's teaching 6-year-old Robert Medina how to add, the next she's helping 13-year-old Robin Burris with an eighth-grade science lesson.

Next year, Robin will attend the high school at Put-In-Bay on South Bass Island a few miles away, boarding a boat or plane along with other students who commute to their education.

"Robin is a little nervous about it — she's never been in a class with more than a few other students," Miss Ritter said. Among her current classmates is her sister, Jennifer, a fifth-grade student. Their father is manager of the Meier Wine vineyard on the island, and their mother runs the post office.

Desks line the classroom.
The library takes up six bookshelves. A videotape recorder plays educational programs shipped in from Toledo television stations.

Miss Ritter, born with spina bifida, walks with crutches. Her students were curious at first, but now seem to ignore her physical condition.

Island problems mostly center around the weather, Miss Ritter said. Fog and rain can delay flights. "If it rains too hard, the water gets into holes in the telephone lines, and the phones go out," she said. "I went for two or three weeks with no telephone when I first got here."

"But we don't have any of the other problems with discipline or drugs or alcohol that most schools do," she said.

Plans Open Her Own PR Firm

WASHINGTON (AP) —
Mabel H. Brandon, the White House social secretary for the past two years, is resigning to open a Washington office for an international public relations firm specializing in the entertainment industry.

Her resignation is effective June 1. Her successor has not been selected yet, Sheila Tate, press secretary to

LISTED BELOW

Some grocers claim to have the lowest prices in several states but do nothing to back up their claim. We won't make an empty claim...we simply offer the guarantee that "Our Cost Cutter products will be sold to you at the lowest price available in the market place." In other words, if you can find a comparable product in the same size at one of our competitors and their price is lower, we will sell you our Cost Cutter product at that price.

Marine Surplus Sale!

NOTICE!!!

MARINE HEAVY-DUTY TRUCK, BOAT & AIRCRAFT TARP PAULINS

to be offered to the public Starting Midnight Tonight!

Starting midnight tonight—Marine Surplus will accept orders from readers of this publication for Marine Heavy-Duty Tarpaulins. Each of these 'Lifetime Tarps,' (all still in original casings), are constructed of high-density 1000D polyethylene weave 25 per sq. in., waterproof, mildewproof, rotproof fabric—the same thick, 'strong as steel' specifications required to withstand heavy-duty action in ocean storms, jungle downpours, blazing tropic heat or even 100-below zero cold of high-altitude flights. Each is designed to withstand water pressure of over 1000 lbs. per sq. in.—and raging tornado-force winds of 250 m.p.h. (a force greater than any maritime vessel is ever exposed to). Each of these marine life-time tarps also features double stitched hems, reinforced triangular corners, rustproof grommets every 3 ft., nylon naval rope; and are so watertight they are hurricane-proof!

Recommended for all sorts of heavy-duty civilian uses: for yachts and sail boats, for cars and trucks, for farm equipment or outdoor furniture, pools, plus all bulk stored materials exposed to the elements. GUARANTEED FOR LIFE or free replacement at any time. ORDER TODAY!
