NASA Avers 'Challenger' Outshines Its Sister Ship

By ROBERT LOCKE
AP Science Writer
EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Space shuttle Challenger, on its debut in space, outshined its grizzled sister ship Columbia on almost every count, National Aeronautics and Space Administration officials enthused.

Challenger "is in beautiful shape," shuttle ground operations manager James F. Harrington said Sunday after the ship's Saturday landing on a concrete runway at this desert airbase.

"This vehicle is probably a lot cleaner than on any of the other (five) flights Columbia has come in on," he told a news conference. "I can't get over just how clean this ship is."

He said one reason for fewer dents, damage and discoloration on Challenger was a slightly different route that brought it through the atmosphere with less intense heating.

NASA Associate Administrator James Abrahamson, using the adjective "superb" several times at a post-landing news conference Saturday, concluded: "All the indications are (Challenger) is indeed a better spacecraft."

One measure of that, he said, is the number of "anomalies," NASA-ese for problems, that were logged during Challenger's five-day mission.

The rate has been decreasing steadily from the 82 on Columbia's first flight two years ago. On Challenger's maiden flight, he said, "We ended ... with only 22 anomalies" — a record low.

And he said for the first time, "we did not have to do any significant replanning of the mission itself (once the shuttle was airborne). It was flown exactly according to plan."

The only major glitch was a near-disastrous failure of a tracking and data relay satellite that was popped out of Challenger's cargo bay. A rocket used to boost the satellite from the shuttle's 175-mile orbit to the required 22,300 miles malfunctioned, sending the satellite into a badly skewed orbit.

Officials now say they're confident they can straighten out the orbit and wind up with a fully functional satellite. But Abrahamson said unless the problem is diagnosed and solved, a second identical satellite needed for the system won't be launched as scheduled on an August shuttle flight.

He also revealed an Air Force facility in New Mexico took pictures of the failure, as the rocket-satellite combination went awry, and that should help investigators sort out the problem.

Challenger, meanwhile, was being readied for its next flight, a one-day piggyback ride back to its launch site at Kennedy Space Center, Fla.

Harrington said it should take off, bolted atop a jumbo jet, early Thursday and arrive in Florida that afternoon after a refueling stop at Kelly AFB near San Antonio, Tex.

The ship was nested in a steel superstructure alongside the lakebed landing today strip as crewmen cooled its systems, purged some fuel lines and secured Challenger for the ride.

Harrington said the only surface problems seen so far are one chipped tile, out of thousands that protect the aluminum skin from re-entry heat, and six damaged or missing pieces of thermal blankets, a new type of heat shield used for the first time on Challenger at less critical points.

He said the damaged blankets were peeled back and interior insulation eroded away on maneuvering rocket pods on each side of the tail. The ship itself was not damaged.

But, Harrington said, "Obviously, the thermal dynamics people have got to go back and do a little head-scratching and come up with a fix."

That adds another element to an already very tight schedule to ready Challenger for its next space flight in June. That mission features the first landing at the Kennedy launch site and America's first woman astronaut, Sally Ride.

The planned two months of preparation are about half the time needed on previous flights.

"We've got a good shot at it," Harrington said. "We're going to a full around-the-clock turn-around program. We've crammed the day full of turn-around activity."

Pittance To Candidates

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The National Congressional Club spent more money in 1982 political campaigns than any other political action committee, but only 1.4 percent of those funds went to candidates.

The political organization of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., spent $10.4 million in 1981-82, but only $147,119 went to candidates, according to reports the club filed with the Federal Election Commission.

Most of the rest went for advertising and mailings to publicize the club's conservative causes and to raise more money and for staff and administrative costs.

Other direct-mail political action committees spend a similar percentage on candidates. And club treasurer Carter Wrenn said the 190,000-member club has a broader goal than contributing to candidates.

"It's part of our political purpose to support the conservative cause," said Wrenn, who serves as the club's staff director. "It isn't directly attributable to one candidate, but we feel like it helps all the conservative candidates that are running."

The N.C. Campaign Fund, a Democratic group allied with Gov. Jim Hunt, says the club "can raise millions to destroy any progressive candidate."

But the club did not spend millions on its candidates in 1982, and most of them did not get elected.

The club contributed money or services to 62 candidates running for the U.S. House or Senate. Only six won. Losers included all nine North Carolina congressional candidates the club backed.

Wrenn said he was disappointed by the defeats, but said they could be expected because the club gives frequently to unknown challengers.

The cost of mass mailings took up 36 percent of the club's budget for 1981-82 — nearly $3.8 million. Administration took an additional $4 million.

Common Cause, the citizens' lobby, says the club and other PACs are raising money mainly to support themselves, not help candidates.

Hussein Halts Jordan's Peace Talk Participation

By TERRY A. ANDERSON

Associated Press Writer
AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — King Hussein has halted Jordan's participation in talks the United States hoped would lead to Mideast peace, and accused the Palestine Liberation Organization of breaking a tentative promise to cooperate in the negotiations.

In a blunt statement issued Sunday by the government news agency, Hussein called off his series of meetings with PLO chairman Yasser Arafat and said Jordan "will neither act separately nor in lieu of anybody else in Middle East peace negotiations."

Jordan's announcement came as a top PLO moderate was slain in Portugal, an assassination claimed by a Syrian-backed group that opposes any move to negotiate with Israel.

In an official comment today on Hussein's announcement, Syrian radio said "Syria's prediction of the failure of imperialist American and Zionist plans to rule over the Arab nation ... has now started to take its course."

The king's declaration could doom President Reagan's peace proposal, which was based on the prospect that Hussein would join in negotiations with Israel as a representative for the Palestinians. Under the Reagan plan, the negotiators would arrange for "autonomy" for the Palestinians in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, in close association with Jordan.

Western diplomats in Amman, who requested anonymity, said today Hussein was exhausted by recent events and was unlikely to revive a dialogue with the PLO in the near future.

"There is gloom around town," said a Western European diplomat. "There has been a great deal of effort made at the expense of many other things, including the king's health. So I don't think anyone has the stamina to continue."

Reagan blamed "radical elements" of the PLO for the development and said he remained hopeful about his plan after talking with Hussein by telephone.

Louisiana Sandbaggers Battle Steadily Rising Flood Water

By BILL CRIDER

Associated Press Writer

SLIDELL, La. (AP) — Record Pearl River floods inched upward today as sandbaggers struggled — and often failed — to keep houses out of the yellow water that was already 15 feet deep in some streets.

"They haven't written this chapter in the book yet," said Bruce Unangst, president of the St. Tammany Parish Council in southeastern Louisiana. "We are dealing with the kind of record flood that poses some unknowns for us."

Unangst predicted the water level in some subdivisions would rise another six inches to a foot today, depending on the location.

Authorities said the worst flooding would come around mid-afternoon, when the Pearl was expected to crest and then begin a slow fall that could keep water in homes for days.

"We're still looking for the crest to come sometime this afternoon," said Civil Defense spokesman Sam Morton. "The water is expected to get about one to two feet higher than the record levels set three years ago."

State police reopened U.S. 90 this morning, but Interstate 10, a major Gulf Coast link between Louisiana and Mississippi, remained closed.

At one point, authorities said up to 25,000 residents of this area 30 miles northeast of New Orleans should prepare for water in the house. Due to energetic sandbagging and some luck, it wasn't that bad. Unangst estimated Sunday that 700 homes, involving about 2,800 people, had suffered flood damage.

Areas of deep water, up to 15 feet, were small. Most flooding was wading depth — small consolation to people wading through a living room or den.

A federal disaster team was to check the area today and report to President Reagan. Gov. Dave Treen has asked that 16 southeastern Louisiana parishes — along a 100-mile line extending from Baton Rouge eastward to the state border with Mississippi — be designated a federal disaster area.

Under the designation, eligible residents may apply for low interest loans for repairs or, in some instances, grants.

The flooding around Slidell followed a three-day deluge last week that brought near-record floods to New Orleans, Baton Rouge and a number of small communities.

Five people drowned, and damage unofficially was estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars.

At the height of the disaster, more than 20,000 Louisianans were homeless.

C of C Report Is Postponed

The board of directors of the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce has postponed until April 19 a meeting to receive a report and/or recommendation from the chamber's psychiatric service task force.

A call session of the board had been scheduled for Tuesday afternoon but a chamber spokesman said the meeting has been moved to 5 p.m. next Tuesday in the second floor conference room of the North Carolina National Bank building on First street.

The task force, which has been studying the scope of psychiatric services in the Greenville area, met Friday afternoon but did not complete its discussions and planned additional meetings, according to Jeannette Cox, chairperson.

Ms. Cox said the 15-member task force divided into subcommittees to continue consideration of data gathered, prior to completing its report and deciding what recommendation will be made relative to the psychiatric services issue.

The governing board of the Eastern Carolina Health Systems Agency will meet Wednesday to consider a recommendation by the agency's Project Review Committee that proposals by three firms seeking to establish psychiatric hospitals in eastern North Carolina be denied.

One of the three, Charter Medical Corp., applied for authority to build a new 65-bed psychiatric facility in the Greenville area.

Northeast Swamped By Driving Rain And Flood

By DEBORAH ZABARENKO

Associated Press Writer

The driving rainstorms that drove about 27,000 people from their homes in Dixie swamped the Northeast with more than 4 inches of rain in places, causing flooding today from New Jersey to Massachusetts.

Rising rivers and streams forced some people to leave their homes and high winds and heavy rains knocked out the power to hundreds of homes in New England.

At least one death was blamed on the weather.

Meanwhile, another storm forming in the West was spreading snow over parts of southeastern Idaho, Montana and eastern Wyoming with overnight accumulations of 6 inches or more expected in places.

Flood warnings were posted today over all of Connecticut, all of Massachusetts except for Buzzards Bay and the Cape Cod area, and along the Passaic River in New Jersey.

The storm dumped at least 4.43 inches of rain in Providence, R.I., on Sunday and by early today, more than 3 inches had fallen at Bridgeport, Conn., and about 2½ inches at Boston and Hartford, Conn. On Sunday, 3.69 inches of rain fell in Central Park in New York City, a record for the date.

On Sunday, 3.57 inches fell at Stevenson Dam in Monroe, Conn.

The 1.78 inches of rain that fell Sunday in Philadelphia also was a record for the date and brought the total to 3.73 inches for April, more than is normal for the entire month.

"The land is drenched, there's nowhere for that water to go but into the rivers," said police Capt. Thomas Mulcahey in Passaic, N.J., where residents were bracing for floods on the Passaic and Pompton rivers.

PRISON LIBRARY APPEAL

Dr. Charles S. There is no prison enterprise at the center, he said, so the up-to-480 medium custody male inmates housed there will have a great deal of time on their hands, he said. He has observed that westerns are particularly appealing to many of the inmates. He asked that anyone who wants to donate to contact him at the center, 747-8101. Chamber Ranks Sen. East High WASHINGTON — U.S. Chamber of Commerce ratings released recently rank Sen. John East as having the fourth best voting record in the U.S. Senate.

The voting index used by the chamber shows that on issues of fiscal responsibility and economic growth, East voted correctly 92 percent of the time. Sen. Jesse Helms scored 91 percent.

The ratings are based on the total number of votes cast by senators on Chamber-selected issues.

East said he was pleased with the chamber's rating and said the issues selected "seem to be reasonable and fair."

"It is gratifying to be rated so highly by such a prominent and respected organization," according to East.

The chamber selects 20 or more votes in each session of Congress as a representative sample of important economic issues on which to rate members of Congress. The issues pertain to chamber goals on restoring federal fiscal responsibility, controlling inflation, reducing federal spending, reducing the tax burden on individuals and businesses, generating economic growth, and creating new jobs in the private sector.

Linda Lee Ellen Yezarski of Greenville and James Walter Harris, also of Greenville, were married in St. Peter's Catholic Church here Sunday at 2:00 p.m.

The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Jerry M. Sherba.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Kenneth C. Griffin of Arkport, N.Y., Albert Yezarski Jr. of Morehead City and Mr. and Mrs. Rayford C. Harris of Mocksville.

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a jacketed formal gown of white angel wing chiffon fashioned with a fitted bodice of Brussels lace and satin spaghetti straps. The jacket had scalloped edging and a standup collar. The sheer bishop sleeves featured floral appliques of Brussels lace, scalloped cuffs, and satin buttons. The A-line skirt flowed into a chapel trail. Her fingertip illusion veil edged in scalloped Brussels lace featuring appliques of the floral pattern was attached to a Camelot headpiece trimmed in Brussels lace. Her bouquet was a silk cascade of white stephanotis and linum accented by peach sweetpeas and lilies with white lace and satin streamers.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Betty Haenisch of Arkport, N.Y., sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jody Pack of Advance, sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. Jennifer Yezarski of New Bern, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Karen Conroy of Raleigh.

The attendants wore formal-length gowns of peach crepe de chine designed with empire waists, scooped necklines, and spaghetti straps. The gowns were draped with peace organza lace capelets. Each carried a long-stemmed silk sonia rose accented with baby's breath and fern and sonia ribbon and streamers.

The flower girls were Miss Carrie Negegar of Mocksville and Miss Krissi Pack of Advance, both nieces of the bridegroom. They wore identical long dresses of white eyelet with a scattered yellow and peach floral patterns. Each carried a white wicker basket edged in sonia ribbons and filled with daisies and miniature sonia roses and peach carnations.

On wax paper or in a small bowl, thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon.

Into a medium bowl, slice the bananas; with an electric beater beat until pureed — there should be 1 cup; add eggs, sugar and oil; beat until blended. Add the flour mixture; stir just until it is moistened. Stir in the oats and pecans. Turn into the prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 55 minutes.

Banana cakes came into wide favor in the United States and Canada in the 1920s. Banana quick breads followed along and won popularity.

At first recipes for banana breads were made with white flour. Later the white flour was combined with another grain. For example, in the following recipe oats are used; they provide a coarse texture many eaters approve.

These days banana oat loaves attract many cooks for a special reason — both bananas and oats are low in sodium.

COOKING IS FUN!

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

Associated Press Food Editor

Here's a food-travel report my friend, Jonathan Dudley, was good enough to send me. I hope you find it as edifying as I do:

"When I was young, Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings meant 'The Yearling' to me — that wonderful film adapted from her Pulitzer Prize-winning novel. Later, as you know, she wrote her 'Cross Creek' and 'Cross Creek Cookery', both evocations of life before World War II in the northern Florida backwoods.

"When my mother moved to a small town north of Orlando, I learned that Cross Creek was only about 75 miles from her home. Early this spring I left the New York City drizzle to visit her, and one sunny day we drove through the northern-most Florida orange groves to Cross Creek.

"We found the Rawlings house, now a state historic site, a group of three connected cottages. Spruce logs glowed in the fireplaces, and in the large old-fashioned kitchen the sun burned through the many windows where Marjorie Rawlings kept constantly in touch with Florida's backwoods.

"A friendly attendant suggested that my mother and I have lunch at a nearby restaurant called 'The Yearling.' It has an unprepossessing exterior, but large comfortable dining rooms, and a menu that — to a New Yorker — was downright exotic:

fresh frogs' legs, catfish, alligator tail and cooter. I knew from 'Cross Creek Cookery' that cooter is a soft-shell turtle, and assuming I might never have another chance to taste it, I ordered it. It's much like a gamey chicken, with light and dark meat, but a firmer flesh. My mother, less adventurous, settled for broiled grouper. It was a marvelous lunch." Shortly after Jonathan came back to New York, we looked into "Cross Creek Cookery" together and chose a recipe for Hush Puppies from it to try in my kitchen. They were delicious. Here's the Rawlings recipe, with some useful details we've inserted.

CROSS CREEK HUSH PUPPIES

- 1 cup stoneground white cornmeal
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1 medium onion, minced
 - 1 large egg
 - 1/4 cup water
- Stir together the cornmeal, baking powder and salt; stir in the onion. Break in the egg and beat vigorously. Stir in the water.

Split In Ranks

Tobacco growers displayed a split in their ranks last month and the anticipated result has occurred. There's a new, major attack on tobacco under way on Capitol Hill.

Members of the newly formed United Tobacco Growers Association, which wants acreage-poundage controls abolished in favor of a "free" market, went to Washington with their plan, wooing anti-tobacco senators and making a public show of their unhappiness.

Now, the tobacco program — quotas, price supports, all controls — is again in danger. Members of Congress opposed to tobacco, spurred on by the mavericks from this state, have obtained signatures of 45 congressmen on a bill calling for an end to the tobacco price support program; congressional support for a measure that would raise the federal excise tax on cigarettes every year, based on the consumer price index and bills to strengthen health warnings on cigarette packages and to let the Consumer Product Safety Commission design a self-extinguishing cigarette.

As we've said over and over, a united effort by all segments of the tobacco industry is needed to combat threats such as these. If splinter groups do develop, certainly the majority of those interested in tobacco should be able to produce a front equally as verbal and equally as public.

Belief in a program without action to back up that program will surely end in failure.

Kong And U.N.C.L.E.

My how times do change. That's an old adage, but it remains true.

Fifty years ago the movie "King Kong," a film classic, was made for about $500,000 — steep for its time but only a speck in the bucket now. Over the last five decades it has earned $5 million in rentals.

Compare that to a made-for-television movie shown by CBS this month, "The Return of the Man from U.N.C.L.E." That movie, hardly a classic, was originally destined for the theaters and carried a budget of $5 million — the same that King Kong has earned in all these years. But "U.N.C.L.E." eventually was sidetracked to television at a mere cost of $2.5 million.

Regardless of the cost, or the revenue, "Kong" will still be around when "U.N.C.L.E." is gone and long forgotten.

White House Attention To EPA Is Short

WASHINGTON — Any hope that what ails the Reagan administration's environmental policy has been solved by merely calling back William D. Ruckelshaus vanishes in light of what happened to his predecessor last November.

Just after the 1982 election, Ann Burford (then Gorsuch) requested a meeting with President Reagan to offer her resignation on grounds it might be desirable for somebody else to head the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) the next two years. But the silken curtain dropped around the Oval Office by Michael K. Deaver, deputy chief of staff, blocked her from even getting an appointment with the president.

That revealed how deep was the inattention to environmental questions in the West Wing until Burford's confrontation with Congress. Not once has Reagan as president addressed the nation with a full-fledged speech on the environment. The administration's failure to submit a revision of the Clean Air Act is symptomatic. Throughout her crisis, Burford saw Reagan only twice before submitting her resignation.

Now that Ruckelshaus has been brought in as a damage-control agent, the limited attention span at the White House has drifted elsewhere — a phenomenon transcending environmental concerns. Like its recent predecessors, the Reagan White House focuses on tonight's television news and tomorrow morning's headlines. That's why friends of the administration who know the details still reflect on the Burford affair, one month after her departure, and wonder whether this is the only way the U.S. government can run.

Burford could not pierce Deaver's silken curtain while attempting to carry out what she correctly perceives as Reagan's wishes: balance the tradeoff between environmental protection and economic growth, while shifting regulation to state and local government. Although Burford's shortcomings as an administrator were obvious, the vendetta against her stemmed from her threat to the environmental bloc's power.

What put her in the headlines and finally aroused the West Wing's interest was Justice Department insistence, against Burford's wishes, on withholding EPA documents from Congress. Overblown claims of "Sewergate" and bleak priortouts submitted by White House pollsters propelled the West Wing into a classic damage-control operation: Get rid of Burford and replace her with somebody who would get the EPA off TV and out of the headlines.

When the geyser of Burford-must-go leaks from the West Wing failed to move her, presidential counselor Edwin Meese telephoned brewer and conservative activist Joe Coors in Golden, Colo. That led to a Denver chat between Coors and Bob and Ann Burford, friends and Coloradans all, that persuaded her she could no longer stay.

Search Begins For A 'Star Wars' Genius

The biggest problem President Reagan faces in developing a "Star Wars" defense against nuclear weapons is finding the right thinking American scientists to work on it. In this administration a scientist not only has to have impeccable professional credentials, but he also has to be screened to make sure he or she has the same conservative ideology as the party.

For example, 50 scientists were removed from advisory boards of the EPA when their terms expired, because they were considered "politically unreliable" by Reagan loyalists.

Since the "Star Wars" concept will require a lot more brains to perfect the system, it may be very difficult to find enough pro-Reagan scientists to get the program off the ground.

I can just imagine the hustle and bustle now going on in the White House.

"Sir, here's the list of eminent scientists that could be contacted for our crash nuclear umbrella program."

"Any good people?"

"They're tops in their field. Professor Heinz Hemlock is a genius when it comes to laser beam research. He's just turned an enemy guidance system into oatmeal in his lab."

"Great. Let's sign him up."

"There is only one catch. He's against prayers in school."

"He doesn't sound like a team player. Who else have you got?"

"Dr. Anne Marie Sten. She has done extraordinary work in ultraviolet-infrared-telescopic locators. The space people say she's the best in the field."

"And she's a woman. That should help us with the female vote in '84. Bring her in for an interview."

"There's a problem, sir. Our security check revealed she voted for Jimmy Carter."

"Maybe she was duped."

"She's also on the Planned Parenthood Board at MIT."

"Forget her."

"I have a Nobel Prize winner in astrophysics who is working on spontaneous combustion of hydrogen and fluorine at the Livermore National Laboratory."

"What's wrong with him?"

"He signed a petition last month for a nuclear freeze."

"Dammit, can't we find any American scientists who aren't bleeding heart activists?"

"Edward Teller?"

"He's already on the team. In fact he's the leader of the team. Read me out some other names."

"Professor Nino Bertolini, wrote the definitive paper on gamma rays — but unacceptable to Senator Jesse Helms because he's a member of Common Cause...Dr. Albert Ruben, subatomic particle beam guru...ardent supporter of handgun control and against death penalty...Dr. Sarah Tilton, microwave physicist at University of Chicago...son works for Tip O'Neil."

"That's enough! There isn't one person you've mentioned so far that could pass muster with the Republican National Committee. But we have to have some scientists for our 'Star Wars' program."

"I think I have one here at the bottom of the list. Professor Dalton Calhoun the Third. He teaches physical astronomy at the Oral Roberts University in Tulsa. He wrote a book knocking down the big bang theory of the creation of the earth, and proved scientifically it came about just as it says in the Bible. Jerry Falwell recommends him very highly."

"Find out when he can start."

France Wants To Change Its Image

WASHINGTON — For years, sex has been routine fare in French advertising. But now, Francois Mitterrand's government wants to change the menu.

Yvette Roudy thinks she knows the best way. Mitterrand's 53-year-old minister for women's rights is the central force behind a legislative proposal to forbid "degrading and debasing women" in advertisements and publications. If passed by the National Assembly, the bill could affect anyone from J. Walter Thompson to the publishers of Ernest Hemingway.

For Roudy, whose French translation of Betty Friedan's "The Feminine Mystique" in 1963 launched her own feminist career, the measure derives its logic from the egalitarian premises of socialism. It also reflects both the increased influence of women's groups and an intense national debate over the French knack for fleshy commercialism.

That debate began in earnest last summer, when Avenir, a billboard company, plastered hundreds of its properties in Paris and other cities with a photograph of a bikini-clad woman. "On September 2, I'll take off the top," Avenir's model promised. Indeed, she not only followed through on that pledge, but, two advertisements later, finished the striptease.

More recently, a conservative mayoral candidate in Nice employed the image of a naked woman on a campaign poster.

"As expected, after 21 months of socialism, I have nothing left," the caption read.

Whether or not the latter incident precipitated Roudy's anti-sexism law (as it turned out, the Nice conservative won his race handily), it was only a more extreme example of what French women's groups have long denounced as commercial exploitation.

As they have in America and elsewhere, women in France rightly fear the documented parallels between violence against women and the often not-so-subtle use of sexual imagery in television, magazine and newspaper advertising. When ads leave one wondering whether the models or the products are for sale, some men can be expected to treat women as objects to use or abuse.

Moreover, commercial exploitation undermines the image that women have of themselves. Even if Madison Avenue has often substituted the harried housewife for a more up-to-date career type, is the balance nurtured by a provocatively posed model in Calvin Kleins? In France, where the line between art and life is fuzzier, the distortion is only more severe.

When the abuses of advertisers and publishers become excessive, Yvette Roudy wants "organized citizens" to have the means to prosecute culprits. "The government does not wish to put itself in the role of judge," she insists. Nor, adds one of her aides, does it intend to ban nudity.

Yet, the dubbing of Roudy's proposal as the "G-string Law" by the progressively-inclined tabloid "Libération," underscores an obvious problem with Roudy's law: It would effectively beg government censorship. In democratic countries, as the Moral Majority has discovered, any attempt at government control over social matters inevitably becomes the issue itself.

Strength For Today

A man who a few months ago made a long ocean voyage said that his ship, 15 days out of sight of land, reached the narrow strait toward which they were going without any deviation in course.

When he remarked about this to the captain in some surprise, the captain replied, "Give us the heavenly bodies, the earth's horizon, the correct Greenwich time and you can never fool us."

The world in which we live may seem to be very insecure, socially and politically, but the laws of the natural world are unfailing and undeviating.

But, of course, they are only the physical manifestation of a much higher order in which we can put our trust. The captain might have expressed himself by saying, "Give us an all-powerful God, lovingly disposed toward his children and guiding us by those oracles which we call the Bible, and we are safe... Underneath are the everlasting arms."

Question to tax paying citizens of Pitt County:

Why should Pitt County Memorial Hospital spend 4 to 6 million of our tax dollars on new psychiatric beds and facilities when the largest private operator of psychiatric hospitals in the world is willing to spend its 7 million dollars to provide these facilities free of any capital outlay of our citizens?

Why doesn't PCMH spend that money on unmet needs in other areas of health care?

Charter Pines Hospital-Greenville

FACTS AND FIGURES

PCMH shouldn't blindly react to new innovations in health care that better serve the needs of Pitt County and that save the taxpayers of Pitt County money.

Many members of the PCMH medical staff are in favor of the new hospital and support innovative, efficient new approaches to health care. In fact there are private psychiatrists in Greenville who are not opposed to the new psychiatric hospital.

Why didn't the County Commissioners ask for a detailed presentation of the facts from both sides before passing a resolution opposing the location of this new 7 million dollar service bringing 80 to 130 jobs to Pitt County?

Why didn't the PCMH Board of Trustees ask to hear the story or presentation of the private psychiatric hospital before passing a resolution in opposition?

Why hasn't PCMH told the taxpayers that the new privately operated psychiatric hospital would provide services for adolescents and children not offered anywhere else in Eastern North Carolina?

Why doesn't PCMH concede that its psychiatric care is geared for only 30 day visits while many psychiatric patients need institutional treatment for as much as 90 to 120 days as would be available in the new private psychiatric hospital?

Did you know that Charter Medical is willing to accept patients regardless of ability to pay?

Why hasn't PCMH been able to explain its statement about the effect of a new private psychiatric hospital on them in these words "the financial result to Pitt County Memorial Hospital will be disastrous"?

Isn't it time for you to stand up and be counted in favor of the best medical care available for the citizens of Eastern North Carolina and Pitt County?

Isn't it ironic that we had much the same arguments against the establishment of the ECU School of Medicine that are now being heard against the new psychiatric hospital?

SPEAK OUT!!

There's still lots of time, the CERTIFICATE OF NEEDS process is still in its early stages and this issue has not been finalized.

If you are one of the growing members of the Pitt County Community in favor of the private psychiatric hospital proposed...

Not All Legislative Business Is For Whole State

Many Face Taxes On Jobless Benefits Above Income Limit

By The Associated Press
Jobless North Carolina residents who collected unemployment benefits last year will find they owe the state a cut of what they received, officials say.

About 900,000 people in North Carolina and South Carolina may have to pay state and federal taxes on the unemployment benefits they received, officials say.

The U.S. Internal Revenue Service allows a minimum income before it begins taxing unemployment benefits — $12,000 for a single person this year, $18,000 for a married couple.

But in both North Carolina and South Carolina there is no minimum. All unemployment benefits are subject to state taxes.

"We were always very disappointed with North Carolina," said William Convey, a Charlotte accountant who has helped operate low-income tax service centers. "These poor people coming in with their pittance of unemployment, and then the state was going to tax them. I was so mad I couldn't spell my name."

Unemployed people who learn about the taxes are often surprised, said Betty Bridgewater, Charlotte manager for H&R Block Tax Service.

"The federal income limit has been lowered, which has made a lot more people pay," she said. "And there are a lot more people with unemployment benefits this year. Some were shocked by the taxes."

In North Carolina, where unemployment averaged 9 percent last year compared with 9.6 nationally, some 567,000 residents filed new jobless claims in 1982. The state paid out $533.7 million in benefits.

The average jobless check was for $101 to $108 weekly, paid for about 11 weeks, officials said. The state income tax for the average recipient would run from $33 to $77.

In South Carolina, with 10.8 percent unemployment in 1982, some 360,772 new claims were filed and the state paid out $248 million. The average claimant received about $92 a week for 15 weeks. Officials estimate that the state income tax on those benefits would be about $52.

North Carolina has taxed jobless benefits for years, one of the first states to do so. State legislators talk periodically about repealing the tax, but they have introduced no bills this session to stop the practice.

South Carolina didn't begin taxing jobless benefits until 1979, at the same time the federal government levied its tax.

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The General Assembly spends a lot of time considering drunken driving bills and tax increases that affect 6 million state residents, but it also considers many bills that focus on one city or county.

There is a flood of such local legislation about this time each year, as the House and Senate set deadlines for introduction of the bills.

There also are a number of bills seeking special appropriations for lawmakers' pet projects back home or across the state. Those bills are introduced about now, when budget committees are preparing to vote on how to spend the state's money over the next two years.

"There do not seem to be as many (appropriations requests) as last year," said Sen. Robert Jordan, D-Montgomery. "People recognize there is not much chance of getting the money."

But Jordan says many people introduce the bills anyway to "tell the people back home that I'm trying."

By the middle of last week, 260 local bills and 140 special appropriations bills had been introduced in the House and Senate. That compares with a total 1,056 bills introduced so far this session.

Mecklenburg County legislators, with 23 bills, lead the list for introducing the most local legislation. They're followed by lawmakers from New Hanover County with 19.

One of the most popular ideas among counties that are hurting financially is levying an additional 1 percent sales tax. Among the counties seeking the additional 1 cent for each dollar are Cumberland, Mecklenburg, Sampson and Wilson.

Rep. J.P. Huskins, D-Iredell, has introduced a bill to increase the sales tax statewide by 1 percent. Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, has introduced a bill to raise the sales tax while phasing out the food tax.

Another popular idea among counties is a tax on motel and hotel rooms to generate money for promoting tourism. Buncombe, Haywood and Mecklenburg counties are seeking that tax but some motel and hotel owners outside those areas are afraid the bill eventually will extend statewide.

A number of local bills deal with annexation, also the subject of a statewide bill. The statewide bill introduced by Sen. Aaron Plyler, D-Union, would override any local laws on annexation.

Other local bills would limit boat noise on several lakes, regulate the sale of dogs and cats in local animal shelters, regulate hunting, increase automobile taxes or set up beer and wine elections.

If local delegations unanimously support a bill, legislators tend to go along. But sometimes a bill's fate becomes an important bargaining chip in work on other legislation.

The special appropriations bills would set aside money for apple, rhododendron and tobacco festivals; history and natural history museums; District Court judges and the First Flight Society.

More statewide bills would set aside money for spouse abuse centers, mental patients, law enforcement officers' retirement and shift pay for more Highway Patrol troopers.

Budget leaders say they don't think lawmakers are introducing as many appropriations bills this year because of the anticipated financial problems. Budget committees are identifying ways to cut the 1983-85 budget by as much as $92.7 million to lift the freeze on state workers' and teachers' salaries.

"We hope there will be some money for special appropriations," said Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake. "On paper there is none left right now. We're short. But there's a long way to go."

Jordan said the amount left for the special appropriations would depend on the budget leaders and whether "there is an effort to block off a small amount as in past years."

LOVE

by Janice Wynne, R.N., Substance Abuse Services

"If you really loved me" is often heard when there is an alcoholic in a home. It is so difficult to understand why an alcoholic, in the throes of the illness, is unable to give the kind of love we would like to receive. But those of us who live with an alcoholic must also admit that our ability to give and accept love has been affected too.

Whether we protect, attack or develop an indifferent attitude toward the alcoholic, and others around us, we build a wall of mistrust about ourselves which keeps us from experiencing love. Our growth as a person is stifled.

Through increased understanding of alcoholism as an illness are we able to treat our family members accordingly. We can become a person who offers and accepts love in its true sense.

Ask:
Have I accepted alcoholism as an illness and the alcoholic as a sick person?
Can I accept self-love to be a part of the relationship with others?
Am I consistent in loving attitude toward my family?

Have I faced the truth about my relationship with my loved one?
Do I have the courage to seek professional help that I can handle?

GIFT THAT LASTS A LIFETIME

Today, it seems that major appliances and cars have built-in obsolescence. Toys given at holiday time seem to be broken by January and clothes have a way of wearing out before they're even broken in. Is there really a gift that can last a lifetime?

What parents do not want for their child - good looks, confidence, better health and a beautiful smile? Some go through their entire lives lacking these because of crooked teeth or an overbite (buck teeth) or an underbite. It's not hard to see children (and adults) go out of their way to hide their smiles so that people won't see their dental defects.

When parents bestow upon their child the gift of straight teeth through orthodontics, then they can be sure that they have given a gift that lasts a lifetime. With straight teeth will come the precious bonuses of a perfect smile, improved self confidence and (because of the corrected bite) lower future dental bills.

Margaret's Breakdown

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret suffered a nervous breakdown in 1974 after nearly 10 years of a deteriorating marriage to photographer Tony Armstrong-Jones, later Lord Snowdon, according to a new biography of Queen Elizabeth II's divorced sister.

Author Christopher Warwick says in the biography serialized in London's Observer newspaper that Margaret's 1960 marriage to Armstrong-Jones was "going sadly wrong" as early as 1964. The couple, who had two children, did not divorce until 1978.

Warwick, who says he had many interviews with Margaret for the book, wrote that by the early 1970s Snowdon would lock himself in a study if he were home during the day, go out at night and "most often he would not return until morning."

"If they happened to pass each other in the hall of their house at Kensington Palace, a grunt was the response the princess came to expect to anything she said," Warwick wrote.

The Observer on Sunday published its second installment from the book, "Princess Margaret."

Snowdon did not cooperate with Warwick and reviewers have said that the book is biased against him.

Declining Institutional Populations Pose Choices

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — State officials say they are making progress in moving mentally ill patients back to local communities for treatment, but are facing some tough decisions on financing state hospitals with declining numbers of patients.

Twelve years ago there was approximately one staff worker for every two patients in the state's four psychiatric hospitals, which officials say were little more than warehouses for the mentally ill.

Last year that staff-patient ratio was drastically different — two staff workers for each patient — and the number of patients was 4,706 lower than in 1970.

"The Legislature and the administration are trying to get in synch with the times and make sure our resources are able to respond to the needs as we see them today," said Lucy Bode, deputy secretary in the Department of Human Resources.

"As we improve our understanding and the medical technology changes, the system needs to continue to adjust and change, too," she said.

The problem is not unique to psychiatric hospitals.

Medical breakthroughs in treating tuberculosis have led to the closing of TB hospitals that were built decades ago. The joint House-Senate Appropriations Subcommittee on Human Resources has voted to convert the last TB hospital — McCain in Hoke County — to a prison medical facility during the next biennium.

McCain was built to serve 301 patients and in 1945 it held as many as 750 patients. But that number has dwindled to 93 patients one day last month with about 200 employees.

The appropriations subcommittee voted last week to cut the budgets of the state's psychiatric hospitals — Dix in Raleigh, Broughton in Morganton, Umstead in Butler and Cherry in Goldsboro — to generate $6.1 million.

Because of cutbacks in federal funding, the state must find $3.1 million if it wants to continue operating community-based mental health programs at the current levels for the next two years. Without those programs, state officials say they're afraid more patients will be referred to state hospitals.

The state will need another $3 million to continue and expand an experimental program in moving patients from hospitals back into community settings. The pilot program is underway in the state's south central region that is served by Dorothea Dix in Raleigh.

Ms. Bode said she believes there always will be a need for the four psychiatric hospitals but there will be a time when the state's resources are stretched because of needs to focus extra attention on establishing community services.

"There are only so many dollars. Our responsibility is to make sure the resources are shifted and used to meet the greatest need," she said.

"We have become so quality oriented, so service oriented in an attempt to improve the quality of life that it has resulted in more resources being applied to carry out these programs," she said.

Last year, state officials considered a six-year phase-out of Dorothea Dix Hospital in Raleigh as a way to raise $6.1 million to continue community mental health programs and expand efforts to get patients out of state mental hospitals and back into their local communities.

After public pressure, Gov. Jim Hunt decided to keep Dix open although it will share the campus with 500 prison inmates.

At Dix, the average number of patients has dropped from 698 in 1979-80 to 647 in 1982-83 while the state appropriations have risen from $24.9 million in 1979-80 to $32.1 million in 1982-83.

Statewide psychiatric hospital population has dropped from 7,532 in 1970 to 2,826 in 1982. The number of staff at the hospitals has increased from 4,401 in 1970 to 5,404 in 1982.

Sen. Russell Walker, D-Randolph, co-chairman of the appropriations subcommittee, says the state may have to look at alternative uses of facilities like at Dix and McCain.

"You have to ask whether the taxpayers of North Carolina would be comfortable with us continuing to expend money at that rate when we can consolidate," Walker said.

Sen. Bob Jordan, D-Montgomery, said some lawmakers feel that the staff-patient ratio at the psychiatric hospitals is too high and he expects that to continue to be a point of debate.

"If the community-based programs continue and the census of the hospitals continues to decline there will be some reduction in institutional services," he predicted. "It's not a matter of whether, it's a matter of when."

Five Collisions In Greenville Sunday

An estimated $6,250 damage resulted from a series of five traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Sunday.

Police said heaviest damage resulted from a 6:35 p.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 150 feet east of the Evans Street intersection, involving cars driven by Jennifer Lynn Johnson of Route 2, Wilson, and Timothy Glenn Mills of Ayden.

Officers, who reported Mills and a passenger in his car were injured, estimated damage at $200 to the Johnson car and $3,000 to the Mills auto.

Cars driven by Stephen Frank Ayers of Carriage House Apartments, and Alphonso Whitney of Route 2, Pantego, collided about 8:04 p.m. on Greenville Boulevard, 4 mile east of the Evans Street intersection, resulting in an estimated $650 damage to the Ayers car and $300 damage to the Whitney vehicle.

Charles David Pendergraff of Courtney Square, was charged with hit and run driving and driving without a license following investigation of a 1:55 a.m. collision on Greenville Boulevard, 75 feet west of the Red Banks Road intersection.

Investigators said the Pendergraff car collided with a vehicle driven by William Dallas Cherry Jr. of 802 Sulgrave Road, causing $500 damage to the Cherry car and $300 damage to the Pendergraff auto.

Police said Dorothea Vanders Taylor of 235 Country Club Drive was charged with having expired registration following investigation of a 7:55 p.m. collision on Greene Street, 300 feet south of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police said the Taylor car collided with a vehicle driven by Janet Lynn Slade of Roanoke Rapids, causing $300 damage to the Taylor car and $500 damage to the Slade car.

An estimated $500 damage resulted to a car driven by Ursula Rosalinde Waite of Fayetteville, in a 5:30 p.m. mishap Sunday on Greensprings Drive, 300 feet west of the Fifth Street intersection.

Officers said the Waite car went out of control and ran off the road. No charges were made.

Obedient Dog Persuades Jury

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — The behavior shown by a police dog during a courtroom appearance prompted a jury to reject a man's claims that he assaulted the animal only because he thought it was vicious.

Bernie Lopez was convicted Friday on charges of resisting arrest and assaulting a police dog during an altercation last October at the Ventura County Fairgrounds.

Prosecutors alleged that Lopez pummeled a police officer and pinched the dog, which retaliated by biting Lopez in the thigh. The jury, impressed when the dog obeyed commands to sit passively by while a court aide grabbed his handler as if attacking him, rejected Lopez' claim he had acted out of fright. Sentencing was set for April 18.

Potential Major Agriculture Markets Seen In Asia

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is looking with growing interest at five countries in Southeast Asia as a potentially huge market for American farmers.

Collectively, the five countries represented in the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — ASEAN — are "the fastest growing market area in the world," according to a report in the April issue of Foreign Agriculture magazine.

The countries are Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand.

"As a group, the five members of ASEAN are already a billion-dollar-plus market for U.S. agricultural products," the report said.

"The market of 270 million consumers is now about as big as the Canadian and U.S. markets combined — and is more than double that of Japan, the largest U.S. overseas agricultural market," it said.

Of course, the report added, the purchasing power of the five nations is nowhere near that of Japan now, but their potential "is perhaps the greatest in the whole of Asia." The personal disposable income in Singapore, for example, is the third largest in Asia.

"Growth in the member countries' gross domestic products (the total value of goods and services produced) ranged from five and a half percent in the Philippines and Thailand to over 10 percent in Singapore in 1981," the report said.

Not only is the region expanding faster than other developing areas, it is "expanding twice as fast as the industrialized countries" and the momentum appears to be continuing, it said, adding:

"The region has a bountiful endowment of natural resources and raw materials, including natural petroleum, rubber, tin, timber, rice, sugar, palm oil and coconut products."

U.S. farm exports to the region have climbed gradually in recent years, despite a general downturn in overall export value. Total shipments in 1983 are projected at nearly $1.24 billion, compared to $1.2 billion in 1982 and $1.18 billion in 1981.

Top items in the U.S. sales include wheat, cotton, tobacco soybeans and feed grains.

But the ASEAN nations "sit virtually on the doorstep of Australia and New Zealand — two of the hottest U.S. competitors in world agricultural markets," the report said.

"Consequently U.S. success in the ASEAN market is highly dependent on its price competitiveness, and on the ability of U.S. suppliers to meet the special needs of each individual country," it said.

Fifteen U.S. commodity groups currently are working in the region to promote sales.

Of these, the report said, the most active are: U.S. Wheat Associates, Cotton Council International, the American Soybean Association, the U.S. Feed Grains Council, the U.S. Meat Export Federation, and the Poultry and Egg Institute of America.

By LEROY JAMES
County Extension Chairman

Making intelligent management decisions concerning herbicide selection and application will be the key to having a profitable soybean weed control program in 1983.

Extension weed specialist Alan York at N.C. State University encourages growers to closely review their pest control methods to make sure they are as efficient as possible. They are also warning against sacrificing production inputs just for the sake of saving money. Stories of farmers planting soybeans and then taking little or no interest in weed control have them concerned. Some weeds aren't as critical in soybeans as they are in other crops. "so some farmers tend to relax with the crop," York stated.

"But when weeds or grasses in soybeans reach a damaging threshold level, farmers need to control them whether prices are good or bad," he said.

When soybean prices were good, farmers weren't as concerned with getting the best control possible for their money. They could choose a broad spectrum herbicide, apply it broadcast and then count on getting pretty good results without taking a lot of care.

"Now we have to be more selective with the herbicides and application method we choose," York said. "It is more important to make every dollar count."

For example, where johngrass or certain other types of vegetation are present, the standard practice of incorporating a pre-plant herbicide is a good, proven method of obtaining control. In other situations, however, banding the herbicides would be a better approach practice. It offers good control at considerably less cost. There are several reliable surface applied grass materials available on the market. York agreed that banding herbicides and then cultivating the middle row can be a profitable practice.

Basically, York feels it is up to growers to know what kind of weeds and grasses they can expect and then choose the proper treatment. Many farmers scouted their fields for unwanted vegetation in the fall and have a reasonably good idea of what they could be facing.

Pesticide Meets Will Be Held

Two pesticide licensing meetings will be held in room 201 of the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office Tuesday and Wednesday.

The first meeting is a class for persons who wish to have a private applicator's license and will be held Tuesday at 7 p.m. and last approximately three hours. This license enables the holder to purchase restricted use chemicals from an agricultural chemicals dealer.

The license also enables persons under the direct supervision of the license holder to apply these chemicals. Farmers who need to apply nematocides, fumigants, some herbicides and insecticides need this license, according to Pitt Extension Agent Sam Uzzell. There is currently no renewal requirement.

The second pesticide licensing class will be held Wednesday at 1 p.m. in room 201 of the Pitt County Extension Office. A test will be administered by North Carolina Department of Agriculture personnel in various commercial specialty areas.

For example, people who wish to take an ornamentals and turf, dealer or public health pest control test can do so at this time, said Uzzell.

For further information contact Uzzell at 752-2934.

Honey Supports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says honey price supports will be boosted to an average of 62.2 cents per pound this year, up 1.8 cents from 1982.

Everett Rank, administrator of the department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the increase is the minimum allowed by a formula in the law.

The actual range of honey supports — which include loans and purchases — will be from 54.4 cents to 64.4 cents per pound, depending on color and class.

Loans and purchases will be offered on 1983-crop honey in eligible containers, on or off farms, Rank said. Producers will have until Jan. 31, 1984, to apply for loans that will mature April 30, 1984, he said.

As of Feb. 28, the department's Commodity Credit Corp., had $75.4 million invested in nearly 126.3 million pounds of honey under the support program.

The CCC said that about 39.8 million pounds was owned outright by the government, and more than 86.4 million pounds was still under loan.

Brace For Big Food Giveaways

By The Associated Press

The federal government's food giveaway program will soon expand to include rice, corn meal and dry milk as well as cheese and butter.

While that's good news for free food recipients, it's bad news for North Carolina social workers who say they don't have enough staff, time or money to operate the program.

"It's like a piece of tough meat — the more you chew, the bigger it gets," said Marion Smith, Randolph County social services director.

"I don't know who's going to go schizophrenic first — the people you help or the staff," said Gerald Thornton, Forsyth County social services director.

Relaxed guidelines will make the surplus food available to about one of every four North Carolinians, state officials say.

And those who stand in line for food can now get it without proving they meet any qualifications. All they have to do is complete a short form and declare they are eligible.

The state has also suggested that the giveaways take place every month, rather than only three times a year.

"You've got storage problems, you've got distribution problems and transportation problems," Thornton said. "You've got staff problems and accountability problems."

Social services workers say they have received no additional staff or money to operate the program, forcing them to burden their already overworked employees.

The new guidelines allow anyone over 60 years old to collect the free food. Also, those who get food stamps, Medicaid, Social Security disability payments or Aid to Families with Dependent Children, or who earn less than a set amount of money, will qualify for cheese, butter and the other three items scheduled to be available in May.

About 1.6 million North Carolinians qualify for the free food under the new guidelines.

Ms. Gaskill said the state has urged the counties to recruit volunteers and ease the workload on government social workers.

"This is really a community effort and not something to be dumped on one agency," she said.

Meat Receipts Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cash receipts from the sale of meat animals totaled $40.9 billion last year, up 3 percent from $39.8 billion in 1981 but still below the record of $43.9 billion in 1979, says the Agriculture Department.

Larger marketings of cattle and calves more than offset lower prices, boosting total cash receipts slightly to $29.9 billion from $29.6 billion in 1981.

That made last year's sales the third largest on record, exceeded only by $34.4 billion in 1979 and $31.5 billion in 1980, according to an annual report by USDA's Economic Research Service.

Cattle prices last year averaged $56.70 per 100 pounds, down 3 percent from 1981. Calf prices, at $59.80, were down 7 percent.

Cash receipts from sales of hogs and pigs were put at a record of $10.6 billion last year, up 9 percent from the previous high of $9.79 billion in 1981.

Prices over the year averaged $52.30 per 100 pounds, up 19 percent from 1981.

Sheep and lamb sales totaled $447.4 million, up 8 percent from $415.7 million in 1981.

Prices of sheep averaged $19.50 per 100 pounds, down 8 percent from 1981, while lambs dropped 3 percent to $53.10 per hundredweight.

You're looking at the best reasons for using Vernam[®] in peanuts.

Nutsedge. It's your biggest weed problem. If you treat only yellow nutsedge, you could be overlooking another problem weed: purple nutsedge. But there is one herbicide that can control both varieties. Only one. Vernam.

And Vernam has a lot going for it besides nutsedge.

Like the 20 other grass and broadleaf weeds Vernam can control by itself. (In a tank mix with Balan,* it gets tough buffalograss as well.) Or, that you incorporate Vernam, so it gives you reliable coverage in wet weather or dry. With Vernam, you don't have to rely on precisely the right amount of rain to do the job.

You know nutsedge is a problem in your peanuts. And you know Vernam can get the job done. That's why peanut farmers like you have been relying on it for the past 15 years.

Beach Erosion 'Especially Bad'

TOPSAIL ISLAND, N.C. (AP) — Experts and state officials say this winter has been particularly hard on North Carolina's developing coastal area, with more sand than usual swept back into the ocean.

A March 18 storm swept away a seawall in Atlantic Beach, toppled a condominium at Kure Beach and poured 18 inches of water into Southport city streets.

"Frankly, a lot of people built in low areas, and they're paying for it," Southport police chief William Cornings said.

At Kill Devil Hills, about a dozen houses are either in the water or threatened by waves breaking over their pilings, Pilkey said.

At Pea Island, north of Buzton, there was severe damage to the dunes built years ago by the National Park Service.

"I found more erosion threatening buildings this year than I've ever seen in North Carolina," said Duke University geology professor Orrin H. Pilkey, a critic of coastal development. "From that regard, it was a very severe winter."

The shifting of sand between the shoreline and the sea has occurred for millennia. And as the coastal area becomes more developed, property damage is inevitable on the 23 barrier islands on the North Carolina coast, he said.

The coast loses an average of 2 feet a year to erosion, according to the state Office of Coastal Management.

About 18 percent of the coast has an erosion rate exceeding 6 feet per year. And the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency estimates that the sea level will rise 4 feet by the year 2100.

Pilkey said the work to build up the dunes to protect N.C. 12 from overwash was a "futile effort."

"This is an area of high erosion, an area where the sea is going to break through repeatedly," he said.

At Ocracoke, a full 2 miles of N.C. 12 was threatened, Pilkey said. Three miles south of the ferry dock on Ocracoke, the ocean is no more than 6 to 8 feet from the highway at low tide and washed across the road at high tide.

"There's really not much left," he said. "I can't understand why some of it didn't fall in. It won't be long."

ENGAGING IDEAS

Diamonds are still the most popular stones for engagement rings, but birthstones are also a popular choice. Traditional birthstones are: garnet (January), amethyst (February), aquamarine (March), diamond (April), emerald (May), pearl (June), ruby (July), carnelian (August), sapphire (September), opal (October), topaz (November), turquoise (December).

Tradition does not call for the engaged woman to give her fiancé an engagement gift, but it is often done. The customary gift is jewelry: cufflinks, keychain, tieclip, or watch. A signet ring, with his birthstone, can also be given.

Engagement gifts are traditionally given only by relatives and not by friends. Etiquette dictates that (unlike shower gifts) the engagement gift be personal, rather than utilitarian. A gift to an engaged person can be made personal by having it engraved or monogrammed, but be absolutely sure it's something wanted, since you won't be able to return it.

Some people think an IRA won't help until retirement. Nonsense. A BB&T IRA helps every April 15.

An IRA, you see, is more than a fast-growing retirement fund. It's a tax shelter.

Now, the tax-wise have been taking advantage of tax shelters for years, contributing money to charity, for example, so they can take big deductions and pay smaller income taxes.

Well, we think it's about time working people got a piece of the action. And they can with BB&T's Individual Retirement Account, a tax shelter that's yours when you make a contribution to the charity closest to your heart: you and your family.

YOU CAN DEDUCT AS MUCH AS $2,000 A YEAR FROM YOUR GROSS INCOME.

You're allowed to invest as much as $2,000 a year in your IRA ($2,250 if you're married and only one of you is a wage earner, $4,000 if you both are). And every penny is deductible. Which means big tax savings. If you're in the 25% tax bracket, for example, and you and your working spouse put $4,000 into an IRA, your refund check from Uncle Sam will be $1,000 fatter than it would be otherwise.

YOU DON'T EVEN PAY TAX ON THE INTEREST YOU EARN UNTIL YOU RETIRE.

Which is nice, because at BB&T, you'll be earning at a rate that's tied to money market rates, with a guaranteed minimum of 8%. What's more, we don't compound that interest annually or quarterly as some banks do. We compound daily, which can make a difference of thousands of dollars in interest over the years.

And all your interest is tax-deferred. You pay no tax on it until you begin withdrawing funds between 59½ and 70½ years of age, when you'll probably be in a lower income tax bracket and, therefore, required to pay less.

YOU CAN BUILD UP ENOUGH IN YOUR IRA OVER THE YEARS TO RETIRE RICH.

If you start an IRA in your early thirties, a $2,000-a-year investment, with all the interest it earns, will turn into a really tidy sum by the time you're sixty-five. And even if you were born too soon to start that early or can't afford an investment that large, you'll still pile up a sizeable retirement fund.

Call or visit any BB&T office and get your IRA started before another day goes by. After all, how can you pass up a plan that gives you big bucks in the September of your life and a bigger refund check every April?

Utilities Meet Set Tuesday

The board of commissioners of the Greenville Utilities Commission will meet Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the utilities building at the intersection of Fifth and Washington Streets.

Included on the agenda is: the consideration of a retail electric rate increase to track an increase in wholesale power costs; several reports including one on a Department of Environmental Management special order of consent on new sewer taps; consideration of number of bids for supplies and equipment; election of officers for the coming year; and other business.

Pinewood Derby Crowns Champs

Pinewood Derby champions in three Cub Scout age groups were crowned here Saturday during the annual Pitt District Scout Show.

The first place winners were: (8 years old), Jonathan Measamer, Cub Pack 385 of Greenville; (9 years old), Paul Allen, Pack 826, Greenville; and (10 years old), David Stowe, Pack 25, Farmville.

The annual derby competition, involving some 200 Cubs from throughout Pitt County, began in February with scouts designing, carving and painting their car entries. Competition began on the den level and pack winners were crowned last month as entrants for Saturday's finals were selected.

All cars were measured and weighed before the competition and Toledo Scales Co. hosted the activities. Jeff Allen served as derby director.

Skeptical Laser Is Suited As Weapon

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The co-inventor of the laser says he is skeptical of his product's capability as a weapon, but would still welcome an alternative to the "balance of terror" of nuclear missiles.

Dr. Arthur L. Schawlow was on the North Carolina State University campus and commented that he could find "all sorts of difficulties" on President Reagan's proposal to rely more heavily on new technologies such as lasers for defense.

"The problems are obvious," Schawlow said. "You would have to shoot at a missile from 1,000 miles away, and you would have to hit a target that is 50 feet long.

"A near miss wouldn't do anything. It's not impossible, but it would seem awfully difficult," Schawlow continued. "You could develop enough power, I think ... if you can hold the thing in your sights long enough."

Schawlow isn't sure the laser would work in the atmosphere because the air would cause too much distortion.

"People used to ask me am I ashamed of creating such a terrible weapon," he said. "Now, 20 years later, the weapon is still questionable."

Warding Off An Oil Slick

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Squads of anti-pollution crews placed a ring of inflatable booms around a major Bahrain seawater desalination plant today to protect against the huge oil slick floating on the Persian Gulf.

Officials said Bahrain soldiers, police and public works employees tried to clean up tar balls from the slick which were landing on beaches.

The English-language Gulf Daily News said "small quantities" of oil were sighted about 35 miles from the island.

A meeting of pollution experts from eight Gulf countries was delayed Sunday because the Iraqi delegation failed to show up in Bahrain.

The meeting was arranged to discuss joint efforts to cap Iran's bombed Nowruz offshore oilfield. The slick began eight weeks ago and worsened when the oil field was bombed by Iraqi planes in early March.

All delegations were expected in Bahrain to start the meeting today, official sources said.

Thus far, the refusal by Iran and Iraq to agree to a ceasefire of their 2½-year-old war has thwarted efforts to send crews in to cap the wells.

Chicago's Hot Mayoral Race In Its Final Hours

By MARK HEINRICH
 Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago's rancorous mayoral campaign steamed into its final day today with Democrat Harold Washington saying members of his party would rather destroy the city than see a black in power and Republican Bernard Epton railing at "prejudice" in the news media.

A television poll released Sunday night showed Washington losing support to Epton in liberal, mainly white lakefront wards considered crucial to his chances in Tuesday's election.

Earlier in the day, Washington and Epton appeared on a succession of national and local radio and television interview programs that focused on the racial hostility that has clouded the campaign.

A survey of 660 registered voters by ABC-owned WLS-TV showed Washington retaining a 14 percent edge over Epton two days before election day. The poll found 52 percent of the support going to Washington, an increase of four percent from two weeks ago. Epton had 38 percent, also a four percent rise in two weeks.

But along the North Side lakefront where Washington was expected to do well Tuesday, Epton gained 11 points to 52 percent support while the Democrat lost 6 points to 36 percent.

WLS said the survey, conducted by Richard Day Research Inc., had an error margin of 6 percent. Voters were polled Thursday through Saturday.

In a campaign stop Sunday night, Washington — trying to become Chicago's first black mayor — took aim at white city Democrats who have defected to Epton's cause.

"They (white Democrats) have tried to skew this thing off and make it appear as if the whole issue is race — that's not true," Washington told a gathering at DuSable High School, where he was a track star. "It's a factor, you can't deny it."

"...But more corrupting in the final analysis (is) the greed and the avarice and profit motive on the part of a few Democratic Party leaders who would rather destroy this city than to see a black man (reform it)."

Epton, meanwhile, accused the media of overlooking his "extensive" campaigning in black neighborhoods.

"They (the media) have been there with me," he said during a stop at a Hispanic youth soccer game. "Unfortunately, the media is very biased and very prejudiced and they've shown it throughout."

On ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley" program, Epton denounced the media for strong emphasis on racial divisions in the campaign.

"Race is a very bum rap," he said. "We've lived here in peace and harmony for many years. The media are pointing up the worst possible situations — you (media) have a tendency to mold the news rather than report it."

Racial tensions in the strident campaign have surfaced several times, including an incident on Palm Sunday when demonstrators shouted at Washington to "Go home" as he stumped with former vice president Walter Mondale outside a church in a predominantly white neighborhood.

Several radio stations planned to broadcast tonight a five-minute Epton commercial that says the major issue in the campaign is not race, but "who can do the job" in City Hall.

In the commercial, Epton says Washington's conviction

Senator Seeks Policy Inquiry

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., has called for a secret Senate session to study whether the Reagan administration is "breaking the law" by supporting paramilitary groups against Nicaragua.

Dodd, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, also said he feared the administration's emphasis on military solutions in Central America could lead to sending U.S. troops to the area.

Asked during a Sunday interview on CBS' "Face the Nation" whether he believed the Reagan administration was deliberately putting the country in a position where it would send troops, Dodd said:

"I think they're certainly, indirectly creating that situation."

Dodd said events in Central America were reaching the point where a secret session of the entire Senate might be necessary "so we can find out exactly what our government is doing, who we are supporting, how far we intend to go."

Dodd said Congress probably would not support any commitment of U.S. military forces to Central America.

"The administration, I think, would probably then try to create a scenario where we had to intervene militarily, using U.S. forces because an ally was under attack," he said. "That's exactly the kind of scenario that becomes more feasible, more likely, with the pursuance of the current administration policy. We're going to inflame that entire region."

Instead of using force, Dodd said, the United States should work to solve the social, economic and political problems that he said cause much of the unrest in Central America. The alternative, he said, is to do what the Soviet Union is doing in Afghanistan.

"I don't think we should use that as our model, quite honestly," he said.

Stadler, Floyd Lead 47th Masters Race

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Raymond Floyd says there's only one way to win a major golf championship — "give yourself a chance."

Floyd did just that in the third round of the weather-plagued 47th Masters golf tournament Sunday.

So did Craig Stadler, Seve Ballesteros and Tom Watson. All have won before on the demanding 6,905-yard, par 72 Augusta National Golf Club course, and only three shots separated the quartet at the start of the final round today.

Stadler was the most familiar foe for Floyd because they met twice in sudden-death playoffs for big paychecks within the last eight months.

Floyd outlasted Stadler on the fifth extra hole for a $300,000 prize in South Africa last December.

Stadler had claimed $100,000 for edging Floyd on the fourth playoff hole in the World Series of Golf at Akron in August.

Today's rubber match was for less money — $90,000 — but more prestige, and it wasn't a two-man race by any means.

They were paired in the final two some of the day, sharing the lead at 6-under-par 210 following Sunday's round in which Stadler had a 69, best score of the day, and Floyd a 71.

Ballesteros, the dashing Spaniard who won the 1980 Masters, was only one shot behind after a 73.

Watson, seeking his third Masters title, had a 71 for 212.

Jodie Mudd, who turned professional after winning low amateur honors in this tournament last year, had a 72 and was tied with Watson.

Two others were in striking distance at 213 — Gil Morgan and Keith Fergus.

Morgan, one of six players stranded on the course by darkness Saturday, came back Sunday to complete his second round with a tournament-leading 70-137. He then ballooned to a 76 in the third round and Fergus shot a 74.

Arnold Palmer, who stole the show in the opening round when he got in the chase with a 68, fell apart Sunday.

Palmer, 53, finished his second round with a bogey and came back in the afternoon to post a fat 76-218, despite an eagle 3 on the 13th.

"It all just came apart," Palmer said. "All the things I'd been working on seemed to go astray."

After having the second round rained out Friday and then suspended by darkness Saturday, the weather finally changed, bathing Augusta National in warm, bright sunshine Sunday.

"I did not get the most out of my round," Floyd said, "but I felt anything around par today would still give me a chance to win the golf tournament."

Floyd said he missed makeable birdie putts at 2, 7, 9, 13 and 14 and had a bad first putt from 40 feet on the 10th, costing him a bogey.

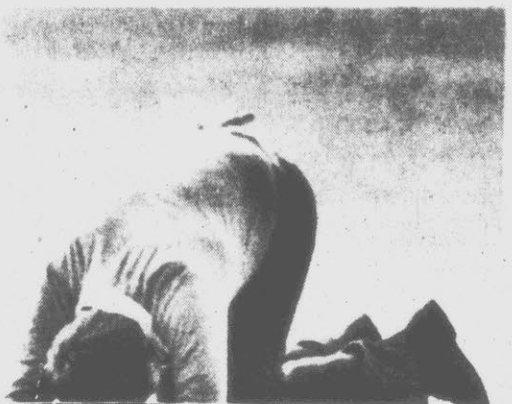

"I'm confident," he said. "I know how to play the golf course. It takes some discipline. I certainly should be a factor in the golf tournament."

Both Floyd, who tied Jack Nicklaus' 72-hole scoring record of 271 when he won the 1976 Masters, and Stadler, who hopes to join Nicklaus as the only player to win consecutive Masters titles, said they won't be playing each other today, because there are too many other good players in contention.

"I'll go out and play my game," Stadler said. "I'm sure Raymond will do the same."

Stadler gained his share of the lead when he knocked in a 30-foot birdie putt on the 17th.

"I won last year," he said. "I know I can win on the golf course."

Gant's Fortune Changes With TranSouth 500 Win

DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — Harry Gant couldn't believe his good fortune.

The man who had been known as "Hard Luck Harry" for so long had just won a race on a combination of tenacity, skill and, surprising to him, a truly lucky break.

"I just couldn't believe it was happening to me, to our team," said Gant after taking the lead just three laps from the end of Sunday's TranSouth 500 Grand National stock car race at Darlington International Raceway.

Darrell Waltrip, the two-time defending Winston Cup champion who still is looking for his first victory of the season, appeared to have this race all wrapped up.

"There was no way I was going to catch him after that last pit stop," Gant said. "Darrell just had better tires than I had at that point."

"Then, with three laps to go, I was behind him going into the third turn when I saw a little puff of smoke out of his exhaust. And he looked under power going past a slower car. That's when I knew I could get around him. When I did, I saw the white flag (indicating one lap to go) and then the checkered flag."

"I knew I'd been running in second place, but I still looked up at the scoreboard to make sure there was nobody else running out there ahead of me."

Gant's Skoal-sponsored Buick Regal — co-owned by actor Burt Reynolds and producer-director Hal Needham — finished about one second ahead of Waltrip's Chevrolet Monte Carlo Super Sport.

"I've never been in second place when something like that's happened. I feel sorry for Darrell, but that kind of thing used to happen to us all the time."

"Something went in the ignition," Waltrip explained. "The car just started skipping and popping toward the end, and it just got worse and worse. The car basically just quit running."

"But, the way things have been going for us this season, second place isn't too bad. There's always next week."

Waltrip, who has won 12 races each of the past two seasons, now has gone five races without a victory this season. Waltrip had won the race — previously known as the Rebel 500 — three times previously.

Gant, a 43-year-old from Taylorsville, N.C., picked up $30,050 for the triumph. His average speed of 130.406 mph broke Waltrip's 1977 race record of 128.817.

Martina Downs Austin In Finale

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Top-seed Martina Navratilova overcame some early problems with her serve to take a 5-7, 6-1, 6-0 victory Sunday over Tracy Austin to win the Family Circle Cup women's tennis tournament here for the second straight year.

Navratilova, the No. 1 ranked women's player in the world, wasn't able to hold her own serve until the second game of the second set at Sea Pines Racquet Club.

But from that point, she allowed third-seeded Austin to win but one game the rest of the match.

"I wasn't at any stage thinking I was going to lose the match. It was just a matter of settling down and doing the things I could," Navratilova said after her 32nd consecutive match win. "After the first set I was never really threatened."

But the Dallas athlete admitted the early going before a stadium crowd of about 4,000 and a national television audience was rough. The winner said it was the first time her serve had been broken six times in one set.

She said the brisk wind on the crisp, sunny afternoon also caused some problems.

"It was difficult to really hit the ball with any authority because it was floating in the air," she said.

Navratilova said Austin also kept her at bay in the first set with her baseline volleys. Later however, Navratilova was able to lure her opponent to the net and put points away with well-placed drop shots.

It was Austin's first appearance in a tournament final this year, and the Rolling Hills, Calif., woman said she was "really pleased with the tournament I had. I gained a lot of confidence."

Austin said she grew tired late in the match because of a marathon 2-hour, 25-minute semifinal victory over Andrea Jaeger on Saturday.

"I was a little bit (tired). I think by the third set I was. There was a lot of emotion in it yesterday," she said.

Navratilova won $34,000 for her efforts, while Austin took home $17,000.

In the doubles finals, Navratilova and Candy Reynolds of Knoxville, Tenn., defeated Jaeger and Paula Smith of La Jolla, Calif., 6-2, 6-3.

Pirates Finish Fifth In Tar Heel Tourney

CHAPEL HILL — East Carolina finished its best tournament effort of the year in a tie for fifth with Guilford College at 885 Sunday at the Tar Heel Invitational Golf Tournament at Finley Golf Course.

The North Carolina "A" team won the event with a score of 858, followed by N.C. State at 860, Wake Forest at 865 and Duke at 875.

Bill Brooks of Guilford, Chip Hall of Florida and Jeffrey Lankford of N.C. State all fired 213 for low individual honors in the three-round tourney.

Chris Czaja led the Pirates with 220, followed by David Dooley at 221, Roger Newsome 222, Kelly Stimart 223 and David Woodard 224.

The Pirates will compete this weekend at the Old Dominion University Invitational at Nags Head.

Broken Leg Ends Season For Worthy

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP)

— James Worthy, the first player taken in last year's National Basketball Association draft, will be watching from the sidelines as the Los Angeles Lakers attempt to defend their NBA title.

Worthy, a 6-foot-9 forward, will be lost for the rest of the season because of a fractured bone in his left leg.

The former North Carolina standout suffered the injury in the final seconds of the third quarter in Sunday night's game between the Lakers and the Phoenix Suns.

A spokesman for the Lakers said that Worthy broke the central portion of the lateral tibial plateau.

Worthy was attempting a rebound-dunk with about 15 seconds remaining in the third quarter when he was injured. He missed the dunk attempt and fell heavily to the floor.

Phoenix forward Maurice Lucas stumbled and fell on top of Worthy, but a replay showed that Worthy suffered the fracture when he hit the floor.

Worthy was taken off the court on a stretcher and transported to nearby Centinela Valley Medical Center, where the diagnosis was made.

The Lakers' spokesman said that Worthy's leg was immobilized and doctors allowed him to go home on crutches. Worthy will undergo further examination this week, the spokesman added.

Worthy scored 18 points and pulled down six rebounds before being injured. He brought a scoring average of 13.3 points per game into the contest, which was won by the Suns 101-95.

Worthy, who played 25 minutes before being injured, is the third former North Carolina standout to be lost by the Lakers.

Forward-center Mitch Kupchak hasn't played since suffering a severe knee injury in December of 1981 while forward-center Bob McAdoo has been out since the middle of February because of an injured toe on his right foot that required surgery.

It is not known whether McAdoo will be available for the playoffs. Kupchak won't be back until next season, at the earliest.

"I'm just numb," said Los Angeles Coach Pat Riley, referring to the injury to Worthy. "Worthy is the only thing of concern right now. He is just a gifted, gifted player."

"I was just telling James Worthy this morning that I was going to get him in playoff shape. I was going to start playing him 35 minutes per game."

Oakland Snaps Winning Streak, Defeats Boston 26-7 In Rain

By The Associated Press
Combine a vastly improved running game with an opportunistic defense and the result is usually a victory — whether the football is played in the spring or the fall.

The Oakland Invaders rode that formula to a 26-7 decision over Boston in a United States Football League game Sunday, snapping the Breakers' four-game winning streak before a rain-soaked crowd of 7,984 at Nickerson Field.

Oakland, 3-3, had averaged just 100 running yards in its first five games, but the Invaders picked up 186 on the ground against the Breakers. Ted Torosian led the charge with 14 carries for 77 yards and two touchdowns.

The Invaders, who forced just eight turnovers in their first five games, also recovered three Boston fumbles and intercepted two passes.

In other USFL games Sunday, Chicago beat Birmingham 22-11, Michigan bombed New Jersey 21-6 and Philadelphia ripped Los Angeles 17-3. On Saturday night, Tampa Bay edged Denver 22-16 in overtime.

Arizona is at Washington tonight.

"When your running game is going well, their linemen have to read run a little bit, too," said Torosian, whose touchdown runs of 2 and 12 yards were set up by turnovers. "That makes it easier for our linemen to pass protect."

"We haven't been getting any turnovers," said Oakland Coach John Ralston. "We've probably been getting one a game and that really isn't enough to get much done in this game."

The game started in a light rain but ended in heavy wind and rain, but Boston Coach Dick Coury said the weather had nothing to do with the Breakers' second loss in six games.

"If it had been sunshine it would have been the same score the way they played and the way we played," Coury said.

Before a crowd of 17,648 at East Rutherford, N.J., New Jersey running back Herschel Walker ran well for the second straight week, but Michigan handed the Generals their fifth loss in six games.

Walker, who had rushed for 177 yards in the Generals' 35-21 victory over Arizona the previous week, charged for 133 yards on 26 carries. But Panthers linebacker John Coker registered six of Michigan's eight sacks of New Jersey quarterback Bobby Scott to keep the Generals at bay.

The Panthers, 2-4, took a 7-0 lead after Ira Albright fell on a blocked punt in the end zone and Michigan also scored touchdowns on Bobby Hebert's 25-yard pass to Derek Holloway and Ken Lacey's 9-yard run.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina completed 21 of 37 passes for 214 yards and one touchdown, leading the Stars over the Express. The win was the fifth in six games for Philadelphia, tying the Stars with Tampa Bay for the best record in the league, while Los Angeles fell to 3-3.

Rookie Kelvin Bryant, the USFL's leading rusher, gained 81 yards on 21 carries and scored Philadelphia's first touchdown on a 2-yard run in the second quarter.

Tim Spencer, who ran for 106 yards, gave Chicago, 4-2 with a three-game winning streak, a 13-6 lead with a

Clutch Putt Gives Her 27th Win

Lopez Takes J&B Pro-Am Title

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Nancy Lopez has 27 victories in her Ladies Professional Golf Association career. Perhaps none of the first 26 contained as much drama as No. 27.

Lopez sank a clutch putt of about seven feet Sunday to win the $200,000 J&B Scotch Pro-Am for the second consecutive year.

Lopez, who scrambled to a 2-over-par 74 in the final round, nipped Laura Baugh Cole, who was looking for her first-ever LPGA triumph, by one stroke.

"After it went in, I jumped three feet in the air, which is about the highest I've ever jumped after winning," said Lopez. "I knew the line because I've had the putt before, it was about seven feet. I knew I had to stroke it firm to keep it's line and it went dead center."

Lopez, who finished the 72-hole tournament with a 5-under-par 283, had to make the putt for a par to avoid a playoff with Cole, who sank an eight-foot putt for a birdie on the same hole.

The victory was the second of the year for the 26-year-old Lopez and the top prize of $30,000 raised her 1983 earnings to $79,998.

"I think I played better than I scored," said Lopez, the fourth-leading money winner in LPGA history. "A couple putts I thought I had made spun out. I was really freaked out on the 14th when one spun all the way around and almost came back to me. I couldn't believe that."

Lopez announced last week that she is expecting her first child in the middle of November. She is married to baseball player Ray Knight of the Houston Astros.

Cole, playing in only her fourth tournament after taking 18 months off following the birth of her first child, had a 73 Sunday, giving her a 284 total. She collected $19,600.

"This is the most money I've ever won in a tournament," said Cole, who turns 28 next month. "I had a hunch I was going to make that putt and then leave the pressure up to Nancy. But she did it like the champion she is."

"If I can't win, second is the next-best thing."

Cole's daughter, Chelsea, was born in July of 1981. In the three tournaments she played prior to the Pro-Am, she collected only $1,625. Cole now has eight runner-up finishes in an LPGA career that began when she was 17.

Tied for third place at 286 were Jan Stephenson, Patty Sheehan, Vicki Fergon and Alice Miller. Each earned $9,750. Stephenson had a 70 in the final round while Sheehan, Fergon and Miller all closed with 71s.

Next at 287 was Amy Alcott, winner of last week's $400,000 Nabisco-Dinah Shore Invitational at Rancho Mirage, Calif. Alcott had an even-par 72 Sunday over the 6,237-yard, par 72 Desert Inn Country Club course and collected $6,400.

Sonics Victorious, Clinch Berth

By The Associated Press

Both Seattle and Portland are ending the season the way they started it, which is good for the SuperSonics and bad for the Trail Blazers.

The Sonics, who started the season 12-0, clinched a National Basketball Association playoff berth Sunday night by beating Portland 102-93. It was their seventh straight victory and 14th in their last 16 outings.

"We've been consistently building since the all-star break," said Jack Sikma, who had 25 points and 17 rebounds for Seattle. "We're improving and we're stable. I think we'll go into the playoffs in a good situation, with a good attitude. We can do some damage."

The Blazers, who recovered from a 1-5 beginning to nearly catch Seattle in the standings, have lost three in a row and are now in danger of not making the playoffs.

Mychal Thompson, who had 18 points and 16 rebounds in the losing cause for Portland, said the Blazers have stopped playing together as a team.

"Sometimes it looks like we're not used to each other in spite of the fact we've played together all season," he said.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Boston edged Detroit 115-113, Philadelphia tripped New York 113-97, Golden State beat San Diego 102-93, Cleveland trimmed Indiana 110-105, Milwaukee crushed Chicago 121-91 and Phoenix defeated Los Angeles 101-95.

Portland is still in fifth place in the Western Conference, but leads Denver and Kansas City by just one game. One of those three teams will not make the playoffs.

Seattle, which got 28 points from Gus Williams, outscored the Blazers 16-6 in the final 2:36 of the game to reverse an 87-86 deficit. Seattle took a 76-68 lead into the final period, but Calvin Natt, who led Portland with 27 points, sparked a fourth-quarter rally that gave the Blazers a one-point lead on four occasions.

Portland never trailed in the first half after taking a 26-16 lead.

"We've been playing very well lately," Sonics Coach Lenny Wilkens said. "Portland got off to a great start, but what we try to do is have patience."

Thompson said experience made the difference — especially in the final quarter when veterans Williams, Phil Smith and Fred Brown made some important plays for the Sonics.

"Seattle's got so many experienced players," Thompson said. "They just know how to make the crucial plays. Gus, Phil and Freddy — it seems like they've been around forever."

Suns 105, Lakers 99

Dennis Johnson, who missed three games with an injured ankle, scored 22 points to lead Phoenix over Los Angeles, which also lost rookie star James Worthy with a broken leg.

"He was just coming into his own and now he's down," Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said of Worthy. "Aside from him being hurt, it will also hurt the team very much."

Worthy had to be taken off the court on a stretcher after tumbling to the floor while attempting a rebound-dunk late in the third quarter.

The Suns didn't take the lead for good until Larry Nance hit a short jumper to make it 91-90 with 4:22 remaining.

76ers 113, Knicks 97

Andrew Toney scored seven of his 40 points during a 12-0 run by Philadelphia that defused a New York comeback attempt in the fourth quarter.

The Knicks, who got 29 points from Bernard King, rallied from a 24-point deficit in the third period to cut the margin to 95-87 with 5:26 left in the game. But Toney led the 12-point burst that gave the 76ers a comfortable 107-87 lead.

The loss dropped New York into a tie with Washington for the sixth and final Eastern Conference playoff spot. The Knicks and Bulls are a half-game behind fifth-place Atlanta.

Celtics 115, Pistons 113

Playoff-bound Boston went to its bench to hold off repeated Detroit rallies in the second half.

Backups Tiny Archibald, who missed nearly seven full games with a hand injury, and Kevin McHale scored 14 points each for the Celtics, while substitute forward Scott Wedman added 12. Starting guard Gerald Henderson hit 11 of 14 shots to lead Boston with 22 points.

The Pistons, who got 26 points each from Kelly Tripucka and Isiah Thomas, trailed 59-44 at halftime, but cut the deficit to 79-78 in the third period.

Cavaliers 110, Pacers 105
World Free scored 13 points and Cliff Robinson 10 more as Cleveland outscored Indiana 35-24 in the final period to overcome a six-point deficit after three quarters.

Free finished with 26 points and Robinson 27 as the Cavaliers took a 1½-game lead over the Pacers in the race for last place in the Eastern Conference. If the Pacers finish last, they will flip a coin with Houston for the first draft pick, but if Cleveland finishes last, the Rockets automatically will get the first two choices.

Clark Kellogg hit 11 of his 12 shots to lead Indiana with 24 points.

Bucks 121, Bulls 91

Marques Johnson hit 11 of his first 12 shots in the first half and finished with 28 points as Milwaukee easily defeated Chicago.

Junior Bridgeman scored 14 of his 24 points in the first quarter, Johnson added 18 in the second period and Sidney Moncrief contributed 13 in the third quarter as the Bucks led 100-65 going into the final 12 minutes.

Warriors 102, Clippers 93

Purvis Short scored 31 points and Eric Floyd 23 to boost Golden State over San Diego.

The Warriors took control of the game with a 15-2 spurt in the second half that extended a one-point lead to 82-68.

Tom Chambers scored 28 points for the Clippers.

Braves Fan Files Suit Over Ticket Package

ATLANTA (AP) — Robert C. Lamar says he's still an Atlanta Braves fan, despite the $1 million lawsuit he has filed in a dispute with the National League club's ticket officials.

"I'm still behind the team 100 percent. I just want a chance to see the games," said Lamar, an Atlanta attorney.

Lamar filed the suit just hours before the Braves' home opener Friday on behalf of himself and 15 other fans who paid $1,456 on March 17 for seats to 15 selected Braves' games offered under a family plan.

Superior Court Judge John Langford issued a temporary restraining order late Friday instructing the Braves to give Lamar's group tickets to the home opener in seats as close as possible to the ones they had paid for.

Braves officials have refused to comment on the suit, but Lamar said in a telephone interview Sunday that his group, which includes three other lawyers, decided to file the legal action only after the Braves refused to resolve the ticket snafu to their satisfaction.

Lamar said one member of his group hand-delivered a check for $1,456 to the Braves' ticket offices on March 17, the deadline for holders of family plan tickets last year to purchase the same seats for the current season.

When the tickets had not arrived by mail on Thursday, Lamar said he called the Braves' offices and was told later in the day that the

Tennis Duo Wins In Kinston

KINSTON — The top-seeded team of Wes Hankins of Greenville and Tom Richter of Washington won the California Cellars Masters Invitational Tennis Tournament held this weekend at the Kinston Country Club, defeating Gordon White of Greenville and Bill Hallows of New Bern 2-6, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4.

Tom Ricks and John Hood of Kinston defeated Paige Davis and Jimmy Walker of Washington to win the consolation bracket 6-3, 6-3.

Braves had mistakenly sold his group's seats to someone else. Braves officials then offered the group tickets in the same area, only 17 rows higher up.

Mabry Leads Lady Pirates

CHAPEL HILL — Delphine Mabry took second place in the 800 meters with a time of 2:09.17 — just one second off the national qualifying time — to lead the Lady Pirates in the Carolina Relays this weekend.

Mabry placed fifth in the long jump with a leap of 18-3, and also teamed with Teresa Hudson, Jamie Cathcart and Robin Cremedy for fifth place in the 400 relay at 47.91.

Cremedy placed sixth and Hudson a close seventh in the 100 meters at 12.70 and 12.72, respectively. Cathcart placed sixth in the 400 meter race at 57.40.

The Lady Pirates run again April 23 in Boone at the Mountaineer Track Classic.

SHOPLIFTING
makes you a criminal!

And criminals do get caught!
Now the stores are wise to shoplifters, and have the manpower and sophisticated equipment to prove it. Closed circuit cameras, undercover people, specially trained tagging systems — are all used to successfully catch shoplifters. And the stores are taking legal actions! Shoplifters face even stiffer fines... even jail when they're caught... plus the humiliation of getting arrested, and a criminal record that could effect future schooling, jobs, credit rating, and the respect and trust of family and friends. Shoplifting... like any other crime... just doesn't pay!

Texas Rangers On The Winning Trail

By The Associated Press

After one week of the 1983 baseball season, the Texas Rangers have to rate as the American League's surprise team.

The 1982 sad-sack Rangers finished sixth in the AL West with a 64-98 record, 29 games behind the first-place California Angels. But under new Manager Doug Rader, the current edition has galloped to five victories in its first six games.

The latest — and most dramatic — came Sunday when the Rangers trailed the Boston Red Sox 7-0 after 2½ innings but rallied to win 9-7.

"The breaks went our way, but we made some breaks, too. I guess I'm trying to say our start this season is not a fluke," said third baseman Buddy Bell, who hit a two-run homer in a five-run third inning and then singled to start the eighth, eventually scoring the winning run on Bill Stein's pinch single.

In other AL action, Oakland pounded California 11-4, Milwaukee downed Kansas City 9-5, Baltimore crushed Cleveland 13-2, the New York Yankees blanked Toronto 3-0, the Chicago White Sox defeated Detroit 7-5 and Minnesota beat Seattle 6-3.

Even though the Rangers fell behind 7-0, Bell insisted: "Honest to goodness, we didn't think we were beaten. It's a nice feeling when you can be down like that and come back. Everybody stayed cool and everybody did the job."

With the game tied, Bell led off the eighth with a single off reliever Bob Stanley and moved to second on Jim Sundberg's grounder. Stanley walked George Wright intentionally, but Stein, who has batted almost .400 as a pinch hitter over the past three seasons, singled for the go-ahead run. Mickey Rivers followed with a single that scored Wright.

Shutout relief by Danny Darwin and Charlie Hough kept the Red Sox close enough for the Rangers to battle back.

"We've come back in every single game we've played this year, and five of them we won," said Rader. "They battled their tails off."

A's 11, Angels 4
Left-hander Bill Krueger broke into the major leagues in style when Oakland staked the 24-year-old rookie to an early nine-run lead and whipped the Angels behind a 14-hit attack, including three apiece by Mike Davis and Wayne Gross. Krueger, who never pitched above Class AA in the minors, was promoted to the A's roster last week when Rick Langford was placed on the disabled list. He went seven innings in his debut, allowing nine hits and four runs.

"I caught them after they'd hit themselves out scoring all those runs on Saturday," Krueger said, referring to a 10-2 California triumph. "Probably my biggest thrill of the day was just walking onto a major league field for the first time. The fact that I won the game just added to the thrill. Things have happened fast."

Brewers 9, Royals 5
Jim Gantner drilled a bases-loaded triple in the sixth inning after a two-out error by Kansas City's Gold Glove second baseman Frank White allowed the tying run to score. White, a six-time Gold Glove winner, bobbled a bases-loaded grounder by Charlie Moore and Ted Simmons scored to tie the score 4-4, then Gantner greeted rookie Bob Tufts with his triple. Gorman Thomas, Cecil Cooper and Robin Yount added solo home runs for Milwaukee.

Orioles 13, Indians 2
Eddie Murray drove in four runs with four hits, including his first homer of the season, and John Lowenstein drove in three with a double and triple as the Orioles rapped off 14 hits, seven for extra bases. Murray, whose first-inning RBI single was the 1,000th hit of his career, added a single in Baltimore's five-run third, doubled a run across in the fifth and hit a two-run homer in the eighth.

Yankees 3, Blue Jays 0
Shane Rawley fired a seven-hitter for his first major league shutout and rookie Don Mattingly doubled home two runs. Rawley, who became a full-time starter last July after spending his first 4½ big league seasons as a reliever, struck out seven and walked two in recording his fourth complete game in 23 starts. Butch Wynegar singled home the only run he needed in the fourth inning off Toronto ace Dave Sieb.

"As a reliever, you go out with the fastball and slider, power pitching," Rawley said. "But being a starter, I go with four pitches. You have to throw the change and curve more often. I threw hard today, no question of that. Today, I was spotting the ball well, made them hit my pitches and threw strikes."

White Sox 7, Tigers 5
Chicago rookie Ron Kittle

drove in four runs with a homer and a single and LaMarr Hoyt scattered six hits in 82-3 innings. Detroit ace Jack Morris had a 4-3 lead when the White Sox scored four times in the fifth inning.

Singles by Vance Law, Tony Bernazard and Harold Baines produced the tying run. Greg Luzinski singled to give Chicago a 5-4 lead and Baines scored when Morris uncorked a wild pitch while facing Kittle, who then singled Luzinski home. Kittle hit a three-run homer in the first inning.

Twins 6, Mariners 3
Designated hitter Randy Bush belted two homers and drove in three runs, while John Castino and Gary Gaetti also homered, all off 44-year-old Seattle starter Gaylord Perry, who gave up six runs on seven hits through 61-3 innings. Minnesota starter Brad Havens held the Mariners to one run — Dave Henderson's homer — until the eighth.

Old Timers Ready For Second Event

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spahn and Sain, and pray there's no rain.

Warren Spahn and Johnny Sain, two pitching masters who once had their Boston Braves manager hoping for cloudbursts every third day, will team up again with 62 other former baseball greats for the 2nd annual Cracker Jack Old Timer's Baseball Classic here July 18.

"Spahn and Sain and pray for rain," went the one-time refrain when these two pitching masters toiled for the old Braves of the National League.

When these baseball greats kicked off the all-star game in this baseball-starved capital city last summer, intermittent rains left them slogging across the turf at Robert F. Kennedy Stadium.

But even the rain did not dampen the spirits of the players or more than 29,000 fans who watched 75-year-old Luke Appling launch one of Spahn's servings into the left-field stands.

This year's game will include the three newest members of the Hall of Fame — George Kell, Brooks Robinson and Juan Marichal — who will be enshrined in ceremonies this summer in Cooperstown, N.Y.

Other Hall of Famers will play in the game are Appling, Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Early Wynn, Bill Dickey, Joe DiMaggio, and Al Kaline for the American League, and Robin Roberts, Ernie Banks, Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Ralph Kiner, Stan Musial and Monte Irvin for the NL.

The American League team also has Dobby Doerr, Boog Powell, Phil Rizzuto, Al Rosen, Bill Skowron, George Strickland, Mickey Vernon, Sid Hudson, Camilo Pascual, Billy Pierce, Bobby Shantz, Allie Reynolds, Earl Battey, Rick Ferrell, Les Moss, Gus Triandos, Hank Bauer, Rocky Colavito, Tommy Henrich, Bob Kennedy, Harmon Killebrew, Roger Maris and Minnie Mino.

The other National Leaguers are Johnny Antonelli, Don Drysdale, Carl Erskine, Vinegar Bend Mizell, Smokey Burgess, Joe Garagiola, Tom Haller, Tim McGarver, Alvin Dark, Willie Jones, Ted Kluszewski, Johnny Logan, Bill Mazerowski, Pee Wee Reese, Ron Santo, Red Schoendienst, Richie Ashburn, Lou Brock, Del Ennis, Dee Fondy, Enos Slaughter and Billy Williams.

Southern Gentleman' Coach Passes Away

WESLACO, Texas (AP) — Jess Neely, a "cool, Southern gentleman" who became one of only 13 college football coaches to win more than 200 games, as died at age 85.

Neely died Saturday night at the John Knox Retirement Village, where he had lived in this Rockledge Valley community, said a nursing home spokeswoman who did not want to be identified. He had been ill for several weeks.

During his 40-year career, Neely compiled a 207-199-14 record. "College football has lost a really good supporter," said Coach Ray Albarn, who played with Neely three years. "He always stressed the importance of an education. He even to a dummy like me and made sure I got a degree."

Neely who lettered three years in football at Vanderbilt and was captain of the 1922 team, was graduated in 1924. He was hired as football coach by Southwestern College in Clarksville, Tenn. The college later was moved to Memphis.

After four years at Southwestern and two years as an assistant coach at Alabama, Neely was named head coach at Clemson, where he remained through the 1939 season. In his last game at Clemson, the Tigers defeated Boston College 6-3 in the Jan. 1, 1940, Cotton Bowl.

Neely accepted the coaching job at Rice and over 26 seasons, led the Owls to four Southwest Conference championships. "He was a cool, Southern gentleman but he worked us like do 22:25. Our workouts were always twice as hard as the games," said Dick Maegle, who played for the San Francisco 49ers, Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys after leaving Rice.

Neely is survived by his wife, Dorothy, two daughters, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The Citizens Bikeway Committee will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the first floor conference room at city hall.

Car Window Broken, Purse Taken

Greenville police are looking for the thief who stole $30 in cash and a gold necklace with a $5 gold piece attached, worth an estimated $1,000, from a car parked near the intersection of Third and Evans Streets early Sunday morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said someone used a brick to break a window out of a car owned by Sallie Mercer Oettinger of 205B Linbeth Drive. A purse, which contained the cash and necklace, was taken.

The incident was reported at 1:30 a.m.

Evans Mall Break-Ins Investigated

Greenville police are investigating two break-ins discovered in the 400 block of Evans Mall between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. Sunday.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a glass door at Smith Electric Co. was broken out and $382 worth of merchandise, including two vacuum cleaners, a toaster oven and a toaster, were taken.

He said the merchandise was recovered at the south end of the mall shortly after the break-in was discovered.

Cannon said thieves broke a glass door at the Shoe Room and took $455 worth of merchandise, including a television set and 29 pairs of shoes.

Stereo Equipment Is Taken

Chief Glenn Cannon said an estimated $777 worth of stereo equipment was reported taken from a house at 1009B Broad St. in break-in early Saturday morning.

The incident was reported at 1:25 a.m. The chief said entrance to the house was gained by breaking through a rear door.

Investigation of the theft is continuing.

Filing False Report Charged

Pamela Denise Sheppard, 16 of 1311 North Washington St. was charged by Greenville police Saturday with filing a false report after she told officers she had been abducted and raped.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the alleged incident was reported about 2:20 a.m. He said Miss Sheppard first told investigators that she had been abducted from the 400 block of Nash street and driven into the country where she was assaulted.

She later told investigators that she made up the story because she was afraid her grandparents would be angry at her for coming home late.

Camera Recovered, Suspect Escapes

A $75 Polaroid camera taken from Agnes Fullilove School in a 7:15 a.m. break-in Saturday was recovered by police who were unsuccessful in their attempts to catch the bicycle-riding thief.

Chief Glenn Cannon said officers, responding to a burglar alarm, saw a youth leaving the school on a bicycle. He said attempts to catch the youth failed, but noted that the camera was recovered when the boy threw the camera down.

Entrance to the building, the chief said, was gained by breaking out a window.

Cash, Property Taken From Room

Greenville police are investigating the theft of $100 in cash and other property from a room at the Holiday Inn on Memorial Drive early Saturday morning.

Cannon said Fred Hayes Miller, 46, a New Bern dentist, told officers the property was missing from his room after he returned and found someone had broken a window.

Items missing in addition to the cash included a pair of gold earrings, a gold chain, gym clothes and two racketball rackets.

Rape Charge Is Placed

William Edward Fleming of 1807 South Greene St. was arrested by Greenville police this morning on rape charges following investigation of an incident reported about 11:15 p.m. Sunday.

Cannon said a 64-year-old woman reported that Fleming, whom she knew, had raped her in her home earlier Sunday night.

Greenville School Board To Meet

The information meeting of the Greenville Board of Education will be held at 8 p.m. tonight at Sadie Saulter Elementary School.

Action items on the agenda include a first reading of the affirmative action policy, critical shortage categories of the reduction-in-force policy, adoption of the 1983-84 comprehensive plan, and personnel action.

President's Award Is Presented

Fieldcrest President F.X. Larkin presented a plaque to the employees during a special ceremony at the plant recently. Safety committee chairman Paul Cox accepted the plaque on behalf of the employees.

Following the presentation, there was a special safety meal in honor of the employees' achievement.

Dr. Hal May, a child psychologist, will be at the meeting.

firm, a subsidiary of North State Savings and Loan Corp., has some 2,000 square feet of space. The new office structure was built by Miller & Davis Associates of Greenville. (Reflector Staff Photo)

U.S. Corps Of Engineers Hasn't Decided To Dredge N.C. Channel

By The Associated Press
U.S. Corps of Engineers officials say a replica of a sailing ship being built for North Carolina's 400th anniversary is only a minor factor in plans to deepen a channel between Wanchese and Manteo.

The subject of the channel and its future use was raised recently in a legislative budget subcommittee. Legislative staffers said the state would be required to put up $400,000 in 1983-84 if the $1 million project to dredge the channel is carried out by the corps.

A legislative staffer said the lawmakers might want to discuss whether it was worth it to deepen the six-foot channel to 12 to 15 feet just to accommodate the Elizabeth II, a replica of a sailing vessel planned for the state's anniversary celebration.

"The corps has not made any decision at all on this channel," said James Poteat, public affairs officer in Wilmington. "When it does, the issue will be if there is potential commercial use or value in that channel."

The corps has just begun preliminary studies for the project, Poteat said. Before final approval for federal spending is given, another in-depth study must be made, he said.

Lawmakers from the Outer Banks feel strongly that the project will be a boon to the fishing and tourist industries in the area.

Rep. Charles D. Evans, D-Dare, said that a deeper channel would mean increased development of commercial fishing.

"And there is also the recreational use by sailboats and cabin cruisers — the whole gamut of pleasure craft," Evans said. "Of course, they're not going to come in unless they can safely navigate the channels."

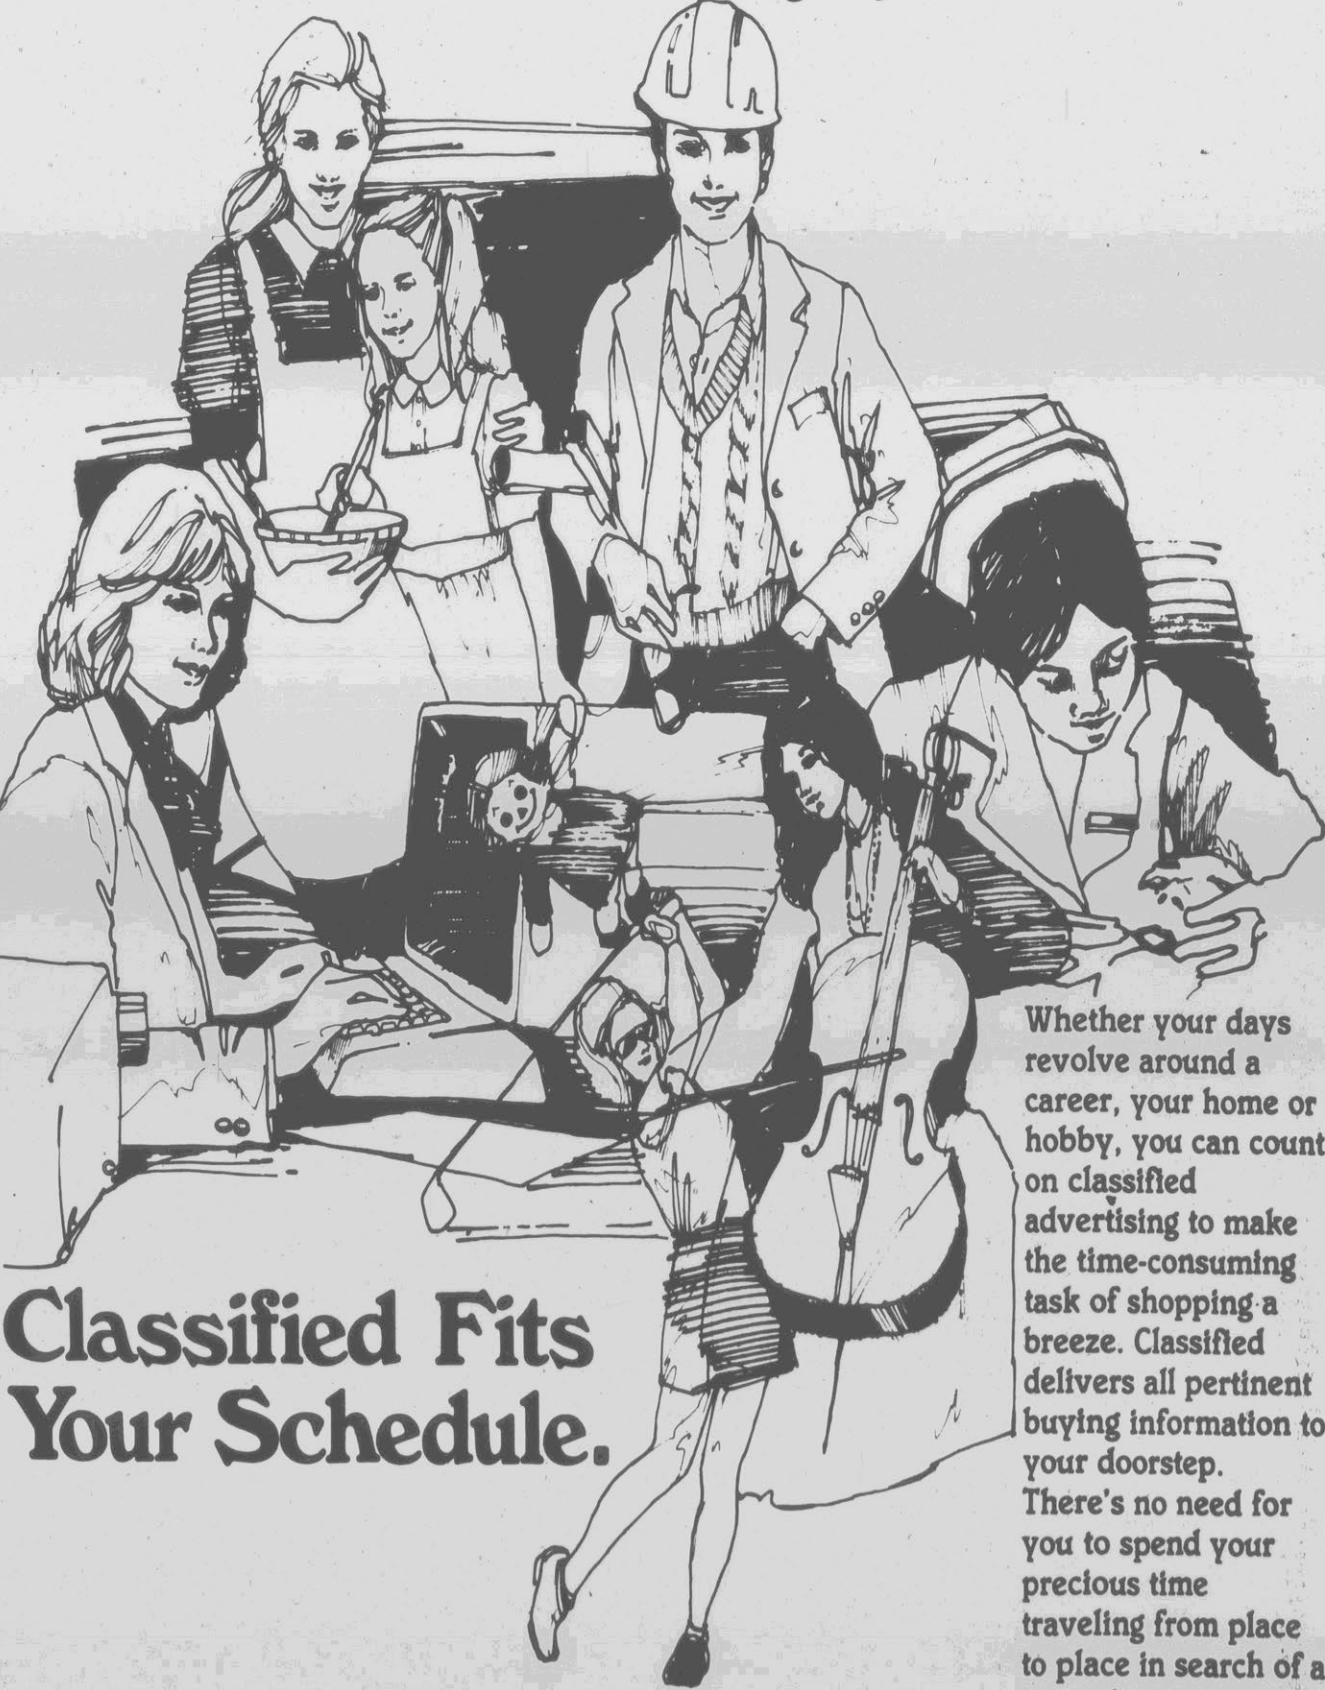

But other officials see the channel dredging as using government funds to accommodate wealthy owners of pleasure craft or to make sailing the Elizabeth II easier.

Dredging the channel isn't necessary for the Elizabeth II, says Manteo resident Marc Basnight, a state Transportation Board member.

"Let them do the same thing the fishermen do, sail with the tide," he said.

The Forecast For Tuesday, April 12

Fronts: Cold — Warm — Occluded — Stationary —
WEATHER FORECAST — The National Weather Service forecast for Tuesday predicts rain for most of the New England states and parts of New York, with rain also indicated for

By The Associated Press
At last it appears there will be some fair, dry weather over North Carolina.

High pressure centered over the Gulf of Mexico spread into the state today and will bring fair weather through the middle of the week.

Another complex area of low pressure is expected to develop from the central Rockies into the central plains during the next couple of days. This system will probably bring showers back into the state by the end of the week.

Less humid air spread across the state Sunday and Sunday night, but some cloudiness did linger. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms developed Sunday, but most were confined to the western and northeastern part of the state. There was even some snow early last night at the higher elevations of the mountains.

High temperatures Sunday afternoon were in the 50s and 60s across the mountains with readings from 50 at Boone to 69 at Murphy. East of the mountains highs were in the mid 60s to lower 70s. The warmest location was Fayetteville with 75 degrees followed by Raleigh-Durham with 72 degrees.

Last night temperatures cooled into the 30s across the mountains and into the 40s and lower 50s east of the mountains.

Fair skies will be the rule tonight and Tuesday. Lows tonight will be in the 30s across western and northern sections with 40s elsewhere. There is a chance of some light frost in the mountains. Highs on Tuesday will be in the 60s to around 70.

3 Lawyers Disbarred

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The Council of the N.C. State Bar has disbarred three attorneys from Bladen, Durham and Wake counties from practicing law in the state.

David L. Herzig, 30, of Durham, Joseph B. Chandler Jr. 41, of Elizabethtown and Rafford Jones, 42, of Raleigh, were disbarred Friday.

The lawyers had offered their resignations to the bar council, the governing board of the N.C. State Bar. The bar is the licensing and regulator agency for the state's lawyers.

The bar had accused Herzig of taking more than $160,000 from two trust accounts belong to his firm's clients. His attorney, James Maxwell of Durham, said Herzig had refunded all missing money.

No criminal charges had been filed as of Friday.

Chandler is serving a three-year prison term for embezzling clients' funds. He pleaded guilty in Brunswick County Superior Court April 1 to charges of embezzling more than $15,000 from three estate and trust accounts.

Jones was disbarred for misappropriating $987 of his clients' money for his own use. The money was involved in two real estate transactions, said bar counsel Tom Lunsford.

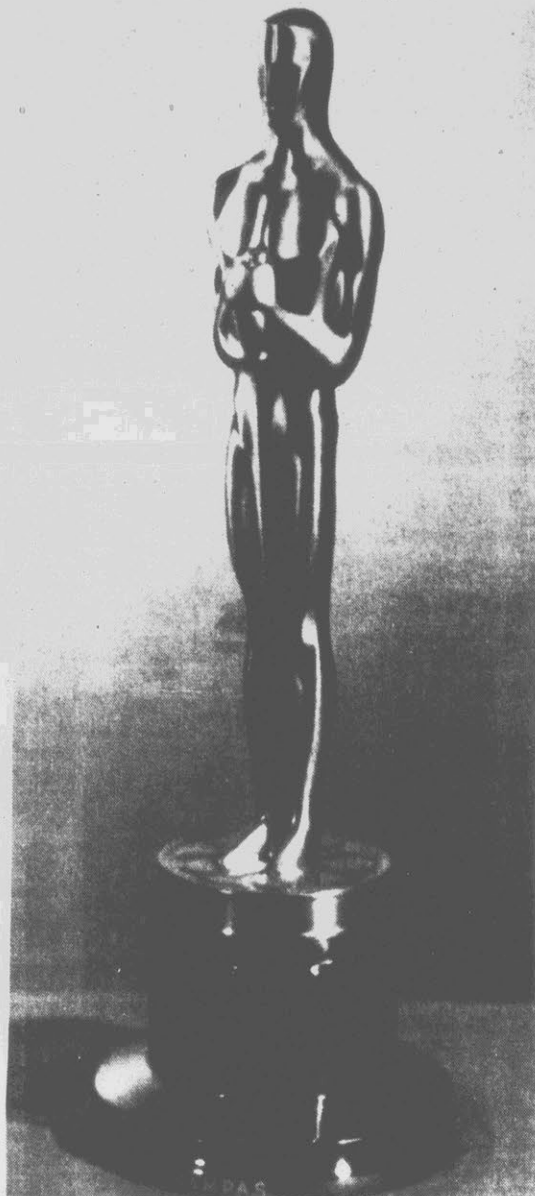

Wake County District Attorney J. Randolph Riley said a plea agreement was being discussed but that no criminal charges had been filed.

The indictments were handed down Tuesday by a grand jury meeting in New Bern. They came two months after eight record companies filed civil suits against 52 stores across the state, alleging that the stores sold pirated or counterfeit recordings.

J. Douglas McCullough, an assistant U.S. attorney, said counterfeit recordings seized from the defendants would have accounted for a loss of millions of dollars in legitimate record sales.

Indicted by the grand jury were Kenneth Wayne Rogers of Wilmington, Sylvia Shaw Rogers of Wilmington, Julian Clark Pitt of Kingston, Charles Edward Smith of Wilmington and Reed of Gastonia, Robert E. Hill of Kinston, Amanda Hill of Kinston, Robin Rogers of Kinston, Ruben Stroud of Kinston, Johnny Stroud of Kinston and Vallen Wright of Franklin.

Oscar Rehearsals Draw Audience

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Selleck and Raquel Welch provided an "equal opportunity drool" to those watching the rehearsal for tonight's Oscar telecast as the stars showed up in jeans and tennis shoes to read their cue cards.

Glittering gowns and elegant black ties will replace casual clothes for the 55th annual Academy Awards show at the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion, but Sunday the place was overrun by technicians, informally dressed stars and an audience of 2,000.

The stage crawled with dozens of production workers, from set painters putting the final touches on backdrops to stage managers with earphones and clipboards.

And while cameras were working, the scenes appeared only on monitors scattered throughout the hall. Tonight's Music Center gala will be televised on ABC to be seen live or on tape by an estimated 400 million people in a record 74 nations.

Because the winners remain a secret until the presentation, the Oscar telecast, the envelopes opened at the run-through contained only the names of fictional winners.

But if some of the glamour was missing, the stars were real enough — and they were the main draw for an estimated 2,000 people who got complimentary rehearsal tickets from ABC, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and other offices connected with the event.

The audience cheered as emcees Walter Matthau, Liza Minella, Dudley Moore and Richard Pryor worked on their opening number, even though the performance was at times barely audible.

The crowd whistled enthusiastically for Selleck and Ms. Welch, who are presenting the film editing award.

"It's like Venus and Adonis," said one awed spectator.

"It's like an equal opportunity drool," said another.

They applauded a dress rehearsal of a spectacularly costumed Irving Berlin song-and-dance medley led by Peter Allen and Bernadette Peters, whose hair was becomingly ruffled by the end of the number.

They clapped, oohed and aahed as Carol Burnett, Cher, Bob Hope, Mickey Rooney, Robert Mitchum, Christopher Reeve, John Travolta, Charlton Heston, Matt Dillon, Kristy McNichol, Susan Sarandon and Sigourney Weaver mounted the stage to practice their award presentations and, in Rooney's case, acceptance of an honorary award.

The rehearsal gave presenters a chance to practice reading off cue cards the sometimes tongue-twisting names of nominees. It also allowed director Marty Pasetta to show them how to make their entrances, what side of the stage to expect the winners from, and how to actually present the Oscars before leaving.

In categories where no nominees will be present, Pasetta told the stars what to say and how to make a quick exit.

In all cases, the envelope-opening was rehearsed with dummy envelopes and fictitious winners. Most were John and Jane Does for "The John Doe Story," but Miss Burnett announced Frank Capra's 1946 film "It's a Wonderful Life" — which was an Oscar nominee — as the winner of the best picture award.

Other actors picked their own winners.

John Travolta jokingly named "Jerry Mathers as the Beaver" the best actor of 1982, and Robert Mitchum with mock amazement announced the late Sonny Tufts, a star of the 1940s, as winner of the supporting actor prize.

The audience was invited for only the 4½-hour afternoon part of the rehearsal; the rest of the run through continued behind closed doors after a dinner break. Most who attended said the trip was worthwhile.

"We came to see the film stars, to be a little bit in the excitement we can't be in tomorrow," said Norma Granpre, 49, who brought her 24-year-old daughter, Connie Mulder. "If we can't have number one, we'll settle for number two — and Tom Selleck."

Young Actor Is Before A Judge

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Angelo Evans may be on his way to becoming a movie star, but that doesn't excuse the 13-year-old from attending school regularly, a municipal judge has ruled.

Angelo stars in "Angelo, My Love," a film about his life as a gypsy which was produced by actor Robert Duvall for release later this month.

The teen-ager was ordered by Bridgewater Municipal Judge George B. Esposito to attend classes while his parents, Anthony and Ruth Evans, were fined $180 and given suspended 30-day jail terms, on the condition that Angelo attend school.

"In this day and age, to not be able to read and write is pathetic," Esposito said Thursday after the boy's parents pleaded guilty to violating state law requiring school attendance for children between the ages of 6 and 16.

Angelo started school in November — for the first time in his life — but often has missed class, according to Caroline Villame, attendance officer for the Bridgewater-Raritan school district.

Duvall said he decided to make the film after meeting the youth while he was handing out circulars advertising his mother's fortune-telling business in New York in 1977.

'Gandhi' Seen A Pay-TV Loser

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — "Tootsie" and "E.T." will perform extraordinarily well on Home Box Office, even if neither show wins an Academy Award tonight as best picture. But the success of "Gandhi" on pay television will be limited, even if the film gets the Oscar.

That's the informed opinion of Steve Scheffer, who's responsible for movie acquisition and programming for HBO, the nation's No. 1 pay-cable network.

"Gandhi" could walk away with everything, but it still will be a limited-appeal movie," says Scheffer, who calls Richard Attenborough's epic film "magnificent," but thinks it's flawed as a TV attraction.

"It doesn't have any of the classic elements of a love story, action-adventure or comedy," he says. "It's a film that doesn't reach the masses."

Last year's best picture, "Chariots of Fire," is proof that artistic success does not ensure TV popularity. "Chariots of Fire" debuted on HBO in March, and it appears Oscar's most significant impact was on the film's cable price.

Based on early returns from HBO's measurement system that combines viewer appreciation and total tune-in, Scheffer says, "Chariots" was disappointing. It was primarily an off-shore film, with no names in the cast. It skewed toward being an art film."

In contrast, "On Golden Pond," a best-picture also-ran carried exclusively this year on HBO, is fourth in the pay service's popularity rankings. Scheffer estimates 90 percent of HBO's 12 million subscribers watched "On Golden Pond."

"It was the quintessential pay-cable movie," he says. "It had a major cast, won some awards and translated well to TV because it was such an intimate story."

"On Golden Pond" also arrived still fresh in the public's mind. That wasn't the case with "Star Wars," seen on HBO this winter, six years after its initial run in the theaters. "You couldn't smell the popcorn," says Scheffer.

"Star Wars," the biggest grossing film at the box office until it was surpassed by "E.T.," was also damaged by competing technologies. While ABC, CBS and NBC complain that cable's first-view rights reduce the attractiveness of movies on network TV, "Star Wars" was "raped and ravaged by showings on pay-for-view and video cassettes," says Scheffer.

LIKES ROLE — Veteran actor John Hillerman, who plays second fiddle to Tom Selleck on the TV series "Magnum, P.I.," says his role as the sardonic British major-domo Higgins is one of the best parts in television. "I could enjoy doing Higgins happily for 10 years without getting bored," Hillerman says in the recent issue of People magazine. (AP Laserphoto)

Flooding For 2 N.C. Towns

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The Yadkin River overflowed its banks during the weekend, flooding some streets in Elkin and North Wilkesboro.

Police in North Wilkesboro said flooding had been confined to Wilkesboro Avenue and Main Street. They said no damage estimates have been made yet but that the most serious damage seems to have been at the E&J Restaurant on Wilkesboro Avenue. The restaurant had two feet of mud in it, police said.

Despite mudslides and cash dumpsters floating in the streets, he said, the most serious problems Saturday night were stalled cars.

A spokesman for the Elkin Police Department said that a quarter-mile of Standard Street was under two to three feet of water and that some buildings on East Main Street had water in them. The spokesman said that the city's downtown park also was flooded.

Minor flooding was reported elsewhere. According to the Yadkin County Sheriff's Department, high water forced one family to evacuate their trailer in a trailer park in the Donaha community and a low-water bridge connecting Yadkin and Surry counties at Rockford was under water again yesterday, as it is almost every time heavy rains occur.

Gauges indicated Sunday morning that the Yadkin was more than 8½ feet above flood stage at Elkin and more than two feet above flood stage at North Wilkesboro, a spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers said.

According to the National Weather Service, 5.4 inches of rain fell in Wilkesboro and 4.6 inches fell in Elkin during the 24 hours ending at 8 a.m. Sunday. Mount Airy had 3.3 inches during that period.

SIX-CAR COLLISION UPPINGTON, South Africa (AP) — Six armored cars collided on a gravel road near the border with South-West Africa, injuring 14 soldiers, a South African military spokesman said Sunday.

TRADE AGREEMENT MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and China have signed an agreement aimed at increasing trade along the two countries' borders, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Sunday.

FOCUS

Satyagraha

When the Academy Awards are announced tonight, many commentators expect "Gandhi" — which received 11 nominations — to be a big winner. "Gandhi" is a biography of the man honored by the people of India as the father of their nation. Mohandas Gandhi used a method of social action that he called "satyagraha," based on the principles of courage, truth, and nonviolence. "Satyagraha" involved the use of civil disobedience, peaceful demonstrations, and hunger strikes to counter violence and oppression. Although Gandhi spent 7 years in prison because of his use of "Satyagraha," he helped India win its independence from Britain and proved that peace is a powerful force for social and political change.

DO YOU KNOW—Why did the people of India call Gandhi the "Mahatma?"

FRIDAY'S ANSWER—Joseph Pulitzer endowed the Columbia University School of Journalism.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN AND OMAR SHARIF

ANSWERS TO BRIDGE QUIZ

© 1983 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠872 ♥95 ♦A74 ♠AK1062

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

What action do you take?

A.—In support of spades your hand counts to 12 points. All of your high cards are aces and kings, which are undervalued in the point scale. More likely than not, partner has six spades on this sequence, and we think that you would be showing him scant respect if you bid anything less than four spades.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠7 ♥KQ1065 ♦QJ98 ♠Q85

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—With your preponderance of quacks (the trade name for queens and jacks) and misfit, your two-over-one response was already somewhat of an overbid. If you now introduce your diamonds, partner will play you for a much stronger hand than you have. The prudent course is to dampen partner's ardor by bidding three no trump.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠98642 ♥K7 ♦J763 ♠107

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

2 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—You really could not hold any less for your original response, so the tendency might be to pass now before your side gets into trouble. But you have not been relieved of the responsibility of the guiding the hand to the best spot. With your distributional hand and trump length, you must correct to three spades.

Q.4—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ83 ♥105 ♦9832 ♠AQ7

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—You must make some move, but to bid game yourself would be a rather unilateral decision. Since your diamond suit is not really the sort you want to introduce at the three-level, the standard choice is a bid of three clubs, to show partner your support for his suit. This bid is forcing. If partner rebids three spades, confirming four-card support, you should press on to game.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠KQJ83 ♥AQJ5 ♦J6 ♠94

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♥ Pass 4 ♦ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner has started a cue bidding sequence in search of slam. You have a very good hand, considering that you raised to only three hearts at your second turn. If you simply rebid four hearts, the auction quite likely will die there, especially since partner is looking at weak trumps. A jump to five hearts now will reassure him about trumps while warning him that you have nothing to cue bid.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠AQ6 ♥AJ9 ♦Q873 ♠J65

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

1 ♥ Pass Pass 2 ♠ Pass ?

What action do you take?

A.—If partner had the values for an opening bid, he would have reopened with a double. Since he did not, you cannot expect more than 10-11 points from him at most. Nevertheless, your cards are well placed and we suggest you make an attempt to reach game. Bid two no trump. With a weak, distributional balance, partner can still retreat to three clubs.

Cougar Attacks Woman At Grandfather Mtn.

BANNER ELK, N.C. (AP) — A Charlotte woman visiting Grandfather Mountain was clawed and bitten on the head Sunday afternoon by the same cougar that mauled a 9-year-old Lenoir child in February, officials said.

Pamela Kiger, 26, suffered puncture wounds to her arm and a 6-inch scalp wound when the 18-month-old cub scaled a rock that forms part of the 14-foot tall enclosure, said a spokesman at Cannon

Memorial Hospital in Banner Elk.

Allen Tennant, director of the habitat, also was bitten when he forced the declawed cougar off Ms. Kiger and threw the cat back into the enclosure, officials said. Tennant's wound was reported to be minor.

Ms. Kiger was viewing the cougar habitat from the visitors center when the attack occurred, officials said. She was with three friends but no one else was injured.

Ms. Kiger apparently did nothing to antagonize the animal, which came over a rock barrier and a 10-foot fence before the attack, said Avery County Sheriff Clinton Phillips.

"The best I can tell...when the cougar got out, she screamed, and when she screamed, it attacked," Phillips said. At that time, it bit her in the upper arm, causing four puncture wounds.

A friend of Kiger's kicked the cougar away, but shortly afterwards, it attacked again.

"She was standing, leaning up against the fence and said, 'It bit me' and she screamed or something, and it attacked again," Phillips said.

"I'm sorry it happened, but I'm relieved that the woman didn't get hurt any worse than she did," Hugh Morton, owner of Grandfather Mountain, said late Sunday.

Morton, who was in Wilmington at the time of the attack, said the cat will be placed under observation for 10 days in a chain link cage to make sure it has no disease. He said he is uncertain what will be done with the cat after that, but that the two adult cougars will remain in the habitat.

"This one that got out is much more agile," Morton said. "The others are older and much heavier. There is no likelihood that they could get out."

Ms. Kiger was transferred to Charlotte Memorial Hospital following surgery, according to Doris Kershaw, assistant director of nursing at Cannon Memorial.

A spokesman at Charlotte Memorial said Ms. Kiger was treated and released Sunday night.

In February, 9-year-old Karen Arney was attacked by the same cat, which was being kept at the home of a neighbor in Lenoir. Following the attack, which left Miss Arney with more than 100 stitches, the cat and its parents were taken to Grandfather Mountain to live in the habitat.

Morton said he plans no changes in the cougar enclosure. "We've gone to a great deal of trouble to create a natural situation," he said. "You can put a 20-foot fence around it, but then what you've got is a 20-foot fence."

"The object of the habitat is to allow people to see animals in their natural environment without being overwhelmed that they are enclosed. People can take pictures of the animals here and swear up and down that they took them in the Great Smoky Mountains. Nobody can tell the difference."

Morton said the cats would not be returned to the wild because all are declawed and would be unable to fend for themselves.

Dear Abby Sometimes Therapy Is Common-Sense Counsel

By Abigail Van Buren

1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I enjoy reading some of the ridiculous problems you get from people who, if they had one ounce of common sense, would know what to do instead of writing to non-experts for advice.

I am beginning to wonder if you and the professionals in the field of psychiatry are in business together. Your standard replies are: "Seek professional help," "You need counseling" or, "You should get into therapy."

People used to cope with their everyday problems reasonably well before all these money-hungry therapists came on the scene.

All most of these crybabies need is to grow up and use their brains instead of shelling out money to buy a new couch for a psychiatrist.

I AM DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: In the same mail with your letter came this:

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for readers who think you're copping out when you tell them to get professional help.

My life was so screwed up I tried to commit suicide, but thank God I didn't succeed. A female shrink at the local suicide prevention center took me under her wing and helped me to see that all my life I'd been blaming everybody else for my failures.

With therapy I've worked through some painful problems I had buried for years.

I'm off dope and pills now, and rarely drink anything stronger than a beer. My life has changed, and so have I. It took me three years to get where I am, but today I am the happiest, healthiest, strongest person this world can handle. And I never could have made it without therapy.

IN LOVE WITH LIFE

DEAR ABBY: About two years ago I started seeing a married man. He told me his marriage was a "mistake," but he couldn't afford a divorce right now, and then, of course, he "loves" his children. (Don't they all?) Anyway, I fell in love with him and hoped that one day he would be all mine. (Silly girl. I was 29 and he was 44.)

I gave him a key to my apartment, and he came to be with me whenever he could. The first year it was heaven, then he made dates and didn't show up, and there were times he'd just "surprise" me at all hours of the night — drunk. We'd argue, and when he was drinking he got mean and started slapping me around. I realized I didn't love him anymore, so I asked him for my key. He kept stalling. It's been three weeks, and he still has my house key. I feel like a fool not knowing when he will show up.

Don't tell me to change my locks. I can't afford it. What should I do?

K. IN HILO, HAWAII

DEAR K: Beg or borrow the money to get your locks changed, but get them changed now, and put an end to the open-door policy.

DEAR ABBY: A few weeks ago our son and his wife invited us to their home for a buffet dinner. When we arrived, our daughter-in-law's father was dressed in a three-piece suit, and his wife, Vera, was wearing a very dressy long dress. My husband and I were wearing very nice but casual slack outfits.

There was no tablecloth on the table, and most of the food was cold. (Very informal, I would call it.)

Vera took me aside and offered to go home and bring me some clothes so that I could be as dressed up as she was. I thanked her and said I was quite comfortable.

How would you have dealt with someone so impolite?

ANNOYED

DEAR ANNOYED: Just as you did. But don't judge Vera too harshly. She thought you were underdressed for the occasion and embarrassed by it. Obviously she was mistaken on both counts.

Los Angeles Thirstily Eyeing Lake Mono's Water

By STEVE LAWRENCE
Associated Press Writer
LEE VINING, Calif. (AP) — Mono Lake shimmers in the moonlight on an early spring night, a luminous, gray-blue jewel set in a ring of snow-covered peaks.

It is one of North America's oldest lakes, formed a million years ago in a volcanic area on the arid eastern slopes of the Sierra Nevada, 200 miles east of San Francisco. Oddly shaped limestone formations line part of its shoreline, and the lake's waters cover a volcano.

It is also the scene of a heated political battle, a fight over water that pits environmentalists and local residents against the City of Los Angeles. A victory by Los Angeles, the city's opponents say, will mean "a tragic, untimely and totally unnecessary death" for the lake.

For 42 years Los Angeles' Department of Water and Power has obtained part of its water supply by tapping the streams that feed the lake.

The diversions, which provide the city with hydroelectric power and 17 percent of its water, dropped Mono's shoreline 43 feet between 1941 and 1981, although wet winters the last two years have raised the lake level about four feet.

If left unchecked, the diversions will eventually cut the 39,000-acre lake to one-third its natural size and severely damage the area's environment, the city's critics say.

Environmentalists say the lower water levels have already raised the lake's salinity, threatening the lake's brine shrimp and birds that eat the shrimp.

"I don't know of any scientist or biologist who feels the lake can survive with the salinity that will be reached," said David Gaines, a biologist and chairman of the Mono Lake Committee.

"The dispute is not whether diversions are going to kill the lake, but at what point diversions will kill the lake."

However, Duane Georgeson, chief engineer and assistant manager of the Department of Water and Power, disputes reports of environmental damage.

"Based on research today, we think the food sources for the birds — the brine shrimp and brine flies — will be able to adapt to the (reduced) lake," he said.

In hopes of reducing the diversions, environmentalists and some local residents are backing a bill in Congress that would create a 73,000-acre federally protected park at the lake. The first hearing on the legislation, held before a House subcommittee, was conducted March 29 in Lee Vining.

The measure, sponsored by Rep. Richard Lehman, D-Calif., would not interfere with Los Angeles' water rights, although Lehman believes that its enactment would pressure the city into reducing the water diversions.

Georgeson contends the bill would have a more direct impact on the Los Angeles' water rights by weakening its defense against a pending court suit.

In that case, the state Supreme Court ruled recently that the Audubon Society and other plaintiffs could use California's 132-year-old public trust doctrine to challenge the water diversions.

The doctrine says the state has the right to interfere with a private activity to protect public lands and waters.

Creation of federally protected land at the lake, Georgeson said, "clearly would send a message to the court that would weigh heavily against the people of Los Angeles."

Lehman's bill would also require a study to determine if Los Angeles could reduce its need for Mono Lake water through conservation measures.

But Georgeson says Los Angeles is already stressing water conservation. It would be difficult, he adds, for the city to make up the loss of Mono water.

"In a (wet) year like this, of course, there's no problem," he said. "There is plenty of surplus water in California in 1983."

But in future years, after Los Angeles loses some Colorado River water to Arizona, the city could face a serious water shortage, Georgeson contends.

Gaines agrees that Los Angeles needs water from the lake basin but contends that Los Angeles could reduce its diversions in wet years to stabilize the lake.

"Their strategy is to take as much as they can every year because this water is much less expensive than other water," he said.

Lehman's bill has divided Mono County residents. The county Board of Supervisors narrowly approved a resolution supporting the measure, and most of the 140 witnesses who testified at the subcommittee hearing supported creation of a national park in some form.

But some people who live near the lake fear that a park area could mean a loss of land and business activities and restrictions on such things as hunting and snowmobiling.

The bill includes protections for mining, grazing, farming, hunting and fishing.

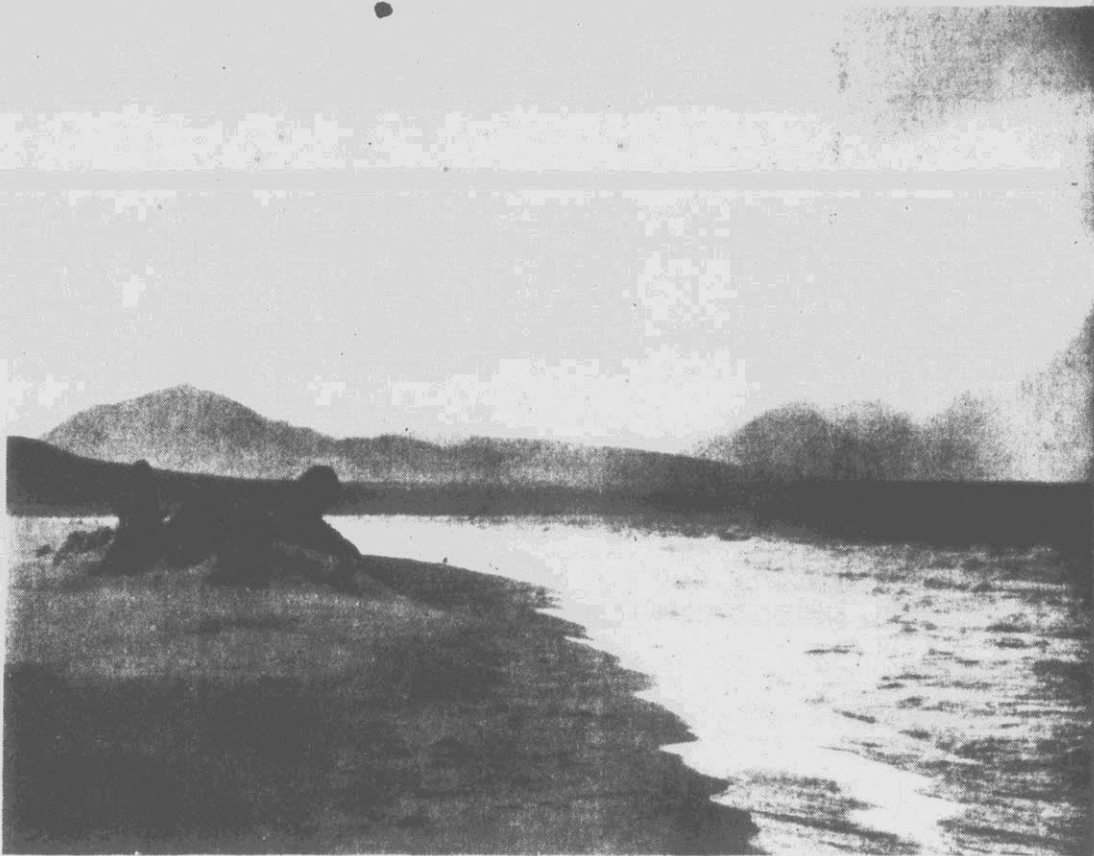

It also stipulates that no private land could be purchased without the owners' consent, unless some new activity on the property threatened the park area.

But several lake area residents who testified at the hearing in Lee Vining, a town of 300 overlooking the lake, said any rights protected in Lehman's bill could be taken away later.

"This is not something I want to leave my future to," said Jeff Hansen, who lives on the lake's north shore. "I don't want the federal government having any more interference with my life."

a heated political battle over water which pits environmentalists against the City of Los Angeles. (AP Laserphoto)

Speaking of Your Health... Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Advantages of Group Therapy

I am thinking of going to group therapy sessions. They are becoming very popular in my city. How can one decide if the group is a reliable one? — Mr. I.L.P., Ill.

Dear Mr. P.: There are now many schools of psychotherapy. Each has its own group of enthusiasts and adherents. Some are identified with the teachings of Freud, others with Jung, Adler, Horney, White and Sullivan.

The approach may vary with each. They all have a single purpose and goal. And that is to help a person get a better insight into his own emotions. By relieving significant experiences during childhood, present behavior patterns can often be explained. With such direction, many persons can learn to adjust and adapt themselves to the stresses of modern day living.

Formal psychoanalysis is a long, arduous and expensive program. Many people completely shy away from psychoanalysis. Others who recognize their need for such direction are often dissuaded by their inability to cope with the time and expense of frequent visits.

During the past three decades, group therapy has grown tremendously. More and more people are now able to undertake such programs without feeling the enormous burden of financial compromise.

Group therapy is now a well-established, accepted, successful tool. It must be emphasized, however, that group therapy, like all other forms of psychotherapy, must be directed only by those who are highly trained in the specialty.

Unfortunately, strange groups under a variety of names have captured the attention of people, who, in their emotional need, have no way of evaluating the competence of the directors. Far too many inadequately trained people arbitrarily set themselves up as psychotherapists and function without license or accreditation by the recognized licensing societies.

Unfortunately there are potential dangers in becoming involved with such groups. Many cases have been reported of stressful patients and neurotics who, by mishandling, have developed serious complications of their emotional problems. Each group has its own group of devoted followers, many of whom have no way of evaluating the competence of the group or its directors. These enthusiasts will "fight to the last ditch" to insist that "their" type of analysis is the one and only approach to all psychological problems.

There is only one reliable way to choose any psychological program. Your own doctor has ready references to the reliable and well-trained specialists in your community. Through him contact can be made with the leading psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers at local hospitals.

Patients are carefully screened before they are admitted into any group therapy program. The advantages are great if such screening is done by specialists in the field.

3 Accidents Here Friday

An estimated $6,300 damage resulted from three traffic collisions investigated by Greenville police Friday.

Officers said an estimated $1,500 damage resulted to each of two cars involved in a 9:45 a.m. mishap at the intersection of E. Ragsdale Road and Graham Street.

Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Edward Lee Byrd of 1405 Holbert St., and Elizabeth Wiggs Respass of 1904 Sheraton Drive.

Police charged Byrd with failing to stop for a stop sign following investigation of the collision.

Cars driven by Willie Michael Sampson of Pembroke and Sharon Hackett Ballenger of Ayden, collided about 11:10 p.m. at the intersection of Fifth and Meade Streets, causing $800 damage to the Sampson car and $900 damage to the Ballenger auto.

Ms. Ballenger was charged by officers with speeding.

Investigators reported cars driven by Nancy Leigh Pierce of Windsor, and John Harold Meeks Jr. of 1907 Fairview Way, collided about 9:15 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets, resulting in an estimated $1,000 damage to the Meeks car and $600 damage to the Pierce auto.

POLISH GUNMAN MARSEILLE, France (AP) — A Polish gunman fired on the Marseille offices of the Soviet airline Aeroflot Sunday and was captured after a car chase and an exchange of gunfire, police said. It was the second attack against a Soviet office in Marseille in 24 hours.
