Embassy Dead And Missing Now At 47

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
Associated Press Writer
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Marine guards raised a single American flag at sunrise today in front of the devastated U.S. Embassy, where officials said an apparent suicide bombing left 19 people dead and 28 others missing and presumed dead.

he said, adding that one other person of unknown nationality also was listed as dead. Police said Monday's explosion wounded 120 people, including 22 Americans, as it ripped open the concrete front of the seven-story embassy. U.S. Ambassador Robert Dillon, who escaped serious injury in the blast, said it was "very unlikely" any more survivors would be found. Soldiers and other search squads used a steamshovel and two backhoes to tear apart the debris, piling large chunks of masonry in a heap that already contained several tons of concrete. Near the shattered building, a U.S. flag fluttered on a flagpole undamaged by the blast. "The embassy Marines put it up at sunrise," said Col. James M. Mead, commander of the U.S. Marine contingent in Lebanon. Lebanese soldiers raided the Palestinian refugee camp of Sabra and the nearby Tarik Jedida neighborhood today and made an undisclosed number of arrests in connection with the bombing, the privately owned

"Voice of Lebanon" radio said without elaborating. Details of the attack were still unclear, although it appeared a terrorist drove an explosives-laden vehicle into the embassy compound and may have died in the blast. Police said two witnesses reported separately that they saw a man wearing a black leather jacket drive a black pickup truck into the embassy driveway. The witnesses said the truck then blew up. It could not be determined if Dillon and the police were referring to the same two witnesses.

BUS OVERTURNS ... A Greenville public school bus lies on its side after overturning Monday afternoon at the intersection of Third Street and Memorial Drive, at the top above. School and hospital authorities said the bus was carrying 65 students from Wahl-Coates School. According to a spokesman for Pitt County Memorial Hospital, all of the children were treated and five were admitted for overnight care. (Reflector Staff Photo By Angela Lingerfelt)

Agricultural Ext. Office Handed Food Distribution

By SUE HINSON
Reflector Staff Writer
Distribution of surplus cheese and butter was handed to the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office on a silver platter Monday in an effort to relieve some of the burden from the Pitt County Department of Social Services. The Pitt County Board of Commissioners completed plans Monday to make the Agricultural Extension Office the main agency responsible for distribution following discussion of increasing surplus distribution. Formerly, cheese and butter were handed out to the needy on a quarterly basis. But, beginning June 1, if the changeover moves as planned, surpluses will be given out monthly, according to Extension Chairman Leroy James.

monthly giveaway, James said he has ordered 48,030 pounds of cheese and 15,000 pounds of butter. Similar amounts will be distributed throughout the year. Ed Garrison, director of social services, said he thought the County Commissioners "made a good move" when they decided to change responsibility for the surpluses. "Since the extension department is handling this now, perhaps a lot more people will be encouraged to take advantage of this opportunity since it is now an agricultural instead of a welfare project." The Department of Social Services will continue to help the extension office. According to County Manager Reginald Gray, the main reason for the changeover lies in manpower and time. "Whereas the program was only run quarterly before, we now plan to run it on a monthly basis. With all the other work the Department of Social Services has to accomplish, it was just too much of a load," Gray said. When the surplus program was first begun, there were certain mandated requirements on income and age. "Now they have just cut the restrictions loose," Gray said. Most people over the age of 60 are now eligible to receive their share of the surplus while those under 60 still have to prove eligibility. Although Gray said he has received no official word on additional food items, he said rice, meal and dried milk may become available in the future.

County Board Will Ask Bids For Insurance

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Board of Commissioners Monday agreed to advertise for bids for the county's property, casualty and group insurance after hearing a consultant's suggestion that the county should be able to get better coverage at less cost by bidding the insurance as a package. Richard Canovai of Risk Consultants of Charlotte said the county's employee benefit program of health and life insurance and deferred compensation are good. But he suggested the cost of medical insurance needs to be brought under control. Saying the county faces a 52.69 percent rate increase from Blue Cross for the coming fiscal year, Canovai said specifications for bidding could be written and cost containment features included that could provide adequate insurance at less cost. One suggestion, Canovai said, would be to "go with a carrier that doesn't require a reserve." Another, he said, would be to specify the refund of premiums if claims are not as high as projected. He said that, "if you stay with Blue Cross (for the 1983-84 fiscal year) you will pay $44,000 to administer the program" for the 408 county employees. He said the projected cost of administration in 1983-84 compares with $14,550 in administration costs for the fiscal year ending June 1979. Although "the premiums in relationship to claims appear to be within reasonable limits," Canovai said with the number of employees covered and the size of the requested rate increase, "it would appear that a form of self-insurance may be a viable alternative to the full insured Blue Cross plan." In the area of property insurance, Risk Consultants' David Lively said the county has an excellent insurance program, but suggested that costs could be reduced by consolidating coverage. He said "broader coverage, easier administration of your insurance program, and premium economies would result from this consolidation." He said the present named perils coverage should be replaced with all-risk coverage and that "monthly premiums should be requested on all major policies." Lively said many carriers offer monthly payments without interest, a move he said would increase the county's cash flow. In other business Monday, commissioners were told that the county Agricultural Extension Service has agreed to serve as the lead agency for the distribution of surplus commodities, such as cheese and butter. County Manager Reginald Gray, who said details of the distribution plan are still being worked out, said coolers in the basement of the county office building would be used to store the surplus food. The board gave approval to a $7,500 contract to David M. Griffith & Associates for an indirect cost study for the

Five Pupils Hospitalized As School Bus Overtakes

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Five Wahl-Coates School students were admitted to Pitt County Memorial Hospital after a Greenville school bus overturned at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Third Street about 2:52 p.m. Monday. Greenville police said 65 students were on the bus when it overturned. They were all fourth, fifth and sixth graders from Wahl-Coates. Investigators said the driver, Al James Whichard Jr., 17, of 1907A Kennedy Circle has been charged with careless and reckless driving in connection with the accident. Officers said the bus was headed north on Memorial Drive and was in the process of making a left turn onto Third Street when the vehicle struck the curb and flipped over onto its side. The students admitted for treatment were identified by hospital officials today as: Victor Arrington, 12, of 306B Paige Drive; Regina Reddick, 12, of 409 Darden Drive; Lindburg Arrington, 10, of 118 Howard Circle, in stable condition; Lewis Jones, 10, of 313 Paige Drive, in satisfactory condition, and Lisa Vines, 12, of 4138 Roundtree Drive, in satisfactory condition. Spokesmen for the medical facility said Victor Arrington suffered a broken arm, while the other students hospitalized suffered concussions. The only other student suffering a fracture, officials noted, was identified as Ricky Arrington, who received a broken collar bone. He was treated and released. Three Greenville Fire-Rescue Department rescue trucks and one rescue unit from the Winterville Rescue Squad were used to transport the children to the hospital. Chief Jenness Allen said 13 on-duty employees and four off-duty men responded to the scene. "Our biggest problem," Allen said, was with bystanders. He said rescue workers "couldn't even work properly" because of the number of onlookers in the area. "It was worse than the Village Green Apartment explosion," as far as bystanders were concerned, he said. Terry Payne, assistant Pitt County fire marshal, said "everything went well" at the scene although he said rescue efforts were hampered by the large number of people that gathered around the wreck. A spokesman for the county school bus garage set damage to the 1979 model bus at between $12,000 and $15,000, saying the "whole body was warped" when it overturned. He also said Whichard was a substitute driver with three or four months experience.

Second 'Disaster Alert' In Less Than Two Months For Hospital

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
The second disaster alert in less than two months was declared at Pitt County Memorial Hospital at 2:50 p.m. Monday when the school bus accident at Third Street and Memorial Drive was reported to the emergency room. Director of Emergency Services Jack Allison said he went immediately to the scene, about two minutes from the hospital, and first-shift personnel were asked to stay on duty to assist second-shift workers in doing whatever would be needed by the then undetermined number of children that would be coming in within minutes. Dr. Allison led the triaging (sorting by degree of injury) the children and seven of the 65 possibly injured were sent in by emergency vehicle initially for treatment. Others were taken in by police cars, private vehicles or returning emergency vehicles. The decision was made not to call for assistance from outside Greenville to transport the injured. Those sent first were treated first, and the others were processed in as quickly as possible. A secondary treatment center was set up in the Ambulatory Medical Surgical Unit down the hall from the emergency room by Dr. Walter Pories and a group of surgical residents and nurses. In the meantime, about 15 other patients had to be treated. "There were two bottlenecks," Dr. Allison said, "both of which are very hard to avoid. One was the obtaining of medical records. There were 80 persons to gather information on. This is not an easy task, yet it's mandated by law that we do this. It slowed us down in treating everybody, but it was absolutely necessary. "The other was X-raying. It's obligatory that we X-ray anyone who has any point tenderness and there were a lot of sore children. We only (Please turn to Page 6)

15-YEAR-OLD NEEDS SOMEONE

The Pitt County Department of Social Services has an urgent need for an individual to provide brief outings and personal attention and/or a visiting home for a 15-year-old black male who is currently residing in Cherry Hospital. This young man is nearing completion of treatment with the expectation of residing in group care. According to Pitt County DSS social worker Jean D. Ellis, he would do best with an individual who could provide structure where there were no younger children to compete for attention. Adequate financial reimbursement can be made for expenses and work. If interested, please contact Mrs. Ellis, Pitt County Department of Social Services, 758-2167, for additional information.

City School Calendar Is Set

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The calendar for the 1983-84 Greenville school year was formally adopted by members of the city Board of Education Monday night. Member Sue Zadeits voted against the proposed calendar, expressing objection to scheduling May 28 as the first of five snow make-up days. She said that day, a scheduled student holiday, was the Monday after a beach weekend for seniors at Rose High School. Mrs. Zadeits expressed concern that, if the day was used as a make-up day, student attendance would be low. Other make-up days scheduled are: if two days are needed, May 28 and June 8; if three days are needed, April 25, 26 and 27; if four days, April 25, 26, 27, and May 28; if five days, April 25, 26, 27, May 28 and June 8. The June 8 date, if used for make up, would add one school day to the school year. In other approval actions, the board Monday night: •Approved, on second reading, the policy paper for maintenance and administration of student records; •Approved, effective Monday, application by Director of Federal Programs Freager R. Sanders for various programs of federal funds that might be available; •Approved, on second reading, five categories of critical shortage area personnel to be exempt from the Reduction-in-Force policy; and •Approved, in executive session, the addition of four names to the teacher substitute list.

Couple Marries In Double Ring Ceremony

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — The First Assembly Church of God here was the setting for the double ring marriage ceremony of Katherine Lexine Petrak and Craig Alan Souther Saturday at 2 p.m. The pastor, Rev. Thomas Gulbranson, uncle of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Petrak, of Fairfax, Va. and was escorted by her father. Her mother is the former Lexine Buck of Greenville, N.C.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward D. Souther of Fairfax, Va. Mr. Souther served his son as best man.

Donna Marie Petrak, sister of the bride, was the honor attendant. Bridesmaids included Robin Mullen and Lynette Souther, sister of the bridegroom, both from Fairfax. Crissy Best, also of Fairfax, was flower girl.

Mark and Kevn Souther, brothers of the bridegroom, were ushers. Scott Cameron was ring bearer carrying a traditional satin pillow.

A program of wedding music was presented by Patricia Posey, organist and Maureen Adams, soloist of Fairfax.

The bride wore a formal satin gown designed with a Victorian neckline featuring a fitted bodice accented with chintilly lace and seeded pearls. The long lace sleeves extended with a sheer bishop accented with deep lace cuffs. The sweeping A-line skirt had an overlay of lace appliques with a chintilly lace hem. She carried a yellow rose cascade bouquet with white carnations and baby's breath with a cascade.

The honor attendant wore a formal floor length gown of yellow satin with a spring lace top overlay and featured an according style pleated skirt. She carried a bouquet of spring flowers tied with matching ribbon and streamers.

MRS. CRAIG ALAN SOUTHER

The attendants were dressed like the honor attendant and their nosegays were identical. The flower girl wore a tan street length dress accented with yellow flowers. Her basket of flowers matched the nosegays of the attendants.

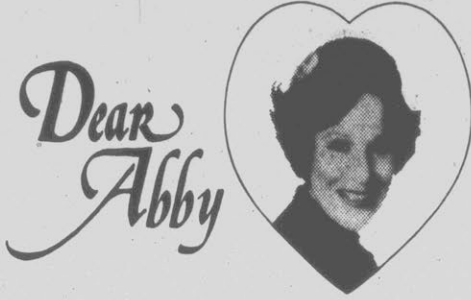

A reception was held in the church fellowship hall following a formal sit-down dinner.

The bridal table was accented with a white lace cloth and wedding bells as decorations. The centerpiece of spring flowers was shared with a ceramic wedding plate. The guests' tables were covered with white linen cloths and had matching centerpieces like the bridal table.

The couple is spending their honeymoon in Ocean City, Md. and will be returning to their new home in Manassas, Va.

The bride is a graduate of Fairfax High School and is employed with the federal government as a clerk-typist in the Department of Agriculture. The bridegroom is a graduate of Robinson High School in Fairfax County and is employed with Thomas Summerville, Rockville, Md., in market management.

Families Of Drug Abusers Get Help

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: There is no greater problem today than drug abuse among all age groups. This devastating situation affects the family and friends of the drug abuser in countless ways.

My husband and I know, because our son returned from the service 12 years ago on drugs and has been involved with drugs ever since. For years we dealt with the problem our way, thinking we could surely resolve it. We almost destroyed ourselves and our family life by becoming totally obsessed with the problem and trying to correct it.

Then, two years ago, we discovered a support group called Nar-Anon, which uses methods similar to Al-Anon. We now realize that the responsibility to change rests with the addict, not with us. By attending weekly meetings, we have learned a new way to live our lives in a happier, more productive way.

Nar-Anon guards the anonymity of its members and does no advertising. Those who wish additional information may write to: Nar-Anon Family Group Headquarters, Inc., P.O. Box 2562, Palos Verdes Peninsula, Calif. 90274.

Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed, long envelope. A NAR-ANON MEMBER

DEAR MEMBER: I appreciate your letting me know about Nar-Anon. The information is well worth passing on to my readers, especially the pamphlet containing the open letter adapted from "Guide for the Family," written by the Rev. Joseph L. Kellerman, and published by Al-Anon Family Groups:

AN OPEN LETTER TO MY FAMILY

"I am a drug-user. I need help. "Don't solve my problems for me. This only makes me lose respect for you.

"Don't lecture, moralize, scold, blame or argue, whether I'm loaded or sober. It may make you feel better, but it will make the situation worse.

"Don't accept my promises. The nature of my illness prevents me keeping them, even though I mean them at the time. Promises are only my way of postponing pain. And don't keep switching agreements; if an agreement is made, stick to it.

"Don't lose your temper with me. It will destroy you and any possibility of helping me.

"Don't allow your anxiety for me make you do what I should do for myself.

"Don't cover up or try to spare me the consequences of my using. It may reduce the crisis, but it will make my illness worse.

"Above all, don't run away from reality as I do. Drug dependence, my illness, gets worse as my using continues. Start now to learn, to understand, to plan for recovery. Find Nar-Anon, whose groups exist to help the families of drug-abusers.

"I need help — from a doctor, a psychologist, a counselor, from a recovered addict who found sobriety in Narcotics Anonymous and from God. I cannot help myself." — Your User

DEAR ABBY: My future husband snores. And I mean that man really snores up a storm! I've gone on vacations with him and have returned home more exhausted than I was before I left.

I finally told him that after we're married we will need separate bedrooms. He said, "No way — you will just have to get used to it."

Abby, I don't think I can. Do you have any information on snoring? Is it sometimes caused by a medical problem that can be corrected? Please don't throw this away. It's a serious problem. I really love him, but I know I won't be able to sleep with him.

LENA

DEAR LENA: Some cases of snoring are correctable with minor surgery. Your fiancé should be examined by an ear, nose and throat specialist to determine whether his snoring is correctable.

If you need some hard (and loud) evidence to support your complaint, tape his snoring and play it back to him.

Love Train Heads East

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kathryn Falk, author of "How to Write a Romance and Get it Published," is heading east on the Love Train, her compartment decorated with pink satin sheets, ruffled pillows and flowers.

The specially designated Amtrak train is scheduled to make stops in Kansas City, Mo.; Chicago; Pittsburgh and Philadelphia on its five-day trip to New York City for a Romantic Book Lovers' Conference, where authors such as Barbara Cartland, Phyllis A. Whitney, Joan Dial and Jude Deveraux are to meet to talk about their craft.

The Love Train, which pulled out of Union Station Saturday night, was the idea of Shelley Kitzmiller, an aspiring romance writer from Placentia, Calif.

"I wanted to go to Kathryn's conference," Shelley said. "I'm terrified of flying so I thought I'd take the train. I mentioned it to someone and said 'Why don't you come with me and we'll call it the Love Train?' From there it's mushroomed beyond anything I could have imagined."

On board, along with about 250 other passengers, were 40 to 50 romance agents, editors and writers.

KATHRYN FALK, author and organizer of the "Romantic Book Lover's Conference", holds a copy of her book and a glass of wine as she waits for the "Love Train" to pull out of Los Angeles Union Station. (AP Laserphoto)

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

If there's one thing that flourishes in bad economic times, it's nepotism.

The kid who said, "I wouldn't be caught dead working for Dad," is driving a company truck with Dad's name on it. The son-in-law who vowed, "I'm my own man and don't forget it!" just made his boss a grandfather.

Some say it's the hardest money they've ever earned.

Our kids have never worked for us. We gave them an allowance for 12 years just to breathe in and out with some regularity. Most of the time they did this without complaining. There were never harsh words between us and we were a model family straight from "The Donna Reed Show."

Last summer, when my son could not find anyone who had the basic intelligence to pay him what he was worth, my husband and I were looking for someone to paint our house.

It was a marriage made in Reno.

We agreed at the top, everything was to be on a professional basis. The fact that I had been in labor with him for 15 solid hours would have absolutely nothing to do with what time he started work in the mornings.

On the other hand, the fact that he was working for wages that would drive a union man to stage a revolution would have nothing to do with his running a few errands for us while he was out picking up paint.

Actually, I could never figure out why it didn't work out. We treated him exactly as we would treat any professional. We told him what time to go to bed at nights so he would be fresh in the mornings. We routed him out and forced him to eat breakfast. Every 15 minutes, my husband would check to see if he had put dropcloths over the shrubbery and taken off the hardware around the windows.

Every time he got a phone call, I would tell them he joined the service and not to call anymore. I checked his clothes to make sure he wasn't dripping paint before he could use the bathroom, and we paid him with a postdated check that would incarcerate his parents for the next 15 years had he cashed it on the date it was written.

Nepotism does not work out overnight. There's a lot of give-and-take between the nepotism and the nepotism. The only case where it almost worked was with Tom Sawyer when his Aunt Polly hired him to paint a fence. And that ended up with his enjoying his own funeral more.

Duplicate Winners

John Sullivan and George Martin were first place North-South winners in the Saturday game played at Planters Bank. Their game percentage was .616.

Others placing were: Mrs. Robert Barnhill and Mrs. Joyce Lamm, second; Mrs. Charles McClelland and Forest Gray, third; Mrs. Beulah Eagles and Ida Rowe, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. C.F. Galloway and Mrs. C.D. Elks, first with .607 percent; Mrs. Harold Forbes and Emma Warren, second; tied for third were Mrs. William McConnell and Lewis Newsome with Nell Stewart and Mel Wright.

Winning Wednesday afternoon North-South were: Mrs. Dot McKemie and Mrs. Ray Gunderson, first with .601 percent; Mrs. Barry Powers and Mrs. Wiley Corbett, second; Mrs. H.M. Bynum and Mrs. Eli Bloom, third.

East-West: Mrs. Sol Schechter and Mrs. Max Onused, first with .580 percent; Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Webb, second; Mrs. C.D. Elks and George Martin, third.

Morning game winners included: Mrs. Mozelle Bell and Mrs. Leslie Jefferson first with .562; Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. Van Jones, second; Mrs. C.D. Elks and Mrs. Raymond Martin, third.

Back To Math

Earlier this month The Reflector carried a picture of a plant in Erie, Pa., that was moving into a fully automated system operated by just two persons per shift; completion time for one assembly-line product has gone from 16 days to 16 hours.

Robots and computers made the difference.

On the same day there was a picture of the Postmaster General examining an "optical reader" for sorting mail. It automatically scans envelopes and "reads" addresses and ZIP codes, then routes the mail.

More recently, reports on "supercomputers" have been appearing.

Their creators and operators dream of curing cancer and the common cold, with the same fervor they look for answers to the hitherto unanswerable. The shape of things to come simply stagger the mind.

Back to the source, for a moment.

The source was very much human, with varying educations in mathematics. It was the application of that knowledge of math that is the inescapable shape of the future.

Remember when Sputnik first raced across the sky? The first great public demand was a renewed emphasis on math in the schools ... something much, much more than teaching how to balance a checkbook or fill out a 1040 form, or compute interest. Basic math, advanced math and advanced advanced math were seen as the first step to rivaling Sputnik.

If ever there was a time in our lives when the knowledge of math was essential to the very elementals of earning a livelihood, productivity and just plain living, the computer era represents some sort of culmination.

Maybe it's coming just in time. The problems of our society are basically the same as centuries ago, but there are so many of them that they are straining the whole fabric. Given half a chance, the tools of the new era pose chances of a reprieve.

But to cope, young people of today must go back to their math books. They won't teach history, cultures, appreciation of art and literature, language or philosophy and ethics ... all of which are necessary; but they offer a hope of finding a role in a new world.

Good Investment

The tobacco allotment owned by Pitt County has caused controversy in Washington where a congressman used the leasing of the allotment as an example of why the tobacco program should be abolished.

Rep. Thomas E. Petri's example was misleading, but county officials do deserve credit for getting the most they could out of this holding.

The allotment came to the county when 97 acres were purchased for the hospital. Since then the county has received $220,612.47 in allotment leasing fees. Some 40 acres were sold to the state for the medical school at a price of $195,000. Thus the county has received $26,612 more than the $389,000 it paid for the land originally.

It's all moot anyway. The allotment must be sold by the county by 1984 under new federal regulations. In the meantime, however, it appears that the county commissioners made an incredibly good land investment when they purchased the medical complex property.

List Nearly Complete

WASHINGTON (AP) — The membership roster of the Democratic presidential contenders' club will be filled out by the end of this week, more than 10 months before the first 1984 primary.

With Monday's announcement by South Carolina's Ernest Hollings and the one scheduled Thursday by space's John Glenn, the last flimsy cloak shrouding "an unannounced candidacy" will be discarded.

Jesse Jackson or another black leader may jump in as a mostly symbolic candidate to draw attention to issues troubling America's black community. "Favorite son" candidacies are being discussed in a number of states. And there is always the possibility some other politician will try to make a serious race.

The list now consists of former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, Sen. Alan Cranston of California, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, Glenn and Hollings. These six will get most of the attention — at least from the media and the political activists.

Whether the public will be paying any attention at all to the presidential derby that officially starts with the Iowa caucuses on Feb. 27, 1984, is an entirely different question.

The presidential hopefuls don't have any choice but to start early. The combination of party rules and campaign finance laws have, ironically, made it essential to start and work hard long before any votes are cast.

The conventional wisdom says the public pays more attention to the election campaigns the closer Election Day is. This suggests they don't pay much attention many months before the voting.

One rule of thumb used to be that voters didn't think about the general election until after baseball's World Series is over. That rule is out of date for a number of reasons, not the least of which is that the longer baseball season has pushed the World Series to late October from its former spot early in the month.

It's also out of date because the campaigns are working harder earlier to get the voters' attention. Campaign ads are popping up earlier every election cycle. And the news media are providing more stories earlier on campaigns.

Some early campaign efforts apparently can grab the attention of the public.

The success of the "New Right" at helping knock off liberal politicians, for example, has largely been the result of early advertising attacking the incumbents' records. Research suggests those ads help give the targeted incumbent a more negative image in the minds of voters.

One danger of the early start to elections — and particularly to the presidential campaign — is that the public will become bored and disgusted with the months and months of campaign advertising, charges and countercharges and a seemingly endless series of primaries, caucuses, straw polls and meetings that fail to provide any conclusive action.

Some observers have blamed the lengthy primary season for the continuing decline in turnout among Americans that began more than two decades ago.

RALEIGH — Your ex-wife has just moved in with her boyfriend. They aren't married, so you are still responsible for the monthly alimony check. But that doesn't seem fair to you. She and her boyfriend, with their combined incomes, are living high on the hog. You and your new wife are struggling to make ends meet after that alimony is paid.

Should a judge have the authority to lower or terminate someone's alimony in such a situation? At present, the judge cannot. But a bill before the General Assembly would give judges that option.

Rep. Tom Rabon, D-Brunswick, outlined the reasoning behind his bill at a recent meeting of the House of Judiciary I Committee. "Twenty years ago, we wouldn't have thought about cohabitation as a changing circumstance in an alimony situation. It just wasn't that common. But now, the court ought to be able to look at that."

Rabon denied that his bill was aimed at punishing those who cohabit. Rather, he said it's a matter of fairness. "I had a woman in my district write to me. Her husband was paying alimony to his ex-wife who was enjoying a much better lifestyle as a result of cohabitating than they were. They were struggling."

So, with Rabon's bill as law, a judge could look at that situation and reduce the ex-husband's alimony responsibility. In cases where the cohabitation did not significantly improve the ex-wife's living condition, the judge could refuse to make any changes.

To that extent, the bill got a favorable reception in the committee. But, the bill does have problems. One was solved when Rep. Ruth Easterling, D-Mecklenburg, got Rabon to agree that should the cohabitation end the full original alimony would be reinstated.

But what do you do about the problems created by the definition of cohabitation? The law dictionaries define the word to mean putting oneself forward as being husband and wife without actually being so. What in the world does that mean? Does that mean a woman who argues with her boyfriend in public is cohabitating? That's what married folk do.

"How do you prove cohabitation?" Rabon asked during an interview. "There's no way to prove that two people are living together as husband and wife ..."

Another problem arises because such legislation could significantly change the underlying theory behind alimony. Rep. Martin Nesbitt, D-Buncombe, explained that alimony is paid to fulfill an obligation to support. There is no obligation to support someone when you are simply cohabitating with them. Breaking down that distinction could have other legal ramifications.

Rep. Harry Payne, D-Hanover, then added that the bill would force the spouse receiving alimony (usually the ex-wife but, on rare occasions, the ex-husband) to come to court and disprove the notion that their financial situation has been changed. Bills that shift burdens of proof have a tough time getting through lawyer-dominated Judiciary committees.

Rabon pushed a similar bill two years ago and it failed on the floor of the House. The convincing argument then, and the one he'll probably hear this year, was made by female legislators. Cases such as Rabon describes are exceptions to the rule, they argued. More frequent are cases where a woman's alimony is so low that she's forced to find someone who'll help support her.

To the editor:

Thank you for the fine article about the Flag in a recent issue.

It reminded me of an incident at the Battle of Midway June 4, 1942. After the carrier Yorktown had been hit and was listing, she was fighting for her life, as were our other ships and planes that day.

Captain Buckmaster ordered the largest and newest Flag aboard hoisted and, when it went up, the cheers rang out across the water for all to hear. Those who saw it said they would never forget it.

Next day the gallant Yorky went down, her Flag flying, but we won the battle at the 11th hour, thanks to our dive bombers who found the enemy fleet before they ran out of gas and had to return to carriers. That victory ended Japanese expansion westward and put us on the long bloody road to Tokyo and final victory.

Pity more newspapers do not seek out and print on Flag Day some of the many instances in wartime when our Flag brought inspiration to our fighting me. It would make better Americans of us all.

Strength For Today

Two centuries ago in England, and here in the colonies, lanterns were hung in church steeples and in front of houses; and as the watchman went on his rounds he cried out continually, "Hang out your lights."

Our Lord said the same thing 2000 years ago: "Even so let your light shine before men that they may see your good works and glorify your father which is in heaven."

Jesus warned men not to light a lamp and put it under a bushel but on a stand that it may help others see the way. The cry of the watchman today is the same as it has always been: "Hang out your light."

Does your daily life convey to everyone the firm conviction that you take your religion seriously? Do people feel that you really stand for something decisive?

A little light goes a long way. It may be that the only thing some distressed and bewildered soul may have to guide him is the light that you hang out.

Chicago Exerts New Pressure

WASHINGTON — Harold Washington's election as mayor of Chicago, far from reflecting the Rev. Jesse Jackson's intent to run for president, exerts new black pressure on Democratic presidential hopefuls not to adopt a middle-of-the-road strategy against Ronald Reagan.

Blacks disagree whether or not Jackson ought to run, but there is no debate among them that presidential candidates — including Walter F. Mondale — must adjust their campaigns to attract the newly-expanded black vote. Andrew Young, the pro-Mondale mayor of Atlanta, does not care for Jackson's presidential plans but fully agrees with him about the lesson of Chicago: hedging toward the ideological center is not possible in today's national Democratic Politics.

That intensifies party apprehension that the asset of heavy black voting might become a liability by alienating the party's white majority. The nearly 9-to-1 white vote for a nondescript Republican candidate in the country's most solidly Democratic city suggests unraveling of the Democratic coalition.

Despite those white defections, strategists at the Democratic National Committee were breathing sighs of relief Wednesday morning over having avoided the humiliating defeat that five days earlier they feared was at hand. A Republican in City Hall would have catapulted Jesse Jackson into the presidential campaign, triggered by massive hostility between black and white Democrats.

But Washington's victory hardly aborts the preacher-activist's plans. "Jesse's taking full credit for it," a prominent black told us. Black leaders felt it was no accident the board meeting of Jackson's own civil rights organization, PUSH, was scheduled for Atlanta the night after the Chicago primary. Thus, Andy Young found himself hosting a Wednesday night reception in Atlanta for old-time civil rights colleague and longtime rival Jackson.

Jackson's presidential drive is fueled by the fact that the democratic coalition, while mightily overbalanced on the black side, did elect Chicago's first black mayor. He regards the failure of a parade of Democratic notables — beginning with National Chairman Charles T. Manatt and including Mondale, John Glenn and Edward M. Kennedy among others — to mobilize white voters as a failure of leadership. Therefore, he says, an addition to the leadership equation is needed.

Last Tuesday's abandonment of congenial Democratic voting loyalties in Chicago's white ethnic neighborhoods may open an opportunity for Jackson, but it raises doubts about 1984 in the minds of worried Illinois Democratic strategists. "It's going to be difficult for them all (the presidential candidates) out here next year," one such insider told us.

He describes the dilemma by posing these two questions: Will the presidential primary candidates arriving in Illinois pay the customary visit to the mayor, at the risk of alienating white lower- to middle-income voters in Chicago and across the city line in the less affluent suburbs? Or (and the question is scarcely Plausible) will he skip the visit to City Hall and surely offend the newly-decisive black vote?

Resolving the dilemma depends not a little on Harold Washington's performance. His victory performance April 12 was incomparably more conciliatory than his declarations that "it's our turn" after the Feb. 22 primary. Jesse Jackson, who frightened the wits out of whites with his primary night exuberance, responded to last Tuesday's win by calling for a period of "healing." Despite that Promising start, however, the city's white Democratic leaders are uneasy about the new mayor's hidden agenda.

In contrast, national party strategists — including Mondale's strategists — contend fear of and loathing for President Reagan will unite black and white Democrats in Chicago and elsewhere next year. Some operatives claim Chicago and Harold Washington comprise a special case, arguing that Philadelphia will unveil a reborn biracial coalition with Wilson Goode, the black city administrator, wrecking ex-mayor Frank Rizzo's comeback attempt in the May 17 Democratic primary. Moreover, the reading of the Chicago returns by black political leaders from Jesse Jackson to Andy Young underlines this question: Can the Democratic Party learn to live with a newly self-confident black vote no longer content to labor on the plantation but demanding its own seat in the manor house?

Ours Is Government Of Men

scarcely would justify your attention but for one thing: The Supreme Court felt compelled to review the case because of a conflict among the federal circuits on the correct interpretation of the act of 1871. The 5th and 8th Circuits had ruled one way; the 3rd and the 9th Circuits had ruled another way.

Such sharp differences among individual judges remind us anew that, contrary to popular myth, ours indeed is a government of men and not of law. Put that argument to one side. The Rutledge case provides one more example of the need for a new federal tribunal to resolve such intercircuit conflicts. Chief Justice Warren Earl Burger has been urging such a move. Sen. Strom Thurmond, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, has sponsored the Burger proposal (with Dole of Kansas and Heflin of Alabama), and it looks as if some action is in prospect.

The general idea is to create a pool of 26 federal circuit judges (two each from 13 circuits). From this pool a panel of seven or nine would be drawn to hear cases involving intercircuit conflicts. Their decisions in theory could be further appealed to the Supreme Court itself, but as Burger says, "The Supreme Court would not often grant further review."

At a Senate subcommittee hearing last week, Professor Daniel J. Meador strongly endorsed the Burger plan. His recommendation should carry weight. Meador served as a law clerk to Justice Hugo Black; later he served as an assistant attorney general; since 1970 he has been a distinguished professor in the University of Virginia's School of Law. Meador described the chief justice's proposed five-year experiment as "a test run that is inexpensive and free of risk."

Under the Thurmond bill, no new judgeships would be created; virtually no additional expense would be incurred. But by relieving the high court every year of 35 to 50 cases such as the Rutledge case, the intercircuit tribunal would perform a service of potentially great value. In Meador's view, the new court might contribute toward enabling the Supreme Court "to function with that quality of deliberation and care we expect of the court."

Surely that is a constructive purpose. Long ago Alexander Hamilton, writing in The Federalist, warned against the "contradiction and confusion" that result from judicial conflicts. In 1816, long before there were any such things as federal circuit courts, Justice Joseph Story spoke of "the importance, and even necessity of uniformity of decisions throughout the whole United States upon all subjects within the purview of the Constitution." Without some authority to control "jarring and discordant judgments," said Story, laws would operate differently in different states, and "the mischief that might attend such a state of things would be truly deplorable."

To be sure, the subject has small sex appeal on Capitol Hill, but it is important nonetheless. The overloaded Supreme Court sorely needs relief from a judicial burden that mounts inexorably every year. Burger's plan may not be the final answer, but it would help — and at this point, any help is better than no help at all.

Legislators And Gov. Hunt Honor N.C. Wolfpack

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Gov. Jim Hunt went before the General Assembly on statewide television Monday night but it wasn't to announce a new crime-fighting initiative or present a budget.

The subject was basketball.

The occasion was to honor the North Carolina State Wolfpack for capturing the 1983 National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball championship and to pay a belated tribute to the University of North Carolina for its 1982 NCAA championship.

"This is the happiest time I've been before the General Assembly in six years," said Hunt, who was 40 minutes late returning to town because of the snow. "It will be without a doubt the least controversial and best received (visit)."

Players, coaches, team managers and administrators from both schools stood before the Legislature to receive accolades and certificates of appreciation from representatives of all 6 million North Carolinians. The 75-minute presentation, broadcast live on the University of North Carolina television network, was followed by a reception at the Governor's Mansion.

"It was great, a once in a lifetime thing," said Thurl Bailey, an N.C. State forward. He said the team didn't mind sharing the spotlight with North Carolina. "It made it better. They deserved it and I'm glad they were there."

"It was a real honor," said Sam Perkins, a North Carolina forward. "I understand why it came a year later and I'm just honored that they took the time to do this."

The gallery of the House chamber was filled to capacity with supporters, including judges and Council of State members, in blue and red. Most legislators wore a blue tar heel pin on one lapel and a red and white wolf on the other.

Crowds of children gathered outside the doors to get an autograph.

"You have proven to the world that when it comes to college basketball, North Carolina is number one," Hunt said. "No state in the history of this sport has ever had two of its state universities win back to back national championships."

Hunt said the event brought N.C. State and North Carolina fans together "in love and harmony" — something few could believe because of the two schools' traditional rivalry.

Wolfpack Coach Jim Valvano received a standing ovation from the crowd. Valvano had come from a meeting earlier Monday with President Reagan in Washington. Reagan congratulated the team via satellite.

"What a day I've had," Valvano said. "I remember being 9-7 and saying in the locker room that I had a vision that we were going to win the ACC tournament (and later the national championship) and then speak to the president of the United States. A sportswriter said it would be a cold and snowy day in April before that would happen."

"Dreams do come true," Valvano said. "These young people have shown me that it's too soon to quit in everything you do."

John Swofford, North Carolina athletic director, spoke on behalf of Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith. He credited Smith and Valvano with building the unique relationship between the two schools.

The senior captains of the teams, Sidney Lowe for the Wolfpack and Jim Braddock for the Tar Heels, also complimented the teams and state for the support.

The House and Senate unanimously enacted a resolution honoring the winning tradition of college basketball in North Carolina. The resolution names each coach, player and team manager.

"I am especially honored today that we as elected representatives are able to pay this tribute to the fine young people who have brought such honor and distinction to this state," said Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake.

"You don't know how proud you made everybody in the state when you won," Sen. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, told the Wolfpack. "I apologize for us not being in session last year when Carolina brought it home."

"They are champions and have brought new excitement and a new dimension to college basketball," UNC President William Friday said of the teams.

North Carolina Chancellor Christopher Fordham compared the rivalry between the two schools to that between siblings — one of intense competition but with strong and close feelings for each other.

N.C. State Chancellor Bruce Poulton said he was proud of his team because of the style in which it won.

Hunt, considered a likely candidate for U.S. Senate in 1984, joked that he had seen the bumper stickers saying, "Valvano for governor" and he thought that was fine.

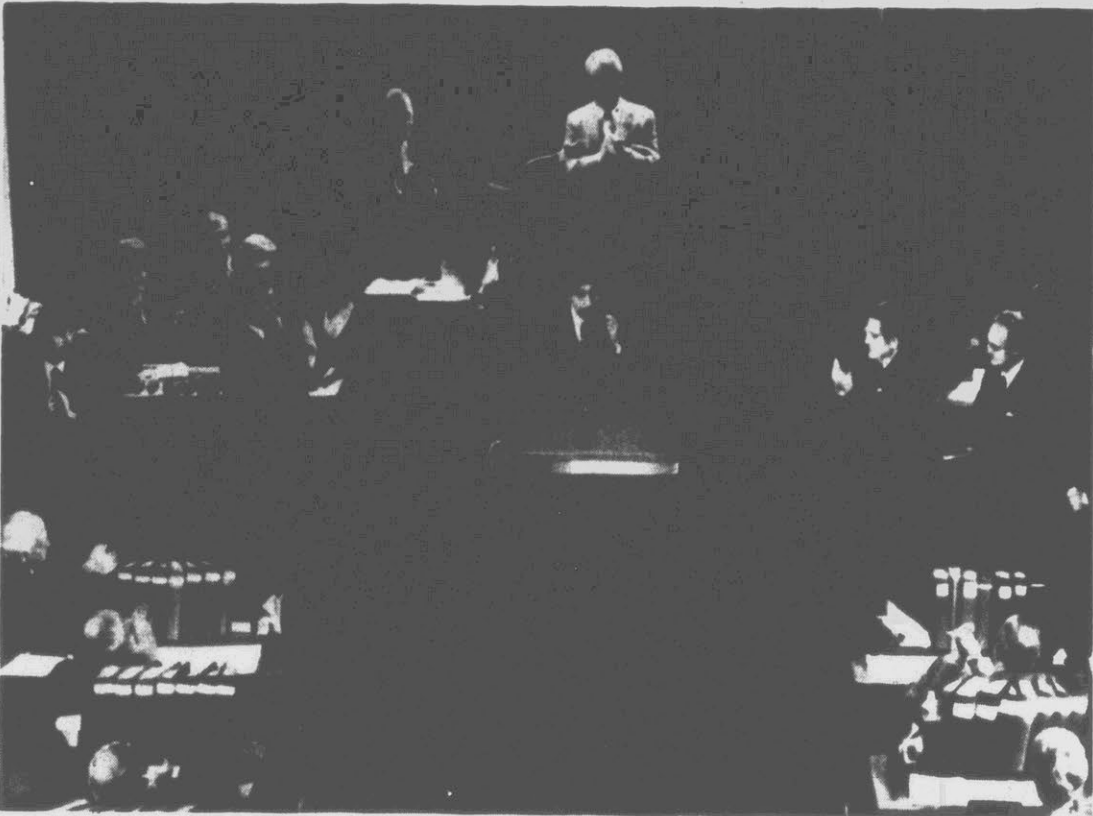

"But I'll start worrying when I see one that says, 'Dean Smith for Senate,'" Hunt said.

Meanwhile 600 invitations were mailed to the reception after the session. Among those expected to attend were national media representatives, coaches and athletic staffs from the universities, top school administrators, legislators, Supreme Court and Court of Appeals justices, the Council of State and Hunt's cabinet.

"Everybody is wanting to come," said Lynne Garrison, a spokesman for Hunt.

A pianist was to provide mood music — the N.C. State and North Carolina fight songs among other selections.

CHAMPIONS APPLAUDED — North Carolina state basketball coach Jim Valvano is applauded as he speaks before the North Carolina legislature. The Wolfpack and the North Carolina Tar Heels were both being honored by the state legislature for their back-to-back wins in the NCAA basketball championships of '82 and '83. The ceremony was held by the legislators last night. (AP Laserphoto)

Migrant Camp Program Argued

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A supporter of a bill requiring the state to inspect all migrant labor camps said Monday that fees for operating permits or licenses could pay for the increased number of inspections.

Chip Hughes of the Farmworkers Network made the suggestion to a joint House-Senate subcommittee considering a lengthy recodification of public health laws.

The bill would give the state Health Services Commission authority over all migrant housing and inspection to local health departments. Currently, only camps housing 10 or more workers are inspected by the state Department of Labor, the U.S. Labor Department or the Employment Security Commission using federal standards.

The bill also would allow the state or local health director to impose administrative penalties for migrant housing violations. Before there was only criminal or injunctive relief available.

Hughes said studies show that North Carolina's migrant housing is among the worst in the nation and the bill would be "a step in the right direction." He noted that there were an estimated 4,000 camps in the state last year and only 275 were visited by inspectors.

Leon Powell of the N.C. Environmental Health Supervisors Association said the bill would double or triple the money needed to enforce the rules.

Hughes acknowledged that money would be a big problem but recommended that a permit fee be charged to open the camps or a privilege license be used to raise some of the money.

A bill has been introduced in the state House to set aside money for the inspection program but Powell said it wasn't fair to put the burden on local health departments without ensuring them money to carry out the program.

Martin Boone of the N.C. Council of Churches praised the part of the bill allowing the state to set fines for those who violate camp sanitation standards.

"Establish fines serious enough so that it will be cheaper to fix the camp than to pay the fine," Boone said.

Boone also urged the committee to consider mandating that physicians report pesticide-related illnesses often suffered by migrants who work in fields soon after they are sprayed with pesticides.

Boon said the state has no idea how widespread the pesticide problem is.

"We always have a tendency to look at the grower as being the bad guy," said Sen. Bill Redman, R-Iredell. "What is the responsibility of the crewleaders?"

"The grower is the one who hires the crewleader year after year," Boone responded. "If he is not taking care of the camp why hire him?"

One other area of the bill drew debate Monday — the section transferring authority for regulating milk from local boards of health to one state agency.

Carlyle Teague, executive vice president of the Cooperative Council of North Carolina, said it would be more cost effective for one state department to regulate milk and make sure the program is uniform across the state.

But Harry Prevet, chairman of the Wake County Board of Health, said authority should remain at the local level because local officials are better able to react to changing needs of the community.

Avers Victims Need Attention

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Attorney General Rufus Edmisten Monday said North Carolina should stop "legal gymnastics for criminal defendants" and begin treating victims of crime with the same amount of attention.

"There is no other country that performs legal gymnastics for criminal defendants like America does. This has got to stop," Edmisten told a statewide conference on crime victims' rights held at Guilford College. "It is time for us to look after the victims of crime, to treat them with dignity and recognize the fundamental values of human life. It is time to even up the score."

The day-long conference, sponsored by the college and the N.C. Department of Justice, drew about 25 area law enforcement personnel, juvenile court counselors and representatives of dispute settlement centers and of agencies dealing with family and child services.

Edmisten cited several cases in which criminals have received psychiatric care and repeated medical and dental attention at taxpayers' expense.

"Nothing is done for the victim — no aid from the state, county or city. This is fundamentally unfair, un-American," he said.

Sen. William N. Martin, D-Guilford, and Sen. Tom C. Womble, D-Forsyth, who have introduced legislation on crime victims' rights, were among the conference speakers.

Womble's proposal would create a new crime victims compensation commission within the Department of Crime Control and Public Safety. The bill would give a crime victim, his dependent or another person injured by the crime the right to seek compensation for actual loss, not pain or suffering.

Wheeler Named Disaster Alert... Belk Supervisor

John M. Belk, chairman of the board of Belk Tyler, announced that Moses Paran Wheeler of Rocky Mount has been named senior vice president and group supervisor of the 16 company stores located in eastern North Carolina.

Belk said Wheeler succeeds Luther A. "L.A." Bailey, who died Feb. 11.

Wheeler, a 1964 graduate of East Carolina University, joined the Belk Tyler organization in 1958, working part-time as a sales associate in his hometown store in Williamston. He started full-time in 1965 as floor manager of the Belk Tyler store in Greenville.

In 1967, he moved to the Tarboro store as assistant manager and then became manager of the Belk store in Mount Olive in 1971. He became group merchandise manager for the Belk Tyler group of stores in 1972 in Rocky Mount and two years later was promoted to vice president, merchandising for the group.

M.P. WHEELER

Wheeler and his wife, the former Emma Lynn Bass of Rocky Mount, have two children, Marshall, 12, and Ellie, 10. The family attends First Methodist Church in Rocky Mount.

The company, with group offices in Rocky Mount, is affiliated with the Belk Department Store organization which has more than 350 stores in 16 states in the Southeast.

found two fractures, but the X-raying had to be done and it took a great deal of time, taxing the X-ray department to the maximum to provide this service even while they carried on the X-raying continuing to be demanded by other departments of the hospital.

"As would be expected, there were dozens of parents, school officials, law enforcement personnel and members of the press," Allison said. He said everyone acted very responsibly and, even though there was a crush of people, service was not hampered by their presence.

The disaster alert officially was lifted at 4:50 p.m., but treatment of the patients went on into the evening. Allison himself said he saw patients until 7:30 p.m., attended a meeting, and went back to see two more afterwards.

Dr. Joyce Mitchell, due to get off work at 3 p.m., worked into the evening, and Dr. V.J. Raju, the attending physician on duty, also directed activity.

More than 30 doctors responded to the disaster call, Allison said. He gave special acknowledgement to Dr. Dale Williams, a resident physician, for his assistance at the scene of this disaster as well as at the Village Green one.

"No one could have predicted," he said, "that we'd have another disaster so soon after the March 2 apartment house explosion. These events have really given us opportunity to look at our capabilities to provide emergency care for disaster victims. We see we're doing a good job and we see ways we can improve."

He said he was especially pleased to have had the input of Charles Mayo, city-county school safety director. "Charles has suggested," he said, "that this situation could have been greatly expedited if a second school bus could have been dispatched to bring in the less seriously injured students, keep them all together and have them processed off the bus at the hospital. I think this is an excellent idea and one that we will look at implementing in the event of another disaster that has some less seriously injured involved. We'll be seeing what kind of cooperation between the hospital and the schools can be arrived at to bring this into being. It would have greatly assisted us yesterday."

Pulitzer Prize For A Tar Heel

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Claude Sitton, editor of the News and Observer of Raleigh, has won the Pulitzer Prize for his 1982 Sunday columns which included commentary on civil rights, the Environmental Protection Agency and Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C.

Columbia University announced Monday that Sitton, 57, had received the award for distinguished commentary.

Sitton has been editor of the News and Observer since 1968 and also serves as vice president of the News and Observer Publishing Co., which also publishes the Raleigh Times.

The board cited, among others, Sitton's July 4th column on the nation's threatened environment.

Pitt Grand Jury Returns True Bills Against Pair In Slaying

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The Pitt County Grand Jury returned true bills of indictment Monday against a New Jersey man and a Route 4, Greenville, woman for the February murders of two men whose weighted bodies were recovered from the Tar River near Falkland.

Dwight Parker of Newark, N.J., and Carolyn Denise Pippins were each indicted on two counts of murder in the deaths of the Rev. Leslie L. Thorbs of Grifton and Anthony Ray Herring of Goldsboro.

The grand jury also indicted Parker on two counts of robbery with a dangerous weapon and Ms. Pippins on one robbery count. Ms. Pippins had been charged with two counts of being an accessory after the fact of murder.

Arraignments for both Parker and Ms. Pippins are scheduled for Monday in Pitt County Superior Court.

The bodies of Thorbs and Herring were pulled from the river near the bridge on State Road 1400 several days after they disappeared. Authorities, who said both men died of gunshot wounds to the head, reported that cement blocks had been secured to the victims' legs.

Thorbs, 31, was pastor of Gateway to Heaven Interdenominational Church of Grifton and operated flower shops in Greenville and Ayden. Herring, 27, was married and resided at a trailer park near Goldsboro.

Detective Lee Pascasio, a Pitt County sheriff's deputy, said in a March hearing that Parker described the slayings of Thorbs and Herring in a statement made to officers after Parker's Feb. 26 arrest.

Pascasio testified that Parker said in his statement he planned to kill Thorbs but did not intend to kill Herring until the Goldsboro man showed up unexpectedly at Thorbs' home. The detective said Parker told officers he shot the two men after they had driven to an area near the river in Thorbs' car.

Parker's statement said he got $10 from Herring and $25 and a diamond ring from Thorbs. He said in the statement he later threw the ring away because he feared it could be traced and he did not keep the car because it had so much blood in it.

The statement said Ms. Pippins got half the money and helped Parker dispose of the bodies and clean up the blood, Pascasio testified.

Essex County authorities in New Jersey located the minister's black and gold Cadillac in a Newark parking lot several days after the two bodies were found.

Parker was arrested in Newark following several days of investigation in New Jersey by Pitt authorities.

School Budget Is Studied By Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
 Members of the Greenville Board of Education on Monday night plunged into the task of formulating an annual school budget.

Working under the specter of tight money from all revenue sources for the 1983-84 budget, board members agreed to the basic approach of holding the tightest budget line possible without sacrificing any of the ongoing programs in the city schools.

Board members discussed preliminary budget summaries for both the current expense and capital outlay funds, prepared by Finance Officer Naomi Edwards with the assistance of members of the school's administrative staff. They also looked at the estimate of state public school funds.

The proposed current expense summary is for a 1983-84 budget totaling $3,275,525 from all sources of revenue — local, state and federal.

Of that amount, $2,404,500 is listed as the basic request from County Commissioners. This represents an increase of 3.57 percent over the $2,030,367 appropriated in this category by County Commissioners for the current school year.

Superintendent Delma Blinson said the requested increase is based on a one-step salary increase (determined by the state) without any cost-of-living increase considered in the request. It also takes into consideration a projected decrease in some expenses, such as the price of fuel oil.

To this basic figure, two other requests to be presented to the county are reflected. These are:

— A figure of $29,125 in an expansion budget figure to cover the cost of the state-mandated program for the severe and profoundly retarded class. Previously, this program was funded by TEACCH, and last year the state provided a one-year stop-gap funding for the program. This would place the amount sought from County Commissioners at $2,433,626, an increase of 19.86 percent over last year's appropriation.

— A request of $269,919 for the current expense fund balance. Mrs. Edwards said that about $200,000 would be remaining in the fund balance at the end of the school year. Blinson said this amount was agreed on by both the school administration and County Commissioners as a minimum to cover contingencies and unforeseen emergencies.

The critical need for the $269,919 is to allow continuance of art, music, physical education and guidance counselor programs in the elementary schools, as well as certain special programs in high school, school officials said. They said this amount is needed to provide payment of 22 locally funded teachers in the programs and to insure that classroom sizes do not exceed state-prescribed maximums.

The summary sheet for the capital outlay budget calls for a total of $520,283 in three categories — $265,929 for sites, buildings and renovation; $173,354 for instructional equipment, and $81,000 for vehicles. This request compares to a total of $319,748 provided by the county in capital outlay funds for 1982-83.

A public hearing on the budget proposal summaries will be held May 2 at Greenville Middle School.

County Board...

fiscal year ending June 30, 1983, and gave tentative approval for use of Community Based Alternative funds for the coming fiscal year.

Jan Woodworth, representing the juvenile task force, said the group recommended that the $63,465 in community-based alternatives money be used to continue the juvenile services restitution and psychological services programs, and the emergency shelter care program.

She also said the task force has recommended that $9,733 in Juvenile Justice Delinquency Prevention grant funds be used to fund the dropout prevention program at Rose High School and for the Alternative School Program.

Gray reported that the county's Certified Development Corporation application has been approved.

The county manager also reported that, including the sale of the county's 17,344-pound peanut allotment Monday, the county has received $298,726.06 in revenue from the lease of county-owned farmland and tobacco and peanut allotments since 1966.

Since 1966, the county has received $64,354.42 in land rental fees, while $220,612.41 has been received through renting the tobacco allotment since 1972.

Income from the rental of the peanut allotment since 1972 has amounted to $9,499.79, while the sale of the allotment totaled $4,259.44.

Tax Supervisor Jimmie Hardee reported that, based on preliminary figures, the county's tax base will total $2.23 billion this year. The tax base figure is used by commissioners in setting a tax rate to fund budget requirements.

Hardee noted that the $2.23 billion represents a $20 million increase over 1982.

According to Hardee, real estate values increased by $18 million, while inventory was down $13 million and equipment down by $1.5 million. Household property increased by $6.5 million, while the value of vehicles is up $10 million.

Hardee said the value of property exempt from taxes in the county — churches, Pitt County Memorial Hospital, East Carolina University — amounts to some $351 million. He noted that old age exemptions make another $10.6 million in real property and $2.4 million in personal property exempt from taxes.

Ice, Snow Mixed With Area's Rain

A spring storm that brought cold rain mixed with ice and snow Monday has left dreams of spring frozen for Pitt County residents.

Temperatures plunged to 33 degrees Fahrenheit early this morning, according to the Greenville Utilities Weather Station, and by 11 a.m. the mercury had risen to only 43 degrees.

According to the United States Weather Bureau forecast, temperatures will plunge even further tonight with lows in the upper 20's predicted for the area.

Isolated snow flurries were reported in Pitt County this morning but no accumulation occurred. The Farmville Police Department reported a flurry around 10:30 a.m. but a spokesperson for the department said "just a little bit" of snow fell.

A flurry was also reported west of Greenville about 11 a.m., but no accumulation was expected.

The nearly freezing temperatures may have damaged the fruit crop in the area, according to Pitt County Agricultural officials who were out checking the county's strawberry crop for cold damage this morning. The weather service has issued another freeze warning for tonight.

The GUC weather station recorded .25 inch of precipitation from 8 a.m. Monday until 8 a.m. today.

Obituaries

Brown
WINTERVILLE — Mrs. Fannie Carmen Brown of 621 Mill St. died Monday night at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. She was the wife of Tom Brown. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by Flanagan's Funeral Home.

Cutrell
Mr. William Joseph (Billy Joe) Cutrell, 44, died Monday in Pitt County Memorial Hospital. He was a resident of Fairfield in Hyde County. Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a.m. Thursday in the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. C. Wesley Jennings. Burial will be in the Fairfield Cemetery at 3 p.m.

Mr. Cutrell was a native of Fairfield and lived there until 1954 when he moved to Tampa, Fla., where he attended high school and college. He was a loan officer for First National Bank in Lakeland, Fla., until he retired because of his health.

Championship Visit, Finally
Jim Valvano, head coach of the NCAA basketball champion North Carolina State Wolfpack, visits

National Champs Finally Meet With President — Via Satellite

RALEIGH (AP) — It wasn't the face-to-face meeting they had sought, but members of North Carolina State University's NCAA champion basketball team say their televised conversation with President Reagan was the next best thing.

Reagan, joined by Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano and Sens. Jesse Helms and John East, both R-N.C., congratulated the team Monday from Washington, D.C. The discussion was transmitted via satellite between the White House and a Raleigh television station.

"I wanted to give my personal congratulations to coach Jim Valvano and all of you... for your heart-stopping victory over Houston" in the tournament finals earlier this month, Reagan said.

"I'm sorry I can't be there and I'm sorry you can't be here, but again, congratulations."

Helms had arranged for the team to visit Reagan in the nation's capital after its 54-52 victory, but the National Collegiate Athletic Association barred the university and Capitol Broadcasting Co., which owns WRAL-TV and WRAL-FM, from paying for the trip.

WRAL-TV then arranged the satellite transmission which cost about $6,000 — three times as much as it would have cost to fly the team to Washington, said Jim Hefner, the television station's news director.

"It felt great, it was a once-in-a-lifetime thing," said senior guard Derek Whittenburg in an interview. "But I wanted a chance to throw some questions at (Reagan)."

Senior forward Thurl Bailey said the NCAA should have made an exception to its rule barring teams from traveling out of state to non-competitive functions.

"I'm sure they (the NCAA) could come up with some arrangement for things like this," said Bailey.

Bailey, Whittenburg and guard Sidney Lowe, N.C. State's three senior standouts, spoke with Reagan and introduced the other 11 team members.

The players sat on a two-tiered platform in the studio, packed with reporters, station employees and university officials. To the players' left was a large screen showing Reagan, Valvano, Helms and East.

"It's an honor to be able to talk to you live," Bailey told Reagan. "This tops our season off. I've never had a greater thrill."

Valvano gave Reagan a plaque and T-shirt boasting of the Wolfpack's success. Reagan laughed heartily when Valvano displayed bumper stickers boasting the coach as a candidate for governor and president.

"I hope you run for re-election, but if you don't I could use some support," Valvano told Reagan.

The N.C. State coach, saying he could sympathize with the president had battles with the media, read from a Washington Post story written before the NCAA tournament final that said "elephants driving race cars at Indianapolis" was more likely than the Wolfpack beating Houston.

"If you think the press is tough on a coach, wait 'til you get one of these (political) jobs," Reagan replied.

Reagan, once a sportscaster, said as he watched the final game on television he became so excited that he lapsed into his old habit and began announcing to himself.

Reagan then recited the game's closing play, but confused the players' names and other details. "I think I could have done that smoother if I hadn't been trying to remember," he said.

The N.C. State players joined members of the University of North Carolina's 1982 national champion basketball team for a ceremony Monday night at the N.C. Legislative Building. Afterward, both teams attended a reception at the Governor's Mansion.

Two-Hitter Downs Toronto

Guidry Back In Form

By The Associated Press
Ron Guidry is up because he's keeping the ball down again.

The New York Yankees lanky left-hander, blasted in his first two starts this year when he tried to be too clever with the ball, just reared back and threw it Monday night against Toronto's batters. The result: a two-hit 3-0 victory over the Blue Jays.

Elsewhere in the American League it was Baltimore 4, Cleveland 1; Minnesota 8, Seattle 5; Milwaukee 14, Boston 0, and Oakland 5, California 3.

"I think I worry too much about spotting the ball," said Guidry. "What I wanted to do tonight, if nothing else, was throw the ball hard. I challenged them. I wanted to go right after them. That's the way I used to pitch."

Guidry, who struck out four batters and didn't walk any, gave up a game-opening single to former Yankee teammate Dave Collins, retired 15 consecutive batters, was nicked for an infield hit by Buck Martinez opening the sixth inning, then set down Toronto's final 12 batters.

"He went with the fastball tonight and when he needed a good overpowering fastball he had it," said catcher Butch Wynegar. "The key to him tonight was that he kept the ball down. I think the last couple of times he was getting the ball up. I don't care if you're Nolan Ryan, you are going to get hit if you get the ball up."

In the Yanks' opener in Seattle, Guidry lasted only 2 2/3 innings and allowed four runs on seven hits. He also pitched New York's home opener against Detroit, surrendering six runs on five hits in 5 1/3 innings.

Luis Leal might have matched Guidry goose-egg for goose-egg had not second baseman Damaso Garcia, another ex-Yankee, bobbled Roy Smalley's two-out grounder. Graig Nettles then walked and Jerry Mumphy tripled for two runs. Mumphy came home on Wynegar's single.

Orioles 4, Indians 1
Designated hitter Jim Dwyer's fifth-inning leadoff home run snapped a 1-1 tie and propelled the Orioles past Cleveland.

"If he keeps hitting like that, he may be the DH for eternity," said Baltimore Manager Joe Altobelli. Dwyer is the DH only because Ken Singleton is hurt.

Rick Dempsey drove in two runs for the Orioles with a sacrifice fly in the third inning and a double in the seventh. Scott McGregor pitched a seven-hitter for Baltimore. Twins 8, Mariners 5
Randy Bush's two-run double in the third inning and Mickey Hatcher's two-run single in the seventh led Minnesota out of the West Division basement and dropped the Mariners into it.

Mike Moore walked Gary Ward, Kent Hrbek and Gary Gaetti before Tom Brunansky's sacrifice fly broke a 1-1 tie and Bush doubled. The Twins made it 5-1 in the sixth on Ward's sacrifice fly.

Brewers 14, Red Sox 0
Boston's scoreless streak stretched to 25 innings as Don Sutton checked the Red Sox on six hits through seven innings and Tom Tellmann wrapped up with two hitless innings of relief.

Charlie Moore had four of the Brewers' 22 hits and drove in three runs, and Paul Molitor, Robin Young, Cecil Cooper and Roy Howell added three hits apiece. For Howell, it was particularly welcome, since he had gone 0-for-35 in a streak dating back to the end of the 1982 season.

A's 5, Angels 3
Mike Davis' two-run single triggered a four-run burst in the third inning against Mike Witt. Wayne Gross' single and Dwayne Murphy's double-play grounder drove in the other runs in the inning. Rod Carew had a two-run single and Reggie Jackson a homer for the Angels.

Jackman Leaves Devils

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Former Grant all-state basketball forward Bill Jackman will transfer to the University of Nebraska next fall, according to a copyright story in Tuesday's editions of the Omaha World-Herald.

Considered one of the top prospects in the nation during his high school career, the 6-9 Duke freshman said he told Blue Devil Coach Mike Krzyzewski 10 days ago that he was considering a move back to his home state.

After three meetings with the Duke coach, Jackman said he asked Krzyzewski for his release Monday afternoon and called Cornhusker Coach Moe Iba to say he would like to transfer to Nebraska.

Iba acknowledged he had spoken to Jackman, but said he couldn't comment until he had contacted the Duke coaches to inform them that Jackman had asked about transferring.

"I feel relieved," Jackman told the newspaper in a telephone interview from Durham, N.C. "Coach Iba said he would call the Duke coaches tomorrow (Tuesday), then we can talk some more."

Jackman said a return trip to Grant the week before Easter convinced him of his desire to transfer.

"I was going to stay here (at Duke). I hadn't planned to transfer until I went home," he said. "I talked to some people and said I was going to stay at least one more year. They said, 'Why wait another year? If you transfer, it'll give you a year to know Nebraska's system. It'll give you another year to play with Dave.'"

Jackman said he toyed with the transfer idea when his playing time began to dwindle as Duke's basketball season drew to a close.

"I played a lot at the beginning of the season," he said. "But later I wasn't. I mean, it was my own fault. They gave me a chance."

He said the Duke coaches told him to be more aggressive on the court and he was not able to do that as well as he liked. "I really wanted to do that. I wanted to change to please them. But I think I may have carried it to an extreme," he said.

A lack of confidence also resulted in his shooting percentage to slip to 39 percent this season, he said.

In transferring to Nebraska, Jackman will have to sit out the 1983-84 season and will be a sophomore when he returns to the court during the 1984-85 season.

Lady Pirates Blank Wolfpack In Rain

A two-out triple in the third by Fran Hooks and an RBI single by Yvonne Williams gave the Lady Pirates of East Carolina University the only run they needed as they took a 3-0 win over North Carolina State in a rain-shortened softball game Monday. The weather forced the cancellation of the second game.

Jeannette Roth went the distance on the mound for East Carolina, now 25-8 on the season.

"Seems to be the typical weather," said ECU coach Sue Manahan. "I was a little worried about how we would play today after so much softball over the weekend. We came out a little flat, but we showed a lot of enthusiasm."

In the fourth inning, Tamara Franks led off with a base-on-balls, and singles by Liz Cox and Melody Ham loaded the bases with one out. Robin Graves drove a fly to deep left field to score Franks from third, but the Pirates were unable to generate more offense.

The Lady Pirates pushed across another run in the fifth on a triple by Williams and a single by Cynthia Shepard.

"Our base-hitters were hitting the ball hard," said Manahan. "In that kind of weather it was difficult to play, but we did what we had to do to win."

Weather Again Forces Rescheduling In Area

Rains forced the postponement of several area athletic events yesterday.

Rose High School's baseball game at Kinston, rained out Friday night, was again postponed last night and will be played Wednesday at 4 p.m. at Kinston.

In addition, Rose's game with Fike, set for 7:30 p.m. tonight at Guy Smith Stadium, has been reset for 4 p.m. this afternoon.

A track meet involving Greene Central and Farmville Central at SouthWest Edgecombe yesterday, has been reset for today. A co-ed meet between Havelock, Conley and West Carteret yesterday, will be run instead on April 26.

A tennis match between Pitt Community College and Coastal Carolina was reset for May 9.

A girls' track meet between Rose and Hunt was cancelled, as was a tennis match between East Carolina and Campbell.

Rampants Down Fike

Rose High School's golfers overcame the weather and Wilson Fike yesterday, boosted their record to 5-3 on the season.

Rose finished the tour of Brook Valley with a 318 score, while Fike was well back with a 343 total.

Craig Davies and Brian Hill both carded 77 to share medalist honors, while Jordy Smith had an 80 and Clay Young an 84 for the Rampants.

Fike was led by Billy Price with an 83, while Claude Alligood had 85, Milo Popoitch had 86 and Carl Murphy, 89.

The Rampants are scheduled to travel to Farmville Central today.

Celtics Hoping To Cut 'Trees'

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics hope to cut some "trees" down to size tonight in the opening of their National Basketball Association playoff mini-series with the Atlanta Hawks.

"Atlanta is a tough team for us to play because they have such a big front line," says Boston's Kevin McHale. "But I feel as good about playing them as I do anybody. In a mini-series it's not so much who we play, it's how we play."

Tree Rollins, the Hawks'

7-foot center, will be one of the players the Celtics have to deal with in the Eastern Conference contest at Boston, one of two playoff games tonight. Phoenix plays host to Denver in a first-round game in the Western Conference.

First-round action continues Wednesday night with New York visiting New Jersey in Eastern action and Portland playing at Seattle in the West.

The Celtics avoided the best-of-three mini-series the past three seasons because they had the Eastern Conference's best record.

"A mini-series is a tough time because if you blow one (game) you're struggling," said Boston guard Quinn Buckner. "What we really have to do is play great defense."

Despite the problems the Hawks present inside, the Celtics dominated them during the regular season, winning five of six games. However, Boston Coach Bill Fitch doubts his players will be overconfident.

"The success we had against them means nothing," he said. "The last thing you want to think about is that you just have to show up. We know a little better."

Both teams have been playing well of late. The Celtics have won eight of their last 11 regular-season games. Atlanta also finished strongly to beat out the Washington Bullets for the Eastern Conference's final playoff berth.

"I am proud of this team," said Hawks Coach Kevin Loughery. "To go 18-10 down the stretch is a real treat, considering the injuries we have had and the personnel changes we have made. Only the uninformed could say we don't deserve to be in the playoffs."

Though the Suns have the home-court advantage, Coach John MacLeod says he knows they "have to play high-quality basketball" to beat Denver. "Our guys realize what kind of team they have."

During the regular season, Denver beat the Suns in four of their five meetings — and the game the Nuggets lost was one in which center Dan Issel was unable to play. He's back in good health now.

"We're going to be ready," says the Suns' Maurice Lucas. "We've been playing well and not to continue playing well would surprise us all."

The Suns finished with six straight victories and took 12 of their last 13.

The second game is scheduled for Thursday night in Denver. The third, if needed, will be back in Phoenix on Sunday.

Benoit Steals Meyer's Thunder

BOSTON (AP) — On a cool day when Greg Meyer sped to a Boston Marathon victory in the third-fastest time for the 87-year-old race, Joan Benoit stole some of his thunder by obliterating the women's world record.

"Joanie is one of the best athletes in the world, not just among women," said Meyer. "It's time people recognized that."

Benoit set a blistering pace Monday to finish in two hours, 22 minutes, 42 seconds, shaving nearly three minutes off the women's best of 2:25:29. She led most of the way and won by almost seven minutes. "I don't think it's hit me yet. It will probably hit me tomorrow when I can't get out of bed," said Benoit, who won the 1979 Boston Marathon in 2:35:15.

Meyer's only other Boston Marathon was in 1981, when he led from the 16th mile to the 19th mile before fading to an 11th-place finish.

"I took the lead just about where I lost it two years ago," said Meyer, whose winning time was 2:09:00. "In 1981, I think I made some mistakes and let the course destroy me. We planned for this race."

Meyer, a Grand Rapids, Mich., native now living in Wellesley, Mass., and Benoit, a Portland, Maine, native living in Watertown, Mass., didn't disappoint the forecasters who had installed them as heavy favorites in a field of 6,515 official entrants, including 5,814 men and 701 women.

"I felt it a lot this week," Meyer said of the pressure of being the favorite. "I think I handled it well. I won so it must not have hurt me."

Meyer has won four of his seven marathons. He also has been victorious in his last five races at varying distances.

Ron Tabb, of Eugene, Ore., finished second in 2:09:32, followed by Benji Durden, of Stone Mountain, Ga., in 2:09:57, Ed Mendoza, of Flagstaff, Ariz., in 2:10:06, and Christopher Bunyan, of Carbondale, Ill., in 2:10:54.

Bill Rodgers, seeking his fifth Boston Marathon win in 10 tries, had a cold last week and finished the 26-mile, 385-yard race in 10th place in 2:11:58.

"I was thinking maybe this will be my last marathon so I should try to finish," Rodgers said. "I'm already thinking about the next one."

He missed qualifying for the World Track and Field Championships in Helsinki, Finland, Aug. 7-14. The top three finishers Monday qualified, but Meyer said he would concentrate on the 10-kilometer race and didn't plan to participate in the marathon in Helsinki.

Defending champion Alberto Salazar didn't compete. He finished fifth April 9 in the Rotterdam Marathon. Salazar holds the world record of 2:08:13 and the Boston mark of 2:08:51.

Monday's race was run under nearly ideal weather conditions — cool with a tailwind.

Abraha Aregha led early, but Durden spurred in front at around the eighth mile and held it until Meyer made his move between the 19th and 20th miles. About two miles later, Meyer figured his lead was big enough and his legs strong enough to carry him to victory.

"I just found myself in the lead frequently in the early stages. It was mystifying," said Durden, who was second in the Houston Marathon last Jan. 16. "I had a tail wind and I wasn't breaking any wind ahead of me so I said why not go ahead and run hard. I did and I almost got away with it."

But the determined Meyer wouldn't let him.

"My strategy from the start was whoever went out, no matter who it was, I would stay with him. If it was a rabbit (who) I knew was going to die after five miles I was going to go out and chase him," Meyer said. "I was hoping what Benji was doing was trying to take the sting out of everybody and then see who could crawl home."

But Meyer, 27, had plenty left at the end, and said he could have made one last surge if he needed it.

Benoit started extremely fast and didn't know if she had much energy remaining. It became obvious early that she wouldn't need it.

"The 10-mile split of 51:38 scared me a little bit," said the 25-year-old women's distance running coach at Boston University. "People kept saying, 'Lady, you better watch it. ... But I always felt in control.'"

The previous women's best was by Allison Roe of New Zealand in the New York City Marathon in October 1981 and was tied Sunday in the London Marathon by Grete Waitz of Norway.

Roe, the 1981 Boston Marathon women's winner, suffered leg cramps and dropped out after about 17 miles. Jacqueline Gareau of Canada, the 1980 winner, was second in 2:29:27. Mary Shea was timed in 2:33:22, Karen Dunn in 2:33:34, and Sue King in 2:33:51 to round out the top five.

"I was not really projecting what I was going to run. I thought if it was a good day I could break the record," said Benoit. "Deep down I wanted to run 2:23 something but I did even better than that."

She said her next marathon probably would be next year's Olympic trials.

Although they ran two of the best races in marathon history, Benoit and Meyer had simple goals.

"I wanted to run the best race I'm capable of running," said Benoit.

"All I want to do is keep improving. I think that's the main goal of any runner," said Meyer.

Few would doubt that they accomplished those goals Monday.

Meyer's Goal Was To Win Not To Set A Record

BOSTON (AP) — Greg Meyer said he was running the 87th Boston Marathon strictly to win the race — not necessarily to set a world best.

"Boston is my goal, Boston is what I want," Meyer insisted prior to Monday's 26-mile, 385-yard trek from Hopkinton, west of Boston, to the finish line in downtown Boston.

"If you don't run the race, you're not accepted in the (Boston) running community. You're an outsider."

Meyer fulfilled his goal in the annual Patriots Day race.

He ran the race, he won the race, but he did not erase Alberto Salazar's world best of 2 hours, 8 minutes, 13 seconds.

His time of 2:09, however, was the 10th fastest in history, and made him the No. 8 performer of all time, since Salazar and Robert de Castella of Australia have each run faster twice.

"It's good to get a good time, but the breakthrough comes when you win," said the 27-year-old Meyer, a native of Grand Rapids, Mich., who was coaxed to the Boston area (he now lives in Wellesley, Mass.) about five years ago by Bill Rodgers, four-time winner of the Boston Marathon.

"I knew I was running fast, but I had no concern for the record," he added. "Records will come and go, but winning Boston will be there forever."

"The victories are the important things."

Meyer's victory was important in many ways.

It rocketed him into the elite of long-distance runners.

It vindicated his "embarrassing" 11th-place place finish in the Boston Marathon in 1981, the only previous time he had run the race.

It proved that he could cope with the pressure of being the favorite.

It earned him berths on the United States teams that will compete in the World Track and Field Championships at Helsinki, Finland Aug. 7-14

Flannery's Contributions Many As Padres Run By Braves, 10-3

By The Associated Press

Tim Flannery was only one of nine San Diego Padres with an RBI on the night, but his contribution may have been just a little bit bigger.

Flannery singled, tripled, scored twice and drove in a run as his contributions in a 15-hit attack that helped San Diego bury the Atlanta Braves 10-3 Monday night.

In addition, he played another flawless game at third base in place of Luis Salazar, who had made two errors before being replaced by Manager Dick Williams.

"I know my role," Flannery said. "With me, it's only one day at a time. When I'm in there, I go as hard as I can. And when someone else is in there, I cheer for him. I know if I don't produce, I won't be in the lineup long."

With his two hits, Flannery upped his average to .375. Gene Richards was the only Padre with more than one RBI Monday night, driving in a pair with a single in the second inning. Steve Garvey hit a solo homer.

In the only other games played, Los Angeles edged San Francisco 4-3 and Philadelphia clobbered the Chicago Cubs 8-3.

Every Padre that got into the lineup against Atlanta — with the exception of San Diego's three pitchers — had at least one RBI against four Atlanta pitchers. Right-hander Eric Show, 2-0, worked the first 5 1-3 innings for San Diego for the victory.

It was the first win of the year for the Padres over the Braves, who swept a four-game series over San Diego in Atlanta last week. Rookie right-hander Craig McMurtrey, 1-1, lasted only two innings for the Braves.

Dodgers 4, Giants 3
Giants relief ace Greg Minton walked the bases full, and Los Angeles' winning run scored in the top of the ninth inning on Ken Landreaux's ground ball. It was his 11th RBI of the new season.

Trailing 3-0, San Francisco tied the score in the eighth off Burt Hooton on Milt May's two-run homer and a pinch RBI single by Joel Youngblood.

Tom Niedenfuer, who faced only one batter in the eighth, got the victory, and Dave Stewart worked out of a one-out, two-on jam in the ninth to earn his third save.

Phillies 8, Cubs 2
Gary Matthews and Mike Schmidt each homered for the Phillies, backing the eight-hit pitching of John Denny.

The Phillies trailed 2-0 in the third when Matthews led off with a solo shot off Paul Moskau. After Joe Morgan walked, Schmidt homered for the fourth time this season to put Philly ahead 3-2.

Denny walked one and struck out three in evening his record at 1-1. It was his first for Philadelphia, which acquired him from Cleveland last September.

Brown also knows about the right-hand punch of Teofilo Stevenson, the three-time Olympic heavyweight champion from Cuba. Brown was knocked down but got up to lose a decision to Stevenson in Havana as an amateur in 1978.

Brown had a 136-8 amateur record, with victories over Renaldo Snipes, James "Quick" Tillis and Tony Tubbs. Since turning pro in 1979, he has posted a 21-0-2 record, with 15 knockouts. The two draws were in six-rounders against Michael Greer at Memphis Tenn., in 1980, and against Mike Benning in 1981, at New York on the undercard of Cooney's one-round knockout of Ken Norton.

"I'm glad to be back and I'm excited to be fighting again," said Cooney, who won all 25 of his fights, 22 by knockout, before being beaten by Holmes.

Both Rappaport and trainer Victor Valle said that Cooney while training for Holmes was plagued by more injuries than just the torn left-shoulder muscle, which forced the bout to be postponed from March to June.

Rappaport mentioned as injuries as a "bruised leg, two scratched corneas, a left-hand injury and other injuries."

Pack Inks Spud Webb

RALEIGH (AP) — Reigning NCAA basketball champion North Carolina State got its fourth recruit for 1983-84 when 5-foot-7 Anthony "Spud" Webb from Midland, Texas, Junior College signed with the Wolfpack.

Webb, who led Midland to the 1982 Junior College national championship, has a 41-inch vertical jump and in two years as the Chapparals point guard had 49 dunks, 37 blocked shots, 184 steals and 632 assists.

Webb also proved he could score, averaging 21.3 points during a 34-4 freshman year and 14.6 as the Chaps finished 31-4 this past season.

"I don't know of anybody who can do the things Spud does with a basketball except maybe Dr. J (Julius Erving)," Midland coach Jerry Stone said. "And, Dr. J is 6-7."

"We're extremely pleased to have one of the finest point guards in JuCo ranks join us," Wolfpack coach Jim Valvano said. "He is, without question, one of the most exciting players in the country, and we're counting on him for instant help in the backcourt next year."

Previous Wolfpack signees were 6-10 Terry Shackleford of Denton; 6-8 Russell Pierre of North Babylon, N.Y.; and 6-7 Rodney Butts of Atlanta.

Cooney Set To Start Comeback

NEW YORK (AP) — "It was a question of who was available and we wanted to pick somebody who the press would not criticize," co-manager Dennis Rappaport says in explaining the choice of Philip Brown as the first opponent for Gerry Cooney since Cooney was stopped by World Boxing Council heavyweight champion Larry Holmes June 11, 1982.

Brown, a one-time Cooney sparring partner, who is unbeaten, but 27 years old and relatively unknown, has thought about his being chosen.

"I thought about that, and I can't be anybody's scapegoat," Brown, of Lake Charles, La., said Monday at a news conference to formally announce the scheduled 10-round fight June 18 at Las Vegas, Nev., which will be televised live nationally by CBS.

"This is my shot."

The 6-foot-3 Brown, four-inches shorter and a year younger than Cooney, recalled sparring with Cooney for "three weeks before Ron Lyle (who Cooney knocked out in the first round in 1980). I did fairly well. He knocked me down once with an overhand right."

"He was very strong and a good puncher," said Cooney,

Express Tops Bandits, 18-13

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Vince Abbott kicked three first-half field goals and Los Angeles Express used a second-half fumble recovery to set up John Barnett's 1-yard touchdown run Monday night as the Los Angeles Express held on for a 18-13 United States Football League victory over the Tampa Bay Bandits.

Abbott's field goals of 35, 36 and 24 yards staked the Express to a 9-6 halftime lead and Barnett's score gave Los Angeles a 16-6 advantage with 12:31 remaining to play.

Reserve quarterback Jimmy Jordan brought the Bandits back, however, and the 4-3 Express needed a roughing-the-punter penalty to help quarterback Mike Rae exhaust the clock.

Jordan replaced John Reaves late in the fourth quarter after the Bandits' starter had thrown four interceptions and fumbled to set up Barnett's touchdown.

Zenon Andrusyshyn accounted for Tampa Bay's first-half scoring, booting field goals of 40 and 29 yards.

The loss, before a Tampa Stadium crowd of 32,223, was the second in three games for the 5-2 Bandits.

Big Fine Given Steinbrenner

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees owner George Steinbrenner has been hit with one of the heaviest individual fines ever levied against a baseball club owner, but umpire union head Richie Phillips feels the punishment doesn't fit the crime.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn reportedly fined Steinbrenner $50,000 Monday for remarks critical of National League umpires.

Contacted by the New York Daily News in Tampa, Fla., Monday night, Steinbrenner was quoted as saying: "It's $50,000, and, yes, that's a stiff one. But I'll pay it — especially if it'll help assure the National League umpires I did not mean to question their integrity."

Phillips said from his home in Philadelphia on Monday that he was "sorely disappointed in the type penalty imposed." He added that he had hoped Steinbrenner would be suspended.

"I don't think fining George Steinbrenner serves as any kind of a deterrent to someone with pockets as deep as his from continuing to engage in this kind of conduct," Phillips said.

Steinbrenner's suspension had been urged by Phillips, head of the Major League Umpires Association, who charged that the Yankee owner had attacked the umpires' integrity in remarks during a March 25 exhibition game against the Montreal Expos.

Steinbrenner had complained that NL umpires gave teams in their league a break on close calls in games against American League teams. The Yankee owner was standing on the sidelines at the time and questioned a call at first base. He later said his remarks were made privately to a friend and were not meant to be overheard by reporters.

Phillips later quoted Steinbrenner as saying the umpires were acting on the orders of Chub Feeney, the NL president.

The Yankees had issued a succinct statement Monday in which Steinbrenner said the fine would be paid and apologized to Feeney and the league's umpires if they felt their integrity had been questioned.

"The discipline has been imposed and there will be no further comment," said Bob Wirz, director of information for Kuhn's office.

It was not Steinbrenner's first run-in with Kuhn. The baseball commissioner suspended Steinbrenner in 1974 after he was found guilty in a Federal court of making illegal campaign contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign. Steinbrenner's suspension from baseball was originally ordered for two years but was later cut to 15 months by the commissioner.

Steinbrenner, in a statement distributed during the Yankees' game with the Toronto on Monday night, said, "The commissioner has given me his decision in the matter involving the National League umpires and the Major League Umpires Association. I will abide by its terms."

"I personally regret if, in the reporting of the story, the impression was given that I was questioning the integrity of National League President Chub Feeney or the umpires as a group. I was not, and certainly apologize to them if that was their impression. The fine will be paid."

Bonnett Holds NASCAR Lead

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Neil Bonnett has maintained his lead in the NASCAR Winston Cup Grand National point standings for the third week, with 900 points to Bobby Allison's 867 points.

The 33-point advantage is the largest Bonnett has held since he took the lead following the Coca-Cola 500 at Atlanta International Raceway March 27.

Harry Gant is third in the standings after six Winston Cup events this season with 847 points. He's followed by Bill Elliott, 833 points; Joe Ruttman, 821; Dick Brooks, 795; Richard Petty, 763; Ricky Rudd, 711; Geoff Bodine, 707, and Lake Speed, 705.

Darrell Waltrip, the two-time defending Winston Cup champion, moved into 11th place in the standings with his victory in Sunday's North-western Bank 400 at North Wilkesboro (N.C.) Speedway. Waltrip now has 704 points.

Cale Yarborough continues to lead the circuit in money winnings with $165,285. Waltrip is second with $106,675, followed by Allison, $102,515; Elliott, $101,595; Bonnett, $100,665; Ruttman, $92,530; Gant, $91,055; Dale Earnhardt, $84,001; Richard Petty, $90,795, and Buddy Baker, $78,205.

SCORING LEADERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders was the second non-kicker to lead the National Football League in scoring in more than a decade with his 1982 total of 96 points on 16 touchdowns.

Only O.J. Simpson of Buffalo in 1975 broke through the domination of the place-kickers which had lasted since 1965.

Answer to yesterday's puzzle.

CRYPTOQUIP 4-19

Q E F T I Q E T U S C T Z V B T U J B J H S
B Z H C V : V Z H F U I Z V Q J H S F U .

Yesterday's Cryptoquip — FOREIGN CANNON MANUFACTURER DIDN'T DO A BOOMING BUSINESS.
Today's Cryptoquip clue: Q equals G.

The Cryptoquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.

Attenborough May Drop African Visit

LONDON (AP) — Heeding widespread protests, British director Sir Richard Attenborough says he will not go to South Africa for the opening of his Oscar-winning film "Gandhi" unless all performances are open to all races.

In Johannesburg, militant Indian leaders who had called on Attenborough to boycott the premiere in South Africa were jubilant at his decision.

"I am absolutely thrilled. He has acted consistently with Gandhian principles and values," said Cassim Saloojee, an Indian who sits on South Africa's Gandhi Centenary Council.

The council had said Attenborough was not welcome at its multi-racial premiere Friday night on behalf of Tolstoy Farm, where Gandhi spent four of his 21 years in South Africa fighting white discrimination against Indians.

Attenborough, abandoning his original plan to attend the whites-only premiere in Johannesburg this week, said Monday he would to South Africa only if the entire "Gandhi" run was open to all races and no cinema had to apply for a government permit to show it to a racially mixed audience.

South African cinemas are segregated under the national policy of apartheid unless the white-minority government gives special permission for a multiracial audience.

North America was represented by a young team in the 1981 World Team Championship, held in Port Chester, N.Y. They started out as underdogs, but ended up easy winners of the title. How they grew in maturity, as the tournament progressed is vividly portrayed in the "1981 World Championships" (American Contract Bridge League, paperback, 255 pp., $12.95. Available post free from Bridge World, 39 West 94th St., New York, NY 10025.) Most of the excellent commentary is by Eric Kokish of Montreal.

This is one of the hands from the finals. Both teams reached four hearts, and the Pakistani declarer ended up down one. John Solodar of New York sat South for North America, and he needed only one slight miscue by a defender to romp home.

He won the opening lead in dummy and led a club. East rose with the ace and continued with a spade, and the defenders did not get another chance.

Declarer ruffed the spade and cashed the ace of diamonds. Then he ruffed two diamonds in dummy and two spades in his own hand. This was the position:

When Solodar led the king of trumps, the defenders were helpless. East won and returned a trump, but declarer had a counter. He exited with the queen of diamonds. East was forced to ruff, but that was the defenders' last trick. East had to lead a club from his jack and cashed the king for his game-going trick.

CBS' Regular Series Combined To Win Season's Nielsen Crown

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — When almighty Nielsen sends down the official word today, CBS, the network that didn't have "The Thorn Birds," "The Winds of War," the Super Bowl or the World Series, will have won the prime-time ratings competition for the fourth consecutive season.

Much of the credit goes to Mike Wallace, J.R. Ewing, Hawkeye Pierce and Thomas Magnum.

"CBS won because of the strength of their regular series, combined with the performance of their made-for-TV movies," says Bob Iglie vice president for programming and network negotiations at the NW Ayer advertising agency.

Going into the final week of the 29-week season, CBS had the four highest-rated series: "60 Minutes," "Dallas," "M-A-S-H" and "Magnum, P.I." Yet "M-A-S-H" was the only one of CBS' top-rated entertainment shows to win an Emmy award last year.

NBC won more Emmys than either CBS or ABC, and it has the most critically acclaimed new programs this season. Still, NBC is a distant third in the ratings.

So, if plaudits from the pundits isn't what makes CBS so successful, what does?

According to insiders in Hollywood and along Madison Avenue, CBS gives more viewers what they want... and expect.

"The habit of watching television on one network has to be built," says Iglie. "Stability in the schedule is an advantage."

Greg Hoblit, a producer on "Hill Street Blues," says, "We often wonder how high our ratings would be if we were on CBS and not NBC."

"TV is a habit and many people are firmly entrenched in their patterns," says Michael Gleason, executive producer of NBC's "Remington Steele." Gleason says viewers know what to expect from CBS. Shows like "M-A-S-H," "Archie Bunker's Place" and "The Jeffersons" have been successful for a decade.

He says NBC, by comparison, is still reeling from former president Fred Silverman's pinball approach to programming. "When he made decisions like turning 'B.J. and the Bear' into 'B.J. and the Seven Lady Truckers,' it drove viewers away."

Although Gleason says CBS' philosophies can produce stale and predictable TV, it's hard to argue with the success of Bud Grant, president of CBS Entertainment, and his chief programmer, Harvey Shephard. Both executives have been in important management positions at CBS since the early '70s.

"As a seller of programs, it's easiest to figure CBS," says independent producer Deanne Barkley. "CBS is thoroughly professional. There's a continuity of management there, so you know what their likes and dislikes are. You also know they won't take chances."

Not everybody, however, is thrilled with Shephard's programming decisions. "All Harvey understands is research. You can't reach him on any other level," says Gary David Goldberg, executive producer of NBC's "Family Ties," whose "Making the Grade" series was not picked up by CBS last year.

Shephard says research is just one analytical tool. "If you understand research, some say it automatically means you're not creative, and that's ridiculous."

Research, however, is king on Madison Avenue, where they think over-all network ratings are irrelevant. "Buyers don't care who's No.

1," says Iglie. "They buy individual programs and the proper environment."

CBS is No. 1 there with more top-rated programs. But there is disagreement within the TV community whether CBS delivers the best viewer-consumers.

Among viewers 18-49, ABC and its "bubblegum programming" are No. 1, and CBS is second. CBS is No. 1 when counting viewers 25-54.

Shephard says older viewers have more money to spend. "When you compare income, the 18-24 viewer has substantially less buying power," he says.

Many advertisers agree with Shephard. According to the Bureau of Advertising Research, the nine top TV advertisers, making up 25 percent of all TV advertising, divided their dollars this way: 38 percent to CBS, 32.6 percent to ABC and 29.4 percent to NBC.

"If you're talking stability and the 25-54 audience, the blue-chippers went with CBS. CBS has the right image," says one ad executive who requested anonymity. "But if the target is young adults, the winner is ABC. They had more viewers 18-49."

"If I'm trying to get somebody to switch and use my client's product, do I have a better chance with a young audience or one that's older and more set in its ways?"

Family Feud Specials Set

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The clan on an upcoming "Family Feud" television special will be "The Brady Bunch," including actor Robert Reed and actress Florence Henderson. And — Sock! Bam! — their opponents may be Batman and Robin.

Those are just two of the TV families rounded up from eight old series for the "Family Feud" specials to be broadcast the weeks of May 2 and May 9.

The game show specials were taped last week. Each participant will play for his favorite charity.

"I am getting the biggest kick out of this," said Florence Henderson, who played the mother on the "The Brady Bunch" series. Also on hand from "The Brady Bunch" were Reed, Maureen McCormick, Susan Olsen and Christopher Knight.

Bob May — Robbie the Robot on "Lost in Space" — said, "It's not only a joy to see the people you used to work with after a lot of years, but look around this room and see Vincent Price, Gisele MacKenzie and so many others who I'm a fan of. I hope they do me some of these. This is a lot of fun."

Seat Belts To See 'Pay-Offs'

By LEE CREEK
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)

Travelers wearing seat belts in the Chapel Hill-Carrboro area will be getting more than just a safer ride starting today. They'll also be eligible for cash and prizes.

For the next six months the Seat Belt Pay Off program will give those who buckle up a chance to win up to $1,000 from a total purse of $30,000.

"The idea has been around for a long time," said Dr. B.J. Campbell, director of the University of North Carolina Highway Safety Research Center. "It's a well known principle of learning and habit formation found in behavior modification — to use positive incentives."

In this case, the incentives will be small prizes for passengers using seat belts when their car is stopped by the Research Center's staff. Winners will receive a card to fill out making each eligible for a monthly drawing for a $500 prize. After six months, another drawing will be held, with the winner to receiving $1,000.

"We will be in places out of traffic," Campbell said. "Like at the entrances and exits at major parking lots or stores or malls. We'll wave to them and walk over to that car and whoever is buckled up we'll give them a modest prize, such as a six-pack of soft drinks or a T-shirt."

Cars will be stopped at random, he said.

"We pilot tested the idea last year at Chapel Hill High School and at the Blue Cross-Blue Shield headquarters here," Campbell said. "In both cases, seat belt usage went up 60 percent during the program. It later dropped, but nevertheless, it remained at double and triple what it had been before."

At Chapel Hill High School, seat belt usage was 19 percent before the program, rose to 70 percent during the program and remained at 45 percent when the school year ended, he said.

Convicted Of $6,767 Theft

BOONE, N.C. (AP) — A 23-year-old member of the religious group The Way International faces three years in prison for breaking and entering and stealing $6,767 from a restaurant.

David Michael Reilly of Boone was convicted Friday of stealing from Makoto's Japanese Steak House on Nov. 21. He was released Saturday on $25,500 bond and is appealing the sentence.

Reilly was sentenced by Judge John Friday of Lincolnton, who ordered him to serve three years as a committed youthful offender. He was told to get a job within 14 days of his release and pay $5,400 for damages at the restaurant.

Reilly was arrested at The Way headquarters in Boone Dec. 31. The stolen money was never recovered.

'Ultralight' Pilot Injured

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — The pilot of an ultralight plane broke his pelvis and both legs when his craft nosedived into a meadow alongside Mallard Creek in Mecklenburg County.

Authorities said Ronnie Jordan, 35, of Huntersville, underwent surgery Sunday afternoon at Charlotte Memorial Hospital, where he was reported in serious condition.

New Correctional Center At Maury Is Dedicated

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
MAURY — Gov. Jim Hunt and top-ranking Department of Correction officials Monday formally dedicated the $18 million Eastern Correctional Center at Maury.

GOVERNOR HUNT

The center, adjacent to the Greene County prison camp, represents one part of the $110 million expansion statewide to North Carolina's correction system which got under way six years ago. A second complex, the Southern Correctional Center near Troy in Montgomery County, is scheduled to be operational in May. It is identical to the Maury unit.

The 480 medium custody adult males to be housed in five units each holding 96 persons were scheduled to begin transferring into the Maury unit today.

Hunt, who was more than an hour late arriving due to having to take a circuitous route from Charlotte to Kinston because of unfavorable weather, told the audience on hand for the dedication: "This institution is built on a foundation of cooperation and understanding by all of you here today, members of the General Assembly, Greene County Commissioners, District and Superior Court judges, mayors, sheriffs and concerned, involved citizens."

Hunt said North Carolina legislators "had the vision and courage to respond to our state's need for more prison space."

He cited the pressing need to "relieve our overcrowding problem. We have 17,200 inmates in a system designed for 14,800, and that is a serious problem. Our prisons must be secure, and they should be places where criminals can learn to become useful and productive citizens."

Noting that "some prisoners can and should be rehabilitated and reformed," the governor added, "for some, the only answer is a prison cell. Let me make it clear that we in North Carolina are prepared to build all the prisons we need to fight crime, but we cannot afford to build more prisons than we need."

Hunt stressed that prisons are "not the only answer to crime. We must try to turn people, particularly young people, away from the road that eventually leads to prison, and ... 'instill respect for the law.'"

Rae H. McNamara, director of the division of prisons in the Department of Corrections, touched on the "different public opinions and attitudes concerning criminals and prisons." Noting that prisons must be kept in a state of security that will protect society, she added, "This new unit represents a humane, yet practical institution for housing inmates."

"I discovered it's not an easy task putting together plans for a unit such as this. There's a tremendous amount of long, hard work in planning, both for the building itself and for incorporating the programs for the unit. Without the support of Governor Hunt, now and when he was lieutenant-governor, the support given by judges, sheriffs, correctional people and many others, the construction of a modern unit such as this would never have been possible."

David Chester, superintendent of the new Eastern Correctional Center and a nine-year veteran of the Department of Corrections, commented, "This correctional center has great potential to serve as back-up for the eastern area of North Carolina. It is the most secure unit in the east, giving us the ability to lock up, keep out of society those who cannot fit into society and be responsible, law abiding citizens."

"It is my belief this is what prisons basically are for. I also feel it is my responsibility to work with inmates to try to make them better, more productive people. The only way they can be responsible citizens is to learn to live within the law. This is what our programs will be aimed at."

James C. Woodard, secretary of the Department of Corrections, welcomed guests and visitors and introduced each of the speakers. Eastern Correction Center Chaplain David Morton gave the invocation.

Although adjacent to the Greene County prison unit, that unit and the new unit are separate entities. The old unit houses minimum security inmates which includes those on work release and other public programs. The new Eastern Correctional unit will house mostly medium-security inmates with one section to house 96 close custody inmates.

Danny Thompson, Control Unit Manager for Essex, one of the five units, explained that, "unlike the old system where you would have had one prison warden, here there are five control unit managers, each responsible for the 96 inmates assigned to his unit."

Thompson's unit, the most secure of the five, will house close-custody inmates who will be in a lock-up position at all times except for one-hour exercise daily. "There is one unit which will house inmates with mental problems, and the other three are what we call the general population units," Thompson said.

Inmates in the three general population units will be assigned to work within the center, "and will have much more freedom of movement and will be able to mix with other prisoners in community areas of the prison," he said.

The design of Eastern Correctional Center incorporates individual cells of 66 square feet each which contain combination bed and storage unit, a commode, wash basin, light, table and seat. Each cell has a narrow, barless window that offers a view of the prison ground.

Inmates being transferred to Eastern Correctional Center will mostly come from overcrowded units in the eastern part of the state.

Eastern Correctional Center is located on a 37-acre site and is composed of two major buildings — a one-story building of 62,000 feet containing the administrative offices, dental and medical clinics, dining hall and kitchen, gymnasium, academic and training classes and the heating plant. The rear building, of 130,000 square feet, is the two-story inmate housing complex consisting of a central octagonal shaped close custody unit with a trihedral shaped medium custody unit at the left and right side.

Two 10-foot high fences placed 20 feet apart surround the complex, and six guard towers are placed around the fence perimeter and at the main entrance to the center. The towers, which are 36 feet high, will be manned by armed guards.

Face Ruin If Firm Closed

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — More than 100 Duplin County chicken farmers threatened with financial ruin in the wake of a probable hatchery closing have pleaded for time to keep the business alive themselves.

Watson Seafood and Poultry Co. in Rose Hill employs 120 workers. It has close ties to 120 contract growers and 220 employees of a local processing firm and is deep in debt to feed creditors, largely because poultry prices have not kept pace with production costs in the past several years.

Coastal Production Credit Association seized the firm's assets last Tuesday.

"It's going to devastate us, it's going to devastate Duplin County if nothing else transpires," said Ray MaReady of Beulaville, a spokesman for the farmers.

MaReady said that farmers, who held a mass meeting Saturday, have shown overwhelming support for raising funds and taking over the hatchery company themselves.

Liquidation procedures were slated for discussion during a Monday night meeting, but some farmers said liquidation would create a domino effect, costing the employees their jobs and the growers a source for their product.

Probe Series Of Sexual Assaults

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — State Bureau of Investigation agents are probing a series of sexual assaults against sleeping women students at the University of North Carolina.

Six women have been attacked on and off campus since early last month. In each case, a man has awakened a sleeping student, tied her arms, taped her eyes and fondled her. In every case, the assailant has taped his victim's eyes shut to guard his identity, Chapel Hill police said.

None of the victims has been raped or injured, police said. Most of the reported attacks occurred during the university's spring break in early March.

You've got what it takes.
