Beirut Casualties

Reagan Lauds 'Peacemakers'

By E. MICHAEL MYERS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan met the flag-draped coffins of 16 Americans killed in the bombing of the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, consoled weeping family members and lauded the dead as true peacemakers Saturday night in a solemn ceremony inside an Air Force hangar.

"Let us here in their presence serve notice to the cowardly, skulking barbarians in the world that they will not have their way," Reagan declared, his voice choked with emotion.

The bodies arrived at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., aboard a dark green camouflaged Air Force C-141 transport jet, accompanied by a presidential delegation that flew to Lebanon to accompany them home.

"These gallant Americans understood the danger thay faced," Reagan said. "And yet they went willingly to Beirut. The dastardly deed, the act of unparalled cowardice that took their lives, was an attack on all of us, on our way of life and on the values we hold dear," Reagan said.

"We would indeed fail them if we let thut act deter us from carrying on their mission of brotherhood and peace."

The victims' coffins were lined up side by side below a large American flag inside a silvery gray hangar as a light rain fell outside. Members of the victims' families stood on one side, representatives of the government agencies for which they worked on the other.

"It is written, 'Blessed be the peacemakers,' and they truly were peacemakers," Reagan said. "They knew the road they traveled was hard and fraught with peril. They walked that road with cool professionalism and a deep sense of purpose."

Accreditation Report Given

East Carolina University officials conferred in Washington last week with representatives of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education over action needed by ECU to reacquire accreditation for its teacher education programs.

Coble, professor of science edcuation, will become acting dean of the school of education and coordinator of teacher education effective May 6.

In the conference with Christensen, "we reported steps that we already have taken toward having an NCATE visitation team come back within the next academic year," Volpe said.

This team would review status of the technical problems in governance which an NCATE team visited ECU last November cited in a report issued on March 4. That report

Attorney Says Evans 'Was Burned Alive'

Execution Requires Three Tries

By GARRY MITCHELL
Associated Press Writer

ATMORE, Ala. (AP) — Prison officials could not explain Saturday why it took 10 minutes and three jolts of electricity to execute convicted murderer John Louis Evans III in what his lawyer called "a barbaric ritual."

"John Evans was burned alive ... by the state of Alabama," attorney Russell F. Canan said of Friday night's execution. "John Evans was tortured in the name of vengeance and the disguise of justice."

After the U.S. Supreme Court dissolved a last-minute stay of execution granted by a federal judge, Evans' head was shaved, he was dressed in a white cotton uniform and taken the 25 steps from his Death Row cell to "Big Yellow Mama," Alabama's electric chair at Holman Prison.

The 33-year-old condemned man appeared calm as he was strapped in the brightly painted electric chair and the death warrant was read. A skull cap of electrodes was fitted on his head, his chin was strapped tight to the chair back and his face covered by a black mask that draped over his chest.

The first 30-second surge of 1,900 volts of electricity came at 8:30 p.m. CST. Evans tensed and the electrode on his left leg snapped off. The second jolt came at 8:33 p.m. Evans did not move, but a puff of smoke and a small tongue of flame burst from the leather strap on his left temple. Doctors said he still was not dead.

Canan, a witnesses to he execution, then sought clemency from Gov. George C. Wallace, saying the protracted execution was "cruel and unusual." The governor's office quickly reported back that Wallace would not intervene.

The third surge of electricity was administered at 8:40 p.m., and Evans was declared dead four minutes later.

Prison spokesman Ron Tate said he could not explain why the first jolt did not kill Evans.

"He was dead for all practical purposes after the second ... He never knew what hit him after the first one," Tate said. "Why it took more than one, I don't know."

He said the electric chair had been tested every day last week with gauges to make sure it had a high enough current level.

"This was supposed to be a very clean manner of administering death," Tate said.

Time

If you didn't reset your clock early Sunday morning, it may be later than you think.

The annual switch to daylight saving time is 2 a.m. Sunday, except for those in Arizona, Hawaii and portions of Indiana.

If you have to get up by the clock, you lose an hour of sleep, but you'll gain an hour on the last Sunday of October when you've made the hands of your clock "fall back."

Leaf Festival Aids Economy

The 1982 Southern Flue-Cured Tobacco Festival and the Tobaco Farmer Show contributed nearly $3.7 million to the Pitt-Greenville economy, according to a recent economic impact study conducted by the East Carolina University Regional Development Institute.

Attendance at the 1982 week-long event exceeded 46,000 local, commuter and overnight visitors, the study said. The average per-day, per-visitor expenditure, the institute reported, ranged from $10 to $62, which translates into an estimated contribution of over $60 income per resident of Pitt County.

Based on a registration sample taken at the Tobacco Farmer Show, the attendance was classified as follows: local, 69 percent; commuter, 13 percent; overnight, 18 percent.

Gene Akins of Catalytic Generator Inc., who is serving his second year as president of the Tobacco Festival, said the study is "indicative of the importance of tobacco to our region and of the growth of the Tobacco Festival and Tobacco Farmer Show."

According to Kay Warren, the festival's executive director, the festival has grown in five years from "a local event held in conjunction with the Tobacco Farmer Show to a regional celebration for the tobacco industry."

For example, said Ms. Warren, the festival board of directors includes agricultural leaders from not only North Carolina, but South Carolina, Virginia, Florida and Georgia.

Akins and Ms. Warren, who announced the results of the Institute's economic lompact study at this year's first Tobacco Festival executive committee meeting, project another "record-breaking year in 1983."

Further plans will be announced at the first Board of Directors meeting in April.

Schools' Buses Normally Safe

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The drivers receive special training. The passengers are told how to behave. The vehicles are inspected every day. Still, school bus accidents happen.

During the 1981-1982 school year, school buses in Pitt County and the city of Greenville traveled 1,553,446 miles carrying students between home and school. On an average day some 10,500 students will ride.

The cost of operating the fleet for the last school year was just over $1 million.

Last school year, school buses were involved in 25 traffic accidents; that's involving everything from "$5 on up," according to Rodney Bullock, who heads the transportation system in the county. So far this year, there have been 13 bus accidents.

There are 199 active routes — each requiring one bus — and five buses carrying handicapped children in operation each school day.

The buses range from the the small 15-passenger minibus to large 60-passenger vehicles. And state law allows the buses to carry 25 percent more passengers than the seating capacity — so a 60-passenger bus can carry up to 75 students.

Bus drivers are trained by Department of Motor Vehicles driver-training representatives from a special handbook for school bus drivers.

The drivers must be at least 16½ years old, and must not have had a traffic ticket in the past six months.

Prospective drivers are given two days of training, then must pass a special written exam. If they successfully pass the exam, they are then given two days of on-the-road driving time before they are licensed to drive a bus.

All the buses are equipped with a first aid kits and fire

Rain Falls On Sidewalk Art Show

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

For the first time in many years, the traditional bright sunshine spring Saturday that usually occurs on the Greenville Sidewalk Art Show day failed to materialize.

This year, because of threatening skies early in the morning, the crowds were slow in arriving at the Greenville Museum of Art's annual showcase day of art and entertainment that took place Saturday. However, as the gray skies held fast without rain, local people became optimistic and ventured forth, many with young children in strollers or carried in their arms. By 11 a.m., the grounds around the museum on Evans Street began to take on the crowded look of past years, and by noon, the atmosphere was festive depiste the lingering threat of showers.

Finally, just before 2 p.m., a light shower dispersed most of the celebrants and a decision was made to dismantle the outdoor art displays.

The four-hour no-rain period fortunately provided suffient time for lots of children to take part in favorite activities — having their hands and faces painted with colorful designs; making pots and stringing beads of jewelry from trays of brilliant beads; cutting paper and pasting designs on boxes to create a children's totem pole; and assembling on-the-spot sweets of peanut butter and small marshmallows spread on big flat cookies.

Nearly all the entertainers, too, were able to present their acts — Ayden-Grifton's mime group, The Curtain Players; the Sheppard Library puppeteers who enthralled young audiences with nervous puppets telling their stories; the young musicians of the Suzuki Violinists; the Marie Wallace dancers; and Christopher Dean's percussion concert. Inside the museum, visitors listened to the periodic mini-concerts presented by the Vocal Chamber Ensemble of Greenville. The only ones whose appearance was affected by the rain were Billy and Sandra Stinson, a husband and wife performing team, the last act on the entertainment schedule.

Again this year, art entries considered for the annual prizes and awards were brought in prior to Saturday, judged and placed on exhibit in the museum's south galleries prior to the opening of the sidewalk show. Twenty-six works were given merit awards, and three were chosen for purchase awards, in addition to the top four works which received cash awards.

The best in show award, which carries a cash prize of $350, was given to a mixed-ceramics and glass work by Dawn E. Enochs titled "Bridge Rhythms." An acrylic painting by Donald Foster, "City Ice House," received the second place, $200 cash award. Jerry Jackson's ceramic sculpture, "Gash Colored," was the recipient of the third place, $150 award; and a mixed-media work by John Boone, "Another Common Fault in Painting," took the fourth place, $100 cash prize.

Works selected for purchase awards were: Alice Stallings' watercolor, "The Oceans Quiet Roar," for the Quixote Purchase Award; J.C. Snifen's mixed-media piece, "San Vital," the Rufus V. and Bertha C. Keel award; and a drawing, "Landscape" by David Norris, the Pamlico/Tar River Association award.

These prize winners along with the merit award winners will be on view at the Greenville Museum of Art through the coming week.

Buster Crabbe Dies At Age 75

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Buster Crabbe, a former Olympic swimming champion who went on to star in movies as Tarzan and Flash Gordon, died Saturday at his home in this Phoenix suburb. He was 75.

He had "had a little heart problem over the years," but five minutes before he died he was making plans to attend an arthritis telethon in Nashville, Tenn., and "didn't have any pain anyplace," said his wife, Virginia.

Crabbe, who called himself "King of the Serials," once remarked that he made only one A picture, "King of the Jungle," in which he portrayed the Lion Man. He said the rest were sub-Bs or serials, including his movie roles as "Buck Rogers" and "Flash Gordon."

"I made nine of them, more than anyone else in talkies," Crabbe once boasted of his serials. "Only William Desmond made more — 10 silent serials. I did three 'Flash Gordons,' two 'Tarzans,' a 'Buck Rogers,' plus 'Pirates of the High Seas,' 'Red Barry' and 'Sea Hound.'

"We knocked off 13 chapters in five to six weeks and didn't allow for much dramatic skill. Some say that my acting rose to the point of incompetence and then leveled off."

BUSTER CRABBE

Crabbe said in a 1980 interview that neither he nor the legendary Johnny Weissmuller, moviedom's first talking Tarzan, ever gave a successful rendition of Tarzan's jungle call.

Student Dies From Liver Infection

Complications stemming from a liver infection were blamed for the death of an East Carolina University student Thursday, according to Pitt County Medical Examiner Stan harris.

Dr. Harris said tests indicated that Robbie Sue Gregory of Raleigh suffered from a bacteria-related disease for at least two weeks. The type of bacteria has not been determined, but Harris said it is not thought to be communicable. Additional laboratory tests to identify the bacteria should be complete by next week.

Preliminary tests ruled out hepatitis and virus-related diseases.

According to ECU officials, Miss Gregory, a 22-year-old junior education major, had been with other students when she became ill Wednesday evening. She died at Pitt County Memorial Hospital Thursday where she was taken after being treated for a high fever at the ECU Student Health Center.

Twenty-eight Greenville students will participate in the finals of the second annual Talent Extravaganza to be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Wahl-Coates School.

Included on the program will be violin selections, piano renditions, dance routines, skits and poetry readings.

Prizes will be awarded by American Legion Post 160 which is co-sponsoring the event in observance of April as Children and Youth Month.

Oil Suit Filed

Five eastern North Carolina couples have filed suit in federal court in Raleigh to recover money lost in an oil drilling scheme.

The couples said they were "bilked" out of $600,000 over the past two years.

The suit alleges that Elma Speight Farmer of Sharpesburg and Eugene S. Stone of Rocky Mount made false calims to the five couples about three oil drilling ventures that resulted in the loss of $600,000 the couples invested in the projects.

Most of the investors were farmers who used money they could "ill-afford" to loose, according to Charles L. McLawhorn, Greenville attorney, who is representing some of the plaintiffs in the suit.

"Many invested their life savings ... money they had set aside for future security," McLawhorn said.

Among those investing in the first oil venture were James W. Harrell and Shirley V. Harrell of Pitt County who put up $30,000; Harvey Pridgen and Hazel Pridgen of Nash County, $200,000; Mr. and Mrs. Clay T. Strickland of Nash County, $50,000; and Mark D. Pridgen and Kay Pridgen of Wilson County, $25,000.

Secretaries Mark Week

Mayor Percy R. Cox has proclaimed April 24-30 "Professional Secretaries Week" and Wednesday as "Professional Secretaries Day" in Greenville.

The week is sponsored and was originated by Professional Secretaries International.

Nila L. Bland, president of the organization's Greenville chapter, said the local observance would begin Monday with a meeting of secretaries and a reception on Tuesday at the Holiday Inn.

Dr. Eddie West, superintendent of Pitt County schools, will speak at an awards session Wednesday afternoon at the Greenville Country Club. Awards will be presented to the secretary of the year and to the outstanding member of the year.

Ms. Bland said the secretaries and their bosses will gather for a breakfast at the Holiday Inn on Friday. The observance will conclude with a seminar in Kinston Saturday on "Time Management."

Food Surpluses Transferral May Be Helpful

Transfer of responsibility for distributing surplus cheese and butter to the Pitt County Agricultural Extension office makes sense in a lot of ways.

As County Manager Reginald Gray observed, with all the responsibilities carried by the Department of Social Services, that office deserved an easing of its burdens, especially in light of plans to step up the distribution to a monthly basis.

It may be, too, that more people truly in need will take advangage of the program if it is administered by the Extension Office rather than Social Services.

Certainly, the Social Services office and its small army of volunteers deserve the highest praise for its efficiency and conscientious efforts in food distribution.

The suggestion, too, that additional foods may become available would pose an even greater effort for the staff.

Now the Extension Office faces the task of finding the manpower and establishing an efficient system for distribution, and certainly it will need assistance in this.

It's far better the nation's food surpluses be given to those in need than be allowed to pile up in ever-increasing stockpiles of unused, undisposable wealth.

Chamber Shows Area Gratitude With Reception

Receptions are commonplace in Raleigh, especially those given for legislators. There are legislators who seldom buy a dinner, hopping from reception to reception each night.

But a reception such as that given by the Pitt-Greenville Chamber of Commerce Wednesday is exceptional in that so many legislators appeared. Chamber officials say all but two of the 50 state senators and 100 of the 120 representatives put in an appearance. When you consider the competition for legislators' time, that's truly amazing.

We also consider it to be representative of the esteem held in the General Assembly for Pitt County, its legislators, its people and its way of life.

Chamber President Ed Walker described the $15,000 reception, held at the Raleigh Hilton, as a "thank you" for such "stuff" as East Carolina University, Pitt Community College and the ECU School of Medicine.

Pitt County and Greenville has fared well, thanks to the ongoing hard work of its citizens and the resulting flow of state monies back to this area.

A thank you was in order and, in retrospect, it appears the chamber did an excellent job of expressing this area's gratitude. It is equally appreciated that the legislators were there to accept that gratitude.

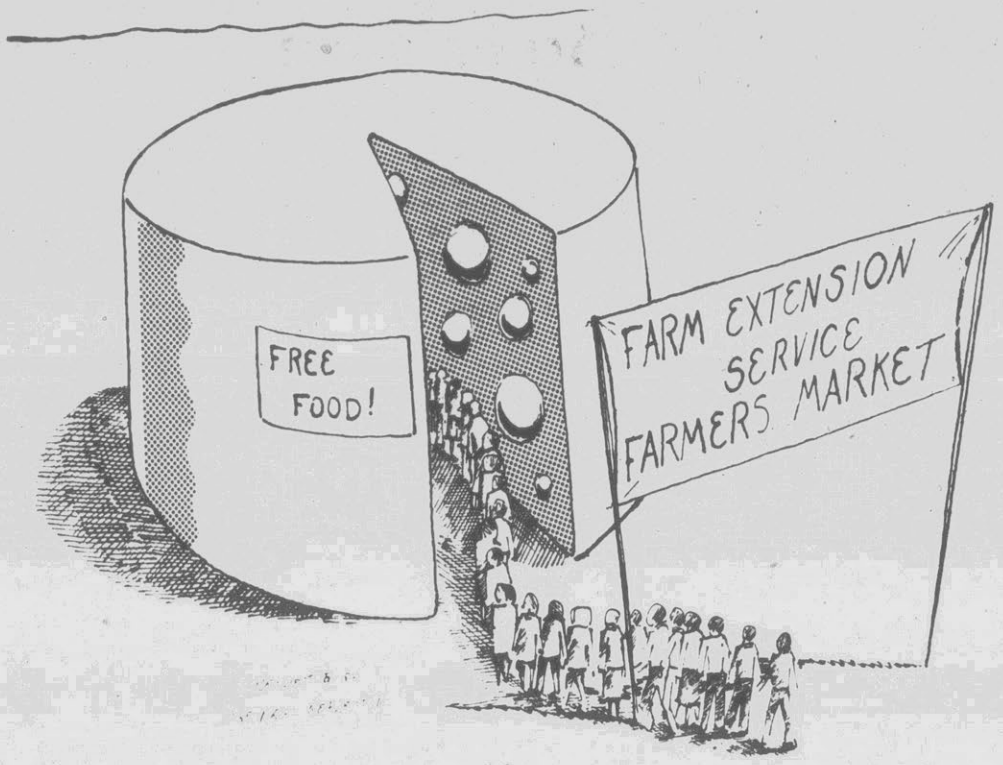

The reception was costly — although the 211 local residents who paid $50 each to attend did a tremendous job of offsetting the expense — but the returns already have been outstanding and those in the future may be even greater.

Sunday Morning Notes

Thursday was your columnist's birthday. Never mind how many years it marked. The family records were lost when the Yankees burned the mansion.

Anyway, I left for work from Quail Ridge Condominiums at the usual hour. I swung the car out on Greenville Boulevard and headed toward 10th Street. A neighbor drove past, tooted the horn and waved cheerfully. I waved back.

I turned onto 10th Street. Another horn sounded and I waved again. As I moved down 10th still another horn sound. I squinted in the mirror and didn't recognize the driver. At Elm and the stoplight still another horn sounded and I decided there must be a lot of drivers trying to get somebody's attention. It went that way all the way to the newspaper parking lot. I parked the car and went to work, promptly forgetting the horn tooting.

Soon William Webb, who handles various jobs at the newspaper office, came by to tell me I ought to take a look at the back of my car. I did so and I immediately understood the horn tooting.

A large sign had been posted on the back. It read: "Honk. It's My Birthday."

And what was that on April 19? Snow when it should be spring?

In Pitt County, at least, the snow was spotty and none of it remained. It definitely fell, however, in flurries which would have been exciting in January.

The Goldsboro News-Argus in its front page story said "Snow Stuns Wayne Area."

"Wayne County residents expressed disbelief when they saw snow falling Monday afternoon and this morning," the story said. "Some older residents said they cannot remember when it snowed here this late in April, but there was one report that it happened 44 years ago in 1939."

The News-Argus commented editorial that day, "This is the prettiest season of the year for Goldsboro and Wayne County. The azaleas and dogwoods are at their peak."

The editorial advised readers to take a break and drive through residential areas of the city.

Well, that particular day might have not been the best choice for a spring ride, but Goldsboro and Wayne are beautiful at this time of year and we are certain they will be even after the cold and snow are gone.

Whether spring is here in fact or not, Daylight time is. All of us should have set our clocks forward an hour last night, which means we lost an hour's sleep. And if we get up at the old time tomorrow, it means we will be an hour late for work.

Anyway, in exchange for the lost hour we get an hour's extra daylight in the evening from now through October. Enjoy it!

Presidential Itch

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State George Shultz has quietly ordered a top-to-bottom review of U.S. restrictions on technological exports to China, a certain signal of President Reagan's desire to visit Peking before the 1984 presidential campaign.

That presidential itch for China has not been at all lessened by recent U.S.-Chinese unpleasantness over political asylum granted defecting tennis player Hu Na. White House political strategists believe a Russian trip by Reagan would be more rewarding for his 1984 re-election effort than a Chinese journey, particularly if linked to an arms control treaty. But the president's desire to visit the mysterious East surpasses any yen to see the Kremlin during the next 18 months, something Reagan considers unlikely in any event.

Returning from the April 9-10 weekend with Reagan at Camp David, Shultz ordered a review to consider possible relaxation of present restrictions on export to China of American technology. While less severe than comparable curbs on trade with the Soviet Union, regulations now limit technology transfer in nuclear weapons, anti-submarine warfare, advanced electronics and intelligence collection and processing.

Volcker Must Go!

Republican sentiment against reappointment by President Reagan of Paul Volcker as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board has been swelled by the influential House minority whip, Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi.

Lott, a figure of rising importance in the House who usually reflects the views of junior GOP congressmen, has informed a senior presidential aide that it is politically imperative for the president to have his own man heading the central bank before the 1984 election. The staffer responded that he and his colleagues generally share Lott's view but that no decision had yet been made.

A footnote: The principal advocate inside the administration of getting rid of Volcker is Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan. That puts him in direct confrontation with Martin Feldstein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, who has pushed hard for Volcker's reappointment.

Deaver VS. Withholding

Although White House deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver is usually regarded by the Right as the villain turning Ronald Reagan into a moderate, he has been a quiet ally of conservatives trying to cool the president's passion for tax withholding on dividend and interest income.

As the supreme pragmatist, Deaver sees no utility in pursuing the widely unpopular withholding scheme. But Reagan' discarding Deaver's counsel, has been a passionate advocate against repealing the new tax method.

Abuse Of Power

WASHINGTON — Back in November 1980, you may recall, the Consumer Product Safety Commission issued a dramatic press release. The handout warned that urea-formaldehyde foam insulation (UFFI) carries a risk of causing cancer in humans. An estimated 500,000 homes had been so insulated, and more than a thousand small businesses were then engaged in UFFI installation.

The businessmen protested bitterly — indeed, desperately — that there was no convincing evidence to justify such a warning. The commission had acted in large part upon the basis of a study involving rats that had been exposed to massive doses of formaldehyde fumes. The installers said the study was flawed. They begged the commission to act, if at all, under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act, which would give them an opportunity in a formal hearing to challenge the evidence.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission proved adamant. Months went by. The bottom dropped out of the UFFI business. Dozens of installers went into bankruptcy. Finally, in April 1982, the commission issued a rule banning formaldehyde insulation in schools and homes. The surviving installers brought suit, and now, almost exactly a year later, the makers and installers of UFFI have been vindicated. On April 7, the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals vacated the rule.

It is hard to tell the story calmly, for the sequence of events provides an outrageous example of the abuse of bureaucratic power. In retrospect, it is clear that there never was any justification for the actions taken by the commission. This was zealotry, pure and simple.

As the court pointed out, formaldehyde is among the most universal of all chemical compounds. It has been in widespread commercial use for almost a century. It turns up in shampoo, toothpaste, cosmetics, paper towels, plywood, particle board and textiles. "It is present in every cell in the human body and in the atmosphere." No study ever has demonstrated that persons regularly exposed to formaldehyde — notably the workers in plants producing 7 billion pounds of the chemical every year — have any unusual incidence of cancer.

In the study chiefly relied upon by the commission, the test animals were subjected for two years to "average" levels of 14.3 parts per million formaldehyde for six hours a day, five days a week. Because rats breathe only through their noses, it could not have been surprising that 103 of the rats developed nasal carcinomas. But this "average" was deceptive. The rats in fact were exposed regularly to much higher doses. "The average daily high was a near-lethal 32.4 per million." By contrast, a University of Iowa study found an average level of .059 parts per million in UFFI homes.

The commission also relied upon tests of simulated wall panels, but these fabricated panels bore only a superficial resemblance to actual houses. The commission said it had investigated 350 homes whose occupants had complained of sneezing, coughing and wheezing after UFFI had been installed, but on careful examination it apeared that little cause-and-effect proof had been adduced. Some of the commission's evidence as to irritants, said the court, "is worth exactly nothing."

The commission's ban covered not only homes but also schools. But only one complaint ever was received about UFFI in a school, and that complaint was never investigated. "The ban in schools was completely unsubstantiated ... The record clearly demonstrated that the commission never made any real attempt to address the risk of UFFI in buildings other than homes."

The commission is expected to appeal the unanimous decision of the three-judge court, but such further litigation would smack more of vindictiveness than of hope for reversal. The palpable truth is that the commission acted from the beginning on little more than suspicion and surmise, unsupported by substantial evidence. Not a single case of UFFI cancer in humans ever was cited. About all the bureaucracy has demonstrated in this dismal case, as the bankrupted installers can attest, is that the power to regulate involves the power to destroy.

Notice

RALEIGH — If it hadn't been for a friend who saw a court calandar, Barbara Chalmers may have never known that one of her children had been arrested for misdemeanor drug charges. The friend called her a week before her 17-year-old was scheduled to appear in court.

The youngster had planned to make his appearance and he hoped to do so without his parents ever knowing he'd been arrested.

Mrs. Chalmers' experience has prompted a Raleigh legislator to introduce legislation requiring police to inform parents when a 16-or 17-year-old is charged with a crime. Rep. Aaron Fussell, D-Wake, says that as long as these children are considered to be legally under the control of their parents, the parents ought to be made aware that their children are in trouble.

Children under 16 who are arrested are handled by Juvenile Court counselors. They inform the parents. But, for those 16 and 17, there is no notification requirement. Fussell said he was surprised to learn this. Mrs. Chalmers, who got her name in a Raleigh newspaper when the bill was introduced, said she's had numerous calls from parents who weren't notified when their children were arrested.

Some police departments, as a matter of policy, go ahead and call parents. But even in these departments, Fussell said, some cases are missed and parents never find out about their children. His bill would simply make it a requirement that police notify the parents within 72 hours of the arrest.

"From the time my children were very young, they have had the total support of their father and me," Mrs. Chalmers told the House Judiciary I Committee. In this case, "We were, in a sense, denied the opportunity to give that extra love and support to our child."

The middle teen years of 16 and 17 are tough on parent-child relationships, Mrs. Chalmers said. Even in families where parents and kids get along well, children tend to stop communicating when they hit 16.

"They are going to try to go it alone even if you have a good relationship. Either they are going to say that will kill mom and dad, or, if there's a bad relationship, they'll say mom and dad don't care, anyhow," she said.

Outside of the parents' simple right to know that the cops have arrested a child, there are legal rights involved in this question. Rep. Annie Kennedy, D-Forsyth, a lawyer, said youngsters often give statements to the police right after they're arrested. Their parents, if informed, might be able to get them a lawyer quickly who could stop them from making incriminating statements.

As Mrs. Chalmers said, youngsters with jobs might have the money to pay the fine so, in their haste to get the case over with, they'll pay off. But maybe if they'd had the lawyer their parents could have provided, they wouldn't be found guilty in the first place.

Fussell's bill, for all the sense it makes, has problems. Rep. Harry Payne, D-New Hanover, pointed out two.

In tourist areas, plenty of kids get arrested for minor offenses. Are tourist area police to be expected to start calling all around the state and the country trying to track down parents?

Secondly, Payne asked what the police are supposed to do in cases where the youngster refuses to talk. He has a right to remain silent. What do you do when he won't tell you who his parents are or where they live?

The chairman of the House committee feels strongly enough about those problems that he's sent the bill to a subcommittee where it is expected to be rewritten.

Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The recent hearing on the perennial issue of televising the Senate brought out some of the most articulate spokesmen imaginable on both sides of the issue.

Yet for all the glibness of Sens. Howard Baker, Charles Mathias and Daniel Moynihan, allied with Walter Cronkite in favor of television, and Sens. Russell Long, Wendell Ford and John Stennis, allied with George Will against television, the wise decision was as elusive as other.

The question boils down to one of open government vs. show business.

Will the day's great issues be magnified into greater public understanding in a forum where cameras will draw most of the usually absent 100 members who would then actually listen to debate and vote, afraid of being seen as windbags?

Or will senators use the presence of cameras on the floor to make longer speeches, to run for re-election, to simplify issues into the 30-second "sound bite" that evening newscasts parcel out for colorful oratory?

Will television inspire uplifting oratory and courage as exhibited during the Webster-Clay debates of a century and a half ago? Or will courage dissipate under the glare of lights with senators more often taking the popular position, instead of the right position?

Who will run the cameras? The Senate? which would focus only on the person speaking. Or the journalists? who would show empty chairs, members reading newspapers and the frantic arm-twisting that prevails in the aisle on every close vote.

The answers are not clear until television is tried, at least on an experimental basis.

The most serious argument against television is that unlike the House, where cameras were installed four years ago, the Senate has unlimited debate and long periods of inactivity that are built into the schedule. Showing an empty chamber, or a printed statement that a "quorum call" is in progress, would not put the Senate in a good light, opponents argue. Neither would showing the interminable debate.

But the questions surrounding television are larger than just ones of informing the public. They go to the very nature of the Senate itself, a purposely slow-moving body whose members believe themselves to be more statesmanlike, and less overtly political, than House members.

Perhaps both sides will find satisfaction in a report issued by former Sens. James Pearson of Kansas and Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut calling for wide-ranging reforms of Senate procedures and rules.

They would have television coverage only on signficant issues, which would have been scheduled well in advance. And in a revolutionary recommendation, which senators seem to be embracing, they would prohibit any speech from being read and require every speech to be relevant.

That would both shorten debate and enforce eloquence. Those who cannot think on their feet would not grandstand before the cameras. Those who can could not monopolize the lens.

The irony of the latest hearing is that Mathias, the chief sponsor of television, scheduled the hearings not for his tiny committee room but for an auditorium that serves as the Senate's largest room. The audience was of average size, but the big room was chosen to accommodate the eight television camera crews that showed up to cover it.

And opponents of television made their best case in terms most likely to be shown on television.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., took up about 30 seconds cogently complaining that television will rule the Senate, that members will learn to say only those things that can be neatly summarized in half a minute. He took about 30 seconds to make his point.

And Stennis, the dean of the Senate at 81 years old, a man who exercises his power out of the spotlight, opposed television, conceding, "They've been nice enough to me. But television, by its nature, is partly show business," he said, raising his voice, pounding the table and enhancing the television value of his performance.

Open government or show business? Statesmanship or politics? Deliberation or colorful oratory? There's nothing in the Constitution, the political science books or the journalistic credo that says you can't have them all.

Public Forum

To the editor:

Being a tobacco farmers wife, I may not be the best known wife in the nation's capital. I spend my time on the farm, not pounding the halls of Congress. I'm usually found clad in jeans and may not be as articulate or as confident as a former high school president. But, I'm here to tell you that I'm tired of reading about those who are using these tactics to destroy a system that is in need of reform, not removal.

Feeling very frustrated each January during lease and transfer period, I will agree that the program is in need of reform. I also feel frustreated in the fall at the warehouse, trying to arouse interest among buyers in our tobacco. This would be magnified many times without a federal price support system. Being vulnerable in the warehouse is not a pleasureable feeling after a year of borrowing money and hard work getting the crop in. That would be our devastating position after removal of the price support. I also do not like allotments in the hands of non-farmers. But does not a life-time farmer have the bight to provide for his wife and children, after his death, by giving them an income from the allotments that he has worked during his lifetime?

There are those of us who farm tobacco under the present system and are not going bankrupt. But, we are being squeezed between high production costs, lease costs and competition in the world market. We are surviving only through good management, sound judgement and by not taking uncalculated risks. I feel that with regard to those who have not survived, all has not been said about their efforts to farm in a sensible manner to avoid financial ruin.

I know that all citizens of Pitt County realize that we tobacco farmers are consumers, that we do our share of supporting local economy and we would like to continue doing so in the future.

Schools Offer Short Cut To Security

Maxwell Glen and Cody Shearer

WASHINGTON — Most any American born after 1945 probably knows that television irreparably damaged the moviehouse business. Once Americans began to watch movies and other entertainment in the comfort of their living rooms, fewer bothered with the cost and inconvenience of theaters.

A similar movement toward direct service now haunts, of all industries, higher education. Rather than enter a traditional four-year college or a graduate school, a growing number of students each year are choosing a school owned and financed by an American corporation. Some might call it a short-cut to job security.

Of course, ever since General Motors established its "institute" in Flint, Mich., 64 years ago to produce auto engineers at assembly line speed, American businessmen have often donned the robes and mortar boards of university deans. But the declining competence of college graduates and rising cost of retraining them have led many more companies to establish their own degree programs. The working assumption is that the corporate college can better train potential employees than traditional academic institutions.

According to the American Council on Education, 140 U.S. companies — from American Telephone and Telegraph to Mr. Steak, Inc. — now offer academic credit for an aggregate of 2,250 courses. Before the decade is out, employers could be perusing resumes that boast a "Bachelor of Science, Security Pacific Bank, 1989."

As yet, the Ivory Tower's new rival poses no mortal threat to its long-standing ascendancy. Most corporate colleges still cannot award degrees (in most cases an insufficient array of course offerings and library volumes hinders accreditation). In fact some, like (McDonald's) Hamburger University, now seeking accreditation, encourage their charges to enroll in humanities courses at local community colleges.

Meanwhile, the typical corporate course offering — "Better Business Letters," "Advanced Business Equipment" and "Food and Beverage Cost Control Services" — wouldn't throw a scare into Yale's Bartlett Giatmatti or Notre Dame's Theodore Hesburgh. On the whole, traditional colleges remain much more deadly earnest.

Yet the corporate dons are decidedly serious about filling a gap, not only for their employees but for anyone seeking college-level training. At the graduate level, moreover, they see an enormous opportunity to meet company needs. For instance, Wang Computer's three-year-old Institute of Graduate Studies conferred its first five masters degrees in "software engineering" last spring. While the institute's enrollment is still only 35, both faculty and students know that the highly-specialized Wang degree is worth more than the paper on which it's printed.

Academia's response to the corporate college try has been understandably confused. While many institutions, particularly large research universities, have recently boosted efforts to arrange agreements with corporations for both grants and contracts, they've otherwise ignored the potential of corporate colleges. The inaction mirrors academia's schizophrenic approach to its task: anxious to both prepare students for gainful vocation while purveying more timeless lessons beyond profit and loss.

Yet it would be unwise to underestimate the drawbacks of a corporate-educated work force. Corporate-sponsored schools will likely turn out highly-specialized technicians trained to do the company's bidding and earn its pay, but unable to see — much less probe — beyond a narrow expertise. One need not be a Mr. Chips to worry about the impact of assembly-line minds on industrial creativity aud national productivity.

Social Security Spawns No Awards

Christopher Connell

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the thick of the internecine party warfare over Social Security two years ago, House Minority Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois remarked there were no Medals of Honor to be won — only Purple Hearts.

At a windswept ceremony on the White House lawn last week, President Reagan signed the landmark Social Security rescue bill and gave Michel and eight other power-brokers from Congress their reward — not Purple Hearts, but souvenir signing pens.

In hindsight, the bipartisan compromise to bail out the system appears relatively painless, both for the politicians and prominent citizens who hammered out its planks and the public who will pay the $16£ billion price tag.

It wasn't, and it won't be.

But the pact fairly spreads the pain among active and retired workers. The tax increases for employers and employees are modest — but they come on top of a payroll tax that, counting the employers' share; already takes a bigger bite out of more Americans' paychecks than federal income taxes. The increases are much steeper for the self-employed, but with cause; until now they have paid less for the same benefits than other workers.

The 160,242,000 Americans age 4£ or younger — 69 percent — will have to wait from two months to two years longer to retire to draw full Social Security benefits in the next century.

The six-month benefit freeze will cost a typical beneficiary $14 a month from July to January, or $84 overall. The loss will not stop there. The system will never provide a catch-up increase for the six months skipped, so benefits to current recipients will always be a little lower. The 36 million current beneficiaries stand to lose more than $1,000 apiece between now and the end of 1989.

But a typical retiree now gets nearly $£,000 a year from Social Security and can expect to draw roughly $42,000 — including $7,000 in cost-of-living increases — during those seven years, even with this year's crimp.

In all likelihood, these reforms will guarantee that the system will be able to deliver those benefits on time this July, next year and for decades to come. The experts expect the margin of safety to be thin in the mid-1980s, but sufficient.

The public may want to reserve judgment on whether in fact Social Security has been fixed this time. The Medicare trust fund is headed for the rocks in a few years, but at least a search for a solution is under way.

Social Security's cash benefits are unquestionably on a sounder footing than in 1977 when Congress enacted the last bailout and President Carter proclaimed that the legislation "guarantees that from 1980 through 2030 the Social Security system will be sound."

In 1977, Congress was wrestling with a long-term deficit four times the size of the shortfall that confronted the lawmakers this year. Back then the lawmakers called it quits after wiping out about 80 percent of the deficit; this time they moved to close the entire gap.

The 1977 amendments reduced future benefits considerably, but only to correct a flaw in the cost-of-living formula that was making the system overly generous. The brunt of that bailout came in the form of what was then the biggest peacetime tax increase in history: $227 billion over 10 years.

This new rescue plan is rife with higher taxes and backdoor general revenue financing, but it also curbs the growth of benefits. Raising the retirement age by two years is tantamount to a 12 percent benefit cut. Taxing half the benefits of middle- and upper-income retirees is another form of cut.

The plan includes a standby mechanism — albeit a watered down one — to reduce cost-of-living increases if the trust funds run low.

Future presidents and Congresses will still have Social Security problems to wrestle with, including some with a twist, such as whether to allow the old-age fund to build up the huge surpluses anticipated for several decades after 1990.

The tax on benefits will eventually hit almost everybody, for the thresholds are not indexed to inflation. Workers accustomed to making tax-free contributions to Individual Retirement Accounts eventually will demand an end to making people pay income tax on top of Social Security taxes.

But as Reagan told his political adversaries and allies, gathered for once in unison, "None of us here today would pretend that this bill is perfect ... But the essense of bipartisanship is to give up a little in order to get a lot. And, my fellow Americans, I think we've gotten a very great deal."

Bills

Gene Wang

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — The Administrative Office of the Courts has received more than $1 million in unpaid legal bills in the seven weeks since funds ran out for a state program providing defense lawyers for the poor.

Court officials have asked Gov. Jim Hunt for a $3.1 million emergency appropriation from the General Assembly to get the indigent defense program through the fiscal year ending June 30, but the request has not been presented to the Legislature.

John A. Williams, Hunt's executive assistant and the state Budget Officer, said the legislation has been prepared and will be introduced soon.

"It is just a matter of finding time so I can get away" and meet with legislative leaders to "grease the skids" for passage, said Williams, who has been tied up working on Hunt's anti-drunken driving package and other matters.

As of last Monday, the court system's unpaid legal bills totaled $1,077,466.19 and involved payment orders issued by judges for £,973 bills submitted by lawyers appointed to represent clients who could not hire their own attorneys.

Franklin Freeman, the state court administrator, said he is not concerned about the delay, but his office has begun receiving inquiries from lawyers awaiting payment.

"Actually it's been somewhat surprising we have not had any more calls than we've had," Freeman said. "The attorneys seem to be recognizing the situation and they are carrying the load."

One inquiry came from Sen. George Marion, D-Surry, who said a young lawyer from his district had called asking about overdue payments for legal services.

"I didn't realize until yesterday what the situation was," Marion said. "If we passed legislation saying we're going to pay these people, we certainly should."

The indigent defense fund ran out of money March 3, when Freeman's office spent the last of the money provided by the 1982 Legislature. The program was allocated $6.4 million during the current fiscal year, even though actual costs totaled $8.2 million the previous year.

The indigent defense program, required under U.S. Supreme Court rulings, historically has been one of the first items cut by lawmakers during the budget process.

In recent years, the court system has used funds from vacancies in its 3,500 jobs to make up shortages in the indigent defense fund. But turnover has been half the normal rate because of the recession and high unemployment.

Court officials began predicting a shortfall late last fall and kept the governor and the state Budget Office aware of the situation.

Williams said the court system could pay its outstanding legal bills by using other funds appropriated for judicial salaries and travel until emergency funding is provided.

"I'll see he (Freeman) has ample funds to operate the department for the year," Williams said. "There's no question we're going to recommend the money. There's no question we're going to get it."

Dropping Labor Force Is A Mystery

John Cunniff

NEW YORK (AP) — According to the federal government, the size of the U.S. civilian labor force dropped by 64£,000 individuals between December and March, a phenomenon that is producing much head scratching.

Why did they leave? Where did they go?

The questions become even more perplexing when it is found that one of the usual explanations — a rise in the number of discouraged workers — appears no longer to apply.

As students of the employment numbers know, discouraged workers — those who have given up looking for a job — are dropped from the work force, no longer to be counted even as unemployed.

A rise in the number of discouraged workers, therefore, would mean a resulting decline in the size of the work force. But it didn't happen.

In fact, the number of discouraged workers fell by 8£,000 in the period, which would, it seems, have the exact opposite affect to what occurred. It would have enlarged rather than reduced the work force.

Jack Lavery, chief economist at Merrill Lynch, believes that a "meaningful contributor" to the labor force shrinkage could be the number of corporate programs to encourage early retirement. But, he says, "it is difficult to envision this accounting for the magnitude of the labor force decline."

The situation could be a consequence of statistical error or, perhaps, the inability of analysts to draw meaning from the statistics.

The disappearance, however, is loaded with consequence. As Lavery points out, the labor force decline accounts for almost the entire 0.£ percentage point drop in the civilian unemployment rate to 10.3 from 10.8 percent.

And that rate has been cited by the White House and celebrated by millions as evidence that recovery is under way.

Something seems odd too about the retail sales numbers. "Retail sales — who do you trust?" asks Citibank. Do you trust the storeowners, who report gains, or the Census Bureau, which seems to say something else?

According to the bureau, March retail sales rose only 0.3 percent from the same month a year earlier. And at the same time it was reporting that news, the bureau revised February's sales downward by 1.2 percent.

Again, the possibility of statistical flaw is being examined by those who use such reports.

One common question being asked is whether the Census Bureau is too heavily laden with data from established stores, and underrepresents newer outlets, such as computer stores.

Another possibility, say critics, is that the declining dollar sales at gasoline stations lowered the dollar figures significantly. Remember, they say, gasoline sales, measured in dollars, declined only because prices declined.

Harold Tribble Met—And Conquered— His Troubles

Noel Yancey

Leaders who head Wake Forest University in future years will surely have one consolation: Bad as things get, in all likelihood, they will be able to say that, compared to what Dr. Harold W. Tribble encountered and largely overcame, their troubles are trivial.

An apostle of change, Tribble was thrust into a changing situation when he became president of Wake Forest in 1950. Since 1946, the college had had a commitment to move to Winston-Salem. Many people were betting the move would never be made.

When they chose Tribble to head the college, the trustees had one task in mind. He was to make the move a reality. This he accomplished despite the fact the cost of the new campus had soared from an estimated $6 million in 1950 to $19 million when the move was made in 1956. Tribble not only engineered the move to the new campus but was able to point to some major academic improvements the college made on the way. It was done despite the fact that most of the time Tribble was beset by varying groups of enemies.

That was the first open breach between Tribble and alumni.

During those months, Tribble stumped the state, pleading for money and moral support. On October 1£, 1951, the college held a ground-breaking ceremony at the site of the new campus in Winston-Salem, with President Harry Truman the speaker. Although the college was a long way from raising all the $7½ million then needed for new buildings, actual constructin of the new campus got under way in the spring of 1952. Tribble called it "an act of faith." A little over a year later, the student body was bussed to Winston-Salem for a cornerstone laying ceremony in which many educators, officials of the Z. Smith Reynolds Foundation and leaders of the Baptist State Convention participated. The foundation had made the move possible by offering the college and annual stipend. A major financial breakthrough came in January, 1954, when Tribble announced the college had raised $3 million to meet a $2 million challenge gift offered by William Neal Reynolds and his niece, Mrs. Gilbert Verney. A few months later, Colonel George Foster Hankins of Lexington willed the college over $1 million to finance scholarships.

Most of Tribble's troubles stemmed from opposition to the move, from fears he wanted to de-emphasize athletics, and worries among Baptists that the college was losing touch with the denomination that founded it. Tribble's enemies also pointed to his abrasive personality. They frequently described him as a dictator who had lowered faculty morale.

In his inaugural address on November 28, 1950, Tribble spoke of making Wake Forest a university, saying it was "inescapably implicit in the removal and enlargement program." There was one ironic note in the inauguration. In a special issue, Old Gold and Black, the college newspaper, carried ads paid for by alumni in Wilson and Wake Counties,Greensboro and Durham, hailing Tribble. But in March, 1951, some of those same alumni were mad as hornets because of the resignation of football coach D.C. "Peahead" Walker in a salary hassle. Tribble said he opposed a raise for Walker because the college could not afford to raise faculty salaries.

The resignation of football coach Tom Rogers and athletic director Pat Preston on Dec. 3, 19££, precipitated a battle that almost resulted in Tribble's ouster. After newspapers carried reports of rumors among alumni of deemphasis, a howling mob of students marched to Tribble's home and burned him in effigy. On Dec. 8, trustees President Basil Watkins of Durham announced that, at a meeting in November, the trustees had voted for a probe of the college administration. He said it was not prompted by the athletic furore but by reports of "low faculty morale and general discontent among alumni regarding the future of Wake Forest."

Although a trustees' committee did meet and talk to some faculty members and administrative personnel, Tribble refused to talk to it unless it submitted questions in writing for him to answer in writing.

On Dec. 22, the board voted to suspend the probe and six weeks later it announced no change in the college administration was warranted "at this time." That phrase indicated that Tribble stood on shaky ground. How shaky was demonstrated when the trustees held their first meeting on the new campus a few months later. The board voted 20-13 "not to fire him."

In November of 1957, an alumni group distributed a pamphlet saying that a vast majority of the alumni were against the president. But Tribble replied that they represented a small group of agitators. Tribble was given a vote of confidence by the Baptist State Convention a few days later. That same convention re-affirmed a ban on dancing at the colleges and set up a Committee of 17 to look into the "spiritual atmosphere" at the colleges. The move was indicative of the growing schism between the college and the convention.

During the 17 years Tribble, a Charlottesville, Va., native and an ordained Baptist minister, headed Wake Forest, he saw the school's total assets increase from about $10.£ million to over $91 million and its annual operating rose from $1.£ million to $13 million. The student body grew from 1,750 to over 3,000 and there was an even greater increase in the faculty proportionately. Tribble, who came to Wake Forest from the presidency of Andover Newton Theological School, had presided as the college tripled the number of volumes in its library, tightened its admission standards, admitted its first black students, resumed a graduate program, and inaugurated an Asian studies and an honors program. Just before he retired in 1967, Tribble's dream of seeing Wake Forest become a university was realized.

State May Be Fined

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The state Department of Administration may be fined for damages in last week's oil spill at a state-owned oil recycling plant near Garner, a Natural Resources and Community Development spokesman said Friday.

R. Paul Wilms, assistant director of the NRCD's Environmental Management Division, said about 100 gallons of oil flowed Sunday into a tributary of Mahler Creek. He said that spill, not reported until Tuesday, and other such accidents have left the creek with high levels of toxic metals.

Wilms said his agency had evidence that several laws and water quality standards had been violated at the DOA-run plant.

Jane S. Patterson, secretary of administration, said Friday she knew of only two spills at the plant.

"It is the intention of the department to do whatever is necessary to clean up the site and to correct any problem that is there," Mrs. Patterson said. "It is my feeling that the state should receive the same kind of enforcement that anybody in private business receives."

Science Fair Honors Speece

ECU News Bureau

A mathematics and science teacher at North Carolina State University and more than 100 high school students received awards at the Eastern Regional Science Fair at East Carolina University.

Sponsored by the ECU Department of Science Education, the fair drew more than 300 entries from across North Carolina. Several thousand spectators also attended the event.

Dr. Herbert E. Speece, professor emeritus at NCSU, received the annual Austin D. Bond Award, which recognizes contributions to the field of science education.

A past president of the N.C. Academy of Science, Speece taught at NCSU from 1951 to 1980. He chaired the department of mathematics and science education.

Science fair participants competed in junior and senior high school divisions that included four categories: biological, physical, earth and technological science. Awards were given for first, second and third place and honorable mention.

Area students receiving awards included:

•Grifton — Joshua LaVerne Brinson.

Honors Orchestra Performs At ECU

ECU News Bureau

Nearly 100 junior and senior high school musicians took part in the recent Eastern Regional Honors Orchestra rehearsals and performance at East Carolina University.

The event was sponsored by the N.C. Music Educators Association's Orchestra Section and hosted by the ECU School of Music. Coordinator was Dr. Paul Topper of the ECU strings faculty.

Guest conductor was Smith Toulson, associate professor of music at Pennsylvania State University and conductor of the PSU Symphony Orchestra and Symphonic Wind Ensemble.

The participating students were selected by audition from among eastern North Carolina school musicians. They attended a three-day workshop on campus, as well as sectional and full orchestra rehearsals, and performed a final concert in ECU's Wright Auditorium which included works by Glinka, Nelhybel, Gordon Jacob, Copland and Dvorak.

Names and schools of area participants included: Aycock Junior High School — Candace Dixon, Andrea Bath, Amy Moore, Robert Haggard, Lisa Hettler and Sheila Pearson; D.H. Conley High School — Barbara Salter; Rose High School — Carol Moore, Sarah Burden, Elizabeth Ellen, Vickie Petrie, Danielle Nieman, Chris Love and Bruce Thompson; N.C. School of Science and Mathematics — Hih Song Kim.

UNC Council Wants Change

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Resolutions to change the character of freshman orientation and prevent athletic events from prompting class cuts were among suggestions made Friday by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill's Faculty Council.

The council adopted 31 resolutions aimed at strengthening the quality of undergraduate education, based on a report by four subcommittees and questionnaires sent to students and faculty.

Virginia Beach Man To Head East Carolina Alumni Group

ECU News Bureau

The East Carolina University Alumni Association elected E. Marvin Slaughter Jr. of Virginia Beach, Va., as its new president for 1983-84 and saluted three recipients with its annual Alumni Distinguished Service awards Saturday.

Given for outstanding and dedicated service to the university, the Alumni Distinguished Service awards were presented to: Elizabeth S. Bennett of Burlington, a retired school teacher; Ashley B. Futrell of Washington, a member and former chairman of the ECU Board of Trustees, publisher-emeritus of the Washington Daily News; and Richard C. Todd of Greenville, professor emeritus of history.

MARVIN SLAUGHTER

Slaughter, a 1950 graduate of East Carolina, is president of Southern Tile Distributors Inc., Norfolk, Va. He has served on the Alumni Association's board of directors and as vice president during the past year. He succeeds John C. Lennon Jr. of Raleigh as association president.

Other officers elected during a business meeting of the active membership were S. Gerald Arnold of Lillington, a judge of the N.C. Court of Appeals, vice president; Baxter Ridenhour of Durham, secretary; and Jim Hicks, Greenville, treasurer.

Burney K. Rivenbark of Fayetteville, Marion Lyda Teer of Durham and Nathan R. (Nate) Weavil of Salisbury were elected to the association's board of directors.

The association adopted an annual budget which will support 100 alumni honors scholarships at ECU, an increase of 15 tuition-and-fees scholarships over the 85 awarded this year. The alumni association budget also provides funds for teaching excellence awards at ECU, academic programs, the student ECU Ambassadors Service organization and other restricted scholarships.

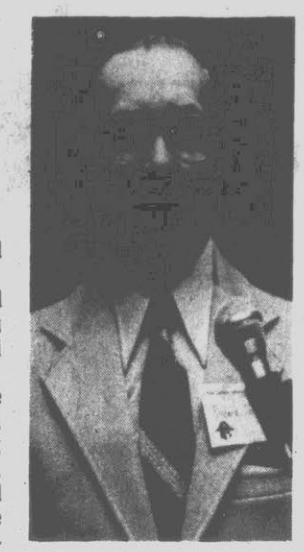

ELIZABETH BENNETT

The alumni luncheon and annual meeting was a highlight of the 1983 alumni day program.

During the weekend, the classes of 1913, 1918, 1923, 1928, 1933, 1938, 1943, 1948, 1953 and 1958 were honored. Special activities were held on Friday evening for the Silver and Golden Anniversary classes as well as those who graduated prior to the Golden Aniversary class. A reception was held at the chancellor's home, and later in the evening, a reunion dinner was held in Mendenhall Student Center followed by reunion sessions.

Activities for alumni day included an open house and coffee hour at the Talyor-Slaughter Alumni Center, bus tours of the campus and the annual alumni luncheon at the Greenville Country Club, professional society meetings and a baseball game in the afternoon, and the Purple and Gold football game on Saturday evening. Chancellor John M. Howell was the featured speaker for the alumni day luncheon.

Hostess and Craft Artisans To Be In Our Williamsburg Shop

Williamsburg Hostess

Mrs. Elizabeth Callis will be here in our Williamsburg Shop on Monday and Tuesday. She will interpret the Colonial way of life and will describe the beautifully preserved area in Virginia called 18th Century Williamsburg . She will explain how exquisite furniture and styles began as first class hand-craftsmanship. She will recreate the scene . . . 'bustling down the brick streets to marketplace, you'll meet the cobbler, the baker and the candlestick maker. In a local tavern you will join your friends — the leather worker, silversmith and a carpenter for a round of ale . . .!' Swishing about in her farthigales, Mrs. Callis will answer questions as your official Williamsburg hostess.

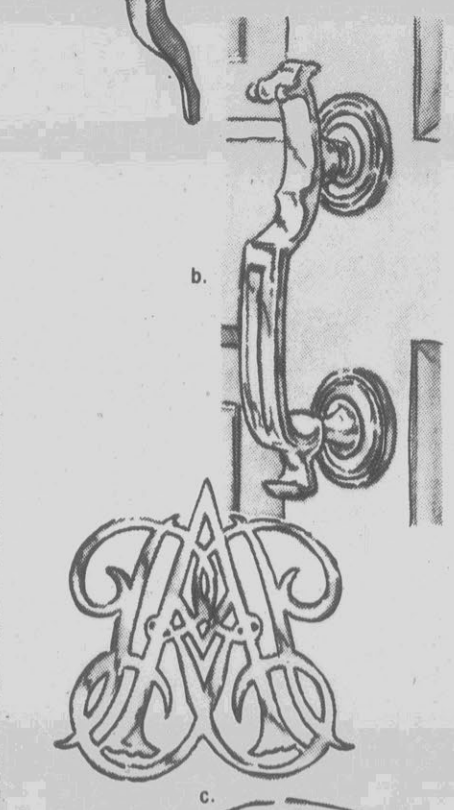

MRS. CALLIS

Come visit and meet our guests on Monday, April 25th and on Tuesday, April 26th. Joyce Hedgepeth works for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation as a wig or perukemaker in the King's Arm Barber Shop on the Duke of Gloucester Street. George Cloyed, a practicing silversmith for the Colonial Williamsburg Foundation, spends most of his working day in The Golden Ball, a recreated 18th-century jewelry shop along Duke of Gloucester Street. Throughout the day he produces items of silver using 18th-century techniques so guests can get a feeling of how it was 200 years ago. Come and experience a feeling of Williamsburg as it once was. You'll enjoy yourself!

Rose To Mark Heritage Week

Rose High School will joining other institutions and agencies statewide during the coming week to celebrate North Carolina Heritage Week, April 25-29.

This year, the theme for Heritage Week is "Treasuring the Old Ways." The concept of the week was established in 1970 as a springtime pause to reflect on Tar Heel culture and to highlight the state's historic and artistic values.

One preliminary event at Rose was a concert last Thursday of music, "Blues to Bluegrass," sponsored by the State Department of Cultural Resources, and featuring Wayne and Margaret Martin's String Band.

Some of the activities scheduled at Rose to mark Heritage Week are:

•Mary Anne Pennington, director of the Greenville Museum of Art, will show works of art and lecture on North Carolina art such as Jugtown pottery and etchings of historic places.

•Don Lennon, director of the East Carolina Manuscript Collection, will speak on finding the 1733 Moseley map, a rare early detailed map of North Carolina and the only one of its kind in the U.S.

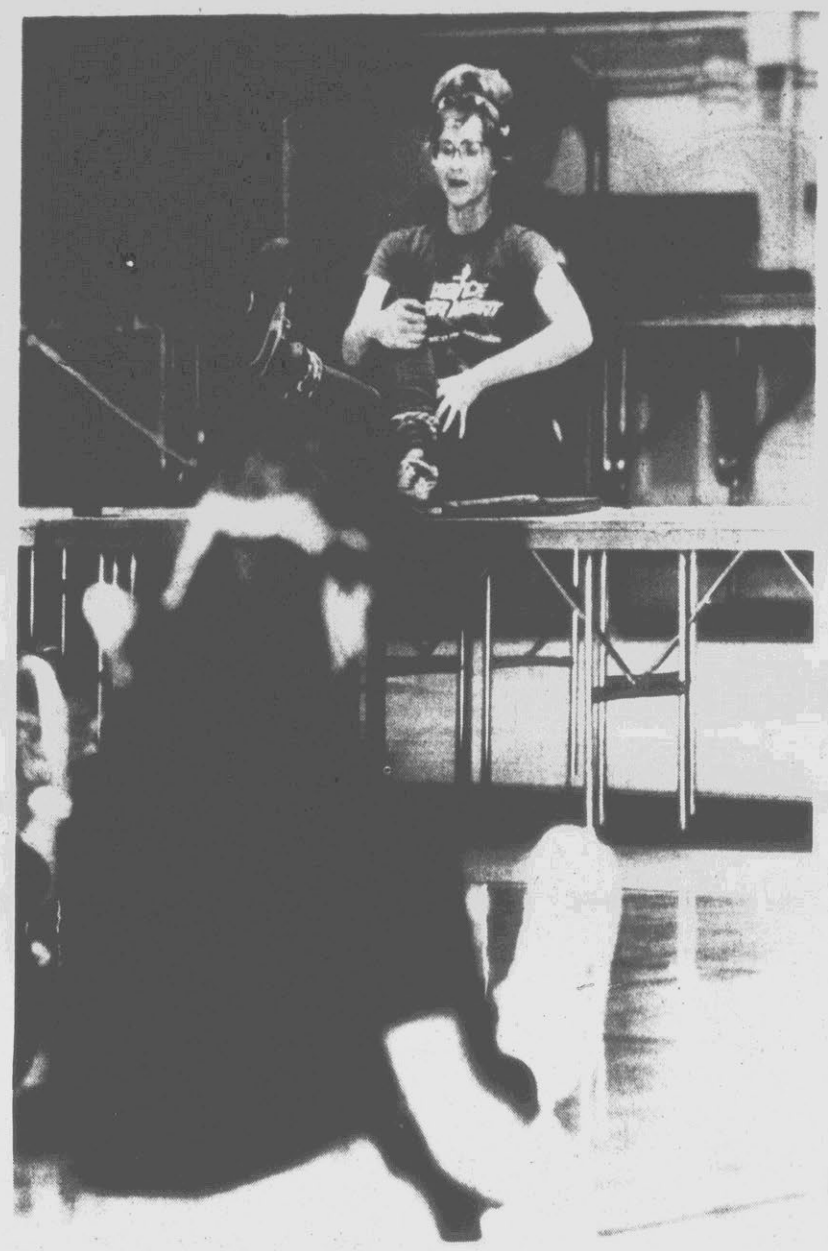

•Dina Hill, an archaeological technician with the State Division of Archives and History, will give a presentation "Down to the Monitor" and talk about exploration of shipwrecks off the North Carolina coast.

•Dr. Birruta Erdmann, assistant professor of art history at ECU, will give a slide presentation and speak on preserving the architectural heritage of Greenville and Pitt County.

•Craft demonstrations organized by Kay Clemmons of Calico Square will be given, to include quilting, spinning, weaving, and other domestic North Carolina arts.

These activities will be held in the Rose High library and have been coordianted by Brenda Lewis, media specialist, and Dorothy Brannan, social studies teacher.

Folk art of North Carolina will be on display throughout the school during Heritage Week.

HEART DANCING — More than 250 men and women joined Lucy Mauger, above directing exercises, and other leaders for an aerobics and slimnastics afternoon at Minges Coliseum Saturday to raise money for the Heart Fund. At last count Saturday night, $4,278 had been raised by the Dance For Heart project in Greenville, according to coordinator Pam Hambridge. The fitness afternoon was sponsored by Greenville merchants, ECU Intramural Recreational Services and music was provided by WOOW Radio. (Reflector Photo by Sue Hinson)

Veterans Seek Jobs

The Greenville office of the Employment Security Commission has several trained, job-ready veterans seeking employment in various fields, according to ESC office manager Jim Hannan.

Hannan said 527 veterans registered for work during the six-month period ending March 1983.

"Many of these veterans have excellent training and experience and are available to fill employer needs in the area," Hannan said. "We need job opportunities to expose these veterans to. We need and encourage employers to list their job opening with us."

Don Anders, ESC veterans employment representative, said the Job Service staff filled 214 openings with veterans during the first two quarters of fiscal yer 1983.

"March was a successful month in which 53 veterans were placed in employment," Anders said. "This was the best veteran placement month thus far in fiscal year 83."

Anders contributed this to an upswing in the economy and cooperation from area employers. He expressed optimism for the month of April, especially in the construction trades.

"Several construction projects in Pitt County have been delayed beyond their scheduled startup dates due to bad weather," Anders pointed out. "Hopefully, April will be more conducive to construction than the first three months of the year."

Anders urged area employers to contact the local Job Service office and place their job openings as they occur within their company. The office has over 5,000 applicants seeking initial employment or a change of employment. Records at the office are linked to a statewide referral system making it possible for employers to obtain maximum exposure to highly skilled technical applicants.

Correction

The date of a concert at St. Stephen AME Zion Church of Farmville was incorrectly reported in the Friday Daily Reflector. The concert was not held Saturday, but will be held April 30 at 5 p.m. at the Moose Lodge in Greenville.

But with actions already taken and others that are under consideration, Volpe said, "Nothing alters our certainty that we will be granted full and retroactive accreditation by NCATE during the next academic year.

"We have a good feeling — a certainty — that any and all questions will be cleared up," he said.

Coble said the officials emphasized that ECU "has one of the most comprehensive — and most successful — teacher education programs in North Carolina."

In addition to conferences with NCATE, ECU officials plan meetings with the N.C. Department of Public Instruction, which also reviewed ECU teacher education programs last November. On April 6, the State Board of Education placed ECU teacher education programs on provisional status for two years pending a status report on recommendations of its accrediting team.

Among recommendations of the N.C. Department of Public Instruction team in its report was that "the university give serious consideration to reviewing the means whereby teacher education programs, as a major campus-wide responsibility, are coordinated and policies and procedures are implemented."

Volpe said, "While we intend to institute these and other changes, which will meet the technical requirements for accreditation, the overall excellence of our teaching education programs and our tradition for putting out the highest quality teachers will not be compromised or jeopardized in any way."

Other steps being planned include the strengthening of some of the programs, such as special education, as recommended. Also, as already approved by the university administration and the Faculty Senate, a course in special education and in the teaching of reading have been made part of the required curriculum for teacher education degrees.

extinguishers, and the drivers seat is equipped with a seat-belt. There are no seat belts for passengers, because the buses can carry more students than there are seats available.

As far as practicable, the interior of the buses are designed to prevent injury in case of accident. All hand bars and railings are padded. Seat frames, which in older buses used to be exposed, are now fully enclosed and padded with foam rubber.

In addition to the annual safety inspection required by all vehicles in the state, school buses in Pitt County are inspected each day by route mechanics — such things as lights, brakes, tires. A team from the school bus garage inspects each bus on a monthly basis, and the buses are inspected periodically by state representatives.

At the beginning of each year, students are given tips on bus safety, and given a copy of the rules and regulations they must adhere to.

Elementary grade students are told how to board and depart the bus and given a demonstration on how to exit the rear door of the bus in case of emergency. The rear door is an emergency exit only and an alarm will notify the driver if the door is opened.

Mailed 'Bomb'

RIVERHEAD, N.Y. (AP) — A student has been convicted of attempted murder for trying to mail what he thought was a bomb to his ex-girlfriend's new suitor.

Richard Levy, a 23-year-old graduate student at the State University of New York at Stony Brook, was convicted after jurors deliberated nine hours. He faces up to 25 years in prison when he is sentenced May 23.

Suffolk County police said Levy asked a fellow student to help make a bomb when he discovered his ex-girlfriend was dating someone new, but the associate went to the police, who asked him to build a fake bomb.

Postal Service Cards Ready

Consumer Service Cards, used to report service problems or make suggestions about mail service, are available from post offices and letter carriers.

Customers completing cards are asked to keep the original copy and mail the remaining copies, postage paid, to their postmaster. Postmasters are required to respond promptly to all consumers who submit cards to their offices.

Analyses of card data provide postal magagement with information for improving postal services and products.

Burglar's Arrest Sets Off Melee

SOUTH MIAMI, Fla. (UPI) — Some 50 youths threw rocks and bottles at passing cars and police cruisers after a popular neighborhod cat burglar was arrested, police reported Saturday.

At least one male motorist was injured when a rock smashed through the window of his car in the Friday night fracas.

Police said the brief disturbance started when officers arrested Alphonzo "The Ghost" Bohannon, a 26-year-old convicted cat burglar with a reputation for stealth and grace.

Bohannon was arrested at his sister's home about 6:30 p.m. based on anonymous tip. He was held without bond Saturday in the Dade County Jail on three-week-old warrants for burglary and grand theft.

About 15 minutes after police arrested the lanky 6-foot Bohannon, a small crowd of neighborhood youths hurled rocks and bottles at passing motorists and a police car.

Police Chief Hank Salsky said the youths were angered by the arrest of "The Ghost." Area residents who know Bohannon say he was looked up to because of his reputation as a smooth, expert cat burglar.

"They threw cinderblocks and glass bottles," said one woman who drove through the area. "They were trying to pull the car doors open."

Police said the disturbance was quickly brought under control.

Second Liver Transplant Working

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Brandon Hall's second transplanted liver in 10 days appears to be working better than the first, and doctors said Saturday their resilient 13-month-old patient is improving.

The Walnut, Miss., boy who early Friday became the youngest patient to survive a second liver transplant, was listed in critical but stable condition Saturday in Le Bonheur Children's Medical Center intensive care unit.

But hospital officials said Brandon's vital signs — blood pressure, pulse, breathing and temperature — were good, and that he was not receiving any blood transfusions or drugs to maintain his blood pressure.

"He's alert," officials said in a statement. "He had a good night, his color has improved and he's taking a pacifier. He's responding to his mother and others around him.

"His liver function appears to be stable and adequate."

Hollings Suggests Black, Woman

ATLANTA — Democratic presidential candidate Ernest Hollings of South Carolina said a black or a woman should be "seriously considered" as the Democrats' vice presidential nominee in 1984.

"I'm trying my best to appeal to all Americans, and that's one of my misgivings about the Democratic Party — addressing all these single-issue interests," he said in an interview published Saturday in The Atlanta Journal and The Atlanta Constitution.

But Hollings, who serves in the U.S. Senate, would not name a particular candidate he favored for the job.

Heavy Fighting Reported

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Heavy fighting raged near El Salvador's primary hydroelectric dam Saturday with the army sending reinforcements to repel advancing guerrillas, military officers said.

Rebels held the towns of Potonico and Monte Redondo for the second day Saturday, officers said. Both towns are within a mile of the Cerron Grande dam in northern Chalatenango province.

The dam, on the Lempa River about 28 miles northeast of San Salvador, generates about half of the country's electricity and has long been considered a guerrilla target.

Polka Mass Rocks Vatican

VATICAN CITY — St. Peter's Basilica bounced Saturday to the sound of a toe-tapping polka Mass celebrated by a Minnesota priest who declared, "We'll polka our way to heaven."

Hundreds of curious tourists gathered for the Mass said by the Rev. Frank Perkovich, who brought Joe Cvek and The Polka Masters to the Vatican for a first-ever "polka Mass" complete with accordian, drums and vocalists.

Perkovich, who also brought 80 Midwestern pilgrims with him, persuaded the Vatican to let him celebrate the Mass after giving officials a demonstration tape last fall.

Renewable Energy Use Growing

WASHINGTON — The world's use of renewable energy will double by the year 2000 when the sun, wind and water will be supplying power equal to the amount of energy obtained from oil, a study predicted Saturday.

Despite sharp cutbacks in solar programs by the Reagan administration, the Worldwatch Institute forecast a bright future for all forms of renewable energy. In 1980, 18 percent of the world's energy was obtained from renewable sources, primarily wood and hydropower. This percentage should grow to 26 percent by the year 2000 as renewable energy use doubles and oil supplies decline, the non-profit research institute said.

Convict Is On Trial In Absentia

WARTBURG, Tenn. — A convict who escaped with his female court-appointed lawyer is making American legal history as he goes on trial in absentia, charged with murdering two fellow inmates at Tennessee's most violent prison.

Prosecutors, a legal scholar and defense lawyers for William Timothy Kirk say they know of no previous U.S. case in which a suspect facing the death penalty has missed his trial.

Kirk, 36, has been on the run since March 31 with Mary P. Evans, the 26-year-old daughter of a University of Tennessee assistant vice president.

Saccharin Bill Is Signed

WASHINGTON — President Reagan signed a bill Saturday preventing the government for two more years from banning or restricting the sale of saccharin.

The Food and Drug Administration, in 1977, proposed banning the artificial sweetener on the basis that tests showed it caused cancer in animals.

After a public outcry, Congress adopted legislation preventing the FDA from banning the product but requiring warning labels on products containing saccharin.

The original congressional ban has been extended twice previously, but was due to run out Aug. 14, 1983.

Canadians Protest Testing

TORONTO — An estimated 10,000 people marched though downtown Toronto Saturday to protest the proposed testing of U.S. nuclear missiles in Canada. Toronto police said two officers were injured and six people were arrested when pro-nuclear demonstrators and anti-missile protesters scuffled.

The missiles, without nuclear warheads, are to be tested in Alberta at the Primrose Testing Range, 186 miles northwest of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, under a U.S.-Canadian agreement. It has not been announced when the testing is to begin.

Caterpillar Strike Ending

PEORIA, Ill. — Striking Caterpillar Tractor Co. workers approved a wage-freeze contract by a 2-1 margin, ending a record 205-day strike and clearing the way for a return to work Sunday night, the United Auto Workers said Saturday.

UAW vice president Stephen Yokich said the vote was 10,703 in favor and 5,144 against.

Slide Hits California Area

SILVERADO, Calif. — Boulders as big as automobiles cascaded down a hillside in Orange County, partially blocking a road and temporarily forcing 50 people from their homes, county fire officials said Saturday.

There were no injuries or damage, said Leo Scneider of the Orange County Fire Department.

Cuts In Crime Could Continue

BOSTON (AP) — New FBI statistics showing a two-year decline in violent crime mark a trend that could last a decade as the "baby boom" generation ages and there are fewer adolescents to commit street crimes, a criminologist says.

The trend could mean smaller prison populations, fewer police officers on the beat and reduced apprehension about the threat of crime, said James Fox of Northeastern University.

The FBI said in a report issued last week that figures from police departments throughout the country showed a 4 percent drop in serious crime in 1982 from the previous year, the sharpest decline in the past five years. The decline included both violent crime and crimes against property.

Andropov Says U.S. Is Deadlocking Arms Talks

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — In his first interview with a Western journalist, Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov accused the Reagan administration of deadlocking arms talks and of planning new weapons "to threaten mankind from outer space," Der Spiegel magazine reported Saturday.

Andropov was quoted as denying U.S. charges that the Soviets were arming themselves at a fast pace to achieve nuclear superiority. He said Moscow was simply catching up with what he called a U.S. administration bent on impairing Soviet security, Der Spiegel reported.

The magazine also quoted Andropov as saying there was "not a kernel of truth" to the charge that Moscow was using delaying tactics in the Geneva arms talks, and said he added that both superpowers should freeze their nuclear arsenals if weapons reductions cannot be achieved through negotiations.

The Soviet Communist Party general secretary made his remarks in an hour-long Moscow interview with Der Spiegel Chief Editor Rudolf Augstein, who the magazine said submitted queries in advance but also was allowed to ask questions himself.

Reacting to President Reagan's recent proposal for development of space weapons designed to knock out conventional Soviet missiles, Andropov was quoted as saying:

"Such weapons are meant to threaten mankind from outer space. This cannot be allowed. Outer space must remain peaceful."

Andropov indicated that if NATO goes ahead with its plans to station new nuclear weapons in Europe, the Soviet Union would increase its missile deployment programs.

"If the Americans station new weapons in other European countries ... We would have to find a reply," he told Der Spiegel.

U.S. Says Little Change Is Expected In Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States believes Vietnam is "in the drivers seat" in its occupation of Cambodia and that a military reversal of the situation there is unlikely, a senior State Department official said on Saturday.

And as long as no political settlement is reached on Cambodia's future, he said, the Soviet Union and the Peoples Republic of China are likely to remain "at loggerheads" because it is one of the three or four biggest issues that divide them.

But U.S. diplomats continue to hope Vietnam can be persuaded that withdrawing is in its best interests. Until then, the official said, the U.S. strategy of isolating Vietnam economically and politically will be maintained.

In an interview with a small group of reporters the official discussed U.S.-Asian policies with an emphasis on Vietnam's activities inside Cambodia. He spoke on the condition he not be identified by name.

The United States, the official said, has told the Vietnamese and its principal backer, the Soviet Union, that the reward flowing from a political settlement in Cambodia would be more normal relations internationally and, in particular, with the United States.

For Vietnam, he said, the benefits are those of trade, stability and "presumably getting the benefits of aid programs."

He said he does not expect resistance to the Vietnamese occupation by a coalition of Cambodian factions to rise much beyond much beyond the current level of harrassment and skirmishing.

And he said that for the present, Vietnamese troops have pulled back from the Cambodia-Thailand border, making renewed clashes with Thai forces guarding Cambodian refugee camps less likely.

Egypt Sees Need For Concessions

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Aly said Saturday the visit to the Middle East by Secretary of State George P. Shultz would be a "very constructive step" if it gains Israeli concessions on Lebanon.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Aly blamed Israel for the breakdown in talks between Jordan and the Palestine Liberation Organization on a joint strategy for peace talks on the basis of President Reagan's plan.

But Aly said Egypt still believed Reagan's plan for Palestinian autonomy in association with Jordan was viable and urged the United States not to become frustrated in the search for Middle East peace.

"This will be a very constructive step if Secretary Shultz will be able to smooth the Israeli position vis-a-vis the Israeli-Lebanese-American talks about an Israeli withdrawal (from Lebanon)," Aly said.

Tornadoes Strike North Florida

CORAL GABLES, Fla. (AP) — Tornadoes and thunderstorms buffeted north Florida on Saturday, causing minor injuries, damaging houses and trailers, downing power lines and blocking roads with debris.

The National Weather Service predicted more bad weather for the area Saturday night, and forecasters posted tornado watches until 8 p.m. EST for most of central and northern Florida north of Lake Okeechobee.

The weather service said there were reports that "possibly a few small tornadoes" had touched down in Gilchrist, Columbia, Alachua, Bradford and Duval Counties.

At least three people suffered minor injuries in Columbia and Duval counties, officials said.

In New Smyrna Beach in Volusia County, several homes were leveled by a heavy storm, authorities said. No injuries were reported.

A tree pushed over by heavy winds damaged a building at a mobile home park north of Orlando, and another home in a residential area east of Orlando lost part of its roof, police said.

Two tornadoes touched down in Jacksonville and tore up a trailer park on the city's west side, damaging about 20 trailers, police said. Gas began to leak from one of the devastated trailers, but it was quickly capped.

Officials To Get Security Checks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration has ordered security checks, including fingerprinting, on all lawyers and investigators in the Education Department's Office for Civil Rights.

The move, which is apparently part of a government-wide drive by the administration to tighten security clearances, drew a sharp attack from Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., the chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on civil and constitutional rights.

In a letter to Education Secretary T.H. Bell, Edwards demanded to know the justification for the probes and said, "In my 20 years in Congress I have never heard of a request for security investigations of persons employed by federal civil rights units."

He said the investigations "raise suspicions as to the integrity and commitment of the Department of Education and this administration to vigorous civil rights enforcement."

The civil rights agency in the department and its predecessor in the Department of Health Education and Welfare have been a lightning rod for criticism from state and local officials.

The office helped monitor desegregation in the South in the late 1960s, and in recent years has figured in controversies over bilingual education and forcing affirmative action plans on state colleges and universities in the South and border states, where segregation was once the law.

Edwards' office gave reporters copies of an internal memo that Harry M. Singleton, the assistant secretary of education for civil rights, sent to his senior staff earlier this month announcing the security checks.

Singleton wrote that the department's inspector general had notified him "that security investigations must be conducted for persons in positions designated 'critical sensitive'."

He said they were required by a 1953 executive order signed by President Dwight D. Eisenhower as well as a departmental directive.

That 1953 order stated that "the interests of the national security require that all persons privileged to be employed in the departments and agencies of the government shall be reliable, trustworthy, of good conduct and character and of complete and unswerving loyalty to the United States."

Floods Damage Great Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Great Salt Lake, swollen by record rainfall and the spring runoff of melted snow, is swallowing beaches and lapping against dikes in a slow-motion disaster that may cost $60 million in damage.

The 75-mile long, 50-mile wide lake is expected to reach 4,204 feet above sea level in June — its highest level in 62 years. Earlier, authorities predicted a peak of 4,203 feet and $30 million in damage. The extra foot of water has doubled the damage estimate.

The lake, a remnant of ancient Lake Bonneville, which covered parts of Utah, Idaho and Nevada 12,000 years ago, has no natural outlet and depends on evaporation to rid itself of excess water.

That makes a forecast of precipitation for this week even more unwelcome.

"Beginning Sunday, we'll have three to four days of rain and snow," said Gerald Williams, National Weather Service hydrologist. "It will have a significant effect. Not only does it contribute precipitation, but it slows evaporation."

J. Stanley Elmer, field operations planner with the state Lands and Forestry Division, warned the lake could go even higher than 4,204 feet.

"We've got lots of water up there in the mountains and lots more to come down," Elmer said.

State officials have estimated damage could reach $150 million if the shallow lake, which averaged 35 feet in depth, topped 4,205 feet above sea level.

The Department of Natural Resources is studying several ideas to stem the flooding, including a scheme to pump water into the state's western desert.

But none of the projects could be completed in time to stop this year's crisis.

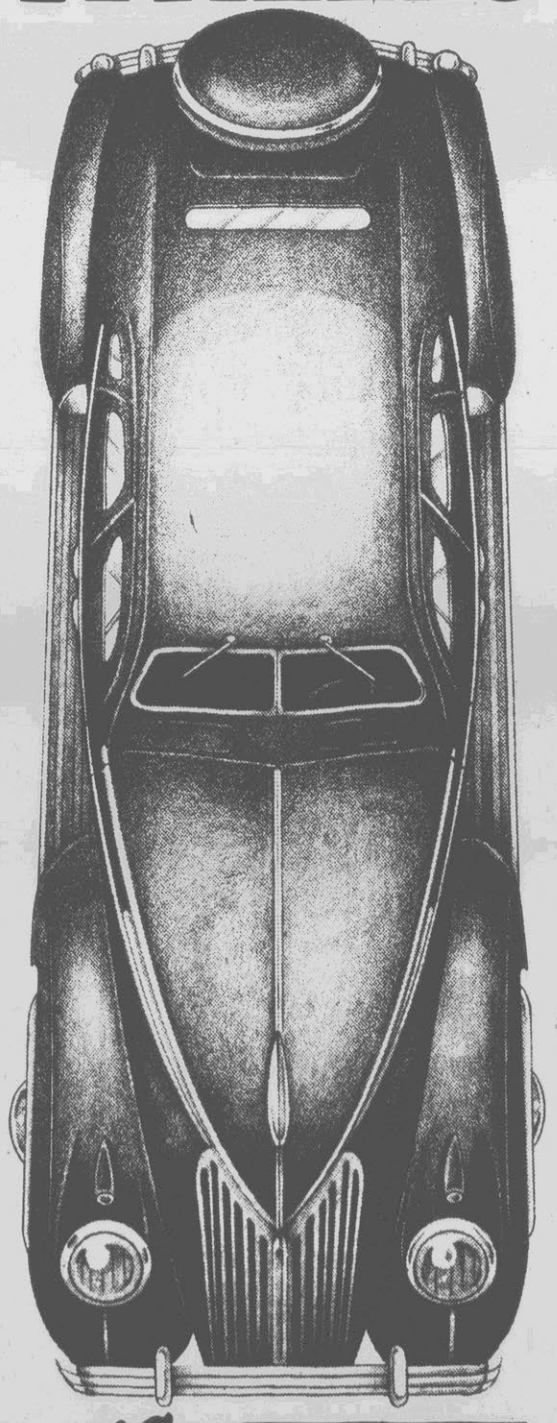

On the west shore of the lake, beaches at Great Salt Lake Marina and Saltair Resort are inundated. Dune buggy rental and snack shops are islands. Utah Lake State Park has been closed, and damage there could reach $3 million.

Man Who Hit Judge Jailed

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Newton Estes has begun serving a 10-day jail sentence here for slugging U.S. Supreme Court Justice Byron White during an appearance in Utah last year.

Estes, 57, was taken to Utah County Jail on Friday to begin serving his sentence. U.S. District Judge David Winder imposed the jail term on Estes last month and placed him on two years' probation. Estes also was fined $500.

Jeralds Finds Change Of Life On Budget Panel

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Appointment to the state's powerful Advisory Budget Commission, which helps the governor decide how much to spend on government agencies and programs, can mean instant credibility.

That's what happened to state Rep. Luther R. "Nick" Jeralds, D-Cumberland, who might have attracted little notice as a 44-year-old, black freshman legislator.

"Suddenly you have to at least on the surface be accepted by the senior members of the House and Senate," Jeralds said in an interview last week. "You have to start to act in a totally different vein."

House Speaker Liston Ramsey announced earlier this year that he intended to appoint a woman and a black to the ABC to fill a vacancy left by the death of Rep. Sam Bundy, D-Pitt, and another newly created seat on the commission.

"The speaker, being a fair individual, wanted to make sure he spread the appointments around geographically," Jeralds said.

There was a limited number of blacks to chose from and the two senior black legislators were Rep. Ken Spaulding, D-Durham, and Rep. Dan Blue, D-Wake. Those two counties already were represented on the ABC by Sen. Ken Royall, D-Durham, and Rep. Al Adams, D-Wake.

Jeralds said Ramsey wanted to keep an eastern legislator on the ABC so he was a likely choice to become the second black to serve on the commission. The first was former Sen. Henry Frye, D-Guilford, who is now a state Supreme Court judge.

Rep. Jo Graham Foster, D-Mecklenburg, was the woman named by Ramsey to the commission.

"It is unheard of really for a freshman to receive this kind of appointment," said Jeralds, a towering former National Football League player. "It is usually given for years of service."

Jeralds has never held public office before. When Cumberland County House districts were redrawn last session to encourage a black to run, he decided to seek the House seat.

He played defensive end for Minnesota, Dallas and Chicago in the mid-1960s before he injured his knee and was forced to look for a new occupation. He returned to his hometown of Fayetteville and worked with various government and social programs for 10 years before starting his own business.

Jeralds said the commission appointment thrust him into a "position of credibility." The new role has forced Jeralds to take a crash course on state policies, like purchasing and bidding rules.

"I was just trying to learn my way around the building and all of a sudden I was put into that," he said, adding quickly that he is pleased with the task.

"Probably through the ABC you learn more about state government than through any one source," said Jeralds, pointing to a purchasing manual on his legislative desk. "You learn more and get more totally involved."

LIFE HAS CHANGED — Rep. Luther R. "Nick" Jeralds of Cumberland County has found a different pace in Raleigh since his appointment to the powerful Advisory Budget Commission. The freshman Democrat is the first black to serve on the commission. (AP Laserphoto)

Hunt Draws Endorsement For 1984

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Electing a U.S. Senate with a Democratic majority is the priority of the "Democrats for the 80s" organization and the group's founder said Saturday that she hopes Gov. Jim Hunt will run to further that cause.

"By helping Democratic challengers for those seats, we can take advantage of the best opportunity we may have in a generation to reclaim the Senate for Democrats," Pamela Harriman told more than 300 people attending the Democrats' Jefferson-Jackson Day breakfast. "With every fiber of my being, I hope that one of those Democratic challengers is sitting right here in this room ..."

At that word, the crowd jumped to its feet and applauded until Hunt rose to acknowledge the encouragement with a nod of his head.

Mrs. Harriman and her husband, former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman, founded Democrats for the 80s, a political action committee, in December 1980 to help revitalize the party and raise money for the 1982 elections.

She was born in England and was married for a time to Winston Churchill's son, Randolph. Their son, Winston, is a member of Parliament.

Her speech officially began celebrations which traditionally attract candidates for statewide political office and top elected Democratic officials. The celebration was to end Saturday night with the annual spring fundraiser — a $25-a-plate dinner and speech by Sen. Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.

Between the Democrats' breakfast and dinner, there was a reception at state Democratic Party headquarters featuring a visit with Council of State members and a reception at the Governor's Mansion.

Hospitality rooms in two area hotels were set up by potential candidates for statewide office. Walker said there were so many candidates that he had not been able to count them.

A number of people in the audience wore campaign paraphernalia and posters were tacked up on hotel walls. Banners hung from hotel balconies outside.

Mrs. Harriman said there is a contest between Republican politics of fear and Democratic politics of hope. But she said all but one number is on the side of the Democrats — the amount of money available for political campaigns.

"We Democrats may never be able to match the sheer financial horsepower of our Republican opponents and so we must pay particular attention to the efficiency and effectiveness of our organization. We must do more with less," she said.

She praised North Carolina Democrats for their congressional victories in 1982 depsite being outspent by GOP candidates.

"We Democrats need to do all we can to right the imbalance between our spending on political campaigns and the spending of our opponents," she said. "Unless we do so, our ideas and our candidates are in danger of being unfairly overwhelmed."

She also attacked the Republican administration for failing to solve the nation's economic problems. Mrs. Harriman said unemployment was 7.5 percent when the administration took office and now it is 10.3 percent. She said the national deficit soon will total $740 billion, nearly twice the size of the national debt accumulated for almost 200 years before.

Duke Dedicates Business School

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Millionaire businessman J.B. Fuqua said he hoped graduates of the new Fuqua School of Business dedicated at Duke University Friday would be taught to recognize change and act on it.

"We failed to recognize the change in the needs of the people of this country," said Fuqua, who spoke to about 400 faculty members, students and guests at the dedication of the new $16 million facility. "We have changed from an industrial-based society to an information-based society and the failure to recognize this has set us back a while."

Fuqua, who is president of Fuqua Industries — a conglomerate based in Atlanta — said his generation didn't use the nation's resources in the best way.

There are "whole industries" in need of new managers in America, he said, citing the steel and the automobile industries as two examples.

"I hope our students will be taught something about economic history," Fuqua said. "These cycles of low interest rates and high interest rates have occurred in the past and will happen again. That's why our future leaders need a sense of history."

The Research Triangle Park is an example of good management and good vision, he said.

"If we can produce the kind of business managers we need then we don't have to worry about the Japanese," said Fuqua.

The businessman praised the emphasis of the business school on individuals and entrepreneurs.

"One of the missions of this school is the development of uncommon business leaders," he said. "The real responsibility for developing the school of business rests with the faculty.

"Capitalism is like the breeder reactor that gets stronger the more energy it puts out. In capitalism, companies make a profit and put money back into research and development and that constantly feeds the system," Fuqua added.

Fuqua, who received an honorary degree from Duke in 1973 and in 1980, donated $10 million in stocks, cash and real estate to Duke. That endowment is now estimated to be worth $18 million.

Thomas F. Keller, dean of the business school, announced Friday that IBM and the business school had signed a joint venture agreeement to study the use of computers in teaching business. He said IBM had donated a IBM system 38 and 4341 as well as related software.

Keller said IBM would furnish the equipment, while Duke would do the research.

Defense Team Will Reuniting

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Three lawyers whose Ku Klux Klan and Nazi clients were acquitted on murder charges in the 1979 slayings of five Communist Workers Party demonstrators will now defend them against charges they violated the demonstrators' civil rights.

Five of nine Klansmen and Nazis indicted last week by a federal grand jury were among those acquitted in the 1980 state murder trial. The federal trial, to be held in Winston-Salem, is expected no sooner than August.

On Friday, U.S. Magistrate Russell Eliason asked all five members of the state defense team to return. He appointed Greensboro attorneys Harold Greeson, Jeffrey Farran and Neill Jennings after Greensboro lawyers Robert Cahoon and Percy Wall were excused because of their cluttered schedules.

Farran will again represent former Nazi Jack Wilson Fowler Jr. of Winston-Salem, who faces one count of conspiracy to violate civil rights and one count of a civil rights violation resulting in death.

Greeson will once more represent Klansman Coleman Blair "Johnny" Pridmore of Lincolnton, who faces one count of conspiracy.

Jennings will again represent Klansman Jerry Paul Smith of Maiden, who faces one count of conspiracy and one count of a civil rights violation resulting in death.

Farran said he had "mixed feelings" about resuming the case, although he said the appointment makes sense.

In The State

Marines Want Larger Range

SNEADS FERRY — The North Carolina Division of Marine Fisheries is reacting cautiously to plans by the Marine Corps to increase the size of its Atlantic Ocean target and bombing range off Onslow County. State officials say they are concerned about the possible impact on commercial fishing if the range is expanded.

Marine officials want to increase the zone off Brown's Island by about 20 square miles. The area is now about 26 to 28 square miles. They say new weapons and techniques require an extra margin of safety in testing.

Wingate Names President

WINGATE — Dr. Paul R. Corts of Shawnee, Okla., was named president of Wingate College Friday after approval by the board of trustees.

Paul Corts has headed his own fund-raising consultant firm, was executive vice president and chief executive officer at Oklahoma Baptist University and held several teaching and administrative positions at Western Kentucky University.

Ervin To Receive Degree

GREENSBORO — Former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. of Morganton and Edward T. Cone, professor of music at Princeton University, will receive honorary doctoral degrees from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro May 15.

Ervin will receive the honorary Doctor of Laws degree. Cone, a native of Greensboro, will receive the honorary degree of Doctor of Fine Arts.

The honorary degrees will be conferred during the university's commencement exercises in Greensboro Coliseum.

Judge Clears Annexation

CARTHAGE — The town of Southern Pines can go ahead with plans to annex five tracts of land south of its boundaries, a Superior Court judge has ruled.

Southern Pines had been barred by a temporary restraining order from annexing the land on Pinehurst Avenue, which runs between U.S. 15-501 and U.S. 1. Officials of nearby Aberdeen said the annexation proposal violated traditional procedures.

Judge W.H. Helms said Thursday that because the town of Aberdeen was not a landowner and because the landowners were petitioning for annexation, Southern Pines could proceed as planned.

State To Give Awards

RALEIGH — North Carolina teachers and businessmen who make outstanding contributions to science and mathematics programs in public schools will be honored by two new state awards, Gov. Jim Hunt has announced. The awards will be given for the first time this spring.

Teachers will be nominated for the award by communities. Businesses will be nominated by school boards, trade organizations and chambers of commerce.

Press Group Elects Officers

WILSON — Gene Smith of the Havelock Progress was elected president of the Eastern North Carolina Press Association Saturday.

He succeeds Margaret Dickerman of the Wilson Daily Times.

Hal Tanner Jr. of the Goldsboro New-Argus was elected first vice president and Jack Andrews of the Raleigh News and Observer was elected second vice president.

Howard Jones of the Warren Record, Warrenton, was elected treasurer.

Brothers Face 35 Charges

GREENSBORO — Two brothers face 35 charges, including 16 felony counts filed Friday, in connection with robberies, kidnappings and two slayings in six counties, police said.

Steven Luther Douglas, 28, of High Point is charged with two counts of murder, several counts of kidnapping and at least one count of armed robbery, officials of the Guilford County Sheriff's Department and the Greensboro Police Department said.

Ronnie Odell Douglas, 29, of Greensboro is charged with breaking and entering, second-degree burglary and larceny in several incidents. The two were being held in Guilford County Jail in High Point.

Charlotte Coliseum Proposed

CHARLOTTE — Mayor Eddie Knox's Coliseum Committee has recommended that Charlotte build a 23,000-seat coliseum, with an eye toward a 50,000-seat domed stadium and adjacent convention center in the future.

The resolution, which goes to the City Council on Monday, asks that Atlanta consultants Hammer, Siler, George & Associates study domed stadiums and consider possible sites for a 23,000-seat facility. The committee rejected proposals to renovate the aging Charlotte Coliseum, expand its capacity or build an 18,000-seat coliseum.

A consultants' study estimates that a new coliseum could draw more than 1.1 million people in 1988, the earliest time the facility could be ready.

Study Suggests Answer To Stress-Pressure Link

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — A discovery about the way mental stress appears to affect the kidneys may help explain the link between stress and high-blood pressure, a researcher said Saturday.

A study conducted by researchers at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and published Friday in the journal Science says psychological stress appears to reduce the kidneys' ability to remove excess sodium.

The study was the first to demonstrate that stress can influence the retention of sodium in humans, Dr. Paul Obrist, a psychologist at the university who assisted in the research, said in a telephone interview.

Obrist said the report indicated a link between the heart and kidneys in regulating blood pressure, but he said more work was necessary to firm up the evidence.

Dr. Kathleen Light, a UNC psychiatrist and principal investigator in the study, agreed that the research shed new light on high blood pressure, or hypertension.

"This work is new in that it ties together what many people have said are two separate environmental factors that contribute to high blood pressure — stress and salt in the diet," she said in a statement. Sodium is a component of salt.

Ms. Light said 40 healthy male students, ages 18-22, participated in the five-hour experiment.

Sixteen students served as control subjects, while the remaining 24 were divided into "high risk" and "low risk" groups.

"High risk" subjects showed borderline high blood pressure or had parents with high blood pressure. "Low risk" subjects had no personal or family history of hypertension.

Students drank a liter of water in the first hour and a fifth of a liter every 30 minutes for the next four hours. Their urine was analyzed for sodium every hour.

In the fourth hour, students were given competitive reaction time tests designed to increase their heart rates. Small awards of money for beating opponents increased stress, measured by electrocardiographs and remote-control blood pressure cuffs.

"High risk" students who had especially fast heart rates during the tests produced signifigantly less urine that the others and excreted signifigantly less sodium, the study showed. The other students showed slight increases in sodium excretion during stress and no change in fluid volume.

"We found that low-risk subjects (for high blood pressure) don't retain any sodium, while high-risk subjects did only if they were reactive with heart rate and blood pressure," Obrist said in a telephone interview.

Obrist said the next step is to find out how sodium influences blood pressure.

Ms. Light said personal differences in reaction to stress and resulting hypertension are difficult to explain, although the tendency appears to run in families.

She said animal research suggests stress causes the nervous system to alter either the kidneys' filtration rate or sodium reabsorption by an unknown mechanism.

Soles Submits Plea Of Innocence

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — State Sen. R.C. Soles, D-Columbus, says he is not guilty of influence-peddling charges stemming from the federal Colcor investigation of corruption in southeastern North Carolina.

Soles pleaded innocent Friday to charges he accepted a gold bracelet in exchange for promises to influence legislation governing precious metals dealers.

Soles, 48, posted bond of $20,000 after arraignment before U.S. Magistrate Franklin Block. He will be tried in Fayetteville May 23.

U.S. Attorney Doug McCullough said Fayetteville was chosen as the trial site because of scheduling problems, not because of pretrial publicity. Court action in Colcor has been limited to Wilmington and Raleigh.

Soles was indicted March 15 by a federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to affect commerce by extortion.

He is accused of conspiring with others to influence the outcome of a mixed drink referendum in Bolton and with promising to try to modify state legislation to place restrictions on precious metals dealers.

Five others also pleaded innocent to charges stemming from Colcor, and six defendants — including Brunswick County Sheriff Herman Strong — pleaded innocent to charges stemming from a probe of drug trafficking in Brunswick County.

In arraignments related to Colcor:

— Sandy White Jr., 46, and Howard Franklin Watts, 48, both pleaded innocent to charges of damage and destruction by explosives of property affecting interstate commerce and conspiring to commit the offense.

They are accused of burning the Clarkton Farmer's Exchange in Clarkton on Dec. 28, 1980.

Stevens Center Opens

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Activities marking the opening of the new $10.2 million Roger L. Stevens Center for the performing arts continued Saturday with tours, a play, and an award ceremony.

The National Artist Award was to be presented Saturday night to Stevens by the American National Theatre and Academy, and Cole Porter's "Kiss Me Kate" was to be performed. The award ceremony was to feature tributes to Stevens by numerous national and international celebrities.

Stevens is a famous broadway producer whose credits include "A Man For All Seasons," "West Side Story," and "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof." He is a longtime arts patron who established the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington.

A reception in Winston Square was scheduled after the performance.

Daytime activities included backstage tours of classes and rehearsals at the North Carolina School of the Arts and a brunch hosted by the school's chancellor, Robert Suderburg. Tours also were provided to some of the city's cultural and historic sites.

Actor Gregory Peck hosted the center's lavish opening Friday night. Women in evening gowns and men in tuxedos elbowed their way toward velvet ropes to watch stars enter the building on a red carpet rolled to the curb.

In addition to Peck, celebrities included author and producer Agnes DeMille, actor Cliff Robertson, actress Jean Stapleton, violinist Isaac Stern, actress Zoe Caldwell and conductor Leonard Bernstein.

Political figures included former president and Mrs. Gerald Ford, Gov. and Mrs. James B. Hunt Jr., and Charlotte Mayor Eddie Knox.

"Any community that can do what Winston-Salem has done deserves great, great credit," Ford said at the $250 a ticket gala opening.

The concert hall and ornate 1920s movie theater that has undergone major structural renovations was funded through federal grants, corporate donations, city officials and private contributions. School officials said they named the center after Stevens in hopes of drawing interest outside North Carolina.

The Stevens Center is part of the North Carolina School of the Arts, the nation's only state-supported residential high school and college for the performing arts. It has more than 700 students from 46 states and 11 countries.

The center also will be the pemanent home for the North Carolina Dance Theatre, Piedmont Opera Theatre and the Winston-Salem Symphony.

Emerald Isle Opposes Move

EMERALD ISLE, N.C. (AP) — The Emerald Isle Board of Commissioners voted 4-1 Friday to oppose the reincorporation of Inlet Dunes, which contains a house owned by Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, who filed a bill to allow the secession.

However, the board approved a bill filed by four state House members to open a public parking lot for tourists in the Inlet Dunes area and to close a ramp there that allows four-wheel vehicles on the beach.

Emerald Isle Mayor Richard Smith said the bills address to an issue that has split the town for 10 years — public access to area beaches. He said some Inlet Dunes residents oppose letting non-residents enter the beach at all, while others back the compromise that would cut out four-wheel drive vehicles while allowing public parking.

Gold Whips Purple In Soggy Scrimmage

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It may have been a dark and stormy night, but the Gold team was playing for more than Peanuts last night in the annual Purple-Gold scrimmage game that wound up spring drills.

The Gold whipped up on the Purple, 21-12, dominating the early part of the game, and will reap the rewards — a steak dinner Monday night, while the Purple losers not only have to serve up the dish, but will eat beans in the bargain.

As the rains washing through Ficklen Stadium got heavier and heavier as the game went on, it became obvious that the man of the hour was quarterback John Williams, a junior who transfered in last fall and was completing his first spring with the Pirates.

"I was very pleased with John Williams' play," Coach Ed Emory said afterwards. That may have been an understatement.

Williams guided the Gold to three scores, rushed ten times for 58 yards and was a perfect six-for-six through the air for 83 yards.

Earnest Byner rushed for two scores for the Gold, on runs of five and nine yards, while Pat Bowens, a freshman redshirt, scored once from 25 yards out. The Purple got TD's on a one yard run by Kevin Ingram, and a 32-yard pass from Ingram to Howard Berger. Both of those came in the final quarter of the game.

Overall, the Gold rushed for a total of 275 yards and with the passing had a total of 358 yards offense — on a field that wasn't the best to start with and got worse as the wet game went on.

Ingram was held more in check by the Gold defense, rushing for only 21 yards on 12 rushes, and hitting just three of eight passes for 89 yards — however, one of his throws was dropped in the end zone for what could have been a game-tightening touchdown.

The Purple finished up with 175 yards rushing and 89 passing, for 264 total.

"Under the conditions, I was very well pleased with the game," Emory said. "It was a good job offensively, considering the rain. Both staffs did an exceptional job.

"We had planned to throw the ball more, spending two-thirds of our time on the passing game in the spring. But the conditions were not real good to throw more."

Emory was pleased with the rushing of the fullbacks — especially Byner. Byner, on nine carries, had 78 yards and two touchdowns. Reggie Branch, on the Purple squad, had 83 yards on 11 carries. Bowens, Byner's backup, picked up 62 yards on nine carries.

Not that the tailbacks didn't contribute. The Gold's Bubba Bunn carried nine times for 54 yards, while the Purple's Tony Baker picked up 58 yards on ten lugs.

"Branch and Byner really looked good at times, and Bunn did some good things also," Emory said.

The Gold, which Emory felt had the better linemen, dominated early play, scoring on its first two possessions. Williams guided an 80-yard, 13-play drive on the game's opening series for the first score. He hit transfer Henry Williams for 12 yards early one, moving the ball to near midfield, while Bunn had 10 and 12 yard scampers late in the drive to put the ball on the five for Byner's final drive up the middle for the score.

Jeff Heath, who continued his perfect kicking on the night, booted the first of three extra points.

The Purple came back behind Ingram to drive right back down the field, but that ended on the Gold 33, when Baker fumbled and Kenny Phillips recovered for the Gold.

It took Williams only six plays to engineer a 69-yard drive. He hit Stefon Adams for 17 yards on first down, then two plays later, Byner broke away for 15. Williams hit Norwood Vann for 20 more, and two plays later, Byner took it through the middle for the final nine yards making it 14-0 with 13 seconds left in the first period.

Early in the second frame, the Purple got a break when Williams punted the ball off the side of his foot for only four yards at the Gold 45. "I don't understand that," Emory said. "He's really been booming 'em in practice."

Second stringer Brian Herndon moved the team down to the 30, helped along by a nine-yard pass interference call, but on fourth down, Ricky Nichols dropped Ingram's pass into the end zone.

Late in the half, the Purple got off another drive, moving to the Gold 18, with a 48-yard pass from Ingram to Nichols setting things up, but a fourth-down pass fell incomplete.

The Gold came quickly back to move down field as Williams moved them from the 18 to the 33 in five plays, but on the final play of the half, a 50-yard field goal try by Heath was aborted when Jeff Bolch fumbled the snap.

Chris McLawhorn, a former Rose High School star, got the second half off with a bang when he returned the opening kickoff 57 yards, and was just hauled down by the final defender, saving a touchdown. The drive stalled again, however, at the 17 after Branch picked up 29 yards on three quick carries.

The Gold then drove again for its final score. From the 17, Williams led the way on six plays, keeping for 14 yards on the third, then hitting Henry Williams for 12 on the second. Byner then broke away for 32 yards to the 25, and Bowers went the rest of the way on the next play.

Heath then made it 21-0.

Another short punt gave the Gold good field position at the Purple 44, but it bogged down and Heath kicked a 37-yard field goal only to have it nullified by a proceedure penalty. A 42-yard try which followed was wide of the target.

The Purple, on the first drive of the final half, finally hit pay dirt. Ingram guided the team in from 75 yards out in six plays, one of them a 43-yard pass interference call against the Gold. Bunn then broke away for 22 yards to the five, and two plays later, Ingram dove over the line for the score. The Purple faked the kick, but Ingram, attempting to pass, slipped and fell.

As the rains increased, the Purple got it back late at its own 27 and again got a pass interference call of 21 yards to move the ball to midfield. Four plays later, Ingram hit Berger for the score from 32 yards out with 13 seconds left, and again a pass try for the conversion failed.

And that was it.

"Overall, the spring has been very positive," Emory said. "It's the best we've had since we've been here. Our guys have given great effort and great enthusiasm.

"We have the best talent ever with three pretty good fullbacks, three good tailbacks, four good tight ends, four exceptional receivers and two quarterbacks. Defensively, we are much better and our first lines are good. We just need some depth in the lines."

Johnson's Homers Lift Pirates

ECU Downs Campbell

By WOODY PEELE

Winfred Johnson cracked two home runs, the last to lead off the tenth inning as East Carolina pulled out an 8-7 baseball victory over Campbell University Saturday afternoon.

The contest, delayed over an hour due to rains, saw four homers by the Pirates and two by the Camels during the afternoon. In addition to Johnson's two, Jabo Fulghum and Todd Evans each hit one out, while Mickey Kradle and Spicer had them for Campbell, the latter a grand-slam.

The second Johnson homer capped a rally from a 7-4 deficit by the Pirates that had seen them push over the tying run in the bottom of the ninth.

Robby McClanahan got the victory, his second against three losses, going the final four and two-thirds innings. He struck out six and allowed just two hits.

"I really felt that it was important to play this game today," Coach Hal Baird said. "It was important to get in it and to win it.

"Johnson has been a joy to us this year, and he showed it today."

The win was the 18th for the Pirates this year, who have lost 15 and tied one. Campbell is now 20-13-1.

Campbell started the scoring in the third inning, getting a lead-off homer from the catcher, Kradle.

The Pirates quickly countered that when ECU catcher Fulghum hit it out of the park in the bottom of the inning to knot it at 1-1.

The Pirates then pushed into the lead in the bottom of the fourth. With one away, John Hallow singled to right and scored when Evans slammed the ball out of the park in right for a 3-1 edge. Johnson followed with his first homer to up it to 4-1.

But Campbell came back with five in the top of the fifth to move ahead again. Tom Lynch opened the inning, getting hit by a pitch. With one down, Steve Regner singled and Ron Ammons reached on a single off the glove of Johnson. That loaded the bases and Spicer hit his grand-slam to push the Camels into the lead.

They added an insurance run when Bob Posey doubled and scored on a hit by Kevin Barger.

A seventh Camel run scored in the sixth. Kradle doubled and courtesy runner Rodney Stovall was sacrificed to third, scoring with Spicer singled.

East Carolina pulled back within one with a pair in the sixth. Johnson opened with a double and moved up on an out. Mark Shank walked and stole second. An error on the play let Johnson score and moved Shank to third. He then scored on a wild pitch.

East Carolina finally tied it up at 7-7 with a run in the bottom of the ninth. Kelly Robinette led off with a double to right center, moving up on a sacrifice. He scored on Hallow's sacrifice fly.

That set the stage for Johnson, who hit second pitch of the bottom of the tenth out of the park in right field — his tenth round-tripper of the season.

The total leaves him only two off the ECU school record of 12 in a season, set by Butch Davis in 1981.

Johnson led the hitting with three, while Evans and Tony Salmond each had two. Ammons, Spicer, Lynch, Kradle and Regner each had a pair for Campbell.

Wadkins Pleased By MONY Lead

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) -Lanny Wadkins's eyes opened wide when he was informed he had been given sole control of the lead in the $400,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions.

"Well, surprise, surprise," said Wadkins, who was in the clubhouse discussing his round of 71 when Hal Sutton 3-putted for bogey on the 18th hole and dropped out of a tie for the top spot.

"I am surprised, really, to be leading, considering how I played today. It was very hard work. I didn't expect to be leading; but I'll take it," said Wadkins, the defending title-holder in this elite event that brings together only the winners of PGA Tour titles from the last 12 months.

"No," he responded to a question, "I've never won the same tournament two years in a row.

"But there's a first time for everything. The big thing about being a defending champion is that you know you can win, you know you can win on this golf course."

Wadkins, who one-putted the last three holes he played, finished three rounds at 208, eight shots under par on the 6,911 yard La Costa Country Club course.

Sutton, playing a full hole behind Wadkins, was tied for the top until he 3-putted the 18th shortly after the national television cameras completed their coverage for the day.

Sutton, winner of the Tournament Players Championship earlier in the season, had a round of par 72 for the day and was tied at 209, a single shot off the pace, with Jay Haas. Haas closed up with a 3-under-par 69 in the cool, breezy weather.

Gary Hallberg, with a 68 that represented the best round of the day, was next at 210, only two strokes back going into Sunday's final round of the chase for a $72,000 first prize.

Gary Koch and PGA champion Ray Floyd were next at 212, four under par and four off the pace. Koch had a 69 and Floyd 72 despite a double bogey-6 on the final hole, where he broke a club coming out of tree trouble, failed to reach the green in regulation and eventually 3-putted.

Jack Nicklaus, a 5-time winner of this event and tied for the lead at the start of the third round, shot himself out of it with a 77 that put him at 214.

Nicklaus said the back problem that forced him to withdraw from the Masters wasn't to blame.

"My back had nothing to do with it," he said. "I just didn't play very well. I played about as well as I scored."

When a small boy came out of the gallery and asked Nicklaus for a golf ball, the golfer replied "I lost them all."

Maybe he didn't lose them all, but he put one in the water on the fifth and made double bogey. He once made a 12-footer for bogey and seemed to be in various forms of trouble all day.

"Well," he said, "it won't be the last bad round I play."

Tom Watson, holder of the U.S. and British Open titles, shot a 71 and was at 219, well out of the hunt.

Wadkins started poorly, with bogeys on the first two holes, but got one of the strokes back with a 60-foot birdie putt on the third.

He reached the par-5 12th in two and 2-putted for a birdie, then bogeyed the next after driving in the rough.

He holed a 15-footer on the 14th for birdie, then made a critical save from a bunker on the 16th.

Wadkins flipped a 9-iron third shot to about six feet and made birdie-4 on the 17th just about the time that Sutton bogeyed the 16th from a bunker.

The 2-shot swing gave Wadkins the lead alone, but Sutton followed with a tap-in birdie on the 17th and tied him again.

Petry Fires Six-Hitter To Lead Detroit

DETROIT (AP) — Veteran right-hander Milt Wilcox has been a tough act for Detroit pitchers to follow lately, but the Tigers' Dan Petry showed again Saturday that he's equal to the task.

Petry fired a six-hitter and got all the firepower he needed when Larry Herndon knocked in three runs with a first-inning triple as the Tigers blanked the Seattle Mariners 4-0.

"I went home last night and said, 'OK, I want to throw a shutout today, too,'" Petry said. "Milt's a tough act to follow. I said in Chicago, last Saturday, there's no way I can duplicate that near-perfect game. It doesn't put pressure on you, but you don't want to get yanked in the third inning, either."

Pitching on April 16, the day after Wilcox came within one out of a perfect game, Petry went 7 1-3 innings and allowed just eight hits but was lifted by Manager Sparky Anderson after giving up a homer that tied the game 1-1. The White Sox eventually won 3-1.

Friday night, Wilcox blanked the Mariners 4-0 and it was Petry's turn again.

Against Seattle, Petry was never in serious trouble until the ninth inning when a walk to Steve Henderson and a single by Richie Zisk put runners on first and second with one out. However, a trip to the mound by pitching coach Roger Craig settled Petry down and the 24-year-old right-hander retired the next two batters to end the game.

"When you average one run for every 13 innings, like we have done the last few games, you're not going to win many," Mariners' Manager Rene Lachemann said. "I told them when we came into the clubhouse that it's done, it's over, but I don't want any quitters in here."

It was the first successive complete-game shutouts by Detroit pitchers since Jack Billingham and Jim Slaton turned the trick Aug. 5-6, 1978. Petry lowered his ERA to 2.01.

Petry, 3-0, improved his lifetime record against Seattle to 6-2. In his last 40 innings against the Mariners, Petry has allowed just two runs. Petry struck out four and walked two.

Lou Whitaker and Howard Johnson hit successive singles in the Detroit first and Mariners starter Mike Moore, 0-3, hit Kirk Gibson with a pitch to load the bases before Herndon tripled them all home for a 3-0 Detroit lead.

The Tigers scored again in the third when Lance Parrish hit a two-out triple and trotted home when Moore uncorked a wild pitch while facing Herndon.

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Piniella, the New York Yankees' elder statesman, was in the starting lineup Saturday for the first time this season and immediately set about rapping out base hits.

But it was Piniella's 39-year-old legs and daring on the bases that brought home the go-ahead run in a six-run third inning that carried the Yankees to a 7-4 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

The Yankees had erased a 3-1 deficit on Piniella's RBI single — the first of his two hits — and Butch Wynegar's run-scoring double. Piniella went to third on Wynegar's hit and, after rounding the bag and stopping, dashed home when left fielder Gary Ward double-pumped before returning tha ball to the infield.

"I just saw the outfielder double-clutch and I figured I had a good chance to score," said Piniella, who had been on the disabled list with a jammed shoulder until Friday. "I very seldom use the third base coach. I have a pretty good awareness of the outfielders — where they're playing, how they throw — and I pre-determine in my mind whether I have a chance to score. I'm not the young guy I used to be and I've never been quick, but I've always had good instincts."

Wynegar's game-tying double gave him five hits in eight at-bats this season with runners in scoring position, after leading the Yankees in that department last year with a .417 average.

"Don't ask me why," he said. "I have no idea. Maybe I just concentrate a little bit harder. I know where I like the ball, and I probably become more selective. RBIs are nice."

Besides, Wynegar, Willie Randolph and Roy Smalley also delivered RBI doubles in the six-run third, with Wynegar's double the eighth hit in the Yanbkees' 14-hit atack.

Shane Rawley, 3-0, scattered eight hits for his third straight complete-game victory.

Wynegar's double tied the score 3-3 and Piniella scored the go-ahead run on his dash home when Ward hesitated relaying the ball.

That chased O'Connor, and one out later, after reliever Pete Filson walked Andre Robertson, Randolph laced a two-run double and then scored on a double by Smalley.

Smalley had doubled in the first inning and scored on Kemp's single for a 1-0 lead.

The Twins scored three times with two outs in the top of the third on Darrell Brown's infield hit, Rawley's wild pitch, John Castino's RBI single and Ward's second home run of the season. Minnesota added a run in the fifth on consecutive doubles by Lenny Faedo and Brown.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Pat Tabler readily admitted that it was a pleasure beating the Chicago White Sox — the team that traded him away earlier this month.

Tabler drove in five runs as the Cleveland Indians defeated the White Sox 6-3 Saturday.

"I wanted to do well and beat them," said Tabler, a third baseman who was acquired by Cleveland on April 1 for shortstop Jerry Dybzinski.

"When you get traded from another club, you want to show them they made a mistake," Tabler said.

The White Sox had obtained Tabler as part of a multi-player trade with the Chicago Cubs during the offseason. They had big plans for the 25-year-old right-handed hitter, but somewhere along the way, things went awry.

Tabler said the White Sox dealt him to Cleveland for Dybzinski because they felt they were "kind of thin at shortstop — felt they needed protection."

Tabler was sent to Cleveland's Class AAA club, the Charleston (W.Va.) Charlies of the International League, to begin the regular season, but was called up on April 18 when third baseman Toby Harrah broke a bone in his hand.

In five games with Cleveland, Tabler is hitting .444.

"I feel very good about things, but it's a long season, so I'm not going to get too excited," Tabler said.

Len Barker and Ed Glynn combined on a six-hitter and Tabler collected a single and a triple, both with the bases loaded, in Saturday's victory.

Barker, 3-1, gave up four hits, struck out eight and walked two in 7 1-3 innings before Glynn came on to finish up.

Cleveland took a 3-0 lead against Dennis Lamp, 2-2, in the bottom of the fourth. With one out, Mike Hargrove singled and moved to second when third baseman Lorenzo Gray misplayed Andre Thornton's grounder. George Vukovich was intentionally walked to load the bases.

Tabler then singled home two runs. Rick Manning was intentionally walked to reload the bases before Ron Hassey singled in another run.

The Indians made it 6-0 in the fifth when they loaded the bases on an error, a walk and a fielder's choice and Tabler followed with his base-clearing triple.

Chicago scored in the seventh on Harold Baines' double and Greg Luzinski's single. The White Sox added two more in the eighth against Barker.

Stacy Outbattles LPGA Field For Three-Stroke S&H Classic Lead

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Hollis Stacy outbattled gusting wind and a steady rain that created havoc with a red-hot LPGA field to post a 3-under-par 69 and take a three-stroke lead after three rounds of the $150,000 S&H Golf Cllassic.

Stacy, an 11-time tour winner, finished the day with a 54-hole total of 11-under-par 205 while second-round leaders Janet Coles and JoAnne Carner fell three and five shots off her pace, respectively.

Jo Ann Washam was six shots behind the leader at 5-under 211 and Lori Huxhold was next a 212. Deedee Lasker, Debbie Meisterlin and Alice Miller were bunched at 213.

The adverse weather caused scores to soar on the 6,023-yard Pasadena Golf Club course that yielded the lowest cut ever on the women's tour Friday — 2-over-par 146.

Stacy and Alexandra Reinhardt, who shot a 68, were the only golfers among the 79 surviving the cut to break par Saturday. Three players — Brenda Goldsmith, Bonnie Bryant and Huxhold — shot par 72s.

Thursday's opening round saw 67 players match or break par and 62 were at par or lower after 36 holes of the 72-hole event.

Stacy, Coles and Carner played in the same threesome Saturday and made the nine-hole turn tied for the lead at 9-under-par for the tournament.

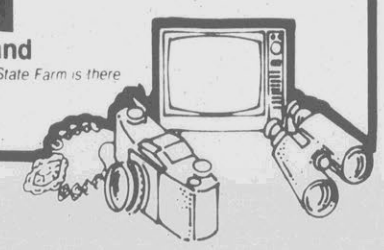

Stacy, who was one shot behind Coles and Carner when the day began, made her move with birdies on No. 14 and 18, while the second-round leaders faltered.

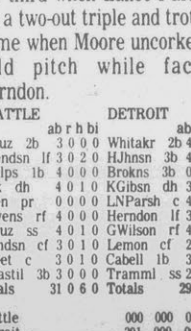

Carner managed par on each of the first nine holes, but started to flag with a bogey on the par-4, 369-yard 10th. She birdied 12, but bogeyed 13, 15 and 16 and completed the round with a 75 that gave her a 6-under-par 210 total.

Coles, who had two birdies and two bogeys on the front nine, stayed in contention by matching par on holes 10 through 15. She dropped a stroke with a bogey at 16 and finished at 8-under 208 after a round of 73.

Stacy, meanwhile, sandwiched a pair of bogeys around three birdies on the front side to pull even with Coles and Carner. She sank a 5-foot birdie putt on No. 14 to take the lead from Coles and dropped an 8-footer on 18 to extend her advantage to three strokes.

Hammaker Flirts With No-Hitter, Beats Cubs 5-0

CHICAGO (AP) — Atlee Hammaker, claiming he didn't have his best stuff, said he considered himself lucky Saturday. Maybe he was.

After all, he did give up three hits and walked a batter in pitching the San Francisco Giants to a 5-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

"I was fortunate," said Hammaker, a 25-year-old left-hander. "I didn't have a good breaking ball and my fastball left me at the end. I was lucky to get the shutout, but I'll take one any time I can get it."

Although it was another brilliant effort, Hammaker's second straight shutout was not as impressive as his last outing, in which he threw a two-hitter and had a perfect game against Cincinnati until Johnny Bench singled to open the eighth.

Still, Hammaker lowered his earned run average to 0.75. He didn't allow a hit until Larry Bowa singled to open the sixth inning and he finally issued his first walk of the season in the seventh inning after Ron Cey had singled with two out.

"I've always had good control," said Hammaker, who didn't know how much he was helped by a 23 mph wind blowing in and added, "Maybe it held up some extra base hits. But who knows? We got one out."

That was a two-run homer by Chili Davis, who also drove in a run with a sacrifice fly.

"They got him five runs early and with the wind blowing in all he did was throw fastballs and challenge the hitters," said Cub Manager Lee Elia. "He has uncanny control for a left-hander."

Hammaker, 2-1, issued his first walk this season after 21 2-3 innings to Leon Durham in the seventh before ending the inning by retiring Keith Moreland on a fly to right. Ryne Sandberg singled in the ninth for Chicago's other hit.

The Giants jumped on loser Steve Trout, 1-3, for a pair of runs in the first inning on a walk to Johnnie LeMaster, a triple by Joel Youngblood and a sacrifice fly by Davis.

Youngblood singled to open a three-run third and scored on Davis' fifth home run. Jack Clark then reached on center fielder Durham's three-base error and scored on Jeff Leonard's sacrifice fly.

Los Angeles .....3
Pittsburgh .....2

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When the Los Angeles Dodgers need a hit in a pinch, they turn to Jose Morales.

The 38-year-old Morales, the Dodgers' oldest player, stroked a one-out, pinch-hit double in the seventh inning to give Los Angeles a 3-2 victory over the slumping Pittsburgh Pirates in a nationally televised game Saturday.

Morales' hit came off loser John Candelaria, 2-1, and scored Bill Russell, who had walked and moved to second on Steve Yeager's sacrifice.

"He's an amazing man," Dodgers Manager Tom Lasorda said of Morales. "He's always prepared physically and mentally for what he has to do. He's always ready to hit, and that's a tough job."

Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner held a brief clubhouse meeting after the game, but said he wasn't angry at his team. The Pirates started the season 5-0 but have since lost seven of eight games, including five of six at home.

"I told them not to let a couple of games get them down," Tanner said. "We've only got 149 or 150 more games to go, and we're going to be a pennant contender capable of winning it all."

Tanner defended his decision to let Dave Parker, playing for the first time in two weeks, bat with two out and two on in the bottom of the eighth against reliever Steve Howe. Parker, who had struck out three times previously, fanned on four pitches.

"He's a big guy on our club," Tanner said. "I've seen Parker get hits off Howe, off Steve Carlton, off a lot of left-handers. I told him not to worry about it, because he could come out here tomorrow and get four hits."

Parker was asked if the layoff, which resulted from a hamstring pull, had affected his timing at the plate.

"You saw it. I only got one foul ball in four at-bats," he said. "Sure, my timing is off. But I'm a regular, I'm not a platoon player. This is the first time I've ever struck out four times and I hope it's the last time. I've struck out three times, but never four times."

Parker was booed loudly after each strikeout, but he said, "Dave Parker isn't going to give up on himself as fast as the fans."

Pedro Guerrero gave the Dodgers a 2-0 lead in the first inning when he belted a 3-1 pitch from Candelaria into the third deck of the left field seats. The home run, his second in as many games and his fifth of the season, scored Steve Sax, who had led off with a double.

The Pirates got back a run in the first when Lee Lacy's line drive bounced over the head of center fielder Ken Landreaux for a triple and Lee Mazzilli's fly to short right field scored Lacy.

The Pirates got a short-lived 2-2 tie in the sixth when Jason Thompson lined a home run over the right field wall, his third of the season.

Bob Welch, 1-2, worked the first six innings for his first victory. Howe worked the final 1 1-3 innings for his third save.

Blanchard Recovering After Spleen Removal, Biopsies

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Paul Blanchard, who announced recently that he would not be playing with the University of Minnesota baseball team this season because he has Hodgkin's disease, is recovering following surgery at University Hospitals.

Blanchard, the son of former New York Yankee star Johnny Blanchard, underwent surgery Tuesday for removal of his spleen and for biopsies on his liver.

"I feel pretty good," Blanchard said Thursday. "My tests turned out negative. That's good. That means the Hodgkin's isn't in my abdomen or in my bone marrow. Now I can go ahead and start radiation and chemotherapy. But somehow, first, they're going to have to let me rest up."

Hodgkin's disease is a malignancy characterized by inflammatory enlargement of the lymph nodes, spleen and often the liver and kidneys.

"They removed anything in there they didn't like," Blanchard said. "It was a long incision. It starts from my sternum, or solar plexus, and goes a couple of inches below my belly button...however long that is on a 5-foot-11 person. They also took out a lymph node in my groin."

Blanchard was in a three-way battle for the catcher's position on the baseball team before he was sidelined. He batted .267 in six games this spring.

He also has been a punter on the University of Minnesota football team, and said he hopes to be back on the football field this fall.

Blanchard said he discovered lumps on his neck and chest about two months ago — "... a really big lump on my neck and chest, and two other smaller ones on my collar bone. I was itching all the time. My whole body itched all over. That's one of the symptoms of Hodgkin's."

He said doctors did biopsies on the enlarged lymph nodes and found them to be cancerous. He said a check of his bone marrow about two weeks ago showed that the Hodgkin's had not spread into the marrow.

Blanchard said his Hodgkin's is in the second stage.

"The first stage is when it's pretty much in one spot, like the left side of the chest, above the diaphragm. The second stage is above the diaphragm in two sides of the chest. Third stage is abdomen and chest and fourth stage is bone marrow and all over," he explained.

"They told me there's a real high prognosis, 80 percent curable, and I felt good about that," he added.

Blanchard said doctors told him he shouldn't do anything strenuous for six weeks, but he said he should be able to play football this fall. He has another year of eligibility in both football and baseball.

Martin Fined

NEW YORK (AP) — Manager Billy Martin of the New York Yankees has been fined $5,000 by Lee MacPhail, American League president, for a heated exchange with an umpire and for comments about umpiring in the Yankees' season opener.

"I'm not going to argue it," Martin said Friday night. "He's the president and I'm going to accept whatever he says."

Higueras-Smid In Grand Prix Final

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) - Top-seeded Jose Higueras of Spain ended a spectacular run by Sweden's 17-year-old Stefan Edberg by beating him 6-1, 6-1 in the semifinals of the $140,000 Grand Prix State Express Classic Saturday.

Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia overcame Victor Pecci of Paraguay 4-6, 6-2, 10-8 in the other semifinal.

The final is set for Sunday.

Edberg played through the qualifying competition to get into the tournament and sensationally made the semi-finals by upsetting fifth-seeded Balazs Taroczy of Hungary Friday.

But the young Swede could make no impression on Higueras. The Spaniard raced to a 6-1, 3-1 lead before heavy rain caused a stoppage of two hours. Then Higueras resumed his march to the final.

The final set of the Smid-Pecci was a tense, closely contested affair lasting 68 minutes. Smid led 2-0, and Pecci was warned for slamming a ball out of the court. But the Paraguayan came back to lead 3-2 and was in contention right up to the 17th game, when Smid broke his service for a 9-8 lead.

NFL Eyes USFL As 1983 Draft Approaches

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League, with one eye on college talent and the other on the United States Football League, conducts its annual player draft Tuesday. It will be a one-day affair which could run 20 hours or more.

In the past, the draft has been spread over two days, the first generally running from 9 a.m. EST until about 9 p.m., the second from 9 a.m. until midafternoon. But in the first major change since 1977, when the draft was reduced from 17 rounds to 12, the NFL is packing it all into one marathon session, beginning at 8 a.m.

The reason, the league says, is twofold. Several teams, Baltimore and Dallas among them, have lobbied for a one-day draft. More important, though, is the emergence of the USFL, which has already spirited away some top collegiate talent.

NFL executives have expressed their concern that, after the first day of six or so rounds, USFL agents would fan out, pressuring still-undrafted and perhaps disenchanted collegians to sign with the new league.

Chet Simmons, the USFL commissioner, denies any such intentions, but he's delighted the NFL changed its draft plan. "That means they've noticed us," he said. "That's the first thing — to get noticed. It's like that joke about the guy who's talking to his mule and hits it in the head with a 2-by-4. 'First, you've got to get his attention,' he says." The NFL also is considering moving future drafts up to Feb. 1. One benefit: to cut down on the USFL's head start in drafting and signing collegians.

The USFL has, indeed, caught the NFL's attention. Last January it conducted its first draft and signed a spate of players including such sure NFL first-rounders as halfback Kelvin Bryant, fullbacks Craig James and Tim Spencer, quarterback Reggie Collier, wide receivers Trumaine Johnson and Anthony Carter, tackle Irv Eatman and safety David Greenwood.

Those players and perhaps 50 others under contract to USFL teams still will be drafted by NFL teams to retain their future negotiation rights.

The USFL grabbed one star from the NFL but missed another.

The New Jersey Generals signed Georgia tailback Herschel Walker to a three-year, $5 million contract. Walker would not have been eligible for this year's NFL draft, being an underclassman.

The Oakland Invaders went after the unquestioned No. 1 choice in the NFL draft, Stanford quarterback John Elway, offering him what amounted to a $6 million lifetime contract, plus an undetermined annual salary for playing, along with a piece of the club.

Elway is rated by scouts in the Joe Namath-Terry Bradshaw class, the kind of player around whom winning teams are built, although Stanford was only 15-18 in his past three seasons there.

Even though Elway said no to the USFL, the NFL still has competition for his services. He is an outstanding outfielder as well and, as the No. 1 pick of the New York Yankees in baseball's 1981 amateur free-agent draft, was paid an estimated $140,000 to play for their Class A farm team, Oneonta of the New York-Penn League, last summer. He batted .318 with six doubles, a triple, four homers and 24 runs batted in — and has said the Yankees are still very much in the running.

Among the other blue-chip prospects up for bidding are Penn State quarterback Todd Blackledge, fullback James Jones of Florida, halfbacks Eric Dickerson of Southern Methodist and Curt Warner of Penn State, wide receivers Willie Gault of Tennessee and Gary Anderson of Arkansas, tight end Tony Hunter of Notre Dame, offensive linemen Dave Rimington of Nebraska, Bruce Matthews of Southern California and Jimbo Covert of Pitt, defensive linemen Mike Pitts of Alabama, Jim Jeffcoat of Arizona State, Mike Charles of Syracuse and Gabe Rivera of Texas Tech, linebacker Billy Ray Smith of Arkansas and defensive backs Tim Lewis of Pitt and Terry Kinard of Clemson.

The first-round order of the draft is Baltimore, Houston, the Los Angeles Rams, Denver, San Diego, Chicago, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Seattle, the New York Giants, Green Bay, Buffalo, Detroit, Buffalo, New England, Atlanta, St. Louis, Chicago, Minnesota, San Diego, Pittsburgh, San Francisco, Dallas, the New York Jets, Cincinnati, the Los Angeles Raiders, Miami and the Super Bowl-champion Washington Redskins. Buffalo, Chicago and San Diego each have two first-round picks, the result of previous trades.

Elway has said that if he does play in the NFL he would rather it be for a West Coast team or for the Dallas Cowboys. And there have been published reports that the Colts have been told he would just as soon not play for them.

It wouldn't be the first time a college star has tried to narrow the field of teams thinking about drafting him. In 1977, Tony Dorsett insisted he'd never play for Seattle, so the Seahawks traded their first-round pick — No. 2 overall after Tampa Bay picked Ricky Bell — to Dallas for its first-round pick — No. 14 overall — and three second-round picks.

Cleveland Stadium Dispute Continues As Indians' President Calls Offer 'Sham'

CLEVELAND (AP) — The battle between Cleveland Browns owner Art Modell, whose Stadium Corp. operates Cleveland Stadium, and Indians President Gabe Paul over the Indians' lease escalated Saturday when Paul called Modell's latest stadium proposal a "sham."

Earlier this week, Modell said he was tired of serving as stadium landlord and offered to return control of all stadium facilities, except the logos, to the city of Cleveland, which owns the structure.

Modell indicated that his proposal was motivated at least in part by his inability to hammer out a new lease agreement with the Indians.

The baseball team's lease with the stadium expires at the end of the year. Modell accused the Indians of seeking a subsidy from the stadium on the next lease.

Modell said he would relinquish control of the stadium, which he has controlled under a contract with the city since 1974, if the city would pay him $10.1 million, the amount he said he has spent on stadium improvements. The proposal allowed Modell to retain control of the stadium loges under a 20-year, $25 million lease.

The Stadium Corp.'s contract to operate the stadium has 15 years remaining.

"First, the Indians are not seeking a subsidy," Paul said Saturday in a prepared statement. "All we want is a fair and normal rental agreement in keeping with the leases our competitor clubs have. Our negotiating team ... have been rebuffed in their efforts to resolve the issue."

Paul estimated that Modell's Stadium Corp. has "generated more than $30 million in the last 10 years in income from baseball related matters."

"The efforts of the Browns to wheedle more than $10 million from the city to surrender the lease while retaining the concession contract and control of the loges is a sham," Paul said. "If successful, they will have staged one of the greatest coups in the history of Cleveland, at the city's expense."

Paul said the Indians, in their next stadium lease, are seeking:

—Approval rights over concession prices and the types of merchandise offered.

—A percentage of parking revenues and a greater percentage of concession income.

—Full control of the playing field.

—A fair share of stadium advertising.

—A fair share of loge income.

—A fair share of any other baseball-related income.

Byrd Sets Record To Lead Rampettes

WILSON — Jennifer Byrd set a new Rose High School record and took first place in the 100 hurdles to lead the Rampettes to a fifth place finish in the Beddingfield Invitational Track Meet.

Rose finished with 58 points, while Northern High School from Durham was first, followed Athens Drive of Raleigh, Goldsboro and Wilson Fike.

The Rampettes will compete in the Big East Conference Meet Wednesday at Wilson Hunt.

Other events and the results Rose posted in them are:

Discus: Tarsha Williams (5th) 78-3¾.
Triple jump: Doris Richardson (5th) 33-5½.

400: Adams (4th) 1:03.2.

Farmville Central Unit Qualifies For Sectionals

WILSON — Farmville Central's 400-meter relay team of Patrice Payton, Tony Hargrove, Wesley Harris and Wesley Carmon placed second at the Beddingfield Invitational Track Meet with a time of 43.1 to set a new school record and qualify for the sectionals.

The sectionals will be held May 13 at Tarboro.

The 800 relay team of Payton, Hargrove, Harris and Calvin Tyson placed fourth with a time of 1:32.6. Carmon set a new school mark in the 100 meters with a time of 10.6 for fourth place.

Eric Faison took third place in the discus with a toss of 134-2.

Only the winners of six qualifying heats competed in the championship race, but Tony Hargrove's time of 40.12 in the 300 intermediate hurdles set a school record and was second fastest in qualifying. Wesley Carmon finished the 200-meters in 22.2 to narrowly miss qualifying, as well.

The Jaguars will host Greene Central, SouthWest Edgecombe and C.B. Aycock Monday, before traveling to a meet with the same schools Saturday.

Rampant Cubs Defeat Hunt

Rose High School's junior varsity gained a 5-3 baseball victory over Wilson Hunt Friday.

Gary Scott tossed the win, while Battle Emory led the Rampant Cubs at the plate with two hits and four runs batted in.

Now 4-1, the Cubs are idle next week, returning to action on Tuesday, May 3, against Rocky Mount.

Hoffman's Blasts Pace Camels By ECU

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Kelly Hoffman slammed two home runs and added a single as he drove in six runs to pace Campbell University to a 10-3 pasting of East Carolina University's baseball team Friday night.

Tony Salmond, not known for his power hitting, accounted for two of the Pirate runs, slamming a pair of homers also.

The Camels got effective pitching from Joe Stephenson, who went the distance to record his fourth win against as many losses. Stephenson allowed only seven hits, four of them coming in the final two innings. And except for the two homers by Salmond, allowed only two runners to reach as far as second base, one of them scoring. Ironically, four of the seven ECU hits were for extra bases.

East Carolina's Bob Davidson, the ace of the staff as a freshman last year, continued to be plagued by the sophomore jinx. He lasted only three and a third innings before being chased after giving up four his and five runs. Robby McClahanan followed but lasted only a third of an inning, being chased on two hits, one of them a three-run homer.

Charlie Smith went the rest of the way and was effective except for the final inning when he allowed two runs on a homer. He gave up only three hits in five and a third innings.

"We had played pretty good at Wilmington," Coach Hal Baird said, "and I thought maybe things were starting to go our way. But the bounces (of the ball) got us in trouble and we just couldn't get out of it. We didn't pitch or hit well enough to do it tonight."

Baird felt the Pirates were not out of it until Hoffman's first home run ran the score quickly from 5-1 to 8-1. "I think they kids still thought they could come back from 5-1, but being down 8-1 seemed to take some of the life out of them.

"Tony (Salmond) had his best night offensively, but nobody else hit the ball. I try to stop believing this way, but then something like this happens.

"The ironic part is that we still have a shot at the ECAC-South tournament. But we need to win a few of these final games."

Campbell got the action going in the first, scoring three times. Ron Ammons led off with an infield hit — something teams are doing a lot of against the Pirates this year — and Bobby Spicer followed with an opposite field double to right. With one down, Bob Posey doubled to center, scoring both Ammons and Spicer for a 2-0 lead.

The Camels added another run in the third. Posey got a one-out double to right and moved up on an infield out. He scored on Hoffman's single — the first of his six rbi's.

East Carolina got one of those runs back in the bottom of the third as Salmond got his first homer at East Carolina over the fence in left.

But the Camels quickly came back to put the game out of reach, scoring five times in the top of the fourth. Steve Regner opened with a walk and Ron Ammons' bunt was relayed to second, but not in time to get Regner, putting two on. With one away, Bill Wilkes walked, and that sent Davidson to the showers.

After getting one out, McClanahan gave up a single to Kevin Barger, scoring both Regner and Ammons. Hoffman then hit the first of his two homers, scoring Wilkes and Barger ahead of himself.

That ran the lead to 8-1 for the Camels.

East Carolina tried to put on a rally in the eighth, coming up with two runs. The first came off Salmond's second homer of the night, after one batter had been retired.

Mark Cockrell then followed with a pinch-hit double to left center that appeared to hit the top of the fence, or a limb on one of the pine trees that surround the field, and bounce back into the playing field. Robert Langston came on as a pinch runner, moving up on a single by Kelly Robinette and scoring on John Hallow's grounder to the mound that got Robinette at second.

Campbell got its final two runs in the ninth. After one out, Barger walked and Hoffman banged the ball out of the park in right to run the lead to 10-3.

East Carolina tried once more for a rally, as Winfred Johnson opened the ninth with a double, but the next three went down in order, ending that threat.

In addition to Hoffman's three hits, Ammons, Posey and Barger each had two for Campbell. Salmond and Robinette each had a pair for ECU.

The Pirates fall to 17-15-1 with the loss, while Campbell is now 20-12-1.

The two teams were scheduled to meet again Saturday in an afternoon contest.

Greene Central Stomps Cougars

PINETOPS — Greene Central plated eight runs on five hits and three errors in the first inning and cruised to a 25-7 trouncing of SouthWest Edgecombe Friday in Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference baseball action.

Richie Chase slapped two of his three hits in the first inning, one a double, to lead the Rams to their fifth conference win with just one loss. Elmer Dixon went the distance on the mound for Greene Central.

The Rams had 15 hits in all, with Chris Suggs batting 3-5 on the day and Tommy Goff 2-5. Catcher Todd Grant had a pair of hits including a bases-loaded double for Greene Central. Jeff Moore also rapped a pair of hits for the Rams.

Hank Farmer and Allen Wilson had a pair of hits each for the Cougars.

Greene Central, now 11-3 overall, travels to Farmville Central Wednesday for the Rams' only game of the week.

Rose Pounds Hunt, 10-1 For Sixth Big East Win

The victory was the tenth straight on the year for the Rampants and the sixth against Big East competition. Of those six wins, five of them have come on the road.

Bill Johnson and Mike Kinley proved the big guns for the Rampants, Johnson getting two hits that drove in four runs, and Kinley hurling a three-hitter at the Warriors. Hunt's lone run came in the sixth inning.

For Kinley, it was his first start in over two weeks. He had been sidelined with a sore back.

Rudy Stalls also continued his slugfest on the season, banging out two hits, both of them doubles.

"Kinley pitched real well," Coach Ronald Vincent said. "They loaded the bases up on him in the third inning with no one out, and he struck out the next two (the number three and four hitters) and got the next one to pop-up to end the inning."

Vincent, whose team won three games during the week with a total of 40 runs, added, "I think we're playing pretty well right now."

Rose got the scoring started in the second inning, pushing over a single run. Curtis Evans reached on a fielder's choice that left two men out. Mike Iaboni then came on as a courtesy runner, taking second on a steal. Bobby Buie followed with a run-scoring double.

Three more Rose runs crossed the plate in the third. Randy Warren walked and stole second — the first of three stolen bases in that inning for him. With two away, Kinley walked and Warren proceeded to steal third. Then, he and courtesy runner Toby Fischer pulled a double steal, with Warren scoring. Jeff Wilson singled, stole up, and both he and Fischer scored on Johnson's single. That made it 4-0.

Stalls opens the fourth inning with a double and scored on Traye Fuqua's single. Fuqua advanced on the relay home and scored when Kinley reached on a two-out error.

The final four runs came over in the top of the sixth, making it 10-0. Stalls again doubled and Warren walked. Kenny Kirkland singled, driving in Stalls. Kinley walked with Fischer running for him. Wilson singled in Warren, and Johnson's single brought in Kirkland and Fischer.

Hunt finally broke the ice with a run in the bottom of the sixth. After two were out, Steve Hinnant singled and Kinley balked him to second. He scored when Carter Vick singled.

Wilson led the Rose hitting with three, while Stalls and Johnson each had two. Vick had two of the three hits off Kinley for Hunt.

Rose improves its record to 10-0 overall and 6-0 in the Big East, while Hunt falls to 6-6, 3-3.

Rose returns to action on Tuesday, hosting Northeastern.

Earnhardt Hopes Things Changing

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — Grand National stock car driver Dale Earnhardt says "it's been a pretty bad season thus far, but that's starting to change and something good happened..."

Earnhardt was referring to his 89.060-mph run which led second-day qualifying Friday for Sunday's $218,310 Virginia National Bank 500 at Martinsville Speedway.

"We won some money and earned a wild card spot in next year's Busch Clash, so that helps," Earnhardt said.

Earnhardt's speed was the sixth fastest of the 30 qualifiers for Sunday's race over the .525-mile track, but he had failed to make the top 10 Thursday, when Ricky Rudd won the pole with a VNB qualifying record of 90.005 mph. That means he'll start in the No. 11 spot when the race begins Sunday at 12:30 p.m.

Tiger Fans Give Wilcox Warm Reception

By The Associated Press

Milt Wilcox understands why Detroit fans gave him the biggest ovation he's ever gotten at Tiger Stadium. And he appreciates it.

He doesn't know why he's suddenly pitching so well. Nor does he worry about it.

Wilcox, taking the mound exactly a week after missing a perfect game by one out in Chicago against the White Sox, went out Friday night and tossed five-hitter as the Tigers blanked the Seattle Mariners 4-0.

It marked the first time a Detroit pitcher has thrown two consecutive shutouts since Jack Billingham in 1978.

"I don't know why I'm having these scoreless innings," Wilcox said. "I don't understand these things. I just go out and pitch."

In other American League games, Cleveland beat Chicago 5-1, Minnesota topped New York 5-3, Kansas City nipped Toronto 6-5, Texas edged Milwaukee 3-2, Boston beat Oakland 3-1 and California beat Baltimore 6-5 in 11 innings.

Wilcox, now 2-1, struck out five and walked five while Lance Parrish homered and doubled to drive in two runs.

"I got a good reception from the fans when I went down to the bullpen to warm up. Probably the best I've ever gotten," Wilcox said. "I didn't have exceptional control tonight. I walked a couple of guys, but our guys made some good defensive plays behind me."

The right-hander said he's been trying to mix up his pitches, a point that Detroit pitching coach Roger Craig agrees with.

"He has a purpose for every pitch he throws," Craig said. "Some pitchers just wind up and throw, but he doesn't do that. He pitched with his head tonight."

Said Seattle Manager Rene Lachemann: "Wilcox always pitches good against us. It's tough when you don't score any runs, and that's been a problem of ours this season."

Seattle has now lost six of its last seven and eight of 10.

Parrish hit his first homer of the season off Seattle starter Bob Stoddard, 1-3, leading off the second. Rick Leach's run-scoring single made it 2-0 in the fifth and the Tigers added two more in the eighth, one on Parrish's RBI double and the other on Tom Brookens' run-scoring single.

Indians 5, White Sox 1

Bert Blyleven recorded his first victory since April 20, 1982 by pitching a two-hitter and striking out 11. Blyleven, who suffered a muscle tear after four starts last year and missed the rest of the season, upped his record to 3-1. Scott Fletcher had both Chicago hits, including a run-scoring double.

High-priced free agent Floyd Bannister was tagged with his second loss in three decisions. Cleveland scored three times in the second inning as Bannister wild-pitched home one run and Alan Bannister tripled in two more.

Twins 5, Yankees 3

John Castino, Gary Gaetti and Dave Engle smacked solo homers and Brad Havens pitched eight strong innings as Minnesota weathered a ninth-inning New York rally.

Havens, now 2-1, had allowed only two hits — both to Don Baylor — in taking a 5-0 lead into the ninth.

But Baylor, Dave Winfield and Steve Kemp singled with one out to drive in one run and chase Havens. Reliever Ron Davis came in and walked two batters before Len Whitehouse got the final out.

Castino's homer was his fifth of the season.

Rangers 3, Brewers 2

Danny Darwin pitched a seven-hitter in upping his lifetime record against Milwaukee to 5-1. Darwin, now 1-1, pitched his first complete game since 1981.

Texas wiped out Milwaukee's 2-1 lead in the seventh inning on two-out, run-scoring singles by pinch hitter Larry Biitner and George Wright.

Bob Skube drove in both Milwaukee runs with a single and a run-scoring groundout.

Royals 6, Blue Jays 5

John Wathan's two-out single in the eighth inning drove in pinch runner Joe Simpson with the tie-breaking run.

Kansas City scored five runs in the second inning on six hits, along with a throwing error by Toronto starting pitcher Mike Morgan that allowed Willie Wilson to score on a grounder that he had hit back to the mound.

Toronto scored twice in the fourth inning and added three more in the fifth when Cliff Johnson singled with the bases loaded. Johnson's hit drove in two runs and an error by right fielder Jerry Martin enabled another run to score on the hit.

Red Sox 3, A's 1

Jim Rice greeted Oakland reliever Dave Beard with a two-run homer with one out in the top of the ninth to decide the game. Rice's 450-foot blast was his fourth homer of the season and his fourth game-winning hit of the year.

Oakland rookie Phil Krueger, 2-1, took the loss despite giving up only four hits in 81-3 innings. He was replaced by Beard after walking Dwight Evans to open the ninth.

Evans tripled and scored on Rice's groundout for Boston in the first. Dwayne Murphy doubled in Oakland's run in the fourth off Bruce Hurst, 2-1.

Angels 6, Orioles 5

Rod Carew's fifth hit of the game, a bases-loaded single with one out in the 11th inning, lifted California. The Angels loaded the bases in the 11th as Brian Downing led off with a single and moved to second on right fielder Dan Ford's error. Bobby Grich sacrificed Downing to third and two walks by Don Welchel, 0-2, set the stage for Carew's drive to right over a drawn-in outfield.

Gay Pitches, Slugs A-G Past North Pitt, 11-0

LITTLEFIELD — Tyrone Gay tossed a three-hit shutout at North Pitt Friday night as Ayden-Grifton rolled up an 11-0 Eastern Carolina Conference baseball victory.

Gay walked only two batters and struck out 16 along the way to the victory. Gay also helped his own cause with two hits, one of them a two-run homer.

The Chargers pushed over five runs in the second inning, getting all they were to need. Gay opened with a single and stole second. Joey Kennedy and Roger Moye both walked, loading the bases. Terry Garrett's sacrifice fly brought in Gay, and moved Kennedy to third. Moye then stole up, and a passed ball let Kennedy score. Wesley Hardy's single brought in Moye and Jackie Conway's double plated Hardy. Gene Johnson reached on an error, scoring Conway with the fifth run.

The Chargers added two in the third, then scored four times in the fourth. Two of those came over on Gay's homer, and another on a solo shot by Kennedy.

In addition to Gay's two hits, Conway added two to help pace the Charger attack.

The win boosts the Charger record to 12-3 overall and 4-2 in conference play. Ayden-Grifton entertains SouthWest Edgecombe on Tuesday in its next outing. North Pitt travels to C.B. Aycock for a doubleheader on Tuesday.

North Lenoir Beats Conley On Two Hits

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir High School got only two hits off the pitching of Conley's Paul Hill, but it was enough as the Hawks took a 3-0 baseball victory over the Vikings.

The Hawks used Conley mistakes and aggressive base running to push over their three runs and hand the Vikes their second straight Coastal Conference defeat.

The first run came over in the first inning. Duane Thorbes reached on an error and stole second. He then scored on Larry Kornegay's single.

The other two Hawk runs came in the fifth. John Johnson got the second Hawk hit of the game — a home run — to run the lead to 2-0. Kelly Barwick then kept things going by reaching on an error. He then stole both second and third base. David Taylor then grounded out, scoring Barwick.

Conley loaded the bases with no one out in the fifth and put two on in the sixth with none out, but still was unable to push a run across.

Steve Mills and Glenn Clemons each had two hits to lead Conley.

The Vikings, now 6-7 overall and 0-2 in the Coastal, play host to West Craven on Tuesday. North Lenoir is now 6-5 overall and 2-1 in the league.

Perry Homer Leads Tigers By Plymouth

WILLIAMSTON — A three-run homer by winning pitcher Keith Perry in the second inning paved the way to an 11-3 Williamston romp over Plymouth in Northeastern 3-A Conference baseball action Friday.

The win puts Williamston in a tie with the Washington Pam Pack for the conference lead, each team now 6-2 in the conference. Washington defeated Roanoke 14-8 Friday.

Perry posted three hits in as many trips to the plate for the Tigers and gave up a pair of runs on the mound. James Ward was 2-3 with a double, while Gray Thomas had a triple and a single in two at-bats. Troy Raynor went 2-2 for Williamston, Mike Daniels added a triple and Dean Askew a double.

Ward's two-out double in the second inning sparked the Tigers' rally. Les Keel reached first on an error to drive in Ward, and Thomas followed with a single before Perry's blast.

Williamston, 6-4 overall, travels to Ahoskie Tuesday. Plymouth is now 3-4 in the conference.

Ryan Fails At Strikeout Mark Effort

By The Associated Press

Ryan, Houston's hard-throwing right-hander, was gunning Friday night for Johnson's 55-year-old career strikeout record. He needed to fan eight Philadelphia batters to surpass the 3,508 by the Big Train.

But he managed only three strikeouts in six innings — and in that span, he walked six Phillies, increasing to 1,932 his own major league career record for bases on balls.

Virtually every walk was damaging, either putting runners on base or moving them into scoring position as the Phils built a 4-3 lead against him. They won it 6-3.

In other National League games it was Cincinnati 4, Montreal 0; Los Angeles 4 Pittsburgh 2; San Diego 4, St. Louis 1; Atlanta 5, New York 4, and Chicago 7, San Francisco 2.

"I would have liked to set it tonight, especially with the crowd here," Ryan said after disappointing an Astrodome crowd of 32,130. "But Philadelphia was very difficult tonight. They weren't as aggressive as they are normally. They didn't chase many bad pitches."

Now it's up to Montreal to help him carve another niche in the record book. His next scheduled start is Wednesday on the road against the Expos.

"I knew in the first inning it was going to be tough. I didn't feel as strong (warming up) in the bullpen tonight as I did the other night," when he struck out seven Expos.

"I don't think he had the control he wanted," said the Phillies' Pete Rose. "He started to throw the curve ball when he was ahead for some reason."

"I was up with my fastball and missing with my curve," Ryan acknowledged. "I was getting my curve down, but it was missing outside."

Garry Maddox drove in two of the Phillies' runs with a fourth-inning single and a ninth-inning grounder. Bobby Molinaro's sixth-inning sacrifice fly broke a 3-3 tie and put the Phils on top for good.

Expos 4, Reds 0

Gary Carter, in a slump since the start of the season, blasted his way out of it with a pair of two-run homers and Steve Rogers pitched a five-hitter in the Expos' muffling of Cincinnati.

Al Oliver's single in the fourth inning and double in the sixth preceded Carter's third and fourth homers of the year.

"I'm in a groove, I'd say," said Carter. "I feel I've built my confidence up, especially after my 1-for-23 start. "When you're 1-for-23, you have a tendency to get down on yourself. I'm in my ninth year. I said I'd been down before; it was just a matter of pulling out of it."

Dodgers 4, Pirates 2

Home runs by Pedro Guerrero and Steve Sax of the Dodgers helped Jerry Reuss beat his former Pittsburgh teammates as the Pirates lost for the sixth time in seven games.

"I've been with four teams. I've got ex-teammates all over the place," Reuss said. "I get a thrill out of winning every game — not just beating the Pirates."

Los Angeles Manager Tom Lasorda said Reuss "has been sensational. He's been great since he's been with us. He feels like he belongs here."

Padres 4, Cardinals 1

With two of their starting pitchers — Tim Lollar and Ed Whitson — injured, the Padres have been struggling. But not Dave Dravecky.

"He's been our salvation," said Manager Dick Williams after the San Diego left-hander pitched his third complete game in four starts, scattering six St. Louis hits. "Without him, we'd probably be in bad shape.

"He's mature; he's an intelligent young man," Williams added. "He doesn't have that much experience, but he's getting it rapidly."

Steve Garvey contributed to the victory with his third home run of the season, in the eighth inning. He also walked and scored on Sixto Lezcano's double in the third.

Braves 5, Mets 4

Giants 7, Cubs 2

Gary Woods, Leon Durham and Jody Davis hit homers that enabled the Cubs to beat San Francisco and snap a three-game losing streak. Woods also had an RBI-single. Ferguson Jenkins was the winner, picking up his 279th career victory.

Lady Rams Slip By Cougs

SNOW HILL — Greene Central scored twice in the bottom of the eighth inning and pulled out a 4-3 softball victory over SouthWest Edgecombe Friday.

The Lady Rams grabbed the initial lead with a run in the first, but SouthWest came up with a pair in the third, one of them on a solo homer by Theresa Mayo. The Rams tied it again with one in the sixth, and it went to extra innings after no one scored in the seventh.

In the top of the eighth, SouthWest pushed over a run to take the lead, but a leadoff homer by Sharon Croom in the bottom of the frame tied it at 3-3.

Andrea Dixon followed with a single and Lisa Radford also got a hit. An error let both advance a base. Cynthia Jones was then intentionally walked to set up the force, but Cyndi Hicks drew a walk, forcing in the winning run.

Dixon led the Greene Central hitting with four, while Croom had two. Mayo had four hits for SouthWest while Connie Lewis added three.

The win boosts the Greene Central record to 10-5 overall and 3-2 in Eastern Carolina Conference play.

The Lady Rams travel to Farmville Central on Wednesday.

WHEAT SWAMP — North Lenoir eased past D.H. Conley, 4-3, Friday in a Coastal Conference softball contest.

North Lenoir picked up the lead with a run in the second, and then added two in the sixth, one of them on a homer by Chapman. Conley rallied for three runs in the top of the seventh, tying it up, but North Lenoir pushed over the winning run in the bottom of the inning.

Chapman and Brinson led the Lady Hawk hitting with two each, while Darlene Cannon had a triple and Karen Barrett had a double to lead Conley.

The Valkyries fall to 2-1 in the conference and 7-2 overall. They return to action on Tuesday, hosting West Craven.

Hunt . . . . . 6
Rose . . . . . 4

WILSON — Wilson Hunt pushed over four runs in the bottom of the third inning and gained a 6-4 softball win over Rose High School Friday.

Hunt grabbed the lead in the bottom of the first, scoring twice, but Rose came back to score three times in the top of the second and once in the third for a 4-2 lead.

However, Hunt rallied for four in the bottom of the third to end the scoring and take the lead for good.

Kim Langley led the Hunt hitting with two, while Ann Ellen had a solo homer in the third inning.

Rose's hitting was led by Linda Winstead, Laura Vincent and Wendy Jones, each with two. One of Jones' was a double.

Rose is now 3-3 against Big East competition and 5-6 overall. The Rampettes play host to Northeastern on Tuesday.

Heart Fund Golf Sets Tee Times

The Pitt County unit of the American Heart Association will hold a four-man superball tournament at the Brook Valley Country Club on Tuesday, benefiting the organization.

The charity expects to net some $3,000 from the event, which is expected to become an annual affair.

Play will get underway at 8:40 a.m., with a 6 p.m. cocktail hour and awards presentation. At 7:30 p.m., an auction will be held of remaining prizes.

Plaques will be presented to the overall low gross winners and to low net winners in each of four flights.

The first two low gross teams and the low net team will be eligible to advance to the state tournament at Foxfire Country Club in Pinehurst on August 12-14.

Prizes will also be awarded for closest to the pin on all par threes, longest drives on 2 and 17, and closest to the hole on second shot on 4 and 11.

License Fee Increases Approved — The North Carolina General Assembly recently passed legislation which increases fees for most hunting, fishing and trapping licenses. The price increase will take effect on July 1, when all hunting, fishing and trapping licenses will be consolidated to run from July 1 through June 30.

Under the new legislation, the resident sportsman combination license was increased from $27.50 to $30. The nonresident sportsman combination license was increased from $55 to $95. Resident state fishing licenses and resident state hunting licenses were increased from $9.50 to $11.50. Other licenses showed similar increases.

"Increased operations' costs brought on by a growing demand for Wildlife Commission programs made additional sources of funding necessary," said Vernon Bevill, executive director of the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission. "Before this legislation was proposed, a committee composed of sportsman representing various interest groups worked together to determine what license adjustments were needed to maintain sound wildlife programs and still hold license cost to a reasonable level. Overall, this committee requested license fee increases averaging about 20 percent. These fee increases will help us maintain a quality wildlife program.

Nonresident license fees were raised to levels that approximate the costs of licenses in adjoining states.

Trout Rodeo — The first annual Cherokee Trout Rodeo is slated for May 4-8 on the Cherkee Indian Reservation in Cherokee, N.C.

Sponsored by the Cherokee Merchants Association, the Rodeo will play $1,000 for the largest fish caught during the five days.

For more information you can write the Cherokee Merchants Association, P.O. Box 1445, Cherokee, N.C., 28719 or call 1-704-497-9195.

N.C. Duck Stamp — North Carolina becomes the 25th state to issue a first-of-state duck stamp for the purpose of raising funds for waterfowl conservation. Monies raised will be earmarked for waterfowl conservation in this state.

The purchase of this year's stamp will be on a voluntary basis and will cost $5.50. Prints with an image size of 6½x9 and sheet size of 12x14 can be ordered now, with a delivery date expected to be in October. Cut-off date for ordering prints will be August 31, 1983. The retail price for the print will be $135 plus stamp cost of $5.50. An artist proof edition of only 150 prints is available at a cost of $250 plus stamp cost of $5.50. All prints will be signed and numbered.

The Shamrock Gallery, 405 W. 15th St., Washington, N.C. 27889, 946-9430.

N.C. Duck Stamp
North Carolina will have its own state duck stamp, to be purchased this year on a voluntary basis. The stamp was painted by Richard Plasschaert.

Daniels Slugs Jags Past S. Nash, 10-6

STANHOPE — Randy Daniels drove in six runs with a pair of homers and a double to lead the Farmville Central Jaguars to a 10-6 victory over Southern Nash in Eastern Carolina 3-A Conference baseball action Friday.

Bobby Carraway went the distance on the mound for the Jaguars to record his first win of the season against two losses.

Wade Corbett and Roy Roman each had a pair of hits in three trips to the plate with a double for Farmville Central, now 2-4 in the conference and 6-7 overall.

"We hit a dry spell early in the week," said Farmville Central coach Bill Davis. "This was a good win for us. Randy Daniels really hit the ball well — he had a big day at the plate."

The Jaguars got on the board in the top of the first, as Billy Godley led off with a walk, stole second and scored on Daniels' double. A fielder's choice by Corbett moved Daniels to third, and a balk by Southern Nash pitcher Bobby May brought him home.

Farmville Central added three more runs in the second on a two-out three-run homer by Daniels. Taylor Walston reached first on an error and Roman followed with a double leading to the home run shot.

Daniels' other homer was a solo shot in the seventh to ice the victory.

Southern Nash slips to 1-5 in the conference with the loss.

Aycock Tops Hunt, 7-5

WILSON — E.B. Aycock Junior High School's girls gained a 7-5 softball victory over Wilson Hunt Friday.

Terry Daniels hurled the win, while Vicki Parrott and Michelle Daniels led the Lady Jaguars hitting with two each. T: Mills had three and V. Williams had two for Hunt.

Aycock is now 2-4 on the year, and hosts Northeastern on Tuesday.

GCC To Host Ladies Pro-Am

The Greenville Country Club will host a Ladies Pro-Am Tournament on Thursday.

Eighteen professionals from across eastern North Carolina will participate in the event. The pros will be teamed with 72 women, 40 of whom are members of Greenville Country Club.

The tournament is sanctioned by the USGA.

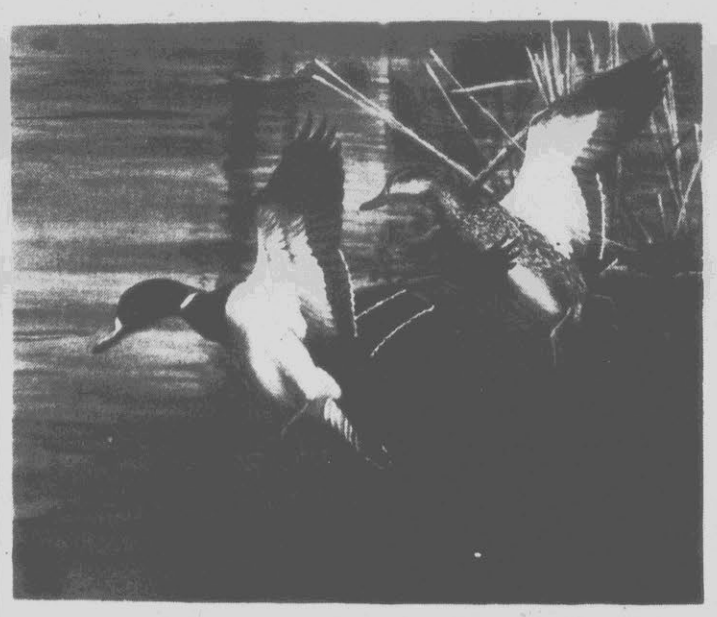

Prizes will be awarded to the top five teams and pros.

Pam Pack Rips Roanoke, 14-8

ROBERSONVILLE — The Washington Pam Pack utilized 14 hits and a pair of homers to take a 14-8 win over Roanoke in Northeastern 3-A Conference baseball action Friday.

The win keeps the Pam Pack tied with Williamston for the conference lead with a 6-2 mark.

Seth Edwards blasted a solo homer in the fourth and catcher Duane Whitenburg added a two-run shot in the seventh for Washington. Edwards went 2-4 and Whitenburg 2-5, while Sam Stephenson was 4-5 with a double. Winning pitcher John Modlin was 3-5 at the plate and Vance Moore 2-3.

Three runs in the top of the sixth iced the victory for the Pam Pack. Neal Paul led off with a walk and Moore followed with a double. Both runners scored on single by Ange. With the bases loaded, Hack High was hit by a pitch to drive in the insurance run.

Casper went 3-5 with a three-run homer in the sixth for Roanoke, while Charles James and Troy Hines had a pair of hits in five at-bats. Richard Wilson went 2-4 for the Redskins.

Roanoke, now 1-7 in the conference and 1-12 overall, travels to Edenton Tuesday at 7:30 before hosting Ahoskie Wednesday at 4 p.m.

Garment Workers Rally To Protest Foreign Imports

By AND, O'CONNELL
Associated Press Writer

Unemployed garment workers sold apples in a Depression-like scene in the Big Apple on Saturday while thousands of people rallied in other cities calling for cuts in foreign imports that they say are hurting the apparel business.

The International Ladies Garment Workers Union held a fashion show in Philadelphia attended by about 1,000 people, a Chicago rally drew about 500 and 1,000 union members gathered at a hotel in Newark to call for support of federal legislation to restrict foreign-made apparel.

Protest leaders in 31 cities were linked by video screens in a "teleconference," the union said.

The union, charging that two of every five garments sold in the United States are foreign-made, is trying to build support for a bill pending in Congress to roll back imports to 25 percent of the domestic market, a step officials say would provide 315,000 jobs.

"If they would just curb imports to 25 percent, it would give work to a lot of people who can't find jobs," said Anna Lango, 67, a West Orange, N.J., dressmaker for 60 years who earned $6,800 last year.

Nationally, the ILGWU says the unemployment rate in the garment industry was 15.4 percent last year and that 660,000 jobs have been lost in the last 25 years.

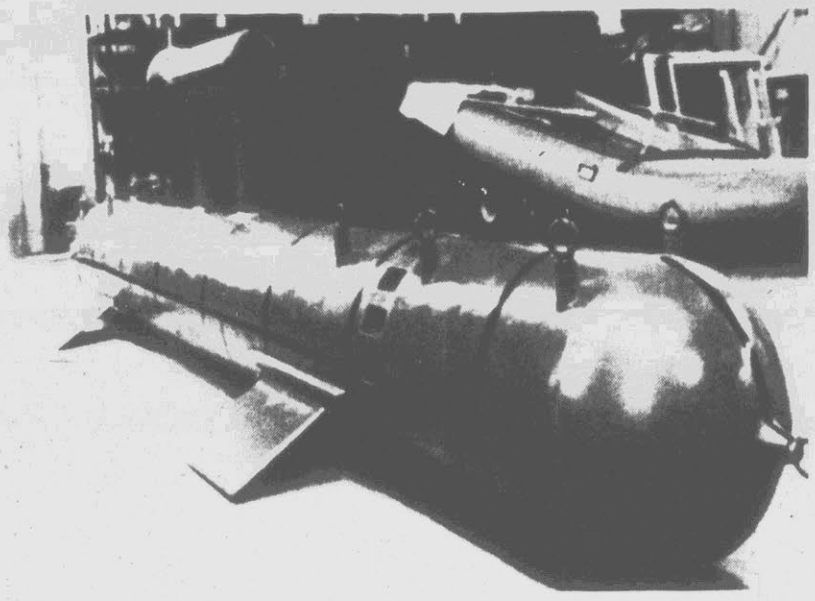

Many of the remaining 950,000 U.S. apparel workers are threatened by clothes from abroad where labor is cheaper, said Sol Goldberg, an international vice-president and director of the union's New Jersey Region.

In New Jersey, where 10,000 of the state's 60,000 apparel and textile workers are unemployed and half have exhausted their unemployment benefits, the state's congressional delegation has pledged support for the bill, which is pending in the House of Representatives.

In New York City, unemployed garment workers organized by the union sold apples on city streetcorners and rallied at city department stores. Macy's flagship store at Herald Square was ringed by union members, and similar rallies were held at Gimbels and Bloomingdale's.

The apple stands, with apples sold for 5 cents a piece, were intended to dramatize the effect imports have had on the domestic apparel industry, said Jay Mazur, an ILGWU vice president.

In Chicago, 500 garment workers from Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana attended a rally in the Daley Center Plaza, where state Attorney General Neil F. Hartigan told the crowd that "unfair labor practices being afforded abroad" are hurting American workers.

Market Out-Gains Economy

By STEVEN ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The fireworks on Wall Street so far has turned out to be a much more lively performance than the economy's protracted struggle to emerge from recession.

While the government was providing evidence this past week pointing to a subpar economic recovery, the stock market extended its $600 billion rally into a ninth month and soared to new heights.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rolled up a 24.96-point gain over the week to wind up at a record-high 1,196.30.

Since falling to a two-year low of 776.92 on Aug. 12, 1982, the stock market's best known indicator now has climbed 419.38 points, or by 54 percent. Meanwhile the Wilshire Associate's 5,000 Equity Index, the market value of 5,000 stocks on all exchanges, rose to $1.68 trillion at week's end, a rise of $629 billion, or nearly 60 percent, since the rally began.

The buying spree was triggered by falling interest rates and slowing inflation, and the hopes that those developments would turn the economy around, enable companies to return to profitability, and make stocks more valuable.

The long-awaited upturn now appears in place, but as Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige said this past week, the best that can be hoped for is "a moderate recovery, not a boom."

His comments followed the release Wednesday of a report that the nation's economy grew at an annual pace of 3.1 percent in the first three months of the year. While that was the steepest rise in economic activity in two years, it was less than half the average growth exhibited in past recoveries since the end of World War II.

"Let's face it, the recovery so far is not as exciting as the rally in the stock market," said Edward Yardeni, chief economist at Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Earnings Reports Weak Among Industrial Firms

By ROBERT BURNS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The recession may be over, but you wouldn't know it by looking at the first-quarter earnings reports of the nation's industrial powers.

Profits shrank, and in some cases they disappeared altogether.

Among the losers:

—Republic Steel Corp. said it lost $34.8 million in the first three months of the year. Inland Steel Co. lost $20 million, and National Steel Corp. lost $35.4 million.

—Of the metals producers, Aluminum Co. of America lost $14.3 million, Amax Inc. lost $48.7 million, and Armco Inc. said it was $128.4 million in the red.

—AMR Corp., the parent of American Airlines, lost $28.1 million, and World Airways lost $23.7 million.

None of those reports was a surprise. The steel, metals and airline companies have been among the biggest losers throughout the recession that began in 1981.

But even some stronger industries, such as chemicals and forest products, had a rough time in the year's first quarter. Dow Chemical Co. said its earnings fell 55 percent and Union Carbide Corp. was off 47 percent. Weyerhaeuser Co. reported a 60 percent drop and St. Regis Paper Co. was down 52 percent.

Not all industrial corporations lost ground. Two of the biggest auto companies — General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Corp. — reported strong profit gains. GM was up more than five-fold and Chrysler had its biggest profit in history.

In the case of both GM and Chrysler, however, the gains were due in large part to special credits to income or improvement in non-automotive operations.

All the business world could take heart in the government's report this past week that the gross national product grew at a 3.1 percent annual rate in the first quarter. It was the best growth rate since the first quarter of 1981, when the GNP rose at a 7.9 percent annual rate before the 1981-82 recession began.

Indeed, many companies said in their earnings reports that they saw signs of a strengthening economy. But few were ready to declare the hards times over.

Lee A. Iacocca, the chairman of Chrysler, said the future course of the national economy — and thus the chances of better profit gains in the months ahead — depended heavily on whether interest rates fall further and whether the Reagan administration and Congress can reduce the size of the federal budget deficit.

Even while many companies were reporting weak profits for the quarter ended March 31, others were riding high.

In the securities industry, Paine Webber reported a six-fold jump in profit and First Boston said its earnings rose 81.2 percent. E.F. Hutton was up twelve-fold. All of those firms, and others in the investment business, benefited from the boom in stock trading.

Some technology leaders also fared well. Apple Computer Inc. posted a 73.2 percent gain and Wang Laboratories Inc. was up 45 percent. An exception was Warner Communications Inc., which posted a loss of $18.9 million. American Telephone & Telegraph Co., the world's largest corporation, was off 15.5 percent.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

—The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index rose 0.1 percent in March as a jump in food prices more than offset declines in gasoline and fuel oil prices. For the first three months of the year, prices rose at an annual rate of 0.4 percent, the smallest gain for a calendar quarter since 1965.

—A federal judge in Washington, D.C., approved boundaries defining local and long-distance telephone service, moving American Telephone & Telegraph Co. another step toward its Jan. 1 planned breakup. At a shareholders meeting in Atlanta, AT&T Chairman Charles Brown said the company was on track to the targeted breakup.

—The Commerce Department said orders to factories for durable goods edged up 0.3 percent in March. Increases for military hardware, machinery and household goods outweighed declines for transportation industries and primary metals. The overall gain was the fourth in the past five months and marked a rebound from the revised 3.5 percent drop in February.

—The Supreme Court upheld the right of states to ban new nuclear plants until the federal government finds a way to dispose of used atomic fuel. In the unanimous ruling, which was a blow to the nuclear power industry, the justices upheld a moratorium which California had imposed on new plant in 1976.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

The board of directors of First Citizens Corp., the bank holding company of First Citizens Bank, declared a quarterly dividend on common stock of $1.90 per share, payable June 30 to shareholders of record June 20.

The bank has an office in Grimesland.

BANKING POSITIONS

Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. said four employees have been named to new posts.

The bank said that John R. "Bo" Bunting, a Bethel native, has been elected assistant vice president of Wachovia in Ahoskie, while Wilson native J. Rox Corbin has been elected banking officer in Greenville.

Wachovia has elected Michael F. Gooding, a native of Greenville, as auditing officer here, and Leon Johnson, a Pitt County native, has been named a personal banker and transferred to Vanceboro.

BRANCH MANAGER

The board of directors of Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of Eastern North Carolina announced the appointment of Jean Briley Dickens as branch manager of the firm's new Williamston office.

A Pitt County native, Mrs. Dickens worked for 10 years with Martin County Savings & Loan prior to her appointment with Home Federal. She and her husband, Johnny, reside in Williamston.

Home Federal currently has offices in Greenville, Bethel, and Plymouth.

EMPLOYEES CITED

Freddy A. Lamm, cable foreman in the network distribution department of Carolina Telephone in Greenville, and Elizabeth H. Gardner, operator in the operator services department, received emblems recently in recognition of 25 and 10 years service, respectively, with the company.

A Wilson County native, Lamm resides in Kinston with his wife, the former Betty Campbell, and their two sons. They attend North West Christian Church.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

Directors of the Wachovia Corp. declared second quarter dividends of 35 cents per share on Wachovia common stock and 55 cents per share on $2.20 convertible preferred stock.

The dividends, which are unchanged from the previous quarter, are payable June 1 to shareholders of record at the close of business May 4.

NEW MEMBER

The Down East Chapter of the Painting & Decorating Contractors of America, based in Greenville, welcomed a new associate member, Home Builders Supply Co., at its monthly meeting recently.

The next meeting, which will mark the chapter's first anniversary, will be May 10 at the Three Steers Restaurant. Plaques citing the chapter for the best charity project in the Carolinas Council and for the best 1982 yearly activities scrapbook in the nation will be presented.

NAME CHANGED

The name and trademark for the 27-store Stop-N-Go operation has been changed to Fresh Way Food Stores, according to Bob Morgan, general manager of the Greenville based chain. He said new signs will identify the facilities.

Morgan said that as of June 1, 1982, a franchise agreement with Stop-N-Go of Englewood, Ohio, was terminated and Fresh Way Food Stores was established. He said the newly formed corporation is now pursuing its own franchise program.

Carolina Daries is the sister company of the Fresh Way chain.

SALES MANAGER

Greenville native Pat Swindell has been appointed sales manager for the new telephone interconnect division of Electronics Inc. of Columbia, S.C.

She will coordinate marketing and sales efforts of all the division's locations in South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Swindell of Greenville, she is a graduate of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro. She worked in marketing with the Jarvis Corp. before joining Dixie.

PRESIDENT INSTALLED

Wayne L. Trull of Rocky Mount was installed as president of the North Carolina Tire Dealers and Retreaders Association for 1983-84 at the NCTDRA's 20th annual convention recently in Asheville.

A native of Union County, he is president of Wayne L. Trull Inc., which owns and operates Goodyear Tire Centers in Rocky Mount, Tarboro, and Greenville. Trull worked for Goodyear in North Carolina and South Carolina prior to purchasing a business in Rocky Mount in 1971.

He and his wife, the former Shirley Dean Barbee of Wingate, have three sons.

The association comprises some 350 tire dealers from across the state.

PHONECENTER OPENS

Sears, Roebuck and Co. announced that a Bell PhoneCenter is now open in Sears' Greenville store at Carolina East Mall.

R.B. Cordell, Sears general manager here, said an agreement between the company and American Bell Consumer Products allowed Bell telephones and accessories to be sold for the first time through a retailer.

Cordell said Sears employees will staff the phonecenters and receive training from employees of American Bell.

FIRM HONORED

J.H. Hudson Inc. of Greenville, which operates as a local builder for Butler's buildings division, was among firms honored for achieving the $5 million level in cumulative sales of Butler pre-engineered building systems products.

The Greenville firm was cited during a series of national sales meetings Butler conducted across the nation.

Butler said it achieved construction/building materials sales of $223,933,000 in 1982.

INCREASED INCOME

The Planters Corp. reported an increase in net income of 9.8 percent to $1,132,000 for the quarter ended March 31, from $1,031,000 a year earlier.

Income before securities transactions was $2,132,000 as compared with $1,062,000 reported for the first quarter in 1982.

Total assets on March 31 equaled $454,051,000, up 12.2 percent from 1982, while deposits increased 15.7 percent to $402,318,000.

SALES ROSE

Hampton Industries Inc. officials said in the firm's annual report that sales for the current year increased by more than 11 percent to $123,416,000 from $110,834,000 a year ago.

Net earnings decreased to $2,781,000 from $3,149,000 last year, according to the report.

Prepshirt is a division of Hampton Industries.

FIGURES IMPROVED

Tandy Corp./Radio Shack, reported that consolidated sales for the third quarter of its 1983 fiscal year were $589,860,000, a 25 percent increase from the year earlier sales of $470,607,000.

Net income for the three months ended March 31 rose 27 percent to $57,385,000 from $45,350,000 in the previous third quarter.

Sales for the nine months ended March 31 increased 23 percent to $1,885,126,000 from $1,533,897,000 in 1982.

Net income for the period was $204,061,000, up 26 percent from $162,056,000 earned in the 1982 period.

BUSINESS OPENS

Bob Beasley announced the opening of ServiceMaster By Beasley at 1731 Beaumont Drive, offering professional cleaning services.

Beasley said the firm provides carpet and furniture care for offices and businesses, as well as wall and floor cleaning and routine cleaning and maintenance. He said the firm will also specialize in the care of hard floors and regular carpet cleaning.

The new business is one of more than 2,700 licensees of ServiceMaster Industries Inc. of Downers Grove, Ill.

Beasley, an East Carolina University graduate, holds graduate degres from ECU and the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He and his wife, Beth, have three children.

BW PROMOTIONS

Promoted were: Guy Inman Jr., to research development scientist IV in the analytical development laboratories; Gopakumar Menon, to utility engineer in utility services; and Jerry Simmons and Ken Kearney, to group leaders in the planning and scheduling department, materials management division.

All four employees reside in Greenville.

RECORD SIZE

William H. Stanley, chairman and chief executive officer of Peoples Bancorp, told shareholders recently that the bank grew to record size during 1982, with total assets reaching a new high of $473,136,000 as of Dec. 31, compared to $442,178,000 in 1981.

Total deposits reached a new high of $402,879,000, a 10 percent increase over 1981. Gross loans reached a record high of $272,514,000, up from $252,027,000. The bank's net income after security transactions was $4,729,000.

U.S.-China Are Resuming Effort To Find Agreement On Textiles

By LAWRENCE KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chinese and U.S. negotiators are "taking another try" at reaching agreement on an import quota for Chinese textiles, a senior State Department official disclosed Saturday.

"I don't know that we'll make it this time, but I feel basically optimistic that sooner or later we will," said the official who commented on the condition he not be identified by name.

The new talks mark the sixth round of difficult negotiations on the renewal of the U.S.-Chinese textile agreement which expired last Dec. 31.

The issue has been one of a series of divisive problems troubling U.S.-Chinese relations.

"But this one has got very little to do with China," the official said. "It's got a lot to do with 110,000 unemployed textile workers" in the generally depressed U.S. textile industry. "We had a pretty difficult negotiation with China in 1979 when our own internal situation was not nearly as bad," the official said.

"We're still slogging away," he said. "The Chinese have a team here right now. We're taking another try at a textile agreement."

The fifth round of talks on the issue recessed in Peking on March 18. The State Department said then that progress had been made and that both sides were hopeful the next round would produce agreement.

The United States imposed restrictions on imports of Chinese textiles three months ago after the two countries failed to reach agreement on future import levels.

The U.S. restrictions limit Chinese textile imports to continue at the current level of about $700 million a year but permit no increase.

At the time, Chinese news commentary called the U.S. action "rude and unreasonable" and predicted the issue would damage Sino-U.S. relations.

When the last round of talks recessed in Peking, the chief U.S. negotiator, Ambassador Peter Murphy, said that although differences remain to be resolved, "the U.S. side is confident that at some point an agreement will be reached."

Textile industry sources said then that China wanted a 6 percent annual growth rate for textile exports while the United States was offering only 1.5 percent to 2 percent increase.

U.S. negotiators have said China's textile exports to the United States grew by 19.4 percent last year and took an 11.3 percent share of the American import market, just below shares held by the three largest U.S. suppliers, Hong Kong, South Korea and Taiwan.

China said in March that it believed it already had made "big concessions" in the talks and was hoping for substantive U.S. concessions based on "the principal of equality and mutual benefit."

Prices Rise Sharply

By KEITH E. LEIGHTY
AP Business Writer

Grain and soybean futures prices rose sharply Friday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The rally was triggered by the Agriculture Department's quarterly grain stocks report, which was released Thursday and showed corn stocks sharply less than the market had anticipated, said Leslie Herren, a grain analyst in New York with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

In another report released Friday, the USDA said it expects the price of corn to reach $3.15 a bushel, a level that would trigger release of grain in the farmerheld reserve and a development that could boost futures prices further on Monday, Miss Herren said.

In its latest report, the USDA increased its estimate of feed use by 100 million bushels and estimated that the amount of corn on the free market would be increased by 300 million bushels when the price reaches $3.15 a bushel.

Miss Herren said total stocks as of April 1 were about 70 million bushels less than the lowest of the various estimates of analysts, and that added support to reports that free stocks of corn are very tight.

As a result, she said, the contracts for delivery in the next few months gained substantially while those for delivery in the fall — when the new crop is harvested — were only slightly higher.

Soybeans were supported by the stocks report and by a report from the American Soybean Association that said the acreage planted this year will be about 4 million acres less than the market previously expected, Miss Herren noted.

Wheat settled 4½ cents to 6¼ cents higher with the contract for delivery in May at $3.49 a bushel; corn was 4½ cents to 8¾ cents higher with the contract for delivery in May at $3.14¼ a bushel; oats were 1½ cents to 3½ cents higher with May at $1.62½ a bushel; and soybeans were 18¼ cents to 24 cents higher with May at $6.45¼ a bushel.

Livestock and meat prices were mixed on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange.

Cattle prices edged higher after several days of weakness, with the contract for delivery in June showing the most strength and advancing moderately.

John Ginzel, a livestock analyst in Chicago with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., said cattle prices were supported by indications that the price of carcass beef was higher.

Live hogs and frozen pork bellies fell sharply with the Chapter 11 filing of Wilson Foods Corp., the nation's largest processor of fresh pork, prompting much of the selling, Ginzel said.

Under Chapter 11, a company continues to operate but seeks court protection from creditors' lawsuits while it works out a plan to pay its bills. Kenneth J. Griggy, the company's chairman and chief executive, said Wilson Foods did not plan to close any plants or lay off workers during its reorganization.

Live cattle settled 0.18 cent lower to 0.30 cent higher with the contract for delivery in June at 66.70 cents a pound; feeder cattle were 0.10 cent to 0.58 cent lower with May at 65.02 cents a pound; live hogs were 1.02 cents lower to 0.40 cent higher with June at 49.22 cents a pound; and frozen pork bellies were 2 cents lower to 0.13 cent higher with May at 68.30 cents a pound.

Gold settled $3.30 to $3.60 higher with the contract for delivery in April at $439.20 a troy ounce; silver settled 15 cents to 15.2 cents higher with April at $12.135 a troy ounce.

Cocoa prices rose on the Coffee, Sugar & Cocoa Exchange in New York with support from a report that the Dutch cocoa processing rose 5.4 percent during the first quarter of the year, said Kim Sutton-Golodetz, a cocoa analyst in New York with Merrill Lynch Commodities.

Cocoa settled $38 to $61 higher with the contract for delivery in May at $1.840 a metric ton, which is 2,204.6 pounds.

The Monitored Portfolio, Dow Jones Industrial Average, S&P 500, Six Years at a Glance (1/1/77-12/31/82)

We've got quite a track record.

Over the past six years, our Monitored Portfolio has risen 256%. That's 60 times better than the Dow. Eight times better than the S&P 500.

But then, that's really not so surprising when you take a close look at Wheat.

As one of the largest financial services firms in the Southeast, we have an impressive network of national correspondents, along with a highly regarded in-house research staff whose sole work is to determine which stocks are best for our clients.

Among the hundreds of stocks that our team analyzes and screens, only a handful are chosen for our Monitored Portfolio. These are the select few with the potential to outshine the rest of the market.

Once each stock is uncovered and added to our Portfolio, we track its performance closely to keep you up to date. Then, when it's time to sell, we tell you.

It's that simple. And that complex.

Why not let us tell you more?

We'll let you in on some of our trade secrets. And we'll show you how to use the Monitored Portfolio to help you achieve your personal investment goals. We'll also send you the latest copy of the Monitored Portfolio with up-to-the-minute advice on what you should be doing in the stock market today.

There's no obligation. No minimum investment.

Buck-Williams Vows Solemnized Saturday

The wedding ceremony of Elsie Luerain Williams and Allan Scott Buck was solemnized Saturday afternoon at three o'clock in Immanuel Baptist Church. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Hugh Burlington.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Clegg Williams of Swan Quarter and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin V. Buck of Greenville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Randy Buck, organist, and Joni Buck, soloist.

MRS. ALLAN SCOTT BUCK

Given in marriage by her parents and escorted by her father, the bride wore a formal white gown of sheerganza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a Queen Anne neckline outlined with scalloped chantilly lace etched with pearls. The sheer lace appliqued bishop sleeves closed with cuffs and the flowing skirt bordered in lace flowed into an attached chapel train. She carried a cascade bouquet of white silk roses, phalaenopsis orchids, miniature tiger lilies and baby's breath interspersed with garlands of ivy tied with white lace and satin ribbons.

Telita Lynn Williams, sister of the bride of Swan Quarter, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Susán DeMeno, cousin of the bride of Newport News, Va., Penny Buck Harward, sister of the bridegroom of Woodbridge, Va. and Melanie Reeder of Kannapolis. They wore suede rose A-line lusterglo floor length gowns styled with empire sleeveless bodices, scooped neckline outlined with a bertha flounce accenting the back with a drape. The honor attendant carried an arm bouquet of dusty rose silk lilies interspersed with silk baby's breath and matching ribbon. Bridesmaids carried similar bouquets.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers were Whit Williams, brother of the bride of Swan Quarter, H. Tim Hardee, cousin of the bridegroom, Anthony Phelps and Dwayne Little, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride wore a pink chiffon gown with a chiffon cape. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of mauve polyester and chiffon. Both were given corsages of silk roses.

Grandmothers of the couple, Mrs. Fred Gibbs and Mrs. Scott Buck, were given corsages of phalaenopsis orchids.

The wedding was directed by Corrine Phelps.

The bride's parents gave a reception in the church fellowship hall where guests were greeted by cousins of the bride, Mrs. Oscar Llopiz and Diantha Muzikar.

Eleanor Shannon served cake and Margie Pollard poured punch. Peggy Parks presided at the guest register.

An after-rehearsal pig picking was given by the bridegroom's parents Friday evening.

The bride attended Pitt Community College and is employed with Rivers and Associates. The bridegroom is a graduate of East Carolina University and is employed by Grady-White Boats.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will live in Greenville.

Engagement Announced

TONI GAIL MILLS...is the daughter of Mrs. Sarah Ruth Whitfield of Route 5, Mount Olive, and William Roger Mills of Greenville, who announce her engagement to Garland Frank Edwards, son of Mrs. Ruby Dell Evett and Frank Edwards Jr., both of Route 1, Washington. A July wedding is planned.

Couple Speaks Vows In Raleigh Ceremony

RALEIGH — Kathy Lee Pierce and Kevin Scott Sayers, both of Greenville, were united in marriage here at 1 p.m. Saturday in Hayes Barton United Methodist Church. Owen Fitzgerald performed the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. E.L. Pierce of Raleigh and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Meltzer of Greenville.

A program of organ music was presented by Leonard Smith.

The couple will live in Greenville after a wedding trip to Kiawha Island.

The bride is a nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital and the bridegroom is associated with East Coast Roofing and Co., Phil Flowers Associates.

Gourmet Bazaar To Open Friday

A gourmet food bazaar "Eat Your Art Out" will be held April 29-May 1 at Carolina East Mall. It is being sponsored by the Pitt-Greenville Arts Council.

Peggy Shuping is chairperson for the event.

The hours will be Friday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday afternoon from one to five o'clock.

European candies, Bahlsen cakes and cookies, nuts, dried fruits, grains, unusual herbs and spices and special pasta will be available during the three days. Breads, rolls and croissants as well as items from Southern Season of Chapel Hill will be sold.

Proceeds will be used to help support a variety of cultural programs planned under auspices of the council.

Mrs. Fanfani Exception To Italian Wives

By DENNIS REDMONT
Associated Press Writer

ROME (AP) — The wives of politicians in Italy usually stay at home, attending to family matters, but Mariapia Fanfani is the exception.

The wife of Premier Amintore Fanfani more often is out of the house than in:

— One day she is in Poland distributing 12 tons of powdered milk and fruit juice to people in need of help.

— Then she's in war-torn Beirut, handing out Christmas panettone cake and pouring bubbly spumante wine to Italian troops in Lebanon's international peacekeeping force.

— The next week, she's at the Rome Opera House, embracing Franco Zeffirelli at a cancer research benefit, or more recently at Milan's La Scala Opera House, consoling tenor Luciano Pavarotti from scattered catcalls.

Mrs. Fanfani, Italy's first lady by default, takes her role with a grain of philosophy:

"If we put ourselves at the service of people, goodness will triumph," she said in a recent interview while driving down to inaugurate two U.S.- and Swiss-financed clinics in the zone south of Naples shattered by an earthquake in November 1980.

"I don't need any votes. My husband is a senator-for-life" — a distinction granted only to a half dozen Italians.

And as if to rebuke her critics, she recently agreed to head the women's committee of the Italian Red Cross, embarked on her 10th book of photographs and narrative, laid plans for an Ingrid Bergman memorial evening in Venice, and mapped out an American trip in connection with the summit meeting of leaders of Western industrialized countries in Williamsburg, Va., in May.

But when the Socialist resistance hero was elected in 1978, his wife served notice she would not move in to the Quirinal Palace, where Italian presidents live, or attend any official functions, preferring her work as a psychologist with drug addicts and keeping her tiny penthouse overlooking the Trevi Fountain.

Her reluctance was based in part on the bitter experience of Vittoria Leone, wife of President Giovanni Leone who resigned in 1978 in the wake of allegations of involvement in the Lockheed bribery scandal, tax evasion and real estate speculation.

The Neapolitan brunette, often called "Italy's ambassador of smile and elegance," had made the 16th century Quirinal Palace the center of glittering parties and shows. Her critics described her as the power behind the presidency then. Leone and his wife now lead a secluded life in their country estate near Rome.

While Italy has a woman speaker of the Chamber of Deputies and a woman Cabinet minister, politicians' wives rarely get a good press. So when Fanfani, 75, her second husband, became premier for the fifth time last November, Italian media had a field day.

"We are prime ministers," read a cartoon showing the couple exulting.

The Communist Party organ L'Unita called Mrs. Fanfani "a lady who with implacable and inelegant timing seeks to always slither into the wrong place at the wrong time."

There were also some raised eyebrows among Western diplomats when she accepted Poland's highest cultural award at the Polish Embassy early in April in recognition for her photo album on the country. But in typical fashion, she shot back a letter to a newspaper, saying her trip to Poland in January 1982 was sponsored by Roman Catholic associations in "an obvious critical position" to Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's Communist government.

Mariapia Tavazzani was born 60 years ago, the sixth of seven children of a Milanese textile industrialist. At age 23, she married a textile engineer 10 years her senior, and made her debut in Milanese high society, wintering in Switzerland and spending summers in the Riviera resort of Portofino.

But in 1963, weary of the Milan salon set, she flew to New York to learn photography from Evelyn Hofer, a Life Magazine contributer.

Soon she was hauling four Leica and Nikon cameras to Italian disaster scenes and to the green hills of Ireland.

Over the next decade, she produced books on the Soviet Union, Romania, Poland, China, Italian embassies abroad and foreign embassies in Rome.

In 1970, after the death of her husband and during a lunch at the Polish Embassy, she met a recently widowed Fanfani, just elected president of the Senate. In quick order, Fanfani was convinced to write the preface of her book on Romania and give away one of his own amateur paintings at a benefit party. After a secret courtship they were married in a quiet ceremony in Rome.

Except for her French Hermes bags, Mrs. Fanfani sticks to the made-in-Italy label. She wears tailored clothes by Mila Schon and Roberta di Camerino, bundles up in Fendi furs and has her shoes made to order in Turin.

Mrs. Fanfani acknowledges that some Italians have no time for her American-style first lady pace, but she says she has no plans to slow down.

"I am anchored to the U.S. mentality and I am not shy," she said in the interview. "Nancy Reagan is my idea of a first lady. If Italian politicians don't want to mix their political life with their private life, and relegate their wives at home and to the children, it's their own business and their own conscience. But it won't stop me."

With an essay entitled "Owning Homes for Democracy," senior Teresa McLawhorn won second place in an essay contest sponsored by the Greenville-Pitt County Board of Realtors.

The topic of the contest, which was held in observance of Private Property Week April 10-16, was "How Widespread Home Ownership Strengthens Democracy." She won a $50 savings account and will now advance to the state level.

Her essay was judged for grasp of concept, originality of thought, depth and organization.

Winners within the school for the 34th annual High School Mathematics Contest were: Steve Worley, first; Rogers Warner, second; Alan Dickens, third; Sheila Craft, fourth; and Angie Michel, fifth. The 30-question examination was administered across the nation in various high schools March 8. Rose placed 22nd out of the 121 high schools that enterest the contest which is sponsored by the Mathematics Association of America, Society of Acturies, Mu Alpha Theta, National Council of Teachers of Mathematics and Casualty Acturial Society.

At the VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America) Regional Skill Olympics held at Beaufort Community College, the Rose VICA Drafting Club had several winners. Chip Cayton placed second in architectural drafting while Tom Lyons won third place in mechanical drafting.

In the display category, Rose's entry placed second and will now advance along with Chip to the state level of competition. It will be held in Fayetteville.

Wedding Vows Exchanged

ROCKY MOUNT — Christy Jo Williams, daughter of Mrs. Patsy Ray Denton of Raleigh and Cmdr. and Mrs. Thomas Ryland Williams of Norfolk, Va., was married to Phillip Eugene Trull Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Gaylord Lehman performed the double ring ceremony at three o'clock in the Lakeside Baptist Church here.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lee Trull of Rocky Mount.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white wedding dress of organza and English net embellished with Venise lace on the bishop sleeves and the fitted bodice with a Queen Anne neckline. The full skirt was adorned with Venise lace which formed a cathedral train. The matching headpiece of English net, trimmed with Venise lace, was fingertip length. She carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

The maid of honor wore a formal gown of linen with a white bodice and spaghetti straps, kelly green skirt and a lavender cummerbund of grosgrain ribbon. A white Venise lace short jacket complemented the gown. She carried a white wicker basket filled with lavender daisies and baby's breath. The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant and carried identical flowers.

Mary Margaret Boone of Kinston was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Mrs. Charlie M. Wells II of Laurinburg, Mrs. Gerald Johnson of Rocky Mount, Mary Sue Cummings of Greenville and Kimberly Ann Bruce of Orlando, Fla.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Donald Lee Trull of Rocky Mount and Michael Wayne Trull of Cary, brothers of the bridegroom, Jimmy Trull of Greensboro, cousin of the bridegroom, and Douglas Glenn Daniel of Greenville.

A reception followed in the Kincheloe Fellowship Hall and was given by the bride's parents.

Cake was served by Mrs. Raymond Hudson and Mrs. Robert Williams, aunts of the bride, and punch was poured by Mrs. James Thompson, cousin of the bride. Norma Jean Ashley of Fairmont presided at the guest register.

A rehearsal dinner was given by the parents of the bridegroom at Northgreen County Club in Rocky Mount Friday. The bride was entertained at a bridesmaids luncheon given by Mrs. Marion P. Cash, Mrs. Charlie M. Wells II, Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Mrs. James E. Boone and Mary Margaret Boone at the Carleton House in Rocky Mount Friday.

The couple will live in Greenville after a Florida wedding trip.

The bride graduated from the East Carolina University School of Nursing and is a staff nurse at Pitt County Memorial Hospital. The bridegroom graduated from Rocky Mount Senior High School and is manager of Goodyear Tire Center in Greenville.

Cooking Is Fun

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

The earliest recipe for peanut soup I've come on appeared in a turn-of-the-century cookbook written by an outstanding Philadelphia cooking school teacher.

By the 1920s, George Washington Carver — the famous director of agricultural research at Alabama's Tuskegee Institute — gave three recipes for peanut soup, another for peanut bisque and one for peanut consomme. All were published in a booklet he wrote called "How to Grow the Peanut and 105 Ways of Preparing It for Human Consumption."

Since those days American-style peanut soup has become a classic. For many years, cooks used the earliest rules, but nowadays adventurous cooks have strayed. In my opinion, they have invented more daring and interesting versions of the soup than the earlier ones.

One of the latest of these good new recipes is in "Fine Fresh Food Fast" by Michele Urvater (Irena Chalmers Cookbooks). The author is a well-known New York City cooking school teacher and cookbook author. I, for one, am happy to have come on her formula.

What I particularly like about the Urvater soup is that you can vary it to suit your own taste. Want it less hot? Omit or cut down on the cayenne. Want less peanut flavor? Add only half the amount of peanut butter called for. We're grateful to Michele for giving us permission to pass along her fine recipe.

SPICY PEANUT SOUP

2 tablespoons butter
2 slices bacon, finely diced
1 medium onion, thinly sliced
¼ pound sweet potatoes, peeled
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon cumin
¼ teaspoon cayenne
3 cups chicken stock or water
2 tablespoons tomato paste
½ cup non-homogenized peanut butter
Salt and pepper
½ cup sour cream

Melt the butter over medium heat in a 3- or 4-quart saucepan; then add the bacon. After a couple of minutes, add the onion, then cover the pot and cook for about 10 minutes, or until the onion is translucent. Check the onion every now and then to make sure it is not burning.

While the onion is cooking, dice the potatoes. When the onion is translucent, remove the cover and stir in the potatoes, cinnamon, chili powder, cumin, cayenne and stock. Cover, and simmer for 20 minutes.

Transfer the soup to a blender or food processor. Add the tomato paste and peanut butter and puree until smooth. Season with about ½ teaspoon salt and ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Reheat the soup until piping hot; garnish each portion with a dab of sour cream.

NOTE: you may use white potatoes instead of sweet potatoes.

Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Hats Off To Those Oldies

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently mentioned that cowboys take their hats off only for very special occasions, but you missed the classic response the questioner may have been fishing for: The story is told about the mother who was wheeling her small child in a stroller when a stranger remarked, "What beautiful red hair that child has! Does his father have red hair too?"

Mother responds, "I don't know; he didn't take his hat off."

Abby, do you suppose the father could have been a cowboy?

PENNSYLVANIA PEN PAL

DEAR PAL: Well, 23 skidoo! Henny Youngman is alive and well and living in Pennsylvania. Oops, I stand corrected. I think he may have moved to Montana. Check this:

DEAR ABBY: When "Leon" asked what the difference was between a tourist and a traveler, you replied, "A tourist is a traveler who looks like he hasn't traveled much."

I have a better answer: "A tourist stays a week and drops $400. A traveler comes with a shirt and a $20 bill, and doesn't change either one."

MOVIN' ON IN MONTANA

DEAR ABBY: How can I find out if a man is legally divorced without his knowing I checked up on him? He's 40, and when we met he said he was divorced, but I have a feeling he's still married.

I'm 22, and I've been hurt enough by men to last me a lifetime. I don't want to be hurt again. I really care for him, but I don't want to mess up my life fooling with a married man.

I can't afford to hire a private investigator, but I need to know the truth, and he gets very ugly if he thinks someone is checking up on him behind his back. Thank you.

PHILADELPHIA FILLY

DEAR FILLY: Call your county clerk's office. Give the name of the man and the approximate date of his divorce. If he is in fact divorced, the clerk's office will have a record of it (if it was filed in that county).

Since divorce is a matter of public record, this information is available to anyone who inquires. And if you really don't want to be hurt again, you will have nothing to do with a man you have to check up on behind his back — and get "ugly" about it to boot!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 34-year-old unmarried man. I have always loved children and enjoy working with them. I do volunteer work at the local home for abused and neglected children. I also sometimes take the children of my friends (girls and boys alike) to the zoo, parks, movies, etc.

Let me assure you that I have a normal social life with women, but I don't want to get married at the present time.

My problem is that some people have told me (and others) that something must be "wrong" with me to be taking so much interest in children since I am not married! Abby, I would never in a million years harm a child in any way. Just because there are perverts in the world doesn't mean that I'm one.

Do you think I should give up my work with children, or just go ahead and continue without worrying about what evil-minded people say?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Continue your work with children and disregard the talk. The burden of proof is on the accuser.

Couple Speaks Vows Saturday Afternoon

Donna Elizabeth Gouras and Larry Anthony Brooks were married at Brooks Hill Saturday afternoon at three o'clock. The double ring ceremony was conducted by Elder Joseph Sawyer.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Jeanne Gouras and Bob Gouras, both of Greenville. Mr. and Mrs. R.A. Brooks of Route 7, Greenville, are parents of the bridegroom.

Debbie Mayo of Greenville was honor attendant for her sister and Jimmy Jenkins of Goldsboro was best man.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a white chiffon over peau de soie gown designed with an open neckline complemented by a bertha collar edged in Brussels lace. The modified A-line skirt was accented with a flounced hemline edged in matching lace that extended to form a sweep train. She wore a ringlet of white flowers in her hair and carried pink carnations, white daisies and pink roses with white streamers tied in love knots.

The honor attendant was dressed in a street length dress of light blue crepe fashioned with spaghetti straps with a gathered high waist and floral chiffon cape. She carried pink gerberas in an arm bouquet tied with pink and white streamers.

The mother of the bride wore a mint green and peach crepe two-piece ensemble with pink carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue street length polyester dress with a coat and pink carnations.

The bride graduated from D.H. Conley High School and works at Wilbur's Family Favorites. The bridegroom attended J.H. Rose High School.

The couple will live in Grimesland.

A pig picking followed the ceremony.

COSTLY WINDOWS

NEW YORK (AP) — Windows that are in poor condition and leak air can cost a homeowner as much as 15 percent of his fuel bill.

Energy loss is most noticeable in cold weather, when such windows lead to an increase in heating costs.

But "leaky" windows can also add substantially to home energy costs during summer months, when they cause loss of cooler air from air conditioning, reports the Vinyl Window & Door Institute.

"Draw Your Mom" Contest for Kids

Boys and girls, how do you picture your mom? Want to show everyone just how much you love her? Here's your opportunity. In the space below, draw a picture of your mom and tell us why you think she's special. If there is not enough room in the space provided, then draw it on your own paper. Then bring it to Brody's Children's Dept. at the Pitt Plaza Shopping Center. If you are one of the four lucky winners, we'll give mom a $25.00 gift certificate. Plus, the winning drawings will appear in The Daily Reflector on Mother's Day, May 8. Won't mom be proud?

Official Contest Rules

1. Cut out blank part of this ad or use your own paper. Draw mom's picture with either pencils, magic markers or crayons. Then tell us why you think your mom is special in the space provided.
2. The contest will be divided into four age categories. Any child ages 3-5 (Category 1), 6-8 (Category 2), 9-11 (Category 3), or 12-14 (Category 4), may enter as long as he or she has not celebrated his/her 14th birthday by May 8th, 1983. Children of Brody's employees may not enter. One entry per child.
3. There will be four winners, one from each category. The winning mother of each child will receive a $25.00 gift certificate from Brody's.
4. Entries must be received by Tuesday, May 3rd, at 4:00 p.m. in order for winners to be notified by May 5th.
5. Original drawings will become property of Brody's and may not be returned.
6. Each drawing must be accompanied with an official entry blank.
7. All entries will be judged on originality and creativity by Brody's Advertising Department.

Miss Johnson Marries Saturday Afternoon

MRS. THOMAS CLEMENT DICKINSON

RALEIGH — Dorothy Marie Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Johnson of Greenville, and Thomas Clement Dickinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dickinson of Hackettstown, N.J., were united in marriage Saturday at 2 p.m.

The double ring ceremony was conducted by Dr. Albert Edwards and Father Michael Shagrue in the First Presbyterian Church.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over peau de soie designed with a high neckline encircled with re-embroidered alencon lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice was overlaid in re-embroidered alencon lace. The sheer fitted sleeves were enhanced with alencon lace and finished in calla points. The modified A-line skirt and attached semi-cathedral train were accented with a double edging of re-embroidered alencon lace. She wore a waltz length veil of illusion designed with pencil edging attached to a Juliet cap overlaid in re-embroidered alencon beaded with pearls. The veil was accented with appliques of alencon lace. The bride carried a cascade of white and pink roses, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Susan Herring of Raleigh was maid of honor. Bridesmaids included Ann Johnson of Greenville, sister-in-law of the bride, Sheree Hardin of Raleigh, Joanne Westcott of Williamstown, N.J., sister of the bridegroom, and Faye Strickland of Raleigh.

The brother of the bridegroom, John Dickinson, of West Trenton, N.J. was best man and ushers included Paul Dickinson of Baltimore, Md., brother of the bridegroom, Dickie Johnson of Greenville, brother of the bride, Steve Westcott of Williamstown, N.J., brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Pat Franc of Bensalem, Pa.

After a wedding trip to Barbados, the couple will be living in Hackettstown, N.J.

The bride is employed in a market support center in IBM and the bridegroom is employed as a marketing representative with Compac Corp.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dickinson entertained the wedding party at an after-rehearsal dinner at the Marriott Hotel in Raleigh.

Mr. and Mrs. A.R. Boles and Mr. and Mrs.R.W. Holley of Greenville entertained out-of-town guests and wedding party at a wine and cheese party at the Marriott Hotel in Raleigh.

Banana Oat Bread

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Banana cakes came into wide favor in the United States and Canada in the 1920s. Banana quick breads followed along and won popularity.

At first recipes for banana breads were made with white flour. Later the white flour was combined with another grain. For example, in the following recipe oats are used; they provide a coarse texture many eaters approve.

These days banana oat loaves attract many cooks for a special reason — both bananas and oats are low in sodium.

BANANA OAT PECAN BREAD

1¼ cups all-purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon cinnamon
4 small (each 4 ounces) ripe bananas
2 large eggs
1-3rd cup sugar
½ cup corn oil
1 cup quick-cooking oats
½ cup chopped (medium-fine) pecans

Oil the bottom of an 8 by 4 by 2½-inch loaf pan.

On wax paper or in a small bowl, thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and cinnamon.

Into a medium bowl, slice the bananas; with an electric beater beat until pureed — there should be 1 cup; add eggs, sugar and oil; beat until blended. Add the flour mixture; stir just until it is moistened. Stir in the oats and pecans. Turn into the prepared pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 55 minutes.

With a small metal spatula, loosen edges. Turn out on a wire rack; turn right side up; cool completely.

SNACKTIME FARE — Banana Oat Pecan Bread is a quickly made loaf.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jones of Zinnsville, Ind. announce the engagement of their daughter, Jerilyn Marie, to Bryan Scott Cates, son of Mr. and Mrs. A.P. Cates Jr. of Greensboro. The wedding is planned for May 26.

Wedding Invitation

Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Norwood Jr. request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Michael Kent Rolison, on May 7 at 2 p.m. in Green Springs Park in Greenville.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

As I was driving down the highway the other day it occurred to me that the gas glut has brought back an American tradition that for the past year or so has been parked in driveways awaiting better times: the recreational vehicle.

For awhile there, it looked like campers were destined to become the biggest planters ever built or the most expensive bedroom for "sleep-overs" ever constructed.

But not anymore. They're all, in the words of Willie Nelson, "on the road again." As a driver who considers "passing" one of life's great adventures, I found myself following a 32-footer with tandem wheels and a sign that read, "The Vagabonds, Ruby and Rusty, Kendalville, Indiana."

I knew in my heart that if they didn't turn off for gas or food, I would follow them right into Kendalville, rather than attempt to go around them.

For the next hour and a half, I had a lot of time to think about Ruby and Rusty and to reflect on my own camping days. I knew that Ruby was a sport. At that moment she was reading a road map to her husband who didn't care where the sun was setting, he was going east and if the sun was going down there, God had made a big mistake!

She would worry about the gears burning out when they went uphill and the brakes burning out when they went downhill. She would worry about sudden stops and wonder if she had remembered to lock into place all the cupboard doors or would she have mayonnaise and breakfast cereal to clean up.

She would worry about whether or not she had thrown out the fishheads wrapped in newspaper she had left by the sink.

She would worry about getting a spot in a campground that you could "pull through" instead of backing up and running the risk of driving over Rusty's foot again.

Her life was built around laundromats and how far it was to the next one. The big saucepan that she usually washed sheets in was being used to store bait.

The scenic wonders were secondary. Grand Canyon. Big deal! What she really wanted to see loom over the horizon was a dumping station for their holding tank.

Actually, this is all speculation. I never saw Ruby or Rusty. They pulled off the side of the road around 5:30. I figured things would seem better to both of them after they had lunch.

FASHION UPDATE: ATLANTA

A new name appeared in the fashion forefront at the recent Atlanta Apparel Market: A. Taylor by Danny Taylor. Some market resources say its the most innovative, the newest looking collection on the market in many seasons; as well as the most widely acclaimed.

The twenty piece collection, designed by Danny Taylor for Ann Taylor Accessories of Kinston, NC, consists of dresses and separates in merino wool jersey; jackets, skirts, and pants in wool/mohair tweed and wool flannel; as well as silk broadcloth dinner separates.

All the pieces in the line were designed and custom colored to work together to create a completely interchangeable collection. The styling and coloring is soft and feminine, simple and sleek.

Buyers and fashion editors alike are making a commitment to this new talent with in store promotions and media coverage in industry periodicals such as Womens Wear Daily, Fashion Showcase, and local media sources.

A. Taylor is very today, very fluid, very easy to wear, very lean, very 1983!

Linda Blackwell Weds John Robert Owen

Linda Sue Blackwell and John Robert Owen exchanged wedding vows Saturday at 2 p.m. in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. James H. Bailey performed the double ring ceremony.

A program of music was presented by Mark Gansor, organist, and Mark Leonard, soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Betty Blackwell of Greenville and J.P.Blackwell of Annandale, Va. Mr. and Mrs. John H. Owen of Stovall are parents of the bridegroom.

Donna Blackwell of Greenville was maid of honor for her sister. Bridesmaids included Mary Elisha Adams of Greenville and Beth Raynor of Pontiac, S.C.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man and ushers were James Thomas Owen, uncle of the bridegroom, and Warren Owen, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Durham.

The bride wore a formal gown of imported French chantilly lace over peau de soie designed with a Queen Anne neckline outlined in scalloped chantilly lace beaded with pearls. The fitted bodice also featured long sheer bishop sleeves with fitted cuffs. The modified A-line skirt of French chantilly was styled with a ruffled flounce at center front of white organza trimmed in scalloped lace that extended to an attached cathedral length train enhanced by tiers of flounces, each bordered in scalloped chantilly lace. Her illusion veil was edged in matching lace. She carried a bouquet of lavender and white daisies, purple statice, miniature white carnations, baby's breath with laverder and white satin streamers.

The honor attendant wore a formal gown of orchid organza designed with an open neckline featuring a double ruffle of organza outlining the off-shoulder bodice and scooped back. A gathered sash of organza encircled the modified waistline and the skirt was enhanced by a flounce at the hemline that extended up the back of the gown to form a bustle. She carried a bouquet of lavender and white daisies, purple statice, baby's breath with lavender streamers and wore a headpiece of white daisies, purple statice, baby's breath with lavender ribbon. The bridesmaids were dressed like the honor attendant.

A reception took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.G. Lancaster III. A rehearsal dinner was held at the Golden Dragon Restaurant Friday evening.

The couple will live in Durham after a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C.

The bride is a graduate of East Carolina and N.C. Central Universities. She works at C.A. Dillon Training School in Butner. The bridegroom graduated from Vance-Granville Community College and N.C. Central University. He works at the Federal Correctional Institute in Butner.

People Movers

PARIS (AP) — Foot-sore and pavement-weary Parisians can expect relief in 1984 when the world's first accelerating pedestrian walkway, known as Trax, is scheduled to begin operation.

A 193-foot interchange connecting the Paris subway and the railroad station at Les Invalides, Trax reportedly speeds up from 1.8 miles an hour — the normal walking pace maintained by most conventional walkways — to 7.8 miles an hour without knocking passengers off their feet.

The system has been selected for future study by the Port Authority of New York.

Male parrots excel females at echolalia — repeating without understanding.

HEALTHY LAUGH

NEW YORK (AP) — Laughing is healthy for your body as well as your mind.

Medical researchers have discovered that when you laugh, you exercise your heart, lungs and adrenal glands. You also breathe more deeply, increasing the body's oxygen flow.

Research also indicates laughter may ease physical pain by triggering production of endorphins, which are the body's natural pain killers.

Close Up Experience

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blind and deaf students can tour the nation's capital and gain as valuable a learning experience as other students.

This is due to specially prepared educational tools for handicapped students by the Close Up Foundation here.

Operating under a grant from R.J. Reynolds Industries, the foundation has intiated one-week training programs for all students. Deaf students are provided with interpreters and blind students are exposed to a special relief map in braille, with replicas of historic sites.

The participants meet with government officials, lobbyists and reporters, and attend special seminars on legislation under consideration.

More than 100,000 young people have attended the training sessions, including 124 visually impaired and 1,158 hearing impaired students.

After Eight Years, Town Returns Sculptor's Work Of Art

HE'S GOT LEG . . . Sculptor Andrew Coppola sits in his Hartford studio between a pair of sculpted legs similar to ones that formed a statue that stood for eight years outside the Berlin, Conn. Town Hall. This year Berlin residents decided they didn't like the statue and sold it back to Coppola — at a $2,000 loss to the town. (AP Laserphoto)

By VIVIAN MARINO
Associated Press Writer

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The folks of Berlin, Conn., have given a controversial seven-legged statue its walking papers, and won't have creator Andrew Coppola to kick around any more.

Last month, townspeople voted to sell "Star Dancer" back to Coppola, saying its well-developed, concentric aluminum legs were inappropriate for their small, central Connecticut community.

"Star Dancer wasn't intended to shock anyone in this small town," the 42-year-old bearded sculptor said recently. "I designed this piece of sculpture to go with the sky. I see it as a radiation of formal balance.

"The leg is the extension of everything we do and the way we act in life, walking or dancing. And the town hall is a pedestrian center."

Some residents, however, interpret the statue differently, calling it anything from obscene to just plain ugly.

Since its unveiling in 1975, the 7½-foot, 200-pound statue, which graces the town's $2.85 million municipal complex, has been in and out of public attention.

Pranksters have adorned the legs with nylons, diapers or streamers. A few local politicians campaigned on a promise to run the leggy statue out of town if elected.

Finally, a "What To Do With the Statue Committee" was formed after Republican Thomas W. Ward was elected mayor, and townspeople eventually agreed to sell the statue back to Coppola for $3,000, $2,000 off the purchase price.

"I said a long time ago I would consider Ward's administration a success if he got rid of the statue and replaced it with something appropriate," resident Blanch Mahan said at a recent town meeting after voting to get rid of "Star Dancer."

Berlin officials plan eventually to replace "Star Dancer" with a bronze replica of the town seal. Coppola, meanwhile, hopes to resell it once arrangements are made to transfer the artwork back to him.

"It's all a shame," said Coppola, who was commissioned to do the piece by architect Irwin J. Hirsch under the administration of former Mayor Arthur Powers.

"It was a major undertaking for me from start to finish (taking one year to complete), and the mayor has made a political campaign out of it," Coppola said.

But Coppola, who lives and works in a small, cluttered studio in Hartford, doesn't seem to mind the controversy or the publicity accompanying it. Most sculptors receive commissions based on their notoriety, he said.

"All art is controversial to a certain point," he said. "It deals with inner feelings in a very upfront way. Other artists have faced similar situations."

At the Aldrich Museum in Ridgefield, Conn., for instance, an angular, electric blue sculpture was relegated to the museum's backyard last year after residents complained its prominent display on Main Street wasn't in keeping with the area's historic character.

Concert Set For Kinston

KINSTON — The General Assembly Barbershop Chorus of Raleigh, three time Dixie District Champions over a seven-state area, will perform in the Northwest School Auditorium in Kinston at 8:15 p.m. Friday.

The 40-member, all male group has expanded into performing in several areas of music — pop, country and western, and gospel music arranged in four-part harmony.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $4 in advance and $5 at the door. Tickets can be ordered by making checks made payable to The Kinston Arts Council and mailing these to the council at P.O. Box 3554, Kinston, N.C., 28501.

Additionally, one of the chorus' quartets, Acapella Gold, will be in Lenoir County Thursday and Friday to conduct wrokshop performances in city and county schools and in a civic club appearance.

The performances are produced by the Community Council for the Arts with financial support through the Grassroots Arts Program of the N.C. Arts Council and the N.C. State Legislature.

Believe In Love At First Sight

NEW YORK (UPI) — A public opinion survey indicates 58 percent of Americans believe in love at first sight, but 37 percent are skeptical about the possibility. Five percent told the interviewers they had no opinion on the subject.

The findings of The Merit Report were the same among all regions, age groups and income levels but differed by sex. Men said they believed in love at first sight by a 30 point margin, but women by only a 14 point margin.

The study by Audits & Surveys, Inc., was based on interviews conducted Jan. 31-Feb. 4 with a probability sample of about 1,200 adults, 18 years and older, living in telephone households in the continental United States.

Gary Cooper was the director's first choice for the lead role in "Stagecoach," a movie that made John Wayne a star, while Wayne was the original choice for the lead role in "High Noon," a film immediately associated with Cooper.

ECU Choir's Spring Concerts

ECU News Bureau

The 38-member East Carolina University Choir and its conductor, Dr. Brett Watson of the ECU School of Music faculty, performed concerts during its recent tour of Virginia and Washington, D.C.

Performances were given in Virginia at St. Andrew's United Methodist Church, Portsmouth, at Woodbridge High School, at Grace United Methodist Church, Manasas, and in Washington, D.C. at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. An ECU alumni luncheon was held at the Old Europe Restaurant in Washington.

Works performed at each concert were Josquin des Prez's "Ave Christe;" a Heinrich Schutz setting of the 100th Psalm; Mozart's "Missa Brevis in D;" "Fern Hill" by John Corigliano; Anton Dovark's "On the Green Hillside;" and other pieces including folk music and spirituals.

The choir, one of six choral ensembles sponsored by the ECU School of Music, is ECU's select touring choir. Its renditions of Christmas songs and carols are featured in a recording, "The ECU Choir Sings at Christmas." The choir has performed several times at Rockefeller Plaza in New York and at the National Cathedral in Washington, D.C. Last year it traveled across the nation on its annual spring tour.

New Art Book

RALEIGH — The recent opening of the new North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh is accompanied by the presentation of a new publication which surveys the museum's collections of art from ancient Egypt to the present day.

"The North Carolina Museum of Art: Introduction to the Collections" is being published this month as the first survey of the museum's collections since 1970.

The 312-page book, edited by museum director Dr. Edgar Peters Bowron, includes 31 color plates and 245 black-and-white illustrations. Among the nearly 300 works of art illustrated within the book are many which were acquired recently and have never been previously exhibited in North Carolina.

The book, published by the University of North Carolina Press, is priced at $19.95. It is available in the Museum Shop or can be ordered by mail for $22.80 (which includes $2.85 for tax, postage and handling charges).

Checks are to be made payable to NCMA Foundation and orders are to be sent to: The Museum Shop, N.C. Museum of Art, 2110 Blue Ridge Blvd., Raleigh, N.C., 27607.

Author Edgar Rice Burroughs, whose Tarzan books were made into 39 movies and 52 television shows, never visited Africa.

Greenville R & P Offers Two Backpacking Trips

The Greenville Recreation and Parks Department is offering two programs in backpacking on the Appalachain Trail in the Pisgah and Cherokee National forests during May and June.

•The first trip date will be May 14-17, with the trip to cover about 17 miles from Iron Mountain Gap in North Carolina to the Nolichucky River near Erwin, Tenn.

This section of the trail passes through hardwood forests and massive rhodendron groves and over Little Bald Knob, 4,459 feet, Unaka Mountain, 5,180 feet, and Beauty Spot, a natural open grassy bald that affords extensive views of surrounding mountains and the Nolichucky River.

Participants will spend 2½ days hiking and three nights camping along the trail.

Cost of the trip is $35. This includes transportation from Greenville, all meals on the trail, and all equipment except shoes, clothing and toiletries. An additional expense of $10 to $15 should cover meals while traveling to and from the site.

•The second trip, a week-long adventure, will be June 4-11. This trip will cover a 50-mile section of the Appalachian Trail between Hampton, Tenn. and Iron Mountain Gap, N.C. The hike begins at the wild and rugged Laurel Gorge and includes 6½ days of hiking and seven nights on the trail. Hikers will hike see sheer cliffs, wooded slopes, go along waterfalls and ascend several mountains over a mile high, including Roan Mountain at 6,285 feet.

Cost of the week-long trip is $75, and icnludes all expenses except shoes, clothing and toiletries. An additional $10 to $15 should be sufficient to cover meals while traveling to and from the site.

Both programs are geared to the beginning and novice backpacker, and no experience is necessary. Requirements are: a minimum age of 18, good physical condition, and willingness to work and cooperate with others.

Orientation and discussion sessions will be held prior to each trip. Those wanting to sign up or get more information are to call Bill Twine, Greenville Recreation and Parks Department at 752-4137, extension 201.

Redneck Records

By JOE EDWARDS
Associated Press Writer

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Survival kits containing a pair of white socks, a brown paper sack to hold a beer can, a combination knife-beer can opener and a pool hall chili recipe, are flooding radio stations around the nation.

Warner-Viva Records has distributed 500 of these "All-American Redneck Survival Kits" to promote a record about rednecks.

Randy Howard, who first tried to break into the music business in the late '60s, celebrates rednecks — a derogatory term for poor, white rural southerners — in his album, "All-American Redneck."

But, the 32-year-old Howard says, the term "redneck" doesn't have to be offensive.

"It can be positive," he said in a telephone interview from Macon, Ga., where he has lived all his life except for two years in Nashville. "When I play clubs, I ask if there are any rednecks out there. I get a good response whether I'm in New York or Miami.

"With the cowboy craze and modern-day cowboys, a lot of people look at rednecks with that in mind now. They think of 'The Dukes of Hazzard.'"

His song, also called "All-American Redneck," talks of white socks, pickup trucks, draft beer and pool hall chili. But the original version has been banned from all but a handful of country stations because of two vulgar words. Warner-Viva deleted the words and reissued the sanitized song for airplay.

"He kicks (word deleted). He pumps gas," the song goes. "He drives a '65 T-bird that runs so fast. He eats pool hall chili. And he drinks what you got on draft."

Another verse says that the all-American redneck's "got a pickup truck. He thinks he's tough. And if you need a woman he can fix you up."

Although radio stations have been cool to the record, Howard says it's a favorite of live audiences at country music clubs.

"It goes over great live," he said about the ballad.

Changed Her World As A Sharecropper

RESHAPED HER WORLD — Growing up in the backwoods of Georgia, Alice Walker wanted to transform her sharecropping world. She did it with words; winning the Pulitzer prize for fiction. (AP Laserphoto)

By C.W. MIRANKER
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Growing up in backwoods Georgia, Alice Walker wanted to be a painter, a blues singer, a wild woman with the audacity and style to transform her sharecropping world.

Instead, since "it was cheaper to get a pencil and paper," she reshaped her world with words. This week she became the first black woman to win the Pulitzer Prize for fiction, receiving the award for her latest effort, "The Color Purple."

The 39-year-old novelist and poet was among seven women awarded Pulitzers in the arts and journalism, the best year women have had. Fifteen prizes were awarded. Those won by women were drama, fiction writing, nonfiction writing, composing and, in journalism, feature writing, special local reporting and criticism.

Coming just days after her novel won the American Book Award, the new honor has filled Ms. Walker's apartment balcony with flowers from wellwishers, prompted the purchase of a telephone answering machine and, for once, robbed her of words. "I don't know what I feel yet," she admitted in an interview. "I don't know what it means."

But then she said, "If it means that my characters get to meet more people, encourage more people, then that's fine."

The characters possess her still. They chased her across the country five years ago, from New York to San Francisco to a Mendocino County hamlet, where she finally gave them life.

The story, set in the South between the World Wars, unfolds in Celie's letters to God, because she's too alone, too desolate, too oppressed to talk to anyone else. Raped at 14 by the man she calls Pa, who sells her two babies, Celie is married off to a widower who says: "You black, you pore, you ugly, you a woman. Goddam, he say, you nothing at all." He even installs his ailing mistress in the house for Celie to nurse back to health.

Yet that woman, a blues singer called Shug because she's sweet as sugar, prods Celie to life. Celie's folk-talk letters, barely literate, turn into poetry; a tale that begins in tragedy somehow works its way toward happiness.

Celie and Shug, though creatures of Ms. Walker's imagination, bear witness to real people, real pain. Ms. Walker's great-great-grandmother Celie was raped by the man who owned her.

"She gave birth to my grandfather's father when she was 12," Ms. Walker said. "So I did a lot of thinking about her and what she must have felt. ...

"And yet in those days, they didn't consider that rape. They considered it more his right since she was property. ... For years I didn't realize that she'd been raped. My mother's explanation of it was that she had been 'put with the master.'"

Since the book's publication last summer, Ms. Walker has come under fire for its pulsing rage at men. "I don't like oppression," she responds. "And if they're not oppressing me, if they're not oppressing women and they're not oppressing the earth, I'm prepared to like them."

Part of Celie also comes from a step-grandmother. After weaving memories of the two women into one character, Ms. Walker said she "tried to figure out a way to make her happy."

"I knew she wouldn't be happy with any of the men around her own life ... but I thought she would have a chance with Shug Avery," she said.

Shug has her origins in the blues singers and flamboyant women Ms. Walker admires, especially in the aunts who descended on the family in Eatonton, Ga., "in their glory on Sundays," their day off as domestics.

They had spunk and style, "dressed beautifully in these outrageous colors and wore all these funny fur stoles with these animals biting each others' tails, ... doused themselves with great perfumes and wore wonderful red stockings and high-heeled shoes and had big pocketbooks a child could just get into and find all kinds of treasures," Ms. Walker said.

She left those Sundays behind at 17 when she won a scholarship to Spelman College in Atlanta and then to Sarah Lawrence in New York State. There, Muriel Rukeyser helped get Ms. Walker's first poems published.

Since then, she has produced three volumes of poems, three novels, two collections of short stories and a children's biography of Langston Hughes.

Active in the civil rights movement in Mississippi, Ms. Walker married a white lawyer, had a daughter, Rebecca, and later divorced.

The affirmation the novel achieves comes close to what Ms. Walker sees as her mission as a writer.

"I really do see it as being here to encourage people ... to take heart. This earth is ours, our lives are ours. Take charge of them, have happiness, fight for it.

"I feel, in a way, like a singer," she said, adding as an almost whispered aside, "I always wanted to sing, too.

"You know how you sometimes feel really rotten and you put on a record? ... And by the time it's over, you feel like you can go out and do battle again? That's how I see myself.

"I hope when you finish 'The Color Purple,' you're able to put it down and say, Well, there's a lot of joy to be had."

Book News

By JUNE PARKER

Among the new nonfiction books at Sheppard Memorial Library are several which have created quite a bit of interest. The first, "The One-Minute Manager" by Kenneth Blanchard and Spencer Johnson,is a small book that outlines in story form the authors' three secrets to successful manmagement — one minute goals, one-minute praising, and one-minute reprimands.

The authors believe that the most successful managers manage the least. Managers should help employees set up three to six major goals with specific standards for performance. They should make sure that the employee is on the right track, give him praise for doing a good job, and then leave the employee on his own until he makes a mistake.

Here the one-minute reprimand comes into play. Criticism should be directed toward the undesired behavior not toward the person himself. In both the praise and the reprimand, the manager should tell how he feels — angry, annoyed, satisfied — in trying to get across his view of the situation to the employee. This book, in a very shortened version, demonstrates some of the basic ideas in managment today.

Fred I. Greenstein, professor of politics at Princeton University, in the "Hidden-Hand President," gives an incisive analysis of Eisenhower's politics and strategies. Eisenhower has commonly been regarded as an ineffectual president, not harmful but politically indecisive. Greenstein, on the other hand, maintains that behind his bland exterior was a definite strong hand. Drawing upon recently declassified primary documents, Greenstein shows that Eisenhower knew exactly what he wanted and worked hard to get it. He purposely cultivated a style of public vagueness and private precision in order to appear to head a unified government and country. This little book gives a new view of a frequently disregarded presidency.

The last book, "Blue Highways: A Journey Into America" by William Least Heat Moon, a 38-year old mixed-blood Osage Indian, tells of a journey which was first motivated by several incidents in his personal life. First, he was separated from his wife, then fired from his job teaching college English. With his private life in shambles, he started out on a 12,000 mile trip beginning in Columbia, Missouri and then travelled on to North Carolina, Louisiana, Oregon, New England, Chesapeake Bay, and then back to Missouri.

He headed for the backroads of America, the ones represented by the blue lines on the old highway maps, looking for the homemade and the original. He talked with Cajuns, bartenders, Trappist monks, ranch hands, college students, police, and farmers and took pictures of them, many of which are included in the book.

The book does not have a strong stucture, but the author has a good ear for natural language and he lets the people talk for themselves. The emphasis is on the people and their values but descriptions of the terrain are not totally neglected. History and philosophy are also woven into the story of middle of nowhere America.

NARA EHON ... illustrated books produced in large numbers in Japan from the 1400s to the 1700s, are increasingly popular after long obscurity. Connoisseur magazine's April issue tells how a scholar's find in a Dublin library brought Nara ehon back from oblivion. The photograph above is a Youchi Soga, a 17th century scroll typical of Nara ehon, which in this work of art tells the true tale of two brothers avenging their father's death in 1193. # Old Japanese Narrative Researched By Woman Scholar

NEW YORK — She was a young gradaute student doing research in Japan. He was an Englishman, older, but theirs were the only Occidental faces in the crowded Kyoto restaurant that day in 1963, and it was only natural for them to speak. From that meeting stemmed not a tale of romantic love but a story of love of art leading the young woman on a lifeling, satisfying quest.

An account of the search of Dr. Barbara Ruch, now director of the Institute for Medieval Japanese Studies at the University of Pennsylvania, is told in the April issue of Connoisseur magazine.

During her only meeting with the Englishman, he was disdainful when she said she was researching medieval Japanese illustrated narratives, called Nara ehon. "Whatever for?" he asked. "Most of the materials are anonymous. They don't represent the great masterpeces of Japanese literature and art."

Ruch disagreed. The Englishman commented that is she were ever in Dublin, Ireland, some day, she might check on "a small library" where he'd seen some Nara ehon.

That comment led Dr. Ruch to go to Dublin. An elderly attendant at the Chester Beatty Library poked around in a closet cluttered with umbrellas and overshoes — and the greatest collection of Nara ehon in Europe. The collection had been gathered by a wealthy collector of Oriental literature and art at the turn of the century. He bequeathed it to Ireland. The Nara ehon had been stored, neglected and forgotten.

From that time on, Dr. Ruch sought other forgotten caches in Europe and the U.S., and she and other scholars have uncovered about 40 collections. The popularity of Nara ehon has grown. There have been conferences of scholars, exhibitions in major cities, and last year, publication of the first book ever published on the subject in Japan.

"In medieval Japan," Connoisseur relates, "when the gods have been especially kind and conspired to arrange a happy ending, the grateful scribe often closed with the words: 'Medatashi! Medatashi! (Blessings abound! Blessings abound!). Since that chance meeting in Kyoto in 1963, these words have often been spoken by Dr. Ruch.

Exhibit Of Indian Leaders To Be Shown In Washington

WASHINGTON — An exhibit of Great American Indian Leaders, which will tour the U.S. over the next several years, will be shown at Washington Square Mall in Washington beginning Wednesday and continuing through Monday, May 2. Viewing hours are between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. daily. The exhibit is free with the public invited to come and view it.

Produced by Encyclopaedia Britannica (USA), the exhibit features life-size mannequins of 12 American Indians in settings that accurately reflect the period and area in which each lived.

The dozen leaders represented in the exhibit are:

• Black Hawk, a leader of a faction of Sauk and Fox Indians who fought in the Black Hawk War of 1832 in Illinois and Wisconsin.

• Cochise, an Apache chief who fought the white man's incursions into the Southwest in the 1860s.

• Joseph, a Nez Perce chief who led resistance to takeover of fertile lands in the Northwest during the 1870s.

• Massasoit, chief of the Wampanoags, who maintained peaceful relations with English settlers in the Plymouth Colony.

• Powhatan, whose actual name was Wahunsonacock, a powerful chief of a confederacy that included at least 30 Algonkian-speaking tribes.

• Sacagawea, a Shoshone Indian woman who traveled thousands of miles with the Lewis and Clark Expedition between 1804 and 1806.

• Sequoyah, son of a British trader and Cherokee mother, creator of the Cherokee writing system.

• Tecumseh, a Shawnee chief, orator, military leader and advocate of intertribal Indian alliance who directed resistance to white rule in the Ohio Valley in the late 18th and early 19th centuries.

• Wovoka, a Northern Paiute, developer of a cult, the Ghost Dance, which represented the last attempt of Indians in the Western U.S. to rehabilitate traditional cultures shattered through conquest by the whites.

In preparing the exhibit, 38 Indian leaders were nominated and the list submitted to 14 tribal organizations, Indian study groups and American Indian museums. From their votes and comments, the final 12 were selected.

Laing To Evaluate Programs

ECU News Bureau

Dr. Richard H. Laing, dean of the East Carolina University School of Art, will travel to southern California in May to evaluate three state university art departments and to advise California's Department of Education concerning which two of the the three schools should offer the master of fine arts degree.

The campuses Laing are to visit are the California universities at Los Angeles, Fullerton and San Diego. Laing was selected by all three from a national list of possible evaluators recommended by the National Association of Schools of Art and Design.

Laing will spend four days as the sole visitor for the project, analyzing the current support system for offering the MFA, the terminal studio degree in the art field.

In addition to his career as an art educator and active exhibitor of his own work, prior to coming to ECU, Laing has been an art curriculum administrator at North Texas State University, Ball State University and Edinboro, Pa., State College.

Petrus Van Muyden Is Taking 10 Dancers To Mount Airy For Showcase Performances

GIVING POINTERS . . . Balletmaster Petrus van Muyden works with dancer Jina Yelton as she practices for a dance in which she will solo. Ten of van Muyden's students will give two performances of work he has choregraphed on Saturday at the Andy Griffith Center in Mt. Airy. (Photograph by Gordon Ipock)

(Editor's Note: Ipock, from Wingate, is a senior at East Carolina University majoring in English with a minor in journalism)

By GORDON IPOCK

"For anybody who is willing to learn, I am willing to teach," says Petrus van Muyden. "And I love to teach!" For the East Carolina University balletmaster, these enthusiastic words are the essence of his success as a teacher and coach of classical dance.

Before van Muyden arrived at ECU three years ago, the ECU dance program relied on guest ballet teachers. As a result, according to van Muyden, most of his ballet students, who had previously concentrated on other forms of dance, had poor form and little technique in ballet.

"They had no placement, no alignment. Their elbows, their hands were drooping. It was very bad ballet quality, what I saw. But, what I saw, too, was some good bodies. Naturally, there was here some talented people — Elizabeth Pope, Lisa Barrows, Michael Wetzle.

"My 11 o'clock class was so bad. A friend from Pittsburgh came to visit me and said, 'May I see your class?' I said, 'No! It's mission impossible.' Tom (Thomas Bell) was in that class. When I look back, I'm proud of what I did in this couple of years so that Tom can dance Armand Duval in 'The Lady of the Camelias.'

"The first thing I set was 'Claire de Lune.' I could not do it completely classical — I did it neo-classical with a little modern movement in it because they could not dance classical, really. I had to choreograph around what they could do. And then a year later I did 'Lady of the Camelias' and the 'Tarantella,' and finally now, in the third year, Tom asked me to do a variation on 'Le Corsair' and 'Nutcracker.' Before, he could not jump. He could turn.

"I must say," van Muyden added, "I attracted better students. The majority of seniors and juniors here had no idea what the discipline of classical dance is."

Now, van Muyden says his better dancers are talented freshmen and sophomores except for the tiny cadre of serious older students like Ms. Pope and Bell. He will take this mixture of talented newcomers and veteran performers to the Andy Griffith Playhouse in Mount Airy for a matinee and evening performance on April 30. The troupe of 10 students will give a performance comprised entirely of works choreographed by van Muyden during his three-year stay at ECU.

Most of these works have been showcased during the past two ECU Dance Theater concerts. Van Muyden's "Pas de Quatre" will be danced by Ms. Pope, Anna Maria Sistare, Jina Yelton and Kimberly McCachren. It's a re-enactment of a Romantic period ballet that originally starred four famous and highly competitive ballerinas. Van Muyden is particularly fond of the piece. It demands sound dancing as well as acting skills and is a proven audience pleaser.

Ms. Yelton, a sophomore, will dance her first solo role in van Muyden's variation from "Esmeralda." The gypsy flavored piece demands verve and abandon. A Spanish-style piece is "Bolero Classique" which van Muyden recently choreographed for freshman dancer Marlene Vaughan. It will be the first solo performance for the lithe 5-foot-10 Ms. Vaughan and the premiere for "Bolero Classique."

The lyrical, neo-classic pas de deux, "Claire de Lune," will be danced by Ms. Pope and Todd Ellis. Ms. Pope will again be partnered by Bell in the grand pas de deux from 'The Nutcracker," which was a highlight of this year's ECU dance concert. Van Muyden has also revived "Lady of the Camelias" from last year's concert.

Perhaps the most exciting piece in the Mount Airy concert will be van Muyden's version of "Le Corsair," to be danced by Anna Maria Sistare and Bell. Both excel as turners, and van Muyden choreographed the piece with this in mind — plenty of pirouettes and tours (turns while in the air). Ms. Sistare's balance and Bell's strength allow for strong partnering.

The Spanish, Arabian, Chinese, Russian and Mirlitons dances, solos from "The Nutcracker," will all be performed to van Muyden's choregraphy. The program of classical ballet is being promoted by Southern Dance Artists Inc. of Mount Airy. Musical interludes during the program will feature classical guitarist Jon Oritz.

According to Van Muyden, the Mount Airy program serves two purposes — promoting the ECU dance program in the western half of the state, and providing students an opportunity to tour and perform in a professional manner.

Professionalism is one aspect of dancing that van Muyden strives to instill in his students. "I'm not here to be mean," he says. "I want to teach the real professional way, and that is through discipline."

Van Muyden is well acquainted with the demands of professional dance. His dance career began in 1935 in his native Holland at the age of 16. At 19, he joined the Nederlandse Opera Ballet Company. After a short time in the corps de ballet, he was promoted to soloist. At 21, he was first star dancer for the company. Until 1961, van Muyden served numerous roles as dancer, choreographer, instructor, director and balletmaster in a number of Dutch companies. During this time he danced before audiences across Europe.

In 1961, van Muyden decided to see America. He sold his own ballet school and company to the Dutch government, came to the United States and became an American citizen in 1968. His ballet career in America as a master ballet teacher has encompassed positions as balletmaster of the San Francisco Ballet Company in the 1960s, and as an instructor of ballet at the North Carolina School of the Arts.

Before coming to ECU, van Muyden was an associate professor of ballet and dance history at Point Park College in Pittsburgh. There he served on a faculty with such illustrious masters as Edward Caton and Leonide Massine, the dancer who replaced Nijinsky in Diaghilev's Ballet Russe. Van Muyden has also served as guest instructor and given master classes in ballet across America.

Special Flute Recital Today

Kelly Via, a graduate teaching assistant in the School of Music, East Carolina University, will direct the ECU Flute Ensemble in a recital to be presented at 8:15 p.m. tonight in the A.J. Fletcher Recital Hall on campus. Ron Payne, also a graduate teaching assistant, will be guest conductor for two pieces on the program.

The program is free and open to the public.

LUigi Zninelli's "Prelude" is the opening number on tonight's program. This will be followed by Arthur Ephross' arrangement of Giovanni Gabrieli's "Sonata Pian 'e Forte," Peter Schickele's "Monochrome I," and Robert R. Roden's "Elegance." Payne will conduct "Elegance."

After an intermission, T.F. Wagner's "Under the Double Eagle," arranged by Robert Cavally will be performed. This will be followed by the Army Rice-Young arrangement of J.S. Bach's "Bourree," and John Wisenthal's "Homage to Fellini," the latter to be conduted by Payne.

The final composition on the program will be Henry Mancini's "The Pink Panther Suite," arranged by Amy Rice-Young and featuring Becky Hollowell, bass and David Garza, drums.

The 12 flutists in addition to director Via comprising the ECU Flute Ensemble are: Nancy Bailey, Todd Barnhart, Vicki Blowe, Meg Burley, Donna Collins, Amy Davis, Elise Friedlander, Loralee Lindquist, Sydney Reed, Jonathan Sills, Karen Spratley, and Felicia Warren.

WOOW Classics

One composition planned but not played on last week's program, two requests from listeners, and recordings from seldom heard groups are among the pieces to be played today on Karen Hause's "WOOW Classics." The weekly program airs each Sunday over WOOW radio, 1340 on the radio dial, from 4 to 7 p.m. It can also be heard over channel 9 on the local cable television.

Music to be heard on today's program is:

•Dohnanyi's "Variation on a Nursey Tune," Julius Katchen, piano, with the London Philharmonic conducted by Sir Adrian Boult (this was scheduled but not played last week).

•Two repeat pieces being aired by popular request — Pachelbel's "Canon in D," the Piallard Chamber Orchestra, and Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique," the New York Philharmonic, Zubin Mehta, conducting.

•"Concerto for Cello and Orchestra in B flat," by Boccherini, Andre Navarra, cello and the Camerata Academia, Bernhard Paumgartner, conducting.

•Beethoven's "Triple Concerto, Opus 56," the Beaux Arts Trio and the London Philharmonic, Bernard Haitink, conducting.

Weinberger's "Polka and Fugue" from "Schwanda," the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy, conducting.

In 1804, U.S. Marines led by Lt. Stephen Decatur entered Tripoli harbor and burned the U.S. Navy frigate Philadelphia, which had been captured by pirates.

San Francisco Ballet Is Celebrating 50th Anniversary

By LIDIA WASOWICZ

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco Ballet, limping towards oblivion eight years ago, is celebrating on sound footing its landmark Golden Anniversary as America's oldest troupe.

As the only company in the nation to operate continuously for half a century, the S.F. Ballet launched its 51st season this year with dance and mixed media galas, boasting enviable assets and big plans for the future.

The company entered its sixth decade after eight solid seasons in the black, expecting more of the same — or better — despite the nation's economic woes.

"We are in our ninth fiscal year in the black. We are the only major professional ballet company to be able to make that statement," said Dr. Richard E. LeBlond, who was recruited from Philadelphia in early 1975 to help save the floundering San Francisco company.

When the bearded, bespectacled sociology professor arrived to take over the newly created salaried presidency, the Ballet was staggering under $850,000 in accumulated debts.

Dancers had just completed their "Save Our Ballet" campaign that included ballerinas riding elephants and conducting dance classes in department store windows. The San Francisco Ballet Association, facing bankruptcy, came within one vote of liquidating itself out of existence.

To salvage the troupe LeBlond made some drastic changes.

The board and administration of the company were reorganized. A five-year plan was published. A development department was founded. The ballet's school was reorganized. The company established its own orchestra.

In 18 months, through aggressive assaults on such funding sources as the Ford Foundation, a $185,000 deficit was wiped out.

Since 1975 the annual budget has burgeored from $2 million to $7.5 million. The company operates with a subscription base of more than 60 percent, with the 1983 figures already exceeding that number.

The troupe, whose roster had numbered 25, now employs 46 dancers for 44 weeks a season — longer than any other American classical company. Its school bustles with 700 students.

While in 1974 it gave only 15 performances to houses that averaged 45 percent capacity, the Ballet now presents 80 programs a year at its home base, the War Memorial Opera House, drawing an average attendance of 80 percent.

This fall, the company is scheduled to move its rehearsal quarters from a cramped, converted garage to a modern, glass-and-concrete, four-level, 60,000 square foot, $11.5 million home adjacent to the Opera House.

Sitting in his tiny office — formerly a second bedroom in an apartment adjacent to the garage — the soft-spoken LeBlond said that during the past decade San Francisco Ballet audiences have increased 400 percent.

"As the audience for dance exploded, the demand exploded, but companies didn't expand," he said. "When you're giving 90 performances a year instead of 15, you need a hell of a lot of organization and major funding. Serious arts never pay for themselves."

San Francisco Ballet reached its perilously low point because it lagged behind demand,he said..

"We had great professionals on stage," LeBlond said. Co-directors Lew Christensen and Michael Smuin "were superb, and we had fine dancers. But there was no structure in marketing."

Upon arrival, LeBlond "promised to bring the same professionalism to the organization they expected to see on stage."

His five-year plan proved the most valuable fund-raising instrument "because it showed our future direction to organizations that had lost faith in us."

Freed from financial worries, "dancers no longer had to walk the streets with tin cups and could devote all their energies to their art."

LeBlond knew how to take advantage of San Francisco's historic generosity toward the arts.

"The way was there; it was simply unchanneled," he said. "A small handful of old, established families would make up annual deficits with a phone call and a handshake."

"Last year, we exceeded our fund-raising goal by $200,000 and attendance keeps going up," LeBlond said. "People seem to flock to the arts during times of depression. Exciting things were happening in the arts in the '30s and exciting things are happening in the arts now."

With continued financial success, LeBlond hopes to help California keep "the great dancers it has always born and bred but traditionally lost to the East or Europe."

"This town has always been very proud of its cultural institutions, clear back to the Gold Rush Days," he said. "And it's come through in times of trouble. The San Francisco Ballet almost died in 1974, yet look at us now."

North Pitt Sets Dinner Theater

The drama and chorus students at North Pitt High School will present a dinner theater at Wellcome Middle School at 7 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria.

While dinner is being served, entertainment will be provided by the North Pitt Choral Ensemble. Piano music will also be provided.

After dinner, the drama class will perform "Snowee White and the Seven Chicks," written by Juliet Carver. Cast members for the play are: Rose Bell, Sandi Braxton, Mike Colville, Linda Davis, Sheila Manning, Curtis Moore, Asaer Rodgers, Lisa Ross, Marilyn Sutton and Marty Warren.

Following a brief intermission at the conclusion of the play, patriotic scenes compiled by Barbara Plummer will be presented. Members of the cafeteria staff at Wellcome Middle School will assist, along with Gay Ivey, Sgt. John Relford and members of the North Pitt JROTC.

Tickets, priced at $6, may be purchased from chorus and drama students at North Pitt before Tuesday. More information is available by calling 825-8751.

On Saturday at 8 p.m. and on Sunday, May 1 at 3 pm., the play and the patriotic scenes will be performed in the auditorium at North Pitt High School. Tickets for these performances are $1 each.

Audition Date Set For Local Benefit Musical

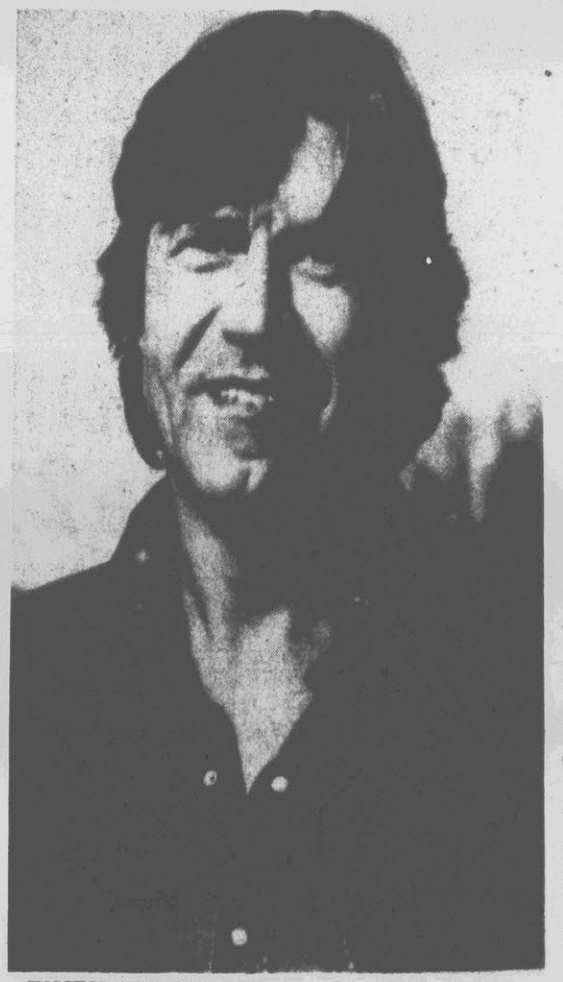

The audition date for a two-day musical benefit performance sponsored by the Service League Follies has been announced for 7 p.m. Tuesday. Auditions for "Struttin' Southern," a musical review, will be held at 811 Dickinson, at the site of the former dance studio.

Annette Dawkins, publicity director for the forthcoming production, says that talented teen-agers and adults, male and female, are being sought, to include singers, dancers, mimes and musicians.

The production will be presented at Wright Auditorium on the East Carolina University campus on two evenings, Friday and Saturday, May 13 and 14. Proceeds from the musical will go to the Laughinghouse Hospital Fund. Since it is a benefit affair, those appearing in the production will agree to do so on a volunteer, non-payment basis.

The production is being organized by Jerome H. Cargill Producing Organization of New York and will directed by Don Imperato.

Those wanting more information on the event may call 752-7694 or 752-4499.

SUCCESS AT LAST — After years of struggling, Billy Joe Shaver's songs paid off. Shaver's songs have been recorded by Willie Nelson, Tennessee Ernie Ford, and Elvis Presley, to name a few. (AP Laserphoto)

ECU Students Voice Winners

ECU News Bureau

Three voice students of the East Carolina University School of Music were winners in a spring competition sponsored by the N.C. chapter of the National Association of Teachers of Singing held recently at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem.

Daphbe Dunston of Washington, D.C. won first place in the sophomore category, and Jayne Humphrey of Wilmington won first place in the junior category. Amie Keyse of Scott City, Kansas, placed as an honor singer in the graduate category.

The competition featured voice master classes with noted vocal coach Walter Moore, director of the Lied and Oratorio Class at the Vienna Academy of Music and member of the faculty of the Schubert Institute in Baden Bei Wien, Austria.

Hospitality House Today

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Alzheimers disease and music from "Showboat" are the topics for Kay Currie's Hospitality House today. The weekly Sunday program aires over WITN-TV, Channel 7, Washington, from noon until 12:30 p.m.

Kay's first guest is Bruce Behringer, administrator of the Aurora Medical Center who will discuss Alzheimers disease, which has no known cause or cure. The disease brings early senility. Behringer's goal is to establish a support group for people who suffer with the disease.

Members of the New Bern Civic Theater production of the musical "Showboat" in guest spots today include Joan Tyson and Gerald Johnson, who will sing "Bill" and "Ole Man River," respectively. A huge collection of hats donatd for the show will be shown.

New Image For Actor Robert Blake

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Blake, clad in jeans and a blue work shirt, leans back in his chair, smiles easily and says, "This is my new image: The nice Mr. Robert Blake."

On the living room wall are photographs and paintings of cowboys and Indians. Framed above his head is a Life magazine cover from "In Cold Blood," the 1967 movie in which he starred.

"Can you believe the change in him?" he says. "He's a prince among men."

Blake expresses it with cynical amusement. The truth is, he admits, his career nearly went down the tubes because of the way he behaved after his television series "Baretta."

His starring role as Teamster leader James R. Hoffa (who disappeared in 1975 and is presumed dead) in the four-hour, two-part miniseries "Blood Feud" was a comeback for Blake.

The show, depicting the conflict between Hoffa and Robert F. Kennedy, will play on Operation Prime Time stations this week.

"I went after that role," Blake says from the modest San Fernando Valley home he shares with his son, Noah, and daughter, Delinah. He is divorced.

"The producers were worried about my professionalism from all the stories they heard. First I said I'd do it for nothing. Then I figured they'd think I had nothing to lose and they'd have no leverage. So I bargained as hard as I could and put the money in escrow. If they didn't like my work they didn't have to pay me. The last day of shooting Harris Katleman (president of 20th Century-Fox Television) sent me a letter and a check on the set."

Blake finished the detective series "Baretta" in 1978 after three years.

"I shouldn't have tried to work after 'Baretta,'" he says. "I was a walking nervous breakdown and didn't know it."

Blake says the turnaround came when he was in Dallas.

"I realized it'd been a few years since anybody'd offered me anything," Blake says. "I realized nobody was calling. It came to me that I was yelling at people. It came to me in bits and pieces. Like being in a bad accident and it begins to come back to you. I was in Dallas and I woke up in the middle of the night and asked did I really say that?"

In "Blood Feud," written by Robert Boris and directed by Michael Newell, Blake is the dynamic Jimmy Hoffa. Newcomer Cotter Smith is the charismatic Bobby Kennedy. Hoffa is a two-fisted street fighter.

"People would say it isn't an unusual role for me because Hoffa was a street fighter and I'm a street fighter," Blake says. "In truth, the part is very different, very unusual and unlike anything I've ever played before. ... A man who had great good in him and great self-destruction. I was scared to death."

Hollywood Notes

——— Streisand steady

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Barbra Streisand's new movie, "Yentl," is alive and well in England despite rumors that the mercurial singer was hip-deep in production woes.

Frank Yablans, chief operating officer of MGM-UA, put to rest stories that Miss Streisand was being pulled off the multi-million-dollar musical because of production overruns and a tricky schedule.

"I want to make it clear that Miss Streisand is, has been, and will always be the credited producer and director of the film, retaining full artistic control," Yablans announced. "'Yentl' will be released in December of this year."

——— More Bonds

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — There will be more James Bond movies forthcoming with Sean Connery in the role of superspy 007, a part taken over by Roger Moore in recent years.

Kevin McClory, who produced "Never Say Never Again" — a Bond epic starring Connery — said a London court ruling opened the possibility to still more Bond films made from source material assigned to McClory by the late Ian Fleming, creator of the fictional spy.

McClory and co-writer Jack Whittingham wrote several James Bond film scripts with Fleming in 1959 that Fleming later used as the basis for his novel, "Thunderball."

——— Somers' time

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Suzanne Somers, former dumb blonde of the "Three's Company" TV series, was smart enough to take her act to Las Vegas in an era of flashy variety shows without major star names.

The Las Vegas Hilton reports Suzanne has pumped new life into the nightclub business since joining the hotel's "Moulin Rouge" spectacular on stage.

Since she signed on with the revue it has averaged 1,072 patrons per show. Before the blonde beauty came aboard the show averaged fewer than 300 people per peformance.

——— Country music

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jerry Reed, John Schneider and Tammy Wynette will host the 18th annual Academy of Country Music Awards May 9 in a two-hour TV special from Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, Calif.

Heading the list of nominees are Willie Nelson with five, followed by Ricky Skaggs with four. Kenny Rogers, Alabama and Sylvia each won three nominations.

Among the categories featured in the awards program are entertainer of the year, top male and female vocalists, top vocal duet, top new female vocalist and new male vocalist, top vocal group and single record of the year.

——— Davis role

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Bette Davis will star in the pilot film of a new Aaron Spelling-Douglas S. Cramer projected hour-long series, "Hotel," which also stars James Brolin and Connie Sellecca.

The trio currently is working in a two-hour ABC-TV version of the series based on the novel by Arthur Hailey.

Other regulars in the "Hotel" series are Nahan Cook, Shea Farrell, Michael Spound and Heidi Bohay. Guest starring in the two-hour movie version are Morgan Fairchild, Jack Gilford, Shirley Jones, Alejandro Rey and Lainie Kazan.

NEW ATTRACTION

The "Island in the Sky," a landscaped tropical island surrounded by water, is actually a revolving platform which will lift 100 visitors at a time to a viewing height 150 feet above the gardens.

When operational, the "Island" will make three complete revolutions in the lift-and-lower sequence, giving visitors a 360-degree panoramic view of the area.

The attraction will be the only one of its kind in the world, according to its sponsor Eastman Kodak.

Since the breakup of the original "Ink Spots," more than 40 singing groups have used the name.

Aerial View Of The Center

AERIAL VIEW ... of the newly opened Eastern Carolina Correctional Center which was dedicated April 18 at Maury. In the foreground is the parking lot. At center is the small office at the entrance gate. The horizontal one-story building houses administrative offices and all dining, study, medical and recreational facilities for inmates. The building in the rear is the four-story housing (living quarters) for the inmates. The two buildings are connected by a covered passageway. (Photo Courtesy N.C. Department of Corrections).

WAITING FOR GUESTS ... Guards and prison officials are shown waiting for Gov. Jim Hunt and other guests at the entrance gate on the dedication day. One of the center's six 36-foot towers is located near the entrance gate. The towers are manned at all times by armed guards.

Eastern Correctional Center Dedicated In Greene County

Text And Photographs By Jerry Raynor

In his brief comments at the April 18 dedication ceremony for the new Eastern Correctional Center at Maury, Superintendent David Chester said that persons visiting the center during the final days of construction "expressed two primary viewpoints. One was that it's a fine facility. The second was that it's still a prison. One young girl summed up her feelings by saying 'it's a nice place, but I don't like it.'"

Chester, Gov. Jim Hunt and Rae H. McNamara, director of the Division of Prisons of the N.C. Department of Corrections, all touched on the justifiable need to build the modern Eastern Correctional Center as part of a $110 million program to help relieve overcrowding in North Carolina prisons.

The center was built at a cost of $18,172,220 — and was completed approximately five months ahead of schedule.

No time was lost after dedication in transferring medium custody adult male inmates to be housed in the five units of the prison's housing unit. They began coming in early Tuesday morning, arriving from a number of correctional centers, mostly those located in eastern North Carolina.

Lt. Art Gallop, a training officer, said Thursday that "inmates are arriving in daily increments, with the first groups coming in from eastern North Carolina correctional units. Later, other groups will be transferred from units in the central and western areas of the state."

Unlike the old pattern of command with a warden as the one governing person, Eastern Correctional Center is staffed on a new concept. In addition to Chester as superintendent, each of the five units of 96 inmates will be under the immediate supervision of a unit manager and his staff.

Danny Thompson is unit manager for the 96-inmate close custody unit. Inmates in this unit will be under lock and key around the clock except for a closely supervised one-hour daily exercise period.

Another unit will house inmates with mental health problems, and three units are designated general population units. Inmates to be housed in these three units will have work assignments. All except close custody inmates will be permitted to have meals in the dining room, to use recreational facilities, attend classes and take part in any inner-prison community activities.

Unit managers in addition to Thompson are Preston Bunch, Joe Szilagy, Travis Outlaw and Fred Staton.

A staff of 270, many such as guards and medical personnel working in three shifts, will supervise and operate the facility. Their combined salaries of a little more than $3.5 million will constitute the major portion of the center's $5.75 million annual budget.

Once the inmate population is settled in, a varied range of programs to include adult basic education, high school studies and college courses in vocational areas will be offered inmates. Lenoir Community College and East Carolina University will be among agencies that will help devise and operate the courses for the inmate population.

This new center, which Ms. McNamara termed as "humane and practical," hopefully will serve two primary purposes, to relieve oppressive overcrowding and to give validity to Hunt's premise that "some prisoners can and should be rehabilitated and reformed."

200 FED PER SITTING ... Food Supervisor Forrest Hamer, back to camera, and Danny Thompson, control unit manager for the Essex Unit, explain to TV reporter Linda Shore that two sittings per meal are required to feed nearly 400 of the 480 inmates who are permitted to eat in the dining room.

COOKING IN BIG AMOUNTS ... Food Supervisor Forrest Hamer inspects two of the 80-gallon steam kettles in the prison's kitchen. Hamer supervises 50 helpers who prepare three meals daily for 480 inmates and about 75 staff members each shift. The modern kitchen facility is equipped with sturdy, stainless steel equipment.

The Center's Maintenance Crew

MAINTENANCE SUPERVISOR ... Maylon Shirley, standing third from right, poses with six assistants in the center's boiler and heating unit. The maintenance crew has workshops with machines and equipment to insure that the complex is kept in top operating order.

Life As It's Lived

By GAIL MICHAELS

Last week Phillip anvanced in age to a multiple of 5 (I won't say which), and I was compelled to plan a minor celebration.

I say compelled because such undertakings distress me no end. I am simply not organized enough to plan and to execute a party, even a party of two adults and two pygmies, as this was. Or more to the point, I am not organized enough to plan parties. Executing them is exactly what I do.

Had I been intelligent, I would have turned this particular affair over to a restaurant and a bakery and let it go at that. But Phillip, on top of making a major leap toward decrepitude, was showing signs of homesickness, so I decided to fill in for his mother by becoming a paragon of domestic virtue.

Why I thought I could suddenly achieve such an ambition at this point in my life is beyond me. No one can compete with my mother-in-law. As a wife and mother, she is truly a virtuoso, and following in perfection's footsteps would be difficult even for someone with far better balance than I. I had only a vague idea that I was supposed to buy lots of presents, cook a favorite meal, and bake a delectable, beautifully decorated cake. Vague ideas, I soon found out, do not necessarily lead to wildly successful fetes.

Still, I might have been a less dismal failure had I performed a few of the aforementioned tasks earlier than the morning of the big day. As it was, Zachary and I spent our morning shopping. Phillip's only outright request had been a wheelbarrow. I was not enthusiastic upon discovering that I had about as much chance of finding one that had already been put together as I had of potty-training Zachary in one day.

So I took one home in pieces and tried to put it together, with Zachary's help of course. After an hour I began to panic. I put the pieces that were left in the tub part, shoved it all into a lawn and leaf bag, topped it with a large bow and hid it in the middle of Meg's floor. I knew that only someone as foolhardy as I would look for it there.

Then I carefully wrapped the other presents in more conventional array and placed them in the middle of the dining room table. The time had come for me to prepare my famous spaghetti. I opened a can of Ragu and proceeded from memory.

By this time Meg was home from school, ready and only too willing to help. She was just itching to bake the cake.

I had all the necessary ingredients except flour. We marched down the street to borrow some from a neighbor, and naturally, I couldn't refuse her kind offer of a glass of wine. We sauntered back home about an hour and a half later.

With only an hour left before Phillip was due home, we were a little pushed. But we managed to get the cake out of the oven in plenty of time to ice it. Unforetunately, the middle of it decided to stay in the pan. And when I tried to rearrange the pieces and ice over them, the cake stuck to the knife and was entirely uncooperative. To complicate matters Zachary, in his zeal to sample, had poked deep holes in the side of our creation.

I had hoped that we would be able to disguise the mistakes with red decorator icing, but as Meg was quick to point out, red on top of chocolate icing was simply "too vivid." Then again, most of it didn't stay on top: it slid off the sides. Only my attempt to squirt out Phillip's name, an attempt which looked more like Egyptian obscenities, remained stationary.

"It looks like a massacre in mud," I groaned as Zachary walked in carrying shreds of wrapping from Phillip's presents.

Meg shook her head mournfully. "It sure doesn't look like one of Nana's cakes."

Then again, maybe when a man embarks upon middle age what he needs more than a reminder of youth is comic relief.

ECU To Hold Water Classes In Bermuda

Field schools of East Carolina University's underwater research and maritime history program will be held next fall in Bermuda.

Drs. William N. Still Jr. and Gordon P. Watts, co-directors of the program, announced that they have negotiated an agreement with the Bermuda Maritime Museum to conduct research in the waters of the mid-ocean British crown colony. The first Bermuda field school, consisting of four or five graduate students, will go to Bermuda – 600 miles east of Cape Hatteras – next fall.

The on-going agreement represents "a very significant step" in further development of the ECU underwater research and maritime history program, Still said.

Field schools to explore the waters of coastal North Carolina locations have been conducted at Edenton, Bath and New Bern, and one is scheduled this summer at Swansboro.

In addition, the ECU program holds grants to plan further underwater archaeological research at the wreck of the ironclad U.S.S. Monitor off Cape Hatteras, to establish a depository for Monitor research materials and to publish a newsletter reporting on Monitor research.

Still said the Bermuda field studies will focus on maritime relations between Bermuda and the United States.

Apartment Suite Featured

The Onaga

By Jerry Bishop

Passive solar details highlight this home. From the solar greenhouse and many southern windows and doors to concrete slab construction, few northern windows and air-lock entry, it emphasizes energy efficiency. Concrete floor and walls and water filled barrels gather heat in the greenhouse area. The first floor plans includes a kitchen dining area, living room with wood burning stove, two bedrooms and one and half baths. The larger of the two bedrooms has a large walk-in closet and a windowed seat area. A mother-in-law suite or apartment, complete with kitchen, full bath, walk-in closet with dressing area, built-in dresser, living area and balcony fill the second floor. Detailed drawings are included for front deck and garden area.

Exterior Of House Needs Attention In Spring

By PETER COSTA

NEW YORK (UPI) — It's spring, and home owners immediately begin to worry about their lawns. They're wrong.

They should be thinking about the exteriors of their homes and how their houses weathered the winter. While homeowners were sitting by the fire watching snowflakes drift by for nearly six months, the wind, ice and snow — and that silent ghoul known as mildew — waged war on the outside.

So, put down those nifty new lawn spreaders and grab a ladder.

Inspect the clapboards, siding, outside windowsills and under-eaves areas of your house to see where dirt and mildew have collected.

Once you have located the problems, prepare a cleaning solution of chlorine bleach and water — one-eighth cup of bleach to one quart of cold water — or use a commercial solution to kill the mildew. Use a coarse rag or a brush with tough but not paint-chipping rigid bristles. Few experts recommend a wire brush for this job unless your house is made of titanium or bricks.

Make certain you wear rubber gloves when you apply the solution.

Also, be careful not to inhale the fumes when you are scrubbing. Chlorine and other cleaning agents can cause dizziness, a burning sensation, even lung damage, if improperly used or handled.

After scrubbing, let the house dry long enough to let the chemicals work and neutralize the mildew. Then flush the wood or siding clean with water. A spray attachment on a garden hose is an effective tool for this step.

This is also a good time to climb to the roof to check for missing asphalt shingles. Look for cracks or chips in the shingles or for shingles that are bent or loose. Replace cracked ones and seal loose shingles with tar.

Also, check around the chimney's metal flashing to make certain it has not become separated or bent from ice. You may be able to straighten the flashing by pushing it in with your foot. If not, tap it back into shape with gentle blows from a hammer.

Caulk, seal or tar any open seams.

While you are on the roof, look around. Doubtless, your neighbors will be slaving over their lawns. Wave to them and smile, knowing that experts say lawns are best fertilized and fed in early fall, not spring.

A new, well-illustrated and easy-to-understand book for homeowners who wish to do repairs is "Home Improvements Manual" (Readers Digest Assn., $21.50). It covers everything from fixing sagging floors to installing 100-amp wiring. Diagrams and directions are excellent. The manual assumes that many of the problems you will encounter have no hidden difficulties like rusty or broken parts or hidden flaws, but for most general repairs it is highly useful.

Regional Tastes Fading In Interiors

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

A recent look at photos of a number of attractive rooms from various parts of the country shows regional differences in decorating are diminishing.

The occasion was a display of entries in the annual Hexter Awards competition for interiors of the year.

The color photos and the comments of some of the winning designers at the awards presentation suggest that regardless of locale, similar solutions are being adopted for similar decorating problems in all areas of the United States. It used to be thought decorating tastes varied considerably from one section to another.

Typical problems which cropped up in quite a few entries included: a need to fit many activities into one small space; a need to udpate homes 30 to 50 years old that seem cramped and old fashioned; and a need to mask architectural flaws such as poorly proportioned rooms or poor walls or no view.

Another common problem — lack of funds — did not appear to be a constraint for the designers. Luxurious and expensive materials, custom cabinetry and specially built furniture predominated. However, many ideas employed in a costly fashion could be duplicated in less expensive materials and with ready-made furniture.

The need to fit diverse activities into one small room apparently sends many people to a decorator. William McWhorter, a Los Angeles decorator, won honorable mention for his solution to the problem for a California client.

He was asked to convert an 11-by-14-foot room into a combination study and home office, television-watching room and occasional guest room. One of his methods of fitting it all in included revamping an existing closet by dividing it in thirds. In two-thirds of the closet a bank of file cabinets and a TV set were installed. In the remaining space, a hanging bar was provided for guests' clothing.

He also mirrored two walls to visually expand the space, set two sofas against the walls in an L-shaped formation (one is a sleep sofa), and placed a round coffee table on casters so it could be rolled out of the way when the sofa opened into a bed.

Bookcases accommodate books and other items on one wall and a custom-made desk in the room appears to float in space since it is set on an acrylic base.

In another installation — a tiny bedroom where more storage was required — Donald E. Churchill of San Clemente, Calif., used mirrors, white carpeting, and furniture to lighten and brighten the room. Since considerable additional storage was requested, he installed floor-to-ceiling pier cabinets at either side of the bed. Cabinet fronts are mirrored to offset their bulk. A dresser accommodates a television set that can be seen from the bed.

A number of entries updated a dowdy, dark house built early in this century. Such houses often appear cramped and dark and don't accommodate today's more informal style of living and entertaining. Several designers hit on the same method of dealing with the problem — they removed partitions on the main floor to create one or a few large open spaces. They added windows to open the house to a view and provide more natural light.

Daniel Kiser, who received honorable mention for his entry in the contest, dealt with the problems of a New York City apartment which had walls in bad condition, old radiators and no view. Furthermore, noted Kiser, a New York designer, since it was a rental, the clients didn't want to make elaborate structural changes.

Kiser had one piece of luck. He discovered a fireplace that had been bricked over. He was able to remove the wall and expose the fireplace, mirroring it to create the focal point the room lacked.

He used dark colors on the walls to mask their poor condition and arranged to use pinspots of light away from the walls instead of the wall-washing illumination typical nowadays. Having mirrored the fireplace, he used the same method to convert a long narrow entryway into a more dramatic space by mirroring both its walls. He placed a narrow console table against one wall, to create the illusion of a wide and spacious area.

Winner Barry Brukoff, a San Francisco designer who took first place in the competition's residential category, solved a problem that few have — that of a space so large the inhabitants seemed dwarfed. He handled this by using warm woods and soft materials and by arranging the furniture in islands so the larger area was visually divided into smaller, more comfortable spaces.

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A new deadbolt locking system with a pickproof cylinder.

Manufacturer's claim — That this lock features a cylinder that requires only a quarter turn to throw the deadbolt a full inch into the door frame ... that it has triple guard plates, including one of case-hardened steel, on both the outside and the inside ... that the plates are secured with four 1½-inch heat-treated bolts which make the lock virtually unpenetrable ... that a case-hardened steel pin within the deadbolt will repel all attempts to hacksaw through it ... that the lock's four-sided key is impossible to duplicate except through authorized locksmiths because each one is computer-coded to prevent unauthorized keys from being made ... and that it is available in either a double cylinder design which requires a key to enter or exit through the door or a single cylinder design in which a key is necessary only to enter, good for apartments with limited access because of simplicity and lower costs.

Manufacturer's claim — That the brusher can be used for grimy tile grout, brickwork, woodwork, dirty floors, bathtubs and hundreds of other surfaces ... that it can also be used dry for spot cleaning carpets and upholstery with cleaning powder ... that it is a hand-held tool with 30 minutes of power, enough time to complete most scrubbing tasks ... that it is listed by Underwriters' Laboratories and can be used safely around water and with common household cleaning chores both inside and outside the house ... and that its two brushes, one large and one for getting in corners, are specially designed not to scratch or mar surfaces.

Manufacturer's claim — that the core of the handle is a continuous strand fiberglass rod that provides strength and resistance to breakage ... that the rod is enclosed in a molded structual foam jacket that absorbs shock, prevents the fiberglass strands from splintering and forms a comfortable grip section ... that the hammer head has a double tapered eye for a tight fit on the handle and is chemically bonded to the handle with high-strength epoxy ... that the striking face is precision ground and crowned for more effective driving force ... and that the face is rim-tempered, a process that minimizes chipping for user safety.

Manufacturerer's claim — That the bandsaw has a wide variable speed range from 500 to 2,000 feet per minute and an exclusive full-width blade guide for extra cutting control ... that the introductory offer kit includes a free sander-grinder kit with six belts ... and that a wide range of accessory blades and sanding belts is available.

Want to save on heating costs? Clean your windows. The advice comes from Ohio architect Joseph Kawecki, who specializes in passive solar homes. He says the sun's energy heats a house much more if the windows are squeaky clean. He also advises removing window screens during cold weather, since the combined effects of dirty windows and screens can block out as much as 25 percent of the sun's energy and heat. Another tip is that, when taking a hot bath or shower or using the sink, leave the hot water standing until it turns cool. Not only will the heat radiate into the room, but the escaping moisture will add much needed humidity to dry houses as a side benefit.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I expect to install a hardwood floor. While I have never done it alone, as I will this time, I have helped out a couple of times. I remember one of the installers I helped said some hardwoods are not really hard, but I expect to be putting down maple strip flooring, which I assume is very hard. I expect to use regular flooring nails? Will these go through the maple all right?

A. — Nailing into maple flooring is a bit rugged unless you drill pilot holes for the nails. Another possibility is renting an automatic nailer, but be sure, if you do, you have somebody show you how to use it safely.

Q. — Where can I find a table listing all the electric wires, sizes, conductors and uses? Also, can I work on my own house without being an electrician? I have had considerable experience with electric wiring, but never bothered to learn too much about wire sizes and the like.

A. — There are many places where you can find the information you need. "The Complete Manual of Repair and Improvement" (Arco) has an excellent table, with the electrical code designations for various sizes and kinds of wire. But you had better check as to whether you are permitted to handle such work in your community. Many are very strict about working on electricity without being a licensed electrician. It makes no difference whether it is your own house or someone else's. In many cases, violating the regulations can void your fire insurance.

Q. — There is a leak around a vent pipe on our roof, which is made of asphalt shingles. Is there a way to fit the shingles so they fit tightly around the vent pipe?

A. — A metal or plastic flashing is the best way to seal the area to prevent leaks. Metal flashing has been used for years. It must be attached securely in a bed of roofing cement, then covered with more cement. Another way to handle this is with a plastic material called a boot. The boot slips over the top of the vent pipe and then is pushed down, again into a bed of cement. Add more cement. In either case, the shingles you removed to do the repair must be relaid and reattached.

Q. — A neighbor of mine says he uses latex paint on the outside of his house because it doesn't mildew. Is this so?

A. — Generally yes, although under certain conditions of dampness and lack of sunlight, mildew can occur. Mildew is more likely to grow on an oil-based paint.

Q. — Our house recently was painted and we now find several of the windows are stuck shut. What is the best way to free them?

A. — Insert a putty knife blade between the sash and the molding and tap the handle gently. Carefully move the blade up and down to crack the paint seal. If you work slowly and don't try to open the window with force alone, it eventually will yield. Whatever you do, avoid the common mistake of trying this with a screwdriver blade instead of a putty knife blade. It's a sure way to mar the window sash and molding.

Garden Clinic

Q. My houseplants have become infested with a type of scale insect that looks like round, brown, smooth bumps. They are sucking juices along the stems of the plants. How can I get rid of these insects? (A.C., Goldsboro)

A. The insect you describe is hemispherical scale. Spray your houseplants with malathion according to instructions on the label. Use caution when applying any pesticide.

Q. Last year squirrels ate all the green tomatoes off my vines. What can I do? I can't shoot them; I live in a congested neighborhood. (L.G., Charlotte)

A. You may try live trapping, but you will need a permit from the wildlife commission. You may try to discourage the squirrels with moth balls. Punch holes in a tin can or soft drink can, fill it with moth balls and hang it from the tomatoe stake. Are you sure that squirrels are eating the tomatoes? Rats may be the culprits or co-culprits.

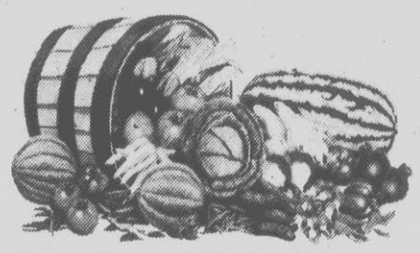

Q. Where can I buy ladybugs? (K.N., Farmer)

A. Please Write Organic Gardening and Farming, Reader Service, 33 East Minor St., Emmaus, Pa., 18049, and request a list of manufacturers and suppliers of plant protection products. Or write Unique Insect Control, 4640 Attawa Avenue, Sacramento, Calif., 15822. You may also write Bio Insect Control, 1710 South Broadway, Plainview, Tex., 79072. Another place to write is Better Yield Insects, 13310 Riverside Drive, East, Tecumseh, Ont., Canada. These suppliers can furnish a price list of beneficial insects.

Q. Moss is taking over my yard and preventing grass from growing. What should I do? (E.A., Hickory)

A. Moss is thriving in your yard due to the failure of your grass to survive. Thus could be due to too much shade, poor draininge, heavy soil, compacted soil or soil that is too acidic. Killing the moss would not be a solution. It is growing there because it is better adapted to the site than grass. You need to find out why your yard is favorable to moss and unfavorable to grass. When this solution is corrected you may then seek to re-establish you lawn. Contact your county extension office for more information.

GOREN BRIDGE

BY CHARLES GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
©1983 Tribune Company Syndicate, Inc.

DEAR MR. GOREN

Q.—I open four-card majors. What constitutes a biddable major suit? And what do you need to raise opener's major when it might be only four cards long? Please don't cop out on me by saying it depends on partnership agreement. I would really like to get an honest and open answer.—J.M., Norwich, Conn.

(This question has been awarded the weekly prize.)

A.—There is no need to cop out on either of these questions. My answers are those that I have stated as long as I have played this game.

Normally, a biddable major suit should contain at least 4 points in the suit itself. There is one exception: a suit as good as Q-J-10-x can be opened. Note that this restriction does not apply to a minor suit. You might have to open a four-card minor that does not contain a single honor card. Indeed, you might even be forced to make a convenient bid in a three-card minor.

You should try to avoid raising partner's major-suit opening bid unless you have either four-card support or three-card support headed by one of the three top honors. Don't worry about the possibility that partner has only four cards in the suit — that is his problem. Just because you open four-card majors doesn't mean that partner isn't allowed to hold five or more cards in the suit that he bids! By making your natural response, you will find that, in the long run, you will get to the best spot.

More interesting is what to do if you open one of a minor and partner responds in a major. Consider these hands after you have opened one diamond and partner has responded one spade:

a) ♠Kxx ♡xx ◇AQxxx ♣Axx
b) ♠xxx ♡Kx ◇AQxxx ♣Axx

Both have the same point count and distribution. The difference is only the location of the honor card in the major suits. With hand a), you don't want to rebid one no trump without a stopper in the unbid major, and you should avoid rebidding a five-card suit if possible, especially one of such poor quality. The obvious rebid, therefore, is to raise partner to two spades.

Hand b) is different. This time your support consists of three low cards and you have a stopper in the unbid major. Now I prefer a rebid of one no trump.

The strength of the hand also has a bearing on your rebid:

c) ♠Kxx ♡x ◇KJxxx ♣Axxx
d) ♠Kxx ♡x ◇KJxxx ♣AKxx

With hand c), raise partner's spade response to two spades. But with hand d) rebid two clubs, intending to support spades at your next turn. The difference between the two sequences is that the latter shows extra values.

Atlanta Group Is Helping Poor Remain In City

By STEELE HOLMAN
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Grant Park is a century-old inner city neighborhood on the mend, where urban blight and squalor spawned by poverty are brightly punctuated by beautifully restored Victorian homes.

Young professionals, willing to risk a crime-ridden area, hope to upgrade local schools, police protection and other services, and make Grant Park a respected address.

But the changing face of the neighborhood and rising property taxes are squeezing out poor families who have inhabited the Victorian homes, many of which were divided into apartments about two decades ago.

A Christian group working in Grant Park, Family Consultation Service, operates under the credo that the poor should able to remain in the district and benefit from their new, up-scale neighbors.

"As the school system improves, the kids will get a better education, as crime decreases, they will benefit from that — and all the benefits that money and power will provide," FCS President Bob Lupton said..

"The unfortunate thing about that is that, not by design but by default, the poor become excluded, and the middle class people who move in become the exclusive beneficiaries of the improvement," Lupton said.

"I like what the improvement does for this community, but ... we would be the exclusive beneficiaries, and theologically, that is wrong," he said. "That is oppression to me."

The president of the Association to Revive Grant Park, Larry Melmick, said, "There's always got to be a trade-off with progress," and the houses are simply being restored to their status as single-family dwellings as they were when the neighborhood was established in 1883.

Although the revitalization movement "does disperse certain low-income individuals because of the restoration itself. . .the community has become stronger politically and morally," Melmick said.

Melmick, an attorney, said he does not believe the influx of middle-class home buyers will force all the low-income people to leave.

"Grant Park is unique in that it is a melting pot of religions, ethnic backgrounds and socio-economic groups, and I believe Grant Park will always be that way," he said. "I can't envision that there would be either a mass exodus of lower socio-economic people or a mass entry of middle-class people buying up everything."

Meanwhile, FCS and some suburban churches are helping a handful of lower income families buy renovated homes with no-interest mortgages, allowing them to stay in the neighborhood in their own residences.

FCS launched the ministry last year when a Grant Park woman asked for help because the city had condemned her rented home and her family was being evicted. Lupton talked local businessmen into buying the home, and it was restored mostly through voluntary labor and donated materials.

The woman later bought the home from FCS with a no-interest mortage with monthly payments comparable to rental rates in the area, said Chris Fitzgerald, an ECS staffer.

That success prompted FCS to chance a more ambitious project. Learning that the city had condemned and bought some 300 homes near Hartsfield Atlanta International Airport, the group offered to buy six homes and move them to city-owned lots in Grant Park.

FCS offered $1 each for the houses and $1 each for the lots. The city accepted under the provision that FCS use them for low-income housing.

The first house was moved to a lot several blocks outside the Grant Park Historical District but still within the neighborhood and, after several months of renovation, was dedicated in January.

TVA Is Taking On Gypsy Moth

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — When a few gypsy moths found their way into Southern traps last fall, Tennessee Valley Authority foresters began preparing for battle.

Each spring since the 1870s, gypsy moths have been eating their way south from New England, stripping the leaves off billions of trees. When they reach TVA's seven-state region, the federal utility's foresters plan to be ready for them.

"We don't feel there's any cause for alarm or concern just yet," TVA forester Doug Bean said. "But we've got to be on the lookout this year."

Gypsy moths started creating problems in 1869, when they escaped from a Massachusetts laboratory that was trying to cross-breed them with silkworms. The European moths didn't like silkworms, but they loved New England's leaves.

Last year, gypsy moth caterpillars devoured 8.1 million acres of forest land in the northeast United States. The caterpillars like oak leaves best, and most trees can take only one or two strippings before it kills them, Bean said.

Because the Tennessee Valley's 21.6 million acres of forest land is about 40 percent oak and hickory, widespread moth infestations could mean big trouble for the region's $2 billion-a-year forest products industry.

"The front of the generally infested area is now in the northern part of Virginia and West Virginia, and we want to keep it out of Tennessee as long as we can," Bean said.

TVA says traps baited with a chemical simulating the female moth's sex attractant last year caught male moths in five of the seven TVA states — Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia.

Bean said the Tennessee Valley is about 10 years away from the threat of large infestations. But if they occur, it could mean the biggest forestry disaster since the Chestnut blight of the 1920s, which wiped out that species.

Moth eggs hatch in April and May, and it is in the early caterpillar stage that the insects do most of their damage. They will feed on the leaves of as many as 500 plant species until June or early July, when they form cocoons.

Lighthouse Still Serves As Beacon

GEORGETOWN, S.C. (AP) — The Georgetown Lighthouse — South Carolina's last manned lighthouse — still aids ships cruising the Atlantic Ocean and entering Winyah Bay, just as it did in the United States' infancy.

Few things have changed at the 89-foot structure that sits near the point of North Island at the entrance to Winyah Bay, except for the way the navigational aid operates.

The white brick lighthouse, originally constructed of wood until a storm toppled it in 1806, was completed in 1811. The construction workers were slaves.

For about 180 years, the old lighthouse has served the Georgetown area by providing a guiding light for ships trying to navigate the tricky waters near North and South Islands.

In the beginning, lighthouse tenders were responsible for making sure the oil lantern in the top of the lighthouse burned brightly. A two-story house, a well and a small brick oilhouse were also constructed on the seven-acre tract of land on North Island.

Today, the old lighthouse is still accompanied by some of the older brick buildings constructed in the 1800s, but some conveniences have been added. The two-story house on the island has been replaced by smaller but modern living quarters.

Lighthouse keepers of the past have been replaced by the U.S. Coast Guard. They not only make sure the lighthouse light works properly, but also maintain all buoys and navigational markers in the area. Guardsmen also monitor a strong radio signal that tells boats where thy are.

The lighthouse is one of 42 manned lighthouses left in the United States since the Coast Guard began automating its 600 lighthouses in 1963.

Volunteers Are Taking Child Singers To Europe

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Sixth-grader Dionne Madison asked her mother if Germans will dress like Americans at the 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther.

Or if the celebration is in the country or city, or if there's a war going on over there.

The Earlys are taking their "Singing Children" to Worms, Germany, for 10 days in June for a music festival honoring Luther, a 16th Century theologian and leader of the Protestant Reformation.

Children like Dionne may know little about Luther, but they have a better chance to develop their talents under the program which the Earlys undertook in 1978 without pay.

"This area is not renown for public music education," said Mrs. Early. "This was something Mobile could benefit from."

The choir has more than 50 children, grades four-seven, selected from a cross-section of the city through auditions. Sixteen have been chosen to attend the German festival.

Janice Madison said her daughter, Dionne, has been "collecting newspapers and aluminum cans" to raise money for the trip, Dionne's first out of the country.

"We've gone to my church for donations and sponsors and written to family members for sponsors," she said, assured that her daughter will be on the trip. "She sings alto and plays flute in the school band."

Mrs. Early said 16 children were selected for the trip, but others could go if funds are available.

At the moment, her concern is over the children's problems with pitch and rhythm in the Vivaldi and Haydn selections for the festival. "We have a lot of learning to do."

The Singing Children choir is familiar to Mobilians since the group has appeared at civic clubs, shopping malls, and special holiday events.

The Earlys direct music at Dauphin Way United Methodist Church where they lead nine choirs.

They consider the community service as "over and above" their fulltime duty as ministers of music.

"We have the talent to do it and nobody else is doing anything," Mrs. Early said, when asked why they volunteered for the extra choir.

The children in the choir are too young to be pursuing professional music careers yet.

"Several have gone on to band programs, to taking piano. We just outgrew three boys.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, APR. 24, 1983

YOUR DAILY Horoscope

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can look into whatever is of interest to you today and come up with some excellent ideas under which to operate better in the future. An excellent time for planning.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good time to make right decisions where personal matters are concerned. Come to a better understanding with loved one.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take some time for analyzing your goals, so you know how far you have progressed and how to proceed in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Getting together with congenials and planning how to be mutually helpful is wise today. Make a practical budget.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Fine day for meeting with friends and discussing future plans. Allow time to engage in favorite hobby.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can get so many inspiring ideas that it would be well to put them down on paper so that you won't forget them later on.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your hunches are particularly accurate now, so be sure to use them. Later be with persons you like at social events.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You get fine, inspiring ideas that could prove beneficial later. Strive for more harmony with family members.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put those new ideas to work that will make your responsibilities easier and more profitable. Take health treatments.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make appointments with friends for the amusements you desire. Showing more devotion to loved one is wise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Try to organize your home affairs more intelligently and increase harmony there. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Attend the services of your choice that will help to renew your mind and elevate your thoughts. Happiness can be yours.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A fine idea will make it possible for you to add to present abundance. Consult a loyal friend for advice you need.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have the keen mentality of a leader and would do very well as the head of a large organization. Teach to complete whatever has once been started. Be sure to give religious and ethical training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, APR. 25, 1983

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A good day to make progressive plans by which you can accomplish much of importance in the future. You are under excellent aspects to make the right decisions now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Be tactful with others who are in a tense mood. Make good use of that fine talent you have. Take no risks at this time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Do nothing that could disturb a higher-up in your line of endeavor. Do something thoughtful for loved one.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A day to study new outlets that could prove beneficial in the future. Sidestep a situation that could lead to trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Figure out an improved way to handle your obligations. Take health treatments and improve your appearance.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Come to a better accord with associates and become more successful. Express happiness with the one you love.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't neglect routine duties early in the day. Make long-range plans to have more abundance in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Eliminate any obstacles in the path of your progress. A creative plan needs more study before putting it in operation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Carry through with whatever you have in mind that will improve your relationship with associates.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make plans that could give you added income in the days ahead. Strive for increased happiness. Become more animated.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may be in a better financial position than you realize, so be sure to go over your accounts carefully.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Problems could arise that seem difficult to solve, but if you are objective, you can get rid of them. Be logical.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Rid yourself of whatever is keeping you from gaining your finest wishes. A good day to have a long talk with loved one.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she could have unwarrented problems, so be understanding and give the finest education you can afford. There could be much success in this chart. Don't neglect ethical and religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Spring home improvements are a wise investment

Home remodeling is on the increase this year

Home remodeling expenditures will near the $60 million mark in 1983 to make it a record year for improving the old homestead, according to the National Association of the Remodeling Industry (NARI).

Of that figure, 66 percent will be installed by professionals and, according to Department of Commerce estimates, about half that amount will be added by do-it-yourselfers.

Economy isn't major factor

And, it will happen this way even if the economy fails to complete its apparent turnaround, says NARI.

NARI is the association of the professionals. It includes remodeling contractors, distributors, manufacturers, utilities and the trade press, representing all facets of residential and light commercial renovation. It combines the memberships of the former National Remodelers Assn. and the National Home Improvement Council, which merged last year.

NARI President Neil Kelly, an Oregon contractor, and Board Chairman Sam Graziano, a New Jersey distributor, agree that the condition of the economy will not be a major factor in 1983 growth.

"The folks need to improve their homes. It's as simple as that," said Kelly. "Over the last few decades as inflation rates increased, homeowners tended to move into new homes to reflect their own progress. The higher prices of new homes now inhibit that solution, so the answer for the '80s is home improvement."

Graziano voiced NARI's expectations of an improved economic climate in 1983: "It obviously has started to turn around," he said, "with the dropping of the prime interest rate, home mortgage rates and consumer loan rates. That will stimulate action in the remodeling sector. It should also stimulate new home buying, and that is good for the remodeling industry.

When to remodel

"It is not generally realized that 10 percent of all homeowners do some remodeling within the first two years after they buy the home, and within the first six years nearly a third of them do some significant remodeling."

According to Elaine Murray, executive director of NARI, the $40 billion spent through professional remodeling contractors will go for purchase and installation of 2,511,600 kitchens, 3,593,750 bathrooms, 3.2 million insulation jobs, 1 million room additions or dormers, nearly another million family and rec rooms, 2.7 million roofing jobs, and 1.3 million siding jobs. She added that it also includes 17 million replacement and prime windows and 12 million doors.

Murray noted that the public will get a better break than ever before in history "because we all are working to make it a better, more responsive and more responsible industry."

Professional quality

She said much of the association's effort is directed to education within the industry, adding: "Remodeling contractors are much more customer-oriented than they were a dozen years ago. They are more sophisticated both in business management and in service, and that means their customers will get better value for their money than ever before."

"But," she advises the remodeling-buying public, "when you go looking for a contractor, be sure you get a real professional who has a place of business and is a member of the community."

Invest in vinyl siding to upgrade value: it makes very good sense

Before making improvements to their homes, today's consumers are giving a lot of thought to the investment value of home remodeling projects. Words formerly reserved for their stockbrokers — "payback" and "return on investment," for example — are cropping up more and more in conversations with remodeling contractors.

Homeowners who are thinking about re-siding their homes often conclude that the installation of solid vinyl siding offers one of the best remodeling paybacks. A quick analysis shows why.

Wood frame or clapboard covered homes look fine when they're freshly painted, but appear shabby when they're not. To keep wood siding attractive-looking, it should be painted about every fifth year, say house painters.

Since even a small house can cost $2,000 or more to paint, it would cost $400 per year to keep it freshly painted, and a staggering $20,000 to maintain it for 50 years.

Solid vinyl siding from CertainTeed Corporation, on the other hand, never needs repainting and comes with a 50-year limited, non-prorated warranty. Although re-siding that same small home with solid vinyl siding might cost $4,000, the investment cost per year would be only about $80, or one fifth the annual cost of keeping wood siding in fresh paint.

What if you don't expect to be living in the same home for the next 50 years? Well, if you are seriously thinking about repainting or re-siding, you are probably going to live there long enough to recoup your investment in solid vinyl siding.

And, when you go to sell your home, you'll have a valuable selling point in that CertainTeed's 50-year prorated warranty is freely transferable to the new owner.

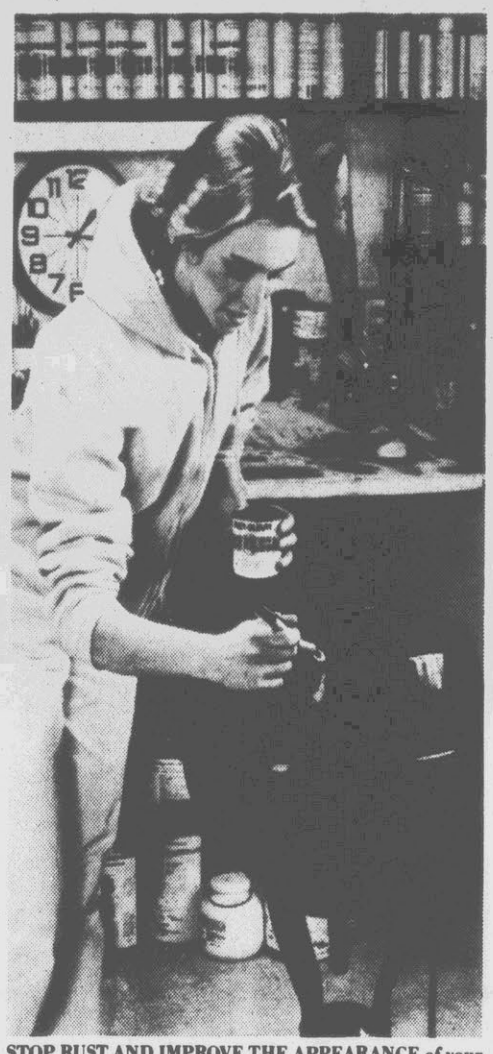

The reason CertainTeed can offer such a lengthy warranty on its solid vinyl siding is that it is extremely tough and durable. The color of the siding goes clear through the panels, so that even if the siding is scratched, the scratches won't be visible. And the siding will not peel, chip or flake as will painted siding materials, so touchups are never needed.

CertainTeed solid vinyl siding is a joy to behold, as well as to live with. It comes in nine attractive colors and in various panel widths, including an exclusive double six-inch size that complements most architectural styles. All the panels are embossed with a fine woodgrain texture.

To discover why more homeowners are investing in solid vinyl siding, don't call your stockbroker. Instead, write to CertainTeed Corporation, Vinyl Building Products Division, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482. Ask for the free booklet entitled, "Consumer's Guide to Home Improvements."

Heat-resistant coating: a must for refinishing outdoor grills

After a season of use and outdoor weathering, chances are the finish on your backyard grill has started to chip and turn gray. In order to give it a bright, long-lasting appearance, care must be taken both in paint selection and in preparing the grill for its new finish.

STOP RUST AND IMPROVE THE APPEARANCE of your outdoor grill the easy way. The finish on this grill was restored using Rust-Oleum® 7778 Bar-B-Q Black, a heat-resistant finish formulated for use on outdoor charcoal and gas grills. The product is available at most hardware stores and home centers in 1/2-pint cans and 13-oz. spray containers.

For a finish that lasts

According to researchers at Rust-Oleum Corporation, a leading manufacturer of rust-inhibitive and decorative metal finishes, proper surface preparation and the use of a high-quality, heat-resistant coating are an absolute necessity if you want the refinishing job on your grill to last.

Heat-resistant coatings such as Rust-Oleum® Bar-B-Q Black and Bar-B-Q Copper are formulated with high temperature resins and additional color pigments to withstand the temperature ranges encountered during the operation of outdoor gas and charcoal grills. A standard paint product, on the other hand, will turn gray and begin to chip and peel, usually after the first use.

Helpful hints

In order to properly refinish your grill, here are a few tips:

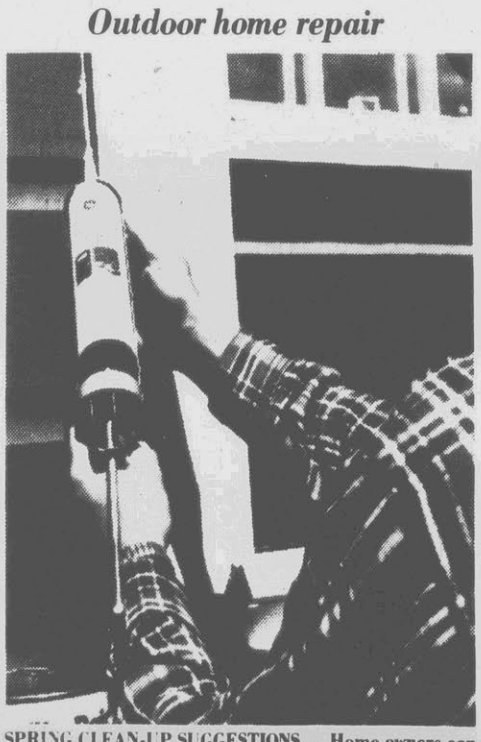

1. Remove loose deteriorated exterior coatings and rust by sanding, scraping and wire brushing.

2. Remove grease, oil and other contaminants by cleaning with a solvent, oven cleaner or strong detergent solution. After cleaning, flush the grill thoroughly with fresh water and allow to dry.

3. After the grill has dried, apply one or two coats of high quality, heat-resistant coating (no primer is required).

Tips for painting steel, wrought iron, galvanized metal, aluminum, chain link fences and many other surfaces around the house are contained in a free booklet from Rust-Oleum Corporation. For a copy write: Tips for Painting Metal, Rust-Oleum Corporation, 11 Hawthorn Parkway, Vernon Hills, IL 60061.

Outdoor home repair

SPRING CLEAN-UP SUGGESTIONS ... Home owners can take spring clean-up outdoors to tackle repair projects incurred by severe weather. Especially suitable for mending gutters and siding, as well as sealing around windows and doors, GE Silicone Window & Door Caulk is easy to apply and remains flexible. Since it adheres to latex or oil-based paints, it is also ideal as a preliminary step in getting the house ready for painting. GE Silicone Window & Door Caulk is available in 8.5 fluid ounce, resealable cartridges to fit standard caulking guns.

Timely topic of community interest: home improvement

If you're looking for a timely topic that's sure to interest your community or service organization, your search can end at your front door.

It's your house and the houses that each member of your group owns.

Inflation and high interest rates have brought about renewed interest in how to improve your present home by reducing maintenance, reducing energy consumption and making it even more attractive.

To help homeowners better understand the benefits and the how-to's of home improvement, Alcoa Building Products is offering a 17-minute, 16 mm film and informational booklet called "Don't Move ... Improve!" free of charge to interested community or service organizations.

Questions answered

The program is designed to answer those questions most often asked by homeowners considering home improvement projects. Tips on selecting a contractor, remodeling ideas, new products available, how to read warrantees, and information on energy saving income tax credits are all covered plus a whole lot more.

"DON'T MOVE ... IMPROVE," a program offering helpful tips on home remodeling, is available to community groups and service organizations from Alcoa Building Products, Inc.

Casual, versatile kitchen for Mom

Here's an idea for a casual, warm, and very versatile Z-BRICK kitchen for Mom! This design serves as a beautiful and pleasant surrounding for your creative preparation of fantastic cooking and dining pleasure.

You can do it yourself without calling in a contractor to totally rebuild the room. All it takes is a little imagination with a modest amount of carpentry skill.

First, you start by spreading a thin coat of Z-Ment adhesive mortar. Next, the Z-BRICK is applied by wiggling into place with a side-to-side motion, squeezing mortar into the space between adjacent bricks.

The mortar between bricks is smoothed with a small brush for the third step. Finally, after the mortar has cured for 24 to 48 hours, a coat of protective Z-Sealer is brushed on. When properly applied, Z-BRICK facing brick is guaranteed for 10 years against fading, chipping, flaking, crumbling or separation.

Z-BRICK is made under the Forvam pressure formed process which is the brick of the future, available today, with lifetime durability, easy maintenance, unique and lasting beauty.

There are three types of Z-BRICK brand facing brick: Inca, a traditional, smooth-shaped brick with concise edges for a more formal look; Country Rustic, with jagged irregular-cut edges, giving a more rustic weathered look, and the newest earth tone brick and stone, Design Images, Ltd. This new brick and stone with rich cleft-faced textures, carries the same ten year Z-BRICK guarantee, and has the same UL Class One Fire Hazard Rating that has made Z-BRICK so popular.

Multiplying the nine different colors of brick with the three colors of adhesive mortar —white, natural, and black— gives a virtually unlimited number of design possibilities.

The Z-BRICK Company has prepared a more detailed set of plans to show exactly how to accomplish projects for your home. For instructions, send 50¢ to: Easy Projects Booklet, Z-BRICK Company, P.O. Box 628, Woodinville, WA 98072.

WITH A LITTLE IMAGINATION, you can design and create a warm and personal Z-BRICK environment that Mom will love to cook in.

Energy-saver that makes homes more comfortable, attractive

Looking for a way to make your home more energy-efficient? Who isn't nowadays? If you are like most, you've spent lots of time and money insulating, weatherstripping, caulking and plugging ventilated areas. And, with all your thoughtful efforts, you've probably overlooked one major area—windows.

You need only to touch a window pane during a cold winter storm, or sit near an unprotected window during a hot sunny day, to realize windows and sliding glass doors can be very vulnerable areas for energy waste, both winter and summer.

We love windows

Why do people continue to build homes and offices with large areas of glass? Because we like windows. Oftentimes we buy and build because of the view. Psychologists tell us that people are actually healthier in an environment where they can see out.

Windows do have some benefits in building design. They can help save energy by offering supplemental lighting or heating, and windows can be opened for ventilation if they are equipped with insect screening.

Ideally, you should equip your windows in such a way that you can see out, heat stays inside in winter and excess heat is blocked out on bright, sunny days. One simple solution that has already helped over a million homeowners is SunScreen Solar Screening.

Ideal during that time of year when windows are opened for ventilation, since it is an open mesh that replaces regular insect screening, SunScreen allows air to circulate and gentle breezes to enter, but stops bugs.

Developed originally as a summer product, when attached on the outside of a window, inches in front of the glass surface, SunScreen stops up to 70 percent of the sun's heat and glare. It has been used effectively for years in such hot climates as Arizona, California and Texas.

As an exterior shading product, it is particularly effective on east, west and south-facing windows, and on sliding glass doors facing pools or patios: Exterior shading is several times more effective than any shading at the window surface or inside the window.

Good insulation

Recent tests have shown that SunScreen helps to insulate windows and doors against the harsh winds of winter, too. Its unique ribbed-weave construction greatly reduces "wind wash" on the glass surface. In addition, the semi-dead air space between the screen and the glass acts as an insulating blanket.

For maximum year-round performance, the screening should be installed from 1 to 3" in front of the glass (on the exterior side). Laboratory tests show up to a 15 percent increase in the thermal performance of a clear ¼" plate glass when the screening is installed in this fashion. Some building owners report much greater savings.

Fading of furnishings, drapes and carpets is also reduced, as well as glare; this feature is especially appreciated where reflections from snow, water, and adjacent buildings might cause a problem. In the winter months, the solar screening can help prevent hot spots around windows and can result in a more uniform distribution of heat.

Another unique feature of SunScreen is its daytime privacy ... you can see out, but not in. Homeowners can leave the shades up and the drapes opened and still enjoy daytime privacy.

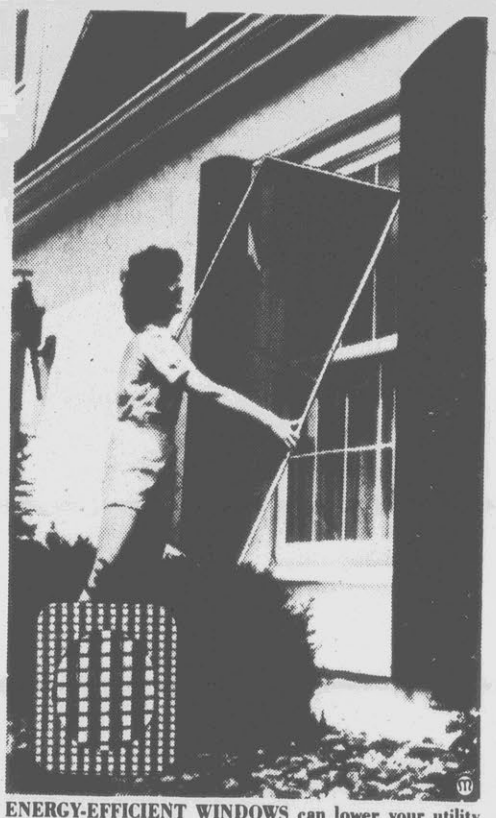

Woven of long-lasting fiberglass yarn, the screening is available in a variety of pleasing colors to enhance the exterior appearance of any type of building. Most homeowners prefer to have it installed by authorized dealers, listed in the phone directory. SunScreen is also available in many hardware and home centers and installation is not difficult for the do-it-yourselfer.

To be really effective, the solar screening should cover the entire window area. If you have half-screens or no screens at all, you may be better off to contact an installer.

The payback period for SunScreen should be less than three years, even if custom installed, and that's based on today's utility rates, which will surely rise in years to come. Its modest cost might fit your budget better than other window treatments available for year-round comfort.

Send for information

For additional information, contact Phifer Wire Products, Inc., P.O. Box 1700, Tuscaloosa, AL 35403. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope.

ENERGY-EFFICIENT WINDOWS can lower your utility bills. Install SunScreen Solar/Insect Screening to block out excess heat and glare while allowing gentle breezes to cool off your home. In winter, Sunscreen insulates windows and doors against harsh winds making it a great year-round investment.

Skylights can brighten, dramatize

TWO SKYLIGHTS SET IN TANDEM brighten and add excitement to this living room. Each skylight contains one-inch thick double pane glass installed in a lightweight but strong and rigid insulated aluminum frame which requires virtually no maintenance. Here, the interior frames are finished with California redwood.

If the windows in your home don't provide enough daylight, skylights may be the most efficient way to brighten up the rooms and create a feeling of drama and excitement. They not only provide natural daylight from the ceiling area, but visually enlarge small spaces.

Skylights have become increasingly popular just about everywhere in a house—hallways, dens, kitchens, bathrooms and even bedrooms. They are also being installed in additions to older houses where structural problems limit light from windows.

In an imaginative application, skylights installed in an old brownstone create an atrium effect in the foyer and in the duplex living room.

Most in demand are aluminum-framed skylights because even though the material is lightweight, it is strong and rigid and virtually eliminates maintenance.

The most efficient aluminum-framed skylights have double or triple glazing and thermalized frames. This means that the frame has a built-in insulating barrier between the inside and outside surfaces. The break in the frame prevents the cold outside air from being conducted inside the house through the frame.

Most aluminum skylights are factory prefabricated in a wide variety of sizes and shapes, but some are custom-formed from extrusions. Nowadays, flat tops seem to be preferred over domed units because they are unobtrusive and blend more easily into the roof.

These skylights incorporate tempered glass or plastic set into a rigid aluminum frame which has a self-flashing perimeter and permanent weather sealing. Interior frames have either aluminum or wood finishes.

They come in anodized, white, bronze or brown aluminum finishes with clear or tinted panels. The tinted or reflective glass or plastic allows for greater sun control without changing colors inside or outside the room.

In winter, well-insulated skylights reduce some of the need for electric lighting and admit solar heat to keep the room warm. Although most skylights are permanently sealed into the roof, some have vents and screens. These are particularly effective for removing smoke and cooking odors.

Wherever possible, a skylight should be installed flush with the roof of a building. Where the roof is pitched or there is an attic above the room, a skylight can be tunneled from the ceiling to the roof.

Which mower is best?

SOONER OR LATER, the majority of lawn owners will be faced with the decision of "which mower to buy." Many people are confused about when to use a rear bagging mower and when to use a mulching mower. Lawn experts agree that in order to maintain a well manicured, healthy looking lawn, numerous variables such as moisture content, length of grass, type of grass and available amount of time should be considered. The decision of which mower to buy may have been made easier with the introduction of the new combination mowers. For example, with a new Bolens combination mower such as the Eliminator Plus combination mulching bagging mower from Bolens, above, you receive the benefits of mulching with the option to bag your clippings when desired. No need to consider buying two mowers; and, eliminating raking can be a real time saver.

Power from windmills

What could provide as much electricity as 25 nuclear reactors? Five million windmills, says the Worldwatch Institute.

In a study titled "Wind Power: A Turning Point," the Washington, D.C.-based research group says that as many as 3.8 million rural homes and 370,000 farms and businesses could make use of small-scale wind energy.

A good job: roofing contractor's best recommendation

CHOOSE THE RIGHT ROOFING MATERIAL for your home and be sure the contract specifies: brand name, time schedule, financial arrangements and warranty. J-M Woodlands fiberglass shingles offer the rustic appearance of wood and a UL Class A fire resistance rating.

As a homeowner, you're probably well acquainted with the many fix-up and remodeling projects necessary to maintain the appearance and condition of your home. And one of the most important areas to maintain is your roof.

All roofing materials, including asphalt, wood and tile, eventually age from continual exposure to wind, sun and rain. If your shingles are cracking and curling, or if there are noticeable spaces where some have blown away, then it's time for a new roof.

Choosing the right roof

Since there are several varieties of roofing materials on the market, you'll need to determine first the features you are looking for in a new roof. Knowing what kind of roof you're interested in is important because many contractors specialize in the types of roofing materials they install.

You want a roof that is durable and is backed by a manufacturer's warranty. Fire and wind resistance are important qualities in a roof. You should look for a roof with a UL Class A rating, which is the highest rating attainable.

You also want an attractive roof which will harmonize with the rest of your home. In short, you want the best roof your money can buy.

Consider shingle types

When selecting a new roof, you will want to compare different types of roofing shingles. "Choosing the Right Roofing Material," a free booklet from Manville Building Materials Corp., the exclusive agent for Johns-Manville fiberglass shingles, provides comparative information on the fire resistance, cost and longevity of various types of roofing shingles including: untreated wood shakes, tile, asphalt and fiberglass shingles. This booklet will give you the background you need to make an informed decision about which roofing material is best for your home.

Selecting a contractor

Once you have determined which type of roof you want, you are ready to look for a qualified roofing contractor. Select a roofing contractor as carefully as you would any other home improvement contractor. After all, a new roof is a major investment and, for most homeowners, a once in a lifetime purchase.

Start by asking friends and neighbors for names of reliable roofers that they have used. If that fails, turn to your local telephone directory. Look under "Roofing Contractors" and select several roofers who specialize in the type of roof in which you're interested. You may also be able to obtain recommendations from the local branch of the Roofing Contractors Association.

Once you have compiled a list of roofers, call and ask them to supply you with names and addresses of at least 10 homeowners who have had new roofs installed over the last two years. Since a roofer's best recommendation is his past work, he will gladly furnish you with a list of references.

Check references

Call a half dozen of the names at random to verify the quality of workmanship, how long it took the roofer to complete the job, and the terms of the warranty.

As a final step, you may want to call the Better Business Bureau and ask for a "reliability report." This will tell you whether or not any complaints have been filed against any of the roofing contractors you are considering.

Compare bids

After checking references, you will want to ask the contractors to submit bids on the work to be done. Be sure that the bids include everything that is involved in the job: types and brands of materials to be used, services the roofer will perform, a time schedule for completion, financial arrangements and warranty. Review and compare the bids carefully before drawing up the contract.

Signing the contract

Now that you have compared the bids you are ready to select a roofer and to discuss the contract with him. The contract should include all the specifications outlined in the bid as well as anything else you and the contractor agree upon. Be sure that the roofing material is specified by brand name.

For example, if you have selected a specific product such as Johns-Manville Woodlands fiberglass shingles in the Weathered Bark color, it should be stated in the contract. If the contract is not specific and calls only for a "fiberglass shingle," you may be disappointed in the result.

If flashings and gutters are included in the price, they too should be stated in the contract.

Warranties should be spelled out and application procedures should be specified. Be certain that the contractor's application methods coincide with those of the manufacturer. Most warranties are contingent upon the method of application.

Also, know what kind of warranty you have. How long does it last? What does it cover? If there are any problems after the job is completed, how quickly can you have those problems corrected? Are those corrections included in the contract or will you have to pay for them?

Some contractors charge for material only, some for labor only and some charge for both. Be careful that all aspects of the warranty are spelled out.

Spring into organized cleaning effort

THE ANNUAL RITE OF SPRING CLEANING is upon us and to accomplish the task efficiently it's a good idea to plan a cleaning course and involve the whole family. With a little help from America's "good friend" Bon Ami, and the combined efforts of the family, the home will quickly take on a fresh, springtime appearance.

When peering out at the budding leaves and blossoming flowers that mark the arrival of spring, it is inevitable that you'll be looking out a dirty picture window—which also signals the annual spring cleaning ritual.

Spring cleaning need not send the family back into hibernation if all family members pitch in to get the job done. The key to effective spring cleaning is planning, according to the makers of Bon Ami, America's good cleaning friend for nearly 100 years.

Spring cleaning doesn't begin with mops, rags and buckets, but with pencil and paper to chart a cleaning course. If each member of the family is assigned various tasks, according to their capabilities, the job can be over in plenty of time to enjoy the spring weather.

Plan ahead for outdoor work. When the first pleasant day arrives, it's time to put your work schedule into motion. Start at the top and work your way down. That means checking the roof for debris deposited by winter winds. Clean out gutters and downspouts clogged by leaves and branches so that April showers will flow more freely through the channels.

Let the sunshine in by removing winter dirt and grime from windows with a gentle, yet effective cleaner such as Bon Ami Cleaning Powder or Cake. Bon Ami is formulated with the finer, milder abrasive, feldspar that actually polishes as it cleans and leaves a protective shine on glass surfaces.

The lawn should be given a thorough raking to rid it of old leaves and clippings that have accumulated over the winter months. And don't forget to sweep or hose down the sidewalks and driveway.

Indoor cleaning should be scheduled when it is most convenient for each family member — after school and work or on weekends.

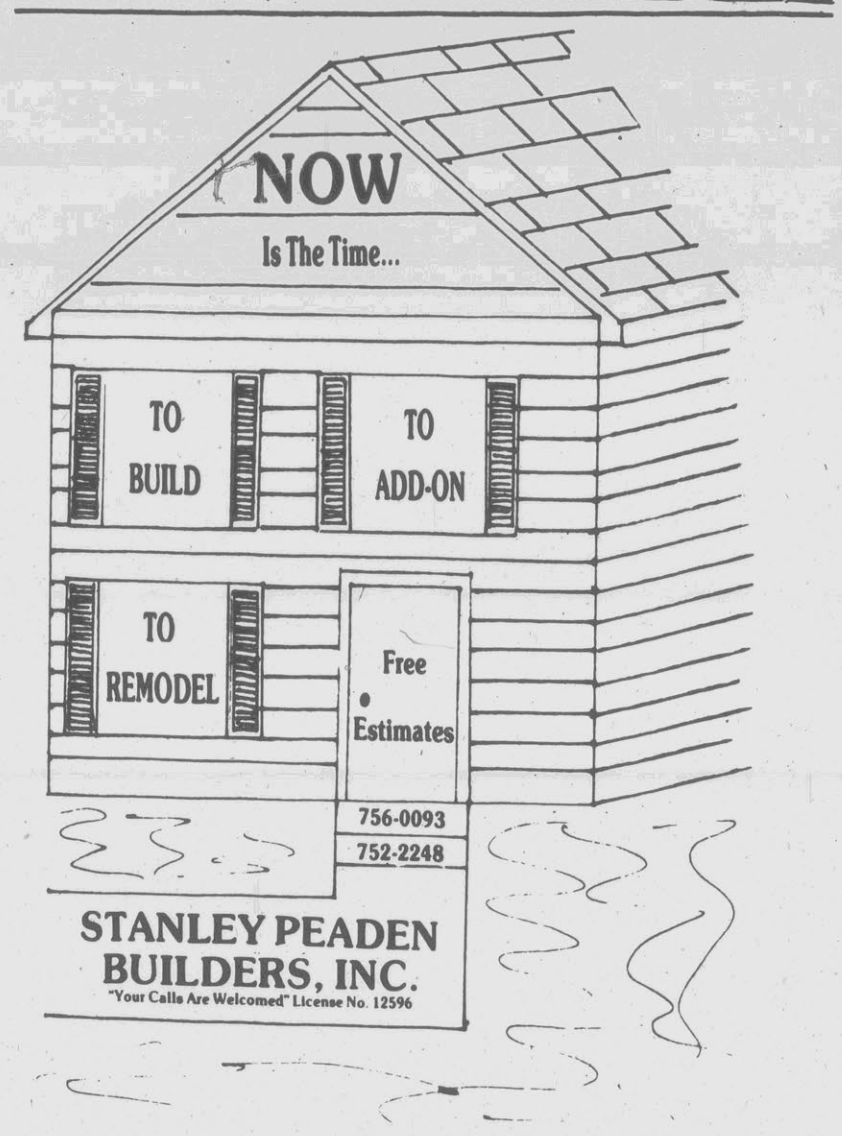

Before starting cleaning chores, gather all necessary supplies and place in a large bucket or central area. This eliminates extra trips to get specific items. To make the job easier and economical, use a safe, nontoxic, multipurpose cleaner like Bon Ami that cleans and shines everything from stainless steel to bathroom tiles without streaking or scratching or emitting harmful fumes.

Cleaning work should concentrate on one room at a time, doing a thorough job before moving on. Start with the light fixtures and proceed to walls and picture frames. Then work your way down to windows, tables, desks and finally the floor.

Remember to include the family pets in the spring cleaning project. Dogs will need a healthy brushing or sudsy scrubbing to remove winter coat buildup. The dog basket, cat box and bird cage also should be cleaned and aired out to remove odors.

For big jobs like cleaning the fireplace or those that require moving furniture or appliances, team up with another family member to double your cleaning effectiveness as well as save time.

Although spring cleaning seems like a huge undertaking, the job can be accomplished easily with the cooperation of all family members and advance planning.

Attics: great places for energy savings

Attics are great places! In some homes, they're great places for storing everything from last year's Christmas decorations to grandma's old rocker. In others, they provide a secluded work area for the family hobbyist. For still others, they are great places to convert into additional living space—stretching the home without straining the budget.

But the attic, above all else, is a great place for saving home energy. How? By adding insulation to the attic floor.

Adequate attic insulation can result in a substantial savings winter and summer, year after year, according to the Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association. And, because the attic is easily accessible, adding mineral fiber insulation—either rock wool or fiberglass—to the attic floor is the simplest way to improve the thermal performance of your home.

Recommended R-values

Generally speaking, R-38 or R-30 insulation in attics is recommended for most parts of the United States with even higher R-values economically justified by fuel savings in colder sections of the country.

Savings vary. Find out why in the seller's fact sheet on R-values available from building material dealers and contractors.

If you decide to insulate your attic yourself, you'll save even more money. Any desired R-value can be achieved with a combination of batts, blankets and loose fill mineral fiber insulation.

What to use

If there is no insulation in the attic, use batts or blankets with the vapor barrier side down. For attics that already have some insulation, new insulation can be added on top of old by using batts or blankets without a vapor barrier—unfaced.

If unfaced insulation is not available, you can use the type with a vapor barrier, but remove the vapor barrier before installing.

Don't forget your roof!

A ROOF OVER OUR HEADS. How many times have you said that, or heard it said by someone else without bothering to think what it means? A house with four walls and no roof is no shelter at all. Even the primitive huts of long ago had animal skins or clay and mud daubed on top to act as protection against the cold and heat. Now that spring is here, isn't it time you looked at that roof over your head, really looked at it? It's given you good service for many years, but it needs attention to provide that shelter you and your family rely on. The correct roofing material not only keeps the house safe in wind and rain storms, but it provides good insulation as well. Nowadays, asphalt shingles can give you not only shelter and protection but a beautiful roof designed to fit in with almost any style or architecture: Shingles in pleasant, earth tones that resemble wood shakes but are fire and wind resistant. GAF Corporation, for example, has been supplying professional roofers with premium Timberline asphalt shingles for over 25 years. So, when you plan your 1983 spring home improvement campaign, please don't forget that roof over your head!

As if their foundations were made of glass...

Millions of homes are wasting valuable energy

The home with a glass foundation has yet to be built. But millions of homes are wasting energy as if their foundation walls were made of glass because they are not insulated.

Except in solar homes, glass has never been considered to be a great energy saver or typical material for wall construction. However, it is often assumed that an eight-inch-thick masonry wall should be able to keep heat in during winter or air conditioning during summer. Not true, say energy experts.

"Homeowners must keep in mind that a building material's thickness is not necessarily a factor in its insulating ability," says Kathy Wolfgram, senior research engineer for The Dow Chemical Company.

Comparative R-values

The R-value of a dual pane glass window is 1.6, while the R-value of a typical concrete foundation is 1.9. These figures include interior and exterior air films.

R-value is the measure of insulation effectiveness. The higher the R-value, the greater the insulating value.

Nearly one-quarter (22 percent) of the total energy loss in an otherwise well insulated home can make its way through the foundation wall. The application of Styrofoam™ brand insulation to this wall can significantly enhance the home's energy efficiency.

"If a home is insulated to normal standards, R-11 in walls and R-19 in the ceiling, the potential for additional fuel savings through insulation of the foundation wall is more dramatic than for any other area of the home," Wolfgram states.

EXPOSED UNINSULATED FOUNDATION WALLS can account for as much as 22 percent of a typical home's heat loss. Boards of Styrofoam brand insulation exposed above ground must be covered with one of several protective/decorative coverings available.

Numbers talk

A random sampling of energy costs for eight midwestern and northeastern metropolitan areas for natural gas and electricity showed that they rose an average of 31 percent and 36 percent, respectively, between February, 1980, and January, 1982.

"As energy costs continue to rise, homeowners are looking for economical ways to lower energy bills," says Wolfgram. "Although many areas have been targeted for improved insulation, the foundation walls have been overlooked."

Styrofoam brand insulation is virtually impervious to moisture, as well as to the long-term effects of soil chemicals and repetitive freeze-thaw cycling in the wet ground, which can degrade other insulating products used below grade.

"Considering the proven underground performance of Styrofoam and the importance of insulating foundation walls to reduce energy waste, the application of Styrofoam brand insulation to exterior foundation walls is a natural solution to the problem of insulating basements and crawl spaces," claims Wolfgram.

Keep advantages in mind

According to Wolfgram, there are a number of advantages to insulating outside the foundation walls rather than inside.

"Many homes have problems with dampness collecting on interior basement walls in winter. This is caused when warm, moist air inside the house condenses as it contacts the colder mass of the uninsulated concrete foundation. Insulating the outside of the foundation warms the concrete mass and moist air is less likely to condense against this warmer surface.

"Insulating outside allows the concrete mass to collect and store heat generated inside the house, thus maintaining a warm wall surface comfortable to be near. This 'thermal mass' principle of heat storage is a basic component of many solar home designs where solid masses are used to store solar energy."

In addition to the benefits of reduced condensation problems and thermal mass heat storage, adding insulation to the exposed exterior foundation is not complicated.

The perimeter of the foundation wall should be excavated as far down as is convenient—at least 12 inches. The greater the depth, the greater insulating protection.

After cleaning the exposed foundation with a stiff brush, boards of Styrofoam can be attached with mastic or mechanical fasteners.

The narrow ribbon of insulating sheathing exposed above grade must be protected with any one of several protective/decorative coverings including: Insul-Guard® pultruded fiberglass panels, a product of Trend Products, Inc.; Thermaseal®, latex modified cementious coating, Akona Corporation; Thoroseal®, a product of Standard Drywall Products, Inc., and Insul-Crete latex modified cementious coating, a product of Insul-Crete, Inc.

Ask an expert

For more help in choosing the most appropriate covering for your needs, contact your local Dow sales representative.

Caution: Styrofoam brand insulation is combustible and should be handled and installed properly, according to Dow literature available from your supplier or from Dow.

Good news for homeowners...

You can save big money with new high-performance storm windows

Now that spring is here, many homeowners are in the market for storm windows to replace the old, loose ones that ran up their heating bills last winter. How do you judge a storm window for increased energy efficiency?

Helpful hints available

An informative booklet entitled "Consumer's Guide to Buying Storm Windows" is available from Schlegel Corporation, a leading manufacturer of weatherstripping. For a free copy, send a self-addressed stamped envelope to Schlegel Window Booklet, P.O. Box 23113, Rochester, NY 14692.

Look for CFM rating

Judge a storm window's energy efficiency by its CFM rating just as you would judge a car by its MPG rating. CFM stands for "cubic feet of air per minute, per foot of crack perimeter" and is a measure of air infiltration, or air leakage, around the sash. The lower the CFM number, the tighter the window and the more energy it saves.

Compare CFM ratings. A few years ago, storm windows rated as much as 4.0 CFM. Now, many windows have CFM ratings as low as 0.5. The best new storm windows have a 0.1 CFM rating, making them 40 times more efficient than the windows of just a few years ago!

CFM ratings can be found in a test report on the window. Ask for the rating or a copy of the test report from your contractor or retailer.

Ratings are available for better quality storm windows. Avoid windows that do not have a CFM rating; they may be obsolete.

Obvious savings

To see how much a homeowner can save with energy-efficient storm windows, look at a home in Minneapolis, Minnesota. With 3-by-5 foot windows, local heating prices ($1.20/gallon for oil), and 12 mph wind speed, the homeowner saves about $59 per window in one season with old aluminum storm windows.

When these windows are replaced with 0.1 CFM storm windows, the saving is about $115 per window! The energy wasted by inefficient storm windows is cut by as much as 95 percent.

Found money

Take advantage of the latest advances in energy efficient technology. The money you save on your winter heating bill can go toward other home improvements next spring!

ENERGY EFFICIENT STORM WINDOWS like these have a 0.1 CFM rating, which means little warm air escapes to the outside. These storm windows will drastically reduce heating bills next winter.

FOLLOW "GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY"

If you're looking to hire an insulation contractor, begin by asking friends and neighbors for recommendations. It's a good place to start, says the Mineral Insulation Manufacturers Association.

Wood mouldings are natural beautifiers

The natural beauty of wood not only adds warmth to a room, but character as well. That goes for beautiful wood furnishings, natural wood paneling and, of course, decorative wood mouldings.

With more than 350 different profiles to choose from, today's wood mouldings offer limitless decorative uses. Install ceiling trim, base and chair rail mouldings to give a room a traditional charm.

Decorate a bare chest of drawers and transform it into a classic piece of furniture. Or use a room divider made of lattice to separate the living room from the dining area.

Wood mouldings are also easy to work with. Available in a variety of stock sizes and styles, even a novice do-it-yourselfer can easily accomplish professional looking results. A basic knowledge of carpentry, tools and a little imagination is all you'll need to add the rich beauty of wood to any room of the house.

Just as the proper finish can add to the beauty of a piece of furniture, the same is true for wood mouldings. A wide selection of moulding finishes are available at local home centers and building supply dealers. Among them are oils, stains, lacquers, varnishes, waxes and oil or water-based paints.

Wood mouldings can be finished to match, contrast or accent furnishings, wall coverings and accessories. If in doubt as to which type of finish to use for your particular project, ask the salesman for help. It's also a good idea to test the finish on a piece of scrap moulding before getting started.

When finishing any woodwork, be sure to avoid dusty work areas. Make sure surfaces are clean and smooth.

Vinyl-coated ceiling puts an end to spring repainting ritual

If the need to repaint the kitchen ceiling pops up with annoying frequency on your spring cleaning agendas, maybe you don't have the right kind of ceiling.

In a busy kitchen where something always seems to be cooking, the ceiling can take nearly as much basting as the food. Grease spatters there, smoke drifts there, moisture collects there. After a winter of heavy-cooking holidays, the ceiling's appearance could make you lose your appetite.

So periodically, homeowners remedy the situation—temporarily—by slapping on new paint. This year you might try a different, longer-lasting approach. Put up a pre-finished ceiling that comes with a special coating to resist staining. It'll cost a bit more time and money initially, but could save more of both in the long run.

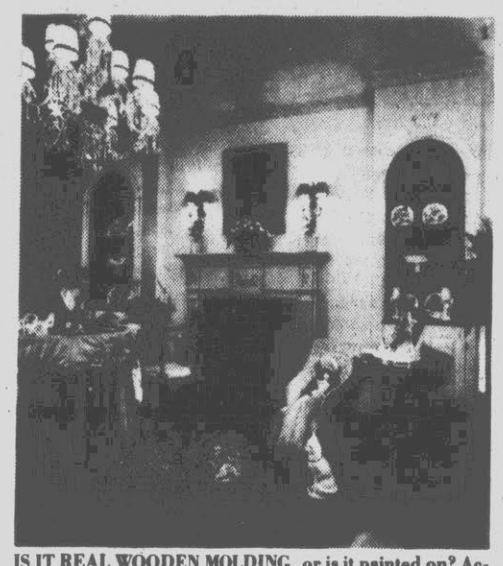

Made by Armstrong, these ceilings have a vinyl surface that offers nothing for grease and grime to cling to. A swish of a damp sponge removes soil with ease.

Vinyl-coated ceilings come in a choice of designs and do-it-yourself installation methods.

You can get foot-square tiles that are easily put up by one of three different methods: cementing, stapling or clipping to the old ceiling.

Or you can choose 2'x4' panels that are inserted in a metal grid hung from the old ceiling. The grid can be suspended low enough to conceal eyesores like pipes, wires and ducts. And pre-assembled fluorescent fixtures can be fitted into the grid slots for energy-efficient, relocatable lighting.

Besides active kitchens, vinyl-coated ceilings are ideal for busy bathrooms, home workshops, kids' rooms—anyplace where the ceiling gets harsh treatment.

IS IT REAL WOODEN MOLDING, or is it painted on? Actually, it's both! The decorative molding around the ceiling is a design painted to look like molding. The curved bookcase molding is real wood, painted to match the color of the walls.

SPECIAL VINYL COATING on these Armstrong ceiling tiles makes them resistant to staining from smoke, grease and other common household agents. Light pass with a damp sponge easily removes any dust or dirt. Do-it-yourself tiles can be stapled, cemented or clipped to the old ceiling.

The right molding makes a difference

Although it's found in almost every room of the home, molding and the decorative potential it possesses are frequently overlooked. In most homes, molding is applied by the builder to cover the line where the walls meet the floor and the ceiling. It is also used to cover cracks around doors and windows.

In addition to its functional applications, molding makes an attractive decoration on doors, kitchen cabinets, bookcases, and walls. In the room pictured, the ceiling molding is painted with a simple pattern which adds decorative interest and color to the room.

Molding can be purchased from hardware and paint stores in a variety of widths and patterns, ranging from the plain to the ornate. The following ideas from the National Paint and Coatings Association illustrate some of the ways to bring the beauty of molding to light in your home.

- Make the most of the molding you already have, by painting it with high gloss or enamel paint in a shade or two darker than the wall color. This will give your walls the dramatic effect of being encircled with color!
- For a room decorated in the country motif, achieve a sophisticated yet rustic appearance by either leaving the molding unfinished and applying only a protective coat of polyurethane or staining it lightly.

Another possibility is to select a small, simple design and stencil it onto the molding at regular intervals. Use colors found in your upholstery or add new colors for a bright accent.

- Apply molding to a plain door and create the look of paneled wood. Try painting your molding a rich gold for an elegant look or stain it in a darker shade to contrast warmly with the color of the door.
- Remember, designing and decorating the molding is easier done before it is attached to the wall.

Update on no-wax flooring

When science opened the way with resilient floor covering materials more than 30 years ago, manufacturers of floor coverings quickly introduced all types of vinyl flooring, as well as tiles containing asbestos, asphalt and rubber, in every color and effect imaginable...marble, slate, ceramic tile, even wood effects.

What followed was the "no-wax" finish to resilient flooring, called the "wearlayer." This is the top layer of the floor covering, usually made of a clear, protective layer of vinyl or polyurethane, or a mixture of both. It can range from a high sheen to a dull gloss.

Subject to wear

This wearlayer, though made of tough materials, can be very thin. While its purpose is to protect the flooring underneath from direct contact with people's heels and other abrasives such as dirt and grit, it is still subject to wear.

The term "no-wax" has caused a great deal of confusion among consumers, leading many to believe that this flooring requires little or no special care. However, according to the Chemical Specialties Manufacturers Association, "no-wax" flooring will last much longer when the wearlayer is protected through proper care.

Things to keep in mind

The following information is designed to help you understand the care of your resilient "no-wax" floors:

- Although resilient flooring is extremely tough, it is subject to cuts, nicks and abrasions from shoes, dirt and grit, once the wearlayer starts to disappear.
- Weak detergents and water are not strong enough to cut through dirt and get the floor clean enough to protect the thin wearlayer.
- Strong detergents, especially those in granular form, can leave a dull film, and any residue can trap additional dirt and grit.
- Based on overwhelming scientific and practical experience, it has been found that in order to protect the thin wearlayer on resilient flooring, the proper maintenance is called for.

NO-WAX FLOORING WILL LAST A LOT LONGER if it is cleaned and freshened with a product like Perk™ which is formulated for the special care of this vinyl or polyurethane finish.

New booklet tells you how to spruce up your home's exterior

Learn the best ways to give the exterior of your home a new life by sending for the free new booklet entitled "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Siding." It's available from the Aluminum Siding Information Bureau.

The 15 illustrated pages advise you about the various kinds of siding, trim and accessories available, bring you up-to-date on new colors and textures being offered, and suggest how you can get the best value for the money you spend. It also includes facts about warranties and counsels you on how to select a competent contractor.

Sophisticated rustic look

IF YOU HAVE BEEN THINKING OF FINISHING that cellar or converting the basement into an all-purpose room, try creating a media center that doubles as an entertainment area. To get a beautiful, rustic look, use Italian terra cotta tiles on the floor and wooden paneling on the walls. Build a wine rack out of open crates, and keep audio visual equipment in a wooden unit. Decorate with clay pots filled with dry flowers, and keep furnishings simple.

Roof, gutter repairs now quick, easy, inexpensive

Winter can take a heavy toll of housetops, leaving behind leaky roofs, gutters and downspouts. So it's smart to start your spring clean-up and fix-up right at the top—before roof and gutter damage trickles down to ruin inside walls and ceilings.

FOR DO-IT-YOURSELF home repairs ... new Plasti-Kote "Roof & Gutter Patch."

Repairing troublesome roof and gutter cracks and leaks is no longer a tricky, expensive, time-consuming job. Now you can do it yourself quickly and easily at minor cost thanks to Plasti-Kote.

Well-known for top-quality home and auto spray paints, Plasti-Kote has developed an "instant" roof and gutter patch in a handy aerosol can.

Simply spray Roof & Gutter Patch onto cracks and leaky surfaces. It seals them with a protective heavy-duty aluminized asphalt cover that dries in less than an hour to a flexible, sag-free, long-lasting finish.

Wide variety of uses

Plasti-Kote Roof & Gutter Patch repairs asphalt, composition and metal roofs on houses, mobile homes and RV's as well as gutters, downspouts and flashings. It also patches cracks in below-grade foundations, air conditioners and coolers.

You'll find the big 20-ounce can goes a long way to cover big patching jobs or a variety of small ones from housetop to bottom.

Innovative unit creates do-it-yourself security vault for valued possessions

Every 11 seconds, somewhere in the United States, a burglar strikes. Silverware, jewelry, furs—your most valued possessions can be lost forever in one unguarded moment.

Now you can stop thieves with the steel-into-steel protection of Safe-T-Closet. It's a new heavy duty steel door-and-frame unit that turns a closet into a home security vault.

Do-it-yourself project

Best of all, you can easily do-it-yourself using common hand tools.

Safe-T-Closet fits neatly into existing closet openings. Its heavy duty steel frame is nailed and secured with screws to the wood frame. Its tough steel door is precision fitted and already hung on welded security hinges.

Burglar prevention

Its pushbutton deadbolt stops burglars in their tracks. The door can only be opened with the right combination of four numbers. There are no keys to get lost, misplaced or duplicated. A pushbutton release provides for exit from inside the closet.

Safe-T-Closet comes ready to install, complete in one carton. The base unit is pre-assembled, with pushbutton deadbolt already installed.

Both door and frame are pre-finished in high quality baked paint of pearl white color—ready to use or for re-painting to match the room's decor.

For the home handyman, there's a set of illustrated, step-by-step instructions for installing in four basic operations.

Installation steps

You start by removing the old closet door, hinges and hardware. Carefully pry off the trim moulding for later re-use. Center the Safe-T-Closet unit in the opening, nail in place and install the security screws. Replace the trim moulding and re-paint if desired.

Fits three common widths

Safe-T-Closet's solid protection is offered to fit the three most common closet widths of 2'0", 2'4" and 2'6". It's available through building supply dealers, home centers and mass retail outlets.

More details on this steel sentry that's on duty 24 hours a day are available from Benchmark Doors, General Products Company, P.O. Box 7387, Fredericksburg, VA 22404. Telephone 703/898-5700.

DO-IT-YOURSELF Benchmark SAFE-T-CLOSET™ turns any closet into a home security vault. Stops burglars and prowlers; protects valuables; safeguards medicines and firearms from children. Entire unit of heavy duty steel door and frame comes pre-assembled and pre-finished in one carton. Four easy steps to install: (1) Remove old closet door. (2) Carefully pry off trim moulding. (3) Center unit in opening; secure with nails and screws. (4) Replace trim.

Make a cold frame and save on vegetables

Wouldn't it be nice to hasten spring and prolong autumn? You can with a cold frame. These "mini greenhouses" can stretch the growing season of plants and vegetables by four to eight weeks in spring or fall.

It's possible to harvest a salad outside your door during winter's cold, while supermarket prices are at unseasonal highs. And, you can give seedlings a head start for later planting in a summer garden.

A trip or phone call to your local book store, library or county extension agent should equip you with a variety of cold frame designs. You may want a knock-down unit that can be disassembled during summer months, or an insulated version to assure fresh greens when snow falls.

A small cold frame near the kitchen door or built into a patio can be convenient for tending and harvesting lettuce, spinach, radishes and other vegetables.

Be sure the top of the cold frame slopes toward the south to catch maximum sunlight. A northern wall can help protect from winter winds. On mild spring days, raise the cover to prevent plants from overheating, then close the cover as temperatures drop.

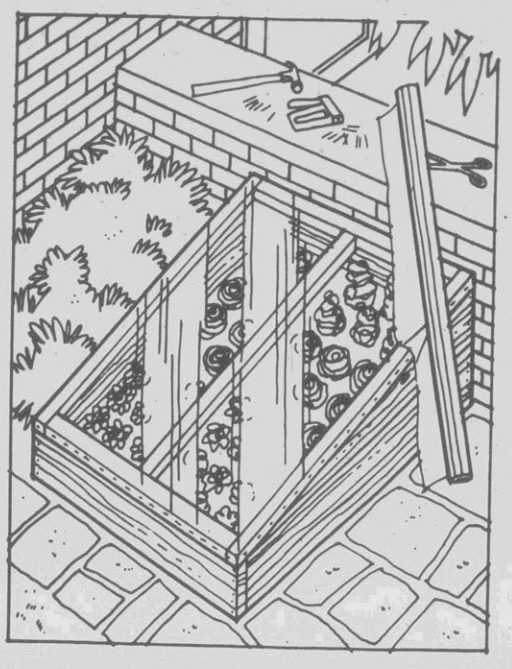

For a cover, a safe alternative to breakable glass is clear vinyl. Wrap it completely over the top and around the sides of the wood frame cover so snow and rain will slide off easily.

Makers of Con-Tact® Brand clear vinyl recommend a heavy-weight vinyl (8 gauge or more) to withstand pelting rain or snow without stretching.

Vinyl should be replaced after a year or two to retain optimum clarity, but recycle this piece to other uses such as a drop cloth for painting, or an insulator over basement windows.

Good plants for cold frames include parsley, kale, Chinese cabbage, garlic, early peas, cucumbers and chives. Tomatoes, peppers and eggplants can also be grown in cold frames but are more cold sensitive, so cover with insulation such as a burlap bag filled with straw on especially cold nights.

A little research will yield other uses for your cold frame such as beginning root cuttings for new plants or forcing of spring bulbs for flowers out of season. Experiment and enjoy!

VARIETY: SPICE OF LIFE FOR MORTGAGES

The Federal Home Loan Bank Board has added a new open end variable rate mortgage to its already burgeoning arsenal of mortgage types.

Although the open end variable rate mortgage gives savings and loan associations unlimited power to vary interest rates, terms and monthly payments during the life of a mortgage, competition should keep payments within reasonable bounds.

Certification seal circles durability

The decor, fixtures, wall and floor coverings, countertops, vanities and mirrors included in bath remodeling should be regarded as permanent and chosen with care. A change of heart in the middle of a bath remodeling project is more expensive than inconvenient.

Take something as simple as the choice of a new vanity. Vanities are available in an array of styles, sizes and finishes. They should be chosen carefully. Yet, neither price nor appearance is any guarantee that the vanity is designed to last.

Indication of quality

One way to gauge durable performance is to look for the certification seal of the National Kitchen Cabinet Association. This small, circular, blue-and-white seal can usually be found inside a door or drawer. It signifies that the vanity or kitchen cabinet has met the tough construction and performance standards of the American National Standards Institute (ANSI).

Only bath vanities and kitchen cabinets that meet the rigid ANSI standards are qualified to display the NKCA certification seal. To qualify, vanities and cabinets undergo many structural and finish tests to determine that they are built to last yet remain new looking for years.

Structural tests measure the vanity's ability to withstand above average weight on shelves and drawers and other potential strain such as overloading and repeated bangs from children's toys.

Finish tests measure such things as the vanity's ability to resist heat and humidity as well as resistance to various spills, including alcohol, detergents and cosmetics.

Strong housing market potential

A potentially strong housing demand should continue through 1994 if a more favorable mortgage market were to exist, reports a study by U.S. Housing Markets.

The markets which should exhibit the hottest demand are Minneapolis-St. Paul, Tampa-St. Petersburg, Las Vegas, Riverside-San Bernardino, Houston and Dallas-Ft. Worth.

TOUCH OF NOSTALGIA CAN SAVE ENERGY, TOO!

Spring is just the time for a home improvement that will save energy and help make the heat of summer more bearable. It will also improve the looks of a room by adding a touch of nostalgia.

What is this magical improvement? It's a ceiling fan.

Nichols-Kusan, Inc., which manufactures Old Jacksonville ceiling fans, points out that because of the fan's cooling effect, a homeowner can turn the thermostat up higher and still feel comfortable.

Though the use of a ceiling fan in hot weather doesn't actually lower room temperature, the constant breeze from the overhead fan improves circulation and makes the room feel cooler.

Old Jacksonville ceiling fans offer two energy-saving features: a motor reversing switch for climate control and a solid-state variable speed control. The motor reversing switch can be set to create a direct breeze in summer or an indirect flow of air in winter.

The variable speed control regulates the amount of electricity used by the fan. Even at top speed, the ceiling fan never uses more than a 100-watt light bulb.

Since they come with step-by-step instructions and all the necessary hardware, Old Jacksonville ceiling fans are easy to install. They carry a 15-year limited warranty against factory defects and can be mounted on any eight foot ceiling. Optional extension kits are available for raised or vaulted ceilings.

Aluminum exteriors eliminate painting chores

If you're a busy, involved homeowner trying to juggle a home and a job, periodic weekend painting and repairing the outside of your house can be an unwelcome chore. Hiring a professional to do the job is expensive.

Dingy and old house siding, trim or gutters and downspouts that need constant attention may indicate that it's time to add low-maintenance aluminum replacements.

The permanently baked-on finishes of high quality aluminum siding, and matching or contrasting trim and accessories, are warranteed to last up to 40 years without painting.

NEW WHITE ALUMINUM GUTTERS and downspouts perk up the appearance of this dark-sided house by adding contrast. Because the finish is baked on, the gutters need little maintenance. Here, installers lift the one-piece seamless gutter into place after forming it from aluminum coil stock. The matching white downspout will be attached at the corner.

Resists corrosion

The material has become increasingly popular because of its proven durability and resistance to corrosion and cracking, even in damp climates. Today, most aluminum siding is installed over insulation to help retain heat inside the house.

It comes in a wide variety of styles to suit any type of architecture and in a wide range of colors and textures. There are textures which simulate wood grains so realistically that it is virtually impossible to distinguish the aluminum siding from wood without touching it.

Wood grain effects are achieved by embossing and by new two-tone coating systems which give a more pronounced wood grain appearance from a distance. Some even have the texture of a natural sawmill wood.

Variety of colors

Colors in the double-four, double-five and eight-inch panels come in a wide range of pastels and deep reds, blues, greens, browns and earth tones as well as white. Currently, ivory, cream and beige colors lead in popularity.

Many colors are also available in soffits (the underside of the roof overhang) and fascia (the trim along the edge of the roof).

Installation of soffit and fascia is usually done by an aluminum siding contractor. You can match or contrast this trim with the siding, and a skilled installer can fabricate the trim from aluminum coil stock to cover your window casings and sills.

Since these areas take a special beating from the elements and generally need repainting every other year or so, they are good candidates for aluminum replacements.

So are gutters and downspouts because they must drain water off the house efficiently and quickly.

Protective replacements

These aluminum rainware replacements will also protect the soffit and fascia and help to keep the basement walls dry. In addition, they will prevent shrubbery from being drowned and battered during heavy rain storms.

Their pre-finished coatings eliminate the need for painting and because they do not rust, staining and streaking on the house is also prevented.

While gutters and downspouts can be ordered in various colors, white, brown and bronze are more generally installed.

Advantages of aluminum

The light weight of aluminum rainware places less strain on house components than heavier woods or metals, and the material does not expand and contract as much as vinyl plastic. That's why even on homes re-sided with other materials, aluminum gutters are usually installed.

Aluminum gutters come in preformed sections or are formed at your home from coil stock. These new seamless gutters are aesthetically attractive and spread expansion and contraction over their entire length.

If a roof is extremely high or if most gutters are less than 20 feet or longer than 50 feet, preformed sections are often used. These should overlap at least 1½ to 2 inches and be sealed properly to prevent leaks.

Whether you update your home with one or all of these aluminum replacements, be sure you choose a reputable contractor, for his expertise is as important as the material you choose for siding, trim and rainware.

For more information, write for a free booklet entitled "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Siding" to the Aluminum Siding Information Bureau, 818 Connecticut Ave N.W., Washington, DC 20006.

Office at home: the executive image

SLEEKNESS IS THE KEY IN THIS HOME OFFICE for a professional woman—a look projected by the architectural window treatment created with Bali Blinds in a trio of colorations for dramatic visual appeal. "Strictly no draperies," said designer Jack Lowery A.S.I.D. whose major criterion in this environment was to create a business-like setting with a comfortable ambience. Rejected, too, were period pieces and patterns in favor of contemporary furniture upholstered in such tailored fabrics as leather, suede, velvet and Haitian cotton in natural shades. It's an office that works around the clock, thanks to the architectural lighting and the Bali Blinds which filter the sun's glare to provide light and view during daytime, thus cutting power usage and energy costs.

Insulation the key to year-round energy savings

In many parts of the country, springtime is the only time of the year when homeowners have a brief respite from the high cost of home energy bills. But, as soon as summer sets in, air conditioning units are switched into high gear and the energy cycle begins anew.

Spring and summer are not usually thought of as times to insulate, but more and more homeowners are realizing that insulation can substantially reduce the amount of energy needed to air condition the home. Insulation installed now can reduce home energy consumption for seasons to come.

Ten steps to save energy

To help you establish your own home energy conservation program, Manville Building Materials Corporation is offering a free, Do-It-Yourself Home Energy Audit. This 12-page, illustrated booklet includes a checklist of the 10 most important steps a homeowner can take to decrease the amount of energy used in the home.

A conventionally built home exchanges its interior air once every hour. This means that heated or air conditioned air inside the house is replaced by fresh air from the outside. In summer, a home can lose as much as a half a ton of cooled air per hour and in winter, about 1,000 pounds of heated air.

Air escapes through cracks around doors and windows; through holes drilled for pipes, ducts, electrical units and telephone wires; and through uninsulated attics, walls and floors. You can minimize this air loss by caulking and weatherstripping around cracks and openings and by making sure your home is properly insulated.

Insulation checklist

Your attic is one of the first places you should check to see if you have enough insulation. If your attic is unfinished and unfloored, but has joists to walk on, you can easily find the R-value of the existing insulation. It will be printed on the top or bottom of the batts.

If your existing attic insulation is loose fill, you will need to measure the depth of the insulation between the framing members. If the insulation is fiberglass, you can use the following guidelines to determine the approximate R-value. Other types of insulation may yield different R-values.

| Depth of loose fill Insulation | Minimum R-value |
|---|---|
| 3" | R-7 |
| 6" | R-14 |
| 9" | R-21 |

Once you know how much insulation you have, you can determine how much more you need. Just subtract the R-value of the existing insulation from the recommended R-value for your geographical area. Since R-values differ from climate to climate, you will need to consult your local building materials dealer for the recommended R-value in your area.

If your unfinished attic has a floor, use a ruler to poke through the cracks and around the edges to see how much insulation, if any, is there. If there is less than four inches, consider adding more.

Next, check for adequate insulation under floors, in crawl spaces and next to foundation walls. If you live in a climate where heating costs are above average, consider insulating in these areas.

Exterior walls are another important area to insulate. You can determine whether or not they are insulated by removing the cover from a light switch on an outside wall.

Turn off the power first. Shine a flashlight into the space between the switchbox and the wall and see if there is any insulation. If not, you may want to consider putting some in the walls. Your decision will be guided by the size of your energy bills and the amount of space inside the wall for insulation.

This is not a job for the do-it-yourselfer. Manville recommends that you consult a professional insulation contractor who can give you a free cost estimate and help you determine if additional wall insulation can be installed.

Choosing a contractor

Although many parts of the home can be easily insulated by the homeowner, there are some people who prefer to use the services of a qualified insulation contractor.

Select an insulation contractor as carefully as you would any other home improvement contractor. Start by asking friends and neighbors for recommendations. You can also call your utility company or a local office of the National Association of Home Builders.

To help homeowners identify those contractors who are professionally trained and experienced in installing home insulation, Manville has established an "Approved Fiber Glass Insulation Contractor" program. Contractors participating in this program must attend training seminars sponsored by Manville, have a minimum of one year's experience in the contracting business and demonstrate financial stability.

You can find a listing of these contractors in your local telephone directory under "Insulation Materials." Look in this section for the name Manville to find the approved insulation contractors and retailers in your area.

ATTIC INSULATION can substantially reduce the amount of energy needed to air condition and heat the home. Manville's free D-I-Y Home Energy Audit will help you establish your own home energy conservation program.

Now, solar energy is an affordable alternative

A new low-cost solar heating system has been introduced by Hanson Energy Products headquartered in Newcastle, Maine. Designed as an easy-to-install, modular system, the Hansolar TA-3 can reduce heating costs and add to a home's resale value.

The basic installation kit is one of the least expensive "active" solar energy systems available, with a suggested retail price of $495 before Federal and State tax credits. It includes two modular solar collectors, mounting brackets, illustrated step-by-step installation instructions and a low-wattage air shuttle system. Up to 10 panels can be easily installed in a row.

The product can be installed by the average homeowner using simple tools in less than a day. It operates automatically whenever the sun is shining. Between 80 and 100 cubic feet of heated air per minute is delivered by the basic system, enough to raise the temperature of an average 10x12x8-foot room by 30°F.

"While everyone's fuel savings will be different, the TA-3 can make a significant dent in home heating bills," explains Alan Lishness, director of marketing. "That feature translates into home improvement and increased market value," he adds.

The Hansolar system does not store heat for use during the night or cloudy weather. It is a simple, virtually maintenance-free, energy alternative to oil, gas, wood or electric heat on sunny days. There are no pipes to corrode or break, no flowing water and no moving parts except for the air shuttle.

The TA-3 works quite simply. Sunlight warms an absorber plate in the collectors to a temperature between 80°F and 120°F. Once the absorber plate reaches the 80° plateau, a thermostat automatically turns on the air shuttle.

Cool air from the house is directed into the collector's lower chamber where it flows in a thin stream along the underside of the absorber plate. The layer of air in direct contact with the plate is then heated and, in turn, warms the rest of the air in the collector's upper chamber. Warm air is then directed back into the house.

When there is no longer enough sunlight to keep the absorber plate at 70°F, the thermostat shuts off the air shuttle and seals the system against leaks.

"The rising cost of fuel makes solar heating a particularly attractive alternative," notes Mr. Lishness. "And, when combined with a home's existing oil or electrical heating system, it can really reduce overall heating bills."

The 21-pound solar collector panels are lighter than competitive products. Each is made of injection-molded polystyrene with aluminum-backed cover, a tempered, low-iron glass glazing and plastic support brackets for high strength and low weight.

Word to the wise...

A sparkling clean room starts underfoot with rugs, carpets

Revving up for that major once-a-season house cleaning? If after all that work, the rooms still lack sparkle, the reason could be underfoot.

Rugs and carpets tend to be the most neglected home furnishing, but they take the biggest brunt of wear. There comes a time when they must be cleaned and, fortunately for the budget, this can be done without professional help.

Compare methods

But, before you attempt this job yourself, there are some facts you should know about various methods. These include the use of aerosol foams, the electric rug shampooer with rotating brushes, and the steam cleaning method which is done with an extractor. Both machines can be rented for a nominal sum in many supermarket and hardware stores.

The aerosol foam method is the most convenient, and is good for light cleaning, but if you really want that carpet to be clean, you've got to get below the surface, and a machine method is needed. Here are some pros and cons for both methods:

Rotary brush shampooer: The rotary movement of the brushes very effectively agitates both the surface and deep soil, bringing the abrasive dirt embedded in carpet fibers to the surface.

The disadvantages are that if you use too much water and shampoo, the water will wet the carpet backing, and the shampoo, if not completely removed after vacuuming, becomes a future dirt collector.

Properly done, the carpet will still take about 10 hours to dry completely. This method is not recommended for shag rugs because the long pile can get tangled in the brushes.

Steam cleaning: This method employs a mixture of hot water and special non-foaming detergent which is forced into the carpet and, then, with the press of a button on the same hose attachment, the water is extracted or vacuumed up, along with the loosened dirt. If your carpet is dirty, you'll be amazed to see what comes out of it.

Pros and cons

This method is the best way to remove detergent residue, and because the excess water is extracted, the carpet dries within a few hours.

However — the steam machine is heavy, and this method requires that you fill and empty buckets of water periodically as you clean. There are no brush attachments, so this method relies on suction to loosen embedded dirt.

Whatever method you use, test for color fastness first on a part of the carpet that doesn't show, by rubbing vigorously with a wet cloth.

Once your carpet is clean, the best way to keep it that way is by constant and thorough vacuuming to get at that dirt before it settles to the bottom. One way to make the job more effective is by using "Love My Carpet" rug and room deodorizer. It not only helps keep the carpet cleaner, but its deodorizing ingredients really help control all those odors trapped by carpet fibers which is why it's such a favorite with pet owners.

The finishing touch

Once your carpet is absolutely dry, all you do is sprinkle it on the carpet as you vacuum. "Love My Carpet" is the only brand that comes in four different scents. A little goes a long way, and it will keep the whole room smelling fresh and clean.

CARPET ODORS, ESPECIALLY IF YOU HAVE PETS, can be easily controlled just by using a little "Love My Carpet" rug and room deodorizer. What's more, it helps keep your carpet cleaner, and comes in four scents.

Avoid kitchen clutter and mess with convenient trash compactor

If you were to ask your neighbors what household chore receives the most complaints, many of them would probably answer "taking out the trash." Hard as you might try to contain it, there always seems to be a basket full waiting to be emptied.

While it's impossible to completely eliminate this unpleasant task, there is an appliance which will help control it — a trash compactor. It can quickly compact a week's worth of trash for an average family of four (the equivalent of three to four trash cans) into one neat bag, and do away with all the usual fuss and messy trash bags.

A trash compactor can be installed most anywhere there's a grounded 120 volt, 15 amp outlet. Considering that nearly a third of the family trash accumulates in the kitchen, most homeowners prefer to locate their compactor in this area. But, there's no reason why it can't be installed in a pantry, closet or garage.

Shopping for a trash compactor can be confusing when you consider the many available models from which to choose. At first glance, they all appear to be very similar but are not. It's important, therefore, to take the time to shop around, looking for and comparing certain key features which make a difference in compaction and convenience. Ask about:

- Motor size. You want a motor that's large enough to handle those demanding loads — ones filled with a mix of cartons, cans and pop bottles —day in and day out.
- Type of drive system. The drive system moves the ram in and out of the trash drawer. It should be designed to maintain a constant downward force throughout a cycle.

For off-center loads

Trash, which may not be level in the drawer, can cause the ram to wobble or tilt, and work its way between the ram and drawer causing a jam. The 3-Point Drive System found on KitchenAid trash compactors is specifically designed to counter off-center loads.

Each of its three drive screws, along which the ram travels, can absorb uneven pressure, independent of the other two screws. This ensures thorough and uniform compaction and eliminates any tilting or wobbling of the ram.

- The trash drawer. It should be large enough to hold those "jumbo" size detergent boxes without having to first precrush them.
- The ability to use a compactor with or without compactor bags. Ask yourself how many times you might reach for a compactor bag only to find an empty box. The convenience and economy of not having to use bags might just be important to you.
- The method of removing trash odors. A charcoal air filter continually absorbs odors rather than masks them, and is economical, too! Having to replace an aerosol or solid deodorizer every few months can be costly, particularly as they're less effective.

One last point to be made about trash compactors is that they use very little energy.

PUT AN END TO ALL THE FUSS and bother of taking out the trash by installing a trash compactor from KitchenAid.® Model KCS-200 offers the exclusive Built-In Litter Bin® Door which allows you to load small items from the top without having to stoop to open the large trash drawer.

Old TV sets don't die: they become video game screens

Hold it! Don't throw away that old television set! It might be just a bad tube, and once fixed, it could make a dandy set for the kids' video games or that home computer.

And it might not be that expensive to fix. Just because the picture is hazy, or the tube shows black margins, or maybe no picture at all, doesn't mean you're looking at a major repair bill. It might just take one or a few tubes costing $10 to $20 each, according to General Electric.

The receiving tube business is still a large one at General Electric — which means that a great many set owners are making the decision to fix rather than scrap. And, the new uses for television sets like video games and home computer terminals are keeping that market alive.

Just imagine yourself enjoying that movie you've been waiting anxiously for all week — without the kids clamoring to use the set to play video games.

Studies show that most U.S. households have more than one television set, but when the old set goes on the fritz, it usually goes into the attic or basement.

But the video games explosion coupled with the growth of home computers makes the repair of older TV sets an economically sound idea.

These old sets were made with receiving tubes and can often be repaired with less effort and expense than the newer, more sophisticated solid state sets.

John P. Olson, Manager Distributor Sales Operation for General Electric's Tube Products Department, suggests television set owners do the following:

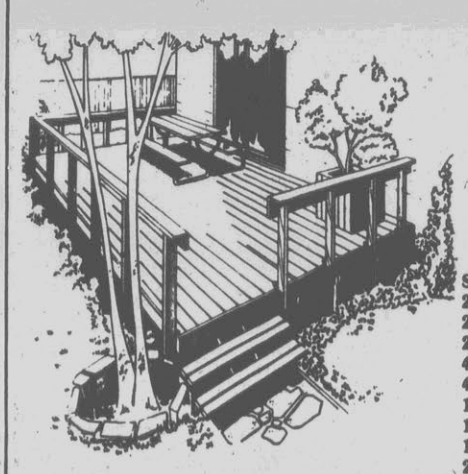

"Let your local TV repairman take a look before you give up. If the set is in good basic condition, his diagnosis may surprise you. Or, if you're a do-it-yourselfer, look for a tube checker in a drugstore or supermarket.

"If the picture tube is sound, you can often get a set working just fine for video games or home computers — and put what you save from the cost of a new TV into new games or programs."

For more information about repairing your old set, see your local GE television dealer.

Worthwhile home improvement...

Install replacement windows to lower fuel use

The very windows that give you a good view of your surroundings may be robbing you of precious heat each winter. If they are warped, loose and drafty, and cannot be sealed effectively, consider installing replacement windows before it gets cold again.

Good, modern ones with a double layer of glass can reduce energy loss through old single-glazed windows by as much as 40 percent and cut maintenance to virtually nothing but periodic washing. Because of the fuel they conserve, they can be one of the most worthwhile home improvements you can make, and can soon pay for themselves.

This is especially so if your home is 25 or more years old, because older windows are not as energy efficient as the new units.

Popular replacements

Aluminum replacement windows, which are the most popular kind, have double glazing and insulated frames which help to keep costly heat from escaping to the outside.

Aesthetically, new aluminum windows are so diverse in style that you can either retain an old colonial look or give your house a facelift with a completely different type of window.

For instance, you can change the style by replacing old up-and-down windows or steel casements with modern aluminum horizontal sliders, picture windows, single-hung units (they have one moving section), or a combination of styles. There are also new aluminum casements which fit snugly. All these windows are lightweight and easy to handle, and the metal won't shrink, swell or rot.

There's variety in color, too. Brown and bronze-framed aluminum windows are almost as popular as white, and other colors can be special ordered. You can even choose one color for the outside of the window and another for the inside. These colors are permanently baked-on at the factory and the frames need no painting.

Whatever style or color you select, it's important that the window be thermalized. This means that the aluminum frame has a built-in insulating barrier between the inside and the outside. The break in the frame keeps the outside cold from being conducted inside the house through the frame.

This "thermal break" and superior weatherstripping are used in all component parts of the window, along with double or triple glazing (two or three sheets of glass separated by dead air spaces). The window comes completely preassembled with aluminum frame, glass, weatherstripping and trim, and can be installed quickly by a qualified technician.

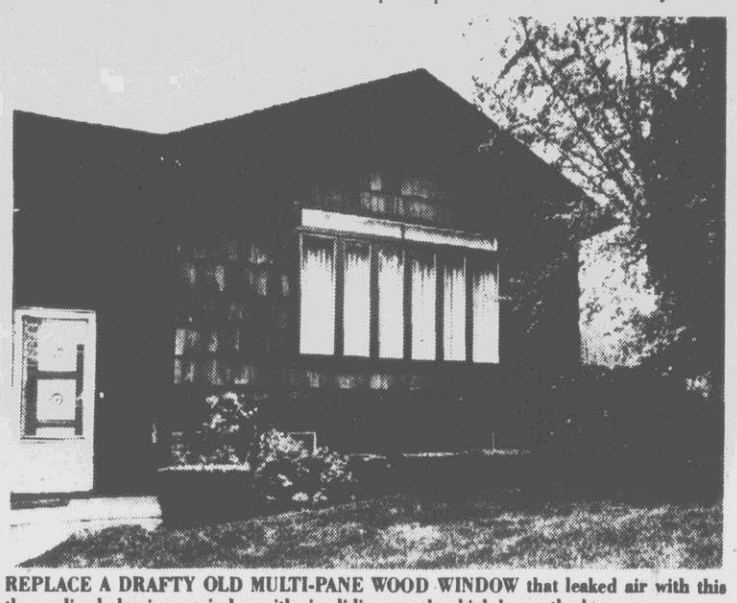

When you're shopping for replacement windows, check their U-values. This is a standard unit of measurement for windows which accurately indicates the ability of its different components to insulate. The lower the U-value, the better it prevents heating or cooling loss.

The best replacement windows bear the AAMA (Architectural Aluminum Manufacturers Association) Certification label. It assures you that the window has passed tough tests approved by the American National Standards Institute.

While you can install aluminum replacement windows during the winter, it's wiser to select them now so that they will be in place before the cold weather comes. If your home is air-conditioned, they will also help to prevent the cooled air from escaping.

If you can't afford new windows for the entire house right now, you can still reduce heating or cooling loss by having them installed initially in the rooms you use most. Then, gradually, you can add replacements to the other rooms.

Remember, too, that an income tax credit of 15 percent up to $300 applies to this type of energy-saving home improvement.

REPLACE A DRAFTY OLD MULTI-PANE WOOD WINDOW that leaked air with this thermalized aluminum window with six sliding panels which keeps the house more comfortable year round. The low-maintenance aluminum framing has baked-on finishes—bronze on the outside, and white on the inside to blend with the decor.

Experts answer frequently-asked questions about aluminum siding

For nearly a quarter century, Alcoa Building Products has been manufacturing high quality, low maintenance aluminum siding for America's homes.

So it's not surprising that when homeowners have a question about their aluminum siding they turn to Alcoa for the answers.

Recently, Charles Gindele, a staff engineer and consumer advisor at Alcoa, provided answers to the questions homeowners ask most often about aluminum siding.

There's a fine dust or "chalk" on my siding. What causes this and is it normal?

Oxidation, or "chalking," is a normal process whereby the pigment in siding gradually breaks down and releases microscopic particles. Siding is designed to oxidize very gradually so, if your siding "chalks" too quickly, you may want to check with your contractor.

Oxidation is generally first noticed as a lightening in the color of the house, or when, in brushing against the house, one notices a fine dust on the hands or clothing. There's no way to prevent oxidation—it's a self-cleaning feature of the siding.

Homeowners who have older siding can sometimes wash off the chalk and return the siding to its original color. Anyone just having his house sided should be aware that the color will change slightly over the years as the siding oxidizes.

Is siding a good insulator?

Even an uninsulated siding panel cuts down on air infiltration through cracks, around doorways and windows and in cornerboards. The air space created by applying an uninsulated siding panel over a wall has an "R" value of about .75. (New home insulation standards in the north are R-19 for sidewalls, R-30 for attic ceilings.) While .75 is not that high, it is a contribution toward saving energy.

Insulated siding panels have an "R" value of between 2 and 3. In addition, homeowners can select from a wide variety of sheathing products, which can be applied under siding, or can have stud spaces blown with an insulating material if the siding is going over wood clapboard.

Insulated siding is usually a wise investment as the additional cost may be recovered in reduced energy usage.

If I just moved into an aluminum sided home that needs a panel replaced, how can I tell the brand?

If you don't know the name of the contractor who applied the siding, you may be able to make some observations that will help you determine the brand. For example:

- While most manufacturers make a woodgrain siding, the grains vary from brand to brand and you should be able to tell one from another.
- On a smooth, eight-inch wide siding panel, check the thickness of the butt (bottom) edge; it will vary from ½ to ⅝ inch between brands.
- A drip bead that deflects water off the surface is a distinguishing factor. It's generally located on the face of the panel, at the bottom, where it meets the butt edge.
- Weep holes (most siding panels have them on the butt edge) are small openings that allow moisture to escape from behind siding. They vary in size and shape (round, triangular, slotted) from brand to brand. They're also spaced differently—Alcoa, for example, has round weep holes every 18 inches.
- As a last resort, pry loose a small siding section and look at the color of the protective "wash coat" on the back; also look for a small logo on the back or on the top nailing hem.

Can I repaint my aluminum siding?

Yes—just be sure to prepare the surface for repainting by cleaning it of dirt and oxidation. Any good exterior paint, preferably latex, will do.

Plan ahead so you'll be decked out for summer

A new deck can do wonderful things for your home's appearance and your outdoor lifestyle. But before you dive into the project, take time out to do some thoughtful planning. Your project will go quicker in the long run, and you'll be happier with the results.

First, analyze your needs. What's the main purpose of the deck? Is it for sun worship or dining al fresco, to dress up an entry or provide a private getaway?

Knowing the deck's function is essential to a good plan. You may find you need several areas or levels—one for entertainment and outdoor cooking, one for sunning.

While rectangular and square decks are easiest to build, the simplest design may not be the best for you. Multiple levels can add more flair and function than one large platform in some situations.

Stake out the deck

Begin by drawing to scale on graph paper a top and side view of the house. Include major landscaping, driveways, doors, and location of utility lines underground.

Then lay out the deck on paper. Try to design it in increments of 2 feet since lumber comes in these even lengths. It will save you a lot of sawing and extra expense.

Now go outside with tape measure and 1x2 stakes and lay out the deck on the site. Determine width, then length and height by measuring the side of the house and marking where you want the top of the decking.

Tap stakes into the ground along the house where the ledger strip will go and at points somewhat beyond the exact points where posts will be placed. Mark the string with a felt pen exactly at the posts positions.

To check the corners of the deck for square, use this simple surveying procedure with two fixed lines forming a right angle. This will be your guide for measurements.

Line #1 is always parallel to the house or other structure the deck is built against. If the deck will be detached, just run a straight line along one edge of the proposed site. Line #2 will intersect line #1 (see drawing).

Take three stakes and a nylon line and lay out a triangle. Line #1 should be 8 feet long, parallel to the wall. Stake the line at points A and B. Line #2 also connects to stake A, running to a point 6' from A. Attach the line to point C several feet beyond.

Check the distance from stake C to stake B, the hypotenuse of the right triangle. When its measurement is exactly 10 feet, your corner will be square. Double check at stake A with a carpenter's square. Then, using stakes and string, lay out the entire deck, repeating the process to check each corner for square.

If building a detached deck, you can form line #1 by placing stakes along a line parallel to one edge of the deck site.

Select materials

Your next decision is what kind of wood to use. We recommend pressure treated lumber for all your outdoor project needs. Why? Several reasons: low cost, low maintenance, resistance to decay and insects, handsome finish qualities, and workability.

A process which forces preservatives deep into the cells of quality lumber makes G-P pressure-treated lumber a solid choice for decking, joints and beams. And, it's essential to use only pressure-treated lumber for posts to resist decay. Use stainless steel fasteners and hot-dipped galvanized nails to resist stains.

Know the code

Also, don't forget to check your local building code before beginning construction to be sure you meet local requirements.

Be sure to follow manufacturer's instructions when using power tools. And, don't forget to wear safety goggles when using hammer or power tools.

Find the source

Your local Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer can help you estimate the amount of lumber you will need for your plan and give you a copy of G-P's booklet, Decks & Outdoor Projects. Twelve pages that take you from the planning stages all the way to your first barbecue. Designs, diagrams and detailed instructions help you adapt any deck idea to your own home.

To find your nearest Georgia-Pacific Registered Dealer, call 1-800-447-2882 or write Georgia-Pacific, 133 Peachtree Street, N.E., Atlanta, GA 30303.

CALL IT GRIDWORK, PARQUET OR CHECKERBOARD ... by any name this deck is easy to build if you first start with a good plan.

Change bathroom decor

Looking for a quick, easy and inexpensive lift for your bathroom? Do you want to expand your bathroom storage space, yet hesitate to invest in a costly vanity cabinet to be installed around your sink, a job which necessitates hiring both a plumber and a carpenter?

Or, are you simply tired of staring at those unsightly pipes exposed beneath your sink, and want to conceal them in a fashion which is both eye-catching and functional?

If you've answered "yes" to any of these questions, the solution to your problem may be Skirt-It, a new product from Ex-Cell Home Fashions, a leader in the shower curtain industry.

In a matter of minutes, Skirt-It, an attractive tailored sink skirt, inexpensively transforms an ordinary bathroom sink into a decorative vanity providing an undersink storage area for bathroom supplies, while hiding exposed plumbing and pipes.

Available in both fabric and vinyl, in a wide array of designer patterns and solid colors (to custom coordinate with many of Ex-Cell's shower curtains and bathroom window curtains), Skirt-It is simplicity itself to install.

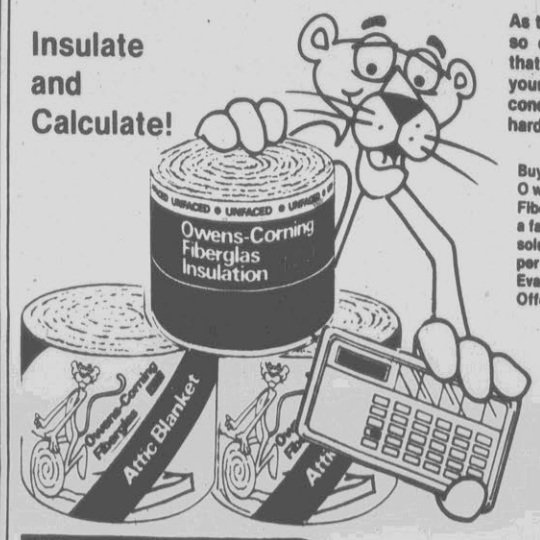

A specially formulated adhesive on the back of Skirt-It's permanently stitched top ruffle adheres to the rim of any sink. No need to worry about fit: Skirt-It can be trimmed to accommodate all sink sizes and shapes.

All in all, Skirt-It is, in the words of New York-based Interior Designer, Virginia Perlo, A.S.I.D., "the prettiest new idea in bathroom decor." An idea, it must be added, whose time has come!

Do-it-yourselfers can easily install fuel-saving new quartz thermostat

Using just a screwdriver, a home handyman can quickly replace an old thermostat with the new Econotrol™ automatic quartz thermostat that cuts heating and cooling costs for year-round savings.

Reducing fuel and power bills results from automatically lowering and raising home temperatures once or twice daily on a programmed schedule set by the homeowner.

These energy-saving programs can be quickly set on the clock dial of the quartz movement Econotrol. New schedules can be easily dialed whenever desired.

Timing of the temperature changes can be customized to fit the family lifestyle. One economy program could provide for sleeping hours, with another set for daytime absences.

All the user does is to dial in the times and the amount of change in home temperatures. Econotrol does the work with quartz movement accuracy to control heating (and cooling) equipment automatically.

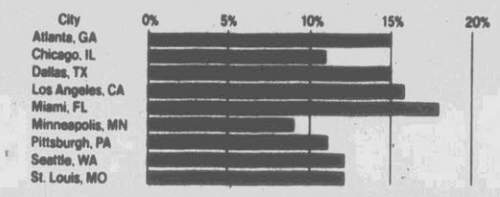

The amount of savings with Econotrol can be calculated from the chart (see below) showing the percentages for 10° setback during an eight-hour night program. Substantial additional savings are reached with a second daytime program.

Depending on home insulation factors and amount of fuel currently used, homeowners can realize a payback on their investment in Econotrol in less than a year. This automatic quartz thermostat also qualifies for the federal Energy Credit tax deduction. Some states and localities also provide energy tax credit.

Two Econotrol models will replace practically any old thermostat now in use. The heating only model replaces low voltage, millivolt and three-wire zone system thermostats, while the heating/cooling model covers low voltage types.

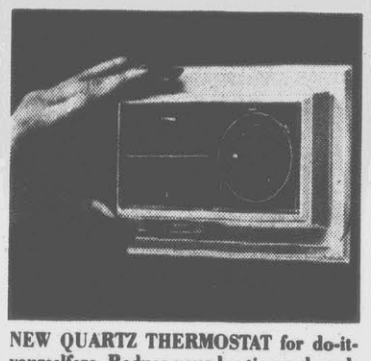

Both models carry a decorator wall plate to conceal old round, vertical or horizontal mounting locations. No additional wiring or leveling is needed.

Packaged in a clear plastic protective cover, this do-it-yourself Econotrol quartz thermostat is available nationwide from home centers, building supply dealers, hardware and large retail outlets. For free brochure, write to Robertshaw Controls Company, 100 West Victoria Street, Long Beach, CA 90805.

NEW QUARTZ THERMOSTAT for do-it-yourselfers. Reduce your heating and cooling bills with the new Econotrol™ quartz thermostat by Robertshaw. Energy saving is automatic and accurate with quartz movement clock. Lowers or raises temperatures up to 10° and returns to normal for both heating and cooling. Simple turn of the dial will program two economy cycles in a 24-hour period for sleeping and daytime absences. Any handyman can install it in a few minutes with just a screwdriver. Econotrol is sold nationwide by home centers, building supply and hardware stores.

Do-it-yourself replacement door system pays off

Now you can give your family the added protection of steel-into-steel security with the permanent beauty of a Benchmark Secura-Fit™ door system.

What's more, you can easily do it yourself.

You simply place the new Secura-Fit door/frame into the existing wood frame. Secura-Fit comes complete in one carton, with everything you need—including easily followed step-by-step illustrated instructions.

You get a steel insulated door, prehung in its heavy duty steel frame. With weatherstripping of TPE vinyl that seals like a refrigerator door, and a frost-free thermal barrier threshold. A total package to block loss of heating or cooling—at your entranceway.

With its foam insulation and tight weathersealing against air infiltration, a Benchmark Secura-Fit system provides several times more insulating value than a traditional wood door/storm door combination.

Specially designed to fit a wide range of existing openings, Secura-Fit installs from inside the house. Thus, an old door can easily be replaced without disturbing anything on the exterior, including storm doors and siding.

You're getting extra protection against the most often-used method of burglar entry. Secura-Fit offers the rigid design of a steel door with hinges welded in a steel frame. For greater strength, the frame is mounted with security screws to the wood framing.

Homeowners will enjoy a handsome new entranceway with Benchmark's choice of door models to match architectural styles—both traditional and contemporary. Secura-Fit systems are maintenance-free and can't warp, rot, crack or swell.

This replacement door for extra security is available at building supply dealers, home centers and mass retail outlets. For a free brochure in full color, contact Benchmark, General Products Company, Inc., P.O. Box 7387, Fredericksburg, VA 22404. Phone 703/898-5700.

Reformed burglar offers suggestions

With daytime residential burglaries alone up 37 percent in the last five years, it may be a good idea to put home security at the top of your home improvement list.

For a start, you can learn how to make your home a safer place by getting a free booklet from the home security experts at ADT.

Prepared with the assistance of a reformed burglar whose 25-year criminal career included breaking into over 4,000 homes, the booklet shows you how to significantly reduce the chance of your being victimized by one of the more than 500,000 suburban property crimes occurring each year.

Here are some of the tips offered:

- Make your home appear to be occupied at all times. If you're away, be sure the grass will be cut or the snow shoveled.
- Leave lights on—preferably controlled by timers automatically turning them on and off.
- Tell trusted neighbors and local police about vacations and other long absences.

Window design, placement could save home's energy

Should you decide to replace the windows in your home, remember that poor choice and the improper placement of windows could rob your home of what is becoming highly expensive energy.

Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn., a leading manufacturer of windows and gliding patio doors, stresses that quality construction, snug fit, adequate weatherstripping and double or triple-pane insulating glass are the essentials of an energy-efficient window.

Its Perma-Shield windows and gliding patio doors have a preservative-treated wood core sash and frame sheathed in vinyl for long-lasting, low-maintenance protection.

Wood is used because it is a natural insulator. Factory-installed vinyl weatherstripping, which is twice as weathertight as industry standards for allowable air infiltration, assures snug closure against the weather.

Double-pane insulating glass, standard in Perma-Shield, limits heat loss through the glass area. In unusually cold climates where additional insulation might be economically justified, Andersen recommends triple-pane insulating glass, which is available as an option in Perma-Shield awning and casement windows.

Andersen points out that window location is another important factor in energy conservation. Large glass areas should face south where they can act as passive solar collectors in winter when the sun is low in the sky.

Roof overhangs, awnings or leafy trees provide shade against the heat of the high summer sun. Windows on the east and west sides of a home should be located where they can take advantage of natural light and ventilation.

Properly located, operable windows can also save energy by reducing the need for air conditioning and artificial lighting.

For more information on the complete line of Andersen windows and gliding patio doors, write the Andersen Corporation, Bayport, MN 55003.

Wood panel doors for easy installation

Wood panel doors have always been popular as remodeling projects because they beautify both the interior and exterior of a home. They are also easy to prepare, hang and finish, which makes them popular as a do-it-yourself project.

Stock sizes available

Interior doors and preassembled entries, consisting of a front door and decorative side and overhead features, are available in stock sizes. They can be installed easily by any competent do it yourselfer, usually in a single day.

The doors come in a wide range of styles and readily accept any finish. They can be painted or stained to highlight the rich, natural look of the wood.

All four edges of the door should be finished and weatherstripping applied all the way around the perimeter, especially at the bottom. Wood panel doors are available with hardware and accessories at home centers and building supply stores. Dealers are also good sources for remodeling ideas and installation instructions.

Write for information

More information is available in "A Guide to Energy Saving Doors." To get a copy, send 25 cents to the National Woodwork Manufacturers Association, c/o Sumner Rider & Associates, 355 Lexington Avenue New York, N Y 10017.

Free booklet offers advice on selecting windows for your home

Help in selecting replacement and storm windows is offered homeowners by the Aluminum Window Information Bureau in a new booklet entitled "A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Windows."

This new, 19-page illustrated booklet is chock full of information on how to determine whether your windows need replacement or storm sash, the insulating values of the different kinds of windows available, and possible fuel savings. It also includes a quick reference chart.

You will learn the meaning of terms like thermalized windows, double and triple glazing and condensation. The booklet also advises you about finding a reputable contractor and on financing the cost of new windows or storm sash.

"A Homeowner's Guide to Choosing Windows" is available free by writing to the Aluminum Window Information Bureau, 818 Connecticut Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20006.

All-American look adds fashion excitement to world of ceramic tile

ALL-AMERICAN designs are now available in ceramic tile. Indian Head Penny is part of a new group of sculptured tile by Summitville; Burlap tile, also by Summitville, beckons texture enthusiasts; and Pineapple and Cat, both by Terra Designs, are made to order for country buffs.

By LIS KING

Ceramic tile has made the giant leap from the bath to rooms all through the house, even the most formal and entertaining ones. Glass-walled houses furnished in the minimal manner are softened with the earthy textures and colors of natural quarry tile; country kitchens are brimming with Americana tile motifs; and city brownstones boast floors of tiles glazed to deep jewel tones.

Behind the skyrocketing appreciation of ceramic tile are the new life-styles that have emerged over the past 10 years plus sweeping product changes that have replaced tile's "for-baths-only" image with terrific fashion excitement.

According to the Tile Council of America, the millions of new two-income families, strained budgets in general, and high energy costs are factors that make tile a high-priority building and design material.

Tile's carefree ways are important to working women, explains the Council, and it is great for the combination kitchen/dining/hobby room that is the center for at-home togetherness and entertaining a la the '80s. Also, consumers are now choosing high-quality materials that still look good and function well for the longest possible time, and this puts ceramic tile at the top of shopping lists.

And, naturally, tile's energy-conscious ways are of much interest to consumers everywhere. It is an excellent thermal conductor, which aids in the storage and release of both the heat and cooling breezes, and that makes it the ideal material for solar and woodburning installations as well as for cooler rooms in warm climates.

American design

But for all of its efficiency, it is still tile's new-found fashion looks that are earning it such an important place in today's home.

The most interesting of the new tile designs are uniquely American. Often they reflect the past, but in fresh, unfettered and unexpected ways. Good examples are groups of tile designs inspired by the crafts of the early colonists. These include Pennsylvania Dutch stencil and sampler motifs, buttermold designs embossed in terracotta or rendered in blue on white, and renditions of early carousel animals, weathervanes and quilt themes.

The fascination with everything Oriental that has been part of the American design heritage ever since the clipper ships plied the high seas is reflected, today, in numerous tile designs. It is seen in the serene floral paintings by California artist Barbara Vantrease Beall designing for Florida Tile, and Summitville Tiles features a series of sculptured tiles depicting ancient Chinese coins.

A new generation of textures and a hand-crafted look are also giving today's American tile wonderful designer flair. Good examples are the Good Earth collection by Mid-State and American Olean's Quarry Naturals. Both feature surface variations that emphasize the products' earthy looks.

Leather finishes such as suede, rawhide and buckskin are featured by Wenczel Tile; delicate eggshell and lace finishes are seen in collections by Cambridge and Aztec; and textures become patterns in Summitville's Burlap and Reptile patterns.

A whole different kind of texture is achieved with Rubble, which consists of random pieces of quarry tile and pavers. This product, which is available from Mid-State and Universal Ceramics, offers the creative tile setter the optimum challenge.

Color trends

The broadest range of color is always found in glazed tile for walls and countertops and, to a lesser degree, for residential floors. In this group colors abound, from neutrals to bolds, from pales to darks. The dusky blues, golds and greens of Williamsburg are there as are the brilliant red of the flag and the denim blue of American fashion fame.

But, the neutrals are making the greatest news. The pales—such as vanilla, parchment, buttermilk and almond—are featured in all lines of American glazed tile, and gray, a great new color that suits a very broad range of decors, now appears in many collections.

Fashion colors have also come to the world of unglazed quarry tile and pavers. These rugged products now appear in a host of earthy hues ranging from pale sandstone to dark brown as well as the classic terracotta.

The extraordinary diversification of styles and colors does not surprise the Tile Council. Says Dr. J. V. Fitzgerald, executive director: "We, more than any other people in the world, adopt and cross styles and periods with abandon. That is part of our heritage and charm....and it is the reason American designers are more imitated than imitating."

LEATHER LOOK is sensational in ceramic tile. Wenczel introduces it in five colors: Rawhide, Cordovan, Buckskin, Suede, and Leather Brown.

Saving energy: a clearer view

Windows should offer more than views—they should provide energy conservation as well, says Andersen Corporation of Bayport, Minn.

To be sure the windows in your home are energy efficient, select units that feature vinyl-sheathed wood core sash and frame, double-pane insulating glass and factory-applied weatherstripping.

Five cost-cutting cues that are easy, painless

For most of us, the best home improvement we can make is to find additional ways to economize. Here are some cost-cutting measures that are both painless and productive:

- Take steps now to control air conditioning bills this summer. If possible, place window air conditioners on the north or shady side. If you have no choice, plant some bushes so direct sunlight won't fall on the air conditioner.
- If you've already cut down on beef meals and added more chicken, try planning meals without either for one or two nights a week. A dinner of spaghetti and salad or stir-fried vegetables over rice is tasty, nourishing and filling.
- Eliminate costly, fattening soft drinks and serve your family refreshing water instead. You'll enjoy drinking water if you make it clean and delicious by filtering it through a re-circulating charcoal system such as the Norelco Clean Water Machine. This helps take out elements that can make water taste or look unpleasant, and other pollutants that could be harmful to your health.
- Resist all those different products promoted for spring cleaning. Read contents and you'll probably find that one or two are all you need for walls, floors, cabinets and windows, too.
- One-stop shopping saves gas, but you might save even more by phoning in advance to be sure the store has the item you want.

EASY HOME FIX-UP TIPS FOR SPRING

Spring is the perfect season to give your home the extra care it needs to keep it in tip-top shape. With minimal effort and a small repair kit, minor blemishes vanish.

Following are some useful tips for solving a few problems in your home:

Filling the holes

When filling holes in a plaster wall an inch or less in diameter, apply a small amount of Elmer's Redi-Spack with a putty knife drawing it across hole with enough pressure to fill hole and lightly cover adjacent wall area.

Now, draw putty knife at a right angle across area with enough pressure to remove excess spackle. Hole should be covered and smooth with no protrusions.

After final coat has dried, lightly sand area smooth with a fine sandpaper. Remove dust before painting area.

Peeling wallpaper

Repair by squeezing Elmer's Glue-All on both wall and wallpaper. Roll with rolling pin and wipe excess glue off with a damp cloth or sponge.

Foundation cracks

For foundation cracks above ground, clean and wire brush crack to ensure proper bond. Force Elmer's Concrete Crack Sealer deeply and fully into the crack. Apply in two layers, allowing first to dry before applying the second.

A-Team Offers Action

By Peter Meade

Anyone who has ever played soldier would want to be a member of "The A-Team," NBC's new Tuesday night adventure series.

The hour is filled with bullets, bombs, disguises and daring, but as with playing soldier, no one ever gets hurt. The possible exception is Grant Tinker, the NBC boss-man, because he has preached airing of only quality shows on the No. 3 network. But don't worry, it's just a flesh wound or maybe a bruised ego.

"The A-Team," helped by the hype of a promo barrage, began with a bang. The quartet of Vietnam vets are led by George Peppard, as John "Hannibal" Smith. When duty doesn't call, Smith plays monsters in various B-movies.

If you believe that, you'll have no problem with the rest of this band of bad good guys. The most memorable being the monsyllabic Mr. T of "Rocky III" fame.

You need a nickname to be popular on TV — just ask Hawkeye or Trapper John — and T is known as B.A. (That doesn't stand for a college degree.) They say it stands for Bad Attitude. Only in America — or at least only on the diagonally measured screen — could such a scowling hulk, who wears more gold than the Gabor sisters, have a starring role.

Other "A-Team" members are Face, a conniving Casanova played smugly by Dirk Benedict, and Howling Mad Murdock (Dwight Schultz), a cute schizophrenic and the best pilot this side of Luke Skywalker.

The hypermacho foursome represents quite a collection, and they have added an honorary member, Amy Amanda Allen. Nickname: Triple A. Melinda Culea plays the role; one look and you'll know why.

The quartet-plus-one is guilty of bringing violence back to center stage on television, but no one seems to be complaining, except maybe the intelligensia. They'd best stay tuned to PBS during this hour, because "The A-Team" delivers more airborne autos per episode than the "Dukes of Hazzard" or "CHiPs."

'The Yesterday Show' spoofs TV magazines

By Andrew J. Edelstein

Jim Staahl

What would "TV magazine" shows such as "Entertainment Tonight," "P.M. Magazine" or "20/20" have been like if they aired in 1956? That's the premise of "The Yesterday Show," an HBO comedy special airing Monday, April 25, Wednesday, April 27 and Friday, April 29.

Since these contemporary shows veer awfully close to parody themselves, it would seem a successful spoof of the genre would have to be especially offbeat. Which is what "The Yesterday Show" promises — and almost delivers. It's a potentially amusing concept, clever in spots, but it doesn't sufficiently sustain itself.

The show was created by the Second City comedy troupe and features three airheaded anchorpeople — Nick Spangler III (Eric Boardman), Jayne Lawlor (Ann Ryerson) and Tony Burrell (Jim Staahl). They, like their contemporary counterparts, specialize in bringing bulletins with a breathless banality.

The show mixes '50s newsreel footage with original sketches (such as a mock-interview in Moscow with the "Ivan on the street" about de-Stalinization or an interview with a "real, live communist"). The sketches are contrived and not particularly funny. The newsreel material is where the show's strength lies.

One successful segment shows Nick Spangler III, who resembles a younger George Will, interviewing President Eisenhower by satellite in the manner of Ted Koppel on "Nightline." What is seen is footage of Ike from a press conference giving fractured responses to Spangler's straitlaced questions.

In another segment, a "little-known" rock 'n' roll pioneer named Neil Frobischer, is interviewed. He was a member of a group known as Neil Frobischer and Bill Haley and the Comics — who was booted out before the group changed its name to the Comets and had rock's first big hit. To prove his point, footage of Frobischer dressed in a clown costume is cleverly dubbed onto footage taken from the film "Rock Around the Clock."

Adding a realistic touch are informational blips that are flashed on the screen — in the manner of local newscasts — listing such minutiae as the top-selling books and most popular Broadway shows of March 16, 1956.

The "Yesterday Show" also airs its own parody commercials for cigarettes and hair oil. Showing some original commercials from the 1950s would have been funnier.

Strike Out Pledge

Pitcher Eric Show of the San Diego Padres will donate and gather pledge money for every strike out he attains this year to benefit the March of Dimes campaign. "I'm not going to worry about strikeouts while I'm pitching, but you can bet I'll think about the kids when I look at the box score," said Show.

Gatlin's Song Used

Larry Gatlin's hit song, "I've Done Enough Dyin' Today," is being used as a motif for the character of Luke (Tony Geary) on "General Hospital." The discovery of this 1978 Top 10 country hit evolved out of the friendship between Larry and Tony, who introduced the piece to the program's director, Jill Phelps.

Three nice people who are equally nice to pets

By Ruth Thompson

When it comes to the true or false game, I'd check "false" when I hear that old saying that pets resemble their owners.

It's time for a new saying, one that rates an instant "true." People who are nice to their pets are nice people. For example: Kathryn Walker (seen most recently in NBC's "Special Bulletin"), Ted Knight of ABC's "Too Close for Comfort" and Lorne Greene, who is currently producing, as well as narrating, the syndicated series, "Lorne Greene's New Wilderness."

Oddly, their stories of protecting household pets contain cautions learned the hard way.

Roaming around Kathryn's Massachusetts' vacation setting, her pet cat got caught in a trap necessitating an amputation. Kathryn canceled everything for three days to be with her during the trauma, and was rewarded when the cat made a spirited recovery and starting moving again — although always indoors thereafter — on three legs.

Ted Knight says, "We lost three Siamese cats before we had to settle for the fact that they probably just didn't wander away, but were the victims of coyotes or racoons. We now have just one 7-year-old Burmese, Tina, and she doesn't go out."

Lorne Greene adheres to the dictum that when observing wildlife with cameras, one is obligated not to interefere. He is, on several counts, an equally strong apostle for protecting the domestic animals he's taken responsibility for. It makes him believable in his long-running Alpo food commercials.

"We have a big house and over the years we've had a lot of animals," says Greene. "One day our three dogs were out and only two came back. I hate to think of what happened to that small Manchester terrier, but there's a coyote living under the guest house."

The present dogs are watched closely, he adds. One is a rare Australian Shepherd, The other is his daughter's. It was what she wanted one Christmas, to save a dog from the pound. "It's a wonderful dog," says Greene.

Michele Will Tell

By Michele Marks

DEAR MICHELE: I'm a very big fan of Gary Coleman. Could you give me some information on him and also, where can I write to him? MITCHELL MCALLISTER, FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.

TO MITCHELL IN FAYETTEVILLE: Fifteen-year-old Gary Coleman has been an actor for seven years. Young Coleman, who calls himself "a mellow comedy actor," started his career at the age of five, modeling in fashion shows for an Illinois department store. Then he began to do commercials. He won a Clio Award for the best commercial of the year for a Chicago bank. When he's not working, Gary spends more time with his Apple home computer than with video games, but he has a Missile Command at home. "I like to go to Captain Video in Westwood (California) and play Space Duel. I'm not that good. I've only scored about 10,000, but I have fun," says Gary. He is an eighth grader and attends school on the set of the series. Fans may write to him in c/o "Diff'rent Strokes," NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda Avenue, Burbank, Ca., 91523.

DEAR MICHELE: Can I have some information on Jamie Lee Curtis? ERICK KLINE, GOLDSBORO, N.C.

TO ERICK IN GOLDSBORO: Your favorite "Scream Queen," Jamie Lee Curtis, catapulted to stardom via John Carpenter and his "Halloween" flicks. She's developed a cult following of her own and is no longer simply another offspring of famous parents — actor Tony Curtis and actress Janet Leigh. Born November 22, 1958, in Los Angeles, Jamie Lee has an enormous zest for life. Possessed of boundless but well-directed energy, she says, "I want to try everything once — and again if I like it." Jamie attended Beverly Hills High School for a year, Westlake School for Girls for two years and graduated from the prestigious Choate Rosemary Hall in Connecticut. She attended the University of the Pacific in Stockton, California, for six months before a Universal executive spotted her on an audition and signed her up to a seven-year contract. Jamie loves outdoor activities such as tennis, baseball, basketball, surfing, swimming, scuba diving, fly fishing, sailing, gymnastics, mountain climbing, running on the beach, and working out with weights. She also plays the guitar and writes songs, paints in oils, is an avid shutterbug, and reads voraciously, especially dramatic literature.

CINDY SAYS

Danny Kaye's deluge; Christina: at the farm

By Cindy Adams

NEW YORK — Marcello Mastroianni's newie, Anna-Marie Toto, a TV actress, doesn't believe Latins are lousy lovers, and she wants to have his baby. Says Marcello: "We have a beautiful love. I want to start a new life with her." Everyone's happy for them. Everyone loves a lover, except his long-suffering wife of 30 years, Flora Carabella... Christina Onassis is back at a Swiss fat farm.

Princess Margaret's confidantes on both sides of the pond say HRH's Kensington Palace rooms were ripped off. No one's stating the amount that was heisted, but they say it was a royal flush... Danny Kaye's quadruple bypass sparked 10,000 Get Well cards from Jewish and Arab children in Israel. Authorities dropped them on his friend, Jerusalem's Mayor Teddy Kollek, and he shipped them to Danny... John Davidson sprung for a trip East with his son John Jr., 13, to see "Merlin," "Dreamgirls" and "On Your Toes."... With John McEnroe and Bobby Riggs, "love" is just a tennis term. Riggs zaps McEnroe's style. McEnroe calls Riggs a talkative old man. Do not invite them to the same racquet club... Elizabeth and Richard — don't ask Elizabeth and Richard who? — hugged, kissed, kootchy-koo'd, whispered to one another, gurgled, giggled and semi-smooched. It was a photo session for "Private Lives." Burton posed in a blue turtleneck; E.T., that heavenly body, wore a red dress and black angora sweater. The two-and-a-half hours of cuddling made the lady hungry. But not for Richard, for a sandwich fix. Billions of dollars screeched to a halt while someone from the deli delivered a Monte Cristo. Price? $8.95. See, it's the simple things that please Elizabeth.

Barr Takes Off

Doug Barr, who stars as Lee Majors' side-kick in "The Fall Guy," feels Lee has had a 'major' influence on his life and on his acting. The series has finished shooting for the season and Doug is off to Moscow, Stockholm and London.

Actress By Choice

Ellen Bry, who co-stars as Nurse Shirley Daniels on "St. Elsewhere," does not relish the traditional stereotypes that linger about actresses.

"People have an image of actresses as spacey airheads," said Bry. "But I have a keen sense of business, am level-headed and would make a good lawyer because I'm practical. If I had wanted to make money at something, I would have gone into a better paying profession."

'Zorro and Son' keeps legend alive

By Peter Meade

An old superhero never dies, he just can't swing from chandeliers, jump off balconies or duel the way he used to.

This is the premise of CBS' "Zorro and Son," and the last of its five-show run will air Wednesday, April 27.

Although the legendary Zorro has lost a dash of his dashing, he makes up for it by being quite an amusing muchacho.

The master swordsman, who made the 26th letter famous long before Datsun, now has a son, Zorro Jr., to sustain the swashbuckling heroics. But does the kid have to dazzle the damsels every time out?

Henry Darrow stars as the senior Zorro, the 19th actor to play the part. Paul Regina is the 20th as Little Z. Other manic Mexicans include Bill "Jose Jimenez" Dana, Gregory Sierra and John Moschitta.

Zorro, at age 50, is now more paunchy than punchy, but if "Zorro" hits the mark, maybe Darrow will again approach the stardom he achieved as Manolito Montoya on "High Chaparral" in 1967. Darrow didn't perpetuate the predictions, but he has no regrets and has never lacked for work, only luck.

"I was on 'Harry-O' (in 1974)," Darrow explains, "and when my character was killed, Anthony Zerbe replaced me and won a Emmy the next year."

Darrow is convincing as the elder Zorro. He was born in New York City, but raised in Puerto Rico, can still turn on a convincing accent, and is an accomplished swordsman.

John Moschitta

While Darrow attempts to recapture his audience, the series may be the big break for two of the other cast members.

Regina's first series was "Joe and Valerie" in 1978, but Darrow believes this may be the opportunity that gets Regina to stardom. As for Moschitta, who plays Corp. Cassette, this is a chance to expand beyond only being known as the world's fastest talker from the Federal Express commercials. So far, acting success hasn't arrived with the speed of his quicksilver tongue. Only a few years ago he was living on the $10,500 won as a contestant on "The $25,000 Pyramid."

The game show contacted him recently, says Moschitta, a self-professed game show addict. They want him to appear on the show again. This time as a celebrity.

Ticket Sales Up

Ticket sales at the Alabama International Motor Speedway at Talladega, the site of the Winston 500, are running about a month ahead of last year's record pace. "The only thing going faster than the cars at Talladega are the tickets for the Winston 500," said Don Naman, General Manager of the speedway.

Blue Jays vs. Yankees to air on CTV Sports

By Mark Nolan

At 2 p.m. (EST) on Sunday, April 24, CTV Sports will air coverage of the Toronto Blue Jays vs. the New York Yankees from Yankee Stadium.

The 1983 Yankees are again a team in a state of transition. Last season, the game plan in New York called for capitalizing on speed on the base paths. This, it was thought, would compensate for the loss of power caused when Reggie Jackson headed West to play for the California Angels. The plan proved to be a dismal failure, however, as the Yankees had all they could do to avoid finishing in the cellar last season.

Now, in 1983, the Yankees again appear to be reverting to the strategy of offensive dynamics. Free agent acquisitions Steve Kemp and Don Baylor each have the potential of belting 25 home runs and driving in 100 runs. Another key factor for the Yankees is that opposing pitchers will no longer be able to pitch around Dave Winfield, another awesome slugger, who led the team with 37 homers and 106 RBIs.

On paper, the Yankees' offensive attack looks truly powerful. But taking a close look at their pitching staff, one must wonder just how solid a starting rotation the Yankees actually have. Ron Guidry (14-8 in '82) is the established ace, and he has recently been experimenting with a slow curve to add to his repertoire of pitches. But apart from Guidry, who will the Yankees look to to be a consistent winner on the mound? Answers will hopefully be found in Dave Righetti (11-10), Doyle Alexander (1-7) and Jay Howell (2-3).

Win or lose, 1983 should be a noteworthy year for the Yankees. After all, they are again playing under the management of Billy Martin, and have added former Boston Red Sox manager Don Zimmer as third base coach.

Dave Winfield

Also, on Saturday, April 23, at 5:00 p.m. (EST), horse racing fans will have the opportunity to view the final stepping stone to the Kentucky Derby, the Wood Memorial. The $150,000 race for 3-year-old thoroughbreds will be aired live from New York's Aqueduct Race Track as a feature of CTV's "Wide World of Sports."

Clamor For Liz & Carol

By Nancy M. Reichardt

Emmy Award-winning actress, comedian and singer, Carol Burnett, ended her seven episode run on "All My Children" last week, leaving the soap audience clamoring for more.

At a New York press conference, Miss Burnett, who had appeared twice before on "AMC" in surprise walk-on parts, admitted; "I persuaded 'AMC' to take me on. I've been a fan for eight or nine years. When Agnes Nixon took me to visit the set for the first time I was like a kid in a candy store."

Aside from her portrayal of carnival performer Verla Grubbs during the guest stint, "AMC" viewers were given the added bonus of a cameo appearance by Miss Burnett's pal, Elizabeth Taylor, who dropped by the set to surprise Carol and was talked into a spur-of-the-moment walk-on role.

March and April are big anniversary months for soap operas. This year "As the World Turns" and "Edge of Night," which both premiered on April 2, 1956, began year No. 28 on the airwaves. Also setting a record for "EON" is writer Henry Slesar who celebrated his 15th consecutive year as head writer of the soap. "The Young and the Restless" premiered 10 years ago, on March 26, 1973, and its two remaining original cast members are still enthusiastic about their show.

"It's a very enjoyable way to be able to apply one's craft as an actor," says Robert Colbert (Stuart Brooks). "With the comforts of a modern studio and with bankers' hours, it's a lovely way to make a living. Stuart is such a nice guy, an honest forthright image, that playing him really perks up my day."

TV Chatter

By Polly Vonetes

"Tonight Show" host, Johnny Carson, hasn't been faring too well this season — not only has he been having problems in his private life (wife Joanna is suing for divorce), but also his audiences have not been too happy with this year's 60-minute format. Even though Carson is one of the world's most highly paid men for one of the world's shortest work weeks — his ratings, reportedly, have suffered because of too many repeats and guest hosts — and chatting too long with Ed McMahon, while special guests cool their heels backstage in the green room. I personally tuned out Johnny when I could no longer stand McMahon's "giggling" (even off camera) at EVERY remark Johnny made. NBC is expecting competition next season from the "Thicke of the Night" (a 90-minute late evening, talk-variety show hosted by Canadian star Alan Thicke and produced by Fred Silverman).

Herve Villechaize — "Fantasy Island's" Tattoo — had very valid reasons for leaving the 'Island' after six years. He says that he is approaching 40 and no longer wants to be treated like a Barbie doll because of his size. "I want no more patting me on the head," he says. Villechaize plans to accept other career offers.

Beulah Garrick, the popular Mrs. Renfield on the "Guiding Light," recently returned from a dream three-week holiday in exotic Hawaii. Lucky Beulah got her vacation off to a good start when she was recognized by a manager of the airline she was booked on, who just happened to be a devoted fan. The manager changed the daytime star's ticket from coach to first class because "Mrs. Renfield deserves to travel in style."

"Fame" cast members are currently on their second overseas tour. Their huge success in England, during the Christmas holidays, has generated a cult-like popularity in Britain, where they are scheduled to fulfill several dates before winding up their tour in Tel Aviv. (You can't say they aren't living up to their name.)

DUDLEY MOORE

star of the movie Lovesick

Were you funny as a kid? —O.M., Tyler, Tex.

When I was 9, I realized humor was a good defense. At school there was an enormously large boy whose main pleasure was throwing piles of mud in the faces of boys who were half his size — like me. Of course, I was worried that one day my turn would come. When it did, the bully was just about to raise his arm when, in the nick of time, I made a sick, frantic joke. My tormentor stopped in his tracks. After that, I began working on humor all the time.

JACKLYN ZEMAN

star of TV's General Hospital

What strange jobs did you have before getting your acting break? —M.L., Billings, Mont.

The most interesting was being a detective's assistant. It was nothing like what you see on TV — no karate or constant "bang-bang." I did a lot of research and I followed people, writing down where they went. Only once did I see shots hurt someone. The person I was tailing down a dark alley in New York got hit in the arm, and another got shot and fell to the ground (fortunately, not killed). Until then I had wanted to start my own agency, but after that I changed my mind.

FROM THE "ASK" EDITORS

LOS ANGELES — For those of you who can afford the $1,500 one-way fare, starting in June FirstAir will fly you from here or San Francisco to Honolulu and New York like you've never been flown before. Each of FirstAir's three converted 727's, done with Art Deco interiors, will carry no more than 35 passengers per flight. Each of those 35 will have a private compartment with a queen-size bed and access to on-board secretarial services, air-to-ground telephones, stock reports, a photocopying machine, hairdresser, barber and manicurist. Wolfgang Puck, former chef at Ma Maison, will be consulting chef for FirstAir, and accessories will include cashmere blankets, Baccarat crystal and Spode china. Oh, yes, the $1,500 fee includes limo pickup and delivery, cordless headphone and listing in a computerized "frequent flyer" diary of steady clients' likes and dislikes.... Tennessee Williams's last screenplay, Secret Places of the Heart, has been bought by director Keith David Hack and will be set in contemporary St. Louis, where Williams was raised.... The first hair-pulling fight between Joan Collins and Linda Evans on Dynasty was such a ratings success that a rematch was staged. Instead of using stunt doubles, the actresses played the scene themselves. This time, Collins only suffered a back strain; last time it was a cracked rib.... L.A.'s top hosts and hostesses are already planning their parties for the Olympics in July of 1984, dividing up dates so as not to overlap with each other and exchanging guest lists of local and out-of-town celebrities. —Robert Windeler

NEW YORK — Both Michael Douglas and wife Diandra, and George C. Scott and Trish Van Devere are entering the "troubled marriage" phase. Meanwhile, Yul and Jacqueline Brynner have reached the divorce phase.... After chatting with a stunning, dark-haired woman at a party, Sir Laurence Olivier asked a bystander, "Who was that?" When told, "An actress," Olivier asked, "An aspiring one, or has she been discovered?" She's been discovered all right: It was Dallas's Victoria Principal.... Jon Voight, now in the tearjerker Table for Five, modestly explains why he doesn't make many films: "I'm always looking for the perfect part. It's my own fault. I often feel that I'm just not talented enough."... All those stories about tenor Luciano Pavarotti having a fling with his protegée-secretary, Madelyn Renee, amuse, not aggravate, his wife, Adua Veroni. "I have nothing to be jealous of," she remarks.... A show-biz promoter recently called Caesar's Palace in Lake Tahoe about staging a Tootsie look-alike contest — with a switch. The judges would choose which female contestant most resembled Dustin Hoffman. We guess the thought of all those women with 5 o'clock shadows and hairy chests sufficiently spooked the Caesar's exec. He hung up on the would-be impresario.

WASHINGTON — Queen Elizabeth II is joining the computer age, thanks to a gift from President and Mrs. Reagan. Word is that the Queen intends to use her new Hewlett Packard 250 Model 25 business computer to help manage her thoroughbred stables. Tailoring the computer to the Queen's needs could easily bring the bill to $24,000 — making it probably the most expensive diplomatic gift since Richard Nixon gave Leonid Brezhnev a new Lincoln Continental. American taxpayers, however, won't be footing the bill. Hewlett Packard "does not expect to be reimbursed by the White House," says a company spokesman.... We don't know how he looks in a dress, but Dustin Hoffman's big brother, Ron, was a big help in making Tootsie. Dustin asked Ron, an economic expert here in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, for his comments on the early drafts of the script. "Most of our discussions were about characters and their behavior," says Ron.... Watergate co-conspirator Charles Colson's born-again experience wasn't the half of it, says best-selling author Ruth Montgomery. In her new book, Threshold to Tomorrow, she claims Colson's body was actually taken over by another spirit, making him a Walk-in. Walk-ins, Montgomery explains, are here to help the world prepare for a shift upon its axis that will take place at the close of this century, possibly after a devastating war. She says Moses, Jesus and Gandhi were some other Walk-ins. Colson, who now works with a religious organization for prison inmates, said through a spokesman: "As a Christian, I just do not believe in what she has portrayed in her book."

OH BRAVE NEW WORLD

A CAUTIONARY TALE OF GENETIC TAMPERING

BY ISAAC ASIMOV

Computer hardware: Carl Waltzer; Menu: CBS Venture One.

We live in an age when scientists have begun to fiddle with genes. These are dangerous things to play with, and we might end up with anything from individual tragedies to a serious weakening of the human species. But if we know what we're doing and are careful every step of the way, we may find we have introduced a new and powerful dimension to medicine and health.

Some of the research being done involves tampering with a gene that affects size. Each of us grows to a certain height and then stops. Some of us may wish we had managed a couple of additional inches, but it is out of our hands.

One factor that dictates our height is growth hormone, a protein produced by the pituitary gland. If growth hormone were injected into a child at a young age, the child might grow a little taller than otherwise — however, growth hormone is hard to get and tricky to use.

"If we are at the start of an era of genetic engineering, it will probably take a long time to convert that start into medical treatment."

But then, too, the production of growth hormone is controlled by a particular gene in the chromosomes of our cells, and in that sense the amount produced by a particular individual is determined from the moment of conception. Might not the gene be altered somehow? Might not a different gene be substituted?

You can't very well experiment with human beings in this respect, but you can with animals. And that's exactly what scientists have been doing — with rats and mice.

The various kinds of rats and mice belong to related families, but on the whole, rats are larger than mice. Presumably, growth hormone is more effective in rats, or exists in greater quantity, and a difference in genes may be responsible. What, then, if the appropriate rat gene were injected into the developing mouse egg cell?

Scientists tried this recently and, in some cases, the egg cell that received the injection resulted in a baby that grew extraordinarily quickly for a mouse. At 10 weeks an ordinary mouse weighs about three-fourths of an ounce; the mouse with the rat gene, however, weighed one and a half ounces, or twice as much. Except for that, the giant mouse was completely mouselike.

There are, for instance, two genes in human beings controlling the formation of hemoglobin, the protein in red blood corpuscles that absorbs oxygen at the lungs and carries it to the cells. One gene, active at the time a human being is developing in the womb, produces fetal hemoglobin. Once a baby is born, that gene is switched off and the second gene, which produces adult hemoglobin, gets to work.

Adult hemoglobin ordinarily does a better job than fetal hemoglobin, but sometimes that second gene is defective. In such cases a somewhat abnormal hemoglobin is formed and, as a result, a person may suffer from sickle-cell anemia (an inherited blood condition, occurring mainly among blacks, in which a majority of red blood cells become sickle shaped) or from related diseases. There is no way of curing such a disease except by fiddling with the genes.

One way of doing so is to deal with that first gene, the one that produces fetal hemoglobin. The gene is still there and exists throughout life; it has simply been put out of action after birth by means of a small chemical change. Suppose it could be put back into action by reversing that change. Once again fetal hemoglobin would be formed, and though it might not be as good as adult hemoglobin, it would be better than imperfect adult hemoglobin.

A particular chemical known to prevent the kind of chemical change that switches off the gene was tested on baboons. Once the baboons were seen to have suffered no ill effects from the dosages used, it was tried on two patients with sickle-cell anemia and one with a similar disease called beta-thalassemia. Some improvement was indeed noted, so it could be that the first gene was indeed switched on again.

What do experiments such as these mean for human beings in general?

To begin with, they don't mean anything immediate. If we are at the start of an era of genetic engineering, an era in which humanity can mold itself closer to its heart's desire, it can, and probably will, take a long time to convert that start into practical, everyday medical treatment. Much remains to be done.

After all, plenty of years passed from the moment the Wright brothers lifted off their first canvas and pianowire airplane at Kitty Hawk in 1903 till airplanes began carrying hundreds of passengers across the Atlantic at supersonic speeds. And it was decades from the time Robert H. Goddard flew his first liquid-fuel rocket a mile into the air in 1926 until we started taking close-up pictures of Saturn. In both cases, a half-century of intense and ingenious invention and development was required and, inevitably, so were some casualties.

And genes, remember, are far more complex than planes and rockets and far more intimately involved with each of us, so the risks accompanying error are greater and more frightening.

As it is, the successful experiments recently conducted are only limited successes at best. Injecting foreign genes into a developing egg cell is not an easy procedure. Less than 10 percent of the mouse egg cells injected with rat genes developed at all, and of those that did, only a minority showed the remarkable growth effect.

And the chemical used to switch on the gene for fetal hemoglobin seemed to work, but it is a toxic chemical. It can be used once or twice without damaging the patient more than the disease would, but regular use would surely kill him.

Suppose, though, that the necessary advances are made over the next half century or so. Suppose that better techniques are found for gene transfer and gene manipulation. Suppose we learn how to turn genes on and off safely or how to treat a gene chemically (or otherwise) in such a way as to modify its workings at will and as we choose.

"There could be fashions and fads in genes, with enormous numbers of people insisting upon fashionable genes for their children."

What then?

We must still be careful. The product of about 3.5 billion years of evolution is not to be fiddled with lightly.

Let us consider, for instance, the possibility of added growth hormone. It seems a simple thing. If tall children are wanted, then one would add genes from tall individuals to the developing egg cells, or treat the egg cell in such a way as to make the growth-hormone gene work longer or better.

But more growth hormone is not necessarily good. There are, occasionally, individuals in whom growth hormone is present in abnormally high quantities. They grow to heights of eight feet and more and suffer from the disorder gigantism. This disorder is even more serious than the dwarfism that results from an undersupply.

The trick, then, would be to induce a few added inches without bringing about gigantism, and that might be a game few would care to play. And remember that this might well be true of any form of gene manipulation. It might always be a matter of trying to place a golf ball on a very small green, where overshooting the mark would be as bad as undershooting.

Then, too, genes don't work in isolation. We don't know how a change in one gene might affect another.

For instance, the production of large mice gives rise at once to the thought that such techniques might be used in cattle, sheep, chickens, horses and so on. In that way, we would certainly expect larger animals, but is it mere size we want? Would a larger cow necessarily give more milk, and if it did, would the milk necessarily be as rich as it is ordinarily? Might there not be a chance that with growth hormone a sheep would produce more but poorer wool, chickens larger but less tasty eggs, and so on?

Of course, having changed one gene, we might go ahead to change another to counteract any insufficiencies or disappointments of the first change. That, in turn, might make necessary still another change, and then another. Might it not be that with each additional change there is added risk?

We are now able to analyze genes in some detail, and we can compare the genes of chimpanzees with those of human beings. It has turned out, to the surprise (and even shock) of those doing the investigating, that the differences are unexpectedly small. It is astonishing that difference so apparently minor can result in change as large and crucial as those between a chimpanzee and a human being.

Well, then, as we change more and more genes in the hope of fine tuning a set of improvements, might we be running the risk that after a certain point a horrible change for the worse could take place?

Let us go one step further. Suppose we find out how to adjust genes in such a way as to achieve all the improvements we want, without introducing any appreciable disadvantages, so that individual human beings are better off in every way. Might there not be, even so, problems on a world scale?

Suppose we produced a world of 6-foot-plus individuals, all strong, healthy and bright: They would have to eat more, too. Unless we reduced the population, there would be an unbearable strain on our food supply.

This has happened before. Advances in medical science in the past century have succeeded in making humanity generally healthier and doubling the life expectancy. This has meant an unusual increase in world population, which is now triple what it was a century ago. The increase is still continuing and is bringing enormous problems in its wake.

There is an even more subtle problem involved with gene manipulation. Let us suppose that through great skill and caution we improve lives, bringing about advances in both mind and body while making sure that we take into account the worldwide effects of these advances, too. There will nevertheless surely be a tendency for some genes to be unpopular and others popular for less than vital reasons. There will almost be fashions and fads in genes, with enormous numbers of people insisting on fashionable genes for their children.

On the whole, this might result in certain types of genes being wiped out because they are viewed as undesirable or as merely unfashionable. Humanity overall might possess a small variety of genes altogether. We might all become a little more similar in many ways.

This, too, is dangerous, for the existence of a wide variety of genes is a definite advantage in the evolutionary game. Some genes may seem less desirable than others, but that is not necessarily an absolute. Given different conditions — a different environmental, social or cultural milieu — a gene that seems disadvantageous may prove to have surprising advantages.

Such is the case with nearsightedness. It may seem disadvantageous, and in youth it is. As people get older, however, the lens hardens and there is a tendency toward farsightedness. If an individual is nearsighted to begin with, his condition can actually balance out the farsightedness, and he is suddenly better off than someone with originally normal eyes.

Consider an example involving other kinds of life. Human beings have developed particular strains of wheat that grow faster than others and produce superior flour. The result is that an increasing percentage of total wheat production is confined to those strains, while other, seemingly inferior strains are allowed to die out. The desirable strains, however, require a great deal of water and fertilizer — which may not always be easily available. Again, if a disease should develop that affects those particular desirable strains, vast quantities of grain might be wiped out and there would be insufficient quantities of the other, supposedly inferior, strains to turn to. That could bring about a world catastrophe.

If we decrease gene variety in human beings then, we risk terrible trouble when an unlooked-for difficulty arises with which the wiped-out genes could have coped better. In brief, a species without adequate gene variety has a lessened ability to evolve further and therefore an increased liability to face extinction as conditions change.

Does all this mean that we should on no account fiddle with genes?

No, not at all. Genetic engineering offers us the hope of curing or preventing diseases such as cancer, arthritis and atherosclerosis, which have heretofore defeated us. It offers us the hope of curing or preventing mental disorders and hormonal deficiencies. It offers us the hope of encouraging a beneficial evolution of the human species, doing deliberately and with minimal suffering what it would take nature millions of years to do at enormous cost. It offers us the hope of doing the same for other species and of weaving a stronger and better ecological balance of life in the world, generally.

It is, however, vital to remember the difficulties that all this necessarily entails. At every step, we must take those difficulties into account, moving slowly and cautiously and always being prepared to retreat at any sign that the step is a false one. The stakes are too great for anything else. FW

THE MULTIPLE PROBLEMS OF SINGLE MOTHERS

Ruth Rachlin

By Anne Flaherty

Much has been said about the recent dramatic rise in divorced fathers with child custody (up 95 percent since the 1970 census, bringing the total to 666,000 households). But it is still divorced mothers who comprise the majority of single parents in the U.S., heading some 35 million of our 83.5 million households, according to the 1980 census, and today their problems are compounded by new economic woes and social pressures.

Trying economic times and unrealistic divorce settlements (many of them offer less alimony and child support to the mother than agreements did in the past) mean that money worries are especially burdensome for today's divorced mother. "Nine out of 10 mothers get the kids, yet they experience a 50 percent drop in income after the divorce, while facing increased financial responsibilities," says Christopher Jenks, professor of sociology at Northwestern University. "Divorced women have become the new underclass. Their earning power is still only 57 percent of their male counterparts. They very often suffer acute economic hardship for at least five years after divorce."

Attempting to meet the demands of single parenthood, while at the same time hoping to make the most of today's expanding opportunities for women, can create additional hardship for the divorced mother. She feels under particular pressure to live up to the superwoman ideal.

Jack S. Weltner, M.D., an associate faculty member at the Family Institute of Cambridge, Mass., reports that "the single mother is beset by a raft of problems. She is often forced into a work situation that absorbs so much of her time and energy that there is little left over for homemaking and parenting. A low income makes survival tough.

The most frequent complaint of divorced mothers is lack of time.

Against this background she must prepare meals, shop, clean and provide the necessary discipline and support for her children."

Dr. Weltner also observes that divorced mothers can experience other stressful situations, including searching for new housing, fighting with an ex-spouse and in-laws over property settlement and child care, and dealing with legal matters and social agencies.

Says Weltner, "the number and magnitude of demands on a single mother often dictate that they will be met poorly, if at all. Most single mothers are aware that they can't do it all."

Counseling professionals note that the most frequent complaint of divorced mothers is lack of time: time for children; time to maintain the house or apartment; time to pursue careers and education; time to socialize with women friends and resume a dating life style; and time to be alone. The second most common complaint is a feeling of isolation, especially when problems arise with the children. Single moms often find it tough to discipline their children.

To solve this disciplinary problem and lessen the burden of responsibility, Dr. Weltner suggests that the divorced mother make sure each child has certain duties around the home.

He also suggests that she get support from her extended family as well as church and social groups that might offer help. Friends can be valuable allies when it comes to trading or sharing child care and domestic chores.

Social workers observe that one of the best ways a divorced mother can de-stress her life style is by seeking active help and support from her ex-spouse, not only in regular financial aid, but also in making sure he spends time with the children. This will lift some of the burden off of her and grant her more free time. FW

The Flowers of the Year

PORCELAIN MINIATURES COLLECTION

Twelve individually handcrafted
porcelain sculptures—
marvelous works of art in miniature—
yours for just $22.50 each.

Please order by May 31, 1983.
Limit: One collection per order.

The magic of finely detailed miniatures has always fascinated collectors—perhaps more today than ever before. Now, at a time, when miniatures are reaching new heights of popularity, Franklin Porcelain is proud to present The Flowers of the Year Porcelain Miniatures Collection.

This intriguing collection makes it possible for you to have a year-round garden in your home abloom with favorite flowers from every month of the year . . . 12 lovely varieties in all, each captured forever at the height of its beauty. And you can display this miniature garden on a small table, a mantelpiece or in a corner cupboard.

Each month of the year is represented in the collection by a captivating bouquet, and each bouquet is an incredible example of old-world craftsmanship. For every petal and leaf of these whimsical bouquets will be painstakingly sculptured by hand, then individually assembled in a porcelain container. Next, the bouquet will be personally painted by a skilled artist.

The result is a collection of original sculptures in miniature that is amazing for its remarkable attention to detail, captivating for its charming approach to an ever-popular subject matter. And because each bouquet is individually handcrafted by skilled porcelain masters, each is a separate and unique work of art.

Dainty bouquets to charm the collector

If you'd like to start a collection of fine miniatures, these sculptured porcelain bouquets are a perfect place to begin. Their intricate detail is fascinating, the floral theme has universal appeal, the designs are captivating and the quality of the sculpture is impeccable. The established collector will also find it hard to resist the intrinsic appeal of these dainty miniatures. In fact, arranged on an end table or grouped on the deluxe étagère that is included as part of the collection, The Flowers of the Year Porcelain Miniatures Collection will enchant all who see it.

Because each bouquet in the collection is so different from the others, your friends may think you acquired them one at a time over a period of many years. But you can obtain this collection of fine imported works of art far more easily and conveniently. It will be sent to you at the rate of one bouquet each month. However, the bouquets are available only as a collection and only from Franklin Porcelain, with a limit of one collection per order.

Affordably priced . . . just $22.50 each

The price for each bouquet is a modest $22.50 to be billed on a monthly basis. This favorable price is guaranteed for the entire collection. To add to your enjoyment, a booklet, describing the flower portrayed will accompany each bouquet. A Certificate of Authenticity will also be provided with each collection attesting to its original design and handcraftsmanship.

Since it will take time to craft these porcelain miniatures, the subscription application at right should be signed and mailed to Franklin Porcelain, Franklin Center, Pennsylvania 19091, by May 31, 1983.

FIRST-PERSON

CONFESSIONS OF A BEST-SELLING HORROR WRITER

HOW WEIRD DO YOU HAVE TO BE TO KILL 200 PEOPLE?

By Peter Straub

Diana Kassir

Author Straub in search of inspiration: "I spend most days . . . conversing with ambulatory corpses and supernatural beings."

I was sitting in the book department of a large store in Seattle, near the beginning of one of those public-relations circuses known as an author tour. Four or five people had been waiting in the book department for me to sign their copies of Shadowland, the book I was promoting. Nothing weird about these sturdy citizens of Seattle. They looked like teachers, accountants, insurance agents. One of these admirable individuals was a white-haired woman in her 60's. Somebody's mother; somebody's grandmother. When she got up to the desk, she grinned at me. "Is it really scary?" she asked. "Well," I began, but she couldn't wait. "I hope it's got vampires in it," she broke in. "I love all that spooky stuff."

Is it just me who's crazy, or is everybody else crazy, too?

It's true that I spend all day, most days of my life, meandering happily through scenes of carnage and destruction, conversing with ambulatory corpses, flaming clouds and supernatural beings. I have tormented the citizens of a town in upstate New York (Ghost Story), and I have liquefied the skins of several unfortunate residents of Connecticut (Floating Dragon). I have personally killed upward of 200 people. In books. I have to do these things; I'm a horror writer. You want me to spend my life this way, at least a couple million of you do — that nice old lady in Seattle has a lot of company in her affection for "that spooky stuff."

In my personal life I'm about as weird as a farm-implement dealer with lifetime memberships in the Lutheran Church and the Republican Party. I live in suburbia, Cheever and Updike country. I wear a suit and a striped tie when I go to the city, just the way my daddy did. I give directions to strangers and dollars to charities. I love my children and drink enough to worry about it. The picture I want you to get here is that of an utterly conventional, 40-year-old white American male. Like the devil, I am legion. In fact, you have to look at me twice really to see me — the first time I'm just a blur of satisfied expectations. Glen plaid suit and Bass Weejuns. Commuterville. That's me.

Maybe the greatest difference between me and all the brave, tired people traveling back and forth between suburbia and Manhattan is that I am insulated from the frights and terrors of ordinary employment — quotas to fill, performance records that must be better. I invent fears and never experience nightmares. This is not to say that I fear nothing, for without my fears I would be unable to write a word.

What scares me? Nearly everything, I might as well say. What's wrong with that?

Novelists must write out of their deepest places, and a horror novelist had better keep in touch with everything he's afraid of, everything that scares him. If he can keep in touch with his fear, his childhood still lives in him. (A novelist who has lost his childhood — who has become entirely adult — has allowed 70 percent of his raw material to atrophy.)

What scares me? Damn near everything, I might as well say. What's wrong with that? I'm scared of death, of getting older, of any gathering of more than three strangers, of failure, madness, violence, laziness, policemen, men who smile too easily, fatigue, walking under ladders; I'm afraid of somehow damaging my children, of my own selfishness, of places where truly bad things have happened, of that guy behind me on the highway who has just crossed over all three lanes and now seems to be crossing back again. Helplessness frightens me, like the helplessness I feel whenever I get a letter from the Department of the Treasury marked IMPORTANT NOTICE.

Some of these fears are just personal, but I think most of them are common enough to be called banal. Everybody's afraid of disease, death and failure and almost everybody's afraid of the I.R.S.

Let's take an ordinary situation. You have a 17-year-old son whose driving you know to be almost as good as your own. This son has taken your car out for the day, promising to come back by 7 o'clock. Seven o'clock arrives without him. If he isn't home by 8, you say to yourself, I'll kill the little wretch. By 8:15 you're glancing at your watch every second and pacing to the window with a good view of the driveway. So what if he's a reasonably good driver? The roads are full of fools and madmen. How long will it take the highway patrol to call you with one of those heart-stopping, bureaucratic questions? Are you the owner of a red 1979 Cutlass, license plate number. . . ? Friends, that's fear. Five minutes later when your boy finally appears, nervously offering his rather leaky excuse for not calling, you forget all about how it felt when you were sure he was dead.

Now, if I turned myself loose on this situation I would not have to alter it much. After all, there is a tremendous amount of fear built into those events — any parent would feel it. I might make the driver who kills children a demon and give him volition: He wants to murder kids. I might make the car the demon — a haunted car, like Stephen King's forthcoming Christine. Or it could be that the teen-agers themselves are driven to smash their bodies and their cars. A lot of different plots and ideas are hiding in that situation and it doesn't really matter which one I'd finally choose. What gives the story its punch is that every one of us is afraid of getting that call.

That's how horror works. It just adds a wrinkle to any ordinary situation from which fear can be squeezed. The wrinkle — demon driver or haunted car — provides the imagery, but it's the situation that gives you the real fantods.

I get my ideas from you, that's the truth, and all I do is dress them up a little before I turn them around and try to entertain you with them. So maybe we're both off the wall, but what I really think is that every now and then you want the clear adrenaline-rush that comes when someone whispers to you that life can go terribly wrong, that fairness and justice aren't programmed into the structure of the world, that bodies fail, that people suffer. Were it not for horror's gaudy bag of tricks, I think the genre might give us more reality than we could stand. Horror, dear ones, is life.

Now, why don't you snuggle up on the couch and let me tell you a story? FW

NEW TREATMENT FOR SPINA BIFIDA

STRIKING BACK AT OUR MOST COMMON BIRTH DEFECT

By Michael D'Antonio

When Suzy Mace was born, the staff at the suburban Chicago hospital called in a priest to comfort her parents. Suzy was born with spina bifida, the nation's No. 1 birth defect, which strikes about 8,000 babies born in the U.S. every year. With portions of their spines protruding from their backs, uncovered and open to infection, spina bifida babies have often, in the past, suffered brain damage and met early deaths. In 1978, doctors told the Maces that Suzy would be lucky to survive, and even if she did, her future would be grim.

Five years later, Suzy Mace is getting ready for first grade. Last Christmas she took a few steps without her walker, and intelligence tests show she's as sharp as many 8-year-olds. Her parents refused to accept the prognosis offered by her first doctors. Instead, they sought the expertise of a team of specialists at The Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago, who combined their skills in surgery, neurology, urology and physical therapy to save Suzy's life.

"Up until the late 1960's, the mortality rate for spina bifida was about 70 percent in the first year," explains Chicago neurosurgeon David McLone. The children often died from infections, which entered the body via the exposed spine and then attacked the nervous system. As doctors perfected operations that closed the opening in the spine, this statistic was reversed, with the survival rate climbing to 80 percent. Specialists like Dr. McLone learned that the sooner the back is closed, the better the chances for recovery. They brought in other specialists and began fighting spina bifida with a team approach. The result: Spina bifida, once a fatal birth defect, now is often a manageable disability.

Ken Mengey/Spina Bifida Association of America

"We tell parents that, if everything goes well, their babies will have normal intelligence; the motor function they have at birth will remain, 40 percent will gain even more function; and they will have control of their bladder and bowels," McLone says. "The majority of these children will walk, if with braces, and most of them will lead productive lives."

Many advances have combined to produce this major turnabout. Tubes that drain excess fluid from the brain, called shunts, have been used to treat hydrocephalus (water on the brain) that once caused brain damage in most spina bifida babies. Physical therapy helps paralyzed children gain control of their bowels, while new self-catheterization techniques give children the bladder control needed to prevent urinary infections and kidney disease, two former killers of spina bifida victims.

Dr. McLone's Chicago-based team has treated more than 800 children since 1975. In most cases surgeons close the lesion in the spine with the help of ultrasound within 48 hours of a baby's birth. Physical therapy starts immediately and doctors start charting future treatments before infants are a week old. "The [team] approach has revolutionized the outlook for these patients," says Dr. Thomas Milhorat, a neurosurgeon at Downstate Medical Center in Brooklyn, N.Y. "Where, in the past, doctors would throw up their hands, now we're giving real treatment."

Though spina bifida teams across the country can claim high survival rates and point to thousands of salvaged lives, the Spina Bifida Association of America (S.B.A.A.), located in Chicago, reports that scores of spina bifida babies go untreated every year because many doctors don't know that the birth defect can now be beaten. "Unfortunately, we come across cases all the time where a baby could have been helped and wasn't," says S.B.A.A. director Kent Smith. "We have taken a very strong stand favoring treatment for all spina bifida cases where the parents want it."

Drs. McLone and Milhorat agree. They have mounted a media campaign to get the spina bifida success story to the public. In small ways, the campaign is already working. After reading about Dr. McLone in her newspaper, a Missouri woman brought her baby to Chicago where, despite the dim outlook offered by doctors back home, he was successfully treated.

Dr. McLone is currently researching ways to correct spina bifida even before babies are born — with the aid of surgery in the womb. Though why spina bifida occurs in the first place remains a medical mystery, researchers think prenatal nutrition could be one factor and further studies in this area and in the field of genetics could shed some light on the birth defect's origin. In the meantime, families who've been helped by the techniques Dr. McLone has refined are savoring the present. Says Monte Mace, Suzy's father, "Now Suzy's like other children, and the only limitations she'll have are those in her own mind." For further information on spina bifida, contact the Spina Bifida Association at (800) 621-3141. Illinois residents can call (312) 663-1562. FW

WIN UP TO $5,000

There are two ways to win up to $5,000.

INSTANT WINNER. Take the store coupons in this ad to your grocer's and compare the Fantasyland scenes on your coupons with the symbols on your grocer's Del Monte Sweepstakes display. If they match, you win the prize indicated on the display. No purchase necessary.

SECOND-CHANCE DRAWING. If the coupons on this page don't match with the display, enter the Second-Chance Sweepstakes. Fill in your name and address in the designated area on the back of the coupons. When you redeem the coupons, you will be automatically entered into the sweepstakes. Or, if you don't redeem your coupons you can still enter the sweepstakes by mailing in your entry. No purchase necessary. See details in the Official Rules.

In total, $200,000 in cash prizes will be given away.

OFFICIAL RULES

1. No purchase necessary. To find out if you are an instant winner, take these coupons to your favorite store and match the Fantasyland symbols on your coupons to the Fantasyland symbols on the Del Monte Sweepstakes display. If they match, you are an instant winner of the indicated cash prize. If you cannot find a Del Monte Sweepstakes display at your store, you may obtain a sample of the display materials by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Del Monte Display Materials, P.O. Box 4915, Westbury, New York 11592. Residents of the State of Washington need not affix postage stamps to their self-addressed envelopes. All requests must be received no later than May 31, 1983.

2. If any coupon matches, complete the information requested on the back of the coupon and send that coupon, by registered mail, to: Del Monte Instant Winner, P.O. Box 4920, Westbury, New York 11592. Valid entries must be received by July 31, 1983. Limit: one prize claim per envelope. No responsibility assumed for lost, misdirected, or late mail. Warning: An official entry certificate that is mutilated, illegible, altered, or otherwise defaced or tampered with, or contains printing or other errors, is automatically VOID.

3. If you are not an instant winner, you can enter the Second-Chance Sweepstakes in one of the following ways. A) Fill out and redeem the coupons at your store; your name will be entered into the sweepstakes. To be eligible, coupons must be redeemed by July 31, 1983. B) ALTERNATE MEANS OF ENTRY - NO PURCHASE NECESSARY. If you do not wish to redeem the store coupons, mail in the coupon or a 3" x 5" card with your name and complete address. Only hand-printed entries will be accepted.

Enter as often as you like, but each entry must be mailed separately to: Del Monte Sweepstakes, P.O. Box 4930, Westbury, New York 11592, and be received no later than July 31, 1983. Drawing will take place January 31, 1984. Promotion begins April 24, 1983.

4. Odds of winning instantly are as follows: (10) First Prizes ($5,000): 1 in 10,400,000; (100) Second Prizes ($500): 1 in 1,040,000; (1000) Third Prizes ($50): 1 in 104,000; (10,000) Fourth Prizes ($5): 1 in 10,400. Odds of winning in the Second-Chance Sweepstakes are dependent upon the number of entries received. In total, 11,110 prizes will be given away.

5. From all entries received, winners will be selected in a random drawing supervised by Glendinning Companies of Connecticut, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Winners will be notified by mail, approximately 30 days after the drawing.

6. Sweepstakes open to all residents of the U.S.A. except employees and their families of Del Monte Corporation, their agencies, subsidiaries or affiliates. Void wherever taxed, restricted, or prohibited by law. All federal, state, and local laws and regulations apply.

Residents of the State of Washington: To enter sweepstakes, you must use the official sweepstakes entry form or a 3" x 5" card.

7. For a list of major prize winners, send a separate, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Del Monte Winners List, P.O. Box 9821, Westbury, New York 11592.

AN INTERVIEW WITH

CARL BERNSTEIN

"ARROGANCE WITHIN THE PRESS IS A TERRIBLE PROBLEM."

Carl Bernstein, along with fellow Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward, won a Pulitzer Prize for unraveling the story of the Watergate cover-up that led to the historic resignation of President Richard M. Nixon. Bernstein co-authored (with Woodward) the book All the President's Men, and Dustin Hoffman portrayed him in the movie version of the best seller.

Bernstein is also half of another famous media coupling: In 1976 he married writer Nora Ephron, a union that produced two sons and a scandal of its own — a widely reported breakup that, insiders say, is the heart of Ephron's new novel, Heartburn.

Now 39, Bernstein is a correspondent for the ABC news team. Bernstein, who seems far more comfortable reporting than being reported about, recently discussed the media with Washington correspondent Kathleen Maxa.

David McGough/DMI

Maxa: How do you regard yourself in terms of the kind of reporting you do?
Bernstein: I'm a reporter.

Q: A reporter of what?
Bernstein: I'm a reporter. I try to find out what's really going on, but very rarely does it have to do with malfeasance or misfeasance. What it usually has to do with is what Government or public officials are actually doing. That doesn't necessarily mean it's about nefarious conduct.

Q: Sort of a behind-the-scenes look at the events of the day?
Bernstein: Yeah.

Q: In the wake of Watergate, do you think that investigative reporting became sloppy?
Bernstein: I'm not one of these people who believe that there's some separate school of reporting called investigative reporting. All good reporting is the same thing, which is to say the best obtainable version of the truth.

Q: Do you think that in the wake of Watergate some of the reporting on Government figures became sloppy?
Bernstein: I think there probably were some excesses. Whether that's a result of Watergate or not, I'm not sure. I do recall that occasionally I was struck by it.

Q: Do you think public figures are given adequate opportunity to defend themselves in the news media?
Bernstein: I can only talk about the places where I've worked.

Q: In TV news?
Bernstein: Generally speaking, I think so, yes. Any time a public official would want to sit down and conduct an interview about the allegations that the press has discussed, he would be given that opportunity.

Q: On the air?
Bernstein: Certainly.

Q: If you had it to do over, is there anything you would have done differently in reporting Watergate?
Bernstein: Sure. I think there are a few things that we would have done differently, and the major one is to not visit the grand jurors as we describe in All the President's Men.

Q: Why not?
Bernstein: I think that the grand jury system ought to be sacrosanct.

Q: Why did you do it then?
Bernstein: We had legal advice that it was permissible and I think we thought at the time that the information that would have resulted from it would have made it worthwhile. But in retrospect, I just wouldn't do it again.

Q: Undercover reporting seems to be on the upswing. Do you think deception and infiltration are permissible tactics in uncovering stories?
Bernstein: In almost every circumstance I can think of, generally speaking, a reporter ought to identify himself as a reporter and he ought to conduct himself as the person he is. I'm sure that there are some exceptions.

Q: It depends on the circumstances?
Bernstein: Right, but I think it's something that's abused far too often. It's something I've never done in my life. . . I cannot think of the circumstances in which I would, although I can nonetheless envision times when a reporter posing as somebody is justified.

Q: Do you want to give an example?
Bernstein: Perhaps if you really wanted to find out how someone in a welfare system was being treated, or something like that, there might be some justification. That just springs to mind. And I'm still not even sure that that's legitimate. I think it's something that's got to be thought about very hard.

Q: Do you think the movie All the President's Men contributed to a sense of overzealous-

ness and possibly even arrogance on the part of individual reporters and news organizations?
Bernstein: I'm not a judge of the psychology of newspapers or reporters and what the film did, what the book did and what the actual reporting of Watergate did. I just don't know the answer to that.

Q: Do you feel that sometimes reporters are overly arrogant?
Bernstein: Oh yeah, I think that arrogance within the press is a terrible problem and I don't think it's traceable to Watergate by any means necessarily, but I think it's always been a problem. I think it's probably a bigger problem than it's ever been. I think reporters ought to be a lot more humble than they tend to be. I think journalistic institutions have been the last within the society to open themselves up, while they demand openness of others.

Q: What do you attribute it to?
Bernstein: I think the press has an awful lot of power and that some of it stems from that.

Q: Do you think in one-paper towns there's a danger that those papers will become complacent?
Bernstein: I think that two-newspaper towns are almost invariably better than one-newspaper towns as long as both newspapers can remain somewhat healthy. I think the death of the Star in Washington, for example, has hardly been a help to journalism in the city.

Q: Do you think news organizations put too much pressure on investigative reporters to produce stories even though the facts may not justify them?
Bernstein: I don't think that's quite what happens but I think reporters very often feel a necessity that, given the investment of time and money on a story, they have to come up with something significant, and very often when you work on a story there's nothing significant to report. In which case the story ought to be abandoned. And I think there's a reluctance by reporters to do that and also a problem of an expectation by editors, given the resources devoted to a reporting enterprise, that there ought to be "something to show for it."

Q: If you could have your pick of any TV news job, what would it be?
Bernstein: I like what I'm doing right now, which is to say doing in-depth reporting pieces that tell you what's really happening in certain areas.

Q: Do you have any anchor aspirations?
Bernstein: No.

Q: Under what circumstances, if any, do you think reporters should be required to reveal their sources to editors?
Bernstein: I think if an editor has doubts about the veracity of a story, or if he wants to make some independent judgments about how solidly grounded a story is, it might be necessary for him to know something about the sources and perhaps their identities. I can see circumstances when a reporter ought to tell his editor who his sources are. I don't think it's a great problem in journalism, I have to tell you. I think it's one of the textbook problems that very rarely occurs.

Q: Has being a public figure inhibited your reporting, and if it has, how?
Bernstein: No.

Q: Do you have any problem with people wanting to get your autograph when you're out on assignment?
Bernstein: Oh, sometimes you're a little more conspicuous than you'd like to be, but at the same time people are very nice to you, and you have a reputation for doing a good job and I think it makes your reporting a bit easier.

Q: You think it makes it easier to get access?
Bernstein: I think it makes it somewhat easier to get access but, more than that, I think people trust you.

Q: Has being a public figure changed or influenced your feelings about where the public's right to know ends and an individual's privacy begins?
Bernstein: I certainly have, I think, more sensitivity about privacy than I did before.

Q: What advice do you have for reluctant individuals who are trying to retain their privacy while reporters converge on them?
Bernstein: I'm not in the business of giving advice.

Q: You're somebody who, in addition to being a reporter, has been reported on. What does it feel like to be on the other side of the notebook or the television camera?
Bernstein: I think it's always uncomfortable. Since the first time that Bob and I were written about, I think both of us have been uncomfortable about being the subject of stories as opposed to being those who report on them.

Q: How do you feel about the celebrity journalist idea?
Bernstein: I think that there could be a lot less reporting about reporters, simply because it's not that interesting.

Q: Professionally, how do you want to be remembered?
Bernstein: As a good reporter and somebody who continued to be a good reporter. FW

PEOPLE QUIZ

CAN YOU PUT OFF YOUR AGGRAVATION WITH PROCRASTINATION?

By John E. Gibson

TRUE OR FALSE?

2. Complete abstinence is the best way to break an excessive gambling habit.

3. Many people have habits of obsessional thought that they would like to break but can't.

4. Grinding your teeth when you're asleep is a habit you don't need to be concerned about breaking.

5. It is necessary to break a sleep-talking habit because it can result in debilitating mental and emotional tensions.

6. You can break a nail-biting habit if you learn to relax and take life a little easier.

7. The habit of procrastination can make an individual feel powerless and compulsive.

ANSWERS

1. True. Results from a University of Michigan study showed that a habit tends to become more deeply rooted in the consciousness of left-handed persons than in right-handers and, as a consequence, requires greater effort to break. Other studies have shown that left-handers are more apt to resent and resist suggestions about breaking bad habits.

2. False. Studies at London's Institute of Psychiatry indicated that control rather than abstinence is the most effective formula for coping with an excessive gambling habit. The study concluded that any attempt to enforce complete abstinence from gambling would be unacceptable to a gambler and unenforceable without his cooperation.

3. True. Many people are troubled by habitual unpleasant thoughts involving obsessional preoccupations and fears that they say they can't control. But studies conducted by behavioral scientists at the University of Pittsburgh demonstrated that an individual can learn to quickly turn off the flow of unwelcome thoughts. The method involves first shouting the word "stop," then just saying it loudly, then softly and, finally, whispering it. In the study, four to six repetitions of "stop" were used at each voice intensity. The next step is to immediately focus the thoughts on a highly pleasurable scene, such as sailing on a river on a hot, sunny day, feeling the cool water and hearing the waves lap against the sides of the boat.

4. False. Studies show that a tooth-grinding habit (bruxing), which usually occurs during sleep, can result in serious dental problems, including the painful jaw joint condition Temporomandibular Joint Syndrome (TMJ), which affects millions of Americans. The habit is associated with pent-up emotional tensions.

5. False. National Institute of Mental Health studies show that sleep-talking (somniloquy) is actually sleep-thinking. Though the speech may be partially garbled and difficult to understand, it indicates the brain is mulling over problems and situations in a casual and relaxed manner, which is likely to have a productive effect on your daytime thinking. There's no reason to try to break the habit unless you're disturbing your sleeping partner or revealing thoughts and feelings that may require an explanation when you wake up.

Researchers have developed a profile of the chronic procrastinator.

6. True. Psychological studies conducted by a team of specialists at Xavier University (Cincinnati) of adult nail biters and nonbiters showed that nail biting results from anxiety and provides a physical expression for free-floating worries either about what might happen or what might not happen. If you can break the worry habit, the odds are you'll break the nail-biting habit.

7. True. A City University of New York study found that a procrastinator may feel as powerless and compulsive as an individual who is addicted to a habit that he is unsuccessfully trying to break. The chronic procrastinator knows what he wants to do but somehow can't translate his feelings into action. Although he feels helpless, he knows he could start working whenever he decides to do so. He attributes the difficulty in making that decision to a weak will. The procrastinator also knows that his habit will not enable him to avoid pain but only prolong it. He does realize, according to the study, that he is buying momentary decreases in stress at the cost of larger, long-term increases in stress. FW

Now! You Can Start Your Own "Million Dollar" Zoysia Lawn!

SPECIAL SALE $2.33 Plus up to 900 FREE Plugs

Zoysia Lawn Wasn't Mowed Or Watered For A Month! Not A Weed In Sight!

By Mike Senkiw, Agronomist, Lakeland Nurseries

If your family is like mine, you're squeezing every dollar to make sure you have enough to go around. And it looks like things are going to stay that way.

One way to cut expenses is to cut the costs, and work, of lawn care. For example, a woman wrote about her zoysia lawn that she had mowed it only twice ALL SUMMER. She hadn't spent a cent on weed-killers. Not one cent for fertilizers. Yet her lawn was as green and weed-free as a pile carpet.

ZOYSIA LAWNS STAY GREEN THROUGH HEAT AND DROUGHTS

Let the scorching sun burn lawns around you into hay—your zoysia stays fresh and green, an emerald isle of beauty. I have yet to water my own zoysia lawn. One day I saw that my sprinkler had gotten cobwebs! In Iowa, a zoysia lawn was declared the area's "Top Lawn—nearly perfect." Yet this lawn had been watered only once that entire summer!

Cut your water bills. Save the work of lawn sprinkling. Start a famous Zoysia grass lawn now.

Weed-killing chemicals are NOT NEEDED for a weed-free *Famous Zoysia Lawn

How is it possible that Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia stays weed-free without using expensive, risky chemicals? It grows so thick that crabgrass (weed) seeds don't get enough light to germinate!

Has Cut Mowing To Once A Month

Zoysia grows sideways, not just up like ordinary grass. It forms a thick, interwoven carpet of turf that keeps its well-groomed look weeks longer. It cuts your mowing by half, 2/3 or more!

No-Reseeding—Not Ever!—With Lakeland's Famous Zoysia

Plug in Lakeland Zoysia and never buy grass seed again. Zoysia lawns don't grow old; they just grow better. They sparkle under 100° heat... stay green through droughts. They resist diseases and insects which ruin ordinary grasses. After sharp frosts, they only give up their green color, then green up better than ever each following Spring. Famous Zoysia gives you the closest thing to an indestructible lawn you have ever seen.

Ends Washouts on Steep Slopes Perfect Where Other Grasses Do Poorly

Deep-rooted zoysia holds soil in place, stops it from washing away from slopes. It's your perfect answer for worn out or weedy areas, too.

In a typical newspaper article I read (quote): "upgrading your current lawn" requires the right selection of grass seed plus "regular applications of fertilizer (and lime where needed)." This article also said you need, "weed, insect and disease control." Sound familiar? Of course!

NO NEED TO DIG UP YOUR LAWN PLUG IN Z-52 ZOYSIA

Why not forget all that work and expense, and plug in Famous Meyer Z-52 Zoysia? To upgrade your lawn with zoysia, don't dig it up. Just set plugs into holes in the soil a foot apart or less. Let those plugs spread toward each other to form a carpet of solid turf. Growth is so vigorous it chokes out old growth you want to get rid of, WEEDS INCLUDED.

From Coast to Coast People Write to Mike Senkiw, Agronomist

From Hudson, N.Y., E. LaRoche writes how he planted plugs "in the worst possible place—clay with weeds and gravel... It formed a 4" thick carpet of grass. Not children, dogs, cats, rabbits, extremely hot sun or drought could kill it."

From Sacramento, Calif., J.M. writes how he bought our Zoysia "for a weed infested spot—it took care of the problem."

From Indiana, M.A. Low, Sr. writes how he visited a physician friend in Albert Lea, Minn. where he saw a "whole back yard was entirely in zoysia and it was beautiful... a deep green."

The success of many thousands of delighted Famous* Zoysia owners awaits you. Prove it to yourself today.

"Same Day Fresh"

The day we cut your plugs is the day they are on their way to you. Because freshness counts, Lakeland has 2 shipping points, one in the Midwest and one in the East. Your plugs go out from the nearest point "Same Day Fresh" and ready to grow, shipping charge collection the most economical way. On credit card orders, the shipping cost will be prepaid by us and billed to your account.

Poor Soil? No Problem!

Our Famous Zoysia plugs are so vigorous we guarantee them to grow whatever your soil—from heavy clays to sandy sub-soils. You cannot lose.

Lakeland's Total Guarantee

- Drought Won't Kill It
- Heat Won't Kill It
- Cold Won't Kill It
- Disease Won't Kill It

Even though we don't know your soil, we guarantee EVERY plug of Famous Z-52 Zoysia to live and grow in it. No ifs. No buts. Should any plugs fail to grow, just let us know within 60 days. We replace them FREE. That guarantee clearly means that Famous Zoysia has to do everything we say — and more! Otherwise there's no way we could give you such unique protection.

Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass was perfected by the U.S. Govt. and released in cooperation with the U.S. Golf Association.

IT'S SO EASY AND INEXPENSIVE TO START A MAGNIFICENT ZOYSIA LAWN

Start your own magnificent, perennial zoysia lawn with as few as 100 plugs. Just let your plugs establish solid turf. Then take up transplants and plug in other places to your heart's desire. Plugged areas grow right back into solid turf. Your supply of plugs is endless.

Prices and Bargains

If you plant more grass that sits there and struggles—or dies on you—you may not miss your work and money. It's the time you cannot recover! So please don't confuse Lakeland's 30-Below-Zero Zoysia with any ordinary turf offered as a "bargain." If our plugs cost a little more in the beginning, they remain, in the long run, the only true bargain for your lawn.

Order guaranteed Famous zoysia plugs now, for delivery from our nearest shipping point. Your order will be sent at the earliest proper time to plant in your area.*

DOES IT PAY TO RENT — OR BUY IT?

By Ruth Rejnis

You already know you can rent an apartment, an automobile and a few other familiar items.

But did you know you can also lease cameras, rotisseries, balloon machines, refrigerators, plants, champagne fountains, chimney cleaning equipment — in fact, just about anything that is manufactured these days?

The rental business is booming as more and more Americans learn they do not have to buy a product to be able to use it. The American Rental Association (A.R.A.) reported a gross volume of $5.2 billion in 1981 (the last year for which figures are available), more than double the 1975 figure of $2.5 billion. A.R.A., the nation's largest trade group in the field, represents 2,700 rental firms, both private owners and some members of franchise operations such as Taylor Rentals, which is one of the largest in the country.

The A.R.A. does not include firms that lease automobiles and cranes, furniture, costumes and tuxedos and a few other specialty items. Those products represent another huge rental market.

Customers vary in their reasons for renting. Some rent because they want or need a product they can't afford to buy, others because they have no room to store bulky or seldom-used equipment. "People are more mobile now," explains Roger Smith, director of the A.R.A.'s membership services. "They say, 'I want it now, I want to use it, and when I'm finished, I don't want it anymore.'"

If you find you need a floor sander, for example, or a steamer for removing wallpaper, there would be little need to purchase that equipment when you could rent it inexpensively for one-time use.

On the other hand, some items would be costly to lease if needed over a long period of time. Take baby furniture. Renting a crib and mattress at a nationwide rental chain will cost you $16 a week. If you rent it for two years, you will have spent $1,664! You can buy a serviceable, brand-new crib, without mattress, for about $60. However, renting makes perfect financial sense if you're taking baby to visit his grandparents and would like to have a crib in their house during your stay.

Power lawn mowers are one of many gray-area items as far as the wisdom of renting is concerned. They do take up storage space, and the gas-filled ones require regular maintenance. If you rent a mower for $4.50 an hour, using it an hour a week in season, you'll be paying about $100 for a summer's use. You can buy a new mower for $125 to $175, but maybe you just don't want the bother of owning one, no matter how the economics work out.

Security deposits are required only on such big-ticket items as automobiles, some electric typewriters, color televisions and the like.

At some rental centers you will be allowed to take out a damage waiver, where you pay 5 percent of the cost of the lease contract as protection against breakage charges. There is no charge to you for normal wear and tear.

If you're renting for a home office, ask your accountant about tax deductions for those bills. Similarly, your health-insurance plan may reimburse you for rental of medical equipment such as hospital beds, wheelchairs, etc.

You can find rental outlets in the Yellow Pages under "Rental Service Stores." But don't stop there. If you have trouble locating what you want, go directly to retail stores that sell the product (not department stores, though) and ask if they'll rent for a short time.

Sadly for electronics buffs, home computers and word processing machines are usually available only for outright sale or under lease-purchase arrangements, where a few months' rental must lead to your buying the machine. FW

If someone you care for suffers from loss of bladder control...

...give them Attends— protection that really works.

If someone you care for suffers from loss of bladder control, you can help give them comfort, security, confidence. Thanks to Attends—an extremely effective disposable brief from the Home Service Group at Procter & Gamble. With Attends, you'll be giving them the kind of superior wetness protection that helps them feel good about themselves.

Developed for Use in Hospitals and Nursing Homes.

Across the country, quality nursing homes and hospitals use Attends. In fact, nurses and aides prefer Attends 3 to 1 over other incontinence care products they've used. They know Attends helps them give their patients the best quality care.

Money-saving Offer—$15.00 Off on a Case of Attends.

If you or a loved one is severely incontinent, you are invited to try Attends at $15.00 less than the usual cost. Just mail the certificate below. A case of Attends will be delivered to your home. Or, if you prefer, you may order your Attends by telephone. Simply call toll-free 1-800-543-0400 and ask for Operator 534.

It's a convenient, simple, private way to take advantage of the best wetness protection available today.

Revolutionary leak-resistant design helps provide the best protection from wetness available today.

1. Soft, one-way inner liner helps keep skin dry. Patented micropore design keeps wetness away from skin 8 times more effectively than any other material used in incontinence care products.

2. Heavy-duty inner padding soaks up moisture. More than half a million fibers in every square inch make it more absorbent than 10 layers of cotton cloth.

3. Waterproof outer layer helps protect clothing, bedding, furniture.

4. Double adhesive tapes on both sides mean secure fit around waist and hips for confidence and comfort.

5. Flexible, self-adjusting leg gathers help prevent accidental leakage—through a patented system not available in any other brief.

1 Million of the World's Slimmest Calculator/Watches To Be Sold For Only $15 Apiece In A Mammoth Publicity Drive

NEW YORK—One million of the world's slimmest, famous "micro-chip" Quartz Calculator/Watches will be sold as part of a publicity campaign for only $15 apiece to the first one million persons who apply in writing to the company before Midnight, May 30, 1983.

These are the same nationally publicized LCD Quartz "micro-chip" Calculator/Watches to be featured in The New York Times, Cosmopolitan, Playboy and other leading publications. The slimmest Calculator/Watches in the world, they are so powerful they never need winding, and are accurate to within seconds per month.

The digital display shows year, month, date and day of the week (as well as hour, minute and second) in full quartz digital mode. A built-in "melody" alarm wakes you in the morning, reminds you of appointments during the day, and even tells you when it's time to put another coin in the parking meter. (It also chimes on the hour.)

The calculator is accurate to 8 places, features a sophisticated 16-pad keyboard with full computer memory, and performs all standard operations such as addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, percentages, square roots, etc. It will even balance your checkbook and prepare your Income Tax Return.

These famous LCD Quartz Calculator/Watches will not be sold at this price by the company in any store. To obtain one at this price, apply in writing to the company address (below) before Midnight, May 30, 1983.

Each Calculator/Watch carries a full one-year money-back guarantee and will be replaced by the company, free of charge, if it ever fails to function.

There is a limit of two (2) watches per address at this price, but requests which are mailed early enough (before May 25) are permitted to order up to 5 watches.

To apply for an LCD Quartz Calculator/Watch, mail your name and address and this original printed notice together with $15 for each watch desired. Add only $2 shipping and handling no matter how many watches you are requesting. Mail to: Carter & Van Peel, Calculator/Watch, Dept. 603-110, Box 1230, Westbury, New York 11595.

RUNNING INTO TROUBLE

Some long-distance runners have become so obsessed, they face the risk of becoming anorexic, says a new study of 60 men who run more than 50 miles a week.

Compulsive runners, for whom running is literally life's only source of satisfaction, share several characteristics with anorexics, who are usually young women who starve themselves due to an intense fear of becoming obese.

"Both are suffering from an identity crisis," says clinical psychologist Catherine Shisslak of the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center and co-author of the study. "The two personality types usually come from educated, high-achieving families and tend to suppress anger. Their identities are tied into their external appearance." She told us that just as the anorexic gains a sense of self-mastery by losing more weight — no matter how life threatening — the compulsive runner gets a similar feeling by running longer distances, at any cost.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR WIFE? YOUR SURVEY?

In the past few years, Ladies' Home Journal, Playboy, Cosmopolitan and Family Circle magazines have all taken surveys on the sex life of the American woman. And this June, Simon and Schuster will publish Sex and the Married Woman based on research by the Institute for Advanced Study of Human Sexuality. But it seems all these surveys are bringing more questions than answers.

For instance, how many of today's wives have cheated on their spouses? The Journal survey reports 21 percent; Playboy, 34 percent; the Institute, 43 percent; and Cosmo, 54 percent. Even after taking into account the magazines' diverse audiences, whom to believe?

Similarly, some 80 percent of Playboy women consider themselves good at sex, compared to 65 percent of Journal women calling themselves "good" or "excellent" and 64 percent of the Institute women who list themselves as "great" or "better than average." Are Playboy women braggarts? The Journal's respondents just shy?

Well, one thing all the surveys seem to agree on, we're relieved to report: The majority of wives are surprisingly well satisfied with their sex lives (and we mean at home!).

PICK YOUR ICEBREAKER

If you couldn't find just the right words to approach that beautiful stranger at the party last weekend or that gorgeous creature on the way to work every day, grab hold of the new book 101 Best Opening Lines by Eric Weber, author of How to Pick Up Girls. Here are some of his sure-to-bowl-them-over openers:

—At a health club: "You're in such great shape, this place ought to use you in their ads."

—At the running track: "Would you mind timing me for a quarter-mile?"

—At a flea market: "You look like an expert. Is this stuff really worth $50?"

—At the butcher shop (looking vulnerable): "Excuse me, but how long do you fry a roast beef?"

—In the laundromat: "Is a cup of this stuff enough?"

—At the tennis court: "You must be the pro here."

—In the bakery: "How does a pastry lover like you stay so thin?"

—In McDonald's: "Haven't we McMet before?"

A REALLY HOT STORY

Recently, Marvin Scott, a reporter and sometime anchorman on Independent Network News, was handed a news bulletin. As Scott relates: "It was 12:30 P.M. I dutifully reported firefighters were at the scene battling a blaze in a high-rise building in Fort Lee, N.J. It wasn't until I got to the address that I realized it was mine!"

Scott: a story close to home.

This wasn't Scott's first close encounter. Two years ago he was handed a news item about a man just arrested for the murder of his wife. When Scott saw the name, he told us, he paled slightly. The man was, gulp, someone he knew socially.

KEEP SPICE-EATING AT BAY

That bay leaf in your stew or spaghetti may add spice, but don't eat it — it could be hazardous to your health. So concludes a recent report in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

On separate occasions, two patients who swallowed bay leaves while eating spaghetti dinners had to be admitted to the hospital in excruciating pain. One needed surgery to remove the leaf's hard center rib, which caused internal damage.

Advises the report's co-author, Dr. J. David Richardson of the University of Louisville: Throw away the bay leaves before serving.

Annual "End of Season" Sale Dresses Up Troublesome Areas Where Nothing Else Will Grow ...We Guarantee 72 Hour Service

Last Call...BIG SAVINGS, FAST SERVICE ON BLOOMING GROUND COVERS!

Priced Low To Sell Every Plant Before May 31

No garden or landscape is complete without the carefree beauty and lasting color that only flowering ground covers provide. And only ground covers so easily dress up pesky trouble areas . . . under shady trees, steep slopes or banks, rock gardens, borders, edging along walkways or driveways, any "eyesore" area where nothing else will grow. Every ground cover offered in this "end of season" sale is hardy, requires little or no maintenance, helps stop erosion and conserve moisture in the soil, grows and spreads year after year without replanting. On this special offer, we guarantee to ship your order within 72 hours after we receive it.

Every Selection Covered By "No Fault" Guarantee

Every item on this page is guaranteed to be exactly as advertised . . . vigorous and healthy, tagged for easy identification, well packed for arrival in good condition. If not satisfied with any item upon receipt — or any item that doesn't flourish and thrive after planting — return shipping label with unsatisfactory items circled and we will refund your money (one year limit). You may keep the plants. Clip coupon and mail order today!

CREEPING RED SEDUM

8 for $2.98 Rugged and carefree, spreads rapidly in sun or shade. The lush, semi-evergreen foliage erupts in massive clusters of star-shaped, fiery red blooms mid-summer to September. Easy growing, sensational in rock gardens, "trouble spots," slopes, borders, shady areas where grass won't grow. Hardy, Michigan nursery grown, plant 6-12" apart. Send today.

All-In-One Super Ground Cover Flowers All Summer Long, Chokes Out Even The Most Persistent Weeds . . . Even in Poor Soil!

CROWNVETCH (Coronilla-Medium Size Crowns)

12 Plants for $3.98

Sensational flowering ground cover quickly transforms steep slopes, banks, troublesome weedy areas into a thick mat of lacy green foliage smothered with hundreds of delicate pink and white blooms. Hardy, maintenance free, disease and drought resistant. Blooms and spreads year after year without replanting. Plant 3' ft. apart. Blooms June until frost, clustered with masses of colorful flowers, supported by dark green fern-like foliage. Chokes out even the most persistent weeds, helps stop erosion and washouts. Prospers in problem areas where nothing else has a chance!

CREEPING MYRTLE — 40 for $3.98

You've often admired the pretty blue periwinkle flowers that seem to float on a dense carpet of shiny evergreen foliage! Rugged and carefree, Creeping Myrtle (Vinca minor—Periwinkle), thrives even in dense shade where grass or flowers won't grow. Blooms each spring with masses of cheery blue blossoms. Weeds don't have a chance to come up through the thick creeping foliage. You get matured plant divisions, 40 plants cover 80 square feet. Or order 80 plants to carpet 160 sq. feet bare ugly ground, only $7.75. Blooms and spreads year after year without replanting. Excellent for exasperating scrubby spots, banks, edgings, etc. Send today.

Ground Hugging Foliage, Mixed Colors!

CREEPING PHLOX-12 for $2.98

Michigan nursery grown perennial (Phlox subulata) features dense evergreen foliage drenched with masses of gay, sparkling blooms in mixed colors. Flowers freely every spring. Transforms drab, troublesome areas or rock gardens into a rolling sea of color that enhances your entire landscape. Hardy 1-year plants, each plant spreads to 12 inches at maturity. Chokes out and suffocates pesky weeds. Transforms "eyesore" area into "eye appeal" area! 12 for $2.98, 24 for only $5.75. Clip coupon and mail today!

BASKET OF GOLD — 10 for $3.98

Perhaps the most attractive of all spreading ground covers, and probably the easiest to maintain. Particularly striking when used as a border plant along sidewalks, driveway, or patio. Bursts into bloom in late April with clusters of bright golden flowers so large they all but hide the foliage. Plant 18" apart. Will quickly spread to fill in bare spots. You receive rooted, healthy Michigan nursery grown plant divisions. Order Basket of Gold (Alyssum saxatile) now!

CUSHION MUMS 20 for $3.98

Giant balls of flaming color to set your landscape ablaze! These hardy Michigan nursery grown root division perennial plants come to you in an assortment of vivid, gorgeous colors . . . reds, yellows, pinks, purples, bronze, etc., as available. Normally develop to bushel basket size, each plant drenched with masses of 1-2" blooms.

SWEET WILLIAM 5 for $1.98

Imagine flowerbeds ablaze with fancy, saw-toothed blooms of brilliant striking colors — red, white, lavender, pink and all the colors in between. Then imagine they'll spread and bloom year after year without replanting. No wonder they're called Sweet William! We ship ±2 Divisions (Dianthus Barbatus) for planting this spring.

BABY'S BREATH 3 for $1.98

Tall, wispy, twisting stems dotted with thousands of clusters of delicate white doubled blooms—that's Baby's Breath (Gypsophila 'Bristol Fairy'). Wonderful as a background planting. It flowers continuously almost all summer. The numerous puffs of pale flowers seem to float in air!

Goodbye To Moles, Gophers?

GOPHER PURGE $2.98

(Euphorbia lathyris)

Fact or folklore? As yet unproven one way or the other, legend has it that Gopher Purge repels burrowing rodents of all types without chemicals or traps. Certainly worth a trial to get rid of rascals who undermine yard and garden. Already growing in 2¾" pot. Order yours today!

● WORD IS OUT! Insert the same seven-letter word four times to complete this sage advice on the avoidance of needless worry: "Never — — until — —s you." P.S.: Think of a word that rhymes with bubble.

The missing word in all four blanks is "trouble."

● Chain Game! How long a string of animal names can you make using the last letter of each name for the first letter of the next? Example: Horse, elk, koala, etc.

● Book Learning! Alfredo tore pages 5, 25, 31 and 32 from a school library book. How many separate sheets of paper did he have?

Four—three from the book and one from the teacher to take home to his mother.

● Riddle-Me-This! Which insect is part flower? The forget-me-gnat. With what kind of a shoe can you blow your nose? A tiss-shoe. Why were the author's words so trite? That's all he rote.

CHECK-OUT CHALLENGE

Three pencil checks have been inserted in the diagram above. You are asked to distribute five more such checks so that there will be one and only one in each vertical, horizontal and diagonal row.

Remember, there are to be eight checks in all; five are to be inserted.

How is it done?

Check 1 to 7 across, fourth down, second down, seventh down, third down, sixth down, eighth down, fifth down, first down

SPELLBINDER

SCORE 10 points for using all the letters in the word below to form two complete words:

DESIGNER

THEN score 2 points each for all words of four letters or more found among the letters.

Try to score at least 20 points.

Possible answer: Seed, ring

CREATED BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: "THIS ADAM WHO TOOK YOUR PLACE," KAREN ASKS HER BROTHER, "YOU SAID HE WAS A COCKY FELLOW?" AND GALAN NODS: "WHEN HE HAS THE UPPER HAND HE GLOATS." KAREN HURRIES OFF, REMEMBERING THAT OVERCONFIDENCE MAKES A FINE BLINDFOLD. JUST AS THE BREAK IN THE GAME IS ABOUT TO END, SHE BRINGS HER FATHER REFRESHMENTS --AND ADVICE.

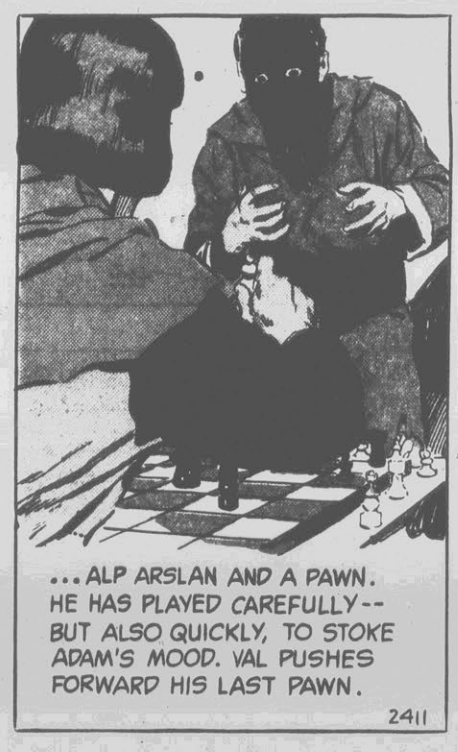

VAL SMILES AT HIS DAUGHTER'S IDEA. IT WILL TAKE ALL THE SKILL HE CAN MUSTER, BUT IT MIGHT WORK. HE RESUMES THE GAME.

A LIFE IS AT STAKE. IF VAL LOSES, ALP, THE WHITE "KING," WILL FORFEIT HIS LIFE. IF ADAM, THE MASKED OPPONENT, LOSES, THE VICTIM WILL BE ULF. VAL IS OUTMATCHED, AND THE CROWD JEERS HIS LATEST MOVE. IN A TRICE ADAM CAPTURES THE PIECE. VAL TRIES AGAIN.

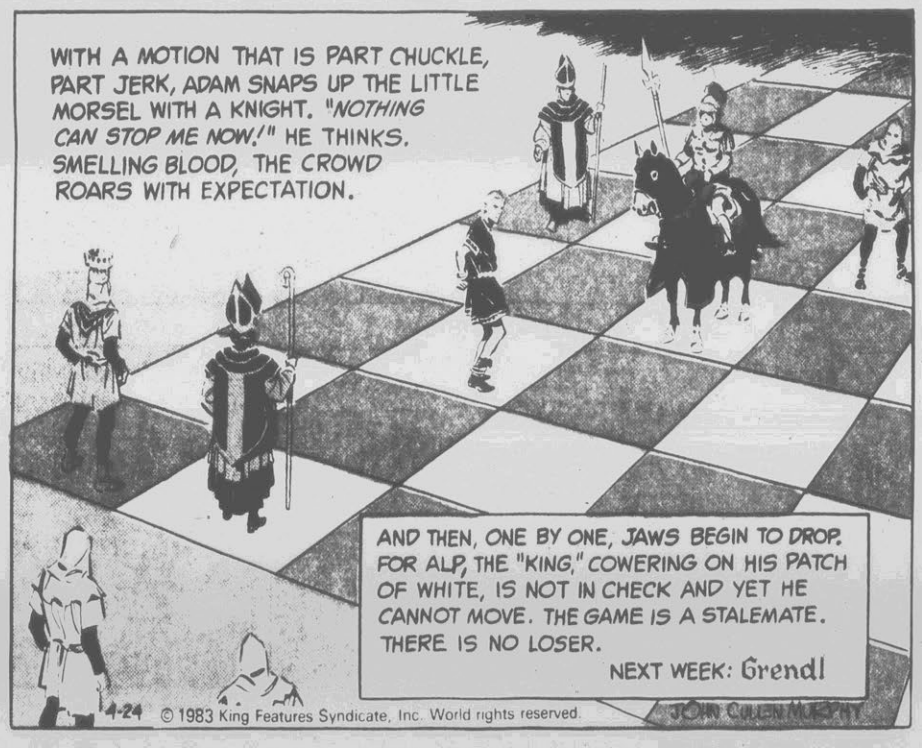

ANOTHER BLUNDER. HIS MIGHTY WHITE QUEEN FALLS TO AN AGING BISHOP. MOVE AFTER MOVE ADAM POUNCES, SMACKING HIS LIPS. A WHIFF OF VICTORY STARTS HIS BODY SHAKING PLEASURABLY. EACH CONQUEST BRINGS HIM CLOSER TO HEAVEN. NOW VAL HAS ONLY TWO PIECES LEFT...

...ALP ARSLAN AND A PAWN. HE HAS PLAYED CAREFULLY-- BUT ALSO QUICKLY, TO STOKE ADAM'S MOOD. VAL PUSHES FORWARD HIS LAST PAWN.
