Budget Is Presented To City School Board

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The budget message for the Greenville school system for fiscal year 1983-84 — amounting to $11,521,142 — was presented by Superintendent Delma Blinson to the city Board of Education Monday night.

The school board is scheduled to take action on the budget at a meeting May 9. Following next Monday's board action, the budget proposal will be presented to Pitt County Commissioners for their study and action.

The recommended budget consists of five separate fund categories:

- Fund 1 — State Public School Fund, $6,064,567.
- Fund 2 — Local Current Expense Fund $3,309,525.
- Fund 3 — Federal Projects, $796,517.
- Fund 4 — Local Capital Outlay Fund, $520,283.
- Fund 5 — Food Service Fund, $830,250.

Blinson, speaking at the board's public hearing on the budget, explained objectives and goals taken into consideration by the school staff in preparing the budget.

"We have followed the mandate received in session with the county manager in keeping the budget to a hold-the-line status," Blinson said. He emphasized that this budget does not incorporate any replacement of 42 positions lost over the last three years. Those losses comprise positions in all areas of the school — teachers, administrators, maintenance and janitorial personnel.

"Again, I must emphasize that the projected expenditures are not what I and our staff deem adequate to meet the needs of the children. This budget would require at least a 25 percent increase in expenditure of local funds," Blinson said.

"We do not propose an adequate budget simply because we know that everywhere funds are tight and because we have been told to hold the line. This expenditure budget, proposing a 5.58 percent increase in local expenditures, is therefore an attempt to maintain an already reduced level of services."

Figures arrived at in the recommended $3,309,525 local current expense fund are projected on retaining the same staffing of the current school year except for two additional positions for a teacher and aide for a severe and profound mentally handicapped class required by law.

One of the items in the budget that Blinson terms critical is the request for $269,919 for the local current expense fund balance.

"In order to fund the recommended expenditures in the local current expense fund," Blinson commented, "revenue

Pitt Bd. Reminded Local Funds Make Difference

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners were told Monday that it is local money that provides "flexibility and excellence" in the school systems.

Commissioners, at a luncheon meeting, heard Pitt County school Superintendent Eddie West and Greenville school Superintendent Delma Blinson outline how the state allocates funds to the two school systems.

West said the allocation of state funds is based on the average daily membership in the school systems, and is appropriated on a line-item basis, with "no flexibility."

Under such a system, West said, there is "no incentive to save money," because if the funds are not spent for their designated purpose, they revert to the state.

Blinson told the board that, while the "ADM funding" produces the largest amount of money for school operations and "is the least flexible, very little of the budget is received in the form of cash." He said that, for the most part, state funds are deposited in an account in Raleigh and local school systems write checks on that account.

"The state funds the basic system," Blinson said. Local money, appropriated by the board of commissioners, provides "flexibility and excellence ... something more than just the minimum."

West noted that the state does not provide any capital outlay money.

The superintendents noted that federal funds, generally provided on an ADM basis, account for about 15 percent of the county schools' budget and about 12 percent of the budget for the city system.

As for operations of the school bus system, Blinson noted that "the state funds whatever the bills are," including gas, oil and repairs.

The school systems are responsible for the initial purchase of buses, he said, and then they are replaced as needed by the state.

County Attorney Bill Watson reported that the bill abolishing the Tar River Port Authority has been ratified by the General Assembly.

Commissioners and the Greenville City Council had requested local legislators to introduce the bill after determining the port authority was no longer needed. The bill provides for the division of assets — both land and money — between the city and county.

County Finance Officer Margaret Roberts told the board that the county has earned more than $305,000 this fiscal year on investments. She estimated that by the end of the fiscal year on June 30, earnings on investments should be about $30,000 more than was projected in the present budget.

Ed Garrison, director of the Department of Social Services, reported that 82 people are working in on-the-job training slots as part of the Work Fare program. He said another 62 persons are employed in part-time or full-time jobs as a result of the program.

Under Work Fare, or the community work experience program, persons receiving aid to families with dependent children are offered jobs or job training positions. If they are able to work and do not accept the position, they become ineligible for assistance payments.

Garrison described the program, which began in July 1983, as "successful."

Commission Is Listening

Pitt County Commissioners heard requests from several county departments and agencies for operating funds for the 1983-1984 fiscal year at a budget workshop session Monday afternoon.

Pitt County Tax Supervisor Jimmie Hardee asked for $254,701 for the coming fiscal year. His department received $245,408 this year.

Hardee, who said his budget, just as other budget requests heard by the board so far, did not include any pay increases for employees, gave commissioners a revised estimate of the value of property in the county — $2.25 billion. He said the figure is $18 million higher than the figure he reported to the board last month.

According to Hardee, the $2.25 billion represents an increase of $38 million over the 1982 tax base figure.

The tax base figure is used by commissioners in setting a tax rate to fund budget requirements.

Hardee told commissioners that Pitt, with a 54-cent per $100 valuation tax rate, is "16th from the bottom" among the state's 100 counties. He said the "average tax rate in North Carolina is 70-cents (per $100 valuation)."

Tax Collector Bill Smith asked commissioners for $112,200 for 1983-1984. The tax collector's department received $116,375 this year.

Smith told the board that the reduction in his budget was due primarily to a reduction in the estimated cost for postage to mail card-type tax bills in the coming year.

Commissioners, in March, gave approval to replace the present tax notices — enclosed in envelopes — with a post card bill similar to bills used by utility companies after they were told that the county could save 5 cents in postage for each bill and 2.4 cents for the form itself.

The post card bill will cost 1 cent each and the postage would cost 12 cents. The present tax notice is 3.4 cents each and the postage is 17 cents.

Walter Gould, director of buildings and grounds, asked for $437,907 for 1983-1984, as compared to $442,003 this year.

The East Carolina Vocational Center requested $28,000 in operating funds for 1983-1984. The center received $15,000 in county funds this year.

ECVC Executive Director Dan le Roux, who said the center's total operating budget for the coming fiscal year is set at $3.73 million, with 76 percent of the income derived from items produced at the center, also asked commissioners for $25,000 in capital outlay funds to help defray the cost of a new building.

Quiet Little California Town Ravaged By Quake

By YARDENA ARAR
Associated Press Writer

COALINGA, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake that sparked 50-foot flames and made a "quiet little country town" look like a "bombed out city" injured more than 45 people and damaged virtually all 2,500 homes here, authorities said today.

"The No. 1 thing is to continue searching for people in the buildings downtown, but they haven't found any so far," said city spokesman Bob Semple. "We're recommending people sleep outdoors because of aftershocks."

The quake, which struck at 4:45 p.m. Monday, registered 6.5 on the Richter scale and was centered five miles north of this rural oil and farming community in the San Joaquin Valley. No deaths were reported.

"There's no part of the city that's untouched," Mayor Keith Scrivner said today.

"All of the residences are damaged, half of them extensively. It's terrible, everybody's going to lose a lot."

Firefighters searched all the buildings, said Fresno County Sheriff's Lt. Merrill Wright. "They have found no injured persons and heard no cries for help."

"Parts of it look like a bombed out city. It was a quiet little country town," Wright said.

At least 45 people were hurt and another 10 to 15 may have suffered very minor injuries, said Bob Manning, Fresno County emergency services coordinator. Manning said only seven had to be taken to hospitals and only two of those were in serious condition.

The downtown area is "completely going to be demolished and hauled away — the entire original buildings in the city of Coalinga," Scrivner said. But he was optimistic: "We can build it again, and we will. We'll make it."

"It's things like you see in the movies," said Bob Green, who fled from a Radio Shack store as it collapsed behind him just in time to see his car crushed by the Coalinga Inn across the street.

"I ran hysterical down the road, my husband right behind me," said Agnes Bement.

The quake was felt along a 450-mile-long stretch from Sacramento to San Bernardino and into western Nevada, but hit hardest in a four-block section downtown and caused heavy damage elsewhere in Coalinga, especially to brick buildings built in the 1920s.

Houses were hurled from their foundations, roofs gave way, large buildings collapsed in clouds of dust and ruptured gas lines sent 40- to 50-foot flames raging into the sky before they were controlled. "There are 2,500 homes in town, and I don't know if any of them were not damaged to some extent," said Semple. "There is going to be a loss in every home." He also estimated that 50 percent of the businesses suffered damage.

WEATHER

Sixty percent chance of showers tonight, low in the upper 50s. Partly cloudy Wednesday, with temperatures in the 70s.

Looking Ahead

Kearney Park Modernization To Begin Soon

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Modernization work in the Housing Authority's Kearney Park development is expected to get under way soon with the anticipated receipt of initial funding from the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The authority's director of operations, Ken Noland, told commissioners Monday night that the agency hopes to receive some $600,000 by the end of the week to launch the $1.1 million modernization project.

The work in Kearney Park, an 18-year-old housing development, was approved by HUD in fiscal year 1982 under an emergency funding arrangement. The authority will designate roughly a quarter of a million dollars from its own reserve account to complete Kearney Park work not funded in HUD's emergency allocation.

Noland said the authority has also been selected by HUD for a joint review as part of the local agency's application for additional Kearney Park funds. He said that, if the authority is approved for funding following the review by HUD officials, some $515,000 more would be available for modernization work.

The Kearney Park work will involve both interior and exterior refurbishing and include modernization of the kitchens and bathrooms in the 160-unit project as well as heating unit replacement, plumbing and floor work, insulation, painting and site work.

Noland said the authority also hopes to do some work in Meadowbrook and an application has been submitted to HUD for some $360,000 in special purpose money for the housing development. The funds would cover mostly energy related improvements, including the replacement of doors and furnaces.

Commissioners approved a resolution increasing the utilities expenses segment of the operating budget for fiscal year 1983 to $758,460 from $719,470 to cover projected increases in electric and water charges.

A revision to the University Towers section 8 budget for the fiscal year, which ends Sept. 30, was also approved, increasing the development's share in the cost of a new in-house computer system. The revision adds some $5,000 to the budget for computer hardware and software.

Noland said all of the authority's programs are sharing in the cost of the new computer system, which the agency hopes to select by next month.

Joe Laney, executive director, reported that a $1,345,000 bond issue and $1,269,900 note sale for the proposed 40-unit

Second Opinion May Echo First

DEAR ABBY: Thank you so much for printing the government's Second Surgical Opinion Hotline. (The toll-free number is 1-800-638-6833; in Maryland, it's 1-800-492-6603.) It's easy to see why you entitled your column "Second Opinion Likely to Offend Doctor." It's been my experience that asking your original doctor for the name of a second-opinion specialist poses no problem for him. He will simply refer you to someone down the hall, in the same building or belonging to the same country club who will invariably corroborate his own opinion.

I cannot stress enough the importance of seeking out specialists totally independent from one another for second (third and fourth) opinions in surgical or medical matters. Find a different doctor who will really take an objective look at your case, without regard to ego, fear of loss of control over a patient, his wallet, or any other irrelevant (to you) issues.

WISED UP IN SANTA BARBARA

DEAR WISED: I deserve no credit (or blame) for the headlines — they're either dreamed up by my syndicate editors or local editors.

Concerning second opinions: The Department of Health and Human Services offers a booklet titled "Thinking of Having Surgery?" It's excellent, and it's free. So if you (or someone you care about) are considering any kind of surgery, educate yourself by writing to: Surgery, Department of HHS, Washington, D.C. 20201.

DEAR ABBY: I don't know why someone hasn't written to you sooner about this. We know that doctors are famous for keeping people waiting, but what about repairmen?

Have you ever waited around all day for a man to fix your dishwasher? He shows up six hours late and tells you he was held up on another job. (Has he never heard of the telephone?)

I was told last week that a repairman would be at my home between 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to fix my TV. I waited until 5:30 p.m., then I had to leave the house.

Couple Marries On Saturday

Lisa Gay Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hubert Hart of Route 3, Ayden, and Kenneth Harold Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Harold Smith of Route 2, Ayden, were united in marriage Saturday.

The double ring ceremony took place in the Liberty Free Will Baptist Church and was conducted by Raymond A. Gaskins at 3 p.m.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents and wore a formal gown of white chiffonette re-embroidered alencon lace, schiffli lace and English net over peau de soie. Her gown was fashioned with a sculptured scoop neckline, fitted bodice dropping to a V-back with an overlay of English net, re-embroidered alencon lace and schiffli lace beaded with designs of seed pearls accented with iridescents. The full Victorian sleeves had schiffli cuffs ending in calla points over hands, trimmed with pearls and iridescents. The gathered skirt flowed into a cathedral train bordered with scalloped re-embroidered alencon lace. The bride wore a tiered chapel length mantilla of imported silk illusion with a rolled edge and accented with scattered appliques of re-embroidered alencon lace which fell from a re-embroidered alencon lace cap beaded in pearls. She carried a cascade of white cattleya orchids, white stepanotis and baby's breath.

Sharon Devinney of Wendell, sister of the bride, was honor attendant and bridesmaids included Darlene Smith, sister of the bride of Greenville, Cindy Hart of Ayden, Terri Jo Tingen of Snow Hill, Christy Manning of Walstonburg and Melinda Powell of Wilmington, all cousins of the bride, Lorraine Dail of Ayden.

Kimberly and Bridgett Miller of Greenville, twin cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Mathew Jones of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers included Daniel Hart, brother of the bride, Russell Farmer, Johnnie Stocks and Joe Colenda, all of Ayden, Lyn Howard of Knightdale, cousin of the bridegroom, and Tim Lawrence of Mount Airy.

Phyllis Griffin of Ayden was organist and Tim Devinney of Wendell, brother-in-law of the bride, was vocalist.

The attendants wore lilac chiffon over taffeta gowns each fashioned with a scoop neckline with elasticized shoulders, natural waistlines tied with a chiffon sash. The sleeves were short and the floor length skirt was gathered. The honor attendant wore a spray of spring flowers in her hair and the other attendants wore daisies and baby's breath. They each carried a semi-cascade of pink gerbera daisies, lavender daisies, miniature pink carnations and baby's breath accented with miniature ivy.

The flower girls were dressed identically and each carried a white wicker princess basket filled with rose petals.

The mother of the bride wore a floor length two-piece gown of silver chiffon with a jacket of imported English netting. The mother of the bridegroom selected a formal gown of dusty rose crepe with a fitted skirt. The mother of the bride had a lavender orchid on her purse and the bridegroom's wore a lavender cattleya orchid. Grandmothers were given white rose corsages.

MRS. KENNETH HAROLD SMITH

Tanya Hart presided at the register and Mrs. Jack Dail directed the ceremony.

A reception was held in the Red Room at the Greenville Moose Lodge after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. James E. Manning greeted guests.

Assisting in serving were Peggy Walker and Barbara Pollard.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombbeck

If you are naive enough to think that all men and women are created equal, just go to a graduation exercise sometime and look at the graduates all dressed alike.

For a ceremony that is supposed to be universal and dedicated to the principle of conformity, it's a crock. Even in academia, there is no democracy. If you are short, if you have a chest, if you have a head that is not flat... forget it. Graduation exercises are not for you.

The gowns are basically your one-size-fits-all. All of what? All of whom? No one knows. True, the arms are ample. (I only knew of one girl who had to let the sleeves out.) But the Doctoral candidates wear silk with velvet trim. The Masters wear silk with a gown that closes at the front. The Bachelors wear something that wrinkles when the light hits it and holds in the heat like a silo. Their sleeves are designed to weigh down the collar so that halfway through the ceremony it shuts off the air to the windpipe, making breathing impossible.

Graduation gowns — all of them — were basically made for tall persons who weigh no more than 80 pounds at graduation. If you are short, you will have to either keep your shoulders lifted or cross your arms over your chest during the entire ceremony.

Speaking of chests, I used to wonder why pleats were a part of the traditional graduation costume. Now I know. Revenge. It's time to punish all the buxom girls who had three dates every Saturday and made their professors forget they were married and had small children. Pleats on a well-endowed girl make her look like she is about to faint backwards.

I've done a lot of thinking about mortarboards. I never want to see the man who invented them. I have never seen anyone wear one who looked like he was mentally capable of finding his or her own car after graduation.

Historically, I can find no reason for them and can only assume they were used by masons to carry cement to spread around with their trowels. How they got to the heads of learned men and women is a mystery. There is something unique about them. They don't fit a human head! I have seen girls jam bobby pins and clips in them.

Music was provided by Otto Dykstra. Tim Devinney sang several selections.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Winston Wooten.

A wedding brunch was given Saturday at Margaux's by aunts and uncles of the bridegroom. The parents of the bridegroom entertained at a pig picking after the rehearsal at their home Friday evening and the bride was honored at a bridesmaids luncheon at the Colonial Inn. Hostesses were Frances Manning, Martha Tingen and Nanny Mae Manning, aunts of the bride.

The couple will live near Ayden after a wedding trip to St. Croix, Virgin Island.

The bride attended Meredith College in Raleigh and the bridegroom graduated from N.C. State University.

Queen Elizabeth I died in 1603.

row at one time. The amount of yarn needed for a row will vary according to the type of design. If your instructions do not give you this information, you will have to experiment to determine the necessary length. As a general rule, your yarn will need to be one and a half to two times the width of your fabric.

At least the first row of your pattern should be started in the center of the fabric. Thread a tapestry needle with your yarn and pass the needle under the center float. Pull the yarn up so that half of it is to the left of the float and the other half is to the right of it.

Follow the design chart and weave the needle under the floats, working from right to left. Try to keep a smooth even tension and do not pull the yarn tight, so that your work will not pucker.

At the end of the row, pull the needle off the yarn and thread it again with the other end of the yarn strand that you left at the center of your work. Turn your work upside down and again work from right to left, thus completing the row.

Subsequent rows may be started at the right edge if you are working on a small project. On a wide piece, such as an afghan, however, you will probably find the yarn length more manageable when you start every row in the center.

If you can manage to use just one long strand all across a row, the loose ends can be secured under the hem you will make on the side edges when the piece is completed. Or, if the item is to be lined, loose ends can be woven under floats on the wrong side. If neither of these methods is suitable for your project, you can carefully weave in the loose ends at the beginning and end of rows on the right side.

This is fast becoming the newest rage in a constant revival of ancient needle arts.

Pat's Pointers

By Pat Trexler

If you have always envied your friends who knit or crochet beautiful afghans but have neither the skills nor the time to do the same, here's your chance to be the talk of the town with this stunning Swedish Weave Afghan! If you can thread a needle, you can quickly learn the simple skills needed to create this exciting home accessory.

All you need is two yards of monk's cloth, a tapestry needle, simple design chart and five skeins of variegated Wintuk yarn.

To obtain directions for making the Swedish Weave Afghan, send your request for Leaflet No. WL-50183 with $1 and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Pat Trexler ("The Daily Reflector"), P.O. Box 810, North Myrtle Beach, S.C. 29537.

Or you may order Kit No. WK-50183 by sending a check or money order for $27 to Pat Trexler at the same address. Each kit contains instructions and all necessary materials for making the afghan, with shipping charges included. Designer's choice of Mexican Fiesta Colors will be sent unless you prefer blue tones or autumn leaf tones.

If you can thread a needle and follow a simple design chart, you can quickly learn Swedish weaving, which is also known as Swedish darning or huck weaving. In fact, you may remember, as a child, having worked this type of design on a fabric known as huck toweling.

Huck toweling is a cotton or cotton blend fabric with vertically raised threads called floats. On huck fabric, you do the weaving with embroidery floss. On the more loosely woven monk's cloth, which is used for the afghan featured today, knitting yarns are used.

There really is very little to learn in Swedish weaving, so I will try to cover all of the basic information you will need in this column. If you plan to order the leaflet or kit offered with today's column, you will receive all of the necessary instructions. If not, however, I suggest that you clip and save this column so that you can later try a Swedish weaving project on your own.

To prepare the fabric, particularly the loosely woven monk's cloth, turn under and hem any cut edges to prevent raveling. If you are making a garment, it is probably a good idea to wash the fabric before starting to weave in case it has not been pre-shrunk.

Whenever possible, it is preferable to cut your yarn long enough to complete a full

Medicine Is Bitter

There are now positive signs the recession is lifting, and a few comments are in order.

We recall the slow decline of economic indicators presaging the slump. It took as many as seven or eight months of decline, while the public wondered and waited for the impact to reach them.

It did; with the slowdown of econome activity and unemployment reaching the double-digit level.

It was totally reasonable to,anticipate long months (of near despair) during a gradual upturn of "indicators" before the change would be actually apparent to the public at large.

The medicine was bitter. But runaway inflation was halted and fiscal sanity at least briefly restored within the ranks of business and various levels of government.

There's got to be a lesson in all of this.

The practice of overspending and over-taxing (save in times of extreme national emergency) is not conducive to economic health. There are limits to what a healthy economy can endure, and imposition of strain can have only unhealthy impacts on the whole system.

Congress finally got around to work-making legislation; but, even before the results of those good intentions are put into effect the signs are growing the "cure" will actually be visible to all before the "remedial" measures are put into actual practice.

Lastly, as previously implied on these pages, it appears unlikely the new economic prosperity and industrial bases in this country will ever again be the same as 10, 20 or 40 years ago. The system has seen so many "shakeups" and "shakedowns" that new ways of doing things are replacing the old, and we're going to have to live with that.

How well we adapt is going to tell a lot about what the future holds.

Annual Prospect

Pity the fruit growers of North Carolina. Each year they face the prospect of a freeze or frost which can destroy the fruit blooms on their trees and devastate the crop.

It has happened again in North Carolina this year for the peach growers. The late freeze did heavy damage to peaches. The apple crop was damaged to an unknown extent.

It was the second year in a row that the peach crop has been hit by freezes. Apples were cut by two-thirds last year, but the damage is not expected to be that severe this year.

The effect of the freeze is disastrous to the fruit grower who stands to sell his crop at a profit — or have nothing.

The consumer will also be affected since short crops can mean higher prices for the fruits.

Spring Has Been A Disaster

SCRABBLE, Va. — At this point in time, as the Watergate boys used to say, tradition decrees that I must produce a column about spring in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia.

It is a nice tradition. The writer who has been shut in for months with El Salvador and the Exclusionary Rule yearns to get outside with the dogwoods and tulips. He seizes upon the chance to wax lyrical about blue skies and warm earth, about bluebirds and purple martins, about peach blossoms and all the tender tints of spring.

Aaargh! This spring has been a disaster. This is the best that can be said about it. It has rained, and rained, and rained. The winds have blown, and blown, and blown. Night after night we have seen the thermometer fall below freezing. The dogwood buds, tight as clenched fists, are just beginning to open.

Blue skies? Who can remember blue skies? Day after day our skies have been as gray as old sweat shirts. Warm earth? The earth is as cold as a tax collector's eye. Yes, the bluebirds are back, but so are the cowbirds. We redecorated the martin house with new carpets and chintz curtains, whereupon the sparrows moved in.

I am sore at the dog. She is a small blond sheltie, name of Happy, with limpid brown eyes and an outgoing personality. The other day I drove in from three hard days on the road, and there on the front lawn was Happy having tea with a rabbit. They had spread a cloth under the maple. They had hot buttered biscuits and orange marmalade. I mean, really! The rabbit took off when she saw me coming, and Happy sulked for the rest of the afternoon. I don't expect her to chase the resident rabbits, and certainly not to terminate them with extreme finajity, but these tea parties have to stop.

The firewood is wet. Ordinarily we close the damper in the kitchen fireplace about April 15 and call it quits for the season. Not this year. Since the first of March we have gone through two cords of firewood — well, one cord, anyhow — and all the romance of an open fire has gone up the chimney. I dropped a heavy locust log on my right foot. That is the foot with the gout.

Nothing is going on in the garden. I heard that Myrtle Falls, who lives on the next farm, managed to get her peas planted in between downpours, but almost everyone else has been out of luck. We did get in a dozen rows of lettuce — nice, neat, straightaway rows of lettuce — but then eight feet of rain fell and the straightaways look like S-curves. It wasn't exactly eight feet. It was more like 12 feet. In one night.

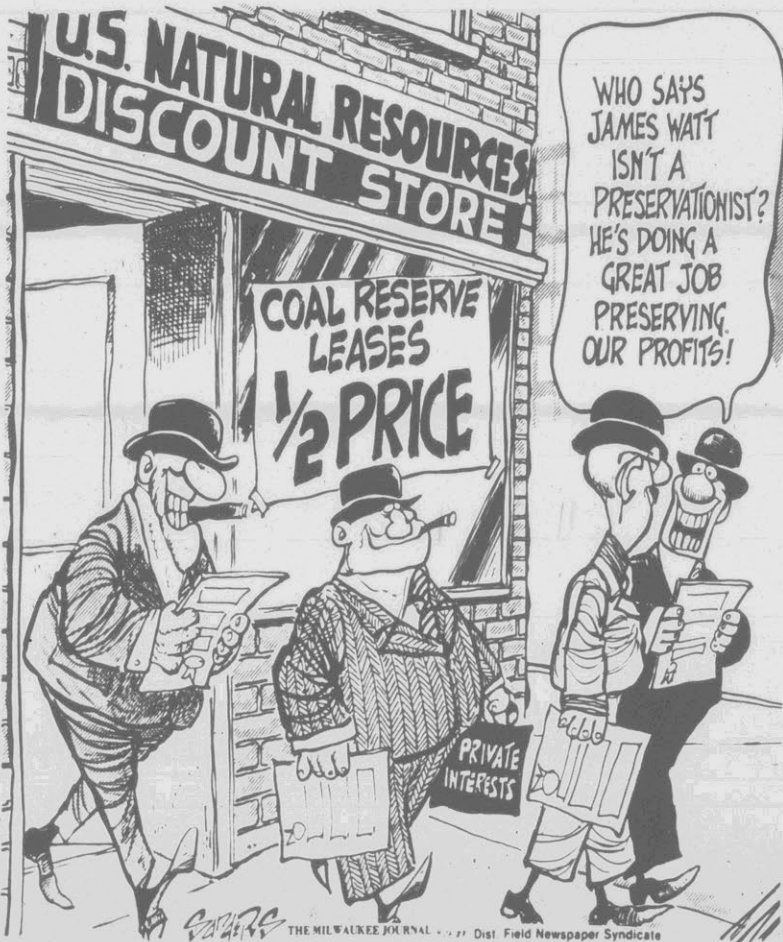

You wouldn't believe the wind. In one of those fits of enthusiasm that afflict us now and then, a few years ago I became an amateur vexillologist and erected six flagpoles. If you have six flagpoles, you want to run up flags on them. Right? I have now lost the flags of Florida, Colorado, New Mexico, Portugal and Guam. One big gust of wind last week ripped a grommet out of Scotland. I never lost a grommet before. So I have suspended the flag-flying business, and I can tell you nothing looks nakeder than a line of cold and empty flagpoles.

I mentioned the rabbit that Happy was having tea with. This is the same rabbit. I am certain, that has been eating the sorrel in the herb garden. My wife put a small protective silo of rat wire over the remaining roots, and a groundhog, or something, came along and kicked over the silo. Nothing is growing in the lawn but dandelions and thistles. If wild onions commanded a market, we could make a fortune.

What's the good news? It's been too cold for the blacksnakes to emerge. That's something. The delectable mushrooms we know as merkles have popped out. This weekend the swollen streams should make for great canoeing. Down in the greenhouse a small forest of seedlings is growing. The bass reportedly are biting down in Madison County. Before long we will welcome summer, but as for the spring of 1983 — it never was.

Defense Stand Reflects Glenn's Gamble

DAVENPORT, Iowa — At the final event of the six-day swing following his declaration of candidacy, Sen. John Glenn startled a gathering of Democratic activists here with the offhand remark that "we must rebuild our defense structure" — reflecting the calculated gamble in his presidential campaign strategy.

"I had to ask myself if he really said that," one party stalwart from Davenport told us. Not in recent memory has a Democratic presidential hopeful sounded like that in crucial Iowa. Its impact was heightened because Glenn, hurrying his speech to make a live television date, forgot his customary, though hedged, endorsement of a "mutual and verifiable" nuclear freeze.

Glenn's failure to denounce defense spending is one of many stances that puts him right of his presidential rivals, but also reflects his gamble: that liberal special-interest groups do not embrace all Democrats and that there are millions who will respond to Glenn's call for "old values that I like to stress." There were signs along Glenn's early campaign trail that the gamble might pay off.

Among the "old values" listed by Glenn at a Little Rock, Ark., fund-raiser were "patriotism, integrity and concern for others." Normally, such values are suggested more by the old astronaut's straight-arrow demeanor than by words. That fits his strategists' belief that presidents are elected neither by organization nor program but by the voter's perception of the candidate's character.

Glenn certainly would not stand muster by the American Conservative Union. He hits most current liberal-labor stops: nuclear freeze, domestic content, ERA, environmentalist and civil rights enforcement, repeal of Reagan tax cuts, opposition to the MX.

But without dramatic emphasis, Glenn periodically reveals these heretical thoughts: "We do need more money for defense," probably a 6.5 percent increase; verifying Soviet adherence to a nuclear freeze may prove impossible; "I have supported and will continue to support aid (for El Salvador) at present levels" and "I do not want to put communists in the government in El Salvador." Most shocking, he is unapologetic about his 1980 apostasy in voting against SALT II (though he now supports the treaty because of improved verification procedures).

Filtered though these heresies are by anti-Reagan rhetoric, Glenn's audiences get the message. Conservative Democrats attending the Little Rock fund-raiser hosted by multimillionaire investment banker Jack Stephens made clear to us they regard Glenn as the only nominee — including their own senator, Dale Bumpers — conservative enough to carry Arkansas against Ronald Reagan.

Front-running Walter F. Mondale's campaign planners have counted on help carrying Arkansas from Gov. Bill Clinton, partly because Stephens supported Clinton's Republican foe last year. But the view in Little Rock is that Clinton might prefer a truce with the powerful Stephens. In conservative Arkansas, the Glenn campaign's gamble is no worse than even money.

The odds are considerably longer in Iowa, where Glenn is a late starter in putting his organization together. Mondale is the candidate of the network — organized labor, school teachers and courthouse politicians — that controls the state's internal Democratic politics. Although Mondale's momentum here may have crested for now, Sens. Alan Cranston and Gary Hart are far ahead of Glenn in courting party activists.

But as Glenn jet-stopped the state on his first real Iowa campaigning, there were signs of those non-doctrinaire Democrats his strategists are counting on. His crowds, though small, did not consist merely of comparison-shopping party activists but newcomers who could be the vanguard of a big Glenn turnout at party caucuses next March.

Moreover, many Iowa party activists, concerned by the loss of two straight U.S. Senate races with liberal candidates, are more worried about finding a winner than testing liberal pedigrees. After hearing Glenn in Waterloo, County Supervisor Carroll Hayes told us: "He sounds like a moderate, and today that may be good for him." If Hayes is correct, Glenn's puny organization could prove less significant than his image as the candidate of "old values."

Worker Participation Plans Can Help

WASHINGTON — Industrial robots. Electronic bank tellers. Office word processing systcms. In the name of increasing U.S. productivity, these and other innovations could prove extremely disruptive to the American work force.

Yet there are other paths to improved productivity. One is called "worker participation." Though no Marxists, Japanese business leaders have incorporated employees' ideas, opinions and stock ownership as a matter of policy, with undisputed results. Unfortunately, as John Simmons and Williams Mares revealed in "Working Together," their recent study of U.S. labor/management problems, American managers have under-emphasized such cooperation in the lunge for a 64K-RAM solution.

Yet an improbable booster of labor's role, the New York Stock Exchange, found that those U.S. firms with employee participation programs averaged a 20 percent increase in productivity during the 1970s, about 10 times the overall national rate. That the same period witnessed substantial workplace computerization only underscores the benefits of worker participation.

"It's the people, not the hardware," said Simmons, who teaches at the University of Massachusetts. "We're still mesmerized by the conventional wisdom that greater capital investment holds the key to out-gunning Japan."

Last month, the Bureau of Labor Statistics altered its measurement of productivity to reflect more precisely the influence of technological innovations, managerial decisions and other seemingly unquantifiable factors on the nation's output — an official recognition that productivity means more than plant, equipment and time clocks.

But it could be years before the cooperative style widely practiced in California's Silicon Valley (by, for example, employee-owned Hewlett-Packard) is standard practice — and even longer before it creates jobs for those displaced by robots, electronic tellers, and office computers.

Two researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology suggest that American homeowners haven't adopted long-term conservation habits since the

Strength For Today

Nearly 2,400 years ago a Hebrew psalmist wrote, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills, from whence cometh my help. My help cometh from the Lord, who made heaven and earth."

No simpler and more straightforward statement of faith has ever been made. In the expression of both God's power and of his readiness to help, it utters an unforgettable formula that has brought strength and comfort down through the ages.

We are living in a prosperous period which tends to make us conscious of our own powers. But when the crises of death and tragedy strike, then we become aware of how feeble our self-dependence really is.

We lift our eyes to different hills from those of the psalmist, but to the same Lord. And the same help is there, as it always has been and always will be.

The Heritage Day Celebration at Bethel Elementary School on Wednesday, April 27, 1983, was a memorable day. The students had a first hand opportunity to see craft demonstrations and memorabilia of the past.

This special day of activity was made possible through the supportive efforts of both school personnel and community involvement in planning and participation.

I would like to express my appreciation for all of the support from the Bethel community and surrounding areas. This day was but an example of how a school can be enriched and move forward when the community becomes involved.

To the editor:

Thank you for commenting on ECU's workshop, "Alternative Careers for Teachers," which was canceled due to a lack of interest. I am always amazed when confronted with those who think that teachers only teach because they cannot get anything better. Of course, there are a few of those poor souls in our midst who are not there out of choice. But, as in any profession, they are soon weeded out. Some do not make it past student teaching; others leave after a year or two.

Every professional fills his position because he/she feels that he is meeting a need. The farmer derives his satisfaction from knowing that his crop will find its way to the consumer; the salesman feels he is providing something that his patients: the list is endless. The teacher, whether on the primary or the university level, provides a need, also. We provide knowledge, or more importantly, the tools for acquiring knowledge.

The one thing that sets teaching apart from all other professions is that our product or service is permanent. Governments can rise and fall, economies can flourish or fail, weather can be mild or devastating, yet once knowledge is gained it can never be taken away.

Sure, I saw the notice about the workshop at ECU, and I saw the cancellation. Why should I, or any teacher, want information about alternative careers? We are underpaid, and many days we drag home, tired and discouraged because of a lack of support and understanding. But no one can take away the thrill of seeing that "light bulb" come on in a young face the thrill of seeing that "light bulb" come on in a young face or the eagerness in the eyes of the older student as his goal or the eagerness in the eyes of the older student as his goal becomes a reality. I am proud to be a teacher, and I say to those who follow, "Come only if you dare to meet the challenge."

As mother of Steve Dail, who was chosen youth of the year from the Boys' Club of Pitt County, I would like to thank those involved in the decision they made. His father and I are very proud of Steve and pray and hope he will always stand true to his belief in God and the Boys' Club Code.

Before our boys joined the Boys' Club, I never knew anything about the club. But during the orientation and getting to know the staff members, Chet Emerson, Steve McKinney, Lucky Harris and Leonard Moritz, and see the supervision and discipline they give while the boys are at the club, I learned a lot from watching these men with the boys.

All of the games and other activities are well supervised and disciplined in a way that is fair and honest to all the boys who attend.

If I have to be somewhere that our children can't be with me, then they go to the Boys' Club and I don't have to worry where they are. There is someone (adult) with them all the time.

Again, I'm very proud for Steve to be able to represent the Boys Club of Pitt County.

Re: N.C. Highway 43 East.

Speaking for myself and many others who travel this highway regularly into and out of Greenville, I trust and hope the work mentioned in the April 9 News and Observer article (which tells of the awarding of a $1,109,005 contract to Barrus Construction Co. of Kinston for resurfacing 7.1 miles of primary and secondary roads in Pitt County, Greene and Beaufort counties) will include widening and resurfacing this highway.

This is an extremely dangerous route. Vehicles are constantly running off the shoulders of the narrow stretch from Edgecombe County into Greenville. Evidence of this can be seen all along this stretch.

With the coming of the East Carolina Medical School, in connection with Memorial Hospital and students and families traveling to and from East Carolina, there is no doubt the traffic has outgrown this highway. All other routes I have traveled into Greenville, 13, 264 and 11, are good highways. Why not 43?

Housing Auth....

Greentree Village townhouse development here was closed on April 26. Laney said that work is expected to begin immediately on the new units, located behind Hardee's on 10th Street behind King's Ros apartments.

The Westminster Co. of Greensboro will build and manage the new development. The authority formed the Greenville Housing Development Corp. to serve as a vehicle for providing tax-exempt bond financing for Greentree.

In other business, Laney reported that the 40-unit conventional housing project slated for the West Meadowbrook area should be ready for bids by September or October. The units will be built on scattered sites in Meadowbrook, according to Laney, who said the design phase of the project is proceeding.

Laney said that all 60 units in the University Towers mid-rise for the elderly were rented during April and 108 units authorized under the section 8 moderate rehabilitation program were leased. He said 98 units authorized under the existing housing segment were leased during the month.

Sallye Streeter, director of resident affairs, reported that three temporary vacancies existed at the end of April among the authority's 702 housing units. Average rents included: N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), $92.77; N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), $101.10; N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood), $94.65; N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood), $109.23; N.C. 22-5 (Hopkins Park), $74.29; and N.C. 22-6 (Newtown), $79.14, for an overall average of $91.57.

During the annual elections session prior to the regular meeting, commissioners re-elected Dr. Patricia Rice as chairman and Roscoe King as vice chairman for the coming year. Laney was re-appointed secretary-treasurer.

The Greenville Housing Development Corp. also met and re-elected Dr. Rice as president. King as vice president, and Laney as secretary-treasurer.

Dr. Andrew Best, who is leaving the board after completing some 20 years of service, was presented an engraved plaque in recognition of his services. Best served four five-year terms, broken by one-year absences at the end of each 10 years.

from county appropriations must be increased by $437,258 or 21.5 percent." This increase, he noted, compares with the projected overall increase of 5.58 percent.

"The reason for the disproportionate increase in county appropriations (request) is that we are exhausting the $269,919 in fund balance appropriated this fiscal year. To maintain this year's level of service, this fund balance must be replaced by county appropriations."

During the current school year, the board approved the use of $320,000 from the fund balance to pay for staff members not possible to fund from county appropriations.

Without approval of the $269,919 fund balance request, programs in the city's elementary schools would be the heavy losers.

"Failure by the county to replace fund balance would result in the loss of half our locally funded teaching positions. This would mean the loss of all special elementary teachers in art, general music, orchestra, band and physical education, plus all elementary guidance positions," Blinson pointed out.

Commenting on the $520,283 local capital outlay fund request, Blinson said "our recommended expenditures represent less than half of the documented needs. We feel this is reasonable" in that some of the needed projects can, and should, be spread over several years. Full funding of our projected expenditures over a five year period would meet these needs.

"Thus, we propose a 62.7 percent increased in local capital outlay." Blinson called the items proposed in the capital outlay fund "irrefutable needs. With anything less, we are not maintaining our investment in facilities and equipment."

Comments from persons attending the public hearing session included Martha Coffman's statement: "I feel strongly that the needs of exceptional children should be maintained. We need to have a consultant at the high school level and there are other pressing needs as well."

Rose High band leader Ben Ferguson told the board, "I hope you can continue to give needed support to the band, the orchestra and other music programs in the schools. Our students have won many honors, and have performed here and in many areas of the state."

Saying "I was a part of the school board group that appropriated all that fund balance money," Dr. Jon Tingeistad added, "I heartily endorse your efforts on the budget you will present to the county commissioners. My feeling is that we really need to move ahead, that we can't afford to stay where we are."

Duke Prof Seeks Heart Transplants

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A surgery professor at Duke University Medical Center hopes to start performing heart transplants by late summer or early fall, and another surgeon is laying the groundwork for a possible artificial heart program at Duke.

If Dr. Andrew S. Wechsler's plans for a transplant program are realized, Duke will become the 11th center in the nation that replaces failing hearts with organs from donors.

The Duke program will get underway if increased supplies of a new drug used in transplants become available this year as expected, Wechsler said in a telephone interview.

"Most heart surgeons, from time to time, encounter patients who have end-stage heart diseases for which there is no available treatment," Wechsler said. "Sometimes these patients are young and highly productive."

"Even with the high cost of transplants, it would be cost-effective to return them to productive life rather than face a life of repeated hospitalization and ultimate death," he said. He estimated the cost of a heart transplant at $35,000 to $55,000.

Wechsler said an advantage of having a heart transplant center in North Carolina is that hearts can survive only four to six hours between removal from a donor and being implanted in a recipient. The closest centers to North Carolina are in Richmond, Va., and Birmingham, Ala.

Wechsler said he expects

Duke to perform about 20 transplants a year once the program is operating.

The market tone for next week's trading is steady to firm and the live supply is moderate for a moderate to good demand. Average weights desirable. Hens RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) (NCDA) — The North Carolina hen market was lower. Supplies adequate. Demand light. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds at farm for Monday and Tuesday slaughter was 15 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market declined again today, adding to Monday's losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 21.87 Monday, fell 5.03 to 1,199.30 by noon.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 3 to 2 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Brokers said the market, apparently due for a pullback after a sharp rise in April, got a downward push Monday when an influential Wall Street firm turned cautious on the outlook for stocks.

Barton Biggs, a managing director of Morgan Stanley & Co., said his firm had shortened its list of recommended stocks by half. After the market's recent surge, Biggs said, "I am inclined to be considerably more cautious about fresh buying."

Today prices drew some support at midmorning from traders who evidently had been waiting for a decline to do some buying. But an hour later the market was sinking again, sending the Dow Jones industrial average below 1,200 for the first time in a week.

Hecia Mining led the active list, up 1/2 at 22 1/2. A 500,000-share block traded at 22 1/2.

The NYSE's composite index dropped 37 to 92.67. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was down 1.18 at 421.46.

Volume on the Big Board came to 37.18 million shares at noon, against 42.51 million at the same point Monday.

Authorize Contract For Repair Of School Roof

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer
School board members Monday night authorized Superintendent Delma Blinson to draw up a contract covering appropriate arrangements with Robert C. Dunn Co. for the resaturation of a portion of the roof at Greenville Middle School.

Dunn was low bidder, at $6,700, for the roof project. Two other bids, at $8,512 and $7,576, were received.

In a report, Director of Grounds and Buildings Bob Stewart detailed statistics on school bus drivers in Greenville and Pitt County as well as nationally.

According to Stewart's report, Greenville currently has 23 adult drivers and eight high school student drivers. In Pitt County, the number is 20 adult drivers and 148 student drivers.

Thirteen accidents involving school buses in the two school systems have taken place this school year, nine in the county and four in the city. Of the four city accidents, two have involved adult drivers and two high school students.

"This indicates that the adult driving record is no better than the high school student driving record," Stewart commented.

Addressing the opinion of those who opt for all adult drivers, Stewart said there are several drawbacks to employing adult drivers. The primary one is that adult drivers have to be transported from school to home and returned to school between morning and afternoon runs. Another drawback mentioned is that "adult drivers are not available on short notice during the day if needed for things like closing schools early because of weather or in other emergencies."

Stewart mentioned, too, that at $3.68 per hour, the pay for adult drivers amounts to $55.20 a week, which he said was not sufficient to always insure a sufficient supply of adult drivers.

Touching on two factors being discussed at state level relative to school buses, Stewart said consideration is being given to requirements for no standees in buses and safety belts for all students.

"This would have a tremendous impact on busing and busing casts in North Carolina," Stewart said. "It would require adding another five buses in Greenville and another four to five thousand buses statewide. You can imagine the cost that would entail."

In executive session, board members approved the career status of 16 teacher personnel beginning with school year 1983-83. These are people who have satisfactorily completed three years of probationary teaching in the city schools. Additionally, the board accepted the resignation of one teacher.

Special Course To Protect Embassy

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Marines scheduled to relieve current U.S. peacekeeping forces in Lebanon have been given special training to protect the U.S. Embassy against terrorist attacks, their commander said Monday.

"There is special training that has been earmarked, specific things that deal with the rules of engagement and patrols, together with security and engineering aspects," said Col. Tim Geraghty, commander of the 24th Marine Amphibious Unit.

Geraghty would not elaborate on the specifics of the training received as a result of the embassy bombing two weeks ago, but said the training was directly related to the attack.

Geraghty, whose unit will leave Camp Lejeune later this month to relieve Col. James Mead's 22nd MAU, emphasized the Marines' primary mission as peacekeepers, saying their priority role is to provide the Lebanese Army with the assistance required to provide control in its own country. But he acknowledged that terrorist activity is always possible.

Moncrief Leads Bucks To Oust Celtics

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sidney Moncrief, who showed again why he might be the best guard in the National Basketball Association, also is a pretty fair prophet.

About 10 days ago, Moncrief told a teammate that he thought the Milwaukee Bucks not only could win their playoff series with Boston, but beat the Celtics in four games.

The Bucks achieved the improbable — some might say the unthinkable — Monday night. Led by Marques Johnson with 33 points and Moncrief with 25, the Bucks whipped the Celtics 107-93 to win their best-of-seven series in four successive games.

The capacity crowd of 11,052 at the Arena, picking up on a tradition of Chicago White Sox fans, taunted the Celtics with organ-led renditions of "Na-na-na-na! Na-na-na-na! Hey, He-ey, Goodbye!" at game's end.

The Celtics trudged to their dressing room as losers of a best-of-seven playoff series for the first time in the franchise's glorious history. The Bucks, who won a best-of-seven series for the first time in five tries under Coach Don Nelson, advanced to the Eastern Conference finals against the 76ers, starting Sunday in Philadelphia.

Elsewhere in the NBA playoffs, Denver cut its deficit to 3-1 in the Western Conference semifinals with a 124-114 victory over San Antonio. Los Angeles, leading Portland 3-1, plays host to the Trail Blazers in Game 5 tonight.

"I felt we had the potential to win in four games," Moncrief said. "The way our club has been developing, with Bob Lanier coming back, and after watching the Celtics in their series with Atlanta, I just felt good about our chances."

"And I think we can play better," he said. "We only shot about 45 percent, although I don't think our defense can play any better."

Celtics guard Danny Ainge, booed almost every time he touched the ball after Nelson had called him a "cheap-shot artist" last week, said he couldn't imagine the Bucks playing any better. "Whatever five players they had on the court played great," Ainge said. "They played as good as they can play. It's hard to beat a team like that when they're playing as well as they can."

The Bucks fell behind by eight points early, but quickly recovered behind 15 first-quarter points by Johnson and led 46-37 at halftime.

Celtics Coach Bill Fitch, desperate for more scoring punch from his guards, started reserve M.L. Carr in place of Ainge to open the third quarter. But Carr couldn't stay with Moncrief, who broke free for two quick layups as the Bucks widened their lead to 53-38 less than 2½ minutes into the third quarter.

The spread reached 67-47 late in the period before the Celtics, using various forms of trap defenses, briefly closed to within 10 points.

However, Johnson sank a 20-footer as the third quarter ended. Junior Bridgeman scored on a drive and a long jumper and Brian Winters sank a 15-footer as the Bucks regained control at 82-65 with 10:40 to play.

"Their trap gave us some problems for a while, but we had a nice lead and I wanted us to spread it out and work some clock," Nelson said. "Marques hit two big jumpers in that series that were really important."

Nuggets 124, Spurs 114
Kiki Vandeweghe scored 37 points and Mike Evans added a career-high 23 to help Denver stay alive against San Antonio.

"I guess that we are still buried alive, but we're coming back to life," Denver Coach Doug Moe said. "We've actually had three pretty good performances in a row, and our players are getting healthier. You can't get the fourth one until you get the first one."

The Spurs now go back home for Game 5 on Wednesday night.

Evans sank three jumpers as the Nuggets ran off 10 straight points to take a 26-14 lead with 4:53 left in the opening quarter. Evans, who played only half of the quarter, scored 13 points and Denver held a 40-29 edge at the end of the period.

After the Spurs cut the deficit to six, they went scoreless for four minutes while Denver scored 14 straight points for a 66-44 lead. It was 72-50 at halftime.

Johnny Moore, who led the Spurs with 27 points, had 13 of them in the third quarter as San Antonio cut the deficit to 98-85 at the end of the quarter. In the final period, the closest the Spurs got was six points in the last minute.

UNC'S Smith Enters Cage Hall Of Fame

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (AP) — North Carolina basketball coach Dean Smith was inducted in the Basketball

Hall of Fame Monday, saying his entry into the hall of honor was red-faced.

"This is a great privilege and honor, but I'm also embarrassed," said Smith. "There are so many great coaches in the game."

Dwarfed by the three forwards, Smith, a guard on the 1952 University of Kansas team that won the NCAA championship, said "I'd just like to thank the 140 lettermen who made this possible."

In his 22 years at North Carolina, Smith's teams have a 496-153 record and he is one of only two coaches in the game's history whose teams have won the NCAA and NIT championships and the Olympic Gold Medal.

"The Hall of Fame is not something that coaches think about," Smith said. "When I got out of Kansas, I never pictured myself doing anything more than teaching math and maybe doing a little high school coaching."

Bill Bradley and Dave DeBusschere, teammates on the New York Knicks championship teams of the early 1970s, were also inducted into the Hall as were former Cincinnati star Jack Twyman and two pioneers of the modern game, now dead, referee Lloyd Leith of San Francisco and Amateur Athletic Union leader Lou Wilke.

"Others had more talent. We played together," said DeBusschere, now the Knicks general manager. "The selfishness and chemistry that developed between eight individuals that represented the Knicks was really something the people could identify with."

"This is the first time in history that two individuals from the same team, who played the same position, have been inducted together and that is a very special honor," he said.

Bradley, now a U.S. senator from New Jersey, leaned against Knick Center Willis Reed's stained-glass plaque in the Hall and described the teamwork of those teams as "as close to a perfect experience as I could imagine in basketball."

A two-time All-American at Princeton and Rhodes Scholar, Bradley was the first basketball player to win the AAU's Sullivan award as the nation's outstanding amateur athlete before beginning a scrambling 10-year pro career with the Knicks in the National Basketball Association.

The Senate, he said, "is not a lot different. You are working with a group of people for a common goal. That's the Democratic process."

With the installation of Bradley and DeBusschere, four members of those 1971 and 1973 championship teams are now in the Hall of Fame.

DeBusschere, one of the game's best defensive forwards during his 11-year pro career in Detroit and New York was presented for induction by Reed. Bradley was introduced by Jerry Lucas, the former Ohio State All-American and Hall of Famer, who shared the pivot spot with Reed.

Twyman, the third player to be inducted Monday, also remembered a teammate.

"There is no question that Maurice Stokes would have been a Hall of Famer," Twyman said outside the special memorial to his Royals teammate that he helped establish in the basketball shrine.

Twyman, a standout at the University of Cincinnati, who averaged 19.2 points a game during his 11-year pro career with the Royals in Rochester and Cincinnati, became Stokes legal guardian when he was stricken with encephalitis in 1958. He cared for his teammate until Stokes' death in 1970.

Duke Aide To Uofs

DURHAM (AP) — Duke University assistant basketball coach Bobby Dwyer has been named head basketball coach at the University of the South in Seawane, Tenn.

Dwyer replaces Rick Jones, who resigned following an 8-17 season. Dwyer will assume his duties September 1, South Athletic Director Water Bryant said.

Dwyer, a 1974 graduate of Wake Forest where he played three years and captained the team his senior year, has been a Blue Devil assistant the past three seasons after being an assistant at Army five years.

"After eight years as an assistant, it was the right time for a change," Dwyer said. "I am confident of my ability as a head coach. The position at the University of the South was very appealing to me. I'm excited about the opportunity to run my own program."

ECU Sports Hall Nominations

The East Carolina University Sports Hall of Fame is seeking qualified nominees for possible induction for the 1983 class and classes thereafter.

To qualify for induction, one must have brought outstanding recognition to themselves and to the university by their participation in East Carolina University intercollegiate athletics. A nominee must not have been connected with the university in the capacity for which the nominee is being elected for a minimum of five academic years.

The Sports Hall of Fame Committee is especially interested in nominees of years prior to the 1960's.

Anyone wishing to submit a nomination should do so by June 1. Complete information regarding the nominee's participation in ECU's athletics should be included, along with current mailing address for the nominee.

All nominations should be mailed to: ECU Sports Hall of Fame, c/o Office of Athletic Public Relations, Minges Coliseum, East Carolina University, Greenville, N.C. 27834.

Smith Chosen For Marlowe Award

BURLINGTON — Ken Smith, East Carolina assistant athletic director for public relations, has received the North Carolina Association of Sports Broadcasters "J. Robert Marlowe Award."

The award is given annually for outstanding contributions to sports broadcasting and service to the NCASB. Smith is an associate member of the organization at this time, but prior to his association with ECU was a full-fledged member, serving on the board of directors for radio. He was in charge of the "Ray Reeve Award" presented to outstanding sportscasters on radio and television for their community service.

In addition to the award to Smith, ECU track performer

Nathan McCorkle was recognized by the association as the Outstanding 3-A High School performer for the most recent high school season completed. McCorkle is a freshman from Newton and attended Newton-Conover High School.

Smith, while in charge of the ECU athletic sport promotion and sports information department, has continued to work with radio, being in charge of the Pirate Sports Network and handling color for the men's basketball broadcasts and the play-by-play for women's basketball. Jim Woods, who handles play-by-play for football and men's basketball is also a former Marlowe Award winner.

Leonard Ends Yank Jinx

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Over the past five years, Dennis Leonard has been one of the best pitchers in the American League. But he could not beat the New York Yankees.

Since whipping the New Yorkers on Aug. 24, 1978, Leonard had lost five straight until he combined with Dan Quisenberry in a 4-1 Kansas City victory Monday night. Leonard swore he did not know exactly how long his Yankee streak had stretched.

Lloyd Moseby and Willie Upshaw hit two-run homers to power Toronto to a 6-5 victory over Texas, and Ben Oglivie extended his hitting streak to 15 games as he drove in three runs on a sacrifice fly and a single in Milwaukee's 8-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the only other American League games Monday night.

"Five years? I honestly didn't realize that," the hard-throwing right-hander said. "I knew the Yankees were one of the teams I have a career losing record against, but I just haven't faced them that many times, either," Leonard said. "They've always had a good left-handed-hitting team. I sure didn't know it had been five years, though."

Leonard, 3-2, went seven innings giving up five hits and recording two walks and two strikeouts. Yankee starter Bob Shirley, who shut out the Royals last week in New York, retired the first eleven batters before Kansas City erupted for four straight hits in the fourth, including two-run home runs by Amos Otis and Leon Roberts. Otis, home run followed Frank White's single. Roberts' smash followed Hal McRae's double and bounced off the foul pole in left field.

"What usually happens when you hit a ball into the corner is you get too much top hand on it and it goes foul," said Roberts. "I'll hit 20 or 30 down the line in a year and most of them will go foul. I was just fortunate that the wind kept that one in play."

The Yankees scored in the seventh when Butch Wynegar doubled and scored on a single by Roy Smalley. In the ninth, against Quisenberry, New York loaded the bases with two out on Graig Nettles' double, Oscar Gamble's infield single and a walk. But Quisenberry, earning his fifth save, ended the game by getting Ken Griffey on a fly ball.

Yankee Manager Billy Martin used three relief pitchers, Rudy May, George Frazier and Rich Gossage, to quell a Kansas City threat in the eighth. Gossage retired McRae on a fly ball with the bases loaded and two out.

"They came in and did a good job," Martin said of his bullpen. "I'm happy for Goose. It's got to be a confidence builder."

To show controversial plays on electronic scoreboards, or not to show them. That is the question.

Buzzie Bavasi, general manager of the California Angels, pledges his club will forge ahead with them, especially after several close calls contributed to the Angels' 10-9 loss Sunday to Boston. The Pittsburgh Pirates, however, have promised to be more selective.

"We've protected them (the umps) long enough by not putting the replays on scoreboard," Bavasi said. "Well, we're going to start putting them up. That's all there is to it. Sure, we blew a 6-0 lead (Sunday), but they (the umps) helped. Some of those calls were pretty ridiculous."

But Harding Peterson, general manager of the Pirates, is ready to go the other way after meeting with umpire Harry Wendelstedt and his crew between games of Saturday doubleheader against San Diego.

Wendelstedt's umpiring team was angered by three replays shown on the Three Rivers Stadium scoreboard.

"We're not so vain that we don't want anybody to know if we've missed a play," Wendelstedt said. "But we all have families. And we don't need to encourage any of these people to throw anything. I'm proud of what I call. It's not whether or not I made a mistake. It's what it provokes."

Wendelstedt said Peterson assured him that no more controversial plays would be shown. And June Schaut, a Pirate employee in charge of the scoreboard, said there had been no attempt to embarrass the umpires. "I blew it," she said. "I just blew it."

However, Bavasi believes the umps were the ones who blew it in Anaheim and intends to show the next mistake on his scoreboard. If he does, he will run afoul of the umpires association and its general counsel, Richie Phillips.

"This has been a problem for some time," Phillips said. "It really started about five years ago in Atlanta when the umpires had to leave the field for about a half hour because the replays caused cups and bottles to come flying down. I protested to the league presidents and they agreed that teams should not show controversial plays on the scoreboards."

Phillips said if clubs did not comply with that rule, the umpires might order games forfeited.

"If something like that happens and the umpires felt their physical well-being endangered, they will forfeit the games," he said.

"Both league presidents have been under pressure from the clubs to loosen up on the plays they can show. They want to use the bang-bang plays, and I can understand that. But the umpires refuse to be placed in jeopardy for the sake of the scoreboards."

first inning and Moseby hit his third in the third to snap a 4-4 tie.

Toronto reliever Randy Moffitt worked three innings to record his first save of the season after three victories. In 82-3 innings this season over six games, the veteran reliever, who pitched his way onto the Blue Jays in spring training, has allowed only one hit and no runs.

Moffitt came into the game in a tight spot, taking over with runners on first and second and no one out. He struck out Bell, then got Parrish and Hostetler on grounders.

"I wonder when it's going to end," said Moffitt. "This was my longest outing and also my most satisfying. You can't start the season and expect a start like this. It has helped my confidence and I think it has helped the team."

Moffitt felt he had an edge over the Texas hitters.

"I knew that Bell is one of the toughest hitters in the league, but I guess I've got a slight advantage because this is the first time I've seen these guys. I put the ball where I wanted it to go."

Texas Manager Doug Rader, who faced Moffitt in the National League, said the pitcher has changed his style.

"He doesn't throw like he used to," Rader said. "All he's throwing now is breaking balls."

Coach Out At Baptist

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—Baptist baseball coach Bill Bustle will retire following the Buccaneers' season finale against Armstrong State at home May 3, the college announced.

Bustle, 63, is completing his 12th season as coach at Baptist with a lifetime record of 176-175-2.

Baptist, with the two games today left to play, is 8-21 this year, their second losing season in a row. The Bucs finished 18-19 last season.

In announcing his retirement Monday, Bustle said, "That time comes in everyone's life if they live that long. My health is not what it was and I feel by coaching as I did when I played when you can't give 100 percent, then you are depriving someone else of that position."

Bustle was named associate baseball coach at Baptist in 1971. He became head coach, the next year after Coach Bill Kerr suffered a stroke.

Bustle was also grounds department superintendent until 1980.

He is the father of former ECU football assistant coach, Ricky Bustle, now with the USFL's Arizona Wranglers.

There were nine knockdowns in the first round of the 1923 heavyweight title bout between Jack Dempsey and Luis Firpo. Dempsey knocked out Firpo in the second round.

Power Shows He's Got It As He Hurls Reds To Win Over Phillies

By The Associated Press

The Cincinnati Reds have finally fielded a power-packed lineup ... with Gary Redus and Eddie Milner supplying the power hitting and Ted Power supplying the power pitching.

Power, a burly 28-year-old right-hander, got his first start of the season Monday night — he had pitched only four innings previously — because Mario Soto, the ace of the Reds' staff, was ailing. He came through with his first complete game in seven major league starts — Power was 2-4 in parts of 1981 and 1982 with the Los Angeles Dodgers — as the Reds defeated the Philadelphia Phillies 5-2.

"I wasn't sure I could last nine innings because I hadn't pitched very much," said Power, who tamed the Phillies on seven hits.

In other National league action, Nolan Ryan struck out 12 in 72-3 innings before suffering was appeared to be a severe hamstring pull as the Houston Astros edged the New York Mets 3-2 and the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1.

Power had only two bad moments against the Phillies. In the first inning, the Phillies got a single, walk and double from the first three batters, good for one run. Pitching coach Bill Fischer came out and talked with Power, who promptly struck out Mike Schmidt and Tony Perez and retired Garry Maddox on a grounder.

With two out in the seventh, Power gave up a single and double, bringing out Manager Russ Nixon.

"I had no intention of taking him out," Nixon said. "I wanted to give him a break, let him get his thoughts together again."

"Russ gave me a second chance and I was able to take advantage," said Power, who got Pete Rose on a grounder.

While Power, who was purchased from the Dodgers' Albuquerque farm club in the Pacific Coast League last October, was becoming the first pitcher to go the route against the Phillies this season, Gary Redus, fresh off the disabled list, hit two home runs and Eddie Milner hit one.

Redus, who had been out three weeks with a groin injury, led off the third inning with his third home run of the season to snap a 1-1 tie and Milner followed with his first of the year.

Astros 3, Mets 2

Nolan Ryan struck out 12 batters and scattered nine hits before leaving in the eighth inning with a pulled hamstring and Ray Knight drove in the tying and winning runs with a homer and sacrifice fly.

Ryan, who struck out 10 or more in a game for the 146th time in his career and broke Walter Johnson's 56-year-old major league career strikeout record last week, boosted his career total to 3,521 as he fell to the ground after firing a third strike past Wally Backman for the second out in the bottom of the eighth with runners at second and third.

The Astros snapped a 2-2 tie in the eighth against Mets starter Mike Torrez on a single by Dickie Thon, a stolen base, an infield hit by Jose Cruz and Knight's sacrifice fly. Knight's second home run of the season had tied the score in the sixth.

"I'm going back to Houston on Tuesday and let my doctors examine the injury," said Ryan, who has 3,521 career strikeouts. "It wouldn't surprise me if I'm out at least two to three weeks. As soon as my leg touched the ground it just popped. It was like somebody shot me."

"I didn't feel anything all game long. No tightness, nothing. I never had an injury like this. Pulling a leg is a pretty serious thing to a power pitcher. It's got me worried."

Pirates 5, Dodgers 1

Rick Rhoden scattered nine hits, Dave Parker and Lee Mazzilli each drove in two runs and Tony Pena homered for Pittsburgh. Parker, who had driven in only one run all season, collected his RBIs on a grounder in the first inning and a double in the third. Mazzilli and Lee Lacy and each collected three hits to pace Pittsburgh's 14-hit attack against Jerry Reuss and two relievers. Lacy, the NL stolen base leader, swiped his 14th and 15th bases but also was caught for only the second time this season.

Pair Take Putt Win

The team of David Beacham and John Lowe took first place in a best ball tournament held last night at the Greenville Putt-Putt Golf and Games.

The duo carded an 82, 26 shots under par. They aced nine of the last ten holes for the score.

Second place went to the team of Jake Loftin and Mike Shane, who carded an 87, 21-under-par. Third were Ron Newton and Alan Elder with a 89, 19-under.

Jack Quinn of the 1929 Philadelphia Athletics was the oldest pitcher ever to start a World Series game. Quinn was 45 years, three months and seven days when he started the fourth game of the '29 series against the Chicago Cubs.

Traded Elway Links Bronco Pact

DENVER (AP) — Stanford quarterback John Elway, who threatened to play professional baseball rather than join the Baltimore Colts, has signed with the Denver Broncos, saving "I'm glad to be playing in the NFL."

The Broncos acquired Elway from the Colts Monday for offensive lineman Chris Hinton of Northwestern — the fourth pick overall in the National Football League draft — the 'Broncos' 1984 first-round draft pick and quarterback Mark Herrmann. Elway, picked No. 1 by Baltimore in the draft, had said he would sign with the New York Yankees organization rather than play for the Colts.

"I'm definitely thrilled to be here," said Elway, who flew to Denver for a news conference Monday night. "It's something I didn't expect to happen. I'm glad to be playing in the NFL and I'm glad to be playing for the Denver Broncos."

Edgar F. Kaiser Jr., owner of the Broncos, said Elway was signed to a series of five one-year contracts, but he would not disclose financial terms.

Kaiser said he had contacted Colts' president Robert Irsay on draft day, made a tentative offer for Elway and was told "to keep in touch," he said. On Monday, Kaiser called Irsay again and completed the deal in day-long negotiations.

"The trade was good for both football teams," Denver Coach Dan Reeves said. "They (the Colts) were happy with what they got and we were happy with what we got."

"I think this is a great deal. I'm glad, first of all, that he's in the NFL, and if he's playing in the NFL, I thank God he's going to play with us."

Reeves, a former player and assistant coach with the Dallas Cowboys, added, "He has a quality I've seen in only one other quarterback, Roger Staubach. He can win a ballgame strictly with his arm. He's the best quarterback I've seen since I've been a coach starting in 1970."

Elway said he spent Monday morning "sitting by the phone" after learning from his lawyer of the talks between the Colts and the Broncos.

Elway, an All-America at Stanford, is considered one of the premier passers in college football history.

But he also is a top baseball prospect who hit .318 in a six-week stint last summer with the Yankees' minor-league team in Oneonta, N.Y. Elway said before last week's NFL draft that he did not want to play for Baltimore, but the Colts selected him anyway.

Elway's lawyers refused to talk to Colts officials, however, and announced they were close to signing a multiyear contract with the Yankees.

At the news conference, Elway said that unless the Colts traded him this week to a West Coast team or to a league contender he would go with the Yankees.

"If nothing happened in one more week, I was going to sign with the Yankees," Elway said. "It's not that I thought, 'God, not the Yankees,' but my preference was to play professional football."

Reeves said Elway could start for the Broncos next season but would have to oust the team's No. 1 quarterback, Steve DeBerg, for the job.

"Obviously this improves the team," said Reeves. "But we'll have to be balanced to win. I like to believe a quarterback can carry a team a little bit, but it boils down to having a good supporting cast."

Elway finished second in NCAA career total offense with 9,070 yards and third with 77 touchdown passes. He also set NCAA records of 784 completions in 1,243 passes, only 3.13 percent of which were intercepted, another national record.

Elway, whose father Jack is head football coach at San Jose State, passed for more than 200 yards 30 times in his career — another NCAA record — went over 300 yards 10 times and 400 yards twice.

His 1982 figures were 262 completions, 405 attempts, 3,242 yards and 24 touchdowns.

Tourney Winners

The winner of the 1983 pre-season softball tournament was the team representing Pizza Transit Authority. Members of the team are: (first row) Joe Narron, Whit Bradham, Charlie Rose, Eddie Rhodes, Don Phillips, Doug Phillips and Lucky Harris. (Back row) Dwight Tart, Jeff Cargile, Bob Peak, Greg Milton, Mike Hogan and Burton Robinson.

Broncos Excited About Signing Of John Elway

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos' players were enthusiastic about the team's signing of Stanford quarterback John Elway following a three-player trade to the Baltimore Colts, but at least one questioned whether a rookie could start immediately in the National Football League.

Elway had been picked No. 1 in the collegiate draft by Baltimore, but had said he would play professional baseball before he would play for the Colts. Monday, it was announced he had agreed to be traded to Denver in exchange for reserve quarterback Mark Herrmann, No. 1 draft pick Chris Hinton, and the Broncos' 1984 first-round selection.

Wide receiver Steve Watson said he would be surprised if Elway started right away. Steve DeBerg currently is listed as Denver's starting quarterback, and Coach Dan Reeves said Elway would have to take the job from DeBerg.

"The offense is too complex," a Gillette, Wyo., radio station late Monday night. "It takes a veteran quarterback to line an offense. John is going to have a tough time, but he has great ability."

Watson and five other

Bronco players — including DeBerg — were in Gillette Monday night to play in a benefit basketball game. DeBerg declined to comment on the Elway signing.

Trainer To Saddle Up Three For Derby Run

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "It's a quality game not a quantity game, but we think we have the quality," says trainer Wayne Lukas, who feels he isn't just playing a numbers game in the Kentucky Derby.

The California-based Lukas will be the first to saddle three horses in the Derby since 1946 when he sends Marfa, Balboa Native and Total Departure to the post at Churchill Downs in Saturday's 109th running of America's most famous horse race.

"There's no pressure when you're here and you have one that can run," said Lukas, who saddled Partez and Muttering in the previous two Derbies without success. "But when you're here with a horse that can't run there's pressure. I think they belong."

The most highly regarded of Lukas' charges is Marfa, a rambunctious colt, who has won three of nine starts this year, including the Jim Beam Spiral Stakes and the Santa Anita Derby.

Because of Marfa, Lukas' entry is the likely favorite for the 1 1/4-mile test for 3-year-olds. The withdrawal Monday of highly regarded Copelan, who was injured in the Blue Grass Stakes last week, and Noble Home, who has contracted a fever, will probably lower the odds on the Lukas entry. But Marfa is suspect because of his inability to keep a straight course.

Lukas is a part owner of Marfa along with Texas businessmen Bob French and Barry Beal. They named the colt after a small town in Texas, which, incidentally, is celebrating its centennial on Derby day.

Lukas' stable appeared to go into decline until Marfa, Balboa Native, and Total Departure came around in recent months.

Balboa Native, owned by Robert H. Spreen, has won two of five starts this year, including the Louisiana Derby March 27. The son of Native Royalty "is a one-dimensional horse, a stayer who's going to run down horses in the stretch," according to Lukas.

Balboa Native is coming off a seventh-place finish in the April 16 Arkansas Derby, but he could be running at the finish if there is a realistic pace, Lukas said.

Total Departure, owned by Reblot Stable, was beaten by a head by Caveat in last Saturday's one-mile Derby Trial. The son of Greek Answer finished fourth in the Santa Anita Derby after scoring his first victory this year in the Baldwin Stakes at Santa Anita March 23.

What a difference a spot or two can make! Had South's ten of spades been a low card, he would have had no opportunity to be clever, and he would have been forced to make his slam!

South's opening bid of two diamonds was an intermediate two-bid showing a hand of 7-8 winners. Thereafter, the auction was natural, and North-South landed in an aggressive slam.

The bidding had revealed the fact that West's king of spades was likely to be a liability, so he found the deceptive lead of the jack of spades. Had declarer not been dealt the ten of spades, his only play would have been to take the spade finesse. That would have worked like a charm.

Not unreasonably, though, declarer assumed that East held the king of spades. Now the fact that he held the ten gave him the chance to be clever in return. Declarer rose with the ace of spades and immediately returned a low spade from the table. He hoped that East would think that his partner's lead was from the jack-ten and therefore not play the king. That would allow declarer to steal the fulfilling trick with the ten of spades.

A clever plan, and it might have worked had East held the king. But as the cards lay, West won the king of spades, led a club to his partner's king, and a spade return now promoted West's jack of trumps to a trick. So the laydown slam went down two tricks!

MTM Productions Make TV MemorableBy FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost anything worthwhile in television today goes back to "Mary Tyler Moore" — not the actress, but the classic comedy and the production company that bears her initials, MTM Enterprises.

The best dramatic series today is "Hill Street Blues." Before that it was "Lou Grant." Both came from MTM. "Hill Street" won the Emmy in 1981 and 1982. "Lou Grant" copped the award the two years before.

This season's top new dramatic series is "St. Elsewhere," and the classiest of the new detective shows is "Remington Steele." Both are MTM productions. (Both are on tonight on NBC.)

The top new comedy on CBS is "Newhart," also from MTM. Although NBC's "Cheers," this season's most praised comedy, isn't from MTM, its independent producers, Les and Glen Charles, learned their craft at MTM, working on "Phyllis" and "The Bob Newhart Show."

And the forces behind "Taxi," which won the Emmy for best comedy three years running, also can be found on the MTM family tree:

Jim Brooks and Allan Burns created "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "Rhoda" and "Lou Grant." Ed Weinberger and Stan Daniels worked on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and created its spinoff, "Phyllis."

"MTM has a deserved reputation for taste, class and content without sacrificing commercial appeal," says Josh Kane, a programming executive at NBC and now CBS. "There is an atmosphere of creativity and independence there that brings out everybody's best work."

During a recent interview at MTM with Greg Hoblit, co-executive producer of "Hill Street Blues," it was impossible to ignore the screams and pounding from down the hall. "That's just the writers disagreeing with each other," Hoblit said.

The writers and producers at MTM say the fertile environment starts at the top. Grant Tinker, now the chairman of NBC, began the company and named it after his wife (they've since divorced). Mary Tyler Moore. When Tinker moved to NBC, Arthur Price became head of MTM, and he's maintained Tinker's philosophy of providing a comfortable, non-interfering climate for people to work.

"Arthur Price is one of the most extraordinary men I've known," said Bruce Paltrow, executive producer of "St. Elsewhere," which has its final original episode tonight. "I'm at this company because they support their creative people."

Paltrow recalled how the first pilot for "St. Elsewhere" had been a disaster. "I had gotten off on the wrong foot," he said. "I asked Arthur if I could do it over. He said OK. It only cost him $1 million. Where else can I get that kind of creative support?"

In the recently released Television Audience Assessment survey, which surveyed TV's emotional and intellectual stimulation, "Hill Street Blues" was the highest scoring series. A popcorn program like "Fantasy Island," from producer Aaron Spelling's stable, was near the bottom. "Spelling makes great Fiats," says Paltrow, whose "St. Elsewhere" has been swamped in the ratings by Spelling's "Hart to Hart." "He does what he sets out to achieve."

So does MTM.

Subcommittee Wants Records Open To The Public

By MARY ANNE RHYNE
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Birth, death, marriage and divorce records should remain open for scrutiny by the public and the press, a legislative subcommittee decided Monday.

But certified copies of those records should be guarded more closely because they can be used to establish false identities, agreed the subcommittee of the House Health Committee and the Senate Human Resources Committee.

The compromise language was drafted by the North Carolina Press Association, the N.C. Association of Broadcasters and state Health Director Dr. Ron Levine. The journalists expressed concern earlier that the public would be denied access to the records.

"The illegal use of birth certificates would be curbed and prevented for those trying to establish false identifications," Levine said of the compromise. "I feel we have narrowed considerably the types of records that should be held in very close confidentiality."

Under the draft legislation approved by the subcommittee, the state registrar would make public all vital records except birth certificates for adopted people or people in the federal witness protection program.

The registrar would provide certified copies only to people requesting to see their own vital records or records belonging to their spouse, child, parent, brother or sister. Certified copies also could be given to people seeking information in a legal matter.

The registrar could charge up to $3 for making a certified copy of a vital record or for conducting a search of files for the records.

The register of deeds in each county would file copies of birth and death certificates that would be open to public inspection.

As originally written, the bill would have limited access to vital records to family members, genealogists, health researchers or people involved in a legal case.

The bill, a rewrite of existing public health laws, contains several other controversial provisions.

One deals with how to dispose of animals in county shelters — put them to sleep or sell them for medical research. That question is expected to be decided when the subcommittee meets next week.

Levine has recommended that the subcommittee not decide the matter because a House bill has been introduced to forbid selling dogs and cats from shelters to research laboratories.

Other provisions adopted by the subcommittee Monday would allow county health departments to adopt rules more stringent than state rules except in the area of standards for restaurants and motels.

Another provision would allow the state Personnel Commission and Division of Health Services to set qualifications for local health directors. Several subcommittee members expressed concern, however, that state officials not require health directors to be physicians.

In other legislative action: Auditor

The House referred to the Appropriations Committee a bill to revamp the state auditor's office. Rep. Richard Wright, D-Columbus, introduced the bill in an attempt to insulate the auditor's office from possible intimidation and to free it from possible conflicts of interest.

FOCUS

And They're Off!

It's Derby Festival time in Louisville, Kentucky—the annual week-long celebration that will end on Saturday with the running of the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs. Since the first running of the Derby in 1875, this mile-and-a-quarter race for three-year-olds has been one of the most exciting events of the racing season. In that first race, Aristides scored a victory and won a purse of $2,850. In 1941, Whirlaway netted $61,275. Last year, Gato del Sol brought home $417,600. In 1919, a horse named Sir Barton won not only the Kentucky Derby but two new races as well: the Preakness Stakes and the Belmont Stakes. He became the first of only eleven "Triple Crown" winners in racing history.

DO YOU KNOW—What horse was the last "Triple Crown" winner?

MONDAY'S ANSWER—On the average, it costs $15,000 to feed and guard a prison inmate for a year.
